Your customer may not know the difference
...but you do.

As a pharmacist—you know that neither generic drugs nor trademarked drugs are any better than the demonstrated reliability of their manufacturers. The important thing, from the standpoint of the physician and his patient, is not how the product is named but how expertly it is made.

BACKGROUND TO PAINTING

In the 17th century the populace was largely illiterate. The art of that time was not only decorative but was also a valued teaching method. In this particular painting Christ is shown as a successful proprietor of a well stocked pharmacy. Here he dispenses Christian virtues from pharmacy jars which are appropriately labeled Faith, Hope, Patience, Watchfulness and Joy. Other canisters and jars on the shelves proclaim additional Christian virtues. Christ is weighing a crucifix, symbol of His death for the sins of mankind against the influence of the beastly Anti-Christ mentioned in Revelations which is trying to drag the balance down. The left hand of Christ is reaching for crosswort with which to tip the balance in favor of the penitent sinner. The Lamb of God stands on the book of sacred decrees. Biblical references to health and well-being are quoted from Matthew, John, Isaiah and the Psalms. The penitent Christian presenting his soul to Christ is carrying a ribbon banner which reads, "My sins are heavy and overwhelming, and grieve me from the heart."

From the late 16th century until about 1800 it was the custom for a pious German apothecary to commission a local artist to paint Christ as an apothecary. Similar motifs were woven into tapestries or made into stained glass windows. Research reveals that there were perhaps 70 such genre paintings in existence many years ago—all of Germanic origin. The few remaining today are preserved in museums and used as church altarpieces in Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Sweden and France.

Stanback Company, Ltd.

Headache's Bane for 58 Years

It all started in 1910 when a young pharmacist, Thomas Melville Stanback, compounded his first Stanback Headache Powder. From this small beginning has grown one of North Carolina's largest and most respected proprietary drug manufacturing companies. Today the Stanback Company and its slogan "Snap Back with Stanback" are known all over the United States.

Stanback's success story was not written overnight. It is a long story whose chapters reveal the determination, hard work and perseverance of its founder and his brother, Fred J. Stanback, who joined him in 1924 to form the partnership that is now Stanback Company, Ltd.

The first product, Stanback Headache Powders, was introduced to the public by over-the-counter sales at the Rowan Drug Company in Spencer, N. C. Tom Stanback also enlisted the aid of his railroad friends who carried word of the product out from the railroad center of Spencer. Gradually the merits of this product became known to more and more consumers. The potential of Stanback Powders was soon realized by its founder and his brother, who became the first salesman. As Fred Stanback gradually secured wholesale and retail distribution in other areas, more salesmen were added and additional territories opened in the southeastern states. Soon the tiny manufacturing plant located in Spencer proved inadequate, and in 1932 the operation was moved to a much larger location in Salisbury. Although additions have been made to the building, this plant is still the home office and center of manufacturing for the company.

Times were hard in those depression years, but the popularity of Stanback Powders increased during the thirties. The Company was one of the early users of radio advertising and it combined the heavy use of this media with point-of-purchase advertising and direct sampling of the product to introduce Stanback in an ever-widening area. Furthermore, the Company's method of merchandising an inexpensive drug item through a wide variety of retail outlets was an innovation that led to its rapid growth in this period.

World War II years saw shortages of chemicals, packaging materials . . . and gas and tires for salesmen. At the same time, however, Southern servicemen and Southern workers, who moved to defense plants in the North and West, carried the demand for Stanback all over the country.

In 1946 the Company introduced the Stanback formula in tablet form; and though powders are still the Number one seller, tablet sales make up an important part of the sales volume.

The firm branched out in a different direction in 1959 when it introduced Chap-et. This fast-growing antiseptic lip balm for chapped, dry lips is manufactured and packaged at the Salisbury plant. In the relatively short time it has been on the market Chap-et has grown to be one of the leaders in the field.

Two years ago Stanback Company added another item to its analgesic line with the introduction of Stanco Aspirin Tablets. Stanco was test marketed for many months and is now being distributed nationally by the Stanback sales force.

While Stanback Company now distributes its products in the fifty states, all manufacturing is carried on at the Salisbury Plant. The founding partners, Tom and Fred Stanback, are still active in the management of company operations along with their sons, William C. Stanback and Fred Stanback, Jr., who are also general partners. An administrative staff in Salisbury supervises the activities of a field sales force of over 100 salesmen who devote their full time to the sale and promotion of the company's products.

Drug Costs, Practical Tips On Using Prescription Drugs Discussed In New Consumer Booklet By PMA

"The Medicines Your Doctor Prescribes" is the title of a new 8 page letter-sized booklet published by the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

Intended for wide distribution among consumers of prescription drug products, the booklet discusses the relationship of the doctor, the pharmacist and the patient in prescription drug use. It points out that such drugs actually are "medical treatment in product form."

PMA's Consumer Information Specialist, Mrs. Sue Boe, in a foreword explains, "doctors know that different formulations of the same active drug ingredient often are available. The physician's medical judgment determines his choice among them. However, the pharmacist cannot know which specific product the doctor has selected nor will the doctor know in most cases which product the pharmacist dispenses, if only the generic name is given on the prescription. These are the reasons why more than 90 per cent of all prescriptions written specify either the drug's brand name or the name of the manufacturer."

The publication offers a number of practical tips to insure the safe and effective use of prescription drugs, and suggests that consumers not only budget the cost of health as a literal "living" expense but also consider pre-payment insurance for prescription drugs.

Copies are available upon request to PMA, a non-profit scientific and professional trade association representing the manufacturers of 95 per cent of the nation's prescription drug products.

BENICK RETIRES

in The Charlotte Observer

John W. Bennick quit school when he was 14 years old to become a delivery boy for Scott Drug Co. That was January 13, 1913.

Monday Bennick retires as president of the wholesale drug firm.

During his 56 years with the company he was a billing clerk, pricer, buyer, chief buyer, sales manager and vice president. He became president in June 1967.

Bennick, who says he got his education in the "college of hard knocks," was in his office early one morning last week. Jacket off and shirt sleeves rolled up to the elbows, he took time out to talk about changes in Charlotte and the drug business over the years.

In 1913 when he was delivering drugs on a bicycle, only one or two people in Charlotte had automobiles and the only paved streets were within two blocks of the Square.

Most of the city's wholesale businesses were along College Street (Scott Drug moved from there to 2923 S. Tryon in 1954) and most of the transportation was by rail.

Then the trucking business got going here and, according to Bennick, brought the "greatest change" of the century to Charlotte.

Buddy Horton carried textiles to New York in the '20s and came back with empty trucks. "Then they started bringing back our stuff," Bennick recalled.

Horton's truck got the orders back in five days; it took the train 10 days.

"Most of the stuff we sell today we didn't even know about 10 years ago," Bennick said in the precise, straight-forward, hurried way of a man who has learned to make the most of his time.

The worst epidemic he experienced was the Spanish flu siege that hit the Carolinas in 1918. There were no remedies for that sort of thing then, Bennick said.

Alcohol was used, but not very successfully. Hundreds died. "There's been nothing like that since," the white-haired executive said.

"The average person doesn't take as many drugs today as he used to because drugs are more effective now," he said. "It cost more per dose, but you get more cure for your money."

And there's more opportunity for a young man to succeed now than in the early part of the century, according to Bennick.

"If he's got determination and wants to work. There's only one thing—a young man now needs a college degree."

But that "only gives you something to build on," he said. Hard work and determination are still the keys.

In retirement, Bennick said he will do "not a thing I don't have to." A farm near Boone and activity in the Shriners will keep him busy.

In retirement, Bennick will enjoy gifts received in a series of presentations last week. Two came from the families of the two founders of the company—John M. and Walter Scott. They were a painting of the old Scott Drug Company building on College Street and a color television set.

The company gave him a painting of the old Southern Railroad depot on College Street. Company employees gave him a reclining chair and the company's sales force presented him with a bronze plaque with an engraving of the present Scott building and a radio.

A new president of Scott Drug which this year became a subsidiary of Beverly Enterprises of Los Angeles, has not been named.

PHARMACY & THE FLU SEIGE

Daily prescription records, some going back ten to twenty years, were broken during the flu seige in December and early January. Percentage increases of 50% or more were common in the Rx categories used in the treatment of coughs, colds and upper respiratory ailments.

Although antibiotic sales zoomed and cough syrups, aspirin, etc., were in short supply, most pharmacists were able to provide needed medication without delay.

By mid-January the peak of the flu seige appeared to have been reached. As usual, manufacturers quickly adjusted to the increased demand for their products by rushing additional shipments of needed drugs to their wholesale and retail outlets.

Many pharmacies remained open over the Christmas and New Year holidays in order to meet the prescription needs of their customers.

"HK" or however you may identify the upper respiratory ailments that have been in our midst for the past sixty days put a severe strain on the medical services of the state, but with the understanding co-operation of all concerned, no major disaster developed or appears on the immediate horizon.

MISSING: ONE CREDIT LINE TO LILLY'S GEORGE SLAVIN

The 6-page feature "An In-Depth Study of a Profit and Loss Statement" which appeared in the December issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy was prepared by George F. Slavin, Jr., Editor of the Lilly Digest.

An appropriate credit line to the author should have appeared along with the feature but such was not the case. If you have not already done so (the Journal was delivered during the Christmas rush), we recommend careful study of Mr. Slavin's remarks, starting on page 12 of the December Journal.

RESEARCH FOUNDATION FUND DRIVE UNDERWAY

The 1969 campaign for contributions to the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation is now underway. Letters to previous supporters of The Foundation have been mailed and the county chairman setup is being completed under the direction of Dr. George P. Hager, Secretary of The Foundation.

In pointing out the need for support, Foundation Secretary Hager referred to the current enrollment of 485 undergraduate students and 31 graduate students—largest in the School's 73-year history. This is about double the School's average enrollment over the past ten years.

This past year a total of 351 contributions, averaging $20.00 each, were received by The Foundation. Non-individual contributions were slightly over $9000.

Foundation support is urged. Contributions in any amount may be mailed to: George P. Hager, Secretary, School of Pharmacy, UNC, Chapel Hill, N. C. 27514. Make your check (it is tax-deductible) payable to: N. C. Pharm. Research Foundation.

STACY SMITH NAMED HONORARY DIRECTOR

F. Stacy Smith, President of The Dr. T. C. Smith Company, Asheville wholesale drug firm, has been elected an honorary director of the Bank of Asheville.

Mr. Smith has been a director of the Bank's board for more than 33 years. The Bank of Asheville is the largest independent local bank in Western North Carolina.

MUSICAL FAMILY

Someone mailed us a copy of Asheville's Central United Methodist Church Bulletin (Dec. 22) with complimentary remarks about Pharmacist Virginia Callahan and her daughter, Beecy.

The Bulletin lists Virginia and Beecy as members of Central's Chancel Choir. Both appeared during a presentation of "The Messiah"; Virginia as a Contralto; Beecy as a Flutist.

It is not often we find a mother-daughter combination such as the Callahan Family, and from the comments by our WNC news reporter, their musical talents are far above the average.

LILLY ANALYSIS SERVICE BEGINS 37th YEAR

Forms for participation in the Lilly Analysis Service are currently being mailed to the nation's pharmacies, according to G. F. Slavin, Jr., editor of the Lilly Digest. "This year marks the thirty-seventh consecutive one of operation for the Service. As in the beginning, the Lilly Analysis Service is prepared to aid pharmacists in the difficult area of community pharmacy management."

"As the practice of pharmacy becomes more complex, more and more attention must be devoted to the management phase," Slavin continued "Through comparative analysis with averages of similar pharmacies, the financial soundness of any operation can be evaluated accurately."

The report is computer-processed, reviewed by the staff analysts, typed, and mailed within thirty days of receipt. It includes a detailed analysis of the profit and loss statement and the balance sheet, utilizing actual dollar figures, percentages, and important ratios. Attachments are included when the statistics indicate that a more complete discussion of a particular area may be useful.

The analysis is offered as a free service to pharmacists, and the data are kept strictly confidential. Anonymous statements are also processed, and reports are mailed if an adequate address is provided.

Slavin added, "The management process is generally considered to begin with fact-gathering. After the statistics are collected, they must be analyzed and interpreted—only then is management able to act." He felt that getting the operating data together for submission to the Lilly Analysis Service probably, in itself, helped the pharmacists to organize important facts. Once the material is received by the Service staff, the important analytical and interpretative phases are quickly completed. The final step in the process, the decision by the pharmacist on when and where to act, can then be taken.

To obtain a free analysis of your operation, simply send your financial statements and prescription data to the Lilly Analysis Service, Eli Lilly and Company, P. O. Box 814, Indianapolis, Indiana 46206.

CONTROLLED DRUGS

Reprinted from the Public Relations Bulletin of the Medical Society of the State of N. C.

There have been complaints that physicians are not familiar with the provisions of the Drug Abuse Control Amendments.

The Drug Abuse Control Amendments to the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act limits the refilling of prescriptions for controlled drugs to five times within a period of six months after the prescription is written. Products covered are single stimulant, depressant, and hallucinogenic drugs, as well as combination products.

"If refilling is not authorized by the physician in the original prescription, or the number of refills is less than five, refills beyond what the prescribed has authorized are not permitted."

When a pharmacist telephones the physician about a refill, he is only complying with the law. The pharmacist must obtain the prescribing physician's authorization when a patient requests a pharmacist to refill a prescription after the six-month period has expired, or the five refills have been used. The physician may, if he so desires, renew the prescription and authorize additional refills. The six-month and five-refills limitations again apply to the renewal. This is equivalent to giving a new prescription and the pharmacist must reduce the authorization to writing.

The law does not permit prescriptions for longer than six months for controlled drugs even in situations where the patient's needs are such that use of drugs is indicated over long periods of time, although it does not limit the quantity of the drugs that may be prescribed.

A comprehensive list of DACA drugs may be obtained on request from the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, P. O. Drawer 151, Chapel Hill, N. C. 27514.

"THE PROFESSIONAL FEE"

Stanley Buch, a Pennsylvania pharmacist, presents the following note to his patrons: "Ever wonder . . . how we arrive at the price? Your prescription has been filled at our cost. To that cost we have added a professional fee—for the pharmaceutical services rendered.

The carefully computed fee covers all of the following expenses:

1. Compensation for the Pharmacist.
2. Cost of containers and labels.
3. Cost of prescription files.
4. Maintenance and replacement of equipment, i.e., balances, typewriter, graduates, etc.
5. Cost of licenses, professional memberships, subscriptions, seminars, etc. (Italics used to emphasize this point, Ed.).
6. Cost of open and non-returnable packages of prescription medications which had to be destroyed because of spoilage or obsolescence.
 . . . and a portion of the overhead such as:
7. Delivery.
8. Office and administrative expense including bad debts.
9. Fixed expenses such as rent, light, insurance, telephone, etc.

In cooperation with your physician, part of our function is to advise you on suitable quantity purchase to afford maximum economy—without sacrifice of quality or service. We invite you to discuss with us any question concerning the cost or fee included in the price of your medication."

Dear Druggists of North Carolina:

In behalf of the patients in our State Mental Hospitals and Centers, thank you for your generous contributions to our "Operation Santa Claus" project. With your help, we were able to achieve our goal of gifts for every patient.

Although we make a collection of gifts only once a year, we recognize that many times during your annual inventory, you have some merchandise which you need to write off and which would be suitable for "Operation Santa Claus" gifts. Let me urge you to put these aside and either contact your local Mental Health Association or the NCMHA office in Raleigh for suggestions as to where to send them.

Although "Operation Santa Claus" is a Christmas project, the spirit of Christmas, Hope, and Love extends throughout the year. We need your continued interest and concern to be heard by the legislators so that sufficient funds will be appropriated for additional facilities for youth, for special classes for the emotionally disturbed, and for research into causes and prevention.

As we go into the new year, let us resolve that we will dedicate our efforts in behalf of the mentally ill.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ Mrs. Jean-Louise Kempton

TO FEE OR NOT TO FEE

By John Gary Newton

Prescription Center
Fayetteville, North Carolina

Recently the Squibb Council was polled as to the number using some type professional fee. One, from California in explaining his Fee, replied that to wholesale he added 40% and a fee of $2.40.

I hope that was his best price. I mean "best price" as defined in a bulletin of the Small Business Administration. Quote: "The best price is not necessarily the price that will sell the most units, nor the price that will bring in the greatest number of dollars. The best price is the one that will maximize the profits of the company. It should be high enough to make a profit but low enough to attract customers." This bureaucrat did not know it but he was describing exactly how I feel about the professional fee.

In 1961 professionalism was my only reason for interest in the Fee and time has not altered this opinion of the fee as the only Professional approach to prescription charges. Every passing year has brought a greater awareness that the Fee is necessary for the survival of pharmacy as we know it. I don't feel at all alone with this belief. Not a month passes but I receive at least one inquiry from a pharmacist who has had a chain discounter move in on him and suddenly he realizes the Fee is the only thing that can keep him eating regularly.

My practical experience (internship as it is now called) was in association with a pharmacist who priced prescriptions at cost plus a 33 1/3% mark-up; minimum prescription 45¢. In the front of the pharmacy was a fountain which we felt lost money; magazines that carried a 25% mark-up; tobaccos which sometimes were marked up as high as 10%; and many items fair traded at a mark-up from 1/3rd to 40%. This was before discount houses sold drug store-only items for what the drug jobber sells them.

Well, something was wrong. I was preparing prescriptions for less than we made on a tube of tooth paste and only accidentally by going to trade shows with hardware dealers; gift shows with jewelers; and the furniture market I realized with all their knowledge and potential, pharmacists were not completely successful as business men. In fact, it began to look as if we were becoming the pawn of manufacturers and politicians. A condition which in my opinion is more acute today than ever before.

About that time the American College of Apothecaries began talking about a professional fee. This sounded reasonable and logical but was it practical? We talked about this for a year and still didn't know how practical it was but without any announcement then or ever we tried it on all our new prescriptions. The refills we did not change for 6 months. Both these decisions were to enable us to back up if we had to. If someone brings up the question of price we try to explain anything they want to know. We have found no real opposition and I think the general reaction is summed up by a physician who said: "The fee system is a sensible way to practice pharmacy. When I write a prescription which the pharmacist prepares for 75¢ my patient feels I have not been thorough enough to make proper diagnoses; then my next patient may be an unfortunate arthritic who needs 100 Decadron and has to pay the overhead for his prescription and several others prepared for $1.00."

One client who came in for a refill asked if we charged more for less medication. I told her no, we charged less for more medication. I think she understood and agreed in principle. If you don't see the difference in viewpoint here, you will have trouble with the Fee.

We have had a few complaints—but not nearly as many in 7 years as in 18 months with the pharmacist who had the 45¢ minimum Rx. Our first real complaint was from a lady who had a prescription for 1/2 grain Mebaral. She took the tablets home and compared them to some nerve tablets her husband had been buying for years—without a prescription; and consistently we get many more reactions from clients who want us to take back drugs because so and so does it.

Our two biggest problems have come from within the medical professions. First, from the nurses who although just passing thru from California, demand a discount and more discouraging, the pharmacists who refill our prescriptions without calling us or the physician—and cut the price, sometimes to wholesale.

Our only problem in transition was that of inventory. As prescriptions gradually increased from 24 to 100 tablets, inventory increased. This leveled off within a year and probably was good in that it makes us more aware of inventory control. Pharmacist Joe King of Chattanooga (a UNC graduate) who was a fee pioneer and has never had a serious threat from discount chain competition although he is now adding his 4th pharmacy, takes a complete inventory every 6 months.

Every year our total number of prescriptions has increased. When in effect we eliminated many refills by changing prescriptions for 30 digitoxin to 100 tablets, for example, I feel this is doubly significant. Also, our average price per prescription has increased as has yours but ours is a dollar more than the $3.66 national average.

When manufacturers have reduced cost as in the case with Tetracycline, we did not have an immediate drop in income as a per-cent mark-up would have caused and when prices go up as Quinidine did last year, if anyone compared our charges they were favorably impressed. In fact, I know of 6 new accounts that came to us as a result of the Quinidine price increase. Last week one of these clients had 7 new prescriptions the same day. The fact that one of these was for 20 phenobarbital didn't matter, and I don't think any reasonable person will ever complain about a $2.00 prescription if it is all profit but many people will question a $10.00 prescription even if there is no profit—and we are back to our definition of the best price—the price which makes the most profit.

Now I want to review with you a fee analysis of 198 prescriptions theoretically priced at a 40% mark-up. The mimeographed analysis which you have was done by Dr. Mike Jacoff who spoke to the NCPA in Asheville. I'm sure you have a better business than this or you could not be here today but from some of the data from North Carolina, I've seen, some of us do little better and the rest of us don't keep good enough records to know how we are doing. I recently received data from a pharmacist who on the same day priced 3 prescriptions, each costing 85¢ for $1.65, $2.80, and $3.95.

On the top line of this mimeographed analysis you notice 25 (12.6%) of these prescriptions were prepared for an average mark-up of 43.4% yet a fee of 34¢ would give identical profit.

—on line 2, 61 prescriptions (30.8%) were prepared for an average mark-up of 40.8% yet a fee of 62¢ would give identical profit.

—Thus far 43.4% of these prescriptions were prepared for an average fee of 53¢ yet the mark-up was more than 40%.

—As we look further, the situation doesn't improve because on the $3.00 line they told him they could get it for less elsewhere and he cut his 40% to 31.9% —On the $4 line they brought in another pharmacist's container so the mark-up was cut to 29.3% —and on the $5 line they asked for a price beforehand and the mark-up became 30.6%.

—For 198 prescriptions, instead of 40% we get 34.5% and a 92¢ fee would have done the same thing.

The second set of statistics are the same prescriptions with a flat fee of 92¢ and what happened: 52% are less than $3. Only 3% are as much as $6. I put fee in quotes here because 92¢ is no professional fee but I feel this illustrates how order can be created from chaos.

At the bottom of the page I have projected the same prescriptions with a Fee of $1.50 (still low but I have seen N. C. averages that would have given a $1.32 fee). The letter you have from Lilly gives the average fee necessary in N. C. for the past few years but let's see how many people would have had reason to complain had this pharmacist marked his profit up 40% and used a $1.50 fee: —79% of his prescriptions would be less than $4. Only 3½% are as much as $6. (approximately ½ as many as with his mark-up system). Legitimate complaints will come only from this 3½% and these complaints will have no basis in fact.

A couple of you look like the little boy who dropped his chewing gum in the hen house—he was confused—but this system works. If I have made it sound simple it is because it is simple. There are no pit falls and no explanations or excuses are needed. If you offer a professional service you can get a professional fee.

As I realize that the chain discounters will soon account for more than 50% of the prescriptions in N. C., I believe I have done all that is necessary to protect my practice. I hope I never get in the situation of a Washington pharmacy that has 6 chain discounters visible from the front door, but all of us are going to have to live with this thing. And by 1970 more than 70% of our population will be eligible for 3rd party prescriptions—just think of it, if we are an average group 70 of us in this room will not have to pay for medicine after 1970—to us this will mean more paper work like the blue forms and it is going to mean a large increase in prescriptions—it's also going to mean the carrier, the people who are paying for all this will demand economy. This is going to mean a fixed fee.

Paid prescriptions in California, owned by pharmacists, has just eliminated usual and customary charges and so will everybody else to reduce their paper work; then the next step will be a maximum fee of probably $1.85 if it does not exceed our usual charge—Michigan is doing this now and equally important some carriers are using forms which show their policyholders exactly how much we charged for what and I just don't believe I can convince Uncle Harry that he should pay me more for his prescription than Grandma Moses Insurance Company is paying me for the same thing.

In retrospect I believe the fee will work for any pharmacist with sufficient self confidence to believe himself a specialist professionally trained and licensed and entitled to compensation for knowledge and service. But if you believe a Cut Rate sign enhances the professional image of pharmacy—your manner of thinking and the Professional Fee are incompatible.

In summary, I have said in my opinion:

The professional fee properly calculated results in maximum profit to the pharmacist and is the only truly professional approach to charging for pharmaceutical service.

I have inferred that as a whole we have let the manufacturers set our prices for us and have come out second best to many other types of businesses.

I firmly believe 3rd party will penalize pharmacists not offering services such as delivery, night emergency service, and patient records, and since 3rd party will virtually eliminate price competition, every pharmacist must immediately begin to develop this type service.

And, the pharmacists' own mental block is the only factor preventing the universal use of a professional fee.

I hope I have exhibited some enthusiasm which has been contagious. I don't claim to have all the answers but I welcome your questions.

Internship Program Recommendations

RECOMMENDATIONS BASED ON OBSERVATIONS

(a) Preceptors must realize they are assuming a most important, a fearful yet wonderful, responsibility when they take on a student pharmacist. They take on the responsibility of a teacher. They assist in bridging the gap between the theoretical education of the pharmacist and the practical application of his knowledge. A simple reminder of this by letter or visit to the preceptor may be most helpful.

(b) Every effort should be made by the preceptor to impart to the intern the proper ethical and moral basis for his, or her, behavior as a professional man or woman. At the regional Preceptor-Intern meeting in Winston-Salem the recommendation of "Guidelines or Minimum Standards" for preceptors was made. Serious consideration may be given to this.

(c) Closer supervision to the notebook work either on a regular review basis, conference, etc., should be made. Moreover, an evaluation of the intern by the preceptor at the end of each practical experience quarter or exposure, can be made in writing and incorporated as part of the notebook for that particular period. To assist the preceptor in this responsibility a simplified "check-off evaluation sheet" can be developed and considered for this purpose.

(d) Pharmacies in which our students train should have readily available adequate, and current references in their library. A minimum list of recommended references can be published and forwarded to each preceptor.

(e) Serious consideration should be given to the development of a suggested reasonable and comparable compensation scale, or salary range, for an extern (student receiving training prior to graduation) and intern (student receiving training subsequent to graduation).

(f) Every effort to keep the preceptor abreast of current trends, useful and helpful information to do a better job, through improved communications should be utilized. The current Board of Pharmacy's Newsletter is a step toward improvement in this communication gap. Encourage participation in whatever way necessary for preceptors, pharmacists, and interns in continuing education programs, seminars, symposia, etc.

(g) The Preceptor's Guide, published in 1964, should be critically reviewed and revised to include the new roles which pharmacy must adopt; revision aimed not only to the distributive functions of drug product control involving product orientation but also geared to assist the student to become more patient-oriented.

(h) The notebook, although looked upon by many interns as a necessary evil, has admittedly proven to be most helpful to those who have undergone this program. There is much discontent expressed with the one-day weekly activity report as well as certain projects. Revision and up-dating seems to be in order.

(i) A "placement bureau" or "clearing house" for students desiring to acquire practical pharmacy training should be seriously considered and implemented as early as possible.

(j) Even though the practical experience requirement is necessary for licensure and not for the baccalaureate degree in Pharmacy, nevertheless, more School centered supervision should be directed into this program of the pharmacy student. Undoubtedly, the recently formed Tripartite Committee is a step in this direction.

(k) The "Medication Assistants" program of the N. C. Memorial Hospital has proven very successful this summer. This program afforded the students the unique and wonderful opportunity to function actively in the clinical environment and contribute in an effective manner to the care of the patient. This experience is an excellent introduction to clinical pharmacy for our students. Similar programs should be encouraged wherever feasible and wherever facilities and personnel would permit adequate supervision and guidance to the pharmacy intern.

Report on the Pharmacy Internship Program

By Claude U. Paoloni

INTRODUCTION

Historically, the practical experience of the students has played a most important role in the education of the pharmacist. To recapitulate briefly, the evolution of the education of the pharmacist started way back when our first teachers of pharmacy were the practitioners . . . practicing pharmacists (or in some cases, physicians) who had learned pharmacy by serving an apprenticeship. The classroom in early America was the apothecary shop. It was between 1820 and the Civil War when several colleges were established for part-time students in principal cities in the eastern part of the United States. Here, instructions were often given at night mainly by lecture and discussion. The curriculum included chemistry, botany, and pharmacy practice. The apprenticeship was regarded as paramount in the education of the pharmacists. The lecture was desirable but a secondary part of the entire process. During the last third of the Nineteenth Century many new colleges were opened including the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, which was established as an academic unit of the University in 1897. Gradually a change in emphasis came about from learning-as-an-apprentice to learning-as-a-college-student. Pharmacy colleges began to accept students who had not served, or were not serving, an apprenticeship. The argument for this change was that the apprentice could learn more fully from practical experience after he had received at least some formal instructions in chemistry, botany, and pharmacy. In fact, in recent years a number of states have come to require graduation in pharmacy prior to the completion of the internship. In most states a part of the internship may be served at vacation time during the later span of college. The balance must be served subsequent to graduation and prior to licensure as a pharmacist. The National Boards of Pharmacy has endorsed this plan and recommends State Boards of Pharmacy adopt a one-year internship requirement, at least three months of which is performed subsequent to graduation. This is, essentially what we presently have in North Carolina. A student who is admitted to an accredited School of Pharmacy may register with the Board of Pharmacy under its internship program providing this time is not concurrent with the school or academic year. This experience is usually gained during the summer months after the close of the Spring semester in June and before the start of the Fall semester in September. During this period the student's practical experience is guided by a licensed pharmacist and under whose immediate and constant supervision the student practices. Also, during this period the student keeps a notebook record as part of his learning experience which is used by the Board of Pharmacy to evaluate the quality of experience gained. Conveniently, the practical pharmacy training program is so designed that any student can complete the necessary requirements and qualify for licensure three months after graduation.

This past summer, Claude U. Paoloni, Assistant Professor, UNC School of Pharmacy, traveled more than 5000 miles in visiting hundreds of North Carolina pharmacy preceptors and interns. The report covers Mr. Paoloni's observations and recommendations. The field work was performed under auspices of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy.

Currently, practical experience still remains a very important phase of the student's education. Recently, on a national level, the internship program has been severely criticized and gives one much cause for concern. From the Report of the Committee on Education of the American Pharmaceutical Association, presented in May, 1968, at Miami Beach, Florida I quote:

" . . . there is considerable doubt whether in the majority of cases externship and internship is both meaningful and valuable to the candidate preparing for licensure. Only too often, the extern or intern is considered as cheap labor and little time and attention is given him by his preceptor. There is often the misguided notion that the legal requirement of externship and internship carries with it the need to train the candidate in solid business principles. This, while it may be of future use and of value, has nothing to do with the candidate's safety and competence to practice his profession and it is, therefore, not germane to the internship program.

"The Pharmacy Preceptor's Guide, published through the joint efforts of the AACP and the NABP, is usually read only by the intern and rarely by the preceptor for whom it was basically written. Some states have made serious efforts to improve performance in the training of interns, such as has Wisconsin through its Internship Commission, but they are in the minority. The Committee feels that the correction of this perennial problem will require dramatic and forth right action.

"The Committee recommends that the NABP and its constituent boards consider the abandonment of all internship requirements and adopt in its place a six months' externship to be gained during the years of formal college training and supervised by the college as a part of the educational experience."

Needless to say, this report does not represent the consensus of pharmacists throughout our State; however, it does give us cause for much concern and introspection of our existing program.

On the other hand, about the same time, the Joint Committee on Internship of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy (NABP) and the American Association of the Colleges of Pharmacy (AACP) recognizing the inequities in the internship program and the necessity for a national uniform internship training program, qualitatively designed, reported at the meeting of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy on May 8, 1968, at Miami Beach, Florida, as follows:

"... It is time that we recognize the necessity of a national, uniform internship training program and the benefits that it would bring to the public and the profession. This will not be accomplished overnight. And, it is not to say that some fine programs do not already exist. It is to say that in far too many cases, the internship programs are so inadequate as to actually be degrading to the professional stature we should and must uphold. Even where substantial internship programs have been developed, they seem to be unduly influenced by tradition and fail to look forward to the new and changing role of the pharmacist . . ."

Here again the report of the Joint Committee on Education of NABP and AACP does give us much cause for concern. However, in this report among its recommendations was the creation of a Tripartite Committee to be formed in each state utilizing the capabilities of the profession, the school, and the Board of Pharmacy.

In North Carolina this committee has been named and is made up of nine members: three—each representing the Pharmaceutical Association, the School of Pharmacy and the Board of Pharmacy. This Tripartite Committee acts solely in an advisory capacity to the Board of Pharmacy in matters relating to internship education of pharmacists. It is hoped through this committee and through the efforts of the North Carolina Academy of Practical Instructors in Pharmacy—the Preceptors—a quality internship program can be developed for the State of North Carolina which will be unsurpassed by none and will become a prototype for all others to emulate.

PURPOSE

This past summer under the auspices of the Board of Pharmacy I have been visiting as many preceptors and interns as possible to assist in resolving whatever problems they may encounter; to see what we can do to make this phase of learning as meaningful as possible and to learn how we can refine and put "quality" in our practical training program.

In support of the effort to make the practical pharmacy experience as meaningful as possible, the North Carolina Academy of Practical Instructors in Pharmacy sponsored a series of five regional seminars throughout the State for preceptors and interns. (See Exhibit A, page 12.) On behalf of the Academy, I wish to express grateful appreciation to Mr. W. J. Smith and the office staff of NCPA for assuming the total responsibility for preparing and mailing the announcements for these regional seminars.

ACTIVITY

During the summer, I traveled 5,669 miles on this project, covering the State from Elizabeth City in the east to Sylva in the west (not quite Manteo to Murphy) and to within two miles from the Virginia border in the north to just within the boundary of the South Carolina border in the south. I have visited over 208 pharmacies in 98 different communities of which approximately 61% were community oriented, 25% were chain, or discount, oriented, 2% were professionally oriented and 12% were hospital pharmacy oriented. I talked with 199 preceptors, 211 interns (this does not include the 35 students registered as medication assistants at N. C. Memorial Hospital nor the six students registered in Research at the School of Pharmacy).

Because of the difficulties in maintaining an appointed schedule, I missed 25 preceptors who were for one reason or another not in the pharmacy, but I did talk with the registered pharmacist on duty at the time who seemed to be sharing in the training of the student pharmacist. Moreover, 39 students were missed either because of conflicts in schedule, have returned to summer school, gone on vacation, and one "no longer working here." In several instances, even though the student was scheduled off, he was able to be reached by phone and returned for our appointment. Needless to say, one of the hazards of field work was the difficulties encountered in maintaining a rigid schedule, and I have appreciated the thoughtfulness of all preceptors and interns who were apprised of the appointment date, or day, but not the time.

OBSERVATIONS

The Pharmacy or Drug Store—By and large most facilities were well-lighted, well-ventilated, air conditioned, orderly and clean giving a creditable impression to anyone entering the pharmacy. The prescription department maintained an adequate inventory of drugs, supplies and related items which ranked high when considering the traditional role of the pharmacy as a place where the pharmacist dispensed drugs. Only in rare instances did I find this not to be so. The pharmacist seemed primarily concerned with the delivery of the properly prescribed drug, in the proper dosage form, in the proper quantity and upon the proper receipt of a bona-fide prescription order. Record keeping in all cases was consistent with the legal requirements as well as commensurate with the degree or extent of service rendered.

The preceptor-intern relationships were all good. The preceptor was happy to have the intern, in most cases seemed actively interested in his, or her, progress and in some cases had strong personal convictions concerning the program and the practice of pharmacy. On the whole the intern enjoyed working under his, or her, preceptor, respected him, and felt "I'm learning a lot." Only in a few instances did the preceptor seem too preoccupied with activities within the pharmacy that the intern was "more or less on his own." In not too frequent cases were the preceptors familiar with the "Preceptor's Guide" although they have indicated in practically all instances they reviewed the "quarter-work" in the Notebook of Instructions for Practical Pharmacy Training Program. Some preceptors seemed to pay very close attention to the notebook responsibilities of the student and insisted that it be kept current with weekly checks. Others left it completely up to the intern and in some cases the interns have put off typing their notebook seemingly until the very end.

LIBRARY OR REFERENCES

Current literature and reference works seemed more adequate in most of the hospital pharmacies than in any other area of practice. In most community or discount oriented facility very few had any current reference books. Of the professionally oriented facility, current references approached those of the hospital pharmacy oriented facility.

COMMENTS

There is no doubt that the practical training period of the student pharmacist is an important phase of the total education of the pharmacist. That as a profession, in addition to being highly product oriented, we must become more patient oriented. In spite of all the dialogue evinced in the literature and as espoused by our leaders in pharmacy, the metamorphosis from the product oriented practice of pharmacy to the patient oriented practice appears negligible. Only in very few instances, and most notably in the northeastern section of our State, does pharmacy practice seem to move in this general direction. The use of patient-medication records is being implemented primarily as a professional service rather than a promotion scheme. Attempts to monitor patient drug therapy, drug interaction, and patient counseling on drug therapy is seemingly becoming the accepted practice. Regional Mental Health Program in this area has adopted a $2.00 professional fee for qualified recipients primarily on the basis of the additional professional service rendered to the patient. That is, monitoring and following-up to ascertain that these patients continue to take their medications in the manner prescribed. As one pharmacist using patient medication records stated "If used properly, there will be little need for sponsored continuing education programs." That is to imply—because he'll be doing a good bit of it on his own.

There is a need in the medical profession for a better source of information about today's potent drugs. There is a need for the patients to have adequate information which will enable them to properly use, both prescribed and self-purchased drugs. There is a need for pharmacy to adopt a new role to provide these services.

As a preceptor, we must teach our young graduates to meet the patient, to have the opportunity to review prescription content in his presence and to grant the necessary advice frequently overlooked in the delivery of pharmaceutical services. The providing of information to physicians on all matters pertaining to drugs and their dosage forms is a responsibility that cannot be ignored any longer. The physician desires such a service. The public requests it and the continued existence of pharmacy as a profession demands it.

We must teach the student to assume greater responsibilities in the followup of our services and to provide the framework for drug-use control as a central theme or keystone to health care services. In this, attitudes are important and the admonition, "What you learned in school is fine, but this is the way we do it here" must change.

PRICING SYSTEMS FOR PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

Realizing the system of pricing for prescription drugs does not directly contribute to the qualifications of safety practices or competency of the student pharmacist; nevertheless, I would feel remiss if I were not to comment on this aspect.

Most establishments seemed to have their own pricing system usually based on the conventional markup. Chains, or discounted, oriented drug stores seemed to price prescription drugs on a system of "not to be undersold" policy. Others had different techniques which gave the patient, or customer, a concept of acquiring the prescription drug at a highly desirable savings. Except for pricing prescriptions for welfare recipients, few applied the professional fee either on a fixed or sliding-scale system. What is amazing to me, the one method of remuneration that is consistent with professional practice is not applied—that is, the application of the professional fee for pharmaceutical services.

CONCLUSION

Undoubtedly, there are various methods to improve and make the practical internship program most meaningful and effective; but I did not find a simple one. All of us, as pharmacists, have a stake in the education of the intern and must, as preceptors, adopt those roles and commit ourselves to those practices which most typify the pharmacist as contributing professional members of the health team. In this respect, I can envision great hopes and expectations from the joint efforts of the School, the Association, and the Board of Pharmacy in North Carolina. The added impetus served by the North Carolina Academy of Practical Instructors in Pharmacy—the Preceptors—lends great drive to the motivation of our goals and aspirations. We must begin to act—to do—to move from the crossroads of the traditionally comparative, comfort of the status quo into the mainstream of accepting and adopting those roles which place emphasis on professional practices. The time to act, is now. The time to do, is now. The time to move, is now.

STUDENT CHAPTER OF THE APhA AND NCPH

The monthly meeting of the UNC Student Chapter of the APhA and NCPH was held December 4, 1968, in the auditorium of Beard Hall. John Johnston, Dave MeFadden, and Bill Straughn, fourth year medical students at the University of North Carolina, were present to explain the function of the "Student Health Action Committee" and to solicit the aid of pharmacy students in the SHAC program.

PHI DELTA CHI NEWS

Alpha Gamma Chapter was very happy to see that so many alumni dropped in to visit during the Homecoming game. Although the football game was anything but satisfying, we hope that the alumni and their families enjoyed the brotherhood of being together for the week-end. Perhaps the entertainment provided by the Illustrious Combo helped to compensate that let down feeling after losing the game.

We were pleasantly surprised to see so many of our alumni turn out for the Duke game. After the game, a small gathering took place at the house with everyone enjoying meeting the new members and reuniting with more familiar faces.

Our pledge class has completed their project. I can't possibly describe how much the new fence around our patio adds to the beauty of the house. The pledges have learned something that will make them better brothers—if you work together, your accomplishments are unlimited. Words seem so inadequate to express the pride we have for our pledge class and the addition to the house.

Intramurals have been rather scattered due to the water shortage but finally two volleyball teams were organized and presently hold standings of: Red, 2-1; Blue, 0-3. Who knows with a little more practice we can break even. But a lot of comfort comes from our win over arch rival, Kappa Psi.

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dayvault upon their marriage on November 24. Rumors have it that Rowland Strickland and Gill Ripley have lost their pins. I have an idea they'll find them over their pinmates' hearts. A special wish to Miss Betsy Conser and Larry Seigler who just recently became engaged.

KAPPA PSI NEWS

Congratulations to our Regent Fred Rachide on pinning Miss Janet Thompson in mid-November. Fred received a free trip to the lake from the brotherhood shortly thereafter.

This year Kappa Psi has won the Best float award in the fraternity-sorority division at the Beat Dook Parade. With the Seniors away on the industrial trip, the Brotherhood teamed with the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority to make this our second consecutive award as best float in the Beat Dook Competition.

The fraternity rounded out the Duke weekend with a November 23rd party at the Village Green.

The Christmas tree at Kappa Psi has been decorated in anticipation of our annual Christmas party for potential rushees and the ladies of the pharmacy school.

Coach Bryant of our intramurals reports that sports are now getting off the ground after the suspension of such activities during the drought. Kappa Psi participated in the Grail Mural action and came out with an overall 3-2 record. We did not participate in Grail Mural last year and our showing is an indication of our increasing involvement in campus activities.

We have four volleyball teams: red, blue, white, and gray, and three out of the four has at least two games to play this week which is still early season.

The basketball season begins officially after Christmas with Kappa Psi putting forth three teams: Little Kids, Big Kids, and Cheebies. Coach Bryant has great enthusiasm for his teams and has done a fine job this year in organizing the wealth of talent on hand.

Deaths

James W. (Jim) Harrison, 68, Asheville pharmacist, died December 29 in an Asheville hospital where he had been a patient for a month.

A correspondent for The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy and the Southeastern Drug Journal, Jim was working on an article for The Journal—Some Observations from a Hospital Bed—at the time of his death.

A native of Asheville, Jim attended Davidson College and the University of Pittsburgh. He first became associated with Pharmacy in 1916 and with the exception of service with the U. S. Army in 1918-'19, continued in this field for nearly fifty years.

His pharmacy record includes a long period of service with Salley's Drug Store of Asheville and in 1955 he became Director of Professional Services with the Dr. T. C. Smith Company. Then followed a year in North Wilkesboro and return to Asheville as a relief pharmacist.

During a thirty year period Jim authored hundreds of features, columns, news releases and specials, all having Pharmacy as a central theme. Pharmacists of Western North Carolina, particularly members of the Western North Carolina Drug Club, will recall "Friday Night Elixir" which Jim produced in its entirety, including the printing.

Over the years, Jim's labors on behalf of Pharmacy did not go unnoticed. He was a winner of one of NCPHA's first "Pharmacy Osears" (in 1957) and honors continued to come his way, including 1968 when he was the recipient of the Don Blanton Award for outstanding service to Pharmacy.

Jim was so involved with Pharmacy that he had little time for hobbies but one can be mentioned: His work with the American Radio Relay League which at one time became so involved he was publisher and editor of "The Arc"—an amateur radio publication of international scope.

Those of us who had the privilege of knowing and working with Jim over the past thirty years realize that one of Pharmacy's most loyal supporters has departed from our ranks, a departure which will be keenly missed by his many friends and co-workers.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Hilda Bryan Harrison; two sons, J. W. Jr., of Arden and Bryan Harrison of Asheville; a brother, Thomas A. Harrison of Winston-Salem; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Culvern and Mrs. Essie Bailey, both of Charlotte; and three grandchildren.

R. A. HEDGPETH

Romulus A. Hedgpeth, 69, mayor of Lumberton for the past 23 years, died December 18.

A graduate in Pharmacy of the Medical College of Virginia, Mr. Hedgpeth established Hedgpeth's Pharmacy in Lumberton in 1924. The pharmacy was later sold to J. C. Jackson and J. E. Bryan at the time Mr. Hedgpeth started devoting a major part of his time to the Hedgpeth Tobacco Warehouses.

He was operator of a shopping center, director of a bank, trustee of Campbell College and a former president of the N. C. League of Municipalities. He was a life member (1930) of the NCPHA.

The prescription records were transferred and are now available at Bobbitt's Pharmacy in the Reynolds Building.

Read's uniform business has grown so rapidly over the past fifteen years, the owners, Alan and Joe Davis, said they felt it wise to devote their entire time to it. The firm does a mail order business in five states and has four outlets, two in Winston-Salem and one each in Greensboro and Durham.

24 HOUR SERVICE

The Greensboro Society of Pharmacists has a study underway to determine the feasibility of having at least one drug store in the city open 24 hours a day to dispense prescriptions late at night and on holidays.

A Greensboro physician, Dr. B. J. Christian, said it is "wrong and negligent" for drug stores not to dispense prescriptions at night and on holidays.

FUNDS FOR PHARMACY EQUIPMENT APPROVED BY ADVISORY BUDGET COMMISSION

A high percentage of new fund requests by the Health Affairs Division of UNC at Chapel Hill was not approved by the Advisory Budget Commission but Pharmacy's application for additional money for equipment received favorable action on the part of the Commission members.

While the final decision will be up to members of The General Assembly and particularly the Appropriations Committee, the pharmacy fund request has cleared the initial hurdle.

BURROUGHS WELLCOME TO TRANSFER ENTIRE OPERATION TO NORTH CAROLINA

Burroughs Wellcome and Company has announced it is transferring its entire operation from Tuckahoe to two sites in North Carolina.

BW research and administrative facilities will be located in Research Triangle Park (Raleigh-Durham) and production facilities in Greenville.

BW's 900 employees have been invited to accompany the pharmaceutical company to North Carolina and those who are unable to make the transfer will be given severance benefits and assistance in obtaining new employment.

Fred A. Coe, Jr., president, said BW's volume is doubling every five years and the Tuckahoe facilities, which have been expanded and modernized to the limit, are inadequate.

In Greenville, a 12,000 square foot building will be constructed where a training program for new employees will be conducted by BW. Funds for the building plus primary site development were provided by Greenville Industries, Inc. in a public stock sale.

A half million square foot building will house BW's manufacturing facilities in Greenville. A 175,000 square foot building is planned for the Research Triangle Park. Initially, 650 people will be employed in Greenville; 250 in Triangle Park.

Full production of BW products at the Tuckahoe location will continue until the move to North Carolina has been completed. This is not anticipated before mid-1970.

BW OFFICIALS VISIT DURHAM-CHAPEL HILL

Officials of Burroughs Wellcome and Company were taken on a tour of Durham and The Research Triangle and Chapel Hill and the University of North Carolina on February 5-6.

The administrative and research representatives included John Cook, chief accountant; Kathryn Crean, assistant treasurer; Dr. Ronald Cresswell, department head of chemical developmental labs.; Garth Quinn, vice president of sales; John Matthews, personnel manager; Clifford Parish, advertising manager; Dr. Donald Searle, medical director and Charles Singler, sales promotion manager.

BUDDY JACKSON LOCATES IN SANFORD

W. C. (Buddy) Jackson of Lumberton is now associated with the Lee County Hospital in Sanford.

Buddy comes to Sanford from service in various foreign (mainly Africa) hospital pharmacy assignments. He is a UNC pharmacy graduate and prior to his recent employment, was associated with his father, J. C. Jackson, in the operation of Hedg-peth Pharmacy, Lumberton.

PRODUCTION OF ABBOTT INTRAVENOUS SOLUTIONS NOW UNDERWAY IN NORTH CAROLINA

The first shipment of intravenous solutions from Abbott Laboratories' new Battleboro (near Rocky Mount) plant took place on January 15.

Only one solution formula came off the production line on January 15 but within 30 days when full production will be underway, Abbott will be producing and shipping ten different solutions from its North Carolina plant.

CHECK ON FLUORIDE WATER CONTENT

Members of the Forsyth County Pharmaceutical Society have suggested that citizens living in the Winston-Salem area who have hooked on to the new county water system to check with their doctors or dentists before continuing to take medications containing fluoride.

Bill Simmons, president of the society, said that the city water supply has the proper amount of fluoride in it and that fluoride prescriptions should not be continued without the advice of doctor or dentist.

Burroughs Wellcome

Burroughs Wellcome & Co. (U.S.A.), Inc., has announced that it is transferring its operations from Tuckahoe, N. Y., to North Carolina. The company had informed its employees in mid-January that serious consideration was being given to the move. Transfer of operations will not begin until mid-1970 at the earliest.

Fred A. Coe, Jr., president of the pharmaceutical company, said: "We have reached this decision to leave the Westchester area reluctantly but see no other solution to our immediate and future situation. Our volume is doubling every five years and the Tuckahoe facilities, which we have expanded and modernized to the limit, are inadequate under even today's circumstances. Our position in the health and medical fields now and in the future requires us to take this step. Had there been any feasible way to expand our operations in Tuckahoe, we would have acted upon it."

Mr. Coe added: "I wish to emphasize that this move will not begin until the middle of 1970 at the earliest, and the company intends to maintain full production and employment until that time. I believe it will be to the benefit of all parties for us to effect a smooth transition—for our employees whether or not they join us in North Carolina; for the community in terms of a sustained payroll; for the company and our customers in maintaining uninterrupted operations.

"For these reasons, we will announce arrangements to be made for employees who leave the company when we relocate in 1970, and for those who join us in North Carolina. In the case of Union members, these arrangements will reflect the results of negotiations with the Union."

Mr. Coe stated, "We are developing a program of assistance and benefits for all employees affected by the move. For those who are unable to join us and who remain with Burroughs Wellcome until the transfer of operations, the company contemplates attractive severance benefits and assistance in obtaining new employment. For those who join us in North Carolina, the company plans to provide assistance in relocation.

"In short, the company will pursue its goal of full production and employment in order to meet its obligations of service to the health and medical fields, and to insure maximum stability for the company, our employees, and the community throughout the relocation period."

Mr. Coe continued, "The decision to move has been most difficult. Burroughs Wellcome has been a member of this community for more than 40 years. We have enjoyed excellent relations not only with our employees but everyone in the area—civic officials, business people and residents. I especially want to thank Mayor Robert D'Agostino of Tuckahoe, Mayor James O'Rourke of Yonkers, Supervisor Frank O'Rourke of Eastchester, New York State officials and other community leaders who have been most cooperative. We at Burroughs Wellcome intend to give all possible assistance in resolving the use of the property in the community's interest."

On January 25, Mr. Coe announced that Burroughs Wellcome had received a number of inquiries concerning the Tuckahoe site. "The inquiries," he said, "are continuing, and we have received many requests to inspect the property."

The company has invited its employees to accompany it to North Carolina.

Burroughs Wellcome currently employs 900 people at the Tuckahoe location, including 500 hourly workers represented by Local No. 7 of the International Chemical Workers Union A.F.L.—C.I.O.

Mr. Coe said that the company had been carrying on intensive studies for more than a year to seek ways of improving its Tuckahoe site. Industrial consultants, including the firm of Lockwood, Greene & Associates, conducted detailed surveys throughout the Tuckahoe operation. All concluded that Burroughs Wellcome must expand far beyond the capacity of the Tuckahoe location.

The company's present administrative, research, and production facilities occupy over 30 buildings including several multi-story buildings. The site is bordered by

In What Direction are We Moving?

by W. FRANK FIFE, Manager

Owens, Minor & Bodeker, Wilson

You gentlemen have in your possession, one of the tallest of family trees. Your ancestry dates back as long as there have been records. You have a heritage developed from the sincere, careful, untiring effort, of countless generations of pharmacists most of whose names are unknown throughout fifty centuries.

As you know, pharmacy and medicine were practiced together for many long years. Religion too, was all in one bundle in those early days. It wasn't until about 1240 A.D., that in Sicily and southern Italy, pharmacy was legally separated from medicine by Frederick II of Hohenstauffen, Emperor of Germany as well as King of Sicily.

Many great events shaped the history of pharmacy from that date, on which we have many records. One event that did take place, for which there is no record; an event that has taken us up to a position where it has become an albatross around many necks. I'm referring to the front of the store merchandise. And this is no small problem area—In many stores it represents more than 2/3 of their business. In chains, as high as 90%.

Previous to 1950, the professional pharmacist got along well with his self-mate, the merchant pharmacist. Most of the druggists had a semi-monopoly position in a town and controlled many manufacturer's lines. Expenses were low, gross profits were high by virtue of Fair Trade or simply by maintenance of the status quo or lack of competition. A professional man wouldn't stoop to exhibitions or price cutting. This was a matter of ethics—of morals.

But suddenly, with the distribution of TV sets, the rise in general education, the mobility of the population, the advances in science, and the increase in government agencies, things were not the same anymore.

Manufacturers of front merchandise began to find that other outlets were selling more of their type products than were drug stores. So rather than lose the market, companies like J & J, Mead Johnson, began to sell to the discounter, the bantam store, the rack jobber, and so forth.

There has always been resistance to Rx prices. In the area of Rx lines, we came under fire too, as Mr. Kefauver found much material for vote getting in the area of medical expenditures. Sen. Nelson and others are still carrying on this great crusade. Coincident with this expose came mail order house activity, union activity, chain store activity and nothing has been the same since.

What's happened? Were did we go wrong? What can we do about it?

The free enterprise system is one that rewards the efficient and penalizes the inefficient. In our present system of distribution we have been sacrificing the long run opportunities for short run profits. Or, another way to say the same thing, the efficient drug store operators have subsidized the inefficient by holding to a pricing technique that was bound to get us in trouble.

You buy from the manufacturer and the wholesaler at known prices, based on some historical facts I'm not aware of. You, for long years have then set your price on a margin based on the same unknown facts. If you were an efficient operator, you made a return on your investment that was out of the world. The inefficient operator got by because of this built in margin.

Money, looking for investment, saw this better than average profit opportunity and started to come into the business by way of the front merchandise primarily. With the tremendous volume of business generated on a few items by TV and other media, they saw where they could set up an efficient operation, work at a 20% mark-up figure, and return plenty on their investment. So came the discounters, the bantams, and so forth.

Once into this area, they began to tackle the Rx department in the same fashion, and now we have a complete drug store—at least as far as the fast movers go. These operators know that the most important concept in running a business is return on their investment. They price, to maximize this, and are not concerned in holding to a fair trade type pricing arrangement. For us to do so has resulted in our being very vulnerable to this type of business where price is concerned.

Our past efforts in fighting this type of competition has been largely to maintain the status quo by legislation. This has not succeeded as you well know. So rather than change, many independents have closed their doors.

What should you do? What lies ahead?

Of course, I don't know all the answers. Perhaps no one does. I would like to make a forecast into the future and point out what to me looks like a fantastic opportunity for you.

180,000 people are born every 24 hours. A new Chicago comes into being every month. In the U.S.A., in the year 2000, there will be a huge city—megapolis reaching from Portsmouth, Virginia to Portland, Maine. There will be 80 million people living within this area. Millions more will be in areas of N. C., Va., Tenn., but not so densely populated. Roads and railroads will begin to be built underground. Some plants will be there too as well as stores. We will live above ground with our anti-air pollution plants.

Our lives will be effected by science already underway. The maser and laser will revolutionize communications, sensing, measuring, cutting, welding, illumination.

Holography or three dimensional photography will be in use allowing us to view from all sides molecules, people, things. Cyborg techniques in replacing human parts with mechanical ones will be able to hibernate for long periods awaiting surgery, etc. Newspapers and other type printed material will be transmitted directly into your home and office. Birth control will be surer, cheaper. Sex of unborn children will be a choice of the parents. Life expectancy will increase. Computers will be involved in every level of life. And we will have our own individual flying platforms.

You can look at this picture two ways. You can get scared and abandon the field to others. Or you can look at this change as a tremendous opportunity. An opportunity to become bigger, smaller, better, more specialized or whatever you choose. But if you decide to stay you must do several immensely important things.

(1) You must become better educated to business

- (a) Selling
- (b) Promotion
- (c) Return on investment
- (d) Product Use
- (e) Turnover
- (f) Financing
- (g) Clerk trug.
- (h) List of non price factors

(2) You must pay your civic and professional rent.

The first of these important "musts" Education is self-evident. I would like to expand on the second "must" because here is an area that we are very weak in. This is rent you owe to your community as a businessman citizen and to your profession as a pharmacist. You can't pay either of these rents with money. You can only pay them by participation.

In the past most of us have refused to get involved in anything that smacked of politics. The equivocation, the fence straddling, the red tape, the loss of time was deplorable. All we wanted was to be let alone so we could run our businesses.

Today, and even more so in the days to come, this isolationism will become impossible if you want to have a say in your future. Laws, regulations, restrictions, and vote-getting criticism will hit us even harder from every side.

How can free enterprise, your profession, as well as the entire democratic society survive in a technological society. How can we preserve the moral, spiritual, and economic values of a democratic form of government, yet use the rapidly growing technology. How can a group of landlords, merchants, pharmacists, bakers, and candlestick makers decide in a democratic fashion on the problems of this new society. How can you maintain and build your professional image, your business.

Dean Louis Zoff of the University of Iowa said "The future role of the pharmacist

DRUG BILL UNFAIR, UNNEEDED

from Winston-Salem Journal

A law forbidding the advertisement of price discounts on prescription drugs, which the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association may lobby for in the General Assembly, would be special interest legislation of the first water. If enacted it could suspend free competition among the purveyors of prescription drugs and result in artificially high prices for products that cost quite enough as it is.

The target of an advertising ban would obviously be the big chain stores that sell prescription drugs almost in the way that they merchandise hair tonic, gift wrapping, toys, tissue paper and a thousand and one other products. These stores often promise substantial discounts on prescriptions, and if the alarm of the Pharmaceutical Association is any indication, more and more customers are finding these discount offers attractive.

In fact the emporium-type drug store seems to be steadily, and mercilessly, pushing the small corner pharmacy out of business, just as the chain supermarket drove out the neighborhood grocery store a decade ago. Sentimental considerations aside, this is a transition that tends to give the individual consumer a larger selection of goods at generally lower prices. While there will always be a demand for the personal service that only a small shop can provide, the large, multi-service drug store is clearly the way of the future.

Traditionally, one approached the shoulder-high prescription counter in a drug store humbly, like a lawyer approaching a judge's bench. The pharmacist would take the prescription—an unreadable Latinate scrawl—and return 20 minutes later with a bottle of pills, a vial of cough syrup or whatever. It was considered indelicate, if not downright vulgar, to ask the whys and wherefores of his price.

If the pharmacist's status as a "professional" once justified this mysterious ritual, it does no longer, for he simply does not have his traditional responsibilities. Most (one source says "in excess of 98 per cent") of today's prescription medicines are not painstakingly ground out with mortar and pestle; they are compounded in consumer-ready form by the manufacturer, and all the pharmacist has to do is dispense them.

A Virginia law which prohibits the advertising of prescription discounts is currently under legal attack as a "price fixing" bill in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and the N. C. legislature should certainly await the outcome of this suit before it considers similar legislation. Actually the issue is not so much price-fixing as price-concealment—an equally undesirable practice in an economy that supposedly operates on principles of free enterprise and open competition.

Druggists are not Performing Witchcraft

As a rule, I fully support the causes you choose to champion. I feel, however, in your editorial "Drug Bill Unfair, Unneeded" you have, perhaps inadvertently, attacked our druggists. Druggists are a group of our citizenry that has worked long, hard, and conscientiously for the good of their communities. If you will consider their standard of living, they obviously are not making an exorbitant salary out of proportion to the many, many hours they spend performing their duties and the extensive amount of education required by our state and federal government to give them the right to practice their profession.

May I suggest that druggists are not performing witchcraft behind the "shoulder-high prescription counter" but are dispensing drugs potentially as dangerous as the fire arms we hear so much about were they handled in an incautious manner. Should the counters be taken down and the public allowed self-service to cut the cost of prescriptions?

May I leave you with one thought concerning the clamor for "bargain" drugs before you completely write off as out of date the traditional type of drug store with the familiar neighbor who faithfully has and will continue to serve us? The companies that supply the drugs our prescriptions call for are reputable companies dedicated to research. If we are to have a future in which our children and perhaps ourselves will no longer need to dread cancer and other diseases equally as bad, do we not need to support the companies and individuals that are working toward that end?

LEAVE THE PHARMACISTS ALONE

In your recent editorial on the Drug Bill, you questioned the "Professional" status of the pharmacist on grounds that "he simply does not have his traditional responsibilities." This is an insult to the pharmacists, and they don't deserve it.

Granted the modern drugs are precompounded and have only to be "dispensed" by the druggist. This is merely an improvement that allows him to render a faster and more efficient service; it doesn't remove the fact that he is responsible for knowing the composition of these drugs, their tolerable dosages, and their actions on the body.

In "traditional" times the number of drugs on the druggist's shelf wouldn't compare with the innumerable preparations available today. With prescription drugs hitting the market at an unprecedented rate, the pharmacist's responsibilities are increasing, not decreasing.

The "Unreadable Latinate scrawl" has been eliminated, but what has replaced it? An unreadable English scrawl. And the pharmacist's ability to decipher it may be a matter of sickness or health for the patient. And suppose there is a flaw or an inconsistency in the prescription? Who could catch this but a thoroughly trained specialist, who shares with the doctor a knowledge of the actions and uses of drugs?

Other responsibilities of the pharmacist are the keeping of accurate legal records of all prescriptions, and the effecting of controls over narcotics and other life-threatening drugs.

The handling of drugs is an awesome responsibility. It involves human life—yours, and your child's. The pharmacist, through years of tedious study, has prepared himself for this responsibility. He is a professional in every sense of the word.

If you think the Drug Bill is "unfair, unneeded," you are justified in speaking out against it; but please don't use this as an opportunity to degrade a group of people who are doing an immeasurable service.

JOINT COMMITTEE ADOPTS LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

The NCPHA Legislative Committee, meeting in Chapel Hill on January 28 with the Association's Executive Committee, endorsed two legislative proposals (see opposite page) which will be submitted to The North Carolina General Assembly for consideration during the 1969 session of the N. C. law-making body.

The two legislative proposals have been referred to NCPHA legislative representative Earl H. Tate who will direct the Association's legislative program in Raleigh.

A bill relating to the advertising of prescription drugs to the public was discussed but action deferred until later.

The joint committee will request the N. C. Merchants Association to work for passage of a stronger bad check law. Recent changes in the court system make it more difficult to collect bad checks.

A request that the NCPHA seek statewide jury exemption for pharmacists was not approved. Such an exemption would set pharmacists apart from all other professional groups since no one, by law, is now exempt from jury service in North Carolina.

The committee will watch developments in this area and in case M.D.s and others do seek exemption, Pharmacy will be prepared to act in the best interest of its members. At times, jury service works an extreme hardship on pharmacists, particularly those with no relief help and little or no hope of securing assistance on a temporary basis.

Five Pharm. Mfrs. offer $120 Million Settlement

American Cyanamid Company, Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., Bristol-Myers Company, The Upjohn Company and Squibb Beech-Nut, Inc., have announced a program looking toward settlement of treble damage litigation against the companies. These suits, relating to broad spectrum antibiotics, were for the most part filed after a jury verdict in December, 1967 against Pfizer, Cyanamid and Bristol-Myers in the Department of Justice case. Squibb and Upjohn were not defendants in the Department of Justice case. While no assurance can be given at this time that the settlement will be consummated, preliminary informal discussions have indicated that counsel representing a substantial number of the actual and prospective claimants will recommend its acceptance to their clients.

The companies remain convinced that they have not violated the antitrust laws. They believe that in the field of broad spectrum antibiotics they have contributed greatly to the public health. Cyanamid, Pfizer and Bristol-Myers will press their appeals in the Department of Justice case.

The companies have concluded, however, that it is in the best interests of their stockholders to present a program to settle the treble damage claims at this time. Failure to settle this complex litigation would mean that the companies would be burdened for many years with numerous treble damage suits involving very large claims.

The companies had considered deferral of any settlement negotiations until after the appeal by Cyanamid, Pfizer and Bristol-Myers in the Department of Justice case against them had been decided. However, since plaintiffs' counsel have made it clear that the treble damage litigation would continue even if the three companies won their appeal, all the companies concluded that further deferring settlement talks would not serve any useful purpose.

The settlement program, which is subject to a number of conditions, would commit the five companies to make a total payment of up to $100 million in full settlement of all present and prospective claims relating to broad spectrum antibiotic products by states, counties, cities, wholesalers, retailers and individual consumers, and up to $20 million in full settlement of all such claims by private hospitals and claimants (such as hospital plans) who may have made reimbursements in respect of purchases of these products from private hospitals, plus certain legal expenses, as directed by the court. If any present or prospective claimant elects not to participate in the proposed settlement, there will be an appropriate reduction in the total proposed payments.

Cyanamid would contribute 40.3%, Pfizer 34.1%, Bristol-Myers 16.1%, Upjohn 5.2% and Squibb 4.3%. These percentages were arrived at by the defendants on the basis of such factors as the dollar sales of these products by the companies, and the fact that Cyanamid, Pfizer and Bristol-Myers were the manufacturers of the products.

The companies will have the right to withdraw from the settlement program unless it is accepted by March 7, 1969 by all named plaintiffs and intervenors in present suits, or subsequently if the companies deem the participation by actual or prospective claimants in the settlement to be inadequate. Other conditions to which the settlement program is subject include:

1. A court determination that the classes of claimants covered by the settlement include all persons within the class who have not yet brought suit, that all class members are adequately represented, and that all other prerequisites to class actions have been met; and
2. Final court approval of all aspects of the settlement.

The allocation of amounts among the various claimants and classes of claimants is not provided for in the proposal. After consultation among representatives of all classes of claimants, the allocation will be submitted by the plaintiffs to the court for approval.

DONALD A. HOLLOWAY

INVESTIGATIONAL DRUGS

Hospital pharmacists should store, dispense and maintain proper records on the use of all investigational drugs used in the hospital. By controlling investigational drugs and helping eliminate bias in clinical drug studies, the pharmacist can make valuable clinical contributions within the hospital. The Mirror to Hospital Pharmacy notes that well conducted drug evaluations involve teamwork among physicians, clinical pharmacologists, nurses, and pharmacists.<sup>1</sup>

The American Society of Hospital Pharmacists' Statement of Principles Involved in the Use of Investigational Drugs in Hospitals, should be carefully studied by every institutional pharmacist. This document points out that the hospital should do all in its power to foster research consistent with adequate patient safeguards, that the drugs should only be used under the direct supervision of the principal investigator who is a member of the medical staff and who secures the necessary consent, that nurses administering the drugs should have information concerning dosage, actions, uses, side effects, and symptoms of toxicity and that there be a central unit maintaining information on these drugs and from which they are dispensed. The pharmacy is obviously the proper area for dispensing these drugs.<sup>2</sup>

There are a number of reasons in having these drugs in the pharmacy. They will be stored under safe and proper conditions in a separate area from other drugs, there is greater efficiency in dispensing from a central area, dispensing records may be easily maintained, drug containers and prescriptions will be properly labelled, and the pharmacy can control double blind studies and assure the integrity of the code. The pharmaciast can break the code if any emergency ever arises. Although the investigator is the only one who may order these drugs from the manufacturer, the pharmacy can assure that an adequate inventory is maintained.

Should we be expected to do this? The American Society of Hospital Pharmacists has set forth the abilities required to hospital pharmacists. The fourth listed ability is that of conducting and participating in research. This research falls into two categories, the first of which is participating as the pharmacy team member in medical research. The pharmacist can hold the key to drug identification and maintain information on the chemistry, pharmacology, posology, and toxicology of drugs under investigation. He would need familiarity with, and the ability to search, medical and pharmaceutical journals, and must be able to understand, interpret, apply, and transmit this information to others.<sup>3</sup>

The second category of research, pharmaceutical research, provides another service to the investigator. The American Society of Hospital Pharmacists' statement reads, "the hospital pharmacist may perform pharmaceutical research related to improving the usefulness of pharmaceutical preparations; developing methods for preserving and stabilizing drugs and pharmaceuticals; improving vehicles and bases; improving taste; and increasing therapeutic effectiveness. When a drug is first developed, or is being initially evaluated, the hospital pharmacist may develop additional dosage forms or means of administration. He may also develop various bases, vehicles, or combinations for comparison of degrees and speeds of absorption of medicinal components, in internal preparation. The effectiveness of active ingredients from internal and external preparations may likewise be studied."<sup>3</sup>

Thus, the pharmacist can formulate special dosage forms. Hopefully, the manufacturer can supply necessary information about the chemical and physical characteristics of the drug, but if not, the pharmacist may be able to experimentally determine the necessary data. The Mirror to Hospital Pharmacy has pointed out that physicians, primarily in teaching and research hospitals, constantly request new products and help in the way of formulating investigational drugs. The pharmacist can make a valuable contribution in formulation. The need is now present for some pharmacists in larger hospitals to extend their services into this area.

SETTLEMENT

Most of the treble damage cases have been assigned to United States District Judge Inzer B. Wyatt of the Federal court, New York.

It is not anticipated North Carolina retail pharmacies will be directly involved in refunds received by the State (estimated at $3.3 million) in this case.

Deputy Attorney General Jean Benoy, Consumer Protection Chief, said "I want to emphasize that we hope people won't start calling their drug stores for refunds. The drug stores will not be involved at all in the individual claim paying."

The headlines created by this case have not been helpful to Pharmacy at any level. Millions of our citizens have read about 5000% markups and, in the absence of additional information, relate such markups to prescription service. To put it mildly, this is not one of Pharmacy's better days.

KAPPA PSI NEWS

The Kappa Psi social event of the year is fast approaching. Pledge weekend this year will be March 21 and 22. Friday night's dinner and dance will be held at the Holiday Inn. Saturday night's function will be at the Elk's Club in Durham. Social Chairman Joey Edwards has done an outstanding job this year, and Pledge weekend this year looks to be another outstanding example of his work.

In December we held our annual Christmas Party. The entire Pharmacy School was invited and seemed to have shown up.

After the guests left, the Brothers and pledges opened their gifts to each other until 3 a.m.

Brother Al Simmons has been chosen to represent the Pharmacy School at an SHAC meeting in Atlanta. SHAC is a group of medical science oriented students trying to help the underprivileged persons in the community with medical care.

Both rush and the initiation of the first semester pledges is to take place in early February.

On January 9, 1969 our long awaited trophy from the Pi Kappa Alpha's arrived as our award as the best Greek float in the beat Dook parade. This is the second consecutive year that Kappa Psi has received an award in the parade.

Coach Jim Bryant, our intramural manager, reports basketball is now in full swing with three solid (?) teams under our banner. Handball is expected shortly.

Kappa Psi would like to pay a special tribute to the UNC student Branches for the fine job of speaker selection they have done this year. Interest seems greater now than ever before.

Former Regent Jones Neil Pharr is in Duke Hospital with illness. Brother Pharr was an outstanding Regent and we wish him a speedy recovery.

residential areas, established businesses, a river, a parkway, and a railroad.

Mr. Coe stated that land costs were a major factor in the company's decision to relocate elsewhere. Suitable industrial acreage in Westchester County may be as much as 40 to 70 times the cost of land in North Carolina. Moreover, construction costs in the New York area average 40 per cent higher than in North Carolina.

Burroughs Wellcome occupies 16 acres at its Tuckahoe site. The company plans to locate its administrative and research operations on a 60-acre site in the Research Triangle, an extensive research-oriented development in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area; and its production facilities will be located on a 300-acre site at Greenville, which is east of the Research Triangle. "Both are good environments in which to work and live. The Research Triangle is in convenient proximity to large medical schools and universities, which provide the opportunity for close liaison of our research staff with those of the same scientific interests," Mr. Coe said.

Burroughs Wellcome & Co. (U.S.A.), Inc., is a member of the international group of companies owned by the Wellcome Foundation, Ltd., London, England, which in turn is wholly owned by the Wellcome Trust, a philanthropic organization for "... the advancement of research work bearing upon medicine, surgery, chemistry, physiology, bacteriology, therapeutics, materia medica, pharmacy, and allied subjects . . ."

The Tuckahoe company manufactures over 80 medicinal products, including analgesics, antihistamines, antihypertensives, cardiovascular drugs, muscle relaxants, and drugs useful in the treatment of diabetes, gout, leukemia, and certain forms of cancer. It has a branch office and warehouse in Burlingame, California, and a subsidiary company in Monterrey, Mexico.

SEMINARS FOR HOSPITAL PERSONNEL

Two seminars, one in Durham on March 19, the other in Charlotte the following day, concentrated on legal, administrative, economic and professional considerations necessary for hospital pharmacies to provide optimum patient care.

The Plan of Pharmacy Assistance sponsored the seminars in cooperation with the U.S. Public Health Service. Invitations were extended to hospital administrators, hospital pharmacists and others.

AMA ESTABLISHED "FAMILY PHYSICIAN" AS SPECIALTY

A new specialty—FAMILY PHYSICIAN—has been approved by the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association.

Of more than 300,000 physicians in the United States, only 72,000 are GPs. In 1967, fewer than 2% of all medical school graduates selected general practice over specialties.

In this connection it is significant to note that in a recent survey conducted among the faculty of one of our larger universities in North Carolina, when given a preference, 80% of the faculty voted for a "Family Physician" over specialists.

PPA ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEETS

The Advisory Committee to the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance met in Chapel Hill on February 26 with Director Fred M. Eckel and Assistant Director Don C. McLeod.

Committee members present were George M. Stockbridge, Chm., from the N.C. Hospital Association; William F. Henderson from the N.C. Medical Care Commission; W. Gordon Poole from the Nursing Home Section of the State Board of Health; Claude U. Paoloni from the N.C. Society of Hospital Pharmacists; H. C. McAllister from the N.C. Board of Pharmacy, and W. J. Smith from the NCPHA.

Mr. Eckel and Mr. McLeod reviewed program activities for the past year and outlined some proposed programs for the future including the homes for the aged (about 800 in North Carolina).

An effort is now underway to secure financial backing for the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance for the next two years. A North Carolina Foundation has offered $25,000 provided a minimum of $16,000 in matching funds can be secured elsewhere.

HOW ABOUT TRIPLE REFUNDS ON MY RXS FROM 1953 to 1966?

Statement by Attorney General Robert Morgan, which was part of a 3-page release to the press in regard to the anti-trust drug suits but which most N.C. newspapers failed to publish:

"I would like to make one thing clear. This does not involve in any way your local druggist who, as a purchaser from the drug companies himself, has had to pay inflated prices as a result of the alleged conspiracy."

We have reports that numerous prescription patrons have approached their pharmacist for refunds. Attorney General Morgan noted in a recent Raleigh address that he had received a telephone call from one pharmacist who said that customers were lined up at his prescription counter in expectation of receiving immediate refunds.

It is not anticipated North Carolina will receive any settlement money until 1970 and at that time we see no practical, economically feasible way for pharmacists at the retail level to become involved in making refunds to prescription patrons.

The period involved runs from 1953 to 1966. Do you have a simple, inexpensive way to assemble the required prescriptions, make copies, etc.—all for free?

CATNIP SALES UP

Wilcox Drug Company of Boone reports shipments of catnip have risen from 300,000 to about a half million pounds. Reports indicate hippies purchase catnip from pet stores and use it as a substitute for marijuana.

Participating in the seminar were Dr. John Cassel, School of Public Health, University of North Carolina, who spoke on "The Evolving Health Care System," and Dr. M. Keith Weikel of Roche Laboratories who considered "The Evolving Drug Distribution System." A panel which discussed pharmacy practice of the future was composed of Mr. Charles D. Blanton, Jr., a North Carolina pharmacist, Mr. Roger W. Cain of the American Pharmaceutical Association, and Mr. Thomas F. Harwood, Chicago Oseco Drug Stores. Mr. Fred M. Eekel of the School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina, served as moderator for the panel.

VISITING LECTURER

Dr. Sidney Reigelman of the School of Pharmacy, University of California Medical Center at San Francisco, presented a February 14th lecture to the graduate students and faculty at the School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina. The subject of Dr. Reigelman's lecture was, "Evaluation of Drug Absorption in Man."

VISITING CLINICAL INSTRUCTOR PROGRAM AT THE U.N.C. SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

The School of Pharmacy has established a pilot program for visiting clinical instructors. This program seeks highly motivated practicing pharmacists throughout the State to return to the School of Pharmacy and participate in the dispensing and clinical laboratory sessions of the Senior pharmacy students. It is hoped that through this interchange, all participants can benefit. The student gains by learning of the actual current practices from those directly involved. The visiting clinical instructor gains from his participation and greater involvement in the goals and aspirations of the School in educating the students, and learns of the educational trends in current and future pharmacy practices. Moreover, the visiting clinical instructor gains greater insight into the responsibilities which the preceptor assumes in the internship program of the students. The faculty of the School gains greater insight into the obligations of educating the students to meet current and future challenges facing the profession.

The laboratory sessions are held Monday through Thursday each week from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. During the fall semester, there have been four participants in this program. Some attended each week for one laboratory session and others attended every other week. Participants have been Mr. Gerald Stahl, Ph.G., Durham; Mr. Joe Estes, Ph.G., Reidsville; Mr. T. Earl Cobb, Ph.G., Salisbury; and Mr. Al Mebane, III, Ph.G., Greensboro. The School would like to enroll more participants in the program. Anyone interested may enquire of Mr. Claude U. Paoloni, Assistant Professor of Pharmacy, School of Pharmacy, U.N.C., Chapel Hill.

STUDENT CHAPTER OF THE NCPHA AND APhA

The monthly meeting of the UNC Student Chapter of the APhA and NCPHA was held February 5, 1969, in the auditorium of Beard Hall.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Mr. William Geer, the Director of Student Aid at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Geer's speech, "Why Are We Going This Way?" provided those present with an informative and amusing survey of the "not so good" old days.

Following the program, the meeting was adjourned to the student lounge for refreshments.

POISON PREVENTION WEEK WIDELY OBSERVED IN NORTH CAROLINA

Observance of National Poison Prevention Week (March 16-22) grows more widespread with each passing year. If the quantity of supplies requested from the NCPHA is any indication, this year The Week hit an all-time high.

Thousands of the 4-page folder, as made available by the NCPHA, were shipped to all points in the state. Supplementing the folders were copies of the official banner, kits of supplies and the free newspaper mat.

Governor Scott issued an official proclamation (reproduced below), with more than 1400 copies being distributed in North Carolina. Some coverage was provided by radio and TV but much of the effort was concentrated by the in-pharmacy participation by the pharmacists of the State.

While the major effort of poison prevention is directed towards one week each year, the nature of the problem lends itself to a 52 weeks project. As an example, Gilbert D. Colina, Director of the Mercy Hospital (Charlotte) Poison Control Information Center, reports the Center received 593 calls during 1968 in which 453 children, ages 1 to 5, were involved.

STATEMENT BY GOVERNOR ROBERT W. SCOTT

WHEREAS, the latest statistics indicate that there has been a decline in fatalities among young children who have been accidentally poisoned; and

WHEREAS, there is strong evidence that poison prevention educational programs have been a real factor in alerting the public to the potential hazards of everyday household substances and medicines that might be accidentally ingested; and

WHEREAS, the annual Poison Prevention Week observance has proved to be an effective mechanism in drawing together total community resources for a concerted effort to inform parents about the dangers of accidental poisoning and how to cope with them;

THEREFORE, I proclaim March 16-22, 1969 as

POISON PREVENTION WEEK IN
and commend the observance of this event to our citizens.

WADDELL, ABBOTT MSR IN ASHEVILLE AREA

Mr. Waddell will serve as a Professional Medical Representative for the North Chicago based pharmaceutical firm, as he calls on physicians, pharmacies, and hospitals in the Asheville area.

Mr. Waddell was formerly associated with the Warren-Teed Pharmaceuticals.

O'NEAL ELECTED

W. P. O'Neal has been elected president of the 12-county Northeastern Carolina Pharmaceutical Society, which meets bi-monthly in Williamston.

Mr. O'Neal, a graduate of the UNC School of Pharmacy, operates O'Neal's Drug Store in Belhaven; is also mayor of his town.

ALAMANCE COUNTY PHARMACEUTICAL SOCIETY

The Alamance County Pharmaceutical Society held its annual Valentine Dinner and Dance on February 8, 1969 at the Holiday Inn, Burlington, North Carolina. A buffet dinner was served the members and guests, and then we were entertained by a trio of lovely ladies by the name of The Unclaimed Treasures. They think of themselves as the Three Old Maids from "Minnie Pearl Country." They were truly delightful. Harold Gale and his orchestra provided dance music.

Honor guests attending from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith, Dean and Mrs. George P. Hager, Assistant Dean and Mrs. Lee Werley, Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Chambers. It was a great pleasure and honor having them as our guests for the evening.

Also the new officers for the coming year were installed. Re-elected as President for the year was Walter Saunders; Newly elected Vice-President, Raymond Heath; and re-elected as Secretary and Treasurer, Trip May.

NORTH CAROLINA SENDS DELEGATION TO NARD ATLANTA REGIONAL MEETING

North Carolina sent more than twenty pharmacists to the February 7 Atlanta Regional Meeting of the National Association of Retail Druggists.

Normally, the meeting place is of secondary importance, but in this instance, the Regency Hyatt House left a permanent, favorable impression on the registrants. Note: When next in Atlanta, stop by the Regency. Even the elevators are conversation pieces.

How does Roche keep in touch with grass roots pharmacy problems

The Roche community pharmacy panel

That's how! What's more logical than sitting down with small groups of pharmacists around the country to learn their problems and help find the answers?

At these daylong conferences sponsored by Roche, attention is given to all problems, large or small, that concern the pharmacist as a professional and as a community member.

General problems of pharmacy management, doctor-pharmacist and pharmacist-patient relationships and Roche policies are discussed.

Other topics may include the expansion or improvement of services to nursing homes, small hospitals, community pharmacies and civic health organizations.

But that's only the beginning.

Administrative pharmacists, working for Roche, take it from there. These practical professionals make recommendations to Roche management and help create and implement programs—based on your needs and suggestions. This is the way our return-goods policy, nursing home program, product data services, and many other programs originated. And this is the way future pharmacy programs will be devised.

Community Pharmacy Panels help Roche keep its feet deep in the grass roots of this important profession.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO JIM

Virginia Callahan, Chief Pharmacist at St. Joseph's Hospital in Asheville wrote this memorial tribute to Jim Harrison. It appeared in the January, 1969 issue of the hospital's bulletin—SJH ECHO—and is here reproduced in order that Jim's many friends and professional associates may read a co-worker's tribute to a pharmacist who, in his way and in his time, contributed as much to the advancement of North Carolina Pharmacy as anyone we could name.

FRIEND JIM

"He was one of a kind, our friend Jim—a ne'er to be repeated enigma. He had a loose-boned rambling gait and a homespun type of humor reminiscent of Will Rogers, a tongue as smooth and as glib as William Jennings Bryan and a vocabulary to rival Thomas Wolfe.

"He has an insatiable curiosity for learning. His self-imposed education extended even through his last days. His burning desire for knowledge sometimes made him impatient for everyday trivia. He could have been called a scholar, author, reporter, lyricist, printer, journalist but always and foremost he was proud to be called a pharmacist. He loved his profession as few men do—his work was, for him—a recreation.

"His intuitiveness and deep feeling for us at St. Joseph's are expressed in his own words far better than I could ever express them. He left the following note the day he transferred to Biltmore Nursing Home—one day before his last—

"I shall miss all you good people sorely. To say "goodbye" is to die a little, so I say, I shall return on your side of the table whenever I can."

J. HARRISON

Dear Friend Jim: You are sorely missed.

Merck Prescription Chemicals & Narcotics

Many prescriptions such as ointments, nose drops and cough syrups, to mention a few, still require the know-how of a registered pharmacist. Even a casual observer in any pharmacy is mightily impressed when he sees a prescription being compounded. There is an intangible value gained by watching an expert at work. It instills even greater respect and confidence for the profession and the man who has chosen it for his life's work. The use of Merck Prescription Chemicals will not only enhance your professional ability, it will establish you as one who demands the highest quality in chemicals used for compounding.

Merck Chemicals are distributed by QUINTON COMPANY, Division of MERCK & CO., INC., Rahway, N. J.

SUMMARY OF WORKSHOPS*"PHARMACY PRACTICE—1980" SEMINAR

Held in Chapel Hill

January 29, 1969

1. There is a need for the pharmacist to get deeply involved in the delivery of health care. He cannot keep himself uninvolved with the total health care system.
2. Every pharmacist must participate in continuing education programs such as seminars, correspondence courses, tape lending services, etc. Perhaps, continuing education activities should be made compulsory for license renewal.
3. There is a need to make the present pharmacy internship more meaningful to the intern. It should provide the student with exposure to professional practice situations.
4. The student should be given more clinical experience as part of his academic work.
5. There is a need for more biological sciences in the pharmacy curriculum. By deleting unnecessary courses, meaningful courses can be added so as to keep the curriculum at 5 years.
6. Need to introduce pharmacy students to other health team members perhaps through joint course work or hospital activities.
7. Pharmacists must develop better communications among themselves. First, pharmacists need agreement on their objectives (reason for their existence). Once obtained, the profession could then unite around a common purpose.
8. Since the pharmacist is often the first and last contact the patient has with the health care system, the pharmacist must provide and give definition to his triage (referral) function.
9. Pharmacists are going to have to consider delegating non-pharmacist functions to technicians.
10. Pharmacists must make the public aware of his behind the scenes activities.
11. There will probably be an increased utilization of the computer.
12. Every patient should have a medication record prepared for him by his pharmacist.

13. The pharmacist should set up a comprehensive consulting program for patients and physicians.
14. The School of Pharmacy should provide a Drug Information Center as a service to the state's pharmacists and physicians.

HIGH POINT

DURHAM-ORANGE

The Durham-Orange Pharmaceutical Association meeting on February 19th at The Blair House near Durham featured an illustrated talk—Pharmacy in Vietnam—by UNC School of Pharmacy Dean George P. Hager.

North Carolina's Hospital Pharmacies No Longer on Critical List

By JOHANNA GRIMES

In 1966, only 20 percent of North Carolina's hospitals had full-time or part-time pharmacists. Today, 90 per cent of the state's hospitals are served by a professional pharmacist, well above the national 66 per cent average.

New legislation? No.

It was all accomplished by what University of North Carolina Professor Fred M. Eckel terms "the educational approach." And the entire project was formulated by a small, determined committee.

"It's a good example of what North Carolina can do with a problem," said Eckel, a Philadelphian. "It's also a good example of a committee that did something."

Eckel wears three hats on the UNC campus. He's an assistant professor of hospital pharmacy, director of the N. C. Memorial Hospital Pharmacy and director of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance.

The POPA is the program responsible for North Carolina's progress in improving pharmacy services in hospitals and nursing homes throughout the state.

The POPA's success story began in 1965 when the N. C. Board of Pharmacy became concerned because most hospitals in the state did not have a pharmacist associated with them. The board authorized a study, completed by Sample P. Forbus, retired director of Watts Hospital, Durham, and the POPA grew out of this study.

"The next step is the interesting thing," Eckel recalled. The board, instead of trying for legislation, approached the N. C. Medical Care Commission. Both agencies, recognizing the intricacies of the problem, felt the need to involve others.

The Medical Society of the State of North Carolina, the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, the N. C. Society of Hospital Pharmacists, and the N. C. Hospital Association were consulted and they, plus the two initiating agencies, formed the POPA advisory committee with representatives from each group.

This committee put together a program with a two-pronged approach to its problem: informing hospital administrators as to how services of a pharmacist could help them and informing community pharmacists how they could help their hospitals.

Everybody stood to benefit: hospitals, pharmacists and patients.

Funds from the Duke Endowment and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation financed the first two years of the POPA, and Eckel was hired as the first director in September, 1966.

"At that point, I felt the need to get to know as many hospital administrators and pharmacists as possible," said Eckel, who came to Chapel Hill from Ohio State University where he earned his M.S. in hospital pharmacy and was serving as assistant director of the University's hospital pharmacy.

"I spent the better part of my first year here traveling, literally from Manteo to Murphy. I guess I visited 95 percent of the state's 180 hospitals," he said.

"I began to make the administrators aware of what the pharmacist is, what he does and how he can help them," Eckel said. "You know, the pharmacist is a real 'behind the scenes' professional. Few people are aware of what he does or even how he gets there."

In turn, Eckel also approached community pharmacists to explain how they could help the hospitals.

"To the average community pharmacist, the hospital was a big, grey building on a hill that took care of emergencies," Eckel said. "They didn't understand how they could help.

"My job was to give them confidence, to explain the hospital's problems and to help them overcome their hesitations which only existed because they weren't really aware of how much they could be of service."

(Here, Eckel noted that hospital pharmacy is a relatively new field.)

"It was a gratifying experience," Eckel continued his story. "I'd talk to an administrator and he'd say, 'Well, we've gotten along without a pharmacist for 30 years. I don't know.'" The reaction was repeated many times.

But later, after the pharmacist was added to the hospital staff, the administrators agreed: "I just don't know how we got along without him."

Pharmacists were able to help the hospitals in many ways: improvement of overall control of drug distribution and drug purchases; improvement of pharmacy charge systems; establishment of in-service training programs for both nurses and physicians.

"I'd run into hospitals with $25,000 drug inventories when they could have gotten along with $5,000-$7,000," Eckel said. "There were also many examples of lost charges and situations where administrators or directors of nursing were trying to run hospital pharmacies, a task which took them away from their own demanding and full-time jobs."

In September, 1967, one year after Eckel's appointment, the POPA hired an assistant director, Don C. McLeod, and set out to improve pharmacy services in the state's nursing homes.

Using the same approach, the POPA succeeded in identifying a pharmacist with almost every one of the state's 106 nursing homes. Three other groups named representatives to the POPA advisory board in 1967: the N. C. Association of Nursing Homes, the N. C. General Assembly, and the Nursing Home Section, State Board of Health.

Last September, armed with additional funds from the Reynolds Foundation, the POPA entered phase two of its project, shifting emphasis from "quantity to quality," according to Eckel.

The POPA began sending a newsletter to pharmacists and one to hospital administrators. It also began monthly institutional pharmacist programs in Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro and Raleigh.

Response is promising, but could be better, Eckel admits. "Motivation is the real hang-up here," he said. "We're trying to change attitudes, introduce new procedures. Sometimes it can be frustrating. But then you hear from somebody who's taken your advice and it's working. You feel better."

In the near future, the POPA will become a part of the School of Pharmacy's budget. The School is now providing office facilities for the program.

How does Roche® keep in touch with grass roots pharmacy problems

The Roche community pharmacy panel

That's how! What's more logical than sitting down with small groups of pharmacists around the country to learn their problems and help find the answers?

At these daylong conferences sponsored by Roche, attention is given to all problems, large or small, that concern the pharmacist as a professional and as a community member.

General problems of pharmacy management, doctor-pharmacist and pharmacist-patient relationships and Roche policies are discussed.

Other topics may include the expansion or improvement of services to nursing homes, small hospitals, community pharmacies and civic health organizations.

But that's only the beginning.

Administrative pharmacists, working for Roche, take it from there. These practical professionals make recommendations to Roche management and help create and implement programs—based on your needs and suggestions. This is the way our return-goods policy, nursing home program, product data services, and many other programs originated. And this is the way future pharmacy programs will be devised.

Community Pharmacy Panels help Roche keep its feet deep in the grass roots of this important profession.

THIRD PARTY PAYMENTS

By HAYWARD HULL, RPH

Suttle's Drug Store, Shelby, N.C.

In recent years, there has emerged on the medical and political scenes, new concepts for payment of medical care, particularly with regard to out-patient prescriptions. These are the so-called "third party" payments. Some important examples are:

1. Certain hospital insurance policies
2. Welfare coverage (Medicaid in most states, Kerr Mills in North Carolina)
3. The Military Medical Benefit Program (dependents of service personnel)
4. The Vocational Rehabilitation Program (in North Carolina)
5. The Veteran's Administration Program
6. Future plans for:
  - a. Medicare Out-patient prescription coverage
  - b. Various pre-paid prescription insurance

Because of creeping socialism in the government policies, and, in all honesty, due to the demands by people for government sponsored medical care, the future possibility of massive third party payments for prescriptions is apparent. This is consistent with the growing feeling that good health is a right, not a privilege.

In order to keep abreast of the changing picture of pharmacy, we as pharmacists should work constructively with leaders in our field to develop simple but equitable schedules for payment by these parties. Unless we take the time to express our views and explain the problems with which we are confronted, many of these problems will remain unknown, and thus unsolved. And we, as in the past, will have chosen to "live for today" and not to vote . . . in our own future!

Having worked with the problems and feeling that some constructive alternatives should be offered, I have decided to compare the two basic plans in existence, and to offer some personal views on improving third party payments.

I. The Markup System:

The first third party payments in pharmacy utilized the markup system,* a percentage profit based wholly on the cost of the drug. This system was accepted indirectly by insurance companies, who reimbursed the patient for the pharmacist's "normal charge." Such payments were written in insurance policies as part of comprehensive coverage, or as major medical coverage following hospitalization for a specific illness. Examples of this are the various policies of Blue Cross and hospital Care Association.

Payment is made by the patient at the time the prescription is filled. Quarterly the patient must file a claim which the pharmacist is asked to fill out. Although the information requested on these claims varies, most require the patient's name, the date, the name of the drug, the quantity of drug, and the charge. Normally there is a deductible, usually $25.00, each quarter (which may or may not be for each member of the family, depending on the policy) and a co-payment of twenty percent which is to be paid by the patient after the deductible is surpassed. If the deductible has been reached, the patient sends the claim to the insurance company which reimburses the patient for eighty percent of the amount of prescription cost over $25.00.

Several advantages can be noted with this Laissez-Faire approach to payment. The most obvious one is that the pharmacist is allowed to use a system with which he is thoroughly familiar and uses on his regular prescriptions. In most stores this is still the "Fifty-Forty" system, which refers to a fifty percent profit on broken

* (Since the markup system has been used in drug stores for several generations and is used in most commercial fields, I will not spend time explaining the structure of it in detail, but will devote my observations to its application and the reimbursement procedure.)

THIRD PARTY PAYMENTS

bottles and forty percent on unbroken ones. (Variations which increase the percentage profit on low drug cost and decrease the percentage profit on high drug cost are also used.)

Also an advantage developed by the combination of a deductible and a co-payment is the initial cost on the prescriptions which helps to retard overuse of medications by the patient, and therefore to reduce third party expense.

Since payment is made by the patient at the time the prescription is filled, there is no capital invested in credit, a definite expense in some federal and state sponsored programs due to payment delay.

Several disadvantages can be observed with both the plan of payment and the pricing system itself. Information requirements for the various claim forms are both inconsistent and complicated. Often the limitations of the form are confusing, not only to the patient but to the pharmacist as well, which can lead to dissatisfaction resulting from differences in interpretation. For example, the pharmacist may be asked to include only those drugs which are consistent with the diagnosis of the patient, where such information is not available. If the patient keeps his own records, then he may include drugs which do not qualify, or he may request the names of the drugs when it is neither the physician's desire nor in the best interest of the patient to have such knowledge.

Using a deductible and co-payment limitation on the claim has the disadvantage of requiring the patient to be sick in cycles in order to get full benefit from the insurance. In many insurance plans, there are deductibles for each member of the family; therefore, if several members require medication but no one surpasses his deductible, the policyholder has gained nothing by having the insurance.

From the insurance company's standpoint, there is no protection from excessive drug charges since there is no well-defined system involved. Since profit increases with rising drug cost, both the patient and the pharmacist are glad, with the doctor's consent, to increase quantities of the drugs after the deductible has been reached, which can be of savings to the next quarter needs (and increase program costs).

As with any system based on a percentage markup, small quantities of drugs and inexpensive drugs do not allow for a gross profit sufficient to recover the expenses the pharmacist incurs; and conversely, large amounts and expensive drugs produce an excessive gross profit. An example of this is the ophthalmic ointment, which may only cost $.60 and would be dispensed for approximately $1.00. In contrast, if a patient were to need one hundred Furadantin tablets 50mg costing $14.50, it would cost the program approximately $24.00.

Obviously, payment for a program such as the proposed Medicare Out-patient prescription coverage using primarily the markup system would be both impractical and unacceptable to the government, since it would be tantamount to signing a blank check.

II. The Fixed Fee System:

With the emergence of state and federal financed programs providing prescription coverage largely for the masses of the poor and ignorant, came the need for alteration in the payment process. To eliminate the initial investments by these people, the deductible was removed, and the co-payment, if any, was made negligible. The drug store now became a "vendor," handling and processing the forms, and billing the third party directly.

Limitations on drugs covered by the programs were established, mostly by formularies; and a need for consistency in drug charges arose to the surface. From this urgency, a newer concept of pricing came into being with far more enthusiastic support than the markup system. This was the idea of charging drug cost plus a "fixed" professional fee. Now this pricing system has been adopted by most federal programs except the antiquated V.A. Program, examples being Medicaid and The Military Medical Benefit Program.

The idea behind the fixed fee is sound. It is designed to be an average difference between the cost of a drug and its retail price, based on local average prescription prices (i.e. the average gross profit on prescriptions). The development of this system marks the evolution of the concept of charging for the service rendered, rather than a specified rate of return on a product.

There are certainly some advantages to the fee system. One is that a pharmacist is assured of a consistent profit on each prescription. The fees in the various programs range from $1.50 to $2.30 depending on the program and the state, with the average being around $1.75. With both the drug cost and the fee being predictable, the pharmacist and the third party can determine the final charge. This simplifies the mathematics and makes auditing less trouble.

Use of the fee system reduces the importance of the drug cost to the pharmacist, an interesting point of great magnitude in this era of the "brand name product versus the generic" controversy! Second, it reduces the cost of expensive drugs, which is particularly important in a program such as Medicare where a large percentage of the prescriptions are potentially for maintenance medications.

There are several especially significant disadvantages in the fee system. The first one involves the basic concept with which the plan was conceived, which I have mentioned above. The prescription price and cost averages are noticeably altered by the programs themselves. As soon as the physician is made aware that a patient is "on welfare," he invariably begins prescribing in much larger quantities. It may be that he has suppressed his prescribing habits previously for economic reasons; or, it is highly possible that he is trying to save the patient both time and expense. In either case it throws the drug cost-profit ratio out of balance. The pharmacist must often invest two or three times as much in drug cost as before, with no more hope for added profit on his investment. (As an example of this, our store average prescription price including welfare prescriptions was around $3.00 in 1967; but, as a group the welfare prescriptions averaged approximately $4.00.)

Another problem associated with the fixed fee system is the lack of a flexible method of partially filling a prescription or increasing the quantity of a drug. If the patient needs only part of the prescription, if the pharmacist does not have the entire quantity of the drug prescribed, if the doctor for medical reasons decides to refill the prescription in small quantities, or numerous other problems similar to this which routinely occur; the patient and the "third party" wonder about the integrity of the pharmacist. If the patient wants to increase the quantity of the drug, which is very often the case in this type of program, the pharmacist is obviously reluctant since the burden of this extra cost is not shared. It is borne entirely by him.

The second significant disadvantage involves the gradually declining value of the dollar itself. In a set ("fixed") fee system, there is no allowance for the gradual rise in the standard of living which has been between three and four percent a year. An example of increases in average prescription prices is the set of figures taken from the June 24, 1968, issue of the Green Sheet, a pharmacy publication, which cites an estimated average price of $4.22 on Medicare Out-Patient prescriptions by 1970, and an increase to $4.64 by 1975. Obviously, a $1.75 fee based on a $3.50 average prescription price will not be sufficient for $4.22 and $4.64 averages in a time when its purchasing power will be reduced.

Another flaw concerns the payment plan on each end of the price scale. On high cost prescriptions the payment is not consistent with the service performed and the investment. An example of this is a drug cost of $10.00. With the added fee the payment is $11.75. The cost of maintaining the drug in inventory for two months, would exceed this, based on a maintenance cost rate of one-half percent of drug cost per day given by Dr. Paul C. Olsen in the July 8, 1968, issue of Drug Topics.

This problem has already compelled one state, New Jersey, to add a rider to the fixed fee system for Medicaid prescriptions, which pays an extra ten percent on drug cost exceeding $3.00.

THIRD PARTY PAYMENTS

On low cost prescriptions, the charge is excessive to service and investment. Certain medications, such as phenobarbital, have no real cost; but, because of their potential abuse, they are often prescribed in small quantities. Thus, a drug which costs no more than $.10 may be prescribed in quantities of a dozen or less and refilled several times a month, at a great expense to the program.

In general, this system manifests an indifferent attitude by pharmacists toward the patients under the program, and despite binding to ethics, leaves the pharmacist disillusioned toward supporting such programs. It is certainly no panacea for payment and creation of full professional status.

In looking back at the two types of systems, we see that the basic flaw is the lack of buffering effect to maintain interest in the extreme prescriptions.

In review:

Markup:

Low cost drug: (pharmacist unsatisfied, third party satisfied)

High cost drug: (pharmacist satisfied, third party unsatisfied)

Fee System:

Low cost drug: (pharmacist satisfied, third party unsatisfied)

High cost drug: (pharmacist unsatisfied, third party satisfied)

Thus in both systems we have an economic see-saw with neither side finding any suitable answer at the ends of the price spectrum. As a pharmacist, I can see why another pharmacist would be unhappy when larger and larger quantities are being prescribed, but fees are stationary. The unsaid words are, "Why not let the man down the street handle the expensive ones!" (It certainly is no trouble to be out of a drug when the high cost prescription is presented to the pharmacist.) As a result, the patient is not getting good quality medical care, but is relegated to "second class citizenship." He becomes a social nuisance!

III. A Combination of Both Systems:

Just as companies noted that neither the fixed salary (fee) nor the straight commission (markup) were individually suitable as an incentive for salesmen, it would appear that the obvious answer lies in a combination of these systems for paying pharmacists. As a unique profession (the only one involving both a professional service and a retail product), why not have a split payment plan which pays for these two concepts separately. Pay a fixed fee covering only the professional service rendered, and sufficient markup to cover the true cost of maintaining the drug in inventory.

Having used a variation of this system in our store for all prescriptions, with a tremendous amount of success and satisfaction, I can highly recommend it as a practical and fair approach to pricing.

For use in third party payments a charge, which is oriented toward the fixed fee, with a vastly reduced markup, is the most realistic approach. After manipulating fees and percentages for several months, I have found that in North Carolina the most suitable combination of fee and markup to be $1.25 plus a markup of twenty-five percent of drug cost. (The total charge would certainly need to vary in different regions; and hopefully, each state would be allowed to determine its own fixed portion of the fee based on the average salary and prescription price. For example, in California, the corresponding charges would be approximately $1.65 plus twenty-five percent of drug cost.) Thus to a drug cost of $2.00, 25% of it or $.50 is added, and the fixed fee of $1.25, to obtain a final charge of $3.75.

Payment of the charge should also be split, with the patient paying the $1.25 as co-payment on each prescription, and the third party paying the drug cost plus the markup. Even if the patient is reimbursed for this money, as is the case in North Carolina's welfare (Kerr Mills) program, this small investment serves to discourage him from "stockpiling" drugs or getting medicine for a friend.

With the combination system, the low cost prescription is much cheaper to the third party than with the use of the fee; and since it will be refilled by necessity more often, it will result in regular savings. In the high cost prescription the percentage profit drops below the markup system, but the total profit slowly increases, so it will be beneficial to the pharmacist to handle this one also. At the same time the rates at both ends are sluggish enough to discourage the temptation to manipulate the quantities to get ahead of the game.

This system also eliminates the inflexibility of other systems dealing with the partial filling and increasing quantities of prescriptions, since there is no significant advantage to either party by changing amounts. With the deductible (co-payment) being a constant amount, no loss or savings to the patient is obtained by juggling the prescriptions during the months or quarters. The third party is paying a low markup, which is a constant rate; therefore, it should not matter to them whether the patient is having the prescription filled once a week, or monthly.

By eliminating the advantages in any direction, we have gone a long way toward creating a normal Doctor-Pharmacist-Patient relationship, which is missing in the other systems, but is important in good medical care.

With only a $1.25 investment in each prescription, the insured party and his family could have seven prescriptions filled in a single month with an investment of $8.75. This amount would certainly not break the budget of any individual; and, we are not necessarily speaking of indigent persons in Medicare, but of persons with reduced income, who are trying to avoid excessive medical costs.

For the pharmacist there is the protection against increases in the cost of drugs due to a rise in the wholesale cost index (i.e. cost of living), since the percentage markup will be based on that rising cost. This ties the pharmacist's income to a normal inflationary or deflationary period without constant structural changes being necessary in the pricing system. It also protects the pharmacist from bulk prescribing by doctors who are aware of the "third party" involvement.

One of the important problems of the other systems is the excessive time and expense in billing, both at the retail level and at the level of the insurer. (In our drug store it is now costing us $.25 per prescription to have our welfare prescriptions recorded and totaled on the claim forms by a secretary not regularly employed by the store). There is no question but that the added bookkeeping with increasing third party involvement will require a "medical secretary," and therefore, an additional salary. This is just another reality in the face of a trend toward socialized medicine.

Being aware of these billing problems, I have tried to build in some advantages in the combination system. First, billing is less complex by having a split payment. The $1.25 has already been paid by the patient. The claim form need only show the cost of the drug plus the markup.

This may be further simplified through the use of charts prepared with the mathematics completed, which can be easily supplied both to the third party and to the retail store. As an example:

(Portion of chart showing cost of drug plus 25% prefigured):

Price/100 Tablets:	Cost/Doz.
5.98-6.32	$ .95 Doz
6.33-6.66	1.00 Doz
6.67-7.00	1.05 Doz
7.01-7.35	1.10 Doz
7.36-7.69	1.15 Doz
...etc...	...etc...

By having the markup prefigured in the price per dozen or per ounce, the pharmacist can develop his final charge in seconds. This will eliminate the time-consuming problem of finding the cost of 36 tablets with an invoice cost of $8.17 per hundred tablets.

This eliminates the final step of adding the profit to the total drug cost for several prescriptions at the bottom of the claim form, and therefore eliminates possible errors in computing it. Auditing is also made simple for the third party, since they can easily check those figures by using the same chart.

Thus, using the chart the form would look like this:

(The $1.25 fee for service need not be shown on the billing forms, but could be noted on the "Insurance Card" for the patient to see.) As an example:

Eligible Recipients: 2

(PATIENT IS TO PAY THE FIRST

To save billing time a laminated card similar to the credit cards used by the oil companies could be developed. (Or optionally the required information could be recorded on family medical records for handy reference in billing.) To reclaim cancelled cards, the government could rely on the same system used by the states to recall driver's licenses.

If, in fact, antitrust laws prevent or strike down the "fixed" fee, and we must decide to let each store determine its own charge for the service rendered; then it may be done simply with no change to the program or the price schedule. In fact this may be an answer to two problems: (1) the difference in services offered by the various types of drug stores, and (2) the differences in the standard of living in California compared to North Carolina.

A problem of "acquisition cost" variations must also be settled. There are several different approaches to this in programs now in existence. Having worked with these ideas both from the theoretical and practical levels, I find that a compromise between the existing systems is most suitable. It should be based on the "lowest" Red Book price of the one hundred size or the pint size containers of the drug. In the case of odd sizes, the price should be adjusted to one hundred or pint cost figure.

This will give a predictable, consistent figure for using the charts, and is the size normally used in pricing in a pharmacy. It is not an inflated figure such as the cost of the sixteen size bottle of Chloromycetin capsules, but it allows an economic opportunity to the man who is willing to risk stocking a larger size or buying direct from the manufacturer (which inevitably increases inventory). It will certainly not help reduce the cost of a program if the incentive to purchase at lower prices is eliminated. In addition, the expense incurred in auditing invoices would reduce any savings gained by requiring true "acquisition cost."

Finally, I think we can disregard any concern arising from the economic advantage that chains and discount stores have in purchasing power. The extra profit they will pick up will be off-set when they incur the swing of the pendulum of supply and demand on the meager services which they offer. To paraphrase a statement by editor Irvin Rubin in American Professional Pharmacist, when price is no longer a factor in prescriptions, the patients will turn to those stores offering the most services for their $1.25. Thus, the advantage in profit will be neutralized by the loss of prescriptions to stores with more services. At this point it is my contention that the patient will be restored to "first class citizenship," and pharmacists will have a system which, while not perfect, they can live with!

A PREVIEW OF COMMUNITY PHARMACY . . . 1968

The preliminary LILLY DIGEST report of 1,135 community pharmacy operations reveals several interesting developments. When the individual income and expense statement items are expressed as a percent of total sales and compared to 1967 LILLY DIGEST data, they indicate:

Cost of goods sold remained unchanged as did gross margin for the third year; but total expenses increased significantly for the fourth consecutive year resulting in a lower net profit during 1968.

Total sales reached a record high of $200,977, the first time average LILLY DIGEST sales have exceeded $200,000, reflecting an increase of $12,548 (6.7 percent). This total dollar gain was due to a substantial upswing in prescription revenue of 10.4 percent and an increase in other sales of 4.0 percent. During 1968, prescription sales as a percent of total sales increased to 43.3 percent (up from 41.8 percent in 1967). This continues an uninterrupted 25-year uptrend in prescription revenue as a percent of total sales.

The number of prescriptions dispensed during the year rose to 23,483; a substantial increase of 1,939 prescriptions. Of this total, 45.0 percent were new prescriptions. This continues a long-term trend in which refills have annually increased as a percentage of the total prescription volume. Refills provided 55.0 percent of the total prescription activity. The average prescription charge increased four cents during 1968, from $3.66 to $3.70.

Total operating expenses increased by 8.3 percent and averaged 31.6 percent of total sales. Net profits decreased to 4.3 percent in the face of escalating expenses—notably employee wages. Rent expense rose to 2.6 percent of sales, up from 2.5 percent recorded in each of the past five years. Total income (salary plus net profit, before taxes) established a new high of $24,548 per pharmacy-owner, but decreased to 12.2 percent of total sales.

Inventory levels increased in dollars but remained relatively constant as a percent of sales at 17.9 percent. The sales productivity of the prescription department inventory reached an all-time high of $7.42 per stock dollar while other merchandise again declined to a record low of $4.69.

SUMMARY

The preliminary LILLY DIGEST report of the 1968 operating figures of 1,135 community pharmacies is compared with the 1967 LILLY DIGEST averages of 2,312 pharmacies and is summarized in the attached table. The 1968 LILLY DIGEST will be completed and distributed in early September.

MEETING SHORTAGES OF PHYSICIANS

Durham Morning Herald

The findings as to need by the Committee on the Physician Shortage in Rural North Carolina only confirm what was known when the group was set up, that there are serious shortages of doctors in rural areas and of general practitioners. Consequently the recommendations of the committee, looking to relieve these shortages, are particularly significant; they merit careful consideration for the contribution they may and can make.

The medical profession itself is demonstrating a welcome concern over the scarcity of general practitioners and the lack of appeal this type of practice has for those going into medicine. The move within the American Medical Association to make family practice a specialty, with graduate training and board certification, aims at making it more prestigious and therefore more attractive.

How well any measures will succeed in attracting physicians to small town and rural practice is conjectural. There is a trend away from these areas by professional people. Certainly the motivation for this trend need not be economic, for there are abundant opportunities for successful practice in small town-rural communities. Physicians' wives, desirous of more extensive social and cultural opportunities, constitute a persuasive factor in the decisions of their husbands to locate in more populous centers, though in this respect not all the responsibility must be put on the wives. The less pressing demands of specialization, with opportunities to confine practice to hospital and office and largely to fixed hours, make an appeal which general practice, with the physician on call around the clock, does not have.

We need in small town-rural communities multi-doctor clinics (not included in the recommendations) in which the load and pressures of family practice can be shared. Training programs should include a period of internship for young physicians in these clinics, not only to counterbalance the lure of specialization current intern-residency programs have but also to show the need of these communities for health services, the opportunities for financial success they afford, and the satisfactions of living in them. As long as we keep the one-doctor-per-office concept, general or family practice in small town-rural sections may be expected to decline to extinction. The solution lies largely within the profession and the organization of service the doctors themselves set up.

HAGER SPEAKS AT BUFFALO

Dean George P. Hager was one of the four speakers in a series of seminars on Professional Pharmacy Practice and Education which is being held at the School of Pharmacy of the State University of New York at Buffalo during this academic year. The topic of Dean Hager's March 15 address was, "New Perspectives on Pharmacy Services."

Dr. George H. Coeolas served as chairman of a National Science Foundation review panel on February 28 and March 1 in Washington, D.C. The panel had the task of evaluating requests for funds from numerous colleges and universities under the N.S.F. Undergraduate Scientific Equipment Program. The Administrator of that program is Dr. James C. Kellett, a former U.N.C. School of Pharmacy faculty member.

Dean George P. Hager has recently appeared before meetings of both the Greensboro Society of Pharmacists and the Durham-Orange Pharmaceutical Association to present his evaluation of Pharmacy in South Vietnam. Dean Hager was a member of a three-man team sent to Vietnam by the U.S. Department of State last November to evaluate Vietnam Pharmacy.

PHI DELTA CHI

Alpha Gamma Chapter of Phi Delta Chi is pleased to announce that it has been selected as one of the 100% chapters in the Phi Delta Chi Achievement Award Program. The chapter is to receive a trophy which will be presented at the A.Ph.A. convention in Montreal. It is the sincere desire of the fraternity to maintain this mark of excellence and to perpetuate our present and future programs to continue to meet this end.

Phi Delta Chi is honored to have the following men in the spring pledge class:

Robert William Brown
Kernersville, N.C.
Jackie Gwyn Fender
Chapel Hill, N.C.
Charles Wagoner Rose
Reidsville, N.C.
Clifton McPherson Leonard
Lexington, N.C.
Henry Shelton Brown, Jr.
Chapel Hill, N.C.

We feel that the numerous achievements which the above men bring into the fraternity will further strengthen the overall scope of our endeavors.

As a service project this year, the fraternity is acting as a speaker bureau for the profession of pharmacy to high schools throughout the state. We are working with the assistance of the U.N.C. School of Pharmacy; the North Carolina Hospital Association—Health Careers Division and the State Department of Education. Thus far, programs have been presented at East Duplin High School, North Stokes High School and South Stokes High School with numerous engagements slated for the coming months. These programs are presented to the Health Careers Club or the "college prep. classes" at the schools visited and briefly consist of what the profession really is, the necessary educational requirements, opportunities in the profession, and various and assorted items about pharmacy and U.N.C. in general.

UNC SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

At our last dinner meeting, we had the pleasure of having Dr. Louis S. Harris, Professor of Pharmacology, speak to us on "Drug Development." Dr. Harris is a very distinguished pharmacologist and played a key role in the development of the drug Talwin®

Recently, Charles Pace and Richard Smutney attended the A.Ph.A. Student's Branch (Region III) Convention in Atlanta.

We wish to offer our most esteemed congratulations to Henry Bess and Charles Rose for having been selected for membership in Rho Chi. We show pride in these men for the nature of their academic excellence as well as their noteworthy contributions to the profession and the fraternity.

Looking at the social agenda during the past few weeks, everyone will agree that the Roller Skating Party we had February 8 was nothing short of "fannytastic." Several of us, including this correspondent, have given serious consideration to billing the Roller Drome in Durham for the services we rendered in polishing the floor! It is the consensus of this group that we are thankful the Good Lord gave us feet instead of wheels! ! ! On February 14, we had an informal Valentines party, but the spirits of the occasion were somewhat dampened due to the defeat of the Tarheels by the "Tarholes" of South Carolina.

KAPPA PSI

Beta XI Chapter of Kappa Psi is proud to announce the induction of the following new brothers: William Glenn Girtman, Sparta, N.C.; Stanley Elbert Tunnell, Raleigh, N.C.; Luther Stevens Byrd, Jr., Lumberton, N.C.; Stephen Camaday Dedrick, Grifton, N.C.; William Alexander Morton, Jr., Wilmington, N.C.; Theodore Douglas Bland, Wallace, N.C.; Michael George Williams, New Bern, N.C.; Eric Allen Jackson, Jacksonville, N.C.; William Keith Elmore, Durham, N.C.; Jeff Draughn Whitehead, Enfield, N.C.; Walton Elbert Bass, Jr., Lueama, N.C.; and Richard Kent Bower, West Jefferson, N.C.

Getting the new year off to a good start, elections were recently held and the following were elected to offices: Regent—Buck Albright; 1st Vice Regent—Randy Teague; 2nd Vice Regent—Jim Williams; Secretary—Don Royster; Treasurer—Bill Pittman; Pledge Master—Bill Harrison; Chaplain—Tom Leonard; Social Chairman—Joey Edwards; Historian—Steve Moore; House Manager—Larry Cline; Intramural Director—Dickie Bower; and Grand Council Deputy—Fred Semeniuk. Miss Taffy McIver was elected the chapter sweetheart. Many plans are being made for new year and it promises to be the best!

On the twenty-first of February, Brothers Randy Teague, Jim Hayes, Joey Edwards, Steve Moore and Al Simmons were in the delegation attending the Southeastern regional Student Branch of the APhA Convention in Atlanta, Georgia. Al was selected to represent the UNC School of Pharmacy in the Interprofessional Student Symposium. He spoke on "The Professional Education, 1969—Hallmark or Hangup." This symposium was under the auspices of a grant from Warner-Chileott Pharmaceutical Co.

With Spring just around the corner, things are already beginning to move. On Friday, February 14, the first combo party of the semester was held at the American Legion Hut, featuring the "Superiors" Combo from Burlington, N.C. Plans are progressing nicely for Pledge Weekend, Beach Weekend, as well as other projects for the semester.

Under the joint direction of our chaplain, Tom Leonard, and the Women's Auxiliary, Kappa Psi will be manning an auxiliary Information Stand to aid in visitor service for the hospital. The booth will be manned on 7 days of each week along with the Auxiliary, to aid in alleviating the congestion at the head information desk. Best wishes on this very worthwhile project for the hospital.

At recent ceremonies, three of our brothers were tapped into Rho Chi Scholarship Fraternity. These are: Buck Albright, Salisbury, N.C.; Mike Clinard, Chapel Hill, N.C.; and Randy Teague, Taylorsville, N.C. Congratulations to these for their outstanding academic achievement.

KAPPA EPSILON

Lambda Chapter began its second semester of yearly activity on February 10 with a business meeting for planning events. Rush was held on February 24 in the student lounge. Flowers sent by Phi Delta Chi added an attractive touch to the refreshment table. The bulletin board was designed and displayed by Joy Wilson and Frances Goodrich, showing the symbols of Kappa Epsilon. Women who were interested in pledging K. E. attended the parties and bids went out the following Wednesday. The sisters held a pledge dinner at the Pines for the new girls, and those who attended the dinner will participate in the pledging ritual on March 17. We are proud to welcome the following girls as pledges: Carol Ann Hogarth Alexander, Lillington; Mickey Lynn Allen, North Wilkesboro; Mary Margaret Dysart, Marion; Martha Fenn, Greensboro; Ruth Elizabeth Hawkins, Raleigh; Gail Lee Henry, Charlotte; Martha Lewis Herring, Clinton; Judy Sharon Jordan, Kannapolis; Linda Jean Propst, Morganton; Bonita Faire Reynolds, Reidsville; Virginia Anne Wallin, Black Mountain; Linda Ann Allen, Shelby; Carole Winifred Craunor, Raleigh; Reba LaRue Draughon, Dunn; Karen Ann Erikson, Hickory; Elizabeth Ann Horton, Roanoke, Va.; Sandra Sue Jannasch, Richmond, Va.; Catherine Marie Lee, Wilmington; Tamara Elaine McMaekin, Charlotte; Susan Hamilton Moore, Mt. Gilead; Walda Elizabeth Parker, Hickory; Patricia Elaine Robertson, Swannanoa; Ailee Elaine Thornton, Wake Forest. Anne Marie Wray was elected Pledge Mistress, and she has a big job ahead of her with twenty-three new girls. Good luck, Anne! And congratulations to each of the pledges.

Later in the semester will be election and installation of officers and the annual Founder's Day Banquet celebrating the establishment of Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. Lambda Chapter will be represented at the National K. E. Convention held this summer in Salt Lake City by two delegates chosen from the sisterhood. These girls will be voted on later this spring.

K. E. wishes to take this opportunity to congratulate Vassar Chumley, Susan Stafford, and Edna Turner upon being tapped into Rho Chi. These girls have certainly contributed a great deal to K. E. and the profession of pharmacy.

REPORT OF THE STUDENT CHAPTER OF THE NCPH AND APHA

The monthly meeting of the UNC Student Chapter of the APHA and NCPHA was held March 5 in the auditorium of Beard Hall.

Graham Patrick read the report, prepared by Edna Turner, on the Region III APHA Student Section Convention which was held on February 20 through 22 in Atlanta, Georgia. Following this, an announcement of the National APHA Convention, in Montreal, Canada, on May 17 through 23, was made.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Mr. Henry L. Verhulst, the Director of the Poison Control Division of the Public Health Service in Washington, D.C. Mr. Verhulst provided those present with nationwide statistics concerning accidental ingestions of poisonous substances. Such information was more than sufficient to suggest to the pharmacist that he has a specific role in making every week "Poison Prevention Week."

Following the program, the meeting was adjourned to the lounge for refreshments.

GASTONIA RESIDENT COMPLETES DRUG COMPANY TRAINING COURSE

Kenneth Boyd McCara, a professional sales representative of Pfizer Laboratories, a division of Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., a 120-year-old pharmaceutical and chemical manufacturer, recently attended a two-week company training session in New York City. Mr. McCara will be contacting physicians, pharmacists and other professional medical groups in the Asheville district.

Mr. McCara, who joined Pfizer in June, 1968, attended Appalachian State. He and his wife, Opal, have one child, Kennie. They live on Route 4, Box 474, Gastonia, North Carolina.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I would like to extend to each of you a personal invitation to meet me in Raleigh on April 27, 28, and 29 for our annual convention. Many exciting activities have been planned especially for you. The hostesses have done their best to make sure that they have the things planned that you enjoy most.

Won't it be exciting to see how ladies all over the state have carried out their Poison Prevention campaigns? On Tuesday there will be two awards presented—one to the local auxiliary that has done the most to promote Poison Prevention and the other to the individual who has done the most.

Will all of the presidents of the local auxiliaries be sure to include in their reports how their group promoted Poison Prevention. Ladies who are in areas where there isn't a local auxiliary, please send me information on what you have done about Poison Prevention by April 10. Mr. James L. Creech, who is president of the N.C. Pharmaceutical Association will do the judging for this project.

Serving as your president has been a real learning experience for me. It has also been most enjoyable. Everyone has been very cooperative, gracious, and thoughtful. Thank you.

Mrs Don Chapman
President

PHARMACY STUDENT WIVES

The Pharmacy Student Wives held their meeting on March 11 at the Institute of Pharmacy with Mrs. Shelton Brown, Jr., president, presiding. A nominating committee was appointed to bring a slate of officers before the next meeting of the organization to be voted on. The forthcoming convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association and its affiliated auxiliaries was discussed and plans were made for members to attend. Mrs. John Stacy was introduced as the organization's new Social Chairman.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Sybil Smith introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Page of Storybook Farm who spoke to the group on Child Development.

Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Michael Badger.

GASTON COUNTY

The Gaston County Pharmaceutical Auxiliary met March 17, 1969 at the home of Mrs. Gordon Bane. Mrs. Bane, Mrs. Donald Brown and Mrs. John Ammen were hostesses for the meeting. The St. Patrick's Day motif was carried out in the decorations and refreshments.

Mrs. Gary Cloninger, president, conducted the business meeting and Mrs. William Forrest, chairman of the poison prevention campaign, discussed the club's participation in National Poison Prevention Week.

A program on decoupage was presented by Mrs. Leon Linderman. She discussed the history and gave step-by-step procedures of the art. Some of her completed work was on display.

You wrap your reputation around the products you dispense.

Your reputation goes on the line every time you fill a prescription—with patients and with physicians alike. You know that seemingly minor differences in method of manufacture—the size of the particle, the excipient used, the character of the gelatin capsules, solubility, disintegration rate—all can make a crucial difference in therapeutic effectiveness. Your professional judgment tells you . . . when it comes to your customer's health (and your reputation), you want to dispense the best.

ABBOTT LABORATORIES TO BUILD $4.8 MILLION PLANT AT LAURINBURG: THIRD ABBOTT PLANT FOR NORTH CAROLINA

Abbott Laboratories will build a $4.8 million plant in Laurinburg for manufacturing hospital intravenous equipment, Abbott President E. J. Ledder has announced.

The North Chicago, Ill., firm has purchased 50 acres of land at the junction of U.S. 401 bypass and U.S. 15-501 for the plant. Work will begin immediately. Target date for completion is fall of 1970.

Initially, the new plant will employ about 300 people. When it's in full operation, it will employ about 650 people.

The Laurinburg plant will be Abbott's third in North Carolina. Two others—one for hospital intravenous solutions, the other for the equipment used to administer them—are now operating near Rocky Mount, N.C. The Laurinburg plant will not affect employment levels at either Rocky Mount plant, because the new plant is being built to meet increasing market demand.

The Laurinburg plant, like the two at Rocky Mount, will become part of Abbott's Hospital Products Division, headed by Dr. Herbert Gross, Vice-President.

The Laurinburg site was chosen after Abbott officials considered some 25 possible sites, Dr. Gross said. It was considered most desirable because of its closeness to Abbott's major markets, the availability of productive people, and its healthy business climate.

In addition to intravenous solutions and equipment, Abbott makes and markets antibiotics, hematinics, vitamins, cardiovascular drugs, anesthetics, sedatives, prepared infant formulas, blood products and diagnostics, non-caloric sweeteners, radio-pharmaceuticals, animal health products, and bulk chemicals.

Abbott, with 1968 sales of $351 million, has other plants in Columbus, Ohio; Sturgis, Mich.; Mitchell, S.D.; Ashland, Ohio; Spartanburg, S.C.; Berlin, Md.; Witehita, Kan.; Chicago; Buffalo, N.Y.; Los Angeles, and San Francisco. In addition, the company has manufacturing operations in 26 nations overseas, and does business in 157 countries. Abbott employs 16,000 people world-wide.

GIBSON ELECTED MAYOR OF GOLDSBORO

In a closely contested race, Tommy Gibson was elected mayor of Goldsboro. He defeated Tom R. Robinson by 21 votes.

The unique part of the election was that both candidates are pharmacists. While other pharmacists have and are serving as head of their city governments, this is believed to be the first time the two opposing candidates were pharmacists.

Mr. Robinson has served as mayor of Goldsboro since 1964. He was elected to the board of aldermen in 1949 and was appointed Mayor protem in 1951.

Tommy Gibson is the son of Pharmacist and Mrs. W. S. (Bill) Gibson. He graduated from Goldsboro High School in 1957 and the UNC School of Pharmacy in 1961. He is chief pharmacist at Wayne Memorial Hospital and assists his father in the operation of Gibsons Drug Store.

THIS LETTER, WRITTEN BY PHARMACIST ROWE CAMPBELL OF TAYLORSVILLE AND MAILED TO 100 FOREIGN ROTARY CLUBS, HAS BEEN VERY PRODUCTIVE. PHARMACEUTICAL DISPLAY ITEMS FOR THE CAMPBELL APOTHECARY SHOP HAVE BEEN RECEIVED FROM EGYPT, ISRAEL, HONG KONG, SWEDEN, ETC.

Dear Rotarians:

Greetings from the Taylorsville, North Carolina, U.S.A. Rotary Club. Our club is 31 years old and we have a membership of around 50. I am a charter member of this great club and am happy to say that I served as its second president. Taylorsville has a population of about 2500 people and we think one of the finest places in the world to live. We are in the western portion of the State of North Carolina in the foothills of the mountains. Our climate is extra good—four months of cold weather and eight months of warm. We have a fine citizenship and a well balanced community with farming and manufacturing.

In 1917, I passed the North Carolina State Board of Pharmacy and was licensed as a pharmacist. In 1918, I opened the Peoples Drug Store in Taylorsville, North Carolina and it has been operated continuously by men since that date, excepting the last two years. I had a serious illness and sold the store to my son and others keeping only one per cent of the stock so I could say, "I am in the drug business." I recovered and am now working 40 hours a week. The store was 50 years old on 14 December 1968.

During these 50 years, I have saved, bought and been given a great many articles of interest—at least I think so. On February 17, 1961, our store filled our 1,000,000th prescription. I received at this time several plaques, mortars and pestles, gold bottles and other things from different pharmaceutical and bottle manufacturers. In 1965 I was named North Carolina Pharmacist of the year. I was given a banquet and presented the Mortar and Pestle Award. It is so ineribed. With these things described above and others, I have opened in my home an old Apothecary Shop—a semi-museum if you will. This was the culmination of a half century dream.

Using my large side porch facing Main Street and two rooms adjoining, my den and bedroom, I have all the things mentioned above on display. Also I have hung 275 pictures of pharmacists, family, physicians, friends, notables and others in these three rooms. It is now open to the public for free. On 15 December 1968, we had our opening and around 600 of our friends came to see us. We think that was good for it was an unusually cold day.

Now, for my writing this letter. I want some items from other places of the world like yours. Anything connected with a pharmacy or chemist's shop, such as mortars and pestles, bottles, graduates and jars, either in copper, iron, wood, marble, metal, glass or porcelain. I am writing 100 letters and enclosing a check for $10.00 to each club asking their help. Can you help me? Do you have a classification in your club similar to mine? Please take this money and buy and mail me some item connected with my business from your country. This will be appreciated more than you will ever know.

When I receive these items I will have some pictures made and mail them to each club that I hear from.

Mr. Luther Hodges, Past Rotary International President, is a former Governor of the State of North Carolina.

Thank you again for anything you might do for me.

With kindest regards and esteem, I am another Rotarian,

Rowe B. Campbell

This letter was presented before our club and knowing what Rowe Campbell is doing, we gave it our unqualified support. Not only that, we offered to help him in any way we could. We ask that you give this Rotarian your help, too. Thank you.

NORTH CAROLINA PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION NAMES
TAYLORSVILLE PHARMACIST
1969 RECIPIENT OF OUTSTANDING COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD

Taylorsville pharmacist Thomas R. Burgiss has been honored by the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association as its 1969 recipient of the A. H. Robins "Bowl of Hygeia" Award for outstanding community service.

Burgiss, a partner in Northwestern Drug Company, received the award April 27 during the association's annual convention in Raleigh.

Making the presentation was Alvin Jenkins, district manager in the Carolina Division of A. H. Robins Company. Participating in the ceremony was James L. Creech of Smithfield, president of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association.

The recipient is a native of Elkin, North Carolina, and a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy.

Burgiss is president of the Alexander County United Fund, which exceeded its fund raising goal, and is chairman of the Alexander County Library Drive.

He also is a member of the executive board of the Taylorsville Improvement Committee, vice president of the Optimist Club, and a member of First Baptist Church. He is a past president of the Elkin Jaycees.

Burgiss is a member of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, a director of the North Carolina Research Foundation, and a member of the North Carolina Academy of Practical Instructors in Pharmacy.

The Bowl of Hygeia, most widely recognized international symbol of pharmacy, derives from Greek mythology.

Hygeia was the daughter and assistant of Aesculapius (sometimes spelled Asklepios), the God of Medicine and Healing. Her classical symbol was a bowl containing a medicinal potion, with the serpent of Wisdom (or guardianship) partaking of it.

This is the same serpent of Wisdom which appears on the caduceus, the staff of Aesculapius which is the symbol of medicine.

The "Bowl of Hygeia" Award, presented annually through the N.C. Pharmaceutical Association, is a handsome mahogany plaque measuring 10 by 13 inches and featuring the Bowl of Hygeia cast in bronze. It is modeled after a sterling silver bowl made by a Mexican silversmith and given to the A. H. Robins Company by its Latin American representatives in 1953 on the Richmond (Va.) ethical pharmaceutical manufacturing firm's 75th anniversary.

An appreciation of the time and personal sacrifice devoted by pharmacists to the welfare of their respective communities prompted E. Claiborne Robins, president of the company, to establish the award in 1958. It is now presented annually in each of the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and all 10 provinces of Canada.

REPEAT AUDIENCE FOR JESSE PIKE

Jesse M. Pike's talk—What Makes a Successful Drug Store—as presented in Atlanta several months ago, was so favorably received he was asked for a repeat at the annual meeting of the South Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, held at Myrtle Beach in early May.

Since that time, Jesse has appeared (May 7) in Pittsburgh, Pa. (NARD Regional Meeting) with same talk, and, as we would guess, to a highly receptive audience.

In 1968, The Jesse Pike Family was recognized (Schering) as the Most Outstanding Pharmacy Family of the United States. More than 2,000 persons were present for the award presentation ceremony in Boston.

Survival Program for an Independent Pharmacy

First of a Series of Articles prepared for The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy

GEORGE M. SCATTERGOOD, Amicus Medicamentaria

Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., Lancaster, Pa.

Tom Dillon, President of BBD&O, has written an article entitled "Freedom Must Advertise." In this great work he exposes, among other things, the little known or little thought of fact that advertising is virtually unknown under communism. While it's not unknown for independent pharmacy here it is very fractional.

Mass advertising as we know it here creates demand for individual products and develops images of value or quality related to the products or services of the advertiser.

Whereas there are few examples of long established demand items or services which have had little or no advertising backing, such as Hershey Chocolate, advertising is today a virtual necessity for survival of going businesses and is indispensable for the launching of new products.

Any advertising series has much the same set of rules as those for effective public speaking—

1. Tell the audience what you are going to talk about and why.
2. Tell the audience what you promise to tell them.
3. Summarize for the audience what you have said.

A basic advertising rule is it must have continuity and the intended message must be repeated as often as you can afford.

The Small Business Administration advises that sustaining advertising expenses for an independent pharmacy should run 1.5% of gross sales after the third year with 3% the first year and 2.5% in the second. "Drug Store Operating Costs and Profits" shows of the 12 stores studied to represent the national average, the advertising and display expenses average 0.71% of net sales. This would imply that the average pharmacy does about one-third as much advertising as it should for successful operation.

The primary purpose of independent pharmacy advertising is to maintain a profile of excellent professional services. Image or profile advertising for pharmacy often has more effective influence upon business preservation and growth than the advertising of discounts or cut prices.

Ethical advertising of professional services is not always easy. In some states the Pharmacy Boards have very rigid rules. A recent bulletin of one such board included the following:

"In promoting your prescription department there is little that can be said about the pharmacy that will not violate the regulations of unprofessional conduct."

GEORGE M. SCATTERGOOD

In another state the Pharmacy Board ruled that the statement "Doe's First in Pharmacy in State of X" was unethical.

While it takes some imagination to advertise within the rules of the State Board of Pharmacy, there are numerous services that successful advertising pharmacies have used as headlines. Here are a few ideas:

We offer 24-hour prescription service; phone us anytime.

Convenient free parking and free delivery.

Our family record for all prescriptions is but one of our professional aids to you and your physician.

Prescription accessories and sickroom needs for sale or rental.

We protectively package every prescription whether it needs it or not.

Many long established pharmacy owners are complacent. It is easy for them to believe that the image they have developed through the years will eternally be passed on to the younger generations and that there is no need for them to advertise. This attitude in this modern age of movement is dangerous. There are some communities where as much as 25% of the population is replaced every year. 19.6% of our total national population moved in 1966. In addition, pharmacy trading habits are often influenced by other businesses with the convenience factor one of the highest motivating influences.

There are a number of manufacturers who will help with advertising programs and some will share expenses or at least provide free services like ad mats and glossies. If the pharmacy is in such a large metropolitan area as to make the cost of newspaper, radio or T.V. advertising too expensive for one pharmacy, there are alternatives. A pharmacy can organize a group for cooperative advertising with other independents. Counsel along these lines is also readily available. Handbill advertising is within reach and within the means of even small pharmacies.

Now the Supreme Court has ruled in the Fred Meyer case that advertising funds must be made available for independent retailers on a basis equal to those provided to mass distributors. But unless the funds are used for advertising and a validated system established to claim the proportionate equal share, these funds will be unusable. Some wholesalers are offering group advertising stewardship for their customers.

But if you elect to be complacent, don't complain about the advertising antics of the chains and discount centers—just prepare for a steady decline in sales and early retirement with no business to will to your heirs. Unless you think big and look big in the public eye, you will find your patrons are out of sight. Modern independent pharmacy needs advertising for survival.

FIRE DESTROYS ECKERD STORE

An early morning May 9 fire destroyed Eckerd's Drug Store, Freedom Village Shopping Center, Charlotte.

Absolutely Amazing!

The era of third-party pay rushes toward us, and with it comes an ever-deepening confusion. The pharmacist finds himself peering into a kaleidoscope of unfamiliar terms, walking in a forest of opinion.

The legislative looms—federal and state—are weaving documents filled with such pharmacy-targeted concepts as mandatory assignment; corridor deductible; maximum allowable cost; actual acquisition cost plus fixed fee.

One thing does seem certain: If the individual pharmacist is to retain his independence and conduct his business as he sees fit, he must make his views known—at every opportunity, in every forum.

The laws are being written. If pharmacists want to have a voice in the preparation, the time is now.

Asheville, N.C.

Joe Doe, age thirty, lives a very sedentary life. His days are regimented; shave at 7 A.M., breakfast at 7:30 A.M. after which he kisses his wife goodbye and commutes into town to a drug store. After eight hours he returns home, eats and spends his nights looking at television, going to a movie, or having an occasional party at home with friends. Life for John, as he sees it, is a daily "hum-drum" but John has dreams of the day when he can retire and lead a life of pleasure.

Let us add thirty-two years to John's life and picture him then. He no longer has to have an early breakfast or grab his coat and rush to the drug store and after a few weeks, he begins to feel that the world has passed him by. A new generation of pharmacists has invaded the field, taken his place behind the prescription counter and he feels that he is no longer needed at the drug store. You might say his eight teaspoonsfuls (one drachm) to the ounce (apothecary) has turned to six (metric). What does the future hold for him? If he has a hobby—good, but otherwise he haunts drug stores, swapping tales with younger pharmacists about the days of "yore."

Financially, how does he stand? Thirty-two years ago his wife could purchase groceries for the on-coming week for ten dollars but with food prices sky-rocketing, he finds that it takes almost twice as much. He dreamed of travel but the cost of automobile tires, gas, repair, motel accommodations has risen to astronomical costs. Deprived of the many things he had anticipated, leaves John in a very bitter mood and he wanders aimlessly about the house and town, the forgotten man. Where are the awards for years of service he has given to the public as a pharmacist? There are none, only sweet, coupled with bitter memories of his years of service.

Of course, the name of John Doe is hypothetical but it should start young pharmacists to thinking of the future and to make them aware that the frustrated old man was one of many who pioneered and helped make pharmacy what it is today.

I was inspired by an article in the New York News written by Jack Leahy under "Mainly for Seniors."

"Retirement is the greatest con game of the 20th century," says Max Kase, 71, who temporarily retired in 1966 after 49 years on a newspaper. "It really gripes me the way corporations crassly toss away their experienced workers and center their affections on youth. I have worked with young people all my life and believe me, I think they are wonderful. But it is a mistake to overlook oldsters. They know how to do things that it will take youngsters years to learn." He retired and later said, "For six months after, I led the life of the idle rich. It was awful. I just didn't know what to do with myself. I'd get up in the morning and maybe read a book. In the afternoon, I'd pace around the house and get in my wife's way. As I looked forward to days and days of doing nothing more than this, I could see that I would go nuts if I didn't get back in the swing of things."

I have jokingly been told that I cut my teeth on the corner of a soda fountain and that I would never be a successful druggist until I had mustard on my sleeve but I can remember when I worked in my father's store and had to carry a box around with me so I could reach the shelves. I worked during the depression, World War Two and was twenty-five years of age before I saw my first fifty dollar bill. I bought a drug store in my home town, sold it years later (my first real mistake) and retired. Two operations and six months later, I became the frustrated John Doe.

I am reminded of a conversation with one of my former customers, "Surely there is a place for older pharmacists, such as you. You owe it to the public to give your vast knowledge and experience to them."

When a senior pharmacist comes into your store, welcome him and treat him with respect for who knows, he might be you a few years from now.

How does Roche® keep in touch with grass roots
pharmacy problems

The Roche community pharmacy panel

That's how! What's more logical than sitting down with small groups of pharmacists around the country to learn their problems and help find the answers?

At these daylong conferences sponsored by Roche, attention is given to all problems, large or small, that concern the pharmacist as a professional and as a community member.

General problems of pharmacy management, doctor-pharmacist and pharmacist-patient relationships and Roche policies are discussed.

Other topics may include the expansion or improvement of services to nursing homes, small hospitals, community pharmacies and civic health organizations.

But that's only the beginning.

Administrative pharmacists, working for Roche, take it from there. These practical professionals make recommendations to Roche management and help create and implement programs—based on your needs and suggestions. This is the way our return-goods policy, nursing home program, product data services, and many other programs originated. And this is the way future pharmacy programs will be devised.

Community Pharmacy Panels help Roche keep its feet deep in the grass roots of this important profession.

COURT ASSESSES $22,000 PENALTY FOR RX MISTAKE

The civil liability which may be incurred by a pharmacy when a prescription is wrongfully filled by an unlicensed individual was dramatically demonstrated in the case of Duensing v. Huscher, decided by the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri on July 8, 1968. Damages were assessed against a pharmacy and the unlicensed individual who wrongfully filled the prescription. These damages were in the amount of $22,000 for actual injuries and, in addition, each were assessed $2,500 as punitive damages.

The plaintiff in this case was a minor child whose doctor had recommended aspirin suppositories, a proprietary drug in Missouri, for fever. An employee of the defendant pharmacy, who was not a registered pharmacist, took the call from the doctor, but delivered to the plaintiff's parents, second sodium suppositories, a legend prescription drug, which he took from the shelf by mistake. The child suffered barbiturate intoxication, was rushed to a Kansas City hospital in a coma, and suffered other injuries from the effect of the drug.

Missouri law provides that layman may fill prescriptions, if it is done under the supervision of a licensed pharmacist. In this case, however, the licensed pharmacist was not on the premises. The defendant argued that since aspirin suppositories are not a prescription drug but a proprietary drug, there was no violation of the law and, in actuality, no refilling of a prescription. The Court held, however, that the employee had removed the original label from the package and prepared a label of the pharmacy with the doctor's directions in regard to the use of the suppositories and that this constituted the filling of a prescription.

It was clearly demonstrated that there was no actual malice or ill-will on the part of the employee who delivered the wrong suppositories to the plaintiff. The court held, however, that since Missouri law was violated, namely, since a prescription was delivered by an unlicensed individual not under the supervision of a licensed pharmacist, punitive damages were assessable.

Punitive damages assessed in the amount of $10,000 against each of the defendants in the lower Court were reduced to $2,500 each by the Supreme Court of Missouri. The total monetary liability for this mistake on the part of an employee was thus fixed at $27,000.

This case not only demonstrates the civil liability to which a pharmacist or an individual may be subjected under the circumstances, but it is a classic illustration of the danger which the public may be subjected should sub-professionals be permitted to practice pharmacy and when the proper supervision is not present.

SCHOOL OF PHARMACY AWARDED TRAINING GRANT

A training grant for graduate students in medicinal chemistry has been awarded to the School of Pharmacy of The University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. Dr. C. J. Cavallito, principal investigator, was informed by Senator Sam J. Ervin about the award by the National Institutes of Health. The School's medicinal chemistry staff includes, in addition to Dr. Cavallito, Drs. G. H. Cocolas, G. P. Hager, C. Piantadosi, and F. T. Semeniuk. Dr. M. E. Wall, Director of the Chemistry and Life Sciences Laboratory, Research Triangle Institute, and Dr. Fred L. Snyder, Senior Scientist at Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies are adjunct professors on the School's medicinal chemistry staff.

The grant will support four predoctoral students in medicinal chemistry during the year, 1969-70, eight students the second year and a maximum of twelve students thereafter. The program will be funded at the level of $32,897 for the first year of operation.

The trainees will receive major instruction in medicinal chemistry and ancillary training in organic chemistry, biochemistry, pharmacology, etc. Their research will deal with the relationships between chemical composition and biological activities of drugs and the mechanisms whereby drugs produce changes in biological systems. The particular research interests of the School's medicinal chemistry staff at the present time include chemical substances of potential use in treatment of cancer, disorders of the brain and nervous system, and infectious diseases.

The multidisciplinary programs of teaching and research in medicinal chemistry require the many resources that are available only in a center such as the Health Sciences Division on the Chapel Hill campus. Moreover, the expansion of the medicinal chemistry training and research programs at the School of Pharmacy coincides with the expansion of pharmaceutical research and production in North Carolina.

BECK ELECTED PRESIDENT OF ELI LILLY & COMPANY

Eli Lilly and Company, at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors following the annual shareholders' meeting, announced Mr. Eli Lilly was elected honorary chairman of the board; Eugene N. Beesley, chairman of the board; and Burton E. Beck, president.

For sixty-two years Mr. Lilly has taken an active role in the company which his grandfather, Colonel Eli Lilly, founded in 1876 with an investment of $1,300. He moves to the honorary chairmanship following a year in which the corporation achieved record sales of $479.6 million.

Mr. Lilly joined the firm in 1907 after graduation from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. Two years later he was named superintendent of the manufacturing division. From 1915 to 1920 he was general superintendent. In 1920 he became vice-president, a position he held until 1932, when he was elected president, succeeding his father, the late Josiah K. Lilly, Sr. He continued in that post until 1948, when he again succeeded his father, this time as board chairman. Becoming honorary chairman in 1961, he returned to the chairmanship upon the death of his brother, Josiah K. Lilly, Jr., in 1966.

Mr. Lilly is president of Lilly Endowment, Inc., the family philanthropic foundation which was established at his suggestion in 1937 by his father, his brother, and himself. Organized as a nonprofit corporation, it was chartered for the "promotion and support of religious, educational, or charitable purposes."

Mr. Lilly observed his eighty-fourth birthday on April 1, 1969.

The occasion was proclaimed Eli Lilly Day in Indiana by Governor Edgar D. Whitcomb.

Beesley joined Eli Lilly and Company in June, 1929. After several assignments as a salesman and as a district manager, he returned to the home office in 1941. In the following years he held executive positions in the fields of personnel, sales, and administration. When he became the fifth president of the corporation in 1953, he was the first from outside the Lilly family.

Beck has been associated with the company since 1939. He held posts in industrial relations and production before his election in 1959 as president of Eli Lilly International Corporation. This was followed by posts in the parent company as group vice-president of marketing and domestic subsidiary operations and as executive vice-president.

DAVIDSON PROFESSORS RAP DRUG INDUSTRY'S PROFITS

"You folks are guilty of some things you ought to be attacked for," Dr. Randall Kineaid told medical service representative Larry Rhye of the A. H. Robins Drug Company during a Sunday School class at the Davidson Methodist Church.

Kineaid and other members of the economics department threw several charges at Rhye, questioning particularly what they termed the inordinate return on investments by the drug companies, and the emphasis on sales rather than research.

Dr. Charles E. Ratliff, Jr., chairman of the Davidson economics department, said the drug industry realized an investment return of about 30 per cent. He said this figure was second only to that of the cosmetics industry.

Rhye countered that drug manufacturers got 14 to 17 per cent return on investment. He said the rest of the 30 per cent went to others in the drug distribution system.

Calling the drug industry's return on investment "fair considering the risk," Rhye said the average drug takes eight years and $1 million to develop whether it was useful or not. "You have to have a large profit margin on available drugs to keep this research going," Rhye said.

PHI DELTA CHI

This semester has just about ended and some highlights should be recognized. Throughout the semester our major service project has been to visit high schools in the state and speak to them about the profession of pharmacy and the school of pharmacy. These talks have been highly enlightening to the students and to us. Approximately 750 high school students have been spoken to. The success of this program is not fully known as yet, but there are several students that have decided to try pharmacy as a result of these talks.

In news of our house, several things have been done to beautify it recently. Grass has been planted in our yard and the house has been repainted to a green color. The pledge project was to build a grill for cook-outs in the yard. Spring cleaning took a heavy toll of the junk in several closets and things are looking better.

Phi Delta Chi Weekend was held on April 25 and 26 at the Ranch House and our house. There was good attendance at all phases and everyone had a good time. We were happy to see many alumni there.

Plans are being made to send a representative to the APhA convention at Montreal to pick up our Achievement Award Cup for the past year. Also several brothers are going to the Grand Council in Indianapolis in August.

Most everyone is either studying hard or playing hard and awaiting the end of finals and the long, hot summer in which to recover.

KAPPA PSI

The highlight of the spring came for the men of Beta Xi during the weekend of March 21-22, Pledge Weekend. The long awaited weekend began with an impromptu cocktail party at the house about the middle of the afternoon. As the sun lowered, the festivities moved to the Holiday Inn for our formal banquet. After the meal, the following awards were presented: Past Regent's Award—Fred Rachide; Outstanding Senior Award—Fred Rachide; Senior Achievement Award—Sam Hauser; Senior Sports Award—Harold Smith; Osler Chi Achievement Award—Bill Harrison; Outstanding Pledge Award—Jim Stewart; and Pledge Scholarship Award—Eric Jackson. Seniors were then awarded various moments to aid them in recalling old times of their student days. We were pleased to have as our guests several alumni and members of the faculty of the School of Pharmacy. The banquet was followed by a dance at which Prince Paul and the Superiors provided the music.

On Saturday afternoon, the house once again hosted the members and their dates for a cocktail party. A good time was had by all with the aid of a warm spring day. That night, another dance was held with the Fabulous Fingers providing the music, at the Elk's Club in Durham. The weekend came to an end but the enjoyment is well remembered.

On April 11, Beta Xi will send 6 delegates to the Province III meeting to be held at Charleston, S.C. This is one of the largest delegations (voting) at the meeting and Beta Xi will make a good showing at the meeting as usual. Brother Joey Edwards is serving as secretary of the Province this year.

On April 25-27, Beta Xi will once again make its annual pilgrimage to the sand and surf. Some 50 couples will be going this year and a wonderful time is in store for all those attending.

Campus Chest time is here again and Kappa Psi is once again doing its part to aid in this very worthwhile work for charity. Steve Dedrick is serving as our contestant in the Ugliest Man on Campus Contest. For the Campus Carnival, we are joining with Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority to present a booth to earn money for charity. Pledgemaster Bill Harrison will drive the pledge powered chariot in the finale to the night.

On April 15, Beta Xi will make its annual trip to the NC Cerebral Palsy Hospital in Durham to present gifts and a party to the patients. Some 70 members will join to make this a meaningful afternoon for the children there.

Beta Xi extends deepest sympathy to Kappa Psi Harold Smith in the passing of his mother on April 9th and to the family of Brother Bill Dunn who passed away on March 17th.

RADIOPHARMACEUTICALS

Bowman Gray School of Medicine and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have undertaken a pilot program to train pharmacists in the handling of radiopharmaceuticals.

Eight pharmacists, five of whom are working toward masters degrees in pharmacy at Chapel Hill, recently completed a 4-day, 20-hour session in clinical pharmacy at Bowman Gray. Each will return to Winston-Salem on a rotating basis to observe procedures in the nuclear medicine laboratory.

Dr. C. Douglas Maynard, director of the nuclear medicine laboratory at Bowman Gray, said "Until recently we ordered our own radiopharmaceuticals and compounded them. We don't have the background for compounding the drugs, therefore we wanted to try to interest pharmacists in it."

'DOC' HARRIS WILL BE MISSED BY MANY

From The Durham Sun

Joseph Claxton Harris, who died at his home here last Sunday at the age of 67, was known to a good many hundreds of Durham and Durham area people as "Doc" Harris.

A good many drug store proprietors and pharmacists are known to friends and even mere acquaintances as "Doc," but in the case of "Doc" Harris it was a somewhat different thing.

The genial, long-time proprietor of the West Side Pharmacy on West Chapel Hill Street, was a sort of institution in the western half of Durham. He was a friend to everyone who would let him be. In addition to ministering to the drug and sundry needs of his patrons, he was a counselor and even "father confessor" to many who sought his advice or help with their personal problems.

Numerous prominent business and professional men, as well as others destined to become outstanding figures in sports and other fields, counted "Doc" Harris as their friend and mentor who gave them a job or helped them in other ways when they were youths or much younger men.

Although not really that old in years, he was, nevertheless, of "the old school" of drug store proprietors—by character, by temperament, and by his liking for people. People liked—and respected—him, too.

J. C. "Doc" Harris will be sorely missed by all of the people who knew him—and that is a lot of people.

AREA MOURNS LOSS

From the "News" of Mt. Airy

Mount Airy mourns the passing of one of its pioneer citizens who contributed throughout his long life to the business, civic and religious life of his native community.

W. S. (Willie) Wolfe, druggist and citizen extraordinaire, was the quiet type of individual, friendly, outgoing in personality and always willing to be of help to others. If he worked hard to build the business that has borne his name in Mount Airy for fifty years, he was no less a worker when his church called.

It was appropriate that six years ago the entire state should honor him when he was named the "Pharmacist of the Year" by the N.C. Pharmaceutical Association. But his greater tribute, perhaps, will come in the quiet, though often unspoken appreciation hundreds of local citizens have for him because of his unfailing sympathy and assistance for his fellow humans.

Main Street in the Granite City has been growing and changing with the times. New businesses and new faces have appeared in recent years as the town moves forward in the Twentieth Century.

Yet, somehow, it will not seem quite complete without the friendly face with the ready and warm smile worn by Willie Wolfe as he stood in his drug store and daily greeted the citizens of his community. In his passing there departs a portion of the sterling character that helped shape the course of events for good in Mount Airy.

President, Mrs. Briggs E. Cook, conducted the business session during which the following slate of officers for 1969-1970 was accepted by acclamation: President, Mrs. W. S. Dukes; Vice-President, Mrs. Dewayne Franzen; Secretary, Mrs. W. H. Fuller, Jr.; Treasurer, Mrs. Wallace Sigmon; Historian, Mrs. Burl Hull; and Chaplain, Mrs. E. H. Meade.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Cook introduced Mrs. H. B. Spangler, who explained the program title "Operation DAMN" as being on drugs, alcohol, marijuana and narcotics. This program, being presented to P.T.A. meetings, youth groups, and civic clubs, is sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Guilford County Medical Society. Mrs. Spangler introduced Lt. John Faircloth of the Greensboro City Police Vice Squad and Dr. James Collins, psychiartist, both of whom spoke and answered questions from the group after presenting a film entitled, "Fight or Flight."

ROWAN-DAVIE DRUG AUXILIARY

The Rowan-Davie Drug Auxiliary held their April meeting at Beattie's Restaurant with Mrs. Frank Carrigan and Mrs. Horace Steadman serving as hostesses.

Mrs. Robert Hoyle, vice-president introduced the guest speaker, William Heitman, staff sanitarian for the Rowan County Health Department. Mr. Heitman spoke on the Causes of Air Pollution and stated that more than half of the total pollution comes from transportation with industries using coal and fuel oil being responsible for a fourth of the problem. He pointed out that "Not only does it affect us financially, but there is also a close relationship between air pollution and respiratory diseases such as lung cancer and emphysema." Mr. Heitman urged the members of the Rowan-Davie Drug Auxiliary to inform themselves about air pollution and to support the air pollution advisory committee.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DISCUSSES ANTIBIOTIC DRUG SUIT

The State Attorney General doesn't expect that North Carolina Pharmacists will be plagued by persons seeking rebates on antibiotic prescriptions if the State accepts the proposed settlement offered by the five pharmaceutical firms charged in the suit.

Robert Morgan, in discussing the suit at the just-completed NCPHA Convention, said "I doubt very many people in the State know what drugs they are purchasing when they get a prescription filled."

He said one pharmacist told him that the day after news of the suit appeared in the press he had "a line of customers at his counter asking how many of the drugs they had purchased."

Morgan said his office, in filing the suit, was in no way impugning the integrity of local pharmacists.

ON CALL

This news note appeared in the Asheville Citizen, May 7:

Replying to the letter in "Backtalk" complaining about the fact that Asheville drug stores don't open until noon on Sunday, I would like to state that I am in position to know that the name, address, and telephone number of the pharmacist is displayed on the front door of drug stores in Buncombe County. This is to meet any emergency.

Furthermore, I have never heard of any pharmacist in this area who has failed to respond to any emergency call.

I would also like to point out that the great majority of customers know the names of their pharmacists, and that if it is impractical to go to the drug store, his telephone number may be found in the telephone directory.

Buncombe County
Pharmaceutical Society

Leroy D. Werley, Assistant Dean at the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, has accepted the invitation of Walgreen Drug Stores to take part in its ninth full-scale Seminar in Pharmacy Administration, June 16-27, at the firm's Chicago headquarters.

Sponsored by Walgreens in cooperation with leading pharmacy colleges, this unique seminar is designed to explore the rapidly changing field of retail pharmacy operations and provide a broadened business point of view to better help pharmacy educators prepare students for successful pharmacy administration.

Pharmacy educators from twelve leading colleges and universities will attend the 14-day event to participate in organized round table discussions, attend briefings by company executives and take field trips through various phases of Walgreen operations.

As in previous Walgreen seminars, the stimulating exchange of information and ideas between pharmacy faculty and retail drug executives is again expected to prove a mutually valuable dividend.

CODE OF PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT

by H. C. McAllister, Secretary-Treasurer
North Carolina Board of Pharmacy

The 1969 session of the General Assembly has enacted a law requiring the Board of Pharmacy to adopt a Code of Professional Conduct "appropriate to the establishment and maintenance of a high standard of integrity and dignity in the practice of the profession of pharmacy." The law further requires that "In adopting such a Code, or any amendment thereto, the Board shall consider the recommendations of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association." Although the principal charge to the Board in this law is recited in nine brief lines, virtually every word in these nine lines is packed with meaning, so that the requirements eventually emanating from the law are likely to fill many pages. It will be interesting to examine some of these words here.

"The Board of Pharmacy shall . . . adopt." The word "shall" makes it mandatory that the code be adopted and the designation of the Board as the adopting agent places the sole and exclusive responsibility upon the Board for making the final determination of requirements to be included in the Code.

". . . by regulation . . ." Since its creation in 1881 the Board has had broad rule-making authority. In 1967 the Legislature provided sanctions to the Board for the enforcement of its rules and regulations. The new law says that the code that is to be adopted shall be a part of the Board's rules and regulations, which automatically provides a means for the enforcement of the requirements of the code that is to be adopted. But further and equally important is the fact that this arrangement also automatically provides a mechanism for appeal for persons aggrieved by the operation of the code, thus giving the courts the opportunity to pass on the actions of the Board. This is, of course, as it should be.

". . . after due notice and hearing . . ." While the Board has the final responsibility for adopting the code it must give those who might be affected by it an opportunity to be heard and to express their opinions as to what should or should not be contained in the code and to register any objections to requirements that they might have.

". . . appropriate to . . ." This is a limiting phrase. Thus such requirements as might be adopted must be relevant to "the establishment and maintenance of a high standard" of professional practice. This limitation then would rule out requirements designed solely to protect the pharmacist's self-interest or those of similar design.

". . . the establishment . . ." There is an inference here that there are requirements that do not now exist but which should be developed, that there is public protection that should be afforded that is presently lacking.

". . . maintenance . . ." Obviously there is little value in making a rule simply for the record. It appears that the Legislature intended for the Board not only to

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact:

Section 1. Amend Article 4 of Chapter 90 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, as it is codified in Volume 2-C of the General Statutes and its 1967 Cumulative Supplement, by adding a new section, immediately following Section 90-57 and preceding Section 90-58, to be designated as G. S. 90-57A and to read as follows:

"Powers of the Board; professional standards—The Board of Pharmacy shall by regulation and after due notice and hearing, adopt a Code of Professional Conduct appropriate to the establishment and maintenance of a high standard of integrity and dignity in the practice of the profession of pharmacy. In adopting such a Code, or any amendment thereto, the Board shall consider the recommendations of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association."

Section 2. All laws and clauses of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 3. This Act shall be in full force and effect from and after its ratification.

Code of Professional Conduct

establish requirements but to maintain these through requisite enforcement.

“... high standard . . .” These are among the most important words of the statute. By tradition, legal standards require only a minimum level of performance. In an area such as pharmacy that is so intimately related to health and safety minimum standards are not enough. The health and welfare of the public deserve the highest level of professional competence and the full benefits of our modern science and technology. The Legislature quite properly recognizes its inability to fully understand those considerations that contribute to the highest level of health care and has charged to the Board, a body that is knowledgeable in this area, with the responsibility of seeing that the public is not the victim of inferior services and economic “short cuts.”

“... integrity . . .” Moral soundness, honesty, freedom from corrupting influence or practice; especially strictness in the fulfillment of contracts and the discharge of a trust. This is the dictionary definition of integrity. Its meaning for pharmacy is obvious. A patient who entrusts a pharmacist with any part of his health care has every right to expect that his interest and well-being will be fully protected by that pharmacist.

“... dignity . . .” Nobility of manner or style; stateliness, nobleness of mind; worthiness, honorable place; elevated rank, degree of excellence—again a dictionary definition. While these characteristics obviously should apply to individuals who engage in the practice of pharmacy and to their relations with the public, they must also apply equally to their places of practice. We are all familiar with the farce of the circus clown in evening clothes and top hat. So it is with the pharmacist in his white jacket attempting to function in the circus atmosphere that is sometimes observed in what are called “drug stores.” Could it be that the Legislature had this kind of thing in mind when it directed the Board to establish high standards of dignity?

“... in the practice of the profession of pharmacy . . .” It is significant that the Legislature did not say the “vocation” of pharmacy. A profession is a special kind of vocation. There are numerous conditions, duties and responsibilities that attach to professions that may not be required of vocations generally—an intellectually based technique, a significant literature, an organization of practitioners, a code of ethics, etc. But the thing above all that stands out in professions is that responsibility to client must take precedence over all other considerations. To assure that all of our citizens receive the benefits of this principle is doubtless at the heart of what the Legislature had in mind when this bill was passed.

While the Legislature places the ultimate responsibility upon the Board to adopt and implement the Code of Professional Conduct, the law requires that in doing this “the Board shall consider the recommendations of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association.” This is a welcomed requirement. During the coming months, when the Board will begin its work toward the development of the Code of Professional Conduct, it will fully consider all recommendations of the N.C.P.A. While not required by the statute, without question the Board will also consider any recommendations from pharmacists who might not be members of the Association. Such pharmacists should consider this as an invitation to make their views known to the Board.

The development of the code will not be a simple task or one that will be approached lightly by the Board. The law provides for “due notice and hearing” before the code is adopted. A diligent effort will be made to develop a suitable record upon which the Board can base such requirements as it might adopt as a Code of Professional Conduct for pharmacists.

SURVIVAL REQUIRES INVOLVEMENT

By MAX W. EGGLESTON, President
American Pharmaceutical Association

At no time in the history of pharmacy have the extremes of the practice of pharmacy been so divergent. During the past decade, more and more pharmacies have been established in the giant mercantile centers. Today, these entrepreneurs recognize that their image is enhanced by the presence of the pharmacist. But these mercantile giants are using pharmacy and pharmacists not for the betterment of the profession or even for improving public health and safety. Thus the "commercial approach" once advocated by many pharmacists has come back to haunt us in new dimensions—and threaten to destroy us unless we take action now.

At the other end of the spectrum, we have institutional practice and The Pharmaceutical Center concept. The latter is still new and only starting to attract disciples. We are encouraged by the strengthening of institutional practice in recent years.

Pharmacists can ill afford further commercial polarization of pharmaceutical practice. The time has arrived when pharmacists must recognize that they must control their own destinies. Pharmacists have for years allowed themselves to be compromised by forces outside the profession. We always seem to be reacting rather than acting.

A year ago, I expressed concern that if the independent practitioner of pharmacy was to survive, the ideas to help him be self-sustaining would have to come from the profession itself. Opportunities for independent practice are still readily available, but not enough pharmacists are accepting the challenge. If this continues, independent practice will lose more ground. How do we reverse the trend?

The answer may well be in the recognition of the viability of group practice. We must also create other new opportunities so that we can utilize the full potential of the young practitioner to pursue his chosen profession. The survival of the practice of pharmacy as a health care profession requires our immediate involvement.

There are many areas in which the profession has shown leadership in the assumption of its social responsibilities. One such area, of course, has been our involvement in drug abuse education programs.

A misconception that seems to run rampant in all countries today is that youth does not recognize any social responsibility. I submit to you that this is not the case of pharmacy students. Those of us who have been fortunate enough to have been exposed to the youth of American pharmacy have been awed not only by the willingness of our young practitioners and pharmacy students to involve themselves in the social problem of drug abuse, but by their ability to relate to the generation that seems to be using this escape mechanism.

The profession as a whole has recognized its social responsibility. The drug abuse education and information programs conducted by individual pharmacists and their organizations are for real rather than show and I am encouraged by the reception our efforts are receiving.

This week, here in Montreal, you will be given the opportunity to participate in deliberations directly affecting your future. We can no longer afford professional isolation; we must recognize that we are indeed our brother's keeper. Collectively, and within an organizational structure, it will be possible for us to accomplish the ultimate aims and objectives of the profession—to relate to and to serve the patient. We can no longer be preoccupied with those pursuits that do not accomplish this objective. It is your profession and my profession; it can and must survive the trauma of the disinterested.

I am reminded of the philosophy of Edward Everett Hale:

"I am only one,
But still I am one.
I cannot do everything,
But still I can do something,
And because I cannot do everything
I will not refuse to do the something That I can do."

Yes, you and I are only one but we no longer can refuse to do "the something" we should do.

Apex Garment Workers Join New Drug Program

Reprinted from The Apex News-Herald,

May 15

The International Ladies' Garment Workers Union has begun a new mail order drug program resulting in great benefits for its members, announced Regional Director, Martin J. Morand. Participants of the Union can get a month's supply of any prescription-required drug for themselves or members of their immediate families, for $1.00. Members of Local 599, in Apex, have already signed up for the program and received their identification cards, which enable them to participate.

In addition to the drug program, the ILGWU has instituted a Blue Cross-Blue Shield health insurance program for its members. Under this new program, members may elect a plan under which they and members of their families will have full hospital services in a semi-private room for 70 days, and will leave the hospital with almost their whole bill being paid by Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

"Helping its members combat the high cost of good health is one of the most important things a Union can do," said Southeast Regional Director Martin J. Morand.

How does Roche® keep in touch with grass roots pharmacy problems

The Roche community pharmacy panel

That's how! What's more logical than sitting down with small groups of pharmacists around the country to learn their problems and help find the answers?

At these daylong conferences sponsored by Roche, attention is given to all problems, large or small, that concern the pharmacist as a professional and as a community member.

General problems of pharmacy management, doctor-pharmacist and pharmacist-patient relationships and Roche policies are discussed.

Other topics may include the expansion or improvement of services to nursing homes, small hospitals, community pharmacies and civic health organizations.

But that's only the beginning.

Administrative pharmacists, working for Roche, take it from there. These practical professionals make recommendations to Roche management and help create and implement programs—based on your needs and suggestions. This is the way our return-goods policy, nursing home program, product data services, and many other programs originated. And this is the way future pharmacy programs will be devised.

Community Pharmacy Panels help Roche keep its feet deep in the grass roots of this important profession.

North Carolina's Consumer Protection Division in Action

(from The Waynesville Mountaineer)

A few weeks ago an ad for diet pills appeared in some of North Carolina's leading newspapers.

Jean Benoy, the man in charge of the consumer protection division at the attorney general's office, responded to the ad and received his diet pills. But Benoy is not taking the pills, he's having them analyzed. This is just one of the ways that the state is working to protect North Carolinians from medical racketeering. If fraud is found, then the state will act.

At the same time, the attorney general is asking for a stronger hand in dealing with drug price-fixing and out-and-out rackets that are extorting thousands of dollars from Tar Heel pockets each year.

"We are working toward three major objectives to protect the health consumer," says Benoy. "First, we are representing the public before agencies and in court to present the consumer's side of each case. Our second objective is to try to prevent price-fixing and to uphold the anti-trust laws. And we are investigating deceptive advertising, quackery and the false-front operation.

"In many cases our existing laws prevent us from carrying out the aggressive campaign against frauds that we would like to present. But pending legislation may give us a stronger hand and open the way for a more complete investigation of the frauds that are now operating."

Benoy says that complaints are starting to come into his office about health rackets and as soon as people realize that their complaints are helpful, they will be less hesitant to complain. The only way they can investigate is to know where and how the operations are active.

"Some time ago a minister wrote to this office expressing the complaints of several people in his congregations who had been deceived into buying some worthless health-aid equipment. This type of complaint not only lets us know where the racketeers are operating, but it gives us some knowledge of what they are selling.

"In all fairness, there are a number of good, helpful items on the market that have been developed over the years. These are health aids that would be recommended by any physician. If the physician says you need the item, then make sure you know what he is talking about and get his advice on the use of it."

Many of the victims of the health hoax have terminal diseases and they are grasping at straws, taking every chance possible to stay alive. Others are victims because they fear the truth about their condition, so they avoid the physician and go to the quack.

The North Carolina Attorney General's Office has a direct interest in medical rackets. These operations are extorting thousands of dollars from Tar Heel citizens each year. Benoy offers some good advice to people who are approached about the get-well-with-a-magic-spike type of fraud:

"Don't sign a blank contract or a contract with blank spaces in it when dealing in health services.

"Don't be rushed into buying equipment or health aids. Take your time and check with your doctor to determine the worth of the merchandise.

"Don't purchase health goods or services from itinerate salesmen or merchants who have no local address or whose business address cannot be verified.

"Beware of the healer or the health goods salesman who guarantees a cure. Always consult your doctor about what is being offered and trust his judgment on the matter.

"Be very cautious about mail-order health and medical services. Make absolutely sure you know the product and, again, check with your doctor before you commit yourself to a purchase."

According to Benoy, the health racket is one that usually operates just a shade inside existing laws. Therefore, the main protection for the health consumer is to educate himself about the types of rackets that are operating and to report any frauds to the attorney general's office.

BLUE CROSS OF VIRGINIA APPEALS DECISION

Blue Cross of Virginia has given notice of its decision to appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia the State Corporation Commission's recent ruling that the association's Prescription Drug Program was in violation of certain state and federal laws.

Following the commission's May 5 decision, M. Roy Battista, assistant general manager of Blue Cross of Virginia, said Blue Cross would continue "to concentrate our efforts on a prepayment drug program that will be satisfactory to everyone and beneficial to the public."

He further supported this comment here Wednesday, assuring subscribers covered under the Blue Cross Out-of-Hospital Prescription Drug Program that the association will continue to honor all claims received through the program.

The SCC had earlier revoked the authority given to Blue Cross to operate the program, which gives subscribers coverage for the cost of prescription drugs.

At that time, the commission suspended enforcement of the order for 30 days, and if an appeal were noted by Blue Cross, the SCC would further suspend enforcement of the order until proceedings on the appeal were concluded.

McKESSEON FORMS NEW PROMOTIONAL BUYING SERVICE FOR PHARMACISTS

McKesson & Robbins Drug Company has organized a new promotional buying department, Checkmate Promotional Buying Service, to serve retail pharmacists who want to compete more aggressively with discount competition in the mass merchandising field, according to John J. Fenstermaker, senior vice president, drug marketing.

Checkmate Promotional Buying Service, headquartered in New York City, will offer to interested pharmacist-subscribers a broad spectrum of merchandise not now available to them through their local McKesson wholesale drug divisions or through one source of supply. It will open up to pharmacists new sources of fast-moving promotional merchandise which heretofore have found their outlet primarily through mass merchandising stores.

Byron E. Crowley has been appointed manager of Checkmate Promotional Buying Service. Crowley, who joined the company as a sales trainee in 1957, was formerly a merchandise manager in the drug marketing department. He has also served as sales manager at McKesson's Hicksville (New York) and Boston North drug divisions.

"Our objective with this new buying service is to bring to our customers the 'best buys' available in the promotional merchandise field to help them keep competitive. Checkmate Promotional Buying Service will be staffed with experienced buyers who have wide contacts. These New York buyers, assisted by a field force, will actively scout for promotional merchandise on a nationwide basis, including coverage of all trade shows in the search for traffic-building items on both the national and regional levels," Fenstermaker said. "We've chosen the name 'Checkmate' for this new service because we feel we're making a winning move in behalf of our pharmacist-customers who are interested in countering growing discount and mass merchandising competition," he added.

Although primarily designed to provide fast turnover items to subscribing pharmacists, Checkmate will also offer a wide selection of promotional merchandise suitable for store events, seasonal sales and other traffic-building purposes. Buying catalogs and supplements will be offered and these will be updated and revised seasonally to keep pharmacists informed of exceptional values searched out by Checkmate's experienced buying staff. In addition, bulletins will be issued to pharmacists periodically for fast information purposes.

Checkmate Promotional Buying Service will be brought to the attention of pharmacists around the country in September by McKesson's wholesale drug salesmen.

McKesson & Robbins Drug Company, a division of Foremost-McKesson, Inc., is the nation's leading distributor of drug products.

Survival Program for an Independent Pharmacy

*Second of a Series of Articles prepared for The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy
by*

GEORGE M. SCATTERGOOD, Amicus Medicamentaria
Packaging Products Division
Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., Lancaster, Pa.

Professional fees are earned by pharmacists for a number of professional duties which might be broadly classified as surveillance of physicians' prescriptions.

Among many others these duties include: (a) avoidance of multiple product incompatibilities (b) dosage monitoring in relation to age or condition of patient (c) product monitoring in relation to known chronic conditions of patient such as diabetes or cardiac problems. Such duties and others give credence to the theme "You should have a personal pharmacist or a family pharmacy."

One professional duty which relatively few pharmacies offer is a complete cross-reference index for each patron. Such an index provides a medication history by date and duration, as well as the names of physicians. The value of such an index is great for a busy physician and provides a genuine service for the patron even though he may be unaware of its existence or manner of use. The patron would, of course, know he was well served if he visited or phoned the pharmacy and obtained a prescription refill when he had no prescription number and only knew the physician's name and approximate date. Although the patron should know he was well served because in other places he had been turned away when he had no number, it would certainly be wise to tell him, "We are able to render this service only because we maintain a complete index on all of your family's prescriptions."

For the pharmacy to serve both the patient and the physician, the pharmacist armed with a complete cross-reference index may phone the physician:

"Are you aware, Dr. A. that Mrs. X is a cardiac patient of Dr. B's and that she is using digitalis when you prescribed a product containing calcium in your new prescription?"

Or

"Were you aware, Dr. A., that Mrs. Y is a diabetic when you gave her this prescription for a cough preparation which contains sugar?"

Or

"Dr. B, are you aware of the length of time Mr. Z has been having your cortisone prescription refilled?"

Or

"Dr. C, do you intend Mrs. X to continue with these two earlier products you prescribed now that you have given her a new prescription for this third product?"

Or to reverse the service, the physician might call the pharmacy and ask:

"What was the product I prescribed for Mrs. X last summer?"

These are but a few examples of how truly responsible a pharmacist may be as a part of the public health team; but the busier the pharmacy, the more difficult these duties become. They are, however, vitally important duties, which have great influence upon inter-professional relations as well as continuity of patronage of the individual pharmacy. The problem is that very few pharmacies have more than the individual memories of their pharmacists to perform these surveillance duties. Those pharmacies that actually have cross-reference family indices, proclaim them as being utterly indispensable.

In a pharmacy with a large volume prescription business (400 to 2,000 per day) the pharmacists do not often see the patrons. The pharmacists are so busy that front-end clerks receive and wrap prescription packages which have been prepared by the pharmacists and act as cashiers. In the absence of personal pharmacist contact with the patron, the family index becomes increasingly important.

On the basis of a limited survey it appears that only one out of 40 pharmacies now maintains a family record system or a cross-reference prescription index. While we observe with scorn a cut-price pharmacy refuse to fill a compounded prescription who knows but that the patron may have just as much scorn for the professional appearing pharmacy where they refuse to refill a prescription if the patron does not have the number, the date, and the physician's name?

If this arouses you to action, here's an idea for a workable form for your family prescription record. This copy is for in-store use. A carbon copy with the "contents" column blacked out is handed to the patron or wrapped with the prescription. At the bottom of the patron's copy, you might have printed "as another of our professional services, the pharmacy is pleased to provide this record of prescriptions filled for you and/or your family during 196—."

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

The William S. Merrell Company, Division of Richardson-Merrell, Inc., announced that two students, Miss Ellen C. Robinson and E. Clyde Buchanan, were selected as winners in the 1969 competitions for the Lunsford Richardson Pharmacy Awards for undergraduate research.

Miss Ellen C. Robinson of Huntsville, Alabama, was chosen as the First Place winner in the Southeastern Region for her manuscript, "A New Approach to the Cholinergic Mechanism: Sterically Complementary Receptors." Miss Robinson is a graduating senior, treasurer of her class, member of Rho Chi honorary pharmaceutical society, and Kappa Epsilon sorority. The research paper was a culmination of work begun during the 1968 summer session period when Miss Robinson was participating in the National Science Foundation Undergraduate Research project in the Pharmaceutical Sciences at the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina. It attempts to explain the events occurring during passage and stoppage of a nerve impulse to certain muscles by comparing the action of a chemical on the muscle and the enzyme which are involved.

Mr. E. Clyde Buchanan, of Kinston, North

Carolina was selected for the Honorable Mention Award in the Southeastern Region for his manuscript, "Measuring Macromolecule-Drug Binding by Osmometry." Mr. Buchanan is a graduating senior, vice-president of his class and a member of Rho Chi honorary pharmaceutical society. His research was centered on the problems patients may have when taking several drugs at one time. He attempted to determine the amount of a drug that would no longer be useful because of the presence of a second drug. Mr. Buchanan also was a National Science Foundation Undergraduate Research Participant during the 1968 summer period. He plans to continue his studies at Ohio State University in the area of hospital pharmacy.

The Lunsford Richardson Pharmacy Awards for undergraduate research are sponsored by the Richardson-Merrell, Inc. They are intended to motivate and encourage original research among undergraduate pharmacy students. Four regional awards are presented annually.

The awards were presented by Dr. Robert W. Fleming, head of Organic Research at The William S. Merrell Company. This marks the second consecutive year that a student from the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina received the First Prize Regional Award. Last year's winner was George W. Moore, Jr., of Conover, North Carolina, who is presently enrolled in the Graduate School at the University of North Carolina and is majoring in Medicinal Chemistry.

Mrs. Elaine Tribble, a student at the School of Pharmacy, has been awarded a grant of fifteen hundred dollars by the University for work on a project under the supervision of Dr. Claude Piantadosi. This is a subgrant of the University's Cancer Institutional Grant from the American Cancer Society.

On April 14, Dr. C. J. Cavallito was the featured speaker at a dinner meeting of the Northeast Tennessee Section of the American Chemical Society at Bristol, Tennessee. Dr.

Cavallito spoke on, "Some Forces Contributing to Changing Patterns in Drug Research." Host for the meeting was the S. E. Massengill Company.

KAPPA PSI

This past month has been one of our busiest and perhaps our most rewarding this year. The highlight of the month came at the Province III Kappa Psi Convention at Charleston, S. C. At this time, Beta Xi Chapter was once again awarded the Outstanding Chapter Award for Province III. This award culminates a year of hard work by many brothers and was quite rewarding to the chapter. Brother Joey Edwards is currently serving as secretary of the Province.

In annual Pharmacy School elections the following brothers won office: Student Body President—Jim Hayes; Vice-President—Charles DeBruyne; Secretary-Treasurer—John Nance; Student Branches President—Steve Moore. In recent elections Jim Williams was elected vice president and Bill Harrison elected reporter of the Pharmacy Senate. Congratulations to these brothers are in order.

In recent intramural action, Kappa Psi captured the campus horse-shoe as well as the campus bowling championships. As well as these fine achievements, two of our softball teams made it to the playoffs. Finishing out the year in fine style, Kappa Psi is looking forward to another fine year next year in intramurals.

At the recent Campus Carnival, Kappa Psi and Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority teamed up to furnish almost $100 to charity. On April 22, the entire house, laden with gifts, once again made its annual trip to the North Carolina Cerebral Palsy Hospital. The children were presented with gifts and a good time was had by all. On April 29, the annual Kappa Psi Luncheon was held at the State Convention. A good turnout of alumni was present and the brotherhood and alumni enjoyed the chance to get together and enjoy the luncheon.

On April 25, some 84 people packed cars and coolers and left for our annual pilgrimage to the beach. The weather was perfect and a great time was experienced by all!

With the beginning of summer everyone will be back to internship work and here's hoping that everyone has a fine summer from the brothers of Kappa Psi.

PHI DELTA CHI

Phi Delta Chi Weekend was held April 25-26 with the formal banquet on Friday at the Ranch House. The banquet was well attended by members, faculty, and alumni. Among the alumni were Larry Warren, Dennis Beatty, Stan Haywood, Ed Loudermilk, Al Glass, and Wayne Keith. Hunter Murphey and his wife Ina attended from Medical College of Virginia. Needless to say, everyone had a great time, and the Saturday festivities were no exception. We would like to express our gratitude to our social chairmen for their hard work in arranging everything.

Officers for the fall semester have been installed. They are: President, Mike Boukin; President elect, Norman Overcash, Vice President, Larry Seigler; Treasurer, Rowland Strickland; Secretary, Richard Smutney; Pledgemaster, Henry Bess; Master-at-Arms, Al Banner; Inner Guard, Larry Irwin; and Prelate, Bob Dayvault.

Initiation was held on April 28 and May 5. We are proud to announce our new brothers: Robert W. "Charlie" Brown, Henry Shelton Brown, Jr., Kaekie G. Fender, Clifton McPherson, "Mack" Leonard, and Charles W. Rose. We know that they will contribute a lot to the fraternity in the years to come.

Several things have been done recently around the house namely painting it green with white trim, encouraging our grass to grow, and general cleaning up. The pledges contributed a brick grill, which has been put to good use already.

At last we have an intramural report. Our softball team did very well this year. It made the quarter finals of fraternity playoffs before being beaten. Also this spring we had a golf team in intramurals which managed to compete, if not win. If you saw our team it would have reminded you of

Your customer may not know the difference
...but you do.

As a pharmacist—you know that neither generic drugs nor trademarked drugs are any better than the demonstrated reliability of their manufacturers. The important thing, from the standpoint of the physician and his patient, is not how the product is named but how expertly it is made.

North Carolina Not a Party in Current Antibiotics Antitrust Settlement

Since North Carolina was one of seven states not a party to the proposed $120 million settlement of the broad spectrum antibiotics antitrust civil litigation, no immediate action on the part of pharmacists is anticipated in this state.

However, the Attorney General of North Carolina and his staff are now compiling information which will be used as a basis for court action. When the details are known, the NCPHA will inform its members.

Jean Benoy, head of the Attorney General's consumer protection division, said "we think we can get more money from the drug companies by going to court." In the 43 states which have accepted the $120 million settlement, newspaper advertisements have appeared advising drug purchasers how to obtain refunds on the antibiotics involved if they bought them between 1954 and 1966.

Benoy said that North Carolina state agencies and pharmacists who can prove damages will have to await the outcome of the court suit before seeking refunds.

A BRIEF LOOK AT THE 1969 GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The North Carolina General Assembly adjourned on July 2 after establishing a record for being in session longer than any previous Assembly.

Former General Assembly Representative Earl H. Tate of Lenoir (now NCPHA President), retained as Legislative Representative, was in Raleigh two days of every week the Assembly was in session.

Mr. Tate found plenty to occupy his time—various tax proposals, welfare appropriations (now Dept. of Social Services), narcotic bills, interest bills, pharmacy-supported legislation, such as the code of professional conduct bill, and at the end of the Assembly, a bill to place a 3% tax on professional services, including prescription service (this bill died in committee).

Several thousand bills were introduced during the long Assembly session necessitating a day by day review of legislative proposals and follow-up. Example: One bill was amended 15 different times.

SEEKS $300 MILLION FROM FIVE DRUG FIRMS

Edwards Brothers Milling Company of Rutherfordton, on behalf of itself and other feed manufacturers in the nation, has filed a $300 million suit against five drug manufacturers, charging them with price-fixing and illegal monopoly in the sale of antibiotic drugs.

Named as defendants were Pfizer, American Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers, Olin-Mathieson and Upjohn.

The milling company brought suit because some of the antibiotic drugs are used in livestock and poultry feeds.

RECENT ADDRESS CHANGES

Lionel C. Evans from Elizabethtown to Eckerds, Vernon Park, Kinston; John V. Woodard, Jr. from Eckerd's, Durham, to Henderson Drug, Henderson; Harry A. Barringer from Concord to Winston-Salem; Charles Roden from Greenville to Charlotte; J. Heyward Hull from Shelby to Chapel Hill.

ECKERD-A&P MERGER OFF

Officials of Eckerd Drugs (NC) have announced negotiations with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company have been discontinued with regard to a proposed merger between the two companies.

According to John T. Sullivan, president, and E. M. O'Herron, Jr., chairman of the Board, Eckerd Drugs (NC), terms of the merger could not be agreed upon, therefore no further discussions in regard to the proposed merger will be held.

Control of store operations is being decentralized by the establishment of nine divisions. A third generation Honeywell Computer has been installed to centralize all Eckerd (NC) payroll records, accounting and inventory control.

WHEREAS the practice of pharmacy requires knowledge, skill and integrity therefore, the state law restricts the practice of pharmacy to persons who possess special training and qualifications, and licenses to them privileges which are denied to others and

WHEREAS the pharmacist, in recognizing his responsibility to Public Health, obligates himself to the highest standards of the professional conduct,

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association in convention assembled on April 29, 1969, that in order that the citizens of North Carolina shall receive the best possible professional pharmaceutical services, that respect for a practitioner's professional skills and trusts, and confidence in the pharmaceutical profession be encouraged, and that the Public Health, Welfare, and Safety be best served, the following interpretations of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association's Code of Ethics be adopted, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a request be made of the North Carolina State Board of Pharmacy to consider the promulgation of appropriate Regulations recognizing these interpretations of the Pharmaceutical Association's Code of Ethics as the standard of professional or honorable conduct and that a copy of this resolution and interpretations be forwarded to the North Carolina State Board of Pharmacy:

1. It is unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to assert, publicize, or make claim to—in any way—professional superiority in matters relating to prescription orders, prescription medications, or in the preparation, handling, dispensing, or sale of drugs and medical preparations . . . it is also unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to promote himself or his professional services in a manner which may undermine public confidence in the ability,

2. It is unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to publicly promote or to publicize availability for sale to the public, narcotic drugs and medicines, or drugs and medicines which may only be dispensed pursuant to a prescription order of a physician, dentist, or veterinarian.
3. It is unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to make publication, or circulation of any statement tending to deceive, misrepresent, or mislead anyone, or be a party to, or an accessory to, any fraudulent or deceitful practice, or transaction in pharmacy or in the operation or conduct of a pharmacy.
4. It is unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to enter into any agreement, or arrangement with a physician, dentist, veterinarian or any other person for the compounding of secret or coded prescription orders, or for any rebate, kick-back, fee splitting, commission or special consideration in connection with prescription orders.
5. It is unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to participate in any plan, agreement, or arrangement which eliminates or affects detrimentally the traditional relationship of physician-patient-pharmacist, and the freedom of choice inherent thereto.
6. It is unethical for a practitioner of the profession of pharmacy to accept professional employment, or share or receive compensation in any form arising out of, or incidental to, his professional activities from a prescriber of prescription medication or any other person or corporation in which one or more such prescribers have a proprietary or beneficial interest suffi-

clear profits

ROBITUSSIN SUMMER DEAL BEGINS JULY 1

To supply the increasing demand during the deal season, Robitussin rolls off the assembly line at the rate of 250 bottles per minute!

Special Low Prices on Robitussin® and Robitussin-DM®

Again this summer A. H. Robins is running a money-saving deal on two of the industry's leading cough preparations. The deal which features Robitussin and Robitussin-DM extends from July 1 through August 31. During this period, drug stores and pharmacies can stock up on all their needs at special low prices.

Last winter a record

Last winter during the "flu" epidemic manufacturing had a record month in which 155,000 gallons of liquid cough and cold preps were produced and shipped. It's likely that your Robitussin sales were also high and that your inventories are now quite low. Nobody knows what the winter of 69-70 will bring. However, with back-to-back epidemics the last two years, you'll probably want to play it safe and order heavy.

Summer deal—a Robins tradition

The annual Robitussin deal

has been a tradition with A. H. Robins since 1959. In 1968 Robitussin and Robitussin-DM together accounted for 8 per cent of all retail sales of cough preparations through drug stores. This is 8 per cent of a market which exceeds $100,000,000. Retail sales of these two products in 1968 were up 22% over the previous year in a market which was up only 11%.

Today, the Robitussin family ranks Number 2 in drug store sales thanks to the loyal support of pharmacists and physicians. You can depend on A. H. Robins to continue its Professional Recommenders policy of promoting all ethical OTC products through drug stores only. Clear out plenty of space in your warehouse or storeroom. The gigantic Robitussin deal is underway now.

Deal advertising policy explained

"You may have been wondering why we don't print all the specific facts and figures on our deals in these 'Good News' ads. Well, the truth is that our salesmen get a big kick out of telling you the full story in person. I can remember back when I was calling on the drug trade how much personal satisfaction it gave me to tell pharmacists about in charge of sales A. H. Robins products and services. Our representatives, like yourself, have had many years of training and experience in the pharmaceutical field, and they know our company's products from A to Z. So when there's a big deal cooking, it's only natural that they should want to be the very first to let you in on all the details."

Andy Griffith, TV personality, has a summer home at Manteo and manages to spend much of his free time in that area of the state.

Recently, Andy was helping to dedicate a new bank at Manteo of which he had agreed to serve as a director. Someone suggested he open an account which was agreeable to Andy but he was short of cash. Pharmacist Keith Fearing came to the rescue with a temporary loan of $100.

Incidentally, Andy's first employment was in a pharmacy in Mount Airy—the W. S. Wolfe Drug Company.

Third of a Series of Articles prepared for The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy
by

GEORGE M. SCATTERGOOD, Amicus Medicamentaria
Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., Lancaster, Pa.

Public opinion of a pharmacist's services may be influenced by many aspects of his conduct, his appearance, the appearance and character of his pharmacy, and by his attention to efficient and quality prescription packaging. It has been said that many lay patrons assume that a pharmacist often takes a package off the shelf, scrapes off the label and replaces it with a prescription label, then charges a fee which multiplies the price of the shelf article several times.

When a pharmacist uses an assortment of various colors and types of prescription containers, right or wrong, some credence is given to the lay patron's opinion or even worse that a number of the packages may even be second-hand.

Most pharmacists are very proud of their prescription labels. They buy expensive labels with their crest or trademark in their favorite color or colors. Sometimes, they even adopt a store color and have bags, wrapping paper and even string made to match their labels.

Then, many use assorted colors of containers and closures and rarely consider that this action may betray the label and family they have worked so hard to create. But if a pharmacist adopts a prescription container line with each and every item the same color in its body and closure, his family packaging character will be preserved.

Better yet if a pharmacist selects a prescription container line which is reserved only for prescription use and which is unlike most of the proprietary packages on display in the front of the store, then the image presented to his patrons is superior and the suspicions of substitution, label scraping and overpricing are not as likely to be born in the minds of the patrons. If this image is fostered, it will become a high quality image which will minimize objections to and complaints about prices. For a $15.00 prescription, an elegant prescription container is much better received than a prescription in a paper bag or an ice cream carton. A thoughtful pharmacist will cherish his total pharmacy image and his quality packaging image because they are superimposed one upon the other.

The standard methods for therapeutic evaluation of most of the important pharmaceutical products are fully described along with directions for packaging these products to preserve their full therapeutic values. are lacking in therapeutic value or are contaminated or are improperly packaged, it is with the use of the text of the official compendia that these seizures are made.

There are many pharmacists who when questioned about their use of the USP or NF say, "We rarely receive prescriptions for any of these old fashioned products anymore—so why should I have up-to-date copies." There are many otherwise professional pharmacists who are not aware of the fact that at least a portion of most of the 200 top volume most frequently prescribed prescription products of the day appear in the USP or NF. One of the reasons for this lack of knowledge may be because State Board of Pharmacy regulations state that to obtain a license to open a pharmacy you must have the official compendia: they do not all state, "The latest published or up to date or spell out the USP XVII or the NF XII." These reference directories are published every 5 years and during the intervening periods, they are periodically supplemented.

There is at least one state where the State Board of Pharmacy requires that to obtain a renewal of the pharmacy license, you must provide the numbers on your official copies of the required compendia and these numbers are checked to determine that you have an up-to-date copy before the license is renewed.

Each individual copy of the official publications carries a seal and number as an official copy with a warning that this seal must not be removed from the publication. One copy of USP procured a year after one date of issue is numbered 28147 and one copy of the NF obtained at the same time is numbered 28933. Now there are approximately 53,000 pharmacies in the United States with prescription departments and about 6,000 hospitals, consequently, it would appear that less than half the number as required of these official compendia are actually in use.

"Packaging and Storage" instructions which appear in the official compendia include:

"Preserve in well-closed containers"

"Preserve in tight containers"

"Preserve in tight, light-resistant containers"

"Preserve in tight containers, protected from heat and light"

"Preserve in well-closed light resistant containers"

"Preserve in tight containers"

"Preserve in well-closed containers preferably at a temperature not exceeding 30°"

There are a number of other instructions under this category. The USP and NF definitions are virtually identical

"Well-Closed Container"—"A well-closed container protects the contents from extraneous solids and from loss of the drug under ordinary or customary conditions of handling, shipment, storage, and sale."

"Tight Container"—"A tight container protects the contents from contamination by extraneous liquids, solids or vapors, from loss of the drug, and from efflorescence, deliquescence, or evaporation under the ordinary or customary conditions of handling, shipment, storage, and sale, and is capable of tight reclosure. Where a tight container is specified, it may be replaced by a hermetic container for a single dose of a drug."

"Light-Resistant Container"—(See Light Transmission, page 899)—"A light-resistant container protects the contents from the effects of incident light by virtue of the specific properties of the material of which it is composed including any coating applied to it. If protection from light is required, a clear and colorless or a translucent container may be made light-resistant by means of an opaque enclosure in which case the label of the container bears a statement that the opaque covering is needed until the contents have been used."

Page 899 of the U.S.P. XVII describes the use of a spectrophotometer for determining light transmission and lists the limits allowed for transmission as follows:

"Note—Any container of a size intermediate to those listed above exhibits a transmission not greater than that of the next larger size container listed in the table. For containers larger than 50 ml., the limits for 50 ml. apply."

Author's Note:  $\mu$  is the symbol for millimicron, a measurement system for wave-

SURVIVAL PROGRAM (Cont'd)

“Limits for Glass Types I, II, and III and Plastic Classes I-IV”

Nominal Size in ml	Maximum Percentage Light Transmission at any Wave- Length Between 290 mu and 450 mu
	Flame Sealed Containers	Closure Sealed Containers
1	50	25
2	45	20
5	40	15
10	35	13
20	30	12
50	15	10

lengths of light 290 millimicrons equals 2900 Angstrom units and 450 millimicrons equals 4500 Angstrom units.

The U.S.P. definition under limits is in the above table specifically applicable to parenteral containers but the final paragraph under limits does state:

The observed light transmission for containers of Type NP glass does not exceed 10% at any wavelength in the range from 290 mu to 450 mu.”

Of the stock and readily available prescription container glass colors, the following are most common along with the percentage of harmful light passed by the glass when that glass is of the standard depth of color and thickness:

“Flint” Clear or Colorless	62.0%
Commercial Blue	59.0%
Emerald Green	41.0%
Amber	2.2%

It is obvious from this table that the only color of glass container which satisfies the requirements for light protection when a product is designated as requiring “light-resistant” container is Amber. All of the other colors and the colorless exceed the transmission by more than 10%.

Of the individual monographs in U.S.P. XVII, there are 238 and in the NF XII there are 256 which require either “light-resistant container” or “Protect from light.” A few of these are single unit dose parenteral products but most of them are the type and form of product which is handled, packaged, and dispensed by a pharmacist.

Of the 200 highest volume prescription products, 38% require protection from light. Any pharmacist may refer to the compendia concerning the form of packaging or type of protective packaging required for each prescription and through the passage of time, many high frequency product packaging requirements will probably be remembered—however, the modern professional pharmacist is more often than not so pressed for time that such precautionary research and/or memory searching may be quite costly.

Would it not be a practical expedient for a pharmacist to provide adequate light protection for all prescriptions dispensed whether they need it or not?

Amber prescription containers are readily available on the market through all manufacturers of prescription containers and the cost is no greater than that of other colors or colorless prescription containers.

It is a fact that most amber prescription containers are fitted with white urea or polypropylene caps to provide elegant prescription package appearance. White urea of propylene caps are more expensive than black phenolic caps and fractionally affect the cost of the complete prescription package.

TIGHT PROTECTION

Under this packaging requirement, the definitions are very precise and succinct. In the U.S.P. XVII, there are 361 and in NF

XII there are 455 individual monographs which list under "Packaging and Storage" that a tight container is required. There are no degrees of tightness enumerated as there are for light protection, consequently, we must assume that a prescription package is either tight or it is not tight.

Of the 200 top frequency prescription products, 54% require "tight" packaging protection. While there are many fine rigid styrene plastic containers on the market and probably more of this type of container is used by pharmacists to package prescriptions than any other form or type container, neither the snap cap or the screw cap plastic vial is "TIGHT." No rigid plastic material is available at a sufficiently low price to produce tight containers for pharmacists' use.

Available plastic vials for prescription use permit the passage of moisture vapor as well as other extraneous vapors through the walls of the body of the container. Such rigid styrene vials also permit the escape of therapeutic values through the process of efflorescence or evaporation through the walls of the body of the vial regardless of the apparent tightness of the closure.

Only a well formed glass container with a well-lined continuous thread closure properly mated to the glass finish is sufficiently "TIGHT" to satisfy the requirements of the official compendia and is readily available for procurement and use by practicing pharmacists.

No one has recorded the number of sub-potent or contaminated prescription products which have deteriorated or have become contaminated because of inadequate packaging at the prescription level but there are weekly lists of F.D.A. seizures at all levels. The most serious aspects of a pharmacist's responsibility are usually beyond the reach of other than those who suffer the consequences of inadequate protection. The number of patients who do not survive because the product has lost its expected therapeutic value is not recorded.

808 Quality Checks

If check number 809 were needed, it would be made.

When you fill a prescription with a Lilly product, you can rest assured nothing finer is available. For example, one Lilly product undergoes 808 separate quality checks before reaching your pharmacy.

Absolute control of "variables" is essential. Even minor differences in particle size, solubility, excipients, stability, tablet compression, and other factors can make a decided difference in therapeutic efficacy.

In exercising your professional judgment, consider the consistent, guaranteed quality of Lilly products. When it comes to your customer's health (and your reputation), you want to dispense the best.

HIGHLIGHTS OF NORTH CAROLINA'S NEW PAREGORIC, ETC. LEGISLATION

It has become popular to refer to legislation which covers a multitude of subjects as an "omnibus bill." S. B. 468, which was ratified June 23, 1969, might be referred to as a "mini-omnibus drug bill," since it covers a number of otherwise unrelated items except that most have in common a potential for abuse. While the main thrust of this legislation is directed toward the control of drug abuse, there are a number of requirements in it that will affect the pharmacist. No attempt will be made here to explain the entire bill but, rather, mention will be made of those portions that directly affect the pharmacist and his sales of restricted items.

Conditions of Sale

Under our previous law, one of the conditions that was precedent to a pharmacist selling any quantity of exempt narcotic preparations (Classes X and M) was that he do so in good faith as a medicine. The new law places a similar responsibility on the purchaser as follows:

"(3) That the person who purchases, receives or possesses such exempt preparation by any means whatsoever does so in good faith for the purpose of using the exempt preparation as a medicine and not for the purpose of evading this Article."

Limitation of Quantities

In the past the only limitation on the quantity of a Class X preparation was that it be sold "in good faith as a medicine"; thus the pharmacist might sell only that quantity that might reasonably be needed as a medicine. The new law places a time-quantity limitation on paregoric.

"(4) That no person shall purchase or receive by any means whatsoever more than one fluid ounce of paregoric within any consecutive twenty-four hour period, except upon prescription issued by a duly licensed physician."

It is noted here that no reference is made to any limitation on the quantity

This Abstract of S.B. 468 Prepared by H. C. McAllister, Secretary-Treasurer, North Carolina Board of Pharmacy.

of paregoric that might be "sold" by the pharmacist to a given person within the time limit stated. This section prohibits the "purchase or receipt." It is our tentative opinion, however, that the restriction applies equally to the "sale" of paregoric by the pharmacist since the sale of more than the limited quantity would have the effect of aiding and abetting the commission of a crime by the purchaser.

In addition to limiting the quantity of paregoric that might be sold, it would appear that the pharmacist must also record the time (hour) of sale along with the other records he must keep. Unless he does this he will have no way of knowing whether purchases are made more frequently than the twenty-four hour period permitted under the law. Many pharmacists purchase prepackaged Class X preparations labeled by the manufacturer or packer. These packages presumably are properly labeled for sale without further labeling. Under the new law it will be necessary to identify the source from which such preparation is purchased.

"(5) That whenever a pharmacist or physician sells or dispenses any exempt preparation, he shall affix to the container in which such preparation is sold or dispensed, a label showing (the) doctor's name and address or pharmacy name and address."

It should be noted that this labeling requirement applies to all Class X preparations and not just to paregoric.

Glue Sales Restricted

A new section under the Barbituate and Stimulant Drug Act provides: "No person shall sell or offer to sell to any other person any tube or other container of glue containing a solvent having the property of releasing toxic vapors or fumes, if he has reasonable cause to suspect that the product sold, or offered for sale, will be used . . . for the purpose of causing a condition of intoxication, inebriation, excitement, stupefaction or dulling of his brain or nervous system.

The glues falling under the prohibitions in this act are those whose solvents are composed of one or more of the following substances: acetone, and acetate (presumably organic, of which there are many), benzene, toluene, xylene, butyl alcohol, ethyl alcohol, ethylene dichloride, isopropyl alcohol, methyl alcohol, methyl ethyl ketone, pentachlorophenol, or petroleum ether.

The question arises as to what is a legal and what is an illegal sale of glue under this act. This should not be too difficult to determine. The law states that "no person shall sell or offer for sale (glue) . . . if he has reasonable cause to suspect" that it will be used for inhalation. A "reasonable cause" would be a cause that a reasonable and prudent man might have to question such sale.

Inmates of Charitable or Penal Institutions

There are two sections of the new law (violation of one of which is a felony) that prohibit the giving or selling (or conspiring, aiding, abetting, etc., etc.) of barbituate or stimulant drugs, intoxicants, poisons, deadly weapons, etc. to the inmates of a charitable or penal institution. Drugs on physicians' prescriptions are exempted.

Forged Prescriptions

Up until the passage of this bill only the forging of a prescription for a narcotic or a barbituate or stimulant drug was in clear violation of law. The new law makes it unlawful for anyone to falsely impersonate a (health) practitioner or to secure or attempt to secure any drug or drug preparation for any drug "that requires a prescription under the pharmacy laws of North Carolina" or "any drug requiring a prescription from a practitioner licensed by the State."

GEORGE ROYALL SELLS INTEREST IN ROYALL DRUG COMPANY TO SON, EDWIN, AND HENRY DILLON

By Anne Adkins
Elkin Tribune

It was formally announced today (July 7) that George Royall, president of Royall Drug Co., is stepping down from the position he has held for more than 20 years.

It was also announced that Royall and his wife, Janie, have sold their interest in the company to their son, Edwin, and Henry Dillon, who have been associated with the company since the 1940s.

Edwin Royall, who will succeed his father as president, became officially associated with Royall Drug in 1941. Dillon, who was first employed at Royall Drug in 1932, became officially associated with the company in 1947.

Although the transfer of ownership interest became effective June 1, the elder Royall will continue to remain active in the business for the next few months, on a semi-retirement basis. Also, he has retained his interest in Bridge St. Pharmacy.

A man who has always maintained an active interest in civic affairs, Royall will head the 1969-70 United Fund as incoming president, succeeding Dave Smith.

On June 26, at a United Fund luncheon when he was elected to the post, Royall remarked, "It has always been said that when there's a big job to be done, ask a busy man. Well, this time they didn't do it!"

But those who know George Royall have no doubt that his interest in his town, church, and community will continue.

He is as enthusiastic about the Elkin Kiwanis Club as he was when he became one of its charter members.

He is a member of the George Gray Post of the American Legion. A past president of the N. C. Merchants Association, Royall was awarded a plaque in 1967 honoring him for 33 years of active service with the organization, both locally and statewide.

He and his wife are members of the First United Methodist Church where Royall is chairman of the board of trustees.

His civic contributions began when he moved to Elkin with Mrs. Royall in 1922 and bought an interest in what was then Turner Drug Co.

In 1948, eleven years after the death of his partner, W. C. Turner, the company was renamed Royall Drug Co., Inc.

Officials who served with him during his three terms as Elkin's mayor, from 1955 to 1961, remember his service as "devoted and genuine." One former commissioner expresses the convictions of many who worked with Royall during those years. "There wasn't anything he wouldn't do for the good of this town. He was 100 percent for Elkin, 'an all-the-way' mayor who never failed to be cooperative and understanding. Oh, how he loves this town!"

Royal plans "to do a lot of fishing." Also, he and Mrs. Royall would like to travel more.

The golf links he left eight years ago have beckoned and he has begun to play again. And with his varied interests, this man is not going to let semi-retirement reduce his enthusiasm.

In fact, he is looking forward to the advantages of the new freedom he plans to enjoy while "still keeping my fingers in the pie" of the business he loves.

Semi-retirement, to Royall, is much the same as a grandfather's relationship with his grandchildren. "I can enjoy the business without the work," he says a bit mischievously, adding, "It's like playing with your grandchildren and then sending them home for their parents to spank!"

What To Do When A Discounter Moves In

by Irving Rubin, Pharmacist-Editor
American Professional Pharmacist

We know that discounters can cause problems. We also know that these problems can be solved. In this connection, I would like to offer 10 suggestions on how to combat a discounter. And so, without further delay, here goes:

Suggestion #1: Don't panic, because this freezes your ability to think. I have spoken to a number of pharmacists throughout the nation and, when they first learn that a discounter is coming into their area, they stop thinking. They become so fearful that they just cannot think properly. After all, you do have a reputation in your area and your pharmaceutical world is not coming to an end; but more than that, help is on the way. By that I mean, the advent of third party prepaid prescription plans will be helpful in combating discounters. There are certain aspects of the prepaid programs I don't like, but this area I think you will find to be favorable.

Just to give you an idea of what is in the cards in that area, I would like to read an announcement that Blue Cross made a few months ago explaining what it is doing and explaining why October 1, 1969 is a very important date. The announcement was made by H. G. Pierce, a vice president of Blue Cross: "Mr. Pierce cited the development of prescription drug programs as a major activity of the Blue Cross system. He also noted that the new 3-year contract between the 'Big Three' of the automobile industry—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler and the United Auto Workers—provide that, effective October 1, 1969, Blue Cross and/or Blue Shield will handle drug benefits for 70% of the auto workers and their families. This group totals 2.5 million persons in 34 states. This will have the net effect of meaning that practically every plan will have to provide a drug program on a service basis and have a contractual relationship with pharmacists by that date, Mr. Pierce said. Other large industries will probably follow the bargaining lead of the auto industry. In addition to the drug program developed along the lines of the auto industry pattern, Mr. Pierce said, several Blue Cross plans have announced out-of-hospital prescription drug programs for sale to enrolled groups."

Charles Covington, of SK&F, very effectively told you a few minutes ago of all the third party systems such as Medicaid, OEO, and Military Medicare. I feel that, before next year is over, we will have prescriptions for outpatients under Medicare.

Why specifically do I feel that these third party programs will be helpful in combating the discounter? Let's pretend that I am now a member of the public and I am signed up under a 3rd party program. This is my card under one of the prepaid prescription programs. It might be a private program such as Blue Cross, Paid Prescriptions, or it might be a government program. Once I have this card, price no longer becomes as highly important to me as it now is. Why? Because I say—as a member of the public—let the pharmacist and the third party worry about the price. All I know is when I have a prescription to be filled, I bring it into a pharmacy, give the pharmacist my card, and he fills my prescription. This means I will tend to go where it is convenient for me, where I have confidence, and where I get service. This is a very significant development. Because third party programs are picking up speed, I think that, within the next year or two, we will see the pharmacist—who is conveniently located, who has the confidence of the people in his area, and who provides service—will win out as price is de-emphasized as a factor in the prescription field.

WHAT TO DO

Suggestion #2: Remind patrons that when price goes down so does service. However, you have to explain specifically what you mean by service. In this connection, back in March of 1966, I wrote an editorial on this very point and I would like to read a few paragraphs from it:

“Although price is admittedly a factor in people’s decisions as to where they buy, so is service. Differences in price are self-evident; differences in services require an explanation. In explaining the price-service relationship to patrons, pharmacists should be specific. For example: ‘Mr. Smith, when you deal with a discounter, you generally must take the time and trouble to undergo the expense to travel there. In effect, the discounter makes you his delivery man. On the other hand, our delivery car stands ready to speed your everyday needs to you. This convenient service also covers your emergency, perhaps lifesaving, needs when the discounter is closed. You must be specific in explaining this service to the patient.’”

Suggestion #3: Go after service-oriented sources of income. The discounter needs speed in his operation. He needs fast turnover. He doesn’t have time to tie down pharmacists to talk to people, to help them. That just isn’t part of his method of operation and, therefore, that is something you have to stress. When Tom King, a pharmacist in Topeka, Kansas, heard that a discounter was coming into his neighborhood, he sat down and began to think. He came up with a slogan and he repeated his slogan over and over to the public and to the physicians. His slogan was this: “Prescriptions plus Service.” He also went into service-connected fields, such as surgical appliances. When you sell surgical appliances, you have to take time and explain certain things to the public. The discounter just doesn’t have that time.

I also suggest getting involved in providing services to nursing homes and to hospitals; and, in addition, set up liaisons even with institutions and that means hospitals and nursing homes that may have full-time pharmacists, because the community pharmacist will find that—even with institutions that have the full-time pharmacist—he nevertheless can exchange information, exchange products, etc. Formulary systems restrict the number of products an institution normally carries, and it is convenient for the institution to have a nearby retail pharmacist who can quickly provide products.

You can also relieve institutional pharmacists when they are sick, on vacation, etc. For example, where a hospital has two pharmacists, what happens when one of them is ill or when one of them goes on vacation? Many community pharmacists are pinch-hitting and helping out. Also, what about after-hours emergency prescriptions? If the hospital pharmacy closes at 5 or 6 o’clock, a nearby retail pharmacy has an opportunity to fill prescriptions of an emergency nature. And how wonderful it sounds when you are at the hospital and another pharmacist in your establishment tells the public: “Oh, Mr. Jones is now at the hospital filling prescriptions.” This constitutes a very, very valuable piece of public relations. This builds prestige and professional interest.

Suggestion #4: Look for opportunities to use your professional know-how . . . in the over-the-counter area. For example, let’s consider toothpastes. Wouldn’t it be important for you to make a statement like this to the public: “The level of acid in your mouth is at its highest peak about 20 minutes after you have a meal.” We ran articles in our May issue written by the President-elect of the American Medical Association and the President of the American Dental Association. They point out how and why the pharmacist’s help is needed

Whoever heard of a patent on good taste?

Years ago, Abbott knew it had something when it introduced Sucaryl®. You know the rest. The product revolutionized the no-calorie sweetening business.

What some people don't know is the formula is actually patented. The key is in the ratio of sweetening ingredients used. It's what gives Sucaryl that full, natural-tasting sweetness—without the persistent aftertaste you may have seen with other sweeteners.

So the fact that Sucaryl has held on to the Number 1 position over the years shouldn't surprise anyone. It's a matter of good taste. 907152 in the over-the-counter area in order to explain things to the public. If you offer helpful suggestions, the public will soon realize: "When I go into that pharmacy, I get something I don't get in non-drug outlets. While the supermarket also carries over-the-counter products, they certainly don't give me that professional know-how that I get when I go into that particular pharmacy." This is an opportunity for you to show your professional knowledge.

WHAT TO DO

Suggestion #5: Have your pharmacy serve as a health information center. The pharmacist is the most readily available professional person with respect to the public. People do not hesitate to come into the pharmacy in order to talk to the pharmacist. Let's take one specific example—Medicare. Supposing one of your patrons came into your pharmacy tomorrow and said: "My grandfather is eligible for Medicare, and he was told that he has to go to a nursing home for 90 days. What is involved?"

Do you have the information to say "Well, Mrs. Smith, the first 20 days are free and the next 80 days are $5.50 a day."

It's this kind of information that makes your pharmacy the one they all go to. The discounter is too busy operating on the assembly-line basis, but you have the helpful information. If someone has diabetes and you have a pamphlet on the disease, people will appreciate it. If a patron's husband or a grandfather has had a heart attack and you have literature on that subject, people will gravitate to your pharmacy. The Food & Drug Administration recently made some statements about the cyclamate artificial sweeteners. Are you familiar with what is involved? Can you explain the situation to the people in your area? This is important, because this is something the discounter cannot do. It takes time.

Suggestion #6: Evaluate your prescription pricing structure. This is something that each pharmacist must do individually based upon the prevailing situation in his area. For example, we know that over half of all prescriptions are refills. The figures are running around 55% nationally. And now I ask the question and you and you alone can answer it: "Should you reduce the prescription price on the refill if the manufacturer cuts his price? Do you think it would serve any useful purpose if, when Mrs. Smith came in, you said: 'Mrs. Smith, I have some good news for you. The manufacturer has reduced the price on the drug you are taking and, therefore, it will cost you less.'"

This is a question you have to answer. Let me tell you a problem that came up in California, and how a pharmacist solved that particular problem. He was located in Carmel, California. His name is Kenneth Shook. His pharmacy is called Dolores Pharmacy. Pharmacist Shook noticed that the refill ratio in his pharmacy was only about 15%. His pharmacy was located in an area where there were many oldsters and several discount pharmacies. The discounters loved to go after the maintenance drug prescriptions because it gave them a low price image. RxMan Shook saw this problem, he analyzed it, and he came up with a solution. Let me read you his solution to his problem:

"Suppose the patient has a prescription calling for 100 tablets to be refilled 4 times—a total of 500 tablets. Through our program (and by the way, he calls his program "a prepaid plan on maintenance prescriptions"), we are able to offer the patient the pricing advantage of buying the drug at a 500-tablet level, without encumbering the patient with a large quantity of tablets at one time. In order to do this, we price the medication according to the total number of doses authorized by the physician and the patient pays in full—in advance—for the total number. In this particular case, the patient would pay for 500. We then dispense the drug in desirable smaller quantities at the necessary intervals. According to our plan, we continue to provide the drug for the patient until the original prescription and its refills (that have been paid for in full) are dispensed. Each time a portion of the Rx is dispensed, we give the patient the notation, indicating the number of remaining doses that he has paid for. Our prepaid maintenance Rx program is operated without any circus-type promotion. We offer the program to customers on an individual basis—if it appears that they might benefit from it. By the way, the physician is kept informed of what is involved. The patient has nothing to lose by paying in advance for the medication. Should the medication be changed by the physician, we issue a credit or refund for the amount due. We can readily determine the correct amount due by simply deducting the price of the medication thus far dispensed, figured as if it had all been dispensed as one prescription. Then, we deduct that from the amount that the patient has taken.”

That is how one pharmacist saw a problem, his thinking about it, and his solution to the problem.

Suggestion #7: Maintain family prescription records. We now are involved in problems like drug interactions, duplication of prescribed drugs, etc. At dinner last night, one pharmacist pointed out that he had caught a case where one patient was getting 4 prescriptions for meprobamate.

Consider also the ease of a pregnant diabetic with a urinary infection. That patient may be going to a general practitioner, to an obstetrician, and to a urologist. Drugs might be prescribed by several physicians for that patient. This could be determined via the family prescription record. This is a reflection of what is called fractionated medical care—or the highly specialized nature of medical care.

I suggest that the pharmacist should have the patient himself fill out his own family record card because then the patron becomes directly involved and acutely aware that, in this pharmacy, someone is maintaining records of the medication for all of the members of his family. After all, did the patron not fill out the card? This links the patient and his family with your pharmacy.

In Baltimore about a year ago, there was a study made among physicians about the pharmacist's service. What is it that the pharmacist does that the physician likes? In number one position was the family prescription record. Physicians voted it first because it is highly useful.

I would like to read a letter I received from a pharmacist in Birmingham, Alabama, describing the family prescription record: “We have been using patient prescription record cards for 6 years, and I honestly don't know how we would operate without them. I personally think that their practical value is equal to their professional value. This is one item without which I shall never operate a pharmacy.”

Suggestion #8: Provide emergency services 24 hours a day. In this connection, I'd like to tell you about Nathan Doctor, a retail pharmacist of Port Washington, N. Y. He was faced with a problem. He could not get enough pharmacists to work in his pharmacy, because of a shortage in his area. He decided that he would just have to close his pharmacy earlier at night and open it later in the morning. So, he put out a special notice to all his patrons, announcing that he was going to provide 24-hour emergency prescription service . . . and that, in connection with this new expanded service, his store hours would be nine to nine. In other words, he emphasized his new 24-hour prescription service—and not his shorter store hours.

Suggestion #9: Seek interprofessional help. Are doctors sending their patients to discounters? A number of physicians tell their patients to go to the discounter to save money.

Explain to these doctors your drug information, your family prescription records, and your 24-hour-a-day service—which incidentally might save the doctor a night call if he can call you and give you some medication to tide the patient over. Point out how what you do is helping the doctor and his patients.

Suggestion #10: Perform the usual tried-and-true activities. Be active in your community . . . be a part of it . . . make speeches to business groups, civic groups, to school groups . . . offer to display on a bulletin board in your pharmacy the dates of local meetings . . . know your patrons and their families by name.

To sum it up: Take the time to be helpful—and provide useful services to patrons and physicians.

SERVICE WHOLESALE DRUGGIST

CHARLESTON, GREENVILLE, SPARTANBURG, S. C.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC HEALTH & WELFARE

JOHN T. HENLEY, Chairman

During the first nine months of the current fiscal year, operation of that state welfare vendor drug program resulted in the payment of 411,000 claims—each claim averaging three prescriptions—for a total dollar reimbursement of almost $4 million dollars.

Total cost of the drug program for the year, ending June 30, is estimated to be about $5.5 million. This is slightly over budget but not to the point where any immediate changes will be necessary. From an operational standpoint, the pharmacy program is by far the largest being handled by the medical services division of the state department of public welfare. Four out of every five claims originating from hospitals, dentists, physicians and pharmacists come from pharmacy.

The physician payment program is the latest to be added. It is just getting underway. For this service, 3800 claims were paid in march for a total of $43,000.

The pharmacy committee advisory to welfare attempted to resolve one problem during the year: to arrive at a mutually acceptable solution to the pricing of prescriptions whose ingredient costs are not listed in red book. In the absence of such listings, welfare's accounting unit has been using direct prices, which, in many instances, does not reflect the pharmacist's actual cost.

While the problem has not been completely solved, Welfare is exhibiting a spirit of cooperation which indicates an acceptable agreement can be reached. The trend is towards "acquisition cost" which will apply whether the medication is acquired direct or thru a wholesaler.

As most pharmacists are now aware, the current Kerr-Mills program will shift to a title XIX program by no later than January 1, 1970. The customary name for this program is MEDICAID.

State welfare officials inform us there are no anticipated major changes in the current program but this, of course, will be subject to directives from Washington, since the Federal Government puts up 75¢ out of every welfare medical dollar.

It is not generally known but North Carolina's present Kerr-Mills program is superior to many of the 41 existing state Medicaid programs. It is for this reason we do not anticipate a complete overhauling of our present drug program.

You will recall, as a cost control device, a dollar deductible per prescription was instituted some years ago. This has proven to be an excellent utilization control without denying essential medication to any eligible needy person. In the absence of the dollar deductible which reduced drug costs by 35% and brought the program back within budgetary limits, other less acceptable solutions to our money problems would have been forthcoming.

We are now informed we cannot have a deductible as a part of the Medicaid program. Since the deductible has worked so well in North Carolina, an attempt is now being made in Washington to amend the Social Security Act to permit any state, on an elective basis, to include such a policy in its state plan.

We would like to point out that last year North Carolina was the only state of all the fifty states to have a decrease in its welfare drug cost—and you can be certain this fact has not gone unnoticed in Washington.

Most states with current Medicaid Drug Programs are in fiscal difficulty, necessitating cut-backs. We believe North Carolina has the answer—a limited cost sharing program—not only for pharmacy but for all of the Medical Services now a part of the Welfare Vendor Program.

Wide publicity has been given to the reports of the Task Force on Prescription drugs which was established in 1967 by directive of President Johnson. A series of reports issued since that time have and will greatly influence the delivery of pharmaceutical service in the future, not only for federally financed programs but general drug programs as well.

North Carolina is one of 12 states with a no formulary, no dollar limit state drug program. Most of the remaining states have some sort of restriction, such as a formulary of 100 to 200 drugs or a dollar limit of $10 per month. It is interesting to note the task force reported the highest Average Annual expense is experienced by the states with the most restrictive formularies.

Has been producing good printing, and with promptness. Machines and techniques in printing have changed but the inherent quality is maintained.

We are proud of our long association with North Carolina druggists through The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy and its editors. The Journal is now in its forty-eighth volume, and the first printed copy was "Seeman Printed."

COMMITTEE

As we prepare to implement Medicaid here in North Carolina, the significant issues to pharmacy will be:

1. Brand names vs. non-brand names. HEW encourages dispensing of low-cost chemical equivalents where they are available and when their use is consistent with high quality health care.
2. Use of percentage markup vs. fixed professional fee and the definition of "acquisition cost."
3. Mandatory use of a formulary.
4. The availability of federal matching funds and on what basis. There have been some recent indications that such funds will be limited in the future to the point where either cut-backs will be necessary or state and local funds will have to be increased.

As to our North Carolina Drug Program, which has been studied by various other federal states, by the social security administration and by various other federal agencies, we do not see any major changes looming on the Horizon, particularly if we succeed in retaining the dollar deductible as a part of the drug program.

REVCO EARNINGS HIT RECORD HIGH

Net revenues and net earnings for Revco Drug Stores, Inc., with stores in Winston-Salem, Mooresville, Statesville and other North Carolina locations, set new fiscal highs during the year ending May 31, according to Sidney Dworkin, president.

Sales for the year totaled $98,031,905, an increase of 38.1 per cent over the previous fiscal year. Net earnings were up 16.6 per cent, representing 90 cents per share as compared with 78 cents per share for the 1968 fiscal year.

“Blunders in the use of words”

by R. C. (Bob) Sisk, Asheville

This writer is making a collection of these and if you have any, I would appreciate it if you would send them to me and with your permission they will be used in this article in the future. My address is R. C. Sisk, 3 Briareliff Drive, Asheville, N. C. 28803.

Have you ever been asked for remedies for:

- Chicken pops (Chicken pox)
- Skin draft (Skin graft)
- Arthur Itis (Arthritis)
- Cadillacs in eyes (Cataracts in eyes)
- Roaches of the liver (Cirrhosis of the liver)
- Garter (Goiter)
- Romantic Fever (Rheumatic fever)

I am reminded of the woman who came into my store with a very irritated look on her face and told me that her neighbors told her that her child was “illiterate” and explained, “I was married a year and half before that child was born. (illegitimate)

A customer asked for something for “good pasture.” I suggested that she keep the cows from the field. (posture)

I have been asked how many limes it would take to make a gallon of lime water.

I saw a sign in a drug store window; WANTED soda clerk, peasant working conditions. (pleasant)

I was asked to help a woman fill in questions asked on her Blue Cross Insurance policy. She wanted to collect for her maternity bill at the hospital. One of the questions asked, “Where did the accident occur.” This is the only question she would not answer.

The word hermaphrodite is most commonly pronounced “morphodite” (a person having two sexes). I was asked by an addict the following question: “It is true that every one who takes morphine is a morphodite?”

A phone call from a customer wanted to know how much a plaster surgery operation would cost.

A customer informed me that she would be unable to pay her bill because she was going to an obstetrician and have her eyes examined.

A very disgruntled husband confronted me and said, “Doe, my wife is probably the most nervous woman in the world and I want you to sell me something for her. I don’t want anything she might become “dicted” to but I want some kind of sedative, not a strong sedative, just a mild sedative, you know, just enough to seduce her.”

You figure this one (answer next month). A note was given me which read, “How much carbolie savage, ann oil and fedita do you add to copeeva to make a mixture for lice?”

We never make “mis-steaks.”

A very young boy raved and ranted because his mother refused to buy him an ice cream cone. He pulled the toys from the rack and as I kneeled to pick them up I told the mother that I thought the boy was spoiled to which she replied, “I don’t think he’s spoiled, most children smell that way.”

ROBITUSSIN SUMMER DEAL BEGINS JULY 1

Special Low Prices on Robitussin® and Robitussin-DM®

Again this summer A. H. Robins is running a money-saving deal on two of the industry's leading cough preparations. The deal which features Robitussin and Robitussin-DM extends from July 1 through August 31. During this period, drug stores and pharmacies can stock up on all their needs at special low prices.

Last winter a record

Last winter during the "flu" epidemic manufacturing had a record month in which 155,000 gallons of liquid cough and cold preps were produced and shipped. It's likely that your Robitussin sales were also high and that your inventories are now quite low. Nobody knows what the winter of 69-70 will bring. However, with back-to-back epidemics the last two years, you'll probably want to play it safe and order heavy.

Summer deal—a Robins tradition

has been a tradition with A. H. Robins since 1959. In 1968 Robitussin and Robitussin-DM together accounted for 8 per cent of all retail sales of cough preparations through drug stores. This is 8 per cent of a market which exceeds $100,000,000. Retail sales of these two products in 1968 were up 22% over the previous year in a market which was up only 11%.

Today, the Robitussin family ranks Number 2 in drug store sales thanks to the loyal support of pharmacists and physicians. You can depend on A. H. Robins to continue its Professional Recommenders policy of promoting all ethical OTC products through drug stores only. Clear out plenty of space in your warehouse or storeroom. The gigantic Robitussin deal is underway now.

Deal advertising policy explained

"You may have been wondering why we don't print all the specific facts and figures on our deals in these 'Good News' ads. Well, the truth is that our salesmen get a big kick out of telling you the full story in person. I can remember back when I was calling on the drug trade how much personal satisfaction it gave me to tell pharmacists about A. H. Robins products and services. Our representatives, like yourself, have had many years of training and experience in the pharmaceutical field, and they know our company's products from A to Z. So when there's a big deal cooking, it's only natural that they should want to be the very first to let you in on all the details."

PHARMACY INTERNS VISIT LENOIR COUNTY HEALTH FACILITIES

Seven students from the UNC School of Pharmacy are doing intern work this Summer in area pharmacies and their work is being enhanced through the efforts of the Lenoir County Pharmaceutical Society.

John C. Hood, Jr. of Hood Drug Stores said the purpose of the program being conducted for the students is "to expose the pharmacy students to various health facilities and agencies in this area." A visit to a nursing home has been planned.

The group recently visited Lenoir Memorial Hospital, Mental Health Clinic, Lenoir County Health Department, Caswell School and Caswell Rehabilitation Center.

Hood said this program is unique in the state and "the success of this endeavor will probably spread to other areas."

He said the Pharmaceutical Society tries to give the students something different.

"A lot of times they get in drug stores and are just buried," Hood explained. "We try to make them feel a part of the community."

KENDALL DRUG ENTERTAINS AT CEDAR PARK

The July 9 party in Shelby (Cedar Park) sponsored by Kendall Drug Company was attended by several hundred customers and friends of the drug firm.

The dinner, preceded by golf and a horseshoe contest, and followed by a dance, was an all-day affair. Gordon and Rush Hamrick with the support of enthusiastic and competent personnel, are to be commended for their sponsorship of this mid-summer party.

Prize winners in the golf tournament, with 25 entries, were Gary Allman (Geigy Labs) with a high gross score of 113, and Bill Waldrop (Forest City Pharmacy) with a low gross of 76. A prize was given to Marshall Dutton for making a birdie on hole 11.

Forty entries in the men's horseshoe pitching contest. The finalists were Charlie Blanton of Kings Mountain vs. Hugh Lee Irvin of Shelby Drug, with Blanton being the winner.

Finalists in the ladies horseshoe pitching contest (20 entries) were Naney Edwards vs. Mary Whitener. Naney took top honors.

We did from 1913 into the mid-Twenties. They were rolled on this gold leaf to pick up a fine golden luster.

Final Report on 1968-1969 Fund Drive

The 1968-1969 Fund Drive was most successful by a large margin in comparison with the last five years, 1963-1968:

- Number of contributions from individuals—440 (Up 58%)
- Amount of contributions from individuals—$8,372 (Up 63%)
- Amount of contributions from companies—$14,624 (Up 113%)
- TOTAL CONTRIBUTIONS . . . . . $22,996 (Up 92%)

A more detailed analysis of the above summary follows:

Contributions by Counties—Contributions were received from 67 counties including 11 counties from which no contributions were received in 1967-'68.

On the other hand, no contributions were received from 28 counties (in which there is at least 1 pharmacy) including 13 counties from which contributions were received in 1967-'68.

No contributions were received in either year from 15 counties (in which are located 80 of the pharmacies of North Carolina).

Forty-six (almost half of the 95 counties) contributed as much or more in 1968-'69 than in 1967-'68. These counties are indicated by an asterisk (*) in the following table. Twenty-two counties reached or exceeded the goal of $10.00 average contribution per pharmacy.

Contributions by Pharmacies. The average contribution of the 1,143 pharmacies in North Carolina was $7.32 (compared to $6.23 last year). The goal of $10.00 average contribution per pharmacy was attained or exceeded by 22 counties.

In ten of the counties, the average contribution per pharmacy was more than double the $10.00 goal.

The largest total contribution was received from Guilford County—a large county with 77 pharmacies and an average contribution per pharmacy of $14.43.

Contributions by Pharmacists. The average contribution per pharmacist on the basis of the 1,873 pharmacists in active practice in North Carolina was $4.47. This is considerably above the 1967-'68 ($3.74).

The average contribution—$19.03—was slightly less than the average contribution in 1967-'68 ($19.97) but substantially above the five-year average ($18.86).

As last year, 119 contributions of $25.00 or more were received, corresponding to 27% of all individual contributions.

The great increase in the number of pharmacists who contribute in this very substantial way to the Foundation in the interest of the School of Pharmacy is the most gratifying aspect of the fund drives of the last two years. It clearly indicates a sense of partnership among the pharmacists of the State, the faculty and the students of the School—with excellence in pharmaceutical education in North Carolina as their common goal. It also indicates clearly one of the most important elements of the strength of pharmaceutical education in North Carolina—the realization by the pharmacists of the State that pharmaceutical education is very important for our profession and their willingness to give the School of Pharmacy outstanding support.

PHARM. RESEARCH FOUNDATION

Contributions by Companies and Organizations. The large increase (+ 113% over the 5-year average) in the support given to the Foundation in 1968-1969 by companies can be attributed in part to the fact that a number of companies have responded very generously to an appeal for contributions for equipment for a new program in Drug Product Development, Production, Control, and Evaluation. Twenty-one contributions totalling $14,624 were received.

The pharmacists of North Carolina and a number of companies have this year—as in past years—generously supported the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation. The Directors of the Foundation, the faculty of the School of Pharmacy and the students of the School are most grateful for each contribution that has been made to the Foundation.

In this year, 1968-'69, when the School of Pharmacy had its largest enrollment (undergraduate and graduate) in 73 years—when it graduated by far the largest number of students in its history (B.S. in Pharmacy—90; M.S.—4; Ph.D.—2)—the Foundation provided the following much-needed funds: $3,982 for faculty members' professional expenses

$1,478 for student and faculty research activities

$4,192 for the library

$9,318 for teaching and research equipment

$811 for student activities

$976 for brochures, etc. for recruitment and instruction

$653 for analytical services

$1,289 for administrative expenses

$788 for National Board Examination in pharmacology

$459 for miscellaneous items

TOTAL = $23,947

The success of this year's fund drive is attributable to the unselfish and diligent efforts of the county solicitation chairmen, the indispensable counsel and support of the Directors, and the excellent cooperation of Mr. W. J. Smith and the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association . . . To all of them, the Secretary of the Foundation is most sincerely grateful.

for the betterment of pharmacy

What is a fair return on my investment? What about inventory control? How can I promote the Rx department? How can I compete effectively with the high volume, low margin store?

These and other related subjects are discussed by the Pharmacy Management Panels sponsored by Lederle Laboratories. These panels have been held 33 times in 29 different states since 1962 usually in conjunction with a major pharmaceutical association meeting.

Among those who have served on the Lederle panels are H. W. Adkins, Vice-President, Yahr-Lange, Inc., Milwaukee, Wisconsin; George L. Scharringhausen, Jr., Scharringhausen Pharmacy, Park Ridge, Illinois; Dr. Paul C. Olsen, Professor of Pharmacy Administration at Brooklyn College of Pharmacy; Dr. Jean K. Weston, Vice-President Medical Relations, National Pharmaceutical Council, Washington, D.C.; Drew E. Haskins, Jr., Drew's Drugs, Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia; Robert J. Gillespie, Gillespie's Drugstore, St. Joseph, Michigan and Mike Harris, Executive Secretary, The Pharmaceutical Institute, Sacramento, California.

We at Lederle realize that the pharmacist is a vital factor in the success of the pharmaceutical industry. That is why we provide expert management counsel to pharmacy owners through Pharmacy Management Panels. By this means we hope to strengthen an essential link between the manufacturer and the ultimate consumer.

If you would like to have a transcript of one of the seminars, address your request to Maxwell James, Lederle Laboratories, A Division of American Cyanamid Company, Pearl River, New York 10965.

Survival Program for an Independent Pharmacy

GEORGE M. SCATTERGOOD, Amicus Medicamentaria
Packaging Products Division
Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., Lancaster, Pa.

In the book "Drug Store Operating Costs and Profits" by Burley, Fisher, and Cox, it is emphasized that unoccupied time is a significant cost in the retail drug store. "Wages for idle time represented from 8.5 to 39.1 percent of total operating expenses, an average of 21 percent of sales." They further explain "While much of the unoccupied time in the retail drug store is in the nature of 'stand-by capacity' the cost of this time is often the difference between profit and loss."

The very word average may mean no more than the best of the poorest and the poorest of the best. This 21% figure may not be applicable to your pharmacy but idle time does warrant inspection, study and concern.

"Stand-by" time may be a characteristic of this kind of business, a form of in-store public relations perhaps, but 21% of sales is a mighty high figure. Let's utilize that portion which is truly wasted! Here are a few ideas to help make idle time pay dividends by investing in behalf of the business:

1. Install an inventory control program. I particularly like George Scharinghausen's plan. His employees mark-in every package with a date sticker bearing cost code and selling price. Items are classified as "service" or "volume" by the color of the sticker. This plan provides signals for inventory and movement surveillance and guards against shorts but helps avoid excesses.

2. Program systematic interprofessional contacts. With the investment of two days time within two weeks one young pharmacist increased his owner's prescription volume by 25%. He simply visited neighborhood Dentists and exchanged information about dental prescriptions, and planted some good professional ideas. He reported that most professional men were almost lonely for communications with other professional people and hungry for information.

3. Take over the pharmacy services required by a nursing or convalescent home. Once the system of supplying maintenance prescriptions is developed minimal time is required. One young pharmacist of my acquaintance does this prior to his store opening and after closing time. It could not accurately be stated that this man had idle time, but he did stretch what time he had.

4. Use all levels of employees to program the packaging of household remedies. In some locations these sell at a faster rate than prescriptions per se. If you buy gallons of common products from your wholesaler you can increase your gross margin by from 17 to 70% over the margin you realize when

McKESSEON LABORATORIES INTRODUCES SURPRISE SAVER PROMOTIONAL MAGAZINE

For the first time in drug retailing history, McKesson Laboratories is issuing an illustrated 24 page, full-color, family-type magazine designed especially for drug store promotional selling.

Based on similar, highly successful publications employed by chain stores in the food field, it is entitled Surprise Saver. Surprise Saver contains reduced price "Coupon Specials" for 50 McKesson fast moving proprietaries, a number of coupons for non-competitive OTC products from other leading manufacturers, and 16 editorial features of general interest. The articles discuss such subjects as gardening tips and how to organize your medicine cabinet for greater family protection. Total value of the coupons amounts to $32.18.

The value of Surprise Saver to the retail pharmacist is that it will be retained in the homes of his customers for sometime due to the money saving coupons and the editorial content. For this reason it should prove to be a valuable tool for building repeat business.

Initially, Surprise Saver will be used by McKesson in connection with its semi-annual promotions. The magazine will first appear as part of McKesson's "All Treat—No Tricks" Halloween promotion, scheduled from October 10 through October 31. Each pharmacy participating in the "All Treat—

COMMENTS BY AN ADDICT

Bill uses a variety of methods for getting narcotics on the outside.

"You can 'make' some doctors for a prescription for morphine or dilaudid if you tell them you've got a slipped disc or something and you need something for the pain.

"Tell him you haven't got a reservation at the hospital yet, but you're planning to go in.

"And if you're like I am, you watch to see if he writes morphine, and if he does, ask for dilaudid because morphine makes you sick. Dilaudid's about 10 times as strong."

"But I'll take morphine when it's the only thing I can get."

"Some drugstores will sell it, knowing why you want it. There's a drugstore in XXX where I can buy six ounces of paregoric at a time. But they know. They cut it with alcohol and make you buy something else at a high price.

If he can't get it by prescription, he has to steal.

"You steal what you can. It's better for me during cool weather. I wear a wind-breaker into a store and take three cartons of cigarets and you'll never even see them.

"I can even open the front of my jacket and you won't know they're there.

"I can get six cartons from one store in two trips. It only takes five minutes and I can get $2 a carton for them in South Carolina.

"That's four dilaudids."

you buy such products in labeled consumer size packages from some manufacturer. A big bonus with this idea is you use your own label and gain advertising value for your pharmacy not some name which you find in a supermarket.

Now if your idle time and that of your employees is for you a habit born luxury it may be advisable to motivate your people with special incentives. Right or wrong, a way of life is not easily changed. A modest salary lift would do the job for the nursing home pharmacist and the interprofessional relations job. A title would help for either. A store-wide employee PM would quickly sell the private packaging chore to your people. The inventory control tasks require your personal direction but no extra clerical reward. After all, inventory control is indispensable to your survival.

PHARMACY WEEK WILL HIGHLIGHT DRUG ABUSE

National Pharmacy Week 1969 will be devoted entirely to drug abuse education and information.

Following the suggestion of the American Pharmaceutical Association Committee on Public Relations in its report to the House of Delegates meeting in Montreal, the theme and supporting materials for NPW, October 5-11, will deal with drug abuse. This is a break with the past 44 annual NPW observances in which the services of the profession and its practitioners were highlighted.

The theme selected for NPW 1969 is "Drug abuse . . . escape to nowhere." It will be carried throughout all NPW materials, which are printed in red, white and black and show the artist's interpretation of a drug abuser.

To help pharmacists participate in NPW and carry out drug abuse education and information activities, APhA has available an NPW kit at $3.00 each from the Order Desk, American Pharmaceutical Association, 2215 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037. ## GOOFER BIRD

"Are you a goofer bird?"

by R. C. (Bob) Sisk, Asheville

This bird is not listed in Webster's Dictionary but a word coined in history depicting a bird that flies backward (not forward) for he is not interested in where he is going; only where he has been.

A Goofer bird will remember a few old remedies sold in drug stores such as; Groves Chill Tonic, Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, Worm Wafers, Nyal remedies, and Tanlac.

A few months ago, I met a friend who was literally crying in his beer, I asked him about his troubles and he informed me, "Just think, my sou will never see a steam locomotive." To those who remember the days of long stockings, knee breeches and Buster Brown shirts, a dollar watch (Ingersoll) joined to a fob tueded safely in your watch pocket, who ambled to the station, checked the time and watched the "iron horse" rumble to a squeaking stop, and watch the passengers get on and off, if you are one of those who remember, I think you will agree it was much more exciting than to visit an airport today.

The Goofer bird might ask, what became of the ancient art of whistling? Excluding the "wolf" kind, when is the last time you whistled? Years ago, men whistled for two reasons; first, it was to express his happiness and love for music and second, as a warning. Picture a home without a radio or television and in a very few you would find a vietrola and unless a person was musically inclined and able to "pick" a banjo or guitar, his only musical out-let was whistling. Some improved to a low throaty warble that was very pleasing to the ear. In early years, a man wandering in the neighborhood with only a flashlight or lantern would whistle to warn the populace that he was a friend, not a foe. As incredulous as it may seem, after dark it was easy to identify any man in town by his style: the young at heart shrilled jazz tunes and the religious resorted to hymns. So, for old times sake, let's see you pucker up your lips and whistle "It ain't gonna rain no mo."

What happened to Cascarrettes (the one's Lillian Russell wrestled with all night long), yellow root for sore mouth (hydrastis canadensis), heart drops (digitalis) Simmon's Liver Regulator, powdered calomel and quinine or the migrant Medicine Man, who would, after his black faced comedian entertained the crowd, would step forward and say, "Ladies and gentlemen, I hold in my hand a preparation that is guaranteed to make the blind see, the lame walk, good for flat feet, fallen arches, acute arthritis and makes child birth a pleasure."

Answer to last month's Malapropism "How much carbolie savage, ann oil and fetida do you add to eopeeva to make a mixture for liee?"—the answer is—"How much carbolie acid, anise oil, and asafetida do you add to balsam of copaiba to make a mixture for liee."

Construction of Burroughs Wellcome's Triangle Building Underway

Plans for a corporate headquarters and for laboratories of Burroughs Wellcome & Co. (U.S.A.) Inc. were revealed at groundbreaking ceremonies Aug. 21 on the company's 66-acre site in the Research Triangle Park.

Designed by architect Paul Rudolph, whose work has received international acclaim, the 5-story, S-shaped building will contain 300,000 square feet of floor space. When completed, it will provide working space for more than 450 people, 300 of whom will be engaged in more than a dozen scientific disciplines related to pharmaceutical research. The building will be ready for occupancy in September, 1970.

The $10-million building will not follow standard or traditional lines. The front and back walls slope inward toward the roof, following a 22.5-degree angle of the building's modified A-frame support members. The walls will be terraced and coated with beige-colored limestone chips. Natural lighting for each floor will come through a series of sky lights and solar glass windows which will draw light deep into the interior of the building. Overall, the building will project a light, floating appearance, rising from its site upon a ridge.

At the groundbreaking, Fred A. Coe, Jr., president of B W & Co., said: "To me, Mr. Rudolph has achieved in this building an ingenious combination of striking aesthetics and functional efficiency. He has designed an exciting building. It will contain the most modern laboratory facilities and its design will provide a splendid climate for scientific scholarship and for the exchange of ideas among scientists and administrators, not only among our own employees, but within the area's medical community. Furthermore, I believe the building will be judged as an excellent expression of Governor Hodges' goals of the Research Triangle—as a fine environment for the scientific professions, and a notable addition to North Carolina's growing industrial community. And I also believe that the building will be a milestone in the country's business architecture."

ceremonies were Mr. Rudolph; Dr. George Hitehings, vice-president in charge of research; Dr. Charles Nichol, director of The Wellcome Research Laboratories; William Dowling, vice president and general counsel of Burroughs Wellcome & Co.; Charles Pressel, vice president in charge of production; and Ned Huffman, vice president of the Research Triangle Foundation.

Luther Hodges, former Secretary of Commerce and Governor of North Carolina, and the prime mover for the development of the Research Triangle Park, appeared on closed circuit television. Speaking from his office as chairman of the Research Triangle Foundation, Governor Hodges said: "This is a great day for the people of North Carolina and the Research Triangle area. Today is the first time in the history of this state when an international organization breaks ground to establish their USA headquarters and research facility here, in addition to locating their manufacturing plant in North Carolina. If we had attempted to make a selection, we could not have found a more outstanding firm than Burroughs Wellcome and Company."

The Company's property is located at the approximate center of the 5,000-acre Research Triangle Park. The building will occupy approximately three acres. Under the Park's zoning restrictions, only 15 per cent of a site can be built upon, which, in the case of Burroughs Wellcome & Co., would mean nine acres. This will provide ample room for expansion.

Mr. Rudolph explained that the building will be situated at the apex of a ridge 350 feet above sea level. "The structure is conceived as a manmade extension of the hill itself," Mr. Rudolph said. "Its base will follow the contours of the land, and the main entrance will be approached by walking up a gently ascending flight of stairs, leading onto a spacious terrace. The lobby will be multi-level (three stories) in keeping with the natural contour of the ridge. At various levels there will extend corridors providing communications between the research and administration ends of the building." About three-fourths of all the offices in the building will be either immediately adjacent to the lobby or only a few steps away.

Administrative offices will be located in the northeastern extension of the building. Research, occupying some two-thirds of the building, will be housed in the southwestern extension. Connecting the two will be the building's services, which will include a library information center, and a 208-seat auditorium with a projection booth at each end. The auditorium can subdivide into two smaller areas for simultaneous meetings. It will be used for scientific seminars, company meetings, and for appropriate community events. A 288-seat cafeteria will be located on the fourth floor of the administration wing.

All of the company's research, manufacturing, and administrative facilities are now located in Tuckahoe, N.Y., a suburb of New York City. Lack of space for expansion in the face of rapidly increasing demand for products prompted the company's projected move. Its sales have more than doubled within the past five years. Already under construction in Greenville, N.C., is the manufacturing plant, a 600,000-square foot facility which is scheduled to begin production next summer. It will employ approximately 600 people and will produce all of the company's products, which now exceed 90.

Daniel Construction Co. of Greenville, N.C., is building both the Greenville and Research Triangle facilities. Lockwood Greene Engineers, Inc., New York City, is providing engineering services for both projects.

Albers Launches Drugcenter Retailer Group

Albers Drug Company, complete service wholesalers with two divisions serving the Knoxville and Tri-Cities area of Tennessee, announces the formation of a voluntary group of independent retail druggists. Operating under the name "Drugcenter" with distinctive logotype, unique mortar and pestle, and Rx symbols, all on which national service mark rights are pending, the program is an effort to help the independent pharmacist better face the inroads of chain and discount competition.

The Point-Of-Purchase ADValue promotion events and the cooperative advertising utilizing a variety of media, is coordinated by a new division of Albers Drug Company, Drugcenter Services. This division is managed by W. W. Albright, a veteran of 13 years experience as a sales representative with the company, plus five years previously in sales promotion for The Gillette Safety Razor Company. A graduate in marketing from The University of Tennessee, "Bill brings a fortunate combination of talent, training, and personal belief to this program" according to Edward S. Albers, Jr., president.

The program has been in development and tests since November. Three ADValue promotion events have featured eight items each. In these, manufacturers' display allowances on larger quantity purchases have been coupled with Alders taking a lesser margin to help the independent create a favorable price in comparison to chain and even discounters.

Bill Albright explained it this way: "The idea is not to create a discount image, but rather an impression of fair prices backed up with the added value of professional service, complete stocks, and in a clean, modern pharmacy atmosphere. To get this idea across, the pharmacist participates in the ADValue promotion by putting up window posters, in-store show cards, and Dayglo price tags on the mass displays of special items, plus any other merchandise he wants to move as a tie-in to the event."

More than 140 participants were listed in the first ad of 1 1/3 pages in the Knoxville Journal and the Knoxville News-Sentinel on August 6th and 7th. The two-color ad featured the green and white colors of a Drugcenter mortar and pestle logotype through which the group hopes to capitalize on the already established association of these colors with health and safety, and thus further the overall impression of professionalism. Albright added, "We intend to pound away on the theme of plus service with added value to which we will give continuous emphasis through our coined word 'ADValue'."

The ad, utilizing manufacturer advertising allowances on the featured items, has evoked much favorable response. Participants report good results from the ad in sales from their tie-in with Point-Of-Purchase displays.

In summing up the program, Bud Albers explained, "Through group advertising and promoting under the name Drugcenter, we hope to help the independent prove that

TOM'S DRUG NEWSLETTER

My family and I are most happy to be back in Alleghany County. As many of you know, we will be living in the Laurel Springs Community at my grandfather's old home place. We invite all to come and see us.

A newsletter will come out monthly with your bills. Please read it carefully because it will contain informative items of interest to all. You will notice at the top of your statement the phrase "Drug Care of Alleghany, Incorporated." This does not mean that the pharmacy's name has changed—we will still do business as B & T Drug. Drug care will be our motto as we fully intend to give our best drug service to area residents. You, the customer, can benefit from such services as:

1. Family Medical Records. This is to your advantage because if you lose your bottle, we will have the necessary information on our record; if you should come to town and forget your Rx bottle then we can save a futile trip to town. Other advantages in this record system are accurate records for insurance, income tax, and, at a later date, for Medicare. Each family will be assigned a number; by your calling out this number as you hand your bottle or prescription to the sales clerk, we can give you faster service.

2. Routed Delivery Service is on its way. This means each week a yellow panel truck laden with everyday necessities, will pass by your home. You can order, by phone, your Rx number or prescription refills or other store merchandise; we can send it out the next day's delivery. The truck will be equipped with a two-way radio to be in contact at all times with the pharmacist to answer any question you may have. We ask only your patience with us as we attempt to set up a reasonable time-route service.

3. We give 24-hour emergency service. You can reach me after 7:00 p.m. on Monday through Saturday and on Sunday after 3:00 p.m. by calling 359-2995.

4. We provide for the area medical staff a Poison Information Center. Should your child or anyone come in contact with a poison, or a product whose properties are unknown, please rest assured that we stand here ready to back up your doctor.

Tom Burgiss announces his return to Sparta with this interesting newsletter mailed to present and potential customers. Note the 10% discount and 18% service charge.

---

5. We offer charge accounts and master charge plans for all medical bills. (This does not include magazines, candy, 1¢ sale items, etc.) If your bill is $10 or more in drugs, please deduct 10% if paid by the 10th of the month. For payment from the 10th to the 30th, please pay the amount as listed. Any delinquent bill will have an 18% service charge. This 18% service charge is no different than that which is charged by any companies which provides customer charge payments.

6. The pharmacy will, on a rental basis, provide surgical appliances and an assortment of medical and health equipment such as beds, wheel chairs, crutches, walkers, sun lamps, and health traction units. A letter from your doctor is necessary for Medicare payment of this service.

There Were No Clock Watchers

Two Hundred and forty-two pharmacists, family, business and professional friends from all sections of the State were in Mount Pleasant on August 6 to do honor to North Carolina's 1969 Pharmacist of the Year—Hoy A. Moose. There were many interesting sidelights to the 3-hour dinner program. Here is one newspaper account of the event.

By MARVIN EURY

Kannapolis Daily Independent

It took nearly three hours for the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association to bestow on Hoy A. Moose of Mt. Pleasant its coveted Mortar and Pestle Award but no one seemed to be looking at their watch.

The long program prompted W. J. Smith, executive secretary of the association, to note that the N. C. group's special awards banquet is unique among the 50 state associations.

Other states give the award, naming a Pharmacist of the Year, in short three or four minute presentations at annual conventions, Smith said, reminiscent of the old Kay Kyser ditty:

"In she came,
"Down she sot,
"Layed her egg
"And up she got."

Smith told the story about a time Moose and his wife, Polly, were visiting in France during a pharmaceutical meeting. While Mrs. Moose was out of the room Moose pulled a string he mistook for a light switch but which was a signal for a woman to come to the room to give the traveler a bath.

Mrs. Moose arrived about the time her embarrassed husband was trying to explain he did not want the eight-franc bath and she saved the situation with mention that she'd give her husband his bath and wouldn't charge eight francs either.

Speakers told of Moose's service to his community, the pharmaceutical association and church but his closeness to his family was best pointed out when his son Whitaker took a microphone and began introducing members of the clan, at least 25 of them.

Dr. Archie Barringer, a lifelong friend and also a member of the Moose family, told how Hoy Moose founded the "Moose Shindig," an annual family get-together held in December at the Moose cabin one mile south of Mt. Pleasant.

"He loves a big open fire and he has plenty of wood; therefore he makes a fire so big that everyone almost has to stand out in the yard," Dr. Barringer said.

The doctor said that a picture of the turkey was made at the first "shindig" and now every year the family sees "that same old turkey."

Dr. Barringer said Hoy Moose never gossips and never repeats stories he hears at the barber shop.

"People also like to gossip while in Moose Drug Co. but Hoy never repeats the stories. Usually he's busy and doesn't get them straight, any way," Dr. Barringer laughed.

Jackson, Lumberton (1961) and W. Latham West, Roseboro (1959).

The four major speakers appearing on the program lauded Mr. Moose's business and professional career which was highlighted in the July issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

Whoever heard of a patent on good taste?

Years ago, Abbott knew it had something when it introduced Sucaryl®. You know the rest. The product revolutionized the no-calorie sweetening business.

What some people don't know is the formula is actually patented. The key is in the ratio of sweetening ingredients used. It's what gives Sucaryl that full, natural-tasting sweetness—without the persistent aftertaste you may have seen with other sweeteners.

So the fact that Sucaryl has held on to the Number 1 position over the years shouldn't surprise anyone. It's a matter of good taste. 907152

Report: School of Pharmacy, UNC

By GEORGE P. HAGER, Dean

It is a real pleasure to present to the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association on behalf of the faculty a report on the School of Pharmacy this year. I hope that you will find complete satisfaction with the statistics concerning the School's operations. Certainly I hesitate to bore you with all of them. The School this year is in its 73rd year of existence. This makes it a rather old school among the 73 accredited schools of pharmacy in this country. The School offered the two year program for a Ph.G. degree for a period of 30 years up through 1936. For a 31 year period the School offered a four year Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy degree program up through 1964. The five year curriculum for the B.S. in Pharmacy degree was initiated in 1960 and the class of 1969 represents the ninth class to graduate under the five year program.

The graduate program at the School started in 1938 and in the interim 31 Master of Science degrees have been given and 31 Doctor of Philosophy degrees have been presented.

The number of students enrolled in the School decade-by-decade starting in 1897 are shown in Table I. It is clear that the enrollment in the School of Pharmacy has increased at a regular rate. In the latest complete decade 1957-1967, the average number of undergraduate students per year was 276 to 277. During that same period there was an average of 12 to 13 graduate students enrolled in the School of Pharmacy each year. During the year 1967-1968 there were 435 undergraduates—a 57% increase over the average of the preceding decade. During that same year there were 23 graduate students enrolled in the School corresponding to an 84% increase over the average of the preceding decade. In 1968-1969 there were 487 undergraduate students enrolled in the fall semester corresponding to a 76% increase over the preceding decade and 31 graduate students, or a 148% increase. The 1968-1969 undergraduate enrollment in the School of Pharmacy is the largest in the School's history. On the basis of the number of undergraduates in the last three years of the curriculum, the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy is the sixth largest among the schools of pharmacy in the United States.

The School was budgeted during the 1968-1969 academic year for 401 students (undergraduate and graduate). The total enrollment, however, was 518 students. In 1969-1970 the enrollments of the School are projected as 516 undergraduate and 30 graduate students, or a total of 546 students. In the following year, 1970-1971, 526 undergraduates and 35 graduate students are projected. How close the School will come to achieving these projections in the coming year, 1969-1970, is still undecided. There are limitations placed on the admission of students to the School of Pharmacy because of the crowded conditions at the University. There are quite a few applicants for the upcoming first year class both in the General College of the University and in other institutions throughout the state. Hopefully most of these students who are qualified will be admitted to the School of Pharmacy. There is no question that the School of Pharmacy can accommodate these students and no question that the State of North Carolina has need for graduates of the School.

A precise breakdown of the 1968-69 enrollment is given in Table II. There are 98 students in the senior class. The largest number of graduates previously was the Class of 1926 (69 Ph.G.) and the Class of 1962 (69 graduates of the four year B.S. in Pharmacy degree program). During 1968-69 the number of graduates should be in the neighborhood of 90-95. The number of graduates will this year exceed by far any previous year. The increase will correspond to the output of some of the schools of pharmacy among the 73 schools in this country.

It is obvious that the number of graduates has been increased in the amount that might have been expected from a second school of pharmacy that could have been established only at great cost to the State of North Carolina. Accordingly, the increase in the number of graduates represents a considerable saving to the people of North Carolina.

The School's present enrollment includes 125 juniors, 135 sophomores and 117 freshmen. In the spring semester there are 476 undergraduate students enrolled and exactly 25% (119) are women students. The net change in enrollment between the fall semester and the spring semester corresponds to 10 students. This result from the withdrawal or transfer of some students, the admission of some new students and the readmission of other students. In the spring semester there are also 14 graduate students majoring in medicinal chemistry, 4 in pharmaceutics, 9 in hospital pharmacy for a total of 27 graduate students compared to 20 last year at this time. The total enrollment of 476 undergraduate students this year compared to 435 undergraduate students last year corresponds to a 9.2% increase. The graduate student enrollment increased from 20 to 27 or an increase of 35%. The total enrollment is 503 students compared to 455 last year at this time, an increase of 10.5%. There is no question about North Carolina's need for the increased number of graduates.

The projection of North Carolina's needs over a ten year period 1967-76 is shown in Table III. An increase in North Carolina's population from 5 million to 5½ million is projected. The ratio of 37.7 pharmacists per 100,000 certainly must be maintained. This is a rather low ratio compared to the national average (61.6) yet there are a number of local circumstances that bring about the ratio in North Carolina. The low ratio in North Carolina relates primarily to the fact that there is an unusual distribution of the population. Although the total population is 5 million, the largest community is approximately one quarter million. North Carolina does not have the large metropolitan areas which are characteristic of most states; and pharmacists located in the smaller towns which are prevalent in North Carolina are better utilized than pharmacists in large metropolitan cities. The utilization of pharmacists in the small communities tends to be much higher than that of pharmacists operating in large metropolitan areas and in all likelihood the quality of their services is also better because of the greater utilization. The number of pharmacists required to maintain the 37.7 per 100,000 ratio (Col. B) plus the additional number due to the increase in population (Col. D) are given in Table III. The annual attrition is calculated as 3.5% a year (Col. C). This proportion can be expected to die or retire in any twelve-month period. On these bases, the number of graduates required can be estimated (Col. E). For example, in 1967 the need was calculated as 88 and the School actually produced 56 graduates. The 1968 need was calculated as 84 and the School graduated 67 students. The 1969 need is calculated as 86 and at least 90 to 95 graduates will be produced this year. The School has now caught up on the basis of these projections of needs and over the ten-year period will produce 1,184 graduates as compared to a need estimated as 925. The 259 surplus certainly is needed to escalate the ratio beyond 37.7 per 100,000 although the ideal ratio in North Carolina may be closer to 37.7 than to the national average of 61.6.

I would like to dwell at great length upon the quality of students as well as upon the previous comments with regard to quantity. I feel that the statistics would be most gratifying to you. Their quality can of course be objectively shown by the statistics on their scholastic attainment and also by the subjective impressions of the members of the faculty and the dean. There is no question that the students in the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina compare very favorably with students any place in the United States.

The growth in faculty has not kept pace with the increases in enrollments. It is anticipated that in the 1969-70 academic year there will be a considerable increase in the number of faculty members. Dr. James L. Olsen has recently joined the faculty as Assistant Professor of Pharmacy and as Director of the Drug Product Development, Production, Control and Evaluation Program. Even with the substantial increase in the budget for faculty positions enjoyed this year, the School will not be able to obtain all of the faculty manpower that it really needs to handle the teaching, research, and service activities and the large student enrollment. The ratio of students to faculty has deteriorated from 13.8:1 (1965-66) to 18.1:1 (1966-67) to 27.3:1 (1968-69) because of the large increases in enrollments. The national average during this period has remained rather constant at approximately 15:1. The favorable ratio which existed in 1965-66 has deteriorated seriously because of great increase in student enrollment without a concomitant increase in the number of faculty. During the last two years 1967-68 and 1968-69 the School was underbudgeted with respect to faculty positions, and it was not possible for the faculty to grow. During the coming decade, however, new members will be appointed to the faculty and the ratio will be improved. The very high student-faculty ratios, however, have put a considerable burden upon the members of the faculty during the past two year period.

There are many programs at the School that should be included in this report and can be touched only briefly at this time. Clinical Pharmacy has become an important program in the School and represents a complete change in the philosophy of pharmaceutical education. In the past pharmaceutical education has been preoccupied primarily with drugs as physical entities. Now emphasis must be given to the prescribers who use drugs with purposes and to patients who take drugs to satisfy their needs. Though Clinical Pharmacy students are made aware of the personalities involved in the use of drugs. It is important that our students come to a full realization that when they are dealing with drugs they must have a keen awareness of prescribers who are using those drugs with a purpose and of the patients who are taking those drugs to satisfy a need. The professional practice of pharmacy is a highly personal thing and involves the relationships of pharmacists with other members of the health team and with patients and patrons. This awareness of people is the objective of Clinical Pharmacy, and Clinical Pharmacy will have an important impact not only upon the practice of pharmacy in the institutional setting but especially upon the practice of pharmacy in communities. It is very important that Clinical Pharmacy is not confused with Hospital Pharmacy. It is true that the teaching hospital will become the laboratory for the instruction of students in Clinical Pharmacy. Here they are able to observe the responses of patients to drugs and also the side effects which drugs can produce. A student who has witnessed the problems involved in administering drugs, for example, in the pediatric service will not be casual in his attitude toward the parents of young children with regard to their administering drugs under similar difficult situations. In the Clinical Pharmacy instruction of the students the faculty is particularly responsive to the needs of community pharmacy in the training of pharmacists.

The Medication Assistants Program operating at the University of North Carolina is a program for clinical pharmacy instruction in depth. In summer of 1968, 35 students in the School of Pharmacy worked 40 hours a week in the hospital in the medical services. In the summer of 1969 it is expected that this number will increase to 60 or more. The effect of this kind of training on the motivation and the attitudes of the students is remarkable.

A number of curricular developments could also be discussed at this time. For example, a full year of pharmacology preceded by a full year of medicinal chemistry have been introduced. The sequence of pharmacy courses is being streamlined. Redundant material is being removed and greater emphasis is being given to topics in the syllabi of courses at an appropriate state of the students' training so that they will not be repeated later but rather applied. The knowledge required by the pharmacist has increased so greatly that it is necessary to use the time in the curriculum most efficiently and this certainly involves the elimination of obsolete material from the curriculum and the avoidance of redundancy. An effort is also being made to introduce flexibility into the final year so that the student may take course work that more closely relates to his career opportunities after graduation (community pharmacy, hospital pharmacy, the pharmaceutical industry, teaching and research). Various optional courses are being introduced, for example medicinal chemistry, drug product development, toxicology, public health courses, business administration courses, etc.

The Plan of Pharmacy Assistance is a very important project under the direction of Mr. Fred Eckel designed to improve the delivery of pharmaceutical services in the hospitals and the extended care facilities throughout the State. The program has had an excellent record of accomplishment and far more hospitals have services than was true when the program started.

A great deal should be said about continuing education. In 1968-69 approximately 900 pharmacists were reached through some 22 programs. This corresponds to a substantial proportion of the pharmacists of the State. It is necessary however to increase this proportion. It is necessary to make the continuing education programs not only attractive but also convenient. This becomes even more important when and if continuing education will become a prerequisite for relicensure. The Drug Product Development, Production, Control and Evaluation Program under the direction of Dr. Olsen is the most recent innovation among the projects of the School of Pharmacy.

The program for the training of hospital pharmacists has become well established under the direction of Mr. Fred M. Eckel. The medicinal chemistry graduate program is expanding considerably and will now further expand as a result of a substantial medicinal chemistry training grant for which Dr. C. J. Cavallito is principal investigator. A very productive program in biopharmaceutics has enjoyed outstanding progress under the direction of Dr. Albert M. Mattocks.

The N. C. Pharmaceutical Research Foundation, a very important asset to the School of Pharmacy, has had great success as reported to the Convention by Mr. Charles D. Blanton, Jr., President. The generous support of the Foundation by the pharmacists of North Carolina is a clear demonstration of one of the most important factors in the School's progress—the interest of the pharmacists in the School and its programs and their determination to help the School in every way possible.

Burgiss to visit Robins' Headquarters

Sparta pharmacist Thomas R. Burgiss, the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association's 1969 recipient of the A. H. Robins "Bowl of Hygeia" Award for outstanding community service, is among this year's award winners who have accepted an invitation to visit A. H. Robins' Richmond headquarters in October.

Award-winning pharmacists from the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the provinces of Canada have been invited to visit Richmond for three days beginning October 2. They will be guests of the pharmaceutical firm and its president, E. Claiborne Robins.

While in Virginia, the pharmacists will tour A. H. Robins' manufacturing plant and research center, and be honored at a reception and dinner. They also will spend a day touring Williamsburg, the restored colonial capital of Virginia, and will visit Richmond's well-known Valentine Museum.

In addition to visiting Richmond, the award winners will be featured in a special full-page advertisement which A. H. Robins will sponsor in the October 11 issue of TIME Magazine. The ad will include individual photographs of all the recipients and indicate that they have been cited for outstanding service to their respective communities.

The "Bowl of Hygeia" Award is presented annually by the participating state pharmaceutical associations, which select their respective recipients. This is the 12th year that A. H. Robins has sponsored the "Bowl of Hygeia" program, and the award now is one of the most coveted in the pharmacy profession.

Burgiss is the 11th North Carolina pharmacist to receive the award. Previous recipients were Harold Vann Day of Spruce Pine, in 1959; Ralph R. Rogers, Jr. of Durham, in 1960; William H. Randall of Lillington, in 1961; Charles D. Blanton, Jr. of Kings Mountain, in 1962; David R. Davis of Williamston, in 1963; John T. Henley of Hope Mills, in 1964; Jesse Miller Pike of Conecord, in 1965; John E. Mills of Mount Airy, in 1966; William Whitaker Moose of Mt. Pleasant, in 1967; and Roger H. Sloop of Rural Hall, in 1968.

COMMISSIONERS DEFER ACTION ON CONTINUATION OF HEALTH DEPT. PHARMACY

A request that the pharmacy located at Greensboro's Health Department be continued "indefinitely" has been deferred by the Guilford County Commissioners.

Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, health director, emphasized that keeping the pharmacy in operation after December will help meet the needs of the medically indigent, persons who are not eligible for welfare funds but without financial resources to meet heavy medical costs.

She said a recent state ruling has indicated the Health Department could be reimbursed for its drug costs plus $1.75 for each prescription issued to eligible persons under federal programs.

County Manager John Witherspoon supported Dr. Morrow, saying that the plan would be a lot cheaper for the county. He said the county can purchase drugs at less cost than can normal retail pharmacies.

Commissioner Percy Sears and F. P. Bodenheimer indicated they want to be sure the plan would not be in competition with private business and that it would meet an outstanding need.

The pharmacy, which opened in July, 1967, dispensed 25,530 Rxs during 1968 and 13,475 Rxs the first 6 months of 1969.

20% of the Rxs went to the mentally ill; 46% to pediatric cases, 9% to pre-natal cases, 5% for planned parenthood clinics and 8% for the medical clinics which will cease operation after December.

The pharmacy program cost $45,972 during 1968, including $10,000 for salaries.

Clock Watchers

The physician said Hoy Moose is a "real genuine pharmacist" and that he didn't "prescribe" much medicine, leaving that end of the business to the doctor.

Dr. Barringer said that when Moose was mayor of Mt. Pleasant he knew so much about the water system that whenever there was a leak the mayor was usually the first person there and knew exactly where to begin digging.

He said that Moose was instrumental in organizing the Mt. Pleasant fire department and was assistant chief until he "retired" because of age—the insurance company would not cover any accident he might encounter while on a firefighting mission. Still, Dr. Barringer said, Moose is usually the first person at the fire, ready to assist.

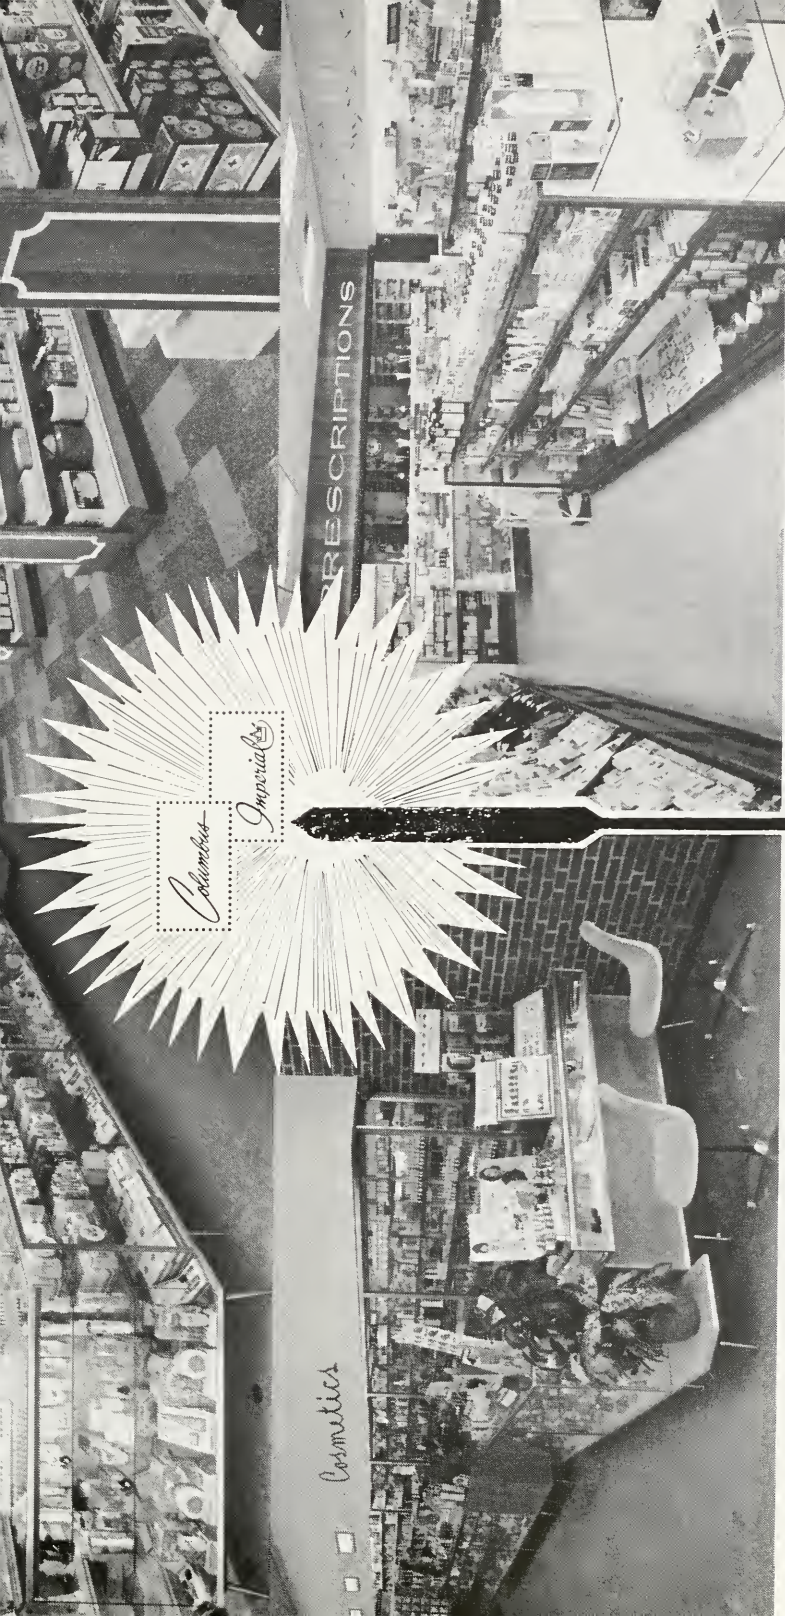

Dr. Barringer concluded his remarks about the state's No. 1 pharmacist by asserting:

"When you get to the top, there's usually only one way to go—down. However, in the case of Hoy Moose, I'm sure he'll stay on top.

Dr. Goddard's prediction was wrong. We picked the word Drugcenter for the reason that we don't have to describe the group further as to what it is. Drugcenter has all of the good connotations of the word drugstore, plus a more professional implication that it is the center for drugs and health-related items."

1969 ANNUAL MEETING OF THE N. C. PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION

SHERATON-SIR WALTER HOTEL, RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA
SUNDAY, MONDAY AND TUESDAY, APRIL 27-28-29

FIRST SESSION

Awards for outstanding community service and for distinguished contributions to pharmacy in North Carolina featured the opening session of the 89th annual convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, which was opened in the Elizabeth Room of the Sheraton-Sir Walter Hotel, 4 PM, April 27, with NCPHA President James Creech, presiding.

A meeting of the N.C. Academy of Practical Instructors in Pharmacy preceded the awards session. The guest speaker was Irving Rubin, Editor of the American Professional Pharmacist. A hospitality hour, with the Wake County Pharmaceutical Association serving as hosts, closed the first session.

Pharmacists and others recognized during the awards session:

Academy of Pharmacy Certificates were presented by W. T. Boone, Abookie, to the following people: Thomas Earl Cobb, Salisbury; Jack A. Landers, Durham; Howard M. Michael, Greensboro, and Jerry D. Price, Cary.

50+ Pins and Certificates recipients were introduced by James L. Creech, Smithfield, and presented by W. J. Smith, Chapel Hill to the following: A. B. Bobbitt, Winston-Salem; Ernest Porter, Concord; W. Lee Moose, Concord, and C. R. Wheeler, Oxford.

The Robins Bowl of Hygeia was presented by Al Jenkins, Statesville, to T. R. Burgiss, Jr., Sparta.

The E. R. Squibb Award was presented by William Jordan, Raleigh, to James L. Creech, Smithfield.

Speaker of the House Awards were presented by Whitaker Moose, Mt. Pleasant, to the following: Henry Leigh, Cullowhee; Walter Saunders, Burlington; Jack Watts, Burlington; G. F. May, Washington; Danny Randall, Asheville; Bill McDonald, Hickory, and Ralph Rogers, Jr., Durham.

SECOND SESSION

Following a buffet dinner (7 PM) served in the Raleigh City Club (10th floor of the Sir Walter), joint business sessions of the NCPHA, TMA and Woman's Auxiliary were called to order by Presidents James Creech, W. H. Worley and Mrs. Don Chapman.

The invocation was by The Reverend L. D. Holt, Pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Raleigh. The Mayor of the City of Raleigh, Travis H. Tomlinson, welcomed the delegates and guests to the city.

Reports of Auxiliary activity during the previous year were presented by Presidents Chapman of The Woman's Auxiliary and Mr. Worley of the TMA.

Prior to presenting the annual report, which follows, President Creech announced Hoy A. Moose of Mount Pleasant had been named "Pharmacist of the Year" and would be honored at a dinner in his hometown later in the summer.

The session concluded with entertainment by the Raleigh Chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop singing in America, Inc.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPORT

James L. Creech

The past year has been an unusual one; we have had war, assassinations, demonstrations, conflicts, orbiting satellites exceeding our imaginations of only a few years ago, invasions, sexual revolutions, increased war on poverty, an election year and a new president, a Jacqueline and Aristotle wedding, soul music, and the recent passing of a former president and a great leader. All of these happenings, along with our busy schedules, have made short work of the past twelve months.

And so, we are together once again since Greensboro, the eurfew, and a most unusual but also a most delightful, exciting, and successful convention. Last year's theme, "Meeting the Challenges Ahead," made all of us more cognizant of the many challenges and problems confronting our beloved profession.

As the new president of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, I was most grateful for the privilege and the honor given me. At the same time I realized the importance and the many responsibilities of the office and I wanted very much to serve the Association and my profession well. My feeling now is that, although my year was full, I wish I could have served both of them more. My many thanks go out to all the committee chairmen and their committee members, and to all the members that have worked for the Association this year, and to the most efficient Executive Committee members—Tom Boone, Charlie Blanton, Sandy Griffin, Earl Tate, Cade Brooks, John Hood, and Secretary W. J. Smith.

As the new year began, we, the Executive Committee, resolved seriously to do all we could for the betterment of our Association and our profession. I have never worked with a more sincere nor a more dedicated group of men.

With this resolution in mind we began the new year with optimism and hope. With optimism because we felt we were more fortunate than some—having one of the finest organized State Associations and one of the nation's finest Schools of Pharmacy. With hope that we were qualified to provide the proper leadership for a membership that we felt was blessed with many hard working, capable, and consecrated members.

The first highlight of the Association year was on July 11th when we enjoyed honoring one of these members as our "N.C. Pharmacist of the Year," John T. Stephenson of Elizabeth City. This was a most festive and successful occasion for a very deserving member; and Mrs. Stephenson was the perfect hostess for the affair.

The highlight for the Fall season was the 70th annual NARD convention held in Boston in October. Thanks to W. J. Smith's bus trip to New England, more attended this convention from North Carolina than had attended at any previous national convention. I was happy to attend and witness the Jesse Pike family receiving the NARD-Schering Outstanding Pharmacy Family of the Year Award, and to attend Charles Blanton's Dixie Sunrisers Breakfast.

In February many from North Carolina attended a NARD district meeting in the Regency-Hyatt House in Atlanta. This one day meeting was concerning efficient drug-store management. The meeting was well attended (six Southern states being involved) and was most informative and enjoyable.

Four from N.C., Whit Moose, W. J. Smith, Jesse Pike and myself, attended a NARD called important conference on Pharmacy Legislation and Public Affairs in Washington, D.C. on March 12 and 13.

Here we heard Senator Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), who told of his intentions to introduce a bill which would seek to curb physician dispensing, ownership of pharmacies and profiteering on drugs, a panel of H.E.W. Task Force members, and a speech by the Undersecretary of H.E.W. We also met congressmen from many states and two of them were from North Carolina.

All during the year meetings were being held in the Institute of Pharmacy. There were many committee meetings and Executive committee meetings. There were many planned group meetings such as the Better Pharmacy Management Seminar sponsored by the Association, the 2nd Annual Hospital Pharmacy Seminar sponsored by the School of Pharmacy in cooperation with the Society of Hospital Pharmacists, a very well attended and highly publicized seminar on Drug Abuse sponsored by the N.C. Association of Professions in cooperation with the S.B.I. and the N.C. Highway Patrol, and a seminar on Pharmacy Practice 1980 sponsored jointly by the Association and the School of Pharmacy. Many of you attended one or more of these and some of the other most helpful meetings in the Institute. I feel that by attending many of these meetings and seminars, keeping in touch with pharmacy by way of Chapel Hill and the Institute, by attending several Drug Club meetings about the State, and by virtue of my office as president of our Association, I have acquired a much clearer perception of our profession than before, and, if I may, I would like to share with you a few of my observations during the year.

One of the nicest observations was to notice the efficient manner in which the tremendous work load of the Association is handled at the Institute of Pharmacy by Secretary W. J. Smith. He is fortunate to have the excellent help of Mrs. W. J. Smith, who only helps now and then on a part time basis, Mrs. John Woodard, Jr. and Mrs. Joe Augustine. We are still hoping to find the right person soon to act as Administrative Assistant. I still wonder just how W. J. gets so many things accomplished in such a pleasurable and efficient manner. He is managing editor of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy—a terrific job in itself.

His continual contacts with our members, and with the welfare (both state and national), the mental health, the School of Pharmacy, the Legislature, the many NCPHA committees and our Executive Committee, and this past year serving as president of the N.C. Association of Professions, all have kept him mighty busy. All these tend to create much good will as well as making it possible for him to stay in touch with all the current issues important to Pharmacy.

It is gratifying to see the School of Pharmacy, the Board of Pharmacy and the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association work closely together for the good of our profession. I would like to thank Dean Hager and his excellent faculty and the Board of Pharmacy for their part in contributing to the continuing education of the retail and the hospital pharmacists in the State. I am happy to see the added emphasis on retail pharmacy and the community pharmacist since the greater majority are engaged in this avenue of service.

I am sure the speakers bureau and the recent service of a library lending system for tape recordings, designed under the direction of Fred Eckel and assisted by Jesse Pike, Jr., will be helpful to all practicing pharmacists whether retail, hospital, or professional pharmacy inclined.

We appreciate the work of the Board of Pharmacy for their many contributions. Many of us fail to realize the hours these dedicated pharmacists (C. E. Page, Jr., David Claytor, W. H. Randall, Jr., Harold Day, Jesse Pike, and Sec.-Treas. H. C. McAllister) give to their work as Board members.

The wholesalers of the State are doing more than ever to give service to the pharmacist. They are always willing to contribute their experience and knowledge; they are continually initiating new ideas into their service such as store planning, stepped-up delivery service, installing accounts receivable systems, and they have recently joined in with the NCPHA to serve with pharmacist retailers on a wholesaler/retailer relations committee. They are also taking steps to help the retailing pharmacist to better compete with the "so called" dis-counters. The Association appreciates their continued interest and cooperation.

It is encouraging to see that some manufacturers have heard our appeals for equal justice in pricing their products and have not just heard but have made important price changes which resulted in a one price policy to all. It is our hope that in the very near future all the manufacturers will see the importance, not only to us as pharmacists but to themselves as well, enough to adopt this policy. We appreciate the action some have already taken.

The year has brought the customary number of new pharmacies to North Carolina. A few of these pharmacies we have noted possibly are not as interested in the profession of pharmacy as are some of the others. Some of these appeal to the public in ways that are not deemed as ethical as we would like them to be. This is distressing to members who love our profession and have always tried to be ethical. An influx of this type of competition would do nothing but have an adverse effect on the present high image pharmacy has attained in our state.

May we commend the two Auxiliaries and their leaders, Mrs. Sue Chapman and Mr. W. H. (Red) Worley. The ladies Auxiliary has been doing an excellent job all year and especially in Poison Control, their main project for the year. The Traveling Men's Auxiliary is always ready to give a helping hand wherever it is needed. Both of these Auxiliaries are indispensable to pharmacy and we want them to know that they are sincerely appreciated by all of us in the Association.

I have observed the convention planners in Raleigh at work, and I feel certain that this will be the very best convention yet. Thanks to convention chairman Osear Elmore, Jr., local Auxiliary chairman Mrs. Banks Kerr, T.M.A. chairmen Tom Sanders and Rush Hamrick, and their many willing workers in Raleigh and Wake County.

We in pharmacy and others about the state are pleased that Burroughs Wellcome and Co., of Tuckahoe, N.Y. is planning to move to North Carolina. The administrative and research operations will be built on a 60 acre site in the Research Triangle and its production facilities will be located on a 300 acre site at Greenville. We welcome them to our state. I am also glad to hear that Richardson-Merrell and Becton-Dickinson are planning to move part of their operations to North Carolina. Abbott recently enlarged Rocky Mt. facilities and have announced a new addition to be in Laurinburg.

I was happy to note that the Health, Education and Welfare Task Force was interested in the efficiency of the welfare prescription program in North Carolina. That they could see the effectiveness of the $1.00 deductible per prescription in our state, may have a bearing on the possibility of this continuing as Title 19 is implemented. In this regard our secretary is working hard with the N.C. Welfare and with officials in Washington, but it is early yet to know what the results will be since congressional legislation would be necessary to permit a continuation of the deductible. It was also interesting to hear the Undersecretary of H.E.W. say in Washington that pharmacists would be asked from time to time to contribute their experience and knowhow as decisions are being made concerning the health and welfare of our people. It is good to know that the pharmacist's roll in health matters is respected and valued on a national level and that H.E.W. is still seeking the right answers.

The activities of the past year have emphasized the changing world and the changing profession. We have been reminded that we live through time and change. I think that we are fully aware of these transitions, and now we wish to avail ourselves of all information that will help us grow and adjust to change. Much of this valuable information will be forthcoming at this convention as we hear "New Concepts in Pharmacy Practice" which is our convention theme.

I know there are many important Association activities I did not mention to you tonight. Some of these will be reported in detail at the business sessions Monday and Tuesday by the committee chairmen. I hope you will be there to hear them.

In conclusion, I would like very much to see all of us become more involved than

I believe this is the key to opening the way for us to play a predominant roll in determining our own future. Let's take a tip from Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and "Think positively and remember that positive thinking does get positive results."

May I thank you for allowing me to serve as your President this past year. Your cooperation and response to our many calls was greatly appreciated and heart-warming and accounts for the fine working organization that we now have. It has been a wonderful year.

(4) An illustrated program—Anti-Robbery Devices—presented by George F. Pope of Burlington.

Following adjournment of the Monday AM session, fifteen of the past presidents of the NCPA assembled in the North Hills Room for lunch and a period of reminiscence, highlighted by the humorous remarks of Allison James of Winston-Salem.

FOURTH SESSION

NCPA President Creech opened the fourth business session at 2:30 PM in the ballroom of the Sir Walter and introduced Wade A. Gilliam of Winston-Salem, who gave the invocation.

Whitaker Moose of Mount Pleasant, Chairman of the NCPA Committee on Public Relations, outlined the activities of his committee's efforts during the past twelve months and suggested additional programs and projects to be undertaken during the months ahead. The committee will devote much of its time to a drug abuse information program as well as providing back-up support to National Pharmacy Week, Poison Prevention Week, etc.

The Report of the Committee on Legislation, as given by Committee Chairman Jesse M. Pike of Concord, follows:

We used to make gold-plated pills

We did from 1913 into the mid-Twenties. They were rolled on this gold leaf to pick up a fine golden luster.

We don't do it now.

Today, we concentrate on putting the quality on the inside, where you and the doctor and the patient want it.

The name Upjohn is on the outside.

That says it just as well.

REPORT: COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION

Jesse M. Pike, Chairman

President Creech, Secretary Smith, members of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, and guests:

Your Legislative Committee composed of W. T. Boone, L. K. Edwards, Jr., S. G. Koonce, John E. Mills, W. West, B. Paul Woodard, and Jesse Pike, Chairman, has met to consider the legislative program of our Association for the current year.

The committee on Delivery of Pharmaceutical Service, with W. H. Mast as chairman, performed an in-depth study of our legislative needs, and recommended the following program to the Legislative Committee after first submitting it to the Executive Committee of the NCPHA for approval. Subsequently it was submitted to the N.C. Board of Pharmacy for its approval and then processed through proper Association channels on to the Legislature.

Earlier this month Senator Henley introduced the first of the proposals recommended. This provides an act to require the Board of Pharmacy to adopt a Code of Professional Conduct for the Practice of Pharmacy. This bill will come out of the Senate Health Committee at an early date. Many states have enacted such legislation and it is felt to be desirable.

A second act to be introduced recognizes that while criminal prosecution, suspension or revocation of license, or injunctions, properly serve to correct flagrant violations of pharmacy law and regulations, that minor offenses do not warrant such drastic action. This Act authorizes the Board of Pharmacy to assess civil penalties or fines in lieu of the suspension or revocation of licenses or permits.

The most pressing issue right now is the proposed amendment to the State Narcotic Act. Our Association feels that this proposal is most important and accordingly a bulletin outlining the proposed changes has been sent to members for study. Recently a meeting was held by the Board of Pharmacy with the new SBI Director Charles Dunn, assistant SBI Director Starling, and W. J. Smith of the NCPHA.

At this time certain questions were posed relative to limitation on the quantities of some of the preparations that might be sold under the new law. Also questioned was the extensive labeling demanded by this act; e.g., the pharmacist or physician selling the exempt product shall affix to the container in which the preparation is sold a label showing (1) his own name, (2) address and registry number if he is a physician or in the case of a pharmacist, (1) his name, (2) the name, address, and registry number of the pharmacy for which he is legally acting, (3) the name and address of the patient, (4) the date of sale, and (5) the official name, if any, or the usual or common name of the drug.

Some pharmacists have expressed opposition to another section of SB 468, which provides that county and municipal officers be permitted to examine Rx records, check narcotic files and registers, etc. With their limited professional background it is believed the present system (state and federal agents) is sufficient to afford adequate protection for the public. The Narcotics Division of the State Bureau of Investigation has requested funds to provide additional manpower to expand their program.

Our Association was represented in Washington, D.C. at the meeting of the Legislative Committee of the NARD March 12th and 13th by NCPHA President, James L. Creech; Association Secretary, W. J. Smith; White Moose, Chairman of the Public Relations Committee; and by me as Chairman of the Legislative Committee. This was a most impressive meeting, highlighted by a congressional reception hosted by the NARD. The most outstanding legislative message was given by Senator Hart of Michigan, who subsequently introduced legislation to prohibit profiteering by physicians on the sale of medicines and medical devices via dispensing and ownership of pharmacies, etc. This measure deserves our support, and while it is of great importance now, in the days ahead under Title XIX it could make the difference between life and death for many retail pharmacies. This Act is of such importance that Dr. Apple of the APhA came to the meeting and assured all present that the NARD and APhA could join hands in vigorously working together for the passage of this legislation so vital to our profession. I urge every pharmacist to contact his Congressman and request their support of this bill.

Our Association has been most fortunate in obtaining the services of President-elect Earl H. Tate, one of our most experienced legislators, to protect the interests of pharmacy when legislation in which we are interested is considered. He is available in Raleigh on a day-to-day basis as required. Senator Henley has again rendered invaluable assistance to our profession and we are most appreciative of his efforts in our behalf.

Our legislative program is just beginning to unfold. I urge your support.

The Association's new Constitution and By-Laws was adopted following presentation by Committee Chairman Charles Blanton of Kings Mountain. The "Proposed Constitution," having been read in Greensboro at the 1968 annual NCPHA meeting and carried over for a year, as required, was first approved. Then followed adoption of the By-Laws (read at one session and voted on at a later session of same meeting).

The 1969 Official NCPHA Constitution and By-Laws appears in this edition of the Year Book as the concluding section of the NCPHA Report.

The Report of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare, John T. Henley of Hope Mills, Chairman, was published in the August issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy, page 23.

Two major reports centering on activities involving assistance to pharmacy students (Consolidated Pharmacy Fund) and back-up support to the Association and Institute of Pharmacy (Endowment Fund) were received by the delegates.

CONSOLIDATED PHARMACY FUND

In the absence of Robert B. Hall, Chairman of the Fund, NCPHA Secretary W. J. Smith presented a summary of the Fund's activities since it was established in 1962.

Since the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund (student loan fund) was established, a total of 55 individually named funds have been included within the operational framework of Consolidated.

A total of 446 loans ($50,593.72) have been made since the Fund was established. Repayments total more than $29,000. Current value of The Fund, including loans to present pharmacy students (not due until after the student graduates) is $27,119.29.

Due to repayments, many of the named funds show double and tripple loan totals. For instance, the W. J. Dean Fund, with a fund value of $4087, shows a total in loans of $12,285.

This is one of the great values of a loan fund—money doing double and triple assistance thru turnover. Students are informed: "We help you now; you assist someone later on by repaying the loan."

All of the loans are non-interest; repayable at the rate of $50 a month 6 months after graduation. If the student is inducted into military service, repayment is deferred.

During the past twelve months, 76 loans were made to pharmacy students for a total of $7,905.00.

Cash balance in the Fund is $5939.29. Most of this balance will be loaned to students as the fall session of the School of Pharmacy gets underway.

The Association's executive committee has authorized the installation in the Institute of Pharmacy of three memorial plaques to the memory of F. O. Bowman, Charles M. Andrews and James W. Harrison. You will be given an opportunity to share in this project and we hope many of you will do so.

Plans will soon be announced for recognition in the Institute of Pharmacy of one of the major supporters of the project—the late Thomas J. Ham, Jr. of Yanceyville. Recognition will be in the form of a portrait of Mr. Ham to be placed in the auditorium of the Institute.

The front entrance of the Institute has been newly landscaped by members of the Chapel Hill Men's Garden Club. It was a demonstration project of the club and has attracted a great deal of favorable comment by persons who have had an opportunity to view the new face which the front entrance of the Institute now presents to members and to the public.

The current value of the Endowment Fund is $27,651. All investments are in building and loan stock with the dividends now going to assist with various Association programs.

The Annual Report of the N.C. Board of Pharmacy, as presented by Board Secretary-Treasurer H. C. McAllister, concluded the Monday, PM session. This report appears as the final section of the Year Book.

James Adams of Asheville discussed the necessity for continuing education—keeping up with the advances of pharmaceutical techniques and medication therapy—and suggested the Association set up a committee to explore the best possible procedure to achieve this aim. Later, Mr. Adams suggestion took the form of a resolution, which appears with NCPHA adopted resolutions.

FIFTH SESSION

The Tuesday, April 29 AM session, opened with an invocation and an address—Building A Prescription Practice—by Russell A. Benedick, Executive Secretary of the American College of Apothecaries.

During his presentation, Mr. Benedick said:

“It's as certain as the fact that day follows night that in the not too far distant future, it will become absolutely necessary for the community pharmacist to keep a family prescription record in his pharmacy. It's just not in the best interests of the patient or the physician when such a record is not available.”

According to Benedick, only about 10% of the nation's pharmacists make such a record available. He cited examples of where pharmacists, thru the use of a family prescription record, have prevented the ingestion of such drugs as penicillin by persons with an extreme sensitivity to the drug, and thereby prevented hospitalization in many instances. He stated that in this day of medical specialization, many families use the services of more than one physician, and “drug interaction” with possible serious consequences is possible when one physician is not aware of what another is using to treat the patient. Only the pharmacist with adequate records is in a position to prevent such unfavorable drug interaction.

Robert Morgan, Attorney General, State of North Carolina, in discussing the Anti-Trust Drug Suits, said North Carolina would not be a party to the suits, which involve certain antibiotic drugs. Rather, the State will institute its own action.

The speaker also highlighted the recently established Consumer Protection Division, which will handle the State's position on the antibiotics and a wide range of economic matters involving the public.

George M. Scattergood, Manager of Merchandising and Promotion, Packaging Products Division of Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corporation, presented a “Program for Survival of Independent Pharmacy.” A series of articles based on the presentation have been appearing in The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

Mr. Scattergood, whose company owns land for a future plant site near Charlotte, encouraged pharmacists to step up their public relations activities to ethically reveal to the general public as well as related public health practitioners the valuable services rendered by pharmacists to their patrons. Such services which become an important part of the value represented in

The concluding addresses of the fifth session were by Dr. Stonewall C. King, Assistant Professor, Department of Pharmacy Administration, University of Georgia, and "Cooperative Advertising and Promotion" by Henry G. Winfrey, President of Pro-Marketing.

Dr. King's address—The Pharmacist's Role in the Community—will be published in the November issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

The session was adjourned at 12 noon for luncheons—Kappa Psi, Phi Delta Chi and N.C. Society of Hospital Pharmacists.

SIXTH SESSION

The sixth and concluding business session was opened by Ernest Rabil of Winston-Salem who discussed a survey on compensation (salaries and fringe benefits) which his committee on Social and Economic Relations had conducted in the State.

A copy of the survey is available on request to any person who desires a copy. Send request to the NCPHA.

W. H. (Bill) Mast of Henderson, as chairman, presented the Report of the Committee on Delivery of Pharmaceutical Service.

COMMITTEE ON DELIVERY OF PHARMACEUTICAL SERVICE

Wm. H. Mast, Chairman

It has been a pleasure to serve on this committee consisting of Tom Burgess, Taylorsville; Howard M. Logan, Shelby; Claude U. Paoloni, Chapel Hill; Lloyd M. Whaley, Wallace. It has had as its primary objective to study the present trends in pharmacy and implement such measures as seem necessary to guarantee the public the continued high quality professional service that is traditional with our "profession."

This profession cannot be practiced, indeed cannot even claim the status of a profession, but above all cannot possibly serve the best health interest of the public when practiced under certain developing conditions. It is impossible for a professional to carry out his duties in the corner of a super conglomerate outlet devoting less than 10% of its floor space and devoting 99% of its energy to gimmicks, schemes, and devices to lure the public into its doors with no regard for their health or welfare. No pharmacist can give sufficient time and energy to better professional service to the public if he must answer to the board of directors, whose interest lies solely in an attractive profit and loss statement at the end of each quarter. Higher dividends and the endless manipulation of the N.Y. Stock Exchange should not have to be considered when it comes to better medical treatment. Each prescription order is as unique as the person for whom it is written. How can the patient's health and safety be of primary concern if the professional service rendered in filling this prescription has been advertised as cut rate, discount, or other such terms.

This committee after considerable discussion and investigation decided, under the prevailing conditions, that probably the only effective guardian of public health and welfare was the legal process.

Mr. McAllister put us in contact with the legal department of the APhA. Working very closely with and almost totally on the advice of Miss Nancy J. Wolfe, Attorney, we recommended the following action:

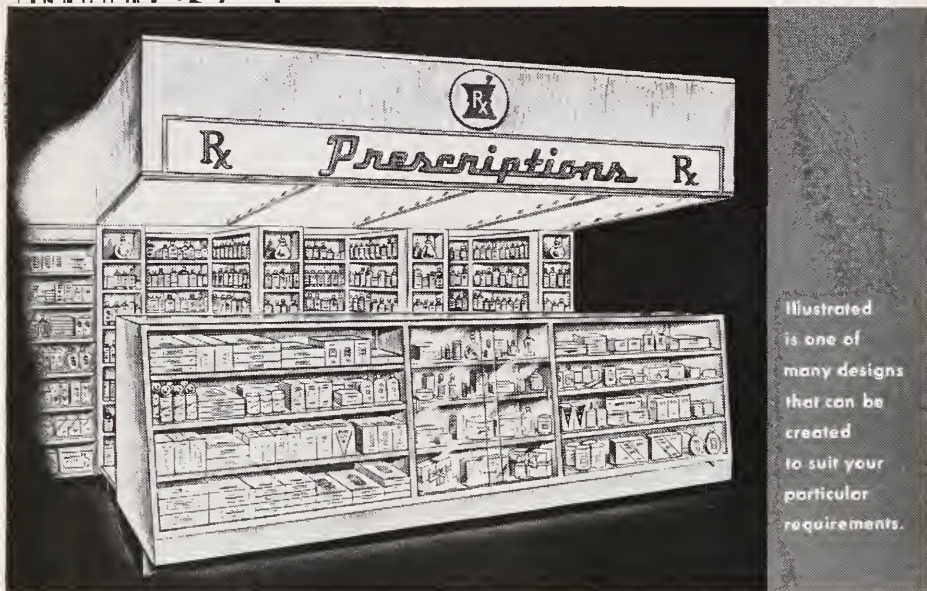

(See enclosed paper marked Proposals)

These proposals were brought to the attention of your executive committee of the NCPHA. It was decided that at this time the most effective step would be the adoption of a professional code of conduct empowering the board of pharmacy to carry out its provisions. Proper steps have been taken to implement this action.

This committee also discussed third party payment and suggested to the NCPHA that a committee be asked to study all aspects of this trend and recommend a definite direction for us to take. Also discussed were:

1. Monitoring of drug therapy for drug misuse, drug action, drug interactions, follow up or recall of drugs.
2. Patient counseling by the pharmacist.
3. Drug information to the professions (doctors, dentists, R.N., etc.).
4. Professional fee system.

Fulfillment of above thru such methods as:

1. Patient Medication Records
2. Adequate reference library
3. Self imposed continued education and learning

Over all it is the belief of this committee that only thru strict self government and the very highest practice of individual professional conduct can we render the service to the public for which this profession was founded.

William H. Mast, Chairman

PROPOSALS

1. Adoption of a code of professional conduct and incorporation of reference to such code in statutory listing of board powers, such as 90-57A.

90-57A. The Board of Pharmacy may by regulation adopt a Code of Professional Conduct appropriate to the establishment and maintenance of a high standard of integrity and dignity in the practice of the profession of pharmacy. Every pharmacist licensed to practice in this state shall be governed by this code. It shall be deemed a violation by pharmacists to work in a pharmacy not abiding by this code. A copy of code to be put in renewal application.

2. Prohibition of advertising of professional services to public. Addition at proper place in law of following clause prohibiting advertising:

90-65 #9. Any pharmacist shall be considered guilty who issues, publishes, advertises, or promotes directly or indirectly in any manner whatsoever, any amount, price, fee, premium, discount, rebate, or credit terms for professional services containing narcotics or for any drug which may be dispensed by prescription only; or uses the word "discount," "cut rate," or any word or phrase of similar import in the promotion or advertisement of services related directly to the dispensing of prescriptions.

3. Professional ownership. The owner or anyone of the owners of a pharmacy must be a pharmacist registered in the State of North Carolina.

4. Limited space for pharmacy. Example: New Jersey regulation #1

"Area of Prescription Department:—The area devoted to the prescription department and laboratory shall not be less than ten per cent of the main floor area of the pharmacy or drug store, and in no instances shall it be less than fifty square feet. If the main floor area exceeds twelve hundred square feet, the minimum area of the prescription department shall not be less than one hundred and twenty square feet. After _____, _____ no permit will be granted for the operation of a new pharmacy, including pharmacies at new locations, unless the prescription department occupies exclusively a minimum of one hundred and fifty square feet."

The Annual Report of the School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina, George P. Hager, Dean, was published in the September issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy, beginning on page 25.

The Report of the Committee on Nursing Homes and Extended Care Facilities, Donald McLeod, Chairman, will be published in a future issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

REPORT OF TRIPARTITE COMMITTEE ON INTERNSHIP

Approximately a year ago the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy charged the Secretaries of the Boards of Pharmacy with the responsibility of establishing a Tripartite Committee on Internship. The name Tripartite is derived from the fact

for the betterment of pharmacy

What is a fair return on my investment? What about inventory control? How can I promote the Rx department? How can I compete effectively with the high volume, low margin store?

These and other related subjects are discussed by the Pharmacy Management Panels sponsored by Lederle Laboratories. These panels have been held 33 times in 29 different states since 1962 usually in conjunction with a major pharmaceutical association meeting.

Among those who have served on the Lederle panels are H. W. Adkins, Vice-President, Yahr-Lange, Inc., Milwaukee, Wisconsin; George L. Scharringhausen, Jr., Scharringhausen Pharmacy, Park Ridge, Illinois; Dr. Paul C. Olsen, Professor of Pharmacy Administration at Brooklyn College of Pharmacy; Dr. Jean K. Weston, Vice-President Medical Relations, National Pharmaceutical Council, Washington, D.C.; Drew E. Haskins, Jr., Drew's Drugs, Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia; Robert J. Gillespie, Gillespie's Drugstore, St. Joseph, Michigan and Mike Harris, Executive Secretary, The Pharmaceutical Institute, Sacramento, California.

We at Lederle realize that the pharmacist is a vital factor in the success of the pharmaceutical industry. That is why we provide expert management counsel to pharmacy owners through Pharmacy Management Panels. By this means we hope to strengthen an essential link between the manufacturer and the ultimate consumer.

that the committee is made up of representatives of the Board of Pharmacy, College of Pharmacy, and the State Pharmaceutical Association. Our committee was formed in June 1968 and is made up of three representatives from each group.

The duties specifically called for by the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy are to:

1. Survey internship education within the state and compare it with existing programs in other states.
2. Recommend an organizational pattern and mechanism for internship education utilizing the capabilities of the profession, the school(s), and the Board of Pharmacy.
3. Provide opportunities for internship education through the recruitment of qualified and interested preceptors.
4. Coordinate internship learning experiences with the academic background of the intern.
5. Recommend procedures for preceptor qualification and provide the preceptor with the necessary guidance to enable him to structure a sound educational program for the intern.
6. Provide continuing direction to the educational aspects of internship.
7. Serve as coordinating group for intra-professional communication on internship within the state.

In all these areas the committee acts in an advisory capacity, making recommendations to be acted upon by the Board of Pharmacy.

With such an assignment it was difficult to know where to begin, but the committee decided that the first step should be to make a comprehensive survey of our present internship program and compare it with those of other states. We asked for the opinions of interns and pharmacists through the use of questionnaires, gathered and studied information on the programs in other states, and then made a thorough review of the forms and instructions of our program.

Early this year the Pharmacy Senate of the School of Pharmacy prepared and distributed to students a questionnaire on internship. The results were made available to the committee and we considered these opinions carefully in our deliberations on internship. The students who participated in the questionnaire will be certain to spot some changes in the revised instructions which were taken directly from their suggestions. This is the type of connecting link (between students and board) which the Tripartite Committee was meant to be—fostering communication and cooperation among all groups interested in internship.

We felt the need for better communication in explaining to both interns and preceptors just what is expected of them during the internship period. For this reason the committee recommended that the Board of Pharmacy put out a special edition of its NEWS-LETTER to pharmacists just prior to the end of school. This NEWS-LETTER will contain an outline of the requirements for internship training, reminders of the legal requirements and limitations and any pertinent dates such as the date the notebook will be due. Also, we recommended that the board hold a meeting with the students before they leave school—to give them instructions and answer questions concerning their summer training. The Board has gone all out in this respect and has scheduled two sessions when the entire board will be at the school to meet with the students.

As we met and discussed our present training program and ways to improve it, we found that we always came around to a discussion of the internship notebook. You may be surprised to know that even though we all (interns and preceptors) complain about the notebook our survey answers do not show that we are ready to abolish it. A survey of graduates since 1955 showed that approximately two-thirds of them felt that the notebook had been helpful in their training (whether they enjoyed it or not). In reply to the committee's survey the preceptors were almost evenly divided on whether the notebook was necessary, and most of the interns felt that it had a place in the program but needed much revision.

The committee, in trying to decide whether or not to recommend the retention of the notebook, concluded that the notebook is not the ideal guideline and evaluation tool for the training period, but unless we could replace it with something better we would have to retain it. Needless to say, we have not yet found a suitable replacement. However, we have asked the Board of Pharmacy to adopt an Intern Evaluation Form which will give it an additional criterion for grading the intern's experience—the opinion of his preceptor. The daily report section of the notebook has been the most often criticized part of the notebook. The Tripartite Committee recommended to the Board of Pharmacy that this requirement be deleted from the notebook. The next most objectionable part seemed to be the typing requirement, and the committee recommended that the intern not be required to do his own typing. The Board of Pharmacy adopted both changes.

If we really value the notebook as an aid to learning and expect the intern to spend many hours preparing it, then it should not be destroyed. The Board of Pharmacy has agreed to forward to the Library at the School of Pharmacy the best notebooks each year, to begin a permanent reference library for the use of students. The North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association has agreed to present awards to the interns producing the best notebooks.

The committee felt that improvement was needed in the working relationship between preceptor and intern. Our first attempt at this manifests itself in a section to be included in the new notebook outline in place of the daily experience report. The preceptor and intern are asked to work together in formulating a question relating to a professional experience during the week, and then have the intern answer the question.

Other changes in the notebook recommended by this committee and adopted by the Board of Pharmacy are:

1. A general revision of the notebook questions, making them more appropriate and up-to-date.
2. Awarding credit points for all notebook requirements.
3. Asking the preceptor to acknowledge that he has reviewed the notebook.
4. Sending a copy of the notebook grade, along with an explanation, to the preceptor.

5. Furnishing an intern evaluation form and an intern's summary of training form to be submitted with the notebook.
6. Setting a specific date for all notebooks to be submitted.

The Tripartite Committee has recommended that the regional meetings of preceptors and interns be continued, and that, if possible the Board of Pharmacy have a man in the field again, visiting the interns in their places of employment and coordinating the meetings. The compilation of facts and opinions which was made by Claude Paoloni in his travels for the Board of Pharmacy last summer has been a great help to this committee and we thank him for it.

We would like to publicly thank the Board of Pharmacy for the attentive ear it has lent to our suggestions and the confidence it has shown by implementing them.

We realize that we have only begun the task set before us, but all of us are most enthusiastic about the opportunity we have to help improve the training given our future colleagues. We invite pharmacists and interns to make suggestions and criticisms to us concerning the internship program. Our job is to represent you.

REPORT OF W. J. SMITH

Secretary-Treasurer

One can easily become discouraged by reading headlines that predict the demise of the community pharmacist, or at best, offer him no encouragement for the future.

Despite this, North Carolina pharmacists continue to dispense more than 25 million prescriptions annually together with a wide range of prescription accessories and health supplies. And many of them are assuming additional responsibilities in hospitals, nursing homes and extended care facilities.

Pharmacy is changing and with this change will come new challenges and opportunities for service—challenges which I am confident you will meet head on just as you have done so in the past.

The announced intention of A & P and J. C. Penny to merge with drug chains is not likely to enhance pharmacy's image as a provider of professional health services.

I recognize there is a difference of opinion here, especially by those who are purely price orientated. Only time will tell but at this point I question the degree of public good to come from giant mergers, pharmacy or otherwise.

MEMBERSHIP

1968 was a year of particular concern to us—membership-wise. To provide funds for an expanded program, you will recall NCPHA membership dues, effective 1968, were increased by an average of 35%.

Some knowledgeable executives in organizational work predicted a temporary loss of 10% of our members. The exact loss was 4% and some in this category represented members who left the state, retired, etc.

The addition of 92 new members during the year, less the deceased list and members dropped for non-payment of dues, resulted in a net gain for the year.

On December 31, 1968, total membership was 1,508—a new record for the Association.

LOOKING AHEAD

Some pharmacy leaders have predicted that within 5 years 75% of your prescription will be paid by a third party and SK&F has estimated by the early 70s over 70 million people in this country will be involved in some sort of pre-pay prescription program.

Here in North Carolina we know Title XIX—to be implemented by no later than January 1, 1970—will be a broader program than the present Welfare Rx program. And we fully anticipate some sort of Medicare Rx program, on an outpatient basis, to be functioning by 1971. The Blues will become more actively involved in the pre-paid Rx market.

If the prediction that more than 50% of your prescription customers will be on a third party pay program is to come true, it will result in some readjustment in the pharmacist's practice. The pharmacist can no longer be concerned only with serving his patient but will be influenced by those who will be paying for the service, namely third parties. They will expect to have something to say about how pharmaceutical services will be provided subscribers.

What will pharmacy's partners in these programs likely demand of the pharmacist? First, greater attention to the professional aspects of rendering the services. Second, comprehensive medication records will have to be maintained. Is the Rx recipient being over-medicated? Is he taking contra-indicated medications? Third, proper cost accounting in the Rx department. Those who pay will not pay for poor management or subsidize the front end of the pharmacy.

Surveys show that as Rx volume increases, the cost of dispensing a Rx declines. If high volume chains are to be prevented from taking over the Rx service, independent pharmacists are going to have to pay greater attention to studying the cost of delivering pharmaceutical services.

Most pharmacists do not know what it costs them to dispense a Rx. Our not-so-silent partners will demand this information. Pharmacists must do more than just conduct cost surveys. They must find ways by which they can keep the costs within reason. For instance, pharmacists at $5 and $6 an hour can better utilize their professional knowledge than to use their time in completing the third party billing forms which can be done by a secretary or records technician.

Since the Rx recipient will have free choice of pharmacy and not be directly concerned with the cost, he will undoubtedly go where he can obtain the best professional services. It is for this reason we have been emphasizing the importance of PPS—Personalized Professional Service.

How maximum services can be rendered while maintaining reasonable charges will be pharmacy's biggest concern during the 70's. A major obstacle will be the price differential which presently exists on many of your Rx products. Most of us are aware that the pharmacist—at the retail level—pays the highest acquisition cost for his drugs—and you can be sure third party payees are aware of this.

FINANCIAL

The audited report, which appears at the end of the Report of the Secretary-Treasurer, shows a significant improvement in the Association's income for the year. This was expected due to the dues increase effective with the beginning of the Association year.

While income was on an increase, operating expenses also took a jump—from $62,000 in 1967 to $67,000 in 1968. The dues increase was sufficient to take care of the 1967 deficit of $5,700 and the 1968 budget rise of approximately $5,000.

Excess revenue over expenditures for the year 1968 was approximately $2,200.

The Consolidated Pharmacy Fund gained $3,000 for a total of $27,000 and the Endowment Fund had a year-end value of $27,681. NCPPhA combined assets were $152,000 at the close of the Association year.

The favorable aspect of the financial report is that a continuing, aggressive state wide program is being carried on by the NCPPhA without incurring a deficit. But the year's operation did not bring in sufficient additional funds to warrant any great expansion of existing programs nor the employment of personnel, such as an assistant secretary-field trainee discussed elsewhere in this report.

The Association has current assets sufficient for a temporary increase in programs-projects-personnel but on a permanent basis, income over and beyond that realized during 1968 will have to be obtained from some source. This will be a challenge to the officers and membership during the coming years.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

For several years we have discussed our need for an administrative assistant—to act in the capacity of a trainee so that ultimately he would succeed the present executive secretary.

We have already spelled out for you the type individual we seek. Some applications have been received but mostly the letters have been expressions of sympathy.

We felt certain we would receive comments about the $10,000 salary but so far, no reaction. Even this modest salary, equated with compensation currently being paid experienced pharmacists, will result in deficit operation by the Association. Hopefully, the right man with the right attitude, will increase membership to a point where the Association can and will continue its policy of balanced budgets.

One of my counterparts in a mid-western state recently compiled a list of agencies, bureaus, boards, departments and organizations which he worked with on a regular basis. Some of these daily, others less often. The final list totaled more than fifty, which gives you a general idea of the growing complexity of the responsibility faced by state pharmaceutical secretaries.

As the executive committee interviews the applicants for administrative assistant, I am certain the committee will be looking ahead ten to twenty years, yes, even to the year 2000. What kind of special abilities should the applicant possess to cope with the changes that are certain to come.

One thing I would wish for my successor—to have the same sort of dedicated members working with him as has been my good fortune for the past 29 years, and finally that, as he labors for the good of the profession, he be governed by the Biblical story of Naomi and Ruth as they were preparing to return to Bethlehem—

Where you go, I will go

Where you live, I will live

Your people shall be my people

And your God shall be by God.

We have examined the combined balance sheet of the NORTH CAROLINA PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION at December 31, 1968 and the related statements of revenue, expenditures and fund balance of the various funds for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the accompanying combined balance sheet and statements of revenue, expenditures and fund balance present fairly the financial position of the NORTH CAROLINA PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION at December 31, 1968 and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions presented by the Committee on Resolutions (B. Cade Brooks, Chm.) and adopted April 29, 1969:

BE IT RESOLVED

1. The Committee on Continuing Education study the propriety of legislation or Board of Pharmacy regulations requiring an appropriate program of continuing education as a prerequisite to the renewal of licenses of pharmacists in active practice and report its findings to the next convention of this Association.

2. The N.C. Pharmaceutical Association urge the public to select a family physician in order to obtain the best possible health care, and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that The NCPHA register its strong opposition to any suggestion or recommendation that price be the sole criterion in the selection of a pharmacist.

3. The N.C. Pharmaceutical Association in convention assembled on April 29, 1969, that Section 208(a) of the proposed Controlled and Dangerous Substances Act of 1969 be revised so as to provide that the same record keeping system now required for the dispensing of narcotic and dangerous drugs on prescription be continued without change.

4. The North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association commend the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina for its programs of continuing education and urge all pharmacists to avail themselves of these educational programs in order to better serve the public; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Association begin a study to implement and improve the concept of continuing education, both at the annual meeting and thru other available means.

5. The North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association urge Congress to amend the Social Security Act to permit any state, on an elective basis, to include a deductible in its Title XIX drug program, and

6. The N.C. Pharmaceutical Association that the record keeping required by the State Narcotic Act be limited to the customary procedure of listing the sale of the specified exempt preparations in a record book plus a label on the exempt preparation containing the name and address of the pharmacy selling the exempt item, and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the section of the Act permitting county and municipal officers to conduct examinations of prescription files and narcotic records be eliminated since this is more properly exercised by federal and state officials with special knowledge of professional practices.

7. The North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association in convention assembled April 29, 1969, on behalf of its membership does:

(1) Thank the members of the Wake County Pharmaceutical Association and the Woman's Auxiliary and the Traveling Men's Auxiliary, Chairman Oscar Elmore, Mrs. Banks D. Kerr, C. Rush Hamrick, Jr., W. W. Jordan and all co-chairmen for their many contributions and untiring efforts which have made our 89th an outstanding convention;

(2) Extend special thanks to those pharmaceutical manufacturers, wholesalers and others who have made important contributions to the business and entertainment programs of the 1969 annual meeting of the NCPHA and its Affiliated Auxiliaries.

NOTE: A lengthy resolution relating to a Code of Professional Conduct appeared in the July issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy, pages 10-11.

Project: Mrs. Dale Bracker, Chairman

Mesdames Donald Chapman, Frank O'Neil, George Cocolas, W. J. Smith and I met at the Institute of Pharmacy in July, 1968 to plan an effective program of poison prevention for the state of North Carolina. Mrs. Chapman had secured a poison prevention kit from the Miami APhA Convention which was used as a basis. It was decided that Dr. Jay Arena, President of the American Academy of Poison Control, and director of the Duke University Poison Prevention Center, would be invited to speak at the fall workshop, and poison prevention kits would be obtained for distribution. We planned to use Gleason's Clinical Toxicology as a reference and place this manual in accessible areas over the state.

Poison Prevention kits were secured from the National Safety Council of Chicago.

Mrs. George Cocolas made and presented a poster listing all of the one hundred North Carolina counties. She had a dream that each county would have poison information available. The state project was introduced to the ladies and Dr. Jay Arena of Duke University Poison Control, was the guest speaker. He emphasized the need of poison prevention not only for children but for teens, geriatrics, and the entire family. The poison prevention kits were distributed and information on available material was listed.

This material consisted of slides, titled Go Seek and Hide and a speaker's bureau located at Chapel Hill. It was left to the local Auxiliary or individual to decide on an effective way to adopt the program for their immediate area.

Nominating: Mrs. C. D. Blanton, Jr., Chm.

The following slate of officers was presented for the year 1969-1970:

President—Mrs. W. P. Wells, Durham.

1st Vice President—Mrs. Grover Creech, Smithfield.

2nd Vice President—Mrs. Banks Kerr, Raleigh.

Secretary—Mrs. Joseph Bland, High Point.

Treasurer—Mrs. John Henley, Hope Mills.

Historian—Mrs. Jack Watts, Burlington.

Parliamentarian—Mrs. A. H. Mebane, III, Greensboro.

The slate of officers submitted by the Nominating Committee were elected by acclamation of the Assembly.

Mrs. Don Chapman read a letter from Mr. James Creech naming the winners in the Poison Prevention program. Since there were no individual entries, two local Auxiliary awards were announced; the Greensboro and the Asheville Auxiliaries. Their plaques and cash awards will be presented at the 1969 Fall Convocation.

A standing ovation was given Mrs. James L. Creech, the retiring member of the board, for her years of outstanding service to the Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. W. P. Wells, First Vice President, took the chair while the President gave her report. This report, given by Mrs. Don Chapman, is attached and made a part of these minutes.

Mrs. Chapman recognized and thanked Mrs. Banks D. Kerr, local Convention Chairman, and Mrs. Henry Ferrell, President of the Raleigh Drug Auxiliary and members of the Raleigh Auxiliary for the splendid job they had done in making the Convention such a success.

The pages were recognized and thanked for their help during the Convention.

Mrs. Chapman announced that the business session was recessed until one o'clock at which time it would be resumed at the Sealtest luncheon at the Velvet Cloak Inn.

Upon resuming the 42nd Annual Business-Luncheon meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the NCPHA, Mrs. C. H. Smith of Charlotte gave the invocation.

Mr. W. E. Strickland, Wilson, District Manager of Sealtest, brought greetings from the hosts for the luncheon. Response was given by Mrs. Hubert M. Coffee of Thomasville.

Mrs. Chapman recognized all past Auxiliary Presidents. She also recognized all local Auxiliary Presidents and introduced the people sitting at the head table.

Mrs. Betty Ann Gable, Manager of Burton's-Cameron Village, was introduced and she recognized models for the store as they presented a fashion show during the luncheon.

An impressive Installation of Officers was conducted by Mrs. George Markham of Fayetteville.

Mrs. Chapman presented Mrs. Wells, the newly elected President, with the President's Traveling Pin and the President's Gavel; after which Mrs. Wells presented Mrs. Chapman with the Past-President's Pin.

A silver bowl was presented to Mrs. Chapman on behalf of the Auxiliary by Mrs. George Cocolas as a token of appreciation for a job well done.

After announcements, prizes, and expressions of appreciation to the luncheon hosts, the 42nd Annual Business Session of the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association was declared adjourned.

EIGHTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NORTH CAROLINA BOARD OF PHARMACY

MEMBERSHIP

There have been no changes in the membership of the Board during the year. At the June, 1968 meeting Clarence E. Page, Jr. was elected as President and W. H. Randall, Jr. as Vice-President. H. C. McAllister was reelected as Secretary-Treasurer.

MEETINGS

Ten meetings of the Board were held during the year at the office of the Board, 109 Church Street in Chapel Hill. As usual, examinations were held at the September and March meetings. The results of the examinations are entered elsewhere in this report.

PHARMACISTS, FACILITIES AND SERVICES

Our state continues to occupy the unenviable position of having the fewest pharmacists per hundred thousand population of any state in the continental U. S. Under the dynamic leadership of Dean Hager our School of Pharmacy is moving rapidly forward not only to correct the numbers deficiency in pharmacist personnel but also, and perhaps more importantly, the School and its faculty are developing new and impressive areas of pharmacy practice that will prepare our students to function more effectively in the future main stream of health care.

Although information on the number of pharmacists and pharmacy outlets that are available to serve the public is contained in this report's summary tables, it is interesting to point out certain facts about these numbers.

PHARMACISTS

On April 30th there were 2507 pharmacists on the active rolls. This is an increase of 95 over the figure reported last year. The number in active practice on a full-time basis increased by 99 and the increase in the number in community practice was 119. This favorable showing in the last mentioned group is accounted for by the new graduates and by women who were previously in part-time practice. There was a loss of 9 in the number of pharmacists who practice full-time in hospitals. The handsome increase this year in the number of pharmacists in full-time practice represents a maturity of the prediction made last year and it is believed that we can look forward to an even more favorable report for next year. The decrease in the number of pharmacists practicing full-time in hospitals was disappointing. It is believed, however, that this is only a temporary setback. Our training program in hospital pharmacy should begin to improve the picture in this specialty very soon.

In connection with pharmacist practice in hospitals, it has been gratifying to note how rapidly hospital administrators are coming to appreciate the valuable contributions that the pharmacist makes to better patient care in their institutions. Without question this will be one of the major areas of pharmacy practice in the future. Much of what has been accomplished to this point is as a result of the efforts of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance. Grant funds for this program will expire very soon. We are confident that a program at the School of Pharmacy will be developed that will continue this important work in the future.

PHARMACIES

As of April 30th there were 1165 pharmacy or drug store permits outstanding in the state. This represents a net increase of 20 during the fiscal year. This figure of 20 additional pharmacies, however, does not fully represent the changes that have occurred during the year. A better insight into these can be had from a review of the original pharmacy permits issued by the Board.

It will be recalled that original permits are issued for:

1. New pharmacies or drug stores
2. The transfer of 50% or more of the ownership of an established pharmacy to a successor.

(Note: The figure 50% was changed to 51% at the March Board meeting.)

During the fiscal year 109 original permits were issued. These permits can be classified as follows:

Transfers of ownership of independent or community pharmacies .....	38
Transfers of ownership of chain drug stores .....	3
Transfers of ownership of independent pharmacies to chain stores .....	7
New community pharmacies .....	16
New chain stores .....	20
Full service hospital pharmacies .....	5
Limited service hospital pharmacies .....	19
Limited service nursing homes .....	1

There were 36 independent community pharmacies closed during the year. Four additional independent drug stores were consolidated with existing independent outlets. Adding to this the number of independent pharmacies that were bought by chains, there was a net decline of 47 in the number of independent pharmacies and a net increase of 27 chain drug stores during the year.

PRESCRIPTIONS

While prescription service is only a part of the total health service performed by our pharmacists, it is indeed an important one. Drugs continue to play an increasingly important role in patient treatment. One evidence of this fact is the continued increase in the number of prescriptions filled in the pharmacies in the state. Based upon reports from more than 50% of the pharmacies in the state, there was an average of 27,332 prescriptions per pharmacy dispensed last year. This compares with 25,951 for the previous year and represents an increase of 5.5% over that year. This increase is doubtless accounted for by the Asian flu epidemic. Using this average number of prescriptions per pharmacy and multiplying it by the number of registered outlets, it appears that there were approximately 28 million prescriptions filled in the state by community pharmacies. This figure does not include those prescriptions dispensed by hospital pharmacies.

The large numbers of prescriptions dispensed in some of our pharmacies as compared with the pharmacist personnel available for this important work is becoming a matter of concern to the Board. This concern is two-fold. First, persons without adequate pharmacy training are being utilized to assist the pharmacist with his work. Little by little the activities of these individuals are extended into areas where they are ill-equipped to function safely. In these situations all too often the pharmacist cannot give the detailed supervision that would assure a completely safe functioning of this non-pharmacist personnel as anticipated by good pharmacy practice and by the law. The suggestion has been made that the Board regulate the practice of non-pharmacist technicians by restricting the number of persons who might assist a given pharmacist in his work. Because of the apparent acute shortage of pharmacists in our state, the Board has been reluctant to proceed in this area. Unless there is improvement in this situation, however, it might be necessary for the Board to take some action on this matter.

The second source of concern to the Board relative to high volume prescription practice is the lack of patient contact in the procedures that are sometimes used. In some pharmacies a sort of assembly line technique is employed in which the patient has no contact whatever with the pharmacist. The professional service that the patient receives is little more than what he would get from a vending machine. The pharmacist service is largely a distributive one. In purchasing a prescription the patient is entitled to more than a commodity and the information about it that he can read on the label. It is the pharmacist's professional obligation to assure himself that the patient not only knows when and how to take his medication but also that he understands, among other things, any food or drink that is to be avoided, any side effect that might be expected, or any activity that might be inappropriate while taking the medication. It is evident that a significant number of pharmacists are not fully discharging their professional responsibilities in this area. There is presently before the Board a request from a committee of the State Medical Society for the Board to pass a regulation requiring that pharmacists place a label stating "Caution: This drug affects driving ability" on all prescriptions for barbituates, amphetamines, antihistamines, and tranquilizers. Might not we properly expect that the pharmacist would routinely instruct his patrons on such matters without the force of regulation requiring him to do so?

LAW ENFORCEMENT ACTIVITIES

The Board has continued its inspection and law enforcement program as in the past. In this area the Board has experienced a number of disappointments during the year. Although Inspector Davis continues to attempt to cover the state, he has had to spread himself too thin to do the effective job that he would like. He is constantly faced with the necessity for the postponement of needed work in favor of more acute needs. It had been hoped that before this time the Board could announce that the vacancy in the inspection staff had been filled. Three serious candidates for the position have been considered by the Board. However, none of these accepted the position. Nevertheless, a continued effort will be made to fill this need. The report of Inspector Davis will summarize his activities for the year.

Thirty-two persons have appeared before the Board during the year as a result of disciplinary actions. These are summarized as follows:

Violation of the Barbituate and Stimulant Drug Law	1
Pharmacy Practice by Unlicensed Persons	14
Unsanitary Premises	1
Class X Narcotic Irregularities	6
Sale of Legend Drugs without Prescription	7
Intemperate Use of Alcohol	1

Substitution	1
Drug Addiction	1

The actions by the Board in these cases were as follows:

Revocation of Pharmacist's License	1
Suspension of Pharmacist's License	3
Revocation of Pharmacy Permit	2
Suspension of Pharmacy Permit	2
Affidavits of Compliance	19
Probation with Periodic Appearances before the Board	4
Surrender of Narcotic Tax Stamp	1
Letter of Censure	1

The Board continues to receive good assistance from the State Bureau of Investigation and from the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in its enforcement program.

LEGISLATION

Two bills affecting pharmacy practice have been introduced in the current session of the Legislature. It is understood that a third measure is being considered for introduction.

Code of Professional Conduct— One of the bills which is now being considered in the Legislature would, if passed, require the Board of Pharmacy to adopt and enforce a code of professional conduct for pharmacists. This proposal did not originate with the Board but was submitted to the members for comment prior to its introduction. During its consideration the observation was made that although similar responsibilities had been placed on a number of boards of pharmacy in the U. S., codes of professional conduct are usually thought of as instruments of professional associations and not requirements to be enforced by law. It was recognized, however, that the sanctions available to professional associations in pharmacy are usually not sufficiently strong to assure compliance with the code and, further, that there are significant numbers of pharmacists who are not members of any professional association. The Board readily acknowledges that there should be some mechanism of professional control to insure proper performance where the minimums of law leave off. It is also aware that this mechanism must be sufficiently viable to meet the changing requirements of public need. In view of these considerations, it was the consensus of the Board that unless and until an enforceable code of professional conduct could be developed and administered by the Association, it would accept this responsibility if it is placed upon it by the Legislature. It should be recalled, however, that any requirement that the Board might establish in this area must be firmly based on public protection and not for the purpose of personal or professional aggrandizement.

Dangerous Drug Act Amendments—What might be termed "an omnibus dangerous substance act" has been introduced at the request of the State Bureau of Investigation. The objective of this bill is to provide better means of controlling the illicit traffic in drugs and to combat drug abuse. Some portions of it will affect the pharmacist in that it places certain limitations on the quantities of Class X narcotic preparations that might be sold and requires special labeling and record keeping beyond those presently in effect. Most of the requirements of this bill as they affect the pharmacist are already being voluntarily imposed by him.

Civil Penalty—The 1967 session of the Legislature amended the law so as to provide certain grounds for the suspension or revocation of a pharmacist's license or a pharmacy permit. A proposal which has not yet been introduced in the Legislature would further amend the law to give the Board the power to assess a civil penalty (a monetary fine to be collected in the name of the state) in lieu of the suspension or revocation of a license or permit. While this proposal also did not originate with the Board, it was submitted to the members for an expression of the Board's attitude toward it. After considering the matter, it was the consensus of the members that, while such authority was not essential to the Board's basis regulatory function, it would give additional latitude to the Board in resolving some of the problems that come before it. Further, that based upon the experience of some boards of pharmacy who now have and employ this power, a civil monetary penalty might be a more appropriate way to dispose of some cases than the methods now employed by the Board.

PHARMACY INTERNSHIP

Up until last year the program design of internship largely represented the ideas of the Board members and those of students, preceptors and consultants whom the Board contacted from time to time. Last year the Tripartite Committee on Practical Pharmacy Experience was formed. This committee is composed of three members each from the NCPA, the School of Pharmacy and the Board. This has been a serious, diligent and hard working group. It has held five meetings during the year. It made an in-depth study of our internship program and compared it with a similar study of some 7 or 8 of what were believed to be the best programs in other states. It has surveyed students and preceptors to learn what they thought were the strong and weak points of our program. It considered recommendations from student organizations. The committee sought to get the best information possible from whatever source relative to pharmacy internship.

After having studied all of its material the committee reached two basic conclusions:

1. An internship experience cannot be of maximum benefit without a positive attitude on the part of the preceptor to teach and an eagerness on the part of the student to learn.
2. The North Carolina program with some modifications is as good as any to be found in the country and is better than most.

A detailed report of the committee's activities, along with recommendations, was made to the Board. With one minor exception, because of legal considerations, the Board has adopted all of the Tripartite Committee's recommendations and will have them ready for implementation this summer. The Board will also support the internship program by again having a field representative call on interns and preceptors. It will also continue to make every effort to see that the year of practical experience as required by law is a truly meaningful learning experience.

NEW TRENDS CONTINUE

In the last Annual Report the Board identified certain problems that are developing in our system of delivering health care services. Changes that are designed to solve these problems are occurring at a rate that is more rapid than most people realize. Already pharmacy is faced with many serious and basic questions. Although these questions perhaps are not as sharply identified to us in North Carolina as they are in some of the other parts of the country, they should concern us equally as much. For example, will the pharmacist of the future be a medication consultant practicing in an institutional environment or will he be a highly skilled technician functioning in a largely distributive capacity where the economics of his services are likely to determine his success? Will the shortage of traditionally trained health personnel, coupled with the tremendously expanded demand for health care services, require that the pharmacist assume roles that he hasn't had in the past? Are there likely to be two types of pharmacists supplying different levels of health care? What is the future of the pharmacist's place of practice and what will it be like? Who will pay for his services? These and many more are questions that are searching for answers. The Board of Pharmacy, of course, will not provide the answers and it will likely have little influence on how these questions are answered. In the final analysis it will be the public, the recipients of health services, that will determine in the end how they are answered. In your interest the best that the Board can do as the public's representative in pharmacy is to advise you to prepare for change because this change will certainly come. If in meeting these changes you will put the public's interest first then you should have little cause to worry about your own interest.

Re: Annual Report of Attorney for the Board of Pharmacy 1968-1969

Gentlemen:

It has been my pleasure to serve as the attorney for the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy during the year 1968-1969, and I submit herewith a summary of my activities at this position.

For each of the regular meetings of the Board, I have been present and acted as legal advisor to the Board and have spoken to the applicants for licenses on the subject of the Pharmacy Laws of North Carolina. During the meetings this year in disciplinary actions, I have participated as the attorney for the Board in the development of facts arising in these proceedings and have advised the Board as to the legal effect or consequence of such factual information.

During November, I attended at Kansas City, Missouri, a meeting of attorneys representing Boards of Pharmacy of several states to confer on the activities of mail order pharmacies located throughout the United States. Court actions in the nature of injunctive proceedings being undertaken by other Boards of Pharmacy were reviewed and their effect upon our situation in North Carolina was studied as to mail order pharmacies.

I appreciate very much the opportunity during this year of being associated with the Board and its staff and hope that my efforts on behalf of the Board have been satisfactory to the Board and its staff and to pharmacists throughout North Carolina.

Very truly yours,

BAILEY, DIXON & WOOTEN
Kenneth Wooten, Jr.

Your reputation goes on the line every time you fill a prescription—with patients and with physicians alike. ## Discount Prescription Ad Ban Upheld in Virginia

(Reprinted from the Richmond Times-Dispatch, October 30, 1969)

In a ruling of national import in the pharmacy field, a three-judge federal court has held that Virginia can ban the advertising of discount prices on prescription drugs but can't ban the giving of discounts.

The court thus upheld the constitutionality of a major portion of a disputed new Virginia law—and in the process held in effect that pharmacy is a profession, as a previous state law defined it to be.

Many pharmacists have maintained that point.

Reveco Drug Centers, the chain which brought suit in Lynchburg through its Patterson Drug Co. subsidiary against the State Board of Pharmacy, had asked the court to rule that pharmacy is not a profession.

The state attorney general's office conceded in a brief that more than 95 per cent of today's drugs are not compounded by a local pharmacist but are "dispensed by the count and pour method."

"ONLY CLERICAL DUTIES"

But it said the plaintiffs' conclusion from this "that pharmacists perform only clerical duties" is counter to the holdings of numerous state courts and legislatures.

The state cited testimony of an expert that with today's highly potent drugs the danger to the patient from a pharmacist's error is much greater than of old and high skill is required.

The special U.S. court said that "from the evidence we find that dispensing prescription drugs affects the public health, safety and welfare." In essence the court concluded that because it does, the state can regulate the advertising and sale.

"Reveco proved that the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association, the Virginia Board of Pharmacy, and individual pharmacists lobbied for the 1968 amendment that proscribed advertising. And there can be no doubt that the amendment was designed primarily to regulate discount drug chains, including Reveco," the court said.

ANTICOMPETITIVE EFFECT

"We have not overlooked the anticompetitive effect of the ban on advertising. However, we are not empowered to determine whether the statute is wise or foolish, economically or improvident. Decision of these issues lies with the state legislature.

"It is enough for us to hold, as we do, that Virginia's prohibition against advertising the retail price of prescription drugs and the terms upon which they are sold is a constitutional exercise of the state's police power."

The decision, the first of its kind by a federal court in the pharmacy field, was written by Judge John D. Butzner, Jr. of the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals. Other members of the special three-judge panel were U.S. District Judges Ted Dalton and Richard B. Kellam.

At issue was a 1968 state law defining unprofessional conduct of a pharmacist.

In part the definition applies the offense to any pharmacist who "issues, publishes, advertises or promotes, directly or indirectly . . . any amount, price, fee, premium, discount, rebate or credit terms for professional services or for drugs containing narcotics or . . . which may be dispensed only by prescription.

The court took issue with the one word, "issues."

"Virginia's officials have read this statute literally," and the pharmacy board has construed it "to prevent offering discounts or savings on prescription drugs," Judge Butzner wrote.

He agreed with Reveco's point that the board's application of the law prevented the chain from giving its discount to the elderly and giving a discount to institutions.

The court enjoined the board from pro-

REVEO'S COMPLAINT

Reveo had complained that the board's action had caused it to lose substantial business; that the law violates First Amendment free speech guarantees and Fourteenth Amendment guarantees of due process and equal protection; that it imposes a burden on interstate commerce, and that the Federal Trade Commission Act removes from states the power to regulate drug promotion and sales.

The three-judge court even accepted "the major premise implicit in the (state's) argument—(that) prescription drugs are so intimately related to the public health" that the state can fix their prices without violating due process.

But the court said that on this score the law is "so vague and uncertain" that it would deny due process to an offending pharmacist and therefore the price-fixing portion is invalid.

The pharmacy board had threatened to revoke the licenses of pharmacists in any Reveo store that advertised discounts or savings on prescription drug prices. It also forbade use of the slogans, "Every Day is Savings Day on Everything at Reveo" and "America's Only Total Discount Drug Chain." The board said those practices constituted unprofessional conduct.

In a follow-up press release, Reveo President Sidney Dworkin said that "the company's position concerning the professionalism of pharmacy has been grossly distorted" in the court ruling. He added that Reveo "has never, and will never, directly or indirectly infer that any pharmacist is anything less than a professional."

ANNUAL MEETING BOARD OF DIRECTORS, N. C. PHARMACEUTICAL RESEARCH FOUNDATION

Foundation President Charles Blanton of Kings Mountain called the session to order at 2:00 p.m. and gave special recognition to the following newly elected Directors: E. R. Fuller, W. R. McDonald, B. D. Kerr, R. H. Sloop, W. B. Gurley and Alfred N. Martin.

The following items of business were discussed:

1. Communications—Dean Hager read letters of condolence he had written concerning the passing of two of the members of the Board of Directors during the past year, Mr. W. S. Wolfe and Mr. C. C. Fordham, Jr. Other communications concerned the establishment of a fund honoring Mr. T. M. Stanback of Salisbury and the purchase of bonds in support of the Kappa Psi and Phi Delta Chi fraternities.

2. Report on the Foundation and the 1968-69 Fund Drive—Mr. Blanton remarked that this year's drive was the most successful drive in the history of the Foundation. The final report of the fund drive showed there were 440 contributions received for a total of $22,996, compared to $16,043 contributed in 1967-68. A Final Report on 1968-69 Fund Drive was prepared by Dean Hager for distribution to the Board of Directors and this report is attached to and made a part of these minutes.

Dean Hager had prepared a Financial Report covering the period July 1, 1968 to June 30, 1969 which was distributed to the Board members. This report is also attached to and made a part of these minutes.

3. Treasurer's Report—Mr. Glenn Guy was called upon for this report. He explained the stock market situation at the present time, indicating that the past year has been extremely difficult for those involved in investments. Because of the financial condition of the country he pointed out that the Foundation had not gained much, but neither had it lost much.

There was a general discussion and Mr. Guy answered numerous questions posed to him from the floor.

4. Auditor's Report—Mr. William Inman, Auditor, was not present. Mr. Blanton asked Dean Hager to give the Auditor's Report. Dean Hager read Mr. Inman's letter addressed to the Board of Directors concerning the audit. Most of the information in the audit report was contained in the Financial Report, which the Directors had reviewed. After a brief discussion, Mr. Pike moved that the Audit Report be approved. The motion was seconded by Mr. Rogers and carried.

5. Budget Proposed by the Faculty—The proposed budget totalling $42,263 was reviewed by Dean Hager with the Directors and after discussion, a motion was made by Mr. Welch and seconded by Mr. Barbour that the proposed budget be approved. The motion carried unanimously.

President Blanton called the Board's attention to Item IV-a (Administrative Salaries), where no budget had been requested for salary of Dean Hager, Secretary of the Foundation. He expressed the opinion that the Foundation should compensate Dean Hager for his time and effort on behalf of the Foundation. Mr. Blanton appointed the following committee to study this item and report their suggestions to him: Jesse Pike, Chairman, E. R. Fuller, and Robert Hall.

The following items of new business were discussed by the Board:

1. Endowment Fund for T. M. Stanback—After a brief discussion, Mr. Fuller made the motion that such a fund in honor of Mr. Stanback be established. Mr. West seconded the motion and it was carried unanimously.

2. Bond Purchases in Support of Kappa Psi and Phi Delta Chi—A proposal was made to the Board by Mr. Pike that consideration be given to the purchase of two bonds in the amount of $5,000 each to aid the Kappa Psi and Phi Delta Chi fraternities in building new houses. Mr. Pike pointed out that this would be an investment on the part of the Foundation—not a gift.

The Board discussed Mr. Pike's proposal pro and con and approved in essence the purchase of such bonds; however the Board felt that a contract should be prepared in the interest of the Foundation. Mr. Guy suggested that a resolution be prepared with the approval of the Board of Directors and in such resolution it should be made clear that the interest on such bonds would be payable upon occupancy of the houses.

Mr. McDuffie made the motion that a committee be appointed to work out the details of such a resolution. Mr. Reamer seconded the motion and it was carried. In light of the foregoing motion, Mr. Blanton appointed the following committee: Roger McDuffie, George Hager, Glenn Guy, George Albright and Larry Godwin.

3. The 1969-70 Fund Drive—Dean Hager asked the Board for their cooperation during the 1969-70 Fund Drive for contributions to the Foundation not only in their counties but in other counties as well. He pointed out that pharmacists in many counties made no contributions last year and he felt that personal contact by the directors was most important. Many of the directors agreed to offer their assistance in locating county solicitation chairmen for those non-participating counties.

With regard to Kick-off Dinners to motivate the pharmacists to contribute, the Dean expressed the opinion that this should be a local effort. He offered his assistance and cooperation to any county wishing to have a kick-off dinner.

4. Report of the Nominating Committee—Mr. Blanton asked Dr. McDuffie to give the recommendations of the Nominating Committee for officers for the coming year. These recommendations follow:

President—Charles D. Blanton
 Secretary—George P. Hager
 Treasurer—Glenn Guy

Executive Committee—F. Jackson Andrews, Wade A. Gilliam, W. B. Gurley, Robert Hall, Roger A. McDuffie, Herman Clinic, Steve Forrest, Banks Kerr, Jesse Pike, Dorsey Welch.

After the recommendations of the Nominating Committee, Mr. Reamer moved that the nominations be closed. Mr. Barbour seconded the motion. Thus, all nominations were approved by the Board and the slate of officers were thereby recorded as nominated.

The Directors then voted by secret ballot for two additional directors for four-year terms to 1974. Those directors newly elected were Mr. I. T. Reamer and Mr. H. C. Starling.

We are also pleased to announce the initiation of Thomas Cecil McCall and James Michael Badger into the brotherhood.

A vigorous intramural program is underway this year with football being the first event to be undertaken. We will field two teams this year and hope that luck will be kind to us and let us score some points for once. Also we will have one horseshoe pitching team, and four volleyball teams during the fall season. We look for good participation from our members and also for some good records.

The social aspect of the fall has not been overlooked. We had a get acquainted party for our pledges as our first event. Also, we participated in the Pharmacy Day events such as the combo party given by the School. We will have a combo party after the concert by the Fifth Dimension on Homecoming Weekend. The brothers of Phi Delta Chi would like to invite any alumni who happens to be in Chapel Hill to drop in to any of our parties and to come over to the house before or after any of the home games.

It's different. Costs nothing. And it's loaded with new business. You may want to look into it.

Both an aid to your pharmaceutical services and an opportunity for professional growth, the Nursing Home Program begins with personal assistance from your Roche representative. Through him you can get practical aids to help you service the pharmaceutical needs of extended care facilities.

These include a comprehensive guidebook on pharmaceutical services in the nursing home, a film strip, special literature on drug distribution systems, and detailed product information folders. Also available, a personalized reference service via telephone or mail on specific problems, and a reference service for speakers.

Like many other Roche programs, such as the Community Pharmacy Panel and the Hospital Pharmacy Advisory Board, the Nursing Home Program was conceived by pharmacists at Roche to help advance community pharmacy's position in patient care, particularly for the chronically ill and aged.

Towards this goal, Roche continues the search for new and practical services for the neighborhood practitioner.

The Pharmacist's Role in the Community

By STONEWALL C. KING, PHARM. D.

School of Pharmacy, University of Georgia

INTRODUCTION

The theme, which in broad general terms, describes my presentation today might best be related to the following quotation from the great author, Thomas Wolfe, a native of North Carolina, who wrote the following words in his book, "The Web and the Rock":

"If a man has a talent and cannot use it, he has failed. If he has a talent and uses only half of it, he has partly failed. If he has a talent and learns somehow to use the whole of it, he has gloriously succeeded and won a satisfaction and a triumph few men ever know."

There is a special satisfaction to me in addressing a group such as this—a group of pharmacists who, by your very presence here, are demonstrating a keen sense of responsibility to your profession and to the communities in which you practice.

I shall address my remarks to the discussion of professional roles and services of pharmacists in communities and not to religious, social and political responsibilities, for example, expected of us as citizens of our respective communities. These latter roles are vitally important but shall be set aside from discussion in my remarks today.

Today's practice of pharmacy offers a new horizon in a changing professional role for pharmacy graduates. We see sub-specialization, group practice, government involvement and changing curriculums at schools of pharmacy to meet today's need for increased professional utilization of pharmacists as members of the health care team.

More emphasis is being placed by pharmacists on their specialized knowledge of drugs and on the public's and physician's individual needs of pharmacist's professional services. Today's health team deserves pharmacists' full-time professional practice, not fragmented professionalism. Our place in society today can be characterized by bigness and change; bigness is available but change is inevitable to all.

My discussion shall be confined to remarks concerning manpower, expanding professional activities, utilization, trends in delivery of health services, regional medical programs, and continuing education.

MANPOWER

The problems in health manpower are serious, complex, and urgent. Some of these problems are not unique to health care institutions but are general problems that society must solve. Others, the health care field must solve. In the solving of these problems we need to keep in mind our basic objective—to assure that the dignity of the individual is preserved as we improve the utilization of manpower and the efficiency of the health care system.

The United States today has more than 120,000 practicing pharmacists with over 90% of them practicing in the community practice. Approximately 10,000 pharmacists practice in hospitals today. In Georgia of more than 2,000 practicing pharmacists we have about 150 who practice full-time in hospitals. We have twelve nursing homes of 225 total that employ pharmacists on a part-time basis while none employs a full-time pharmacist. More than 50% of Georgia's hospital pharmacists live and work within greater Metropolitan Atlanta. The nursing problem in Georgia equally is concentrated within Metropolitan Atlanta where there live 3,528 of 8,575 of Georgia's active R.N.'s, or 41%. Perhaps most states have similar shortages of physicians and nurses especially in rural or smaller urban communities. Now, let us think a few moments of the community pharmacies found throughout North Carolina and Georgia—from the smallest rural community such as the one in which I was born—to the larger urban centers. Pharmacies aren't nearly as plentiful as service stations, thank goodness, but there appears to me to be a plentiful supply to serve the health needs in the many towns and cities in which I frequently visit.

I don't advocate reducing the number of pharmacists or pharmacies, but rather, the fuller utilization of talents for expanding professional activities. We are constantly reminded in the literature today of the pharmacist being utilized too much of his time in merchandising functions and inadequately as a full professional. Pharmacists have been inclined to think about drugs in a mechanical sort of way—but all too often, they have not related the user—the patient—to this service. In other words, we tend to be drug or commodity oriented and not often enough, patient oriented. This is evidenced in the lack of adequate consultant pharmacy services in many of our smaller hospitals, nursing homes, county health clinics and state infirmaries throughout the United States. Also, too often there has been insufficient enthusiasm of pharmacists to help the public understand better the OTC drugs, other self-administered medications, poison control information and maintaining patient record files. Let us always keep in mind that the commercial product we sell alone does not make us a professional, but, additional responsibilities are necessary ingredients.

UTILIZATION

Some pharmacists today have begun to utilize their special training and knowledge to find additional ways to contribute their services. Examples include:

consultants to small hospitals, nursing homes, and other health-related facilities.

serve on P & T Committees and other related committees within the community's hospitals.

specialists in OTC drugs and advising the public on their uses and contra-indications.

patient and family record systems.

poison control—lectures to public, medical and paramedical personnel, exhibits, information files, distribution of antidotal charts.

improve and develop more meaningful internship programs.

teach pharmacology and calculations in local LPN and R.N. programs.

professionally communicate more closely with other members of the health team.

compile certain incompatibility files to alert the physicians and nurses.

advise the public concerning accessories and health supplies.

assist in local nursing refresher courses at local vocational schools and/or hospitals.

attend special lectures at your local hospital periodically.

You should not feel that to be professional, in my eyes, requires that you implement all these suggestions, but, rather start with one or two—and do what you do well.

All pharmacists owe the public more contributions of talents to bring our available professional services into the contemporary setting to function for today's changing needs and demands.

In the Final Report of the Task Force on Prescription Drugs dated February 7, 1969, from the Office of the Secretary, H.E.W., the recommendations included a wide area of interests, such as the following one from page 19:

THE NEW ROLE OF PHARMACY.

“The pharmacy profession currently faces a dilemma which is partly though not entirely of its own making. Many other aspects of health care—the practice of medicine and surgery, hospital operations, and particularly drug manufacture—have developed and adopted new devices and techniques which have remarkably improved the provision of health services. In contrast the number of important new methods introduced to enhance the efficiency of retail pharmacy operations, at least during the past two or three decades, has not been noteworthy.”

“THE TASK FORCE RECOMMENDS THAT THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR

The Pharmacist's Role

HEALTH SERVICES RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT SHOULD DEVELOP AND SUPPORT RESEARCH TO IMPROVE THE EFFICIENCY AND EFFECTIVENESS OF COMMUNITY AND HOSPITAL PHARMACY PRACTICE."

"The role of the pharmacist is viewed by many people as simply transferring pills from a large bottle to a small one—counting tablets, typing labels, and calculating the price. Much of his time is seen as devoted to routine merchandising of cosmetics, shaving supplies, stationery and other commodities which have little or no relationship to health care. This has raised doubts concerning the relevance of modern pharmacy education. As with other members of health professions, on the one hand, it would seem that much of the traditional education is not utilized, since a nonprofessional person—working under the supervision of a licensed pharmacist—can effectively perform many of the routine tasks of counting, labeling, and pricing. At the same time, many pharmacists are seeking a new role as a drug information specialist, and thus it would appear that their formal education has not taken this into account. These problems regarding what the role of the pharmacist properly is—or should be—deserve careful consideration."

The concern for reallocation or better utilization of manpower is a common problem to many groups including our profession of pharmacy. Much has been said in recent years about technicians and their place in our area of pharmacy. Other professions are having similar concern. Recent trends indicate that a cost of $100.00 for an average day's stay in the hospital is rapidly approaching. Clearly, this necessitates increased efforts on the part of management to ensure that such expenditures are wholly justified. In the South Atlantic region which includes N. C., S. C., Ga., and 7 other nearby states, the daily hospitalization cost now approaches an average of more than $55 per day in hospitals of the 101-225 size, and $70 per day in hospitals exceeding 226 beds. Today's average hospital stay in short term, general hospitals in the U. S. is about 7 days. Pharmacy services account only for between $2.05 and $2.32 of the daily patient charges or, in other words, an average of 3.5% according to the latest figures. Nursing service, administration and dietary, in that order, constitute the largest amounts among some 14 component areas of categorized expenses per patient day by departments.

Pharmacists in hospital practice have seen how much pharmacy work really is forced on nurses when the pharmacies are closed, further burdening the poor nurses to assume additional tasks for which they really are not trained, when they are already overburdened and often times made unavailable for nursing attention. In a study on hospital manpower utilization conducted in 1961 by the Duke Endowment in hospitals of N. C. and S. C., it was found that almost one-third of the time of nursing personnel was spent in non-nursing activities. Then consider the amount of pharmacy having to be practiced by non-pharmacists in hospitals not having the benefit of a pharmacist's services even on a part-time or consultant basis. Thus, maximum accomplishments of a formal program aimed at improved professional manpower utilization depends, in the final analysis, on the informal structure of attitudes and relationships within the profession and it is a wise professional person who will chart successfully a course of improvement in a profession such as pharmacy where the public's concern comes first and demands of us to identify and prove to ourselves first that we are truly essential members on the health care team. The proper stimulus to professional growth and development begins with our practitioners—not with words, but attitude.

Once I heard a health professional say that too many of us have two sets of objectives—one for real and one for show. There's an old saying which has a certain element of truth. It goes like this—"I will not do what you expect me to do—but rather, what you inspect me to do."

The Pharmacist's Role

pharmacy and its future impact as well as other new areas of specialization within our profession; however, some of the so-called new areas of specialization are not, in fact, new. Perhaps many of the younger pharmacists especially think of this as being quite new and sophisticated. But do you know that one of the earliest clinical pharmacists practiced in Columbus, Ohio, before the turn of the century in 1898? He was the American short story writer, William Sidney Porter, a native North Carolinian from Greensboro, who wrote under the pen name of O. Henry. O. Henry worked as a night pharmacist in a hospital in Columbus and wrote this in a letter about his work to a friend:

"The hospital is a separate building and is one of the finest equipped in the country. It is large and finely furnished and has every appliance of medicine and surgery . . . the work is about the same as in any drug store, filling prescriptions, etc., and is pretty lively up until about ten o'clock. At 7 p.m. I take a medicine case and go the rounds with the night physician to see the patients over in the main building who have become sick during the day. The doctor goes to bed about ten o'clock and from then on during the night I prescribe for the patients myself and go out and attend calls that come in. If I find anyone seriously ill I have them brought over to the hospital and attended by the doctor . . . the hospital wards have from 100 to 200 patients in them all of the time. They have all kinds of diseases—at present typhus fever and measles are the fashion. Consumption here is more common than bad colds at home . . ."

This was the message O. Henry wrote to a friend in Austin, Texas, from Columbus where he was a hospital pharmacist—and one of America's greatest short story writers. Later he left the four walls of his pharmacy and went to New York City where he continued to write. But during his term as a pharmacist in hospital practice he also accompanied the physician on medical rounds and helped him prescribe and thus was one of America's first clinical pharmacists.

This tends to support my belief that at the time the pharmacist made his own medicines he was a more respected member of the community, recognized and more fully accepted by the physician as a professional ally. Sir Winston Churchill once stated, "The farther we can see into the past, the farther forward we can see into the future."

Each pharmacist should recognize that he—as an indispensable member of the health team—is important to proper and effective functioning of the Medicare, Medicaid, and other health delivery programs. Since he often is the first professional in the community to talk to someone who is ill or to hear about a family's medical problems, he is able to act as a one man referral service. He is also a consultant to the other providers of medical care and services and adds a special kind of expertise to patient care.

Some of our merging programs encourage a strong pharmacist-patient-physician relationship—one of the primary requisites for good care. We have already seen them assisting the community pharmacists provide high quality service to people who might not be able to afford it otherwise.

The popular Federal Hill-Burton Act for about two decades has helped to finance the construction of many new, small hospitals and related health facilities throughout this country. Much good has been accomplished but recently emphasis has been shifted from constructing additional physical plants to the improvement of existing plants; and hopefully to more concern for professional manpower deficiencies and adequate personnel needs for these many facilities.

The Pharmaceutical Center concept in community practice without any display to merchandise, has not been as widely accepted to date as some pharmacists would like to see; however, this lag of support by the nation's community pharmacists to construct this new type of physical plant, as I see it, in no way indicates that those who don't change are less professional than those who build the new facilities. ## The Pharmacist's Role really needs to be studied more critically is exactly how and how much are highly trained and highly qualified pharmacists today using appropriately professional talents for best serving the health needs of our communities? Have we been overly concerned about changing our physical image (modern pharmacies, etc.) and letting this overshadow needed changes in our professional image? Or do both go hand in hand? Today, there are countless physicians who are turning to the development of newly created health care specialists to assume some of their own former responsibilities when, in fact, many pharmacists are in a position and desirous of the opportunity to make fuller professional contributions—far broader than just controlling and dispensing medications.

Once I received a letter from a hospital pharmacist with "O.P." following his name. Later, when I asked him what "O.P." after his name means, he looked at me in a startled manner and said, "why Only Pharmacist, of course." We have many O. P.'s in both the community and hospital practice today but I believe that should not stop our efforts toward seeking new methods and ways to deliver our services to the citizens of our communities. Perhaps we could re-evaluate our opening and closing hours, or even our present methods of delivery services. How many of you utilize patient record systems, for example? Computers are being utilized for certain management needs by some pharmacists. Discounters and department stores have apparently eliminated the traditional delivery services as being essential for their success. I have often wished that some community pharmacists who are consultants to small hospitals and nursing homes would consider the possibility of changing opening hours at their pharmacies to later in the morning—say 11 a.m., so that each morning's activities might be spent at the hospital or nursing home. This might necessitate even certain physical plant renovations at the store so as to continue, if desired, to enable the sundry section of the business to open earlier than the pharmacy office. How exciting it would be to see or read of some success stories of this type of research in delivery methods or systems analysis. The public accepts the physicians' spending several hours each morning at the hospitals attending patients there prior to arriving at their office to begin seeing ambulatory patients.

The life of a child, dying of pneumonia, may be spared by a single injection of an antibiotic but this by no means insures the continued good health of the child, particularly if the child has been born to poor parents in a rural area. That is why planners, in planning for health, must not be myopic. They must be concerned with many interrelated problems, such as the income and educational level of the residents of their planning area.

Only recently, one of Georgia's graduates of 1955, Ben H. Eidam, Jr., owner of Waynesville Pharmacy, Waynesville, North Carolina, recounted to Dean Waters some of his experiences as a member of a Methodist-backed team of health professionals which headed into West and Central Africa to bring Modern Medical treatment to the citizens of various parts of the Dark Continent. I have brought to you some of his personal comments regarding this experience of 3 weeks he witnessed in Africa last year.

Some of his remarks in the letter follow:

"I appreciate very much your letter of September 6 in regards to my trip as a medical missionary. This trip was sponsored by Myers Park Methodist Church in Charlotte and consisted of 26 members. I felt very fortunate in being asked to participate since this was the first time a pharmacist has been requested to go along on one of these missions from this church. The team consisted of pediatricians, obstetricians, dentists, nurses, lab technicians, surgeons, 1 minister, 1 pharmacist, and 1 layman. Our mission was to carry modern medical techniques into the primitive areas of Africa. I can take my hat off to the drug manufacturers in the U. S. because most of the drugs I worked with over there had been donated by them."

Actor recommender?

Professional recommender?

We at A. H. Robins believe the doctor's and pharmacist's recommendation carries far more weight because they're professional men. That's why we don't have to promote our cough medicines on national TV or in newspaper ads. Instead, we rely on our "professional recommenders" program. We know this program is effective because it has made the Robitussin® family No. 2 in drug store sales.

Here's how it works. We employ and train a national sales force (many hundreds of them) who call regularly on 170,000 physicians and druggists. The MD's prescribe or suggest the Robitussins for their patients, and the pharmacists recommend them to their customers who are "shopping" for a good family cough preparation. The result—a constant demand and a fast turnover. Moreover, while the TV pitchman may be able to temporarily sway the public, he has no influence on the sound judgment of the professional recommenders. This is why, year in and year out, you can depend on consistent sales from the Robitussin line.

It's just good business to give the Robitussin family (now 5 of them!) the shelf space and facings it deserves. Remember, it's No. 2 in drug store sales because it's professionally recommended—both by the doctor and you. A. H. Robins Company, Richmond, Va. 23220 or on a consultant basis, has brought an increasing number of community pharmacists into part-time institutional practice. A national program conducted over the past two years by the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists to orient community pharmacists to institutional practice proved to be very successful. Other groups individually, notably the N. C. Plan of Pharmacy Assistance, under the direction of your own Fred Eckel and associates, has the nation looking to your great state for continued leadership in this area of vital concern.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) has always encouraged that there be a pharmacy directed by a registered pharmacist or at least a drug room under competent supervision. The trend throughout the nation is for individual states to require for licensure at least the services of a part-time pharmacist.

The JCAH advisory-consultant committee on pharmacy has recently made the recommendation that even though a hospital may have only a contractual relationship with a community pharmacy, a part-time pharmacist must regularly visit the hospital to check the drugs and the method of distribution. When the pharmacist is employed by the hospital on a part-time basis, there must be established a statement of standards governing services and responsibilities of both the pharmacist and the hospital. Two legal opinions have warned against consultant pharmacists' "selling" their licenses or names to an institution. (See your handouts for more details.)

Today, more and more other members of the health care team—physicians, nurses and other health specialists—are leaving rural and small urban areas, but pharmacies and pharmacists are still available perhaps plentifully to assist the public with certain health matters and counseling, and to help detect needed medical attention of the public and serve in an excellent capacity to make referrals to physicians or health agencies.

A physician told me of a recent survey of M.D.'s in rural private practice in New York State, where his Society found that 83% of those surveyed stated they would enter group practice over private practice if possible to begin again their professional practice. In pharmacy, a nationwide spot-check found 64% of practicing pharmacists would choose pharmacy again if given a second try.

For some pharmacists, as with many physicians, group practice may be one reasonable solution for the dilemma that community pharmacists have found themselves when they say they do not have the time to change, to add new responsibilities, to participate more in continuing education seminars and institutes, to serve their communities on more professional committees such as tuberculosis, cancer, mental health, health planning committees, to name only some. I commend for your reading an interesting article on group practice in pharmacy, written by Donald A. Dee, Executive Secretary of the Minnesota State Pharmaceutical Association, published in J.A.Ph.A., June, 1968.

The time has come when pharmacists must decide collectively are we colleagues or competitors? It is clear to me as I view the many professional "drug-use-control" functions and services needed of pharmacists by today's public, that we must be colleagues, not competitors, if we expect respect as professionals. Some pharmacists may want to place more emphasis on certain services they feel they like better and can contribute best while others may prefer different approaches as to what constitutes their contributions as professionals.

As community pharmacists begin to assume additional responsibilities in part-time and consultant services for smaller hospitals and nursing homes, then we shall see even more clearly the many similar interests which will place emphasis on the many similarities between the community and institutional practice and show even more clearly the need for all pharmacists to clearly understand the general concepts of pharmacy practice with the public, regardless of whether ambulatory and at their homes or sick and hospitalized. Perhaps the one big common responsibility in the near future which will bring pharmacists of all specialties of practice closer together as colleagues is their leadership and participation on Pharmacy and Therapeutics Committees at all hospitals.

REGIONAL MEDICAL PROGRAMS

The new concept of regional medical programs for specialized disease conditions was described in the DeBaKey Commission Report, which resulted in Congress' passing The Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke Bill. This new legislation provides for the development and planning of regional programs linking medical schools, affiliated hospitals and research clinics. Through these programs, the most current information and treatment techniques will be channelled to local community hospitals, to practicing physicians and to patients. Thus, eminent specialists in these centers will provide the leadership and treatment regimen for specific disease conditions. The potential influence of this concept, particularly if it is expanded to other disease conditions, is worthy of attention by pharmacists. The recommendations of these specialists will influence the prescribing habits of physicians in local community hospitals as well as in private practice. Specificity of drug therapy will come into sharper focus, and one might ask what relationship the specialists in the regional center will have with the Pharmacy and Therapeutics Committees in each participating hospital.

What might be the nature of specialized drug information centers as part of this regional program, and the role of the pharmacist in this over-all direction?

I have enclosed in the handout material additional specific information regarding Georgia's Regional Medical Program. A large number of Georgia's hospitals, physicians, nurses, and other health professionals presently participate in GRMP in the interest of improving patient care. I believe there is a place for interested pharmacists to participate on this program.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

While there are pharmacists who disagree with those who advocate mandatory requirements for continuing education, some states already make it mandatory to attend seminars or take courses annually for re-licensure.

In Montreal, Canada, the Quebec College of Pharmacists reported the initiation of a compulsory continuing education program (DRUG TOPICS, October 28, 1968). The program consists of a six month correspondence course which is planned to ensure that all members keep up with the latest developments in Pharmacy. Education is now coming of age in the health team. Less time is spent justifying the need for continuing education while more time is spent in a careful examination of all aspects of training and education, with an eye on expected performance. Some practicing M.D.'s are exchanging with medical residents for 2-3 months for "re-tread experience." This should prove to be mutually beneficial. The "blue-ribbon" committees, commissions, and advisory groups continually equate inefficiency, rising costs, and inadequate health services delivery to the poorly organized manner the health care system utilizes its human talent. The 1968 literature indicated that a philosophy regarding the training and development of all health care personnel is emerging. For example, at Penn State Medical School, each student is assigned a carefully selected family to follow all its health patterns (those with some typical varieties)—essentially practicing preventive medicine. Also, Tuskegee, Alabama has experiments in process using teach-mobiles to go into rural areas for maternity and infant and child care clinics.

I believe that a well conceived continuing education program is needed for pharmacists to close the gap between education and service to mankind.

Our educational program is one of adequate resources. Its real problem is the need first to determine what it wants to accomplish, for whom, and when. Only after this is done can our profession organize the available resources for continued progress and accomplishment.

CONCLUSION

We, as professionals, have a responsibility for the health and welfare of the public. We enter a profession to earn a livelihood, but the measure of our success is the service we render to mankind.

Pharmacy has a definite role to play in the future because comprehensive health planning is all-encompassing. We must first coordinate our own activity and put our own house in order if we are to plan, develop, establish, maintain, and improve the health resources of our state and assure our citizens the highest level of health attainable. We must live and work together. We have already seen that the providers of services, the users of the services, and government to work in partnership, have been demonstrated as acceptable thus far under the Medicare and Medicaid programs. Let us continue to work together and move forward to assure every individual the right to good health, for without it, all else becomes irrelevant. More pharmacists must hurry to help close the gap between our education and the extent of health service we offer mankind. We have much unused professional talent that other members of the health team and society deserve. Let us give of our best both individually and collectively, so that our profession can continue to grow in fuller service to our communities.

In conclusion, perhaps the one biggest lesson that our profession has learned from others of the health team is that pharmacy now is too complicated and the public too intelligent for any one of us to practice independently—regardless of the area of specialization we choose. Professional inter- dependence and communication are keys to the doors of bigness and change within our profession in today's changing times. Let's keep moving forward together.

AUXILIARY WORKSHOP SPOTLIGHTS "MOD"

"MOD (Misuse of Drugs) Education" was the theme when the Woman's Auxiliary of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association held its fall workshop at the Institute of Pharmacy on October 8.

Mrs. William P. Wells of Durham, presided. Members of the Chapel Hill Pharmaceutical Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Don McLeod, were hostesses for the coffee hour which preceded the meeting. Members of the state auxiliary hospitality committee, Mrs. Banks Kerr, Mrs. Romas T. White, and Mrs. Henry Ferrell of Raleigh assisted.

After special music by Mrs. A. N. Gale, soloist, accompanied by John T. Laverty of Durham, greetings were brought by the president of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, Earl H. Tate of Lenoir.

James L. Creech of Smithfield, immediate past-president of the N.C.Ph.A. presented plaques to the Greensboro and Western N. C. Auxiliaries for their outstanding work on Poison Prevention.

The workshop program was divided into two parts—the first being "Operation Education," in which information concerning the NCPHA auxiliary was discussed.

W. J. Smith, executive director of the NCPHA, reported on the auxiliary's scholarship and loan funds which are awarded annually to students in the UNC School of Pharmacy.

Mrs. Fred Ellis, president of the N. C. Council of Woman's Organizations, explained her organization's aims and objectives in relationship to other state volunteer groups.

Mrs. James L. Creech, an auxiliary past president, discussed the Hugh Mercer Apothecary Shop of Fredericksburg, Va., using slides to picture the museum and its pharmacy artifacts.

Following roll call by Mrs. Grover Creech, Smithfield, reports of committee chairmen were heard.

Part II of the Workshop—"Operation Membership Involvement" featured a visit from Santa Claus—who dramatized the N. C. Mental Health Association's project, Operation Santa Claus—a gift remembrance for forgotten patients in North Carolina's Mental Hospitals. Santa Claus was played by Cade Brooks, Fayetteville, president-elect of the NCPHA.

Mrs. Louis Harris of Chapel Hill used the remainder of the Workshop period to present the state project—MOD Education. A skit was used to dramatize the far-reaching effects of this project and showed how speakers, materials, and films are being made available to schools, civic clubs, and the general public as well as other interested people.

To add the homemaker's touch to a volunteer group's business and professional program, the Pharmacy Student Wives of Chapel Hill, under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Vaughn, presided at a black iron cooking pot where the members had deposited favorite recipes. The recipes are being compiled by the student wives and made into a mimeographed collection which is available to the membership upon a minimum contribution of fifty cents.

Following the workshop, members adjourned to Blair House for a luncheon where they were treated to a fashion show by Stewart's of Durham.

HIGH POINT

Jake Harris presented a program on handwriting analysis at the October meeting of the High Point Pharmaceutical Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. James W. Woodard.

Mr. Harris said a person's character is revealed in his handwriting by the basic formation and slant of the letters.

A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Jerry Moser, Vice-president, in the absence of Mrs. Hugh Myers, president.

Mrs. Jote Bland reported on the N. C. Pharmaceutical Auxiliary Workshop that she and Mrs. Myers attended at the Institute of Pharmacy in Chapel Hill, concerning education of drug abuse. She announced that senior students from the school of Pharmacy in Chapel Hill are now available to serve as speakers to youth groups and classrooms.

One should call Mrs. Bland or Mrs. Myers if interested in obtaining one of the students. Members were asked to call far enough in advance so that other speaking engagements may be arranged for the same trip from Chapel Hill.

Three speakers from the police department and local pharmacist, Larry Lawson, are now available.

Members of the auxiliary will begin distributing information to the schools this month, concentrating in the Junior High Schools, especially the seventh grades of the city and county.

A white elephant Sale centering around Christmas decorations was announced for the November meeting. Also it was decided that the group contribute toy gifts to the local Operation Santa Claus and request that the gifts be sent to the children in the Murdock Center at Butner.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

The Third Annual Seminar sponsored by the North Carolina Society of Hospital Pharmacists and the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy was held at the School of Pharmacy on September 6-7. One hundred twenty-five pharmacists were registered for the sessions. The theme of the seminar was, "The Hospital Pharmacist Specialist." A clinical Pharmacy Seminar, as an optional session, was presented by School of Pharmacy students who have been working as Medication Assistants at the North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

The Blockade Runner Motor Hotel, Wrightsville Beach, North Carolina, was headquarters for the August 24-26 Third District Annual Meeting of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy and the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy.

The excellent facilities provided, as well as the pleasant surroundings offered by the North Carolina coast, induced many participants to bring their families for a delightful vacation. In all, over two hundred persons were gathered for the meeting.

A number of excellent presentations and discussions lent great interest to the program. Among these were the topics of, "Continuing Education as a Requirement for Continued Licensure," "Toxicology—The Pharmacist's Need to Know," and "Internship—'To Be or Not to Be.'"

The 1970 Third District Meeting will be held in Florida.

As during the 1968-69 academic year, the School of Pharmacy will again operate a program for visiting clinical instructors. This program seeks highly motivated practicing pharmacists throughout the State to return to the School of Pharmacy to participate in the dispensing and clinical laboratory sessions of the Senior students. Through this interchange, all participants should benefit. Besides the obvious benefit to the student from this association with practicing pharmacists, the visiting clinical instructors will benefit by gaining a greater insight into the responsibilities which the preceptor must assume in the internship program. He should also learn more about the educational goals and aspirations of the School and the current educational trends in Pharmacy.

The laboratory sessions will be held from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week. It is hoped that the visiting clinical instructor can participate in one laboratory session each week, although a schedule will be developed which will best suit the participant.

The School would like to enroll as many visiting clinical instructors as possible in this program for the fall semester. Those interested may obtain further information by writing to Mr. Claude U. Paoloni, Assistant Professor of Pharmacy, School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. 27514. Mr. Paoloni says, "Let us hear from you. All that is necessary is your desire to participate."

The faculty of the School was well represented at this meeting. Dean George P. Hager presided over one of the sessions, and Dr. Arthur J. MeBay gave the presentation on toxicology. Other faculty members in attendance were: George Cocolas, Fred Eekel, William Hall, Claude Paoloni, Herman Thompson, Leroy Werley and David Work. Two students, James Hayes and Steve Moore, were also in attendance.

Miss Kathryn Freeman, School of Pharmacy Librarian, attended the Pharmacy Librarian's Seminar which was held in Cincinnati, Ohio, July 22-25.

* * *

On August 17-20, Dean George P. Hager attended a Conference for Pharmacy School Administrators which was offered at Eli Lilly and Company in Indianapolis, Indiana.

* * *

Dr. Jack K. Wier attended the Annual Meeting of the American Society of Pharmacognosy which was held in Corvallis, Oregon, August 18-22. A special feature of the meeting was a Symposium on Marine Biomedieinals.

* * *

Dean George P. Hager and Assistant Dean Leroy D. Werley, travelled to Washington, D. C., on September 5 to participate in the Conference on Public Health Service Training Grant Support for Schools of Pharmacy. This was a briefing session held for the purpose of review and discussion of procedures and requirements pertinent to application for Institutional Grants and Special Projects Grant.

* * *

Drs. C. J. Cavalitto and George H. Coeolas attended the meeting of the American Chemical Society which was held in New York City, September 7-12.

BETA XI CHAPTER OF KAPPA PSI NEWS

Greetings for the new school year from the brotherhood of Beta Xi. It has indeed been a hectic yet quite fruitful summer for the chapter. The highlight of course, revolves around the new house. A long awaited dream came true on August 10 when the ground was broken for the new $150,000 house at Finley Golf Course. Present at the groundbreaking were most of the current members of Beta Xi, a large assortment of alumni, both recent and dating back to charter members, Dean Hager and several members of the faculty at the School of Pharmacy, Grand Ritualist Brother Doughty from the Grand office, and a brother from South Carolina. Construction is progressing nicely and the date of completion is around the first of February.

Abbott Laboratories' $8 million intravenous solutions plant, which was dedicated on November 7, is located on a 114 acre tract near Rocky Mount. Dedication story on page 7.

Abbott Laboratories has its own "monorail railroad" at its plant at Rocky Mount, N. C., for handling huge volumes of intravenous solutions for use in hospitals. Here an employee single-handedly loads thousands of bottles of intravenous solutions into a sterilizer. Following sterilization, the bottles will be quarantined while numerous rigid quality control checks are conducted. A second Rocky Mount plant makes intravenous equipment.

MARS HILL PHARMACIST WILLIAM P. POWELL APPOINTED TO NORTH CAROLINA SENATE BY GOVERNOR SCOTT

Mars Hill Pharmacist-Mayor William P. Powell has been appointed to the State Senate from the 31st North Carolina District (Buncombe, Madison, Yancey and Mitchell Counties).

Senator Powell will serve out the term of former Senator Bruce B. Briggs of Mars Hill who vacated the Senate seat when he accepted appointment as Assistant U. S. attorney for the Western District of North Carolina.

Powell was unanimously selected to represent the District in the General Assembly in recognition of his "tremendous accomplishments as non-partisan mayor of Mars Hill and his success in private life as well as public life."

Senator Powell is a partner and pharmacist in charge of the Community Medical Center Pharmacy of Mars Hill and also president of Wards Drug Stores of Swannanoa and Black Mountain.

He automatically vacated his post as mayor of Mars Hill when he became a member of the N. C. General Assembly. As a member of the Senate, he will serve with another pharmacist—Senator John T. Henley of Hope Mills.

Powell is a native of Henderson County, and graduated from Mills River High School as valedictorian in 1950. He is married to the former Miss Ceelia Ann Chapman of Hendersonville. They have one son, William P. Powell, Jr., 10 years old.

Powell received his degree in pharmacy at the University of North Carolina in 1954 where he was president of his graduating class and president of the national pharmacy honor society. He had the highest scholastic average in a class of 54.

He has served as co-chairman of the Opportunity Corporation of Madison-Buncombe Counties, as a member of the Regional Health Council, and is a former president of the Civitan Club.

Powell is now vice president of the Mars Hill Industrial Corporation, and is a planning board member of Model Madison. He is a member of the Mars Hill Rescue Squad and Fire Department, and was named "Citizen of the Year" in 1962.

As mayor, he was instrumental in obtaining a $1 million housing project for the Town of Mars Hill.

Powell is a member of the Mars Hill Methodist Church where he has served as Sunday School superintendent and teacher.

Net Wt. 12 oz. (8 fl. oz.)

Probably the safest laxative therapy you can provide

Maltsupex is a natural barley extract. Constipation and hard stools often occur when pH is neutral to alkaline (7 or more). Maltsupex corrects these conditions as fecal pH is lowered to between 5 and 6.

Maltsupex is so gentle that month-old infants can be given half the adult dosage. The agent is also ideal for geriatric and chronic constipation. As Maltsupex changes environment within the bowel, and does not directly enforce laxation, there are no worries over physical dependence or excess stimulation.

Maltsupex is supplied in half and one pound jars of Maltsupex powder; 8 and 16 fluid ounce jars of Maltsupex liquid; in bottles of 100 tablets.

ABBOTT'S ROCKY MOUNT PLANT DEDICATED

Abbott Laboratories will invest an additional $1.5 million for expansion and will increase employment by about 15 percent at the company's hospital products plants here. George R. Cain, Chairman of the Board, announced at dedication of Abbott's Rocky Mount Plant on November 7.

Participating in the plant dedication ceremonies were North Carolina Governor Robert W. Scott, former Governor Luther Hodges, U. S. Congressman L. H. Fountain, Rocky Mount Mayor John T. Minges, and Ned E. Huffman, Executive Director, Research Triangle.

Abbott operates two plants at Rocky Mount. One makes intravenous solutions, for use in hospitals. The other makes the disposable plastic, rubber, and metal equipment used to administer the solutions to patients. Intravenous solutions are used to supply nutrition to patients who cannot take food orally, and to restore the body's chemical balance to normal.

Abbott's investment in the Rocky Mount plants will be in excess of $9 million when the current expansion project is completed in mid-1970, Mr. Cain said.

Most of the new investment will go toward an 87,000-square-foot warehouse addition. Quality control laboratories, test animal quarters, and gas sterilization facilities will be substantially increased also.

Mr. Cain predicted that employment at the Rocky Mount plants will reach 700 before the end of 1970.

The intravenous equipment plant, located on Halifax Road, has already been expanded by more than 16,000 square feet, and a second shift has been added. The intravenous solutions plant on U. S. highway 301 added a second shift recently.

Speaking at the dedication, Mr. Cain said the health care industry "has established a fine record over many years in developing and mass producing drugs of ever-increasing sophistication for the benefit of millions. Think back to the drugs and hospital care available to your grandparents, or even your parents, and you will see how far we have come.

"I am proud to be part of an industry that has contributed so much to the human race. I hope that all our employees in Rocky Mount will have a similar pride in this industry of which they now are a part, in their company, and in their daily work."

Abbott is also building a $4.8 million plant at Laurinburg, N. C. That plant, scheduled for completion in mid-1970, will also make hospital intravenous equipment. It's expected to eventually employ 650 people.

Abbott, with 1968 sales of $351 million, distributes its broad line of health care products in 157 countries. Headquarters is at North Chicago, Ill.

FACT SHEET FOR HOSPITAL PRODUCTS PLANTS

ABBOTT LABORATORIES
ROCKY MOUNT, NORTH CAROLINA

The Products

The plant on U. S. highway 301 makes a variety of intravenous solutions. These solutions must be sterile and free of pyrogens, fever-causing substances. Some intravenous solutions are administered to provide nutrition for patients who cannot take food orally. Others restore the body's chemical balance to normal. Within the medical field, intravenous solutions are often referred to as "I.V. solutions." The other Rocky Mount plant, located on Halifax Road, makes the plastic, rubber, and metal equipment used to administer intravenous solutions to patients. This disposable equipment, often referred to as "I.V. sets," is sterilized in the package, so the equipment is ready for one-time use as needed in hospitals.

Land

The intravenous solutions plant is located on 113.9 acres adjacent to U. S. highway 301. The land the solutions plant is built on what was once a peanut field. The intravenous equipment plant is on an 8.5 acre tract on Halifax Road. The building that houses the intravenous equipment plant was bought from another company. Both tracts were purchased in 1967.

The Solutions Plant

The existing brick building totals 250,000 square feet. Planned expansion will add another 87,000 square feet, mostly for additional warehousing. The plant was designed so virtually all facilities can be expanded to meet future market requirements.

Air Conditioning

Offices, laboratories, and manufacturing areas are generally air conditioned. The building is equipped with two 400-ton air conditioning units, and either one could adequately cool and ventilate the plant. The two units' total refrigeration capacity could readily air condition 265 three bedroom homes.

"Clean" Rooms

Areas where uncapped bottles are in some stage of production have special requirements. Intravenous solutions preparation and filling areas have their air supplies specially filtered through High Efficiency Particulate Air (HEPA) filters that arrest 99.97 percent of all airborne particles, or all that are .3 or more of a micron. (A micron is one millionth of a meter. By comparison, a human hair is about 100 microns in diameter.) The HEPA filters are terminal filters, so the air is filtered at the point where it enters the room. All walls in clean room areas are specially coated so they can be washed down frequently. The floors are a special terrazzo. The joints between walls and floors are rounded for easy and effective cleaning. Light fixtures are recessed to minimize the number of dust-collecting surfaces.

Water Supply

Most of the water used in making intravenous solutions comes from the municipal water supply. Abbott does have two 200-foot wells on the site, however. The water is put through a series of sophisticated processes before it can be used in hospital solutions. It's first put through a carbon treatment, and then it's demineralized. After that, the water is distilled in two stills with a total capacity of 72,000 gallons of distilled water per day. No water older than 24 hours is used in making intravenous solutions.

Electrical Supply

The property has 13,000 volts of electricity coming to it. Voltage is reduced to 4,160 volts for operation of air conditioning machines. The remainder of the plant uses 440 and 110 volts.

Fire Protection

A sprinkler system extends throughout the plant, with an electric booster pump on the municipal water supply and a gasoline powered pump on Abbott's 250,000 gallon storage tank.

Pollution Control

Because of the nature of the products made at the Rocky Mount plant, air and water pollution pose no great threat. To prevent thermal pollution of the stream cooling water is discharged in, cooling water is first drained into a 150,000 gallon cooling pond, and then further cooled by a cooling tower. The clean cooling water discharged into the stream is within 10 degrees of the stream water temperature. The two high pressure steam boilers, with a total capacity of 80,000 pounds of steam per hour, operate on oil or gas rather than coal for greater cleanliness of operation.

Warehousing

When the current expansion project is completed, the plant will have about a quarter of a million square feet of warehouse space. Currently, the indoor rail siding will accommodate five boxcars. When the expansion project is completed in 1970, the indoor siding will accommodate nine boxcars. Since warehouse operations require frequent opening of doors, the warehouse is ventilated rather than air conditioned. The ventilated air is screened for insect control. Air curtains at all entrances from the warehouse to manufacturing areas provide additional insect control. All fork lift trucks are battery powered rather than gasoline powered for a cleaner warehouse operation.

Employee Services and Security

A hot food cafeteria with seating capacity of more than 100 serves employees. A registered nurse is on duty at the first aid facility during all working hours. Dacron work uniforms are provided for employees. All exterior doors have security alarms.

LICENSE REVOKED FOR SUBSTITUTION OF SKF RX PRODUCTS

The North Carolina Board of Pharmacy has issued a three-year license revocation for substitution. Although the revocation was stayed during the period, the Board told the pharmacist that any violation of state or federal law or state pharmacy rules and regulations during the same time will result in permanent revocation.

For the second time in recent months, the Board held hearings on evidence provided by the Consumer Protection Unit of Smith Kline & French Laboratories.

The Board ruled that to "fill and dispense physicians' prescriptions with pharmaceutical products different from those prescribed" was substitution and to do so without "the express approval of the prescribing physician is a violation of the pharmacy laws of North Carolina and the rules and regulations of the Board. . . ."

UNC Pharmacy Student Information Program in Action

By KAY REIMLER
in The Charlotte News

"What," the teacher asked abashedly, "does a marijuana cigarette look like? I mean, how can you tell it from a regular cigarette?"

Jim Hayes, 24, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill pharmaceutical student described a "joint" and told her how she could tell if students were smoking marijuana at school.

"It has a sweet pungent smell. It smells like burned rope . . . The cigarette is brown and twisted on the ends and is usually smoked in groups. You cup your hands around the end and inhale deeply, holding the smoke in your lungs and pass it on to another person to get as much mileage out of one cigarette as you can."

Hayes and three other fifth year pharmaceutical students educated a group of local Classroom Teacher Association members on drugs yesterday, describing the different varieties and the symptoms teachers can look for among students they may suspect of using them.

It's part of a "drug abuse" program members of student chapters of the state and national pharmaceutical society are putting on at high schools across the state.

How do you take LSD? One teacher asked the four.

Susan Stafford explained that it's a powder made into a solution and dropped onto a sugar cube.

What about the stories of student injecting peanut butter to get high? It's done, Hayes said. "But the only kind of stimulation you get is psychological. It's dangerous to inject anything solid."

One teacher wanted to know what the four thought about legalizing marijuana.

Group leader Steve Moore responded: "Sociologically Margaret Mead is correct. Anthropologically Margaret Mead is correct. Medicinally it's unfeasible until we know more about what it does and how it does it.

The four were quick to correct one teacher when she said smoking marijuana leads to taking harder drugs. "Marijuana," Moore said, "doesn't necessarily lead to the hard stuff."

How available are drugs, one teacher wanted to know.

"If you want it, you can get it . . . Marijuana more so than the others." Moore said.

John Nance answered a question about why teens appear to think they can get away with smoking pot and not suffer legal ramifications.

"They figure they're minors and the law won't be rough on them." Teens tend, he added to feel that alcohol and tobacco are more dangerous than marijuana and ignore the fact that the law doesn't read that way.

"Most scientists," Moore added, "say that marijuana would tend to be safer than tobacco and alcohol."

The panel gave the teachers some symptoms to look for among students who may be using drugs, though they said that users of hard mainlining narcotics like heroin are rarely found in school situations because they can't function there.

The teachers were told to look for sudden changes in behavior, academic performance, caliber of homework. Students using drugs may exhibit emotional flare-ups, wear sunglasses in class because of pupil dilation.

Students on pot may appear to be in a stupor while students on amphetamines (pep pills) may exhibit excessive activity and irritability, the panel members said.

Moore told the teachers that the "pill society" has much to do with teens using drugs. They often, he said, see their parents taking pills to get "up" and feel good, pills to calm down and sleep.

But he warned against using "seare techniques" with teens. To tell them drugs are bad doesn't follow through today. What's, quote, bad, isn't necessarily bad to them.

He recommended consulting with the parents of students they suspect of using drugs, though he said parents often refuse to believe it is possible.

Who can best sell your customers on a cough preparation...

Actor recommender?

Professional recommender?

We at A. H. Robins believe the doctor's and pharmacist's recommendation carries far more weight because they're professional men. That's why we don't have to promote our cough medicines on national TV or in newspaper ads. Instead, we rely on our "professional recommenders" program. We know this program is effective because it has made the Robitussin® family No. 2 in drug store sales.

Here's how it works. We employ and train a national sales force (many hundreds of them) who call regularly on 170,000 physicians and druggists. The MD's prescribe or suggest the Robitussins for their patients, and the pharmacists recommend them to their customers who are "shopping" for a good family cough preparation. The result—a constant demand and a fast turnover. Moreover, while the TV pitchman may be able to temporarily sway the public, he has no influence on the sound judgment of the professional recommenders. This is why, year in and year out, you can depend on consistent sales from the Robitussin line.

It's just good business to give the Robitussin family (now 5 of them!) the shelf space and facings it deserves. Remember, it's No. 2 in drug store sales because it's professionally recommended—both by the doctor and you. A. H. Robins Company, Richmond, Va. 23220

GOV. SCOTT PROPOSES WELFARE IDENTIFICATION-ELIGIBILITY CARD

A form of credit card for welfare recipients was one of the suggestions Governor Bob Scott made when he addressed the 60th Annual Social Services Institute.

"Assuming you are interested in simplifying your work," Scott said, "I suggest you look into providing each of your recipients with some kind of identification card.

"It seems to me he could present his card each time he purchased drugs or went to a doctor or dentist or hospital and received services.

"This would enable the secretaries in the doctors office, in the drug store or in the hospital to process the payment form in a matter of just a few seconds.

"As it is, I understand it takes a secretary in at least one drug store about 10 to 15 minutes to process one of these forms. The identification card approach should cut down considerably on the time it takes you to process a payment form and remit the payment."

Scott reviewed several new welfare programs, including the federal Medicaid program which begins January 1 and is mandatory for all states and counties.

"But Medicaid—good as it is—is just one more example of a program that has been adopted by Congress, approved by the General Assembly and then imposed on our counties," Scott said. "The counties are forced to come up—one way or another—with their share of the funds needed to operate these programs. Many of our counties are hard pressed to do this.

"In the future I think the state might well consider helping the counties by picking up a greater share of the costs of some of these programs."

Scott said the state can pay more by quoting from a federal survey which listed North Carolina as the state that pays the smallest percentage of its welfare costs.

LILLY DIGEST OFFERS FREE MANAGEMENT SERVICE

"Change is the byword of the business climate in which community pharmacy must function. More complex operations, increased educational requirements, and stepped-up government programs require a more sophisticated management approach." According to G. F. Slavin, Jr., editor of the LILLY DIGEST, these concluding words from the latest edition of the DIGEST have meaning for all community pharmacists.

"In community operations, pharmacy is practiced within a business unit, and this unit does not respond to allegation formulas or capsule-making techniques. In order to succeed, pharmacy managers must focus their efforts on basic business principles—inventory control, purchasing, employee training, and expense control." Slavin continued, "The Lilly Analysis Service is prepared to provide both the statistical background and the interpretation necessary for effective management decisions." Forms for participation in the Lilly Analysis Service are currently being mailed to the nation's pharmacies.

The report is computer-processed, reviewed by staff analysts, typed, and returned within thirty days of receipt of data. It includes a detailed analysis of the profit and loss statement and the balance sheet, utilizing actual dollar figures, percentages, and derived ratios. Attachments are included when the statistics indicate that a more complete discussion of a particular area may be useful.

The analysis is offered as a free service to pharmacists, and the data are kept strictly confidential. Anonymous statements are also processed, and reports are mailed if an adequate address is provided.

Slavin added, "One of the most frequently cited reasons for community pharmacy failure is management's unawareness of unfavorable internal business trends. If these trends are recognized in an early stage and corrected quickly, full-blown problems can be effectively avoided. This is a major benefit of regular Lilly Analysis Service reports."

To obtain a free analysis of your operation, simply send your financial statements and prescription data to the Lilly Analysis Service, Eli Lilly and Company, P. O. Box 814, Indianapolis, Indiana 46206.

Dear Sir:

I am writing to you for information about your North Carolina Dental Formulary on behalf of the Senior Class at Temple Dental School.

We recently had a graduate from Emory Dental School give us a seminar lecture on writing prescriptions for children. He talked highly of your compact but thorough Dental Formulary.

Would you please send me information on ordering copies for interested members of our Class.

Dear W. J.:

The display that you recently loaned to us for our hospital-sponsored "Career Day" certainly enabled us to conceive and set up a most effective career exhibit.

We had the privilege of meeting and discussing pharmacy and handing out brochures to some 700 high school students, many of whom seemed to manifest real interest in the profession of pharmacy. In fact, the overall response to the hospital's "Career Day" was so overwhelming that no doubt the hospital will make this an annual affair.

Therefore, undoubtedly I will be calling again within about a year. I can't tell you how important it is to be able to call upon someone like you to help us meet these needs as they arise.

Dear Sir:

We received a copy of your pamphlet—Is Your Child Using Narcotics or Dangerous Drugs—and found it extremely worthwhile.

With your cooperation, we would like to make wide distribution of this pamphlet on base so that parents and work supervisors would be aware of the symptoms that drugs produce.

It would be extremely helpful if you would send a few thousand of the pamphlets to us. If this request puts too much a drain on your resources, we would be happy to get whatever you can spare.

ECKERD REPORTS 27% SALES INCREASE

Sales and earnings of Eckerd Drugs, Inc., Charlotte, N. C., set all time records for the fiscal 26-week period ending September 27, 1969. Sales of $39,925,484 reflected a gain of 27% up from $31,371,756 for the similar period of the prior fiscal year. Earnings continued to rise with a record high of $1,095,125 net after provision for taxes.

During the first 26 weeks of this fiscal year we have opened 14 additional units with 6 stores still to be opened between this date and the end of the fiscal year.

It is significant to report that during the first six months of our fiscal year we experienced three severe fires either partially or totally destroying three units. These fires, the first major fires in our history, have affected our sales, but at this time we have re-opened two of these stores with the third store due to re-open on November 18.

Company computer programming has proceeded as planned to the degree that during the last six months of this year it should produce some of the results that we have been working toward for the last 12 months. All of the equipment formerly used in this area has been released and our new system is now completely operational.

At this time we have 108 stores in operation with 21 additional stores under lease, all of which have been previously announced.

CLINICAL, UNIT-DOSE PHARMACY PROJECT FUNDED IN NORTH CAROLINA

The Plan of Pharmacy Assistance at the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy in Chapel Hill has been awarded a $12,000 grant to evaluate a clinically-oriented, unit-dose drug distribution system at Western Carolina Center in Morganton. The Center is the home for 800 residents with varying degrees of mental retardation. The grant has been awarded by the Research Division of the North Carolina Department of Mental Health.

Several aspects of drug usage in the current floor-stock system and the experimental unit-dose system will be compared. Included will be a cost analysis of drugs used, a study of medication errors, a comparison of personnel time consumed in the two systems and an assessment of the effect of a clinically-oriented pharmacist on the rational use of drugs.

The project will be directed by Don C. McLeod of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance. The Plan of Pharmacy Assistance began in 1966 for the purpose of improving pharmacy services in North Carolina hospitals, nursing homes and related facilities. The program is funded by The Duke Endowment and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation. Fred M. Eekel is director of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance.

Committee on Nursing Homes and Extended Care Facilities North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association

DON C. MCLEOD, Chairman, Chapel Hill
JAMES W. ADAMS, Asheville
HAROLD V. DAY, Spruce Pine
CALVIN M. FLOYD, JR., Roanoke Rapids
HUNTER L. KELLY, Durham

There are presently 108 licensed nursing homes in North Carolina with 40 of these qualifying as extended care facilities under the Medicare program. Several additional facilities are under construction or in the planning stages. Many of the extended care facilities are locating near major hospitals to facilitate obtaining Medicare patients and the necessary medical services to treat these patients. Nursing home chains have had considerable growth in this state and the nation during the past few years.

The staff of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance at the School of Pharmacy in Chapel Hill has been working closely with the pharmacists and administrators of nursing homes for almost two years now. All facilities have been visited and a newsletter is mailed monthly to each nursing home pharmacist. About 100 of the homes were surveyed in 1968, and the findings summarized and distributed to each administrator and pharmacist. The survey revealed that a few of the facilities are receiving excellent pharmacy services from local pharmacists, but that in many cases pharmacy services are inadequate or practically absent. This is caused in some instances by the administrator not seeking or actually discouraging the professional involvement of the pharmacist. In other instances the pharmacist(s) is unwilling to monitor drug therapy and follow drug usage in the nursing home. Copies of the results of this survey are available from me upon request.

The nursing home regulations of the North Carolina State Board of Health are not written to insure good pharmaceutical services, but to provide rules for the obtaining, storage and use of drugs within the nursing home. Medicare regulations require that certain functions be performed by the pharmacist, but even these are minimal and are often not carried out properly. In the absence of legal requirements, ethics and concern for the safe use of drugs should be sufficient to involve the pharmacist within every medical institution.

A common but clandestine practice now exists in North Carolina and indeed is nationwide. This practice consists of what is commonly called a discount on prescription drugs but is actually a rebate or kickback. These rebates usually fall in the range of 10 to 25 percent of the drug charges in a nursing home. This rebate is not passed to the patient but is retained by the nursing home. If a patient is covered by Medicare, any discount or rebate is supposed to be passed on to the government, but some facilities have devised means to circumvent this requirement. In short, it could be said that a pharmacist and administrator thus willfully deceiving the government are guilty of fraud, i.e., conspiracy to defraud the United States of America. The justification given by both pharmacists and administrators for these rebates is that the home earns or deserves this percentage of drug charges for billing and collecting from the patients. A few pharmacists have indicated to the staff of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance that saddled with this large rebate they have to charge more than the normal charges. This activity is clearly not in the best interests of the patient.

The staff of the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance conducted a survey on the reimbursement for pharmacy services in North Carolina nursing homes and found that many pharmacists are giving a rebate. The pharmacy services in each of the 38 cooperating homes had been previously evaluated through a personal visit. Of the 10 pharmacists paid a consultant fee and the 4 paid a salary, all rendered acceptable pharmacy services, while only 36 percent of those receiving normal charges and 33 percent of those receiving discounted charges rendered acceptable services. Clearly a consultant fee encourages good and extensive pharmaceutical services, but the pharmacists receiving only normal charges did not perform appreciably better than those receiving only discounted charges. What this indicates is that close attention needs to be paid to means insuring quality pharmacy services, adequate reimbursement of the pharmacist and economical pharmaceutical treatment of the patient. This article appeared in the Journal of the APhA, February, 1969.

NURSING HOMES/ EXTENDED CARE FACILITIES

In order to better analyze and eliminate existing deficiencies in the provision of pharmacy services in nursing homes, this committee has explored the possibility of a liaison committee with the North Carolina Nursing Home Association. Charles Priest, President, and John Kerr, Executive Secretary of the nursing home association have agreed that such a committee could be valuable for the members of both organizations and that they will support the liaison committee.

One of the first objectives of this joint committee should be to adopt quality standards for the provision of pharmacy services in nursing homes in North Carolina. These quality standards will not be requirements but merely guidelines for pharmacists and administrators to follow. The hopes of this association should be that these quality standards become the customary practice and thus have a legal bearing because they are customary. This course of action is needed to insure that the institutionalized elderly patients in this state receive a safe and rational pharmaceutical treatment and not merely be drugged in their old age. The matter of acceptable methods of reimbursement for drugs and pharmacy services needs also to be considered by this committee and some guidelines established. Other areas of mutual concern to members of this committee may be the implementation of the Medicaid program and further Medicare provisions.

The Plan of Pharmacy Assistance continues to offer consultation and advisory services to all pharmacists concerned with using homes and other medical institutions. During the past year, 3 afternoon seminars for nursing home personnel and pharmacists have been sponsored by the Plan of Pharmacy Assistance. Additional seminars are planned for the future as the needs arise.

Absolutely Amazing!

The era of third-party pay rushes toward us, and with it comes an ever-deepening confusion. The pharmacist finds himself peering into a kaleidoscope of unfamiliar terms, walking in a forest of opinion.

The legislative looms—federal and state—are weaving documents filled with such pharmacy-targeted concepts as mandatory assignment; corridor deductible; maximum allowable cost; actual acquisition cost plus fixed fee.

One thing does seem certain: If the individual pharmacist is to retain his independence and conduct his business as he sees fit, he must make his views known—at every opportunity, in every forum.

The laws are being written. If pharmacists want to have a voice in the preparation, the time is now.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

A three-day Pharmaceutical Management Conference, arranged under the auspices of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, was held at Pinchurst, North Carolina, November 9-11. From one to three executives of over twenty major pharmaceutical manufacturing firms participated in this review and discussion of such topics as Changes in Emerging Health Care and Its Economic Impact, Roles of Government as a Purchaser and Regulator, Third Party Payment Systems, and Consumer Views. The format of the meetings permitted discussions among the industry representatives and the speakers. Dr. Chester J. Cavallito of the U.N.C. School of Pharmacy served as Chairman of the Planning Committee.

“Meeting Health Care Costs,” was the theme of the 1969 Symposium presented by the National Pharmaceutical Council on November 6 in Washington, D. C. Speakers for the symposium represented the fields of medicine, hospital care, health insurance, government and pharmacy. Pharmacy was ably represented by Dr. George P. Hager, Dean of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, who addressed the assembly on, “The Value of Pharmaceutical Services.”

A United States Pharmacopeial Retreat was held at the School of Pharmacy on November 18, to consider the theme: A More Useful Pharmacopeia. William Heller and Joseph Valentino of the U.S.P. Revision Committee were present to hear views of the health care oriented participants concerning ways in which the next United States Pharmacopeia could be made into a more useful tool for guidance of drug manufacture and dispensing.

STUDENT BRANCHES

On November 5, 1969 the Student Branches of the APhA and NCPHA held a meeting with guest speakers: Mr. William

STUDENT BRANCHES

B. Hennessey, President APhA and Mr. Earl H. Tate, President NCPHA. The discussion centered around the question "Professional Association Involvement—Why?"

Mr. Tate began the program with a speech that stressed pharmacist involvement in community affairs as a method of fulfillment, in addition to the vital role that professional associations play in a pharmacist's life.

Mr. Hennessey continued with some comments about the desirability of student involvement in the current issues and programs in pharmacy. He expressed his pleasure in observations of the student involvement at UNC in drug abuse education, community health center work, and the interest in developing a clinical emphasis in pharmacy education.

In conclusion, Mr. Hennessey spoke of the growing threat of the union to the self-determination and self-government of the profession of pharmacy. He stressed the usefulness of professional association employer-employee committees in resolving differences that unions would attempt to solve.

The Drug Abuse Education Program has continued its progress in November as pharmacy students go on speaking visits to high schools in North Carolina.

On November 11, 1969 pharmacy students Tom Oakley and Bill Crawley spoke at Brogden Junior High in Durham. Two groups went out on November 13, 1969: Steve Moore, Susan Stafford, Jim Hayes, and John Nance spoke to approximately 1,000 students at Garinger High in Charlotte and to the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Classroom Teachers' Association; and George Albright, Mike Clinard, Buck Murchison, and Bill Pittman visited about 1,000 students at Enloe High in Raleigh.

On November 14, 1969, Tom McCall and Richard Smutney spoke to the Baptist Student Union in Chapel Hill; and The Co-operative School of Durham heard Buck Murchison and Bill Crawley speak.

On November 1, 1969, at a seminar for the pharmacy students, guest speakers included Mr. Charles Dunn, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, and Dr.

Kelly and Dr. Blackley of the Department of Mental Health in Raleigh.

KAPPA PSI

The word that everyone daily awaits is how the work is going on the new house. The third floor is now in the process of completion and the completion date of February nears. Start making your plans now to attend the dedication ceremonies for the long anticipated Kappa Psi house.

On November 15, we were glad to have a great many alumni who helped make the new house possible. We do hope that the alumni will stop by now and after we get into the new house. It is a pleasure to have you by.

The intramural program is roaring along with teams high in the standing in football, volleyball, wrestling and other areas. The basketball season is now started and we anticipate a good year in this as well as other intramural activities.

The house is proud of the good participation of its members in the Drug Abuse Education Program at the School of Pharmacy. Some twelve of the students involved are members of the house. This quite worthwhile project is another area in which Kappa Psi leads the way in Pharmacy School. From the brothers and pledges of Kappa Psi come best wishes for the holiday season and continued best wishes for the up-coming year.

RECORD ENROLLMENT

The University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy is experiencing a record enrollment this year. A total of 554 undergraduate students are enrolled in the four years of the professional curriculum. This, of course, does not include the pre-pharmacy freshmen enrolled at the University at Chapel Hill. The enrollment by classes is: Freshman—148, Sophomores—140, Juniors—134, Seniors—132. Obviously the 1970 graduating class will be an all-time high. In addition, there are nineteen graduate students and two post-doctoral fellows at the School. Beard Hall is bulging at the seams.

USPSH PHARMACIST DIRECTOR VISITS

Mr. Allen Brands, Pharmacist Director and Pharmacy Liaison Representative of the United States Public Health Service visited the School of Pharmacy of the University of North Carolina on October 8th to discuss with interested students the opportunities provided by the USPSH pharmacy residency program and COSTEP. COSTEP is the Commissioned Officer Student Training and Extern Program which accepts pharmacy students for training during the months when they are not enrolled in school.

In excess of one-half of the students attending the School of Pharmacy are receiving some financial aid in the form of loans or scholarships. Actually, the bulk of the scholarship funds is awarded on the basis of financial need, although a student must maintain a certain minimum academic standing in order to be eligible for the scholarships. Funds for these loans and scholarships are made available by the Federal and State governments, by foundations and by private groups and individuals. The bulk of such funds come from the Federal government.

STUDENT BRANCHES

On October 8, 1969 the Student Branches of the APhA-NCPHA conducted its first meeting of the year with the main topic of discussion being "Selective Service—The Armed Forces—and the Pharmacist." Guest speakers present were Col. William McCachren, State director of Selective Service, Major L. J. Skidmore of the State Selective Service and Lt. Jerry Ross, director of the hospital Pharmacy, Shaw Air Force Base, South Carolina. A lively question and answer session took place after the formal presentation.

The Drug Abuse Education Program sponsored by the Student Branches has been actively under way since the first week of school. Approximately 20 pharmacy students are preparing themselves in weekly training sessions to go out to high schools all over North Carolina and speak on the drugs of abuse. The pharmacy students began accumulating background information on the subject this past summer when they were provided with the best available articles, books and papers on Drugs of Abuse for their reading. So far, approximately 3500 high school students have been reached by this program.

A delegation of students working on the drug abuse program with Dr. Louis Harris as their main spokesman, visited Congressman Nick Galifianakis on October 17th to express their views against some of the wording and classification of drugs in President Nixon's new Uniform Dangerous Drug Act, which is presently before the Senate.
