PREFACE.

THE difficulties proverbially attending the first essay in a literary design of any magnitude constitute one of the very few apologies the public are generally willing to concede an author for the imperfect execution of his undertaking. Perhaps no desideratum in our literature could be named which needs this indulgence more than a Dictionary of the Early English language,—a work requiring such extensive and varied research, that the labours of a century would still leave much to be added and corrected, and one which has been too often abandoned by eminent antiquaries for failure to be conspicuous. It is now brought to a completion for the first time in the following pages, in some respects imperfectly, but comprising a variety of information nowhere else to be met with in a collective state, and forming at present the only compilation where a reader of the works of early English writers can reasonably hope to find explanations of many of the numerous terms which have become obsolete during the last four centuries.*

So far I may be permitted to speak without intrenching on the limits of criticism. A work containing more than 50,000 words,† many of which have never appeared even in scattered glossaries, and illustrated, with very few exceptions, by original authorities, must contain valuable material for the philologist, even if disfigured by errors. With respect to the latter contingency, I am not acquainted with any glossary, comprising merely a few hundred words, which does not contain blunders, although in many instances the careful attention of the editor has been specially directed to the task. Can I then anticipate that in a field, so vast that no single life would suffice for a minute examination of every object, I could have escaped proportionate liabilities? That such may be pointed out I have little doubt, notwithstanding the pains taken to prevent their occurrence ; but it will be manifestly unfair to make them the test of merit, or thence to pronounce a judgment on the accuracy of the whole. I may add that the greatest care has been taken to render the references and quotations accurate, and whenever it was practicable, they have been collated in type with the originals. The great importance of accurate references will be fully appreciated by the student who has experienced the inconvenience of the many inaccurate ones in the works of Nares, Gifford, and others.

* A Glossary of Archaic and Provincial Words was compiled about fifty years ago by the Rev. Jonathan Boucher, Vicar of Epsom, but only a small portion, extending to Bis, has yet been published. The manuscript, which is in the custody of one of the editors of the work, I have not seen, but to judge from what has appeared, it probably contains much irrelevant matter. Mr. Toone has given us a small manual of early English words, 8vo. 1832. Nares' Glossary, published in 1822, is confined to the Elizabethan period, a valuable work, chiefly compiled from the notes to the variorum edition of Shakespeare.

† The exact number of words in this dictionary is 51,027.

The numerous quotations I have given from early manuscripts will generally be found to be literal copies from the originals, without any attempt at remedying the grammatical errors of the scribes, so frequent in manuscripts of the fifteenth century. The terminal contractions were then, in fact, rapidly vanishing as part of the grammatical construction of our language, and the representative of the vowel terminations of the Anglo-Saxon was lost before the end of that century. It is only within the last few years that this subject has been considered by our editors, and it is much to be regretted that the texts of Ritson, Weber, and others are therefore not always to be depended upon. For this reason I have had recourse in some cases to the original manuscripts in preference to using the printed texts, but, generally, the quotations from manuscripts have been taken from pieces not yet published. Some few have been printed during the time this work has been in the press, a period of more than two years.

In ascertaining the meaning of those early English words, which have been either improperly explained or have escaped the notice of our glossarists, I have chiefly had recourse to those grand sources of the language, Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman. It appeared to me to be sufficient in such cases to indicate the immediate source of the word without referring to the original root, discarding in fact etymological research, except when it was necessary to develop the right explanation. Etymological disquisitions on provincial words have also been considered unnecessary ; but in some few instances, where there existed no reasonable doubt, the root has been mentioned.

In explaining terms and phrases of the Elizabethan era, I have had the advantage not enjoyed in preparing that part of the work which relates to the earlier period, of referring to the labours of a predecessor in the same task. The Glossary of Archdeacon Nares has here necessarily in some respects been my guide, generally a faithful one as far as his explanations are concerned, but still very imperfect as a general glossary to the writers of that age. I have attempted to supply his deficiencies by more than trebling his collection of words and phrases, but my plan did not permit me to imitate his prolixity, and I have therefore frequently stated results without explaining the reasoning or giving the reading which led to them. Nares' Glossary is, however, notwithstanding its imperfections, a work of great merit, and distinguished by the clearness and discrimination with which the collections of the Shakespearian commentators are arranged and discussed. To find him occasionally in error merely illustrates the impossibility of perfection in philological studies.

Having had in view the wants of readers unskilled in early English rather than the literary entertainment of professed students, I have admitted numerous forms the etymologist will properly regard corrupt, and which might easily have been reduced to their original sources. I may have carried the system too far, but to have excluded corruptions would certainly have rendered the work less generally useful; and it is not to be presumed that every one who consults a manual of this kind will despise the assistance thus afforded. There are, too, many corruptions the sources of which are not readily perceivable even by the most experienced.

So many archaisms are undoubtedly still preserved by our rural population, that it was thought the incorporation of a glossary of provincialisms would render the work a more useful guide than one restricted to known archaisms. When Ray in 1674 published the first collection of English localisms, he gives three reasons for having undertaken the task: "First, because I knew not of anything that hath been already done in this kind; second, because I conceive they may be of some use to them who shall have occasion to travel the Northern counties, in helping them to understand the common language there; third, because they may also afford some diversion to the curious, and give them occasion of making many considerable remarks." It is remarkable that Ray seems to have been unacquainted with the real value of provincial words, and most of his successors appear to have collected without the only sufficient reason for preserving them, the important assistance they continually afford in glossing the works of our early writers.

Observations on our provincial dialects as they now exist will be found in the following pages, but under the firm conviction that the history of provincialisms is of far inferior importance to the illustration they afford of our early language, I have not entered at length into a discussion of the former subject. I have spared no pains to collect provincial words from all parts of the country, and have been assisted by numerous correspondents, whose communications are carefully acknowledged under the several counties to which they refer. These communications have enabled me to add a vast quantity of words which had escaped the notice of all the compilers of provincial glossaries, but their arrangement added immeasurably to the labour. No one who has not tried the experiment can rightly estimate the trouble of arranging long lists of words, and separating mere dialectical forms.

The contributors of provincial words are elsewhere thanked, but it would hardly be right to omit the opportunity of enumerating the more extensive communications. I may, then, mention my obligations to Captain Henry Smith, for his copious glossary of Isle of Wight provincialisms ; to the Rev. James Adcock, to whom I am principally indebted for Lincolnshire words ; to Goddard Johnson, Esq. for his valuable Norfolk glossary ; to Henry Norris, Esq. for his important Somersetshire collection ; to David E. Davy, Esq. for his MS. additions to Forby ; to Major Moor, for his collections for a new edition of his Suffolk Words and Phrases ; and to the Rev. J. Staunton, for the use of the late Mr. Sharp's manuscript glossary of Warwickshire words. Most of the other communications have been of essential service, and I cannot call to mind one, however brief, which has not furnished me with useful information. My anonymous correspondents will be contented with a general acknowledgment ; but I have not ventured to adopt any part of their communications unsupported by other authority. My thanks are also returned to Mr. Toone, for MS. additions to his Glossary, chiefly consisting of notes on Massinger ; to Sir Henry Dryden, Bart., for a few notes on hunting terms in the earlier letters ; and to Mr. Chaffers, jun. for a brief glossary compiled a few years since from Chaucer, Lydgate, &c. But my chief obligations are due to Thomas Wright, Esq. M.A., whose suggestions on nearly every sheet of this work, as it was passing through the press, have been of the greatest advantage, and whose profound knowledge of Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman has frequently been of essential service when the ordinary guides had been ineffectually consulted.

THE ENGLISH PROVINCIAL DIALECTS.

ROBERT of Gloucester, after describing the Norman Conquest, thus alludes to the change of language introduced by that event :

And the Normans ne couthe speke tho bote her owe speche,
And speke French as dude atom, and here chyldren dude also teche.
So that hey men of this lood, that of her blod come,
Holdeth alle thulke speche that hii of hem nome.
Vor bote a man couthe French, me toth of hym wel lute,
As lewe men holdeth to Englysch, and to her kunde speche gute.
Ich wene ther ne be man in world contreyes none,
That ne holdeth to her kunde speche, bote Engeland one.
Ac wel me wot vor to comne bothe wel yt ys,
Vor the more that a man con, the more worth he ys.

This extract describes very correctly the general history of the languages current in England for the first two centuries after the battle of Hastings. Anglo-Norman was almost exclusively the language of the court, of the Norman gentry, and of literature. "The works in English which were written before the Wars of the Barons belong," says Mr. Wright, "to the last expiring remains of an older and totally different Anglo-Saxon style, or to the first attempts of a new English one formed upon a Norman model. Of the two grand monuments of the poetry of this period, Layamon belongs to the former of these classes, and the singular poem entitled the Ormulum to the latter. After the middle of the thirteenth century, the attempts at poetical composition in English became more frequent and more successful, and previous to the age of Chaucer we have several poems of a very remarkable character, and some good imitations of the harmony and spirit of the French versification of the time." After the Barons' Wars, the Anglo-Norman was gradually intermingled with the Anglo-Saxon, and no long time elapsed before the mongrel language, English, was in general use, formed, however, from the latter. A writer of the following century thus alleges his reason for writing in English :

In Englis tonge y schal yow telle,
Yf ys so long with me wyl dwelle ;
Ne Latyn wil y speke ne waste,
Bot Englisch that men uses maste,
For that ys youre kynde langage,
That ys hafe here most of usage :
*That can ech man untherstonde
That is born in Englonds :*
For that langage ys most schewed,
Als wel mowe lereth as lewed.
Latyn also y trowe can nane,
Bot tho that hath hit of schole tane ;
Som can French and no Latyne,
That useth has court and duell therinne,
And som can of Latyn aparty,
That can Frensch ful febylly ;
And som untherstondith Englisch,
That nother can Latyn ne Frensch.
*Bot lorde, and leude, old and yong,
Alle untherstondith Englisch tonge.*
Therefore y holde hit most siker thanne
To schewe the langage that ech man can ;
And for lewethe men namely,
That can no more of clergy,
Tho ken tham where most nede,
For clerkes can both se and rede
In divers bokes of Holy Writt,
How they schul lyve, yf thay loke hit :
Therefore y wylle me holly halde
To that langage that Englisch ys calde. MS. Bodl. 48, f. 48.

ENGLISH PROVINCIAL DIALECTS.

The author of the Cursor Mundi thought each nation should be contented with one language, and that the English should discard the Anglo-Norman :

This ilk bok it es translate Into Inglis tong, to rede,
 For the love of Inglis lede,
 Inglis lede of England,
 For the comun at understand.
 Frankis rimes here I redd
 Comunlik in ilk sted.
 Mast es it wrought for Frankis man,
 Quat is for him na Frankis can ?
 Of England the nacion
 Es Inglisman thar in comun ;
 Thespeche that man wit mast may spede,
 Mast thar wit to speke war nede.
Selden was for ani chance
Praised Inglis tong in France !
Give us Ilkan thare langage,
Me think we do tham non outrage.

MS. Cott. Vespas. A. iii. f. 2.

In the curious tale of King Edward and the Shepherd, the latter is described as being perfectly astonished with the French and Latin of the court :

The Jordis anon to chawmbur went,
 The kyns stuf the scheperde sent,
 He wal broyt forth fulle sone ;
 He claWed his hed, his hare he rent,
 He wende wel to have be schent,
 He ne wyst what was to done.
 When he French and Latyn herde,
 He hade mervelle how it ferde,
 And drow hym ever alone :
 Jhesu, he seid, for thi gret grace,
 Bryng me fayre out of this place !
 Lady, now here my bone !

MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 48, f. 55.

In the fifteenth century, English may be said to have been the general language of this country.* At this period, too, what is now called old English, rapidly lost its grammatical forms, and the English of the time of Henry VIII., orthography excepted, differs very little from that of the present day. A few archaisms now obsolete, and old phrases, constitute the essential differences.

Our present subject is the provincial dialects, to which these very brief remarks on the general history of the English language are merely preliminary,—a subject of great difficulty, and one which requires far more reading than has yet been attempted to develop satisfactorily, especially in its early period. Believing that the principal use of the study of the English dialects consists in the explanation of archaisms, I have not attempted that research which would be necessary to understand their history, albeit this latter is by no means an unimportant inquiry. The Anglo-Saxon dialects were not numerous, as far as can be judged from the MSS. in that language which have been preserved, and it seems probable that most of our English dialects might be traced historically and etymologically to the original tribes of the Saxons, Angles, and Jutes, not forgetting the Danes, whose language, according to Wallingford, so long influenced the dialect of Yorkshire. In order to accomplish this we require many more early documents which bear upon the subject than have yet been discovered, and the uncertainty which occurs in most cases of fixing the exact locality in which they were written adds to our difficulties. When we come to a later period, the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, there being no standard literary form of our native language, every MS. sufficiently exhibits its dialect, and it is to be hoped that all English works of this period may one day be classed according to their dialects. In such an undertaking, great assistance will be derived from a knowledge of our local dialects as they now exist. Hence the value of specimens of modern provincial language, for in many instances, as in Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle, compared with the present dialect of Gloucestershire, the organic forms of the dialect have remained unchanged for centuries. The Ayenbyte of Inwyf is, perhaps, the most remarkable specimen of early English MSS. written in a broad dialect, and it proves very satisfactorily that in the fourteenth century the principal features of what is termed the Western dialect were those also of the Kenfish dialect. There can be, in fact, little doubt that the former was long current throughout the Southern counties, and even extended in some degree as far as Essex.* If we judge from the specimens of early English of which the localities of composition are known, we might perhaps divide the dialects of the fourteenth century into three grand classes, the Northern, the Midland, and the Southern, the last being that now retained in the Western counties. But, with the few materials yet published, I set little reliance on any classification of the kind. If we may decide from Mr. Wright's Specimens of Lyric Poetry, which were written in Herefordshire, or from Audelay's Poems, written in Shropshire in the fifteenth century, those counties would belong to the Midland division, rather than to the West or South.

The few writers who have entered on the subject of the early English provincial dialects, have advocated their theories without a due consideration of the probability, in many cases the certainty, of an essential distinction between the language of literature and that of the natives of a county. Hence arises a fallacy which has led to curious anomalies. We are not to suppose, merely because we find an early MS. written in any county in standard English, that that MS. is a correct criterion of the dialect of the county. There are several MSS. written in Kent of about the same date as the Ayenbyte of Inwynt, which have none of the dialectical marks of that curious work. Most of the quotations here given from early MSS. must be taken with a similar limitation as to their dialect. Hence the difficulty, from want of authentic specimens, of forming a classification, which has led to an alphabetical arrangement of the counties in the following brief notices:—

BEDFORDSHIRE.

The dialect of this county has been fully investigated in Batchelor's Orthoepical Analysis of the English Language, 8vo. 1809. Ew takes the place of ow, ea of a, ow of the long o, oi of i, &c. When r precedes s and e final, or s and other consonants, it is frequently not pronounced. Ow final is often changed into er; ge final, into dge; and g final is sometimes omitted.

BERKSHIRE.

The Berkshire dialect partly belongs to the Western, and partly to the Midland, more strongly marked with the features of the former in the South-West of the county. The a is changed into o, the diphthongs are pronounced broadly, and the vowels are lengthened. Way is pronounced woye; thik and thak for this and that; he for him, and she for her.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.

The language of the peasantry is not very broad, although many dialectical words are in general use. A list of the latter was kindly forwarded to me by Dr. Hussey.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

There is little to distinguish the Cambridge-shire dialect from that of the adjoining counties. It is nearly allied to that of Norfolk and Suffolk. The perfect tense is formed strongly, as hit, hot, rit, sot, spare, spore, e. g. "if I am spore," i. e. spared, &c. I have to return my thanks to the Rev. J. J. Smith and the Rev. Charles Warren for brief lists of provincialisms current in this county.

CHESHIRE.

The Cheshire dialect changes i into w, ui into w or oo, i into oi or ee, o into w, a into o, o into a, u into i, ea into yo, and oa into wo. Mr. Wilbraham has published a very useful and correct glossary of Cheshire words. Second ed. 12mo. 1836.

Extract from a Speech of Judas Iscariot in the Play of Christ's Entry into Jerusalem.

By deare God in magistie!
I am so wroth as I maye be,
And some waye I will wrecken me,
As some as ever I male.
My mayster Jesus, as men maye see,
Was rubbed heade, foote, and knyve,
With oyntmente of more daintie
Then I see manye a dale.
To that I have greate evnye,
That he suffred to destroye
More then all his good thryve,
And his dames towe.
Hade I of it hade malsterye,
I woulde have soulede it some in hie,
And put it up in tresuerye,
As I was wonte to doe.
Whatsoever was geven to Jesu,
I have kepte, since I hym knewe;
For he hopes I wilbe trewe,
His purse allwale I bare.
Hym hade bene better, in good saye,
Hade spared oyntments that dale,

* This is stated on sufficiently ample authority, but Verstegan appears to limit it in his time to the Western counties.—“ We see that in some severall parts of England itselfe, both the names of things, and pronuntiations of words, are somewhat different, and that among the country people that never borrow any words out of the Latin or French, and of this different pronuntiation one example in steed of many shal suffice, as this: for pronouncing according as one would say at London, I would eat more cheese if I had it, the Northern man saith, My sud eat mare cheese gin ay hadet, and the Western man saith, Chud eat more cheese an chad it. Lo here three different pronuntiations in our owne country in one thing, and hereof many the like examples might be alleaged.”—Verstegan's Restitution, 1634, p. 185.

For wrooken I wilbesome wale
Of waste that was done their;
Three hundreth penny worthes it was
That he let spill in that place;
Therefore God geve me harde grace,
But hymselfe shalbe souide

For the tenth peny of it:
And this my maister shalbe quite
My greffe a hundreth fould.

CORNWALL.

It is almost unnecessary to observe, that the ancient Cornish language has long been obsolete. It appears to have been gradually disused from the time of Henry VIII., but it was spoken in some parts of the country till the eighteenth century. Modern Cornish is now an English dialect, and a specimen of it is here given. Polwhele has recorded a valuable list of Cornish provincialisms, and a new glossary has recently been published, in 'Specimens of Cornish Provincial Dialect,' 8vo. 1846. In addition to these, I have to acknowledge several words, hitherto unnoticed, communicated by Miss Hicks, and R. T. Smith, Esq.

Harrison, Description of Britaine, p. 14, thus mentions the Cornish language: "The Cornish and Devonshire men, whose countrie the Britons call Cerniw, have a speach in like sort of their owne, and such as hath in deed more affinitie with the Armorican toong than I can well discourse of. Yet in mine opinion, they are both but a corrupted kind of British, albeit so far degenerating in these daies from the old, that if either of them doo meete with a Welshman, they are not able at the first to understand one another, except here and there in some od words, without the helpe of interpreters."

In Cornwall, Pembr. and Devon they for to milke say milky, for to squint, to squinny, this, thicky, &c., and after most verbs ending with consonants they clap a y, but more commonly the lower part of Pembrokeshire.

The ould man, Jan, that was es neame, went to es work as before. Mally then open'd the portmantle, and found en et three hundred pounds. Soon after thes, the ould man not being very well, Mally said, "Jan, I've saaved away a little money, by the bye, and as thes can't read or write, thes shu't go to scool" (he were then nigh threescore and ten). He went but a very short time, and comed hoam one day, and said, "Mally, I wain't go to scool no more, 'cause the childer do be laffen at me; they can tell their letters, and I can't tell my A, B, C, and I wud rayther go to work agen." "Do as thes wool," ses Mally. Jan had not ben out many days, afore the yung gentleman came by that lost the portmantle, and said, "Well, my ould man, did'ce see

Pengrouse, a lad in many a science blest,
Outahouse his toning brothers of the west:
Of smuggling, hurling, wrestling much he knew,
And much of tin, and much of plichards too.
Fam'd at each village, town, and country-house,
Menaeken, Helstone, Polkinhorne, and Grouse;
Trespissen, Buddock, Cony-yerie, Treverry, Polbastard, Hallabaxack, Eglesderry,
Pencob, and Restjeg, Trevislakey, Breague,
Irwinnick, Buskenwyn, Busveal, Roscreague:
But what avail'd his fame and various art,
Since he, by love, was smitten to the heart:
The shaft a beam of Bet Polglase's eyes;
And now he dumplin loaths, and plichard ples.
Young was the lass, a servant at St. Tissy,
Born at Polpis, and bred at Mevagixy.
Calm o'er the mountain bluish'd the rising day,
And tng'd the summit with a purple ray,
When sleepless from his hutch the lover stole,
And met, by chance, the mistress of his soul.
And "Whither go'st!" he scratched his skull and cry'd:

"Arrear, God bless us," well the nymph reply'd,
"To Yealston sure, to buy a pound o' backy,
That us and measter wonderfully lacky;
God bless us ale, this fortnight, 'pon my word,
We nothing smoaks but oak leaves and cue-terd."

Pengrouse.

Arrear then, Bessy, ly aloane the backy,
Sty here a tiny bit and let us talky.
Bessy, I loves thee, wot a ha me, say,
Wot ha Pengrouse, why wot a, Bessy, ha?

Bet Polglase.

Ah, hunkin, hunkin, mind at Moushole fair
What did you do at the Choughs, the alehouse there?
When you stows eighteen pence in cakes and beer,
To treat that dirty trollup, Mall Rosevear:
You stuff it in her gills, and makes such pucker,
Arrear the people tho't you wud have choack her.

Pengrouse.

Curse Mall Rosevear, I says, a great jack whore,
I ne'er sees such a dirty drab before:
I stuffs her gills with cakes and beer, the hunk,
She stuffs herself, she meslin and got drunk.
Best* drink sure for her jaws want good enow,
So leckery makes her drunk as David's sow;
Her feace is like a bull's, and 'tis a foeel,
Her legs are like the legs o' cobler's stool;
Her eyes be grean's a lick,‡ as yaffers big,
Noase flat's my hond, and neck so black's a pig.

Bet Polglase.

Ay, but I've more to say; this isn't ale,
You deanc'd wy Mall Rosevear 't a sartin bale;
She toald me so, and lefts me by a meare—
Ay! you, Pengrouse, did deance wy Mall Rosevear.

* Best drink implies strong beer. † Brandy.

Pengrouse.

Now, Bessy, hire me, Bessy, vath and soale.
 Hire me, I says, and thou shalt hire the whoale;
 One night, a Wensday night, I vows to Goade,
 Aloane, a housback, to Tressoue I roade;
 Sure Bessy vath, dist hire me, 'tis no lies,
 A d—mnder bale was never seed wy eyes.
 I hires sum missick at an oald bearne doore,
 And hires a wondrous rousing on the floore;
 So in I pops my head; says I, arreare!
 Why, what a devil's neame is doing heare?
 Why deancing, cries the crowder by the wale,
 Why deancing, deancing, measter—'tis a bale.
 Deancing, says I, by Gam I hires sum preancers,
 But tell us where the devil be the deancers;
 For fy the dust and strawe so fleed about,
 I could not, Bessy, spy the hoppers out.
 At laste I spies Rosevear, I wish her dead,
 Who makes me deance all nite, the stinking jade.
 Says I, I have no shoose to kick a foote:
 Why kick, says Mall Rosevear, then kick thy boote.
 And, Bet, dist hire me, for to leert us ale,
 A furthing candle wink'd again the wale.

Bet Polgissa.

Ah, hunkin, hunkin, I am huge afraid
 That you is laughing at a simple maid.

Pengrouse.

Deare, dearest Bet, let's hug thee to my hearte,
 And may us never never never part!
 No, if I lies than, Bessy, than I wishes
 The Shackleheads may never close the shales;
 That pleky dogs may eat the scene when fule,
 Eat'n to rags, and let go ale the schule.

Bet Polgissa.

Then here's my hond, and wy it teake my hearte.

Pengrouse.

Goade bless us too, and here is mines, oda bearte!
 One buss, and then to Pilcharding I'll packy.

Bet Polgissa.

And I to Yealstone for my master's backy.

(3) A Cornish Song.

Come, all ye jolly Tinner boys, and listen to me;
 I'll tell ee of a storie shall make ye for to see,
 Concerning Boney Peartie, the schames which he had made
 To stop our tin and copper mines, and all our pilchard trade.
 He summonsed forty thousand men, to Polland they did goe,
 All for to rob and plunder there you very well do knaws;
 But ten-thou-sand were killed, and laade dead in blood and goare,
 And thirty thousand ranned away, and I cante tell where, I'm sure.
 And should that Boney Peartie have forty thousand still to maake into an army to work his wicked will,
 And try for to invade us, if he doent quickly fly—Why, forty thousand Cornish boys shall knaws the reason why.
 Hurea for tin and copper, boys, and fisheries likewise!
 Hurea for Cornish maadens—oh, bless their pretty eyes!
 Hurea for our ould gentrie, and may they never faale!
 Hurea, hurea for Cornwall! hurea, boys, "one and ale!"

CUMBERLAND.

The dialects of Cumberland, Westmoreland, Northumberland, and Durham may be considered to be identical in all essential peculiarities, the chief differences arising from the mode of pronunciation. According to Boucher, the dialect of Cumberland is much less uniform than that of Westmoreland. In Cumberland, wo is in frequent use instead of the long o, as will be noticed in the following example. A glossary of Cumberland words was kindly forwarded to me by Mr. Thomas Sanderson.

(1) Love in Cumberland.

Tune.—"Cuddle me, Cuddy."

Wa, Jwohn, what'n mannishment's 'tis
 'At tou's gawn to dee for a hixsy!
 Aw hard o' this torrabie fise,
 An' awd's cum't to advise tha',—'at is ee.
 Mun, thou'll nobbet lwose tee gud neame
 Wl' gowlin an' whingin sea mickle;

 An' let her e'en ga to sauld Niekle.

Thy plew-geer's aw liggin how-strow,
 An' somebody's stown thee thy couter;
 Oh falks! thou's duin little 'at dow
 To fash theesel ivver about her.

Your Seymey has broken ear stang,
 An' mendit it wid a clog-coaker;
 Pump-tree's geane aw wheyt wrang,
 An' they've sent for sauld Tom Stawker.

Young filly's dung ourse the lang stee,
 An' leam'd peer Andrew the theeker;

 An haw hadn't happ'n't to cleek her.

(2) Song, by Miss Blamire.

What ails this heart o' mine?
 What means this wat'ry e'e?
 What gars me ay turn pale as death
 When I tak' leave o' thee?
 When thou art far awa',
 Thou'll dearer be to me;
 But change o' place, and change o' folk,
 May gar thy fancy jee.

When I sit down at e'en,
 Or walk in morning air,
 Ilk rustling bough will seem to say,
 I us'd to meet thee there;
 Then I'll sit down and wail,
 And greet aneath a tree,
 And gin a leaf fa' i' my lap,
 I's ca't a word frae thee.

I'll hie me to the bow'r
 Where yews w' roses tread,
 And where, w' monie a blushing bud,
 I strove my face to hide;
 I'll doat on lika spot,
 Where I ha'e been w' thee,
 And ca' to mind some kindly look
 'Neath lika hollow tree.

Wl' sec thoughts i' my mind,
 Time thro' the warl may gae,
 And find me still, in twenty years,
 The same as I'm to-day:

'Tis friendship bears the sway,
And keeps friends l' the e'e;
And gin I think I see the still,
Wha can part thee and me?

DERBYSHIRE.

"This dialect," observes Dr. Bosworth, "is remarkable for its broad pronunciation. In see the e is pronounced long and broad, as see. The l is often omitted after a or o, as aw for all, caw, call, bawd, bold, coud, cold. Words in ing generally omit the g, but sometimes it is changed into k; as think for thing, lovins for loving. They use con for can; conner for cannot; shanner for shall not; wool, wooner for will, and will not; yo for you, &c." Lists of provincial words peculiar to this county have been kindly forwarded by Dr. Bosworth, Thomas Bateman, Esq., the Rev. Samuel Fox, the Rev. William Shilleto, Mrs. Butler, and L. Jewitt, Esq.

A Dialogue between Farmer Bennet and Tummus Lide.

Farmer Bennet. Tummus, why dunner yo mend meh shoorn?

Tummus Lide. Becos, mester, 'tis so cood, I conner worc wee the tachin at aw. I've bruckn it ten times I'm shur to de—it freezes so hard. Why, Hester hung out a smock-frock to dry, an in three minits it wor frozen as stiff as a proker, an I conner afford to keep a good fire; I wish I cud. I'd soon mend yore shoorn, an others tow. I'd soon yarn sum munney, I warrant ye. Conner yo find sum work for m', mester, these hard times? I'll doo onnythink to addle a penny. I con thresh—I con split wood—I con mak spars—I con thack. I con skower a dike, an I con trench tow, but it freezes so hard. I con winner—I con fother, or milk, if there be need on't. I woodner mind drivin plow or onnythink.

Farmer B. I hanner got nothin for ye to doo, Tummus; but Mester Boord towd me jist now that they wor gooin to winner, an that they shud want sumbody to help 'em.

Tummus L. O, I'm glad on't. I'll run oor an see whether I con help 'em; but I hanner bin weein the threshold ov Mester Boord's doer for a nation time, becos I thoot missis didner use Hester well; but I dunner bear malice, an so I'll goo.

Farmer B. What did Missis Boord sa or doo to Hester then?

Tummus L. Why, Hester may be wor summut to blame too; for her wor one on 'em, de ye see, that jawd Skimmerton,—the mak-gam that frunted sum o'the gentefook. They said 'twor time to dun wee sich litter, or sich stuff, or I dunner know what they cawd it; but they wor frunted wee Hester bout it; an I said, if they wor frunted wee Hester, they mid bee frunted wee mee. This set missis's back up, an Hester hanner bin a charrin there sin. But 'tis no use to bear malice: an so I'll goo oor, and see which wee the winde blows.

DEVONSHIRE.

The MS. Ashmole 33 contains an early romance, written about the year 1377, which appears to have been composed by a clergyman living in the diocese of Exeter. Several extracts from it will be found in the following pages. The MS. possesses great interest, having part of the author's original draught of the romance. See farther in Mr. Black's Catalogue, col. 15.

"A Devonshire song" is printed in Wits Interpreter, ed. 1671, p. 171; the "Devonshire ditty" occurs in the same work, p. 247. The Exmoor Scolding and the Exmoor Courtship, specimens of the broad Devonshire dialect at the commencement of the last century, have been lately republished. The third edition was published at Exeter in 1746, 4to. Mr. Marshall has given a list of West Devonshire words in his Rural Economy of the West of England, 1796, vol. i. pp. 323-32, but the best yet printed is that by Mr. Palmer, appended to a Dialogue in the Devonshire Dialect, 8vo. 1837. A brief glossary is also added to the Devonshire Dialogue, 8vo. 1839. My principal guide, however, for the dialectical words of this county is a large MS. collection stated in Mr. Thomas Rodd's Catalogue of MSS. for 1845 (No. 276) to have been written by Dr. Milles, Dean of Exeter, and quoted in this work as Dean Milles' MS. I have been since informed that it was compiled by the late Rev. Richard Hole, but in either case its integrity and value are undoubted. Notes of Devonshire words have been kindly transmitted by the Rev. John Wilkinson, J. H. James, Esq., William Chappell, Esq., Mrs. Lovell, and Mr. J. Metcalfe. The West Country dialect is now spoken in greater purity in Devonshire than in any other county.

The following remarks on the English dialects are taken from Aubrey's Natural History of Wiltshire, a MS. preserved in the library of the Royal Society:

The Northern parts of England speake gutturally; and in Yorkshire and the bishoprick of Durham they have more of the cadence, or Scottish tone than they have at Edinborough: in like manner, in Herefordshire they have more of the Welch cadence than they have in Wales. The Western people cannot open their mouths to speak ore rotundo. Wee pronounce paal, pale, &c., and especially in Devonshire. The Exeter Coll. men in disputations, when they allege Causus Causus est Causus Causati, they pronounce it, Caus, Caus est Causa Causati very un-gracefully. Now contra the French and Italians doe naturally pronounce a fully ore rotundo, and e, and even children of French born in England; and the farther you goe South the more fully, qd. NB. This must proceed from the earth or aire, or both. One may observe, that the speech (twang or accent—adiantus) of ye vulgar begins to alter some thing towards the Herefordshire manner even at Cyreneester. Mr. Thom. Hobbs told me, that Sir Charles Cavendish did say, that the Greekes doe sing their words (as the Hereff. doe in some degree). From hence arose the accents, not used by the ancients. I have a conceit, that the Britons of the South part of this Isle, e. g. the Trinobantes, &c., did speake no more gutturally, or twangings, than the inhabitants doe now. The tone, accent, &c., depends on the temper of the earth (and so to plants) and aire.

(1) A Lovers' Dialogue.

Rob. I love dearly, Bet, to hear the tell; but, good loving now, let's tell o'summet else. Time slips away.

Bet. I, fegs, that it dith. I warnis our vokes wonder what the godger's a come o'me. I'll drive home. I wish thee good neart.

Rab. Why there now. Oh, Bet! you guess what I ha to tell about, and you warn't hear me.

Bet. I, say so, co:—a fiddle-de-dee—blind mares.

Rab. There agen!—did ever any boddy hear the like? Well, soce, what be I to do?

Bet. I wish, Rab, you'd leave vetting me. Pithee, let's here no more o'at.

Rab. Well, I see how 'tis. You'll be the death o' me, that's a sure thing.

Bet. Dear hart, how you tell! I the death o' thee!—no, not vor the world, Rab. Why I'd ne'er the heart to hurt thee nor any kindest thing in all my born days. What whimsies you have! Why do ye put yourself in such a pucker?

Rab. Why, because the minnet I go about to break my meend, whipsoce, you be a-go, and than I coud bite my tongue.

Bet. Why than will you vease me away when you know I can't abide to hear o'at? Good-now, don't ee say no more about et. Us have always been good friends—let us bide so.

Rab. I've now began, and I want let thee go till thee heat a-ward me out.

Bet. Well, I will, but don't ee cream my hand so.

Rab. I don't know what I do nor what I say;—many many nearts I ha'n't a teen'd my eyes vor thinking o'thee. I can't live so, 'tis never the neer to tell o'at; and I must make an end o'at wan way or t'other. I be bent upon't; therefore don't stand shilly-shally, but lookedease, iv thee disn't say thee wud ha me, bevore thicca cloud hath heal'd every rheid o' the moon, sure an double-sure I'll ne'er ax thee agen, but go a soger and never see home no more. Lock! lock! my precious, what dist cry vor?

Bet. I be a cruel moody-hearted tirsome body; and you scare wan, you do so. I'm in a sad quandory. Iv I say is, I may be sorry; and if I say no, I may be sorry too, simmet. I hop you widn't use me badly.

Rab. Dist think, my sweeting, I shall e'er be mar'd answ to claw out my own eyes? and thee art dearer to me than they be.

Bet. Hold not so breach now, but hear first what I've to say. You must know, Rab, the lost money I've a croyp'd up I be a shirk'd out o', but 'twill never goodee way an. I'll tell thee how I was a need.

Rab. Good-now, lovey, don't ee think o'at. We shall fadge and find without et. I can work, and will work, an all my carking and caring will be for thee, and everything shall bee as thee woud ha'et. Thee shall do what thee wud.

Bet. I say so too. Co, co, Rab, how you tell! Why, pithee, don't ee think I be such a nissy-hammer as to desire et. If 'tis ordain'd I shall ha thee, I'll do my best to make thee a gude wife. I don't want to be cocker'd. Hark! hark! I don't I hear the bell lowering for aight?—'tis, as I live. I shall ha et when I get home.

Rab. If I let thee go now, will meet me agen to-morrow evening in the dimmet?

Bet. No. To-morrow morning at milking time I will.

Rab. Sure.

Bet. Sure and sure. So I wish thee good neart.

Rab. Neart, neart, my sweeting!

And jist listen, Johnny, and yer how 'a squeals!”

“ Daah my buttons, Moll—I'll be darn'd if I know; Us was vools to come yerr and to urn into danger, Let's be off—'a spits yerr! lor, do let us go—

DORSETSHIRE.

“ The rustic dialect of Dorsetshire,” observes Mr. Barnes, “ is, with little variation, that of most of the Western parts of England, which were included in the kingdom of the West Saxons, the counties of Surrey, Hants, Berks, Wilts, and Dorset, and parts of Somerset and Devon.” The Dorset dialect, however, has essential features of that of the Western counties which are not heard in Surrey or Hants, as will be sufficiently apparent from the specimens here given. The language of the south-east part of Dorsetshire is more nearly allied to that of Hants.

“ In the town of Poole,” according to Dr. Salter, “ there is a small part which appears to be inhabited by a peculiar race of people, who are, and probably long have been, the fishing population of the neighbourhood. Their manner of speaking is totally different from that of the neighbouring rustics. They have a great predilection for changing all the vowels into short u, using it in the second person, but without a pronoun, and suppressing syllables, e. g. cas'n car't, can you not carry it, &c.” Mr. Vernon, in remarking upon these facts, observes, “ the language of our seamen in general is well worth a close investigation, as it certainly contains not a few archaisms; but the subject requires time and patience, for in the mouths of those who call the Bellerophon and the Ville de Milan, the Billy Ruffian and the Wheel-em-along, there is nothing

"But doth suffer a sea-change Into something new and strange."

This must be received with some limitation, and perhaps applies almost entirely to difficult modern terms not easily intelligible to the uneducated. Many of the principal English nautical terms have remained unchanged for centuries.

Valuable lists of Dorsetshire words have been liberally sent me by the Rev. C. W. Bingham, James Davidson, Esq., Samuel Bagster, Esq., Dr. Salter, and G. Gollop, Esq.; but my principal references have been made to the glossary attached by Mr. Barnes to his "Poems of Rural Life in the Dorset Dialect," 8vo. 1844. The same work contains a dissertation on the dialect, with an account of its peculiar features. The change of o into a, so common in Dorsetshire, completely disappears as we proceed in a westerly direction towards Worcestershire.

Meester, an' please you, 'I do send Theas letter to you as a vrend,
Hoping you'll pardon the inditing,
Beas I am not us'd to writing,
And that you will not take unkind
A word or so from poor George Hind,
For I am always in the way,
And needs must hear what people say.
First of the house they make a joke,
And say the chimnies never smook.
Now the occasion of these jests,
As I do think, where swallows nests,
That chane'd the other day to vaal
Into the parlour, sut and aal.
Beside, the people not a few
Begin to murmur much at you,
For leav'ing of them in the lurch,
And lett'ing strangers serve the church,
Who are in haste to go agen,
Zo, we ha'nt sang the Lord knows when.
And for their preaching, I do know
As well as moost, 'tis but so, so.
Zure if the call you had were right,
You ne'er could thus your neighbours slight.
But I do fear you've set your aim on Nought in the world but vilthy mammon, &c.

An' gi ye a flairen too.
We woon't stáy late ther; I'll be boun'
We'll bring our shiades back out o' town

The moon ha' sparklen brooks at night,
The trees da lite the pilysoome fligt
Ov ayer vrom the west.

(3) The Woodlands.

O spread agen your leaves an' flou'rs,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands
Here underneath the dewy show'rs
O' warm-áir'd spring-time, sunny woodlands!
As when, in drong ar oben groun',
W'f happy buoylish heart I voom'
The twitt'ren birds a-bullden roun'
Your high-bough'd hedges, sunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me life, ya gie'd me jáy,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me health as in my pláy
I rambled droo ye, sunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me freedom var to rove
In áiry meid, ar shiady grove;
Ya gie'd me smillen Fanny's love,
The best ov all o't, sunny woodlands
My vust shill skylark whiver'd high,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands!
To stang below your deep-blue sky,
An' white spring-clouds, O sunny woodlands!
An' boughs o' trees that oome stood here,
Wer glossy green the happy year,
That gie'd me oon I lov'd so dear,
An' now ha lost, O sunny woodlands!
O let me rove agen unpled,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands!
Along your green-bough'd hedges' side,
As then I rambled, sunny woodlands!
An' wher the missén trees oonce stood,
Ar tongues oonce rung among the wood,
My memory shall mlaik em good,
Though you've alost em, sunny woodlands!

(4) The Weepen Lady.

When late o' nights, upon the green,
By thik wold house, the moon da sheen,
A laddy there, a-hangen loo
Her head's a-wak-on to an' fro
In robes so white's the driven snow;
W'f oon yarm down, while oon da rest
Al lilly-white upon the breast
O thik poor weepen laddy.
The curdlen win' an' whislen squall
Do shake the ivy by the wall,
An' make the pleyen tree-tops rock,
But never ruffle her white frock,
An' alammen door an' rottlen lock
That in thik empty house da sound,
Da never seem to make look round
Thik downcast weepen laddy,
A laddy, as the tale da goo,
That oonce liv'd there, an' lov'd too true,
Wer by a young man cast aside
A mother sad, but not a bride;
An' then her fater in his pride

An' anger offer'd oon o' two Vull bitter things to undergo
To shik poor weepen liady.

That she herruf should leave his door,
To darken it again noo nuore,
Ar that her little playosome chille,
A-sent away a thousand mile,
Should never meet her eyes to smile,
An' play again, till she in shiame
Should die an' leave a tarnish'd nname,
A sad variaken liady.

"Let me be lost," she cried, "the while,
I do but know var my poor chille;"
An' left the hnoome ov al her pride,
To wander droo the worlde wide,
Wi' grief that vew but she ha' tried,
An' lik' a flow'r a blow ha' broke,
She wither'd wi' shik deadly strok,
An' died a weepen liady.

An' she da keep a-comen on,
To see shik father dead an' gone,
As if her soul could have noo rest
Avore her teary chiak's a-prest
By his vargiv-en kias: soo blest
Be they that can but live in love,
An' vine a pilace o' rest above,
Unlik' the weepen liady.

DURHAM.

The Durham dialect is the same as that spoken in Northumberland and the North Riding of Yorkshire, the former being more like Scotch, and the latter more like English, but each in a very slight degree. The Durham pronunciation, though soft, is monotonous and drawing. See the 'Quarterly Review' for Feb. 1836, p. 358.

No glossary of Durham words has yet appeared, but Kennett has recorded a considerable number in his MS. Glossary. I have been enabled to add many unknown to that author, derived from communications by the Rev. R. Douglas, George B. Richardson, Esq., Miss Portus, E. T. Warburton, Esq., and Mr. S. Ward.

If the following anecdote be true, Southern English is but little known amongst some of the lower orders in Durham:

"John," said a master tanner in South Durham, the other day, to one of his men, "bring in some fuel." John walked off, revolving the word in his mind, and returned with a pitchfork! "I don't want that," said the wondering tanner; "I want fuel, John." "Beg your pardon," replied the man, "I thought you wanted something to turn over the skins." And off he went again, not a whit the wiser, but ashamed to confess his ignorance. Much meditating, he next pitched upon the besom, shouldering which, he returned to the counting-house. His master was now in a passion. "What a stupid ass you are, John," he exclaimed; "I want some sticks and shavings to light the fire." "O-h-h-h!" rejoined the rustic, "that's what you want, is it?" Why couldn't you say so at first, master, instead of using a London dictionary word? And, wishful to show that he was not alone in his ignorance, he called a comrade to the tanner's presence, and asked him if he knew what "fuel" was. "Aye!" answered Joe, "ducks an' geese, and sike like!"—Gateshead Observer.

ESSEX.

The dialect of Essex is closely allied in some parts of the county to that of Kent, and in others to that of Suffolk, though generally not so broad, nor spoken with the strong Suffolk whining tone. Mr. Charles Clark has given a glossary of Essex words at the end of 'John Noakes and Mary Styles, or an Essex Calf's Visit to Tiptree Races,' 8vo. 1839, and I am indebted for many others to the kindness of the Rev. W. Pridden and Mr. Edward T. Hill. A list of Essex words is given in the Monthly Magazine for July, 1814, pp. 498-9.

(2) Cock-a-Bevis Hill.

At Tottum's Cock-a-Bevis Hill,
A sput suppas'd by few,
Where toddlers ollis haut to eye
The proper pritty wiew;
Where people crake so ov the place,
Lea-ways, so I've hard say;
An' frum its top yow, sarteny,
Can see a monsus way.
'Bout this oad Hill, I warrant ya,
Their bog it niver ceases;
They'd growl shud yow nut own that it
Beats Danbury's au' to pteases.
But no sense ov a place, some think,
Is this here hill so high,—
Cos there, full oft, 'tis nation coad,
But that don't agufy.
Yit, if they their inquirans maake
In winter time, some will Condemn that place as so great shakes,
Where folks ha' the coad-chill!
As sum'dy, 'haps, when nigh the sput,
May ha' a wish to see't,—
From Mauldon toun to Keldon 'tis,
An' 'gin a four releet,
Where up the road the load it goos
So lugome an' so stiff,
That hosses moely kitch a whop,
Frum drivers in a tif.
But who'd pay a hoos when tugging on?
None but a tetchy elf:
Tis right on plain etch chap desearves
A clumsy thump himself.
Haul'd o'er the coals, sich fellars e'er
Shud be, by Martin's Act;
But, them, they're rayther muggy oft,
So with um we're not sact.

But thussins, 'haps, to let um oaf
Is wrong, becoss eteh carter,
If maade to smart, his P's and Q's
He'd mine for ever arter.

At Cock-a-Bevis Hill, too, the Wisecracs show a tree,
Which if yow clamber up, besure,
A precious way yow see.

I dorn't think I cud elime it now,
Aldoe I uster cud;
I shudn't warsley loike to troy,
For guelch cum down I shud.

My head 'ood swim,—I 'oodn't do't
Nuteven for a guinea:
A naarbour ax'd me, tother day,
"Naa, naa," says I, "nut quinnny."

At Cock-a-Bevis Hill, I was
A-goon to tell the folks,
Some waras back—when I bargun—
In peace there lived John Noakes.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

It has been already remarked that the organic forms of the Gloucestershire dialect have remained unchanged for centuries, and are to be traced in Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle. Many Anglo-Saxon words are here preserved in great purity. "He geunne it him," he gave it him, the verb geunne being in general use amongst the peasantry. The dialect is more similar to that of Somersetshire than of the adjoining counties, though not so strongly marked as a Western dialect. They change o into a, s into x, f into v, t into d, p into b, short a into i or ooy, long e into ees, long i into ey, long o into ooa. The A.-S. termination en is still preserved; thee is used for thou and you; hilk is in constant use; her is put for she, she for her, I for me, and ow for he, she, or it. Communications of Gloucestershire words have been received from the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, Miss Shipton, and Mr. E. Wright.

George Ridler's Oven.

The stwons that built George Ridler's oven,
And thauy qeum from the Bleakeney's quar;
And his yead it graw'd above his yare.

One thing of George Ridler I must commend,
And that wur not a notable theng;
He mead his braags avoore he died,
Wl' any dree brothers his sons 'rhou'd seng.

There s Dick the treble and John the mean,
Let every mon sing in his awn pleace;
And George he wur the elder brother,
And therevoore he would sing the beass.

Mine hostes's mold (and her deaum 'twur Nell)
A pretty wench, and I lov'd her well;
I lov'd her well, good reasion why,
Because sahe lov'd my dog and I.

My dog is good to catch a hen,
A duck or goose is wood for men;
And where good company I spy,
O thether gwoes my dog and I.

My mwother told I when I wur young,
If I did vollow the strong-beer pwoot;
That drenk would pruv my auverdrow,
And meauk me wear a throad-bare cwoat.

My dog has gotten sitch a trick,
To visit molds when thauy be sick;
When thauy be sick and like to die,
O thether gwoes my dog and I.

When I have dree sispences under my thumb,
O then I be welcome wherever I come;
But when I have none, O then I pass by,
'Tis poverty pearts good company.

If I should die, as it may hap,
My greauve shall be under the good yeeal tap;
In vouled earms there wool us lie,
Cheek by jowl my dog and I!

HAMPSHIRE.

The romance of Octovian, according to Mr. D'Israeli, "is in the Hampshire dialect nearly as it is spoken now." Although somewhat doubtful as to the literal correctness of this opinion, an extract from it may be compared with a modern specimen of the dialect. A short glossary of Hampshire words is given in Warner's collections for that county. The dialect of the west of the county is similar to that of Wiltshire, f being changed into v, and th into d; and us for him, her, it. It is a common saying, that in Hampshire every thing is called he except a tom-cat which is called she.

A Letter to the Editor of the Times, from a poor Man at Andover, on the Union Workhouse.

Sir,—Hunger, as I've heerd say, breaks through Stone Walls; but yet I shodn't have thought of letting you know about my poor Misus's death, but all my nelbours say tell it out, and it can't do you no harm and may do others good, specially as Parliament is to meet soon, when the Gentlefoke will be talking about the working foke.

I be but a farmers working man, and was married to my Misus 26 years agone, and have three Childern living with me, one 10, another 7, and t'other 3. I be subject to bad rumatis, and never earns no more, as you may judge, than to pay rent and keep our bodies and souls together when we be all well. I was tended by Mr. Westlake when he was Union Doctor, but when the Guardians turned him out it was a bad job for all the Poor, and a precious bad job for me and mine.

Mr. Payne when he come to be our Union Doctor tended upon me up to almost the end of last April, but when I send up to the Union House as usual, Mr. Broad, the Relieving Officer, send back word there was nothing for me, and Mr. Payne wodnt come no more. I was too bad to work, and had not Vittals for me, the Missus, and the young ones, so I was forced to sell off the Bed, Bedstead, and furniture of the young ones, to by Vittals with, and then I and Missus and the young ones had only one bed for all of us. Missus was very bad, to, then, but as we knowd t were no use to ask the Union for nothink cept we'd all go into the Workhouse, and which Missus couldn't a bear, as she'd bin parted from the childern, she sends down to tell Mr. Westlake how bad we was a doing off, and he comes to us directly, and tends upon us out of charity, and gives Missus Mutton and things, which he said, and we know'd too well, she wanted of, and he gives this out of his own Pocket.

Missus complaint growd upon her and she got so very bad, and Mr. Westlake says to us, I do think the guardians wouldn't let your wife lay here and starve, but would do something for you if they knowd how bad you wanted things, and so, says he, I'll give you a Certificate for some Mutton and things, and you take it to Mr. Broad, the relieving officer. Well, I does this, and he tells me that hed give it to the guardians and let me know what they said. I sees him again, and O, says he, I gived that Certificate to the Guardians, but they chucked it a one side and said they wodnt tend to no such thing, nor give you nothing, not even if Missus was dying, if you has anything to do with Mr. Westlake, as they had turned him off.

I told my Missus this, and then says she we must try to get their Union Doctor, Mr. Payne, as we can't go on for ever taking things from Mr. Westlake's Pocket, and he turned out of Place, and so good to many poor folks besides us. So we gets Mr. Payne after a bit to come down; and he says to Missus you're very bad, and I shall order the Union to send you Mutton and other things. Next Week Mr. Payne calls again, and asks Missus did she have the things he'd ordered for her to have? She says I've had a shillings worth of Mutton, Sir. Why, says he, you wants other things besides Mutton, and I ordered them for you in the Union Book, and you ought to have them in your bad state. This goes on for 5 or 6 weeks, only a shillings worth of Mutton a Week being allowed her, and then one Week a little Gin was allowed, and after that as Missus couldnt get out of bed a Woman was sent to nurse and help her.

I didnt ask Mr. Payne to order these ere things, tho' bad enof God knows they was wanted; but in the first week in last November I was served with a summons to tend afore our Mayor and Justices under the Vagrance Act; I think they said twas cause I had not found these things for Missus myself; but the Union Doctor had ordered em of the Guardians on his sponsibility. Well, I attends afore the Justices, and there was nothing against me, and so they puts it off, and orders me to tend afore em again next week, which I does, and then there wasnt enof for em to send me to Gaol, as the Guardians wanted, for a Month, and they puts it off again for another Week, and says I must come afore em again, and which I does; and they tells me theres nothing proved, that I could afford to pay for the things, and I mite go about my business.

I Just loses three days' work, or pretty handy, by this, and that made had a good bit worse. Next Day Mr. Payne comes again, and Missus was so out-daceous bad, she says cant you give me something to do me good and ease me a bit; says Mr. Payne, I dont see you be much worse. Yes, I be, says Missus, and I wish you'd be so good as to let me send for Mr. Westlake, as I thinks he knows what'd make me easier, and cure the bad pains I do suffer. Mr. Payne abused my Poor Missus, and dared her to do anything of that sort, and so we were feared to do it, lest I should be pulled up again afore the Justices, and lose more days work, and prhaps get sent to Gaol. Eight days after this Mr. Payne never having come nist us, and the Union having lowd us nothing at all, my poor Missus dies, and dies from want, and in agonies of pain, and as bad off as if shed been a Savage, for she could only have died of want of them things which she wanted and I couldnt buy if she'd been in a foreign land, were there no Parsons and People as I've heard tell be treated as bad as dogs.

Years agone, if any body had been half so bad as my Missus, and nobody else would have tended to her, there'd been the clergyman of the parish, at all events, who'd have prayed with her, and seen too that she didn't die of starvation, but our Parson is in favor of this here new Law, and as he gets 80l. a year from the Guardians, he arnt a going to quarrel with his Bread and Cheese for the likes of we, and so he didnt come to us. Altho' he must have knowd how ill Missus was; and she, poor creature, went out of this here world without any Spiritual consolation whatsoever from the Poor Man's Church.

We'd but one bed as I've telled you, and only one Bedroom, and it was very bad to be all in the same Room and Bed with poor Missus after she were dead; and as I'd no money to pay for a Coffin, I goes to Mr. Broad, then to Mr. Majer, one of the Guardians, and then to the overseers, and axes all of 'em to find a Coffin, but 'twere no use, and so, not knowing what in the World to do, off I goes to tell Mr. Westlake of it, and he was soon down at the House, and blamed me much for not letting he know afore Missus died, and finding we'd no food nor fire, nothing for a shrowd cept we could wash up something, and that we'd no soap to do that with, he gives us something to get these ere things, and tells me to go again to the Relieving Officer and t'others and try and get a Coffin, and to tell un Missus ought to be burried as soon as possible, else t'would make us all ill. This I does as afore, but get nothing, and then Mr. Westlake give me an order where to get a Coffin, and if he had not stood a friend to me and mine, I can't think what would have become of em, as twas sad at Nights to see the poor little things pretty nigh break their hearts when they seed their poor dead mother by their side upon the Bed.

My troubles wasnt to end even here, for strang to tell the Registrer for Deaths for this District dont live in this the largest Parish with about 8000 inhabitants, but at a little Village of not more than 400 People and 5 Miles off, so I had to walk there and back 10 miles, which is very hard upon us poor folk, and what is worse when I got there the Registrer wasnt up; and when he got up he wodnt tend to me afore hed had his breakfast, and I was aforsed to wait about until hed had done breakfast, and it seemed as 'twas a very long time for a poor chap like me to be kept a waiting, whilst a man who is paid for doing what I wanted won't do such little work as that afore here made hisself comfortable, tho' I telled him how bad I wanted to get back, and that I should loose a Day by his keeping me waiting about.

That this is mostly the fault of the Guardians rather than anybody else is my firm beleaf, tho' if Mr. Payne had done his duty hed a been with Missus many times afore she died and not have left her as he did, when he knowed she was so bad, and hed a made un give her what she wanted; but then he must do, he says, just what the Guardians wishes, and that arnt to attend much on the Poor, and the Reling Officer is docked if what he gives by even the Doctors orders arnt proved of by the Guardians sterward, and he had to pay for the little Gin the Doctor ordered out of his own Pocket, and, as the Newspaper says, for the Nurse, as this was put in our Paper by I'm sure I don't know who, but I believes tis true, last week.

And now, Sir, I shall leave it to you to judge whether the Poor can be treated any where so bad as they be in the Andover Union.

HEREFORDSHIRE.

The pronoun a is used for he, she, or it. Strong preterits are current, climb, clomb, heave, hove, pick, puck, shake, shuck, squeeze, squose, &c. The dialect of this county must be classed as belonging to the Midland division. The word just is used in rather a peculiar manner. Instead of saying, I have but just returned, they say I returned but just. A list of Herefordshire words is given in Duncumb's History of Hereford, and a more extended one has recently been separately published, 8vo. 1839. I am indebted for many words not to be found in either of these to lists given me by Sir S. R. Meyrick, T. W. Lane, Esq., and Mr. Perry.

HUNTINGDONSHIRE.

There seem to be no peculiarities of dialect here which are not common to the adjoining county of Cambridgeshire. They say mort for a quantity; a mort of people, a mort of rain. To-year for this year, like to-day or to-morrow. Wonderful for very; his pain were wonderful great. To get himself ready, for to dress himself; he is too weak to get himself ready. If a disorder or illness of any kind be inquired for, they never say it is better or worse, but that's better, or that's worse, with an emphasis on that. The Rev. Joseph Horner kindly favoured me with a list of the few provincial words which may be peculiar to this county.

ISLE OF WIGHT.

The dialect of the native inhabitants of this island differs in many respects from the county to which it is opposite. The accent is rather mincing than broad, and has little of the vulgar character of the West country dialects. The tendency to insert y in the middle of words may be remarked, and the substitution of v for f is not uncommon among the peasantry, but by no means general. The pronunciation may generally be correctly represented by the duplication of the vowels.

No printed glossary of Isle of Wight provincialisms has yet appeared, but a very valuable one in MS., compiled by Captain Henry Smith, was most kindly placed at my disposal by his relative, Charles Roach Smith, Esq. F.S.A. It has been fully used in the following pages. Useful communications have also been received from E. J. Vernon, Esq., Dr. Bromfield, and Dr. Salter.

KENT.

The modern Kentish dialect is slightly broad, indeed more so than that of Surrey or Sussex. Daisy, plaisy, waisy, for day, play, way, &c. They say who for how, and vice versa. Mate, instead of boy or lad, is the usual address amongst equals. The interchange of v and w is common here as well as in the metropolis. As in most parts of England, the pronunciation of names of place differs very much from the orthography, e. g. Sussex for Sevenoaks, Dairn for Darenth, Lewsum for Lewisham, &c. No glossary of Kentish words has yet been published, unless we may so style a short list of words in Lewis's History and Antiquities of the Isle of Tenet, 1736, pp. 35-39, but I have received valuable communications from the Rev. M. H. Lloyd, John Brent, Esq., the Rev. Thomas Streetfield, the Rev. L. B. Larking, John Pemberton Bartlett, Esq., the Rev. Dr. Hussey, Thomas Wright, Esq., Miss Cotterell, J. R. Hughes, Esq., and A. J. Dunkin, Esq. An early song in this dialect occurs in Ravenscroft's Melismata, 1611.

We have a most curious specimen of the Kentish dialect of the fourteenth century (1340) in the Ayenbyte of Inwyt, a MS. in the Arundel collection. An extract from it will be found at p. 801, and another is here given. The change of f into v, and s into z, are now generally peculiar to the West country dialect, but appear at this early period to have extended over the South of England. In the next century, the broadness of the dialect was not so general. At least, a poem of the fifteenth century, in a MS. at Oxford, written in Kent, is remarkably pure, although the author excuses himself for his language:

I.

And though myn English be sympill to myn entent,
 Hold me excusid, for I was borne in Kente.

MS. Lond. 416, f. 49.

The principal peculiarity in this MS. seems to consist in e being the prefix to the verb instead of i or y. For a long period, however, the dialect of the Kentish peasantry was strongly marked. In a rare tract entitled, "How the Plowman lerned his Paternoster," a character is thus mentioned:

He was patched, torne, and all to-rente;
 It semed by his langage that he was borne in Kente.

Reliquiæ Antiquæ, vol. i. p. 46.

The following very curious passage from Caxton will further illustrate this fact:

And certaynly our langage now used varyeth ferre from that whiche was used and spoken when I was borne, for we Englyshemen ben borne under the domynion of the moone, whiche is never sted-faste, but ever waverynge, weyynge one season, and waneth and dyscreaseth another season; and that comyn Englyshe that is spoken in one shyre varyeth from another, insomuche that in my dayes happened that certayn marchauntes were in a shippe in Tamysse for to have sayled over the see into Zelande, and for lacke of wynde, thei taryed atte Forlond, and wente to lande for to refreche them. And one of theym, named Sheffelde, a mercer, cam into an howe and axed for mete, and specyally he axyd after eggys; and the goode wyf answerde that she coude speke no Frenshe, and the marchaunt was angry, for he also coude speke no Frenshe, but wolde have hadde eggys, and she understode hym not; and theinne at laste another sayd that he wolde have eyren. Then the good wyf sayd that she understod hym wel. Loo, what shold a man in thysse dayes now wryte eggys or eyren? Certaynly it is harde to playse every man, bycause of dyversité and change of langage.

Caxton's Engaydes, 1490.

LANCASHIRE.

The dialect of Lancashire is principally known by Collier's Dialogue, published under the name of Tim Bobbin. A glossary of the fifteenth century, written in Lancashire, is preserved in MS. Lansd. 560, f. 45. A letter in the Lancashire dialect occurs in Braithwaite's Two Lancashire Lovers, 1640, and other early specimens are given in Heywood's Late Lancashire Witches, 4to. 1634, and Shadwell's Lancashire Witches, 4to. 1682. The glossary at the end of Tim Bobbin is imperfect as a collection for the county, and I have been chiefly indebted for Lancashire words to my father, Thomas Halliwell, Esq. Brief notes have also been received from the Rev. L. Jones, George Smeeton, Esq., the Rev. Dr. Hume, G. R. Spencer, Esq., and Mr. R. Proctor. The features of the dialect will be seen from the following specimens; o and ou are changed into a, ea into o, al into au, g into k, long o into oi, and d final into f. The Saxon termination en is retained, but generally mute.

(3) A Lancashire Ballad.

Now, aw me gud gentles, an yau won tarry,
He tel how Gilbert Scott soudn's mare Berry.
He soudn's mare Berry at Warikin fair ;
When heel be pade, hee knows not, ere or nere.
Soon as hee coom whoom, an toud his wife Grace,
Hon up wi th' kippo, an swat him ore th' face ;
Hoo pick'dt him oth' hilloc, wi sick a thwack,
That hoo bad whel ni a brokken his back.
Thou hooer, quo hee, wo't but lemme rise,
He gi thee auth' leet, wench, that imme lles.
Thou udgit, quo hoo, but wher dus hee dwel ?
Belakin, quo hee, but I connan tel.
I tuck him to be sum gud grealmon's son ;
He spent too pense on mee when hee had doon.
He gin mee a lunch'n o denty snig py,
An shaukdt mee bith' haundt most lovinly.
Then Grace, hoo promptd hur, so neeat an so nc.
To War'kin hoo went, o Wensday betime.

An theer too, hoo stude ful five markit days,
Til th' mon, wi th' mare, were coom to Raunley Shaw's.

As Grace was restin won day in hur rowm,
Hoo spydt th' mon a ridin o th' mare down the town.
Bounce gas hur hart, an hoo wer so glopen
That out o th' windo hoo'd like fort lopen.

Hoo staumpdt, an hoo star'dt, an down stairs hoo run,

Wi' th' hat under th' arm, an windt welly gon.

Hur hed-gear flew off, an so did hur snowd,
Hoo staumpdt, an hoo star'dt, as an hoo'd been wood.

To Raunley's hoo hy'd, an hoo hove up th' latch,
Afore th' mon had teed th' mare welly too th' cratch.
Me gud mon, quo hoo, frend, hee greets yau merry.
An desires yau'd send him money for Berry.

Ay, money, quo hee, that I connan spare :

Belakin, quo hoo, but then He ha th' mare.
Hoo poodt, an hoo thromperdt him, shaum't be seen ;

Thou hangmon, quo hoo, He poo out thin een :

He mak thee a sompan, haud thee a great

He oth'r ha' th' money, or poo out the throat ;

'Tween them they made such a wearlison din,

That for t' intrest them, Raunly Shaw coom in ;

Coom, fy, fy, naunt Grace, coom, fy, an a doon ;

What, deel, ar yau monkeen, or ar yau won ?

Belakin, quo hee, yau lane so hard on—

I think now that th' woman has quite spoildt th' mon.

Coom, fy, fy, naunt Grace, coom, fy, an a doon ;

Yaust ha' th' mare, or th' money, whether yau won.

So Grace got th' money, an whomwardt hoo's gon,

Hoo keept it aw, an ges Gilbert Scott non.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

The dialect of this county has been entirely neglected, with the exception of a few brief remarks in Macaulay's History of Claybrook, 1791 ; but it deserves a careful study. A valuable glossary of Leicestershire words was given me by Mr. John Gibson, but too late to be used in the early part of the work.

The dialect of the common people, though broad, is sufficiently plain and intelligible. They have a strong propensity to aspirate their words ; the letter h comes in almost on every occasion where it ought not, and is as frequently omitted where it ought to come in. The words fine, mine, and such like, are pronounced as if they were spelt foine, moine ; place, face, &c. as if they were spelt pleace, feace ; and in the plural sometimes you hear pleacen ; clozen for cloose ; and many other words in the same style of Saxon termination. The words there and where are generally pronounced thus, theerra, wheree ; the words mercy, deserve, &c. thus, marcy, desarve. The following peculiarities of pronunciation are likewise observable : us, strongly aspirated, for us, war for was, moed for maid, falthur for father, e'ery for every ; bridge, thurrough for furrow, haif for half, cart-rit for rust, malafactory for manufactory, inac, tious for anxious.

LINCOLNSHIRE.

The river Witham may be considered with tolerable accuracy the boundary line between the Northern and Southern dialects of the county, which differ considerably from each other; the former being more nearly allied to that of Yorkshire, the latter to the speech of East Anglia, but neither are nearly so broad as the more Northern dialects. Many singular phrases are in use. They say, Very not well, I used to could, You shouldn't have ought, &c. The Lincolnshire words were partially collected by Skinner in the seventeenth century, but no regular glossary has yet appeared. This deficiency, however, as far as the present work is concerned, has been amply supplied by as many as nineteen long communications, each forming a small glossary by itself, and of peculiar value, from the Rev. James Adcock of Lincoln, to whom I beg to return my best acknowledgments. I have also to acknowledge assistance from Sir E. F. Bromhead, Bart., the Rev. Dr. Oliver, Robert Goodacre, Esq., T. R. Jackson, Esq., Mr. E. Johnson, and papers kindly inserted at my suggestion in the Lincoln Standard.

(2) From "Neddy and Sally; a Lincolnshire tale," by John Brown, 12mo. n. d.

Cum, Sall, its time we started now,
You's Farmer Haycock's lasses ready,
And maister says he'll feed the cow,
He didn't say so,—did he Neddy?

Yess, that he did, so make thee haste,
And git thee on made smart and pretty,
We yaller ribbon round the waist,
The same as oud Squire Lowden's Kitty.

And I'll go fetch my sister Bess,
I'm sartin sure she's up and ready,
Come gie's a bus, thou can't do less,
Says Sally, No, thou musn't, Neddy.

See, yonder's Bess a cummin cross
The fields, we lots o' lads and lasses,
All hailm be hailm, and brother Jose
A shouting to the folks as passes.

Odds dickens, Sall, we'll hev a spree,
Me heart's as light as ony feather,
There's not a chap dost russel me,
Not all the town's chaps put together.

MIDDLESEX.

The metropolitan county presents little in its dialect worthy of remark, being for the most part merely a coarse pronunciation of London slang and vulgarity. The language of the lower orders of the metropolis is pictured very faithfully in the works of Mr. Dickens. The interchange of v and w is a leading characteristic. Some of the old cant words, mixed with numerous ones of late formation, are to be traced in the London slang.

The Thimble Rig.

"Now, then, my jolly sportsmen! I've got more money than the parson of the parish. Those as don't play can't win, and those as are here hasn't there! I'd hold any on you, from a tanner to a sovereign, or ten, as you don't tell which thimble the pea is under." "It's there, sir." "I barr tellings." "I'll go it again." "Vat you don't see don't look at, and vat you do see don't tell. Ill hould you a soverain, sir, you don't tell me vitch thimble the pea is under." "Lay him, sir, (in a whisper); it's under the middle'un. I'll go you halves." "Lay him another; that's right." "I'm blow'd but we've lost; who'd a thought it!" Snack goes the flat's hat over his eyes; exit the confederates with a loud laugh.

NORFOLK.

"The most general and pervading characteristic of our pronunciation," observes Mr. Forby, "is a narrowness and tenuity, precisely the reverse of the round, sonorous, mouth-filling tones of Northern English. The broad and open sounds of vowels, the rich and full tones of diphthongs, are generally thus reduced." The same writer enters very minutely into the subject of the peculiarities of this dialect, and his glossary of East Anglian words, 2 vols. 8vo. 1830, is the most complete publication of the kind. A brief list of Norfolk words is given in Brown's Certain Miscellany Tracts, 8vo. 1684, p. 146. A glossary of the provincialisms of the same county occurs in Marshall's Rural Economy of Norfolk, 1787, and observations on the dialect in Erratics by a Sailor, 1809. In addition to these, I have had the advantage of using communications from the Rev. George Munford, the Very Rev. F. C. Husenbeth, Mrs. Robins, and Goddard Johnson, Esq.

A vocabulary of the fifteenth century, written in Norfolk, is preserved in MS. Addit. 12195, but the Promptorium Parvulorum is a much more valuable and extensive repository of early Norfolk words. A MS. of Capgrave's Life of St. Katherine in the Bodleian Library, MS. Rawl. Poet. 118, was written in this county. It would appear from the following passage that Norfolk was, in early times, one of the least re-fined parts of the island:

I wende rissynge were restitution, quod he,
For I lerned nevere rede on boke;
And I kan no Frenshe, in feith,
But of the ferreste ende of Northfolk.

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

A midland dialect, less broad and not so similar to the Northern as Warwickshire. I have to acknowledge communications on the dialect of this county from the Rev. J. B. P. Dennis, and Charles Young, Esq.

NORTHUMBERLAND.

Northumberland has a dialect the most broad of all the English counties, nearly approaching the Scotch, the broadest of all English dialects. The Scottish bow is heard in this county and in the North of Durham. A large number of specimens of the dialect have been published, and the provincial words have been collected by Mr. Brockett, but no extensive glossary of words peculiar to the county has been published separately. A short list, however, is given in Ray's English Words, ed. 1691; and others, recently collected, were sent me by George B. Richardson, Esq. and the Rev. R. Douglas. An early specimen of the Northumberland dialect occurs in Bullen's Dialogue, 1564, reprinted in Waldron's notes to the Sad Shepherd, p. 187.

NOTTINGHAMSHIRE

Formerly belonged in dialect to the Northern division, but may now, I believe, be included in the Midland. I speak, however, with uncertainty, no work on the Nottinghamshire dialect having yet appeared.

From a Treatise on the Fistula in ano, by John Arderne, of Newark.

Johan Arderne for the first pestelence that was in the yere of our Lord 1349, duelled in Newerke in Notinghamshire unto the yere of our Lorde 1370, and ther I heled many men of fistula in ano; of which the first was Sir Adam Everyngam of Laxton in the Clay byside Tukkesford, whiche Sir Adam for sothe was in Gascone with Sir Henry that tyme named herle of Derby, and after was made Duke of Lancastre, a noble and worthy lord. The forsaid Sir Adam forsoth sufferend fistulism in ano, made for to aske counsell at alle the leches and corurgiens that he myght fynd in Gascone, at Burdeux, at Brigerac, Tolows, and Neyyon, and Peyters, and many other places, and alle forsok hym for incurable; whiche y-ee and y-herde, the forsaid Adam hastled for to torne home to his contree, and when he come home he did of al his knyghtly clothings, and cladde mournynge clothes in purpose of abydyng disolvynge or lesynge of his body beyng ny to hym. At the laste I forsaid Johan Arderne y-soyt, and covenant y-made, come to hyme and did my cure to hym, and, our Lorde beyng mene, I heled hyme perfetely within halfe a yere, and afterward hole and sound he ledde a glad life 30 yere and more. For whiche cure I gate myche honour and lovyng thury alle Ynglond; and the forsaid Duke of Lancastre and many other gentiles wondred therof. Afte[r]ward I cured Hugon Derlyng of Fowick of Balne by Snyathe. Afterward I cured Johan Schefeld of Rightwelle aside Tekille.

OXFORDSHIRE.

The provincial speech of this county has none of the marked features of the Western dialect, although many of the Gloucestershire and Wiltshire words are in use. The Oxfordshire dialect may be described as rather broad, and at the same time sharp, with a tendency to contraction. Us is used instead of I, as in some other countries. There are not a large number of words quite peculiar to the county, and no glossary has yet been published. Kennett has preserved many now obsolete, and I am indebted for several to Mr. A. Chapman, and Francis Francillon, Esq. In the sixteenth century, the Oxfordshire dialect was broad Western. In Scogin's Jestes, we have an Oxfordshire rustic introduced, saying ich for I, dis for this, vay for say, chill for I will, vor for for, &c.

RUTLANDSHIRE.

The dialect of Rutlandshire possesses few, if any, features not to be found in the adjoining counties. It would appear to be most similar to that of Leicestershire, judging from a communication on the subject from the Rev. A. S. Atcheson.

SHROPSHIRE.

In the modern dialect of this county, a is frequently changed into o or e; c into g, co into gw; d final is often suppressed or commuted into t in the present tense; e is sometimes lengthened at the commencement of a word, as eaend, end, and it is frequently changed into a; g is often omitted before h; the h is almost invariably wrongly used, omitted where it should be pronounced, and pronounced where it should be omitted; i is changed into ei or e; l into w; o is generally lengthened; r when followed by s is often dropped, the s in such cases being doubled; t is entirely dropped in many words where it precedes s, and is superseded by e, especially if there be any plurality; y is prefixed to a vast number of words which commence with the aspirate, and is substituted for it. See further observations in Mr. Hartshorne's Shropshire glossary appended to his Salopia Antiqua, 8vo. 1841, from which the above notices of the peculiarities of the dialect have been taken. To this work I have been chiefly indebted for Shropshire words, but many unknown to Mr. Hartshorne have been derived from Llhuyd's MS. additions to Ray, a MS. glossary compiled about 1780, and from communications of the Rev. L. Darwall and Thomas Wright, Esq.

A translation of the Para Oculi in English verse, made by John Mirkes, a canon of Lilleslul, in Shropshire, is preserved in MS. Cotton. Chud. A. ii. and MS. Douce 60, 103, manuscripts of the fifteenth century. The poem commences as follows:

God seyth hymself, as wryten we fynde,
That whenne the blynde ledeth the blynde,
Into the dyche they fallen boo,
For they ne sen whare by to go.

MS. Cott. Chud. A. ii. f. 127.

God seith hymself, as wryten y fynde,
That whan the blynde ledeth the blynde,
Into the diche they falleth bo,
For they ne seen howe they go.

MS. Douce 60, f. 147.

It should not be forgotten that the dialect of a MS. is not necessarily that used by the author himself. It oftener depended on the scribe. We have copies of Hampole's Prick of Conscience written in nearly every dialect.

The poems of John Audelay, a monk of Haghmon, who wrote about 1460, afford a faithful specimen of the Shropshire dialect of that period. A small volume of his poetry was printed by the Percy Society, 8vo. 1844:

As I lay seke in my langure,
In an abbay here be West,
This boke I made with gret dolour,
When I mygt not slep ne have no rest;
Oft with my prayers I me blest,
And sayd hyle to heven kyng,
I knowlache, Lord, hit is the best
Mekelé to take thi vesetyng,
Eills wot I wil that I were lorne.
Of al lordis be he blest!
Fore al that ye dome is fore the best,
Fore in thi defawte was never mon lost,
That is here of woman borne.

Mervel ye not of this makyng,

Fore I me excuse, hit is not I;

The similarities between the dialect of Audelay's poems and that of modern Shropshire are not very easily perceptible. The tendency to turn o into a, and to drop the h, may be recognized, as ald for hold, &c. I is still turned into e, which may be regarded as one of Audelay's dialectical peculiarities, especially in the prefixes to the verbs; but the ch for sh or sch, so common in Audelay, does not appear to be still current. There is much uncertainty in reasoning on the early provincial dialects from a single specimen, owing to the wide difference between the broad and the more polished specimens of the language of the same county; and Audelay's poems can be by no means considered as affording an example of the broadest and purest early Salopian dialect.

SOMERSETSHIRE:

The Parret divides the two varieties of the dialects of Somersetshire, the inhabitants of the West of that river using the Devonshire language, the difference being readily recognized by the broad ise for I, er for he, and the termination th to the third person singular of the present tense of the indicative mood. The Somersetshire dialect changes th into d, s into z, f into v, inverts the order of many of the consonants, and adds y to the infinitive of verbs. It also turns many monosyllables into words of two syllables, as ayer, air, boodth, both, fayer, fair, viër, fire, stayers, stairs, shower, sure, &c. See Jennings' Observations on some of the Dialects in the West of England, 1825, p. 7.

A singularly valuable glossary of Somersetshire words was placed in my hands at the commencement of the present undertaking by Henry Norris, Esq., of South Petherton. It was compiled about fifty years since by Mr. Norris's father, at the suggestion of the late Mr. Boucher, and Mr. Norris has continually enriched it with additions collected by himself. To this I am indebted for several hundred words which would otherwise have escaped me; and many others have been derived from lists formed by my brother, the Rev. Thomas Halliwell, of Wrington, Thomas Elliott, Esq., Miss Elizabeth Carew, the Rev. C. W. Bingham, Mr. Elijah Tucker, and Mr. Kemp.

Numerous examples of the Somersetshire dialect are to be found in old plays, in which country characters are frequently introduced, and in other early works. It should, however, be remarked that many writers have unheaitatingly assigned early specimens, containing the prevailing marks of Western dialect, to this county, when the style might be referred to many others in the South and West of England; and on this account I have omitted a list of pieces stated by various authors to be specimens of Somersetshire dialect. We have already seen that though the essential features of the present West country dialect may be found, they may possibly suit specimens of the South, Kent, or even Essex dialects, in the state the latter existed two or three centuries ago.

STAFFORDSHIRE.

Kennett has recorded numerous Staffordshire provincialisms, most of which are probably now obsolete, and would have escaped me but for his valuable collections. A valuable MS. glossary by Mr. Clive, but extending no further than B in the part seen by me, was also found of use, and a few words in neither of these MSS. were given me by Miss L. Marshall and Mr. Edward T. Gooch. The following specimen of the dialect, taken from Knight's 'Quarterly Magazine,' 1823, will sufficiently exhibit its general character. The lengthening of the vowel i appears very common. In the collieries surnames are very frequently confused. It constantly happens that a son has a surname very different from that of his father. Nicknames are very prevalent, e. g. Old Puff, Nosey, Bullyhed, Loy-a-bed, Old Blackbird, Stumpy, Cowskin, Spindle-shanks, Cockeye, Pigtail, Yellow-belly, &c.

Dialect of the Bilston Folk.

The dialect of the lower order here has frequently been noticed, as well as the peculiar countenance of the real "Bilston folk." We noticed ourselves (upon the excursion) the following:—"Thee shatn't," for "you sh'a'nt"; "thee cost'na," for "you can't"; "thee host af, surry, or oll mosh thoi yed fur thee," for "take yourself away, sirrah, or I'll crush your head"; "weear bist thee?" for "where are you?" "in a casualty wee loik," for "by chance"; with "thee bist, thee shonna"; "you are, you sha'n't." A young woman turned round to address a small child crying after her upon the threshold of the hole, as she went off towards the mine, "Ah, be seised, yung'un if thee dos'a'r knoo' my bock as well as thee knoo-ast moy fee-as." Some of the better appaerled, who affect a superior style, use words which they please to term "dicksunary words," such as "easement, convinced, abstimonious, timothy" (for timid). One female, in conversation with a cronny at the "truck-shop" door, spoke of "Sal Johnson's aspirating her mon's mind soo'a, and 'mactiating his temper," and "I never seed a sentiment o' nothin' bod till it took Tum all at once't," (sentiment here used for symptom) speaking of indisposition.—Wanderings of a Pen and Pencil.

Conversation between a Staffordshire Canal Boatman and his Wife.

Lady. Dun yo know Soiden-mouth, Tummy?
Genl. Eees; an' a' neatlon good feller he is tew.
Lady. A desput quiet mon! But he loves a sup o' drink. Dun yo know his woff?
Genl. Know her! ay. Her's the very devil when her sperit's up.
Lady. Her is. Her uses that mon sheamful—her rags him every neet of her loif.
Genl. Her does. Olive known her come into the public and call him all the neames her could lay her tongue tew afore all the company. Her oughts to stay till her's got him f' the boat, and then her mit say wha her'd a moind. But her taks alter her feyther.
Lady. Hew was her feyther?
Genl. Whoy, singing Jemmy.
Lady. Oi don't think as how Oi ever know'd singing Jemmy. Was he ode Soaker's brother?
Genl. Eees, he was. He lived a top o' Hell Bank. He was the wickedest, swearinst mon as ever I know'd. I should think as how he was the wickedest mon f' the wold, and say he had the rheumatix so bad.

SUFFOLK.

The characteristics of the Suffolk dialect are in all essential particulars the same as those of the Norfolk, so carefully investigated by Mr. Forby. The natives of Suffolk in speaking elevate and depress the voice in a very remarkable manner, so that "the Suffolk whine" has long been proverbial. The natives of all parts of East Anglia generally speak in a kind of sing-song tone. The first published list of Suffolk words is given in Cullum's History of Hawsted, 1784, but no regular glossary appeared till the publication of Major Moor's Suffolk Words and Phrases, 8vo. 1823, a very valuable collection of provincialisms. With the greatest liberality, Major Moor kindly placed in my hands his interleaved copy of this work, containing copious and important additions collected by him during the last twenty years; nor have I been less fortunate in the equally liberal loan of most valuable and numerous MS. additions to Forby's East Anglia, collected in Suffolk by D. E. Davy, Esq. Brief lists have also been sent by Miss Agnes Strickland and the Rev. S. Charles.

An early book of medical receipts, by a person who practised in Suffolk in the fifteenth century, is preserved in MS. Harl. 1735; an English poem, written at Clare in 1445, is in MS. Addit. 11814; and Bokenham's Lives of the Saints in MS. Arundel 327, transcribed in 1447, is also written in the Suffolk dialect.

SUSSEX.

The dialect of the East of Sussex is very nearly the same as that of Kent, while that of the West is similar to the Hampshire phraseology. "In Sussex," says Ray, English Words, ed. 1674, p. 80, "for hasp, clasp, wasp, they pronounce hapse, clapse, wapse, &c.; for neck, nick; for throat, throttle; for choak, chock; let'n down, let'n stand, come again and fet'n anon." These observations still hold good. In East Sussex day is pronounced dee, and the peasantry are generally distinguished for a broad strong mode of speaking. They pronounce ow final as er, but this habit is not peculiar; and they often introduce an r before the letters d and t. A "Glossary of the Provincialisms in use in the County of Sussex," by W. D. Cooper, was printed in 1836, a neat little work, a copy of which, with numerous MS. additions, was kindly sent me by the author. Several Sussex words, not included in Mr. Cooper's list, were sent to me by M. A. Lower, Esq., the Rev. James Sandham, Colonel Davies, and M. T. Robinson, Esq.; and Mr. Holloway's General Dictionary of Provincialisms, 8vo. 1838, contains a considerable number.

 Tom. To be sure ; but dang ye if I could sence it, could you ?
 Jim. Lor, yis. I don't think it took much cuteness to do that !

WARWICKSHIRE,

The following observations on the dialect of this county are taken from a MS. glossary of Warwickshire words, compiled by the late Mr. T. Sharp, and kindly communicated to me by Mr. Staunton, of Longbridge House, near Warwick : "The diphthong ea is usually pronounced like ai, as mait, ait, plaise, paise, waik, say, for meat, eat, please, weak, sea. The vowel o gives place to u, in sung, lung, amung, for song, long, among ; wunst for once ; grun, fun, and pun, for ground, found, and pound. Showind is also frequent for the imperative of show. A and o are often interchanged, as drap, shap, yander, for drop, shop, yonder ; and (per contra) hommer, rot, and gonder, for hammer, rat, and gander. J is substituted for d, in juke, jell, jeth, and jeil, for duke, deal, death, and dead ; whilst juice is often pronounced duce. D is added to words ending in own, as drowned and gownd, for drowned and gown. E is sometimes converted into a, as batty, laft, fatch, for betty, left, and fetch. The nom. case and the acc. are perpetually and barbarously confounded in such phrases as, "They ought to have spoke to we ; her told him so ; he told she so ; us wont be hurt, will us ? This is one of our most grating provincialisms." This MS. glossary has been fully used in the following pages. I have also received communications from Mr. Perry, Mr. W. Reader, the Rev. W. T. Bree, the Rev. J. Staunton, Mr. J. T. Watson, and Thomas Haslewood, Esq. The modern dialect of Warwickshire contains a very large proportion of North country words, more than might have been expected from its locality. They say yaf for gate, feul, fool, sheeam, shame, weeat, wheat, Yethard, Edward, Jeeams, James, leean, lane, road, road, wool, will, p-yaaper, paper, feeace, face, coat, coat, &c.

WESTMORELAND.

"A bran new Wark by William de Worfat, containing a true Calendar of his thoughts concerning good neberhood," 12mo. Kendal, 1785, pp. 44, is a good specimen of the Westmoreland dialect, but of great rarity. This dialect is very similar to that of Cumberland.

WILTSHIRE.

The dialect of this county is so nearly related to that which is denominated the West-Country dialect, that the distinction must be sought for in words peculiar to itself rather than in any general feature. The Saxon plural termination en is still common, and oi is generally pronounced as wi. Instances of their perfects may be cited, snop, snopt, hids, hod, lead, lod, scrape, scrope, &c. Some of their phrases are quaint. That's makes me out, puzzles me; a kind of a middling sort of a way he is in, out of sorts, &c. Mr. Britton published a glossary of Wiltshire words in his Topographical Sketches of North Wilts, vol. iii, pp. 369-80; and a more complete one by Mr. Akerman has recently appeared, 12mo. 1842. Many words peculiar to this county will be found in the following pages which have escaped both these writers, collected chiefly from Kennett, Aubrey, and MS. lists by the Rev. Dr. Hussey, Dr. S. Merriman, the Rev. Richard Crawley, and Mr. M. Jackson. The Chronicon Vilodunense, edited by W. H. Black, fol. 1830, is a specimen of the Wiltshire dialect in the fifteenth century. It is so frequently quoted in this work that any further notice is unnecessary. The following clever pieces in the modern dialect of the county are from the pen of Mr. Akerman.

(1) The Harnet and the Bittle.

A harnet set in a hollur tree,—
A proper spiteful twoad was he;
And a merrily sung while he did set
His stinge as shearp as a bagganet:
Oh, whooe vine and bowld as I,
I vears not bee, nor wapse, nor vly!

A bittle up thuck tree did clim,
And scarnvully did look at him;
Zays he, “Zur harnet, who giv thee
A right to set in thuck tree tree?
Vor ael you sengs so nation vine,
I tell 'e 'tis a house o' mine.”

The harnet's conscience vint a twinge,
But grawin' bowld w! his long stinge,
Zays he, “Possession's the best lāu w;
Zo here th' sha'm't put a clāw!
Be off, and leave the tree to me,
The mixen's good enough for thee!”

Just then a yuckel, passin' by,
Was axed by them the cause to try:
“Ha! ha! I see how 'tis!” says he,
“They'll make a vamous nunch vor me!”
His bill was shearp, his stomach lear,
Zo up a snapped the caddlin pair!

MORAL.

Ael you as be to läww inclined,
This leetle stwory bear in mind ;
Vor if to läww you aims to gwo,
You'll vind they'll allus sar 'e so :
You'll meet the vate o these here two,
They'll take your cwoast and carcass too !

(2) The Genuine Remains of William Little, a Wiltshire man.

I've allus bin as viush o' money as a twoid is o' veathers ; but if ever I gets rich, I'll put it ael in Zisseter bank, and not do as owld Smith, the miller, did, comin' whoam vrom market one nite. Martal avraid o' thieves a was, so a puts his pound-bills and ael th' money a'd got about un in a hole in the wall, and the next marnin' a' couldn't remember whereabouts 'twas, and had to pull purty nigh a mile o' wall down before a' could vind it. Stoopid owld woshird !

Owld Jan Wilkins used to say he allus cut's stakes, when a went a hedgin', too lang, bekaese a' cou'd easily cut 'em sharter if a' wanted, but a' cou'dnt make um langer if 'em was too shart. Zo says I : so I allus axes vor more than I wants. Iv I gets that, well and good ; but if I axes vor little, and gets less, it's martal akkerd to ax a second time, d'ye know !

Piple say as how they gied th' neam o' moonrakers to us Wiltshire vauk bekaese a passel o' stupid bodles one night tried to rake the shadow o' th' moon out o' th' bruk, and tuk't vor a thin cheese. But that's th' wrong ind o' th' stwory. The chaps as was doin' o' this was smugglers, and they was a viashin' up some kegs o' sperrits, and only pertended to rake out a cheese ! Zo the exciseman as axed 'em the question had his grin at 'em ; but they had a good laugh at he when 'em got whoame the stuff.

Owld Molly Sannell axed Molly Dafter to gie her a drap o' barm one day. "I ha'n't a got narn !" says she ; "besides, I do want un meself to bake wi'."

Measter Goddin used to say as how childern costed a sight o' money to bring un up, and 'twas all very well whilst un was leetle, and sucked th' mother, but when un began to suck the vather, 'twas nathon akkerd.

Measter Cuss and his sun Etherd went to Lonnun a leetle time sence, and when un got to their journey's ind, Measter Cuss missed a girl passel a carr'd wi' un to th' cwoach. "Lard, vather !" says Etherd, "I seed un drap out at Vise !" (Devises.)

(3) North Wiltshire eloquence.

"Now, do'e please to walk in a bit, sur, and rest'e, and dwont'e mind my measter up ag'in th' chimley carner. Poor sow! on hin, he've a bin desperit ill ever sence t'other night, when a wur tuk ter'ible bad wi' th' rheumatis in's legs and stummick. He've a bin and tuk tree bottles o' doctor's stuff, but I'll be whipped if a do sibly a bit th' better var't. Lawk, sur, but I be main scrow to be ael in sich a caddel, ael along o'they childern. They've a bin a leasin', and when un coomed whoame, they ael tuk and drowed the carn ael among th' vire stuff, and so here we be, ael in a muggle like. And you be lookin' middlinish, sur, and ael as if'e was shrammed. I'll take and blew up th' vire a mossel ; but what be them bellies at ? here they be slat a-two ! and here's my yeppurn they've a' bin and scarched, and I've agot narra 'nother 'gin Zunday bescepts thlum !"

This elegant sample of North Wiltshire eloquence was uttered nearly in a breath, by Mistress Vargas, the wife of a labourer with a large family, as the poor man's master entered the cottage to inquire after his health, and whether he would be soon able to return to his work.

WORCESTERSHIRE.

In Worcestershire, the peculiarity of speech most striking to a stranger is perhaps the interchange of her and she, e. g. "her's going for a walk with she." This perversion is even used in the genitive, "she's bonnet." As in Gloucestershire and Herefordshire, the pronoun which is constantly used to connect sentences, and to act as a species of conjunction. At a recent trial at Worcester, a butcher, who was on his trial for sheep-stealing, said in defence, "I bought the sheep of a man at Broomsgrave fair, which he is a friend of the prosecutor's, and won't appear ; which I could have transported the prosecutor ever so long ago if I liked." As in many other counties, the neuter is frequently invested with the masculine gender. A more striking feature is the continual dropping of the i in such words as stair, fair, pronounced star, far, &c. ; and the letter r is sometimes sounded between a final vowel, or vowel-sound, and an initial one. No works on the dialect of this county have yet appeared, and the majority of the words here quoted as peculiar to it have been collected by myself. I have, however, received short communications from J. Noake, Esq., Jabez Allies, Esq., Miss Bedford, Mrs. John Walcot, Thomas Boulton, Esq., Mr. R. Bright, and Mr. William Johnson. The following extract is taken from a MS. in my possession.

Extract from a MS. of medical receipts written by Syr Tomas Jamys, Vicar of Badseye, about the year 1450.

For the skawle a gode medcyn. Take pedylyon to handfuller ever that he be flowryd, and than he ys tender, and than take and sethe hym welle in a potelle of stronge lye tille the to halfe be soddyn away, and than wasche the skallyd hede in stronge pyse that ys hoot, and than schave away the schawle clene, and let not for bledyn ; and than make a plature of pedylyon, and ley it on the hede gode and warme, and so let it ly a day and a nyth, and than take it away, and so than take thy mele and ronnyng watur of a broke, and therof make theke papelettes, and than spredde them on a clothe that wolle cover all the soore, and so ley it on the soore hede, and let it ly iij. dayys and iij. nythtes ever it be remeyvd, and than take it of, and wasche the hede welle in strong pyse ayenne, and than take and schave it clene to the fesche, and than take rede oynownee as mony ase wolle suffyoe for to make a plature over the soore, and boyle them welle in wature, and than stampe them, and temper them with the softe of calamynte, and old barow grose that ys maltynne clene, and so use this tulle the seke be hole.

YORKSHIRE.

There are numerous early MSS. still preserved which were written in various parts of Yorkshire, most of them containing marks of the dialect of the county. The Towneley Mysteries, which have been printed by the Surtees Society, were written in the neighbourhood of Wakefield. An English commentary on the Psalms, translated from the Latin work by Hampole, a MS. in Eton College Library, was also written in this county, the writer observing, "in this werke I seke no strange Inglyshe bot the lightest and the comonest, and swilke that es maste like til the Latyn, so that thas that knawes noight the Latyn by the Inglyshe may come to many Latyn wordes." A metrical translation of Grosthead's Chastees d'Amour, in MS. Egerton 927, was made by a "munke of Sallay," who calls it "the Myroure of lewed Men." To these may be added MS. Harl. 1022, MS. Harl. 5396, MS. Coll. Sion. xviii. 6, and the Thornton MS. so often quoted in the following pages.

Higden, writing about 1350, says "the whole speech of the Northumbrians, especially in Yorkshire, is so harsh and rude that we Southern men can hardly understand it;" and Wallingford, who wrote long before, observes that "there is, and long has been, a great admixture of people of Danish race in that province, and a great similarity of language." See the 'Quarterly Review,' Feb. 1836, p. 365. There seem to be few traces of Danish in the modern Yorkshire dialect.

So numerous are modern pieces in the Yorkshire dialect, that it would be difficult to give a complete list. The rustic of this county has even had a newspaper in his native dialect, the 'Yorkshire Comet,' the first number of which appeared in March, 1844; but in consequence of certain personal allusions giving offence, the publisher was threatened with a prosecution, and he relinquished the work after the publication of the seventh number, and refused to sell the objectionable parts. The most complete glossary of Yorkshire words was compiled by Mr. Carr, 2 vols. 8vo. 1828, but it is confined to Craven, the dialect said to be used by Chaucer's North country scholars. See Mr. Wright's edition, vol. i. p. 160. Dr. Willan's list of words used in the mountainous district of the West-Riding, in the Archæologia, vol. xvii. pp. 138-167, should also be noticed; and long previously a Yorkshire glossary appeared at the end of the Praise of Yorkshire Ale, 12mo. 1697. Thoresby's list of West-Riding words, 1703, was published in Ray's Philosophical Letters; and Watson gives a "Vocabulary of Uncommon Words used in Halifax Parish" in his History of Halifax, 1775. These latter have been reprinted in the Hallamshire Glossary, 8vo. 1829, a small collection of words used in the neighbourhood of Sheffield. The Sheffield dialect has been very carefully investigated in an Essay by the Rev. H. H. Piper, 12mo. 1825. In addition to the printed glossaries, I have had the advantage of using MS. lists of Yorkshire words communicated by Wm. Turner, Esq., William Henry Leatham, Esq., Henry Jackson, Esq., Dr. Charles Rooke, the Rev. P. Wright, Mr. M. A. Denham, Mr. Thomas Sanderson, John Richard Walbran, Esq., Mr. Banks, and N. Scatcherd, Esq.

(2) Dicky Dickeson's Address to't known world, from the first number of the Yorkshire Comet, published in 1844.

DEAR IVERYBODY,

Ah sud'n't wonder bud, when some foaks hear o' me startin' on a Paper, they'll say, what in't world hee made Dicky Dickeson bethink hisen o' cummin' sich a casper as that? Wah, if ye'll nobbut hev hauf o't pastience o' Joab, Ah'll try ta tell ya. Ye mun know, 'at about six year sin', Ah wur i' a public-hoose, wheare ther wur a feller as wur braggin' on his larin', an' so Ah axed him what he knawed about onny knowledgement, an' he said he thowt he'd a rare lump moare information i' his heead, ner Ah hed i' mine. Noo, ye know, Ah sudn't ha' been a quarter as ill mad, if ther hedn't been a lot o' chaps in't place 'at reckoned ta hev noa small share o' gumption. Sos, as sooin as Ah gat hoame that neet, Ah sware ta oor Bet, 'at as suare as shoo wur a match-hawker, Ah wud leearn all't pollishments 'at Schoolmaster Gill could teich ma. Varry weel, slap at it Ah went, makkin' pot-hukes, an' strookes, an' Ah hardly knaws what; an' then Ah leearn't spelderin', readin', i' fact, all 'at long-headed Schoolmaster Gill knew hisen; so 'at, when Ah'd done wi' him, Ah wur counted as clever a chap as me feyther afore ma, an' ye mun consider 'at Ah wur noa small beer when Ah'd come ta that pass, for he could tell, boot lukin', hoo mich paaper it wud tak' ta lap up an once o' 'becca. Weel, as sooin as Ah'd gotten ta be as wonderful wise, d'ye see? Ah thowt—'an' it wur a bitter thowt, tew!—what a pity it wor 'at i'verybody couldn't dew as mich as Ah could. More Ah studied about it, an' war it potteder ma, Ah'll assure ya. Wun neet, hooi'ver, as oor Bet an' me wur set be't fire-side, shoo turned hersen suddenly roond, an' said, "Thoo's a fool, Dicky!" "What! Bet, does thoo really meean ta say Ah's a fool?" "Ah dew," shoo said: "thoo's a real fool!" "Hoo does ta mak' that oot, Bet?" said Ah, for Ah wur noane hauf suited about it. "Ah'll say it ageean an' ageean," says shoo; "thoo's a fool, an' if ta's onny way partikelar ta knaw, Ah'll tell tha hoo Ah maks it oot. In't first place, luke what braans thoo hee; as starlin' as onny 'at ivver thease gurt men hed; an' yet, like a fool as Ah say thoo is, thoo taks it as easy as a pig in't muck." "Weel, weel!" Ah continid, "what wod ta ha' ma ta dew, lass? Tell us, an' Ah'll dew't." "Then," says shoo, "start a paaper i' thee awn naative tongue, an' call it t'Yorshar Comet. Ah'll be bun for't it'll pay as weel as Iverr goold coin did." Noo, then, as sooin as Ah heeard oor Bet's noations, Ah wur omumst stark mad ta carry 'em out; for Ah thowt, as shoo did 'at it wod pay capital, an' beside, Ah sud maybe be improovin't staate o' saciety, an' morals o't vicious. Ye doan't need ta think 'at Ah's nowt bud an ignarant mushrum, for, though Ah say't mysen, Ah can tell ya 'at Dicky Dickeson's as full o' knowlidge as a hegg's full o' meesat. Nut 'at Ah wants ta crack o' mysen, nowt o't soart; it 'isn't what Ah says an' thinks o' mysen, bud what other foaks says an' thinks o' ma; an' if ye ha' no objections, ye's just read a letter 'at Ah gat fro' Naathan Vickus about a year an' a hauf sin', when all that talk wur agate relatin' ta Otley gerrin' franchised. It ran as follers:

"Pig-Colt Farm, October, 1843.

"DEAR DICKY,

"Ah mun confess 'at Ah've heeard some talk about oor toon sennin' two Members ta Parliement, an' if Iverr it sud come ta pass, thoo ma be suare 'at Naathan Vickus 'll stick ta tha up hill an' doon daale. Ah's noane as thick, Dicky, bud what Ah knaws pretty near what a chap is be't cut on his jib, thoo unnerstans; an', depend on't, lad, that's what Ah judges thee by. Thoo's a man 'at 'll dew honour to't toon whearever ta goes, an' if ther's onny feathers for onnybody's cap, it's Dicky Dickeson 'at's boom ta get 'em, or else Ah's a fool of a judge o' human flesh, that's all. Ah hev varyr gut pleasure i' offerin' tha my voate, an' oor Tobys' in't bargain; an' Ah dew promise tha, 'at if Iverry pig, mule an' cauf about my farm wur receivable as common sense creaturs, thoo sud fin' a supporter i' Iverry one on 'em. Wi' a bucket o' compliments ta the sister Bet an't rest o't bread,

"Ah is, dear Dicky,

"Moast respectfull thine,

"NAATHAN VICKUS."

To Mr. Dickeson, Esq.

Noo, then, Ah ax ageean, is ther onny o' ya, dear readers, as wod hev't leasat bit o' doot o' yer minds noo? Is ther, Ah say? Noa: An' fancies Ah can hear some o' ya chucklin', an' sayin', "Hurra for Dicky Dickeson! he fogs all 'at's goane afore him!" An' let ma tell ya, 'at so Ah means ta dew; an' if onny o' ya is trubbled wi' sees't o' ghoasts or dull thowts, Ah'll guarantee ta frooten 'em out o' ya, an' that's what noa soul afore ma's dome yet. Bud Ah mun gi' ower writin' tul ya at present, for oor Bet tells ma 'at me porridge hee been waitin' this hauf hoor, an', as a matter in coorse, they're stiff wi' stan-nin'. Ah can nobbut beg on ya ta read t'Yorshar Comet Iverry week, an', be dewin' soa, tak' my word for't, ye'll saave monny a pound i't year o' pills, boolesness, an' all sich belly-muck as tha are.

Bet joins wi' ma i' Iuv ta ya all, (shoo's a deacent lass, is Bet!) an' wi' a thousand hoapes 'at ye'll in-courage ma,

Ah is, dear Iverrybody,

Yer varyr humble sarvant,

DICKY DICKESON.

Fraud.—Felix Flibberton hed a sad roond wi' his wife this week, caused, as we're told, be Mistress Flibberton bein' gully on a piece o' roguery, t'like o' which we seldom hear tall on. It's said, when Felix tasted on his tees, t'last Thursday mornin', he fan it oot 'at it worn't ower strong, but, on't contrary, wur considerably weaker ner common. O' this fact comin' ta leet, he called his wife tul scratch, an' axed as lovinly as ha wur aable, hoo it happened 'at his tees wur i' that pickle. Noo, Felix an' his wife's coffee an' sich like, wur aullus prepared i' separate pots,—Ah meean tea-pots; an', that mornin', Mister Flibberton hev'in' ligged rather long i' bed, his wife hed thowt proper ta gulp her breakfast afore he landed doon. T'question wur, hed t'mistress ta'en t'biggest shaare o't tees, as theare wur noane in t'canister then? T'poor woman said, ther wur precious little ta mak' t'breakfast on; bud what ther wur, shoo divided fairly, leavin' her husband be far t'bigger hauf. Nut chusin' ta believe all 'at his wife spluttered oot, Felix shooted o't sarvant, whoa deposed 'at when shoo gat up, shoo wur suare 'at theare wur then plenty i't canister ta mak' six rare strong cups. Efter a deaal o' cross-examination between t'mistress an' sarvaant, t'former began o' roarin', an' confessed 'at shoo had defrauded her lawful partner, devoatin' tul her awn use three, wal tul her husband shoo nobbut left one an' a hauf spoonful o' tees. Felix wodn't grant noa pardon then, bud bun her ower ta keep t'peace for three months; an', supposin' 'at shoo brak it ageean, he threathened sendin' a brief o't whoale caase ta Maister Wilkins, barrister, an' ta tak' sich steps as he mud advise.

A Mutilated Gift.—Dr. Swabbs, Physician extraordinary ta Iverrybody 'at wants poisonin', hez once more come oot o' his shell, an' letten t'world knaw 'at he's t'saame Dr. Swabbs still 'at Iverr ha wor. O' Tuesday neet, wal t'doctor wur smookin' his pipe, an' swillin' his tummler o' brandy an' watter, a depitation o' maad-sarvants, consistin' o't cooks an' seven or eight hoose an' chamer-maads, wasted on him wi' a Round Robin, petitionin' for a small donation i' order ta buy a mixtur ta polson t'mice wi', as they wur gerrin varyr impudent i' ther walks in-tut kitchen an' cupboard; i' fact, as't trustwathy cook said, one on 'em hed t'bare-facedness ta come an' wag his tail i' her chocolate, and then as bare-facedly maade his escape, wi'oot stoppin' ta be wallopped for't. T'doctor wur soa moved be theese argements, 'at he threw doon his pipe, brekkin' on't, as t'hoose-maaid told ma, thrustid his hand intul his pocket, an' drew sixpence. What a bleasin' wod it be if men genarally wod nobbut foller Dr. Swabbs's example!

(5) Deborah Duckiton's Advice Corner.

If ya t'uke noatice, ye would see, 'at t'latter end o' March, i't first quarter, t'moon wur laad ov her back, a suare sign o' stormy weather. Ye'll all knaw, 'at there's been part frost an' snawsin'; an', if my judgment isn't awfully wrong, we's ha' some more. Weel, noo, i' frosty weather, ye're aware, it's rather daangerous walkin', becos o't varry gurt slapness o't roads an't flegs; Ah's quite positive on't, for even i' my time Ah've seen more ner one long-legged coavey browt ov a level wi't grund, an' Ah've seen monny a stout an' respectable woman, tew. Let me prescribe a remedy, then, for all sich misfortuns. Shaadrach Scheddul,—a celebraated horse-shoer i' oor toon, proposed ta sharpen barns for three-hauncepa a head; lads an' lasses, fro' ten ta sixteen year o' age, thurppance; an' all aboon that owidness, whether tha've big feet, little feet, or noa feet at all, fowerpence.

N.B. Ivery allooance 'll be maade for wooden legs; an' o' them 'at honestly doesn't wish ta be blessed wi't last-named articles o' wear, it's moast respectfully requested 'at they'll avaal thersems o't sharpenin' invention. Shaadrach Scheddul alloos five per cent. off for ready brass, or six months' credit;—auther 'll dew.

Ah advise all laades 'at doesn't wish ta hev ther husbands' stockins outrageously mucky on a washin'-day, nut ta alloo 'em t'privilege o' spoartin' knee-breeches, them hev'in been proved, be varry clever philosophers, ta be t'leadin' cause thereoof, an't principal reason why t'leg o't stockin' doesn't last as long as t'foot.

(6) Visits ta Dicky Dickeson.

O' Friday, Dicky Dickeson wur visited i' his study be't Marquis o' Crabbum, an', efter a deal o' enquiries about t'weather, an' monny remarks consarnin' this thing an' that, t'latter proceeded ta explain what ha'd come for, soapin' an' smillin' tut larned editor, as it's genarally knawn all these top-markers dew—when tha've ow't ta ger oot on him. It appears 'at t'aim o't Marquis wur ta induce Mr. Dickeson, as a capitalist o' some noate, ta join wi' him i' buyin' in all t'paper shaavins 'at tha can lig ther hans on, soos as ta hev all t'traade ta thersems.

Mr. Dickeson agreed, an' t'fire-lectin' an' shaavin'-decalin' world is lukin' wi' mich terror an' int'rest tut result.

Immediately efter t'Marquis o' Crabbum hed made his exit, a gentle rap wur heered at t'door o't study, an' when Mr. Dickeson bad 'em walk forrard, in popped a bonny, blue-s'ed, Grecian-noasid, white-toothed lass o' eightseem, an' be't way i' which t'editor smacked her roasy cheeks wi' his lips, here's na doot bud it wur Nanny Tract. Shoo'd browt two ootcakeas, 'at shoo'd newly baaked, ye knaw. Mr. Dickeson set tul ta elt 'em, an' Nanny set tul ta watch him; an' when t'first hed finished his performance on't ootcakeas, here's na need ta say 'at he began o' squeezin' t'latter; ay, an' ye ma say what ya've a mind aboot t'modesty o't ladies, bud Nanny squeezed him as weel, an' wor ther oot wrong in't, think ya? Shallywally! Bud, howlver, t'editor hedn't been long at this gam', afore ha heerd another noise,—a shufflin', slinkin' noise, Ah mean, an' sut a reg'lar rap,—ootside o't door; soe, takkin' his shoes off, he crept nicely tut spot, an', be gow! if ha didn't fin't printer's divil lissenin' there, here's be nowt for tellin' ya on't. Mr. Dickeson, commust choaked wi' madness at this turn-up, (for whears' ther onnybody 'at likes ta hev ther love-Jewins heered an' seen?) shoved him intut middle on his study; an' commandin' Nanny ta hod him a minute, (which saame shoo did ta perfection,) he went tut other end o't place, an' puttin' on a middlin'-sized clog, take a run pause at t'posteriors o't impedent printer's divil, an' thereby makk'n bim sing "God saave t'Queen" i' sich prime style, 'at delicate Nanny wur ta'em wi' a fit o' faantin'. T' music hev'in ceased as sooin as t'performer wur turned oot, Nanny bethowt hersen ta come round; bud, shaameful ta say, her an' Dicky didn't paart wal fower i't afternooin, at which time t'lass wur wanted up at hoame ta darn stockins an' crimp frills.

(7) Miscellanies.

Men an' women is like soa monny cards, played wi' be two oppoanents, Time an' Eternity? Time get's a gam noo an' then, an' hez t'pleasure o' keepin' his cards for a bit, bud Eternity's be far t'better hand, an' proves, day be day, an' hoor be hoor, 'at he's winnin' incalculably fast.

"Noa, thank ya," said t'lad. "Thoo'd better, Willy," said Betty. "Noa, thank ya," repeated t'lad; an' off he ran hoame, an' as sooin as ha gat intut hoose, burst oot a-roarin' an' sobbin' as if his heart wod brek. "Billy, me lad," says his mother, "what's t'matter wi' tha!" "Wah," blubbered poor Billy, "Betty Cruttrice axed ma ta hev a bit o' apple-pie, an' Ah said, Noa, thank ya!"

Bud, hoolvver, it maks na odds tut year. Fower articles here, all antiquaties; what's said for 'em? Sixpence is said for 'em, laadies an' gennlemen—eightpence is said for 'em—ninepence, tenpence, a shillin' is said for 'em, laadies and gennlemen, an' thank ya for yer magnanimaty. Are ya all done at a shillin'? Varry weel, then. Ah sahn't dwell; soo these three articles is goin'." "Ye're reight, maaster," shot the cobbler fro' t' crood, "they are goin', tew; for i' my e'es tell ma reight, there's na hannles on't pots, na noase on't pictur, an' na legs on't tongs."

"Hollow!" shoots t' man, rubbin' his smartin' featur wi' his reight hand, "what means tha ta be comin' ta scraape t' skin off a man's countenance?" "Nay, nay," said t' lad, "Ah worn't scraapin' t' skin off, noo, but nobbut t' sweat, which wur o' noa use ta ye, maaster, wal it soor ta me, as Ah've been all ower, an' couldn't get na goots-grease onnywhoare till E saw ye."

purpose; the other and more remarkable one, to warrant or answer for, as in King Lear,

Hardyng's Chronicle, f. 145.

ABLENDE. To blind; to dazzle. (A.-S.) As the early translations of Vegetius will be occasionally quoted, it may be as well to state that the one made at Berkeley's request, 1408, from which the following extract is made, is not by Trevisa, as conjectured by Tanner, but by a person of the name of Clifton. This fact appears from the colophon of copies in MS. Douce 291, and MS. Digby 233; the last-mentioned one having bffled Strutt, Reg. Antiq. ed.
Planché, p. 77. Manuscripts of this work are very common. For examples of ablende, see

ABORTYVE. An abortion. It is also an adjective, as in Rich's Honestie of this Age, p. 6.

Shal rise in thrillyttee yer of elde.

Cursor Mundi, MS. Cantab. f. 136.

A-bosted Piers als. Piers Ploughman, p. 126.

ABOT. An abbot. The occurrence of this form in early English shows that the new orthography abbat, which one sometimes sees, is incorrect. See Legendæ Catholicæ, p. 19; Plumpton Correspondence, p. 84.

ABOTE. (1) Beaten down.

Of whiche sight glad, God it wot,
She was abashid and abote.

Chaucer's Dreame, 1890.

A-BOUET. This word, which occurs in Mr. Wright's glossary to the Deposition of Richard II., is perhaps a misprint for a bonet, a kind of sail.

ABOUGHT. Bought. Sometimes, atoned for, from abiggen; and it is occasionally the orthography of about. Jennings gives the Somersetshire proverb (Dialects, p. 80),

Vur vaught,
And dear abought.

See Gy of Warwike, pp. 72, 155, 355; Chaucer, Cant. T. 2305; Lybeaus Disconus, 1979; Kyng Alisaunder, 898; Sir Cleges, 43; Thynne's Debate between Pride and Lowlines, p. 62; Wright's Monastic Letters, p. 31; Hawkins' Engl. Drama, i. 13. The proverb given above seems to be derived from an old one, "Dear bought and farr fett, are dainties for ladies," which Howell gives in his collection, p. 8.

ABOUGHVED. Bowed; obeyed. See a reading in the College of Arms MS. of Robert of Gloucester, in Hearne's edition, p. 106.

Or elles strokes thay shal gete,
By God and Seynte Mary, myn abouré.

MS. Douce 176, p. 69.

ABOUT. Circularly; in a circle. See Macbeth, i. 3. It is singularly used in the phrase, "about, my brains," signifying, "brains, go to work," as in Hamlet, ii. 2. "In the eastern counties it is current in the sense of near, as, "this horse is worth nothing about forty pounds."

ABOUTEN. About. According to Cooper's Sussex Glossary, p. 12, it is still in use in East Sussex.

Ben on the Sunday to the citee come
Abouten prime, and in the town alight.

Chaucer, Cant. T. 9191.

ABOVEN. Above.

With sparles and sneke covered aboven,
As hit were a brennyng oven.

ABRACADABRA. This word, written in a peculiar manner, was formerly worn about the neck as a cure for the ague. See Pettigrew on Medical Superstitions, p. 53; Archæologia, xxx. 427.
 Mr. Banester sayth that he healed 260 in one yer of an ague, by hanging Abacadabra about ther necks, and wold stanch blood, or heal the toothake, althogh the partyes wer 10 myle of.
MS. Addit. 5008.

ABRAD. Withered?
 The gode burgels on a dal,

 Fair i-woxe and fair i-sprad,
 But the olde tre was abrad. The Seyn Sagis, 610.

ABRADAS. A Macedonian pirate, mentioned by Greene and Shakespeare. The commentators have failed in tracing any further notice of him.

ABRADE. To rub, or scrape off. See Richardson in v. The word is still in use as a sea term.

ABRAHAM-COLOURED. See Abram-coloured. Cf. Hawkins' Eng. Dram. ii. 276; Blurt Master Constable, 1602.

ABRAHAM-CUPID. The expression occurs in Romeo and Juliet, ii. 1, and is conjectured by Upton to be a mistake for Adam Cupid, and to allude to Adam Bell, the celebrated archer. See his observations on Shakespeare, ed. 1748, p. 243. The conjecture is very plausible, as proper names are frequently abbreviated in early MSS., and it suits the sense and metre.

ABRAHAM-MEN. According to the Fraternity of Vacabondes, 1575, "an Abraham-man is he that walketh bare-armed, and bare-legged, and fayneth hymselfe mad, and caryeth a packe of wool, or a stycke with baken on it, or such lyke toy, and nameth hymselfe poore Tom." They are alluded to by Shakespeare under the name of Bedlam Beggars, and their still more usual appellation was Toms of Bedlam, q. v. According to Grose, to "sham Abram" is to pretend sickness, which Nares thinks may have some connexion with the other term. See also Aubrey's Nat. Hist. Wilts, MS. p. 259; Harrison's Description of England, p. 184.

ABRAHAM'S-BALM. A kind of willow. According to Bullokar, English Expositor, 1641, it was used as a charm to preserve chastity.

ABRAID. To rise on the stomach with a degree of nausea; applied to articles of diet, which prove disagreeable to the taste or difficult of digestion. Noria. This may be the meaning in Troilus and Creseide, i. 725.
 Instead of nourishing, it stimulates, abrades, and carries away a part of the solids.

Collins' Miscellanies, 1763, p. 70.

ABRAIDE. (1) To awake; to start. Palsgrave has "I abrayde, I inforce me to do a thyngue." f. 136.

And if that he out of his slepe abraide
 He mighte don us bathe a vilanie.

Chaucer, Cant. T. 4188.

(2) Explained abroad by Percy. See Reliques, p. 44. It more likely ought to be "a braide," a start. See Ritson's Anc. Pop. Poet. p. 19.

(3) As a slight variation of our first meaning, it may be mentioned that the word is particularly applied to the action of drawing a sword from a scabbard.

ABRAM. A cant term, according to Coles applied to a naked or very poor man. Cf. Middleton's Works, iii. 32.

ABRAM-COLOURED. Nares considers this expression may be a corruption of auburn, and is in some measure confirmed by a passage in Coriolanus, ii. 3: "Our heads are some brown, some black, some abram, some bald, but that our wits are so diversly coloured." The folio of 1685 alters abram to auburn. See Middleton's Works, i. 259; Toone, in v.

ABRASE. Smooth.
 The fourth, in white, is Apheleia, a nymph as pure and simple as the soul, or as an abrase table, and is therefore called Simplicity.
Ben Jonson, ii. 366.

ABRAYDE. (1) Started; roused himself.
 Ipomydon with that stroke abrayde,
 And to the kyng thus he sayde.
Ipomydon, 1149.

(2) To upbraid. See the True Tragedie of Richard the Third, p. 22, where the editor has divided the word.

Bochas present felly gan abrayde
 To Messaline, and even thus he sayde.
Bochas, b. vii. c. 4.

ABRAYDEN. To excite.

For they comoditēs to abrayden up pride.

Lydgate's Minor Poems, p. 121.

ABREAD. Unconfined; exposed; spread out.

ABRECOCK. An apricot. Gerard.

ABRED. Brought up. West.

ABREDE. (1) This word is explained to upbraid, by Skinner, who refers to the following passage. The meaning is obviously, "ran out of his senses."

How Troilus nere out of his wytte abrede,
And wept full sore, with visage pale of hewe.

The Testament of Cressida, 45.

(2) In breadth. North. See Chronicle of England, 806, in Ritson's Met. Rom. ii. 303.

ACKER. (1) A ripple on the surface of the water. So explained in the Craven dialect, but Huloet, in his Abcedarium, 1552, has "aker of the sea, whiche preventeth the flowde or flowynge, impetus maris," a more precise definition, preventeth being of course used in the sense of precedeth. In the Prompt. Parv. p. 8, akyr occurs with the same Latin that Huloet gives. See Eager, and Higre, ramifications of the same term, which appear to be applied to commotions of more violence that the generality of Huloet's explanations necessarily implies. Mr. Way has a good note on this word in the Prompt. Parv. p. 8, and makes the following extract from MS. Cott. Titus A. xxiii. f. 49:

Wel know they the reume yf it a-ryse,
An aker is it clept, I understonde, [wytstonde.
Whos myght there may no shippe or wynd
This reume in thocian of propre kynde,
Wytoute wynde hathes his commotioun;
The maryner therof may not be blynde,
But when and where in every regloun
It regnehe, he moste have inspectioun;
For in vlage it may bothe haste and tary,
And unavisd thereof, al myscary.

This extract scarcely bears out Mr. Way's opinion as to the extended meaning of the word aker. The third line probably refers to the reume, or tide, and merely means to express the great and then necessary importance of the tide to navigation, not any particular commotion or current implied in aker. Jamieson has aiker, "the motion, break, or movement made by a fish in the water, when swimming fast," which is similar to the meaning of the word in Craven. Lily mentions the agar, but this seems to be the higre, not in the sense of a tide, but a sea-monster. See Nares, in v. Agar. But, after all, it may mean the double tide, called by Dryden the eagre. The word acker is also used as a verb in the north, to curl, as the water does with wind. See Carlyle's Hero Worship, p. 30, who says the word is still applied, on the river

Trent, to a kind of eddying twirl when the river is flooded, which is often extremely dangerous to the bargemen.

ACTRESSES. In explanation of numerous passages in our old plays, it may be well to observe that actresses were not generally introduced into English theatres till after the Restoration. In Shakespeare's time the female characters were personated by boys. There is a curious letter on this subject in MS. Tanner 77. It would appear from the following anecdote, written in a copy of the Memoirs of the Count de Grammont, that this practice was continued to a later period:

It is said the fleet which went for the queen [of Charles II.] stayed six weeks at Lisbon, without any reason given. Some suppose a change in the queen's person was the cause; to which William Davenant alluded when the king, one night at the play, was impatient to have the play begin,—"Sire," said Davenant, "they are showing the Queen!"

 To knyghtis wore deliverid there.

Kyng Alisunder, 2963.

AFURST. Thirsty. The two forms a-fyngred and a-furst, according to Mr. Wright, appear to be characteristic of the dialect of the counties in the West of England; and a confirmation of this conjecture occurs in MS.
Lansd. 1033, f. 2, where the word furst is given as current in Wiltshire in that sense in 1697. Cf. Piers Ploughman, pp. 176, 283,

Warwike, p. 334; Arthour and Merlin, pp. 3, 143; Emaré, 913; Lannfal, 343. On comparing these examples, it seems we should oc-

a fine," well and fine. See A-fine.

AGATE-WARDS. To go agate-wards with any one, is to accompany him part of his way home, and was formerly the last office of hospitality towards a guest, frequently necessary even now for guidance and protection in some parts of the country. In Lincolnshire it is pronounced agatehouse, and in the North generally agaterds.

used in dress, and which was often cut into the shape of little images. A little plate of any metal was called an aglet. Cf. Coventry Mysteries, p. 241; Spanish Tragedy, iv. 4;
Cunningham's Revels Accounts, p. 42; Baret's Alvearie, in v. Mr. Way tells us the word properly denotes the tag, but is often used to signify the lace to which it was attached. See

- Prompt. Parv. p. 8. Mr. Hartshorne, Salop. Antiq. p. 303, says, "a spangle, the gold or silver tinsel ornamenting the dress of a showman or rope dancer."

And on sweet St. Anna's night,
Feed them with a promised sight;
Some of husbands, some of lovers,
Which an empty dream discovers.
Ben Jonson's Satyr, 1603.
- Brand, who gives these lines without a reference, reads "St. Agnes" in the first line, which is, I believe, Aubrey's emendation.  the word be correct, it probably agrees with the context if explained in the same way as atask'd; and the term alapat, in the following passage, seems used in a similar sense. All editors, I believe, reject alapt. The following work is erroneously paged, which I mention in case any one compares the original.
 And because the secret and privy boosome vices of nature are most offensive, and though least sense, yet most undermining enemies, you must redouble your endeavor, not with a wand to alapat and strike

(3) The meaning of the words beer and ale are the reverse in different counties. Sir R. Baker's verses on hops and beer are clearly erroneous, ale and beer having been known in England at a very early period, although hops were a later introduction. See Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 27. Sir Thomas, l. 13801, swears "on ale and bred," though this oath may be intended in ridicule. Ale was formerly made of wheat, barley, and honey. See Index to Madox's Exchequer, in v.*(4.) AIL

- ALE-STAKE. A stake set up before an alehouse, by way of sign. Spight explained it a maypole, and hence have arisen a host of stupid blunders;
but the ale-stake was also called the maypole, without reference to the festive pole.
See Tariton's Newes out of Purgatorie, p. 56.
Grose gives ale-post as a term for a maypole.
See his Class. Dict. Vulg. Song. in v. and supra.
Palsgrave, f. 17, translates it by "le moy d'une
taverne." From Dekker's Wonderful Yeare, 1603, quoted by Brand, it appears that a bush was frequently placed at the top of the ale-stake. See Bush. Hence may be explained the lines of Chaucer:

A garlond had he sette upon his hede,
As gret as it werin for an ale-stake.

Urry's ed. p. 6.

Which have been erroneously interpreted in Warton's Hist. Engl. Poet. i. 56. But the bush was afterwards less naturally applied, for Kennett tells us "the coronated frame of wood hung out as a sign at taverns is called a bush." See his Glossary, 1816, p. 35. Cf. Hawkins' Engl. Dram. i. 109; Chaucer, Cant. T. 12255; Reliq. Antiq. i. 14; Hampson's Calend. i. 281; Skelton's Works, i. 320.

ALL-HID. According to Nares, the game of hide-and-seek. It is supposed to be alluded to in Hamlet, iv. 2. See Hide-For. It is mentioned by Dekker, as quoted by Steevens; but Cotgrave apparently makes it synonymous with Hoodman-blind, in v. Clignemusset, Chime-mucette. Cotgrave also mentions Harry-racket, which is the game of hide-and-seek. See Hoodman-blind. ALLIGARTA. The alligator. Ben Jonson uses this form of the word in his Bartholomew Fair, ii. 1.

ALL-IN-A-CHARM. Talking aloud. Wills.

ALL-IN-THE-WELL. A juvenile game in Newcastle and the neighbourhood. A circle is made about eight inches in diameter, termed the well, in the centre of which is placed a wooden peg, four inches long, with a button balanced on the top. Those desirous of playing give buttons, marbles, or anything else, according to agreement, for the privilege of throwing a short stick, with which they are furnished, at the peg. Should the button fly out of the ring, the player is entitled to double the stipulated value of what he gives for the stick. The game is also practised at the Newcastle races, and other places of amusement in the north, with three pegs, which are put into three circular holes, made in the ground, about two feet apart, and forming a triangle. In this case each hole contains a peg, about nine inches long, upon which are deposited either a small knife or some copper. The person playing gives so much for each stick, and gets all the articles that are thrown off so as to fall on the outside of the holes.

The earliest instance I have met with is in the romance of Ferumbras, below quoted. Other examples are given in Boswell's Malone, viii. 82; and Nares, in v. Loves.

And salde to him she moste go

To viseten the prisoneris that days,

And said, sir, for alle loves,

Lete me thy prisoneris seen;

I wole the gifte both golde and gloves,

And counsell shalle it bene. Middlehill MS.

Romeus and Juliet, 1563.

ALL-TO-NOUGHT. Completely. Var. dial.

ALL-TO-SMASH. Smashed to pieces. Somerset.

He is alluded to in 1 Henry IV. ii. 4, and Merry W. of Windsor, ii. 2. According to Holme, he was "the chief whose dominion is on the north part of the infernal gulf." See Douce's Illustrations, i. 428; Malone's Shakespeare, ed. 1821, viii. 91.
- AMAIN. All at once. A sea term. The term is also used in boarding; and to strike amain, is to let the top-sails fall at their full run, not gently. Waving amain, is waving a sword for a signal to other ships to strike their top-sails. See the Sea Dictionary, 12mo. Lond. 1708, in v.

- AMASEFULL. Frightened. Palgrave.

AMBAGE. Circumlocution. See the Spanish Tragedy, i. 1; Marlowe's Works, iii. 257. In an old glossary in MS. Rawl. Poet. 108, it is explained by "circumstance." See the Brit.
Bibl. ii. 618. It is used as a verb, apparently meaning to travel round, in the Morte d'Arthur, i. 135. (Lat.)

Were fayre brought unto his royal dignité.

AMBASSADOR. A game played by sailors to duck some inexperienced fellow or landsman, thus described by Grose. A large tub is filled with water, and two stools placed on each side of it. Over the whole is thrown a tarpaulin, or old sail, which is kept tight by two persons seated on the stools, who are to represent the king and queen of a foreign country. The person intended to be ducked plays the ambassador, and after repeating a ridiculous speech dictated to him, is led in great form up to the throne, and seated between the king and queen, who rise suddenly as soon as he is seated, and the unfortunate ambassador is of course deluged in the tub.

AMBASSAGE. An embassy. Shak.

AMBASSATE. An embassy. See Hardyng's Chronicle, ff. 74, 95, 186, who sometimes spells it ambassyate. In MS. Ashmole 59, f.
45, is "a compleynte made by Lydegate for the departing of Thomas Chaucier into Fraunce by hes servauntz upone the kynges ambassate."

AMBASSATRIE. An embassy. (A.-N.)

I say, by tretise and ambassatrie,
And by the popes mediation,
And all the chirche, and all the chevalrie,
That in destruction of maumetrie,
And in encrease of Cristes lawe dere,
They ben accorded so as ye may here.

and lentes. Bale's Kyngs Johan, p. 41.

in the dice; and hence often used figuratively for bad luck. See Chaucer, Cant. T. 4544; Harrowing of Hell, p. 21; All's Well that ends Well, ii. 3. Howell, p. 19, tells us that when this throw was made, the dicers in London would say "ambling annes and trotting Joan."

This is also the reading of one MS. in Rob.
Glouc. p. 51.

This were a hevye case,
A chance of ambesase,
To se youe broughte so base,
To playe without a place.

Skelton's Works, ii. 438.

AMBIDEXTER. In familiar writing a kind of

AMBRY. A cupboard; a pantry. See Aumbry.
Cf. Florio in v. Gazzara; Skinner and Baret, the alms being kept in an ambry. See Britton's Arch. Dict. in v. Almonry.

To see on walke in gowns of scariete
Twelve yerds wide, with pendant sleeves down
On the grounde, and the furroure therinne.

Ibid. f. 256.

AMBYNOWRE. An almoner.

that gyffes to alle, and noghte kane kepe to herselfe.

MS. Lincoln A. i. 17, f. 273.

AME. (1) To guess; to think; to tell. From the German ahmen, according to Qu. Rev. lv. 371;
but it certainly, in middle English, is merely another form of aim, q. v. In Palgrave we have

"I ayme, I mente or gesse to hyt a thyng." The meaning is clearly ascertained from Prompt. Parv. p. 190, "gessyne, or amyne, estimo, arbitror, opinor." Cf. Rom. and Jul. i. 1.

Of men of armes bold the nombre thei ame,
A thousand and tuo hundred told of Cristen men bi name. Peter Langtoft, p. 228.

And alle Arthurs oste was amede with knyghtes,

Even by and by, ye shall her reclayme.

Commune Secretary and Jalousys, n. d.

(2) The spirit; the soul. (A.-S.) See Stevenson's ed. of Boucher in v.

(3) For a third sense, see Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 14. A dish is there called "douce ame."

AMEAUNT. Ellis and Utterson propose adament as the meaning of this word. The Cambridge MS. reads, "Thys swyrde ys gode and aveaunt." (A.-N.)

Therefore my swerde he shall have,

My good swerde of ameaunt,

For therwith I slewe a gyant. Syr Degort, 108.

Sone, quod he, I am thi fadir.

Gesta Romanorum, p. 177.

AMEL-CORN. A kind of corn, said by Markham to be "of a middle size betwixt wheat and barlie, unlike altogether unto winter wheat whereof we last spake, but of a sort and facultie like unto spelt, whereof we will speake next in order." See Markham's Country Farme, 1616, p. 551; Cotgrave, in v. Scourgeon; Florio, in v. Oriza. It appears from Markham that scourgeon is scarcely synonymous with amel-corn, and therefore Cotgrave's account of it is not quite applicable. It seems to be the Teut. Amelkoren, explained by Kilian far candidum, and the corn of which amydon is made. Gerard calls it the starch-corn, a species of spelt.

AMELL. (1) Enamel. It is also used as a verb by Chaucer, Palsgrave, and others. See Amiled; Beaumont and Fletcher, Introd. p. lix; Cotgrave and Hollyband, in v. Email; Prompt. Parv. p. 261; Twine, ap. Collier's Shak. Lib. p. 206. Amall is a similar form, q. v. See an example in v. Amelyd.

(2) Between. Northumb. It seems to be the Icelandic d milli. See Qu. Rev. lv. 363, where it is stated not to be used in Scotland. It is inserted in the glossary to the Towneley Mysteries, without a reference, and explained "among."

AMELYD. Enamelled.

Bochas, b. ii. c. 31.

AMEOS. The herb bishop's-weed. See Florio, in v. Ammi.

AMERAL. An admiral, q. v. The word is very changeable in its orthography. In the Prompt. Parv. p. 11, it occurs in the modern sense of admiral. The word amerallé in the following passage seems to mean the sovereignty of the sea.

Cherish marchandise and kepe the amerallé,

That we be maisters of the narrow see.

MS. Soc. Antiq. 101, f. 50.

AMERAWD. An emerald.

AMERCE. To punish with a pecuniary penalty; to inflict a fine or forfeiture. Sometimes, to punish, in general. See Romco and Juliet, iii. 1.

Boetius, MS. Soc. Antiq. 134, f. 292.

AMERCY. To amerce. (A.-N.)

And though ye mowe amercy hem,
Lat mercy be taxour. Piers Ploughman, p. 119.

AMERE. Bitterly. So explained by Weber in the following passage, where the Lincoln's Inn MS. reads, "and gan him beore." Stevenson considers it a noun, mischief, damage, a more likely interpretation. (A.-N.)

Dariadas, Daries brother,
He hadde y-slawe on and othir.
Tauryn and Hardas he slowe with spere.
With sword ryden he dud amere!
In this strong fgyhtyng cas,
He mette with Dalmsdas.

Kyng Alisauxder, 4487.

AMERELLE. The translation of umbraculum in the Canterbury MS. of the Medulla. See the Prompt. Parv. p. 301. The corresponding term in MS. Harl. 2270 is "an umbrella."

AMERRE. To mar; to spoil; to destroy. See the Sevyn Sages, 2266, wrongly glossed by Weber. (A.-S.)

For he was amerveld of that syght. Tundale, p. 54.
The bisshope was amerveld then,
And in gret thoht he stode.

MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 48, f. 78.

AMES-ACE. See Ambes-as. This is the form used by Shakespeare. See Collier's Shakespeare, iii. 241; Nares, in v.

AMESE. To calm. "Amese you," calm yourself. This phrase is addressed by Anna to Cayphas in the Townley Myst. p. 194.

To Blialacoll there that he stode,
Whiche had levir in this cas
Have ben at Reines or Amias.

Romaunt of the Rose, 3686.

AMICE. The amice or amite is the first of the sacerdotal vestments. It is, says Mr. Way, a piece of fine linen, of an oblong square form, which was formerly worn on the head until the priest arrived before the altar, and then thrown back upon the shoulders. See Prompt. Parv. p. 11; Nomenclator, p. 159; Dugdale's Monast. iii. 295. The following quotation may also be found in an early printed fragment in Mr. Maitland's account of the Lambeth Library, p. 266. See Ammis.

Upon his heed the amys first he leith,
Which is a thing, a token and figure
Outwardly shewing and grounded in the feith;
The large awbe, by record of scripture,
Ys rightwinesse perpetually to endure;
The longe girdyl, clenness and chastite;

All soburnesse knytte with humillite.

Lydgate, MS. Hutton 73, f. 3.

Whithir he shall have his love, or amis.

Chaucer, ed. Urry, p. 112.

AMISS. A fault; a misfortune. Shak.

AMIT. To admit.

MS. Cantab. Ff. i. 6, f. 6.

AMMAT. A luncheon. West.

AMMIS. The canonical vestment, lined with fur, that served to cover the head and shoulders. Grey fur was generally used. The word is sometimes spelt amice, amyse, ammys, ammas, &c. In French the amict and aumuce, and in Latin the amictus and almucium, correspond to the amice and ammis, as we have spelt them; but it is a grave error to confound the two, as Mr. Dyce does in his edition of

Skelton, ii. 134. See also the quotations in Richardson, where, however, the terms are not distinguished; and Prompt. Parv. p. 11, where the distinction between the two is clearly seen; Palsgrave, f. 17; Lockhart's Life of Scott, i. 309. In the Prompt. Parv. we also have "amuce of an hare, amucium, habetur in horologio divina sapientie."

And hym moost lowly pray,
In his mynde to comprise
Those wordes his grace dyd saye
Of an ammas gray. Skelton's Works, ii. 84.

AMNANT. Pleasantly (?). See Syr Gawayne, p. 31. Perhaps it should be avinant.

AMNER. An almoner. Not an unusual form of the word. See Rutland Papers, p. 59; Wright's Monastic Letters, p. 49; Prompt. Parv. pp. 18, 19; Cotgrave, in v. Aumonnier.

A-MOD. Amidst; in the middle. Langtoft.

AMOND. An almond. Minsheu.

AMONESTE. To admonish; to advise. (A.-N.) Cf. Apology for the Lollards, p. 93; Wright's Christmas Carols, p. 31; Chaucer, ed. Urry, p. 201; Melibeus, p. 110.

Kyng Alisunder, 6974.

AMONGE. Amidst; at intervals. Cf. Ellis's Met. Rom. ii. 387; Ritson's Anc. Pop. Poet. p. 44. The phrase ever among, in Rom. of the Rose, 3771, and 2 Henry IV. v. 3, means ever from time to time, ever at intervals.

Be it right or wrong,
These men among

On women do complaine. Nutbroowe's Maid, l.
And ever amonge, mercy! sche cryde,
That he ne schulde his counseile hide.

Gower, MS. Soc. Antiq. 134 f. 50.

Fyve hundred of amorayle.

Richard Coer de Lion, 6846.

AMORETTE. A love affair. (A.-N.) Tyrwhitt says "an amorous woman" in the second of these instances, where it may be merely a diminutive, as in Florio, in v. Amorino. Jamieson explains it, love-knots, garlands.

For not i-cladde in silke was he,
But all in flouris and fourettes,
I-paintid all with amorettes.

Rom. of the Rose, 282.

And eke as well by amorettes
In mourning blacke, as bright burnettes.

And to the lectorn amorily he sprang.

Hail, quod he, O thou freshe seson of May.

A-MORTHERED. Murdered. See the Herald's College MS. of Robert of Gloucester, quoted in Hearne's edition, p. 144.

AMORTISEN. To amortize; to give property in mortmain. (A.-N.) The word amortised occurs in the Perceuse Tale, p. 22, and is explained killed in the glossaries. It may possibly bear a figurative expression.

Let mellerys and bakerys gadre hem a gilde,

And alle of assent make a fraternite,

Undir the pillory a littil chapelle byde,

The place amorteyse, and purchase liberte.

Lydgate's Minor Poems, p. 207.

If lewed men knewe this Latyn,

AMORYG. Explained by Hearne "to-morrow," Rob. Glouc. p. 234; but the Herald's College MS. reads "among," which clearly seems to be the right reading.

AMOUNTE. Smeared? Mr. Wright thinks it may be an error of the scribe for amoinfe.

And I will goe gailther slyche,
The shippe for to caulke and pyche;
Amoente yt muste be with stiche,

Sevyn Sages, 2962.

AMPER. A sort of inflamed swelling. East.

"Ampered, corrupted, as ampred chees in Kent;
an amper or ampor in Essex, is a rising scab or sore, also a vein swelled with corrupted blood."

Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033. Skinner also appropriates it to Essex, but Grose to Kent, who explains it, a "fault, a defect, a flaw;" and Ray gives it as a Sussex word, "a fault or flaw in linnen, or woollen cloth." A person covered with pimples is said in Somersetshire to be ampery, while the same word is used in the Eastern counties in the sense of weak, or unhealthy. Ampered or ampery is now applied to cheese beginning to decay, especially in Sussex; and is sometimes used when speaking of decayed teeth. An ampre-ang is said in the glossaries to be a decayed tooth in East Sussex and Kent.

Recovering, he found himself in a warm bed,
And in a warm fever an-all.

Hunter's Hallamsh. Gloss. p. 4.

ANALYNG. Weber thinks this may be a corruption of annihilating, i. e. killing. See Kyng Alisaunder, 2166, "analyng of stronge knightes," but we should no doubt read avalynng, descending from or falling off their horses.

ANAMELDE. Enamelled. Cf. Tundale, p. 64; Warton's Hist. Engl. Poet. ii. 42.

ANAN. How? What do you say? It is made use of in vulgar discourse by the lower class of persons addressing a superior, when they do not hear or comprehend what is said to them. It is going out of use now. It is also a corruption of anon, immediately.

ANANSY. To advance; to exalt. So Hearne explains it, in Rob. Glouc. p. 199. The Heralds' College MS. reads avance; and perhaps we should here print it avansy.

ANAPE. Apparently the name of a herb. It is mentioned in an old receipt in a MS. of the 15th century, penes me.

ANAPES. Cloth. It seems to be some fine kind of fustian. See Cotgrave, in v. Velours. It is generally found as an adjunct to fustian, as in Laneham, p. 31; Brit. Bibl. ii. 403. This is of course the proper reading in Mid-

- dleton's Works, iv. 425, "set a-fire my fustian and apes breeches," which the editor proposes to correct to Naples breeches. To mend the matter, we actually find apes' breeches set down in the index to the notes! Fustian anapes is also mentioned in the Strange Man telling Fortunes to Englishmen, 1662.
- ANARWE. To render timid. The Bodl. MS. reads "an-arewest." Perhaps it means, to narrow, to diminish.
He makith hom way with scharpe launce;
Thy men anarwith thy countenance.

- ANAUNTRINS. If so be. North. In East Sussex the form anaimtrins is in use. It seems to be connected with the old word anster; so that anauntrins would correspond to peradventure. See Rob. Glouc. pp. 206, 311.
- ANBERRY. A kind of bloody wart on a horse. See Topsell's Hist. of Four-Footed Beasts, p. 420; Markham's Cavalierie, b. vii. p. 80; Florio, in v. Moro; Dict. Rustic. in v. Anbury. In the East of England, a knob or excrescence on turnips or other roots is called an amberry.

An anchors cheer in prison be my scope.

- (3) To hold like an anchor. In the East of England, the strong tenacious spreading roots of vigorous plants are said to anchor out.

- ship, of which some parts gave names to the parts of a church. Kennett's MS. Gloss.
- ANCHYRCHE. A church. See Hearne's gloss. to Rob. Glouc. and the Chron. p. 232. It should probably be two words.

The old editions of the Merry Wives of Windsor mention on their titles, "the humours of Corporal Nym and Ancient Pistol." See also Collier's Old Ballads, p. 31; Percy's Reliques, pp. 73, 144; Leicester Correspondence, p. 17; Account of the Grocers' Company, p. 330. Kennett, MS. - ANCOME. A small ulcerous swelling, formed unexpectedly. Rider translates it morbus advertitius. According to Dict. Rustic. "a swelling or bump that is hard and hot." See Estward Hoe, iii. 1; Qu. Rev. iv. 372. In Scotland, an attack of disease is called an oncome; and in a curious MS. of old receipts in Lincoln Cathedral, f. 300, is one "for onkome one arme," which agrees with what Mr. Garnett says of the form of the word in the place just cited. See Uncome.
- ANCONY. A term in the iron works for a bloom, wrought into the figure of a flat iron bar, about three feet in length, with a square rough knob on each end. See Kennett's MS. Gloss. f. 16. In Staffordshire one of these knobs is called an ancony-end, the other a mocket-head.
- ANCRE. An anchor.

Holdeth his ancre, for right anone,
Whan thei in ese wene best to live,
They ben with tempest all for-drive.
Rom. of the Rose, 3780.
- ANCRES. A female anchoret, or hermit. The term ancre is applied to a nun in Reliq. Antiq. ii. 1; Rob. Glouc. p. 380. Palgrave, f. 17, has, "Anchre, a religious man; anchres, a religious woman."
Nowe wyll I take the mantell and the ryng,
And become an ancrese in my lyvynge.
Squrr of Lowe Degre, 966.

ANDIRONS. The ornamental irons on each side of the hearth in old houses, which were accompanied with small rests for the ends of the logs. The latter were sometimes called dogs, but the term andirons frequently included both, as in the proverb recorded by Howell, "Bauds and attorneyes, like andyrons, the one holds the sticks, the other their clients, till they consume." Mr. J. G. Nichols, glossary to the Unton Inventories, considers the dogs to be synonymous with the creepers, q. v. but the term was also applied to part of the andirons, and the latter are still called andogs in the Western counties. We find in Ducange, "andena est ferrum, supra quod opponuntur ligna in igne, quod alio nomine dicitur hyperpyrgium;" and Miege makes the andiron and dog synonymous. The andirons were sometimes made of superior metal, or gilt, and of very large dimensions. See Malone's Shakespeare, xiii. 85; Reliq. Antiq. ii. 84; Halle of John Halle, i. 600; The Alchemist, v. 1.

ANDYRS. Other. (A.-S.) The more usual form is endres, as in the Lincoln MS. f. 149. See a similar phrase in Sharp's Coventry Myst. p. 113. Jamieson explains it St. Andrew's day, the 30th of November; but it is difficult to reconcile this explanation with the "mery mornnyng of May."

As I me went this andyrs day,
Fast on my way making my mone,
In a mery mornnyng of May,
Be Huntley bankes myself alone.

ANENT. Over against; immediately opposite. Watson says it is common in Halifax to hear the expression opposite anent. The Scottish meaning concerning does not appear to be now used in Yorkshire. Anentis occurs in Reliq. Antiq. ii. 47, in the sense of concerning; and in Hardyng's Chronicle, f. 170, in the sense of against. See also Wickliffe's New Test. p. 23; Plumpton Corresp. p. 77.

Rob. Glouc. p. 217.

ANEUST. Much the same. Grose gives the Gloucestershire phrase, "aneust of an aneustness," corresponding to the more common "much of a muchness," though the a is generally dropped. Florio has "Arents, anenst, aneust, very neere unto;" and Grose says in Berkshire it has the sense of "about the matter, nearly." In an old grammatical tract in MS. Bib. Reg. 12 B. i. f. 82, is "Quantum ad hoc, Anglice, aneust that."

ANGEL. (1) A gold coin, varying in value from about six shillings and eightpence to ten shillings; affording a subject for many a wretched pun to Shakespeare and his contemporaries. It was introduced by Edward IV. in the early part of his reign. See Davies's York Records, p. 168. It is used in the primitive sense of a messenger, in Tam. of the Shrew, iv. 2. a dead hedge, where they make angles with

ANGLED OG. A large earthworm. Devon. The older word is angle-twitch, as in MS. Sloane 3548, f. 99, quoted in Prompt. Parv. p. 279.

Grose, for a corn on the toe. Lye says,

In me to-dreved is mi hert.

ANGRY. Painful; inflamed; smarting. Forby says "painfully inflamed," and applies it to kibes, as Florio does, in v. Pedigoni. It is the gloss of the Latin molestus in Reliq. Antiq. i.
8; and it seems to be used in a somewhat similar sense in Julius Cæsar, i. 2. In a collection of old MS. recipes, in Lincoln Cathedral, is one for anger in the liver, f. 305, meaning of course inflammation. See the example quoted under Thonwange; and Piers Ploughman, p. 266.

ANGRY-BOYS. A set of youths mentioned by some of our early dramatists as delighting to

Off by the angry boys for thy conversion.

early writers, as being troublesome to sick hawks. In MS. Harl. 2340 is given an account of a medicine "for wormys called anguelles;" and another may be found in the Book of St. Albans, ed. 1810, sig. C.iii. See also Reliq. Antiq. i. 301. (Lat.)

ANGUISHOUS. In pain; in anguish. Wick-liffe used it as a verb, New Test. p. 141.

AN-HEH. Aloud. In the third example it apparently means on high, as in Rob. Glouc. pp.
202, 311; Piers Ploughman, p. 8.

Ther stont up a yeolunen, yegeth with a gerde,
Ant hat out an-heh that al the byrt herde.

And seyð he wold hom anheighe.

Arthur and Merlin, p. 88.

AN-HEIRES. The Host of the Garter, in the Merry Wives of Windsor, ii. 1, addressing Page and Shallow, says, "Will you go, an-heires?" So the folios read, and no sense can be made of the expression as it there stands. A similar passage in the quartos is, "here boys, shall we wag? shall we wag?" but it occurs in another part of the play, although Shallow's answer is the same. Sir T. Hanmer makes German of it, in which he is followed by Mr. Knight. In proposing a bold conjectural emendation, the general style of language employed by the Host must be considered. Thus in act iii. sc. 2, he says "Farewell, my hearts," a method of expression also used by Bottom, "Where are these hearts?" Mids. Night's Dream, iv. 2. See another instance in Clarke's Phrasologia Puerilis, 1655, p. 109. In proposing to read, "Will you go, my hearts?" we approach as near the original as most of the proposed emendations; or, perhaps, as Steevens proposes, "Will you go on, hearts?" Perhaps, however, Mr. Collier has pursued the wisest course in leaving it as it stands in the old copies.

ANHERITED. Inherited?

The cité of Acon, that in this contré is clepid Akres, florishede and stode in his vertue, joy, and prouité, and was anherited richely with worshipfull princes and lordes. MS. Harl. 1704.

Of a treytour that is ml fo,
That is y-come up ml lond,
Wer he thenketh to bring me an-hond.

ANHONGED. Hanged up. (A.-S.) Cf. Chaucer, Cant. T. 12193, 12209; Rob. Glouc. p. 509; Sevyn Sages, 502, 651; Launfal, 686; Reliq. Antiq. i. 87.

ANSWER. To encounter at a tournament. See the Paston Letters, ii. 4. Shakespeare uses the substantive in the sense of retaliation, requital, in Cymbeline, iv. 4. A very common though peculiar sense of the word has not been noticed by lexicographers. To answer a front door, is to open it when any one knocks. At a farm-house near South Petherton, a maid-servant was recently asked why she did not answer the door. The girl, who had an impediment in her speech, replied, "Why—why—why, if you please, mim, I—I—I didn't hear'n speak!"

ANTHONY-PIG. The favourite or smallest pig of the litter. A Kentish expression, according to Grose. "To follow like a tantony pig," i. e. to follow close at one's heels. Some derive this saying from a privilege enjoyed by the friars of certain convents in England and France, sons of St. Anthony, whose swine were permitted to feed in the streets. These swine would follow any one having greens or other provisions, till they obtained some of them; and it was in those days considered an act of charity and religion to feed them. St. Anthony was invoked for the pig. See Becon's Works, p. 138; and a quotation from Horman in Prompt. Parv. p. 29.

ANTHONY'S-FIRE. A kind of erysipelas. Var. dial. Higns says, "A swelling full of heate and rednes, with paine round about a sore or wound, commonly called S. Anthonies fier." See the Nomenclator, 1585, p. 439.

See Anthony and Cleopatra, ii. 7; Much Ado about Nothing, v. 1. Actors are frequently termed anticks, as in the Nomenclator, p. 530. The ancient sculpture and paintings in parish churches fall under the same denomination, and it is even applied to the sculptured figures in pavements.

And cast to make a chariot for the king,
Painted with antickes and ridiculous toys,
In which they meane to Paris him to bring,
To make sport to their madames and their boyes.

Drayton's Poems, p. 43.

Monstrous of shape, and of an ugly hew.

It admitted of the wildest extravagances, and actors from the theatres were generally engaged to perform in it. See Beaumont and Fletcher, ii. 459; Ben Jonson, ed. Gifford, vii. 251; Nares, in v., and an ac-

- ANTIPHONER. This term is frequently met with in the inventories of church goods and ornaments in old times. It was a kind of psalm-book, containing the usual church music, with the notes marked, as we still see them in old mass books; and so called from the alternate repetitions and responses. See the Archæologia, xxi. 275.

Apes were formerly carried on the shoulders of fools and stumpletons; and Malone says it was formerly a term of endearment. Tyrwhitt considers "win of ape," in Cant. T. 16993, to be the same with vin de singe. See his note, p. 329; Robert of Sicily, p. 58.

APOSTLE-SPOONS. It was anciently the custom for sponsors at christenings to offer gilt spoons as presents to the child, which were called apostle-spoons, because very frequently the figures of the twelve apostles were chased or carved on the tops of the handles. Opulent sponsors gave the whole twelve; those in middling circumstances gave four; while the poorer sort often contented themselves with the gift of one, exhibiting the figure of some saint in honour of whom the child received its name. See Brand's Pop. Antiq. ii. 52. At Cambridge the last person in the tripos is called a spoon, and the twelve last in the poll are designated the twelve Apostles.

Groom's Gorydenius, 1593.

APPEAL. This word appears to have been formerly used with much latitude; but according to its most ancient signification, it implies a reference by name to a charge or accusation, and an offer or challenge, to support such charge by the ordeal of single combat. See

APPELYE. Haply. "Appyny," in Weber's Met. Rom. iii. 279, is probably an error for this word. See his Glossary, in v.

drow hir hede ayene so appelye, and so sodenlye,

Gower, Cant. 1839, f. 148.

The King and a Poore Northerne Man, 1640.

APPLE-HOGLIN. An apple turnover. Suffolk.

It is also called an apple-jack, and is made by folding sliced apples with sugar in a coarse crust, and baking them without a pan.

APPLE-JOHN. A kind of apple, not ripe till late in the season, and considered in perfection when shrivelled and withered. See Shakespeare's 2 Henry IV. ii. 4, where it is stated that Falstaff could not "endure an apple-John." The term is still in use in the eastern counties, although Forby thinks it possible the same variety of fruit may not have been retained.

APPLE-MOISE. Cider. Huloet, in his Abecedarium, 1552, translates it by pomacium. See also the Catalogue of Douce's Printed Books, p. 309, where the word is wrongly printed. In the Prompt. Parv. p. 13, we have appubnoce, which appears to have been served up at table as a dish, consisting of the apples themselves after they had been pressed, and seasoned with spices. See Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 16; Forme of Cury, pp. 42, 96, 103.

APPLEN. Apples.

Upe the hezte bowe tucye applen be sey.

APPLE-PEAR. A kind of pear, mentioned in Higgins' adaptation of Junius' Nomenclator, p. 99. It seems to be the tankard pear.

APPLE-PIE-ORDER. Anything in very great order. An apple-pie-bed furnishes an article for Grose. It is made somewhat in the fashion of an apple-turnover, the sheets being so doubled as to prevent any one from getting at his length between them; a common trick in schools.

APPLES-OF-LOVE. The fruit of some foreign herb, said to be a stimulus for the tender passion. Skinner says they are fructus solani cufusdam peregrini; that is, the fruit of some foreign species of nightshade.

APPLE-SQUIRE. This word appears to have been used in several senses. An apple-squire was a kept gallant, and also a person who waited on a woman of bad character. In the Belman of London, 1608, we are told the apple-squire was the person "to fetch in the wine." The term was often applied to a pimp. Miegé translates it, un grossier ecuyer de dame. See Middleton's Works, iii. 232; Cotgrave, in v. Cueilleur; Florio, in v. Guadro; Beaumont and Fletcher, ii. 332; Hall's Satires, i. 2; Dodley's Old Plays, xi. 284.

MS. Bodl. 30.

APPLE-STUCKLIN. An apple-turnover. Hants. In Norfolk it is called an apple-twelin.

APPLE-TERRE. An apple orchard. This word was formerly used in Sussex, but seems to be now obsolete. Huloet, in his Abecedarium, 1552, gives apple-yard in the same sense. In Devonshire, they have a curious custom at Christmas of firing powder at apple trees and singing lays round them to make them more fruitful. Brand mentions other customs of the same kind.

APPLIABLE. Capable of being applied.

And therto many of the contryes of Kent were as-sentyng, and cam with theyr good wills, as people redy to be appliable to suche seditious commocions.

If anye of these wants be in me, I beseeche your lordshipp appoint them to my extreme state, more grievous then disease; more unquiet then pryson; more troublesome to me then a painful death. Harington's Nugæ Antiquæ, l. 48.

APPON. Upon. See Apon. The Thornton MS. constantly uses this orthography, and it occurs in Torrent of Portugal, p. 2.

APPONE. To dispute with. So seems to be the meaning of the word as used by Florio, in v. Apposto, though the Latin apponere means to pawn, to pledge.

APPOSAYLE. Question; enquiry.

Whan he went out his enemies to assaile,
 Made unto her this uncouth apposayle.

Skelton's Works, l. 367.

APPREHENSION. According to its literal import, means laying hold of, or catching, as we still use it applied to offenders against the law. Thus in Harrison's description of the pearl-muscle, which is said to have been frequently found in the rivers Dee and Don, the manner of apprehension is likewise mentioned. In Beaumont and Fletcher, iii. 171, it seems to be used in the sense of imagination.

APPREHENSIVE. Of quick conception; perceptive.

I fly unseen, as charmers in a mist.

Grateful revenge, whose sharp-sweet relist fets

My apprehensiv soul. The True Trojans, iii. 8.

APPROVER. An informer. (A.-N.) A person who had the letting of the king's demerces in small manors to the best advantage was likewise called an approver.

This false thief, this compourer, quod the frere,
Had alway baudes redy to his hond,
As any hauke to lure in Englelond,

Feed him with apricocks and dewberries.

A Midn. Night's Dream, iii. 1.

APRIL. Ray has the proverb, "April—borrows three days of March, and they are ill." April is pronounced with an emphasis on the last syllable, so as to make a kind of jingling rhyme with ill. See Brand's Pop. Antiq. ii. 25. The wedding-day is sometimes satirically called April-day, in allusion to the common custom of making fools on the 1st of April. In the Merry Wives of Windsor, iii. 2, the Host of the Garter, speaking of Fenton, says, "he smells April and May;" that is, of youth and courtship.

Irish aqua-vitæ was usquebaugh, but brandy was a later introduction, nor has the latter term been found earlier than 1671. According to Nares, it was formerly in use as a general term for ardent spirits, and Ben Jonson terms a seller of drams an "aqua-vitæ man." Tyrwhitt explains argoile, potter's clay, as the French argille; Palsgrave, f. 18, has, "argyle, a kynde of erthe, argille," but Skinner explains it, "alcali seu sal kali." Ben Jonson, Alchemist, i. 1, mentions, "arsenic, vitriol, salt-tartar, argaille, alkali, cinoper," as the stock of an alchemist; and in a MS. of the fifteenth century penes me is a receipt "to make water argoile, that ys, agua tartaria," in which instances it seems to mean the tartar, or lees of wine, as before in argal, q. v. This also is clearly the meaning of argul in a very early receipt in MS. Harl. 2253, printed in the Archaeological Journal, i. 65, "tac argul, a thing that deyares deyet with, ant grint hit smal, ant seththe tac a wollene clout, ant couche thi poudre theron as brod as hit wol." Argul, or argal, is the name of the impure salt deposited from wine; and when purified, is called bitartrate of potash, or cream of tartar, a material still used in dyeing. Argol is mentioned in a list of chemical metals in Gallathea, 1632.

(3) An eagle. (A.-S.)

ARNALDIE. A kind of disease, mentioned by the early chroniclers without explanation. Skinner considers the word of Arabic origin, but see Ducace, in v. Arnaldia, who confesses its precise meaning is not known.

ARNARY-CHEESE. Ordinary or common cheese made of skimmed milk. Dorset.

ARND. An errand; a message. See a curious hymn printed by Hearne, quoted in Brit. Bibl. ii. 81, and the Catalogue of the Douce MSS. p. 20, which mentions another copy, identifying MS. Douce 128 as the copy of Avesbury used by Hearne. Arnd occurs in Tim Bobbin in the same sense.

And sped hem into Spayne spacli in a while,
And to the kud king Alphouns kithed here arnd.

Soyyn Sages, 1304.

ARNEMELIT. A kind of powder. In the Book of St. Albans, sig. C. ii. is a direction to "fyll the hole wyth a powdre of arnemelit brente." This is probably an error for arnement. See a similar passage in Reliq. Antiq. i. 302.

ARNEMENT. Ink. See the Sevyng Sages, 2776; MS. Med. Lincoln, f. 285; MS. Sloane 2584, p. 29. (Lat.)

ARNEYS. Armour. See a curious stage direction in the Coventry Mysteries, p. 283.

ARNES. Arles, q. v. North.

ARNT. (1) Have not; am not. West.

(2) An errand. North.

ARNUT. The earth-nut, or pig-nut, frequently eaten by boys in the north of England.

ARNOINT. A word of expulsion, or avoiding. Douce thinks there is no doubt that it signifies, away! run! and that it is of Saxon origin. See his Illustrations, i. 371. It occurs thrice in Shakespeare in this sense, Macbeth, i. 3, and King Lear, iii. 4, applied in each instance to witches. The print published by Hearne, referred to by the commentators, seems scarcely applicable. See Arnoynt. The fourth folio reads anoint, according to Steevens, a reading which may perhaps be confirmed by a passage in Ben Jonson's Masque of Queens:

Sisters, stay, we want our Dams;
Call upon her by her name,
And the charm we use to say,
That she quickly anoint, and come away.

But as the word is spelt aroynt three times in the early editions, we are scarcely justified in proposing an alteration. Ray explains "rynt ye," by your leave, stand handsomely, and gives the Cheshire proverb, "Rynt you, witch, quoth Besse Locket to her mother." This proverbial saying positively connects rynt with aroint, and Wilbraham informs us that "rynt thee" is an expression used by milkmaids to a cow when she has been milked, to bid her to get out of the way, which is more likely to be correct than Ray's explanation. Boucher goes farther, and says, aroint is the word used in that county; but Ray's proverb is sufficient, and of good authority, because he does not appear to have had the Shakespearian word in view. The connexion between aromat and rynd being thus established, it is clear that the compound etymology proposed by Mr. Rodd, in Knight's Shakspeare, is inadmissible. A more plausible one is given in Nares's Glossary, in v. from the Latin aromatum, the participle of which may have been formed into aromat, in the same way that punctum has become point; unctum, joint, &c. See also Collier's Shakspeare, vii. 103, where the same conjecture is revived, and attributed to a more recent writer. The a may have been dropped, and Mr. Wilbraham's conjectural origin from aroma receives some confirmation from a passage quoted in Collier's Hist. Dram. Poet. ii. 289, where the form of that word is aroinse; but perhaps we should read arome.

AROMAZ. A spice. "Smirles of aromaz" are mentioned in MS. Cott. Titus D. xviii. f. 142. The tother to mirre, the thridde to flour,
The ferthe like to aromaz.

AROUME. Aside; at a distance. It is translated by remote, deprope, seorsum, in Prompt. Parv. p. 14. See Book of Fame, ii. 32; Kyng Ali-saunders, 1637; Richard Coer de Lion, 464; Collier's Hist. Dram. Poet. ii. 289; Digby Mysteries, p. 188. (A.-S.)

ARRANT. Malory, in his Morte d'Arthur, i. 199, &c. applies this word to knights, where we say errant. The term is generally applied to any thing or person extremely objectionable and worthless, and was probably derived from the licentious character of wanderers in general.

ARRA-ONE. Ever a one. Wilts.

ARRAS. (1) A superior kind of tapestry, so named from Arras, the capital of Artois in the French Netherlands, which was celebrated for its manufacture. In the rooms of old houses hung with arras, there were generally large spaces between the hangings and the walls, and these were frequently made hiding places in the old plays. Falstaff proposes to hide himself behind the arras at Windsor; and Polonius is killed behind the arras in Hamlet, iii. 3. See the Unton Inventories, ed. J. G. Nichols, gloss. in v. Aryste. Falstaff, no moderate size, sleeps behind the arras in 1 Henry IV. ii. 4, where Dr. Johnson thinks Shakespeare has outstepped probability, but Malone has distinctly proved the contrary. See his Shakespeare, xvi. 299.

(2) A kind of powder, probably made of the root of the orris. See Gerard, p. 48. "Half an ounce of arras" is mentioned by Harrison, Descr. of England, p. 170, as a material used in brewing, and Webster twice mentions arras-powder as having been sprinkled on the hair. See Webster's Works, i. 133; Markham's Engl. Housewife, 1649, p. 150.

ARRAUGHT. Reached; seized by violence. We have already had araught and areche, but this form is quoted as used by Spenser, and admitted by Nares, who was not aware of any example of the verb in the present tense.

ARRIDGE. The edge of anything that is liable to hurt or cause an ar, q. v. North. See A Guide to the Lakes, ed. 1784, p. 300. With this may be connected arris, "the line of concurrence, edge, or meeting of two surfaces." See Britton's Arch. Dict. in v.

ARRIERE. The hinder part. (Fr.) This foreign word was formerly in use as a military term, instead of rear. See Johnson in v.

ARRISHES. According to Marshall's Rural Economy, i. 171, this is the Devonshire term for stubbles or eddish; arriah mows, which he mentions as little stacks set up in a field, seem to be so called merely from their being in the arriah, or stubble-field.

ARRIVALL. A rival?

On a day he saw a goodly young elephant in copu-lation with another, and instantly a third aproched with a direfull braying, as if he would have eaten up al the company, and, as it afterward appeared, he was an arriwall to the female which we saw in copu-lation with the other male.

And in hys thought a slepe hym toke.

MS. Cantab. Ff. ii. 38, f. 240.

ARROWY. Abounding in arrows. Milton, Paradise Regained, b. iii. has "sharp sleet of arrowy shower," which is apparently plagiarised by Gray in the following passage.

Now the storm begins to lower,
Haste, the loom of hell prepare!
Iron sleet of arrowy shower
Hurtles in the darken'd air.

ARRWUS. Arrows. This form of the word occurs in a strange burlesque printed in Reliq. Antiq. i. 82.

ARSBAWST. A fall on the back. Staff.

See also Sharp's Diss. on Cov. Myst. p. 29; Cunningham's Revels' Accounts, pp. 33, 57. See Asidue. Gifford considers it to be a vulgar corruption of arsenic, iv. 405.

ARSESMART. The periscaria. It is called the water-pepper by Kersey, and is the translation of curage in Hollyband's Dictionary, 1593. Coles, in his Art of Simpling, says, "It is said that if a handfull of arsmart be put under the saddle upon a tired horse's back, it will make him travaile fresh and lustily." See Brand's Pop. Antiq. iii. 165; Aubrey's Nat. Hist. Wilt. MS. Soc. Reg. p. 139.

ARSEVERSE. According to Blount's Glossographia, ed. 1681, p. 51, this word is "a pretended spell, written upon the door of an house to keep it from burning."

ARSEWISPE. Rider gives this word, which scarcely requires explanation, as the translation of the Latin ambisergium.

ARSLE. To move backwards; to fidget. East. Cotton, in his Virgil Travestie, ed. 1734, p. 5, has arsing about, turning round.

Ladgate's Minor Poems, p. 11.

ARSOON. The bow of a saddle. (A.-N.) It is sometimes used for the saddle itself. Each saddle had two arsoons, one in front, the other behind; the former called the fore-arsoon, as in Richard Coer de Lion, 5053. In the same romance, 5539, speaking of King Richard, we are told that "both hys arsoons weren off yren." In Kyng Alisaunder, 4251, it apparently means the saddle.

And the arson behynde, as y yow say,
Syr Befyae smote cleue away.

Kyng Alisaunder, 287.

ARSTON. A hearth-stone. Yorksh.

ARTETYKES. A kind of gout or disease affecting the joints. Maundevile mentions, "gowtes, artetykes," that afflicted him in his old age. See his Travels, p. 315. A prescription for it in hawks is given in the Book of St. Albans, sig. C. i. It is probably connected with arthritis. See Arctith.

MS. Digby 230.

ARTICLE. Comprehension. Shakespeare mentions "a soul of great article" in Hamlet, v. 2. The vulgar sense is applied to a poor creature, or a wretched animal. This latter appears rather slang than provincial, yet it is admitted into the East Anglian Vocabulary.

ARTICULATE. To exhibit in articles. See this use of the word in Coriolanus, i. 9, where it means to enter into articles of agreement.

To end those things articulated here

By our great lord, the mighty king of Spaine,

We with our counsell will deliberate.

Hawkins' Engl. Dram. ii. 48.

ARTICULES. Any multiples of ten, a division which was formerly considered necessary in arithmetic, and was probably the result of the abacial system, a gradual improvement of the Boetian notation. See Rara Mathematica, p. 30.

ARTIER. Artery. (Fr.) See the Shakespeare Society's Papers, i. 19.

May never spirit, vein, or artier, feed

The cursed substance of that cruel heart!

ARTNOON. Afternoon. Essex.

ART-OF-MEMORY. An old game at cards, described in the Compleat Gamester, ed. 1709, p. 101.

ARTOW. Art thou. North. This is a correct early form, the second personal pronoun being frequently combined with the verb in interrogative sentences. See Will and the Werwolf, pp. 46, 185; Lydgate's Minor Poems, p. 51.

ARTRY. At p. 284 of the following work, mention is made of "al myn armery and attry hoole."

Also y wol that my son Sir Harry have all the residew of my wardrobe and of myn arras nat bequethen, and all myn armery and all my artry.

Nichol's Royal Wills, p. 288.

ARTS-MAN. A man of art. This seems to be the meaning in Love's Labour's Lost, v. 1. The old editions read arts-man preambulat, which had better remain without alteration.

ARTYLLLED. Declared; set out in articles. See Hartshorne's Met. Tales, p. 250, where it may perhaps be an error for artykilled.

ARUDAND. Riding. See Gy of Warwike, p. 77, arnend?

ARVAL. A funeral. North. Arval-supper is a funeral feast given to the friends of the deceased, at which a particular kind of loaf, called arval-bread, is sometimes distributed among the poor. Arval-bread is a coarse cake, composed of flour, water, yeast, currants, and some kind of spice; in form round, about eight inches in diameter, and the upper surface always scored, perhaps exhibiting originally the sign of the cross. Not many years since one of these arvals was celebrated in a village in Yorkshire at a public-house, the sign of which was the family arms of a nobleman whose motto is, Virtus post funera vivit. The undertaker, who, though a clerk, was no scholar, requested a gentleman present to explain to him the meaning of these Latin words, which he readily and facetiously did in the following manner: Virtus, a pariah clerk, vicit, lives well, post funera, at an arval! See Douce's Illustrations, ii. 203.

MS. Harl. 1701, f. 10.

(2) Timid; fearful. See Rob. Glouc. p. 457, "his hert arwe as an hare," erroneously explained swift. Mr. Way refers to an instance in Richard Coer de Lion, 3821, but Weber has arranged the line differently in his glossary.

Thou saist soth, hardy and hard,
And thou art as arwe coward!
He is the furste in eche bataille;
Thou art byhynde ay at the tall.

Kyng Alisaunder, 3340.

ARWEBLAST. A crossbow. We have already had this word, in v. Alblast, and Arblast. For this form of it, see Mirroir for Magistrates, p. 217; Ellis's Metrical Rom. ii. 255; Richard Coer de Lion, 2637, 3851, 3970, 4453, 4481, 5867; spelt arrowblaste, &c.

Rob. Glouc. p. 380.

AS-BUIRD. Ashes board; a box in which ashes are carried. North.

ASCANCE. Obliquely.

He is said to have been thirty feet long, and to have carried Sir Bevis, his wife, and horse, under his arm. Allusions to him occur in Shakespeare, Drayton, and other Elizabethan writers.

ASCAPE. To escape. Sometimes aschape. See Kyng Alisaunder, 1120; Gy of Warwike, p. 230; Piers Ploughman, pp. 40, 121.

 of ml peple. Apology for the Lollards, p. 69.

ASCAT. Broken like an egg. Somerset.
ASCAUNCE. This is interpreted aslant, side- ways, in the glossaries, but Tyrwhitt justly doubts its application in all the following passages. Ascaunt, however, occurs in the early quarto editions of Hamlet, iv. 7, where the folio of 1623, reads aslant. See also Troilus and Creseide, i. 292. It apparently means scarcely, as if to say, as if; and is perhaps sometimes an expletive. It seems, however, to mean aslant in Troilus and Creseide, i. 205;
 La Belle Dame sans Mercy, 604.

And wrote alway the names, as he stood,
 Of alle folk that yave hem any good,
Ascaunce that he wolde for hem preyen.

ASCENDANT. A term in judicial astrology, denoting that degree of the ecliptic which is rising in the eastern part of the horizon at the time of any person's birth, and supposed to exercise great influence over his fortune. It is now used metaphorically.

 to betray, as in Ywaine and Gawin, 584.
 Hearne, gloss. to Peter Langtoft, p. 217, explains it "to cry to," an interpretation adopted in the Towneley Mysteries, p. 193. It means there to assail with a shout, as Mr. Dyce observes, notes to Skelton, p. 152. Paßgrave has it in the sense to decry, to discover.
 Bot some when he herd ascry
 That king Edward was nere tharby,
 Than durst he nougt cum nere.

Minot's Poems, p. 14.
 Writ how muche was his myschief,

 Mayor of Norwich in 1424 directed "that all brewsters and gannokers selle a gallon ale of the best, be measure a-selyd." See Prompt.
 Parv. p. 186. It seems there to have the meaning of established, confirmed.

That othir the abbot off Seynt Albon,
 That brought hym lettres speciele,
Aselyd with the barouns sele,
 That tolden hym, hys brothir Jhon
 Wolde do corowne hym anon.

 usually done before a fight. Mr. Stevenson explains it, to receive the sacrament, in which case it may be only another form of hosely, q. v.

Cf. Cotgrave, in v. Attendans, Bouffice. Grose gives the word as peculiar to Cumberland, and signifying "a large free stone," and according to some, it is or was common among builders to denote free-stones as they come from the quarry. The term is still in common use. In the indenture for the construction of the dormitory at Durham, 1398, the mason engages that a certain wall shall be "exterius de puro lapide vocato achiler plane incisio, interius vero de fracto lapide vocato rogghwall." See Willis's Architectural Nomenclature, p. 25.

ASHORE. Aside. West. It is used in the same sense as asjer, applied to a door. Weber is in doubt about its meaning in the following passage, but the word is common in the West of England, although it does not appear to have found a place in the glossaries.

Ever after the dogges wer so starke,
Thel stode ashore when thei schuld barke.

Hunting of the Hare, 257.

This ceremony was abolished early in the reign of Edward VI. See Becon's Works, p. 110.

Percy's Reliques, p. 50.

ASSINEGO. A Portuguese word, meaning a young ass. Hence applied to a silly fellow, a fool. Shakespeare has the word in Troilus and Cressida, II. 1, and it is not unfrequently found in the Elizabethan writers as a term of reproach. Ben Jonson, in his Expostulation with Inigo Jones, makes a severe pun on his name, telling him he was an ass-inigo to judge by his ears.

Wulf. and the Werwolf, p. 160.

(2) The "long assise" in the first of the following passages is conjectured by Sir W. Scott, to be a term of chess now disused. Tristrem is playing at chess, and he played so long a time "the long assise," that he won six hawks, and 100*l.* This, I apprehend, is the correct meaning. In the second instance the same phrase is applied to a measure of length, instead of a measure of time. See also Rom. of the Rose, 1392. Skinner makes it synonymous with size.

Now bothe her wedde lys,
And play that bi-ginne;
Y-sett he bath the long assise,
And endred both ther inne.

Sir Tristrem, P. 122.

He feils depe or he myght ryse,

We have another instance of the word in the same sense in the romance of Sir Tryamour in the MS. in the Cambridge Public Library. After this hero has cut off the legs of the giant Barlund, he tells him that they are both "at oon assye," i. e. of the same length.

A lytulle lower, syr, soye hee,

ASTROUT. This word is still used in Somersetshire, explained by Mr. Norris, MS. Glossary, "in a stiff, projecting posture, as when the fingers are kept out stiff." Sir Thomas More, Workes, p. 98, applies it to a stomach swelled by gluttony, "What good can the great gloton do with his bely standing astrote like a taber." In Prompt. Parv. p. 16, "a-strut" is translated by turgide; and Palmer says it is used in the north-east of Devon in the sense of astride. The word occurs in the first sense in a curious poem in the Auchinleck MS. printed in Wright's Political Songs, p. 336; and the following example is taken from another copy in the Bodleian Library, unknown to Mr. Wright, which is valuable as completing his imperfect one. Cowper has astruf, as quoted by Richardson.

ATTACK'D-ED. Attacked. A common participle here, but more extensively used, I am told, in America.

ATTAIN. A taint; anything hurtful. The verb seems to be used in somewhat a peculiar sense in Morte d'Arthur, ii. 266. It was also a term in chivalry.

I will not poison thee with my attain,
Nor fold my fault in cleanly coin'd excuses.

Shakespeare's Locrine.

The kyng was that daye hyghly to be prayd, for he brake xxij. speres, beynde attayntes, and bare doune to ground a man of armes and hys horse.

Hall, Henry VIII. f. 55.

Also, to broach a vessel of liquor, as in Prompt. Parv. p. 16, where it is translated by attamino.

ATTER. (1) Poison. (A.-S.) Hence, corrupt matter issuing from an ulcer, as in Prompt. Parv. p. 16, where it is translated by acuties.

This latter is also the provincial use of the word; Forby has it, and Skinner gives it as a Lincolnshire word, in which county it now seems to be obsolete. Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033, says it was used in Sussex in the same sense. See Piers Ploughman, p. 243.

Append. to W. Masses, p. 278.

ATTERCOP. A spider. (A.-S.) It is translated by aranea in the Prompt. Parv. p. 16, and the provincial glossaries give it also the sense of a spider's web, as Ray, Kennett, and others. See Prompt. Parv. p. 140, and the list of old words prefixed to Batman upon Bartholome, 1582, where it occurs in the first sense. Stanihurst, in his Description of Ireland, p. 11, says a spider was called an attercop in some parts of that country, and even in Fingal. Pegge explains it, "the venomous spider," which agrees with the etymology from atter, poison; though cobweb, which was anciently spelt copweb, may have been derived from the latter part of the word; Dut. Kop, a spider; Welsh, Cop or Coppin. In the North of England, the term is applied to a peevish, ill-natured person, not exclusively to the female sex, as Mr. Brockett seems to say.

The reading of the second folio must be preferred to conjectural emendation, but aucey may be right, and some form of auk, q. v.AUCTE. Property.

Lansd. 1033, says, "a forward or old-growing child, as children are said to be aud-farand when they are witty or wise beyond their years, apud Boreales." Kennett derives it from A.-S. Faran. See also his Glossary, ed. 1816, p. 72.

AUFYN. The bishop at chess was formerly so called, and is conjectured to be derived from the Arabic al-af, an elephant, that being the piece which took the place of the bishop in the East. In the tract De Vetula, falsely ascribed to Ovid, the following pieces are mentioned as used in chess,—Miles et Alpinus, Roccus, Rex, Viryo, Pedesque. See Ducange, in v. Alpinus; and Affyn.

So yn a day, as he pleide at the chess, and byhelde the kyng erte yn the play, somtyme by and somtyme lowe, among auyns and powyns, he thought therwith that hit wolde be so with him, for he shulde dey, and be hid undir erthe.

AUGRIM-STONES. Counters formerly used in arithmetic, and which continued to be employed long after the introduction of Arabic numerals. In the Winter's Tale, iv. 2, the clown says, "Let me see;—Every 'leven wether tod; every tod yields — pound and odd shilling: fifteen hundred shorn,—what comes the wool to?—I cannot do't without counters."

His astrelatre, longing for his art,

Langtoft's Chronicle, p. 36.

AUK. Inverted; confused. In the East of England, bells are "rung auk," to give alarm of fire; and Palsgrave has, "I ryngre ankewarde, je sonne abrauale." It was formerly the general custom to ring bells backward in cases of fire. See Gifford's Massinger, i. 236. The older meaning is angry, ill-natured, as in the Prompt. Parv. p. 18; where we also have, "awke, or wronge, sinister." This last sense is still in use in the North of England, and Tusser tells us that bad husbandry droops "at fortune so awke." See the Five Hundred Points, 1573, f. 58. An auk stroke is a backward stroke, as in Palsgrave, f. 18; Morte d'Arthur, i. 148, 284. Brockett says that the word is applied to a stupid or clumsy person in the North of England.

Se that hute has to lyth, or huffes fur to here
Off eiden of alde tyme, and of theire awke dedys.

Morte Arthurs, MS. Lincoln, f. 63.

AULD-ANE. The devil. North. Perhaps the more usual term is Auld-Nick.

AULD-LANG-SYNE. A favourite phrase in the North, by which old persons express their recollections of former kindnesses and juvenile enjoyments, in times long since past,—immortalised by the song of Burns, "Should auld acquaintance be forgot." See Brockett, in v.

AULD-THRIFT. Wealth accumulated by the successive frugality of a long race of ancestors. North.

I lald um here, under the aumry-soal.

Yorkshire Dialogue, p. 44.

AUMUS. Alma. North. Thoresby, in his Letter to Ray, 1703, spells it aumus.

AUNCEL. A kind of land-sale weight, prohibited by statute on account of its great uncertainty. See Brit. Bibl. ii. 512. In the following passage from Piers Ploughman, Mr. Wright's manuscript reads auncer, which can hardly be correct. "Auncell weight, as I have been informed," says Cowell, Interpreter, 1658, "is a kind of weight with scales hanging, or hooks fastened at each end of a staff, which a man lifteth up upon his forefinger or hand, and so discerneth the equality or difference between the weight and the thing weighed;" and he afterwards adds, "a man of good credit once certified mee that it is still used in Leaden-all at London among butchers."

As the pound that she paled by Peised a quatron moore
Than myn owene auucer,

Who so weyed truthe. Piers Ploughman, p. 90.

AUNCETERES. Ancestora. According to Mr. Hunter, this word is not quite obsolete in the West Riding of Yorkshire. Skelton, i. 128, has auucertry for ancestry.

So schaltow gets god los and gretli be enakked,
As han al thin auuceretes or thow were bigeten.

Will. and the Werwolf, p. 185.

AUNDER. Afternoon; evening. According to Carr, this word is nearly extinct in Craven; Grose says it is used in Cheshire; and Hartshorne gives it as a Shropshire word. It seems derived from uadern, q. v. Jamieson says that uadren in Scotland is "the repast taken between dinner and supper." Cotgrave several times mentions auunders-meat as an afternoon's refreshment. See his Dictionary, in v. Gouber, Gouster, Reciné, Ressie.

AUNDIREN. An andiron, q. v. Palsgrave, f. 18, translates "auudyren" by chenet.

Aunge alle bowrys xal to yow apere. Coc. Myst. p. 88.

AUNT. A woman of bad character; a procuress or a bawd. This sense is common in early plays, although auunt and auuncle were the usual appellations given by a jester or fool to all elderly persons, without implying any improper meaning, a custom, according to Pegge, generally pursued in Cornwall. In a Midsummer Night's Dream, ii. 1, the term auunt seems to be applied to an old woman, or gossip, not necessarily in the bad sense, as the commentators tell us.

AUNTE. Instead of "up here aunte," the Heralds' College MS. reads, "to-gedere."

Heo gederede up here auunte here oet aboute wyde,
And destruyde hire londes eyther in his syde.

Rob. Glouc. p. 37.

AUNTELERE. A stag's antler. See Twety's treatise on hunting in Reliq. Antiq. i. 151.

Chaucer, Cant. T. 4307.

(3) An altar.

Be-forn his auunter he knelyd adoun.

Songs and Carols, st. xi.

AUNTEROUS. Adventurous; bold; daring. "A castell auunterous," in Lybeaus Disconus, 279, glossed formidable. The Prompt. Parv. p. 19, makes it synonymous with doubtful, but the other meaning is found at p. 279.

They that were auunterous by-ayde,

In a cuuntre fulle wyde,

They come thedir that tyde.

Sir Degrevante, Lincoln MS.

AUNTERS. Peradventure; in case that; lest; probably. North.

Ashmole's Theat. Chem. Brit. p. 369.

AURRUST. Harvest. Worc.

AURUM-MULICUM. A composition occasionally mentioned in early documents relating to the arts, and fully described in the following passage:

AUSPICIOUS. Joyful. So Shakespeare seems to use the word in Hamlet, i. 2:

With one auspicious, and one dropping eye.

AUST. To attempt. Warw. It is also used as a substantive.

AUSTERNE. Stern; severe. In the Testament of Creseide, 154, we have the form austrine in the same sense.

But who is yond, thou ladye faire,
That looketh with ale an austerne face?

Percy's Reliques, p. 75.

AUTEM. A church, in the canting language. There are several compounds of this word, as autem-mort, a married woman. See Dodsley's Old Plays, x. 372.

AUTENTICKE. Authentic. Chaucer has it as a substantive. See Thynne's Animadversions, p. 48.

Now for the third parte touchyng recordes and registres, wee have them so formall, so autentiqual, so seriously handled. Hall, Henry VIII. f. 253.

His offrende on the auter leyde. Havelok, 1366.

AUTERS. Explained, "strange work, or strange things," in the Clavis at the end of the Yorkshire Dialogue, p. 89. It is probably an error for auters, the genuine early form of the word.

AUTHENTIC. Regularly bred; fashionable. Nares says it "seems to have been the proper epithet for a physician regularly bred or licensed." See All's Well that Ends Well, ii. 3.

AUTHER. Either.

Hampole, North C. MS.

AUWARDS. Awkward; athwart. North. See

Achwards. A beast is said to be auwards, when it lies backward or downhill, so as to be unable to rise; a circumstance often happening with sheep that are heavy in the wool.

AUȚT. (1) Ought.

Floure of heveme, Ladi and Queene,
As sche auȚt wel to bene. MS. Addit. 16036, f. 62.

(2) Owed. The version printed in Collier's

Then the seneschall smot his hors with his spurris, and come to theym, for the see was availed and withdrawn. MS. Digby, 185.

(2) To lower; to let down. (A.-N.) This term is often applied to the letting down the front of the helmet, or the visor only without the ventaile, as in Robson's Met. Rom. p. 15; Morte d'Arthur, i. 152. Hence the phrase "to vale the bonnet," to lower the bonnet, or take off the hat; and, figuratively, to acknowledge inferiority. See Peter Langtoft, p. 97.

And myrty tyrauntes, from here ryalle see
He hath availed and y-put adoun.

He nold availe neither hood ne hat,
Ne abide no man for his curteisie.

Chaucer, Cant. T. 3134.

(3) To loosen; to shake. Lord Surrey has the expression "with raynes availed," explained loosened in Warton's Hist. Eng. Poet. iii. 31, but our second meaning is perhaps the best.

(4) To assault. Skinner.

(3) The herb harefoot. It was used in cookery, as in a recipe in the Forme of Cury, p. 13, which the original, MS. Addit. 5016, seems to read avante. See Reliq. Antiq. i. 55; Prompt. Parv. pp. 17, 266; Tusser, p. 118; Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 5. Markham, in his Countrie Farme, ed. 1616, p. 182, says "costmarie and avens are verie pleasant herbes to give a savour like spice in pottage and salads." The fend anserd with avarysy,

MS. Ashmole 61, f. 85.

AVAST. A sea term, meaning stop, hold, enough. It always precedes some orders or conversation. See Tooke's Diversions of Purley, p. 573; Skinner, in v. Tooke says that Dr. Johnson's interpretations, which I have here adopted, are erroneous, but such are its ordinary uses by sailors. Johnson's etymology from Ital. and Span. Basta is sufficiently plausible.

AVAUNCY. To advance; to raise.

For I thanke to avauncy myne,
And wel the more schal be here pynne.

MS. Addit. 10036, f. 49.

Of the lord Sir Degrevant.

Sir Degrevant, Lincoln MS.

AVAUNTANCE. Boasting.

The vice cleid avauntance,
With pride hath take his acquaintance.

Peter Langtoft, p. 194.

AVAUNTLAY. Under the old system of hunting it was customary to send one or two couples of hounds, with a man, to several points where it was expected the game would pass. When the deer or other animal came up these hounds were uncoupled. See Sir H. Dryden's notes to Twici, p. 44. Relay properly means any of these sets of hounds; but avauntrelay, or, more commonly, avauntlay, those which, when a hart was unharboured, were a-head of him. See further observations on this subject in a curious work, entitled the Booke of Hunting, 4to. Lond. 1586.

AVEL. (1) The awn or beard of barley. East.

(2) To tear away. Bronne.

AVELACE. Explained by Skinner, "the rings or gymbes of a bag;" but conjectured by him to be a mistake for amelace, q. v.

AVELONG. Elliptical; oval. It is translated by oblongus, in the Prompt. Parv. p. 17. Carr, in his Craven Glossary, conjectures it to be a corruption of oblong, and a correspondent suggests to me half-Long; but the form avelonge, in the Middlehill MS. of the Promptorium, seems to warrant Mr. Way's derivation from A.-S. Awoh. Major Moor says, "Workmen—reapers or mowers—approaching the side of a field not perpendicular or parallel to their line of work, will have an unequal portion t do—the excess or deficiency is called avellony work.”

AVENE. An ear of corn. This is the form of the word avena in the Prompt. Parv. p. 18. "Avenae cyles" is translated by the French avesates, in Walter de Bibbesworth, *Reliq. inform; to teach. " Avise you well," i.e. consider well what you are about, is a frequent phrase in the old romances. In the sense of
"to inform," it is used by Shakespeare,
Merry Wives of Windsor, i. 4, where Mistress Quickly says to Simple, "Are you avis'd o' that?" a provincial mode of confirming any observation. See also the Towneley Mysteries, pp. 61, 170. " Aviseth you," Chaucer, Cant.
T. 3185, look to yourselves, take care of your-quickly after his heat and travalle, and upon it growing cold, and not being walked, doth beget the avives, which doe but little differ from the disease called the king's-evil, because as well in beasts as in man, the king's-evil commeth of too much cooling of water, house of religion had of the advowson or patronage thereof, similar to the right of presentation belonging to those who built, or en-these patrons had the sole nomination of the abbot or prior, either by direct investiture, or delivery of a pastoral staff; or by immediate presentation to the diocesan; or if a free election were left to the religious foundation, a from the patron, and the election was to be confirmed by him. Kennett, quoted in Boucher.

AZOCK. The mercury of metal, an alchemical term. It is used by Ben Jonson, in the Alchemist, ii. 1. It may not be out of place to mention that Ben may have taken this and other technical words from MS. Sloane 313, an alchemical MS. which formerly belonged to him, and has his name on the first page. AZURE-BYSE. Among some curious receipts in MS. Sloane 2584, p. 3, we are told that "Jif thou wilt prove azure-byse, whether it be good or bade, take a pensel or a penne, and drawe smalle rewles upon blewes lettres with that ceruse, and yif thi ceruse be noyt clere white bote dede fade, then is the blewes noyt fyne."

B. "To know a B from a battledoor," an old phrase, generally implying, according to Nares, a very slight degree of learning, or the being hardly able to distinguish one thing from another. It is sometimes found in early printed works, as if it should be thus written, "to know A. B. from a battledoor," an instance of which occurs in Taylor's Workes, 1630, ii. 59.

You shall not neede to buy booke; no, scorne to distinguish a B. from a battledoor; onely looke that your eares be long enough to reach our rudiments, and you are made for ever. Guis Horne-booke, 1609, p. 3.

—many subtil compassings;

As babeuries and pinnacles,
Imageries and tabernacles.

House of Fame, iii. 69.

Urry reads barbicans, but see Stevenson's additions to Boucher, in v. The latter writer wishes to connect this word with babewyns, an ancient term for grotesque figures executed in silver work.

BABEWYNE. A baboon. Maunderville.

BABIES-HEADS. A kind of toy for children. See the Book of Rates, 1675, p. 24.

BABIES-IN-THE-EYES. The miniature reflection of himself which a person sees in the pupil of another's eye on looking closely into it, was sportively called a little baby, and our old poets make it an employment of lovers to look for them in each others eyes. See Rich's Honestie of this Age, p. 49; Brand's Pop Antiq., iii. 25; Nares, in v.

When I look babies in thine eyes,

Here Venus, there Adonis lies.

BABLACK. A name given to two free-schools at Coventry and Warwick. See Cooke's Guide to Warwick Castle, 1841, p. 93. The term is derived from a piece of land at Coventry formerly so called, and on which the bablack school there is now situated. The boys are clothed in yellow and blue, and perhaps the bablack school at Warwick is so called because a similar uniform has been adopted. It also appears from Sharp's Cov. Myst., pp. 146, 179, 187, that there was formerly a monastic institution at Coventry of the same name, and most likely on the same spot.

BABLATIVE. Talkative.

MS. Cantab. Ff. ii. 38, f. 241.

BABY. According to Minshew, a "puppet for children." The word constantly occurs as a child's plaything, a toy, and is still in use in the North for a picture, especially such as would amuse children. So in the French Schoole-Maister, 1631, f. 98, "Shall we buy a babie or two for our children for pastime?" See also the Book of Rates, p. 24; Malone's Shakespeare, xiii. 108; Cleaveland's Poems, p. 64; Brit. Bibl., ii. 399; Du Bartas, p. 3; Florio, in v. Bambola, Bamba, Cucca, Dondola, Pipida; Cotgrave, in v. Poupette; Baret's Alvearie, B. 7, 8. A Bartlemy Fair doll is often mentioned as a Bartholomew baby. Compare the Captain, i. 3,—

BACHELOR'S-BUTTONS. The campion flower.

According to Grey, Notes on Shakespeare, i. 107, there was an ancient custom amongst country fellows of carrying the flowers of this plant in their pockets, to know whether they should succeed with their sweethearts, and they judged of their good or bad success by their growing or not growing there. To draw a balk is to draw a straight furrow across a field.

This balk is often used in the poorer cottages to hang various articles on, a custom alluded to in Chancer, Cant. T., 3626; Hawkins' Engl. Dram. i. 171. A similar beam in a stable or outhouse is also called a balk, as in Topsell's Foure Footed Beasts, p. 395; Kennett's Glossary, MS. When all had been taken in turn, the last couple were said to be in hell, and the game ended. BEVEL. (1) A sloped surface in masonry. Also a verb, to cut an angle. Any slope is called a bevel in some dialects. "Though they themselves be bevel," bent in an angle, Shak. BEVER. (1) An intermediate refreshment between breakfast and dinner. The term is now applied to the afternoon snack of harvestmen and other labourers, and perhaps may be explained more correctly as any refreshment taken between the regular meals. See Beaumont and Fletcher, i. 20; Ford, i. 392; Florio, in v. Merénda; Cooper, in v. Antecessarium; Stanihurst's Descr. of Ireland, p. 18; Nomenclator, p. 79; Sir John Oldcastle, p. 42; Howell, sect. 43; Middleton's Works, iv. 427, v. 141. Sometimes refreshments of drink, or drinkings, were called bevers; but potations were not bevers, as Mr. Dyce asserts.

(2) To tremble; to quiver. North. See Brockett and Palmer. Beveren is wrongly explained "flowing" in Syr Gawayne, as will appear from Morte d'Arthur, i. 22. It is possibly from A.-S. biflan.

BEVERACHE. Drink; liquor. It was formerly the custom to drink, says one editor, when making a bargain. Is this fashion obsolete?

MS. Addit. 11307, f. 95.

BEVERAGE. Hearne, gloss. Rob. Glouc. p. 623, explains beverage, "beveridge, reward, consequence," and he adds that it is "a word now in use for a refreshment between dinner and supper, and we use the word when any one pays for wearing new cloaths." That it is synonymous with bever appears clearly from Holinshed, Descr. Scot. p. 22. As to the other meaning, "beveridge money" is still demanded on the first appearance of a new suit of clothes, and a forfeit is a button cut off from them if the wearer is so injudicious as to refuse. In Devon, a composition of cider, water, and spice, is called beverage.

In an old list of companies of animals in Junii Etym. in v. Chirre, "a bevy of ladies" is inserted; and Grey has fully illustrated the phrase, Notes on Shakespeare, ii. 74. The fat of the roebuck and roe was called bevy-grease. See Dryden's Twici, p. 21; Gent. Rec. ii. 77.

See Tale of the Basyn, xxi.; Wright's Seven Sages, p. 17, "scho brayd hit a-don at on brayd," i. e. she threw it down at one start or movement.

It seems to mean craft, deceit, in Greene's Works, ii. 268; and Shakespeare has the adjective braid, generally explained deceitful, and Mr. Dyce thinks it means lustful, Remarks, p. 73; but perhaps we may adopt the less objectionable explanation, quick, hasty. BRAKE. (1) To beat. North.

(2) Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033, defines brake, "a small plat or parcel of bushes growing by themselves." This seems to be the right meaning in Mids. Night's Dream, iii. 1, although a single bush is also called a brake. In Palmer's Devonshire Glossary, p. 32, "spinetum, dumetum, a bottom overgrown with thick tangled brushwood." A brake is also a little space with rails on each side, which Mr. Hunter thinks is the Shakespearian term, an explanation rather at variance with Quince's "hawthorn brake;" and moreover, the brake mentioned by this commentator from Barnaby Googe would only be found in cultivated land, not in the centre of the "palace wood." When Puck says, "through bog, through bush, through brake, through briar," an expression, the latter part of which is repeated word for word in Drayton's Nymphidia, we clearly see that Kennett's explanation exactly suits the context. So also when Demetrius says, ii. 2, "I'll run from thee, and hide me in the brakes," can these be little enclosed spots in the middle of the wood in which he is followed by Helena? There is a spot near Broadway, co. Worc., filled with hawthorn bushes and short underwood still called the Brakes. See also Florio, in v. Bronceos, "full of brakes, briars or bushes."

It is sometimes played on the top of a hat with two nuts, when one tries to break the nut of the other with his own, or with two rows of hazel nuts strung on strings through holes bored in the middle. The last is probably the more modern game, our first method being clearly indicated by Cotgrave, in v. Chastelet, "the childish game cobnut, or (rather) the throwing of a ball at a heape of nuts, which done, the thrower takes as many as he hath hit or scattered." See further particulars in Thoms' Anec. and Trad. p. 95. aceræ, vineolus," Huloet, 1552. Forby has cock-farthing in a similar sense, a term of endearment used to a little boy. "To be dandiyd any longer upon his father's knee, or to be any longer taken for his father's cockney, or miayon, or darlyng," Palgrave's Acotastus, 1540. The voracious Tusser says, p. 276, "some cockneys with cocking are made very fools;" and according to Dekker, Knight's Conjuring, p. 29, the term is derived from the cockering or indulgent mothers. A cockney was also a person who sold fruit and greens, qui vendit collibia, Prompt. Parv. p. 281. Dicitur etiam collibista qui vendit collibia, Joan. de Janua. The word is also stated to signify a little cook, but I find no certain authority for such an interpretation. It was frequently used as a term of contempt, as in Chaucer, Cant. T. 4206; Hall's Poems, 1646, repr. p. 28; Twelfth Night, iv. 1. Some writers trace the term with much probability to the imaginary land of Cokaygne, so curiously described in the well-known poem printed by Hickee. Florio has, "Cocagna, as Cucagna, lubbarland;" and a ballad in the Roxburghe collection is entitled, "An Invitation to Lubberland, the land of Cokaigne." See Catalogue of B. H. Bright's Library, 1845, p. 26. To these the lines quoted by Camden, in which the "King of Cokeney" is mentioned, afford a connecting link, and the modern meaning of cockney, one born in Cokaigne, or Lubberland, a burlesque name for London, seems to be clearly deduced. The King of the Cockneys was a character in the Christmas festivities at Lincoln's Inn in 1517, Brand's Pop. Antiq. i. 295; and Fuller tells us that a person who was absolutely ignorant of rural matters was called a cockney, which is most probably the meaning of the term in Lear, ii. 4, and is still retained. What Bow-bells have to do with it is another question. In the London Prodigal, p. 15, a country fellow says to another, "A and well sed cocknell, and boe-bell too." See also Beaumont and Fletcher, iv. 186, "Bow-bell suckers," i. e. sucking children born within the sound of Bow-bell.—But a cocknell is properly a young cock, as appears from Holly band's Dictionary, 1593; which also seems to be the meaning of cokeney in Piers Ploughman, p. 134, and, as Mr. Wright remarks, in Heywood's Proverbs, but a lean chicken was so called, as appears from a passage quoted in Malone's Shakespeare, x. 117. Florio mentions cockanegs in v. Caccherelli, and cockney's-eggs may not be therefore so great an absurdity as is commonly supposed. In Devonshire cockernomy is the name of a small cock's egg, which if hatched is said to produce a cockatrice or something exceedingly noxious. A cock's egg, according to Forby, is an abortive egg without a yolk. The absurd tale of the cock neighing, related by Minshew and traditionally remembered, may deserve a passing notice.

A young heyre, or cockney, that is his mothers darling, if hee have playde the waste-good at the innes of the court, or about London, fallies in a quarrelling humor with his fortune, because she made him not king of the Indies.

"A kind of sport or play with an oyster shell or a stone throwne into the water, and making circles yer it sinke, &c. it is called a ducke and a drake, and a half-pennie cake," Nomenclator, p. 299. It is remarkable that the same words are still in use. If the stone emerges only once, it is a duck, and increasing in the following order:—

2. A duck and a drake.

3. And a half-penny cake.

4. And a penny to pay the old baker;

5. A hop and a scotch

Is another notch,

6. Slitherum, slatherum, take her.

Dun out of the mire, an old rural pastime described by Gifford, Ben Jonson, vii. 283. Dun in the mire, i. e. embarrassed or reduced to a strait. Dun is the mouse, a proverbial saying of rather vague signification, alluding to the colour of the mouse; but frequently employed with no other intent than that of quibbling on the word done. See Nares, in v. It seems sometimes to be equivalent to the phrase still as a mouse. To dun, to be importunate for the payment of an account, a word that came into use in the seventeenth century, and is said to have its origin from Dun, a famous hangman. This personage is alluded to in Cotton's Works, ed. 1734, p. 117, but I think the explanation doubtful. To ride the dun horse, to dun a debtor, is given in the Craven Glossary, l. 123.

"Glad under gore," Wright's Lyric Poetry, p. 26. See also Wright's Pol. Linc. f. 283 is a receipt "for blered eghne and gundy;" and gunny eyes are explained sore running eyes in the Yorkshire Dialogue, 1697, p. 100. The gound is well explained by Milles to be oculorum gramia qua ab oculis distillat, and if the old text in the passage in Timon of A., l. 1, "Our Poecie is as a Gowne," ed. 1623, p. 80, is in any way correct, we have in this word gound, or gownde, as it is spelt in Pr. Parv. p. 206, the genuine old reading, which Tieck tries to make sense of in a different manner. The distillat of Milles answers to the uses or oozes of Shakespeare.

There is a proverb, and a prayer withall,
 That we may not to three strange places fall;
 From Hell, from Halifax, from Hell, 'tis thus,
 From all these three, Good Lord, deliver us.
 This praying proverb's meaning to set downe,
 Men doe not wish deliverance from the towne:
 The town's nam'd Kingston, Hal's the furious river,
 And from Hulle dangers, I say, Lord, deliver!
 At Halifax the law so sharpe doth deale,
 That whoso more then 13. pence doth steale,
 They have a jyn that wondrous quicke and well,
 Sends thieves all headlesse unto heav'n or hell.
 From Hell each man eyes, Lord, deliver me,
 Because from Hell can no Redemption be:
 Men may escape from Hell and Halifax,
 But sure in Hell there is a heavier taxa.
 Let each one for themselves in this agree,
 And pray, From Hell, good Lord, deliver me!

Taylor's Works, 1830, ll. 12-13.

Taylor, the Water Poet, in the same tract, mentions Hull cheese. It is, he says, "much like a loafe out of a brewers basket; it is composed of two simples, mault and water, in one compound, and is cousin germane to the mightiest ale in England."

HUMOURS. Manners; qualities; oddities. The term was constantly used with various shades of sense in our early dramatists. A tipsy person was said to be in his humours. Ben Jonson has given a capital history of the word, which seems to have been imitated by the writer of the following epigram:
 Aske Humors what a feather he doth wear,
 It is his humour (by the Lord) he'll swear,
 Or what he doth with such a horse-palle locke,
 Or why upon a whore he spends his stocke,—

He hath a humour doth determine so :
 Why in the stop-throte fashion he doth goe,
 With scarfe about his necke, hat without band,—
 It is his humour. Sweet sir, understand
 What cause his purse is so extreame distrest
 That oftentimes is scarcely penny-blest ;
 Only a humour. If you question why
 His tougue is ne'er unfurnish'd with a lye,—
 It is his humour too he doth protest :
 Or why with sergeants he is so opprest,
 That like to ghosts they haunt him ev'rie day ;
 A rascal humour doth not love to pay.
 Object why bootes and spurres are still in season,
 His humour answers, humour is his reason.
 If you perceive his wits in wetting ahrunke,
 It cometh of a humour to be drunke.
 When you behold his looks pale, thin, and poore,
 The occasion is his humour and a whoore :
 And every thing that he doth undertake,
 It is a veine for senseless humour's sake.

They are in some degree taken from Sir H. Dryden's edition of Twici, 4to. 1844, and most of the terms will also be found in Blome's Gentleman's Recreations. It should be recollected that, in hunting, there is a peculiar phraseology adapted to each separate animal.

HUNTING-THE-WREN. The custom still prevalent in Ireland, the Isle of Man, and some other places, on St. Stephen's Day, of hunting the wren, is one of very considerable antiquity. Its origin is only accounted for by tradition. Aubrey, having mentioned the last battle fought in the North of Ireland between the Protestants and the Papists, says:—"Near the same place a party of the Protestants had been surprised sleeping by the Popish Irish, were it not for several wrens that just wakened them by dancing and pecking on the drums as the enemy were approaching. For this reason the wild Irish mortally hate these birds to this day, calling them the devil's servants, and killing them wherever they can catch them; they teach their children to thrust them full of thorns; you'll see sometimes on holidays a whole parish running like madmen from hedge to hedge a wren-hunting." In the Isle of Man, on St. Stephen's Day, the children of the villagers procure a wren, attach it with a string to a branch of holly, decorate the branch with pieces of riband that they beg from the various houses, and carry it through the village, singing the following ridiculous lines:—

We'll hunt the wren, says Robin to Bobbin;
We'll hunt the wren, says Richard to Robin;
We'll hunt the wren, says Jack o' th' land;
We'll hunt the wren, says every one.

In the brewery pan, says every one.

HUNT'S-UP. A tune played on the horn under the windows of sportsmen very early in the morning, to awaken them. Hence the term was applied to any noise of an awakening or alarming nature. "A hunt is up or musike plaid under ones window in a morning," Florio, p. 304. "Reveille, a hunts-up, or morning song for a new-married wife the day after the marriage," Cotgrave. "Huntsup, a clamour, a turbulent outcry," Craven GL. One ballad of the hunt's-up commences with the following lines:—

The hunt is up, the hunt is up,
And now it is almost day;
And he that's a-bed with another man's wife,
It's time to get him away.

Mr. Black discovered a document in the Rolls-house, from which it appeared that a song of the Hunt's up was known as early as 1536, when information was sent to the council against one John Hogon, who, "with a crowd or a fyddyll," sung a song with some political allusions to that tune. Some of the words are given in the information:

The hunt is up, the hunt is up, &c.

IPOCRAS. (1) Hippocrates.

And ynto prison put he was;

And now begynneth the tale of Ipcras.

MS. Cantab. Ff. ii. 38, f. 138.

(2) This beverage has been already mentioned, in v. Hippocras, but some further explanation may, perhaps, not be unacceptable. The manner of making it is thus described in a MS. of medical and other receipts—"To make ypcrasse for lords with gynger, synamon, and graynes, sugour, and turesoll: and for comyn pepull gynger canell, longe peper, and clarifyed hony. Loke ye have feyre pewter basens to kepe in your pouders and your ypcrasse to ren yune, and to vj. basens ye muste have vj. renners on a perche, as ye may here see; and loke your poudurs and your gynger be redy and well paryd or hit be beton into poudur. Gynger colombyne is the best gynger; mayken and balandyne be not so good nor holsom. Now thou knowist the propertees of ypcras. Your poudurs must be made everyche by themselfe, and leid in a bladder in store, hange sure your perche with bagge, and that no bagge twayche other, but basen twayche basen. The fyrst bagge of a galon, every on of the other a potell. Fyrst do into a basen a galon or ij. of red wyne; then put in your pouders, and do it into the renners, and so into the seconde bagge. Then take a pece, and assay it; and yef hit be enything to stronge of gynger, alay it withe synamon; and yef it be strong of synamon, alay it withe sugour cuta. And thus schall ye make perfyte ypcras. And loke your bagges be of boltell clothe, and the mouthes opyn, and let it ren in v. or vj. bagges on a perche, and under every bagge a clene basen. The draftes of the spies is good for sewies. Put your ypcrase into a stanche wessell, and bynde upon the mouthe a bleddur strongly; then serve forthe waffers and ypcrase." This is printed in the Forme of Cury, p. 161, but I have had no opportunity of seeing the original manuscript, and I am afraid it has not been quite correctly copied in some few instances. Another receipt, much more simple and intelligible, is given in Arnold's Chronicle:—"Take a quart of red wyne, an ounce of synamon, and halfe an unce of gynger; a quarter of an ounce of greynes, and long peper, and halfe a pounce of suger; and brose all this, and than put them in a bage of wullen clothe, made therefore, with the wyne; and let it hange over a vessel, tyll the wyne be rune thorowe." A third receipt is given by Cogan,—"Take of cinamon two ounces, of ginger half an ounce, of grains a quarter of an ounce: punne them grosse, and put them into a pottle of good claret or white wine, with half a pound of sugar: let all steep together a night at the least, close covered in some bottle of glasse, pewter, or stone; and when you would occupy it, cast a thinne linnen cloath or a piece of a boulder over the mouth of the bottle, and let so much run through as you will drink at that time, keeping the rest close, for so it will keep both the spirit, odor, and virtue of the wine and spices." Ipcras seems to have been a great favourite with our ancestors, being served up at every entertainment, public or private. It generally made a part of the last course, and was taken immediately after dinner, with wafers or some other light biscuits. According to Pegge, it was in use at St. John's College, Cambridge, as late as the eighteenth century, and brought in at Christmas at the close of dinner.

IVOURE. Ivory. (A.-N.)

With golde and isours that so brighte schone,
That alle aboute the bewit men may se.

Lodgate, Rastolinson MS. f. 34.

IVY. Aubrey mentions a curious custom, which I believe is now quite obsolete. "In several parts of Oxfordshire," he says, "particularly at Lanton, it is the custom for the maid-servant to ask the man for ivy to dress the house, and if the man denies or neglects to fetch in ivy, the maid steals away a pair of his breeches, and nails them up to the gate in the yard or highway."

IVY-BUSH. The ivy-bush was formerly hung out at taverns, to signify that good wine was sold there. The following from a rare work by Braithwaite, Law of Drinking, 12mo. Lond. 1617, is sufficiently curious to be given entire:

A president of binding any one apprentice to the known trade of the Ivy-bush, or Red-lettice; taken out of the ancient register-books of Poitine.

Be it knowne unto all men by these presents, that I Ralph Rednose of Running-Spiggot in the countie of Turne-Tap, bowser, am tide and fast bound unto Francis Fiery-face in all up-carouses, in twenty pots sterling; that is to say, not by the common can or jug now used, but by the ancient full top and good measure, according to the laudable custome of the Red Lettice of Nip-scalpe; to the which said payment well and truly to be made, I bind me, my heires, ale-squires, pot-companions, lick-wimbles, malt-wormes, vine-fretters, and other faithfull drunkards, firmly by these presents: Dated the thirteenth of Scant-sober, and sealed with O I am etche, and delivered with a bowle and a broome in the presence of the ostler, the tapater, and the chamberlaine.

IVY-GIRL. A writer in the Gentleman's Magazine, quoted by Brand, i. 35, mentions a sort of sport used in Kent during the month of February, where the girls were burning in triumph a figure which they had stolen from the boys, called a holly-boy, whilst the boys were doing the same with another figure called an ivy-girl. All this ceremony was accompanied with loud huzzas, noise, and acclamations. The writer adds, "what it all means

I cannot tell, although I inquired of several of the oldest people in the place, who could only answer that it had always been a sport at this season of the year."

I-WIS. Certainly; truly; undoubtedly; to wit; especially; besides. (A.-S.) After the fifteenth century, this sense of the word seems to have been lost, and it appears to have been regarded as a pronoun and a verb, I know.

Berafrynde, I-seid Adam,
I-seges thou art a wytty man,
Thou shalt wel dryak therefore.

MS. Cantab. FL. v. 48, l. 48.

I am always troubled with the litherlurden,

I love so to linger;

I am so lasy, the mosse groweth an Inch thick on the top of my finger!

But if you list to knowe my name,
I wote I am to well-knownen to some men;

My name is Idleness, the flower
Of the frying-pan!

My mother had ij. whelps at one litter,
Both borne in Lent;

So we ware both put into a mussellbote,
And came sailing in a sowes yeare ower sea into Kent. Marriage of Wit and Wisdom, 1578.
