

Leicester,
Dec. 23, '46

10

My dear friend Garrison;

Very few things in life are so pleasant to me as to know that you remember me so constantly, so kindly. A new reminder of it, certainly not needed to make me aware of the too kind appreciation you make of anything in the past between us, has just come to my hand, — the beautiful volume of ^{Hurd's} Houghton's ed. of Crabb Robinson's Diary, — an exceedingly interesting volume, and one of much value to those who would know the people intimately of the large circle in which he moved, in the entire frankness, which I am sure you would have me use, I will add that I own the three volumes of the English edition, - the precious gift to me of our dear Richard D. Webb, soon after he returned home from America.

As, therefore, this new volume's place in my library, - so gladly given to it otherwise, - is already filled, I think I may assume that you will allow me to exchange it. I shall however wait until you tell me that I may.

You know, dear G., that I felt long ago that you should not give me more. The evidences of the affectionate regard, of yourself, and your children, for me & mine, abound in my house. But I cannot, with much heartiness, ^{or veto} negate the tokens of a regard which is so much valued by me.

I mailed to you last evening, a copy of the Worcester "Spy", containing Geo. F. Hoar's Speech on presenting the Statues of John Winthrop & Samuel Adams, &c.
Please read it all. I am sure you will feel well repaid. A finer portrait of "the Puritan" was never drawn, I think; and his rapid look into the Gallery of the honored names of Massachusetts interested us here exceedingly.

Ever truly Yrs

Saml May

We heartily reciprocate the "Merry Christmas & Happy New Year" for you all.

