TOUGH CHICKEN.—"Tough, madam, tough, did you say?" said the irascible boarder to the landlady, as he was trying to carve what was ostensibly a chicken—"Yes'm; and were I to give my opinion on the fowl, I should say it was old enough to have scratched up the seeds of original sin when they were first planted."

A Painter was employed in painting a West Indianman in the Thames, on a stage suspended under her stern. The Captain, who had just got into the boat alongside to go ashore, ordered the cabin-boy to let the painter go, (the rope that held the boat). The boy instantly went aft and let go the rope by which the painter's stage was held. The Captain, angry at the boy's delay, cried out,

"Confound you for a lazy dog! why don't you let go the painter?"

"He's gone, sir," replied the boy, "pots and all!"

An old lady in Arkansas had a great aversion to rye, and never could eat it in any form. "Till of late," said she, "they have got to making it into whisky, and I find that I can bow and then worry down a little."

A lady told her husband she had read the Art of Love on purpose to be agreeable to him. "I had rather have your love without art," replied he.

One of the best "hits" ever made at an impropriety in a lady's dress was made by Talleyrand. During the revolution, when asked by a lady his opinion of her dress, he replied, "It began too late and ended too soon."

A garrulous fop, who had annoyed, by his frivolous remarks, his partner in the ball-room, among other empty nothings, asked whether "she had ever had her ears pierced?" "No," was the reply, "but I've often had them bored!"

IN THE SLAUGHTERING BUSINESS.—When Gen. Longstreet was passing through Maryland, a lady asked of a high private in his army, "What division is his?" "It's Gen. Longstreet's," replied our friend. "Well, I hope they may all be slaughtered," replied the lady. "As to that, madam, I want you to understand that Gen. Longstreet is in the slaughtering business himself."

A witty fellow slipped down on an icy pavement. While sitting, he muttered, have no desire to see the town burned down, but I sincerely wish the streets were laid in ash."

An inquisitive priest having asked a young lady her name in confessional, she replied, with as much of wit as of modesty, "Father, my name is not a sin."

A lawyer, not over young nor handsome, examining a young lady witness in court, determined to perplex her, and said: "Miss, upon my word, you are very pretty!" The young lady very promptly replied: "I would return the compliment, sir, if I were not an oath."

An elderly maiden lady requests the insertion of the following:
BAD TASTE—Pretty young girls kissing widowers' children.

A GOOD ONE.—As our army was passing through Maryland last fall, a union lady addressed a soldier connected with a Lynchburg company, thus:

"Why don't your men dress neat like our soldiers, instead of being in rags? It's a disgrace for Jeff. Davis to let you go about in this manner."

"That's easily accounted for," said the soldier, "when Jeff. Davis sends us to slaughter hogs, he don't allow us to wear our nice clothes."

A friend of ours, in Jackson's army, tells us that when Jackson makes the discovery that his liners are dirty, he orders his boys to charge on the nearest Yankee regiment, and after driving them away, changes his dirty clothes for theirs, leaving his own with his compliments, for the consideration of their laundry-masters.

"Paddy why don't you get your ears cropped—they are too long for a man?" "And yours," replied Pat, "ought to be lengthened—they are too short for an ass."

A Texan and an Illinois farmer were speaking of raising corn, &c., and the Illinois man was boasting of the superior yield of prairie land, and telling large stories, as all western men do, to which the Texan replied: "I'll tell you what, stranger, they make large corn in your charing, but it ain't a circumstance to what we raise in the Colorado bottoms. Why the corn there averages thirty feet in height, with twelve ears to a stalk, and a gourd full of shelled corn on the top."

CURE FOR IMPEDENCE.—A city buck visited the Shakers at Lebanon some time since, and as he was wandering through the village, he encountered a stout, hearty specimen of the sect, and thus accosted him:

"Well, Broadbrim, are you much of a Shaker?" "Nay," said the other, "not much, but I can do a little that way." So he seized the astonished man by the collar and nearly shook him out of his boots.

A broker, not long ago, when escorting home a fair damsel asked her what sort of money she liked best. "Of course the blushing beauty instantly suggested matri-mony." "What interests does it bring?" inquired the man of current funds and western wild-cat documents. "If properly invested," faltered the fair charmer, "if properly invested it will double the original stock every two years."

Rosseau tells us, that "persons who know little talk a great deal, and those who know a great deal say very little."

Never attempt to copy the manners of another; such second-hand imitations always look foolish.

Adhere most scrupulously to truth, and labor to preserve the strictest integrity, simplicity, and serenity.

Do well, but don't boast of it. For that will lessen the commendation you might otherwise have deserved.

Insult not another for the want of a talent you possess; he may have others which you want. Praise your friends; and let your friends praise you.

He who knows the world, will not be too bashful. He who knows himself, will not be impudent.

You need not tell the truth unless to those who have a right to know it all. But let all you tell be truth.

Prosperity makes many friends, but adversity tries them.

Never speak evil of any one, on any pretence whatever.
