

Bridges

The Humours of the Court: A Comedy in Three Acts

THE LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA LOS ANGELES Plays by Robert Bridges.

THE HUMOURS OF THE COURT

A COMEDY IN THREE ACTS

ROBERT BRIDGES.

Published by George Bell & Sons, Covent Garden, and J. & E. BUMPUS, LIM., HOLBORN BARS.

ТНЕ

HUMOURS OF THE COURT.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.

RICHARD	1	 		Duke of Milan (RICARDO).
FREDERI	CK	 		Secretary to Diana.
Sir GREG	OR Y	 		Her Major-domo.
ST. NICH	OLAS	 		A courtier : suitor of Laura.
TRISTRA	M	 •••	• • •	Servant to Frederick.
DIANA		 		Countess of Belflor.
LAURA		 		Her adopted sister : daughter to Gregory.
FLORA		 		Maid to Diana.

MARCELA, DOROTHY, KATHARINE, ROSE. Maids.

Scene at Belflor, the residence of Diana.

Duration of time, three days : one to each Act.

ACT I. Terrace before the palace in the gardens of Belflor. Chairs set out. FREDERICK and RICARDO. TRISTRAM stands at a little distance, edging up to overhear. FREDERICK. WWO OUR secret's safe with me. I should be hurt To think that there was any man on earth Whom you could trust before me : and if my place Here in the court can help you in your love, Reckon upon me. R. I do, and hope some day It may be in my good fortune to repay you For such a favour. F. Favour ! what a word To an old friend ! R. Nay, do not misconstrue me. F. I own I am jealous, Richard, of the time We have lived apart. There was a touch of fear Mixed with my joy, when you broke in upon me This morning, that the ten years had not spared me.	Vou find me changed ? Say, doth my countenance Wear the smug livery of the world? \mathcal{R} . Nay, friend ; I see no trace of that. \mathcal{F} . Then I remember While I have played you have been within the mill : And should I beat your coat there must fly out Clonds of that dusty, dammed experience. Is not that so, your grace? \mathcal{R} . Go on : provoke me As you were wont. \mathcal{F} . The best remembrance, Richard, Drowns in the world : and how should college days Live in your memory as they do in mine? 'Tis no such histre to your brilliant life That we were comrades in Utopia, That commonwealth of study and idleness, Where sport, adventure, poetry and music Were sauced with virgin-juice, a dish for gods. \mathcal{R} . As if I could forget ! \mathcal{F} . Ay, but the spirit 1 Think you we should have spoken of favours then ? In those days, Richard, we were used to think Our teachers never had tasted life like ours ;

Act I.

149

If any guessed I were the Duke of Milan, Their staid propriety not logically The venture which I make would be my ruin : All that I ask is secrecy. In this letter Deducible from essences as fresh As angels of the sunrise. Shall the boys Now say the same of us? By heaven you fright me: I have written the Countess from myself, as Duke, Recommendation of myself, the bearer, The heart of manhood not to outlive a dog ! As one Ricardo, begging for the same Then my old grudge against you. Protection in her court for some few days. R.What was that ? F. Your rank, which first drew us apart: but now Present me as a stranger : had I been such To meet again and have you in my debt You could not have refused. F. Trust me to serve you : Is favour, by your leave, above repayment. But give your letter to the major-domo : R. Still as proud as a peacock He attends her in the grounds; when they come by Could I do you a service. F_{\cdot} But can I? See, I am here the Countess' secretary : I'll point him out. Better know nought of me. What think you of the gardens i To make believe that you are a stranger to me R. All this hour Were breach of trust. I have seemed in Paradise : and the fair prospect But love makes tricks of crimes. R.Hath quieted my spirit: I think I sail Into the windless haven of my life F. And if she has often seen you, how suppose She will not know you ? R. 'Tis so long ago To-day with happy omens : as the stir That now in my disguise I have no fear. And sleep-forbidding rattle of the journey Was like my life till now. Here all is peace : The still fresh air of this October morning, You did not know me. F_{*} That was but your beard. With its resigning odours ; the rich hues Wherein the gay leaves revel to their fall ; The deep blue sky ; the misty distances, R. She hath not seen my beard : and 'tis impossible She should suspect. She has treated me all along 110 With such disdain, that I, in love as I am, Can scarce believe I venture ; but-I am mad. And splashing fountains; and I thought I heard Nothing could keep me back. Hear all my story, A magic service of meandering music And then see how I am changed. 'Tis three years Threading the glades and stealing on the lawns. Was I mistaken? since I saw her first at Rome. His Holiness Re-enter Tristram unperceived ; he stands by listening Gave a reception ; I with some of the guests at back, as if waiting to be observed. Had strayed to view the galleries : suddenly Out of a group before me-as if a Grace, F. Nay, nay : there was music. That lived in Rafael's brain to mock his hand, But why the jocund morn so dissolutely 60 Forestalls the faint and lulling chants of eve Had stepped alive amongst us to rebuke I must explain. The Countess, whom you court, Our admiration of the fresco stuff-She turned and faced me. Hath an unwholesome temper ; what its nature You, when you have seen it, will be as like to guess Quick as I tell, I read my fate : I knew What I was born for. Love's first ecstasy Fooled me to a false security. That night As any other. She hath a restless spirit And eager ; and, what seems a sign of note, I wrote my passion; and by such presumption Offended. My after patience met with scorn, Suffers from jealousy without a cause. She is full of fancies : and hath, like a school-girl, My importunity anger. I then desisted, Trying if by absence I could work my cure. Drawn up a code of her peculiar notions, Whereby, in place of commonsense and manners, 70 She rules her petty court with tyrannies Of fine and forfeit. Then, although she lives Twelve months of trial bring me here to-day With no hope left but this ; that living near her Pampered with luxury, and hath a sense Her daily and familiar sight may blunt 130 My strained ideal passion; or if this O'ergreedy of all that's offered, yet she takes Her pleasure feverously, and pines in plenty. Quench not my fancy, it may serve to feed it Tis a derangement.—the music which you heard Was a diversion of my own contrivance With something tangible and wholesomer Than the day dreams of sick imagination. F. I wish your cure; for, to say truth, the Countess To pass the hour : the evil spirit within her Yields most to music. Is somewhat odd; as you will see yourself. R. 'Tis for my cure I come.-Your servant there, R. What you say is strange. 'Tis unaccountable. FMight he not hear us? T. (coming forward). And so you'd say, F. (to T.). Tristram, just look round lf you can see the Countess. Knew you the cause. T. (aside, going). What is there here now that I F_{*} Tristram! R. (aside). Now damn thi (To T.). Perhaps you know it, sir? T. I k may not know? Now damn this fellow That I am sent off? Who can this stranger be I know it, yes: So suddenly familiar with my master? But may not speak. And comes here for his cure ! Here to this haunt 140 Of women and lunatics ! I'll find him out. I bid you speak and show F. My friend your wisdom. [Exit singing to himself. My man is trusty and dull ; devoted to me. To your secrets then R. Excuse my caution : if we were overheard, -Add this. The Countess is in love.

4161 Ron

Act I. The Humours of the Court. 150 In love ! And warm with a noonray drenched in fire R. and F. My land of delight, my land of desire ! In love. D. I envy much the melancholy spirit Who wove that strain. The verses too were fetched R. and F. With whom? T. With whom . . Out of a deeper well than common passion R. But say with whom. Hath skill to draw from. Frederick, who is the poet Stay. I will say with whom. T. That I must love for this? 'Tis one to whom she dare not make avowal. 191 Love for my art F. F. Say whom you mean. Hath made your ladyship too generous T. Why, who but me ! Towards a most humble workman. 'Tis my own, F_{\cdot} The fool! D. Ah me ! what must it be to be a poet, We wish not for your jests. Where is the Countess? And in the ahandoned humour that men take with, T. She is coming by the lake, sir. To give forth ! O 'tis godlike ! but the music,-Stand aside, 'Tis that you excel in : it hath a melancholy We have business now. T. (aside, going). The fish bite very well : Which springs of love. The whole world sprang of love ; I hooked them both at first cast of my fly. 4 And art is but the praise the creature makes (Sings to himself.) To the Creator. 'Twould make us brothers, Richard. F. 350 200 R.D.True: and the best praise Brothers ?-how ? Is but love's echo. I mean you love some lady. She is very happy. Would I knew her name. F. Having your secret, I must give you mine. I also love a lady in the court, Secretly too, as you, though with success ; F. When I shall love a lady, and have means To court her, you shall hear gay music. And she is foster-sister to your lady. D.Means ! The prudery with which the Countess rules Is she so mercenary? F. Your ladyship Drave us to hide our liking at the first ; And as that grew, deception still kept pace, Must take this lady of your own creation Enhancing the romance of our delight With stolen intercourse. But these last days With all her faults. Love is a luxury 160 You may suspect in me when I have money A cloud hath risen : for the lady's father, (That's the old major-domo, whom I spoke of,) IIath been befooled to give his daughter away To spend in presents. D. Whom you love I know not : But whether it be a queen or peasant girl, 210 To a wreathed ass, a cousin of the Countess, 'Tis all one. Love exalteth above tank Who hath herself approved the match. You find me In this dilemma, whether to confess My love for Laura, —that's the lady's name-Or wealth; yet in Love's ritual 'twere well wished To express your homage fully. Ho, Sir Gregory ! Sir Gregory ! Braving the Countess' anger, or earry her off, G_{\bullet} Your ladyship ! And after sue for favour. (Music heard.) D. Give Frederick Hark ! here they come. A hundred ducats at my household charge. I'll tell you more hereafter. Ay, do : but now G. (to F.). What said my lady? F. (aside). An open insult. R.Forget not me. (Aside.) By Jove, he has capped T. (to G.). Thou'rt to give my master my story.-A hundred ducats for a wherewithal Diana's sister too: and I entrapped To make his lady presents. To aid in her elopement. F. (to T;). Silence, idiot. Enter Diana, Laura, Gregory, and St. Nicholas; T. He heard not : you may lose the money.G. My lady, with attendant musicians and singers, who go out 220 when the music is done. A gentleman from Milan. (Presenting R.) D. (half aside1). Milan, say you? MUSIC. I thought we had done with Milan. Fire of heaven, whose starry arrow, Queen of Belflor, R. Pierces the vcil of timeless night : This letter from the Duke explains my coming. Molten spheres, whose tempests narrow D. Welcome, sir, whencesoe'er: but if from Their floods to a beam of gentle light, Milan, To charm with a moonray quenched from fire Bringst thou this letter, or did it bring thee? The land of delight, the land of desire. R. 1 bring the letter, madam : and 'tis writ F. (to R.). That is the major-domo Gregory But in my favour. With the white locks, Take him aside, he is deaf. D_{r} Good : on that assurance (During next verse R. makes his way to G., and I'll read. (Opens letter.) they are seen talking aside during the other diulogue.) (F. has passed across to make way for G. and R., coming near Laura, front, side.) Music continued - -Smile of love-a flower planted, $L_{\tau}(t \sigma F_{\tau})$ You have my glove? Sprung in the garden of joy that art : ¹ The half-asides in the play in presence of Gregory are Eyes that shine with a glow enchanted, spoken either with indifference as to whether G, will hear, nr with confidence that he will not. Whose spreading fires encircle my heart,

Act I.] The Humours	of the Court.	151
F. Yes. L. When I drop the other,	In science and philosophy, I Such an assembly : we will ead
Exchange them secretly. 220	Make answer to the question I
D. (reading to audience). "The bearer, my servant Ricardo, having hurt his challenger in a duel, I beg	And that shall be of love. I'll Love is called bitter-sweet.	question wily for him a few days' protection in your court, till some		y my heart, 270 consequent rancour be appeased. Let my long silence and absence win for me this little grace."	A pretty question. May I spe D. In turn, in turn, Hark
With reason and good courtesy asked. Ricardo,	What is love's chiefest pair
Make your asylum here, Sir Gregory	Frederick?
Will tell you that such residence implies Certain restraints, in which we look to find	R . Am I to answer?	as our guest.
Compliance.	D. Ay, sir : y	ou must tell
(Laura drops a glove, which F. snatches up, and is	What, in your judgment, is low seen by the audience to exchange for another.)	R . 'Tis well, my lady, I an Who, when they would speak
N. (stepping forward between F. and L.). I pray	To weigh their pros and cons;	in doing which thee, sir; nay sir, I pray.	They but confess their common
My duty. F. Is't thy glove?	Which they must mask. 1 ha Which thinking cannot mend :
N. Yes, when it falls. ²⁴⁰	The greatest pain in love is wh	ien a man
F. How so? When heaven doth rain, it rains for	Hath loved a lady most deservedly r
all. Thou shouldst have picked it up.	And been most undeservedly r Vet, spite of her contempt, is s
N. I ran to do so,	And wastes his days. This is	the pain of love;
But thou anticipatedest me. I pray Give 't me, that I restore it to my lady.	Or if another can be shewn to I forfeit claim to wisdom in su
F. Claim not her gloves, sir, till her gloves are	D. Very well said, sir, if y
thine.	To include the parallel, the eq	ual pain
Now thou anticipatest. N. Sir Gregory !	Of any woman who thus loves What say you, Frederick?	a man.
A question.		o is in fault,
G. Eigh!	For love being not returned is
D. What is this, St. Nicholas? N. I beg Sir Gregory judge 'twixt me and	In which imperfect state love's Cannot he known : to love an
Frederick.	Is the required condition. Bu
My lady Laura, having dropped her glove, He picks it up, and would return it to her • 250	Encountering in this mortal m
He picks it up, and would return it to her ; ²⁵⁰ Which I forbid, claiming the privilege	Their preordained espousals, a In moonlight meeting and swe
As her accepted lover.	Signed the surrendering treatie
D. A mighty question.	If fate, or circumstance, or other Should then enpose them and
Who can determine it ? T. That can I. The lady *	Should then oppose them, and The new-spun cords with wh
Should drop the other, and let each have one.	say
D. St. Nicholas would claim both, Sir Solomon, (T_2, F) Give me the glove. I thank you much t	This is the hardest pain that lo
(To F.). Give me the glove. I thank you much; and now	D. Ha! you speak logic; Cannot exist but in love's perf
I offer better matter for discussion :	Laura, 'tis thou to speak.
Laura, take back thy glove; and sit thou there. ²⁵⁹	L . What sh D . Give thy opinion; or, i	all 1 say? in want of matter.
You, Frederick, on my right. ($To R$.) 'Tis what I call	Be critical. A gloss may hit
The Muses' matinée. These morning hours,	Where the text fails.
Which others waste, we may devote to wisdom, And solve some learned question ; as was done	That love's pain is a pain of lo	has said well, we returned,
In ancient Athens; where, as Plato shows,	The pain of love must come fr	om being loved.
Nothing was more admired than dialogues	D. O, most adorable simp Before thy lover, too ! St. N
	Before thy lover, too ! St. N: What wilt thou say?	iciiolas,
707.432.4	N. Beshrew my s
DIANA ·	If Lady Laura have not hit the 'Tis vulgar error that would m
TRISTRAM Stands LAURA	'Twixt pain and joy ; which a	re as life and death
EDEDEDICE MICHALAS	Inseparables. The shadowed	images 320
FREDERICK NICHOLAS	Cast on the wall of this memo This earth, wherein we dwell,
GREGORY RICHÂRD	But serving to mislead our dar

Act I. The Humours of the Court. 152 I say Amen Nay health and strength are but the habitude F. Of this delusion. Ask your ruddy clown Of love; will he not tell you 'tis a pleasure To good Sir Gregory. R. And amen for me. Which moves the plain heart of the natural man? But to the poet, what is love to him? Enter Flora to D. D.What is it, Flora? 'Tis like heaven's rainbow scarf, woven of all hues 220 Of pain and joy; an eagle and a snake Fl. My lady, the merchant's come. D.What merchant? Struggling in the void and crystalline abysm Fl.The Venetian with the silks Of life and death. And love's pain, what is that? I have compared it to a sunbeamed tear Your ladyship bespoke. 390 Whose single pearl broiders the marble lids D. (rising). Do you hear, Laura? Of some tall Sphinx, that with impassive smile Your stuffs at last. Our matinee, my friends, Dreams o'er the desert ; whence 'twas gathered up Is interrupted, an important matter Of earthly dew and the pale sparkle of stars, Unfortunately calls me away. Come, Laura : There'll scarce be time to get the silks made up To fall in silent lightning on the sands : Before your wedding. Come and choose them with mc. St. Nicholas, we shall need thee too ; 'tis nothing Which, at the touch magnifical, bloom forth 340 In irresistible fecundity. Such is love's pain, as it hath lit on me; Unless thine eye is pleased. And tinctured by it I would dream my day, N. I dote on silks. Nor count the sailing hour, hut when night falls Be closed up, like a belated bee I love their fine prismatic cadences. Vet these Venctian colours to my taste 390 In the pale lily of death. Are over-saturate : I'd have them cast D.Now you all hear ! With the Doge's ring in the sea. A good year's R. (aside). Heavens! a belated bee! soaking Thy lover, Laura ; DWould bring them down into that faded softness, What say'st thou? Which is a banquet to the cultured eye. L_{*} O beautiful. D. Ricardo, do you attend Sir Gregory, D. And you, Ricardo? And see your lodging. Come, St. Nicholas ; R. Capital, capital! Come, Laura ! D. Sir Gregory ! [Exit with Laura and St. Nicholas. D. Sir Gregory ! G. Eigh. D. Tis now thy turn to speak. D. Tis now thy turn to speak. Flora following. G. (to R.). I wait upon you, if it please you To visit your apartments. Tell me pray 350 G. Pardon, your ladyship; but at the outset What men you bring. I missed the question, and for lack of it [Exit with R. making signs. Have followed ill. F. (taking out the glove with the letter). Thank The question we discuss D.Is this, What is the chiefest pain of love? G. The chiefest what? heaven, now I may read. (Aside). What saith my love? what hope? Another letter 1 399 D. Pain. T. (aside). Ah! the pain of love. G.Whence got he this? D_{\cdot} 'Tis now thy turn to speak. F. O blessed paper ! T. (aside). Oh, is't my turn? Watch him ! G. The chiefest pain of love ; I am asked to say F. (reading, away from T.). Dearest; all is lost. They mistake my hesitation for consent. My What that is? D.Ves. father has fixed the marriage for three days hence. I dared not say the truth. I know not what I said. Vour ladyship knows well G. Vou ask of one who has lived to study truth My senses left me . . From nature's only teacher ;-without which I would not speak. But since you have often heard (Aloud). Death ! death ! T. (aside). By Gemini, this is a nasty one. 261 F. (reading as before). But he sure I never con-Vour sainted mother tell from what sad cause She made my Laura your adopted sister, Saving my orphan in the only loss sented. If there is no other escape, I must fly. Come to-night to the garden. I will be at my window at That can befall a babe, its mother's care, eleven o'clock. (Aloud). Thank God, thank God. I breathe again. You know how by that loss there came to me The chiefest pain of love ; which can, I think, I shall see thee to-night. But hap to wedded spirits, who have joyed T. Pray, sir, 414 Is anything the matter? In mutual life : wherein, may heaven forgive me If the remembrance of my joy awake F. Eh! ah! what said I? 370 T. Sorrow with thankfulness, the balance being That you were dead, and then alive again. So far on the good side, spite of the pain : 'Tis true. F_{*} T. Vet if I speak of it now without more tears I quite believe it. And then you said That you would see her to-night. Than ye can see, 'tis that the founts are dried : F. Pray mind your business, Tristram : Time hath not helped me otherwise. I pray God, who is merciful, to shield all here Pay more attention to what is said to you, From like calamity. And less to what is not. Whom would you speak of? The Humours of the Court.

450

460

470

T. I speak of no one, sir. F.

Act I.]

No more do I.

T. My master's mad. If this is court life, I shall soon curse my hirthday, like dutiful Job. 'Tis a madhouse. If there were any sense in anything that's said or done, I'd swear my life that the Countess was in love with my master, and he might have her for the asking. Yet who can tell what she means, when every one plays at being in love with somebody? 'Tis a fashion with them as catching as the measles. My constitution holds out, thank heaven. (Sings.)

> The meads drink up the rain, The kine eat up the grass, And man feeds on the kine, And love on man, alas. So about and about ! fa, la !

And there's a good light step to that tune, which I think I can do as well as any I have seen. (Dances and sings.)

> So about and about ! fa, la ! So about and about ! fa, la ! etc.

Enter Flora, who watches him awhile and then laughs aloud.

Fl. Ha! ha!

Well fancy, Tristram ! dancing all alone !

T. Lack of company constrains a man to be alone; and as for dancing, 'tis the original sin Adam was providence to send him a partner. 'Tis now the inheritance of lambs and such innocents : and wert thou not too depraved by a court life, I would ask thee to dance with me.

Fl. I depraved ! I will dance with you.

Τ. Canst thou?

Fl. Ha! ha! About and about, fa, la! (Dancing).

(They dance to each other and then together; in and out among the chairs.)

O softly, Tristram, softly ; I am out of breath.

T. You are not so depraved as I thought. Here's the coin I pay in. (Kissing her.)

Fl. I don't like you, Tristram. You take more liberties in a day than others would in a month. T. Ah! ah! Oh wala! wala! (Puts his finger to his head.)

Fl. What is it? Are you gotten. T. No, no. My constitution—my system.

Fl. What? T. I'm going mad like the rest of them. I've caught it too.

Fl. Don't talk so; to frighten me, Tristram, like that. What do you mean?

T. Well, we shall make a better pair than two I know.

Fl. I never promised. And what would my lady sny? And—oh ! I forgot : she sent me to fetch you. T. My lady?—me?

Fl. Yes, you.

T. She sent for me?

Fl. No sooner was she come in the house, than as she sat looking on the silks, one of her fits took her, and I thought she would faint : when suddenly she got up, and hade me go out and seek for you. See, here she comes. T. What can she need with me? (Aside). If she has got wind of me and Flora, it's all up.

Enter Diana.

D. (to Fl.) I see you have found him, Flora. Fl. We were coming, my lady, as fast as we could.

D. Leave us alone. Exit Flora.

Good Tristram; will you serve me? T. Certainly, my lady. My lady has only to command. D. But in a matter where your duty might seem opposed to my interest. T. 'Tis impossible, my lady, that my duties could be opposed to my lady's.

D. I think, Tristram, that you know a secret which concerns me.

T. I assure your ladyship, upon my oath . . .

D. Stay now. Take this purse . . .

T. I thank your ladyship.

D. To convince you of my goodwill. Now I have a suspicion : and whether or no you help me to come at the truth, I shall learn it. I will not have secrets kept from me in my court.

7. Certainly not, my lady. But I pray your lady-ship to speak plainly, for I am a simple man; and if I am to assist your ladyship, I must understand your ladyship.

D. You are a very sensible fellow, Tristram. Tell me then, do you not know of some one in the court, who carries on a love-affair behind my back?

T. (aside). It's me .- No, my lady: I do not. It is impossible that any one should do such a thing.

D. Is not your master in love? T. Oh! . . my master? Certainly; not a doubt of it.

D. So I thought. Now you must tell me, good Tristram, with whom he is in love.

T. If that's the question, my lady, you may take back the purse again. Take it ; I thought it was not like my luck.

D. You will not tell?T. I cannot tell what I do not know, my lady.D. You do not know?

T. I have not an inclination. 519 D. Stay yet. You shall keep the purse if you will do your best to discover who she is.

Your ladyship is very fair (pocketing), and I Tthank your ladyship for restoring my confidence.

D. Then tell me first. Vou say you know that your master is in love.

T. Certainly; as much or more than all the court.

D.All the court !

Except your ladyship . . . I beg your lady-T. ship's pardon.

Except me? D.

T. And me.

D.And you?

T. And old Sir Gregory, I may say.

D. Please, Tristram, keep to the matter. Bv what signs know you that your master is in love?

T. First because he talks nonsense aloud to himself; then he reads and writes so many letters.

A

421 Exit.

	nours of the	Count	[Act]
	nours of the		[Act I.
 D. Letters, you say ! T. Certainly. Why, the moment that you he pulled one out and read it to himself. And now I am dead, he says, and now I live; And all the rest of it. D. I must know from whom That letter came. T. And that much I can tell. I saw him write it to himself, last night, And put it in his pocket. To my knowledge, IIe has never sent it, and received no other, Nor spoke to a lady since; —when, on a sudden He whips it out, and reads it to himself As if 'twere newly come. Then, off he goes, Bragging, 'tis an appointment for to-night. D. To-night? T. Ay, so he said. But he can't hidd The truth from me. The fact is this, my lady; I makes believe. He sees that everybody Is full of this same love : since 'tis the fashion I d' be ashamed, just for the lack of a lady, To come behind. But all the love he makes Is to himself. D. But if there were a lady, Think you she would be of the court? T. Why certainly D. How so? 	 ⁵³⁹ Their first I trust the And what Who she s To know May little Nay if he And loved More oper with such As make n 550 I love him Another, s 550 I love him Another, s 550 I love him Another, s 550 I how him Another, s<th>t no, no: that e clown: he could n I gave him won hi should be. It tortu so little: still wher be. Bat Frederick feigned he would n I he not another, he n to my meaning wi nu eveilings of my in me blush alone. O iumphant and inser and impotent. Wh 1, and yet loves me a rival? But if he is knew, might love— l not meet: so muc cruel to thee, my u cest to meet him, bu him play thee false s my servant? I ca a un allbi. My plan him away from Belff y and my deity. If command he is guilt</th><th>tot frame a tale ; m. Yet no guess tres jealousy te bittle is known a doth not feign. ot hide it from me : e would be 600 hen I try him nclination perverse love, utable, at if he knows not, but loves knows not, -while there's that hope, h I can ensure. nknown foe : 610 at he shall not come. what vantage else n send him off is assignation is ready : lor. I lere he comes, he quarrel ty ; a word will show.</th>	t no, no: that e clown: he could n I gave him won hi should be. It tortu so little: still wher be. Bat Frederick feigned he would n I he not another, he n to my meaning wi nu eveilings of my in me blush alone. O iumphant and inser and impotent. Wh 1, and yet loves me a rival? But if he is knew, might love— l not meet: so muc cruel to thee, my u cest to meet him, bu him play thee false s my servant? I ca a un allbi. My plan him away from Belff y and my deity. If command he is guilt	tot frame a tale ; m. Yet no guess tres jealousy te bittle is known a doth not feign. ot hide it from me : e would be 600 hen I try him nclination perverse love, utable, at if he knows not, but loves knows not, -while there's that hope, h I can ensure. nknown foe : 610 at he shall not come. what vantage else n send him off is assignation is ready : lor. I lere he comes, he quarrel ty ; a word will show.
T: Because 'tis only in the court That such ridiculous foolery would pass. D. Stay. If he loved a lady of the court,		Frederick, with som ur ladyship sent for	What have you there?
I think I must have known her. Z. Very true.		me papers for your l t them down on the
Your ladyship is right. If 'twere a lady, She could not be of the court. D. Then we must look To find her in the town. T: 'Tis very plain, That if she is not in the court, she is in the town D. I have set you on the track. If you will me, Discover who this lady is : observe Your master narrowly ; above all to-night	$\begin{array}{c} F.\\ The settle\\ D. Th\\ Attend to\\ To send te\\ And your \\ I serve \\ F. \end{array}$	ment for Lady Lau nank yon : 'tis time business. I have a o Milan : it demand must bear it to-nigh T o-night. Why not t	I have brought besides ra's marriage. I had it. I cannot now a message, Frederick, is despatch, t. 'o-night, my lady !
 Follow him where'er he goes, watch all he does And bring me word to morrow. That's the serv For which, good Tristram, I will pay you well. But can I trust you? T. I never deceived any one, my lady: and can discover my master's secret, your ladyship know it. I hold, like your ladyship, that low most contemptible disease, from which a good so should seek to deliver his master. But I don't we shall find any lady. D. No lady, no pay, Tristram; remember th And, above all, be secret. Now, go your way, And the your way here the secret. 	; D Ex vice F . Well know To her aff Blame of a o shall C to be exc e is a D , (asta ervant F . I'd think F or serve y so light as The most Without ro	seept what? Since your wis the full devotion airs, I fear not to ir remissness, if I beg used this service. (e). Ah, I travel to the corner your ladyship: and s this, one that wou unwilling servant, I eproach that you with	which I lend cur 650 for once the is hit. rs of the globe in a journey ld never burden i can beg
And tell your master I wish to see him here. T. I will, your ladyship. (Asid?). And a secrets—if you knew my master's as well as I yours, you would not need to take me into your D. To-night: they meet to-night. It may be That I am in time: maybe they have never met, At least not thus. It seems they have carried of The intrigue, so far, by letter, and now by letter They have made their assignation for to-night. At last I have found out something it sha be	know pay. [Exit , D . ce now r ^{b00} r ^{b00} Il not F . Goe To welcom D . D . Vour sligh You have ledge The true s	What then p od cause enough; the ne question. There's no e regards your healt itest ailing than do done me wrong co	person, Frederick, h, nor more regrets 640

Act I.]	The Humours	of the C	ourt.	155
D. I have thought you looke and pale.F. My health is excellent.	ad to hear it.	(To R.).	ool, at once. Richard, you com gnised. See here l	l ride postilion ? [Exit T. e in time : ! The Countess bids me
Your ladyship will humour me. D. And I Most gladly, were it a matter that A bearer of less trust. But as it s There's nothing for it but your goi You are out of sorts, Frederick : r Is just the change you need. Giv	would admitted 50 tands 650 ng to-night, maybe the travelling e me that pen,	Nay, nay; s think it F . Becau To give this i Begged she w	dressed to Milan, she knows not, se she hade me pe in your hands, 1 could find some o	'Tis impossible. What hath niade you ost this night to Milan pleaded sickness, ⁶⁹⁰ ther messenger :
How can I escape? What devil her	r cold journey is short : l. rse on my fate. hath now possessed	R. And v Did you refus Must have be F. Not to have t I knew not w	vhy, man, if you t se? Another mes etrayed me. True. I thought of that. hither I was to b	was a fool No, now I think of it, e sent
To thwart me thus? And after al To insist: so small a matter. D. (giving). Here is Deliver it, please, with your own b At six o'clock to-night. Take Tri 'Twill make me more at ease on y In case you are ill. (gathering up p And whatsoc'er yo	the letter. hand. Leave here istram with you. our behalf, papers.)	I thought I w Laura and I Our only hop She has faller That fool St.	Nicholas. 1 mu Unless we mee	d lost my head. to-night. ⁷⁰⁰ ading others, e is bound to marry st persuade her
Return by noon to-morrow : at wh I need the answer. You will obli I wish you a pleasant journey.	nich hour	R . And so she words, Writ by her h	l see it : I s hath writ to me hand so set my he	e! Why should these
F. Is that a blindfold player? This letter? The Duke of Milan Is that the mischief? He is disco Suspected of complicity, and thus She would expose us both?	Ha! can it he!	Every direction Which, by low Were specialing The hiding special As dazzle low	on of these little on ng intercourse of sed to typify and pirit? There are ers' eyes. She w	curves, hand and brain, ⁷¹⁰ betray such secrets here ill be mine.
Enter Tristram We are h T. (half aside). Another letter last Borne on the winds?	ooth undone.	With studied That seemed- Of our two na A daring inti	e a letter once bef terms of coldness —I treasure it stil ames on the same macy, her own be ed boasting so era	: yet to me l—a lovers' meeting conscious page, trothal.
F. (aside). She hath recognis No doubt. 'Twas natural. But v That I am in his secret? Till I at I must still play my part. T. (aside). Secrets again More mysteries.	why suspect n sure,	What saith sh F. R. Is it n F. And 'twould	ne now? IIa! do not l ot mine? She yet betray us if I had	break the seal. ⁷²⁰ might ask it back :
 F. (to T.). Order me horses, T At six o'clock. T. What ! is she off ? F. Who of T. The lady you should meet t F. 	6	Give it to me That I am aw Will not that F. It means that	. Vou must disc vay from home, a do? This is my ruin, I must be away	over of course nd leave the letter. Richard : to-night ;
A coach at six : and be yourself pr To accompany me. T . Where go we? Enter R .	repared 680	R. R. N. That y	eld to my rival. Enter St. Ni Hush paper you are in o	see, he comes. Noubt of, gentlemen, ⁷³⁰
F. To to Order the horses. T. Is our destination A secret? F. No.	he devil.	You picked it Which I'd red R .		r?—a private trifle ry, sir,

The Humours of the Court.

156

And till he's gone, 'tis folly to hesiege Sealed and addressed, which takes our friend away. But I can say with truth, I'd rate myself Her garrisoned heart. I must engage my skill, Like a wise general, to draw off the foe. That I can do. 'Tis a most blessed chance The happiest man in the world, could I believe That what I hold was fashioned ever so little That he is so well disposed, and hath a lady Ready to run off with him. The very thing In your romantic vein. Ň. You make me proud, sir. 740 I plot to save myself, most helps my friend. Yet, you should know, I do not think my poems As good as others think them : they are but trifles. I wish that I could stay to explain my meaning; Enter Tristram with a paper. But I must seek my sonnet. Exit. T. I have found a prize: just exactly what 1 wanted : one of my master's love-letters, or a piece of Your rival. O heavens! one,-that's the third to day,-lying on the walk. It F. A fool that fortune favours. was not there when I went to order the horses, clse R. Not at all. I must have trod on it; but when I came back, it lay Diana hath here some purpose we have not guessed. I must have too on it, but what it coupled from the in the middle of the path, as if dropped from the skies. Reveal what it may, it goes to the Countess to-morrow; and it should stand me in something handsome. Unsealed, unfolded even, for any to read : Come to my room : there we will read her letter ; And if it shew no sign of my discovery, I'll write it such an answer as it asks; Which, when you have, you may perform your service, and no name. Poetry like my master's. There's And see your mistress both. 'Tis but to start no harm in my reading, even though I should not At the set time, and turn about in the dark. understand. F. Make a pretended journey? R. An expedition (Reads) .- " Master of mine ! "-Ha! tis the lady. Some ten miles out and back. " Master of mine, remember for pity, I'll do it, Richard. F_{\bullet} What sobs of fluting lips, wan with dismay," O, you were ever excellent. R. Arr Poor thing ! Arrange Some practicable stages; and remember " And malison of death, my soulless clay Panteth in thine unspeak ble purgat'ry." To keep an eye on the time. F. Trust me. Unspeak'ble !- that is unspeakable ; and purgatree ! R. And, hark ! why the big O hath fallen out. I never loved this If some night you should make the real journey, purgatory, and quarrel not at any shortening of it. —" Enchained long whilom."—Mysteries and crimes ! Would Laura fly with you? F. Fly where? chained is she? Where can he have chained her? R. I'll tell you. and how, if she be chained, can she have cast this on I have planned the whole thing for you: I put my the path? unless she threw it from the window . . palace "Enchained long whilom, was I fain to flee." At your command; my servants shall receive you; The archbishop marry you, and all my friends Just so ! But is she fled or no? I wish she wrote Attend your fête. clearer sense. F_{\cdot} You cannot mean it, Richard ! (Enter St. Nicholas behind.) By heaven, 1 do: but you must first persuade R. " Enchained long whilom, was I fain to flee ; Your lady to make sail. But thou, with wildered phantom disarray, Nightly disguised in the blue garb of day, That would be easy, With such a port to run for. But how soon? Besetdst the sleep-gates of my melanch'ly. It could not be to-night. R. Hem! I need one day To warn my people. Come now to my room, N. (coming forward). Tristram, where found you Where we will read this letter. Our success that? it was not intended for your reading. Depends on secrecy. 7. So I guess, sir; but if letters be purposely Ē. True. thrown open on the ground, they may be read by R_{*} Go within : those for whom they were not intended. N. Give it to me. 'Tis mine. To avoid encounter 1 will follow alone. F. To your room? T. I see no sign of that, sir, unless you will say that everything which the ladies let fall belongs to you. R, Yes. No impertinence, man : give it me at once.
 N. No impertinence, man : give it me at once.
 T. Nay; I have my duty. This belongs to my master. I shall guard it for him.
 N. I tell you 'tis mine. F_* Which suite are you in? R. They call it One of the Greeian muses. Yes, but which? FR. 1 quite forget. At the end of the corridor, So you said of Lady Laura's glove. T. Beyond the tower. N_{\star} That has nothing to do with it. Give me the F. I know. You'll find me there. [Exit. paper. Not till 'tis proved to be yours, sir : which can T_{i} R. To get this Frederick married, more concerns never be. me N_{\cdot} I tell you, Tristram, that I wrote it myself. Than anything else. 'Tis plain Diana loves him : We shall soon see that, sir. This is writ by a [Exil.

Act I.

780

815

Act II. I.]

lady; who is prisoned or chained somewhere in the court. And she says ;- well, what she says I cannot tell; but my master thinks she has run away, and has bade me order the horses to be after her.

N. What ridiculous stuff you make of it, Tristram. 'Tis addressed to Love : you do not understand.

7. Yes: it is love, and court love too: I under-stand that well enough, and I understand that 'tis writ to a man ; therefore 'tis pikestaff-plain that 'tis writ by a woman: therefore it half follows that you did not write it: and therefore it helongs to my master.

N, How therefore helongs it to your master? T. Why whose else should it be? His letters come from the four quarters, no one knows whither; just where this came from.

N. Nonsense, Tristram : I assure you 'tis mine.

7. Think not to owl me thus. N. Man! I swear that I composed that poem myself. Had you any culture you would distinguish it from the poor style of a woman. It has fallen from my pocket by accident : and if you will not give it me, I must take it from you.

T. Hands off, sir, now. I can't think why you should try to get what belongs to another. You are mistaken. "Master of mine" it says-and would a man write thus? (begins to read).N. Death! stop mine ears! That I should hear my verse

Again profaned by thee, thou baseborn clown.

7. I read correctly, sir. If you find fault with my reading, 'tis the strangeness of the matter. I have good reasons for not parting with this; and I am not a baseborn clown.

N. Worse; thou art a thief. T. Thief call you me? Now were the verses ten thousand times yours, sir, I'd never give 'em you. I defy you !

N. Thou to defy me, slave ; paid by the month To render menial offices to one 875

Himself the annual hireling of the lady

Whom I shall call my sister ! O thou fool,

If reason cannot work into thy skull

'Cause of its wooden thickness, I'll find means

To punish thee.

7. Good day, sir. Stand you here and rail. I must be off with my master after this lady. But I shall not forget your language to me, sir : be this paper what it will. Exit.

N. Tristram, Tristram, I beg of you ! my sonnet ! My sonnet !

ACT II.

SCENE I.

Night. The garden, at Laura's windows, which are nearly to the ground. L. a wall with door in it leading from the park without. Enter by door in travelling costume Frederick, and Tristram carrying a small portmantle. F. stays behind to lock the door.

T. (coming to front). Here's a journey: twenty miles about and home again: and no lady. Were it not for the letter I found on the path, I should hold to my opinion that it is all a make-believe, and that there is no lady at all : and that my master wrote that first letter to himself, making the appointment to meet himself, . . he returns so pleased, with his head in the air, like the best satisfied lover. I have a fool for my master. He is but a fool, tho' he needs no humouring. (To F. who approaches). Well, now we are at home again, sir; and as it were partly returned to our senses

F. Silence, Tristram. Take off your boots.

T.

Pray, sir . . Not a word. Obey me.

F.T.Heaven help us ! what is this for ?

F. Silence. Are they off?

 \mathcal{T} They are coming.

Hark now what you have to do. Cross the F_{\cdot} grass silently, unlock my door, creep up-stairs like a thief, and sit in my chamber without a movement till I come.

T. The grass is like a sponge. I have begun to catch cold already : I am just going to sneeze.

F. Sneeze, and I'll strangle you. T. Is this your treatment for all

Is this your treatment for all my services?

F. Your service is your duty to obey :

And once you served me well : of late you are grown Questionous and prying ; which I have so far borne, Because I have been in doubt whether it were best To thrash you or discharge you.

T. And no wonder neither. Thus the world will repay devotion. Can I see you so blind to your good fortune, and when heaven's door stands open . . .

F. Heaven's door ! what is this? T. You do not know.

F. Say what you mean. T. This court, wherein you serve and get no thanks,

You might rule and be thanked.

F. Just as I thought ; Ere I dismiss you I shall tell the Countess

Your insolence. The whipping you will get Will save me trouble.

I pray you on my knees.F. Get up, fool, lest you sneeze. And would you escape

Your rich deservings, be off.

T. Betray me not, sir: I will obey you better.F. Silence: go do as I bid you. Begone, and take your boots. Exit T.

So my man knows her secret. 'Tis high time That Laura and I were off. This salves my conscience From any scruple. 'Tis a rule of art

To make obstructions serve : and my chief hindrance, Diana's passion, can but urge me on.

So the mischance, which drew me hence to-night, Hath brought me hither a more secret way.

The night is still. I would there were a wind.

941

And there's the clock. (Clock strikes.) 1'll wait Till it hath sounded . No light . 1'll tap. ⁹⁴ (Goes to window and taps. Laura comes to window and opens.)

157

900

158 The Humours	of the Court. [Act II. 1.
F. All's well. 'Tis I.	L. Ere it is too late, Frederick,
L. Frederick, not gone to Milan?	Think if you love me enough.
F. I escaped but with a thousand torments	F. Why, 'tis a question To make me think you think I think I do not.
L. We can talk here.	L. Indeed, ere I consent to be your wife 990
F. The night	F. You have consented, Laura.
Is very still, our voices will be heard :	L. Nay, but hear me.
They run along the wall.	Before we marry, you must know a thing,
L. Then I'll come out.	Which, since it might lessen your love for me,
F. We shall be seen.	Shall not be kept till after.
L. The maids are all abed.	F. Then tell it quickly,
There's none to see us; and the moon is clouded.	L. What you have said, and what I have to tell,
We'll walk by the yew hedge. Give me your hand.	So dwarfs my little humble plant of love.
F. 'Tis but one step.	F. Tell it.
L. I know. (Com.'s down.)	L. Diana loves you.
F. My kiss. (Kisses her.)	F. You know it too !
L. O Frederick, ⁹⁵⁰	L. You know it !
You have broken your own rule, and kissed me thrice.	F. I!Why, Laura, is this your secret?
F. One kiss a day, with two days in arrear, Makes three.	L. I see you have guessed it; yet, perhaps, for thinking
L. Alas! I thought 'twas love's excess,	Thou shoulds be loyal where thy faith is cherished,
And still I am kissed by rule.	Thou hast never weighed her claim with mine; and F . And he content, love,	that
To keep the little rules we make ourselves,	I'd have thee do. Look to thine interest :
Since thou must break such great ones; and canst dare	For loving women differ not so much
Deceive the Countess, disobey thy father,	But all may make good wives ; and whatsoe'er
And brave the world's opinion : all which sins	Thou thinkest to see in me, Frederick, I am sure
I come to stablish in thee. There's now no choice	I lack all excellence. There's nothing in me
But fly with me or take St. Nicholas. 960	Why I should have preferment o'er another,
L. That name is desperation. Have you no plan	And least of all of her who can boast loveliness
To save me?	To match her love ; and add those other gifts,
F. If you dare fly with me to Milan.	Which are nccéssities to one like thee.
L. To-night? F. Would 'twere to-night.	Thou, with high friendships shouldst have power and station,
L. But when, love, when?	And fitted for the fairest use of wealth,
F. Trust me to find the time.	Thou art wronged in the want of it: and, Love, I
L. And why to Milan?	love thee
F. My friend the Duke, being now away from	So better than myself, that I would see thee home,	Happily another's rather than my own
Lends me his palace. All we else should lack,	With the reproach of selfishness, the knowledge
Appointment and conveyance, be supplies.	That thou wert sacrificed for my poor love,
We have his countenance now, his influence after,	F . If women differ little, what of men ?
To appease your father and sister.	St. Nicholas loves you, and would give you rank.
L. Are you such friends?	L. Thou knowst thou wrongst me, Frederick,
F. There cannot be two hearts in all the world	turning thus 1010
Nearer-familiar than are his and mine.	My love of thee to banter of my love.
L. You never told me.	F. I only banter where you dare be grave,
F. I had not heard from him	L. Because thou knowest, Love, I desire not
Now for three years.	wealth.
L . 'Tis strange.	My happiness would be to live with thee
F. Nay, 'tis not strange.	And for thee : but to thee what can 1 bring?
Ours was a boyhood friendship ; such affection	Think not because I wish thee fortunate,
B orn in life's spring is perfect with the flower.	That I forget my hope, or slight the treasure
The memory is a binding intimacy,	So much desired of my loving soul.
Which grows as we grow from it : in its strength	F. And for that loving soul you bid me take
Is our lost tenderness ; its truth is proved	Some fifty thousand ducats by the year, ¹⁰³⁰
By every lie the world has given our hopes :	A major-domo, and a heap of things
Absence and age best feed it. We remember	That are a proverb for their emptiness !
First ecstasics, and the unreserved embrace	L_{\bullet} Diana's love, I said; that with the ducats.
Of mutual spirits, and worship the remembrance.	F_{\bullet} Well, what doth all this come to when 'tis
The Duke and 1 are strangers in the world,	told?
Courteous acquaintance in society,	First is Diana's love. Diana's love
But to ourselves, twin individual gods.	Is nothing, for I do not love Diana.
L . Alas, poor me!	Next are the ducats: fifty thousand ducats.
F . Can it displease you, love,	They are nothing either—by the year ! Why, Laura,
I have such a friend?	Were 't fifty thousand ducats by the day

Act II. 1.] The Humours	of the Court.	159
¹⁰⁴⁰ My prodigal soul. I should expend it all And sit at home and he as poor as ever. L . How could you spend so much? F . Nothing is much.	Which is the vulgar dress of ir And a less blunder than mere The individual ideals are given	naked skill.
Man's capabilities being infinite And his state pitiful, the simplest scheme	L . I would have had Just as you are.
For bettering any faculty he hath, Would eat up all the money in the world. L. But to use riches rightly—		e is coming hither.
F. I have no desire That earth can satisfy, but one; and that Shall I play false to?	You creep along the hedge. 1	ot think ; unless 'll wait and see
L. Nay; I trust you well. ¹⁰⁵⁰ F. Then waste no more the precious moments, Laura,	Who 'tis. I think it must be ' Enter Rica	Tristram. [Exit Laura .
To question the great blessing we enjoy. Our hours will all be as this hour to-night; Either to step with in eternity	R. F. Richard ! what is the m R.	Frederick !
Towards our perfection with unwavering will, Or with a questioning purpose let it slide, And leave us far behind. A man's desires	But if you wish it thought that Your room should not be light Should not be singing.	you are at Milan,
Are his companious and by them he is known ; But he himself is what he grows to be Using his time.		is Tristram singing? [T.'s lute heard faintly. 1! Tell Laura
L. How best to use it now?F. First to assure thee, dearest, that all the joysI have had or hoped are nothing to thy love.	Why I am gone. All will be R. Unless Diana is sleeping very s	lost. [Exit.] Indeed,
And next, that we may make it sure, I ask thee To say thou'lt fly with me. L . When, Frederick, when?	The escapade's betrayed. Re-enter La	ura.
I fear 'twill never be ; we have but two days. F. Therefore be ready at any moment, Laura. All's fixed except the time : that must depend	Ny L. I heard you speak wi thank you	service, lady. th Frederick, sir, and
Upon occasion. If I cannot see thee, Ricardo, whom I have made my confidant, Will bring thee word. He cannot be suspected, ¹⁰⁷⁰ And thou mayst trust him.	For your kind offices. R . I need no t I have a deeper interest in you Than you can guess. I fear th	r welfare 1110
L. Dare I tell my father?F. That's my chief scruple; and yet we dare not tell him.	May ruin us all. L . Frederick hath to You know our secret, and will	old me, sir, act between us ;
It only Providence would give him back His hearing for one day! After one day Spent with St. Nicholas, I should not fear	For which I thank you. I bid I should go in. R . As sonn as possible	you now good-night :
To broach our matter.L.He has the marriage contractReady to sign.	Pray you be not observed. Bu Thank me for Frederick's visit. L. Y
F. Not as he thinks. By luck They entrusted it to me; and as I have drawn it He cannot sign it. He must give it me back,	R. Why, but for me he had L. I thank you very much.	Ah !
And that will make delay. L. Of all these chances, If any one go wrong	$\begin{array}{ll} \mathcal{R}. & \text{He doth } r\\ \text{Well for himself.} & \text{He needs a}\\ \mathcal{L}. \end{array}$	ot scheme wife. Indeed ¹¹²⁰
F. All will go well. See, here's my portrait, Laura, which I promised : 'Tis framed like yours ; that is its only merit.	I cannot scheme. R . And 'tis the faire You neither may have ever need
L. O, let me have it. F. Take it. That you should care To look upon it, makes me ashamed.	L. Good-night, sir. R. She's a good creatu She'll fly with Frederick. It p	[Exit in at window , re, quick and sensible; rovokes my soul
L. O, Frederick ! If you knew all my foolishness, I think You would despise me. By this little light I can see nothing. Is't well done?	That that conceited inconsidera Should put us all in peril. I h To take him in my pay.	te loon
F. So, so. It flatters me : but that's the artist's trick. L. Flatters you 1	Re-enter F. wit) F. Is Laura g R . And not too soon. If y	sone?
		and musical mair

ė

The Humours of the Court. Act II. 1, 2. 160 Have waked the Countess she may have heard you too. N. Nay, sir, I sing so seldom, I only fear I cannot be suspected. If I might I'd ask you sing again. There's nonght affects me Like music in the moonlight. 1180 He is silenced now, I hope. 1130 Here's his curst lute : 1 took it from him. Ha! then give it to me. R_{\bullet} R. I would oblige you But for the rules you speak of. Were't not better We should go in? 'tis midnight. The very thing. I'll step into the gap, And take the blame of this untimely singing Upon myself. Go in and leave me here : N. Oh, I could sit And sigh beneath that window all the night. And if to-morrow any ask who 'twas That played and sang at midnight-why 'twas I. Is there not wondrous softness in the thought, That she one loves is sleeping? Go in. Well, bravo, Richard : you're a genius. F. R.I will leave you R. Leave me. To your love thoughts. N. Nay F. Nay, nay, no reason, sir. I go. Good-night. [Exit. R. Now must 1 sing. I have full leisure for sweet meditation. And when there's none to hear I am sometimes able I will go in with you. 'Tis a rich comfort To please myself: else I must ask indulgence. To dream of the beloved. [Excunt. Sings. SCENE II. My eyes for beauty pine, My soul for Goddes grace : On the terrace, in front of the house. Enter No other hope nor care is mine ; Diana and Ricardo. Flora attending To heaven I turn my face. Diana. One splendour thence is shed What time is't, sir? From all the stars above : D.'Tis named when God's name is said, R.I heard the bells of the town 'Tis love, 'tis heavenly love. Strike ten but now. D_{*} Ah ! you can hear the bells, And every gentle heart, Because they are strange to you. I note them most The days they miss . . And so 'tis only ten . . . 1150 That burns with true desire, Is lit from eyes that mirror part I hope you are comfortable here, Ricardo : Gregory took care of you? The clocks for example Of that celestial fire. Did not disturb your rest? N. (heard entering unseen). Very sweet ! R. (aside). Ha! have I an audience after all? R. Vour ladyship N. Ricardo, I believe. Means to reproach me with late hours : but if 1 had thought my singing could he heard . . . 1200 R. St. Nicholas, is't not? N. Your lute, sir, as Amphion drew the trees D.Your singing? Up by the roots, hath drawn me from my bed. How musical the world is now-a-days-RWould I could make the lyrical apology Vet 1 heard not your singing. R_{\bullet} With which, I doubt not, he replanted them. I am very glad : I feared I had offended. For myself N. Nay, no apology. And, to say truth, Twas not so much your music as my wish To catch the singer brought me out. I thought I can assure you that though some things here Remind me of Milan, where the Duke . . . 'Twas Frederick's servant. He should not forget it D.Remember. If I should eatch him breaking rules. Speak not to me of Milan. A thousand pardons, R. 1 hope R.1 am schooled to hide my thoughts, and shall obey : I break no rules. N. You see you are very near Tho' in your sight they wander to the duke, The ladies' windows. Who for that grace in such sad sickness pines. K. True : of course 1 must be. A lord so loving, and so fair a lady, Would she be also kind, -would make their courtiers N_{\cdot} And serenading is among the offences Punished with dict. As envied as themselves, R. Being a stranger, sir, I cannot be suspected of the knowledge D. Enough, forget him. But say you that he is really sick, Ricardo? That might incriminate me. You, no doubt, R. Hopelessly he languishes. I do not think He is long for this world. Are more familiar. 1170 N_{\cdot} Yes, there is one window D.So consumed with folly ! Which I should know : and as you chance to stand R. I too thought that his love was folly, lady, Just underneath it, I will not dissemble Till I came here : but now I know he is wise. That when I saw you first I felt the pangs Of maddening jealousy. To find 'twas you D. I half suspect he sent you here to try me With soft insinuations. 'Twere his wish Relieved me entirely. R. I do not doubt : although he spake no word 1220 R. Nay then, truly, sir, I owe you apology : for if your mistress Should have mistook my falala for yours, That I could wrest to such instruction, madam. D. Vou serve him well. The poor performance may have hurt your credit. R. May all your servants ever

Love you as I do him. Yet that's too much.	D. Thou must have roused the Duke from sleep.
D. 'Tis all too much. But I can truly boast	F. 'Twas such an hour as one might look to find
I have very faithful servants. There's sir Gregory : I think you could not better him at Milan.	A duke a-bed D. And he was not? Pray, tell us
What say you?	Exactly how he was employed. E
R . Sir Gregory is the very mirror Of knightly reverence.	F. I chanced To find him banqueting in merry company ;
D. He is sadly deaf.	Such as make war on night, and march their force
Then there's my secretary. R. Your secretary?	Across the frontier, for a long campaign In the enemy's country.
D. Frederick.	D. (to R.). Banqueting, you hear.
R. Ah, Frederick : on so short acquaintance How can I judge?	And at that hour. F. All night they kept it up.
D. You have a faculty ¹²³¹	D. (to R.). Hark you.
Of observation, which I am pleased to prove : Besides, since you are a stranger,—as you note	R. 1 hear and wonder. (To F.). Say you, sir, The Duke was merry, that he held a feast
Our clocks,-your eyes, no doubt, while yet they are	Within the palace?
Will pounce upon a thousand little things,	F. (aside). Heavens !how I have blundered ! Nay, sir, I said not so : I said expressly,
Which we are blind to, seeing every day.	Or should have said, he was another's guest. 1280
Tell me your first impression. R. Your ladyship	R. And yet I have never known him F. Indeed 'tis true :
Would never task me thus, but in security	He said to me himself those very words.
Of finding perfect praise. I'll rather think You ask me my opinion, as do poets,	I have never known myself do this, he said. T. (aside). Now, they are at their fooling again,
To judge of my capacity.	and not a single word of any sense. 'Tis enough to
D. Nay, nay. Nor will I force your flattery. Speak your mind.	drive a man mad with bewilderment. R. (to D.). To plunge into distraction so unwonted
I hold him not in wondrous estimation.	Argues despair. Grave men use dissipation
What of his person?R.He has a good deportment,	D. No doubt : and yet
Yet stoops a little.	Answer not for him.
D. You have a soldier's eye. He is tall, and hath the scholar's negligence.	F. True it is, my lady, He did confess as much to me a stranger.
A martial stiffness were much out of place.	Despair ;- that was his word. He seemed, withal,
R . True : and his open grace seems less a manner Than very nature ; being itself unlinked	Wondrously put out at all 1 chanced to say : And very sick he looked.
With any distant bearing.	T. (aside). Madness and lies ! I'll hear no more
D. Now you teach me. 1250 You might have known him long to hit him so.	D. It seems that dissipation
Have you talked with him much?	Agrees not with grave men.
R. Enough to prove him A most ingenious gentleman.	R. Heaven smite me dead If I protest not 'gainst the wrong you do him.
D. Ah !—ingenious l	D. So hot !Well, thrash this out between your-
Ingenious ;	selves: 'Tis nought to me. And, Frederick, when you have
Enter F. and T. in their travelling costume as	dressed, before.	Rested, and breakfasted, attend me here. ¹³⁰⁰ I thank you for your service.
R. See, madam: 'tis he that comes. (Aside.) Her love is but a fancy; else would she never	F. You are welcome, madam,
Provoke discussion on him, and seek to praise him.—	To all such offices.(Going.)D.Please leave your servant.
D. Frederick : returned so soon !—miraculous. Such expedition. Thou canst scarce have rested.	I have some papers ready indoors to send you.
'Tis two hours ere thy time.	F. I thank you.
F. 'Twas my good-fortune ¹²⁶⁰ To meet no hindrance.	R . 1 crave permission : I would follow To ask of my particular affairs ;
D. But thy health, good servant ;	How they are spoke of whence he comes.
F. Madam, let my quick despatch	D. (bowing permission). I hope You will hear good.
Bury my late reluctance. I confess	R. (aside, going). My Frederick needs fresh
I was unreasonable. Indeed, the journey Hath quite restored my spirits.	prompting.
D. Yes, so it seems.	He is so preoccupied in his own love, That I am forgotten. [Exit.
I hoped that it might be so. Hast thou my answer? F. 'Tis here. (Handing letter.)	Diana opens the letter.
. The mere. (Assumming tenter.)

162	The Humours	of the Court. [Act II. 2.
T. (to Fl., showing and sha here! Listen here!	king purse). Look	Your ladyship should think I have been to Milan? D. Not been to Milan?
Fl. What have you there? T. Money,—ducats : all duca D. (reading aloud). "I cou	its. Id not have chosen.	T. Me! D. You accompanied 1360 Your master?
among all my friends, one more able than is Ricardo. There is	discreet and service- nothing so difficult	7. I did. D. (holding R.'s letter). And he has been to that he has not experience for private but that he may not we He has been accustomed	ll be trusted with it	Milan. T . It's true, your ladyship, I understand Nothing my master says, and very little affairs " Fl. (to T.). But where did you	get them, Tristram?	Of what you say to him : and if you say He 'as been to Milan, I'll not meddle with it.
T. Ah! She gave them me. Fl. The Countess! What for T. Secrets: and there's mor	1320	But if you say that I have been to Milan, I am very much deceived. I do not like That any man should think such things of me ;
from. Fl. More secrets, or more due		That I can go and not go, and be here And there at once.
 T. Both,—plenty of both. Fl. How nice for us. T. Us ! Who d'you mean by 	y us?	D. Stay, Tristram; tell me plainly All that your master has done since yesterday. T. Well, first I found him with another letter,
Fl. I mean when we are marr T. Married, say you, now? not promised. When I had no	ried, Tristram. I thought you had	All sighs and groans : then suddenly he bade me Order the horses, and prepare myself To drive with him to the devil at six o'clock.
Now you see me as rich as Pl enough. But it's a hoax. I	utarch, you're quick filled this bag with	At six we started on the Milan road And came by dark to Asti ; there we changed curtain-rings to deceive you: a now? F2. O, Tristram, let me see.	and where are you	Both horses and postilions and drove on : And after three hours' jolting, when I guessed We should be nearing Milan, the coach stopped ¹⁵⁸⁰
D. Tristram! T. Your ladyship!		In a ferny glade, and we got out ; and then I saw we were at Belflor, and the trees
D. I'll spe Flora, depart.	ak with you. [Exit Flora .	Were in your ladyship's park. D. Ah! Then what did he? T. Came in and locked the gate of the park
Now, Tristram, tell m What you have learned.		behind us, And sent me on to his room, and bade me wait
Writ by the lady. (fumbles for it. D. Indeed !	good news. ¹³⁴¹	Till he should come. D, What hour was that? T, Eleven.
Nothing could please me better. This is done excellently. Who is T . I think she is chained up	s she, Tristram?	D. (aside). The hour, no doubt, when he should meet his mistress— When came he in ?
court. D. Chained in the court ! W	'hat mean you?	$ \begin{array}{ccc} \mathcal{T}. & \text{By midnight.} \\ \mathcal{D}. & \text{He locked the gate } \end{array} $
T. Read for yourself. (giving.) D. Why this is poetry	Here 'tis, my lady:	The lady is in the palace. T. So he pretends. D. He let slip nothing on the journey?
And in St. Nicholas' hand. T . I hope a	nd trust	T . He lit A pocket lamp, and sat, mute as a fish,
Your ladyship will not take his pa D. What does this mean?	art. His part !	Counting the minutes on his watch ; and then, As if it served as well to tell the time, He fetched the jewelled portrait from his breast,
St. Nicholas found me with it, an		And gazed on that. D. A portrait ? T. Certainly.
I stood by it firmly 'twas the lady' And written to my master. He c And if your ladyship	a procep	D. Carries he a portrait, say you? T. Certainly.
D. Stay, Tristram, This paper is nothing : take it, an As best you are able, with St. Nie	nd right yourself,	D. You know not who 'tis of? T. Not I, my lady. D. Could you get sight of it?
Tell me now all that happened on I sent you last night with your me	the journey aster.	7: Impossible. At night 'tis neath his pillow, and all the day
7. Sent him? D. Of course. I sent you bot	Your ladyship th to Milan.	In his doublet here, just under his heart; or if In pulls it out, he holds it by his chin
When did you arrive there? T. At Mila	n! Is't possible	Where none may see. D. You should have told me of this,

This portrait : have you no guess who 'tis of ?	D. You may read it through,
7. I guess 'tis part of the pretence, my lady;	Though 'tis about yourself. Examine it well, 1451
For when the fit is on he'll talk to it :	If 'tis authentic. You will only find
And once I saw him kiss it.	Prodigal praise to make you blush.
D. Thank you, Tristram.	R. (aside). No wonder
Take now these papers to your master at once	If I do blush, faced with my own device.
And tell him	(aloud, giving back.) I'll strive to make this good.
T. (going). I will, your ladyship.	D. And 'tis his hand?
D. Stay yet	R. It is,
This fetter which he brought me, did you see	D. I am glad, because it came as answer
T . I suppose, my lady,	To a letter I wrote but yesterday, and gave
The wrote it himself, no doubt of it. Where else	To Frederick, ordering him to ride to Milan And give it the Duke. This morning, as you saw,
Should he have got it?	He hands me this. His servant who was with him
D. Tell Ricardo, Tristram,	Tells me that he has not been to Milan at all,
I wish to see him here, at once. Your master	But slept in the court.
May wait on me at noon.	R. (aside). Pest on that sneaking dolt !
T. About that gentleman	D. What say you now?
D. Begone, and do my bidding. [Exit T.	R. May he not have used some other messenger?
	I had my doubts when he brought in his tale,
They have met in spite of me-they have met: and he	That history of the banquetDid I not say
Hath dared to disobey me and lie to my face.	The Duke was wronged ?
Who can it be? who is she? she is in my house	D. True, true; and tho' I am glad
Ah! what a prey I have netted ! One of my maids	He is quit of forgery, he is not of lying.
One of my maids, it must be O detestation !	What can I think ?
And he hath her portrait. Ah, he loves, he loves.	R. I thought your ladyship 1469
The love that taught me to dissemble and scheme	Trusted in Frederick wholly. When this morning
Hath taught him to meet plot with counterplot	You praised him to me
Frederick, dear Frederick ! 'tis unworthy of you :	D. Praised him! stay, I beg:
This is too hard upon me I loved you well.	I praised him not, save to draw words from you.
Shame, shame, shame! Indeed he cannot know	And you described him well; did not you say
How much I love him he cannot. Am I too old	He was contriving?
At twenty-seven? out-matched ! I had taken too	R . Then you trust him not?
This letter for the Duke's. Ho! the insolence	D. See how he acts. Ah, if I told you all!
To assume his fulsomeness! to forge in terms	And yet to tell argues much confidence
Of a humble obedient lover, so he might	(R. is silent and D. continues.)
Keep tryst with O shame, shame ! and then to	I have strange sympathies, affinities, write it He must have broke my seel, and read my letter	Magnetic or electric it may be, Which rule my trust and liking, if all feel them
He must have broke my seal, and read my letter— He has gone too far : here is a slip in honour	Which rule my trust and liking : if all feel them I cannot say : in me they are intimations
Which I may work on. I'll not give him up,	Of supernatural efficacy : I find
Not yet. He can be shamed : and first I'll prove	My first impressions never prompt me wrong.
The forgery, and then wring confession from him.	Some men I see only to avoid, Vou know
'Tis well I have at hand so trusty a witness.	A strong example of that ;on the other hand
	There are some faces, -eyes, I think, -that draw me
Enter Ricardo.	At first encounter; so that I often fancy
R. Your ladyship sent for me.	There must be a subtle emanation thrown
D. I did, Ricardo. 1440	By the spirit, as light from fire. Now yesterday
In answer to the favour, which most gladly	When I saw you, I felt the secret shock
I do you at the Duke's request, I beg	Which told me I was in presence of a soul 1490
A service for myself.	In harmony with mine, one I could trust,
R. My honoured master	If I should need a friend : and when I wrote
Commands me, lady; and you command my master.	To the Duke, it was not that my judgment wanted
I am twice yours.	The assurance which his letter gives. I knew
D. Again ! well—Look at this !	How it would be.—I hardly think, Ricardo,
Is this your famous master's writing? Look.	That, had I asked for his own character,
You know it? (giving letter.)	Your master could have writ more praise. R . I wish
R. As my own.
D. Is that then his? R. It is,	To please my lady, as I have pleased the Duke.
R. It is, And writ his best.	I have kept his secrets. D. I shall tell you mine.
D. Why, 'tis a forgery,	Frederick hath had for some time an intrigue 1500
And you are deceived.
R. Nav. 'tis no forgery.	With a lady—you understand—a liberty
R. Nay, 'tis no forgery. D. You are certain ?	With a lady—you understand—a liberty I never have allowed, nor will : besides
R. Nay, 'tis no forgery. D. You are certain? R. Certain.	With a lady—you understand—a liberty

The Humours of the Court. Act II. 2. 164 He had made appointment with this certain person To meet by night : I know not who she is ; Laura, thou knowest the sacredness of love : Love is the one thing in the world which women But, wishing to prevent it, I contrived Must guard from profanation ; for by love They rule; and if they trifle with their power, They come to be men's chattels, not their queens. 3.550 To send him on my message to the Duke; With what result you have heard. Thou'lt soon be married, Laura, and I can talk The Duke, my lady, R. Freely of these things: I have taught thee the Is the only gainer here. 1510 And are not you? religious D.R. Yes, I too, if I am raised in your esteem. And philosophic doctrines ; but to-day Then you must help me. D. We deal with facts. And first, then, I rejoice R. I can truly vouch Thy husband will be a man whom thou wilt rule, Your ladyship has read my heart and soul. One who adores thee reverently, who holds I feel heaven-drawn to serve you to the death. Of love, as I, and with some special fancy :-What is't to do? He is quite a poet .- Why, now, shouldst thou smile? D. Only seek out this matter Thou hast no taste in poetry, but suppose St. Nicholas had lacked that inner sight, For me; discover who this lady is. For private reasons I feel justified Had fancied thee merely because he thought thee In using any means to learn the truth A fine girl, and had used the common tricks Dishonestly held from me by my servant : And so I have questioned Tristram. He assures me Of odious trifling, till he dared to kiss thee, And meet thee alone, and put his arm about They met last night : but he is profoundly dull, thee . And not in Frederick's confidence. L. Good heavens, Diana! I hope you do not think R. Has he no notion How Frederick got this letter? He has ever done so. D. No: of course he wouldn't. D.No. But 'tis a fact men do such things ; and that Not with one woman only. And 'tis true Nor a hint R.Of this mysterious lady? 1870 D.He cannot help you. That there are ladies who admit the addresses R. Your ladyship must have a near suspicion. Of more than one man. Only a suspicion that's unfit to tell. O Diana ! D_{\star} L. D.Indeed, Enter Laura. 'Tis true : and women are to blame if men Here is my sister, whom I wish to question. Make them their sport. Thou'rt shocked : but 'tis a Come to me soon again ; I have meanwhile fact Myself a stroke to play. When we next meet That this detested pestilence invades Earth's every nook : my palace doors and bolts, I may know more. 1530 K. Your most devoted servant. My strong precautions, my well-known regard Exit. For strictness, my injunctions, my example, D. Good morning, dearest Laura. Cannot expel it. L. Pray, Diana, tell me What it is : you frighten me. Was any caught Good morning, sister. L. D. Did you sleep well last night? L. I slept till nine. Breaking the rules, or is it but suspicion? D. What hour went you to bed? D. Of the two criminals, the man I know, Ζ. Not very late . . . The woman I know not ; but if I knew her, D. Nay: but what hour?-before eleven? I am in the mood to kill her. L. (aside). What's this? L. (aside). Thank heaven, she does not guess Are we discovered? me-D.Was it before eleven? Who is the man? L. I cannot tell. Why do you ask, Diana? D. Better not ask ; it matters not to thee : What is it has happened? But thou canst help me find this erring Eve. D.Answer me, I beg, If thou'st observed in any one of the maids And you shall know. About that hour of the night Conscious behaviour, scrupulous regard Did you hear any noise? To petty adornment, or, what most betrays, L. (aside). Ricardo's singing .-An inconsiderate blushing . . What kind of noise? 1590 L. (aside). The maids, she says ! 1540 D.Why, any noise, between One of the maids ! Good heavens !-Eleven and midnight. Marcela: D.Did you hear a noise? L. Could it be she? She is handsome. D. 'Tis not she : No : but did you? Ζ. L. O no: 1 heard no noise. She tells me all her secrets. What made you think there was a noise? D.Dorothy? D.I have reason. L. I do not think it. L. Was there a robbery? D. Katharine? D. Nay : no robbery. I., No, not Kate. And yet there was, Laura, a robbery : D. I'll find the traitress out. Of honour,-our honour,-of woman's honour. L. (aside). To save myself

The Humours of the Court.

165

Act II. 2. I had best fall in with this. N. Early is late to them that find their sunrise What do you say? D_{\cdot} In seeing thee, my lady. L. I have not a suspicion, -but . . Better speak, sir, D. D.But what? Vour poetry to Laura. What? N. She is my rose, 1640 L. If there's any one who might be charged The rose of my sun's garden-ground, and I The nightingale forlorn that steal to woo her. D. That's very well. But I now, by my name, With levity. . . D. Who is it? You'll not be angry, Should be your moon. L. Diana? N_{\cdot} I have a verse to fit. [Reciting. D. Nay: but tell me. The flowers of dawn are uplifted to hear 1600 L. I should say, The birds' enamoured tune, If there's one frivolous, and more than others Which tell their love in the pale ear Unapt to profit by the rules . . . Of the far-flying moon. 'Tis who? D_{\bullet} L. I think 'tis your own maid. That's very beautiful. Now, tell your love : D. I fly. D. Flora ?- pooh ! pooh ! [Goes to Sir Gregory. Flora's almost a hoyden. Sir Gregory, sit you to the table : How stupid of me ! These are the articles. [They sit, D. shows papers. L. (aside). D. They meet at night, Laura : unless he dares To pass my chamber-door, 'tis in the garden. G. I much regret The small provision that I make for Laura. Your window looks that way. I thought last night But if St. Nicholas doth as he has promised, That will suffice. I see the treaty lacks You might have heard them. Why, it's very unlikely Nought but the seals. L. I should hear through the window. D. He will make Laura rich. G. My elder brother, as your ladyship knows, D. Still, your window 1610 Gives you an opportunity to watch. Is childless, and next heir to such estates, You could step out and hide in the garden. As fairly promise Laura twenty times L. Alone? As much as what St. Nicholas gives her now. D. I would not ask my sister to play spy, Meanwhile we must not reckon on this chance. 1660 If it were possible that any scandal D. Read it, Sir Gregory. Dared with its spotted finger point at her. L. But who is the man, Diana? L. (to N.). The day is fixed, and there my father D.If I tell,sits And you must know, -promise you will not breathe it. Reading the settlement : what would you more? L. You need not ask. N_{\cdot} O Laura, D. 'Tis Frederick. More gracious words. Who that now heard us talk L.Would guess we were to marry in two days? Frederick ! L. Maybe we are not. N. Nav, Incredible ! D. No, 'tis not incredible. Nay, dear one, do not doubt me : Have I not sworn my faith a thousand times? Nothing is incredible of any man. And, Laura, I know that he is in love. He carries And were I an emperor . . . A portrait of his lady in his pocket.
 L. (aside), Ah!
 D. I'll make an effort first to get at that. Who wants emperors? L N_{\bullet} Or even a prince. Ζ. I do not care for princes. But if I fail, I must ask you to watch G. (aloud). Heigh ! heigh ! Why this will never To-night, just for one night, only one hour. do. What's this? N. But what can now prevent our marriage, You are trembling, Laura. L. So are you, Diana. Laura? L. Human affairs are ever so uncertain,-D.I am angry. L. And one of us might die, -and if 'twas you, So am I. D.No: you are frightened. Think how much needless sorrow I then should suffer For having loved you now. And, seeing the risk, Dare you not watch the garden? 'Twere scarcely prudent to commit myself Γ., O yes: I promise I'll watch the garden well to-night, Diana. More than is necessary. If he should venture again, I'll see him. I think N_{\bullet} O cruel wisdom ! I could wait longer than one hour. Are women all so careful of their feelings? G. Why, what a blundering fellow ! D. What is't, Sir Gregory ? 1630 D.Do so : I shall set guard within. Eleven's the time. G. Heigh! N. But when we are married thou wilt love me, L. (aside.) Could kindest ingenuity contrive Better than this? But how shall I warn Frederick About the picture ?---Laura? L. Yes, when we are married. Enter SIR GREGORY and ST. NICHOLAS. N_{\bullet} I can wait for that : D. Good-morning, gentlemen. I need not ask 'Tis but two days ;-and now we speak of it, The reason why you visit me thus early. I wish that thou wouldst tell me in what colour

166

Act II. 2.

'Twould please thee that I dressed. Or wilt thou come, N. O woman, various woman ! thus to treat The man she loves ! and yet how well becomes thee O'erlook the suits my tailor has prepared, Thy native wit, when sweetest modesty And say which pleases best. Sir, since you strike L. Is masked thereby in tart indifference, The very root of the chord, I'll tell you how You may best please me. There was once a man Which spurs far more than doting tenderness The passion it rebuffs. What wit she hath ! My Laura ! Wit is admirable in woman, I liked, whose custom it was to dress in black : It is so rare; and 'tis the salt of marriage. If you will dress like him . . . NIn black ! F. and R. have entered. 1690 R. (to F.). Here's our belated bee, let's go elsewhere. G. (Laura listens.) Your ladyship, I cannot sign this contract-the provision F. Nay drive him to his hole. I look for is not here; the scribe has blundered. R. How now, St. Nicholas! This is no settlement at all. Who drew it? Musing, I think, on thy good fortune, eh? D. Frederick. N. Good morning, Frederick, and, sir, how do you? R. Fairly, I thank thee, fairly : but in presence G. Then he's no lawyer. I am surprised He took this on himself. Of happiness like thine, mine goes for nothing. L. (aside). So, well done, Frederick ! D. 'Tis most provoking. Are you sure, Sir F. Thou hast been honey-gathering early, sir.
N. 1 will confess it : that was my pursuit.
F. True to thy beeship, thy belated beeship. Gregory, 'Tis as you say ? N. (to Gregory). Will you not sign the contract? G. (rising). I cannot sign it. N. Sir! R. I am sure our friend means no offence. D. There's a flaw, it seems, The happy expressions of true genius In the deed, St. Nicholas : but there's time enough Stick in the memory. 1750 To have it drawn afresh. Pray come, Sir Gregory, F. Yes, sir, it stuck fast. Come to my study. Here we interrupt These lovers. [Beckons G. off. Execut D. and G. The Sphinx's tear was somewhat sticky too. These lovers. Thou didst not spare us ; we were put to shame. N. Is that a reason, sir, before this stranger To mock me? I can appreciate ridicule N. Now they are gone, put off this mask. L. N. Thou dost respect the Countess' eye and ear, N is by that now Prompted by envy at its proper worth. Affecting to find fault with my expressions ! What mask? [Exit. And wilt not love when she is by : but now Good morning, gentlemen, Give me at least thy hand to kiss. L. Why no, sir. N. Say then thou lovest me, sweetest Laura.— L. Nay, but I do not, sir. I understand R. You poets treat each other vilely. F. Now, Richard. R. My scheme is this: I have written to my That women love their husbands, and I promise To love mine when I am married; yes, as well servants; 1710 They will receive you. Leave to-morrow night, As any happy woman on this earth And you will find all ready ; You shall have Hath ever loved. Are you content with that? Such a reception and fair bridal trim, N. I should be, Laura ; but thou dost not speak As if 'twere true. I could see well enough And high festivities as shall dress out The hasty manner of your coming. Thou wert not sorry when Sir Gregory said F_{\cdot} But first, He would not sign. I know thou wilt not love me. L. Then why, in heaven's name, would you How shall I make my escape? I am watched, suspected. R. I can arrange that too. By my behaviour marry me? And letter to the Countess I have contrived N. Because I love thee. But I think no man Did ever love so cruel and strange a mistress. To win her trust. First I shall praise her scheme Of sending you to Milan, and then persuade her L. And you, sir, do no less appear to me 1770 To send you again. You must hit on a plan Distrustful and impatient. Prithee go, How to convey your lady to the carriage, Busy yourself to get your clothes in fashion : In two days is my marriage ; after that-And all is done. N. Well! What shall I do with Tristram? F. R. Leave him to me : my purse will settle him. 1. After that all shall seem different. R. Leave him to me : my purse will settle F. 'Tis excellently schemed ; but if Diana Press me to tell how I obtained the letter, N_{\star} I made a sonnet of my love for thee, And would have given it. Why then did you not? What can I say? 1. N. I lost it in the garden. R. She is easily put off: L. It can't be lost. That question does not touch her. Any tale N. No. Tristram found it and won't give it up. Will scrve. He says that Frederick wrote it. F. Vet, Richard, what so generously Frederick ! nonsense, sir ! Vou do for me must ruin you with her. L. Is't possible you are cured ! Some one is coming. Excuse me. No, no : mistake not ! [Exit. RI am more and more in love : and see my way

Act II. 2.] The Humours of the Court.

167

The accuser ; and, Ricardo, be thou judge. By certain steps : and first to get thee married. Hear all. This gentleman hath been my secretary Her love for thee is a romance, which 1 Now for twelve months. In all my affairs I have set Can shift upon myself when thou art gone. No limit to my trust : I have ever shown him And that she loves thee, thee the worthiest, Absolute confidence : and yet how think you Hath he repaid me? He hath lied to me. Dearest and nearest of my earliest friends, Is no impediment. Is't not half way To loving me? Tis happy for me, Frederick, I accuse him here to his face before you all. He said to-day he had been last night to Milan Thou hast not seen her worth. And hrought me a letter, when he had never been And I half question F. 1790 Whether 'tis not my duty as friend of both there, To close with her and save you. And had not brought it. Contradict me, sir, If I say wrong. You hear he is silent. Now Thou dost not know her, R. Because, I thank thee for it, thou dost not love her. I say he forged that letter. Silence, my lady, And, friend, thy speech is gross ; why the truth is É. There's not a man or woman on God's earth, Is the answer fittest for a charge too gross To be denied. However humble, mean, or ill-appearing, That hath not in his sight some grace and favour, D. Then tell me by what means Which angels see : but mortals overlook it, The letter came to thee. Still silent. I hope Being spiritually blind : for which affliction Thou dost mark that, Ricardo. They have suffered half their shames, and slain the just. F. In my defence I say I have served your ladyship as well But Love, God's gift, is spiritual sight : 'Tis the perception, which man lacks of all, As you have trusted me : and for this matter,-1850 You gave me a letter for the Duke of Milan Given him of one, to see as angels see. This is man's marriage ; and what now I love Requiring speedy answer. I procured That answer in good time. Is not, friend, what thou seest,-though thou mayst Ah, but thou saidst D.see That thou thyself didst bear it, as I bade thee. Silent? Now here's a secret ; there's some matter A beauty unparalleld,—but rather that Which by love's gift I see : so say no more. F. Forgive me, Richard : 'tis a just rebuke. I did speak grossly. 'Tis that artist's pride Withheld from me which I have a right to know. I have cause to think thou hast upon thy person Of which you used to warn me : I will confess it. The explanation. 1 would see what papers 1810 Thou carriest with thee. In my own case 1 am idealist 1 have no papers, madam, At the price of all the world. If I believed F_{\cdot} Such as you look to find. 1 were as others, I should mock myself. Thou sayst that letter I have not yet come to that. Now, in my excuse, D.Was not a forgery. 1 wish to see Diana is sometimes laughable. If something which I think is in thy pocket R. And who Would not be laughable who had his way, Is not a forgery. If on first appearance F_{\cdot} Or if one set his humours on a throne? F. Well, you will rule her. Still there's room to fear Of having wronged you, you mistrust me thus, There is no cure. Demand my papers from me : You may not win her. I cannot take them back. D. I do demand them. R. I doubt not to win : At least if you'll be gone. F. You shall have everything in perfect order Before this evening. Trust me to go. F. D. Stay! I wish to see Enter DIANA with papers in hand. LAURA and What papers thou hast with thee. FLORA. Frederick ! Your ladyship ! This settlement Very well. F. This is the only pocket in my dress; D. Here the contents. (Offers a few letters.) F. Is that the only pocket? 1870 D. D.Is but waste paper. Didst thou draw it thyself? I thought there was another little pocket F. I did, your ladyship. On the left side. D.Then pray explain. F. (aside). Ah ! 'tis that villain Tristram F. If I have made any error . . Hath told her this. D. What say you, sir? Is't true? No answer. Now I think the explanation D.Error, sir ! The lady is here left wholly unprovided. And if Sir Gregory had not by good fortune Lies in that pocket. If I am wrong, 'tis easy To prove me so. But if thou hast a secret . . Studied the terms, but trusted to thy skill, \vec{F} . 1 have a secret, and you are well informed He had left his daughter penniless. 1 carry it on me. And to prove to all There is full time To draw it afresh. I humbly crave your pardon 'Tis of a private nature, I will shew it. 'Tis but this little case. (Shows case of portrait.) For such omission. D.Stay, I have more against thee. D.A portrait-case? 1 will proceed in form. We have an audience : Stand upon thy defence. I am the plaintiff, 1830 F. A portrait. D. Ah, then, now we have the truth :

168	The Humours	of the Court.	Act II. 2.
 Thou art in love. This is the wor That keeps thee at home when forth: Distracted thee in drawing of the F. Enough, my lady; you I enough. D. Oh no! I have now and hood. I have long suspected this; and y When I did ask thee if thou wert Thou didst deny it. But thou do So tell me who the lady is. L. (aside to R.). All's lost! F. (coming quite to front). grant me in private conduct Some liberty: my honest duty at Never surrendered that, and shot To spare me this ungenerous inq D. And very well, sir, if the gressed The rules of the court: these observe: And these, as well thou knowest. To hide their love affairs from m Intrigue, sly correspondence, and Are treason here; nay, they are That to conceal them is a breach Give me thy word then, Frederic Is not of any lady in my court. P. I will not say whether it i D. That is confession. I mu Ricardo, now thy judgment. R. I far, I have too short acquaintance wi Appealed to; and if I offer you a By such unwritten statutes as obtin the best circles that I know, f The court of Milan D. What is the cou Are we not here at Belflor?—You Laura; speak for me. L. All's lost unless I do it 	ondrous sickness A I would send thee e deed have pushed this far other charge of false- yesterday in love, bost not now— Your ladyship must and service and avail 1803 uisition. hou hast not trans- e art thou bound to and forbid my ladies e. Dark meetings, a the rest, so well forbidden, of trust. ck, that this portrait of the court, c, and quit thyself. s so or no. st see the portrait. my lady, th the rules my judgment 1910 ain for instance, rt of Milan ? ou know the rules, w the portrait.	Thou losest in acquittal. O Although thou art a poet, and Thou hast a touch of rarer sto Self-centred ;—nay, tho' thou More than I ever thought the To carry thine own portrait ! For it I well, well ! 'tis a fair Not undeserving of its jewell Poor little image ! now I'm s Thou hast no lady-lover, but In thine own pocket, as it we I'll keep thee —may I not, Fre Of better hopes. Come, Lau Carry his portrait, too? He Exa F. By heaven, well saved R. What 'Twas your own portrait? F. Yes; I Was Laura's. She having m And interchanged them. R. I never saw it. Brav F. 'Twas touch and go. Tristram, He must have told her of it. Re-enter 2 L. The Bids me return the portrait. To look on it, she says,—her F. O, thou of L. O, thou of L. Themble still. F. O, thou of L. Themble still. F. Well, there's the end R. She never really loved you. Here's a new difficulty arisect If she helieves this nonsense, Be jealous for you; and I sh To get you off to Milan. F. 'Tis hest I un And set things as they were. Is ground to work on ; but ti Is bottomless.	Frederick, Frederick ! I mayst think ff, to make thee wert more than that, e to have a pocket picture enough, ed case. orry for thee, must live tre.—Let me have thee, derick ?— a remembrance tra : doth your poet is distanced quite. it D, and L. with Flora. ! . is't ? I understand not. ont that I had line, stepped in between, o !—most deftly done. . That meddling devil, uon Laura. e Countess, Frederick, Thou mayst die e vis. (Giving her own.) Be sure e says not ill. (Kissing il.) lidst well. To-night my window— ! Yes, —by Diana. arewell till then. [E.vit. of it, Richard. Yes : and 'tis plain Yet, if I am right, . Diana, will no longer all never manage orse than ever. deceive her, Her jealousy his foolery
No eye shall learn thy secret but To her 'tis due. So give her up (Aside to F.). I will exchange t F. gives L. the portrait : which	the Countess. the portrait. hem.— h the spectators see her	To get you off to Milan. F. 'Tis we What can we do? R. 'Tis hest I un	orse than ever. deceive her,
D., presents her with that. D. (taking). I thank thee, learn the secret :	Laura; and now to	And set things as they were, Is ground to work on; but the Is bottomless.	Her jealousy his foolery
Impossible,—'tis true. Who we Why, friends, there is no secret a No lady,—'tis himself.— He carries a portrait of himself; Leaning upon his elbow. Now,	ha! ha! ould believe it? after all: himself heaven save me!	Enter F Fl. (to R.). Her ladyship To beg you await her, sir. To speak of with you in priv R. Back to your mistress ;—say	has sent She hath a matter ate. Bear my respects 1970
This I was told; but tho' my ow I cannot credit it. O, gracious s I have wronged thee, and beg pa	sir,	See how I prosper. Get you Step in your shoes. F. Richard, do	a gone, while I not be rash :

Act II. 2.] 7	he Humours	of the	Court.	169
And if you find she is cured, leave we R. Trust me : in serving you I ser	ve myself.	Enabled hi	ent : the merest ch m to escape.
Diana hath not been honestly in love. If 'twere the virtual Frederick she ado She could not so mistake him. "Tis h			Impossib ream. Besides, ho e again, and wish n a fool?	w could he dare 2020
Which jealousy hath magnified to pass And now she eyes him as the fox the g And rather than be crossed, she'll be j	grapes, ¹⁹⁸⁰ persuaded	R. The holder D.	Never! I can	not think it.
That he's an idiot. That's not honest Fanciful consolations are the comfort Of fancied passion,—love needs better		D. Think that	I wish?	And what dost thou, sir, least is clear
Enter D.		D. (asid self—		if I have betrayed my-
D. How now, Ricardo? I have a ing yet.	not done laugh-	Well, sir! R . You love.	are vexed to thinl	c Frederick should be in
What of my ingenious secretary? I the 'Tis well I trapped him : we might els For a lady long enough.		that?	w so, pray?—how e fear to lose so goo	should I be vexed at d a secretary.
R. You are satisfied By this discovery ? D. Clearly ; all is explained		I am vexed	l, that's the truth, a	-Ha! now, Ricardo, at Frederick's love.— right—I am sorry—
I came to tell you the campaign is over Finding there's nought to seek, the see The wonder is, Tristram had solved th	arch is ended.	His lady, w Or, if the a	iffair had sprung wi	ight be in the town : ithin my court,
And told me; but I laughed. R. Now you believ D. Ha! ha!		We have n An appoint	o visitors. If last tment here in the c	ourt,—who can it be
R. How you must now desp D. R. You laugh. 'Tis strange that	I do, indeed.	vexed	? vell of him, and sti	re you surprised I am ll would think the best :
D . Ah ! I laugh to think there was no cause for	r all	R. (aside I almost da). I shall not act there to tell her all :	she tortures
My R . Your D . My needless trouble, my an:		D. R. 'Tis	nothing.—I canno V out of the question	Vhat say you, sir? n, madam.
R. Anxiety,—you mean, lest? D. For my R. (half-aside). Indeed !—indeed !		R .		Nay, tell not me. believe it,
D. 'Twas more than laughable To see him; and you there with your R. I thought you were deceived.	face so grave.	There's but D. R.	t one plan. And that? To	o send him away.
D. I was But now I understand. R. Your ladyship,	deceived,	D. To do it : To-night, 1		Of course I might; I'll
I think, is more mistaken now than ev Frederick hath told me himself that he And that's the truth, both likely, and	is in love;	R. (aside The sooner	e). Now we go too he goes the better	o fast— : and yet your plan Now that he thinks
Even by the accident you set against it You find on him a portrait of himself Set in a jewelled case ; just such a gift		Suspicion 1 Let Lady I	ulled too, he will b Laura watch the ga even if that fail, 't	e more rash. rden, and I
As he might make to his lady. I kno He hath her picture. D. Ah ! you have seen	w, from him,	To send hi D	m off to-morrow. . I thought when l	I came in here, Ricardo, matter : I find instead
R. D. Then I am assured there is no Than that I saw. His servant guessed		For after th Our mutua	his exposure, if Fre- l trust is sapped : a	nd if, as you urge,
'Twas part of a pretence, for which I there may be a cause. There is no la R. Tristram's a fool; and wrests w	ady at all.	Nor can I The weddi	away, there's none do without him. I ng is fixed, for whic	In two days hence ch a host of guests
To outwit himself. D. What then do you beli R. I see the stroke your ladyship j		Would be	overwhelmed : Fre	egory being so deaf derick cannot be spared. him? Did you hear him

The Humours of the Court. Act II. 2. 170 Threaten he would not take his papers back? He sees, no doubt, how necessary he is. chair, my lady, R. No doubt, my lady, he sees that when he is You are over-wrought. (Aside). By heaven, what gone brutes we are ! He cannot be here to help you. 'Twere kinder far to tell her at once-Diana ! D. Who can help me? Dearest Diana ! (Aside). What am I doing ?-Flora ! What is your counsel? Flora! 2070 R. Not to ask a favour Enter Flora. Of one whom you so hotly have charged with wrong. Fl. My lady in one of her fits ! D. I would not. What is it? Look at her, Flora ! R. Sir Gregory then must do his best. R. 'Tis no solution that. Fl. To fan her face, —that's all. D. She will come to herself, See, see ! Then what, my lady, R. R. (aside). This lump 's not fit to touch her.-If I should take the place awhile? I offer My lady !- Diana ! My service, I would do my best. I thank you, D. (awakening). Who's there? Ah, Flora ! D. Ricardo. I hardly like to accept ; and yet Fl. My lady IIas fainted again. You have come to know much that I could not tell 2120 To another. D.Ricardo !--yes, I remember. R. (aside). I win. But she must ask me herself. How foolish. D. I think I might accept.-What say you? Fl. All's well, my lady. R. My lady, D. (to Fl.). Give me an arm. I'll go within. R. Ca I see one difficulty,-I have offered more Than is quite my own : for being the Duke's servant Cannot I help you? I cannot without his leave give pledge to another. D_{\bullet} Oh, no. 'Tis nothing, —a silly habit I wish I were rid of. I thank you. Good evening, sir. D. Cannot you get his leave? R_{*} Yes. I will ask it. And what if Frederick be our messenger? Good evening, madam. R. I promise to bring this all to a happy end. D. I thank you, sir : I would you might. So, Send him again to Milan; the very mission That he played false in : so your dignity Flora. Is salved and explanation saved. Exit with Fl. 'Tis good. D. R. Now, by my soul, Frederick's atrocious ! To-morrow he goes. If you will act in his place-For some ten days, say ? R. Longer, if it should please you. Tis brutal of him. He has let this go too far. She loves him much too well. Good heaven! to D. I thank you, I shall not need it. think R_{*} He might have had her. I owe him everything But if . D.If what? For being so blind, and eager too for his marriage With Lady Laura. Yes, and thanks to her For being so ready; and to St. Nicholas R. If Frederick should resign, and if the Duke Gave me permission, might 1 keep my place? For setting her on : for he in the end appears D. I thank you, sir; I hope there'll be no need. R. But may I hope? As my good genius, tho' he little dreams it. So far, all prospers-all is in good train. D. In truth I know of none To-morrow will decide my fate. I'd rather see in his place. R_{\bullet} A thousand thanks ! D. Why thank me so, sir? I am here the obliged. R. Your ladyship knows not the great desire I have felt to serve her. I am happy to have inspired it. D. ACT III. It comes to me as a sort of consolation In my distress-SCENE I. R. Agreed then that to-night We watch. If nothing come of that, to-morrow 2100 A hall on the first floor of the palace: stairs Frederick is sent to Milan with my letter. at the back leading down. A lamp Only your ladyship must be prepared burning below shines on to the stage. To lose him. Whoever it is he loves, I am sure When we discover her, we shall find a passion Enter TRISTRAM and FLORA hurriedly (R.). Worthy and deep, from which he'll not be moved : Therefore . . . Fl. Fly, Tristram, down the stairs : she is coming. D. O, you are mistaken. I know him better. I know he is cold. Well, well: I thank you. O, wala ! wala ! If she has seen us- T_{\cdot} 2140 Fl. Quick ! And dout the lamp. wish you Exit R. Good-evening, sir.-To-morrow, speak we of this-7. O, wala! wala! But I have been much deceived,-Be not concerned, [Exit down the stairs, back, making a great noise; the 'l'is nothing. [Faints. lamp suddenly goes out.

Act III. 1.] The Humours	of the Court.	171
Enter Diana in robe-de-chambre, with a lamp in her hand. D. Stop, sir! stop, stop! I see you: I bid you	There was a man outside	e my chamber-door stop. Flora, Flora !I'll ring the alarm. [Pulls a rope.	Laughing and talking. it? Who was it was here?	Answer at once !
Will no one come? Enter Ricardo (L.).		rd my lady call ; could be my lady
R. I heard your ladyship call. D. He is here, Ricardo : I heard him, I saw him. R. Where?	At such an hour. D. Nay: I sl: Of course, but I was not	ould be asleep
D. He ran off down the stairs. Follow him and seize him.	·	y and Ricardo (L.).
Bring him back here. Quick ! R . Down the stairs? D . Quick, quick !	At last. Come in, Si	y major-domo r Gregory, come: you are
[Exit R. al back. Is this the way I am treated? and not a servant!	happened :	your ladyship, at what hath
Flora! Come, Flora! Flora! is no one awake? Enter (L.) St. Nicholas hurriedly, half-dressed, carry-	Ricardo hath told me. The unknown intruder h You may retire in safety
ing suits of clothes, a dressing-case, etc. D. Stay, sir! where go you?	Of being disturbed again And see that all's secure	n. 1 will go round 2. To-morrow morning
 N. Fire! fire! The palace is on fire! Fly, fly! D. Stay, sir, I say: the house is not on fire. N. Where is the fire? Mercy! O, heaven save 	There shall be full inqui D. I do not leave this spot	Fo-morrow? Nay, me! D. There is no fire at all. N. No fire! Are you sure?	I guess who 'tis. G. I pray you Retire The cold air of	r ladyship The hall, the excitement
D. I rang the bell myself to awake the house. A man broke in.	At such an hour may ha D. No. If I die I'l	rm your ladyship. I learn the truth at once.
N. Thieves? Robbers? D. I do not know. He has got away. Go, wake Sir Gregory.	'Twas all delusion, that	d when you wake you'll say I never heard 220
N. (going). First let me fetch my sword ! D. Nonsense, St. Nicholas; we need no swords. Go, wake Sir Gregory, and send him here:	A man at all. That wh Was but a bush, a shad He frighted from the ivy	ow, a bat, an owl
Send him at once. $[Exit N. (L.)]$	All will make light of it G. H	eigh ! Give me a light.
Re-enter Ricardo (back). Were you too late, Ricardo ? Did you not catch him? Has he escaped?	The lamp has been extin I'll go and search about [Takes a light from on
R . In the dark, Whoever it was, had passed the door before me,	R. (aside).	ll stay and watch. blers, stand forth one by one
And, like a hare, faster than I could follow, Sped o'er the grass into the house. D. You saw him?	R. (aside). This will She must betray her me
Where went he in? R. At Frederick's door. I reached it In time to hear the key turn in the lock.	Witness the degradation (The maids are congrege out of the passage.	rated at back, R. as they com They stand forth singly to i
D. 'Tis he, then, and escaped in spite of us. But I'll find out with whom he dares R. (aside). 'Twas the fool Tristram :	questioned , and con D. Dorothy first.	ne in turn to front , R.) Dost thou know, Dorothy, e voice I heard up-stairs ;
I saw him plainly enough. Should I not tell her?— D. Ricardo, go and fetch Sir Gregory;	Who, when I left my re Ran out?	oom and gave the alarm,
I have sent St. Nicholas for him, but the man Is scared with terror. R. (aside). While all goes well with me, the less	Dor. 1 do not know D. Didst thou not see or h	I ask ear him?
I meddle The better. I'll let her find this out herself. [Exit L.	Dor. D. Thou wert aslee Dor.	No, my lady. 22 ep? I was asleep, my lady.
D. I'll ring the bell again.	D. Then stand asid Dor. (aside). Here'	le. Now, Kate. s a fine game !
Enter the Maids (R.). So here you crawl at last! I had better keep No maids at all than such a drowsy troop.	D. Sawst thou or h K. D. Nothing at all?	leardst thou anything? No, my lad

The Humours of the Court. [Act III. 1.

Nothing at all, my lady. K. D.Wert thou asleep? 2220 Κ. I was asleep, my lady. D. Step thou aside. Now, Flora. K. (to Dor.). Will she lie? Dor. (to K.). Trust her. D_{} Now, Flora, answer. Fl.I am grieved my lady Should think I could deceive her. I did not ask D.If you deceived me. Heard you any noise? Did you see any man? Fl. Not I, my lady. Dor. to K. (aside). Oh! oh! D. Were you asleep? Fl. I was asleep, my lady. D. Then stand aside. Fl. (aside to K.). Did she believe me? K. (to Fl.). Well ! Thou'st got a brazen face ! Art thou not shamed? Dor. (do.). D. Marcela next. Didst thou hear anything? Mar. I heard no noise until my lady called. Thou wert asleep? D.Mar. D., 'Tis strange. Stand thou aside. Now then for Rose. I was asleep, my lady. Dor. (aside). Now then for Rose. Mar. (do.). She really was asleep. Mar. (do.). She really was asleep Fl. (do.). Then what shall come? D. Now, Rose, thou'rt left alone. Thy fellowservants Have all denied the thing of which some one At least is guilty. Thee I did not suspect : But do not fear to tell the truth. Who was it? Tell me who is thy lover. No tittering there ! Your levity makes you all accomplices, Ay, every one. 2240 My lady, I have no lover. Rose. D. Tell me who this man was. 1 do not know. Rose. I heard no noise till Marcela awoke me. D. Didst thou awake her, Marcela? Yes, my lady. Mar. She was asleep. Rose always speaks the truth. It wasn't Rose. You are all then in one plot : D. Or shame has made you lie. But never think To escape. I know the gentleman, and know He visits one of you : and which it is I'll learn to-night : unless perhaps you'll say He makes love to you all. Mar. Indeed, my lady, He is quite a proper man. And all his courtship Dor. Has been most regular. D. Come, come : confess, Who is it? Fl. It's me, my lady. I must confess. D. Flora! Fl_{} Forgive me, 1 beg; for 1 abjure I never asked him : but, as I often tell him, He takes such liberties; which, as you know him, I need not tell your ladyship : and 'tis true We have been some time engaged. D_{*} Engaged !---to you !

Here's a fine story !

172

2259 R. (aside). She has not said his name. Fl. Indeed, 'tis true, my lady; and I am sure My lady will pardon me. And since he hath told me How kind your ladyship hath been to him . . D. By heaven, I'll have you whipped, -whipped ! Fl. O, my lady ! D. And speak of marriage, you impertinent hussy ! Fl. It was the money which your ladyship gave him, That made us think of marrying. Worse and worse ! D.To spend my present on my waiting-maid. — O thy pretension ! thy pretension ! Think you He really loves you? Fl.Why not? Maids. Ay, why not? D. What hath he ever said to make you think He loves you, Flora? Fl. He told me very often. Before I'd have him . . . D. Ah! Kate. And that I warrant. He's not one of your struck-dumb mumbling sort, That haven't a word. D.Silence ! And tell me, Flora, Something he has said. 2275 Fl. He calls me his little love, - his duck : And says a hundred thousand pretty things As often as we meet. D. A hundred thousand ! His compliments are cheap. Duck, too! F7. My lady, 'Tis what men say. It does not mean a duck. Kate. 'Tis true, my lady; 'tis a common saying. D. Silence ! No one of you dare from this moment To speak to me. You are all alike disgraced. And, that you are not more shamed, disgraced the more. I shall discharge you all. Kate. What! and Rose too! D. To-morrow morning. Bút, Flóra, for you I cannot think of punishment sufficient. Merely to have had a lover,-to have concealed it,-To have even admitted him by night,-were nothing, Ilad the affair been . . . Re-enter Sir Gregory up the stairs with Tristram's hat, holding it up. G. Found on the stairs,-the intruder's hat, my lady : He had thrown it on the lamp to extinguish it, And thereby is detected. Now 's revelation. R. (aside). D. Why,-but whose hat is this? Fl. 'Tis his, my lady. R. Is not this Tristram's hat? D. (aside). Hath he come hither in his servant's clothes? Fl. It's Tristram's hat. K. At least what's left of it. D.Came he disguised ? Fl. 'Twas thus, my lady. As he ran down the stairs.

The Humours of the Court. Act III. 1, 2.

R. (taking his arm). I say, I bade him dout the lamp. I did not mean Sir Gregory, I'll have you for my major-domo. That he should burn his hat. D. (aside). What can this be? It can't have been Tristram.—Answer me, Flora: 2300 [Exeunt. Was it master Tristram visited you to-night? Fl. Of course, my lady. I'd not deny it. SCENE II. D. (aside). I see ! After all, only Tristram .- Came he alone? Frederick's room; open portmanteaus, &c. Answer me at once. lying about. Near the fireplace R. is a Fl. I am much ashamed, my lady, cupboard with key in lock. A table in He came alone. And yet, my lady, I swear I never bade him; nor asked him, for that matter. centre. I heard his step, and found him waiting there By the big clock. How he came in I know not. D. Enough: I shall discover. All leave but Enter Frederick carrying music, and Tristram. F. All my clothes are in, you say, Tristram? T. Everything, sir. Flora. F. You pack well, Tristram : put in these. (hand-[Excunt maids except Fl. Thank heaven they have not guessed . . (Aside). Is there room for the music? ing musie.) and yet how nearly T. Anything, sir. Lie there, ye wrigglers. (begins My jealonsy betrayed me! (To Fl.) I told you, to sing to himself.) F. And this book. T. Where is it yo Flora. I shall discharge you. Tho' I do not doubt Where is it you may be going, if you please, Tristram came here without your invitation, sir? F. Yet in concealing his pretensions from me Never mind. You pack very well, Tristram. You have disobeyed,-deceived me. I shall miss you. Fl. I was afraid T. If the Countess has sent you to Milan, will My lady would forbid him. you not want your best black velvet doublet? D. Silence, girl ! Go to your room. I'll speak of this to-morrow. Fl. 1 hope my lady will forgive his boldness. F_{\star} I shall wear that on the journey. T_{\star} Wear your best black velvet on the road ! Well !- Stay we long away, sir? F. Never mind. Now shut it up and give me the I have told my lady all. Begone ! begone ! [What think you of this, Ricardo? key. D. Exit Fl. $(T_{o} R.)$. What think you of this, R. Tis the wrong fox we have hunted. Ah, I thin 2320 T. I should like to know, sir, how long we stay away, and when we are to start. Ah, I think F. Give me the key. Now, Tristram, I understand that the Countess has dismissed you from her household. That saves me explanation. Here's your Fox is the word. I half believe that Frederick And Tristram are in league. R. I guessed the truth wages (puts money on the table) for the current quarter. You are no more my servant. T. Good heavens ! do you discharge me, sir? I When Flora first confessed. D.I was too hot. beg, what have I done to offend you? You think too ill of Frederick. R. Nay, Ricardo: F. Never mind. D.Do not defend him. 'Tis enough to shame him The Countess has discharged you,-that's enough. Tho' you're a fool, Tristram, to say the truth, That Tristram is his servant. G. I pray my lady I have got accustomed to you, and shall be sorry Will now retire. To part with you. I have quite as many reasons Yes, true, Sir Gregory. For wishing you to stay, as you have given me To be dissatisfied. But so 'tis fated ; D.2376 'Tis time, high time. And let this trophy here And what God willeth, Tristram, needs must be Be sent to its owner; and to-morrow morning Bid him come speak with me. Tell him, Ricardo. Good-night. [Exit Gregory lighting her out, R. After the opinion of certain clerkes. T. 1 am not to go with you to-day to Milan? R. I am now secure of her : since in my presence F. No, Tristram. Now we part. She hath so consented to disgrace her idol. He is quite dethroned : she knows too that 1 know. T. Consider, sir, That Flora is discharged as well as me : He is past recovery. Could she but have seen him Cannot you take us with you? Walking with Laura in the garden, plotting You and Flora F. Their flight to-morrow ! And I to climb by such With me ! 7. What shall we do, sir? What shall we do? F. I'll tell you what. While you were in my A ladder of comedy, tottering with laughter, To love's very heaven ! After three years of pain Three days of farce, disguise, and folly ; and then, service Suddenly win my joy ! You served me ill, pryed into my affairs, Took bribes to spy upon me :- I know, - attend. Re-enter Sir Gregory.

2341

And thou, Sir Gregory,

Eigh !

Shalt be my major-domo.

G.

If you would win my favour, you must serve me Now you are discharged. You can assist me, and if You serve me better, I'll use my interest, Tristram, To get you a decent place.

173

The Humours of the Court. Act III. 2.

174 What is't to do? T. F. 'Tis this. An hour from hence I must be off. 2391 St. Nicholas will likely enough be here After his marriage settlement. Now, Tristram, He must not find me. Wait for him here :- do you see ?---And if he comes, get him out of the way. And if Ricardo comes, tell him that I Am gone to seek him and shall soon return :

Bid him await me here. If by your help I get off quickly, I will help yon ; if not,

Tristram, I'll cut your throat from ear to ear. [Exit.

7. Heavens ! what has possessed my master, and what's to happen to me? O wala, wala! It all comes of love : or rather, I should say, it all came of my hat. I would it had been consumed entirely. This hole in the crown is not to be mended . . . and all round it 'tis like tinder, it breaks with a touch. Of what contemptible material are these hats made! It might have been sewn up else. Now 'tis a picture of me. Yes, the hat is me, as it were ; the hole in the crown is the ruin of my fortunes wrought upon me by the fiery lamp, which is my love for Flora. There's a parable. Could I write a poem on this, it might appease the Countess. Deary me ! What are Flora and I to do? Money being the root of all evil, I must look first to that. All depends on that. Let me see what I can muster. There's my pay; there's the Countess' present, and my little savings. (turns out his purse and pockets on to the table.) I'll put it all in heaps of ten. No, heaps of five: hetter in fives, there'll be more heaps; and there's comfort in the number of heaps. Tho' less lordly, 'twill be more showy. Five, ten, fifteen, twenty. (knocking at door.) Come in,-twenty-five.

Enter St. Nicholas.

N. Tristram! Where's your master?

Twenty-five. My master's no more. Twenty-six. T.N.Frederick is dead?

T. (singing). What dead, my dearie?

Oh no, my dearie.

What is this nonsense, Tristram?

N. What is this nonsense, Tristram? T. When I meet with a poet, St. Nicholas, I can speak poetry.

N. I came to see your master, Tristram; and you said he was dead.

T. I said he was no more, not that he was dead : and, as I say, he is no more my master. I am, as 'twere, a gentleman at large ; and I sit here by invitation, engaged on my own affairs, which do not need assistance.

N. I came to see your master on important husi-ness, Tristram. Be civil enough to tell me where he is.

My master is nowhere. This was twenty-six. T.

N. I shall wait for him here. 7. Well, if you choose to wait, I know what you come after. 'Tis not the sonnet. will Exclarick he back, Tristram?

N. When will Frederick be back, Tristram?

7. But I'll give you back your sonnet, if you will write me a poem about my hat, this hat. 'Tis but to versify my own imaginations. See! I am the hat: the hole in it is my discharge : the flame which burnt the hole is Flora,-that's the Countess' maid. All is good. There's the blackness of the hat, the fire of the lamp, the abysm of the hole: it lacks but the moon, which you might shift to see through the crown; and if you could weave in with that your sphinx and something about death, I think that I might tickle the Countess' ear to reconsider of my discharge; for she loves poetry.

N. Curse thy impertinence, Tristram. Where's thy master?

T. I will shew you where your master is, if you curse me or aught of mine, master Nick.

N. Darst thou speak to me thus? T. Did you not call me a thief, and base-born clown?

X. Art thou not both? T. Whate'er I be, Mr. Poet, I have now no master, nor any obligation to any gentleman to make believe for his convenience that thou art aught. Thou ! Why thy brainpan hath nought in it but shoddy, I warrant. Thou combed ass ! thou lefthanded goose !-- to curse me !

N. By heaven, I cannot away with thee. T. No, that you can't. (Aside). I have it. I'll shut him in the screeky cupboard.-Well, sir : I know what you come after. 'Tis the marriage papers, is it not? I was bid see to them. Look in that cupboard.

N. Ah! are they there? (Goes to cupboard and looks in. T. pushes him behind, and shuts door on him, locking it.) T. There curse me, and seek your papers.—(Aside).

I think I have him now. If this does not satisfy my master, I'll never try to please him again.

 $N_{\rm ceithin}$). Let me out at once. There are no papers here. What did you shut me in here for? $T_{\rm ceithin}$ To follow your occupation—to lounge, lounge in the cupboard. Am I a thief?

N. Let me out, I beg of you, Tristram.T. Not till you have made my poem, or told me a cure for the rheumatics. Ay, bawl and kick : I will finish my accounts. Kick away, one for each pile. Twenty-six it was : twenty-seven, twenty-eight, twenty-nine, thirty. Why you overdo it: you kick by the ducat. With three and a half, (pocketing.) thirty-three ducats and a half. Silence! silence! 'Tis more kicks than half-pence, as they say. If you will be quiet, I will give you back your sonnet. (Takes it out and reads)-

Master of mine, remember for pitie.

Ha | who's your master now ?-I will recite the end part, which I have never read.

Once in a vesture of pale erimson came Once in a vesture of part the whose eyes are dim That willowed Archdelight, whose eyes are dim With gazing on a book of writhing flame :

My stars ! and no wonder neither.

And with him Hope, the stringless harp-player, Himself an embelem, harped in mine ear His long-lost Sapphic song and nuptial hymn.

Hem! Very good, sir, as far as it goes. You should finish this and have it ready by the wedding. See ! I will thrust it to you under the door. Won't you

Act III. 3.] The Humour	s of the Court. 175
take it back? If I have not charmed him to sleep with his own verses! Ha! he bites—he lives. (N. pulls it to him from within.) (To himself). This is very well. But I wonder why my master wished him out of the way; and why he is sent to Milan; and taking all these things with him; and why he is travelling in that doublet. He hath no care for his clothes. Yet I'll do him a last service, and brush it for him. 'Tis saily dusty (having taken it down). He shall not say that his old valet neglected him in aught. So lie there, (puts doublet on table.) Pockets full, of course. If I were a gentleman, I'd have no pockets. How can velvet lie? How can one smoothe it down, suffed out in a lump like this an old handkerchief, I'll warrant no a glove: a lady's glove: a very secret affair: one he hath stolen to write verses on. I shall tell the Countess of this. (Knocking at the door heard.) This will be Mister Ricardo, I suppose. Come in !	The fellow lives in. The room in such disorder: He might be going away for good. Two such 250 Immense portmanteaux. What's all that for now? There is something going on that I do not know of Tristram's discharged that's true. (sees glove on floor; and picks it up mechanically to put it on the table.) A lady's glove I Yes, 'tis a lady's; thrown upon the floor. What see I? that embroidery 'Tis Laura's; Laura's. St. Nicholas hath been here.— No, no. Yet the only other explanation It cannot be I see it all 'Tis true . Her tears and strange farewell to me this morning : Her treatment of St. Nicholas : and Frederick, Why be mistook the contract these portmanteaux.— By heaven, by heaven, there's no time to lose : They're off. (going out, passes close to cupboard. N. makes more noise than ever.)
Enter Sir Gregory , G. Tristram, where's your master? Not at home?	Ha!—Heigh! 'Tis here, then: not in the chimney. Eh!—who's
T. shakes his head. G. Do you know where he is? T. shakes. G. Has St. Nicholas been here? 2530	here ? (Opens cupboard.) St. Nicholas ! N. O, Sir Gregory, you would not hear. G. Who shut you in the cupboard ?
7: nods. G. Is he gone?	N. Tristram. G. Tristram?
T. nods. N. (kicking harder). Sir Gregory! Sir Gregory!	N. assents. G. And is this Laura's glove? Look at it.
I am here ! G. Do you expect your master soon ?	N. (nodding). It is. G. Then tell me : did you bring it here? Could
T. nods. G. 1 may sit and await him? (T. bows and gives a chair. G. sits to table. T. takes doublet from table. The glove falls on the floor. G. takes out papers, and lays them on the table to	you By any chance have dropped it here? N. (disclaiming by gesture). 1? No, sir. I came to seek for Frederick. G. (to himself). What can this mean, ²⁵⁸⁰ read them. T. (hanging up doublet). Now shall the cupboard- door speak to the old gentleman. (pretends to busy	Unless to keep his rival out of the way?— Listen, St. Nicholas, I have discovered something Concerns you nearly.—I think—I am sure—himself. N. makes a great knocking.) G. Come in ! There is some one at the door, Tristram.	Nay: I'll not tell you what I suspect 'Tis but suspicion. But you have been, I fear, Most shamefully beguiled.
T. shakes. G. I think there is. (goes to door and opens it:	N. Ay, that I was. He said that I should find my settlement finds no one, and returns.) (Aside). Frederick is unaccountably remiss,	In the cupboard. G. Patience. I will go to Laura
Most unaccountably remiss.— Tristram, I am sure I hear a noise. What is it?	And learn the truth. Meanwhile, seek out the Countess,
T. (going up to G., shouts in his ear). They are sweeping the chimney in the next room, Sir Gregory.	And beg her give me an interview at once. I'll come to the ante-chamber. By heaven, St. Nicholas
C. Al.,—Vou would much oblige me, Tristram, if you would go and seek your master, and tell him that	And yet I scarce know There's no time to lose :
T. (nodding). I can't refuse, and I've done my	Come quickly. [Excunt.
duty by St. Nicholas. Yet 'tis sad to miss any of	SCENE III.
this play. I will go, and be back in a trice. (Pass-ing the cupboard, to N.). Thou silly ! he'll never	A room in the palace.
mind thee. N . Curse you, Tristram !	Diana and Frederick.
T. Hush thee, my babe. [Exit.] G. (walks about restlessly).	$\begin{array}{llllllllllllllllllllllllllllllllllll$
The man's as strange as his master. How Diana	D. Here is my letter : give it to the Duke.

Can trust her affairs to one so wholly unfit, So unmethodical! And what discomfort The answer is not urgent : it may keep you A day or two at Milan.

x

The Humours of the Court. [Act III. 3. 176 F. You wish, my lady, N. But listen a moment. Tristram locked me in I should return? the cupboard . . D. What is this? I cannot see you. N. But Sir Gregory sent me to entreat an inter-D.Why not? F. 1 understood view at once,-he said at once. Your ladyship to accept my resignation. D. Then tell Sir Gregory that I will see him in 2500 It lies with her convenience but to fix half an hour ; until that time let no one disturb me on The day of my dismission. any account,-not even Sir Gregory. [Exit. D.Do you wish To leave my service? I could never serve N. I'll he well satisfied. I'll be revenged. F. To shut me half an hour in a dark cupboard, Where I am distrusted. D.Would you reconsider With all the flock and flue, 'mong cast-off clothes, Your angry speech, I would make some concession. Old boots and shoes : call me an ass, a goose, F. 1 had cause for anger. That I would concede. And mock my muse . . a fellow . . a common fellow. But I too was provoked; and in the end A man that is the servant of the servant I came off worst. Of the adoptive sister of my Laura ! Not so, my lady. He shall be swinged. Sir Gregory will right me : F. D. Sir Gregory will avenge me. Had heaven but given me I sought His inches, why, I'd do it myself. I'd flog him, 2650 To learn your secret, and was merely fooled. Till he cried mercy, mercy! mercy, St. Nicholas, Mercy, 1 pray! No, no: no mercy, sir. F. I understand not how your ladyship Was first provoked, -at least with me. 2610 Nay, true : Down on thy knees ! No mercy, sir, from me. D. 'Twas a mistake. We need no explanation, No mercy. (beating a chair.) And may be friends again. Enter Sir Gregory. F. I cannot offer Her ladyship my services. G. St. Nicholas, where's the Countess? You leave me? D.N. (shouting). She says that she will see you in 'Tis better that I should. I thank your ladyhalf an hour. G. In half an hour !- Nay, I must see her at once. ship For many kindnesses. I pray sincerely You have been betrayed. You may be better suited. N. I have. I have been betrayed. D.No fear for that, But you shall see me avenged. G. And I must see her at once. (going in.) N. (withstanding him). She bade me say Frederick : for by my soul I think There is no other man would so have wronged me As thou hast done. . . My only fault hath been She could not see you. To have thought too well of thee. But do not dream Do not stay me, man; G. I am unprepared. I have seen thro' thee, Fred-Your happiness is at stake. erick; Nay, she forbade it. N_{\bullet} Yes, thro' and thro'. My offers of concession She said in half an hour. I made to prove thee, lest thou shouldst pretend G. (half-aside). Why does he stay me? In half an hour he says. What can I do? By that time he'll be off. (Aloud). St. Nicholas! His coach is at the door : in half an hour That I was unforgiving. In the letter I have writ the Duke, thou bearest the commission Of thy successor. Henceforth I reject thee : And treat thee as thou deservest. Go, sir, go ! 'Twill be too late : He will have got away. Indeed, I care not whether thou go or not. Go to the stables, mount yourself at once With three or four of the grooms, and ride together To the further gate of the park. There wait for F. I have then your leave to stay away? My leave ? D. 2630 I bid thee go, and never see me more. Frederick's carriage : 2680 Stop it. If she is within, I give you warrant To bring them back : if she be not within, I have done with thee, sir. Go ! [Exit F. bowing. Follow. She awaits him somewhere on the road. And that's the man I loved ; the man for whom I sank to jealousy. Who is't he loves? Wherever it be, take them, and bring them back : You have a father's warrant. He love! The fool was right : he loves himself. N. Who is it you speak of, sir? Now will he bide at Milan. Ah, good sir, G. Heigh! N. Whose carriage shall I stop? Thy lady is not there, and yet thou goest Most cheerfully,—thou goest. And it was thou Didst write soft verses : music too.—thy music. Why, Frederick's G. N. And who's the lady? Who is the lady, ask you? Why Laura, my And I thinking I loved thee was betrayed G. A thousand times . . and to be scorned-by thee ! daughter. Scorned for another. (Weeps.) N. Laura with Frederick !

G. I went to her room : she's flown, and with a maid.

Enter N. hastily.

D. (going off). Nay, sir : I cannot see you.

N. My lady, I pray.

She hath packed up clothes and gone. I am right, I am sure.

2700

- N. And shall I stop them?G. Lose no more time. Begone! Do as I bid.N. There's some mistake; Laura with Frederick ! N. There's some mistane, Why we were to be married ! Nicholas, els
- G. Fly! fly! St. Nicholas, else 'twill be too late. [Exit N.

The man's a dolt : he'll never be in time, And I that call him fool, why what am I? With my grey hairs—and such an idiot, Not to have seen ! And if I had only known

That Frederick loved my Lanra, and she him . . .

Why did they never tell me? My dearest Laura, . .

To marry without my knowledge, . . . run away Without my blessing . . . it shall not be . . . as if Against my will . . . not to ask my consent . .

And count on my approval. O Laura, Laura !

If I had known-and now no doubt

'Tis past all hindrance . . . Am I not a fool To wish to stop them? Perhaps they have not started.

I may be in time. I will tell Frederick all, --

I do not disapprove . . nay, I approve.

'Tis better far . . and yet how can I ?-

My word is plighted to St. Nicholas.

'Tis better they should get clear off. Heaven speed them !

Why did I send that idiot after them?

I wish they may escape. O Laura, Laura ! Without my blessing. Yet thou hast my blessing.

God bless thee ! I try and hinder thee? O no.

I will go stop St. Nicholas. [Hurries out.

SCENE IV.

Frederick's room as before.

Enter Frederick and Ricardo.

F. (hastily). Good-bye: I'm off. Speed you as well as I.

Laura is to meet me in the park : an hour Will put us out of reach.

Farewell. God speed you ! R_{\cdot} All is prepared at Milan; and ere you are married, I shall be accepted.

Write me word.

R. I will.

I'll not believe it till I see your hand. F.

R. Not if Diana write herself?

 F_{\cdot} To me?

That might persuade me. Richard! Good luck to you,

And thanks for all your favours.

F.

2730 R. Favours ! eh ! To an old friend ! Well. Good-bye ! F.

Good-bye.

[Taking up coat, Exit. R. (leisurely). He's gone. Bravo ! give him two minutes more

And he will be clean gone : and when he is gone I shall not fear to tell Diana all.-

He is lost to her; and that I have won her liking

Ends her caprice. Now, 'tis my pleasant duty To send my letter to Sir Gregory, (takes out letter and peruses it.) And open his eyes : he must not be left groping. (looking it over.) First who I am; and what I have done, and do 2740

To assist his daughter in her happy match. When he knows that, he'll bless me : and he must tell Diana of Frederick's marriage; but of me

Keep counsel awhile-better to put that plainer (gues to inkstand and writes.)

Yet a slight hint of something to Diana,

If I could manage it, would serve me well.

Enter Tristram.

(still writing.) Ah, Tristram : come in, Tristram : (aside). This leaky fool is just the man to do it .---Lend me your company for half an hour.

T. Your company! here's wonders. I never knew you ask that before. 'Twas always stand off, Tristram: and you may go, Tristram: and we don't want you, Tristram. What's come to you now, that you ask my company?

R. Your master's gone, Tristram; and I shall feel lonely.

T. My master is gone : and, as I believe, many thanks to you. I don't know why ever you came here; but since you came all has gone wrong: there's been more secrets and less sense : and now my master, or I should say, my late master, has quarrelled with the Countess and me; and I am turned loose on the world.

R. Do you want a fresh place, Tristram?T. If I did, you are scarcely the man I should look to; thank you all the same.

R. I could give you some good advice.

I don't want your advice neither, sir. T.

R. Vou love secrets, though : I have one I could tell you.

T. I have had enough of secrets. I wish you could tell me something that isn't a secret. R. It's no secret, Tristram, that you love Miss Flora.

No, damn it: but it was a secret: and the T. best of them all. But now my master's gone, I dare tell you a secret, sir. I always disliked you extremely from the first : and I don't think better of you now .-I have to put a few things together before the maids come to do the room; and if you don't go, I shall leave you to be dusted out.

R. Wait, Tristram: I can teach you better man-ners. And I have a service to ask of you. Here's a purse to help you and Flora. (giving.) T. Well, this is a different matter. I am sure, sir, I am very much obliged to you. But I never saw the colour of your money before. (Aside). More ducats !

R. Nn: because you served me better by trying to disoblige me. Now I pay you to oblige me in a trifling matter. 'Tis to find out Sir Gregory and deliver this letter to him.

T. Certainly, sir. Is there anything else that you may require, sir? R. Yes. Just light me a taper, and I'll seal the letter. Vou see I don't trust you altogether, Tristram: not yet.

T. You may, sir. I want no more of Mr. Fred-erick's secrets. Not that they were at all times unprofitable, though he never himself gave me a penny on their account. 2800

178

R. (having sealed). Here 'tis. Will you please take it at once ?

T. (taking). I will, sir. (Aside). More secrets still: and more ducats. [Exit.

R. Enough should grow to reach Diana's ears From Tristram's curiosity. Meanwhile I'll watch my time. My rival's safely gone . .

But how to face Diana? I think 'tis best

To take her by surprise : a weaker force

Then overwhelms. I will go change my dress. 2810

SCENE V.

The hall up-stairs, or other room in palace. Tristram and Flora meeting.

THa, Flora ! where's Sir Gregory ? What red eyes: blubbering !

Fl. I am discharged, Tristram, discharged. The Countess has discharged me for keeping company with you. And she has been crying too, to have to part with me. What ever will come to us?

T. What matters? I'll cheer thee, girl. Look hcre! More money. There's five pieces of gold : and all for carrying this letter to Sir Gregory. Where is he?

F?. Who gave it you?T. That Mr. Ricardo. It's a mystery, Flora: but there's something in it, I do believe.

Fl. Mr. Ricardo? T. Ay. Who should he be that scatters gold, and seals with a crown, look ! and says that he will find us new places, and all sorts of fine promises? A man that would flick me away whenever I came near him.

Exit.

Fl. Did he, Tristram? 2839 T. Ay, that he would. But I heard him say once that he came here for his cure. I take it he's cured now; and he would make friends all on a sudden, and begs me kindly carry this to Sir Gregory. 'Tis his farewell no doubt. He will go home, and take me with him.

F?. And me too?T. Not if you blubber. Where's Sir Gregory.F?. I don't know. The Countess has bid me go seek Lady Laura. T. Come! I'll with you as far as the library, where I think I should find the old gentleman.

Excunt.

Enter Diana.

D. Rejected ! by the man I loved rejected : Despised by him, and by myself betrayed ! And all will know it-I could not hide it.

Our nature hath this need : woman must love. But oh ! to have made my idol of a stone, To my worship a déaf unanswering stone ! At last I am cured. Since not my rank suffices 2850 To set me above the rules I gave my maids, I'll never love. Am I to stand and wait, Till some man fancy me, and then to melt And conjure inclination at a nod? O man, thou art our god : the almighty's curse Crowns thee our master : from the green-sick girl That mopes in worship of the nearest fool,

To the poor jaded wife of thirty years Who dotes upon her striker, 'tis the same. . . That's not for me. Nay give it up altogether : Go free. If man's so base ; if that high passion, That spirit-ecstasy, that supersensual, Conscious devotion of divinity Of which I dreamed, is only to be found In books of fanciful philosophy, Or tales of pretty poets . . why then away With books and men! my life henceforth shall prove Woman is self-sufficing : in my court No man shall step, save such as may be needed To show my spirit holds them in contempt. Women shall be my friends and women only; 2870 And I shall find allies. I had in Laura All that I could desire, a friend, unselfish, Devoted, grateful, and as yet untainted By any folly of love : and her I schemed To marry away. 'Tis not too late : I'll save her : She shall not be enslaved : she doth not love. Her heart is free and generous ; it has shrunk By instinct from the yoke : she will join with me ; And if I tell her all,-or if she have guessed,-Now when I tell her she will comfort me. Comfort and counsel, friendship, that I need And she can give. I never will part from her.

Enter Flora.

Fl. Oh, my lady: the Lady Laura is gone, she has run away.

D. Run away!Fl. Sir Gregory is coming to tell you all about it. She has run away with Mr. Frederick. D. Nonsense! How dare you tell me . . . F?. I guess it's true though. I remember now I used to say how strange it was that such a sweet lady, and so clever and proper a gentleman as . .

D. Silence, Flora ! What has come to you? What makes you say this?

Fl. Because she's not to be found. But Sir Gregory will tell you.

D. Send Sir Gregory at once. (Aside). This is impossible, impossible.

Fl. See here he comes.

D. (aside). Ah ! if this were Frederick's secret !

Enter Sir Gregory.

2910

What is it? Sir Gregory, tell me. G. I scarce dare tell your ladyship the tidings I have to bear.

D. (aside). It's true ! it's true !

My daughter G.

Has run away with Frederick.

(Diana sinks on a chair ; Flora runs to fan her.) Ah! my lady!

What have I done ? I was too quick. D.Nay, nay, Flora, hegone. 1 can hear all. You knew it?

G. I had not the least suspicion of the truth; Altho' it needed but the merest trifle To clear my sight. I chanced to find her glove In Frederick's room. All flashed upon me at once.

I ran to seek her. She was gone. A message She left was given me, that she would be away All the afternoon : but since she had taken with her A valise . . .

Act III. 5.] The Humours	s of the Court.	179
D. She, 'twas she O most dissembling, Ungenerous, ungrateful Fl. I said 'twas true. D. Begone at once I bid you. [Exit Flora. G. I ran in haste	D. Silence. How you get letters from the Duke of T. How I get letters from the D D. There's nothing now to hide, T. I swear, my lady, that I know	of Milan. uke of Milan? so tell the truth.
To tell your ladyship; but for some reason Could not he admitted: so I took such steps To arrest them as I might	Of the duke of Milan than a babe un Your ladyship accused me once befo	nborn. re
D. If a! they are seized? G. I have since repented of my haste : a letter	Of having been at Milan, when 'twa That I had not gone, and never wish Knowing my lady's strong impartial Labout a set mature	ied to go.
Beyond prevention. It has been maturing Under our eyes for months. We must give way.	I should not venture. D. This will not do. Enter Ricardo.
'Tis strange we never guessed it. This very morning I was in Laura's room ; and when we parted She made such long farewells, and looked at me	(G. beckons T. aside, and during whispers him, and G. and D
With such reluctance, and such brimming eyes, I saw she had some trouble untold; and thinking 'Twas her dislike of Nicholas, I repented	R. My lady, The culprit is discovered. D. Ah, Ricardo
I had ever urged the match. I little thought, Dear girl, 'twas sorrow that she dared not tell me Her joy.	I had forgot was this thy plan ? I cannot praise thy skill sufficiently. All hath gone well. And since no
D. (aside). Her joy! no doubt! Here's a fine father ! What doth he wish? Ah, doubly have I been fooled.	served Thy master and his friend in all thou And under the pretence of aiding me
How plain 'tis now to see. The only one I have never once suspected ; the only one It could have been. And Frederick must have told	Hast been the ready man, more than To practise on me, and do me injury I'll school my patience till I have sa	;
her My love of him. All I would have kept secret And thought was hid, hath been as open as day:	My curiosity to know what thought Urged thee,—whom I confess I who And whom I thought to have made
And what I sought to learn hath been kept from me By them I trusted to discover it. Tristram, no doubt, whom I supposed a fool, 2940	thus Against the laws of hospitality, Without the excuse of passion, thou	shouldst wrong
Hath merely played with me. Thank heaven they are gone. I'll never see him again. Befooled : befooled.	A lady so unkindly. R . Ah, Diana ! Hast thou not guessed my secret ?
 G. They have been befriended by the duke of Milan. D. The duke of Milan too ! G. It was his letter 	Did the Duke send thee here to insu R . Dearest Diana, I am the duk D . Ha! thou! Thy face behind	e of Milan.
I spake of. Frederick is, he tells me there, His old school-friend; he begs my pardon for him, Will fête the bride and bridegroom in his palace, And have the Archbishop marry them. 'Tis thither	thou. Should I have known it? No. I c I knew it so little. By help tho' of I recognize your grace. 'Tis like th	thy acts
They are fled. D. Then all this is a plot of the Duke's ! G. (aside). I dare not tell her more.	That hast not scrupled thus to steal Masked and disguised ; by forgery a Written recommendations of thyself,	upon me nd falsehood,
D. Who brought the letter ?G. I wish my dear girl joy. She has chosen well.D. Who brought the letter ?	Making thee out to be some gentlem Of trust and honour. Oh 'tis admir The use thou makest of thy rank, to	an ³⁰⁰⁰ able, '
G. Tristram gave it me. D. (half-aside). How came he by it? Enter Tristram.	Thy friend, my secretary, to elope With an orphan and my ward. II.	aste, haste ! I bid
 T. My lady! I have something now. D. Tristram, I bade you leave the court: how dare you 	thee; Lest thou be late for the feast. Bea My glad congratulations. (sinks on R. (running to her). Diana! Dia	a chair.)
Appear before me again? Silence, I say! I know your news: you have served Your master with such lying skill, I wonder	 D. I need no aid from thee, sir. R. In kindness hear what I came In justice hear my answer to the cha 	Nay, begone ! e here to say. rges
He did not take you and your Flora with him : There was not room enough perhaps in the coach For two such couples.	Thou hast made. But first I claim i D. What promise, sir?	How!
7. 'How, if you please, my lady, 2060 Are Flora and I two couples?	R Your secretary's plac If Frederick left.	e

The Humours of the Court. Act III. 5. 180 Than thou thyself; I knew that thou must love : Make you me still your jest? D. Or is love tender?-See my childish tears O dearest Diana, think not that I jest. R_{*} 3015 Crowd now to hear my sentence. I'd be thy secretary all my life, So I might only take the place which Frederick D. Ah, this were love, If it were só. Held in thy affections. D. (rising). In my affections ! why, R.Diana, it is so. 3070 There is nought to-day in all the world but this, What means your grace, I beg? R. Diana, Diana! I love thee. Alas ! how was I wrong ! Sir, sir ! Have I not won thee? Did I not obey thee D.Thou bringst me, or at least thou seemst to bring me, By silence and long absence, till my life Grew desperate, and my misery made me bold To come to thee disguised? I thought that thou The gift of God. Whether it be so or no How can I tell? 'Twould wrong it—nay I cannot Take it in haste. I cannot. I understand. Nay, leave me. I know not what to say . . your Perchance wert adverse to my suit for thinking I loved thee only for thy beauty's sake,-Since at first sight I loved and only sight,blind Attachment is't not cured? And for thy mind's grace thou wert rightly jealous Of such a passion. Now, if I guess well, Cnre all but that R. (kneels.) I am thy true lover, By my acceptance. I have won some favour in these happy days . . . Thy only lover. Bid me rise beloved. D. Favour! D. Hush, some one comes. Rise! rise!R. Thy hand! 'tis mine, 'tis mine. And if thou hast dreamed thou hast loved R.another, 'Tis no impediment : for first this man, 2030 (Kisses it and rises.) Whom thou hast honoured is my nearest friend ; Enter St. Nicholas with Gregory. Frederick and And not to have loved him were to have disregarded Laura following. The only part of me thou ever knewest. But him, for very lack of loving rightly N. They are caught, your ladyship : they are caught, Thon hast much mistaken and wronged, and, as I think, Driving away together : and Frederick Was making love to Laura in the coach. Now for misunderstanding bearest ill-will. D. I bear him no ill-will, your grace. R. Now now! how's this? Frederick so soon R.rcturned; Nor me? And taken by the honeysucker ! D. But what you have done? R.Love can excuse me all. N_{\star} Sir, Your honeysucking Frederick would have rohbed What woman judges by proprieties The man who would die for her, and who without her My sweetest flower : but like a skimming swallow Regards not life? Passion atones my fault. That takes a fly in his beak, I snapped him up D. Your only excuse is your offence. At the park gate. 'Tis thus: He'll prove a bitter morsel, ĸ. R_* I fear, St. Nicholas. If I am not pardoned, I am not loved ; but if My lady, speak. I am loved, I am pardoned. If thou sayst to me N. What shall be done to them that have infringed I never knew thee, but I know thee now, The laws of the court? Whatever punishment, And like thee not : thy three years' love for me I count for nothing, thy devotion nothing, Thy misery nothing : thy adventure here I pray it fall on Frederick with more weight Than on my Laura. I would not have such rigour As might defer our marriage. (G. goes to L. R. to F.) I set against thee; and the hour thou goest 3050 I shall lose nothing : If thou canst say this, I shall award my judgment on you two, Speak . . and I promise D. | To turn away for ever. Is that thy mind? Who have mocked not my rules only, but the common D. 1s't possible? Conventions of society, and preferring 3100 What possible? R.The unwritten statutes of the court of Milan Have joined to act a lie, and me, your friend, D.Thy--truth. R. My love? Nay, love's a miracle, a thing Deceived and wronged, whom ye had done well to That cannot be where it seems possible, trust. And where 'tis most incredible is most worth One only honourable course is left-My jndgment on you is that you be married As soon as may be. Therefore, Frederick, Our credit. D, That is true. I beg that you will draw the contract up R. That thou didst doubt Was worthy of the greatness of my love. Between yourself and Laura with all speed. But now I claim thy faith. Thou mayst believe, And that my sister shall not lack a portion, Thou must believe. Indeed, indeed, Diana, I will endow her with as goodly a sum As what St. Nicholas promised. Now this time Thou mayst believe. Look'st thou to find love Let there be no mistake. strong ? X_{\bullet} What's this, Sir Gregory? 1 have heavenly security :- devoted? 1 have no self but thee :---patient? I plead Three years of patience :----humble? I was content Cannot you hear? Your ladyship, I am bound F. To be thy servant :- wise ? I knew thee better For ever to your service.

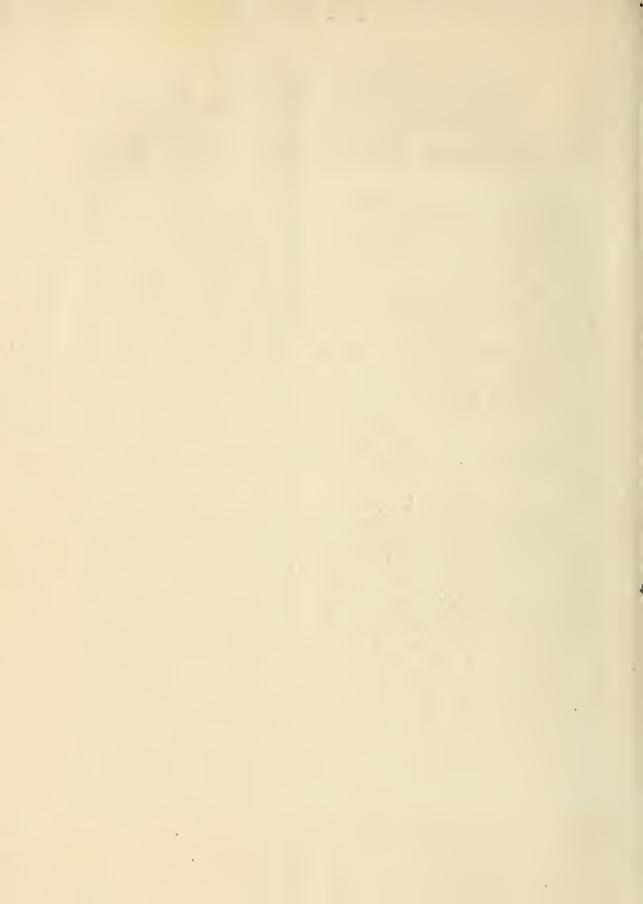

Act III. 5.] The Humours	of the Court.	181
 L. (to D.). Am I forgiven, Diana? F. (to R.). Richard, how's this? R. (to F.). I have won. (aloud.) And let me say That I for friendship's sake will do as much ³¹²⁵ Toward Lady Laura's portion as the Countess. N. Sir Gregory . Sir Gregory ! Is this the way I am treated? You do not hear? Sir Gregory, speak ! G. (to N.). I hear not what is said, St. Nicholas : But I can see : and since you have caught your bride Running away, you must not look to me To help you hold her. Surely what I promised I promised in good faith : but what hath happened Sets me at liberty. (Laura goes to Gregory.) M. And I am left out? Am I a sacrifice? D. Sir, be consoled : 	And shutting me in the cupboard. Enter Tristram and I D. WH T. and Fl. My lady, we ask for R. No need for that, y They are forgiven. N. Why doth she say G T. (to R.). Ah, why 'your grad	Flora. no come here? r pardon. I take on me your grace ; 'your grace ? ce' indeed? This Tristram here ora too not their marriage His !
You were not more deceived than I. N. At least Tristram shall not escape. I do beseech you He may be punished for stealing my sonnet,	heart. 7. Thank you, my lady. I never did understand anything in this Court," and I never shall.

THE END.

[ISSS-

NOTE.—The Humours of the Court is founded on two Spanish comedies, which when I read them, appeared to me to be variations of the same story. These are Calderon's El secreto á voces, and Lope's El perro del hortelano; the latter already used by Molière. My play owes its plot to Calderon, and to Lope the first scene of its third act, which is the opening scene of El perro del hortelano. But since in that play the secretary is actually detected in what, in my play, he is only falsely suspected of, and yet, in spite of this, is married by Lope to the Countess, it may be judged that Lope's play is something farcical. I believe this is a full statement of my indebtedness, for where I have borrowed incident I have not, that I remember, translated.

Yattendon, 1893.

By the same Author, in this series, price 2s. 6d. each.

No. 1. NERO, Pt. I. (Out of print at present.) , 2. PALICIO. , 3. RETURN OF ULYSSES.

" 4. CHRISTIAN CAPTIVES.

" 5. ACHILLES IN SCYROS.

The series is now being continued, and— No. 7. THE FEAST OF BACCHUS is in the press.

The above are published by GEORGE BELL and SONS, and by EDWARD BUMPUS, London.

Also, by GEORGE BELL and SONS,

SHORTER POEMS. 3rd Edition. 4s. nett. EDEN, an Oratorio. 2s. nett.

Also, at the CLARENDON PRESS,

MILTON'S PROSODY.

A large paper edition of this may be had, price 8s. 6d.

Note.—ACHILLES IN SCYROS is also printed uniform with EDEN and the SHORTER POEMS.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA LIBRARY Los Angeles This book is DUE on the last date stamped below.

Form L9-Series 414

PR 4161 B6h

