CHINESE BANDITS TO FREE CAPTIVES

Said to Have Promised Relief Within Four Days

German Priest Describes Conditions at Brigands' Stronghold

Tientsin, June 9.—The chief of the Shantung train bandits, now holding eight foreign captives in the Paotsuku Mountain stronghold, has promised that the prisoners will be released within four days, according to a letter received to-day by the French consul here from Emile Gensburger, a Shanghai broker, who is among the victims still being held.

While the general health of the prisoners was said to be satisfactory, all those who were ill having virtually recovered, the intense heat of the past few days caused much discomfort.

Heat and Flies. A German priest who has just returned from the bandits' mountain retreat said the heat and flies were the worst of the captives' troubles at present. Many of the bandits, he said, were suffering from some ailment or other, two of them being lepers.

The attitude of the outlaws toward their foreign prisoners varies according to circumstances, according to the priest. Some of the bandit guards seem to be willing to do anything for their captives, while others indulge in petty tyranny. J. B. Powell, a Shanghai newspaperman being held by the brigands, is said to have lost his temper recently and literally knocked out one of the guards who had become offensive.

Many Quarrels. The bandits quarrel among themselves when they are not conversing with the prisoners.

Many of the brigands, unfamiliar with firearms, have nearly caused several tragedies among their comrades by their careless handling of weapons. A strange incident occurred yesterday when one of his own hands off by accidentally discharging a rifle he was handling.

The German priest, who is also versed in medicine, earned the goodwill of the bandit chieftain by attending his sick son. The priest was not allowed to leave the camp, but was taken to the nearest village.

F. R. McNAMARA PASSES TO-DAY

Veteran Journalist Long Identified With Canadian Newspapers

Frank R. McNamara, veteran journalist and a member of the Times editorial staff for the past five months, died at the Victoria Private Hospital this morning at the age of 56 years.

Mr. McNamara had been in failing health for some time and the end was not unexpected, especially as his condition had steadily become worse in the past few days.

Mr. McNamara was a native of Walkerton, Ontario, where he spent his early years. He proceeded to Toronto to complete his education, graduating B. A. at Toronto University. Shortly after leaving the University he began his long association with Canadian journalism, being connected in turn with the press of Toronto, Cleveland, and Montreal. In Montreal he was with both The Star and The Herald. He was an able member of the Press Gallery at Ottawa, and was an intimate term with the leaders of both Federal parties. He had an unequalled knowledge of public men and affairs and was one of the most widely known journalists in Canada.

Mr. McNamara went from Montreal to Winnipeg, where he was connected with The Winnipeg Telegram and later for some time secretary to Hon. W. H. Montague, then a member of the Roblin administration.

Mr. McNamara's connection with journalism in this Province began with his appointment to the staff of The Vancouver Province. For some years he was the Victoria representative of that newspaper and in that connection traveled the Province extensively with members of the late provincial administration. For a time he was secretary of the Labor Commission which sat in 1916.

Since that time he has been identified with both The Vancouver Province, The Sun and The World, coming to the editorial staff of The Times at the New Year.

He was a member of the B. C. Institute of Journalists, and of the University Club, Vancouver. He was very popular among the members of his profession and his passing will be keenly regretted by newspapermen and public men not only in Canada but in not a few centres in the States.

The B. C. funeral Co. promises pending the arrival of Mr. V. McNamara, of Sault Ste. Marie, a brother, who is expected in the city this afternoon.

BULGAR MINISTERS ARRESTED AND A NEW GOVERNMENT SET UP

Sudden Move By Army Supported By All Opposition Parties Except Communists; Order Prevails Throughout the Country.

Sofia, June 9.—The Bulgarian Government was overthrown at 3 o'clock this morning by an organization of reserve officers supported by the active army. All the Ministers were placed under arrest.

A Government has been formed by all the opposition parties with the exception of the Communists. The movement is supported by the provincial garrisons.

Order prevails in the capital and throughout the country.

STORM TURNS STREET OF A SASKATCHEWAN TOWN INTO A STREAM

Arcola, Sask., June 9.—With a stream of water 100 feet wide rushing down the main street of this town, a lake half a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide north of the town, all trees denuded of their leaves by hail, and garden stuff and Fall rye destroyed, Arcola is suffering from the worst storm in many years, which occurred yesterday afternoon. A cloudburst of rain, accompanied by heavy hail, thunder and lightning, started at 4 p.m. and lasted nearly two hours. The ground was white with hail to a depth of four inches when the storm ceased and the official measurement of the rainfall in the two hours was four and one-half inches.

Streets like rivers greeted those who looked on the storm-swept town. The main street is completely under water. All stock is running over the track. The Hyson Creek is stopped up and water from it is running back into the town, increasing the flood. A huge item has been formed in the town and the entire sports field is flooded.

Standing Fall rye was beaten down and most of it destroyed, by the violence of the storm.

BROKERS' FIRM IN NEW YORK FAILS

Bankruptcy Petition Against M. S. Wolfe and Co.

New York, June 9.—New York's list Company, which failed yesterday, was augmented to-day by the filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against M. S. Wolfe & Company, one of the largest Curb Market firms, with a branch office in Chicago.

Like the firm of L. L. Winkelman & Company, which failed yesterday, the Wolfe house had been a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange and was under investigation by the exchange.

CHILDREN NOT SENT TO CANADA

Emigration Permission for Four Youngsters in Old Country Refused

London, June 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Thirteen, ten, nine and six were the ages of four children for whom the Home Office Guardians applied for permission to emigrate to Canada through the Salvation Army under the auspices of the Ministry of Health, but Chairman Bench took a different view and refused to grant the application.

"I do not think such children are capable of giving intelligent assent to the application," asserted the chairman. "It is a serious matter, sending children away from their native country, and we must anticipate their view of the matter when they grow older."

AUNT OF KING DIED IN LONDON

Princess Christian Was Seventy-Seven On May 25

Was the Third Daughter of Queen Victoria

London, June 9.—Princess Christian, aunt of King George, died this morning.

The Princess Helena Augusta Victoria, more generally known as Princess Christian from the name of her husband, was born May 25, 1846, the third daughter of Queen Victoria, and was thus a sister of the late King Edward VII. and an aunt of the present British sovereign. She was married on July 8, 1866, to Prince Frederick Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, who served in the Prussian army during the war and two daughters, Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Marie Louise.

BIG FLEET TO BE SEEN AT SEATTLE

President Harding to Review Warships There July 27

Maryland Will Be Among Battleships in Line

Seattle, June 9.—Formal orders for the greatest naval concentration the Pacific North-west has ever known were issued by the Navy Department in directing the assembling of the entire United States battle fleet at Seattle, July 27, for review by President Harding upon his return from his Alaska trip.

The fighting craft to be assembled in Elliott Bay to give the twenty-one gun presidential salute will include not only nine first-line battleships of the battle fleet now on the Pacific Coast, but the post-Jutland Maryland, only ship of her type in the navy now on the Atlantic coast.

Ships to Arrive. Ten battleships, three destroyers and auxiliaries, bringing the total number of naval craft more than fifty, are covered by orders issued by the Navy Department to Rear-Admiral S. S. Robinson, Acting Commander-in-Chief of the battle fleet.

The Maryland, most powerful ship in the American navy, may be called upon to make a record in the Virginia coast, and will be able to complete her assigned tests barely in time to reach Seattle, July 25, by a speedy dash through the Panama Canal.

Detailed advices as to the time of arrival of the majority of the fighting craft have been received by E. J. Friedlander, chairman of the general fleet reception committee.

SEED GROWERS TO HOLD MEETING IN SASKATOON

Ottawa, June 9.—For the first time in the history of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association the annual meeting is to be held in Western Canada. The meeting will take place at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, on June 18 to 19.

LITTLE SON OF VICTORIA PARENTS WAS DROWNED

Prince Rupert, June 9.—Word has been received here from Morgan's Camp at Surf Inlet of the drowning of three-year-old Dennis Irwin, only son of H. S. Irwin, of Victoria. The body has not been recovered.

PRESBYTERIAN VOTE ON CHURCH UNION IS EXPECTED ON MONDAY

Port Arthur, June 9.—(Canadian Press)—When the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada adjourned at noon to-day all indications pointed to a continuance of the debate on church union throughout Monday's sessions, with the possibility of a vote being reached late in the day.

At the close of this morning's session, which was featured by a number of addresses favoring union, at least a dozen more speakers indicated their intention of taking part in the debate when it opens Monday morning.

No one in the Assembly takes the view that the amendment favoring delay in the church movement can be carried, the only question being as to the percentage of commissioners who will vote one way or the other.

SASKATCHEWAN COMMITTEE OF CANADIAN CLUBS

Regina, June 9.—Believed to be the first of its kind in the Dominion, a provincial committee of the Association of Canadian Clubs in Saskatchewan was formed at a meeting of representatives from points throughout the province here last night.

MANY COUNTERFEIT STAMPS SEIZED

Labels of Well-Known Brands of Whiskys Also Taken

Two Detroit Men Arrested By Prohibition Officers

Detroit, June 9.—Between $500,000 and $600,000 worth of counterfeit Canadian and United States Government stamps was seized by prohibition and secret service officers late yesterday in a raid on a West Warren Avenue shop. The seizure included thousands of labels of all the principal brands of Scotch, Canadian and American whiskeys and branded corks and wrappers. The officers also found a dozen cases of genuine liquor which they believe was to be used in flavoring counterfeit mixtures.

A man giving the name of leader Meinberg was arrested. Allan J. Moscovitz, believed to be a member of the same gang, was arrested several hours previous to the raid.

No plates or presses or any part of a counterfeit's outfit was found. Officers say the shop was merely a clearing house for the counterfeiters where they disposed of the labels and stamps through agents. It is quite probable, the Government men say, that the counterfeiting was done in England or France where, they say, firms did a big business before prohibition in supplying labels to distillers.

CANADIAN RACING COMMISSION URGED

Resolution to Be Introduced Shortly in Senate

Montreal, June 9.—The appointment of a Dominion racing commission will, The Star states, be proposed in the Senate in the near future. A special committee is now looking into the racing situation in connection with the amendments to the Criminal Code recently introduced by Senator Smeaton White, and it is understood that a resolution advocating the appointment of a Canadian racing commission to take complete control of racing activities in all parts of Canada has been suggested.

Conditions Changed

Rev. W. G. Brown, of Red Deer, Alta., who for fifteen years has been an opponent of church union in the Presbyterian Church, opened the discussion. He dealt with the allegation that a contract had been entered into by the Presbyterian church in 1916 and that this contract must be fulfilled. Replying to this, he said the conditions of the contract had been completely changed.

With reference to the possibility of a federal union, he said he had recently visited the State of Montana, where an arrangement had been effected for a federal union which had been completely successful. The ministers of that state were strongly opposed to church union, which could not be made a success.

A Great Break. A vote for the motion would certainly disrupt the Presbyterian Church, he said, but what was far more important, it would disrupt ninety per cent. of the congregations.

The minority in these churches would be faced by two alternatives. Either they would be compelled to remain as members of a united church which they never wished to enter and with which they were not in sympathy, or they would be compelled to go out into the wilderness and start a dollar to represent their interest in the church which they had helped to build.

Reference had been made to the success which church union was having in other lands. The information which the speaker had was that in Australia and New Zealand and in other countries the cause of organic union was either dead or dying, while the idea of a federal union in every country of the world was a triumphantly successful.

Far Union. Dr. J. M. McVickar, a member of the Presbytery of Honan, China, said the vote of church union in his Presbytery showed a majority of ninety to one for union.

Coercion Discussed. Dr. Murray, President of the University of Saskatchewan, discussed the question of coercion and stated that there was much less of the spirit of coercion in the present bill (Concluded on page 2.)

JAPAN SENDS MORE WARSHIPS TO PATROL THE YANGTZE RIVER

Tokio, June 9.—Japan's reply to China's note of yesterday demanding an apology for the shooting of Chinese rioters by Japanese marines at Changsha, Province of Honan, June 2, and the withdrawal of Japanese gunboats from the Sasebo base to reinforce the Japanese patrol on the Yangtze River and the official statement that Japan was determined to defend the lives and property of her nationals in China.

Tokio has made no formal reply to the communication from Peking, which demanded, besides an apology for the Changsha incident, punishment of the Japanese marine commander and his men who killed and wounded a number of Chinese during the anti-Japanese demonstration at Changsha, indemnity for the families of the Chinese victims and guarantees that there would be no recurrence of the affair.

Asked to Take Steps. The Japanese Foreign Office has declined to enter into any negotiations over the incident until the trouble, which was caused by the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods, is settled. Tokio, however, has asked China to guarantee the safety of the Yangtze River, where further disturbances are feared owing to the spread of the boycott movement.

With regard to the Changsha incident, Japan insists that her marines acted purely on the defensive and that she has no intention of taking any high-handed action, but she must defend her citizens who are doing business in China.

BALDWIN SPEAKS OF EMPIRE UNITY

British Premier Addresses Canning and Chatham Clubs at Oxford

Says Britain in Need of Wise Agricultural Policy

London, June 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—In a homely speech at the annual dinner of the Canning and Chatham Clubs at Oxford last night, Premier Baldwin surveyed the present need for traditional Conservative tenets. Two factors, he said, had enabled the present Government to secure office—first, the natural desire of the people to return to popular government, and second, a six-word phrase by Lloyd George. When Britons opened their papers one day they saw an assertion by Lloyd George that Bonar Law was honest to the verge of simplicity. "That's what we are looking for," they said.

The Premier specially dwelt on the necessity for a wise agricultural policy to remedy the situation which he described as a source of weakness in the whole body politic.

The Premier's faith in the Empire was shown by a passage in which he said the British people must hold before them a conception of the Empire as a single unit—a unit in which it mattered not in what part a man might live or work but that he would feel he was a fellow-citizen to every other denizen of the Empire and that all were living and working to a common end.

WHEAT FROM VANCOUVER

Vancouver, June 9.—Almost 16,500,000 bushels of wheat were exported from the port of Vancouver during the period September 1, 1922, to May 31 of the present year, according to figures issued by the Merchants' Exchange. Of this total, 13,544,150 bushels were sent to the United Kingdom and the European Continent, 3,598,019 bushels to the Orient, and the remainder, approximately 350,000 bushels, to South America.

MOOSE BALL DREW OVER TWO THOUSAND

Delegates to Convention Enjoy Happy Time at Armories

F. H. Mackie of Victoria Won Tombola Automobile

Over two thousand Moose and their friends last night enjoyed themselves to the full at the Armories, when the Victoria Lodge were hosts at a grand ball given to delegates to the convention closing here tonight.

Victorian Wine Car. Supper was served shortly after midnight and was followed by the drawing of the tombola prize for the Star car, which fell to F. H. Mackie, of 120 Douglas Street.

Vancouver Band Plays. After supper the prize-winning Vancouver Band, which had earlier been parading the city's downtown streets and entertaining the citizens, took over the bandstand and dispensed jazz and other snappy music until the early dawn of this morning.

PIONEER BUSINESS MAN DIED TO-DAY

James B. Clarke Came to Victoria in 1862

There passed away this morning in his ninetieth year, a well-known pioneer of this city—in the person of James Benjamin Clarke, who first came to Victoria in 1862. He was born at Woodstock, in 1833, and in 1858 left Woodstock for the California goldfields by the long way around South America, the Journey from New York to San Francisco consuming six months and seven days.

On the Stikine. By that time reports of rich findings of gold on the Stikine River were coming into Victoria. In June of the same year he went to Stikine in the schooner North Star. Trouble had in the meantime arisen between the Indians and the whites, and H.M.S. Devastation was sent to the mouth of the Stikine and brought back all those miners who wished to return.

For a few months he worked in Victoria for the firm of Fellows & Roscoe, still remembered by many old-timers. In 1863 he went to the Cariboo but came back to Victoria in the Fall, and from 1863 to 1867 he worked for Fellows & Roscoe. In 1867 he went to the Cariboo again and there he met the Pease River country, where he mined on Vital and Germanon Creeks. He also mined on Grouse Creek in the Cariboo with the late John Cowley, being bought a share in the claim from the late T. Fletcher.

In 1871 Mr. Clarke returned to Woodstock, where in 1874 he married Miss Fricilla Earl, and four years later came back to Victoria with his wife and infant son. Shortly after this he joined the late James Nicholson in forming the firm of Clarke and Nicholson, which later became the firm of Clarke and Pearson. Mr. Clarke was active in the early history of the Presbyterian Church, latterly with the Emmanuel Baptist Church, of which he was the senior deacon.

He was predeceased by Mrs. Clarke in 1916, and is survived by two children, Earlex W. Clarke, of the Victoria High School staff, and Mrs. Mabel Rushforth, of Vancouver, three granddaughters, Anna and Eleanor Clarke, and Lois Rushforth. The remains are resting at the B.C. Funeral Chapel.

O. Hefner Being Searched for By Seattle Police Declared He Knew of Killing of W. D. Taylor

Seattle, June 8.—Information received here by Sheriff Matt Starwick caused initiation of a search to-day for Ois Hefner, a big Texan said to have been a stockman, who is believed by authorities to have been one of a gang of five bandits thought to have slain William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, in his home at Hollywood, California.

Hefner was arrested here in May, 1922, four months after Taylor was mysteriously killed. He was given a suspended sentence on a charge of having stolen an automobile. Yesterday a lawyer told the sheriff Hefner had admitted being a member of the gang that killed Taylor, though asserting others had done the slaying.

The Seattle Drum Corps was established in 1915 by the Moose of that city. The officers and members were somewhat dubious about being able to bring the corps promptly to a state of efficiency, but the musicians stuck to the training very vigorously. The result has been that the aggregation has become well known throughout the Pacific Northwest.

VICTORIA HONORED BY MOOSE LADIES

The Women of Mooseheart Legion of the Northwest Moose Association this morning elected officers for the year 1922-24, at their closing session of the three-day convention held at the Knights of Pythias Hall, and established the principle of promotion in office at the same time as the Moose were abandoning the plan.

The officers elected were: Past President, Mrs. May Davis, of Vancouver, B. C.; President, Mrs. M. C. Knowles, of Victoria, B. C.; First Vice-President, Mrs. Olive Lee-of Huntington Beach, Cal.; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Anna Gorrer, of Spokane, Wash.; Chaplain, Mrs. Grace M. Lambert, of Aberdeen, Wash.; elected Trustee, Mrs. Nan Jones, of Portland, Ore.

THE drum corps, with three exceptions, is composed of its original members who founded the organization, which circumstance the instructor, H. L. Leamy, considers very satisfactory. The drum corps has captured every contest at each convention since the first one attended in Bellingham in 1914. The corps is self-supporting, the general finances of the Moose organization not being called upon for any maintenance. Four members form a quartette which itself has a remarkable reputation, having played through-

PRESBYTERIAN VOTE ON CHURCH UNIONS IS EXPECTED ON MONDAY

(Continued from page 1.) than there was in the bill which provided for the union of 1875, and there was much more provision and consideration for the rights of minorities than there was in the legislation of 1875. He referred to the effect which any refusal of the Presbyterian Church to enter into the union would have as its relations with the Methodist Church and on the 3,000 union congregations.

To Bind Canada. Dr. Murray referred to the development of Sectionalism in Canada. There were great forces operating to divide Canada, he said. There were economic and natural questions which separated province from province and the East from the West. One of the factors which bound the Dominion together was the church, and nothing would serve to bind the church together more than a great united church.

Dr. Clay Speke. Among those who spoke at the session of the General Assembly last night against union was Rev. Dr. W. L. Clay, of Victoria. He thought the idea of union fine, but held it could not be realized at the present time. A section of the church would go out and a section would remain. The section that remained would gain from immigration and would soon be as large as the Presbyterian Church is now. He made an earnest plea for delay.

Opposition in Legislature. Winnipeg, June 8.—Church union will be resisted to the utmost in the Federal Parliament and Provincial Legislatures, should the Presbyterian General Assembly, now in session at Port Arthur, adopt the union motion, according to the Rev. H. K. Robinson, K. C., Winnipeg, who is the recognized lay leader of the Presbyterian anti-union forces in the Western Provinces.

Port Arthur, Ont., June 8.—Wealthy Presbyterian in Canada are opposed to church union are said to have given assurances that ministers who lose their charges or are in financial difficulties due to their opposition to union will be cared for. At a meeting of the Presbyterian Church Association to-day several of the ministers asked what would become of them if, through their persistence in this cause, they were left without churches and lost their incomes. It was then stated that arrangements had been made for a sustenance fund and for an augmentation fund. The arrangements for the funds are, of course, incomplete, but certain ministers were assured that money would be provided for this purpose.

New York Police Arrested
Man About to Throw Body
Into Bay

New York, June 9.—Dr. G. B. McAuliffe was questioned by police today concerning the death of Miss Blossom Martin, a nurse said to have been in his employ, whose body was found wrapped in a bundle ready to be thrown into the bay off Staten Island. A Filipino butler employed by the doctor was arrested as he was about to throw the body into the water. At 2:30 a.m. newspaper reporters, detectives and Dr. McAuliffe were locked in the doctor's home and no one was permitted to leave. At the conclusion of the questioning police said they believed Miss Martin had been slain in the house. A blood spot was found in a bedroom on the top floor which Dr. McAuliffe said the Filipino butler occupied, and two green portieres were missing from a room in another part of the house. The nurse's body, when examined, was wrapped in a green portiere.

Ottawa Government Not Interfering With Paris Hotel Purchase

Vote of $73,000,000 for C. N. R. Approved By Commons

Ottawa, June 9.—The vote of $73,000,000 for the Canadian National Railways was approved by the Commons last night, the understanding being that they might be further discussion is desired.

The approval was given after an amendment moved by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, that the $73,000,000 be reduced by $2,000,000, the amount of the guarantee for the Hotel Scribe property, purchased in Paris, had been rejected on a vote of seventy-eight to nineteen. The majority was composed of all the Liberals and Progressives present, the minority consisted of all the Conservatives present and the two Laborites, Messrs. Woodsworth and Irvine.

An earlier amendment offered by Mr. Stevens was ruled out of order by Hon. Charles Macell, who was presiding. The rejected amendment proposed that the vote of $73,000,000 stand until Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, had submitted to the House.

1. The names and financial standing of the alleged syndicate which was to take over the Hotel Scribe in Paris.
2. The rates of rental to be paid.
3. The commission on the hotel purchase, if any, and to whom paid.
4. The reasons why the property in Paris was bought indirectly and not directly by the railway company, and without any written agreement of any kind whatsoever.

TO VISIT GRAVE OF CAPT. VANCOUVER

Vancouver Board of Trade Men to Plant Trees in England

Coast Tourists Will Meet Prince of Wales

London, June 8.—The Prince of Wales is to go for a drive on Monday next with the Vancouver Board of Trade delegates, who will afterward journey to the churchyard at Petersham, in Surrey, where the body of Capt. George Vancouver was buried in 1781.

The visitors will plant seeds from British Columbia at Capt. Vancouver's grave. The Empire Forestry Association is prepared to seed beds of flowers in the graveyard. Lieut.-Colonel L. C. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, will attend the ceremony in memory of Captain Vancouver, who was a distinguished member of the British Navy.

George Vancouver was born in 1758. He discovered the Gulf of Georgia, and circumnavigated Vancouver Island, which was named after him.

TOLD THEY MUST OBEY THE LAWS

Doukhobors Given Warning
By Judge at Vernon

Vernon, B. C., June 9.—"You and your countrymen must obey our laws or leave the country, whichever suits you best, and your children must go to school," declared Mr. Justice Murphy at the Assizes here yesterday before sentencing Sam Cherchakoff, a Doukhobor, to three years in the penitentiary for attempting to burn the Outlook Public Schoolhouse near Grand Forks last March. The judge added that since then two schools had been burned.

William Davis, a coal merchant, was given five years for receiving stolen goods.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES ON SETTLERS' EFFECTS ARRANGED

Winnipeg, June 9.—With the object of stimulating the movement of settlers from the United States to Western Canada, a reduction of one-third in freight rates on settlers' effects by railroad shipments has been decided upon by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, according to information obtained at the offices of the Canadian Pacific Railway here. This reduction applies from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth to all points in the Prairie Provinces. The present rate from St. Paul to Winnipeg is 48¢ per car, but under the reduction the new rate, which will become effective June 15, will be 45¢, or a reduction of 23¢ per car. From St. Paul to Edmonton the rate will be 49¢, a reduction of 30¢ from the old rate, while to Lethbridge the new rate will be 44¢ instead of 63¢.

Corresponding reductions are being made to every point in the three Prairie Provinces. In addition to reduced freight rates from St. Paul and Minneapolis, the proportional rates on carload effects from border points, such as Emerson, Northgate, North Portal, Coutts, Kingsgate and Sumas have also been reduced by approximately one-third of the present rates.

MANITOBA CABINET DID NOT THREATEN TO RESIGN OFFICE

Winnipeg, June 9.—No threat to resign had been made by the Bracken Government. Statements about the refusal of Sir James Aikins, Lieutenant-Governor, to sign Orders-in-Council relating to treasury matters have been very much overdrawn and the work of the Government is proceeding smoothly, Hon. R. W. Craig, Attorney-General, said in effect, when commenting on press reports which appeared yesterday.

HIGHER LUMBER SALES TAX OPPOSED

Ottawa, June 9.—Headed by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, the various lumber associations in the Dominion have presented to Hon. W. S. Fielding a memorandum asking the Minister of Finance to strike out in the sales tax provisions of the amended budget that section relating to lumber, and to leave the present sales tax of three per cent. where it is.

Lever Brothers, Limited
Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:
"The use of a harsh soap on pure silk is ruinous to the texture of the fabric. It shortens its life as well.

We are extremely glad to report to you that we have found LUX satisfactory for the washing of Belding and Corticelli Wash Silks. It is a pure, neutral soap and there is nothing in it that could injure the most delicate silk fibre.

We would like to have all purchasers of Corticelli Fingering Yarns launder them in the safe way set forth in the Lux directions. The dirt dissolves in the LUX suds, and leaves the garment soft and unshrunk."

Very truly yours,

THE ONTARIO BATTLEGROUND.

Of course each of the three chief parties in the Ontario election declares it is going to win. Prophets on the side lines, however, are very much at sea and the safest prediction seems to be that neither group will obtain a clear majority.

If it was a matter of leadership the United Farmers would have a walkover, for Mr. Drury by long odds is the ablest of the leaders and has the strongest personality. His opponents are making a great deal of the argument that he is the leader of an occupational party, and it is contended also that his Government although pledged to economy has been exceptionally extravagant.

The Conservatives, until now the smallest of the three parties in membership in the Legislature, expect to make numerous gains, not so much because they have recovered public confidence but because they have most to gain from the many three-cornered contests which have developed in the campaign.

Necessarily the Ontario election is being closely followed by the three parties in the Ottawa Parliament, since it is bound to have a decided influence upon Dominion politics. Mr. Meighen particularly would like to see the provincial political machinery in the hands of a Conservative government in the hope that this eventually would lead to a sufficient Federal representation from Ontario at Ottawa to offset the solid Liberal delegation from Quebec.

THE VOLUNTEER NAVAL RESERVE.

It should not take Victoria very long to enrol a volunteer company for the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve. The training is instructive and healthful and carries with it compensations upon which it is not easy to place adequate value. Fully qualified experts take charge of the training in its various utilitarian and recreational phases and civilian employment is not interfered with during the period of enrolment.

ONLY AT THE RIGHT TIME.

There is common sense in Mr. Augustine Edwards' contention that it would not help the League of Nations to bring into it at this time a half-hearted and divided United States. Most people will agree with him that it would be much better to wait for the day when all Americans are convinced of the value of the League and its efforts to promote international peace.

It may be some time before our neighbors are ready to make the plunge which ex-President Wilson advised. Mr. Harding is having quite a difficult time in his efforts to persuade them that the United States should become a member of the World Court.

The United States very naturally does not see the force of the argument that she is halting the plan of international peace and concord. She turns her eyes towards Europe and promptly wonders when the Old World is going to show some tangible signs of a desire to go to work and stop fighting.

HOPELESS?

Anybody who has seen the Derby run will not be surprised to learn that the Parliamentary Committee, which went to Epsom on Wednesday to investigate the feasibility of a betting tax, returned to town thoroughly perplexed and quite at its wits' end to see how any human being could devise such a scheme and apply it to such a mob as that which congregates on the famous Downs on this day of days.

The peace of mind of the delegation, and it was composed of a fairly representative group, seems to have been somewhat assuaged by what its members saw as they moved among the throng. One of the extraordinary features of the investigation, or rather what the investigation revealed, was the apparent honesty of all the betting transactions.

The miner M. P. of the delegation left the great enclosure fully convinced that races cannot be run without betting. He even went as far as to say that race track betting was likely to be less injurious to the community than gambling at a gaming table. One of the novices of the members said that he and his fellow innocents had come to the conclusion that any attempt to prevent betting would be about as feasible as trying to turn back Niagara.

After all the point at issue, a point which is of especial interest to Premier Baldwin, is as to whether the State can derive some revenue from a practice which seems likely to continue for all time. He will now be able to wrestle with the findings of the Committee—and it will not be surprising if he drops the subject like a hot coal.

THE PROPER SENTENCE.

Three years in the penitentiary is the proper sort of a sentence for Doukhobors who set fire to schoolhouses because they prefer their children to live in the ignorance upon which the sect depends for its continued appeal. Before advising Sam Chereankoff that he would be required to consider himself as the "guest" of the country for just that long, Mr. Justice Murphy pointed out that he and his countrymen would have to obey the laws of the country or leave it. This is about all there is to be said. Canada requires a larger population; but there is no room here for people who want to be something else first and Canadians last.

PULP AND PAPER.

Pulp and paper mills are not established in a hurry. Something like $10,000,000 is required to get one of these concerns ready to churn out the finished product. But it is encouraging to learn from Mr. Pattullo that at least six separate groups of financiers are negotiating with the provincial Government towards this very desirable end. All of these pourparlers may not terminate successfully; but the Minister is hopeful that more than one concern will be able to bring matters to a tangible and profitable conclusion.

It is highly essential that everything possible be done to get mills established on this side of the line. We have in this Province more timber than there is in Sweden—where there are something like two hundred pulp and paper mills—and the number of establishments at which the finished product is turned out can be counted on the fingers of one hand. In other words we are getting the least possible benefits from the disposal of one of our most valuable natural assets. We send the logs away and the greater payroll and the dividends which rightly belong to us are earned in the country to the South of us.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Lower freight rates on settlers' effects from the United States to Canada ought to be some inducement to those who are thinking of crossing the border.

If the gentry at Moscow showed half the intelligence that Leonid Krassin has demonstrated in his dealings with the British Government Russia might soon get out of her difficulties and wend her way to decent society.

Twenty-four hours further reflection upon the latest German offer will leave most people with just about as much enthusiastic sympathy as they were able to manifest before. There is very little that is new. Its fresh features merely deal with certain properties that she would be prepared to throw in as guarantees; but France will want to know how these are going to be pledged without some joker. Meanwhile the debtor is not paying.

OUR CONTEMPORARIES

CAMPERS CAN PREVENT FIRES.

Seattle Daily News.—If camping or picnic parties were particular about putting out their fires, and if smokers refrained from throwing lighted cigars into dried grass, millions of dollars would be saved each year. It requires only a little effort to make the site of a camp safe by raking the ground thoroughly before the fire is started. Common prudence should prompt the smoker to extinguish his cigar or cigarette before tossing it aside.

ANTICIPATES TOURIST INFLUX.

Kamloops Telegraph.—The B. C. Good Roads League is undertaking a movement to supplant the automobile clubs by the establishment in community centres in every section of the province of branches of the Good Roads League. Even the slowest-thinking man among us is beginning to realize what British Columbia has been missing in tourist traffic through lack of good trunk roads, highways linking every section of the province, and the opening up of all of our scenic districts to motoring visitors. Tourists of wealth and influence want to see our province, but we have allowed barriers to hold them back. These ought to be removed at the earliest possible moment, and when they are removed there will be an influx that will surprise even the most optimistic.

SAYS MILLIONS OF DOLLARS ARE LOST TO ISLAND

New Branch of B. C. Automobile Association Hears of Travel Possibilities

"Vancouver Island has lost several millions of dollars in the past few years because of the fact that the motor facilities from here to the mainland were lacking," stated J. S. Cowper, ex-M.P.P. of Vancouver, at the inaugural meeting of the Victoria local of the British Columbia Automobile Association. This branch body came into being last night shortly after the dinner, to which those interested had been invited, was terminated. The election of officers was carried out and resulted as follows: President, E. V. Finland; secretary, F. B. J. Stevenson; directors, H. C. Hall, R. H. Alderman, R. H. B. Ker and Howard Stevenson. This was considered a strong and very representative body and one that would look after the business of the new organization in every way.

Mr. Cowper was introduced by the chairman—acting until after the election of officers—John W. Coburn, president of the local branch of the B.C. Automobile Association in Nanaimo. He is well versed in the subjects connected with motor travel in this Province and gave a very interesting speech to the new members of the association.

"There has been no rivalry between the organizations of British Columbia," he stated. "The local body had different duties to perform and was a very useful organization. There was always the advantage of preparedness for accident; the tourist or motorist of the organization might be in need in other ways, but the local body was there to comply with the wants of the troubled car owner. But the provincial body deals with a broader and more important phase of the motor traffic problem. This organization did not work for the benefit of any individual, but is for the good of the Province as a whole. The provincial body was interested in the great tourist influx that it was possible to bring to this country. There are more scenic beauties on Vancouver Island than on all the rest of the continent put together," Mr. Cowper stated. "What is tourist traffic worth to you?" he asked. He proceeded to explain the vast possibilities Vancouver Island had in the mountains of North America. "Tourist traffic is as great a part of your natural basic industry in this Province," —In Southern California, stated the speaker, tourists brought $1,575,000 into the state in 1921. What men of the Province have in mind for British Columbia, and there was no reason why this should not happen here as elsewhere, in Mr. Cowper's opinion. The tourist was a natural asset, and an element of personal commercial success. In outside parts of the province the smaller associations of motorists had not functioned. Now they would be galvanized into life. Was this not of more value than the old civic association which had done its part and might still carry one of the burdens, but must be supported by a brother organization which would do the heavy work of the province in the motor traffic world? Mr. Cowper questioned.

It was announced that the regular meetings of the new organization will be held on Thursday after the first Tuesday in every month. Further the members of the new body wished it understood that they were entirely friendly to the older motor organizations of the city and only desired to co-operate with them. Mr. Coburn was the first speaker, and he gave his views on the subject of organization very briefly. The idea of the provincial organization was to develop the province as a whole. The government would take action at the request of a body which represented the province, whereas it might not consider the demands of the local bodies. In this lay one of the chief uses of a provincial-wide body, he said. The meeting was a lengthy one, and the discussions were complete. The different questions all received the strictest attention by the members and new officers of the association.

CRITICS PRAISE MME. FAHEY'S SINGING Carried Title Role in "The Jewess" With Distinction

It is over two years since Mrs. Lugin Fahey left this city for Toronto, and from time to time reports have been received showing that the popular Victoria soprano has more than justified the many prophecies which were made concerning her success in the wider field of musical opportunity offered in the East. Recently Mme. Fahey carried the title role in the production of Halévy's opera, "The Jewess," presented under the auspices of the Toronto Home and School Council, winning fresh laurels, and the Toronto critics paid her remarkable tribute. The Toronto Telegram, in its critique said: "Mme. Lugin Fahey, as the Jewess, was convincing from the first bar. In the second act, whether in the ritual or in the impassioned solo following, or in the duet when Leopold tells her he is a Christian, her singing was of the most refined beauty. She endowed the part with a sympathy far beyond the somewhat stilted limitations of the text. And from this act onward her vocalism seemed to take a deeper character. In the first act, when she goes to her death, there was a subdued spiritualism in her tones that bespoke the very great artist." The Globe had the following to say concerning her performance: "Mme. Lugin Fahey added to former triumphs she has won here by her vivid rendering of the emotional music allotted to Rachel. Her denunciation of Leopold for his deceit was very dramatic and impassioned, while the telling quality of her voice effectively heightened the effect of her expression. She distinguished herself with equal merit in the other emotional music of her part, both in duet and solo." The critic of The Star made the following comment: "Mme. Lugin Fahey took the role of Rachel. She sang it splendidly. Her voice never failed to invest the tragic role with vocal significance: it is a voice that can seldom fall upon anything requiring vocalistic thrills; but it does not exactly suit the part of Rachel, because the voice is too big and oratorical, perhaps rather too Wagnerian. Rachel has at least six big arias to do; all of them more or less tragic; but Mme. Fahey could evidently have sung it all over again without fatigue."

VIROL is a Food for the Seven Ages of Man From early infancy to old age, Virol is a "building up food." It rescues babies from wasting; protects at the critical school age of growth; makes the weak man strong; fortifies expectant mothers; prolongs youth and vitality into later years. And Virol does all these things because it contains just those essential food elements which are often lacking in the ordinary diet. They are presented, too, in an easily digestible form, so that Virol is particularly valuable to infants and old people. Sole Importers: BOVRIE, LTD., 2725, Park Avenue, Montreal.

IN WOMAN'S DOMAIN

MANSON DENOUNCES GENERAL APATHY TO PUBLIC WELFARE

Urges Women to Back Government in Liquor Fight in Senate

"One of the hardest things governments have to fight is the crime of indifference to political responsibility which is all too often shown by the average man and woman. Business men and women should awaken to the sense of their responsibility and by the intelligent exercise of the franchise acquaint governments with their wishes. Only in this way will you offset the hot-pot of petty grafters who, because they shout the loudest, apparently express the will of the people." This comment was but one of the many trenchant observations made to the members of the Liberal Women's Forum yesterday afternoon by Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General, in the course of an address on "Government."

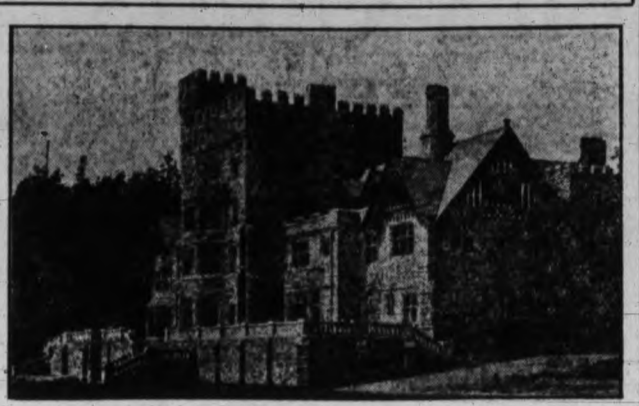

The speaker enunciated the principles of party government with particular emphasis on those of the Liberal party. He urged women to take a stand on one side or the other in preference to sitting on the fence of a third party, and further stated that he did not subscribe to the theory that wives voted with their husbands. Rather, his experience imbued him with the belief that many husbands voted, consciously or unconsciously, according to the opinions of their wives. After dilating upon the multifarious duties coming within the purview of his department, the Attorney-General touched upon various matters of legislation. The liquor problem and the Government's fight to secure necessary legislation from the Federal authorities to prohibit the private importation of liquor gave rise to the Minister's abjuration that women of every political shade of thought should back the Government in its fight to protect the homes of this Province. "It is a matter of the greatest moment not only to every woman but to every man that this legislation should pass the Senate and it is up to the decent citizens to back the Provincial Government in its fight against the bootlegging interests. Mr. Manson suggested that women's organizations, whether political or non-partisan, should take the necessary steps to convey their wishes in this matter through the medium of resolutions which, to be effective, must reach the authorities at Ottawa before next Tuesday. The problem of the movies was also touched upon by the speaker. Mr. Manson declared that much of the remedy for the present situation lay in the hands of the public. "As long as men and women will sit and see on the screen things that they would not countenance in their homes, as long as they will tolerate the showing of crime and sex problem films without protest, so long will these things endure, for the Government in this as in other matters can only take action according to the expressed will of the people." Concerning the juvenile court problem, Mr. Manson stated that he was entirely in sympathy with the movement to ensure their fullest operation and, further, that he hoped some day to see the jail system on a different basis, aiming at the reclamation rather than merely the punishment of offenders. Mothers' pensions, the Workmen's Compensation Act, and other beneficiary measures were briefly reviewed by the speaker, who in closing reiterated his advice to the women to keep in touch with matters of political moment. Mrs. Taylor presided and there was a good attendance of members. An informal program included songs by Mrs. McMorine, with Mrs. Chas. Conyers at the piano, and recitations by Margaret Spencer. As the meeting was the last of the season, afternoon tea was served, Mrs. J. H. Fletcher presiding at the tea table with its charming decoration of roses and violets. At the opening of the meeting the members passed a silent vote of sympathy to the family of the late Mrs. Jenkins.

Wall-Paper Panels

There is a new development in the treatment of wall-paper nowadays. The wall-paper manufacturers have seen a great light, and are not merely advertising extensively, but are sending out new ideas regarding the placing of paper on the walls of our homes. Personally, I have never been very fond of wall-paper. Its obtrusive all-over patterns make fussy backgrounds for pictures, especially when the figures are large and scroll-like, with a convolution which the eyes try to follow unconsciously. Bedroom papers, with up-and-down stripes and little bunches of flowers, are so innocuous that they take the character out of any room with a definite decorative scheme. The simpler and less conspicuous the wall, the better will the pictures, scenes and pieces of furniture stand out from it, and if the wall is to be without any pattern at all, to my mind a stippled plant or a rough-finished plaster in a putty-color, gray or cream, is much more attractive.

Scene of Garden Party Next Wednesday

"Hatley Park," the delightful residence of Mrs. James Dunsmuir, will be the rendezvous for many visitors on Wednesday afternoon next from 2 until 6 o'clock, when the lovely grounds will be thrown open to the public for a garden party under the auspices of the Florence Nightingale Chapter I. O. D. E. A nominal sum will be charged for admission; ice cream and afternoon tea will be available. As this is the only occasion during the year on which the gardens are opened it is anticipated that a large number of Victorians and visitors will avail themselves of the privilege of viewing this beauty spot.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Smith. After a honeymoon of two weeks in Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Popham will make their home in Victoria.
A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's Church, Esquimalt, on Friday, when daughter Wilhelmina, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Alkman, of Millstream, became the bride of E. H. Miller, second son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Parker, of Colwood. The bride looked very charming in a sand-colored suit which she matched, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations and maidenhair fern, was given away by her father, and was attended by her sister as bridesmaid. The bridegroom was supported by Alan Alkman, Rev. Father Silver officiated. Many friends of both families attended the ceremony, though Mr. and Mrs. Alkman, only the immediate family of the couple were present at the luncheon, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents at Millstream. The happy couple left on the afternoon boat for Seattle, where their honeymoon will be spent, and will take up their residence on their return at Royal Bay, Albert Head.

ST. JOSEPH'S W. A. HAD ACTIVE YEAR

Raised $3,278.48 and Made 8,497 Articles; Mrs. F. J. Sehl New President

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital was held in the nurses' recreation room yesterday afternoon with the president, Mrs. John Hart in the chair and a large number of members present. Mrs. R. L. Miller, convener of the recent tag day for the hospital reported having collected $1,224.29, out of which a small amount would be deducted for expenses. The gratitude of the Auxiliary was extended to Mr. Diggon for a liberal contribution of tags. It was decided at the meeting to purchase a mechanical obstetrical bed for the hospital. A donation of cups and saucers and silver tea-spoons from the hospital for the use of the Auxiliary was much appreciated, and Mrs. Hart on behalf of the members present extended thanks to the Sisters for the kindly act.

Officers Retiring. To the retiring president, Mrs. Hart, and to the retiring secretary, Mrs. O'Halloran old-fashioned bonnets were presented, and to Miss McNamara in recognition of her services at the tea hour each week a handsome plant, all presentations being made by Miss Florence Fraser. In appreciation of outstanding work accomplished during the year, standing votes of thanks were given to Mrs. R. L. Miller, Mrs. Angus Campbell, Mrs. McDermott, Mrs. Walter Fraser, Mrs. McLaughlin and Miss Dixon.

The Reverend Sister Superior, Sister Mary Mark, on behalf of the Sisters of St. Ann, conveyed their appreciation of the untiring efforts of the Auxiliary, in all matters pertaining to the hospital. At the conclusion of the meeting the members were the guests of the Sisters at tea. For the coming year the following officers were elected: Hon. president, Mrs. John Hart; president, Mrs. Frank Sehl; vice-president, Mrs. Henderson; Treasurer, Mrs. Walter Fraser; serving committee, Mrs. G. S. MacLaughlin; executive, Mrs. McDermott, Mrs. Angus Campbell, Mrs. H. A. Goward, Mrs. Haynes, Mrs. Bone, Mrs. McManus and Mrs. Lee Acton.

Mrs. Hart in her annual presidential report gave a resume of the undertakings of the Auxiliary during the year, and expressed thanks for a number of generous donations from time to time including tags for Tag Day, August 12, 1922, from Harold Diggon; boxes for tags, from the Northwestern Creamery; a lamp-shade from Mrs. James Hunter; a French doll from Mrs. Harry Currie; an electric motor for use in the workshop, from members of Campbell's Club.

The Auxiliary had also completed payment on the electric bake oven to the amount of $750; paid its proportion of the cost of printing the pamphlets recently ordered by Reverend Sister Mary Mark, amounting to $100, and which were sold on Hospital Day, and it had also established a bursary of $15 to be presented to the graduate nurse obtaining the highest percentage in all subjects during her three years' training. Regarding this last item, it is the intention of the auxiliary to raise this next year if its finances permit of doing so. Mrs. Fraser in her financial statement showed that the total receipts for the year were $3,278.48, while Mrs. MacLaughlin, the convener of sewing committee announced that 8,497 articles had been made and supplied for the use of the hospital during the year.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA REVIEW
The first June meeting of Queen Alexandra Review, W.B.A., was held in the K. of P. Hall on Thursday evening. Commander Blandin was in the chair. It was reported that Provincial Deputy Mrs. L. P. Hodgson is still very sick. Mrs. Ricketts and Mrs. Laing were appointed to attend the Friday luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Harrison, of Victoria Review No. 1, asked all the guard to attend their review meeting next Tuesday evening at the K. of P. Hall, to have a practice. Mrs. Keating and the ladies who helped her were given a hearty vote of thanks for their work making the guards' uniforms. The meeting closed in due form, after which a five hundred party was held.

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN.

The Local Council of Women will hold its monthly meeting on Monday afternoon at the Arts and Crafts Rooms, Union Bank Building when the committee is appointed to interview the Attorney-General and municipalities on the matter of the Juvenile Court will give its report. Mrs. Helen Stewart will also report on the sessions of the National Conference on Education. At the close of the meeting tea will be served.

MRS. FRED HARRISON NEW PRESIDENT OF GARDEN CITY W. I.

Garden City Women's Institute held their monthly meeting, Wednesday, with a splendid attendance of members and friends. An upholsterer from Hudson's Bay Co.'s store gave a demonstration on upholstering a chair. The work will be continued Tuesday, June 12, at 8 p. m. in Marigold Hall, when all those interested may attend. The resignation of Mrs. Cochrane as president was accepted with regret. Mrs. Fred Harrison was elected as the new president. The baby clinics which were so beneficial last year, are to begin again during the next few weeks, under the direction of Mrs. Lucas of the Health Centre. The date will be announced when arrangements are completed. The Girls' Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Prayatt, will make layettes for use of the Health Centre. The institute picnic will take place July 18. Further information as to time and place of meeting will be announced later. Under the auspices of Garden City Institute, Ward IV, will hold its eighth annual flower show Wednesday, August 29, in Garden City Hall. The exhibition will be opened by the Hon. F. A. Paulsen, M. P. The programmes are now ready, and may be had from the secretary. Friends in the making. See the classified ads.

VANCOUVER MOOSE BAND IS VICTOR

Brilliant Playing at Parliament Building Wins Convention Contest

Seattle Wins Drum Corps Award; Vast Audience Delighted

The Vancouver Moose Band is the champion musical aggregation of the Northwest Moose Association, being awarded the palm over Portland, Seattle and Tacoma last night, when the band contests were held in front of the Parliament Buildings, with thousands of enthusiastic Moose and delighted Victorians as audiences.

Portland Band was easily second, with Seattle and Tacoma in the order named.

Bandmaster Praised. Vancouver had a thirty-one piece band, under the direction of Bandmaster E. Cox, popular with all Vancouver military or musical men as "The Boy."

Under his leadership the musicians attacked the test pieces, the difficult "Carmen" from the opera "The Ghost of the Warrior," with precision and expression. The instruments of the Vancouver band were praised by the judges as being of unusually fine quality, and the majority of the players were classed as soloists of great skill.

The band is well balanced as between the bass, reeds and other instruments, but the judges agreed that the chief contribution towards the clear cut victory was the confidence which Bandmaster Cox had inspired in his musicians, the Vancouver band being the only one to steadily improve after the opening bars of the test piece.

Portland under Bandmaster Seiberling had a 25-piece band, with splendid instruments. Bandmaster C. S. Champ, of Seattle, directed 22 players, while Tacoma had recently been reduced to a strength of 22 men and was taking part in the contest in a spirit of sportsmanship, rather than in hope of victory.

Preceding the band contest the Moose and the ladies of Mooseheart Legion assembled over at the Parliament Buildings steps for a convention photograph, and heartily enjoyed themselves singing choruses and chanting Lodge slogans.

Seattle Drummers Win. The drum corps contest resulted in Seattle winning by the slightest possible margin over Portland.

The City Council set down to business yesterday afternoon on the revision of trades license fees and started the preparation of an entirely new schedule. About a dozen new fees for various businesses were fixed during a three-hour session.

These license fees were definitely fixed. Auditors and accountants, $25; architects, $25; building alders, $50; boots and shoes, $30; billiard and pool halls, $18; beverage manufacturers, $50; commercial agents and mercantile brokers, $48.

The minimum fee for bakers and confectioners will be $20 and there will be an additional charge of 25 per cent for each employee over the present classification.

License for automobile dealers were increased to $150 minimum for firms with fifteen employees and under and $200 for firms with more than fifteen employees.

Several barbers and second-hand dealers appeared before the Council to protest against increases in license fees. It was explained to them that the city is increasing its business taxation because it must have more revenue.

OMAHA'S COMMANDER AGAIN VISITS HERE. Capt. D. C. Hamrah, commander of the United States scout cruiser Omaha, was so delighted with Victoria during his recent visit to the city's Maytime Police that he came back to-day to spend the week-end with Commander and Mrs. Stephenson, of Terrace Avenue.

"Now I've had my revenge," said the shoe salesman to his friend, as a customer left the shop. "Revenge? How's that?" "Well, the girl who just went out a telephone operator, I gave her the wrong number."—Tit-bits.

MRS. PIERCY IS NOW N. P. C. A. PRESIDENT

Mrs. Bishop Appointed Secretary to Succeed Miss Hunsberger

Miss Hunsberger, who has been secretary of the local branch of the Y.W.C.A. since December last, tendered her resignation at yesterday's monthly meeting of the association. Mrs. Chas. Bishop, the former president, was appointed to succeed Miss Hunsberger and will commence her new duties on June 19.

Mrs. Piercy, the first vice-president, was in the chair, and twenty-three members were present. A standing vote of respect was paid to the memory of the late Mrs. Margaret Jenkins.

After much discussion a resolution was passed asking the Mesamission council to provide suitable pins for life members. The report of the finance committee as read by Mrs. Beckwith was most encouraging. The receipts for last year being $21,000.96 and expenditures $20,860.00, leaving a balance in hand of $919.96.

The honorary president, Mrs. Adams, announced that she would hold a silver tea for the benefit of the religious committee of the association at her home, 2054 Esplanade, on June 27 from three to six o'clock.

Mrs. Mitchell, copayer of the social committee, made most interesting and encouraging report of the joy club, which is composed of the junior members of the Y.W.C.A. The enrollment is now thirty-five members.

The executive officers took place at yesterday's meeting. The executive body for the year is composed of Mrs. Adams, honorary president; Mrs. Piercy, president; Mrs. Beckwith, first vice-president; Mrs. McNaughton, second vice-president; Mrs. Plankett, third vice-president; Mrs. Wainwright, fourth vice-president; Mrs. Nivn, treasurer; Miss Fawcett, recording secretary; and Miss Denny, corresponding secretary.

The question of a Summer camp for girls was taken up, and Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Naughton appointed to investigate the matter.

Complete arrangements have now been made for the second annual picnic to be held under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion.

Ernie Impett, the well-known entertainer, will have charge of the concert-party on board, and those who take the trip are assured of a pleasant time.

Rumsey's orchestra will provide the music for those who desire to participate in the dancing.

This year the Legion is limiting the sale of tickets so as to avoid any unnecessary overcrowding on board the steamer, and all who intend to purchase tickets for the trip should do so as early as possible.

Tickets are on sale at Fyvie Bros., tailors, Government Street, Ivel's Drug Store, Dean & Hiscock's Drug Store, Evely's Cigar Stand, "Mickey" Richardson's, Forrester's Paint Store, Canadian Pacific Railway and at the Canadian Legion, 1406 Douglas Street.

The C. P. R. steamer will leave Belleville Street at 5 p. m. time on Saturday, June 16, returning in plenty of time to enable passengers to get the last car home.

Collins Continues As Sensation In Majors

Second-Baseman of Chicago White Sox, Climbs in Batting Race, Leads in Stolen Bases and Presses for Sacrifice Honors, Not Bad Record for Man Who Was Reported to Be Through

Chicago, June 8.—Eddie Collins, veteran second-baseman of the White Sox, is still king of the key-stone guardians in the American League. Collins has so upset the dope that those who pictured him an old man, or standing back in awe, according to figures compiled today which include games of last Wednesday, he has stolen 19 bases, just one less than he pilfered for the entire season last year. By making 11 hits in the last six games, Collins has boosted his average from .259 to .370, and is pressing the leaders who have participated in 29 or more games. He is now fourth, Helman of the Tigers, continues to top the regulars with 426.

Babe Leads in Some Things. Babe Ruth added one to his string of homers during the past week, and remains out in front of 12. He also leads in total bases with 107, and in runs scored with 42.

Another New Star. Johnny Moman, of the Phillies, is challenging the leaders in the National League for the batting honors, and along with Jimmy Bottomley, of the St. Louis Cardinals, are giving Zack Wheat, of Brooklyn, and Charley Grimm, of the Pirates, an interesting race. Moman boosted his mark from .375 to .439 during the past week, and Bottomley is hitting .383 compared with .376 a week ago. The veteran Wheat suffered a batting slump and dropped from .424 to .405, but still maintains the leadership with Grimm the runner-up with .352. Cy Williams, of the Phillies, cracked out a brace of homers and ran his string to twenty, and brought his total base record to 145, which, besides his four-baggers includes 11 doubles and three triples.

BRITTON WINS BOUT. Youngstown, Ohio, June 8.—Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, defeated Cowboy Padgett in a round bout here last night.

Driver and Brassie Should Be Same Size

Champion Sarazen Warns Against Having Wooden Clubs of Different Size and Length, Because Shots Are Same; In Making Brassie Shot Think Only of Hitting Ball and Not of Getting Distance

The brassie should be practically the same as the driver. It is a mistake to have a driver with a large head and a brassie with a small head in which the face is laid well back. A brassie in fact is nothing more than a driver with a brass sole, the face of which is laid back a little more than it is in the driver.

However, for my own use, I prefer to have the face of the brassie similar to the driver, because you play the shot exactly as you would drive.

Therefore, I say, if you have a driver measuring 42 inches, with a large head and with little loft in the face see that the brassie is about the same length and size. But do not have the face laid back too much. Many players make the mistake of thinking the brassie must have plenty of loft in the face in order to get the ball up. You needn't worry about that if you hit the ball properly.

You use the brassie to get distance through the fairway, of course, but you should never use this club unless you have a good lie. How often have you seen players stalk into the rough or into a trap, brassie in hand, with the one idea of getting distance. Sometimes you do get a good lie in the rough, but the first thing to do when in trouble is to get out.

Assuming that you have got a good drive and that your ball is lying nicely on the fairway, some 200 yards from the green. Then is the time to use the brassie.

First of all get set in addressing the ball, the same as you would in driving. The stance is virtually the same as for the drive, with the feet just a little closer together.

Keep the Body Steady. Now there is a greater mental strain in hitting a brassie shot because when driving your ball is teed up. However, do not think of getting the ball up into the air. THINK ONLY OF HITTING IT. It might help you in this purpose if you keep your eye fixed on the back of the ball or on the grass just behind.

If it is important that you keep the head down and your eye on the ball when driving, it is doubly so when playing a brassie shot. Having taken your stance, take the club back slowly as you were instructed to do with the driver.

Just as with the driver at the top of the swing the right leg should be braced to keep the body from swaying, the left arm should be straight across the chest with the head looking over the point of the shoulder. The right elbow should be held down and rather close to the body and the left hip and knee inclined towards the ball.

Think Only of Hitting the Ball. In striking the ball think only of hitting it and particularly of hitting through the ball. Do not stop the club abruptly after the ball is struck and do not choke the swing. Hit the ball naturally as you would in driving.

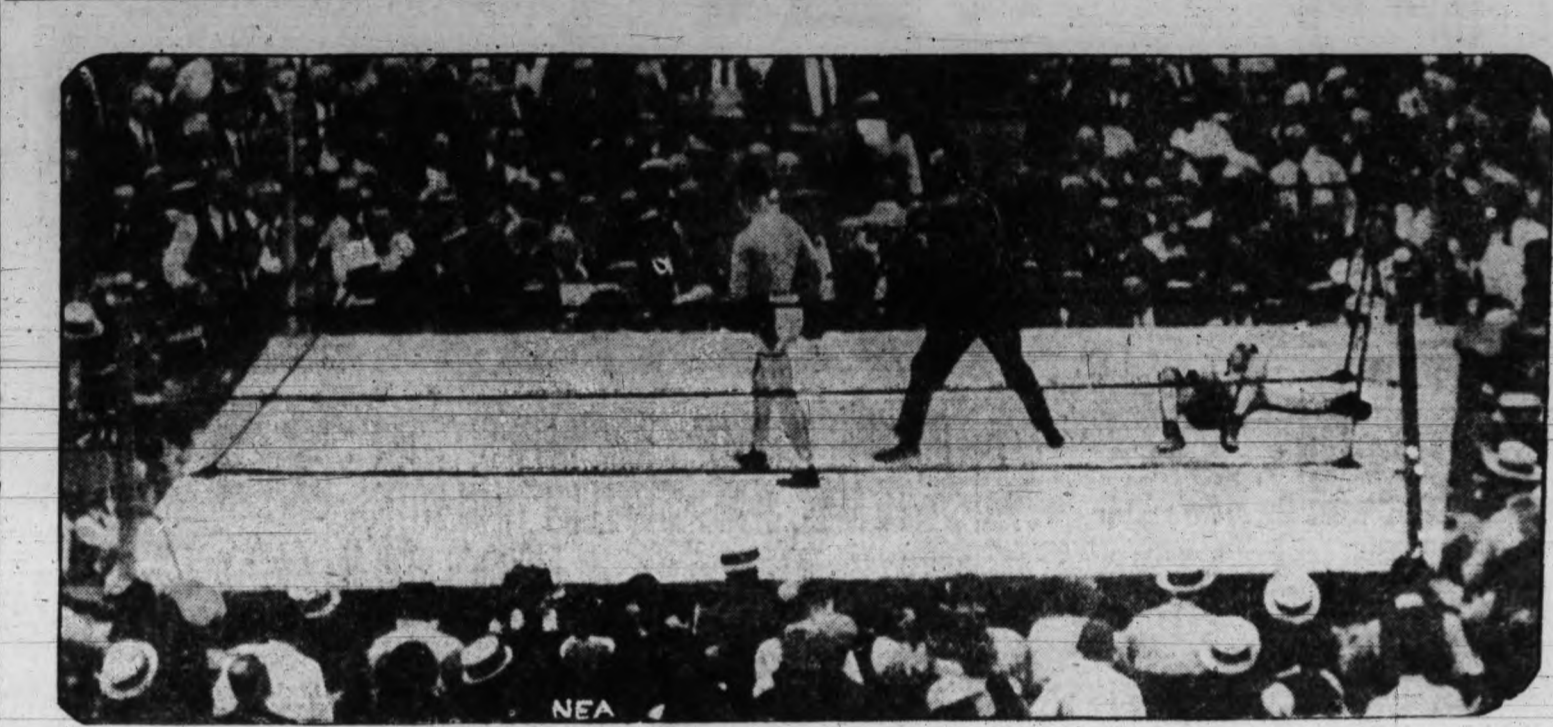

Above all keep the body perfectly steady throughout the stroke. Swaying will surely cause you to miss the shot. In speaking of the downward stroke on the drive I stressed the importance of staying down on the ball. The same thing holds true on the brassie shot. If you keep the right shoulder down and under on the follow through and if you dip the right knee as you come into the ball you will not be likely to top the ball. This is where most players miss on the brassie.

The Spoon and Its Uses. Whenever the lie is rather close or when it is necessary to get the ball well up into the air and yet to obtain distance, I advise the use of the spoon, which is one of the handiest clubs in the bag.

The spoon should be about two inches shorter than the driver or brassie and should have considerable loft in the face. This club is also used much in the same manner as the driver or the brassie, and here again one must take the club back slowly, always keeping the eye on the ball.

With the spoon it is always well to remember that there should be no lifting of the arms or shoulders in an endeavor to get the ball up. The club—made for that purpose—will do this provided you swing as directed. As a final warning let me again urge the necessity of keeping the eye on the ball both on the upward and downward stroke, until the ball has been hit. Remember also to keep the body steady and in pivoting to turn the body from the waist, not to sway it.

Kilbane Takes Count of Ten and Criqui Is Crowned New Featherweight Champion

The dramatic moment of a world's championship battle for fistie honors is shown in this photograph, the first to reach this city: Johnny Kilbane, for years featherweight champion of the world, flat on his back in the ring, as thousands looked on at the Polo Grounds, New York, June 2, and Eugene Criqui, French war hero, moving toward his corner as the referee points him out the winner. It was a right to the jaw that put the Cleveland champion to the floor; he rose to a sitting position at the count of five, but fell back and took the count of ten—his first defeat in years.

Indians Play Here To-night Against Caps.

Hard and Fast Lacrosse Expected at Stadium; Locals Strengthened

Chief Squamish and his tribe of Indian lacrosse players arrived in town this afternoon, and will cross sticks with the pick of Victoria's exponents of the national game this evening. The teams will meet at the Stadium at 7 o'clock.

Victoria has the same idea in its honor, and will guard the nets with the leaders. Victoria and Squamish have each won and lost a game, being equal in the league standing.

First Indians to Appear. Much interest is being taken in the game as it is the first time that a real Indian twelve has appeared here. The red-skins are very fast and play a clean, hard game. The Capitals realize that they have a big job on their hands to hold the natives, but they are confident that the visitors will have to travel all the way to win.

SOUTHPAW CASTOFFS TURN IN VICTORIES

Giants Thought Cveengros and Waldberg No Good But They Won Yesterday

New York, June 8.—Two Giant castoffs—both twirlers—and of the much-demanded southpaw specie—turned in brilliant performances for their teams yesterday, while the White Sox won down to their third straight defeat due to poor pitching. One of these discarded left-handers, Mike Cveengros, pitched the White Sox to victory over the New York Yankees seven to three.

The other, "Rube" Waldberg, of Philadelphia, relieved Hasty in the eighth, and St. Louis had scored five runs and held the Browns scoreless, the Athletics winning six to five.

Hugh McQuillan failed to check the rushing Pirates and Eddie Popham romping about on the home. The game will no doubt attract a large crowd. Fred Cullin will handle the whistle.

SONS STAGE RALLY IN EIGHTH AND WIN

Natives Defeated Spencer's and Now Lead Commercial Baseball League

A clean single by Curtis, the husky southpaw twirler of the Native Sons of Canada, in the eighth inning, won the score, and another single by Ross Miller drove in Curtis with the winning tally in the Commercial Baseball League game last night between the Sons and Spencer's. Miller then crossed the rubber on Auchincloss's hit. It was purely a case of the pitcher winning his own game, as he drove in the tying run and came home himself with the run that put the Canadians in the lead. The final score was six to four.

As a result of their win last night the Sons are now leading the Commercial league with three straight wins to their credit. They have met all the other teams in the league and have vanquished them. On their showing last night it looks like Spencer's nine will be their nearest contenders for the league laurels.

Smith was on the mound for Spencer's and he pitched airtight ball, except in the eighth, when the Sons started to wallop his slants. He was given fairly good support in the field. Curtis was chucking the pill over the plate for the natives boys and he pitched a fine brand of ball, getting a fair number of strike-outs to his credit.

Early Lead. The Sons took the lead in the first inning, when they drove across the first run on a hit, an error and a passed ball. In the third they added two more to their credit on two errors and a single. In the third Spencer's secured their first run, but a neat double play by the Sons nipped the rally in time. In the fourth the

Bays' Oarsmen Being Groomed For Regatta

Crews From Portland, Vancouver and Victoria Will Assemble Here For Races on July 20 and 21; Regatta Will Be Held Either at Brentwood or Shawnigan Lake; Locals Getting Some Good Crews Together

Dates have been decided upon by the J. B. A. A. for the annual N. P. A. A. O. regatta, which this year is to be held in Victoria. The regatta will open on Friday, July 20, with the junior events, while the senior and 140-pound crews will perform on Saturday, July 21.

The venue of the regatta has not been decided upon. In the past the oarsmen have pulled over the mile and a half course at Shawnigan Lake, but the Bays are anxious to have the regatta nearer Victoria so that more people can witness the thrilling struggles. Brentwood is being given consideration. A command-view of the course can be obtained from the high cliffs there, but the suddenness with which the wind comes shooting down Saanich Arm is against the place. However, after their experience at Portland, Ore., last year when the boats had to pull in a heavy sea and squall the local oarsmen are leaning more strongly towards Brentwood.

Down to Hard Work. With the date of the regatta now more than five weeks off the crews under Dan O'Sullivan, veteran coach of the J. B. A., are getting down to hard training and it will require the remaining time to taper off and finish the work of the oarsmen.

Coach O'Sullivan has had to work out considerable material this year, but he is extremely gratified at the success which has been achieved. At each week's local senior crew is showing better form and getting greater speed and he looks for it to come through and win the premier event on the programme, the senior fours.

Plenty of Power. E. Money, who is a first-year man, has won a steady seat in the boat. This is quite an honor as it usually falls to the lot of an experienced man. Vic Bond, the powerful young athlete, is backed up with Ken Adams, another beginner who pulls a very strong oar, at No. 2. "Benny" Bendford, who is backed up with plenty of experience, but championship events, is the bow man and he keeps the crew well in hand.

A second crew, consisting of Prior a stroke, Treleur, Connor and Woods, all of whom have done considerable rowing, is being groomed by Coach O'Sullivan and will get a chance to figure in the regatta.

This Crew Is Ready. The celebrated 140-pound crew of the Bays, stroked by McLaughlin, with Hartley, Riddle and Watson holding down the other seats, is ready to take on all-comers at their weight right now. This is the finest 140-pound crew that has ever been developed in the Pacific Northwest. It swept everything before it in the regatta in 1922 and 1921 and last year the youngsters pulled away from the Bays' seniors and were sent to the Portland water sports to try and bring home the huskies event. The weight greatly handicapped the boys, their boat being whipped about by the heavy seas. Their lack of weight and strength also told in the great struggle with the elements, and they finished third, being led to the finishing line by the Vancouver and Portland huskies.

The Bays will be well fortified in the sculling events this year. Billie Kennedy, for many years senior singles champion, is training to do a comeback and hopes to lower the colors of George Kingsley, who has won the event for two years and will row for the Vancouver Rowing Club this year.

B. Locke will row in the junior singles, while B. Cummins and D. Moses will enter in both the junior and senior doubles.

Lid Is Clamped On Shelby Town To Ensure Order

Dempsey-Gibbons Fight Will Be Jeopardized If Lawlessness Prevails

Great Falls, Mont., June 8.—Shelby is a closed town. The lid went on great Wednesday after Attorney-General W. D. Rankin's announcement that the holding of the Dempsey-Gibbons heavyweight championship bout there July 4 would be jeopardized by failure on the part of the officials to enforce the law relating to gambling, liquor selling and other offenses.

These facts were established through a personal investigation of The Great Falls Tribune correspondent following receipt of instructions from his newspaper to learn actual conditions leading up to the Attorney-General's announcement and the effect of his public statement. It is considered at Shelby that the Attorney-General's instructions were issued, however, it is declared, there has not been a card or a wheel turned there since last Wednesday.

A raid conducted in Shelby Thursday night by federal officials was pursuant to the only violation obviated in the town since the Attorney-General's instructions were issued. Half a dozen federal men in Shelby have received instructions to look out for the law.

TILDEN THINKS ARGENTINE WILL EXTEND FRANCE

Expecting Interesting Games Between Old and New Davis Cup Teams

Think Fukuda, of Japan, Will Prove One of Sensations of Year

By William Tilden. (World's Tennis Champion.) The Old World against the New! It is very much so in a tennis sense, for France, the land where tennis was born, will play a new nation in the game when she stacks up against Argentina in the semi-final round of the Davis Cup European tennis tournament.

These facts were established through a personal investigation of The Great Falls Tribune correspondent following receipt of instructions from his newspaper to learn actual conditions leading up to the Attorney-General's announcement and the effect of his public statement. In the News

Yes, they are just married. They are Edith Day, musical comedy star, and Pat Somerset, well-known English actor, who have just been wed, following a romance which brought them into the public eye of England and America.

London, June 9.—Saved from a fate even worse than death, Mollie Ellis, seventeen-year-old daughter of a British major stationed in India, is back in civilization. But the smile in her voice and the twinkle in her eyes are gone.

A few months ago she was a happy school girl at Plymouth, England. Then she went to visit her parents at an army post on the northwest frontier of India.

At 2 o'clock one morning, a band of marauding Afridis, a wild tribe living in the foothills of the Himalayas, swept down on the little settlement while Major Ellis was away, killed his wife and captured his daughter. The girl, bound and gagged, was forced to witness the murder of her mother.

Then she was carried off into the wilds of the mountains, practically inaccessible to white men, and held as hostage in reprisal for activities of troops led by her father against the natives. After she wished she were dead.

The whole machinery of the British Government was put into action. Soldiers scoured the country. Friendly natives joined in the hunt. Kull Khan, a native official, got a clue from a Mullah, a Mohammedan religious leader. It led to the girl's rescue. She is now recuperating among friends.

Princess Radziwell-Palfy, the former Dorothy Deacon, has determined to go into the movies in light comedy parts. The war swept away much of her property in Vienna. But European nobility is getting used to this sort of thing now.

BRITONS AGHAST AT CARICATURES OF ROYAL FAMILY

Max Beerbohm Spoofs Prince of Wales and Takes Dig at Edward's Foibles

Labor Organ Draws Lesson From Incident; Others Call It Bad Taste

Herald Fears Re-action From Enthusiasm of Crowds For Heir to Throne

London, June 9.—Max Beerbohm has gone to the country leaving no address. All London meanwhile is gossiping about his daring caricatures of royalty at the Leicester Galleries exhibition of his cartoons.

It is tradition in England since early Victorian days that the royal family should not be caricatured. Max, who is England's leading caricaturist and has exhibited cartoons before, has several such works withheld from the public gaze.

But this time he has made shrewd hits at the Prince of Wales, Queen Mary and Edward VII. Some of his earlier cartoons also poke fun at Edward, but the Leicester Galleries refused to exhibit them with the others. So the artist-author confined himself before to lampooning internationally known persons of lower rank.

May Close Exhibition.—The Secretary of the Galleries has already declared that if representations are made to him, "we might reconsider exhibition of the cartoons in question."

One of the present exhibits is called "Song Choosing and Beginning Love." It shows the Prince of Wales standing by a table in the Registrar's Office facing his "bride." Below the drawing is: "Extract from The Times, November 19, 1917. 'An interesting wedding was quietly celebrated yesterday at Ealing Registry Office when Mr. Edward Windsor was united to Miss Flossie Pearson. The bridegroom, an elderly reader will recall, was at one time well known as 'his apparent' of the late 'King George. He has for some years been residing at Balmora, 43 Aclia Terrace, Lenin Avenue, Ealing, and the bride is a daughter of his landlady.'"

There is more of the safe chaff, which prompts The Morning Post to declare: "There are limits of taste which even a caricaturist must not observe. Mr. Beerbohm in our view transgresses these limits in certain cartoons which introduce members of the royal family."

Hansen Swaffer writes in The Graphic: "If the Prince of Wales marries or not it is an affair rather than that of Mr. Beerbohm and anyway we do not in England insult members of the royal family by using their private vagaries as subject of a very obvious jest."

Labor Press Sees Lesson.—Other press comment is similar, which prompts The Daily Herald, organ of Labor, to remark: "The incident has a moral on which those who wish to see the royal family, as we do, will be wise to ponder. 'In many of the same newspapers which are shocked or aghast at the reference to King Edward's fast life and at the suggestion that in 1912 the Prince of Wales may be merely E. Windsor, were reports yesterday of the Prince's tour in Yorkshire. These described how the couple went wild with enthusiasm, how vast crowds lined every roadway, how masses of women struggled to get near his car and how those who succeeded ran off shouting, 'I have touched him, I have touched him.'"

ILLUMINATED GOWNS NEWEST LONDON FAD

London, June 9.—Illuminated gowns are London's latest fashion fad, and they are having a tremendous vogue here. These gowns are made of georgette, chiffon or a similar thin, soft material painted over in wonderful designs in silver and gold.

Let us cast off robes of darkness and put on robes of light, is the slogan of their creator, a Roman woman artist, Signora Gallenga, who copies many of her designs from the pictures of old masters.

The queens of Belgium and Rumania, Lady Rodd, Mrs. George Vanderbilt and many other well known society women have ordered these rich-looking gowns.

NEW TOURIST TYPES HOTEL BARS BUSY

Speedy Visitors From Across Atlantic Now Use Planes to See the Old World

Luxurious Golfing Brand Seeks Only Links and Cares Not for Historical Shrines

"King Tut" Latest Cocktail, Has More Than Egyptian Spell Over Drinker

London, June 9.—Several new types of tourist, including a variety which is even speedier than some of the best globe trotters of former years, are being developed here this year.

However, if the types were classified, it would be found that while there is the pronouncedly restless variety, which is now using aeroplanes to see even more of the Old World than did the fast-moving tourists of other years, there is in contrast the type that seeks leisure and certain luxuries while sightseeing, and also the golf brand tourist, who is anxious to try out the links of the United Kingdom or the French coast, but has little desire to visit historic shrines.

Judging by the consumption of spirits, cocktails and other beverages at the leading hotels here there is at least one habit which is not peculiar to any one type of the sightseer from North America. The arrival of several boatloads of visitors in one week recently found most of the well known hotel bars registering an increased liquor sale, ranging from plain whisky to the latest "King Tut" cocktail, which, its originators say, weaves a more than Egyptian spell about those who imbibe it.

There is also the unexpectantly inclined tourist who has made his appearance in Europe lately. He has been schooled in the idea that the Old World is out to rook anything that looks like a tourist. The arrival of several boatloads of visitors in one week recently found most of the well known hotel bars registering an increased liquor sale, ranging from plain whisky to the latest "King Tut" cocktail, which, its originators say, weaves a more than Egyptian spell about those who imbibe it.

CITY TRAFFIC KILLS 505

London, June 9.—More persons are killed by traffic accidents in the streets of London in a year than passengers on the whole of the railways in Great Britain in a similar period. During last year 505 persons in London were killed by automobiles and motor trucks, 43 by motor omnibuses, 49 by horse-drawn vehicles, 35 by trolley cars and 22 by bicycles.

The major number of accidents take place in the main arteries toward the outer suburbs, where motor drivers are inclined to be less careful in negotiating crossings and corners and where pedestrians, particularly children, are less vigilant in crossing roads.

BETTING AND USURY RIFE AMONG WOMEN TAX INQUIRY SHOWS

English Committee Considering Tax on Wagers, Reports Heavy Increase

Bookmakers for Racing Have Organized Spy System Thwarting Police

Even Milkmen Take Bets to Accommodate Sportive Housewives at Home

London, June 9.—The women of England have taken to betting and money lending on an unprecedented scale. Evidence before a select committee investigating a proposal to tax upon bets shows that the unanimous opinion of the experts that "one of the most striking developments of late years has been an increase in the taste for betting among women," and the fair sex is "extremely unfair" in money lending—terms that have received the vigorous condemnation of a London judge.

Disregard for the betting laws here has come of late years to be comparable with the American disregard for prohibition. The Pall Mall Gazette had a cartoon the other day showing Uncle Sam accusing John Bull of lawless betting and John Bull accusing Uncle Sam of lawless drinking, with the caption: "What we want is regulation, not suppression."

The Hon. Trevor Bigham, Assistant Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, testified as follows before the select committee: "London is so riddled with street betting that to deal with it effectively would require a very much larger number of police than are available, or could be made available without prohibitive expenditure. Apart from the number of men required, it is not by any means certain every policeman would have the ability or desire to carry out his duty effectively. The number of persons in 1912 prosecuted for street betting was 1,068, and in 1922 it was 3,290."

Bookmakers for racing or betting of all sorts maintain a highly organized spy system, so the police have to resort to disguises. Even then, the detectives are so watched that the bookies usually get tips in time enough to hide the evidence. Children usually assigned to each detective likely to be troublesome keep constant watch over him. Milkmen and others who have deliveries to make at many private houses also do considerable bookmaking on the side among housewives.

Women bettors, however, usually are adept in concealing their bets, according to the experts. Frequently they send their children to get tips or to place bets, and many boys are employed in the business. Women money lenders, however, usually keep in close touch with all their debtors and do their work entirely alone. The usual charge is a penny a week per shilling, which amounts to more than 400 per cent interest.

They never need resort to law to collect their debts. They usually are hussy Amazons, who execute their own law with a strong arm, or so abuse their debtors—usually women—that the latter are glad to pay. Where necessary, they enlist the help of male members of the family, sometimes starting feuds.

VETERINARIANS PROSPER

London, June 9.—Despite the much threatened extinction of the horse by increasing use of motor vehicles, there is no falling off in the number of veterinary surgeons in London. This is attributed to the greater attention now paid to cats and dogs, and to the fact that while the number of horses decreased, the number of individual owners has increased.

FAMOUS BANK, FRIEND OF SOLDIERS, MAY BE CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS

LONDON, June 9.—Another of London's old landmarks has gone.

Cox and Co., the famous firm of bankers, has been absorbed by Lloyds Bank, and its building in Waterloo Place, London, is likely to become the headquarters of the Canadian Government. A household name in the commission ranks of the British army was Cox's. For just as the Canadian corps paid its officers through individual accounts at the Waterloo place branch of the Bank of Montreal in London, the War Office deposited the monthly pay cheque of almost every British officer at Cox's.

Cox's was almost the first place to which thousands of officers, many among them, and some Americans, too, repaired when on leave from the front. And it was a banking institution which was known to them as a "house which operates upon honor."

A Dinky Old Place.—Perhaps you who read this have gone in, still muddled from the trenches, to draw a handful of notes from one of its tellers. A dinky old place, Cox's down by Charing Cross, handled enormous sums of money during the war and proved a friend in need to many an impecunious young lieutenant.

"For a century," remarks a London paper, commenting on the absorption of the old firm, "the House of Cox has considered men with commissions not only as 'officers and gentlemen,' but as also being responsible for their debts."

Uncle Sam Paid Up.—Just before it changed hands Cox's received a remittance of £20,000 from the United States Government to pay overdrafts of approximately fifty American officers who, at the war's close, had failed to settle advances to that amount made them by the bank. Possibly some of these officers were killed, but apparently some deliberately neglected to pay up.

Bank Open at Night.—Cox and Co. drew the pay of every officer straight from the War Office.

Cox's Bank in Waterloo Place, London, is likely to become Overseas Headquarters of the Canadian Government. The purchase price is said to be $5,000,000.

If the officer desired to bank elsewhere his money was transferred. But the vast majority stuck to Cox's. The immense increase of business due to the war obliged the firm to enlarge its quarters several times. Each branch of the army had its own division in the bank—infantry and cavalry officers were taken care of in one building, artillery in another and air force in a third.

Cox's kept open at night during part of the war. For thousands of officers arrived from the front late in the evening, dirty, hungry, tired and practically penniless. A taxi-cab would convey a group straight to the bank, where funds were supplied even though the accounts were overdrawn at the time. One such experience and the officer felt himself indebted forever to the House of Cox.

A Grateful American Airman.—An American who held a second lieutenant's commission in the R. F. C., writes enthusiastically in the Boston Transcript of the courteous treatment he received. "As an example of the courtesy of Cox and Co.," says he, "I drew fifteen pounds fifteen shillings in advance of the bonus many months before the bonus payment could be received, and where there was about one chance in a score of my coming out alive, as far as either the bank or I myself knew."

Bank as Executor.—Cox and Co. had branches during the war at Paris, Boulogne, Havre, Rouen, Amiens and Marseilles. The firm did not allow interest except on "fixed deposits," and then the rates were given only on application. The bank acted as purchaser for patrons of securities, was prepared to act as trustee and executor, had an insurance department, a large foreign department and operated a shipping agency. Cox and Co. of course charged interest on the numerous overdrafts they allowed, which were protested to the extent of the next month's pay, which had inevitably to pass through their hands. They also apparently made a nominal charge for handling accounts.

ENGLAND LAKE OF BEER

London, June 9.—The total number of bulk barrels of beer brewed during the year ending March 31 was 22,324,328 in England and Wales, 1,598,339 in Scotland, 2,584,288 in Ireland making a total of 26,616,953. These figures were given officially in answer to a question in Parliamentary Papers.

MANNEQUIN CRAZE SEIZES ENGLISH GIRLS

London, June 9.—A new craze has seized the young women of England. They want to become fashion mannequins and share the niche of popularity with musical-comedy favorites.

A London newspaper is conducting a mannequin contest in conjunction with England's most fashionable dressmaking establishment. Those aspiring to become fashion models are required to send in their photographs, physical measurements, description of facial features, or details of any special qualifications they may possess.

London couturiers desire that the mannequin of the future must possess brains as well as mere beauty and pulchritude. In their opinion mere prettiness of face and grace of figure are no longer enough for the efficient display of their artistic creations.

Dress has become so elaborate, they say, and the struggle for originality so acute, that the girls on whom these creations are built up must co-operate intelligently in the work, and not content themselves merely with being exquisite lay figures.

Lady Racahtel Cavendish, youngest daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, former Governor-General of Canada, is to marry Hon. James Gray Stuart, third son of the Earl of Moray.

In England

Specimens of the results of advertising might note this: L. Rotham & Co., Pall Mall, published an advertisement in a London daily offering sample cabinets of cigarettes. Only 57,000 replies were received for the free smokes.

Might Do Business Here.—How any self-respecting family could think of getting along without a family crest, is what puzzles an ingenious London firm.

For only £1.50 it will link you up with some noble ancestor, give you a standing in heraldry and work out a design for your note paper and gate posts to show that you really are somebody.

What Do They Want for Their Money?—This may disappoint patent medicine consumers.

Takers of the beef and mutton of the Leilig Standard Wine Co., Salford, thought their favorite medicine was weaker than it should be. The company was fined £300 in court when analysis showed that the wine consisted of one thousandth part beef, one thousandth part mutton and the rest sugar and water.

They Still Write Them.—English schoolboys are still writing examinations and producing the usual crop of "howlers." One of several of the latest related by Mr. Ludford Treeman, Director of Education for Bristol, at a luncheon the other day, reads:

Where are the Kings of England?—The chief clause in the Magna Charta was that no free man should be put to death without his own consent.

R.S.V.P. stands for Royal Society for Vermin Protection. Guerrilla warfare means "up to their monkey tricles."

The wife of Duke is a ducky. Solomon had 200 wives and 700 concubines.

Saying It With a Punch.—"If I give you a punch in the jaw," was the vigorous way James Sexton, Laborite, replied in the House of Commons to Sir R. Buxton, Liverpool silk manufacturer and Tory, who introduced the bill to prevent trade unions from raising funds for political purposes.

Sexton emphasized his words by crossing to the Tory benches and shaking his fist in Remer's face. Members interfered, and his speech was cut short.

Ernest Thompson, detective superintendent of London Police.—From my experience more prisoners attribute their downfall to betting than to any other evil.

Sir Cecil Harcourt Smith, director of Victoria and Albert Museum.—This cinema always gives the impression that one may do anything except think or stand still. I foresee a time when we shall be expected to do everything but cinema.

Prince of Wales.—The appellation bestowed on the British people by a great general of the past will never be forgotten, we shall always preserve the concealed compliment implied in our being styled a "Nation of shopkeepers." If we are, we have never thought, justly, to meet the shop window, that because we have a certain commercial shrewdness, we are totally unappreciative of art. I do not believe for one moment that industrialism and artistic development are necessarily antagonistic, and that because a man has been business vision he is artistically blind.

"To His Majesty King Jarge"—From their annual dinner at Holborn Restaurant, with Lord Birkenhead and Lord Balfour, the guests, the Society of Dorset Men in London sent this strange-sounding message to the King:

To His Majesty King Jarge. Sire, "Squotten roun" the vestive board, celebratin their nineteenth birthday, Darsert Men in London all put th' cappon on th' jarviness of their gatherin by sendin to ee th' respect which we all do veel vor ee. We don't do it in a formal, croudden or kick-hammer way, but we will hearts, a girt rummle in th' pious pray'r that a wealth o' sweetness will vill th' heart an' life o' yer Majesty will peace an' joy.

Hwopen th' Glory o' Heaven mid ever seen in yer vece, Heart an' "ardors of Street, Wee! Thy valthful sarvin.

Frederick Guest, President o' Darsert Men in Lon'on.

And They Say the Ku Klux Klan is New!—Be thankful that you did not live in the good old days 250 years ago. Here are some court records of sentences given in 1747 which have just been dug up in London. All for offences considered minor police court affairs to-day.

"Mary Meredith to be whipped at the cart's tail until her body be bloody, along 'ardors of Street, Wee! from the end next to Edward Street, unto the end thereof, next to Tyburn Road."

And another: "William Rybold to be whipped at the cart's tail until his body be bloody, through King Street, St. Anne's."

Public whipping seemed to be a popular sentence 200 years ago, and most of the victims were women. The West End, strange to say, was always chosen as the scene of these outrages.

ROYAL MOVIE FANS ENJOY FILM THRILLERS AT CASTLE

London, June 8.—Film fans can be found in the royal family as well as in the humblest homes of King George's realm, for while in residence at Windsor, Castle the King and Queen saw the real movie thrillers in a hall of the historic edifice fitted up for the purpose.

Lloyd George and a number of other prominent politicians have become film fans, too. For some time one of the interesting diversions at week-end parties in the country has been the film programme. Application is made to some purveying concerns to submit in advance a film "menu," and from this are selected wild west thrillers and comics. Lloyd George's new house at Churt has a spacious room where a screen can be put up, and hardly a week end

This is the latest picture of one of England's noted beauties who has been very prominent lately. She is Lady Prochester, wife of the only son and heir of the late Earl of Carnarvon, discoverer of King Tut's tomb. Because of her beauty, charm and popularity, she is known in Society circles as royalty's pet.

WONDERFUL DOLL'S HOUSE HAS WATER AND LIGHTS

London, June 9.—The most wonderful doll's house in the world is now being constructed from a design by Sir Edwin Landseer Lutyns, prominent architect. It will contain running water in tiny baths, books the size of one's fingernail, and two seven-inch full length portraits of the King and Queen done by Major Sir William Orpen.

This doll's mansion was originally suggested by the Queen to the hospitals of London. It will be placed in the British Empire exhibition next year for that purpose.

Premier Drury Keeps Tabs on His Spectacles

People Wondered Why the U. F. O. Leader Inspected One of the Cannons Rather Hastily.

THE great mass of clerical work that comes before a cabinet leader at Queen's Park has forced Premier Drury to take to wearing spectacles, but the premier has no great liking for them. He has a habit of forgetting them as he moves around.

E. C. Drury

Not long ago Mr. Drury took a short walk around Queen's Park after dinner. On returning to his office the spectacles were missing, and a great search for them began.

Drawers were pulled out, papers removed, and books lifted, but no spectacles could be found. The House would soon begin. The situation grew serious.

Mr. Drury wrinkled his brow and thought hard. He had it! The spectacles were found where he had left them when starting out on his walk. They reposed in the mouth of one of the cannons in front of the parliament buildings!

Montreal's Col. Denison Sent Globe Trotting

Recorder Geoffrion, at the Age of Sixty, Awakens Over Night to Literary Fame.

Recorder Amédée Geoffrion is a Montreal police magistrate who has recently become as famous in a literary way in Quebec's metropolis as was Colonel George Denison in Toronto. Colonel Denison won his literary spurs by writing a book on "Cavetry." Recorder Geoffrion wrote a letter defending his judicial decisions against the Committee of Sixteen, and the Rev. Mr. Hart, Montreal's Ben Spence, whom he called "the Ezekiel of Westmount."

Amédée Geoffrion

The letter was a model of literary elegance. Montreal suddenly woke up to the fact that Recorder Geoffrion was one of its chief literary figures. No one had previously suspected his addiction to literature. He has almost put Stephen Leacock's nose out of joint.

Amédée Geoffrion's hobby is not golf, but books. He has thousands of them, all in English, French and Latin classics. When he is not in court he is in his library. He has also eight sons and daughters, a small enough family in Quebec, but still sufficiently distracting for any bookworm. One wonders how the recorder found time for all his reading. But Quebec is still patriarchal and children are exceedingly well behaved.

He is not only a collector of books. He is a collector of firearms. He has in his office in the old criminal courts a magnificent collection of "guns" impounded from generations of Montreal gunmen. When they are searched the spoils go to Recorder Geoffrion as a sort of seigniorial right. One glance at his shining arsenal shows the increasing advantage that the modern crook has over the policeman's nightstick.

It is no wonder that Quebec prides itself on its culture when its police magistrates are masters of belles lettres in both languages. And it must be remembered, too, that the recorder never saw an Englishman till he was eighteen years of age. Strange to say, there are still little Quebec villages like that, where English faces as well as English accents are still unknown.

Recorder Geoffrion is sixty years of age, and he has never been out of Quebec. Now he is going to take a European tour. The Montreal city council, disturbed by the revelations of the Committee of Sixteen, are sending him to Europe to study social conditions in order to submit suggestions that will make Montreal more like Toronto. Premier Taschereau has already given him leave of absence. With him will go Doctor Haywood, of the Montreal General Hospital, whose statistics awakened Montreal to the alarming extent of its social problem.

And so Amédée Geoffrion is to be dragged from his library and his eight children and sent globe-trotting in his sixtieth year, all because he read Anatole France and wrote a letter that was literature.

A REMEDY FOR BORES

Lord Balfour has a good story to tell of a friend of his who is one of the most courteous of men, but hard on bores.

The other day he came out of his London house, and before he could get into his motor car a bore held him up.

The bore talked to him about the European situation and the reparations question for twenty minutes in one blue streak, and then, when he paused for breath, the courteous one said:

"Yes, there are no omelets like the omelets you get at Claridge's."

"Perhaps, perhaps," said the bore. "But what has that to do with what I've been talking about?"

The other yawned behind his hand.

"By the way," he said, "what were you talking about?"

Sun Losing Its Heat Dr. Abbot's Uneasy Claim

If Correct, It Means Cold Summer, Spoiling of Crops, and Severe Winter.

When Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the National Academy of Sciences, announced that the heat of the sun was gradually diminishing and had decreased from 3 to 4 per cent. during the last fifteen months, he started a controversy which promises to rage indefinitely. If Dr. Abbot's statement is proved to be correct it means a cold summer, a spoiling of the crops and an unusually severe winter.

New Brood of Authors and Editors Thump Typewriters Even on Trains

H. G. Wells' Nocturnal Tea Incites Him to Work in the Night-Watches; but He Still Pushes a Pen; Many Authors Dictate to Secretaries.

How do you think the latest novel you have been reading was written?

It is very seldom now that an author uses a pen. Many of them use typewriters. More than the majority of people imagine simply dictate to secretaries.

"Does the dictated sentence betray itself?" asks Montgomery Bell, in John O'London's Weekly. "I doubt it. Dictation is sneered at by the old Die-Hards of the quill, but it is curious that once a writer becomes addicted to dictation he refuses to be his own amanuensis any more. Mr. W. Somerset Maugham went to the Far East in 1921 and took a secretary with him. Most of 'East of Suez' I am told, was dictated on various junks in the neighborhood of Java, and so was the greater part of 'On a Chinese Screen.' Mr. W. L. George plans his work elaborately, dictates and then revises extensively.

Anyone who has viewed Mr. Justice Riddell sitting on the bench at Osgoode Hall and heard him repeatedly say, "Let's get on," to legal lights appearing before him would not hastily come to the conclusion that he regarded himself as a target. Happily, the Party Returned Without Any Demand for the Professional Services of the Gallant Colonel.

FEW Canadians are better known than is Col. S. M. Rogers, head of Jasper Park, Alberta. Col. Rogers, who served both in the South African campaign and in the world war, is one of the most jovial of men, despite that fact that in private life his profession is that of an undertaker. For years, he conducted one of the leading undertaking establishments in Ottawa.

Lake Deschences, near Ottawa is a very treacherous body of water, subject to sudden squalls, and many Ottawa people have been drowned in it. One day, Col. Rogers was in charge of a party of young people in a sailing boat out on the lake. The mother of two of the party was asked by a friend if she was not nervous to have her children out on the lake, in view of its reputation.

"Oh, no," replied the lady, confidently, "you see, Col. Rogers is in charge of the party, and he could take care of them if anything happened."

Happily, the party returned without any demand for the professional services of the gallant colonel, and all enjoyed a good laugh at the double meaning of the fond mother's remark.

Orders Dr. Gandier To a Doubtful Place

Described by a Stuttering Gentleman, It Sounded Like Profanity, but It Wasn't.

Rev. Principal Alfred Gandier, of Knox College, Toronto, is one of the best-known figures in Canadian Presbyterianism.

A few years ago he was chairman at a great religious gathering in Massey Hall, Toronto. One of the leading speakers on the programme that evening was a well-known man, who, in spite of his great oratorical powers, showed at times a certain hesitancy in his speech.

On this particular occasion he began his address by paying tribute to the chairman of the evening, Rev. Principal Gandier. Indulging in reminiscence, he called to mind how, some years before, the chairman was the much-loved pastor of the Presbyterian church in Brampton, Ontario. When a call came to him from a prominent church in Halifax, he was at a loss to know whether to accept it or not.

Finally, in his dilemma, he left it to Presbytery to decide for him. Just then the speaker's speech bothered him somewhat, as he proceeded: "and Presbytery told him to go to H-H-Halifax."

It sounded like profanity—but it wasn't.

Is The Prince of Wales Victim of His Success?

England's Serious Problem of the Sheer Daredevilry of the Prince of Wales.

WHAT'S wrong with the Prince of Wales? Correspondents of the big New York papers are asking this question.

Since the Prince of Wales seems to be demonstrating that he would infinitely rather imperil his irreplaceable neck at a five-barred gate than imperil his happiness at the altar of Westminster Abbey, the gossips are curious.

To-day, at any rate, writes one distinguished newspaperman, "the once adored Prince of Wales is the constant worry of his parents and the disappointment of the English people."

"It is a sad disillusion for them, they who thought they had found at last a real, English champion of the royal idea. You have only to study the London newspapers, comparing them with those of a year ago, to note the decline in popular esteem of the Prince of Wales and the forced rise of his less attractive brother, the Duke of York, in his stead."

"A prince can take too many chances," says another. "What, then, the Prince of Wales seems to be doing may be described as a kind of fraternal, if temporary, abdication. To the staid and silent Duke of York, obviously the son of his mother, the prince delegates the more domestic of his responsibilities, from which it follows, of course, that as heir-presumptive, the Duke of York has leapt at one bound into a position of unexpected prominence. Unless and until the prince marries, it is on him that the succession depends, and his wedding has thus been far more to England than any previous marriage of a king's younger son."

"The engagements that the prince has made for six months," says Ferdinand Tuohy, in The New York World, "are broken regularly, and for months the Duke of York has had to fill the gap. You will hear many strange tales of the prince and the duke. How the former told the latter recently, 'Carry on—marry Betty (Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon). I never will. And what is more, learn to be King of England.' I never will be." This was reflected in a leader of The Times welcoming the engagement of the duke, on which occasion the delicate health of the Prince of Wales was referred to. The Times is ever tactful. Perhaps the writer of that article knew that the delicacy of the Prince of Wales concerned his heart rather than his physique.

"Real friends have told him: 'You're as light. You are a jockey. Stick to racing, but don't do this cross-country stuff.' But the prince, determined to emulate his heavier and excellent horseman friend, 'Burghy' (Lord Burgherah), declines to listen. Six falls in the field in a week. The British public whispers: 'Is he trying to break his neck?'

"What is behind it all? Is this young man, who seemed destined to be the idol of his countrymen, just a lighthead? No. Those who mention the Prince of Wales over the teacups in London's select drawing-rooms do not think of him as a lighthead. But for quite a time now, they have been asking each other discreetly if the prince may not be the victim of an unfortunate affair of the heart."

"The Duke of York has lived hitherto with his parents. The prince has travelled, perhaps too much. Never resting, the restless instinct has been overdeveloped. For years at a time he has wandered homeless, doing his bit. He is so utterly popular that, in public esteem, there are now no new worlds for him to conquer. He has already exhausted all the first titles of kingship. He has passed beyond the illusions. He has more money as a young man than he will ever have as a monarch. He has more time at his disposal and a wider chance of friends and pleasures. The prince is a victim of his own success. He has all the self-determination as well as all the fact of his race, and, on some writers, horses, for instance, and matrimony, he intends to have his own way.

"What the end of it will be is the speculation to-day of exclusive London. In which circles the question is being asked if the prince really wants to ascend the throne, and if he would not perhaps go to some extreme length to disqualify himself.

NEW GRAY CAR IS DEPENDABLE TYPE

Is New Model On Automobile Row; Third Shipment Is Coming Next Week

Dependable and serviceable the new Gray Dort car, now being exhibited for the first time this year by the Cartier Garage people on Johnson Street, offers itself as one of the best utility cars that has been placed on the market for some time. The Gray made its debut on automobile row about two months ago and since its inception in Victoria, has become very popular. Its popularity has grown to such an extent that the third shipment will arrive in this next week in time to fill the many orders that have been taken for this serviceable model.

It is spacious and commodious and the tourist prospective automobile buyer could not do better than inspect the new model. Mr. Cartier, of the Cartier Garage, on Johnson Street, has been giving demonstrations with this car for some time and has met with great success. Satisfaction is given the buyer as shown by the reports that buyers have given Mr. Cartier, after purchasing the new motor.

Like all other up-to-date cars, its appointments have not been overlooked and everything that could be desired of a new model has not been forgotten. The engine is a smooth running one and offers to the traveling salesman a car that will give him not only service but pleasure.

INCREASED BUSINESS

Syracuse, N. Y., June 9.—"Not since the boom period of 1920, have we had such fine business in open cars," says S. E. Ackerman, sales manager of the Franklin Automobile Company. "So far this year we have sold better than 600 more open cars than during the first five months of 1922 and better than 800 more than we sold during the corresponding period of 1921. Our present large business in open cars is, perhaps, the more remarkable in view of the fact that our production of closed cars to-day is far in advance of what it was three years ago."

JASPER HIGHWAY COMPLETION IS GOOD BUSINESS

Every progressive town in the western States has spent many thousands of dollars in advertising their resources and opportunities. In getting on the travel route of America they did so because they found it paid.

Every traveler is an asset to the community he visits, perhaps only to the extent of board and lodging for a night or so, perhaps only to the extent of the few dollars he must leave behind him; again perhaps to the greater extent of the traveler turning himself overnight into a permanent resident. TAKE IT AS YOU WILL, THE TRAVELER MEANS MONEY.

Travel and travelers will always pass along the paths which present the least obstacles to progress, the paths which are broad and smooth, in preference to the backwash paths of the hinterland. The distinction between a new and an old country is MAINLY A DISTINCTION OF ROAD QUALITY.

Latest conditions have impelled the traveler to use the wheels on the highway instead of the wheels on the rails, and to-day "the world is on wheels." Where there is a road there goes the wheel of progress, of pleasure, of profit. THEY TAKE THE EASIEST GRADES.

Edmonton's easy road for the world to travel on is the coming Jasper Highway, and the final inclusion of this missing link in the Trans-Canada Highway system will place Edmonton where Edmonton belongs, as A TRAVEL CENTRE.

Edmonton was a travel centre in the past when the route was by the river. Edmonton was a travel centre yesterday when the route was by the rail. Edmonton can be a travel centre to-morrow if it will get behind the COMPLETION OF THE JASPER HIGHWAY to the last man and dollar.

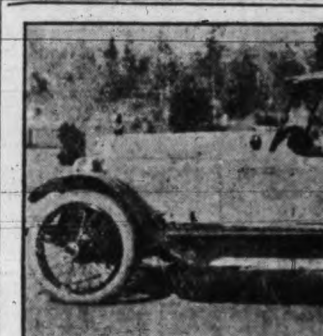

Requests for strip maps, recently published by the British Columbia Automobile Association, covering Vancouver and the Fraser Valley, have been received from a great many outside points, including British Columbia, Washington and even California. 50,000 of these maps have already been distributed and another 32,000 will be received from the printers this week.

FROM VANCOUVER TO TIA JUANA BY CAR

Local Man Makes Long Trip in a Made-in-B. C. Automobile

Vancouver, B.C., June 9.—To take a four thousand mile trip from Vancouver, Canada, to Tia Juana, Mexico, returning by way of the Grand Canyon of Colorado, is what a Vancouver man, H. H. Trail, expects to accomplish by the middle of June. He is using an automobile specially built by himself in the workshop of the Brown Garage, Vancouver, official garage for the B.C. Automobile Association. The car which sets a new standard in automobile building and one which embodies features never before combined in any car of Canadian or American manufacture.

Mr. Trail, who was for many years night foreman in the garage in which he built his machine, is a practical mechanic with sixteen years experience in the work, of which eight were spent in the service of the Rolls-Royce Motor Company, whose productions to this day are recognized the world over as the last word in automotive super-excellence.

The car with Mr. Trail seated at the wheel is pictured above. It is a Columbia-type chassis with a 7 R Continental Motor, Timkin bearings, Borgeson-Beck clutch—and Spicer universals. The wheels are of Bud-wire design or straight-spoked.

The body bears evidence of the care used in its making. Designed as a touring roadster, it carries a spacious trunk which fits into the luggage space by removing the locker-door. The upholstery is detachable and allows the interior to be converted into a comfortable bed by the simple act of pulling out a mattress which fits snugly during the daytime into the space between the luggage trunk and the upholstery immediately behind the back of the driver.

The wooden members of the body are constructed of solid oak; while all steel parts are separated from the woodwork by clipper, thus totally eliminating all squeaks and rattlings.

Exterior body lines are very artistically designed, being fashioned after the models of European manufacture with high front and straight back effects.

Doors are built extra wide reaching clear back to the hips of the occupants allowing ample room to move in and out with the least awkwardness and slightest effort of motion.

A particularly handy feature is seen in the lighting arrangements. Extra sprockets with extension tubes enable the owner to use lights in any part of the car for reading or outside for tenting or detecting motor troubles.

"This car is the most successful attempt at body building in Vancouver," declared Mr. Y. Finch, of the Brown Garage, recently, "and reflects great credit on the ability of British Columbians to be able to produce a creation of merit in this field of automotive endeavor. Dealers have remarked to me that they would be proud to have this automobile on display in their city show-rooms."

Before leaving the city, Mr. Trail signified his intention of keeping a motorlog of his trip. As he is a member of the British Columbia Automobile Association, arrangements have been made by that organization to publish a record of his travels in the columns of the newspapers giving publicity to the activities of that organization.

HERE AND THERE

The Orphans' Automobile Day Association of New York city each year takes several thousand orphan children out for a ride and gives them a day of outdoor fun. The nineteenth annual outing run will be held June 14.

The first gasoline propelled automobile ever built is said to be in Milwaukee, Wis. The vehicle, built in 1889, weighs only 850 pounds, and has a wheel base of 48 inches.

"Jay walking" continues to be the leading cause of street accidents in New York city. Of 89 persons killed and 2,727 injured during April, 35 were killed and 779 injured in the middle of blocks.

Dayton, Ohio, has 1,885 motor vehicles per square mile of territory. This record leads all other cities in the United States. Detroit is second with a rating of 1,867, and San Francisco third, with 1,802 cars and trucks to the square mile.

There are no automobile parking regulations and no speed laws in Japan. The traffic officer is a silent man, never uttering a sound, never blowing a whistle, but carrying on his duties through an elaboration of signals.

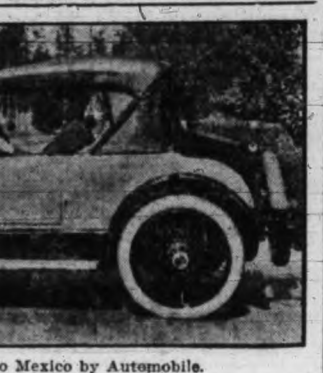

Seniors at Yale will be permitted in the future to own and operate automobiles while at college. Hitherto automobiles have been barred entirely among undergraduates.

Eighty per cent. of all the motor trucks in service in the United States are one-ton or less. This has grown from 48 per cent. in the last six years.

TRAINED MEN AS HIGHWAY BUILDERS IS URGENT NEED

Still Lot More to Be Learned in Construction of Roads

The experience of the past few years that has been gained in the construction of improved highways throughout the Dominion has demonstrated clearly that there is still a lot to be learned in the matter of building better roads, and furthermore that to every government and municipality that the extent to which well-trained men can be brought in to this field and retained is the measure of the economy and efficiency in the expenditure of the tremendous public funds which must inevitably go into the building and maintenance of our public highway systems. Unfortunately for the ratepayers and for those who use the highways as well, there has undoubtedly been a dearth of fully qualified properly trained highway builders available—perhaps because of the inducements of higher compensation—sure advancement and continuity of services that are offered to the individual of outstanding personality and technical preparation, which are so far in advance of the offers made by the public service. The result has been that a great deal of highway construction has been placed in the hands of men who are not fully trained in such matters—more often than not an analysis of such officials will prove that the majority of them are railway engineers, and while they may be qualified for that particular line of endeavor, there are wide points of difference between building a railroad and constructing a highway. There are a few points of similarity such as the importance of drainage and grading but the foundation of the highway and its surfacing, two of the most important features are problems that the railway trained engineer is not conversant with.

It is apparent to the most casual observer that the last word has not been said in regard to either type of roads or methods of construction—experiments are continually being carried out and data obtained which is invaluable as far as it goes, but until there exists a body of trained highway builders—men versed in all the problems that confront those who undertake road construction—the progress towards economic efficiency will be but slow.

At the tenth annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association to be held at Hamilton on June 11, 12, 13 and 14 next, this is one of the important new features that have been added to the programme of subjects for discussion—the need for specially trained highway builders. It will be introduced by a man who occupies a high position in engineering circles, who frankly recognizes this need and will explain why the delegates, the subject being further enlarged upon by another engineer. Only ten per cent. of the highways of Canada have received any surface treatment whatever so that the field open to properly trained highway builders is a large one, and the proposal will be put forward that the leading universities should establish courses where highway builders can specialize in this subject and through the municipal and provincial authorities in building better and cheaper road systems.

The chairman of the executive committee, S. L. Squire, while out West recently, received the most flattering commendations of the provincial governments for the assistance the association had rendered in presenting the claims for federal aid in highway construction, and the securing of an extension of two years for those provinces which have not yet absorbed their Dominion grants. Mr. Squire is just now visiting the Maritime provinces in order to line up the official delegates for the convention and particularly for the inter-provincial conference of highway officials which will be held jointly with the general convention. This conference is of greater importance than usual this year because of the determined fight all the provinces are going to make to get the Dominion Government to make further grants for general highway improvement.

As an effort to stop excessive speeding on the roads in France, shallow ditches are dug across the highway at various intervals by the villagers. These ruts are deep enough to give swift drivers a jolt, and to injure the springs of the car.

STAR AUTOMOBILE ANTICIPATES AN HISTORIC SEASON

Two Shipments Are Due Within Two Weeks; Fifty Cars Sold This Year

Meeting with success wherever it has been exhibited the Star motor-car, a product of the Durant motor-factory, is having an exceptionally good run of sales in Victoria. The Atkinson Motor Company, Yates Street, are the local agents and they report the sale of over 50 cars this year, despite the fact that the Star is a new product on the market.

Orders on hand at present are sufficient to meet the supply on the local market, but to stimulate the increasing popularity of this new car, two more shipments will be forwarded here.

In fact two carloads are on the track now and will be here in about 15 to 20 days time. The summer season is expected to increase the sale of this car and there is no doubt but what this year's appearance of the Star will be a successful one.

The design of body combined with the unqualified finish and upholstery alone makes this automobile attractive. The engine has given satisfaction to all who have been fortunate enough to buy the car. Dust proof and reliable there is no occasion to fear a long trip up the Island in such a well built car.

Its appointments are all that can be desired. To the tourist nothing could be better than the spacious trunk with which the car is equipped, while the soft upholstered seats invite traveling enthusiasts to long drives in the country and even two or three weeks tour over the Island. The car also possesses all necessary accessories to make travel a pleasure and recreation.

An Examination Paper For Canadians

One Word Answers Every Question, But Few People In This Country Could Get Even a Pass Mark; Try It Yourself and Then Read Review of the Interesting Book on Which It Is Based.

By Professor W. T. Allison

I offer for the consideration of my readers this week a short examination paper which I have been amusing myself by preparing. It consists of six questions, and is as follows:

- 1. Where is the "Never-Never" land?
2. In what country is meat oftenest on the bill of fare in the average home?
3. Name the earthly paradise for horse-racing and gambling.
4. Where does the census register 98 per cent of the population belonging to the Christian Church?
5. In what part of the British Empire is church-going observed by only one-fifth of members or adherents?
6. What is the newest, the most interesting, and apparently the final outpost of the Anglo-Saxon civilization?

A CANDID CRITIC FROM THE U. S.

In his recent visit to the antipodes, the President Emeritus of Western Reserve University talked with many of the leading men of Australia and New Zealand.

PREACHERS TREATED WITH GENTLE DERISION.

Prack of interests is another cause. In a land remote and lonely the excitement of betting becomes a fierce craving. But perhaps the lack of wide and airy horizons, the flatness of the land, the fact that 98 per cent of the population inform the census that they are Christians, the adherents of some Christian church.

WHAT'S OUT THERE IN THE "NEVER-NEVER" LAND.

As we all know, Australia is a land of immense distances. Some of the settlers in the Canadian West live remote and lonely lives and suffer from droughts and blizzards.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

MY UNPOSTED CORRESPONDENCE

A Study in Second Thoughts.

It is an old adage that second thoughts are best. This is especially true when second thoughts are fortified by the inertia of a lazy disposition, averse to trouble.

Like many other people I find myself constantly impelled to write letters upon sudden impulses, to write to frame them in my mind.

These letters are addressed for example to the Directors of Theatres in the city, to the Mayor, to the Police, to the Fire Department, to the Board of Health, to the Board of Education, to the Board of Trade, to the Board of Public Works, to the Board of Police, to the Board of Health, to the Board of Education, to the Board of Trade, to the Board of Public Works.

Another set of letters are framed to the Immigration Authorities at the United States to tell them that I have consented to the everlastingly questioning at the border.

Witness this example: LETTER OF PROTEST TO THE LIGHT, HEAT AND POWER COMPANY OF MY HOME CITY.

Sirs: Your account for $41.85 which I received this morning convincing me that you are pack of robbers. This bill which professes to represent an unpaid account for three months is incorrect.

It is a feeling which you ought to respect. My wife also remembers distinctly that she paid your collection man, or at any rate a collection man, at the house of my father-in-law.

Another impulse from which often springs my unposted correspondence is an excess of sudden philanthropy.

When Dr. Clapp made his preliminary reconnaissance of the southeastern part of Vancouver Island, he assigned these volcanic rocks to the Tertiary era or Eocene period.

The finding of the Albert Head fossils made possible the assigning of the Metochosin volcanics to the Tertiary era or Eocene period.

The Metochosin volcanics correspond in age to the similar basalts on the Washington coast across the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The Metochosin volcanics run parallel to the Leech River slates all the way to Port San Juan.

Responsibility Upon THE SENATE THE OTTAWA CITIZEN

Sir George Foster reflects public opinion in Canada on the desirability of suppressing the sources of liquor supply to bootlegging and rum-running agencies, when he says that nothing should be done to prevent the further extension of Parliament No. 43 this session, or the Senate will be responsible for any lack of action.

The Lavas of Metochosin

The rocks to be seen from Luxton to the River are especially well shown in the rock quarry at the Head for the breakwater at Ogden Point.

When Dr. Clapp made his preliminary reconnaissance of the southeastern part of Vancouver Island, he assigned these volcanic rocks to the Tertiary era or Eocene period.

The finding of the Albert Head fossils made possible the assigning of the Metochosin volcanics to the Tertiary era or Eocene period.

The Metochosin volcanics correspond in age to the similar basalts on the Washington coast across the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The Metochosin volcanics run parallel to the Leech River slates all the way to Port San Juan.

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO CHILDREN

BRUNO LOSES HIS WOODLAND HOME

BRUNO was born in the Cowichan hills, in a range which borders the west side of the lake and raises bald peaks aloft to the skies near the margin of that placid water. His parents taught him how to catch grubs, dig for honey, and keep out of the way of mankind. They taught him how to make himself secure for the night, free from the noisy alarms of the woods; but most important of all they taught him that he was a bear and that bears attain a merry old age if they keep to themselves and leave all others severely alone.

Bruno, as a tiny, furry ball of a baby bear, was a playful little fellow and used to wrestle in fun with his baby brothers. Together the cubs would roll over and over on the ground, grumbling as if they were about to feast each others' throats out—though, of course, their grumbles were really their way of expressing the fun they derived from the rough and tumble in the pleasant surroundings of the Cowichan hills Bruno passed the younger days of his life in absolute content.

There was plenty of food to be had, and Bruno became adept in noting which type of log it was that held the greater number of insects. He would squat down beside a fallen tree and speculatively pull sections of bark off with his sharp claws. Two little beady eyes set in the furry brown face winked comically as they caught sight of myriads of scurrying bugs and beetles. The lean red tongue would dart out with surprising rapidity, and each time a choice morsel would find its way from its log cabin to the heasty furnace that served the baby bear with a keen appetite.

With the delicate care of an epicure Bruno would select upon the choicest of insects and convey them on the tip of his tongue to the ready mouth. Not that he was unnaturally greedy, but just that bears are large animals and insects very small provender for so large a frame. Albeit these were of his kind, had any bear, like the rest of his kind, had an eye for business when his paws went searching the decaying sides of fallen logs.

When quite young, Bruno was turned loose to fend for himself. His parents thought that he was large and sensible enough to pilot his own course through life. In this they were right, for even at that age Bruno was a sensible little fellow, though very quaint to look upon. He was a dark brown color, with a head of soft warm fur, which covered his body and reached a length of several inches in places.

Bruno, now master of his own fate, set up some for himself in the hollow of a great cedar tree. Here he lay warm and snug at night, free from the fear of intrusion and out of hearing of the weird noises of the night.

Being a bear, Bruno did not have much to fear in the woods really. About the only other denizen of those parts as large as himself was the panther, and the panther had been taught from many generations to leave bears alone. Bruno, like all of his kind, could go through brush, no matter how thick it was, by merely shutting his eyes and pushing for all he was worth; but he had difficulty on the hill sides. For see his legs were very short. Speed was not included in the list of specifications for the mold in which Nature had fashioned him. In this happy way Bruno passed several years without once regretting his choice of a home in his surroundings.

However, not even in Nature are matters perfect, and Bruno was to have a rough awakening in this abode of peace. Fall gave way to winter and the little brown bear burrowed into his home, raked the covers over himself and went to sleep for the cold winter months. He retired for his long sleep with a super-abundance of fat, enough food stored up in this manner to last his body while slumber carried him through the era of ice and snow until the sun should return to the earth again to drive out the cold.

In Spring, Bruno awakened with a real hunger. It was months since he had eaten, and now his body was lean and scraggy looking. Immediately he fell to on the nearest log, tearing away the bark with feverish haste. Insects, though millions of them were entombed on the sticky red tongue, did not go far to satisfy the appetite that had been sharpening steadily as he slept month by month there in his hollow. Bruno left the log quest and went in search of other provender.

He rambled with the clumsy haste of his fellow-owls over the hills and into the valley on the other side of the range. He had just reached the floor of the valley when to his nostrils came the scent of smoke. Now Bruno previously had had no experience of fire. Instinct told him it was something that was neither good to eat nor safe to argue with in any event. He commenced to retreat, his steps up the hillside. Then it happened.

It seemed as if the whole hillside sprang at once into a mass of flame. Driven by the force of its draft the forest fire swept up the valley, trees ahead catching fire from the flying sparks borne on the wings of the wind. The underbrush sizzled and cracked. Flames, roaring and searing flames, mounted skyward to the height of the trees. The heat was appalling. It seemed almost as if some giant had swooped down on the face of the land and sucked up all the air, leaving nothing but smoke and heat behind.

Bruno waited not to see more. As he lumbered along he was overtaken by wild-eyed deer. Light of foot, these raced in great leaping bounds, with their tongues flaring out from between their open jaws.

Bruno was too busy making the most of his short legs to see all that went on, but there were many strange sights in the flight. A panther raced in the middle of a lot of startled deer. The panther did not even get out of its way, and the panther had no eyes for the deer. Birds flew in meteoric bursts through the tree tops and in some cases dashed themselves to pieces against the boles of trees in the path of their flight.

Smoke drew a curtain over the scene, as yard by yard the flames leaped ahead. The light of foot, these raced in great leaping bounds, with their tongues flaring out from between their open jaws. Chuck and he had no trouble in making his way through Woody's doorway.

As soon as Mr. Fox saw that he was inside he ran back for he had gone only a short distance away. He wanted to make certain that Jimmy was very angry and was filling Woody's home with such a dreadful odor that later when Mr. Fox chased Woody he would not be able to stay in his house or even go to another opening to escape, but would be obliged to come out the way he went in and then Mr. Fox would catch him.

All this was the way Mr. Fox planned it, but when he ran back to make sure that Jimmy was doing a good piece of work he poked in his nose just a teeny-weeny bit of a way to find out.

But Jimmy, who had discovered that Mr. Woodchuck was not at home, was on the watch and, thinking that the tip of Mr. Fox's nose was Woody just returning, he threw his bad smelling fluid right in the face of Mr. Fox.

Mr. Fox jumped, but not quick enough. He got all that was intended for poor Woody Chuck.

His eyes smarted and he could not see. The terrible smell was right with him. He could not escape it, though he pawed at his nose and rubbed it on the ground. It was no use. When Jimmy Skunk throws his weapon it remains to be a reminder to his enemy for some days to come.

Mr. Fox started to run, but his eyes hurt, so he could not see his way and Woody Chuck, who was just waddling home, looked in astonishment at Mr. Fox's strange action.

"What is the matter with him, I wonder," thought Woody, sitting bolt upright behind some brush to watch. And then he sniffed the air. "Mr. Skunk!" he exclaimed. "He met Mr. Skunk. I am surprised, for I thought Mr. Fox was too clever to attack Mr. Skunk."

He watched Mr. Fox making his way uncomprehendingly toward the opposite side. "No, no, no, going back there," he said as he went along. "But what I cannot understand is why Mr. Skunk should bother to go in my house. Anyway, Mr. Fox got his pay for trying to catch me, and I will go to the woods and find a place to sleep to-night and to-morrow I must look for a new place to dig a home."

The thing that Mr. Fox had planned to have happen to Mr. Wood Chuck didn't happen at all and his scheme proved as you can see to be a boomerang.

Making Silk From B. C. Forests

Down through the ages mankind has ever tried to supply himself with the comforts he has not. In other days man tried to find the alchemy that would make gold. It was thought that somewhere there was a formula that would turn everything to pure gold. Sorcerers claimed time and again to have found it, and died when they were not able to make good their claims.

It was the same with diamonds, though more recently. Men tried to make diamonds to equal the lustre and weight of these precious stones found in rare corners of the earth, and they claim to have found the way to make diamonds by the synthetic, or artificial, way—but none have yet claimed to equal nature's work in that regard.

In some things, though, man has made a success of his efforts to make what he cannot find. Silk is an instance of this. There is a very large quantity of silk used throughout the world these days; much more than all the silk worms in the world could make if they were kept spinning day and night. From where does the difference come? The answer is almost beyond belief—the forests.

Pulp mills which take timber and grind it up fine to be treated with powerful chemicals export large quantities of the raw pulp to the Orient. This is made up through a very ingenious process into a grade of artificial silk that has now come almost to be recognized as the real thing itself.

In this way trees that you may have looked at on your Summer vacation one year might stare back at you from the silk dress worn by your friend on the next occasion. This is called synthetic silk and a very large quantity of it is shipped back to this continent from the Orient.

Though you might not think so to look at it, the silk threads that is torn by the tree limb in passing through the woods is perhaps a "Chip off the Old Block," in more sense than one.

Forest Rangers Ask Help Of All

This week one serious forest fire started on Vancouver Island, near the 65 mile point on the Canadian National Railway line, where a logging camp took fire and was gutted. The bush surrounding caught fire, and many men were used to extinguish the flames. Now that the warm weather has come the underbrush is drying up quickly, and the danger from forest fires is greatly increased.

The Provincial Government authorities lay such stress on the value of individual carelessness in the woods that special posters have been circulated dealing with the various phases of fire prevention. One of these posters is by way of declaration of belief, and reads as follows:

"I believe that the forests are fine to look at and great to camp in, and should not be burned down."

"To burn down a forest is worse than to burn down a village, because a forest of trees takes about one hundred years for Nature to build up again."

"Many of the fires that burn down forests are caused by campers who neglect to put out their camp-fires before moving on. Smokers also set many fires in the forests by throwing away lighted matches and cigarettes. Workmen are also to blame very often for carelessness with fire."

"There are lots of places to build a fire in a forest without placing it against a tree or an old log, or on any dry stuff that will make the fire spread."

"The forest keeps many thousands of men at work, and if we destroy the forest by fire these men and their families cannot buy food and clothing and must move away."

"If this Province is to have happy homes, happy towns, and work for everybody, we must save the forests from fire."

"I, for one, will be extra careful with camp-fires or any other kind of fire while I am in or near the forests."

This is what a Patriot should believe, and this is what forest fire rangers, who spend their lives in the woods protecting the timber wealth there, ask all to accept as their own personal creed in the matter of fire prevention.

Taking Lessons From Eider Duck

Do you know, little reader, that we have not only robbed the eider-down duck of its feathers but of its idea! In making use of an eider-down quilt to cover our beds at night we are but copying the eider-down duck which makes a pile of the soft downy feathers over the eggs of its nest when it wants to leave the nest to feed. These feathers are pulled by the mother bird from its own breast and as fast as the mother duck robs herself of her feathers nature gives her more. If still more be needed the head of the ducky family is robbed of its feathers in the same way.

Nesting on a secluded part of Iceland where they are protected by the government, eider-down ducks form a large colony, building their deep and warm nests in friendly companionship on the shore. Twice, and sometimes three times a year, mankind gathers the pile of feathers which the mother duck has thrown over her eggs to keep them warm.

Each time the duck has to make good the supply by pulling out the feathers from herself. However, not all eider-down quilts are made from eider-down feathers, or there would not be any more eider ducks left in the world. The bird though robbed of its feathers in this manner is not killed, though for a time it may feel very cold indeed; until nature, the ever-kind mother, has given it another covering of the soft downy feathers mankind covets and robs.

So in covering ourselves with a quilt at night we are doing just what the eider duck in far away Iceland does when she wants to keep her nest warm from the chill north winds.

TOMMY'S TALISMAN, WORKS A MIRACLE

TOMMY laid aside his pencil and wiped a hand over his knees in anguish. He had been trying to complete a home lesson in arithmetic, though to be sure the eye would stray towards the open window from which a baseball team could be seen "warming up" on a vacant lot. "I can't," said the boy finally and pushed the papers from him in disgust.

"You can't what, Tommy?" asked his mother sitting nearby. "I have tried for half an hour to do this sum and it won't come out," replied the boy. Tommy's mother looked over his shoulder at the scribbled sheets of paper; they were covered all over with figures. Tommy's calculations being as rambling as his thoughts on that fine Summer evening.

Without saying a word the boy's mother went to a shelf and took down a dictionary. "There is no such word as can't, Tommy; see if you can find it there." Tommy looked, but the nearest he could get to his expression of failure was, cannot. This, said the book, meant unable. "Never mind the lessons now, Tommy, run out and have your play, but I want to talk to you when you come in," said his mother, placing the boy's cap in his hands and patting him on the back.

After a joyous half hour on the vacant lot behind, where the baseball ice buzzed into the ears of a score of willing and merry young lads, Tommy came back for supper. At the supper table his mother took up the conversation where it had been left off. "Can't, Tommy, is a word that never should have been invented. It is no word at all really. It means a confession of ignorance. If I said to you, 'I can't do this sum,' I would mean that I did not know how to do those things."

"But, mother, what am I to say when I can't do a thing?" asked the boy. "Say nothing, Tommy, but get busy and learn how; that is the secret. There are many things in life that you will find you are unable to do until you have learned the way. No matter what it is there is a way to learn how it should be done."

"You remember your Uncle George telling us that story about the Indian talisman. It was an amulet which was supposed to give the wearer good luck. With the stone in his possession the bearer could overcome anything and nothing could prevent him from succeeding in what he wished to accomplish. It was given from father to son in an Indian family for a great many years and finally your Uncle George had it given to him for saving the life of a member of that family. I did not tell you about it before but now I am going to tell it to you, as your talisman." Saying this, his mother reached into the recess of a drawer in a writing desk and brought out a small wooden box.

The box was a tiny affair in some kind of sandal wood. It was about the size of a lump of sugar, and did not seem to have any opening. When shaken it rattled as if there were a stone or some hard object inside. Round-eyed Tommy watched his mother undo the box from its wrappings. Then she gave it to him.

As his hand touched the box, Tommy experienced a curious feeling. It was as if an electric current had run up his fingers and along his arm. "Keep that as long as you live," continued his mother, "and have it with you everywhere you go. You will find that you have the ability to do everything at which you try your hand—only you must believe in yourself. Not even this amulet could be of any use to you if you think it powerless to help."

Refreshed from his outing and feeling in a better mood, Tommy tackled his lessons again. Curiously enough the sum which before would not come out now ran smoothly to a successful conclusion. "It is the talisman," thought Tommy, and applied himself to the completion of his lessons. His other studies seemed to come as easily to the boy, and in less time than usual he had finished all his homework and stored his books away for the night.

At school next day, Tommy, who was an average boy, neither too bright nor too attentive, did so well in class that he several times occasioned comment from his teachers. "You must have studied all night," said one teacher. "No, sir," Tommy started to reply, "it is the Tommy stopped short, he had been going to say it was the talisman—but he felt he had better not tell them that; they would tease him."

On the playing field the same luck followed him. With the amulet in his pocket, Tommy scored in basketball and baseball with a precision that was before. Learning from his play, from being a very second-rate player, he was becoming noticed in high places. Tommy attributed his good fortune to the charm, though his mother, smiling when she heard him say so. Nevertheless, to the boy she praised him for his success, and his belief in the amulet.

Many a long day passed by and Tommy, who one time had been heard to say he could not do this and that, had not made use of the word, can't. If he found that he did not know how to go about a task he asked questions and very soon he was able to accomplish his end. The more successful he was in overcoming difficulties the more confidence he had in himself and in the charm. Of course to Tommy it was all the good fortune brought by the talisman.

On his fifteenth birthday, Tommy was called by his mother for a conference. Taking the boy into the study she asked him for the talisman. "You are a big boy now, Tommy," said his mother, "and I am going to tell you a secret." Pressing the side of the tiny wooden box in a certain way his mother opened a compartment which released the lid. Out on the table rolled a ball of paper.

"This, Tommy, is the talisman that has given you good luck, and this, as long as you remember it, will be your good luck charm through life," said his mother unwrapping the roll of paper. From the centre of the package rolled a smooth white pebble. "Why, it's just a stone," said Tommy in surprise. "Of course, just an ordinary stone that your uncle picked up on the beach, but look at this paper." His mother pushed the paper into the boy's fingers.

"There is no such word as 'can't,'" Tommy read. "'Can't' means ignorance. Ignorance is a hurdle that can be overcome by study—nothing is impossible."

"Then it was me all along," said Tommy in hopelessly English tones. "Yes, dear, you did everything yourself. Now run along, but keep that paper always." All that was many years ago. To-day Tommy is a very great man indeed, controlling the interests of a powerful company in a far-British possession. Framed on his desk is the slip of paper bearing the magic message and on top of the frame, encased in a silver crown is the beach pebble which had been the heart of the talisman.

"You're Black," Said the Pot

Glinting from the surface of a row of brightly polished pans the sun shone through the kitchen resplendent with the warmth of a Summer's day. Its magic touched turned all to gold, and even the drab furniture of the old kitchen took on a new light in its kindly rays. On the shelf a row of cut glass tumblers glistened in a rainbow of colors, while from the tops of the row of pots and pans the sun flashed in dazzling brightness. One pot in particular looked very bright. It was an aluminum saucerpan that had worn shinier and shinier with constant use and hard rubbing.

This pot flashed like a highly burnished shield and put its fellows into the shade. As they swung there on their hooks idly stirred by the wind from the kitchen window, the pots clattered together merrily. It almost seemed as if they were talking. As their worn sides scraped together the pots seemed to murmur and whisper secrets to each other. The aluminum saucerpan held aloof from all this chatter, seeming to prefer the isolated splendor of a separate hook at some distance from the rest.

Two utensils in particular were notably talkative; one, an old-fashioned covered pot, and the other, a large round kettle. These two swung together in noisy companionship and talked ceaselessly. Every now and then the pot, which was nearest to the aluminum beauty, would nod in the direction and speak in a whisper to his companion.

"She is not the only pot that glistens," the old fashioned vessel seemed to say to his companion. "She is not half as pretty as she thinks," agreed the kettle maliciously. "If the aluminum pot heard, it gave no heed. Let the black old things talk if they liked; who cared? "Only the other day I heard her tell the wind that when it blew from our direction she got a disagreeable odor of cooking," resumed the first pot. "They cook poached eggs in vinegar in her," commented the kettle, "and I suppose that is what makes her so sour on life." "I would hate to have that smell about me," said the black pot though to be sure, no one had asked it what it liked or disliked.

"Now I if I do say it myself," said the kettle with a smirk, "am far from ugly. Indeed when the master brought me he took quite a fancy to my color." "You?" queried the black pot in amazement. "Why you are nothing but an old black kettle." "Black" fairly shouted the kettle in horror, "if I am black what are you, pray?"

"You're black!" "You're blacker!" The row raised by the pots now had risen to such a pitch that the housewife came from the pantry and took them off their hooks. "You noisy old groncher," she scolded them as they were put away on the shelf, "you are the blackest and dirtiest creatures I have ever seen, and I simply can't clean you."

Taken out of the rays of the sun the pot and kettle were indeed black. They were a distressing mixture of black and rust-red, and now that the sun had gone down their coats seemed to be very old and worn. They would have been alright there on their hooks if they kept quiet, and were content to let the sun shine on them, but they had been continually fighting and now they were banished.

Now, the kettle could have said it was the only vessel in the house that would hold water for cooking a ham; and the pot could have claimed the honor of being the only pot that was used for cooking potatoes; but that would not do, they had to be beautiful as well as useful.

Some things in life are not made for beauty—but for use. Honest useful service is more to be proud of than the ornamental appearance. If you hear anyone priding themselves on their appearance think of the pot and the kettle.

As they went along toward Woody's home Mr. Fox told Jimmy every once in a while how Woody had boasted he wasn't afraid of him or any skunk. "Why," said Mr. Fox with a laugh, "he said his teeth would match any reason you carried. I laughed right in his face when he said it, Jimmy, for I could see him when he got a sniff of your weapon of offense. Yes, he will be some surprised little thuck when you get after him."

Mr. Fox was very careful to make Jimmy understand that he was on his side and not as Woody Chuck's. "He is a funny little fat fellow, and it made me quite angry, Jimmy, the way he boasted to everybody about not being afraid of you."

"I'll show him," was all that Jimmy said, but he quickened his steps a little now that they were in the pasture and near to Woody's house.

"I guess I had better go alone," said Mr. Fox, when he had shown Jimmy the entrance to Woody's home. "He might find out I told you and tell the other wood folks I tell tales, though as your friend I felt I should let you know."

START FIGHT TO KEEP RAILWAY OFF WEST PARK

Victoria West Brotherhood to Ask Council to Abolish Present Spur Line

Victoria West residents are starting a vigorous fight to preserve their public park from use by the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway Company for one of its spur tracks.

Arrangements were made at the City Hall yesterday to postpone the conference with the Brotherhood delegation but the meeting, it is expected, will be held some time next week.

EXPECT BIG SEASON FOR STRAWBERRIES

Saanich and Gordon Head Growers Working Together to Save Money

To Ship 30,000 Crates of Berries to Prairies This Year

In the opinion of the majority of the farmers of Saanich, the strawberry crop this year will be one of the finest in several years.

A problem that is worrying the growers is the lack of pickers. Either there is much less unemployment or else there is a belief that berry-picking is too hard for the average person.

There are orders for 30,000 crates of berries on the prairies this year. The Saanich Fruit Growers' Association and the Gordon Head growers are working hand in hand for the general betterment of the districts in which they live.

Several large orders already have been placed with the Saanich and Gordon Head growers. Beach-Eakins have ordered a large supply. There are a dozen other concerns all anxious to get a share of the crop.

In preparation for the expected rush during the picking season, crates are being sent to the Saanich and Gordon Head growers by the associations of fruit men.

HOSPITAL CONVENTION GOING TO PENICTION

Important Gathering Will Be Held at End of August

The annual convention of the B. C. Hospital Association will be held this year in Peniction, on August 28 and 29, the Senator Shatford school, being used for that purpose.

It is expected there will be some 130 delegates and from various hospitals of the province as well as a number of government officials.

These conventions as a rule last three days, but it has been decided to hold only a two days convention this year and the papers usually prepared for the occasion will be dropped and only hospital matters of special interest discussed.

It will not be much time during the stay of the delegates for social entertainment, but it is hoped to give them some automobile drives around the orchards and to places of particular interest and beauty in the district.

VICTORIANS ASKED TO MAIL CARDS ABOUT VICTORIA

Publicity Bureau Will Appeal to Citizens to Boost Home Town to Friends

"Have you mailed a card?" This is the slogan to be submitted to the public of Victoria by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau next week.

The majority of citizens will be surprised to learn that over 100,000 private and business letters are mailed weekly through the Victoria Post Office. This is exclusive of the letters addressed to various points in the province.

On the obverse side is the statement, "If you contemplate moving, taking a holiday, or branching out in business, let us know your requirements, it will be our privilege to serve you."
