INTRODUCTION

IN publishing this History and Genealogy of the Greenlee Family we have aimed to make it as complete and at the same time as simple as possible, embracing the desirable features of numerous other works of this kind hitherto published.

Several thousand descendants of the Greenlee Family were furnished with blanks to be filled out with data concerning their families, but many of them failed to respond to our communications.

Whenever it has been possible we have copied wills, records, etc., directly from the originals. Where members or descendants of a family have given different dates, preference has been given to those which seemed most plausible, according to existing circumstances. In many cases where there were no means of determining which information was correct, the various dates have been given. When Bible records have differed from town records, the latter have been accepted as correct.

The work of collecting information regarding different members of the Greenlee Family has unfortunately not been made easier by previous genealogies and we have been obliged to rely on the co-operation of its members for a large portion of the information obtained. We have to thank the descendants generally for their kindness and readiness to assist us in many ways.

EXPLANATORY

Each Greenlee descendant has been traced back as far as possible with the data we have been able to obtain, and will be found under the heading of the branch to which he belongs. Those whom we have identified as descendants of the early Greenlee immigrants to America have been given individual numbers. Those whom we have been unable to connect with any of those branches have been placed in the UNIDENTIFIED under Scotch, Irish, English and Unclassified. In the unidentified portion only those who married and had families have been given individual numbers.

The ancestral line (in braces) follows the name in black-faced capitals.

The mark + indicates that additional data will be found in the next generation.

The superior figure following a name indicates the generation. For example: No. 197, Ralph Stebbins Greenlee⁴ indicates that he is in the fourth generation from Michael of Kent County, Delaware.

THE GREENLEE FAMILY

(Contributed.)

Of an ancient Family "thorough Anglo Saxon," named Greenlee, called in the Midland Counties of England, "The Greenlees," from the researches of John Thorpe, Herald of Dudderton Manor, Warwickshire, we learn that two Knights of this family, "Harold and Athel Greenlee" of the Green Chase, Northumberland, for heroic gallantry in the Norfolk Campaign against the Danes, were gifted by King Alfred to a Demesne in the County of Warwick, called Balsal Chase, now called Balsal Heath, where this branch lived in opulence and high respect, up to the time of Queen Elizabeth, when, through Lord Wentworth, Minister to that Royal Lady, they were granted estates near the City of Limerick, Ireland, thereon to establish an Armory and Fabricque for small arms and Culverin Cannon. Here this branch lived in high repute up to the time King James was with William, Prince of Orange, when their Hall and Works being sacked and burned, they were invited to the protection of the Marquis of Downshire. But thereafter, being greatly reduced in fortune, James Greenlee and family embarked at the port of Waterford, Ireland, with intention to settle within a township called "Kennet Pennsylvania," but must have been diverted from that province to the neighborhood of a place called "Marlboro Port, Maryland" as letters bearing that Post House Mark were directed thence to Sir John Lanier, of Portsbello, Ireland, concerning the purchase of estate for said Lanier's family, by James Greenlee; also letters from same Post House to Lord Lumley, of Lumley Castle, Durham County, England (old friends of the Greenlee family), which letters were preserved in the archives of Aston, Lee Manor Hall, Warwickshire, where they were found in the year 1830 by John Thorpe, Yeoman, of Duddeston Manor, said County, together with a manuscript history of the Greenlee family, a duplicate indentured copy of which was found in 1848, in the British Consul General's office, Baltimore, and forwarded by Anthony Barelay, of the British Consulate, Barelay St., New York, to James Watt, Lord of the Manor, of Aston on Lee, Warwickshire. Which James Watt was related, on the maternal side, to the Irish Branch of the Warwick County Greenlees, supposed to be settled in the neighborhood of a place called Marlboro Royalty of Maryland, the letters having been posted there.

This Irish branch of the Greenlee family, as well also the Greenlees of Edgebaston, Warwickshire, were entitled by ordinance of Henry the 5th, for distinguished quality, to have their Armorial bearings topped by a green mound and plant of Oak, such for glorious memorial to the Knight of the Royal Guards, "Guillaume Greenlee," who, while leading a storming party to the breach at Harfleur, seeing his Standard Bearer killed and the Standard lost, plucked up a young oak plant, called upon his troops to follow a Greenlee and that plant to victory. Whence his soldiers cheered forward to the breach which was gallantly captured, but within the bastion sorrowfully found their brave commander dying of his wounds, with his last words begging his men to bury him on the Fortress Glacis with the sprig of Oak, which had served for their standard to be planted over his grave; which command the soldiers piously obeyed. On the return of King Henry at the close of the campaign, his Majesty seeing the young oak flourishing over the green mound, where lay the valorous Greenlee, ordered the mound to be carefully turfed and fenced, and a slab built thereon, bearing the name Greenlee, "plus brave, &c., plus braver" and the Latin motto, "Fortes et fidelis." The King, also, as a further mark of gracious appreciation of his gallant Captain's service, on his return to London, ordered the Royal Silver-smith to furnish the Greenlee family with a full service of silver plate, each piece with the family Escutcheon, bearing Armorial Quartering: the mound capped by Sprig of Oak, heraldic sign of endurance and stability; the angular bars on the shield, sign of rising superior to misfortune; the ermine, above Bar, sign of purity in the magistracy; and the square thereon, sign of family rectitude. Gentleness, calmness and courage, have, for a thousand years of clear British Midland County Records, been the most notable traits of the Greenlee family.

[Sketch copy from Manuscript Records of the Maryland and British Midland County Greenlee Families, deposited in the Archives of Aston Hall, Warwickshire.

Family papers gathered by James Watt, Lord of the Manor of Aston, Warwickshire.

Attested by John Thorpe, Herald, Warwick Co., Yeoman, Duddeston Manor.]

GREENLY.

[From Burke's Commoners of Great Britain and Ireland. (1836) p. 293.]

THE GREENLYS have been resident at Titley, and at Mowley in the adjoining parish of Stanton on Arrow for many centuries, their names occurring in deeds and parchments as far back as the reign of Edward IV. (1461.)

JOHN GRENELEYE of Mouldly had the Manor of Woodhallhill in Stanton on Arrow, granted to him by Margery Nokes, in 1525. He died 21st April, 1592 leaving inter alios, by his wife Anne, a son and successor,

EDWARD GRENELEYE, Esq., of Tyttley, who wedded in 1610 Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Burton, Esq., of Shropshire, and had issue, Andrew, his heir.

John, who died in 1637.

Dorothea, married in 1645 to George Dodd, Esq.

Edward Greneleye died 10th June, 1646, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

ANDREW GREENLYE, Esq., of Tyttley, born in 1611, who espoused first Alice ———, and had issue :

John, his heir.

Andrew, who died unmarried in 1666.

Elizabeth.

Abigail.

Mr. Greenlye married secondly in 1646, Margaret daughter of Thomas Davies, gent. of Wigmore in the county of Hereford, by whom he had 2 daughters :

Margaret married to Mr. Harris of Abergavenny.

Dorothine who died unmarried.

He was succeeded by his son

JOHN GREENLY, Esq., of Titley. This gentleman married first in 1671, Barbara, daughter of John Walsham, Esq., of Knill Court in the county of Hereford by Joan his wife, daughter of John Jones, Esq., of Llandetty in the county of Brecknock, and had no surviving issue. He wedded secondly, in 1677, Phoebe, daughter of ——— Hyde, Esq., of Shropshire, by whom he had two sons and a daughter, viz. :

John, his heir.

Edward, born in 1680, who married Anne, daughter and co-heiress (with Mary, the lady of Sir John Philipps, bart. of Pieton Castle, and another daughter, who espoused John Richards of Cardiff), of Edward Shephard of London, Merchant, and had issue :

1. Edward who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Greenly, Esq., of Titley.
2. Elizabeth married to Christopher Lake-Moody LL.D., but had no issue.
3. Charlotte, married to Edward Bull, Esq., and had a daughter, who espoused James Greene, Esq., of Kingston, Surrey.
4. Anne, married to Peregrine Furye, Esq., and died issueless.

Elizabeth.

Mr. Greenly espoused thirdly, in 1682, Dorothy, relict of Thomas Hopwood, Esq., of Milton, in the county of Hereford, and had four other daughters, viz. :

Dorothy, married to Nicholas Taylor, Esq., of Broadheath, in Herefordshire, by whom she had an only child who married Rev. John Ingram of Burford [she died without issue].

Rose, married to the Rev. John Browne, D. D., vice-chancellor of Oxford, and their grandson left issue, a daughter Mary, married to Thomas Dickinson, Esq., of Abbotsmoss, in Cheshire, and two sons, one of whom died a bachelor, the other marrying Catherine, daughter of the Right Hon. Isaac Corry, was the father of a daughter, who wedded Captain Burdett, R. N. [Royal Navy.]

Alice, married to ——— Howarth, Esq., of Cabalva, Radnorshire, and had issue :

Harry Howarth, died unmarried.

Humphrey Howarth, a Colonel in the Army, and M. P. for Eversham, who died s. p.

Edward Howarth, Sir, who died s. p.

Maria Howarth, Mary Howarth—both died unmarried.

Charlotte Howarth married to Henry Allen, Esq., of the Lodge, Breconshire.

Anne, married to ——— Downes, Esq.

Mr. Greenly died 25th May, 1725, at the advanced age of ninety, having been for many a year a useful and active magistrate of the county of Hereford. In 1679 he had purchased the lease of the manor of Titley and copyhold lands, held at a yearly rent, and fine on renewal of lease under the College of Winchester. He was succeeded by his son,

JOHN GREENLY, Esq., of Titley, who married first, in 1708, Frances, daughter of ——— Atkinson, Esq., of Shropshire, by whom he had an only child, Frances, married to the Rev. Herbert Bradford, of Shobdon, in Herefordshire, and died without issue, in 1763. Mr. Greenly wedded secondly, Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress (with her sister Blanch, the wife of John Floyer, Esq., of Whitehouse, in the county of Monmouth) of John Butcher, Esq., and Elizabeth his wife, sole heiress of John Williams, Esq., of Cwmdru in the county of Brecon, by whom he had issue,

John, who died in 1752.

Edward, }
Andrew, } both died in infancy.

William, present proprietor.

Elizabeth, married to her cousin Edward Greenly, Esq., of Norbiton Hall, Surry, and had issue:

PRESBYTERIAN PERSECUTION.

[As the Greenlees were Presbyterians, the following will be of interest to the various families and give them a better understanding of the sturdy strength of character and deep-seated religious principles of their forefathers. Those who subscribed the covenants were called Covenanters.]

When Queen Elizabeth died on March 24, 1603, James VI was proclaimed her successor. He had a fixed aversion to a Presbyterian Church, and as fixed a love for a church on the Episcopalian plan. A Presbyterian Church, he had found, could not be easily induced to do royal bidding. He was not long master of the English throne before he applied himself to his cherished design of putting down the Presbyterian and setting up the Episcopal Church in Scotland.

The Scotch make of religion their main guiding standard of life and rule of conduct. Its requirements are supreme over those of any temporal or political consideration. Its functions and obligations are superior to those of any secular authority, often, indeed, more sacredly regarded than the bond which holds together the social fabric.

In Scotland, also, the tree of liberty had a more favorable soil and less burdensome bonds than in England, and it was watered and nourished by the blood of many martyrs. The power of the nobles was more frequently opposed to that of the king, and as a result there was often a division and sometimes a disregard of authority. Under these conditions, the rights of the people were more fully regarded. Then, when John Knox stirred the soil and fertilized the roots with his Calvinistic doctrines of equality and liberty, the result was a rapid growth and a complete bursting of restricting bonds.

John Knox, a man of learning, eloquence, and fearless courage, had led the reformers to victory. A system of education was provided for the people. The principles of Protestantism sank into their hearts and changed the habits of their lives. In two generations men of clay were transformed into men of iron. An ignorant and changeable people became the foremost race in the world, possessed of all the qualities necessary to render the Celts of Ireland subject to the authority of England. Hitherto English colonists had been absorbed by the Irish. But now another description of colonist was to settle in Ulster, capable of holding the Celt in subjection, and keeping the "back door" of access to England closed against all her enemies. After James became King of England, he appointed as Lord Deputy of Ireland, Sir Arthur Chichester, who desired to see the country colonized with men of his own race and religion. It was reported that he intended to seize the earl of Tyrconnell and the earl of Tyrone, both of whom had been in rebellion against the Government. But these two chieftains, with many of their friends, fled from the country in 1607, and never returned. All their estates, embracing the six counties of Colerain (now Londonberry), Tyrone, Armagh, Cavan, Fermanagh, and Donegal, were immediately confiscated by the Crown, and became available for purposes of plantation.

Colonists from North Britain had already possessed themselves of large portions of Down and Antrim, the two counties lying nearest to Scotland, some years before the inception of King James's "Great Plantation."

At the beginning of the seventeenth century, the north half of county Down was ruled by one of the cadets of the great O'Neill family, who bore the name, Con McNeale McBryan Feartagh O'Neill, and lived in the old mansion house of Castlereagh, two or three miles distant from Carriekfergus Castle (now Belfast). Toward the end of the year 1602, Con happened to be entertaining some relatives in his halls of Castlereagh, when his wine gave out. A fresh supply which had been ordered from Spain, had been brought as far as Belfast, but was detained on its arrival there by the Queen's excisemen, until Con should pay a lately imposed duty, concerning which he neither knew or understood anything. The old chieftain's blood arose, and he ordered some of his retainers to proceed to Belfast and bring the wine by force. There his servants had an encounter with some English soldiers, and in the melee one of the soldiers was killed. O'Neill was therefore accused of "levying war against the queen," and lodged in Carriekfergus Castle. Sir Arthur Chichester proposed to hang him. In this extremity Con's wife communicated with a friend in Scotland, one Hugh Montgomery, who was the Laird of Braidstane, in Ayrshire. He had been looking for an eligible "settlement" in the north of Ireland, and kept himself posted as to what went on there through relatives who traded to Ireland from the port of Irvine. In consideration of the cession to himself of one-half of Con's lands in county Down, he assisted the prisoner to escape. Con entered into an agreement with Hugh Montgomery, by which he ceded to that gentleman half his lands in Clannaboye, on condition that the latter should obtain a free pardon from King James, and get him permission to kiss the king's hand. This Montgomery proceeded to do, but, finding his own influence at court not sufficient, he was obliged to have recourse to a brother Scot, whose word had more weight than his. This was James Hamilton, who had been employed by James I as his political agent in Dublin. With his assistance, Con received free pardon and was permitted to return to his house of Castlereagh. It had become necessary for Con to increase his promised recompense to Montgomery by making it sufficiently large to satisfy James Hamilton also. So, when the patent was finally issued it granted to the said James Hamilton all the lands in the upper Clannaboye and the Great Ards which had been possessed by Con, or by his father in his lifetime. Hamilton had previously entered into an agreement with Montgomery and O'Neill as to what portion he should retain and what portion Montgomery should receive. Both Montgomery and Hamilton, as soon as their patents were passed by the Irish Council, crossed into Scotland to call upon their whole kith and kin to aid them in the plantation of their vast estates. Both were Ayrshire men, from the northern division of the county. From them are descended numerous families in Ulster. The land which Hamilton had acquired was "planted" with Scottish tenants, the most of them evidently from the some counties in Scotland—Ayr, Renfrew, Wigtown, Dumfries, and Kirkeudbright—as the men who followed Montgomery.

The northeast corner of Ireland had long been held by the Macdonnells, a clan which also people the island of Jura, and Cautyre on the mainland of Scotland.

The plantation in county Down and county Antrim, thorough as they were as far as they went, were limited in scope in comparison with the "Great Plantation of Ulster," for which James I's reign will be forever remembered in Ireland. The plan adopted for the colonization of the six "escheated" counties was to take possession of the finest portions of this great tract of country, amounting in all to nearly four million acres; to divide it into small estates, none larger than two thousand acres; and to grant these to men of known wealth and substance. Those who accepted grants were bound to live on their land themselves, to bring with them English and Scotch settlers, and to build for themselves and for their tenants fortified places of defence, houses to live in, and churches in which to worship. The purpose was not only to transfer the ownership of the land from Irish to Scot, but to introduce a Scottish population in place of an Irish one. In 1609, the forfeited lands were surveyed by commissioners, many grants were made to undertakers and servitors, and all things prepared for planting Ulster with another race, professing another religion. The next year the settlers began to arrive. Some came from England, but most from Scotland. The English settled in the southern part of the province, while the Scots occupied the north and centre. With their lands at a nominal rent, their clothing and their tools, manufactured by themselves, with linen and woolen cloth, cattle and horses, to sell, the colonists began to thrive. The success of the settlers induced many of their friends from Scotland to follow. Then came James's great scheme of colonization in 1610, which threw open the other six counties for English and Scottish settlers.

Although more than three-fourths of the seventeenth century settlers in Ulster were Presbyterians, an effort was soon to be made to include them in the Episcopal establishment. After James came to the throne in 1603 he became as much a persecutor of the Puritans in the South as he had been of the Presbyterians in the North.

Three events of greater or less relative importance, characterize the reign of King James. The first of these was a new translation of the Bible into English. The second event for which the reign of James will be forever memorable was his confiscation of the estates of the banished Catholic earls of Ulster, the eviction of the native Irish from these estates, and their subsequent plantation and acquisition by Scottish and English "undertakers" in accordance with the king's plans. The third event was James's persecution of the Independents in Ireland, and the oppression of the Presbyterians in Scotland. As a result of these persecutions, John Robinson's Pilgrim followers were compelled to seek a refuge in Holland, and later in America, where they founded the Puritan Commonwealth; while many of the bravest and most independent spirits in Scotland crossed over to the new settlements in Ulster, where they likewise helped to build up democratic communities and families that later added such a large and influential element to the Anti-Jacobite population of America.

Any one, though the nearest relative, who should shelter, aid, or in any way minister to the wants of those denounced, was held liable to the same penalty as the person assisted. All landholders were required to give bond that their families and dependants should abstain from attending any conventicle. To enforce these wicked laws torture was freely used to extort evidence or confession; families were reduced to ruin by exorbitant fines; the prisons were filled with victims of oppression; multitudes were banished and sold as slaves; women and even children were tortured or murdered for refusing to take an oath they could not understand; soldiers were quartered upon the defenceless inhabitants and allowed free license; men were hunted like wild beasts, and shot or gibbeted along the highways.

Those who suffered from these oppressions, both pastors and people, accordingly began to look elsewhere for a place of refuge. The Presbyterians of the South emigrated in large numbers to Holland and America. Those of the North went principally to Ireland, although the laws there against nonconformity were annoying, and the local authorities in some places inclined to oppress them. King James died in 1625 and was succeeded by his son Charles, a monarch as faithless, tyrannical, and selfish as his father, but one of a less cowardly spirit. In the Established Church of England he found a willing supporter, and used it to carry out his designs.

At this period, high rents in Scotland were driving the people to Ulster at the rate of four thousand a year, just as the same cause, a century later, drove them from Ulster to America. The wave of colonization moved westwards from Antrim and Down, and southwards from Derry. Had this movement continued, the loyal population would soon have been so numerous as to fear no rebellion of the natives. But Presbyterians, being then firmly attached to their faith, were not inclined to settle in a country where they would be deprived of Gospel ordinances. The persecution in Ireland soon checked immigration from Scotland.

Meanwhile, in Scotland the attempt of the king to impose the liturgy on the people met with most determined opposition. He had many loyal supporters in all parts of Scotland, but the storm of popular indignation swept everything before it. The king's opponents banded themselves together by the national covenant [see page 24] and re-established Presbyterianism. The king attempted to maintain his claim by the sword, but was unsuccessful, and obliged to ratify in parliament all that had been done by his opponents.

The Irish Presbyterians, strongly opposed to the forms of prelacy, sympathized with their brethren in Scotland; and even the clergy of the Established Church failed to carry out the provisions of the canons they had signed.

Charles having failed in his plans of raising money to carry on the war with the Scots, summoned another English Parliament, which met on the 3d of November, 1640, and is known as the Long Parliament. The Irish Presbyterians, through Sir John Clotworthy of Antrim, petitioned this Parliament for redress of their many grievances. They recounted the persecutions they had endured; they complained that their "learned and conscionable" ministers had been banished, and the care of their souls committed to illiterate hirelings, who received only five or ten pounds a year; that the rectors through connivance of their bishops were non-resident, and the people perished from want of spiritual food; and that all this time masses were publicly celebrated "to the great grief of God's people, and increase of idolatry and superstition." They prayed Parliament to redress their grievances and especially to restore their banished ministers.

The government of Ireland was now committed to Sir John Persons and Sir

John P. Orlase, both Puritans. Under their guidance, the Parliament abolished the court of High Commission, and religious liberty was practically re-established. The exiled Presbyterians began to return, until shortly after 1640 there were thirty regular congregations in Ulster, and it seemed as if peace and prosperity were about to reign in Ireland.

Certain descendants of the northern chieftains whose estates had been confiscated at the beginning of the century, and others who had themselves gone away when very young, lived at the courts of Rome and Madrid. These exiles, thinking the English were fully occupied with their own disputes, formed a plan with friends in Ireland for expelling the settlers, and overthrowing Protestantism in the country. When this plot was almost ripe for execution, Charles, thinking he had gained Scotland by lately made concessions, opened a correspondence with some Irish Roman Catholic leaders. He promised them many civil and religious advantages, including a legal establishment of the Roman Catholic faith in Ireland, if they would take up arms in his behalf, and disarm all Irish Protestants except the Ulster Scots, whom the king imagined he could unite with their kinsmen in Scotland. But the leaders of the old Irish, hearing of this design, determined to begin the rebellion at once, to anticipate the Anglo-Norman families who were gained by Charles, and to rob and murder for their own advantage rather than for the advantage of the king. At first, the rebels acted with comparative moderation. They contented themselves with robbing the Protestants, stripping them naked, and sending them off defenceless. But they soon abandoned this moderation, and aimed at murdering the entire native Protestant population. Neither woman nor infant was spared. The brains of the children were dashed out before the eyes of their mothers, some were thrown into pots of boiling water, and some were given to the pigs that they might be eaten. A Protestant minister was crucified. Many had their hands cut off or their eyes put out before their lives were taken. Others were promised protection on condition of their becoming the executioners of their own nearest and dearest relations; but if they accepted these terms, they themselves were afterwards murdered. Many were promised their lives on condition of conforming to the popery, but any who recanted were told that, being now in the true Church, they must be killed at once lest they might afterwards fall from faith. Various calculations have been made of the number who perished, and it probably reached more than ten thousand. At first, the king's orders were obeyed and the Scots suffered no injury. Many of them succeeded in escaping, but some perished by being too confident.

Oliver Cromwell, having rendered the Parliament supreme in England, and the independents supreme in Parliament, went to Ireland to act as lord lieutenant. On the 15th of August, 1649, he landed at Dublin. On the 3d of September he invested Drogheda, which had been garrisoned by the best of Ormond's soldiers, most of whom were English. A summons to surrender being rejected, Cromwell took the town by storm on the 11th, and put the garrison with many defenseless inhabitants to the sword. At Wexford he exercised the same severity. Other towns opened their gates when summoned. Venables, sent north to co-operate with Coote, met him at Belfast, which was taken on September 30th. On the 6th of December these generals gained a great victory over Lord Montgomery, not far from Lisburn. Heber M'Mahon, bishop of Clogher, at the head of the Irish, was defeated near Letterkenny. The long contest was over. Ireland, for the first time in her history, was completely subdued.

During all this time the Irish Presbyterians were closely watched lest they might espouse the cause of Charles. By a council of war, an act of banishment was pronounced against their ministers. Many of them fled from the country, and others, in the dress of farmers, travelled through their parishes and preached in private houses, or in the fields, at the risk of imprisonment. The "engagement" was now pressed on the occupants of public offices, and heavy penalties inflicted on those who refused to swear.

But after Charles left the kingdom, the government of Ireland seemed less inclined to persecute Presbyterians. During the period of Episcopal ascendancy, the practice was to press with full force against Presbyterians, the penal laws seldom enforced against Catholics.

Oliver Cromwell died on the 3d of September, 1658, and his son Richard was proclaimed his successor. Henry Cromwell was promoted to be lord lieutenant of Ireland, and continued to rule the country with wisdom and vigor. Life and property had been rendered safe. Liberty of conscience for almost all classes of Protestants had been established. Many settlers from England and Scotland had been "planted" in the Celtic districts of the South and West. In Ulster, marshes had been drained, woods cut down, and farmhouses built. Presbyterianism made rapid progress.

Charles II, at the time of his father's death, was a friendless fugitive. The Scotch offered to receive him as their king, on condition that he should pledge himself by oath to regard and preserve their Presbyterian form of Church government. To this he assented. When he arrived in the kingdom he subscribed the covenant; and again at his coronation, under circumstances of much more than usual solemnity, he swore to preserve it inviolate. The Scotch, accordingly, armed in his defence; but, divided among themselves, and led by a general unfit to cope with Cromwell, they were soon defeated and Charles was again driven to the Continent. When he returned in 1660, he voluntarily renewed his promise to the Scotch, by whom his restoration had been greatly promoted, not to interfere with the liberty of their Church. No sooner, however, was he firmly seated on his throne than all these oaths and promises were forgotten. Presbyterianism was at once abolished and Episcopacy established; not such as it was under James I, when bishops were little more than standing moderators of the Presbyterians, but invested, by the arbitrary mandate of the king, with the fulness of prelatical power. An act was passed making it penal even to speak publicly or privately against the king's supremacy, or the government of the Church by archbishops and bishops. A court of high commission, of which all the prelates were members, was erected and armed with inquisitorial powers. Multitudes of learned and pious ministers were ejected from their parishes, and ignorant, ungodly men, for the most part, introduced in their stead. Yet the people were forced under severe penalties, to attend the ministrations of these unworthy men. All ejected ministers were prohibited preaching or praying except in their own families; and preaching or praying in the fields was made punishable by death.

The last of the seventeenth century probably saw the last of the emigration of Scots into Ulster; while for years that were to follow, the Scots were to leave Ulster in thousands for America. For some time after the Revolution, a steady stream of Scotch Presbyterians had poured into the country attracted by the cheapness of the farms and by the new opening for trade. In the end of the seventeenth century the state of England was not a prosperous one, and her woolen manufacturers imagined the competition from Ireland was injuring them. The next year the Government passed an Act through the Irish Parliament, forbidding any exportation of Irish woollens from the country. It was afterwards followed by Acts forbidding the Irish to export their wool to any country save England—the English manufacturers desiring to get the wool of their sister kingdom at their own price.

There are two outstanding facts in the history of Ulster besides the rise of the linen manufacture—the steady emigration, and the rise of the Secession Church. The latter is strong proof of the kinship to Scotland, the former is, perhaps even a stronger proof of the blood which was in her sons, for they left Ulster, as their forefathers had come to it, in search of a more kindly home across the seas. The emigration from Ulster is one of the most striking features of Irish history, and one which had a most marked effect on the vital force of the United States of America, which drew so much of its best blood from the Presbyterians of the north of Ireland. There was nothing to induce the active-minded men of the North to remain in Ireland, and they left in crowds, going away with wives and children, never to return. In 1718, there is mention of “both ministers and people going off.” In 1728, it is stated that “above 4,200 men, women, and children have been shipped off hence for the West Indies, within three years.” In consequence of the famine of 1740, it is stated that for “several years afterwards, twelve thousand emigrants annually left Ulster for the American plantations;” while from 1771 to 1773, “the whole emigration from Ulster is estimated at thirty thousand, of whom ten thousand were weavers.” Thus was Ulster drained of the young, the enterprising, and the most energetic and desirable classes of its population. They left the land which had been saved to England by the swords of their fathers, and crossed the sea to escape from the galling tyranny of the bishops whom Ireland had made rulers of that land. They came to a new and a better land, and here they founded their homes, built their churches, established their communities, and again set up their religion.

Before the close of the seventeenth century, there were at least twelve Presbyterian churches established in America, the members of which were, to a large extent, of Scottish or Scotch-Irish birth or descent. Five of these churches were in Maryland, two in Virginia, two in Delaware, one in Pennsylvania, one in New Jersey, and one in South Carolina. During the first two decades of the eighteenth century additional Presbyterian churches were organized in the American colonies by emigrants from Scotland and Ulster.

The causes which led to the eighteenth-century emigration from Ulster to America have already been pointed out, and may be summarized as follows:

1. Religious persecution by the Episcopal authorities, of a nature most galling and outrageous; one incident being the loss of the rights of citizenship.

2. A system of unjust and unwise landlordism, which served to discourage thrift and enterprise.

3. Prohibitory discrimination against the trade and manufactures of Ulster in favor of those of England.

4. The enforced payment of tithes to the Episcopalian clergy, to sustain a theocracy which the Presbyterians believed to be contrary to the laws of God, and knew to be destructive to their own rights and liberties.

The annals of the actual emigration from Ulster to America are very meagre and imperfect. Few records have been preserved of the departure of vessels from ports in Scotland or Ireland prior to the present century, and such incomplete lists of passengers as have come down to us owe their preservation rather to accident than to design.

While the settlements of the Scotch-Irish in New England, Virginia, and the Carolinas were numerous, and represented a population of many thousand families, the great majority of the Ulster emigrants to America first landed on the Delaware shore. Most of the passenger ships sailing from Ireland during the eighteenth century were bound for ports in the Quaker colony. Pennsylvania thus became the centre of the Presbyterian settlements in the New World, and from the province, after 1735, a continuous stream of emigration flowed to the South and West.

The emigrants to Pennsylvania usually landed at one of the three ports, Lewes, Newcastle (both in Delaware then a part of Pennsylvania), or Philadelphia. Presbyterian congregations were gathered in all of these towns before 1698. During the first decade of the eighteenth century the Scotch-Irish made settlements along White Clay, Red Clay, and Brandywine creeks in Newcastle county, Delaware, and at the head of Elk creek on both sides of the Pennsylvania-Maryland boundary, at its intersection with the Delaware line. The church at the head of Christiana creek was organized before 1708. Two years later the congregation of Drawyers and Pencader, in Delaware, and Bensalem, in Pennsylvania, were gathered; and the year 1714 brought into existence six more Presbyterian churches: Norriton and Abington, in what is now Montgomery county, and Great Valley, in Chester County, all in Pennsylvania; and Cedar Creek, Dover, and Murderkill, in Delaware. The congregations of these churches were composed of Scottish, Dutch, and Welsh settlers. Before 1720 the Scotch-Irish had extended their settlements westward to the mouth of the Susquehanna, and were sufficiently numerous to form three new congregations.

Of the total white population in America at the outbreak of the Revolution, there is abundant evidence to show that at least one-third was not of English descent or sympathies at all, but consisted of a variety of nationalities, including the Germans, French, Hollanders, Swedes, and others. But the settlements of all these different nationalities taken together did not begin to equal in number or importance those of the Scots of North Britain and North Ireland, a composite race, even at that time having in the organic makeup of each individual a combination of the several racial elements which were almost identical with those now forming the present collective population of America, and from which the American of the future is gradually being evolved.

Driven from their adopted home in the North of Ireland by English persecution, there was burned into their very souls the bitter recollection of English ingratitude and English broken faith. They were un-English in their origin, and they came to America hating England, her church, and her form of government with the intensest hatred. Mingled with the descendants of many other races, they nevertheless formed the kernel of the distinctively and intensely American stock who were the pioneers of our people in their march westward, the vanguard of the army of fighting settlers, who with axe and rifle won their way from the Alleghanies to the Rio Grande and the Pacific. That these Irish Presbyterians were a bold and hardy race is proved by their at once pushing past the settled regions, and plunging into the wilderness as leaders of the white advance. But indeed, they were well fitted to be Americans from the very start; they were kinsfolk of the Covenanters; they deemed it a religious duty to interpret their own Bible, and held for divine right the election of their own clergy. For generations their whole ecclesiastic and scholastic systems had been fundamentally democratic.

The term "Scotch-Irish" is peculiarly American. The word seems to have come into general use since the Revolution, having been first taken as a race-name by many individuals of a very large class of people in the United States, descendants of emigrants of Scottish blood from the North of Ireland. The name was not used by the first of these emigrants, neither was it generally applied to them by the people whom they met there. They usually called themselves "Scotch" just as the descendants of their former neighbors in Ireland do today; and as do some of their own descendants in this country, who seemingly are averse to acknowledging any connection with Ireland. The application "Scotch-Irish" is not, as many people suppose, an indication of Hiberno-Scottish descent; although it could be properly so used in many cases. It was first appropriated as a distinctive race-name by, and is now generally applied to, the descendants in America of the early Scotch Presbyterian emigrants from Ireland. THE NATIONAL COVENANT.

The National Covenant was a bond of union or agreement, drawn up at Edinburgh in 1638, by the leading Presbyterian ministers, and subscribed by vast numbers of persons of all ranks of life. It embodied the confession of faith of 1580 and 1581, subscribed by James VI in his youth, and again recognized in 1590 and 1596; and was binding on all who signed it to spare nothing which might save their religion. The subscribing of the national covenant began on the 28th of February, 1638 in the Greyfriars' church and churchyard at Edinburgh. Numerous copies were also circulated through the country for signature—a circumstance which accounts for many copies being still extant. "In the library of the faculty of advocates at Edinburgh are preserved five parchment copies with the original signatures of Rothes, Montrose, Loudon, and many others of the nobility, gentry, commissioners of counties and burghs, and ministers, though only one of these five copies is apparently connected with the first signing, and the other four, which are dated 1639, were subscribed after the ratification of the General assembly." [Davidson's Historical Sketch Illustrative of the National Confession of Faith, Edinburgh,

1849, to which we refer for a variety of details.] The general assembly, which met at Glasgow, November 21, 1638, ratified the national covenant and the confession of faith which it embraced, and deposed the whole of the hierarchy which had been established by Charles I. The national covenant was subsequently ratified by the 5th act of the second parliament of Charles I, held at Edinburgh June 11, 1640, and subscribed by Charles II at Spey, June 23, 1650, and Scoon, January 1, 1651. The document will be found in the volume which comprehends the Westminster Confession of Faith, in use by the church of Scotland. Those who subscribe the national covenant, promise to "continue in obedience of the doctrine and discipline of this kirk." They also give assent to various acts of parliament in the reign of James VI, which besides repudiating the jurisdiction of the pope, and all the ceremonial observances and errors of the Romish church, ordain "all sayers, wilful hearers, and concealers of the mass, the maintainers and resettors of the priests, Jesuits, trafficking Papists, to be punished without any exception or restriction."

THE SOLEMN LEAGUE AND COVENANT.

The Solemn League and Covenant was a document of date four to five years later than the National Covenant, since the signing of which, Charles I had broken with the English parliament, set up his standard at Nottingham (August, 1642), and from his various successes it seemed as if he might be able finally to reinstate Episcopacy in Scotland. With some alarm on this ground, the Scotch willingly received overtures from commissioners deputed from the English parliament. Hopes were held out to the Scottish nation that, in event of success against the king, the Presbyterian model should supercede the Episcopalian both in England and Ireland. Approving of a measure of this kind, the Scottish estates entered into what was called a solemn league and covenant with the English parliament. One of the provisions of the bond of agreement was, that the Scotch should send an army into England against the king, which they did in January, 1644.

The solemn league and covenant was subscribed by many of all ranks in Scotland and England, including the assembly of divines at Westminster, was ratified by the general assembly at Edinburgh, August 17, 1643, and the Scottish parliament, July 15, 1644; and subscribed by Charles II at Spey, 1650, and Scoon, 1651. Like the national covenant, it has, till the present day, a place in the volume which comprehends the Westminster Confession of Faith of the church of Scotland.

While the national covenant refers to the observance of the Presbyterian polity within Scotland alone, the solemn league and covenant is much more comprehensive. Those who subscribe it, setting out with a profession of attachment to the church of Scotland, are to endeavor to bring about a uniformity in religion and church-discipline in the three kingdoms; and further "That we shall in like manner, without respect of persons, endeavor the extirpation of popery, prelacy (that is church-government by archbishops, bishops, their chancellors, and commissaries, deans, deans and chapters, archdeacons, and all other ecclesiastical officers depending on that hierarchy), superstition, heresy, schism, profaneness and whatsoever shall be found to be contrary to sound doctrine and the power of godliness, lest we partake of other men's sins, and thereby be in danger to receive of their plagues; and that the Lord may be one, and his name one, in the three kingdoms.'"

Such were the famous covenants, at one time enforced by civil penalties, and for which their adherents, under the name of covenanters, fought and suffered in Scotland, between the restoration and the revolution, maintaining to the last that both covenants, notwithstanding certain recissory acts of parliament, were still binding on the whole nation. At the revolution the two covenants were set aside, and cannot be said to have now any practical effect in any part of the United Kingdom. As above stated, they have a place in the volume which comprehends the Westminster Confession of faith, but for what reason it is difficult to say; for the church of Scotland does not make adherence to them obligatory on either clerical or lay members. Certain Scotch and Irish dissenters, however, still profess attachment to the covenants, and on particular occasions renew their subscription of them. They are called Cameronians or Reformed Presbyterians. The obligations undertaken by the sovereign, and the modern acts of parliament abolishing religious tests on taking civil office, and admitting Roman Catholics, Non-conformists, and Jews to Parliament, not to speak of public opinion, are totally at variance with the covenants. It is customary in popular lectures on the Covenanters to overlook the fact, in compassion for their sufferings, that they contended for what is now quite adverse to the principles of religious toleration. Yet, in so far as the manful struggle in which they were concerned helped to accelerate the revolution, the history of the Covenanters must ever be associated with that of civil and religious liberty.

THE FIRST GREENLEES IN AMERICA.

Tradition locates the Greenlees in England as early as the reign of Alfred the Great [871]. Their names appear on the records as far back as the reign of Edward IV [1461]. Later we find Greenlees settled around and about the parishes of Lochwinnoch*, Beith, and neighborhood, in the time known as the twenty years of the killing time in Scotland. The Greenlees, like many other families, fled into Argyllshire, thence to Ireland. Again, religious persecution was the prime cause which led them to leave the north of Ireland and emigrate to America.

MICHAEL GREENLEE of Kent County, Delaware was born "about 1700" and came to this country from Ireland when he was "about 14 years old." As the lists of passengers from Ireland about that time were very incomplete and many records have been destroyed, we have been unable to learn anything definite regarding his emigration. It is probable that he came with his father and other members of the family. He may have emigrated in 1718 when a number left Ireland "both ministers and people going off." A Presbyterian church had been established in Murderkill, Delaware in 1714. The earliest record we have of Michael Greenlee is February 12, 1754 when he bought land in "ye forrest of murtherkill Hundred" Kent County, Delaware.

JOHN GREENLEE, a brother of Michael, also settled in Delaware and had a son, Robert, born in Delaware in 1745. This is possibly the John Greenlee [see Unclassified, No. 271] who was living in Kent County, Delaware in 1747 and in that year bought land in the "forrest of Murther Creek Hundred," and died before May 27, 1755, intestate, his widow, Priscilla, being appointed administratrix. The settlement of this estate would undoubtedly have furnished additional data but could not be found as many of the early Delaware records have been destroyed.

ARCHIBALD GREENLEE of Washington County, Pennsylvania was born in Scotland about 1755 and settled in Washington County, Pennsylvania before 1780. We have been unable to ascertain how long he remained there. His children emigrated to Ohio.

EDWARD GREENLEE came from Ireland after 1771 and settled in Mason County, Virginia [now West Virginia]. He was probably a brother of William of West Virginia.

JAMES GREENLEE of Rockbridge County, Virginia, born in 1707, came from the north of Ireland about 1727, landed in Delaware and soon after went to Carlisle, Pennsylvania where he married. In 1737 he settled in Rockbridge County, Virginia.

*Lochwinnoch is a parish about five miles by four, the most southerly of Renfrewshire and abutting on the first parish of Ayrshire, called Beith. It lies eight miles from the village of Largs, twenty-five miles from the mainland of Argyll and eleven miles from Campbelltown. It is eleven miles across to Ireland.

JAMES GREENLEE of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania was born in 1718 in the north of Ireland. The date of his emigration is not known but his name appears as early as 1738 on the tax list of Hanover Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania where he spent the remainder of his days.

JAMES GREENLEE of Tennessee came from Ireland, spent some time in Pennsylvania, then settled on the Potomac River in Virginia. He was living in North Carolina in 1775. His descendants settled in Tennessee.

ROBERT GREENLEE of Pennsylvania was probably born in Scotland. His father came from Scotland in an early day and settled in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. The earliest definite place record we have of Robert is at Clifton, Allegheny County, near which place his granddaughter was born in 1797.

WILLIAM GREENLEE of West Virginia was probably a brother of Edward of West Virginia. He came from Ireland in 1766 and settled at Botetourt County, Virginia. He probably removed to Mason County, Virginia (now West Virginia) with his sons John and Edward between 1790 and 1801.

Of these early Greenlees the only one we have been enabled to connect with Michael, is John of Kent County, Delaware. After a careful study of the subject, however, we are convinced that all the Greenlees above mentioned were closely related and that all the branches, both in this and foreign countries, sprang from the same parent stock.

The hardships endured by pioneers to the New World in making and guarding their homes, coupled with lack of facilities, gave them little opportunity for making and preserving family records. In many of the states no system of recording births, deaths and marriages was installed until a comparatively recent date. In England, Ireland and Scotland, where we expected to find a perfect system of records, it is almost impossible to trace many, now prominent, families. The ravages of time and the numerous wars in those countries are responsible in a measure for the destruction of many valuable records.

The different ways of spelling the name can not be considered as evidence that they were not of the same stock as we find many instances in old wills, deeds and other records where the name is spelled several ways in the same document. This will be found both in England and America and is partly attributed to a system of phonetic spelling which was in vogue.

11. X. William; married ———— .+
12. XI. Allen (youngest child), born in 1774; married Sarah McKelvey.+

MICHAEL GREENLEE purchased land in Kent County, Delaware as early as 1754; but the following, related by Edmund Greenlee, as told him by his father, shows that he must have settled in Delaware many years before.

“My Grandfather Greenlee came from Ireland at the age of about 14 years, had no Irish brogue on his tongue, settled in Delaware near the Maryland Line; his first wife’s name unknown; had children by her; David Greenlee one of the sons moved to Georgia when quite young. He (David) had the small pox while at home and became very much reduced in flesh; on recovery strength came before he gained flesh, and my father said he was the smartest person to walk he ever saw. Another son was William Greenlee; do not know where he lived, but the last letter received from him stated that he was going to move up the Red River. I do not remember hearing the age at which Grandfather married his first wife, but at the time of his second marriage he was 60 years of age. I do not know his second wife’s given name or maiden name but she was 19 years of age when they were married. Grandfather at 60 years of age was very strong and active; is said to have taken a hog after it had been killed weighing 200 lbs. by the bristles and lifted it from the ground with one hand, and could jump up and strike his feet together twice before touching the ground. He was by occupation a farmer. He had I think three children by second wife, Michael, Allen and I think a daughter Betsey."

The following deeds are on record in Kent County, Delaware:

No. 41. EDMUND GREENLEE.

and then, in company with his family and a small colony of settlers, came up the Allegheny River and French Creek on a flat-bottom boat or raft, which was pushed up the stream with setting poles, to Meadville, where there was a small settlement. He brought with him eighteen barrels of flour, two barrels of side pork, a lot of flax, one and one-half bushels of salt, one yoke of oxen, one cow, two two-year-old heifers, one mare, one large black walnut chest and other household goods. There was nothing but an Indian trail through the woods from Pittsburg to Meadville at that time, and the only stopping place in the whole distance was where James and Philip Dunn had settled. Here they stopped for a rest. During their trip up the river it rained so that their beds were getting wet, and he put boards on barrels for covering for his wife and little son, Robert. On this journey the live stock was driven to the new home along this primitive trail through the forest, and on this trip Mr. Greenlee injured his back pushing the boat, from the effect of which he never recovered. He remained one year on French Creek Flats, near Meadville, where he raised a patch of corn. When the crop was ready to harvest, being unable to walk, he took a chain and rode one of the oxen into the field, where he hitched the chain around a shock of corn and drew it to a shed, thus saving his corn, while his neighbors left theirs on the field and it was swept down the creek in a freshet and was lost. The spring following, in March, 1797, he went on horseback to Venango Township, now Cussawago Township, and secured four hundred acres of land and built a small log cabin. When he went to look for the land, a man had agreed to come out from Meadville and bring him a gun and fire tools, but disappointed him, and the consequence was that he was obliged to stay in the woods all night with his horse and dog, without fire or gun, there being four inches of snow on the ground. He made his bed beside a fallen tree, against which he stood pieces of bark for covering. His dog barked continually, thus keeping the wild animals away; otherwise it seemed to him as though he must have been killed by them, as all through the long, weary night these denizens of the forest gave distinct evidence of their presence.

In order to get supplies for their families, the men had to go through the woods on horseback along an Indian trail to Pittsburg. During his absence on one of these trips, which took several days, Mr. Greenlee's wife was very much annoyed by wolves, bears and panthers, which came alarmingly near. She took lighted pine torches and threw them at the animals, which were afraid of fire, thus keeping them away. A blanket was used to cover the entrance to the little cabin and served in lieu of a door.

That fall Mr. Greenlee hired the underbrush dug out and the large trees girdled, for which service he paid five dollars, and the ground was prepared for seed in as effective a way as possible. He bought one bushel of seed wheat, costing four dollars, and sowed it on this acre of ground, which produced thirty bushels. There was a brush fence around this acre, somewhat protecting it from wild animals, but nevertheless it was necessary to guard it both day and night until the crop was harvested. That one bushel was all the wheat he ever bought for the use of his family. Being an invalid, as stated above, he was unable to personally do much farm work, so he took up the manufacture of reeds for weaving, and other similar work. He always kept a yoke of oxen, and changed work with his neighbors by letting them use his ox team, and thus managed to get his heavy farm work done—work his boys were unable to do because of their youth. It is said of him that he never gave a note in his life and never had a lawsuit.

A notable characteristic of the Greenlee family has been equability of temperament. Each successive generation has shown the same mildness of disposition, the same gentle and kindly nature, and the deepest sympathy and regard for all men. Sterling integrity of character, strong mentality and excellent business ability have also been typified in the various representatives of the name. The family has ever stood for the highest order of citizenship, and has rendered strong allegiance to religious, educational and all other good work.

Mr. Greenlee was a First-day Baptist and his wife a Seventh-day Baptist, and accordingly they kept both days holy. Their home was always open to the itinerant clergymen of both denominations, and was to these noble pioneer workers in the Master's vineyard a home indeed. Mrs. Greenlee, in the meantime lost her health and did most of her work in bed, such as sewing, knitting, mending, and sometimes spinning, the last work being accomplished by having one of the children turn the wheel for her. She was also quite a poet. The following acrostic is one of her compositions:

Joyless and flat all things will prove
 Except the Savior and his love
 Remember he is a friend indeed
 Escape therefore to him with speed.
 May I now in my youthful prime
 In virtue's ways spend all my time
 And then I shall most happy be Henceforward to Eternity.

Do thou dear Lord my footsteps guide
 Unto thy courts and near thy side
 Nor from thee let me ere depart
 Help me to give to thee my heart.
 And then thy Holy name I'll praise
 Mount up and sing to endless days.

O may the youth that in this place
 Be early blest with Gospel Grace,
 And sound aloud Emanuel's praise
 Through the remainder of their days.
 May great King Shiloh's name be blest
 And in him all his people rest
 And to him people gathered be
 From land to land and sea to sea.

Earth shall not my chief thoughts employ
 Let Heaven fill my thoughts with joy

MICHAEL GREENLEE'S OLD HOME, WHERE HE FIRST SETTLED IN CRAWFORD CO. AND NEW BUILDING.

I long to rest in Christ's embrace
 Zion still is his dwelling place
 And there with him I long to meet
 Before his throne and at his feet
 Enlarge my heart O Lord I pray
 To praise thy Holy name alway
 Henceforward unto heavenly day.

Doth not my soul with pleasure bound
 And joy to hear the gospel sound
 Nothing so much delights my heart
 In it I long to bear a part
 Enjoy I would the light Divine
 Lord Jesus wilt thou on me shine.

Joyful let me always attend
 On my dear Lord and only friend.
 His name forever I would praise
 Now and through Everlasting Days.

Joy is a fruit that will not grow
 Amongst the son of Sin and woe
 May I from them depart away
 Employ my time to read and pray
 So shall I run the heavenly way.

On Earth there is nothing else I see
 That I would for my own possess
 For Lord they have no power to bless
 O Lord I love thy saints to meet
 And hear their conversation sweet
 When their dear hearts are moved aright
 'Tis then in them I take delight
 Dear Lord thou knowest I long to be Daily and hourly more like thee
 Till I from Earth shall soar away
 To dwell with my Dear Lord for ay.

Bear up my Soul through all my woes
 In thy Dear Lord thou mayest repose
 To Him Look up for all thy joy
 Henceforth count all things else a toy
 I long in God's blest word to rest
 And Lean upon my Saviour's Breast.

Feb. 24, 1816.

Let me but hear my Saviour say
 Unto my Lord come thou away
 Come Dearest Lord I then would say

I long to run that heavenly way
 Nothing but Christ deserves my love
 Dearest of all the names above
 And from him I would never rove.

Give me O Lord a sober mind
 Renew'd to all that's good inclined Escape all evil; Grant I may Ever keep the good the narrow way
 Now Lord I would to Thee resign
 Life and her powers which all are thine
 Eternal Life, Thou hast to give Eternal praise shalt Thou receive.

Early My Lord may I thee seek Xceed the prayers that I may speak
 Pity my poor and helpless state
 Encourage me on Thee to wait.
 Rise for my help, my foes confound
 I long to see thy grace abound
 Enter with all Thy glorious train
 No more let sin and Satan reign
 Conquer my Foes so shall I sing
 Eternal Praises to my King.

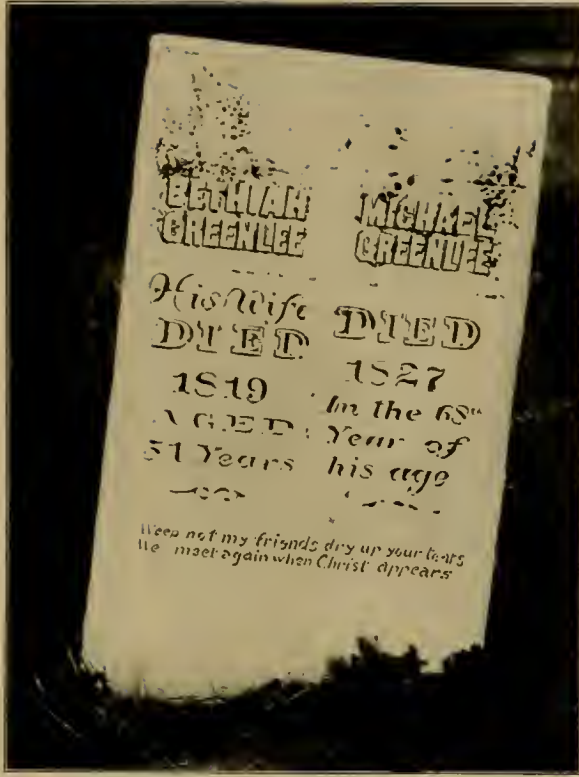

May Dear Lucinda Greenlee live
 And to King Jesus praises give May she now in her youthful prime Improve well the accepted time.
 And so let all her sisters Dear
 Improve well every future year
 That they may never have to say
 I've Lost the Blessed Gospel Day.

May they in youth Remember well
 That Christ alone can save from hell
 And may they fly to him with speed
 For sure He is a friend indeed.

ANDREW HAMILTON GREENLEE was educated in the military school in South Carolina. Having finished a term as sheriff of Lowndes County, Mississippi, he moved in 1836 to Attala County, Mississippi, where he purchased land. Cutting the first stick at Multoona Spring, he built on the hill above the spring. From there he went to Choctaw County about 1840, and settled four miles east of Greensboro at Walnut Grove. He remained there until 1866, then moved to Panola County, Mississippi. He was Major in 1842 or 1843, and in 1845 was commissioned Adjutant on the staff of the 43rd Regiment of Mississippi Militia. October 9, 1847 he was installed as Colonel of the 34th Regiment of Mississippi Militia, and served a number of years. He took part in the Florida Indian war. He went to war under General Scott and General Zachary Taylor, and was at Buena Vista and Rio Grande. He went out as a private with the militia from Greensboro, Mississippi, in 1864, under Captain James Hit. He would not accept any office during the Civil War on account of the oath he had taken in 1845. He was a farmer and merchant and held offices of different kinds. In politics, he was a Democrat. Being a good public speaker, he took an active interest in the events of those days, and was interested in the erection of county buildings, churches, schools, railroads, etc., and in the advancement of the com-

ROBERT GREENLEE at the age of twelve years began to plow and do the heavy work on the farm, his father being in very feeble health, and from that time until his marriage was the main support of the family. His educational advantages were very meagre, consisting of a few months at a district school. On reaching his eighteenth year he expected to attend school; but the call came for volunteers and he enlisted in the service of his country in the war of 1812. He took his knapsack on his back, and his trusty rifle, and went as far as Waterford the first day. He arrived in Erie the following day, and there went into camp under Captain Mason, and remained there about four months. During his stay there, the British made an attempt to land, crossing on the ice. The small garrison resorted to strategy. They marched out from behind the bluff in full view of the enemy, then around behind the bluff, then out again, thus giving the impression that a large force of men was stationed there, and the enemy fell back without making a landing.

After his marriage he settled on a farm near Mosiertown, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, where he lived until February, 1825, when he put his household effects and his family on an ox-sled and went by a path through the woods about eight or nine miles westward. Here he had one hundred and sixty acres of land and had spent part of the previous summer in raising produce and preparing a home for his family. He cleared a few acres of land and built a log house near an excellent spring of water. The house was not finished when he moved his family in, and a blanket was hung up to serve as a door. They had one neighbor, Mr. Spicer. The next morning after their arrival Mr. Greenlee went out to care for his stock. Mrs. Greenlee hearing footsteps supposed he was returning and going to the door pushed the blanket aside and passed out her water pail, saying, "Here, Robert, just get a pail of water before you come in." Instead of Robert, it was Mr. Spicer who had come for a neighborly call. He took the pail without a word and filled it, then presented himself again at the door much to her astonishment and his amusement.

He soon after built another room with doors and windows. The usual log houses of those days consisted of one room and the loft, which was reached by means of a ladder. Greased paper was used for windows. His house was a double one with puncheon floors, and a four-paned glass window admitted light to the best room. The furniture consisted of six "Windsor" chairs, a full leaf table and a stand. In the best room was a bed with tester and valance of blue and white checked linen of Mrs. Greenlee's own spinning and weaving. The wide fireplace with stick and mud chimney afforded abundant ventilation. The tops of the trees could be seen up through the chimney. A large "back log" often drawn in at the door by a horse and placed in position by a hand spike, and a "fore stick" held in place by andirons, with the intervening space filled with logs, was the approved method of building a huge fire, which crackled and roared, filling the room with its genial warmth and ruddy glow. In 1836 he built a frame house, which still stands. To this humble home, where dwelt peace and love, were brought religious and agricultural papers, books, pictures and musical instruments. Here was established the family altar, from which ascended the daily prayers of loving and trustful hearts, the mother's beautiful soprano voice blending in the singing.

Mr. Greenlee was a kind, conscientious man; and it is said that he was never known to speak a harsh word even to a dumb animal. That he was enterprising and progressive was attested by his well-tilled fields, clean barns and yard, large orchard, fine fruit, and the use of labor saving machinery. In politics he was a Whig, then Republican.

MRS. GREENLEE was a deeply religious woman. Before her marriage she was a member of Carmel Baptist Church, and he became a member soon after. At this church they were regular attendants, often going the eight or ten miles on foot and carrying a child in arms. Later they became members of the Spring and Cussawago Church and helped build a house of worship about two and one-half miles from their home. This church disbanded and they became members of the Spring Church at Springboro. Mrs. Greenlee extended her charity to all. The ministers of her church were never criticized nor their sermons spoken of disparagingly. A needy one was never turned away empty handed. One instance will show the ready sympathy accorded them. It was cold weather when a minister called at their home to spend the night. He was thinly clad; and after he went to bed, Mrs. Greenlee took flannel from her loom, cut and made under-clothing, and had them ready for his use in the morning.

158. VIII. Albert Maxon Curtis, born December 22, 1843; died unmarried, December 14, 1864 in prison during the Civil War.

MILES CURTIS settled in Summerhill Township, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, where he bought land and cleared away the timber to make the land ready for seed. He resided there a number of years, then finding it necessary to obtain a better piece of land, he sold the farm and made another settlement within five miles of Hayfield, where he and his family took up the task of clearing the land of the huge trees which so thickly covered it. Here he spent the remainder of his life. The children had only a district school education. The daughters learned to spin flax and wool with which to make their summer and winter clothing, under the instruction of their mother. In politics, he was a Republican; in religion Seventh day Baptist.

 Four other children, names not given.

JACOB DAVIS GREENLEE had very limited educational advantages. His mother taught him to read from the Bible, hymn book and Pilgrim's Progress, the only books in their humble home. He attended school three months one winter, walking three miles each day over rough roads and through forests infested by wild beasts; yet he acquired sufficient knowledge to make him successful in life. In the spring of 1834, he removed to Ohio and settled near Westville, now Amboy. He lived on the same farm for forty years; then becoming unable to attend to the work, he sold the farm and bought a home in the town of Amboy, where he spent the remainder of his life.

GEORGE WASHINGTON GREENLEE went to Kansas Territory in March, 1857, and wrote from there in August of the same year. He rode about fifty miles without meeting a white man. He was delighted with the beauty of the country and the soft warm air, sleeping out of doors without cover, revolver in hand. He intended to go to Mexico and practice his profession, dentistry, but the next year wrote from the same place. He felt a keen pleasure in hunting with the Indians and enjoyed their wild life. He died and was buried on a spot now covered by the city of Denver.

ARLINE BLANCHE GREENLEE attended Kingsville Academy when it was at its zenith, and afterward was a student at Oberlin College. She spent the greater portion of her life at Amboy, where she was closely identified with the Methodist Church and its people, filling the office of Superintendent of the Sabbath School, and organist. After the death of her mother, she resided with her sister, Mrs. Morris, at Kingsville.

179. XII. Rufus Reginald Stebbins, born November 19, 1846; died September 23, 1850.

LUCINDA GREENLEE, notwithstanding the poor facilities for education, was so persevering that she succeeded in obtaining a very fair education for those times, and stored her mind with choice extracts from the best writers of the day. In early life she united with the Baptist Church and was a consistent and useful member of about twenty years. She subsequently became a member of the Universalist organization at Conneautville.

She was a remarkable woman, of much wisdom and good judgment. Her economy and perseverance were evident in the home life to the material success of the family. Although the radius of her life was uneventful, her trials and sorrows were many but were borne patiently and bravely. To cheerfully accept the duties of life as they came and "make the best of things" was her unquestionable law. She was married to Lemuel Stebbins two or three years after he came to Pennsylvania. United in heart as well as in hand, they began life's battle in earnest, with little to help them but their strong arms and their abiding faith in God.

Mr. Stebbins prospered wonderfully and added to his farm, first the Eliot farm adjoining his on the west, then the Webster farm adjoining on the south. As the country became more developed he occasionally drove cattle to the eastern markets, bringing home with him news of the outside world, and some of the new inventions, notably the first cook stove brought into the county, which arrived in its original pieces. On one of his eastern trips he procured mulberry settings, and then silk worm eggs which were carefully hatched and cared for by the older girls, their brother Lot sometimes helping to gather the leaves for feeding. This experiment added to the children's knowledge and income. The girls spun the silk on their flax wheels and reeled it into skeins and the father sold it for them. Besides silk mitts and work bags which they made from some of the silk, they had black silk gowns bought with the proceeds from the sale of their silk. But the climate proved too damp for the tender worms and they ran out the third or fourth year. The large mulberry trees stood across the road from the house, where a peach orchard afterward outlived its usefulness. He planted a large apple orchard on the southern exposure of a hill; also near the house he planted crabapple, pear and sugar plum trees, all of which bore fine fruit. For a time he was in the dry goods business at Mosiertown. In 1849-50 he, in company with his brother John, his son Lot, and his son-in-law Silas Clark, and Minot Boyd, bought curd and ran the first cheese factory in that part of the state. He was very prosperous in this business and made both butter and cheese of a high grade. At the time of his death he owned three hundred acres of land on which he had erected a steam grist and saw mill, the first one in that part of the country. In politics he was a Whig. He held various town offices and was an excellent business man, held in high esteem by all who knew him.

185. VI. Elizabeth Carolina, born May 28, 1839; married Philander M. Hall.+
186. VII. John Buchanan, born September 8, 1840; married Eveline A. Coffin.+
187. VIII. Mary E., born November 29, 1842 at Mosiertown; teacher and milliner; lives at Mason City, Iowa; unmarried.
188. IX. Simeon Sylvester, born November 9, 1845; died March 8, 1850.
189. X. Gilbert Michael, born May 23, 1847 at Meadville; lives at Portland, Iowa; unmarried.

MAXSON GREENLEE spent his early life in Cussawago Township, Crawford County, Pennsylvania. Soon after his marriage he exchanged his farm for a larger one in Hayfield Township, securing a good bargain because the house on the new farm was said to be haunted. He and his wife received their new neighbors cordially, and the tales of strange noises heard and ghosts seen, soon became old stories. He was a man of wonderful patience and even temper.

Mrs. Greenlee said she never knew him to be angry but once, and that was when a man drew a dirk at him while he was pitching hay in his own barn. Instantly a sense of deep indignation and passion overtook him, and he made for him with the pitchfork with all vengeance, but his enemy by a dexterous move escaped an untimely death, for which the family was always thankful, that the name of Greenlee might be handed down unblemished and unscathed.

In 1856 he removed to Eyota, Olmsted County, Minnesota, and resided in that vicinity the remainder of his life. At the age of twenty-one he united with the Baptist Church. In 1856 he severed his connection with that church, and joined the Christ Adelpians, of which society he was a most devout member. He was a close student, a fluent conversationalist and a formidable opponent in Biblical discussion. In politics he was a Whig, then Republican.

MRS. CATHARINE (COMPTON) GREENLEE, when a child, was drowning when she was seen by a neighbor who saved her life. When she was twelve years old her father's house was burned and she had a narrow escape, but two little brothers were burned to death with their arms around each other. Her father kept the first hotel in Meadville. She spun and wove all her linen before she was married. She was highly respected by all who knew her.

MARY ELEANOR GREENLEE spent the early part of her life on the old farm in Pennsylvania. She removed with her parents to Eyota, Olmsted County, Minnesota. Chatfield was the nearest town of any size. At the age of sixteen she with her brother John attended an Academy taught by Professor Thomas Thickstun, his wife, brother and sister, all of Meadville, and most excellent teachers. Two years later she accompanied her brother Dr. D. R. Greenlee and his wife back to Meadville to attend school. She entered a fine school for Young Ladies kept by the Misses Calender, and returned two years later to Minnesota. She commenced teaching at twenty years of age and taught in a number of schools among them the public schools at Chatfield and Rushford, having to resign from the latter the second year on account of poor health. After resting a few months she launched into the millinery business in Chatfield and built up a successful business in which she continued for nine years, then sold out and went to Mason City, Iowa which was a larger city. Here she had a flourishing trade for ten years. She then sold out and spent the next three years mostly in traveling and visiting. She was much pleased with California and would have liked living there but it seemed too far from home. She returned to Mason City, boarding a year and working in a millinery store, and then decided to build a home.

EDMUND GREENLEE was the son of one of the earliest settlers of Crawford County. After his marriage he went directly to the log cabin which he had built in the woods on his newly purchased farm in the northeast corner of Summerhill Township, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, his land extending over into Spring Township. On this land he resided for about seventy years. A vestige of the cellar of the old log cabin, now the site of a cider mill, is still to be seen. The furniture of the cabin was of the most primitive description, including two splint-bottom chairs, a cross-legged table, four plates, two knives, two forks, two spoons, two cups and saucers, and a teapot. The fireplace was then the only means of cooking, and the baking was done in a tin oven in front of the log fire. "Tallow dips" afforded them illumination. Mr. Greenlee chopped and felled the trees, his wife helping to roll them into piles to be burned at night. When they were well settled an orchard was planted. One day while in the orchard Mrs. Greenlee looking through the fence spied a large buck deer on the other side of the fence chewing his cud. She stepped up quietly and reaching her arm between the rails, grabbed the buck by the horns and held him until Mr. Greenlee came with an ax and killed him. It was a source of much comment and a great feast for some time.

When the farm was cleared and sowed to grass he purchased cows and started a dairy. The business increased and they soon had a dairy of from forty to fifty cows—then considered a large number. Mrs. Greenlee helped in the work connected with the dairy and one season milked seventeen cows night and morning in addition to her household duties and caring for the children. Mr. Greenlee besides milking, attended to the butter and cheese which he sold at the market places. He was a man of considerable inventive genius and devised and manufactured machinery for making all of his own cheese boxes and butter kegs at the time he was conducting an extensive dairy business. He invented the first machine for milking cows, which consisted of a receiver with two air pumps and four stop-cocks, from which tubes ran to the cow's teats, the milking being accomplished by the suction from the air pumps. It worked well until the milk was partly exhausted from the cow's udder, when it would collapse and the milk stop. He was unable to remedy this and the machine consequently did not prove a success, although before he learned this difficulty, he was offered quite a large sum of money for the invention. In 1860, at the time that Drake first struck oil at Titusville, Mr. Greenlee adapted his machinery to the manufacture of oil barrels. We give one of his business cards on opposite page.

In the later years of his life Mr. Greenlee endeavored to construct a machine which he called the "Great American Combine" for planting and harvesting most kinds of grain, including corn, digging potatoes, and doing different kinds of work. He built a model, but never completed it.

He was a man of very even temper, never allowing himself to become angry. It was one of his characteristics always to return good for evil. As an illustration of this trait the following incident is related:

A neighbor who lived on a farm adjoining that of Mr. Greenlee, cut the brush and elders from his side of the road, carried them across the road and threw them into Mr. Greenlee's grass for a distance of sixty or eighty rods. This was just before haying time. When it was discovered Mrs. Greenlee's idea was to make him pay damages; but Mr. Greenlee said, "I will heap coals of fire on his head." Two or three days afterward Mr. Greenlee had occasion to drive to the town of Conneautville, seven miles distant. When passing the neighbor's house he saw him standing in the yard and called out, "Good morning John! I am going to town. Is there anything I can do for you?" The neighbor asked him to get a point for his plow, and Mr. Greenlee agreed to do so. After reaching town it escaped his mind and he did not again think of the plow point until he was about half way home. He turned around and went back after it, feeling that he could not afford to miss the opportunity of doing this man a kindness. As he came back he saw the neighbor, handed him the plow point and remarked, "I came very near forgetting it, and turned back when I was half way home." "Edmund," said the man, "I am very sorry you went back for that point. I don't know why you did it." "I probably would not have found much to do at home as it is Saturday afternoon," said Mr. Greenlee, "and I told you I would get it for you." The man's conscience troubled him and he finally said, "Edmund, I served you a very mean trick a few days ago. I cut the brush and elders from my side of the road and threw them over into your meadow. I will pick them all out." And he did so, taking much more time than was spent in putting them there. The two men were ever afterward firm friends; whereas, had Mr. Greenlee acted differently they might have been enemies.

While his children were small Mr. Greenlee was very strict with them, although very kind. Naturally the twin brothers, Ralph and Robert, were always into some mischief and their father frequently had to promise them punishment. However, he would never administer the punishment at the time of the offense—probably to avoid any display of temper—but would wait until he had leisure, or until a rainy day, when he would say, "Well boys I guess we might as well settle up now," the meaning of which they well knew. After spending some time in talking to them and giving them advice, he would proceed to balance accounts, giving them punishment for each promise he had made them.

Edmund Greenlee was a strong man physically and mentally. He was public-spirited and progressive, ever ready to assist and advance the cause of humanity, and was identified with many improvements. His industry knew no bounds. In politics, he was a Republican. He was one of the organizers of the Methodist Church in Summerhill Township, now known as the "Smith Church," for which he gave the land and furnished a large part of the lumber and other materials for the building.

He died at the old homestead, now owned by his sons Ralph and Robert, and his body was taken to Chicago for interment by the side of his wife in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Edmund Greenlee was a kind husband and father and a good neighbor. He was emphatically a man of peace.

MARY WRIGHT STEBBINS GREENLEE was born near Wilbraham, Massachusetts about eight miles from Springfield. Here she lived with her parents until 1811 when they moved to Sangerfield, New York where her father died in 1813. After his death they moved to Lebanon, New York and later to Crawford County Pennsylvania. Her half-brother, Daniel Stebbins came to Crawford County first, then her brother Lemuel Stebbins followed with their mother and the rest of the family. The household goods were brought in an ox-cart, the family traveling most of the way on foot.

She made the most of her opportunities for obtaining an education and fitted herself to become a teacher. She taught several terms before she met and married Edmund Greenlee, receiving wheat, corn and rye in payment for her services.

At that early day farmer's wives were obliged to make the clothing of both men and women. Mrs. Greenlee was an expert at spinning and weaving. She carded and spun wool and flax and wove the same into cloth for family use. It is said that she learned to spin when so small that it was necessary for her to walk up and down an inclined board in order to reach the spindle wheel; yet in that way she was able to spin what was considered a full day's work and finish at three o'clock. She was a model housekeeper, a woman of untiring energy, but did her work intelligently and made every step count. When ever she had occasion to go into the pantry for anything she always remembered to take in something to put away, thus saving time and labor. It was her practice in early life on wash days to scrub the floor first, so that when the washing was done the house would be clean.

Mrs. Greenlee had a keen sense of right and wrong and was very zealous in the care and training of her children. She possessed a decided taste for reading and had a remarkable memory. She knew the Bible almost by heart, and could instantly tell where to find any passage in it that was quoted and rarely made a mistake. She was a woman of strong character, a true helpmate to her husband and an exemplary mother. She died while on a visit to her sons in Chicago and was buried in Rose Hill Cemetery.

In order to attend school he had to walk twelve miles. At the age of seventeen he became an apprentice to learn the blacksmith trade, and served his term of three years in Meadville, then went to Buffalo and finished his trade, and returned to his native county. His life was full of hard work at his trade and also as millwright, and for several years he carried on an extensive business in the lumber regions of Pennsylvania. In September, 1868, he removed to Bedford, Taylor County Iowa, and there resided until his death. His son Charles was a soldier in the civil war.

254. VI. Julia B. Deyarman, born February 21, 1848; married Wales H. Willard.+
255. VII. Frances Eliza Deyarman, born February 1, 1852; married William Smiley.+

JOHN KENNEDY DEYARMAN was a soldier in the Civil War. He enlisted in Captain J. B. Morris' company, 7th Virginia Infantry, serving in eastern Virginia. He entered the service in the summer of 1861 and died the following year in the hospital at Cumberland, Maryland, of typhoid fever. He was a brave soldier. At a skirmish at Roney, Virginia, a bomb shell struck the bank near the company, burying them knee deep with dirt. It did not burst but rolled back near to him, the fuse still burning. He reached out and snuffed it out as he would a candle, thus saving the lives of a number of his company.

EWING B. DEYARMAN joined the army in 1864 as teamster, being then only sixteen years old. He had been serving one month when he was captured by "Moseby's Men," having the button shot off his cap before he was taken prisoner. He was confined in Libby prison a short time, then was taken to Andersonville, where he spent six months, suffering all the privations of that horrible prison. When he was exchanged and reached home he was a mere skeleton, and suffered all the rest of his life from the effects of his imprisonment.

 } Anna Chamberlain Bethiah Maxson }

daughter of Robert Greenlee and Anna Chamberlain, was born August 6, 1821 in Springsboro, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; died November 19, 1860 at Springsboro; married December 31, 1839 at Springsboro, THOMAS SHANKLAND TURNEAURE, born August 16, 1816 at Fabius, Onondaga Co., New York, son of Peter Turneure and Lydia Bailey. He married second Maryette Greenlee. [See No. 224.]

CHILDREN:

442. I. Lydia Anna Turneure, born April 3, 1841; married Andrew Jackson Tower.+
 443. II. Elizabeth B. Turneure, born July 12, 1844; married Benjamin W. Rundle; married second Moses B. Hersey.+
 444. III. Caroline E. Turneure, born April 20, 1846; died August 14, 1866.
 445. IV. Robert P. Turneure, born December 13, 1848; married Ellen Miller; died November 28, 1877.
 446. V. Thomas Henry Turneure, born May 11, 1851; died May 28, 1858.
 447. VI. Mary L. Turneure, born July 31, 1853; married Dwight E. Baker.+
 448. VII. J. Frank Turneure, born January 29, 1856; married Fanny Coates; died February 17, 1876.
 449. VIII. Ida May Turneure, born December 17, 1858; died August 11, 1879.

THOMAS SHANKLAND TURNEAURE, soon after his birth, was taken by his parents to Pike, Alleghany County (now Wyoming), New York. The privileges at this new settlement were very limited and afforded little opportunity for an education, and most of the time he attended district school only three months in the year. When he was sixteen years of age he went to Pennsylvania. While hewing timber in the spring of 1839 he cut his knee badly and not giving it proper care, after weeks of suffering, had his limb amputated in July. He was to have been married in August to Bethiah Greenlee, but they were not married until December. He was a poor man and a cripple, and the outlook was not very bright for a young couple to think of making a home. The day they were married he went with the minister to her father's house. He told her that if she then felt that she would rather not marry him that they would give it up, but she did not think that would be right, although her relatives had tried to persuade her against marrying him. They lived on a small farm of fifty acres and, except in winter, he followed his trade as carpenter. His wife would take him to work Monday morning and go for him Saturday afternoon, often taking her knitting with her when he would be along to drive. She managed everything, making butter and cheese, going to mill, etc. The home was always bright and cheerful, and there was always an abundance of everything for the comfort of the family. He resided in Crawford county, Pennsylvania until June, 1865. While living there he was twice elected to the office of Justice of the Peace, although he served only one term, and he was for a number of years a school director in the town of Spring. He removed to Belvidere, Illinois, which was still (1899) his home. In politics he was a Republican; in religion, Baptist.

son of Robert Greenlee and Anna Chamberlain, was born February 24, 1823 at Mosiertown, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; died October 11, 1850 in Spring Township, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; married December 8, 1847 in Spring Township, REBECCA HOWARD CONOVER, born November 12, 1827, at Owasco, Cayuga Co., New York, daughter of David A Conover and Tryphosa Richards; mechanic and farmer; in religion, Baptist; resided in Spring Township. She married second in 1860, Simson Gilliland.

CHILDREN:

450. I. George Wallace, born July 3, 1849; died October 4, 1865.
 451. II. Michael David, born October 27, 1850; married Mary A. Guntz; married second Kate Brass.†

MICHAEL GREENLEE spent his early life on his father's farm. He succeeded in gaining a good common school education, and learned the trades of carpenter and shoemaker without serving an apprenticeship in either. He remained with his parents until after his marriage, when he undertook making a home of his own. He would often labor all day in the field, or at the bench, and in the evening turn the kitchen into a workshop, making shoes or shaving shingles. He was strictly temperate in his habits, never using liquors nor tobacco in any form. He was possessed of an even temper and a happy disposition, which made him a model husband and father.

 486. V. Sarah Lucretia Owen, born September 30, 1860; married Asa D. Hathaway.+

LUCRETIA GREENLEE could spin and braid a straw hat, fit the straw herself, cut, cure and bleach, braid and sew them, and whiten and press into shape. It was so solid that an ordinary shower could not wet it through. She also learned dressmaking and taught school; but she was obliged to give up teaching on account of poor health.

EMAN HUBBARD OWEN was a sawyer, stone cutter and carpenter, and moved buildings. He prospered but sharpers would swindle him, so he was obliged to give that up. He bought a watermill on Conneaut Creek in Summerhill Township. At one time he was offered four thousand dollars for the mill, but declined to sell it. After that the Erie Canal went down, and he lost all. He then bought a home in Shermansville where he passed the remainder of his days. In politics he was a Republican. He served once as constable, and for four years was town clerk. In religion he was a Baptist.

 499. III. Ralph Lucas, born July 25, 1868; died March 23, 1870.

ALBERT KEITH GREENLEE was a drummer boy for the Home Guards in their drills, and served as minute man during the Civil War. The Home Guards were called out several times, but when examined for actual service he was not able for duty and was discharged, much to his sorrow, as he felt that his country was in peril and much in need of recruits. He was very active and energetic, and worked on his farm until on account of poor health he sought lighter employment. He was a Republican. Resided at Crossingville.

physicians of the state. He was born in Hayfield Township, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania. He graduated from the Edinboro Normal school in 1875, and afterward took a special course at Allegheny College, and later entered the University of Pennsylvania, graduating in 1881. He rose rapidly in his profession. "He was very frequently called on to give expert testimony in cases tried in our courts of justice, and occasionally he was called to render a like service in other counties of the state" says the West Chester News. He was a member of the Philadelphia Pathological Society, the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, and of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society. He was a member of the West Chester Board of Pension examiners under the Harrison administration. He was thrown from a carriage and died two months later on May 6, aged 46 years. He was one of Pennsylvania's most useful men and stood as high in the respect of his fellow men, as he was eminent in his profession. He left a wife and a daughter, Rachel, aged thirteen years.

 538. II. Lewis Deo, born December 27, 1873.
 539. III. Anson Chester, born April 14, 1876.

PHILEMON WIARD GREENLEE spent his youthful days on his father's farm near Amboy, Ohio, going to school winters, except one winter spent at Springfield, Pennsylvania. Just at the close of the Civil War he went West, stopping at Booneville, Missouri, where he was threatened with a rope by the outlaws or Bushwhackers, it being a rabid rebel town at that time. He left there and went to Sandoval, Illinois, where he remained one year, then returned to Ohio. He engaged in farming, and also carried the mail from Jefferson, Ohio, to Linesville, Pennsylvania, until 1878, then moved to Michigan, where he spent three years clearing up a farm. The great forest fire of 1881 caused him the loss of a mill yard of logs. He removed to Unionville, Michigan, and accepted a position to travel for a New York firm, remaining there eleven years. In 1885 he lost his dwelling and a large store building by fire. He rebuilt in 1891 but moved back to Amboy, where he has since been engaged in the propagation of small fruit.

CHILDREN:

553. I. Amanda Eliza Clark, born March 29, 1846; married Captain Clayton Wiston Lytle.+
554. II. Florence Lucinda Clark, born November 21, 1849; married Oliver Spencer Underhill.+

556. IV. Lillie Lorene Clark, born November 22, 1862, at Erie; died September, 1867.
557. V. Silas Clark, born April 15, 1865, at Erie; married Nellie Brazier at Salt Lake City, Utah.

SILAS CLARK was born in May, 1816; the following November his parents moved from Greenwich to Sodus, Wayne County, New York and in 1832 they moved to Pittsford, near Rochester. He was the eldest of eight children. He received a common school education, his father, who was well educated, giving him much assistance at home. His father, who was of Scotch-Irish descent, though of a clerical family, was a blacksmith and a very good one. His mother, who was also from New England, Springfield, Massachusetts, was of English descent. His paternal grandfather served in the militia during the Revolution. General Montgomery, killed at Quebec, 1775, was his grand-uncle on maternal side.

In 1833 the family moved to Dearborn, Wayne County, Michigan, where Silas worked for a farmer, Aaron Thomas. He found the work very heavy but kept at it for six months. Mr. Thomas then offered him, if he would continue to work for him a year, a soldier's right to eighty acres of swamp land lying below the forks of Chicago creek, valued at one hundred and forty-four dollars. He wished to accept, but his father said it was good for nothing and never would be. He worked mostly at farming until he was about twenty years old when he went to school for three months to prepare himself for teaching. He taught successfully winters, following the lake summers as a hand on freight boats for about four years, when he was attacked with malarial fever which incapacitated him for any kind of work for a year. He went to Mosiertown, Pennsylvania, for his health which improved and he opened a small country store and started an ashery for the manufacturing of pearl ashes and saleratus which he marketed at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

He and Lorene Stebbins were married at her parents home by Squire Thicketon at twelve o'clock noon. After the ceremony a turkey dinner was served to the guests. That evening he moved his bride's belongings in a wheelbarrow to their new home, which consisted of three rooms adjoining his store, and set up housekeeping. They were both fond of social pleasures and were prominent in the dancing parties given. In the autumn of 1855 he moved to Albion, Erie County, where he continued his business successfully. In April, 1860, he moved to Erie where he engaged in manufacturing saleratus, while continuing his store at Albion which was conducted mostly by his brother-in-law, A. B. Carr, who was a partner in the business. In the spring of 1861 they moved their merchandise to Corry, then in its mushroom existence. Two and a half years later he dissolved partnership with A. B. Carr and moved his stock to Erie, entering into partnership with Warren A. Booth, at that time one of the best dry goods men in that part of the country. They conducted a thriving dry goods business at Erie for six years, then moved their stock to Titusville. About a year later, April, 1869, Mr. Clark moved his family to Titusville, and about that time bought the McGuire farm on Church Run and began operating in oil. Oil was $1.25 a barrel when he went to Titusville and two years after brought three and four dollars a barrel. In 1873 he sold his interest in the store and, moving to Erie, retired from active business. In June, 1874, he made a trip to Colorado and invested in mines; and moved his family to Denver in the autumn of the same year. His mining investments were unsuccessful, and in 1878 he had to begin over again. In February, 1879, he went to Pueblo to sink an oil well, having the previous year prospected around Cannon City without success. On the first day of January, 1880, he struck artesian mineral water, which proved to be highly impregnated with minerals of curative properties. The summer following he erected a small rough bath house from which the present commodious house and large business have grown. In the autumn of 1897, he sold one-half interest in the Mineral spring and baths, but still attended to his business affairs. He considered the discovery of this mineral spring the greatest achievement of his life.

 574. V. Mary Ellen Louise, born July 2, 1868; died April 12, 1870.

DAVID RILAND GREENLEE assisted his father on the farm until he was twenty-one years of age, receiving in the meantime a common school and academic education. When he was twenty-one he received a new suit of clothes and a colt valued at one hundred dollars. He entered upon the sea of life with a limited knowledge of the world. It was his desire to study medicine, but the opportunity did not present itself at that time, so he decided on the study of dentistry as the next best thing, hoping thus to secure means to gain a medical education. During the autumn of 1853 he entered the office of Drs. Robbins and Sayles, then eminent dentists of Meadville, Pennsylvania, giving his colt in exchange for instruction in the profession. Three years were spent in studying, Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry and prosthetic dentistry. At the end of that time he opened an office in Meadville. Prosperity favored the young dentist, and he continued the study of medicine under the tutorage of Dr. H. R. Bell of Meadville. In 1859 a course of medical lectures were taken at Ann Arbor. In 1862 he commenced the practice of medicine and surgery with his preceptor, both being employed by the Pittsburgh and Boston Mining Company at Eagle River, Lake Superior, Michigan. In 1864 he enlisted in the army and received a commission as Assistant Surgeon of the Fifth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, and served until the close of the war. During the years 1866-1867 he graduated in medicine and surgery from the University of Pennsylvania, and at the same time received a diploma from the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgeons. His practice was limited to medicine and surgery, and he continued at Meadville and vicinity until 1883, when he moved to Fergus Falls, Minnesota, and from there to St. Paul. In 1891 he received an appointment to the Minnesota Soldier's Home, as Surgeon. He has served as a member of the Board of Pension examiners both in Pennsylvania and Minnesota, and occupied many other positions of trust. In 1887 he took a post graduate course at Rush Medical College, Chicago. He joined the Masonic society and the Odd Fellows in the early fifties. In 1878 he was Grand Regent of the Royal Arcanum for the state

For sketch of the life of Mrs. Emily Brooks Greenlee, see Brooks Ancestors. [Appendix A.]

ISABELLA VICTORIA GREENLEE attended the public schools of Chicago up to the age of fifteen years, with the exception of sixteen months spent in travelling with the family in Europe and the Orient. She spent her tenth birthday in Bethlehem, and was the first American little girl to go through Palestine. In 1891 she entered the Ogontz School for Young Ladies, near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. In 1895 she went with the family on a trip around the world, which extended throughout the year. She was a sensitive, retiring child, though enjoying society when her health permitted. She was much interested in children and spent about a year in the Chicago Kindergarten College, but never very strong, the work proved too hard for her and she gave it up. She studied music with Mr. Leibling of Chicago, having piano lessons from him, though she never was more than a home performer on that instrument. She also played the mandolin. She died after a short illness, June 19, 1902.

son of Edmund Greenlee and Mary Wright Stebbins was born April 13, 1838, at Rundell, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; married February 15, 1866, at Chicago, Illinois, ELIZABETH BROOKS, born August 14, 1838, at Sherbrooke, Canada, daughter of William Brooks and Emily Abbott.

CHILDREN:

599. I. Gertrude, born December 26, 1869; married James Allen Lounsbury. + In politics he is a Republican. Residence, Buena Park, Chicago.

ROBERT LEMUEL GREENLEE and RALPH STEBBINS GREENLEE began at the age of ten to assist in the active duties of farm life by carrying the milk from the yard into the cheese house, in that way helping their mother with her milking. At the age of twelve each of them milked ten cows night and morning, and became very expert milkers. A year or two afterward they learned to make the cheese and butter, and were able to attend to that while their father was engaged in other duties on the farm. After their father had invented a machine for the manufacture of his cheese boxes and butter firkens, the boys helped him in that department, thus learning the cooper's trade. Robert Lemuel was left-handed and Ralph Stebbins Greenlee, right-handed. They chopped as one man and did their other work in the same manner.

They were given the best educational advantages the common schools afforded, and later attended Allegheny College at Meadville, Pennsylvania, although neither of them completed the college course.

While working for their father their mechanical skill was developed. They became acquainted with Mr. Drake, the first discoverer of oil, and furnished him with barrels. They also manufactured oil barrels for Oil Creek, but this did not prove a successful venture as the price of barrels became very low, and the flow of oil was so great that it became of little value. When they could not sell their barrels they bought oil at twenty-five cents a barrel; but the difficulties were so great in getting it from the field that they lost money on it. At that time Oil Creek was practically a wilderness, except here and there a clearing with a small farm house. They were well acquainted with "Coal Oil Johnny" and at one time stopped over night at the home of his fostermother, "Widow McClintock."

They purchased their father's patents for keg and barrel machinery, giving him their notes for six thousand dollars in payment, and went into the business of manufacturing cooperage. They met with so much success that they were able to meet the notes at the end of the first year.

In 1862 the brothers decided to go to Chicago and continue the manufacture of cooperage on a larger scale, having their machinery constructed in Erie, Pennsylvania. They made a contract with Samuel M. Nickerson & Company for the manufacture of barrels for the distillery which was then using one hundred and sixty barrels per day. They little expected opposition from the coopers, and were not aware of the existence of a Cooper's Union—probably the first union ever established in Chicago. It was soon decided by the Union that it was not to their interest to allow the Greenlee machinery to run. At that time none but woodbound barrels would do for high wines, and they were not prepared with machinery for the splitting, shaving, and setting of hickory hoops, as the oil barrels which they had made in Pennsylvania were hooped with iron, for which they had the machinery. Consequently it was necessary for them to employ coopers to do that work. It was one of the rules of the Union that no one but a cooper's son should be allowed to learn the trade. The Union decided that the only way to drive out the machinery was to finish only as many barrels as they could have made by hand, so it would cost just as much for merely hooping a barrel as it would to shave the staves and heading by hand, joint them, truss them, and finish the barrel. In this way the Greenlees would receive practically nothing for the work done by the machinery. Not only that, but the coopers would make the barrels leak if possible, either by putting hickory chips across the joints under the hoops, or by making holes in the joints from the inside. It finally became necessary to discharge all the union coopers and hire green men from the street, whom they were able to teach to split, shave and hoop a barrel. In that way they became independent and as a result practically broke up the union, although it required a great deal of money, perseverance, and energy. They were at their place of business from five and six in the morning until eight or nine at night, in that way preparing the material for work the following day. They made a success of the cooperage business, and finally organized a company which was known as the "United States Barrel Machine Company," and sold out their patents.

In 1864 they became members of the Board of Trade, and remained members for three or four years. They did not meet with success and decided that they were not adapted for a speculative business. At that time the Board of Trade was located on South Water Street, and the membership fee was twenty-five dollars.

In 1866 they formed a co-partnership with their father-in-law, Mr. William Brooks, and under the firm name of Greenlee Brothers & Company, entered business for the general sale of machinery and railway and machinists supplies, in addition to cooperage, which they carried on successfully for a few years. They then purchased Mr. Brooks' interest and engaged in the manufacture of special lines of wood-working machinery for the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds, and special machinery for railroad car building. They were the first to adopt and make a success of mortising timber by the use of the hollow chisel; or, as it was called, boring a square hole. They have taken out a number of patents on machinery for use in that connection and other special wood-working machinery. They have been constantly adding new inventions and methods until the Greenlee machines have become famous with manufacturers in wood all over the world. Immediately after the great fire in 1871, they removed to their quarters on West Twelfth street.

In 1882, in connection with the wood-working machinery business they engaged in the manufacture of repairs for all stoves and ranges, which has grown to such an extent that they now have patterns for the burning out pieces of over one hundred and fifty thousand different stoves and ranges, being the largest concern of the kind in the world. Their trade extends practically over the whole country. The same year they built a foundry for the manufacture of castings for their wood-working machinery and stove repairs.

In 1886 the firm of Greenlee Brothers & Company was incorporated, and they also incorporated the Northwestern Stove Repair Company, which employs 60 to 70 men, and the Greenlee Foundry Company, which employs 200 men, and in this way were enabled to divide their personal property. They have since added to the manufacture of wood-working machinery, the manufacture of augur bits of every description.

In 1903 Greenlee Brothers & Company moved their plant to Rockford, Illinois. The factory site comprises twenty-two acres of ground, the present buildings covering about eleven acres. They manufacture wood-working machinery, particularly for ear shops, mortising, boring, sawing and tenoning machinery, wood boring tools, square augurs, etc. The buildings are mostly fire-proof and are all steel construction. There are two machine shops, a one-store building, 300 x 265 feet, the other, also a one-story building, the forge shop, 50 x 150 feet; the tool department, a two-story building, 50 x 200 feet; engine house, 50 x 85 feet; pattern building, 75 x 150 feet; two storage buildings, 50 x 100 feet each; a forge shop, 40 x 300 feet and a foundry 75 x 180 feet. They contemplate erecting a tool finishing and augur bit department, 100 x 300 feet. They give employment to about four hundred men.

When they came to Chicago they had very little money but have never received any financial assistance. They have always been in business together, their interests being equal, and their success can be attributed to their perfect confidence in each other and their unity of action. If one is away the other acts independently, each having full power of attorney from the other, to do anything necessary with their property, both personal and real.

Some years after their removal to Chicago, they bought the old homestead in Crawford County, which remains the home of the Greenlee family in Pennsylvania. They married sisters (both of whom were twins, but not of the same pair), daughters of William Brooks who for many years was a resident of Sherbrooke, Canada, and one of the leading spirits of the conservative government of the Dominion, but later became a resident of Chicago.

In 1904 they published "The Stebbins Genealogy" in two large volumes, printed on fine antique hand made paper, and substantially bound in half morocco. They endeavored to combine all the good qualities in the many hundreds of genealogies in the Newberry Library, one of the main points being to make it so plain that a child could understand and easily trace his ancestry. The result is summed up in the following reviews from the two most noted genealogical magazines in the United States.

tents reveals, as distinguishing features, marginal references to authorities, fac-similes of portions of the Domesday Book relating to Stebbins, besides extracts from various other English sources, historical and statistical, frequent and minute biographical details, and an unusually specific index. Much attention has been bestowed on the females lines, as also on persons intermarrying with the Stebbins family, particular pains having been devoted to the Stebbins-Burt-Ball intermarriages. The appendixes comprise military services, Stebbins authors and other matters of importance. The capitalization of names of Stebbins descendants and husbands or wives is specially worthy of note. There are over five hundred illustrations, chiefly portraits.—[From the New England Historical and Genealogical Register.]

The Stebbins Genealogy. Ralph Stebbins Greenlee and Robert Lemuel Greenlee. In two volumes. Chicago. Privately printed. 1904. Folio, half morocco, pp. 1386.

These fine volumes, imposing in appearance, and most comprehensive in scope are rich in details which gladden the sight of the experienced worker, and will no doubt be most helpful to those members of the Stebbins family who are fortunate enough to secure copies of the work. No pains or expense have been spared to make this history the most complete of its kind. In attempting to discover the English birthplace of Rowland Stebbins, the American progenitor, recourse was had to Domesday Book, and photographs were made of it and the chest in which it is kept, and fac-similes made of portions of the original text, accompanied by translations of it. The biography of Rowland Stebbins is very full, and in this as in all the early generations the compilers have given marginal references for each vital statement. Capitals are used for the names of the Stebbins descendants and their husbands or wives, and the head of each family is given in heavy-faced type, thus greatly assisting the eye. A very unusual, if not original feature is that following the name of the head of a branch, beside the brief tracing back by generations to the founder, each ancestor bearing his generation and family number, the wife of each forefather is given beneath her husband's name, enabling one to get the line at a glance. The compilers have been most successful in discovering the places and dates of birth, marriage and death, as well as a good deal of general information. The records of military service in the second volume are particularly valuable, because proper references are given for all of them, a feature seldom observed in a family history. After noting so much excellence, it is most satisfactory to find the index completing this beautiful piece of workmanship so thoroughly as to cover 160 pages. In this index the name of the Stebbins descendant is followed by the names of his parents and his generation and page number. The volumes are liberally illustrated and altogether reflect great credit upon those interested in their production.—[From the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record.]

As will be seen by their photographs, the brothers very closely resemble each other, and they are as much alike in character, disposition and thought, as in looks. They have always taken a lively interest in the welfare of the city, and both are members of the Union League Club. They have been extensive travelers; and, with their families, who always accompany them, have visited most of the foreign countries, making trips around the world, and going into the interior of China, Japan, and other oriental countries. Their leading characteristics are inbred politeness, kindness and consideration for others, coupled with indomitable will-power, untiring energy, broad liberality and uncompromising honesty. Their fortunes have been fairly gained, and stand proud monuments to their sturdy manhood and genius.

daughter of Edmund Greenlee and Mary Wright Stebbins, was born October 28, 1846 at Rundell, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; married October 20, 1866 at Meadville, Pennsylvania, WILLIAM DALLAS GREENLEE, born July 1, 1844 at Girard, Erie Co., Pennsylvania, died July 8, 1894 at Chicago, Illinois, son of David Greenlee [No. 58] and Harriet Mallory. He was a farmer and merchant; in politics, Republican; in religion, Protestant. She married second October 28, 1900 at Kansas City, Missouri, ISAAC LADNER BISHOP, born August 22, 1845 at Lyonsville, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania, son of Moses Bishop and Susan Ladner. He is a jeweller; in politics, Republican; resides at Denver, Colorado.

CHILDREN:

603. I. David William, born August 2, 1868; married Adeline Whitney Bristol. +
604. II. Elizabeth May, born July 5, 1869; married Charles Wiseman Woodley. +

MARY LUCINDA GREENLEE was an unusually bright child, and learned her A-B-C's when but four years old. From that time on she attended school at Edinboro, and there finished the days of her school life. A little incident, which illustrates her kind and ambitious character when but a child, occurred one day when her parents had left her home alone while they drove to town. A Mr. Cole had been with them that day working about the house and Mary Lucinda, then but four years old, thought that he ought to have his supper. She went out and asked him to get some potatoes for her, as she could not reach them, and told him she would cook them for him if he would. He got them and she cooked them and also fried some meat; set the table as well as she could but being very little she could not set the dishes on and had to push them on from the edge. Mr. Cole enjoyed his meal and was very much pleased and amused with his little hostess. It was very hard work for her, and after Mr. Cole had finished she asked him if he would rock her to sleep, which he did.

After her marriage with William Dallas Greenlee, they lived at McKean, Erie County, Pennsylvania. They moved from McKean to Chicago two years before the Chicago fire, and resided on the west side.

659. VII. Mamie E., born February 19, 1896; died aged one year and eleven months.
660. VIII. Huldah M., born December 20, 1887.

HARLEY UMBERFIELD GREENLEE spent three years, 1859 to 1862 in Pennsylvania oil diggings. On August 14, 1862 he enlisted in Company A under Colonel James Irwin Gregg, and joined the Army of the Potomac. He was at Chancellorsville, Brandy Station, Mine Run, Wilderness, in the Richmond Raid, Cold Harbor, and other important engagements, until the fight at Deep Bottom, where he received a serious wound in the shoulder. Four months later he joined his regiment at Light House Point and was in action at Five Forks and Appomattox. On June 14, 1865 he was honorably discharged at Lynchburg, Virginia.

At the close of the war Mr. Greenlee went directly to Bedford, Iowa, without capital or education, with only willing hands and a determination to make something of himself. At first he worked as a common laborer, but he was not satisfied with a menial position and ere long engaged in business for himself. He purchased a stone quarry within the city limits, opened it, and began laying foundations for buildings. He soon added the manufacture of lime to his business. He gradually worked up an immense trade for a radius of many miles beyond his own town. His whole career has been characterized by honorable and upright dealing, which is the secret of his success. In politics he is a Republican; in religion, Baptist.

 666. II. Clementine Loretta Hunter, born April 19, 1871; married William Buss. †
 667. III. Daughter, born March 7, 1876; died March 14, 1876.

CLARENCE JESSE HUNTER moved with his father and step-mother to a farm near Calkinsville, Michigan. He left home at the age of fifteen and stayed with his sister in Wisconsin until he was of age, then went to St. Paul, Minnesota and enlisted in the United States Army, cavalry, September 12, 1899, being stationed at Fort Maginnis, Montana. He has been stationed at different times in the forts at Yellowstone, Wyoming; Custer, Montana; Myer, Virginia; Stanton, New Mexico and Fort Snelling, Minnesota. He participated in the Sioux campaign in the winter of 1890-1891, when Sitting Bull was captured, and was in the Spanish-American war, actively engaged in the battle of El Caney, and the different engagements the day following until the surrender. After the surrender he was taken ill with malarial fever and for two days his life was despaired of. The fever settled in his legs so he could not walk, and when his regiment returned to the States he was sent to St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn, New York for treatment, and remained there thirty-four days. After he was cured he returned to Fort Snelling, and in the fall of 1898 was in the campaign against the Indians of Leek Lake, when Major Wilkinson and others were killed. He was promoted a non-commissioned officer for bravery and zeal. Since joining the army he has improved his spare time and is now a first class steam engineer and has studied electricity.

daughter of Bethiah Greenlee and Thomas Shankland Turneaure, was born July 31, 1853 at Springboro, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; married October 23, 1889 at Belvidere, Illinois, DWIGHT E. BAKER, born April 19, 1852 at Barnstead, Quebec, Canada, son of Prentiss Monroe Baker and Mary S. Stephens.

CHILDREN:

834. I. Ralph Prentiss Baker, born June 19, 1892.
 835. II. Ruth Turneaure Baker, born December 5, 1896.

DWIGHT E. BAKER remained with his parents in Canada until he was eight years old, when they moved to a farm in Iowa County, Wisconsin. He remained with them until he was twenty-three years of age, and during three years of his life at home he managed to learn the trade of mason. Hearing that Iowa was one of the best states in the Union, he resolved to go west and see for himself. Tama County seemed to impress him quite favorably and he located at Traer in the spring of 1875, and went to work at his trade. He was kept continually busy from the time the frost was out of the ground until it was frozen again in the fall, always having a large crew of men with him. But after eight years of this hard labor he became convinced that there were easier ways of making a living than by pounding stone and slinging mortar and so resolved to go into the lumber business. In the fall of 1883 he bought the lumber yard formerly owned by C. C. Johnson and is still doing business at the same stand. His yard is filled with as complete a stock of lumber as can be found in many towns twice the size of Traer, and is equipped with a large lumber shed and office. He has the bell telephone connected with the office so that he has communication with all the cities of any size throughout the state. His yard is very centrally located and adjoins the line of the B. C. R. & N., thus affording the best facilities for the receipt and sale of the stock carried, which embraces rough and dressed lumber, lath, shingles, sash, doors, blinds, mouldings, and all kinds of building material such as stone, brick, lime, cement and Adament plaster—the best in the market. Mr. Baker is also a master in the art of planning and in 1896 built one of the finest residences that there is in the city. In 1890 he opened a lumber yard at Dinsdale and is still running it; also one at the new town of Chutier. In politics, he is a Republican; in religion, Congregationalist.

 Bethiah Maxson }

son of Michael Greenlee and Rebecca Howard Conover, was born October 27, 1850 near Springboro, Spring Township, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; died February 29, or March 7, 1904, at Lawrence, Kansas; married May 17, 1874, at Chicago, Illinois, MARY A. GUNTZ, born July 28, 1853 at St. Louis, Missouri, daughter of Francis J. Guntz; married second January 1, 1903, MISS KATE BRASS of Lawrence.

CHILDREN:

836. I. Thad D., born March 14, 1875; died July 24, 1876.
 837. II. Effie May, born August 14, 1877; died July 28, 1878.
 838. III. Edith R., born January 13, 1880.

MICHAEL DAVID GREENLEE whose father died before his birth, lived with his mother's people, his mother meanwhile teaching school and working as a tailoress to support her children. After her second marriage, he found a home with his mother and stepfather, until 1867, when his mother was again left a widow with four small children. It being just after the close of the war, the unsettled conditions of business affairs demanded immediate attention if a home was to be saved for the mother and children. In order to do this he had to sacrifice the long cherished hope of attending the State Normal School, for which he had toiled and struggled for the past two or three years. About five years later, the home being secured and the eldest child quite a lad, Michael started for the dry climate of eastern Kansas. On January 1, 1872, when the first passenger train passed over the track of what was then a branch of the Missouri Pacific Railroad (now part of the Santa Fe System), he went into the office as clerk and general roustabout, working for his board and clothing, and applying his spare moments to study. In November, 1872, the station agent resigned and he received the appointment as agent. In 1876 when the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe leased the right of way and joint use of the tracks he became their agent also; and at the same time became agent for the Wells Fargo Express Company, and Western Union Telegraph operator. In July, 1877 he was forced to seek the mountain breezes of Colorado and in November following returned to Pennsylvania, on what he supposed was his last visit to his mother. After several weeks he was able to return to his Kansas home, but continued ill health compelled him to resign his position with the railroad. Three days later he was asked by a board of directors to take charge of and close up the affairs of a co-operative store, which he did. In November, 1878, he became bookkeeper and assistant postmaster for Mr. Charles Pilla, the leading merchant of the place. After about six years of service with Mr. Pilla, he resigned to accept the position of Deputy County Clerk of Douglas County, Kansas, and in 1884 removed his family to Lawrence. After serving two terms of two years each as Deputy, he was nominated and elected as County Clerk, on the Republican ticket. After two years of incumbency in this office, on account of his refusal to yield to the dictations of party bosses in what he believed to be against the interest of his constituents, he was defeated in the convention for renomination. He yielded to the voice of friends and entered the race as an independent candidate, and he was elected by nearly a thousand majority. At the expiration of his second term, feeling that he had been vindicated, he retired from politics for good. After this he went to work for the Fraternal Aid Association. He was engaged in field work when a vacancy occurred in the general secretary's office and he was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. He was General Secretary of this association for five years and under his administration the association made a great growth. He held that position until July, 1903, when he became engaged in general insurance work. He was considered one of the finest accountants in the state.

Mr. Greenlee was a man of strong character, forceful and able. He was a lifelong member of the Baptist church and took an active part in church work. When in politics he was always vigorous. His lodge work brought him into prominence all over the country. In business he was honest and capable, and his entire life was one to make and hold friends. His home was at Lawrence, Kansas.

IRA JESSE DUNN ⁵ } Diantha M. Curtis ⁴ Esther Greenlee ³ Michael Greenlee ²

son of Diantha M. Curtis and Thomas Holtom Dunn, was born November 12, 1863, at Coons Corners, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania; married October 21, 1893, at Meadville, Crawford Co., Pennsylvania, ADDA ESTELLE PHILLIPS, born June 9, 1864, in Crawford Co., Pennsylvania, daughter of Frank Phillips and Frances Irene Barnley.

CHILDREN:

892. I. Thomas Phillips Dunn, born October 26, 1896.
 893. II. Frank Lowell Dunn, born March 26, 1898.
 894. III. Gertrude Suzanne Dunn, born December 19, 1899.

IRA JESSE DUNN began his common school education at the age of seven in the little Dunn schoolhouse at the foot of the hill immediately south of Coon's Corners. At the age of fifteen, on account of the impaired health of his father, almost the entire charge of the farm and market garden devolved upon him. In the winter following his father's death, he taught a four months' term in the Curtis school. During the winter the farm was sold and disposition was made of the personal property preparatory to moving to Meadville, for the purpose of entering Allegheny College, where he completed a course with hard work and self sacrifice, such as must be realized when pursued with ambition and low finances. After his graduation in 1886, he became principal of the Linesville school, with three assistant teachers, and was re-elected for the same position the year following, but resigned to take advantage of a scholarship in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, which had been won by competitive examination. After the University closed he taught a short term of school at Kirkland, near West Chester. The next year the principal of the State Normal School at West Chester induced him to accept the chair of Latin in that institution for the following year. During the winter many medical cases were observed with his brother, Dr. Thomas D. Dunn, who practiced in West Chester, and much experience gained. He continued his University course thereafter without interruption until his graduation in 1891. Soon after graduation he secured a position as assistant surgeon at the State Hospital for injured miners, at Hazelton, Pennsylvania. Here began surgical experience rarely acquired by the recent graduate, because as an officer of a state institution, whenever the superintendent was away, the assistant must act on his own responsibility. After resigning from this position he began a special course with regard to the eye. A little later he practiced in the coal region near Hazelton. After leaving there nearly a year was spent as assistant physician at the State Lunatic Hospital at Harrisburg. After this he spent considerable time at the Polyclinic in Philadelphia, studying the eye, ear, nose and throat. Thereafter he settled in western Pennsylvania—in Meadville for a few months, and afterward at Erie where he has since devoted himself with some success to the special treatment of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

daughter of Ira Corridon Greenlee and Alma Ransom, was born July 15, 1859, at Sparta, Monroe Co., Wisconsin; married April 10, 1895, as his second wife, JESSE DICKINSON SEARLES, born April 23, 1832, at Washington, Dutchess Co., New York, son of Jesse Dickinson Searles and Phoebe Hallock.

JESSE DICKINSON SEARLES removed with his parents to Wisconsin in 1839. His father bought fifteen hundred acres of land, and kept three thousand sheep, and shipped the first consignment of wool from the port of Racine, to New York City. He watched and kept his father's flocks and between the flocks and the farm, he had opportunity to develop strength and to learn the value of time and labor. At the age of fifteen he taught his first school. When he was in his seventeenth year, he and his brother, Daniel, started for the newly discovered gold fields of California. They journeyed across the plains with ox teams, leaving home March 5, 1849, and arrived at the Reddings in the Sacramento Valley on September 22, having been over six months en route. They went into the gold fields of this Eldorado on the Yuba River above where Marysville was afterward built, and there lived and labored. The outcome was some gold and much that could not be purchased with gold, namely, improved health and a knowledge of the country and of men. Returning home they took ship at San Francisco and landed at Acapulco in Mexico, thence across the country on horseback, through the City of Mexico to Vera Cruz—a journey of eight hundred miles. From Vera Cruz they crossed the Gulf, then up the Mississippi River, arriving at home April 6, 1851. He then attended Beloit College, and afterward engaged in teaching for several years. In April, 1858, he united with the West Wisconsin Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has been preaching since. He received his forty-fourth annual appointment from his conference, consecutively, on the effective list, sixteen years of which was as presiding elder, and three years at Deadwood, South Dakota, as Superintendent of the Black Hills Mission. He is now pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Superior, Wisconsin. In politics, he is a Republican.

GRACE EMILY GREENLEE attended the public schools of Chicago until she was fifteen, when she entered Ferry Hall Seminary at Lake Forest, Illinois. In the Spring of 1886 she went with the family for an extended trip abroad, lasting sixteen months. On her return she spent two years more at Lake Forest, and then attended the Ogontz School for Young Ladies, at Philadelphia, spending two years in study there. In 1895 the family took another trip abroad, spending a year traveling around the world. During this time Grace wrote regularly to a friend at home, making a complete diary of the trip in this way. A few years after her return, at the request of the family, these letters were published in a limited edition of two hundred copies, being printed for private distribution only. The title of the book was "As we were journeying." It was profusely illustrated with half-tones made mostly from photographs taken by her brother, William Brooks Greenlee, and made an interesting souvenir of the trip.

CHARLES HURFORD BRACKEBUSH attended public school at Canton, Ohio, Terre Haute and Indianapolis, Indiana, Jersey City, New Jersey, and Chicago. He came to Chicago in 1882, where he has since resided. At the age of fifteen he went to work in the coal office of A. C. Brackebush & Company; daughter of Ralph Stebbins Greenlee and Elizabeth Brooks, was born December 26, 1869 at Chicago, Illinois; married September 26, 1893 at Chicago, JAMES ALLEN LOUNSBURY, born June 8, 1867 at Weathersfield, Hartford Co., Connecticut, son of Cooke Lounsbury and Isabella Spaulding.

Michael Greenlee ² Michael Greenlee ¹ { Elizabeth Brooks Mary Wright Stebbins

CHILDREN:

963. I. Ralph Greenlee Lounsbury, born January 20, 1896.
964. II. Elizabeth Lounsbury, born May 5, 1899.

GERTRUDE GREENLEE attended the public schools of Chicago until her fourteenth year, when she entered Lake Forest Seminary at Lake Forest, Illinois. Her studies there were interrupted to some extent by a trip to Europe in 1886, and one to Mexico. On this account she did not graduate with the class she originally entered, but with the class of 1890. In June, 1890, immediately after her graduation, she started with her parents on a journey around the world, spending considerable time in Japan, China, India, Egypt and Palestine, returning to Chicago in November, 1891. After her marriage she continued to reside in Chicago.

JAMES ALLEN LOUNSBURY, eldest son of Cooke and Isabella Spaulding Lounsbury, was born in 1867 at Wethersfield, Connecticut. Early in 1868, the family removed from Wethersfield to Meriden, Connecticut, where they lived until 1875, when they removed to Hartford. He was educated in the public schools of Hartford. In September, 1887, he entered the employ of the Waterhouse Electric Company of Hartford. In 1889 this company was bought out by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Mr. Lounsbury was retained by the Westinghouse Company, and remained with them several years as traveling engineer, with headquarters, first at Pittsburgh, and later (1889) at Chicago. He left the Westinghouse Company in May, 1892, to take the position of Engineer in charge of Incandescent Lighting at the World's Columbian Exposition held in Chicago in 1893; and was connected with the Exposition until January 1, 1894. He was engaged in the manufacture of electrical apparatus, as president of the Lounsbury Manufacturing Company at Chicago, until 1897, when the plant and business were entirely destroyed by fire. In 1899, he entered the employ of Greenlee Brothers & Company, manufacturers of woodworking machinery, and in 1903 was elected Vice President of that company, which office he still holds.

DAVID GREENLY enlisted before he was quite eighteen at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, under Captain Barker, and fought the British at Fort Pike on Lake Superior, and was also in the battle of Five Points on the river Thames. He was one of twelve men detailed to shoot the Indian chief, Tecumseh. Once, while at Fort Pike, he was ordered by Captain Barker to spike a gun and while in the act a French Canadian struck him over the right eye with a flint lock gun, the hammer tearing the flesh for three inches over the eye. The Captain witnessed the affair and shot the French Canadian through the head with a horse pistol, killing him instantly. There had been a number of pickets shot on the southern post, which was near a long strip of woods skirting the camp. It came the turn of a married man, father of five children, to go on this post. He offered five pounds to any man who would take his place. David accepted the offer, with the understanding that he could take a spade along. When asked what he wanted with the spade, he replied, "To dig my grave." He was young and a favorite, so Captain Barker tried to persuade him not to go. When he arrived at the post he told the picket to report all well, and he proceeded to dig a hole near an old tree that was broken off about six feet above the ground, and got into the hole. Inside of thirty minutes he heard the rustle of leaves, and saw what he supposed was a big hog, but at last it raised up about half way and he saw it was an Indian, so he shot at it. At the report of the gun, the Captain came out and not seeing him cried "Dave is killed." David then spoke and told the Captain that he had killed an Indian, and they proceeded to the spot where they had seen the Indian fall. He made an attempt to scalp the Indian, but he was not yet dead and would have killed David had not the Captain intervened. After his return from the war he learned the trade of mill-wright, which he followed for a number of years. His mother having died when he was a baby, he was brought up by his uncle John Purden, who at his death left him nearly all of his property.

On May 13, 1817, David Greenly gives receipt to Jacob Biddle and John Adams "my former guardians," for $2,931.50, and interest due $78.65. [Deed Book R 2, p. 254.]

David Greenly, carpenter, of North west Fork Hundred. Sussex County and State of Delaware, sells October 10, 1821, to Jesse Green Esq. of same County and State for $500. part of a tract of land and willed to said Greenlee by his uncle John Purdon in Mispillon hundred. [Deed Book V 2, p. 42.]

ARCHIBALD GREENLEE, after the death of his mother, lived a year or so with a kind old neighbor, Isaac Cogle, a Quaker, who had been very kind to his mother during her sickness. Then he lived with a Scotchman, Samuel Clark until the latter sold his farm and moved to Indiana. Archibald had his clothing packed to go with Mr. Clark but his uncle, James Greenlee, would not allow him to go. He then went to live with William Workman and remained with him until he was fourteen years old, then went to St. Clairsville and became an apprentice to learn the cabinet-making trade. He remained there six years, and after finishing his trade he went to Wheeling, West Virginia and did journey work for four months. His brother William had moved to Washington, Guernsey County, Ohio, and started a hat shop so Archibald went there and united with him in carrying on that trade. Having received some money from his father's estate, he built a brick dwelling in which his brother lived, he boarding with him. They then bought a dry goods store and continued both that and the hat shop for some time, until it was thought best to dissolve partnership. William took the house and lot and Archibald took the store. He had, however, prior to this time, started a hat shop in Norwich, Muskingum County, Ohio, in connection with his cousin Andrew Greenlee. After renting for some time they built a shop of their own. They afterwards sold out and moved to West Carlisle, Coshocton County, where they started a hat shop and a cabinet shop and continued them for a couple of years. He built a shop and two houses there, having sold one to his brother Robert.

After his marriage, his wife's friends living near Fredericktown, he was induced to move there in November, 1833, and resided there until his death, with the exception of one year spent in Mount Vernon, Ohio. In the spring of 1834 he built a house and shop on the same lot and there carried on the furniture and undertaking business. In 1852 he removed to Mount Vernon, but remained there only one year and then returned to Fredericktown. Soon after becoming a resident of Fredericktown he was elected an elder in the Presbyterian Church, and held that office for over forty years. He frequently represented the church in the Presbytery and Synod, and in 1872 he was chosen Commissioner to the General Assembly which met in Detroit. He was elected Justice of the Peace, in which office he continued for a great many years; and he was also Mayor of the village for a long time. After retiring from these offices he was made Notary Public, and continued as such until he retired to private life. In politics he was a Republican. He was appointed by the Synod of Ohio as a member of the Committee to locate the University of Wooster. He was also appointed on the first board of directors for the construction of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad from Mansfield to Newark. During the war of the Rebellion, he was a member of the Knox County Committee to raise soldiers. At the call of Governor Todd, he raised a company of citizens known as the "Squirrel Hunters" to defend Cincinnati, of which company he was elected captain. They proceeded to Cincinnati, also Harrison's landing, seven miles below that city, where they camped for a couple of days and were then discharged, the danger having passed.

His courteous manner, kind speech, and adherence to principle gained for him many friends.

in a general store a few years, then commenced the study of medicine. He attended his first course of lectures at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, in the winter of 1858-59. At the breaking out the Civil War he enlisted in the Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The regiment, failing to be accepted for the three months service, reorganized for three years and during the war. He was mustered first lieutenant of Company B, and was soon promoted to adjutant; served with General Kelly and the much lamented General F. W. Lander. General Lander appointed him an Aide in the evacuation of Romney, Virginia. He served under General Shields in the Shenandoah Valley, being his personal Aide at the battle of Kearnsstown where the celebrated Confederate general, Stonewall Jackson, was forced to retire. He served in the Valley until ordered to the James River, which was reached in the evening of the day of the battle of Fair Oaks, and served under General Sumner. He was at the second battle of Bull Run. Being thrown from his horse at Georgetown, he received a severe injury to his hip which necessitated his being laid up at Washington for several months. After the battle of Fredericksburg he was ordered to report to General John S. Mason at Columbus, Ohio, who had been ordered by the Secretary of War to report to Governor Todd of Ohio. He was on duty at Camp Chase during the raid through Indiana and Ohio by the Confederate general, John M. Morgan, and was then ordered to the Pacific coast. In the meantime he had been made Captain and Assistant Adjutant-General, and was assigned to duty with Brigadier General John S. Mason, who was ordered to report to General Irvine McDowell at San Francisco, California. At the close of the war he was Assistant Adjutant General of the District of Arizona. He was mustered out of the service of the United States by special orders, August, 1866.

THOMAS BEAVER GREENLEE, after completing the regular High School course, attended the University of Wooster, Ohio from which he graduated with the degree of A. B. in 1879. About two years later he received the degree of A. M. from the same institution. In 1882 he was graduated from the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pennsylvania. During the last year at the Seminary he preached regularly in the Presbyterian Church at Mahonington, Pennsylvania, and received a call to that church and settled there immediately after his graduation. His health not being very good in western Pennsylvania, he removed in the spring of 1884 to Minneapolis, Minnesota, where he became the first pastor of Hope Presbyterian Church. His health again broke down. After a few months rest he spent a very brief period in charge of the Presbyterian church at Alta, Iowa. He was again compelled to give up his work for a season, and afterward took charge of the First Presbyterian Church of Anthony, Kansas, going there September, 1887. In the spring of 1890 he removed to Hillsboro, Illinois, where he acted as pastor of the Presbyterian Church for seven years. In 1893 the University of Omaha, Nebraska, bestowed upon him the degree of Ph. D. In April, 1897, he accepted a call to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church of Carrollton, Illinois. As pastor and preacher he merits and holds the love and respect of all. He is winning, eloquent and deeply spiritual. He has been Moderator of the Synod of Illinois.

 145. IV. Maud May, born January 3, 1879; unmarried.
 146. V. Everett McCowen, born November 14, 1881; unmarried.

LEVI THOMPSON GREENLEE worked with his father on the farm, receiving his education in the district schools during the winter months and by studying at home. In the spring of 1861 he commenced the study of medicine under Dr. Warren Day Everett. In October, 1861 he enlisted in Company I of the 4th Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, for three years. He was with his regiment in its first battle at Pea Ridge, Arkansas in March, 1862, and in an engagement late in the afternoon of the second day of fighting he was wounded in the left arm. However, he did not leave the regiment until he was detailed to assist the surgeons in caring for the wounded, and when the army moved he was left at Cassville, Missouri in charge of the wounded of his regiment that were not able to be moved, with instructions to move them to Springfield, Missouri, as soon as they were able. On arriving at the general hospital at Springfield, by request of his wounded comrades, he was again detailed to care for them until they were able to be sent home on furlough. He again joined his regiment at Vicksburg, Mississippi, and was with the regiment in all of its campaigns, including Sherman's march to the sea. He re-enlisted January 1, 1864, and was promoted to the rank of fifth sergeant of the company at Raleigh, North Carolina; then General Lee surrendered and peace was declared. They marched across the country to Washington, D. C., marched in the Grand Review there, then went to Louisville, Kentucky, where he was discharged from the service, and from there went to Davenport, Iowa, where he was mustered out. He returned to his home August 10, 1865, having served in the army three years and nine months.

After his marriage he located at Corydon, Wayne County, Iowa. He completed his course in medicine, graduating from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Keokuk, Iowa in 1875, and has since been actively engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery. In President Cleveland's first administration he was appointed postmaster at Weldon, Iowa; and under the second administration of President Cleveland he was a member of the examining board of surgeons for the bureau of pensions. He is now examining surgeon for four life insurance companies. He has been a member of the school board four different terms, in three of which he was its president. He is now located in the practice of his profession at Humeston, Iowa; is clerk of the First Baptist Church of that place and has been Superintendent of the Sunday School for six years. In politics he is a Democrat.

JAMES GREENLEE came from the north of Ireland with Ephraim McDowell and family, about 1727-29. They landed in Delaware and went from there to Pennsylvania. John Lewis, a relative of Ephraim McDowell, had left Ireland some years before, and about 1732 settled on the Middle River in the Shenandoah Valley, in what was known as Beverly Manor, near the present town of Stanton, where he obtained patents for a large tract of land. Ephraim McDowell, with his sons John and James, and son-in-law James Greenlee, left Pennsylvania in the fall of 1737 to go to Lewis, near whom they intended to locate. The long journey was made with regular camp equipments. Tents were provided, numerous pack-horses, and each member of the family rode on horseback. While on their way, when in camp on Lewis' Creek, a tributary of the South River, they were joined one night by Benjamin Borden, Sr., who offered one thousand acres of land to any one who would conduct him to his grant. This offer was promptly accepted. The men conveyed their families to the home of John Lewis, and then piloted Borden to what has since been known as "Borden's Grant," covering much of Augusta and Rockbridge counties. In consideration of a liberal share of the claim, the McDowells and James Greenlee then undertook to assist in carrying out Borden's contract for him, and before the close of the year moved their own families to the grant, where they permanently settled, being the first white settlers in that part of the valley. Other settlers were induced to come from Pennsylvania to Borden's tract, among whom were many relatives of the McDowells. The country filled up rapidly. Good houses, schools and churches were built, roadways were constructed and bridges built. Settlers extended themselves over an immense tract of land beyond the limited range of Borden's tract, wherever the country promised unusual advantages of soil, or near the James River and its tributaries. Game abounded and the rivers were full of fish. The country was beautiful, climate pleasant and all localities healthy. Constant intercourse was kept up with the old colonies of Maryland and Pennsylvania, and the capital of Virginia, Williamsburg.

MARY E. McDOWELL was a true Scotch woman, though born in the North of Ireland. She emigrated to America with her father, brothers John and James, and sister Margaretta who married Mr. Mitchel in Pennsylvania and settled in South Carolina. Soon after her marriage to James Greenlee the memorable journey was made from Carlisle, Pennsylvania to Virginia. She was brave, loved adventure and was undismayed by the thought of Indians or wild animals with which the country was then infested. In the summer of 1757 James Greenlee left his wife with a young family around her and went to Pennsylvania on a business trip. He was taken suddenly ill and died there at the home of Mr. Femme, or Fane. After the death of her husband she brought up her children under the watchful eye of her father, until he died. She then removed from Timber Ridge in the lower part of Rockbridge County to James River. James Greenlee had owned immense tracts of land on James River and in North Carolina. She increased her fortune rapidly and was able to set up her sons and daughters handsomely in life when they married, retaining a handsome estate for herself.

She was remarkably handsome in youth and retained her activity, veracity and great wit to the last days of her life. The stories that are told of her son Samuel's wit and recklessness are remarkable. The "witch story" may be traced to his love of the marvellous almost entirely. Mrs. Greenlee told the stories first herself, and once in the hands of her reckless son, from his very boyhood days, they were scattered over the land with many additions. For instance, he told a party of Methodist ministers that his mother had been tried and condemned to be burnt as a "witch," and that she was tied to a stake and wood and straw piled around her, when lo! she disappeared and a black cat was found in her place. The ministers stared and Samuel ran to his mother and told her how he had frightened off a party of "long faces" and "black coats" who were on their way to be entertained at her house. The mother only laughed at the reckless boy and said "My son, O, my son! do you not know that it is a sin to tell a lie?" Mrs. Greenlee told the story of her father having been called a wizard by the ignorant and superstitious, by reason of his strength of intellect and great physical endurance, and finally his extreme old age. When she was getting along in years, she concluded she needed glasses and accordingly procured a pair and thought that it improved her sight. The mischievous Samuel took the glasses out of the frame, had his mother put them on, then asked her if she could see better. "Yes," she said, "as well as ever." "Mother!" he cried, "there are no glasses in the frame." "You bad boy" she said, and throwing them aside did not use them for years.

She charitable, hospitable and remarkably kind to and considerate of her slaves, whom she held in large numbers. She taught them to read and, in many instances, to write. She lived on James River and in the later years of her life her negro men were famous boatmen from a point on the river called the "Boatyard" to Lynchburg, thence to Richmond. They were proverbial for honesty and uprightness in every sense of the word. They were trusted with valuable cargoes for which they received the money and delivered it to the owners of said cargoes without trouble or question on the part of any who trusted cargoes with them.

She lived to be very old, giving to the last an active supervision to business, in which she was thrifty and prosperous, and riding all over the country side on horseback. Her strength of mind rivalled her physical endurance. Long after the early settlers of her generation had passed away, and litigations arose among their descendants over lands claimed, she would ride miles on horseback to appear as a witness to settle the claims. Such was her knowledge of the early settlers and the land they settled on, and such was the accuracy of her memory, that her testimony invariably decided the case in favor of the rightful owner. She was the first white woman who settled on Borden's Grant.

[From History of Augusta County, Virginia, by J. L. Peyton]

In the Burden case, Mrs. Greenlee underwent, in 1806, a long examination, testing her temper and memory. In the midst of her examination the question was put to her, "How old are you?" She tartly replied, "Ninety-five the 17th of this instant: and why do you ask me my age? Do you think I am in my dotage?" Her deposition which follows, cannot fail to be read with interest. It casts some light upon her early days, supplies valuable information as to the early settlers, their manners and customs, and has not inaptly been styled the corner-stone of our history.

DEPOSITION OF MRS. GREENLEE

Taken November 10, 1806, in the Suit of Joseph Burden, Plaintiff, vs. Alex.

Cueton and Others, Defendants.

Mrs. Greenlee, being sworn, deposeth and saith:

That she, with her husband, James Greenlee, settled on Burden's large grant, as near as she could recollect, in the fall of the year 1737. * * * That shortly before her settlement on said grant, she, together with her husband, her father, Ephraim McDowell, then a very aged man, and her brother John McDowell, were on their way to Beverly Manor, and were advanced as far as Lewis's Creek, intending to stop at South River, having, at that time, never heard of Burden's tract. That she remembers of her brother, James, having, the spring before, gone into said Manor and raised a crop of corn on South River, about Turks, near what she called Wood's Gap. That about the time they were striking up their camp in the evening, Benj. Burden, the elder, came to their camp and proposed staying all night. In the course of conversation, said Burden informed them that he had about 10,000 acres of land on the waters of the James River, or the forks, if he could ever find it, and proposed giving 1,000 acres to any one who would conduct him to it. When a light was made he produced two papers, and satisfied the Company of his rights. The deponent's brother, John McDowell, then informed him, said Burden, that he would conduct him to the forks of James River for 1,000 acres; showed said Burden his surveying instruments, etc., and finally it was agreed that said McDowell should conduct him to the grant, and she thinks a memorandum of the house of John Lewis, in Beverly Manor, near where Staunton now stands, who was a relation of Deponent's father. They remained with him a few days, and there, she understood, further writings were entered into, and it was finally agreed that they should all settle in Burden's tract. That said John McDowell was to have 1,000 acres for conducting them there, agreeable to the writing entered into, and that the settlers were, moreover, to have 100 acres for very cabin they should build, even if they built forty cabins, and that they might purchase any quantity adjoining at fifty shillings per hundred acres. The deponent understood that said Burden was interested in these cabin rights, as they were called, for that any cabin saved him 1,000 acres of land. These cabin rights were afterward counted, as deponent understood, and an account returned to the government, then held at Williamsburg, and she has heard, about that time, many tests of the manner in which one person, by going from cabin to cabin, was counted, and stood for several settlements.

She recollects, particularly, of hearing of a serving girl of one James Bell, named Millholen, who dressed herself in men's clothes and saved several cabin rights, perhaps five or six, calling herself Millhollen, but varying the Christian name. These conversations were current in that day. She knows nothing of the fact but from information. She understood that it was immaterial where the cabins were built; that they were to entitle the builder to 100 acres as aforesaid, whenever he chose to lay it off, and that he had a right to purchase, at 50 shillings as aforesaid, any larger quantity. One John Patterson was employed to count cabin rights, as she understood. He was accustomed to mark the letters on his hat with chalk as she had been informed, and afterwards deliver the account to her brother, John McDowell, and remembers to have heard that her brother had expressed his surprise at so many people by the name of Millhollen being settled on the land, but which was afterwards explained by the circumstance of the servant girl above mentioned, and was a subject of general mirth in the settlement. She does not know whether this plan of saving several cabin rights by one person appearing at different cabins, was suggested by Burden, the elder, or not. She understood that every person saving a cabin right got 160 acres for each right so saved, as he, Burden, was to have a cabin for every 1,000 acres. When the party with which she traveled, as aforesaid, came, as they supposed, into the grant, they stopped at a spring, near where David Steele now lives, and struck their camp. her brother and said Burden having gone down said branch until they were satisfied it was one of the waters of the James River. The balance of the party remained at that spring until her brother John and Burden, as she understood, went down to the forks formed by the waters of the South and North Rivers, and having taken a course through the country, returned to said camp. They then went on to the place called the Red House, where her brother John built a cabin and settled where James McDowell now lives. The first cabin her husband built was by a spring, near where Andrew Scott now lives, but when deponent went to see it, she did not like the situation, and they then built and settled at the place called Browns. They sold this after some short time, and purchased the land on which her brother, James, had made an improvement, now called Templetons, and where she resided until about the year 1780, being within sight of her father, then near a hundred years of age, resided. This was the first party of white people that ever settled on the said grant. The said Burden, the elder, remained on the grant from that time, as well as she can recollect for perhaps two years and more, obtaining settlers, and she believes there were more than a hundred settlers before he left them. She believes he was in the grant the whole time from his first coming up until he left it before his death, but how long before his death he left it, she does not know. He resided sometime with a Mrs. Hunter, whose daughter afterwards married a Greene, and to whom, she understood, he gave the tract whereon they lived. When the said Burden left the grant, she understood he left his papers with John McDowell, to whose house a great many people resorted, as she understood, to see about lands, but what authority her brother had to sell, or whether he made sales or not, she does not know. Her brother, John, was killed about Xmas before her son, Samuel, her first son of that name was born. He was born, as appears by the register of his birth in the Bible, about April, 1743. The date of this register is partly obliterated, in the last figure, but from the date of the birth of the preceeding and subsequent child it must have been, as she believes, in 1743, that said Samuel was born.

Young Benjamin Burden came into the grant before her brother's death. She recollects this from the circumstance of his being then in ordinary plight, and such that he did not seem much respected by her brother's wife, and when she afterwards married him she could not but reflect on the change of circumstances. She understood that he was altogether illiterate. She said, Benjamin, junior, lived with her brother John, whilst in the grant, but returned to his father's before the death of said John, and after his father's death returned, fully empowered by his father's will to complete titles and sell lands, and then married the widow of her said brother, and continued to live at the place where her said brother settled as aforesaid, until his death. This place, now called the Red Place, is about three quarters of a mile from Templeton's, where the deponent resided as above.

Joseph Burden (a son of old Ben. Burden, the grantee), had resided at his brother, Benjamin's, some years before his, (Benjamin's) death; had gone to school and was here at his death; had the small pox at about the time of her brother's death, and some time after (deponent does not recollect precisely, but believes it was not long) he went away, not being very well liked, as she understood and not made very welcome; was then but a lad of about 18 or 19, as well as she can recollect from his appearance. This deponent recollects that John Hart, who had removed to Beverly Manor some short time before the removal of this deponent and her friend, as above stated, but she cannot say whether he surveyed for the said Benjamin or not; she understood he was a surveyor. The people who first settled and purchased did not always have their lands surveyed at the time of purchase; as she understood, some had their lands surveyed and some had not, but when it was not surveyed they described it by general boundaries. Beatty was the first surveyor that she knows who surveyed in the grant. The said Burden had been at Williamsburg, and some one, perhaps the Governor's son-in-law, by name Needler, and his other partners, had in a frolic given him their interest in said grant. She understood that there were four of them, the Governor, Gooch, his said son-in-law, and two others whose names she does not recollect, who were interested in the order of Council for said land, and that Burden got it from them as above; this was his information. She well recollects that her brother, John, assisted one Wood to make the survey of said large grant after they removed to it, as aforesaid, it being at the time of their removal, as aforesaid, held by the order of Council, as she understood. The said Woods and her brother made the survey she believes, after the cabin rights were taken in, as above stated. Many people came up, and many cabins and settlements were made immediately after their selling on the tract, as aforesaid.

Being interrogated as to the value of the lands remaining unsold by Ben. Burden, she stated that one Harden, who, she understood, was an executor, and who was in this country after the death of young Ben. Burden (which occurred from small-pox in 1753), and after John Bowyer had married the widow, and who, she understood, was settling Burden's business—but she does not know by what authority—she recollects that said Burden offered to her brother, James, the unsold land for a bottle of wine, if he would clear him of the quit rents. She also recollects that her brother consulted with her father about the proposition, who advised him to have nothing to do with it, for it would probably run him into fail. This she thinks was shortly after Bowyer's marriage. She does not know whether Ben. Burden, Jr., was distressed on account of the quit rents or not, but recollects that shortly before his death, Col. Patton was at her house; a horse of said Burden broke out and came there, which said Patten wished to have caught, that he might take him for some claim against Burden, but she did not hear what. She had, however, said horse sent home, fearing that, as there had been some misunderstanding between deponent's husband and said Burden about this land, he might think they had aided in said seizure. The deponent further states that her husband purchased 1,000 acres of land of old Burden, at an early day for fifty shillings per hundred, which she understood he had located on the Turkey Hill, as it was called. After the death of old Burden, his son, Benjamin, disputed giving a deed for the whole quantity there, alleging it was all valuable land, and afterwards for the sake of peace, it was agreed that a part should be taken there, a part adjoining Robert Cutton, which was sold to one Buchanan, and a part near John Davidson. This arrangement was made at the time Harden was present, as aforesaid, who seemed willing to give the land, and advised his deponent, whose husband was then abroad, to agree to take it at those places, which she did. All the land purchased by her husband was purchased from old Burden: indeed, he had purchased this 1,000 acres before they came to the tract; at Lewis', as before stated, provided he liked the land when he saw it, which he did.

The deponent being asked what she knew of the persons named in a mutilated paper purporting to be an account of entries and sales, beginning at "No. 1—McDowell, Jno., to No. 22—Moore, Andrew," on the first side, where the paper appears to be torn off; beginning on the other side at "No. 42—Martin, Robert, and ending at No. 62, at Brown, Robt.," and whether those persons were settled in the grant at an early day or owned lands in it?

Answered—That she knew a number of persons therein named, many of them lived in Beverly Manor, and others in the calf pasture and elsewhere, but she did not know many of them to have lands in Burden's tract. The McDowells and her husband she had before spoken of. She also knew John Moore who settled at an early date where Chas. Campbell now lives; Andrew Moore who settled where his grandson, Wm. Moore now lives. Wm. McCausland also lived in the grant, as did Wm. Sawyers and Robert Campbell, Sam'l Woods, John Mathews, Richard Woods, John Hays, Chas. Hays, his son, Sam'l Walker, etc. all of whom settled in the grant at an early day.

The deponent being interrogated if she knew Alex. Miller, and if he was an early settler?

Answered—that she did not know said Miller. He was the first blacksmith that settled on the tract. She recollects of his shoeing old Burden's horse, and she understood he purchased land of said Burden. He lived on land adjoining one John McCroskey's land, who also purchased his land from old Burden. He also joined the plantation now Stewart's mill place, as she believes, whereon one Taylor, who, she believes, married Elizabeth Paxton, formerly lived. She recollects being at the burial of said Taylor, who was killed by the falling of a tree not long after his marriage. Said Miller's land, she understood, has been in possession of people by the name of Teeford since the said Miller removed. The deponent recollects one McMullen, who resided some distance above the place where Robt. Stewart's mill now stands, but up the same branch and near a spring. Said McMullen was living on said land and had a daughter married there when this deponent's daughter, Mary, was a sucking babe. She recollects this from having gone to the wedding when a daughter of said McMullen was married and having left her child at home. Her daughter, Mary, was born, as appears from the register of her birth, in May, 1745. Humphrey's cabins, as they were called, were over the hill, at another spring not far from where said McMullen lived. She knows not from whom McMullen purchased, but rather thinks her brother, James McDowell, gave him a piece of land there for teaching school. There was no mill where Stewart's mill now is in the lifetime of Ben. Burden, Jr. John Hay's mill was the first mill in the grant, and built very early after the settlement.

The deponent says the people paid no quit rents for two years from the time the grant was first settled. She understood this exemption was granted by the Governor at the instance of one Anderson, a preacher. When they had to pay quit rents, they raised money by sending butter to New Castle, to Williamsburg, and other markets below, and got also in return their salt, iron, etc.

Being asked whether Joseph Burden was frequently in this country after the death of young Ben. Burden, she answered that he was frequently in this country some time after the death of said Benjamin. He called at her house inquiring for a horse, and she thought she knew his name, and afterwards heard that he lodged in the neighborhood at one William Campbell's. She saw him again at her house about twelve or fifteen years ago. He made some inquiries of her about her husband's estate or something of that kind. She does not recollect the particulars, but she had very little conversation with him. She also heard of his being through the country some time before this, but does not recollect how long, nor did she see him.

Question by the defendant's agent—Did not many persons, from time to time, in the lifetime of old Burden, settle in the grant, under the expectation of getting the lands at their usual price, and without first contradicting with said Burden?

Answer—I believe they did. I think many settled before they had an opportunity of seeing Burden, and Burden would frequently direct them to deponent's husband, to show them the land, as they said.

Do you not believe that the first deeds were made for cabin rights?

Answer—I suppose the cabin right, with such land as the settler purchased, would be deeded together, and perhaps these were the first made.

Did Ben. Burden, Jr., appear, when he first entered on the affairs of the estate, to be disposed to do justice to the devisees?

Answer—I thought he did. He appeared to be a good man. She understood he was heir-at-law and did not hear of the sister's claims, except to five thousand acres, which she understood had been assigned to them on Catawba, where the land was good.

Did he ever leave his country and go to Jersey, after he came up and got married?

Answer—No, I believe he did not. I am pretty confident he did not.

Did you know of Archibald Alexander and Magdalen Bowyer selling lands?

Answer—I did not know they were executors, and had a right to sell. I understood John Bowyer sold a great deal and gave away a great deal. Alexander was as respectable a man as any I knew. Bowyer, she understood, claim that Ben. Burden claimed, though she had no conversation with him about this claim.

Being asked whether Alexander paid Burden any money on account of the estate?

Answered—She never heard that he had, and from her intimacy with the wife of said Bowyer, she believes she would have heard of it, had it taken place.

Question by same—When Burden produced his right to the land, as you have stated, were you not satisfied, and did not the Company appear satisfied that the right was completely in him?

Answer—Yes, the papers appeared perfectly satisfactory.

Did you not understand that your brother, James McDowell, built a cabin and purchased the land where Thos. Taylor, above mentioned resides?

Answer—My brother, James, purchased a considerable tract, perhaps four or five hundred acres, either at or where Stewart's mill now stands. It run, as she understood, on a large hill, but whether in one or two tracts she does not know. This tract, she understood, he sold to some person, but does not know who to. She does not know whether he had it surveyed or not, but suppose it was merely designated by general boundaries. She thinks if she was on the land, she could point out the tree whereon his name was cut, if it is yet standing. It stood near a deep hole in the creek. Knows not how he acquired and saved a cabin right, but never saw the cabin, nor does she know where it stood, but the land was called his very shortly after they went to the grant, and in the lifetime of old Burden.

Sworn before us, 10th November, 1806.

JOHN GREENLEE,² son of James Greenlee and Mary E. McDowell, was born October 4, 1783⁴ in Rockbridge Co., Virginia; died near Morganton, North Carolina, at the home of his brother James; married in 1767 or 1768 at the "old house" on Cedar Creek, above Natural Bridge, HANNAH McCLANAHAN who was born at Salem, Roanoke Co., Virginia, died in Abbeville, South Carolina and was buried there, daughter of Colonel Elijah McClanahan and Ann Ewing.

CHILDREN:

10. I. James, born January 29, 1769; married Mary Paxton.+
11. II. Elijah, born in 1772; married ————; died at his residence in Millidgeville, Georgia, leaving no children. He was a surgeon in the United States army in the war of 1812.
12. III. John, born January 25, 1774; died unmarried in Kentucky.
13. IV. Mary, born September 12, 1776; married John Mitchell Greenlee.+
14. V. William, born July 17, 1779; drowned when a child in James River at Greenlee's Ferry.
15. VI. David, born February 12, 1782; married Hannah Ingram Grigsby.+
16. VII. Samuel, born September 17, 1785; died unmarried April 23, 1823 at his estate "White Bluff" in Georgia. He was a physician of high standing.

JOHN GREENLEE was the first white child born on Borden's Grant, and from early youth received all the advantages of education to be had in the early days, including a classical school taught by Robert Alexander. After his marriage he resided at "Clover Hill" one of the handsome estates which he had inherited from his father, and upon which he continued to reside for many years. The deed or grant of this estate was signed by King George and the land had never been transferred until the sale of the farm for division among the heirs of his son James. He was the high sheriff of Rockbridge County under the Colonial government in the reign of King George III, and had to ride one hundred and eighty miles to Richmond, Virginia to make his report and pay the taxes he had collected. He espoused the cause of the Colonies and aided in establishing the new government.

HANNAH McCLANAHAN, when a little girl, escaped during an Indian massacre, in which her father's family were the victims. She hid under a foot log across a creek nearby which the savages passed and repassed several times looking for her.

When they were very old she and her husband undertook a visit on horseback to one of their sons who lived in southern Georgia. On their return she took sick and died. He pursued his lonely way toward home, but when in North Carolina he too sickened and died.

JAMES GREENLEE,² son of James Greenlee and Mary E. McDowell, was born October 19, 1740 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; died November 8, 1813 [Bible Records] at Morganton, Burke Co., North Carolina; married June 10, 1770 at the ten-mile house, a tavern ten miles north of Charleston, South Carolina, MARY MITCHELL, a cousin, who was born at Charleston, South Carolina, died July (?) 1787 in Burke Co., North Carolina (when son David W. was six days old), daughter of James Mitchell and Margaret McDowell [See Appendix B.]; married second WIDOW RUTH HOWARD [Bible Record] who died January 22, 1812 [Bible Record].

CHILDREN; all born near Morganton:

17. I. James M., born March 29, 1771; married Mary Poleet (?); married second Sarah (Hunter) Hoard. Lived in Buncombe Co., North Carolina. No children.
18. II. Daughter, born September 11, 1773; died the same day.
19. III. John Mitchell, born June 25 or 23, 1775; married Mary E. Greenlee.+
20. IV. Margaret, born January 14, 1778.
21. V. William M., born May 19, 1779; died young.
22. VI. Samuel, born January 26, 1782; married Minerva Keziah Sackett.+
23. VII. Ephraim M., born February 22, 1784; married Sarah Carr Howard; married second Sarah Hollinsworth Brown.+
24. VIII. David Washington, born January 28, 1787; married Mary Howard McIntire.+

JAMES GREENLEE came to Surrey County, North Carolina from Virginia, before the Revolutionary war. He bought a fine farm on the Dan River but sold it again and went to Morganton, Burke County. He owned all the best lands about Morganton. His possessions are now divided into more than half a dozen fine farms. Besides this he owned lands in Yancey, Mitchell and Rutherford counties, and two fine farms in Turkey Cove; also land on the Catawba River where his son David Washington settled, is now divided into five good farms. He also owned fine lands near Memphis, Tennessee. He was a cattle raiser and the Catawba bottoms were green with cane and the hollows were knee-deep in wild pea vines. He drove his fat cattle to Philadelphia and to Charleston, South Carolina, for sale. He owned a great many slaves. While he was absent from home during the Revolutionary war the Tories robbed him of stock and grain, and took off a female servant, which was all the help Mrs.

Greenlee had on the place. While he was in camp, the Tories killed his stock, wasted his grain, and feasted on beef, mutton and honey. They heard that Colonel Campbell was coming and hurried off unceremoniously. The servant was secreted by a kind neighbor while the Tories were travelling several miles away, and was sent back.

James Greenlee was a business man, public and private. He said he could never write a deed to convey land from him, but could write one to himself. He never sold land, but bought all the good land that he could. He settled his six sons on good farms, all of them within a day's ride from home. His six sons settled their own matters without any lawsuits. He was Land Inspector in North Carolina and Tennessee; member of North Carolina Convention in 1788. In politics, he was a Whig; in religion, Presbyterian.

GRACE (or GRIZEL) GREENLEE,² daughter of James Greenlee and Mary E. McDowell, was born June 23, 1750 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia; died in North Carolina; married GENERAL JOHN BOWMAN, who fell at the battle of Ransom's Mill, June 20, 1780; married second GENERAL CHARLES McDOWELL, a cousin, who was born in 1743, died March 31, 1815, son of John McDowell and Margaret O'Neal who was the widow of —— Greenlee.

CHILDREN:

25. I. Mary Bowman; married William Allison Tate.+
26. II. Charles McDowell; married Annie McDowell.+
27. III. Athan A. McDowell; married Ann Goodson.
28. IV. James R. McDowell; died unmarried at the old homestead.
29. V. Sarah McDowell; married Colonel William Paxton.
30. VI. Eliza Grace McDowell; married Stanhope Erwin.
31. VII. Margaret McDowell; married Colonel William.
32. VIII. Sallie McDowell; married —— Christian.

GRACE GREENLEE was distinguished among the "women of the Revolution." She was a woman of remarkable energy and character.

GENERAL CHARLES McDOWELL, at the beginning of our Revolutionary troubles, was commander of an extensive district in this section of the country. He and his brother, General Joseph McDowell, were called the "heroes of Kings Mountain." Both distinguished themselves in times that tried men's souls. They were residents of Burke County and rendered important service to their country. Their father settled in Virginia, where Winchester now stands, but removed to Burke County, North Carolina about the time of their birth. In June, 1780 Colonel, afterward General, Charles McDowell was joined by L. Shelby, John Lewis (?) of Tennessee and Colonel Clark of Georgia. This the beginning of the fight of Kings Mountain, which memorable spot is on the border of North and South Carolina, Cleveland County. It extends from east to west and its summit is five hundred yards long and fifty wide. On this summit

Ferguson was posted, Major Joseph McDowell, Colonel Lewis and Major Winston formed the right wing, Campbell and Shelby the centre, and Colonel Cleveland and Colonel Williams on the left. The officers were all of equal rank, but as they were in Charles McDowell's district he was entitled to command. He was a brave and patriotic man and a good soldier. He was a member of the Senate and State Legislature, 1786-1788; Senator from Burke, 1782-88; also in 1778; Member of the House, 1809, 1810, 1811.

DAVID GREENLEE,² son of James Greenlee and Mary E. McDowell, was born November 1, 1752 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia; died December 5, 1820 near Natural Bridge, Rockbridge Co., Virginia and was buried on his farm; married October 11, 1781 JANE WHITE who died August 1, 1800 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia, daughter of ——— White and Jane ———; married second ——— HUNTER, a widow with daughter Sarah who married first ——— Hoard, second, James M. Greenlee. Resided in Rockbridge Co., Virginia, two miles from Natural Bridge and fourteen miles from Lexington.

CHILDREN:

33. I. James, born October 10, 1782; married Sarah Caskie.+
34. II. Mary, born February 29, 1784; married William Bailey.+
35. III. John, born May 8, 1786; died unmarried March 8, 1817 in Garrett Co., Kentucky.
36. IV. Margaret, born December 19, 1787; died unmarried January 3, 1809 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia.
37. V. Grace, born November 16, 1789; married John Caskey.+
38. VI. Jane, born April 4, 1792; married Thomas Caskey.+
39. VII. David, born April 22, 1794; married Sarah Hays; married second Mary (Purnell) Hall.+
40. VIII. Ephraim, born August 6, 1796; married Malinda Beckleheimer.+

 } Hannah McClanahan Mary E. McDowell } son of John Greenlee and Hannah McClanahan, was born January 27, 1768 or 1769 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia; drowned April 20, 1840 in James River at Greenlee's Ferry, Rockbridge Co., Virginia and buried in Falling Springs Church cemetery; married January, 1812 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia, MARY PAXTON who was born about 1790 or 1791 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia, died July 12, 1859 aged 69 years, at Greenlees Ferry, buried in Falling Springs Church cemetery, daughter of William Paxton and Mary Jane Grigsby.

CHILDREN:

41. I. Hannah McClanahan, born December 14, 1812; married James Dorman Davidson.+

- 42. II. Mary Jane, born February 25, 1814; married John Tate Finley.+
- 43. III. John Franklin, born November 4, 1816. He lived on the farm and took care of his mother until the farm was sold. Then went to Lexington where he has resided ever since. He has been Deputy County Clerk until a few years ago; living (1901) in Lexington, Virginia, unmarried.
- 44. IV. Sarah Ann Eliza, born December 16, 1819; married James L. Watson.+
- 45. V. Martha Trimble, born April 20, 1823; married Eban Nelrus Davis.+
- 46. VI. William Paxton, born May 16, 1825; married Eliza Hizer Forster.+
- 47. VII. Rachel Frances Pinkney, born August 7, 1829; married Preston T. Link.+

JAMES GREENLEE lived on the farm which had been owned by his father and was patented by King George III of England before the Revolutionary war. This farm contained eight hundred and fifty-five acres, located on the south side of James River, about two hundred miles from Richmond, at the mouth of Arnold's valley situated between two spurs of the Blue Ridge mountains. The farm was a very productive and valuable one, containing a great deal of river bottom. There was a public ferry there which is still maintained and known as Greenlees Ferry. The patent was parchment and remained in the family until the place was sold. Mr. Greenlee was fording the stream about a quarter of a mile below his residence, was riding one horse and leading another. The horse he was riding stumbled, and the one he was leading jerked back and pulled him off and he was drowned before assistance could reach him.

57. X. Virginia C., born July 19, 1836; married James C. Walton; died in 1880 at Lynchburg, Virginia.
58. XI. Josepha, born May 16, 1839; died in 1884 at Lexington, Virginia.
59. XII. William Woodville, born December 7, 1841; married Mrs. Pannell; lives at Webb City, Missouri.
60. XIII. John Marshall, born November 11, 1845; unmarried (1875) and was living in Kansas.

DAVID GREENLEE had little opportunity for gaining an education; yet through the use of his library and periodicals he was unusually well posted in history, geography, science and current events. He was noted for his familiarity with the sacred scriptures, being a veritable walking concordance. He was a Presbyterian; in politics, a Whig; resided at Clover Hill farm, Rockbridge County, Virginia.

HANNAH GRIGSBY GREENLEE had just finished her education at Ann Smith Academy, Lexington, Virginia, when she was married. She knew little or nothing about household duties but applied herself with such energy thereto that she was soon mistress of every detail, and was a reference for all her neighbors. The sons inherited her love of adventure.

ELISHA GRIGSBY GREENLEE, soon after he left home, joined a filibustering expedition under Lopez, and went to Cuba to accomplish what the United States has recently done. He escaped to Tampa, Florida, on a little steamer, closely chased by a Spanish man-of-war. He had lost all his wardrobe. He worked his way by driving a wood wagon, then as a hand on the railroad, then as conductor, and in this way made enough money to get back to Rockbridge. After this he took a college and medical course, followed his profession a while, then merchandised in Lynchburg, Virginia. Then he went on board the Viscal to London, his mother thinking him in Lynchburg till she got a letter from him dated London. When the Rebellion broke out all of the boys hastened to the front. He joined the Second Kentucky regiment as surgeon, the other four joined the First Virginia Cavalry under Colonel J. E. B. Stuart. There was not a raid, however dangerous, nor a battle in which Stuart's cavalry was engaged, in which most of them did not participate. Elisha was captured at Fort Donaldson, and for two years was a prisoner at Fort Douglas, when he was exchanged. After the war he went to Mississippi. He was of bright and cheerful disposition and had fine conversational powers.

WILLIAM WOODVILLE GREENLEE was captured in Virginia, by a Pennsylvania regiment in which there were four Greenlees. He was confined in Fort Delaware until the close of the war.

HENRIETTA JANE LEWIS (GREENLEE) BURNLEY was a native of Rockbridge County. She was possessed of excellent sense and uncommon resolution and self-reliance, very decided convictions of religious truth, positive and uncompromising opposition to all that was unseemly in its professors, and to the utmost of her opportunity and means liberal in her contributions toward the propagation of the truth as it is in Christ. Her married life was a happy one. She and her husband lived in singular unity of counsel and harmony of action for thirty-eight years until his death about six month previous to hers. It can truthfully be said that but few have lived in Albermarle County for better purpose, or have left more wholesome impress for good than this couple.

- 77. IV. Mary Jane, born July 8, 1822; married James Hervey Greenlee.+

DAVID WASHINGTON GREENLEE was the owner of a large plantation along the Catawba river in McDowell and adjoining counties of North Carolina, beautifully situated and beautifully kept by a troop of stalwart slaves. He came to Greenlee, North Carolina about 1814 or 1815. Though fine timbers were on every side there were few sawmills. He hauled some of the lumber for his house twenty miles. Travel at that time was by stage and private carriage, and those who lived on public roads had to keep travellers. His house always had guests coming or going. The nearest markets were Charleston and Augusta, and twice a year wagons were sent to one place or the other for supplies. It was a three weeks trip. Indians were not troublesome then though they often came through in large numbers. Wild game was in abundance—deer, bear, turkey and squirrels—and it was easy to keep supplied with fresh meat. Mr. Greenlee was a Whig; in religion, Presbyterian. He is remembered by older people through the region as presenting the best type of the generous, chivalric, courteous, olden time southern gentleman.

HANNAH McCLANAHAN (GREENLEE) DAVIDSON will be remembered as a model wife and mother, and as a woman of most lovely character. Her uniform cheerfulness, her kindness of heart and of manner, her patience, courage, fidelity to duty and other kindred virtues were recognized and appreciated by all who knew her. Her experience called for their exercise for she had known much sorrow. The mother of six sons, she saw them and her husband buried. Three of her sons lost their lives in battle for their country.

JAMES DORMAN DAVIDSON completed his education at Washington College, and soon began the practice of law in connection with his uncle, General Charles P. Dorman. He rose rapidly in his profession, and for more than fifty years practiced with a zeal which amounted to enthusiasm, and with such diligence and ability as deserved and achieved great eminence and success. He was a warm friend of education, and as a member of the Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee University, as well as a private citizen, he always manifested great interest in this cause. As a man he was generous and kind, and charitable in word and deed, and he relieved the necessities of the poor with unstinted benevolence.

GREENLEE DAVIDSON entered Washington College in September 1852 and took the degree of M. A. in June, 1855. In 1855-56 he was a law student at the University of Virginia, the study of which he completed at the "Lexington Law School" under the tuition of Judge John W. Brokenbrough, in June, 1857. He at once commenced the practice of his profession in connection with his father, whose practice was one of the largest in the upper Valley. To the duties of his profession proper, he united the labors of a Master in Chancery. The records of both the courts of Rockbridge abound with evidence of his industry, fidelity and ability. At this period of his career the Civil war commenced. In May, 1861, Governor John Letcher, who had known him from his childhood, tendered him the post of Aide-de-Camp with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel of Cavalry, the duties of which office he discharged with zeal and ability, until February, 1862. Conscientiously impressed that it was his duty to go to the field, he, during the fall of 1861 and the winter of 1862, raised and equipped the "Letcher Light Artillery" of which he was elected Captain. In February, 1862, his resignation as Aide-de-Camp was reluctantly accepted by the governor, and he entered upon his career of active soldier life. His battery was assigned to A. P. Hill's Division, Stonewall Jackson's Corps, and was first brought into action on Wednesday evening, the 26th of June, 1862, at Mechanicsville. This was the beginning of that great seven days' fight which culminated in Malvern Hill on the 2nd of July. From day to day he was engaged during that terrible conflict. It was, however, at Malvern Hill that his battery acted the most conspicuous part. His company was engaged at Cedar Mountain, Warrenton Springs, the second Manassas; participated in the ensuing Maryland campaign; was greatly distinguished at the capture of Harper's Ferry; under A. P. Hill was conspicuous in the contest at Boteter's Mill during the re-crossing of the Potomac; and on the 23rd of December, 1862, closed the service of that eventful year at the great battle of Fredericksburg. With the exception of skirmishing along the lines, the Army of Northern Virginia had no serious engagement from the 23rd of December, 1862, until the 2nd of May, 1863. The campaign opened with Chancellorsville, a name deeply engraved upon the memory of the people of the Valley, and especially of the citizens of Rockbridge. On the 2nd of May the Letcher Artillery was conspicuously engaged. The battle was renewed on the 3rd, and victory was virtually won. The artillery was ordered to the rear to re-supply its expended ammunition, and an infantry charge was ordered to complete the rout of the enemy. Captain Davidson, under the inspiration of a soldier's pride and forgetful of personal danger, leaving his wearied company resting in the rear, returned with the infantry charge to the fighting line. His death wound was the result.

FREDERICK DAVIDSON was educated at Washington College, and from there marched with the first contingent of troops that afterward formed the Stonewall Brigade. He fell at the first battle of Manassas.

COLONEL CHARLES ANDREW DAVIDSON was educated at the Virginia Military Institute, a graduate of the class of 1860. The beginning of hostilities found him pursuing his study of law at the University of Virginia, from which place he proceeded directly to the army. This prompt action was characteristic of the man as his after-life testified. He was commissioned by Governor Letcher a Lieutenant in the regular forces of Virginia, and assigned to the First Battalion, a command famed for bravery and hard fighting. He, with his troops were in the struggle from Manassas to Appomattox. As commander of the Irish Battalion in the Army of Northern Virginia, he was one of the immortal band that surrendered with Lee at Appomattox.

He became eminent in his profession, and a leading citizen of Lexington. He was a member of the town council, a bank director, president of the old and historic Franklin Society, a literary association second to none in membership and scholarly attainments in the Commonwealth, an honored member of the Masonic fraternity, a leader in the Alumni of the Virginia Military Institute, a foremost representative of the community in public and social hospitality and withal liberal in charity and benevolence.

WILLIAM WEAVER DAVIDSON volunteered in the Letcher Artillery when he was a mere lad. A severe attack of camp fever unfitted him for active service. At the close of the war he entered the Virginia Military Institute, but had to leave before he had completed his course, on account of ill health.

JAMES SAMUEL GREENLEE'S earliest recollection was of a fight he had with his teacher who whipped him for not studying his A B C's. He did not want to go to school, but wanted to learn a trade as his taste was for mechanics. However his mother was ambitious that the boys should become professional men, and designed James for a preacher, and her will was law. So he went to school under protest until about seventeen years of age, when he realized the error of his position and began to desire an education with a view to the ministry. In 1858 he graduated from Washington College (now Washington University), Lexington, Virginia. After teaching school for one year he entered the Theological Seminary at Prince Edward. In 1861, before the close of the session, he left the Seminary to enter the army, and served almost constantly until the surrender. Twice his horse was shot from under him, and once a bullet passed through his clothes. After the close of the war he returned to the Theological Seminary to complete his interrupted studies; but soon his depleted finances forced him to again leave the Seminary and engage in teaching, which occupation he followed in Virginia and Maryland until 1870, when he emigrated to Kansas, taking up a homestead in Marion County. In 1876 he removed to Stephens County, Texas, where he received an appointment as Deputy County Surveyor of Stephens County, which he held until October, 1879, then removed to Trenton, Tennessee. He afterward returned to Texas and settled in New Lebanon County. In 1883 he was licensed to preach by the presbytery in Temple, Texas, and until within the last few years has been teaching and preaching in different localities in Texas. He has since lived on a farm near Alvin, Texas. In politics, he was a Whig, then Democrat.

 177. VI. Ephraim Addison, born October, 1854; died aged eight years.
 178. VII. Jane, born April 2, 1857 or 1856; died in infancy.

JAMES HERVEY GREENLEE spent his youthful days on his father's farm, with the exception of the time he was in school which was very irregular. His parents had a place near Morganton, then the county seat of Burke County, where they spent a portion of their time, and then he attended school. When his parents went to their Turkey Cove farm he was left alone with the servants in order to pursue his studies. Thus he spent many weeks with not another white person around him, but he was always carefully watched over by the servants. It was finally concluded that he was too young to be left alone, so from then on his schooling suffered many interruptions. He afterward attended Washington College at Lexington, Virginia, where he remained fifteen months, then returned to his father's farm, which he managed for a share of the products. After two years spent in this capacity, he was given a farm by his father, but continued to make his home with his parents as long as they lived. Having been reared in a grand old southern home noted for kindness and hospitality, where not only friends and relatives but also strangers received a welcome, he grew up with those ideas and principles, and when he established a home of his own the latch string was always out.

In 1861 Mr. Greenlee was a delegate to the state convention that took North Carolina out of the Union. While he did not approve of this act, thinking that there might be a better plan, still when his state went that way he went with her and did his part to help prepare for the conflict. Of slaves and slavery he had the following to say: "I had over thirty slaves—all good and faithful. I would often leave things in their charge and they took good care. Some could read and write a tolerably legible hand, and keep ordinary accounts. Some were members of the church, and I would gather them together on a Sabbath, read to them and instruct them about the future and their responsibility to their Maker. Some were impressed, others seemed unmoved. In this part of the country slaves were well treated, fed, and clothed. There was probably some rigid treatment where there were large numbers on a plantation, and where it required rigid treatment to keep all straight and in their places. I do not think emancipation has been such a boon for the colored race in this land. What would they have been in their native land—Africa? I never was a great advocate of slavery, but I believe that the question of slavery, if justice and righteousness had ruled, could have been more satisfactorily adjusted, without the loss of the thousands of precious lives and the millions of money."

The following is a copy of a letter written to Mr. Greenlee while absent from home, by his chief slave:

"Turkey Cove, March 24, 1865.

Master—Sir:

I will write you a few lines to let you know that we are all well at present, except George; he is complaining some since he came home. I started the wagon the 14th of this month with a load to you what I thought they could haul, but they broke down before they got to the river and then was water-bound for several days and had to come home and started again last Monday from home and met George there. He went to Muddy Creek and came back and said that he was not well enough to take the wagon on and John went in his place, and Tag is working in John's place. I do not know what they hauled. I sent 53 pieces of bacon to Miss Sallie, weighed 900 lbs., 22 hams, 12 shoulders, 13 midlings. I reckon John and Madison took what they thought they could get along with. Last Wednesday, the 22nd, the Tories came and paid us another visit, but as Providence would have it, they got nothing. They came at noon day. Jiff and Isaac were hauling some wood with the black mare and Jinny and I had borrowed Milford Huskins mule to haul with that day and had hauled a few loads; when they came we were loosing out to feed and they run to the stable and made Isaac take out the mare and mule and they mounted them with the gears on and took Isaac with them. Threw down the fence and went up through the new ground up Pinks Branch, but Captain Gilliam happened to be at the old store with a few men when the alarm was made and they followed them and fired on them in the Tobacco patch. The Tories jumped off their horses let them and Isaac all go and cleared themselves. The same evening the same scamps went to Hallefield and took his mare out of the plough, then went to his father's and took his saddle and his boy's hat and went on. I did not see them at all. I was at the mill and saw the men run up from the store and I ran up to the house to see what was on foot. But the Tories were gone. They came in on the blind side of us. This time they came down the ridge to the shops. Liander and Carson were there at work at their wagon wheels and the first thing they knew were at the shops. Elijah Wacaster was in the crowd as guide for them through the mountains; some of them were there before. I do not know what we will do. We can't do nothing here for the Tories. If our horses had been at home they would have taken them all if those men had not been there. Capt. Carson has come back with some of his men, but they are in the North Cove and there is no man guarding in the Turkey Cove at all. I would be very glad if you would come home and see about things. K. C. Burgess was here some time ago and wanted to know the amount of pork we killed. Some person ought to come and take the tallig off the bacon before the Tories steal it. I do not know what we will do. I must close saying that you must do the best you can and we will do the same. All the black people send "howdy" at you and the children Charles, Emeline, Alvin and Mariah. Farewell, in haste, I remain as ever.

WARWICK GREENLEE."

Addressed to

Mr. James H. Greenlee,
Davidson College, N. C."

The slaves were all very much attached to Mr. Greenlee and after they were free would always visit him when they came near.

Mr. Greenlee was an elder in the Presbyterian church for sixty years, from August 30, 1845. He was one of the principal contributors in building and supporting Turkey Cove Church, organized May 30, 1886. He gave liberally of his means to all religious causes, both home and foreign. The furnishing of a room in the new Seminary at Richmond dedicated to his mother was among the last of his benefactions.

Physically robust, he was more so mentally and when in congenial company was interesting and instructive in his conversation. He retained all his faculties and was only troubled during his last years by dulness of the sense of hearing. He was blessed with wonderful eyesight and memory, was very studious and spent the greater part of his later life in reading.

In the summer of 1904, he with his son and family took quite an extensive mountain trip, very tedious and rough, but he was in remarkable spirits and pronounced the affair one of the most enjoyable of all his life. He had planned another for the following year and had engaged his drivers and cook.

Although well read, interested and in touch with public matters he did not participate therein, other than in the capacity of a sturdy citizen. He was a very active man and always transacted his business in person. It was while he was on a trip to Johnson City to buy horses that he was stricken with paralysis, but he retained his mental faculties unclouded until a few hours before the end. He died in his 94th year at his Turkey Cove farm, within sight of the place where he first saw the light.

There are two striking things to mark his character. First his determination to do right. If a thing seemed right in his mind it was marked for accomplishment and the whole force of his indomitable will and wonderful vitality was brought to bear upon it. The other was his deep reverence for God, for his house, his worship, his service. When he was too ill to make himself understood by those who watched him, he could be heard to utter one continual prayer. He lived the "simple life" in its truest sense and left an impress and example which appeals to all good men even in the rush and turmoil of modern progress.

MARY JANE GREENLEE was received into the Presbyterian Church of Seloan, of which her parents were members, in September, 1846, and from that time until the day of her death she adorned the profession of the Gospel by her life.

JAMES McENTIRE GREENLEE was born at the old homestead, near the centre of what is now the village of Greenlee. While still a mere lad he was sent to con his Latin and Greek at Washington and Lee University, and soon after leaving college he married pretty Anne Morris, a belle of Rutherford County. "Settling down" into the staid role of a gentleman farmer was a slow process. For the young couple life was chiefly a frolic, until the young wife died. Mr. Greenlee's second wife was Harriet Rice of East Charlemont, Massachusetts. A daughter of Puritans and of Mt. Holyoke College, she at first found it somewhat difficult to adapt herself to surroundings in the South, whither she had been sent to nurse a sick mother, remaining afterward to teach in the Murphy neighborhood. The cloud of civil war was already upon the horizon, and her parents were much grieved that she should marry a slaveholder. However, when the storm burst she gave her support to the lost cause, though her brothers fought upon the other side. When the war closed Mr. Greenlee determined to mend his broken fortune in the gold fields of California. To go back to her old home among the abolitionists was a bitter draught for his wife, but was better than braving the horrors of reconstruction alone; so the four or five years of her husband's absence she spent in teaching in Massachusetts. It is related of her that she taught northern histories of the civil war with very lively note and comment. In her early life she had steadily contemplated life in foreign mission fields, but as she said she "found her work in the South." She and her two elder daughters were among the first southern gentlewoman to accept positions in the public schools. Such work had been considered menial by women of their social status, and the teachers hitherto employed had been greatly lacking in manners, morals and education. "These young Greenlees had to be taught," she was wont to say, as her children, with a troop of cousins, gathered about her, "and gradually I drifted into the other work." Her talent for teaching was inherited by her daughter, Harriet Eliza, who was founder of Greenlee School, bequeathed at her death to the Presbyterian Church. This daughter died in the prime of life, a sacrifice to the unsparing energy which prompted her to ceaseless efforts far beyond her strength.

THADDEUS D. BRYSON was a colonel in the civil war, and for twenty years a legislative member from Swain County. It was largely through his influence and efforts that the Southern railway was finally built from Asheville on through western North Carolina.

219. V. William Harvey, born August 15, 1860; married Kate Young Hemphill.
220. VI. Robert Lee, born December 3, 1863 at Marion; unmarried. He is a civil engineer and lives at Marion.
221. VII. Lillian Logan, born September 12, 1865; married Hugh A. Tate.

THOMAS YOUNG GREENLEE was a great hunter in his boyhood days. He often went upon the mountains with his dogs at daylight, drove a big buck into the river, killed him and was home with him in time for breakfast. He would tramp the woods all day shooting squirrels and kill as many as half a dozen little negroes could carry home.

In 1844 McDowell County was separated from Burke and made a new county. Since that time he has had more or less to do with the county government and has held almost every office at one time or another. He served as county surveyor for thirty-three years and has surveyed the whole county, mountains and all. He has also surveyed a good deal of Burke, Yancey, Mitchell and Rutherford counties. He owned about seventy slaves—good and faithful servants all of them. Several have lived with him as renters for years. When the civil war broke out his oldest son came home from Davidson College and, with his brother, who was only seventeen years old, joined the Confederate army. The second son was wounded at the battle of Seven Pines and was sent home for a while, then taken prisoner at Petersburg and lay in prison six months at Point Look-out. The eldest son, James Logan Greenlee, was wounded at the second battle of Manassas. We give below some interesting letters written by him while in camp:

Camp near Yorktown, Va.,
April 24, 1862.

Dear Father:—

I suppose that you begin to think that I have been very long about writing home. I know that you are all anxious to hear from us. John wrote to you by Merit Burgin from Richmond. Since I parted from you at the head of the road, I have seen much, traveled far and learned much. We did not reach our regiment till Monday, two weeks precisely from leaving Marion. We were detained in Salisbury until Saturday morning and would not have gotten away then but for an extra train going to Raleigh. There are at present about 1800 Yankee prisoners in Salisbury. It was very amusing to hear the remarks of some of our boys about them, such as "Why they are just like our men," "They are as big men as we" and such like. It took us three days to get from Salisbury to Raleigh. The cars run off the track on Sunday but providentially no one was killed, though the cars were full of troops, and a good many were bruised up over the rocks and cross ties. Luckily for us, we were about midway the train and our car did not run off although all before it did. When I jumped out of the cars the men were scrambling over each other, and such a babel of cursing, groaning and laughing I never heard before. We staid one night in Raleigh sleeping in box cars on planks. I thought then that it was a very hard disagreeable bed, but I have since learned that it was quite a comfortable place.

We left Flemming's Company in Raleigh. John has a first rate Company and will make a good Captain. We came from Raleigh to Richmond in one day, landing in Richmond in the night. We were marched off to the quarters prepared for the Accommodation of Soldiers, the St. Charles Hotel, a large and capacious house (a perfect hog pen for filth and dirt); here we had excellent fare, prepaid for us, consisting of bacon, seemingly ten years old, and as strong as Sampson, bakers bread as porous as a sponge and peas scarcely fit to be given to swine, all these cooked by the ton and without washing. Those of us who had money boarded at the hotels and restaurants, while we staid in Richmond, which was three days and nights. Richmond is a very large city. It seems as if all the people in the Southern Confederacy had collected in this place. One may see thousands on the streets in a few hours. Nearly every man here is a soldier or pretends to be. For all there is so much to be seen in the Capital of our new-born confederacy; yet I never was so tired of any place in my life. Richmond is much larger than I had any idea of. It is the dirtiest place (with the exception of Petersburg), that I have ever been in; it is a perfect den of extortion. The citizens seem to think of nothing, nothing, and care for nothing but cheating the poor soldiers out of their wages; with few exceptions they are worse enemies to their country than the Yankees. The authorities would not permit us to go on to our regiments, although several trains left Richmond daily for Fredericksburg empty. We thought strange of it then, but have since learned the cause of our detention. The troops were at the time falling back from the Rapahannock. The cause of this move I do not know but suppose that it seemed necessary in the wisdom of our Generals or it would not have been made. We left Richmond in the cars on Sunday and went to Ashland, 18 miles from Richmond. They halted us here and we staid all night in the stables. Our regiment landed about midnight and we joined them the next morning. We received marching orders that same evening and to prepare three days rations, but we did not march till Wednesday about one o'clock. We were not allowed to take anything but what we could carry on our backs. We all shouldered our muskets (leaving a guard and the sick in camp), and marched off for Richmond. We marched that night till about nine o'clock, then halted, rolled up in our blankets, lay down and slept soundly until 2½ o'clock, when they roused us to continue our march. We struck out for Richmond through the mud. We got to Richmond at three o'clock, having left a good many of our men on the road. I was extremely tired when we arrived but not quite gave out. We met with Capt. Neal and his recruits and Bratcher Hemphill. The next morning our regiment was put on board a boat on the James River and struck down the river. I like steamboat traveling first rate, although I suppose it is not so pleasant riding on the deck of a flat boat crowded with men and baggage, as it is in a good cabin. The scenery on James River is beautiful. The river is from two to three and four miles wide. We landed about 120 miles from Richmond, as soon as the stragglers could be collected, we struck out for Yorktown. This march headed everything I ever saw. We could get no water except out of ponds and puddles. We were tired out with fatigue and want of sleep. Men were falling out all along the road and lying down to sleep. Before we halted (which we did about an hour by sun in the Peninsular about two miles from Yorktown), more than 200 men were missing out of our regiment. I never was so tired and sleepy in my life. When we halted to rest at daylight, I sat down on a log beside the road, placed my face in my hands and went to sleep, and slept so soundly that the noise of another regiment passing failed to wake me, and I did not know that it had passed until the next day. John stood the march first rate, better than I had expected, and slept all day. Sunday we were ordered to the intrenchment two or three miles from our camp. This was the most miserable place I ever saw. It is in a swamp naturally wet, but at this time flooded with water. At night we had to keep two-thirds of the men up all the time. Sunday night an alarm was given and we all pitched into the ditches musket in hand. It was dark as Egypt; several volleys were fired into the darkness but the enemy did not advance. I did not fire as I had nothing to shoot at. Tuesday we returned to camps. We have not had any tents (except one night), since we left Ashland. Firing is constantly going on between our pickets and those of our enemy. A man or two is killed almost every day on each side. Our pickets are in sight of the ditches and the enemy are in sight of them. The boom of cannon is to be heard every few minutes of almost every day. It has become so common that the discharge of musketry, or the roar of the cannon is not noticed.

I have run on writing until my paper has almost given out. John and I are both well at present and getting along first rate. We are getting used to camp life; we left several of our boys at Ashland sick, but those who have come to us since say that they are all getting well. Dave Gibbs is in our mess; tell his folks that he and Charles are well.

You must all write to us. Direct your letters to Richmond, in the care of Capt. A. Burgin, Co. R, 22 Reg. N. C. T. My love to all at home & give my best respect to all my friends; tell all to write to us. Camps are a bad place to write; I have no place to write except my knee. You must write to me immediately. Farewell. I will write again as soon as I can.

Your son,

J. L. G.

Camp near James River, 2 miles below Richmond, July 7, 1862.

Dear Sister:—

I received your letter some time since while the battles were going on. I have had very little time for writing before now. I wrote you a short letter from Richmond by David Gibbs. Since that time I saw the hardest times that I ever saw in my life. The most terrible fighting of the war has taken place since that time. I have been through every bit of it. I do not know how I have stood up to all the fatigue of this campaign, whilst the stoutest men have given way beneath it. I was determined to see it out as long as I could crawl, and the resolution kept me up. I suppose I have been in every battle and have come out unhurt. Providence must have watched over me and protected me whilst my friends were falling thick around. We have whipped the Yankees, but our loss is heavy. Many of our best and bravest men are killed or wounded.

We left our camp below Richmond on Wednesday the 28th of June and have been marching and fighting ever since until last Saturday night, when we arrived at the camp worn out and over-tired with fatigue and over-exertion. We are within range of the enemy's gunboats on James River, if they had a mind to shell us, but I suppose that they have work enough to do now in carrying their men and baggage out of danger. It has been a glorious victory for our country. McClellan has been completely routed and his vast and fine army driven like sheep before us, with immense loss of baggage, provisions, arms, men and all the other munitions of war. Some say that they have 7000 Yankee prisoners now in Richmond, with two Major Generals and four Brigadier Generals. The loss in our company is very heavy, and they are our best and bravest. I do not see, however, how in the world it is as small as it is. We did not have more than 25 men in our Company when we went into the first fight. The rest were either sick or detailed off on various duties. There is a list of the killed and wounded in the various fights. On Thursday, June 6th, killed, none; wounded, George W. Lackey, leg broke by a shell below the knee, he will probably recover. A. B. Copeland, thigh broke by a shell; I think he must die. Dick McFarland, in the hand and leg, not severely. Frank Condey, in the head, not severely. Robert Right, in the shoulder, severe but not dangerous. On June 27th, killed, William Burgin Corp. Mortally wounded, George W. Burgin. Wounded: Robert McCoy, in the hip; not dangerous. Monday, June 20th, killed: Larkin A. Morris, Robert Duncan and David Lavender. Wounded: John Wood, in leg very slightly. Missing, supposed to be killed; Steven McKinney. Nearly half of the men that were with us were either killed or wounded. I could write a volume to you but have not time nor paper now. I wrote to David on Friday after the first two battles; tell him to write to me immediately and to keep that letter, as I may want to see it again, as it was written under fire of Yankees.

I have escaped very well. One ball passed through my haversack, and a spent ball struck my leg, but did not hurt me any more than if I had been struck by a small rock. The bark frequently spattered into my face from trees struck by balls. The men say I am too little to be hurt. I have seen Joe Neal and Marion Higgins, but have not seen John or Greenlee Fleming yet. They were in the battle on Tuesday. John was slightly wounded. Steve is well I heard by Joe Burgin. He came to me Sunday but cut out when the fight began Monday. Tell Uncle Jim to write to me. I am very anxious to hear from John. This is Yankee paper and a Yankee envelope. I enclose you an envelope and paper which I found in a Yankee letter that some man's wife had sent him to write back on. Write at once to your brother.

J. L. Greenlee.

Camp near Richmond, July 19, 1862.

I promised in my letter to Becky to write you a full account of the late battles around here, so far as I was a participant in them. But first I will say that my health has been very bad since the battles, although I have not been off duty at any time. I have got the Yellow Jaundice now. It is the meanest, sickenest disease I ever had in my life. It is impossible to describe one's feelings when they have it. Steve has been very sick for several days; he is getting a little better.

On Tuesday, June 25th, we received orders to march at 5 o'clock P. M. The enemy seem to have determined to hurry us a little, so about the time we were ready to fall in, they commenced shelling. The shell would burst in the air over us and scatter the pieces everywhere; one struck a tree in our camp low down, and another bursted into the 16th Regt., which was camped just behind us, but happily did no harm. After 5 o'clock our Brigade took up the line of march. Our Brigade consists of 16th, 22nd, 34th and 38th Regts., N. C. troops, under command of General Pender. We marched that night until about nine o'clock, then encamped and remained there till 3 o'clock next evening, ready to fall in at any moment. Thursday about 3 o'clock in the evening we started, and crossed the Chickahomig on the Meadow bridge. The enemy had been driven away from this bridge on the evening before by a party of our men. As soon as we had crossed the creek we began to see evidences of the presence of the Yankees in the shape of cabins, tents, breastworks, blankets, &c. We crossed the bottom and when we reached the uplands, filed to the right through the fields. After we had gone near a half a mile the Yankees opened a battery on us with shell and round shot. We advanced under this fire to Mechanicsville without losing a man although many of the shell passed very close to us and kept the men dodging all the time. When we came to Mechanicsville we passed through by the right flank, then about faced and marched back through. Here were the first dead and wounded men that I saw. They had been killed by shell and belonged to another regiment. The houses were badly torn up and they were fixing them up as hospitals. Just after passing Mechanicsville a shell exploded in the Company just before ours and wounded four men. We had to step over them as we went on. The Yankees gradually withdrew their battery as we advanced and added new guns, our artillery replied to them. We advanced until we came to a deep wooded hollow; in this there was a whole brigade lying own to shelter themselves from the cannon. We halted and lay down also, and now the cannonading was redoubled; the balls, shell and grapeshot flew over us in a hurry, striking the trees and cutting off the limbs, but I did not see any men struck while we lay there. As we came out of this woods and were passing through a corn field, the first man was wounded in our company; it was George Lackey. He was my left hand man. A piece of shell struck his leg and broke it in two. George is a good soldier and brave. There was no time for dodging now; the shot was too thick. When we came to the end of the woods we found a Virginia Regiment drawn up at the edge of the woods in a line of battle; we formed just behind them. They then advanced into the woods and commenced firing. Presently here they came out in considerable confusion and began to form before us; our Colonel called out to them to form behind us and let us go in. We advanced into a thicket, and a thicket it was; when we had gone a short distance (it was uphill and pretty steep), Copeland was wounded, he was struck by grapeshot and his thigh shattered all to pieces. I turned my head when I heard him cry out with pain and saw Lieut. Burgin catch him in his arms as he fell. Lieut. Burgin was at this time in command of the Company. The Captain was taken very sick that morning and we left him. Charlie ordered some one to take Copeland out. John Burgin and George immediately took hold of him. Copeland was directly behind me, and I do not see how the shot struck him and missed me. There was a Virginia Regiment in here ahead of us; they were firing to the front but the smoke was so thick that it was impossible to see anything. The balls and grape were coming in thick, shaving the leaves and striking the trees. But I think the enemy were a long way off, for the rifle balls were all nearly spent before reaching us. Frank Condry was struck hard enough in the mouth to make it bleed a little. The stragglers from the regiment ahead of us broke our line so in passing through that we had to fall back to the field and form again and then advance again—passed the Virginia Regiment and on down the hill through the thicket until we came to the edge of a meadow covered with tall grape; here we halted for some time. Presently a tall young officer came up behind us and asked what regiment it was; several of us said "22 N. C." "Forward then in the name of God" said he, "The General says forward." Some of the men started, but the officers stopped them. He then rushed to the front, dashed into the swampy grape, waved his sword and shouted "Forward." Some of the men asked for the Colonel. Colonel Connor then came to the front and walked up to the stranger and said, "I command this regiment, Sir." The stranger bowed and said, "Very well, Sir, the Yankees are just over there in the woods, if I can be of any service to you I will do anything I can." The Colonel then drew his sword, turned to us and said "Come on, men." The meadow was about 75 yards wide; we plunged into the meadow in some places nearly knee-deep in mud and water; in a few steps we fell in a ditch; the front men scrambled out and those behind jumped over, and on we went. When we got to the edge of the woods on the other side, we found a wide ditch full of water in front of us. The stranger crossed the ditch by a small pole and shouted, "Come on, here are the Yankees, right here," pointing into the woods with his sword. Some of the men plunged in and found it almost waist deep in mud and water. I was just about to plunge in when I heard some one say, "halt." We marched by the left flank down the ditch for some distance; then we were ordered to lie down. Immediately the firing commenced on the left. Some one on the left said, "Don't fire, our men are in front of us." Glancing into the woods I saw the shadowy forms of men through the smoke and bushes. I then shouted, "Fire men, it is the Yankees," and leveled my gun and fired. Looking along the line I saw that most of the men were firing too high. I shouted "Shoot low," as loud as I could. There was no time now to think of anything but loading and firing. We had an excellent position behind the bank of the ditch, and as we were lying down, they could not hit us anywhere but in the head and shoulders. I was in front of our Company, loading and firing on my knees, and could hear the balls cut through the bushes and whistle past my head. I suppose we fired for five minutes. I fired eight times and could have fired more if my gun had not got so dirty that it was very hard to load; it had gotten so hot that I could hardly hold it. The Colonel, now seeing that our men had given way on the left and the Yankees were about to flank us, ordered us to cease firing and fall back. I had not thought of being hit before, but now I began to fear being shot in the back, but I soon found that the Yankees had ceased firing almost entirely. If they could have fired on us as we passed the meadow, they might have ruined us, but they were too badly cut up. We fell back into the old field where we had first gone in and formed. As we came through the woods there was the Virginia Regiment still huddled behind the trees and old logs. The Yankee balls, which passed over us, struck among them and they fired back over our heads. As we came out they came out with us and formed a good distance behind us. We now learned for the first time that Colonel Connor had his leg broken in the fight. The way of it was this: Colonel Connor went down the ditch till he came to a bridge, here he met two men who asked him which regiment that was. He replied "22 N. C." They instantly fired at him and broke to run, one of the balls broke his leg. Our men now saw the Yankee line about 50 feet from them and fired. It was now after dark; Colonel Gray told us to lie down on our arms and hold our position until morning. We had to send out pickets into the woods. This was one of the hardest things that I have had to do, to name the men who should go out, when I knew they were all worn out with fatigue. We were obliged to remain here until two o'clock, when we received orders from General Pender to join the rest of our Brigade, from which we had become separated that evening and which was still in front of Mechanicsville. We marched back about a mile before we reached our Brigade. We passed thousands of men on our way all lying on their arms, many of them sleeping their last sleep and dreaming their last dream of Peace and home. We reached our regiment after three o'clock in the morning and threw ourselves down to sleep within a few hundred yards of the enemy. We were wet to our waists from lying in the water in the meadow, but we scarcely struck the ground before we were asleep. I had thrown off my blanket as we went into the battle and had none for a week or more. After a short rest, we were waked up the next morning before day. The condition of our regiment was extremely bad. This morning there not 100 men in the regiment, and another company was thrown in with our, and as neither company had a commissioned officer, I had to take command of both companies. Our company numbered only 18 men and the company attached only 6. We were marched out and made to lie down behind the crest of a hill. The battle was renewed at daylight on the right and pretty soon the balls came whistling over our heads and we knew we were in for another fight.

I have taken up more space in writing this than I had any idea of when I began. I must stop this time for want of space. I know this letter must be tedious to you now. I will write a description of the other fights another time. You must answer this letter as soon as you get it. I have not received a letter from you since I left Yorktown. I got a letter from Becky and one from Uncle Jim a few days ago; they were a long time coming. Major Bynum and Dr. Higgins were here last week. They staid with us for two or three days. From them we learnt the news from McDowell and all about the candidates. We are going to run W. F. Craig for the commons against Morris and he will beat him too. Morris is very unpopular in Camp. Our company and Neal's will go almost unanimously for Craig. Craig has been over to Blackwells and Lytle's companies, and I think he will beat Morris badly in both of them. I believe Craig is a far more suitable man than Morris.

I sent you $28 by Major Bynum and spent the greater part of the money. I saw they were not going to pay us soon so I kept, and I needed it too, on the march. I will send you the rest of the $80 (which I consider I owe you), when we draw. Write immediately and let me know how John is getting on. Do not let him come back until he is entirely well again. Steve has got well again and sends "howdy" to all. I answered John's letter; tell him to write to me.

Your affectionate son,

J. L. Greenlee.

He died from fever as the following letter shows:

Loudon County, Va., near Upperville, October 4, 1862.

John Greenlee, Esq..

Dear Sir: I very much regret to have to communicate to you the sad tidings of your brother's death. Your brother Logan died at my house on five o'clock on Tuesday, Sept. 30th of typhoid fever and was buried on Thursday, Oct. 2nd, in the neighborhood cemetery near the village of Upperville. He was buried in a neat and respectable manner with a view to his remains being removed to his home, if his friends may desire to do so. He was attended in his last illness by Dr. Gunnell, one of the prominent and able doctors of the county, and received every attention both medical and otherwise needful for his relief and well being. His servant Stephen was faithful in his attention to him both night and day as one could be, and he (Stephen) can inform you what attentions he received from myself and family, as also Mr. Huntley, who came to my house the same day your brother came, and expects to accompany Stephen to the army.

Your brother came to my house on Monday and expired on the next Tuesday week. He was at Upperville indisposed, at the time of the Yankee raid into this neighborhood, he left there and came to my house as a place of safety, about two miles, which caused a relapse, from which he sank rapidly until he died. Such are the melancholy facts and circumstances of your brother's death.

Very respectfully your friend,

William Fleming.

DAVID GREENLEE attended school in Rockbridge County, Virginia until he was in his fifteenth year, when his father moved with his family to Ohio. There he was put to work on a farm until he was twenty-two years of age when, at the earnest solicitation of neighbors, he assumed the role of school teacher, which calling he followed for ten years. During six years of that time he spent all of his leisure time preparing himself for the practice of medicine. He did not graduate in his profession until he had practiced seven years. He was a very skillful and successful practitioner. In politics he was a Republican; in religion, Protestant; resided at Sheldon, Illinois.

IDA KATHERINE GREENLEE was a teacher in the high schools of Indianapolis, Indiana, and was eminent as an instructor in science.

David Greenlee ²
 Jane White

son of James Greenlee and Sarah Caskey, was born October 15, 1817 in Rockbridge Co., Virginia; died February 23, 1852 near Ayersville, Defiance Co., Ohio; married in 1840 or 1841 at Millgrove, Warren Co., Ohio, ELIZABETH STITES, born June 13, 1820 near Lebanon, Warren Co., Ohio, daughter of Henry Stites and Elizabeth Stout.

CHILDREN:

240. I. Margaret Ann, born June 15, 1842; died January 26, 1864.
 241. II. Henry Clay, born January 17, 1845; married Louisa A. Newell. †
 242. III. Sadie L., born May 20, 1847; married John Clinton Garvey. †
 243. IV. Amanda, born November 15, 1849; married George W. Killey. †

SAMUEL HARVEY GREENLEE was a self made man, having had neither the advantage of a good education, nor pecuniary means to give him a start in the world. When only a boy, he and his brother Ephraim carried their books to the field when they went to work and employed every spare moment in study. In the evenings they studied by the light of the fire. By improving the leisure moments afforded him during his daily avocations, he succeeded in obtaining a good education, and admission to the bar. He obtained a reputable standing in the legal profession. He held an enviable position among the most prominent citizens of Defiance, Ohio, and was an esteemed member of the Defiance County Bar. He was noted for his public spirit, his liberality, and his unflinching devotion to his principles, which he deemed promotive to the public good. He was also distinguished for the exactitude of his business habits, and above all for the probity of his character. It has been the fortune of few men to have their word, in matters of business, more implicitly confided in than his. In politics, he was a Whig; in religion, Presbyterian.

MARGARET ANN GREENLEE began teaching school near her home at Ayersville, Ohio, when fourteen years of age, and afterward taught in the public schools at Napoleon, Ohio.

 255. XII. Anneka Jans Bogardus, born August 7, 1865; married Charles Cyrus Waterman.+

THOMAS FRANKLIN GREENLEE emigrated with his parents to Ohio in 1827, where they settled on a farm near Chillicothe, Ross County. His young days were spent in a log cabin, and he often hunted deer and wild turkeys, which were plentiful in those days. Being a diligent student, he was able to commence teaching at the age of seventeen. After his marriage he located at Bourneville, Ross County, Ohio, where he was a teacher in the public schools. He afterward accepted a better position in the schools of Bainbridge in the same county. In April, 1849 he removed to Hillsboro, where he was a successful teacher for ten years. In the spring of 1862 he moved onto a farm three miles west of Hillsboro, and engaged in farming until August, 1867. At that time there was some excitement about the Anneka Jans estate in New York City, and Mrs. Greenlee being a direct descendant, Mr. Greenlee was prevailed upon to go as a representative to look into the business and gather all the facts in the case, as well as to search the records in New Jersey and New York City. He was very persevering and succeeded in proving the heirship of over one hundred claimants. In politics, he was a Republican; in religion, Presbyterian. His widow removed in 1874 to Villisca, Iowa.

CHARLES ANDERSON GREENLEE was reared on a farm and attended public school. At the age of thirteen he removed with his mother to Villisca, Iowa, where he attended the high school for four years. At the age of nineteen he entered the employ of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad as brakeman. At the end of three years he resigned and traveled over a good part of the western states and territories for the purpose of gaining information about the railroad business. He was an enthusiast in his work and a faithful employee. For a time he located at Los Angeles, California, but, the climate not agreeing with him, he went to Denver, Colorado, where he secured a position as yard master with the Sante Fe Company. He was sent to Galveston, Texas for winter work, but spent the summers in Denver. While in Galveston he was superintendent of the trains which took on the merchandise from the ships unloading in the harbor. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Men, and of the Knights of Pythias.

JAMES EDWARD GREENLEE attended school and worked on the farm until he reached the age of nineteen. He spent one year with his uncle, James Greenlee, near Geneseo, Illinois, then returned home and entered the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad as brakeman. He was promoted to yard master and remained with the company for six years. After traveling over most of the United States he located at Price, Emery County, Utah, where he has been fairly successful.

son of David Greenlee and Mary (Purnell) Hall, was born September 23, 1840 or 1839 at Stanford, Lincoln Co., Kentucky; died January 25, 1901 at Warrensburg, Johnson Co., Missouri; married November 24, 1870 at Warrensburg, MARY CLARK DIVERS, born April 3, 1844 at Warrensburg, Missouri, daughter of Francis Divers of Virginia and Amelia Ann Bouldin of Kentucky.

CHILDREN:

- 292. I. Elmo Murray, born March 17, 1876 at Warrensburg, Missouri; unmarried (1901).
- 293. II. Frank Divers, born February 18, 1878; unmarried (1901).
- 294. III. Mary Amelia, born February 5, 1881; unmarried (1901).

JOHN WHITE GREENLEE lived in Lincoln County, Kentucky until about three or four years of age, when his mother—his father being dead—went west and settled in Platte County, Missouri. Some time afterward they located on a farm southeast of Warrensburg, being among the earliest settlers. He was educated at Elder George Johnson's Male School at Warrensburg. Before his education was completed the civil war broke out, and he enlisted April 15, 1861 in the Confederate service, joining Company F, Gordon's Regiment, Shelby's Brigade. He was engaged in most of the important battles and campaigns of Missouri, Arkansas, and other western states. He received two severe wounds from which he recovered. He was commissioned Lieutenant, and afterward Captain, in which capacity he acted for a long time. With his brave comrades he surrendered at Shreveport, Louisiana. On his return home he found nothing save his land, his house having been burned during the perilous strife. He replaced his home and lived there with his mother until her death. In 1887 he removed to the City of Warrensburg, and several years later in company with Mr. T. J. Caldwell, engaged in the lumber business. In 1898 he was forced to retire from business on account of ill health, and his son Francis conducted the business until the dissolution of partnership in 1900. For many years he was a faithful worker in the First Baptist Church of Warrensburg and for a long time had charge of a Bible class, being especially devoted to the Sunday school. In politics he was a Democrat. His children were all educated at the State Normal School at Warrensburg.

ELMO MURRAY GREENLEE graduated at the State Normal School at Warrensburg in July, 1893, and the following October he went to work on a ranch at Midland Texas, which was owned by his uncle, Francis Divers. He stayed there until 1897, then decided to go to Mexico. He invested some money in Sonora and is now dealing in mines. He is a mining engineer and lives at Tepehuaz, Sonora, Mexico.

301. VII. George Ephraim, born June 9, 1875. He was in the Kootenai mining district of British Columbia.

EPHRAIM McDOWELL GREENLEE resented the harsh treatment of his stepfather and ran away from home when a boy of only nine or ten years, and never returned. He worked on farms for small wages and the privilege of attending school in the winters. In the fall of 1856 he moved to Missouri, locating in the little village of Middleburg, Mercer County, where he conducted a country store. He removed from there to St. Joseph but subsequently returned to Middleburg. [This town is not in existence now—relegated to its original wilderness when the Rock Island road refused to come any nearer than four miles]. About 1860 he removed to Princeton in the same county, and kept a store there, removing later to Chillicothe, where he kept a store until his death.

He was a captain in the civil war in one of the Missouri companies of the Union army.

 306. IV. Emma Elizabeth Finley, born October 20, 1878.
 307. V. Thomas Finley, born May 18, 1881.

GEORGE J. FINLEY did not attend college because of business requirements, but finished his education at St. Thomas Hall, at Holly Springs, a school under the auspices of the Episcopal church. He was a soldier in the Confederate army during the Civil War, a member of the Second Kentucky Cavalry, and was with General Morgan on his raids. He was wounded in Kentucky and sent home on a furlough. He was captured at Holly Springs, but was paroled thereby escaping the horrors of prison. His company never surrendered until after they reached home in June, 1865. They separated from Mr. Davis at Washington, Georgia. He went south and was captured, while they went west. After they learned that Kirby Smith had surrendered they turned toward home and gave up the fight. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Mississippi in 1890, being sent without seeking the place, and received every vote cast in the county. He is a Democrat but has never taken an interest in politics; in religion, he is Presbyterian; resides at Holly Springs.

Lee; married second June 26, or 27, 1895 at Alvin, Texas, LILLIAN ANSLEY HOBBS, born October 6, 1874 at Matagorda, Texas, daughter of Judge Jesse Hobbs and Celia Ann Lee.

CHILDREN:

- 341. I. Iris, born July 3, 1896 at Alvin, Texas.
- 342. II. Lillian, born October 16, 1897 at Angleton, Texas.

ROBERT HARLAN GREENLEE, after the death of his mother, was apprenticed to the proprietor of a newspaper in Stephens County, Texas, for whom he worked about two years, then ran away from him on account of mistreatment. For about three years he wandered about, working at his trade in Parker County, Texas, cooking in a raftman's camp on Little River, Arkansas, and line-riding on a large cattle ranch in the Panhandle of Texas. While at the latter employment a wild horse fell on him inflicting as was supposed fatal injuries. He was removed to the settlement and his father summoned to see him die; but contrary to predictions he was convalescent when his father reached him, and returned with him to Stephens County. He remained at home, attending school and working at his trade, until 1885, after which he visited and worked in all the important cities of the East and West, as journeyman printer and member of the International Typographical Union. After two years' absence he returned home for a short visit, then left for New Orleans, where he spent the winter. The next summer he visited Virginia and West Virginia. After spending some time there with relatives and friends, he returned to Texas and finished the preliminary course of reading law, and was admitted to the bar in Coleman County, Texas, March 14, 1889. The following May he was elected State's Attorney for Coke County, Texas, and served in that capacity until the fall of 1890. After his marriage he returned to Coke County with his bride, but had scarcely taken up the thread of business before she contracted typhoid fever and died in a few weeks. Immediately after her death he sold all his property, and, after paying his father a short visit, left for Galveston, thence via Malory R. R. to Key West, from there to Havana, thence via schooner to Rio Janeiro, Brazil. En route off Cape St. Roque the schooner came near foundering in a terrific gale. He did not remain long in Rio Janeiro, and returning to the United States followed his trade, working on the Times-Union of Jacksonville, Florida until the spring of 1893, when he returned to Texas and settled down to the practice of law in Alvin. In 1898, his health failing, he removed to the mountains of Arkansas, where he prospered greatly and is a leading member of the bar in his section of the state.

NEWELL who was born January 17, 1844 at Attica, Fountain Co., Indiana, daughter of Davis Newell and Caroline Maria Phillips.

CHILDREN:

391. I. Henry Clay, born April 14, 1874 at St. Paul, Minnesota.
 392. II. Emily Louise, born September 12, 1879.

HENRY CLAY GREENLEE passed his first years at Defiance, Ohio, and from his eighth to fifteenth year, on a farm about five miles from Ayersville, Ohio, meanwhile attending school in the village. When fifteen he obtained his mother's consent to accompany her cousin to St. Paul, Minnesota, doing whatever he could find to do until he secured a position with a dealer in furs. He remained in this position until he was seventeen years of age, when he enlisted on July 28, 1862 in Company A, 6th Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, first to be sent to quell the Indian outbreak, and later sent with his regiment to the south to assist in quelling the rebellion. He saw much active service, and was mustered out at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, August 19, 1865. He was fond of study and carried books with him all his army life, improving every opportunity. After his discharge from the army he visited his mother and sister in Ohio, and attended school there for a time, then returned to St. Paul and engaged in the fur business. He was considered the best judge of fur in the city. He made many trips to the northern and western parts of the state to purchase fur, often with large sums of money on his person, and when beyond the pale of civilization would lie down at night with none but Indians for company, and without fear of molestation. Upon being asked if he were not afraid, he answered, "I feel safer with them than with white persons. The Indians would die for me." He learned to speak their language, which pleased them very much. When they came down to St. Paul in the spring to dispose of their winter's work in hunting and trapping, they would deposit their money with him, considering it safer than in a bank. He was a Republican; Baptist. His widow and daughter reside at St. Paul.

HENRY CLAY GREENLEE, JR., enlisted June 11, 1898 at St. Paul, as recruit in Company D, 13th Regiment Minnesota Volunteers, for service in the Spanish-American war. He was at Camp Merritt from June 20 until July 29, 1898, when he sailed on the steamer "St. Paul" from San Francisco, and arrived at Manila, Philippine Islands, August 31, 1898. He was a dental student at the time of his enlistment.

 Jane White Mary E. McDowell } daughter of Thomas Franklin Greenlee and Eliza Ann Pearce, was born March 16, 1843 at Bourneville, Ross Co., Ohio; married GEORGE PIERCE; married second July 31, 1879, THOMAS CLEMENS MEANS (his third wife), born September 15, 1835 at Plattsburg, Clinton Co., Missouri, died January 6, 1898 at Villisca, Iowa, son of Thomas Means and Elizabeth Livingston. He was a farmer; Democrat; Cumberland Presbyterian. No Children. Mr. Means had six children by former marriage.

MINERVA ELLEN GREENLEE attended public school. In her fifteenth year she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and soon became an active worker in the church. She was especially interested in the Sabbath school work, and for eight years was teacher of the boys Bible class, and Librarian and Secretary for a number of years. In September, 1867 she commenced teaching in the primary department of the public school at New Petersburg, Highland County, Ohio, and continued there four years. Afterward she taught in Highland County until the fall of 1875, when she went to the home of her uncle, James Greenlee, near Geneseo, Henry County, Illinois. After visiting with relatives in that vicinity until April, 1876, she went to Villisca, Iowa, where her mother and the other members of the family were located. She again taught school for three years, then was married to Thomas Clemens Means. He was one of the pioneers of Montgomery County, coming there with his mother in 1851. For many years he was an active member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, organized in that neighborhood, and holding its meetings at the Means schoolhouse. For thirty years he was a ruling elder of the church, and for many years Sabbath school superintendent. At various times he served as president and treasurer of the township school board, and always performed his official duties with fidelity. Mrs. Means united with her husband in his church work. She was secretary and a teacher in the Sunday school and, after her husband's death, became its superintendent, and also teacher of the old ladies Bible class. She has always been greatly interested in missions, and was for two years Presbyterian Secretary of the Women's Missionary organization of the "West Iowa Presbytery" of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. She has also served as Secretary and President of the Auxiliary Society of her church. She has brought up her sister Mary's child, Grace Greenlee Wilson, taking her when only seventeen months old, and is educating her for a teacher.

No. 246. FRANCIS PEARCE
GREENLEE.

No. 192. SAMUEL MITCHELL
GREENLEE.

MRS. MARY HAPPOLDT GREENLEE.

October 24, 1878 at Villisca, Montgomery Co., Iowa, CORA MANN, born June 26, 1858 at Niles, Michigan, daughter of Joseph Mann and Emily ——.

CHILDREN:

- 403. I. George F., born September 9, 1879.
- 404. II. Gertrude, born September 13, 1881; died August 20, 1883.
- 405. III. Harry L., born January 14, 1883.
- 406. IV. Marie, born January 18, 1884.

FRANCIS PEARCE GREENLEE was educated in the public schools and academy of Hillsboro, graduating from the latter in 1866. He taught school in Hillsboro for three years, then went to Indianapolis, where he read law with his uncle, Ephraim A. Greenlee, and was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1872. The same year he went to Villisca, Montgomery Co., Iowa, where he taught school for one year, and at the end of that time was admitted to the bar in that state and began the practice of law at Villisca. He represented Montgomery County in the twenty-first General Assembly, and was prominent in much of the legislation of that session. Being a member of the Judiciary Committee, he took a leading part in the reorganization and putting into successful operation the present judicial system of the state, and permanently locating the supreme court at the state capital. He was a member of several of the most important committees, being chairman of two. One of the most able and effective debaters upon the floor, he was recognized as one of the leaders of the House. He was not a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Greenlee was closely identified with the growth and development of the city of Villisca and that part of the country; and, being imbued with the public spirit commendable in all men, he took an active part in all public questions, and upheld those which to him appeared to be for the best interest of the whole people. He was three times elected mayor of Villisca. His last term expired in April, 1898, when he declined re-election, but was retained as solicitor by the city. Taking charge of the city with a depleted treasury, he so managed the finances that, without increasing taxation, he paid off the city bonds as they matured and the cost of all needed improvements and extensions, and retired at the close of his last official term with the endorsement and good will of the people, and a large cash balance in the treasury. In 1898 he removed to Red Oak to enter upon the discharge of his duties as County Attorney, to which office he had been elected that fall. By his careful and painstaking methods with all business entrusted to him, and strict fidelity to his clients, he has won the confidence and esteem of the people. He is an able lawyer and successful practitioner, filling the office of County Attorney with marked ability to the entire satisfaction of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Greenlee is a teacher in the Presbyterian Sunday school, and has been prominent in that work for years. He is a member of the orders of Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and Masons.

- 432. III. Charles D. Blakey, born December 4, 1897.

CHARLES BRADSHAW BLAKEY after several years of farming, attending school during the winter months, became disgusted with farm life. His father agreed to accompany him to Texas, since he was determined to try a new country. In 1875 they went to Denison, Texas, where for three years they raised cotton and made a good living, but saved little. He then determined to try something else, so engaged in cattle raising in Young County, Texas. In a few years he had gathered a large amount of experience, while some one else got the herd. He then began the life of a cowboy, which he followed pretty regularly in Texas and Indian Territory until the spring of 1887. In the fall of that year he located at Walsenburg, Colorado. After his wife's death he wandered back to Texas and again took up the life of a cow-boy, and during five years employment as such he accumulated quite a number of cattle, and kept his herd three years longer in Young County, then in order to secure better range for his stock he removed to King County, Texas, where he now owns a ranch of four thousand acres stocked with a good herd of improved cattle. In politics, he is a Democrat; in religion, Christian; resides at Benjamin, Knox County, Texas.

42. XII. L. Matilda, or Martha, born June 7, 1825; married John Burwell.+
43. XIII. George Washington, born October 23, 1827.

WILLIAM GREENLEE removed from Susquehanna County to Woodcock-boro, Pennsylvania, in 1796. He removed from Pennsylvania to Ohio about 1810 and located a farm of 160 acres on the south side of the Big Mohican River in Wayne (now Ashland) County. He exchanged his farm for the S. W. Quarter of Section 14, Range 15, Township 20, Wayne County, (now known as Lake Township, Ashland County), three miles further along the same river. He returned to Pennsylvania and arranged for moving his family to Ohio. October 22, 1811, he commenced his journey through the forest with one two-horse and one four-horse covered wagon, loaded with household goods, provisions, grain, and his family. He crossed the Ohio river and followed the trail through Canton, Massillon, and Wooster—then all mere villages. There were but few cabins along the trail and he was compelled to camp by the wayside nearly the entire distance. When he arrived at the village of Wooster he found no open path to the cabin of James L. Priest, who had been a neighbor in Crawford County, Pennsylvania and had located in 1809 near what is now known as Priests' Prairie, so he preceded his teams with an ax, cutting the undergrowth and preparing a wagou road. In this way his progress was slow and it took nearly a month to perform the journey. Arrived safely at his destination, his old neighbor and several Indians assisted him in putting up a cabin. As he was of mild and religious nature he fared well with the Indians, and he often said that he had never had anything stolen by them. As deer and wild geese were plentiful, they would often hunt together and were fast friends. For a long time there were but five families in this vicinity. The cabins were near the old Huron trail, and great numbers of Delawares passed on their way to and from the old Indian settlement on the Tuscarawas, during the fall of 1811 and the spring of 1812, but all kept quiet and friendly until after Hull's surrender at Detroit. This was followed by the removal of the Green and Jerometown Delawares, and the assassination of Ruffner, the Zimmers and James Capus by the hostile Indians from Sandusky. The pioneers in the Priest neighborhood converted Mr. Priest's double cabin into a block house and enclosed with pickets about one-fourth of an acre of ground around it. The settlers near Odells Lake joined those of the Priest settlement in the erection of the stockade and came there for safety. They remained in the fort but a short time, though the fort remained the headquarters of the little colony during the continuance of the war.

About the first stranger who came to the lone cabin was Johnny Appleaseed,* as he was called. He planted an orchard for Mr. Greenlee, some of the trees of which are still bearing. Mr. Greenlee cleared some land for farming, and later built a flour mill, which was the first one in that section of the country. Previously they had to go into Knox County—a distance of thirty miles—for their flour. A part of this old mill is still standing. In a short time his troubles began, and he lost his wife and several children, all being buried in the orchard. Some years later he sold his farm and mill and purchased the homestead which, at his decease, came into the possession of his son John.

ROBERT GREENLEE³ { William Greenlee² James Greenlee¹ }
 { Mary Thompson }

son of William Greenlee and Mary Thompson, was born May 30, 1773 at Penns Creek, near Swishers Run, Juniata Co., Pennsylvania; died March 8, or 18, 1857, or 1856 near Franklin, French Creek Township, Venango Co., Pennsylvania; married April 30, or 17, 1804 near Franklin, MARGARET PORTER, who was born in 1786 or 1787 in Venango Co., Pennsylvania, died March 30, 1840 at Franklin, daughter of Robert Porter and Rebecca Stewart.

CHILDREN:

44. I. William, born August 12, 1805; married Mary Jane Vogan.†

*Jonathan Chapman, or "Johnny Appleaseed" as he was called, was born in 1775 at Boston, Massachusetts. He was a very eccentric old man. He was first seen in that part of the country about 1806. He had two canoes lashed together and was taking a load of apple seed down the river. All along, up and down both the Ohio and Muskingum rivers and their wild tributaries he glided, stopping here and there to plant an orchard. Hundreds of orchards in that section were planted by this poor old man. He died in 1848 at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

45. II. Rebecca, born May 30, 1807; died, 1813.
 46. III. Mary, born 1809, or 1813; married David Irvin Nicholson.+

 49. VI. Jane, born March 7, 1819; married Andrew McGinnis.+
 50. VII. Stewart, born April 30, 1821; married Sarah Ann McGinnis; married second Susan E. (Wood) Williams.+
 51. VIII. Joseph, born July 14, 1823; married Harriet McNeal.+

ROBERT GREENLEE was seven years old when his father was killed by the Indians. His mother had died some time before. He lived with William Thompson nine years, then went to Stone Valley and lived nine years. He went to Franklin, Pennsylvania and settled in French Creek Township April 17, 1798. His farm joined that of his brother James, near Raymilton. He served in the war of 1812.

JOHN MEREDITH TAYLOR DUNN insisted on taking his father's place when the militia was called out in the war of 1812. He was a great reader, and interested in having good schools. Through him his district was the first in that part of the country to introduce the study of Philosophy and Physiology. He was also a strong temperance man, and drew up and circulated the first pledge in the county. He raised the first building that was raised anywhere in the vicinity without whiskey, but it took the second lot of men to start it. The building was raised the second day without accident or quarrel, while at the next two men fought and another man had his leg broken. After this the next one adopted Mr. Dunn's plan and had no trouble, so that ended whiskey for such occasions. He was a farmer; Republican; United Presbyterian; resided at McKean, Pennsylvania.

grandson of William Greenlee and Jane McClelland, was born October 22, 1852 at Franklin, Venango Co., Pennsylvania; married October 3, 1877 at Butler, Butler Co., Pennsylvania, CLARA MAY RUSSELL, born December 31, 1858 at Butler, daughter of John Ebenezer Russell and Maria McCallen.

CHILDREN:

- 257. I. Warren Russell, born March 5, 1883.
- 258. II. Paul Manwaring, born August 15, 1886.

CLINTON DEWITT GREENLEE was adopted by his grandparents. He was educated in the public schools and graduated from the high school. After his graduation he entered the employ of George C. Anderson, at Schamburg, Venango County, Pennsylvania, at that time one of the foremost oil operators in the state. In the service of Mr. Anderson he learned much about the oil operations, and in 1873 he became associated with others in operations in several of the most important oil districts of the state. He went to Butler County in 1883, and has since developed a business that gives him rank among the largest producers in the country. Success in most instances claimed him for its own; but this was no doubt largely due to his pluck, industry, perseverance, and excellent business qualifications. The firm of Greenlee and Forst, organized in 1891, of which he is senior member, have been large operators in this field, and still have a number of productive wells in the district known as Glad Run and Renfrew. They have also operations in Washington County, Pennsylvania, where a number of fine wells are now producing. Mr. Greenlee organized the United States Oil Company, composed principally of Boston capitalists, which has very large interests in Marion, Wood, and Wetzel counties, West Virginia, where they operate on a very large scale, having had as many as three hundred wells at one time in which they were interested. Mr. Greenlee is Vice-President and General Manager of this company. He is also a director of the Alliquippa Steel Works located at Alliquippa, Beaver County, Pennsylvania. He is also connected with the Trade Dollar Mining Company of Idaho, whose mines are considered among the best paying ones in the state; and with the Pure Oil Company of Oil City, Pennsylvania. Mr. Greenlee has offices in Pittsburg; but he is devoted to his family and all his spare time is spent at his beautiful home, located on one of the finest residence streets of Butler.

MRS. GREENLEE is one of the most active workers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is also active and influential in the cause of temperance, and in all other causes having for their object the betterment of the world.

PETER PATTERSON GREENLEE and his brother James went from Pennsylvania to Iowa in the fall of 1855 and entered government land in Tama County. Mary Jane Guiler went to Iowa the following year, and after their marriage they went to their little cabin home on the prairie where Traer now stands. They cheerfully bore the trials and hardships of a frontier life together until 1863, when in answer to his country's call, he enlisted in the Ninth Iowa Cavalry. The day after his eldest child, Margaret, was buried, he bade goodby to his wife and remaining children, and went with his company to guard the railroad running into Little Rock, Arkansas. In September, 1864, he was given a furlough and went home, where he died six weeks later. He was a Republican; Presbyterian; resided at Toledo, Iowa.

MARY EMMELINE GREENLEE graduated with high honors in the classical course at Western College, Toledo, in 1888. She was gifted as a speaker and writer. Her graduating oration was said to have surpassed anything that had ever been delivered in the history of the college; but the hopes of her friends were never realized, she having died the year following her graduation.

ROBERT GREENLEE obtained his early education at the little country school located near Woodcock, Pennsylvania. His father operated a saw mill and shipped the lumber down French Creek to Franklin, thence into the Allegheny river to Pittsburg, and Robert's early life was spent as a creek and river pilot for his father. In 1855 he determined to try his fortune in the west and lived in southern Illinois for six months, then located at Bloomington, where he commenced the building and contracting business in which he continued until his death. The first sixteen years he was in partnership with Mr. H. A. Miner, but after that carried on the business alone. He had little to start with, having but one hundred dollars and a few articles which his wife brought from her home to commence housekeeping, but with energy and good business qualities, he soon became prosperous and one of the leading contractors and builders in the city. Some of the finest residences and public buildings were erected by him, among them the Court House and McKean County Jail. In 1887 he went to California, being attracted by the building boom there at that time, and remained eighteen months. His last contract, on which he was engaged at the time of his death, was the building of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Shirley, Illinois. He was a plain man, but one of those kindly and pleasant persons whom everybody liked. In politics, he was a Republican; in religion, Presbyterian.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON GREENLEE attended the high school of Rutledge until the breaking out of the civil war, when all schools were suspended. The Rebellion authorities were forcing Union men to enlist in the Rebel army, and he made an attempt to cross the mountains and join the Federal army, but was captured and held as a prisoner at Madison, Georgia. He was released and returned home, but had to leave or join the Rebellion, so he made another attempt to cross the mountains and succeeded in reaching London, Kentucky, where he enlisted in the Federal army in Company G, second Tennessee Cavalry, Army of the Cumberland, and served for nearly three years. On July 6, 1865 he was mustered out at Nashville, Tennessee, after having been engaged in many battles, and receiving a wound in the battle of Stone River, Tennessee. He returned to his old home and continued to reside there for some years after his marriage, then purchased a farm near Tampico, and has since been engaged in farming and carpenter work. In politics, he is a Republican; in religion, Baptist.

JAMES DOUGAN GREENLEE served in the United States army for five years, holding office of first sergeant.

daughter of James Lacy Greenlee and Susan Hammer, was born January 23, 1870 at Mossy Creek, Jefferson Co., Tennessee; married September 3, 1895 at Knoxville, Tennessee, JAMES ELIPHAZ WATSON, born January 29, 1865 at Birmingham, Alabama, son of Rev. James L. Watson and Sarah Jane Hilton.

CHILDREN:

262. I. Clarence Pickard Watson, born January 4, 1897.
 263. II. Olive May Watson, born February 8, 1898.

CORA EMMA HESTER GREENLEE moved her family to Grainger County, Tennessee to a farm inherited by her mother. After staying there five years she returned to Mossy Creek to attend Carson and Newman College, where she spent seven years, in the meantime taking a vacation one fall to teach a music class in Hancock County. In 1890 her family removed to Knoxville. She greatly desired to return to Carson and Newman College for her senior year, as her grandfather Greenlee was one of the founders of that institution, and her immediate family had all been educated there, but she was offered inducements which led her to decide in favor of Holbrook College, Fountain City, Tennessee, of which her cousin, Dr. W. M. Greenlee was vice-president. In April, 1894 she took a diploma in stenography, and on August 4, 1895 received the degree of B. S. from Holbrook College. She was a tutor while at this college. Her work as a pupil was always satisfactory, and she enjoyed the high regard of her instructors. After her marriage, she and her husband went to St. Louis, Missouri, where they spent the winter. During her stay there she was superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday school of the Grand Avenue Baptist Church, and also served the church as organist. In March, 1896, Mr. Watson accepted a call to the pastorate of the church in Bourbon, Missouri, where they spent about two years doing missionary work among the Ozark Mountains. In September, 1898, an opportunity to attend the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Kentucky presenting itself, he resigned the care of the church and in October entered the seminary. In September, 1899 he was sent to Corbin, Kentucky by the Home and State Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Church. In her girlhood Mrs. Watson was determined to go as a foreign missionary, but her husband's poor health forced her to abandon her cherished desire.

No. 8. CAPTAIN ROBERT
GREENLEE.

CAPTAIN ROBERT GREENLEE was one of the pioneers among river men. He commenced as a keelboatman, and then became a skillful pilot, in which capacity he served between Allegheny City, Pennsylvania and St. Louis and New Orleans, and was also thoroughly acquainted with the devious ways of the Red and Yazoo rivers. He subsequently became Master, and during his long and active career had command of many steamers, among them the "Union," "Messenger" and "South America." He was an accomplished officer, and held in high esteem by all who knew him, for his genial disposition and honorable, upright dealing. On the day of his funeral, all the passenger steamers and tow boats at the wharf, including the "Messenger"—the last boat he commanded—had their flags at half-mast as a mark of respect to his memory.

LEWIS S. GREENLEE was captain of the steamboat "Homer," running from New Orleans up Bayou Macon. He was a whole-souled gentleman, kind and true in all his relations of life.

Graydon Henderson.+
45. III. Jane Eliza Shane, born October 17, 1848; married Walter Allen Daniels.+
46. IV. Matilda Anna Shane, born May 8, 1851; died in infancy.

NANCY GREENLEE SHANE was left a widow with three daughters to care for. Her brothers were well to do and tried to persuade her to divide up the family and live with them, but this she refused to do. She also refused to have them help her, telling them that if she needed assistance she would ask for it; but she was able to bring up her children and keep them neatly and comfortably clothed without assistance. She was proud, quick witted and very self reliant. When she attempted anything she would allow nothing to interfere with its accomplishment. In 1898 she left Allegheny City, Pennsylvania and went to St. Cloud, Minnesota, where she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Campbell, until her death.

GRAVESTONE OF (No. 11) THOMAS GREENLEE.

No. 51. RESIDENCE OF CAPTAIN HENRY LARGE.

THOMAS WALLACE GREENLEE was reared in Allegheny Co., Pennsylvania, and attended the common schools and an academy in that county. He went on the river when quite young and has followed it most of his business life. He was well and favorably known along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers as one of the oldest and most trusted and honored captains and skillful pilots. He followed steamboating up to about five years before his death, the infirmities of old age compelling him to give it up and pass his declining years in the retirement of his home. During the last twenty-five years of his steamboating life he was in the employ of Gray's Iron Line, and possessed the confidence and highest esteem of the firm. Possessed of a kind and genial nature, he made many friends, and visitors to his home in his declining years would leave impressed with having been greeted and honored by that olden time courtesy and hospitality so seldom met with in these modern times. He was a Republican; Presbyterian; removed in 1851 to Vanport, Pennsylvania where he owned a splendid residence property.

SUSANNA (ONSTOTT) GREENLEE after the death of her husband, made her home with her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Ross, and her granddaughter, Mrs. W. J. East. She was a devout Christian, a consistent member of the Presbyterian church at Vanport since its erection, having at that time withdrawn her card of membership from the church at Bridgewater. Her whole life was a beacon light guiding those about her to a higher and better life. The love and esteem in which she was held was attested by the large gathering of neighbors, friends and relatives who came from far and near. The services were in charge of Rev. T. P. Potts, of the Vanport Presbyterian church, pastor of the deceased, and were in keeping with her life and character. Assisting him were Rev. B. F. Doyle, D. D., of Salem, and Rev. John F. Dravo of Beaver. The interment took place in Beaver cemetery. The pallbearers were the grandsons of the deceased: Alvin L. Large and Charles Large, of Allegheny, W. H. Stevenson, of Pittsburg, Albert McMullen, of Allegheny, Stewart Fowler and W. J. East of Vanport.

ROBERT WALLACE GREENLEE and William Merchant Greenlee were employed by Grays Iron Line three years and were together with his father on the same steamer, Robert had a cousin Charles who was a popular clerk at one time on the boats running from Pittsburg to St. Louis.

 135. IX. Henry Wakefield, born November 13, 1883; died May, 1884.

JOHN CARROL MORRIS GREENLEE moved with his mother and stepfather from West Virginia to Missouri. His mother died when he was fourteen years old and his stepfather married again. John and his half brother were trying to plow one day, but they were so small that they could not make a success of it. His stepfather came out to show them how and they proceeded as directed, but yet did not make a success. Mr. Everett's wife came out and protested, whereupon John told her that Mr. Everett was not his father, nor was she his mother, and he went to his mother's brother Michael and remained with him. On one occasion while there he was told to carry some weeds to a certain place, but this was too slow to suit him, so he set them afire and burned up a lot of corn, wheat and rails. On another occasion his uncle left him and a cousin to cultivate a certain amount of corn, and told them if it was not finished when he got home he would punish them severely. He was not very long away when some other boys came along going fishing and wanted them to go too. The work was not finished, but John said, "A scolding don't hurt and a whipping don't last long." They both received the promised whipping. He lived there until his uncle's death, after which he went to work for the Western Stage Company, his first work being to lead stock over the road, and afterward he drove a team. He continued at this until the company sold all their good horses to the Overland Stage Company. He then drove a bus for a while, and in 1870 commenced farming, which he followed in Dallas and Harrison counties, Iowa. In politics he was Republican; in religion, Christian; resided at Osceola, Iowa.

FRANK CARROL GREENLEE has always farmed for a living. In 1895 he removed from Portsmouth, Iowa to Kingfisher, Oklahoma, but was not successful there and soon went to Colorado, where he has since been acting as foreman on a ranch near Lafayette.

JOSEPH BRUCE GREENLEE enlisted in Company C, 2nd Battalion, 51st Iowa Volunteers, on May 4, 1898 at Harlan, Iowa. From there he was taken to Des Moines and remained there until June 5, 1898, having been sworn into the United States service a few days before, and went with his regiment to the Phillipine Islands.

UNIDENTIFIED.

The following families have not been connected with any of the foregoing branches. They have been arranged under four divisions, viz.: SCOTCH FAMILIES, IRISH FAMILIES, ENGLISH FAMILIES and UNCLASSIFIED. Each division is arranged in alphabetical order according to the name of the earliest known ancestor of each family. Only those marked + have been given individual numbers, and further data on those families will be found under their respective numbers.

SCOTCH FAMILIES.

According to the register from the "Book of Kintyre and Kintyre Club," some of the settlers from the lowlands from 1660 to 1688 bore the name of Greenlees.

It is thought by some that they came from Lochwinnoch or vicinity. The family is thought to have been located in the parish of Lochwinnoch at least from the sixteenth century, first as farmers, and then engaging in the manufacturing trade, weaving, etc. They have no Celtic blood, but are pure lowland Scotch.

PETER GREENLEE left Scotland for America in 1842, sailing on the Gleaner from Campbeltown, the first ocean vessel which ever left that port. They weighed anchor on the 4th of June and reached New York on the 4th of July. They went directly to Illinois by the most expeditious route then known, via river, canal and lakes to Chicago, thence with team to Winnebago County. In those early days they were compelled to haul their grain to Chicago, a distance of ninety miles, there selling or exchanging it for necessary provisions, clothing, lumber, etc. Although like all early settlers of the Scotch settlement, he was very poor, by hard work and economical methods he became the owner of three large farms, which are now owned by his sons. He helped organize and build the first school house in that part of the country, and was also interested in the founding of the Willow Creek Presbyterian Church.

SAMUEL GREENLEES was a man of great energy and force of character, and the following record of his busy life shows how much a man possessing such characteristics can attain in a lifetime, even in a small community. He was born at the farm of Greeland and was the oldest but one of a family of eleven children. He received his early education at Peniver School, and afterward attended the Campbeltown Grammar School, then under the able rectorship of the late Mr. Brunton, LL. D. When his school days were over he commenced business in the town, and entered into partnership with Messrs. Matthew and Daniel Greenlees, distillers, in Longrow, the site of the works being now occupied by the offices of Mr. James Weir, builder, and the present machine room of the "Argyllshire Herald" in Reform Square which was then used as a malt barn by the firm. Increasing business, however, in the course of a few years necessitated extended premises, and a site was taken at the head of Longrow whereon a new work was erected in 1845, capable of producing double the quantity of the old one. This work has been gradually extended until it has become the largest distillery in the town, known as the Hazelburn Distillery. In 1840 Mr. Greenlees married the sister of his partner, Daniel Greenlees. His two sons are partners in the well known and successful firm of Greenlees Brothers, Glasgow and Loudon. In 1853 Mr. Greenlees in conjunction with his partner became proprietor of the farm of Moy, a connection which continued until 1881, when Daniel Greenlees retired from business and the partnership was dissolved. Samuel Greenlees then purchased the whole, both the estate and the distillery and carried them on almost to the day of his death. He always took a great interest in agricultural work, influenced no doubt, by the power of early associations, his father being a farmer; and since his purchase of the estate in 1881 he carried on extensive improvements in the way of draining, watering, fencing, etc., so that the Moy is now in the best possible condition. He also turned his attention to the raising of cattle, and the stock of bullocks and sheep fed on the Moy were eagerly picked up by good buyers, and the best prices readily obtained.

Regarding Mr. Greenlees' more public career first and foremost must be mentioned the active interest he took in the volunteer movement and his special interest in the Artillery Volunteer Corps since its formation. He was among the first gentlemen in the town to encourage the movement and was present at the first meeting called by the Town Council on October 31, 1860, for the purpose of promoting the formation of an artillery company in the town. At this meeting he was appointed convener of the committee elected to proceed with the organization of the corps. From this point Mr. Greenlees threw his whole energy into the matter, and it was chiefly owing to his enthusiasm and his power to infuse something of his spirit into others that the Artillery Corps was established with great success. He undertook the greater part of the work connected with getting up subscriptions; and in the difficulties that at one time seemed to threaten and almost extinguish the infant corps, in obtaining a site for a battery, Mr. Greenlees' indomitable zeal and energy maintained the flagging spirits of his co-promoters, until at the darkest hour Dr. Russell generously came forward and offered part of his ground for drill and battery. In all the ensuing years Mr. Greenlees' interest in the corps has never abated; and the corps in return has never been slow to acknowledge their debt of gratitude to him. On the official organization of the corps in 1861, he was recommended as Captain to the Lord Lieutenant of the country, receiving his commission in February of that year, a position which he held until his retirement in 1870; and when the guns were got into position at the battery at Kilkerran his prominent share in their establishment was recognized by his daughter Catherine firing off the first cannon. In 1863 when the corps was successfully established, his services were publicly acknowledged by a complimentary supper in the Town Hall, given by the members of the corps. The late Provost Beith was chairman on the occasion, and a short extract from his speech which was published in the "Argyllshire Herald" is here given: he "only needed to mention the name of Captain Greenlees to call forth the applause of the gentlemen present, and in doing so he would congratulate the members of the corps on the judicious selection they had made of a commanding officer. The Company need not be reminded how entirely their Captain had devoted himself to the interests of the corps—of the indefatigable efforts to procure a site for a battery, and the personal labour which he bestowed during its erection. He might go further and remind them that he did not grudge incurring personal expense and lessening the same to the public by means of his workmen, and the gratuitous assistance which by his influence he was able to procure. The volunteers were well aware that in all their operations Captain Greenlees took the lead. He well merited the approbation to which their meeting that evening gave expression, and it would not be otherwise than gratifying to him to witness the sense entertained by the corps of his valuable services, in which he, the chairman, entirely concurred." A few years after this Mr. Greenlees got up a bazaar to raise funds which were necessary for the corps, a rather daring undertaking in those days for bazaars were then in their infancy, and Campbelltonians were not so enterprising in matters such as these at that time as they are now. The bazaar, however, having Captain Greenlees at its head was a success. A number of years later the present hall in Argyll Street was built for drill, and it is needless to state all that Captain Greenlees did for this enterprise also; suffice it to say that he entered into this project with his usual heartiness and did all in his power for its promotion, both by his means and influence. On his retiring from the corps in 1870 he was presented by the officers and men with a magnificent sword, Mrs. Greenlees at the same time being presented with a handsome epergne. The sword bears the following inscription: "Presented to Captain Greenlees by the members of the 6th Argyll Artillery Volunteers as a token of respect, and to express their appreciation of his services in connection with the corps since its formation, A. D. 1870." The Captain was very proud of this sword. The attachment which the corps maintained toward their Captain was evinced when the 4th and 5th batteries met in the drill hall for parade, in terms of order issued. There was a full muster under Lieutenant M'Pherson, the officer in command. As the officers of the corps considered it due to the memory of the late Captain Greenlees to dismiss without going through the intended parade, Lieutenant M'Pherson called upon the Rev. Dr. Russell, chaplain of the corps, to make this intimation. Dr. Russell said "Comrades: we meet this evening under the shadow of a great bereavement. You, I am sure, accept as seemly and suitable the decision of your officers not to proceed further with your intended parade tonight. To Captain Greenlees, who was called to his rest yesterday, and whose loss we deplore, this corps has been under the deepest obligations. Some of you only know from the report of others what he did for it at its formation: all of you know the deep interest which to the last he continued to take in its welfare and efficiency. It is no exaggeration to affirm that it was he who, a quarter of a century ago, founded and consolidated the corps; and those of you who were members then know the enthusiasm with which he embraced the volunteer movement, and the zeal and energy he threw into the work of the corps. From his very nature he could not have done otherwise, for he did nothing feebly or by halves. The officers who had done most for the corps will acknowledge that to his energy and public spirit the high state of efficiency to which it was so early brought, and which it has so uniformly maintained, is greatly due. I know I rightly interpret your feelings when I say that we sincerely mourn the loss of our old and honored Captain; and that we are moved with heart-felt sympathy and condolence with Mrs. Greenlees and family in their deep sorrow; and that we hope and pray that they may be sustained and comforted in their heavy bereavement."

As a town councillor, in which capacity he served altogether for a term of nineteen years, Mr. Greenlees took great interest in municipal affairs. He was first elected on November 4, 1858 and served his term of three years. On the death of Mr. John Colvill, he was elected to the Council Board ad interim, October 17, 1863, and on the election coming round in November, 1864, was re-elected. He remained a member of the council until November, 1879, but had given up attending the meetings some time previous, the last occasion on which he was present being May 22, 1878. As a director, and several times chairman, of the Campbeltown and Glasgow Steam Packet Company, he was greatly interested in the progress of that company, and did all in his power to promote its fortunes. He was also a member of the Parochial Board, and in 1862, took an active part in the change from means and substance to rental. The Building Company of the Town was another institution in which he was much interested becoming a large shareholder, and trying to bring it to success in many ways. He was a member of the Kintyre Club since 1860, and was appointed corresponding director in 1877, which year was a flourishing one for the club, the number of new members secured in that year having far surpassed any previous one. He was also Justice of the Peace.

Mr. Greenlees was connected with the United Presbyterian Church, and took a great interest in all its affairs, subscribing liberally to its schemes and the support of the congregation. He was appointed manager in 1846, continuing in that office until 1883, and was preses of the congregation from 1863 to 1865. When the present beautiful edifice was built for the Longrow congregation he took such an interest in the matter as only one of his energetic temperament could; and to him, along with a few other gentlemen—notably Mr. James Stewart, Craigbank—is due the chief credit of having the handsome structure reared and clear of debt on the opening Sabbath, by their handsome contributions, their exertions to secure subscriptions, and the influence of their example on others.

In politics Mr. Greenlees was always a robust Liberal. He did not, however, agree with the policy of Mr. Gladstone's present Irish Bill, and his last public action was to attach his signature to a petition of the Liberals in the Burgh against the Bill, to be forwarded to Mr. R. F. F. Campbell, M. P.

Mr. Greenlees was a man of remarkable force of character. He threw his whole heart and soul into whatever he undertook, and pursued his aim with indefatigable energy and perseverance, generally to ultimate triumph. These traits of character doubtless did much to secure the success which crowned his business undertakings. As a man of business, he was very prompt and decided. He quickly formed a decision and abided by the result, and no persuasion could turn him aside, the result generally proving him in the right. He was reliable and honourable to the last degree. No one who trusted his word or expressed promise had cause to doubt that these would not be fulfilled to the utmost. In manner he was outspoken and fearless, quick to point out a wrong and when occasion required to upbraid the wrong-doer, but never, when the occasion had passed, continued to bear a grudge.

During the latter part of 1876 an illness of severe character manifested itself, which he endured with great patience. He recovered and was in comparatively good health until six months before his death. His energetic nature, however, could not be conquered and he continued to go about until four days before he died. He was buried in Kilkerran Cemetery, a large number of townspeople gathering to pay the last tribute of respect to him whose familiar form has passed from their sight. The officers and men of the Artillery Volunteers, and the staff of the 6th Brigade, Scottish Division, R. A., also attended. During the day the ships at the quay carried their flags at half-mast, and every token of respect was paid to the memory of one who had lived a long and useful life.

JOHN GREENLEE left Scotland in a sailing vessel in 1836, reaching New York after four weeks on the ocean, and, going directly to Illinois, settled first in Ottawa, where his nephews, George and John Armour, were then living. After remaining there a short time he went to Winnebago County and made claim to government land in what is now Harlem Township, becoming the first permanent settler in the locality known as the Scotch Settlement of Winnebago and Boone counties. He experienced all the privations and hardships of pioneer life, such as come to those who locate on the frontier. He was very poor when he first settled there, but industry and good management were crowned with success, and he became the owner of three highly improved farms. He lived upon his first claim until 1870, when he removed to Belvidere and spent the remainder of his life in retirement. He was one of the founders of the Willow Creek Presbyterian Church and served as ruling elder for many years. In politics he was a Democrat.

On September 17, 1861 he enlisted in the Washburne Lead Mine Regiment, known as the 45th Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and was discharged from the service July 12, 1865. At Raymond, Mississippi he was slightly wounded in the calf of the right leg, while at the same time he received a severe wound in his left foot. In 1872 he went to Floyd County, Iowa, where he engaged in farming until 1893. He was a Republican in politics. On January 22, 1897 he was appointed sheriff by the Board of Supervisors to fill a vacancy; and was elected to the same office for the short term, November, 1897, and again elected for second full term in November, 1899. Of his grandparents, Mr. Parker says: They were a grand, noble couple, and all that I am today I feel that I owe to them. They watched over me with as much care as if I had been their own child, and when I was wounded and a prisoner neither time nor money was spared to reach and care for me. Mr. Parker is a Presbyterian; resides at Charles City, Iowa.

ROBERT GREENLEES { Hugh Greenlees Robert Greenlees
 { Philipps Sarah Templeton }

son of Hugh Greenlees and Miss Philipps, was born May 17, 1825; died January, 1879 at Campbeltown, Argyleshire, Scotland; married ——— ———.

CHILDREN:

- I. Daughter; married David Colville, Jr.
- II. Daughter; married Henry Beeks.
- III. Daughter; unmarried.

ROBERT GREENLEES received his education in the Campbeltown Grammar School, and in early life was apprenticed with David Colville, writer, as clerk. He afterward joined his father in business as a distiller, having been taken into the firm of Colville, Greenlees & Company, Argyll Distillery. His father soon retired and the business was carried on by the junior partners, and eventually by Robert Greenlees. He retired in 1887 when the distillery was sold to the neighboring firm of Greenlees & Colvill. Mr. Greenlees took an active part in the work of the Longrow United Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member. He was preses of the congregation for a number of years, and was Church Treasurer for over twenty years. His sympathies were not confined to church organizations, however, but extended to all charitable institutions in the town, and his charities, although numerous, were unostentatious. He also took an active interest in public affairs. He occupied a seat on the old Parochial Board for a number of years and was vice-chairman of the House Committee, but did not seek re-election to the Parish Council when the new administration took the place of the Parochial Board in 1895. He was director of the Campbeltown and District Savings Bank, and a director of the Campbeltown and Glasgow Steam Packet Company. He was a man of the most gentle and unassuming character—a man of good deeds rather than loud profession, whose quiet, consistent Christian life was an example to many and gained for him the love of all who knew him, or even slightly came in contact with him.

- VI. Agnes, born November 28, 1836; died May 15, 1875.
- VII. William, born April 4, 1839; died August 25, 1853.

JOHN GREENLEES was ordained in 1825 as an Elder in the congregation in which he had been brought up, and for forty-seven years filled that office acceptably. In 1830 he formed a fixed resolution neither to use ardent spirits nor to entice others to use them. He was an earnest temperance reformer, and started a temperance roll, but was much discouraged by one after another falling away from it. At the same time, men under the influence of liquor tried to hide from him. He formed a temperance roll for his own family, and father, mother and children all signed it. He taught diligently in the Presbyterian Sabbath school for nearly fifty-six years, and visited the district assigned to him as elder, conducting weekly prayer meetings in his district for thirty-six years. Though busied in an agricultural life, he found time for reading and studying theology and kindred subjects. As a token of respect for his memory, a large concourse of ministers and laity of all Christian denominations in the neighborhood accompanied his remains to the grave. In politics he was Radical. He resided at Glynn, County Antrim, Ireland.

ROBERT HUGH SEMPLE, M. A., grandson of John Greenlees, had a very brilliant career both at school and at college, carrying off a great many prizes, scholarships and University honors. He is a distinguished graduate of Queen's College and also of Cambridge University. On August 3, 1891 he was ordained as a minister of the Downpatrick congregation, and in 1895 he was transferred to Limerick. He is an able preacher and much beloved by his people.

JOHN GREENLEES { John Greenlees Robert Greenlees }
 { Agnes Semple Ellen Ralston }

son of John Greenlees and Agnes Semple, was born May 3, 1830 near Larne, County Antrim, Ireland; married November 2, 1859 at Ballycarry, County Antrim, Ireland, JANE STEWART, born October 29, 1829 at Larne, daughter of Thomas Stewart and Mary Service. No children.

JOHN GREENLEES was dedicated by his parents to the ministry of the Gospel, should God in his gracious providence open up the way. He entered Queen's College, in Belfast, in 1850 and was a distinguished student, gaining a junior scholarship each year of his undergraduate course, and a senior scholarship in his fourth year. He took the B. A. degree in Queen's University in 1853, and his M. A. degree in 1854. He also took scholarships in his theological course. In May, 1856 he was licensed to preach, and labored for a short time in Connaught, then was called to the Scot's Church, Ramelton, where he was ordained December 7, 1857. He resigned this charge in 1866, having accepted a call to Belfast, where he was installed over a new congregation in Academy Street, February 28, 1866. This congregation was transferred to a new building called Ekenhead Church in 1867, where he still continues to minister with acceptance to the people.

DANIEL GREENLEES was a partner in the firm of Greenlees & Colville, Hazelburn Distillery, along with Samuel Greenlees, his brother-in-law, with whom also he jointly held the estate of Moy, but left the business in 1881, and since that time lived a life of well-earned leisure. Early taking an interest in the welfare of his fellow citizens, he took a prominent part in the Reform Bill agitation of 1832, and a year later was elected a member of the Town Council, which honorable duties he faithfully discharged, with an intermission of one year (1841-2) till 1860. During this period of 27 years he served as Bailie from 1836-1841, and from 1848-1854. A useful member of the Council, he was contented with his wellknown title of Bailie Greenlees, notwithstanding that the Provostship was frequently pressed upon him—an office which he lived to see filled by his son, Charles, for many years. During his servitude in the Council he had the superintendence of the repairs of the South Side of the Old Quay, and the town property in Bolgam Street was secured under his administration. He was also one of the promoters of the Gas Company, and was early connected with the Steamboat Company of which he was a director. Mr. Greenlees was initiated a member of St. John's Lodge of Freemasons on the 18th of May, 1819, and was thus the oldest living Freemason in Scotland, his connection with the craft extending over a period of 73 years. An earnest churchman, he was a member of the Longrow United Presbyterian Church, and was ordained to the eldership in 1832, and gave with a warm heart and liberal hand to all its schemes. He was convener of the Law Committee of the Church during the great Smith case (well-known in church history), which was carried to the Court of Session and won by the congregation. Rev. Mr.

Smith, minister at that time, attempted to carry the congregation with all the church property, out of the denomination and into the Established Church. The isolated position of the town, far from the seat of Presbytery in Glasgow, the system of proprietors by which the church was held, and the fact that the constitution of the Relief Denomination and the rules of procedure had not been very carefully formulated, helped to facilitate the step Mr. Smith was taking. For a time the congregation was deprived of the use of the church, the first Sabbath on which they were shut out being a cold, snowy day in the month of December, when the congregation worshipped in the Kirk Close, as near the church as they could get, the minister, Rev. Mr. Harvey, of Glasgow, standing in a door of a grain loft, preaching the Gospel to the women and children accommodated within the loft and to the men without crowding the close. It was clear that there was to be a law case that would be decided by the Court of Session, if not the House of Lords. Much, it was felt, would depend upon an active, energetic and wise law committee, and such a committee was appointed, Mr. Greenlees being unanimously appointed convener. His work on that committee abundantly justified the confidence the congregation exercised in him; and when after years of litigation, the congregation had its property restored to it by the decision of the Court of Session, there were two men to whom it was felt by all that very special thanks were due—one was the Rev. Dr. Struthers of Glasgow, who was unwearied in hunting up documents, minutes, and precedents for the instruction of the law agents in conducting the case, and the other was Mr. Greenlees, who as convener of the law committee, did whatever could be done to help the right to prevail, and to cheer the congregation when prospects were darkest. Regaining possession of the church, the congregation pursued its work with new ardor and in every departure of congregational usefulness Mr. Greenlees took a warm and deep interest, thoroughly sympathising and co-operating with the minister in all his efforts to promote the spiritual progress. He was one of the elders who gave the late revered Dr. Boyd his call to Campbeltown. As long as he was able to attend church he did so with perfect regularity, when unable to hear in his ordinary seat coming as near the pulpit as possible. Though so far advanced in life he never allowed himself to live in the past or to get out of touch with the present. He continued to read to the end of his days. The range of his reading narrowed as the years advanced and the eyes became dim, and was confined to three lines—his daily newspaper, by which he kept himself acquainted with politics, not of his own country only, but of other countries as well, especially France; his second line of reading was a massive volume of devotional divinity; and his third line of reading was his bible. As his infirmities increased his newspaper had to be given up; after a time his volume of divinity had to be given up; but his daily bible portion he continued to read to the last. Touching it was to see the brass fingermark pointing out the chapter and verse he had reached in his regular reading, and to notice the progress he had made through the bible. In his earlier years he was connected with the fishing industry, and always took a keen interest in the fishermen of the town. This interest he continued to the last and nothing pleased him better than to watch them from his windows getting their skiffs in order and going out to their nightly toil. He and his wife celebrated their golden and diamond weddings.

JOHN GREENLEES came to America, landing at Charleston, South Carolina. He worked at his trade—machinist and painter—until he had saved enough to bring his family to America. In 1820 he bought land near Boligee, Green County, Alabama, to which he removed. After remaining there for ten years he moved into the adjoining county of Sumter which was then a wilderness. In 1837 he sold his place to advantage and removed to Paynesville, in Sumter County, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a magistrate until the time of his death; and was an elder in the Presbyterian church for years; in politics he was a true Democrat.

FRANCIS MARION GREENLEE resided near Greeneville, Tennessee until 1855, when he decided to move to Iowa, where some of his wife's people had already gone. After a drive of five weeks in their wagon, on November 12, 1855 they drew up before the home of Hyreanus Guinn, Mrs. Greenlee's brother, on the Iowa River bottom, just east of where Belle Plaine now stands. Here they remained until spring, when they moved into a cabin just across the road from Mr. Guinn's. In 1857, having become possessor of a prairie farm, they moved to Guinnville, a town established by John Guinn, another brother of Mrs. Greenlee, and which exists today as an addition to Belle Plaine. It was then a mere cluster of four log cabins. There was no railroad there, and the nearest points for market were Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, where they hauled all their grain in wagons. After the Rock Island Railroad was constructed through Marengo, it seemed only a short distance to market. In 1861 the Northwestern began grading its road, etc., and Mr. Greenlee helped grade the track from the trestle bridge to Salt Creek. In those days game was very plentiful, deer and wild turkeys in abundance. Indians were numerous and not inclined to be very friendly, but the settlers were never molested. In 1893 Mr. Greenlee moved to Belle Plaine, where, in 1898, he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding. He was a Presbyterian; in politics, Democrat.

THOMAS GREENLY removed from Connecticut to Hamilton, New York in 1786. In the wilderness he made a home to which he brought his wife and child in 1797. Among the pioneers he established an honorable reputation as a man, and in his practice gained a wide influence and secured enviable success. He was elected to the legislature in 1818 and in 1819, and was four years in the New York senate, being elected in 1822 from the Fifth Senatorial District. While in the senate he was one of the "immortal seventeen" who abstained from voting that a certain measure in reference to a change in the constitution, concerning presidential electors, might not be passed at that critical period, pending the election in which Andrew Jackson and John Quincy Adams were running for the presidency. Dr. Greenlee was for some years Brigade Inspector of the 35th Brigade of New York Militia. In all positions he was characterized by integrity, and honored every station he was called to fill. He is remembered by Hamiltonians for his characteristic independence and his original speeches. In religion he was an Episcopalian.

THOMAS HUNT GREENLY, son of Thomas Greenly and Mary Hunt, was born July 25, 1796 at Glastonbury, Hartford Co., Connecticut; died March 11, 1883 at Grand Rapids, Michigan; married June 9, or 19, 1819 at Hamilton, Madison Co., New York, LUCY SMITH HIGGINS, born August 28, 1795 at East Haddam, Middlesex Co., Connecticut, died October 3, 1872 at Hamilton, New York, daughter of James Higgins and Lydia Smith.

CHILDREN:

THOMAS HUNT GREENLY was educated at Hamilton College. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, his company being stationed at Sacketts Harbor, New York. In 1849 he was Justice of the Peace at Hamilton. From 1852 to 1856 he was superintendent of the Erie canal. He was a member of the Masonic society. The old family mansion in Hamilton, New York was left to him.

ALBERT GREENLY was on a tea route from New York to China. When about three weeks sail out from New York, he fell off the foreyard and was drowned.

JAMES HIGGINS GREENLY left home and went to Texas, where he kept a store at Goliad. He accumulated considerable money—most of it Mexican money—which he kept about the premises in bags. He was murdered December 19, 1875 by a negro who carried off three bags of coin. The negro went to a town not far distant and entered a store to purchase some tobacco, offering one of the coins in payment. The storekeeper was a coin collector, as had been Mr. Greenlee, and recognized the proffered coin as one which he had only a few days previous sold to Mr. Greenlee. The negro confessed on the spot, and was lynched.

He studied law with Stoner & Gridley at Hamilton, where he remained three years. He was admitted to the bar at Albany in 1833, and practiced law at Eaton, Madison County until October, 1836, when he removed to Adrian, Michigan and there continued the practice of his profession. The next year he was a candidate for the Legislature, but was defeated. He was State Senator in 1839, 1840, 1842 and 1843, and was president pro tem. in 1840 and 1842. His district comprised Monroe, Lenawee and Hillsdale counties. In 1846 he was nominated by the state democratic convention for lieutenant governor, Alpheus Felch heading the ticket for governor, and was elected. He served as lieutenant governor until March 1, 1847—two months—when by the election of Governor Felch to the United States Senate, he became ex-officio governor, and filled that position until January 1, 1848. During his administration the bill was passed removing the capital from Detroit to Lansing, and the bill abolishing the court of chancery and the office of chancellor, and transferring its duties to the Supreme Court. Governor Greenly was mayor of Adrian in 1858, and was justice of the peace twenty years. He took part in the foundation of the new capitol at Lansing in 1879. He was a scholarly, cultivated and genial man.

MARYLAND.

The list of the Association of the Freemen of Maryland, which was presented in 1776 for signature to all the voters of the county by the county Revolutionary Committee as a test of loyalty to the patriot cause, shows that SAMUEL GREENLEE signed the paper as a resident of Bush River Lower Hundred.

In the list of Taxables in Bush River Lower Hundred in 1776 is this:

“SAMUEL GREENLEA, Overseer for Mr. Paca.” Mr. Paca was one of the most prominent men in the province. He was father of William Paca, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and afterward Governor of Maryland, Member of Congress, etc. He owned a very large land estate hereabouts.

In 1778 SAMUEL GREENLEY is one of the list of the Freemen of Spesutie Lower Hundred, which adjoined Bush River Lower Hundred.

In 1778 JOHN GREENLEES and ARCHIBALD GREENLEES took the required oath of Alliance to the new state of Maryland as shown by the “List of those who took the Oath.”

In one of the Medical Ledgers of Dr. John Arthur, who was the very first graduate of Medicine in America, is this item: Dr. —. SAMUEL GREENLEY (Spesutie Island) 1787 Sept. 30th, two prescriptions for his son.....£0.11.0. The map of the Island shows that it was part of Spesutie Lower Hundred and was included in Hall’s Cross Road election district (or 2 district).

In November 1790 SAMUEL GREENLEY voted in Belair, the county seat for Congressmen and Assemblymen. At the time all voters of the county were required to vote in Belair; a few years later each one voted in his own election district, there being five such districts in the county.

From the Administration accounts in the office of Register of Wills: May 11, 1802, Letters of Adm. on the estate of SAMUEL GREENLEE were issued. James Greenlee Admr. His securities are Robert Taylor and Thos. Greenlee. Date of Bond May 11, 1802. Amount of Inventory $164.92. Amount of sales £64. 14. 7½. First account passed 20th Sept. 1803. Final account passed Apr. 8, 1817. So that Samuel Greenlee no doubt died early in 1802 or late in 1801.

U. S. List of voters in 1816 before there was a newspaper published in the county, shows that JAMES GREENLEE in that year was a voter in the 2nd district called Hall’s Cross Road District and including Spesutie Lower Hundred and Spesutie Island. He voted the Republican ticket, which was then often called the Democratic ticket.

Among the deeds in the Record Office is this: “June 20, 1856 Wm. Ford for the consideration of $300 conveys to JOHN GREENLEE (both of Hartford Co.) 28 acres 7 perches of a tract called Rumney Royal on Rumney Creek, adjoining the lands of the said John Greenlee and Jno. H. Herring.

22nd Nov. 1865 Jno. F. Hill for a consideration of $1400 conveyed to JOHN GREENLEE 75 acres of Rumney Royal and of Dispatch adjoining the lands of Joseph Starr and Jas. C. Malcolm with buildings.

CAPTAIN JNO. GREENLEE was commander of a grain and wood schooner running to Chesapeake Bay. He had several daughters but no sons.

Apr. 12, 1867 ALEX. GREENLY and Thos. Sparklin being securities for Geo. E. Ford on a note to Samuel Hambleton (receiver) for $1801, Ford gives them a mortgage on his plantation in the 1st district (the 1st district was W. of Bush River).

From Ledger and Day Books of Edward Hall, who owned a large tract in Bush River (Spesutie Lower Hundred) commonly known as the “Rumney Farm” as well as several other tracts:

“1818 Mar. 24, Rumney Farm. Dr. to cash paid JAS. GREENLY for setting a ware (wear, or weir, a fence made of twigs set in a stream for catching fish..... $ 5.00

“1818 Oct. 28,	JAMES GREENLEY of Rumney Farm for 15 bus. of seed wheat	$30.00
“1819 Apr. 23,	Rumney Farm to JAS. GREENLEE for making a plough	$ 2.50
“1820 Apr. 15,	Rumney Farm to JAS. GREENLY for setting a ware this spring	$ 3.00
“1822 Mar. 30,	To cash paid in balance of his Acct. for Beans & Potatoes from Rumney Farm. (He also bought 8 bus. Potatoes from Rumney Farm 1819.)
“ “ Feb.	Rumney Farm to JAS. GREENLY for putting in two Plough beams	$ 2.50
	Rumney Farm to JAS. GREENLY for mending a harrow	$.37½
	For one fallow harrow fall	$ 4.00

JAMES GREENLEE of Caroline County, Maryland. Will admitted to probate, October 10, 1843. He devised his estate to his son Charles W. Greenlee. No other name is entered in the distribution of the estate as he was the sole legatee.

JAMES GREENLEE of Caroline County, Maryland, son of David Greenlee. Letters of administration granted on his estate, October 7, 1844. No will nor distribution.

JAMES GREENLEE of Caroline County, Maryland, for and in consideration of the sum of one hundred and ten dollars, bought a tract of land in Caroline County, said to contain two hundred acres more or less, from Elizabeth Mitchell, widow of John Mitchell, Esq., of Milford, Kent Co., Delaware. Dated November 1, 1836.

January 26th 1726. JAMES GREENLEY deeds to James Earle a tract of land called “Plaine Dealing” in Queen Anne County (then in Talbot County), on the South side of Chester River & on the Western side of a branch of Island Creek, containing 200 acres.

June 25th, 1778. APPENDIX A

BROOKS AND ALLIED FAMILIES

The number given each ancestor in the following, corresponds with his number on the Ancestral Chart; the letter indicates the section of the chart.

A 255.

CAPTAIN THOMAS BROOKS was born in England; died May 21, 1667 at Concord, Massachusetts; married GRACE —— who died May 12, 1664 at Concord, Massachusetts. He is supposed to have come from London, although neither the date of his arrival, nor the place of his embarkation has been ascertained. It is evident that he could not have been the Thomas Brooks who embarked in May, 1635, then aged twenty, in company with Rev. Peter Bulkley. He first settled in Watertown, Massachusetts, and was one of the "townsmen then inhabiting," to whom the Beaver Brook plowlands were granted in 1636. He was admitted freeman December 7, 1636, while he resided in Watertown. He moved very soon from Watertown to Muskitaquid, now Concord, where he was one of the original settlers, and lived on what is now Walden Street. He was Captain of Concord, and received various appointments of honor and trust. The General Court appointed him constable of Concord, December 8, 1638, and represented Concord in the General Court in 1642, 1643, 1644, and four years after 1650. In 1640 he was apprizer of horses, cattle, etc. for the purpose of taxation; and was appointed to prevent drunkenness among the Indians. In 1657, he purchased of the commissioners of the General Court, for five pounds, the right of carrying on the fur trade in Concord. In 1660, he and his son-in-law, Timothy Wheeler, jointly purchased of Edward Collins, four hundred acres in Medford, for four hundred and four pounds, one-third being for Timothy Wheeler and two-thirds for himself. On October 22, 1665 he sold his house-lot in Concord, but remained in Concord and died there May 21, 1667, intestate. His inventory amounted to £448 3s, and his debts to £26 5s. 2d.

A 127.

DEACON JOSHUA BROOKS, son of Captain Thomas Brooks and Grace ——, was born in 1630 in England; married October 17, 1653, HANNAH MASON, born September 23, 1636, daughter of Captain Hugh Mason and his wife Esther. Joshua Brooks settled in that part of Concord which became a part of Lincoln, and, it is supposed, sold his paternal estate in Medford to his brother Caleb. He was a tanner, and it is conjectured that he learned the trade with Captain Hugh Mason, whose daughter he soon after married. He was admitted freeman May 26, 1652.

A 63.

ENSIGN DANIEL BROOKS, son of Deacon Joshua Brooks and Hannah Mason, was born November 15, 1663 at Concord, Massachusetts; died October 18, 1733 at Concord, Massachusetts; married August 9, 1692 at Concord, Massachusetts, ANNE MERRIAM, born September 7, 1669 at Concord, Massachusetts, died January 24, 1757 at Concord, Massachusetts, daughter of John Merriam (died February 2, 1723-4 at Concord, and was married October 21, 1663 at Concord) and Mary Cooper, his wife.

A 31.

DEACON JOHN BROOKS, son of Ensign Daniel Brooks and Anne Merriam, was born February 12, 1701-2 at Concord, Massachusetts; married LYDIA

A 15.

CAPTAIN SAMUEL BROOKS, son of Deacon John Brooks and Lydia ———, was born March 16, 1729-30 at Concord, Massachusetts; died June 30, 1817 at Worcester, Massachusetts; married March 14, 1755 at Concord, Massachusetts, HANNAH (DAVIS) BROWN of Carlisle, who was born in 1721 and died December 6, 1819. He moved to Worcester in 1750, the first of the name there. He was a cordwainer, and afterwards a real estate dealer. In 1787-8 he was a member of the legislature. He and his wife were buried in Mechanic Street Cemetery, Worcester.

A 7.

DEACON SAMUEL BROOKS, son of Captain Samuel Brooks and Hannah (Davis) Brown, was born June 10, 1756 at Worcester, Massachusetts; married March 8, 1789 at Haverhill, New Hampshire, ANNA (BEDEL) BUTLER, born October 20, 1766, who was a daughter of Colonel Timothy Bedel and Elizabeth Merrill. He moved to Haverhill, New Hampshire about the close of the Revolutionary war. He opened a store at the "Corner," and was the owner of an oil mill at the Brook, but was not very successful in these ventures. Later he went to Quebec and contracted with the governor of the Province for a tract of land in the township of Chester, then an unbroken wilderness, and two of his brothers began lumbering operations in this forest. In 1812 he took his family to Canada, but owing to a change of governor in the Province the plans which he had marked out were defeated, and, leaving Chester, he went to Stanstead where he lived the remainder of his life. During his residence in Haverhill he was one of its most influential citizens, and took an active part in all public matters. He represented the town in the legislature, was selectman, and also town clerk. Besides these positions of trust he also held the office of register of deeds for Grafton County for a number of years. He is represented as a man of gentle manners, and is said to have been very ingenious and skillful. The old Brooks house in Haverhill stood on the South Park near where the pump now is located. The house and barn were afterwards moved to Court street, and remodeled, and became the residences of Judge Westgate and Mrs. Barstow.

A 3.

SAMUEL BROOKS, son of Deacon Samuel Brooks and Anna (Bedel) Butler, was born March 26, 1793 at Haverhill, New Hampshire, died March 23, 1849 at Montreal, Canada and was buried at Sherbrooke; married November 17, 1814 at Haverhill, New Hampshire, ELIZABETH TOWLE, who was born August 19, 1795 at Chester, New Hampshire, died September 21, 1871 at Lennoxville, Canada, and was a daughter of Colonel Simon Towle and Eleanor Hall. Mr. Brooks lived in Newbury, Vermont for a short time after his marriage, then moved to Canada and became a prominent merchant in Stanstead. Later he lived in Lennoxville where he was extensively interested in trade and agriculture. In 1837 he was sent as a delegate, by leading citizens of the eastern townships, to London, for the purpose of enlisting capitalists in the development of the resources of that region. Being successful in his mission, the British Land Company of London was formed in the year following, and he was appointed agent of the company. He changed his home to Sherbrooke, which was the central point of the company's operations. He was also manager of a branch of the city bank of Montreal. During all these years he took an active and prominent part in every enterprise, and represented his county most of the time till his death, in the provincial legislature. He was an active promoter of the Grand Trunk Railroad from Montreal to Portland. A man of large liberality, and warmly devoted to all endeavors for the upbuilding of society in every good and worthy way, the church found in him a staunch and true friend. When he died, his dog which was named Keeper, howled all night, and walked beside the coffin to the funeral, and disappeared in a few days.

WILLIAM BROOKS, son of Samuel Brooks and Elizabeth Towle, was born August 31, 1815 at Newbury, Vermont, his parents removing to Canada shortly after his birth. He received the rudiments of his education in the Canadian schools, later attending the academies at Haverhill, New Hampshire and Peachem, Vermont, where he fitted himself to enter Dartmouth College. It was his purpose to study for the ministry, but serious trouble with his eyes prevented the carrying out of this plan. He taught school for a time in Lennoxville, Canada, and while thus engaged made the acquaintance of Miss Emily Abbot, a teacher, who became his wife October 18, 1837. She was born November 23, 1815 at Peachem, Vermont and was the daughter of Jacob Abbott and Nancy Wesson.

He entered his father's store in Sherbrooke and before many years had become sole proprietor. Fortune smiled upon him and his business interests multiplied. He owned a large paper mill on the Magog River, not far from his store, and farther up the river had a saw mill, and in its vicinity he had factories for the manufacture of shingles, lath, pails and matches. In order to supply his mills with logs, he sent large numbers of men every Winter into the woods that lay back of the Magog River, to fell the trees and cut the logs which were brought down by the Spring freshets.

William Brooks was one of the original projectors of the Grand Trunk Railway, which was built through Sherbrooke soon after 1850. He contracted to build a division and personally superintend its construction. At this time he had thirty-six branch stores in the various townships about Sherbrooke, and was also the owner of several farms, a foundry and a drug store. For many years he was the most influential and prosperous man in Sherbrooke; but the exorbitant rate demanded by the British-American Land Company for its water power, the disastrous fire which burned the paper mills—one entirely new—and the credit system which paralyzed trade so embarrassed him that he decided to try a home elsewhere. In 1860 he moved with his wife and six daughters to Portland, Maine, where he engaged in commission business and lived there until his removal to Chicago in October, 1864. This was his home for twenty-six years. Most of this time he was associated with Greenlee Brothers & Company; but the last few years of his life, owing to failing health he was unable to take an active part in any business.

William Brooks was a man of great business capacity, enterprise and integrity. When a very young man he became an active member of the Congregational church, and always remained faithful to its best interests. As he became prosperous he gave liberally to the support of the gospel, and contributed the greater part of the money for the building of the present brick [Congregational] church in Sherbrooke. He was unwavering in his temperance principles when that meant more than can be conceived at the present day. He and his brothers, Charles and Samuel, were almost alone in opposing the selling and drinking of intoxicants in Sherbrooke. To Chicago he carried the same missionary spirit that had moved him in early life, and for twenty years he rarely missed visiting the County Jail Sunday mornings, carrying large bundles of religious papers, distributing them among the prisoners, and talking to them. He would then go to the north side to attend the mission school of Dwight L. Moody. In the Fall of 1890 he had a stroke of paralysis and passed away October 12th of that year. His wife survived him several years. She was an invalid when they moved to Chicago, but grew strong and well and took an active interest in church work. She was a member of the history class conducted by Mrs. Professor Haven, until her eighty-first year, and at the same time went every Saturday to the Inndustrial School connected with Porter Memorial Church, teaching a class of foreign children to sew. She died March 11, 1899 at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Stebbins Greenlee, in Buena Park, Chicago, at the age of eighty-three years.

CHILDREN:

- I. Elizabeth Brooks, born August 14, 1838; married Ralph Stebbins Greenlee.
- II. Eleanor Brooks, born August 14, 1838; died unmarried October 15, 1892.

- III. Emily Brooks, born August 21, 1842; married Robert Lemuel Greenlee; died July 25, 1906.
- IV. William Brooks, born August 21, 1842; died April, 1843.
- V. Mary Brooks, born April 14, 1844; died August 10, 1907; married first, Rev. George Paddock and had one son, Charles Brainard Paddock, of Wichita, Kansas; married second, Dr. Walter Hale Graves and had one child, Ruth Eleanor Graves.
- VI. Jeannie Brooks, born August 20, 1851; died October 6, 1868.
- VII. Samuel Brooks; died aged 9 months.
- VIII. Isabella Brooks, born September 15, 1857; married August 27, 1884 James Lugsdin, son of Ladds William Lugsdin. They had two children: Louise Lugsdin, born July 29, 1886; and Elizabeth Beatrice Lugsdin, born December 2, 1892.

ELIZABETH BROOKS, twin sister of Eleanor Brooks, was born in Sherbrooke, Canada in 1838; attended the private school of Mrs. John Worcester in Burlington, Vermont, where she completed her musical education, afterwards graduating in 1859 from the Seminary of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cowles, at Ipswich, Massachusetts. Early in the following year she was called South to Midlothian, near Richmond, Virginia, to teach a private school on the plantation of Dr. William Ball. Miss Brooks afterwards went to Danbury, Connecticut and took charge of the education of the children of Mr. Bailey, teaching them music, French and English. During the Winter of 1860-61, she was a teacher in the Willis School in Portland, Maine. In 1862 Miss Brooks went to St. Anthony Falls (now Minneapolis), Minnesota and assisted Miss D. W. Godding who had in charge a private Episcopal school. Here she taught music, French, and the higher branches in English, part of the Winter and through the Spring term. During the Summer Miss Godding died, and, at the request of the patrons of the school, it was continued under the supervision of Miss Brooks until the Indian outbreak, late the following Spring. Her parents, fearing for her safety, prevailed upon her to return East.

In October, 1864, Miss Brooks joined her father and her sisters, Emily and Jeannie, in Chicago and arranged a home for the family at 13 Park Avenue, where she remained until her marriage with Mr. Ralph Stebbins Greenlee [See p. 108] in 1866.

For upwards of thirty-three years she was an active member of the Union Park Congregational Church and Sunday School. In 1894 the family moved to the north side. In December, 1899 active preparations were made for establishing a Congregational church in the North Shore district. The North Shore Congregational Church was organized January 1, 1900 in the library of the home Mr. and Mrs. Greenlee now occupy. Mr. Greenlee was Chairman of Trustees, and took entire charge of the building and furnishing of the church, which is located at Sheridan Road and Wilson Avenue, and is now one of the largest and most prosperous churches in the city.

Mrs. Greenlee has ever been closely identified with charitable and religious works, and has taken an active part in home and foreign missions; and has been for several years a member of the Board of Managers of the Womans' Board of the Interior, a branch of the American Board of Foreign Missions.

WILLIAM BROOKS [A. L.]

EMILY ABBOT BROOKS.

For eleven years she was one of the directors and managers of the Frances Willard Hospital.

Mrs. Greenlee has been identified with many of the clubs of the city, including the Women's, the West End, the North Side Art (of which she has been a director), and the Women's Athletic Club.

EMILY BROOKS, as a child was of a quiet and retiring disposition, and a great admirer of Nature, spending much of her time in wandering about the beautiful country in which her home was situated. She was always very fond of flowers and of animals. One of her pleasures, while on her travels, was to collect odd plants to bring home. She lived in Sherbrooke, Canada until she was about twenty years of age, when the family moved to Portland, Maine, and later to Chicago, where, in 1867, she married Robert Lemuel Greenlee. [See p. 107.] She has been connected with many philanthropic institutions in Chicago, and was especially active in the work of the Foundlings' Home and the Home for the Friendless, giving generously to the support of both. Mrs. Greenlee was of a deeply religious nature, very active in church work. Her church homes in Chicago were: The Union Park Congregational, Lake View Presbyterian, and the Second Church of Christ, Scientist. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society; also a member of the Women's Club, the North Side Art Club, the West End Club, Women's Athletic, and other clubs of the city. She died July 25, 1906 at her home in Buena Park, Chicago.

MARY BROOKS was born at Sherbrooke, Canada. From her earliest childhood she evinced a most filial spirit, and was full of loving sympathy with her sisters and friends. Hampered by a serious defect of vision which was not corrected until comparatively late in life, she yet managed to keep up with her classes and graduated at the Portland (Maine) High School under Moses Woolson, who selected her to teach Latin the following year in the High School at Concord, New Hampshire.

In 1866 she graduated at the Bradford (Massachusetts) Academy and removed to Chicago, whither the family had gone two years before. There she taught in public and private schools two or three years. She then spent several months in the rooms of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions, and confirmed and strengthened her interest in the spread of the Gospel in foreign lands, a cause which was always near to her heart.

In 1870 she married Rev. George A. Paddock, and at once began the arduous life of a home missionary in southwest Missouri, entering with enthusiasm into the labors of the church, and in laying the foundations of Drury College, of which her husband was a trustee.

In 1873 the family removed to Rockford, Iowa, where a son was born, Charles, now a business man of Wichita, Kansas. There, too, Mr. Paddock's health failed and they went to Colorado in the hope that the invalid might recover his strength. There she taught a country school in a sparsely settled region, riding miles daily to and from the school-house and doing the household work for the sick husband and helpless babe. It was a terrible experience, but no complaint was heard. Her spirit was sweet and undaunted.

In 1877 Mr. Paddock died in the town of his first pastorate, Lebanon, Missouri, and the widow returned to Illinois to make her home with her husband's people at Chandlerville. There she taught in the public schools. Feeling the need of further study, she took up the then new work of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle and completed the course with the second class. She followed this work with interest all her life, and was a member of a local circle wherever there was one to belong to.

In 1881 she was married to Dr. Walter Hale Graves and removed to Lexington, Illinois, where a daughter, Ruth, was born, now living at Wichita, Kansas. In 1885 she removed with the children to Kingman, Kansas, joining her husband who had preceded them by a few months. There she was again the energetic organizer of a circle for study and for missionary work.

In 1890 she removed to Wichita where her energies had a larger field. She assisted in the organization of the Library Club of Fairmount College, of which her husband was one of the founders, and with another member, Mrs. Smoke, made the first purchase of books for a library which is now, of Kansas college libraries, second in value and number of volumes, only to the library of the State University. A whole afternoon these hopeful and enthusiastic women searched the second hand book stores to get the greatest possible value for the $7.00 which they had to spend.

Here she greatly enlarged her acquaintance with languages. While she never allowed her knowledge of French and Latin to fall into disuse, she found time to study Greek, Italian and German; and while confined to her room with an illness which did not prohibit the use of her hands and brain, became so proficient in Spanish as to read it with ease and pleasure. But above all was her love of English; and the library which she gathered about her, though not costly, and unpretentious as to appearance, contained much that was valuable, and rarely failed to enlighten the student of literature in which he might be interested. It was not an uncommon thing for members of other clubs, or of no club at all, to call on her for assistance in this study; and such incidents were welcomed. And she who called and she who responded felt that she had met a cordial friend and co-worker in a congenial task.

Her home, within and without, was bright with flowers. The care of them lightened her burdens, and she enjoyed their presence as a personal friendship.

In 1904 the family removed to Dodge City in the hope that her health, which had been failing for several years, might be benefitted. This hope seemed for a time to be realized; but in February, 1907 she contracted a severe cold, from which she rallied very slowly, and it became clear that her heart was seriously affected. Because of this, it was decided to remove to a lower altitude as soon as she should be able to make the change. On June 29th she left Dodge City on what proved to be her final visit to her relatives and friends. Stopping a few days in Wichita with her son, she continued her journey in the company of his wife and little daughter to Chicago, where she was the guest of her sister Mrs. Ralph Stebbins Greenlee. Here, in the companionship of her daughter, from whom she had been separated for nearly two years, of her sisters, Mrs. Greenlee and Mrs. Lugsdin, of nephews and nieces and their children and of friends of olden time, who vied with each other in loving service and expressions of tender regard, she spent five of the happiest weeks of her life. There was but one cloud on her horizon—the serious illness of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Greenlee. Her letters to her home express again and again her happiness, marred only by her anxiety concerning them.

On the morning of the 10th of August, 1907, as she was reading to her invalid sister, she complained of a peculiar sensation of weakness, and complied with the suggestion of her sister's nurse, that she go to her room for a while. A few minutes afterward the nurse, a little anxious, followed. She was lying partly on the floor, partly on a chair. The end had come swiftly and painlessly; and it seemed to those left behind that a kind and loving Father had need of her in another sphere, and had bidden her come, as gently as divine mercy could give the invitation. The poor worn body, that was so long an affliction to her, was laid beside the bodies of parents and sisters at Rose Hill.

To him who pens these pitifully inadequate lines, come the words of a great preacher, who must have had in mind such as she when he said:

“The sainthoods of the fireside and the market place—they wear no halos 'round their heads. They do their duties in the strength of God. They have their martyrdoms and their palms. And though they get into no calendars, they leave a force and a benediction behind them on earth when they go up to heaven.”

O fairest star in Heaven's vault, thy ray
 Serene, benignant as the opening day
 Wouldst clearer light and softer lustre find?
 Behold the woman in our hearts enshrined.
 Oh flower, whose fragrance rises as a prayer,
 Whose glorious radiance glads the shimmering air,
 Aspire to th' winsome sweetness of her face,
 Lifted to heaven, reflecting heaven's grace.

Resolutions adopted upon the death of Mrs. Dr. W. H. Graves, a former president of this society, which occurred at Chicago, Illinois, August 10, 1907.

Whereas a Higher Providence has transferred to the Great Beyond Mrs. Dr. W. H. Graves who was an inspiration to us all during the years in which she served as our president.

Resolved—that the cause of Missions has lost an ardent supporter and we a friend whose brilliant intellect and strong spirituality led us ever onward and upward.

Resolved—that a copy of these resolutions be published in the daily papers of this city, sent to the family and spread upon our records.

CAPTAIN HUGH MASON was born in England; died October 10, 1678 aged 73 years, at Watertown, Massachusetts; married ESTHER ——— who died May 1, 1692. Captain Mason and his wife Esther embarked for New England, at Ipswich, England, April 30, 1634, in the ship Francis. He was one of the first settlers of Watertown, Massachusetts, where he was admitted freeman March 4, 1634-5. His occupation was that of a tanner. He appears to have been the most prominent citizen of Watertown, and was frequently called upon for public service. He was deputy to the General Court from Watertown in 1644, and altogether served in that capacity for ten years. He was lieutenant prior to June 1, 1644. The following petition was sent to the General Court: "Let this honored court know that wee the traine band of Watertowne have chosen Leeutenant Mason to be our captaine and sergant Beers to be our Leeutenant." This appointment was confirmed April 5, 1652. He probably held the office until his death, as no other attained that rank in the town until that time.

A 17.

COLONEL TIMOTHY BEDEL was from Salem. He married Elizabeth Merrill. After remaining in the employ of Captain Hazen for a year or two, he moved his family to the newly organized town of Haverhill, New Hampshire, and settled on Poole brook. He was one of the original Proprietors of Haverhill and also of Bath, and was a man of large influence and prominence in the town. Previous to the Revolution he lived for a short time in Bath. In 1775 he was a member of the Provincial Congress of New Hampshire, which met at Exeter, but at the breaking out of the war of the Revolution, he entered the military service, first as captain of a company of rangers, and afterwards as colonel of a regiment. During the long struggle he raised several regiments, one of which he led to Canada in 1776 in the army of General Schuyler when that officer made the attack on Montreal. In this campaign Colonel Bedel's regiment disgracefully surrendered to the enemy, and Colonel Bedel suffered much in reputation; but subsequent revelation of the facts in the case completely exonerated him, as, at the time, he was on his way to Montreal for reinforcements, and his regiment was in command of Major Butterfield. He was also in the army of General Gates at the battle of Saratoga, when General Burgoyne and his army were captured.

The first regiment Colonel Bedel raised was for the defence of the Cohos Country in 1775. This was a body of rangers. Afterwards, in 1777, he was in command of a regiment for service in the Cohos Country and for the defence of the western frontier on the Upper Connecticut river. He also raised a regiment in 1778 for a like service when the time of the regiment on 1777 had expired, and he was for most of the time, after his return from Canada till the close of the war, in command of troops stationed in the Cohos Country and vicinity. After the Revolutionary War he was appointed Major-General of the Second Division of New Hampshire Militia.

He was a man of large endowment and great force of character, and was admirably fitted to be a leader of men in stirring times. A purer patriot did not engage in the Revolutionary struggle. He took a prominent part in the early history of Haverhill, New Hampshire, in the development of its resources and in the advancement of its prosperity, and was a valuable citizen of the town. He was repeatedly called by his fellow men to various trusts of honor and responsibility in town affairs. He died in 1787.

a daughter of Nathaniel Hall and Mary Wood. Colonel Towle moved from Hampton, New Hampshire to Chester, and in 1805 moved to Haverhill. He was a soldier of the Revolution, a colonel of militia, and represented the town of Chester in the legislature for several years before his removal to Haverhill. He was a much esteemed citizen of the town, and succeeded Asa Boynton in keeping tavern.

CAPTAIN ANTHONY BRACKETT, son of Anthony Brackett of Portsmouth, England, died September 21, 1689; married second, SUSANNAH DRAKE born about 1652, died November 14, 1719, who was a daughter of Abraham Drake and Jane ———. Captain Brackett lived in Falmouth (Portland), Maine. On the 9th of August, 1676, some Indians killed one of his cows, and he complained to a chief named Symon, who promised to bring the culprits to him. Two days later Symon appeared early in the morning, at the head of a party, and said: "These are the Indians that killed the cow." Then they entered the house, seized the guns, and asked Captain Brackett whether he would go into captivity, or be killed. He preferring captivity, the Indians bound him, his wife, and a negro, and carried them and five children away as prisoners. In November following, Captain and Mrs. Brackett, one child, and the negro made their escape in a leaky canoe. The wife, Ann, died soon after; and the remainder of Captain Brackett's life is identified with Hampton, New Hampshire. He was killed September 21, 1689, when Colonel Church had the memorable fight with the Indians at Casco.

DEACON WILLIAM GODFREY died March 25, 1671; married second, MARGERY (or MARGARET) WEBSTER, widow of Thomas Webster. Deacon William Godfrey was the first of the name in Hampton, New Hampshire. The date of his coming to New England is not known. He lived for a time in Dedham, Massachusetts, and several years in Watertown. He was admitted freeman in 1640. On May 18, 1649, being then of Watertown, he bought of William Payne of Ipswich, for £55, forty-four acres of land in Hampton, together with one share of the Great Ox-Common, and two shares of all other commons. On one lot of fifteen acres, there was a dwelling house, to which he appears to have removed his family soon afterward. In 1654 he was a selectman, but was not often employed in town business. He became a deacon of the church as early as 1660, and held the office until his death.

B 163.

B 363.

GEORGE MARSH was born in England; died July 2, 1647 at Hingham, Massachusetts; married ELIZABETH ———.

B 181.

ONESIPEROUS MARSH, son of George Marsh and Elizabeth ———, was born in 1630 in England; died May 15, 1713 aged 83 at Bradford, Massachusetts; married first, February 6, 1655 HANNAH CUTLER, who died March 17, 1686. She was a daughter of John Cutler (born in England; died February, 1638 at Hingham, Massachusetts) and Mary ———.

C 191.

GEORGE ABBOT was born in 1615, in England; died December 24, 1681 at Andover, Massachusetts; married December 12, 1646 HANNAH CHANDLER, born June 11, 1711 at Andover, Massachusetts, who was a daughter of William Chandler and Annis ———. George Abbot emigrated to this country about 1640, in the same vessel with Hannah Chandler, who afterwards became his wife. After living in Roxbury, Massachusetts for a short time, he removed to Andover, Massachusetts, as early as 1643, being one of the early settlers of that place.

C 95.

WILLIAM ABBOT, son of George Abbot and Hannah Chandler, was born November 18, 1657 at Andover, Massachusetts; died October 21, 1713; married June 2, 1682, ELIZABETH GRAY (or GEARY), who died in December, 1712. He is spoken of as a Puritan. By occupation he was a weaver.

C 47.

JAMES ABBOT, son of William Abbot and Elizabeth Gray, was born February 12, 1695 at Andover, Massachusetts; died December 27, 1787; married January 6, 1714 ABIGAIL FARNUM who was born in 1692. He was a farmer, and also owned and operated the mills on the Shawshene river until he sold them and removed to Rumford, now Concord, New Hampshire in 1735.

C 23.

JAMES ABBOT, son of James Abbot and Abigail Farnum, was born January 12, 1717 at Andover, Massachusetts; died in 1803; married in 1742, at Concord, Massachusetts, SARAH BANCROFT, born February 19, 1722, daughter of Captain Samuel Bancroft and Sarah Lampson. He was a farmer and lived in Concord and Haverhill, New Hampshire. In 1763 he removed to Newbury. He was a deacon of the First Congregational Church. He was one of the original settlers of Groton, Vermont; and was a private in the Revolutionary war. In 1777 he was one of the "Committee of Safety" appointed by the town of Haverhill to confer with others in regard to the protection of the Cohos Country. He was active in public matters and filled many positions of trust and honor.

C 11.

WILLIAM ABBOT, son of James Abbot and Sarah Bancroft, was born April 24, 1755 at Haverhill, New Hampshire; died June 14, 1707; married in 1777, MABEL WHITTLESEY of East Guilford, Connecticut. He went with his father to Newbury and Groton, but later seems to have lived at Newbury. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

C 5.

JACOB ABBOT, son of William Abbot and Mabel Whittlesey, was born December 15, 1781; married November 10, 1808, NANCY WESSON, daughter of Ephraim Wesson and Judith Morse. She died in 1827.

C 399.

JOHN BANCROFT was born in England; died in 1637 at Lynn, Massachusetts; married JANE ———.

C 199.

LIEUTENANT THOMAS BANCROFT, son of John Bancroft and Jane ———, was born in 1622, in England; died March 12, 1705; married September 15, 1648 at Dedham, Massachusetts ELIZABETH METCALF, daughter of Michael Metcalf and Sarah ———. She died May 1, 1711. Lieutenant Thomas Bancroft purchased land in Lynn (now Lynnfield), Massachusetts, and built a house near Beaver Dam. He also bought land in the westerly part of Reading, and is spoken of as residing in Reading at the time of his second marriage. He probably resided chiefly at Lynn.

C 99.

DEACON THOMAS BANCROFT, son of Lieutenant Thomas Bancroft and Elizabeth Metcalf, was born in 1649; died June 12, 1718; married in 1673, SARAH POOLE, born in 1656, daughter of Captain Jonathan Poole and Judith ———. Deacon Thomas Bancroft was an officer in King Philip's Indian War, and was a selectman several years. He lived in the westerly part of Reading, where was the ancient Bancroft homestead.

C 49.

CAPTAIN SAMUEL BANCROFT, son of Deacon Thomas Bancroft and Sarah Poole, was born in 1693; died in 1772 aged 79; married first, in 1763, SARAH LAMPSON, born in 1689, died in 1733 aged 43, who was a daughter of Samuel Lampson and Mary Nichols; married second, Sarah Leathe; married third, Mehitabel Fitch. He was a captain, selectman, and representative.

C 403.

JOHN POOLE was born in England; died in 1667; married MARGARET ———, who died in 1662. He was at Cambridge, Massachusetts in 1632. He removed from Lynn, Massachusetts to Reading, Massachusetts, where he was one of the earliest settlers, and probably the wealthiest. He lived on the site of Wakefield's rattan factory, where he built the first grist-mill and fulling-mill of the town. He also owned much land at the north end of the Great Pond, and erected the first saw-mill.

C 201.

CAPTAIN JONATHAN POOLE, son of John Poole and Margaret ———, was born in 1634, probably at Cambridge, Massachusetts; died in 1678; married JUDITH ———. He succeeded his father on the homestead, and also owned, in conjunction with his son John, much land at the north end of the Pond. He was second captain of the Reading company, and was "much valued in Philip's Indian war." He was a captain under Major Appleton at Hadley; was President of a council of War in the winter of 1675-6; and also served as selectman, justice of the peace, and representative.

C 203.

WILLIAM LAMSON married SARAH ———. He died in 1659 at Ipswich, Massachusetts.

C 101.

SAMUEL LAMPSON, son of William Lamson and Sarah ——, married in 1676, MARY NICHOLS, a daughter of Richard Nichols of Reading Massachusetts (died in 1674) and Annas —— (died, 1692).

D 223.

JOHN WESTON was born in 1631 in Buckinghamshire, England; died about 1723 aged over 90; married April 18, 1653 at Reading, Massachusetts, SARAH FITCH, a daughter of Deacon Zachary Fitch and Mary ——. John Weston came to America about 1644, being thirteen years of age. His mother was then a widow. So great was his desire to come over that he concealed himself in a ship bound for this country, until she sailed. He settled at Salem, Massachusetts, where he was a member of the first church in 1648. About the year 1652 he moved to that part of Reading which is now Wakefield. His land, of which he was a large proprietor, adjoined the Meeting-house Square, and lay upon the southeast part of Reading Pond, extending thence southerly. He was deeply engaged in religious subjects; was a man of great industry. He accumulated a large estate, and is said to have paid the highest tax of any one in his town.

D 111.

STEPHEN WESTON, son of John Weston and Sarah Fitch, was born December 8, 1667 at Reading, Massachusetts; died in 1753 at Reading, Massachusetts; married SARAH TOWNSEND.

D 55.

STEPHEN WESTON, son of Stephen Weston and Sarah Townsend, was born in 1697; died June 5, 1777 in his 81st year, at Wilmington, Massachusetts; married ELIZABETH —— who died April 22, 1766 in the 64th year of her age, at Wilmington, Massachusetts. Stephen Weston, Jr., owned a farm in Wilmington, Massachusetts, where he was a leading citizen, distinguished for his piety, and a deacon in the church. The following letters written to his sons, Captain Ephraim and Nathan, illustrate his character.

“Wilmington, Mass., August ye 8th 1758

To Ephraim Wesson, my son.

After my tender regards and love for you, hoping that lines may find you in good health, I, your Mother, Brothers and Sisters are in measures of good health, at this time. I would inform you that we have heard of the sorrowful news of the engagement near the “Half way Brooks” of Capt. Jones and Lawrence, that they are killed. Sorrowful from time to time is the news. But I hope you will put your trust in God. I leave you in the hands of God. So I remain your compassionate Father Stephen Wesson.”

“Wilmington July ye 30th 1758

Nathan my son, after my love to you, hoping that these lines may find you in health as I, your Mother, Brothers and Sisters are at this time. Your Brother in his letter dated ye 7th of July wrote that you were then well, for which I bless God. Give God all the praise and glory for all His goodness to you. Let the fear of God be always before your eyes. Shun bad company and bad language, &c.

Stephen Weston.”

D 27.

CAPTAIN EPHRAIM WESSON, son of Stephen Weston and Elizabeth ———, was born in 1721; died in 1814 at Groton, Vermont; married November 16, 1748, SARAH PROCTOR, born July 27, 1731, daughter of Samuel Proctor and Lydia Cotton. Captain Ephraim Wesson was residing with his family in Pepperell, Massachusetts, in 1755. Early in the spring of that year, an expedition was planned against Crown Point, which was led by General William Johnson of New York. He enlisted and entered the army under General Johnson. His “enlisting orders” bear date March 29, 1755. We find him during that year enlisting volunteers, armed with authority as follows:

“By his Excellency the Governor—

I do hereby authorize and empower Ephraim Wesson to beat his drums anywhere within this Province for enlisting volunteers for his Majesty’s service, &c.

William Shirley.”

After enlisting many volunteers for that army, Ephraim Wesson entered the army as first lieutenant, but was soon promoted to captain. He was in all the engagements of importance of that period, notably the surrender of Louisburg. He removed to Haverhill, New Hampshire some years prior to the Revolution. He was a prominent citizen during his residence there. During the Revolution he enjoyed the confidence of the people to a high degree. He was appointed on the “Committee of Safety” and the “Committee of Correspondence.” He was selectman of Haverhill, and a delegate to the Provincial Congress at Exeter. He moved to Groton, Vermont soon after the settlement of that town, but after a few years settled on a border lot in Peacham, joining the farm of Deacon James Abbot of Groton. The deed to his farm is dated April 14, 1797 and begins “commencing at a beach tree, at the corner of Peacham, Groton, Barnet and Ryegate.” After a long life of usefulness, beloved and respected by all, he died at the advanced age of ninetythree years, and was buried in the “Old Burying Ground” in the corner of Groton and Peacham, near his dwelling place. He is spoken of as a brave and conscientious officer, highly esteemed and trusted by his superiors—a man of excellent character, and of Puritan mould and principles.

D 13.

EPHRAIM WESSON, son of Captain Ephraim Wesson and Sarah Proctor, married JUDITH MORSE, born July 27, 1751, who was a daughter of Thomas Morse and Elizabeth Bartlett.

D 449.

DEACON ZACHARY FITCH was born in England; died June 9, 1662 at Reading, Massachusetts; married MARY ———. He settled first at Lynn, Massachusetts, where he became a freeman in 1638. In 1644 he removed to Reading, where he lived in the South Parish, on Salem street, then called Fitch's Lane; and he owned what was known as Fitch's Hil. He was deacon, and a selectman.

D 231.

ROBERT PROCTOR died April 28, 1697 at Chelmsford, Massachusetts; married December 31, 1645, JANE HILDRETH, a daughter of Richard Hildreth.

D 115.

SAMUEL PROCTOR, son of Robert Proctor and Jane Hildreth, was born September 16, 1665; died April 12, 1740; married SARAH ———, who died January 17, 1757.

D 57.

SAMUEL PROCTOR, son of Samuel Proctor and Sarah ———, was born September 16, 1697 at Chelmsford, Massachusetts; died October 8, 1764; married in 1723 or 1724, LYDIA COTTON, who died February 10, 1763.

D 479.

ANTHONY MORSE was born May 9, 1606 at Marlborough, Wiltshire, England; died February 25, 1678 at Newbury, Massachusetts; married first, MARY ———; married second, ANN ———, who died March 9, 1679-80 at Newbury, Massachusetts. He came from Marlborough, England, in the ship James to Newbury, Massachusetts, in 1635, being accompanied by his brother William. At the time of their registration they were called Morss, and this mode of spelling was adopted by part of their descendants. Anthony spelled his name Morse, as is shown by his autographs. The name of Morse claims a high antiquity. It first occurs A. D. 1358 in the reign of Edward III when he gave a commission to Sir Hugo de Mors, who appears to have been a knight from the English territory in France.

Anthony Morse was a shoemaker by trade. He belonged to that class of Puritans who strove to separate from the corruptions of the established church while they continued in her. Few materials are supplied either by records or tradition illustrative of his history. He was a man of moral courage, energy, and perseverance, enterprising and capable in business, and laid the foundation for the wealth in his family. His life was one of strict integrity and piety. So generally inclined to a godly walk were the first generations of his race, that it was proverbially said that it was as natural for a Morse to be religious as for certain other families to be vicious.

D 239.

LIEUTENANT ANTHONY MORSE, son of Anthony Morse, died October 12, 1686; married first, May 8, 1660 at Newbury, Massachusetts, ELIZABETH KNIGHT, who died July 29, 1667 at Newbury, Massachusetts. He married second, November 10, 1669 Mary Barnard.

D 119.

ENSIGN ANTHONY MORSE, son of Lieutenant Anthony Morse, was born January 1, 1662-3 at Newbury, Massachusetts; will dated March 5, 1704-5, proved June 26, 1710; married February 4, 1685-6 at Newbury, Massachusetts, SARAH PIKE, born October 12, 1666 at Newbury, Massachusetts, died in 1717-18, who was a daughter of Joseph Pike and Susanna Kingsbury.

D 59.

STEPHEN MORSE, son of Ensign Anthony Morse and Sarah Pike, was born December 28, 1695; married in 1725, ELIZABETH WORTH.

D 29.

THOMAS MORSE of Bradford, Massachusetts, son of Stephen Morse and Elizabeth Worth, was born June 30, 1726; married May 20, 1747, ELIZABETH BARTLETT. He was paid four shillings for perambulating the town line between Bradford and Rowley, during the Revolution. March 18, 1777, he was elected one of a Committee of Inspection and Safety. He was a selectman in 1780.

D 967.

JOHN PIKE came from Langford, England. He died May 26, 1654 at Salisbury, Massachusetts.

D 483.

CAPTAIN JOHN PIKE, son of John Pike, died January, 1688-9; married first, MARY ———.

D 241.

JOSEPH PIKE, son of Captain John Pike, was born in 1638; died September 4, 1694 at Newbury, Massachusetts; married January 29, 1661-2 at Newbury, Massachusetts, SUSANNA KINGSBURY.

THE McDOWELLS OF

From manuscripts of Col. Thomas Marshall Green and Miss Mary Davidson.

Among the most warlike of the clans that ranged themselves with the Campbells, to whom they were allied by blood and intermarriages, under the standard of McCallum More, in the series of struggles which led to the expulsion of the right line of Stuarts from the British throne, were the sons of Dowall [or MacDowall; also MacDougall and McDougal in early Scotch history]. They were Presbyterians of the strictest sect, and deeply imbued with the love of civil and religious liberty which has ever characterized the followers of John Knox. One of these was one of the most respectable of the colonists from Scotland and England who settled in the north of Ireland during the protectorate of Cromwell. Among other children, this colonist, McDowell, had a son named Ephraim, which would of itself indicate the stock of the Covenanters.

EPHRAIM McDowell was born in March, 1673; died about 1780 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; married in Ireland, his cousin MARGARET IRVINE who died in Ireland, and was a daughter of James Irvine and Margaret Wylie.

CHILDREN:

- I. Mary Elizabeth McDowell born November 17, 1712; married James Greenlee [see p. 221].
2. II. John McDowell, born in 1714; married Magdalene Woods.+
- III. Margaretta McDowell; married James Mitchell. They moved to South Carolina and there became wealthy. They suffered greatly when the British overran that state during the Revolution. They had four sons in the southern army—all officers. Two were killed at Camden and one received a wound in the leg, which finally caused his death. Major Mitchell, the eldest son, was taken prisoner at Charleston and was sent to Virginia to be exchanged. He remained at Rockbridge several months among his relatives. His son, Thomas Mitchell, married Sarah Hawkins, daughter of Benjamin Hawkins and Martha Burden. Their son, Thomas Mitchell, Jr., settled in Danville, Kentucky, and had a family. He was cashier of a bank in Danville. The descendants of Margaretta McDowell and James Mitchell, through their daughter Mary who married her cousin James Greenlee [see p. 230] are to be found still living in North Carolina. They were all people of wealth and influence from early times in that state, and are so still.

- IV. James McDowell; married near Williamsburg, Virginia. His sons died young. He left daughters who married, but nothing is known of their descendants.

EPHRAIM McDOWELL was the progenitor of the family of that name in Rockbridge County, Virginia and Kentucky. His father was obliged to leave Scotland in the time of civil war, and with his family moved to Ireland. Ephraim was only sixteen years of age when, on the 9th of December, 1688 McDonnell of Antrim approached the walls of Londonderry, and he was one of the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians who flew to the defense of that heroic town and assisted in closing the gates against the intruding natives. He fought at Boyne river [or "Boyne Water" as the Irish say] as well as at Londonderry.

Ephraim McDowell was past middle life when, with his sons John and James and two daughters, he emigrated to America. The exact date of emigration is not known. The journals of Charles Clinton (founder of the well-known New York family of that name), gives an account of the voyage of the George and Ann in company with the John of Dublin, both vessels leaving Ireland on the 20th of May, 1729, and arriving on the American coast in August of that year. On board the George and Ann there appears to have been several families of McDowells, ten of whom died on the passage and all going to Pennsylvania. From the similarity of this and other names, it would seem that Ephraim McDowell and his family, beside a number of his kindred, were among the passengers. At any rate, it was about this time that Ephraim McDowell came over, and with him a number of Irvins, McElroys and Campbells—all settling in the same Pennsylvania county. He remained in Pennsylvania several years. In the fall of 1737, with his son John and son-in-law James Greenlee, he left Pennsylvania to go to John Lewis, a relative who had left Ireland some years before and about 1732 had settled on the Middle River in the Shenandoah Valley, in what was known as Beverly Manor, near the present town of Staunton. It was their intention to locate near him. While on their way, when in camp on Lewis' Creek, a tributary of the South River, Benjamin Borden, Sr., joined them one night. He offered a thousand acres of land to any one who would conduct him to his grant of land. This offer was promptly accepted by John McDowell. The three men conveyed their families to the home of John Lewis and then piloted Borden to what has since been known as "Borden's Grant." In consideration of a liberal share of the claim, the two McDowells and James Greenlee then undertook to assist in carrying out Borden's contract for him, and before the close of the year removed their own families to the grant, where they permanently settled—the first three settlers in that part of the Valley. They soon drew around them other Scotch and Scotch-Irish families: McClungs, McElroys, McCampbells, McKees, Paxtons, Caruthers, Cowans, Campbells, Lyles, Irvins, Caldwelles, Colquhouns, Stuarts—names which have since illuminated every page of Southern and Western history. In the field, in the pulpit, at the bar, in the senate, by their eloquence, learning, courage and patriotism, everywhere they have been conspicuous and have helped to build up and render famous the country with whose history and growth their illustrious names are identified.

Ephraim McDowell lived in Augusta County until his death, having accumulated an estate which was regarded as very large in those days. He was esteemed by all for his intelligence, usefulness and probity, wielding a singular and beneficent influence among the intrepid and independent spirits by whom he was surrounded, and retaining the possession of all his faculties to the last. He is buried in an enclosed cemetery between Lexington and Staunton, Virginia. The children of Governor James McDowell, together with the children of his sisters, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Benton, erected there a monument to their grandfather Colonel James McDowell. Ephraim McDowell's name appears upon the monument, as will be seen in the following copy of the inscriptions upon said monument which is cut out of the dark marble common in Rock-bridge County.

North Face.

“Near this spot repose the remains of Ephraim McDowell, the first of his name in America, who died about 1780;
John McDowell, his son, who was killed by the Indians in 1742: (December 25th)
James McDowell, his son, born 1739, died 1772, and Elizabeth his wife, who died about 1810;
 and also their daughter Elizabeth McGavock, who died 1803.

East Face.

James McDowell was born August, 1770 and died September, 1838. Distinguished by native talent of high order, a gallant and fearless spirit, a noble sense of justice, a lofty courage and an invincible power of will, he lived honorably and usefully, discharging with singular ability and fidelity, the trusts, civil and military, committed to him, and died universally regretted. His remains repose here with those of his ancestors for three generations.

West Face.

Sarah McDowell, daughter of Col. William Preston, and wife of James McDowell, was born May 23, 1768, and died July 3rd, 1841. Born in the stormy period of our national history, her character, moulded by the spirit and developed by the struggle of the times, was eminently truthful, patriotic and elevated; Yet to those traits she added the gentler qualities of the tender and devoted woman and the sincere christian.

South Face.

To commemorate the virtues, to perpetuate the memory; to record the truth, honor, patriotism and public and social fidelity that impressed the generations to which they belonged and enabled them to transmit an honored name to their descendants; and also to testify the gratitude and reverence of their family, is erected to their grandparents, James and Sarah McDowell, by the surviving children of Susan P. Taylor, Elizabeth Benton, and James McDowell, in the year 1855.

This Monument

CAPTAIN JOHN McDOWELL, son of Ephraim McDowell and Margaret Irvine, was born in 1714 in Ireland; killed by the Indians December 25, 1742 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; married probably in Pennsylvania, MAGDALENE WOODS, daughter of ——— Woods and Margaret Campbell. She married second, Benjamin Borden, Jr. When she was 40 years of age she married third, ——— Bowyer who was but 22. She died at an advanced age.

CHILDREN:

3. I. Samuel McDowell, born October 19, 1835; married Mary McClung.+
4. II. James McDowell, born in 1739; married Elizabeth Cloyd.+
5. III. Sarah McDowell; married Colonel George Moffett.+

CAPTAIN JOHN McDOWELL moved from Pennsylvania to Virginia in 1737, and was one of the first settlers in what is now Rockbridge County. When he moved there he had one child, a son two years old. He purchased several tracts of land and built a log cabin. He was just beginning to get comfortably situated when the Indians became troublesome, often making incursions into the neighborhood driving the people from their homes and killing and burning all that came in their way. At length a party of Indians went to Williamsburg where they received presents, and, returning home, passed through Rockbridge. When they got to the frontier settlement they stole some horses, and the news came to Captain McDowell who kept a company of men in readiness for such occasions. He pursued the Indians about eighteen miles from his home and overtook them at the junction of the North and James rivers, but did not intend molesting them if they were peaceable. A lame Indian that was behind the rest was shot and wounded without McDowell's orders, by one of his men. On seeing this the Indians interfered and killed Captain McDowell and eight of his men. At this the rest of Captain McDowell's company fled. After stripping the dead the Indians moved off. On the same day the whites went to the spot and brought in their dead. McDowell's was the only burying-place in the neighborhood. The burial place of these men, the first, perhaps, of the Saxon race ever committed to the dust in Rockbridge County may be found in a brick enclosure on the west side of the road between Lexington and Staunton, near the Red House, or Maryland Tavern, formerly the residence of James McDowell. Entering the iron gate and inclining to the left, about fifteen spaces, you will find a low unhewn stone, about two feet in height, on which in rude letters, by an unpracticed hand, is the following inscription:

Heer lyes
the body of John Mack Dowell died December
1742

3.

SAMUEL McDOWELL ³ { John McDowell ² Ephraim McDowell ¹ }
 { Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

son of Captain John McDowell and Magdalene Woods, was born October 19, 1735 in Pennsylvania; died September 25, 1817 at the home of his son Joseph, near Danville, Kentucky and is buried in the Danville cemetery; married January 17, 1754 MARY McCLUNG. He removed to Kentucky, taking with him all but the two oldest children who remained in Virginia.

CHILDREN:

6. I. Magdalene McDowell, born October 9, 1755; married Andrew Reid.+
- II. Sarah McDowell, born October 9, 1755; married Caleb Wallace; died eight months after marriage, and is buried in the cemetery near Cherry Grove in Rockbridge County.
7. III. John McDowell, born December 8, 1757; married Sarah McDowell; married second, Lucy LeGrand; married third, Jennie Lyle.+
8. IV. James McDowell, born April 29, 1760; married Mary Lyle.+
9. V. William McDowell, born March 19, 1762; married Margaret Madison.+
10. VI. Samuel McDowell, born March 8, 1764; married Anna Irvine; married second, Susan S. Kyles.+
11. VII. Martha McDowell, born June 26, 1766; married Colonel Abraham Buford.+
12. VIII. Joseph McDowell, born September 13, 1768; married Sarah Irvine.+
13. IX. Ephraim McDowell, born November 11, 1771; married Sarah Shelby.+
14. X. Mary McDowell, born January 11, 1774; married Alexander Keith Marshall.+
- XI. Caleb McDowell, born April 17, 1776; married Elizabeth, "Betty" daughter of General Joseph McDowell of North Carolina.
- XII. Andrew Reid McDowell, born in 1778; died unmarried.

SAMUEL McDOWELL inherited, by the laws then prevailing in Virginia, the entire estate of his father, who died intestate. It is stated of him, and as characteristic of his clear sense of justice and native generosity, that no sooner had he attained his majority than he divided this inheritance equally with his brother and sister, giving to the latter almost all of the personality. It may be assumed that the circumstances and career of his youth did not in other respects differ from those of other enterprising young men of the hardy race with which the Valley was peopled. The McClungs, Lyles, Irvins, Campbells and Stuarts were his school-fellows and friends; Robert Alexander, who had been liberally educated in the old country, was his teacher. The exposed situation of a frontier settlement inured him from infancy to hardships and to indifference to danger. His education was better than can usually be obtained in a border land, the most valuable lessons taught him being self-reliance, love of liberty and fear of God. He was a member of the House of Burgesses from 1773 to 1776, when none but the were chosen. He was an active and decided patriot, taking a prominent part in all the meetings and movements in Virginia, which led to the Revolution. In 1775, in conjunction with his relative, Thomas Lewis, son of John, and brother of the hero of Point Pleasant, he was chosen to represent the freeholders of Augusta in the convention which met at Richmond that year; and his name, with that of his scholarly associate, is found appended to an address couched in most elegant language and breathing the most exalted patriotism, directed to the convention, and responded to by Washington, Henry, Harrison, Lee, Bland, and others. He was also a member of the second convention which met at Williamsburg in 1776. He and his two eldest sons, John and James, served as officers in the war, and his fourth son, Samuel, served as a private. With the rank of Colonel he fought and distinguished himself in the battle of Guilford. He raised a battalion at his own expense to aid in repelling the invasion of Virginia by Arnold. In 1783 he was appointed, with Colonel Thomas Marshall, surveyor of the public lands in Fayette County, then constituting more than one-third of Kentucky. He was United States Judge for Kentucky and held the first court ever held in that state, in a log house, between Danville and Harrodsburg. He removed his family to Kentucky in 1784, and was one of the presiding justices of the first County Court held in Kentucky at Harrodsburg, in 1786. He was president of the first state convention held in Kentucky, which was called to frame a constitution for the state, at Danville, April 19, 1792. He presided over the ten conventions held in Kentucky from 1784 to 1792. He was an efficient elder in the Presbyterian Church and, when 81 years of age he rode on horseback from Danville to Nashville to represent the Presbytery in a synodical convention, traveling on an average forty miles a day. He was respected for his strong sense, intelligence, honesty and high character, and died honored by all.

 - V. Jane Reid; married Mr. Venables.
 - VI. Samuel McDowell Reid; married Miss Hare. He was a wealthy citizen of Rockbridge County, Virginia.
- There were four other children, names not given.

 { Mary McClung Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

son of Samuel McDowell and Mary McClung, was born December 8, 1757 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; married his cousin SARAH McDOWELL who died in the 39th year of her age. She was the daughter of James McDowell and Elizabeth Cloyd. He married second LUCY LE GRAND, a French Huguenot; married third, JENNIE LYLE.

CHILDREN:

- I. Patsey McDowell; died unmarried.
- II. Mary McDowell; married Major Thomas Hart Shelby, or James Shelby, son of Governor Shelby, and an officer in the war of 1812.
- III. Sarah McDowell; married Colonel James Allen, a prominent citizen of Fayette County. Had children.
- IV. William McDowell.
- V. John McDowell.
- VI. James McDowell; married Susan (or Sarah) Shelby, daughter of Governor Shelby; died four years later. He was a soldier in the war of 1812 and an eminent physician.
- VII. Samuel McDowell; married Miss Chrisman.
By second marriage:
- VIII. Joseph Nash McDowell; married Miss Drake, a sister of the noted Dr. Daniel Drake. They had, among other children, a son who became a distinguished physician and surgeon. Joseph Nash McDowell was an eminent physician and surgeon, and founder of a medical college in St. Louis.
By third marriage:

- IX. Betsey McDowell; married William McPheeters.
- X. Betsey (?) McDowell; married Henderson Hall.
- XI. Lucy McDowell (youngest daughter by second ? marriage), married Meade Woodson.
- XII. Daughter; married Oliver Keene. [? See Sallie, daughter of James McDowell, No. 8.]

MAJOR JOHN McDOWELL held the rank of captain in the Revolution, in which he fought from the beginning to the close of the war. He crossed the Delaware with General George Washington, was wounded at Brandywine; fought for eight hours at Monmouth, and was at Valley Forge. He was a lieutenant in Woodford's regiment. Collins gives his name as one of the first lot holders in Lexington in 1781, but this is probably a mistake. It is certain, however, that he bought a lot in 1783 and brought his family to Kentucky in 1784, when he settled in Fayette County, near Lexington. He was one of three majors commissioned by Shelby, immediately after the state was formed in 1792, the others being his brother, James, and John Morrison. He represented Fayette County in the first legislature held in Kentucky, and was re-elected for six successive terms. He was a Major in the war of 1812.

 { Mary McClung Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

son of Samuel McDowell and Mary McClung, was born April 29, 1760 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; married MARY LYLE.

CHILDREN:

- 18. I. Isabella McDowell (oldest daughter), married Dr. John Poague Campbell.+
- II. Sallie McDowell; married Oliver Keene, and left one daughter who married Mr. Blackburn.
- III. Samuel McDowell; married Miss Chrisman of Jessamine.
- IV. Juliet McDowell; married Dr. Dorsey of Fleming County, and left two daughters, one of whom, Betsey, married Hon. L. W. Andrews of Fleming County, distinguished in this state as a lawyer, congressman, judge, and above all, as a man incorruptibly honest and patriotic.
- V. Hettie McDowell; married John Andrews, of Fleming, an older brother of Hon. L. W. Andrews, and for a long time the wealthiest man and most extensive and successful merchant in north-eastern Kentucky. Her daughters married brothers named Shepherd, and live in Texas.
- 19. VI. John Lyle McDowell; born about 1794; married Miss Vance.+
- VII. Ephraim McDowell (youngest son), was a successful physician of Mason County. He married and had a son Lucien McDowell who did good fighting in the Confederate army throughout the Civil War, and is also a well-read physician.

COLONEL JAMES McDOWELL entered the Revolutionary army when about sixteen years of age and served to the close of the war. He married the daughter of a half-sister of his mother, moved to Kentucky in 1784 and located near Lexington as a farmer. But 1812, when past the age of military service, found the blood of old Ephraim still coursing rapidly in his veins. With two of his sons, Samuel and John Lyle, he volunteered; held the rank of Colonel, and vindicated the repute of the McDowells on more than one bloody battlefield in the northwest. At Mississinewa, at the head of his command, his horse was shot from under him, and as an Indian was about to shoot Colonel McDowell, the savage fell dead from a well directed ball fired by his son Samuel. The Colonel seems never to have cared for public life, and only to have held office in the military service when risking his life in defense of his country. He helped to found the state, lived to a good old age, and died as calmly as he had lived uprightly. He went by the name of "Old Thunder" among the soldiers.

 { Mary McClung Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

son of Samuel McDowell and Mary McClung, was born March 19, 1762 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; died at Bowling Green, Kentucky; married MARGARET MADISON, a relative of President James Madison, Bishop Madison of Virginia and Governor George Madison of Kentucky.

CHILDREN:

- I. Mary McDowell; married Major George C. Thompson of Harrodsburg, Kentucky. A son, Colonel William M. Thompson, lived at Keokuk, Iowa.
20. II. Agatha McDowell; married James G. Birney.†
- III. Lucinda McDowell; married Dennis Brashear; had daughter, Mary Eliza Brashear, who married as his second wife, Joseph Sultvant, a prominent citizen of Columbus, Ohio.
- IV. Eliza McDowell; married James Gillespie of Danville. Their only daughter married Dr. A. K. Marshall of Jessamine, son of Dr. Louis Marshall.
- V. Daughter; married William Rochester.
- VI. Samuel McDowell; married Nancy Rochester.
- VII. William McDowell; married Miss Cathay.

WILLIAM McDOWELL lived during the early part of his life, not far from Danville, Kentucky, but ultimately settled at Bowling Green. He was the lawyer of the family, his professional attainments being thorough and extensive, and combined with high character, won for him the appointment of United States District Judge for Kentucky, a position in which he gained popularity and esteem.

10.

 24. V. William Adair McDowell, born March 21, 1795; married Maria Hawkins Harvey. +
 VI. Magdalene Reid McDowell, born June 5, 1797; died unmarried near Bowling Green, Kentucky.
 25. VII. Joseph McDowell, born June 6, 1799; married Anna Bush. +
 VIII. Sally McDowell, born June 17, 1801; married March 12, 1819 Jeremiah A. Minter; died in Marion County, Missouri, leaving a large family. One of her grandsons was Colonel A. W. Slayback, a brilliant and popular young lawyer of St. Louis. He commanded a Missouri regiment in the Confederate service and was fearless.
 IX. James McDowell, was born March 19, 1803; died March 25, 1803.
 X. Andrew Reid McDowell, born August 17, 1804; died unmarried April 15, 1828 at Columbus, Ohio.
 26. XI. Alexander Keith Marshall McDowell, born April 19, 1806; married Priscilla McAfee; married second Anne Haupt. +

SAMUEL McDOWELL entered the Revolutionary army as a private under the Marquis de la Fayette, and was at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. He served under Charles Scott in the Indian war of 1811. He was for many years a ruling elder in the Presbyterian church. He was the first United States Marshal for Kentucky, appointed by President Washington in 1787, and served twelve years. [See Butler's History of Kentucky.]

 { Mary McClung Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

daughter of Samuel McDowell and Mary McClung, was born June 26, 1766 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; married COLONEL ABRAHAM BUFORD, a Revolutionary officer whose regiment Tarleton cut to pieces at the Cowpens. He lived to do good fighting afterward, and to acquire a splendid farm in Scott County, Kentucky.

CHILDREN:

27. I. Charles S. Buford; married Miss Adair; married second, Miss Duke.+
 II. Mary Buford; married James K. Duke of Scott County, Kentucky.
 III. William S. Buford of Woodford, married a daughter of Chief Justice George Robinson.

 { Mary McClung Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

son of Samuel McDowell and Mary McClung, was born November 11, 1771 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; died June 20, 1830 at Danville, Kentucky; married in 1802, SARAH SHELBY, daughter of Governor Isaac Shelby of Kentucky.

CHILDREN:

- I. Wallace McDowell; married Miss Mary B. Hall. They moved to Missouri, and their daughter Florence married Thomas H. Shelby of Lexington, Kentucky.
- II. Sarah McDowell; married David Irvin of Richmond, Kentucky.
- III. Mary McDowell; married Colonel George Young.
- IV. Kate McDowell; married R. A. Anderson.
- V. Adaline McDowell; married James A. Deadrich.

DR. EPHRAIM McDOWELL, when an infant, was taken to Danville, Kentucky, then a wilderness. His early education was obtained at a classical seminary at Georgetown, Virginia. He began his medical education in the office of Dr. Humphreys of Staunton, Virginia. From his office he went to Scotland to study, and was a member of the university of Edinburgh in 1793-94. Returning to America after two years' study, he settled at Danville and at once began to practice, both as a physician and surgeon. He speedily acquired the confidence of the public, and rose to distinction as a successful practitioner. He possessed the highest attributes which make up the character of a great physician and surgeon. Combined with his skill, he had a sympathetic nature and great tenderness of heart. He considered surgery as the most certain branch of the healing art, and he spared no means to extend his knowledge of it. He was an excellent anatomist and it is stated that he never performed any serious operation without previously recalling to his mind the structures involved in it. He received from the Medical Society of Philadelphia, in 1817, its diploma of membership, and in 1825 the University of Maryland conferred upon him the degree of M. D. Although his means were not large, Dr. McDowell was liberal in the bestowal of his charities. He was always warmly interested in religion, and in the church, and in 1828 united with the Episcopalian denomination. In 1879 a monument was erected to his memory in McDowell Park by the Kentucky State Medical Society, having upon one side a bronze medallion of McDowell, beneath which is the inscription, "Honor to Whom Honor is Due." MARY McDOWELL ⁴ { Samuel McDowell ² John McDowell ² Ephraim McDowell ¹ } daughter of Samuel McDowell and Mary McClung, was born January 11, 1774 in Rockbridge County, Virginia; married ALEXANDER KEITH MARSHALL.
 { Mary McClung Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

CHILDREN:

- I. Daughter, who married as his first wife William S. Sulivant of Columbus, Ohio. She was the mother of Mrs. Robert E. Neil of Washington.
- II. Daughter; married May 2, 1811, James Alexander Paxton, born September 13, 1788 in Rockbridge County, Virginia, died October 23, 1825 in Washington, Kentucky, son of James Paxton and Phoebe McClung (a sister of Judge William McClung, and niece of Mary McClung who married Samuel McDowell). He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and a very brilliant lawyer.

They had four children:

1. Mary Paxton, born October 22, 1813; married the late Benjamin Harbeson, brother of Charles of Flemingsburg, and John M. Harbeson of Augusta.

2. Alexander Marshall Paxton, b. February 4, 1816; married Sally Bush. He was a member of a firm once well known in Cincinnati, that of Keys, Maltby & Co.

3. Phoebe A. Paxton, born February 2, 1818; married Charles A. Marshall of Mason, Colonel of the 16th Kentucky Infantry of the Union army. One of her sons is Thomas Marshall, a brilliant lawyer of Salt Lake City; another son is Lieutenant William L. Marshall, for a time one of the instructors at West Point, a valued leader in the Wheeling Exploring Expedition, who unites the herculean frame and courage of the McDowells and McClungs to the best intellectual qualities of the family of his own name.

4. William McClung Paxton, born March 2, 1819 at Washington, Kentucky; married October 1, 1840 Mary Forman, daughter of Ezekiel Forman and Dolly Wood. Both living in 1899 at Platte City, Nebraska. They had three children: Anne Paxton, born February 12, 1847; Tillie Paxton, born June 11, 1849; Phoebe M. Paxton, born January 16, 1853.

III. Daughter; married her cousin, John Marshall of Mason County, and was the mother of Dr. Alexander Keith Marshall of Maysville, Mrs. James B. Casey of Covington, and a daughter who was the first wife of the late Frank Chambers of Cincinnati.

IV. James K. Marshall of Paris; had a daughter who married Henry, son of Charles S. Buford and Miss Adair. They had a son, H. Marshall Buford, a talented lawyer of Lexington.

V. Charles Marshall, known as "Black Dan" to distinguish him from others of the same name, married Miss Jane Duke, a daughter of his father's (?) second wife, and from this marriage came the Marshalls of Mill Creek, in Mason County.

ginia; died September, 1838; married SARAH PRESTON, born May 23, 1768, died July 3, 1841, daughter of Colonel William Preston, a Revolutionary officer.

CHILDREN:

28. I. Susan McDowell; married Colonel William Taylor.+
29. II. Elizabeth McDowell; married Colonel Thomas Hart Benton.+
30. III. James McDowell; married Susan Preston.+

JAMES McDOWELL inherited the magnificent estate of his parents, and remained in Virginia. He arrived at prominence, not only on account of his large wealth, but from his strong personal qualities. He was a distinguished colonel in the war of 1812.

 { George Moffett Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

daughter of Sarah McDowell and Colonel George Moffett, married GENERAL JOSEPH McDOWELL, brother of General Charles McDowell (born 1743) who married Grace Greenlee, widow of John Bowman [see p. 231]. He was the son of John McDowell and Margaret O'Neal, widow of ——— Greenlee. He lived on John River and died there. His family returned to Virginia.

CHILDREN:

- I. Hugh Hervey McDowell; married a daughter of Samuel Miller (whose father, Henry Miller, was a kinsman of Daniel Boone). He settled on Mossy Creek, Augusta County, Virginia.
- II. Joseph J. McDowell; went to Ohio and was a member of Congress from that state, 1843-47.
- III. Margaret McDowell; married Governor Allen Trimble of Ohio; had a son, Madison Trimble, a prominent citizen of Hillsborough, Ohio.
- IV. Sarah McDowell; married Mr. Mathews. Rev. Joseph McDowell Mathews of Hillsborough, Ohio is a descendant.
- V. Annie McDowell; married Captain Charles McDowell. [See p. 237.]

GENERAL JOSEPH McDOWELL, member of Congress and soldier, was born in Winchester, Virginia, February 25, 1756; died in Burke County, North Carolina, August, 1801. His father, Joseph (?) McDowell who had emigrated from Ireland in 1730, finally settled at Quaker Meadows, North Carolina. Joseph, who was distinguished from a cousin of the same name as "Quaker Meadows Joe" entered military service at an early age in the campaigns against the Indians on the frontier. In the revolutionary forces he served under his brother, Charles, commander of the district, and fought in all the battles of western North Carolina that followed the invasion of the British in 1780. His brother's troops having disbanded, Joseph was made major and commanded the North Carolina militia in the battle of Kings Mountain. He was subsequently made general of militia. Entering the service of the state at the close of the war, he was sent to the house of commons in 1787, serving until 1792. In 1788 he was a delegate to the North Carolina constitutional convention, in which he was a leader of the opposition that rejected the federal constitution. He passed from the house of commons to Congress in 1792, where for seven years he was an active opponent of the federalists, serving in 1797 as a commissioner for settling the boundary line between Tennessee and North Carolina. He wielded a strong influence as a Republican leader in his section of the state. [National Cyclopedia of American Biography, Vol. II, p. 173.]

ISABELLA McDOWELL ⁵ { James McDowell ⁴ Samuel McDowell ³ John McDowell ²
 Ephraim McDowell ¹ } { Mary Lyle Mary McClung Magdalene Woods
 Margaret Irvine }

daughter of James McDowell and Mary Lyle; married REV. DR. JOHN POAGUE CAMPBELL who died in 1814 aged 47 years, at Chillicothe, Ohio.

CHILDREN:

- I. John Campbell; lived in Iowa and was a man of wealth and prominence.
- II. Margaret Campbell (only daughter); married Thomas J. Pickett of Maysville. Their only son, Thomas E. Pickett of Maysville, is a physician of unusual ability, a man of science whose writings have received high praise in this country and in Europe.

DR. JOHN POAGUE CAMPBELL, to whose personal and intellectual character it is impossible to do justice in this sketch, was the son of Robert Campbell, a native of Scotland, who settled in Augusta County, where his distinguished son was born in 1767, and moved with his family to Lexington in 1781. The wife of Robert Campbell was a Wallace, a lineal descendant of the celebrated Scotch divine, Samuel Rutherford, a member of the Westminster Assembly, and one of the greatest of the writers of the Calvinistic theology. He had a worthy and illustrious inheritor of his blood and religion in the man who is the subject of this sketch. The indications of uncommon talents manifested in his youth, determined his father to give him a liberal education. His teachers were all among the first men of their day. Nineteen years of age found him the Principal of the Academy at Williamsburg, North Carolina, a student of medicine and an infidel. Fortunately his doubts were of brief duration. He abandoned medicine, gave himself up unreservedly to the service of his Master, and graduated at Hampden Sidney, Virginia in 1790. He was licensed to preach in 1792. He immediately became the associate pastor of Dr. Graham of Lexington, Virginia, Oxford, New Monmouth and Timber Ridge churches, Virginia. Returning to Kentucky in 1795, his first labors were at Smyrna and Flemingsburg. His fame spread rapidly and soon Danville, Nicholasville, Cherry Spring, Versailles and Lexington, Kentucky knew him as one of the most eloquent of the soldiers of the Cross. His last work was done at Chillicothe, Ohio.

As a pupit orator Dr. Campbell has had few equals. He was a thorough scholar, not only in the ancient classics, but in modern languages, and as a writer his style was chaste and elegant. His scientific knowledge and attainments were remarkable. His articles in refutation of the elder Darwin have not been equalled by any writer in reply to the present propounder of the theory of evolution. As a logician and controversialist, he was an opponent to be dreaded. His eloquence swept all before it.

 Margaret Irvine }

son of Colonel James McDowell and Mary Lyle, was born about 1794; died December 23, 1878 in the 84th year of his age, near Frankfort, Kentucky; married MISS NANCY VANCE.

CHILDREN:

- I. Daughter; married Captain Samuel Steele.
- II. Hervey McDowell; married his cousin Louisa, daughter of Judge Alexander Keith McDowell. He settled in Cynthiana, Kentucky. He was a man who possessed the family traits to a remarkable degree. He has been conspicuous in both professions followed by so many of the name, medicine and arms. Doctor (sometimes called major) McDowell was a graduate of a military college and also of medicine. He was in the Confederate army in command of the 2nd Kentucky Infantry during the Civil War; was wounded thirteen times, and in prison on Johnsons Island in Lake Erie, seven months. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church.

JOHN LYLE McDOWELL was a gallant soldier in the war of 1812. He participated in most of Shelby's sanguinary engagements in the northwest.

AGATHA McDOWELL ⁵ { William McDowell ⁴ Samuel McDowell ³ John McDowell ²
 Ephraim McDowell ¹ } { Margaret Madison Mary McClung Magdalene Woods
 Margaret Irvine }

daughter of William McDowell and Margaret Madison; married JAMES GILLESPIE BIRNEY son of James Birney and —— Reed.

CHILDREN:

- I. James Birney; arrived at distinction in Michigan and was U. S. minister at The Hague.
- II. William Birney; was for a time professor of English Literature in the University of Paris, but his Republicanism was a little too pronounced to suit the Emperor, Louis Napoleon, and he returned to the United States. During the war he was a general in the Federal army; later, a lawyer at Washington.

- III. David Bell Birney; fought under the gallant Phil Kearney and won the rank of brigadier-general by distinguished services in the field. he died from exposure in 1864.
- IV. Dion Birney; was a successful physician. He was in the Federal army and died in service during the war.
- V. Florence Birney (only daughter); married Charles Jennison, a wealthy citizen of Bay City, Michigan.

DR. JAMES G. BIRNEY was the son of James Birney, an Irish gentleman who settled at an early day on a beautiful farm near Danville and amassed a large fortune. The mother of James G. Birney was one of the handsome sisters of Thomas Reed, a brilliant United States senator from Mississippi, and the daughter of an Irishman named John Reed, on whose head a price was set for rebellion in the old country and subsequently emigrated to Virginia where he married a Miss Wilcox and later became one of the early pioneers of Kentucky, settling at Reed's Station, near Danville, in 1779—a man of strong sense and unbending will. Dr. Birney from his early youth was noted for his handsome person, brilliant talents and scholarly attainments and was a natural orator. Early in life he became hostile to the system of African slavery, and at first entered into the colonization movement, and then living in Alabama, inoculated that state with his views. The process was too slow for his ardent temper and he soon went to greater length, having first emancipated and provided for his own slaves, of whom he had a large number. He was the first Abolition candidate for the Presidency in 1844. He sacrificed one of the largest estates in Kentucky in promoting his principles.

CHILDREN:

- I. Anne McDowell; married Judge J. W. Price; had a large family.
- II. Jane McDowell; married John A. Smith, a member of congress from the Hillsboro district; had children.

JOHN ADAIR McDOWELL was aid-de-camp to General Shelby in the battle of the Thames, 5th October, 1812, Upper Canada. In appreciation of his gallantry on the battlefield, General Shelby presented him with the watch of General Proctor, the British commander, which, after the flight of Proctor, fell with the rest of his baggage into the hands of our troops. The watch is now in the possession of the family of Joseph Sulivant of Columbus, Ohio. John Adair McDowell removed to Columbus, Ohio in 1815, became a successful lawyer, served as prosecuting attorney, as Representative in the Legislature 1820-21, and at the time of his death was presiding judge of his district. He was a remarkably handsome man and a general favorite.

- V. Eloise McDowell; married Frank Bridgman, a paymaster of the U. S. Army, and left two children, Annie and Charles Bridgman.

ABRAM IRVIN McDOWELL was in the war of 1812, and afterward moved to Columbus, Ohio where he long occupied the position of clerk of the supreme court and other courts, and was mayor of Columbus.

24.

WILLIAM ADAIR McDOWELL ⁵ { Samuel McDowell ⁴ Samuel McDowell ³
 John McDowell ² Ephraim McDowell ¹ } { Anna Irvin Mary McClung
 Magdalene Woods Margaret Irvine }

son of Samuel McDowell and Anna Irvin, was born March 21, 1795 in Mercer County, Kentucky; died December 10, 1853 near Evansville, Indiana; married August 24, 1819 at Fincastle, Virginia MISS MARIA HAWKINS HARVEY (sister of Mrs. D. E. Moore, nee Elizabeth Harvey).

CHILDREN:

- I. Sarah Shelby McDowell; married Bland Ballard who was for eighteen years U. S. judge for Kentucky. Five children: Mary, Austin, Bland, Fanny and Susan Ballard.
- II. Mary Lyle McDowell.
- III. Anne Irvin McDowell; married Cyrus H. Bent and left three children: Maria, Emeline and William Bent.
- IV. Magdalene McDowell.
32. V. Henry Clay McDowell; married Anna Clay.†
- VI. John Marshall McDowell; died unmarried aged 20 years.
33. VII. William Preston McDowell; married Kate Wright.†
- VIII. Edward Irvin McDowell; married March, 1864, Miss Alice Johnson of Louisville, Kentucky.

WILLIAM ADAIR McDOWELL was educated at Washington Academy (now Washington and Lee University), residing while there in the family of his uncle, Andrew Reid. He left school and enlisted in the U. S. army and served to the close of the war of 1812. He then returned to Danville, Kentucky and studied medicine with his uncle, Dr. Ephraim McDowell. He graduated at the medical college in Philadelphia and received a diploma signed by Dr. Rush. On his return to Danville, he practiced with his uncle, Dr. Ephraim McDowell, assisting him in his surgical operations, now world famous. Dr. William Adair McDowell published a volume in 1843 unfolding his views on the subject of the cause and cure of consumption, which raised a storm of opposition among the doctors and brought down upon him the persecution which has to be endured by all great benefactors of their race. Dr. James M. Halloway of Louisville, writing to Dr. Joseph Nash McDowell in 1867 says, "nor can I forget that you are the cousin of my fellow-townsmen, Dr. Wm. A. McDowell, whose monograph upon the curability of Consumption in all its stages was the result of a series of clinical observations, instituted by him long before the distinguished Bennett published his views upon the subject."

Beset as Dr. McDowell was on all sides by contemporaries who, like the contemporaries of master minds in every age, were zealous in their efforts to crush out truth, in the development of which they had no part, he pursued the "even tenor of his way," complacently submitting to pecuniary losses, and the temporary impairment of a well earned professional status, built up solely by the firmness of his faith and a proud consciousness of the correctness of his convictions.

In disposition he was gentle and kindly. He was an indulgent and affectionate husband and father, idolized by his family and beloved by all who knew him.

He married in Fincastle, Virginia where he remained until April 28, 1838, when he removed to Louisville, Kentucky. In May, 1850 he removed from Louisville to Ingleside, near Evansville, Indiana. He is buried in the Cave Hill Cemetery at Louisville.

CHILDREN:

- I. Mary McDowell; married Judge Clarke of Jackson, Mississippi, who was killed at Reseca, Georgia, at the head of the regiment he commanded.
- II. Betty McDowell; married Dr. Samuel Welch; settled in Galveston, Texas.

JOSEPH McDOWELL was a lawyer by profession. He excelled in all manly exercise, was a fine horseman, a fine swimmer, and was never beaten in a foot race. He was not a first class orator, but was a forceable speaker. He abandoned the practice of law, and engaged in planting, occasionally preaching for the Methodists which church he had joined. He was a representative in the Mississippi Union State convention before the war. He died before his state seceded. He was brave and fearless, generous, magnanimous, the soul of honor.

JAMES McDOWELL, twenty-fifth governor of Virginia (1843-46), attended several private schools, entered Yale College, and completed his education at Princeton, New Jersey where he was graduated in 1810. He next studied law under Chapman Johnson, at Staunton, Virginia, but never practiced. In 1831 he entered the legislature, and after the Nat Turner insurrection broke out he advocated gradual abolition of slavery. From this time on he was continuously in public life and in the service of the state. His speech on foreign relations brought him to the front in 1833 as a rival of John Tyler for the senatorship, but he was defeated. In 1838 he delivered an address before the Alumni association of Princeton College, so able and eloquent that he was subsequently elected the orator on the occasion of the one-hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the college. In December, 1842 he was elected governor, and on January 1, 1843 entered on the discharge of his duties. Before the close of his term of three years, he was elected to a seat in the U. S. House of Representatives, made vacant by the death of his brother-in-law, William Taylor. He served in Congress with conspicuous ability until 1851. His most memorable effort in Congress was his speech on the admission of California as one of the United States, which was not excelled in ability by any delivered on the floor. son of Abram Irvin McDowell and Eliza Seldon Lord, was born October 18, 1818 in Ohio; died March 5, or May 4, 1885 at San Francisco, California; married in 1849, HELEN BORDEN of Troy, New York who died in 1891 at New York City.

CHILDREN:

- I. Helen E. McDowell.
- II. Henry Burden McDowell.
- III. Elise McDowell.

IRVIN McDOWELL received his early education at the College of Troyes, in France, and was graduated from West Point in 1838, becoming second lieutenant in the 1st artillery. He was recalled to the Military academy and served four years. On the outbreak of the Mexican trouble, he was appointed aide-de-camp to General John E. Wool. He attained the rank of major March 31, 1856. He was made brigadier-general May 14, 1861 and assigned to the command of the department of northeastern Virginia. On May 29th he was transferred to the army of the Potomac. March 14, 1862 he was made major-general of Volunteers. He was retired from active duty on the field September 6, 1862. On July 1, 1864, he was assigned to the command of the department of the Pacific, and on July 27, 1865 he was transferred to the department of California, holding the latter office until March 31, 1868. Meanwhile he was mustered out of the volunteer service and received the brevet of major-general, U. S. A., September 1, 1866. In July, 1868 he was assigned to the department of the East, and on November 25, 1872 he was promoted major-general. After this he had command of the division of the South until June 30, 1876, and of the department of the Pacific until his retirement October 15, 1882.

He was a man of refined tastes. He had an especial fondness for landscape gardening, and for some years was one of the park commissioners of San Francisco. [See National Cyclopaedia of American Biography.]
