One Thousand Eight Hundred and Seventy-six, by JUSTUS ROE, in the Office of the Librarian of Congress at Washington D. C.

INTRODUCTORY.

Nature makes the tail of a horse to follow the animal; art, or common custom, has made the Preface of a book to lead it, neither are strictly necessary, or even essential, and yet while the one may be useful in switching away the flies, in fly time, the other may be equally useful for an opposite purpose, and at any time.

Nature seldom makes a blunder in any of her efforts, never! an apology; art often makes the one, and the apology that follows is generally worse than the blunder. If I have made the former in presenting this my first born to the public, it is now too late to make the latter; it is my maiden effort, and I must father the little one, trusting that by kind nursing from a generous public, it may grow in age, cast off its baby clothes, be able to sport a mustache and a cane, wear an ulster, part its hair in the middle, be a welcome guest in every household, travelling bag, or pocket, and some day be ornamental as well as useful to the world.

Common custom requires in a work of this kind a few hints, or words of advice, but for me to give advice to the great body of Commercial Travellers of our country, would be as silly as to feed a Kentucky mule, with Connecticut shoe pegs, and try to convince him that they are a new kind of oats raised in Nebraska. If any of them stand in need of that article, let them ask the first fool they meet on the street, few of them but know more than I do. And for me to advise the Hotel-keepers is almost as silly, as few of them but know better than I "how to keep a Hotel," and few of them about the country, but have received circulars and letters from me, and been bored enough already by me, in my endeavor to convince them of the advantages of a notice in my Guide, and telling them what little I know about hotel-keeping after nearly thirty years experience. To give advice is not my FORTE, I need it myself, but in view of the fact that information which cannot be relied upon is dear at any price, it has been my endeavor to give that which is perfectly reliable and trustworthy, and so meet the demand of the travelling public, let the cost be what it may.

My Guide has not been made up from Directories and the names and prices guessed at, you can guess full as well, or perhaps better than I. With the exception of the figures marked with an x, and in those cases I have heard from sources I felt to be quite trustworthy, the rates given are about the price charged, and every figure can be relied upon almost implicitly, as I have letters from the landlords in my office to show by what authority I use them, with the positive assurance from hundreds of them, that Guests with my Card will be treated with more than ordinary care and attention for the same or less pay; but the rates as they appear in my Guide, have been exclusively made to me, and are in no sense to be used as public property, or be regarded as the regular rates.

My Book is not an old face you have always perhaps been glad to welcome, but a new one, come to win its way to your favor, and its true reward. It is the little pioneer log house hotel, at the "cross roads," ready to entertain with good cheer the few guests it may now receive, and hoping some day to erect on its present site, a palatial Hotel and be able to entertain you in royal style.

All advertisements have been carefully excluded, in order to make the Guide as small as possible so as to be carried in the pocket with ease and comfort. The work will be kept standing in type, will only be issued as fast as disposed of, will be continually revised, as issued, and new Hotels, change of name or Proprietor, will be inserted as fast as received. You have only my word for this, but in this Centennial year I shall try to be as near like our great Father as I can; he couldn't tell a lie, I can, but I wont, on paper.

My Book will be sent by Mail, and Card by letter, free of Postage, on receipt of price. Books without Cards sold to all travellers. Books with Cards, sold only to Hotel keepers and Commercial Travellers.

To those who have in the past aided me, I return my hearty thanks; to those who in the future can and will do so, here's my right hand, which holds the keys to my pantry and cellar, and here's my left hand which gets hold of my pocket book first, where I carry my postage stamps and SICH.

Fraternally Yours,

JUSTUS ROE.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USING CARD.

On the face of my Card you will perceive my request to the landlord of the Hotel whose rates appear in this Guide, and from whom I have received a letter authorizing me to use his name, rates, &c., and my signature at the bottom. On the back of the Card you must attach in your own handwriting, your name, residence, and business engaged in. On presenting yourself at the desk of a Hotel, rated in my Book where you desire accommodation, you have simply to present the Card and ask the landlord or his clerk if he recognises Mr. Roe, or the Card, if his answer is 'yes, you place your name upon the Register, which must correspond with the name upon the Card, and you will then know, by reference to the Guide, whether your stay be long or short, precisely what your bill will be.

By all means present my Card when you ask accommodation at any Hotel rated in my Guide, and distinctly remember that the rates given me are for such plain and regular accommodation as an ordinary Traveller should require, and all meals ordered out of the regular hour, or carried to rooms, fires, &c., are to be paid for extra.

For Key and instructions for using the same see Pages 118 and 119.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USING THE KEY.

The Key on the opposite page is referred to by the figures, and capital letters following the names &c. of the Hotels as follows, for instance at the American Hotel in Boston, of which Messrs. Lewis Rice & Son are the Proprietors, the terms are $3.00 per day, no rates given for parts of a day, and no reduction; the same with the Sturtevant Hotel in New York, of which Lewis & George S. Leland, are the Proprietors, $4.00 per day.

R. S. Bailey & Son of the Franklin Square Hotel, Philadelphia, regular rates $3.00 per day; Commercial Travellers with my GUIDE rate as in upper column A J per day, or parts of day, and as in lower column A J per week or parts of week, or 75 cents for dinner or lodging, and 50 cents for Tea or Breakfast, and $2.00 per day, $6.00 for three days, $9.00 for five days, and $12.00 per week.

Maurice L. Harnett of Bresnans Hotel, Savannah, kept on both American and European plan, the A following the rate in all cases meaning that the Hotel is kept on the American plan and the E following that it is kept on the European plan, and as in the case of Bresnaus Hotel, that it is kept on both plans. On the American plan as in upper column A I per day and parts of day, and as in lower column A H per week, or parts of week, and as in bottom column E F on the European plan per day, per week, or parts of week.

The x following the rates means that while I am quite positive such are the rates per day, as I have received them from what I consider a very trustworthy source, is not to be relied upon, but where no x appears I have received the information direct per letter from the landlord, which letters are now on file in my office.

S. R. following the name of the Hotel, means that it is a summer resort, and the prices are higher usually in summer, than the rates given.

The letter M following the name of the Proprietor means that he is the Manager or Superintendent instead of Proprietor.
