Mr. Vanderbilt prefers the Kranich & Bach to any other piano made in the United States

VANDERBILT HAS FUN WITH ELECTRIC PIANO

Surprises Friends in Plaza With Trick Instrument That Seems to Play Itself

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt played a trick on some of his friends who were calling on him in his apartment at the Plaza yesterday, and enjoyed it hugely. While the guests were chatting away about Horse Show prospects, a magnificent new grand piano that had just been installed in Mr. Vanderbilt's sitting-room began playing as if suddenly possessed of a demon.

Mr. Vanderbilt had made no movement and the visitors could not understand it until their host explained.

The grand piano is played by electricity from Mr. Vanderbilt's dining-room. Steel sheets of perforated "music" take the place of the fingers of a performer. A cable containing as many wires as there are keys is connected, and an electrical impulse causes each wire by an electro-magnetic arrangement to pull its key down at the proper time. The piano and the electrical mechanism are said to have cost Mr. Vanderbilt a round sum.—From "New York World," Sunday Nov. 7th, 1909.

It is our pleasure to sell Kranich & Bach Pianos in Montgomery.

ADAM, do you know an elegantly dressed woman when you meet her? Of course you do. And so the reason we do such a large share of the printing for women's clubs and societies is because our work possesses a subtle quality of elegance which is always appreciated by people of refinement.

The Store That Promotes Better Merchandising

Is where the merchandise is absolutely dependable—where a one price policy wins customers' confidence—and where attentive service expedites pleasant shopping.

It's the Knowles' Store.

Ask the fashionable dressers of Montgomery where they buy their hats—their suits—their stylish haberdashery?

They will tell you "The Knowles' Store."

Well dressed women recommend us perhaps unthinkingly, but just as unquestionably, as being the best place to find exclusive merchandise.

We import directly from Europe, an enterprising feature of our buying policy, practiced by no other store in this section.

Social Events

Usually carry the highest degree of social pleasure when they are held in the home where the highest degree of domestic happiness prevails.

We do not always find a modern kitchen in the home of the housewife who keeps the most tidy parlor---but it is almost an assured fact that supreme social happiness reigns in the home where we find the modern kitchen.

The elevated Gas Range builds the modern kitchen.

Prefatory Note

This volume is an unpretentious attempt to set forth the organized social life of Montgomery, the capital city of the State of Alabama. It is certain that the information assembled, even with all of the limitations of brevity, will prove of substantial service to the hundreds who may consult the book.

Following the lists of City, County, State and United States officials, the several organizations are grouped in four general classes, which will indicate the scope of the volume, namely, Churches and benevolent institutions, Historical and patriotic organizations, Literary clubs, and Social organizations. The aim has been, not the preparation of histories or historical sketches, but the presentation, in a brief way, of only such facts as would be of practical service. It is desirable that the book should be in daily, even hourly use, and the plan and arrangement are directed to meeting the anticipated demand.

Much pains has been taken to harmonize the materials assembled. And yet, owing to the variety of sources from which the lists and other facts were gathered, and the difficulty in obtaining details in many instances, it will be found that the effort has not been wholly successful. In every case, however, the lists given, with the spelling of names and the initials, are reproduced with literal exactness, except in cases where known errors appeared. In case errors are detected, this explanation should be kept in mind.

In assembling the data, the compiler has been the recipient of numerous courtesies for which grateful acknowledgement is here made. Acknowledgement is also made to advertisers, through whose generous aid it has been possible to carry the work to completion.
