THREE HUNDRED MILLIONS IS AMOUNT OF CAPITAL ESTIMATED TO HAVE COME INTO CANADA DURING LAST FEW MONTHS

Canadian Pacific Brings in One Hundred Million Dollars by New Stock Issue and Bankers' Estimates Are That One Hundred and Fifty Millions Have Been Realized by Sales of Municipal Securities

STRONG TIDE OF IMMIGRATION CREDITED WITH IMPORT OF FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS

Montreal, July 10.—The estimate was made to-day by a financial authority that possibly close to $300,000,000 has come into Canada in the last few months through exports of grain and through immigration, and that despite the talk of continued stringency, the Canadian situation must have been relieved to that extent since the pinch began to be felt. Estimates of the outflow of money from Canada in interest payments, in the adjustment of trade balance, in the repurchase of Canadian securities sold by foreign investors, etc., are more difficult.

The $300,000,000 estimate, however, does not include sales of Canadian securities, other than those by municipalities. The C. P. R., through its new stock issue is bringing in close to $100,000,000 of outside money and despite a tight money market good sized blocks of railway and industrial securities have been disposed of abroad in the first half of the year, so over and above the $200,000,000 the inflow of money has been one of fairly large volume.

ARRANGE CREDIT TO HANDLE WHEAT CROP

Negotiations Under Way Between Canadian and London Banking Institutions

Montreal, July 10.—Negotiations are at present under way between Canadian chartered banks and their London connections which, if carried to a successful issue, will probably have a distinct bearing on the money market situation. Hitherto Canadian banks have had their resources more or less tied during the months in which the movement of wheat takes place, and the strain has usually had a deterrent effect upon the market situation generally.

For months prior to harvesting the rapidly increasing crops of the west, the banks have been compelled to curtail credits in almost every branch of their operations in order that the movement of the grain from the west areas may be handled expeditiously. It is understood that arrangements have been made recently whereby several large London banks will come to the assistance of Canadian institutions. The method employed will be very much similar to that used in the United States in respect to financing the cotton crop, and a widespread application to the principle it is felt will do away with much of the inconvenience characteristic of the autumn season.

When the crops are harvested and the demand for money assumes proportions in the west the Canadian banks will draw on their London connections three months' bills, selling the exchange at a time when the demand is low. When these bills mature it is probable that a renewal for three months more will be arranged for, so that by the time the wheat is actually in England or en route to the market there, the banks will be in a position to pay their obligations in London by bills drawn on the English consignees of the cargoes. In this way London will be simply advancing its credit to pay for the grain which eventually reaches there, or in other words will be going good for the sum involved sufficiently ahead of time to ease the money situation here.

The whole principle is, however, based entirely upon credit, as the London bankers are in a position to sell the bills drawn by the Canadian institutions and accepted by themselves on the London money market, where paper of this nature is readily negotiable.

HAD THRILLING TIME IN AN ARMY BIPLANE

Fell Six Hundred Feet Before Regaining Seat and Righting Air Machine.

San Diego, Cal., July 10.—Saved from being dashed to death when his heel caught between a steering wire and a strut and then falling 600 feet in a biplane was the thrilling experience yesterday of Captain F. B. Hennessy, one of the military pilots attached to the first aero squadron at North Island, according to information made public to-day. He had attained a high altitude when his plane pitched forward and threw him out of his seat. His right foot became caught in the wires which control the ailerons. The plane immediately began to fall.

Captain Hennessy, however, succeeded in wrenching his foot free, regained his seat and righted the machine within 200 feet of the water. He said that the machine dropped 600 feet.

REPORT FIVE DIE IN TAMALPAIS FLAMES

Towns May Be Saved, but May Go If Afternoon Trades Blow

SIX THOUSAND MEN FIGHTING THE FIRE

Commander of Dakota Says Men's Lives More Valuable Than $4,000 House

COMMISSARY ORDERED TO CUT OFF RATIONS

San Francisco, July 10.—Five soldiers are reported to have been burned to death and half a dozen little hamlets and towns at the foot of Mount Tamalpais await their salvation, or their doom, from the afternoon trade winds, while the fire which swept the mountain for three days is reaching toward the Pleasant plains and vineyards to the north and the Muir Woods National Park on the south.

Every available soldier in the San Francisco Presidio and Fort Winfield Scott, on this side of the bay, and Forts Baker and Barry, across the Golden Gate, is fighting the fire, side by side with civilians and sailors. Probably six thousand men are on the fire lines, seeking to beat back or wear out a blaze which burst out with incredible fury late yesterday and extended early this morning over a ten-mile sweep.

The recurring of the fire came like lightning. Late yesterday afternoon the town of Mill Valley lay hot and quiet between the big ridges which radiate like spokes from Mount Tamalpais. A smoldering spot one of those ridges showed where the fire was being fought into apparent submission on the north slope of the mountain, while aloft toward the Muir Woods showed never a smudge. In front of Muir Woods Inn a company of soldiers went through a desultory roll call and inspection.

An hour later these troops were fighting apparently without hope against a fire which burst down upon them from West Point, three-fourths of the way up Mount Tamalpais, and was eating at the edges of the great Sequoia. The clouds of smoke obscured the sun, bringing early twilight to the peninsula, and a force of civilians started digging early twilight along the ridge which separates the woods from Mill Valley. This town was already in more imminent danger from another fire raging along the ridge which divides it from the villages of Larkspur and Corte Madera. Thousands of residents seized what valuables they could and fled.

Until midnight the protection of the towns and the woods even for the night was problematical. By that time the 40-mile wind which drove the flames across big fire lanes had quieted, and at half-past one the situation was reported in hand for the night.

Capt. Charles P. Plunkett, commanding the cruiser South Dakota, marched 600 of his men from the Mill Valley station up to the border of the fire in Cascade canyon, took a look at the fire and marched them back again. They entrained for Sausalito.

In the presence of Mayor Klyce, Col. Bell and a hundred citizens, Capt. Plunkett said: "It would take all the people in California to put out that fire. I have expert gun pointers among my men, worth $25,000 apiece to the government. I am not going to risk their lives in saving a $4,000 house for a private citizen."

Following Capt. Plunkett's retreat from the fire line, Major John P. Haines, U. S. A., directed Capt. Armstrong, of the National Guard, in charge of the commissary, to issue no rations to men who were not active in fighting the fire.

Adjutant-General E. A. Forbes, commander-in-chief of the California National Guard, looked over the ground and said that he would have 1,000 militiamen on hand to-day.

SETTLERS FOR ISLAND.

Winnipeg, July 10.—Captain Tudge, head of the Salvation Army immigration department, left to-day for Victoria. Mrs. Tudge is at present at Victoria. His second party of settlers for Vancouver Island left here to-day and consists of eighty persons, thirty of whom are domestic servants.

The party is in charge of Staff Capt. and Mrs. Pinchin, the Salvation Army embarkation agent at Liverpool.

London, July 10.—The Earl of Craven has been appointed King's lieutenant for the county of Warwick in succession to the Marquis of Northampton.

GLORIES OVER FIRE AND EXPLODED BOMB

Mrs. Edith Rigby Surrenders to Police and Tells Militant Exploits

BURNED LEVER'S HOME AS BEACON FOR KING

Scotland Yard Believes Suffragettes Planned to Kidnap His Majesty

DYNAMITE USED ON YORKSHIRE RAILWAY

Liverpool, July 10.—A dramatic confession of incendiarism was made to-day by a well-known militant suffragette, Mrs. Edith Rigby, wife of a physician at Preston, to the magistrate sitting in the police court here. She was remanded for further hearing.

Mrs. Rigby declared it was she who last Tuesday burned down the country residence at Rivington, near Horwich, Lancashire, of Sir William H. Lever, and caused damage estimated at $100,000. She further confessed to being the perpetrator of the outrage at the Liverpool cotton exchange on July 6, when a bomb exploded but caused little damage.

Mrs. Rigby surrendered voluntarily to the police. When arraigned to-day she gloried in her achievements, saying she wanted Sir William H. Lever to consider whether his house was more valuable as a showplace than as a beacon lighted for the King and the country to see women suffering an insupportable grievance.

She told the magistrate: "I lit that beacon. I also placed the explosives in the Liverpool stock exchange to show how easy it is to procure them and to place them in public buildings. I might just as easily have blown up the Nelson monument."

"I chose the Liverpool cotton exchange because the cotton industry has been built up largely by women's labor. The merchants are willing to get power and wealth out of the labor of women while the women themselves are denied the vote and citizenship. This is the first knock at the door. Under the 'cat and mouse act' one of the greatest women in the land is going to be done to death. If the government is going to kill that woman this is a warning."

She referred to Mrs. Rankin, who has been a member of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant suffragette organization, for many years and has taken a great part in public movements to promote the welfare of women. She has been imprisoned five times in connection with the suffrage movement and was on several occasions released because of the breakdown of her health after "hunger striking."

Such alarm has been caused by the recent suffragette demonstrations aimed at King George that a special bodyguard was provided for His Majesty to-day to protect him from actual injury at the hands of the women. On one occasion a report spread that an attempt had been made to assassinate the King, and the women were roughly handled.

THIRTY PASSENGERS SEE DROWNING NEAR SEATTLE

Seattle, July 10.—With thirty passengers watching his death struggle and powerless to assist him, Walter Rosenbaum, a deckhand on the Sound steamer Hyak, was drowned yesterday afternoon a short distance from Seattle, when the falls connected with the davits gave way during the course of a fire drill. A. E. Johnson, also a deckhand, was carried into the bay, but escaped with a badly lacerated scalp.

Rosenbaum's body was not recovered. He was 23 years old and lived at Cove, Vashon Island.

COUNT HAYASHI DEAD.

Tokio, July 10.—Count Tadasi Hayashi, one of the leading statesmen of Japan, died to-day aged 63; after a surgical operation rendered necessary by injuries he suffered in a jirihaw accident. He was at one time minister of foreign affairs under Premier Saionji, and in the last Saionji cabinet, which resigned in December, 1912, he was minister of communications. He had a long diplomatic career, having been minister to China and to Russia and ambassador to the court of St. James.

WHEN HOME RULE BECOMES OPERATIVE JOHN REDMOND WILL FORM GOVERNMENT

Forecast of Procedure is Given by the London Daily

HOPE TO RESTORE OLD COLLEGE GREEN HOUSE

Present Hope That Duke of Connaught Will Be Lord-Lieutenant

PLANS OF ULSTERMEN ARE LITTLE OBSCURE

London, July 10.—The Home Rule bill which passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Monday is now in something like its final form. In a forecast of the procedure as regards the Institution of Home Rule, the Daily News says: "On the act becoming operative it is understood the King will be advised to send for John Redmond, who will be asked to form a government. On the final passage of the bill Irish privy councillors will be conferred on Messrs. Redmond and Dillon and their leading colleagues. In due course Mr. Redmond will retire from the active leadership of the Nationalists in the House of Commons and will doubtless be succeeded by T. P. O'Connor.

"Mr. Redmond's retention of office will depend upon the result of the Irish election. There is little doubt that he will obtain a working majority and the first duty of his government will be to establish a responsible administration in Dublin on a firm and durable basis.

"With the final passage of the bill the self-denying ordinance whereby the Nationalists refuse to take office under the crown or attend state functions will be cancelled, the Lord Lieutenant's court will become for the first time representative of Irish society and the question of a royal residence in Ireland can be practically considered.

"It is hoped in Nationalist circles that arrangements may be made with the Bank of Ireland whereby the old parliament house on College Green may be restored to its constitutional functions. The chamber of the Irish House of Lords still remains much as it was, and if it were devoted to the Irish Senate it would be here that the opening ceremony would naturally be enacted and the King's speech read. It is the present hope that under Home Rule the Duke of Connaught may be Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

"The character of Mr. Redmond's policy will be what in this country would be called Conservative. It may be taken as certain that the main desire of responsible persons will be to respect the susceptibilities and pay due honor to the high character of the Protestant counties.

"As regards the plans of the Ulstermen, the Daily News says: "They are a little obscure. In the event of an Irish election taking place the Ulstermen, according to present intentions, will be counselled not to vote.

"Drilling is undoubtedly proceeding in four counties, but it must be clearly understood that there will be no shooting down of these levies unless it is absolutely necessary to protect lives and property of the Catholic minority. Indeed, one suggestion is that when the present controversy has blown over the Ulster levies might contribute valuable additions to the territorial army.

"The whole contention of the Home Rulers is that occasion for the use of the levies against the crown will never arise, since no attack on religious or civil liberty is either contemplated or conceivable.

"It is anticipated that the royal assent to the Home Rule bill will be signified about the month of June next year. The act comes into operation on the first Tuesday in February, 1915.

But by an order-in-council the Imperial government can antedate the operation by seven months, or post-date it seven months, and it may be assured that the operation of the act will not take effect until after the general election of 1915 for the United Kingdom. By that election 103 Irish members will be sent to Westminster. Those members will retain their seats in the Imperial parliament until the Irish parliament comes into being early in 1915."

MISS ELEANOR CHURCH TO REMAIN WITH QUEEN

London, July 10.—Queen Mary has withdrawn her consent that Miss Eleanor Church, one of her entourage, should enter the service of Princess Auguste Victoria of Hohenzollern, King Manuel's fiancée. The princess engaged Miss Church to come to her after her marriage to King Manuel and in accordance with etiquette obtained Queen Mary's consent. Queen Mary learned later that if Miss Church entered the princess' service it would be necessary for her to become a Roman Catholic and reconsidered her action. Miss Church is apparently willing to become a Roman Catholic but the princess will not take her without Queen Mary's consent.

DEMOCRATS MUST AT ONCE RATIFY TREATY

Dominion Government May Withdraw on Fisheries Agreement With United States

Ottawa, July 10.—That unless the Democratic party at the session beginning at Washington in December takes up the ratification of the treaty with Canada regarding the joint protection of fisheries in international waters, the Canadian government will withdraw from the treaty, is the statement made here to-day. Early this year Hon. J. D. Hazen went to Washington and interviewed President Wilson as to the attitude of the Democrats toward the measure which was originally a Republican one. The reply obtained was that as the present session of congress was a special one to deal with tariff only, there was no possibility of ratification coming up before the December session.

Since Mr. Hazen's visit it has been learned that owing to the fact that in the United States there are no uniform fisheries regulations, each state being allowed to pass its own fisheries laws, the treaty will meet with much opposition at Washington. It is five years since the treaty was first drawn up and the continual delays at Washington have caused the Canadian government to now consider its abandonment.

At many places along the border the state regulations, especially as regards closed seasons, are very lax, while the uniform Canadian regulations are strict, and this works a great hardship in Dominion waters adjacent to the boundary. The practical failure of the United States to ratify the treaty causes much regret in official circles, and will, it is felt, work a hardship on the Canadian industry. The Dominion regulations especially regarding the protection of fish returning to the spawning grounds, which are in Canadian territory, so that American fishermen directly have nothing to lose.

HAVANA POLICE FIND CONSPIRACY TO MURDER

Soldiers Lined Streets During Time of Funeral of Late General Amando Riva.

Havana, July 10.—The Cuban secret police report the discovery of a conspiracy among the adherents of Governor Asbert to assassinate Colonel Aurelio Hevia, secretary of the interior, whom they accuse of attempting to disrupt their party by ordering the late General Amando Riva, chief of the Cuban national police, to raid the Asbert Club on Monday night.

This action apparently precipitated the tragedy on the Prado in which General Riva was mortally wounded. No arrests have been made but the suspects are closely watched. Colonel Hevia is strongly guarded.

Apprehension was felt that trouble might attend the passage of the funeral procession of General Riva through the city this afternoon.

Detachments of infantry, cavalry and artillery escorted the body, while other troops and police lined the route of the procession.

AUBREY BOUCAULT DEAD.

New York, July 10.—Aubrey Boucault, actor and playwright, died of pneumonia to-day at the New York hospital. He had been in poor health for years. Mr. Boucault was a son of Dion Boucault, a well-known English actor, and was born in London in 1868. He came to this country in 1890.

RUSSIA INTERVENES BALKAN WAR AT END

Bulgaria Places Her Affairs in Hands of Foreign Power Without Reserve

ROUMANIAN ACTION WILL BE PREVENTED

France to Negotiate With Serbia and Greece on Terms of Peace

TERMINATE HOSTILITIES BY END OF THE WEEK

St. Petersburg, July 10.—Because of the terrible slaughter attending the second Balkan war between the allies, Russia has decided to intervene at once, it is reported in official circles to-day. Russia expects to terminate hostilities before the end of the week and prevent Roumania engaging in war against Bulgaria.

St. Petersburg, July 10.—Later to-day Bulgaria placed herself unreservedly in the hands of Russia with the view of bringing about a cessation of hostilities in the Balkans and in order to prevent further bloodshed.

London, July 10.—It is officially confirmed here that Bulgaria has taken the initiative of asking the European powers to try to end the Balkan war.

Vienna, July 10.—France has undertaken to negotiate with Serbia and Greece on behalf of Bulgaria to ascertain what terms of peace can be arranged.

The French government has advised the Greeks and the Serbians not to demand too much or otherwise Bulgaria is likely to prefer to take the chances of fighting out the quarrel.

Belgrade, July 10.—The Bulgarian troops continue to retire, closely pursued by the Serbians, according to official reports received here. The Bulgarians retreating from Ispit had intended to occupy Radovitch, an important town some miles to the east, but the Serbian cavalry drove them out of this strategic position yesterday. The Bulgarians fled precipitately, leaving the dead and wounded and throwing away rifles, ammunition and food.

Athens, July 10.—A Greek naval force to-day occupied the seaport of Kavala, on the Aegean Sea, hitherto in the hands of the Bulgarians. The valley of Strumitza has also been taken possession of by Greek troops.

SENATOR ELLIS DIES AGED EIGHTY-EIGHT

Was Part Owner of St. John 'Globe' and Edited Paper for Fifty-Two Years.

St. John, July 10.—Senator John Valentine Ellis, one of the proprietors of the St. John Globe, and who has been editor of that paper for 52 years, died to-day. He has been in failing health since his return from Ottawa and has gradually been growing worse. All the members of his family except his son John, of Washington, were with him at the end.

The late Senator Ellis was born in Halifax, February 14, 1825, and was the author of many essays on Canada. He was elected to the New Brunswick legislature in 1852 and 1856, and to the House of Commons 1885-90, 1896-1909, and was afterwards appointed to the Senate. He was president of the Natural History Society of New Brunswick.

WINNIPEG BUILDINGS PASS $10,000,000 MARK

Winnipeg, July 10.—Winnipeg building permits to-day passed the ten-million-dollar mark and indication are that last year's record of twenty millions will be passed, as permits have not yet been taken out for the new three-million-dollar parliament buildings, Quebec Bank, Pantages Theatre, new Hudson's Bay store, nor Peter Lyall & Sons' building of eighteen storeys, which will be the highest in Canada, and an addition to the C. P. R. hotel and depot to cost a million dollars and the doubling Fort Garry hotel to cost three-quarters of a million.

WEST AUSTRALIA HAS BRITISH IMMIGRANTS

Of Ten Thousand Last Year Forty-Eight Were Foreign Born People

London, July 10.—The fifteenth annual Western Australia dinner was held at the Trocadero restaurant, Lieut.-Col. Sir Newton J. Moore, agent-general for Western Australia, presiding.

The guest of the evening was Lewis Harcourt, M. P., secretary of state for the colonies, and many other distinguished people were present.

Mr. Harcourt, in proposing the toast of "Western Australia," dwelt on the moral and material progress of that state, which had a territory equal to about a quarter of Europe. The great desideratum of a state of that size, he said, was population, and the government of the dominion were taking energetic measures to secure it.

The immigrants last year numbered 10,000, of whom only 48 were not British subjects. The legislation of Western Australia was progressive and illuminating, and while that state did not disdain to learn from Great Britain in some things—for he believed that the provisions of the workmen's compensation act were similar to the British act—it had set an example with regard to the settlement of trade disputes.

Mr. Harcourt then spoke of the prosperity of the gold mining industry, the pearling industry, and the greatest industry of all, agriculture, and he pointed out that the revenue of the state last year was £500,000 in excess of the expenditure.

NEW INDIAN CAPITAL ROUSES LORD CURZON

Former Viceroy Urges Economy in Building and Deference to Native Opinion

London, July 10.—Lord Curzon referred in unmistakable terms of disapproval to the change of the capital of the Indian empire from Calcutta to Delhi in the speech which he delivered at the 11th annual Calcutta dinner at the Hotel Cecil.

Having spoken of the astonishing progress which had taken place in late years in Calcutta, a city which always seemed to him to be a fitting embodiment not merely of their labors but of British rule in India, Lord Curzon said that he had never hidden his view that a mistake was made by his majesty's ministers, when they had placed in the mouth of the sovereign the momentous decision to remove the capital of India from Bengal.

He held that the decision to abandon a place with such memories behind it as Calcutta, and to go hunting about for a new capital among the deserted cities of forgotten kings, to spend millions of the money of India—perhaps available now, but not so certain to be available a few years hence—and then to construct a new capital which, as it seemed to him, would be shut out from the public life of the country and from the currents of public opinion, and in which the government would have nothing to contemplate but its own official charms, was not likely to be fraught with good to the interests which the British were in India to safeguard and to defend.

He considered it as his duty to point out that every objection which had been expressed by Lord Curzon, Lord Minto and himself two years ago had been confirmed rather than shaken, and that public opinion in India had very much altered in the interval. It was impossible at this time to alter the decision which had been made, but it seemed to him that the best thing which could happen with regard to the new capital of Delhi would be, at the government of India should not be ready to spend rupees on palaces and cathedrals and libraries, and should adapt themselves to the restricted circumstances of the case.

POLICY OF NATIONAL FORESTRY NOW URGED

Campaign of Unparalleled Activity as Result of Convention Held at Winnipeg

Winnipeg, July 10.—The final meeting of the Canadian forestry convention held in the industrial bureau this evening was featured by a series of resolutions and discussions which marked a distinct advance in the work of the association, and laid out for the executive and the members a campaign of unparalleled activity in the history of the organization. The central point of the discussion on immediate extension of the activities was a resolution by V. C. Brown, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, as follows:

"That the executive committee take into their consideration the advisability of appointing, first, a central committee at Ottawa and sub-committees at important points in different sections of Canada to formulate a national forestry policy, and second, advisory boards to each centre where a sub-committee is formed."

The probable definite action of the executive committee upon this suggestion will involve, it is expected, an immediate extension of the association's power and the augmentation of a larger number of members to the work in hand.

In closing the convention, Hon. W. A. Charlton, of Toronto, laid special stress upon the advance which had been made by the association in holding its convention in Winnipeg, and expressed the confidence that with its wonderful possibilities the western country would soon be a centre of power in the various objects of the body.

The resolution which follows indicates the advance made by this meeting in the central west:

"Resolved, that this association recognize the importance of planting shelter belts and other trees and shrubs in the school playgrounds of the prairie provinces, and that, to encourage this work in a practical manner, it is recommended to the attention of the department of education and agriculture of the provinces."

STRENGTHEN DEFENCES AND BUILD NEW FORTS

Halifax and Esquimalt Fortifications May Be Improved by Dominion Government.

Ottawa, July 10.—According to the Ottawa Free Press the government is going ahead with a naval defence policy on land. This paper states today that the defences at Halifax and Esquimalt will be greatly strengthened and that new forts will be built in the neighborhood of Vancouver, where there is an adequate naval reserve, which is also true of Sydney and St. John.

It is understood that General Sir Ian Hamilton's mission to Canada includes an investigation on behalf of the war office of this phase of the Dominion's defence scheme.

This week the inspectors will look over the defence at Halifax and will study the problem of the coast defence works at Sydney and St. John. Later in the summer Col. Hughes will go to England to again witness the British army manoeuvres and it is understood that he will also confer with the war office and the admiralty in regard to joint action in securing adequate defence works at the ports mentioned. It is likely that an appropriation will be asked by the government at the next session of parliament to carry out the contemplated programme of land defence for Canada's principal seaports.

BRIDE OF EIGHTY-ONE COMING FROM ENGLAND

Mrs. Mary Brown Lands From Royal Edward at Montreal En Route for Victoria.

Montreal, July 10.—Bound for Victoria to meet her lifelong lover, Mrs. Mary Brown, 81 years of age, disembarked from the Royal Edward yesterday to board the transcontinental train which speeded her away towards the goal which is the ambition of maidens and widows. The husband-elect who awaits her at Victoria is much her junior, being a mere youth of 71. The couple have been corresponding for ten years, but Mrs. Brown does not court publicity and withheld the real romance of possibly 80 years which lies behind the strange wedding.

Mrs. Brown has lived in Kent, England, all her life. Until she boarded the Royal Edward she had never been more than a few miles beyond the confines of her little inland village and had never seen a steamship. Nothing but cupid's call could ever have persuaded her to take ocean and land journey to Victoria. Before disembarking from the ship the blushing bride-to-be was the recipient of a host of congratulations from the many friends she made on board. The long voyage had no visible effect on her health.

STANDARD OIL THOUGHT ACTIVE THROUGH ALBERTA

Calgary, July 10.—Are representatives of the Standard Oil Company, who are in the city and scattered throughout Southern Alberta systematically buying up the different boreholes which on independent oil claims and inducing them to delay as long as possible the discovery of oil in order that the big trust may obtain control of as many claims as possible before a flow is discovered?

This is the question that local oil operators are asking themselves, and for which it is hard to find the correct answer. Said one well-known oil man to-day: "Unless something is done when oil is discovered in Alberta it will be an exact repetition of events which happened in California and Texas."

EXHIBIT OF FISH AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

Food Display Costing $10,000 Will Show Fish in Many Ways.

Ottawa, July 10.—A ten thousand dollar exhibit of food fish at Toronto Exhibition this year is planned. The exhibit will be the first of its kind in Canada. Arrangements for the display are now being completed by W. A. Pound, Dominion Superintendent of Fisheries. A large number of the fish companies in Canada will contribute. The display will include live fish in tanks, cured fish, fresh fish in cold storage and mounted specimens of some rare varieties.

The exhibit will consist principally of several varieties of commercial fish, representing the fisheries of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and of great inland waters of Canada. Cold storage refrigerators, with a capacity of six tons, will be installed, the fish being visible through glass doors.

There will be a kitchen in connection with the display, and fish steaks will be served free of charge.

VANCOUVER TO ANSWER HORNE-PAYNE STATEMENT

Vancouver, July 10.—That Vancouver's reputation as a city and as the centre of population is without financial approach should be published, broadcast, and especially in England, to answer the attack of R. M. Horne-Payne, was the decision of the Progress Club last night. It was agreed that the best way in which this could be done was by a wide dissemination of the facts as regards British Columbia, and it was decided that the city should be approached to ask its cooperation in this regard.

RUINOUS TAXES ON FARMERS, SAYS FORD

Agriculturalist Gives Reasons for High Cost of Living Blaming Government

Vancouver, July 10.—"If the farmers of this country ever do form themselves into a union, then may God help the people. The provincial government is doing its best to freeze out the farmers of British Columbia. This year my taxes are 400 per cent. higher than they were last year. "Appeal against such taxes? I tell you this appeal court they talk of is simply a farce. I used to have 2,000 acres. Now I have only 500 acres. I will you, I am getting out of the farming business just as quickly as ever I can. "We are living in an age of unions. The commission men have their unions, and they have got the price they will pay to the farmer for his produce down so low that the farmer cannot make a profit at all; but they charge the consumer in the city high enough in all conscience for the stuff. I am a farmer, but I don't want to see the farmers form themselves into a union. If they do, then God help humanity, for they can bring about a famine in the midst of plenty. "With these striking sentences and others as emphatic, S. H. Ford, farmer of Pitt River Meadows, addressed the civic markets and industries committee yesterday afternoon, telling them some of the reasons for the high cost of living, from the standpoint of the farmer in British Columbia. Mr. Ford told the story of his own experience as a practical agriculturist, cultivating first-class land within a few hours' rail trip from Vancouver. His story was one of protracted labor, of a hopeless battle with overwhelming odds, due in great measure to the provincial government. Mr. Ford prefaced the account of his practical experience with his ideas of the reasons for the high cost of living from the farmer's viewpoint. First, he put high wages for farm help, which he said is brought about by the conditions in cities, where men can earn $3 or $4 per day of eight hours. That reduces the supply of farm help and forces the farmer to raise wages to ruinous limits. The next reason for the cost of living increase, Mr. Ford asserted, is traceable to the operations of the commission men, who sell the farmers' produce at enormous profits after beating the producer down to below cost prices. He also charged the commission men with deliberately defaulting the farmer, giving an actual instance in his own experience. The third reason given for the high cost of living is the action of the provincial government in ruinously raising taxes upon the farmers of this province. His land, assessed last year at $50 per acre, was this year assessed at $200 per acre, and his appeal against the tax proved futile. "The government is freezing out the farmer," he said. "Stop taxing the farmer," suggested Mr. Ford as one of the remedies for the high cost of living. "Rather pay him a bonus on everything he produces and sell, the same as in done with steel industries and other great industries which you desire to attract."

BUSINESS MEN SAY MUST TRAIN YOUTHS

Memorandum Submitted to the Prime Minister on Question of National Defence.

London, July 10.—The Association of Chambers of Commerce has submitted a memorandum to the prime minister on the provision of universal training in discipline and arms for the youth of the nation in order to meet the urgent necessity for adequate national defence. This memorandum is submitted in response to the request of the prime minister for the views of the association on the matter. In the view of the association and other changed conditions calls for the reconsideration of the whole question of national defence. While the establishment of the territorial force has, on the whole, been favorably regarded by employers of labor there are some employers whose actions have made it impossible for young men workers to take part in the duty of national defence. In the opinion of the association the only satisfactory way of dealing with this situation is by the enactment of a bill compelling all employers to afford the necessary facilities for national training. The association also considers that it should not be left to a small body of patriotic volunteers to become the defenders of their country. A course of physical training comparatively early in life, the association considers would better prepare youths and young men for service in the territorial force or regular army, and the moral welfare of the nation would be enhanced on patriotic lines. South Africa, Australia and New Zealand, it is pointed out, have adopted a system of universal training with satisfactory results, and there is abundant evidence that continental countries are not indifferent to the advantages that accrue from military training in the development of physique and the formation of character, which are as beneficial in time of peace as they would be in time of war.

GERMANY'S POLICY OF GRAB REVEALED

Now is the Time, Says Dr. Rohrbach to Settle Claims With England

Berlin, July 10.—The current number of the Preussische Jahrbucher contains a long article on "German World and Colonial Policy" from the pen of Dr. Paul Rohrbach, who has just returned from a visit to equatorial and South Africa, where he noted a wholesale change of feeling toward the Germans in the British colonies. He declares that this change would be measurably increased if only Germany would grant a respite in the feverish building of warships. He contends, however, now that the English are in a beneficent mood, Germans must insist emphatically on obtaining compensation not only for standing aside while the English reap certain advantages, but also for not having demurred when England reaped certain special advantages in the past. "Our account with England, and our counterclaim against her commerce," he writes, "and my opinion is that Persia is such a great acquisition and its inclusion in the exclusive political sphere of interest of England and Russia benefits these two countries to such an extent and augments their power so considerably that there can be no question of Germany permitting Persia to be struck off the list of independent countries and transformed into an Anglo-Russian reserve except on condition that she is adequately compensated." One of the grounds on which Dr. Rohrbach bases this attitude is that Russia is a neighbor of Germany, and that English and German political interests are closely interwoven. He adds that the possession of Persia has special value for England in that it forms a step—and a step of decisive importance—in the realization of the plan, the object of which is to establish English dominion in the Indian ocean. Germans, says Dr. Rohrbach, do not grudge the English this gain to their empire in power and compactness, but he contends that the English people, as well as the Germans, must see that in the interests of self-preservation, Germany cannot permit the power of any of her competitors in the political and economic world to be augmented unless she secures an equivalent extension of influence. Seeing that Germany can thus claim compensation from England, the question arises as to what form it shall take, and in Dr. Rohrbach's opinion it can only consist of a very considerable extension of Germany's field of colonial activity. It will not be easy to find equivalent compensation, he says, for Germany's acquiescence in the Anglo-Turkish arrangement in respect of the shores of the Persian Gulf is in itself a concession of great value. He will not accept the idea that England's agreement to the construction of the Baghdad railway can be counted as a concession, for the construction of the line to Bagdad was assured two years ago without England's co-operation. England's consent to the construction of the Bagdad to Bassorah section under German direction is also, he states, not a concession of political importance for German as well as Turkish interests would be equally well, and perhaps better, served if the line ended at Bagdad, with a branch to Alexandria. He will also not hear of Zanzibar, Walfisch Bay, "or other such insignificant trifles of no use to us," being regarded as compensation. Some decades ago, he adds, such places might have been of use to Germany; now they are merely insignificant defects in the body of the German colonies. Dr. Rohrbach wishes the English people to understand that Germany does not need colonies to serve as outlets for her surplus population, and reminds them that, although the latter increases by some 800,000 souls annually, there is plenty of room and plenty of occupation for them at home, as is evidenced by the fact that immigration into Germany is at present very considerably in excess of immigration from Germany. Germany, he contends, has now gained sufficient experience to administer colonies on a large scale. The Anglo-German colonial understanding is not, he insists, to be regarded as payment or account of future political business, but as a settling up for what has passed, namely, the one-sided English acquisition of power in Egypt, Arabia, Persia, etc. As part payment for services rendered Germany must, Dr. Rohrbach contends, be permitted to take Asiatic Turkey entirely under her charge. "We do not want to annex Turkey," he declares magnanimously, but he insists that "we must keep Turkey in her present extent as a field of operations for our national work." He shows that there is ample scope

PROTECT YOUNG GIRLS TRAVELLING IN CANADA

Ottawa, July 10.—In accordance with a statement made by Premier Borden toward the close of the session, the Dominion government proposes to make an effort to deal with the white slave traffic. A special officer, in the person of James Lambkin, formerly of the I. C. R., has been appointed to work in conjunction with the Dominion police and the railways to protect young girls travelling through Canada. Advantage will be taken by the government of the plans of the international association, which is elaborating a system for the protection of girls travelling as immigrants. The case has not, up to the present time, assumed serious proportions in this country.

MONTREAL WILL NOT TRY TO FLOAT LOAN

Montreal, July 10.—No endeavor will be made by the city for some time to float the new $14,000,000 loan authorized some months ago. The condition of the money market is judged to be such that any attempt to raise money would scarcely be likely to meet with success. "It will be better for us to wait for a time," said the city treasurer today. "If we were to make an unsuccessful attempt to float a loan, it would only damage the credit of the city. We should always be sure of getting the money as the undersubscribers would take over the amount unsubscribed by the public, but there is no need for hurry."

THINGS MYSTERIOUS.

The rain falleth upon the just and the unjust. Likewise the lightning which plays so freely throughout the torrid east at this season of the year seems to strike where it listeth. John D. Rockefeller's church in Cleveland was struck by the electric "fluid" a few days ago. The strange thing in connection with the celestial visit, however, is the fact that the Oil King's pew was particularly singled out by the lightning and torn in pieces. What is the significance of such a visitation? Can it possibly be taken as meaning that Heaven is displeased with the manly manner in which the great man has handled the not few "talents" that have been entrusted temporarily to his keeping? Surely not, for we are sure Bro. Rockefeller considers himself a good and faithful servant, and with careful diet and judicious exercise on the golf links, have been long in the land. Now there is Andrew Carnegie, an open and avowed scoffer at some things that are held sacred by John D., no one ever heard of balls of fire circulating furiously and menacingly in the neighborhood of the places in which he seeks spiritual refreshment, and possibly occasionally consolation? There are still some things that are mysterious and movements that are past finding out. In the meantime Mr. Rockefeller may pursue his devotions in his accustomed place in serenity of mind and placidity of soul, for although it is not written it is said that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

THE NAVAL ISSUE.

The London Morning Post is a Unionist newspaper and is commonly understood to favor an Imperial as against a Canadian or a Commonwealth navy. But, like most English newspapers in dealing with subjects of vital importance to the welfare of the Empire, the Post is fair. It considers matters affecting the Dominions from all points of view and is willing to take into consideration the sentiments of the people on the ground. A contributor to our London contemporary, a Mr. Bean, has reviewed for the benefit of the people of England the situation in Australia and in Canada in connection with naval development. The review contains a lesson, and we believe a warning, for the people of Canada. We remember the time when the Rainbow arrived here as a training ship for a Canadian navy later to be established. It was not an uncommon thing to hear people on the streets sneer at this beginning of things naval as a "tinpot" affair and to refer scoffingly to the mere idea of Canadians ever being competent to build or to man ships. The experience of Australia was somewhat similar. Mr. Bean says:

"Four years ago, when the earlier book was published, the building of an Australian navy was by no means an accepted policy either in the Mother Country or in the Commonwealth; and even the project for a mosquito fleet as proposed by Mr. Deakin (at a capital cost of £1,277,000 and a total annual cost for both army and navy of a little over £1,000,000) was looked upon by many Australians as an absurd and impossible undertaking. Now Australia is already spending about £4,000,000 yearly on her navy, and the huge armored flagship, which Mr. Bean imagined 'smoking her evening pipe' in Sydney Harbor, is a tremendous reality."

Another extract from Mr. Bean's letter so truly portrays a phase of the naval question as it developed in Canada that we commend it to the careful consideration of a Minister of the Crown now in the city and to all who think their prophecies have been confirmed by the dismantling of the Rainbow:

"It was said that the essential Australian could not, would not, grow up into a sailor—just as some people are now contending that Canadians cannot be relied upon to man Canada's warships when the politicians allow them to be built. Now that the Australian service offers a permanent and fairly well-paid career, the Australian seaman is a solid, stolid fact. Australia now has 32 Australian officers and 7,004 Australian seamen, and the training establishments are full up. Canada will do as much when the time comes; better, perhaps, for she has Newfoundland, the greatest and most populous nursery of seamanship in the whole wide world, to draw upon."

The writer of the article in the Post winds up with the prediction that when Canada decides to implement the agreement she entered into with Australia, an agreement the Commonwealth is carrying out so faithfully and so successfully, "the contribution theory of old-fashioned authorities will have received its deathblow."

The Toronto Star, commenting on the observation of Mr. Bean, says: "We may note that Canada will be able to draw, not only on its own Atlantic provinces and on Newfoundland, but on British Columbia, a province larger than the United Kingdom and Germany combined, with splendid harbors on the Pacific ocean. We venture to predict that British Columbia will have ambitions similar to those of Australia."

TRIBUTES TO LEMIEUX ACT.

The visit of Hon. T. W. Crothers, the federal Minister of Labor, to the Island surely indicates that the government considers the present labor trouble in the Cumberland and Ladysmith district of sufficient import to the welfare of Canada to deserve a special investigation. Not that the government can do anything when all the inquiries instituted by the minister have been completed. In this respect at least official hands are tied, for once the medium of the conciliation board has failed to attain a solution, practically the only power which can end a strike is the force of popular opinion.

The fact that Mr. Crothers comments most favorably on the working of the Lemieux Act in Canada, however, and cites the case of Sir George Askwith's approval of the manner in which labor troubles are dealt with in this country, is yet another tribute to one of the many pillars of Canadian prosperity which were set up during the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. As the present Minister of Labor is the first to admit, the working of the measure throughout the country has been attended with magnificent results; the number of strikes in proportion to the boards of conciliation formed being infinitesimal.

And it is possible that only the stress and conflict seething around great questions and party strife in the British House is keeping the Imperial government from bringing down legislation founded on the report of Sir George Askwith's findings relative to the working of the Lemieux Act in this country. It will be remembered that the presentation of that report took place some time ago, just when the black cloud of a great impending railway strike hung like a pall over Great Britain, and was even at that critical juncture received favorably by both masters and men, many prominent trades unionists expressing themselves as unprepared to welcome any measure based on the lines of the Canadian act. The two most powerful groups, namely, the cotton operatives and the miners, whose combined vote practically dominates the party conference, could see nothing to object to in a general extension of conciliation. Should legislation of this type be placed on the statute books of the Old Country, there is balm for Canada in the fact that she has been able in some measure to teach the Motherland how better to manage her internal affairs.

The Colonist propounds another problem in connection with the regulation of motor traffic. The law in the case under consideration appears to be an ass, which is not an unusual thing on the law's part, as many a litigant can testify. But the Times can safely give the motorist who is not in too desperate a hurry sage counsel. That is always give the safety of the public the first consideration. Better to lose a minute or two even than to run one chance in a thousand of becoming involved in an accident that may cause lasting regret in one quarter and disaster and sorrow in others. Any daily paper that may be picked up at random these days contains accounts of many accidents, attended with loss of life, that might have been avoided but for the prevailing habit of motor car drivers to "take a chance."

The recent disastrous forest fires in the province of Ontario ought to remind the members of the local ministry that a special responsibility devolves on the governments of those provinces which are in many places densely wooded. Money spent in protection from forest fires is money wisely expended, and it is up to the Forestry Department to see that especial vigilance is exercised at this time of the year.

What's this, and in the ordinarily decorous Colonist. "It is sad to relate that 'the female form divine' is becoming a thing of the past." And, "Good madam, if you aspire to be in the very acme of style, you will wear diamond anklets." In what directions are the researches of our aged contemporary tending in these degenerate days?

Shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death, Thou go not like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

POOR SPORT IN GEORGIA.

John D. Rockefeller and a party of friends were taking a trip across country in Georgia last fall when they came to a stream which they had to cross by ferry. The ferryboat was operated by a white-haired old negro, and while they were floating across, Mr. Rockefeller tried to make conversation.

"Jack," he asked the old man, "have you caught any fish to-day?"

"Naw, sah," replied Jack, dejectedly.

"The fishing," observed Rockefeller, "must be pretty poor."

"I spec' it is," agreed Jack, sadly.

"You haven't caught any fish at all?"

"Not a one."

"That seems strange," continued Rockefeller.

"It do," said of Jackson, and still his bearing was that of a man weighed down by woe.

"Well," asked Rockefeller, "why is it, do you think, you haven't caught any fish?"

"Humph," said Jack, still mournful, "I ain't been fishin' to-day."

GREAT INTEREST IN SEALING TRIBUNAL

Many Seamen in Victoria Will Retire If Their Claims Are Granted by Commission

MOST OF CLAIMS VERY HIGH; SOME ARE MODEST

Lawyers Are Looking Up All Sealing Matters Which Can Be Obtained; A Story

As the time for the sitting of the sealing commission in Victoria draws nearer speculation as to the allotment of the huge sum of money to be set aside by the Dominion government is becoming all the more rife. It is surprising the amount of interest which is being evinced in this important tribunal, not only by the sealers themselves, but also by the general public.

Lawyers and notary public are being eagerly sought by the sealers and the sealing interests to make out the claims. Lawyers who will fight and watch the case for the different parties interested in the commission are now delving back in the bygone ages looking for what small amount of literature can be found on the sealing question. The Treaty of Paris is being studied and the clauses of the treaty of 1811 between Russia, Japan, Canada and the United States, which stopped pelagic sealing on the Pacific, are being scrutinized minutely. It is anticipated that some nice points of law will be brought out at the sitting.

Many May Retire. If things turn out as many are expecting there will be numerous vacancies in different kinds of business in Victoria. Claims, some rather fabulous and others very modest, are being set in for the consideration of the commissioner and his assessors. The owners of the vessels which were forced out of sealing by the treaty are filing heavy claims and some of the masters and hunters, who have been with the industry since its early days, are asking to be compensated with sums of money which run far up into the five column row of figures.

It is stated that all those who are making claims have good grounds on which to base them. There has been an argument going the rounds to the effect that many of the former sealers now have employment which yields them a good remuneration, but it is pointed out that these men were forced out of the business and had to seek other means to obtain a livelihood. Most of them went into the steamboat service and now are masters of the big ferry vessels running out of here.

In most cases all the schooners which went to sea carried crews which worked on a percentage basis. This is likely to be one of the strong arguments advanced by the navigators and hunters to prove that they are entitled to the bulk of the money in the Japanese settlement the hunters came in for the first consideration.

Capt. Whiteley Recounts Tale. Capt. W. H. Whiteley, who was sealing for many years, told the Times this morning of the worst fright he ever had in his life, and it was during the days when he was master of a schooner. "We were off the Siberian coast in the old Mermaid and it was pretty thick weather. There were quite a few seals about, and I thought I hadn't got a sight for a couple of days I thought that we were well outside the line. You see, if the Russians catch you within 55 miles of their coast, it's working in the all mines for you. Well, we took a chance and all the boats got away. There was a bad set shoreward that I didn't know of. There was only the cook and myself aboard and I went below and had something to eat. When I came on deck again I looked ahead and I saw what I thought was a Russian man-of-war. Well, I told you it didn't take me long to figure that I was in for a few years in the salt mines without pay. I called the cook and asked him to give me a hand to get the main sail up. Now, it generally took four men to get that sail up, as she carried a 36-foot gaff. But we weren't after work in the mines and we finally hauled the sheets home. Perhaps he hasn't seen us yet," I said to the cook, "and we may slip away from him." Just then a puff of wind lifted the fog and revealed the object which had scared us. It was a small island in the mouth of the Kamchatka river. We'd drifted in about 25 miles. We finally got away alright. Those warships, or anything that looked like them, used to scare us fellows in those days. Fishing the road is bad enough, but picking salt worse."

WHALING CATCHES INCREASE SLOWLY

Bad Weather Interfering With Operations in Northern Waters

Bad weather in northern waters continues to interfere with the operations of the whaling steamers working in conjunction with the Naden Harbor and Rose Harbor stations. According to advices received by the Times very few whales have been taken at these stations in comparison with the catches of last year. The whalers operating off the west coast of this island are doing fairly well, and quite a number of mammals are being taken into Sechart and Kyquoot.

At Rose Harbor the whalers are running down as far as Triangle Island in pursuit of the whales. The weather off the islands during the greater part of the time is very severe and the steamers are unable to get within range of the mammals. Naden Harbor has yielded up a small catch and the prospects are that this will be the poorest season the whaling company has had since its inception.

If the weather would clear up and give the whalers a chance to follow the big game the total of the stations might be increased considerably. As long as the southeasters continue to howl the catches will grow very slowly. Whales in Pacific coast waters are not nearly so plentiful at the present time as they were a few years ago. The whaling steamers have made some big hauls and consequently the mammals are being thinned out.

EMPERESS OF ASIA NOW CROSSING INDIAN OCEAN

A telegram received by the Times states that the new C. P. R. trans-Pacific liner Empress of Asia, Capt. Robinson, arrived at Durban, Natal, on Monday on her way from Liverpool to Victoria with a crowd of round-the-world passengers. The Asia was at Cape Town, S. A., last week after spending a day at Durban. A new white liner proceeded on her long run up the Indian Ocean to Singapore. So far the trip of the Asia has been uneventful. She is due here on August 20.

The C.P.R. steamer Princess May, Capt. McLeod, was hauled out on the B. C. Marine Ways yesterday afternoon to have her hull scraped and painted. This is the first time that the May has been out of the water for eight months, and her hull was very dirty. The May will get away for Prince Rupert and Skagway to-morrow night. A number of passengers have been booked on her and she will carry considerable freight.

RAIL TRAMP MAKING LONG VOYAGE HERE

Norwegian Steamship Herakles Now Out 80 Days From Sydney, C. B.; Little Worry

Unless the Norwegian steamship Herakles, Capt. Berg, shows up off here in a few days, shipping men will have cause to worry over her. Some comment is already being heard over her lengthy passage. The Herakles is coming here from Sydney, Cape Breton, with a load of steel rails for Port Mann. She is now out 80 days from the Eastern ports, which is considerably longer than any of the other rail ships under charter to the Canadian Northern Railway have taken.

Whatever is delaying the Herakles is occurring in the Pacific Ocean. She was last reported leaving Coronel on June 11, which means that she has been 29 days on the trip already. Under average weather conditions this trip is made by tramp vessels in between 20 and 23 days. The Herakles may have fallen in with extremely heavy weather in the South Pacific, and this may be retarding her progress. As yet shipping men are not given to worry over her, but at the same time they are wondering. The Herakles left Sydney on April 11.

Rail Fleet's Time. The steamship Fitzpatrick, which brought one of the first cargoes to Port Mann from the East Coast, made the voyage in 77 days. The Strathallin came around in 68 days, the Strathspire in 67 days and the Strathray in 66 days. The Herakles is a new freighter, having only made a few voyages. She is of 2,730 tons net. The vessel has an outward charter, and will load at the Fraser River mills after the rails are discharged from her.

Without further notice two red lights placed vertically six feet apart will be placed approximately 1,000 feet out from Ogden Point to show the outside limits of the works in progress of the construction of the breakwater. These lights will be moved out as the work proceeds, always locating the extremity of the work. They will be elevated twenty feet above high water, and vessels are warned not to go between the lights and shore. These lights will be unwatched, though every precaution will be taken by the contractors to keep them maintained until the breakwater is completed.

INTERESTING NEGRO COOK ARRIVES HERE

Edward Carrington Around World Many Times; Once Dismasted; No More Sail

Although the only seafaring paper that he holds is a certificate of efficiency as ship's cook, Edward Carrington, a negro, who arrived in Victoria yesterday afternoon on board the Ooska Shosen, Kalsha, liner Tacoma Maru from the Orient, is quite an interesting person and has had a lengthy experience on the briny deep. As is generally the case with cooks, Carrington has circled the world many times and his trips have not been void of a little of the hardships and pleasures which make the call of the sea life so strong.

The Times man was making the rounds of the ship yesterday when Carrington approached him and put the following question: "I say, young fellow, what's the chances for a good cook around this place. I've been in sail and steam, but I don't like sail very much, and I can't take a hand in a bakery." Carrington then produced his board of trade certificate for cooking.

Tells of His Career. Although the position of cook is not the highest aboard ship it is nevertheless an important one, and a cook stowed upon him by his parents, can generally tell better yarns than anyone else. Carrington was born in the Barbadoes 24 years ago and during his short lifetime has been all through South America, Central America, Europe, Africa and the eastern section of the North American continent. A peculiar incident in Carrington's life is that, although he has been to sea so long, he is on his first visit to Puget Sound.

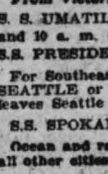

For a number of years Carrington was on the Norwegian barque Svenor, running between Halifax, N. S., and Buenos Ayres. He had many hard trips on her and remembers the time when the ship was dismasted in a hurricane off the Brazilian coast and he had to go under jury rig. "You know for several days I couldn't leave the galley. Everything was awash. Whenever I wanted a pot or a pan I just waited until a sea came in through the skylight on the broken door and then it was washed up to me. I don't like sail, I tell you that."

Carrington heard about the wonders of the Pacific coast, through coming in contact with seamen on the ships on which he has worked, and he decided to come here and have a look at the place. He was a member of the crew of the British steamship, Duplane, which was delivered at Kobe, Japan, to Japanese buyers.

SHIP UNSEAWORTHY BUT CAPTAIN CLEARS; LOST

Newcastle, Eng., July 10.—Captain Stannard, of the ship Mount Oswald, sailed from Baltimore for Hamburg February 17 last, with a crew of 24 and has not since been heard of. The vessel was unseaworthy when she sailed, it is said.

In a letter to his wife which was put ashore at Baltimore by the pilot, Captain Stannard said the boat sailed with twelve feet of water in her fore-peak. He said he wanted the ship dry-docked at New York but the owners would not do it. The letter was read yesterday at the board of trade inquiry into the loss of the vessel.

THE DOMINION AND IMMIGRATION

MINISTER OF INTERIOR EXPLAINS OUR LAWS

To British Newspaper Representative; Canada Wants the Best Brawn and Brains

Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, recently explained to a representative of the Glasgow News the objects and operation of the Canadian immigration law.

Protection of Emigrants.

"The present Immigration Act," he said, "makes no specific provision for the protection of newly-arrived immigrants from unjust dealings on the part of employment agencies and labor bureaux. It does, however, confer upon the Governor-in-Council power to make regulations to accomplish that end. The immigration branch of my department has from time to time closed up agencies proved to have been dishonest in their dealings with immigrants, only to find, however, in some instances, that they have been reopened under different names."

"The immigrant had no remedy except through the civil courts, or through any municipal by-laws or provincial laws or regulations that chanced to be in force. But even so, ignorance and poverty were effective barriers to his use of it. Now we have inaugurated a new state of affairs."

"In future every employment agent must secure from the superintendent of immigration a license, which will be revocable if the holder is convicted of any indictable offence or violates any of the immigration laws or regulations."

"Moreover, he will be required to keep a register of all immigrants placed, with the rate of wages promised, the nature of the work to be performed, the price charged for board and all other terms of engagement; the register to be open at all times to government inspection."

"Another provision is that no immigrant shall be sent to a position of which the agent has not written particulars from the prospective employer, and that no such particulars more than two months old shall be kept upon the files."

"The fee is not in any case to exceed one dollar. No other charge whatsoever is to be made in excess of fare to destination. The penalty of violation of any of these regulations is revocation of the license and a fine not exceeding a hundred dollars, or, in default, imprisonment not exceeding three months."

"To ensure the effective working of these regulations," Dr. Roche went on, "we have already arranged for a systematic inspection of the licensed agents."

The Emigration from Britain.
"Emigration from Britain to the Dominion has steadily increased, has it not?"
"Yes; that is a feature on which we pride ourselves, as in line with sound Imperialism. There has always been emigration from Britain—let our detractors remember that—but, unfortunately, until recent years, much of it went to the Empire, and was therefore lost to the Empire."

"For example, thirteen years ago 33 per cent. only of British emigrants remained within the Empire, the rest going to other lands; last year the proportions were reversed, 50 per cent. staying within the Empire and only 20 per cent. going outside.

"During the last decade Canada has received more than eight hundred thousand British settlers, and our expenditure in advertising during the period was something like half a million pounds. We are not, of course, blind to the material gain we make by this investment, but far greater than that is the Empire's own gain in the peopling of some of its richest territory by Britishers inheriting those sterling qualities which have made the Empire what it is."

"But it is complained that you want none but our best workers, Dr. Roche." "That is not so. Years ago we had thrust upon us the outcast and the ne'er-do-well. You will hardly blame us that Canada has no desire for these; nay, she is rightly, I think, resolved not to have them."

What Canada Asks and Gives.
"All we ask is a fair proportion of the men and women whose physical constitution and moral character fit them for the strenuous life of the Dominion. These alone will be a credit alike to you, to us, and to themselves."

"But is life in Canada so strenuous, Dr. Roche?" "In general, it undoubtedly is. But on the other hand, there are unusual compensations."

"In most occupations the hours are longer, the work itself is more laborious. In seasonal employment so much has to be done in six or seven months that pressure has to be applied. In construction work the natural conditions in opening up a new country are moderately severe."

"But he who engages on this side only presents as untrue a picture as he who dwells only on the other. There is no country in the world where the worker, of whatever trade, receives a just remuneration for his toil."

"In British Columbia, for example, a Chinaman, as an unskilled laborer, can earn from eight to ten shillings a day; in England your unskilled laborer is lucky to get four."

"On the prairies, the farm hand earns on an average one pound a week and his board. I read in your papers that in some of the best farming districts in England the agricultural laborer receives but fifteen shillings or less, without his board, and, except in a few cases, under the Small Holdings Act, without any prospect of holding land of his own. In our country there is a free farm for every competent man who cares to take it."

"Nor is this all. The workman has his full measure of respect and honor. We recognize his value in the community, and receive him on terms of equality and brotherhood. He labors in healthful conditions; he has educational advantages for his children and numerous opportunities of investing his savings; so that a large proportion of our working men own their own homes, and not a few, without the aid of scholarships, send their children to the university."

"It has never been the policy of my department," Dr. Roche added, "to exaggerate. Extreme statements have been put forth, but not by us. We are satisfied with the truth."

"While opening our doors to suitable emigrants from all countries, we naturally want the predominant element in our population to be British. We are proud of our place in the Empire, and jealous of it. Nowhere is the King's name more honored, nowhere loyalty more responsive to the least appeal. In building up our nation we are particularly anxious that true British stock shall leaven the whole lump."

WHY NOT FORTY YEARS' DISARMED PEACE?

We Have Had Four Decades of Armed Preparation of War With Disastrous Results

There is a saying by Dr. Samuel Johnson, whose associations with the Temple and Fleet Street and the Old Cheshire Cheese have been dear to me—a saying which has seemed a hard one—"Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel."

I looked up an old library copy of Boswell's famous biography the other day, and found its page well thumbed and the line marked with pencil.

"Of the pretences of patriots," remarks the biographer, "Dr. Johnson always spoke with indignation and contempt. Patriotism having become one of our topics, Johnson suddenly uttered, in a determined tone, an apophthegm, at which many will start."

Then follows the famous saying with its vivid explanation:—"That pretended patriotism, which so many in all ages and countries have made a cloak for self-interest."

The big editorial office English dictionary, placed in a prominent position to give us all confidence, tells me that an apophthegm is a short, pithy and instructive saying.

The cloak or the self-interest of 1813 is of the same pattern and material, perhaps more bullet-proof than in the last years of the eighteenth century. It was more personal then for sweets of political office, and there were not the colossal international armaments manufacturing trusts of to-day, with their network of telegraphic intelligence to stimulate the war palate a-4 terry into acquiescence the timid and anxious.

The emulation of the present day patriotic scare-writer has always been as froth before me. Who are they who thus claim a share of Dr. Johnson's celebrated brand of patriotism? "Did you," I ask them, "when the hour came go out to the front? Did you hold yourselves ready at call amongst the reserves?"

You beat a great patriotic fol-de-rol in newspaper column, but were you ever in column of route? When patriotism's glorious opportunity came did you lay down your pen for the "trooper" on Halifax's tide? Can you even point between your editorial lines to nineteen years' fall-out commission service? No, perhaps not. Let us do keep out of Dr. Johnson's last refuge!

Dread is the agency by which the war-scarer to-day is piling up these alarming bills of armament. Why should the nations of Europe dread each other to such a terrible degree, if not so artificially engineered under the cloak of self-interest? We have had an era of the Forty Years' Peace, from 1815 to 1854, with its low taxation and commercial and inventive re-nown. We have now had an era of Forty Years' Armed Peace, with today's climax of intolerable financial waste, and militarism, and distrust.

Why not an era of Forty Years' Disarmed Peace now, with its abolition of war, and the glad day of peace on earth and good-will to men? Let all the churches of Canada answer, for from their pulpits should the "still small voice" of persuasion that influences be heard.

I find relief in Boswell's great biography to combat this vibrating steel web of distrust which is tearing at the hearts of great European nations. "I mentioned," observes Boswell, "to him (Dr. Johnson) a friend of mine who was formerly gloomy from low spirits and much distress; by the fear of death, but was now uniformly placid and contemplated his dissolution without any perturbation." "Sir," said Johnson, "this is only a disordered imagination taking a different turn."

And I put point to the famous doctor's sagacity with the present day analogy of the old man who assembled his sons to his "d-d" bed and said to them:

"My lads, I have had a great deal of trouble in my life, and most of it didn't happen." This shrewd summary clinches the European situation.

The evil of Europe which is to ruin Canada's prospects is a dread of the future. It is not of today. One would stop wasting money then. There is no emergency to-day. For this year, the British fleet is prepared. But, stay, listen to the feelings as a fair supposition that follows: "Who will guarantee the life of the British Empire during the next decade? There it is. If the heavens were to fall, as the children's story book pathetically put it, what would happen to poor henny-penny and cocky-locky?"

It was recently said that history proves that the most brilliant periods in the life of a nation follow times of war. I will not grope for such proof in the contentions past. Here is a significant contradiction in the open-day:

"Years have become very dear," said M. Theodoroff, the Bulgarian minister of finance, to a press correspondent. "Our armies in the field cost us between $500,000 and $700,000 a day. We have had killed 30,000 men. The annual expense to their dependents in pensions will be $3,000,000. During the war Bulgaria has contracted debts and made requisitions which must be paid for. Our rifles, guns and other military equipment is worn out and must be replaced."

Just let me work this out in detail. Bulgaria was already mobilized by October 8 last. War began on the 18th, and the first armistice was settled on December 4. This was a period of 57 days. Then the war resumed on February 2 of this year, and the second armistice concluded on April 18. This was a further period of 76 days.

Fixing the difference of M. Theodoroff's estimated daily cost at $600,000, the total cost of the actual days of fighting has been $79,800,000.

Bulgaria's armies and reserves are still in the field. The volunteers may have been dismissed. Here we are at the end of June. So far the cost of troops in the field during truce days, placing the lowest cost at say $150,000 per day, 128 days yield: $23,200,000. For the renewal of guns, rifles and reserve ammunition $50,000,000 is a minimum.

Apart, therefore, from the national bill for war debt which Bulgaria has signed and must yet honor, and her yearly war pension list of $7,000,000, she has spent since October, as my figures show, $138,500,000.

Great Britain as her war recompense in South Africa gets a gold supply in bullion of $156,000,000 annually from the land. What has Bulgaria found in the Balkans? She is a hand-to-hand country, and the territory she has won there is mortgaged to the hilt with international bonds. There is no war indemnity. You cannot seize by violence a man's land, and by equity demand of him to pay off the mortgage on it as well!

So I will watch humorously to see if "the most brilliant periods in the life of the Bulgarian nation follows this war,"—Captain J. Reed in Montreal Witness.

IMPERIALISM.
Goldwin Smith's "Three English Statesmen" was published in London in 1867. In the course of his chapter on Pitt he says:

"Adam Smith proposed that the colonies should be represented in the British parliament. Such was his cure for the conflict between Imperial supremacy and colonial liberty, which was gathered to a head while he wrote. At the time it was answered that this plan would be impracticable on account of the distance. With regard to the Australian colonies, the same objection would be fatal now. You could not, after a dissolution, wait till the returns to the writs had been made for Sydney and Melbourne before reassembling parliament. But the more fatal objection is that the colonies have national parliaments of their own, and that to let them send members to the national parliament of England, and have a voice in our national questions, would involve a confusion of functions full of absurdity and injustice. If you have any common assembly for the mother country and the colonies, it must be a federal council, dealing with the interests of the Empire apart from those of the several nations; and this federal council must in federal questions be above the national government of Great Britain, an arrangement which Great Britain would never endure. A moral, commercial, and diplomatic union of all the communities of the Anglo-Saxon race, including what must soon become the greatest of these communities, the United States of America, is my dream, and if a national policy be pursued, may be made a glorious reality. But a political union of all these communities, or of those still under the nominal rule of Britain, scattered as they are over the globe, is a dream, and one from which we will soon awake. Colonial emancipation, while the tie of affection remains unbroken, is the only mode of securing that to which we all alike cling, that of which we are all alike proud. There is no reason why it should not be accomplished with a mutual retention of the rights of citizenship, so that an Englishman might, to all intents and purposes, be an Australian in Australia, and an Australian be an Englishman in England. There is, no reason why the colonies should not keep the old flag. The only thing which must be given up, and this Nature proclaims aloud must be given up, is the political dependence of a nation on one side of the globe upon a nation on the other."

PROFESSIONAL CLUB PROBABLE AMATEUR GAME ON SATURDAY

Westminster Stars May Join Victoria Team; Latest Lacrosse Gossip

There is every possibility that Victoria will be represented by a professional lacrosse team before many days have elapsed. The result of Con. Jones' visit to the Capital yesterday was not made public, but it is known that the Terminal City mogul received the assurance of the local enthusiasts that they will back a team, provided they can secure players of senior calibre. Jones stated positively that he will not mix with the Westminster club again, and this leaves Victoria as the only solution of the Coast League difficulty. It is stated that six or seven of the Royals are willing to play for the Capital just as soon as arrangements can be made to have the local team placed on the field.

Eastern Clubs to Help. Give Victoria a team that will make the Terminalists hustle for the championship and there would be no need to look for financial support. There are enough lacrosse enthusiasts in the Capital to make the proposition a paying one, and with a winning team, Canada's national game will enjoy a big boom in this city. Mr. Jones announces that he is willing to release a couple of his players to Victoria, while wires have been sent to the Eastern clubs for men who will complete the Victoria twelve. Definite word is expected from the East in a few days.

Amateurs Play Saturday. Rain did not deter Victoria's amateur lacrosse team from having a strenuous workout at the Royal Athletic Park last night, and Sam Lorimer looks for a win when his proteges clash with the New Westminster twelve at the Cook street grounds on Saturday. Manager Lorimer will present his youthful goal-tend, Allan Clarke, while he will make a couple of other changes in the line-up. Stan Okell will be playing his last game of the year for the locals, and while the blue and white twelve have no chance for the championship, they are out to land second honors in the Coast League. The team will practise again to-night, when the final twelve will be selected from the following: Clark, Sweeney, Dakers, Okell, Johnson, E. Taylor, McCarter, Baker, McGregor, McDougall, McDonald, Pettigrew, Brynjolfson, Menzies and Touhy.

The Lathers will play the Sidney team on Saturday previous to the Westminster-Victoria game, starting at 1:30 o'clock, so the fans will be given the privilege of witnessing two games instead of one.

The Minto Cup trustees will probably permit New Westminster to retain the Minto Cup. The "Big Four" champions will not come West this season unless Westminster guarantees all expenses and pays the salaries of the challengers. New Westminster will hardly do this, not having been called upon to do it in the past.

NORTHHAMPTONSHIRE DEFEATS YORKSHIRE

London, July 10.—Following are the results of county cricket matches started Monday and concluded yesterday, one of which resulted in a draw: Northamptonshire scored a brilliant victory over Yorkshire, at Leeds, when they defeated the Tykes in one of the closest and most exciting games of the season by 20 runs. Yorkshire, with five wickets down, needed but 57 runs to win, but were only able to compile 36 for the last five wickets. Thompson (G. J.) proved to be the downfall of the Yorkshire willow wielders, taking five wickets in the second innings for 76 runs.

Lancashire on their home grounds at Manchester went down to defeat to Surrey, losing out by 108 runs. Spring, for Surrey, achieved great success with the ball, capturing six wickets for 38 runs. Kent decisively vanquished Warwickshire, at Birmingham, by an innings and 31 runs. The Sussex-Leicestershire match, at Brighton, was drawn on account of rain.

SCHWENGER AND POWELL WIN AT TENNIS

Folkestone, Eng., July 10.—While the United States and German teams are playing their semi-final round in the Davis cup preliminary tournament at Nottingham, the Canadian and Belgian teams are fighting out their semi-finals in the same competition here.

SHOWS PUBLIC THE SPEED.

A very interesting device was recently tested and examined by the authorities of Scotland Yard. The instrument is styled the fometer, and it is a machine which has been designed and developed to register in large numbers on a prominent part of a motor omnibus or taxicab the number of miles per hour the vehicle is traveling at any given moment, so that the public may see when a vehicle is exceeding the legal limit, while those carried on the vehicle, as well as the driver, are also shown the same figure. Should the vehicle pass the legal limit a gong sounds to draw the attention of the driver to the fact. If he persists in going faster a red flag appears, the machine being electrically illuminated at night.

SELL MANY IN EUROPE.

During the eight months ending with May 1, 1913, there were 300 American cars, worth $280,000, sold in Germany. During the corresponding period a year ago only eighty-nine cars, which, however, aggregated a considerably higher value, were disposed of in the empire. Similar advances of the American trade are reported from other continental countries and Great Britain, which during the year ended with April imported 2009 cars more than during the preceding twelve months.

A KING'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

The boy king of Buganda has already shown that his sense of humor is highly developed. Dressed in brilliant garments of purple, white, and gold, and accompanied by two retainers, the boy king spent several hours recently on the bench of Mr. Justice Darling's court. It was pleasant to see how loyally the retinue laughed in accord with the king, says the London Daily Mirror.

A witness told counsel that some one had used a word much stronger than "disgusting." After consideration he said the word was "confounded."

When the judge remarked: "I was never more disappointed in my life," the court laughed, the king laughed, and the retinue laughed.

FRENCHMEN CALLED HIM 'PRINCE CHARMING'

Prince of Wales Impressed President Poincare and Staff on Their Recent Visit

In welcoming the President of France on his recent visit here the Prince of Wales created a most favorable impression on the distinguished visitors.

The Prince was dressed in the full dress uniform of a naval lieutenant. He took the honors as if he were to the manner born, but his youthful diffidence was very apparent in a way. As soon as he could conveniently do so he left his central position of honor and entered into a conversation with those around him. An hour later on the same spot the Prince received President Poincare.

The impression the Prince created on English onlookers was entirely favorable. He certainly looks strangely young even for his age, but his youthful self-possession and boyish dignity, combined with a slight diffidence, earned the admiration and kindly feeling of all. He was naturally a little nervous, but he discharged his first official duty with a modest, manly bearing which charmed all, says one of those who were present.

There was a slight flush on the face of the Prince as with one hand on his sword hilt and the other at salute he advanced toward President Poincare. Then he warmly grasped him by the hand and repeated the handshake and almost immediately his first nervousness was over. The Prince received M. Poincare's suite one by one, speaking a few words in French to each with complete ease and geniality. He then presented his own staff in a similar manner to President Poincare.

In the inspection of the guard of honor the Prince showed sang froid which was pleasing to the mature French statesman. Throughout the entire ceremony he did the right thing with unflinching sureness. There was no hesitancy or confusion in his movements. One of the French visitors gave the following impression of the Prince:—

"The Prince has made his debut in a manner which was notable for the charm and simplicity of his manners and the graciousness and courtesy of his slightest actions. This youth, who is still almost a child, is a born Prince. Fate has been admirably inspired in so arranging things as to allow the young Prince to make his first appearance in public life in welcoming the President of France at Portsmouth. The Prince is thus doubly dear to all Frenchmen. We feel that he is a little of ours, as France has twice been his sponsor and, let us hope, his good friend."

"For the rest the Prince has been completely successful in the mission confided to him by his father. Despite his timidity, which is natural at his age and which becomes him wonderfully well, he was neither gauche nor embarrassed when he bade the President welcome to England. He was modest, such as became a youth in the presence of a statesman of authority such as President Poincare, but he was also very charming and full of those little acts of thoughtfulness and delicate attentions which denote the well-brought-up boy and appeal strongly to those to whom they are proffered."

"President Poincare took a great liking to the Prince at once and in the President's entourage the Prince is always spoken of as the "Prince Charmant"—"Prince Charming. Isn't it the most delightful nickname one could dream of?"

ACROSS AFRICA FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN

This Will Soon Be Possible by Rail and Steamer; New Service Nearly Ready

To cross Africa from ocean to ocean with no more trouble than is involved in changing from train to steamer and from steamer to train at various points on the journey cannot yet be accomplished, but in a few months' time the missing links in the existing services will be completed, and from the west coast it will be possible to travel direct to Zanzibar, says the Pall Mall Gazette. The new route will be by the Congo river and German East Africa.

For some time, by building railways connecting the navigable stretches of the Congo, the Belgians have maintained a combined river steamer and railway service from the mouth of that river into the very heart of Africa while the Germans from Bay of Sakam, on the east coast, have been building a railway inland to Lake Tanganyika.

That lake has also been one of the objectives of the Belgians, and two years ago they began the building of a railway to the lake from the nearest navigable part of the Lusitania, as the Upper Congo is called. When both the Belgian and German railways reach Tanganyika they will be joined by a line of lake steamers, and the rail and steamer service between the Atlantic and Indian oceans will be complete.

Where Livingstone Was Found. Mail news from the Congo and German East Africa, just received, tells of the approaching attainment of Tanganyika by both railways. The German line was opened to Tabora, 520 miles from the coast, nearly a year ago. Last month a further section of 100 miles was opened to traffic, and the final section of 110 miles is expected to be finished by April next. The lake term-

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Kidneys and Bladder

Williamstown, Ont., July 27, 1910.
 "I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was 'Fruit-a-tives.' This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring, I had a severe attack of Bladder Trouble complicated with Kidney Trouble, and 'Fruit-a-tives' cured these complaints for me, when the physicians attending me had practically given me up.

"I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' for Chronic Constipation and Bladder and Kidney Troubles."

TO A LOCOMOTIVE.

Oh, creature great of thy creator man,
 Who formed thy giant frame for storm and strife,
 And stretched thy steely sinews, taut and ran,
 And deep within thee breathed the breath of life.

Thou art a living thing that moves and feels,
 Swift through whose veins the streams of hot blood strain,
 Thy long and narrow world, the shining steels,
 That hold thee to the path they pre-ordin.

Like goading rods, relentless, grim and grey,
 To beat thee into line before, behind,
 That brook no wandering from the weary way
 To break awhile dull routine's ceaseless grind.

Art thou unhappy? Oft I've heard thee cry,
 Oft from some vantage through the mid light black
 Watched the bright flashing of thy single eye,
 Tear-stained and weather-beaten, light the track.

Or far away in forest depths remote,
 Or skirting swift some mountain lakelet lone,
 I've caught thy distant, intermittent note,
 Now shrieking shrill, now merging to a moan.

And now, while standing restless 'neath restraint,
 Thy long-drawn sighs and pantings rise in walls,
 As though thy nature murmurs in complaint
 Against thy lot upon the narrow rails.

Murmurs in vain, like millions of mankind,
 Urged by an unseen, unrelenting fate
 Along the tracks of circumstance confined,
 Rushing full speed on time, or hopeless late.

Farewell! Farewell! We part—thy great bell tolls,
 Thy lungs expand, thy hot breath like a cloud
 Around thy mighty form in whiteness rolls,
 Then gone thou with with puffs and panting loud.

SALVATION ARMY TO BRING IMMIGRANTS

Major Soper, Detailed to Investigate Conditions in Canada, Says Results Encouraging

SIXTEEN THOUSAND EXPECTED THIS YEAR

Great Numbers of Women and Girls Coming to Dominion Under Army Auspices

One of the great branches of the Salvation Army work, and a branch, too, which is growing rapidly year by year, is that devoted to emigration work, and yesterday a specially detailed officer who has come from England to investigate the conditions in this country with respect to openings and opportunities for the women, girls, and families who are brought out by the Salvation Army, arrived in the city in the person of Major Soper. The major is a sister of Mrs. Bramwell Booth, and, consequently, very closely in touch with the head organizers and moving spirit of the Army. She arrived in Canada on May 10 last with the object in view of studying the moral and general condition of women and young girls in Canada, and of investigating at first hand some of the actual circumstances which they have to face in the new country.

Her observations, she told a Times Representative yesterday, have been reassuring. Although evil as well as good opportunities are given the girls in Canada, the latter are vastly in the ascendant, and justify the Salvation Army emigration officers in continuing their work. In the first year of its foundation, six years ago, the Army sent out from Liverpool about 187 emigrants altogether. At the time it was felt by the officers that they would do well if they succeeded in sending out double that number the following year. Their hopes were vastly exceeded. Six hundred came out under their auspices to Canada that year, and the year following nearly 1,200. This season arrangements are being made to conduct what they already feel confident will be in the neighborhood of 16,000 emigrants to this land.

The emigrants are composed of all ages, and of both sexes, although women and girls form the majority of the parties to-day. Owing to the exceptionally happy conditions existing between the Salvation Army and the Canadian government, as well as the various transportation companies, the best of travelling conditions are obtained for the emigration parties, and arrangements, both on boat and train, are better than can be received through any other transportation agents.

Domestic Servants.
 "The great majority, we might almost say practically all, of the women and girls who come out to Canada under our auspices are domestic servants," explained the Salvation Army officer in speaking of the great work. "They are collected through our agents, and, in the case of those who come up to Liverpool from London, are given free transportation to the port of sailing. We never send them on board to spend the night if they arrive the day before the boat sails, but put them up at the Anne Fowler home, an institution named in honor of the splendid woman who gave it to the Army for just such work.

"The girls are next morning conducted to the boat by one of our guides, their passages booked, and the best possible berth obtained. The empress boats have been particularly considerate in giving us favorable conditions, and although the girls travel steerage they get comfortable, airy rooms; we would accept nothing less. On their arrival at the port of disembarkation, when the girls leave the conductress who has accompanied them on the voyage, they are met by other Salvation Army officers, who once more take them in charge and see them safely to their destination, no matter if it lies at the other side of the Dominion."

Referring to ordinary tourist car conditions, Major Soper deplored the fact that any girls had to travel under such circumstances. The Salvation Army has its own cars, which, it arranges, shall be either the first or the last on the train so that there is no intrusion from people passing through to other parts of the train. Bedding and curtains, food and other comforts are provided by the officers and the girls travel comfortably without having to sit up all night long with travelling companions of any kind as would be the case in the average tourist car.

Salvation Army Lodges.
 Another feature of the emigration work among girls and women which it is hoped by the Army it may be in a financial position to add to considerably in years to come, is the establishment of lodges where the girls may find rooms where they arrive as strangers in big cities. Already in Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, Winnipeg and Vancouver such lodges have been established, and in Toronto there is a children's immigration home where the little people coming out under the Army auspices may find protection.

Later, the Army has successfully inaugurated a branch devoted to the placing in positions of widows with families, and this work has been most encouraging. The officers take a keen interest in the welfare of those whom they bring out to the new country and make an effort to keep in touch with the girls for at least the first twelve months. The interest is appreciated and the girls nearly always voluntarily write and let the officers know how they are getting on in their new posts.

Demand for Girls.
 "In Toronto," said Major Soper, "there is a big demand for our girls in the capacity of domestic help, although speaking generally the biggest demand for them is out in Western Canada. Wages in Canada are, of course, better than in England, and this, to my mind, is going to effect a change for the better in this respect in the Old Country, where the girls, knowing how much better they can do in this country, can stipulate for better wages than in times gone by. Mistresses in this country, however, err in one of two directions: they are either unsympathetic and leave the parties to-day, or they are so generous that they can often readjust troubles arising from such conditions, however, and these employment bureaus have a double usefulness in this sense."

The Salvation Army Lodge in Seventh avenue, Vancouver, has accommodation for forty girls and last Sunday Major Soper met a number who came under the Army auspices some time ago, most of whom are very happy and content in their new environment. One had been with the same mistress for over two years and their relations had been of the happiest.

Visited Prison.
 It was in 1896 that Major Soper was placed in charge of the Plymouth prison police court work, a work which she found intensely interesting despite the sordid and oftentimes tragic conditions with which she was brought in contact. The Army work in this connection is purely redemption work, although the very foundation of it is practical as well as spiritual. The Old Land are not so easy of access as in the Dominion and the officers have to confine their work principally to the police courts and prison gates.

Last Sunday the officer, accompanied by Ensign Mardell, the officer in charge of the men's social work in Vancouver, visited the prison at New Westminster and held a meeting with the prisoners, and held a great interest and proving very responsive. One man came up afterwards and thanked them heartily for coming, saying that they all appreciated the spirit in which the Salvation Army held its meetings. Major Soper expressed some surprise at a condition which made it possible for a man to be imprisoned for more than a year awaiting trial simply because, as the case was explained to her, there was not sufficient evidence ready as yet to prove the man guilty, although there was no doubt whatever as to his guilt.

Other investigations along the lines of social and moral work among women and girls in Vancouver revealed to the visiting officer the existence of conditions such as are more commonly associated with the worst quarters of London, Paris, New York, Chicago, and others of the great cities where vice congregates. These, she says, are conditions which they feel almost powerless in the face of, owing to lack of officers, the handicap of inefficient laws, and the existence of wholesale bribery and corruption among those who administer them.

Work in Plymouth.
 In Plymouth Major Soper has charge of the women's social work, and after her appointment to this work was given supervision of the two Salvation Army homes for women, where there is accommodation for 85 women, and officers. She also has a seat on the board of guardians in Plymouth, and is highly gratified by the nature of the success with which their work is meeting. The work is made necessary, largely through the stress of economic conditions, and children, young girls between the ages of 10 and 12, who have been convicted over and over again for petty thieving, pilfering and similar traits arising from poverty in the home and lack of moral training, number among those whom the Army cares for in these homes.

Since the establishment of juvenile courts in England during the last two or three years, the Army has been able to get many of these little girls and young women and take them to their homes where they are given the best possible associates, the officers mining with them and giving them the benefit of their advice, also taking their meals with the girls, and in every way letting them receive anything that can be given through the power of good example.

In this connection Major Soper told an amusing story of the appreciation of some of the girls of the treatment which they receive in the homes, the incident showing how difficult it is for social workers to teach those long accustomed to evil habits to distinguish between right and wrong.

One of the girls had been in the home for some time, and had at last been sent out to take a position as domestic servant at a big house in the city. Her love for the home and the officers was genuine, and she often revisited the place where she had first learned to know kindness and happiness. On the occasion of one of her first visits she fished from her pocket a parcel of spoons, placing them triumphantly on the table with the generous outburst: "Here, I knew you needed them, and they've half they want without them up there. They'll never miss them, so when they wasn't looking I pinched them."

Major Soper is, like all the officers of the Army, an enthusiast in the service. One cannot be happy in the Salvation Army, she says, without that spirit which rejoices in sacrifice and the daily taking up of the cross. Slightly grey, unusually strong featured for a woman, her expression is radiant with a sympathy and love of humanity which is heard again in the deep cultured voice. Her love of the late General Booth amounts to a type of hero worship, and she could not say enough in praise of the grand old man who raised up the splendid organization which is doing such good in the world to-day.

To-day she is visiting some of the girls whom the Army has brought out to Victoria, and on Sunday she and her comrade, Major Arnold, will assist at the service at the barracks. On Monday they will proceed to Combs to look over the Salvation Army settlement there, after which they will proceed to Alberni before returning to Vancouver.

TWO JOKES.

A budding author who was making excursions into humor sent a paragraph to the editor of a daily paper. Not finding it printed within a reasonable time or hearing from the editorial department, he wrote about its welfare. "I sent you a joke about ten days ago, I have heard nothing respecting its safe receipt, and should be glad to hear whether you have seen it." The editor's reply, says the Chronicle, was as follows: "Your joke arrived safely, but up to the present we have not seen it."

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYS CHINESE

To the Editor: Walking round the government dock at Esquimalt I noticed a scow load of coal being emptied by Chinamen.

Should this be, when there are hundreds of men walking about Victoria looking for work and cannot find it? Yet Chinamen are employed by government officials at the cost of white men.

I always understood that British government officials were model employers of British labor.

Six Are Named by School Board—Miss Williams Will Take Holiday.

To fill the vacancies in the teaching staff, of which there were six, the board last evening elected Misses B. Brynjoften, May E. Mohr, B. O'Keefe, Olive Lister and Gertrude Field on the first ballot, and Miss Kate Scanlon on the third ballot, to take office next term.

Miss Williams, principal of the Girls' Central school, was granted leave of absence till December 31 next.

The resignation of Miss Mabel German as a teacher at Bank street school was accepted.

Miss DeBou sent in her resignation from the staff of Sir James Douglas school. For reasons explained in the communication the subject was laid over till the return of Superintendent Paul from Prince Rupert.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT
By RUTH CAMERON

A young friend of mine whose besetting weakness is her uncontrollable temper, has moved into a pretty new home.

A group of us called on her there and were shown the new domain by the proud possessor. "And let me tell you the best thing," she said, "is we finished the inspection. 'It doesn't show like the closets and the open fire place, but I think it's best of all. I made a resolution when I came here not to give way to my temper in this new place and I haven't yet, and that's four weeks ago," vigorously knocking on the wooden arm of her piazza chair.

Of course we laughed, and then someone asked, "My, we know the connection between temper and a brand new house? Is it easier to keep your temper in a brand new house? I guess I'll have to persuade my husband to buy me one if it is."

"Why, the only connection is that when you go to any new place you feel as if you were starting life all new, and so it's a good chance to leave your faults behind. We've moved three times and each time I've begun the new life with the determination to get rid of some of my horrible temper. Of course, the other moves were just little changes from one hired apartment to another, and since this is the biggest change I'm going to try to make more change in myself."

We all laughed at the lady's philosophy, but after all I thought it pretty fine.

So fine, in fact, that having recently moved myself, I am trying to make this chance a peg on which to hang a reform of my habit of procrastination. I am beginning the new regime by going directly from breakfast to my work instead of dawdling about and looking for things to fritter away time upon, as I used to do; and I find it much easier to inaugurate the new habit under the stimulus of new surroundings and conditions.

Good habits are very hard to launch, and it is very difficult indeed to find the right time to launch them. Some day, we all think, the auspicious time will come to overcome our besetting weakness, but we know it is not today. And if a new regime of some sort will give us the needed impetus toward finding that "some day," let us seize every such opportunity. Nor need the new regime necessarily be the move into a new home. You have a lovely new gown. Why not make that the occasion of launching a habit of more careful grooming? You have a new desk. Is not that the opportunity to be more orderly? And why should not the new watch of which you are so proud help you to launch the habit of punctuality.

Perhaps these seem but slender pegs to hang such big reforms upon, but slenderer pegs have held greater changes.

CUBS' FOOD.

They Thrive on Grape-Nuts.

Healthy babies don't cry and the well-nourished baby that is fed on Grape-Nuts is never a crying baby. Many babies who cannot take any other food relish the perfect food, Grape-Nuts, and get well.

"My baby was given up by three doctors who said that the condensed milk on which I had fed her had ruined the child's stomach. One of the doctors told me that the only thing to do would be to try Grape-Nuts, so I got some and prepared it as follows: I soaked 1 1/2 tablespoons in one pint of cold water for half an hour, then I strained off the liquid and mixed 2 teaspoonsful of this strained Grape-Nuts juice with six teaspoonsful of rich milk, put in a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warmed it and gave it to baby every two hours.

"In this simple, easy way I saved baby's life and have built her up to a strong, healthy child, rosy and laughing. The food must certainly be perfect to have such a wonderful effect as this. I can truthfully say I think it is the best food in the world to raise delicate babies on, and is also a delicious healthful food for grown-ups, as we have discovered in our family."

Grape-Nuts is equally suitable to the strong, healthy man or woman. It stands for the true theory of health. "There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in packages.

FOR A YOUNG GIRL.

This suit of navy blue looks well on a slender girlish figure. The skirt is slightly draped in the front, but plain in the back with a wide panel. The plain blouse coat is gathered into a peplum, which is covered with folds of black satin in imitation of a wide hip sash. Black velvet is used on the collar and in the making of the buttons.

NO BURNING OF FINGERS.

to pots of any diameter. With this implement a woman can drain vessels quickly and satisfactorily, with no danger of burning her fingers and without having to use more than one hand in the operation. The primitive method is to hold the pot by means of a cloth and drain it through a slit left by putting the lid part way on.

THE ESKIMO CHILD.

The Eskimo child is the idol of the home, and is allowed to do absolutely as he pleases. He is never punished, and his wishes and wishes are consulted with all the concern given an adult. In spite of this indulgence, the children are remarkably obedient. Perhaps the patriarchal manner of living—father and mother, aunts and uncles and grandmother and grandfather in one house—tends to make them so. The word of the old folks is law, and is never questioned. They have lived a long time, the Eskimo reason, and therefore speak with the authority of experience.

All this is very nice in the ordinary walks of life, but rather embarrassing

TO DRAIN COOKING POTS

Strainer Attached to Pliers Fits Over Top of Vessel.

An implement for draining cooking utensils has been invented by a woman in the State of Washington. An oddly shaped pair of pliers has an arm projecting from the head, and on the other end this arm a strainer is slidably mounted. The jaws of the pliers grip one edge of the pot or pan to be drained and the straining device claps over the opposite half of the top of the receptacle. Being slidable, it can be adjusted

LORD ROSEBERY ON WAR AND ITS CAUSES

Lord Rosebery paid a visit to Selkirk yesterday and took part in various celebrations connected with the four hundredth anniversary of the battle of Flodden Field and the valiant part which Selkirk men played on that occasion. The annual "common riding," by which ancient custom the burghers maintain their right to one thousand acres of land granted to the town by James V. in recognition of their warlike prowess, took place at the same time, and, as usual, the whole district gave itself up to holiday-making. When Lord Rosebery arrived by special train from Edinburgh as early as nine o'clock he found the people in the midst of festivities which had been going on almost from daybreak. First was escorted to the Market square, where with all due civic ceremony, the freedom of the burgh was conferred on him, all the old quaint formalities being observed, including "the licking of the birse," or hog bristle point of a shoemaker's thread, this custom being a survival of the time when nearly all the burghers of Selkirk were shoemakers.

Lord Rosebery proceeded to the Victoria Hall, outside the entrance of which he unveiled a statue which has been erected by public subscription at a cost of about $100, and which represents a Selkirk survivor of the famous battle holding aloft a flag, whilst the worn boots and torn jerkin suggests the toilsome march and stern fight. At the conclusion of this ceremony the noble lord addressed a great meeting within the building. They had to throw themselves back, he said, over the centuries and try to place themselves in the position of the men of Selkirk of that day. It was not necessary for him to go into the history of the battle; it was a disaster that had sunk deep into the Scottish heart and had caused the largest and most open wound, and if any proof were needed it would be found in the great overgrowth and tangle of tradition, romance and legend which had grown over that battlefield, and if any further proof were needed it would be found in the monument of poetry which had been raised over it. They had Flodden well enough—the collection of that vast army, sometimes computed at 100,000 Lowlanders and Highlanders side by side on the moor at Edinburgh now covered with houses, but then with noble oak trees. The cause of the collection of this vast host, the causes that lay at the base of invasion were not easy to trace. One was apt to be bewildered the more one went into it, but there had been advanced—the lifelong animosity between the English and the Scotch, the squalid dispute as to some jewels belonging to the Queen of Scotland which her brother, Henry VIII, refused to deliver up, and there was the romantic friendship with France which found the most acute expression as regards the war in the ring which the Queen of France sent to James IV. with a message appointing him her true knight and engaging him in that capacity to march into English ground. He was inclined to think, in view of the almost instantly chivalrous character of James, that the ring and the message were the most operative causes of the war, which was not particularly popular in Scotland. James, in marching into England, wasted a good deal of time which he might more usefully have employed. A noteworthy point was the behaviour of the Scottish King when he king achieved a partial success. He did what was without exception the most insane thing ever done by a commander-in-chief. He abdicated his command, got off his horse, and fought as a simple soldier in the rank of the combat. What was worse, his nobles and leaders followed his example, and the army was abandoned to its own devices. No greater crime against an army of a country was ever committed by a king, and no doubt it mainly contributed to the disaster of Flodden.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, the result of improper eating. Sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as the building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin and weak. The only way to get rid of the acid is to eat a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a half teaspoonful of Bismarck Magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bismarck Magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It is not a medicine, and has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I can assure you that it is never necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of doing an inflamed and irritated stomach with anything but the Bismarck Magnesia, as directed above, and see if I'm not right, eat what you want at your next meal.

For the longest sentence on record we must go to the French. In "Les Merveilles" Victor Hugo has one sentence that runs through a hundred lines, and earlier in the book, in one of the chapters, descriptive of Waterloo, there are over fifty lines without a full stop. England's record rests under official patronage, for it would appear to be the seventh section of the Foreign Enlistment Act, which does not stop until it has very nearly reached its six hundredth word.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

Chicago's "I-Told-You-So Club" will celebrate "Dooley Day" to-day, this being the forty-sixth anniversary of the birth of the distinguished humorist, Finley Peter Dunne. The club's membership is confined to those who knew Dunne before he became famous, and who predicted that he would make a name for himself. The roll of prophets includes everybody who knew the creator of "Mr. Dooley" when he was reporter and editor on the Chicago Evening Post, Times-Herald and Journal. Mr. Dunne was born in Chicago July 10, 1867, and began his newspaper career at eighteen. From the very first day his associates, including even the notoriously grouchy city editors, began saying to each other, "This cub Dunne has got the goods." Such universal approbation was a terrible handicap, but Mr. Dunne won out in spite of it, and now all the prophets celebrate his birthday and say, in unison, "I told you so." Some years ago "Mr. Dooley" left the Windy City to live in New York, but Chicagoans have forgiven him even that, and are as proud of him as of their own eminent Dunne, Edward F., governor of Illinois, and the father of ten or fifteen children.

In carrying the blessings of civilization to the heathen of the Congo, it was formerly the white man's pleasant custom to lash his hands, feet and other useful members, rub salt in his wounds, and commit other atrocities in the name of "necessary discipline." The Congo is filled with pitiful proofs of the ferocity and rapacity of the white man when freed from restraint. The man who put a stop to these outrages is Edward D. Morel, editor of the African Mail, and founder of the Congo Reform Association, who will celebrate his fortieth birthday to-day. One of the most representative gatherings of Englishmen ever assembled, including Sir Conan Doyle, Sir Gilbert Parker, the Earl of Cromer, Anthony Hope and many others, recently met to honor the brave journalist who headed a crusade that aroused international public opinion, forced the doors of six of the world's parliaments, and put an end to the heartless exploitation of the black men of the Congo.

Adolph Busch, of St. Louis, the world's wealthiest brewer, was born in Germany seventy-one years ago to-day. He recently became the step-great-grandfather of three charming children when his grandson, Adolphus 3rd, married a divorcee several years his senior. Mr. Busch is one of the most public spirited citizens of the Missouri metropolis, and contributed most of the money for the famous memorial statue, "The Naked Truth," which was so shocking to St. Louis sensibilities.

Mark Twain's "Boswell," Albert Bigelow Paine, whose biography of Mr. Clemens has been one of the literary events of the year, was born in New Bedford, Mass., fifty-two years ago to-day. He was educated in Illinois, and was a business man in Kansas before he discovered that he could write, and sell what he wrote.

Vice-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, the hero of Ladysmith, will pass his sixtieth milestone to-day. He recently retired from the British navy, in which he had served since the age of thirteen. In 1907 he figured in a lively row with Lord Charles Beresford.

UNTAXED INDIAN BACHELORS.

The Santals, or Sonthals, who dwell on the bank of the Lower Ganges have a claim to distinction. Nobody agitates in their land for a tax on bachelors for the simple reason that nobody but an idiot remains a celibate. Not only is marriage popular, but the Santals have evolved all sorts of ways by which they may obtain wives or husbands for themselves. The methods followed vary from a purely commercial transaction to a romantic elopement, or, in the case of ugly and unattractive women, the prospective bridegroom may, if he likes, serve his future father-in-law for a stated period, after which he is free to go off with his bride and, usually, some substantial presents as well.

"Buying the bride" is, however, the most common method of doing the business, though there exists also the alternative ceremony known as "buying the husband." The bridegroom has apparently very little choice in the matter, which is arranged by his father or friends, who reveal in bride-hunting expeditions. Chicago's "I-Told-You-So Club" will celebrate "Dooley Day" to-day, this being the forty-sixth anniversary of the birth of the distinguished humorist, Finley Peter Dunne. The club's membership is confined to those who knew Dunne before he became famous, and who predicted that he would make a name for himself. The roll of prophets includes everybody who knew the creator of "Mr. Dooley" when he was reporter and editor on the Chicago Evening Post, Times-Herald and Journal. Mr. Dunne was born in Chicago July 10, 1867, and began his newspaper career at eighteen. From the very first day his associates, including even the notoriously grouchy city editors, began saying to each other, "This cub Dunne has got the goods." Such universal approbation was a terrible handicap, but Mr. Dunne won out in spite of it, and now all the prophets celebrate his birthday and say, in unison, "I told you so." Some years ago "Mr. Dooley" left the Windy City to live in New York, but Chicagoans have forgiven him even that, and are as proud of him as of their own eminent Dunne, Edward F., governor of Illinois, and the father of ten or fifteen children.

In carrying the blessings of civilization to the heathen of the Congo, it was formerly the white man's pleasant custom to lash his hands, feet and other useful members, rub salt in his wounds, and commit other atrocities in the name of "necessary discipline." The Congo is filled with pitiful proofs of the ferocity and rapacity of the white man when freed from restraint. The man who put a stop to these outrages is Edward D. Morel, editor of the African Mail, and founder of the Congo Reform Association, who will celebrate his fortieth birthday to-day. One of the most representative gatherings of Englishmen ever assembled, including Sir Conan Doyle, Sir Gilbert Parker, the Earl of Cromer, Anthony Hope and many others, recently met to honor the brave journalist who headed a crusade that aroused international public opinion, forced the doors of six of the world's parliaments, and put an end to the heartless exploitation of the black men of the Congo.

Adolph Busch, of St. Louis, the world's wealthiest brewer, was born in Germany seventy-one years ago to-day. He recently became the step-great-grandfather of three charming children when his grandson, Adolphus 3rd, married a divorcee several years his senior. Mr. Busch is one of the most public spirited citizens of the Missouri metropolis, and contributed most of the money for the famous memorial statue, "The Naked Truth," which was so shocking to St. Louis sensibilities.

Mark Twain's "Boswell," Albert Bigelow Paine, whose biography of Mr. Clemens has been one of the literary events of the year, was born in New Bedford, Mass., fifty-two years ago to-day. He was educated in Illinois, and was a business man in Kansas before he discovered that he could write, and sell what he wrote.

Vice-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, the hero of Ladysmith, will pass his sixtieth milestone to-day. He recently retired from the British navy, in which he had served since the age of thirteen. In 1907 he figured in a lively row with Lord Charles Beresford.

UNTAXED INDIAN BACHELORS.

The Santals, or Sonthals, who dwell on the bank of the Lower Ganges have a claim to distinction. Nobody agitates in their land for a tax on bachelors for the simple reason that nobody but an idiot remains a celibate. Not only is marriage popular, but the Santals have evolved all sorts of ways by which they may obtain wives or husbands for themselves. The methods followed vary from a purely commercial transaction to a romantic elopement, or, in the case of ugly and unattractive women, the prospective bridegroom may, if he likes, serve his future father-in-law for a stated period, after which he is free to go off with his bride and, usually, some substantial presents as well.

"Buying the bride" is, however, the most common method of doing the business, though there exists also the alternative ceremony known as "buying the husband." The bridegroom has apparently very little choice in the matter, which is arranged by his father or friends, who reveal in bride-hunting expeditions. Having fixed upon a likely girl, they proceed to parables and business: "Have you," they ask the head men of the village where she lives, "any diamonds to sell?" "That," is the guarded reply, "depends upon the quality of your pearls," and the bargaining goes on till the price has been fixed, usually five rupees for a girl and half that amount for a widow, which is only half, seeing that she rejoins her first love in a future life. "Tearing the leaf," as divorce is called, is a very simple matter. A santal leaf torn in half and a piece given to each of the parties is quite sufficient to dissolve the union, the woman, if necessary, being represented by an earthenware pot.—London Standard.

PEOPLE AND CHURCH-GOING.

An Australian clergyman now visiting in this country reports: "Church leaders in Australia were led to the support of the Saturday half-holiday law, believing that poor men, tired with working on Saturdays, could not possibly get up Sunday mornings and go to church. It was argued that if they had their holiday they would be fresh for Sunday, possibly for an early service. What is the working out? Why, most disastrous. It has been a big blow to the church. Because vacations from Saturday noon to Monday morning are assured, week-ends in the country have multiplied enormously."

What has been the effect of the Saturday half-holiday on church attendance in America? Has it increased, as might naturally be expected, or decreased after the manner of Australia's experience? Has any one collected statistics on the subject? It used to be argued in defence of Sunday sports that workmen had no time for amusement on week-days, and it used to be argued on behalf of the Saturday half-holiday that it would enable men to have their sports and go to church, too. Now we have our Saturday half-holidays, but there appears to be no falling off in the Sunday sports.—Buffalo Express.

THE CHRISTIAN WIDOW.

Writing of the humors of a country charity fair in the Pall Mall Magazine, Mr. S. L. Bensusan says: "I remember how, in the year when fireworks were first introduced here, old Widow Farrott left the fair in anger after demanding her entrance money from the clergyman, on the ground that such an exhibition was not Christian and that she was. The reverend gentleman, feeling rather distressed, paid the entrance fee he had not received, and the old Christian lady stood in the middle of the road and watched the rest of the display from there, with clear conscience and replenished purse."

NEST IN A PIT SHAFT.

One day last week, while a couple of workmen were engaged repairing the downcast shaft at Kirkwood Colliery, near Coatbridge, says the Glasgow News, they came across a bird's nest neatly constructed in the side of the shaft, about eighteen feet from the surface, and scarcely a foot from the cage guides. The nest, which is a black-bird's, contains three eggs. Last year at the same colliery a martin built its nest in a nook in the pithead frame, immediately above the mouth of the shaft.

TO-DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

In 1757, the year before the appearance of Amherst and Wolfe on the scene in North America, the British commander-in-chief, Lord Loudoun, made tremendous preparations for the capture of Louisbourg. He gathered a considerable force of regulars and colonials together, and proceeded to Halifax, where he was to be reinforced by fresh troops and vessels from England. The authorities at home were extraordinarily dilatory, however, and it was July 10th before the last of the expected ships had straggled in. Even then, with twelve thousand men under his command, Lord Loudoun might have attempted something. But he was remarkably lacking in decision and energy. A colonial wit compared him to the St. George on a seven sign "atways on horseback, and never riding on." At this late date he ordered all the troops to land, and set them planting vegetables and drilling, while a single ship was sent to reconnoitre the French fortress. One of his subordinates, Lord Charles Hay, accused him of wasting the nation's money "in making sham fights and planting cabbages" and was sent back to England to stand a court-martial; but, though the gibe stung, Loudoun finally abandoned the task and returned to New York, leaving Louisbourg unmolested.

Pitt's magnificent plan for the American campaigns of 1759, the principal feature of which was the conquest of all Canada, began to take the form of action on July 10th of that year. On that date Niagara was invested by General Prideaux, who was killed a few days later by the bursting of a mortar. Sir William Johnson succeeded to the command, and before the close of the month completely routed the French relief force of General D'Aubry, whereupon Niagara capitulated. In the meantime the able but dilatory Amherst, commander-in-chief of the American forces, was marching on Ticonderoga, from which the French defenders fled upon his approach. At Quebec the 10th of July found Wolfe engaged in the occupation of the east bank of the Montmorency. On the previous day he had ordered Monkton to make a demonstration up the river, and while this was in progress he moved 3,000 men of Murray's and Townshend's brigades across the channel. Under the fire of the guns of several battleships the troops, led by Wolfe, made a safe crossing and effected a landing early on the morning of the 10th. As a result of this movement Wolfe's right and Monkton's left faced each other within musket-shot, but a great gulf and the swift torrent of the Montmorency yawned between them. It was Wolfe's intention to force the passage of the Montmorency, but the French were so strongly posted that such action was deferred. The English batteries on Point Levis were completed on the 10th, and the French, under cover of darkness, sought to capture them, but in a panic, the two parties of French opened fire on each other, and fled, leaving seventy dead and wounded on the field.

FIRST THINGS

entitled "The Conquerors of the New World and Their Bondsmen." Subsequent researches into American slavery were embodied in "The Spanish Conquest in America, and its Relation to the History of Slavery and the Government of Colonies." This work, in four volumes, embodying many Spanish manuscript, remains an authority on the subject of New World slavery.

Many other books, dealing with social, sanitary and political reform, and marked by a philosophical tone and moral fervor, issued from the pen of Helps. He was the editor of Queen Victoria's selections from her diary, published in 1888 under the title of "Leaves from a Journal of Our Life in the Highlands," and he also wrote the preface of that volume. For this service he was knighted in 1872. He died in 1875.

Chicago, now the most important port on the Great Lakes, greeted its first steamboat eighty-one years ago to-day, July 10, 1832. The tiny steam craft brought Gen. Scott and his troops on their way to the scene of the Black Hawk war. Chicago was then only two years old, and was not incorporated as a town until the year following the visit of the first steamboat. Steam navigation on the Great Lakes began in 1816, when the Frontenac, a magnificent vessel, costing all of $75,000, began to ply on Lake Ontario. The history of Great Lakes transportation, beginning with the birch-bark canoe, followed by the French bateau and the later great fleets of sailing craft, which in turn have given way to the great steam passenger and freight vessels of to-day, is the history of the commercial progress and prosperity of large sections of two great nations. The struggle for trans-Atlantic shipping supremacy is no keener than that being waged on the lakes. Next year Canada will take the lead with a ship 625 feet long, the largest on the lakes, with a wheat-carrying capacity of 450,000 bushels. The contract for this levathan of the fresh water seas was recently awarded to a Port Arthur, Ont., ship-building company.

The first successful sewing machine was the invention of Elias Howe, who was born at Spencer, Mass., ninety-four years ago. After a meagre country school education he became a mechanic, and he was only a youth when he began his efforts to invent a method of sewing by machine. English, French and American inventors held similar ambitions, but their machines were not successful. A machine that would really sew was completed by Howe in 1845 and patented the following year. For years he sought, both in America and England, to bring his machine to public attention. In the meantime others began the manufacture of machines, and Howe was forced to appeal to the courts. In 1854 he attained success in his legal battle, and built a factory with a capacity of 100 machines a day at Bridgeport, Conn. Royalties from his invention made him a multi-millionaire before he died in 1897. Plans for honoring Howe on the occasion of the centenary of his birth, six years hence, are already being considered.

Helps Centenary to be Celebrated To-day.

Although the "beautiful quiet English of Sir Arthur Helps," to which Ruskin admitted his obligation in the formation of his literary style, is not widely read by the present generation, there are still many people who find pleasure and inspiration in the works of the philosophic moralist. A revival of interest in Sir Arthur Helps may be expected as a result of the celebration in England to-day of the centenary of his birth.

Arthur Helps was born in Surrey, July 10, 1813, and was educated at Eton and Oxford. For many years he served as private secretary to Mr. Spring Rice, afterward Baron Montagu, and Lord Morpeth, afterward Earl of Carlisle, and as clerk of the privy council. During this period he cultivated literature with varying success. His two plays, "King Henry the Second," an historical drama, and "Catherine Douglas," a tragedy, both written when Helps was about 30, were failures. Before essaying the role of dramatist, he published "Essays Written in the Interval of Business," and "Claims of Labor, an Essay on the Duties of the Employer to the Employed." These works continue to interest, but more because of their literary style than for any originality of thought.

Slavery was a subject that profoundly interested Helps, and one of the best essays in "Friends in Council" is devoted to it. This was later elaborated into a work in two volumes

Settle With Receiver

City Will Acquire All Useful Water-works Plant From Old Contractors' Outfit.

Arrangements have now been completed with A. S. Innes, receiver for the Westholms Lumber Company, for the city to acquire all material used by the late contractors on the Sooke water-works undertaking, which the officials recognize will be useful for its purposes. Water Commissioner Rust and Boyd Ehle, the resident engineer, were over part of the ground yesterday, and Mr. Rust was able to make this announcement to-day. The staff is being gradually increased at the camps, additions being made as the funds from the stock issue become available.

Until the tenders are in for 10 1/2 miles of 36-inch riveted steel pipe and 27 1/2 miles of reinforced concrete pipe, the former closing on July 31 and the latter on Tuesday next, it will not be possible to advance the work much further. As soon as tenders are let, there will be a big increase in the number of men who will be employed either for the city or contractors. On July 20 the tender closes for the telephone wire along the line from Humpback to Sooke Lake, about 25 miles.

BATTLESHIPS ASSEMBLE OFF THE BRITISH COAST

Naval Manoeuvres of Coast Commanded by Wireless Message of War.

London, July 8.—A declaration of war was wireless to the Admiralty today, and from midnight on 14 great battleships, 20 heavy cruisers, 22 light cruisers, 13 mine-layers, 13 torpedo boat destroyers, 20 torpedo boats, and 42 submarines will give battle off the British coast.

The Germans have nothing to do with the conflict for the "war" is merely the annual British naval manoeuvre and Admiral Sir George Callaghan, commander-in-chief of the Home fleet, will try to protect the coasts against the attack of his very good friends, Sir John Jellicoe, Sir Alexander Bethel and Archibald Moore.

The plan of battle is being kept secret by the Admiralty, but it is understood that Jellicoe has orders to try to land a strong force of marines on the east coast, and it is up to Callaghan to prevent his doing so.

NEW BOOKS

"Arthur James Balfour as Philosopher and Thinker"; Louman, Green & Co., London, and Renouf Publishing Co., Montreal. This is, as the title page declares, a collection of the more important and interesting passages in the non-political writings, speeches and addresses of the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, selected and arranged by Wilfrid M. Short, for many years private secretary to the distinguished author. The volume deals with a wide variety of subjects—science, theology, literature, the arts—and will be found a very useful one by all readers who wish to learn at first hand the views of Mr. Balfour on some of the many questions that he has dealt with, either in his speeches or his writings, and yet have not the time even if they had the opportunity to read and study the originals from which these selections have been made. The book—a volume of 550 pages—is the product of one of the most remarkable intellects of the century, and necessarily will have a wide circulation. It may be obtained by mail from the Montreal publisher, above mentioned.

"I Never See You Dusting" said Mrs. White

"Well, Mrs. White, I'll confess that I don't have to do much dusting since we got our McClary's Sunshine Furnace."

"You don't say so, Mrs. Wright. What difference does that make? Isn't one furnace the same as another?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Mrs. White—McClary's Sunshine is certainly different from our last furnace. It's a clean furnace. It has what McClary's call a sure-acting dust flue."

"A dust flue, eh?"

"Yes, and when George, my husband, 'rocks down the ashes—he doesn't have to break his back shaking the Sunshine, you know—the dust all goes up the sure-acting dust flue. It doesn't come up into the house."

"Wish our furnace was a Sunshine, Mrs. Wright. And you should just see Mr. White after shaking our furnace. Mad! Well, I should say so. And he sure looks his name. He is WHITE. His suits are ruined, he declares, as soon as he gets them, and he swears that the thing is not a furnace at all, but a patent coal-consumer gotten out to benefit the coal man."

"But why not get your husband to put in a Sunshine furnace, Mrs. White? You can persuade him to do most anything for you. And it will cut down your coal bills. We burn a third less coal with the Sunshine."

DOG-CATCHER AND CITIZEN AT ODDS

Latter is Fined Ten Dollars for an Assault on Former, but He Will Appeal

The woe of the dog-catcher are many, and he stands to meet sour looks and perhaps hard knocks from those whose canine pets he may come into professional contact with during his rounds.

This morning the assistant dog-catcher, or, to be more accurate, the deputy assistant, Samuel Alker, had Charles H. King, 975 North Park street, in police court on a charge of assaulting a special constable while in the execution of his duty. The defence made by Frank Higgins, who appeared for the defendant, was that he was repelling an attempt by the dog-catcher to climb into his garden after he had improperly netted a dog belonging to defendant.

Alker had not gone far with his story when it became manifest that he was not an officer and had never been sworn to act as such, and that he was only acting for the assistant jailer of stray dogs while that person is enjoying a short respite from his unpopular task. The charge was therefore amended to one of common assault.

Alker told the court that he was on North Park street on Monday with the dog wagon, clearing the street of unlicensed dogs. There was a group of four dogs and he netted one. While stooping to ascertain if the animal had a tag he was struck under the eye and on the mouth, following which King told him he had no right to take a licensed dog.

In answer to Mr. Higgins the witness further explained that the dog was close to the fence when caught, and King was in his garden inside the fence. He denied that he had sworn to King, threatened to "knock his block off" or tried to get over the fence at him, or that he had stunned the dog before netting it.

William Ashton, poundkeeper since May 1, corroborated Alker's story. He told Mr. Higgins that he always looked to see if a dog had a tag on before netting it, but sometimes this was not possible.

Mrs. King said she heard her husband tell the dog-catcher to take the dog out of the net, and the other refused with a string, rather to do so. Alker had then struck her husband, who "landed him one," and tried to climb the fence into the garden. All this time the dog had lain stunned in the net and the other poundkeeper was up the street chasing another dog. When released the dog had become sick.

Mrs. William Hill was with Mrs.
King in the garden at the time, and she said she saw the dog-catcher hit the animal on the head with the net.
She heard the language, saw the blow and noticed the man trying to get over the fence.

Questioned by City Prosecutor Harrison, Mrs. Hill said that Alker showed no badge, but on the contrary said he would go and get his badge and summon Mr. King.

Mrs. John Munciffee had been driving past at the moment and spoke of hearing Alker use foul language.

Mr. King's statement was that Alker was getting over the fence to strike at him when he struck the man. Alker had lifted one fist and it touched him on the breast. Previous to this, the witness said, he had remonstrated with Alker for hitting the dog, and when the man claimed to be a police officer he had said: "Then you are a hot one." Alker called Ashton and wanted to come over the fence again,
but the latter dissuaded him and said they would summon the man instead.

"I will have to go down and get my badge before I can do that," Alker replied.

Mr. King owned to feeling pretty angry, as the dog was a valuable one.
On Alker's evidence called in rebuttal he again denied swearing or attempting to get over the fence, but in the end admitted to Mr. Higgins that he probably did call the defendant an insultation name and tried to justify it as "an expression frequently used in this country."

Mr. Higgins had him show the badge he was wearing, and which he said he had shown Mr. King, but it turned out to be simply a "pound-keeper's" badge belonging to the man he was relieving.
"What do you think you are," asked Mr. Higgins, "a police officer or a pound-keeper?"

"Just an ordinary dog-catcher," Al-ker replied.

Ashton, when recalled, said he did not think the other man had applied the epithet to Mr. King that he had said he did use.

HOSPITAL PLANS IN
BY END OF MONTH

Diversity of Designs Expected in Competition; New Business Blocks Contemplated

Architects in the city are busy now with their competitive plans for the Provincial Royal Jubilee hospital, which have to be in by August 1.

As the plans of the directors contemplate a large group of buildings the competition is receiving the attention of the profession both in Vancouver and Victoria and there is a prospect of a considerable diversity of design in the plans which will be lodged.

So far as the financing of the undertaking is concerned, in addition to the subscriptions collected last year, there is the large vote of the city, amounting to $225,000 less discount, approved last December; the appropriation of a small sum recently passed by the Oak Bay ratepayers, and the grant in aid from the provincial government.

Apart from the Parliament buildings extension this will be the largest undertaking in the line of building started in Victoria this year, and will be welcome to the building trades at a time when things have quieted down after the rush of last year.

The only large office building now under construction, the British Columbia Permanent Loan building on Douglass street, is rapidly advancing, and the walls around the steel frame are now up eight stories. It will be the tallest building in the city, the Campbell building being at present the highest.

There are two or three large business blocks contemplated, about which announcements will be made in the near future, so that the permits for the current year will take a bound before the summer season has waned. Two blocks which have been the subject of much speculation, and to which reference was made in the city council recently, will be the subject of announcement soon.

There is no abatement in the activity with theatrical and apartment ventures. The popularity of the apartment house with stores on the ground level shows no diminution. These are springing up all over the city and will be filled as soon as ready. Church building has had a little slackening from the rate of last year, while it has been accelerated in their improvements in order to comply with the licensing law next March.

Would Interview Aldermen.—Three bodies desire to meet the city council, through the finance committee, on Monday with regard to various phases of labor. (The Victoria Laborer's Protective Union, the Trades and Labor Council and the street sweepers in the city employment wish to be heard.
The last named class has been considerably affected by the change to machinery. The work has been often regarded as an avenue for the employment of men who had served the city
well but have got beyond hard work.
These men have to be carried in some way, or else would become a charge on the rates through the Old Men's Home.
There are several matters which they desire to leave with the aldermen for consideration.)

In this age of agitation for pure, clean foods, it is refreshing to know that "Salada" Tea is sold to the public in all its native freshness and fragrance, preserved in sealed air-tight packets, direct from the gardens to the consumer, insuring a cup of tea "in perfection" hitherto unknown.

Picnic at Union Bay.—Nearly 150 children assembled at Christ Church cathedral this morning preparatory to leaving on the annual Sunday School picnic of the combined Sunday schools of Christ Church cathedral and St.
Mary's, Oak Bay. Two British Columbia Electric railway cars conveyed the happy youngsters to Union Bay, leaving town at 10:15. The children are in charge of the Rev. Mr. Barton, the Rev. Mr. Dawe, and the Rev. Mr. Andrews, and will return to the city this evening at 7 o'clock.

Boards of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music were

MINNESOTA TAKING PUGET SOUND REFRIGERATED FISH

Seattle, July 9.—The task of stowing away cargo into the hull of the Great Northern liner Minnesota rapidly nears completion, and the vessel will be ready to sail for the Orient at noon July 10. The big steamship will carry approximately 9,000 tons of general freight, a considerable part of which will be discharged at Manila.

Wheat, flour and lumber form the bulk of the cargo, although her refrigerators bulge with fresh meat, fish and vegetables. Refrigerated Puget Sound fish is in demand in Manila, and halibut and salmon are carried every trip. Fresh pork is the meat chiefly asked for from this country, beef and mutton being sent in from Australia.

DELAY ON GRACE LINER.
Word to the effect that delay has been encountered in the construction of boilers for the new Grace liner Santa Clara, nearing completion at the Cramp shipyards, Philadelphia, has been received at the local office of the line. Accordingly the Santa Clara, which is the second of four vessels building for the Grace Company at the Cramp yards, will not be able to leave New York for Victoria until some time in August, and will arrive about twenty days behind printed schedule.

RUPERT OFF FOR GRANBY.

This morning the G.T.P. steamer
Prince Rupert, Capt. McKenzie, left port for Prince Rupert and Granby Bay. She carried a good list of passengers for the North from Victoria and Seattle, the following local people embarking to-day: A. W. White, Robt.
A. Ritchie, Miss Offerhaus, Major
Gardner, S. P. Stevenson and Mr. and Mrs. McLachlan.

RESUMING ISLANDS' SERVICE.
The G.T.P. steamer Prince Albert,
Capt. Morehouse, leaves port to-night for Prince Rupert via the Queen Charlotte Islands. She resumes the weekly service to the islands. A number of passengers are leaving on her.

HENRY REACHES AMSTERDAM.
Vancouver, July 10.—The British steamer H. C. Henry, which has been changed from Greenock to Vancouver registry, has arrived at Amsterdam from Seattle via Borneo. She is a ship of 2,553 net tons. American railroad interests own the vessel, but have placed her under the British flag.

Regarded medicinally, strawberry wine is held to be superior to grape wine. Spanish doctors who have investigated the matter report that strawberry wine gives the greater strength to the weakened constitution. The strawberry wine industry is said to be assuming some importance in Spain.

Lowney's shows you how Cocoa ought to taste

And here are some of the reasons:
The diagram at the right shows you how Lowney's Cocoa is produced.

It was easy enough to draw this diagram. But it took a great many years to perfect the process it shows.

Two things we can't show. These are the care and skill which guide every step. And they are the most important of all.

For instance, any one can select, roast or blend cocoa beans. But a little lack of skill in any one of these operations will make a big difference in the resulting flavor.

The cocoa beans used in Lowney's are selected from the very finest-flavored beans that come from the tropics. Mr.
Lowney personally attends to the selection of these beans.

The roasting is conducted by men whose specialized experience tells them just when to stop the roast in order to have the fullest and richest aroma.

Cocoa beans from several countries are combined into an exquisite blend and are then ground.

As Lowney's is produced in Montreal,
it comes to you freshly tinned.

Lowney's is absolutely pure. It has the true cocoa-flavor—rich, delicious, appetizing.

To enjoy the flavor of real cocoa at its best, try a cup of Lowney's.

THE POWER OF THE EARTH
It is in the fertility of the soil. Into the soil the seed is cast; from it springs the fruit, vegetables or crops that profit the grower. For him the Power of the Earth means wealth.

Whether you buy land to cultivate, or whether you buy it as an investment, it is the Power of the Earth that creates your profit.
Our 5-acre tracts in the Sooke District are rich in soil—are close to school and post office—are the best buy offered here or anywhere—are priced at only $600 for a complete five-acre block.

New York, July 10.—The stock market acted to-day very much better than recently. Advancing tendencies were general during the forenoon, but as the session progressed some irregularity developed, particularly in such issues as New York Central, but taken as a whole the market gave a rather good account of itself. The steel tonnage report, while denoting a decrease in unfilled tonnage somewhat above expectations, did not exert an adverse influence, but the disposition was quite general to favorable construction of strengthened position of Bank of England whose reserve increases to 62.50 per cent. as against 42.10 per cent. one week ago.

Victoria, July 10.—Glacier Creek took precedence to Coronation Gold in interest on the local stock exchange this morning and sales were effected at the 5c level, which is the high point reached on this movement. It looked at the close as though no stock was procurable at or immediately above that price. Coronation was well absorbed and underlying support is entirely manifest, but a too rapid advance is not followed closely, so that action in the stock is not spasmodic. Outside interest grows more firmly established daily and is generally distributed throughout the list where bids with but few exceptions are easily sustained.

(By F. W. Stevenson & Co.)
Chicago, July 10.—Liberal sales of wheat for export were made late yesterday afternoon and again to-day, but so far as the market here was concerned, they had little effect. It is estimated that the total export sales yesterday and to-day will exceed 750,000 bushels. Crop conditions in the North-west are a little more promising, and coupled with the constant hedging of new wheat tails against maintenance of prices. The situation does not look at all unhealthy. Prices seem to be on an export basis, and early prospects for a mammoth crop have been materially cut down. The government report, issued yesterday, was considered moderately bullish, inasmuch as the spring wheat condition is lower than generally expected, prices closing 1/4 to 1/2 better.

GRAIN FLASHES.
(By F. W. Stevenson & Co.)
Liverpool wheat opened with shorts covering on the bullish American construction placed on government report. Later there was further advance on a better continental inquiry, strength in Paris at opening and unfavorable crop advices from France. Corn unchanged to lower.
Argentine weather continues favorable and wheat prospects good.
Kansas City—Only able to buy 3,000 bushels cash wheat this morning; the wheat is going into the elevators and staying there at the present prices.
New York—Detailed weather report shows 21 stations in Texas temperatures 80 or over.
Chicago—Cash wheat seems to be keeping pace with futures. Kidston selling September wheat.
St. Louis—Cash wheat 1/2 higher; corn 1/2 higher.
Minneapolis—Cash market strong, flour business fair.

Vancouver and the other in Nova Scotia. We visited several construction camps on the way westward and found everything going on smoothly. Mr. Crothers confessed that the government could do little, once the matter had become outside the pale of a conciliation board.

"It is to be regretted," he said, "that the matter could not have been settled in this way, for the retrogression in the coal business out west that the strike is likely to cause is a pretty serious business."

Mr. Crothers believes that the present immigration policy of the government gives a great impetus to the industrial prosperity, and that each is virtually interdependent on the other. He stated that this year the government figured on half a million people coming into the country from outside points, chiefly, however, from the old country. In his opinion the industrial outlook of the country as viewed at the present time was never better, and that there is nothing in the world to prevent Canada going ahead to her great destiny.

The Collegiate school held its annual sports yesterday afternoon in the cricket grounds of the Jubilee hospital, the unsettled weather abating nothing from the keen spirit with which the boys entered into the various events, and seeming in no wise to mar the pleasure of the occasion to the large number of parents and friends who attended the proceedings.

The program was carried out in quick time, the boys taking their places quickly when the events were called, and little time being lost in getting the youngsters together. Excellent time was made in the foot races, and in the sack race considerable ingenuity was shown by the winners, who had evidently practiced the art of moving rapidly across country in their ungainly attire.

"A skin you love to touch"

Why it is so rarely found

A skin you love to touch is rare because few people really understand the skin and its needs. Begin today to take your skin seriously. Learn what you can and cannot do for it.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is an authority on the skin and its needs. In the 12-page wrapper around every cake the causes for all common skin troubles are given—conspicuous nose pores, yellow skin, blackheads, etc.—and the proper treatments to relieve them.

If your skin is not what you want it to be, get a cake of Woodbury's today, and follow carefully the directions given in this wrapper. In ten days or two weeks your skin will show a marked improvement.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25¢ a cake. No one looks at the price when they first use it.

Coming across British Columbia Mr. Crothers' party deviated from the regular route at Golden in order to overlook the wonderful Columbia valley which the government proposes to reclaim and make ready for cultivation. At Golden they were met by H. G. Parson, the chairman of the provincial labor commission, who took the party as far as Sinclair by automobile.

FORGET

By GEORGE MATHEW ADAMS

If you want to learn something very valuable to you to-day, learn how to Forget.

There is not a man or woman in the world that does not remember too much. A mind adulterated with Worry, Revenge, Bitterness, Unkindness and the like immediately shrinks in power.

The things that you cannot happily remember—Forget.

If you make a mistake—Forget it—remember to profit from it. If someone unjustly attacks you—Forget it—remembering to return a kindness. If something worries you—Forget it. The antidote for Worry is Work. If you hear unpleasant things—Forget them. If you fall in an enterprise that you expected to win—Forget it—and start all over again.

The best way to forget a mistake is to never make it again. The best way to forget a wrong is to forgive the one who did it.

If important details pile up before you, obstructing the bigger things in the work of your day, push them aside and—Forget them. The negative forces of life always will remain. Your cue is to meet them—master them—pass them—and then—Forget them in Positive Doing. Concentrate with force and precision upon the Essential and important.

Forget everything that does not contribute to your Efficiency and Happiness.

Doctor's Boyish Face Reveals Skin Renewer

I heard the other day the story of the physician with so admirable a skin that all his women patients asked the secret. He told me, who generously told others, that, knowing the remarkable absorbent property of ordinary mercerized wax, he concluded this substance would make an excellent complexion restorer and preserver. Knowing the wax could not harm the skin, he began using it after shaving. He soon observed that the old, withered, colorless cuticle was being gradually absorbed and replaced by younger, healthier skin. This was the simple secret of the silver-haired doctor with the boyish face.

The secret became public property. Now women everywhere use mercerized wax, applying it nights like cold cream, washing it off mornings—continuing until the complexion is entirely renovated. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any druggist's, will banish the worst complexion.

Another valuable rejuvenator used by this doctor was a wrinkle-remover and preventive in the form of a face bath, made by dissolving an ounce of axolite in a half-pint witch hazel. This also has become famous—Aurelia in Gladstone's Review.

Electricity the Greatest Doctor on Earth

Nature is the greatest doctor on earth. When she can't cure it is because she needs aid. Now most people have an idea that this aid is drugs, and when they get sick or suffer from pain of any kind they proceed to stuff their stomachs with the stuff that is sold for medicine. That doesn't help any; in fact, it does a great deal of harm. The dope that you put into your stomach is poison, and poison weakens the organs and nerves of your body. What Nature needs is electricity.

When your stomach, kidneys, liver or digestive organs get out of order it is because they lack the necessary electricity to enable them to perform their regular functions. The breaking down of one of these organs nearly always causes other trouble. Nature can't cure them because your body hasn't enough electricity to do the work, so you must assist Nature by restoring this electricity to every part that is weak.

Electro-Vigor is a relief from the old system of drugging. It does by natural means what you expect drugs to do by unnatural means. It removes the cause of disease, and after the cause has been removed Nature will do the rest.

Electro-Vigor is not an electric belt. It is a dry cell battery and makes its own power.

Gentlemen—"I wish to inform you that I have used your Electro-Vigor only three weeks to find my old pain was gone. I used it four weeks altogether and I have not had a pain or an ache since. I think Electro-Vigor is the best Pain Killer ever invented."

Yours very sincerely,
(Signed) E. McHILLIVEAL

GLADSTONE'S IMAGE TARRED.

How the Earl of Charlemont's Love Turned to Hate.

Welsh churchmen may not like disestablishment, but their anger is as a summer breeze compared to the tornado of passion that raged in Ireland when Gladstone took up the disestablishment of the Irish church. One of the most curious survivals of an agitation which those who were foremost in fomenting have long since agreed to forget is to be seen at Roxborough Castle, near Moyn, county Tyrone. It was the seat of the Earls of Charlemont, the first of whom has a place in custom. Though churchmen speedily accepted disestablishment as a matter of course, Charlemont never relented. Each year while he lived a fresh coat of tar was added, and in his will he left a sum of money to ensure that the process should be continued. To-day Roxborough Castle, like many another great Irish mansion, lies untenanted, but the blackened head, an ugly spot on the white front, still stares down on the stray visitor, driving home a moral, perhaps, other than the one the third Earl of Charlemont intended.
