The Sailor's Double.

It is well known that Socrates spoke with deep conviction of the familiar demon who accompanied him everywhere. A distinguished naval officer was witness, during a considerable space of time, to a fact of a similar nature.

The vessel aboard of which this officer was sailing, happened to meet with a violent storm in the South Sea. Monstrous waves broke over the deck without cessation, sweeping before them everything which was not firmly fastened. The sailors, hanging on to the rigging, had the greatest difficulty in resisting the fury of the sea, when suddenly was heard the shout, "A man overboard."

It was a sailor named Smith, who was carried away by a mighty wave. In such a frightful sea, the means of saving him were almost impossible. What, consequently, was the captain's surprise, when, to his profound stupefaction, he saw a few minutes afterward, this same Smith, with the sea water pouring from his clothes, quietly helping his comrades to work the vessel as if nothing had happened.

When the storm had subsided a little, and the danger was over, they inquired of Smith the particulars of his miraculous preservation.

"As soon as I was washed overboard," he said, "I saw a man sitting by my side on the crest of the wave. He took me by the hand and brought me on deck without my feeling the slightest pain. More than that—although I saw the ship pitching and rolling horribly, I felt no anxiety for her fate; my neighbor's calmness reassured me, for I was fully aware that he would save me. Look, there he is—there! He never leaves me now."

So saying, Smith pointed to a spot beside him, where every one else only saw vacancy, but where he distinctly beheld, as he affirmed, his imaginary comrade.

From that time Smith became taciturn, and he was frequently observed, when quite alone, to express by his looks and gestures his consciousness of being in company with another person. Any interrogation by his messmates on the subject of his vision, appeared to him a mockery, so firmly was he persuaded that his phantom was as visible to others as to himself. When urged by his questioners to give a description of his companion, the portrait he drew was exactly his own. Before long this fixed idea obtained such an ascendancy over his imagination, and over his senses, that he behaved in every respect as if he had been two persons. If it were wanted to take in a reef, to furl a sail, or perform any other perilous maneuver in boisterous weather, whenever the task required the powers of two robust and practiced men, Smith would allow no sailor to help him, but executed the work alone with supernatural precision and vigor.

The crew at last became habituated to his mysterious ways, and the officers could not help remarking in this singular sailor an extraordinary aptitude and intuition whenever it was his turn to take the helm.

One night, Smith was seen to jump out of his hammock, go down to the hold, and shortly return to the deck of the ship holding in his arms a bundle of smoking cordage, which had caught fire nobody knew how, and then quietly throw it into the sea. Another time, he called the master carpenter aside, and advised him to lose no time in repairing a damage which no one had observed. A day or two later this damage would have caused a leak, and compromised the safety of the ship.

The most remarkable incident witnessed by the naval officer was this: He was on watch one very dark night; so dark that, in looking over the ship's side, the water was hardly distinguishable. Smith was then at the helm. The officer happened to glance at the compass, perceived that the ship had suddenly changed her course.

"Why, Smith," he shouted, "what are you about? Helm to starboard, man; helm to starboard."
"I can't," replied Smith, "he won't let me."

The officer repeated the order, to no purpose. He found it impossible to make himself obeyed. Smith persisted in repeating with energy, "I can't, sir; he won't let me."

The captain, overhearing the discussion, came on deck to ascertain the cause of the dispute, and also to learn (for he had already remarked it) why the vessel had changed her course.

Before the officer could finish his explanation, a large ship, with every sail set, shot past the vessel that Smith was steering, so close as almost to touch her. The presentiment in Smith's mind, which he had obeyed with so much obstinacy, saved them from a collision when both vessels were running at their utmost speed.

About Pens.

Pens of some sort have been in use from very ancient times, adapted to the material upon which the written characters were to be impressed. Upon stone or metallic plates, graters of steel served for writing, and such are referred to by Job, in speaking of "iron pen." For the waxen tablets of the ancients a metallic stylus was employed one end of which was sharpened for marking, and the other was flattened for erasing the marks and smoothing the wax. It was also the practice in ancient times, as it is among the Chinese at the present day, to paint the letters with a fine hair pencil. Pens of reeds also were made at a very early period for the use of a fluid ink upon papyrus. The reed selected for this purpose is described as small and hard, and about the size of a swan's quill. It was found in Egypt and Armenia, and Cairo and Alexandria were famous markets in which it was sold. Along the shores of the Persian Gulf reeds are still collected for this purpose, and are distributed throughout various parts of the Eastern countries, being better adapted to the ink and paper employed in these regions than any other kind of pens.

The introduction of common writing paper rendered necessary pens of a finer character, and caused a demand for goose quills.

A great trade grew up in these articles, which even the more recent introductions of steel and gold pens has not materially diminished. Poland and Russia are largely engaged in it. In a single year St. Petersburg has furnished England over twenty-seven millions of quills. In the last fifty years steel pens of various kinds have been manufactured in Great Britain, and the number made annually in Birmingham has been estimated at one thousand millions. Several attempts have been made to establish this manufacture in the United States, but it has been found almost hopeless to compete with the manufactures of Birmingham. The art of making gold pens has, however, been carried to the highest perfection in New York, so that the only really excellent pen used in Europe is obtained in this country. The machinery used for this purpose was invented by Mr. Rendell, and improved by Mr. Fairchild, and is curious and elaborate, more than twenty distinct operations being required in the production of a single pen. There are seven or eight factories for the manufacture in the city of New York; one in Brooklyn, New York; two in Brooklyn, Connecticut; one in Haydensville, Massachusetts, and one in Cincinnati.—New American Cyclopaedia.

"LAYING ROUND LOOSE."

—To any one who has traveled among our farmers in almost any section of California, it cannot but be observed that there is a certain class of farmers, who, in the hurry of business or by reason of neglect, or by their education or general habit of doing things, it will be observed that around the house, around the barn (if they have any), around the orchard or garden, as a prominent feature of their business, that they let thing "lay round loose;" the plow and harrow are along side the fence, the harness on the railing, wagon under a tree or in the road; a wheel here, a tire there; plowshare, ox yokes, all "lay round loose!" And what is observable in this respect, is but as a barometer of all the business of such a place. Look at the place they call home; not a shade tree shelters the dwelling from the storms of Winter or the burning sun of Summer; not a single vine or plant around the door-yard; but instead, old baskets, barrows, hoops, woyd, logs; a general thoroughfare of hogs, dogs, hens, and stray beasts of all kinds; fences broken down, doors off their hinges, window panes broken. This, step by step, is the result of those habits that permit, at the outset, any tool or implement of labor to "lay round loose." Would to heaven we could work a change upon men that are poisoned with such habits, and bid them love to feel that a "place for everything and everything in its place," would soon make them richer and happier men. Reader, does this apply to you? Look around and see.—Farmer.

ONE of the leading hotel keepers of New York was written to, recently, as follows:

"Sir, the nite eye stopt with u i left a trave ling bag with a bookinit and a dirty shirtinit."

THE principal productions of the State of Wisconsin are said to be pretty girls, railroad bonds, milk and other skins, seed wheat, Sons of Malta, tax title, corner lots and white fish.

A GOOD many managers at public meetings don't know how to put a question. Young ladies think it should be popped.

ALAS for the exalted of earth, that oversight is oversight!

"A Hundred Dollar Note to Boot."

Old V., a well-to-do farmer in Illinois, had some four marriageable daughters; and being one of those men who think their girls should get married as soon as they are out of their short clothes, felt somewhat chagrined that his girls should remain on his hands so long.

Now there was a young fellow in the neighborhood who had been waiting on the V. girls for some time, and had gone the rounds from the oldest to the youngest; and the old man had been anxiously and earnestly waiting for, and expecting young B. to "ask consent" for some of the girls, but as yet he waited in vain. B., however, had proposed and had been accepted; but the old folks had not been made acquainted with it.

Now, in the meantime, young B. had purchased a fine horse of the old gent, and had given his note on six months for one hundred dollars. Well, pay day was fast approaching, and B. had not the ready to meet it: so the day before the note became due, young B. made his way over to the old gent's, determined to ask him for his daughter—hoping thereby to get an extension on the note at least.

As good luck would have it, he met the old man in the yard, and was about to go through with that interesting ceremony of "asking consent," when imagine his surprise and joy, when the old gent broke out with the following:

"Look here, B., you young rascal, you have been 'courtin' my gals for more'n a year; you've been gaddin' and cuttin' round with the hull on 'em. Now your note comes due to-morrow, and I'll tell you what I'll do. You shall marry one of my gals—I don't care a snap which, and I'll give you a good settin' out and your hundred dollar note to boot, and if you don't, I'll sue, by thunder!"

"It's a bargain," says B. "I'll do it." And the next week there was a tall wedding down at old man V.'s; and to this day B. chuckles over the way the old man gave his consent without asking, and "a hundred dollar note to boot."

A DELICATE LEGAL TOUCH.

—Not very far from Central New Jersey lived two young lawyers, Archy Brown and Tom Hall. Both were fond of dropping in at Mr. Smith's of an evening, and spending an hour or two with his only daughter, Mary. One evening, when Brown and Miss Mary had discussed almost every topic, Brown suddenly, and with his sweetest tones, struck out as follows:

"Do you think, Mary, you could leave your father and mother, your pleasant home here, with all its ease and comforts, and go to the Far West with a young lawyer, who has but little besides his profession to depend upon, and with him find out a new home, which it would be your joint duty to beautify and make delightful as this?"

Dropping her head softly on his shoulder, she answered: "I think I could, Archy."

"Well," said he, in a changed tone, and straightening himself up: "Tom Hall is going West, and wants to get a wife. I will mention it to him."

—When you go into a printing office, leave the door open behind you. Read all the manuscript you can get your hands on; it's no difference; editors have no business with secrets, besides you might discover some plot against the government—crush it in the bud, and thus become a public benefactor! Be sure to ask the compositor to let you look at the copy he is at work on; he won't be so impolite as to refuse so reasonable a request! If he is at work on manuscript copy, ask him who wrote it; he'll tell you. Examine the type, pick them up, look at them, and throw them down—no matter in which box; what the deuce do printers have so many little boxes for if they want folks to be so particular? Don't neglect the press; catch hold of the handle; pull it around; there! let it go; not much damage done. Now seat yourself in the sanctum, and after you have whistled a favorite tune, as loud as possible, ask the editor for the paper he is reading, or entertain him with some long-winded harangue on some subject which interests you, not him.

THE fair sex will be excited beyond measure to know that female clerks are to be appointed in the dead-letter office in Washington, to read and return letters. What a chance for learning secrets!

PLEASURE is to a woman what the sun is to the flowers; if moderately enjoyed, it beautifies, refreshes and improves—if immoderately, it withers, deteriorates and destroys.

THE good heart, the tender feelings, and the pleasant dispositions, make smiles, life and sunshine everywhere.

Little and Precious.

Everything is beautiful when it is little, except the soul; little pigs, little lambs, little birds, little kittens, little children. Little martin-boxes of houses are generally the most happy and cozy; little villages are nearer to being atoms of a shattered Paradise than anything we know of. Little fortunes bring the most content, and little hopes the least disappointment. Little words are the sweetest to hear, and little charities fly farthest and stay the longest on the wing. Little lakes are the stillest, little hearts are the fullest, and little farms the best tilled. Little books are the most read, and little songs the dearest loved. And when Nature would make anything rare and beautiful, she makes it little; little pearls, little diamonds, little dewdrops.

Agui's is a model prayer, but then it is a little prayer, and the burden of the petition is for little. The Sermon on the Mount is little, but the last dedication discourse was an hour. The Roman said veni, vidi, vici—I came—saw—conquered—but dispatches now-a-days are longer than the battles they tell of.

Everybody calls that little that they love best on earth. We once heard a good sort of a man speak of his little wife, and we fancied she must be a perfect bijou of a wife. We saw her; she weighed two hundred and ten; we were surprised. But then it was no joke; the man meant it. He could put his wife in his heart, and have room for other things beside; and what was she but precious, and what could she be but little.

RETICENCE.

—It is by giving loose to folly, in conversation and action, that people expose themselves to contempt and ridicule. The modest man may deprive himself of some part of the applause of some sort of people in conversation, by not shining altogether so much as he might have done. Or he may deprive himself of some lesser advantages in life by his reluctance in putting himself forward. But it is only the rash and impetuous talker or actor, that effectually exposes himself in company, or ruins himself in life. It is, therefore, easy to determine which is the safest side to err on.

IT is very seldom that hardworking people commit suicide—suicides being one of the accompaniments of soft hands and indolence. The best thing a girl can take for an oppressed mind is a husband. An old maid, with "nothing to worry her," will be as melancholy as dyspepsia—marry her, however, and make her the mother of four romping boys, and she will be as cheerful as a sunshine.

ON one occasion, as a darkey minister was holding forth to an attentive audience on the virtues of "divine woman," when he wound up with what he considered a conclusive argument. "Take my word for it, my dear friends and brethren," said he, "there is nothing beats a good wife." "Beg pardon," said an old bachelor, rising, "a bad husband does."

CHILD'S PHILOSOPHY.

—A little girl, showing her little cousin, about four years old, a star, said: "That star you see there is bigger than this world."
"No, it ain't," said he.
"Yes it is."
"Then why don't it keep the rain off?"

LITTLE SALLIE was teaching her younger brother the Lord's prayer. They went on very smoothly until she arrived at "Give us this day our daily bread."
"No, no, Sissy—we want cake!" and he refused to proceed until the desired amendment was made.

MODESTY is pleasing in all, male and female; yet young gentleman who are "going to see" young ladies, should not practice it so far as to become timid. The girls prefer beaux who court with a smack of the daring.

A MAN'S house should be on the hill-top of cheerfulness and serenity—so high that no shadows rest upon it, and where the morning comes so early, and the evening waits so long, that the day has twice as many hours as those of other men.

AN Arabian, who brought a blush to a maiden's cheeks by the earnestness of his gaze said to her: "My looks have planted roses in your cheeks; why forbid me to gather them? The law permits him who sows to reap the harvest."

THE chap who was told that the best cure for palpitation of the heart was to quit kissing the girls, said, "If that is the only remedy which can be proposed, I, for one, say let'er palpitate."

If a person buys two apples and eats them both, how many will yet remain? Of cores there will be two left!

THE right man in the right place—a husband at home in the evening.

By filling out these blanks themselves, parties will be subject to no other expense than the fees for acknowledgement and record.

HAY.—On Sunday last about two hundred tons of hay was shipped from here for Marysville.

NEW GOODS.—Thomas & Brownell has just returned from San Francisco with a large assortment of goods of all kinds.

DENTISTRY.—We would call attention to the advertisement in another column of Dr. I. C. Kelley, who has permanently located himself at this place.

BAKER & HAMILTON'S advertisement will be found in another column, and it will pay farmers to read and find out where they can get all kinds of mowers, reapers, etc.

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—At an adjourned meeting of the State Agricultural Society, which met at the State Capital on Wednesday last, the 23d instant, at Sacramento, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz: A. Haraszthy, of Sonoma, President; O. C. Wheeler, of Sacramento, re-elected Corresponding Secretary; E. B. Ryan, Recording Secretary; J. W. L. Hunt, Treasurer; and P. Donahue of San Francisco, C. S. Lowell and W. F. Knox of Sacramento, Directors.

May Party.

The Superintendent and children of the Presbyterian Church have concluded to celebrate the first of May in a grand Sunday School May-day Festival, to which they have invited the children of Knight's Landing Sabbath School as participants. We understand the invitation has been accepted, and the teachers, with their several classes, are expected to meet on the morning of that day and proceed to the grounds in the order of their several classes.

The Cloven Foot.

By the Sacramento Union of Wednesday, we see the bill has passed admitting negro testimony in civil cases. This has been the all-engrossing subject with the ultra Republicans during the session, and they have at last succeeded in making it a law. We have thus far refrained from alluding to the subject, believing there was good sense enough, and sufficient sense of superiority of the Caucasian over the negro or mongrel race, even in the Republican ranks, to defeat the measure; but it seems we have overrated them. The everlasting "nigger" is more nearly allied to them by ties of sympathy than we had supposed; and this bill to force them in the witness stand on an equal with whites, fully proves the assertion. All the professions of the party during the last campaign, and since the Chicago platform was inaugurated, are now proved hollow and groundless, and the fact stares us in the face that the aim and object of that party is to elevate the negro to the political standard of the white man. Little by little, if they retain the power, will the thing be developed. The present is dose enough for one year. If they succeed in carrying the State in the next election, we may then see the next move, until the finale is reached, and the African in California will walk up to the polls and deposit his ballot with the status of the native white citizen.

Verily, we are making rapid strides in civilization. At this ratio, we will soon approach the standard reached in Mexico and some of the Central American States. We still believe, however, this measure is in opposition to the will of the great mass of the people of California, and we greatly mistake their sentiments if it does not receive an unqualified condemnation. We believe no act could so speedily consign the Republicans, as a party, to the shades of oblivion, as this. Hereafter some other party must rule in this State. Union, patriotism, and love of country and flag is the predominant sentiment, but let politicians ally it with negro equality, and the people will speedily separate it.

The County Seat Election.

From the returns received thus far, (a report of which will be seen below) it is evident that Woodland has succeeded in carrying the election by a majority of over three hundred. We are aware a large portion of the citizens of Knight's Landing would have preferred the county seat to remain at Washington for a time at least, hoping before long to get a division of the county, and then press the claims of our town for the position. Another cause also had something to do with producing the large vote for Washington at this point. It lies in the feeling of discontent at not being included as one of the places to be voted for for county seat, and our claims being passed over as though we were not of importance enough to receive respectful mention. The election, however, is over, and with it all hopes and regrets. Hereafter we are to have our seat of justice at Woodland, and it is an undeniable fact, that for a permanent location, it is in every respect preferable to Washington to the people in and adjacent to Knight's Landing. We will now be within ten miles of our Court House; we are separated from the influence of Sacramento; our officers will of necessity have to stay at home, unless absent on business; our money will be expended in our own county, and business at Woodland will increase, which will add to the taxable property of the county. Altogether, we have no cause to regret the result. We believe time will prove that Woodland is a very suitable location for the county seat of Yolo. Then let us all turn our energies to make the access to it as straight and easy as possible. Let us get a free bridge across Cache Creek at Harbin's crossing, and a straight road from Knight's Landing to Woodland. We understand Messrs. Buckner & Nelson are willing to give a road through their lands; also, Messrs. Coil, Loughman and others. Providing we get a free bridge at this point, then our duty is plain: We should put our shoulders to the wheel and use our exertions, and subscribe liberally, that we may have this bridge and a good road to the county seat:

Table with 4 columns: Precincts, Woodland, Washington, Total. Rows include Yolo City, Cacheville, Knight's Landing, Weyand's, Grand Island, Washington, Ristine's, Powell's, Osborn's, Fremont, Buckeye, Cottonwood, Canon, Corbett's, Ludden's, Joseph's, Prairie, and Total.

TRINITY.—According to the Journal, the miners in Oregon Gulch and Cannon Creek are doing quite well. In the former locality several claims pay from $9 to $20 per day to the hand. In the latter place the miners generally are making better wages than ever since the summer of 1854. There are many large bars along the creek, and every one prospected, thus far, has proved to be rich. At Red Flat, about a mile below Cannon City Nelson & Co., Hollisten & Co., Henderson & Co., dannenbrink & Co. and Malcolm & Co. have just opened claims which pay from $8 to $25 a day to the hand.

HEAVY ON A TELEGRAPH COMPANY. In a New York City court, recently, a verdict of thirteen thousand five hundred dollars was obtained against the American Telegraph Company for negligence in delivering a telegraphic message. It was a case where the plaintiff had given orders for attaching a debtor's property, and the delay enabled him to put his possessions out of his hands. This case should serve as an example.

SALT IN TULARE.—The Visalia Delta says that a citizen of that county has discovered a goodly sized salt spring in the vicinity of Kern Lake, and has evaporated a fair article of salt from it. He proposes to go into the manufacture of salt forthwith.

THE Visalia Delta says that a considerable excitement has broken out in that town respecting the Coso mines, and some of the shrewdest merchants of that city are investing largely in the new silver leads in the district.

THE Los Angeles News of the 9th, says that the crops are coming forward there with great promise, and that the prospects for a plentiful yield this season were never better.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

We select the following from the dispatches to the Associated Press:

SALT LAKE, April 22d.—The Indians east of here have been committing depredations upon the Mail Company for the last two months, until at the present time they have entire control of the route. They have stolen nearly all the stock from the route, killed several of the employes and have burned one station. They threaten the entire destruction of the Overland Mail and Telegraph. The Mail Company have discontinued the running of the mails for the present, and will not attempt to run the route until troops are placed along it to protect them.

There is a report that eight men were killed by Indians yesterday, founded upon the fact that they were seen in possession of animals, clothing and arms belonging to the party. There is a report that there is a fight going on east of Fort Bridger, between the employes and Indians. A dozen men from Fort Bridger have gone to their assistance.

It is momentarily expected that the telegraph line will be destroyed.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Governor Harvey of Wisconsin was drowned at Savannah, in the Tennessee river, on Saturday night. He was there looking after the welfare of the wounded Wisconsin troops.

The city of Apalachiola has been successfully occupied by our troops. The capture was effected by two gunboats on the 3d, with little opposition. A few shells dispersed the rebel force. The remaining portion of the population were found to be in a starving condition. The blockade had cut off their supplies by sea-board, and the resources from inland were not sufficient to maintain them with the ordinary comforts of life.

A telegram had been received from Beauregard, at Corinth, to Adjutant Gen. Cooper, at Richmond, said to have been intercepted by Gen. Mitchell after taking possession of Decatur, Alabama, and in which Beauregard says, that all at present who can possibly join us in a few days should come. Cannot we be reinforced from Pemberton's army? If defeated here we lose the Mississippi Valley and probably our cause; whereas we could even afford to lose for a while Charleston and Savannah, for the purpose of defeating Buell's army, which would not only insure us the valley of the Mississippi, but aid us in establishing an independence.

THE SALMON.—A correspondent of the British Colonist writes as follows from the Dalles, Oregon, March 25th:

Oregon is "played out," for, sir, I do firmly believe that the great Salmon excitement will prove the big bug of all humbugs. "Too much cry for so little wool." The roads are lined with men en route for Salmon, trudging snow and mud with packs on their backs, and there is not a pound of provisions now at Salmon, neither can it reach there for some two months yet; consequently men are bound to suffer, and a great majority of those now here and en route for Salmon are "dead broke." At least one-half or more of those I have met from California, are men who were bound for Cariboo, but were made to believe that they could go to the Salmon, and then to the Cariboo about as quick and as cheap as they could to Cariboo direct. The result will be this: Salmon will prove a humbug—as all the excitements have proven in this forlorn country—and when the Californians discover that they have been sold, it will then be too late for them to get to Cariboo this season; and here they will be in a fix, for you know, Mr. Editor, the Californians are not familiar with the custom of going barefooted, and frequently in their shirt tails, which is an old custom in this country, and they don't seem to relish the diet of the Oregonians, which is salmon and potatoes for breakfast, and for supper potatoes and salmon.

ONE hundred pounds of gold dust and bars were shipped from Forest Hill, Placer county, one day last week, and a few hours afterwards eight thousand dollars more, in gold dust, was sent from the same place. This don't look much like the mines were giving out.

A SAD ACCIDENT.—A little girl, about eight years old, the daughter of one Hartman, who lives about sixteen miles below Colusa, on the east side of the Sacramento river, was burned to death, Sunday afternoon, April 20th. A fire had been built in a field near the house, and the child, while playing around it, caught its clothes on fire.—Sacramento Union.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, April 16th, Timothy Kirby was killed near French Gulch, Shasta county, by the caving of a bank in a mining claim.

THE German Glee Club Harmonie are to have a grand picnic out in the woods, near Nevada, on the first of May, and a ball in the evening, all in the old-fashioned style.

MANUFACTURER'S AGENTS, AND dealers in Pitt's, Ball's, Russell's, and other popular

Thrashing Machines. Also, the following Reapers and Mowers,

Improved for the harvest of 1862: Burt's Eagle Combined Machine; New York do.; McCormick's do.; Heath's Eagle do;

Kentucky Harvesting Machine; Haines' (Illinois) do.; Ball's Ohio Reaper and Mower; Manny's Improved Machine.

Esterly's Improved Machine; Rugg's Combined machine; Vermont mowing machine; Buckeye do.; Bay State do.; Molly Stark (Ohio) Mower.

And sole agents for the celebrated Nurse, Mason & Co's

Ketchum's Improved Mowers,

With or without Reaper attachments—the best mowing machine in use. They will be furnished this season at greatly reduced prices, bringing them within the reach of every farmer. These machines are very much improved, and never fail in the matted or lodged clover—cutting with equal ease the tall or tangled grass without clogging or breaking; and so close that it will save from one to five dollars' worth of hay per acre more than any other machine. They are furnished with Reaper Attachment, at small cost—making them a good and serviceable combined machine; and when all other machines have failed in the tangled grain, the work has been done by the Ketchum machine to the perfect satisfaction of all. The one horse machine cuts four feet; the light two-horse machine cuts four and a half and five feet—two sizes; the heavy two-horse machine cuts five and five and a half feet, two sizes. Any boy capable of driving the team can manage the machine; it is not liable to get out of order.

The New Bay State two-wheeled Mower.—We have purchased the patent right to the New Bay State Mower for the State of California. It is one of the many machines lately invented, and stands far ahead of all others in point of excellence as a two-wheeled mowing machine, having all the new improvements that have been lately tested. It is very light, strong, durable machine, and cuts full four and a half feet.

The Vermont Mower.—Also, a two-wheeled machine. It is made mostly of iron, simple in construction, and can be managed with ease.

The Buckeye Machine has two driving wheels like the Vermont machine, and is simple in its construction.

The Molly Stark Mower, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a very light mower, of the Buckeye pattern.

Ball's Ohio Harvester, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a two-wheeled Reaper and Mower. Has two cutter bars—one for reaping and one for mowing. We have imported a few for trial this season.

The Kentucky Harvester cuts about five and a half feet. Said to be a very good machine.

McCormick's Reaper and Mower—a very good reaper—intended for four large horses.

Burt's Eagle Reaper and Mower, (Improved for 1862.) Baker & Hamilton, sole agents for this machine in California and Oregon.

We have imported these machines for the past two years, which were furnished to some of our neighboring farmers and thoroughly tested. They gave general satisfaction both in cutting grain and grass. The style is very much the same as the celebrated Esterly's machine, except that they are better made; have a strong iron finger bar; are hand-raking reapers and have no side draft. They have a large four foot driving wheel. The outside grain wheel is thirty inches in diameter. The driver's seat is over two iron truck wheels, each thirty inches in diameter, and the machine may be turned round without crowding the horses, as there is no weight upon their necks. They have two sets of gearing for fast and slow motion; a smooth knife for mowing, and a sickle for reaping; the back of each is made of hammered cast steel. They cut about six and a half feet, and can be worked with two light horses. We have but a few for this season's trade, owing to the fact that the great demand at the factory made it impossible for the manufacturer to fill our orders for a large number in season for shipment to this market.

Rugg's Reaper and Mower, cutting six and nine feet. This machine cuts in advance of the horses, and the cutter can be raised by the driver from one to twenty-four inches. Sold very cheap.

Haines' Illinois Harvester, or Header, cuts ten feet. Improved for the harvest of 1862. We have also imported complete sets of trucks, or running gear for header-wagons, with neck yokes and whiffletrees complete.

Manny's Improved Combined Reaper and Mower.—This is a new style of machine, very light, yet strongly built, lately patented by F. Manny, in which there are many valuable improvements. We are willing to guarantee this Combined Reaper and Mower in every instance.

We have imported a large stock of extras for repairing Reapers, Mowers and Thrashers, all of which will be sold cheap for cash.

Haying and Harvesting Tools

Of every description necessary to meet the wants of the farmers. These they have in large quantities, and can supply to traders wholesale and retail, at San Francisco prices.

All kinds of Farming Implements, Hardware and Seeds.

We are determined not to be undersold by any other house in the State; and invite customers to call and examine for themselves at our AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE SEED STORE. Nos. 9, 11 and 13, J street, between Front and Second, SACRAMENTO.

The Slavery Question.

EDITOR NEWS: We seem to be rapidly approaching a solution, in part, of the slavery question that has vexed and agitated the country for the last thirty years. The existing civil disturbance, to all appearance, will eventuate in the entire extinction of negro slavery in all parts of the country forever. The armies of the loyal States are going on conquering and to conquer, and the last vestige of the rebellion will probably speedily be crushed. The policy of the Administration is so powerfully supported by the public sentiment, that we need not calculate on any material change before the full results are accomplished. The purposes and objects are plainly developed in the recent emancipation message of the President, followed immediately by the passage of an Act by the United States Senate for the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia. The President contends that, although it is not constitutional for the Congress to interfere with slavery in the States in which it already exists, yet it is right and proper, and constitutional to advise the States to abolish slavery, and to aid and assist them to execute their wish, by appropriations of money from the national treasury to help pay loyal masters for the slaves liberated. Now we find in the circumstances already brought about in the border slave States, constituting six members of the rebellious Confederacy, that the policy indicated is perfectly practicable, and its operations will not be very burdensome upon the national funds. There is a Legislature—all the machinery of local State Government put at work in each of those States by the loyal citizens, which is protected and sustained by the power of the central government in opposition to the authority of the government and laws recognized by the secessionist citizens. As quite, or nearly all the secessionists have taken up arms for, or given aid and comfort to the cause of the rebellion, they are disqualified for taking part in the lawful elections; or if allowed to do so by an act of amnesty and the taking of the oath of allegiance, it is presumed that from absence or disinclination, few will present themselves—and as a controlling majority of those who have remained loyal, doubtless favor the free soil doctrine, there is no difficulty in procuring the election of free soil Legislatures and the prompt passage of laws for the abolition of slavery. As great multitudes of slaves in those States have been abandoned by their masters, or have escaped from slavery, all such cannot hereafter be treated as slaves to be paid for; and as the pending confiscation Act, if passed at all, will include property in slaves, all of whom when confiscated will of course be freed without any obligation to pay offending masters. Or, if the General Government does not confiscate, and by such means free all slaves of rebellious masters, it is not at all probable that the States abolishing slavery will make provision for the recompense of such. In the state of things set forth, it will be seen there will be but a comparatively small number of slaves to be paid for in those slave States in which the standard of loyalty has been established. As the armies sweep on, subduing State after State, until the last shall yield, precisely the same conditions will exist, for we are assured there is a nucleus of a loyal feeling found in every Southern State, which, with the help of our power, will be found capable of establishing loyal State Governments, and the same consequences must inevitably ensue there.

The success and execution of the measures will probably not be jeopardized by the delays incident to a ratification vote of the people. The precedent established by Congress in the case of the District of Columbia will probably be followed in all others.

The general abolition of slavery being now a foregone conclusion, it is idle for any man here or elsewhere to open his mouth against it. But there is a great question resulting from it yet to be settled, and each has the privilege to exercise his voice in the settlement of it—that is, what is to be done with all the free negroes? The Senate bill in the case of the District of Columbia, makes an appropriation to pay the expenses of transportation of all freed negroes in the District who are willing to leave the country for Africa. In my opinion, this is a commendable feature of the bill, and all the States should adopt the policy. It would be better to make the exportation plan a compulsory requirement upon the freed negroes universally. The people should be more willing to contribute taxes to make up a large transportation fund, than to pay taxes to emancipate the slaves.

I shall not attempt to press the ruinous consequences to the good order of society, the prosperity and civilization of our age and country which will follow the turning loose among us of millions of our freed negroes. Surely the intelligence and virtues of the people of the United States will direct them to avert such a destructive calamity. Their remaining in the country will entail untold suffering and injury; and if they remain, however wicked the principle—however hateful and abhorred the fanaticism—attempts will be made, and will succeed but too well, to enlarge their civil rights, and by force of statutes to establish their social equality, until we absorb them or they absorb us. Let us, so far as we are concerned, profit by the example set by some of our sister States—of Illinois, and our nearer neighbor, Oregon, and exclude them all from our boundaries forever. X.

ADMIRABLY TRUE.—Health theories are thus rightfully estimated by a keen writer in the Christian Examiner:

"In most of the popular frenzies on the connection of mind and body, some case of successful treatment of disease is seized upon and held up as the legitimate system to be pursued in health. Because a shower bath occasionally gives to a disordered system the freshness and vivacity which it had forgotten, people tell you to take one every day, and that you shall be sure to be fresh and alive. The experiment fails. Because a bon vivant gains spirit and energy when he cuts off half his luxurious dinner, Sylvester Graham tells him virtually that if he will give up the other half he will have twice as much spirit and energy. And in physical exercise, because a man works more happily and lightly after a walk, or other exercise sufficient to promote digestion and renew appetite, we are told to work like Hercules in a gymnasium, and to walk like Captain Walker in the training ground. All this is absurd. If a man wants to work with his mind he only wastes food, time and life by bringing his body up to the mark of a blacksmith's or boxer's. He neither needs to run a mile in five thirty, nor to lift six hundred pounds, nor to walk up to the house top by the lightning rod. He wants exercise enough to wake him up, to keep him in high spirits, good appetite and that absolute health which almost forgets there is a body to be cared for. The truth is, that a prime condition of vivid intellectual labor is that one gives as little attention as is practicable to the tools with which he works. And just as the mower loses repute for mowing who is constantly setting his scythe anew, or stopping to sharpen it, and just as he advances more slowly than the more skillful workman who does not complain of his tools, the mental artisan who works lightly in the harness with which it has pleased God to clothe his spirit, advances with most success and most rapidity. It is folly to pretend there are no tools. It is folly to leave them to rust in the meadow over night. It is folly to pretend there is no harness. It is folly to leave the harness without oiling it. But it is worse folly to spend all one's life sharpening one's scythe, or in beautifying the traces or the collar.

A BACHELOR was rather taken aback a day or two since as follows: Picking up a book he exclaimed, upon seeing a wood-cut representing a man kneeling at the feet of a woman—

"Before I would ever kneel to a woman, I would encircle my neck with a rope and stretch it."

And then turning to a young woman, he inquired—

"Do you not think it would be the best I could do?"

"It would undoubtedly be the best for the woman," was the reply.

A GENTLEMAN ordered his servant to call him up at six o'clock; but he awakened him at four. Being asked the reason, he replied that he came to tell him that he had two hours longer to sleep.
