Deep Plowing.

For the last ten years, nearly every one of our Atlantic agricultural journals has strenuously advocated the practice of deep plowing as essential successful farming with undiminished fertility of soil. If there is not quite a difference of opinion among practical agriculturists, in relation to the advantages of deep plowing over the skimming system, why the necessity of continually bringing the subject to their attention? The fact is, with all the arguments that have been brought to bear, corroborative of the advantages of deep plowing, the masses of the farmers of every state in the Union plow shallow. Is this because they lack intelligence, keeping always behind the improvements of the age? or is it because they really believe there is more talk about, than real benefit derivable from deep plowing? If we were to scan carefully the reasons that continue so many of our farmers unchangeably wed to the practice of shallow tillage, we should find that there are other motives governing their practice, besides just those of improvement or impoverishment of the soil.

The mere difference in the power required between plowing four inches deep and eight inches, is of itself an item that, in many cases, would determine the depth of the furrow, irrespective of any consequences that might result to the soil. Instead of requiring just double the power to plow eight inches deep that it does four, it requires—as proved by careful test—a great deal more than double power. It is this extra expenditure of power that tells heavily upon the farmer's stock, and deters many from plowing deeply that otherwise would; for it is a matter of serious moment to the culturist of the cereals, whether he is enabled, with animal power he can control, to put in two hundred acres of wheat, or only one hundred. Where it requires two yoke of oxen to plow eight inches deep, one yoke will easily turn a furrow five inches in depth. Undoubtedly, then, it is the saving of labor that determines many in adopting the five inch system.

There is no doubt but that shallow plowing effects a more perfect pulverization of that portion of the soil plowed, than if the plow run deeper. First, because the furrow slice is more effectually turned bottom up, and secondly because no narrow runs to the depth of eight inches. In the one case, all the soil plowed feels the effect of the harrow; in the other case, not. It becomes a question, then, whether plowing deeper than can be completely pulverized, has any advantage over a depth of furrow that can be all brought to a proper condition for the reception of the seed and its subsequent growth. Doubtless much depends upon the kind of crop to be produced. Fruit trees and deeply rooted vegetables of every description would doubtless be benefited by deep plowing—deep, almost without limit, so that the soil and subsoil are allowed to maintain their relative positions. But with the cereals, and particularly wheat, it is proved by repeated experiments that the subsoil can be made too, open and porous for its growth. Four or five inches of the surface soil perfectly pulverized, in which to start the seed, resting upon a substratum of a firmer texture, but allowing the roots easily to permeate their hair-like interstices is a better preparation upon many soils than a furrow of eight or ten inches in depth; and particularly is this an established fact in regard to the abode lands of California.

This is probably another reason why so many of our intelligent farmers will persist in the practice of shallow plowing for the cereals; nor can we see any particular reason why the practice should be greatly depreciated. Five inches deep, with an otherwise perfect preparation, will grow less straw, in proportion to the grain produced, than deeper plowing. Because deeper plowing than has been uniformly practiced upon our old eastern farms, with the aid of manures, are the means now restored to for the improvement of the soil, worn out, to some extent, by constant cropping, does it follow that our new and unexhausted soils, require already a greatly increased depth of furrow for the production of the cereals, when fifty, seventy or an hundred years of constant cropping has only now brought Atlantic states' lands to their present condition of unproductiveness? Is there any very good reason why our soils should become exhausted under the same system of cultivation that is elsewhere adopted.

The present fertility of our lands can be continued unimpaired, whether a system of shallow or deep plowing be adopted, only by making the proper return of plant food to the soil. Manures of some kind must be applied, even with deep plowing, to keep any soil in a state of perpetual fertility under constant cropping. It is a fallacy, then, to be harping constantly upon the one string "deep plowing," as the only necessity existing for maintaining a perpetual fertility of California soils.—Cal. Culturist

Plowing by Steam.

There seems to be a mania just now pervading the minds of mechanics and agriculturists of both England and America, on the subject of applying steam to the different processes of farm culture and management, and very great success has attended its application to a variety of purposes. Portable steam engines for threshing grain, grinding and cutting food for animals, sawing wood, pumping, ditching, indeed almost anything for which power is required, except in the one matter of plowing. In this we have an operation to perform, that lies at the very foundation of our agricultural prosperity, which seems to have defied every effort of our mechanics, to successfully apply steam power to its accomplishment, or at least, until quite recently; and, even now, it is highly problematical as to whether there has yet been an application of steam to the plow that can be said to be so clearly a success as to be of general availability, or applicability to the purpose.

Ponderous machines—a kind of high locomotive, with plows attached, have been put to work and performed operations that were called plowings; but these machines required from forty to sixty feet in length, and from six to twelve in width of ground on which to stand when still, and a small farm is required to turn one round on. Or, as in the case of the English machine, stationary engines, and yet movable from time to time, on the sides of the field to be plowed, are made to drag a gang of plows by means of a rope that shall reach across the entire width of the field to be plowed. All these appliances are too cumbersome and too costly to become general—besides they do not as yet perform the work satisfactorily.

What the masses of our agriculturists want, is a machine that is within the reach of moderate capital, and a machine, too, that an ordinary mechanic or farm hand can manage. It is the enormous expense attendant on keeping steam machinery in motion, including fuel, wear and tear, and its proper engineering that will for a long time prevent the farmer of small means from profiting by steam plowing, so long as the process is performed by the present implement in use for the purpose—the common plow. Some other implement must be devised that will not require the immense amount of power, necessary to drag the best of our plows through tough swards or tenacious, heavy clays. The best draft engines yet applied to gangs of plows, have been but little more than sufficient to furnish a power equal to the amount required to propel itself forward upon unfavorable ground, and drag behind some eight or ten plows. What we want now is, some implement that will pulverize the soil equal to the plow, and yet do its work with half the present power required to "speed the plow" in its present form. Then, not till then, can we hope to see steam, as a motive power, successfully applied to plowing, except upon a scale so extensive, and attended with so much cost, as to be entirely beyond the means of the great body of the farmers of any country. We intend personally to experiment upon an implement for pulverizing the soil, that shall not require the power usually expended in plowing, and expect to have it on exhibition and trial at the Alameda county fair, fifth of June next.—Cal. Culturist.

If men did but know what felicity dwells in the cottage of a virtuous man—how sound he sleeps, how quiet his breath, how composed his mind, how free from care, how easy his provision, how healthy his morning, how sober his nights, how joyful his heart—they would never admire the noise, the disease, the throng of passions, and the violence of unnatural appetites that fill the houses of the luxurious and hearts of the ambitious.

THERE are four good habits—punctuality, accuracy, steadiness, and dispatch. Without the first of these, time is wasted; without the second, mistakes the most hurtful to our own credit and interest and that of others, may be committed; without the third, nothing can be well done; and without the fourth, opportunities of great advantage are lost, which it is impossible to recall.

WHEN Alexander was giving away estates and domains with lavish prodigality, before setting forth on his eastward march, Perdicas asked him what he reserved for himself. Hope—was his soul reply. And the whole secret of his wondrous career of insatiable conquest, fearless intrepidity and boundless aspiration, lies wrapped up in that sublime answer.

THE great wrong of society is in listening to every idle rumor, every malignant report, every vindictive "hearsay," which may be set going. Integrity in man and virtue in woman are the crown and jewel of good society, and gossip and tattler are but the usurpers and hypocrites, whose father is the devil.

WOMAN'S VIEW OF THE INTERNATIONAL FISTICUFF.

Has not the fist-cuff between Heenan and Sayers caused the greatest excitement of the current year? They were looked upon as the representatives of the two greatest commercial and industrial nations of the world. Their fight was by common consent styled "international." On their fists depended the credit of their respective countries, in the minds of many vulgar men. The newspapers of all the Anglo Saxon cities in the three continents, discussed the question in grave leaders. Illustrated journals throughout the world published their portraits. Everybody that reads had to read their biographies, learn their modes of life, become familiar with their system of training, and study their points as boxers. No woman could avoid knowing something of these modern gladiators. Lady-like delicacy of feeling, and refinement of nature, could not protect us from the topic which excited everybody about us, and was the common topic of conversation.

The fate of freedom in Italy, and democracy in America, interesting topics as they might be at other times, were overwhelmed by the contagious enthusiasm of the "roughs" about two human bulldogs who were to be beat and bruised each other according to the rules of a certain code honored among boxers. No gladiatorial show in ancient Rome, no bull-fight in Spain, no cock-fight in Mexico ever attained such a notoriety, or was made intelligible in detail, to so many people, or interested so many partizans. Indeed, we doubt whether all the fights of gladiators, bulls and cocks in the world, put together, could claim to have had so many spectators as this fisticuff; the minutest details of which have been laid before more readers than there were people in ancient Italy, added to those of modern Spain, and it is to be remarked that the bull fights and gladiatorial shows were seen only by those who went expressly to see them; but this boxing match is brought, by engraving and type, before every enlightened reader, from one end of the world to the other, with such particularity of description, that the reading probably conveys a better idea of the fight, than the seeing would to most persons. When we consider these facts, it must be confessed that our civilization and Christianity are only superficial, and that a large portion of our people are barbarous at heart. Their refinement is only skin deep. You show them blood and they become brutes. Women are necessary in this world. They are needed to prevent civilized men from going back to barbarism; to protect them from the coarser parts of their own natures. The poet says, we are "half dust and half Deity," and it is the duty and sphere of woman to assist the divine influence to conquer the earthly in human nature and social life. It is not to be doubted that one great cause of the superiority of modern society, and the greater part of modern morals, and the greater elevation of modern character as compared with ancient times, is owing to the greater influences of woman. As we have done mighty works in the past, so we may hope to do mighty works in the future,—works not the less beneficent or great because wrought in comparative silence, and almost as if unintentionally and even unconsciously.—Hesperian.

An ancient philosopher, famed for his wisdom, once said that "The end of Labor is to gain Leisure." It is a true saying, and worthy of all acception. Those who toil look forward, however gloomy the prospect, to the time when the results of their life's work will enable them to enjoy that repose which seems necessary for the evening of the day of life.

"PA, didn't you whip me for biting Tommy?" "Yes, my child, for you hurt him very much." "Well, then, pa, you ought to whip mamma's music teacher, too, for he bit her yesterday right in the mouth; and I know it hurt her, because she put her arms around his neck and tried to choke him!"

ONE of the last stories told about a drunken man wants confirmation. It is said that in staggering around he met with a large globe lamp with letters upon it. Mistaking it for the moon, he said: "Well, I'm stumped if somebody haint stuck an advertisement on the moon."

"BOY," said an ill-tempered old fellow to a noisy lad, "what are you hollerin' for when I go by?" "Humph," returned the boy, "what are you going by for when I am hollerin'?"

"PAT, if Mr. Jones comes before my return, tell him that I will meet him at two o'clock." "Aye, sir, but what shall I tell him if he don't come?" "GOT any ice at your end or the table. Bill?" "No, but I've got the next thing to it." "What's that?" "A severe cold."

"Well, I'm blowed," as the rose said in June.

That Bridge Matter.

We see by the Supervisors Report—action on the Sycamore Slough Bridge has been postponed, until, next session in August to give all parties a chance to be heard, as well on its merits as demerits; in this we have evidence of a spirit of fairness and a desire for full information, on the part of the BOARD, which is highly commendable.

So far as, we can learn the Citizens in this vicinity and GRAND ISLAND are unanimously in favor of an appropriation to build a Bridge; but they are just as unanimous in their opinion, that on the Smith Ferry road, is the last place a structure of the character THEY (the advocates of the measure) ask for, should be built! In all candor we ask the advocates of this measure, what benefit is a Bridge, that is six months in the year surrounded with water and inaccessible to the traveling public? Now by placing it 3 miles lower down on the Slough, you have good roads leading to and from it at all seasons of the year, and high banks that never overflow, where a permanent Bridge can be put up without any fear of being carried away by freshets, or overflows—and at as low a cost as the structure now asked for. Now, we see no objection to a small appropriation to build a Bridge on the Smith Ferry road, in fact something of the kind is needed, and at the least expense for a safe summer crossing is all that can reasonably be asked for.

Then, if INTERESTED PARTIES conclude to build a toll road in that direction above high water mark let them build their own Bridge, and not ask the County to build it, and next year make her citizens pay tolls for crossing it. We do not wish to be understood as saying that interested parties would build a toll road, if they should be so lucky as to get the extravagant appropriation that they are asking for; but for the life of us, we can see no other way in which the said Bridge could be of any manner of benefit to them (much less any body else in the country.) Hence, we think it not at all unreasonable to conclude that such a thing is altogether possible, we say this with the kindest and most charitable feelings to them, regarding them, as gentlemen and good citizens. It is no more than what we would expect of any men under similar circumstances. Now, if the Board, would appropriate some $1,500 or $2,000 to building a Bridge across the Sycamore Slough a little distance above its mouth where its banks are high and dry, and where a good level and dry road at all seasons of the year can be opened leading from Knight's Landing to Smith's Ferry and Colusi, they would expend the money where it would benefit the greatest number of the traveling public as well as the greatest number of the Citizens of this part of the County.

There are some 30 families on Grand Island which during the winter season are pent up and isolated from the rest of the County by the waters of the tule and there is no place at which a Bridge could be accessible at all times except near Knight's Landing. Then in the name of common sense why not build a Bridge across Sycamore Slough between Reed's & Darlington's, and open out a road to Thomas' Ferry? Without such a Bridge and road as we have indicated the people of Grand Island will have to do as they have done, heretofore, for years have to cross two Ferries on the Sacramento River and travel twice or thrice the actual distance to go to their Post-office, to purchase Supplies or to procure a Physician. These Grand Island people are laboring under a hardship that is onerous in the extreme. And why not lessen their burthen when by so doing every one else will be benefited and, even the Smith Ferry will not be injured thereby in the least? A good portion of the up river travel that now crosses at the Knight's Landing Ferry would cross at the Smith Ferry if there was a passable road on this side of the river because the distance is shorter by one or two miles.

Wake up!! YE People of Knight's Landing and Grand Island and go to work in opening out a Road and Building a Bridge. Make yourselves useful and God will bless you and every body thank you.!!

Pacific Railroad.

The Pacific Railroad Bill has been re-committed to the Select Committee of the House, which is regarded as equivalent to its postponement for the present session. Reasons for thus disposing of it include the contrariety of opinions as to the proper location of the road and the insufficiency of the work.

European News.

The steamer Palestine, from Queens-town, May 17th, brings the following; Garibaldi, with over one thousand followers, had landed at Marsala, in Sicily, under the fire of two Neapolitan frigates. One of Garibaldi's steamers was captured and the other sunk. The volunteers who had landed were, at the moment of the mail's departure, fighting with the royal troops.

Colonel Medici was forwarding the preparations for a second expedition, and six thousand volunteers had already enrolled. Palermo dispatches of May 15th, say in five churches, at the termination of mass, shouts of "Italy forever" Liberty forever" were raised. In the evening the people to the number of ten thousand assembled. The police were unable to disperse them and the troops were called out and fired on the people, killing four and wounding ten. Several persons were arrested.

The latest accounts from Naples represent the utmost consternation prevailing. The troops were desperate, and tumultuous manifestations were taking place. The royal family were packing up their jewelry and valuables, and there were strong indications that a general insurrection would take place.

The British Government had issued a proclamation against enlistment for the Pope in Ireland, but does not interfere in the subscriptions for the Sicilian insurgents, the law officers of the crown not regarding it as illegal.

It was positively asserted that the French army at Rome had received orders to evacuate the city.

It was said that the Sardinian Government had ordered the garrisons of Central Italy to march rapidly towards the Pontifical frontiers.

It was reported that Larmoricieri had made a forward movement with the Papal troops, and five thousand Piedmontese troops had embarked from Genoa to check him.

Theodore Parker died at Florence, on May 11th.

An influential deputation, headed by Milner Gibson, had laid before Lord Palmerston the plans of Col. Shaffner's telegraph to America, via Faro Islands and Iceland.

The Russian Grand Duke Nicholas, was on a visit to the Emperor Napoleon.

Bell's Life, of May 19th, announces that a meeting took place between Sayers and Heenan, at the office yesterday, to discuss measures for terminating the dispute between them as to the possession of the champion belt. It was ultimately agreed that two new belts exact counterparts of the one so much coveted, should be made; the money for their purchase to be raised by public subscription, and each candidate was to head the list for the one to be held by his opponent. The old belt will remain in possession of the proprietor of Bell's Life, to be fought for whoever may aspire to the honor of wearing it. Sayers has engaged to retire from the Prize Ring.

Congressional.

In the Senate, May 28th, the bill making appropriations for the Geological Surveys of Washington and Oregon passed.

In the Senate, May 30th, Mr. Seward appeared in his seat, and was warmly greeted by many Senators of both parties.

The Overland Mail Bill was taken up, when Mr. Hale withdrew his substitute for the original bill.

Mr. Latham offered an amendment, authorizing the Postmaster General to contract with the contractors on the routes between St. Joseph, Mo., and Great Salt Lake, and between Salt Lake and Placerville, for a semi-weekly mail. The distance to be run in twenty days, at not more than $462,000 per annum. Also to contract for the transportation of printed matter and franked documents by steamship, at not over $400,000 per year; also, to contract for a daily mail by coaches, from April 1st to December 1st, and a tri-weekly for the balance of the year, from Sacramento to Portland, Oregon, at not over $100,000 per annum; also, to contract for a weekly mail from St. Paul, Minnesota, to Dallas, Oregon, at not over $200,000.

Mr. Latham explained the provisions of his amendment. He spoke at length in favor of the Butterfield Overland Route, and said Congress has no right to terminate the contract by exercising despotic power.

The Overland Bill was postponed till Saturday.

Latest accounts from Pike's Peak speak of new discoveries. The number

PHENOMENON.—On last evening about eight o'clock, a Comet was distinctly visible to the naked eye in the North-West, when first observed it was about 4 degrees above the horizon.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY IN SUTTER.—We are informed by one of the parties that a few days ago, a certain "hombre" that sometimes figures as "a gallant" in this vicinity, went to a certain house in Sutter county, where he was instantly met by the lady of the same, who club in hand promptly struck and made him beat a running retreat, the Causus Belli appears to be that a few days previously the said hombre tried to get a fight out of the lady's husband, but he refused to reciprocate the sentiment. Good!! go in ladies, when your husbands have not the necessary pluck for war, stand up for their rights, you were made for their "help mates."

WHAT THE HOMESTEAD BILL PROVIDES FOR.—The Homestead Bill which passed the Senate on the 10th by a vote of 44 to 8, provides that any person who is the head of a family may, after the act becomes a law, enter one quarter section, (160 acres) of vacant and unappropriated lands, or any less quantity, to be located in a body in conformity with the legal subdivision of lands, upon making affidavit before the Register that the applicant is at the head of a family, and is actually settled on the land, and that the application is made for his or her benefit, and that of no one else. The final certificate, or patent shall not be issued for five years after the date of entry, and not before it is certified by two credible witnesses that the settler has erected a dwelling house and resided upon the land for five years; whereupon the patent shall be issued at twenty-five cents an acre. The land thus acquired shall not be liable for debt until after the patent is issued. In cases of false swearing upon making the entry, or abandoning the land for more than six months at one time, the land shall revert to the government. The rights conferred by this act are extended to inchoate citizens who have declared their intentions, as required by the naturalization law, before the issuing of the patent. Nothing in this act shall be construed so as to impair the existing pre-emption, donation or graduating laws, or to embrace lands reserved to be sold or entered at the price of two dollars and fifty cents an acre. The President is required to order all surveyed public land into market, by proclamation within two years from the date of this act, except such as are by the government.

THE KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

ENERGY.—Who ever became a man of influence by sitting under the harrow of despondency? What idle man ever benefited the world, his friends or himself? There is nothing like action coupled with cheerfulness. We see it every where. Who is he sitting on that empty barrel on the wharf? A man with no energy—a prey to grief: he does not know what to do, or how to start. Who is the man with folded arms standing in the marketplace? A lazy do-little vagabond, who hardly earns his bread and butter. Do you wish not to become of such a character? Then arouse yourself! away from the arm-chair! up from the gutter? out of the downy bed! Move your arms, kick your feet and stir about, give the blood a chance to circulate through your veins, and the air of heaven to enter your lungs. Seize the first job presented, and dispatch it at once; up for pay, and get another forthwith; you will soon earn enough to purchase a wheelbarrow or hand-cart, and then you will begin to live. Who knows what you may become? Energy is half omnipotent. Small beginnings end in large gains; a penny well turned brings a fortune. Resolve, then to do something, and be something, and you will bless us to your dying day for preaching thus faithful to you.

One by one the objects of our affection depart from us. But our affections remain, and like vines, stretch forth their broken, wounded tendrils for support. The bleeding heart needs a balm to heal it; and there is none but the love of its kind—none but the affection of the human heart.

A week filled with selfishness, and the Sabbath stuffed full of religious exercise, will make a good Pharisee but a poor Christian. There are many persons who think Sunday is a sponge with which to wipe out the sins of the week.

It takes three editors to start a paper in New Orleans: one to get killed in a duel, one to die with the yellow fever, and one to write the obituary of the defunct two.
