WAGES AND HOURS OF LABOUR IN CANADA, 1920 TO 1927

THE present bulletin is the eleventh in the series on Wages and Hours of Labour, the first having been issued as a supplement to the LABOUR GAZETTE for March, 1921, giving figures as to wages and hours of labour in certain trades in various cities in Canada from 1901 to 1920, with index numbers by groups based on wages in 1913 as 100. Reports numbered two, three, four and six in the series continued this record with certain additions. Report No. 5 dealt with Hours of Labour in Canada and Other Countries. Report No. 3 contained also statistics of wages and hours in coal mining in Canada from 1900 to 1921 with index numbers for the three principal districts and Report No. 7 covered the years 1920 to 1924 and included figures for agriculture from 1914 to 1923. Report No. 8 gave additional statistics for factories, etc., for 1920 to 1924, and Reports No. 9 and No. 10 continued for 1925 and 1926 the figures in Reports No. 7 and No. 8.

The present report contains an appendix on wages of employees of steam railways considerably increasing the information both for recent years and back to 1901, with a new series of index numbers.

The main object of these reports is to show the changes in wage rates and in hours during the periods covered. In each report the figures given constitute a continuous record from year to year, the figures in each being from the same sources, as far as is possible, continuity being thereby assured within reasonable limits. As more sources of information are available from year to year, the figures for previous years are secured, if possible, and included in order to secure continuity.

In the building trades, metal trades, printing trades and in employment on electric street railways the figures are given for thirteen cities throughout Canada. Information is secured from union agreements and from reports of representative employers and of trade unions secured each year. These reports are supplemented by figures secured by officers of the Department and by correspondents of the LABOUR GAZETTE resident in each city. The statistics as to building trades show the prevailing rates of wages and hours of labour for nine classes of labour for the years 1920 to 1927 inclusive for the building season beginning in the spring of each year. Sheet metal workers employed in building and construction are in the present report for the first time included with the building trades. Sheet metal workers in factories are included in the table on factory trades so that the table for metal trades no longer includes sheet metal workers. In the metal trades the figures are for metal manufacturing industries and do not include wages in the metal trades on railways, in mining, construction, etc.

Wages in manufacturing and various other industries are shown by samples. For common labour in factories, these are given by localities. The figures are secured from reports from employers and from such union agreements as are available.

On steam railways, wages of employees on the regular staffs are fixed according to agreements between the several railways and the organizations of railway employees, the principal railways having the same rates for nearly all the principal classes. The figures published are taken from these agreements.

In coal mining, the wages in the principal districts are arranged by agreements between the coal mining operators and the employees, in some cases represented by unions and in others committees of employees. The figures published are taken from such agreements. In some of the mines in each district the wages of unorganized employees are somewhat lower than those in such agreements. In metal mining the rates of wages and hours of labour are shown as samples for mines in the various parts of Canada.

For civic employees wages of policemen, firemen and labourers are shown by localities. For laundries, grain elevators, telephones and electric current production and transmission the figures are given by samples, as for factory labour.

Index Numbers of Wage Rates

In Report No. 1 tables of index numbers were given in order to show the general trend of the movement in rates of wages. The first set of index numbers was for the rates of wages from 1901 to 1920 in the thirteen selected cities. For each series of rates, that is, for each trade or occupation in each locality, index numbers were calculated both from the hourly rates and from the weekly rates, and these index numbers were averaged for all localities, by groups, thus indicating the percentages of changes in weekly rates and in hourly rates. The year 1913 was taken as the base period, that is, the rate for 1913 in each case was taken as 100, so that the index numbers showed the percentage changes in rates from time to time prior to and since that date. An average was also made for all of the series in these tables, in order to indicate the general trend in wages in such trades as a whole. In making the average index numbers the simple arithmetical averages were taken, no allowance being made for the importance of each trade or group by using a system of weighting. In Report No. 3 this table of index numbers for the thirteen cities was brought down to September, 1921.

number accordingly. The index numbers therefore show approximately the movement of wage rates in each group for the past year as compared with the movement in previous years and show current levels as compared with levels in 1913. In Report No. 3 index numbers of daily rates in coal mining were given, calculated in the same manner as the index numbers in Report No. 1. The index number for the coal mining group since 1921 was calculated in the same manner as those of the other groups.

(f) Four classes 1901 to 1920, twelve classes 1921 to 1927.

(g) The number of samples has been increased each year since 1920.

In subsequent reports the table of index numbers of hourly rates only since 1901 have been reproduced, the figures since 1921 being calculated by ascertaining the average increase or decrease per cent in the figures for each group each year from the figures for the preceding year and adjusting the group index

A table of index numbers of wages for factory trades, for common labour in factories, and for lumbering, calculated from the sample rates published was also given for the period 1911 to 1920 in Report No. 1. This was brought down to 1927 in the same manner as the other index numbers since 1921 were calculated.

The classes of labour for which rates were used for the calculation of the index number table for the period 1901 to 1927, are, in the main, skilled trades; and practically all of these, even the unskilled, are in most cities organized to a great extent in trade and labour unions. The statistics given in these tables, therefore, show wage rates and hours of labour in a number of organized occupations in certain cities at the dates under review. They do not, however, indicate the changes in wages outside of industrial centres.

The index numbers calculated from sample rates of wages show to some extent the trend of wages for labour in factories, and for the lumbering industry as compared with the changes in the classes mentioned above.

Changes since 1920

The table of index numbers here given includes the figures referred to above for each group with yearly averages for all groups for which figures are available from 1901 to 1927.

It will be seen that by 1920 wages had reached levels almost one hundred per cent higher than in 1913, in some groups the increase being over one hundred per cent while for the building trades the increases were appreciably less, being only about eighty per cent. Since 1920 all groups have shown some decreases, although printing trades and coal mining were higher in 1921 than in 1920, declining somewhat thereafter. The decreases in coal mining in 1925 were comparatively steep and tended to reduce the average for all groups. In 1926 and 1927 there were changes in several groups, raising the average for the six groups.

In the building trades up to 1919 there were smaller increases than in any of the other groups, but in 1920 there were considerable increases. In 1921 decreases of 10c. per hour were general and in 1922 decreases of 5c. per hour were numerous. In 1923, 1924 and in 1925 while there were upward movements in the average it was due to increase in particular trades and in certain cities, and not to an upward movement general for most of the trades and localities. In 1926, and again in 1927, the upward movement was somewhat more general.

In the metal trades the increase in wage rates up to 1920 was greater than in most of the other groups, there being a good demand for labour in the manufacture of munitions. During the industrial activity in 1919 and 1920 further increases were made, but in 1921 and 1922 considerable decreases were made. In 1923 and 1924 some recovery was experienced, but in 1925 there was practically no change. In 1926 and 1927 there were some slight changes upward.

In the printing trades up to 1920 increases were about the same as in the building trades, but in 1921 when many of the three or five year agreements between employers and the unions expired, rates were advanced and hours were reduced in many cases. After 1921 there have been some reductions, but these were only in a few localities and during the past four years the wages have been rising.

In electric railway service, rates had almost doubled by 1920, but declined slightly in 1921 and 1922 recovering somewhat in 1923 and very gradually each year thereafter.

In steam railway employment, wage increases were considerable in 1918, 1919 and 1920, but in 1921 decreases averaging about twelve per cent for all classes were made and in 1922 decreases for shop crafts, maintenance of way employees and for freight handlers, clerks, etc., were made averaging about ten per cent. In 1926 at the end of the year wages of conductors, trainmen, brakemen, baggagemen, and yardmen were advanced about 6 per cent, that is by half the amount of the reduction in 1921, and during 1927 similar increases were made in rates for other classes.

In coal mining the index number reached its peak in 1921, increases having been made in the closing weeks of 1920. In 1922 decreases were made in some districts and in other districts in 1923 and 1924. In 1925 decreases occurred in the three principal districts, being especially steep in Alberta and southeastern British Columbia (as in 1924) where no decreases occurred until 1924. In 1926, reductions were effected in Nova Scotia but in the other chief fields were practically unchanged, but an increase was made in certain mines in Alberta at the end of 1925. Toward the end of 1927 negotiations were being carried on in Nova Scotia and in Vancouver Island as to new schedules.

Factory labour had shown almost the greatest percentage increases up to 1920, both for common labour and for the various trades, but in both cases steep decreases appeared from 1921 to 1923, after which increases appeared each year.

In logging and saw milling steep increases in wages appeared up to 1920, followed by particularly steep decreases in 1921, after which substantial increases occurred in 1923 and 1924, with a decrease in 1925 and slight increases in 1926 and in 1927.

APPENDIX B

Wages of Employees on Steam Railways

The first report on wages and hours of labour, issued as a supplement to the LABOUR GAZETTE for March, 1921, Report No. 1, "Wages and Hours of Labour in Canada, 1901-1920," contained tables of wage rates for six classes of railway employees, namely, freight conductors, freight brakemen, freight locomotive engineers, freight locomotive firemen, telegraphers and sectionmen. From these figures index numbers of changes in wage rates were calculated, with rates in 1913 as 100, and were included in the table of index numbers for the groups of trades and occupations for which figures were published in the report. In subsequent reports for the years 1920 to 1926 (usually issued as supplements to the LABOUR GAZETTE for January each year) as in several of the other groups, figures as to wage rates were included for classes additional to those covered in Report No. 1. The index number for each group each year was brought down to date by multiplying the index number for the previous year by a figure representing the average percentage of increase or decrease in wage rates for the last year. It is now possible to publish data as to twenty-three classes of employees from 1901 to 1927 inclusive (train and engine service, four classes; telegraphs, three classes; sectionmen, four classes; shops, eight classes) with an index number of wage rates for the entire period for these twenty-three classes. The rates given for each class are the averages of rates on certain parts of the two principal railway systems.

The index number previously published was based upon only six classes, of which four were in train and engine service, paid on a mileage basis, and the index number for twenty-three classes of which eight are in train crews is on a substantially higher level for recent years than the index number based on only six classes. It is possible that if data for several other important classes were also included, particularly clerks, freight handlers, and station employees, for which data is available only in recent years, that the index number of wage rates would be somewhat higher. One reason for this substantial difference is that four out of the six classes upon which the previous index numbers were based were on a mileage basis, and the rates of pay per mile have not been increased by as great percentages as have rates per hour for other classes of employees. Changes in the speed basis of trains, basic hours per day, rates for overtime, and rules affect earnings and are taken into account when arranging wage rates.

The reduction in hours per day, particularly the adoption of the basic eight hour day in 1918, with punitive or extra rates for overtime, usually on the basis of "time and one-half" since 1919, naturally also tended to increase average earnings per hour, particularly when conditions made much overtime necessary. Other changes in working conditions are also said to have had some influence in increasing average hourly earnings and in recent years a bonus system in connection with the "Baltimore and Ohio Plan" of co-operation between the management and the employees in the shops of the Canadian National Railways was estimated to have equalled an average of 2 cents per hour added to the regular rates of pay.

In addition to the tables of rates of wages above mentioned, compiled from the schedules of wages and working conditions (usually agreed upon and signed by representatives of the railway companies and representatives of the employees through the organizations to which they belonged) statistics are available as to average earnings of employees on railways in the annual reports on railways issued from 1906 to 1918 by the Department of Railways and Canals and since 1919 by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Until 1917 these reports showed only average daily wages but from that year have shown average hourly earnings for most classes as well as the number of employees, the total number of hours worked and the total amounts of wages paid each class and to all employees. From time to time the list of classes of employees has been changed but from 1917 to 1925 it has been possible to compile a table of average hourly earnings in each twelve month period for a number of the principal classes for which the data is substantially continuous throughout. For the calendar year 1926 the list has been considerably altered, but figures for that year have been added to the table for those classes for which they were available in continuity with those for previous years. From the data as to average hourly earnings of all classes, including general officers, an index number has been calculated with 1913 as 100 for comparison with the index number of wage rates mentioned above. The hourly wage rate for 1913 used in this calculation (24.2 cents) was calculated from the daily average wages in 1913 for the various classes, taking ten hours per day except for certain classes such as shopmen on a nine-hour basis, despatchers on an eight-hour basis, etc.

A comparison of the index number of wage rates for twenty-three classes with the index number of average hourly earnings of all classes shows a higher level for the latter than for the former. This is no doubt due partly to the effect of punitive overtime rates and other rules and conditions mentioned above, but partly also to the fact that the index number of wage rates is unweighted, that is the average for the twenty-three classes is the simple average of the figures for these classes. If allowance be made for the importance of each class, that is if the index number for each class is weighted by the number of employees in it, the weighted average is higher. Such a calculation for the year 1926, the last year for which such figures are available, gives an average of 211.0 as compared with 186.4 the index number of wage rates that year, and 238.8 the index number of hourly earnings.

Steam railway transportation is the only industry for which such statistics as to actual wages, i.e., average earnings per hour, are available over a period of years for the various classes of labour and it is, therefore, not possible to give similar data for any other industry. Where partial data is available in other industries the indications are that average earnings per unit (hour, day, shift, etc.), apart from unemployment, short time, etc., rise and fall by greater percentages than wage rates.

The basic eight-hour day in employment on steam railways was adopted in 1918, with punitive rates for overtime (usually "time and one-half") then or shortly afterward, and except for an interval of a year or two, beginning in 1922, these conditions have been altered little since. Many shop trades had in 1918 been on the nine-hour day for eight or ten years, but otherwise the ten-hour day had prevailed for most classes since 1901. Train despatchers, however, were on the eight-hour day and some classes on continuous work were on the twelve-hour day or its equivalent.
