Value of birth certificates.—Birth certificates are very valuable, hence they must be correctly and completely filled out and filed with the local civil registrar.

The following are some of the important personal uses of a birth certificate:

1. Proof of family relations (paternity, maternity, and filiation). Such proof is required when claiming for succession or inheritance, pension and other rights incidental to family relations.
2. It serves as evidence of age which is required when (a) first entering school; (b) establishing the first right to vote; (c) taking civil service examination and entering government service; (d) getting life insurance; (e) securing passports; (f) establishing age when going to work in commercial or industrial establishments; (g) getting marriage license.

(Stillbirth requires also a birth and a death certificate. Stillbirth shall include all stillborn babies that have attained the 6th month of uterogestation.)

Note.—In the case of an exposed child, the person who found the same shall report to the local civil registrar the place, date, and hour of finding and other attendant circumstances.

In case of an illegitimate child, the birth certificate shall be signed and sworn to jointly by the parents of the infant or only by the mother if the father refuses. In the latter case, it shall not be permissible to state or reveal in the document the name of the father who refuses to acknowledge the child, or to give therein any information by which such father could be identified.

Any foetus having human features which dies after 24 hours of existence completely disengaged from the maternal womb shall be entered in the proper register as having been born and having died. (Act 3753, sec. 5.)

False statements.—Any person who shall knowingly make false statements in the forms furnished and shall present the same for entry in the civil registrar shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one month nor more than six, or by a fine of not less than P200 nor more than P500, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 3753, sec. 16.)
