Elegy
Written in a Country
Churchyard

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight, And all the air a solemn stillness holds

Elegy

Churchyard.*

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.

And all the air is rous'd
And all the woods
And all the birds
And all the beasts
And all the fish
And all the insects
And all the plants
And all the stones
And all the metals
And all the minerals
And all the elements
And all the powers
And all the virtues
And all the graces
And all the gifts
And all the mercies
And all the kindnesses
And all the goodnesses
And all the beauties
And all the excellencies
And all the perfections
And all the glories
And all the honours
And all the riches
And all the pleasures
And all the delights
And all the joys
And all the felicities
And all the beatitudes
And all the blessings
And all the favours
And all the graces
And all the mercies
And all the kindnesses
And all the goodnesses
And all the beauties
And all the excellencies
And all the perfections
And all the glories
And all the honours
And all the riches
And all the pleasures
And all the delights
And all the joys
And all the felicities
And all the beatitudes
And all the blessings
And all the favours

And all the powers
And all the virtues
And all the graces
And all the gifts
And all the mercies
And all the kindnesses
And all the goodnesses
And all the beauties
And all the excellencies
And all the perfections
And all the glories
And all the honours
And all the riches
And all the pleasures
And all the delights
And all the joys
And all the felicities
And all the beatitudes
And all the blessings
And all the favours
And all the graces
And all the mercies
And all the kindnesses
And all the goodnesses
And all the beauties
And all the excellencies
And all the perfections
And all the glories
And all the honours
And all the riches
And all the pleasures
And all the delights
And all the joys
And all the felicities
And all the beatitudes
And all the blessings
And all the favours

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight, And all the air a solemn stillness holds, Save where the beetle wheels his droning flight, And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds.

*Save that from yonder ivy-mantled tow'r
The moping owl does to the moon complain
Of such as, wand'ring near her secret bow'r, Molest her ancient solitary reign.*

*Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade, Where heaves the turf in many a mould'ring heap, Each in his narrow cell for ever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.*

*The breezy call of incense-breathing morn,
The swallow twitt'ring from the straw-built shed, The cock's shrill clarion, or the echoing horn,
No more shall rouse them from their lowly bed.*

*For them no more the blazing hearth shall burn, Or busy housewife ply her evening care;
No children run to cisp their sire's return,
Or climb his knees the envied kiss to share.*

*Oft did the harvest to their sickle yield,
Their furrow oft the stubborn glebe has broke;
How jocund did they drive their team afield!
How bow'd the woods beneath their sturdy stroke!*

*Let not Ambition mock their useful toil, Their homely joys, and destiny obscure; Nor Grandeur hear with a disdainful smile
The short and simple annals of the poor.*

*The boast of heraldry, the pomp of pow'r,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave, Await alike th' inevitable hour:
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.*

Nor you, ye proud, impute to these the fault
If Memory o'er their tomb no trophies raise,
Where through the long-drawn aisle and fretted vault The pealing anthem swells the note of praise.

Can storied urn or animated bust Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can Honour's voice provoke the silent dust, Or Flattery soothe the dull cold ear of death?

Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid Some heart once pregnant with celestial fire; Hands, that the rod of empire might have sway'd, Or waked to ecstasy th' living Lyre.

*But knowledge to their eyes her ample page Rich with the spoils of time did ne'er unroll; Chill Penury repress'd their noble rage,
And froze the genial current of the soul.*

*Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear; Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its sweetness on the desert air.*

*Some village Hampden that with dauntless breast The little tyrant of his fields withstood,
Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest, Some Cromwell guiltless of his country's blood.*

Th' applause of listning senates to command, The threats of pain and ruin to despise, Go scatter plenty o'er a smiling land, And read their history in a nation's eyes —

*Their lot forbade: nor circumscribed alone Their growing virtues, but their crimes confined; Forbade to wade thro'
slaughter to a throne, And shut the gates of mercy on mankind;*

*The struggling pangs of conscious truth to hide, To quench the blushes of ingenuous shame,
Or heap the shrine of Luxury and Pride With incense kindled at the Muse's flame.*

*Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife Their sober wishes never learn'd to stray;
Along the cool, sequester'd vale of life
They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.*

Yet ev'n these bones from insult to protect Some frail memorial still erected high,
With uncouth rhymes and shapeless sculpture deck'd, Implores the passing tribute of a sigh.

Their name, their years, spelt by th' unletter'd Muse, The place of fame and elegy supply:
And many a holy text around she strews,
That teach the rustic moralist to die.

For who, to dumb Forgetfulness a prey, This pleasing anxious being e'er resigned, Left the warm precincts of the cheerful day, Nor cast one longing ling'- ring look behind?

On some fond breast the parting soul relies, Some pious drops the closing eye requires; E'en from the tomb the voice of Nature cries, E'en in our ashes live their wonted fires.

*For thee, who, mindful of
th' unhonour'd dead, Dost in these lines their artless tale relate;
If chance, by lonely contemplation led,
Some kindred spirit shall inquire thy fate —*

*Haply some hoary-headed swain may say,
'Oft have we seen him at the peep of dawn Brushing with hasty steps the dew away To meet the sun upon the upland lawn.*

There at the foot of yonder nodding beech That wreathes its old fantastic roots so high, His listless length at noon-tide would he stretch, And pore upon the brook that babbles by.

*'Hard by yon wood, now smiling as in scorn, Mutt'ring his wayward fancies he would rove, Now drooping, woeful-wan,
like one forlorn, Or crazed with care, or cross'd in hopeless love.*

One morn I miss'd him on the custom'd hill, Along the heath, and near his favourite tree; Another came; nor yet beside the rill, Nor up the lawn, nor at the wood was he:

'The next with dirges due in sad array Slow through the church-way path we saw him borne.
Approach and read (for thou canst read) the lay Graved on the stone beneath yon aged thorn.'

THE EPITAPH

*Here rests his head upon the lap of Earth A Youth, to Fortune and to Fame unknown.
Fair Science frown'd not on his humble birth, And Melancholy mark'd him for her own.*

Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere, Heav'n did a recompense as largely send:

A decorative border of roses and leaves surrounds the text. The roses are stylized with detailed petals and are interspersed with long, pointed leaves. The border is consistent on all four sides of the page.

He gave to Mis'ry all he had, a tear, He gain'd from Heav'n ('twas all he wish'd) a friend.

No farther seek his merits to disclose, Or draw his frailties from their dread abode, (There they alike in trembling hope repose, The bosom of his Father and his God.
