2 pints..... = 1 quart, qt.	84 gallons..... = 1 puncheon.
4 quarts..... = 1 gallon, gal.	126 gallons..... = 1 pipe.
42 gallons..... = 1 tierce.	252 gallons..... = 1 tun.

The barrel is usually taken to be 31½ gallons; in some States, 32 gallons. The gallon (U. S.) contains 231 cubic inches; but the imperial gallon, 277.274 cubic inches.

APOTHECARIES' MEASURE.

60 minims (or drops), m. = 1 fluid dram, f \mathfrak{z} .	8 fluid drams..... = 1 fluid ounce, f \mathfrak{z} .
8 fluid ounces..... = 1 pint (octarius), O.	16 fluid ounces..... = 1 pint (octarius), O.
8 pints..... = 1 gallon (congius).

DRY MEASURE.

2 pints	= 1 quart, qt.	4 bushels (in England).....	= 1 coom.
4 quarts.....	= 1 gallon, gal.	2 cooms (in England).....	= 1 quarter.
2 gallons.....	= 1 peck, pk.	5 quarters (in England).....	= 1 wey.
4 pecks.....	= 1 bushel, bu.	2 weys (in England).....	= 1 last.
36 bushels.....	= 1 chaldron, ch.

A gallon, dry measure, contains 268 $\frac{3}{4}$ cubic inches.

1 U. S. (or Winchester) bushel.....	= 2150.42 cubic inches.
1 imperial bushel.....	{ = 2218.192 cubic inches.
	{ = 1.0315157 U. S. bu.
	{ = 8 imperial bushels.
1 English quarter.....	{ = 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ U. S. bu. (nearly).
	{ = 17745.54 cubic inches.
	{ = 10.2694 cubic feet.

The weight of a bushel of wheat, as fixed by law, is 60 lbs. avdp.; of rye, 56 lbs.; and of Indian corn, 56 lbs. A bushel of oats varies in weight from 30 to 36 lbs., and of barley from 32 to 50 lbs. The customary legal weight of a bushel of potatoes is 60 lbs., but in Ohio it is 58 lbs., and in Washington 50 lbs.

SHIPPING ADMEASUREMENT.

REGISTER TON. — For Register Tonnage, or for measurement of the entire internal capacity of a vessel:—

100 cubic feet = 1 register ton.

This number is arbitrarily assumed to facilitate computation.

SHIPPING TON. — For the measurement of cargo:—

40 cubic feet.....	{ = 1 shipping ton.
	{ = 31.16 imperial bushels.
	{ = 32.143 bushels.
42 cubic feet.....	{ = 1 British shipping ton.
	{ = 32.719 imperial bushels.
	{ = 33.75 bushels.
350 cubic feet	= 1 keel.

A ton of wheat occupies about 40 cubic feet, and is often taken as a standard alike for the volume and weight of cargoes.

TIME.

60 seconds.....	= 1 minute.	4 weeks.....	= 1 month.
60 minutes.....	= 1 hour.	13 months, 1 day, 6 hours, or	} = 1 Julian year.
24 hours.....	= 1 day.	365 days, 6 hours
7 days.....	= 1 week.	12 calendar months.....	= 1 year.
2 weeks.....	= 1 fortnight.

The length of the astronomical year is about 365 $\frac{1}{4}$ days, or 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds. As the common year is 365 days, it becomes necessary once in every four years to add a day to the year, making the leap year of 366 days.

Every year whose number is divisible by 4 without a remainder is a leap year, excepting the full centuries, which to be leap years must be divisible by 400 without a remainder; 1900, therefore, was not a leap year.

January, March, May, July, August, October, and December contain 31 days.

April, June, September, and November contain 30 days. February contains 28 days, except in leap years, when it contains 29 days.

ANGULAR MEASURE.

60 seconds or 60''.....	= 1 prime minute.	30 degrees.....	= 1 sign, s.
60 minutes or 60'.....	= 1 degree, $^{\circ}$.	12 signs, or 360 degrees.....	= 1 great circle.

12 units.....	= 1 dozen.	12 gross.....	= 1 great gross.
12 dozen.....	= 1 gross.	20 units.....	= 1 score.

PAPER.

24 sheets.....	= 1 quire.	20 quires.....	= 1 ream.
10 $\frac{1}{2}$ quires.....	= 1 token.

THE METRIC SYSTEM.

WEIGHTS.

64.798950 milligrams	= 1 grain troy.
453.592651 grams	= 1 pound av.
1016.04754 kilograms	= 1 long ton, or 2240 lbs. av.
907.18530 kilograms	= 1 short ton, or 2000 lbs. av.

The kilogram is designed to be the exact weight in a vacuum of a cubic decimeter of distilled water at the temperature of 4° of the centigrade thermometer (39.2° Fahrenheit).

MEASURES OF LENGTH.

	1 millimeter	= 0m.001	= 0.0393708 inch.
10 millimeters	= 1 centimeter	= 0m.01	= 0.393708 inch.

10 kilometers	= 1 myriameter	= 10000m.	= 6.21382 miles.
25.398 millimeters		= 1 inch.
1.0159 decimeters		= 1 hand (4 inches).
3.0479 decimeters		= 1 foot (3 hands).
9.1438 decimeters		= 1 yard (9 hands).
100.58 decimeters		= 1 half-chain (99 hands).
20.116 meters		= 1 chain.
1.6093 kilometers		= 1 mile (80 chains).

The meter is designed to be the ten-millionth part of the quadrant of the Earth's meridian.

MEASURES OF SURFACE.

Ordinary Measures. — The squares of the measures of length.

LAND MEASURES.

100 centares	= 1 are = 100 square meters	{ = 1076.4 square feet. = 119.60 square yards.
100 ares	= 1 hectare	= 2.471 acres.

MEASURES OF VOLUME.

Ordinary Measures. — The cube of the measures of length.

1 cubic meter	{ = 61025.2 cubic inches. = 35.316 cubic feet. = 1.3079 cubic yards.

MEASURES FOR WOOD.

1 centistere.....	= 0.01 stere.....	= .353 cubic feet.
1 decistere.....	= 0.1 stere.....	= 3.53 cubic feet.

COINS AND THEIR VALUES.

The value given for coins of "silver standard" countries is based upon the market price of the pure silver they contain, and fluctuates with the price of silver. For this table the price of an ounce of pure silver was taken as $0.58313. For "gold standard" countries the value of even the silver coins is reckoned as the given proportionate part of the gold unit.

* The Latin Monetary Union (Belgium, France, Greece, Italy, Switzerland) has nominally a double standard with the ratio of gold to silver fixed at 1 to 15 $\frac{1}{2}$, but virtually it has the single gold standard because of the limiting of the silver coinage in 1873. All of these countries have coins of the same weight and fineness, but the "franc" and "centime" are called respectively "lira" and "centesimo" in Italy and "drachma" and "lepton" in Greece. This monetary system has also been adopted in whole or in part by Bulgaria, Finland, Roumania, Servia, Spain, Venezuela, etc.

DICTIONARY OF BUSINESS AND LAW TERMS.

When a word in this vocabulary is printed in SMALL CAPITALS, whether preceded by "See" or "Cf." (compare) or not, it means a reference to the word so printed.

A.

A, a. Letter used in abbreviations: as, A/C, account current; A/c, account; @ for to or at, usually in connection with prices, as 12 c. @ 14 c. (12 to 14 cents); 100 lbs. @ 10 c. (100 lbs. at 10 cents). A, alone, may signify Accepted or Audited.

A 1. At LLOYD'S Register of Shipping = first-class; A 2, second class, etc. In the U. S. the scale runs fractionally, — A 1, A 1 1-4, etc., A 2, etc. Loosely, A 1 is used in trade simply for "first-rate" of its kind.

PUNCTUATION RULES.

Punctuation should be used as an aid to clearness, and not directly for rhetorical purposes. Practical rules cannot be made so specific as to meet every matter of detail, and the application of many rules is properly subject to variation according to personal opinion as to differences in the subject-matter punctuated. Most of those here given, however, are generally accepted as inviolable.

COMMA.

General Principle. A comma marks the slightest interruptions in grammatical construction that demand punctuation, and should not be used when no such interruption is present unless by its use added clearness can be secured.

Rule I. Insert a comma after the first of two words, phrases, or short clauses when they are in the same construction and not connected by a conjunction.

We are fearfully, wonderfully made.

Rule II. Insert a comma after each except the last of two or more words, phrases, or clauses in the same construction but with no conjunction except before the last member of the series.

The world, the flesh, and the devil.

It is neither good, bad, nor indifferent.

Rule III. A comma is needed before and after a word or a group of words which is inserted independently, or so that the rest of the sentence would be grammatically complete without them, but which is not sufficiently independent to require the use of marks of parenthesis.

Punctuation, like other matters, should be governed by common sense.

Commas, therefore, should not be used without reason.

Authors, not printers, should punctuate their writing.

All printers, however, should know how to punctuate.

The most vigorous thinkers and writers are, in fact, self-taught.

Rule IV. A comma is needed before a conjunction introducing an antithesis, or a clause in opposition to one preceding, or introducing an opposite assertion.

False delicacy is affectation, not politeness.

Though learned and methodical, the teacher was not a pedant.

Rule V. A word or group of words standing independently at the beginning or end of a sentence should be separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma.

Awkward in his person, James was ill qualified to command respect.

Antonio, light my lamp.

Referring to your note of the 10th inst., I would say, etc.

He was a scoundrelly rascal, with all due respect to his learning.

Rule VI. A comma precedes a relative clause that adds an explanation, but not a clause that restricts the application of an antecedent.

Behold the emblem of thy state in flowers, which bloom and die.

Every teacher must like a boy who is attentive and docile.

SEMICOLON.

Rule I. Each clause, or part of a sentence, that is itself divisible into parts marked off by commas should have a semicolon after it; also each clause in a sentence that contains any such part with commas.

Our schoolbooks used to tell us that at the period we should stop long enough to count four; at the colon, three; at the semicolon, two; at the comma, one.

Stones grow; vegetables grow and live; animals grow, live, and feel.

Rule II. Two or more clauses in a series in the same construction, when the conjunction is omitted, should be separated by semicolons. Occasionally commas are sufficient in such cases. (See COMMA, RULE I.)

Philosophers assert that Nature is unlimited in her operations; that she has inexhaustible treasures in reserve; that knowledge will always be progressive; and that all future generations will continue to make discoveries of which we have not the slightest idea.

COLON.

Rule. A colon should be used after a word or clause introductory to a speech, a letter, a statement of particulars, or a quotation of a long sentence or a number of sentences, and before a short quotation if that is made a separate paragraph.

The colon is very little used as a mark of punctuation within the sentence, but may be so used as intermediate between the semicolon and the period.

PERIOD.

Rule I. Every sentence that is not interrogatory or exclamatory is ended with a period.

Rule II. An abbreviation, as distinguished from a contraction or a mere short form, has a period after it.

Wm. for William is an abbreviation; dep't for department is a contraction; Will for William is a short form.

Rule III. A decimal number is written with a period before it.

INTERROGATION AND EXCLAMATION.

Rule. A question should always end with an interrogation point, and a mere exclamation, or a strongly exclamatory sentence, with an exclamation mark.

PARENTHESES AND BRACKETS.

Rule. Parenthesis marks and brackets (often called square brackets) inclose words that are not necessary parts of the sentences in which they are used. Brackets are commonly restricted to the inclosing of corrections, notes, directions, editor's comment, etc.

DASH.

Rule. The dash is used to denote a sudden change in the construction, a suspension of the sense, an unexpected transition in the sentiment, a sudden interruption, or hesitation in speaking. Dashes are sometimes used instead of parentheses.

APOSTROPHE.

Rule I. When letters are omitted from within a word, use an apostrophe in place of them, also at beginning or end of a word when the omission is to be shown.

Rule II. In the possessive case singular (as man's), and in that of irregular plurals (as men's), use an apostrophe and s; in regular plural possessives (as boys'), use the apostrophe alone.

Rule III. The plural of a single letter or figure is formed by adding apostrophe and s (as o's, d's, 3's, etc.), but the apostrophe is not needed with figures (as 8s, 9s, etc.).

QUOTATION MARKS.

Rule. Quotations are marked by two inverted commas at the beginning and two apostrophes at the end. A quotation within a quotation has single marks. In British usage the use of the single inverted comma and single apostrophe for full quotations is more usual, with double marks employed within.

USE OF CAPITAL LETTERS.

Rule I. Begin every sentence with a capital.

Rule II. Begin every line of poetry with a capital.

Rule III. Begin every proper name, as of a person or a place, with a capital.

Rule IV. Begin with a capital the name of a day, month, historical period, etc.

Rule V. Use a capital in words made from the name of a person or a place, except in the few common words like china, boycott, etc., and names of substances, forces, etc., in the sciences, as gadolinite, galvanism, etc.

Rule VI. Appellatives of God should always have capitals.

Rule VII. Use a capital in every official title put before a person's name or in place of his name.

Rule VIII. Begin the name of a political party, a religious sect or denomination, etc., with a capital.

Rule IX. Begin with a capital the name of a point of the compass; and adjectives derived from them when referring to conventionally recognized divisions or sections of the United States, or other countries or parts of the world; as, the North, the South, the East, the West, Northern, Southern, etc.

Rule X. Capitalize each word in the title of a book, except the articles, prepositions, and conjunctions.

Rule XI. The pronoun I and the interjection O are always capitals.

RULES FOR SPELLING DERIVATIVES, PLURALS, ETC.

Rule 1. (a) The final consonant of a primitive word is doubled in derivatives formed by adding a termination beginning with a vowel to monosyllables and words accented on the last syllable when these words end in a single consonant (except h and x) preceded by a single vowel. EXAMPLES: clan, clannish; infer, inferred; squat, squatter, squatting. EXCEPTIONS: derivatives of gas (except gassing, gassy); cabal, cabalism; prefer, preference; refer, reference; defer, deference, and other words in which the accent of the derivative varies from that of the primitive.

(b) The final consonant is not doubled in derivatives formed by addition of a termination beginning with a vowel when the final consonant of the primitive is preceded by a diphthong, a vowel digraph (as in brier) or by another consonant, or if the accent of the primitive falls on any syllable except the last. EXAMPLES: act, acting; ebb, ebbing; daub, daubed; need, needy; travel, traveler. EXCEPTIONS: humbug, humbugged; periwig, periwigged, where a final hard g before e or i is doubled to prevent its being pronounced as j.

VARIATIONS OF USAGE. Some authors double the final consonant in derivatives of the following words, although they are not preferably so written: apparel, barrel, bevel, bias, bowel, cancel, carburet and similar words ending in uret, cavil, carol, channel, chisel, counsel, cudgel, dial, dishevel, dowel, drivel, duel, empanel, enamel, equal, funnel, gambol, gravel, grovel, handsel, hatchel, imperil, jewel, kennel, kidnap, label, laurel, level, libel, marshal, marvel, medal, metal, model, panel, parallel, parcel, pencil, peril, pistol, pommel, quarrel, ravel, revel, rival, rowel, shovel, shrivel, tawivel, tassel, tinsel, trammel, travel, tunnel, unravel, vial, victual, worship.

Rule 2. (a) Final silent "e" of primitives is generally retained in derivatives formed by adding a termination beginning with a consonant. EXAMPLES: pale, paleness; hate, hateful. EXCEPTIONS: where the final e is preceded by some vowel other than e, it is often dropped from the derivative: as, woe, woful (or woeful); due, duly; true, truly. Also wholly, nursing, wisdom, abridgment, acknowledgment, lodgment, judgment.

(b) Final silent "e" of primitives is omitted in derivatives formed by adding a termination beginning with a vowel. EXAMPLES: bride, bridal; plume, plumage, etc. EXCEPTIONS: hoeing, shoeing, toeing, dyeing, singeing, springeing, swingeing, tingeing, mileage, peaceable, noticeable, manageable, changeable, advantageous, outrageous, mortgageor.

Rule 3. (a) Final "y" preceded by a consonant of primitives becomes "i" in derivatives formed by adding any termination except one beginning with i. EXAMPLES: icy, iciest, icily; mercy, merciless; modify, modifies; pity, pitiful. EXCEPTIONS: monosyllabic adjectives usually retain the y; as, shy, shyer, shyness; sly, slyest; dry, dryly (but drier, driest), etc. Derivatives ending in -ship, -like, and those formed from baby and lady retain the y. The y is also retained in the possessive case of nouns formed by adding 's.

(b) Final "y" preceded by a vowel of primitives is retained unchanged in derivatives. EXAMPLES: gay, gayety, gayly (sometimes gaiety, gaily); play, player, plays; joy, joyful, etc. EXCEPTIONS: daily, laid, paid, said, saith, slain, staid, and their compounds; dewiness. Derivatives from words ending in -uy, as colloquies, are not exceptions, as the u may be regarded as a consonant.

Rule 4. (a) Plurals of nouns are regularly formed by adding "s." For EXCEPTIONS, see b and Rule 5 below and the individual word in the Vocabulary.

(b) Plurals are formed by adding "-es" where the singular form ends with such a sound (as that of ch in much, sh, j, s, z, or x) that the sound of s cannot unite with it in pronunciation but must form a separate syllable. If one of these letters is followed by silent e, s only is added, but the silent e with the added s forms a separate syllable.

Rule 5. Plurals of nouns ending in "y" preceded by a consonant are formed by adding -es and changing y to i: as, mercy, mercies; lady, ladies; colloquy, colloquies (u here, being pronounced as w, is considered a consonant); Mary, Maries (often Marys). S only is added if the singular ends in y preceded by a vowel; as, day, days; money, moneys; guy, guys.

PARLIAMENTARY ORDER IN PUBLIC MEETINGS.

EVERY assembly, whether casual and temporary or under formal organization, is gathered to agree upon some action. Evidently, then, to get at "the sense of the meeting," it is necessary that fair reason, good nature, and above all good order should prevail. The British Parliament first reduced the application of these principles to rules, and, although their practice has been freely modified to fit other conditions, the system of rules and precedents by which deliberative bodies govern their procedure is called parliamentary.

A brief sketch like the present will not be looked to for detailed rules governing regular assemblies, such as conventions and legislatures, which, besides the general, have also their own special rules; but, for the occasional meeting, whether large or small, an order of procedure is as necessary as tracks for a railway, if any practical result is to be arrived at.

Organization. In the case of regular bodies, each one decides upon its own members, according to the law of its creation; but members of a public meeting are those who have responded to its call. The first necessity of life being organization of forces, a meeting must be opened by being requested to "Come to order," by some one of those who have issued the call, or one recognized as identified with the occasion. He then nominates, or asks the meeting to nominate, a candidate or candidates for presiding officer, and puts to vote the names in order of their naming, unless the first one is chosen. The presiding officer is usually called the Chairman; in religious assemblies, the Moderator; and in permanent societies, the President.

Being chosen, the Chairman takes the chair, with brief thanks for the honor, and guides a similar election of a Secretary (or Clerk, or Scribe), and of a Treasurer, if needed. He then calls on the Secretary or some one familiar with the matter to read the call or state the object of the meeting, and asks, "In view of this, what is your pleasure?" This usually results in the offering and seconding of a resolution or motion expressive of action desired by one or more, and the matter is open for discussion.

Chairman. It is the Chairman's duty to preside and conduct the meeting; if it is an adjourned or a successive meeting, first to have the Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting for approval or amendment; to keep order; to recognize, and if practicable name, each member who addresses the chair [as, "Mr. Chairman," "Mr. Jones"]; to receive, present, and keep clearly in mind and in view of the meeting every motion and each amendment, not allowing debate to wander from the question; to decide points of order; to accept and put to vote appeals from his own decisions; while he has the right, not often to exercise it, of joining in debate, asking some member meanwhile to take the chair; to treat every member as his own equal, and to do all with quiet, kindly, courteous, but firm decision. He must sign any issued expression of the assembly's action, and throughout, conduct himself as the chief agent in learning and formulating the will of the meeting. While in the chair he may not join in debate, except to give information, decide points of order, etc. He may vote when voting is by ballot, but the only other vote allowed him is in case of a tie vote, when he may by a "casting vote" give his judgment and decide the question. The Chair should always be spoken of in the third person, whether by himself or by any other person; as, "The Chair has decided," etc., never "I (or you) have decided," etc.; nor should one say, "Mr. Chairman, I move you that," etc., but simply, "Mr. Chairman, I move that," etc. Any motion which concerns the Chairman personally must be put to vote by the Secretary.

Secretary. It is the Secretary's duty to keep a temporary record of the meeting for current information; to read aloud whatever the meeting or the Chairman requests; to reduce to writing and read aloud any motion or amendment so demanded; if committees are appointed, to notify the Chairman of their members, and to supply them with whatever documents the meeting has committed to their consideration; to make final records of every action or vote taken by the meeting, and either before final adjournment or at a succeeding meeting read it aloud for approval or amendment; and to keep safely all papers that have been a part of the proceedings. The Secretary may join in discussion or vote, but not to the detriment of his duties as Secretary.

Business. To bring any matter before a meeting, a member must address the Chair by title: "Mr. Chairman?" and the Chairman responds with the member's name: "Mr. Jones." Every proposition for action must be in form of a motion, as above expressed: even a resolution; as, "I move the following Resolution." Every motion must be seconded by another member, before it can be laid before the meeting. Then the Chairman may say, "It is moved and seconded that," etc.: "Are there any remarks?" or, "The question is on the adoption of the resolution; what is your pleasure?" etc. Thereupon "the question," as it has now become, is open for debate, amendment, and vote.

Motions. Every motion, and every amendment, except the very simplest, should be written. Amendments to a motion before the meeting may be by striking out words, or inserting words, or both; every amendment is debatable if the original motion is; and an amendment to an amendment is allowable, — but no further amendments. These connected motions must of course be acted on in reverse order, since each one changes the form of the one preceding. An amendment may be accepted by the mover of the motion, with consent of the meeting, but not without. If no objection is offered, consent may be assumed.

There are some motions, not directly concerned with the merits of a question but with indirect ways of checking or defeating it, which are privileged to intervene in its discussion. In naming them, these letterings will signify: a, amendable; d, debatable; na, non-amendable; nd, non-debatable. In their order of rank, they are: 1. Shall this question be considered? na, nd; — a motion which must be put, if at all, before debate, but which is rarely known in public meetings, since they are usually called to consider the very question at issue. 2. To lay on the table, na, nd; a way of putting the question aside until called up by a majority vote. 3. To commit to a committee, a, d; sometimes advisable when a meeting feels the need of more careful inquiry before action. 4. To postpone to a specified time, d, a. 5. To postpone indefinitely, d, na; which is practical defeat. 6. To demand the previous question, nd, na; an awkward expression, meaning to stop debate and call for a vote. It is serviceable when discussion has gone far enough or too far; but in public meetings is rarely heard in form, being practically put and voted by calls of "Question! Question!" when the debaters, seeing the feeling of many, subside, and the Chair puts the question — be it an amendment to an amendment, an amendment, or on original motion. 7. To amend, d, a; the motion most frequently offered, but which may be shut off by any of the foregoing.

There are also some motions privileged before any of these, such as concern the assembly rather than any question. These may intervene at any time: 1. To adjourn, nd, na; 2. To fix the time to which adjournment shall be, d, a; 3. To take a recess, d, a; 4. Questions of privilege: (a) as to the meeting, (b) as to the mover; take priority of all others (except as to adjournment) until acted upon. As such a question may even interrupt a member's speech, it is the Chairman's duty, after its statement, to decide (subject to appeal) whether the matter is one of privilege, or not.

Reconsideration. A motion to reconsider a vote taken can be made only by one who voted with the majority in the matter; its motive should be, either correction of error or willingness to further consider by reason of new light. But it is not allowable after action has been taken under the vote in question, as by commitment to a committee, or when involving an affirmative vote to adjourn, to lay on the table, or any such radical action. It is debatable when the question to be reconsidered was so.

Rescinding. When it is too late for reconsideration, a motion may be made to rescind a former action, d, a; a motion which stands as a new proposition, even though it open up afresh the original matter.

Discussion. When a motion is debatable any member may arise, address the Chair, and on being recognized address the meeting through the Chair. If several arise at once it is the Chairman's duty to recognize one, and maintain order. If any member violate the rules of courtesy, or if any undue procedure is in progress, any one may address the Chair: "Mr. Chairman, I arise to a point of order"; and it will be the Chairman's duty to interrupt the proceedings, hear and decide upon the point of order, and, if his decision is appealed from, put it to vote to the meeting. Ordinarily, no member should speak more than twice, unless called upon or to give some detail of information, and in the absence of rules the length of speeches is likely to be regulated by the temper of the audience.

Voting. All questions are decided, affirmatively or negatively, by a majority vote, except the following, — of which, however, only the last three are likely to arise in any ordinary public meeting: To amend or suspend the rules; to make a special order; to take up a question out of its proper order; to object to the consideration of a question; to extend the limits of debate; to close or limit debate; the previous question. All of these require a two-thirds vote for adoption, since they impose limitation upon the meeting itself, which a mere majority should not be able to do.

Voting may be either by the Chairman's putting the question, as, "All in favor of this will say Aye; all those opposed will say No," and deciding by the sound; or, if the result be doubtful, any member may demand or the Chair may call for a rising vote, those rising on each side in turn to be counted; or, in a regular organization, with a roll of members, the roll may be called by the Secretary, and the individual Ayes and Noes be thus ascertained. In either case, the Chairman decides (unless tellers have been appointed for counting) and announces, "The motion is carried," or "lost."

Conclusion. Finally, all concerned should bear in mind that mutual consideration and good sense will go far to insure harmony in ascertaining the will of an assembly. Those who have a point to carry can best do it by courtesy and reasonableness: the old proverb contrasting honey and vinegar in catching flies is nowhere more applicable than in a public debate. People can be led where they refuse to be driven. Light is a better guide than heat. And let those who love discussion remember that "brevity is the soul of wit."

ANTIDOTES TO COMMON POISONS.

CALL physician at once. Give the antidote in good quantity. Except in case of corrosive acids or alkalis, cause vomiting by tickling throat or by an emetic. Good EMETICS are: mustard (2 to 4 teaspoonfuls in cup of warm water); salt (2 or more teaspoonfuls in cup of water); tepid water freely; zinc sulphate (20 to 30 grains in a little water). DEMULCENTS: olive oil, gelatin, glycerin, honey, starch, white of egg.

Acids, Corrosive (as, hydrochloric or muriatic, nitric, sulphuric or oil of vitriol, etc., when strong). Magnesia, white of egg, soap; demulcents; stimulants.

Alcohol. Heat extremities; cool head; artificial respiration.

Alkalies (as ammonia, caustic potash, lye, lime, etc.). Dilute acids (lemon juice, vinegar), milk, oil; stimulants.

Antimony compounds. Tannin; demulcents.

Arsenic compounds (e. g., Paris green). Dialyzed iron (drug store); demulcents; stimulants.

Carbolic acid (phenol) and creosote. Epsom salts; demulcents; stimulants. Do not give fats or oils.

Copper compounds. Artificial heat; demulcents; stimulants. Do not give fats or oils.

Corrosive sublimate. Artificial heat; white of egg; stimulants. Do not give salt.

Cyanides. Same as for PRUSSIC ACID.

Food (fish, mushrooms, etc.). Tannin acid; castor oil; stimulants; artificial heat.

Gas, Ether, Chloral, Chloroform. Fresh air; artificial respiration; stimulants.

Lead compounds. Same as for CARBOLIC ACID.

Opium (morphine, laudanum). Tannin; stimulants; coffee; artificial respiration; keep patient awake.

Oxalic acid. Lime, magnesia; demulcents; stimulants.

Phosphorus (matches). Gum arabic mucilage; Epsom salts. Do not give fats or oils.

Prussic acid, or Hydrocyanic acid. Cold douches; ammonia inhaled; artificial respiration; stimulants.

Rat poison usually contains arsenic or phosphorus.

Strychnine, Nicotine, Brucine, etc. Tannin, charcoal, white of egg; watch circulation and respiration.

Tin compounds. Tannin, white of egg, soap, mucilage, milk.

Unknown poisons. Chalk and water, eggs beaten with milk, whisky.

UNITED STATES POSTAL RATES AND REGULATIONS.

DOMESTIC POSTAGE.

Including Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Guam, Tutuila, the Canal Zone, and Shanghai, China.

 See Notes at foot of page.

First-class Matter. 1. First-class proper: Written matter, sealed or unsealed,^{1 2} and all matter sealed or otherwise closed against inspection,³ 2 cents an ounce or fraction thereof. Must have at least 2 cents prepaid, except letters from U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines. Weight limit, 4 pounds unless fully prepaid. 2. Postal cards, 1 cent each. 3. Drop letters, where there is no free delivery, 1 cent an ounce or fraction thereof.

Second-class Matter. Newspapers and other periodicals, conforming to certain regulations: for publishers and news agents only, 1 cent a pound; for the general public, 1 cent for 4 ounces or fraction thereof. Weight limit, 4 pounds. Postage must be fully prepaid.

Third-class Matter. Printed matter not included in second class, wrapped to permit inspection.^{1 2 4} Includes books, circulars, music, engravings, etc., 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof. Postage must be fully prepaid. Weight limit, except for single books, 4 pounds.

Fourth-class Matter (merchandise). All mailable matter not included in above classes,^{1 4} wrapped to permit inspection.³ Includes blank books, playing cards, electrotypes, flowers, general merchandise, etc. 1 cent an ounce or fraction thereof. Postage must be fully prepaid. Weight limit, 4 pounds.

Unmailable. Poisons, explosives, inflammables, live animals (except bees), substances that are ill-smelling or liable to injure postal employes, immoral matter, and all matter not complying with above regulations as to weight, prepayment, etc., or insufficiently addressed.

Immediate delivery (within certain hours and distances) is secured for any piece of mail matter at any office by attaching a special 10-cent stamp or ten cents' worth of ordinary stamps, with the words "Special Delivery" written on the envelope in addition to regular postage.

Registration of any letter or package costs 8 cents in addition to regular postage.

Forwarding. First-class matter is forwarded and returned without extra charge; on that of other classes postage must be paid for each journey.

Withdrawing Mail. Matter once mailed can be withdrawn if sender can prove identity.

Mixed Classes. Matter of different classes in the same package goes at the highest rate chargeable for any portion.

Permissible Additions to Original Matter. The words "personal" or "to be called for," and other directions as to delivery, and requests for forwarding or return upon prepayment of new postage, are permissible as part of the address on second, third, or fourth-class matter.

Books of Postage Stamps. One and two cent postage stamps bound in book form are on sale at post-offices at an advance of 1 cent per book over the postage value.

International Reply-Coupons are sold at 6 cents each, for use in sending abroad for return postage. Reply-coupons issued by other countries are redeemable at United States post-offices in postage stamps to the value of 5 cents for each reply-coupon.

Postal Money Orders. Money can be sent without danger of loss at low rates to all parts of the United States and its possessions as well as to foreign countries by means of Postal Money Orders.

¹ Writing such as name and address of sender, simple dedication in a book, etc., is allowed on third and fourth-class matter.

² MS. accompanied by printed proof may be sent third-class, but ordinary typewritten matter, and also that printed on a mimeograph, hektograph, etc. (unless 20 or more copies are sent), belong to first-class.

³ Certain proprietary articles, as pills, tobacco, etc., are allowed to go sealed in fourth-class.

FOREIGN POSTAGE.

1. Sealed packages evidently not letters are unmailable.
2. Letters to Cuba not prepaid will be transmitted and deficiency collected of addressee.
3. For Canada and Mexico, commercial papers and trade samples take Postal Union rates (see below).
4. Merchandise not classed as samples may be sent to Mexico by parcel post.
5. Seeds and plants for Canada must pay 1 cent an ounce.

Other Countries. Postal Union rates hold, with unimportant exceptions, and even in these cases the mail will be transmitted and any additional charge collected.

Postal Union Rates.

1. Letters, 5 cents for the first ounce or fraction thereof. 3 cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof.
2. Post cards, 2 cents each.
3. Printed matter (including periodicals), 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof.
4. Commercial or business papers, 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, with a minimum charge of 5 cents.
5. Samples of merchandise, 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, with a minimum of 2 cents.

Unmailable. Same as domestic, and also, to certain countries, such articles as coins, jewelry, tobacco, etc., about which the local postmaster should be consulted. Articles liable to duty will generally be transmitted and charges collected at destination.

Registration costs 8 cents additional, as for domestic mail.

Prepayment. Ordinary letters for any foreign country (except Canada, Mexico, or the City of Shanghai, China) will be forwarded even if no postage is paid. All other matter must be prepaid at least partially.

Parcel post. In operation with the principal countries of Europe, most of the Central and South American Republics, Australia, New Zealand, Hong Kong, and Japan. Inquire of postmaster. Postage must be fully prepaid. Rate, 12 cents a pound or fraction thereof.

STANDARD TIME.

In 1883 the railroads of the United States and Canada adopted the present system of standard time. It comprises five standards: Intercolonial, or Brown; Eastern, or Red; Central, or Blue; Mountain, or Green; and Pacific, or Yellow. These are, respectively, the mean times of the 60th, 75th, 90th, 105th, and 120th meridians west of Greenwich, and consequently differ by intervals of exactly one hour. Changes from one standard to another are made at prominent stations, as at Detroit, Pittsburg, Wheeling, and Augusta, from eastern to central time and vice versa. Intercolonial time is used by Halifax and a few adjacent cities, but the railroads have found it more convenient to extend the eastern standard to that region, leaving only four kinds of railroad time.

RELATIVE TIME OF DIFFERENT CITIES.

When it is noon at Washington, D. C., it is, by solar time, 12.12 P. M. at New York; 12.24 P. M. at Boston; 12.54 P. M. at Halifax; 4.31 P. M. at Lisbon; 5.08 P. M. at London; 5.17 P. M. at Paris; 5.58 P. M. at Rome; 6.02 P. M. at Berlin; 7.13 P. M. at Cairo; 10.00 P. M. at Bombay; 11.01 P. M. at Calcutta; 12.41 A. M. at Canton; 12.46 A. M. at Hongkong; 1.12 A. M. at Manila; 2.26 A. M. at Yokohama; 2.48 A. M. at Melbourne; 6.37 A. M. at Honolulu; 8.58 A. M. at San Francisco; 9.40 A. M. at Salt Lake City; 10.08 A. M. at Denver; 10.44 A. M. at Omaha; 11.07 A. M. at St. Louis; 11.17 A. M. at Chicago; 11.30 A. M. at Cincinnati; 11.38 A. M. at Havana; 11.41 A. M. at Cleveland; 11.50 A. M. at Panama; 11.52 A. M. at Buffalo.

INFORMATION AS TO PATENTS.

AS IN EFFECT JULY 1, 1909.

I. What is a Patent ?

A patent, like a copyright, is a document putting into legal effect this provision of the Constitution of the United States: "The Congress shall have power . . . to promote the progress of Science and Useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive right to their respective Writings and Discoveries." It is a document issued by the Government, granting to an inventor or discoverer for a term of years the exclusive right to make, use, and sell his invention in United States territory. The word is also used to denote the right so granted.

II. By Whom and for What may it be Secured ?

Any person (citizen of the United States or alien) who has invented or discovered any new and useful art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter (as of chemicals or drugs), or any new and useful improvement thereof, not known or used by others in this country before his invention or discovery thereof, and not patented or described in any printed publication in this or any foreign country before his invention or discovery or more than two years before his application for a patent, may obtain a patent therefor. This applies also to any new, original, and ornamental Designs for an article of manufacture (as, of watch cases) not known or used in this country and not patented or described in public print anywhere before the invention of it, or for more than two years before the application for a patent.

But even a foreign patent does not debar a United States patent, unless the foreign application was filed more than twelve months—in the case of Designs, more than four months—prior to the filing of the application in this country. This liberal treatment of inventors, together with the small fees demanded, in comparison with those in other lands, have so encouraged ingenuity that America surpasses all other countries in advancement in the useful arts.

III. How, and at What Cost, may it be Secured ?

Applications for letters patent must be made to the Commissioner of Patents, Washington, D. C., and must be signed by the inventor, if alive; if he is dead, by his executor; if insane, by his legal administrator. The application comprises (1) A Petition: a, requesting patent; b, giving name, residence, and post-office address of petitioner; c, designating the invention or discovery by a title; d, referring to the specification for full description; and e, applicant's signature. (2) Whenever the nature of the case permits, a Drawing or drawings of the invention. Models need not be furnished, nor, in case of compositions of matter, Specimens of the composition and of its ingredients, unless upon examination the Commissioner of Patents finds them necessary, and requires them to be sent later. Engraved and printed copies of all drawings are made by the Patent Office for its records and publications, and may be had upon application, at regular fixed rates. (3) A Specification, giving: a, name and residence of applicant and title of invention; b, general statement of object and nature of invention; c, brief description of drawings or model; d, detailed description of invention, exact enough to enable any one skilled in the matters to which it relates to make, construct, compound, and use the same, with statement of distinction from other similar inventions; e, claim or claims of originality; f, signature of inventor, executor, or administrator, with two witnesses. (4) An Oath to the inventor's belief in his own originality as to the matter, and in its fulfilling all the prescribed conditions as to prior invention, use, patenting, etc. (5) The first fee, of fifteen dollars ($15).

After receipt of the application, the Patent Office examines into its merits. If it appears not to conflict or interfere with former patents along the same line, it is admitted; if it does so interfere, it is denied; and in either case notice is sent to the applicant, with reasons if it is rejected. Appeals and renewed applications are allowed, under conditions to be learned from the Office.

Every patent will bear date as of a day not later than six months from the time the application was passed and allowed by the Office on examination and notice thereof mailed to the applicant, if within that period the final fee of twenty dollars ($20) be paid to the Commissioner; otherwise, the patent will be withheld.

Every patent contains a short title of the invention or discovery, and a grant to the patentee, his heirs and assigns, for the term of seventeen (17) years, of the exclusive right to make, use, and vend the thing patented throughout the United States and the Territories thereof. The patents for Designs are for the term of three years and six months (final fee, $10), or seven years ($15), or fourteen years ($30). The patent stands, whether the invention is put into practical operation or not; but it is not renewable; the first term is the whole.

IV. Caveats.

A Caveat is a notice given to the Patent Office of the caveator's claim as inventor of something for which he desires further time to mature or complete it. The Patent Office accepts and files in its confidential archives such a caveat on the payment of ten dollars ($10), and it operates to protect the caveator against the granting of a patent to any other claimant without notice to the caveator for the term of one year. It may be renewed year by year upon written request and payment of the same fee each year.

Unlike patents (which are letters open to the public) the caveat is kept in secrecy, even when not renewed. It need not be as precise as an application for a patent, but should be clear enough to enable the Office to judge whether a subsequent application by another person is likely to be an interference with the principle or invention claimed, in which case notice of the new application is sent to the caveator, who may appear in opposition.

V. Correctness.

Since every communication with the Patent Office must be in writing or printing with permanent ink, to secure unquestionable records for the infinite variety of matters discussed, it is evident that all statements, definitions, drawings, models, etc., should be precisely truthful and exact. Intentional false statements are punished; unintentional errors may be corrected, but always at the expense of money and important time. An applicant may prosecute his own case with the Patent Office; but, since the value of patents depends largely upon the skillful preparation of the specifications and claims, it is always advisable to employ an attorney who is familiar with such matters. It saves money and time. The pamphlet, "Rules of Practice in the United States Patent Office" may be had on application, and gives detailed instructions, models of forms, fees for various services, legal conditions, etc. It may be well for an applicant to have this; but to act on it without skilled advice is unwise.

VI. Miscellaneous.

A patent is property, although not subject to taxation. It may be assigned, mortgaged, sold, or given away, in legal form; and this in toto, or for limited terms of time or special territory, under specific license for operation, or in any other way desired; but every such assignment, to be valid, and protected by the law, must be recorded at the Patent Office within three months from the date, or it will be void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration without notice.

Joint inventors are entitled to a joint patent: neither of them alone can obtain a patent for a joint invention. If one man furnishes the invention and another the capital, they may obtain a joint patent, or the patent may issue to the capitalist, but only on the request of the inventor, and under his assignment in whole or in part, which shall have been recorded in the Office not later than the date of the payment of the final fee — or, if later, then with exact reference to the date, serial number, etc., of the original application. It is the design of the law to protect Inventors in enjoyment of the results of their own ingenuity as to things not formerly available to the public. But after seventeen years the benefits of their inventions are open to the public; and this serves as a stimulus to further improvements on their earlier invention, which in their turn are patentable. Thus private interest and public benefit work together for the common advancement.

INFORMATION AS TO COPYRIGHT.

ACT GOING INTO EFFECT JULY 1, 1909.

I. What is Copyright?

Copyright is the legally conferred right to copy — that is, to print, reprint, publish, copy, and sell — one's own literary or artistic work, exclusively of all other persons.

It applies to (a) Books (including composite and cyclopedic works); (b) Periodicals and newspapers; (c) Lectures, sermons, and addresses; (d) Dramatic, or Dramatico-musical compositions; (e) Maps; (f) Works of art, or models or designs for them; (g) Reproductions of a work of art; (h) Drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character; (i) Photographs; (j) Prints and pictorial illustrations: and it protects also translations of such copyrighted works, dramatization as of a novel, novelization as of a drama, arrangements or adaptations of musical works, reproductions of works of art, and completion of copyrighted artistic designs. It also covers public delivery or performance or exhibition of any of such works, in any way, and the law provides for specific royalties to be paid for the mechanical reproduction of musical works as manufactured. Necessarily, it provides also for injunctions, assessment of legal damages in case of the infringement of rights given by the law, etc.

The conditions admitting such a work to copyright are that: In case of a book or periodical, the same shall be printed in the United States from type set, or plates made from type set, in the United States, or from process-reproduction plates made in the United States; it shall also be bound in this country. The same condition applies to illustrations, except as to reproductions of scientific or artistic originals located in a foreign country. Books for the blind, those in foreign languages, and those in English seeking preliminary protection under the Act, are excepted as to this manufacturing condition.

II. How Long does it stand?

The first term of the copyright is twenty-eight years. At the end of that time it expires, unless, within one year prior to the date limit, due application is made for its renewal, in which case it is renewed for twenty-eight years further, — fifty-six years, in all.

III. Who may Secure it?

Any citizen of the United States who is the author, or (as assignee of the author) the proprietor, of any such work as above noted, or, in case of a work produced for hire, the employer, may have it copyrighted; also, any alien author or proprietor when domiciled within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work; or any citizen or subject of a foreign government which grants to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on the same basis as to its own citizens, or is a party to an international copyright agreement into which the United States may be admitted.

Renewal for the second term may be secured by the author if living; or by the widow, widower, or children of the author if they be living; or by his executor, or, in the absence of a will, by his next of kin. This privilege is also extended to the proprietor of a composite work (as a cyclopedic or dictionary) who holds the original copyright.

IV. How may it be Secured?

The simplest way is to write to the Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., asking for the regularly prepared blanks to be filled by the applicant. These are sent gratis, and need only to be followed with care. It is well to know beforehand that a printed copy of the title of the work, or a description of it if a work of art, a model or design, should be mailed to the Librarian of Congress with the form applying for copyright. Type-written matter will be accepted as "printed."

V. What will it Cost?

The fee for registration of a copyright in Washington is one dollar ($1.00); this includes a certificate. The fee for photographs, not including a certificate, is 50 cents; a certificate requires 50 cents more. There are various sums demanded for different services — as, recording and certifying an assignment, extension or renewal, search for recorded facts, etc. — but for such information it will be well to write to the Copyright Office, Washington, D. C., for a copy of the statute, which is very clear and explicit.

VI. Notice of Copyright.

Every copyrighted work shall bear a notice of the fact of copyright, consisting of the word "Copyright" or the abbreviation "Copr." with the name of the proprietor (if an assignee of the original proprietor, the assignment having been duly recorded, the assignee's name is permitted); and if it be a printed literary, musical, or dramatic work, the notice shall include also the year in which the copyright was secured. In the case of classes (e) to (j) (as above) the notice may consist of the letter C enclosed in a circle, (C), with the initials, monogram, mark, or symbol of the proprietor, provided that his name shall appear on some part of the work. Without such notice, protection is not secured. If a printed publication, notice must be on the title-page or on the page immediately following; one notice of copyright in each volume of a work or in each number of a periodical or newspaper will suffice. In the case of publications already under copyright before July 1, 1909, the forms of notice previously authorized and in use may be retained.

VII. Completion of Copyright.

After copyright has been secured by publication of the work with due notice thereof, as above, there must be deposited in the Copyright Office, or in the mail addressed to the Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C., two complete copies of the best edition then published; or, if the work is not published for sale, one copy, print, or other identifying reproduction. Without this, copyright is not complete, and no action for infringement can be maintained.

No limit is set for time of publication after obtaining copyright; but "date of publication" means the earliest date when copies of the first authorized edition were placed on sale, sold, or publicly distributed by the proprietor.

VIII. Ad Interim Protection.

A book in English, published abroad, may be protected under an ad interim copyright for thirty days, after being deposited in the Copyright Office (within thirty days of its publication abroad) with a request for reservation of copyright and statement of the name and nationality of author, of proprietor, and of date of original publication. Any authorized republication of it in the United States within the ad interim thirty days may be regularly copyrighted in due form.

IX. False Statements.

False notices of copyright, or false statements or affidavits as to United States manufacture or other conditions demanded by the law, are punishable with fines.

X. Miscellaneous.

A copyright is property, and may be sold, assigned, mortgaged, or bequeathed by will. Assignments made in foreign countries must be acknowledged before a United States consular officer or secretary of legation authorized by law for notarial acts.

The above statements cover all ordinary cases. For special conditions, infringements, importations, etc., knowledge should be sought in the law itself.

The copyright law does not apply to patents, trade-marks, names of associations or companies, labels or illustrations for manufactures, or to anything other than the classes named under section I., above. For such other matters information should be sought of the Commissioners of Patents, Washington, D. C.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1776.

The various Colonies having established separate State organizations, and being represented in the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, on June 7, 1776, a Resolution was moved in Congress by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia "that these united Colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved." Seconded by John Adams of Massachusetts, the Resolution was passed July 2, and a committee, consisting of Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, Roger Sherman and Robt. R. Livingston, was appointed to draw up a Declaration embodying the same. The draft was made by Jefferson, and, with few changes, was passed on July 4. It was afterwards engrossed on parchment and signed by 56 delegates, headed by John Hancock, President of the Congress. The original document is preserved in Washington. Its text follows.

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these, are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed: that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having, in direct object, the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world:

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the Legislature; a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the danger of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined, with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation.

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us :

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment, for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States :

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world :

For imposing taxes on us without our consent :
For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury :

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses :

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies :

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering, fundamentally, the powers of our governments :

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms ; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts made by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connection and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace, friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority of the good people of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States ; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is, and ought to be, totally dissolved ; and that, as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And, for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

The original Articles of Confederation which united the thirteen States from 1779 to 1789 were found to be too loose and too indefinite, giving the central Government—the Congress—very little power to act for the interests common to all. Therefore a Convention was assembled in Philadelphia to formulate a Federal Government to which should be granted specific powers and duties in the common interest, all powers not granted to remain with the several States; yet all State legislation was to conform to the general Constitution, which should be the supreme law of the Union.

The Convention met May 14, 1787, with George Washington as its President, and adjourned Sept. 17, 1789, having harmonized the conflicting State interests, and completed the Constitution. Within two years all the States had ratified it. With its several amendments passed later, it stands as the most wonderful and successful document of government ever yet framed.

THE CONSTITUTION.

WE, THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

SEC. 1. All Legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives.

SEC. 2. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States, and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislature.

No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other persons.* The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence

* See XIVth amendment, Sec. 2.

Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

When vacancies happen in the representation from any State, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

SEC. 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided, as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first-class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second-class, at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third-class, at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any State, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

The Vice President of the United States shall also be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.

The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments; when sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief-Justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit, under the United States; but the party convicted shall, nevertheless, be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

Sec. 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time, by law, make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Sec. 5. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties, as each House may provide.

Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either House, on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Sec. 6. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall, in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House they shall not be questioned in any other place.

No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time; and no person, holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.

Sec. 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that House it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each House, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sunday excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Sec. 8. The Congress shall have power:

To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States; to borrow money on the credit of the United States; to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several States and with the Indian tribes; to establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States; to coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures; to provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States; to establish post-offices and post-roads; to promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times, to authors and inventors, the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries; to constitute tribunals inferior to the Supreme Court; to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the law of nations; to declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water; to raise and support armies; but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years; to provide and maintain a navy; to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces; to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions; to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia, according to the discipline prescribed by Congress; to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States, and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and other needful buildings; and to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

SEC. 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight; but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State. No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another, nor shall vessels bound to or from one State be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law, and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States; and no person holding any office of profit or trust under them, shall without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince or foreign state.

SEC. 10. No State shall enter into any treaty, alliance or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contract or grant any title of nobility.

No State shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws; and the net produce of all duties and imposts laid by any State on imports or exports shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress. No State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another State, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

SEC. 1. The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of Electors, equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no Senator or Representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an Elector.*

The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No person, except a natural born citizen or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm), that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

SEC. 2. The President shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several States when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

Sec. 3. He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may on extraordinary occasions convene both Houses, or either of them, and in cases of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Sec. 4. The President, Vice President and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.

Sec. 1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the Supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Sec. 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States, between a State and citizens of another State, between citizens of different States, between citizens of the same State claiming lands under grants of different States, and between a State, or the citizens thereof, and foreign States, citizens or subjects.

In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a State shall be a party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

Sec. 3. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture except during the life of the person attainted.

ARTICLE IV.

Sec. 1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may, by general laws, prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Sec. 2. The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States.

A person charged in any State with treason, felony or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another State, shall, on demand of the Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

No person held to service or labor in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

Sec. 3. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress.

The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Sec. 4. The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and on application of the legislature, or of the Executive (when the legislature cannot be convened), against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; Provided, that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

ARTICLE VI.

All debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of this Constitution shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution as under the Confederation.

This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

The ratification of the Conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

Done in Convention, by the unanimous consent of the States present, the seventeenth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and of the independence of the United States of America the twelfth.

AMENDMENTS.

Articles in addition to and amendment of the Constitution of the United States of America, proposed by Congress, and ratified by the legislatures of the several States pursuant to the fifth article of the original Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II.

A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III.

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb, nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself; nor be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI.

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

ARTICLE VII.

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII.

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX.

The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X.

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people. [Amendments I to X were ratified by December 15, 1791.]

ARTICLE XI.

The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another State, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign State. [Ratified January 8, 1798.]

ARTICLE XII.

The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by ballot for President and Vice President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice President, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice President, and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President the votes shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President, whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President. The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice President shall be the Vice President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list the Senate shall choose the Vice President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice President of the United States. [Ratified September 25, 1804.]

ARTICLE XIII.

SEC. 1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

SEC. 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation. [Ratified December 18, 1865.]

ARTICLE XIV.

SEC. 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

SEC. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of Electors for President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of the representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a Senator, or Representative in Congress, or Elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of a State legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States, nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article. [July 28, 1868.]

ARTICLE XV.

SEC. 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

SEC. 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation. [Ratified March 30, 1870.]

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING.

Principles of amended spelling, based on Noah Webster's original work, have gradually simplified much of the orthography of certain English words, — as by the dropping of u from such words as honour, labour, etc., by using final -er instead of -re in such words as centre, theatre, etc. For more than twenty-five years past the Philological Societies of England and America have been active in advancing the movement, recommending further changes enlarging its scope, yet stopping short of so "simplifying" a word as to destroy its identity and the indications of its origin.

The Simplified Spelling Board, an association in New York, financed by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, has recently gone further, aiming to reduce the spelling of English more nearly to a phonetic basis. It has issued sundry circulars, giving rules for simplification, and several lists of words simplified accordingly. The first list, known as "The Three Hundred Words," was published March 21, 1906, and others have followed to the number (up to March 6, 1909) of about 3,300, — that is, in round numbers, 1,100 separate words simplified in the root, and 2,200 inflected forms (as preterites, etc., ending in -ed simplified to -d or -t). On Aug. 24, 1906, President Roosevelt ordered that the simplified spelling of "The Three Hundred Words" be used by the Government Printing Office in his official documents; but on the following Dec. 13, owing to public and Congressional opposition, he withdrew the order.

It seems unnecessary to give these extended "alfabetic lists," but below are given the Board's condensed form of the "rules under which the simplifications are group't" — the word rule here meaning the Board's "recommendation that applies to a number of words having the same irregularity of spelling." The word "RULE" is printed in capitals when the recommendation applies to all words containing the letters named. "Ex." precedes examples, making clear the application.

Several hundred of the simplifications recommended have long been in common use, especially in America under Webster's influence; some others seem to be growing in popular favor; others seem to be considered objectionable or unfeasible, either from their unfamiliar look or because they obscure the etymology of the words.

RULES FOR SIMPLIFICATION.

1. æ, œ or e, not final. RULE: Choose e. Ex.: Anesthetic, chimera, era, esthetic, ether, mediæval, paleontology, etc.
2. -bt, with b silent. RULE: Omit b. Ex.: Det, dettor, dout, indetted, redout, redouted, redoutable.
3. ea pronounced as short e. RULE: Drop a. Ex.: Hed, spred, sted, tred, thret, helth, welth, dremt, ment, plesant, etc.
4. ea pronounced as â, before r. RULE: Drop e. Harken, hart, harth.
