Technical and Bibliographic Notes/Notes techniques et bibliographiques

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.

L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Izaak Walton Killam Memorial Library
Dalhousie University

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Izaak Walton Killam Memorial Library
Dalhousie University

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

MORNING AND EVENING PLANETS.

MERCURY, the least of the Six Old Planets is but seldom seen by the naked eye and is not, even under favourable circumstances, visible more than two hours before the rising, or after the setting of the Sun, but when seen, it appears like a red star of the first magnitude, viz.—Artares or Arcturus—The following will be the most favourable opportunities for seeing this planet in Nova Scotia in 1842—

Feb'y. 9 to 21, in the evening after Sunset, bearing W. by S.
 May 24 to June 6, " " " W. N. W.
 July 22 to 31, in the morning, before Sunrise bearing E. by N.
 Nov. 9 to 30, " " " E. S. E.

For the conjunction of this and the other planets see Calendar pages.

VENUS will be visible in the morning, in the East, before Sunrise, until February 16, the day of her Superior Conjunction, then in the Evening until her Inferior Conjunction on the 18th December, then in the morning she will be most brilliant as Evening star about the middle of November at which time she may be seen without much difficulty by the naked eye even amidst the brightest sunshine.

MARS will be visible in the Evening in the West, after Sunset until his conjunction on the 27th of June, and afterwards in the East, in the morning, before sunrise—Throughout the year his distance from the Earth will be very great, and he will therefore shine with but little of his splendour when in opposition.

The four small planets, VESTA, JUNO, CERES, and PALLAS, are seldom if ever, seen by the naked eye, even when in opposition, or nearest to the Earth.

JUPITER will be visible in the morning in the East, for some months, gradually rising earlier and earlier, until his opposition on the 10th of July, when he rises as the sun sets—after which he will set in the West longer and longer before the sun rises—This planet is always easily distinguished by his beautiful white light, which though inferior to that of Venus, is, by far, more brilliant than that of any other planet, or star.

SATURN will be very near Jupiter the whole year, and on the 25th of January will be only half a degree to the North of him—and afterwards a little to the West. It consequently will be easily distinguished.

URANUS or HERSCHEL will be in conjunction on the 15th of March, and in opposition on the 19th of September, but is seldom noticed by the naked eye.

ECLIPSES IN 1842.

There will this year happen Five Eclipses—three of the Sun, and two of the Moon, but not one of them will be visible in Nova-Scotia, either wholly or in part—they will take place as follows:

I. Tuesday, January 11th, an annular eclipse of the Sun, visible in very high Southern latitudes, and partially at the Capes of Good Hope and Horn.

II. Wednesday, January 26th, a partial eclipse of the Moon, visible in Europe, Asia, and part of Africa.

III. Friday, July 8th, a total eclipse of the Sun, very large throughout Europe, Asia, and the North of Africa, and central in part of Portugal, Spain, South of France, North of Italy, Austria, Poland, European and Asiatic Russia, China and the North Pacific. It will be total at St. Ubes, Madrid, Toledo, Sarragossa, Montpellier, Marseilles, Nice, Turin, Milan, Vienna, Pressburg, Cracow, &c.

IV. Thursday, July 21st, a partial eclipse of the Moon, visible in the Western part of North America, in the Pacific Ocean, &c.

V. Saturday, December 31st, an Annular eclipse of the Sun, visible in the South Pacific Ocean, and throughout South America, in about the middle of which it will be central.

* * It will be particularly noticed that all the calculations in this Almanack have been adapted to mean solar time; a mode of computation which has recently come into very general use, and which will probably soon entirely supersede the old mode of reckoning, as a clock regulated to apparent solar time, must, in consequence of the inequality of the solar days, be frequently adjusted. To those persons, however, who may prefer to use apparent time the calculations will be equally useful, as mean is easily converted into apparent time by subtracting the quantity in the sixth column of the left hand calendar pages, when the Sun is slow of clock, and adding it when fast of clock.—Thus, on 1st February the Sun rises in mean time at 7h. 19m. and sets at 5h. 9m. from which (if we subtract 14m. the quantity by which the Sun is that day too slow,) we obtain 7h. 5m. and 4h. 55m. the apparent time.

- Column, 1st and 2d, contain the days of the month and of the week.
 3d and 4th The rising and setting in mean time of the highest point, or of the upper limb of the sun, corrected for refraction.
 5th. Days length in hours and minutes.
 6th. The Equation of Time (or quantity by which the Sun is slow or fast of the clock), at noon, apparent time (not mean) at Greenwich, or at a quarter before eight in the morning at Halifax.
 7th. The Sun's declination, for the same as the Equation, 6th column.
 8th. The rising or setting of the Moon. The setting being given from the New Moon to Full, and her rising from Full to New Moon.
 9th. The Place of the Moon in the Ecliptic.
 10th. The time of the Moon's southing, or passing the meridian.
 11th. Days increase or decrease in hours and minutes.

The top of the columns of each month shows the moon's phases, or the times of new and full moon, and of the first and last quarters, or two quadratures with the sun.

The Farmer's Calendar is placed at the foot of the columns of each month.

1. Contains the days of the month.
2. Sundays, Phenomena, Anniversaries, &c.
3. Time of High Water at Halifax.
4. Annapolis.
5. Charlotte Town, P. E. Island.
6. Windsor, and at St. John. N. B.

of that tide which immediately precedes the southing of the Moon. These four columns being computed on the supposition, that the time of High Water on the days of New and Full Moon, (L'establisement du port) is at Halifax, 7h. 15m.—at Annapolis, 10h. 45m.—at Charlotte Town, 10h. 15m.—and at Windsor, and St. John, N. B. 11h. 45m. The tides of January 27, February 26, March 27, August 7, September 5, October 5, and November 3, will be the highest of all this year, uninfluenced by wind, especially those about March 27, August 7, September 5, and October 5, and in like manner the tides of January 12, February 11, May 11 and 25, June 9 and 23, July 23, August 22, October 20, November 19, December 3, 18 and 31, will be very low for spring tides.

OCCULTATIONS.

The most important occultations probably visible in Nova-Scotia in 1842, are those of ARTARES, April 27th, and June 20th. That of JUPITER on November 7th, (doubtful), and those of the following Stars of the third magnitude, viz. of Eta Pleiadam on the 21st January, and Delta □. 10th June.

Last Quarter, 3rd. d. 5h. 54m. afternoon, ☾ under the horizon.
 New Moon, 11th. d. 0h. 1m. afternoon, ☾ bearing south.
 First Quarter, 12th. d. 4h. 46m. afternoon, ☾ S. S. E.

Neat Cattle form a very important part of every Farmer's live stock. In selecting them, two things are very material: First, the health and soundness of the stock from which they are purchased; and Secondly, the quality of the soil on the produce of which it is intended to feed them. Stock for the dairy or the butcher should be selected from a breed of which you know or can ascertain every particular relative to their general health and soundness, and the manner in which they have been reared, including their food, shelter, &c. Always purchase Cattle that have been fed on lands of a poorer quality than your own; but you must not too suddenly put them to the richer food, or they will be liable to several dangerous diseases. It rarely happens, however, that cattle purchased from rich lands, thrive well in poor soils; but, on the contrary, those from poorer farms do well on good land. The choice of neat cattle, therefore, for the stocking of farms, must, in a great degree, be regulated by the nature and quality of the soil intended to feed them on. Cut or Chaff your Hay, Straw, Corn tops, or blades, and even your Stalks with a StrawCutter, and you will save a great proportion which is otherwise wasted or passed through the animal without contributing to its nourishment. One bushel of chaffed Hay at a mess, given in a trough, 3 times in 24 hours, is sufficient for a Horse, Ox, or Cow. A Horse or horned beast thrives more on 15 pounds thus given, than on 24 or 25 as commonly expended.

In selecting Cows for the dairy, the following indications should be attended to. Wide horns, a thin head and neck, dew-lap large, full breast, broad back, large deep belly, the udder capacious but not too fleshy; the milch veins prominent, and the bag tending far behind; teats long and large; buttocks broad and fleshy; tail long pliable, and small in proportion to the size of the carcass, and the joints short. The keeping of Cows in such a manner as to make them give the greatest quantity of milk, and with the greatest clear profit, is an essential point of economy. Give a Cow half a bushel of turnips, carrots, or other good roots per day, during the six winter months, besides her hay, and if her summer feed be such as it should be, she will give nearly double the quantity of milk she would afford if only kept during the winter in the usual manner; and the milk will be richer and of better quality. Cows should be treated with great gentleness and soothed by mild usage, especially when young and ticklish, or when the paps are tender. A Cow never gives down her milk pleasantly to a person she dreads or dislikes. Keep no more Cows than you can keep well; one Cow well fed will produce as much milk as two indifferently treated and if the Cow be wintered badly, she will rarely recover, during the succeeding Summer, so as to become profitable to the feeder. Cows should by all means be housed in extreme weather, and particularly those which give milk, or a failure in the quantity of milk will be experienced. Wherefore, instead of keeping 20 Cows poorly fed, and but half of them Stabled, sell 10 and give the remaining ten food in amount equal to what the 20 originally had; procure constant stabling for them, and you will receive quite as much milk and butter in return as was derived from the former mode of treating twenty.

Unless the Farmer has a very diligent and industrious wife, who sees minutely to her dairy, or a most honest, diligent and careful house-keeper to do it for him, (but we would recommend all Farmer's to have a wife,) he will assuredly lose money by his dairy. The dairy maid must be up every morning at four o'clock, or she will be backward in her business. At five the Cows must be milked, and there must be milkers enough to finish by six. The same rule must be observed in the evening. After the milk is drawn from the Cow, it should be carefully strained through a linen cloth, or hair sieve into the cream dishes, which should never exceed three inches in depth, though they may be made so wide as to contain any required quantity, and which ought to be perfectly clean, sweet, and cool. The proper receptacles for milk are tin or earthen pans, not glazed nor lined with lead, or wooden trays. Cheeses should not be set to dry in the same room where your milk is set, for they communicate an acid matter to the surrounding air, which will have a tendency to make the milk sour. Churning ought to be regularly continued till the butter comes, or is formed. If the motion in summer be too quick, the butter will ferment, and become ill tasted; and in winter it will go back. Churning may be made easier by putting the bottom of the churn about one foot deep into a vessel of cold water, and continued there until the butter is made.

Above two hundred and forty years have elapsed since the introduction of the potatoe into Great Britain. During that period, it has been gradually making its way in favor of the inhabitants; but its progress for a long time, was very limited, it began, however, to be extensively cultivated about the middle of the last century; and now it is grown in every farm and Cottage garden, almost without exception. One of the chief, if not the primary agent in effecting vegetable development and maturity, is Light. Deprive a plant of that and you either paralyze the operation of its vital principle, or induce imperfect and diseased action. Hence the rows of potatoes ought to point

North and South; for, in the first place, plants so exposed command the greatest breadth and duration of light; and in the second, the Sun, at the time of his highest meridian altitude, that is, at the hour of noon, shines directly along the extent of the rows; his light is also most equally distributed upon the whole foliage as he approaches to and recedes from the meridian, the perpendicularity of growth, which is of considerable importance to the complete success of the crop, is less likely to be disturbed by this mode of arrangement, than by any other that has been heretofore employed. A fact of great importance to the growers of potatoes remains to be noticed. The out side rows, and all single rows, will be found to produce far greater crops than any of the interior rows of a plot in the garden or field. This depends upon a variety of causes, the chief of which is, the more perfect exposure of the foliage to the agency of air and light.

In light lands Buckwheat may be raised to advantage. It should not be sown till after the middle of May. One bushel is seed enough for an acre, if sown broad-cast, as is usual; but if sown in drills, less than half that quantity is sufficient. Buckwheat is harvested by mowing. After it is mown, it should be several days before it is housed. It is in no danger of the seeds falling, nor does it suffer much by wet. From its great succulency it is liable to heat in a mow, on which account it is better to put in into small stacks of five or six loads each, than either a large one, or in a barn. The most common mode of sowing Field peas is broad-cast; but the advantages of the row culture in a crop so early committed to the ground, must be obvious. In Kent, where immense quantities of peas are raised, both for gathering green and for selling ripe to the seedsmen, they are generally sown in rows from 18 inches to 3 feet asunder, according to the kind, and well cultivated between. Peas laid a foot below the surface will vegetate; but the most approved depth is 6 inches in light soil, and 4 inches in clay soil; for which reason they ought to be sown under furrow when the ploughing is delayed till spring. Of all grain, beans excepted, they are in the least danger of being buried too deep. When peas are sowed thin, the plants will lie on the ground, and perhaps rot; when they are thick, the plants will hold each other up with their tendrils, forming a continued web, and will have more benefit of the air.

Ploughing, is the most important of all agricultural operations. On the manner in which this is performed depends all the subsequent operations of tillage on the same land. It is very fashionable, and as a general rule, very correct to recommend deep ploughing. But this rule has a great many exceptions, and the cultivator who should be governed by it without regard to the nature of the soil and the proposed crops, would only labour hard to injure his land and reduce his products. Deep ploughing has been recommended by some modern writers, upon particular kinds of land, where the bottom and top were of two opposite qualities, and neither of them perfectly good, that a mixture may sometimes be very beneficial, and the experiment of going below the depth sometimes answer; but that when the top and bottom for 18 or 20 inches depth consists of the same soil, it is not believed it is ever worth while to exchange the upper part, which has been enriched for years back, for a part less rich merely because it is more fresh. On retentive soils, where the practice of loosening them to some depth by other implements is omitted, deep ploughing is however extremely necessary. Dry sandy soils, such as ought not to be ploughed in ridges, should be turned over completely, and be laid and kept level as possible. Such soils, if rendered loose, and light by cultivation, will be robbed of their fertilizing particles as well by rains as by sunshine. In other words they are liable to suffer by washing, by scorching, and by too much draining.

It is a matter of much importance to the Farmer, that he should take time by the foretop during the season for making Hay. He must drive his business instead of being driven by it. Indolence or improper management in hay time, will soon give a sorry complexion to a farmer's affairs. A day or two lost, or misemployed while the sun shines, and your grass suffers for lack of the scythe and the rake, or your grain is going back into the ground, while the sickle is resting on a peg behind the door, and its owner is asleep or gone a journey, may be the means of introducing the Sheriff on your premises to take all that remains of the crop. It is best, generally speaking, to cut your very heaviest grass first of all; and if it be lodged, or in danger of lodging, although the grass is hardly headed, and appears not to have obtained more than two thirds of its growth, you had better begin upon it. But when you have help enough, and your grass stands up well, you will do best to wait till the blossom is fully formed, and is beginning to turn brown. Clover is the most critical grass, and requires the most attention, and ought to be mown before the seed is formed that the full juice and nourishment of the plants may be retained in the hay. By the adoption of this system the hay is cut in a better season, it can be more easily secured, and is much more valuable, nor is the strength of the plant lodged in the seed, which is often lost.

The farmer who has it in his power to drive his business, instead of being driven by it, will do well to sow his winter rye some time between the middle of August and middle of Sept. If it be sowed so early, it will be less apt to winter-kill, will require less seed, the growth will be stouter, and the produce greater, other things being equal, than if the sowing was deferred till late in the Autumn. Rye is capable of being cultivated on most kinds of land, but the light sandy soils, where wheat will not thrive, are the sorts of soil on which it will, generally speaking, be found most profitable to raise this kind of produce. Rye if sowed successively every year upon the same land, both the crop and the land will be greatly improved, insomuch that some grounds, which would yield but 5 bushels to the acre at first, have in time produced a crop of 15 bushels, without the charge of manure; but this will not be the case unless the soil is naturally of a good quality, and the stubble be completely turned under, immediately after reaping. If the ground is suffered to remain after harvest without being ploughed till the stubble is dried and shrivelled so that it possesses but little substance, and the seeds of weeds have had time to ripen, the crops of grain in each succeeding year will be diminished, and the weeds will take an almost exclusive possession of the soil. Rye may be sown in the Autumn to great advantage for green fodder, for cattle and sheep, particularly in the spring. Ewes and Lamb will derive much benefit from it.

Notwithstanding their evil propensities, filthy and mischievous habits, and insatiable voracity, swine are very profitable animals to a farmer. The old fashioned thin, long-legged, long-nosed, gaunt-bodied hogs are now, hardly tolerated, and are becoming as scarce as they are ugly and unprofitable. We are but little acquainted with the different breeds of their successors, and shall not therefore assume the responsibility of recommending any particular race. The marks of a good hog are, a moderate length in proportion to the size of the body; the nose short; the cheek plump and full; neck thick and short; quarters full; carcass thick and full; hair fine and thin; with a symmetry.

adapted to the breed to which it belongs, above all, it is essential that it be of a kindly disposition to fatten early. According to the quality of pork wanted should be the number of breeding sows kept over, and there should be no other hogs on the farm, (that is, kept over winter) but the breeding sows. These, when they pig the latter end of March, should be fed in the most attentive manner, with swill and shorts. The pigs from a full grown sow will generally be twelve in number; these should be thinned down to eight, and as soon as they begin to feed freely out of the trough should be weaned, and afterwards fed regularly with green tares, clover, boiled potatoes, ground peas, corn, or any other nourishing food; turning them out every day into a small yard, where there is a shallow pond for them to lie in. Young sows will sometimes eat their own offspring, which may be prevented by washing the backs of the pigs in an infusion of aloes.

POULTRY--In order to have fine fowls, it is necessary to choose a good breed, and have a proper care taken of them. A hen-house should be large and high; and should be frequently cleaned out, or the vermin of fowls will increase greatly—but hens must not be disturbed while sitting; for if frightened, they sometimes forsake their nests. Wormwood and rue should be planted plentifully about their houses; boil some of the former, and sprinkle it about the floor, which should be of smooth earth not paved. The best age for setting a hen is from two to five years; and you should remark which hens make the best brood-ers, and keep those to laying who are giddy and careless of their young. Hens sit 20 days—convenient places should be provided for their laying, as these will be proper for sitting likewise. If the eggs of any sort are put under a hen with some of her own, observe to add her own as many days after the others as there is difference in the length of their sitting—a turkey and duck sit 30 days. Choose large clear eggs to put her upon, and such a number as she can properly cover—ten or twelve are quite enough. When some of the chickens are hatched long before the others, it may be necessary to keep them in a basket of wool till the others come forth. The day after they are hatched, give them some crumbs of white bread, and small grits soaked in milk. As soon as they have gained a little strength, feed them with curd, cheese parings cut small, boiled corn, or any soft food.

The most healthy stables are those which are open to the east, or have an eastern aspect—it is a common practice to build them too close—The stable should never be completely closed up, however cold the weather may be, although it is desirable that strong draughts of cold or damp air should be guarded against, especially in winter. It may be held as a general rule, that stables or cow houses are too close when on entering the breath is affected, or any smell of urine can be perceived. It is also very important to keep cow-houses, or cattle stables clean and well littered. Dung left in stables soon renders the air unwholesome, and is the cause of disorders. Colts are usually foaled about the beginning of Summer, and it is the custom to let them run till Michaelmas with the mare, at which time they are to be weaned. When first weaned they must be kept in a convenient house, with a low rack and manger for oats and hay; the hay must be very sweet and fine, especially at first, and a little wheat bran should be mixed with their oats, in order to keep their bodies open, and make them drink freely. When the winter is spent, they should be turned into some dry ground, where the grass is sweet and short, and where there is good water, that they may drink at pleasure. The winter after this, they may be kept in the stable, without any further care than that which is taken of other horses. But after the first year the mare foals and horse foals are not to be kept together. We hear it often lamented, that our breed of horses is bad, but, as our colts are managed, if we had any other breed, we should soon make it appear to be as mean as our own, if not worse.

A writer for "The Genesee Farmer" observes, that "the frequent abuse of our laboring animals by those who receive the benefits of their labors, and who ought in return to treat them mercifully, has often given me great pain. I have employed in the course of my business a great many men and teams, both with oxen and horses, and I never yet knew a bawling, noisy, whipping teamster, who did a great days work; nor have I scarcely known such a one who kept a fat team. The best man who ever did me any labor was a good substantial farmer; his oxen were always fat, and spry as colts; he would never hitch them to any thing which he knew they could not draw ; of course they were not discouraged ; and he hardly ever spoke to them louder than in a low tone of common conversation. He would frequently talk to them soothingly, and encourage them when he had a hard job on hand, which was often the case. After making a heavy pull he would sometimes pat them on the back, but I rarely ever knew him to strike or worry his team. He carried a slender goad with a short lash to guide them with, and a mere swing of the whip was sufficient for his purposes. I have known several such persons in my life, and I do not hesitate to say, that any person who so manages his team will get more labor at less expense, and with more ease to himself, than by the ordinary bawling, whipping method so much practised in our country.

HINTS TO YOUNG FARMERS.

Never be above your calling, nor be afraid of the frock and the apron.

Put off no business till to-morrow, which ought and can be done to day.

As soon as the Spring opens, and the frost is out of the ground put your fences in order.

Plant no more ground than you can well manure and cultivate to advantage.

Never hire a man to do a piece of work which you can do yourself.

Every day has its appropriate duties; attend to them in succession.

Keep no more stock than you can keep in order, and that of the best kind.

Never contract a debt without a reasonable probability of paying at the time agreed upon.

Remember that economy and industry are the two great pillars of the Farmer's prosperity.

Should you take any Periodical Journal, pay for it in advance.

Never carry your notes in your pocket-book, as the desk or trunk is a more appropriate place. Keep them on file, and in order, ready to be found when wanted.

Keep a place for your tools, and your tools in their places.

Instead of spending a rainy day at the dram-shop, as many do, to their ruin, repair whatever wants mending; post your books.

Drive your business, and do not permit your business to drive you.

Never trust your money in the hands of that man who will put his own to hazard.

When a debt becomes due, pay it at the time, whether your creditor wants it or not. Never ask him to "wait till next week," but pay it. Never insult him by saying, "you do not want it." Punctuality is a key to every man's chest.

Always have one of Belcher's Almanacks in the house.

By constant temperance, habitual, moderate exercise, and unaffected honesty, you will avoid the fees of the lawyer and the sheriff, gain a good report, and probably add at least ten years to your life.

When a friend calls to see you, treat him with the utmost complaisance; but if important business call your attention, politely excuse yourself and he will excuse you.

Should you think of building a house, be not in a hurry, but first have every material on the spot, and let your cellar be as large as the frame.

Keep a memorandum book; enter all notes, whether received or given; all monies received or paid out; all expenses, and all circumstances of importance.

Agent at Halifax, N. S. ALEX. G. FRASER, Esq.

Capital One Million Sterling.

This Company, established by Act of Parliament, and whose Rates will be found on the lowest scale of any offered to the public, affords the most perfect security.

The easy and ready mode for a person of moderate income to secure by such an arrangement a provision for his family, is obvious,—for instance, a man of 25 years old, may, by an annual payment of £28 16 3, for the first five years, and afterwards the full premium of £57 12 6 yearly, secure to his widow and children at his death, the payment of no less than £3000, subject only to the deduction of £144 1 3, being the amount of premium unpaid.

This Company holds out in various other respects, great inducements to the public and when such facilities are afforded, it is clearly a moral duty in every man, who is not possessed of a fortune but of an income however limited to insure his Life for a sum which may yield a comfortable provision to those who during his life have been dependant on him, or who at his death would be rendered destitute or in want.

In case of persons Insuring for the whole term of Life by the Table of Rates which allows a participation to the extent of two thirds of the profits, in preference to that of the reduced rates, their share of profits will be added to the amount of their respective Policies, or deducted from their future Premiums, at periods of not less than five and not exceeding seven years.

The high opinion entertained of this Office from the commencement of its business, March 1834, and its progressive prosperity and stability was manifest at the first General Meeting of the Proprietors of this Company, held at their Office, London, 1st July, 1841, William Plaskett, Esq. in the Chair, the persons Assured under the participating Rates with profits, had two per cent per annum appropriated to them from the dates of their Policies—applicable at their option, either as an encrease to the amounts due on their Policies when they became exigible, or in diminution of the annual premiums paid on them.
