

LISTEN TO THE TRUTH

MINNESOTA EDITORS ARE HELD ON SERIOUS LIBEL CHARGES

Editor News: "I swear to support the constitution of the United States. I pledge myself, as a Catholic citizen and a Knight of Columbus, to enlighten myself fully upon my duties as a citizen and to conscientiously perform such duties entirely in the interest of my country, and regardless of all personal consequences. I pledge myself to do all in my power to preserve the integrity and purity of the ballot and to promote obedience and respect for law and order. I promise to practice my religion openly and consistently, but without ostentation, and to so conduct myself in public affairs and in the exercise of public virtue as to reflect nothing but credit upon our Holy Church, to the end that she may flourish and our country prosper to the greater honor and glory of God."

An action for criminal libel brought by E. M. Lawless, editor of the Waterville Sentinel, against A. M. Morrison and E. G. Morrison, father and son, editors and publishers of the Mankato Morning Journal, of Mankato, Minn., was tried in Waterville, Minn., Wednesday, July 29th, 1914.

The Morrisons were prosecuted and found guilty of having committed criminal libel by having accused the plaintiff of having taken the bogus so-called "Knights of Columbus oath."

At the trial the real obligation, as given above, was testified to by Supreme Physician E. W. Buckley of St. Paul as being the obligation taken by members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

William J. McGinley, supreme secretary of the Knights of Columbus, placed a copy of the obligation in evidence, and it was made a part of the records of the trial.

The trial, which was sensational, was presided over by Judge George J. Dressel. The district attorney prosecuting the case was Francis J. Hanzel of Montgomery, Le Sueur county. The defendants were represented by Owen Morris of St. Paul.

The jury was presided over by Rev. Thomas Billings, a Methodist minister, resident of the town. A witness on behalf of the plaintiffs was Rev. H. E. Chapman, pastor of the local Congregational church. Both Dr. Buckley, who was master of the Fourth Degree when same was conferred upon Mr. Lawless, and Supreme Secretary McGinley, as official custodian of the original manuscripts and ceremonial of the Knights of Columbus, testified that no oath is taken by the members of the Knights of Columbus in any part of its ceremonial or degree work. Both testified that the pledge or obligation is as quoted above.

Needless to say, the defendants were convicted and were sentenced to thirty days in jail without option of a fine. This case is a direct refutation of the assertions of low-minded bigots who have so freely passed around the so-called Fourth Degree oath.

ARE YOU REPRESENTED?

Is the club, lodge or order of which you are an officer or member to be represented in the anniversary number of the Glendale Evening News?

You are now invited to become interested in seeing that any such club, lodge or order of which you may be a member is given space in the Evening News anniversary number, the first sections of which are now on the press.

We give the space free if you will prepare the history of the club or order to which you belong. This may be the only notice you will receive, so get busy, or forever keep quiet if perchance after the edition is out the order with which you are affiliated is not represented.

PROGRAM FOR MOONLIGHT MUSICAL

Those attending the moonlight musical to be given in the beautiful gardens of the Charles H. Toll residence, 1635 Kenneth road, tomorrow (Friday) evening, will be treated to a program of unusual excellence.

Those participating will be: Mrs. Norma Rockhold Robbins, contralto; Mrs. William Herman West, soprano; Mrs. W. W. Stone, contralto; Mr. William Herman West, baritone; Mrs. Zella Zee Dodge and Miss Bertha Jackson, readers, all of whom are prominent in their respective profession and finished artists in their line of work.

The program will commence at 8:30 o'clock and an unusually large attendance is expected.

UNIVERSAL PEACE

PASTOR SAYS PEACE WILL COME ONLY WITH CHRIST'S SECOND APPEARANCE

The following sermon was delivered by Rev. John Henry Troy of the First Baptist church of Glendale:

The universal mind is dazed by the horrors of the world's greatest war. Quietly and confidently the idol of peace has found its niche in the pantheon of humanity, and all hearts almost unconsciously rendered adoration to the great, white god of universal peace.

Events of the past month, however, have shattered man's most popular idol. Delegates to the World Peace conference, with confidence unbounded, crossed the seas in the finest ships afloat, enjoying all that peace and plenty could provide. Slowly they return, dejected and discouraged, fortunate to secure steerage on fourth-class vessels and forced to leave their baggage behind. From a Europe deluged with blood and scourged with sword and flame, they fly like wounded doves to cotes of happier shores.

The imagination is transcended by the limits of misery and woe reached in this year of our Lord, 1914. Listen to a sample editorial from one of America's most optimistic newspapers:

"Every man able to carry a gun waits for the order to go out and shoot or be shot. To millions the order has come already.

"Every energy and thought is devoted to killing.

"The seas are sown with destructive mines; the ships wait to attack and destroy each other.

"Years of science, civilization and peace end in the greatest, bloodiest, and most brutal war, as unnecessary as any that the world has known.

"Words are meaningless; description is futile. The world's higher power for destruction—civilization—transformed into a great international cut throat, that is the picture the earth presents after nineteen centuries of 'Christianity'."

A sincere editorial, a fair sample of most recent editorials, and all no doubt written with pen fed with tears thickened with blood.

Enough! The whole bloody spectacle is cause to turn the brain and set the hours to one long nightmare of skulls and ghosts and belching fire.

The suspense of standing and waiting is part of the cosmic tragedy. That brave officer who the other day sprang to the head of his men and, turning his back to the hail of bullets, shouted "Come on, my brave brothers!" was a hero in climax as he fell deep pierced by a shower of metal. It may be our lot not to suffer in dramatic climax, but in suspense, unbounded sympathy and years of heartache.

The student of prophecy is interested to know what the opinions of the popular advocates of world peace are now that the explosion of nations has demolished their temple of peace.

A few years ago there came to my desk a tract by Andrew Carnegie on "Armaments and Their Results." Mr. Carnegie is an optimist who evidently does not take much stock in the prophecies of God's word. And yet he at the time admitted, to quote his own language, that: "The naval expenditures of nations and hence the dangers of war are to be much greater in the future, and the end thereof, under present ominous conditions no one can foretell. One point, however, is clear. Neither men nor money will be wanting with any first-class power involved since for no cause, unfortunately, can the populace of every land be so easily and heavily burdened as for that of foreign war, in which all men are so prone to believe their country in the right."

The crash has come. Press reports would seem to indicate that Andy is a wise diplomat. At the beginning of hostilities he announced that England was right in her stand against Germany. Last week when war bulletins indicated great success of the German arms our peace advocate, who has made his millions out of steel armor plate, wrote as though the kaiser was perhaps not quite as black as he had been painted and that history might pronounce the German empire in the right.

Is it possible that some of our brilliant peace advocates are really interested in their own personal peace and mistake their own position and tranquility for the good of suffering humanity?

If I were a cartoonist I should draw a temple of peace with Andy and his salaried ministers of peace seated around the circling dome writing, reading and declaiming on universal peace.

WED AT HIGH NOON

BRIDE CROSSES THE CONTINENT TO MARRY THE MAN OF HER CHOICE

Simple, yet impressively beautiful, was the quiet wedding in the home of Elder and Mrs. Frances M. Burg, 1315 Milford street, which united in marriage at high noon Wednesday Miss Blanche Mae Walker of Toronto, Canada, and Mr. H. E. Scoles of Roscoe, Texas.

For the occasion the bungalow home had been transformed into a bowerland of potted plants, trailing vines and ferns, with a liberal display of pink and white asters freely intermingled, walls, mantle, piano and railings having been concealed by this glorious mass of freshness and beauty.

The bridal party entered to the strains of "Midsummer Night's Dream," softly played on the piano by Prof. N. Miller. First appeared the officiating clergy, Elder Frances M. Burg, followed close behind by his little daughter, Teresa Burg, who made a sweet little flower girl in pale blue and white. On her arm swung a golden basket filled with maiden fern and pink centered forget-me-nots.

Next came the bride in her girlishly becoming robe of white crepe de chine and shadow lace. Caught in the soft folds at the neck was a handsome amethyst brooch which the bride's mother wore as the groom's gift on her wedding day. Completing this was the customary shower of bride's roses, valley lilies and maiden-hair fern, a few of which formed a coronet about the fair bride's head.

The proud groom met his bride, who was unattended, 'neath a floral archway overhung with a horseshoe of lilies and fern, a fitting spot for such a beautiful pledge.

After the ceremony the few who had gathered as witnesses repaired to the dining-room, where a delicious collation was served at a table resplendently centered with an attractive cake and pink and white flowers.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Walker of Toronto, Canada, crossed the continent but a few days ago to marry the man of her choice, who is a medical student at Loma Linda, where he and his bride will be at home after a honeymoon through the South, which will be enjoyed until after Sept. 14th.

Many lovely gifts were received by this happy couple, who have a legion of friends, the following of whom were in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Leadworth and daughter, Prof. and Mrs. N. Miller, Mrs. George Cook, Miss Veda Smith and Mrs. F. M. Burg.

TROPICO

A very enthusiastic meeting of the ways and means committee of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon Club was held at the home of the chairman at 101 South Central avenue, on Wednesday afternoon. The ladies are planning a most unique and interesting affair to be given Saturday, Sept. 12th. The vacant space north of the city hall will be cleaned and don holiday attire, then these enterprising women, who are endeavoring to secure sufficient funds to erect a clubhouse, will take possession and sell sandwiches and hot coffee from noon until late in the afternoon, when ice cream, cake and frappe will be substituted for sandwiches and coffee. This will be one of the many weekend events to be given by the club ladies.

Tuesday, Dec. 1st, is the date the ladies of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club have decided upon to give their Christmas market and country store. This gives promise of being one of the most delightful club events to be given this year.

Mrs. James F. Roache of West Tenth street will enter the Angell hospital tomorrow to undergo a minor operation.

Mrs. W. H. Berteaux and son, Herbert Berteaux of South Brand boulevard, have returned from a two months' delightful overland trip to Santa Barbara and the Yosemite valley. Mrs. Berteaux is arranging to move to Hollywood, where Herbert will enter Hollywood high school for the ensuing year.

Harris Roake is enjoying a few days' outing at Venice preparatory to entering the Glendale Union high school on Tuesday morning.

After a residence in Tropico extending over a period of twenty years Mr. and Mrs. William B. Pratt moved from their home on Glendale avenue to their recently purchased ranch in Burbank Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stuart Ayers and son Stuart of West Park avenue are spending the week at Long Beach.

1200 MILES PER HOUR

E. L. MILLER TELLS HIS SIDE OF THE AUTO ACCIDENT AT TENTH AND CENTRAL

My trial on the speeding charge is now over—$100 fine and thirty days in jail was the heavy penalty imposed. But through the kind offices of a few friends, Judge Melrose suspended the jail sentence for one year on certain conditions. While I will never concede to myself or anyone else that I was more to blame than Mr. Marek, or will ever believe anything different than the fact that Mr. Marek violated the state traffic ordinances in cutting the corner short, and was thereby reckless and careless in his driving, which was the absolute direct cause of the accident, however public sentiment was strongly against me, and all reports much distorted, and I believe that Judge Melrose did what he conscientiously considered his duty to the public, and his sincere and fatherly talk to me has added my name to his list of many friends.

When I think about some of the evidence at the trial, it provokes a smile in spite of the seriousness. For instance, Mr. Marek testified something like this, as near as I remember, to the effect that when he was turning at Tenth street on Central my car was about 600 feet away, and before he could clear, my car struck him. Anyone knows that a car can turn into a side street from Central and clear in approximately ten feet. Now according to Marek, I traveled 600 feet while he went 10 feet, or just 60 times as fast as he was going. Therefore, if Marek was going 20 miles, I must have been going 1200 miles per hour, or if Marek was going 25 miles, I was going 1500 miles per hour. But suppose I was going 2500 miles per hour. My car would never have struck Mr. Marek's car if he had observed the traffic laws of the state by turning to the right of the center of the road and waiting for near-by approaching vehicles to pass first, as required.

Mr. Berman, as a witness, stated that he did not know whether I was going 10 miles or 100 miles per hour, as he was not familiar with speed. Mr. Ashton thought I was going fast, but he did not know how fast. Others testified on behalf of the city of Tropico, but I happened to be the only witness for myself. However, I am not complaining, though the fine is a large one, considering that 90 out of every 100 machines travel on Central avenue in excess of 15 miles per hour, the charge on which I was indicted and sentenced.

Public sentiment was rank against me. I hope some time when I am in real need of it that it will be as strongly for me. Nine newspapers reported the story of the accident. No two were alike. If one was right, the other eight must have been wrong. I don't blame the papers. They get their information mostly from the public by necessity, and when the public thus supplies the information and don't hold to the cold facts, then the newspapers are misinformed.

The story went around that if I had not traveled so fast, I would not have hit Mr. Marek. But to me it sounds like the story of a man who went to sleep on the railroad track. If the train had not come along, it would not have run over him. The train did come and it hit him because he did not use good judgment in selecting his berth. And in my case, I would not have hit Marek if he had used proper judgment and had observed the rules of traffic.

So much has been said vindictively of me that I venture to impose on the good offices of this paper to present to its readers the side of the party at whom persecution was directed, who was arrested and heavily fined, while the other party goes free and unquestioned. However, this is not a complaint, but a mere statement. I would not attempt to relate all the ghastly stories circulated about the accident that came to me, to the extent even of every person being killed or dying in agony, or maimed for life. While all these stories were possible, they were neither true nor indicative of a conservative and impartial public mind, for had each one verified the reports spread before feeding them to the next person, much anxiety and alarm to the public's nervous system would have been spared.

I take this means, also, to thank the loyal friends who know me, and stood by me, for they knew that I suffered mentally, as well as physically. In fact, if I am in any way to blame for the unfortunate affair, the punishment has been more than commensurate with the sin. I hope that those who arrayed themselves so strongly against me will some time

NOT WHOLLY BAD

THERE ARE SOME GOOD POINTS ABOUT THE PRESENT PRIMARY LAW

By Samuel Parker

Since the recent battle of the primary ballots complaints more than a few have appeared in opposition to the law, arising from its unwieldiness and tedious methods of operation, its puzzling and perplexing worrying ticket disturbing the voter who wants things easy, and finally its great expense. While some of these complaints have margin for existence, others are really no fault of the law, while those complaining the loudest oppose any law at all, desiring the old free and easy method of caucus delegates, convention and strict party columns for election or primary voting, evils some are glad we have escaped and which others would as gladly return to.

While it is true that often in human affairs conditions become unbearable, and in seeking to escape the ills we have we fly to those we know not of, it were better to move to a failure, rather than not move at all, as movement prevents stagnation, accelerated breezes purify the atmosphere. The primary law may not stand as it is, nor will the old time method of selecting candidates be again put in the saddle.

To any but a machiave party politician a growing tendency has been obvious that party lines were of little use except to create place for party men to fill, and the breaking away from party lines at both general and local elections induced the party manager to hitch up to "carry double," leaving the state and congressional positions open for party contest, while the bars were down for county aspirants in a sort of go as you please, the candidate crossing over to run by petition on the primary ticket of any party and the voter to vote for any state candidate on his party ticket, and write in a name if he found none there to suit him. This necessarily threw the entire party ticket with 50 to 100 names on it before the voter with only possible straight work on the state or party end of it, while with all the rest of it he would be more or less confused and raise the Watsons inquiry, "Where am I at," especially if he sought to vote the limit, though nothing would be lost if he did not. Had the voter been content to vote only for the candidates he personally knew he would have stamped from five to a possible dozen names. Beyond that he had to take the word of some body for the character of the candidate. I doubt if a hundred men in the county could vote for the full ticket of any party on personal acquaintance with the candidate. Had you voted for the men you knew only the election officers would have been through in half the time.

It's Great Cost
This is pure fiction. The only actual expense that the law puts on any candidate is that of getting signatures to his petition in sufficient numbers to meet the required percent of voters for that office. When this petition is filed his personal expense ends so far as the law is concerned, as the state then takes charge of printing, statement, etc. He may, if he so desires, spend hundreds or thousands, according to his fancy or his purse, but not a cent beyond that specified can be charged to the law.

It is worth something to have a hand in selecting a candidate for United States senator without straining him through an unscrupulous corporation-picked legislature, and the same is true right on down the list. Hand picked servants are likely to be better if you do the picking yourself than to turn the picking over to those ever-ready handy gentlemen who insist that they only have the skill and ability to do so.

Of this be well assured, that while the primary law may be crude and clumsy, it will not be abolished at the dictate of those that don't want any. It will be amended, for it is here to stay.

EASY
"Tell me, old man," said the perennial seeker after useless knowledge, "why is your hair gray and your beard brown?"
"Easy," answered the facetious old man. "My hair is twenty years older than my beard."—Michigan Gargoyle.

And just a few weeks ago Waterloo and Gettysburg were regarded as among the world's greatest battles!

know me better, and have occasion later to present as formidable array in my behalf. Sincerely,
EUGENE L. MILLER.

T. W. WATSON MARRIES

GLENDALE'S CITY MANAGER IS ABSENT FROM DUTIES ON HONEYMOON

City Manager Thomas W. Watson, until recently mayor of Glendale, has been struck by Cupid's dart and after obtaining a leave of absence from his strenuous duties at the city hall, he journeyed to Los Angeles early this morning in company with Rev. Bede A. Johnson of the First Methodist church, who at 8 o'clock pronounced the words that made Miss Belle E. Helm of Los Angeles Mrs. Thomas W. Watson.

This event came as a surprise to Mr. Watson's friends and relatives as he had kept the happy secret all to himself.

Rev. Johnson officiated at this happy ceremony at the bride's home, 107 Sotello street, using the ring service. It was a quiet and unostentatious affair, only the bride's mother and the groom's parents and little son being present.

The happy pair were garbed in traveling costume and immediately the ceremony was performed they stepped into their waiting car and departed on their honeymoon journey, which will include San Diego, Coronado, La Jolla and other interesting points in the South.

Mr. Watson has the esteem and respect of a larger circle of friends than usually falls to man's lot, the result of his upright life, straightforward character and business ability. Many rejoice with him on this happy occasion and will be glad to congratulate him and welcome his bride to Glendale.

Matrimony seems to have struck the city hall with tremendous force, as the assistant treasurer and the manager of the lighting department have succumbed within the past few months.

MRS. ROBBINS AT MUSICAL

The services of Mrs. Norma Rockhold Robbins have been secured for a group of songs on the program at the moonlight musical being arranged for at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Toll tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Robbins makes her introduction to the Glendale public at this affair, although she has been heard at her artistic bungalow on Lomita avenue by friends in some charming musicals given by herself and pupils.

Mrs. Robbins is one of the busy professionals in Los Angeles, being established with the University of Southern California as vocal instructor in the college of music; also having a large class of private pupils. Her three years of operatic work in Europe have given her the finesse which places her in the top rank of our local instructors in voice culture. Mrs. J. A. Robertson of Los Angeles, a talented pianist, will accompany Mrs. Robbins.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB MEETS

A splendid rehearsal and social meeting of the Mary Howard Gridley Shakespeare Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Genevieve Goss, West Fifth street, where at the conclusion of the serious session delicious ices and cakes were served by the gracious hostess.

At the usual hour the meeting adjourned to meet again next Tuesday in the home of Miss Rosemary Button, 1307 West First street.

Tuesday's meeting was not only a rehearsal for the presentation of "Julius Caesar," which is to be given at the club's first open meeting the latter part of the month, but was also a welcome home for Mrs. Charles H. Toll, a beloved member who has been enjoying an outing with her family at Lake Tahoe.

THE JOLLY OLD FOLKS' PICNIC

Will you tell everyone of the old folks you meet, and send the news to the rest, that their annual picnic will be held in Sycamore grove, Los Angeles, Saturday, October 3, 1914? This is an all-day reunion; dinner at noon; coffee free, but bring a good dinner, cup and spoon. Come early and have a happy day with your friends. This picnic is for everyone over seventy years young, but you may bring any friend to help you if needed. There will be a brief informal program after dinner. Be sure to register, giving information asked of you. Remember your picnic, each year, first Saturday in October.

TO SAN FRANCISCO

Miss Florence Brace of Santa Ana has been spending the week in Glendale with Mrs. Anna L. Smith of 1427 Riverdale drive, who left today by boat for a brief sojourn in San Francisco and vicinity.

versal peace, while beneath in subterranean depths I should depict the millions of humanity divided into races and classes, suffering, discontented, grumbling, hungry, steeped in ignorance and superstition. And upon the top of the mass of wriggling humanity I'd make that temple of peace to rock and pitch as on the back of a terrific and perpetual earthquake.

Who is that big fellow in the back seat that wants to add his testimony? Why it is Bill Taft. We shall listen with respect to his words, for though gone he is not forgotten, neither is he invisible.

"At the time when so many friends of peace have thought that we were making real progress toward the abolition of war this sudden outbreak of the greatest war in history is most discouraging. The future looks dark indeed, but we should not despair.

"God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform." Now that the war is a settled fact, we must hope that some good may come from this dreadful scourge. The armaments of Europe had been growing heavier and heavier, bankruptcy has stared many a nation in the face, conflict between races had begun to develop.

The Bible Christian is holding his ear to the ground to catch what now of hope is originating in the minds of near-sighted optimists of worldly wisdom. A month ago we were assured that a great war was virtually impossible at the present marvelous stage of the evolution of humanity.

Alfred Russell Wallace on the occasion of his ninetieth birthday shocked the world with his opinion of our boasted twentieth-century civilization. He wrote:

"I have come to the general conclusion that there has been no advance either in intellect or morals since the days of the earliest Egyptians. Everything is as bad as it possibly can be. There exists in our midst horrors and dreadful diseases never known before. Our whole social environment is rotten, full of vice and everything is bad."

We were assured that the great scientist was suffering from the ravages of senile decay. Had he been as bad a prophet as some of our advocates of peace, for his judgments there would be just cause for contempt.

And now we are told by these same prophets of the impossibility of war that the general spilling of blood will hasten the peace dream. "Three mad monarchs with brandishing torch have kindled a conflagration involving seven-eighths of Europe and Japan. Three mad monarchs have set back the hands upon the dial of civilization. Three mad monarchs lost their heads and dipped sanguinary hands in the general spilling of blood.

"Gone all of our illusions and the dreams of peace we wrought, Forgotten all the lessons that the blood-smear'd sword has taught. The grim retreat from Moscow when Napoleon's legions died, The awful field of Austerlitz and Jena's crimson tide; The gentler, nobler part of man and all that knowledge brings Are banished from the present to appease the lust of kings."

However—"Millions of men have learned to read and think since the foolish Napoleon III, led by a woman, hurried France, unprepared, into a stupid war.

"There is in Germany what is known as the Social Democratic party, numbering millions of men, intelligent and determined. "There is the big, well educated party of Germany. There is another like it in France, and another in Italy.

"Every member of each of these parties considers his life just as valuable as that of the Austrian emperor's relative."

But—were we not told but yesterday that Socialism means anarchy, mob rule, death to society, and the total eclipse of civilization? Strange conflicting judgments these. Miserable prophets are they all. May the good Lord deliver us from the conflicting opinions of men and cause us to see with understanding hearts the truth of his holy inspired word.

"A glory gilds the sacred page, Majestic like the sun; It gives a light to every age, It gives, but borrows none."

There is not a single fact in the history of the world, neither is there anything in the present status of mankind, that contradicts, or in the least degree qualifies, the Divine Plan of the ages revealed in the Holy Bible.

"The proudest works of genius shall decay, And reason's brightest lustre fade away; The sophist's art, the poet's boldest flight, Shall sink in darkness and conclude in night; But faith triumphant over time shall stand, Shall grasp the sacred volume in her hand; Back to its source the heavenly gift convey, Then in the flood of glory melt away."

One of our highly esteemed Baptist pastors of Pomona is accredited by the press with the statement that war was surely coming and that he said so weeks before the crash. It is a fact of record that for years thousands of students of prophecy have been looking for just what has come to pass.

In my book, "The Bible in Genesis," published by Premier Publishing Co. last year, on page 55, occur the following:

Christ himself assures us that wars and rumors of wars shall obtain up to the end.

"And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that ye be not troubled: for all things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

"For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines and pestilences and earthquakes in divers places." Matt. 24:6-7.

"For when they shall say peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape." I Thess. 5:3.

Is it not true that since men have been talking universal peace by arbitration, the world has been horrified by a series of wars, as unreasonably as they are bloody and financially disastrous? Man talks peace; history gives us pieces. It seems as if there will be so many pieces that no cement of arbitration will ever be able to glue them together.

The solidarity of the human family, crowned with universal peace by arbitration, is a veritable mirage upon the desert of human endeavor.

During the past weeks the press of the world has been featuring Tolstoy's vision of the war to come. The style and general outline of Tolstoy's vision is simply a paraphrase of a portion of the book of Revelations. Why not copy it first-hand from the Bible? No, that would rob man of the glory.

It is confirming to our faith, however, to see how modern poets and seers catch faint glimpses of what lies just ahead. War dispatches containing the reports of fighting between air craft over France and Germany and Belgium chronicle the fulfillment of a poetic prophecy of the late Sir Alfred Tennyson, the English poet laureate, who penned many years ago, before aeroplanes or aerial warfare were thought of the following lines in "Locksley Hall:"

"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see, Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be; Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales; Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rained a ghastly dew From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue."

Prophecy and the present condition of society point to sword and flame and famine. God is about to shake mightily the earth. The time of indignation is at hand. It will soon be the time of Jacob's trouble. The giants, Capital and Labor, have yet to battle in the arena. Romanism, sensualism, Mormonism, racial feuds, ignorance, strange cults, paganism, heathen religions—how they press and pull and tug for supremacy.

The divisions and classes of the human race are like so many heaps of dynamite over which a satanic being is every brandishing a flaming torch.

Man is a fallen being. He is by nature totally depraved. History shows that he is a murderer in every possible sense of the word. He is a homicide, a patricide, a regicide and a deicide.

When the pagan world lay on its death bed, expiring in lust and blood, God in his mercy came to earth in the person of Jesus Christ. And what did men do to him? They nailed God to the accursed tree. From a broken heart God's blood flowed through pierced side, a sufficient atonement for the sins of the world. And upon the crimson flood came the sweet breath of God's Holy Spirit to sanctify the hearts of believers.

And now behold this same fallen mass of totally depraved and demoralized humanity has so denied and grieved the blessed Holy Spirit that he is about to retire from the face of the earth.

Then shall come the Great Tribulation, such a time as has not been since the beginning nor ever shall be again, thank God! The judgments of God shall be in the earth. Amid the breaking of seals, the blasts of trumpets and the pouring out of bowls of wrath the kings and peoples of the earth shall be taught the power and dominion and sovereignty of Jesus Christ who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Then will the son of man come in the clouds of his glory. Then shall he establish his throne upon the circle of the earth. Then shall he reign in truth and righteousness. Then shall all know the Lord from the smallest to the greatest. Then shall his name be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

As the result of the provision of recent enactments by a legislature with fine scruples as to the conduct of officials outside its own membership, to the effect that they should "give all their time" to their duties, the attorney general of Massachusetts has had to pass on the difficult question as to what constitutes all the time. It might have been held that twenty-four hours in a day was the closest possible approximation to the whole time, but that would involve, with other innovations, the lodging of high officials in their marble-walled offices. From that down to the ordinary working day was the range of the legal officer's selection and he resorted to the minimum, concluding that all the time of the salaried official had no necessary difference from the whole eight hours the worker on the highway puts in.

During this period, the authority holds, the official is to have no other occupation and, so far as the state may control the matter, no other thought.

An immediate effect of the exaction of a particular day's labor from men in public place is to reduce the number of fit men who may be called to the places. A portion of one man's time is estimably worth more to the public than the whole of another's, even though he dined, supped and slumbered in the close neighborhood of his duties. And it is the man whose part-time occupation embraces the larger all-time interest who is made unavailable for the place. There is no known substitute for reliance on the faithfulness and capacity of the man in the public service. Measuring it by the hour is only to deprive it of its best possible development. The governor who rang in his time on arrival at the executive office and rang himself out at the day's end would be a spectacle of amusement, and the case of the heads of departments and commissioners being checked up like laborers is not far removed.

ty of Jesus Christ who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Then will the son of man come in the clouds of his glory. Then shall he establish his throne upon the circle of the earth. Then shall he reign in truth and righteousness. Then shall all know the Lord from the smallest to the greatest. Then shall his name be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

TIME CLOCKS FOR HIGH OFFICIALS

As the result of the provision of recent enactments by a legislature with fine scruples as to the conduct of officials outside its own membership, to the effect that they should "give all their time" to their duties, the attorney general of Massachusetts has had to pass on the difficult question as to what constitutes all the time. It might have been held that twenty-four hours in a day was the closest possible approximation to the whole time, but that would involve, with other innovations, the lodging of high officials in their marble-walled offices. From that down to the ordinary working day was the range of the legal officer's selection and he resorted to the minimum, concluding that all the time of the salaried official had no necessary difference from the whole eight hours the worker on the highway puts in.

During this period, the authority holds, the official is to have no other occupation and, so far as the state may control the matter, no other thought.

An immediate effect of the exaction of a particular day's labor from men in public place is to reduce the number of fit men who may be called to the places. A portion of one man's time is estimably worth more to the public than the whole of another's, even though he dined, supped and slumbered in the close neighborhood of his duties. And it is the man whose part-time occupation embraces the larger all-time interest who is made unavailable for the place. There is no known substitute for reliance on the faithfulness and capacity of the man in the public service. Measuring it by the hour is only to deprive it of its best possible development. The governor who rang in his time on arrival at the executive office and rang himself out at the day's end would be a spectacle of amusement, and the case of the heads of departments and commissioners being checked up like laborers is not far removed.

The chief lesson of the time-defining experiment is as to the absurdity of legislative definition of what constitutes faithfulness to an official task. Making hours is not making men, if indeed it is not the opposite thing. The final reliance for honorable and efficient public service is on the honor and efficiency of the men who undertake it, and the hours can neither establish it nor lessen it, save by keeping the right men away. If a lawmaking body were to set itself to the task of reducing all public service to perfunctoriness it would begin with making an eight-hour day for its heads. But we can see no obvious and convincing need of a new perfunctoriness in any branch of the service.

VOTE FOR Attorney FRANK L. MUHLEMAN

When the pagan world lay on its death bed, expiring in lust and blood, God in his mercy came to earth in the person of Jesus Christ. And what did men do to him? They nailed God to the accursed tree. From a broken heart God's blood flowed through pierced side, a sufficient atonement for the sins of the world. And upon the crimson flood came the sweet breath of God's Holy Spirit to sanctify the hearts of believers.

And now behold this same fallen mass of totally depraved and demoralized humanity has so denied and grieved the blessed Holy Spirit that he is about to retire from the face of the earth.

Then shall come the Great Tribulation, such a time as has not been since the beginning nor ever shall be again, thank God! The judgments of God shall be in the earth. Amid the breaking of seals, the blasts of trumpets and the pouring out of bowls of wrath the kings and peoples of the earth shall be taught the power and dominion and sovereignty of Jesus Christ who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Then will the son of man come in the clouds of his glory. Then shall he establish his throne upon the circle of the earth. Then shall he reign in truth and righteousness. Then shall all know the Lord from the smallest to the greatest. Then shall his name be called Wonderful, Counsellor

FOR COMEDY LOVERS

Tonight's bill at the Glendale theater will cater to the comedy loving audience, as the program consists of a two-reel Victor comedy, "Disenchantment," which is two thousand feet of continual laughs, while "Sharps Want a Flat" is a roaring success and guaranteed to make even the most sober forget themselves and have a laugh such as they haven't had since they were children.

The drama, while only two reels, is well taken care of in "Tollers of the Sea" and "Man, Girl and a Man." This makes a program which should appeal to all.

SAN FRANCISCO—AND THE

STATE FAIR AT SACRAMENTO

Are Both Exhibiting the

Toledo Gas Floor Furnace

So great is the demand for this furnace, that the San Francisco agent who has the contract for supplying the Heating Appliances for the Fair Buildings, took the sample furnace used by Mr. Clem Moore, State Agent, on his northern trip, and the furnace was at once taken to the heating company's display room on the fair grounds. In addition, a large number of these iron heaters are being rushed to San Francisco for their buildings.

The agent at Sacramento is demonstrating the Toledo Gas Floor Furnace at the State Fair this week. In addition to these, we have agents in Bakersfield, Stockton, Fresno, San Jose, Pasadena, etc.

The Toledo Gas Furnace is the first and original Gas Floor Furnace invented and has proven its worth in thousands of cases. It has stood the test of six years' actual service and is no longer an experiment, as it has proved all and more than has been claimed for it.

WE NOW HAVE MORE THAN 200 OF THESE CAST-IRON HEATERS IN USE IN GLENDALE AND VICINITY, ALL GIVING SATISFACTION. REMEMBER THE NAME—

Warning to the Public:

Property owners are hereby notified that a number of gas floor furnaces are being manufactured and offered for sale that are infringements of our patents. Inasmuch as the users of these infringing furnaces are infringers, as well as the manufacturers, and the premises on which the infringing furnaces are installed are good and sufficient security for the damages we have sustained, it will be our policy to institute infringement suit at our convenience against the users of such furnaces rather than against manufacturers, whose financial responsibility may be doubtful.

All liability of this kind will be avoided, however, by buying the only genuine Toledo Gas Floor Furnace, for which we hold the pioneer patent, No. 919966, issued April 29th, 1909.

WHAT WOMEN'S CLUBS CAN DO

It is not the fault of the women's clubs, nor is it the fault of the individual members of the women's clubs, as we see it, that the usefulness of these organizations is so often measured by material accomplishment. It appears to have been necessary that they should engage during recent years very largely in material enterprises in order to impress themselves adequately upon masculine thought. Masculine thought had persisted so stubbornly in regarding the club woman in so purely a social light that it became incumbent on her to prove her ability along all practical lines. As a consequence we have been reading and hearing a great deal about the club woman in municipal affairs, in street, neighborhood, park and general civic improvement; and what we have been reading and hearing has been to her credit. The masculine thought has ceased to place limitations on the scope of her useful activities. In short, men quite generally in these days seem to entertain a very wholesome regard for woman's ability in fields for which only a generation or so ago she was supposed to be wholly unfitted.

Her fitness proved along material lines, she is still, tacitly at least, excluded from participation in many of the world's intellectual activities. The areas in which she may assert herself politically are still, even in the United States, mere dots on the map. She is not yet by all accounted competent to think for herself on the larger public questions of the day. She is too often supposed to be incapable of thinking for herself on the great international questions of the hour. Speaking generally, the paramount problems of the moment are monopolized by masculine thought. Women obtain their world views sifted through the masculine thought. Women obtain their world views sifted through the masculine comprehension. We believe it would be better for ourselves, better for their brothers, better for humanity in general, if women took their impressions direct.

The women's clubs have both incentive and opportunity of an extraordinary nature at the present time for the study of world conditions. The race is approaching a period of readjustment fraught with tremendous consequences. No custom, tradition or prejudice as to sex can prevent women from viewing the situation through their own eyes. They have but to assert their natural rights in this as they have asserted them in other ways. Woman, in other words, we are certain, is competent to do her own observing, to do her own thinking, to draw her own conclusions, to devise her own remedies for conditions that have come down to this period unaffected in large part by her influence or her direction. There are age-old problems to be solved before which the masculine thought, acting alone, has balked. It is time for woman to have her share in both the responsibility and the privilege of attempting their solution. Herein, we believe, the women's clubs may, if they will, perform a mighty educational work, and can make woman a greater force than she has ever been before. Liberated, an infusion of the feminine thought must soften and refine and elevate the masculine until the barbaric impulses, periodically manifesting themselves through all the past in war and rapine, shall disappear and turmoil shall give place to tranquility.—Christian Science Monitor.

PHILLIPS FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mr. A. M. Phillips, who died suddenly Monday evening, were held Wednesday afternoon at his late home, 341 Moore avenue, at 2 o'clock. The services were private, only the family and close friends being present. Rev. Carnes of the Tropic M. E. church officiated while appropriate music was furnished by Miss Helene Morgan and Mr. Joy Goodsell.

The floral pieces, loving tributes from friends in Glendale and Tropic, were many and beautiful. Interment was in Forest Lawn cemetery.

NORTH GLENDALE

Mrs. J. W. Cousins and son, Master Kenneth, of 1501 Lorraine street, are enjoying a week's stay at Venice.

Mrs. Walter Parsonage of 829 Lincoln place is entertaining as her house guest for a fortnight Miss Phyllis Markham of San Diego.

Mrs. George P. Reuter of 930 Fairview avenue, Mrs. Chauncey Brown of North Louise street and Mrs. J. Hearnshaw of Lomita avenue, form a happy party who are planning to attend the moonlight musicale at the home of Mrs. Charles Toll on Kenneth road Friday evening.

Mrs. Elliott Cresson Muller of Fairview avenue is expected home Friday morning from the East on the 7:30 train via the Santa Fe route, to the delight of her many friends.

Word has been received from Mrs. Robert H. Wilson of 1020 Stocker street, who is enjoying an extended visit with relatives in San Francisco that she is at present in Oakland, where she will remain at least a month as the guest of her mother.

Mrs. Joseph L. Stagner of 904 Dryden street entertained guests from Los Angeles last Sunday.

F. W. Pigg, building contractor of Randolph street, is erecting a beautiful bungalow on North Brand boulevard near Stocker street for Mrs. M. Murphy of Akron, Ohio, who spent the past winter in North Glendale and who has decided to locate here permanently.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Sampson of 1600 Ruth street leave this evening for Fallbrook, Cal., where they will be guests of Mrs. Sampson's father, Mr. John Ellis, who is known as the corn king of that country. Mr. and Mrs. Sampson will enjoy the fiesta at Fallbrook while there. Extensive preparations for the entertainment of people from surrounding territory has been arranged and provided. A delightful time is anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woods and family, also Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Westwood and their family of Glendale avenue, are guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Webb of 209 North Maryland avenue this evening. Charades and pocket billiards will be enjoyed during the evening, also a light luncheon will be served by the charming hostess and a jolly good time is of course expected.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Harasta and family of Los Angeles, well known former residents of Viola avenue, North Glendale, delighted their many friends and former neighbors last Sunday by calling upon several of them. Mr. Harasta and family have recently returned from Lake Tahoe, where they spent the early part of the summer.

FLOOR FURNACE AT FRISCO FAIR

Clem Moore, agent for the Toledo gas floor furnace, reports that the sample he took with him on his northern trip, was left with the San Francisco agent, who has the contract for supplying the heating appliances for the fair buildings. This sample was at once taken to the display room on the grounds and a large order of cast iron heaters is being rushed to San Francisco for the buildings.

This popular heating furnace is also being demonstrated at the state fair at Sacramento this week, the agent whom Mr. Moore appointed on his trip north demonstrating its good points to the fair visitors.

While only about six years old, this furnace has proved its worth. It is the first gas floor furnace invented and is filling a long-felt need, especially in this part of California.

Mr. Moore recently appointed agents at Bakersfield, Stockton, Fresno and San Jose, as well as Sacramento and San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA OBJECTIVE POINT

The eyes of the intelligent people of all nations of the world are being turned toward California as the time comes near for the opening of the Panama exposition. More than six months ago thousands of people in the East began arranging for transportation. The transportation has been paid for, and now money is being saved up to cover expenses incident to the trip.

Many people of the East and Middle West will come to California before the cold winter of the East sets in. Vacant houses will fill up readily then. Are we ready to receive them?

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Bosserman were host and hostess Friday evening at a dinner party, the guests being the world-renowned Belgian pianist, Brahms van den Burg, and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Shank, Mrs. Shank being one of Los Angeles' foremost sopranos.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE UNDER DEATH SENTENCE

In the September American magazine appears another Boston Blackie story entitled "Death Cell Visions," written by Number 6606, who is now an inmate in a western penitentiary. The author was at one time under sentence of death. He was awaiting the final day with another man who was to be executed at the same time. In his present story he describes in part as follows how it feels to be under death sentence:

"The long monotonous days dragged wearily by. We were glad each time night came, and yet begrudged the lost day. Each night left one day less of life for us. We read magazines, played checkers, tried novels, sang with the other condemned men, but no mental diversion ever removed the specter of the chair that waited at the end of the road we were all traveling so swiftly. I remember one night I was reading an absorbingly interesting book. It was "Pere Goriot," by Balzac. I read on and on, my eyes following the printed words on the pages. My cellmate spoke to me and I came out of my dream, realizing that for many pages I had not sensed one word I read. While my eyes traveled the lines of the book, my mind had been on the chair. I was wondering whether the cold, damp cap that was to be clamped over the shaven spot on my head would send a shiver through me that would be mistaken for cowardice. I threw down my book in disgust.

"Pal," I said to my cell mate "what's the use of lying to ourselves? Neither of us mention the chair—aloud. Both of us are thinking of it every minute we are awake and dreaming of it when we sleep. What do you say if we quit pretending and talk about what's in our minds? It may help us to pass the time."

"You're on," he cried eagerly. "I've wanted to suggest it, but didn't know how you would take it."

"After that we spent hours debating every imaginable phase of our approaching end. We recalled every printed account of an execution we had read. We argued the relative ease of death by hanging, by a bullet and by electricity. We even made a sort of game of it in this way:

"I would say, 'What will happen 11,520,000 times yet before we go?' You see, boys, I still remember even the figures after all these years. It was my cellmate's task to guess what I referred to. In this case, the answer was our heart beats. Each of us vied with the other in inventing and computing these conundrums. Always we selected something in which the answer was some gigantic number, running into billions oftentimes. It seemed to push the chair farther back into the future to have such an uncountable number of units of any kind between it and us. We used
