A Young Man's First Lesson.

BY TIMOTHY FITZCOBE.

I take it that the first great lesson a young man has to learn is that he is an ass. The earlier this lesson is learned, the better it be for his peace of mind and his success in life. Some never learn it, and descend into the evening of existence, their ears lengthening with the shadows as they go. Some learn it early, get their ears cropped, and say nothing about it; while others sensibly retire into modest employments, where they will not be noticed. A young man, bred at home, and growing up in the light of parental admiration and fraternal pride, cannot readily understand how any one else can be as smart as he is. He goes into town, puts on airs, gets snubbed, wonders what it means; goes into society and finds himself tongue-tied; undertakes to speak in a debating club and breaks down or gets laughed at; pays attention to a nice young woman, and finds a very large mitten on his hands, and, in a state of mind "bordering on distraction," sits down to reason about it. This is a critical period of his life. The result of his reasoning decides his fate. If he thoroughly comprehends the fact that he does not know anything; that he is but a cipher, and whatever he gets must be won by hard work, there is hope for him. He will go to work and learn how to live. On the contrary, if a huge self-conceit holds possession of him, if he gets cross and sour, if he turns up his nose, or sneaks, he will be cut. The world has no use for him. A young man who is not tractable and placable, and who refuses to admit to himself that he does not know anything to speak of, and to do so good naturedly, might as well retire to private life first as last.

After a young man has thoroughly comprehended the fact that he is an ass, the next thing for him to learn is, that the world does not care anything about him—that he is the subject of nobody's admiration or overwhelming esteem, and that he has got to look out for himself. A letter of recommendation will procure an invitation to tea; if he wears a good hat, the sexton will show him a pleasant seat in church, and expect him to contribute liberally when the plate goes round. If he is a stranger nobody will look after him. Every man is busy with his own affairs. He will not be noticed until he is noticeable, and he will not become noticeable until he does something to prove that he has absolute value in society. No letter of recommendation will give him this, except among those who think more of blood than brains. Society demands that he shall be somebody, and has a right to demand it. Society will not take this matter on trust—at least not for a long time. Society is not so particular as to what a man does, but he must do something to prove that he is a man. I used to know a man who achieved a very high regard by writing an article for the North American Review. Nobody read the article, but the fact that he wrote one, that it was published, that it was long, did the business for him. He had done something. But everybody cannot write articles for the North American—at least, I hope not, for I receive that publication through a benevolent friend. Everybody however, can do something, or be something or somebody. There is a wide range of effort between holding a skein of silk for a pretty girl and saving the same girl from drowning—between collecting voters on election day and teaching a Sunday school class. But a man must enter into society of his own free will, as an active element or a valuable component, before he will receive the recognition that every true man longs for. I take it that this is right. A man who is willing to enter society as a beneficiary, is mean and does not deserve recognition.

When, therefore, a young man has ascertained and fully admitted the fact that he is an ass, that the world does not care anything about him, and that, while he holds the means in his hands of gaining an independent livelihood, he cannot receive assistance without compromising his self-respect and selling his freedom, he is in a fair position for beginning life. When a young man becomes aware that only by his own efforts can he rise into companionship and competition with the sharp, strong and well drilled minds around him, he is ready to work, and not before. The next lesson is that of patience and contentment with the regular channels of business effort and enterprise. Angelina Matilda must understand, in the first place, that she has got to wait; and if Angelina Matilda is a sensible girl and is fit for a wife, she will be good and tell you to take your time. There is no good building done in this world without a good foundation, and for you to enter upon a business that you have not thoroughly learned, and before you have won a character or "aired" your conceit, is ultimately to bring your house down about the ears of Angelina Matilda and such pretty children as Angelina Matilda may give you. Don't think of winning success in one year or two years. If Heaven should so prosper you that, at the age of thirty, you have really established a business that pays you, with certainty, a living income, you are to remember that you are faring better than the majority of men. If you gain a competency at forty-five or fifty, that will be soon enough; and if you have had to earn it by the hardest labor, you will know how to take care of it, and your children will be so bred that they will not squander it.

You have heard of some one who has made fifty thousand dollars by speculating in western lands. Pity him. He will be almost certain to lose it. You will hear of various fortunate speculations, and the chances are that you will hear of the failure of the speculators within two years. Don't be in a hurry, but with genuine "Teutonic pluck," wait and work. Stick to your business. Do in the best manner whatever you undertake, and be content to go "step by step."

There are a great many young men who indulge in dreams that, in order to secure success in life, they must have help, and that help will, perhaps, turn up at a convenient moment. The vision haunts them of some benevolent old gentleman with a pocket full of rocks, and a remarkable appreciation of merit and genius, who will perhaps lend or give them anywhere from ten to twenty thousand dollars, with which they will go on swimmingly. Perhaps he will take a different turn and offer to educate them. Or, perhaps, with an eye to the sacred profession, they long to become the beneficiaries of the Education Society, or some circle of benevolent females. It is a most dispiriting sight—that of a young man with health in his blood, with a pair of broad shoulders and presentable calves, and a hundred and fifty pounds, more or less, of good bone and muscle, standing with his hands in his pockets and longing for help. I admit that there are positions in which the most independent spirit may accept of assistance—may, in fact, as a choice of evils, desire it; but for a man who is able to help himself, to desire help in the accomplishment of his plans for life, is proof positive that he has received miserable training at home, or that he is mean clear through. I have often thought that the Education Society does more harm than good in this very way, by inviting into the Christian ministry a lot of young men who are willing to be helped. A man who receives assistance always sells himself to his benefactor, unless that benefactor happens to be a man of sense, who is giving absolutely necessary assistance to one whom he knows to be sensitive and honorable. Any young man who will part with freedom and self-respect that grows out of self-support, is a sneak, neither deserving of assistance, nor capable of making good use of it. Assistance will always be received by a young man of spirit as a dire necessity—as the chief evil of his poverty.

HUMPH.—A minister was traveling in the backwoods, and espying a cabin, entered on his mission of mercy. The lady of the house (she being the only one present, and judging his errand,) was, to all intents, busily engaged in reading that volume. He noticed, however, that she held the book upside down. After the usual courtesies, the minister inquired what she was reading.

"Oh, 'bout the ole prophets," was the self-satisfactory response.

"It is extremely edifying to read about the sufferings and death of Christ," remarked the minister.

"And so that good man is dead is he?" asked the matron.

"Certainly he is."

"Well, that's just the way. I've been at John a long time to take the newspapers, but he won't. Everybody in the world might die an' we not git to hear a bit 'bout it," said the woman in a rapid tone.

"Ah, woman, you are in the dark," groaned the preacher.

"Yes, I know we are. I've been at Sohn a long time to put a window in the end of the house, but he won't do that either."

"I see you are weak in knowledge."

"I know that I'm weak, an' I guess if you'd had the bilious fever, an' been takin' sassafras an' cataract pills as long as I have, you'd be weak to?" replied the woman in rather an angry tone of voice, and half an octave higher than usual.

"Sir, I am a phrenologist. Would you like to have me examine the heads of your children? I will do it cheap."

"Wall," said the farmer, "I rath'er guess they don't need it. The old woman combs 'em with a fine tooth comb once a week."

Story of a Handless Painter.

I had been looking for some time at "The Communion of St. Francis," in the Museum, when, as I turned away, I observed a young man engaged in copying Valentino's "La Brelan." There was something peculiar about him which attracted my attention, and when I came nearer I discovered that he was painting, not with his hands but with his feet. A short cloak or cape hung over his shoulders and concealed his want of arms; he held his brush between the first and second toes of his right foot; his palette, maul-stick, and a sheaf of spare brushes, were held not ungracefully in the left, and he worked rapidly, easily and well. When the clock struck twelve, and announced the hour at which the pictures in the cathedral are open for exhibition, he laid down his brush, cleaned his palette, packed up his colors and brushes, (all with his feet), and then put on his shoes and walked out of the Museum. A quarter of an hour afterward I found him again seated in the cathedral busily engaged on a copy of "The Descent from the Cross." One of the stones of the floor under his stool had slightly sunk, making his seat unsteady, and as he was obliged to balance himself without any assistance from his feet, which were engaged upon his picture, this of course required immediate remedy. He took out his handkerchief, folded it into a little compact bundle, and tucked it under the leg of his stool, and then resumed his work. An accidental circumstance now gave me an opportunity of entering into conversation with him; his manner was easy and gentlemanly, and his remarks those of a cultivated and intelligent man. There was neither embarrassment from any consciousness of his misfortune, nor display of the marvellous skill which enabled him to overcome it. He used his feet in every way as most men move their hands, and it seemed as natural and it seemed as natural and easy to him to do so.

Yet, what struck me as very remarkable, though painting with great delicacy and skill, his foot looked all the time just as awkward an instrument as one's own. After some conversation he offered me his card, put his foot in his pocket, took out one of those little wallets which everybody now carries, slipped the elastic band off with his toe, selected a card from several, placed on the back of the case, put his foot again into his pocket, took out a pencil, and in a far better hand than the compositor has to decipher before this article goes to press, added the address, "Anvers, 5e Section, 136, Rue des Iragés," to the name of "Charles Felu, Artiste Peintre." So completely had he overcome all appearance of awkwardness, that a lady whom I happened to sit next to at the table d'hôte told me that she had conversed with him for a considerable time without discovering that his legs were not arms. I have no doubt he shaves himself, for contrary to the prevailing custom among artists,

"His chin, now reaped, Show'd like a stubble field at harvest home;" a light mustache being the only evidence of beard allowed to remain on an intelligent, pensive, and rather handsome face. Blackwood.

GOOD ADVICE TO DOCTORS.—Have you heard of the Bowery boy, who being cut short in a hard life by a sore disease, which quickly brought him to death's door, was informed by his physician that medicine could do nothing for him?

"What's my chance, doctor?"

"Not worth speaking of."

"One in twenty?"

"Oh, no."

"In thirty?"

"No."

"Fifty?"

"I think not."

"A hundred?"

"Well, perhaps there may be one in a hundred."

"I say, then, doctor," pulling him close down, and whispering with feeble earnestness in his ear, "jest you go in like all thunder on that one chance."

The doctor "went in," and the patient recovered.

A HUSBAND advertises thus: "My wife, Maria, has strayed or been stolen. Whoever returns her will get his neck broke. As to trusting her, anybody can do so if he sees fit; for as I never pay my own debts it's not likely I'll pay hers."

A NEWSPAPER, describing the effect of a severe thunder storm, said: "A cow was struck by lightning and instantly killed, belonging to the village physician who had a beautiful speckled calf only four days old."

A LITTLE boy, returning home from Sunday school last Sunday, said to his mother: "Ma, ain't there a kitten-chism for little boys?—this cat-e-chism is too hard."

CANDID.—"You have visited my daughter a long time," said an anxious mother to a young gentleman of our acquaintance, the other day. "What are your intentions, sir?"

"Honorable, entirely so," said the gentleman. "I intend backing out, as the coachmen say."

"You do, do you? Backing out, eh! And peay, sir, what are your reasons for deceiving the poor girl in this way?"

"I have several," said our friend.

"Well, name one, if you can, you imp of Satan—you little-waisted, knock-kneed, pale faced, no whiskered dolt—you think—you scape—you—"

"Your daughter," said he, interrupting her, "don't wear her bustle right; I have seen it one-sided. Her dress-maker tells me she is padded in a dozen places, and wears two pair of stays. Her false teeth don't stay in well; and she puts castor oil on her wig, madam. I can't stand such carelessness. You'll let me off, now, I reckon."

ADVANTAGES OF WOMEN.—A woman says what she chooses without being knocked down for it.

She can take a snooze after dinner, while her husband goes to work.

She can go into the street without being asked to "stand treat" at every saloon.

She can paint her face if it be too pale, and powder it if too red.

She can stay at home in time of war, and get married again if her husband be killed.

She can wear corsets if too thick—other fixins if too thin.

She can get divorced from her husband whenever she sees one she likes better.

She can get her husband in debt all over until he warns the public not to trust her on his account. Them's em.

THE WRETCH.—A young lady who is rather vain of her piano-forte playing, was recently entertaining a party of friends with a fashionable song, when an old bachelor boarder rushed out of his room to the head of the stairs and shouted:

"What are you hurting that pig for? Turn him into the street."

"What pig?" asked the lady, so astonished that she stopped singing.

The old bachelor descended the stairs, looked into the room and said: "I thought I heard a pig squealing in this room!"

The young lady thought him a wretch, and said so.

A PERSON was hung for crime in this country, and the intelligence of his sad fate was conveyed to his parents in the following delicate manner: "Dear friends, your son had been addressing a large crowd of sympathizing persons, who had paid earnest attention to his remarks, when the platform upon which he stood, being, as was afterward ascertained, insecure, suddenly fell, and his neck was instantly broken."

"DOCTOR, kin you tell me what's the matter with my child's nose? she keeps a pickin' it."

"Yes, ma'am; it's probably an irritation of the pathetic titillation to the ophalum of the achæraerin."

"There, now, that's jist what I towld Becky; but she 'lowed it was worrums."

SAM says: "Fred, don't never imagine woman is an angel. If you ever have any symptoms of that kind, just take a good dose of catnip tea and go to bed; for 'tis a disease worse than the measles, if it happens to 'strike in.' I had it once." Girls, what ought to be done with the fellow?

"MYNHEER, do you know what for we call our boy Hans?"

"I do not, really."

"Well, I will tell you. Der reason we call our boy Hans is—it ish his name."

"My friend has a great reverence for the truth," said a baronet to a gentleman. "So I perceive," was the reply, "for he always keeps a respectable distance from it."

"MOTHER, I heard sissy swear."

"What did she say?"

"Why, she said she was going to wear her darned stockings to church."

PATRICK gave his testimony in a riot case thus: "Be jabbers, the first man I seed coming at me was two brickbats."

THERE is a man in Maine so opposed to monarchy that he won't wear a crown in his hat.

WE are never satisfied that a lady understands a kiss, unless we have it from her own lips.

A BAD husband beats his wife, and a bad wife beats the devil.

WOMEN should set good examples, for the men are always following them.

Declaration of Homestead.
Persons wishing to procure a correct legal form for making out a Declaration of Homestead, as required by the Act of the last Legislature, with the acknowledgement attached thereto, will find printed blanks, on application to the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS Office. By filling out these blanks themselves, parties will be subject to no other expense than the fees for acknowledgement and record.

H. J. BIDDLEMAN, Bookseller, Fourth street next to the Post Office, Sacramento, is our authorized Agent to receive subscriptions for the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

Disagreeable.
The weather the past week has been exceedingly disagreeable and cold, accompanied by occasional showers of rain, causing a great backwardness in the growth of vegetation. The season, thus far, is fully a month later than we have ever experienced, and the grain crops of all kinds will be quite a month later maturing than in former years. Heretofore, we have had new hay in this section as early as the middle of April. This year, although the article is much needed, there is no probability of us having any before the first of June. Wheat, especially, will be backward in getting into market; it requires warm weather to cause the young plant to grow. This we have had little of, consequently the wheat crop looks very backward.

The County Seat Question.
We are informed the tax to be levied in accordance with the provisions of the bill to vote on our county seat location, will not be levied until after next year, it being too late to be included in the assessment of this year. That having already been done and handed to the Assessor, the tax will consequently go over until another year. In the meantime, it will be well to have some limit put to the amount to be expended in public buildings at whatever point the people should locate this hitherto movable institution. That amount should not exceed ten thousand dollars. We are a small county, and don't need an extravagant Court House, and our past experience proves a Jail of small dimensions will answer our purposes.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—We would call the attention of the public generally, to the new advertisements in today's paper. J. T. Daly, dealer in dry goods and groceries, Cacheville; A. Lamott, hatter, corner of J and Second streets, Sacramento; Van Every & Larry, stove and cutlery store, 144 J street, Sacramento; J. W. Avery, lumber dealer, corner M and Second, Sacramento; R. H. JUST RECEIVED.—A fresh lot of Garden Seeds, at Raveley's, opposite the Steamboat Landing.

FIRE.—Yesterday a fire broke out in the large smoke house of Thomas & Co., and destroyed about one hundred dollars worth of ham and bacon.

GRAND BALL.—On Wednesday next the Settlers' Ball will come off at the Union Hotel, Knight's Landing. The preparations are making on a large scale, and a good time generally is anticipated.

THE KNIGHT GRANT.—We understand the attorney for contestants, T. Sunderland, has made application to the Supreme Court to have the case remanded to California for the rehearing and admission of further testimony.

JUDGE McALLISTER.—A petition is in circulation at San Francisco, addressed to the authorities at Washington, for the removal of Judge McAllister, of the United States Circuit Court, on the ground that his brain is affected, and therefore that he is incompetent for the proper discharge of his duties.

LIFE INSURANCE.—Captain John C. Hoyt, lately deceased in San Francisco, had his life insured for five thousand dollars, to be paid to his widow.

A FOUL MURDER.—A man named Thomas Russell, a citizen of Santa Cruz county, was brutally murdered in that place, on the night of March 19th, by an unknown assassin.

A Bridge Across Cache Creek.
The past Winter has demonstrated the necessity of a good bridge across Cache Creek for the accommodation of travel. Every one who knows anything of the wants of this part of the county, admit that; but the only question not solved is the best method of building it. We take the ground a good bridge should be built at or near Cacheville, and by the county. The Board of Supervisors have the power to enter into a contract for the building of such a bridge, and we are satisfied a portion of the Road Fund of the county could not be put to a better purpose, or one which would give more general satisfaction to the people of the whole county.

We have not got the greatest confidence in our present Board of Supervisors for sagacity or attention to the interests of the county; but at the same time, we think where there is so great a necessity as here exists, and where the sentiment is so unanimous as it is on this subject, even the Supervisors could not well neglect to give the people justice in this matter. If it was only forced upon their special attention, their own knowledge of the county wants ought to be sufficient; but in this case, we think if a petition was gotten up and the matter brought out, an appropriation would be made to build a free bridge at Cacheville. We also think quite an amount of money would be subscribed by private individuals, if necessary, to put up a substantial structure. We trust some one will take the initiative steps in the matter, and have estimates and calculations made as to the probable cost, and length of span, etc., and at the same time get the petitions started. They don't need to be circulated—just placed where people can get to them, and every man in this section of the county will sign them for a free bridge across Cache Creek.

"The Proof of the Pudding."
Our wise Supervisors, some two years since, made a large appropriation out of the Road Fund to build a bridge somewhere in the center of the tules on the upper Marysville road. Well, the bridge was built, although no one could get to it for two-thirds of the year—it being surrounded with water. Our Supervisors were duly informed of this fact, and also informed it would take a large amount to keep it in repair, and a cheap bridge would answer the purposes better than a costly structure. But, wisdom was wisdom, and the Supervisors knew it all. The result is, the thousand dollars and over is lost, the bridge washed away and nobody hurt but the taxpayers, who had to foot the bills. If this money had been put into a bridge across Cache Creek, instead of fooled away, the people of the county would now be receiving some of the benefits from their money paid in taxes into the Road Fund.

THE MINES NORTH.—The Jacksonville Gazette makes itself facetious about the northern mines in the following style:
"The latest accounts from the North bring intelligence of a great foot race to come off the ensuing Spring, the stake, human life and human misery. British Columbia enters black horse Cariboo, three years old, by Humbog, out of Frazer river; backers, the Victoria people and the correspondents of the Alta and Bulletin. The Oregon Steam Navigation Company enters Cayuse filly, Salmon River, by Starvation, out of Snow; backers, Portland merchants and Washington Territory land speculators. The stakes are expected to be raised by the people who have never seen the "Elephant."

WOOD MEASURER.—A bill is before the Legislature providing for the appointment of a measurer of wood in San Francisco. If a law can be passed which will secure to consumers a full cord of wood at the market price of the article, it will be a great blessing to the public.

INDIAN FIGHT.—The Carson Silver Age says that fifty soldiers have been detailed from Fort Churchill for the relief of the beleaguered at Owen's Lake, and that the same number of muskets have been granted to the Aurora people by Governor Nye, of Nevada.

MARIPOSA.—Two Indians were convicted of murder in the second degree in Mariposa, last week, and were sentenced to ten years each in the Penitentiary. The Gazette says their crimes were committed under the influence of liquor unlawfully sold to them by white men.

THE Street Railroad in Sacramento is to be sold to pay its debts.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.
The following dispatches are from the Sacramento Union of April 2d:
St. JOSEPH, April 1st.
CAIRO, March 29th.—The firing yesterday at Island No. 10 was quite heavy, the rebels opening fire from a new battery they had just completed. The guns in it are evidently heavy ones, as balls were thrown constantly beyond the gunboat Benton. The enemy could be seen all day busily engaged in cutting away trees and pushing the completion of other means of defense rapidly forward. Some of their shots now thrown are estimated to be one hundred and twenty-eight pounds. They have no idea at present of evacuating, and are daily getting more cannon in position. Word reached the fleet last night that four gunboats, partly protected by an armor of railroad iron, had appeared below Point Pleasant. As Gen. Pope's batteries extend in continuous line fifteen miles, it is thought impossible for them to force a passage. It is probable, however, that, if the report of their arrival be true and they make the attempt, they will be allowed to pass up to the island, as they cannot get back again. The enemy's boats would then be taken when the island is captured, which there is fair reason to believe it will be before long. The mortars still continue to throw shell into every part of the rebel works.

There is nothing important from Tennessee river. An arrival from Memphis to-day reports a general despondency, and but little confidence is felt even in the large force concentrating at Corinth, Mississippi.
FORT MONROE, March 28th.—Affairs remain quiet here, as far at least as to news that can be communicated. The rebels have been exceedingly busy about Pig's Point and Craney Island for the last few days; steam tugs have been busy flying to and fro, and it is supposed the rebels are strengthening their fortifications along the line from Craney Island to Pig's Point. They have also increased their forces in that vicinity. For effect their camps have been advanced; long lines of tents can be seen along the shore. Glasses are directed almost momentarily toward Craney Island, on the lookout for the Merrimac, and every indication of smoke or steam in that direction is closely investigated by hundreds of eyes.

General Hunter and staff arrived here yesterday, en route for Port Royal, to take command of the army operations in that quarter.
The Union troops advanced yesterday on the rebel outposts beyond Warrenton Junction, says a special to the New York Herald, driving the enemy, estimated at ten thousand, before them along the line of the Gordonville Railroad. The road beyond Warrenton is destroyed, bridges gone, ties buried and rails bent into every shape. The Union troops are in excellent health, and are pushing after the retreating rebels as rapidly as the circumstances permit. The telegraph lines follow the advancing army, and offices are established from day to day.

An excursion party went on the Manassas Gap Road about five miles beyond the Junction, cutting away falling trees, and clearing other obstacles from the track. The road was otherwise in perfect condition, and water stations uninjured. They also proceeded on the road to Gordonville as far as Brewster Station, at which point the bridge over Broad Run is destroyed. James Crockett, who has been an engineer on the Manassas Gap Road nine years, accompanied the parties. He remained with the rebels until the recent evacuation of Manassas, and brought down the reinforcements of General Johnston when the rebels were retreating at Bull Run last July. He states that the rebels commenced evacuating Manassas on the third of March. The troops moved on very hurriedly, and were in such great fear of being routed by the advancing Federal troops that their officers threatened instant death to every man who fired a shot, alleging as a reason that the smoke would hasten the Federal advance. The rebel's cannon, he says, were of small caliber and few in number, but they had enormous quantities of stores, much of which could not be removed and was burned after the main body of the army left.

[Communicated.]

Mr. Editor: In your issue of last Saturday I noticed an article upon the proposed removal of the county seat; and wishing to correct the wrong impression that I think that article conveys, I beg leave to submit a few thoughts for the consideration of the voters of Yolo.

It is very well known that our county seat has been very much of a portable concern, migrating "hither and yonder," at the behest of the few to the great detriment of the many. Now, when there is a chance to take the county seat from its present water-environed position and place it in a position accessible to the great majority of the voters of the county, we hear the cry "wait, wait another year," and from one voice the northern part of the county, where we should least expect it. For no sane man can deny that the expense of summoning jurors and witnesses at the time the Winter Court should have sat, amounted to nearly one thousand dollars—one-third as much as the bill for removal authorizes the Supervisors to levy—and the great bulk of that sum came from the pockets of the citizens of Cache Creek and Grafton townships. And should it remain at Washington another year, I will venture the assertion that the detriment wrought to the northern and central portions of the county (in fact, the only well populated portions, as respects numbers), will amount to more than double the proposed tax. These things should be well considered, especially when some are wailing so loudly about taxation. Again, the absurdity of waiting another year on the plea of not having a "fair expression of the sentiments of the people," when the petition presented to the Legislature, asking the removal to Woodland, contained no less than eleven hundred names of the voters of this county, out of eighteen hundred polled at the last election. Further than this, the Act provides that the place receiving the majority of votes at this election "shall be and remain" the county seat of said county—thus making a final settlement of the county seat question of this county.

Again you say: "The people of Washington propose to waive the privilege of availing themselves of the three thousand dollar appropriation provided in the bill." Let us examine that a moment. The Act authorizing the removal utters its mandatory shall to the Board of Supervisors, and leaves no discretionary powers less than the three thousand dollars named in the bill. And the wild fears expressed in your last issue in regard to the unlimited powers of the Supervisors, I think are groundless, when we consider that the county does not own a single foot of public road, not one public bridge, and no vestige of a county building. And as far as we should depend upon the benevolence or generosity of our neighbors at Washington, I think we have had quite enough; and events have fully demonstrated that the interests of our county would be enhanced fully as well outside of the limits of Washington. And in support of this, I will simply say, that even now, the most strenuous efforts are being made to take the school funds from the Treasury, upon which the people rely for the support of schools for the present year, and apply it to the support of fraud, of theft, and robbery.

A word now upon the proposed location. It is sufficient evidence of its acceptability, when nearly two-thirds of the electors of the county ask the Legislature to remove it there. Its location is central—being eighteen miles from Washington, twenty from the Colusa line, ten from Knight's Landing, and ten from Putah Creek. It is free from all doubtful titles to real estate, and in a region of fertility excelled by none in the county; while the population, possessing but few of the class known as old bachelors, has the thrift and permanency of the older societies. The opponents of the removal have tried to make many believe that it mattered but little where the county seat remains, and that it might as well be located at Washington or Sacramento, so that men can enjoy the luxuries of city life while attending Courts, as not. But to the voters in this part of the county, I would say, it matters much—for upon its safety depend the security of the titles to your homes—the records of your courts of justice involving the dearest relations of social life.

Then let every citizen divest himself of prejudice and pique; consult the "greatest good to the greatest number;" ask himself whether the county seat, in which every man is interested, should be located at one extremity of the county, at a place subject to yearly inundations, inaccessible except at great expense and great inconvenience—or in the center of the county, where all, or nearly all, can be accommodated, and act upon his convictions of right, and Woodland will carry it three to one. Now is the time for the people to have it definitely settled, and save thousands of dollars to the county by so doing.
