A Dirge.

BY BRECH DUDLEY.

Crown her brow with flowers,
Where the light still lingers;
Lay a mossy rosebud
In her slender fingers.

Whisper low—though never
We may break her dreaming,
Ah! how sweet the faint smile
O'er her red lips gleaming!

Lovingly the sunlight
O'er her brow is straying,
Like a golden halo
'Mid her tresses playing;

And her eyelids, drooping
O'er those violet eyes,
Hide from me thy loving
Light that in them lies.

Bear her gently—gently
To her final rest;
Lay my darling softly
On hearth's quiet breast.

See—no shadow of anguish
Clouds her placid brow;
Death in sweetest slumber
Lulls my darling now.

Grief no more can harm her,
Wherefore do ye weep?
Unto his beloved
God hath given sleep.

[From the Family Journal.]

My First Appearance on any Stage.

BY ONE OF THE SMITH FAMILY.

In a former number of the family Journal, I related "Why I am a Bachelor"—I have now another confession to make, and were it not that my name, although an illustrious one, is rather common, and that there are more people in the world of the name of John Smith besides myself, I might hesitate in making the public my confident.

Well, then, I will at once make a clean breast of the matter. I have appeared on the stage. Don't imagine, gentle reader, when I write these words that I am not conscious of the enormity of my offence. Alas! I only know too well.

When I think that I, John Smith, ex-grocer, was ever blockhead enough to appear before a theatrical audience, my cheeks blush with shame, and such an appearance!—but let me not anticipate.

My object, dear reader, in telling you the whole matter, is to obtain your sympathy, and I must beg beforehand that you will not laugh at me. I have already gone through the terrible ordeal of laughter and derision, and ought by this time to be steered against it; but it is a tender, sore point, and were I not certain that the readers of this Journal are kindly disposed and will not make light of my misfortunes, I would proceed no further.

After my want of success in love, as previously told, I grew unsettled and wandered about the city for days without any particular end in view. I verily believe I knew every clerk in the Broadway stores, for I was accustomed to go and price articles in every establishment—not with the intention of buying, anything but simply to kill time. One day in the course of my peregrination I was attracted by a large bill outside the Broadway Theater. Now, I had never been inside a theater in my life. I had always despised actors and plays. I was now, however, attracted by the large capitals, and stopped to read the bills. I learned by them that the play of King Richard III was to be performed that night. I do not know what evil genius possessed me—but I determined that I would see it.

I went, and was delighted. It was a new world to me—the lights, the music, the company, all served to intoxicate me even before the play commenced. But when the curtain rose my enthusiasm worked up to a high pitch. I did not understand the language, but I understood the fighting, and that was glorious. The great American actor performed the part of Richard, and it did my heart good to see him rant and roar, and fume and fret. Now, that's my idea of good acting—he exercised his lungs and made the whole house ring with his stentorian tones. But at last Richmond came on the field, and then my delight reached its climax. Oh! how Richard and Richmond fought! How they ran about the stage—parried here, and thrust there! And then when the hunchback tyrant received his mortal wound, and "went into his flurry," as your contributor Dick Span-Yarn would say, what a shout shook the house—it was a glorious triumph.

I went home that night an unhappy man. I felt that I must distinguish myself. I was not content to remain plain John Smith. I pined to be Richmond. I felt blood-thirsty. I wanted to kill Richard. I wanted to receive the plaudits of the audience. I could not sleep that night. I rehearsed over and over that combat—that glorious combat!

I arose in the morning unrefreshed, and longed for night to come, that I might again visit the theater. It came at last, and saw me in the place I had occupied the previous evening. My excitement was as great as on the first night; and again I returned home, dejected, miserable and low spirited. Come what might, I determined to perform the part of Richmond.

The next night I summoned up courage enough to call on the manager and lay my case before him. When I first stated my wish he first of all stared at me, and then burst into a fit of laughter. When, however, I hinted to him about paying for the privilege, he stopped laughing and shook me by the hand. It was I was to perform the part of Richmond was finally agreed that for the sum of $50 I was to perform the part of Richmond on that night week.

That very night I set about studying the part. It is not a very long one, and I soon succeeded in committing it to memory. Then rehearsals followed, and the manager said I acquitted myself admirably. I became quite proficient in my fencing, and had not a doubt whatever as to my success.

At last the eventful day dawned, and I had the satisfaction of seeing in the morning papers a statement to the effect that the part of Richmond would be undertaken by an amateur, his first appearance on any stage. How I passed through that day I know not. I kept repeating my part to myself the whole time, until I became what is called "word perfect." I was at the theater by 5 o'clock, and found that the doors were not open. At last the call-boy unlocked the charm entrance, and I was behind the scenes. I had scarcely entered when I was accosted by the costumer:

"How about your dress, sir?" said he.

"What dress,?" I replied.

"Why, the dress for Richmond."

"I suppose I can get one from the theatrical wardrobe?"

"Certainly, sir; but I don't know that we have got one that will fit you—you know you are rather stout, sir."

Well, that was a fact. I am rather stout—in truth, I may say excessively stout. "But you must find me a dress."

"Well, I will see what I can do, sir; come this way."

I followed him into the dressing-room, and he hunted up the largest clothes he could find.

I put them on, and with the exception that they felt rather uncomfortably tight, they did very well. I then took my place behind the scenes and began to repeat my part to myself. I found that I remembered every word of it, and I had no doubt as to my complete success. Once or twice I peeped through a hole in the curtain, and found that the house was filling very fast.

Having by this time repeated the whole of my part over, I thought I would practice my fencing. While making a pass at one of the side scenes, I heard a sudden rent, and my unfortunate nether garments were almost torn in twain. This was a terrible catastrophe, and one that must be immediately repaired. I ran to the costumer and informed him of my mishap. He expressed himself very sorry, and regretted that he had not another pair of pantaloons in the wardrobe that would fit me; but he suggested that there would be plenty of time to repair them, as I did not make my appearance till the last part of the play.

I caught at the suggestion, and being an expert hand with the needle, I determined that I would repair the breach myself. The dressing-room was full, so I could not go there; but I found a retired nook at the back of the stage, and divesting myself of the damaged garment, sat down in my drawers on a stool under the gas light, crossed my legs, and began to sew vigorously, at the same time repeating to myself my own various speeches.

I might have been engaged in this manner five or ten minutes, and the rent was getting visibly smaller, when I heard the rushing and rolling of scenes, and a sudden glare of light shone on me, and a shriek, a yell, a shout, such as might have awakened the seven sleepers, greeted my ears.

I raised my head, and to my horror I found myself seated in the middle of the stage, with the whole audience before me. Yes, there was I, John Smith, ex-grocer, divested of his pantaloons, trowsers or whatever they may be called, sitting cross-legged before an immense audience, and the shouting, and the noise, and the yelling which greeted me, took away my self-possession. I rose up from my seat. I cast my trowsers from me, and then ran about the stage like a wild man. And then the yelling and screaming was redoubled—men stood up in the pit and waved their hats—women turned away their heads. I was bewildered—demented—stark, raving mad. I actually did not know how to get off the stage, and I believe I never should have got off, had not the manager come forward and actually taken me away by brute force.

I put on my clothes in silence—I left the theater with an inward resolve that I would never enter the accursed building again.

I have kept my word—that fatal night my first and only appearance on any stage.

THIRTY THOUSAND POUND NOTE.—An extraordinary affair happened about the year 1740. One of the directors of the Bank of England, a very rich man, had occasion for $30,000, which he was to pay as the price of an estate he had just bought. To facilitate the matter, he carried the sum with him to the bank, and obtained for it a bank note. On his return home, he was suddenly called upon upon particular business; he threw the note carelessly on the chimney, but when he came back, a few minutes afterwards, to look it up, it was not to be found. No one had entered the room; he could not therefore suspect any person. At last, after much ineffectual search, he was persuaded that it had fallen from the chimney into the fire. The director went to his colleagues with the misfortune that had happened to him; and as he was known to be a perfectly honorable man, he was readily believed. It was only about twenty hours from the time that he had deposited his money; they thought, therefore, that it would be hard to refuse his request for a second bill. He received it, upon giving an obligation to restore the first bill, if it should be found, or pay the money himself, if it should be presented by any stranger. About thirty years afterwards (the director having been dead, and his heirs in possession of his fortune), an unknown person presented the bill to the bank, and demanded payment. It was in vain that they mentioned to this person the transaction by which the bill was annulled; he would not listen to it; he maintained that it came from abroad, and insisted upon immediate payment. The note was payable to bearer; and thirty thousand pounds were paid to him. The heirs of the director would not listen to any demands of restitution, and the bank was obliged to sustain the loss. It was discovered afterwards, that an architect having purchased the director's house, had taken it down, in order to build another upon the same spot, found the note in a crevice of the chimney, and made his discovery an engine for robbing the bank.

A CRUEL "SELL."—"I say Higgins said a fellow to that aspiring but as yet unappreciated tragedian, "I met a rich old gentleman in the city who declared he would give five hundred dollars to see you perform 'Hamlet.' "You don't say so?" "Fact, I assure you; and, what's more, I'm positively certain that the old chap meant it." "By Jove then, it's a bargain," Higgins cried; "I'll play it for my benefit. But who is he?" "Ah, to be sure, I didn't tell you. Well, he's a blind man." Higgins never spoke to the wretch again.

"Where did you prig that shilling from?" said Buttons to Sam.

"Prig it, sar," was the response; "I'll make you prove vat you say, sar. I found that shillen in master's trowsers pocket, and he had gone out of town for a month."

A gentleman who recently travelled over a certain railroad, which it might excite jealousy to mention by name, declared his opinion that it is the safest road in the country, as the superintendent keeps a boy running ahead of the trains to drive off the calves and sheep!

A lawyer, reading a will in a country village the other day, incidentally mentioned "heirs and successors," upon which a young gentleman of forty-five rather hard of hearing, remarked, "Dear me, who ever heard of 'heirs and scissor's' being in a will before."

SOME years ago, it is said, a party was travelling the Jersey pines, and saw in the distance what they supposed was the frame of a log house. On approaching, they found it was the skeleton of a mosquito which had starved to death, the flesh having fallen from the bones.

A man in Michigan not long since committed suicide by drowning. As the body could not be found, the coroner held an inquest on his hat and jacket, found on the banks of the lake. Verdict "found empty."

TAYLOR says courtships are the sweet and dreamy thresholds of unseen Edens, where half the world has passed in couples, and talked in whispers under the moonlight, and passed on, and never returned.

THE rice crop of the past year in the Southern States is said to be the largest and best which has been gathered for many years past.

THE revenue derived from the postage of Australian newspapers is officially stated to be about five thousand pounds a year.

MRS. CROCKETT, the widow of the celebrated Davy Crockett, died recently in her 74th year, in Johnson county, Texas, of apoplexy.

THE swamp lands in the suburbs of New Orleans are now being drained, and the citizens anticipate thereon a speedy extension of the city.

Salutatory.

This is the First Number of Volume Second of the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS. It is customary for Editors of Newspapers and Periodicals at the commencement of each volume to say something indicative of their present prospects, and course in the future, etc., etc.

We think that we sufficiently disposed of these matters in last week's issue.—Our course and progress ever since we commenced the publication of the NEWS have been onwards and upwards; and into the dim vista of the future, we can look confidently, anticipating, an amply remunerative harvest for all our toil and hardship in the free, spontaneous and duly measured thanks of an intelligent and properly appreciating Public.

Labor Wanted.

Owing to the Washoe excitement a large moiety of the former laborers of this vicinity are now banqueting upon arifereous dreams and starving realities in the Argentine Plains of Carson Valley.—Hence, the farmers in this portion of the State are lamentably deficient in a proper amount of work hands—whom it is now almost impossible to secure in requisite numbers for either love or money. The harvest in these parts is just now commencing. It is unusually heavy this year, and it will require more labor to properly secure it than can at present be obtained. Laborers in other portion of the State unemployed would be amply remunerated by coming here and staying through the harvest.

May Party.

Some few days prior to the first day of May, Miss Emma Sellers, of our town, had invited all her school-mates to a party for their benefit to be given on the Eve, of May Day. On that day they conceived the idea while at School, that they would have a grand time of it. They invited their teacher H. P. Hamblin to march with them from the Academy to the place where the party was to be given. Their Teacher readily agreed to march at their head. But strange to say, when the time came for the starting of the procession Mr. Hamblin for some unaccountable cause would not go with them.

We were truly sorry for the little hopefuls as they came marching up street without their teacher, the disappointment and slight appeared to lacerate their little feelings no little.

Their grief was of short duration, however, for as soon as the music and dancing commenced they lost sight of the dull cares of life and its troubles.

We do not wish to animadvert the conduct of the teacher on this occasion wantonly or keenly, however, much, it is obnoxious to, and deserving of, the most pointed and rigid criticism.

For Mr. Hamblin, we ever have had the highest respect and esteem, he will therefore pardon us for thus noticing his bad taste on this one occasion; being a public man he must expect that his acts will be criticised publically. We are happy to say, that, the party went off in good part. The Children and young folks had "lots of fun" all went away pleased and happy.

Meteorological.

After having some of the finest and most pleasant days imaginable; old Sol the while, transmitting his benign and invigorating rays to this Mundane Sphere, with transcendent grandeur and true loveliness. We are again visited by cold, cloudy, rainy weather—on last Wednesday it commenced to shower gently and it has continued to rain more or less ever since with a fair prospect of still more.

E. B. DAVIDSON, of the Post Office Literary Exchange, Fourth st., between J and K, Sacramento, has our thanks for the following:—God's Ladies Book, N. O. True Delta, Louisville Journal, N. Y. Tribune, N. Y. Herald, Scientific American and Illustrated Times.

PORTLAND.—A recent census of Portland, Oregon, shows its number of inhabitants to be 2,917.

SUIT.—Jos. H. Rand has commenced suit against the Sheriff of San Francisco for false imprisonment. He alleges that he has sustained damages to the amount of $5,000.

The Overland Mail of Monday carried off 8,660 letters.

The Late Legislature.

On the last day of last month, the Eleventh Session of the Legislature of California adjourned sine die, much to the delight and joy of every patriot in the State.

We believe, and we speak advisedly, too, that, a more reckless, imbecile and careless body of men has never previously been convened in our own, or any other State in the UNION for the purpose of law-making.

The Session lasted 101 working days, during which time 381 Bills were passed, three of which were most nobly and creditably vetoed by his Excellency, the Governor. The Governor "pocketed" ten other bills, thereby causing their timely and righteous DEATH.

Now, the greatest number of these bills were wholly of a special nature in their character, gotten up and passed for the express and sole benefit of a few individuals and corporations scattered throughout the State.

The greater amount of the business done, might have been left undone with material advantage to the State. This thing of legislating away the public funds for private and special purposes—for the especial benefit of a few favorites is anything, but, agreeable to the people.—Enough of the public money has been in time passed, embezzled by dishonest and profligate Treasurers, to open the eyes of the People, to the enormity and curse of public robbery.

For a legislature to needlessly and wantonly legislate away money for the exclusive benefit of a few partisan friends is reprehensible and odious in the superlative degree! If it is robbery for an officer to default and embezzle, by what epithet should the filching and plundering of the public coffers by those placed over them as guardians custodians be known?

The former is a breach of trust, subjecting the offender to the just scorn and indignation of a virtuously enraged populace. The latter is an abuse of confidence of the darkest die—may it be more, it is treason—the most treacherous against the entire people of the State. And what makes it of a still more vile character is, the legislature is not legally accountable for its wicked acts. It opens its cormorant jaws and swallows of the Treasury to satiety and then thrusts its huge claws into the public crib and scatters the Dear peoples money to the hungry buzzards and wolves that infest our country.

We do not mean, that, all the members of the late Legislature were dishonest, imbecile or careless (for among them we could select several men that are above suspicion and for whose untiring industry disinterested patriotism and eminent abilities, we have the highest veneration and respect. Such men, we consider an ornament to any State or nation), but we do mean the majority of that body and wish so, to be understood.

Against his Excellency, Gov. Downey we have not a word to say. His acts speak for themselves. His course merits and receives the unanimous approval and approbation of his constituency. In him the State possesses a prudent and good man a ripe and sound Statesman and an able and most excellent Governor. His veto upon "the Bulkhead swindle" speaks volumes for him and shows him to be a man above a price.

If the legislature just adjourned had all been of his kind, the State to-day would have been many thousand dollars better off than it is!!

PONY EXPRESS.—The San Francisco Herald says that Major Solomon, United States Marshal, received a letter from the agent at St. Joseph, in which it is stated that the next and all succeeding Expresses will depart Sunday morning at 5 o'clock for San Francisco. Persons in California will now be enabled to communicate with New York by telegraph and receive replies in eighteen days. The agent says also that as soon as there is a prospect of the undertaking paying the Express will be run semi-weekly, and thus the great enterprise of the day will become a permanent beneficial boon for California. The next Pony Express, which left St. Joseph Sunday, April 29th, at 9 A. M., now may be expected on Monday, May 7th, according to the time last made. There is no change on this side.

JUDGMENT.—William B. Bourne, of San Francisco, has procured a judgment against Page, Bacon & Co., for $10,779.

The Spring Races over the Marysville Park Course will commence on Monday next.

It is estimated that the pay of members and attaches of the last Legislature amounted to $178,560.

As a man drinks he generally grows reckless. In his case the more drams the fewer scruples.

MR. EDITOR:

"Poizish" is Everything as the Sequel will Show.

Some time ago I made the acquaintance of an old gentleman named Young, often called Col. Young. I was practicing law at the county town, and the Colonel lived some fifteen miles distant, but in the same County. I knew the Colonel had a daughter, but had never seen her, in passing his place one evening, I thought I would stop and stay all night, I did so, but, I found after stopping that the Colonel was away from home, I saw about the house an old lady whom I readily guessed to be the wife of the Colonel, and a girl so mealy clad, that I felt sure it was a servant girl, about dusk some other ladies came to the house, clothed in all the gaudy trappings of the age, I thought one of those must be the Colonel's daughter. I was seated in the parlor, and the girls were in the dining room, and could hear the tongue of one constantly running, whose voice was musical and sweet, and who evidenced such a familiarity with every subject touched upon, that, I almost loved her at once, though I had not seen her, as I then supposed—after a while they all came into the parlor and struck up the same merry chat, and I was astounded to find that plain girl the mistress of that charming voice that had so fascinated me half an hour before. I joined in the conversation and learned that she was the Colonel's daughter, and was in love with her at once, I told her my name and that I knew her Father, I was treated with great kindness and invited to call again. Some few months after I did call again, and as before the Colonel was not at home, but his daughter received me with every mark of respect, after a long and familiar conversation, in which I mixed up Love, Politics and Religion in such confusion that it would have disgusted any one not slightly smitten herself. I invited her to get ready by the time I returned and go with me to the town where I lived, she readily assented upon conditions that her Mother would approve of it, and started from the room, pretending to go to her Mother's room, but passed around and came to where her Brother was sitting on the porch, I saw the movement and placed myself in a position to hear what she said. She first asked him if he knew me and he answered not, she then told him the offer I made her and what she had said to me in reply, and remarked I was not a laboring man, and she had thought I was living by a profession of some kind, and if so she would like to go, she said there was a sound lawyer living at the place where I lived at, that she had often heard her Father speak highly of, and she had thought perhaps I was the man, and if she knew it she would go, he asked her the name, and she told him, he said he thought that was the name of the lawyer there, and for her to go, she returned to the room and told me she would go, I thought that idea of professional qualifications rather beneath the dignity of that lofty mind that I had persuaded myself she possessed. I resolved to retaliate—I told her I would not promise to introduce her to many of the Ladies of my town, for many of them looked upon my vocation as degrading, and therefore I did not go much in their society—that in this I thought them wrong, that I got my living honestly by my labor, and although some of them pretended to think such a calling beneath the dignity of a man of my color, I did not see why it should be so considered. That it was true that many negroes were engaged in the business, it certainly argued nothing against the dignity of the profession. That it was not only honest labor, but it was profitable with all, she hung her head for a moment, and then started as from a trance and said why what is your profession, I very gravely replied a BARBER. Miss. I was soon after invited to tea, the next morning just before starting I told her I would be back on Saturday and she would be ready I supposed, she said she could not go, that her Mother had changed her mind. I expressed myself very sorry and bid her good morning and started, just at that moment the Colonel drove up and met me at the gate, he insisted I should stay and expressed a thousand regrets that he had not been at home, I could not, business was urging and I must go, I lingered a moment at the gate pretending to fix my lines and the Colonel went in the house, I drove off and just as I got under way I heard a laugh and turning myself around in the buggy I saw all the family on the porch, and the Colonel almost going into fits. Saturday I did not stop.

POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES.

The population of the United States can be estimated with some exactness, in advance of the census, from its natural multiplication and its regular increase by immigration. If this increase in the past ten years has been only as rapid as in the ten years previous, our population must now be 31,510,802; and if it has been in the same proportion as that from 1790 to 1800, we have a population of 31,178,998. If this increase shall go on as it has done since 1790, our population in 1870 will be 41,915,468; in 1880, 86,349,083; in 1890, 95,852,890; in 1900, 101,833,397; and in 1959, 447,159,670.

It is interesting to compare the growth in population of the different parts of the Union. In 1790 the Mississippi valley had 205,280 inhabitants; while there were 3,708,116 on the Atlantic, and 16,431 on the Gulf of Mexico. There was not a single pioneer west of the Mississippi. In 1850 there were 117,271 inhabitants on our Pacific coast; 8,641,754 in the Mississippi valley; 12,729,759 in the Eastern States; and 1,702,992 in the States east and west of the Mississippi bordering on the Gulf. In 1850, 37.2 per cent of the population of the Union were in Mississippi valley, 54.8 in the Eastern States, and 7.3 in the South. Thus is the political power of the country centering in the Mississippi valley.

The foreign immigration in the last ten years has been more than 3,000,000. We have now a white population of about 26,500,000. The slaves number less than 4,000,000. The free negroes, numbering about 500,000, are found alike in the free and the slave states. Their increase is not rapid, but it is uniform throughout the South. In 1850, there were 265,000 of them in the South, and 196,000 in the North.

The States which have increased the most in population from 1840 to 1850, are Wisconsin, Iowa, Arkansas, Michigan and Illinois. Those that have progressed the least in that time are Vermont, New Hampshire, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia. Of these, Vermont is the slowest, and North Carolina the quickest, in increase.

The greatest increase of population, therefore, is seen in the Central States, especially in the Northwest and Southwest, which are consequently, to that extent, appropriating the decreasing political power of the East.

Ten years ago we had thirty States. Now we have three more free States—California, admitted in September, 1850, and Oregon and Minnesota in 1859; and the Territories of Utah, New Mexico, Washington, Nebraska, Kansas, organized in the last ten years. Four other Territories are proposed: Arizona, Dacotah, Jefferson, and Nevada. Arizona, situated in the Rio Grande Valley, has 100,000 square miles of territory and 10,000 inhabitants of whom nine-tenths are Mexicans. Dacotah, lying west of Minnesota, and Iowa, has an area of 65,000 square miles, 8000 inhabitants.

But little is known of Nevada and Jefferson, except that the former lies near California, and the later contains the famous Pike's Peak mines. The riches of Arizona consist in minerals. Dacotah has a rich soil, like the States of the Northwest. Its population increases rapidly. Before the close of 1860, the census will disclose facts that will greatly increase our national importance in the eyes of the world.—Globe.

A GOOD STORY.—From the time the Bulkhead Bill reached the Governor, his Excellency was remorselessly bored by a couple of bulkheaders, both of San Francisco, and one a member of our Board of Supervisors. They stuck to the Governor, like euckelburs to a horse's mane. They were as constant in their visits as the old maiden cousin who came twice a year and staid six months at each occasion. It was impossible to shrug them off, or shake them off, or hint them off. So the Governor resigned himself to his annoyance, and pursued his duties as if he did not see or hear them. The day when he had completed his Veto Message, his two persecutors were as usual in his office. He gave the document to his secretary, without explaining what it was, and the latter proceeded with it to the Senate. The Governor then leaned back in his chair, as if to enjoy a moment's leisure, when one of the bulkheaders seized the opportunity to reiterate some of his threadbare sophisms in support of his pet swindle. Governor Downey listened with more than his accustomed courtesy and attention, and Parsons' colleague was sure he had made a deep impression. In the middle of his remarks, the Private Secretary returned from the Capitol, and addressing the Governor, said: "That veto has caused a terrible stir down there!" "What veto?" inquired the bulkhead advocate, with terror depicted on his countenance. "What veto, sir?" "Why, the bulkhead veto, to be sure." "Governor," exclaimed the excited man, jumping to his feet, "have you vetoed the Bulkhead Bill?" "Certainly, sir," answered the Governor with quiet sauvity. "THE H—LL YOU HAVE!" screamed the now phrenzied mortal, as he seized his hat and rushed from the room, followed by his no less excited companion, and made tracks for the Capitol.—S. F. Bulletin.

TELEGRAPH LINE TO EUROPE.—A private letter received at Washington from St. Petersburg, Russia, dated January 1st, says P. McD. Collins, our Consul to the Amoor, has been there over 2 months, laboring with the Government to induce them to adopt his telegraphic project to unite Moscow, in Russia, with St. Louis, in Missouri. The popular mind is in favor of it, but the functionaries who have the direction of ways and communications across the Siberia are slow. Mr. Collins has had propositions from English capitalists to construct the whole line, furnishing all materials, with two wires to begin with, at his own estimates. If Mr. Collins' plan is adopted, he thinks he can complete a line from Moscow to St. Louis in three years.

THE LANDER'S WAGON ROAD EXPEDITION.—Among the passengers who arrived in the Sonora on Saturday, April 28th, was W. H. West, one of the officers of Colonel F. W. Lander's Wagon Road Expedition, who comes out to arrange for the re-organization of the road party for operations the coming season. Colonel Lander and the remainder of his corps may be expected by the next steamer. The line to which his labors are directed is known as the Fort Kearny, South Pass and Honey Lake route. The only remaining section to be worked is that from the City of Rocks, in Oregon, to Honey Lake, in California.—S. F. Bulletin.

THE FLOATING BATTERY.—The New York correspondent of the Charleston Mercury writes:

Strolling over Hoboken the other day, I learned that work is still being prosecuted upon that immense mystery—the floating battery—commenced by the late Commodore Stevens, on a contract with the Government. This enigma is carefully fenced in from prying scrutiny of the public; and it is believed that no newspaper reporter has ever found his way into the sacred enclosure. Rumor says that the battery is to be built exclusively of iron, and that it will be strong enough to stand the united broadsides of the English fleet, among which it will glide at pleasure (propelled by steam), and pour out its death volleys from hundreds of port-holes. This battery has already been seven or eight years in progress of construction; nearly a million of dollars have been spent upon it, and it is nowhere near completion. It is intended to be the principal defence of the harbor.

NO EXCUSE NOW FOR BEING DIRTY. Discovery of a Soap Mine.—Wonders never cease.—Petroleum discoveries must cease to be of account when placed beside that alleged to have been made in the town of Portland, Chautauque county, New York, last week. The Fredonia Censor says:

There has been quite an excitement caused by the discovery of a very singular formation of what is termed "mineral soap." Some of this peculiar substance has been left at the Censor office for inspection. It looks and appears for all the world like old soap-grease. When rubbed upon boots or other leather it seems the real grease. When the watery vapors are dried out of it, it burns with a strong flame and oily odor. This soapy deposit is situated about a half-mile north westerly from Centerville, in a rough, wild and marshy valley, which runs from the railroad north-erly towards the lake.

A family, consisting of husband wife, sister-in-law, and daughter, were arrested last week in Louisville, Kentucky, who had been making a good thing out of the insurance companies. Their plan was to rent a house, stock it with hired furniture, on which they would get insurance, and then burn down the house, having previously run off the furniture. This game they played in several cities, but were caught at it in Louisville. The game is now blocked for a time.

In a lot of Peruvian guano, received at Petersburg, Va., were found the remains of the hand of a human being, about twice the usual size of that member of those now living, which shows that a race of men of extraordinary size once inhabited that portion of the world.

The French Guards of San Francisco, received per Sonora, their uniforms for sixty men.

The Branch Mint at San Francisco coined last week $490,000, in double eagles.

The Odd Fellows of Marysville intend erecting a magnificent hall in a central portion of that city.

$50,000 are to be borrowed to get the Great Eastern to sea without delay.

THE KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

POETRY.

Monterey.

BY CAPTAIN MAYNE REID.

Hang thyself brave Crillon! We have fought at Arques, and you were not there.—Henry IV. (of France) to Crillon.

We were not many—we who stood Before the iron sleet that day— Yet many a gallant spirit would Give half his years, if he but could Have been with us at Monterey.

Now here, now there, the shot it hailed In deadly drifts of fiery spray, Yet not a single soldier quailed, When wounded comrades round them wailed There dying about at Monterey.

And on, still on our columns kept Through walls of flame its withering way; Where fell the dead the living steep, Still charging on the guns that swept The slippery streets of Monterey.

The foe himself recoiled aghast When, striking where he strongest lay, We swooped his flanking batteries past, And braving fall their murderous blast, Stormed home the towers of Monterey.

Our banners on those turrets wave; And there our evening bugles play, Where orange boughs above their brave Keep green the memory of the brave Who fought and fell at Monterey.

We are not many—we who pressed Beside the brave who fell that day; But who of us has not confessed He'd rather share their warrior rest, Than not have been at Monterey?

A SLANDERER.—An exchange says: Dr. Rutland, of Nashville, having libeled certain gentlemen of that town, who prosecuted him for murder, has been compelled to sign the following and receive twenty-five lashes:

"I now state that all the assertions made by me in that card derogatory to the character of the gentlemen therein named are unqualifiedly false, base and calumnious—lies without shadow or foundation in truth, and as such could only be concocted in the brain of a wretch as degraded, infamous and contemptible as myself."

LET not one failure discourage you. He that has had a fall may stand as upright as ever he did.

SOAP!! SOAP!!

THE CHEMICAL SOAP COMPANY, Having located their Works in Sacramento, at the late Soap Works of H. HELLMAN

On the Corner of E and Fifteenth sts., Would take this method of calling the attention of the citizens of this city and the adjoining country to their Soaps.

This Soap was first invented in New York city in 1850, and in 1851 was sent to Europe to the World's Fair, where it received the highest and only medal awarded to America on Family Soaps; was pronounced by the examining Committee to be the Best Soap on Exhibition, Out of six hundred and twenty-three varieties! In 1853, received the highest and only medal awarded on Family Soaps at the Crystal Palace World's Fair, held in the city of New York; since which time it has undergone several valuable improvements, and is now hailed as the best renovating Soap in use, as its chemical qualities are such that it will Wash equally as well in Salt Water as in Fresh.
