STATISTICAL REPORT BASED UPON THE INVESTIGATION OF COTTON SPINNING MILLS IN CHINA

Immediately after the inauguration of the Joint Management Board of U.S. aid cotton, the Mill Investigation Team was organized in accordance with the resolution passed in the Cotton Committee meeting of Council for United States Aid, to undertake a nation-wide investigation of all cotton mills in China, especially regarding the number of spindles in place, operable spindles and operating spindles, to be used as a basis of U.S. aid cotton allocation.

The Team, divided into five small groups as mills are distributed into different districts, was consisted of fifteen field workers, of which the Joint Management Board, China Textile Industries, Inc. and National Cotton Textile Manufacturers' Association each sent five men. Each group with one representative each from the three institutions was assigned to one district as the following:

The first and the second group were assigned to investigate mills in Kiangsu, Chekiang and Shanghai-Nanking district; the third group was assigned in Szechuen, Shensi and Yunnan; the fourth group was assigned in Hopei, Shantung, Shansi, Honan, Tientsin and the northeastern provinces and the fifth group was assigned in Hunan, Hupeh, Kiangsi, Kwangtung and Taiwan.

The Investigation Team started out from Shanghai on October 6, 1948 and consummated their work about the end of November. During this period, 227 mills had been investigated. Owing to the transportation difficulties, such as some parts in Shansi and Honan; and the war situation in those provinces like Shantung and the northeastern provinces, it was impossible for the Team to go there. In order to get a complete picture of China's spinning mills, both in the Governmental area and the Communists area, resort was made to use the data from the National Cotton Textile Manufacturers' Association and the defunct National Cotton, Yarn & Cloth Control Commission and compile those separately.
