[New-York, CLX., A. 7.]

Fort George, New York, 3 January 1768.

My Lord,

An application was made to me yesterday by the House of Assembly, setting forth the present distress of the Province on Account of the Scarcity of Paper Money, and requesting at the same time that I would give my assent to a Bill to be brought in for emitting the half of the sum mention'd in His Majesty's late Instructions on that head, as there was not a sufficient quantity of Paper Money for common circulation, occasion'd by the great number of Bills lately cancell'd by the Commissioners appointed for that purpose, By the instruction I find it is not in my power (consistent with my Duty) to give my assent to any such Bill, as His Majesty has been pleased to order expressly that a suspending clause should be inserted in it, and have therefore been under a necessity of refusing to comply with the request made until I shall receive His Majesty's Orders for so doing, but in the mean time promis'd to lay this matter before your Lordship by the first opportunity.

The Distresses of the Province at this time are very great, and are increasing daily, and as the present circulation will by the Limitation of the Laws by which they were issued cease and determine so soon, the Commerce here as well as the ordinary Services of Government must very shortly be exposed to great Inconvenience.—As I have already had the honor of informing your Lordship in my Letter of the 29th of last Month that the House of Assembly had fully complied with every thing which was expected of them, I can with a better grace plead their cause. The present Assembly will be dissolved soon after the Session is finish'd, and it has been customary here to convene them in a short time after a New Election, I have the greatest reason to beleive that if I was impower'd on the opening of the New Session to comply with what is now required by them, such a Proceeding would be attended with such returns of duty and submission as would shew they entertain'd the highest sense of His Majesty's favor on this Occasion, I have the honor to be with the greatest respect My Lord

Your Lordship's most obedient and humble Servant

H. MOORE.

Whitehall 5 Jan : 1768.

Sir,

Agreeable to my letter of the 19th instant I now have the honor of signifying to you His Majesty's Commands that the Boundary line between the several Provinces and the various Indian Tribes be compleated without loss of time, conformable to a report of the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations Copy of which is herewith transmitted

It is his Majesty's Pleasure that before you enter upon this matter you settle in concert with the Commander in Chief of the Army what steps it may be proper to take for the General Execution of this Salutary Measure; and it will also be proper to consult with the different Governors concerning such particular Points as may affect the Several Provinces seperately in order that the Work may be carried through with Cordiality and Dispatch

I am Sir &amp;c

SHELBURNE.

No. 32.

My Lord,

After the mention made in your Lordship's Letter of the 14th of November last that His Majesty had been pleased to approve of the Commissions issued here for settling the differencies respecting the Boundaries of the Colonies of New York and Massachusetts Bay. It is no small mortification to me that I can not as yet transmit to your Lordship any satisfactory Accounts of our Proceedings in consequence of those Commissions. The Commissaries named by each Colony met at New Haven in Connecticut and after several proposals made and rejected by both Parties, return'd home again without coming to any final Resolution of a Settlement of the Line: but as their near approach to an agreement seem'd to indicate that by proper steps taken an amicable conclusion of this matter might be brought about, many letters have since pass'd between M<sup>r</sup> Barnard and myself both public & private in which we have endeavour'd to conciliate the jarring Interests; but nothing is yet concluded on; The Assembly of the Massachusetts Bay was to begin their Session on the 30th Day of last Month, so that We may now expect their final Resolution in a few days, and if this matter does not meet with the desired success here, all the Papers relative to it shall be forwarded to your Lordship with the utmost Expedition.

I should have ended my letter here, but as I find myself embarrass'd on reading the last paragraph of your Lordship's abovemention'd letter which says, "it is to be wish'd that the same method was pursued to settle similar differences with Quebec and New Hampshire." I must beg your Lordship's pardon if my want of apprehension has made me take the meaning of it in a different sense from what was intended. His Majesty having directed by his Proclamation that the 45th degree of Latitude should be the Southern Boundary of Canada, The Governor of that Province has always confined himself to the line prescribed, nor ever claimed any Jurisdiction (that I could hear of) to the Southward of it, & this Province having in the time it was possess'd by the Dutch claim'd to the 45th Degree as well by some old English Grants, it's jurisdiction is now supposed to extend to the abovemention'd Bounds of Canada, without being disputed by Province; In consequence of this as soon after my Arrival here as the Public Business would admit of my absence from this City I determined to settle & fix the line between the two Provinces and accordingly wrote to the Commander in Chief of Canada to let him know what my intentions were desiring at the same time that he would either meet me about the upper end of Lake Champlain at the time mention'd in my letter or that he would depute some person on the part of his Province who might be present at the observations we were to make and see that Justice was done by fixing the Boundary in its proper place; Coll: Irwin, then President of the Council answer'd my letter, and determined to be there himself with the Deputy Surveyor General of Canada; A few days before I left this City Brigadier Carleton arrived from England with a Commission appointing him Lient. Governor of Canada, and we set out together for Lake Champlain on the supposition that we were doing a very essential service to both Provinces, when it was pretty nearly determined by many observations made where the line would pass, M<sup>r</sup> Carleton went to Montreal on some accounts received from thence which made his Presence necessary there, leaving Coll. Irwin and the Deputy Surveyor General of Canada with me to compleat the work which was finish'd in two or three days after, and the Lines were mark'd out on both sides of the River Sorell: In the Map of Lake Champlain which I had the honor to send your Lordship, this Line is drawn as fix'd by us, and many Persons Inhabitants of Canada as well as of New York were present at the time: some Gentlemen from Canada desired I would give them a confirmation of some Grants made by the French Governors on the sides of the Lake, but as those lands were never acknowledg'd by us to be in the Province of Canada and were now apparently to the Southward of the Bounds prescribed by His Majesty's Proclamation their request was refused more especially on their telling me that they desired to have their Lands without paying any Quit Rent to the Crown which was directly contrary to His Majesty's Instructions on that Head. I beg leave to make the following Extract from my letter to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations dated Dec<sup>r</sup> 19th 1766 which was wrote soon after my return to New York "Brigadier Carleton having told me that he intended writing "to your Lordships immediately upon his arrival at Quebec, to request on the part of that "Province that the Boundary Line which had been settled by us might be fixed by His "Majesty's authority where we had mark'd it I have the same request to make on the part of "this Province, as it may be a means of preventing any Litigation hereafter and quieting the "minds of many who are going up early in the Spring to settle in those parts." Their Lordships have never done me the honor to make any answer to this letter, and the Assembly of this Province only waited for the Sanction of His Majesty's approbation of what we had done to empower them to open and continue the Line of Division as far as the Province extends, in which they have no doubt of being join'd by the Province of Canada.

This, my Lord, is our present situation in regard to that Province, and if His Majesty should be pleased to approve of what we have done, I am persuaded it will have all the good Effects mention'd in the joynt Request made by M<sup>r</sup> Carleton and myself in our letters to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations. As to the Province of New Hampshire, since His Majesty's Proclamation declaring the Western Banks of the Connecticut River to be the Boundary of this Province the Governor of New Hampshire has never exercised the least Jurisdiction on this side of the River, and the few Inhabitants of that Quarter have always since that time look'd upon themselves as Inhabitants of this Province; and apply'd to the Legislature here for every assistance they wanted. There being no contest at present between the two Governments in regard to Territorial Jurisdiction, the settlements were increasing very fast till His Majesty's orders came over forbidding any more Grants to be made of Lands there 'till His Pleasure should be farther known; For although I conceiv'd that this Injunction relat'd only to the Lands falsely asserted by Robinson in his Petition to be taken away from the original Proprietors and granted to others, yet I have taken the order in it's greatest Latitude, and gave Public Notice that no Lands whatsoever would be granted on the Connecticut River 'till I had received His Majesty's farther Order: I have already had the honor of informing your Lordship that the Officers who had claim'd Lands under His Majesty's Proclamation, & many other Persons no way interested in the New Hampshire Charters were now suffering by this Restriction as many of them had embark'd all their little fortunes in beginning of Settlements which they did not dare to go on with till they could be assured of having the Lands granted to them. I say nothing more of the Petition of Robinson at present, or of that which was presented by the Society for Propagating the Gospel having already trespass'd on your Lordship by a very long letter I was under a necessity of writing in June last mark'd N<sup>o</sup> 16. as well to justify my own character as to set forth every thing which had been done by the Government here in regard to those Lands, and I hope I made it sufficiently appear that the Society for Propagating the Gospel must have been shamefully impos'd on either by Robinson or some other of his Associates, or they would never have presented such a Petition as they did, and must now beg leave to recommend to your Lordship's Protection the Persons concern'd in the Lands on the Connecticut River who are constantly applying to me, in expectation of hearing that some Orders had been sent over to take of the Restriction which was laid on granting those Lands, by which they would be relieved from that distress in which their present uncertain situation has involved them.—I beg your Lordships Pardon for this long Dissertation, which was only intended to represent the true state of this Province in regard to our Neighbours, Quebec and New Hampshire and to make it appear that due obedience has been shew'd to His Majesty's Proclamations which were issued for determining & ascertaining their Boundaries. I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

most obedient and humble Servant

New York January 21st 1768.

My Lord,

By my letter of the 23<sup>d</sup> of November last, I gave your Lordship an account of the extraordinary Proceedings of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature in this Province, on a Pamphlet which was published in England last Spring, in my vindication, and delivered to His Majesty's Ministers and several Members of Parliament, for their information; and to clear my character from the malicious aspersions, which I was informed had been industriously propagated there. This Pamphlet was reprinted in this Place without my privity, or of any of my friends, as I am now well assured. As I make no doubt of your Lordships receiving that Letter, I shall not give you the trouble of a repetition of it's contents.

The Assembly of this Province met in November last. On the 23<sup>d</sup> of December M<sup>r</sup> Levingston, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court and a Member of Assembly, introduced the consideration of that Pamphlet into the House, and moved that a Committee be appointed to enquire into it, which was done, and M<sup>r</sup> Levingston carried a message from the Assembly to the Council desiring them to appoint a Committee to join the Committee of Assembly, to take that Pamphlet under Consideration. Three of the Council were named for that purpose; Men who are known to be very warm in the matters which are the subject of that Pamphlet.— On the 30th the Report of the joint Committees was made in the Assembly; consisting, as might be expected; of most violent censures on the Pamphlet; and proposing. “that a Committee of Assembly should be appointed to examine and report the unjust charges, with an ample & satisfactory refutation, to discover the Author and Publisher; and declare what they conceive to be the most prudent & effectual measures for applying a suitable Punishment, and deterring others from so iniquitous and dangerous an Offence.”—It is believed however they will not attempt any other refutation than by such like bold assertions.—I have heretofore inform'd your Lordship that the matters of fact related in my Vindication, can all be proved from Authentic Papers in the Plantation Office; I have not been able to discover that any one fact has been pointed out as false, which was not to numbers of people, notoriously true.—To a general charge of falshood and misrepresentation I can give no other Answer. When the Assembly proceed to be more particular, I doubt not I shall be able to give the most satisfactory Answers.—But your Lordship will please to observe that the joint Committee have suggested Measures for Punishment and deterring others. This I presume will sufficiently confirm the reasons I had for writing to your Lordship as I did in my letter of the 23<sup>d</sup> of November.—The Parties against me are both Prosecutors and Judges—they have all the power in their hands, and I may depend on it, they will omit nothing to injure and ruin me.

The Assembly have proceeded to examine several Persons, among whom were my eldest son and son in law. People without doors speak of such steps as inquisitorial and destructive of all private security.—It is known they intend to proceed in the Supreme Court in the same matter. That Court is now seting, the Term commenced last Tuesday. The Report of the joint Committee, of which I enclose a Copy, was published the preceding day. Your Lordship will please to observe that this has an evident tendency to influence Juries, and to favour a cruel prosecution. The faction have so long succeeded by such bold assertions, and by intimidating, while nothing has been done to support the Officers of the Crown, that all men are affraid to appear in opposition to their power.—It were better my Lord to give up the Colonies at once, than thus to expose the Friends of Great Britain to ruin, and the most cruel treatment.

It is certain the Sentiments of disinterested people, have alter'd greatly with regard to my conduct, since the publishing of the Pamphlet here. The notorious truth of the Facts is every Day mentioned by many People. If there was no other proof, of the dangerous state of the Courts of Justice in this Province, as set forth in my Vindication, the present Proceedings put it out of Doubt on the least Reflection.—But my Lord when Judges are Parties and Prosecutors, backed by the influence of the Council and Assembly, and of the Lawyers, who have a dangerous weight in this Government, it may well be fear'd that Juries will not have resolution enough to oppose such power.—As I presume your Lordship will readily imagine on considering the state of the Merchants in the City of New York, mentioned in my last letter.

My friends assure me that from several incidents it appears that the design of my Ennemies is to ruin my Fortune. When a Governor, who is charged with nothing but a scrupulous obedience to the King's Instructions, and submission to an Act of Parliament, cannot defend himself against the malice & resentment of Men who openly deny the authority of Parliament, & submission to the Mother Country, and he be not sufficiently supported and protected; what officer of the Crown will dare to perform his Duty?

My case must have a great influence upon all others, and in that light alone I presume your Lordship will think it deserving your attention: but as it is the case of an Old Servant of the King's who throughout a long life has been attached to the Interest and Authority of the Crown and who has incurred the dangerous resentment of a powerful Faction, by a faithfull discharge of his duty to the best of his abilities, may he not, my Lord, hope for the particular and immediate protection and favour of His Majesty's Ministers; especially as his receiving no marks of either must give the greatest assurance to his Ennemies.

I have at several times, my Lord, informed the King's Ministers, while the Administration was in my hands, that it is impossible that Justice can be administer'd to the People, or the Rights of the Crown & dependance of the Colony be secured, without disinterested Judges. Men of integrity and ability, sufficiently supported, without depending on the pleasure of an Assembly yearly for their scanty allowance. I gave my opinion that our present Judges are not such, and that it would be difficult to find proper Persons in the Province.—It is not easy to support this opinion of the Judges by legal Evidence. They have now given proof by making themselves in the same Cause, Parties, Accusers, and Judges. I wish, my Lord, that you may know from indifferent Persons the opinion which People have of our Judges and Lawyers. And that you may have a true account of the Chief Justice Horsmanden's past conduct in Life.

I must again intreat your Lordship to lay my Case before His Majesty, for His protection against such dangerous & malicious Ennemies, and to obtain some gracious recompense for my losses & sufferings,

I am with the greatest submission

My Lord,

Your most obedient &

faithfull servant

Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the So: Department.

CADWALLADER COLDEN

His Majesty having been graciously pleased to appoint me to be one of his Principal Secretaries of State, and to commit to my care the Dispatch of all such business, relative to His Majesty's Colonies in America, as has been usually Dispatched by the Secretary of State for the Southern Department, I have His Majesty's Commands to signify this Arrangement to you, and His Majesty's Pleasure that your Dispatches be for the future addressed to me, conformable to the Rule of Correspondence prescribed in His Majesty's Order in Council of the 5th of August 1766, a Copy of which is herewith transmitted to you.

It is His Majesty's intention in making the present Arrangement that all possible facility & Dispatch should be given to the business of his Colonies and as nothing can more effectually contribute to this salutary purpose than a frequent and full Communication of all Occurrences that may happen and a regular and punctual transmission of all Acts and Proceedings of Government & Legislature and of such Papers as have any Relation thereto, I have it in Command from his Majesty to recommend this to your particular Attention, His Majesty having observed with concern that this essential part of the duty of His Officers in America has scarcely any where been duly attended to, and in several Colonies particularly in the Charter and Proprietary Governments almost entirely neglected.

I have nothing further to add but to express my earnest wishes that by the utmost Attention & Application I can give, I may be able to fulfill His Majesty's most gracious Intentions and I take the liberty to assure you, that I will not omit to lay your Dispatches, as soon as I receive them before the King, and to forward and assist as far as I am able, your measures for the Publick Service

Fort George, New York 26 Jan<sup>y</sup> 1768

My Lord,

Among the Acts pass'd by the Council & the House of Assembly during the course of this last Session, there was one for the Repeal of two Acts, (the Copies of which are here inclosed) relative to insolvent Debtors in which the Legislative Bodies have interested themselves greatly and were very desirous of having it pass'd into a Law, as the Acts intended to be repealed had been a means of introducing many frauds & abuses loudly complain'd of and had not answer'd the purposes for which they were made. His Majesty's 13th Instruction having forbid the repealing of Acts pass'd here although the Royal assent had not been given to them, has prevented my passing it, and obliged me to transmit by this opportunity the Laws intended to be repealed by this last mention'd Act, that His Majesty's leave may be obtained for that purpose, The inclosed List of Acts repealing former Acts pass'd in this Province was extracted from the Book of our printed Laws and sent to me in order to remove my present objections to this Act, by shewing that His Majesty had never insisted on this Instruction being rigidly observed, since Acts of the kind had been so frequently pass'd for repealing others in Every Governor's time since the year 1708. I do not mention this as any reflection on my Predecessors in the Government here, for I am likewise a delinquent in this respect, the last Article in the List pointing to an Act pass'd here a few days after my arrival from England, which repeals some clauses in former Acts for making Roads in two small precincts here, and in which I was misled by no mention being made of any intended repeal either in the title or preamble of the Act, and I hope your Lordship will have so much indulgence for me as to believe that in my particular situation at that time during the continued scenes of Riot and disorder which prevail'd so long here after I landed that my attention must have been fully taken up with them, and that an omission of the kind might be easily made, especially as the object was so inconsiderable. I beg leave to mention here that my Refusal of passing the abovemention'd Bill has given great uneasiness, and that this Instruction will be the greatest obstacle to the getting of Acts pass'd for any length of time, which I am directed to endeavour at, as the House of Assembly upon being restrain'd from repealing Acts once pass'd to which manifest objections may be afterwards made will of course frame their Bills for as short a space as they can, in order to suffer as little as possible from any Act in which they are not permitted to remedy the inconveniencies when discover'd: I know these to be their present Sentiments, and submit it to your Lordship whether in matters relating intirely to our internal Policy, and in which neither the particular Interests of the Crown, or it's power and Dignity are concern'd, a Relaxation of this Instruction may not be thought proper, and be attended in many circumstances with Benefit to the Province.

I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

most obedient and

humble Servant

H. MOORE.

My Lord,

In obedience to His Majesty's additional Instruction dated Sept<sup>r</sup> 11. 1767 and transmitted to me by your Lordship, directing me "to consider what is likely to be the Effect of the newly "inserted clause in the Militia Act, relative to the Provincial Military Force, and to report my "opinion whether any objection lyes against it." I have made various enquiries concerning the first introduction of the clause and I find as well from general information as from His Majesty's Council here, before whom I this day laid the Instruction, that it was inserted in the Act for the following Reasons,—There are in many Districts of this Province, Independent Companies who acknowledge no subordination to the Colonels of the Militia in those Districts, or will receive any Orders from them, as they look upon the Governor of the Province to be their Colonel and that they are not to obey any Orders but such as they receive from him. This in times of sudden Alarms and Invasions has been productive of bad Consequences, for the Officers of those Companies which are remote from the Seat of Government, being at two great a distance from the Governor to receive any immediate orders from him in such an exigency have chosen their own stations on such an occasion, whereby the part of the country then in danger has not reap'd that advantage from their services, which it might have done, if they had at that time been under the command of the Colonels of the Militia; It was therefore thought proper to put them under such command at that particular time in order to make them more serviceable, but at the same time without any intention of infringing the power of the Governor, who is not only supposed to command them himself, but has frequently given power to the Colonels of Regiments to take upon them the command of such Companies; The Clause as printed in our Laws here differs so much from the quotation in His Majesty's Instruction that I beg leave to lay them both before your Lordship,—The Instruction says “that in case of Alarm or Invasion when the Commander in Chief shall be absent, the command of the Provincial Military Force shall be vested in the respective Colonels of the Independent Companies.” The Clause in our printed Laws runs thus, “that in case of a General Alarm or Invasion all unregimented or independent Companies and Troops, shall in the absence of the Captain General or Commander in Chief be under the immediate command & direction of the Colonel, and in his absence the next commanding Officer of the Regiment or Battalion of the City or County where such unregimented or Independent Companies or Troops are or may be.” Your Lordships will be pleased to observe that the Explanation I have given is adapted to the clause as printed here although it cannot so well be reconciled to the Words of the Instruction.—I do not apprehend that there will be any great difficulty in getting a Militia Law pass'd for five years, but from the Genius and Disposition of the people, I have all the reason in the world to imagine, that the suspending clause directed to be inserted in it will occasion the total failure of the Bill; It would very ill become me to say anything against suspending clauses, and I hope your Lordship will not imagine I presume to do it, but as I have very lately, (and from such information as I think may be depended on) had the honor of informing your Lordship of our situation in regard to our Indian Neighbours, and of our Expectations that Hostilities will soon be commenced against us by them, I thought it incumbent on me to repeat my apprehensions of such a misfortune, and meant only to blend the welfare of the Province committed to my charge, with my Duty and obedience to His Majesty's Orders, I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

most obedient and humble servant

[Mus: Brit: Kings MS., 206, p. 29.]

Whitehall, 20th Feb. 1768.

I am commanded by the King to send you a duplicate of the address<sup>1</sup> to His Majesty from the House of Commons, of the 27th of March, 1766, transmitted to you by the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, on the 1st of August, 1766; to which address you will take care to pay exact obedience, otherwise you will incur the censure of that House.

I am, &amp;c

HILLSBOROUGH.

Earl of Hillsborough to Governor Moore.

[New-York, CLX.]

Whitehall, February 25th 1768.

Sir,

Since the Earl of Shelburne's Letter to you, dated the 14th of Nov<sup>r</sup> last N<sup>o</sup> 12, your several letters to His Lordship from N<sup>o</sup> 22. to N<sup>o</sup> 31. have been received and laid before the King.

His Majesty trusted that the ill consequences flowing from a want of Respect to, and Authority in, the Civil Magistrate, so evidently manifested during the late Disorders on account of the Stamp Act, would have induced all men of Rank & Consideration in the Colony to have co-operated with you in every Measure that could possibly tend to secure the Peace, and promote the Happiness of the Community, and to give that strength and consistency to Government, by which alone it can be supported and therefore it was a great concern to His Majesty to find by your letter N<sup>o</sup> 22. that you had failed in your Expectation of Assistance in this great work from the better sort of People, and more so, that their Backwardness should proceed from Considerations so unworthy those whose duty it is, from the Rank they hold in the Community, to make it's welfare & happiness the objects of their Care & Attention.

His M<sup>ty</sup> is sensible that the wisest & best Institutions that can be framed for the Benefit of Society will fail of their effect, if entrusted to the Execution of Magistrates such as are described in your letter, & therefore His Majesty thinks, that in the case of the Establishment in New York, for the Adjudication of suits of a small value in a summary Way, the Remedy lies in that Reform of the Magistracy you say you propose to make, and which His M<sup>ty</sup> very much approves, and not in the Repeal of the Establishment itself, which has already receiv'd His M<sup>ty</sup>'s sanction & Approbation, and has from a conviction of the Utility of it, been a Measure recommended to the Governors of all the Colonies.

His Majesty is glad to find, that you consider what the Assembly has done, in the case of making Provision for Quartering His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Troops, as a perfect and complete Obedience to the Acts of Parliament; And it will be a great satisfaction to His Majesty, if, upon the

Examination by the Board of Trade of the Law for making this Provision, it shall be found to be such as to justify your opinion. Such a becoming Conduct and Obedience to the Laws of Parliament, in so respectable a Province as that of New York, will do Honor to it's Councils, and cannot fail of making it a peculiar object of that Paternal Regard & Affection which His M<sup>ty</sup> has ever shewn to the Interests of His Subjects in America.

His Majesty trusts that the flagitious & inflammatory Publications inserted in printed News-Papers, with an avowed Design to keep up those Animosities & Divisions between the Mother Country & it's Colonies, which have operated so prejudicially to Both, will be treated, by all wise and sober People, with the contempt they deserve, which will conduce the most effectually to the Disappointment of the Authors.

Sir Wm. Johnson His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Superintendent for the Affairs of the Indians in the Northern District whose Vigilance & Attention to His Duty cannot be too much commended has not failed to communicate in the fullest manner the Apprehension He is under from a variety of Intelligence received through different Channels that the Indians in general are meditating some general attack upon His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Colonies.

Amongst the many causes to which he attributes the present defection of the Savages he seems to lay particular stress on the Uneasiness which they have repeatedly expressed from their not having received His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Determination upon the Proposition of a Boundary Line on the Plan suggested by them in 1765. His Majesty has accordingly sent the fullest Instructions to Sir Wm. Johnson on this head, and it is hoped that the attention which His Majesty has shewn to a matter which they seem to have so particularly at Heart, will have the effect to keep them quiet, and induce them to desist from any intended Hostilities.

The inclosed copy of the Earl of Shelburne's Dispatch to Sir William Johnson of the 5th of last month will fully inform you of the Instructions which have been judged proper on this occasion.

It is not however his Majesty's Intention that the safety of His Colonies should rest upon, or the Bounds of his Justice to the Savages be limited by the Decision of this Point alone. Every other Consideration relative to the Interests of the Colonies in respect to the Indians both commercial & political, will be attended to without Delay, and every complaint of the Savages of matters that either affect them generally, or relate to the Interests of particular Nations, will be examined with the greatest impartiality, and it is hoped that the whole will be finally settled upon such a lasting Basis, as may restore mutual confidence and prevent those abuses of which the Indians have but too much reason to complain.

The King however in the mean time is well pleased with your vigilance & attention to this important subject, and it is a matter of surprize to His Majesty that the Assembly, if the services you mention in your letter, have been fully laid before them, should have refused to reimburse your Expences.

I am truly concerned to find, that the Directions contained in Lord Shelburne's letter to you of the 11th of April 1767, which flowed from that unalterable love of Justice, which is the Foundation of all His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Measures, should have been the Occasion of so much uneasiness as is expressed in your Letter of the 14th of January last, and in that of the 9th of June, to which you refer. You may safely rely that as on the one hand His M<sup>ty</sup> will not suffer the complaints of any of his Subjects, be their Condition what it may, to pass unnoticed, or unattended to, so on the other hand He will not hastily decide upon such charges as may be brought by persons of unknown character against the conduct or fidelity of His Servants employed in Situations of the greatest Trust & Eminence; But I have the satisfaction to acquaint you that His M<sup>ty</sup> does give full and entire credit to what you have alledged in your Justification in the Case of the Complaints exhibited by Captain Robinson.

His Majesty's Order in Council of the 24th of July last directing you to desist from making any further Grants of the Land annexed to New York by that Order which made the River Connecticut the Boundary between that Province and New Hampshire, has, I am informed been transmitted to you, but as I do not find any entry of such transmission in Lord Shelburne's Books, I now for fear of any mistake, inclose to you a Copy of it.

It is not however His Majesty's Intention that such part of the said Land as shall, upon any equitable adjudication, appear to remain for His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Disposal should be locked up from Cultivation & Improvement, longer than is necessary to ascertain those Facts and Allegations in the Petitions on which the Order itself is grounded, & therefore His M<sup>ty</sup> expects that a very full and particular Account should be transmitted with all convenient Dispatch of the actual State in respect to Cultivation and Settlement of such Townships as were laid out by the Governor of New Hampshire, expressing the Degree of such Cultivation, and the Number of Persons actually brought upon the lands, & how far such cultivation and settlement has conformed to the Terms & Conditions expressed in the Grants themselves.

Besides the Circumstances of Enquiring relative to Cultivation and Settlement, there is another Object of Examination relative to the State of this District of very great national Importance which is, how far it is capable of affording a plentiful and lasting supply of Timber proper for Masts for the Royal Navy, and for other naval uses; The Representations which have been made of it, state it to excel almost all others in Advantages of this kind, and surely when the present supply to this Kingdom from it's Colonies of these Important Articles on which it's strength and security so greetly depend, is become so difficult & precarious & consequently the Expence enhanced to an immoderate degree the finding out and securing new Resources, is an object that merits the fullest consideration. It is therefore His Majesty's pleasure, that, in examining into & reporting, a State of this District you should be particularly attentive to this advantage, causing actual surveys to be made of all such Parts as shall be found to produce any considerable growth of White Pine Trees, & taking every possible caution to secure them for His M<sup>ty</sup>'s use, and to prevent any waste or Destruction being committed until His M<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure can be known.

Your letter to Lord Shelburne N<sup>o</sup> 5. which relates to the claims of His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Canadian Subjects, to lands on that part of Lake Champlain, which is now a part of the Colony of New York, has been referred to the Lords of Trade and their Lordships having made a Report to His M<sup>ty</sup> thereupon, It is his M<sup>ty</sup>'s Resolution upon the fullest consideration not to allow any claims made upon the ground of ancient grants from the Government of Canada to Lands which were never acknowledged to belong of right to the Crown of France.

His M<sup>ty</sup> has the most tender Regard to the Rights of His new Subjects, and is desirous of giving every proper Testimony of His Attention to their Interests and Welfare, & therefore it is His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Pleasure, that they should not be disturbed in the peaceable possession of any Tracts so circumstanced, which they may have actually settled & improved, provided they consent to establish their Title by Grants under the seal of the Province of New York, upon the usual Conditions of Quit Rent and Improvement.

In this Case therefore, as well as in that which I have already mentioned, relative to the lands between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut, it will be necessary that very exact information should be transmitted of the State of these claims, and of the Degree of Cultivation and Settlement upon every Tract claimed as well by His Mátý's natural born subjects as by His new subjects of Quebec, and that the same Measures and Precautions should be taken in respect to the Preservation of Pine Trees, with which there is good Reason to beleive this Country does also plentifully abound.

His Majesty has been graciously pleased in considering the Request of the Assembly, concerning a Paper Currency mentioned in your Letter N<sup>o</sup> 31. to give to it the greatest Attention. And the Assembly may rest assured that it will ever be an Object of His Mátý's care and attention to promote by reasonable and proper Measures, the Interests of His Subjects in every part of His Dominions, and to give all possible Relief in every case of real Difficulty & Distress; But both you and they must know that as the Law now stands, the allowing any of the Colonies to Issue Paper Bills of Credit with a Legal Tender, is not a matter left to the Discretion of the Crown, & that it would be inconsistent with repeated Resolutions of the House of Commous to allow Paper Bills of Credit under any Description to be created by Laws made to take effect before His Mátý's Pleasure could be known, and therefore if it were wished to have such a Paper Currency in the Province of New York as the Law allows, His Majesty does not see what reasonable pretence there could be for not transmitting with the Request the Draught of such a Bill as they proposed to enact.

The prohibiting the Governors of those Colonies which are under the immediate Government of the Crown from assenting in particular cases to Laws, until His Mátý's Pleasure should be known, upon a full communication of all the Regulations intended to be established, is a Right inherent in the Crown, upon the Principles of the Constitution of those Colonies; But in order to remedy as much as possible any Inconvenience which might attend the Operation of this necessary and Constitutional Restriction upon the Exercise of the legislative Power of the Colonies, the Wisdom of Government has substituted the regulation of the suspending Clause merely as an alternative to prevent that Delay which would attend the passing a Bill thro' all it's forms after the Crown had signified it's consent that it should be enacted into a Law. This, Sir, is I conceive the exact state of the case with respect to the suspending Clause, and therefore I am at a loss to guess upon what Ground it is that the Assembly object to a Regulation that has been evidently calculated to give every possible advantage and Benefit which can be given, without departing from those Constitutional Principles on which the Government of the Colonies was founded.

I have it in command from His Mátý to transmit to you the enclosed Copies of Two Letters to the Earl of Shelburne from M<sup>r</sup> Colden stating the Injustice of the Assembly's Refusal to Compensate him for his losses by the Mob on the 1st of Nov<sup>r</sup> 1765. and to pay him the arrears of Salary due to him at the time of your Arrival.

It is His Majesty's Pleasure that you should examine into the state and nature of these Demands, and in case you find them just & reasonable that you should recommend to the Assembly to provide for the Discharge of them, as a matter of Justice that ought not to be denied from Considerations of any Dissatisfaction which the conduct of that Gentleman may have occasioned.

Governor of New York.

My Lords.

I have the honor of transmitting to your Lord<sup>ships</sup> by this opportunity the Acts of Assembly passed in the late Session to which an end was put on the 6th day of this month by a dissolution, as they had sat seven years, and new writs are issued returnable some time in March. Most of these Acts have been passed in former sessions and only continued in this for some time longer, two or three very short new Acts, are as fully explained in their titles as I could do by letter, but it is necessary, that I should make some observation on two, which are not only new but require some explanation. The first is intitled "An Act to declare the extention of several Acts of Parliam<sup>t</sup> made since the establishment of a Legislation in this Colony, and not declared in the said Acts to extend to the Plantations." The uncertain determinations, and different opinions of the Judges relative to Acts of Parliament, and the confusion, which of course ensued in the Law proceedings here have occasioned this Act, that there might be some fixed and permanent rule to go by, for an Act of Parliament in which the Colonies were not mentioned, was pleaded in one term and rejected in the next, so that in effect the issue of a cause depended not so much on the right of the Client, as on the breath of the Judge, and what was looked upon as a very good plea in one circuit was disallowed in another; Your Lord<sup>ships</sup> may easily imagine, what must have been the consequence of this method of Acting, and the difficulties under which all the suitors in the Courts must have laboured. This Act was intended to remedy these inconveniencies and only a certain number of Acts of the English Legislature adopted, as many of them were merely local, and could not be of any service here, or indeed properly carried into execution in our present situation. The second, is the "Act for the more effectual vesting the real and personal Estate whereof Abraham De Peyster<sup>1</sup> Esq<sup>r</sup>, late Treasurer of this Colony died seized and possessed, in Trustees for the payment of his debts"—M<sup>r</sup> De Peyster's death happening during the recess of the Assembly, his executors upon a thorough examination of the State of his Affairs before the session began, found, that he had died so much indebted to the Province, that it was apprehended all the Estate he left behind him, would hardly be able to satisfy the public Demand; Upon this, for the Credit of the Family, all the parties interested in the succession determined to petition the Assembly for a Bill, to vest the Estate in trust for the payment of the monies due, and the house of Assembly were proceeding on a supposition, that such a Bill would pass, provided the Heirs declared their willingness to give up every thing to the Govern<sup>t</sup>. As soon as I was informed of this, I sent a copy of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Instruction relative to private Bills to the Council and desired they would lay it before the Assembly in the conference, they were to have together that morning, concerning M<sup>r</sup> De Peyster's Affairs, that they might regulate themselves accordingly in the forming of the Bill then before them; I likewise gave them to understand, that as it was apparent the Instruction was designed to check the Colony Legislative (when exercising Judicial) Authority not only by preserving the Crown's claim as the dernier resort of Justice in Plantation causes, but by securing private property from being sacrificed to the spirit of Party, <sup>1</sup> ABRAHAM DE PEYSTER, eldest son of Abraham, supra, IV., 777, was born in New-York on the 28th August, 1696, and married Margaret, eldest daughter of Jacobus van Cortland, 1st July, 1722. He was elected Treasurer of the Province 2d June, 1721, and died 17th September, 1767, aged 71. De Peyster Genealogy, 28. — Ed.

no designs of the Legislature though never so public spirited and laudable, could furnish reasons for disregarding an instruction important to the Crown and safe to the People. Neither the Council, nor the Assembly were strangers to the Instruction, it had been often made use of and the security derived from it to their properties left no room to entertain thoughts of evading it, but they did not think the present Bill to be the object of it; they had now changed the first Plan for the proprietors of the Treasurer's Estate had by a voluntary act and Deed transferred all their Rights and title to it, to public Trustees for public uses, it was their opinion, that it thenceforth became public property, and no individual being any longer interested in it, of course a Law might be as freely passed relative to that Estate as to any money in the Treasury, all of it now belonging to the public with no other difference, than that some part of the fund consisted of Land, Bonds etc and the rest of cash. When matters were so far advanced, I sent for one of the Sons-in-Law of the late Treasurer, who confirmed to me what I have here related; and I afterwards mentioned to him His Majesty's Instruction concerning private Bills, telling him at the same time, that if there had been the least reluctance in any of the parties interested to make the conveyance, that it must necessarily put a stop to the Bill in its present form, oblige us to go through the whole ceremony prescribed of publication, and afterwards of inserting a suspending clause, till the King's pleasure should be known, but he assured me, that the conveyance was voluntary, and that all parties interested in the succession desired nothing more than, that the Estate sh<sup>d</sup> be applyed as far as it would go to satisfy the debt due to the Province. The Members of His Majesty's Council being of opinion, that as the conveyance absolutely extinguished all private Interest, the Bill in question did not come under the Instruct<sup>n</sup> I had sent to them, they passed it, and by their advice I gave my assent to it, as from the circumstances here set forth—I did not apprehend that either the Crown or the subject would be injured by it. These, My Lords, are the reasons, why this Bill now appears without the usual certificate and suspending clause, and as there was not the least design in any of the branches of the Legislature to evade His Majesty's Instruction, we hope to find Your Lordsh<sup>ps</sup> sentiments concur with ours on this occasion. I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect—

My Lords.

Your Lordships most obedient
and humble servant

Fort George, New York, 5th March 1768.

My Lord,

In many letters which I have had the honor of writing to your Lordship, I have been under a necessity of mentioning the difficulties I have struggled with for two years past in bringing back to a sense of their Duty those minds which the late tumults and disorders here had so much inflam'd, and at the same time could not avoid laying before your Lordship the present weakness of the Government in many Instances, so ill attended to by those here whose business it is to support it; I however flatter'd myself that by perseverance and a constant attention to the Duties of my Commission I should be able to surmount the obstacles thrown in my way, and thought I had great reason for such expectations from the Conduct of the House of Assembly in their last Session which was so different from what I found on my arrival here; A new difficulty has now arose, and it comes from a Quarter so little expected, that my Duty obliges me to lay it before your Lordship by this first opportunity which has offer'd since it was started, as it has so manifest a Tendency to raise heats and animosities in the minds of His Majesty's Subjects here.—The Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces claims by Virtue of his Instructions a Superiority over all the Governors of America upon all occasions and the same was notify'd to me last week by the General who sent me a Copy of the Rules establish'd by His Majesty in Council on the 17th of December 1760. for the Precedence to be observed by the several Officers therein mention'd in which the words upon all occasions are so far insisted on, as to set up claims which can only tend to irritate the minds of the People and prejudice His Majesty's service, I waited on the General immediately on the Receipt of his letter & endeavour'd to make appear the mistake he was under not only from an Extract of my Commission which commanded all Officers & Ministers Civil & Military and all other Inhabitants of the Province and the Territories depending thereon, to be obedient, aiding and assisting to me in the execution of my Commission, but from the Instruction itself, which seem'd plainly to point out that he was to preside upon all occasions where the Persons therein mention'd could be assembled, and as this would never be done but in times of Danger, the Authority of this Order seem'd only confined to such public occasions: I lost no time in laying this matter before a very full Board of His Majesty's Council, as I thought that it might be attended with worse consequences than the General seem'd to apprehend, especially in regard to the provision to be made for the Troops here which having been so lately comply'd with in the terms required by the Act of Parliament, it was with much concern I saw any such claim set up, never having seen the Instruction since my arrival here till last Week or indeed known that there was such a one, and at this particular juncture I could not but look on the claim now insisted on as injudicious and ill timed. The Council gave me the following unanimous opinion after having consider'd the Instruction with the greatest attention. viz' 1st They apprehended it to be His Majesty's Intention that upon all occasions where the particular Officers whose Precedence was therein settled, could be conven'd, that the Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces was always to preside as this Assemblage of Officers of different denominations, could be look'd upon in no other light than that of a Council of War, call'd together in times of Danger.

2<sup>dy</sup> That the right of Presiding in such a Meeting was by this Instruction always vested in the Commander in Chief of the Forces, whether the Congress was general, & took in all the Governors of North America or only partial and the Meeting confined to a consultation among a few of them held for the safety of any particular Province then threaten'd with any impending danger.

3<sup>dy</sup> That they have always look'd upon the Person appointed by His Majesty to be his Captain General and Governor in Chief of the Province, to be the First Officer in rank here being vested with that authority which constitutes a supreme Command, such as calling of Assemblies, passing Laws, pardoning Criminals &c<sup>a</sup> and that as His Majesty's immediate Representative here, he must have a superiority over all persons in the Province it being expressly so declared in his Commission.—4th That as it is contrary to the Establishment of the British constitution that the Civil Power should be subordinate to the Military, they can by no means join in opinion with the Commander in Chief of the Forces that the Precedence and Superiority claim'd by him over the Civil Governor can possibly extend to any thing farther than the Right of Presiding in the above mention'd Public Assemblies, upon all occasions where they shall meet, and that any other construction put on those Words would open a door to Scenes of Confusion and disorder, for that if once a Military Commission was acknowledg'd as Superior to the Civil one, the words upon all occasions might be interpreted in such a sense, and with so much Latitude, as to leave little else to the Civil Governor but the bare name

5th That the only Cognizance which can be taken here of any Crimes committed by the Civil Governor is by making a Representation of them to His Majesty, who would in that case immediately suspend an Officer unworthy of his commission, and by commanding the Government of the Province to be deliver'd up to the Lieu<sup>t</sup> Governor or President of the Council reduce the Civil Governor to the station of a private Man in order to his being brought to such punishment as the Laws of his Country should think him deserving. This is far from being the case in regard to the Commander in Chief of the Forces, who is in every respect subject to the coercive power of the Laws in the first instance and can be compell'd to the same obedience which is exacted from the rest of the King's Subjects for every offence he may commit; The claim therefore set up of a Superiority to the Civil Governor upon all occasions may be extended so far as to be repugnant to the establish'd Laws of the Land. These, my Lord, were the sentiments of His Majesty's Council on the occasion, which I told them I should immediately transmit to your Lordship, & I hope I shall not be thought to trespass too much on your Lordship's Time by the small addition of what I think incumbent on me to say on so disagreeable a subject. No Man would endeavour more carefully than myself to avoid every Act which could create a misunderstanding between the General and myself; No advantage can arise from it to the Community, and as His Majesty's service may suffer by it, it is the Duty of both to prevent it as far as lays in our power; For this reason, I have done nothing more than assert the right I apprehend to be vested in me by my Commission, declaring at the same time my Intentions of conforming strictly to the Instructions of which a Copy was sent to me, in case of any public meeting of the Governors; As my Opinion did not differ from that of the Council in any one Article, I shall not here recapitulate what they said but would only beg leave to observe to your Lordship that in many Instances the minds of the people here would be so much affected with a Claim of this kind as to make them lose all that respect now shew'd to His Majesty's Civil Governor here.—It has been an establish'd Custom here on His Majesty's Birth Day for the Inhabitants to assemble at the Fort, which is the residence of the Governor, & who receives the Compliments of the Day in His Majesty's name, The Council and Assembly (if sitting), The Clergy of all the different Communion, The Mayor Aldermen & Common Council men of the City, and all Persons of any Consideration meet there at Noon, The King's health is drunk by every body present in great form under a discharge of the Cannon of the Fort, and the Day concluded by Public Entertainments and Illuminations throughout the Town. A ceremony of this kind so essential to preserve and keep up in the minds of the People that respect which is due to His Majesty, and which has been constantly practiced here, would drop at once on the Assertion of a Superiority in the General's Commission, and the claim asserted by him produce no other effect in this case, than that of putting an end to a Meeting always encouraged on that day, and preventing the Persons I have here mention'd from shewing for the future that respect they intended to the Birth Day of their Sovereign, for none of them have the least connection with or can look upon the Commander of the Forces here to be their Chief, and of course will be ready enough to forbear paying a Court, they do not think due to him either on that or any other occasion; In every other civil Ceremony of which there are various kinds, & in which the Military have no part, this claim must constantly excite a Dispute, and set the Civil and Military Powers at variance. But the consequences in none of them are so much to be dreaded as in the obstacles they may hereafter occasion in the provision required for the Troops agreeable to the Act of Parliament, and which your Lordship has seen I have never been able to effect 'till the last Session. The Suspension of the Legislative powers here, was a measure which very much alarm'd the People, although it was nothing but what they deserved, and no pains were spared to excite a commotion among them by the Seditious Papers publish'd every Week in the Massachusetts Government calculated to impose on the credulous and unwary, They were made to believe that this was only the first step towards the total abolition of the Civil Power in order to introduce a Military Government, and continued in that persuasion till the conduct of the Assembly (by providing for the Troops) convinc'd them of their Error; These mistaken notions are again revived, by them upon the present claims of the Commander in Chief of the Forces, as the Words upon all occasions are liable to be construed in so extended a sense as to affect every act of Governm't.—I have twice during my Administration desired the Generals assistance at the Council Board, which he has readily given, I there placed him at my right hand as it was my Intention to treat him with all the respect due to him, although I was then totally unacquainted with any pretensions he had in consequence of the Instruction, or with the Instruction itself; If the claim asserted within these few days must have the unlimited meaning which is given to it, I must either forego the assistance which the General's presence in Council may render very necessary for His Majesty's service by not calling upon him on such an occasion, or give up the Power and Authority vested in me by my Commission which I apprehend takes place at all times in this Province except on those public occasions where His Majesty has been pleased by the Instruction to the General to direct the contrary; This, my Lord, is our present situation, occasion'd by the late extensive claim, and I can assure your Lordship that it is not from a Motive of Vanity but Duty that I have oppos'd it, as I fear it may disturb the present internal Tranquillity of the Province; and as I have no other views but those of promoting the King's Service I must with all submission request that the point in dispute may be settled, and that His Majesty's pleasure may be known upon the few heads to which this dispute may be reduced. 1st Whether those Words upon all Occasions in the Instruction are not declaratory of the General's Right to preside upon all occasions where the Officers therein mention'd can be conven'd for the Public Service, as it does not appear how it can affect them at any other time, The Governors, Lieu<sup>t</sup> Governors and Presidents of the Council being directed to take their places according to the dates of their Commissions and the Charter Governors according to the dates of their Charters?

2<sup>dly</sup> Whether on every other occasion the Civil Governor of the Province is not to be deem'd the King's immediate Representative, as he is vested with the Supreme Command, and of course must preside in all civil affairs?

3<sup>dly</sup> And whether the Civil Governor can be suppos'd in any shape to be subordinate to, or in a Station inferior to the Commander in Chief of the Forces, except at the times mention'd in the Instruction where his Place is fixed by His Majesty's Order among the other Persons appointed to assemble? I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect

[ Plantations General ( S. P. O. ) CCLIV. ]

TO THE KINGS MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY

May it please Your Majesty,

In obedience to your Majesty's Commands signified to us by a letter from the Earl of Shelburne one of your Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State dated the 5 of October last, we have taken into our most serious consideration the several Memorials Letters & other Papers therewith referred to us containing objections to, and observations upon the present Plan for the management of Our Commerce with the Indians in North America; stating the great expense attending as well that Branch of Service, as the present disposition of the Troops for Indian purposes and urging the expediency and propriety, in various Lights, of Establishing certain new Governments upon the Mississippi, the Ohio and at the Detroit, between the Lakes Erie and Huron; We have also conferred upon this occasion with such of your Majesty's Military Servants, has have been employed in North America, and with such Merchants and others as are most intelligent in the North American and Indian Trade.

Whereupon we humbly beg leave to represent to your Majesty,

That the subject matter, to which these Papers refer, and the Questions arising thereupon, stated to us in the Earle of Shelburne's letter, appear to us to lead to a consideration of no less consequence and importance, than what System it may be now proper for your Majesty to pursue, with respect to that vast and extensive Country in North America, which on account of the Indian War raging within it, was made by the Proclamation of the 7 of October 1763, the object of mere provisional arrangements.

The advantages arising from the Treaty of Paris, are in no part of it more distinguished than in those stipulations, which by obtaining from France and Spain Cessions to your Majesty of those important Possessions in North America which by their situation gave most alarm and annoyance to the British Colonies, laid the foundation of lasting security to your Majesty's Empire in North America, and of relief to this Country by a reduction of that heavy Expense with which it was necessarily burthen'd for the defence and protection of those Colonies; And although the unfavourable impressions left upon the minds of the Indians by the event of the War, and the representations of the French that we meant to extirpate them, did for sometime involve us in a War with them, that rendered necessary the continuance of a large Military Establishment; Yet that War being happily ended and Treaties of Peace and Friendship to which all the various Tribes have acceded having been finally concluded, it is now become of immediate importance to examine, how far the alteration; which has thus taken place in the State of your Majesty's Dominion in North America, may require or admit of any proportionable alteration in the System, by which that part of your Majesty's Service is to be carried on for the future.

The parts of the Service for which we are more immediately called upon by the Earl of Shelburne's letter to give Our attention, are First, The present Civil Establishment regarding the Indians Secondly, The disposition of the Troops for Indian purposes; and lastly, the Establishment of certain new Colonies.

With respect to the first of these Points, we are directed to state Our opinion, how far the present expenses of the Civil Establishment regarding the Indians may with safety and propriety be reduced, by entrusting the Indian Trade, and all other Indian Affairs to the management of the several Colonies.

In considering this Question it may be proper to observe that the Institution of Superintendants for the Affairs of Indians appear to have been a measure originally adopted principally with a view to counteract the designs of the French in 1764, who by sowing the seeds of Jealousy amongst the Indians, and exciting them to resent Injuries for redress of which they had in vain solicited the Colonies, had well nigh entirely weaned them from the British Interest, and at the same time by uniting the force and conducting the enterprizes of the Savages, had rendered them an Over match for your Majesty's Colonies standing single and disunited.

In order therefore to balance the danger arising from this more immediate Union and Co-operation of the French with the Indians it became necessary to provide a more Systematical as well as more extensive plan of defence for the Colonies than had before been requisite; a plan which might bear some Proportion to the extent of the efforts then made by their Enemies, and which having for its object the preservation of all your Majesty's Colonies from the common Danger, could no otherwise be administered with safety, or with effect, than under the immediate controul of their common Sovereign & Protector: and the utility of such a plan under those circumstances was soon manifested by its consequences, and by the share it had in contributing to that Success, which ever after attended the British Arms in America.

From the slight view of the original Causes of the institution of Superintendants, and of the consequence it produced, it cannot but appear evident, that every objection both to the expense and difficulty in execution was answered by the necessity of the Case, and importance of the object; but should it appear to your Majesty that the alteration in the state of America, since the Peace, has rendered the measure less necessary at least in its full extent, every consideration both of expence, and of difficulty in the execution, must now be carefully attended to; before a right Judgement can be formed, as to the expediency of continuing either the whole or any part of it.

To maintain a good Correspondence with the Indians is undoubtedly an object of great importance: and upon a carefull examination into the state of Indian Affairs after the conclusion of Peace, it appears that the two principall Causes of the discontent, that still rankled in the minds of the Indians and influenced their Conduct, were the encroachments made upon Lands which they claimed as their Property, & the Abuses committed by Indian Traders and their Servants: The necessity which appeared in the then state of Our Interest with the Indians of making some immediate provision against these two causes of their discontent induced the Proclamation of October 1763; which very prudently restrained all persons from Trading with the Indians without licence; and forbid by the strongest prohibitions, all Settlement beyond the limits therein described as the boundary of the Indian hunting Ground, putting both their commerce and property under the protection of Officers acting under your Majesty's immediate Authority and making their intervention necessary in every transaction with those Indians.

These however being as we have before observed, mere provisional arrangements adapted to the exigence of the time; it is become now necessary to consider what may be more permanently requisite in both the Cases to which they apply.

The giving all possible redress to the complaints of the Indians in respect to encroachments on their Lands, and a steady and uniform Attention to a faithful execution of whatever shall be agreed upon for that salutary purpose, is a consideration of very great importance; It is a Service of a general nature, in which your Majesty's Interest as Lord of the Soil of all ungranted Lands which the Indians may be inclined to give up, is deeply and immediately concerned, and with which the general security of your Majesty's possessions there is in some measure connected; it is an object comprehensive of a variety of Cases, to which the separate authority and Jurisdiction of the respective Colonies is not competent, and it depends upon negotiation, which has always been carried on between Indians and Officers acting under your Majesty's immediate authority, and has reference to matters which the Indians would not submit to the discussion of particular Colonies.

For these reasons we are of opinion, that the execution of all measures and circumstances respecting the complaints of the Indians touching their Lands should be continued to be entrusted to the Superintendants at present acting under Commission from your Majesty, reserving to the Governor and Council of every particular Colony, which may be interested in any measure that has reference to this general Service, a right to interpose their Advice, and making their concurrence necessary to the Ratification of ever compact, that shall be provisionally made, until your Majesty's pleasure shall be known upon it.

In a plan for the management of Indian Affairs prepared by this Board in 1764, the fixing a Boundary between the Settlements of your Majesty's Subjects and the Indian Country was proposed to be established by compact with the Indians, as essentially necessary to the gaining their good will and affection, and to preserving the tranquility of the Colonies.

This Plan having been communicated to the Superintendants they have in the consequence thereof, made the proposition of such a boundary line an object of their particular attention, & of negotiation and discussion with the several Tribes of Indians interested therein.

In the Southern district a Boundary line has not only been established by actual Treaties with the Creeks, Cherokees and Chactaws, but as also, as far as relates to the Provinces of North and South Carolina, been marked out by actual Surveys, and has had the happy effect to restore Peace and Quiet to those Colonies.

In the Northern District the proposition appears to have been received by the Indians with the strongest marks of approbation and satisfaction, and a line of separation was in 1765 suggested by them, in which Sir William Johnson acquiesced, declaring at the same time, that he could not finally ratify it without your Majesty's further directions.

The paper (Appendix A) contains a description of the several Lines as agreed upon in the negotiation to which we refer, and to the end Your Majesty may have a more perfect view of them, we have annexed to such description a Map, in which we have endeavoured to trace those lines with as much accuracy as the general Maps of America will admit of.

Your Majesty will be pleased to observe that altho on the one hand the Settlements in the new established Colonies to the South are confined to very narrow limits; yet on the other hand the middle Colonies (whose state of population requires a greater extent) have room to spread much beyond what they have hitherto been allow'd and that upon the whole one uniform and complete line will be formed between the Indians and those antient Colonies, whose Limits not being confined to the Westward has occasioned that extensive settlement which being made without the consent of the Indians, and before any line was settled, produced the evil complained of.

In comparing the Map with the description in writing as taken from the Treaties with the Indians, your Majesty will observe, that the boundary line with the Six Nations and their allies is made upon the Map to terminate at that part of the Ohio, where it receives the Connahway River, instead of continuing it down the Ohio to the Cherokee River, and up that River to its source, as described in the Treaty; the reason for which is, that although the six Nations may have pretensions to the Dominion of the Country on the South side of the Ohio lower down than the Connahway River yet in fact it is more occupied by the Cherokees and other independant Tribes, as their hunting Ground; and therefore the making any Settlements beyond the Connahway River, or at least beyond a line drawn from the Mouth of it, to where the Cherokee line now terminates as marked on the Map would be altogether inconsistent with what has been settled and agreed upon with that Nation for which reason we think, that the line settled with the Southern Indians, and that which remains to be settled with the Six Nations, ought to be united in the manner we have described.

Upon the whole it does appear to us, that it will be greatly for your Majesty's Interest as well as for the Peace, Security and Advantage of the Colonies that this boundary line should as speedily as possible be ratified by your Majesty's Authority and that the Superintendants should be instructed and empowered to make Treaties in your Majesty's name with the Indians for that purpose, and enabled to make such presents to the Indians as the Nature and extent of the Concessions on their part shall appear to require. care however should be taken in the Settlement of this business, that the agreement for a boundary line be left open to such alterations as, by the Common consent, and for the mutual Interest of both parties may hereafter be found necessary & expedient.

If your Majesty should be graciously pleased to approve what we have here recommended, we humbly submit whether it may not be further necessary that the Colonies should be required to give every sanction to the measure in their power and to provide by proper laws for the punishment of all persons, who shall endanger the publick peace of the Community, by extending Settlements or occupying lands beyond such line.

What we have above stated in respect to the expediency of continuing the Office of Superintendants is confined merely to Negotiation with the Indians concerning the boundary line; But we humbly submit, that there are other Branches of Duty and Service, which though they be of less urgency yet do both from their Nature and importance require the intervention of Officers acting under your Majesty's immediate Authority and which as they have reference to the general interests of the Indians, independent of their connection with any particular Colony, cannot be provided for by the Provincial Laws, such are the renewal of antient Compacts or Covenant-Chains made between the Crown and the principal Tribes of Savages in that Country; the reconciling Differences and disputes between one body of Indians and another; the agreeing with them for the sale or surrender of Lands for public purposes not lying within the limits of any particular Colony; and the holding interviews with them for these and a variety of other general purposes which are merely objects of Negotiation between your Majesty and the Indians.

These may it please your Majesty, are in our Judgement Services of great importance, and to which it is essentially necessary for the preservation of the British interest with those Indians, and for the preventing all foreign influence and Connection, that strict attention should be paid.

Antecedent to the Establishment of the present Plan of Superintendants the management of these Interests was entrusted to the Governors of the Colonies, which were principally connected with the Indians but when we consider the dependent State of such Governors; that the other duties of their Station must interfere with this very important one; how greatly the objects of this Service are increased by alliances with those numerous Nations heretofore under the Dominion of France and how necessary it is that a constant watch should be kept upon their Motions and designs and that your Majesty's Servants should be constantly and regularly informed of the true State of Affairs; and of all transactions in the Indian Country; We cannot but be of Opinion that these are reasons joynd to what We have already stated which do make it essentially necessary that the Office of Superintendants should for the present be continued for these purposes; and that they should be enabled by stated annual Establishment co[n]fined to a certain Sum, to make such Presents as have been usual & and customary; therefore are become absolutely necessary upon all occasions of Treaties held with the Indians for public purposes the expence of which including Salaries to the two Superintendants need not according to the calculations and estimates made by them, exceed Eight Thousand pounds annually.

Having thus fully stated to your Majesty the nature & extent of those Services which relate to the Management of Indian Affairs; independent of the Trade with them, we shall in the next place submit what has occurred to us upon the latter subject.

It must be admitted that a proper Plan of Trade with the Indians is an object deserving great attention not only from the Commercial benefit resulting from it, but also from the effect that its being ill or well governed must have upon the temper & disposition of the Savages and as it must consist of Regulations that depend upon local situation and circumstances, and which require the authority of law to carry them into execution it cannot be conducted with the same facility, or be properly and effectually controlled by Officers having no other authority, than what they derive from your Majesty's Commission.

Upon the fullest examination into the effect and operation of the several propositions respecting the Indian Trade, suggested by this Board in 1764, and adopted by the Superintendants, it does appear to us that many of them have, in particular cases, and with respect to particular bodies of Indians been attended with salutary effect; We are convinced however upon the whole of this consideration,

First, That no one general Plan of Commerce & Policy is or can be applicable to all the different Nations of Indians of different interests and in different situations.

Secondly, That the confining Trade to certain Posts and Places, which is the Spirit and principal of the present System, however expedient and effectual with respect to the Southern Indians, is of doubtful Policy with respect to those Indians more particularly connected with New York & Pennsylvania; and that it is evidently disadvantageous inconvenient and even dangerous with respect to the much larger body of Indians, who possess the Country to the Westward, and with whom Your Majesty's Subjects in Quebec in particular do carry on so extensive a Commerce.

Thirdly, That independent of this objection, and of any doubt that might attend the practicability of its execution in its full extent, the whole Plan does consist of such a variety of establishments, and necessarily leads to such extensive operations, as to bring on an increasing expence which in point of Commerce, may exceed the value of the object to which it applies, and being greater than the Trade can bear must if the present Plan should be permanent either fall upon the Colonies, in which Case it will be impracticable to settle the proportion each Colony should bear, or become a burthen upon this Country, which we humbly conceive, would be both unreasonable and highly inconvenient.

For these reasons therefore and under these circumstances, we are humbly of opinion that the laying a side that part of the present Plan which relates to the Indian Trade, and intrusting the entire Management of that Trade to the Colonies themselves will be of great advantage to your Majesty's Service, as a means of avoiding much difficulty, and saving much expence both at present and in future.*

It is certainly true, that while the management of this Trade was in the hands of the Colonies antecedent to the establishment of Superintendants many abuses were committed by the Traders, little care was taken to subject them to proper regulations. and the misconduct of the Colonies in this particular contributed not a little to involve us in the enormous expences of an Indian War.

If therefore it were probable that the like neglect or mismanagement would again take place, in such a degree as to expose us to the same consequences We should not hesitate in declaring our Opinion against the propriety of suffering the management of this concern ever to revert into the hands of the Colonies.

But we trust, that the experience which the old Colonies have had of the ill effects of such inattention and neglect, will induce all of them to use more caution and better management for the future; and particularly to adopt such of the Regulations established by the present Superintendants; as have evidently operated to the benefit of the Trade, and to the giving that satisfaction and content to the Indians from which alone the Colonies can hope to derive either immediate profit or lasting Peace and Security.

With respect to the Question, how far the present expense regarding the disposition of Troops for Indian purposes, may with propriety and safety be lessened by reducing most of the Posts now subsisting and intrusting others of them to the Provinces themselves, we beg leave in the first place in general to represent it to your Majesty, as our humble opinion, that it will be in the highest Degree expedient to reduce all such Posts in the interior Country, as are not immediately subservient to the protection of the Indian Commerce and to the defeating of French and Spanish Machinations among the Indians, or which, although in some degree usefull for these purposes cannot be maintained but at an expence disproportioned to the degree of their utility. But before we apply this observation to the particular Posts now subsisting it may be proper to take a cursory view of the Interests and Situations of the several Tribes or Bodies of Indians whose commerce and connections are the objects of whatever Establishments it may be thought necessary to continue.

The Indians included in the Southern District consist principally of the Chactaws, Creeks and Cherokees the Chickasaws being reduced to a very inconsiderable number and the Catawbas in great measure domiciliated within the Settlements of North Carolina; the commerce and connection with the Creeks and Cherokees have been from the Situation of their Country principally confined to the British Colonies of Georgia North and South Carolina, and Virginia whilst the commerce and connection with the Chactaws whose Country extends from the Albama River to the Mississippi, were for that reason altogether confined to the French Colony of Louisiana.

By the Treaty of Paris, France has renounced all pretensions to dominion in the Chactaw Country which is thereby become in respect to that stipulation a part of the British Empire, and consequently all Trade and intercourse between the Subjects of France or Spain in Louisiana and those Indians is in fact illicit and contraband; and yet it is evident from the reports made by the Superintendant of the Southern District, that such Trade and intercourse is still continued to be kept up to a very great degree.

Such may it please your Majesty be the state of commerce and connection with the principal Tribes of Indians in the Southern District; and as their Commerce both from Louisiana and the British Colonies is carried on through a great variety of paths and routs, and does not depend upon Rivers and Lakes, forming as in the Northern District the only passes into the Indian Country, it is evident that both the Security and extension of it must depend upon the effect and operation of those regulations, under which it shall be carried on; and that neither the Trade of your Majesty's Subjects can be protected nor the connection and intercourse between Louisiana and the Indians prevented by Forts or Military Establishments.

In the Northern District the principal Indians form themselves into two great confederacies; the one composed of the Six Nations and their Allies and Dependants, the other called the Western Confederacy composed of a great variety of powerful Tribes occupying that extensive Country which lyes about the Lakes Huron, Michigan and superior, and to the West and North West.

The Commerce and Connection with the first of these Bodies of Indians was, antecedent to the War, confined chiefly to the Province of New York, upon the Territories of which their principal hunting ground lyes and the Trade was carried on at Fortified Truck Houses upon the Lake Ontario; since the peace a large share of this Trade is carried on from Pennsylvania by the Channel of the Ohio, and from thence by Venango and Riviere aux Bœufs into Lake Erie.

The Commerce and Connection with those Indians which form the Western Confederacy, were both from the situation of the Country they occupied and from the Plan pursued by France for securing the Dominion of it by Posts upon the Lakes, altogether confined to the French in Canada, and is now principally carried on from thence by your Majesty's Subjects there, through the Channel of the Ottawa River and by the Lakes.

In this state therefore of the Commerce and connection subsisting between your Majesty's Subjects and the Indians in the Northern District, and of the Channels through which the intercourse is carried on, it does appear to us that the keeping up Military Establishments at Detroit Michilimaciac and Niagara, and the having two, or at most three armed Vessels on the Lakes Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior may be necessary for keeping up and preserving that good correspondence with the Indians, which is essential to the Safety, Improvement and Extension of the Trade with them.

Of these three Establishments that at Detroit which is the great center of Indian commerce, situated amongst many numerous Tribes of Indians, and where a considerable number of French remain under the Faith of the Treaty of Paris, does appear to us to be by far the most important object, not being confined merely to the convenience of any particular Colony, but embracing every advantage upon which the Safety and Extension of our Indian Commerce do depend.

The armed Vessels proposed to be kept upon the Lakes, do also appear to us to be of the like general Utility; And therefore we are humbly of opinion that both of these establishments should be maintained upon a respectable Footing, the charge whereof we do not conceive needs to be very considerable, as the necessity of any large Supply of Provisions from the Settled Colonies which has always been a great Article of Expence attending distant Posts, will in great measure be taken off by the opportunity of their being furnished with Corn and other provisions raised by your Majesty's new Subjects settled at Detroit, who as we are informed from the most undoubted Testimony have already made a considerable progress in raising those Commodities for that very purpose.

These may it please your Majesty are the only Military Posts and Establishments, that appear to us to be necessary, solely with a view to protect and promote our Commerce with the Indians; what further may be necessary for public safety in general, or for preventing that dangerous intercourse between the French and Spaniards at New Orleans, and the Indians under your Majesty's protection stated in the Papers referred to us to be carried on to a very great extent, and which has been confirmed by those we have examined upon the Subject is a consideration, which we humbly presume more particularly belongs to your Majesty's Servants in the Military Departments; But we cannot but be of opinion, that all such Forts as shall be judged necessary to be kept up for the Security of your Majesty's Dominions against a foreign Enemy, or for forcing obedience to and a due execution of the Laws of Trade, ought to be garrisoned by Troops in your Majesty's pay commanded by officers appointed by your Majesty, as it would in our humble opinion be dangerous to publick safety, and inconsistent with the true principles of this Government, that Forts and Military Establishments, intended to answer such important objects should be entrusted to any other hands.

Upon the whole we trust that the expence of the present disposition of Troops for Indian purposes may be reduced without hazarding either the safety or the interest of your Majesty's Subjects unless indeed it should be thought expedient to adopt the proposition contained in some of the papers referred to us, of settling new Colonies in the interior Country; for in that case we should not venture to recommend any reduction of the Military Expence in the particulars above stated. This Consideration therefore naturally leads us to the last head of Inquiry referred to us by the Earl of Shelburnes letter Viz' How far the Establishment of new Governments on the Mississippi the Ohio, and at Detroit, would contribute to answer the purpose of lessening either the present Civil or Military Expence or would procure the several other important advantages set forth in the papers referred to us.

Now, although it does not appear from the papers referred to us, that propositions have been made for the Establishment of more than three new Governments or Colonies in the interior parts of America; Viz' One at the Detroit between Lakes Erie and Huron; One at or near the Mouth of the Ohio; And one in the Illinois Country at or near the Mouth of the River of that Name; and therefore by the strict Letter of his Lordships reference, the present consideration seems to be confined to these only; Yet as it does appear both from the Nature of the arguments in favor of this measure contained in some of the papers, and from the manner in which others have been explained by the authors of the proposals themselves that they are meant to support the utility of Colonizing in the interior Country, as a general principle of Policy; and that in fact they have nothing less in view than the entire possession and peopling of all that Country which has Communications with the Rivers Mississippi and St Lawrence, it does in our humble opinion open a much wider Field of Discussion than might at the first glance seem to be necessary.

The Proposition of forming inland Colonies in America is, we humbly conceive entirely new; it adopts principles in respect to American Settlements different from what has hitherto been the policy of this Kingdom; and leads to a system which if pursued through all its consequences, is in the present state of this Country of the greatest importance.

The great object of Colonizing upon the Continent of North America has been to improve and extend the Commerce, Navigation and Manufactures of this Kingdom, upon which its strength and security depend.

First. By promoting the advantageous fishery carried on upon the Northern Coast;

Secondly, By encouraging the growth and culture of Naval Stores, and of raw materials to be transported hither in Exchange for perfect Manufacture and other Merchandize

Thirdly, By securing a supply of Lumber, provisions, and other necessaries for the support of our Establishments in the American Islands.

In order to answer these Salutary purposes it has been the policy of this Kingdom to confine her Settlements as much as possible to the Sea Coast and not to extend them to places unaccessible to Shipping and consequently more out of the reach of Commerce, a plan which at the same time that it secured the attainment of these Commercial objects had the further political advantage of guarding against all interfering of foreign powers and of enabling this Kingdom to keep up a superior naval force in those Seas, by the actual possession of such Rivers and Harbours, as were proper stations for Fleets in time of War.

Such may it please your Majesty have been the Considerations inducing that plan of Policy hitherto pursued in the settlement of your Majesty's American Colonies with which the private Interest and Sagacity of the Settlers co-operated from the first Establishments formed upon that Continent it was upon these principles and with these views, that Government undertook the settling of Nova Scotia in 1749; and it was from a view of the advantages represented to arise from it in these different Articles that it was so liberally supported by the Aid of Parliament.

The same Motives tho' operating in a less degree and applying to fewer objects did as we humbly conceive induce the forming the Colonies of Georgia, East Florida and West Florida to the South and the making those provisional Arrangements in the Proclamation in 1763, by which the interior Country was left to the possession of the Indians.

Having thus briefly stated what has been the policy of this Kingdom in respect to colonizing in America, it may be necessary to take a cursory view of what has been the effect of it in those Colonies where there has been sufficient time for that effect to discover itself; because if it shall appear from the present state of those Settlements and the progress they have made, that they are likely to produce the advantages above stated, it will we humbly apprehend, be a very strong argument against forming Settlements in the interior Country more especially where every advantage derived from an Established Government would naturally tend to draw the stream of population; fertility of Soil and temperature of Climate offering superior inticements to Settlers who exposed [to] the few hardships and struggling with few difficulties could with little labour earn an abundance for their own wants but without a possibility of supplying ours with any considerable Quantities nor would these inducements be confined in their operation to foreign emigrants determining their choice where to settle; but would Act most powerfully upon the inhabitants of the Northern and Southern Latitudes of your Majesty's American Dominions, who ever suffering under the opposite extremes of heat and cold would be equally tempted by a moderate Climate to abandon Latitudes peculiarly adapted to the production of those things which are by nature denied to us, and for the whole of which we should without their assistance stand indebted to and dependent upon other Countries

It is well known that antecedent to the year 1749, all that part of the Sea Coast of the British Empire in America which extends North East from the Province of Main to Cangeau in Nova Scotia and from thence North to the Mouth of S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence's River, lay waste and neglected though naturally affording or capable by Art of producing every species of Naval Stores, the Seas abounding with Whale, Cod and other valuable Fish, and having many great Rivers Bays and Harbours fit for the Reception of Ships of War; thus circumstanced a consideration of the great commercial advantages which would follow from securing the possession of this Country combined with the evidence of the value set upon it by our Enemies who during the War which terminated at that Period, had at an immense Expence attempted to wrest it from us, induced that Plan for the Settlement of Nova Scotia to which we have before referred and which being prosecuted with vigour though at a very large expence to this Kingdom secured the possession of that Province & formed those Establishments which contributed so greatly to facilitate and promote the success of your Majesty's Arms in the late War.

The Establishment of Government in this part of America having opened to the view and information of your Majesty's Subjects in other Colonies, the great commercial advantages to be derived from it, induced a zeal for migration; and associations were formed for taking up Lands and making Settlements in this Province by principal persons residing at those Colonies.

In consequence of these associations upwards of 10,000 Souls have passed from those Colonies into Nova Scotia, who have either engaged in the fisheries, or become exporters of Lumber and Provisions to the West Indies; And further Settlements to the extent of 21 Townships of 100,000 Acres each, have been engaged to be made there by many of the principal persons in Pennsylvania whose Names & Association for that purpose now lye before your Majesty in Council.

The Government of Massachusetts Bay as well as the Proprietors of large Tracts to the Eastward of the Province of Main, excited by the success of these Settlements, are giving every encouragement to the like Settlements in that valuable Country lying between them and Nova Scotia; and the Proprietors of Twelve Townships, lately laid out there by the Massachusetts Government, now solicit your Majesty for a confirmation of their title.

Such may it please your Majesty is the present State of the progress making in the Settlement of the Northern parts of the Sea Coasts of North America in consequence of what appears to have been the policy adopted by this Kingdom; and many persons of Rank and Substance here are proceeding to carry into Execution the Plan, which your Majesty (pursuing the same Principles of commercial Policy) has approved for the Settlement of the Islands of St John and Cape Breton, and of the new Established Colonies to the South; and therefore as we are fully convinced, that the encouraging Settlements upon the Sea Coast of North America is founded in the true principles of Commercial Policy and as we find upon examination, that the happy effects of that Policy are now begining to open themselves in the Establishment of those Branches of Commerce, Culture and Navigation upon which the strength, wealth and security of this Kingdom depend, we cannot be of opinion that it would in any View be adviseable to divert your Majesty's Subjects in America from the pursuit of these important objects by adopting measures of a new Policy at an expence to this Kingdom, which in its present State, it is unable to bear.

This may it please your Majesty, being the light in which we view the proposition of Colonizing in the interior Country, considered as a general principle of policy, we shall in the next place proceed to examine the several arguments urged in support of the particular Establishments now recommended.

These arguments appear to us reducible to the following general propositions Viz'

First, That such Colonies will promote population, and increase the demands for, and consumption of British Manufactures.

Secondly, That they will secure the Furr Trade, and prevent all illicit Trade, or interfering of French or Spaniards with the Indians.

Thirdly, That they will be a defence and Protection of the old Colonies against the Indians.

Fourthly, That they will contribute to lessen the present heavy Expence of Supplying provisions to the distant Forts and Garrisons;

Lastly, That they are necessary in respect to the inhabitants already residing in those places, where they are proposed to be Established who require some form of Civil Government

After what we have already stated with respect to the policy of encouraging Colonies in the interior Country as a general principle, We trust it will not be necessary to enter into an ample discussion of the Arguments brought to support the foregoing propositions.

We admit as an undeniable principle of true policy, that with a view to prevent Manufactures it is necessary and proper to open an extent of territory for Colonization proportioned to the increase of people, as a large number of inhabitants, cooped up in narrow limits without a sufficiency of land for produce would be compelled to convert their attention and industry to Manufactures; but we submit whether the encouragement given to the Settlement of the Colonies upon the Sea Coast, and the effect which such encouragement has had, has not already effectually provided for this object as well as for more easing the Demand for, and consumption of British Manufactures; an advantage which in our humble opinion, would not be promoted by these new Colonies which being proposed to be established at the distance of above fifteen hundred miles from the Sea, and in places which upon the fullest evidence are found to be utterly inaccessible to shipping will from their inability to find returns wherewith to pay for the Manufactures of Great Britain be probably led to Manufacture for themselves a consequence which experience shews has constantly attended in a greater or lesser degree every inland Settlement, and therefore ought in our humble opinion to be carefully guarded against by encouraging the Settlement of that extensive tract of Sea Coast hitherto unoccupied; which together with the liberty that the inhabitants of the middle Colonies will have (in consequence of the proposed boundary line with the Indians) of gradually extending themselves, backwards will more effectually and beneficially answer the object of encouraging population and consumption than the erection of New Governments, such gradual extension might through the medium of a continued population upon even the same extent of Territory preserve a communication of mutual Commercial Benefits between its extremest parts and Great Britain, impossible to exist in Colonies separated by immense Tracts of unpeopled desert. As to the effect which it is supposed the Colonies may have to increase and promote the Furr Trade, and to prevent all contraband Trade or intercourse between the Indians under your Majesty's protection and the French or Spaniards, it does appear to us; That the extension of the Furr Trade depends entirely upon the Indians being undisturbed in the possession of their hunting Grounds; that all Colonizing does in its nature, and must in its consequences operate to the prejudice of that Branch of Commerce; and that the French and Spaniards would be left in possession of a great part of what remained, as New Orleans would still continue the best and surest Market. As to the protection which it is supposed these New Colonies may be capable of affording to the Old ones, it will in our opinion appear upon the Slightest view of their situation that so far from affording Protection to the old Colonies they will stand most in need of it themselves.

It cannot be denied that new Colonies would be of advantage in raising Provisions for the supply of such Forts and Garrisons as may be kept up in the neighbourhood of them; but as the degree of utility will be proportioned, to the number and situation of those Forts and Garrisons which upon the result of the present enquiry it may be thought advisable to continue, so the force of the argument will depend upon that event.

The present French inhabitants in the Neighbourhood of the Lakes, will in our humble opinion be sufficient to furnish with Provisions whatever Posts may be necessary to be continued there and as there are also French inhabitants settled in some parts of the Country lying upon the Mississippi between the Rivers Illinois and the Ohio; It is to be hoped that a sufficient number of these may be induced to fix their abode where the same convenience and advantage may be derived from them; but if no such circumstance were to exist, and no such assistance to be expected from it, the objections stated to the Plan now under our

WEST FLORIDA.

Extract from a Treaty made at a Congress held at Mobile in West Florida with the Chickasaws and Chactaws, March 26. 1765.

And to prevent all disputes on account of Encroachments or supposed Encroachments committed by the English Inhabitants of this or any other of his Majesty's Provinces on the Lands or Hunting Grounds reserved and claimed by the Chickasaw and Chactaw Indians, and that no mistakes, doubts or disputes may for the future arise thereupon, In consideration of the great marks of friendship, benevolence and clemency extended to us the said Chickasaw and Chactaw Indians, by his Majesty King George the third; We the Chiefs and Head Warriors distinguished by great and small Medals & Gorgets, and bearing his Majesty's Commissions as Chiefs and Leaders of our respective Nations by virtue and in pursuance of the full Right and Power which we now have and are possessed of, Have agreed and we do hereby agree, that for the future the Boundary be settled by a line extended from Gross point in the Island of Mount Louis by the Course of the western Coast of Mobile Bay, to the Mouth of the eastern Branch of Tombeckbé River;

and north by the Course of said River, to the Confluence of Alibamont and Tombeckbé Rivers;

And afterwards along the western Bank of Alibamont River, to the Mouth of Chickianocé River, and from the Confluence of Chickianocé and Alibamont Rivers,

a strait Line

to the Confluence of Banke and Tombeckbe Rivers, from thence by a strait Line along the western Bank of Banke River till its Confluence with the Tallatékpé River;

from thence by a strait Line to Tombeckbe River, opposite to Atchatické

and from Atchatické by a strait Line to the most northerly part of Backatanne River;

and down the Course of Backatanne River, to its Confluence with the River Pascagoula and down by the Course of the River

Pascagoula within twelve leagues of the Sea Coast, and thence by a due west line as far as the Chactaw Nation have a right to grant;

And the said Chiefs for themselves and their Nations give and confirm the property of all the lands contained between the above described lines and the Sea, to his Majesty the King of Great Britain and his Successors,

Reserving to themselves full Right and Property in all the Lands to the Northward now possessed by them ;

And none of his Majesty's White Subjects shall be permitted to settle on Tombeckbe River to the Northward of the Rivulet called the Centibouck.

* EAST FLORIDA.

Extract from a Treaty and Cession by the Chiefs of the lower Creek Nations, at a Congress held at Picolata, in East Florida, Nov'r 15th, 1765.

To prevent all disputes on account of Encroachments or supposed Encroachments, made by the English Inhabitants of this His Majesty's said Province, on the Lands or hunting Grounds reserved and claimed by the upper and lower Nations of Creek Indians, and that no doubts, mistakes, or disputes, may for the future arise, in Consideration of the great marks of friendship, benevolence, clemency generosity and protection, extended to us, the said Indians of the upper and lower Creek Nations, by His Majesty, King George the Third; We the Chiefs, Head Warriors, and Leaders of our respective Nations, by virtue and in pursuance of the full right and power which we now have and are possessed of, have agreed, and we do hereby agree, that for the future the Boundary line of His Majesty's said Province of East Florida, shall be all the Sea Coast as far as the Tide flows, in the manner settled with the English by the great Tomachicke, with all the Country to the Eastward of St. John's River, forming nearly an Island, from its source to its entrance into the Sea; And to the Westward of St. John's River, by a line drawn from the entrance of the Creek Acklawaugh, into the said River above the great Lake, and near to Spalding's upper trading Storehouse, to the Forks of the Black Creek at Colvill's Plantation, and from thence to that part of St. Mary's River, which shall be intersected by the continuation of the line to the entrance of a Turkey Creek, into the River Altamaha.

* GEORGIA.

At a Congress held at Augusta, in the Province of Georgia November 10th, 1763.

PRESENT—James Wright, Esq., Governor of Georgia,
 Arthur Dobbs, Esq., Governor of N. Carolina,
 Thomas Boone, Esq., Governor of S. Carolina,
 John Stuart, Esq., Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Southern District in North America.

Head Men of the } Chickasaws,
 } Upper and lower Creeks,
 } Chactaws, } Cherokees, } Catawbias.

The Creeks grant that the Boundary between the English Settlements and our Lands, & hunting grounds shall be known and settled by a Line extending up Savannah River to little River, and back to the Fork of little River to the Ends of the South Branch of Briar Creek, and down that Branch to the lower Creek Path, and along that Path to the main stream of Ogechee River, and down the main stream of that River just below the Path leading from Mount Pleasant, & from thence in a strait Line cross to Santa Swella on the Altamaha River, and from thence to the Southward as far as Georgia extends or may be extended.

The Catawbias confirm a former Agreement, and declare they will remain satisfied with the Tract of Land fifteen miles Square, a survey of which was begun, and the Governors and Superintendants promised that the survey should be finished, and that the Catawbias should not be molested within those Lines.

* SOUTH CAROLINA.

Extract from a Cession of Lands by the Cherokees to the Province of South Carolina, date Fort Prince George, October 19th, 1765.

We, whose names are underwritten and seals affixed, Warriors and Headbeloved Men of the Cherokees, Plenipotentiaries for the Over Hill, Valley, middle and lower settlements, and especially authorized and deputed by the whole Body of the Cherokee Nation, certify by these Presents, that at a Congress held between George Price, Ensign of His Majesty's 60th Regiment,<sup>1</sup> Commanding Officer of Fort Prince George, and Alexander Cameron, Esq., Commissary for Indian Affairs, acting in the Behalf of His Britannic Majesty, and His Subjects, We have ceded to the English.

That Tract of Land (which previous to this time we deemed our own) lying between a Brook, known to the White People by the name of Dewiss's Corner, and to us by The Yellow Water, and another Brook distant from the former about Ten Miles, and known to both White and Red People by the name of Long Canes.

1766, Jan'y 10th. Approved by Jno. Stuart, Esq., Superintendent.

* SOUTH CAROLINA AND NORTH CAROLINA.

Extract of a Letter from Alexander Cameron to John Stuart, Esq., dated Fort Prince George, May 10th, 1766, relative to the Line between the Cherokees and North Carolina:

Began at Dewiss's Corner and proceeded Southwest fifty miles to Savanna River; the Indians marked the Trees in the Line.

I could not learn that we took in any Land that had been surveyed by any White man before, but there is one Atkins settled within four miles of the Line near to Savanna River. The distance from Dewiss's Corner to the River (as near as we could make it) is 27 Miles.

Supposed to mean	} The Course of the Line from Dewiss's Corner to Rudy River,
North 50 Degrees		where the Line terminates is North East 50 Miles, and the distance
East 18 Miles.		10 miles.

About Saluday there are several Houses within four miles of the Line, & One House within one mile of it.

On the North Carolina side of Reedy River there are three or four Families settled, and even if the Indian Boundary be run a North Course these settlements will fall five or six miles above it.

One William Turner, on Saludy, below Ninety six, has settled a Cow-pen & Plantation on the above Indian Lands, although he very well knew that Mr. Wilkinson, by Governor Bull's Orders, removed a settlement off the same Tract of Land last year. I have sent a Warning to remove without loss of Time, otherwise that I should take upon me to drive them off, and distribute part of their Cattle among the Indians as a Tax belonging to them.

The Cherokees propose running the Line from where it terminated, a strait Course to Col. Chiswell's Mines, which I believe will be North as nigh as I could make it. They say it must be very evident that as they have given up all their Claims of Lands in Virginia below Chiswell's Mines, and in South Carolina below Dewiss's Corner, that a strait Line from Reedy River to the Mines must consequently cut off a great deal of their Land in North Carolina, that part of their hunting ground lies 40 miles Eastward of where they now nominate their Boundary; but that they do not love disputing with the white people concerning a trifle, therefore they made them a present of it.

It would be very necessary that a Surveyor should first sight the Line from Reedy River a North Course, in order to know where it will terminate in Virginia, and whether or not it will take away any of the settlements.

* NORTH CAROLINA.

Extract of a Letter from Wm. Tryon, Esq., Governor of North Carolina, to the Lord's Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, dated July, 15, 1767 :

The Line was begun and run from where the dividing Line between South Carolina and the Cherokee Hunting Grounds terminated on Reedy River, steering a North Course into the Mountains, computed to be Sixty Miles from the said River. Upon finding it impossible to proceed over the Mountains, it was agreed in the abovementioned Deed that a direct Line (from the Mountain they stopt at named Tryon Mountain) to Chiswell's Mines, should, with the Line they actually ran, be the Boundary between this Province and the Cherokee Nation.

This Line it is supposed will run along the Ridge of the Blue Mountains its Course to the Eastward of North, and distant Sixty or Seventy Miles from the Mountain to the Mines.

* SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Extract of a Letter from John Stuart, Esq., Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Southern District of America, to the Headman of the Cherokees, dated Charles Town, Feb'y 1, 1766:

I am now to inform you that I had a Meeting with the lower Creek Nations' Warriors at Picolata, near St. Augustine; my talks with them were very good, and I have settled a Boundary Line between their and our Grounds all round the Two Floridas & Georgia. The Line between the Chactaws and us is also settled, so that henceforward we can never have any Dispute about Lauds with any Nation of Red Men.

Whitehall 12th March 1768.

Sir,

Since my letter to you N<sup>o</sup> 4. I have received and laid before the King your Letters to Lord Shelburne N<sup>o</sup> 32 & 33.

There is scarce any matter contained in these Letters upon which I have not already in my Letter N<sup>o</sup> 4. signified to you His Majesty's Commands, or expressed my own sentiments, I entirely agree with you that the Boundary Line between New York & Quebec as settled by you and Lieut. Governor Carleton ought to be confirmed by His Majesty, and I will take an early opportunity of considering in what manner such confirmation may be regularly notified.

Since my last to you I have received another Letter from M<sup>r</sup> Colden stating the Proceedings against him by the Assembly on account of a Pamphlet printed here in Justification of his conduct in the Case of the Disputes about Appeals and the Stamp Act, and representing that he has reason to believe that it is the Intention of his Enemies to persecute him to the ruin of his Fortune.

If these Attacks upon and proceedings against this Gentleman are the effects of his dutifull attachment to the Crown during his Administration as Lieutenant Governor, I make no doubt but His Majesty will think Himself called upon to extend His Royal Protection to him, it is therefore His Majesty's pleasure that you should make the strictest enquiries into this matter, and transmit to me every information you can procure thereupon, together with the Proceedings of the Assembly, in order to be laid before His Majesty, and in the mean time it will become you to shew all the Countenance and Regard that is due to an old and faithfull servant of the Crown.

I am desired by Major General Greeme<sup>1</sup> and other Gentlemen concerned in carrying on Iron Works in New York under the direction of M<sup>r</sup> Hassenlever to inform you that that Gentleman misbehaves towards them and refuses to come to account, for which reason it is their Intention to supersede him and to appoint another Person in his place, and as these Works are represented to me to be of great Publick Utility, I think it my duty to recommend to you to give all the support and protection you can to the Person they mean to appoint and to give any assistance in your Power towards bringing M<sup>r</sup> Hassenlever to a due Performance of his Engagements.

Governor of New York.

Sir,

Since the Earl of Shelburnes letter to you, dated the 5 of January last, your Letters to his Lordship N<sup>o</sup> 6, 7, 8 and 9 have been received and laid before the King.

I herewith transmit to you a Copy of his Lordships letter N<sup>o</sup> 6, lest it should have miscarried it being of great importance that you should receive the Kings Commands signified to you in that letter by his Lordship, which you will not fail to carry into immediate Execution

The fixing the Boundary line will I trust remove the first great Foundation of Jealousy and Discontent from the minds of the Indians and be a solid proof to them of the Sincerity of his Majesty's Intentions; And I flatter myself I shall very soon be enabled to signify his Majesty's pleasure with regard to the conduct of the Indian Trade in general; the unjustifiable occupancy of their Lands; the Posts that are to be maintained; and the particular Duties of your Office; in such a manner as to give entire satisfaction to the Indians in all Points to relieve this Kingdom from the enormous expence She at present groans under, and to remove those doubts and difficulties which occasioned by the want of precise Instructions, frequently embarrass you, and impede the exertion of your abilities to that advantage for his Majestys Service which might otherwise be reaped from them. Chabert Joncaires treacherous Conduct, and the wicked & infamous behaviour of Rogers and his correspondence with Hopkins, which appears from a copy of a Letter from the latter<sup>1</sup> which you inclosed in your letter No 7, are of such a nature as require the utmost Circumspection and Attention of his Majesty's Servants in America; as in the present State of some mens dispositions in that Country when one Correspondence of that dangerous tendency is discovered, there is reason to apprehend there may be more of the same kind.

I have the honour to inclose to you a Map, whereon is delineated the Boundary Line proposed by the Board of Trade to be Settled with the Six Nations in conformity to what was agreed upon at the Congress in 1765, and also those lines settled with the Choctaws, Creeks and Cherokees, by the Superintendent for the Southern District. This Map may possibly be of some use as it will shew in what manner the several lines are meant to be united Johnson Hall 14 March 1768.

My Lord,

A few days since I was honored with your Lordships of the 19 of December last acknowledging the receipt of my letters N<sup>o</sup> 4 & 5 with the state of the Trade Politicks &<sup>ca</sup> of the Northern Indians, and conveying his Majesty's Royal approbation which yields me a most sensible pleasure, the letters I have wrote since that of N<sup>o</sup> 5 which are four in number, I judge by your Lordships silence were not any of them come to your hands.

Since my last which was of December the 3rd, the delegates from the Cherokees arrived here to treat of Peace with the Six Nations, and their Allies, in consequence of which & in conformity to your Lords<sup>ps</sup> directions I dispatched Belts and Messengers to call the latter to a Congress, who after many delays on acc<sup>t</sup> of inclemency of the Season, but more from the discontented state of their Minds, of which I before gave information, arrived here the 3<sup>d</sup> of this inst<sup>d</sup> to the amount of 760 after being at one time almost resolved to return home having by the way received the disagreeable account of the murders lately committed in Pensilvania, the particulars of which are that an Inhabitant near the Frontiers of that Province having Six Indians drinking in his house who were become much disguised and troublesome he took an occasion to murder them all and the next day accompanied with a Servant went to a Cabin at 14 Miles distance where he murdered four more and afterwards throwing the bodies on a heap he set fire to the house and burnt them;<sup>1</sup> sufficient proofs of which having reached the L<sup>d</sup> Governors ears he caused a Warrant to be issued with a reward of £200 for apprehending him, and he was accordingly taken and committed to Goil from whence he was forcibly carried by some of the Riotous Frontier Inhabitants and has not as yet been retaken; The Governor has issued a Proclamation and the Assembly have voted a sum of money to be given them in a present as a condolance on the part of that Province.

On the arrival of the Indians at this place I had as usual, several private discourses with the Chiefs previous to my opening the Congress, and found them all, so sensibly touched at this cruel Murder &<sup>ca</sup> that I had very slender hopes of altering their sentiments several of the Old Sachims whose inclinations led them to wish for tranquility, lamented the threatening appearance of a rupture, As the whole were of opinion that this additional stroke was but a prelude to greater designs against them and when we consider the encroachments made towards the Ohio, the greiviances complained of concerning unjust Grants in other parts of the Country yet un[re]dressed, the Robberies and murders committed on their people on the Frontiers of the several Provinces (to the Southward) yet unpunished and the irregularity with which the Trade is conducted thro the want of sufficient powers to regulate it, it is not at all surprising that the Indians who are the most suspicious people in the world should on such Grounds be actuated by Spirit of strong resentment.

Being naturally inquisitive concerning all our operations they make frequent enquiry's amongst the Inhabitants who understand their Language and read the public papers from whom they have now a report of our intending plant Colonies in the heart of their Country, which notwithstanding all I have said to them contributes greatly to their discontent.

I have given them notice to hold themselves in readiness to attend for the settling of a Boundary line, agreeable to your Lordships last letter N<sup>o</sup> 5 this will be agreeable to them, provided they receive a handsome recompence for such Cessions of Lands as they may be induced to make, and will if due regard is paid to it prove the best means of preventing Land disputes in future, at the same time that the hints & regulations I humbly offered last October if enforced by authority will make them easy, & thereby prove the best security to the infant Settlements, & Trade which depends on the pacific disposition of the Indians.

The Six Nations &<sup>ca</sup> and the Cherokee Delagates have jointly Subscribed to a Treaty of Peace, the Counterpart of which I transmit to M<sup>r</sup> Stuart the Southern Superintendant and upon the whole I am of opinion that from what I have said in private conferences as well as in y<sup>e</sup> Public transactions contained in the copy herewith transmitted, the Indians intend to pay regard to what they have agreed to, the continuing them in which disposition must depend upon the redress of greiviances and our future conduct towards them.

Be persuaded, my Lord that the utmost of my abilities & influence shall be exerted to keep them steady to engagements on which the security of the Frontiers & Trade so essentially

The encouragement I have hitherto received from his Majesty's Royal approbation has enabled me to support fatigues, troubles & hazards of which very few can have a reasonable conception permit me, My Lord to hope for the continuance of it and to assure your Lordship that I am with the greatest truth

Bretheren of the Six Nations & Canada Confederacy

I give you all a most Cordial Welcome to this place where I wish our Mutual Proceedings may be conducted with the strictest Candour and Sincerity.

It is with no small concern that I am to condole with you on account of the late Act of Cruelty exercised on some of your friends within the Province of Pensilvania Whatever might have been the provocation given to that Bad man who was the Author of the Deaths of Ten of your Confederacy You may rest assured that all his Majesties Subjects hold that Act in the Greatest Abhorrence, and that he will certainly be punished with the death he so justly deserves whenever he is apprehended. On this disagreeable Subject I am particularly authorised to speak to you by the Governor and People of the Province where that Act was perpetrated which you shall hear in due time, At present I am on the part of his Majesty and all his Subjects to assure you that he and they are much concerned at it, That it is hoped you are all satisfied of its being the private Act of a profligate Individual and his accomplice without the knowledge or consent of any others, and that every possible means is making use of for apprehending him in order to bring him to the punishment which the Crime deserves. I do therefore on the part of his Majesty and all his Subjects with this 3 Strings of Wampum Wipe away and dry up the Tears which you have shed upon this occasion Clearing your sight that you may be enabled to look chearfully upon us,—With this string I clear the Passage of your throats that you may Speak to us freely and without any difficulty, and with this, I Wipe away the Blood of the Slain from about your habitations that the same may appear no more to offend your Eyes.

This is the first oppertunity My Son (Sir John) has had for shaking you by the hand since his arrival from England, where he was not unmindfull of your Affairs, he will now say something to you upon the occasion.

Then Sir John (after shaking hands with the Chiefs) said.

Brothers

I am happy at finding you all here in health at this time and sincerely wish that your proceedings may be conducted to the Public satisfaction.

It is with pleasure I can inform you that I have had an oppertunity of hearing his Majesty's favourable opinion of all Good Indians, and his steady resolution to redress your Grievances, and do you strict Justice, to this end your Affairs are now under consideration and the Boundary Line between the White Inhabitants and you which is considered so necessary for the preservation of your hunting Grounds will Speedily be settled.

Brothers

I heartily thank you for your frequent enquiry's after me during my absence in England and I shall be at all times Glad to convince you of my sincerity and good wishes for your several Confederacies.

Gave a White Belt with Black figures

Sir William then address'd them in the following manner

Brothers

I have now gone through the Business of Condolance with you, and hope it will prove agreeable, and ease your Minds. Tomorrow I shall proceed to the business for which you are now assembled.

So soon as Sir William had ended, each of the Nations present gave the Yo-hah, or shout of approbation, after which they received Pipes, Tobacco and a dram each, And after a short Consultation Amongst the Chiefs Conoghquiesor Chief of Oneida arose, and haveing repeated according to Custom, All that had been said with the several Strings and belts to the Six Nations &c<sup>a</sup> he addressed Sir William on their behalf as follows

Brother Gorah Warraghiyagey

We give thanks to the great Spirit for enabling us to meet this day after so many accidents as have befallen us, and We thank you for what you have said to us, which we have hearkened to with great attention, We feel ourselves something easier since you spoke to us, and according to the manner of our Fore fathers removed those objects from before our Eyes which have given us pain—Brother We and our dependants have been for some time like Giddy People not knowing what to do, wherever we turned about we saw our Blood, and when our Young men wanted to go a hunting the Wild Beasts in our Country they found it covered with fences, so that they were weary crossing them, neither can they get Venison to Eat, or Bark to make huts for the Beasts are run away and the Trees cut down.—The Frence told us this would come to pass, and when our Young men sit down hungry in hot weather and find no Trees to shelter them it makes them soon get Drunk—Brother we have got a great deal to say about these things but as you have remembered our old Ceremony's taken the Hatchet out of our Heads and given us such good words, we will do in like manner by you. Then went thro the Ceremony of Condolance with Strings and Belts, and buried the axe, but did not as usual take it out of the Heads of the English After which the Speaker said Brother,

We return the Great Spirit our best thanks for giving us the pleasure of seeing your Son safe returned and of hearing Good friendly Words he spoke to us; We have had our neck stretched out this long time endeavouring to see him. We now congratulate you on his Safe arrival over the dangerous Lake, and we heartily thank him for his love for us and for the good things he has said to us, which makes us all Easier in our minds. Then the Chiefs all arose and Shaking Sir John by the hand welcomed him to America. After which adjourned till next morning.

At night Sir William had some private Conferences with several of the Chiefs, to whom he spoke on the subject of their neglecting to take the Axe out of the Heads of the English, which indicated resentment his discourse had a good deal of effect upon them and they withdrew to have a Conference amongst themselves.

At a General Congress with the before mentioned Nations March 6th At 10 A. M.

PRESENT— as before

Sir William on entering the Council room introduced the Cherokee deputys to the rest of the Indians and then addressed the Six Nations &<sup>ca</sup> as follows

Brothers

I am now to speak on the Subject for which you have been here Assembled, and I desire you will pay due regard and attention to my Words.

You see now before you several Chiefs of the Cherokee Nation<sup>1</sup> sent hither as Deputy's and fully Authorised to treat with you about a peace, for which they have long expressed a desire, and to which end I have repeatedly spoken to you, particularly last May at the Congress at the German Flatts, when you agreed to meet and Treat with them for this purpose they are now come here; and as they are under the Protection of his Britannic Majesty, and in peace and friendship with the English, the King expects that you will lay aside all Animosities and agree unanimously with a peace with these People who have come so far, and are so very desirous of it, and who would have met you for that purpose long ago, but that they had no certain assurances of Safety to their persons, or of a favourable reception until the receipt of my last letter. As I have so often recommended this matter to you and said so much upon it, I need not now farther to point out the reasonableness of their desire or how much it is for your interest to come into Terms of peace with them, and as it is his Majesty's desire, and that of his people in America I think you cannot hesitate about it. I believe you all know my regard for your interests, and that I would not advise you to any thing prejudicial thereto, for which reason I rely on your giving a favourable answer, and that you will do it from your hearts.

Gave a Large White Belt

Sir William then told the Cherokee Chiefs they might begin, When Ouconastota<sup>2</sup> stood up, Ranged all his Belts, Calumets of Peace &<sup>ca</sup> in order, and then spoke as follows.

Ganaghquiesa Speaker rose up and spoke.
Brother Gorah Warraghiyaga

With this Belt you yesterday reminded us of what you said at our last Meeting at the German Flatts in May concerning the Cherokees, you then told us as well as now, that it would be agreeable to the great King that a peace was concluded between us and the Cherokees, that it was also desired by his Subjects here, you further recommended to us to be candid and sincere in our transactions with them. I do assure you we shall follow your advice therein, but we must also desire that you will speak and write to the several Governors especially of Virginia to keep his people in better order &ca otherwise the Path will Close up

In the morning the Indians all Assembled, the Six Nations Coghnowageys &ca being desirous to Condole with the Mohawks for the Loss of Onaharrissa one of their Chiefs lately deceased—being met Conoghquieson of Oneida on behalf of the three younger Branches of the Confederacy namely the Oneidas, Tuscaroras and Cayugas went thro' the whole Ceremony of Condolance with the Elder Branches namely the Mohawk, Onondagas and Cenecas which done the latter, by the Speaker of Onondaga in a set speech gave them thanks for their Condolence, and for their adherence to the Customs of their forefathers

Sir William then called together to Chiefs of the Six Nations &ca, & addressed them as follows

Brothers

I think it extremely necessary at this time to speak to you on the Subject of several Reports I have lately received and I desire you will give full attention to what I shall say, and that you will answer me ingeniously, and honestly from your hearts.

Brothers

We are not ignorant of some private Conferences you have held, and of others which are intended shortly, we have heard of the loss of some of our own People and of the threats of yours. We acknowledge that some of the English have lately injured you, but these whenever apprehended will meet with Just punishment of this I have already spoke and shall say much more to you tomorrow, and as I hope Quiet your minds theron—At the same time let me observe to you that it is the duty of all those who are bound by the same Chain in the Bond of friendship to communicate their Grievances without taking any private resolutions of their own, this I hope you will do ingeniously and I beleive I partly know all that you can say, and at the same time be assured that the Great King and his people are sincerely disposed to promote your Welfare and not Suffer you to be injured and that your several Grievances are now before the King who has fallen upon Measures for your redress and for the future Security of your persons and property's, but the misconduct of many of your people and the Nature of your Complaints have made it a Work of time before such steps could be taken as would effectually Guard us both from injury, In proof of the truth of what I now say to you and on which you may firmly rely, here is a letter which I have just received from the Earl of Shelburne, one of the Kings first Ministers wherein he assures me of it, and likewise desires that you may have Notice to attend early in the Spring in Order to settle the Boundary line as a farther security to your propertys.

Here shewed and Explained the Necessary parts of Lord Shelburnes Letter then proceeded.

Brothers

You see that you are not forgotten, but that every thing is intended that can be possibly done for your interest and I make no doubt you will soon feel its effect, and express your sincere thanks for these tokens of friendship and justice 'till when I desire you to do Justice to the Good intentions of the English by a pacific conduct, and to cast away from this Moment any sparks of resentment which may remain in your hearts together with all misgrounded Jealousys or Suspicious of our integrity

P. M. The Indians having had a private Conference amongst themselves Assembled and by their Speaker answered the Speech of this Morning as follows

Brother

We thank the Great Spirit above for the present Meeting and we shall honestly answer You on the Subject of Your Speech, and declare the Causes of our uneasyness which we confess to have arrived at a great Pitch—and we beg in our turn You Open Your Ears and hearken to what we have to say, and endeavour to obtain that redress for us which is the only sure way of securing the place

Brother

We have often put you in Mind of the many promises which were made to us at the beginning of the late War by the Generals, Governors, and by yourself, from all which we had the strongest reason to expect that the event of your Success would have proved greatly to our benefit, That we should be favored and noticed, That we should not be wronged of our Lands or of our Peltry, that every encroachment should be removed and we should live in peace and travel about without Molestation or hindrance at the same time the French told us that what was said was not true, nor from your hearts and that the day you got the letter of them would be the first day of our Misfortunes—You persuaded us not to believe them, but we have found it since too true, We soon found ourselves used ill at the Posts, on the Frontiers, and by the Traders. The people who had formerly wronged us and who did not choose to Venture before to take possession of our Rights then rose up to crush us, The Rum Bottles hung at every door to Steal our Lands, and instead of the English protecting us as we thought they would do they employed their Superior Cunning to wrong us, they murdered our people in Pensilvania, Virginia and all over the Country, and the Traders began more and more to deceive, and now neither regard their own Character, or the Officer sent to take care of the Trade, so that if we are wronged who is to help us We cant ramble over the Country for Justice and if we did, we begin now to grow Old, and wise we see that your Wise Men in the Towns will be always against us. Your people came from the Sun rising up our Rivers to the West, and now they begin to come upon us from the South, they have got already almost to Fort Pitt but nothing is done to drive them away You cant say that we have not often complained of this, and if you are not able or willing to do it we can, and must do so soon or they will eat us up, for your people want to chuse all the best of our Lands tho' there is enough within your part with your own mark upon it without any Inhabitants, Brother this is very hard upon us, but it is not all, for the Road thro' the Country is no longer safe, the Pensilvanians and Virginians murder all those of our people they can meet, without any reason, and instead of leaving off as you told us they would, they have Murdered ten the other day, two of which are our own people; the rest are our Younger Brothers and Nephews that depend upon us yet you wont take the Murderer or do any thing to him. You are wise You have a Government and Laws, but you dont prevent this, you often tell us we dont restrain our people and that you do so with yours, but Brother your words differ more from your Actions than ours do, We have large Wide Ears and we can hear that you are going to Settle great numbers in the heart of our Country, and our Necks are stretched out, and our faces set to the Sea Shore to watch their motions. Brother you that are wise and have Laws and say you can make your people do what they are desired should prevent all this and if they wont let us alone you should shake them by the head. we beleive that you are wise and that you can do all this, but we begin to think you have no mind to hinder them; If you will say you'cant we will do it for you, our Legs are long, and our sight so good that we can see a great way thro' the Woods, we can see the Blood you have spilled and the fences you have made, and surely it is but right that we should punish those who have done all this Mischief. Brother this is the truth, it comes from our hearts. Why should we hide it from you. If you wont do justice to our Fathers the Mohawks who are going to Lose the Land at their very doors, If you wont keep the people away from the Rivers near Ohio, and keep the Road open making Pensylvania and Virginia quiet we must get tired of looking to you, and turn our faces another way.

Gave a Large Belt

Brother

We heartily thank the Great King for his intentions and for what he is going to do about the Boundary Line, but Brother we hear bad News the Cherokees have told us that the line was run in their Country last year, and that it has surrounded them so that they cannot Stir; We beg that you will think of this for our heads will be Quite turned if that is to be our Case, We therefore think that the line we talked of last should not go beyond Fort Augusta<sup>1</sup>

Sir William answered them

Brothers

I have heard what you said, and I am sorry to find you enlarge so much upon these Subjects after all I have said to you as well in public as in private. The redress of your Grievances is an object of much more attention both to the King and his people than you imagine and you will have no reason to doubt of the sincerity of the English as soon as the Salutary Measure now under consideration can be put in practice. As I have a good deal to say to you tomorrow I shall defer adding any thing farther at this time, than to desire you to remove these unjust Suspicions from your breasts, as they make you unhappy in a great measure without

At a Congress with the before mentioned Nations March 9th

PRESENT— as before

Sir William Johnson Addressed them as follows

Brothers

When I condoled your late losses on the part of his Majesty and his Subjects in general, I then told You that I would after the Treaty with the Cherokees was over, Speak to you more particularly on the Subject of your Losses in the Name of the Governor and Inhabitants of Pensilvania, and acquaint you with his resolutions and that of his Assembly thereon— As the peace is now so happily concluded between you and the Cherokees which I have had long at heart, and expect that you will all pay due regard to, I shall now speak farther to you on the Subject of your Losses, and the steps taken by Pensilvania in consequence thereof, and I exhort you all to hearken to what I say upon it. 3 Strings

Brothers

The late unhappy Affair seems to have been occasioned by Rum, that fatal liquor to so many of your people, I do not say this to palliate the Murders but to shew you the pernicious effects of drunkenness, —The 6 first Indians who were Murdered by a Man called Frederick Stump at Middle Creek in Pensilvania, are said to have been at his house drinking, and were greatly disguised and as is too often the Case very troublesome, instigated therefore by the Evil spirit who delights in blood he killed them namely one Seneca, and three other Men said to be Mohiccon Indians and 2 Women, and afterwards went to a place at some Miles distance from his house, where he killed one Woman 2 Girls and one Child In all ten persons, after which he made off but some good Men who heard of it pursued, and apprehended him and brought him to Goal from whence some bad people found means to free him, Whereupon the Majestrates and others took every step possible to find him out and bring him to punishment this is the truth (so that you were misinformed by the Report that the White people did not chuse to take him) The Governor when he heard of it, was greatly exasperated, and the Assembly who were then met, and passing some good laws for your benefit were ready to do any thing for apprehending the Murderer, the Governor thereupon issued a Proclamation, for his being taken for which he offered a Reward of £200 as a proof of which here is the Proclamation which was sent that you might see the good intentions of that Province.

Here Shewed them the Proclamation which was afterwards read and explained. Then proceeded

Brothers

Besides the Sum mention'd in the Proclamation a larger Sum is provided for rewarding those who take the Murderer, and as so many are in Quest of him there is great reason to expect that he will be apprehended and for your farther Security that Province has passed good laws for punishing in the most severe manner all those who shall attempt to use you ill or Settle upon your Lands, and are determined to remove every grievance in their power as quick as possible. At the same time they desire you to consider that they Expect you will be as readily disposed to make them retaliation whenever your people Act amiss towards them, and that you should remember that they have had 10 Men murdered going down the Ohio, by some Indians and also one in a Shawanese Village and one near Fort Pitt since the late peace, and that no peace can be lasting unless. mutual satisfaction be made for such Acts of Cruelty. As a proof of the sincerity of the Intentions of Pensilvania, and to convince you that this late Affair was the Act of only one, and that it gives great concern to the people, they have now Voted besides the money they will give for the Murderer the Sum of £2500, £1300 of which I have now to give You as a present in testimony of their love to remove your grief, and the remainder being £1200, will be given by My Deputy M<sup>r</sup> Croghan<sup>1</sup> at Fort Pitt for the same purpose to the Tribes in that Country and the relations of those People who were murdered— These things I have been impowered to inform you by the Governor, Assembly and People of Pensilvania, and I give you this Belt to confirm it

Gave a Belt

Brothers

I have already gone thro' the usual forms of Condolence with you for such losses you have met with by the English and taken the Axe out of your heads and by this Belt I do now the same on behalf of the Governor and People of that Province and in particular burying the Axe under the Roots of the Tree Clearing your sight and your hearing, and removing all Cause of uneasyness from your heart as well as on Account of those lately Murdered, as of those unhappy People who were murdered these 5 years ago concerning whom I hope You will be no farther uneasy after what I now say to You, and what I have formerly said and done thereupon and I now carefully gather the bones of all those who have been Murdered in that Province, and I bury them in a deep pit, which I cover over with so much care that it shall not be found out to offend your Eyes, and over all I lay this present from that Province to be divided Amongst you in memory of their friendship for you, which is so warm and invigorating that when you take up this present you will find the Grass and Herbage already large and green over the Graves of your People, so that you will never more be able to discern them This is what your Brothers of Pensilvania have to say to you, I expect you will remember it, and regard them for it, and that putting away all malice and Evil thoughts, you will for ever hereafter live with them on terms of Strict friendship and affection and by your pacific conduct and readiness to do them equal Justice intitule yourselves to a continuance of their regard, always remembering that they are your Father the Great Kings Subjects, and your friends and Well Wishers.

Gave a Belt

Brothers

I have heard and committed to writing all that has passed during the present Congress and I have said enough to Convince any reasonable people of the purity of our intentions, as you may all justly conclude that a Nation so great and powerful as the English would take very different measures if they design'd to dispose of Your Liberty. I have shewn you what his Majesty intends forthwith to do for your future Security. And I have likewise shewn you the steps taken by Pensilvania for your satisfaction and redress. Let all this make a deep impression on your minds and waite the Issue of these measures with a Confidence in our Justice

Brothers

Before we part I have only a few things farther to say to you, First to put away all Guile from your hearts, and never to think of any bad things which are past but to expect the good which is near at hand, and I Exhort as you to value your own happiness to harbour no farther resentment against his Majesty's Subjects in general or any one Province in particular, for they are all members of the same body, and therefore you should send agreeable news to all your People acquainting them with the good work now concluded, and if after all any prove discontented or about to disturb the Public tranquility You should take them by the head as you recommended us to do with ours, The next thing which I have to desire is that you will make the Treaty of peace you have entered into with the Cherokees as public as possible As far as your Influence extends cautioning them Nations against doing any thing in Violation of it as they regard their own Peace, That you will repeat all this often to your Young Men and to your Children and that some of you will Accompany the Cherokees Deputys and make the road wide, and safe for traveling, and also as a farther Testimonial of what you have agreed to, that you subscribe to the same on these Parchments one of which together with the Cherokees Belt, and Eagles tail will remain here, and the other be sent to M<sup>r</sup> Stuart in Carolina to be seen by all Nations. Then read and Explained the Treaty A Belt

TREATY OF PEACE, FRIENDSHIP AND ALLIANCE

Entered into between the Six United Nations and Seven Confederate Nations of Canada, and the Cherokees Deputys sent from their Nation to enter into the same.

In the name of the Great Spirit above, We the Sachems and Chief of the Six Nations and Canada Confederacys, finding that War is disagreeable to the Great King of England thro' the Mediation of Sir William Johnson Baronet Superintendent of our Affairs, and at the earnest Sollicitation of the Cherokee Nation, Do agree to give peace to that Nation from this time and we do admit them into the Bond or Chain of friendship which tyes us fast together having buried the Axe, and opened the Road to our respective Countrys, and received and given mutual proofs of our Pacific Sentiments according to the form and usages of Indians at the Treaty held at this place on the 5th and 6th of this present Month. And We the Cherokees on our Parts having buried the Axe and opened the Road hither by our Journey to desire this peace to engage for our whole Nation to abide by the same, and thankfully lay hold of the Covenant Chain which we will keep fast and perform every thing on our parts as friends and Allies, And all of us now here Assembled Do on behalf of ourselves and the Nations whom we represent engage and declare that this Treaty is and shall be considered as a good and firm peace to all intents and purposes according to all the forms of Compact and Alliance in use or subsisting amongst the several Nations of Indians

Given at Johnson Hall the 9 day of March 1768 In the presence of Sir William Johnson Baronet and each of us who on behalf of ourselves and Our respective Nations Subscribe to these presents.

This Treaty being Subscribed to Sir William addressed the Six Nations &<sup>ca</sup>

I hope all is finished between us for the present, there only remains for you to receive this portion of his Majestys bounty to keep you warm, as you travel in Cold Weather.

Shewed the Present on behalf of the Crown and on the other side that from Pensilvania and proceeded

Here is also the present on behalf of Pensilvania sent to the friends of those who are dead to remove their Grief and prove the Testimony of their Love for you all, which I expect will cover all thats past, You that are of the same blood shall take it to wipe away the tears that were shed and so let all be forgotten.

Delivered the presents and told them he had finished the business of the Meeting.

Thereupon the Speaker for the Indians arose and said

Brother

We have heard all you said to us, which we shall take into due Consideration, and Judge it necessary to give you an Answer thereupon tomorrow, We at present Express our thanks to the Great King, and to our Brothers of Pensilvania for their Sense of our wants, by giving us Such a present at this time to dry up our Tears.

You yesterday approved of the peace we have now made with the Cherokees, and recommended it to us to keep it inviolably, as it would be for our and their interest You likewise told us it would be agreeable to his Majesty to have peace established and continued throughout this Continent

You may depend upon it that the peace we have now made with the Cherokees is Sincere and we request that the Great Spirit may direct and enable us to keep it inviolable, for we look upon them now as the same flesh, blood and head and hope we shall ever remain so, lastly we are to assure you that what we have now done being agreeable to you affords us the greatest Satisfaction.

Brother Gorah Warraghiyagey

We heard with the utmost Attention what you said to us yesterday and we thank you for reminding us of our own Old Customs that whenever any of us were aggrieved we should not immediately take revenge but endeavour first to obtain Justice from those who had been guilty of the injury

Brother

We are disposed from what you have said so to do, and we will put it from our minds but we tell you Sincerely that we expect Justice and redress of our Grievances when we are injured and if we do not receive it our minds must get disturbed and lead us to do Wild things which we have not yet done, the People who were killed to the Southward and on Ohio having fallen by the hands of the Indians of Lake Huron as you know these Indians confess, this is the truth it comes from our Hearts.

Brother

We thank you for having recommended it to us to send some of our People with the Cherokees who go by Land to their Country, to open the Road and to protect them by the Way on which subject you shall hear more of our minds directly from the Warriors.

Brother

We agree with you in making public to all Nations the Treaty made with the Cherokees, and of our having Joined in burying the Axe Since the late Murders in Pensilvania and to that end we deliver this your Belt over to the Coghnowageys that they may communicate it to all their friends and Allies whilst we think it highly necessary that you[r] Deputy at Fort Pitt should assist in doing the like to the Southward.

Gave over the Belt to the Coghnowageys

Then Thomas King Stood up and Said

Brother Gorah Warraghiyagey, and Broth<sup>a</sup> of the Six Nations and Canada Confederacy hearken to what our Warriors have to say

Whereupon Tagawarra a Chief Warrior of Oneida rose up and Said

Brothers

We the Warriors think it necessary to remedy a Mistake or Omission of which our Sachems were guilty when we treated with the Cherokees,—they then left the Axe Sticking so that the handle of it would Strike against the Bushes as they travelled we now take it quite out and bury it as it ought to be healing up the Wound so as it shall not be seen on their Arrival in their own Country.

[Plantations General, XXVI. T. 60.]

My Lords

My last to your Lordships was of the 20th of October last concerning the disagreeable aspect of Indian affairs at that time, which has since rather augmented than diminished, and now lately has met with an addition by the murder of ten Indians by an inhabitant of Pensilvania Six of which Indians were drinking liquor he murdered them, and accompanied by a servant the next day proceeded to an Indian House at 14 Miles distance, where he surprized and murdered 4 more whose bodies together with the house he burned and after being taken & Committed to the County jail, some of the riotous. frontier inhabitants assembled forced the doors & carried him to some place of obscurity, for notwithstanding the Proclamations

& other steps taken by the Lieutenant Governor he has not yet been discovered, this disagreeable News reached the Six Nations on their way to this place where I have for several days past held a congress with them & the seven Nations of Canada to the amount of 760, in consequence of a letter from Lord Shelbourne to me recommend<sup>s</sup> the bringing about a Peace between them and the Cherokees at the earnest desire of the latter & of the Southern Colonies, to which end Deputys from the Cherokees Nation have been here since the 29th Dec<sup>r</sup> last & I have at length effected a Peace between them a copy of my transactions on which occasion now transmitted to the Earl of Shelburne, and therefore I need not to enlarge upon that subject & to observe that notwithstanding the Province of Pensilvania voted a sum of money part of which I was impowered to give them on the part of that Province to condole with them for the late losses, yet the repeated acts of cruelty committed in the different Provinces hitherto unpunished, the intrusions upon their Lands & bad claims together with the rest of their greivances all which are still unredressed, have operated so strongly on their suspicious minds, as I have plainly discovered from their speeches but much more from private conferences & Intelligence that I very much doubt their sincerity hav<sup>s</sup> had the strongest reasons to beleive that the Majority were waiting to redress themselves. Should they not speedily find it from us, at the same time, I have as much reason to beleive that my public transactions now, of which a copy is transmitted together with my private conferences with the chiefs and principal Warriors has put a stop to it for the present, and that they will not disturb us provided they soon find that intrusions & murders are put a stop to & their greivances redressed by some short and effectual process nor can all their ideas of our power deter them from doing what is in their own as the Trade & Frontiers must lye in a great measure at their mercy for many succeeding years, as our offensive operations can do them very little hurt for reasons I have often repeated, whilst a Peace with them is eagerly covetted by the Colonists &ca for the security of the infant settlements and for the purposes of a commerce which solely depends upon it—I have agreeable to Lord Shelbournes letter desired them to be in readiness to attend the settlement of a Boundary early in the Spring, this will be agreeable to them if we do not desire to come too near them, and if they are well recompens<sup>d</sup> for such Cession of Lands as they shall make, such boundary being duly observ<sup>d</sup> will prove likewise a means of preventing future Land disputes. And the Hints I took the liberty of transmitt<sup>s</sup> in October last as they were purely calculated for the public security can not in my humble opinion be liable to such exceptions as to prevent them or something similar thereto from being established by proper authority to answer the important purposes for which they were intended

I persuade myself that your Ldps will be fully satisfied of the utmost exertion of my power & influence for the continuing the Indians faithfull to their engagements and I rely on your Lordships countenance & support to enable me to acquit myself with success in the discharge of those difficult duties

(No. 8.)

Whitehall, April the 15th 1768.

Sir

Your letters to the Earl of Shelburne, No 35, 36 & 37. transmitted by the Harriot Packet, have been received, and laid before the King, and I have His Majesty's commands to express to you His Royal Approbation of the Attention you have given to the Instructions sent to you relative to the Laws for establishing a Militia, and for granting to His Majesty certain Duties upon Wares & Merchandize imported into the Colony of New York.

The repeated Testimonies which the Assembly of New York has lately given of a Disposition cheerfully to comply with His Majesty's Orders and Instructions, leave no room to doubt of their readiness to amend these Laws in the cases pointed out by those Instructions, and the King is unwilling to suppose, that the inserting a suspending clause in the Militia Act, which is a Regulation evidently calculated to give Facility to Propositions of the Legislature, which might otherwise be liable to the absolute negative of the Governor, will operate to prevent the passing such a Bill as is required, and which, in the present situation, is essential to Public Safety.

The Propriety or Impropriety of continuing the Instruction, which directs that no Law which repeals a former One, altho' it has not received the Royal Confirmation, shall be passed without a suspending clause, is a Consideration of great Importance, & as the Instruction appears to have been founded on former Proceedings and Resolutions of the Privy Council, I have received His Majesty's commands to lay your letter on this Subject together with the Bill therein referred to, before the Board; and I shall not fail to acquaint you with what their Lordships may think proper to direct thereupon.

I am &amp;c.

Sir Henry Moore.

Earl of Hillsborough to the Governors in America.

Whitehall April 15. 1768

I have the Satisfaction to acquaint you, that in consequence of a Report made to his Majesty by the Lords of Trade, the Plan for the management of Indian Affairs adopted by the Superintendents has been fully laid before his Majesty.

Upon mature consideration of the present Regulations, the great expence of the variety of Establishments far exceeding the value of the object; and the difficulties which have attended the Execution of the Plan in general, for want of a due Authority in the Superintendents, his Majesty has thought fitt that it shall be laid aside; that the Regulation of the Trade shall be left to the Colonies, whose Legislatures must be the best Judges of what their several situations and circumstances may require that the Office of Superintendents shall however be continued for such matters [as] are of immediate Negotiation between his Majesty and the Savages, and cannot therefore be regulated by Provincial Authority; and that the Boundary Line between the Indians and the Settlement[s] of his Majesty's Subjects, (every where negotiated upon and in many parts settled and ascertained) shall be finally ratified and confirmed.

As the grounds and reasons for these several resolutions are in general set forth in the Report of the Board of Trade, and as that Report will inform you what will be expected and required of the Colonies, and what will hereafter be the Nature of the office of Superintendent, I have thought fitt to send you the inclosed Extract of such parts of it as relate to these objects; and I have it further in command from his Majesty to acquaint you that in consequence of the Resolutions his Majesty has taken for the future direction of this Branch of his Service, he has given the necessary orders to the Commander in Chief of his Forces, for the reduction of all such Posts in the interior Country as are not absolutely necessary for Public Safety in general, and for giving protection and facility to the Commerce of his subjects; but as the Forts at Niagara and Detroit and Missilimakinac do not appear to his Majesty to fall within this description, his Majesty has thought fit that they shall be continued, and that a proper Naval Force shall be kept up upon the Lakes.

The objects which upon this occasion will principally demand the attention of the several Colonies, are to provide by the most effectual laws for preventing any settlements being made beyond the line that shall be agreed upon with the Indians and for the controll and punishment of those atrocious Frauds and Abuses which have been practiced by the Traders and have been one principal Cause of the disaffection of the Savages.

It is <sup>1</sup>[un]necessary for me to use any arguments to shew how greatly both the interests and safety of the Colonies depend upon a close attention to these objects and as many of the Regulations of the present plan of Superintendency have evidently operated to the benefit of the Trade and to the giving that Satisfaction and content to Savages, by which alone the Colonies can hope to derive either immediate Profit or lasting Peace, his Majesty trusts that they will be adopted, as far as local circumstances and peculiar Situations will admit, always having a regard to that freedom of Trade with the Indians, which his Majesty has graciously granted to all his Subjects by his Proclamation of 1763.

As the execution of the measures which his Majesty recommends to your attention will principally depend upon the Nature & Extent of the Reduction which the Commander in Chief of his Majesty's Forces shall think proper to make of the Military Establishments in the interior Country, his Majesty has given the necessary directions that he should communicate to you as soon as possible, the arrangements proposed to be made in respect to these Establishments and his Majesty trusts, that after such intimation no time will be lost in carrying his Royal intentions into full execution.

I have the greater satisfaction in communicating to you his Majesty's Directions upon this subject, as I conceive that his Majesty's gracious condescension in committing the regulation of these important objects to the care of his Colonies, cannot but be very acceptable to them

Whitehall April 15. 1768

Sir

In my letter to you, dated the 12 inst<sup>l</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 2, I acquainted you that I hoped soon to be able to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure with respect to that Branch of his Service which is under your immediate direction, and I have now the Satisfaction to tell you that in consequence of a Report to his Majesty from the Lords of Trade the Regulations adopted by yourself and M<sup>r</sup> Stuart for the management of Indian Affairs have been fully laid before his Majesty.

Upon this occasion his Majesty has considered with the closest attention all that has been suggested upon this important Subject and tho' his Majesty applauds the motives and has seen with satisfaction the good effect of the present Plan of Superintendency, yet when his Majesty considers that the main object of its original Institution which was evidently by regaining the affection of the Savages, to combine their Force against a then powerful Enemy is now greatly diminished and when added to this consideration it is found to be attended in the Execution with an expence far exceeding the value of the object and with difficulties which from a variety of objects and circumstances at present existing in the state of the Colonies are insurmountable, his Majesty does not hesitate to concur in opinion with his Board of Trade whose Report is herewith transmitted for your Information that the laying aside that part of the Plan which relates to the Trade and entrusting the entire Management of that Trade to the Colonies themselves will be of Publick utility and advantage, as a means of saving the expence which has hitherto attended it, and which in order to render it perfect according to your Ideas, must have been very considerably augmented.

His Majesty has not failed upon this occasion to give very full attention to every possible inconvenience or disadvantage which can follow from this arrangement, and tho it is evident from the experience of former times that our interests with the Savages were greatly prejudiced by the misconduct of the Colonies and their Neglect of such regulations as might have operated to prevent or punish the notorious Frauds and Abuses practiced by the Traders yet his Majesty trusts that the evils they experienced from such a conduct will be a caution to them for the future and that they will not fail to establish the Trade upon such Plan and under such Regulations, as joined with the fixing a lasting Boundary Line between the Settlements of his Majesty's Subjects and the Indian Country, and keeping up a Superintendency in matters of a Political Nature by Officers under his Majesty's immediate appointment which you will observe are essential parts of the present arrangement, will have the effect to regain the affections, and restore the confidence of the Savages.

It is not however to these motives alone that his Majesty trusts for a proper Conduct in the Colonies in respect to their Indian Interests the reduction of all such Posts and withdrawing all such Military Establishments as are not absolutely necessary to give Protection and Facility to the Trade of his Subjects is a very important part of the System now to be finally adopted, and consequently such an arrangement cannot fail to induce in them a greater attention to their Safety of which perhaps they have been hitherto the less careful trusting to the protection of those Forts and Establishments the Security of which upon every occasion of Rupture between the Colonies and the Indians, became a pretence for involving this Kingdom in an enormous Expence.

These motives Sir together with the consideration of the Security which the Colonies now enjoy, from the removal of the French and Spaniards from their most important possessions in America, have induced his Majesty to determine.

That the Regulation of the Trade with the Indians shall be left to the management of the Colonies and that all Establishments incident thereto in the present Plan shall be discontinued, that the Office of Superintendent shall be continued in yourself and M<sup>r</sup> Stuart for all the purposes enumerated in the Report of the Board of Trade, and that Provision shall be made by a Stated Estimate for a Salary of 1000.£ p<sup>r</sup> annum to each, and for an allowance which is on no account to be exceeded of £3000 p<sup>r</sup> ann for annual or occasional Presents and to answer all other Contingent Expences

That the line described in the Report of the Board of Trade shall be ratified and confirmed in every part, and the Colonies required to enact the most effectual laws for preventing all Settlement beyond such line.

That the Forts of Niagara, Detroit, Michilimacinae, be kept up and Garrisoned in such manner as the Commander in Chief shall think fit; and that such a Naval Force be maintained upon the Lakes, as he shall judge necessary for keeping up a proper communication, and giving all reasonable facility and protection to the Trade of his Majesty's Subjects.

That all other Forts and Military Establishments, which the Commander in Chief shall not think absolutely necessary for Public Safety and for keeping up proper Communications be reduced and withdrawn.

His Majesty his sensible how greatly the efficacy and success of such of these arrangements as belong to your Department must depend upon a proper and careful attention in carrying them into Execution; and upon the discretion which shall be used in those matters of local detail which must necessarily attend so extensive a reform The zeal and Regard for his Majesty's Service and interest, which have so eminently distinguished your conduct upon all occasions leave no doubt of your faithful attention to this Business, in the Execution of which his Majesty has the fullest confidence in your ability and discretion.

As both the time and manner of executing the measures which his Majesty recommends to your attention will principally depend upon the nature and extent of the reduction which the Commander in Chief of his Majesty's forces shall think proper to make of the Military Establishment in the interior Country, his Majesty has given the necessary directions that he should communicate to you as soon as possible, the arrangements proposed to be made in respect to these Establishments and his Majesty has no doubt that after such intimation no time will be lost in carrying his Royal intentions into full execution.

Whitehall, April 21. 1763

Sir,

I have his Majesty's Commands to transmit to you the inclosed copy of a letter from the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, addressed by order of that House to the Speaker of the Assembly of each Colony upon the Continent of North America.

As his Majesty considers this Measure to be of a most dangerous & factious tendency calculated to inflame the minds of his good Subjects in the Colonies, to promote an unwarrantable combination and to excite and encourage an open opposition to and denial of the Authority of Parliament, & to subvert the true principles of the constitution; It is his Majesty's pleasure that you should immediately upon the Receipt hereof exert your utmost influence to defeat this flagitious attempt to disturb the Public Peace by prevailing upon the Assembly of your Province to take no notice of it, which will be treating it with the contempt it deserves.

The repeated proofs which have been given by the Assembly of their Reverence and respect for the laws, and of their faithful Attachment to the Constitution, leave little Room in his Majesty's Breast to doubt of their shewing a proper Resentment of this unjustifiable Attempt to revive those distractions which have operated so fatally to the prejudice of this Kingdom and the Colonies; and accordingly his Majesty has the fullest confidence in their Affections But if notwithstanding these expectations and your most earnest endeavours, there should appear in the Assembly of your Province a disposition to receive or give any Countenance to this Seditious Paper, it will be your duty to prevent any proceeding upon it, by an immediate Prorogation or Dissolution

[New-York Papers, Bundle Rr., No. 33.]

New York. 22. April 1768.

My Lords,

At the time I had the honor of writing to Your Lord<sup>ships</sup> in recommendation of Mr Robert Livingston as a proper person to be appointed a Member of His Majesty's Council here in case of a Vacancy, I did not imagine, that I should so soon have an opportunity of applying to Your Lord<sup>ships</sup> in his behalf for an actual nomination. The difficulties I have laboured under in regard to the Council have been sufficiently set forth in my letter to the Earl of Shelbourne dated april 7th 1767. a copy of which is herewith transmitted to your Lord<sup>ships</sup>, and the absolute necessity of having the hands of Govern<sup>t</sup> here strengthened as much as possible, induced me to make a proposal to Lord Stirling of resigning a Commission under which he could not act without great inconvenience to himself, as his residence was not only at a considerable distance from this City, but in the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of New Jersey, where his landed Interest was great, and where he was also appointed a Member of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Council. I was sensible, that as L<sup>d</sup> Stirling was acquainted with the real motives of this proposal, he would answer it with that Candor & zeal for His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> service, which he has shew'd on all occasions, and in this I was not mistaken, as will appear by the following extract from his answer "For some time "past my conections and business have very much confined me to the Province of New "Jersey, and it is evident to me that my absence from thence at some season will greatly

"interfere with my own affairs, and must be very prejudicial to the great improvements I am engaged in, which I find require my almost constant presence; this induces me most willingly to resign my seat in Council in the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of New York, if such resignation be acceptable to His Maj<sup>y</sup>. I received my seat in that Council unasked for, I want to return it with gratitude to His Maj<sup>y</sup> for the honor he did me in the appointment not as a Man disgusted with the service of his King and Country, that, never was my case, I have always been happy in being useful to either, and nothing will give me greater satisfaction than continuing to be so in the Province of New Jersey, which is now become my almost constant residence"

As I had no other view in this transaction but that of promoting His Majesty's service by strengthening the hands of his Gov<sup>r</sup> here, I hope the steps I have taken on this occasion will meet with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s approbation, and if the resignation proposed, should be acceptable to His Maj<sup>y</sup> I would beg leave to recommend M<sup>r</sup> Robert Livingston to the vacant seat. I have in my former letter mentioned that his great possessions here, Education and abilities will always give him great weight in this Province, and from his readiness to give his Assistance where I have stood in need of it during our late troubles, I am perswaded that he will endeavour by His services to merit what I had said of him. I have the honor to be with the greatest respect My Lords,

and most humble servant

New York, April 25th 1768.

My Lord

Tho' it be probable that my letters to my Lord Shelburn of the 23<sup>d</sup> of November and 21st of January, and my Letter of the last date to the Plantation Board, are communicated to your Lordship, in which I gave an account, and complain'd of some extraordinary Proceedings in this Province, I think it proper to renew that account to your Lordship, in a distinct narrative of that matter, which I inclose. Had I attempted to compell any man, in any one instance, to act contrary to his own judgement or inclination, there might have been some ground of complaint against me. But when I have given no reason of complaint, but my refusal to comply with unreasonable desires, and with which I could not comply without a breach of my duty, the malice of the complaint must appear very evident. Such as is inconsistent with every Sentiment of moral rectitude.

The Faction here place their only hopes of success in bold general assertions, which have not the least foundation in truth. These assertions, I have reason to believe, have been propagated in England, by some persons who have access to the Ministry, and that they have had an undue influence; for Men of honour cannot easily believe, that any man, who bears the character of Judge, or has the honour to be of His Majesty's Council, could be guilty of such bold impositions. I only intreat my Lord, that these Persons be required, to give the particular instances, wherein I have failed in my Duty or have given just cause of offence to the People of this Province; the falshood and tendency of their bold assertions and complaints, will thereby become evident.

The Faction in opposition to the Authority of Parliament, lay great stress on my having become obnoxious to the People of this Province, and that I am generally disliked. It would not have been easy to remove this calumny, had not the proceedings of the Supreme Court, and of the joint Committee of Council and Assembly, in relation to a Pamphlet intitled The Conduct of Cadwallader Colden Esq Lieut. Governor of New York &c. given the People an opportunity of declaring, in their public Conversations at the Coffee House and other places, the sense they had of my conduct, and the abhorrence of the methods taken to asperse my character; for there is not one fact alledged in that Pamphlet which is not notoriously known to be true or can be proved from the Journals of the Council or of the Assembly. This put a stop to the proceedings of the Faction so that I cannot now say how far they intended to carry their malice while they had hopes of procuring & influencing a jury to their purpose.

Some other public instances since that time, have given the strongest proofs of the sentiments the People entertain of this Faction. After the Assembly was dissolved, the contentions were never more violent than on the new Election. Judge Livingston, the most violent man, both in the Supreme Court, and in the Assembly, in the malicious prosecution of the Pamphlet wrote in my vindication, had for several years past been elected a Member of Assembly for the County where his family interest lyes. Some one of the family have been elected for above forty years. At the last election it appeared he had so far lost the esteem of the Freeholders in that County, that he gave up before half the Freeholders then present had given in their votes, tho' he had every thing in his favour, which power could give him. The Members of the City of New York, generally have the direction of the House of Assembly, Of four Members for the City, only one of the old is return'd. There are 27 Members in the Assembly, 13 of that number are now new.

It is well known, that the last Assembly were influenced by the Lawyers. One of the most popular among them, attempted to be elected for the city of New York, by the interest and influence of the body of the Law, and of the Presbyterians and Independants, who are very numerous but faild. The general cry of the People both in Town and Country was No Lawyer in the Assembly. From these things it is manifest, with what little truth it was confidently asserted, that the last Assembly had acted according to the universal sentiments of their Constituents.

Some proceedings in the last Session of Assembly, relating to the Province Treasury, deserve your Lordship's attention, of which it would be a failure in my duty, not to inform you, lest you should not otherwise be apprised of them. I presume the Governor has transmitted a Copy of their Journal to the Plantation Board. By the standing Instructions the Governor is not to give his assent to any Money Bill, in which the money is not granted to the King, and it has alwise been done so. In these proceedings the King's name is not mentioned, or the least notice taken of any interest the King has in the Public Money of this Province. This is the first time it has been calld the Colonie's Money. The Speaker has given a Commission to the new Treasurer, in his own Name, of which this is the first instance, so far as I can recollect. The Treasurer gives bond to the Speaker for the due execution of his office;

whereas before this time the security was by recognizance to the King. To render the Bond effectual to the Speaker, a clause was added to the Bill by which the Governor and all the Officers receive their Salaries. If the Governor had refused his assent to this Clause he must have lost his Salary.

The King's Attorney General, as an Officer of the greatest trust in relation to the Rights and Prerogative of the Crown. In this Bill M<sup>r</sup> Kemp, the present Attorney General, is to receive of the Treasurer £150 without Warrant, notwithstanding that by the King's standing Instructions, all Moneys are to be issued from the Treasury, by Warrant from the Governor with the advice and consent of the Council. These things need no comment they plainly shew the reason why the Assembly so strenuously oppose any Act of Parliament by which the Officers of the Crown may receive their Salaries independantly of them.

My Lord, I have repeatedly complained, to His Majesty's Ministers, of the Assembly's refusing to pay the Loss I suffer'd from the Mob, the 1st of November 1765. — tho' every other person was recompenced; and of their refusing at the same time to pay me the Salary due to me, amounting in the whole to £595.3.0. They dare not avow the reason of this Proceeding. It is evidently to deter every Officer of the Crown, from opposing their pleasure, and from giving the necessary informations to His Majesty's Ministers.

I humbly presume, My Lord, that no Officer of the Crown deserves His Majesty's favour and protection more than I do, for the faithful performance of his Duty; Notwithstanding the violent opposition, and difficulties laid on me, by a virulent Faction, to make me swerve from my Duty. I am now confident that since the affairs of the Colonies are put under your Lordship's direction, my case will be properly represented to His Majesty, as both justice and good policy require. I can not forbear to observe, that, while I have been neglected, William Smith<sup>1</sup> jun<sup>r</sup> has received the honour of an appointment to the Council of this Province. This Gentleman is known to be intimately connected with the Faction in opposition to the King's Government, and the Authority of Parliament over the Colonies and a principal adviser in their Proceedings. Soon after his taking his seat at the Council Board, he appear'd in the joint Committee of the Council and Assembly mentioned in the inclosed Narrative, whose design was to ruin my character, and my private fortune, were it in their power. I am well assured that he was a principal adviser in those virulent and malicious proceedings.

Before I conclude I must beg leave to observe to your Lordship, that the present set of Judges of the Supreme Court, are connected with the Faction in this Province, as appears by numerous public instances. The King's authority, and obedience to the Laws, can only be enforced and secured by the Courts of Justice, and by disinterested Judges; Men of integrity and ability. Our present Judges have lost the esteem of the People, both as to their Integrity and ability. I believe it would be difficult to find Men in this Province disinterested, and of sufficient ability to be Judges. I am therefore of opinion that the present disorders cannot be effectually remedied without Judges of Integrity and ability from England. Without this all other means may prove ineffectual, or may be attended with Difficulties that by appointment of proper Judges may be avoided. I know it may be asserted, that the removing the Judges will create general discontent & jealousy in the People; but where the People have no esteem of their present Judges, any clamour or uneasiness which may by artifice be raised, will soon subside, by a prudent and steady conduct of the Judges, and the People will quickly become sensible of their happiness under a proper administration of Justice.

I had the honour of your Lordships commands, while you presided at the Plantation Board, & on the whole of my Administration, I am confident, that the Rectitude of my Intentions, for His Majesty's service in the performance of my duty, will clearly appear, & therefor I can make no doubt of your Lord<sup>sh</sup> regard.

I have the honour to be with the greatest respect & submission

My Lord,

Your most obedient & faithfull servant

[New-York Entries, Q, 414.]

To the KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

May it please Your Majesty.

Sir Henry Moore, Baronet, your Majesty's Governor of the Province of New York having transmitted to us the Acts and Proceedings of the Legislature of that Colony in their last Session of Assembly, we have taken the same into our consideration and humbly beg leave to represent to Your Majesty:

That these Acts and Proceedings appear to have passed subsequent to the first of October 1767, the day fixed for the commencement of the operation of the provisions of an Act of Parliament made in the seventh year of your Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act for restraining and prohibiting the Governor Council and House of Representatives of the Province of New York, until provision shall have been made for furnishing the King's Troops with all the necessaries required by law, from passing or assenting to any Act of Assembly Vote or Resolution for any other purpose;" and therefore it will, as we humbly conceive, be necessary, before we can report our opinion upon these Acts and Proceedings, that it should be determined whether there has been on the part of the Legislature of New York such a submission to and compliance with what has been thought fit to be enacted by the Parliament of Great Britain in respect to quartering your Majesty's troops in America, as could, conformably to the tenour of the act above mentioned, make it lawful for the Legislature of New York to make or pass any act or any order resolution or vote, save only such are therein excepted, or as could make such acts votes and resolutions of any force or validity; and to the end that Your Majesty may be fully informed of every circumstance necessary to be attended to in the discussion of this question, it is our duty humbly to state to Your Majesty the laws which have been passed in New York for making provision for quartering Your Majesty's troops, subsequent to the Act for that purpose which was disallowed by Your Majesty in Council, and was the ground of those proceedings in Parliament that gave rise to the laws above recited.

On the sixth of June 1767, the Legislature of New York passed an Act intituled "An Act for granting unto His Majesty the sum of three thousand pounds for furnishing necessaries for the

By this Act it is provided that the Treasurer of that Colony shall, out of certain funds therein mentioned, pay unto His Excellency Thomas Gage, Commander in Chief of your Majesty's Forces in North America or his order, or to Commander in Chief for the time being or order, the sum of three thousand pounds to be applied for furnishing necessaries for Your Majesty's Troops quartered within that Colony; and no mention whatever is made of the persons by whom or the mode in which the service shall be performed; nor is there any specification of the particular articles to be furnished to the barracks.

On the same day that this Act was passed, the General Assembly was prorogued, between which time and their meeting again in November, Your Majesty's Governor received the Act of Parliament, and on the 15th of November 1767. he communicated it to the Council and Assembly of New York, who in their address in answer to the speech made by him upon that occasion express their concern at having fallen under the displeasure of the British Parliament, and refer to what they had done in the preceeding Session, as such a compliance with the Act of Parliament as did in their opinion take away any scruple the Governor could have to concur in such things as the publick good of the Colony might require.

In this opinion Your Majesty's Governor appears to have acquiesced, and accordingly the General Assembly proceeded to business in the usual manner, and several laws were made and enacted; amongst which there is one for making a further provision of fifteen hundred pounds for furnishing your Majesty's troops quartered in that Colony with necessaries, and the sums requisite for quartering Your Majesty's troops are directed to be drawn out of the Treasury by warrant of the Governor and Council without any specification either of the manner in which the service shall be performed or of the articles which are to be furnished.

From these proceedings it evidently appears that the Legislature of Your Majesty's Province of New York have considered the Act passed by them in June 1767. as a full and complete obedience to and compliance with the Acts of Parliament above recited; and when we consider the nature and terms of the Act of Parliament of the 7th year of Your Majesty's reign, which in the enacting part is entirely silent as to the mode of providing the necessaries required by the former law, and compare that Act with the provisions of the law passed in New York in 1767. we cannot but be of opinion that the object & intention of it are thereby in effect answered and provided for.

But how far in the strict and legal construction of this law it is such a compliance can give validity to all Acts and Proceedings there, subsequent to the first of October 1767. is a question which it is our duty humbly to submit to Your Majesty's determination upon such an opinion and advice of the Law Officers as Your Majesty shall think fit to take thereupon.

All which is most humbly submitted,

CLARE
J. DYSON

My Lord,

As I shall allways give the strictest obedience to all His Majesty's Orders which I shall have the honor of receiving, I shall be particularly attentive to what is directed in your Lordship's first letter to me concerning the communication of Occurrences that may happen, & a regular transmission of all Acts and proceedings of the Government and Legislature here—The Distresses of that part of the Country bordering on the Connecticut River were so great soon after the Repeal of the Act of Assembly which had erected it into a County, that it was apprehended many of the Inhabitants would be under a necessity of quitting it, for it was become an Asylum for persons guilty of all sorts of crimes, and a great number of wretches who had fled from justice not only in this but in the neighbouring Provinces of New Hampshire, Massachusets and Connecticut took up their quarters there, and committed all kinds of Disorders with impunity; In consequence of the sufferings of the People, who were constantly soliciting for some relief, His Majesty's Council here advis'd the erecting of those lands into a County by an Ordinance, which was accordingly done that they might be intitled to some Protection from the Laws of their Country; A Copy of the Ordinance is here inclos'd, and notwithstanding no particular priviledges are excepted in it, I shall not issue any writs for electing Members of Assembly in that County, (as His Majesty's Instructions forbid that the number of the Assembly should be increas'd or diminish'd) 'til the increase of Inhabitants should make this measure necessary, and His Majesty's permission be obtain'd upon their Representation; At present they are far from wishing or desiring such a Priviledge, for the custom still prevails here of allowing a certain Salary to the Members of the Assembly during their Session, and this part of the Country is not at this time in a Condition to support such an Expence. I have the honor to be with the greatest respect.

Fort George, New York, 7 May, 1768.

My Lord,

I have the honour to transmit to your Lordship the Copy of a letter I wrote in the beginning of the last year<sup>1</sup> to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in answer to a Letter

I received from their Lordships in consequence of the Address of the House of Commons to His Majesty concerning the Manufactures of this Country, dated March 27th 1766 Another Copy of this Address has been inclosed to me in your Lordships letter marked N<sup>o</sup> 3, to which I must make the same answer, as the progress of Manufacturés in this part of the world by no means corresponds with the pompous accounts given of them in the public papers. The dearness of labour and the cheapness of Lands. are invincible obstructions to the progress of them, and more especially in a country where the genius of the people is so universally inclined to Agriculture. No mention is made in the former Letter of great quantities of leather being tanned in this Country, as this branch of business has been carried on for many years: the leather is greatly inferior in quality to that made in Europe; and they are not yet arrived to the perfection of making sole-leather. Your Lordship may be assured, that I shall from time to time, give every due information required in this Address, and be particularly attentive to any new establishments of which we have no instances since my last letter, except in the paper-mill begun to be erected within these few days, at a small distance from the town.

I am &c.

(No. 6.)

Fort George, New York, May 9th 1768.

My Lord,

I am extremely sorry to hear that M<sup>r</sup> Colden has been under a necessity of making applications to your Lordship, on the Subjects of his Salary, and the damages he receiv'd in the late Disorders here, & since that on Account of the Apprehensions he is under from the late Proceedings of the Assembly in regard to a Pamphlet said to be wrote by him in justification of his conduct. In obedience to His Majesty's Commands I have made the strictest Inquiries into this matter, and have now the honor to inform your Lordship, that on the 23<sup>d</sup> of December last some passages out of the abovemention'd Pamphlet having been read in the House of Assembly, a Committee was appointed to enquire into the Contents of it, & a Message sent to the Council desiring they would appoint a Committee from that Board to joyn with them in the intended Inquiry; This was done, and a Report made of the joyn't proceedings on the 30th of December on which was founded the Resolutions herewith transmitted to your Lordship;—As the Assembly continued sitting after this Report was on made until the 6th of February on which day they were dissolv'd, several Persons were examin'd before them concerning their knowledge of the Author or Publisher of the Pamphlet, and a great deal of pains seemingly taken to come at a discovery of what every body else but themselves appear'd to be well acquainted with; I am inform'd that a son in law of M<sup>r</sup> Colden's on his examination declar'd that he believ'd his Father in Law to be the Author, and I told some of the Members myself that if they really wanted information, I was perswaded M<sup>r</sup> Colden would upon their application to him ingenuously declare to them who the Author was, and save them the trouble of farther examinations, But this I apprehend was not the point

aim'd at, for on the discovery being made, their own inability to punish must have appear'd, whereas their method of proceeding and some Menaces occasionally hinted could not fail of giving uneasiness to M<sup>r</sup> Colden & his Family; Your Lordship may very well imagine that if there had not been some material Business before them, I could not have suffer'd a Farce of this kind to be carried on for such a length of time, but as the Treasurer of the Province was lately dead, & considerably indebted to the Public, a great deal of time was employ'd in settling matters with his Family, and as soon as this business was done, I put an end to the Session. The inclosed paper was deliver'd to me on the Stair Case of the Town Hall as I was going up to the Council Chamber about ten minutes before the Assembly was dissolv'd, and as I have never heard the least mention of the matter in Question from that moment to this, I cannot but think it a little extraordinary that M<sup>r</sup> Colden should trouble your Lordship on such a subject supposing any thing was really intended against him, before he had been disappointed in his expectation of the support he wanted here whereas no application was ever made on this head to me either by himself or family, and I never heard 'till I had the honor of receiving your Lordship's Letter that he was under the least dread of any disagreeable consequences to himself from what had pass'd in the late Session. This is not the only point in which I have differ'd in opinion with M<sup>r</sup> Colden in regard to the designs of the People here, and I am convinc'd that he has suffer'd his apprehension to carry him too great lengths and of course has been betray'd into a diffidence which I think had better been avoided.—I hope I shall not be thought tedious in endeavouring to support what I have advanc'd here and beg leave to inform your Lordship, that on my arrival here I found M<sup>r</sup> Colden so much alarm'd that he had thought it necessary to fortify himself in the Fort, and was actually under the daily apprehension of being attack'd; My landing was unexpected, and as I proceeded directly to the Fort was let in at the Wicket, Orders having been given for some time before to keep the gates shut & not to suffer any of the Townspeople to enter; As soon as my Commission was read at the Council Board and the power put into my hands I order'd the Fort Gates to be thrown open, contrary to M<sup>r</sup> Colden's opinion, who endeavour'd to dissuade me from it, and express'd some uneasiness at the Concourse of People which was by this time assembled at the Fort Gate. To this I answer'd: that if any mischief was intended against him I assur'd him that I would share the same fate with him and sent the Constables out to let the People know that they might come into the Fort and hear his Majesty's Commission publish'd, the few troops we had here at that time which amounted to no more than 160 Men being drawn out on the parade; Great numbers croud'd into the Fort upon this occasion, who behav'd with the greatest decency and standing uncover'd kept a profound silence during the whole time the Commission was reading. From the Fort we proceeded to the Town Hall, but M<sup>r</sup> Colden was still apprehensive that some indignity would be offer'd to his person notwithstanding what he had so lately seen and desir'd I would excuse his attendance there, which I readily did, as I did not choose to press any thing which would give him pain. The Procession was made through a very great croud of People collected on this occasion, and the well tim'd confidence in them I had shew'd so soon after my arrival had such an effect on the Inhabitants, that the Gloom which hung over them in the Morning was totally dispers'd in a few hours, and the evening concluded with Bonfires and Illuminations throughout the whole City.—The Complaint M<sup>r</sup> Colden has made concerning his Salary and the recompense deny'd him for what he suffer'd in the late disorders here is but too well founded; Nothing can be said in justification of the Proceedings of the Assembly, and it has given me great concern that I have not had interest enough in that House to prevent this manifest Act of Injustice; No pains have been spared by me to effect it, and the most sensible men among them were so fully persuaded of the improper measures which had been pursued on this occasion that they were ready to contribute with the greatest pleasure to remove this reproach which has fallen on the Province but they have been overpower'd by numbers. It is our misfortune here that the greatest part of the House of Assembly consists Men whose Education has been extremely confin'd, and the illiberal notions in which they have been brought up are not to be eradicated without the greatest difficulty. There can not be a more striking Instance of it than in the present case, where a pique against a Person in his Private capacity is to be resented by a Public collective Body, and a reproach cast upon a whole Province to gratify the resentment of a few Individuals. I did, agreeable to the directions in M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Conway's Letter to me recommend this matter in my speech to the Assembly and have since endeavour'd by private applications to serve M<sup>r</sup> Colden, but hitherto without effect; The Assembly having been lately dissolv'd and several new Members chosen in the late Elections, I may in all probability have better success in the next Session, and I beg your Lordship will be assur'd that nothing in my power shall be wanting either to procure the Satisfaction requir'd for M<sup>r</sup> Colden or to defend him against any malicious attempts of his Enemies. I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord

Fort George, New York, May 12th 1768.

My Lord

It would give me great pleasure if I could boldly assert that the inflammatory Publications in the printed News Papers here mention'd in your Lordship's letter had been treated with the contempt they really deserve, but I am afraid the bad effects of them are but too sensible already, and that the doctrine they would endeavour to establish is without the least reluctance adopted by all Ranks and conditions of People here; The Provinces of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania furnish us so plentifully with Papers of this kind that we have no occasion for any Writers of our own on the subjects they handle with so much freedom, and if the attempts to promote Sedition had been confin'd to the Limits of their particular Provinces I should not have thought it so much my duty to mention to your Lordship what would in the common course of Business have been communicated by the respective Governors of those Colonies but when they are extended so far as to endanger the tranquillity of the Province committed to my charge, I think I am particularly call'd upon to exert myself in opposition to measures which can only tend to make a breach between the Mother Country and the Colonies. The Inhabitants of Boston not satisfy'd with the Associations enter'd into among themselves, which they took care to make as public as possible, wrote letters to the Merchants of this Town whom they desired to joyn with them in the Plan form'd for distressing Great Britain by not importing any English Goods or Manufactures into America after a stated time, In consequence of this Advertisements were publish'd appointing the time and place for the Meeting of all persons concern'd in Trade, and much pains taken to carry the propos'd plan into execution: But as I could not help being alarm'd at such a proceeding, I took the first opportunity of laying my sentiments before His Majesty's Council, expressing at the same time my apprehension of the Evil Tendency of these Meetings, which in the eye of the Law are look'd upon to be illegal and might be productive of fresh commotions in the Province; The Council differ'd in opinion from me and saw this in no other light than that a certain number of People had assembled together to consider & establish among themselves certain Rules of Economy, and were of opinion that as they were Masters of their own Fortunes they had a right to dispose of, and lay out their money in whatever manner they should think would be most agreeable to themselves, and afterwards added that, they were not under the least apprehension of the tranquillity of the Province being disturb'd by such meetings, from the known characters of many who had assembled on the occasion; I was far from being satisfy'd with this answer, for it appear'd to me that when the association was once begun many people who had at present no inclination to joyn in it might be afterwards intimidated, and compell'd to set their hands to an engagement they were actually averse to, for which reason I thought it proper to make public my resolution of supporting any Man in his Situation who should refuse to subscribe to it, and call'd upon the Council to make use of all the influence they had to maintain peace and good order among us; As these Meetings were still continued, this affair was laid before them a second time but with much the same success, for they seem'd no way inclin'd to interfere in it; The Association has since been adopted by some and rejected by others who were sensible of the offence such a Proceeding would give, and I have endeavour'd to shew some of the subscribers that this measure will hurt none but themselves although they are so weak & so far misled by their prejudices as not to see it. I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect

Fort George, New York May 12th 1768.

My Lord,

In my Letters to the Earl of Shelburne concerning our situation in regard to the Indians, I had the honor of informing his Lordship of the necessity there was of my going into that part of the Country this Spring in order to prevent as far as I was able the mischiefs we were like to suffer from an Indiau War, and mention'd at the same time the reasons which prevented my going thither in Sept<sup>r</sup> last agreeable to the promise I had made. It is with the highest satisfaction I find by a paragraph in your Lordship's letter N<sup>o</sup> 4. that His Majesty had been pleas'd to approve of the attention I had given to that necessary Service and I propose to set out from hence in ten days or a fortnight for the Mohawk Country, which is as early as the backwardness of our Seasons will admit of travelling in those parts.—I have lately had several conversations with the persons concern'd in the Kayaderoseras Patent & they have come to a Resolution of submitting the Matter intirely to me & giving me a Carte blanche to settle this dispute with the Indians on such terms as I shall think proper, and thereby remove the cause of that complaint which has subsisted so long among them, I have likewise sent orders for some people to meet me at S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's whose proceedings have disturb'd the Minds of the Indians, that I may if possible remove every cause of complaint among them, and I flatter myself that on my return I shall be able to give your Lordship a satisfactory account of my Expedition. It is my misfortune at this time to be depriv'd of the assistance of Sir William Johnson, whose state of health is now so bad that by the advice of his Physicians he is gone into the Connecticut Government for the convenience of bathing in the Sea, where his stay will be too long for me to entertain the least expectation of seeing him before the public Business will necessarily bring me back again to this town: It will give me great pleasure if I can in this propos'd Interview with the Indians improve that confidence they seem to place in me, & strengthen the good opinion they had conceived of me in our last meeting, I omitted at that time nothing which I thought could contribute to merit their regard by the attention I gave to every little frivolous complaint they were making, and when we had settled the points of what were look'd upon to be real greivances, I adopted three of their Children Sons of the Chiefs of the three principal Tribes among them, had them publicly baptiz'd in the presence of all the Indians there assembled, and gave them my own Name; I afterwards assured them that I should make those boys my particular care, and hop'd they would hereafter, be the means of strengthening and securing the attachment of the whole Nation to His Majesty's Person & Government and keep up that Friendship which now subsisted between His Majesty's subjects and the Indian Nations; I then distributed the Presents among them which I had brought with me, in doing which I took care to distinguish the new acquisitions I had made to my family and after purchasing some Tracts of Land from them I set out again for New York leaving them so well satisfy'd with my behaviour to them, that they could not forbear often expressing their satisfaction as well to Sir Will<sup>m</sup> Johnson as to some others present who had acted as interpreters in the many conferences we had together, declaring that they never had been treated with so much familiarity by any Governor of a Province before, and that I had now given them such unquestionable proof of my attention to their Interests that they hop'd the happiest consequences would be deriv'd from it. If such trifling Acts as these can make such impressions, it would be inexcusable not to avail myself of every circumstance which could contribute in any shape to the promoting of His Majesty's service & in case of a failure on my part I hope to make it appear that I have endeavour'd to merit a success which I had not in my power to command. I am very sorry that the expressions in my Letter N<sup>o</sup> 28. were so loosely worded as to imply that the Assembly had actually refus'd to reimburse the expences of my late Journey, & I hope I shall have your Lordship's indulgence in explaining this matter, upon my return from Lake Champlain and the Mohawk River I acquainted the House of Assembly with what I had done, and expected that the allowance which heretofore was usually made to Governors going on the Public Service, would be given to me, But no design of this kind appearing I gave to one of the Members an Account of the Money I had actually expended amounting to the sum of £379.11<sup>s</sup>.7<sup>d</sup>. and desir'd it might be laid before the House; In this Account no change was made of provisions wines &c<sup>a</sup> which were carried up from hence in great quantities, and it was well known that many Gentlemen of the Province went up with me, and that my family was increas'd to the number of thirty persons & upwards during the time we were making our observations at the Upper end of Lake Champlain; This was owing to the arrival of several Gentlemen from Canada who came as well to compliment Brigadier Carleton on his arrival on the Frontier of his Province, as to demand the confirmation of their grants mention'd in my former letters. This article being left open, I could not but be surpriz'd when the person to whom I gave the Account inform'd me that the House was then in such a Temper that he did not choose to mention it, as he apprehended it would be without success, and this Session pass'd over without any thing being done in it; In the next Session the same request was made by me, and the same answer return'd by the person employ'd, who I am persuaded was too much my friend to impose on me; A Proceeding of this kind could not fail of giving me some pain on Account of the manifest injustice which appear'd in it and as I had never been engaged in the least dispute or altercation with the House of Assembly or any other subject but that of endeavouring to enforce their obedience to the Act of Parliament for billeting the Troops here, It appear'd to me that I had no other alternative but that of either losing the money I had laid out for that service, or failing in my duty to His Majesty; It did not require the least consideration which side of the question I should take & I determin'd from that moment to drop all farther application for a reimbursement and give myself no farther concern about it; It was not long after that this was mentioned in my letter to the E. of Shelburne being naturally led into it by the necessity I found myself under of making a second Tour into the Province on the Public Service and for which I imagin'd I should have the same return; About the latter end of the last Session of Assembly when the Commissaries appointed by this Province for settling the Boundary Line with those of the Massachusetts Bay, deliver'd in their Accounts of the Expences attending the negotiation, these could not with any propriety be settled without taking notice of what had been done by me on a similar occasion, and my Account being then laid before them the sum of £379.11<sup>s</sup>.7<sup>d</sup>. was order'd to be paid to me as will appear on their Journals sent home to the Lords Comm<sup>rs</sup> of Trade.—I shall take this opportunity of settling with Col. Guy Johnson, be (son in law to Sir William and deputed by him to act on this occasion any Plan that shall thought necessary for carrying into execution His Majesty's orders lately sent over for settling the Indian Boundary Line; I cannot say how far this Province may be particularly interested in it, as I do not know the foundation of the Pennsylvania claim for their Northern Boundary but I shall with the greatest chearfulness give every assistance demanded on this occasion which an affair of so much consequence can require. I have the honor to be with the greatest respect.

My Lord,

My letter to the Earl of Shelburne concerning our Paper Currency was not accompany'd with any draught of a propos'd Bill for I thought it unnecessary to trouble His Lordship with one, as I had inclos'd in my letter to the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantations dated Dec<sup>r</sup> 9th 1766, the copy of an Act said to be sent over from England by the Colony Agent, and then under the Consideration of Parliament; I had the honor of informing their Lordships in my letter; that if it was the Intention of Parliament to pass such a Bill it would be highly acceptable to this Colony, for they did not desire to have money on any other terms as they had allways kept up the credit of their paper Currency and taken particular care it should not be depreciated. I now take the liberty of transmitting to your Lordship the copy of such an Act as we should propose to pass here, if His Majesty shall be pleased to approve of it, and on this occasion would beg leave to observe that by the 40th Section of an Act passed here on the 16th day of Dec<sup>r</sup> 1737, from which the greatest part of the inclos'd bill has been taken, the Borrowers of the Public Money were enabled to pay their Debts in other Bills of Credit, Gold, Silver, or Lyon Dollars: After the first day of November next there will be none of the Bills formerly issued current, the Lyon Dollars (a species of Money brought here by the first Dutch Settlers) are rarely now seen: These and Bills of credit issued before the Statute are the only two kinds of money that were ever made a Tender in this Colony, After the first day of November therefore we shall have nothing to make a legal tender with, a matter worth attention as it will expose Debtors to the petulance and Malice of their Creditors even though they should have Spanish Silver & Gold to satisfy them; As these Bills now propos'd to be struck and lent must be paid for only in silver and gold, while the Act of Parliament continues u[n]repealed, it will be proper to make every species of both a legal tender in all cases, and this Emission, it is hop'd will relieve the present distress 'till the American commerce opens channels for a better supply of silver and gold now so scarce that many of the poorer inhabitants have been ruin'd and all Ranks greatly impoverish'd. Nothing has contributed more to the Settlement of the Country, than the usual easy rate of purchasing farms, Proprietors convey to the Farmer in fee taking his bond and mortgage without the immediate advance of any of the purchase Money, and the purchaser paid of the Consideration Money as he rais'd it out of the profits of the Land: But since the scarcity of Money commenc'd there are numberless instances of Suits against Farmers, whose estates have been sold upon Execution, and bought by the old Proprietor for less than the first purchase, after several years Cultivation and Improvement to the Destruction of the Husbandman. It is hardly possible to express in Terms sufficient what effects such events must naturally have in discouraging Population, Cultivation and Commerce, and the extremeties to which the lower sort who are allways most numerous are reduced especially in new Plantations, are more easy to be conceived than describ'd, I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord

and humble servant.R<sup>t</sup> Hon<sup>e</sup> Earl of Hillsborough.

Sir,

I take the first opportunity to acknowledge the Receipt of your Letter to the Earl of Shelburne<sup>1</sup> dated the 5th of March; it came to my Office on the 15th of last Month, & has been laid before the King.

The contest that has arisen between you and the Commander in Chief concerning Precedency, will I trust be amicably adjusted, without it becoming necessary for Government at Home to interfere. The coolness and good sense of both give just ground for this Expectation.—I will however take care that this matter shall have a due Consideration, and in order thereto wish you would inform me what gave rise to it; for I presume the Commander in Chief did not make the Communication of his Instructions to you (which you mention) without some previous Circumstance inducing him to take that step. As nothing can be more foreign to His Majesty's Intentions than the introducing a Military Government into his Provinces in America; upon the Ruins of the civil power, The King expects from your zeal for his service that you will make use of every method to obviate the effects of such suspicion, whether founded upon the idle suggestions of weak & ignorant Men, or upon the wicked Misrepresentations of the Factious and Ill-designing.—You have already brought the Province under your Government to such a Degree of good Order<sup>2</sup> by your prudent & able management that His Majesty entertains no doubt of the continuance of the public tranquility of New York under the same discreet Direction.

I am sorry to inform you that we had yesterday the Misfortune to lose His Majesty's Second Sister, the Princess Louisa, to the great affliction of all His Majesty's Subjects, I very sincerely condole with you upon this melancholy occasion, & am &c<sup>a</sup>

Entering young into the Army, he was promoted to a Lieutenantcy in the 20th foot on the 8th October, 1757. Army List; obtained a Company the following year, when he served in the expedition against Cherbourg, as Adjutant-General, and distinguished himself at the battles of Camper and Minden in 1759. In 1760, he was appointed Aid-de-Camp to the King, with the rank of Colonel; entered Parliament in 1761, as member for Chipping Wycombe, and succeeded to his father's title the same year, and took his seat in the House of Lords as Baron Wycombe. In 1762, he became Major-General, and rose, in 1783, to the rank of General in the Army. In April, 1768, he was placed at the head of the Board of Trade, which situation he resigned on 2d September following. In 1766, he became Secretary of State for the Southern department and held that post until October, 1768. He was appointed Prime Minister in July, 1782, was created Marquis of Landsdowne in 1784, and died 7th May, 1805, in the 68th year of his age. Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs, III., 192; Chatham Correspondence; Debrett's Peerage.

New York, June 16th 1768.

My Lord,

In my Letter of the 25th of April last, I inform'd your Lordship of some occurrences, which I thought may be of use to you in forming a judgment of the present state of this Province.—In my letters to His Majesty's Ministers, I have repeatedly given my opinion that His Majesty's Authority and the Dependence of the Colonies cannot be secured, nor the Property of the Subject, without disinterested Judges of ability and integrity.—That the present Judges in this Province are not such, is now universally the opinion of the People; and it is likewise the opinion of the most intelligent that, proper Judges cannot be obtained in this Province.—It was evident on the late Elections, as I inform'd your Lordship in my former letter, that the Lawyers have in a great measure lost the influence they had on the People.—This seems therefore a proper time to send over some Gentleman of sufficient abilities to be Chief Justice, with a salary sufficient to make him independant of any faction in the Assembly. Were this done I am confident the opposition to the Authority of Parliament over the Colonies, would daily decline.—The granting such a salary, in its consequences will be a saving to the Crown, for it will facilitate every measure which may be thought proper for securing His Majesty's Authority.—One or two puisne Judges may be appointed from among the Inhabitants of sufficient knowledge, with the assistance of the Chief Justice, to execute their office.—

Some time in September last year, the Faction received intelligence from England, that the Ministry intended to put the Administration of Government again into my hands, and at the same time that a Gentleman from this Place, who had access to the Duke of Grafton,<sup>1</sup> assured his Grace that if this was done, it would set the Colony in a flame, and occasion the greatest disorders.—About the time that this information was received, the Pamphlet appeared in New York, which had been published in London in vindication of my conduct during my Administration. This Pamphlet discovered several things which had been carefully conceald from the People, or had been represented in a very different light. The Faction resolv'd therefore to discredit it, and to confirm the information which their friend had given the Duke of Grafton, by a Public prosecution and censure of that Pamphlet, by the Courts of Justice, the Assembly and Council of the Province. A force which in their immagination no single Person could withstand.—But, my Lord, the force of Facts the truth of which appear on the public Registers, or were notoriously known, proved too strong for them. The Prosecution convinc'd the People of the malice of the Prosecutors, after the Pamphlet had freed them from the prejudices which had been entertain'd against me, by artfull misrepresentations of my Conduct.—A quite contrary effect was produced, to what the Leaders of the faction designed, and they are now much humbled by the loss of their popularity.

I now flatter myself that His Majesty's Ministers, my Lord, will no longer apprehend any inconveniency in showing some regard to a servant of the Crown, who has perform'd his duty amidst innumerable difficulties, and under insults destructive of all Government, and without any remarkable indiscretion on his part, to give rise to such insults. In Justice I think I may expect Recompence for my losses and Sufferings, and I hope it will be thought of public use that I receive some reward whereby the King's Servants may be hereafter encouraged in their duty. I am now my Lord so far advanced in years, that my wish is to close my life in ease, with reputation, and that my past services may be of benefit to my Children I may receive a proper reward from His Majesty's Quit-Rents in this Province without injury to any appointments that are already established on that fund. I have been longer conversant in the public affairs of this Government, than any Person now living in it, and I may be able to give your Lordship information, in some things which no other Person can, or which few may be willing to do. Your Lordship knows more of me than any other of His Majesty's present Ministers: I confide in your favour, and I humbly intreat you will free me from my present disagreeable state of uncertainty, by letting me know your Lordship's sentiments.

I am with the greatest Respect
& submission

My Lord,

Your most obedient &

<sup>1</sup> AUGUSTUS HENRY FRZBOY, 3d Duke of Grafton, was born in 1735, and in 1756 was appointed a Lord of the bedchamber to the Prince of Wales (afterwards George III). He succeeded to the dukedom in 1757. He joined the Rockingham Administration as Secretary of State for the Northern Department, 12th July, 1765, which situation he resigned in May, 1766, and was appointed first Lord of the Treasury a few months afterwards (August, 1766), and so continued until January, 1770. He was Lord Privy Seal from June, 1771, until November, 1775, and died 14th March, 1811. His grace rendered himself, during his public career, notorious by his liaison with Nancy Parsons, afterwards, Lady Maynard, and has been handed down to posterity in the Junius Letters, in a by no means enviable light. Grenville Correspondence.—Ed.

My Lord,

The management of Indian Affairs here being committed to me (Sir William Johnsons Deputy) during his absence for the recovery of his health: I have since his departure had the honor to receive your Lordships Letters N<sup>o</sup> 1. 2 and 3 with the enclosures which have been since transmitted to him.

Sir William set out the 24 of April for the Sea Coast of New England by advice of his Physicians, having for some time laboured under a violent disorder of the Bowels, as well as severe pains from his old Wound with both of which he has been much afflicted for some Years past—This last attack was occasioned by Cold he caught in attending the late General Congress with the Northern Indians and Cherokees, which was held in the open Air at a severe season, and as he was not in a Condition to write to your Lordship at his departure I judged it my duty to give you these particulars, and to acquaint your Lordship that he has received some benefit from his Tour, and will return within about three Weeks

At his return your Lordships letters will be fully Answered, In the mean time I beg leave to lay before your Lordship, the occurrences since his departure, and entreat you to indulge me in the liberty of Congratulating your Lordship on your late appointment.

Agreeable to my Instructions I imediately sent the necessary Belts and Messages for Assembling the Indians in order to the Settlement of the boundary line, but as some of those necessary to be present, namely the Shawanese, Delawares, and Senecas of Ohio live at a Considerable distance from the rest they cannot all Assemble before the Month of Sept<sup>r</sup>

The boundary with regard to New York not having been particularly mentioned in the Report of the Board of Trade, has occasioned a belief that it was needless, but Sir William is of opinion that it is most necessary, and that the line not being extended beyond Owegy, is owing to his not having come to any conclusion with the Indians regarding New York bounds at the Congress in 1765, as the same was attended with some difficulties, neither were all the Indians necessary then present, which together with his not being at that time fully Authorized made him decline entering into particulars, nevertheless it is expected by the Indians at the final Settlement and is particularly necessary, as the Settlements of New York are already far advanced towards the principal Towns of the Six Nations.

Indian Affairs to the Westward have an unfavorable aspect,—Belts have been actually sent to the Indians in the names of the French and Spaniards, to excite them to take Arms against us, and a list has been transmitted to me of several French who reside in the Indian Country and are daily spreading the most dangerous reports and doing all in their power to bring about a Rupture, all which I have laid before General Gage.

The Powtewatemis amongst others have publicly declared their Intentions, have murdered three Traders in the Indian Country whose effects have been for the most part embezzled by the French; his Excellency the General is doing what he can to withdraw them from thence but a believe it will be a difficult task, And altho' I have sent Messages and Instructions to the Officers of the Department, and taken all other measures in my power for giving a timely check to these proceedings. Yet I fear that the Weak State of the Frontiers, and the quantity of Goods of late carried from the Posts amongst the Indians will prove too Strong Inducements to them to make War, especially as the persons and property of so many Traders are entirely at their Mercy, and they already threaten to put all the English to death who shall enter their Country. This seems to be the View which these French had in encouraging the English to desire a general Indulgence to go where they pleased, well knowing that it was in their power to secure the whole fruits of such permission to themselves, & thus the Merchants at the Capitals have been imposed on, and affairs misrepresented to the Crown. At the same time the lavish Conduct of the Command<sup>t</sup> of Michilimackinac, has increased the Indians expectations and for the same reason his being brought away prisoner will give discontent. By return of the Indians whom I sent thro' the Six Nations I have received farther intelligence, of Belts actually sent to them of a very dangerous tendency, which I am now endeavouring to trace to their Source but as these Matters will be better known by the time of Sir Williams return, when your Lordship will receive much Superior Information, I have only humbly to Apologize for the length of this letter and beg leave to subscribe myself, with the most profound respect,

My Lord

Sir

It having been represented, that the General Instructions, given by his Majesty to the Governors of the American Colonies, have, from a Variation in the State and Circumstances of the said Colonies become in many Parts improper and unnecessary or inadequate to the Object of them; I have the Kings Commands to desire you will, with the greatest attention and with all convenient Dispatch, consider those given to you for your Guidance and Direction in the Administration of the Government entrusted to your Care, and transmit to me for his Majesty's Information, such Observations as shall occur to you upon those Articles, which may in your Judgement require such Alteration or Addition as may have the Effect to improve his Majesty's Interests and Revenue, add Strength and Dignity to his Majesty's just Authority promote the Welfare of the Colony and give Facility to the Administration of Government conformable to the Constitution as it stands established by his Majesty's Commission under the Great Seal, and by such Laws as have been ratified by the Consent of the Crown.

The little Improvement which has been made in his Majesty's Revenue of Quit Rents, notwithstanding the Rapid Progress of Settlement, shews that either the Instructions given relative to this Object are imperfect or inadequate, or that there has not been sufficient attention given to the due Execution of them, and therefore it will be your duty to consider these Articles with particular Care and to suggest what shall in your opinion be requisite to give them a greater Force and better Effect

My Lord,

Sir William Johnson's ill state of health having oblig'd him to go into the Connecticut Government, for the advantage of Bathing in the Sea as mention'd in one of my former letters, This accident depriv'd me of the opportunity of seeing him, and settling the measures I propos'd by my Journey into the Mohawk Country, concerning the Boundary Line to be run between this Province and the Indians.

While I was in that part of the Country I had the honor of receiving several letters from your Lordship but as the Paquet seldom stays more than six or eight days with us, I have been oblig'd to defer the answers to them 'till my return to this City.

As His Majesty has been pleas'd to make new regulations in regard to the Indian Trade, I have at the request of the Council wrote pressingly to Sir William Johnston to desire we may see him here before he returns to his own House, that the Plan now to be pursued may be fix'd in such manner as to have the desir'd effect, and that the proceedings of the Province may not interfere with any Powers which His Majesty has been pleas'd to continue still in the hands of the agents for Indian Affairs.

I am very sorry to inform your Lordship that I cannot boast of any success in regard to the settlement I propos'd of the dispute concerning the Kayaderosseras Patent, Under the assurances given me here that nothing should be omitted which would contribute to forward an amicable adjustment of this matter with the Indians, I enter'd upon it very readily, but found that there was no actual survey made of the Creek to which the Proprietors desir'd to extend their claim; A Diagram was produc'd but such a one as no credit could be given to, and after a considerable altercation I was obliged to break up the meeting without concluding on any thing, and have directed surveys now to be made of the Points in dispute, which, after they are completed shall be laid before the Claimants here, and if no farther obstacles arise I will send for the three principal Mohawk Chiefs to this Town, and get this affair settled publicly, that I may put a stop to the setting up of any future claims by the Indins.

My Lord

The many inconveniencies arising from the great extent of the County of Albany have been complain'd of for some years past, and as the population here has increas'd so fast several attempts have been made at different times to subdivide this County, but it has always met with a sufficient opposition to prevent it by those who have prefer'd their own Interests to the Public Benefit.

All the Lands to the Northward of Dutches and Ulster Counties have been always deem'd to be in this County, and as the settlements have been constantly extending to the Northward and Westward, the attendance of the Inhabitants at the Circuits, Sessions &c. held at the Town of Albany has become a great greivance to many who are now oblig'd to travel an hundred miles, either to serve as jurors, or as witnesses to bonds & notes of hand; The consequence of this is, that in the recovery of small demands the expence often exceeds the original sum sued for, and numberless Families have been distress'd and oblig'd to give up debts justly due to them, on no other Account but that of the inconvenience and expence attending the recovery of them.

The proposal for the division of this County having been reviv'd again, and by what I can find, a Resolution already form'd of bringing in a Bill at the next Sessions of Assembly for carrying it into execution. Whatever advantages may arise from it to the great number of Persons concern'd in it, it must necessarily meet with an oppositon from me, unless I have his Majesty's permission to give my assent to it, as I apprehend that the Legislature would never propose to preclude any of the New Counties now to be form'd, from all the Rights which the rest of the King's Subjects enjoy here, and of course it would be expected that they should not be depriv'd of the privilege of sending Representatives to the House of Assembly: His Majesty's Instructions in regard to this Article are so positive, that your Lordship knows it is not in my power to concur in a measure now so much wish'd for, and from which so real a Benefit would be deriv'd to all the upper part of this Province, without permission being first obtain'd to pass the Bill propos'd.

As the meeting of our Assembly is put of 'till the month of September, I hope I may before the Session is over be favor'd with a line from your Lordship on this head & that His Majesty's pleasure may be made known upon it.

My Lord,

The circular letter wrote by the Speaker of the Massachuset's Assembly and sent into the different Provinces did not arrive here before an end was put to the Session by a dissolution, It is impossible for me to say at present what would have been the effect, if the letter had been receiv'd during the Session, but from the coldness which was shew'd to the proposal made by the Merchants of Boston for entering into a combination concerning the importation of British Manufactures, (already mentioned in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 7. to your Lordship) I do not imagine this Province would have shew'd that forwardness which many others have done on this occasion.

The Apprehensions which every Person of property was under during our late Commotions from the Licentiousness of the Populace are not yet forgotten, and I believe they would not willingly see those scenes of disorder renew'd, These are the Sentiments of those I have already conversd with on this head, and as our Assembly will not meet 'till the month of September, there will be sufficient time for reflection before that period comes, Nothing in the mean time shall be wanting on my part to prevent if possible their entering into any such rash engagements, and I shall take every opportunity to lay before them what their Duty to His Majesty will require on this occasion; If I should be so unfortunate as not to meet with the desir'd success, Your Lordship may be assur'd that His Majesty's Orders on this occasion shall be strictly obey'd.

Whitehall July 9th 1768

Sir,

I take the first opportunity that has occurred, since my Dispatch to you N<sup>o</sup> 15. of acknowledging the Receipt of your Letters from N<sup>o</sup> 2. to N<sup>o</sup> 10. with their Inclosures which were all received on the 15th of June and immediately laid before His Majesty.

The Establishment of a New County, with proper Courts and Jurisdictions as in other Counties, seems to be a Regulation which might have been made by Charter under the Province Seal; but as I presume that, in the manner of creating this Establishment, you have conformed to what has been the usage and practice, I have only to signify to you His M<sup>ty</sup>'s Commands, that no Writs should issue for the Choice of Representatives for this New County, unless His Majesty's leave for that purpose shall have been first obtained upon a full Representation to be made by you of the Expediency of it.

The Collection of the printed Laws of the Colony has been received, and if you can procure a like printed collection of the Duke of York's Laws, it may be very useful; but I do not wish that you should be at the trouble of preparing a MS Copy, as there is one already here in the office of the Lords of Trade.

His Majesty very much approves the Heads of Instruction and Enquiry, under which you propose to have a survey made of the townships granted by the Governor of New Hampshire on the West side of Connecticut River and of the Lands on Lake Champlain; and if the Persons, whom you appoint to execute this service, do not fail in a faithful discharge of their Duty, it is hoped that this Enquiry may produce such full Information of the actual state of these valuable tracts of Country, as may enable His Majesty to direct those Measures to be taken, which shall correspond with His Royal Wishes for the settlement & improvement of them to the Public Benefit, and the satisfaction and advantage of the really industrious and bonâ fide Possessors.

I am sensible that services of this nature must be attended with Expence and well deserve Recompense; but as the making such Recompence does not belong to my department, all I can do in that case is to represent the Propriety of it, which I shall not fail to do, as far as I shall be enabled and justified by your Report of the matter, when the service is executed.

Your Representation of M<sup>r</sup> Colden's Case evinces the Equity of his Claim upon the Colony for the Arrears of his Salary and for Compensation for the Losses he sustained in the Disturbances at New York; and therefore it is the King's Pleasure that you do persevere in your Recommendation of this Matter to the Assembly. I beg the favour of you to acquaint M<sup>r</sup> Colden with the Directions you have received upon this subject, that he may be assured, that the sufferings and Complaints of a meritorious old servant of the Crown are graciously attended to by his Majesty, and have not been neglected by me.

His Majesty laments that the inflammatory Publications in print of ill-intentioned Persons, in some of the other Provinces, continue to have the Effect to mislead and raise groundless apprehensions and suspicions in the minds of His Majesty's good Subjects of New York, and to alienate their affections from their fellow Subjects of this Kingdom; and so far as those Meetings of Merchants, which you mention are actuated by a Spirit of Resentment, and a Desire of Distressing the Merchants and Manufacturers of Great Britain, they are doubtless, if not illegal and unwarrantable, very unnatural, ungrateful and unbecoming. In their effect however, I trust they will be of no ill consequence to this Kingdom, and if they should induce a real spirit of Economy, I cannot but think such a spirit in the Colonies would be of service both to themselves, and to the Mother Country, as, I presume, it is the contrary which has occasioned the enormous Debts, which at present distress the one, and depress the other.

His Majesty highly commends the attention you have shewn to Indian affairs, and in particular to the case of the Kayaderosseras Patent, which has so long been a subject of contention with the Savages, and a Principal Cause of their Jealousy and Enmity. If you can settle this matter agreeably to your Expectations you will have done a very signal service, and, from the success which has already attended the commendable and prudent Measures you have pursued, His Majesty entertains no doubt, that your intended interview with the Indians will be productive of great Public Advantage.

The Bill for establishing a Paper Credit in New York, transmitted with your Letter N<sup>o</sup> 10, will be laid before the Board of Trade for their Consideration, and I will not fail to communicate to you His Majesty's pleasure in consequence of the Resolutions which may be taken upon their Lordships Report.

Sir Henry Moore.

As I observe it frequently happens that intelligence of Public Transactions in the Colonies is received by private Persons in this City long before any Official Communication of it comes to me, for his Majesty's Information, I conceive this Inconvenience must arise in great measure from his Majesty's Governors not availing themselves of such casual Opportunities of Writing by private Ships as frequently happen, but confining themselves to the Channel of the Packets only; for this reason I desire that you will for the future send your Dispatches by the first opportunity that offers, and Duplicates of them by the next Packet, or in case the Packet shall be the first Opportunity that offers, then you will send your Duplicates by the Next private Conveyance whence I returned a few days ago some what recovered of my late indisposition. he likewise reported in general terms to your Lordship the Steps taken towards effecting the Boundary Line with the Indians, and the occurrences since my departure.

It remains for me now, more fully to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordships Letters with the Report of the Board of Trade, Sincerely to Congratulate you on your late Appointment and dutifully to Submit my thoughts on the Reform which as an Old, and I believe a most faithfull Servant to the Crown, I am enabled, and bound to offer to His Majesty's Consideration, wherein I shall Speak without the smallest Interest or Prejudice beyond what in me naturally arises for the true Interests of the Crown, and the happiness of the People as far as they depend on the pacific disposition of the Indians within my district, should any thing that I offer appear worthy Attention it will in any situation of life yield me the highest Satisfaction, and by its effects point out its utility but should it on the contrary meet with a different reception, the Consideration of the importance of the Subject the necessary Connection I have with it the Experience I may be supposed to have acquire in these Matters and above all the laudable Motives which induced me to the task, will I persuade myself Justify my intention, whilst it affords me the pleasing reflection that I have faithfully discharged my duty.

Your Lordship will please to recollect that the plan for the more effectual regulating of Indian Affairs which came out in 1764, was formed under your Lordships directions and honored with his Majesty's Approbation when you so wisely presided at the head of the Board of Trade, and has since in part carried into execution attended with as much Success as could have been possibly expected from the powers committed to me, on which Subject I have often since wrote, and at Sundry times offered my humble Sentiments towards such Amendments therein, as seemed most reconcilable to the different Views and Interests of the Americans. That Agreeable to my Instructions I did then and since give the strongest Assurances to all the Nations of Indians throughout my District, that the same would be firmly established by such Authority and in such Manner as to effectually remove all their uneasynesses That on these Assurances the Majority of them relied, and from the expectation of that Establishment they have been hitherto withheld from committing outrages, the consequences of their own unsettled minds, their strong Jealousies of our power and views since the reduction of Canada, and the Misconduct of Sundry persons in the Colonies which has daily increased. That notwithstanding I was not impowered to carry this plan effectually into execution and that some parts of it however Judicious and Political, appeared from reasons that occured since impracticable to be inforced, yet I have still received assurances that some thing similar thereto was under consideration, and that I should speedily receive such powers as would Answer those ends, and that in the interim I should give the Indians such Assurances and take such Measures, as would make them easy till the same was Established; By taking great pains, and by repeating these assurances I have been hitherto enabled, notwithstanding their impatience to preserve peace, which has been solely owing to these Measures and to their expectations founded thereon.

The present Reform for the Indian Department proposed by the Lords of Trade seems very Judiciously framed according to the object it seems to have had in View by Committing Comercial Affairs to the Care of the Colonies with intent principally to the retrenching Expences founded on an expectation that the Colonies Sensible of their former errors will manage better in future. Now My Lord, was I governed by Interest or did it in any manner influence my Representations, I should not offer any farther thoughts upon it seeing that my Salary is Augmented, and my Cares and Trouble in some measure lessened, Considerations of no small Weight with the generality of mankind, but when I reflect that this Reform is a Matter of the most Serious Consequence, that its final operations, require the strictest Canvassing, that the Consequences of Mismanagement have such weight with the Board of Trade as to induce them to say, that were it probable it should again take place "They would not hesitate in declaring their opinion against the Propriety of Suffering the management of this Concern ever to revert into the hands of the Colonies." I say My Lord when I duly consider all this I cannot but Conclude it my Immediate Duty to offer my humble thoughts, and throw all possible light on the Obscure parts of Indian Affairs which being a Terra Incognita, inaccessible to the Generality of even enquirers is thereby more liable to Misrepresentation than any other Subject.

I shall therefore proceed to take a short View of the State of the Colonies and Indians previous to the late War and since with the changes produced in the Politicks and Sentiments of both, from a consideration of which I flatter myself some Conclusions may be drawn relative to the Event of the present System and its future operations.

The General Misconduct and Neglect of Provincial Management is too well known and has been repeatedly expressed as the Sense of Government, It is however said by some that they formerly managed the Indians at a very Cheap and Easy Rate, and that they were in general peaceable, the conclusion to be drawn from thence is, That they had best to have them again in their hands which I am not at all Surprised that many persons concerned in Trade should wish for, I own I shall readily admit that their Transactions were attended with very little Expence and I know what they lost by their own economy, the manner and Success of their Management will require to be more particularly discussed.

The English were unknown to the Western Confederacy before this Century, and the Nature of Our Government Genius and pursuits of our People prevented them from being objects of Jealousy to the Six Nations and others with whom they were some what acquainted, The little we had to do with them was easily and reasonably transacted whilst they had few suspicions of our designs, a slender opinion of our powers and abilities, and whilst the Inhabitants and Traders thro' fear were cautious of giving them offence, On the other hand they saw a small but vigorous enterprizing Colony in Canada, whose Government, Pursuits and Genius, led them to make bold Advances, to carry War into the Midst of their Country, and whose Politicks set one Nation against another which enabled them to penetrate into the Western Territory, and to form Alliances and Trade with Nations entire Strangers to us with one or other of whom they were nevertheless Generally at War, These were a people Sufficient to alarm the Jealousy of Indians. Their Eyes were fixed upon them, and they were glad to see another European power in the Country, and indeed for the greatest part of this Country I cant find that the Indians were undeceived concerning us, Nevertheless in proportion as they became acquainted with Europeans, and courted by both parties, their want increased, as did the expences attending for the French spared neither pains nor money upon those occasions, whilst we avoided both and what little was given was so ill timed, and thro' the hands of such Americans, Ignorant and Slothfull Managers, as rendered it of little use, so that whoever shall peruse the Records of Indian Affairs will find that their Complaints have been increasing from the Commencement of this Century and their defection from Our Interest is as Vissible, till at the breaking out of the late War they were totally alienated from our Interest, At which time the Indians were so far improved in knowledge and avarice that their Services became very expensive and some Gentlemen contributed thereto by unsuccessfull endeavours to acquire an undue Influence amongst them, The Western Indians even at this time were little known and much prejudiced against us thro' the suggestions of the French and our own Misconduct to those few who sometimes resorted to Oswego as I once before related, and as for those who were better acquainted with us, altho' they still retained but a slender opinion of our Abilities, they nevertheless grew Alarmed and Suspicious on observing our encrease and the advancement of Our Settlements, which Joined to a dislike that had been gradually encreasing rendered the appointment of a Superintendant extremely necessary had no War broke out with France. The Conquest of Canada being Completed in 1760, we were to enter into Alliances, which would make a tenfold addition of Indians, Our Troops took Possession of the Forts in the Western Country, and our Traders flocked thither with Goods, The French saw that they must share with other Colonies that Trade which they before held unrivalled, and many of them flattering themselves with the hopes of a change and stimulated by Interest spread false Reports amongst the Indians, at the same time those residing in the Western Country and some of those<sup>1</sup> Partizans, who had retreated thither on the reduction of Montreal, were very busy in Alarming the Jealousies of these our new Allies, occasioned a General Confederacy against us, on which I went to Detroit in 1761, where I held a Treaty with them, Gave them a strong assurances of his Majestys favour, and that Measures woud be taken for preventing Abuses Encroachments &c, whereby I for that time prevented their designs, and on my return represented the necessity for such Establishments as woud remove their Suspicions and preserve peace and order, but before any thing was done therein, the artifices of the French, Misconduct of Our People and Suspicions of the Indians (all which have been often represented) produced the War in 1763—which thro' means of a Vigorous Expedition, and by employing one Nation against another was terminated the year following, One of the principal causes of this War was the Apparent change in our behaviour to the Indians, the want of proper Agents with fit powers amongst them, and the alarming Circumstance of our being the Sole Europeans here by the reduction of Canada, Those Numerous Nations to whom we were introduced by this Conquest had their Natural aversions aggravated by this Circumstance, and our Old Allies began to be much Alarmed at it, This was one of the Natural Consequences of our great encrease of our Advancement into their Country and of the enlargement of our Connections with them and could only be surmounted by degrees by favours, [&] A seemin attention to their Interests, establishments for their Affairs, and some Summary Methods for obtaining Justice—our people are not inclined to do this, They began to think them unworthy attention, they encroached upon them Insulted and Wronged them and altho' they paid dear for this during the Indian War, yet no sooner was it terminated in 1764 than elated thereby, and by the Conquest of Canada, and seemingly insensible that this Conquest had encreased the number of our Indian Enemies, and rendered the management of them an Affair of much more difficulty than before they pushed on their encroachments and at last began to proceed to Rob and Murder them wherever they met them. the general turn and sentiments of our People will in spite of conviction lead them into these Errors. The plan which came over that year met with several delays and thereby time was given to all those whose imediate prospects of advantage might be frustrated by its Establishment to represent the Necessity of a general Indulgence to Trade where they pleased. The French in the Indian Country were at the bottom of this, they knew that if once they were permitted to bring Goods there, they could Secure that part of the Trade to themselves by their Politicks, The Event has Justified this, The Indians have began already to Murder our Traders and the French have aided in plundering them, and persuaded the Indians to threaten all English with death who shall enter their Country, In short they have been only hitherto prevented from taking Arms thro' their reliance on my Assurances from time to time in the Name of Government. That their Affairs were under consideration that they might be assured that such Authority should be given to the Managers of their Affairs as would remedy those Abuses of which they have so often Complained, and of which the Crown seems to be so Sensible. Their Reliance is, and has been entirely on the Crown thro' the powers vested in its Officer, founded on a certainty of the utter impossibility of receiving it at other hands whether the same be owing to inexperience, want of leisure, disinclination, the want of legal Provision adapted to the peculiarity of their Affairs, or to that particular bias of the Colonists which operates so much to the disadvantage of the Indians, throughout their various Subjects of Contention, whether in the ordinary pursuit of their Landed or Commercial Interests in America. These points in the Course of my Correspondence with his Majesty's Ministers have been more than once enlarged on, and I see with Satisfaction that Your Lordship and the Board of Trade are persuaded of their General truth, and therefore I might have avoided giving Your Lordship the trouble of perusing so long a detail, did it not contain some circumstances which will point out the difficulties I must expect to encounter in reconciling the whole of the Measures according to the Reform to the minds of the Indians, and produce some thoughts from the conclusions and considerations of which I flatter myself that Your Lordship will think it necessary to the Public Quiet that the Colonies have ample directions for the good Management of Affairs of Commerce, as there is reason to apprehend they will not incline to be at much trouble or expence about them. These thoughts are with all becoming deference humbly Submitted to your Lordship. I am to assure Your Lordship that I shall lose no time in compleating and fulfilling his Majesty's Orders touching the carrying the Reform into Execution omitting no pains necessary for explaining and reconciling it to the Indians, relying on his Majesty's support for the more effectual discharge of the rest of the Dutys remaining under my Superintendency, which I shall always endeavour to perform in the best manner, but there are some points necessary thereto which it is my Duty to lay before your Lordship. The Northern and Southern Departments are put upon the same allowance altho' the Northern has been always considered and admitted to be by much the most Considerable and Respectable whether as to the Number of Indians, their dispositions, or the circumstances attending their Affairs and Management, And as Annual Presents must be given to the Western Indians, Six Nations, those of Canada, and the Shawanese and Delawares, I submit it to your Lordship whether there is a possibility of doing this and providing for all other necessary Contingencies on £3000 p<sup>r</sup> Annum. In the next place the absolute necessity there is for my having some Subordinate Officers for the carrying on the various operations and Dutys of this Office, Those Deputys and Interpreters who are Essential thereto, do not appear to have a provision made for them, the Sum I formerly proposed for a present alone was £4000. The Contingences are besides as uncertain as they are innumerable and as I am directed to remove all those Officers who were established for the Indian Trade, which are the Commissaries, Smiths at the Posts &<sup>ca</sup>, the future want of those Corresponding Agents, will in many Respects add to the trouble as well as the expence of Management So that the Deputys who are long Established cannot be paid out of the Annual £3000. without omitting some other essential part of the Service, nor can theirs be dispensed with. But that the Service may not suffer thro' the want of what is necessary and reasonable, I shall endeavour to settle these matters with the Commander in Chief of the Army, in the best manner I can, hoping it will merit approbation.

The other Affairs of the Department, the necessity for continuing the Boundary Line Northerly from Owege so as to Establish bounds between them and New York in such manner as the Indians shall be prevailed on to agree to, I hope to receive your Lordships Commands upon.

As to the other objects of Concern and the extraordinary Intelligences received I am doing all in my power thereon, and hope to lay them and other Matters more fully before your Lordship in my next. but the Subject of this Letter having already drawn it out to an immoderate length I must for the present draw to a Conclusion, by expressing my humble gratitude to his Majesty for the Augmentation of my Sallery, and my Sincere thanks to your Lordship Assuring you that I should not desire it, longer than I was able to do real Service, and that as all my proposals have been directed with that View, the same shall ever remain the invariable rule of My Conduct, thro' which I persuade myself of his Majesty's favour and the Continuance of your Lordships Countenance.

I have the honour to be, with the most profound Respect

My Lord

Your Lordships

Most obedient & most

The Earl of Hillsborough.

Devoted humble Servant

Sir,

On the 15th of July I received your Letter to me N<sup>o</sup> 11, acquainting me with your Intention of setting out the next Day after the date of it for the Mohawk Country; and I shall be happy to hear that your Journey has proved as agreeable to yourself as I dare say it will have been beneficial to the Public.

I have only in Command from His Majesty to send you the inclosed Order of His Majesty in Council, confirming the Boundary Line between New York and Quebec, as agreed upon and fixed by yourself and Governor Carleton, for the due Execution of which Order under the several Limitations and Restrictions contained in it, His Majesty has the fullest Reliance on your zeal for & attention to His Service.

Some doubts having occurred to the Lords of Trade whether the two last Acts passed in New York for making provision for quartering His Majesty's Troops were such a compliance with the British Act of Parliament as to give Validity to the Subsequent Acts and Proceedings of the Legislature there, under the Restrictions of the Act of Parliament of the 7th of the King, their Lordships thought fit to make a Report to His Majesty thereupon.

This Report has been since referred to His Majesty's Attorney & Solicitor General for their opinion the Question agitated by the Board of Trade, and they having reported that they are of Opinion, the Act of Assembly passed in New York in June 1767 is such a Compliance with the Act of Parliament of the Seventh year of His Majesty's Reign as leaves the validity of the Acts and Proceedings of the Legislature of the Colony subsequent to the 1st of October 1767, subject to no objection, on that Account, I herewith inclose to you a Copy of His Majesty's Order in Council thereupon, directing the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations to proceed in the Consideration of the other Laws passed in that Province, and make their Representations thereupon to His Majesty in Council in the usual & accustomed manner.

I am &c<sup>a</sup>

[ From New-York Council Minutes, Albany, XXVI, 131. ]

At the Court at S<sup>t</sup> James's the 12th day of August 1768

PRESENT—	The KINGS MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY
	Duke of Grafton	Viscount Falmouth
	Duke of Rutland	Viscount Barrington
	Duke of Queensberry	Viscount Villiers
	Marquiss of Granby	Lord North
	Earl of Litchfield	James Stuart Mackenzie Esq:
	Earl of Hillsborough	Thomas Harley Esq <sup>r</sup> :
	Earl of Shelburne	Sir Edward Hawke
	Viscount Weymouth

WHEREAS there was this Day read at the Board a Report from the Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Council for Plantation Affairs dated the 9th of this Instant, upon considering a Report made by the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, upon an Extract of a Letter from Sir Henry Moore Governor of New York, to the Earl of Shelburne dated the 16th of January last, relative to the settling the Boundary Line between that Province and Quebec: By which Report it appears, that it having been mutually agreed upon, between Sir Henry Moore and the Commander in Chief of the Province of Quebec, at a Meeting for that purpose appointed, that the Line of Division between these Provinces should be fixed at the forty fifth Degree of North Latitude, conformable to the Limits laid down in his Majesty's Proclamation of October 1763, and it having been ascertained and determined by proper Observations where the said Line would pass; it is therefore proposed that these Proceedings above stated should be confirmed by his Majesty—His Majesty taking the said Report into Consideration was pleased with the Advice of his privy Council to approve thereof, and doth hereby confirm the said Proceedings above stated, and order that the said Line of Division be run out and continued as far as each Province respectively extends Provided that nothing herein before contained shall extend to affect the Properties of his Majesty's new Subjects, having Possessions under proper Titles, on those parts of the Lands on the South side of this Line, the Dominion of which was not disputed on the part of the Crown of Great Britain; And Provided also, that this Determination shall not operate wholly to deprive his Majesty's new Subjects of such Concessions on the South side of the said Line, on which they may have made actual Settlement and Improvement, although the Lands may have been disputed by the Crown of Great Britain; but that such Possessors shall be intitled to so much of the said Concessions, as shall be proportioned to their Improvements, as the Rate of fifty Acres for every three Acres of Improvement, provided they take out Grants for the same under the Seal of the Province of New York, Subject to the usual Quit Rents; and Provided also that the Grant to no one Person shall exceed twenty thousand Acres: And the Governors or Commanders in Chief of his Majestys said Provinces of New York and Quebec for the Time being, and all others whom it may concern, are to take Notice of his Majesty's Pleasure hereby signified and govern themselves accordingly

At the Court of St James's the 12th day of August 1768.

WHEREAS, there was this day read at the Board a Report from the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords of the Committee of Council for the Plantation Affairs dated the 9th of this instant in the words following: viz<sup>t</sup>

“Your Maj<sup>ty</sup> having been pleased by your Order in Council of the 11th of May last to refer<sup>r</sup> unto this Committee a Representation from the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantations dated the 7th of the said month of May in the words following viz<sup>t</sup>

“That these Acts and proceedings, appear to have passed subsequent to the first of October 1767 the day fixed for the Commencement of the operation of the provisions of an Act of Parliam<sup>t</sup> made in the 7th year of your Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Reign, intituled: “an Act for restraining and prohibiting the Gov<sup>r</sup>, Council and House of Representatives of the Province of New York, until provision shall have been made for Furnishing the King's Troops with all the necessaries required by Law, from passing, or assenting to any Act of Assembly, vote or resolution for any other purpose” And therefore it will, as we humbly conceive, be necessary, before we can report our Opinion upon these Acts and proceedings, that it should be determined, whether there has been on the part of the Legislature of New York such a submission to and compliance, with what has been

 “Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Troops in America, as could conformably to the tenour of the Act above mentioned,
 “make it Lawful for the Legislature of New York to make or pass any Act, or any order, “resolution, or vote, save only such as could make such Acts, Votes and Resolutions of any “force or validity; and to the end that Your Maj<sup>ty</sup> may be fully informed of every circumstance “necessary to be attended to in the discussion of this question, it is our duty humbly to state
 “to your Majesty the Laws, which have been passed in New York for making provision for “quartering your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Troops, subsequent to the Act for that purpose, which was disallowed
 “by Your Maj<sup>ty</sup> in Council, and was the ground of those proceedings in Parliament, that gave “rise to the Law above recited”—

“On the 6th of June 1767. the Legislature of New York passed an Act intituled: “An Act “granting unto His Maj<sup>ty</sup> the sum of three thousand pounds for furnishing necessaries for the “Troops quartered within this Colony, and for paying Captain Phillip Martin the losses he “sustained in the house of Major James, on the first of November one thousand seven “hundred and sixty five”—By this Act it is provided, that the Treasurer of that Colony “shall out of certain funds therein mentioned pay unto His Excellcy Thomas Gage, “Commander in Chief of your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Forces in North America or his order, or to the Commander
 “in Chief for the time being, or order, the sum of three thousand pounds to be applied for “furnishing necessaries for your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Troops quartered within that Colony, and no mention “whatever is made of the persons by whom, or the mode in which the service shall be “performed; nor is there any specification of the particular articles to be furnished to “the Barracks.

“On the same day that this Act was passed, the General Assembly was prorogued, between “which time and their meeting again in November your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Gov<sup>r</sup> received the Act of “Parliament and on the 18th of November 1767 he communicated it to the Council and “Assembly of New York, who, in their address in answer to the speech made by him upon “that occasion, expressed their concern at having fallen under the displeasure of the British “Parliament, and refer to what they had done in the preceeding session, as such a compliance “with the Act of Parliam<sup>t</sup> as did in their opinion take away any scruple the Gov<sup>r</sup> could have
 “to concur in such things as the public good of the Colony might require.

 “Assembly proceeded to business in the usual manner, and several Laws were made and “enacted, among which there is one for making a further provision of fifteen hundred pounds
 “for furnishing Your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Troops Quartered in that Colony with necessaries, and the sums “requisite for quartering Your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Troops are directed to be drawn out of the Treasury by “warrant of the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council without any specification either of the manner in which
 “the service shall be performed, or the Articles which are to be furnished.

“From these proceeding it evidently appears that the Legislature of your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Province of “New York have considered the Act passed by them in June 1767, as a full and compleat “obedience to and compliance with the Acts of Parliament above recited, and when we “consider the nature and Terms of the Act of Parliament of the seventh year of Your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s “Reign (which in the enacting part is entirely silent as to the mode of providing the necessaries “required by the former Laws) and compare that Act with the provisions of the Law passed
 “in New York in 1767; we cannot but be of opinion that the object and intention of it are “thereby in effect answered and provided for.

“But how far in the strict and legal construction of this Law it is such a compliance as can give validity to all Acts and proceedings there subsequent to the first of October 1767, is a question which it is our duty humbly to submit to your Majesty’s determination, upon such opinions and advice of the Law Officers as your Majesty shall think fit to take thereupon.”

“The Lords of the Committee in obedience to your Majesty’s said order of reference did on the 25th of June last take into consideration the said representation and Act passed in New York on the sixth of June 1767 and also another Act passed in that Province on the 21st of Decemb<sup>r</sup> 1767, intituled: “An Act for making a further provision of fifteen hundred pounds for furnishing His Majesty’s Troops quartered in this Colony with necessaries” and likewise the aforementioned Act of Parliament made in the seventh year of your Majesty’s Reign, and thought proper to refer the said representation and Acts to your Majesty’s Attorney and Solicitor general to consider the same and report to this Committee how far in the strict and legal construction the Law passed in New York in June 1767, is such a compliance with the said Act of Parliam<sup>t</sup> of the seventh year of your Majesty’s Reign, as can give validity to all Acts and proceedings of the Legislature of the said Colony subsequent to the 1st of October 1767; whereupon Your Majesty’s Attorney and Solicitor General have reported to this Committee, that they are of opinion the Act of Assembly passed in New York in June 1767 is such a compliance with the Act of Parliament of the seventh year of your Majesty’s Reign, as leaves the validity of the Acts and proceedings of the Legislature of the Colony, subsequent to the first of October 1767, subject to no objection on that account; for the only object of the Act of Parliam<sup>t</sup> appears to have been fully accomplished by the supply of the money, which is admitted to be competent to the service, the mode of applying it, and the specification of the articles made no part of the condition, the performance of which was to restore the Legislature of the Colony to their former activity.—And the Lords of the Committee having this day resumed the consideration of this matter do concur in opinion with your Majesty’s Attorney and Solicitor General and humbly propose to your Majesty that it may be adviseable for your Majesty to direct the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations to proceed in the consideration of the other Laws passed in that Province and make their representations thereupon to your Majesty in Council in the usual & accustom’d manner”—

His Majesty, taking the said Report into consideration, was pleased with the advice of his privy Council to approve thereof and to order as it is hereby ordered, that the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> for Trade and Plantations do proceed in the consideration of the other Laws passed in that province and make their representations thereupon to His Majesty in Council in the usual & accustomed manner.

Sir,

I have his Majesty’s Commands in consequence of an Order in Council, to transmit to you the inclosed Copy of a Petition presented to his Majesty, praying a Grant, under certain Limitations, of all Copper Mines in the Country circumjacent to Lake Superior 60 Miles from the Waters of the Lake; I am also directed to send you a Copy of the Report of the Board of Trade upon this Petition, and as his Majesty approves what is advised by their Lordships You will therefore be pleased to make a full enquiry into the Facts alledged, and the Practicability of the Proposals, and report your opinion what effect the Execution of this Measure will probably have as to his Majesty's Interests with respect to the Indians, and by what means they might be induced to consent to such Establishments, as would be necessary for obtaining the advantages stated to arise from the Proposals, in case his Majesty should upon further Consideration think it adviseable to comply therewith.

My Lord,

It was no small mortification to me that I was under the necessity of laying before your Lordship the disappointment I had met with in my late endeavours to settle the dispute concerning the Kayaderosseras Patent, but I was deservedly punish'd for relying on the diligence & activity of persons whom I thought too much interested in the success of my negotiation to neglect any means which could forward it; I have already had the honor of informing your Lordship in my letter mark'd N<sup>o</sup> 12. that I had been oblig'd to break up the meeting held on this occasion without concluding on any thing, but I was determin'd not to let it drop, especially in our present critical situation & the moment the Surveys were compleated which I had directed to be made I sent up two Persons from hence as Agents to the Patentees with letters to S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Johnson recommending this matter strongly to him & desiring that the Mohawk Indians might be called together again, & the former Proceeding laid once more before them; This had the desired effect, for as the contending parties could now judge with certainty what was claim'd by each, from the Surveyors Return which was made upon oath. It was not long before they came to an agreement on the following conditions, as I am inform'd by a letter received a few days ago, from S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, The Patentees have released to the Indians a large Tract of Land to the Westward, which was part of the Patent they claimed & likewise all Pretentions to those lands by which the Titles of certain Patents granted to others were affected. The Indians on their part have relased all claim to the remainder of the Patent agreeable to the Survey made on the Patentees paying them 5000 Dollars, This Dispute which has subsisted about 60 years & occasioned so much uneassiness is at last settled to the satisfaction of all Parties, & I am extremely happy to have it in my power to give your Lordship this information, I must own that I was under so much anxiety about it (as there is to be a considerable congress of Indians on our Frontiers about the latter end of this Month) that I was determin'd in case of any new obstructions to have set out again immediately for that part of the Country, which I could not have effected without some difficulty, as I had been seized with a violent fever on my return from my late Journey, & since my coming home confined to my chamber for these last six weeks, But as your Lordship had mentioned that His Majesty had been pleased to approve of the attention I had given to this service, I thought it incumbent on me to exert my utmost efforts on the occasion. As one of the Motives of my late Tour was to get the best information of those parts of the Province which were most likely to suffer in case of a Rupture with the Indians, that I might be better enabled to give them the assistance they might require, I went up as far as the Canajoharie Falls on the Mohawk River; Here is a carrying place about a mile in length & all Boats going down or up the River are obliged to unload, & be carried over land, which is a great detriment not only on account of the delay it occasions, but from the damage done to the Boats and Cargo, which suffer greatly by the common method of proceeding with them; As this Fall is the only obstruction to the Navigation between Fort Stanwix & Schenectady, my intention was to project a canal on the side of the Falls with Sluices on the same plan as those built on the great Canal in Languedoc, & I stayed a whole day there which was employed in measuring the Falls & examining the Ground for that purpose. Upon the meeting of the Legislative Bodies I propose to lay what I have done before them, & engage them if I possibly can to carry into execution a project that will be attended with such benefit to the Public. If I fail of success in my attempt I shall still have this satisfaction that I have done my Duty in pointing out to them how those advantages they have from their situation may be improved, the rest must depend on themselves. I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord

New York August 17th 1768.

Johnson Hall Aug: 17. 1768

My Lord,

I had the honor of addressing a letter N<sup>o</sup> 2, of the 20th Ul<sup>o</sup> to your Lordship immediately after my return from the Sea Coast, therein I took the liberty to offer some thoughts concerning the present Reform & Management, Some of which I flattered myself would prove Seasonable.

Since I wrote that letter a Chief of the Chippawaes one of the most powerfull Nations to the Westward Arrived here on an Embassy with several others, As he is a man of much Influence, and can bring some thousands [of his people]<sup>1</sup> into the Feild, I took particular Notice of him formerly at Niagra, since which he has behaved very well and now come to be informed of my sentiments on the uneasy State of the Indians to the Westward, he told me that his People would quietly wait his return before they took any Resolution, Confirmed all the Acc<sup>ts</sup> I have received of the practices of the Spaniards and French, of the assurances they give them of assistance from Europe, and of the Belts, Messages, and Presents sent amongst them, they are endeavouring to increase the spirit of distrust, Jealousy & Avasion<sup>1</sup> by every means in their power, amongst the Indians in general, and it will be utterly impossible to keep them all quiet without silencing those incendiaries who are amongst them. I wish the Colonies may Act wisely in the Management of the Indian Trade, as a good deal will depend upon it at this time this will require much pains & expense, else they must not expect to send any Traders into the Indian Country, Altho' the much greater part of those who go a trading are men of such circumstances and dispositions as to venture their persons any where for extravagant gains, yet the consequences to the public are not to be slighted, as we may be led into a general Quarrel thro' their means. The Indians in the parts adjacent to Michilimacinac have been treated with at a very great expense for some time past. Major Rojers brings a considerable Charge against the Crown for mediating a peace between some Tribes of the Sioux & some Chippawaes living about Lake Superior, which had it been attended with success, would have been only interesting to a very few French, & others that had Goods in that part of the Country, but the contrary has happened, and they are more violent than ever against one another which perhaps is not an unfavourable Circumstance for Us at this Juncture, but the Indians on finding that they are to receive large Presents for promising to lay down their Arms will never want occasion of Quarrel with one another.

I should inform your Lordship agreeable to a former letter of mine to the Earl of Shelburne, the Patentees of the disputed Tract called Kayadarosseras sent an Agent to treat with the Indians whom my Deputy summoned to attend for that purpose in the presence of Sir Henry Moore during my absence from home, but the Agent not having brought an original Indian Deed, or a proper survey of the Tract, they did not agree, Since my return having found an original [Indian] Deed, & had their line Run, the Patentees again applied to me, & the same was recommended by letter from Sir Henry Moore, in consequence of which, on the arrival of their Agents they met the Mohawks, who on examining the Indian Deed & Survey & receiving a handsome Sum of money were at length prevailed on to Yeild their Claim to the Patentees in my presence, this will save some trouble, & Expence to the Crown, as according to the opinion of the Lawyers there were not sufficient grounds to proceed against the Patent with any Prospect of Success in a Court of Law.

In addition to what I formerly mentioned concerning the Boundary Line on which I expect shortly to meet the Indians, I have only to express my desire to hear from your Lordship concerning that part relating to the Province of New York, should I not be honored with your Commands previous to the Congress, I shall endeavour to do it in the best Manner I can. As I have all along conceived, and as it is understood by the Commander in Chief, the Boundary is a Matter of a General Nature, Negotiated on the part of his Majesty with the Indians, & that whatever Cession they make is in consideration of an Adequate present to be solely at their<sup>2</sup> disposal of the King in all Royal Governments and may be granted by him to any of his Subjects by Mandamus or otherwise without farther purchase from or treaty with the Indians, I am hopefull that this construction is the sense & intention of Government, as I beleive it to be the most effectual means of preventing disputes, at the same time it is presum'd that all those unlocated Lands at the back of the Colonies which shall be so ceded to his Majesty by the Indians will be added to, & become a part of such Colonies as have just claims or pretensions to Comprehend them within their Bounds, or with which they may be most naturally connected, but with this I apprehend I have nothing to do, and that my Duty is solely to treat with, and obtain a Cession for and on behalf of the Crown of a Tract of Country along the Frontiers, the Rear of which is to be the Boundary Line between the English in General, & the Several Indian Nations, agreeable to which I mean to Act, according to my best Judgement, and as Correspondent as possible with the line described on the Map transmitted by your Lordship, hoping that the Commissioners from the Several Governments who attend the Treaty will be enabled to give the strongest & most satisfactory Assurances to the Indians, that no Encroachments shall be made by any of the Inhabitants on their Lands beyond that Line, and this cannot be to firmly guarded & secured, for should it hereafter be invaded and the Agreements Violated on our parts, it were better they had never been entered into.

In my last I took the liberty to observe to your Lordship concerning the slender provision made for the Expences of my Department, which has been always Considered as the most considerable, & by much the most important of the Two superintendencys, That no mention is made of my Deputys, or of interpreters without whom the Business of the Department could not be conducted, that the Former were Officers indispensably necessary for the Management of Affairs in the Distant & Different Quarters for many years past and Existing long before any Plan for Trade was adopted and that the Interpreters must be always considered as wanting

The Commissioners were the only officers appointed for the Management of Trade & their Expence far exceeded all the rest of the Department, occasioned principally by our having newly got possession of the Out Posts, and they are now to be discontinued, but a due Consideration of the importance of other Dutys to be performed by the Department, and of their Multifarious nature will evince the necessity there is for some proper subordinate Officers & Interpreters, which cannot be provided for out of the Sum allotted, One thousand pounds p<sup>r</sup> Annum of which being for my Sallary, the remaining three thousand pounds will I fear be found an inadequate Sum for Annual Presents to three large confederacys of Indians, & other incidental Expences, on which the Public tranquility here does in a great measure depend without a possibility of applying any part of it to the Support of such Officers and Assistants as I have repeatedly shewn the necessity of. But to manifest my Zeal and readiness to carry on the Management of Indian Affairs on a new Arrangement in the manner they ought to be conducted, I presumed to propose an addition of a thousand pounds p<sup>r</sup> Annum for the Sallarys of three Deputys & Interpreters, and small as the other Sum may appear resolved to endeavour my utmost that it should answer the purposes of promoting tranquility and extending his Majesty's Interest, with this View I transmit to General Gage Commander in Chief an Estimate of the Expences & application of the Sum proposed on the New Arrangement wherein I have proposed the addition of £1000 p<sup>r</sup> Annum for three Deputys, A number of Interpreters for the many different Nations & a Messenger, In this (besides the Sallarys & Expences of the Commissaries now to be Discontinued) there is no provision made for a Secretary Clerk, Store keeper, Smiths, Charges of Transportation of goods &<sup>ca</sup> & one Deputy is likewise omitted, because as my fourth Deputy has been very lately instituted by direction of his Grace the Duke of Richmond for the peculiar Province of Nova Scotia, the necessity of his continuance is submitted to Your Lordship As to a Secretary he cannot be dispensed with, the entries of proceedings & preserving the Records of all Indian transactions being as necessary as it is troublesome, but I have not included his Sallary it being usually paid out of the Receiver Generalls Office of the Province of New York, at the rate of £100 St<sup>er</sup> p<sup>r</sup> Annum, to which I generally procured an addition, as no man properly qualified would undertake that troublesome Duty in this Country on such a Sallary. My Deputys considering their respective Duties, the Expences to which they are liable and that there is no Allowance for travelling charges &c Will find £200 Str<sup>ls</sup> p<sup>r</sup> Annum a very slender provision for them and every other Sallary is rated as low as men can be procured qualified for their Offices, So that I flatter myself your Lordship will find that the Moderate addition I propose which will make the whole Annual Expence but £5000 Str<sup>ls</sup> including my own, & Officers Sallarys, is a very trifling Sum for conducting Affairs of such Public importance. From my Sense of the State of Indian Affairs, I humbly recommend it to Your Lordship, and I have only to wish that it may be found sufficient for preserving peace & order, and promoting those Objects of Public concern that depend on the Establishment of proper men, and the pursuit of proper Measures in the discharge of the various Dutys appurtenant to my Office.

I have the honor to be with the most profound Respect.

New York August 18th 1768

My Lord,

I have the satisfaction to inform your Lordship that the Obstructions complain'd of by Commissioners of His Majesty's Customs in the execution of their Duty have never been occasioned by any thing which has happen'd in this Province, nor has there been the least subject of complaint from the behaviour of any persons here, on account of the late Duties impos'd: This tranquillity however is now render'd very precarious by a late order from the Commissioners to M<sup>r</sup> Elliot<sup>1</sup> our Collector forbidding him to receive any thing for the Duties but Silver, which is not at present to be procured in the Province, so that a strict compliance with that Order will certainly occasion very great uneasiness here, & lay the foundation for future disorders.

The scarcity not only of silver but of every other Currency, even paper, has been so great for some few years past, that M<sup>r</sup> Elliot has been under the necessity of giving every indulgence he could consistent with his office in collecting the Duties; The Commissioners of the Customs in England have been inform'd, that he has often been forced to take an Obligation from the

<sup>1</sup> ANDREW ELLIOT, uncle of the 1st Earl of Minto, was the third son of Sir Gilbert Elliot, Bt., Lord Justice Clerk of Scotland. Through the interest of his brother Gilbert, member for Selkirk, and confidant and counselor of Lord Bute, he was appointed, on the death of Archibald Kennedy, Collector of the port of New-York, by commission dated 19th January, 1764, which office he held until the evacuation of that city. He was appointed his Majesty's Lieutenant-Governor in 1780, and administered the Royalist government from 17th April to 25th November, 1783. Mr. Elliot married a Philadelphia lady, and his property in that State was consequently confiscated. His daughter Elizabeth married, in June, 1779, Lord, afterwards Earl, Cathcart, then a Major in the 38th Regiment of foot. — Ed.

Owners of Ships to pay the Duties in ten days or a fortnight rather than detain the Vessel so long at the Wharf without being permitted to unload, & to this he has received for answer, that this indulgence was at his own risque, & that he was responsible for every shilling due to the Revenue, for which he should take such securities. By this method of proceeding Business has been carried on for some time without the least detriment to the Crown, & to the great satisfaction of the Trader, but lately in the midst of those Tumults which happen'd at Boston the Commissioners there sent the abovemention'd order to M<sup>r</sup> Elliot with which it is not in his power to comply, as silver cannot be procured at any rate, & at present it can serve no other purpose than that of furnishing those who are inclin'd to be Riotous with some pretence for complaint, & lay the foundation for future disorders. I am directed by His Majesty's Orders to support, aid & protect the Officers in the execution of their Duty, & shall always do it to the utmost of my power, but I did not take upon me to contradict the Orders given by the Commissioners, as I might by so doing be thought to go out of my department, neither should I at any time attempt it except in such emergencies where His Majesty's service & the Peace of the Province might be in danger of suffering; but I thought it necessary to desire that M<sup>r</sup> Elliot would write immediately to the Commissioners & let them know my sentiments as well as his own on this subject, & I hope they will have prudence enough on a reconsideration of this matter not to insist on an order which may be attended with such disagreeable circumstances, & which from the present scarcity of silver cannot be carried into execution.

I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect,

My Lord, Your Lordship's most

N<sup>o</sup> 21.

My Lord,

I am very sorry to be under the necessity of saying any thing more on the disagreeable subject of the dispute which happen'd here lately between Gener<sup>l</sup> Gage & myself, but as your Lordship has directed me to transmit an Account of what first gave rise to it, I shall to the best of my recollection, give all the information in my power.—Upon my arrival here I was receiv'd with the usual Ceremony paid to His Majesty's Governors, & on every occasion both Publick & Private for the two first years, had never any reason to suppose that I had any Competitor for Precedence here; such a thought never entered into my head, nor did I suppose from the following words of my Commission, that it was ever intended. "And We do hereby require & command all Officers & Ministers Civil & Military & all other Inhabitants of our said Province & the Territories depending thereon to be Obedient, aiding & assisting unto you "the said S<sup>r</sup> Henry Moore in the execution &c."—As I was an intire Stranger to the Instruction of which the General has since furnished me with a copy, & no intimation given me before I left England of any extraordinary powers granted to the Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces here, I could not but suppose that my Commission was superior to all others here, nor did I ever entertain the least doubt of it. I have already mentioned in my former letter the custom which is kept up here of assembling at the Fort on His Majesty's Birth Day; In June 1767 after a great concourse of People had met there I desir'd two Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council to wait on the General & to request the favor of his Company on the occasion. My Invitation was not accepted because (as I afterwards understood) that I had not waited on him in Person, this did not prevent our going on with the usual Ceremonies of the Day, which were performed with unfeigned cheerfulness. Had I been appris'd of the General's objection that Day I should not have endeavour'd to remove it, for at the time when all the principal people in the City were assembled at the Fort to pay me the Compliments of the Day as His Majesty's Representative here, I should have thought that I had debas'd my Commission, by such a proceeding, & did imagine that a sufficient compliment was paid by sending two Members of His Majesty's Council with the invitation.— About the beginning of the following Winter, it was reported among some of the Military that there were certain powers granted to the General by His Commission which gave him authority to command all the Governors on the Continent, to this I gave no attention as no one ever acknowledg'd that he had seen the Commission, but being oblig'd to wait on the General not long after on Account of some idle reports which had been carried to him by evil minded people who were desirous of making a breach between us, I then took an opportunity of speaking to him concerning my Commission and shew'd him the extract quoted in the former part of this letter, desiring at the same time to know if there was any clause in his Commission which could invalidate the powers there given to me, to which he answered, that there was not any, but he never shew'd me his Commission or any part of it, or at that time mentioned the Instruction.— Nothing happen'd after this till the latter end of the Month of February 1768. When at an Assembly where the Military Gentlemen had taken upon themselves the management, They thought proper (the plan having as I suppose been previously concerted) to determine this point themselves & to give that Precedence to General Gage & his Family which I thought my due, without assigning the least reason for it; Upon this I retired immediately with my Family to avoid all altercation which might ensue, & the next morning a Copy of the Instruction was sent to me, & I was informed it was given out in Publick Orders, so that it became Criminal in any Officer to act contrary to it whatever his private opinion might have been.—I have already had the honor of informing your Lordship that I waited on the General immediately & endeavour'd to convince him that the Instruction related only to the Public Meetings where all the Governors were to be concern'd, but without success; I have since been informed that the respect I had shew'd him when he assisted in the Council was afterwards look'd upon to be no more than what was due to him from the words of the Instructions, although it was never my intention to acknowledge his superiority, or was I inform'd till the time I have mentioned that he was possessed of any such Instructions.

As there was little prospect of this matter being settled here, I desir'd that our behaviour to each other might continue the same as before, & that the Dispute might be submitted to His Majesty, to which he readily consented, & I hope we shall both think it our Duty to be carefull that the Publick Service shall not suffer by what has happen'd.—If nothing farther had been said of this than what is here mentioned, I should not have been under any great concern, but this contest soon became the Topic of every conversation where it has been canvass'd with great warmth, & has contributed not a little to create jealousies & uneasiness in the minds of the People; We soon saw the effects it had even on our Public Amusements, some of which were drop'd after having been continued here without interruption for near thirty years, & the Inhabitants of the Town, by withdrawing themselves from those opportunities of intercourse with the Military, which were calculate to promote society and a good understanding between them, have already began to behave towards them with a coldness & distance too visible not to be remark'd. I hope your Lordship will pardon my entering on so minute a detail of this matter, & at the same time that I shall not forfeit so much of your Lordships good opinion as to be thought capable of engaging in a Contest of this kind merely on account of a Precedence at Public Spectacles & Diversions; My views were not so confin'd, & it would at any time have been inexcusable to have acted on such weak motives, but more particularly at my time of life; The various Duties of my Commission if properly attended to, leave but little time for amusements, and as I seldom make my appearance at any of them, I contribute to their support chiefly as an entertainment to others, but when I found that this claim of the General's was so extensive, & likely to be productive of such ill consequences, I could not avoid being alarm'd, especially at a time when our neighbours have set us such Examples, & was not only at that time, but am still apprehensive that it may lay a foundation for future disorders:—I have endeavour'd by every Act in my power to remove those unwarrantable suppositions, to which this dispute has given rise, and although the strongest arguments may lose their effect on weak & ignorant minds, determin'd not to be convinced, I flatter myself that among those who will suffer their reason to come to their aid, I have not been without success. It is asserted here that Gen' Monckton & S<sup>r</sup> Charles Hardy my Predecessors in this Government were so far from acknowledging the superiority of the Commission which the Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces held during their residence here, that they always took the Precedence on every Public occasion, to which they thought themselves intitled as Civil Governors of the Province; These Gentlemen are now in England, & may be easily call'd upon to know if there is any truth in this assertion, for I do not mention this from my own knowledge, but from the information of others.—I have already in many of my former letters laid before His Majesty's Ministers the present weakness of our Government, & have shew'd how necessary it was to have the Governors hands strengthened, that he might be able to act up to his Commission, & comply with his Duty to the Crown; The levelling Principles which prevail so much in this Country require it, and our late misfortunes too evidently prove the truth of what I have here advanc'd; In this situation the address must be to the Throne, where his Majesty's service is so materially concern'd. It is to him we all look up, as to the Fountain of Honor, & shall with all Duty & submission acquiesce in whatever shall be settled by the Royal determination.

I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect

Sir,

Your letters to me, wrote after your return from the Mohawk Country, and numbered from 12 to 21, have been duly received and laid before the King.

The inclosed extract of a letter I have wrote by this Mail to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson will fully inform you of the directions I have given in respect to the Boundary Line between New York and the Indians, the settlement of which cannot fail of being greatly facilitated by the happy conclusion of the disputes respecting the Kayaderosseras Patent.

His Majesty approves the Attention you have shewn to His commands concerning the New Hampshire Townships, and as the Report you have transmitted seems to contain every Circumstance relative to the actual state of their present cultivation & improvement, I make no doubt that the Board of Trade, to whom His Majesty has thought fit to refer this Business, will be enabled to recommend such measures as may decide upon the claims of the Grantees under the New Hampshire Patents, and induce an Improvement of these valuable Lands to the Public Benefit, and to the advantage of the Revenue.

The Division of the County of Albany seems a very proper & necessary measure, and there can be no objection to your assenting to a Law for that Purpose, provided it is silent as to the Representation in the Assembly, which tho' it is certainly a privilege that ought not to be denied to the new County, yet His Majesty considers that they ought to derive it from His Royal Grace & favour, & therefore consents that you should (in case the Legislature think fit to create the new County) issue writs for the election of two Members into the General Assembly; but His Majesty does not approve of its being made a part of the Law.

Your Letters concerning the Vacancies at the Council Board by the Resignation of Mr Alexander and by the Death of Mr Watts<sup>1</sup> are ordered by His Majesty to be communicated to the Board of Trade, which will shortly assemble after the usual Recess at this Season of the Year, and I doubt not their Lordships will lose no time in making such Representations to His Majesty thereupon as they think fit.

The orders given by the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Customs at Boston to Mr Eliot, appear to me to be ill judged, but as this is a matter which more particularly appertains to the Department of the Treasury, I have receiv'd His Majesty's commands to communicate to that Board what you say in your letter N<sup>o</sup> 20. upon that subject.

Your letter N<sup>o</sup> 21. upon the subject of the Disputes between yourself and General Gage, concerning Rank and Precedence is under Consideration, and I trust such Orders will be given thereupon as may be equally satisfactory to both; in the mean time I am commanded by His Majesty to desire you will continue to Act with the same spirit of Prudence and Moderation by which your conduct upon this occasion appears to have been hitherto governed, & which His Majesty does very much approve.

Whitehall October the 12th 1768

Sir,

The experience the King has had of your ability and zeal for his service in the Department of Indian Affairs will always induce His Majesty to give attention to whatever you may think fit to submit upon that subject. His Majesty has therefore fully considered the remarks you make in your letter to me N<sup>o</sup> 2 upon the present State of the service under your direction and it gives his Majesty great satisfaction to find that the arrangements pointed out in my letter of the 15 of April, are in your opinion judiciously calculated to answer the object they have in view.

It is not however upon the propriety of the propositions themselves that the advantage of them altogether depends, it is upon the execution of them, & upon the regulations which the Colonies shall think fit to adopt for the Management of the commercial part, that we are to rely for those benefitts which are intended to be the result of them.

The relieving this Kingdom from every expence that can with safety be avoided is, in its present state, a consideration of the greatest importance it is one great object of this plan and I have it in command from the King in an especial manner to recommend to you the strictest Economy in those services, the expence of which is to be defrayed by this Kingdom, and it is his Majesty's pleasure that after consulting with General Gage, you should make out some certain Estimate of what you think the State of the Service in your Department may require to be laid before his Majesty for his consideration in order to the determining whether any greater Sum than that recommended by the Board of Trade should be finally allowed for this service. In the mean time, and until you receive the Kings further commands, it is his Majestys pleasure that the annual expence of the service should on no account exceed that Sum.

His Majesty observes by General Gage's letters received at the same time with yours, that you have estimated the expence of runing the Boundary Line at no less a Sum than £10,000 St<sup>rs</sup> which, without knowing the Ground on which this calculation is made, appears to imply demands on the parts of the Savages which cannot but be thought very unreasonable, when it is considered that the Settlement of this business has been so long earnestly solicited by them, and that the line proposed does in many places preclude from the Settlement lands that were before supposed not to be contested by them, and does in others add less to his Majesty's Dominions than what themselves proposed in the negotiation with you in 1765.

If however notwithstanding all the Attention his Majesty is persuaded you will give to Economy, in resisting every exorbitant demand, such expence is to be incurred, and the gratifications to the Indians on this occasion, are so far to exceed what might reasonably have been hoped for, it becomes highly expedient that the Colonies Interested in this measure, and whose limits of Settlement are extended by it, should be early apprized of what will be required in order that they may make timely provision in proportion to the benefit they are respectively to receive from it; for it cannot upon any grounds of reason or justice be expected, that this Kingdom should take it upon itself the whole, or indeed any part, of the expence of a measure calculated for the local interests of particular Colonies.

His Majesty entirely approves the continuing the Boundary Line Northward from Owegy so as to include the Province of New York and thereby render the line perfect and complete; And I am to recommend to you that no time be lost in bringing this negotiation to a conclusion, in the conduct of which it will be necessary that Sir Henry Moore should be consulted, so that there may be a perfect agreement of all parties, by which alone those difficulties may be overcome which occurred upon this Subject in the negotiation of 1765, & which have hitherto made it impossible to give any precise directions from hence.

Having signified to you his Majestys commands upon all those parts of your letter upon which you desire instruction, I cannot avoid taking some Notice upon the plan for Indian Affairs prepared by the Lords of Trade in 1764, when I had the honor of a Seat at that Board, But before I make any remarks upon the plan itself, as applied to the present State and Circumstances of America, you will give me leave to observe to you, that the Lords of Trade did not consider it as a measure ripe for Execution, and therefore did not report it to the King, but in order to enable themselves to form a more complete Judgement of it, they transmitted it as minutes of their Board to yourself, and the Governors of the Colonies for your Consideration, and to receive your opinion upon the several propositions it contained: What you say therefore of its having met with his Majesty's approbation; Of its having been carried into execution; And of the Assurances given that it should be finally established, are Circumstances of which I am entirely ignorant.

The propriety and practicability of carrying that plan into Execution depended upon the possession of the interior Country by Posts and Establishments; Upon the Concurrence of the Colonies in an opinion of the Commercial Advantages of it, and upon the creating a fund in those Colonies to defray the expence; But since it has been thought advisable to withdraw the troops from and to abandon the Posts; since the Colonies themselves do not think that a General regulation for Commerce consists with their interests, and have each for itself desired to make its own regulations, and it is become more difficult in the present State of the Colonies to create a general fund to defray the expence, I must confess that I do entirely concur in the measures which have been proposed by the Board of Trade, and are the foundation of those Instructions which I have it in Charge from His Majesty's to recommend to your attention, not doubting but through your assistance, and with your advice, the Colonies will be induced to adopt such regulations for the Commercial parts as will improve the Trade, and fix the Affection of the Savages, and in the end produce all those advantages which you seem to think would have been derived from the Execution of the plan suggested by the Board of Trade in 1764.

Since my writing the foregoing Letter, I have had an opportunity of laying the Order before His Majesty's Council, who are under some difficulties in regard to the construction of the first proviso therein mentioned viz. "Provided that nothing herein contained shall extend to affect "the Properties of His Majesty's new subjects having possessions under proper titles on those "parts of the Lands, on the south side of this Line the Dominion of which was not disputed on "the part of the Crown of Great Britain." No Line of jurisdiction having ever been settled between this Province & Quebec 'till that which was fixed by General Carleton & myself & approved of by His Majesty, each of the Provinces have endeavoured to extend their claim as far as they possibly could, The English to the River St. Lawrence, & the French to the Southward of Lake George; The consequence of which has been that the Lands on both sides of Lake Champlain have been granted to the English and French by their respective Governors, as will appear by the Map which I had the honor of transmitting to England & mentioned in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 6. to the Earl of Shelburne dated 22<sup>d</sup> of February 1767, & in my letter to the Lords of Trade dated 4th April 1767. Your Lordship will see by those different claims what the difficulties are which we labour under at present, for no particular Boundary Line [was] fairly drawn between the Provinces, the English claim supported by that which was made before them by the Dutch extended as far as the forty fifth degree of Latitude, This Line was supposed by the French to be more to the Southward than we found it on observation, & several of their grants in those parts are covered by those since made by M<sup>r</sup> Colden to the reduced Officers & Soldiers under His Majesty's Proclamation; This will of course open such a scene of litigation, as I am afraid will defeat the expectations of forwarding the settlements in that part of the Country to prevent which it is our humble request that His Majesty's pleasure might be known how far to the Southward of the 45th Degree any French grants are to be allowed, for they have no settlements to claim under which (which I am informed was an absolute condition of their Grant, as they paid no Quit Rent) & the quantity of Land in most of their Grants far exceeds that which His Majesty has been pleased to allow to those mentioned in the 2<sup>d</sup> Proviso which was not to exceed 20,000 Acres to each Person where an actual settlement had been made.

Fort Stanwix Oct<sup>r</sup> 23. 1768

My Lord

I was in hopes that about this time I should have been enabled to transmit your Lordship the Agreeable Account of my having settled the Boundary Line between Us & the Indians, but a train of unforeseen Accidents, together with a variety of obstructions given to it by the Spaniards and French at the Mississippi and others lurking amongst the Indians have as yet denied me that pleasure & rendered it a matter of difficulty sufficient to deter many from the prosecution of it.

Not expecting to have been detained here so long or to have occasion to write to your Lordship before my Return, I have neither your Lordships Letter, nor my own at this place, but I recollect that my long letter N<sup>o</sup> 2 was of the 20 of July, and that I since wrote to your Lordship about the beginning of last month.

On the 19 Ul<sup>o</sup> I arrived at this place having Appointed the 20th for the Indians to meet me; the Commissioners from Virginia set out before me, the Governor of New Jersey Accompanied me, and I was followed by the L<sup>t</sup> Governor of Pensilvania the Governor of New York thought it unnecessary to send Comiss<sup>rs</sup> as I was to transact the business—After waiting here several days, during which the Indians came & encamped, I heard that the Shawanese, Delawares, & Senecas with many others were still at a considerable distance & that several private Affairs & conferences which they held at the Towns they passed thro' would retard them for a much longer time than could have been expected, by the beginning of this Month we had 805 Indians here, but the much greater part of those of the most consequence were still behind, I dispatched Messengers to hurry them, by whom I was informed of the sudden Death of a Seneca Chief and that the condolences usual on such occasions would detain them some days more in the Senecas Country which they had then reached. I was much concerned on this occasion by reason of the great consumption of provisions & the heavy Expences attending the Maintenance of those Indians on the spot whose numbers amounted by the 14 of this Inst<sup>s</sup> to 930, each of whom consumes daily more than two ordinary Men amongst Us, and would be extremely dissatisfied if stinted when convened for business, but altho' this Circumstance alone was very disagreeable from the difficulty of getting provisions there being none nearer than Albany, & very little there, except some Cattle at an extravagant price I had yet more cause to be uneasy from the certain discovery I had made of the minds of many of the Indians, of the private Belts & Messages passing from the one to the other, of the purport of their several Councils & of the false Reports & Misrepresentations circulating amongst them, As my last and former letters will shew their disappointment that no plan had been hitherto adopted (as they had been promised) with due regard to the peculiar Circumstances of their situation with proper power in the Department for the discharge of their Several Affairs, I need not to add more than that it has had a visible effect upon them all, and that their suggestions arising therefrom have a bad tendency, when this is considered together with the errors misconduct & frauds which they must experience thro' the want of these powers and regulations the encouragement thereby given to our natural Enemy, and the success of their endeavours to withdraw the Indians from us, will appear rather a matter of concern than of surprize. That this is really the case at present, I am too well satisfied I have for a considerable time past represented the Secret practices & endeavours of both the Spaniards and French in the names of their respective Sovereigns to render us Odious to the Indians to unite them against us, & to persuade them to renew hostilities under the prospect of Aid, which it is more than probable they would afford them the first occasion that offered to effect this they avail themselves of every circumstance in the Affairs of America, of every instance of our ill treatment & of every uneasiness manifested by the Indians, the reduction of Officers and the Retrenchment of Expences in the Indian Department has been already represented by their Agents as instances of Our parsimony neglect and contempt, and the want of any powers for their relief as marks of our injustice & disregard, the unrestrained conduct & cheats of the Traders have been given as characteristic proofs of our dishonesty & want of authority, the neglect of sending Missionaries of our Church amongst them, as an instance of our irreligion In short there is nothing within the compass of their knowledge of which they have not made use thro' the means of Agents of much influence, supported by gentle treatment, and confirmed by handsome presents, all this is carried on with a secrecy which renders it the more dangerous, The Public in general are ignorant hereof, & unguarded against them & thus American Affairs are represented as best suits the Views of party or the pursuits of Interests<sup>1</sup> It has been admitted and is most certain that the Colonies can neither attend to these Matters or correspond in settlements<sup>2</sup> so as to defeat these designs, All these Affairs are properly the task of a person under his Majesty's immediate direction, and is it possible my Lord, that such Person can oppose himself to an Enemy so powerful without proper Support & some assistance, It may appear improbable that the French or Spaniards should act this part, and still more so that they should Act by Authority, whilst a peace is subsisting between the British Crown and them, but be this as it will, certain it is that not only several known Partizans, & many Traders, but also some Officers of their Troops (as the Indians affirm) have actually come into the Indian Country, where they have conducted themselves as is represented, and their Councils have not only greatly retarded the measures we are now taking but threaten this Country with farther Calamities. The Indians who seemed most desirous of a Boundary Line, are now either indifferent about it or are apprehensive that we have something thereby in View which may be dangerous to their libertys The French and Spaniards have given a formal invitation, and used every means in their power to draw them to a general Congress at the Mississipi and I have undoubted Authority for assuring Your Lordship that had not my Belts and Messages arrived when they did to the Southward the Chiefs would have complied with the invitation.

Besides Indian Information In proof of this I have now before me several letters, & intelligences which I received since my arrival at this place. The accounts from all Quarters corroborate the Indians dissatisfied with Us for the reasons I have given & intoxicated with the Storys and promises of designing men, seem to wait the Event of this Congress, as of an Affair which is to determine their Conduct, and to expect at this time some final & certain assurances of an attention to be given to their Affairs, and a Redress to their Greivances to which the Boundary is foreign being a single object the advantages of which (if the Colonists should pay due regard to it) cannot be felt by any of the Indian Nations for some time, and are at best local, & confined to one Confederacy.

Notwithstanding this disagreeable aspect of Affairs the difficulties I have to encounter, & the want of Authority for giving the Indians a satisfactory Assurance on many Subjects of their concern I am determined to persevere in the execution of my orders, as well as in every endeavour which shall appear to me necessary at this Juncture to the best of my Judgement, & the utmost extent of an influence which properly supported could I am fully persuaded do his Majesty & the Public good Service, & afford me better pretensions to your Lordships friendly regards, an honor in the highest estimation with my Lord

Most obliged obedient

and faithfull humble Serv<sup>t</sup>

P. S. This letter having lain by till this day for want of a good oportunity, I have only to add that our proceedings appear loaded with fresh difficulties from the several Belts in the Indians Hands &c<sup>a</sup> I have only opened the Conference, and the Indians continue coming in, their number here now, is little short of three thousand.

My Lord,

I was under a necessity of adding a long Postscript to one of my letters by the last conveyance as the paquet was to sail on the Evening of the same Day on which His Majesty's Council had met and of course I was so limited in point of time, as not to have it in my power to send to your Lordship the best authorities we had for the claim set up by this Province to their Northern Boundary. I have here inclos'd the Extract from the Grant given to the Duke of York by King Charles the 2<sup>d</sup> dated 12th of March 1664, and from the construction put upon this Grant here, we have allways thought that the Duke had a Title to all the Lands on both sides of Hudson's River to its source, between the Connecticut and Delaware Rivers, and that it was the Intention of the Crown that those lands should be granted to him; and we likewise apprehend that upon this interpretation of the Duke of York's title, that the Crown so lately decided in our favor the Countroversy between this Province and New Hampshire. This Grant, The Possessions of the Dutch, and the Proclamation of 1763 with divers Acts of our own Assembly, are the authorities by which we ascertain the limits of this Province, and on which, our claims mentioned in that Postscript are founded; The Rivers of Hudson and Connecticut have never yet been trac'd to their sources, most Maps place the head of the last a great way further to the North than I apprehend it really is, and lay it down nearer to the 46th than to the 45th Degree.

I have already had the honor of informing your Lordship that I had been endeavouring to procure an actual survey of that part of the Country, but was prevented by the orders I receiv'd to proceed no farther till His Majesty's pleasure should be known, I had at that time a return sent to me of a Survey made on the Ice upon the Connecticut River, which began at the East and West line which is the Boundary between this Province and the Massachuset Bay, and extended to the Northward a little beyond the 44th Degree. Whatever is laid down above that I cannot depend upon, but the Government of New Hampshire hath granted Townships full Seventy miles farther to the Northward both on the Connecticut River and the Lake Champlain as their Charts will shew, although I presume they were never actually measur'd, which was the case of so many others under the same Title; The Head of Hudson's River is suppos'd to be so far to the Northward that a line drawn from thence to the head of the Connecticut River, agreeable to the Duke of Yorks grant, would, it is imagin'd take away more of the French Grants notwithstanding its oblique course, than the Limits prescrib'd by His Majesty to this Province in fixing their Boundary to the 45th Degree of Latitude. The claim therefore set up by New York of a right as far as the 45th Degree is only in support of the Grant to the Duke of York, and as such we hope it will be admitted.

I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most

Obedient and humble Servant

Earl of Hillsborough, Secretary of State.

Sir,

You have already been acquainted by a letter from M<sup>r</sup> Pownall that your Dispatches to me from N<sup>o</sup> 22 to 25, had been received, since which they have been laid before the King; but as I have not any thing in Command from His Majesty upon the subject of those Dispatches, I have only to inform you, that the Queen was happily brought to bed of a Princess on Tuesday last, and that both Her Majesty & the young Princess are as well as can be desired; I most heartily congratulate you upon this increase of the Royal Family, an event that affords the greatest satisfaction to all His Majesty's Subjects.

Inclosed I have the honor to send you His Majesty's Speech to His Parliament at the opening of the Session on the 8th instant together with the Addresses to the King from both Houses, that of the House of Lords passed nemine contradicente, & that of the House of Commons without a Division.—This happy Unanimity and the Resolution to preserve entire and inviolate the supreme authority of the Legislature of Great Britain over every part of the British Empire, so strongly expressed in these Addresses, will, I trust, have the happy effect to defeat and disappoint the wicked Views of those, who seek to create disunion & disaffection between Great Britain and Her Colonies, and that all His Majesty's subjects in America; who wish well to the peace and prosperity of the British Dominions, will give full credit to Parliament for that true affection towards the Colonies which appears in their Declaration that they will redress every real grievance of His Majesty's American Subjects, and give due attention to every complaint they shall make in a regular manner and not founded upon claims and pretensions inconsistent with the Constitution.

The King having observed that the Assembly of New York has for some time past fallen into a very irregular method of appointing an Agent to solicit the affairs of the Colony in England, & His Majesty being apprehensive that this Deviation from the mode of appointing an Agent approved of in other Colonies, which has usually been by an act of Governor, Council & Assembly, specially passed for that purpose, may in future create difficulty, embarrassment and disappointment in transacting the Affairs of New York both in Office & in Parliament; I have His Majesty's commands to mention this to you, & to desire you will recommend it to the Assembly as a Matter in which their Interest is concerned, that for the future they would in the appointment of an Agent follow the Rule observed in the Islands in the West Indies & in Virginia, Carolina and Georgia, which His Majesty conceives to be the only proper and constitutional Mode & the King has the better hope of their compliance with this recommendation, as His Majesty finds it to have been the Method formerly practised in the Colony of New York itself, and is certainly the only one by which any person can be properly authorized to represent the Province and to act for it in all matters which concern its interest in general.

I would not be understood by what I have said concerning the appointment of an Agent to insinuate the most distant disapprobation of M<sup>r</sup> Charles, who appears to have executed his Duty with the utmost regard to and zeal for the Interest of the Colony, and with every mark of proper respect and deference to Government.

His Majesty has been graciously pleased to sign a Mandamus for the admission of Mr Wallace into the Council of New York in the place of Mr Walton, & also for the admission of Mr James Delancey in the place of Mr Alexander.

Sir Henry Moore

Whitehall Nov<sup>r</sup> the 15. 1768

Sir,

Since the departure of the last Packet, your letter to me N° 3 has been received, and laid before the King.

The unfriendly and unsettled disposition of the Western Indians towards the British Interests and Government, occasioned as you represent, by the Artifices and Intrigues of the French & Spaniards, is a matter of a very serious nature in whatever View it is considered whether in reference to the present inconveniences arising out of the great expence of Presents and other Gratifications to keep them quiet, or in reference to the consequence that would follow from an open Rupture with them.

From the accounts given of this matter by General Gage, and from the Assurances he has received from Monsieur Aubry and Don Ulloa, there is great reason to suspect that our own new Subjects are the Authors of all the Mischief; and therefore their conduct and proceedings in the Indian Country cannot be to narrowly watched, nor their treachery, if detected to severely punished.

If on the contrary there should, notwithstanding the Assurances given to Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage, be any settled Plan of Seduction of the Indians adopted by France or Spain every possible diligence & vigilance should be exerted to trace it to its source, and to verify the Information by such facts and evidence as may justify the strongest representation and complaint.

As to the other matters contained in your letter and in particular what relates to the allowances for your Department, and the continuation of the Boundary Line so as to include New York, I have already in my letter N° 6 been very explicit thereupon, and I have now nothing further to add.

Inclosed I send you by the King's Command His Majesty's Speech to his Parliament at the opening of the Session on the 5th instant, together with the Addresses to the King from both Houses one of which Addresses past nemine contradicente and the other without a division.

I have the pleasure to acquaint you that the Queen was happily brought to bed of a Princess on Tuesday last and that both Her Majesty and the young Princess are as well as can be desired. I most heartily congratulate you upon this increase of the Royal Family an event that affords the greatest satisfaction to all his Majesty's Subjects,

My Lord,

I had the honor to write Your Lordship (N<sup>o</sup> 4) from Fort Stanwix Just before the opening the Treaty wherein I represented the many difficulties in the way to the Settlement of the line, which however I have at length surmounted, & settled in a manner which will I hope be agreeable to his Majesty, for the particulars of which I beg leave to refer your Lordship to a Copy of my Transactions, which I have now the honor to enclose, together with a Deed of Cession to his Majesty for the Lands yielded up to the Crown.

Your Lordship will find that the Six Nations insisting on their right to the Lands as far South as the Cherokee River have [Ceded] the same to his Majesty and notwithstanding that the Report of the Board of Trade spoke of Great Kanhawa River as their Southern bounds, I found from what passed at several private Meetings, that I could not deny them the liberty of asserting their pretensions to the Southward without highly disobliging them, and preventing the Settlement of the rest.

From many former enquiries and disputes on these Subjects, I never could find that the Cherokees claimed to the Westward of the Great Mountains, or North of the River of their Name, but that the Six Nations always did claim thereto, I therefore Judged it for the Interest of his Majesty to acquiesce for these reasons, that by their Cession of the Country below the Kanhawa to his Majesty their pretensions must in future cease, Whereas should the Cherokees now or hereafter under colour of a claim further North be treated with & surrender it up, it would occasion much Expen<sup>ce</sup> & trouble to obtain the Consent of the Northern Indians who are a much more formidable People, All which is as I apprehend prevented by the present Cession which is nevertheless Submitted by His Majesty.

The next point I have to observe to Your Lordship is the continuation of the Boundary line Northward from Owegy the necessity of this I formerly remarked, and the Indians insisted on it, it is now carried to Canada Creek where it falls into Wood Creek, which last mentioned Water empties into the Oneida Lake. I found it extremely difficult to get it so far to the Westward from its vicinity to their own Towns, and indeed the whole of the line as it approaches them cost me more pains & trouble than can be conceived, whilst at the same time the necessity of establishing it where intrusions would be most affecting to them was self evident. Their Towns & Settlements are therefore secured to their satisfaction by extending the line to the Waters which discharge themselves into Lake Ontario, but it is not continued so as to Close, First, because I found that many of them were for closing it by running to the next Patentted Lands, which would have limited the Province of New York in such a manner as must have produced some complaints, Secondly because as the Country North is the Property of the Oneidaes & Mohawks, It can at any time hereafter be closed at a very moderate Expen<sup>ce</sup>, should his Maj<sup>ty</sup> require it, As I find that the Mohawks are desirous to have it closed, and could be brought to do it most advantageously on any future occasion. I beg your Lordship will believe that in all these Matters where I had not particular Instructions I have Acted to the best of my Judgement or his Majestys Interest, The Difficulties I had to struggle with by the artifices of the People at the Mississipi & the doubts and surmises of the Indians themselves, thro' the late Misconduct of the Frontier Inhabitants, & the length of time elapsed since the Boundary was first spoken of, can only be known by those who were Eye Witnesses of it, As the greatest part of the business transacted at private Meetings with the Chiefs of every Nation, where the principal Affairs are resolved upon & adjusted could not be committed to writing or comprised in any moderate bounds. I have staked my reputation with the Indians that the Several Articles they have made shall be observed, without which, the Charges attending the Assembling them at this time & all other endeavours would have been ineffectual, they have at length relied on my Assurances and I am confident that the regard paid to them will be the only security for the observance of the line, The Indians likewise rely chiefly on his Majesty's Power and Inclination for the performance of these Matters and for their future happiness and Security, they have many apprehensions concerning the Colonies, which I have endeavoured to remove, but I find it a difficult task, for as they have experienced how far private Interests operate here, Are not ignorant that the Colonies are governed by different Maxims and Politicks, and having been often disapointed in Matters where they apprehend they deserved redress, are not apt to repose a confidence a second time, when it has been once abused.

The provisions and other incidental Expences Attending this Treaty were unavoidable from the number of Indians, & the length of time it took up, the amount of the goods, and Cash given on the part of the Crown was the most moderate that could have been offered for so Valuable & Extensive a Cession, Upon the whole I flatter myself that this transaction will be honored with his Majesty's approbation, from a consideration of the difficulties that attended it, And the important advantages to be derived from it if strictly adhered to.

As I am now busied in giving some necessary Belts & Messages to the Shawanese Delawares & some others from Ohio, who have [taken]<sup>1</sup> this Ront back to their Country, and at the same times desirous to Communicate by the earliest oportunity an event of such importance, I must for the present defer saying any thing farther on their Subject, and with a perfect reliance on your Lordships favourable-reception of this paquet, Beg leave to subscribe my-self with all possible Respect,

My Lord Your Lordships Most Obliged & most

faithfull Humble Servant

The Commissioners from Virginia were already there, and on the 21st arrived Lieut' Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn with Comm<sup>rs</sup> from Pensylvania & several other gentlemen, The same day Mess<sup>rs</sup> Wharton & Trent of Pensylvania delivered in an account of the Traders losses in 1763, together with their Powers of Attorney for obtaining a retribution in Lands, pursuant to an article of the Treaty of Peace in 1765

Several Indians came in & informed Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson that those of Susquehanna were near at hand, and gave him sundry intelligences

30th The Bounds between the Mohawks and Stockbridge Indians were adjusted to mutual Satisfaction, and the latter returned home

At the beginning of October, there were 800 Indians assembled & continued coming in dayly till after the Treaty was opened. The upper Nations still remaining behind thro' evil Reports, and Belts sent amongst them. Sir William dispatched Messengers to hasten them and held several Congresses with those on the spot, antecedent to the Treaty, for adjusting differences and preparing them to enter heartily upon business on the arrival of the rest

By the 22<sup>d</sup> there were 2200 Indians collected and several large Parties coming in the next day, amongst whom were all the chiefs of the upper Nations, Sir William prepared to open the Congress on the 24th

At a Treaty with the 6 Nations Shawanese Delawares, Senecas of Ohio & Dependants &c. opened at Fort Stanwix on Monday the 24 Oct. 1768.

“By virtue of the Power & Authority to me committed as President of His Matys Council & Commander in Chief in and over this Colony & Dominion of Virginia, I do hereby appoint you the said Thomas Walker to be Commissioner of Virginia to settle a Boundary Line between this Colony, & the Colonies of Pensylvania and Maryland & the several Nations of Indians concerned. You are required to attend at a Congress to be held for that purpose under the direction of Sir William Johnson agreeable to His Majesty’s Instructions when you are to pay due regard to the Interest of His Majesty & such Instructions as you shall receive

<sup>1</sup> Doctor THOMAS WALKER was an early explorer of the Indian country of Western Virginia. In 1748 he crossed Powell’s valley and gave the name of “Cumberland” to the lofty range of mountains to the west, and passed a remarkable depression in the chain, which he called the “Cumberland gap,” and next named the Shawanee the Cumberland river, all in honor of the Duke of Cumberland. Monette’s Mississippi, I, 314. In 1760 he again passed the Clinch and Powell rivers into what is now Kentucky, on which occasion, it is supposed, he was accompanied by the celebrated Daniel Boone. Ramsey’s Tennessee, 65, 66. JOHN BLAIR."

Mess<sup>rs</sup> Peters & Tilghman being likewise admitted as Comm<sup>rs</sup> for Pensilvania, Sir William, then by Abraham Cheif of the Mohawks, addressed the Indians

I take you by the hand and heartily bid you all wellcome to this place where I have kindled a Council Fire for affairs of importance. The Gov<sup>r</sup> of New Jersey and the Comm<sup>rs</sup> of Virginia & Pensilvania do likewise welcome you here. Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn came hither to meet you & waited a considerable time, but was at length by business obliged to return home, leaving these Gentlemen as Comm<sup>rs</sup> on behalf of Pensilvania

Both the Gov<sup>r</sup> & Gentlemen Comm<sup>rs</sup> as well as myself, having waited here a month to no purpose began to be impatient never the less you see that their desire to meet you prevailed over every other consideration and induced them to stay. I hope therefore that you are now come fully prepared and with Hearts well inclined to the great business for which we are convened, and in order to prepare you the better for these purposes, I do now, agreeable to the antient custom establish<sup>d</sup> by our Forefathers, proceed to the ceremony of Condolence usual on these occasions

And first: With this String of Wamp: I do, on behalf of His Majesty & all His subjects wipe away the Tears from your eyes which you are constantly shedding for your late deceased Cheifs, and I clear your sight that so you may look cheerfully at your Bretheren, who are come from Several of the Provinces to attend this General Congress ordered by His Majesty to be held by me; in order to settle some necessary points between him & you

With this String I clear the Passage to your Hearts that you may speak cheerfully and candidly on the several subjects which, during this Congress, will be treated of, as well as to remove all sorrow & uneasiness from you

With this last string I wipe away the blood of your friends from off your Births, that you may on your return rest with Peace and comfort on them

Gave the 3 Strings

Brethren

I am greatly concerned for the many losses you have sustained in your several Nations since our last meeting & sincerely condole with you for them all

1. A Belt.

Brethren

With this Belt I light up, anew your several Council Fires, that the Cheifs still remaining may upon all occasions sit comfortably by them and consult on the several matters, which may come before them.

2. A Belt

Brethren

As I have by the former Belt kindled up your several Council Fires, I do now by this Belt desire, that you the Councillors will duly assemble, when the affairs of your nations require it, & then jealously apply yourselves to every measure which may tend to your Peace and Interest.

A Belt

Brethren.

With this Belt I dispel the darkness which for some time past hath overspread your several Countries, by reason of your many & great Losses, and now heartily wish you may enjoy a serene clear sky, so that you may be able to see your Brethren from the Sun rising to the Sun setting—

4 A. Belt

Brethren,

As I would deal with all people in their own way, and that your Ancestors have from the earliest time directed and recommended the observation of a Sett of Rules which they laid down for you to follow, I do now, agreeable to that custom, take of the clearest water and therewith cleanse your inside from all Filth and every thing which has given you concern.

5 A Belt

Brethren

I must desire that you Sachems & Councillors will, as occasions may require consult with the Cheiftains of your young men, as they are in general men of sense and experience; and you cheiftains and Warriors to pay a due regard to your Sachems and Councillors whose sage advice will seldom or never be amiss

Brethren

In performing these ceremonies I can not omit this necessary part, which is, that as there are but two Council Fires for your confederacy, the one at my house and the other at Onondaga, I must desire that you will always be ready to attend either of them, when called upon, by which means business will I hope, always be attended & properly carried on for our mutual Interest, and this I earnestly recommend to you all

Brethren

I must also advise you to be unanimous amongst yourselves & reside in your respective Countries, and not think of scattering or settling amongst other Nations, as has been too much the Practice for some years past, to the great weakening of your confederacy.

8 A Belt

Brethren

I give you a Pouch with a String of Wampum in it, which you are to make use of when you here of the loss of any of the Confederacy, and rise up on such occasions without delay in order to condole for the same, and remove the concern thereby occasioned

3 Strings of Wampum

Brethren

I now supply you with a torch or candle which you are to travel with by night upon any extraordinary emergency, such as the approach of an enemy, in order to communicate the News with the utmost despatch.

3 Strings

The Nations gave the Yo-hah at the proper places, and the ceremony of Condolence. Adjourned till next day.

At a Congress with the several Nations on Tuesday 25th Oct<sup>r</sup>

PRESENT — as before.

Canaghquieson, Chief of Oneida, stood up & addressing all present, observ<sup>d</sup> that the several American Governors had Indian Names, by which they were known to the Indians, the Governor of New Jersey excepted; that he therefore thought it necessary to compliment him with a name, which he did by bestowing his own name upon him, on which his Excellency

Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin shook him by the Hand & returned him thanks. Then Canaghquieson proceeded to answer the ceremony of Condolence as follows

Brother

We congratulate you, the Gov<sup>r</sup> and the rest of the Gentlemen on your safe arrival at this Place, where we are heartily glad to meet you. Then after repeating what Sir William had said on the first strings, yesterday, he said, they did on their parts wipe away the Tears which their Brothers the English were shedding for their losses as also the blood of their friends from their seats, cleansing their hearts that they may be able to attend the important affairs which were to be transacted

Gave 3 Strings

Then repeated all that Sir William had said on the Black Belts given at the Condolence for all which he returned thanks and said

Brother

We are much concerned at the losses you have met with since our last Congress, and we sincerely condole with you upon the occasion for them all.

A Belt of 9 Rows

Brother

We thank you for rekindling our several Council Fires, whereby we are enabled to proceed to business as formerly, and we shall endeavour to render our Meetings useful to the Public.

A Belt.

Brother

We thank you for the advice you give us, to assemble duly when the publick affairs require it, and we assure you that we will direct our thoughts, to the maintenance of Peace and good order.

A Belt

Brother

We are much obliged to you for dispelling the darkness that surround<sup>d</sup> our several Nations on account of our many losses. This we take very kindly of you, as we were in great heaviness for some time past, and all our Nations join in thanking you and performing the same on their parts.

A Belt.

Brother

We all express our thanks to you for the remembrance of our antient ceremonies. We consider them as the cement of our union, and as you have cleansed us with water, we do in like manner take of the clearest running stream & wash your inside thoroughly therewith cleansing you from all impurities

A Belt

Brother

We esteem the advice you have given our chiefs to consult the young men as occasion may require, and your directions that they should on their parts pay due regard to us, and we shall observe whatever you have recommended to us

A Belt

Brother

We are sensible that we have but two great Council Fires, the one at your house, the other at Onondaga, We shall always be ready to attend at either for the public Good, and we hope that you will continue to be ready to meet us often as the general Peace requires it

A Belt

Brother,

We give you thanks for recommending unanimity to us. We know that our living together is necessary to our happiness and that it gives us strength. We will follow your advice, and we recommend it to the English to be unanimous in all good works. A Belt.

Brother

We are happy to find you so observant of our ancient Customs, that you give us a string in a Pouch to make use of when we have occasion to communicate our losses and condole for them. We request you will be equally observant of these matters, that so our Grief may be timely and properly removed. A Belt.

Brother

We also give you many thanks for supplying us with a Torch to travel with on emergencies. We assure that we shall make proper use of it, & communicate every necessary intelligence to you. All the six Nations, with the Shawanese, Delawares, & all their dependants as far as to the great Plains of Sioto, give you thanks for your good words which were a cordial to them, and they all request that you will continue in the same good sentiments. 3 Strings

The Ceremony of condolence being ended Sir William gave them a short exhortation after which the Chiefs arose and shook hand with Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin & Canaghquieson addressing him said, that as he had given him his own name, he hoped that he would endeavour to acquire as much reputation with it amongst the People as he had done. The Governor returned them many thanks

Then adjourned till the day following.

At a Congress Wednesday Oct. 26.

PRESENT— as before

Conoghquieson stood up and said that the Six Nations not being satisfied with his having given his own name to Govern<sup>r</sup> Franklin had met upon it, and in testimony of their sense of his, and his Peoples justice in causing the murderers of some Indians to be put to death within his Government did now confer upon him the name of Sagorighweyoghsta,<sup>1</sup> or the Great Arbiter or Doer of Justice, wishing that he and the people of his Government might continue to act with the same Justice they had hitherto done. Whereupon Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin returned them thanks for the favor and assured them both himself and the people of his Government would upon all occasions manifest their esteem for the Indians and their inclination to do them justice

Brethren

We have now mutually p<sup>r</sup>formed the Ceremony of Condolence as a proof of the regard we have for the Customs of our Ancestors & of the concern we feel for each others losses, I think it highly necessary in the next place that we farther strengthen the Union between us and with that view I do therefore by this Belt in the name of your Father the great King of England, in behalf of all his American Subjects renew & confirm the Covenant Chain subsisting between us, strengthening it, and rubbing off any rust which it may have contracted that it may appear bright to all Nations as a proof of our love and Friendship, & I hope that all of you, sensible of the advantages of this union, will after the example of the English have it always before you, & keep it fast that it may remain firm and unshaken, so long as Grass shall grow or waters run

Bretheren

I persuade myself that you are all sensible of the Benefits which result from our strict Union, & that hav<sup>g</sup> it always before your eyes, you will be careful in preserving it. This will protect you from all dangers, & secure to you the blessings of Peace, and the advantages of Commerce with a people able to supply all your wants. And as this is a considerat<sup>n</sup> of much importance, which depends on the friendship subsisting between us & a free open and safe Communication for all our people to you, I do now by this Belt clear the Rivers & Paths throughout our respective countries, of all obstructions removing Trees out of our Creeks & Logs Briars & Rubbish out of our Roads, that our Canoes may pass along without danger and that our people may travel freely & securely by night or by day without any risk or impediment whatsoever—And I recommend it to you all to contribute to this good work, & to assist in keeping it free and open to the latest Posterity
A Large Belt.

Hearken to me who have good words to speak to you, such as are for the benefit of your whole confederacy and of your children yet unborn.

You all remember that three years ago I signified to you His Matys desire to establish a Boundary Line between his people and yours and that we then agreed together how some part of that Line should run, whenever, the same came to be settled

You all, I am hopeful, recollect the Reasons I then gave you for making such a Boundary never the less I shall again repeat them. You know Brethren that the encroachments upon your Lands have been always one of your principal subjects of complaint, and that so far as it could be done endeavors have not been wanting for your obtaining Redress. But it was a difficult Task, and generally unsuccessfull—for altho' the Provinces have bounds between each other, there are no certain Bounds between them & you, And thereby not only several of our people ignorant in Indian Affairs have advanced too far into your country, but also many of your own people through the want of such a Line have been deceived in the Sales they have made or in the limits they have set to our respective claims This, Brethren, is a sad Case, which has frequently given us much trouble, and turned many of your heads; but it is likely to continue so untill some Bounds are agreed to, fixed upon and made public between us. The Great the good King of England my master, whose friendship and tender regard for your Interests I wish you may ever hold in remembrance has amongst other Instances of his Goodness after long deliberation on some means for your relief, and for preventing future disputes concerning Lands, at length resolved upon fixing a general Boundary Line between his subjects and you, and that in such a manner as shall be most agreeable to you, in consequence of which I have received his Royal commands to call you together for the establishment thereof, and after conferring with the Governments interested hereupon, you now see before you the Gov<sup>r</sup> of the Jerseys, the Commissioners on behalf of Aseregoa,<sup>1</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> of Virginia & Commissioners from Pennsylvania in order to give you the strongest assurances on behalf of the respective Governments of their Resolutions to pay due regard to what shall be now entered into, the presence of so many great men will give a sanction to the transaction and cause the same to be known as far as the English Name extends—His Majesty has directed me to give you a handsome proof of his Generosity proportion<sup>d</sup> to the nature and extent of what Lands shall fall to him—Upon the whole I hope that your deliberations will be unanimous & your Resolutions such as His Maty may consider as proofs of your gratitude for all his favors—

A fine New Belt.

The Importance of this affair now before us requires the most serious attention. I will not burthen you with any other subject untill this is generally settled, and therefore we shall adjourn, that you may have time to think of it and come fully prepared to give an agreeable answer

Then Abraham Cheif of the Mohawks after repeating what Sir William had said addressed him

Brother

We give you thanks for what you have said to us at this time, it is a weighty affair, and we shall agreeable to your desire take it into our most serious consideration

We are glad that so many great men are assembled to bear witness of the transaction and we are now resolved to retire and consult on a proper answer to be given to all you have said, & so soon as we have agreed upon it, we shall give you notice that we may again assemble, and make it known to you and we are all much obliged to you that you have directed us to attend to this great affair alone at this time that our minds might not be burthened or diverted from it by attending to anything else.

Then Conoghquieson addressed the whole and desired that the several Nations might look towards the Onondagas who would appoint him a time and place for taking the matter into consideration

After which adjourned

P M. Sir William met the Nanticokes with Captain Ogden and explained to them the affair of the Sale of their Lands of which they approved, as well as of the price which [is] 666 Dollars & two thirds—Mr Ogden then delivered an account of his expences which amounted to £ 100.9.9 Cur<sup>r</sup> so that a balance of 415 Dollars or £ 166.2.3 Currency remains due by said Ogden which he is to pay to the cheif of the Nanticokes as soon as may be and then they are to empower him to dispose of the remainder of their Land in Maryland

Thursday the 27th Deiaquande Cheiftain of the Onondagas with 86 arrived and came immediately to Sir Williams Quarters to pay him the usual compliments which having returned he ordered them paint, Pipes, Tobacco & a dram around and dismissed them

Friday the 28th—The weather being cold Sir William clothed the old cheifs of every Nation for which they returned many thanks & told them that he now enabled them to meet and consider of the Great affair before them with pleasure, and assured him that they would endeavour to do every thing for the best, and that with the utmost expedition—They told Sir William that they were yesterday employed in hearing news brought them by the Shawanese and receiving the Belts, that this day they would take into consideration the Boundary Line, and seriously deliberate thereon as they were determined to make it binding

At a Congress with the several Nations on Friday the 25th day of October 1765

PRESENT— as before

The Indians continued in private Council till 4 P. M. when they sent to let Sir William know, that they would be glad to speak with him: being all seated the Speaker addressed Sir William

Brother

We have been for some time deliberating on what you said concerning a Line between the English and us, & we are sensible it would be for our mutual advantage if it were not transgressed, but dayly experience teaches us that we cannot have any great dependance on the white People, and that they will forget their agreements for the sake of our Lands— However you have said so much to us upon it that we are willing to beleive more favorably in this case.

Brother

You remèber when we spoke last concerning this Boundary, that we did not agree about the way it should run from Oswegy<sup>1</sup>—This is a point that must now be settled for to what purpose could it be to draw a Line between us & the country of Virginia & Pensylvania whilst the way to our Towns lay open We would therefore know what you intend to propose as a Boundary to the Northward that we take it into consideration and we shall be glad that you explain it fully to us, that no mistake may be made on either side.

To which Sir William answered,

Brothers

I have attended to what you say and do admit that it is reasonable the Line should be closed, & I persuade myself that His Maty will approve of it All these things I had in consideration before, & I recommended the Line to you generally at first according to your own practice as an Introduction to the rest and in order to render the whole clear & plain to you, I have prepared a Map on which the Country is drawn large & plain which will enable us both to judge better of these matters. I would therefore recommend it to you to send the cheifs of each Nation to my Quarters where I shall lay the Map before them & confer with them upon it

The Speaker then thanked Sir William for what he had said which they all greatly approved of, in consequence of which the Cheifs of each Nation came soon after to his Quarters when Sir William laid a Map on the Table & after explaining to them the nature of his orders & the desires of Government he spoke as follows

Here is the Map of which I spoke to you, where all that Country which is the subject of our meeting is faithfully laid down. The Line here described between the Kanhawa River & Oswegy<sup>1</sup> was what we spoke about—The King has not fixed upon any particular place to continue it to It therefore remains for me to obtain a continuation of that Line which will be secure to you and advantageous to us on which subject we now meet—I have likewise to observe to you that the piece of Land in the Forks of Susquehanna is very much desired by the Commissioners from Pennsylvania and would be more advantageous to them than to you, besides as it is or will be soon partly surrounded by Settlements it will be a very difficult matter to get any people to go far to the Northward, & leave such Land as it were behind them—I would therefore propose, the Bounds from Fort Pitt be continued up to the Ohio to Moghulbughilum Creek,<sup>1</sup> Thence up that Creek & along the eight mile Carrying Place<sup>2</sup> to the West Branch of Susquehanna thence along that River to the Allegany Ridge. Thence along that Ridge of Mountains to the Cayuga Branch & down the same to the Great East Branch of Susquehanna, from thence up that East Branch to Oswegy,<sup>3</sup> from whence it can be run Eastward to the Delaware River, which is very near it at that Place and for that part of this additional Cession which will fall to Mr Penn, you will receive a large & handsome consideration over and besides His Matys Royal Bounty And as to the continuation of that Line from the Delaware so as to close it, I must desire to hear what yourselves think & I expect that your Resolutions will be advantageous to us, & that you will make proper allowance for the increase of our People whereby you will recommend yourselves to the King, and become so pleasing to his subjects that it will greatly contribute to the due observance of the Boundary Line.

To which the Speaker made the following answer

Brother

We have hearkened to all that you have said and we thank you for your advice which we beleive is well intended—But this is a great Cession of Land which will require much thought and attention and therefore we shall defer the consideration of it till tomorrow

Brother

Before we answer you about the continuation of the Line we must say something to you concerning the extent of it to the Southward which we find is no further than Kanhawa River. Now Brother, you, who know all our affairs, must be sensible that our Rights go much farther to the Southward and that we have a very good & clear Title to the Lands as far as the Cherokee River which we can not allow to be right of any other Indians without doing wrong to our Posterity and acting unworthy those Warriors who fought & conquered it. We therefore expect this our Right will be considered.

Brother

We are now to speak about continuing the Line as you said from Delaware so as to close it, and you recommend it to us to give you plenty for the people

We were formerly generous & gave the white people in many places Lands when they were too poor to buy them. We have often had bad Returns. Nevertheless we would still act generously and mean to do as much as we can without ruining our Children

Brother.

You know that the country from Oswegy<sup>1</sup> quite to Oswego is full of our Towns & Villages and that it is very dear to us so that we cannot be expected to part with what lies at our Doors, besides your people are come already too close to us. We therefore think that the Line should run up the Delaware to the Swamp & from that run across to the Governors (Cosbys Land) and then go away to Lake George which we can not but think a fair offer

To which Sir W<sup>m</sup> answered

Brothers

We have heard what you said and shall answer it. In the first place I acknowledge to have heard of your claim to the Southward before this time. The King does not deny your claims. He is not thoroughly acquainted with the exact extent of them and finding that they may be liable to some dispute with the Southern Indians, he being an enemy to strife directed the Line to be run in the manner he thought least liable to it. But of this I shall take further notice to you having no[w] to speak to you in answer to the course you have proposed for continuing the Line from Delaware

Brothers

I know very well how you are situated and it is not His Majestys inclination to disturb you therein, at the same time you should consider what is reasonable on your parts and that the Lands are even patented further than you propose the Line, and that the more people are confined the more readily will the transgress the bounds so that I must desire you to think the better of it and speak more favorably at our next meeting, till when I shall propose nothing further, as I could not consistently propose any other Line than such as would bring us to or near Lake Ontario.

They then withdrew taking with them a Map in order to consider the affair in private.

At night Sir William had a private conference with the Cheifs of the most Influence with whom he made use of every argument to bring matters to an agreeable issue

Saturday Oct 29th

The Indians continued in Council all the forenoon the Cheifs having given the Belts to the Warriors for their opinion concerning the Boundary; several of the Indians particularly the Oneidas gave great obstruction to the business, and Sir William heard that a clergyman sent by Mr Wheelock from New England who had delivered him a memorial on the 14th instant "praying that the Line might not be extended far North or West but the Lands reserved for "the purposes of Religion" was very busy amongst the Indians for that purpose.<sup>2</sup> Information was likewise given to Sir William this morning that this Clergyman had in conversations with Coll Fitch Mr Peters junior and others told them that he had done what he could to oppose the Cession of Territory, and would continue to obstruct it to the utmost of his Power, and that he had shewed the Indians the folly of giving up their Lands & cautioned them against it before he left Oneida

Sir William this day clothed several of the Cheifs with whom he had several conferences the Majority of them continued in Council together to consider farther on the speeches made to them in the afternoon the Onondaga & Mohock Cheifs with several others waited on Sir William with a Message from the whole, importing that as it was a very weighty & interesting affair it required some further consideration they therefore requested that he and the Gentlemen with him would wait with patience till monday morning when they hoped to be able to give an answer

Sir William told them that he was really become very impatient through the delays which was given to business, that the security of their Lands depended upon their despatch and the freedom of the Cession — That he would however wait till Monday, when he hoped to hear from them some thing that might make up for their delays

At night several of the Cheifs came to Sir Williams Quarters to let him know the purport of Intelligence and Belts received from the Shawanese, which was that according to the old agreement subsisting between the several Indian Nations, they were all to unite and attack the English as soon as the latter became formidable to them That several of the Nations to the South and West greatly alarmed at the Power and increase of the English and irritated at the ill treatment they had met with had expressed a desire to meet the rest to deliberate on what was to be done. That the Spaniards & French had for a long time urged them to take up arms and given them repeated assurances of a powerfull assistance That they had now called them to a meeting at the Mississipp near the mouth of the Ohio for that purpose. That they had sent many Belts among the Indians, a great part of whom were just ready to set out when Sir Williams message came to them, and that they waited the event of the Treaty at Fort Stanwix before they would come to any further resolution with a variety of other particulars all tending to corroborate the former Intelligence received by Sir William Johnson

In the morning the Indians again met in Council, when the Warriors came and laid before their Sachems the result of their deliberations yesterday concerning the Northern part of the Line who directed four of their Sachems viz Tyaruruante, Ganaquieson, Tyeransera,<sup>1</sup> and Tagawaron to wait on Sir William and communicate the same which was, that the Line should run from Oriscany to Tianderbah,<sup>2</sup> and down that River to the Susquehanna, thence in a straight Line to the Hills, and so to the Delaware Branch & down the same to Oswegy,<sup>3</sup> thence down the Susquehanna to Shamokin, and so along the West Branch of that River to Kittanning declaring they would not part with any Lands to the Westward of Oriscany or down towards Wioming or the Great Island, as they reserved that part of the Country for their Dependants.

But Sir William finding that some busy persons had been alarming those Nations most immediately affected by the Line, and that many others could be induced to settle it more advantageously he in a long and warm speech to the Cheifs shewed them that the Line was not proposed to injure them, but that for a handsome consideration it was intended to obtain a Cession of as much Land as would give the people Room on the Frontiers ascertain<sup>s</sup> the Boundary at the same time between them—that with the help of proper Laws it would not be liable to intrusion—that the Line proposed at Oriscany interfered with a patent granted above sixty years ago now in possession of some Gentlemen at New York the Indian Deed for which, he had before shewn them That these Gentlemen and all others concerned would have reason to blame him for agreeing to lines so injurious to their Rights, and that the continuance of a line from thence in the manner that they proposed would in many places approach so near to our settlements, as to render its duration very uncertain from the great increase of our people, whereas by giving them more room the Boundary would be so well known, and secured by Laws before there would be occasion to invade it, that people would act with extrem caution and rather go to other unsettled parts than attempt to transgress an agreement so well defended—That it had been long in agitation and was now according to their own desires ordered by His Majesty to be settled, as the surest means of putting an end to Land Disputes, and that if they rejected this opportunity now offered them and drew the Line so as to interfere with Grants, or approach almost to our settlements, he could not see that any thing more effectual could thereafter be proposed for preventing encroachments, and the Crown after being already at a very heavy expence on this occasion must find its good intentions and reasonable proposals totally defeated. He therefore recommended it to them to consider this point farther, and as his Majestys Bounty, or that of the Colonys would be proportioned to the extent of their Cession, a rule which he should observe upon this occasion—That he hoped for a more favorable Answer as it would be more to their immediate advantage and would tend to the better observance of the Line hereafter. After these and many other arguments, & farther explaining the several courses laid down on the draft, they agreed to take the Map back to their Council Hutt for farther consideration, promising to use their Interest with the rest for a more favorable Line then withdrew Sir William assuring them at parting that they should be particularly rewarded for their services or endeavours to shew the Indians the reasonableness of the requisition.

At night Tagawaron returned with the Map to Sir William, informed him that they were then debating on the subject but much divided in opinion, and added that he thought his Nation disagreeably circumstanced the rest having thrown so much of the transaction to the Northward on their hands, nevertheless he would do all he could to obtain a more favorable settlement

After which Sir William had many other private conferences which occupied a great part of the night—In particular Six Cheifs of the Oneidas, came to him at nine of the clock at night and they very much doubted the validity of the purchase above Orisca—But through S<sup>r</sup> Williams solicitations and to shew their good disposition towards compleating the work in hand, they would agree that the Line should run from the Susquehanna North across at Fort Newport near Fort Stanwix where the Boats are launched, and from thence to the Northwest corner of the late purchase for Lord Holland & others—Sir William thanked them for the Amendments but told them that he could not think it would answer, that it did not even include the carrying place, and therefore desired them again to consider the matter and that as they could extend it much farther to the westward without any sensible inconvenience, he expected they would do so, for which their Nation, over and besides the rest should have five hundred Dollars & a handsome present for each of the cheifs.—They promised to use their best endeavours for that purpose & withdrew

Monday. Oct 31st

At 10 A M. The Oneidas returned to Sir Williams Quarters, and told him that their people positively refused to agree to any other Line than they had proposed the last night, & that as Game began to grow scarce in their neighbourhood, they had come to a Resolution to keep the carrying Place to the Canada Creek in their hands, as by Keeping Horses and Carriages there as they proposed to do for the future to carry over the Traders Goods, they might earn somewhat for the support of their families. Sir William answered that he thought it somewhat extraordinary that they should enter into such a Resolution on the sudden having totally neglected carrying goods for so many years—That if they gave it up they might still reap benefits from a high road open to all provided they had horses & Carriages as reasonable as other people, but that their keeping it to themselves would occasion many disputes between them and the white people, which His Maty was so very desirous of preventing and had fallen upon the Boundary as the means of doing so. That they should not stop at what was but a Trifle to them, tho' so advantageous & necessary to the English and that he wished they would so act as to shew their love and respect for the King & friendship for his Subjects—That the Governor and People of New York had reason to expect much more from them and that they had left it to him to urge these matters to them as thinking Commissioners unnecessary when he was to conduct the Congress. He hoped that this would be a farther consideration and desired them to act a part proper on the Occasion

The thereupon withdrew to consult further upon it. They shortly after returned and said that Sir William had been so desirous to have the Bounds further extended the last and only thing they could say was, that provided they were allowed an equal use of the carrying Place with the English and to be paid Six Hundred Dollars to the Tribes over and besides the several Fees which were given in private, they should extend the Line to Canada Creek Sir William finding it best not to urge this matter farther told them that he acquiesced for the present leaving it to be confirmed or rejected by His Majesty They answered that they considered and unanimously resolved that whatever Boundary Line was now agreed to should be for ever binding & conclusive on both sides—That no province should on any pretence invade the Line and that whatever transaction might thereafter be necessary should be with the King or those by him directed to treat with them.

A Messenger then arrived to call them to attend the consultation about the rest of the line

At night Canaquieson came to inform Sir William that they had further considered the general subject of the Line & would send a chief & Warrior from each Nation with their final resolves which they would deliver in public the next day—They accordingly came to Sir Williams Quarters, when Sir William told them, he hoped they were now come with such an answer as would be pleasing to all Parties. The Map being then laid before them, they said, that what they had to say was the final resolves of all the Nations, then said at the same time, tracing it on the Map that they would agreeable to their just Claims begin the Line at the mouth of the Cherokee River, then go along to the South East side of the Ohio to Kittanning, from thence to the Head of the West Branch of Susquehanna thence down the same to Bald Eagle Creek thence across the River at Tiadaghta Creek below the great Island, thence by a straight Line to Burnett's Hills and along the same to the mouth of Awanda Creek on the West Side of the East Branch of Susquehanna, thence up the stream thereof to Oswegy,<sup>1</sup> thence Eastward to the Delaware River, thence up the stream thereof till they come opposite to the mouth of Tianaderah Creek emptying into Susquehanna, thence up the West side of Tianaderrah to the head of its Westerly Branch, and from thence to the mouth of Canada Creek on Wood Creek.

This they delivered as their final determinations subject to several conditions for the security of their possessions and engagements entered into, and for that part which would fall within Mr Penns Gov<sup>t</sup> they insisted on having 10,000 Dollars Sir William told them he would take the matter into consideration and would assemble them all tomorrow and after parting conferred with the Commissioners of Pensilvania concerning the same who approv<sup>d</sup> it, and agreed to the consideration on behalf of the Proprietors.

At a General Congress with the several Nations at Fort Stanwix Tuesday Nov 1st 1768

PRESENT— as at the former Meetings

Being all seated they desired to know whether Sir William was prepared to hear them, and on being answered in the affirmative, the speaker stood up and spoke as follows

Brother

We are hopeful that you will not take it amiss that we have delayed till now our public answer on the subject you recommended to us, This was a great and weighty matter requiring long deliberation, and should not be undertaken lightly—We have accordingly considered it, and are now come to give you our final resolutions thereon, to which we beg your attention

Brother

We remember that on our first Meeting with you, when you came with your ship we kindly received you, entertained you, entered into an alliance with you, though we were then great & numerous and your people inconsiderable and weak and we know that we entered into a Covenant Chain with you and fastened your ship therewith, but being apprehensive the Bark would break and your ship be lost we made one of iron, and held it fast that it should not slip from us, but perceiving the former chain was liable to rust; We made a silver chain to guard against it Then, Brother, you arose, renewed that chain which began to look dull, and have for many years taken care of our affairs by the command of the Great King, & you by your labors have polished that chain so that it has looked bright and is become known to all Nations, for all which we shall ever regard you and we are thankfull to you in that you have taken such care of these great affairs of which we are allways mindfull, and we do now on our parts renew and strengthen the Covenant Chain by which we will abide so long as you shall preserve it strong & bright on your part. A Belt.

Brother

We are glad that you have opened the River and cleared the Roads as it is so necessary to us both. We were promis<sup>d</sup> that when the war was over, we should have Trade in plenty, Goods cheap and honest men to deal with us and that we should have proper persons to manage all this. We hope that these promises will never be forgot but that they will be fully performed that we shall feel the benefits of an intercourse between us—that the Roads and waters may be free and open to us all to go to the Southward, or for our friends from thence with whom we are now at peace to visit us, that we may have proper persons in our Countrys to manage affairs and smiths to mend our arms and implements—and in the expectation of this, we do, now on our parts open the Roads and waters, and promise to assist in keeping them so. A Belt.

Then after repeating all that had been said concerning the Line proceeded

Brother

We have long considered this proposal for a Boundary between us, and we think it will be of good consequence if you on your parts pay due regard to it, and we in consequence thereof have had sundry Meetings amongst ourselves and with you and from all that you have said to us thereon, we have at length come to a final resolution concerning it, and we hope that what is now agreed upon shall be inviolably observed on your parts as we are determined it shall be on ours and that no further attempts shall be made on our Lands but that this Line, be considered as final and we do now agree to the Line we have marked upon your Map, now before you on certain conditions on which we have spoken and shall say more and we desire that one Article of this our agreement be, that none of the Provinces or their People shall attempt to invade it under color of any old Deeds, or other pretences what soever for in many of these things we have been imposed on, and therefore we disclaim them all, which Bounds now agreed to we begin on the Ohio at the mouth of the Cherokee River<sup>1</sup> which is now our just right, and from thence we give up on the South side of Ohio to Kittanning above Fort Pitt, from thence a direct Line to the nearest Fork of the West Branch of Susquehanna thence through the Allegany Mountains along the south side of the said West Branch till we come opposite to the mouth of the Creek called Tiadaghton thence across the West Branch & along the East side of that Creek and along the ridge of Burnets Hills to a Creek called Awandae thence down the same to the East Branch of the Susquehanna, and across the same and up the East side of that River to Oswegy, from thence Eastward to Delaware River, and up that River to opposite where Trinaderha falls into Susquehanna, thence to Trienaderha and up the West side thereof and its West Branches to the Head thereof thence by a straight Line to the mouth of Canada Creek where it emptys itself into Wood Creek at the end of the long carrying place beyond Fort Stanwix, and this we declare to be our final Resolves and we expect that the conditions of this our Grant will be observed

A Belt.

Brother

Now as we have made so large a Cession to the King of such a valuable and Extensive Country, We do expect it as the Terms of our Agreement that strict regard be paid to all our reasonable desires—We do now on this on behalf and in the name of all our Warriors of every Nation, condition that all our Warriors shall have the liberty of hunting throughout the Country as they have no other means of subsistance and as your people have not the same occasions or inclinations—That the White people be restricted from hunting on our side of the Line to prevent contentions between us

A Belt.

Brother

By this Belt we address ourselves to the Great King of England through You our superintendant in the Name and in behalf of all the Six Nations Shawanese, Delawares and all other our Friends, Allies, & Dependants, We now tell the King that we have given to him a great and valuable Country, and we know that what we shall now get for it must be far short of its value—We make it a condition of this our Agreeem<sup>t</sup> concerning the Line that His Majesty will not forget or neglect to shew us His favor or suffer the Chain to contract Rust, but that he will direct those who have the management of our affairs to be punctual in renewing our antient agreements. That as the Mohocks are now within the Line which we give to the

King, and that these people are the true old Heads of the whole confederacy their several villages and all the Land they occupy unpatented, about them as also the Residences of any others in our confederacy affected by this Cession shall be considered as their sole property and at their disposal both now, and so long as the sun shines, and that all grants or engagements they have now or lately entered into, shall be considered as independant of this Boundary so that they who have so little left may not lose the benefit of the sale of it, but that the people, with whom they have agreed, may have the Land—We likewise further condition on behalf of all the Six Nations and of all our allies, friends & Nephews our Dependants that as we have experienced how difficult it is to get justice or to make our complaints known and that it is not in the power of our Superintendent to take care of our affairs in different Places without the Kings help that His Majesty will give him help & strength to do us justice and to manage our affairs in a proper manner. We all know the want of this, and we make it a point of great consequence on which this our present Agreement is to depend and without which Affairs will go wrong and our heads may be turned.

Brother

We likewise desire that as we have now given up a great deal of Lands within the Bounds that M<sup>r</sup> Penn claimed a right of buying that he may in consequence of the agreement now entered into between us, enjoy what we have given within them Limits. And as we know that Lydius of Albany did in the name of several persons lay claim to Lands in Pennsylvania, which we know to be unjust, and that the Deeds he pretends a right to were invalid, We expect that no regard will be paid to them or any such claims now or hereafter, as we have fairly sold them to the proprietors of Pennsylvania to whom alone we shall sell Lands within that Province, and we shall now give them a Deed for that & other Lands there. And in order to shew that we love justice, we expect the Traders who suffered by some of our dependants in the wars five years ago, may have a grant for the Lands we now give them down Ohio, as a satisfaction for their losses, and as our friend M<sup>r</sup> Croghan<sup>1</sup> long ago got a Deed for Lands from us, which may now be taken into M<sup>r</sup> Penns Lands, should it so happen, we request that it may be considered and get as much from the King somewhere else, as he fairly bought it.—And as we have given enough to shew our Love for the King and make his people easy, in the next place we expect that no old claims which we disavow or new encroachments may be allowed of

Brother,

We have now gone through this matter and we have shewn ourselves ready to give the King whatever we could reasonably spare. We on our parts express our regard for him and we hope for His favor in return.—Our words are strong and our resolutions firm & we expect that our request will be complied with in so much as we have so generously complied with all that has been desired as far as was consistent with our Existence A Belt.

Sir William then thanked them for what they had said, and assured them that it should all be considered, and that he would meet them to-morrow on these and other subjects. Then adjourned

The day being very rainy the Indians did not meet in Council.

Sir William clothed a number of chiefs and Cheiftains of several Nations and was this day busy in preparing the necessary Papers for the Next Meeting

P. M. Sir William met the Mohocks and other chiefs and endeavoured to persuade them to extend the Line more favorably to the West of New York observ<sup>g</sup> that they could not agree to extend it further down the Wood Creek on the South side that he expected they would let it run below the Canada Creek, on the North side of Wood Creek, but finding them determined and that they were for closing it at the point of the last purchase near the Mohock River, he told them he would stop at the Mouth of Canada Creek & refer the remainder to His Matys consideration

Sir William then acquainted the Cheifs that his Excellency the Commander in chief purposed to evacuate Fort Ontario, or to put it on the same footing with Fort Stanwix, as a measure that would be agreeable to them, and that as for any Forts, which it was necessary still to keep up, they could be no inconvenience to them They answered that they had nothing to complain of against the keeping up Ontario, on the footing it was for some time past nor would they make any difficulty about the others whilst they were civilly treated at them, and no encroachments made on their Lands which Sir William promis<sup>d</sup> should be duly attended to.

Thursday November the 3<sup>d</sup>

This day was partly employed in prepar<sup>g</sup> the several Speeches & the Deed of Cession

P. M. A Deputation from the Aghquessaine Indians came to Sir Williams Quarters accompanied by the Oneida chiefs whose interposition with him had been requested in order to accommodate the unhappy difference which had gone such lengths in their village that their Priest and many of their people would likely be murdered

A Belt.

Sir William answered them that he had been extremely concerned to hear of that difference amongst themselves that in consequence thereof he had directed Coll Claus the Deputy Agent for that Quarter to enquire into the particulars & to put a stop to it, and that he now had the pleasure to acquaint them that agreeable to His orders the whole was happily determined before Coll Claus left Montreal which account gave them all great satisfaction

At a Congress with the several Nations Friday November 4th

PRESENT— as at the last Meeting

The Onondaga Speaker performed the Ceremony of Condolence, for a loss sustained by the Oneidas after which Sir William addressed the several Nations

Brothers

After having duly considered your speech and the Agreement you have at length come into, I am pleased to find that you have so far dispatched business Notwithstanding the severity of the approach<sup>d</sup> season, and the distance which many of us are from our dwellings. I gave you all the time necessary for bringing this weighty affair to a deliberate conclusion

Brother

I am glad to find that you remember your old agreements so particularly and I wish you may always observe them, and with that view I should have been glad to have heard you confine your answer to my Belt for keeping the Roads open, to that subject alone, as a free and safe intercourse between us is so necessary to you

The promises formerly made you of the happy change which would be produced by the Reduction of Canada you have in many respects experienced as far as it was in the power of His Majestys Servants you likewise have had a considerable number of Traders amongst you which has so far lowered the Prices of Goods that several of them are become Bankrupts and at many of the Posts they are to be bought at as low rates as at our Towns Notwithstanding the distance and expence of Transportation. I am to inform you that it has been judged adviseable by the Government to commit that part of business regarding the management of the Indian Trade to the care & charge of the several Colonies who I make no doubt will endeavour to do every thing they can for your Interest

A Belt.

You have of late made several complaints on account of the ill behaviour of some people on the Frontiers; those that regarded Pennsylvania, I have reason to think I finally settled and gave a handsome portion of their bounty upon the occasion, and in consequence of the information I gave the Governor of Virginia thereon, his Assembly passed several Votes in your favour, which are now before me, whilst the Governor sent this assurance of their good faith and friendship for you and of their intentions to prevent you from being ill treated

Here shewed and explained the Resolves of the House of Burgesses likewise a paper under the Great Seal of the Province of Virginia authorizing Sir William to give to them those favorable assurances. and proceeds

Brothers

I hope all this will convince you that they are your friends and as further proof of it the Gentlemen Comm<sup>rs</sup> from those Provinces will at their return take proper measures for your future good treatment & for the due observance of the Boundary Line by proper Laws for these purposes, according his Matys desires which I shall recommend to their remembrance

A Belt.

I am glad the Boundary is at length agreed upon, & as I have great reason to think it will be duly observed by the English. I recommend it to you to preserve it carefully in remembrance to explain it fully to those that are absent and to teach it to your children. This Boundary is intended to be lasting but should it be found necessary by His Majesty or yourselves to make any future additions or alterations he will treat with you by those who have the management of your affairs. And never permit any private application this I have received in command to tell you

As to the several reservations you make in your Cession to the King and the other points you recommend you may be assured that His Maty shall be made acquainted with them, as I shall transmit to him a copy of our transactions at this place & I may venture to assure you that they will meet with all possible regard from a Prince of His clemency & Justice & I now give you this Belt to strengthen ratify and confirm the Boundary to all transactions necessary thereto.

A Belt.

Brothers

The speech which you addressed particularly to His M<sup>ty</sup> shall be faithfully transmitted to him with the rest of your proceedings. I have attended to the whole of it & I persuade myself that every reasonable article will be taken proper notice of & that he will take such measures as to him shall seem best for your benefit and for the rendering you justice—I likewise consider your good intentions towards the Traders who sustained the losses & your desire to fulfill all your other engagements as instances of your integrity. I wish that you may on your parts carefully remember & faithfully observe the Engagements you have now as well as formerly entered into with the English, and that you may every day grow more sensible how much it is your Interest to do so And I once more exhort you all to be strong and stedfast to keep firm hold of the Covenant Chain & never to give attention or credit to People who under the Masque of friendship should come amongst you with stories which may tend to weaken your attachment to us, but to keep your eye stedfastly on those whose business & inclination it is to tell you truth & make your minds easy

A Belt.

Brothers the Shawanese &amp; Delawares

I now particularly address you, in that you live far to the Southward, & may at some times be disturbed by bad men who taking advantage of your distance from us & the Heads of the Confederacy may by Belts Messages or Stories invented to create mischief impose on many of your people & through their means mislead other Nations I am not ignorant that this has happened & I have good intelligence that there are people who have been lately deceiving some of you with stories of Revolutions in American affairs & of French Fleets & armies, with which you have been so often deceived that I wonder any of your people should credit them—Be assured, Brothers, that those who were able to conquer Canada, & drive their enemies out of their country, will always have it in their power to defeat their future projects should they be weak enough to make any future attempts to regain what they lost. I do therefore exhort you by this Belt to pay no regard to such deceivers for the future, but continue to live peaceably & let me know who they are, & from whence that attempt to impose upon you. I likewise desire you to remember all your engagements with the English to observe the treaty of Peace with the Cherokees, to avoid any irregularities on the Frontiers & pay due regard to the Boundary Line now made, & to make all your People acquainted with it, & to keep the Roads & Waters open and free whereby you will enjoy the benefits of Peace & Commerce, the esteem of the King of Great Britain & the friendship of all his subjects & I desire you will remember & often repeat my words

A Belt.

Brothers the Indians of Canada

With this Belt I recommend it to you to remember what has been done at this & all former Treaties and to make the same public among all your people on your return to Canada recommending it to them to continue to promote peace and to discountenance all evil reports & idle Stories which may be propagated by ignorant or bad men & to communicate all usefull intelligence to me from time to time as a proof of your regard for your engagements & a means of recommending yourselves to the esteem of the King and people of England.

The Gov<sup>r</sup> of New Jersey being called hence by some urgent business has desired me to inform you that he can not think of taking leave of His Brethren the Six Nations without once more expressing the Happiness he has received from finding that they entertain such right sentiments of his justice, & that of the good people under his Government He has himself the highest sense of the value & importance of the name conferred on him & doubts not but that future Governors & the cheif men & inhabitants of New Jersey will be ever carefull to deserve so distinguished a Title among the Indian Nations as that of Sagorrihwhioughstha.<sup>1</sup> Doer of Justice

The Governor has likewise requested me to remind you that at a Treaty held at Easton in the year 1758 the Delawares and other Indians who had any pretensions to Land in New Jersey, did for a valuable consideration give a general release for all the Lands in that Province except such parts as were reserved by Law for the use of those Indians who chose to live under the protection of that Governm<sup>t</sup>. This was done in public Council in the presence of many of the Six Nations and the Governor would therefore be glad, that at this Congress (where are present so many cheifs of the different Nations belonging to the Confederacy & when a general Boundary Line between the subjects of His Brittannic Majesty in America & their Bretheren the Indians is to be settled) you would do the Province of New Jersey the justice to confirm the said Release by acknowledging in public that that Province is entirely free from all Indian Claims, except as before ment<sup>d</sup>. His Reason for this request is that this matter may held in remembrance by all the nations present & by that means be more surely handed down to their Posterity

A Belt.

Brothers

In consequence of a Belt I have just received from the Senecas which I formerly gave them to bind them together I do now think it highly necessary with this Belt to bind you all together recommend<sup>e</sup> it to you all to avoid wandering and to continue at your several villages after the manner of your ancestors, I do this principally for your own advantage, convinced that you will be weakened by rambling and that your Councils and opinions will be thereby disunited—Take therefore my advice and do not suffer yourselves to be lead away with any imaginary prospects of advantage by scattering, but continue by this Belt in your several places of abode following your commerce and all peaceable pursuits

A Large Black Belt

Brothers

The business of the Treaty being so far happily brought to a conclusion it only remains that you execute a deed of Cession to His Majesty & whatever else is necessary on this occasion, after which I shall deliver over to your People the large Present, together with the Sum of Money the amount and value of which I have already explained to you—The Gov<sup>r</sup> and Gentlemen Comm<sup>rs</sup> from the sev<sup>l</sup> Governm<sup>t</sup> are sensible of your good conduct during the Treaty, and I shall recommend what is necessary to them in your presence for its further security & on the part of New York I take upon myself to promise you that every thing necessary thereto shall be recommended and I make no doubt agreed to by the Legislature of this Province, heartily wishing that the same may on your parts be as carefully observed & that no disputes may hereafter arise concerning any part of the Cession you have made or the engagements you have entered into at this time.

Gentlemen

Agreeable to His Matys intentions signified to me by the secretary of State and for the satisfaction of the several Nations here assembled I take the liberty to recommend it strongly to your several Provinces to enact the most effectual Laws for the due observance of this Line & the preventing all future intrusions, as the expectations thereof and the reliance the Indians have on your Justice from the Assurances I gave them on that head have proved great inducements to the settlement of the Line now established between the Colonies and them

To this the Governors & Commissioners answered that nothing should be wanting on their parts to the obtaining such security for the Boundary as was deemed necessary on their return to their respective Colonies

Then Sir William at the desire of the Gentlemen Commissioners from Pennsylvania acquainted the Indians, that they the Commissioners had a present ready to the amount of 500 Dollars to give in full satisfaction of the Conostoga Lands, which by the death of that People became vested in the Proprietaries—That they freely gave this sum as a farther Proof of the regard of that Province for them and of their concern for the unhappy fate of the Conostogas. Then Sir William told the Indians, that as the proprietaries did not know whether they would chuse money or Goods for the addition of Land to Pennsylvania they were then unprovided, but that Sir William Johnson would be answerable for the speedy payment of the purchase, & would propose to them either to receive it in money to be sent on the Com<sup>rs</sup> return or in goods speedy as possible or to wait till the next spring by which time they could have goods better & more for the same money from England which was submitted to their determination

As it grew late Sir William dismissed the Indians till the next day when they were to subscribe to the Deed of Cession & receive the consideration

At night the cheifs came to Sir William told him that they had considered the proposals made by the Commissioners of Pennsylvania, & preferred the receiving the purchase in Cash, as the speediest payment which was agreed to & security given that the same should be paid in Six Weeks

Nov<sup>r</sup> 5th

The Present being placed in public view around the Buildings within the Fort early this morning the whole assembled in the Area, to subscribe to the Deed & receive the consideration

At a Congress with the several Nations Saturday Nov 5

PRESENT— as before.

The Speaker after repeating what Sir had said to them on the first Belt at the last Congress said

Brother

We thank you for what you have said & we are hopeful that you will observe your engagements as we mean to do on our parts; but as this will in a great measure depend upon the Colonies, We now desire their Representatives here present to do every thing for preserving those engagem<sup>ts</sup> and keeping their people in good order

A Belt.

Then repeating what was said on the second Belt, said
Brother

We thank you for the advice you have given us not to listen to evil reports or lies.

Brother

We approve of your caution and shall observe it, and we shall from time to time give us<sup>1</sup> the the earliest intelligence of any such Reports & from whence they come A Belt.

Then in answer to Gov<sup>r</sup> Francklin's Speech

Brother

We are glad to see that Governor Francklin is so well pleased with our having bestowed one of our own names upon him & are well pleased [to] hear you promise that he will always be ready to do us justice We hope that all future Governors will act the same part. We acknowledge that several of our Nations now present were witnesses to the transaction at Easton & therefore acquit that Province of any demand and we have only to desire of him to follow your example in his future Conduct towards us, which will sufficiently recommend him and his people to our esteem A Belt

Brother. The advice you gave us yesterday to continue firm and united and to live together as formerly we think it very salutary and intended for our Good. We are therefore intended to follow your advice shall lodge your Belt at our Fire place at Onondaga to the end that all our confederacy may have recourse to it & act accordingly

The Deed to His Majesty, that to the Proprietors of Pensylvania, with that to the Traders being then laid on the Table were executed in the presence of the Gov<sup>r</sup> Commissioners, & the rest of the Gentlemen

After which the Cheifs of each Nation received the Cash which was piled on a Table for that purpose and then proceeded to divide the Goods amongst their People which occupied the remainder of that day

P M The Governor & Commissioners took leave and returned to their respive Provinces and that night Sir William took leave of the Cheifs recommending it to them to remember what had been then transacted & cautioning them against committing any Disorders at their Departure but to pack up their Goods & return home in peace & Good Order

Sunday Nov 6th

The Indians began to decamp & Sir William sett off on his return for Johnston Hall where he arrived on the ninth of that Month

V. 8.]

To all to whom, These presents shall come or may concern. We the Sachems & Cheifs of the Six confederate Nations, and of the Shawanese, Delawares, Mingoes of Ohio and other Dependant Tribes on behalf of our selves and of the rest of our Several Nations the Cheifs & Warriors of whom are now here convened by Sir William Johnson Baronet His Majestys Superintendant of our affairs send GREETING. WHEREAS His Majesty was graciously pleased to propose to us in the year one thousand seven hundred and sixty five that a Boundary Line should be fixed between the English & us to ascertain & establish our Limitts and prevent those intrusions & encroachments of which we had so long and loudly complained and to put a stop to the many fraudulent advantages which had been so often taken of us in Land affairs which Boundary appearing to us a wise and good measure we did then agree to a part of a Line and promised to settle the whole finally when soever Sir William Johnson should be fully empowered to treat with us for that purpose AND WHEREAS His said Majesty has at length given Sir William Johnson orders to compleat the said Boundary Line between the Provinces and Indians in conformity to which orders Sir William Johnson has convened the Cheifs & Warriors of our respective Nations who are the true and absolute Proprietors of the Lands in question and who are here now to a very considerable Number. AND WHEREAS many uneasinesses and doubts have arisen amongst us which have given rise to an apprehension that the Line may not be strictly observed on the part of the English in which case matters may be worse than before which apprehension together with the dependant state of some of our Tribes and other circumstances which retarded the Settlement and became the subject of some Debate Sir William Johnson has at length so far satisfied us upon as to induce us to come to an agreement concerning the Line which is now brought to a conclusion the whole being fully explained to us in a large Assembly of our People before Sir William Johnson and in the presence of His Excellency the Governor of New Jersey the Commissioners from the Provinces of Virginia and Pensilvania and sundry other Gentlemen by which Line so agreed upon a considerable Tract of Country along several Provinces is by us ceded to His said Majesty which we are induced to and do hereby ratify & confirm to His said Majesty from the expectation and confidence we place in His royal Goodness that he will graciously comply with our humble requests as the same are expressed in the speech of the several Nations addressed to His Majesty through Sir William Johnson on Tuesday the first of the Present Month of November wherein we have declared our expectation of the continuance of His Majestys Favour and our desire that our ancient Engagements be observed and our affairs attended to by the officer who has the management thereof enabling him to discharge all these matters properly for our Interest. That the Lands occupied by the Mohocks around their villages as well as by any other Nation affected by this our Cession may effectually remain to them and to their Posterity and that any engagements regarding Property which they may now be under may be prosecuted and our present Grants deemed valid on our parts with the several other humble requests contained in our said Speech AND WHEREAS at the settling of the said Line it appeared that the Line described by His Majestys order was not extended to the Northward of Oswegy or to the Southward of Great Kanhawa river We have agreed to and continued the Line to the Northward on a supposition that it was omitted by reason of our not having come to any determination concerning its course at the Congress held in one thousand seven hundred and sixty five and in as much as the Line to the Northward became the most necessary of any for preventing encroachments at our very Towns & Residences We have given the Line more favorably to Pennsylvania for the reasons & considerations mentioned in the Treaty, we have likewise continued it South to Cherokee River because the same is and we do declare it to be our true Bounds with the Southern Indians and that we have an undoubted right to the Country as far South as that River which makes our Cession to His Majesty much more advantageous than that proposed, Now THEREFORE KNOW YE that we the Sachems and Cheifs aforementioned Native Indians and Proprietors of the Lands herein after described for and in behalf of ourselves and the whole of our Confederacy for the considerations herein before mentioned and also for and in consideration of a valuable Present of the several articles in use amongst Indians which together with a large sum of money amounts in the whole to the sum of Ten thousand four Hundred and Sixty pounds seven shillings and three pence sterling to us now delivered and paid by Sir William Johnson Baronet His Majestys sole Agent and superintendant of Indian affairs for the Northern department of America in the Name and on behalf of our Sovereign Lord George the third by the Grace of God of Great Britain France and Ireland King Defender of the Faith the receipt whereof we do hereby acknowledge WE the said Indians HAVE for us and our Heirs and Successors granted bargained sold released and confirmed and by these presents do Grant bargain sell release and confirm unto our said Sovereign Lord King George the third, ALL that Tract of Land situate in North America at the Back of the British Settlements bounded by a Line which we have now agreed upon and do hereby establish as the Boundary between us and the British Colonies in America beginning at the Mouth of Cherokee or Hogohege River where it emptys into the River Ohio and running from thence upwards along the South side of said River to Kittaning which is above Fort Pitt from thence by a direct Line to the nearest Fork of the west branch of Susquehanna thence through the Allegany Mountains along the South side of the said West Branch until it comes opposite to the mouth of a Creek callek Tiadaghton thence across the West Branch and along the South Side of that Creek and along the North Side of Burnetts Hills to a Creek called Awandæ thence down the same to the East Branch of Susquehanna and across the same and up the East side of that River to Oswegy from thence East to Delaware River and up that River to opposite where Tianaderha falls into Susquehanna thence to Tianaderha and up the West side of its West Branch to the head thereof and thence by a direct Line to Canada Creek where it emptys into the wood Creek at the West of the Carrying Place beyond Fort Stanwix and extending Eastward from every part of the said Line as far as the Lands formerly purchased so as to comprehend the whole of the Lands between the said Line and the purchased Lands or settlements, except what is within the Province of Pensilvania, together with all the Hereditaments and Appurtenances to the same belonging or appertaining in the fullest & most ample manner and all the Estate Right Title Interest Property Possession Benefit claim and Demand either in Law or Equity of each & every of us of in or to the same or any part thereof TO HAVE AND TO HOLD the whole Lands and Premises hereby granted bargained sold released and confirmed as aforesaid with the Hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging under the reservations made in the Treaty unto our said Sovereign Lord King George the third his Heirs & Successors to and for his and their own proper use and

[New-York Entries, O., 436.]

To the Right Honorable the Lords of the Committee of His Majesty's most Honorable Privy Council for Plantation Affairs.

My Lords.

Pursuant to your Lordships order of the 25th of September last, we have taken into our consideration a letter to the Earl of Hillsborough, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, from Sir Henry Moore Baronet, Governor of New York, dated June 26, relative to an Act passed by the Council and House of Assembly of that Province, during the course of the last Session, for the repeal of two Acts concerning Insolvent Debtors, to which Act the said Governor had refused his Assent, as being contrary to the 13th Article of his Instructions forbidding the repeal of Acts passed there, altho the royal Assent had not been given to them; and submitting whether in matters relating entirely to their internal policy and in which neither the particular interests of the Crown nor its Power and Dignity are concerned, a relaxation of this Instruction may not be thought proper, and be attended in many circumstances with benefit to the Province. Whereupon We beg leave to report to your Lordships:—

That upon a representation heretofore made by the Council and Burgesses of Virginia wherein amongst other matters they pray that His Majesty's Governor may be permitted to give his assent to all such Acts as may alter or repeal any others which have not received His Majesty's Approbation, and which relate only to the people of that Colony, wherein the Royal prerogative or the trade of Great Britain shall not be affected; this Board did in their report of the 20th of May 1761, give it as their opinion that the restrictions contained in His Majesty's instructions to his Governors of all the plantations and from which the Colony of Virginia then desired to be relieved, were proper and necessary, as a general rule, and that it was by no means advisable to take away or even relax any of them. As we see no reasons which have since occurred for departing from this opinion and advice of our predecessors in office, we have hereunto annexed so much of the above mentioned Report as relates to the case in point, and beg leave to refer your Lordships thereunto We are, My Lords

and most humble Servants

Earl of Hillsborough to Governor Moore.

Sir,

I have had the honor to receive, and lay before the King, your Letters to me N<sup>o</sup> 26, 27 & 28. and have it in command to signify to you the satisfaction it gives His Majesty to find, that His gracious approbation of the Act for quartering the Troops is likely to be so well received, and to be considered, as it really is, as a mark of His Majesty's paternal regard for the true Interest of His Colony of New York.

The Embarrassment which you state in your Letter N<sup>o</sup> 27. to have arisen from some doubts in the Council as to the Construction of the Order for ascertaining the Boundary Line between New York and Quebec, will I trust have been removed long before this Letter reaches you.

The slightest revision of your Letter upon that subject will shew, that it answers itself as to the point upon which you desire an explanation; for, if the claims of the English, whilst France was in possession of Canada, extended to the River St. Lawrence, it is evident that all the Lands lying to the South, or on the New York side of the Boundary Line fall within the Regulation prescribed in the latter part of that Order, and the case therefore which you state is fully provided for,

I have by His Majesty's command laid before the Lords of Trade your Letter concerning M<sup>r</sup> White recommended to be of the Council, and their Lordships have thought fit to propose to His Majesty that M<sup>r</sup> White should be appointed to that station so that there will be 12. Members, exclusive of the Lieutenant Governor, as is the Rule and Practice in respect to the Councils of some other Colonies.

My Lord.

As I have always thought it my duty not only to give His Majesty's Ministers information of every thing which passed here, but also to lay before them any plans I could form for the benefit of the Province under my care, I hope that the proposal I now take upon me to make to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in this letter may be looked on in no other light than the effect of that zeal wh<sup>ch</sup> should animate every officer in His Majesty's service to merit the Royal approbation.

The Communication between this Province and Canada has been hitherto chiefly kept up by the various military posts which have been established; as many of these have been or will shortly be reduced. My intention was to obviate the difficulties under which we must of course be laid by this reduction by substituting some other means of keeping open this communication, which would not be attended with the expence to which all military establishments are liable. For this purpose I apprehend that the building of a Town at Crown Point on Lake Champlain on the plan I have here enclosed, will be attended with many advantages to the Province, and that His Majesty's service will also be particularly benefitted by it. The Lands on both sides of lake Champlain and extending from thence many miles to the southward, have been granted chiefly to reduced officers and disbanded soldiers, who had served in America, in obedience to His Majesty's Proclamation in the year 1763. These lands are not charged with any Quit rents, for the first ten years after the Grant, the consequence of which is, that great part of them still remain uncultivated, and will continue so for some years to come, unless proper steps are taken to encourage the settlements there. The Town now proposed at Crown Point would induce the Proprietors of those lands to clear and improve them; for the immediate advantages they would reap by their situation; the lots of Land in the Town should be granted on the easiest terms, to those who would build, and if some particular priviledges we to be given to them for the first seven or ten years, so great a number of people would be drawn together, as would contribute greatly to settling all that part of the Country, and by making roads on the side of the Lake remove one great difficulty we labour under at present in having no other communication with Canada but by water, for this is interrupted twice every year, in the beginning of the winter when the Ice begins to form, and in the spring when it is breaking up, during wh<sup>ch</sup> time no assistance could be given to them or had from thence in<sup>1</sup> the distresses of either province or any intestine commotions should require it. The Plans now offered to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> were drawn by M<sup>r</sup> Adolphus Bentzell<sup>2</sup> who has been employed as an assistant Engineer here during the last war, and as his residence since that time has been mostly at Crown Point, no one is better able to give your Lord<sup>sh</sup> an Account of that part of the Country, for which reason I have desired that he would deliver them himself, that he may at the same time have an opportunity of giving any information which may be thought necessary; I have had the honor once before of mentioning M<sup>r</sup> Bentzell in my letter to the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> for Trade and Plantations dated January 10th 1767 as acting under a Commission I had given him to prevent the destruction of the Pine Trees reserved for the Navy in those part[s], as we had no person in this Prov<sup>ce</sup> at that time who was impowered by any authority from England. This Commission M<sup>r</sup> Bentzell executed very faithfully and with great trouble and inconvenience to himself, though at the same time he was well informed that it was not in my power to annex to it any fee or Reward. I have the honor to be with the greatest respect, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and
humble servant.

My Lord

On my return from Fort Stanwix I had the honour to receive your Lordships of 13th of August (N<sup>o</sup> 5) with the enclosures concerning the application to His Majesty for a grant of Copper Mines near Lake Superior directing me to make Enquiries concerning the same, to which I should have paid all due obedience sooner, but the pacquets and dispatches I had to make up, and the multiplicity of Affairs I had to order & regulate in consequence of the late Treaty.

I now proceed to consider the Subject of your Lordships letter and the papers therewith transmitted, and first as to the ore.—I have long since been well assured that there is not only a large quantity of Copper ore in the environs of Lake Superior, but that on trials made on samples of it (some of which I have seen) it has been found extraordinary good and rich. I likewise about three years ago saw an Estimate of the Expence of taking up and transporting &c<sup>a</sup> the most accessible of that ore, of which I am well assured there are to all appearance entire Rocks but this estimate which I've unluckily mislaid, was to the best of my recollection founded on the expectation that it would continue to be obtained with very great ease, and that it could be transported, refined &c<sup>a</sup> at rates which from the encreased value of labour &c<sup>a</sup> in Canada since the reduction of that country may now be much doubted, admitting that the veins of ore would continue equally rich & accessible.—I have likewise understood that the Indians themselves would at a very trifling rate procure large quantities of it, to which I may answer that the Indians are a lazy people, naturally enemies to labour, and therefore it is much to be doubted whether interesting them in it would be attended with advantage, altho the Indians of that Country can be satisfied on much more reasonable terms than those who are more accustomed to receive favours from the Europeans, particularly the French.—I have also heard that some persons in Canada did formerly bring away a good deal of Ore from thence, & that they lost by it, but whether this was owing to the expence of bringing it down or to bad management I can't say. The River Ottawa being obstructed by 42 portages small & great would much retard and enhance the transportation of so heavy an article & give place to the carrying it by the Lakes as the most eligible, notwithstanding the latter are at some seasons very uncertain and the navigation often tedious, the length and severity of the winters at Lake Superior will likewise require consideration both with regard to the provision to be made for those that should remain there, and for their cattle & beasts of burthen, and the very low wages of battoemen and all labourers in the time of the French when compared with the usual hire. at this time, is also a matter that should be attended to.

I come now to consider what effect it might have as to His Majesty's Interests with respect to the Indians, touching this, I am of opinion, that if the object in view is deemed worthy the pursuit, It cannot hereafter be prejudicial to His Majesty's Interests with the Indians, provided their consent is first obtained, that the utmost care is taken to prevent their being wronged, or ill treated by any concerned and that no settlement be undertaken, or lands cultivated beyond what is barely necessary (and this too with their previous consent) until the times become more favourable, all which may be effectually prevented by the residence of an Officer of the Indian Department, on the part of the Crown & by such instructions & authorities to the Superintendent or such other officer of the Crown as is most likely to remove any cause of complaint, & afford them justice, and for the farther satisfaction of the Indians, & removing any suspicions they might entertain from the conduct of any of the Companys residents or servants there, that an appeal might lye before the superintendent, or such officer as the Crown should direct.

With regard to the next consideration as to the proper means to induce their agreement to such Establishments as would be necessary for obtaining the advantages stated to arise from the proposals as I understand it, the principal advantages that may be expected depend upon the value and importance of good Mines rich in Copper, as any advantages to His Majesty's Interests with the Indians resulting from the Proposals must be the effect of time, & will solely depend upon the good conduct, civil treatment & strict integrity of the Company's

Factors, who if they can be expected to concur in so doing will doubtless by degrees acquire the esteem of the Indians, and give them favourable prepossessions of the English, to which the adding some small presents occasionally, or making it in some measure their interest would greatly contribute, but this must be as yet meerly matter of speculation & uncertainty.—On the other hand, the neighbouring nations who are not interested in any advantages which those of Lake Superior may be supposed to enjoy will probably prejudice them as much as possible against it, & use endeavours from time to time to distress the Company in which they may be sometimes successfull, for it is most certain that the jealousy of the Indians augments as we encrease, and however they may outwardly appear reconciled to such settlements, they consider every Beginning of ours in a very dangerous light, & are thereby led to commit acts of violence before they allow us sufficient time to manifest by a series of good treatment the purity of our intentions.—I judge it my duty to remark what may happen, At the same time I am of opinion that provided the object is worthy attention, and that the distance from the sea, with y<sup>e</sup> other obstructions & expences attending it do not render the plan unprofitable a circumstance on which I cannot positively decide, The Indians may be reconciled to the opening & working those mines, and that if strict care be taken to do them justice in the manner I have already proposed without any attempts to private settlements or insisting upon Charter Rights as conveying property of soil, there is a prospect of it's being enjoyed in security; and that to obtain their consents, the Cheifs of those Nations interested should be assembled when the whole should be laid before them without disguise, or making any promises but such as could & would be fully performed, and that on giving them a present, & obtaining their consent some persons of interest amongst them should accompany those who are to prosecute the design, and carrying<sup>1</sup> the plan into execution, the future success of which must depend upon the manner in which it is conducted, and upon the temper of the Indians.

I could have wished it were in my power to have more diligently enquired & to have offered more particular remarks regarding this proposal, but when it is known that I have scarcely had a moments leisure from the number & importunity of Indians since my return last month from the Treaty at Fort Stanwix, I persuade myself I shall be in some measure excusable, should it appear that I have not been able to give it all the attention that was necessary, and as I was desirous of complying as soon as possible with His Majesty's orders by offering my thoughts upon the matter, which with the hopes of your Lordship's favourable indulgence I now humbly submit to [His Majesty's]<sup>2</sup> consideration.

I have the honour to be with the most profound respect,

My Lord,

New York. 4. January 1769.

My Lord.

I am very sorry to inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that I have been under a necessity of putting an end to the late Assembly by a dissolution. My duty would not permit me to pass over unregarded the extraordinary resolves the house of Assembly had entered on their Journals, and I have here inclosed a copy of them together with a speech I made to them on the occasion. I did once flatter myself that moderate measures would have been pursued throughout the whole session, but a small Faction has found means to intimidate the rest of the members, & brought on this dissolution contrary to the General opinion or intention of the greater part of the Members.

In order to explain this, I must inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that the remains of that licentious Rabble who during our late disorders, called themselves the Sons of Liberty, had formed a design soon after, the meeting of the Assembly to disturb the tranquility of the City by carrying the effigies of certain persons thro' the Town in procession, and afterwards burning them publicly; the Magistrates of the City exerted themselves so much on this occasion, that it could not for some time be carried into execution, but their vigilance was at length eluded, & while they were assembled in one quarter of the Town expressly for this purpose, the project was executed in a hasty manner in another, and the contrivers made their escape with so much precipitation, that the Constables could not be informed of their design time enough to secure any of the persons concerned in it. A pompous account of this was printed in one of our weekly papers, and any one would suppose by the relation there given, that the greatest part of the City was concerned in it, but this proceeding having been disavowed by the Inhabitants, the Mayor published a true relation of the transaction, which shew'd that it was done by a few of the lowest people, & by surprize. I immediately upon this attempt being made, issued a proclamation offering a Reward for the discovery of the Authors of this project; and on my acquainting the Assembly of it by a Message received their thanks for what I had done, and an Address which is set forth in the 30th page of the printed Journals which accompany this letter. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will see in the preceeding page of these Journals how few advocates this Riot, had, by the division of the house on the Address, & I make no doubt be surpris'd that five Members of any Assembly whatsoever could be found in any part of the King's Dominions, who should be so weak, to declare against the support of Government and good order in the Town where they lived. When this design had so evidently failed, a sett of Instructious to the City Members were drawn up, and carried about the Town to be signed. Most of the Inhabitants of any consideration, refused to set their names to it, but a number of the lower sort were procured who did, and your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may easily imagine, what the tenor of such Instruct<sup>ions</sup> and dictated by such heads must be; however, these were constantly held up to view, and as the greatest part of the Assembly is composed of plain well meaning Men, whose notions from their education, are extremely confined, their fears of being exposed to the contempt of their Countrymen for not joining in what were called constitutional measure, and their apprehensions of being particularly pointed out as Enemies to their Country, engaged them in measures which they never wished to see adopted, but had not resolution enough to oppose, for the reasons I have just mentioned, notwithstanding they had a considerable majority in the house. The same Faction was particularly instrumental in keeping up a heat in the House which would not otherwise have prevailed, and upon entering the resolves on their Journals proposed to make them still stronger by an addition to the third Resolve, as if they were apprehensive that there was not sufficient offence already given in the former part of it, but this was rejected by the house and the division on the question may be seen at the bottom of the 74th page of the Journals. Towards the conclusion of the Session they shewed plainly what their real intentions were, by opposing the support Bill, without any cause being assigned for such a proceeding, as will appear by the Division on the 69th page of their Journals, and I am very clear in my own opinion, that the present misconduct of the Assembly is intirely attributed to their violent measures.

On Saturday the 31st of December, on my sending for the house to pass some Bills, the inclosed resolves were put on their Journals. On my receiving them from their Clerk on Sunday morning, I immediately sent out orders for summoning His Majesty's Council to meet, before whom I laid the resolves on the morning of the next day; the minutes of that day are likewise here inclosed, and about six o'clock in the same evening I dissolved the Assembly. I could have wished that I had been better supported on this occasion by the Council, for your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will see, that of the eight Members, wh<sup>ch</sup> were present that day, the voices were equally divided, and could I have had their concurrence for the dissolution, I am perswaded that it would have given such a blow to the Faction, as would have been attended with the most favourable consequences to the Colony. Being disappointed of that aid which I required & expected from them, I took the matter upon myself, and as I had spared no pains during the course of the Session to point out to the Assembly the Rock they would split on, and laid the Acts of Parliament before them as soon as I saw on their Journals, that a Committee was appointed to draw up Constitutional resolves, I cannot charge myself with having omitted the least circumstance which could give them information of the danger into which they were running; I therefore thought, I was called upon by the duty of my Commission to Act in the manner I have done, and shall be extremely happy if my conduct on this occasion meets with His Majesty's approbation.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect
My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient
and humble servant

[Plantations General, CCLV., No. 8.]

Whitehall 4th Janry 1769

Sir,

I have received your Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 4 & 5 and have laid them before the King.

His Majesty has observed with great satisfaction the judgement and zeal you have in general testified in his service, and particularly the activity you have shewn in the important business of the Boundary line.

The King wishes however that you had not allowed the Six Nations to discover that we entertained any doubt of their right to the country South of the Kanaway River, as it appears from your letter that to this circumstance & to this alone, it was owing that you was induced to depart from the Boundary line, directed by the Report of the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantations, which upon the whole, after much consideration, had been determined upon political and commercial principles to be the most desirable one, and to which by His Majesty's commands you was instructed to adhere; for besides that the deviation from that line is contrary to the opinion of His Majesty's Servants on this side, and the obtaining so large an additional tract of land in that part of the continent is considered by them as productive only of disadvantage and embarrassment, the worst of it is, that it will not only probably produce jealousy and dissatisfaction amongst the Cherokees, but will also tend to undo and throw into confusion those settlements and agreements for the other part of the Boundary Line, which the Superintendent for the Southern Department has concluded so ably & so precisely according to his Instructions

I have received His Majesty's commands to lay your letters, the proceedings at the Congress, and the Deed which was the result of them, and also the Dispatches received from the Superintendent of the Southern Department relative to the Boundary line, before the Board of Trade, in order that their Lordships may take the whole into their consideration & report to His Majesty their opinion what measures it may be now proper to take. In the mean time I can venture to assure you that if you can fall upon any method still to settle the Line according to your Instructions, it would be very satisfactory to His Majesty; and it appears to me that this might be done in such a manner, with regard to the Six Nations as to make them understand that His Majesty declines to accept of the large additional cession they wish to make to Him out of His paternal tenderness and affection to them and their posterity and not from any doubt he entertains of their right to the lands.

The unwarrantable conduct of the French and Spaniards, with regard to His Majesty's Indians, deserves the most serious attention and will receive the fullest consideration, and I doubt not that you will continue to exert the most watchfull vigilance to discover all further attempts of that nature, as well as to prevent their pernicious effects, and give me the earliest intelligence of any such discoveries, in order to be laid before His Majesty.

I do entirely agree with you in opinion as to the Advantages that would have resulted from adopting the more extensive plan of Superintendency proposed in the year 1765; but having fully explained to you, in my letter of the 12th of October last, the necessity there was of conforming ourselves to a more limited plan, it is unnecessary either for you or me to say any more upon that subject; but I am commanded by the King to assure you, that you shall have every support and protection in the execution of your office, as far as its present authority extends, not doubting but that, under your direction, it will have the happy effect to produce benefits of very great national Importance.

I am &c.

HILLSBOROUGH

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 7 January 1769.

My Lord,

I should have acknowledged, by the preceeding Packet, the honour you did me in your letter of the 9th of July to Sir Henry Moore, of which he sent me an extract of what relates to me; had he not delayed to inform me so long, that I did not receive the extract till the day after the Mail was closed; tho' from the date of your Lord<sup>ps</sup> letter he must have received it four or five weeks before that time.

I have never given Sir Henry the least personal offence since his arrival in his Govern<sup>t</sup>, and yet his conduct with respect to my obtaining a recompence for my losses, from the Assembly, has been such that I cannot imagine from whence should arise that part of your Lord<sup>ps</sup> letter, wherein you direct him persevere in his recommendation of my case to the Assembly. He has been entirely influenced by the popular party which I thought it my duty to oppose. He refused formerly to send in my account of Losses to the Assembly, tho' I informed him that it had been always customary for the Gov<sup>t</sup> to send in by Message from himself such accounts, as he recommended to be paid, and that the Assembly expected he should do so.

On the 24th of last Month, he sent in my acc<sup>t</sup> of arrears of salary, and losses by the Mob in 1765, with a Message, recommending the payment, but without the least mention of his having received any directions for that purpose. At their next meeting after Xmas, the Assembly agreed to pay my full arrears of Salary, but made no resolution as to the payment of my losses. The reason I am told was, that, some objected, that I had put the Province to a great expence in having the Cannon on the Batteries unspiked, which I had ordered to be spiked up. All the Artillery of the Army which had not been brought into the Fort, were spiked up at the same time. Your Lord<sup>p</sup> knows, I could give no direction for that purpose. The Cannon on the Batteries would have been unspiked, in the same manner that the Artillery of the Army was, whenever it should be thought prudent, without any expence to the Province; but the Assembly took the direction of the Cannon on the Batteries on themselves and ordered them to be unspiked.

Your Lord<sup>p</sup> can judge whether it be for the interest of Great Britain that the Officers of the Crown in the Colonies, depend on the Assemblies for every recompence and Reward of their services. I have the satisfaction in mind, that I had during my Administration, my duty in obeying the King's instructions and the welfare of the Province, only at heart; and I am confident, no instance can be given of my acting otherwise. The sentiments which by your Lord<sup>ps</sup> letter to Sir H. Moore, his Maj<sup>ty</sup> entertains of my past conduct, does me the greatest honour, and gives me the greatest pleasure I am capable of receiving.

As the Gov<sup>t</sup> has dissolved the Assembly, no doubt you will receive from him an account of their conduct. It may however be proper to inform your Lord<sup>p</sup>, that the City of New York is now divided into two parties, which violently oppose each other. One consisting of the new Members chosen into the last Assembly, and the other supposed to be favoured by the Gov<sup>t</sup>; both sides had the preserving their popularity in view. It is supposed this opposition will continue at the ensuing election.

I am extremely sensible of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s favour and it shall be my constant endeavour to demonstrate by every thing in my power with how much gratitude I am, My Lord,

Your most obedient & faithful serv<sup>t</sup>

CADWALLADER COLDEN

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 20 January 1769.

My Lord,

The Acts passed during the late Session of Assembly are now preparing to be transmitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> with all possible expedition. On my informing the house of His Majesty's instruction relative to the insertion of the Words "in the West Indies" in the Act for granting the several duties and impositions on goods etc imported into this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, it was readily complied with and the alteration made. But my suspicions in regard to the Militia Bill were soon confirmed, and the Bill entirely drop'd after having been once read.

The division of the County of Albany did not take place, neither can I very well ascertain the reasons which prevented it. No objection was made to the Bill in the form pointed out in your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter to me, and it was brought into the house, without any mention being made of the right of chusing Members, which privilege was entirely left with the Crown. The contested Elections at the beginning of the session took up much time, which might have been better employed, and a sudden period was put to all business then before the house, by the dissolution which took place soon after the resolves were entered on their Journals; had this not been the case in a probability the Bill might have passed, but it would at the same time have laid me under a new difficulty, as the Tract of Country now in question is of so great extent, that it was proposed by the Bill to divide it into three separate and distinct Counties, and the Bill would have passed in that form. The permission, which His Maj<sup>ty</sup> had given by Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter of issuing a writ of Election being confined only to one additional County, I could not take upon me to do any thing till further orders, as an equal distribution of favour would be expected from the Crown in granting the same privileges to both the New Counties, whereas his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Commands had been only signified in regard to one.

Our Elections are now carrying on with great warmth, and as I apprehend that I shall be under a necessity of calling the new Assembly together, sooner than the usual time of their meeting, on account of some additional provision to be made for the Troops, I hope I shall have the honor of receiving some further Instructions in regard to what I have here mentioned concerning the division of the County of Albany.

I have the honor. etc.

H MOORE.

Governor Moore to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 21. January 1769.

My Lord,

Immediately upon receipt of His Majesty's orders for the admission of M<sup>r</sup> Hugh Wallace and M<sup>r</sup> James de Lancey into the Council of this Province, in the room of M<sup>r</sup> Walton and M<sup>r</sup> Alexander, the members of the Council were convened, and M<sup>r</sup> Wallace took the oaths and his seat at the Board, but M<sup>r</sup> de Lancey declined the honour that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> had intended him, & after declaring before the Council, that he could not accept of the appointment, withdrew without any further ceremony, nor was there any reason given either by himself or his friends for such a proceeding. I have the honor of returning to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> here inclosed, the Royal mandamus in favour of M<sup>r</sup> de Lancey, and must leave to that Gentleman the explanation of so singular a conduct, as I should be extremely embarrassed to determine what extraordinary engagements he could possibly have entered into, which could be either incompatible with his duty to his Maj<sup>ty</sup>, or inconsistent with his attendance on the service of his Country at the Council Board; I hope that I shall have your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s pardon for what I am now going to say in favour of my former recommendation, and that the anxiety of mind I am under, lest I should be supposed to have recommended an improper person, may plead my excuse, for troubling your Lord<sup>sh</sup> with any thing further on this head. My connections in point of acquaintance and private friendship with M<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Livingston, in whose favour I had wrote, are by no means so strong as with many Gentlemen in this Province, whose names I have never mentioned to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, and the following are the true reasons of the preference given to him on this occasion. He is a branch of the most considerable family in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>; his father (who is very far advanced in years) possessed of a very great landed Estate, which will come to him undivided, as he is an only son. He is married to the richest Heiress in this Country whose Father is likewise very old and infirm; so, that in all human probability he must very shortly be the greatest Landholder without any exception, in this province; the very large Estate which must center in him, cannot fail of giving him great weight here, and puts it very much in his power to support Govern<sup>t</sup>, which all my letters to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Ministers have shewed to be very weak and to stand much in need of every assistance which can be obtained. M<sup>r</sup> Livingston is a Member of the Church of England as by Law established, & very well affected to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s person and Govern<sup>t</sup>. He is at this time one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and has there given frequent proofs of his abilities to serve his Country. He has likewise been for several years a Member of the House of Assembly, where I must acknowledge myself indebted to him, for his readiness and assistance in some difficulties I laboured under during the troubles I was engaged in, on my first arrival here, and from the whole tenor of his conduct I thought he deserved recommendation I had given him, being at this time fully perswaded that if he had been a Member of the Council during the last Session of Assembly I sh<sup>d</sup> have been better supported than I was by that Board, when the resolves of the late Assembly were laid before them, which brought on the dissolution. Thus much My Lord, I thought myself bound to say, from the apprehensions I was under that M<sup>r</sup> Livingston's character had been misrepresented, & that I had fallen under the censure that of having wrote in favour of a person undeserving His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s notice, but I hope that I shall never be thought to have merited such an accusation, but that on the contrary it will appear, that my zeal for His Majesty's service, has directed and influenced every article of my conduct, since I have been honor'd with the Chief command here.

Upon Mr De Lancey's refusal of a seat at the Council Board, Mr Henry White<sup>1</sup> made another application to me, but I have already given my opinion concerning him so fully, that I shall not trespass any further on your Lord's time.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect,

My Lord

Your Lord's most obedient
and humble servant

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York 27 January 1769.

My Lord.

Several Inhabitants of this Province being desirous of making settlements on the lands ceded by the Indians in the late Treaty, have made application for them in the manner directed by His Majesty's Instruction, but a difficulty we are at present under has prevented their requests being granted. Out of the vast Tract of Land ceded by the Indians to the Crown of Great Britain, a very inconsiderable portion of it has fallen to the share of this province, as the partition line has not been carried farther to the Northward than the Mohawk River, and at that place not above three or four miles to the Westward of a grant of Land made so long ago as in 1708, as a considerable sum of money has been paid by the Crown to the Indians at the late Congress, it is humbly requested that His Majesty's pleasure may be made known in regard to the conditions, on which the Lands are to be granted. If the Grantees are to be called on by the Govern<sup>t</sup> for a reimbursement of the sums expended for the settling of this line, in the same proportion they would have paid in case the lands had been purchased by them of the Indians, the share they would pay, would be so inconsiderable and bear so little proportion to the whole, that it would not be worth attending to; on the other hand settlement made on the Frontiers and so distant from the capital are attended with so many difficulties, that any increase of the necessary and common expences, will effectually discourage those who are willing to engage in them from all farther proceeding and drive them to another part of the Country. The inclosed sketch was sent to me by Sir William Johnson, in order to be laid before the house of <sup>1</sup> HENRY WHITE was a commissary in the British service and a prominent merchant in New-York, and was one of the consignees of the Tea sent to that city. He was sworn of the Council on the 8th March, 1769, and continued a member of that body until 1783, when he returned to England. His estate was confiscated in 1779. In 1755 Mr. W. married Eve, daughter of Frederick and grand-daughter of Jacobus Van Cortlandt. Frederick C., one of the sons, was appointed in 1781, an ensign in the 64th regiment of Foot, then serving in America, and ultimately rose to be a general in the army. John, another son, was a rear-admiral in the Royal Navy. Mrs. White died in New-York in 1836, at the advanced age of 99. Her daughter Ann married Sir John Hays, and Margaret married Peter J. Munro, a distinguished member of the New-York bar, and one of the framers of the late Constitution of this State. Sabine's Am. Loyalists; De Peyster's Genealogy. — Ed.

Assembly and only shews so much of the line as relates to this Province. Pennsylvania is now bounded on the North by the East and West line drawn from Owegy to the Delaware, but the lands to the Northward of that line do not fall into this Province, as was expected, but we are still confined to our old boundary the Delaware for many miles, and the line is continued up the course of that River to the Northward till it comes to that spot which is due south from the Mouth of the Tienaderha<sup>1</sup> Creek, which falls into the Susquehanna; a due North line is then drawn to the Mouth of that Creek, and continued up its course to the head of it, and from thence by a straight course to the Mouth of Canada Creek, where it terminates. Your Lord<sup>d</sup> will see on inspecting this draught, that in this Province we are rather sufferers than gainers by this settlement, as we shall now be confined by a line fixed in so solemn a manner, at no great distance from our Lands already patented, and to have it our power to extend farther to the Westward; whereas the necessities of the Indians were constantly obliging them to make sale of their Lands for their support, which of course, would extend our Frontier and drive them back further into the Country.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect

My Lord.

and humble servant

N<sup>o</sup> 7.

Johnson Hall Feby 15th 1769.

My Lord,

Since my last of Decbr 23<sup>d</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 6. I have had the honour to receive your Lordship's letter N<sup>o</sup> 6 in answer to mine N<sup>o</sup> 2. containing His Majesty's commands that I should make out some certain Estimate of what I thought the Department might require in order to the determining whether any greater sum should be allowed than that recommended by the Board of Trade. And that in the mean time the annual expence should not exceed that sum. The first is already done as I long since transmitted a short estimate for that purpose to General Gage, who informs me that the same is now before His Majesty. The second is in part and will very soon be entirely complied with by the total removal of the Commissaries & all other Officers of the Department at the out posts & frontiers, but as on the first receipt of the plan for the reform it was judged most adviseable by the General and myself that the Provinces should have some little time to consider in what manner they should carry that part relating to Trade into execution, as the withdrawing those Officers abruptly without any to supply their places, would beyond all doubt have proved of very ill consequences; It was not till the receipt of your Lordships letter of the 12th of October that we could withdraw them, and some must of necessity remain until the Lakes & Rivers are open.—I am extremely happy to find that those remarks which I humbly offered on the subject of the Reform have been honoured with

His Majesty's attention, it would much exceed the bounds of a letter to enter minutely into so multifarious a subject, or to point out the various arguments that might be brought in proof of the weight of any remarks, whatever I have presumed to offer in that way was perfectly disinterested & arose from a conviction of their necessity.

The arrangements pointed out in your Lordships letter of April last were in my opinion judiciously calculated to answer their object which to me appeared to be the relieving the Kingdom from a large expence by transferring the management of Trade to the several Colonies on a supposition that these Colonies would do every thing necessary therein, but if my experience in these matters here joined to my opportunities of knowing the state of Indian Affairs at this time gave me reason to apprehend that the wise measures of Government were liable to be frustrated, or would not be carried on, so as to answer their good Intentions, or the Publick Security, I thought it my Duty to offer my thoughts to avoid a charge of remissness in a matter of so much moment.

My Lord I would willingly avoid any reflection on the people here especially those amongst them whose errors may be imputed to ignorance of the consequence & importance of a subject laid before them, But when your Lordship considers the Character, Disposition & Practice of those who grant money for public service in America, it will not appear new or extraordinary to suppose that they will not see the necessity of being at any expence adequate to the importance of the subject, I could have recourse to undoubted authorities to prove their extreme parsimony and backwardness on the most alarming occasions, when their all was at stake, but I persuade myself that enough of this is known to justify my apprehensions concerning their conduct in matters which appear of less consequence, on the subject of which, they are in general totally ignorant, and will of course judge the necessary (or perhaps any) expence as needless, it is my duty to represent this, as it may in its consequences affect the Crown.—I gave Sir Harry Moore a sketch of my regulations for the Trade, & the last Instructions to my Officers on that head, who laid it before his Assembly, And they have as I am since informed done nothing therein farther than to recommend the consideration thereof to the Albany Representatives. I likewise conversed on the subject with the Governours of New Jersey & Pensilvania. And from all that I can hear, there is little prospect that the Assembly will do what may have been expected from them on this subject. Thus my Lord, it stands at present. Whatever resolutions they may take I shall do all in my power to second & promote them, but I found that the Dutys expected from the Colonies are so complicated with many others, & the execution of them, so uncertain, that I fully persuade myself your Lordship will pardon me for the liberty I have taken in declaring my thoughts as to the Event.—If the Duty of Commissaries could be dispensed with until the Provinces make some provision for Officers of that kind, The smiths & interpreters appear always wanting, & the interests of the Crown require that the latter in particular should be under the direction of its own Officers.—Any apology for the liberty I have taken in these matters will be needless, as I rely entirely on your Lordship's Indulgence to the motives of duty & fidelity which have produced them.

As to the Boundary & Purchase from the Indians, as I lost no time in calling together the several Nations necessary after the receipt of my orders It was not in my power to act otherwise than I did, as from all the Intelligence I could procure, It was deemed the intention of the Crown to purchase the soil in all the Royal Govern<sup>ts</sup>, had it been otherwise I believe it would have appeared, that the adjustment of the Quotas of the respective Colonies with their local views & interests, if they became the purchasers, would have greatly retarded the proceeding, & possibly have rendered the Congress abortive, which must have greatly incensed the Indians who were assembled from a great distance for that purpose, The Indians did for the most part desire that a Line should be settled, to which the prospect of a large present was no inconsiderable motive, but as I observed in a former letter the length of time from its being first proposed 'till the final orders for it's settlement, created so many doubts amongst them, and gave such opportunity to evil minded persons to misrepresent it, that the Indians were very far from being so unanimous as at first, and the Variety of difficulties arose, on which occasion I did the best I could for the Interests of the Crown, and I persuade myself that on due consideration of these difficulties, & of the value & great extent of the Cession beyond what had been ever claimed by us in right of purchase, it will appear to be a very reasonable consideration, and in order that the Crown might be reimbursed give me leave to suggest to your Lordship, that an Instruction to the Governours of the Royal Colonies, directing that all future grants within such Cession be liable to a fine, suppose ten pounds sterling for each thousand acres over & besides Fees & Quit rent (which sum is about the usual rate of the Indian purchases, & will on every Million of acres produce ten thousand pounds sterling) That in such case, the Crown will very soon be reimbursed without reckoning the income annually accruing from the Grants.—This is humbly offered in case His Majesty should not demand a reimbursement from each province of its particular quota. And the private grantees can have no reason to complain, as the terms I have suggested are full as moderate as Indian purchases have been for some years past.

I am glad that His Majesty is pleased to approve the continuing the Boundary Line so as to include the Province of New York, as I could not receive His Majesty's Commands in sufficient time, & as I found that the Indians more immediately affected by it, were for continuing it in a manner I looked upon to be very disadvantageous, I thought it best to stop at the mouth of Canada Creek till I received the King's commands, which possibly may now be carried into execution, On which occasion I shall consult Sir Henry Moore.

Since the receipt of the plan prepared by the Lords of Trade, I did conceive from some letters I had the honour to receive, that either that plan, or something similar thereto would have been adopted, which I communicated to the Indians as Information w<sup>h</sup> must prove highly satisfactory to them, as they consider the interposition & management of their affairs by the immediate servants of the Crown as best calculated for their happiness & interests, from the very high opinion they entertain of His Majesty, which I thought my duty always to promote. It was therefore natural for them to found their Expectations on such a plan as seemed best for their interests, this is all that was meant by the observation in my former letter, In order to shew as I thought it my duty to do, that y<sup>e</sup> hopes & desires of the Indians were founded on an establishment under the immediate direction of His Majesty's servants, Not as any remark of mine on a reform which is the best calculated for relieving the kingdom of a heavy burthen.

As the present plan seems calculated for the purposes & from the circumstances mentioned in your Lordship's letter it is my duty and inclination, and it shall be my particular study to recommend it in the most favourable light to the Indians & to promote the execution of it to the utmost of my power.

The reasonableness & necessity of the small additional expence I have proposed will I presume appear evident for the enabling me to execute the several duties which fall under my superintendency, which I shall discharge to the utmost extent of my power & the fund allowed, as becomes a good subject, and your Lordship's

most obedient

& most faithfull humble Servant

The Right Honourable the Earl of Hillsborough,

W. JOHNSON

My Lord,

In my last which wroto a few days ago I had the honour to answer your Lordships letter (N<sup>o</sup> 6) and I have now that of November last (N<sup>o</sup> 7) with enclosures which I did not receive 'till a few Days since.

The Representations in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 3 to which your Lordships last is in answer, & which regarded the intrigues & practices of the French and Spaniards with its effects upon the Indians I have always thought a matter of the most serious consequence And have studied to detect, as well as to frustrate to the utmost of my power, and I shall endeavour as far as in me lyes to obtain such evidence of Facts and other information as may be necessary, but your Lordship is doubtless sensible that such an enquiry must be involved in many Difficulties, as the information of Indians may not be admitted as sufficient proof, & those who intrigue with them are at such a distance, & act with so much caution that few (if any) white men have had ocular demonstration of it, notwithstanding the variety of corresponding accounts and other circumstances leave little reason to doubt y<sup>e</sup> Fact. It may be that these proceedings are not by Authority of the French or Spanish Courts, it is likewise probable that they may be in some circumstances exaggerated, but the effect is unluckily the same, as the Indians beleive that they are all by authority of these Crowns, and the large presents they have from time to time made to them farther confirm them in the opinion that they don't come from private Adventurers.

There are a number of Renegado French & Canadians who reside about the Mississipi & the Western Lake &c<sup>t</sup>, many of whom dare not make their appearance in any of the Colonies. These men are ready to undertake any thing & find an advantage in every rupture, And as it is agreeable both to their interest & inclination to disturb the tranquility of the British Government, they would be guilty of so doing without any authority, how much more if connived at, or perhaps countenanced by France or Spain, which my Lord is far from being improbable, if either of these Courts have a war in view, in that case the Incursions of the Indians would prove of infinite use to them, as it would not only prove the ruin of our frontiers & trade and give a check to privateering from hence, but involve us in a heavy expence and draw part of our attention to the back country, even should we suppose that the Canadians would all remain faithfull to their allegiance or that the enemy could not land troops on any part of the Continent. —As to any assurances given by French or Spannish Governours in America, experience & their conduct previous to the two last wars make me verry doubtfull of them, as they gave the same assurances at those periods, whilst they acted the like part, and tho their disavowall of such seductive practices prevented the good effect of the intelligence given of them, yet, the event justified the information: Every war is of some advantage to those who would rival us in trade, & stops the sale of the British Manufactures, but in case of a rupture with the Crowns I have mentioned, as a revolt of the Indians would then be of the greatest importance to them it is their interest to render the Indians during a peace dissatisfied with our Government, & to continue to seduce them till they have occasion for their services, to counteract them in time is our business, but this cannot be done without some expence and employing several persons of integrity, influence and capacity in the Indian Country or at the out posts.

I humbly offer my most dutifull regards for the King's Speech and the Addresses which I had the honour to receive, The firmness of the former, & the unanimity expressed in the latter afforded me the highest satisfaction and gave me reason to hope that the unhappy disputes excited by some turbulent zealots in this country, will be speedily terminated in a manner consistent with the honour of Crown, and the true happiness of the people.— It gave me infinite pleasure to hear from your Lordship that Her Majesty was happily brought to bed of a Princess, I beg leave most sincerely to congratulate your Lordship upon an event which must add to His Majesty's Domestick happiness, & that of all His faithfull subjects.

I am with the most profound respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most

Obedient and most

The Right Honourable
the Earl of Hillsborough.

faithfull Humble Servant
W. JOHNSON.

Sir,

Your duplicates N<sup>o</sup> 31. & 32. were received on the 11th of February, and having been laid before the King, I have his Majesty's Commands to communicate that which relates to the very extraordinary proceedings and resolutions of the Assembly, to such of His Majesty's servants, upon whom his Majesty relies for their advice in matters of the greatest importance; and I expect that in a few days their sentiments in respect to these proceedings, will be reported to His Majesty—

As to the propositions for building a Town at Crown Point, which is the subject of your letter N<sup>o</sup> 31. it seems, in the general view of it, to be a measure which, if well executed, cannot fail of being productive of much public advantage; & if upon further examination of it by the Board of Trade, to whom His Majesty has directed it sh<sup>d</sup> be referred, it shall appear to them in the same light; I shall hope soon to be able to send you His Majesty's further orders thereupon,

To Sir Henry Moore Baronet Governor of New York.

Sir

Inclosed we send you a copy of a petition presented to His Majesty by Sir James Jay<sup>1</sup> and others, stating their claims to certain lands in New York under an Indian title, and praying to have that title confirmed.

As it will be necessary in order to enable us to report our opinion upon this petition, that we should have every information which the records of New York can afford, touching the several matters alleged therein, the situation & extent of the lands, the manner in which the property of them was originally acquired, whether they are or are not claimed by any other persons, & whether there have been any or what publick transactions relative thereto: we must desire you will take the necessary steps for obtaining this information and transmit to us a full report thereof by the first opportunity that offers;—We are, Sir

Whitehall. 24 March 1769

Sir,

Since my letter to you of the 1st inst: N<sup>o</sup> 25. I have received and laid before the King your dispatches, Numbered 33, 34, 35, & 36.

I have nothing in command from His Majesty to signify to you upon the subject of your letter N<sup>o</sup> 32, for it is unnecessary to inform you that the King saw with great concern, the violent and unwarrantable resolutions entered upon the Journal of the Assembly on the 31st December last. When I compare the sentiments of duty and respect for the Constitution and Govern<sup>t</sup> expressed in their address to you of the 23rd of Nov<sup>r</sup>, with the very contrary spirit of those Resolutions, I am at a loss to conjecture what could be the cause of so extraordinary an alteration in the course of six weeks, when no new event whatever had happened; for although the time, that passed from one to the other seems to favour such a suspicion, I can hardly allow my mind to conceive, that there is wickedness enough on this side of the water to write over misrepresentations of the State of Govern<sup>t</sup> here, and arguments of artifice and false policy to excite and induce the Assembly of New York to a departure from that moderation which they had manifestly adopted; nor on the other hand, that there would be weakness enough on your side to allow them to give attention to any such.

It is however worth the while to make enquiries, and to find out, if possible, whether any methods have been made use of and by whom from this side, to stir up such a spirit as shews itself in those resolutions, and if you can make any such discovery you will be pleased to communicate them to me, to the end that his Majestys Servants may be upon their Guard with respect to Men of so mischievous and treacherous a disposition.

Mr Charles having put into my hands the Petition to the King of the New Assembly of New York on the subject of the Revenue Laws, I lost no time in presenting it to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>; and altho' the King considers the Assembly sending a Petition to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> through any other Channel, than that of his Gov<sup>r</sup> as irregular and disrespectful, yet His Majesty was graciously pleased to receive it; and His Maj<sup>ty</sup> having well weighed and considered the purport thereof, has commanded me to signify to you that he does disapprove of it, as containing declarations and asserting claims inconsistent with the Constitution and tending to deny and draw into question the supreme authority of Parliament to bind the Colonies by Laws in all cases whatever.

Before I received your Letter N<sup>o</sup> 33. His Maj<sup>ty</sup> had upon the recommendation of the Board of Trade, appointed Mr White to be of the Council, it appearing that there were many precedents of Councils in several of the Colonies, consisting of 12 Members exclusive of the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup>; but as the continuing that number in New York is not Judged necessary, Mr White must be considered as coming in the place of Mr De Lancey, and consequently what you urge in favour of Mr Livingston, must remain for the consideration of the Board of Trade, when another vacancy happens.

His Maj<sup>ty</sup> considers in the most gracious manner, the attention shewn by the Assembly to what was recommended to them respecting an alteration in their impost-Law, and hopes, that when they find it necessary to receive<sup>1</sup> the Militia Law, it will be framed according to Instructions you have received upon that subject.

There can be no doubt but that if the Assembly think fit to erect three Counties in the district set off from the County of Albany, instead of one as was at first proposed, the issuing writs to all three to send Representatives would be a very proper step, considering it merely in the light of equal justice to them; but the making so considerable an addition to the number of the Assembly, is a measure, the general expediency of which ought to be well weighed, and the influence and effect of it well considered, before any resolution is taken, and therefore it is His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure that such addition should not be made until you shall have transmitted a further Report, and have received His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Commands in consequence thereof.

As the Lords of Trade have now under their consideration, as well the propriety of Sir Will<sup>m</sup> Johnson's proceedings touching the boundary line, as the arrangements it may be proper to make in case the cession of Lands by the Indians is confirmed, I must wait for their Report upon this business before I can give any answer to your letter N<sup>o</sup> 36. which entirely relates to that subject, and makes a part of the papers upon which their Lord<sup>sh</sup>ps are to report their opinion.

The inclosed Memorial of Mr Cummingh having been laid before the King, I am to signify to you His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands, that in case any Bill of the nature of that pointed out by Mr Cumming shall be proposed in the Assembly, you should give it all proper countenance and facility.

I am etc.

New York. 30 March 1769.

My Lord,

No one could have suffered more than I did from the disappointment I met with in regard to the conduct of the late Assembly, as I thought it impossible, that expectations formed upon such favourable appearances at the opening of the session, could be so suddenly destroyed by a faction inconsiderable in itself as to number, and by no means formidable, from the abilities of the persons concerned in it. It plainly appears by what has happened here, how much influence the House of Assembly in the different Provinces have on each other, and how readily a Rash and intemperate measure approved of in one will be adopted in the others.

I have already had the honor of mentioning to your Lord<sup>d</sup> in a former letter, that I should be under a necessity of calling the New Assembly soon, on account of some further provision to be made for His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s Troops in this Province; Tuesday next is the day fixed for their meeting, at which time I shall likewise recommend to them the appointment of an Agent by an Act of Legislature, as directed by a late letter of your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s

By the first opportunity which will offer from this Port, I shall forward to your Lord<sup>d</sup> the addresses from the Council and Assembly, which I hope will be such as may do them honor.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect

My Lord.

and humble servant

New York 13. April 1769.

My Lord,

I have taken the first opportunity which has offered since the meeting of the Assembly, of transmitting to Your Lord<sup>d</sup> my speech at the opening of the Session together with the Addresses I received on the occasion. Your Lord<sup>d</sup> will see by the address of the Assembly, how tenacious the Members of that house are of the power which has been assumed by them, through the supineness of the Council, and I have endeavoured by every means in my power to break through it. In this case I have been obliged to proceed with caution, as some turbulent spirits have already began to take such steps, as must necessarily bring on another dissolution if pursued; they have hitherto proved ineffectual, and no pains shall be spared by me to render them totally so, and to prevent if possible the imprudent warmth of a few, Individuals, from prejudicing the whole Colony.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect My Lord

and humble servant.

Representation of the Board of Trade to the King upon Sir William Johnson's Treaty with the Indians

To the KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

May it please your Majesty,

We have, in obedience to your Majesty's Commands, taken into our Consideration the reports made by your Majesty's Superintendants for Indian Affairs of their Proceedings, in consequence of your Majesty's orders signified to them for finally fixing a Boundary line between those Lands comprised within the Limits of your Majesty's Colonies, upon which your Majesty has thought fit to allow Settlement to be made by your Subjects, and the lands claimed by the said Indians, as their absolute property, and which they insist should be reserved to them for their Hunting Grounds; And as we humbly conceive, that the Proceedings of your Majesty's Superintendants in this Business do, each, relate to Bodies of Indians, having separate and distinct interests, and that such Proceedings have, as far as they have hitherto gone, been carried on without any inter-Communication or Concurrence, We humbly crave leave to consider the Transactions of each Superintendant separately, and to represent to your Majesty, what has occurred to us thereupon.

It appears from a Deed executed at Fort Stanwix on the 5th of November 1768, in the presence of Sir William Johnson, by the Governor and Chief Justice of New Jersey, the Commissioners for Virginia, and two of the Council of Pennsylvania, on the one part, and by the Sachems and Chiefs of the Six confederate Nations and of the Shawanese, Delawares, Mingoes of Ohio, and other dependant Tribes on the other part; That the said Indians in consideration of Goods and Money given to them to the Amount of Ten Thousand four hundred and sixty Pounds, seven shillings and three pence, and also in consideration that your Majesty will comply with certain Conditions expressed in their Speeches made at the Conference with Sir William Johnson, have ceded to your Majesty all the lands on the back of the British Settlements bounded by a "line, beginning at the mouth of the Cherokee or Hogohege River where it empties into the Ohio River, and running from thence upwards "along the South side of said River to Kittanning, which is above Fort Pitt; from thence by "a direct line to the nearest Fork of the West Branch of Susquehannah; thence through the "Alleghanny Mountains along the South side of the said West Branch, until it comes opposite "to the Mouth of a Creek called Tiadaghton; thence across the West Branch and along the "South side of that Creek and along the North side of Burnet's Hills to a Creek, called "Awandæ; thence down the same to the East Branch of Susquehannah, and across the "same, and up the East side of that River to Owegy; from thence East to Delaware River, "and up that River to opposite where Tianaderha falls into Susquehannah; thence to "Tianaderha, and up the West side thereof, and the West side of it's West Branch, to the "Head thereof; and thence by a direct line to Canada Creek, where it empties into the Wood "Creek at the West end of the carrying place beyond Fort Stanwix."

With regard to those conditions upon which this Cession is made, and for which the Deed refers to the Speeches of the Indians at the Conferences held with them by Sir William Johnson, We find upon examination of those speeches, that they relate chiefly to the following objects, that is to say.

1. A Declaration of the Right of the Six Nations and their Confederates, in contradistinction to the claims of any other Indians to the Country South of the Ohio, as far as the Mouth of the Cherokee River.

2. An Expectation on their part, that their affairs both Commercial and Political shall be, as heretofore managed by an Officer for that purpose, with Deputies in the several Nations, and Smiths to mend their Arms & Implements. That the Mohawk Villages and all the Lands they occupy unpatented within the Line, as also the Residence of any others of their Confederacy affected by this Cession, shall be considered as their sole property, and at their own disposal; and that certain Grants, made by the said Indians to M<sup>r</sup> Croghan, a Deputy under Sir William Johnson, and to certain Indian Traders, in Compensation for Losses sustained by them in 1763, shall be confirmed by your Majesty.

As the Indians, whose affairs (so far as they relate to their political connections with this Country) are under the immediate inspection of Sir William Johnson, have one Union of Interest, at least in respect to the Boundary Line proposed, and form one united Confederacy, it was reasonable to have supposed, that the negotiations with them upon a Proposition clear and distinct in itself, and by the precision and accuracy of your Majesty's Instructions freed from every perplexity, that even a Disposition to embarrass it could produce, might have been carried on and concluded without much difficulty. It appears however from what is above stated, that this has not been the case, but on the contrary, that doubts with respect to the Acquiescence of the Cherokees in the claims of the Six Nations & their Confederates to all the lands south of the Ohio River, (which doubts were stated in the advice to your Majesty with no other view than as a circumstance, concurring with others, to induce the fixing the Boundary Line at the Kanhawa River,) have been improperly and unnecessarily imparted to the Indians; and the impressions, made upon them by those doubts, not only left unanswer'd and unremoved, but made a ground for the final Settlement of a Line materially different from that directed by your Majesty's Instructions, and not corresponding with what had been agreed upon with the Cherokees by M<sup>r</sup> Stuart<sup>1</sup> for forming one intire and uniform line of Separation.

That the Indians have been suffered to entertain expectations, and thereupon to ground conditions acquiesced in by your Majesty's Superintendent which appear to us to have relation only to the Plan proposed in 1764, which plan has been since laid aside, and do not correspond <sup>1</sup> Captain JOHN STUART was, according to Sabine, a native of South Carolina. In 1758, he and Captain Demeré, of one of the Independent companies of South Carolina, commanded the garrison of Fort Loudon, in the State of Tennessee, (supra, note p. 42), which surrendered, in 1760, to the Cherokees, on terms obtained by Captain Stuart; these, however, were grossly violated a few days after, when he was taken prisoner and carried back to the fort. Having been purchased by King Attakallulla, he succeeded by the aid of that generous chief in eventually effecting his escape. The South Carolina Assembly not only thanked him for his conduct and great perseverance at Fort Loudon, but rewarded him with £1500 currency, and recommended him to the government for preferment. In 1763 he was appointed Superintendent of Indian affairs for the Southern department. After his commission arrived, the Carolinians rejoiced and promised themselves for the future great tranquillity and happiness. Early in the revolutionary contest Mr. Stuart retired to Florida, where he concerted, with others, a plan to land an army and to proceed with it to the western frontiers of the Southern States, and there annoy the Americans, whilst a Royal fleet and army should invade them on the sea coast. with that, which your Majesty has now adopted, and which has been so fully explained in your Majesty's Instructions.

That stipulations have been made, by which particular bodies and tribes of Indians have been excepted out of the General Conditions of the Treaty; and lastly,

That the claims and interests of private persons, not stated to, or approved by your Majesty, have been allowed to mix themselves in this Negotiation, and to be introduced, not as propositions submitted to your Majesty's Determination, but as Rights derived from the Indians, your Majesty's acquiescence in which is demanded by them, as a condition of the Treaty.

It is, We humbly presume, unnecessary for us to recite all the passages in the minutes of the Proceedings with the Indians at Fort Stanwix, that verify the foregoing observations; the Facts will be found in the Talks of the Chief Speakers on the part of the Indians, made at their Conferences with Sir William Johnson on the 25th and 31st of October, and 1st 2<sup>d</sup> and 5th of November.

As it was the original object & intention of this Board in forming the Proposition of a Boundary Line between your Majesty's Colonies and the Indians, that there should be one general Line of Separation united in all it's parts, it becomes necessary for us, before we consider the step it may be advisable for your Majesty to take, in consequence of the Cession by the Northern Confederacy under the circumstances above mentioned, to take a view of the proceedings of the Superintendent for the Southern District, and humbly to state to Your Majesty, what has passed between him and the Southern Indians on the subject of the Boundary Line between the lands of the said Indians and the Colonies of West Florida, East Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia, with respect to most of which the Settlement of a Boundary Line had, antecedent to the Date of your Majesty's Instructions, been not only an object of Negotiation, but brought to a final conclusion; and therefore did not, as in the Northern District, stand upon the ground of a Proposition undefined and left to future discussion.

Under this circumstance therefore all that remained for M<sup>r</sup> Stuart in consequence of your Majesty's Orders, was, to ratify by proper Treaties and Acts of Cession what had been before agreed upon, with such trivial alterations only, as, when the Lines came to be marked and run out, should appear to be necessary, from the natural state of the country & from local situation and circumstances; accordingly We find, that M<sup>r</sup> Stuart lost no time in carrying your Majesty's orders into execution; and it appears by Treaties, which he concluded with the Cherokees and Creeks on the 14th of October and 12th of Novem<sup>r</sup> last, that the Boundary Line between the Country of the said Indians and your Majesty's said Colonies of West Florida, East Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, & Virginia, was settled in manner following, that is to say, that the lands in the Colony of Georgia ceded to your Majesty by the Creeks shall be separated and distinguished from the Lands reserved to the said Indians for their own use, as Hunting Grounds, by a "Line beginning where little River discharges itself into Savannah "River, and up the main Stream of little River to the Forks made by the Confluence of "Williams Creek with the said River, then up Williams Creek about seven miles to a place "called William's old settlement, thence by an Indian hunting Path in an East Course thirteen "miles distance, to the Southermost Branch of Upton's Creek, and up said Branch to the top "of it, and thence in a straight line in an East course fourteen miles distance, to the middle "Branch of Briar Creek, and down the Main stream of Briar Creek, eighteen miles three "quarters distance, to the place where it is intersected by the Road or Trading Path leading “ from Augusta to the lower Creek nation, and thence along said Road or path in a South West “ course twenty seven miles distance to Ogeechie River, where the said Road intersects it, and “ thence along the main stream of Ogeechie River eighty miles distance to the place where it “ is crossed by a Road or Path leading from Mount Pleasant or Savannah River to the lower “ Creek Nation, and from Ogeechie River a little below said Path in a south by east half east

 “ course, sixty one miles distance to Conootchie or Cowanootchie River, and from that River “ running in a straight direction to that part of Alatomaha River opposite to the lowermost “ bend or elbow of Phinholoway or Turkey Creek, and thence in a straight direction to St.
 “ Mary’s River, which separates the Province of Georgia from East Florida.”

That the Lands in the Colony of East Florida ceded to your Majesty by the said Creek Indians shall be distinguished and separated from the Lands reserved to them for their own use, as hunting Grounds, by a “ Line beginning at that point of St. Mary’s River, which shall be intersected by a straight line drawn from Colvill’s Plantation in the Forks of black Creek which falls into St. John’s River to the Mouth of Phinholoway Creek, which discharges itself into the Alatomaha, and thence in a straight direction to Colvill’s Plantation in the Forks of black Creek aforesaid and from Colvill’s Plantation in a straight direction to the entrance of the River Acklawagh into St. John’s River above the great Lake, and near to M<sup>r</sup> Spalding’s upper trading-House, and from thence up the Western Bank of St. John’s River to it’s source, & thence all along the Coast of East Florida to the River Apalachicola, across the different Rivers, Creeks, and Bays as high as the flowing of the Tide.”

That the lands in the Colony of West Florida ceded to your Majesty by the lower Creek Indians, shall be distinguished and separated from the Lands reserved to them for their use, as their Hunting Grounds by a “ Line to begin at the River Apalachicola, where the Line “ behind East Florida terminates, across all the Rivers, Creeks and Bays, as high as the flowing
 “ of the Tide, to the River Chactaw, which discharges itself into Sth Rosa Bay, and where the “ territory of the said lower Creek Indians terminates and ends.”

That the lands in the Colonies of North Carolina, South Carolina & Virginia, ceded to your Majesty by the Cherokees, shall be separated from the lands reserved to them for their own use, as their hunting grounds, by a “ Line beginning at a place called Towatuhie on the “ Northern Bank of Savannah River, and running a North fifty degrees East course to a place “ called Dewisses Corner, or the Yellow Water, and thence in the same course to Wanghoe or “ Elm Tree, on the South side of Reedy River, & from the said Wanghoe or Elm Tree in a “ north course to a Spanish Oak marked with the initial letters of the names of the North “ Carolina Commissioners, and several other Trees with the names and marks of Inds Friend, “ Salüy, Ecüy, and other Deputies of the Cherokee Nation, standing on the Top of a Mountain, “ now called Tryon Mountain, where the Ridge of Mountains becomes impervious, and from “ the top of Tryon Mountain at the marked Trees, as aforesaid in a straight Line about a North
 “ by East Course to Colonel Chiswell’s Mine on the eastern bank of the Great Kanhawa River,
 “ and from thence in a straight Line to the Mouth of the Great Kanhawa River, where it “ discharges itself into this River.”

These several Lines, tho’ described separately and agreed upon at different times and with different Indians, are nevertheless so connected in their courses and description, as to form one united Boundary between your Majesty’s Southern Colonies, and the Indians, corresponding with the line, as described in your Majesty’s Instructions; and your Majesty’s Superintendent attending only to what is the main object of those Instructions, has in the negociation with the Indians upon that object, discreetly avoided mixing any other matter, or suffering it to be clogged with any other conditions than a Confirmation of those engagements in the Treaty concluded at Augusta in 1763, by which each party binds itself to reciprocal Acts of Justice and friendly correspondence; Had the like attention to the real object of Negotiation been shewn by your Majesty's Superintendant for the Northern District and the same discretion used by him in treating upon it with the Northern Indians, this difficult and embarrassing business would have been, we humbly conceive, brought to a happy Issue, the Jealousies and suspicions of the Indians, which have produced constant enmity and hostility, would have been removed; their Affections regained; and the Interests of both established upon a lasting basis of mutual security and advantage; but unhappily this has not been the case; on the contrary, a new object of jealousy has been suffered to present itself, and to operate to such a deviation in the Boundary Line proposed; as has given birth to fresh difficulties and new claims on the part of the Colony of Virginia, requiring in the opinion of Your Majesty's Governor and the Council of that Colony an alteration in that part of the Line proposed to be settled with the Cherokees which pursues a north course from Chiswell's mine to the mouth of the Kanhawa River.

The ground stated by your Majesty's Governor & Council for this opinion is, that many settlements have been made under legal Titles & publick encouragement upon those Waters which united from the main stream of the Kanhawa & Cherokee Rivers & which settlements as they lye considerably to the Westward of the line now proposed to be run, would in case that line is established be cut off from the Colony and the Inhabitants, who have settled themselves there under the faith of Government be exposed to the disagreeable alternatives of either abandoning their possessions or remaining at the mercy of the savages.

Whether it may or may not be adviseable under these circumstances to consent to an alteration of the line with the Cherokees as it affects Virginia must be submitted to your Majesty;—If your Majesty shall think fit upon consideration of what is suggested on this subject as well by the Governor & Council of Virginia as by your Majesty's Superintendant for the Southern District in his letter of the 12th of February last to allow of an alteration. We would humbly recommend that your Majesty's said Superintendant should be instructed to enter as soon as possible upon a negociation with the Cherokees for such an alteration of the Boundary Line with Virginia, as is proposed by him in his said letter; that is to say "that such new Line may begin at the point where the North Carolina Line terminates, and run thence a West Course to Holsteins River, where it is intersected by the Line, dividing the Provinces of North Carolina and Virginia, and thence in a North East by North Course to the Confluence of the Kanhawa & Ohio Rivers;" which line, he is of opinion will cover all the Settlements actually made, and may be proposed without exciting the jealousy of the Indians.

It is however our duty to observe to your Majesty, that Mr Stuart has stated, that such a proposal cannot be made to the Cherokees upon the Ground of any title to those Lands derived from the Cession of the Northern Indians, but must be done by way of purchase, the amount of which he estimates at Two thousand Pounds Sterling, and adds, that the allowance for the ordinary expense of his Establishment will not bear any part of the expence of such new negotiation, nor indeed ought it, in our humble opinion, to be any ways chargeable upon this Fund, but ought to be born by the Colony of Virginia, and provision made for it by that Colony before any steps are taken with regard to the alteration proposed; which we are further humbly of opinion should not be made, or the Line, as now settled with the Cherokees, altered, unless the Colony of Virginia consents to pay the expence.

As we have already in the former part of this Representation pointed out to your Majesty the indiscretion of Sir William Johnson's having admitted the claim of Mr Croghan,<sup>1</sup> and the Indian Traders, to be introduced into the negotiation with the six Nations, touching the Boundary Line, it only remains for us, under that head, to point out to your Majesty such further Circumstances relative to this Transaction, as may lead to a consideration of the steps it may be advisable to take thereupon, consistent with your Majesty's just Rights and Authority, which appear to us not to have been duly attended to in this Transaction: for we beg leave to observe, that neither the foundation nor extent of the claims of these persons have at any time been represented to Your Majesty; nor are we enabled either by a communication of the Deeds themselves executed by the Indians, or by any other information, to state to your Majesty the situation or quantity of the land in question.

It is indeed mentioned in that part of the negotiation, where these claims are first introduced, that they are founded, so far as relates to the Indian Traders, upon an Article in a Treaty made with the Indians in 1765; but upon our having recourse to that Treaty, we find, that your Majesty's approbation of any grant of lands to them, in compensation for losses, is made an express condition of the Engagement; upon what ground therefore it was, that the Confirmation of a Grant of Lands, the propriety of which was by a former Treaty left to your Majesty's discretion, was now suffered to be made an absolute condition of the present cession to your Majesty, we are at a loss to guess; but as we conceive your Majesty will not think fit to accede to a stipulation of this nature admitted by your Majesty's Superintendant without any authority for that purpose; We humbly conceive, that this transaction does so far as it relates to the Indians, stand upon no other ground than that of a proposition, that, in our humble opinion, ought to be rejected.

With regard to what is expressed by the Indians in their speeches of their expectation, that their Interests, both commercial and political, should be under the management of the same officers and upon the same establishment, as heretofore; it does appear; that Sir William Johnson, in answer to those speeches, acquainted them, that what regarded the management of the Indian Trade was committed to the care of the Colonies, and referred them to the assurances given by the Commissioners from the several Colonies, that they should be well treated in that respect; but we must observe at the same time, that what was urged by the Indians upon this subject is nevertheless referred to in the Deed itself not as a subject of discussion, in Sir William Johnson's Explanation of which they had acquiesced, but as a condition of the Cession, which we humbly submit ought not to be confirmed, at least otherwise than as a proposition made by the Indians, and acquiesced in by your Majesty, that your Majesty's Authority shall be exerted to induce the Colonies to make, by law, such regulation in respect to the Trade with the Indians, as shall operate to prevent those Frauds and Abuses, to which it is in it's nature but too much exposed.

As we are not informed, under what authority Sir William Johnson has incurred the expence of carrying this measure into execution; and as no account or estimate of the particulars of it has been laid before us, We cannot take upon us to offer any opinion upon that part of the Transaction.

All which is most humbly submitted

Circular.

Whitehall, May 13th 1769.

Inclosed I send you the gracious Speech made by the King to His Parliament, at the close of the Session on Tuesday last.

What His Majesty is pleased to say, in relation to the measures which have been pursued in North America, will not escape your notice, as the satisfaction His Majesty expresses in the Approbation His Parliament has given to them, and the assurances of their firm support in the prosecution of them, together with His Royal opinion of the great Advantages that will probably accrue from the concurrence of every branch of the Legislature in the Resolution of maintaining a due execution of the Laws, cannot fail to produce the most salutary effects.

From hence it will be understood that the whole Legislature concur in the opinion adopted by His Majesty's Servants, that no Measure ought to be taken which can any way derogate from the Legislative Authority of Great Britain over the Colonies; but I can take upon me to assure you, notwithstanding Insinuations to the contrary from men with factious and seditious views, that His Majesty's present Administration have [at] no time entertained a Design to propose to Parliament to lay any further Taxes upon America for the purpose of raising a Revenue, and that it is at present their Intention to propose in the next Session of Parliament to take off the Duties upon Glass, Paper & Colours, upon consideration of such Duties having been laid contrary to the true principles of Commerce.

These have always been and still are the Sentiments of His Majesty's present Servants, and [the Principles]<sup>1</sup> by which their conduct in respect to America has been governed, and his Majesty relies upon your prudence and fidelity for such an explanation of His Measures, as may tend to remove the prejudices which have been excited by the misrepresentations of those who are enemies to the peace and prosperity of Great Britain and Her Colonies, and to re-establish that mutual confidence and affection, upon which the Glory and Safety of the British Empire depend.

Sir,

On the 17th of April I received and laid before the King your letters N<sup>o</sup> 37 and 38, on which I have only to observe, that, as your former letter N<sup>o</sup> 36. in which you desire Instructions upon what conditions the Lands, ceded by the Indians at the late Treaty, are to be granted, now lies before His Maj<sup>ty</sup> for His Royal consideration, I trust, no countenance or attention either has been or will be given to any application for those lands, either upon the ground of private agreements with the Indians, contrary to the directions of the Proclamation of 1763. and not warranted by any orders from His Majesty or upon pretence of orders from His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in Council, which were issued before those lands were ceded, and can in no light be considered as giving the possessors of them a right to locate their Grants upon lands, since acquired to the Crown at a very large expence.

N<sup>o</sup> 10.

Whitehall 13 May 1769

Sir,

Since my letters to you of the 4th of January and 24th March last N<sup>o</sup> 8. and 9. the Lords of Trade have made their Report to His Majesty upon the proceedings of the Superintendants for Indian Affairs in settling a final Boundary Line between His Majesty's Colonies, & the Indian Country.

This report has been referred by the King's Command to the consideration of such of His Servants, upon whose advice His Majesty relies in matters of the greatest Importance; & I am thereupon to signify to you, that if you have not been able, in consequence of my letter of the 4th of January last N<sup>o</sup> 8, to induce the Six Nations and their Allies, to except out of the Cession to His Majesty the lands lying South of the Ohio, below the Kanawa upon the Ground and Argument suggested in that Letter, or if you shall be of opinion that insisting upon such an alteration will have the effect to excite Jealousy and discontent; in that case His Majesty, rather than risk the defeating the important object of establishing a final Boundary Line, will, upon your report of this matter, give the necessary directions for the confirmation of it as agreed upon at Fort Stanwix. It is not however His Majesty's Intention that the Settlements of His Subjects should be carried beyond the Boundary of Virginia, as proposed to be fixed near the Kanawa River.

As to the Grant of Land made to the Indian Traders, and to M<sup>r</sup> Croghan it is His Majesty's pleasure that you should acquaint the Indians that His Majesty does not think fit at present to confirm those Grants, reserving that matter for further consideration, when those persons shall make application to His Majesty thereupon, and when the nature, extent and situation of the grants themselves, and the foundation on which they have been solicited, shall be further explained.

With regard to what appears in the proceedings at the Congress, of the wishes of the Indians to have their commercial as well as their political concerns managed in the manner suggested in the Plan of 1764, I have already so fully explained to you the reason and necessity for departing from that plan that I have only in command from the King to desire that you will not fail in your endeavors to represent this matter in such a light to the Indians, as to convince them that His Majesty adopted the Plan at present commenced for regulating the Trade by Laws of the Colonies, not merely upon what was suggested by those Colonies, but upon full consideration of what was represented to be most desirable for the Interests of the Indians themselves, in respect to their Commerce with His Majesty's Subjects, the improvement and extension of which for the benefit of the Indians will ever be an object of the King's attention and regard.

I have only to add that I have received and laid before the King your letters N<sup>o</sup> 7 and 8. but have not any commands from His Majesty to signify to you thereupon.

Sir William Johnson.

Governor Moore to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 26. May 1769.

My Lord,

On Saturday last the Assembly of this Province was prorogued after my assent had been given to twenty Bills, in which number there are four, which require something to be said of them, especially as I apprehend that some of them are liable to material objections. Upon the first view of the Bill entitled: "An Act for regulating the sale of goods at public vendue," it appeared to me that the Manufactures of Great Britain might be affected by the duty which is laid on goods sold there, but His Majesty's Council were of a different opinion and declared that the purpose of the Bill was only to put a stop to the pernicious practice, which had prevailed here for some time past of putting up every thing to Auction, as well, dry goods, as Rum, sugars, wines, etc, by which the number of Vendue Masters was greatly increased to the prejudice of the shopkeeper, and that the Bill would have this alternative either to remove those public nuisances and the chicaneries practised there, or that it would, if the auctions were not suppressed by it, raise a considerable sum of money annually, for the use of the Govern<sup>t</sup>. The reasons were pressed so much upon me by the Council, that I have followed their sentiments more, than my own, on the occasion.

I have already in my letters to the Earl of Shelbourn mentioned my objections to an Act of this Country usually called: "the five pound Act" but as soon as I was informed by your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that His Majesty expected that a Reform in the Magistracy might obtain the Remedy proposed for the inconveniencies mentioned in my letter without the Repeal of the Establishment itself, I have endeavoured by every means in my power to correct the various abuses which had crept into that Office, and in the late Assembly refused my assent to a Bill which was brought in for continuing that Act for five years, 'till some alteration could be made in it, declaring at the same time in presence of the Council, and of the House of Assembly, that I would readily pass it as soon as it was amended. A very ungenerous as well as unjust construction was put on what I then said, and to serve a particular purpose I was represented in some parts of the Province as an Enemy to the Bill, which I only endeavoured to render really beneficial to the Country. This Bill was brought in again in the last Session, and corrected in some places, but the power of the Justices is greatly enlarged in it, as they are now enabled to take cognizance of sums to the amount of ten pounds. I am persuaded that the whole Province, will severely feel the effects of this Bill, as the decision of so much property must necessarily be entrusted to many, whose abilities are by no means adequate to such a task, but such is the prepossession in favour of it, that I could not have rejected it without giving the greatest uneasiness, especially after the Reports which had been propagated concerning it on the late dissolution of the Assembly. This increase of authority given to Justices of the peace, very naturally suggested to our Law Makers an enlargement of the power of the inferior Courts, and gave rise to another Bill for preventing suits being brought in the Supreme Court for any sums not exceeding fifty pounds; as this Bill was carried through the Council and Assembly notwithstanding the many objections to which it is liable, both, on account of the largeness of the sum, and the difficulties it must put the suitors under, I did not choose it should stop with me, as any arguments against it would have been far from carrying with them the least conviction among those who wish to see but one side of the question. I shall trespass no farther on your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s patience, than to mention one Act more, entitled "An Act to explain and amend an Act, entitled an Act, for regulating Elections of representatives in general Assembly passed the 5th of May 1699"—Altho' the title of this Act sets forth, that it was intended to explain and amend an Act passed so long ago as the year 1699. I believe it will appear to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> and to every unprejudiced person, that the Law in question, did not require any real explanation, or that any doubts could possibly arise concerning the meaning of it, as it is expressly declared therein, that all persons chosen representatives in the General Assembly, as well as the Electors themselves, shall be resident in the Cities, Counties and Manors, where such Election is made. The present Law declares that the Representatives must be Resident, but that the Electors are not obliged to be so, and gives an explanation of the Act, repugnant both, to reason and Justice, as those persons whose usual residence is in this City, and are in general best qualified for representatives in the House of Assembly, are precluded from being chosen in any Country<sup>l</sup> or Borough, notwithstanding they may have a considerable Estate there. These were not the only objections I made to the Bill, when I laid it before His Majesty's Council, for it appeared to me, that the explanation and amendment proposed, amounted to a Repeal of Part of the original Bill, but I could not make it appear to them in that light, and a very great majority of the Council joining in the support of it, I did in consequence of their advice and contrary to my own opinion give my assent to it. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will perhaps ask, what inducement I could have for acting in this manner? To this I would beg leave to make the following answer. The dissolution of the late Assembly had occasioned great contests in the subsequent Elections, and on the meeting of the house of Assembly, it was but too apparent, how much influence private pique had on their proceedings. Their Journals give the strongest testimony of what I here advance, and the Session was protracted to an unusual length for the season of the year, by disputes which could only affect individuals. In this situation the Gov<sup>r</sup> of a Province often finds himself under a necessity of acting contrary to his inclination, and of giving in to measures, which although they do not at first sight appear to be proper, may be conducive to the forwarding His Majesty's service by making that Ferment subside, which for the present obstructed public business; two Bills were pressed upon me, one for emitting the sum of £120000 in Bills of Credit, the other for regulating elections, which is the subject of this part of my letter; His Majesty's Instructions positively forbid me to pass one, except it is conformable to certain restrictions there laid down, and common sense militates very strongly agst the other, as it, must appear upon the face of the Bill, that it is calculated only to serve particular purposes, and is contradictory in itself; notwithstanding, His Majesty's pleasure might be made known here, before the Bill for emitting the paper currency could have any effect, as it was not to take place 'till November, yet as great preparations would be making in the mean time to carry it into execution, a disappointment might have been attended with disagreeable consequences. The present Bill can have no effect till the next session, before which time His Majesty's pleasure may be known in respect to it, as well as to the Bill passed in 1699, which gave rise to it. In this situation, consenting (though at the same time far from being convinced) to the applications made to me in favour of the Bill, I passed it, and choose rather to be guilty of an absurdity in passing such an Act, than of disobedience in regard to the money Bill, and rather have my own understanding impeached than my duty to His Majesty called in question.

I have the honour to be with the greatest respect

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient
and humble servant.

H: MOORE.

Governor Moore to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 29. May. 1769

My Lord,

Having in a letter addressed to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> by this opportunity, endeavoured to set forth the reasons which obliged me to give my assent to four Bills therein mentioned. I must now beg leave to add a few words, concerning the following Bills, which I was under a necessity of rejecting. The Bill, to revive, and continue the Act for regulating the Militia, not being passed for five years, and having no suspending clause as directed by His Majesty's late Instruction fell to the ground of course.

The Bill, "to confirm Estates claimed by, or under Aliens" I apprehended to be of such a Nature as to require His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> permission to be first obtained before I could pass it. There was a law passed in this Colony in the year 1715 to extend the benefit of Naturalization to all Protestants of Foreign Birth, then, and therefore inhabiting within the same; the intention of this Bill was to quiet the minds of several people who held Estates originally made by Aliens who through their ignorance of the Laws of the land had neglected to get Acts of Naturalization passed in their favour & although their possessions had passed by several descents to their children, and the Collateral branches of their families born within this Province, yet, as the title was originally deficient, it might occasion in futuro some difficulties to the possessors; The Bill which is very short is transmitted by this opportunity, that the whole of what was intended by it, may appear, and is much wished for and desired by a great number of the Inhabitants here. The Act for making a Gold and silver coin a legal tender although it fixes no other value on the different Coins, than that for which they pass current in the common course of business, yet it differs so much from the Act of Parliament passed in the 6th year of Queen Anne in regard to the value put on the different pieces of money there enumerated, that I could not possibly pass it. This Act was intended to relieve the Colony from the difficulty it is under by having no legal tender of any kind in the province; I have already in a former Letter, relative to the Emission of paper currency, had the honour of laying our distressed situation in that respect before your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, and come now to speak of the Bill which was brought into the house during the last Session for the Emission of Bills of Credit to the value of £120000. The Clamours raised in the Country on account of the wretched state to which numbers of families have been lately reduced, obliged the Members of the Assembly to bring in the Bill at this time, but as they were no strangers to the late Instruction I had received concerning paper currency, they endeavoured to obviate in some shape the objections to which it was liable, and thought it was now framed in such a manner as to engage me readily to give my assent to it. This Bill is similar to that, which I had the honour of transmitting to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, except in one or two articles, for this Act was not to take place till the Month of November, and the following method prescribed for sinking the Bills issued. The interest of five per cent to be paid on the whole capital for the first four years, and in the fifth year one tenth part of the Capital was to be sunk and to be continued in the same proportion every succeeding year, till the whole was compleated, which would take up the term of fourteen years from the passing of the Act. I have here enclosed an extract of the Bill, together with addresses of the Assembly, in favour of it, as likewise the reasons which were set forth by the Council, in their remarks on the Bill) to engage my assent to it, and submit it to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, whether it would not be for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service that a Bill so circumstanced should pass into a Law, as the money arising from it can not be disposed of, without the concurrence of the Gov<sup>r</sup> & Council, and as it would in effect establish a kind of Revenue for fourteen years. My predecessors in this Govern<sup>t</sup>, have not been more successful than myself, in their attempts to get a permanent Revenue settled by the Legislature, every approach therefore towards it, should be attended to by His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s representative here, and I thought it my duty to lay this matter before your Lord<sup>sh</sup> and at the same time to mention the difficulties I apprehend I shall be under shortly, from the inability of the Province to answer the requisitions I must make. The sum of £1300 was granted with great cheerfulness in the late Session, and the Members of the Assembly expect that about the latter end of the year, a farther sum will be demanded for the support of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Troops here, which I am persuaded they will as readily comply with, if they have but the means of doing it. We have no funds to furnish the supply which will be required, and a Tax on the Estates of the Inhabitants will be impracticable in this time of distress, when houses and lands are daily selling for the half, & sometimes for the third part of their value, and the miseries of the people increasing to such a degree, as to be past credibility. If His Majesty shall be pleased in consideration of the sufferings of his subjects here, to give leave that this Bill shall pass into a Law at the next meeting of the Assembly, and empower me to make a declaration to that effect on the opening of the Session, the Estates and properties of great numbers will be saved from Ruin, and such an impression made on the people in general as must be productive of the most favourable consequences to the Colony.

I have the honour to be with the greatest respect My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient
and humble servant

Governor Moore to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 3. June 1769.

My Lord.

It was with very great concern that I transmitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> the resolutions of the late House of Assembly, as I was fully persuaded, that so unexpected a proceeding could not fail of being displeasing to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>. The sentiments of duty and respect for the Constitution expressed in their address, are so contrary to those which are adopted by a licentious set of Men who call themselves the Sons of Liberty, and who have had very great influence on the Elections of Members for this City, that I must ascribe the sudden alteration which manifested itself by introducing those Resolutions, chiefly to the motive of courting popularity among those who had been instrumental in serving them in the late Elections. I have already in a former letter informed Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the steps I took to prevent the Resolutions being entered on their Journals, and cannot accuse myself of the least omission in that respect altho' my endeavours did not meet with the desired success.

There is very great reason to suppose that the frequent publications in our papers, of letters said to be wrote from England to persons on the Continent here, have contributed not a little, to the keeping up that improper heat which has so often shewed itself, and which can serve no other purpose, but that of widening the breach between the Mother Country and the Colonies. I have never been able to discover, whether these are real extracts of letters sent from Europe, or whether they are forged here, but the chief tendency of them is to encourage Union among the Provinces, and to distress Great Britain by not importing any English manufactures. As soon as one of these letters appears in any public paper, it is copied into the Gazettes of all the other Provinces, and propagated throughout the whole Continent. I have always treated these publications with the contempt I thought they deserved, & endeavoured to make it appear, that they could be published by none but Incendiaries, and persons who were Enemies, both, to Great Britain and her Colonies, but the minds of Men are so naturally prone to believe any tales however improbable, provided they coincide with their own sentiments and wishes, that the strongest arguments loose their effect upon those, who do not desire to be convinced. Whatever intelligence I can procure relative to these publications, shall be immediately transmitted to England, and I hope Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will have a more favourable opinion of me than to suppose, that through any weakness of mine, I was silent on this head, when my duty called upon me to prevent any attention being given by the people to these misrepresentations. I have never in my life been either ashamed or afraid of doing my duty, and under the numberless difficulties I have laboured for some years past, unsupported by those His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has appointed as my assistants in cases of difficulty, I have never scrupled to stand forth singly, where I thought the King's service required it, and was totally indifferent whether my opinion of any matters then in agitation before us, gave pleasure or pain to those who heard it, as I had no other object in view than the execution of the duties of that Commission, with which his Maj<sup>ty</sup> has been pleased to honor me.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect My Lord,

and humble servant.

Earl of Hillsborough to Governor Moore.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXL]

Whitehall 7. June 1769

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 40 and 41., the former of which contains your speech to the Council and Assembly at the opening of the Session on the 4th of April together with their addresses in answer thereto.

His Majesty observes with concern the disregard shewn by the Assembly to what you was directed to recommend to them in respect to the mode of appointing their agent, and their description of this officer in their address is too particular to escape His Majesty's notice; His Majesty trusts however that when the Assembly has fully consulted the precedents upon their own Journals in respect to the appointment of an Agent, particularly in the years 1709 and 1712, they will be the less tenacious of the present mode, which as you Justly observe can only have obtained by the neglect of the other branches of the Legislature.

His Majesty trusts that Your measures to prevent the ill effects of the steps which you say some turbulent spirits have already begun to take to create disturbance, will be attended with the desired success.

Your letter N<sup>o</sup> 41. relates to a matter which the King considers as of great importance, & His Majesty very much approves your concurring with, and assisting Gov<sup>r</sup> Wentworth in every measure that can be legally pursued, for preventing waste and destruction of the King's Woods on those Lands which lye on the West side of Connecticut River.

There is but too much reason to apprehend that the improper encouragement given to the settlement of those lands has been one principal cause of the evil you complain of, and therefore it is impossible that the Board of Trade, before, whom your representations in respect to those Lands now lye, will think fit to advise His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to consent to any further settlements in that part of the Country until some measures are pursued for reserving to the Crown such tracts, as shall be found upon examination to produce Trees fit for Masting the Royal Navy.—

Johnson Hall, June 26th 1769.

My Lord,

Since my last of the 25th February I have had the honor to receive your Lordship's letter of the 4th of January in consequence of which I shall endeavour to execute His Majesty's commands respecting the surrender of the additional Cession in the best manner possible so as to shew the Indians that the same is solely declined from y<sup>e</sup> regard His Majesty has for them, and His tenderness for their posterity, I make no doubt of its being readily accepted by them, and am only concerned least the Virginians especially the Frontier Inhabitants should take possession of, & begin settlements on those Lands, If this is done after the Indians are informed that His Majesty declines them, it will create verry strange suspicions amongst them, & doubtless produce ill consequences, I ought to observe this to Your Lordship because I have been well assured by Gentlemen from the Country that the Frontier People who have a great desire for these valuable lands would at all events make settlements there, and as it is most certain, that there are several recent instances of the weakness of civil authority & the little regard paid to it by these people together with the inclination of many persons of consequence to promote such settlements, & in that I saw a Deed in the hands of the Virginia Commissioners for great part of these lands which they assured me had formerly met with encouragement from His late Majesty & the then Ministry of which numbers were determined to avail themselves forthwith, it did not a little contribute to induce me to accept of the Cession of that Country to prevent the general ill consequence which must attend the Establishment of such settlements without the Indians consent, as judging it best to take that opportunity for enabling His Majesty to accept or reject it as he might think necessary.

At this distance as it is often impracticable to wait for particular Instructions in many occurring cases, so it is impossible to foresee every event, & of course Instructions cannot be expected in every Circumstance; His Majesty's Indulgence has therefore often left it in the power of His servants to do many things for the good of the service 'till His Royal pleasure is more fully signified in the premises.

I observed in a former letter that the minutes of private Conferences with the Cheifs where the principal matters are first resolved on, were by much too voluminous to be ever transmitted, it would there appear that the Indians insisted in such warm terms on the justice of their claims to y<sup>e</sup> Cherokee River that I was necessitated either to disoblidge them in a high degree, or to observe to them that the Southern Indians made some pretensions to the lands in question, besides this, & the designs of the Frontier People, with the Virginia claim before mentioned, I did humbly conceive it to be the desire of Government to get as extensive a Cession as was practicable, And altho' in the letters I had the honour to receive, mention was made of the Kanhawa River to prevent a dispute with the Cherokees &c<sup>a</sup> yet as I had always understood and had myself actually heard the Cherokees above twenty years ago acknowledge that the River of their name was the extent of their pretensions, as I found it was so understood by the Colony of Virginia, & as the Northern Indians would not be satisfied 'till this their claim was mentioned, I acted to the best of my judgement under all these circumstances in accepting of the Cession to be submitted to His Majesty for admitting the Cherokees do claim to the Northward, a circumstance which is quite new & which I have reason to beleive they would not avow before the Northern Indians, yet as the latter are more powerful, more zealous, more warlike and capable of doing us infinitely more mischief than the former, I then thought the complying with the claims of the Northern Confederacy a measure of the least dangerous tendency, and I flatter myself that His Majesty will for all these reasons honor me with His indulgence in beleiving that I acted as in my judgement appeared best for the service.

I have already observed that I shall forthwith executè the orders transmitted in your Lordships letter in the best manner I can, as I shall every other part of my Duty particularly endeavouring to discover the designs of all secret enemies who by their machinations threaten us with danger, among other instances of which I find from the examination of a man who is lately returned from the Mississippi and well acquainted with several of their proceedings, that Indians arrived last January at the place where he wintered, who brought belts from the French Settlements which were immediately forwarded thro the Nations to the Lakes, the purport of which tho kept verry private was to promote a Union for the execution of some plan & that those Messingers made particular enquiry concerning the strength and number of men at the out posts.—There has been likewise an Alarm at Detroit which put a stop to the Traders going to the Westward for some time & occasioned the Inhabitants to fortify themselves, this seems to have arisen from the claims the Indians have to the possessions of sundry French Inhabitants at that place, but tho their apprehensions are at present somewhat abated, there is good reason to think they are far from being over, from the concurring Acc<sup>ts</sup> from all Quarters amongst w<sup>h</sup> I have just received Information from Detroit communicated by Huron Andrew an Indian of good sense much respected for his attachment & services to us, that Mons<sup>r</sup> Vercher formerly a French Officer who was trading last winter at Sandusky on Lake Erie without leave had distributed two belts with two kegs of rum amongst the Hurons, desiring them to retain their courage for that they would soon see their old French Father when they would have occasion for it. — These things are so common, that the best disposed Indians become poisoned with their principles, and all this arises from the want of proper regulations for Trade & the pernicious practice of permitting the worst sort of men to go where they please into the Indian Country. The State of things here induces me to think that my going into the Indian Country may be of some service, I shall therefore set out immediately, and at my return which I expect will be in a few weeks, shall communicate any material Intelligence which I may have received.

I am, with the utmost respect, my Lord,

Your Lordship's

most obedient & most

devoted, humble servant

W. JOHNSON.

Instruction respecting the French Seigniories on Lake Champlain.

5 July 1769.

Additional Instruction to our Trusty and Wellbeloved Sir Henry Moore Baronet, our Captain General and Governor in Chief of our Province of New York and the territories depending thereon in America. Given &c

WHEREAS sundry persons, proprietors under titles derived from the Crown of France when that Crown was in possession of Canada, of lands on that part of Lake Champlain now lying within our Province of New York have humbly represented unto us that several parts of the said lands so claimed have already been granted to other persons by Letters Patent under the Seal of our said Province of New York, and have therefore humbly prayed that a proceeding so prejudicial to their rights and pretensions may receive our royal disapprobation; and whereas it appears both just and equitable that the claims of persons under such titles as aforesaid should not be affected without the fullest examination thereof. apprehensions that the late resolves of the Virginian Assembly, will add fresh fuel to those Heats, which have already spread too far over the continent, and influenced the rest of the Colonies to follow their example; these Resolutions have been already adopted by the Delaware Counties, and the last accounts from Boston shew, that their House of Assembly was well disposed to join in the same measures. In this critical situation, I cannot help renewing the application I made to your Lord<sup>d</sup> in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 44. in favour of the Bill for the emission of paper currency there mentioned, as I imagine it must be attended with such circumstances, as will not only benefit His Majesty's service and be of infinite advantage to the Province, by enabling it to grant the proper supplies, which will be wanted, but will in relieving it from the present difficulties under which it labours make such impression on the minds of the people, as to call forth the warmest expressions of duty, and at the same time prevent their following these recent examples of opposition, which can only tend to widen the Breach between Great Britain and her Colonies. I hope your Lord<sup>d</sup> will excuse this repetition on a subject where so much has already been said, and which nothing but my zeal for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service could induce me to make, prompted by ardent wishes that the Province under my direction might Act in such a manner, as to give intire satisfaction, but when all our funds are exhausted, and the scarcity of money so great, that a Farm of sixty acres of Land with a dwelling house and several improvements on it, shall be sold under an execution for ten pounds, and another in the same situation, sold for two hundred pounds, which but a few years before cost two thousand seven hundred pounds, there can be but little prospect of a Tax to be raised on Lands in a province so circumstanced. I have the honor to be with the greatest respect

Whitehall. 15 July 1769

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 42, 43 and 44.

The public transactions during the sitting of the Assembly and the various regulations which were the objects of discussion and deliberation are of very great importance and will require the fullest consideration.

The motions made by M<sup>r</sup> Livingston & others for public thanks to be given to the Merchants in consequence of their Association against the importation of goods from Great Britain, and for concurring in the violent resolves of the former Assembly, and the resolutions & declarations made in consequence [of those] motions, are transactions which, tho' you have not thought fit to point them out in your correspondence, could not escape the King's notice, and His Maj<sup>ty</sup> feels the deepest concern, that His subjects in New York, should, from groundless jealousy and apprehension, adopt measures and proceedings, that Manifest a spirit so adverse to the real and true Interests both, of this Kingdom and its Colonies.

What steps it may be proper to take in consequence of the Resolve for excluding the Judges of the supreme Court from sitting and voting in the Lower House of Assembly will require to be further considered; but I must not omit to acquaint you, that His Majesty looks upon this as an innovation of a very dangerous nature, implying a claim in the Assembly that can not be allow'd without violation of the fundamental principles of the Constitution.

The reasons you give for having contrary to your own opinion, assented to the Bills for regulating sales by public vendue, for enlarging the Jurisdiction of County Courts, for limiting that of the Superior Court, and for explaining the Election Act, must remain for consideration, when the Laws themselves are received; and therefore I can only say for the present, that the objections you state yourself to these Laws are too strong to warrant that approbation of your conduct which I most sincerely wish, upon all occasions to be justified in expressing to you.

What you say of the distresses of the Colony for want of a currency, is very material, and therefore it would have been a great satisfaction to me to have been enabled to have sent you by this conveyance such Instructions as his Majesty might have thought proper to have given respecting the Bill for emitting £120000 in paper Bills of Credit, proposed in the last Assembly, and to which, you very properly refused your assent, until His Majesty's permission could be obtained; but your not having transmitted the Bill itself, puts this out of my power and must necessarily create a delay that I am extremely concerned for. As to the other Bill for confirming Estates claimed by Aliens, to which you refused<sup>1</sup> your assent, it will be proper that it should be submitted to the consideration of His Majesty at the Council Board, and I shall lose no time in taking the necessary steps for that purpose.

Just as this letter was finished a Mail arrived from New York, by which, I had the satisfaction to receive your Dispatches Nos 45, 46, 47 and 48. and have laid them before the King but have nothing in Command from His Majesty to signify to you thereupon.

The Acts mentioned in your letter No 48. to be transmitted by the Clerk of the Council have not yet been received at my office.

I am etc

My Lord,

Your Lordship's circular letter inclosing His Majesty's most gracious speech to His Parliament at the close of the Session, was immediately upon its being received, communicated to His Majesty's Council of this Province; the general satisfaction with which it was received by all then present, left me no room to doubt of the impression it had made, and I am persuaded

Governor Moore to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York, 10 August 1769.

My Lord,

If I thought it incumbent on me to make an apology to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in my last letter at the time I transmitted two petitions, concerning the Lands on the Connecticut River, with much greater reason should I do it now in offering any thing more on the same subject. The inclosed petitions were preparing at the time the last Pacquet sailed, and notwithstanding I have informed the persons concerned in it, of what your Lord<sup>sh</sup> was pleased to mention in your letter by this last Pacquet concerning those lands, they still think it an injustice done to them not to forward their case to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, if their grants are refused to be made out by me on their application for them. So much, has already been said on this head, that I shall only beg leave to submit the following observation to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>. When His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s order in Council was first sent over by the Earl of Shelburne, forbidding any further grants to be made of the Lands in question it was the general opinion here, that the restriction was only intended to be laid on the granting of any patents which could possibly affect the particular Townships, set forth in Robinson's Petition; I took His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s order in a greater latitude, & notwithstanding the repeated attacks made upon me, as well by reduced officers and disbanded Soldiers, as by the Inhabitants of this Province, I have constantly refused to comply with their demands although the Lands for which they applied had never been granted by the Govern<sup>r</sup> of N. Hampshire, or included in the above mentioned Petition; as some Townships were supposed to be laid out on the west side of Lake Champlain (altho' there was no other foundation for such a supposition than a Map printed in the Province of Connecticut). I observed the same rule in regard to that part of the Country, notwithstanding there was not the least appearance upon Earth of a survey having been made there; it is now above two years since I wrote my first letter to the Earl of Shelburne, in answer to the Petitions of Robinson and the Society for propagating the Gospel, during which time, I have used every means in my power to carry into execution the plan I had formed for making such a communication with the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of Quebec, as I have already had the honor of laying before your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, but in our present situation every endeavour of mine will be rendered ineffectual, if the Lands on the side of the Lake are not permitted to be granted, for those Tracts which are now in the possession of Officers and Soldiers, not being charged with any Quit Rent for the first ten years, remain still in the same uncultivated state, as when they [were] first granted, and of course will be always an obstruction to the making of Roads on the side of the Lake till some settlers can be fixed there. Our precarious communication with the province of Quebec at certain seasons of the year, requires that the advantage of a public Road should be procured as soon as possible, but it is not in the power of Man to engage those who proposed settling in those parts in any such undertaking till they have proper titles to their Lands.

The accounts which have been given to me of the falls on the Connecticut River vary so much, as these objects are seen in different lights by different people, that I was determined to see them myself, and in expectation of receiving His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands relative to that part of the Country had made the necessary preparation for my expedition, by ordering, some Boats to be built in the uppermost inhabited Township on that River. My intention was to have taken a view of the whole stream from Newberry to the Massachusetts Line, and to have made an attempt to render those falls and rapids (if possible) less dangerous and inconvenient for the floating of Timber down, for, I have been informed, that several Masts have been so far shattered either by the mismanagement of the Conductors, or by choosing improper seasons for such a work, as to be totally unfit for service. As the Province of New Hampshire is equally interested in the improvement of this Navigation, M<sup>r</sup> Wentworth has declared his readiness to co-operate with me in any plan which could make it a public benefit, and I only waited for your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s orders to empower me to proceed in this undertaking. I have the honor to be with the greatest respect, My Lord,

and humble servant.

Sir William Johnson to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[Plantations General, CCLV., No. 16.]

Johnson Hall, August 21st 1769.

My Lord,

On my way from the Country of the Senecas whither in my letter of the 24th June (N<sup>o</sup> 9) I informed your Lordship I was then destined, I had the honour to receive your Lordship's of the 13th of May (N<sup>o</sup> 10) and I herewith inclose a separate letter on the Issue of my journey, and proceedings humbly requesting that your Lordship will so far indulge me as to allow the subject of this to be a farther explanation of the Transactions at the Fort Stanwix Treaty which from what I have heard seems necessary for the justification of my conduct; I even persuade myself that under these circumstances your Lordship will rather approve than condemn me for endeavouring (as every man of honor & integrity ought) to remove any the least misinformation on that head, and to set the whole in as clear a light as the bounds of a letter will admit of, and I have some hopes that in so doing your Lordship will be still farther enabled to judge of the propriety of future measures respecting the objects of that Treaty, and tho I may be obliged to extract in some places the substance of former letters yet I hope the placing the whole in one view will atone for it.—In order to this permit me to remind your Lordship that in former letters I shewed that between the first mention of a Boundary Line (which was soon heard of throughout the Colonies) and my receiving orders for concluding it, so much time had elapsed as gave our enemies opportunity to misrepresent our intentions to the Indians, so that after procuring and transporting a large valuable present to the place appointed for the Congress, I found the Indians sentiments so much altered, as to render the success of my negociations verry doubtfull, under these disadvantagious Circumstances I was obliged to act as the exigency of the affairs required, and the apprehension of being obliged in some measure to deviate from my Instructions gave me great uneasiness. My health already reduced to a verry low state from severe fatigues in his Majesty's service, was on this occasion rendered much worse by being obliged to set whole nights generally in the open woods in private conferences with the leading men. As here the principal matters are first agitated, and the sentiments of the rest best known, I found that their jealousy was not to be removed but by permitting them to make mention of their claim extending to the Cherokee River, At this time I had suggested nothing to them on that subject but as from the circumstances of time & place the greatest part of the Transactions at these private conferences can never be committed to writing, & if they were, their enormous bulk would render them unfit to be transmitted.—These conversations & previous transactions did not make their appearance in the copy I transmitted, which according to the custom hitherto observed contained only the public Treaty, and therefore it might have been imagined that this was of my first suggesting, whereas I was obliged to admit the mention of their claim thro necessity, in consequence of what had passed, and as that was the case I could not I am certain have given them a more favourable idea of His Majesty's goodness than His declining so fine a Tract to remove the possibility of dispute, rather than from a doubt of their title, & I have since repeatedly found that this was highly pleasing to them, but as they came with fixed resolutions on that head, which I have already observed, & as I could not put off or wait the farther sense of Government thereon, without consequences for which I could never make atonement, I was compelled to act as I did, and I thought my conduct farther justified on the following principles. First, That in Transactions with such a People at such a Distance from Court, some latitude was often given to His Majesty's servants, and that the same was never more necessary than on that occasion, Second, That my Orders on that Head seemed to be founded on a belieif that the Cherokees claimed a right to that Country, if this could be made to appear otherwise of which I was certain, it removed that objection.—Third, that the Inhabitants of Virginia laid claims thereto in virtue of old purchases some of which had been formerly countenanced by the Crown, & that the back Inhabitants of that Colony who are a verry encreasing & enterprising people had a strong desire to establish themselves in that Country, had already made many advances thereto, and in case the Indians had not ceded it would soon begin settlements thereon which would certainly be productive of a war, at the same time I was but too sensible of the inefficacy of any measures of the Colony to prevent such settlements, and of the Interest that many persons of Consequence had in wishing them to be extended.—Fourth, That the removing the claims of the Northern Confederacy by a Cession to His Majesty at a time when they were so much disposed for it, would be gaining a great point, the only means of carrying on the Treaty & the least productive of any ill consequences, when I considered all these points, & that whatever might have of late been said of y<sup>e</sup> pretensions of the Cherokees, the Northern Confederacy were more powerful & more inclined to dispute, & their dispute of more dangerous consequence, I could no longer hesitate as to the part I had to act. And I fully persuade myself that on due consideration of the premises the motives on which I acted will appear strongly in justification of my measures.—For the rest I have only to say that besides some private sales ratified by the Governour and made according to the usual mode with which I had nothing to do, there were two Grants or Indian Deeds against which I was not aware any objection would be made. The one to M<sup>r</sup> Croghan was only a confirmation of two former grants which the Indians particularly desired to make, & beleive they did without any influence, I am certain it was without mine, & which as he told me he took for the satisfaction of the Proprietaries of Pensilvania in order to the obtaining a grant in the usual way, He farther assuring me that he had mentioned his old pretensions to your Lordship. The other Grant was to the Traders who suffered losses in the year 1763, it was made an article of the peace with them afterwards and was judged a verry prudent measure by obtaining from them a Retribution in the only way in their power & thereby furnishing a precedent that might be of use hereafter should they commit depredations, it was well known to Government, & chearfully agreed to by the Indians who were disposed to give the sufferers a greater extent of land than is in the grant, had I not interposed, thro' an apprehension that there were not wanting malicious persons, who thro' envy or ill nature might take occasion to lessen the importance of the Transactions of that Treaty by remarks on the extent of a private Grant, tho' such grant could not prove any loss to the Crown, as it must be subject to the same Quit Rent of any other, and tho it was an act of Justice & policy, & did not reach within one hundred miles of the great Kanhawa. Some of the Indians thro' principle, and all of them from an inclination to shew their regard to Treatys, made particular mention of these grants in their speches recommending them to His Majesty, as they did every thing that seemed necessary to their Interest, & this I can safely assure your Lordship they did of their own meer motion, they observed to me that from what they knew of the present price of lands here, they were sensible they could not receive the 10th part of the value of the Cession, that therefore they had the stronger reliance on His Majesty's attention to their humble requests, I have upon all occasions given as nearly as possible the litteral sense of the Indians as delivered in their speeches, but in this case I softened them without deviating from their meaning, because I found them rather more animated than they often are, or than I desired, & altho this could not surprise any man acquainted with the particular mode of expression of that confederacy in matters of much moment, I was aware that it might be liable to misconstruction unless due allowance be made for them as savages who have the most extravagant notions of freedom, property and independance, & who cannot as yet be persuaded to give up their hopes & expectations from the Crown, and any person who well understands & impartially represents them must admit that in all such treaties they endeavour to maintain their own importance by the most forcible expressions, to which I may with truth add, that, as their words for fear of offence have been often glossed over before they were committed to writing by many others, I was the first that in the most critical period took upon me to check them in their sallys of that nature, whilst at the same time I took care so to conduct myself as to point out their [error]<sup>1</sup> without driving them to extremitys, I know there are too many people within these few years past that either think it necessary to their importance, y<sup>e</sup> Interests of their party, or to the gratification of private resentment to affect a knowledge of Indian affairs. However ridiculous or partial their reports might be rendered by any competent judge as their representations cannot be fully known, they are not easily refuted at 3000 miles distance, there is scarcely one other subject where a man of sense and observation who has been on the spot cannot afford many remarks that may be of use, but these qualifications without many others can only mislead in Indian affairs, to speak candidly, it is not during the period of a Governors residence at an American capital, of a commandant at an outpost, or of a traveller in the country that this can be gained, it is only to be acquired by a long residence amongst them, a daily intercourse with them, & a desire of Information in these matters superseding all other considerations, that this is not the case of any of those orders of men can be easily shewn, & consequently they are not sufficient judges, but as this would lead me farther than (I still flatter myself) there is occasion, I shall only assure your Lordship that all I have presumed to offer is capable of much enlargement, & can be sufficiently amplified & proved whenever occasion requires, and that I should not have presumed to add so much to all I have formerly said hereon, but from a delicacy arising from a thorough conviction of the strictest probity & zeal for my King's service, & a perfect disinterestedness, that as it has often procured me the Royal favour & approbation, renders it my continual wish to be favourably understood, & my peculiar study to merit the only object of my painfull endeavours. This, my Lord, is not a bare assertion, it is easy for me to demonstrate that private interest governs none of my representations, that they flow from duty to the Crown & regard for the public security, the way to which I am the better enabled to judge of, from the nature of my office and my long acquaintance with the state of y<sup>e</sup> frontiers & the neighbouring Indians. The honest motives w<sup>h</sup> induced me to detain your Lordship so long on this subject, will I persuade myself find a favourable construction from your Lordship's candor, on this I must rest my justification whilst they plead my apology, I shall therefore only add, that, I should not have a moment hesitated executing my last orders for signifying to the Indians His Majesty's Inclination to decline that part of the Cession but that I was fearfull of the consequences, when as I knew that the Virginians would at any rate settle on these lands in consequence of which the Indians would all think the whole a delusion, & that since the late Reform I did not think myself authorized to incur so great an Expence as is necessary for conveneing all those Indians who should attend on such an occasion without particular orders, & I have the satisfaction to find that herein I acted for the best, as from your Lordship's last letter, I observed that in case I am of opinion that it may be of ill consequence, His Majesty will ratify the Boundary agreeable to the Treaty, to which I have only to add that since my late Tour into the Indian Country, I find my former opinion so much strengthened, that I think it highly prudent to decline the mention of the affair unless I receive y<sup>e</sup> Lordship's orders to the contrary, or that some thing should occur that may justify me in so doing.—I have the honour to be with the most profound respect & esteem, my Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient, much obliged, & very humble Servant

W. JOHNSON.

The Right Honourable the Earl of Hillsborough

My Lord,

Having had the honour to write your Lordship on the subject of the Boundary & Cession which letter accompanys this, I am now to give your Lordship an Acc<sup>t</sup> of the 'Transactions' during my late Tour through the Country of the Six Nations.

I left home on the 26th of June and after many delays arrived at Onondaga the 10th of July where I found the Cheifs &c<sup>a</sup> of that Nation with several others from the neighbouring villages who being in great want of Indian Corn from a failure of their crops, I gave them a supply of that & several other articles, and previous to my General Meeting, held several private conferences with the Cheifs at their hunting cabbins returning from one of which in the night my canoe overset & in ascending a bank I received a verry severe cut by a fall on my wounded leg which had verry nigh rendered me incapable of proceeding, however on finding myself a little easier, I held a Congress with them two days after, which they opened with a speech wherein they made many Enquirys after News, and Whether a war was not about to be commenced between England, France & Spain, they said they were well assured of this, that there were many things which gave them much concern, amongst the rest that some of the Nations continued obstinately bent on war, and they feared it would compel them to disturb the Cherokees & others with whom they had made peace, that the intrusions of the New England people into Pensilvania they were afraid would draw some of theirs into a war, and that it gave them concern to find that those persons who had the management of the Trade were removed, I gave them all the satisfaction in my power on these heads, & afterwards proceeded for Cayuga where there were about 500 Indians assembled with whom I had a meeting to much the same effect as with the Onondagae, only I observed that the farther I advanced into the Indian Country, the more earnest the Indians appeared in their several discourses. I next went to Seneca where I had summoned y<sup>e</sup> Cheifs of that Nation, as also those Indians living near the head of Ohio to meet me, who in a few days assembled to the amount of two thousand and upwards, before I met them in public I was visited by two Cheifs in whom I had always had reason to place much confidence, who told me that they had laboured hard for some months to keep their people in order, & to prevent their receiving several belts which had been sent to their Country for verry bad purposes, but that nevertheless many came to their hands, w<sup>h</sup> had occasioned a spirit of discontent amongst them, as I would find on opening the Congress, about the same time Messingers arrived notifying the approach of a number of Cherokee Cheifs who were coming to attend a General Congress to be held at Onondaga the beginning of next month, to which the Cheifs of the Canada Confederacy and other Northern Indians were summoned to renew and strengten alliances. When we assembled the Senecas began with a long detail of what they called greiviances, they said that they found the conduct of all people altered for the worse towards them, that not a season had passed since the late peace without the murther of some of their people by the Inhabitants, that by withdrawing those who had the inspection of the Trade &c<sup>a</sup> frauds & abuses would be more common then ever, that no business could be transacted without Interpreters at the Posts, & that they could not do without Smiths to mend their arms, & other implements used in hunting, that they were well assured that a war was near at hand, & that they were courted to engage in it, which tho contrary to the sense of the Cheifs might probably be agreed to by too many of the warriors if those affairs which gave them so much uneasiness were not adjusted, for they saw there was no provision made for their redress, I then explained to them what I had in general made known before to the confederacy touching the present system for Indian affairs, that they would find the Colonies heartily disposed to make what Establishments were necessary, and to prevent frauds or injustice of every kind, but that they ought to make allowance for the importance of these matters as they required some time to be put on a proper footing, & that those whose Interests & Trade were so materially connected with them would certainly pursue the wisest measures for promoting peace & commerce. They answered that I had told them so before, that they well knew how slow our people here were, and that altho some of the old people of every nation were still disposed to beleive all this, they found the majority of the rest, particularly of the other confederacys were not, they gave me a long state of the politicks of y<sup>e</sup> other nations on which they observed, that the Fact was, the Indians expected to meet the same treatment from us, which they had done from the French, that the latter repeatedly told them they would not, that they found it too true & that they were full of resentment thro' disappointment, it may not be amiss here to remark, that when Indians are disposed to quarrel, they collect all the materials they can as grounds for their conduct, and often insist on things as greivances which in reality have given them little concern, the true cause is often misrepresented and therefore the proper remedy is wanting, they are jealous of us, & envious of one another, & I don't doubt but that the late great present may prove a means of dividing the Councils of the Six Nations with the rest, for tho' the sole right was in that Confederacy (and double the sum would not have contented all who desired to partake of it) the rest will probably be jealous of it, of which I am in hopes a proper use may be made.—During my stay at Seneca I saw & spoke with several Indians from different nations who brought belts of Union & Messages, & after having settled matters for obtaining a knowledge of what is to be transacted at the Congress before mentioned, I took leave of the Indians and arrived here about ten days ago much indisposed, nor am I as yet recovered from the hurt I received at Onondaga, so that I hope your Lordship will excuse any defects in this short sketch which is extracted hastily from my Journal.—On my way home I was overtaken with the news of a murder of a young Seneca man, who was fired upon on the River Susquehana by some of the frontier Inhabit<sup>r</sup> without the least provocation given (of which I have since received an account from Pensilvania) as the father of this young man has generally lived within the settlements, & with the whole Family demonstrated the most zealous attachment to the English, and were much respected by the Indians, the murder is a verry unlucky accident at this time, but it is not alone several others having been lately committed by the infatuated and lawless inhabitants on the frontiers of Virginia &c<sup>a</sup> Who as they have hitherto acted with impunity are encouraged to go on. And tho the effects of all this have not been sensibly felt for some time, they at length begin to make their appearance particularly about the Illinois, Ohio &c<sup>a</sup> of which your Lordship will doubtless receive Information from the Commander in Cheif, the Indians having killed several people, attacked & plundered several Traders boats, & in short blocked up the communication of the Ohio, so that is no longer practicable for the Traders. Whilst at the same time they are endeavouring to form a more strict alliance than ever for purposes that are but too obvious, seeming only to wait the success of their negociations for the commencement of hostilities, and altho' upon these occasions they use much caution & secrecy, yet some part of their late conduct does not exactly agree with it, but shews an extraordinary degree of confidence from some quarter, of which the answer herewith inclosed to the speech of L<sup>t</sup> Col Wilkins<sup>1</sup> commanding at Illinois furnishes some instances, to illustrate which I have annexed some notes, I have received a copy of the Speech of Mons<sup>r</sup> Verchere (formerly a French officer) to the Indians of Lake Erie, as now delivered by them, this speech was made known to me by some spies I have who with many others since positively affirm that he gave them a present in the name of the French King, and desired them to hold themselves in readiness, but on my communicating it to the General, who wrote concerning it to Canada, the Indians who esteem VerChere came to the Commandant at Detroit delivered up VerCheres belt & also the speech in the manner sent me which was evidently altered to prevent his meeting with punishment, nevertheless tho they have certainly suppressed much of what he said to them, enough remains, which to a man conversant in their idiom would be a convincing proof without any thing farther. In short as I suspected and frequently represented would be the case, none but Frenchmen can go into their country to the Westward, & the Indians positively & publickly declare to all people that they will suffer no others into their country, I was informed that the French were at the bottom of the representations artfully prepared to get the general liberty for trading at large in the Indian country which I then observed was calculated for them to engross it all. In the mean time the Colonies have as yet done nothing, except £150 voted by N York for defraying the expence of Officers of Trade &c<sup>a</sup> a sum scarcely worth mentioning, and the Governor now writes me that he mentioned his apprehensions of the Indians uneasiness for want of Commissaries &c<sup>a</sup> to the Members of his Assembly but without effect, and adds that the inadequate provision made for Interpreters & Smiths shews how little the matter in agitation was understood; In short none of those conversant in these matters expect they will do any thing material, I ought the rather to mention this because in your Lordship's letter of October 12th 1768 (N<sup>o</sup> 6.) you observe that the reliance on the benefits intended to be the result of the late measures was not upon their propriety but upon the execution of them & upon the regulations which the Colonies shall think fit to adopt for the management of the Commercial Part." I kept people on the frontiers as long as I possibly could consistant with His Majesty's Instructions, and gave timely notice to the Colonies concerned that they must be withdrawn, as did the Commander in Chief, but without effect, and I persuade myself that your Lordship's long knowledge of American affairs will render it unnecessary for me to point out the little expectation of these measures having the effect desired be the consequences what they will, 'tis my sense of these consequences alone that induces me to offer a word in addition to what I formerly said hereon for I averr upon my honour I never had the smallest advantage in the appointments that formerly existed but additional trouble in correspondng with the officers constantly sending them instructions, paying their acc<sup>ts</sup> and settled salaries when I received it from the general, & very often obliged to advance them money before I rec<sup>d</sup> it myself. Your Lordship will then judge how little I ought to have coveted this from any other motive than y<sup>e</sup> better execution of the public service.

This moment I have advice that the people have abandoned their settlements from Bedford to Fort Pitt, in consequence of some robberies committed by some partys of Indians, & also fearing their Resentment for their own late conduct towards them, that a party of Indians coming from War had robbed a House wherein there was only one Woman, whom they threw into the Potowmack, on which a party of the Inhabitants pursued & killed three of the Indians. That they had then resolved to augment their number and proceed to cut off a Mingoe village not far from thence, if so, a war is inevitable. In short there is but too much licentiousness on all sides, for by the same account, I am assured that Callendar a trader on his way to Fort Pitt with 25 horses loaded with Indian goods was attacked near Bedford by thirty White men disguised & painted like Indians who destroyed & carried away the greatest part of his goods, declaring they would suffer none to pass on to the Indians, that this circumstance has greatly exasperated the Indians, & contributed to alarm the peaceable part of the White Inhabitants.—When we consider the state & disposition of the Indians, a people without laws or government, very revengefull & influenced much by French Councils and very jealous of us, We may conclude that as these people cannot in general be kept in order without an expence that may be deemed greater than its object, all we can do, is, to divide their Councils & retain a part of them in our Interest, which I am pretty confident I have interest & influence to do at all events.—It is highly necessary to prevent a too general Union amongst them, & I should rather have declined taking the pains I did to effect a peace between the Six Nations & Cherokees, because we enjoy the most security when they are divided amongst themselves, at the breaking out of the late Indian War I proposed to raise Indians to be employed against the enemy, it was thought giving them too much consequence. However I took upon myself to send out a few parties, which notwithstanding the pains generally taken to allow them as little merit as possible, contributed essentially to bring that War to a conclusion, for altho it may be said, and is in part true, that Indians are unwilling to fight against one another in our quarrels, there are many exceptions to this opinion. There are some to be had who will join with ardour against any enemy, & many more whom it is policy to retain in our service, who, tho at first unwilling to act offensively from maxims of policy, yet, if by any means blood is drawn will become principals in the War, & this the Indians are so sensible of that there is nothing of which they are more apprehensive.—I hope that whatever is the issue of the present alarms I shall be able to retain a large body in His Majesty's Interest, and even to get them to act ag<sup>t</sup> the enemy if it is required of me, and so soon as I receive any farther information that may be material, I shall communicate it immediately.

I have the honour to be with the most profound Respect,
My Lord,

Your Lordship's,
most obedient,

the Earl of Hillsborough.

New York, 11 Sept<sup>r</sup> 1769.

My Lord,

It is with the deepest concern, that as private Secretary to our late Gov<sup>r</sup>, I now acquaint your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that His Excell<sup>ty</sup> Sir Henry Moore, died on this afternoon after an illness of three weeks.

The great loss that this Prov<sup>ce</sup> has sustained in him, will be much better perceived, in the general grief diffused thro' all ranks of Men among us, than in any panegyrick from me.

As the late Gov<sup>r</sup> had been pleased to entrust me with the Custody of the great Seal, I shall deliver it to Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Colden whenever he takes upon himself the Administration of the prov<sup>ce</sup>, together with such of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letters as may be necessary for his correspondence.

I must beg your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s pardon for farther acquainting you, that his late Excell<sup>ty</sup> had appointed me principal Surrogate and Register of the prerogative Court in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, with Authority to issue letters probate of wills and letters of administration on intestate Estates, and at the same time for soliciting Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s patronage in procuring me this office under the Great Seal of England, or if that should be thought improper, to recommend my continuance in this Department to such Gov<sup>r</sup> as His Maj<sup>ty</sup> shall hereafter be pleased to appoint Commander in Chief of this Province.

It is certainly very incumbent on me to make an apology for this request, my character being entirely unknown to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, must therefore only inform you, that I received my education in England and was regularly bred to the profession of the Law at Lincoln's Inn, and upon this appointment immediately quitted my profession and applied myself wholly to the duties of my Department, upon which my entire subsistence depends, and trust from my behaviour therein, and knowledge of the necessary Official business, that I may not be improperly continued. My family connections are, I believe with great truth, among the first in this Prov<sup>ce</sup> and altho' a distant relation of my name in the last Session of Assembly appeared to be in opposition to Govern<sup>t</sup>, yet my nearer connections have always pursued very different measures.

of Middle Temple, they being such of my friends as may most probably be known to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, desiring that they would inform you of my Character as a private Gentleman, and should the Representation be so satisfactory as to induce your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to countenance this application, I shall always retain the most grateful remembrance of your goodness.

Since writing the above, I have waited on Lieut<sup>g</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Colden in the Country informing him of Sir Henry Moore's death, at which time he thought proper to inform me, that I should not be continued in my Department, a severe stroke upon a public Officer of Govern<sup>t</sup>, to be removed without any imputation of malconduct.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect

My Lord

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient and
humble servant.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXLI.]

New York, 13. Sept<sup>r</sup> 1769.

My Lord,

On Monday last the 11th Inst: Sir Henry Moore Dyed after three afternoon. I was then at my house in the Country, next day I came to Town; Sir Henry's Funeral being that day, I delayed the assuming the Administration of Govern<sup>t</sup> to this day. I have taken in Council, the usual Oaths as Lieut<sup>g</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> & Commander in Chief of the Province. I am not as yet sufficiently informed of the State of Public affairs, to write any thing in particular, but your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may be assured, that it shall be my constant endeavour to keep the Prov<sup>ce</sup> in peace and tranquillity. Since I came to Town, I have seen many of the principal Inhabitants, who give me hope that I shall succeed in my endeavour, and I have good ground to hope that my Administration will be made easy to me.

The appointment of a Register in the prerogative Office became necessary immediately after the Gov<sup>r</sup>'s death. I have appointed M<sup>r</sup> Banyar,<sup>1</sup> Deputy Secretary, to execute that Office, who executed the same while I had the Administration formerly, and many years before that time,

<sup>1</sup> GOLDBEROW BANYAR was born in the city of London in the year 1724, and is said to have come to this country in 1737. George Joseph Moore, the Deputy Auditor-General, having deceased on the 22d February 1745-6, Mr. Banyar was appointed his successor, and on the 2d June, 1746, was sworn in as Deputy Secretary of the Province, Deputy Clerk of the Council and Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court. New-York Council Minutes, XXI, 99. In 1752 he received the commission of Register of the Court of Chancery, (Commissions, V., 43.) and in the following year, that of Judge of Probate and of Examiner in the Prerogative Court. Ibid., 62, 63. He discharged the duties of these several offices until the termination of the Royal Government in the Province of New-York. At the breaking out of the revolution Mr. Banyar retired to Rhinebeck, whither Sir Henry Clinton sent a sealed despatch to him, previous to the contemplated attack upon Esopus, asking for information as to the best mode of attacking that place. After the officer and his attendants had been properly entertained, Mr. Banyar dismissed them with a sealed letter for Sir Henry which, on being opened, was found to contain this laconic reply, "Mr. Banyar knows nothing." It is impossible, says Gorham A. Worth, to reflect one moment upon the position which Mr. B. occupied of whose ability and fidelity I am well assured, and whose conduct has been free from all exception.

As I flatter myself, it has appeared to His Majesty's Ministers, that I had my duty always in view, while the Administration was formerly in my hands, I hope not to fail in it now, and that while I perform my duty, I shall have the honor of your Lord's patronage.

I have the honor to be with the highest respect

My Lord

Your most obedient and
faithful servant

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXI.]

New York. 4. October 1769.

My Lord.

Your Lord's letter N<sup>o</sup> 33, directed to Sir Henry Moore, came to my hands after his death. By my letter of the 13th of last Month, I informed your Lord<sup>s</sup> of his death, and of my having taken the Administration of Govern<sup>t</sup>. Before I wrote that letter I had met more than once with the Gentlemen of the Council, I had conversed with the Speaker and several of the Members of Assembly, I had assurances from them of their disposition to make my Administration easy to me. Nothing has occurred since that time, to make me doubt of this being conformable to the general inclination of the people; tho' at the same time I know, that some are of a quite different disposition; but I hope their power will not be equal to their disposition to raise difficulties in this Govern<sup>t</sup>.

I am informed, My Lord, by those who know the inclinations of the Assembly well, that, they have the passing the Bill for issuing a paper currency, much at heart—that the passing of that Bill will put them in good humour; and that unless this be done it will be difficult to make them continue the provision for the Soldiers quartered in this Province, after the Massachusetts Bay have set them an example of absolutely refusing to do it, which has been followed by the Assembly of South Carolina.

Whatever other effect the granting a paper currency may have it will certainly increase the consumption of British Manufactures in this Province. I conceive no inconvenience, My Lord, during the Revolution, and the manner in which he sustained himself in it, without conceding to him a thorough knowledge of the world, great sagacity and great address. Random Recollections, 87. In 1767 Mr. Banyar married Elizabeth Mortier, daughter of the Paymaster-General, and widow of John Appy, Esq., Judge-Advocate of H. M. forces in America. He removed after the Peace to Albany, where he always took a great interest in the internal improvements of the State, and contributed to all a liberal support. In 1766 he was appointed, in conjunction with General Schuyler and the late Elkanah Watson, commissioner to examine and report on making a canal from Wood creek to the Mohawk river, and generally as to the most judicious plan of making that river navigable. This duty they performed in the most acceptable manner. Mr. Banyar survived his lady 7 years, and died at Albany, full of years and of honors, on the 4th of November, 1815, at the advanced age of 91 years; leaving to his descendants a large estate and a more enduring inheritance—the recollection of his many virtues and the example of a life devoted to duty.—Ed.

in allowing the payments of the money borrowed, to be made of a tenth part every year. The reason of this, is that some of the borrowers on the former Emission, suffered by their imprudence and had their Estates sold in execution greatly under their value.

The Clerk of the Council tells me, that, the Acts passed last sessions of Assembly, were transmitted by the June Packet from hence, & M<sup>r</sup> Livingston Sir Henry's Secretary, says, that the Bill for a paper currency was transmitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> by the last Packet, in the preceeding month.

My Lord—You did me the honor to signify to Sir Henry Moore, that his Majesty graciously attended to the losses and sufferings of a meritorious old servant of the Crown, and recommended his insisting on a recompence from the Assembly to me which I have not obtained. How far Sir Henry interested himself in the recommendation, I know not, but how his Majesty may recompence me, by graciously suffering me to continue in the Administration, with the salary & perquisites; if my conduct demonstrates an entire regard to my duty, and I be able to preserve the Province in tranquility, as it shall be my steady endeavour to do, I hope I may beg your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s favourable representation of my case to His Majesty for that purpose,

I am with the greatest respect & submission

My Lord

Your most obedient and
faithful servant.

Whitehall, 4. Nov<sup>r</sup> 1769.

Sir,

Your letter of the 13th of Sept<sup>r</sup>, containing an account of the death of Sir Henry Moore, was received on the 16th of October, and immediately laid before the King.

It will be a great satisfaction to me to hear, that the State of the Colony is such as to justify the expectation you have of being able to preserve the public peace and tranquility, and that your Administration would be made easy to you.

It is as much my inclination as my duty to promote these salutary ends, and you may rest assured, that you will never want every support and protection in my power to give you.

The only matter of any moment relative to the Colony of New York, which seems to require immediate consideration, is the Bill for emitting £120000 in paper Bills of Credit, prepared in the last Session of Assembly, but which was not transmitted by Sir H. Moore till a few days before he died.

I lost no time after it came to my hands in receiving the King's commands to transmit it to the Board of Trade which will be reassembled in a few days after the usual recess, and where I doubt not, that it will meet with all the Dispatch the importance of it demands.

I am etc.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII.]

New York. 4 December, 1769.

My Lord,

By my letters N<sup>o</sup> 1 and 2, I informed your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the Assurances I had of the general disposition of the People to preserve the Province in tranquility. Since that time the Merchants of this Place received a letter from the Massachusetts Bay, exhorting them to enter into new Resolutions of not importing any British Manufactures, until all the Acts of Parliament, which lay duties on goods imported into the Colonies, are repealed. This letter I am well informed was read in a full meeting of the Merchants of this Place—that not one spoke in favour of it, and that it passed over without the least notice.

This and some other things My Lord, gives me hopes, that a more moderate temper, begins to gain ground among the People, and that many incline to avoid, as much as possible, what may irritate or give offence to the parent Country.

I delayed meeting the Assembly longer than usual at this season, when the supplies for the support of Govern<sup>t</sup> are annually granted, in hopes of receiving your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s commands in relation to a Bill for emitting £100000 on Loan in Bills of Credit; the passing of which the people have greatly at heart, Inclosed are printed copies of my speech to the Council and Assembly, at the opening of the Session and of the Council and Assemblie's addresses to me in answer to what I had recommended to them. From these your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may form some Judgement of their Disposition.

The Bill for emitting £100000 in Bills of Credit, was on their first meeting ordered to be brought in, and I suppose it will be one of the first Bills which will pass the House of Assembly, and I expect will receive the Council's concurrence. The Speaker tells me it is the same which passed last session, of which Sir Henry Moore transmitted a copy to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>

The greatest number of the present Assembly I think, are now very sensible how much it is the interest of the Colonies to have the mutual confidence, between Great Britain and the Colonies restored, and that it is essential to their well being; but as they know not with any certainty, how far the Parliament may comply with their Petitions, they are careful not to loose their popularity, which some among them are endeavouring to bring about. This may excuse some parts of their proceedings which have not so good an appearance as I wish, particularly they concurring with an adopting the resolves of the Virginia Assembly of the 16th of May last, which had been transmitted to them by the Speaker of that Assembly, & which in the present circumstances of this Place, it is said they could not avoid taking some notice of. I hope, at the conclusion of the session, I may be able, with some certainty, to give your Lord<sup>sh</sup> an agreeable account of their disposition.

I have the honor to be with entire submission

My Lord,

Your most obedient

and faithful servant.

New York. 4. Decemb<sup>r</sup> 1769.

My Lord,

The Prerogatives of the Crown and the liberties of the People, being alike affected by a late transaction in our Assembly, my duty to the Crown as a Judge of the Supreme Court, and to the people as one of their Representatives, obliges me to mention it to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>; and the rather as His Honor the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> to whom the votes of the House are daily presented, has suffered it to pass unnoticed.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has doubtless been informed by Sir Henry Moore, that a vote passed last Sessions of our Assembly declaring Judges of the Supreme Court incapable of serving in their House. Immediately after this Resolution I was unanimously elected, and in consequence of this vote denied a seat, notwithstanding an immemorial custom in this and all the other American Colonies for Judges to seat as Representatives when chosen, which they very frequently are.

I take the liberty to present your Lord<sup>sh</sup> with the arguments I urged to the House in support of my right to a seat. I think I may venture to assure Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that the People in general do not concur with the house in these measures. Some evidences of which I have already received and doubt not, that to these many more (when the matter is farther explained) will be added.

How much the Crown is interested in this Transaction, your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s acquaintance with the affairs of Govern<sup>t</sup> will enable you to Judge, as well as to distinguish it from that, which in the case of Wilks disturbs the tranquility of the Nation.

Were I not fully assured that no part of my conduct, either in my public or private capacity has rendered me disagreeable to the people, I would not now have troubled Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, but have resigned an Office, which nothing but the Honor of serving His Maj<sup>ty</sup> and the Colony induces me to hold. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will pardon the liberty which a sence of duty has urged me to take, and will believe me to be with the greatest respect, What I truly am. My Lord

Sir,

Since my letter to you of the 4th of last month I have received your Dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 2 and 3, & having laid them before the King, I was commanded by His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to communicate to the Board of Trade an extract of so much of your Letter of the 4th of October, as relates to the advantages wh<sup>ch</sup> His Majesty's service as well as the Colony, will in your opinion receive from His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s allowance of the paper currency Bill.

The main obstacle to the wishes of the Colony as to this Bill, arises from a doubt whether the enacting that these Bills of credit shall be a tender at the Loan Office and at the Treasury, tho' perhaps not within the meaning and intention of the Act of Parliament of the 4th of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s, does not however come so far within the letter of it as to make it unfit for the King to instruct his Gov<sup>r</sup> to assent to the Bill. The opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor Gen<sup>l</sup> has been taken upon this occasion, and as their report rather strengthens the doubt than removes it, the matter must finally rest for decision with the Lords of the Committee of Council to whom the Board of Trade will, in a few days make their report upon the Bill.

Inclosed, I send you an additional instruction<sup>1</sup> under His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s sign manual, forbidding any grants to be made of those Lands on the Lake Champlain, which are claimed under titles derived from the Crown of France, until the Petitions & proposals for such grants, shall have been transmitted hither and His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure signified thereupon.

I likewise think fit to send you a copy of H. Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s order in Council of the 24th day of July 1767, forbidding any grants to be made of the lands annexed to New York by His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s determination of the boundary line, between that Colony and New Hampshire, together with a copy of my letter to Sir H. Moore, of the 13th of May last on the subject of the lands ceded to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> by the Treaty at Fort Stanwix, and I am to signify to you, the King's commands, that you do carefully attend to the restrictions contained in these orders & Instructions, and that you do not, upon any pretence, presume to Act contrary thereto.

I am etc.

My Lord,

The Assembly from the 21st of last month, till last Friday, sat without entering upon the provision to be made for the Troops quartered in the Place. They then came to the resolutions, of which I inclose a copy, that your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may receive all the information I can give of their present disposition.

The consideration of this matter was delayed, in order, as I was told, that the house might be brought to an unanimous resolution. But your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will observe, that though the resolve for granting a sum of money for supplying the Troops, did pass, nem: con: yet they unhappily differed in their sentiments upon the mode of granting the money; and the manner in which it was carried, was the most that could be obtain'd by those, who would willingly have given the whole sum out of the Treasury. This difference of sentiment I think has arisen from the attention which many of the Members pay to their popularity; and from the artifices of others, who may be unwilling that the Assembly should at this time, when they have not the lead, gain too much credit. Great pains has been taken not only in this Town to intimidate the Members, but in the Counties, to procure Instructions against granting any money for the Troops otherwise than out of the money to be emitted on loan, and I believe this only has influenced several of the members, who, it was confidently expected, would have voted otherwise than they did.

This fluctuating disposition of several of the Members, makes it impossible for me, My Lord, at this time to say on what terms they may now offer the Bill for emitting Bills of Credit, or what will be the issue of this session. But I am resolved as far as it is my power, to preserve the Colony in Tranquility, and I doubt not I shall be able to do so, notwithstanding of all the endeavours of some people to raise up dissensions.

I have the honor to be with great submission

My Lord

Your most obedient &
faithful servant

Representation on the Non-Importation and other Resolutions of the New-York Assembly.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., 89.]

To the KINGS MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

May it please your Majesty

Your Majesty's late Governor of the Colony of New York, having transmitted to Us the Journal of the proceedings of the House of Representatives Your Majesty's Colony of New York, in their last Session of Assembly, & it appearing to us upon perusal of this Journal that the said house of Representatives had taken up Questions and considerations of a very extraordinary nature we think it Our duty humbly to represent to Your Majesty

That on the 10 of April last a motion was made in the house in the following words Viz<sup>t</sup>

That the thanks of that house be given to the Merchants of that city and colony for their repeated disinterested Public Spirit & patriotic conduct in declining the importation, or receiving of goods from Great Britain until such Acts of Parliament as the Assembly had declared unconstitutional and subversive of the rights and liberties of the people of this Colony, should be repealed, and that Mr Speaker signify the same to the Merchants at their next Monthly meeting in consequence of which motion an Order was made, that the Speaker signify the thanks of that house to the Merchants of that City at their next monthly meeting accordingly: We likewise humbly beg leave to represent to Your Majesty that another motion was made in the words following Viz<sup>t</sup>

Whereas it is not constitutional in England for the Judges in either England or Scotland to sit or vote in the house of Commons it is moved that that house do enter a Resolution on their Journals that for the future no Judge of the supreme Court shall be allowed to sit or vote as members of that house, whereupon it was resolved, nemine contradicente, that no Judge of the supreme Court shall for the future have a Seat or vote as a member of that house,

These proceedings may it please Your Majesty, appear to us to be of so unwarrantable a nature and to contain matter of such High Importance that we shall not presume to offer any opinion what may be proper to be done thereupon, submitting it to your Majesty to pursue such measures as Your Majesty shall in your great wisdom and with the advice of your Council think most prudent and necessary.

Which is most humbly submitted

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., 34.]

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> The Lords of the Comm<sup>ee</sup> of His Majesty's most Hon: Privy Council for Plantations Affairs.

My Lords

Pursuant to your Lordships Order of the tenth of last Month we have taken into Our Consideration the Petition of the House of General Assembly of His Majesty's Colony of New York by their Agent humbly praying for the reasons therein contained that His Majesty will be pleased to direct the Governor of New York to pass into a law, a Bill passed by the House of Assembly and Council of that Colony in their late Session in April for the emission of £120,000 in Bills of Credit; we have likewise in pursuance of your Lordships said order, taken into Our Consideration the Copy of the Address of the General Assembly of the said Colony to the late Governor annexed to the abovementioned Petition setting forth the absolute necessity which they conceive there is in the present situation of that Colony for his assenting to the Bill as proposed whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships

That this Board having in their humble representation to His Majesty of the 9th of Feb: 1764 amongst other matters therein contained given an opinion at large upon the General Policy of a paper Currency with a legal tender in His Majesty's American Colonies, agreeable to which opinion an Act was passed in the 4th year of His present Majesty to prevent paper Bills of Credit being declared a legal tender in any of the said Colonies we have nothing to observe to your Lordships upon the general principle of the Bill referred to in the above mentioned Petition.

On this occasion however we think it our duty to inform your Lordships that His Majesty's late Governor of New York Sir Henry Moore did in a letter dated May the 29th 1769 fully express his sentiments with regard to the expediency of this Measure we beg leave therefore to annex to this Our report Copy of so much of his said letter as relates to this Bill, as likewise of a paper therein inclosed containing the reasons which were set forth by His Majesty's Council of New York in their remarks on the Bill, to these we shall beg leave to subjoin copy of an extract from Lieut Gov<sup>r</sup> Coldens letter of the 4th of October last, on the same subject, from all which papers together with those referred by your Lordships on the part of the Assembly, Your Lordships will be enabled to collect the sentiments and opinions of the entire Legislature of this Colony.

Having submitted these papers, to your Lordships we have only to add, that a doubt arising with us with respect to the 25th Clause of this Bill, whether the said Clause does make the paper Notes of Credit, issued by the said Bill a legal tender within the meaning & intention of the Act of Parliament abovementioned & whether His Majesty may or may not consistent with the Provisions of the said Act, authorize His Governor of New York to give His assent to the said Bill, containing such clause as aforesaid, we did refer the said Clause to the consideration of His Majesty's Atto<sup>r</sup> & Sol<sup>r</sup> General who have reported to us their opinion thereupon, copy of which, we beg leave hereunto to annex, submitting to your Lordships, to give such advice to His Majesty upon the matter, as to your Lordships wisdom shall seem expedient; upon consideration of the Bill itself & of the several circumstances seth forth in the papers thereunto relating.

We are my Lords,

Your Lordships

most obedient & most

humble Servants

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[ New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII. ]

N<sup>o</sup> 7.

New York, 4 January 1770.

My Lord,

His Majesty's order in Council of the 24th July 1767 restrains me from granting the letters Patent prayed for by the inclosed Petition. I am well assured, that the facts are, as set forth by the Petitioners; and whatever equitable claim to those persons may have, who took grants of Lands from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New Hampshire, lying Eastward of any Lands granted by this Province, certainly can not extend to such as did lately obtain grants from that Govern<sup>t</sup>, of Lands lying nearer Hudsons River, than lands do, which were granted under this Prov<sup>ce</sup> upwards of Sixty years agoe—especially when it is considered that they passed over a large extent of Land, much nearer to Connecticut River, to come at those Lands, which lye within the ancient possessions of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>. That some of them even seated themselves on lands which the Settlers under this Prov<sup>ce</sup> had been obliged to abandon at the commencement of the late War—and that they obtained grants from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of N. Hampshire, for any of these Lands, without paying the least regard to the prior grants and notorious claim of this Province.

The Petitioners have been at considerable expence in exploring and surveying these lands, and have hitherto been prevented from receiving the benefit of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s bounty. I therefore, thought it necessary My Lord, to comply with their desire, that I should transmit their Petition to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in order to obtain His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands thereon.

I find My Lord, that the settlement and cultivation of the Country lying West of Connecticut River, which was formerly granted by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New Hampshire, is entirely retarded by the controversies, which have arisen between those Proprietors and this Government. When I formerly held the Administration, I had resolved on measures respecting these Lands, which I was then assured would give entire satisfaction to these people, & would produce the immediate settlement of the Country, and a very considerable augmentation of His Majesty's Quit-Rents.

I found the People, who had taken grants of Lands from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of N. Hampshire west of Connecticut River, very willing to take new Grants for the same lands from this Govern<sup>t</sup>; the expence of taking out the Patents being the only objection. To obviate this, I told as many as then applied to me, that I would give them Grants and leave it to themselves to pay me such proportion of my fees as they could conveniently do, & that I would use my influence with the other officers of Govern<sup>t</sup> to lower their fees in these Cases. This was so agreeable to the people, that the Proprietors of several Townships, immediately proceeded to take the necessary steps, for obtaining the new Grants, but I was prevented from putting the Seal to any of them by the arrival of Sir Henry Moore.<sup>1</sup> He afterwards took his full Fees for one of those Grants, which had been very near ready for the Seals before he came; and I am told he refused to pass any without his full Fees were paid. This gave great disgust to the people, and occasioned those applications which have since been made to the King on this subject.

I think it my duty to submit my Sentiments on this matter to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, as I am still of opinion that New Grants given by this Govern<sup>t</sup>, to those people who have an equitable pretence, by their former Grants from New Hampshire, under such fees of Office as shall be no ways distressing, will be the shortest and most effectual method to do justice and give satisfaction to the proprietors. That it will immediately produce the settlement of that large & valuable Tract of Country, and greatly increase His Majesty's Revenue. The difficulties which have obstructed the grants of those lands for some years past, being removed, will most effectually promote the Grant of that Tract of Land, designed as I am informed, for the Society for propagating the Gospel, and of other Tracts, which the Trustees of the College and Church in this City have pe[tit]ioned for.

These matters are mentioned My Lord, with entire submission to your Judgement and His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s pleasure, by My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>ps</sup>'s. most obedient
and faithful servant

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Lords of Trade.

[ New-York Paper, Bundle 5s., No. 67. ]

New York. 6. January 1770.

My Lords,

Yesterday I passed a Bill granting £2000 for supporting the Troops quartered in this place with necessaries, and a Bill for emitting £120000 in Bills of Credit being ready for my assent, I called together the Council, who all attended except Sir William Johnson, who is at 200 miles distance. His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s instruction of July 15th 1766 for creating and emitting paper Bills of Credit, was laid before them. After having considered the same and reasoned thereon, the Gentlemen of the Council unanimously advised me to give my assent to the Bill for emitting £120,000 in Bills of credit, as being absolutely necessary in the present circumstances of the Colony; and I accordingly gave my assent to it in the usual form.

My Lord Hillsborough by his letter of the 4th of November, informs me that a Bill for the same purpose, passed the last session of Assembly, and transmitted by Sir Henry Moore, was, on your first meeting together, to be laid before your Lord<sup>ps</sup>, for your consideration; to which, the Bill I have now passed is in every material part similar. But it is my duty to transmit without delay by this Packet, the Act as I have assented to it under the great seal of the Prov<sup>ce</sup>. By this means I hope that the time allowed by the Act, before the Bills can be emitted, is in effect equivalent to the suspending clause enjoined by the instruction, as your Lord<sup>ps</sup> have had sufficient time to consider the same, and His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s approbation or disallowance may reach this place as effectually as could be done, had the suspending clause been inserted. The Bills of credit are to bear date the 10th day of June next, and are not to be emitted till the last Tuesday of that month.

As I have in my letter to Mylord Hillsborough, particularly set forth the reason which induced me to give my assent to the Bill as it now stands enacted; I think it needless to trouble your Lord<sup>ps</sup> with a repetition of them.—I hope they are such as will convince your Lord<sup>ps</sup> that the circumstances of this Govern<sup>t</sup> considered, I have not acted inconsistently with my duty, or the trust with which his Majesty has honoured me.

I likewise transmit to your Lord<sup>ships</sup> another Act which I have passed at this time, explaining the duty of the Loan Officers, it is an appendage to the other Act, but has nothing in it I think, which can effect His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> interest, or deserve any particular remarks.

The Assembly is still sitting; as soon as the public business is done, and the session closed, I shall as usual transmit all the Acts which shall be passed.

I shall be extremely happy to obtain the honour of your Lord<sup>ships</sup> approbation of my conduct, and of being in your Lordships estimation.

My Lords

Your most obediend & faithful servant

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII.]

N<sup>o</sup> 8.

New York. 6. January 1770.

My Lord,

I have the honor of your Lord<sup>ship's</sup> letter of the 4th of November N<sup>o</sup> 34. At this time, when difficulties in the Administration are unavoidable, the assurances your Lord<sup>ship</sup> is so kind to give of your support and protection, gives me strength in performing my duty.

When the Bill for supplying the Troops quartered in this Place, was brought into the Assembly, the party in opposition, made a violent effort to disconcert all the present measures, by exciting the people to appear against the Bill. For this purpose the inclosed printed paper, directed: "To the betrayed inhabitants of the City and Colony of New York," was, the night before the last Packet sailed, dispersed thro' the Town, I transmit your Lord<sup>ship</sup> likewise two Proclamations issued on this occasion.<sup>1</sup>

Tho' some of our Newspapers make the meetings of the sons of Liberty, as they call themselves, on this occasion to be numerous and of consequence, the party was really disappointed. The numbers who appeared were too small and inconsiderable to have any weight, or be of any service to their purpose. They have been further disappointed in three attempts since made. People in general, especially they of property, are now aware of the dangerous consequences of such riotous and mobish proceedings.

The supply of the Troops is unpopular, both, in Town and Country. You know My Lord, it is very generally an unpopular subject, in the English Govern<sup>t</sup>, and much pains is taken to work upon the prejudices of the People here. However, the party in the Assembly did not think proper to oppose the supply directly, but proposed that it should be paid out of Bills of Credit, to be emitted by a Bill then in the House. In which case that Act must take effect immediately or there could be no supply. This made it necessary for the Friends of Govern<sup>t</sup> to compromise the matter, by granting one thousand pounds out of the Treasury, and another thousand pounds out of these bills of Credit; and even with this compromise the Bill for supplying the Troops, was carried by a very small majority, and it could not have been carried, had I not given the Friends of Administration, expectations that I would assent to the Bill for emitting Bills of Credit, if it were in the same terms with the Bill passed in the preceding session, and transmitted to your Lord<sup>p</sup> by Sir Henry Moore, and six months allowed to know His Majesty's pleasure, before the Bills of Credit can be emitted.

Yesterday, My Lord, I passed the Bill granting £2000 for supplying the Troops quartered in this place with necessaries, and the Bill for emitting £120000 in Bills of Credit, being ready for my assent, I called together the Council, who all attended except Sir William Johnson, who is at 200 miles distance. His Majesty's instruction of July 15th 1766 for creating and emitting Paper Bills of Credit, was laid before them. After having considered the same & reasoned thereon, the Gentlemen of the Council unanimously advised me to give my assent to the Bill for emitting £120000 in Bills of Credit, as being absolutely necessary in the present circumstances in this Colony, and I accordingly gave my assent to it in the usual form.

It is the same with the Bill transmitted to your Lord<sup>p</sup> by Sir H. Moore (except in two or three immaterial clauses, on the appointment of Loan Officers, in the Cities of New York and Albany, & unavoidable alterations in Time) which the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations must have had under consideration before this time. The Bills of credit to be emitted by this Act, are to bear date the 10th of June next; the interest is to arise from, and the emission to be on the last Tuesday of that month, which is near six months from this time. This is equivalent to a suspending clause, till His Majesty's pleasure shall be known, for His Majesty's pleasure, certainly, may be transmitted before that time. I now, My Lord, transmit an exemplified copy of the Act under the seal of the Province, in a Box directed to the Board of Trade and plantations. No public business could have been carried on in the Assembly without my assent to this Bill. The call for it, both in Town and Country was so general, that the Friends of Govern<sup>t</sup>, in the Assembly, could not have been supported without it, and the Administration, must have been made very uneasy to me. Your Lord<sup>p</sup> may be assured, I discover nothing in it prejudicial to His Majesty's service, and as the interest money arising from these Bills of Credit, cannot be disposed of without the Governor's consent, it may be a fund hereafter for supplying the Troops. The King's approbation will give general satisfaction, and when people are in good humor, His Majesty's service may be carried on more effectually, than when they are in a contrary disposition.

I inclose another printed paper, that your Lord<sup>p</sup> may see the Temper of the party who oppose the measures of Govern<sup>t</sup>, at the same time it may not be improper to tell you, that no Gov<sup>r</sup> in Chief has been at any time attended by greater numbers on New Year's day, than I was on the last, with their compliments on the season. When what appeared in this place, in past times, is considered, my mentioning this, will not be thought merely from vanity.

The Assembly are still sitting, they have passed none but the usual Bills, except those which I have already mentioned to your Lord<sup>p</sup>—what remains to be done for His Majesty's service in this Session, I expect will be done without difficulty. I shall think myself extremely happy if my endeavours in the performance of my duty, obtain His Majesty's approbation. Without doubt your Lord<sup>p</sup> perceives the difficulties which attend the Administration of Govern<sup>t</sup> at this Time, in all the Colonies, and therefore I flatter myself, with your most favourable construction of the measures I have thought necessary for His Majesty's service, and that you will allow me the honour of being

My Lord,

Your most obedient and
faithful servant.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII.]

Whitehall. 18. Jan<sup>y</sup> 1770.

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatch<sup>n</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 5. inclosing your speech to the General Assembly, at the opening of the Session on the 22<sup>d</sup> of November, and the Addresses to you from both Houses.

The late Gov<sup>r</sup> in a letter to me dated the 19th of July last, acquaints me that my circular letter No 29. of which I now inclose to you a copy, altho' I presume you are in possession of the original, had been communicated to the Council, and had given great satisfaction, and I have also observed that the purport of that letter, has been repeatedly printed in the Newspapers on the Continent of America. As the contents of it, therefore cannot be unknown to you, and are, I am certain, so clearly expressed as not to be misunderstood I must desire to you will enable me to inform the King upon what authority you have taken upon you to declare in your speech to the General Assembly, that there is the greatest probability, that the late duties (without distinction) imposed by the authority of Parliament upon America, would be taken off in the ensuing Session; I very sincerely wish, you may have it in your power so to explain and justify this proceeding as to remove the appearance of your having acted in a manner highly unbecoming your situation.

After what I have said on this subject, it gives me much concern to find occasion to animadvert on any other part of your conduct, but it is not fit for me to pass unobserved your having omitted to take notice in your speech of the steps taken by the late Gov<sup>r</sup> and by yourself in respect to the paper Currency Bill passed in the former session of assembly; had this been done, the Assembly could not have had the colour of a pretence, for so irregular a proceeding as that of framing a New Bill pending His Majesty's consideration of the former one, and if it shall appear, that you have suffered the Assembly to proceed upon this business, without using your endeavours to dissuade them from it, it will be such an aggravation of your imprudence and want of attention, as cannot fail of exposing you to His Majesty's just displeasure — Upon what ground it is that you suppose this New Bill will receive the Council's concurrence, I am at a loss to guess; but I trust that they will not be influenced by any consideration to a conduct inconsistent with a due respect to the Crown.

His Majesty hopes that the account you give of the Temper and disposition of the majority of the New Assembly, will in the end be justified by their actions; but their having adopted and concurred in the Resolves of the Virginia Assembly of the 16th of May, is not a very favourable omen that their proceedings will have so desirable a conclusion.

Inclosed I send you the King's gracious speech to His Parliament, at the session on the 9th inst: together with the addresses of both Houses, and His Majesty's gracious answer thereto.

The King having thought fit to take the Great seal out of the hands of Lord Camden, it was yesterday delivered to Mr Charles Yorke<sup>1</sup> and it is His Majesty's intencion, that he should be immediately called up to the house of Lords.

I am etc.

Representation on the New-York Act for emitting Bills of Credit.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., p. 42.]

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

May it please your Majesty

The Lords of the Committee of your Majesty's most hon<sup>ble</sup> Privy Council for Plantation Affairs having by their Order of the 10th of Nov: last directed us to report to them Our opinion upon a Bill passed in May 1769 by the Council and House of Representatives of your Majesty's Council of New York for emitting £120,000 in paper notes of Credit upon loan, to which Bill your Majesty's late Governor had refused his assent without having first received your Majesty's directions for that purpose.

We did on the 20 of Dec<sup>r</sup> make our report thereupon submitting it to their Lordships to give such advice to your Majesty on this subject as they should think fit, and in the mean time, and until your Majesty's pleasure could be known the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> was acquainted with the several steps which had been taken on this occasion & with the difficulties which arose in point of law upon those Clauses of the Bill by which the paper notes to be cancelled were made a legal Tender in the Treasury and loan office of that Colony

It is Our duty however to observe to your Majesty that notwithstanding their intimation given to the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> a new Bill in no material points differing from that now before your Majesty has been proposed in the Assembly of this Colony & having passed that house and been concurred in by the Council Your Majesty's said Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> did think fit by their advice to give his assent to it on the 5 day of January last and therefore it becomes necessary for us to lose no time in humbly laying this Act which was received at Our Office yesterday before Your Majesty, to the end that if Your Majesty shall be pleased to signify your disallowance of it, either upon the ground of the doubts in point of law which occurred to the former Bill, or upon a consideration of so irregular a proceeding as that of entering upon a proposition of this nature & passing it into an Act pending the consideration of it before Your Majesty in Council there may be no delay in having Your Majestys Pleasure thereupon signified to the Colony, so as to reach it before that part of the Act which authorizes the emission of the Bills can take effect that is to say on the last Tuesday in June.

How far the Lieut<sup>e</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> is justified in the conduct he has thought fit to pursue on this occasion must be submitted to your Majesty upon the reason assigned by him in his letter to one of your Majestys principal Secretaries of State & to this Board extracts of which are hereunto annexed, but it is Our further duty to observe that the Instruction of July 1766, on the ground of which he says the Council advise him to this step does expressly forbid any law of this nature to be passed without a Clause suspending its execution until your Majestys [pleasure] could be known

Sir William Johnson to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLVI.]

Johnson Hall. 10. Febr<sup>y</sup> 1770.

My Lord.

In my last of the 26. Aug: (N<sup>o</sup> 11) I gave your Lord<sup>sh</sup> an account of my journey thro' the Country of the Six Nations to Seneca with my proceeding at several Conferences with the Indians, and acquainted you, that Deputies were arrived from the Cherokees etc: to request a meeting with the Six Nations and Canada Confederacy at Onondaga, which has since taken place agreeable to their desire, the result of which I waited for, as judging it might be necessary for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s information. At this Congress the Cherokees spoke on twenty Belts to the Six Nations etc. to renew and strengthen the late Treaty of Peace entered into between them, and earnestly to request that in consequence thereof the Six Nations etc, should unite their arms with them in order to attack several of the Southern & Western Nations who had acted as Enemy's to both; after some time spent in deliberation, the Six Nations returned for answer, that before they could come to any resolution agreeable to their former engagements, they must first confer with me on the subject, to which end they would take care of their Belts & Calumets and send Deputies to me to desire a general Congress in my presence, and accordingly their Deputies have since come here with some of the Cherokees, earnestly requesting on the part of the whole, that I would as speedily as possible assemble the two Confederacys, and after hearing what they had to say, give them my advice and opinion on the subject.—To support their request, they observed that we were as much interested as themselves in the matter having suffered repeated insults from these people, as they instanced in M<sup>r</sup> Croghan's being attacked, several of his party killed and himself made prisoner by them on his way to the Illinois, & in their attacks upon our Traders on Ohio; in short, I observed that they were much inclined to unite and attack those people, which gave me the more concern, because I knew, that when Indians were resolved on War, if they could be diverted from their favourite pursuit, they would be apt to turn their arms the other way, perhaps against ourselves; besides I was sensible of the great expence, that must attend such a Congress, altho' of their own proposing, and that what could be spared out of the fund allowed for the Department, could not defray the charge of so large and unexpected a Congress. In this scituation, I consulted Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage who is of opinion, that as any sum can be spared out of the annual allowance will be inadequate to the expence that may attend it, I should first obtain His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> orders for that purpose, but as the Indian Deputys are very pressing and that it will not be in my power to have an answer within sufficient time to satisfy their importunity, whilst on the other hand I cannot refuse their request without occasioning a general discontent amongst them, I have resolved to treat with some of the Chiefs only with all the Economy I possibly can consistent with the public safety, trusting that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> will be graciously pleased to consider the peculiarity of the occasion, and not suffer me to be a looser, thro' the necessary discharge of my duty.

It is a disagreeable circumstance that we must either agree to permit these people to cut each others throats, or risque their discharging their fury on our Traders and defenceless frontiers, for certain I am from the disposition they are in, and from the conduct of the back settlers, the latter may prove the case; but however disagreeable the alternative is, common policy and our own safety requires it, and under such circumstances, I shall endeavour to govern myself in the manner that appears best calculated for the general security of all His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> subjects here.

The scituation of affairs since I had last the honor of addressing your Lord<sup>sh</sup> on these subjects has not varied materially, altho' the severity of the season, and the embassy from the Cherokeee keep them at present quiet, yet the motives for their discontent still subsists, and the lawless conduct of the Frontier inhabitants is the same whenever an opportunity offers, so that the event depends upon circumstances, that are as hard to foresee as to prevent, and as there is no prospect of any immediate remedy to be applied for these disorders, and the licentiousness of many of our own people, my endeavours must be directed to prevent their operations on the minds of the Indians, till a more favourable period, when the orders of Govern<sup>t</sup> will be treated with more respect, and the people brought to a better sense of their duty.—I have the honor to be with the most perfect esteem and respect.

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh's</sup> most obedient and most devoted humble servant

W<sup>m</sup> JOHNSON.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII.]

N<sup>o</sup> 37.

Whitehall. 17. February 1770.

Sir,

Your dispatches numbered 6, 7 and 8. have been received and laid before the King.

At the same time, that the King saw with satisfaction the commendable disposition of the Assembly to make provision for the Troops, the giving part of the money for this purpose out of a Fund that was to arise from the establishment of a paper currency, the Bill for which was depending at the privy Council Board, was a circumstance that could not escape His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s observation, & which your letter N<sup>o</sup> 6. did not enable me to explain; for it was impossible for me to suppose that, under the restriction laid upon you, by His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s instruct<sup>ms</sup> of July 1766, and informed as you was, that the Bill which passed the Council and Assembly in May 1769. was under His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s consideration, you could have taken upon you, without further directions, to have given your assent to another Bill for the same purpose, without a clause suspending it's execution, until His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure could be known; and I am yet at a loss to guess, at the reasons which induced the Members of the Council to advise you to a step so contrary to your duty and to your Instruct<sup>ms</sup>.

Your conduct on this occasion has justly incurred His Majesty's displeasure, which I am commanded to signify to you; and to observe to you that altho' the King considers the preserving the Colony in tranquility as a very desirable and commendable object, yet His Maj<sup>ty</sup> can never approve of any Gov<sup>rs</sup> seeking the attainment of it at the expence of his Instructions.

The merit, however, of your former services, and what you say in respect to the time fixed by the Act for its operation, which you state as an excuse for your conduct, prevail with His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to forbear any further remarks of his displeasure, trusting that you will not for the future suffer yourself to be withdrawn from your duty by any motive whatever.

It is necessary I should acquaint you, that the Bill transmitted by Sir Henry Moore had received the fullest consideration at the Council Board, before your letter to me N<sup>o</sup> 8. and that to the Lords of Trade inclosing the Act assented to by you, were received, and that the Lords of the Council had, as you will see by the inclosed order, advised His Majesty to reject it. The ground for this advice was, that those clauses by which the Bills of credit are made payable at the Treasury and Loan Office, were contrary to the Act of Parliament, which restrains paper Bills of Credit from being issued as a legal tender in payment of any debts, dues or demands whatsoever; and therefore this objection does in its nature shew in the strongest light, not only the impropriety of your having assented to this Act, but the risque to which you personally stand exposed by the terms of the Act of Parliament in consequence of having given your assent.

Under the circumstances of the disallowance of the former Bill for the reason above mentioned, no time was to be lost in laying before His Maj<sup>ty</sup> the Act transmitted by you to the Lords of Trade, and His Maj<sup>ty</sup> having in consequence thereof been pleased to disallow the said Act, inclosed you will receive the order in Council for that purpose, which you will cause to be promulged with all possible dispatch. But such is the paternal attention of His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to the wishes of his subjects, in New York, and His Royal disposition to concur in this object of them, that notwithstanding the steady opinion of all His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s servants that it is against the true interest of the Colony to have a paper currency attended with any degree of legal tender, yet I have reason to believe, the Parliament will be moved to pass an Act to enable the Legislature of New York to carry into execution the Bill they appear to be so desirous of.

The request of Lieut<sup>t</sup> Crukshanks<sup>1</sup> and others, expressed in the petition inclosed in your letter N<sup>o</sup> 7. appears to be founded in Justice & Equity, and I have His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands to refer the said Petition (together with a copy of your letter) to the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> for Trade and Plantations, and I shall not fail to recommend to their Lord<sup>sh</sup>ps to take the whole of what regards the Settlement of the Country of the West of Connecticut River into their consideration, so soon as other matters of great importance, now before them, will admit of it.

In consequence of the death of M<sup>r</sup> Yorke a few days after he received the great seal, His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has thought fit to commit the custody of it for the present to Commiss<sup>rs</sup>; and the Duke of Grafton having been permitted by His Majesty to retire from the Treasury Board, Lord North is become in consequence thereof, first Commissioner of that Board.

I am etc.

HILLSBOROUGH.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII.]

N<sup>o</sup> 9.

New York. 21. Feb<sup>ry</sup> 1770.

I know not how the objection made to the Bill for emitting £120000 in Bills of Credit, can be removed, for unless the Bills be received in the Loan Office and Treasury, they cannot be paid in or sunk, nor can the Interest be applied to the use for which it is designed. The making of them, a tender is carefully avoided; nor can they be a Tender in any sense, by this Act, in any contract whatsoever, the Loan Office and Treasury only excepted; but tho' those Offices are obliged to take them in, no person is obliged to receive them from either the one or the other. Nor can they be a Tender of any duty, quitrent or Fine.—By the preceeding packet I transmitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, the Bill under the seal of the Province, with my reasons for giving my assent to it, which I hope will be satisfactory; it is a consideration of some importance to the Govern<sup>t</sup> that as the Interest money cannot be applied, without the consent of the Gov<sup>t</sup> the supply for the Troops quartered in this Place, may for the future be secured, which has at all times met with opposition in the Assembly, and has been difficultly obtained.

The Session of Assembly ended the 27th of January, to general satisfaction, notwithstanding the assiduous endeavours of a party in opposition to Government to embarass affairs. A great number of Bills were passed at that Time, for continuing or receiving former Bills, and on subjects which relate to particular Counties, none of them of consequence to deserve your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s attention, except two. One entitled "An Act declaring certain persons therein mentioned incapable of being Members of the General Assembly of this Province"—an attested copy of which I inclose; as the Acts passed last session could not be transcribed for the seal before the Packet sails. By this Act, the Judges of the Supreme Court, and some other Officers of Govern<sup>t</sup> were made incapable of being elected Members of Assembly. The Council amended the Bill by striking out all the other Officers of Govern<sup>t</sup> to which Amendment the Assembly agreed.

The reasons given for this Bill are:

1st That none of the Judges in Great Britain or Ireland are allowed to sit in the house of Commons.

2nd That in good policy, Legislation, and the Execution of the Law, ought not to be in the same person.

3rd That in all Elections the Judges must have an improper influence on the Electors.

Lastly: It has been observed, that in former Assemblies where the Judges have had seats, they became attached to, or Leaders of Parties or Factions in the House, this gave a suspicion, that they were often byassed in their Judgement on the Bench, in favour of a party interest, all cause of jealousy of this kind ought to be avoided.

The present Assembly have repeatedly refused to admit M<sup>r</sup> Livingston, who is a Judge of the Supreme Court, to have a seat in their House, upon a Resolve made by them in their former Session. This may be an unconstitutional power, assumed by the Assembly, and is therefore much more safely vested in an Act of the Legislature. At all events, I thought it for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interest, that I should give my assent to the Bill, as thereby the matter is subjected to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure, which it was not, while it stood on a Resolve of the Assembly.

The other Bill which may deserve your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s attention, is entitled: "An Act to enable all "Persons who are His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s liege subjects, either by Birth or naturalization, to inherit and "hold real Estates, notwithstanding any defect of purchase made before Naturalization, within this Colony"—While this Bill was before the Council, I told them that, tho' the Bill in my opinion was framed with much equity, and not liable to the same objections with the Bill to which Sir Henry Moore refused his assent, yet, as the King's interest may be affected by it, I could not give my assent, without a suspending clause was added, which they did by an amendment and the Assembly agreed to it. On this occasion, I think it my duty to inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that the reason of the Assembly being averse to suspending clauses, is, they tell me, that such Bills have often hung long in suspense, without being taken into consideration.

All the Bills passed the last Session will be ready to be transmitted by the next Packet.

I inclose Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> the copy of an agreement made between General Gage and me, in pursuance of the Act of Parliament for applying the money granted by the last Act of Assembly, for the Troops quartered in this place. I doubt not, it will give Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> pleasure to find this Affair put upon a certain & regular footing for the present, and which must probably produce the like for the future.

I have the satisfaction to inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that among the Bills passed this Session, is one for appointing Commiss<sup>rs</sup> to meet Commiss<sup>rs</sup> from the neighbouring Colonies, to fix on a general plan for regulating the Indian Trade. This was the best measure that could be taken upon His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Gracious reference of this important affair to the Legislature of the several Colonies; and if properly adopted by all concerned, may produce the most, beneficial plan. I have sent copies of our Act to the Governors of the neighbouring Colonies, and have pressed them to procure the like to be passed in their Govern<sup>ts</sup>.

My Lord, it is my duty to inform Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that a violent party, continue their assiduous endeavours to disturb the Govern<sup>t</sup>, by working on the passions of the populace, and exciting riots, who in every attempt they have hitherto been unsuccessful. The last, might have been of fatal consequence, if not prevented by the prudent conduct of the Magistrates and Officers of the Army. An ill humour had been artfully worked up between the Towns people and Soldiers, which produced several affrays, and daily, by means of wicked incendiaries, grew more serious. At last some Towns people began to arm, and the Soldiers rushed from their Barracks to support their fellow Soldiers. Had it not been for the interposition of the Magistrates, and of the most respectab[le] Inhabitants, and of the Officers of the Army, it had become a very dangerous affair—as it was, only a few wounds and bruises were received on both sides. A very respectable number of the principal Citizens publicly met together, and sent 42 of their number to the Mayor, to assure the Magistrates of their assistance, in preserving the peace of the Town; and the Officers of the Army were no less assiduous in quieting the minds of the Soldiers, and in guarding against every accident, which might renew any dispute with the Towns people—since which, the place has remained quiet. It is not doubted here, that these disturbances were promoted by the Enemy of Govern<sup>t</sup>, in order to raise an indignation against the Assembly (then sitting) for granting money to the Soldiers, who were represented as ready to cut the throats of the Citizens.

The persons who appear on these occasions are of inferior rank, but it is not doubted they are directed by some persons of distinction in this place. It is likewise thought, they are encouraged by some persons of note in England. They consist chiefly of Dissenters, who are very numerous, especially in the Country, and have a great influence over the Country Members of Assembly. The most Active among them are independants from New England, or educated there, and of Republican principles. The friends of the administration, are of the Church of England, the Lutherans, and the old Dutch congregation, with several presbyterians. From this, the reason will appear of some Bills having passed the House of Assembly in favour of the Dissenters, & in prejudice to the few ministers of the Church of England, who have stipends by a Law of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>. There was less opposition to them in that house, from the confidence they had, that they would not be passed by the Council—they were accordingly rejected there. I must leave it to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s judgement, whether these things deserve His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s attention, and I transmit to the Plantation Board a printed copy of the journal of the Assembly to enable you to form your judgem<sup>t</sup> thereon.

In my letter of January 6th N<sup>o</sup> 8. I inclosed a printed copy of a libel directed: "To the "Betrayed Inhabitants of the City and Colony of New York" with a proclamation I issued, with the advice of the Council, and on an address of the Assembly, offering a reward of £100 for the discovery of the author. One Alexander McDougal is now in Jail; committed on the oath of the Printer and his Journey Men, as the author and publisher of that Libel. He is a person of some fortune, and could easily have found the Bail required of him, but he choose to go to Jail, and lyes there imitating M<sup>r</sup> Wilkes in every thing he can. When he comes to his Tryal it will appear what dependance we may have on a Jury of this place; the most respectable persons in the place, openly declare their opinion, that he highly deserves punishment.

My Lord, I now expect soon to remove from the Administration, on the arrival of the Earl of Dunmore.<sup>1</sup> It gives me great satisfaction, that in this short Administration, I have had an opportunity of doing something of importance for His Majesty's service. That a good agreement has been supported between the several branches of the Legislature—the friends of Govern<sup>t</sup> encouraged—the promoters of discord checked, His Majesty's gracious approbation of my conduct will make an old Man happy, and will prevent the unfavourable impressions which a sudden removal from Administration may occasion. This is however with great humility submitted by

My Lord,

Your most obedient and
faithful servant

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

To the KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY

May it please Your Majesty

We have had under Our Consideration an Act passed in Your Majesty's Province of New York in January 1770 intituled an Act declaring certain persons therein mentioned incapable of being Members of the General Assembly of this Colony whereupon we humbly beg leave to represent to Your Majesty.

That this Act being of a new and extraordinary nature & importance affecting Your Majesty's Prerogative &c and having on the ground of Reasons not applicable to the state of that Colony made a very essential alteration in its constitution, ought not in Our opinion to have been passed so as to have taken effect until Your Majesty's Royal Pleasure could have been known for which reason We humbly beg leave without entering further into the merits of the Regulations it adopts, to lay the same before Your Majesty for Your Majesty's Royal disallowance.

Which is most humbly submitted,

Earl of Hillsborough to Lieutenant-Governor Colden.

Whitehall. 14. April 1770.

Sir,

I have received, and laid before the King, your letter of the 27th February N<sup>o</sup> 9. together with the attested copy of the Act to which you have thought fit to give your assent, declaring the Judges of the Supreme Court incapable of sitting in the Assembly, and also the copy of an agreement entered into with Major General Gage, for the application of the money given by the General Assembly for providing necessaries for the King's Troops.

In my letter N<sup>o</sup> 37. I transmitted to you an order of His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in Council disallowing the Act for emitting £120000 in paper Bills of Credit; & I now inclose to you a farther order in Council, disallowing the Act for explaining the duty of the Loan Offices, as being consequential of, and dependant upon, the other Law.

It gives me great concern, after having in my last letter signified to you His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s displeasure on account of your having assented to the paper currency Bill without a suspending clause, to be again under the necessity of taking notice of a fresh instance of disobedience to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Instruc<sup>tes</sup>, in the like assent given to the Bill for disqualifying the Judges from sitting in the Assembly; a Bill, which is not only of a new and extraordinary nature, in every construction of those descriptive words, but is evidently founded on reasoning and precedents not applicable to the State of New York.

What measures His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may think fit to pursue when this Act comes before him in his privy Council, I will not presume to say, but I have thought it my duty to loose no time in receiving the King's Commands to lay it before the Lords of Trade, in order that they may make such Report thereupon as they shall think fit, and I shall be very glad if your reasoning upon the Act shall furnish their Lord<sup>sh</sup> with any arguments to extenuate the impropriety of your Conduct in a case of so much importance to the King's Govern<sup>t</sup>.

After the experience we have had of the little utility on the one hand, and the dangerous use that has been made on the other of meetings of Commissioners from the several Colonies, to consider of matters, in which they have a separate and distinct interest, I have at least great doubts of the propriety of giving encouragement to such a Congress for the purposes of regulating the Indian Trade; and whatever your own opinion might have been of the expediency of such a measure, it is past a doubt, that you ought not to have given your assent to any Law for such a purpose without His Majesty's Directions.

At the same time that the King sees with just displeasure these instances of disobedience to His Instructions, His Maj<sup>y</sup> commands me to say, that as far as your conduct has been really intended, and has operated, to promote a good agreement between the several branches of the Legislature, to encourage the Friends of Govern<sup>t</sup> and check the promoters of discord, it will be considered with every attention due to its merit.

Whitehall. 14. April 1770.

Sir.

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatch of the 10th of February N<sup>o</sup> 12.

The matter proposed to the Confederacy of the Six Nations by the Cherokees is of great importance, and it is with concern His Maj<sup>y</sup> observes that the answer to be given to the Cherokees is made to depend upon your opinion and advice, by which, the King will stand committed in measures, which, if they adopt the proposition of a war against the Southern and Western Indians, are irreconcilable with the principles of humanity and if on the contrary they tend to union of Indian interests and Politics, endanger the security of His Majesty's Colonies by enabling the Savages to turn their arms against us.

This consequence however, which you seem to think would follow from discouraging a War against the Southern and Western Indians, is certainly to be avoided if possible, and therefore the King however unwillingly, cannot but approve of your adopting the alternative, and making the security of his subjects and the peace of the frontiers, the principal object of your attention at the Congress, but it would be most pleasing to His Majesty, if it could be attained without encouraging the Savages in their barbarous attacks on each other.

It would have been more fortunate, upon every consideration, that this Congress could have been avoided, not only as it does in its consequences involve His Maj<sup>y</sup> as a Party in a business of so disagreeable a nature, but also as it will, I find, be attended with an expence beyond what your stated allowance will admit of.

The King however relies upon your assurances, on the one hand, that this expence is unavoidable, &, on the other, that the service shall be conducted with all the frugality and economy that is possible, consistent with the public safety; and, under these assurances, His Maj<sup>y</sup> approves of your applying to Major General Gage, who will have orders to defray what expence shall be absolutely necessary on this occasion.

It is to be hoped, that it will not be long before those Colonies, whose security depends upon the good will and affection of the Savages, will see the necessity of such regulations, as will be effectual to prevent those abuses, which at present give so much discontent to them. In the mean time you will not fail to exert every influence in your power to prevent these abuses from having such an operation upon the minds of the Indians, as to disturb that tranquility which is so essential to their true interest.

N<sup>o</sup> 10.

My Lord.

To have fallen under His Majesty's displeasure, as I find I have by your Lord's letter of the 17th of Febr<sup>y</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 37., gives me the deepest concern. I have had the honor to serve the Crown in this Province near 50 years, and have heretofore been happy in His Majesty's approbation of my conduct. It adds greatly to my affliction that I should have forfeited it when I am so near the close of Life; but I have this comfort, that however I may have erred, it was not from any want or neglect of duty, but from an error in judgement, thinking that giving my assent to the Bill for emitting Bills of Credit, at the time I did, was greatly for His Majesty's service, in preventing the Tumults and disorders with which the province was at that time threatened. The Chief Justice, and another Gentleman, eminent in the profession of the Law, were present, when the Council unanimously advised me to give my assent to that Bill, and were of opinion that, it contained nothing in it contrary to the Act of Parliament; and that the time allowed by the Act, before it was to take place, was equivalent to a suspending clause. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> blames me, for giving my assent, when I knew that a similar Bill, transmitted by Sir Henry Moore, was under consideration, and before I knew the result; but My Lord, the circumstances of the Province at that time, would not permit delay, and I must own, it was some inducement to me to give my assent, knowing that a similar Bill was then under consideration, and consequently that His Majesty's pleasure must be known before any part of the Act could take effect—and so it has happened—And in pursuance of your Lord's commands, I immediately published His Majesty's disallowance of the Act, that all persons may govern themselves accordingly.

My Lord, I flatter myself, you will indulge me in giving the State of the Province at that time. A violent faction prevailed in opposition to Government, and the authority of the Parliament of Great Britain, which from many circumstances appeared to be acting in concert with a similar Faction at Boston. Numerous papers were dispersed about the Town, exciting the people to sedition, and exasperating them against the Soldiers then quartered in this Place. The Soldiers walking peaceably in the Street, were several times attacked, beat and abused—this of consequence drew on their Resentment, and we should have had the same mischievous effects produced here, which have since happened at Boston, had not a body of the principal Inhabitants assured the Magistrates of their assistance in preserving the peace of the City, which, with the prudent conduct of the Magistrates and Officers of the Army, prevented this wicked design—Of this I informed Your Lord<sup>d</sup> in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 9.—The similarity of the proceedings of the Factions in this place and in Boston, will induce a belief that they acted in concert. But besides this, one of the Judges who is known to have connections with those who are thought to be the leaders of the Faction, advised the withdrawing of the Troops from this place, as the only method to allay the disturbances; and one of the Council who is known to have the same connections with the Judge, strenuously insisted that the withdrawing the Troops was the only method to restore peace to the Place. These I think strong proofs, that the views of the Factions in this Place and in Boston were the same—That they did not succeed here was owing to the principal Inhabitants being entirely pleased with the conduct of the Administration, and were resolved to support it, of which I have since that time received several public acknowledgements. The giving my Assent to the Bill for emitting bills of Credit, served much to reconcile the minds of the people and to put them in good humour. Had I refused my assent to this Bill, and had the Assembly granted no money for the Troops, as in that case they would not, the Faction would have succeeded in their design to disturb the Govern<sup>t</sup>, and it is not easy to say what might have been the consequences—Upon a Review of my conduct under these circumstances, I hope My Lord, His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may be graciously pleased to think more favourably of it.

The good effects of the harmony which prevailed between the several branches of the Legislature in the last Sessions, is very evident in the good order and submission to the Authority of Govern<sup>t</sup> which has ever since subsisted in this place—Govern<sup>t</sup> has renewed its strength, which the events of some past years had greatly weakened. A disappointed Faction by publishing the most gross calumnies & impudent lies, in order to asperse my character, and the characters of the Gentlemen joined with me in the Administration, have drawn upon themselves a general detestation; and so far sunk their own characters in the estimation of every Man of reputation that for the future they can have no general influence—and I hope from all these circumstances the Administration will be made much more easy to my successor, and that I shall have the pleasure to deliver the Govern<sup>t</sup> to His Lord<sup>d</sup> in good order and Tranquility—

<sup>1</sup> Major-General ALEXANDER MCDUGALL, afterwards of the Revolutionary army, was, some say, a native of Scotland; Allen says he was the son of a Scotchman who sold milk in the city of New-York, and that he was not ashamed to acknowledge that, when a boy, he assisted his father. He became early an active member of the body known as "Sons of Liberty," and was arrested in February, 1770, on a charge of being the author of the "Address to the Betrayed Inhabitants of New-York," and refusing to give bail was committed to prison by order of Chief Justice Horamanden. His friends represented his case as similar to that of Wilkes. The latter had brought down the vengeance of government by the publication of the North Briton, No. 45. This number became the watchword of McDougall's fellow patriots, and when asked their names, on seeking admission to their friend, their answer was—"We are forty-five," and saluted their champion with "forty-five" cheers. In the two months of his confinement, he was overrun with visitors. On the 20th of December following he was arraigned at the bar of the Assembly on the same charge, on which occasion he was defended by George Clinton, afterwards the first Governor of the State of New-York. A writ of habeas corpus was sued out in the course of the following month, but without any result, and Mr. McDougall was not liberated from his confinement until the 4th of March, 1771, when the Assembly was prorogued. In March, 1775, he was a member of the Provincial Convention, and was nominated as one of the candidates for the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, but was not elected; in the same year he received a commission as Colonel of the 1st New-York regiment. He rose in 1776 to the rank of Brigadier-General, and in the following year was present at the battle of Germantown. In 1777 he was appointed Major-General, and in 1778, superseded Putnam in the command of the Highlands. After the flight of Arnold, he was put in charge of West Point on the 5th October, 1780. In the year 1783, he was elected to represent the Southern District in the Senate of this State and continued a member of that body until his death, which occurred in June, 1786. At the time of his decease, General McDougall was president of the Bank of New-York, and in politics adhered to the Hamilton party. Leake's Life of John Lamb.—Ed.

letters N<sup>o</sup> 8 and 9. It is thought he cannot have his Tryal this Term, as the Court will be fully employed the few days they have to sit, in the Trial of capital criminals.

The Govern<sup>rs</sup> of Quebec and Pennsylvania have agreed to send Commissioners to meet the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, in order to form some plan for regulating the Indian Trade; and I expect they will meet at this Place the 10th of July next.

As I have had my duty constantly before my Eyes, and have pursued it sincerely to the best of my ability, the thoughts of closing my life under His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s displeasure, give me great pain, and that by any error, I may have forfeited Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s regard, for with the greatest truth I am

Your most obedient & faithful

New York. 16 May 1770.

My Lord,

By the repeal of the Act for emitting £120000 in Bills of Credit, one thousand pounds granted out of that fund, by the Assembly in their last Session, for supplying his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Troops quartered in this Place with necessaries, it become deficient. I have no hope given me that the Assembly will at this time supply that deficiency; and therefore I think it is prudent to delay calling the Assembly till after the arrival of Lord Dunmore, who must certainly have more influence, than, in my present situation I can have. The grant of money for the Troops is unpopular—we have two parties in violent opposition to each other—one is careful to preserve their popularity in order to secure their seats in the Assembly, and the other takes every method to gain popularity in hopes of a Dissolution of the Assembly on the arrival of a new Gov<sup>r</sup>.

The Merchants in this Place and in Philadelphia have under consideration, whether to import goods from Great Brittain or not. I am told, the majority, both in this place and Philadelphia are for importing, and that they will come to a determination in a few days.—The party in opposition to the present administration join with the people of Boston in measures to prevent importation, and for that purpose stole late in the night last week a procession of the Mob to expose a Boston Importer,<sup>1</sup> who happened to come to this place. The Magistrates knew nothing of the design till it was too late, otherwise I believe it would have

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your letter N<sup>o</sup> 10. in which you endeavour to justify your conduct in having given your assent to the Paper currency Bill by arguments drawn from the then State of the Colony, and as I have reason to believe from what you alledge that you erred from real good intention, I have not failed to represent your conduct in that light to His Majesty.

There certainly may be circumstances and situations in which a Gov<sup>t</sup> will find it necessary sometimes to depart from the strict letter of his Instructions, but then the motives for such deviations ought to be stated in the fullest manner, and no circumstance omitted that can either tend to his own justification or give information to Govern<sup>t</sup> of the true state of the Colony; I mention this in order to introduce the remark, that there are some Facts and observations relative to the State of New York in the letter to which this is an answer that were not stated in your former correspondence, but more particularly that of one of the Judges, and a Member of the Council, advising & strenuously insisting that the King's Troops should be withdrawn from the Colony, a Fact which, whether it respects the measure itself, or the persons who advised and supported it, is of great importance to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service, and ought to have been stated in the fullest and most explicit manner, and names not concealed, for as all public measures depend in a great degree, as to their effect, upon a knowledge of the true characters of Men in public situations, it will be very difficult to judge of the propriety of those measures without some knowledge of the principles by which the conduct of such Men is influenced, and the degree of Trust & confidence each Man is entitled to.

Inclosed I send you an order of His Majesty in Council containing a disallowance of the Act passed at New York in January last, declaring certain persons therein mentioned incapable of being Members of the General Assembly of that Colony, upon which order you will not fail to take such steps as have been usual and are necessary for carrying His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands into execution. I likewise inclose to you an Act passed in the last session of Parliament entitled: "An Act to enable the Gov<sup>t</sup> Council and Assembly of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Colony of New York, to pass an Act of Assembly for creating and issuing upon loan, paper Bills of Credit to a certain amount, and to make the same a legal tender in payments into the loan Offices and Treasury

“ of the said Colony ”—and I make no doubt, that if the Legislature of New York shall think fit to pass such a Law as the Parliament has authorized it will be approved by His Majesty—

[New-York Papers ( S. P. O. ) CLXII.]

N<sup>o</sup> 12.

New York. 7. July 1770.

My Lord,

It gives me the greatest concern to learn from your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter of the 4th of April N<sup>o</sup> 38. that I had incurred His Majesty's displeasure, by giving my assent to a Bill for disqualifying the Judges from sitting in Assembly. However necessary it appeared to me, for preserving a good agreem<sup>t</sup> between the branches of the Legislature, at a time, when assiduous endeavours were making to produce discord, I should not have done it, without a suspending clause, till His Majesty's pleasure be known, had I not been confident, that there would be no session of Assembly, before there had been sufficient time, to have His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure known in this place, and that in the mean time it could produce no effect. For this purpose I transmitted an attested copy of the Bill, by the first opportunity, before it could be engrossed as usual and the seal affixed.

Had your Lord<sup>sh</sup> known in what manner some of the Judges, at several times, have made use of their influence in Elections, not for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service, but with interested views, and afterwards in supporting a party in the house, you would not wonder that the Assembly, have it so much at heart to exclude them. I apprehend, that unless the Assembly be gratified in this point, it will remain a perpetual bone of contention, between them and the Gov<sup>r</sup>.—In my humble opinion, the Judges can be of more real use to the Crown, by being disinterested in all party disputes, without which, they cannot gain or preserve the general esteem of the people, or their sentiments have that weight on the minds of the people, which otherwise a Judge of sufficient ability & known integrity must always have.

I had not the least suspicion of any prejudice to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service from the meeting of the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the neighbouring Colonies, for regulating the commerce with the Indians. The Trade with the Indians from this Province, Pennsylvania and Quebec, is so much intermixed, that no plan can be effectual without their mutual consent: Coll: Carleton embraced the proposal heartily & desired the meeting to be at New York. Pennsylvania seems more cool. I have since that time received a letter from Coll: Carleton signifying that the Commissioners from Quebec cannot attend in the summer months, tho' we chose that time from an opinion that it would be most convenient for them, as traveling in the winter from Quebec is very difficult and often dangerous. I now suspect, that the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> will not meet, or if they do, they will not agree on any plan, by reason of the different interests of the several Colonies. Sir William Johnson is likewise of this opinion.

My Lord, I flatter myself that from the good effects of the measures, which the administration of Govern<sup>t</sup> in this Province has adopted, that they will receive His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation, and will excuse what otherwise might have been partly blamed. The principal Inhabitants are now heartily united in favour of Govern<sup>t</sup> with a resolution to suppress all riots and tumultuous meetings, and I am perswaded, that if the same measures be pursued, this Prov<sup>ce</sup> will be in tranquillity and good order.

Soon after it was known that the Parliam<sup>t</sup> had repealed the duties on Paper, Glass etc. the Merchants in this place sent to Philadelphia that they might unitedly agree to a general importation of every thing except Tea. They at first received a favourable answer, and their agreement to the proposal was not doubted; but soon after a letter was received at Philadelphia, from a Gentleman in England, on whom the Quakers in that place, repose the greatest confidence, advising them to persist in non importation, till every internal Taxation was taken off; this changed the measures of Philadelphia; but the principal Inhabitants of this place continue resolved to shew their gratitude, for the regard the Parliament has in removing the grievances they complained of. As there still remains a restless Faction, who from popular arguments, rumours and invectives, are endeavouring to excite riots and opposition among the lower class of people, a number of Gentlemen went round the Town to take the sentiments of Individuals. I am told, that 1180, among which are the principal Inhabitants, declared for importation, about 300 were neutral or unwilling to declare their sentiments, and a few of any distinction declared in opposition to it. I am informed likewise that the Merchants of this place resolved to acquaint the Merchants of Boston and Philadelphia with their inclinations to import. Having removed from the City to my house in the Country, after the Earl of Dunmore's furniture arrived, that the Gov<sup>t</sup>'s house may be fitted up for his reception, I am not sufficiently informed of the final resolution of the Merchants, but I believe they are resolved to import. Of this, Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be informed with certainty from the Merchants in London their correspondents. The Packet being ready to sail next morning obliges me to close my letter before I receive perfect information of the resolution of the Merchants.

The disorders in North America began, while the administration of Govern<sup>t</sup> was in my hands, while no Gov<sup>r</sup> in any of the Colonies had sufficient authority to suppress them; I am happy that now, while the Administration is again in my hands, the People of this Province, set an example to the other Colonies of returning to their duty. All Men of property are so sensible of their danger, from Riots and tumults, that they will not rashly be induced to enter into combinations, which may promote disorder for the future, but will endeavour to promote due subordination to legal authority.

From the different Political and Religious principles of the Inhabitants opposite parties have at all times and will exist in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, which at different times have taken their denomination from some distinguished person or family which has appeared at their head; but you may be assured, My Lord, that it is not in the power of any one family to distress the Govern<sup>t</sup>, while the Administration is conducted with prudence, which often requires a compliance with popular humours.

I am so far advanced in years, that it is most desirable to retire, with the reputation of having gained; and if at the same [time] I can gain His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation, I shall be very happy, for I have had His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service sincerely at heart. If I shall be so happy, I make no doubt of preserving Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s regard, and am with the greatest respect & submission

My Lord, Your most obedient etc:

CADWALLADER GOLDEN.

My Lord,

The Faction in opposition to importation from Great Brittain, having last week attempted by every method in their power by Riots, Clamour and threats, to deter the Merchants in this place from agreeing to import, without the concurrence of Philadelphia and Boston. The Merchants were desirous to know the sence of the Inhabitants with certainty in a matter of so great consequence, and after my last of the 7th inst: was wrote, desired to have the packet detained a few days, which was accordingly done to the Wednesday following. Persons on both sides of the question, were appointed to go from house to house to collect the sentiments of the Inhabitants. I am informed, that a great majority declared for importing, and consequently I make no doubt, the Merchants send their orders for importing, by this packet. This is of so great importance that I think it my duty, to give your Lord<sup>sh</sup> the earliest notice of it; it must be agreeable to you as it will give a favourable impression to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> of his subjects in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>. It gives me great pleasure to have it accomplished, while the Administration is in the hands of — My Lord — your etc.

Alexander Colden to Anthony Todd, Esq., Secretary to the Postmaster-General.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXIII.]

11 July 1770.

Sir,

A day or two before the Duke of Cumberland Packet Boat sailed, the Principal and most numerous of the Merchants of this City, had a meeting and came to a resolution, that proper persons should go, thro' the several wards of the City with two subscriptions, the one for non importation, the other for importation, in order to collect the sentiments not only of the Merchants, but of the Mechanicks and every inhabitant relative to importing goods from Great Brittain as formerly.

At that time it plainly appeared by the lists a great majority was for importing; upon which the Committee of Merchants dispatched Expresses, to Philadelphia and Boston, informing the Merchants at these places the sentiments of this City. At this time it was known the generality of the Merchants of Philadelphia inclined to break through the nonimportation agreement, but before the Express reached Philadelphia, a letter was published in the Philadelphia papers from a Gentleman in London on whose opinion and advice it is said, the Quakers and those in their interest entirely rely, the purport of which letter was advising the Philadelphians by all means to abide by their non importation agreement, as the only means of obtaining full redress from the grievancies they complained of; this made the Philadelphians change their sentiments and resolve to abide by their agreement. You will see the Committee of Merchants at New York Letters, to the Merchants at Philadelphia and Boston published in the papers, and also the above letter from London and the Merchants answers to our Committees letter. The answers from Philadelphia and Boston did not discourage the principal and most thinking Merchants amongst us from perusing their scheme, not doubting they should soon bring about a general consent in this City to break through the nonimportation agreement, being sensible, many families must starve if an importation of goods from Great Britain did not soon take place, for many could not subsist their families, especially the Mechanics, unless we imported sundries of which we at present stand in absolute need of and can't get elsewhere, this would have been effected some weeks ago, had it not been for the opposition of a small, inconsiderable, noisy, blustering Faction whose whole aim is to keep the Country in confusion in order to answer their purposes, and keep up a popularity, which by vile means, they have obtained among the lower class of the Mechanics and Inhabitants, well knowing, should an importation take place, they would loose that popularity, be disregarded by every honest Man, and well-wisher to his Country, and sink into their former state of being despised and perhaps treated (as they justly deserve) as Enemies to their Country. Notwithstanding the principal Gentlemen and Merchants have been at great pains to show the unreasonableness of abiding by the nonimportation agreement (after the Legislature of Great Britain had been graciously pleased to repeal the Act relative to laying duties on sundry articles) except that on Tea) and how much it would redound to the honour of this Province immediately to shew their gratitude for this favour by ordering all kind of goods from home on which there was no duty to be paid in America (things remained in a fluctuating state till last Friday evening) the night before the mail by the Halifax Packet was to be closed) a number of Merchants met at a Tavern and then agreed at all events to send their orders by the Packet to send them goods as usual, except Tea. The Faction being informed of this Resolution published an inflammatory anonymous advertisement the next morning, desiring all the Inhabitants to meet that day at 12 o'clock at the City Hall, where the Faction & their Cabal (such as they were) met accordingly; amongst the number of the principal of them was one Isaac Sears<sup>1</sup> (who, you will find often mentioned, of late in our papers) Capt<sup>n</sup> M<sup>c</sup>Dougald the American Wilks and some others of the same kidney. Every Merchant of any note met at the same time at the Coffee House, and a number of other Gentlemen. The Cabal at the City Hall proposed an opposition to importation, and as I have been informed (whether true or not, I don't presume to say but do not doubt it) Isaac Sears publicly declared if any Merchant, or number of Merchants presumed to break through the non importation agreement till the several Provinces had agreed to do the same, he would loose his life in the attempt, or the goods imported should be burnt as soon as landed, and strenuously advised that every measure in the power of that Faction should be attempted to frustrate the resolutions taken or to be took by the Gentlemen and Merchants for bringing about an Importation. The Merchants met at the Coffee House resolved to use their best endeavours to bring it to pass, and resolved, that persons of note should again be sent thro' the several Wards to take the same<sup>1</sup> of all the Inhabitants on this subject in general, and made not the least doubt, but by far the greatest number would be for importation. This being agreed to only about 1 o'clock last Saturday, and the Mail was to close at 12. that night it would be impracticable to know the result time enough to send the necessary order to their correspondents for goods by this Packet which, they were very desirous to do as early as possible—Wherefore they appointed Committee of their body to wait on me desiring me to detain the Packet for two or three days, which I told them I could not possibly do without breaking through my Instructions. They then sent to the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> who was out of Town at his Country seat about 17 miles off, and sent some of the Committee to the General, requesting the Packet might be detained; upon their application to the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> and to General Gage, they wrote me the following letters :

Upon receipt of these letters, joined with the applications the Merchants made to myself, I agreed to detain the Packet till this day, not doubting but I should have the happiness of their Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s the Postmaster General's approbation for so doing; and immediately advertised that the Packet was detained and to sail this day. I am now closing the mail, and the Packet will sail as soon as the Tide permits.

<sup>1</sup> JAMES PARKER was born in Woodbridge, N. J., and served his apprenticeship to William Bradford the first printer in New-York. He commenced business when Bradford retired, about the year 1752, and began the N. Y. Gazette and Postboy, a weekly newspaper, in January, 1743, on the discontinuance of Bradford's Gazette. In November, 1742, he began the publication of the New-York Reflector, containing moral and political essays, but no news. Gov. Livingston, President Burr of N. J. College, John Morin Scott, W. Alexander Lord Stirling, and Smith, the New-York Historian, were the chief contributors. He printed at Woodbridge a folio edition of the laws of the Province of New Jersey, and in January, 1753, formed a partnership with William Weyman, which continued for six years. At the commencement of the French war it was deemed proper to establish a post-office at New Haven and James Parker was appointed, in 1754, the first postmaster, by Benjamin Franklin, then at the head of the department in America. Having secured the post-office, he formed a partnership with John Holt, another printer, and sent out a press from New-York at the close of the year. The first work from this press was the laws of Yale College in Latin. A newspaper followed in January, 1755. During all this time his residence was mostly at Woodbridge, where he managed the press on his own account, and printed a monthly magazine for more than two years. Having dissolved partnership with Weyman, his printing house and newspaper in New-York devolved on him. He assigned the paper to his nephew, Samuel, who printed the Postboy until July, 1760; when Holt, having closed his concerns at New Haven, came to New-York, Parker, who still resided at New Jersey, formed a partnership with him, which lasted until April, 1762. In 1765 he removed his Woodbridge press to Burlington, where he began and completed Smith's History of New Jersey, pp. 570, demy 8vo., and then returned with his press to Woodbridge. Thomas' History of Printing. In 1766 Holt retired and Parker resumed business in connection with his nephew. At this office the Address of a Son of Liberty "To the Betrayed Inhabitants of New-York" was printed in December, 1769, and one of the journeymen having informed the authorities of that fact, Parker, though still residing in New Jersey, was arrested on a charge of having printed a Seditious Libel. He was pardoned, however, on furnishing the name of the author. Book of Commissions, V., 439. Parker was a correct and eminent printer; besides his professional concerns, he held various public employments; among others that of Comptroller and Secretary of the General Post-Office for the Northern District of the British Colonies. He possessed a sound judgment and a good heart; was industrious in business and upright in his dealings. He died July 2, 1770, at Burlington, N. J., and was conducted by a large concourse of his fellow citizens from Burlington and Amboy, to the place of interment at Woodbridge, where his remains were deposited with those of his ancestors. Thomas, II., 121, 122.

<sup>2</sup> ALEXANDER COLDEN, eldest son of the Lieutenant-Governor, was born, we presume, in Philadelphia, in 1716, and in 1737 was appointed Ranger of the county of Ulster, N. Y., which then included "Coldenham," a small district of country about midway between Newburgh and the village of Montgomery, in the present town of Montgomery, Orange county, N. Y., where his father had property, and where he (Alexander) kept a country store, at which the early settlers of the town and those west to Shawangunk mountains were in the habit of trading. He was appointed Joint Surveyor-General with his father in 1751, and succeeded to that office in 1762, and was Postmaster of New-York until his death. He left four daughters and two sons; his eldest daughter married Captain Archibald Hamilton, of the 31st Foot; his second daughter married John Antilk who entered the British service and was, after the peace of 1783, obliged to leave the country, and settled in Canada; his third daughter married Captain (since Colonel) Anthony Farrington, of the Royal Artillery; his eldest son, Richard, married a lady at the Isle of Man, and left two sons in this country; and his second son was lost at sea. Alexander Colden died in New-York in 1775, in the 59th year of his age. Eager's History of Orange County, 236, 239, 246. — En.

Johnson Hall. 12. July. 1770.

My Lord.

Since I wrote your Lord<sup>p</sup> on the 10th of Febr<sup>y</sup> last N<sup>o</sup> 12. I have been honored with your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s letter N<sup>o</sup> 12 inclosing his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s speech for which I offer my most humble thanks, as also your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s letter N<sup>o</sup> 13. in answer to my dispatch concerning the proposed Congress, on which subject I am extremely happy to find that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> approves of the alternative, which I thought was the only one that under the circumstances I have had the honor to represent could be adopted with safety to the public.

As I was so fortunate as to foresee the sense of Govern<sup>t</sup> on this embarrassing occasion, I do assure your Lord<sup>p</sup> that I took infinite pains, to avoid the Congress, but I find, that it cannot be either set aside, or postponed with safety, and above six hundred of the Indians being already come to the place of Rendez-vous, I purpose to set out to morrow to meet them, judging that about the time of my arrival there, which is fifty miles from hence, the whole will be assembled, and I am very sorry to hear, that there will be so considerable a number of them, because there is the greatest scarcity of all provisions at present throughout these parts, the crops being almost totally destroyed by Catterpillars, and in the Indian Country many Corn fields are entirely ruined. After great trouble and difficulty I have at length got out of the hands of the Committee of Non Importers at New York a Cargoe of Indian goods, without which I dont know, how I should have gone to the Congress, for whatever is the occasion, we cannot meet those people, without some proofs of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s esteem, more especially at some periods, as now, when Indian goods are so scarce, that several parties have gone thro' all the stores and shops within 100 miles without being able to procure a dozen Blankets, and when it has been industriously propagated amongst them, by some very weak people that the scarcity is occasioned by the King who has ordered that no goods shall be sent over to them; this very dangerous Report is so universal amongst them, that I have been told of it in very warm terms by above a hundred Indians, within the course of the present week; many of them have brought down their Peltry & Furrs, and returned almost naked, and full of resentment the Effects of which I am so sensible of, that I thought it my duty to undeceive them in the best manner I could on a point of such delicacy, where the occasion of their present wants and disappointments cannot be transferred from one to another, without some danger to the Public.

You see My Lord, some of the difficulties in which my station involves me, but I have firmness enough to support me under greater, when his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interest demands it of me, and the confidence, which I know, the Indians repose in me, will I trust enable me to clear up these disagreeable matters, so as they may not have any ill consequences, to which end the presents will greatly contribute by removing the apprehensions till more favourable times shall set all matters right.

I purpose at the Congress, when agreeable to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s orders, proceed to the ratification of the Fort Stanwix Treaty, to convince them that he has no desire for the Lands they ceded to the Southward of Kanhawa River, and to explain these points in a way that I hope will be satisfactory to the few of their Insatiable dependants, who have pretended to be discontented at the extent of a session so fully agreed to in the largest assembly that was ever yet held of the true and real proprietors, and as I hear from the Southward that the Cherokees deny that their Deputy's have orders to draw the Northern Nations into so extensive a war as has been represented to me, I shall study to avail myself of it, in altering their purposes, but should it appear, that the authority of these Deputy's is indisputable, and that the Northern Ind<sup>m</sup> cannot be diverted from their purposes with any safety to the public, I shall in that case make it as much their own affair as possible, & endeavour to act in the manner most agreeable to his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s inclinations, as expressed in your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter to me. I foresee much trouble and difficultys in the course of the intended Congress, as well from the discontent shewn for so long a time by many of the Indians, and the very disagreeable Report before mentioned, as from the want of any appointments for the Regulation of Trade, and the little prospect there is of its ever being duly attended to, but on all these matters, I shall endeavour to give them the utmost satisfaction in my power to prevent their operating to any disagreeable purposes. And his Maj<sup>ty</sup> may be assured that on this or any other occasion, I shall never presume to recommend or incur any expence, unless I am convinced from experience of its necessity, and in that case I shall conduct myself with the strictest honour and integrity, and with a frugality proportioned to the exigency and importance of the service.—As I hope, within a few weeks to give your Lord<sup>sh</sup> an acc<sup>t</sup> of the result of my transactions, I have only at present to add, that I am with all imaginable respect—My Lord—etc.

My Lord,

As His Majesty's ship Tweed, which is destined to carry your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to New York is (I understand) now ready for the Sea, I inclose to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Instructions for your guidance and direction in the administration of that Govern<sup>t</sup>, and I am to signify to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> His Majesty's commands, that you should prepare to embark with as much dispatch as your Health and private affairs will permit.

I have the satisfaction to acquaint Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> hath been graciously pleased to direct by a warrant upon his Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Customs in America, that a Salary of £2000 per annum should be paid to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> from the date of your Commission, out of the Revenue arising in America by the duty upon Tea; and I am to signify to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands, that you do not accept any Salary, or any gift or allowance whatsoever from the Assembly of New York.

The inclosed copy of a declaration made by King William at the Treasury Board in 1698, will inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the regulation established with respect to the emoluments of the Govern<sup>t</sup> in America, in case of a Devolution of Govern<sup>t</sup> by the death or absence of the Chief Gov<sup>r</sup>; and it is His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure, that a moiety of the perquisites and Emoluments of the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York be accounted for and paid to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> from the date of your Commission to the time of your arrival.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) No. 256.]

N<sup>o</sup> 14.

Johnson Hall. 14. August. 1770.

My Lord.

On the 12 ult<sup>o</sup> I had the honour to write Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> my letter N<sup>o</sup> 13. previous to my journey to hold a Congress with the Northern Indians and Deputys from the Southward, from whence I returned some days ago attended by so many Tribes and Messengers on the private business of each nation, that it was not in my power earlier to transmit the proceedings which I now have the honour to inclose.

From my last letter, your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has been enabled to form some judgement of my embarrassment arising from the disagreeable nature of the business I had to engage in, on which account I held many Conferences (too long to be inserted) with the leading men of each Nation, upon my arrival at the place of Congress, to which the issue and determination of the Indians as contained in the papers herewith transmitted must be entirely attributed; they having at length agreed thro' the pains I took, and the extraordinary prudence and good conduct of some of the Chiefs, whose abilities and influence were peculiarly exerted upon that occasion, to stop proceedings against the Southern Indians, until they shall propose terms of accommodation, and to decline their intended application for our assistance & support in the war, a circumstance which gave me much uneasiness at first, as I found that they came with a determined resolution to demand it in public, and that not so much from necessity as with design thereby to judge of the nature of our friendship, and the regard we paid to former engagements, of which they entertain great doubts; concluding upon this to be a favourable occasion that must finally determine & direct their conduct towards us, for as strict alliances with them are considered both offensive & defensive any evasion or refusal from us would undoubtedly in their present disposition have so far increased their suspicions and resentment as to make our Trade and Frontiers feel the effects of that spirit of War, which now predominates amongst them, at a time when we are very ill calculated to defend the one or the other, however matters may be misrepresented with regard to our strength or their weakness, for whilst they exist in their present state, they are able to make us severely to feel their power without the possibility of their sustaining a proportionate loss even from a vigorous exertion of our abilities, so that, My Lord, disagreeable as the alternative was on which the issue of the proceedings first appeared to depend, I found that a trifling circumstance when compared with the prospect of either drawing his Maj<sup>ty</sup> contrary to the principles of humanity to be an Actor in their quarrels, or to see at least a temporary end put to the Indian Trade, and the total ruin of those settlements which industry and peace have added to the Colonies; this, I thought myself bound to prevent as well from humanity as duty, and I hope the measures I pursued for that purpose will be honoured with his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation, as in so doing I carefully avoided discovering what would have been the resolutions of the Crown, and so conducted it as to make the issue of the Congress flow from their own resolutions on a farther and more mature consideration of the business proposed.

The number of the Indians who attended upon this occasion being the great scarcity owing to the destruction of the Farmers' crops this year, and the particular obligations I was under, to the steadiness and good behaviour of so many leading Men amongst them, which I was under the necessity of rewarding over & beside the present, but particularly the distress they were in for clothing etc, from the total want of Indian goods, have encreased the expence of this Congress much beyond my inclinations, but as it was unavoidable, I trust all things considered, it will be found cheap, salutary and advantageous to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interests, without a due regard to which I should not have incurred it.

The rest of the proceedings which consisted in the Ratification of the Treaty at Fort Stanwix and the subject of grievances, will require my saying some little upon. As to the first, your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will observe sufficiently from the public conferences, the satisfaction expressed by the Ind<sup>ns</sup> at the whole of that Treaty with the resolutions they have taken to render it permanent and acceptable to all their dependants. The latter are only the principal grievances which were spoken in public, besides which there were many others of an inferiour nature not inserted, as they would have added much to the bulk of my transactions and might be deemed unworthy the attention of Government, they nevertheless gave me much trouble and occasioned great delay, which was of most concern to me, as the daily maintenance of such a number of Indians amounted to a large sum, to abridge which I gave them my whole time both by day and night & thereby considerably shortened the time of our sitting. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will find that the principal grievances complained of in public regarded the conduct of our Frontier inhabitants towards them, and the state of the Indian Trade; the first (as I have repeatedly observed) is what they have but too much reason to complain of, and which they have retaliated in a very few instances, tho' I know the contrary is too often represented, I have on former occasions said so much of the Licentious spirit of the Inhabitants, on the southern Frontiers, that I need only add, that it still continues, and that <sup>1</sup> malevolence and disregard to all Treatys is still demonstrated whensoever they fall in the way of any small parties, or single Indians. Even since I begun this letter I have received Dispatches from Mr Croghan<sup>2</sup> my Deputy now at Fort Pitt acquainting me that a Soldier had shot an Indian there, and that another was killed by a Virginian two days after near to Chate River; the continuance of which proceedings will render all transactions with them abortive, and altho' agreeable to their wishes, some further directions to the Governors would give pleasure to the Indians; yet I fear it is not in the present state of things in the power of our governments here to put a stop to these evils.

As to the affairs of Trade, I wish I could say that they had no cause of complaint, but the contrary has been too often manifested of late; Commiss<sup>rs</sup> have been appointed to meet from some of the Colonies, but it is not expected that any expence will be incurred adequate to the service, in which case it is much better to do nothing, and that, it is thought will be the consequence of their meeting. But a still greater and more alarming circumstance arose from the wants and disappointments of the Indians, in consequence of the non-importation agreements; these with whom they Traded embraced that opportunity of accounting for the cause of their wants, as prejudice dictated, and therefore had just fallen<sup>3</sup> upon a happy mode of explanation, or they been accustomed to doubt the veracity of the Traders, it would have had the worst consequences. These secret negotiations which from their Bulk cannot appear on the face of the proceedings are the ground work of the whole, and the before mentioned circumstance proved no small addition to the expence, as I was willing to falsify a representation of so villanous and dangerous a tendency, persuaded that in so doing I should be approved of.

Another circumstance much complained of as well during the Treaty, as since by those Indians who accompanied me to this place, is: of the great cargoes of Rum, which (of late in particular) are sent amongst them to their ruin as they call it; many Traders carry little or nothing else, because their profits upon it are so considerable, and whatever resolutions they enter into, the Indians have not virtue enough to withstand the temptation when it comes amongst them. They therefore beg it may not be suffered to come to their Castles or hunting places, and indeed the licentious abuse of the sale notwithstanding its peculiar profit, is extremely hurtful to the Trade in general from its effects upon the Indians, besides its giving encouragement to the meanest and most profligate Traders to go amongst them; in that, neither capacity or knowledge of the Indians, or their language is necessary for the sale of it. But very little remedy can be expected here against the abuse of that liquor, tho' its effects are daily manifested. Again, when Indians are assembled on public affairs, there are always Traders secreted in the neighbourhood, and some publicly who not only make them intoxicated during the time intended for business, but afterwards get back great part of their presents in exchange for spirituous liquors of the worst kind, thereby defeating the intentions of the Crown, and causing them to commit many murders, & other disorders, as well amongst the Inhabitants as themselves. This is grievously complained of by the Indians, but I know of no penal Law at present subsisting for restraining the sale of that pernicious Liquor, even during public business, which I humbly conceive should be recommended to the immediate attention of the American Legislatures, as well as some Law for the more effectual apprehending and punishing offenders on the Frontiers in a summary way. Another head of which your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may find the Indians make mention, is the want of Religious teachers. On this subject they greatly enlarged at several conferences I had with them, and appear to consider it as so great a neglect in Government that I judged it most advisable to give them better hopes and thereby put an end to their murmuring. The Majority of Indians, 'tis true, do not as yet request it, but even they, consider our neglecting to gratify those that are so disposed, as a further instance of our indifference and disregard. I have, I believe formerly mentioned this subject on application from some of the Tribes, it is now become a matter of more serious concern from the earnestness with which the whole were about to second the desire of a few, and when so fair an opportunity is afforded, I apprehend it is unnecessary to enlarge on the advantage it must be of to the state, to secure those, who have been already instructed in its Religion, and to render diffusive those Religious and civil sentiments that are best calculated for its advantage and support. The Mohawks have had Missionaries of the Church of England amongst them, from the Reign of Queen Anne till within these few years, they are now without any and from the scarcity of Clergymen, or some other cause, the Society cannot procure them on the Salary, wh<sup>ch</sup> their small funds have limited them to, whilst at the same time, the Indians find, that their Brothers in Canada, who were our Enemies, are regularly supplied, and one lately appointed in Nova Scotia at the expence of Government as 'tis said, I therefore cannot help at the intreaty of the Indians, humbly recommending to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s consideration, the affording some allowance for the Mohawk Mission, which has always been under the immediate protection of the Crown, declaring it as my belief, that if any further provision could be made to employ others in so good a work, it would increase their reverence for the Crown, and their attachment to the British Interest. The other matters spoken upon during the Treaty (tho' they occupied a good part of my time then, and occasioned several hundred Indians to follow me home) are such as I trust may be settled without any trouble to Government. The Messages, which the Indians have resolved upon to send to the South and Westward, supported by the steps I shall take, will I hope have weight, and prove serviceable in a high degree, and in order to be armed against any thing that may in another quarter threaten to disturb the public tranquillity, I have taken measures to be informed as early as possible with the proceedings & issues of the Congress, which they are about this time to hold at the great plains of Sioto near the Ohio, where some are endeavouring to form Confederacys for very bad purposes. secretly countenanced and supported by French Traders, Renegadoes and all those Indians, who have not hitherto been heartily attached to the English, but with wonderfull art, have for a time past endeavoured to shake the fidelity of the Six Nations, thro' the means of some of the Seneca Towns, who are most dissatisfied with our conduct.—I have in the course of this letter touched upon the principal subjects of both, the public and private conferences at the late Congress, this, is as much as I could do from the variety of matters that occur upon such occasions, which, however trivial in appearance, demand my particular attention. Upon the whole I must observe that the Indians are at present in a state of uncertainty as to what course they shall take; the measures lately taken have strengthened the fidelity of our friends and afforded a temporary satisfaction to others, but it is on the continuance of them and the adoption of the wisest measures for their redress and satisfaction we must solely rely for the securing their fidelity, which tho' comparatively of little moment, when weighed with the great objects of concern, wherein the Crown is so deeply interested, is nevertheless in a relative view, from a variety of peculiar circumstances worthy the most serious consideration, and therefore I most humbly recommend the heads herein stated<sup>1</sup> of, as what may be productive of the most happy effects to this Country. If by any means they can be carried into execution under the auspices of the Crown, to promote which, My Lord, my whole influence & the small remainder of my health, shall be most willingly devoted. I hope to be honoured with your Lord<sup>r</sup>'s commands on the foregoing subjects, and am with the highest respect My Lord,

Your Lordship's most devoted and
most humble servant.

Proceedings of Sir William Johnson with the Indians.

Proceedings at a Treaty with the Six Nations, the Indians of Canada, the several Dependant Tribes, and the Deputies from the Cherokee Nation, held at the upper settlements, near the German Flatts in July 1770, by Sir William Johnson Baronet.

On Sunday the 15th of July 1770. Sir William Johnson, accompanied by Colonel Daniel Claus, Col: Guy Johnson Dep: Agents, Richard Shuckburgh Esquire Secretary for Indian Affairs, & several other Gentlemen from the neighbouring settlements, set out from Johnson Hall, and on Monday the 16th arrived at the place for holding the Treaty, where were assembled about 1600 Indians, and many more yet expected. At 2. P. M. the Speaker of the Six Nations, came to Sir William's Quarter to be informed, when they should make their first visit, and whether they should come in a body, or each Nation separately; to which Sir William answered, that, as the house in which he resided, was too small to admit them, he would cause a large arbour to be made in the Field, where he would receive them all the next morning. At 6. p. m. 80 Indians arrived from Onoghquagey,<sup>1</sup> and other villages on the branch of Susquihanna the Chiefs of whom waited on Sir William, who after the usual ceremony, ordered them provisions, and sent them to their quarters. In the evening 16. Algonkins etc. arrived, who informed Sir William, that they had left seven canoes of Chipaweighs n<sup>r</sup> Oswego, on their way to the Congress. —

Tuesday the 17th The Bunt Chief of Onondaga, with the speaker of that nation, waited on Sir W<sup>m</sup> early in the morning and acquainted him, that their head warrior Diaquanda had refused to attend to business, and encamped with another Nation, which gave them all concern, and would greatly interrupt their proceedings; but as he was Sir William's particular friend, and much under his influence, hoped that he would make use of it to persuade him to return to them.—Sir William gave them a gracious answer and assured them that he would use his influence to that end.

Sir William accordingly sent for Diaquanda, and after some discourse, at length persuaded him to join, and assist his Nation in Council, for which he received their sincere thanks.

The Indians not being all assembled as yet, Sir William received visits from the Chiefs, and held several private meetings with the principal Men of each nation, from whom he received much useful and interesting information, respecting the sentiments and present disposition of the Indians. —

In the evening the old Sachems of Onoghquagey, came to Sir Williams quarters to acquaint him of Thomas King's (one of their Chiefs) having some days ago, unfortunately killed a young Tuscarora, for which he was so much concerned, that he determined to return the next day to the Village, where he committed the Murder, and submit himself to the Will of the Friends of the Deceased. Sir William Told them, that he was extremely sorry for the death of their friend, desiring them to tell Thomas King that he would talk with him on that subject, and contribute his endeavours, that the affair might be amicably accommodated.

<sup>2</sup> Captain NORMAN McLEOD entered the army in January, 1756, as Ensign in the 42d Highlanders, on the augmentation of that regiment preparatory to its embarking for America, and served under Lord Loudon in Nova Scotia; under General Abercrombie in the expedition against Ticonderoga in 1758; he accompanied the expeditions under Amherst on Lake Champlain and down the St. Lawrence in 1759, 1760. Having been transferred to the 80th or Gage's Light Infantry, he was commissioned Captain Lieutenant of that corps on 4th October, of the latter year, and served in it until its reduction in 1763, when he went on half pay, and was, some time after, appointed Commissary at Niagara. Brother Warraghiyagey.—We are very happy to see you here this day at our particular request. You know, Brother, that when the Deputies who are now here from the Cherokee Nation, first came to our Fire place at Onondaga, to request on behalf of their Nation, that we should join them in making War upon the troublesome people who were their Enemies, and from whom ourselves have received several insults; as it was an affair of importance, which required much deliberation, tho' inclined to agree to their desires, yet, as none of our Confederacy from Canada were present, and as we had given you assurances that we should not enter into any engagements without your concurrence, and approbation; we thought it most fitting to send Deputies to you, requesting you would assemble the Whole of our Conferacy, that we might confer together thereon.—Brother, We are very thankful that you have complied with our request, as people in alliance should do, and we are now to acquaint you, that agreeable, to the Belts and Messages sent amongst us, we are all now met here from Ohio to Canada, to a considerable number; and I do now on behalf of all those Nations here assembled, take you by the hand, sincerely wellcoming you to this place, where we have kindled up a fire, and where, I hope the business we meet upon, will go on, to our mutual satisfaction—

Then after acquainting the Indians of the death of an Oneida child, since they left their village he proceeded.

Brother.—Agreeable to the Ancient custom established by our wise Forefathers, that whenever we meet, we should mutually condole each other for our losses, and as we suppose, that you have doubtless sustained some, since our last interview, we do now agreeable to this laudable practice Condole with you for the same. We open your eyes, that you may look chearfully. We open your Ears that you may hear us, and clear your throats, that you may speak freely to us. We likewise gather the bones of the deceased of your people, and bury them deep, carefully covering the grave from your sight. And we once more kindle the fire at this place, and sweep out all the dust from the Council Chamber, that nothing my obstruct us in our business—gave 3. Strings.

Then Thomas King on behalf of the Warriors of the Six Nations arose and said.

Brother. I take this opportunity on behalf of all the Warriors of the Six Nations, and their Confederates now assembled, to let you know, that we are not well pleased with our Sachems for neglecting to acquaint us with what they purposed to say this Morning, and for not giving you our particular thanks for calling, and meeting us this day, as the occasion of this assembly is principally on our accounts, upon a matter in which we as Warriors are particularly interested. And, they well know it, for, there are the Men (pointing to the Cherokee Chiefs) whose business they all know is Chiefly to us the Warriors, to invite us to engage against their troublesome neighbours with whose conduct we are likewise much dissatisfied.—I do therefore with this Belt, at the desire, and on the part of all the Warriors here assembled from Canada to Ohio, and of the Cherokee Deputies, take you now by the hand, in the most friendly manner, kindly thanking you for complying with our request in calling us together, and giving you a most hearty welcome to this place, where we are all happy to find that you are arrived in safety.—
a Belt of five Rows.

Then Tagawara an Oneida Chief stood up on the part of Sir William Johnson, and first addressed the Indians of Canada as follows :

Brothers of the Seven Nations of Canada.

I am very glad to see you all here this day agreeable to summons. It is a proof of your attention to the affairs of your Confederacy, and I sincerely welcome you upon the occasion.

Then addressing the rest, and repeating what Conoquieson said, proceeded :

Brothers. I am glad to see you all this day in health, and am well pleased, that in consequence of the circumstances you mention, you have now brought hither the Chiefs of so many Nations, and Confederate tribes; because by them means none can plead ignorance of our transactions, and the business will go on to the satisfaction of you all. I do therefore give thanks to providence for permitting us to meet this day, and cordially take you all by the hand, bidding you a hearty welcome to this place.—
Gave 3. Strings.

Brothers. As a proof of my regard for the wise institution of your Ancestors, and from the information I have received of the losses you have sustained since our last meeting, I do now on the part of His Maj<sup>ty</sup> the King of Great Britain sincerely Condole with you on this melancholy occasion. I open your eyes, that you may once more look with chearfulness, and your Ears that you may hear distinctly, and I clear the passages to your heart, that you may speak freely its real sentiments. I do also gather the bones of your dead, and bury them in a deep pit, carefully covering them from your sight, and I also sweep, and cleanse your Council fire, that we may meet therein, and proceed to business without interruption.

Gave three strings.

Then after repeating the speech of Thomas King he addressed the Warriors & Cherokees as follows :

Brothers. I am much obliged, in that you have expressed so much desire to thank me particularly on your parts. I entertain a high opinion, and regard for you all, and by this

Belt, I now take you all by the hand in the most friendly manner, giving you a very kind and friendly welcome to this place, wishing that you may always conduct yourselves with prudence and attention to the true interest of your respective Nations.— A Belt of Six Rows.

Then addressing the whole, he said :

Brothers of the several Nations here Assembled.

I am very glad that we have now so far prepared for business by going through the usual forms to mutual satisfaction, and shall be ready to enter on the important affairs for which we are assembled, on the arrival of the rest of your people who are hourly expected.—Then Sir William ordered pipes and Tobacco to be distributed amongst them, and recommended it to the Warriors, that as he was using his utmost endeavours, that they should be supplied with what necessaries they wanted, he expressed that they would behave with order and decorum.—that they should avoid liquor, and committ no violence on any of the property of the Inhabitants. Then adjourned.

In the afternoon Sir William held several private meetings with the Chiefs, in order to inform himself as to their sentiments, and resolutions at that time.—In the evening several of the Mohawks arrived, and reported that the rest would join them early to morrow. At night Sir William called together a Sachem and Head Warrior from each of the principal Nations, with whom he held a Conference untill the night was far advanced; of these, there were some who were much to be depended upon for their integrity, from whom (amongst other things of much importance to be known previous to the Congress) he learned that the Warriors were for the much greater part obstinately bent on a war with the Southern Indians—that great part of the Sachems, convinced by the arguments Sir William had made use of at the private conferences, would have gladly declined it, and seemed disposed to send the Cherokee Deputies back after renewing the late Treaties, and giving them farther assurances of their friendship for that Nation, but that they very much doubted whether the warriors could be persuaded thereto, as they were much exasperated at the insults which some of the Confederacy had received from the Indians of Wabash etc, and what in consequence of the treatment the English had received from these Nations, the Warriors expected, not only their concurrence, but their aid, and assistance to carry it on in like manner as they had formerly assisted the English.—Sir William further learned, that there were some other very interesting points to be spoken upon at the Congress, on all which he had much conversation with those present, using his utmost endeavours to procure a favourable issue to the Congress, and endeavouring all in his power to avoid their making any requisition of aid from the English should it so happen that a War must take place.

Early in the morning the remainder of the Mohawks arrived.

The Chiefs of the Canada Indians in consequence of the Murder of three of the Six Nations formerly at Oswegatchy, on which they had never Condoled, assembled at Sir William's quarters, and after calling together the rest of the Indians, proceeded to the Bower, where the seven Nations of Canada, after premising the occasion of their meeting then, and that they could not with propriety unite in measures until they had obeyed the institutions of their Ancestors, by performing in the fullest manner the ceremony of Condolence for those losses, and giving the necessary Belts etc, to the Six Nations on that occasion. This having taken up the greatest part of the forenoon, the Chiefs of the Six Nations informed him that they would consider on an answer, and accordingly withdrew to a private Council place to deliberate thereon.

About noon four Canoes with 26 Mississages from the North side of Lake Ontario came to Camp to attend the Congress.

Sir William having judged it highly necessary, as well from the temper of the Indians, the greatness of their numbers, and the disorders they are too liable to commit when in Liquor, advised the Magistrates to give notice to the Traders etc by no means to sell them any, untill the Congress was ended; and it was done previous to his arrival; but having this day received information that some Traders etc had actually sold them a Keg of Rum, and that others had resolved to follow this example, which greatly alarmed the Inhabitants, and occasioned their applications to him to check it, he issued a notification under his hand and seal which he sent throughout the whole settlement by a peace Officer, strictly forbidding them at their peril to sell any Rum to the Indians, or any spirituous liquors whatsoever during the Congress, until they had removed, when they might sell it to them beyond the settlements; the apprehensions of the Inhabitants being very great, as from the temper shewn by many of the Warriors, they had reason to dread, that neither their property, or persons would be secure, should they get liquor amongst them.

The Six Nations after sometime spent in Council, returned to the public Council place, & after returning thanks to the Indians of Canada performed the ceremony of Condolence & gave the usual Belts to them in return.

In the afternoon, the Indians being in readiness, waited on Sir William, when the future proceedings of the day being regulated and resolved upon, they proceeded to the Bower, where Abraham Chief of the Mohawks acquainted the rest with the business then to be entered upon, after which Teyawarunte Speaker of the Six Nations, did on behalf of Sir William Johnson perform the whole ceremony of Condolence for a Mohawk Chief lately dead, a Cayuga killed by one of that Nation, and a Seneca Chief lately drowned, and delivered the several Belts for the several purposes on such occasions, covering the graves with a black Belt, they answering with a Yo-hah, customary on Condolances.—The Indians after being a short time in consultation addressed Sir William by Conoquieson their Speaker, and after repeating all that he had said to them, they returned to the ceremony of Condolence in like manner—which ended, the Chiefs all shook hands with Sir William and the rest of the Gentlemen, returning him many thanks for having made their minds easy. When Sir William arose, and told them that he was happy to find that every thing was so far settled to mutual satisfaction, that there now only remained [to] attend to the principal business for which they assembled; to that end he recommended it to them to preserve sobriety, and good order in their encampments, and to be in readiness to attend the morning following, when he should make a speech.

Then the Cayuga Chief arose, and condoled for the murder of a Tuscarora committed a few days before by Thomas King, and covered the grave etc. After which adjourned.

The Mississages from the North side of Lake Ontario arrived at Sir William's Quarters, & after the usual salutations, told him, that being at Oswego with others of their Nation, they, who were for the most part the principal Men, thought proper to attend him, on hearing that he had opened a Congress with their Brethren.

Sir William after expressing his satisfaction at seeing them, and bidding them welcome told them, that he could have no objection to their being present, but that on the contrary he was always glad of any opportunity of making his transactions public, with all well disposed Indians.

This Night, the Boats having on board the present for the Indians, arrived after a tedious passage occasioned by the lowness of the water, at this season.

At a Congress held at the German Flatts on Friday July the 19th 1770.

with the several Nations of Indians before mentioned.

Being all seated, Sir William addressed them as follows :

Brothers of the Six Nations, of the seven Nat<sup>ns</sup> of Canada, of the several dependant Tribes, and all others here assembled ; Sachems, Chiefs & Warriors.

I desire that you will carefully attend to the words I have now to say to you, it being on matters of great importance to you all.—Our Brothers of the Six Nations sent Messages to me last fall from their great Council Fire at Onondaga accompanied by the Cherokee Deputies here present to acquaint me, that these Deputies were charged (as Ambassadors from their Nations) with Belts Messages, and a pipe to strengthen their alliance, and solicit the aid of the Six Nations against the Piankeshaws, Wawaightonos, and others, as people troublesome, and Enemies to both; on which the Six Nations would not determine, until agreeable to their engagements, they had first in public Congress had my sentiments & concurrence thereon. At the earnest solicitations of the Six Nation Messengers, and the Cherokee Deputies, seconded by the representations of Thomas King who had accompanied them from the Cherokee Country, and the many requests since repeated, of the Six Nations, I, after consulting the King's General, laid the same before His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, who has through my representations being graciously pleased to empower me to meet you on this occasion, where, I am ready to hear your sentiments, and give you my advice; after which, I shall speak to you upon your late treaty, which the King has empowered me to Ratify, and also to attend any other public affairs that may occur. I therefore recommend it to you in the course of this business, to pay the most serious Regard to what I have to offer and to give me in answer the truth, the words of your heart.

A Belt 11. Rows.

Brothers. As so many of the Chiefs already know much of my sentiments concerning the Embassy from the Cherokees, I think it now more particularly necessary, to address you the Warriors thereupon. In the first place you sh<sup>d</sup> consider, that war should never be carried on with any Nation without very sufficient reasons, and until all other measures have proved ineffectual; for, a desire on every slender pretence to make war, will undoubtedly cause many of our friends to be jealous of you, and may occasion the forming a powerful Confederacy on the part of the Enemy, which although you may be able to withstand, will nevertheless so far engage the greatest part of your young Men, that, hunting and Trade, which are the blessings attendant on the peace you now enjoy, must be greatly, if not totally neglected; the want of this, you must all feel, and this is not the only loss you must sustain in any War with a numerous people. In the next place, those Nations against whom it is said you are disposed to carry your Arms, have been considered as friends in alliance with you, and though from their situation, & most probably from the evil Councils of the French, they have been induced to do some mischief, you should still consider, that in attacking them, you weaken yourselves. This is bad policy, as the breach is not so irreparable, but that through proper negotiations, a mutual good understanding may be effected between you, whereas warlike people, who have once quarrelled are not easily brought to a strict union afterwards.

I have already expressed my thoughts so candidly to the Chiefs, that I now confine myself to these principal arguments, to which I shall add one more that ought to be of the greatest weight with you, and that is the sentiment of the great King your Father, and of his subjects, which will also I trust convince you that they are real friends, and teach you to regard them accordingly. Another King, another people, indeed any people who had not esteem for the Indians would be glad of this occasion to stir you up to War, because War would weaken both, you, and your Adversary; that this is not the case with us, you must plainly discern; for the King esteems you, and wishes to see you happily, and at peace with all your neighbours. These are likewise the wishes of all his subjects; they know that it is for your interest, and they cannot give you a stronger demonstration of their friendship, at the same time that they lay you under no restraint in this particular, beyond what your own reason must approve of. Consider this coolly, and deliberately, and give me in answer the real sentiments of your hearts.—

A Belt of 9 Rows.

Sir William then spoke to the Cherokee Deputies and cautioned them strictly to observe the Instructions they received from their Chiefs, without addition, and alteration, as it might be of bad consequence, should they say anything to the Northern Indians beyond what they had been authorized. All which they assured him they would strictly observe.—To this speech the Indians after some time spent in consultation answered, that they had heard with attention all that Sir William had said to them; that they were very thankful to him for the regard he had expressed for their interests—that their Chiefs would assemble early in the morning, and deliberate with as much expedition, as such a weighty affair would admit of, on a proper answer, which they would deliver to him so soon as they were agreed in sentiments.

Then adjourned.

Saturday July 20th

In the morning the Sachem, and Chief Warriors of both the Confederacies, or Leagues of the Six Nations, and the rest, met in their encampments to take Sir William's speech into consideration, where they spent the whole day in deliberation without being able to come to a conclusion. In the mean time, Sir William finding (notwithstanding all his endeavours) that Liquor was brought amongst the Indians, rode round the adjacent settlements to caution the Traders, and other persons not to sell any.—In the evening, three Chiefs Deputed from the several Nations, waited on Sir William to apologize for their not returning an answer this day as they had purposed, which they assured him was owing to the difficulties it met with from the Warriors, who seemed averse to any thing but war. That the three principal branches of the Confederacy, the Mohawks, Onondagas, and Senecas had at length agreed to an answer, but that the rest were not as yet come to any conclusion—Sir William spent some hours in discourse with these Chiefs and others whom he sent for, in order to expedite their answer, the necessity of which he represented from the scarcity of provisions for so great a number owing to the unfavourable season, and the loss of the Inhabitants crops, and discoursed a long time with them on the matters he recommended to their consideration.

Sunday July the 21st 1770.

The former part of this day was spent in private Conferences as well between the Indians as with Sir William, and the Chiefs, in order that they might be thoroughly satisfied with his advice, and unanimous in their answer.—Early in the afternoon they acquainted Sir William that they were ready to deliver their answer and accordingly assembled.

PRESENT— as before.

Being all seated, the Onondaga Speaker called to the speakers, and Chiefs of the rest to approach the Front near Sir William in order to give in their answer, which done they appointed Abraham Chief of the Mohawks their Speaker, who addressed Sir William as follows.

Brother. The Six Nations and their Dependants from Ohio to Canada have now assembled after two days spent in deliberation to deliver you their answer to your speech. Then repeated what Sir William had said on his first belt, and added, now, Brother, we have according to your advice taken your discourse into due consideration. A Belt 11. Rows.

Brother.—You desired that we should give you an answer from the bottom of our hearts; We accordingly met amongst ourselves and have had many debates together in order to bring about what seemed so pleasing to the King, at your desire; this took up all our time, and has prevented us from giving you an answer sooner. He then repeated what Sir William had said on his second Belt, after which he proceeded as follows:

Brother. You have very kindly signified to us, that the King does not desire to see us at war with Indian Nations, and you have likewise given us your opinion thereupon, and shewn us the advantages of it in a very clear light.—Brother, We have seriously considered all this, and believing that it is the King's regard for us that occasions him to wish us at peace, and confiding in your friendship, which we are certain has induced you to give us the advice, we at length do agree to the same, & shall strictly follow it, provided we can bring those troublesome Nations to reason & submission without War, and live peaceably as we do with the Southern Indians; to this end we shall stay all hostilities, and make use of our younger Brothers the Shawanese, who live near them, to convince them of their folly, and presumption, and, if this has a due effect, and that these Nations will join heartily in promoting peace, and abiding by their ancient agreements, we shall be well pleased, and shall not make war upon them. This Brother, you may be assured is the determined resolution of us all, and therefore you may depend upon it that we shall observe what we have said to you. A Belt 10. Rows.

Brothers. We have endeavoured as much as possible hitherto to keep our people sober & quiet; We are very sensible, that it would upset the business, if our people got Liquor, for, as our young men, are with difficulty kept within bounds, when sober, it is certainly impossible to do any thing with them when drunk. We therefore now assure you, that it is our resolution during the course of this Treaty to keep ourselves sober, and should any Kegs of Liquor be brought amongst us by the Traders we will on discovery stave them to pieces.

Gave three strings.

Brother, We have now answered you sincerely and from our hearts on one part of the business which has occasioned our present meeting, & we hope that it will be agreeable to you, and are ready to proceed on the rest.—They then conferred for some time in private after which Sir William addressed them.

Brothers—The Six Nations and others here Assembled.

I have attended seriously to your answer concerning the War you proposed to engage in; I have as well before, as during the course of our proceedings here said so much to you on the subject, that I persuaded myself you would be convinced, and am glad to find you are so; and I know, that it must appear as a striking proof of His Majesty's humanity and regard for you all, and that you may easily perceive that I have had no other motive in recommending it to you, than my Friendship and sincere wishes for your prosperity. I know, that there are some parties of yours that are now gone to the Southward. As this is not consistent with the pacific sentiments you have expressed for the Southern Indians, I think, they should be recalled; and when you send to the Shawanese for the purposes you have mentioned, I recommend it to you to make choice of wise Deputies, good Men, who will faithfully execute the trust you repose in them, sincerely wishing for your own sakes that you may faithfully abide by the resolutions, you have now expressed to me.

Brothers. I am very glad that you have determined to let no Rum come amongst you, as that Liquor will not only obstruct business, but may be productive of the most dangerous consequences. You see and know the pains I have taken to prevent it, and I hope that you will do the like on your parts, agreeable to your promise.—

Brothers, The King, my Master, having received all the papers, and proceedings relative to the great Treaty at Fort Stanwix, together with the Deed of Cession, which you then executed to him, has laid them before his Council of great Men, and after considering the whole of it, has signified to me (what I hope will be deemed a further instance of his paternal goodness) that he did not require the Lands so far to the Southward, if it was of the least inconvenience to his Children, whose interests he has, so much at heart. He has at length in compliance with your own desires, as transmitted by me, and the public grant that you made, impowered me to ratify the same by letters I have received from the Lord, who is one of His Majesty's Secretaries (holding the letter in his hand), which I now purpose to do.—You all knew the Deed of Cession, of which this, (shewing a Copy) is a true copy. You all know that it was executed in a public meeting of the great[est] number of Indians, that has ever assembled within the time of our remembrances, and that all who had any pretensions were duly summoned to it. You all remember the great, and valuable present you received upon that occasion, exceeding any thing you had ever seen. Yet notwithstanding all this, I find that there are some of your Dependants who live by your toleration, and who never had any Title to the soil, who talk, as if they were dissatisfied with your Act, or doubted your authority. It is therefore incumbent on you, to see into, and make diligent enquiry abt it, and to shew these people, if any should there be, their Folly.—This I expect you will do without delay, as a testimony of your gratitude to the King, and in justice to yourselves; and I expect that upon this occasion, you will make choice of honest, wise Men, who will not deviate from their Instructions, but faithfully execute what you direct them. Fully persuaded, that you will do this, and that you are resolved to abide for ever faithfully by your engagements entered into at that time, I do now by virtue of the powers to me given in the name, and on behalf of his Britanic Majesty, Ratify and confirm the whole of the Treaty made at Fort Stanwix in 1768, and also the Deed of Cession to the King then executed (except what relates to the private grants, which his Majesty will consider of) and I do declare, that the same is ratified accordingly.

A Belt.

The Indians, in answer expressed their satisfaction at what Sir William had said, to which, as it was very late, they deferred giving an answer until next day.

then adjourned.

At night Sir William had a conference with a principal Sachem and Warrior of each Nation, when he spoke with them on the subjects for the meeting to morrow—he found that besides some grievances, which were to be the subject of the future proceedings, the Indians were suspicious, that the English intended totally to neglect, and disregard them, and that with this opinion daily gained ground amongst the several Nations. The Chiefs spoke with much warmth on the reduced state of those living under our Arms (as they called it), namely, the Mohawks, and others living amongst our settlements, who they remarked had been very usefull to us, and were now greatly neglected by the English.—The Mohawks in particular, (supported by the rest) signified their desire to speak in public, that His Majesty would take their case into Consideration, and allow them a Missionary, observing that they, and their Fathers had been Christianized, and attended for many years by Ministers of the Church of England—that a former King had built them a Church, and had taken much care of them, but that they have been now for many years without an English Clergyman, which gave them much concern.—Sir William, foreseeing, that these, and many other matters of a private nature, would if spoken in public, furnish part of the Confederacy with subjects for disagreeable reflections, represented to them, that there would be no occasion to bring matters before the rest of the Nations, in which they were not particularly concerned, as he would lay them before His Majesty, from whose generous sentiments and pious regard for their future welfare, they might expect that they would be attended to.

The Sachems and Chiefs of Canada Indians desired a conference in public with Sir William, and being assembled, their Speaker addressed him.

Brother. We have desired to speak to you in this public manner on an affair which concerns ourselves, and which has occasioned great uneasiness amongst us.—Brother, you know us for many years—we knew you, and esteemed your character, when we were in the arms of the French, and when you came down with the army to Montreal ten years ago; you then spoke to us, gave us good words, and by the order of the General gave us solemn assurances, that if we did not assist the French, but permitted you to descend the River without interruption, we should be placed among the number of your friends, and enjoy our rights and possessions and the free exercise of our Religion forever.—This we believed, for we knew your character, and had a confidence in you, and accordingly agreed to your request, and have ever since behaved in such a manner, as to demonstrate our fidelity, and attachment to the English.

Brother. You allways give us good words, and have shewn yourself our friend. It is therefore with concern we tell you our grievances at this time occasioned by the ill disposed people who give disturbance in several quarters.

Brother—You are not ignorant that there are many Men, of whom we have before complained, who are no longer our friends, and either guided by interest, or, perhaps from resentment on finding our attachment to the English, endeavour to alter the minds of all the great Men, who have been sent to command in Canada, and to misrepresent us to them. Through such means our brothers at S<sup>t</sup> Regis, have been distressed for sometime past by Intruders imposed on them from another nation, who have no pretensions to live in their village; and last winter, a Frenchman named Clingancourt, came into our principal village of Cagnawagee, bought a house privately, and was no sooner settled, than he began to create much disturbance by telling false stories to the Commanding Officer there, and giving countenance to immoralities, that are highly displeasing to us. Our Priest who is a peaceable good Man, endeavoured as far, as was in his power to restrain these disorders in the usual manner, and to punish the offenders according to the Religious forms of our Church, but was threatened, and treated with the greatest contempt, so that he could not do his duty, through the artifices of this Frenchman. This gives us great concern, and if we are not redressed, we may in a little time be deprived of the use of that Religion, the use of which we were assured should be permitted to us. We therefore earnestly request, that you will take this matter into serious consideration, and if you shall think it fitting, that you may lay it before the King, that we may not be interrupted hereafter in the exercise of our Religion, or our priests prevented from inflicting such pains and penances, as our Church requires, on offenders.

A Belt 7. Rows.

To which Sir William answered.

Brothers. I have harkened to your speech, and do assure you, that I have not forgot any part of the engagements we formerly entered into, and which it is his Majesty's intention shall be strictly observed in every particular. You have therefore nothing to fear on that account.

The affair of S<sup>t</sup> Regis, I understand has been lately settled to the satisfaction of the Indians of that place; and as to what you mention respecting your village at Cagnawagee, I make no doubt, that it would be soon settled in the like manner, on my acquainting the Governor of Quebec therewith; but, as he is now I understand, sailed for England, I think, the readiest method to gratify your desire, will be by letter to the Frenchman. I shall accordingly write to him in a proper manner, and give Col: Claus Instructions about the affair on his return to Canada, which will be in a few days.—

You may be assured of His Majesty's Esteem & that I shall continue to shew you all the friendship in my power, so long as you continue to promote peace, and adhere faithfully to your engagements.

Returned their Belt.

The Indians spent the Forenoon of this day in Council, and about noon Sir William had a conference with some of the Chiefs on the subject of their answer.—In the afternoon the Indians sent to acquaint Sir William that they were assembled.

At a Congress. with the several Nations of Indians, Monday July 22nd 1770.

PRESENT— as before.

Conoquieson asked whether Sir William was ready to attend to what they had to say—
On being answered in the Affirmative,

Abraham stood up and addressed him as follows.

Bother Gorah Warraghiyagey.

We are now met together in full Council to answer you concerning what you last spoke to us about the King's having received our Deed, and the proceedings at Fort Stanwix, with his Ratification of the same, with which we are highly pleased, and we shall also speak on what you have mentioned concerning the discontent some Indians have expressed at part of our Cession. Brother, We beg therefore that you will attend to what we have now to answer.

Brother.—When we met you to so great a number, and in so public a manner at Fort Stanwix, we should have hardly acted as we did, unless we had been possessed of a full right to the Lands, and had full authority to do so. We are surprised that any doubt can arise ab' it. You very well know, that our Title has been always Indisputable. As to the pretensions of any inconsiderable people behind our backs, we shall soon silence them, and we now desire, that you may assure the King, that it was our property we justly disposed of, that we had full authority to do so. We return the King the sincere thanks of all our Nations for ratifying the same, and we again confirm it, promising to abide always thereby. A Belt 8. Rows.

Brother. We are very happy to hear of the good disposition of the King towards us, and the assurances you give us on that occasion. We are highly pleased with the indifference the King shews for Lands, and we consider it as a sure sign of his regard, that he does not love to see us at war.

Brother. We are not desirous of making war, but when the same appears necessary. We therefore now acquiesce with your advice to us, and shall let the Southern Nations alone, provided they act a proper part towards us. But Brothers, whilst we express ourselves so disposed, we cannot help reflecting on the treatment we still continue to receive, particularly on the Southern Frontiers, where our people are frequently Robbed and murdered, and no reparation made for all this. If we inclined to be silent on such conduct, our young Men would force us to speak, and that warmly; they would soon be for Revenge, as the provocation we have received, is too great to be longer born with.—Brother. We request that the great King will give orders to his Governors, and great Men concerning these matters, assuring you that we are disposed to abide by our engagements, and restrain our young people, but that we cannot pretend to do it, unless a speedy end be put to the behaviour of the people who have so repeatedly attacked us.—

Brother. At the Treaty at Fort Stanwix you then told us, as you had done before, that we should pass our time in peace and travell in security, that Trade should flourish & goods abound; that they should be sold us cheap, & that care should be taken to prevent any persons from imposing on us—Brother, this would have endeared all the English to us—but we do not see it—It is now worse, than it was before, for we cannot get goods at all at present, and we hear from all Traders, that nobody will bring in any, and that you have none for yourselves.

Brother. We should take up a great deal of time, if we repeated all that we suffer by these things, but you must be yourself sensible of them, and therefore we rely upon you that you will lay these matters before the King, and represent our situation, so that he may hearken to our words, and afford us redress.

A Belt of 10. rows.

Then Conoquieson stood up and said.

Brother. Agreeable to what you yesterday recommended to us, we have now fixed upon four Chiefs from amongst us, who are men of sense that will faithfully deliver our words to the Shawanese, of which number Thomas King is the principal, who is a Man, that you may be assured, will faithfully execute whatever is desired of him.—Then acquainted the Six Nations and Sir William Johnson, that, by the death of Gawehe a Tuscarora Sachem, there was a vacancy at the Council fire, & accordingly raised up Tarriwahage to supply his place with the usual ceremonies. After which Saghtaghroana, on behalf of the Seven Nations of Canada stood up and said.

Brother, We the Nations living in Canada express our sincere thanks to you for having by your prudence and wisdom brought all the Nations here into one way of thinking, which no other person could ever have effected. This is a great work Brother, and it gives us a great pleasure, and, I now speak to you and all the Nations in public upon it.

Brother. When we united ourselves with the English on the reduction of Canada, we then resolved to act like Men, to be true to our engagements and to scorn lyes,—We then agreed for the preservation of peace, that the Caghnawagees should have their eyes on the Council Fire of the Six Nations at Onondaga, and the other Council fire at your house, whilst our Brethren at Canasadaga should have their eyes upon all the Nations up the Ottawa or great River to the Westward.—Brother, we did this, we always gave you true intelligence, and studied to promote peace; for Brother, we are Men of our words, Men who despise double dealings, and are incapable of deceit. We shall still act up to that character, & our actions shall prove the truth of what we now say. We resolve in order to promote the work, which you have begun, and so successfully conducted, to send proper Deputies to the Indians to the Westward, taking that part of the negotiation entirely upon ourselves, and we shall agree with the Six Nations in the Message they send, that we may not speak with two mouths upon so important an occasion. The Men we shall make choice of, shall be such as we may place the utmost confidence in, & they shall have orders from us to return by way of Detroit and Fort Pitt to your house to bring you a faithful report of the Negotiation.

Then shewed the Belt which they purposed to send. Then Abraham the Chief returned Sir William the Belt which he had sent to the meeting at Onondaga last fall cautioning them not to let their warriors go to war, or enter into any rash resolves until they heard from him—with this having complied, they, according to custom returned the Belt.—After which Abraham returned the Belt sent last spring by Sir William to the Seneca's Country, to require them to collect all the horses they could, the property of the white people, and to deliver them up. All which they promised strictly to comply with, and to prevent any from being taken in future by their people, or dependants.

The Speaker then acquainted Sir William, that they had finished all the material business of the Congress.

To all which Sir William answered as follows:

Brethren of the several Nations here assembled.

I am well pleased with the answer which you have given me on the several subjects, and I hope that your actions will correspond with the words you have made use of.—As I am well acquainted with your claims & pretensions, I considered the murmurings of some of your Dependants, as of little importance.—It is nevertheless a duty which you owe to yourselves to put a stop to them, and I am very glad to hear that you have taken resolutions for that purpose, which I hope, and expect you will see performed.

Brothers. It is with concern that I hear you complain, that the people on the southern frontiers still continue to molest you, because I know that great pains have been taken to put a stop to such behaviour.—Brothers, You know, that I have often told you upon that subject, that I have reason to believe much of the ill treatment you meet with, proceeds from the indiscretion of some of your young people, when passing through that part of the Country, amongst people who suffered severely during the war; I shall nevertheless, as you desire, lay your complaint before His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, who, I am persuaded, will give any orders that may be further necessary for your security; and I am certain that the several Governors will use their utmost endeavours for that purpose; but I expect in return that you will give the most strict caution to your young people that they govern themselves in a peaceable, quiet manner, when they resort to that Country; for otherwise, you cannot expect that the Inhabitants will treat them with kindness.

Brothers.—I very well remember all the promises that have been made you, and also the engagements between us.—You all see that they are committed to writing in your presence. I know that amongst other things, you received assurances of a free, and plentiful Trade, and I can confidently assure you, that you will still enjoy the same. It is true, that for some little time goods have been scarce, but I can now inform you, that they will be again in great plenty, as the Merchants have now sent for large cargoes which may be very soon expected at New York, and a large quantity is already come to Montreal, according to certain advices I have lately received. I have likewise the pleasure to acquaint you, that (although the affair has taken up some time from the distance of some of our Colonies from the others) there is now a good prospect, that the affairs of Trade will speedily be regulated on terms of advantage to you all, as I have heard that some Commissioners for that purpose are already met, and more on their way to the place appointed for determining thereupon. I shall however comply with your request in laying this matter before the King on whose attention to these, and all other affairs in which you are interested, you may safely and confidently rely.

Brothers. I approve of the manner you have resolved upon to send Messengers to the Shawanese, and of the Men you have chosen, for that purpose. But, as I likewise intend to send Messengers as well to the Shawanese as to Michilimacinae, I shall expect to be made acquainted with the purport of your Message that we may both correspond on that subject.

I thank you for your honest and spirited address to myself, and all here assembled, and I greatly approve of your resolutions to send Messengers in the manner you propose. I shall gladly join them with Messengers from myself, to which end it will be necessary that I know, what you intend to charge them with, that we may unite in Sentiments.

Then it growing late, and a Thunder storm coming on, Sir William thanked them all for their accordation with him in sentiments and adjourned.

Tuesday July 23<sup>d</sup> In the morning the Indians all assembled in Council.

PRESENT — as before.

Sir William having desired their attention spoke as follows :

Brothers of the Six Nations, of Canada, and all others here assembled.

Having now brought the business of this Treaty to a favourable conclusion, I cannot help expressing my satisfaction thereat, and at the readiness, and unanimity which the Chiefs have manifested upon this occasion. It only now remains, that I close this Congress, in a suitable manner by adding strength and weight to our proceedings.—I do therefore by this Belt, renew and strengthen the covenant chain, or alliance entered into between our ancestors and yours. I likewise clean and brighten it, so that it may not contract any rust, and I do assure you on the part of the great King, that we shall take care to hold it fast, and preserve it unhurt to the latest posterity. if you will on your parts be observant of the part which is in your hands, and take equal care of it. I likewise declare, that it is the intention of His Majesty and all his subjects to abide by, and fulfill the engagements with you, so far as is possible, and I recommend it to you all to make public the transactions of this Treaty throughout all the Nations to the setting of the sun ; and as you value yourselves, and wish to be happy, to abide by, and faithfully perform all that you have promised.

Brothers. Notwithstanding the great additional expense which the King, my Master has been at in bestowing favours on such an additional number of Indians, as by the reduction of Canada have been admitted into our alliance, his Majesty is still mindful of you, and has therefore been graciously pleased to consider your present wants by ordering you a handsome present, which I have brought to this place and which shall now be delivered to you. I hope that you may retain a grateful sense of these, and all other Marks of his Royal favor, and that you will always be studious to merit the continuance of his protection and friendship, and the regard of all his subjects.

Brothers the Missasagas. I am glad that by your attending at this Treaty you had an opportunity of observing the friendship subsisting between the English and your Brothers here assembled, and the unanimity with which we have brought several weighty matters to an agreeable conclusion. I recommend it to you faithfully to relate the particulars that have passed here, to your Nation, and confederacy, at your return, assuring them of the Friendship of the Great King, and that I shall always preserve a sincere regard for them, and their interests, so long as they continue to merit it by contributing to diffuse the blessings of peace throughout the Country within their influence, and by joining heartily in promoting the several matters of importance agreed upon before me by their-friends and Confederates— A Belt.

Every thing for the present being agreeably adjusted, and concluded upon, I have only to add my expectations that you will be steadfast in fulfilling your engagements, and I now close this Treaty with my kindest wishes for your prosperity.

Brothers the Cherokees.

You have heard the conclusion, & determination of the Six Nations, and their Confederates ; and upon maturely considering all circumstances I hope they will prove agreeable to your Nation, to whom I desire you will faithfully report all the transactions at this place assuring them of my friendship, and that I am much obliged to them for the grateful sense, which from the Belts you delivered me, I find they retain of my endeavour in effecting the peace between them, and your Brothers here assembled, that I shall always continue to promote it, trusting that they will do the like on their parts, and sincerely wishing, that by attending to the words of your Brother in Carolina, who has the care of you, you may continue to deserve the esteem of the great King, and all his subjects.

2. five Belts.

The Six Nations then renewed their engagements with the Cherokees, acquainting the Deputies, that as they had now come to a final resolution before Sir William Johnson, they hoped that the same would be found satisfactory to the Cherokees.

The Nanticocks<sup>1</sup> then addressed Sir William, requesting that he would give them a Passport, and letters to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Carolina, that they might go, and bring the remainder of their people from thence, and dispose of some land they yet have there.

A Belt.

They then earnestly requested, that he would prevent the Traders from bringing any more Rum down the Susquahanna, as they who lived there, were determined to abstain from drinking, seeing so many murders committed by means thereof.

A Belt.

Sir William promised them, that he would grant them a Passport, and also write in their favor to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Carolina concerning their lands there, and recommended a proper conduct to them as they passed thro' the several settlements. etc.

a Belt.

Sir William also promised that he would do all in his power, to discourage the bringing of Rum to their settlements, and expressed his approbation of the resolutions they had taken, and wished them to continue firm in the same.

Returned a Belt.

The Cayuga Chief then arose, and acquainted Sir William and the Six Nations that the Delawares, Monsies, etc living at Chughnot,<sup>2</sup> Wialosing<sup>3</sup> etc had promised to remain where they now live, & not regard the invitation of their Countrymen living at Ohio, and further assured the Six Nations, that they would act agréable to their directions.

Spoke with two Belts.

Then the Chiefs of the several Nations assembled to consider of an answer to the Covenant Chain Belt, and after some time spent, Abraham the Mohawk Chief stood up, and in the name of the Six Nations and Canada Confederacy etc repeated what Sir William had said on said Belt, and returned their most hearty thanks for renewing the Covenant and they on their parts did the same.

The Onondaga speaker then arose & acquainted Sir William that they appointed Taganaghquagheese in the room of Kanajikaia deceased, Tawahmgseraghse of Karaghiadirra<sup>4</sup> in the room of Odongota Chieftain of the Warriors, and two more of the Onondaga Nation. All which they hoped he would approve of, and give them such testimonials etc. as are usual on these occasions. Sir William admitted, and approved of their recommendations, and after giving the appointed Sachems the necessary admonitions, he told them that he would at next general meeting give them the proper testimonials etc. which he had at his house.

A large Belt.

Wednesday Morning the Chiefs of each Nation present waited on Sir William at his quarters to let him know the purport of their Message, to be sent by their Deputies to the Wawiahtanakes, Piankashaas, Kickapoos etc, which is as follows :

Brethren. These Deputies from the Six Nation Confederacy are now sent to inform you of the peace established between us and the Cherokees, as well as the good harmony and union that subsists between us, our Brethren, the English, and all the Nations of Indians to the rising of the Sun, at the same time to let you know our surprise and displeasure at your untoward and unruly behaviour towards some of our people, as well as to our Brethren the English, who are employed carrying goods to the Illinois for your use, and that of all the Indians in that quarter, which shews that you are not in your senses. Wherefore we now take you by the head, and shake you so, as to bring you to them, and also take that hatchet out of your hands, which you run about with, doing Mischief. Should you still prove obstinate, and persevere in your wickedness, they are in that case authorized by the whole Confederacy now assembled to tell you, that the consequence will prove fatal to you. Repeat therefore of what you have done, otherwise you will inevitably involve your Nations in a War, which must terminate in your ruin.

A large Belt shewn.

The Canada Confederacy consisting of Seven Nations then told Sir William, that as they intended to wait on him to his house (in their way home) they would there acquaint him with the purport of their Message to those troublesome Nations who were now like Men void of sense, running about with a sharp Axe in their hands at a time, when he was endeavouring to spread peace over all the land.

The Missisagas also came to acquaint Sir William, that they intended to wait upon him to his house, where they had something to say to him relative to their Nation.

Sir William after having returned the Chiefs his hearty thanks for the part they had acted during the Congress, and expressing his approbation of the Message which they intend sending to the ill disposed Nations, told them, and the Canada Confederacy, Missisagas etc, that he intended also sending them some Belts which should coincide with theirs in a great measure. Then told the Canada Indians & Missisagas etc, that he would be glad to see them at his house, as he had something particular to say to them. Then Sir William ordered provisions for all the Nations on their journey home, and after parting with them in the most friendly manner, sett off that morning for his own seat accompanied by above one hundred and fifty Indians etc, and followed by several other parties, on the private affairs of their respective Nations.

<sup>1</sup> RICHARD SHUCKBURN who, if he did not compose, at least introduced the popular and well known air of Yankee Doodle into this country, was of German origin, and received a commission as Surgeon of Captain Horatio Gates' Independent Company of New-York, on the 25th June, 1757. Army List, 1758, 137. Whilst encamped at Greenbush, in the neighborhood of Albany, during the French war, to please, it is said, some eastern levies, he composed a tune and recommended it to the officers as one of the most celebrated airs of martial music. The air took, and in a few days nothing was heard in the Provincial Camp but Yankee Doodle. Little did the Doctor imagine the renown which awaited the air that he had recommended in joke. Farmer & Moore's New Hampshire Collections, III, 217. On the death of Captain Wrexall, Sir Wm. Johnson nominated Dr. Shuckburgh Secretary for Indian affairs in 1759, when he left Captain Gates' corps; but the appointment was not confirmed, Witham Marsh having been sent out in 1761 to fill the office. New-York Commissions, V, 211. We find Dr. Shuckburgh next appointed, 22 December, 1762, Surgeon of the 17th Foot, then serving in America, to which regiment he continued to be attached until 1768, (Army Lists, 1765, 1769) when he succeeded Mr. Marsh, and filled the office of Secretary of Indian affairs for several years. He received a grant of land in May, 1755, in the present town of Glen, Montgomery county, N. Y. — Ed.

My Lord,

I have the honor of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s commands of the 12th of June N<sup>o</sup> 39. with His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s disallowance of the Act declaring certain persons therein mentioned incapable of being Members of the General Assembly of this Colony; and I have publish'd His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s disallowance by Proclamation, as usual. I have communicated to the Council the Act passed in the last Session of Parliament, to enable the Gov<sup>r</sup> Council and Assembly of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Colony of New York to pass an Act of Assembly for creating and issuing upon Loan, paper Bills of Credit to a certain amount etc. As the Colony of New York is distinguished by the favour of Parliament in this particular, I make no doubt of its being received with that dutiful gratitude which may justly be expected.—The other Acts of Parliam<sup>t</sup> relating to the Colonies, and transmitted to me by M<sup>r</sup> Pownall, were likewise communicated and all of them lodged in the Secretaries Office.

An Equestrian guilt Statue, of the King, made by direction of, and purchased by this Colony, came over in one of the last ships from London. On Thursday last it was opened to view, erected on its proper pedestal, in a square near the Fort and fronting the principal street of the City. I was attended on this occasion by the Gentlemen of the Council, and Members of Assembly then in Town, the magistrates of the City, the Clergy of all Denominations, and a very large number of the principal Inhabitants. Our Loyalty, firm attachment and affection to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s person was expressed by drinking the King's Health, and a long continuance of His reign, under a discharge of 32 pieces of Cannon. a Band of music playing at the same time from the Ramparts of the Fort. The General and Officers of the Army gave us the honour of their company on the occasion. The whole Company walked in procession from the Fort, round the Statue, while the Spectators expressed their joy, by loud acclamations, and the procession having returned with me to the Fort, the ceremony concluded with great cheerfulness and good humour.

I am well assured My Lord, that the Merchants in this Place, who appeared most zealous to prevent the importation of British Manufactures, have, notwithstanding, sent themselves orders for large quantities of goods. At the same time they have thrown out the basest aspersions, in the public Newspapers against those who promoted the importation. I am confident, the example of New York will be followed by all the neighbouring Colonies, notwithstanding what appears in the American Newspapers to the contrary. It gives me the greatest pleasure, that the people of New York, under my Administration, are the most forward in returning to their duty.

Lord Dunmore is daily expected here. I hope to deliver up the Govern<sup>t</sup> to him, in peace and tranquillity, and with a very favourable disposition of a large majority of the people, especially of any rank to Government.

Nothing gives me more pleasure, than the hope your Lord<sup>sh</sup> allows me to have, of your retaining some regard to— My Lord,

Your most obedient and
faithful servant

The King having received advices that the Spanish Gov<sup>r</sup> of Buenos Ayres hath thought fit to dispossess his Maj<sup>y</sup>'s subjects of their settlement at Port Egmont in Falkland Islands; so violent a proceeding in time of profound peace will, unless disavowed by the Court of Spain and proper restitution made, be considered as an open act of hostility, and therefore the King hath thought fit with the advice of his servants to command a considerable Naval Armament to be prepared in order to act as the honor & dignity of his Crown shall under future events require.

The suspending or increasing this Naval armam<sup>nt</sup> will probably depend upon the answer which the Court of Spain shall give to what has been demanded on this occasion, which the King has good reason to hope will correspond with his Maj<sup>y</sup>'s wishes for the preservation of the public peace, in the mean time you cannot be too attentive to the security of the <sup>Colony</sup> ~~Colonies~~ under your Govern<sup>t</sup> nor too early in your consideration of what may be necessary for <sup>the</sup> ~~its~~ <sup>their</sup> protection and defence in case matters should, contrary to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s just expectations, come to extremities, in which case you may be assured that the security of our possessions in America, will be a principal object of His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s care & attention.

Whitehall. 3. October 1770.

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your letter of the 12th of July last.

The great variety of important matter proposed to be discussed in the Congress which was upon the point of being held when you wrote that letter, necessarily creates some impatience to be informed of the result of it, and I have reason to hope from a letter I have received from General Gage,<sup>1</sup> that it will be a favourable one.

It is certainly desirable that the prejudices which have been endeavoured to be fixed upon the minds of the Savages by the idle and wicked Report propagated amongst them, that the King had ordered no more goods to be sent them, should be removed, and as there is no longer any foundation for artifice of that sort to work upon, their confidence will upon this occasion be easily regained.

The accounts which have been received through almost every channel of correspondence from America, of reports spread abroad, that an Union between the Northern and Southern Indians has been in agitation, have not failed to give us some uneasy apprehensions; such an Union cannot have been proposed, but with views of a very alarming nature, nor can it take effect without producing the most fatal consequences; the King therefore doubts not that you have taken every method to investigate and discover the grounds of such Reports, and in case there should appear any just reason to suspect such a design, that you have availed yourself of every advantage which the late Congress afforded you to defeat and disconcert it.

I am etc.

HILLSBOROUGH.

<sup>1</sup> HOD. THOMAS GAGE was the second son of the 1st, and father of the 3d, Viscount Gage of Castlebar, in the county Mayo, Ireland. In 1755 he accompanied the expedition under General Braddock, against Fort Duquesne, as Lieutenant-Colonel of the 44th regiment, and commanded the vanguard in the fatal engagement of the 9th July, when he was slightly wounded. After the battle, he carried the General off the field. Entick, I, 146. In May, 1758, he was appointed Colonel of the 80th regiment, and Brigadier-General, (Knox's Journal, I, 212,) and on the 8th of December following married Margaret, daughter of Peter Kemble, Esq., President of the Council of New Jersey. Debrett. In 1759 he accompanied the expedition under Gen. Amherst, and led the 2d column against Fort Ticonderoga, which, however, had been abandoned by the French before the arrival of the English troops. On learning the death of Gen. Prideaux, Gen. Amherst dispatched Brigadier Gage on the 28th July, to take the command of that division of the army, but Fort Niagara had already been reduced by Sir William Johnson. Knox, I, 403; Entick, IV, 137. On the 11th July, of the following year, he departed from Oswego with the army to Montreal, of which city he was appointed Governor, after its capitulation. He was promoted in May, 1761, to the rank of Major-General, and in March following became Colonel of the 22d Regiment of foot. At the departure of General Amherst for England in 1763, Major-General Gage succeeded him as commander-in-chief of his Majesty's forces in North America. He rose to be Lieutenant-General in 1770, and resided in New-York until May, 1774, when he removed to Boston, on being appointed Governor of Massachusetts. He was a suitable instrument for executing the purposes of a tyrannical ministry and parliament. Several regiments soon followed him, and he began to repair the fortifications upon Boston Neck. The powder in the arsenal in Charlestown was seized; detachments were sent out to take possession of the stores in Salem and Concord; and the battle of Lexington became the signal of war. In May, 1775, the Provincial Congress declared Gage to be an inveterate enemy of the country, disqualified from serving the colony as Governor and unworthy of obedience. From this time the exercise of his functions was confined to Boston. In June he issued a proclamation, offering pardon to all the rebels, excepting Samuel Adams and John Hancock, and proclaimed martial law; but the affair of Breed's Hill, a few days afterwards, proved to him that he had mistaken the character of the Americans. In October he embarked for England, and was succeeded in the command by Sir William Howe. His conduct towards the inhabitants of Boston, in promising them liberty to leave the town on the delivery of their arms, and then detaining many of them, has been reprobated for its treachery. Allen. In 1782 he was appointed Colonel of the 17th Light Dragoons, and rose to the rank of General of the army in the following month of November. General Gage died in England on the 2d of April, 1787. Gentleman's Magazine. His widow survived him until 9th February, 1824, when she died, aged 90 years. Debrett. — Ed.

New York. 5. October 1770

My Lord,

As this most probably is the last opportunity by which I can have the honor of writing to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> while the Administration of Govern<sup>t</sup> is in my hands, I think it incumbent on me to give you some account of the persons who are most attached to Govern<sup>t</sup>, in opposition to the party who continue to declare openly against the authority of the Parliament of great Britain.

In my preceeding letter, I informed your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the steps that had been taken to introduce a general importation of goods from Great Britain, and of the opposition which had been made to it, by that party who have, in every other instance endeavoured to embrace the measures of Govern<sup>t</sup>. It gave me particular satisfaction to find this party entirely defeated last week, in a violent struggle to turn out such of the Elective Magistrates of this City, as had distinguished themselves any way in favour of Govern<sup>t</sup>.

I believe your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be pleased to know that the Members of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Council, with a single exception, and the Representatives of this City in General Assembly have zealously exerted themselves for a dissolution of the nonimportation agreement in New York; which must have a General good effect in all the North American Colonies. Mr Ludlow,<sup>1</sup> whom I appointed one of the Puisne Judges of the Supreme Court, in the room of Mr Smith deceased, was very useful. He has many Friends among the Merchants, and they were the foremost in declaring for importation. He has at all times been a Friend to Govern<sup>t</sup>, is a Man of genius and of application, and I doubt not will distinguish himself in his station—. No particular person has been more distinguished on this occasion, than Mr Banyar<sup>2</sup> Deputy Secretary of this Province. He took great pains to excite and preserve a proper spirit in others. He has likewise been very useful to me in every part of my Administration; permit me My Lord to mention him, as one, every way deserving your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s attention in case any thing may offer in his favour—I have been conversant fifty years in the public affairs of this Govern<sup>t</sup>, and I can truly say, that he has in his office exceeded all, that have been in it during that time, both in ability & diligence. He has faithfully discharged every confidence placed in him by Govern<sup>t</sup>, and has so well established the opinion of his Integrity and honour for upwards of twenty years past, that every Gov<sup>r</sup> in that time has placed a particular confidence in his advice, Sir Henry Moore<sup>1</sup> only excepted. Perhaps My Lord, you may expect that I mention the persons who have opposed the salutary measures of Govern<sup>t</sup>. Though every Man conversant in public affairs, be well assured in his own mind, who are the Leaders and Conductors of the opposition to Govern<sup>t</sup>, yet as they do not appear publicly, but work by their Tools of inferior Rank, no legal evidence I can produce against them. I must therefore beg to be excused from naming any person.

As now all kind of Rioting is greatly discouraged, I hope to deliver up the Administration not only in tranquility, but with a prevailing disposition in the People to support Govern<sup>t</sup>. I flatter myself that I shall retain some degree of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s esteem and Regard.

I have the honor to be with the greatest Respect My Lord,

Your most obedient and

faithful servant.

My Lord.

I arrived here the 15th inst: and the next day my Commission was published with the usual ceremonies.

I have the greatest reason to be pleased with the reception I have met with, and from the good humour that now appears amongst the people, I conceive hopes of an easy & peaceful administration. I am, My Lord.

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXII.]

New York. 10. Nov<sup>r</sup> 1770.

My Lord,

The Earl of Dunmore arrived here on the 18th of last month. Every thing in my power was done to give him a reception suited to his Rank and the dignity of the Commission he bears. I have reason to think, his Lord<sup>d</sup> was well pleased on the occasion. The tranquility good humour and order among the people could not escape his notice. I was very happy in delivering up the Govern<sup>t</sup> in such a situation, and with the strongest perswasion, that it would be in his Lord<sup>d</sup>'s power, to support His Administration with ease and dignity. I thought of nothing but to retire, and spend my few remaining days with satisfaction; flattering myself that a faithful discharge of my duty, in the Administration of Govern<sup>t</sup>, in times the most difficult, had given me some claim to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s favour. It could not then My Lord but give me a very sensible uneasiness, when the Earl of Dunmore communicated to me, the paragraph of a letter from your Lord<sup>d</sup> to him, dated the 16th of July last, signifying His Majesty's pleasure "that a moiety of the perquisites and Emoluments of the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York should be accounted for and paid to His Lord<sup>d</sup> from the date of his Commission to the time "of his arrival" which he accordingly demanded by his Secretary. I am well assured it has not been paid to any Gov<sup>t</sup> for fifty years past. My connection with the public affairs of this Province, with the Governors and the persons most immediately about them during that time, enables me to assert with great confidence, that no such demand has been made on any Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>t</sup> or eldest Councillor, from the death of one, to the arival of another Governor, except in one instance only. M<sup>r</sup> Van Dam<sup>1</sup> held the Administration of Govern<sup>t</sup> as oldest Councillor, from the death of Coll: Montgomerie on July 1st 1731. till the arrival of Coll: Cosby on the 1st of August 1732, who, in consequence of a order he had obtained, demanded one half of the Salary and perquisites, M<sup>r</sup> van Dam had received. M<sup>r</sup> van Dam refused to pay any part. A suit was commenced against him, but drop<sup>t</sup> before a determination, and M<sup>r</sup> van Dam retain'd the whole profits. This demand was thought to be an Act of mere power, and gave general disgust.

From that time to the present, no such demand has been made, tho' several similiar cases have happened. Every oldest Councillor or Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>t</sup> has received and retained the whole profits of Govern<sup>t</sup>, from the death of one Gov<sup>t</sup> to the arrival of another. Usage and Custom is thought to be the Rule.

General Monckton,<sup>2</sup> tho' residing in the place, did not demand, and I believe never expected any part of the emoluments, which I had received between the date of his Commission, and

<sup>2</sup> Lieutenant-General ROBERT MONCKTON was the second son of John, 1st Viscount Galway, and nephew of the 2d Duke of Rutland, and was a Lieutenant-Colonel when appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Annapolis, in 1754. In June, 1755, he reduced Fort Beausajour, which he called Fort Cumberland, and Fort Gaspareau on Bay Verte, and in the same year was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia. In November, 1757, he was appointed Colonel of the fourth battalion of the 60th or Royal American regiment then attached to the army under Lord Loudon, and commanded the 2d battalion of the same regiment, the following year, in the operations against Louisbourg; in 1759 he served as Brigadier and second to General Wolfe in the expedition against Quebec, and was shot through the lungs on the Plains of Abraham. For his distinguished services in that campaign, he was rewarded with the colonelcy of the 17th Foot in October. In February, 1761, he became Major-General, and shortly after received the appointment of Governor of the Province of New-York. His administration, however, did not continue long, for the British government having determined on the reduction of the Island of Martinico, appointed him to take the command of the expedition, whither he proceeded in November. His liberality on this expedition is highly extolled. For, feeling for the pecuniary difficulties the subalterns attached to his army had to struggle with, he ordered the negroes which were taken to be sold, and the money to be divided amongst the subalterns. On finding it would not amount to £5 a piece, he said he could not offer any gentleman less than that sum, and made up from his own purse the deficiency, to the amount of about £500. He kept a constant table of 40 covers for the officers, and ordered that the subalterns chiefly should be invited, saying he had been one himself, and if a chair was vacant, he reprimanded the Aid de camp. After the reduction of Martinico, he returned for a short period to New-York, but proceeded soon after to England, when Major Campbell of the 100th regiment, who had been dismissed the service for killing one the publication of it. Neither did Sir Henry Moore, from whose general conduct I had no reason to expect the least favour, make such a demand.

These recent instances, My Lord, and the constant usage in this Colony, makes the demand, now made on me, appear in the most disagreeable light. If persisted in, I shall be distinguished by a mark of His Majesty's displeasure. To support the authority of Govern<sup>t</sup> has been the invariable rule of my conduct; I have often suffered by it, from the violence of parties and their opposite principles—especially in supporting the authority of Parliam<sup>t</sup> in the year 1765, when the insults I received were the most public and alarming. I trust it will not be presuming too much to suppose the house of Commons particularly attended to my case, when they addressed His Majesty to recompence the officers of the Crown in America, who had suffered on that occasion. People in general throughout the Colonies, expected I should have been distinguished by some mark of His Majesty's favour as I had been so remarkably distinguished by their resentment—Providence, by the death of Sir Henry Moore, placed me in a situation of receiving a compensation, had I been suffered to remain in the Administration, and to enjoy the usual profits—shall I, My Lord, be distinguished by a demand of part of those profits which have been allowed to every other Commander in Chief? The Instruct<sup>s</sup> to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of this Province relating to the salary and perquisites of Govern<sup>t</sup>, has been understood in no other light here, than to intitle a Gov<sup>r</sup> in Chief to half the emoluments in case of his absence after having taken upon himself the administration. In this case the Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup>, acting under the same Commission, must divide the profits with the Gov<sup>r</sup> in Chief. But after the appointment of a Gov<sup>r</sup>, and before his arrival and the publication of his Commission, the Commander in Chief, not acting under this, but the old Commission, must be entitled to the whole emoluments. The declaration of King William in 1697., referred to, in the extract which I have of your Lordship's letter to L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore, I am humbly of opinion became ineffectual at his demise, and not being renewed by any of his successors, the Instruction to the Governors on this head, has been esteemed the only signification of the King's pleasure. If his Majesty had been apprised that the Instruction had never operated in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, in any other manner than as above mentioned, I am persuaded this signification of his pleasure had not been made, nor from his great Justice and goodness, can I doubt his gracious interposition and protection, that I may be permitted to enjoy in tranquility, the only considerable advantage I have reaped, in a series of long and faithful services to His Majesty and his Illustrious family.

My Lord, while I am writing this, the Attorney General with Lord Dunmore's permission, has informed my son, that, he has received His Lordship's commands to file a Bill in Chancery (where the Gov<sup>r</sup> is the sole Judge) against me, for recovering a Moiety of the Emoluments. The suit is to be brought in His Majesty's name, to give the proceedings the semblance of Justice; but as it is well known to be solely for Lord Dunmore's benefit, and that he is in truth the principal party in the suit, the injustice and oppression in making himself the Judge in such a of his fellow-officers, preferred charges against Gen. Monekton, for oppression, &c., on which he was tried by court-martial and honorably acquitted. Gentleman's Magazine, XXXIV., 297, 323; LII., 576. He received the sinicure office of Governor of Berwick in 1766, and became Lieutenant-General in 1770. Some time after his name was sent in by the Board of Directors as Commander-in-chief of the Company's forces in India, and the recommendation approved by his Majesty, yet though the nomination was repeated in 1773, it was without effect; the minister refused to appoint any officer recommended by the Board. Ibid., XLIII., 298. In 1778 he was appointed Governor of Portsmouth, and represented that town in Parliament at the time of his death which, according to the London Magazine, occurred on the 20th June, 1782. Debrett says he died on the 2d of May, 1782, and the last is presumed to be the more correct date. — Ed.

case, must strike every Man of common sense. The impression it must make on the minds of the People, may have a dangerous effect during His Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s Administration— These things are too evident not to draw your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s immediate attention, and I hope His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s wise and gracious interposition will prevent the bad effects. I intreat your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s favourable intercession, and that you will be pleased to lay this representation of my case before his Maj<sup>ty</sup>:—

I have the honour to be. etc.

New York. 12. Nov<sup>r</sup> 1770.

My Lord,

Nothing of a public nature has occurred within the little time I have been arrived, except the addresses of congratulation on my arrival, which being full of sentiments of Loyalty and affection to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s person and Govern<sup>t</sup>, I have thought proper to send copies of them, imagining they might be acceptable. I found the Assembly prorogued to the 7th of Nov<sup>r</sup>, and I have with the advice of Council, farther prorogued it to the 11th of December, then to meet to do business.

The situation of the people of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, in the Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester, on the Borders of New Hampshire, is truly lamentable; a number of disorderly people are continually committing Riots; a recent tumult has obliged me to issue a Proclamation for apprehending the Offenders, a copy of which is herewith transmitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, but the authority of the Civil Magistrate will avail little, when even the Courts of Justice are obstructed, and their proceedings stopped. The Rioters are instigated to commit those outrages by the people of New Hampshire; suggesting that the Magistrates and Courts of Justice established in the said Counties act without good authority, for they assert, that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> intends to recall his Royal order, already issued, and to declare the above said two Counties to be within the Jurisdiction of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of New Hampshire. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will observe by the Proclamation already mentioned, that I have contradicted this Report, and affirmed the above suggestion to be false. Their only encouragement in this opinion seems to be the restrictions laid upon the Gov<sup>r</sup> of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, with respect to granting the Lands within the said two Counties; and here, I cannot but observe what in truth is very obvious, that such restriction obstructs the settlement of that Country, not only by excluding fresh people from settling there, but the frequent disorders, which it has given a sort of sanction to, entirely prevents the Industrious efforts of those already settled; it therefore appears to me, that it is become highly necessary, that the said restriction should be taken off forthwith, that I may thereby be enabled to exert my endeavours for the full settling of that Country, and then, the disorders complained of, will of themselves subside, but which at present can not happen, from the thinness of the Inhabitants; there not being enough for the appointment of Magistrates, consequently those few are but very insufficient of themselves, to enforce their own authority, against those daring violators of the peace supported as they are, by their whole province.

I have made it my business to enquire and find out the opinion of the people here, on the scheme in agitation of establishing a Colony on the Ohio; I find, all who have any knowledge of such affairs concur in condemning the project; they alledge among a variety of reasons, that a Colony, at such an immense distance from the settled parts of America and from the Ocean, can neither benefit either those settled parts or the mother Country; that they must become immediately a lost people to both, & all communication of a commercial nature with them, be a vain attempt, from the difficulty and expence attending the Transport of commodities to them, which would so enhance the price thereof, as to make it utterly impossible for them to purchase such commodities, for they could not raise a produce of any kind, that would answer so difficult and expensive transport back; such Colony must therefore be their own Manufacturers; and the great expence of maintaining Troops there for their protection be a dead weight on Govern<sup>t</sup>, without the hopes of reaping any advantage hereafter. The scheme alarms extremely all the settled parts of America, the people of property being justly apprehensive of consequences that must inevitably ensue; that such a Colony will only become a drain to them (now but thinly peopled) of an infinite number of the lower Class of inhabitants, who, the desire of novelty alone will induce to change their situation; and the withdrawing of those Inhabitants will reduce the value of Lands in the provinces even to nothing, and make it impossible for the Patentees to pay the Quit Rents; by which, it is evident, His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interest must be very much prejudiced. Add to this the great probability, I may venture to say (with) certainty, that the attempting a settlement on the Ohio, will draw on, an Indian war; it being well known, how ill affected the Ohio Indians have always been to our interest, and their jealousy of such a settlement, so near them, must be easily foreseen; therefore, as such a war would affect, at least, the nearest provinces, as well as the new Colony. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> must expect those provinces, will not fail to make heavy complaints of the inattention of Govern<sup>t</sup> to their interest. I cannot therefore, but think it my duty to recommend to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, not to suffer this scheme to have effect, at least, until your Lord<sup>sh</sup> shall have, from the most substantial and clear proofs, be made thoroughly sensible of its utility.—I am.

P. S. I have just received intelligence, that the plague is actually raging on the Island of Hispaniola, I have had the person who brings this advice, examined before the Magistrates, and send to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> his Deposition. Whitehall. 15 Nov<sup>r</sup> 1770.

Sir,

I have received your Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 14. and have laid it before the King.

The preventing the six Nations from engaging in a War with the Western Indians & from entering into a Confederacy with the Southern Indians for that purpose were very important objects of the late Congress and so far as your negotiations have had the effect to answer those ends this Congress has undoubtedly been of great public utility; but I must observe that the reality of these advantages seems very much to depend upon the Answer, which the Six Nations shall give to such terms of accommodation as may be proposed by the Western Ind<sup>ns</sup> in consequence of the Messages that have been sent to them. In the mean time I have receiv<sup>d</sup> the Kings Commands to signify His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> pleasure to the Governors of several Colonies connected in interests with the six Nations, that they should not fail of pointing out to their respective Assemblies, the immediate necessity there is from every consideration of justice, policy and interest to make immediate and effectual provision for regulating the commerce upon such a plan as shall be satisfactory to them and for the Redress of those injuries and grievances of which, they so justly complain. Circular letter from L<sup>d</sup> Hillsborough to the Governors of Quebec, New York, New Jersey, Virginia, N<sup>o</sup> Carolina, Maryland & Pennsylvania. Whitehall. '15 Nov<sup>r</sup> 1770.

Sir,

The inclosed extract of a letter I have very lately received from Sir William Johnson, will fully inform you of the complaints made by the Six Nations of Indians, and their allies & confederates, at a congress held in July last at the German Flatts, of the abuses and violences committed by the Traders and frontier Inhabitants of several of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Colonies, and the inclosed extract of the Conferences will point out to you how earnest the Indians have been in those complaints, and what is likely to happen if they are not redressed.

After the King had thought fit, from a regard to the Claims and opinions of the Colonies to leave it to them to make such regulations concerning the Indian Commercé, as they judged proper, there was good reason to hope, that a matter on which their interest and safety do so much depend, would have been an immediate object of their serious deliberation; but as contrary to all expectation, nothing effectual appears yet to have been done, and as the Indians have in the strongest manner expressed their impatience, under the abuses to which they are constantly exposed, the King has commanded me to signify his pleasure, that you should without delay represent this matter in the strongest manner to the † Council and † Assembly of the Colony under your Govern<sup>t</sup> and urge them in his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> name to, fall upon some means of putting Indian affairs under such regulation as may have the effect to prevent those abuses of the Trade and those violences and encroachments of the frontier Inhabitants, which the Indians so justly complain of. I am etc.

Gentlemen,

I am commanded by the King to desire you will report me your opinion whether His Majesty may in time of peace, order an embargo to be laid upon all ships and vessels laden, or to be laden, in the different Ports in His Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in America, with provisions and warlike stores, and cleared or to be cleared out for any Port or place not belonging to His Majesty.—And if such embargo may be laid, what will be the regular mode of laying it, whether by order of the King in Council, by Proclamation, or by the King's pleasure signified by the Secretary of State, to the respective Governors of America?

As it is of very great importance to the King's service, that no time should be lost in this business, I am to desire your answer with all the Dispatch that may be. I am etc.

May it please your Lordship.

In obedience to your Lordship's letter of the third instant desiring we would report to you our opinion whether His Majesty may in time of peace order an embargo to be laid on all ships and vessels laden or to be laden in the different Ports in His Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in America with provisions and warlike stores, and cleared or to be cleared out of any port or place not belonging to His Majesty and if such Embargo may be laid, what will be the regular mode of laying it, whether by order of the King in Council, by Proclamation, or by the King's pleasure signified by the Secretary of State to the respective Governors in America.

We have taken the same into consideration and We humbly represent to your Lordship, that the authority of the Crown to lay an Embargo, has never, that we know of, undergone a judicial decision; but as the Crown has constantly exercised such authority, when the exigency of the case has required it, in time of actual war, <sup>1</sup>make preparations which are legal justifiable by the occasion; and that such demonstrations may be made of hostility and such alarms may be given by foreign nations as may create the most instant necessity to prohibit the furnishing them with warlike stores; and under those circumstances, we think, an Embargo upon such articles will become, like other preparations for war, legal and justifiable by the exigency of the occasion. This notion comprises the American Colonies as well as the rest of

His Majesty's Dominions; and we think that the proper method of doing it, is, by Proclamation or order in Council.

All which, is humbly submitted to your Lordships consideration.

New York, 5th December 1770.

My Lord,

In consequence of the order I obtained from Your Lordship, soon after my arrival I made a demand on M<sup>r</sup> Colden for half the emoluments &c according to the said order, which he has thought proper to refuse complying with, and to deny the King's right of disposing of any part thereof & firmly asserts the whole of it to be his own property; his argument or rather subterfuge is, that untill the commission of the Governor be published in form in this place, the Lieutenant Governor or other Commander in Chief is entitled to the whole Salary, emoluments &c. I have consulted all the most eminent lawyers here, and they all agree, without hesitation, in a contrary Opinion to M<sup>r</sup> Colden: persuaded therefore that Your Lordship would not be inclined to give up a right of his Majesty's, which appears so well established; I have required the Attorney General's opinion how to proceed: he has advised that it should be made a case in Equity, and the suit carried on in the name of the King, by which means it may be brought on before me. I understand M<sup>r</sup> Colden is now forming a Petition to his Majesty setting forth the great hardship intended him by this order, and alledging his services of which I do not take upon me to judge, or how far his Petition should be listened to, but I must beg leave to suggest that it is incumbent on Your Lordship, not only to insist on his complying with the order, but to require a faithfull account from him, in the name of his Majesty, of salary, emoluments &c from the very day the Government devolved upon him to the day of my arrival; that although it should be thought proper afterwards to consider his services, and allow him to keep any part, that he may be made sensible, which he is far from being at present, that it was intended as a Reward from his Majesty, that he had not been required to account for the whole of the moiety reserved by his Majesty for his

Earl of Hillsborough.

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New-York Papers (State Paper Office) CLXIII.]

New York, December 6th 1770

My Lord,

In my preceding of the 10th of last month I informed Your Lordship that Lord Dunmore had ordered the Attorney General to file a Bill in Chancery, for recovering from me half the salary and half the perquisites of Government, from the date of his Lordship's Commission to the day of his arrival. In that letter I insisted principally upon the favour which I presumed I was entitled from my faithful Services to the Crown for upwards of fifty years past, often in most difficult Times, for which I had suffer'd greatly in my fortune. I may now add that the satisfaction which the People had in my Administration, since the death of Sir Henry Moore, contributed greatly to the Resolution which the Merchants took to import British Goods. After Lord Dunmore's arrival the principal and most respected Merchants to the number of 56, when they knew that I intended to retire to the Country, came in a body and thank'd me for my Administration. By the influence of these Merchants the resolution to import from Great Britain was earned. The Ministers, Churchwardens, Vestry & other principal members of the Church of England did the same: and since I left the town I have been informed that other distinguished bodies designed to have made me the same compliment had I not left the place sooner than was expected. My Lord Dunmore's demand I hope will excuse my mentioning these things to shew how much my Administration has contributed to his Majesty's Service by restoring tranquility after the Province had been for some years in a most disorderly state, and to the renewing the Commerce between Great Britain and the Colonies: for all the Colonies follow the example of New York.

The Attorney General by Lord Dunmore's directions has, in the King's name, filed a Bill in Chancery, where Lord Dunmore is the sole Judge and is to receive the benefit of the suit, should the King recover; and Process has issued against me. It is therefore incumbent on me to shew to Your Lordship by what right I claim the whole Salary and Perquisites. Indeed Mr Smith whose advice Lord Dunmore follows must be convinced of my Right, otherwise he never could have advised his Lordship to bring the suit in Chancery, where his Lordship is the sole Judge. He must think that my title is such that Lord Dunmore could not recover in any other Court of Justice, or before a disinterested Judge. If we may judge from past conduct, Mr Smith takes a pleasure in throwing the Administration into disorder.

The only pretence for bringing this suit in Equity is to discover the Perquisites which I have received : whereas every farthing I could receive will appear in the public Offices. I never received any private fee or Reward for any service of any kind. No other pretence or title to Equity is made use of in the Bill.

My Lord, the whole Salary is given to me by the authority of the Legislature of this Province. Any perquisite which I received was a voluntary donation for services done to individuals, and I think no man can have a right to any part of them, who performs no part of the service. In King William's declaration relating to the Salary of the Governors of the Colonies, which, thò obselete, is made the foundation of this suit, only half the salary, in case of the Governor in Chief's death, is reserved, without any reservation of the perquisites. At that time the Assembly granted a sum in gross for the support of Government, and the King granted a certain sum out of that to the Governor for his Salary. But after Col. Cosby had made a similar demand to this now made on me, the Assembly granted a support of Government only from year to year, and have fix'd and given the Salaries of all the Officers, annually, by act of the Legislature. No instruction has been given since that time by which the King reserves any Part of the Salary or Emoluments or Perquisites from the death of one Governor in Chief to the arrival of another. Many instances occur when the administration of Government has been in the hands of a Lieutenant Governor, or President of the Council, from the death of one Governor in Chief to the arrival of another : but no instance can be given, at least in sixty years preceding, where the Lieut. Gov<sup>r</sup> or Commander in Chief for the time did not receive and retain for his own use the whole salary and the whole perquisites.

Lord Dunmore having ordered this suit to be brought before himself in Chancery, no man can doubt of his resolution to give a Decree in his own favour. I must plead and demurr, for which I have the greatest cause, but as I expect his Lordship will overrule my Plea and Demûrer, I am resolved to appeal to the King for Justice, and have order'd Council to be retained in England for that purpose.

You may imagine, My Lord, what impressions their proceedings make on the minds of the People, and particularly in my case, in prejudice to his Majesty's service; and you may be assured, My Lord, the impression is universall on all ranks of People.

I have presumed to write thus freely to Your Lordship that his Majesty may interpose his authority in ordering the Bill to be dismissed. This I not only pray in justice to myself, but likewise to remove the prejudices which the People otherwise may entertain of his Majesty's Ministers and which may be prejudicial to his Majesty's Service.

If Lord Dunmore thinks proper he may sue at Common Law.

As I am conscious of my dutifull endeavours in his Majesty's Service, for a series of many Years, I flatter myself that Your Lordship will think this affair deserves Your attention: and you'll please to make a full Representation of my humble prayer to the King, that his Majesty may please to order the Bill in Chancery to be dismissed. If the suit be suffer'd to go on it will be attended with distressing expence to me, while Lord Dunmore by suing in the King's name is freed of all Expence.

The consideration of what I now write is submitted to Your Lordships honour & Justice, in which great confidence is placed by, My Lord,

Your most obedient
and faithfull Servant

Earl of Dunmore to the Earl of Hillsborough.

N<sup>o</sup> 4.New York 6th December 1770

My Lord.

I have received the Duplicate of your Lordship's private and confidential letter N<sup>o</sup> 41 not yet come to hand.

This City, My Lord, is in the most defenceless State; the works which have from time to time been erected for its protection are so injudiciously constructed that were they still in good repair they would afford but little security to the place; and tho there is a considerable number of cannon in a disorderly manner, laying on these works, no care having been taken them, many of them must be unfit for service, and their carriages are all entirely useless.

The Militia also having been for several years past without exercising would be of little use in their present state and they are so scattered as to make it difficult to collect them on an alarm.

I assembled the Council to advise with on the necessary steps to be taken for putting the province in a condition to resist the sudden attempts of an enemy; they are of opinion that the Frost being set in, and the earth so hardened it would be impossible to accomplish any additional fortification or even temporary batteries, which indeed could we effect we should not be able to mount cannon upon for the reasons above mentioned: but notwithstanding this I would not have your Lordships apprehensive on our accounts, the severe weather and great quantity of ice on these coasts gives no little to fear about the approach of an enemy, during the winter and the Assembly being to meet the 11th Instant I shall recommend to them to provide every thing that may be necessary for the safety of the province, against the time that the season will enable us to employ them, and in the interim your Lordship may depend on my taking every precaution that the circumstances of the Colony under my command will admit of, although I am not inclined to believe we shall find them necessary; the spirited and vigorous measures adopted by his Majesty's Ministers to vindicate the honour of the Crown, will I am persuaded induce the Spaniards to make concessions rather than expose themselves to the merited vengeance which they will perceive so ready to fall upon them.

I am daily made acquainted (as by the inclosed Deposition Your Lordship will see) with fresh disorders and disturbances happening in the disputed Lands between New Hampshire and this Province, a number of reduced officers and soldiers of his Majesty's troops, are suffering the most cruel hardships while they remain in suspense. I am therefore constrained to press Your Lordship to consider immediately their unhappy condition & send me forthwith instructions that may enable me to relieve them and establish order and Justice among a number of his Majesty's Subjects that are now in so affecting a manner without either. I am, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant

P. S. In my letter N<sup>o</sup> 2 to your Lordship I gave an account of a Report of the plague's having broke out in the Island of Hispaniola, since which many vessels have arrived from that quarter, who have all contradicted the said Report, which we also now believe to have had no other foundation than perhaps a violent fever then raging.

My Lord,

I have not failed to lay before the King your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s letter to me of the 24th October, acquainting me with your safe arrival in your Govern<sup>t</sup>, and with the favourable reception your Lord<sup>p</sup> met with, since which his Maj<sup>y</sup> has been graciously pleased, in consequence of the death of Lord Botetourt,<sup>1</sup> to nominate your Lord<sup>p</sup> to the Govern<sup>t</sup> of Virginia, and it is a great pleasure to me to have the honor to acquaint your Lord<sup>p</sup> with this mark of his Maj<sup>y</sup>'s favour.

<sup>1</sup> NORBONNE BERKELEY was the son of John Symes B. and of Elizabeth Norbonne of Calne, Wilts. He was colonel of the North Gloucestershire Militia in 1761 and represented that shire in Parliament; he held the office of groom of the Bedchamber, at £1000 a year, and was second to Lord Talbot in the duel with Wilkes, in October of 1762. He was called to the House of Lords in 1764 by the title of Baron de Botetourt. Having ruined himself by gambling, he became, says Junius, "a cringing, bowing, fawning, sword-bearing courtier" and was appointed in 1768, Governor of Virginia. "It was not Virginia," adds Junius, "that wanted a governor, but a court favorite that wanted the salary." Grenville Papers. However unfavorable the character of him, drawn by his political enemies, it is but justice to state that during the short period he administered the government of Virginia, viz, from the fall of 1768, until his death in the fall of 1770, he enjoyed the respect and love of the colonists. Profoundly penetrated by the remembrance of his many virtues, the members of the House of Burgesses ordered a fine marble statue to be erected to his memory; it is still standing in the town of Williamsburg. Lord de Botetourt having died without issue, the title became extinct. — Ed.

The Commission appointing your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to that Govern<sup>t</sup>, together with the Instructions necessary to accompany it, are preparing with all possible dispatch, and so soon as they have passed through the several Offices, I shall have the honor to transmit them to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, together with such further directions as may be necessary in consequence thereof.

Inclosed I send your Lord<sup>sh</sup> an order of His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in Council disallowing four Acts Passed in N. York in 1767, 1768 and 1769. and I am to signify to you His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands that you do cause this order to be published in such a manner as has been usual on like occasions.

The inclosed copy of the Board of Trade's representation upon these Acts, which I transmit to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> for your private information, will fully acquaint you with the grounds and reasons for disallowanc<sup>e</sup> of them.

My Lord,

I have received Your Lordship's circular letters dated Nov<sup>r</sup> 15th 1770 with his Majesty's most gracious Speech to both houses of Parliament. I ardently hope the issue of the event taken notice of therein and referred to in Your Lordships secret and confidential Letter of the 28th September may correspond with his Majesty's wishes to preserve the public tranquillity. I will immediately in obedience to his Majesty's Commands signified to me by Your Lordship represent to the Council & Assembly the state of the Indian Complaints, according to the Extracts enclosed with Your Lordship's letters, and urge them to fall upon means that may answer his Majesty's desires of preventing such abuses, and removing all subject of Complaint from the Indians; but at the same time I cannot forbear expressing my doubts that regulations, which, to answer the end proposed, ought to be general, & equally well observed thro' all the Provinces, should ever succeed, when made by the different Legislatures separately. I am therefore of opinion that a plan for this purpose which might be effectual must spring from and have the authority of Parliament.

Not a day passes without fresh applications from the distressed Officers and Soldiers of His Majesty's troops who have been so long in suspense about their Grants of the New Hampshire Lands, this obliges me again to press Your Lordship to consider my Letters on that subject N<sup>os</sup> 2. 4. & 5.

I inclose to Your Lordship the Copy of an Act of this Legislature passed in Jan<sup>ry</sup> 1770 and before transmitted by M<sup>r</sup> Colden, with an intention of reminding Your Lordship that we are still ignorant whether his Majesty has approved of it or not, it being suspended: in the mean time I must beg Your Lordship to signify to me by the first opportunity, his Majesty's pleasure thereupon: it will, if approved of, relieve many industrious and useful people from under much anxiety, and does not appear to me that it can be attended with any prejudice to his Majesty's interest, or that there are any reasons to object to the Law.

I inclose also to Your Lordship my Speech to the General Assembly and the addresses thereupon.

I am my Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant

(No 15.)

Johnson Hall, Feby 15th 1771

My Lord,

Since I had the honor to receive Your lordship's letters No 14 and 15, the last of which came to my hands a few days since, I waited to receive such informations as I had reason to expect from the Southward in order to communicate the same thro Your Lordship to his Majesty. The advices I have now received enable me to acquaint you that the great Council lately held at the plains of Sioto is ended, That the design and endeavours of the Indians in that quarter was to promote such a Union as I before apprehended and endeavoured with all possible caution to obstruct; but that the advice given by those of the Northern Alliance, joined to their private aversion for some of the rest, had occasioned it to end after many debates in general resolutions for promoting peace amongst all the nations as a necessary introduction to a more strict alliance between the Northern and Southern People, which is to have for its Object some particular undertaking, for which matters did not, during the Congress, appear sufficiently ripe, and of this I can have no reason to doubt from the present Maxims of Policy and sentiments adopted by the more belligerent Nations of both alliances, The Deputys which were sent from y<sup>e</sup> Northern Confederacy with sundry Belts &ca from them and myself, agreeable to the Resolutions at the Treaty I held last July at the German Flats, met the Indians from Sioto at Fort Pitt, in December last, and have agreeable to their Instructions in a spirited speech summoned them all to reassemble at Sioto without delay, when, and not before, they would communicate to them the determined resolutions of the Northern Indians entered into at the German Flats Treaty, together with the subject of the Embassy, on which they have one hundred Belts. As I have great confidence both in the fidelity & abilities of several of these Deputys I have good hopes that when they meet those Nations to whom they have been sent, they will be able to defeat any dangerous schemes or Resolutions which are yet in view in that Country & awaken those Nations fears who have given offence to the Northern Confederacy, which will prove a sufficient check to their other Designs, and if I am disappointed in my expectations it must be thro some accident or occurrence against which no provision can be made at this time.

The apprehensions which I long since communicated of an Union between the Northern & Southern Indians and which Your Lordship makes particular mention of in Your letter N<sup>o</sup> 14 is really a matter of the most serious nature, for if a very small part of these people have been capable of reducing us to such straits as we were in a few years since, what may we not expect from such a formidable alliance as we are threatened with, when at the same time it is well known that we are not at this time more capable of Defence, if so much, as at the former period. This is in some measure the consequence of their becoming better acquainted with their own strength and united capacity to preserve their importance & check our advances into their Country, for at the beginning of the late War through the rapid advances for some time made by the French &c The Indians did really conceive that we should be totally reduced, but as they discovered the increased population of this country even in the midst of its distresses and that our army was still recruited wth fresh Regiments their sentiments altered; they began to entertain more respectable Ideas of us & of our resources, and thro' the imprudence of our own people & their natural suspicions, have gradually become more and more alarmed for themselves, tho they still beleive that it is in their power to give us such a check as may prevent us from attempting what they apprehend we have in view. Many will talk, some will think, and a lesser number will act otherwise, but this is nevertheless the true political state of their sentiments in general at present. As I know the nature of their unions, and that the Southern Indians found many of the rest in sufficient employment during the long war that subsisted between them, so I could not help suggesting my apprehensions of the consequence of the Peace I had orders to effect between these people, but the laws of humanity, the entreaty of the Southern Indians, & the earnest desire of some Colonies who represented themselves as affected by that War, being powerfull considerations, prevailed over what might be judged as a distant or simple apprehension. I sincerely wish it may not contribute to any ill consequence, & shall constantly and steadily use all the means in my power to prevent it, but altho it may be treated as a chimera at this time yet I can positively assure Your Lordship that both Spaniards & French, the latter of whom act the part of agents, did and do still continue to make presents to all the nations to whom they can have any access by the Rivers which discharge themselves into the Mississippi, and that they do constantly endeavour to thwart our measures by various stories & Misrepresentations, w<sup>ch</sup> being supported by favours & coming from a People of whom they entertain no apprehensions, against a People from whom most of the Indians imagine they have every thing to fear, renders it almost impossible to prevent them from having some effect. The Indians have for some time discovered that a War is probably at hand, many of them think that it has already commenced, but that we conceal it from them on account of some advantages the enemy has gained, and in consequence of this during last week I was visited by deputations from most of the Six Nations, to whom I gave such answers as I judged best calculated for the purpose, in any event that may happen in Europe. If a war commences, & that any attempts are made in America, or in case the Indians should be seduced to disturb our frontiers to draw part of our attention that way, I am confident, (as I formerly proposed) that I can from the measures I have taken & the influence I possess secure & attach to our interest, if impowered so to do, such a body of Indians, as, if not so numerous against us, will give a severe check to their attempts, & as the distant Indians dread nothing so much at present as a quarrel amongst themselves, I am equally confident that the very appearance of some in the character of vigorous allies, will in any quarrel, whether thro the intrigues of a European power, or of a confederacy amongst the Indians themselves prove greatly advantageous to us, and tend to defeat their purposes as much as any measures that can be adopted, which I most humbly submit to Your Lordships consideration in case my apprehensions should be realised by future events or occurrences.

In consequence of a former letter wherein Your Lordship signified his Majesty's inclination that the Indian Boundary Line should be continued from where it was made to terminate by the Treaty of 176S (at Canada Creek at Wood Creek) I have conferred with the Chiefs of the nations interested over whom I have in general so far prevailed, that I beleive they will when assembled for that purpose admit of its extension far to the Northward, perhaps to the River St. Lawrence, I therefore hope to be honored with instructions respecting my conduct previous to my taking any farther steps therein, & remain with profound respect, My Lord,

Your Lordships most faithfull

The Right Honourable

& most obedient humble Servant

The Earl of Hillsborough.

W JOHNSON.

N<sup>o</sup> 7.

New York the 9th of March 1771 •

My Lord.

I have received by the December packet which arrived here the 2Sth of Feb<sup>r</sup> Your Lordship's Letters of the 11th December, I laid Your Lordship's Circular Letter before the Council and acquainted General Gage that we were ready to give him all the assistance he could require of us, and I immediately caused to be published in the usual form, his Majesty's disallowance of the four Acts of Assembly, according to his Majesty's Commands, signified by Your Lordship in N<sup>o</sup> 1, but I am sorry to be obliged to acquaint Your Lordship that the whole Province, except the lawyers, express great dissatisfaction at it, and the more from having been accustomed to observe the laws, thus repealed for so considerable a time.

The Assembly have continued sitting until the 16th of feb<sup>r</sup> the chief part of their business being then finished, the members were very desirous of a recess, which I was averse from granting, before the issue of the appearances of war be known unto us; however, at their request I allowed them a short adjournment, and upon their representation, that they would be able to assemble again, in the space of a few days, I have prorogued them for a week, which is to be continued only from week to week.

The Acts of Assembly, passed this Sessions, & the Minutes of Council could not be prepared for this opportunity; I can only transmit the Votes and Proceedings of the Assembly. They have not thought proper to discharge the arrears due upon the accounts of furnishing His Majesty's troops; I have applied but it has not yet been under consideration, for the deficiencies of last year, tho' I do not believe it will be complied with, and the only way we can suggest of making them good is from the saving of the two thousand pounds granted for the troops, which sum, I beleive, will be regularly continued hereafter. Your Lordship will perceive that one thousand pounds is voted for purchasing timber and plank, and for making gun carriages and platforms for the guns in the Fort & Battery in this City; and tho nothing more be yet done in pursuance of the intimation made to them in my Speech of an apprehension of War, I am fully persuaded that his Majesty may rely on having his most sanguine expectations complied with, should the event require it. The Assembly remain inflexible in their resolution of refusing to admit Judge Livingstone to a seat in their house, notwithstanding His Majesty's disallowance of the law passed for excluding the Judges of the Supreme Court; they are full of nothing but the competency of their authority, and the expediency of the measure; which has interested the whole Province, much the greatest part in favour of the resolution, in such a manner, that I did not think I ought, in prudence, to interfere, otherwise than by endeavouring to prevail on the leading Members as a means of curing the animosities subsisting among them, to drop the affair, upon his next presenting himself to the house; they seem separately to be inclined to acquiesce with my sollicitation, but I found that after they had consulted together it was determined that they were under a necessity of persisting, for fear of their constituents, who, as I have said above are engaged warmly in the dispute, the general opinion being that the Assembly ought to follow, the wise example of the house of Commons in this case, & that besides in this Country, if the Judges are permitted to have seats they can always secure their own Elections, having so great an influence over the Electors (from their judgements on the bench, which every man at some time or other is concerned in; and the frequent law suits that prevail in this Country, giving the judges but too many opportunities of revenging themselves on their opposers, should they be so inclined, they conclude that they cannot be unbiassed when engaged in party interest, the effects of which they see no other way of avoiding than by excluding those Officers. It did not appear to me that it would avail anything by dissolving the Assembly, as we do not know of one member, that supports the resolution, who would not be returned again, upon a fresh election, but of the few that oppose it, some would be obliged to give place to others of opposite interests, therefore, without obtaining the effect desired, I might have occasioned a disposition among them to thwart my Administration, which I have judged most for his Majesty's services to avoid, by seeming to incline to neither party.

I have communicated to the Assembly His Majesty's pleasure, signified to me by Your Lordship concerning Indian Affairs, in answer to which I received the address which I herewith enclose, and which I have likewise transmitted to Sir William Johnson, desiring him to furnish me with an account of those regulations to which the address alludes; when I make no doubt the Assembly will proceed to pass such a Law, as I hope, on the part of this Province, may answer His Majesty's desires in that matter: but I must repeat here, what I observed before in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 6 that the authority of Parliament alone is able to make any plan effectual for all the Colonies.

I likewise inclose to Your Lordship the speech of the Onoide Indians petitioning for certain Articles of which they stand in need, and which I think highly proper that they should be furnished with and cannot be denied them, without risking the friendship of people, whom we ought, by every reasonable indulgence to attach to us: I have wrote about it also to Sir William Johnson who I hope, from out of the money allowed by Government will be able to supply them, which if he represents to be insufficient, I shall recommend to the province to do.

I transmit to Your Lordship the proposal of a number of German People settled in this Province, for the forming themselves into a company, to serve in conjunction with the Militia of the Colony, in case of an emergency; I presume Your lordship will think it right to give encouragement to their zeal and spirit; the emulation, which is observed to actuate all bodies of men, serving with others, never fails to produce good effects, & there cannot be the same objection made, which is common to Auxiliaries, these being established in the Country and their interest concerned in its safety.

The troubled State of the North Eastern Parts of this Province, seems to deserve Your Lordship's immediate attention. I speak of that large district between Hudson's River & the Lakes George and Champlain on the west, and Connecticut River on the East; and between the North line of the Massachusetts Bay and the 45th degree of latitude, assigned for the partition between this and the Province of Quebec.

This is a fine Country, capable of great cultivation, and of subsisting many thousands of useful subjects; but, before the conquest of Canada, was so exposed to the incursions of the French, and the Savages in their interest, that very few settlements were made in it, except in that quarter nearest to Hudson's River.

It is clearly within the limits of this Province, as granted by King Charles the Second to James Duke of York; and accordingly his present Majesty in the year 1764, was pleased to declare the Western Banks of Connecticut River to be the partition boundary between New York and New Hampshire.

I wish I could say, My Lord, that the Royal Decision had been followed with that cheerful submission which was due to so express & authoritative an intimation of the King's pleasure. I am obliged, on the contrary, to complain, that there seems to be too much reason to believe, that the disorders in that country owe their origin and progress to the intrigues of persons in power in the Province of New Hampshire, with aims of enhancing their private fortunes, out of the Crown Lands; in the vain hope that his Majesty may be moved to annex this territory to the Province of New Hampshire under which their grants were obtained.

In the prosecution of this design some of the inhabitants have lately been excited to open acts of Violence, as well as an immediate application by petition to the throne. Upon procuring a Copy of this Petition I referred it to the Attorney General for his Report; and as his Representations appear greatly to concern his Majesty's interest, and to be supported by proofs, of which the King ought not to be uninformed, I now transmit them to Your Lordship for the Royal Consideration.

I must at the same time apprise Your Lordship that a great majority of the Settlers are not only disposed to a peaceable submission to the decision of 1764, but very averse to the change projected in New Hampshire, as will appear by their Counter Petition communicated to me, to be transmitted in their favour.

Nor can I omit mentioning that it is in this district that many of the reduced Officers and Soldiers have made their locations of the bounty pledged to them by the Royal Proclamation of the 7th of Oct<sup>r</sup> 1763. Besides this I find that others of his Majesty's Subjects have obtained Patents for many thousands of Acres, under the great Seal of this Province, which will be all frustrated upon detaching this Country from the Province of New York, and greatly increase the general confusion.

Your Lordship will doubtless perceive that, until the order transmitted to Sir Henry Moore prohibiting Grants to be made of lands before patented under New Hampshire, is rescinded, there can be no established tranquillity in that quarter of this Province, since it is natural to suppose, that the discontented Settlers (countenanced as they are by New Hampshire) will flatter themselves with hopes of favour; and make rapid accessions to their number from the profligate Banditti of the other Colonies, who look for safety where Government is weak and disturbed.

I have only to add, My Lord, that from all the information I have been able to obtain nothing more seems to me to be requisite for restoring peace than a Revocation of a late order, by which the Grants of this Province were suspended. The inhabitants now amount to between six and seven hundred families, of which number 450 odd have signed a Petition to me, which I have by this Packet transmitted to Your Lordship, praying to be continued in this Government; there is another Petition, as I understand sent home by Governor Wentworth, signed by about 200, praying to be under the Government of New Hampshire; but how these names were obtained, Your Lordship will easily be able to conceive if you take the trouble of looking into the different papers I have sent by this Packet; but surely 'tis more natural, even supposing that the New Hampshire claim was preferable to that of New York, to have a river such as Connecticut for the boundary. Add to this that the income of Government would be considerably increased annually by receiving half a Crown Quit Rent, instead of nine pence, per 100 acres, for so large a tract of Land as was disputed. I am, My Lord,

DUNMORE.

P. S. I have to inform Your Lordship of the death of Joseph Reade<sup>1</sup> Esq<sup>r</sup> one of his Majesty's Council in this Province. I also inclose to your Lordship three affidavits which I have lately received, which confirm our belief that the disorders above mentioned are promoted by people of the greatest power in the Province of New Hampshire.

N<sup>o</sup> 7

New York, 2nd April 1771

My Lord,

I have received your Lordship's letter N<sup>o</sup> 2 and am pleased to hear that the account which I had transmitted, relating to the disturbances on the borders of New Hampshire has been laid before his Majesty, and I hope that it, together with the further information contained in my succeeding letters to your Lordship, & particularly my last dated 9th of March N<sup>o</sup> 7 and the papers referred to therein will prove sufficient to determine his Majesty to confirm his Royal Declaration of 1764, and that I shall speedily receive Instructions in consequence thereof.

I continue to prorogue the Assembly from week to week, that they may be in instant readiness to meet in case of war.

The Acts of the last Sessions of the Assembly are not yet ready to be transmitted.

<sup>1</sup> JOSEPH READE was probably brother of Assistant Alderman John R., who represented the East ward in the Common Council of New-York from 1711 to 1713, (Valentine's Manual), and who was for several years a Vestryman of Trinity Church. Joseph was also a Vestryman and Warden of the same church up to the time of his death. His daughter Sarah married, in 1748, James, son of Abraham de Peyater. Supra, p. 14. He was called to the Council in March, 1764, and took his seat in that body 9th June following. New-York Council Minutes, XXV. Reade Street, N. Y., which was projected in 1760, derives its name, 'tis presumed, from this family. See note, post, p. 269. — Ed.

A person in this town having received an account of the capture of some whaling Vessells by the Spaniards off the island of Hispaniola, I have thought proper to transmit to your Lordship an extract of the letter which brought the report to this place.

Lieutenant Colonel Bradstreet having discovered as he asserts that the patent obtained by Johannes Hardenberg and others in the year 1706, commonly called the great Patent, was issued on false suggestions, and without the formes that are necessary to make it legal and valid; & that therefore the said Patent is void, and the lands pretended to be granted thereby remain vested in the Crown: This the said Lieut. Colonel Bradstreet represented, in a petition to the Governor of this Province, in order that he might obtain a grant of part of the said vacant lands, and the same has been examined before me in Council; & a number of evidences, as well on the part of the Patentees, as the said Lieut. Col. Bradstreet, were heard, all which took up many sittings, and in the end no other decision was made then, as the Council thought fit, to grant 20,000 acres of the said lands to the before mentioned Lieutenant Colonel Bradstreet, as a compensation for the expense he has been at in endeavouring to prove the facts he alledges; the Patentees however object to the said grant, and determine to defend it at law, which Lieut. Col. Bradstreet nevertheless is resolved to prosecute, and seems confident he can support, & prove the whole, or nearly, to be vacant, as above related; This has indeed,<sup>1</sup> a number of officers and persons who are possessed of mandamuses, and otherwise entitled to land by having served during the war in America, to petition me that I would, of my own authority, order their several locations to be surveyed for them upon these said lands, and to grant the same to them which they are willing to accept, notwithstanding the claim of the said Patentees. I have not thought proper to comply with the said Petitions, until I had represented the affair to your Lordship, & for that purpose transmit the petition above mentioned & with it a state of the case to prove the suggestions contained therein, and in consequence of which, if orders be sent me to grant the said Petitions, the Crown will be brought into no expense thereby, the Petitioners being willing to carry on the suit at their own expence and risk; however I shall not proceed in this affair until I receive instructions from your Lordship thereupon. It is necessary to observe to your Lordship that the said Patent, which contains about fifteen hundred thousand acres was granted to seven persons only, and no more than three pounds annual quit rent reserved, whereby a manifest prejudice is done to his Majesty's Revenue and tho the Patentees have been in possession of the said lands since the year 1706 yet there are not ten families settled thereon at this time.

I am,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant

DUNMORE.

[New-York Papers (State Paper Office) CLXIII.]

N<sup>o</sup> 1Whitehall 4th May 1771

By the last New York Mail I received Lord Dunmore's Dispatch of the 9th of March No 7 & have laid it before the King.

I was glad to find by that letter that the Session of Assembly had ended in general to his Lordships satisfaction, and that although the House of Representatives had suffered the tranquillity of their Proceedings to be in some degree interrupted by a renewal of their resolutions concerning M<sup>r</sup> Livingston, they nevertheless shewed a proper attention to the public Interests, excepting only in the case of the arrears due upon account of supplying his Majesty's troops, which I observe they have not thought proper to discharge.

So just a demand upon the Province speaks for itself, and therefore I hope that when the Assembly meets again, the bare mention of it by you will be sufficient to prevail upon them to desist from their refusal.

The attention shewn by the Assembly to the signification of his Majesty's pleasure concerning the expediency of some Law for regulating the Indian Trade is very pleasing to the King, and his Majesty approves of Lord Dunmore's having requested the advice & assistance of Sir William Johnson in that business.

As the Province of New York is more particularly interested in preserving the good will and affection of the Oneida Indians I make no doubt that if Sir William Johnson's funds are not sufficient to supply them with the necessaries they require in their Message to Lord Dunmore in December last, the Assembly will make proper provision for that service.

The spirited proposal of the Body of German Protestants in the City of New York, contained in their Memorial presented to Lord Dunmore in January last, could not fail of being pleasing to the King, and although there is not now any occasion for their service in the Military Line, you will signify to them his Majesty's approbation of the Zeal, and the satisfaction it gave his Majesty to receive from so respectable a Body such declaration of sincere affection to his Royal Person and Government, and earnest desire to assist in the defence of his Majesty's possessions.

With regard to the lands in the Eastern parts of the province, where I am sorry to find the disorders, early complained of by Lord Dunmore, continue to increase, I can only say what I have frequently expressed to his Lordship, that the matter is under consideration of the Board of Trade, and that I have not failed to communicate to that Board every thing that has been represented upon that subject.

It only remains for me to acquaint you that the Lords of Trade having recommended William Axtell<sup>1</sup> Esq<sup>r</sup> to be of the Council in the place of M<sup>r</sup> Read, their recommendation has been approved and the warrant for his admission will be delivered to his Agent.

HILLSBOROUGH.

<sup>1</sup> WILLIAM AXTELL was brother-in-law of James de Peyster, who had married the daughter of Mr. Reads, (supra, p. 267.) whom he now succeeded in the Council, Mr. Axtell having for his wife, Margaret, 3d daughter of Abraham and sister of James de Peyster. He was appointed to the Council 4th of May, 1771, and resided at Flatbush. Whilst he was entertaining a party of British officers there in 1776, a gunner belonging to the American army threw a shell into the house, to the great alarm of the family. Onderdonk's Revolutionary Incidents. Mr. Axtell having adhered to the Crown, his property was confiscated, and he returned to England in 1783, having lost his wife, however, before his departure, who died without leaving any issue. De Peyster Genealogy, 109. — Eo.

Whitehall, May 4th 1771.

I have received and laid before the King your dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 15 containing general observations on the state of Indian interests, and repeating your apprehensions that notwithstanding the meeting of the Indians at Scioto (which had given so much alarm) had ended only in general Resolutions of continuing their alliances, yet that there still remained some latent intention in the Savages to form a Confederacy dangerous to the King's possessions.

You will allow me, Sir, however to observe that I am fully convinced, as well from what has passed at this Meeting as from my Observations of the Disposition of Savages in general, that those natural enmities and jealousies which subsist between one nation and another, if left to have their own operation without any interfering on our part, are a full security against any hostilities which (they well know) must in the end terminate in their own destruction, & which therefore they will never attempt, unless provoked by such injuries and injustice as being common to all may make the Resentment of them a common cause. To prevent such abuses therefore, and, when they cannot be prevented, to endeavour to redress them, will, I doubt not, be the principal object of your attention, avoiding as much as possible interfering or becoming party in any Councils the Indians may think fit to hold relative to their own Interests. I do not mean by what I have said to express an opinion that there may not be some cases in which it may be advisable for the Servants of the Crown in the Indian Department to take some share, nor would I have it understood that they ought to be totally indifferent about what passes at such meetings; on the contrary they cannot be too active to obtain the fullest Intelligence of the Views and Proceedings of the Savages, because nothing will be more likely to defeat any designs which they may form to the prejudice of the public peace, than the letting them see we know what those Designs are, but if we persist in making ourselves parties in their politics, either directly or through the intervention of any particular tribe in which they know us to have a particular confidence, it is impossible to say to what consequences it may lead, and therefore I was concerned to find that the Deputies which were sent from the Northern Confederacy to the Meeting at Scioto had insisted with the Indians, whom they met returning from that meeting, that the Congress should be re-assembled. With regard to the Continuation of the Boundary line from where it was made to terminate by the Treaty of 1768 it is a matter which requires much consideration but it is impossible for me to give you any Instructions upon that head without knowing precisely in what direction and to what point the Indians wish to have it carried.

My Lords

Pursuant to your Lordships Order of the 6 of this Month we have taken into Our Consideration the address of Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New York humbly requesting His Majesty to remit the whole or such part as His Majesty in his Royal Wisdom shall judge meet & expedient of certain Quit Rents reserved to his Majesty and payable upon a Tract of Land in Gloucester County within the said Province granted by Lieutenant Governor Colden to that Corporation to be for ever appropriated for the sole use and benefit of the church belonging thereto.

Whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships

That the encouragement protection and support in the Colonies of the Church of England as by law Established are objects which do in Our opinion well deserve your Lordships attention and therefore we think that it will be adviseable in point of Policy to comply with the prayer of the above recited address but how far it may be expedient in Reference to the state of His Majesty's revenue of Quit Rents and the Establishments thereon is a consideration which belongs to other Departments If however his Majesty shall be graciously pleased to grant the remission of the Quit Rents in the Case in Question we think that in lieu thereof it may be adviseable that an annual Rent of Six Shillings and eight pence should be reserved to be paid by the Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New York concerned in this petition to the Governor and Commander in Chief of the said Province sitting in Council in the Council Chamber on Monday after Easter in each year conformable to what we proposed and was approved by your Lordships in the Case of an Application for a Grant of Lands in New York made to his Majesty in 1764 on behalf of the College of New York.

Whitehall, June 5th 1771.

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King a letter from the Earl of Dunmore as Governor of New York, dated the 2<sup>d</sup> of April, and as his Lordship continues to urge, with great Propriety, the expediency of some speedy decision in respect to the lands on the West of Connecticut River, I presume it will be a satisfaction to all parties, interested in the questions that have been agitated touching those lands, to know that the Board of Trade have prepared and will, in a few days transmit to the Privy Council their report on that business, & that you may expect before the Fall to receive such instructions thereupon, as shall without prejudice to titles derived from actual improvement and settlement, open a way to immediately perfecting the grants to the reduced officers and soldiers who have been so long kept in suspense, and that after proper reservations are made of Woodlands for the use of the Navy, and the rights of individuals are provided for, the residue of the land remaining for settlement will be disposed of on such a plan, and upon such terms as shall best correspond with the value and importance of them.

I have fully considered what Lord Dunmore states in respect to the proceedings at the Council Board upon the petition of Colonel Bradstreet, and the step which has been taken in consequence thereof, of granting to that gentleman 20,000 acres of the Land patented to Hardenberg and others in 1706, and as I am equally at a loss to guess upon what ground it was that the Council took upon themselves extra judicially to draw into question and decide upon the claims of those Patentees & afterwards to grant so large a quantity of the Land as 20,000 acres to one person, without regard to the restrictions contained in the Governor's instructions, I cannot but consider such proceedings as irregular, & can on no account, until that matter shall be further explained, advise his Majesty to consent to the Prayer of the petition for the further granting of those lands which Lord Dunmore has transmitted.

It is with great pleasure I acquaint you that the Queen was happily brought to bed of a Prince this morning and that her Majesty and the young Prince are as well as can be desired. I most heartily congratulate you upon this increase of the Royal Family, an event which gives the greatest Satisfaction to all his Majesty's subjects.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., 443.]

My Lords

Pursuant to your Lordships Order of the 5 day of July 1770 we did on the 13 day of that month take into Our Consideration the humble Petition of several Officers and Soldiers who served in North America during the late war, and were reduced at the Peace setting forth, "That in pursuance of His Majestys Royal Proclamation of the 7 of October 1763. they did "obtain warrants from the Lieutenant Governor of his Majesty's Province of New York for "sundry tracts of Land to be surveyed and also patents for divers Tracts of Lands in the "Northern parts of the said Province which lands the Petitioners alledge do yet remain "unsettled owing to a claim of several grantees under the Government of New Hampshire, "as also to a late Instruction of his Majesty to his Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York restraining him from "making any further Grants in these parts, till his Majestys Royal pleasure shall be known "and humbly praying his Majesty to permit the Governor of New York to Grant Lands to “such of the Petitioners, at whose expense they have been located & surveyed; and to confirm “to others the Grants which have already been made;” a request of such a nature from persons so respectable and meritorious induced the fullest attention to it, as it appeared to us by a letter from the Governor of New Hampshire to the Earl of Hillsborough communicated to Us by his Lordship, that the Council of that province were preparing, in order to transmit to his Majesty for his consideration a full state of the Claims to Lands in that District under Grants from the Government of New Hampshire we thought fit to postpone any Report to your Lordships on this Case, until that Representation should be received. As no such Representation has yet however been transmitted, and as his Majestys Governor of New York has repeatedly and in the strongest terms represented the necessity there is, as well in Justice to the Case of the reduced Officers as in propriety with respect to his Majestys service, that some speedy determination should be had concerning that very valuable and extensive tract of Land, which in consequence of those Claims remains in great part unsettled and unimproved, and in which the greatest disorders are committed, it becomes our duty no longer to delay making Our Report to your Lordships upon a matter, which in every light wherein it can be viewed, seems to us of great importance.

Your Lordships are already apprized by former Reports of this Board of the very extraordinary Circumstances, accompanying the Grants made within this District by the late Governor of New Hampshire and when we consider how extravagant those Grants are with respect to the quantity of Lands they contain and combine that Consideration with the many irregularities and improprieties attending them in other respects we have no doubt that they would upon examination be found null & void But this is a matter which cannot depend upon any opinion of Ours, and is a consideration which leads to questions that cannot now be entered into without laying the foundation for further delay in a matter that seems to require immediate decision.

We are sensible how difficult it will be in a case where so many opposite interests, depending upon Claims under very different circumstances, are to be considered to suggest any propositions that will coincide entirely with the hopes and expectations of all parties but when we reflect how important it is to all to have some speedy determination We cannot but flatter Ourselves that they will readily acquiesce in any reasonable conditions, that can be proposed to them And as this appears to us to be the only probable method of bringing this matter to a speedy issue, we shall beg leave in the first place to state to your Lordships those Claims which appear to us to be objects of Consideration & in the next place suggest what seems to us reasonable to be proposed with regard thereto.

The Claim that seems to us to deserve attention in the first place is that of those persons who possess Lands in this district under Grants legally and properly obtained from the Government of New York antecedent to any pretence set up by the Government of New Hampshire to exercise the power of granting Lands to the westward of Connecticut River and before any such Grants were made From the last information we have been able to collect relative to this Claim, it is confined to two or three Grants but a small part of which lies on the East of the Green Mountains the Country to the West of which was at all times before the unwarrantable Claims set up in consequence of the New Hampshire Grants admitted incontestably to be within the Province of New York and therefore we cannot but be of opinion that the proprietors of those Grants should not be disturbed in their possessions on the Ground of Claims derived from these subsequent Grants of the Government of New Hampshire.

The Claim that in the second place seems to Us to merit attention is that of those persons who in consequence of the Grants from the Governor of New Hampshire, have made actual Settlements and Improvement of any Lands not comprehended within the limits of the possessions above stated; for however disputable their titles may be upon the Ground of the Grants themselves yet there always has been & we think there always ought to be in the Plantations an attention to actual Settlement and Improvement; that in Cases where the possession does not interfere with the Rights of others ought to have preference to any other consideration; And therefore we think, that persons under this description ought to be left in entire possession of such Lands as they have actually cultivated and improved subject to no other condition or reservation either of Quit Rent or otherwise than what is contained in the Grants under which they claim.

The third Claim and indeed the only remaining one which appears to Us to merit particular indulgence is that of the reduced Officers and Soldiers, as well those comprehended within the petition referred to us by Your Lordships as all others under the like circumstances who may have obtained warrants from the Government of New York for the survey of Lands to them in this district the possession of which Lands has been obstructed by the pretensions of those claiming under the New Hampshire Grants; and with regard to these persons we cannot but be of opinion that no time should be lost in carrying their Grants into effect, provided however that the Surveys under which they claim do not include Lands which were actually & bona fide settled and improved by persons claiming under Grants from the Governor of New Hampshire antecedent to such warrants of Survey; who we think for the reasons already given ought not to be disturbed in their possessions on any account but that if any such case should exist the Officer or Soldier, claiming such Land under warrant of Survey from the Government of New York should have compensation made to him by an adequate Grant in some other part of the district.

With regard to the remainder of the Lands contained in this extensive District which if the foregoing propositions can by consent of the parties interested be carried into effect will remain for His Majestys disposal they are on all hands represented to be of great value & Importance not only from their natural situation & fertility but as including very extensive Tracts containing large growth of white pine Trees, and of other Timber fit for Naval purposes And when we consider the great advantage of them in this light it is Our duty in Conformity to what we humbly represented to His Majesty on the 24 day of July 1767 respecting the preservation of wood Lands in America, to recommend to your Lordships to advise his Majesty not to allow any further Grants to be made, or warrants of Survey issued for any Lands within this District; until the person who in consequence of that Representation has been appointed Surveyor for that Division of North America in which this district is included shall have carried his Instructions into execution & shall have marke[d] out, for Reservation to his Majesty such parts of it, as shall contain any considerable Growth of Trees fit for the purposes above mentioned.

When this service shall have been executed we see no reason why the residue of the lands may not be laid open to Settlement and improvement by Grants from his Majesty; but we can by no means recommend to your Lordships to advise his Majesty to suffer the Governor and Council of New York to dispose of the said Lands either upon the terms or in the manner in which they have hitherto exercised that power.

The well known fertility & particular advantage of these Lands arising from their situation in the midst of a well settled and cultivated Country render them we conceive far more valuable than those which lye more distant & remote And we see no reason why his Majesty may not in this case at least reasonably expect the same advantages which the proprietors of the province of Maryland & Pensylvania derive from the Grants of their waste and uncultivated Lands who over and above a Quit Rent nearly double what is reserved on Lands Granted by the Governor & Council of New York, receive five pounds for every hundred Acres, which is required to be paid to their respective receivers whose Certificate of such payment is made an indispensable requisite for obtaining a warrant of Survey for the Lands.

We have hitherto avoided stating to your Lordships the pretensions of those persons who claim the possessions of Lands in this district under the exorbitant Grants from the Governor of New Hampshire but who have not taken any steps towards acquiring possession of the Land or for seating or improving the same We are persuaded your Lordships will agree with us in opinion that combining this circumstance of neglect of improvement with the little degree of attention, which is due to the Grants themselves, from the manner & circumstances under which they were passed the claims of these persons can or ought to have in a general view of their little weight in the present consideration; In order however to avoid all possible ground of complaint and to give facility to the execution of what is proposed in the cases already stated we submit it to your Lordships Consideration whether it may not be adviseable after the Reservations abovementioned for naval purposes have been made, that such of the Grantees, as shall before a certain day to be fixed by proclamation apply by petition to your Majestys Governor and Council of New York for Grants of Land within the said District, may receive warrants of Survey for such parts of the said Lands as they shall chuse in quantity proportioned to their ability to cultivate and improve the same; with this Restriction however, that no one of the said persons, so applying shall either in his or her own name or in the name or names of any other person or persons in trust for him or her receive more than five hundred Acres, the said Grantees not be subject to payment of the purchase money above recommended, or to any other terms or conditions than what are usually contained in Grants from his Majestys Governor of New York under the present Instructions.

We are aware that the Claims of persons under this general description must vary in their Circumstances; and that a greater regard and attention may be due to one than ought to be shewed to another; but it is we fear impossible to distinguish any different Case; and we humbly conceive it is the less necessary in as much as these General Regulations will not preclude any particular persons who think themselves intitled to particular Indulgence, from making such application thereupon as they shall think proper.

We beg leave further to observe to Your Lordship, that there is another Claim of interest in these Lands which as it stands upon Grounds very different from these already stated, requires a seperate consideration & that belongs to the Society for the propagation of the Gospel in Foreign parts; who claim his Majesty's cons[ideration] in consequence of their having in each of the Townships granted by Mr Wentworth a Reservation of five hundred Acres in order to enable them to carry the laudable and pious purposes of their institution into effect.

As this Claim of the above Society has already been considered as meriting his Majesty's attention and was as we conceive in Great measure the foundation of that Instruction to his Majesty's Governor of New York, by which the lands in this district were locked up from settlement, until his Majesty's further orders were known, it becomes Our duty to consider in what step an adequate compensation can be made for it, and we beg leave to suggest to Your Lordships, whether such consideration may not be most properly obtained, & every other Religious Establishment for which Reservations were made in the New Hampshire Grants, effectually provided for, by subjecting every Grant which shall be made of Lands within this district in consequence of the above proposals to the payment to the said Society for the propagation of the Gospel of one Shilling proclamation p<sup>r</sup> annum for every hundred Acres, over & above the Quit Rents payable to his Majesty; & that it be recommended to the said Society that the moneys arising therefrom be applied solely to the purposes of providing Ministers and School Masters for that district.

If these propositions should meet with your Lordships approbation and his Majesty should upon your Lordships advice think fit to adopt them we do not apprehend that any difficulty will arise on the part of those, whose different Claims are meant to be provided for or that any other measure will be necessary for the present, than merely a transmission of the propositions themselves to his Majesty's Governor of New York with the signification of his Majesty's pleasure that the said propositions be made Publick in such manner as that all persons interested therein may have notice and that the Governor and Council do within a reasonable time thereafter proceed to confirm to the reduced Officers by Grant the property of such Lands for which they have obtained warrants with exception only to such parts as may have been seated & improved by the Claimants under the New Hampshire Grants, antecedent to the date of such warrants.

We further beg leave to submit to your Lordships, — whether it may not be proper in order to prevent disputes & for effectually securing the settlers under new Hampshire Grants in the possession of what they have already settled and improved conformable to what is before proposed that the actual state of such seating and improvement should be ascertained by a Jury of disinterested persons, to be summoned for that purpose by the Sheriff of the County in which the lands lye, whose return thereof with a plot & description thereunto annexed of the Lands so seated and improved, being registered in the County Court will be a full evidence upon Record of the title in case any Question should hereafter arise thereupon.

With regard to the lands proposed to be granted to other persons claiming under the New Hampshire Grants, but who have made no settlement or improvement whatever the execution of what is submitted in their Case as well as in the Case of the Residue of the Lands which will remain for his Majesty's disposal, within this district, must be suspended until the Country has been surveyed with a view to proper Reservations of Woodlands for the supply of masting & timber for the Royal Navy according to the directions already given for that purpose; and we are of opinion that the Instructions to be given to the Governor of New York in the latter Case cannot be too explicit and precise in order to guard against those irregularities & abuses which we are concerned to say have but too much prevailed in the exercise of the powers given to his Majesty's<sup>1</sup> in America for the granting of lands to the great prejudice of his

I have received and laid before the King a Dispatch from Lord Dunmore of the 7th May

There is nothing in his Lordship's letter which requires any particular directions, but as he very properly urges the expediency of giving dispatch to the Consideration of the laws of the Colony, which he says would be a great satisfaction to his Majesty's subjects there, it is fit I should observe to you that the delay of which his Lordship seems to complain is principally to be attributed to the neglect of the proper Officers in the Colony in not preparing and transmitting in due time Transcripts of the laws under the seal; I must desire therefore that you will make a strict enquiry into the causes of this neglect & take such steps as you shall judge to be necessary for inducing a greater attention for the future in a matter of so great importance.

Inclosed I send you two orders of his Majesty in Council on the 7th of last month, The one confirming and ratifying an Act passed in New York in January 1770, the other disallowing three Acts passed in the same session, and that you may know the reasons which have induced the disallowance of the said acts, I send you inclosed for your own information a Copy of the Representation of the Board of Trade thereupon

My Lord,

Governor Tryon arrived here Yesterday and as he had not received my letter, which (in consequence of Your lordship's intimation) proposed the exchange between us. I made the offer to him in person, and communicated Your Lordship's letter upon that subject; he has not thought proper to acquiesce therein, but has taken upon him the Administration of this Government, and I shall with all diligence prepare myself to repair to that, which it has pleased his Majesty to appoint me, intreating that Your Lordship will represent to his Majesty that I should not have hesitated to pay immediate obedience to the Orders I received from Your Lordship, had I conceived that my services would prove more effectual in Virginia, than in New York; and I hope my zeal for his Majesty's service will enable me upon this, as well as on every future occasion, to give his Majesty the satisfaction which will ever be the object of my conduct, and I trust I shall be happy enough to secure to myself Your Lordships approbation, I am, My Lord,

My Lord,

In pursuance of his Majesty's Commands I embarked at Newbern in North Carolina the 30th of last Month and arrived in this Government the 7th Ins<sup>t</sup>. The next morning I had the honour to receive his Majesty's Commission and Instructions from the Earl of Dunmore for my conduct and guidance in the Administration of the Government of New York, accordingly this morning I produced to his Lordship in Council, the said Commission and Instructions, took the oaths agreeable thereto, when his Lordship delivered me up the Great Seal of the Province.

The Gentlemen of the Council then present Qualified by taking the Oaths prescribed, after which I proceeded in procession to the Town Hall where my Commission was publickly read to a multitude of his Majesty's cheerfull and loyall Subjects.

I feel My Lord the warmest Gratitude for this fresh and most distinguished mark of my Sovereign's most gracious favor to me and shall endeavor to the utmost of my Abilities to deserve so highly honorable and important a Trust. I am, with the greatest respect, and regard,

My Lord,

I have been honored with Your Lordship's dispatch, containing the Duplicate of N<sup>o</sup> 1 and original of No 2: the letter is now under the Consideration of the Gentlemen of the Council.

Such of my General Instructions as I conceived affected the Council I ordered to be entered on the Minutes thereof. I have hitherto done no business of moment, receiving and returning the Civilities of the Country has been my chief employ. I herewith forward to Your Lordship the Addresses and Answers on the occasion of the honour his Majesty has done me in placing me in this part of his Dominions.

The following are the number of the public papers and letters of correspondence from your Lordship's Office which the Earl of Dunmore left under my care (I had not the honor to see any that he wrote) Vidz<sup>t</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Governor JOSIAH MARTIN was brother of Samuel Martin, M. P. for Camelford, Cornwall, England, who was Secretary of the Treasury in 1756, also Treasurer to the Princess Dowager of Wales, and who had distinguished himself by fighting a duel with, and wounding, the famous John Wilkes. Josiah entered the army in December, 1756, as Ensign of the 4th or King's own regiment of Foot. On the increase of the army in 1761 he was appointed Major in the 103d or Volunteer Hunters, and that regiment having been reduced soon after, he is afterwards found in the list of Lieutenant-Colonels until 1769. Army Lists. He entered on the administration of the affairs of North Carolina, on the 11th July, 1771, but unfortunately his predecessor had bequeathed him political difficulties in which he soon became involved, by the approach of the Revolution. In the fall of 1774, Governor Martin revisited New-York, and returned to North Carolina in February, 1775; a letter of his to General Gage, soliciting a supply of arms and ammunition, was shortly after intercepted, so finding himself suspected and insecure, he fled, on the 24th of April, 1775, to Fort Johnston, on the Cape Fear river. But the Whigs pursued, and drove him from the Fort, to the King's sloop of war, the Cruiser; from this ship, on the 8th of August, he issued a proclamation, which the Provincial Congress directed to be burnt by the common hangman. The battle of Moore's Creek, in which the Loyalists, under McDonald, were defeated and dispersed by Colonel Caswell, followed in February, 1776; and Governor Martin, embarking on board the fleet of Sir Peter Parker, arrived at Charleston, South Carolina, early in June of that year. He retired, subsequently, to New-York, and died at Rockaway, L. I., in November, 1778. His estate in North Carolina was confiscated. Sabine; Martin's North Carolina. — Ed.

P. S. The German Protestants (as appears by their address inclosed) are duly sensible of the honor done them by his Majesty's approbation of their offers to assist Government.

Johnson Hall, August 9th 1771

My Lord,

I was lately honoured with Your Lordship's letter (N<sup>o</sup>16) which I delayed<sup>1</sup> for some days that I might at the same time acquaint Your Lordship with the issue of a Congress I was then about to hold with the Six Nations which was occasioned by informations received by my Deputy at Fort Pitt from a Shawanese Indian and others. The substance of which was, that the Six Nations were concerned in exciting the Shawanese, Delawares, & many others to make war upon us, and altho this had been formerly propagated without any just grounds or foundation I judged it best policy to call the chiefs to a Congress thereon in order to show that such Designs, by whatsoever Nation carried on, could not be totally concealed from us, w<sup>ch</sup> might prove a check on the Nation which first excited it, and render them suspicious of each other.

The Chiefs only were summoned, but many more attending, to the number of 350, I opened the conference the 14th Ult<sup>o</sup> which held for several days.

I began by acquainting them with the obligation they were under to give me the earliest information that was anywise interesting and that I was surprised to hear from another quarter of some dangerous transactions which might prove the ruin of those concerned, adding that I expected to have the certain particulars from them. On their appearing ignorant of what I hinted at I gave them to understand that I had received an account of their being engaged in promoting a Rupture with the Indians, the event of which must have proved very fatal to themselves. They gave me many assurances to the contrary and requested to know their accusers, on which I related to them what I thought sufficient to convince any that might have been privy thereto that no designs of any ill tendency could long remain a secret to the English: this produced many speeches on both sides the last of which being the most material I herewith inclose as I did not judge them of sufficient importance to give Your Lordship the trouble of perusing the whole. After this I told them that I could not think their answer satisfactory, until the Belts mentioned in their Speech were delivered up, which they promised to see strictly performed and after renewing the Covenant Chain the Congress ended.

On this Congress I have only to observe that altho there is some cause to doubt of the friendship of the Senecas on the Ohio and at Chenussio, for reasons formerly given. Yet I had not, neither have I, any reason to suspect the rest of the Senecas, or any other of the Confederate Nations. Besides I know it to have been before the practice of those Nations, more remote from us, and who are apprehensive of the Six Nations, to propagate stories much to the disadvantage of the latter, with a view to exasperate us against them, and thereby draw them into their association, and I am confident that if an opportunity offered I could give a demonstrating proof of their fidelity, from the part they would take in our quarrels if required so to do.

I have always been entirely of Your Lordship's opinion with regard to the advantages we may expect from the jealousies subsisting between one nation and another, and I have more than once observed y<sup>e</sup> like to Your Lordship, I have been also always averse to entering into any of their private concerns. It would therefore give me great pain could I have the least reason to accuse myself of deviating from Your Lordships sentiments, and my own so repeatedly expressed, and I am persuaded it can be sufficiently made to appear that no part of my proceedings, if they have been justly expressed in my packets could have a tendency so contrary to the political practice I have always adopted. Indeed it is extremely necessary & gives the Indians a favourable idea of our justice & friendship to appear concerned at their private divisions or differences & desirous to see them composed, but I never interfere in any where his Majesty's interest and the public tranquility is not materially concerned, which was peculiarly the case in the affair of the Deputies sent to Sioto where the Chiefs of the most powerfull Nations on the continent were assembled for purposes that were too interesting to be overlooked, so that it appeared highly necessary to me that they should know we were not ignorant of their designs, & that they should be reprimanded for their past conduct, and cautioned against any future Undertakings and the means by which this was ordered to be effected, as well as the agents made use of were in my judgement the best calculated for that purpose, as well as for keeping up that jealousy which contributes so much to our security. Those Deputies are shortly expected home, when I shall transmit the result of their embassy and I flatter myself that my long experience in these matters, & zeal to acquit myself as an usefull servant to the Crown, will continue to me Your Lordship's favourable opinion.<sup>1</sup> Could my authority extend to the redress of grievances in any thing material we should have much less apprehension from the Indians, but, as my authority cannot be so far extended, Your Lordship may rely on my doing every thing in my power for the interests of the Crown and the public within the limits prescribed to me, and that faithfully according to the best of my judgement. I have the honor to be with the most perfect esteem, My Lord,

Your Lordships most obedient
W JOHNSON.

<sup>1</sup> of my capacity for the office I have the honor to hold, as after a series of successful services, nothing could be a more sensible mortification to me than the thought of having incurred your Lordship's censure. Johnson Manuscripts. — Ed.

with several other Gentlemen.

The Indians being assembled to answer Sir William's speech of the day before Tyorhansera Cheif Speaker arose, and after repeating all that had past during the whole Congress on the sev<sup>l</sup> Belts &c proceeded as follows

Brother Warraghyagey

We are now assembled to answer you, agreeable to what you said on your first Belt and in the first place assure you that as it has given us much concern to hear of any suspicion entertained of our Fidelity, we have given it that serious consideration which an affair of such importance required, and we shall give you as full and true an answer, as we are able thereupon.

A Belt of 8 Rows

Brother,

We have for your satisfaction made a very strict enquiry amongst our several nations concerning the Intelligence that you received but after the closest examination amongst the principal nations here we could not find one single person acquainted therewith, Yet still further to convince you of our sincerity, and sensible that if any of our People harbored any evil thoughts they were not propagated on this side of the Upper Seneca Villages, Sayenquarraghta has last night examined those of the farthest Castle, who are here, who have declared that any evil yet remaining proceeds from Gaustarax the Cheif of Chenussio, who is now under the ground, and was always a busy man, that privately and wickedly concerned himself in mischief in the name but without the Privity of the Six Nations. This troublesome man sent, at the late Indian war, a Belt hatchet with many bad speeches to the Shawanese, and to all the people living that way, but kept it very secret from Sayenquarraghta knowing he was a friend to the English. By this Belt he acquainted all these Nations that he would remove the door of the six Nations which was formerly at his village at Chenussio, down to Scioto plains, and that he expected their assistance to enable him to fight his way there. This was not discovered for a considerable time afterwards, as Guastarax was well known to be a very artful designing man, always employed in mischief. We both dis-regarded him and disavowed his acts, with which we presumed you had been well acquainted, but that you did not particularly notice it, from your reliance on our fidelity. But, Brothers, the disposition of those people who appear to accuse us is well known, and that they are but too ready to quarrell with the English, and as Guastarax's cunning was well known both to you and us, we should not be surprised, if he had at several times since, sent Belts to the Ohio, and particularly when he met so many Indians from thence, at the Treaty at Fort Stanwix, we having now discovered from an Indian now here, who received it some time ago from a Shawanese at the Big Island, that Guastarax had then sent Belts, recommending it to those living at that place, to retire to the great plains, that their young men should apply themselves to hunting for three years, to purchase necessarys for war, and that when they were ready he would assist them. This Circumstance was known to the person who mentioned it Yesterday for some time, but considered by him as a project totally laid aside, and we can truly assure you that we knew nothing even of this, till he told it us, after you had delivered your speech, and that we have never sent any such belts, or messages, to those people, neither have we ever heard of any such being sent by any of the Six Nations, but what we just now mention. We have often observed that the Chenussios are neglectful, we must acknowledge they are very liable to suspicion, they have very often differed from us in Sentiments, and Conduct, and as it is known to you, that Gaustarax was capable of doing any bad thing, we suppose he may have left such Belts with these people, and that they still remain there, of which they now take an advantage, but we again affirm that none of us had any knowledge of them, or concern therein, and we think it extremely hard to be constantly charged with the Acts of particular bad men who neither regard our advice, or divulge their schemes to us, though they may make use of our names as a cover to their badness of heart.

A Black and White Belt. 7 Rows.

Brother,

Now having truly and fairly related to you all we are acquainted with touching this disagreeable news, we declare that in case any such secret hatchet should be still amongst the Indians about the Ohio, we are ready and willing to use our utmost authority to take it away and bury it forever, but as Thomas King with our other Deputies are now gone to that Country with the most ample powers for restoring peace & effectually checking all those who would disturb you, or us, we are confident he will bring it away with him at his return, if any such there is; however, should it be concealed from him, & still remain in their hands, we engage as a farther proof of our friendship, and pacific disposition to fetch it from thence, and to prevent as far as lies in my power any such private dealings in future. These are the Words of truth, and our sincere resolutions.

My Lord,

As doubts have arisen respecting the appointment of Surrogate and Register of the Prerogative Court within this Government, I beg leave to submit the equity and Propriety of the claims to his Majesty: The one claiming the appointment of the Officer of the said Court, under the King's Commission as Commander in Chief in and over the province, the latter under the patent of Secretary of the Province.

M<sup>r</sup> Banyar's Memorial, in behalf of M<sup>r</sup> George Clark Secretary, with a Copy he delivered me of an Order of his late Majesty in Council at the Court of Kensington the 5th of May 1758, I have the honor to transmit to your Lordship, together with my letter in answer to M<sup>r</sup> Banyar's Memorial, wherein I required the Prerogative Seal to be delivered up to me; The rights of this Court, My Lord, I was in the exercise of in North Carolina; with this Difference that the Crown of the Great Seal was used to all instruments as the prerogative Seal, and that Wills were by the Direction of a particular Act of Assembly recorded in the County Courts. Finding therefore on my arrival here that the principal perquisites which were appropriated in North Carolina to the support of the Governor's private Secretary, were received by the Surrogate and Registry in Question, and also finding the Earl of Dunmore had actually given to M<sup>r</sup> Banyar the Deputy Secretary, the Commission of Surrogate and Registry, and after receiving opinions, both in England and in this town, from gentlemen of the first eminence of the Bar, that such appointment was vested in the Governor, I gave the Commission in question to M<sup>r</sup> Fanning,<sup>1</sup> my private Secretary, as an honorable testimony of his public and distinguished services in the late rebellion in North Carolina, where he commanded the Orange Detachment of 200 men, and in recompence for the loss he sustained by his house and furniture being destroyed in the Riot at Hillsborough Superior Court in September last. I shall not trouble Your Lordship with any law points, but rest my conduct in this instance on the Equity of the case. I am, with real esteem and regard

My Lord, Your Lordships

Most obedient Servant

Whitehall 4th December 1771

I take the first opportunity after my return to London to congratulate you upon your arrival at New York & to acquaint you that it hath given his Majesty much satisfaction to find that you have met with so favourable & affectionate a Reception from all ranks of his Majesty's Subjects in that Colony.

<sup>1</sup> EDMUND FANNING, who afterwards became so notorious in the war of the Revolution, was originally an attorney of North Carolina, and represented in the Assembly there the county of Orange, of which he was the Recorder of Deeds and Colonel of the militia. He married Governor Tryon's daughter, and rendered himself so odious to his neighbors that he accompanied his father-in-law to New-York in the capacity of Private Secretary. In 1776 he received authority to enlist a corps of Loyalists, afterwards called the Associated Refugees, or King's American Regiment of Foot; it was raised with funds subscribed in Staten Island, King's County, town of Jamaica, and city of New-York. This regiment was disbanded in 1783. In September of that year Col. Fanning was sworn in Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia. He was subsequently appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Prince Edward's Island, the affairs of which Province he administered for nearly nineteen years. Sabine. He became Major-General in the army in 1793; Lieutenant-General in 1799; General 25 April, 1808, and died at an advanced age, in his house in Upper Seymour Street, London, on the 28th February 1818. His widow and three daughters survived him. Gentleman's Magazine, LXXXVIII, 469. — Ed.

I have long lamented the disorders which have prevailed on the lands heretofore considered as part of the province of New Hampshire, but which were annexed to the Government of New York by his Majesty's Order in Council of the 20th July 1764.

By this order however all Contests between the two Governments in respect to territorial jurisdiction were finally decided, & therefore if Acts of Violence have been committed with impunity & the authority of Government insulted, it is not to be attributed to any want of Decision of Government here.

It is true indeed that his Majesty hath thought fit to suspend any final determination with regard to the different claims of Property in those Lands until the State of each claim could be fully examined, and it might reasonably have been expected, that in a case where so many different rights & Interests were in question, the servants of the Crown in the several Departments would not proceed without due caution & circumspection, and would avoid hastily deciding upon a matter of so much difficulty & importance, I have the satisfaction however to acquaint you that the Board of Trade did some time since make a full Report to the Privy Council upon this subject, and I doubt not but that I shall soon be enabled to send you the necessary instructions in consequence thereof.

The King approves of your conduct in having demanded Reparation of the Governor of St. Domingo for the losses which Capt. Frisby of the Hawke sustained by the Seizure of his vessel and the unjustifiable treatment he met with from the Spaniards in that Government, but the King's servants are inclined to think that you went rather farther than belonged to your Situation in demanding the punishment of the Officers who made the Seizure.

It was very natural in a matter of that consequence for you to think of taking the advice of your Council, I believe however upon reconsideration of the subject you will be Opinion that it is not proper to lay before a provincial Council for their consideration any matters of a general public nature which have no immediate relation to the affairs of that Colony, & I am to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure that you do for the future avoid taking that step in any instance of a like nature.

I have read with attention the Report of the Committee of Council upon the Extract of my letter N<sup>o</sup> 2 which you thought fit to communicate to them, on which I have only to observe that as the Minutes of the Council to which they refer for their justification were not received at the Plantation Office till more than a month after my letter was wrote, I had nothing to form my opinion upon but Lord Dunmore's Representation of the Case, in which he neither states the ground for drawing into question the Right of the Patentees of 1706, nor makes any mention of other persons being associated with Col. Bradstreet.

As the mode however of granting lands in New York and the Council's proceeding thereupon are matters of very great importance, as well in respect to the Interests of the Crown as to the Rights of the Subject, and will most probably be the subject of serious consideration at a proper opportunity, I must desire you will, as soon as may be, report to me for his Majesty's information a full state of the method of proceeding upon application for grants of lands, in order that his Majesty may be informed whether such Method does or does not correspond with the letter and spirit of the Royal Instructions given for that purpose; for if it should turn out that Grants are made to persons by name who never personally appear at the Council Board, or are examined as to their ability to cultivate and improve the Land they petition for, and that the insertion of Names in a Patent under pretence of their being associates or co-partners is only a Colour for giving to any one person more than he is allowed by the King's Instructions; it is an abuse of so gross and fraudulent a nature as deserves the severest Reprehension, and it is highly necessary, both for the interest of the Crown and for the dignity of his Majesty's Government that some effectual measure should be taken to put a stop to it.

As the Report of the Committee of the Council will I trust lead to a discussion that has become so highly necessary I am not on this account sorry that my Letter to you which produced that Report was communicated to the Council, but as it contained no directions from the King that it should be made that use of, His Majesty observes that you have not attended to his order signified in my circular letter of the 2<sup>d</sup> of Sept<sup>r</sup> 1768 of which, lest it should be mislaid, I enclose you a Copy.

I am happy to be able to confirm to you the Recovery of his Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucester from the disorder that put his life in so much danger at Leghorn, an event that I am persuaded will give general satisfaction and joy to all his Majesty's faithful Subjects. I am, &c<sup>a</sup>

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatch No 16.

The Detention of the author of the false Reports spread amongst the Indians upon the Ohio, with a view to engage them in a general plan of hostility, is a very happy event, and leaves no room to doubt of the propriety of that measure which led to so important a discovery.

I am satisfied from what passed at the Congress at Johnson Hall that the fidelity of the Six Nations is not to be doubted, & whilst they continue firm we have little to fear from the Machinations of the Senecas at Chenussio, who seem, for private purposes of their own, to have separated themselves from the rest of their tribe, and whose intrigues appear to be founded in views inconsistent with the interests of, and disapproved by, the Confederacy in general. Their Motions however ought to be watched, and there seems nothing wanting to defeat their designs but their knowing we are not ignorant of them.

I am happy to find that my sentiments with regard to the advantages to be gained from the jealousies subsisting between one tribe of the Indians and another correspond with your own Ideas on that subject: I agree with you however that the operation of those jealousies to defeat any dangerous plan that may be proposed is not always to be relied on, and I am now satisfied as well from what you state respecting the Congress at Scioto as from what appeared at the Congress at Johnson Hall, that our Intervention in the Business to be proposed at the first of those meetings was necessary, and that the sending Deputies thither from the Six Nations was a proper step.

The Plan for Indian Affairs, which was referred to Your Consideration when I was formerly in Office, renders it almost unnecessary for me to say how much I lament that Your authority does not extend to redress those grievances which are most material; and I am persuaded that could it have been foreseen, that the Colonies would have been so backward and negligent in meeting those gracious intentions of the King, which induced his Majesty to leave the Regulation of the Commerce to them, their Representation on the subject would have not so far prevailed as to have occasioned such a deviation from the plan at first proposed, as has almost entirely defeated every useful Object it had in view; But as the matter now stands, nothing further can I apprehend be done until the King's Servants are apprised of the Measures which the Commissioners, who I find were to meet at New York on the 1st of this month, shall have thought fit to recommend.

As you do not mention the Defection of the Kickapous Pouteatamis, two Nations of the western Confederacy, I presume you have not received any certain advices of their hostilities, nor had been apprized of the opinion General Gage has stated to me of the necessity of chastising them. Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage has not however proposed to me any plan for this purpose, or explained the Steps he intends to pursue, and therefore I am unable to give You any particular Instruction with regard to Your conduct on this Event; But it is his Majesty's pleasure, that you should co-operate, as far as belongs to Your Department in every measure which General Gage shall think necessary for the King's service on this occasion.

You will have observed from the public prints the danger in which His Royal Highness The Duke of Gloucester has been, from the attacks of a very violent disorder at Leghorn, and his happy recovery from it. It is with very particular satisfaction I am able to confirm to you the latter part of that Intelligence and to congratulate you upon an event that cannot fail to give the greatest pleasure to all His Majesty's faithfull Subjects. I am, &c

Sir.

I am sorry to find by your last letter, that you have mislaid that, which you mention to have received from me, shewing the Lands claimed by You at Popaghtunk were purchased before the late Treaty for establishing the Boundary line, for being confined to my room with my usual complaints and full of pains, I cannot possibly go to my study, or look over any papers of that time which might afford me better grounds for answering your present request that I should certify the same. As I had no concern in that or any other Indian purchase, all I can recollect is that when some purchaes were brought for confirmation before Sir Henry Moore at this place, the Six Nations declared that their Lands extended to the Popaghtunk branch of Delaware, and therefore that the lands over, or to the North West of that branch claimed by Mr Harderberghs patent was their property, and had never been sold by them, or any other

Ind<sup>rs</sup>, but that they sold them to You, that you might patent them, and would consider the Land between the Mohawk and Popaghtunk branches, as your property or to that effect.

Whether this declaration, will prove of use to you or not, I cannot say, but it is as much as I can recollect at this time, and is freely communicated for your use by

Sir

Your most obedient and
most humble servant.

My Lord.

The Commissioners from the several Colonies expected to meet in this City, on the 4th of Decemb<sup>r</sup> last, agreeable to Lord Dunmore's and other Govern<sup>rs</sup> appointments, have failed to give their attendance. M<sup>r</sup> Nelson informed me, by letter, that His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> repeal of a Virginia Law, under which their Commissioners were appointed, was the occasion of their Failure; and Mr Penn enclosed me the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> excuse to him for not giving their attendance, a copy of which I herewith transmit to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> Such a Congress for the purpose of settling a plan of Trade with the Indians, will be extremely difficult to effect, and when met to concur in a general plan for regulating that Trade, will not probably be less. But this suggestion I submit to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s better wisdom.

I have received the King's Warrant for the payment of my Salary for this Govern<sup>t</sup>. I beg your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will make known to His Majesty the humble and dutiful sence I retain for this and all other his most gracious favours to me.

The general Assembly being convened the 7th inst: I opened the Sessions yesterday with the inclosed speech, which both houses have now under consideration.

Additional Instruction to Our Trusty and Well-beloved William Campbell Esquire commonly called Lord William Campbell, Our Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over Our Province of Nova Scotia in America. Given

WHEREAS laws have been passed in some of Our Colonies and Plantations in America, by which the Land, Tenements, Goods, Chattels, Rights and Credits of Persons who have never resided within the Colonies where such laws have been passed, have been made liable to be attached for the recovery of debts in a manner different from that allowed by the Laws of England in like Cases; and whereas it has been represented unto Us that such laws may have the consequence to prejudice and obstruct the Commerce between this Kingdom and Our said Colonies and to affect public Credit; it is therefore Our Will and Pleasure that you do not on any pretence whatever give your assent to or pass any Bill or Bills in Our Province under your Government, by which the Lands, Tenements, Goods, Chattels, Rights, and Credits of persons who have never resided within Our said Province shall be liable to be attached for the recovery of Debts due from such persons, otherways than is allowed by Law in Cases of the like nature within this Our Kingdom of Great Britain, until you shall have first transmitted unto Us, by one of our Principal Secretaries of State, the Draught of such Bill or Bills and shall have received Our Royal Pleasure thereupon, unless you take Care in the passing of such Bill or Bills, that a Clause or Clauses be inserted therein, suspending and deferring the Execution thereof, until Our Royal Will and Pleasure shall be known thereupon.

New York. 6. March. 1772.

My Lord.

I thank you for your congratulations (expressed in your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s letter N<sup>o</sup> 6) on my arrival in this Govern<sup>t</sup>.

I most sensibly feel the weight of your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s most pointed reprehension respecting my conduct in laying before the Council Board, an extract from your Letter N<sup>o</sup> 2, desirous, as I am, to make known to your Lord<sup>d</sup> the full extent of my inattention to my duty, I shall represent the steps I took on that occasion. On the perusal of the last mentioned letter, I found your Lord<sup>d</sup> was not inclined to advise His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to consent to the prayer of the Petition (in the affair of Coll: Bradstreet for the granting of those Lands in question, until the matter should be further explained. This explication I considered my task. The Earl of Dunmore, from whom I wished to have had my information, had left the City, & was not expected to return; my only resource then was, to the Gentlemen of the Council. I intimidated therefore to them (and I thought it a natural justice due to them) that your Lord<sup>d</sup> was at a loss to comprehend the grounds of their conduct in that business, at the same time signifying my wishes to give your Lord<sup>d</sup> full satisfaction in that particular. They desired an extract of the letter relative to that matter. I complied with their request, not having been furnished by Lord Dunmore with His Majesty's instructions of the 2<sup>d</sup> Sept<sup>r</sup> 1768. or of any of his correspondence with your Lordship. The manner in which the Council took up this business, was not at my instance, yet I thought I was not at liberty to decline the request of the Council, and to transmit their Report to your Lord<sup>d</sup> after the subject which was the occasion of it, had on[c]e been agitated in Council, as a matter of State, and under the oath of secrecy.

I was pleased to find His Maj<sup>ty</sup> approved of my Conduct in writing to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of S<sup>t</sup> Domingo to demand reparation for the injuries Capt<sup>n</sup> Frisby of the Hawk Sloop had suffered. The sentiments of the King's Ministers with regard to my requiring the punishment of the Officers who offered the injury, entirely convinces me I exercised a power that did not belong to my situation. In any similar instance, instructed as I now am, I shall be careful to fulfill His Majesty's pleasure.

I shall lose no time in procuring in order to lay before your Lord<sup>sh</sup> for His Majesty's approbation, a full state of the method of proceeding upon an application for grants of lands, at which time I shall subjoin such observations as occur to me on that important subject. I last month obtained from the several officers of the Land office return of the usual and accustomed Fees they respectively take with the services they perform. Copies of all which I here transmit, the originals have been some time under the consideration of Committee of the Council, who are to report thereon.

I heartily rejoice on your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s confirmation of His Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucester's recovery of his health, and am with great respect & esteem

My Lord.

Your Lordship's

most obedient servant

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

Sir William Johnson to the Earl of Hillsborough.

[New York Papers (State Paper Office) CCLVIII.]

Johnson Hall, April 4th 1772.

My Lord,

I was lately honored with your Lordships letter No 17 in answer to mine N<sup>o</sup> 16 since which I took the liberty of addressing Your Lordship by a few lines on a more private subject; From that time I waited with much impatience for the return of Thomas King the Indian Chief, who with others went as Deputys to the great Congress at Sioto, as I mentioned in my last letter, but in October to my great concern I received the disagreeable news that Thomas King died at Charles town South Carolina, after having discharged the Embassy committed to him, This I considered, as I still do, as a sensible disappointment because the Fidelity of that Chief, joyned to his superior capacity gave me good hopes of receiving a circumstantial account of all matters at his return, which I could not expect so perfect from the rest of his party. After waiting some months more, I found that his party, who had taken shipping at Charles town, were landed at Philadelphia, and in February the greatest part of them, with many others, came to my house here. I found that Anawacka the next in authority to Thomas King had died on shipboard, and that an other was so afflicted with a lameness that he could not as yet make me a visit. I was therefore obliged to content myself with such accounts as the young men who survived could give, who after laying before me a considerable number of Belts, Calumets &c<sup>a</sup> began to repeat the proceedings of Thomas King, first with the Shawanese at Fort Pitt on his way to Sioto where these people assured him that the Wawaghtanous would shortly send Deputys to the six nations & myself to solicit a continuance of friendship. They next recounted that upon Thomas King's arrival at Sioto, he assembled all the nations in that quarter of the country, and first addressed the Shawanese whom he upraided for retireing so far down the Ohio, and for confederating with people unmindfull of their engagements and in short repeated to each of the Nations faithfully all that he had been charged with by the six nations and myself. The Shawanese answered that the six nations had long seemed to neglect them, and to disregard the promise they formerly made of giving them the lands between the Ohio and the Lakes, that thus distressed they went on board of their Canoes determined to go whither soever fortune should drive them, but were stopped (many years since) at Sioto by the six nations, who shook them by the heads & fixed them there, charging them to live in peace with the English, but that to their great surprize they soon after saw the six nations in arms & coasting along the Lakes with the English (i. e. assisting us & acting offensively last war). That when the war was ended the ill treatment of the six Nations increased, to whom thereupon they sent Belts to strengthen their union, but that they supposed Augastarax the Seneca Chief who received them did not make them public, for that they never received any answer thereto; The Shawanese and the rest then shewed some emblematical Belts representing themselves and the Illinois Indians with ten confederate Nations between them, they also delivered a Belt from the Chickesaws who promised to be guided by the Six Nations.

Thomas King then, after accusing them of misrepresentation, answered them by a full detail of all their hostile acts, as also of those of the Poutewatamies, Kickapous &c concluding with telling them that he and the other deputys were come to restore them to their senses & strengthen the union of those who affected the English Alliance, by opening a Road to the Council Fire at Onondaga, & from thence to my house, for the use of those who chose to live at peace and be happy, but that the first nation that should obstruct the same, or look another way would assuredly be punished by the rest. To this they made reply on several Belts &c<sup>e</sup> excusing themselves on various pretences, ending with strong assurances of their pacific intentions, & promising faithfully to abide by all that was recommended to them, and forthwith to bring all their confederates into the same sentiments. The Cherokees particularly thanked the six nations and myself for the peace they had obtained in 1768 whereby they began once more to enjoy themselves. And the chief of the Creeks who met them at Gohi, expressed much satisfaction at seeing the Deputies, promised to make use of the Road they had opened, and to adhere steadfastly to his engagements. After this and many other matters The Catabaws escorted the Deputies to Charles town where Thomas King died, and the rest proceeded as before mentioned.

This, my Lord, is a brief summary of the Report made to me by Nicaroondase the principal survivor, the two chiefs being dead, & and one of the principal men yet behind from which and some farther conversations I have held with the Deputies who returned, it appears to me that the Shawanese, who, to my knowledge, grasped at the lands on both sides of the Ohio, thò at the late conference they only mention the North side, repenting the sale of y<sup>e</sup> Lands on the South of that River had sent belts to the Senecas to stir up the Six Nations to disavow their own act, propagating at the same time reports which might tend to alienate us from the latter; That Gaustarax and his tribe approved of this, but that the rest of the Confederacy would not give ear to it, is evident from the speech made to the Deputies at Sioto, that thereupon Augastarax sent Belts to the other Nations to set them up, which gave rise to the story of the Seneca Plot & the Belts sent by Augastarax a little before his death; These Belts I am assured will be speedily delivered, those who promised to see the same performed, only waiting the return of the Deputies from the Southward; I have also received notice that another general meeting is appointed to be held at Sioto, which the Indians in that Quarter declare to be intended to communicate the sentiments of the six Nations to those who were not present at the last Conference & to take measures in consequence of their engagements, however I have already taken care that those who go from the Northward in consequence of their summons are men to be depended on, & I shall have a strict eye over their proceedings.

I ought to remark that, as amongst other fallacious pretences, the Shawanese have spoke of the sale to the Crown extending to Ohio, that it is not of that part which for the several reasons I formerly gave I ventured to continue from Kanhawa to the Cherokee River, but this pretended objection is to the part above Kanhawa, to which I was directed to purchase by his Majesty's orders, & indeed no other part could effect them, but even this is a weak pretence, for the North side of the River which they still occupy, is more than they have any title to, having been often moved from place to place by the six Nations, & never having any right of soil there, so that the admitting of any part of their title as just, would introduce a variety of other claims as weakly founded, which would create a general confusion in the Colonies. I considered the defection of y<sup>e</sup> Kicapous & Poutawatamies &c under the general denomination of their Confederacy, of whose fidelity I have but a very slender opinion. Their murders & robberies are however much owing to y<sup>e</sup> jealousy of French traders, and to that lawless colony of that Nation on the Waubache who are daily increasing in numbers, and whilst they particularly hate us as English are realy enemies to all Government; These men should if possible be removed, but possessing y<sup>e</sup> Esteem of the neighbouring Indians, and acquiring a confidence from their connections, & remote situation, I beleive it will be a verry hard task to effect it compleatly, or in a proper manner, I understand that General Gage has this in view, and your Lordship may be assured that I shall most chearfully obey his Majesty's orders by co-operating with General Gage in this or any other measure which the King's service may require.

The Complaints made daily by the Indians of the abuses & irregularities of trade are many & grievous, and will doubtless be made use of by them in case of a defection in any quarter. The injuries which our own traders sustain to the South West-ward thro' the superior influence and artifices of the French, who engross the commerce of that Country, is likewise worthy serious attention, for all which there appears no prospect of remedy, as the Commissioners did not meet last September as was expected, neither according to the best accounts that I have, is there any likelihood that they will do so, or if met that any thing effectual will be agreed to from the different interests and systems of policy prevailing in each Colony which must ever prove an obstruction to establishments that depend on a perfect union of sentiments, & on proportional quotas of Expense. I am persuaded that such negligence, in a matter of General concern, could not have been foreseen by Government, and I am happy to find that my sentiments correspond with those of Your Lordship on the necessity there is for a redress of such grievances as must endanger the public tranquility.

I never coveted neither shall I ever wish for Authority but, where the public service requires it, to reach abuses that may not otherwise be easily removed. The attention w<sup>h</sup> the present duties of my Office require would rather incline me to wish that these important points could be effected in any other Channel, of which I express my doubts with real concern.

The event of the public negotiations in which the Indians propose to be occupied the ensuing season are for many reasons as yet extremely doubtful, they require to be strictly enquired into, and I shall give them my whole attention, highly encouraged by the favourable sentiments with which Your Lordship has honored my proceedings. I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude upon that occasion but by a perseverance in my attention to His Majesty's Interest, & to those duties which have procured me so flattering a distinction.

I am also much obliged to Your Lordship for the confirmation of the most agreeable news of the recovery of His Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucester; An event which so nearly regards his Majesty's domestic felicity, and which is so interesting to every faithful subject, affords me the most sensible satisfaction. I have the honor to be with the utmost respect imaginable My Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient,

much obliged, humble Servant

W JOHNSON.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXIV.]

New York. 11. April 1772.

My Lord,

Agreeable to your directions communicated in your letter N<sup>o</sup> 6. I have the honour herewith to transmit to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> a full state of the present proceedings on applications for Land in this Government.

The grand objection your Lord<sup>sh</sup> points out in persons applying for land under borrowed names, in trust for them, seems extremely difficult eventually to obviate; for, were each Patent to contain but one Thousand acres, and that only to one person, no restriction I presume could guard against his alienating his Land as soon as he had obtained the Patent for it; consequently those, who had the command of money, might acquire an unlimited landed property. I am very credibly informed, that in this Prov<sup>ce</sup> many hundred thousand acres of patented land may, at this very time, be purchased from half a crown to eighteen pence sterling per acre, and some at less value. I conceive it My Lord, good policy to lodge large Tracts of Land in the hands of Gentlemen of weight and consideration. They will naturally farm out their lands to Tenants; a method which will ever create subordination and counterpoise, in some measure, the general levelling spirit, that so much prevails in some of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Govern<sup>ts</sup>.

The objections that occur to me on the present mode of granting lands, are, that on the Gov<sup>ty's</sup> preferring the Petitions, he receives for Land to a Committee of the Council, there are no fixed periods for taking the same into consideration, and when the Report of the Committee is made to the Gov<sup>r</sup>, and the advice of Council obtained thereon, he receives such Report and advice as conclusive to him. The latter objection may perhaps have no weight, but the necessity of having fixed periods to transact the Land office business, twice or thrice a year, is important.

I must observe that upon the Gov<sup>ty's</sup> receiving the advice of Council as aforesaid, the Warrant he signs to the Surveyor General to survey the Land, & the executing the Patent when the survey is returned, are both done out of Council. I conceive it would be much more formal and regular to execute these instruments in Council, I would therefore submit the real expediency of having certain periods or Terms for holding the Land Office as in North Carolina; at which time all petitions lodged with the Governor in the intermediate space between the holding of the Courts, to be laid before and considered by the Gov<sup>r</sup> in Council (or referred to a Committee as in the present usage), that the warrants for all Petitions that are advised to be granted, be then signed, and patents executed, for such Tracts as have been surveyed, and the warr<sup>t</sup> of Survey returned by the Surveyor General. It will be essentially necessary, that the Surveyor Gen<sup>l</sup> & his Deputies, should attend at the holding of these Terms to give such information and satisfaction as may be required of them by the Court; the want of this information is a subject of complaint in the present mode. At these Courts likewise, all Caveats might be heard and determined.

The next consideration will be the Officers Fees. The return of their services, and the Fees they take by usage, has been already transmitted, and I have now the honor to inclose the Report of the Council upon them. I should submit the reasonableness of allowing some Fee on every Patent to the Gov<sup>r</sup>'s private Secretary, as he puts the seal to both warrants and patents; the Fee for this service was two shillings and eight pence in North Carolina for every hundred acres.

I am not Master of much method in arranging my reflections on any subject; I can, however, My<sup>g</sup> Lord, with confidence declare, I have here delivered them with all the integrity my Sovereign has a right to expect from me.

When His Majesty, shall have fixed the great outlines and such other directions as shall be thought proper for my future conduct in granting of Lands, I should wish liberty might be given me to direct such lesser considerations in the Land Office, either by myself or with the advice of Council, as in the nature and variety of that business may be found requisite.

It is extremely important I should be instructed what regard is to be paid, upon the reform of the present mode of granting lands, to such Petitions as have obtained the advice of Council, and on which, considerable expenses may have been incurred in making the Survey, tho' the Surveys may not then be returned; as well as those which are actually returned, yet not patented.

All which is humbly submitted to His Majesty's wisdom and pleasure.

I am, with all possible respect and Esteem

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient servant

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

Whitehall. 18. April 1772.

Sir

I have received your several Dispatches from N<sup>o</sup> 15 to 24, and have laid them before the King.

The light in which you appear to have considered the petition of the Corporation of Albany was certainly the proper one and His Majesty approves of your prudence in suspending any determination thereupon until the Judges have made their Report.

The representations you have made and the papers you have transmitted with regard to Coll: Bradstreet's application and the State of the Lands upon Lake Champlain, and in that Country which has been annexed to New York by the determination of the boundary line, together with the measures which you have thought fit to pursue for confirming to the possessors the grants made of those Lands by the Gov<sup>r</sup> of New Hampshire, are of such a nature as to require the consideration of the Privy Council, and therefore I have received His Majesty's Commands for laying them before that Board where I hope they will receive a speedy decision. In the mean time it is His Majesty's pleasure, that you do pay a strict obedience to the Instructions that have been already given to you with regard to both the districts in question, and that you do not consider yourself as at liberty from any circumstances whatever to deviate from the letter of those Instructions.

The proceedings of the Assembly in the case of Mr Livingston, are of a very extraordinary and serious nature, but I shall certainly avoid bringing that matter into discussion, until I receive the Journals of the Assembly, at the same time, it would have been a great satisfaction to me, to have known upon what ground it was, that a negative was put upon the very sensible, and I think truly Constitutional Questions moved by Coll: Woodall.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Brigadier-General NATHANIEL WOODHULL, of the Revolutionary army, was born at Mastic, L. I., December 30, 1722. In 1758, he was appointed a major in the Provincial forces of New-York, and served in the expedition under General Abercrombie against Ticonderoga and Crown Point, and was engaged in the fruitless attempt to storm the former post. He afterwards accompanied the expedition against Fort Frontenac, under Lieutenant-Colonel Bradstreet, and was present at the capitulation of that place. He is supposed to have accompanied the army under Prideaux in 1759, against Niagara. In 1760, he served as Colonel of the 3d New-York Provincials, and accompanied the army under Amherst from Oswego to Montreal, after which he returned home. On the dissolution of the Assembly in 1769, Colonel Woodhull was elected one of the Representatives for the county of Suffolk, and constantly supported the rights of the country by his votes. In April, 1775, he attended the Convention, held in New-York, to choose delegates for the Continental Congress, and in the following May was a member of the Provincial Congress, which organized the militia and appointed Col. Woodhull Brigadier-General. He was elected President of the Provincial Congress in August, 1775, and had the honor to preside over that body again in 1776, when it accepted the Declaration of Independence. On the landing of the British army, in August, on Long Is<sup>and</sup>, Brigadier Woodhull was ordered to march a force to the western parts of Queens county and drive off the stock; he marched accordingly to Jamaica, whence he proceeded to execute his orders with the very small force under his command. Some disaffected parties, however, sent intelligence of his exposed condition to the enemy, and on the 28th August, he fell back to the vicinity of Jamaica, two miles east of which place he was overtaken by a detachment of the 17th Light Dragoons and 71st Highlanders. The General immediately, on being discovered, gave up his sword in token of surrender. The ruffian who first approached him, as reported, ordered him to say, God save the King; the General replied "God save us all," on which he most cowardly and cruelly assailed the defenceless General with his broad sword, and would have killed him upon the spot, had he not been prevented by the interference of an officer of more honor and humanity, (said to be Major Delancey of the dragoons,) who arrested his savage violence. The General was badly wounded in the head, and one of his arms was mangled from the shoulder to the wrist. He was taken to Jamaica, where his wounds were dressed, and, with other prisoners, was detained there till the next day. He was then conveyed to Gravesend, and, with about eighty other prisoners, (of whom Colonel Troup of New-York was one,) was confined on board a vessel which had been employed to transport live stock for the use of the army, and was without accommodations for health or comfort. The General was released from the vessel on the remonstrance of an officer, who had more humanity than his seniors, and removed to a house near the church in New Utrecht, where he was permitted to receive some attendance and medical assistance. A cut in the joint of the elbow rendered an amputation of the arm necessary. As soon as this was resolved on, the General sent for his wife, with a request that she should bring with her all the money she had in her possession, and all she could procure; which being complied with, he had it distributed among the American prisoners, to alleviate their sufferings—thus furnishing a lesson of humanity to his enemies, and closing a useful life by an act of charity. He then suffered the amputation, which soon issued in a mortification, that terminated his life September 20th, 1776, in the fifty-fourth year of his age. The cruel treatment of this gallant officer and eminent citizen aroused in every patriotic bosom feelings of indignation. Nor can the circumstances ever be recollected without admiring the lofty spirit which no extremity could bend to dishonor, nor without disdain and abhorrence of a coward brutality, which vainly seeks for extenuation in the bitter animosities of the times. Thompson's History of Long Island, II., 402, et seq. A ballad on the death of Woodhull, with introductory remarks, may be found in the London

With regard to the application from the consistory of the Reformed Dutch Church, it does not appear, from the manner in which they state it in their memorial to you, to be unreasonable, but no determination can be had upon it, until the Petition which they intend to present to the King upon that subject has been received.

The recommendation of persons to supply vacancies in the Councils in the Plantations, is within the Departm<sup>t</sup> of the Board of Trade, and I shall not fail to lay before them your letter N<sup>o</sup> 23. stating M<sup>r</sup> Henry Cruger's request to resign his seat at the Council Board in order to make way for his son to succeed him.—I am etc.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., 469.]

My Lords,

Pursuant to your Lordships order of the 6 of last month we have taken into Our Consideration the Address of the College of the Province of New York "humbly beseeching "his Majesty to constitute that Seminary an University with such privileges, and with such an "Establishment of Professors, as his Majesty shall approve; and also praying the remission of "Quit Rents reserved on a Tract of Land lately granted in that Province for the benefit of the "said Institution." Whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships.

That the protection and Encouragement of Seminaries and Institutions for the Propagation of true Religion and Learning in His Majestys American Colonies are objects well deserving your Lordships recommendation; and His Majestys Gracious attention; and the Rev<sup>d</sup> D<sup>r</sup> Cooper, president of the above College who has attended us in Support of this Address, having reported to us such a state of the Foundation under his care as gives us reason to believe it's further extension will be attended with beneficial effects, we do on this occasion adopt the same Policy as in Our late Report to your Lordships upon the Address of the Rector and Inhabitants of New York; and are of opinion that it will be adviseable to comply with so much of the prayer of the above recited Address as respects the Remission of the Quit

Mirror for 1823, and in Thompson's Long Island, II., 423, but it is here omitted for its want of historic truth. His body was taken by his wife to Mastic and interred on his farm. The following is the inscription on his tombstone:

Who, wounded and a prisoner, Died on the 20th of September, 1776,

In the 54th year of his age,

Regretted by all who knew how to value his many private virtues, and that pure zeal for the rights of his country, to which he perished a victim. Onderdonk's Revol. Incidents of Queens Co., 106.

Rents submitting it to your Lordships that the expediency of this proposition in reference to the State of His Majestys Revenue of Quit Rents and the Establishments thereon, must in this case as well as in that of the like application from the Rector and Inhabitants of the established Church in New York be left to the consideration of other departments; if how ever his Majesty should be graciously pleased to grant this Remission we think it should be accompanied with the same stipulation which we recommended in the case above referred to Viz<sup>t</sup>. That an annual Rent of six shillings & eight pence should be reserved to be paid by the said College of New York to the Governor or Commander in Chief of the Province sitting in Council in the Council Chamber on Monday after Easter in each year. And this we must observe to Your Lordships is conformable to what was proposed by this Board and approved by Your Lordships in the Case of an application made to his Majesty in 1764 for a Grant of Lands in New York for the benefit of the said College.

<sup>1</sup> Reverend MYLES COOPER, LL. D., the second president of King's (now Columbia) College, was born in England in 1735. He was educated at one of the great public schools, and afterwards went to Oxford, where he took the degree of M. A. in 1760, and was soon after chosen to a fellowship in Queen's College. In this course of education, he imbibed all the habits, opinions and tastes of an old fashioned Oxford man, in politics, religion and literature. In 1761, he published at Oxford, an octavo volume of miscellaneous poetry, which, however, appears to have been written several years before the time of its publication; as he observes in his preface, that the greater part of the volume was not only written, but actually printed off before the author had seen the age of twenty-four. It may be examined in the Society Library, New-York. His reputation as a scholar stood so high in the university, that in 1762, when Dr. Johnson, the first president of the College of New-York, applied to Archbishop Seeker, to select from one of the English universities, a person qualified to assist him in the course of instruction, and shortly to succeed him as president, that excellent and learned prelate, after much inquiry, recommended Mr. Cooper, as in every point fully qualified for that important station; who, after receiving priest's orders in the Church of England, came over to this country about the close of the year 1762. He was welcomed with great affection, and was immediately appointed Professor of Moral Philosophy. The duties of his office he discharged with so much ability, that the president, who had for some time wished to retire from active life, and had only been restrained from it by his zeal for the interests of the College, now resigned his office to Mr. Cooper, who was elected president in May, 1763, being then only in the twenty-eighth year of his age. In 1768, the degree of LL. D. was conferred on him by the University of Oxford; and in 1771, he visited England and on his return to New-York entered indiscreetly into the exciting political controversies of the day. He published, in 1774, "The American Querist; or some questions proposed relative to the present disputes between Great Britain and her American Colonies. By a North American. New-York, 1774." 8vo., pp. 32. This pamphlet, on the 8th of September was, in full conclave of the Sons of Liberty in New-York, committed to the flames by the hands of the common executioner. He is also represented as the author of a Tract entitled: "A Friendly Address to all reasonable Americans, on the subject of our political confusions. In which the necessary consequences of violently opposing the King's troops, and of a general non-importation, are fairly stated. New-York, 1774," 8vo., pp. 56. But Dr. Hawkins says, 'twas published by the Rev. Dr. T. B. Chandler, of Elizabethtown, N. J. Historical Notices of the Church of England in the Colonies, 160. The boldness with which Dr. Cooper maintained, in his writings and conversation, principles and sentiments highly offensive to a most numerous party, at a time of great popular excitement, at length so aroused the indignation of his political opponents, that on the night of May 10th, 1775, his lodgings in the College were forcibly entered by a mob, to the fury of which, had he been found there, he would probably have fallen a victim. A few days previous had been published a letter, dated Philadelphia, April 25, 1775, addressed to Dr. Cooper and four other obnoxious gentlemen of New-York, ascribing to them, and to their assurances of the defection of the latter city, all the hostile proceedings of England—the blood of their fellow subjects who had fallen in Massachusetts; towns in flames; a desolated country; butchered fathers; weeping widows and children, with all the horrors of a civil war. They are denounced as parricides, and told that the Americans, reduced to desperation, will no longer satisfy their resentment with the execution of villains in effigy; and the letter concludes—"Fly for your lives, or anticipate your doom by becoming your own executioners. THREE MILLIONS." But the design of his enemies was frustrated by one of Dr. Cooper's former pupils, who, preceding the throng of several hundred men, admonished him of his danger just in time to save him. He escaped, only half dressed, over the College fence; reached the shore of the river, when he found shelter in the house of Mr. Stuyvesant, where he remained for that day, and during the night following took refuge on board the Kingfisher, Captain James Montague, an English ship of war at anchor in the

My Lord.

By late accounts from Albany County the Riotous conduct of a large body of the Inhabitants East of Hudson's River, becomes daily more serious. Depositions of their repeated & fresh outrages are now under the consideration of Council. On the 19th of last month I wrote to the Inhabitants in those settlements, by the advice of Council, to invite them to send some persons, in whom they could repose confidence, to New York, to lay the causes of their illegal harbor, in which, soon afterwards, he sailed for England. He resided for some time at Oxford, where he kept the anniversary of those events, the following year, by writing a poem full of the circumstances, entitled "Stanzas written on the evening of the 10th of May, 1776, by an Exile from America;" which was published in the Gentleman's Magazine for July, of the same year. On the 13th December, 1776, being the day appointed for a general fast, he preached a sermon before the University, "On the Causes of the present Rebellion in America." Catalogue New-York State Library. The publication of this sermon gave rise to much controversy between the whig and tory parties of that day. He afterwards became minister of the first Episcopal Chapel in Edinburgh, where he continued to officiate to a very respectable congregation until his death, which took place in 1785. He died suddenly, and was interred in the Episcopal burying ground. Dr. Cooper was, as has already been remarked, a true Oxford man, and in all probability, fully agreed in his opinions, prejudices and tastes, with Dr. Samuel Johnson. His political pieces are distinguished for great strength and elegance of style, as well as for a boldness of satire and severity of sarcasm, which have seldom been surpassed. His moral character was without any serious reproach, although grave men were occasionally offended by the freedom and conviviality of his social habits. The memory of one of the peculiarities of his conversation, has been preserved by a sarcasm of a rival wit of the opposite party.

"And lo! a cardinal's hat is spread,

There is a good portrait of him in one of the rooms of the New-York Historical Society, and another in Columbia College, which have often been remarked for their striking resemblance to the common engravings of the poet Dryden. Analectic Magazine, XIV, 73; Moore's Sketch of Columbia College. — Ed.

proceedings before the Govern<sup>t</sup>; who, I told them, was willing to pay all due attention to their representation. As soon as they appear we shall take the whole into mature consideration. The situation of affairs appear very critical; His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure once known respecting the New Hampshire Grants, would extremely facilitate an accommodation; for until that period, Govern<sup>t</sup> here may pursue possibly such measures as may counteract the Royal intention. I may venture however to assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that the more at large this Govern<sup>t</sup> is left, to discretionary powers, the less difficulty there will be in removing the present discontent, as new matter may occasionally arise which will require immediate application. New York. 4. June 1772.

My Lord.

As the whole proceedings of the last session of Assembly are now transmitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> it may be agreeable to you to be informed of the conduct I observed in the affair of Mr Justice Livingston. At the opening of the Assembly, I was well apprized, if I publicly interfered in the behalf of his Right to take his seat in the house, I could not have stopped the proceedings against him, unless by a previous dissolution of the Assembly; it being the determined resolution of the majority to support at all events their former vote of exclusion. Early in the session however, I sent for the Speaker,<sup>1</sup> and urged to him my earnest desire, that the Judge might be admitted to take his seat without opposition, and founded my request upon principles of Justice, and respect to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, and assured him, I was the more solicitous for the Judge's admission, as I had reason to apprehend a repetition of his exclusion might possibly induce His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to send me such peremptory instructions, as, in the execution, might interrupt that harmony, I was so sedulous to preserve among the branches of the Legislature. He gave me very little encouragement, but engaged to communicate my wishes to the Members of Assembly, the event shewed, I had no foundation to flatter myself with success. I am sensible that the Judge has, through your Lord<sup>sh</sup> solicited His Majesty, to dissolve the Assembly, a point too delicate for me to enter upon; it is my ambition to keep as clear as possible of the parties, not unknown to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, subsisting in this prov<sup>nc</sup>; a passion highly prejudicial to public utility; and as all Denominations in this Prov<sup>nc</sup> are affectionate & loyal subjects to His Majesty, I must beg leave to rest this affair on the general conduct of the last Session, the principles of good policy.

My refusal to the offer of two Thousand pounds currency as a Salary from this Govern<sup>t</sup>, was not less in pursuance of the example of my predecessor, than in obedience to the King's instruction. Not knowing other motives than what Lord Dunmore set forth in his Message to the house of Assembly for his refusal of a similar offer, I thought it particularly my duty to decline the acceptance of a salary until I was authorized by the Crown to receive a sum I could expend to liberal and beneficial purposes, independent of His Majesty's generosity.

I am with perfect esteem and respect—My Lord

[New-York Papers (State Paper Office) COLVIII.]

(No. 18.)

Johnson Hall, June 29th 1772

My Lord,

Since I had the honor of writing to Your Lordship my letter N<sup>o</sup> 17 of the 4th of April concerning the Embassy to the Southward, & death of Thomas King Chief of the Deputies, the Six Nations have sent Delegates from every Nation, to attend the second general Congress at Scioto, as mentioned in my last, where my Deputy is gone to be present, whilst my Resident on the Ouabache has Instructions how to govern himself on any event that may arise from the intended negotiations, till when we were likely to have remained in a state of suspence, but for a late unlucky transaction, the particulars of which (as it may be productive of verry ill consequences) it is my duty to lay before Your Lordship. A certain man of the name of Ramsay who formerly lived amongst the Indians, and was by Cap<sup>t</sup> Brown late Commanding Officer at Niagara sent away to Quebec to prevent his doing further mischief amongst them, has since found means to get a small cargo of goods upon credit, with which he went to Lake Erie, where he traded some time with the Chippawaes & Mississages at a considerable distance from any Fort or place of inspection, or controul, but being of a disagreeable temper, and probably endeavouring to over-reach them they warned him to remove otherwise they would maltreat him, of which however he took no notice, but seemed to set them at defiance, which shortly after occasioned a quarrel between him and some of them who were in liquor, of whom he killed three, upon this he withdrew to another place on Lake Erie, apprehensive of their Resentment, and last April a Party of the Mississages called at his trading hut where they drank verry plentifully, and as is usual with them on all such occasions, quarrelled and threatened him, as he says, with death, to which he adds that they laid hands on him and bound him. However he freed himself and killed three men, one woman and one infant, and as an aggravation of the same took off their scalps, which he brought into Niagra where he was immediately confined by order of the Commanding Officer, This Acc<sup>t</sup> is part taken from his own Confession to the Officer, & from the account given of it by his brother & others before the Story was new modelled as it has been since to favor him. To excuse his having scalped them (which with Indians is considered a National Act and Declaration of War) he says he was told that War had been actually commenced between the English and Indians & that in his hurry & confusion the woman and child were killed, but it appears clearly to me, and it is likewise the opinion of General Gage that he has been guilty of these murders thro' wantonness and cruelty. For in the first place the Indians whenever they meditate mischief carefully avoid liquor, whereas it appears that they were very much disguised, & tho apt to use threats and quarrel at such times, yet incapable of putting them in execution, as is evident from the number he killed of them, and in the next place he could have had but little temptation to kill the woman, and not the least inducement to murder the child but what has arose from sentiments of barbarity superior to the most cruel savage who seldom puts an infant to death. The General has directed him to be sent to Canada to be tryed, but, (as is usual on such occasions) the Interest which his creditors will make with those who are his jurors, and the prejudices of the Commonalty against Indians, will probably prove the means of his being acquitted, altho he makes use of threats that he will do much more mischief when enlarged. The Nation immediately sent down fifteen Deputys to lay the matter before me, and to assure me that they had given strict orders to prevent any sudden Act of Resentment, and that they relied on our Justice in affording them such satisfaction as the case required, as well as in preventing the like for the future, to which end they (after complaining much of the want of any regulation for Trade) requested that Traders might not be suffered to go where they pleased, but confined to the Posts, and there duely inspected. I enlarged much on the Circumstance alledged by Ramsay that the Indians threatned his life, in which case I observed that not only the English Laws, but the laws of nature justified his defending himself, and after adding every thing I thought prudent or necessary, I covered (according to custom) the Graves of the Eight persons whom he killed & dismissed them with a very handsome and large present, & with proper Belts and Messages to their Nation. The Indians at parting expressed themselves very favourably, and I am willing to hope that the affair may be accomodated, nevertheless I am so sensible of their Resentment that I have judged it necessary to be thus particular, because the Chippawaes and Mississagaes are by far the most numerous and powerfull Nation with whom we have any Connection in North America, being second only to the Sioux in numbers, and from their situation capable of affording great encouragement to Trade, or putting an entire end to it, nor could it be expected that others would enter warmly into Our alliance when they considered the cause of their Defection. The Traders are all come into Niagra &c. to avoid the Resentment they apprehend from the Indians. I have already described what may reasonably be apprehended whilst I use every endeavour in my power to prevent its being realised, but I leave Your Lordship to judge how difficult a task it is to calm the passions of incensed Savages and to keep them faithfull to engagements whilst they find themselves exposed to the licentious outrages of our own people against which no remedy is as yet provided.

I have the honour to be with the most profound respect, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and most devoted humble Servant

Whitehall, July 1st 1772

Sir W. Johnson.

Sir,

I have received Your dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 17 and have laid it before the King.

Had anything of moment been transacted at the great Congress at Sioto, the deaths of the principal Indian Chiefs, upon whom you relied for a faithful Report of the Proceedings at that Congress, would have been important, but, if the accounts given by Nicaroondase are true very little of importance was transacted, and the whole seems to have ended as such meetings generally have done, with excuses on the part of the Indians for past irregularities, and with promises which are seldom or never kept of behaving better for the future.

I must confess to you that, after the very full assurances I had received, that all the Indians concerned in the Treaty at Fort Stanwix had fully pledged themselves for the Cession to His Majesty of the lands in Virginia to the West and South West of the Allegany Mountains, it is a very great surprize to me now to find that the Shawanese are at least dissatisfied with, if not disposed to disavow, that cession, so far as it regards the lands on the Ohio above the Kanawah.

Every day discovers more and more the fatal Policy of departing from the line prescribed by the proclamation of 1763, and the extension of it, on the ground of a cession made by the Six Nations of lands, their right to which is denied by other Nations, equally powerfull and more numerous, instead of being attended with advantage to this kingdom, & Security to the Colonies, is now likely to have no other consequence than that of giving a greater scope to distant settlements, which I conceive to be inconsistent with every true principle of policy, & which I clearly see, from Your last letter, will most probably have the effect to produce a general Indian War, the expense whereof will fall on this Kingdom.

The King's commands have been already signified to General Gage for the removal of the French & other vagabond traders on the Ouabache & his Majesty having also approved of an Indian Officer being established in that part of the country, you will probably before this reaches you have received General Gage's Instructions to you for that purpose.

You well know, Sir, what are my sentiments with regard to the regulation of the Indian Trade, but as the plan which I had the honor, in conjunction with the rest of my Bretheren at the Board of Trade to suggest for that purpose & which I am vain enough to think would have operated as a Remedy to the enormities which have been complained of, was not adopted, it must depend upon each Colony to take care of its own interests in that respect.

HILLSBOROUGH.

The King having been graciously pleased to appoint me to be one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and to commit to my care the dispatch of all such business as relates to His Majesty's Colonies I take the earliest opportunity of acquainting you therewith.

It will give me great satisfaction to be able to fulfill His Majesty's gracious intentions in this appointment; and as it is His Majesty's pleasure that your dispatches should for the future be addressed to me, I shall not fail to lay them immediately before the King, and to transmit to you such orders as His Majesty shall think fit to give thereupon.

New York. 31. August 1772.

My Lord.

I returned last week to this City after an absence of five weeks on an excursion to the Westward Frontiers of this Province. I passed some days at Sir William Johnson's, where I met near a Hundred of the Mohocks, and more than forty of the Onejda Indians. A copy of the Congress held with the Mohock Indians, I have the honor herewith to transmit to your Lordship, and have ordered copies of the Indian deeds, that were executed on the occasion, to be prepared in order to forward them to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>. My best endeavours shall be employed to satisfy the Mohocks in their request to me, to do them Justice, which I hope to obtain through the aid of the Legislature, as I consider their request truly equitable. It was with real satisfaction I viewed the credit and confidence, Sir William was held in by the Indian Tribes. Nothing less than manifest injury in my opinion, will drive the Mohocks from their steady attachment to His Majesty's Interest. They appear to be actuated as a community by principles of rectitude, that would do honor to the most civilized nations. Indeed they are in a civilized state, and many of them good Farmers.

It is impossible any man can have more uniform zeal and attention than Sir William has in his Department, so much so, that it would be no great impropriety to style him the Slave of the Savages.

In my journey up the Mohocks I reviewed three Regiments; the first in Johnstown, the second at Burnet's field, and the third in the German Flatts near Fort Herkemer, amounting in the whole to upwards of fourteen hundred effective Men; an industrious people, and not less seemingly pleased with the presence of their Gov<sup>r</sup> than he was with them. I heartily wish the Eastern parts of the Province were as peaceably settled. The Land on the Mohock River is extremely fertile, and under the highest cultivation, producing as good wheat and peas as any in the old Countries. The Towns of Albany and Schenectady are both flourishing, and will continue to do so, in proportion as the back settlements are extended.

I am with all possible respect

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>ty</sup>'s most obedient servant

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

Proceedings at a Congress held with the Canajohare Indians at Johnson Hall on Tuesday the 25th day of July 1772.

Decarihoga Speaker stood up and addressed his Excell<sup>ty</sup> the Gov<sup>r</sup>, saying that they were happy to find that the great spirit above had permitted him to come in safety to their Council fire; that the Ind<sup>ms</sup> had ardently wished to see him, and now congratulated him on the occasion. he then proceeded as follows:

Brother. We mean to take this opportunity of laying before you the grievances under which we labour, and the ill treatment we have received from several White people, who endeavour to defraud us of our Lands; this we several times laid before his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s former Gov<sup>rs</sup> of New York, and have waited with the utmost impatience hitherto for redress, but to no purpose. At length, our old people tired with delay, have come to a resolution of putting the business into the hands of the young Warriors, who will speak to you upon it.

Whereupon Joseph stood up and said:

Brother. We are extremely happy to see you here this day, as we have long desired it, and hope that thro' your means we shall obtain redress. We have been often deceived, and defrauded of large Tracts; but that which at present gives us most concern, is, the little Tract which surrounds us, on which we live, and of which we hear, we are now likely to be deprived. This fills us all with such concern, and is of so alarming a nature, that whether we are in our beds, or ranging the woods in quest of game, it still occurs to us, and deprives us of rest.

Brother. The reason of our having been so anxious to see your Excell<sup>ty</sup> of late was from the hopes we conceived of obtaining redress through your love of Justice, and from the great character, which we rec<sup>d</sup> of you both, before and since your arrival; we therefore have the strongest hopes of meeting with that justice from you, which hitherto we have in vain applied for.

Brother, By the many sales we have from time to time made of large Tracts to accommodate your people, we are now reduced to very scanty limits, and have only one little spot left, which we can call our own. This very piece, we are told daily, by sundry people will be taken from us, which fills us with great concern, neither can we by any means account for it, having always lived in the strictest friendship with the English, & faithfully served and assisted them in all their Wars against their Enemies; we therefore cannot but think it extremely hard to suffer such treatm<sup>t</sup> in return for our friendship and past services. We have seen that those Officers and Soldiers who served in this Country during the late War, have been rewarded with Tracts of Land in return for their services, and as we were aiding and assisting in the same cause, we must deem it a peculiar hardship in case we are not permitted to hold this little Remnant undisturbed. We shall not at present give your Excell<sup>cy</sup> the trouble of attending to a particular detail of the circumstances relative to this matter, especially, as our Brother Sir William Johnson, now present, is well acquainted with every thing concerning it, and can lay the same before you. We shall only observe that this Tract on which we live was fraudulently obtained and surveyed in the night by moonlight, and a patent procured for it by M<sup>r</sup> Livingston and others without our knowledge. Of this we complained many years since, & particularly in 1763, when we found that possession was going to be taken of our very village, but still desirous to live peaceably, we at length agreed with the parties to take a release of that part of the Tract, which we occupied, in which we apprehended there was no fraud; nevertheless, we have since found, that there were still designs to deceive us, for George Klocke one of those concerned, refused to sign the release, and on being summoned before the late Sir Henry Moore in 1768, he persisted in his refusal, and said that he had been so advised by M<sup>r</sup> Livingston at New York, who told him, that his (M<sup>r</sup> Livingston's) signing it, could be of no effect, if Klocke did not sign it, and that therefore Klocke should not sign it, so that we apprehend, an advantage is intended to be taken of us, the rather as some Surveyors have lately attempted to survey it. Now Brother, we rely on your justice for relief, and hope we may obtain it, so as to continue to live peaceably, as we have hitherto done. We are sensible that we are at present but a small number, but nevertheless our connections are powerful, and our alliances many, & should any of these perceive that we who have been so remarkable for our fidelity and attachment to you, are ill used and defrauded, it may alarm them, and be productive of dangerous consequences. We shall only add, that our reliance is upon your Excell<sup>cy</sup> and that as our cause of complaint is well founded, and that we have repeatedly applied for redress, we may now as soon as possible obtain such relief, as our case deserves; and we are the more anxious to urge it at present, as we may apprehend it may be in your Excell<sup>cy</sup>'s power to compel Klocke to execute the release without further delay.

Colden, with which we were never before acquainted, neither was it ever sold. This Brother, is the sum of those grievances with which we mean to trouble you at present, and on which we hope for redress.

To which his Excell<sup>ty</sup> was pleased to make the following answer :

Brothers. I have given due attention to all that you have said, which I shall take into serious consideration, and deliver you an answer so soon as I am prepared.

At a Congress held, at Johnson Hall with the Mohock Indians on Tuesday July the 25th 1772.

PRESENT— as before.

Hendrik Speaker arose, and spoke as follows: addressing His Excellency the Governor.

Brother, We give thanks to the Great Spirit for your safe arrival at this our Council fire, where we have long wished for the pleasure of seeing you. We have heard so much of your wisdom and good conduct in the Colony wherein you last presided, that we cannot, but be very much prejudiced in your favour, and we flatter ourselves that your Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s love of Justice, will incline you to afford us redress of those grievances under which we labour, and which we shall now relate to you. We therefore beg you will give attention to them.

Brother, We have been very much wronged & imposed upon with regard to our Lands, particularly by the Albany people, who lay claim to the very lands on which we dwell, and from whence we draw our principal support. This they endeavour under colour of a deed, which they pretend conveys our Flatts to the corporation of that City, but in truth, was only intended by our forefathers to be in trust for us, and our posterity, judging the people of that City to be their friends, and that they would prove as guardians of the same for our use. When under the Administration of Gov<sup>r</sup> Cosby we discovered their fraudulent intention, we desired to see this deed, which with difficulty was at length produced and was burnt by Aria one of our Sachems in the Gov<sup>r</sup>'s presence; but we have still reason to apprehend that they mean to support their unjust claim, and therefore we beg to have your Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s protection, and that you will secure these small remains of property to us, wh<sup>ch</sup>, from your Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s known character we have the strongest reason to expect.

Brother, As we have no doubt but that your Excell<sup>ty</sup> has sufficient authority to secure these lands to us and our posterity, and as it is notorious that we have ever been faithful friends and Allies to the English, to whom we have likewise sold all the Lands they possess here, and as we made a particular exception of the lands round us at the great Treaty at Fort Stanwix in 1768. we hope that your Excell<sup>ty</sup> will afford us relief, in order to which we think it would be necessary to order, that the same be forthwith surveyed, that we may know the exact quantity of our possessions, and may be secured in the enjoym<sup>t</sup> of them; for as we have ever assisted the English in their Wars, and thereby so far weakened ourselves that we are now reduced to an inconsiderable number, we think ourselves entitled to the protection of Govern<sup>t</sup>.

His Excell<sup>ty</sup> then desired they might be asked whether any of the principal Inhabitants or Members of the Corporation of the City of Albany had spoke to them concerning such claims, or whether it arose from the talk of their neighbours. To which the Speaker answered, that they had not been particularly applied to by the Corporation of late but that they frequently heard of it from many other persons.— His Excell<sup>ty</sup> then told them that he had attended to all they had said, but as it was then late, he should take the same into consideration and give them an answer to morrow.

At a Congress with the same Indians Wednesday July 29th 1772.

PRESENT— as yesterday

I gave much attention to your speech yesterday received it with a very friendly regard, and now thank you for your hearty congratulations upon my arrival, and your favourable sentiments of my conduct in my former Govern<sup>t</sup>. I cannot however approve of your Sachems relinquishing the subject of their present grievances to the Young Warriors. I consider it very extraordinary and unbecoming in them to quit the care of public affairs to young men at a time when they are in strict friendship and alliance with King George, therefore, as I visit your Nation as his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Civil Gov<sup>r</sup>, I desire to treat with the Sachems, Officers of peace, Men of wisdom and experience.

Brothers, When I came up amongst you, I was quite a stranger to the grievances you had to lay before me, but now you told me the nature of them, and refer me to your Brother Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson for the particulars, with the former proceedings that have been had to do you justice, which you say is not yet accomplished, I shall exert my utmost endeavors, to secure your title to that small Tract, which is the support of yourselves and families.

Brothers, it is very probable I shall be obliged not only to solicit His Maj<sup>ty</sup> on your behalf, but the Legislative Body of this Prov<sup>ce</sup> in order to effect your apparent reasonable wishes. You must therefore wait patiently, in the assurance that I wish to serve you as soon as [it is] in my power.

His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s express commands to me, are, that I should do you all possible justice, and to support you against the Frauds and oppression of those who are inclined to do you any injury, and it is as much my inclination as my duty to watch over your interest and security, as by so doing I shall only obey my Royal Master's commands.

You tell me, you are more than ordinary uneasy by persons lately attempting to make a particular Survey of the ancient possessions on which you now reside—they had no authority from Govern<sup>t</sup>, consequently had no right to run that Survey; that I may be informed of the exact quantity of land you have had released to you and for your own immediate satisfaction, I shall order the Surveyor Gen<sup>l</sup> or one of his Deputies forthwith to make a Survey of the Course and distances of the above mentioned lands—therefore desire some of your people will accompany, and be present at the said survey, a Copy of which, when furnished shall be sent to me, and another copy left with your Brother Sir William Johnson.

Brothers; long before I came into America, I heard of the warlike disposition of the Mohocks and the renown and glory of their Actions, as well as their steady and firm attachm<sup>t</sup> to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s cause, but upon this interview I am confirmed in those sentiments I before entertained of your Nation only from Report.

Brothers. I must repeat to you again, I cannot reconcile your relinquishing your affairs to the Young Men. In a state of war, I would treat with Warriors, but in time of profound peace, as is the present, I am to desire you will recommit your public concerns to the Sachems. Your refusal to this just expectation of mine, I shall interpret as a want of a proper confidence on your part in the public justice of this Govern<sup>t</sup>. You have King George for your protector, and under him, his Representative, therefore you stand not in need of warriors to support your present cause, especially, while you are in the possession of the lands in question.

Brothers. Sincere in my declaration & upright in my intentions to serve you, I shall only add I would not have you make yourselves uneasy while a hunting, or suffer your spirits to be disturbed when sleeping, on the apprehension of losing the small Tract you occupy; for while you have the protection of Govern<sup>t</sup> in support of your ancient and equitable claims, you need not fear the avarice, fraud or injustice of Individuals.

Brother. We give your-Excell<sup>cy</sup> many thanks for your speech, which has been very acceptable to us, in as much, as we are inclined from your good words to place the greatest confidence in you for redress, beyond what we have ever done, as we have laid these complaints often before former Governors, but without effect. We shall now let our business go on in the old channel thro' our Sachems, and wait patiently the issue of Your Excell<sup>cy</sup>'s endeavours for the redress of our grievances. We should wish that our lands were Surveyed without delay, that no future mistakes may be made concerning our property; and as your Excell<sup>cy</sup> has now afforded such ease to our minds, we trust in the continuance of your protection for the more effectual security of our just rights and property.

To which His Excell<sup>cy</sup> answered, that as they appeared so impatient to have their lands surveyed he should order the same to be done immediately.

Brother the Chiefs, and Warriors of the Mohocks.

I am much obliged by your congratulations on my arrival at this place, and in return for your very civil compliments, I do assure you that I am strongly inclined to serve you, and that the character I have received of your fidelity and friendship to the English has already prepossessed me in your favour; I have therefore given due attention to what you have said—

I am very sorry that you should have any causes of complaint against any of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s subjects, in this province, particularly with regard to so interesting a part of your property, but I am hopeful that you have been misinformed as to the present claims of the Corporation of Albany, which is the more probable, as it does not appear, that you have received your information from proper authority.

Brothers. As you have yourselves expressed a desire that the lands you mention should be properly laid out by a surveyor which I very much approve, I shall accordingly order the same to be done immediately, and on the return of the survey to me, I shall take such measures as are consistent with my authority, for the security of its contents to yourselves, and to your posterity, being heartily disposed to shew you all the favour, and afford you all the protection, which Govern<sup>t</sup> can give in return for your faithful attachment to his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interest.

I am told, you are going to sell some lands to certain of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s subjects, who have obtained license from this Govern<sup>t</sup> to purchase the same. I wish therefore, what you are determined to sell, may be your own free and voluntary act, and I recommend it to you to take particular care, that the bounds and limits of the lands to be sold, may be so well fixed and ascertained, as to admit of no dispute hereafter, or to give you reason to complain of any unfairness in the purchase.

The Mohocks returned the following answer by Abraham their Speaker viz'

Brother. We give your Excell<sup>ty</sup> many thanks for your speech, which has been very acceptable to us. We are particularly thankful for what you mention concerning the sales of lands now proposed to be perfected. As this is the first caution we have received of that nature from Govern<sup>t</sup>, we are the more convinced of your rectitude and attention to our interests. We have been solicited by several persons to dispose of lands at this time, but before we proceed therein we think it necessary to acquaint your Excell<sup>ty</sup>, that some years since we sold a Tract to Mess<sup>rs</sup> Glen,<sup>1</sup> Funda and Associates, for which we received a valuable consideration amounting to above 2000 Dollars, that on the Survey of this Tract it appeared to fall short of the quantity proposed to be purchased, owing to a Tract which was discovered to have been patented thereout, with which circumstance we were not, neither were the purchasers acquainted at the time of sale. Concerned thereat we then gave Mess<sup>rs</sup> Glen & C<sup>o</sup> a promise that we should make him a compensation by a grant on the North side of the West Branch of Hudson's River, for which he now intends to solicit. We have likewise since that agreement engaged with M<sup>r</sup> Jessup to sell him and associates a large tract in that Country, in which the lands proposed as a compensation are not included, but we have since heard, that another person who is interested in M<sup>r</sup> Jessup's purchase insists on having the lands we so promised to M<sup>r</sup> Glen; but we think this unreasonable, & not only contrary to our agreement with M<sup>r</sup> Jessup, but to our promise to M<sup>r</sup> Glen, whom we are bound in justice to fulfill our promise to. We therefore beg that your Excell<sup>ty</sup> will not desire us to act contrary to our engagements.

To which His Excell<sup>ty</sup> answered, that they might be assured that they were at liberty to dispose of their lands to such persons as they thought proper, and had first engaged with.

Thursday July the 30th

The Sachims and Chief Warriors of the Onejdas paid their respects to His Excell<sup>ty</sup> the Gov<sup>r</sup>, giving thanks to the great spirit for the opportunity they had of seeing him, of whom they had received a very favourable character, and congratulating his Excell<sup>ty</sup> on his arrival. To which His Excell<sup>ty</sup> was pleased to answer, that he was sensible of their compliments of congratulation, and much pleased to see so venerable a Body of Sachems and respectable a number of chiefs assembled. That he had heard they intended to dispose of some lands in his presence, hoped that it was their own voluntary Act, and desired they would consider of it, and act therein so as to have no cause of complaint afterwards, and that on his part, he was determined to see them justly dealt with therein, & for that purpose, that the same should be Surveyed in their presence, and monuments placed to shew the limits to posterity.

Brother, We are much obliged to your Excell<sup>ty</sup> for the question you asked us, and for the attention you shew to our interests, as it is a proof of your justice and convinces us that we shall be fairly dealt with. The Great Spirit gave us our lands and we love them so much that we never offered any to sale; but whenever our Brothers the English have appeared in want of Lands, and applied to us, we have always granted their desire, as we now purpose to do, and we are so much convinced, by your conduct, of your Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s love of justice, that we rely confidently upon you.

N<sup>o</sup> 44.

New York. 1. Sept<sup>r</sup> 1772.

I have had the honor to receive your Lordship's dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 11, 12 and 13.

It is matter of real concern to me to learn the consideration of the Canada Claims, has not undergone a final decision. Upon a more strict examination of the claims of the French grantees to lands within this Govern<sup>t</sup>, I cannot be persuaded that the last Treaty of peace, or the articles of the Capitulation at the surrender of Canada gives any valid title to such claims. The territory southwards of S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence River, has been always acknowledged the property of the Five Nations, subjects or Allies of great Britain, and as the French settlements, as well as grants within that district were made, not under the sanction of Cession, purchase or conquest, but by intrusion, the justice of the Title of those Claimants seems to rest on His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s generosity which will operate, no doubt as powerfully in behalf of those officers and Soldiers, who now hold a great part of those disputed lands under grants from this prov<sup>ce</sup> in consequence of His Majesty's proclamation in 1763.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> observes that it appear to be very necessary to take some effectual steps by Proclam<sup>o</sup> or otherwise to prevent settlement on any part of the lands between Lake Champlain & Connecticut River until the Royal decision of the controversy. Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> is sensible, no Act of Govern<sup>t</sup> will prevent individuals from settling and improving those large Tracts, which are already granted to them under this Govern<sup>t</sup>. Proclamations have often issued to prevent the Grantees under New Hampshire and others from making any settlements in those parts, all which have been treated with more or less neglect or contempt. I am under the firmest persuasion, no effectual measures at present, less than Military Force, can prevent the Eastern Colonies pouring in their Inhabitants between the River and the Lake, especially into Bennington and the adjacent Townships, in order to strengthen themselves, that they may be the better able to maintain their possessions. I have on a former correspondence candidly informed your Lordship with my sentiments, of the steps I conceived would be most likely to accommodate the subsisting differences between New Hampshire & New York Claimants; differences that alarm the public peace of this Country, a consideration serious and important. I assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, the delicate situation of affairs in that Part of the Country greatly embarrass me, and unless Govern<sup>t</sup> will leave an extensive latitude to this Govern<sup>t</sup> to settle these matters, I am apprehensive, the wisest and most equitable decisions of the Crown, may not extend to all the intricacies of these disputes. As property, not mere delusive opinion, is the object in dispute, it is natural to believe, the contest will be maintained with great obstinacy, unless prevented by his Majesty's speedy drawing some line determining their respective Rights, and for Govern<sup>t</sup> to act upon here.

I have the honor to transmit to your Lordship a copy of my letter to the Bennington people (to which as yet I have had no answer,) sent in consequence of the receipt of Coll. Reed's letter to me with Capt<sup>n</sup> Anstruther's<sup>1</sup> inclosed, both wh<sup>ch</sup> are herewith transmitted, also the minutes of the Inhabitants of Bennington and other Townships delivered to me, while at Albany by M<sup>r</sup> Fay their Agent

I am will all possible respect & regard My Lord

Sir.

Your Dispatch of the 29th of June N<sup>o</sup> 18 has been received and laid before the King.

The murders committed by M<sup>r</sup> Ramsay are of so atrocious and inhuman a nature, and hay in the present temper and disposition of the Indians have consequences so fatal to the public peace, that nothing ought to be omitted that can tend to bring that person to condign

<sup>1</sup> WILLIAM ANSTRUTHER obtained a commission as Lieutenant in the 26th Foot, 12th January, 1757, and a company in the same regiment in 1766. He was taken prisoner by the American forces under Montgomery at St. Johns, 3d Nov., 1775, and sent, with his regiment, to Reading, Pennsylvania, where they remained until exchanged. Government having formed a corps called Donken's Royal Garrison Battalion, Captain Anstruther was commissioned Major in it on 26th October, 1779. punishment, and as I find by your letter that General Gage has directed that he should be sent to Canada to be tried, I shall not fail to write to Lieut Gov<sup>r</sup> Cramahie upon the subject, and to exhort him to use his utmost endeavours that he do not escape with impunity; and if a Bill of Indictment be found against him, that the Judges be directed in their charge to the Jury, to guard them as much as possible against the influence of those prejudices which you think would probably be the means of his acquittal.

The manner in which you express yourself on the subject of the present temper and disposition of the Indians leaves but little room to doubt that if some method is not soon fallen upon to restrain the numberless frauds and abuses which are at present committed by those who carry on trade and have intercourse with them, we shall be involved in an Indian War; and therefore I will not fail to give the fullest attention to this very important consideration and shall think myself very happy if I can suggest any method that may have the effect in the least degree to avoid so great an evil.

New York. 7. October 1772.

My Lord.

The middle of last month I received an answer from the Inhabitants of Bennington & adjacent Townships, to my letter sent them from Albany, requiring them to put Col: Reid's Tenants in possession of the Tenements and Farms they had turned them out of. This letter, with one from M<sup>r</sup> Kelly a Gentleman of the Law, I laid before the Council Board, and desired they would Report thereon; being willing that His Maj<sup>y</sup> might be informed of the opinion of that Board, as well as my own suggestions, of the present state of the distractions in Charlotte County. As Lieut: Coll: Reid<sup>1</sup> was charged with very harsh proceedings in the Bennington letter, I ordered he should be served with an extract of so much of the letter as related to him. In consequence of which, he delivered in Council, on Monday last, his memorial with his affidavit, and that of Archibald Clark, in confutation of such injurious charges, and in justification of his procedure. Col: Reid's honorable conduct in His Majesty's service and his delicate principles of honor, would have secured him from the malice of these aspersions, among the unprejudiced, tho he had treated the calumnies with silent contempt. By the transmission of these letters, Memorial, affidavits and Report of the Council, your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be evinced of the real expediency of an immediate Royal decision to the controversy. As your Lord<sup>sh</sup> must be sensible, that the line of jurisdiction cannot be exerted or have its effect until the line of property is drawn. I must beg leave to solicit His Majesty that I may have permission, as soon as possible, to admit as many of the Townships of New Hampshire to take confirmations under this Govern<sup>t</sup>, on half fees, or such other Terms, as His Majesty shall prescribe, as voluntarily offer to take out patents under this Govern<sup>t</sup>, under the usual restrictions and limitations. This measure is founded on the soundest policy, as every such confirmation is securing the inhabitants of that Township in the interest of, and obedience to this Govern<sup>t</sup>. The new Hampshire proprietors who have offered to confirm their titles under the seal of this Prov<sup>ce</sup> on half fees, and have been restricted by His Majesty's late order forbidding me to proceed in giving them titles, are very importunate, and begin to be so much sowered and disgusted, that there is much reason to apprehend as they find the Bennington people and adjacent Country daily increase in strength and uninterrupted by Govern<sup>t</sup>, they will soon reject any offers from this Country, and combine in opposition to the jurisdiction of this Province; besides, the partition line between this Govern<sup>t</sup> and Massachusetts Bay being still unsettled; by the aid of those Borderers, the opposition may reasonably be expected to be very formidable; too much so, for militia forces to encounter.

These observations, My Lord, taking under consideration with my former correspondence on the subject, will I am confident have that weight with His Majesty's ministers, as is proportioned to their importance, and I trust, my Royal Master will believe, they flow from a zealous and earnest desire to promote his service, and the peace and welfare of this Colony.

I am with all possible respect & esteem, My Lord

Your Lordship's most obedient servant

[Pinnations General (S. P. O., No. 2) CCLIX.]

Johnson Hall Nov 4th 1772

My Lord

I have had the honor to receive your Lordships letter of the 2<sup>d</sup> of Sept<sup>r</sup> with the inclosures acquainting me with His Majestys Royal Intentions respecting the Government on the Ohio and directing that I should signify the same to the Six Nations which I had an immediate opportunity of doing, as I shall shew your Lordship presently

My last letter to the Earl of Hillsborough was No 18 of the 29th of June, on which (as I presume it is in your hands) I need not to add more than to remind your Lordship that I therein gave an account of the departure of the 6 Nations Deputys for the second great Congress at Sioto and of the murder of the eight Mississagaes & Chippewaes by one Ramsey a small Trader on Lake Erie in which he appeared to have been actuated by wanton cruelty more than by any other consideration. Since that letter I received an account that the conferences to the Southward were ended, and about a fortnight since, the Cheifs and principal Warriors of the Six Nations came to this place where they held a Congress and related the transactions of their Deputys, a Copy of the most material parts whereof, I have now the

* Not received. honor to transmit to your Lordship,*—The Sum of what they said was, That as the Waubash Indians, Kicapous & Piankashaws notwithstanding they waited for them a considerable time did not attend the Congress at Sioto, by reason or under pretence that some of their people had last year been killed by a party of Six Nations & Cheokees, the Deputys laid their Belts and Messages before those present, reprimanding those concerned with their past misconduct, and charging them with what they had to say to those absent, which they promised faithfully to deliver. The Deputys likewise demand<sup>d</sup> those mischeivous Belts &ca. which had been circulating & particularly those said to have gone from Agaustarax a Seneca Cheif of great influence, but without the knowledge of the rest of the Six Nation confederacy. The Indians there accordingly directed all the adjoining Nations to collect all such Belts as were liable to suspicion, on which several Belts were brought in, and delivered to the Deputys, some of which came from the West side of Mississippi containing assurances of Assistance and advising all Nations to rise against the English but the Belts from Agaustarax were not in the hands of any then present, having been stopped by the Cherokees. However the Deputies were assured that they should be collected, and that the Cheifs of all the Nations there absent as well as present should shortly bring them, and attend a General Congress at Onondaga where they would hear the sense of all the Six Nations and ratify all proceedings. The Belts before mentioned were delivered up to me by the Deputies and one of them, which is one of the largest I have seen is evidently a French Belt, and from what I can find came from Mons<sup>r</sup> St Ange on the Mississippi in the name of the French King, which St Ange was an active Commander under the French and is now I am of opinion a secret Agent to heighten the Prejudice of the Indians, and prepare them for cooperat<sup>g</sup> with the Enemy in case of a War.

As these Indians however have not fulfilled their promise in coming to the Grand Fire place (as it is called) at Onondaga within the time limited, I spoke warmly to the whole confederacy charging them to see that these people attended without further delay, or that these remaining Belts were immediately delivered into my hands, which the Six Nations have promised to see performed, as well as that at the proposed congress they will convince all Nations of their fidelity to Us, and their resolutions to compell the rest to act in the same manner as a proof that they the Six Nations have no part in their designs.

They next represented the great irregularities in the present state of the Indian Trade, the promises made to them that the same should be put on a good footing, the want of Regulations therein the abuses committed by Traders rambling where they pleased with strong liquors and the General discontentment amongst all the Nations on that account, to which I made them the best answer I could considering the little prospect there is of any such Regulations being made in the Colonies. Just before their departure I was honored with your Lordships second letter and accordingly communicated to them His Majestys Intentions respecting the Establishment of a Government on the Ohio which I observed would rather be attended with advantage to them & to their Allies than the contrary. That it was in consequence of their public Sale at the greatest Congress ever held and therefore it was their duty to support their just rights, and remove any evil impressions which a few weak People their Dependants had conceived thereon to all which they made suitable answer. I likewise advised them to withdraw the Senecas of Ohio from thence and settle them nearer their natural friends as at present by their Connections with others they bring disgrace & suspicion on their own confederacy, and this I was the readier induced to do, as Kayashota the cheif of those on Ohio, a man of universal influence was present & had privately assured me that it was agreeable to him.

I shall now, my Lord, beg leave to offer my thoughts on some of the foregoing particulars in as few words as possible, and first with regard to the new Government I have the strongest reasons to believe that the Six Nations are disposed to consider it in a favorable light, and that the Tribes who since the Cession have appeared otherwise have no just pretension or Title there, at the same time I should remark that as all Indians are naturally jealous of their liberties and extremely suspicious of our designs. And as the reduction of Canada, the imprudence of our own people since that event, and the artifices of our secret enemies all contribute to increase these sentiments in the Indians, it is not at all surprising if any amongst them particularly, to the Southward should altho' they accord to the Cession be alarmed at any uncommon increase of Settlements in the back Country all which whatever else may have been surmised must be attributed to this cause following, They discover that the back inhabitants particularly those who daily go over the Mountains of Virginia employ much of their time in hunting, interfere with them therein, have a hatred for, ill treat, Rob and frequently murder the Indians, that they are in generall a lawless sett of People, as fond of independency as themselves, and more regardless of Govern<sup>mt</sup> owing to ignorance, prejudice democratical principles, & their remote situation The Indians likewise perceive & frequently observe that our Governments are weak & impotent, that whatever these people do their Jurys will acquit them, the Landed men protect them or a Rabble rescue them from the hands of Justice, The truth of all which I am equally sensible of, the Indians are therefore certain that they will be troublesome neighbours and that they can expect no redress from them. These are material considerations which principally induced me to extend the purchase a little farther down the Ohio, the Indians being willing to sell it, but more especially as I knew that at that time these frontier People were daily pushing into that fertile country and would continue to do so without any title whatsoever (a circumstance they little regard) & that the Colonies, would not, or could not prevent them, this would have been such a disgrace to Government, that I judged it most politic to purchase it for His Majesty, than farther to discover our weakness to the Indians by admitting their Title to Lands which were dayly settling without any Title at all, and contrary to His Majestys orders but as matters now stand a proper authority in the hands of the Governor of that new Colony with a judicious management at the beginning, joined to the assistance which I shall give by myself and my Deputy in that Country may I am hopefull obviate the difficultys that at first occur, but should some differences at first arise from the Jealous disposition of Indians or any of the causes before mentioned, the establish<sup>mt</sup> of a Government there will in the end prove a prudential measure, and in proportion to its powers appear to the Indians as the most necessary check that could have been given to the unrestrained licentiousness which prevailed long before the Cession, was daily gathering strength, and, would have done so had no purchase ever been made in that country.

The proper regulation of Trade at certain fixed places there, is a material consideration, and indeed the neglect of the Colonies since it has been left to them, the vast Cargoes of Rum carried into the Indian Country & the unrestrain<sup>d</sup> conduct of the Traders has occasioned much dissatisfaction and is likely to produce very bad consequences, whilst the Ideas of Economy which prevail in America & the different Interests of the Colonies afford very little hopes of any accordation of Sentiments that might be productive of any salutary establishments.

The Common Traders or Factors who are generally rapacious, ignorant & without principle pretending to their merchants that they can not make good returns unless they are at liberty to go where and do as they please, & present extravagant gain being too much the Object and the only object of all, they are tempted in pursuit of it to venture amongst the most distant Stations where they are daily guilty of the most glaring impositions—of the fatal effects of Rum (so often requested by the Indians not to be brought amongst them) I have just received a fresh instance in the murder of a Trader and his two servants on Lake Huron by some of the Nation whose people were killed by Ramsay. The Trader sold them Rum and neglecting to leave them, tho advised by themselves to do so, on being refused more liquor, they seized it got intoxicated a squabble ensued, which ended in the death of the Trader and his Servants, The Nation have promised to deliver the murderer but I doubt it much, as the murders committed by Ramsay can not be easily forgotten by them especially when disguised by Liquor which they always consider as a mitigation of the offence. As I expect to have the honor to write your Lordship soon on the subjects proposed to the Six Nations, I have only at present to request that your Lordship will honor me with His Majestys commands touching any part of this letter that may require it, and that you will pardon its immoderate length as my Zeal would not permit me to abridge a subject which appeared to me of some importance. I have the honor to be with great respect

Your Lordships

Most obedient and

Most faithful Servant

Whitehall. Nov<sup>r</sup> 4. 1772

Sir,

I have received your Dispatches to the Earl of Hillsborough N<sup>o</sup> 43 and 44. and have laid them before the King.

The attention you have shewn to the acquiring a perfect knowledge of the State of the Colony, by visiting the different parts of it, is approved by the King; and I hope that the Congress with the Mohawks will have the good effect to remove their complaints and to convince them that there is a sincere disposition in the Gov<sup>m</sup> of New York to redress any injuries they may sustain from the Inhabitants of that Colony.

The engrossing of lands on the Mohawk River on pretence of purchases from the Indians, has been repeatedly and justly complained of; and therefore I was sorry to find, by the extract of the proceedings with the Mohawks, transmitted with your letter, that private persons still continue to obtain Licenses from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York for that purpose; but I hope no steps will have been taken to confirm to such purchasers the possession of those lands, untill by a transmission of the deeds, the nature and extent of the purchases can be known, and the King's pleasure signified thereupon.

The State of the French Claims on Lake Champlain appears to me, as far as I am at present informed, to be a consideration of great difficulty and delicacy, and by no means of a nature to admit of an hasty decision. Those Claims are now before the Board of Trade in consequence of a reference from the privy Council, and I will not fail from what you say of the State of the Colony as well in respect to those Claims, as to the increasing disorders & confusion on the Eastern Frontiers in general, to press an immediate attention to both those important considerations. At the same time, confident as I am of the wisdom that dictated the Royal Instructions by which you was forbid to make any grants within the district annexed to New York by the determination of the Boundary with New Hampshire, I cannot but lament that you should have found it necessary in your own judgement to depart from the letter of that instruction; which has been the more unfortunate as it has necessarily had the effect to delay any determination upon a very full report the Board of Trade had made upon the State of the claims in that district, which must now undergo a new consideration, not only on that account but also from new matter arising from the complaints which have been made by the proprietors of the Township of Hinsdale, who assert that, notwithstanding they derive their titles from an ancient grant of the Province of Massachusetts Bay and therefore are not within the description of the grants said to have been fraudulently made by the late Gov<sup>r</sup> of New Hampshire, they have nevertheless been deprived of a part of their possessions under a Patent lately passed by you.

I do not mean however to convey any opinion upon the merits of the case of those proprietors on their own state of it, and I should do injustice to the sentiments I have always entertained of you, if I was, without the fullest examination, to give any other countenance to their complaints, than what the duty of my office requires.

The whole of this very important business will, I am persuaded, be discussed by the Lords of Trade with that impartiality, that has always distinguished their conduct; I shall therefore avoid saying any thing more upon that subject, or upon the Canadian Claims further, than, that I think it proper to observe that the proposition in your letter N<sup>o</sup> 43. that all the territory on the south side of the River St<sup>e</sup> Lawrence was the property of the five Nations, and therefore, that every Canadian Grant on that side of the River, was an encroachment on the British possession, does not appear to me, from any information I have been able to collect, to be maintainable on any fair ground of argument; an observation which I think I am called upon to state to you, lest by my silence on that subject, I should appear to acquiesce in a proposition that, if adopted in the extent you state it, would strip one half of the King's new subjects of their ancient possessions and must spread an Alarm that may have very fatal consequences to the King's interest.

I am etc.

Judge Livingston to the Earl of Dartmouth.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXIV.]

New York. 5th Nov<sup>r</sup> 1772.

My Lord,

I beg leave, tho' placed at this distance to congratulate your Lord<sup>sh</sup> on the great trust His Majesty has been pleased to repose in you by appointing your Lord<sup>sh</sup> one of his Secretaries of State; and to assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, as I am with great truth, that no appointment to an Office in which we are so much interested, could be more agreeable to His Majesty's subjects on this side of the Atlantic.

The reason of my presuming to write to your Lord<sup>d</sup> is to apprize you of an Affair which greatly concerns His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s authority in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, and the more so, since if not adverted to the example will probably be followed in the other Colonies—I have in several letters stated the whole matter to the Earl of Hillsborough, and have some hopes, that he has already laid it before the Board of Trade, or His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s privy Council; for he was pleased to inform me, that he looked upon the Conduct of the General Assembly as unjustifiable and disrespectful to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, but that he deferred taking any resolution, till he knew what measures Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon, who was then expected here, would take on the occasion. Since this I have given His Lord<sup>d</sup> a further account of the Conduct of the General Assembly, which was transmitted to him by Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon, who informed me, my letter was received; but that His Lord<sup>d</sup> deferred giving his particular directions, till he received the votes of the house. Had I it in my power, I would transmit to your Lord<sup>d</sup> all I have written on the subject, but the copies of my letters are in the Country; and if My Lord Hillsborough has laid the affair, either before the Council or the Board of Trade it will be unnecessary. I shall therefore only lay before your Lord<sup>d</sup> this short account of the matter. I have the honor to serve His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in the Office of Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of this Province, and have been five times chosen Representative for the Manor of Livingston in general Assembly; four times I have been refused admittance, and on the fifth Election, I have not yet presented myself. The pretence for excluding me, was a resolution of the House made immediately preceeding my first Election, that: no Judge of the Supreme Court should sit or vote in the House. I had sat there, three or four years after Gen<sup>l</sup> Monckton had given me my Commission without the least objection, and before that we hardly had one Assembly, of which one or other of the Judges was not a Member. I believe there is no house of Representatives in the Colonies, where this is not the case, and in none of them, but ours, are they excluded. Tho' the 12 Judges in England are excluded in the House of Commons, the sole reason of that is their necessary attendance on the House of Lords. But our Judges are never required to attend the Council, and are not admitted there, unless Members of that Body. What renders this assumption of power in the Assembly still more injurious to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s just authority, is that they have excluded me on this Broad principle, that they have a power, to exclude any person they think proper without the concurrence of the other branch of the Legislature, a principle the house of Commons never adopted, as your Lord<sup>d</sup> well knows, except when they usurped all the powers of Govern<sup>t</sup>. This dispute between the Assembly has lasted now about three years; and the several Governors we have had in that time, to wit, Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Colden, Lord Dunmore and Mr Tryon, have not thought proper to do any thing decisive in the matter without His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s particular orders. I thought the duty of my office obliged me to lay the whole matter before My Lord Hillsborough, and this induced me to mention it to your Lord<sup>d</sup>

Having thus discharged my duty to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> and the public, I beg your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s patience, while by way of memorial, I add a few words concerning myself. I have served His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in the Office of a Judge of the Supreme Court of this Province ever since the 14th of April 1763. and from that time till within three years, the other Judges being of a very advanced ages, almost the whole weight of the business has lain on me. Since this Mr Justice Ludlow,<sup>1</sup> who was appointed on the death of Mr Justice Smith<sup>2</sup> has born an equal share of it. If your Lord<sup>d</sup> considers the extent of the province, the variety of business Criminal and Civil, the number of miles we must travel to perform a circuit almost equal to that, necessary to make the Circuit of all England, and the small salaries we receive, scarce sufficient to defray our traveling charges, I hope, you will think my long services in this Office give me some claim to His Majesty's favour, on a new appointment to the Office of Chief Justice for this Province.

If on the next vacancy the appointment should be left to the Commander in Chief here, I should not think it necessary to mention my pretensions to the Office. For notwithstanding the heat of Parties, I am confident, no one would object to them, or interfere with me. That I have executed the Office to the general satisfaction of the King's representatives here, the Bar and the people in General, I need give your Lordship no other proof than this: During the violent opposition on account of my claim to a seat in the house of Assembly, which has now lasted for three years, with no small warmth on both sides, no objection has ever been made to me on account of my behaviour as a Judge. This I look upon as a testimonial from my opposers, of greater weight, than the warmest recommendation of a Friend.

I hope your Lordship will be of opinion, since the honor of serving His Majesty in the important office I hold, is the principal recompence, for my services, that, that ought not to be diminished by my being superceeded, or having another placed over my head. For the truth of what I have advanced, I appeal confidently to any one acquainted with this Colony, from whom your Lordship, may have an opportunity of receiving an information. We are often told, that a Chief Justice will be appointed at home; this has induced me to lay before your Lordship an account of my services. I rely entirely on your Lordship's justice in regarding them as you think they deserve, and on your goodness to excuse the trouble I have given you & remain with great respect.

Your Lordship's most obedient

and most humble servant

ROB<sup>t</sup> R. LIVINGSTON.

M<sup>r</sup> Gascoyne, Lord Greville, Lord Garlies.

The Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, Attends.

M<sup>r</sup> Edmund Burke attended and moved their Lordships that he might be heard by his Counsel, as well in behalf of the Province of New York, as of sundry persons, Proprietors of Lands within the said Province, under grants from the Governor & Council thereof, against the Confirmation by the Crown, of any grants made by the French King or the Government of Canada within the limits of the said Province of New York.

Their Lordships upon consideration of M<sup>r</sup> Burkes motion, agreed that he should be heard by his Counsel, and he was desired, so soon as his Counsel should be prepared, to acquaint the Secretary therewith, in order that an Early day might be fixed for the further Consideration of this business.

Ordered that the Secretary do acquaint Mon<sup>r</sup> Lotbiniere who now attends to solicit the Confirmation of two Seigneuries on Lake Champlain, of which he claims the possession, with M<sup>r</sup> Burke's application to be heard by Counsel, and that he will also be at liberty to be heard by his Counsel in support of his pretensions if he thinks fit.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., 453.]

My Lords

Pursuant to Your Lordships Order of the 17th day of June last, We have taken into Our Consideration the extract of a letter from William Tryon Esq: His Majesty's Governor of New York to the Earl of Hillsborough dated the first of Feb: 1772, in which he acquaints his Lordship in consequence of his Majestys Royal Mandamus he had granted ten thousand Acres of Land to Lieut<sup>t</sup> Colonel Howard in the township of Kinsdale<sup>2</sup> on the Western side of the River Connecticut, apprehending that his Majesty's 49th Instruction by which he is forbidden to make any Grants of Lands within the limits of the Townships granted by New Hampshire on the Western side of that River was superseded by the Mandamus aforementioned Whereupon We beg leave to Report to Your Lordships.

From their state of the Case it does appear to us that the proprietors of the Township of Kinsdale<sup>2</sup> ought not to have been disturbed in their Possessions by any subsequent Grant whatever, and even admitting that M<sup>r</sup> Tryon is warranted in his construction of the Spirit and Intention of His Majestys Mandamus in favour of Col: Howard yet the locating a grant within the Limits of a Township under these particular Circumstances, was the less to be justified as there were within the district between Hudson and Connecticut Rivers, not only many

We beg leave however to observe to your Lordships that the Terms of his Majesty's Mandamus in favor of Lieutenant Colonel Howard<sup>1</sup> do not warrant the construction put upon it by his Majesty's Governor and for these Reasons we think that he ought not to have made the Grant in question; at the same time we are not able to suggest any means, by which the proprietors of this Township can be relieved from the injury they complain of, otherwise than by an appeal to the Courts of Justice of the Colony wherein the Lands lye in which Courts alone we can conceive the Grant of his Majesty's Governor, so far as regards the legal operation of it can be questioned. New York. 1. December 1772.

My Lords,

Your Lordships order in Privy Council upon the petition of Mr Secretary Clarke, came to my hands, so shortly before His Majesty's service called me to the Northern parts of this Province, that I have not been able till now to make the acknowledgments I owe to your condescension in deferring the Report of the Committee until I had an opportunity to acquaint your Lordships with the reasons of that part of my conduct of which the Petitioner conceives he has cause to complain.

The controversy with Mr Clarke, as your Lordships will observe, did not take its rise in my Administration, for the Office of Register of the Prerogative Court was out of his possession several years before I had the honour of the command of this Colony. Sir Henry Moore gave <sup>1</sup> Colonel THOMAS HOWARD entered the British army as Lieutenant and Captain of the 1st Regiment of Foot Guards on 28th January, 1755; served in the expedition to St. Malo in 1758; became Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel in 1765; Colonel in the army in 1777, and third Major of the regiment in 1778. He retired, or died in 1779.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will therefore perceive that I was compelled to an attention to the validity of M<sup>r</sup> Clarke's claim immediately after my arrival. The business of the Prerogative Court would not admit of long deliberation, for it would have been injurious to the Suitors, if I had shut up the Office 'till His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure could be known, and there remained therefore no other alternative, but either to hold up the Crowns claim, until it could be duly considered, or to bury the controversy by yielding to M<sup>r</sup> Clarke, and acknowledging his right. I preferred the former as most prudent, and following the example of the three proceeding Administrations, I appointed M<sup>r</sup> Fanning my private Secretary to that Station, until His Majesty shall please to decide upon a question never as yet adjudged and very materially affecting the interest of the Crown in all the provinces under its more immediate direction.

Whatever the Law may pronounce concerning the point of Right, the Train of my education left me under a necessity, in an enquiry of this kind, to a confidence in the opinion of others, & I was early informed, that Sir Henry Moore did not stir in this business, without previously consulting the ablest in that profession in this Country, who were unanimously of opinion, that the Registry was no branch of the Secretary's Office, and as their reasonings upon this subject appeared very satisfactory to me, I must beg your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to permit me to lay before you, such of their remarks as confirmed me in my doubts of the validity of M<sup>r</sup> Clarkes claims, for I presume, with great submission to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> Committee, that nothing could justify me in countenancing the secretary's pretensions, but the clearest convictions that the Law was on his side.

<sup>2</sup> Captain EDWARD FOY received a commission of 1st Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery on the 2d April, 1757, and became Captain-Lieutenant on the 1st January, 1759. In the month of July following, he acted with such bravery at the battle of Minden as to be specially distinguished on the day after the battle by the Commander-in-Chief in his address to the army. Entick, IV., 17; Gentleman's Magazine. He was promoted to a Captaincy in February, 1764, and accompanied Lord Dunmore, as his private secretary, to New-York in 1770, and went thence with his Lordship to Virginia in 1772. Burk, in his History of Virginia, III., 368, says, that Captain Foy resigned his office as Governor of New-Hampshire for the purpose of accepting the inferior post of private secretary to Dunmore, and attributes the circumstance to "some latent purpose of the British Ministry to employ his talents in carrying out those measures which had already been devised." But this cannot well be the case, for Foy was gazetted Lieutenant-Governor of New Hampshire only in July, 1774. Gentleman's Magazine, XLIV., 335, nearly two years after his arrival in Virginia, and four years after he had become Lord Dunmore's secretary. During his stay in that Colony, Captain Foy unfortunately shared much of the odium that attached to the Governor, with whom he retired on board the Fowey on 8th June, 1775. In the address of the House of Burgesses on the 19th June following, they accuse the Governor of "giving too much credit to some persons who, to the great injury of the community, possessed much too large a share of his Lordship's confidence," alluding to Captain Foy, "an Englishman of violent passions and hostile prejudices against us," who was considered Governor de facto. Burk, IV., 29, 39. The Countess of Dunmore sailed soon after and arrived in England in August, 1775. Captain Foy returned home about the same time with despatches for the Ministry, and at the close of the following year his name is found countersigned to an official paper issued at Crown Point by Governor Carleton, of Canada, shortly after his defeat of the American fleet on Lake Champlain. American Archives, III., 1517. Captain Foy's name disappears in 1780 from the Army List. — Ed.

I was informed, and I believe the fact, Mylords, to be indisputable, that the Office of Prov<sup>ce</sup> Secretary commenced immediately upon the conquest of the Country in 1664, and that there was a succession of Secretaries before and after the accession to the Throne of his Royal Highness James Duke of York, the first Proprietor of the Province to the Revolution in 1653. That none of the Commissions either in the Duke's time or since, contain any express authority to the Secretary, for intermeddling in the business of the Prerogative Court, and that the erection of that Court was posterior to the creation of the Office of Secretary, and from these premises, the conclusion seemed to be just and clear, that the Register's Office could not be a branch of another Office, which in its original creation, had no respect to the Prerogative Court.

If it should be ceded in M<sup>r</sup> Clarkes favour that his predecessors had actually exercised the place of Register for a very long course of years, (which your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will presently observe to be a controverted point) yet it is conceived here, that even this will give no operation to any words in his patent, because, tho' usage be a good Expositor of the rights of Office, yet that rule is only pertinent when from the ambiguity of an Office, its origin is unknown, and must be consequently misapplied to the case of a New Office, in an Infant Country, where there is not that necessity which indicates the utility of the maxim, nor any usage venerable for their antiquity, & especially as it is certainly known that the Office of Secretary was created not only before the prerogative Court was set up, but for many other different uses and ends.

But the observation of the most weight, & what appears to me My Lords, to be conclusive in this controversy, tho' the Petitioner has not suggested it in his Petition to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, is, that the grant of the Probate of Wills & administration, is by a Law of the Colony, expressly vested in the Gov<sup>r</sup> or his Delegate under the prerogative seal.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will remark that this Act was passed on the 11th Nov<sup>r</sup> 1692 soon after the issuing of the Patent to Mr Clarkson, by which, the Secretary's office is said, to be first constituted and established.

In settling the construction of this Law, I will candidly confess, that M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Clarkson, and the two M<sup>r</sup> Clarkes his successors, kept the Records of the Secretary's Office, and that probates and administrations have issued from that place and been there Recorded as low down as to the year 1766. nor shall I deny M<sup>r</sup> Clarkes allegation to be true (tho' I know it not to be so) that the Secretaries and their Deputies have in their attestations and signatures to the Registry acts added the Title of Secretary or Deputy Secretary, as tho' they were transactions of that Office; but then, on the other hand it must be admitted in favour of the Crown, that at the passing of the Act of 1692, the then Gov<sup>r</sup> had constituted a Surrogate or Deputy for the business of the prerogative Court, and that there has been ever since that period a constant succession of Surrogates commissioned by the Governours under the prerogative seal, who have performed the prerogative Court business in the same place where the Secretary held and exercised his Office.—hence it results.

That the authority to grant probates and Administrations if it could be pretended to have been a part of the Secretary's Office, was severed from it by this Law, and further, that the subsequent transactions of M<sup>r</sup> Clarkson and his successors and their Deputies in the prerogative Court, must henceforth at least be construed to be referable to the power they had from the Gov<sup>ts</sup>, whatever may have been their modes of subscription and whether the same be imputable to inattention or design.

It can scarcely be imagined, that their practice of adding "Secretary" to their names can be a proof of the common understanding of the day, that the Registry belonged to the Secretary; and that they would otherwise have been checked by the Governors; for besides the minuteness of such irregularity, which will account for an inattention to it, I must observe to your Lord<sup>ships</sup> that the Old Records of this Colony afford such flagrant proofs of ignorance and inaccuracy in all the Departments of Office, as to refute all presumptions drawn from the supposition either of vigilance or skill in the Officers.—And for the same reasons Your Lord<sup>ships</sup> will perceive, that there is more of refinement than solidity in the arguments to evade the force of this Law built upon the distinction which the petitioner has thrown out between the Register and the Surrogate.

I shall inclose your Lord<sup>ships</sup> two Copies of the Commissions, or letters of Delegation to a Surrogate, whence it will appear, that so far was the Gov<sup>t</sup> from restricting the Surrogate barely to the Administration of the necessary oaths, that the Instruments (for they run in the same form) actually put the seal of the Court into the hands of the Delegate, and thus implicatively gave him authority to make out the Documents and perform the very services, which the present Secretary claims as a branch of his Office, & this, with submission is not only a refutation of M<sup>r</sup> Clarke's first reason for distinguishing between the Surrogate and the Register but accounts for the non appointment of any other Register than the Secretary, while the Secretary or his Deputy had the commission of Surrogate, and was invariably the case, till Sir Henry Moore gave the preference to his private Secretary in 1766.

Nor does there seem to be greater weight in that other argument, which the Petitioner would deduce from the practice of transmitting Wills & examinations in the Country, and proof of Intestacies to the Secretary's Office; for as the seal of the prerogative Court was never trusted to any other, than the Surrogate at the Secretary's Office (which, My Lords, is a Building belonging to the public, erected in the metropolis and where the business of various distinct Offices is transacted) and all probates and letters of Administration were finally to be issued only by that Surrogate, the propriety of transmitting wills, Examinations and certificates of Intestacy from the distant Counties to the Secretary's Office, because it was the Stated place for holding the prerogative Court, is apparent; and the implication that it was because the Secretary as Secretary was Register, and not because he was the Surrogate of the Gov<sup>t</sup>, is strained and inconclusive.

Nor can I think more favourably of the conclusions drawn from the Act of 1709, and the ordinances that have been frequently made for the regulation and establishment of Fees—how can they support a claim, against the authoritative decision of the Law of 1692, by virtue of which there was a severance of the Registry from the Secretary's Office, if they ever had been united.

The use which M<sup>r</sup> Clarke make of them is connected with a supposition that there was a degree of skill and accuracy in the penning of that Act and those ordinances, which unfortunately for his argument will be refuted by the bare perusal of them. They may be classed among the many proofs of the infant State of the Country; besides, My Lords, the Act of 1709. was repealed by Queen Anne in a very few months after it was made, and perhaps among other reasons for its tendency to countenance & implicative Repeal of part of the Act of 1692. As to the Ordinances they too are not in force, if ever they were binding on the subject, for they expired with the Authority of the Governor in whose names they were issued. And to me to whom it appears that the main design, both, of the Act and the ordinances was to fix the quantum for services performed at the respective Offices, all arguments deduced from them to ascertain the nature and extent of the Offices themselves, seem to have not even plausibility to recommend them. As the Secretary was Surrogate also by the Governors appointment, it was natural to list all the Fees that were payable to him under one title and to distinguish him (as he is in common speech) by the Chief Office he sustains, and for this reason alone we can not find such or so great a repugnancy between the Acts of 1692 and 1709 as to amount to an implicative Repeal of the former, had the latter Act never have been disallowed by the Crown.

Concerning the suggestion, that the Registry is a branch of the Secretary's Office, in some of the other Colonies, I can affirm nothing for want of information, but if M<sup>r</sup> Clarke should have made no mistake in this respect, I believe your Lord<sup>ships</sup> will upon enquiry find such diversities in the Office of Secretary of the different Colonies as to render it impossible to ascertain its nature by the comparison, and settle a clear and safe interpretation of the Patent. At all events, the Act of 1692 will render the words in M<sup>r</sup> Clarke's Commission granting him the powers of other Secretaries of little use in the present case, if they are not merely expletives in all others.

Thus far My Lords, I have confined myself to the Petition, to which your Lord<sup>ships</sup> were pleased to call for my answer; but I was influenced by some other considerations, to doubt the validity of M<sup>r</sup> Clarke's claim, and maintain the point against him until the King's pleasure was declared.

I owed much to the Rights of my own station & a deference to the Judgements and characters of my predecessors, upon whose honour and justice I should have cast an oblique censure, if I had given up the contest, especially as I had not been furnished even with so much as an opinion of any Gentleman of the Law either here or at home in M<sup>r</sup> Clarke's favour, and add to this, that there were, as I conceived, reasons of general policy, which rendered the question of right worthy of the Royal consideration.

It is not uncommon, My Lords, to find in New or Infant Colonies, several distinct offices engrossed by one person, and it is owing to the low State of their business; but when the increase of the Country takes away the necessity for these Monopolies, their inexpediency must be very manifest, the public becomes ill served, and the Govern<sup>ment</sup> weakened, especially when there seems to be a want of dependencies upon the Crown for a counterpoize to the popular scale. I think it my duty therefore to apprise your Lord<sup>ships</sup> of the nature and variety of the employments exercised here by M<sup>r</sup> Clarke.

He is Clerk to the privy Council, Clerk of the Legislative Council, and Clerk for the Court for appeals in Error. He is Secretary, and as such, all civil Commissions, Grants, patents, pardons, and every instrument passing the great seal goes thro' & returns to his hands to be recorded. Among the other branches of this extensive office, he registers and enrolls mesne Conveyances of every kind, copies of which (the originals being proved or acknowledged) are by the Laws of the Colony made evidence in all Courts Supreme and subordinate. He is also Clerk of the Supreme Court, a Court of immense powers, taking cognizance of all pleas, as fully as the three great Courts of King's Bench, common pleas & exchequer—a Court, both, of Civil & criminal Jurisdiction, having four Terms in the year, and correcting the Errors of all the inferior Judicatures in the province, M<sup>r</sup> Clarke alone has the keeping of all the minutes pleadings and Records that belong to this Court with the Custody and all the profits of the seal, for he is sole Clerk for all that immense variety of business which in three of the Great Courts of Westminster is parcelled out to so many different officers, who aid, check and controul each other for the common safety. He is therefore, My Lord, in effect as the Gentlemen of the Law assure me, Prothonotary, Chief Clerk, Clerk of the Crown, Secondary, Filazer, Chirographer, Examiner, Clerk of the Judgements, Clerk of the Dockets, Clerk of the enrolments, Clerk of the Essoins, and has some other offices of less consideration.

I am not able to inform your Lord<sup>ships</sup> of the amount of the income of these employments, which have been in the hands of the Petitioner and his Father or their Deputy, together with the Surrogacy of the prerogative Court, for near seventy years, but privileged as the Secretary has been of Acting by a Deputy, who has many advantages in the Land granting Department from his connection with the great Seal, this station is one of the most important in the Colony, and allowing for his savings by the difference in living, and the Gov<sup>t</sup>'s expenses in support of the dignity of his Office, it is perhaps at least as lucrative as that of the Commander in Chief.—

Your Lord<sup>ships</sup> will permit me to add, in justice to myself and my successors, that if the Registers Office is in the Gift of the Gov<sup>t</sup>, either by virtue of his authority as ordinary, or by the Act of 1692, it is the only one by which he can without loss, support the expense of his own Secretary, there being no provision for that Officer, and the growing business of the Colonies, rendering such a place more and more necessary, and calling for such confidence and abilities, as no contracted income will command. In behalf of the appointment of M<sup>r</sup> Fanning a native of this Province, I can assure your Lord<sup>ships</sup> it was made on the principles of grateful acknowledgment to that Gentleman's eminent services to the Crown in the late disturbance in North Carolina, though but a small recompence for the injuries and insults he received with all the aggravating circumstances of cruelty attending them, both in his person and in his property, himself being inhumanly beat and abused in the attack made by a lawless Banditti, upon the Officers of public Justice during the sitting of Hillsborough Superior Court, and his house pulled down, his furniture and effects destroyed to the amount at least of twelve hundred pounds sterling, and for no other cause, than that he with more determined spirit than others opposed their wicked designs—A Gentleman, My Lords, that on the auspicious 16th May, Her Majesty's Birth day, headed two hundred Men at the Battle of Alamance, and by his brave example, contributed to the success of that day.

I shall enclose under this cover several papers that may throw light upon the controversy, and perhaps be not easily found in the Plantation Offices, and confiding in your Lord<sup>ships</sup> favourable and just representation to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> of the motives of my conduct in the matter of M<sup>r</sup> Clarkes complaint

I have the honour to be with all possible respect—My Lords etc.

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Earl of Dartmouth.

My Lord,

The benevolence by which your Lord<sup>ship</sup> is distinguished, and that intimate knowledge of Govern<sup>t</sup> to which you are led by your eminent rank and station, give me the strongest confidence that you must think it is as necessary a maxim in good politicks, to reward and respect the faithful and diligent officer, as to punish the reverse; and that you will be concerned to hear of a conduct in Administration, so directly opposite, as that of leaving an old, and I flatter myself a useful servant of the Crown, who has uniformly persevered in a zealous attachm<sup>nt</sup> to the Authority of Govern<sup>t</sup>, not only neglected, but even, My Lord, marked by measures that indicate displeasure. Such is my situation at the eve of life, when the smiles of my Royal Master, would have sweetened the reflection of every difficulty I have encountered in his service.

Well assured of the King's great goodness & impartial regard to all his faithful servants, I must suppose he has not been well informed of my case, and that this must have proceeded from an unfavourable impression, which your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s predecessor in office suffered to prevail, but on what account, I am at a loss even to conjecture. I now entreat your generous attention. The interest and honour of Govern<sup>t</sup> is concerned; I therefore with more confidence presume to address you.

I cannot think of intruding so much upon your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s indulgence, as would be necessary to go thro' a recapitulation of the many occasions, on which I have been particularly engaged in supporting the measures and authority of Govern<sup>t</sup>, and of the resentments and difficulties to which I have been exposed, from the prevailing contrary principles in others. Permit me only, My Lord, to say, that I have been 50 years one of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Council, and the last 12 years his Lieut<sup>nt</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> of this Province; throughout which length of years, my conduct has from time to time received the approbation of the King and his Ministers; nor had I ever reason to think I had in any degree lost my credit, till since the year 1765. The Act of Parliament passed in that year, your Lord<sup>sh</sup> knows, drew every person concerned in the execution of it, into the most troublesome and delicate situation. The Officers appointed under the Act, extricated themselves by resigning their appointments, whereby, the whole weight of supporting the authority of Parliament, and the dignity of Govern<sup>t</sup>, fell upon the Governors. In this arduous duty, I found myself particularly engaged beyond any other Governor on the Continent. This Prov<sup>ce</sup> distinguished by its constitution from the Charter Govern<sup>mt</sup>, by the residence of the Gov<sup>r</sup> in a Fort, garrisoned by regular troops; by the metropolis being the head quarters of the general and Army, and at that time the station of several Men of War, naturally excited the attention of all our Neighbours. If the strength of Govern<sup>t</sup> in this place was not sufficient, under all these advantages, to support the authority of Parliament, how could it be attempted in any other? Our Example was therefore of great consequence, and to turn it against the admission of the Stamp duty, the most violent and daring measures were pursued by the people, who seemed resolved to risk a dissolution of Govern<sup>t</sup> and the calamities of Anarchy rather, than to fail of success in their purposes. In this critical and truly alarming situation, without any notice from the Ministry of the Act, or any instruction for my conduct, I found my task hard indeed & difficult. The firmness with which I supported my conduct, preserved the authority and honour of Government, I believe as far as could have been done in such a situation. The Stamped papers were delivered to the Mayor and corporation of the City, upon their humbly petitioning for them, and giving security to be answerable for the full value of the paper and duty. His Majesty's Council agreed unanimously to this measure, and pressed it, in very strong terms, as necessary to save the City from destruction. The Commander in Chief of the army was of the same opinion, and advised me to comply. What more, My Lord, could be done? That Anarchy & destruction were avoided; and the authority of Govern<sup>t</sup> supported with such tolerable dignity, I flattered myself, would have intitled me to a share of His Majesty's favour and approbation; but while every Man, I believe, who had any place under the Stamp Act; or suffered any injury from the people on account of it, even those who without the smallest attempt to support their Offices, threw them up, on the first appearance of the displeasure of the people, have been since gratified and rewarded in some way or other, I stand alone distinguished by utter neglect.

This, My Lord, was full sufficient cause of chagrin and disappointment, to a Man conscious of having done his duty faithfully, but great as it was, it was still to be heightened. From a casual accession to the Administration into which I since fell, by the death of Sir Henry Moore, I was displaced by immediate appointment of another Gov<sup>r</sup> in Chief; and this not, My Lord, from any appearance of uneasiness among the people at my coming again into the Administration, nor from any grounds to suppose that the affairs of Govern<sup>t</sup> would suffer, if I was allowed to continue; for at no time has the public business gone on more smoothly, or the disposition of the People been more inclined to maintain tranquility, and render the Gov<sup>r</sup> easy; to add, as it were, a particular mark of His Majesty's displeasure to this sudden removal, it was ordered that I should be deprived of the advantages I received from my Administration. A moiety of the salary given to me by Act of the Legislature, and of the emoluments annexed to the Office which I executed, was demanded of me by order from Lord Hillsborough. A suit was peremptorily commenced against me to compel the payment of what I withheld as being as much my property, as any part of my Estate; and to defend this Right, I was drawn into a Court where the sole Judge was the person for whose Benefit the money was demanded—A cruel and unprecedented oppression!—and to add to the misfortune, I was compelled, contrary to the tenor of my whole life, to oppose, what was signified as His Majesty's pleasure, and to show the demand to be illegal and unjust.

I cannot, My Lord, conceive, that measures, so much beneath the dignity of the Crown, so destructive of confidence in Administration, tending directly to dispirit the friends, and to encourage the Foes of Govern<sup>t</sup>, could possibly have been adopted, had not my conduct been somehow strangely misrepresented.

I entreat your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to consider that I had the most difficult part to act in the disorders that happened in the year 1765, and sustained a considerable loss at that time, and am the only Officer who has neither been reimbursed nor rewarded; and that I have still further suffered by a very considerable expense in defending myself against the suit brought by Lord Dunmore. I am confident, your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will think it just that I should be no longer neglected, and that I ought to receive, as all the other Officers have some recompence for my losses—some reward for my zeal and fidelity in his Majesty's service, and for the dignity and authority of Parliament.

<sup>1</sup> ANDREW OLIVER, son of the Honorable Daniel Oliver a member of his Majesty's Council of Massachusetts, was born in Boston in 1707, and was graduated at Harvard University in 1724. He sat as one of the representatives of Boston in the General Court from 1743 to 1746, both years inclusive, 2 Massachusetts Historical Collections, X., 28, when he was elected a Councillor. Drake's History of Boston, 623. Josiah Willard, secretary of the Province, dying, was succeeded by Mr. Oliver, June, 1758, Ibid., 643, 645; Hutchinson's History of Massachusetts Bay, 111, 75, note; who was appointed distributor of stamps in 1765, when his house was attacked by a crowd of citizens who obliged him not only to resign but to declare, upon oath, under the Liberty Tree, that he would never enforce the Stamp Act in America. He continued secretary, however, until March, 1771, when he became Lieutenant-Governor; Mr. Hutchinson, whose wife's sister he had married, having been pro-

the Office and annexed a salary of £300 a year. I am persuaded that no man, who is acquainted with my services and losses will think that I deserve less favour or recompense than he has obtained.

My Lord, I am now near the end of my 85th year. The period of my days cannot be distant. Should the King be graciously pleased to grant me a salary as Lieut<sup>r</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> to recompence my losses, and be an honorable testimony of his Royal approbation of my conduct, I beg it may commence on the 15th of October 1770. the day that Lord Dunmore arrived here, since which the Office has not been of one penny advantage to me. The Custom house duties, or the quit rents will be a proper fund for payment of whatever support or gratuity His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may think I deserve.

I am — etc.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., 481.]

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords of the Committee of His Majestys most Honorable Privy Council for Plantation Affairs.

My Lord

Pursuant to your Lordships Orders of the 17 day of June last we have taken into Our consideration such parts of the papers thereunto annexed as relate to disorders which have prevailed within the district between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut in consequence of a variety of Questions & disputes which have arisen with respect to titles to Lands and Possessions within the said District on the Ground of different Grants made by the Governors of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Provinces of New York and New Hampshire whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships

That the district between the said Rivers Hudson and Connecticut within which these disorders and disputes have arisen lyes to the North of the Northern Limits of the Massachusetts Bay established in 1740 and is described to be of great fertility of very considerable extent and abounding in many parts with very valuable Timber fit for Masts and other naval uses.

In early times the Government of the Massachusetts Bay under its ancient Charter which was vacated in 1654 assumed a Jurisdiction and granted Lands within that part of this district which lies to the East of line drawn at twenty miles distance from Hudsons River and there are now some Townships remaining which are derived under patents from that Colony and moted to the place of Governor. Hutchinson, III, 333. In 1773, several letters, written by these and other gentlemen to persons in England, were obtained by Franklin and sent to Massachusetts. Great excitement followed and the General Court petitioned the King to remove the one and the other from their respective offices in the Province. 1 Massachusetts Historical Collections, II, 45. Unable now to endure the disquiet and misery caused by his position, Mr. Oliver sunk under the burthen and died at Boston, after a short illness, 3d March, 1774, aged 67. Allen. Though an estimable man, in private life, no one in Massachusetts was more unpopular, and so violent was the feeling against him, that marks of disrespect to his remains were shown by the populace at his funeral. Hutchinson, III, 456, note. Besides the letters above mentioned, Lieutenant-Governor Oliver was the author of seven letters signed Freeman, which were published in the Boston Censor in 1771, in support of the Administration. 1 Massachusetts Historical Collections, VI, 74. — Ed.

altho the Province of New York set up pretensions to this district under the General descriptive Words of King Charles the 2<sup>d</sup> Patent to the Duke of York in 1664 and the Governor of that Colony did in late times make some Grants of Land within the same yet it does not appear that any attempts were made to disturb the possessions of the Proprietors of the ancient Towns Settled under the Grants from the Province of Massachusetts Bay nor were any establishments made competent to the exercise of any regular Jurisdiction therein But when by the determination of the boundary line between Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire in 1740 it was declared that the latter of those Provinces should extend West from Merrimacks River till it met with His Majesty's other Governments and when in consequence thereof the said Province claimed to extend to within 20 Miles of Hudsons River the Government of New York insisted upon their Claim with greater earnestness and the two Provinces became involved in a Controversey which after much heat and altercation on both sides ended in 1750 in an agreement to refer the point in question to the Crown and each party made a Representation of the state of their case; But after several hearings at the different [Boards] the Agents on both sides desired further time to consult their Constituents and the War breaking out in America soon after the bussiness was allowed to lye over till the restoration of Publick Peace when the dispute being revived with much heat and animosity it [appeared] that the Governor of New Hampshire had taken the opportunity pendente lite to grant away a very considerable Number of Townships of six Miles square each in this County to the Westward of Connecticut River (This proceeding accompanied as it was with other disreputable Circumstances was fully stated in a Representation made to His Majesty by this Board in 1764 wherein it was recommended that his Majesty by his Royal Adjudication and authority should put a period to these animosities and disputes by declaring what should be the Boundary between the Provinces of New York and New Hampshire and in consequence thereof His Majesty was pleased by his Royal Order bearing date the 20th day of July 1764 with the advice of this Privy Council to declare that the Western Branch of the River Connecticut from where it enters the Province of the Massachusetts Bay as far North as to the 45th degree of Latitude should be the Boundary between the said two Provinces Immediately after this decision which was accompanied with the usual Reservation in Respect to private property M<sup>r</sup> Colden upon whom the Administration of the Government of New York had devolved granted warrants of Survey and issued Patents for lands within the limits of several of the Townships granted by the Governors of New Hampshire and several of those Surveys and Patents extending over Land under actual Improvement and Settlement the Parties who conceived themselves injured by such proceedings not being able as they alleged to obtain Redress in New York brought their complaint before His Majesty in Council)

Upon a full hearing of those Complaints His Majesty was pleased by this order in Council of the 21 of July 1767 to declare that no part of Lands lying on the Western side of the River Connecticut within that district before Claimed by New Hampshire should be granted until His Majestys further pleasure was known and an Instruction was accordingly given to the Governor of New York directing him upon pain of His Majestys highest displeasure not to presume to make any Grant whatever or to pass Warrants for the Survey of any part of the said Lands until His Majestys pleasure should be signified concerning the same which Instruction has been ever since continued in force and now forms the 49th Article of the Code of General Instructions given to M<sup>r</sup> Tryon His Majesty's present Governor of New York.

The power of Granting Lands within this district being thus suspended a Petition was presented by several reduced Officers and Soldiers who had served in America during the late war and being intitled to lands under His Majestys Royal Proclamation of Oct<sup>r</sup> 1763 had previous to the above mentioned Order obtained Warrants of Survey for Lands within this district praying that the Governor of New York might be empowered to grant lands to such of them at whose expense they had been located and Surveyed and to confirm to others the Grants which had already been made and this Petition having been referred to this Board by your Lordships Order of the 5 of July 1770 they in their Report thereupon of the 6 of June 1771 enterd fully and circumstantially into the consideration of the Question both as it respected the Case of the Petitioners in particular as well as every other Species of Claimants under whatsoever title or pretention submitting under each head such opinion and advice as to them seemed best adapted for terminating all difficulties and disputes and putting that valuable district into such a state of cultivation as repose as would make it happy in itself and beneficial to the Mother Country.

The propositions contained in that report being of great extent and importance necessarily requires a very serious Consideration and while this matter was under deliberation, the papers annexed to your Lordships orders of reference and upon which we are now directed to report Our opinions were received.

Upon examination of these papers they appear to Us to contain two objects of consideration Viz<sup>t</sup>

1st The propriety or impropriety of reannexing to New Hampshire the Lands West of Connecticut River which the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council of that Province represent to be a measure of essential importance to its intents and of great Publick advantage.

2<sup>ndly</sup> The conduct of his Majestys Governor of New York in having in contradiction to the letter of the 49th Article of his Instructions taken upon him to pass Patents of Confirmation of several of the Townships heretofore granted by the Government of New Hampshire within that district and having also made other Grants of Lands within the same.

With regard to the first of these Considerations it does appear to us that the Representation made by His Majestys Governor and Council of New Hampshire contains a variety of matter well deserving your Lordships attention and we think there is but too good reason to believe that many of the Proprietors of Lands in the Townships granted by the Gov<sup>r</sup> of New Hampshire who have bona fide made actual Settlement and improvement thereon have sustained great injury and suffered great oppression by the irregular conduct of the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council of New York in granting Warrants of Survey for Lands under such actual Settlement and Improvement yet such a reprehensible conduct on the part of the Kings Servants in New York ought not in our Judgement to weigh in the scale of consideration against those principles of true policy and sound Wisdom which appears to have dictated the proposition of making the River Connecticut the boundary line between the two Colonies and therefore we cannot advise your Lordships to recommend to his Majesty to make any alteration in that Measure.

With regard to the conduct of His Majestys Governor of New York in having departed from the letter of his Instruction [it is] matter which must be submitted to your Lordships consideration upon the grounds and reasons assigned by that Gentleman in his letter of the 2 of February last But we think it necessary [to submit] to your Lordships that it is a step of such a nature as to have rendered nugatory and impracticable almost every proposition contained in the Report of this Board of the 6 of June 1771 and has as well for that reason as on account of the further information contained in these papers respecting the state of that District made it necessary for us to take up the consideration of it upon New ground and to recommend to your Lordships a variety of new propositions

Upon the fullest examination into all the circumstances which at present constitute the state of that District and out of which the greatest disorders and confusions have arisen it seems to us that the principal objects of attention in the consideration of any measures that can be suggested restoring public Tranquility and quieting possessions are.

1st Those Townships which having been originally settled and established under Grants from the Government of the Massachusets Bay fell within this District by the determination of the Northern boundary of that province in 1740.

2<sup>dly</sup> Those Grants of Lands made within this District by the Governor of New York previous to the establishment of the Townships laid out by the Governor of New Hampshire after the conclusion of the peace and which lands now lie within the limits of some one or other of those Townships.

3<sup>dly</sup> Those Townships which having been originally laid out by the Governor of New Hampshire either continue in the same state or have been confirmed by grants from New York and also those which have since originated under Grants from the latter of those Colonies.

With regard to those Townships which fall under the first of the above mentioned description when we consider their nature and origin and the numberless difficulties to which the original Proprietors of them must have been subjected in the settlement of Lands exposed to the incursions of the Savages and to every distress which the Neighbourhood of the French in time of war could bring upon them and when we add to these considerations the great reason there is to believe that the Grants were made upon the ground of Military Services against the enemy we do not hesitate to submit to your Lordships our opinion that the present proprietors of these Townships ought both in Justice and Equity to be quieted in their possessions and that all Grants whatever made by the Government of New York of any Lands within the limits of those Townships whether the degree of Improvement under the original Grant had been more or less are in every light in which they can be viewed oppressive and unjust but as we are sensible that each subsequent Grant made by the Government of New York however unwarrantable cannot be set aside by any authority from his Majesty in case the Grantees shall insist upon their titles we submit to your Lordships whether it might not be expedient in order to quiet the original Proprietors in their possessions to propose that all such persons who may claim possessions of Lands within the limits of such Townships under New York Grants should upon condition of their quitting such claim receive a grant under the Seal of New York upon the like terms and free of all expense of an equal number of acres in some other part of the District lying between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut and in Cases where any actual Settlement or Improvement has been made by such Claimants that they should in such Case receive fifty Acres of waste Lands for every three Acres they may have improved.

With regard to those Grants made by the Governor of New York which fall within the second description and upon which any actual improvement has been made they do appear to us to deserve the same consideration and that the proprietors thereof ought not to be disturbed in their possessions whether that improvement be to a greater or less extent but we beg leave to observe to your Lordships that in both these Cases no Consideration ought to be had to any claims where it shall appear that no regular possession has ever been taken and no actual Settlement ever been made

With regard to those Townships which fall within the last mentioned description we submit to your Lordships Our opinion that provided such Townships do not include Lands within the limits of some antecedent Grant upon which actual improvement has at any time been made it would be adviseable that they should be confirmed as Townships according to the limits expressed in the Grants thereof and that all persons having possession of any shares in the said Townships whether as original Grantees or by purchase or Conveyance and upon which shares any actual improvement or Settlement has been made ought not in Justice to have been or to be in future disturbed in the possession of such shares nor ought they to be bound to any other conditions whether of Quit Rent or otherwise than what is contained in the Grant.

Having thus stated to your Lordships every case that appears to us to deserve consideration on the Ground of legal title followed by actual Settlement and Improvement we do not hesitate to submit to your Lordships our opinion that all other lands whether the same be or be not contained within the limits of any Township or of any other Grant whatever and of which no possession has ever been taken or any actual Settlement or Improvement made should be disposed of in manner following.

1st That such persons who claim possession of Lands under Grants from New York within the limits of any of the Townships antiently established by the Government of the Massachusetts Bay have the first choise of such a quantity of the said Lands as shall be equivalent to the quantity Granted within the said Townships excepting only in case of actual Improvement upon such Grants they shall receive fifty for every three Acres so improved as has already [been] suggested.

2<sup>dy</sup> That all commissioned an[d] non commissioned Officers and Soldiers who have in consequence of the Proclamation of 1763 obtained Warrants of Survey from the Government of New York for Lands within the District between Hudson and Connecticut Rivers and who have not been able to compleat their Grants on account of the restriction contained in his Majesty's Instructions to his Governor of New York should be confirmed in the possession of those Lands by immediate Grants provided such warrants of Survey do not include Lands that have been actually settled and improved under some former Grant either of the Governor of New York or of the Governor of New Hampshire in which Case it might be reasonable to grant to the said Officers and Soldiers an equivalent in some other part of the District

3<sup>thly</sup> That in every Township whether laid out under Grant from the Governor of New Hampshire or that of New York a proper quantity not exceeding five hundred Acres be reserved in some convenient part of the district as a Glebe for a protestant Minister and also a proper quantity not exceeding two hundred and fifty Acres for a Schoolmaster

4<sup>thly</sup> That the Residue of the said Lands which either have not been granted at all or which having been granted have notwithstanding been without any actual Settlement or Improvement pursuant to the conditions of the Grants should be granted and disposed of to such persons as shall be desirous to take up the same upon the following terms and conditions Viz<sup>t</sup>

That each Grantee over and above the usual annual Quit Rent to be reserved in every grant of 2|6 Sterling per hundred Acres shall upon the making such grant pay a further consideration of five pounds Sterling for every hundred Acres.

The foregoing propositions are all which have occurred as necessary for your Lordships immediate consideration so far as regards the Claims and pretensions which have been set up and the disputes and Questions which have arisen concerning titles to Lands within this district and also to the best method of disposing of those Lands which in consequence of an adjustment of those claims shall belong to the Crown but we beg leave to observe that there are one or two other Considerations of a more general nature and import that will upon this occasion deserve attention.

We have already stated that the District in question between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut and particularly in the neighbourhood of the latter does abound in many parts of it with Trees fit for masting for the Royal Navy and for other Naval purposes and we observe from the minutes of the proceedings of the Council of New York that one of his Majestys assistant Surveyors of the Woods in America especially appointed by the Lords of the Treasury for the Survey of this District has made report to them of two Tracts of Land which he has discovered upon Connecticut River containing a very considerable growth of White Pines and therefore we think it Our duty to submit to your Lordships whether it would not be necessary in whatever plan shall be adopted for the final Settlement of this valuable Country that the greatest care should be taken and the most precise Instructions given that the Limits of those tracts should be ascertained so as that they be not included within the Limits of any grants or any Settlements made thereon and that if it shall so happen that any part of those tracts is included within the limits of any grant already made and actual Settlement or Improvement has taken place in consequence thereof that proper endeavours be used to induce the proprietors to quit such possession by offering them grants of waste Lands in some other parts of the District equal in quantity to what is claimed by them in consequence of such possession with a further allowance of fifty Acres of every three Acres under actual cultivation and Improvement

Another Case that appears to acquire particular consideration is the claim of the Society for the propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts founded on a Reservation inserted by the Governor of New Hampshire in the grants made by him of five hundred Acres in each Township for the use of that Society a Reservation from which we conceive the Society could not have drawn much advantage and that the best means of rendering the intention effectual to the pious purpose for which the Reservation was made would be to make compensation to the Society at the rate of thirty pounds for each Township in the Grant of which such Reservation was contained the said compensation to be made out of such moneys as shall arise out of the sale of the forfeited Shares in the manner beforementioned.

The foregoing propositions together with what we have submitted to your Lordships upon the Case of the Township of Kinsdale<sup>1</sup> which appeared to Us to require a seperate consideration are all that have occurred on the Subject matter of the papers annexed to your Lordships Orders of reference of the 17th of June last so far as they relate to the claims to possessions within the District that has been so long a bone of Contention between the Provinces of New York and New Hampshire and by which Contention the public peace has been so greatly disturbed and it only remains for us to state to your Lordships a short observation or two with regard to the mode of regranteeing those parts of the Land in this District which after provision has been made in the manner we have suggested for such claims as are in equity and Justice objects of attention shall remain for his Majesty's disposal.

The circumstance that more particularly makes this an object of Consideration is the proposition we have submitted for the Sale of these Lands for a valuable Consideration and the necessity that there is therefore that the Grant or Conveyance should be burthen'd with as little expence as possible because the facility of selling them upon the plan and for the price we have submitted will be greater or less in proportion to that expence and because we conceive it will be utterly impossible to dispose of that all upon any such plan if the Grants [are] to pass through all the forms now adopted in New York upon Grants of Lands and are to be subject to the payment of the Fees at present taken by the Governor and other Officers of that Colony.

We have upon former occasions found it necessary to take notice of the Complaints which have been made of the injustice and extortion of the Servants of the Crown in New York in this respect and we have at all times considered the liberty they have assumed to themselves of taking greater and other fees upon Grants of Land, than what were established by the Ordinance of the Governor and Council of the year 1710, as most unwarrantable and unjust.

By that Ordinance the fees allowed to be taken upon Grants of Land by the Governor the Secretary and the Surveyor are considerably larger than what are at this day received for the same Service in any other of the Colonies nor are fees allowed as we conceive to any others Officers than those we have mention'd.

Of later times however the Governor the Secretary and the Surveyor have taken and do now exact considerably more than double what that Ordinance allows and a number of other officers do upon various pretences take fees upon all Grants of Land in so much that the whole amount of these fees upon a Grant of one thousand Acres of Land is in many instances not far short of the real value of the fee Simple and we think we are justified in supposing that it has been from a consideration of the advantage arising from these exorbitant fees that His Majesty's Governors of New York have of late years taken upon themselves upon the most unwarrantable pretences to elude the restrictions contained in His Majesty's Instructions with regard to the quantity of Land to be granted to any one person and to contrive by the insertion in one Grant of a number of names either fictitious or which if real are only lent for the purpose to convey to one person in one Grant from twenty to forty thousand Acres of Land an abuse which is now grown to that height as well to deserve your Lordships attention In the present case however the only part for your Lordships Consideration is whether you will not think fit if the measure we have suggested should be adopted to advise His Majesty to give the most positive instructions to the Governor of New York that upon any application made to him for the Lands proposed to be regranted on the Conditions we have stated he do upon the payment of the consideration money to his Majesty's Receiver General issue his warrant into the Secretaries Office, the Grant do pass without any other form or process whatsoever and without any fees whatsoever to be taken either by the Attorney General the Receiver General or the Auditor and that neither the Governor the Secretary nor the Surveyor General do take any other fees than what are prescribed by the Ordinance of 1710 which we have already observed are higher than what are now taken by the same officers for the same Service in any other Colony

Upon the whole my Lords we are sensible that many difficulties will occur in the execution of any plan that can be suggested for putting an end to those Disorders and Abuses which have so long dishonored Government and disturbed the peace and quiet of a very valuable part of his Majesty's possessions that it is impossible to suggest every proposition that may be necessary in a case involved in so much difficulty and perplexity and that the practicability and impracticability of those; we have now submitted will depend in great measure upon the acquiescence on one hand and the obstinacy on the other of those whose different claims we have stated But if the plan of accommodation we have chalked out, shall in the General outline of it meet with your Lordships approbation it is all we can presume to hope for and it must be submitted to your Lordships to advise His Majesty to take such steps thereupon as to your Lordships shall seem meet and expedient.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXIV.]

N<sup>o</sup> 3.

Whitehall 8th December 1772.

By the Packet which left new York the beginning of October I received your dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 45 to 53. and have laid them before the King.

The inclosed copies of papers, which have been communicated to me by Lord Rochford,<sup>1</sup> will inform you of the State of the negotiation with the Court of Spain, respecting the capture and detention of the Hawke Sloop, Capt<sup>o</sup> Frisby; and I am to desire you will acquaint M Sullivan, agent for the owners of that sloop, that I have not failed to transmit to Lord Rochford a copy of his letter to Lord Hillsborough, in order that the state of the damages they have sustained may be sent to His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Ambassador at Madrid, together with the other papers inclosed in your letter to me N<sup>o</sup> 45.

I am very glad you took occasion in passing thro' New Jersey, to concert with Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklyn, the steps proper to be pursued in order to the transmission of a regular return of the determination of the Commissioners for ascertaining the boundary line between the two provinces, and they are very much to be commended for having made provision for quieting the possessions of the bona fide purchasers and settlers on the borders of the partition line. Had the same attention been shewn in the case of the possessions of the purchasers and settlers under the grants made by New Hampshire, within the district between the Rivers Hudson & Connecticut, those unhappy disturbances, of which you have so repeatedly complained, would I think not have happened. But I will not in this place, enter into any further observations on that subject, or upon those parts of your correspondence which relate to the purchases by private persons of large tracts of Land from the Indians, and to grants of land in general, as those matters which are now under the examination of the Board of Trade, will, in consequence of their Reports, be for the King's consideration in His Privy Council, and will probably become the subject of a separate letter.

With regard to the case of Felix Meigs,<sup>1</sup> as stated in the papers inclosed in your letter N<sup>o</sup> 49. It is the King's pleasure that you do act therein according to your own judgement pursuant to the authority contained in your Commission, which having vested in you a discretionary power of pardoning in all cases where the persons shall appear fit objects of mercy (excepting only those who may have been convicted of Treason or Murder) I am persuaded you will upon further reflection, see the impropriety of granting a reprieve, 'till the King's pleasure should be known, in any case not within those exceptions.

The settlement of the partition line between New York, and Massachusetts Bay, is, as you very properly observe, a business of very great importance, and when I reflect that it is now more than five years since the King was graciously pleased to refer the determination of it to Commiss<sup>rs</sup> to be appointed by each province, I am at a loss to guess at the motives for delay in a matter the speedy decision of which, they are both equally interested in.

The paper inclosed in your separate despatch of the 1st of October will be very useful when the Canada Claims, upon Lake Champlain come into discussion, but I think it proper to observe that there are no facts stated in that paper, which alter the sentiments expressed in my last Dispatch, in regard to the unreasonableness of the pretence set up by New York, that all the Lands to the South of the River S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence, belonged of Right to the Crown of Great Britain, as part of that Colony.

Whitehall. 9. December 1772

Sir

By the Packet that sailed from New York in November, I received your Dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 1. 2 & 3. and have laid them before the King.

I have already acquainted you, in my letter of yesterday's date, that the State of the District between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut would probably become the subject of a separate letter, in consequence of a Report of the Board of Trade; and therefore I shall decline taking any other notice, in this place, of the continuance of the disturbances on the Lands in that district, than barely to express my hope, that the question wh<sup>ch</sup> have occasioned those

<sup>1</sup> FELIX MEIGS, of the city of New-York, boatman, was, at the July Term of the Supreme Court, in the year 1772, convicted of passing counterfeit Bills of credit and sentenced to death. disturbances, will shortly be determined in a manner that by giving satisfaction to all parties, will be more effectual to restore quiet, than the interposition of any Military Force, which ought never to be called in to the aid of the Civil authority, but in cases of absolute and unavoidable necessity, and which would be highly improper if applied to support possessions, which after order issued in 1767 upon the petition of the proprietors of the N. Hampshire Townships, may be of very doubtful title.—

Whitehall. 9. Decr 1772.

Sir,

As I have mentioned to you in my Dispatch of this day's date N<sup>o</sup> 4. that the state of what has passed respecting the lands between the Rivers Hudson & Connecticut and also respecting grants of Lands in General, would probably be the subject of a separate letter, I must not loose this opportunity of telling you that the Reports of the Board of Trade upon those subjects have not yet been decided upon at the Council Board, and therefore the instructions which I am to give, in consequence of their Lord<sup>sh</sup>s determination, must be deferred till the next Packet—It becomes my duty however, in obedience to the King's commands, to acquaint you, that the deviations from the letter, & spirit of the Kings instructions in respect to the New Hampshire Townships to the west of Connecticut River; to grants of Land to the North of Crown point, and to Licenses to private persons to purchase lands of the Indians, are very much disapproved by the King, and that the reasons assigned by you for that deviation in the first of those cases do not appear at present either to excuse or extenuate a disobedience to the King's commands declared in the most clear and positive manner.

I am further to acquaint you that the sentiments expressed in Lord Hillsborough's letter to you of the 4th day of December 1771. concerning the unwarrantable and collusive practice of granting Lands in general are fully adopted by the King's servants, and I was exceedingly surprised to find that such an intimation to you on that subject had not had the effect to restrain that practice, & that the same unjustifiable collusion had been adopted to a still greater extent in the Licenses you have granted to purchase Lands of the Indians.

As all the facts however, are now under examination in the privy Council, I will not anticipate their Lord<sup>sh</sup>s resolutions thereupon; but in the mean time it is the King's pleasure and positive command that you do not, upon any pretence whatever, sign any Grant or Patent for those Lands; that you do not either upon your own judgement, or by the advice of others, presume to depart from the letter of the King's Instructions, or to Act contrary in any respect to such explanations of them as you may have received from those to whom His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has intrusted the signification of his commands, which commands ought ever to be held sacred, and which it will be my duty to see obeyed, so long as I continue in the situation in which His Majesty has been graciously pleased to place me—

Johnson Hall Dec 26. 1772

My Lord

Since I had the honor of writing to your Lordship which was on the 4th of Nov<sup>r</sup> last I have receiv<sup>d</sup> sundry accounts from the Southward of the Schemes in agitation in that quarter amongst the Indians, which tho' carried on with the utmost secrecy have not escaped the observation of my Agents & of the Six Nations, what these will terminate in must depend on the success of my negociations & endeavors to counteract them, but their present obvious tendency is to form such an alliance as may enable them to act offensively against us, and so far intimidate the Six Nations and their fast friends, as to prevent their taking any part in our quarrell, being under more real apprehension from our Indian allies, than from any force they expect we can send against them & several of the Nations to the South Westward are so sensible of this that they have proposed an attack on the Six Nations first, as a necessary measure previous to their farther designs, well knowing that Indians when they heartily engage in a cause are the most dangerous enemies to Indians, from the knowledge they have of each other, the Nature and situation of the back Country and the mode of Indian warfare—The common report that they propagate, is, that they mean to enter into a general alliance amongst themselves but the secret designs of several nations amongst them have been sufficiently detected & in some circumstances proved to have a much worse tendency, than a mere pacific alliance altho there is no general alliance amongst them that does not bode troubles to us. But in order to render their measures the more secure as all their endeavours to shake the fidelity of the Six Nations have proved abortive, a few of the Shawaneese and Delawares have lately resolved on sending a deputation either to the Colonies or to England to represent that the six Nations have long acted unfriendly towards them that they want protection against them, and the Governm<sup>t</sup> may give such orders or make such establishments for their relief, as may render them independent of the Six Nations should they succeed in this scheme, they are sensible that the Northern confederacy can not fail of showing their resentment as an ill requital for the faithful attachment of the greatest part of their People, to whose conduct we are really much indebted, & on whose future fidelity a valuable part of our frontiers, and the most valuable part of our Trade does solely depend, as they therefore make no doubt that should they meet with success, the resentment of the Six Nations will be kindled against the English, so they expect to avail themselves thereof by drawing them into that alliance which they have hitherto rejected, for altho<sup>1</sup> they are not at bottom fond of the Six Nations, they nevertheless eagerly wish to draw them into their schemes, from the influence of their name and the power which their situation affords them to distress us. The Plan for forming a secret alliance is pretty general amongst them, but this scheme for drawing in the Government as an Instrument, which I have very lately detected, has been only as yet agitated by a few who of themselves are very inconsiderable and may possibly be laid aside, However I judged it a necessary part of my duty, to lay the same before your Lordship for His Majestys information. Some of these People have of late effected to be disatisfied with the six Nations under various pretences, which may serve to impose on those who are ignorant of their real designs, and that they have long endeavoured th[r]o' means of the six Nations Emigrants in Ohio to draw them into their Confederacy for they have no real objection to the 6 Nations but the general attachment of the latter to the English, one recent instance of which they can neither forget or forgive, when in the late Indian war a large party which I sent out attacked a Party of Delawares who were destined against our frontiers, & then very near one of our best settlements, of whom they made forty prisoners with their cheif Capt<sup>m</sup> Bull who had himself killed twenty eight English the year before as he confessed to me and this effectually humbled the Delawares at that time, as they expected that we should put these Prisoners to death, if they continued the war—Your Ldp may be assured that nothing shall be wanted on my part to prevent the evil effects of any of their secret schemes, or associations but even if this should be found impracticable, I flatter myself that with the countenance and support of His Majesty, I can convince them that we have a sufficient number in His Matys Interest who would gladly display their fidelity on such an occasion

Since writing the foregoing (in which I was interrupted by the arrival of several Onondaga Cheifs) I have had the honor to receive your Lordships despatch of the 27th of September (2) by which I am happy to find that my sentiments concerning the acts of cruelty committed by Ramsay correspond with those of your Lordship I have lately heard that thro' the want of a material evidence who by some means was permitted to escape from one of the out Posts nothing was done in his affair, but I understand he is still in confinement, tho' I have little expectation of its final issue in any manner satisfactory to the Indians, who when ever ill disposed, are well pleased with our delaying or denying justice as it serves for a pretext to commit hostilities, a pretext we should never afford them

I take the liberty to mention to your Lordship, that the gentleman who is at present Secretary for the Indian affairs (an office always held under the Royal Commission) is aged and of late very infirm. As the department may suffer much by the appointment of Gentlemen who are ignorant of the form & Duties of that office, I should therefore humbly hope that when a vacancy happens, your Lordship will indulge me with the liberty of mentioning a candidate for that office

I have the honour to be with profound respect

My Lord

Your Lordships

most obedient and

The Earl of Dartmouth

most humble servant

N<sup>o</sup> 8.

New York. January 1773.

My Lord

The legislative body of this Colony at their last session having passed an Act for establishing a Militia, Commissions have been since issued by Govern<sup>r</sup> for forming the militia in most of the Counties in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, and it is with a hope that the intelligence may be grateful to my Royal Sovereign, that I presume to trouble Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> with the information that the revival of a militia Law, has been well received by the Inhabitants, and that the Officers, in general, have discovered a laudable emulation of appearing and acting up to their appointments, and that the desire of acquiring a knowledge in the Art Military, is equally conspicuous even among those of the rank and file.

Commissions for raising several Independant Companies in this City having been given to some Gentlemen of the first families and distinction, on condition, that they clothed, armed & accoutred them at their own expense, the following Companies were soon formed: viz<sup>t</sup> two Companies of Cadets or Governor's Guards, one of Grenadiers, one of light infantry, one of Rangers, one of Germans, & three of Artillery, forming together upwards of five hundred Men. On the 7th of last month, I received<sup>1</sup> them excepting two companies of Artillery, not then in uniform, drawn up in one Battallion, when they went through the manual exercise, and evolutions, with greater exactness and spirit, than could possibly have been expected from the few opportunities they had had of exercising together. Their regularity, good order, and soldierlike appearance, gave general satisfaction to all present; and I may venture to say it was the most brilliant Militia Review that was ever had, within His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> American dominions. These nine companies, when compleated, will amount to nearly seven hundred Men, all volunteers. A body that will be of more real service in case of necessity, than treble the number of the militia composed of the Inhabitants generally.—I am with the highest respect & esteem

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient servant

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXV.]

N<sup>o</sup> 9.

New York. 5. January 1773.

My Lord.

I have received your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatch of the 4th of November N<sup>o</sup> 2. His Majesty's approbation of my endeavours to become acquainted with the state of the different parts of the Colony, that I may be the better qualified to discharge the important trust, which he has so graciously honored me, demands my most grateful acknowledgments; and I return your Lord<sup>sh</sup> my sincere thanks for the obliging manner in which you have been pleased to communicate so valuable a Mark of favour, as well as for the indulgent sentiments which you have hitherto entertained of me.

I entreat your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to believe that if in any instance, I have been so unfortunate as to transgress the bounds of my duty, it has wholly proceeded from misconception, and not from a disregard of the rule, by which I am directed to walk.

It has long been an instruction which equally bespeaks the wisdom and justice of the Crown, that no lands shall be granted, without a previous purchase from the Native Occupants. At the same time, the Govern<sup>t</sup> here have thought it good policy to embrace every favourable opportunity of promoting the improvement and cultivation of the Country, by a compliance with the inclinations of the Mohoks, when they chose to cede their Rights. But no fund being provided for this purpose, recourse has always been had to the subject, with whose money advanced on the faith of a License from the Gov<sup>t</sup>, with the advice of the Council, the price was paid.

Formerly, it was left to the Petitioners to make the purchases at their own directions, but this being too frequently attended with unfairness, & giving rise to discontents among the Indians, His Majesty was pleased by the eighty fifth instruction, to direct the mode to obtain licenses for Indian purchases, and in all consequences<sup>1</sup> of this nature, there is an express declaration of trust for those, who obtained the License, & paid the consideration.

To such only as have been attended with this solemnity have I paid the least regard, nor have I been able to discover an instance where these have proved an occasion of uneasiness or complaint.

At the late Congress, in July last, I was apprehensive of no restraint, but what is enjoined by the above mentioned Instruction, and I flattered myself, that I was in the faithful discharge of my duty, in consenting to the purchases and Grants which in conformity thereto, then took place.

In full confidence of the quiet enjoyment of those lands, a number of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> subjects have already expended, as is estimated, near £5000. curr: including purchases and surveys, and a valuable Tract, freed from the Indian claim, will be open to cultivation, and subject to the payment of a quit Rent to his Maj<sup>ty</sup>.

Under these circumstances it is humbly submitted, to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> whether it would not be a real hardship, and greatly lessen the respect, which for His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> interest ought to be preserved to the Acts of his Govern<sup>t</sup>, if titles regularly obtained, according to the mode established for settlement, as it is understood by the officers of the different departments, should suffer any impeachment.

If any alteration is thought necessary, it will not be more my duty, than it is my sincere inclination, to yield the most implicit obedience to His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> commands; at the same time, I should be unworthy of a public trust, if I concealed my apprehensions, that any expedient, suspending letters patent to a purchaser after a sale lawfully obtained with his own money from the Indians, must prove a great discouragement to the cultivation of the frontier parts of the province, where a strong barrier against any future attempts of the western Savages, seems so desirable.

To pretended, fraudulent, or private purchases, I have, and shall continue to give all the discountenance and opposition in my power, and shall make it my study to do the Indians, upon every occasion, the strictest Justice, to conciliate their affections, and to preserve among them the happy temper, which distinguished the late Congress.

The opinion I presumed to give Your Lordship respecting the Canadian Claims, was grounded on the following facts, which if I am rightly informed are capable of satisfactory proof. I hope considering the importance of the subject, to be excused in submitting them to your Lord<sup>sh's</sup> consideration.

The Dutch, who first settled this Colony, claimed the whole of Connecticut River and Lake Champlain, and all the Country to the Southward of the River St Lawrence down to Delaware River; this appears from many ancient Maps, and particularly from Blau's and Ogilby's, which I have had an opportunity of seeing.—In 1664. King Charles the Second granted this Country to the Duke of York, expressly comprehending all the Lands from the west side of Connecticut River.

On a late actual Survey, by Commiss<sup>rs</sup> from this and Quebec Govern<sup>t</sup>, the head of that River is found to lie, several miles to the Northward of the Latitude of forty five degrees, lately established by his Majesty as the boundary between this Colony and Quebec.

A West line therefore from the head of Connecticut River (which will comprehend Lake Champlain) has been always deemed the ancient boundary of New York, according to the Royal grant; nor has been abridged but in two instances. His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s proclamation limiting the extent of Quebec, and an argument confirmed by the Crown with Connecticut. Every Act and Commission subsequent to King Charles's grant, describes the province in General words: "The Province of New York and the territories depending thereupon" and supposes its limits to be notorious, and properly established by that grant. On this principle the Judicatories, here have grounded their determinations, in suits between the New York Patentees, and the N. Hampshire claimants. The original Colony of New Hampshire as it was granted by the Council of Plymouth, and confirmed by the Crown about the year 1635, lay altogether on the East side of Connecticut River, which it did not reach by 20 miles. As it was new modelled, and enlarged by the Commission to Gov<sup>r</sup> Benning Wentworth in 1742. No distance from the sea, or station, is given; but it is "bounded to the West by the King's other Govern<sup>ts</sup>," and could not comprehend the Lands on the West side of Connecticut River which were already a part of New York, as established by the Grant of the Crown abovementioned. Hence on the footing of original Right, our Courts determined, that the New Hampshire Grants, were void for want of legal authority in that Govern<sup>t</sup>. They considered His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s order in Privy Council in 1764. as a confirmation of a prior Right, and not as having altered or enlarged the ancient Jurisdiction.

I am now cautious to give an opinion on the propriety of this decision; but barely mention the principles as they have been represented to me for your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s information.

Whether the Dominions of the French in Canada interfered with the bounds of this Colony as anciently established by King Charles the Second, remains to be considered. All the Country to the Southward of the River St Lawrence originally belonged to the Five Nations or Iroquois, and as such, it is described in the abovementioned and other ancient Maps, & particularly Lake Champlain is there called "Mere des Iroquois." Sorel River, which leads from the lake into the River St Lawrence "Rivier des Iroquois," and the Tract on the East side of the Lake, Irocoisia.

So early as the year 1683, the Five Nations, by Treaty with the Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York, submitted to the Sovereignty and protection of Great Britain, and have ever since been considered as subjects, and their Country as part of the Dominions of the Crown.

By the Treaty of Utrecht, the French King expressly recognized the Sovereignty of Great Britain over those Nations.

Godfrey Dellius's purchase from the Mohocks, and grant under the Seal of New York in the year 1696. is esteemed a memorable proof of the Right of this Province, under the Crown, to the Lands on Lake Champlain. It comprehends a large Tract extending from Soraghtoga along Hudson's River, the Wood Creek, and Lake Champlain, on the East side upwards of twenty miles, to the northward of Crown Point; and it is thought, a circumstance of no small importance, that this grant was repealed by the Legislature in the year 1699. as an extravagant favour to one subject; which Act would have been a nullity if that territory had not been within the jurisdiction of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>

Altho' the Canadians by their Savage depredations had long obstructed the settlement of this Frontier part of the Colony, it was not till the year 1731. that, in profound peace, they took possession of Lake Champlain and ordered Fort S<sup>t</sup> Frederick at Crown [Point]; and afterwards another Fort at Ticonderoga. This was regarded as an act of hostility, and as such complained of and resented; and the Colonies before the late War, to disappoint so dangerous a project, raised money and Troops to erect Fortifications on His Majesty's lands, at, or near Crown Point. The operations became more general, and the success of his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> arms, rendered it unnecessary.

The French had endeavoured to fortify their encroachments by negotiations; in 1756. their Ambassador insisted as a condition of the Convention then proposed that Great Britain should relinquish her claim to the South side of the River S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence, and the lakes which discharge themselves into that River; a demand which was peremptorily rejected, and put an end to the conference. I depend, my Lord on Entiv's<sup>1</sup> history of the late war for the truth of this fact, If it is well founded, it seems to show in a strong point of light the sense of the Crown at that crisis, respecting the territory under consideration

If it was necessary, My Lord, to add prior instances of the encroachments of the Canadians, I would beg leave to refer Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to Governor Burnet's speeches to the General Assembly of this Province, in 1725, 1726 & 1727. and the resolutions of that house stated in their Journals, deposited in the Plantation Office, on the subject of those encroachments. That Gov<sup>r</sup>, in his speech of the 30th Sept<sup>r</sup> 1727. has these remarkable words: "I have the "satisfaction to inform you, that your Agent has been very active in soliciting the affairs of "this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, and particularly that he has succeeded in obtaining, that pressing instances "might be made at the Court of France, against the Stone House built at Niagara" etc. This shows that the Govern<sup>t</sup> at home so early as that period viewed this measure of the French as an encroachment on the limits of this Colony.

I assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that I had no idea that the decision of this controversy could affect the ancient possessions of any of his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> new subjects. Unacquainted with their settlements, on, and near the south side of the River S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence, I carried my views no further than the province over which I preside; and which, as it is now limited does not include the whole of Lake Champlain. I have frequently been informed, by those on whom I thought I could depend, that when the French, on the approach of Sir Jeffry Amherst in 1759. abandoned Crown Point, there were found no ancient possessions, nor any improvements, worthy of consideration on either side of the Lake. The Chief were in the environs of the Fort, and seemed intended meerly for the accommodation of the Garrisons, and I have reason to believe, that even at this day, there are very few, if any, to the Southward of the latitude forty five, except what have been made since the peace, by British subjects under the grants of this Colony.

I had the honor of transmitting to the Earl of Hillsborough a paper on this subject drawn up by Council here, at the request of the reduced Officers, to whom and the disbanded Soldiers a very considerable part of the Country on the East side of Lake Champlain, hath been granted in obedience to His Majesty's Royal proclamation. The proof of several material facts, which influenced my opinion, are there stated, and to which I beg leave to refer your Lord<sup>sh</sup>.

I am extremely concerned to have been so unfortunate as to prolong the dispute with the N. Hampshire claimants, as its speedy determination is become so essential to the peace and prosperity of the Colony. My anxiety is greatly increased from the additional trouble it is likely to give your Lord<sup>sh</sup> and the Board of Trade. I can truly say in my justification, that what I did, was with the best intentions, and from an opinion that the security of the claimants, on terms which would give them satisfaction, was the object of the restraint. I was willing to make a sacrifice of interest by accepting half the customary fees. On their part, they removed what had hitherto been a great obstacle, by consenting to pay the New York Quit rents of two shillings and six pence sterling a hundred acres, instead of that reserved by their New Hampshire Charters. Importunate and clamorous as they were for titles under this Govern<sup>t</sup>, I feared unless they were gratified, the spirit of riot and disobedience, which so unhappily prevailed at Bennington, and the other eastern parts of the County of Albany, would spread itself into Cumberland and Gloucester Counties bordering on the West Banks of Connecticut River, where the Townships in question lye, and which had hitherto preserved a due respect for his Majesty's authority. I therefore ventured to adopt the expedient, which to my great regret I found so inconvenient, and which I cannot but lament since it fails of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s approbation.

I flatter myself, that my conduct with respect to the grant to Coll: Howard, of which the people of Hinsdale complain, will be justified from a Review of the circumstances which attended it.

It was not a grant issued by me officially, but in obedience to His Majesty's Mandamus. The setting out of the Tract was not left to the Commissioners of the Crown, but a right of Election vested in Coll: Howard, of any ten thousand acres, within the Prov<sup>ce</sup>, not before granted or surveyed to others, and not possessed or claimed by the Indians; an act of so high and solemn a nature was considered not only as superceding the restraints with respect to the Lands claimed by New Hampshire, but also the ordinary mode of granting lands, by the intervention of the Gov<sup>t</sup> & Council here. When therefore Colonel Howard demanded a grant on the West side of Connecticut River, I thought it my duty to affix the seal without hesitation.

It was not, as well as I recollect, till afterwards that I was informed that some inhabitants who were settled on part of those lands pretended a claim under the Massachusetts Bay; a circumstance of which I am persuaded not an officer of the Govern<sup>t</sup> was apprized. I was favoured with a letter from Gov<sup>t</sup> Hutchinson on this subject, which induced Coll: Howard, to get his case stated for his Excellency's satisfaction. As it would be tedious to detain your Lord<sup>sh</sup> by a detail of the merits of that Claim, I beg leave to transmit a copy of the case, and my correspondence with Gov<sup>t</sup> Hutchinson on that head for your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s thorough information.

It appears to me, that any claim under the Massachusetts to those lands is destitute of legal foundation, and that the offer Coll: Howard made to the occupants when he became acquainted with their circumstances, was too generous to leave room for complaint.

I am with the highest respect and esteem—My Lord,

Sir,

I have received your despatches of the 1st and 2nd of Dec<sup>r</sup> and have laid them before the King. It is very much to be wished both for the interest of the Crown and the public that the extent, justice and legality of the claims of the proprietors of the Hardenburgh patent could be brought into judgement and decided upon a single suit at Law, but the mode you propose of bringing on that discussion by a grant to Coll: Bradstreet of a part of the Lands does not appear to me either so regular & proper as that which has been already adopted, and it is I think the less so as I understand from your letter of the 1st of Dec<sup>r</sup> that a verdict has been already given on a process of Intrusion. You will therefore acquaint Coll: Bradstreet with my difficulties, assuring him that on any other occasion, I shall be happy to show him every attention due to his great merit and services.

The State of the Country west of Connecticut River, and your representation of the disorders which have prevailed from the want of a decision upon disputes that had arisen respecting the different claims to land, was one of the first objects of my attention upon my coming into office, and I so far prevailed in my wishes to bring that business forward, as to obtain a very full and immediate discussion of it at the Board of Trade.

The forming an opinion upon a matter that involved questions of the greatest difficulty, necessarily took up sometime, but by a diligent and close application their Lord<sup>sh</sup>ps were enabled to make their Report to the privy Council on the 3rd of December, and I have the satisfaction to acquaint you, that My Lord President fully apprized by me of how great consequence it is to your ease and happiness, that this matter should receive a speedy decision, has assured me, that it shall be taken up the very first day the Committee meets.

Sir,

I have received your letter of the 1st Dec<sup>r</sup> & laid it before the King.

I beg leave to assure you that it will always give me great pleasure to promote the advantage of every meritorious servant of the Crown, and to lay before His Maj<sup>ty</sup> a just representation of their long and faithful services; but as it is not the King's intention to annex salaries to the Office of Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> in the Colonies, I cannot take upon me to recommend to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to grant your request of a salary as Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York. In the instance of M<sup>r</sup> Oliver of Massachusetts Bay, which you quote as a precedent, the allowance which the King thought fit to make that Gentleman, was in consideration of his having resigned a lucrative Office, and was not given as a salary only annexed to his appointment of Lieut' Gov', and does not therefore in any respect apply to your case.

By the last Packet from New York I received your Dispatches No<sup>r</sup> 1 & 2.

In your letter of the 4th of Nov<sup>r</sup> you refer to a paper mentioned to have been transmitted and which you state to be a copy of the most material part of the late Congress at Johnson Hall but as that paper has by some mistake not been sent, what I have to say to you upon that business must be confin'd to y<sup>e</sup> observations contained in your letter

In general I am sorry to find from the Report made of what is passed at Scioto that our neighbours on the Mississippi have still the means by Talks and Messages of keeping up that jealousy, discontent & enmity towards us among the Western Nations which may hereafter when an opportunity offers prove fatal to the security of the British Dominions in that part of America, and I see this with the greatest concern, and my apprehensions of the ill consequences are the stronger as the ill humour is every day increas<sup>d</sup> and our only hope of preventing that dangerous union of Interests that appear to be forming rests upon the friendship of the Six Nations and their acquiescence in that extension of settlement which has apparently given so much offence to other Tribes who both claim to possess the Country

From what has heretofore passed with the Six Nations upon this subject I am to presume that no difficulties will occur on their part to the measure His Majesty has thought fit to adopt for establishing a Government up the Ohio, but I must observe that your letter does not state that any thing conclusive was said by them by way of answer to the communication that you was directed to make to them of the Kings intentions in that respect and I must candidly confess to you that the proposition which you have made to the Senecas of withdrawing from their possession on the South side of the Ohio appears to have been founded upon Reasons & Arguments which induce an apprehension that very great difficulties will occur in carrying the intended Plan of Settlement into execution unless the other Tribes who reside within the Limits of the proposed Colony can be brought into the same measure which I fear will be impracticable though the Senecas should have consented to it, which however does not appear from your letter.

The advantages of a regular Plan for Indian Trade are apparent and the want of it in the present situation is very much to be lamented, But as I apprehend there is not sufficient authority in the Crown for the execution of such a Plan; and as the Colonies do not seem disposed to concur in any general Regulations for that purpose, I am at a loss to suggest any mode by which this important service can be otherwise provided for than by the interposition of the authority of the Supreme Legislature the exertion of which would be in such a case unadvisable until Truth & Conviction have removed the unhappy prejudices which have so long prevailed in the Colonies on this subject.

I am very sensible of the obliging expressions with respect to myself contained in your letter of the 3rd of Nov<sup>r</sup> and it will give me great pleasure upon every occasion in the course of my correspondence with you in the office His Majesty has been graciously pleased to place me to do justice to the Desert of so meritorious an officer and so faithful a servant of the King

I am &c &c<sup>a</sup>

N<sup>o</sup> 16.

New York. 7 Feb<sup>r</sup> 1773.

My Lord,

I received last evening, from Mr Elliot<sup>1</sup> His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Commission under the seal of great Britain, and the proceedings had thereon, relative to the partition line between the Govern<sup>ts</sup> of New York and New Jersey, requesting, I would transmit the same to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>. Mr Jay, clerk to the Commiss<sup>ns</sup> refusing to deliver up the Commission and papers unless authorized by an express order of the Crown under the great Seal, or act of the Legislature, I yesterday passed a Bill of that tenor, a copy of which is herewith transmitted, with the Commission and papers, also Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklyn's letter to me inclosing an Act of the Assembly of New Jersey, which was obtained in consequence of the conference I had at Amboy last September with the Gov<sup>r</sup> & other parties concerned in the premises—Should these proceedings meet with his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> approbation, we may, I hope, soon receive the Royal confirmation to the territorial Jurisdiction between the two Govern<sup>ts</sup>

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will observe the Great Seal is entirely defaced and reduced to a small Lump of wax, which is the case of almost all the great seals sent from Great Britain, occasioned by its being chiefly composed of Rosin which is reduced to powder by the friction of the voyage, Were the seals to be formed of a proper mixture of Bees wax and Turpentine without any Rosin, they would arrive uninjured; a circumstance not without its weight as the validity of those instruments have been doubted to which the Great seal has been affixed and defaced, like the one to this Commission.

I am with all possible respect and Esteem,

My Lord,

My Lord,

As the motives of my conduct in the Land Depart<sup>mt</sup> have been fully set forth in my former correspondence and particularly as those parts in which I have been so unhappy as to incur His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s displeasure are stated at large in my dispatch to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 9. I have nothing farther to urge in my justification except an explanation of my conduct, on an additional weight of displeasure contained in your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s separate letter of the 9th of December 1772. in pursuing the usual methods of granting lands, after the receipt of the Earl of Hillsborough's letter of the 4th of Dec<sup>r</sup> 1771. by the intimations and import of that letter, I understood the reformation in the land Office was to originate at home; and as I lost no time in sending the fullest representation of the method practiced in this Govern<sup>t</sup>, in the disposal of the King's lands, I considered my changing the mode then in use, before I received fresh Instructions, would create confusion rather than order. I therefore waited to be informed of the King's pleasure on the informations transmitted to the Earl of Hillsborough with my Dispatch of the 11th of April 1772. N<sup>o</sup> 28.

It is my duty to explain the motives of such points of my conduct as stand impeached, and I have here done it in conformity to that idea, altho' it should neither extenuate nor excuse my disobedience.

The Governors, My Lord, of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Colonies on this Continent, meet with many Thorns in the Paths of their Administrations, and if they are not allowed on extraordinary emergencies, to put a liberal interpretation on his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s instructions, and the Kings Ministers as liberal a construction on the Governor's Conduct, the most faithful servant of the Crown in that Station, cannot long keep his ground, or preserve his Govern<sup>t</sup> in peace. These, My Lord, are the dictates of a mind influenced only by an honest zeal for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service.

I shall pay a dutiful obedience to the King's Commands, and am, with all possible respect

My Lord,

New York. 20th Febr<sup>y</sup> 1773.

My Lord,

On the 21st of January last, I had the honor of addressing your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in conjunction with the rest of the Commissioners at Rhode Island, giving some account of our proceedings and the reasons that induced us to adjourn to the 26th of May next.

On my arrival at that Place on the 31st of Dec<sup>r</sup>, I was surprised to find, that the main of our errand was become public, which in prudence, was to be kept secret; nevertheless your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter to Gov<sup>r</sup> Wanton<sup>1</sup> was published in the Boston Weekly paper and spread industriously over all N England. However amazing to us, upon enquiry it came out, that the Gov<sup>r</sup> had communicated it to his Assembly, who had got it printed; upon expostulating with the Gov<sup>r</sup> upon it, he said, he by Law was obliged to communicate all dispatches from the Ministry, to his Corporation, and sworn so to do; that such Dispatches were usually directed to the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Comp<sup>t</sup>. Upon enquiry how Your Lordship's packet was directed, neither he nor his Secretary could inform us; the superscription they said was mislaid, and not to be found; but that this was not so directed as the Gov<sup>r</sup> said, I infer from its being addressed to him (Sir).

My Lord, as to the Govern<sup>t</sup> (if it deserves that name) it is a downright Democracy; the Gov<sup>r</sup> is a mere nominal one, and therefore a Cypher, without power or authority, entirely controuled by the populace elected annually, as all other Magistrates & officers whatsoever. The Governor treated the Commissioners with great decency and respect, and to do that Gentleman justice, behaved with great propriety as a Commissioner, excepting his communicating your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter to the Corporation, which indeed he seemed constrained to do under the above circumstances.

To shew that the Gov<sup>r</sup> has not the least Power or Authority he could not command the Sheriff or a Constable to attend us; he prevailed with them indeed, but in expectation of being paid their daily wages by the Commissioners, so that they were hired for this service at our expence, and even for expresses sent to summon witnesses the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> found it necessary to advance their own money; also for the very fire wood expended for our accommodation in the Council Chamber on this occasion; this, My Lord, we readily disbursed and all other contingencies relying upon the honor of Govern<sup>t</sup>.

We found, My Lord, that the Gov<sup>r</sup> upon the first notice of this piece of villany had issued a proclamation offering £100 reward for a discovery but without effect.

My Lord, it is suggested in the Commission that the people assembled upon this adventure in the Town of Newport, and the places adjacent by beat of Drum, etc, which was intimated, doubtless, through misinformation, for it comes out, that it was at Providence on the Narraganset River, about 30 miles from Newport, and 7 or 8 from the place where the Gaspee run a ground. The news of which was soon communicated to that Town, and there it is supposed the people assembled and soon formed their scheme, to Man 6 or 7 Boats on purpose to attack her at that disadvantage.

My Lord, the Colony of Rhode Island is branched out into three divisions; Newport on Rhode Isl<sup>d</sup>, Providence, and Warwick more inland adjoining to the Massachusetts Colony; at these three places the Assemblies are held alternately, but Newport is reputed the seat of Govern<sup>t</sup>; between the two former, there is an emulation with respect to their Trade, and a kind of Enmity likewise, so that they do not generally correspond cordially. Providence is 30 miles distant from it, so that it seems most unlikely that the people of Newport could be concerned in so sudden and precipitate an enterprize, nor was the fact known at Rhode Island, till the day after the Treason Committed.

My Lord, as to the Negro evidence, which seems to be the foundation of this enquiry, it is much to be suspected, though his story is told with much plausibility, and he pertinaciously repeated it upon examination before the Commiss<sup>rs</sup>; and a Sailor of the Crew of the Gaspee, swore he was one of the Negroes after the attack, that rowed the Boat which landed part of the Gaspees crew near Providence. But to countervail this Information, it was asserted that the master of this Negro from whom he had escaped on board the Man of War, with intent to run away, who is a person of undoubted Credit, would swear that about nine o'clock that night the Gaspee was destroyed, he ordered this Negro to Bed, and that he saw him go accordingly with his two other Negroes, with whom he usually slept, and 'twas said that these Negroes would also depose, that he lay with them all night, 'till his Master called him up in the morning on business.

My Lord, the Commissioners did not enter upon counter evidence, though I myself was inclined to do it, as we proceeded, and bring the witnesses face to face, considering the Commission required, we should report all the circumstances attending the affair.

Capt<sup>n</sup> Dudingston had been plying upon his business in the Narragansett River for some time; he had not communicated his Commission to the Gov<sup>r</sup> on his arrival, as M<sup>r</sup> Wanton informed us; M<sup>r</sup> Dudingston has made several seizures of prohibited goods on that Station, and on seizing their traffick, might probably have treated the boatmen with severity, roughness and scurrilous language, by which, the people of that place might be provoked to this daring insult and resentment; and not knowing Dudingston bore the King's Commission of what he had done, they, as they gave out, look'd upon him as a pirate and Treated him as such. For, as the Gov<sup>r</sup> informed us upon complaint of his abuses, as they pretended, he expostulated with M<sup>r</sup> Dudingston and demanded he would satisfy him as to the Commission upon which he acted, which at length he did.

From these three different branches of Govern<sup>t</sup> My Lord, there arise three different Factions; their election of the Chief Officers being annual, sometimes one party prevails, perhaps the next year a different; I was told by a Gentleman of the Law there, he had known a Land Cause of considerable value that had judgement reversed different ways seven or eight times; property being thus rendered wholly insecure, no wonder, that persons of property and best sense and most sincerity among them have long wished for a change of Govern<sup>t</sup>, and to be under His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s more immediate protection. Though by their charter, they are inhibited from passing Laws contrary to those of England, but to be as near as may be agreeable to them, yet they seem to have paid little regard to that injunction, as may sufficiently appear upon inspection of the printed Books of them, they have never transmitted them for the Royal approbation, nor indeed by their Charter were they obliged to do so.

Under these circumstances your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will not wonder that they are in a State of Anarchy and I assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that their sister Colony Connecticut is in the same condition in all respects, Justice has long since fled that Country. I have had an opportunity of being more intimately acquainted with the people of that Colony for about 30 years past, having had the honour of attending there twice upon two Royal special Commissions for determining a controversy between that Corporation and a Tribe of Indians and the Family of the Masons. Major Mason,<sup>1</sup> a Gallant officer of the Army, a principal person among the first of the English who first landed in these parts, fought their battles with the Savages, conquered several Tribes, became the Foster Father to the Colony, acted with so much generosity humanity and prudence towards the Natives, and so conciliated their Friendship and esteem, that after, they had, thro' his persuasion, granted away great Tracts of their Lands, to form the new proposed Colony, and to mak a sufficient plantation or settlement. The Natives prudently thought of falling upon a method for reserving and securing for the future a sufficiency for the subsistence of their Tribe; and putting entire confidence in Major Mason as their Patron and Friend (who had treated them with great generosity and humanity) requested that Corporation or Govern', that they might with their approbation invest the remainder of their lands in Major Mason and his heirs, as the Guardians and Trustees of the Mohegan Tribe, & that in future they should be restrained from selling more of their lands without the advice and consent of that family. Some were afterwards from time to time sold with the consent of the Masons, and to preserve the fidelity of the Masons, the Family was to have an interest in the lands so to be conveyed, coupled with the trust.

For this purpose, My Lord, a Deed was executed with solemnity, and by the declared approbation of the Corporation entered upon their Records.

Notwithstanding this solemn engagement so Recorded, the heads of this Corporation, did from time to time afterwards unknown to the Masons, inveigle the Indians to convey to them several tracts of very valuable reserved lands, without consent of the Masons, and divided them among themselves; and this was the ground of their complaint, upon which those special Commissions issued.

Upon the whole, My Lord, I was and am still of opinion, that the devices in consequence of them in favor of the Corporation were unjust; for it appeared to me, that the Corporation had most shamefully prostituted the good faith and honour of Govern' by ungratefully and fraudulently, wresting many large and valuable Tracts from that Tribe and the Masons, and becoming the instruments of impoverishing that honest and worthy Family (whose Ancestors first founded the Colony) in prosecuting & maintaining their Rights at their own expense for 30 years past and hitherto in vain; for the matter still lies before His Majesty & Council, waiting a determination.

These two Colonies, My Lord, commenced their settlements nearly at the same time their Charters bear date one year after the other, and they adjoin each other; the Charters are similar, each has a Grant of "all Royal mines, minerals & precious stones" which may be thought a privilege of too much importance for a subject to enjoy. My Lord, these Colonies United which as Twins are so alike in features, temper and disposition, that 'twere pity they should remain separate. For from my knowledge of the people, and credible information from many in each, I am fully persuaded, the better sort of them have long groaned under their motley Administrations, and wish for a deliverance, to be taken more immediately under the Protection of the Crown. These two consolidated might become as respectable a Royal from his first election in 1642 till May, 1660, when he was elected deputy governor. In this office he continued ten years, till May, 1670, when his infirmities induced him to retire from public life. He died in 1672 or 1673, aged 72. At the request of the general court he drew up and published a brief history of the Pequot war. It is printed in Increase Mather's Relation of troubles by the Indians, 1677, and has been also republished, more correctly, under this Title: — "A Brief History of the Pequot War: especially of the memorable Taking of their Fort at Mistick in Connecticut in 1637. Written by John Mason, a principal Actor therein, as then chief Captain and Commander of Connecticut Forces. With an Introduction and some Explanatory Notes by the Reverend Mr. Thomas Prince. — Boston: Printed and sold by S. Kneeland and T. Green in Queen Street, 1736." 2 Massachusetts Historical Collections, VIII., 120. — Ed.

Government as any on the Continent. The Country in both has a rich soil, abounds in Timber, fit for ship building; the Country upon the whole in my esteem superior to any I have seen in my travels from Boston to Virginia. But it must be confessed as to the people, it would require a Gentleman of very extraordinary qualifications and abilities to adventure upon the first arduous task for modeling them into due subordination and decorum.

I humbly entreat your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s pardon for trespassing thus much upon your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s time and Patience. I flattered myself that some account of the present as well as former temper and circumstances of these two Colonies might not be unacceptable to me in your Lord<sup>d</sup>'s high Departm<sup>t</sup> and conclude with the assurance, that I am with the most profound respect—My Lord,

and obliged humble servant

Lords of Trade to Governor Tryon.

[New-York Entries, LXVIII., p. 516.]

Whitehall Feb : 26. 1773.

To Governor Tryon

Sir

We have had under Our Consideration thirteen Bills passed by the Council and Assembly of New York in March 1772, to which you thought fit with great propriety to withhold your assent for the reasons assigned in your Letter to Lord Hillsborough of the 9th of April 1772.

The observations we have to make upon these bills are short, and apply to a very few of them and in order to avoid mistake or unnecessary Repetition, we have annexed to this letter a list of the titles of the Bills in numerical Order.

No 1. Appears to us to relate merely to a regulation of internal œconomy and we see no reason to its being passed into a law provided the duration of it be extended to two years for we concur with you in opinion that the short period of one year is insufficient to carry into execution the powers contained in the Bill.

No 3. Is in our Judgement liable to great doubt both in point of Justice and Policy and we think it therefore necessary that the Ground and Foundation for this Bill should be further explained to us before it is enacted into a law.

No 10. The clause in this Bill enacting that the offence created by the Act, when committed upon the high Seas shall be tried before such Court and in such Manner and Form as in and by an Act of Parliament made in 11th year of King William the 3<sup>d</sup> is directed and appointed is expressly repugnant to an Act of Parliament of the 1st of Queen Anne Stat: 2 Cap 9 which has provided another mode of Tryal for such offence, when committed on the high Seas.

As to the other parts of this Bill they do not appear to be exceptionable and therefore if this provision be omitted you may very properly give your assent to it.

No 11. The provisions made by this Bill appear to us to be of a very serious nature and the general propriety of them very doubtful but there is one part of it by which it is enacted that no person shall be prosecuted indicted or tryed for treason or misprison of Treason committed after a certain day mentioned in the bill unless the indictment be found by a Grand Jury within three years after the offence committed. This appears to us highly improper and dangerous and of a nature unknown to the laws of any well regulated State and therefore when we consider the doubtful Policy of the Bill in general and the strong objection that lies in that particular part of it we cannot be of opinion that it would be adviseable for you to consent to its being passed into a law.

N<sup>o</sup> 12. The objection you state to this Bill in regard to its dispensing with the publication of the attachments in the News papers is certainly well founded and however unexceptionable it may be in other respects it ought not to be passed into a law in its present Form.

No 13. We are clearly of opinion that the notice of sixteen weeks previous to the Sale of a mortgaged estate is much too short but we do not concur with you in opinion that the clause that bars the equity of redemption in certain cases is objectionable on the grounds you state on the contrary as the Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery is only taken away in case of bona fide Sale in consequence of an express power give by the Mortgager and that too when the Mortgager is of the age of 25 We think that the power of the Court ought not in this case ever to have existed and that the exertion of it is properly taken away and as we conceive, that as the law now stands the Court of Chancery is at liberty in every case to entertain a bill where Fraud or Misbehavior is charged, that appears to us to be fully sufficient; and therefore if the time of notice can be altered from sixteen weeks to six months we see no reason why you may not very properly give your assent to this Bill.

With regard to the rest of the Bills they do not appear to be exceptionable in any light and we think you may consistent with your duty give your assent to them. We are

Whitehall, March 3. 1773.

I have received your several Dispatches numbered from 7 to 13. (N<sup>o</sup> 6. is still wanting) and have laid them before the King.

A well regulated Militia is certainly a very constitutional establishment and it will be a satisfaction to me to find that the act passed by the legislature of New York for that purpose has been framed in such a manner as to be liable to no objection; at the same time it does not appear to me that this is in the present moment, so much an object of attention as to require any new or particular managements, that may either induce the necessity of greater burthens upon the people, or divert them from the pursuit of those more useful arts, which ought to be cultivated in times of so great public tranquility.

I have already signified to you the King's commands concerning the purchases made of the Indians in virtue of Licenses granted by you for that purpose, and I must confess to you, that I see no grounds to depart from the opinion which I humbly submitted to His Majesty upon that subject. Had the question been, whether those purchases should have been made with or without a License, I should have readily adopted every argument you urge upon the proposition considered in that light; and I as readily agree with you in opinion, that you had no reason to apprehend, there was any other restraint in respect to such purchases, than what is contained in the Instructions to which you refer; but when I consider that by those Instructions you are expressly forbid to grant Licenses to any one person for more than a Thousand acres, I lament that I am not able to agree with you in thinking, that you were acting in conformity to those instructions, in consenting to the purchases made at this late Congress.

With regard to the grants heretofore made by the Govern<sup>r</sup> of Canada adjacent to Lake Champlain, and by the Gov<sup>r</sup> of New Hampshire to the west of Connecticut River, I do not conceive that the titles of the present claimants or possessors ought to have been discussed or determined upon any argument or reason drawn from a consideration of what were or were not the ancient Limits of the Colony of New York. Had the soil and Jurisdiction within the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of New York been vested in proprietaries as in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Massachusets

Bay or other Charter Govern<sup>ts</sup>, it would have been a different question; but when both, the soil and jurisdiction are in the Crown, it is I conceive, entirely in the breast of the Crown, to limit that Jurisdiction and to dispose of the property in the soil in such manner as shall be thought most fit; and after what had passed, and the restrictions which had been given respecting the claims, as well on Lake Champlain, as in the district to the west of Connecticut River, by which the King had reserved to himself the consideration of those claims, I must still have the misfortune to think, that no steps ought to have been taken to the prejudice of the claimants under the original Titles. At the same time confident of your integrity and impressed with the most favourable sentiments of your conduct, so far as rests upon the Intention, I will not fail to do the fullest justice to the explanation of it, contained in your letters upon this subject, and there is no one of your friends that will be more forward than myself to bear testimony of the sense I have of your zeal for the King's service, or more ready to concur in any proposition, that may induce the conferring upon you such marks of the Kings Favour, as shall be judged adequate to your great merit. Order in Council prohibiting all Grants of Land until otherwise instructed.

At the Court at S<sup>t</sup> James's the 7th day of April 1773.

PRESENT—	The KINGS MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY
Lord President	Earl of Rochford
Earl of Suffolk	Earl of Dartmouth
Earl of Sandwich	Lord Mansfield

WHEREAS it has been represented to his Majesty that the State and Condition of his Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in America do both in Justice and Expediency require that the Authority for granting Lands, contained in the Commissions and Instructions given to his Majesty's Governors in the Plantations, should be further regulated and restrained, and that the Grantees of such Lands should be subjected to other Conditions than those at present prescribed in the said Instructions: His Majesty having taken the same into his royal Consideration is pleased with the Advice of his Privy Council to order, And it is hereby Ordered that the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, do take into their immediate Consideration the Powers and Authorities for granting Lands contained in the Commissions and Instructions to his Majesty's Governors in the Plantations, and that the said Lords Commissioners do represent to his Majesty at this Board, such Alterations as they shall think fit and necessary to be made therein—And his Majesty is hereby further pleased to Order that in the mean Time, and until his Majesty's further Pleasure is Signified, all and every his Majesty's Governors Lieutenant Governors or other Persons in Command in his Majesty's Colonies in North America who are entrusted with the Disposal of his Majesty's Lands in the said Colonies, do forbear upon Pain of his Majesty's highest Displeasure and of being immediately removed from their Offices, to issue any Warrant of Survey, or to pass any Patents for Lands in the said Colonies, or to grant any Licence for the Purchase by private Persons of any Lands from the Indians, without especial Directions from his Majesty for that Purpose, under his Majesty's Signet or Sign Manual, or by Order of his Majesty in his privy Council; excepting only in the Case of such Commission and Non Commissioned Officers and Soldiers, who are entitled to Grants of Land in virtue of his Majesty's Royal Proclamation of the 7th October 1763, to whom such Grants are to be made and passed in the Proportions and under the Conditions prescribed in his Majesty's said Proclamation.

Whitehall. April 10. 1773.

Sir

I have received and laid before the King your several Dispatches numbered from 14 to 20. His Majesty having upon a consideration of the case of John Thorpe<sup>1</sup> been graciously pleased to extend his Royal mercy towards him; I have transmitted to the Recorder of London the proper Warrant for that purpose, an attested copy of which I herewith inclose to you, in order that you may take the steps usual on such occasions for the release of the prisoner.

The Petition of the Inhabitants of the Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester, praying to be continued within the jurisdiction of the Government of New York, has been favourably received by the King, and I have the satisfaction to acquaint you that there is not at present any intention of making any alteration in the boundary line on the side of Connecticut River, as settled by his Majesty's order in Council of the 20th of July 1764. I do not well see upon what ground it was, that Mr Jay had his doubts as to the delivery of the Commission and the proceeding thereupon for running the boundary line between New York and New Jersey; I am to presume, however, from the step taken by the Legislature, that there was some foundation in Law for those doubts; at the same time I am very glad, the business has been brought to its present issue, and hope that the final confirmation by the Crown will not meet with any further obstruction.

The papers inclosed in your Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 19. respecting the proceedings in the case of Col Renslaer's petition, are so voluminous that I have not yet had time to peruse them; but I must not omit to say to you, that your conduct on that occasion appears, in the general view I have of the business, to have been just and proper in every respect, and I have not failed to represent it to the King in that light—

Whitehall. 10. April 1773.

Sir.

The Lords of Trade, having in a report to the Lords of the Committee of Council, stated several considerations and propositions respecting the claims of property, and possession of lands lying between the River Connecticut, and a supposed similar curve line at the distance of 20 miles from Hudson's River, His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has been pleased, upon a Report from the said Committee, to approve the several propositions recommended by the Board of Trade, and I have received his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Commands to give such directions to you as may be necessary thereupon. But as the carrying those propositions into effect depends upon the consent thereto of many persons having different interests in, and claims to the Lands, and upon their acquiescence therein, and as there are, I conceive, many Facts and circumstances which have never yet been stated, that if not attended to may create difficulties that will render the whole plan abortive, I think it fit, before I transmit to you His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s final Instructions upon so delicate and difficult a matter, to state to you what those propositions are, and to desire your full and candid sentiments thereupon

The objects that are stated to deserve attention in the consideration of this business are :

First, those Townships lying in this district between the River Connecticut and the line abovementioned which were originally settled and established under grants from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of Massachusetts Bay in virtue of their Ancient Charter.

Secondly, Those Grants of Land within the said district, made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York previous to the Grants made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of N. Hampshire.

Thirdly, Those grants, which, having been originally made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New Hampshire, continue in the same state, or have been confirmed, by grants from New York, as also those grants which have since been made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York of Lands, not within the limits of any of the grants abovementioned.

On the ground of these considerations it is proposed: that all claims to lands derived from the grants of Townships heretofore made by the Province of Massachusetts Bay, should be established and confirmed, and the present proprietors quieted in their possessions, and that all grants whatever, made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York within the limits of the said Townships, being in their nature oppressive and unjust, should be set aside, but that the persons claiming possessions under those grants should upon conditions of their quitting such claim, receive grants under the seal of New York upon the like Terms and free of all expense, of an equal number of Acres in some other part of the District lying between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut. And that in cases where any actual improvement has been made, the possessor should receive fifty acres of waste lands for every three acres that have been so improved.

That all other Grants of Lands made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York within the district abovementioned antecedent to any grants made by the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New Hampshire, be confirmed, provided it shall appear, that possession hath been taken and improvement made thereon.

That all Townships laid out within the said district, either by the Governors of New Hampshire or New York, and which do not include Lands within the limits of some antecedent Grant, be established as Townships, according to the limits expressed in their respective Charters, and that all persons possessed of shares in those Townships, whether as original Grantees or by Inheritance or conveyance, and upon which shares actual settlement and Improvement have been made, be quieted in such possession, without being bound to any other condition of quit rents or otherwise, than what is contained in the original Grant.

That some short and effectual mode be established, by Act of Legislature or otherwise, for ascertaining by the Inquest of a Jury, the state of possession, settlement and Improvement, upon all lands within the said district, claimed under grants made by the Govern<sup>rs</sup> of New Hampshire or New York, and that all such Lands, which shall by the verdict of such Jury appear never to have been possessed or improved, as also all other Lands, which have not been granted, be disposed of in such manner as the King shall think fit to appoint for the disposal & granting of waste lands, within the Province of N. York, provision having been first made for an equivalent to such of the Claimants of Land, under Grants from New York within the old Massachuset's Townships, in manner as before directed, and also for making good to the Commissioned and non Commissioned Officers and Soldiers, the amount of their several allotments, under such warrants of Survey as they may have already received, in consequence of the Royal Proclamation of 1763.

These, Sir, are in general the Propositions which have been suggested by the Board of Trade, and approved by His Majesty in Council, and it will be a great pleasure to me to find by your Report that they are satisfactory to all parties, and can be carried into execution without difficulty or Discontent.

I am etc.

[Plantations General (S. P. O., No. 4.) CCLIX.]

Whitehall 10th April. 1773.

Sir

The information of the present state of affairs in your Department, contained in your Despatch of the 26th December No 2, is of very great importance. A general alliance and confederacy of the Savages, by whatever means it is brought about, has, as you truly observe, a very unfavorable appearance, and will most probably be attended with very dangerous consequences

Every circumstance stated in your letter, induces an apprehension, that such a plan of confederacy is in greater maturity than I at first conceived, and that we may probably be soon involved in the dreadful consequences of an Indian War.

It is true that by a detection of the different Channells through which the Indians pursue this favorite object, some advantage will be gained, and many of their designs may be frustrated and therefore you can not be too attentive to what passes amongst them; but I still fear, that, unless the ground of their jealousy & discontent could be effectually removed, which I am sensible it now can not, an Indian War is an evil which sooner or later we must submit to; and the only comfort I have under this apprehension is in the assurance you give me that you shall be able to convince those Indians who are endeavoring to create this Confederacy, that we have a sufficient number who are well attached to His Majestys Interest, and who will be eager on such an occasion to give testimony of their fidelity and attachment

I am &c.a.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLIX. ]

Johnson Hall April 22. 1773

My Lord

In consequence of my Transactions last year & proceedings which I transmitted in October to your Lordship, the cheif Sachems & principal Warriors of the Six Nations arrived here the 6th Instant and laid before me the issue of their proceedings since that time, a Copy of which I have now the honor to enclose to your Lordship

Their first step was to send Belts to the Emigrants from their confederacy living on Ohio, who being removed to so great a distance, and residing in the Neighbourhood of disaffected Tribes that are no real friends to the Six Nations became alienated from the latter, followed other councils & were guilty of many irregularities, they were therefore required to remove from thence, and settle near their own confederacy, which at their present distance can not be made accountable for their own actions, they then called a Council at Onondaga, where they at length brought the Senecas to a sense of their misconduct, and obtained from them the strongest assurances that they would in future pay due regard to the true Interests of the Confederacy, which they have likewise repeated to me, and the whole have united in declaring their resolution, to send once more to those troublesome Nations about the Ouabash and in case it is disregarded to manifest their attachment to the English by bringing those people to a due submission, and that they will without delay hold a General Congress on all these points, they likewise spoke much on the irregularities committed in Trade and declared them to be a principal cause of most of the late disturbances. I have in former letters to His Majestys Ministers pointed out the evil occasioned by the residence of those emigrants from the Six Nations in the midst of a disaffected & troublesome people, who dislike a Confederacy on whom they have been so long dependent, and seduce their people whenever it is in their power, and who are perpetually forming alliances for very bad purposes, But whatever steps are taken for War by the Indians in the Northern Department (particularly to the Northward of Virginia) they can have little effect so long as the Six Nations are unanimous, and preserve their fidelity, Indeed the Countenance of the latter would have a greater effect than all their arms, but of this I am not apprehensive whilst due care is taken to preserve them in His Majestys Interest, and greivances removed, their superior importance at present arises in a great measure from their situation next to our portages, & Frontier Settlements, and qualifies them for acting the part of our best friends, or most dangerous enemies. From these considerations, the attachment of the Senecas is of the greatest consequence particularly of the upper Senecas who alone have been suspected, they lye nearest to our grand communications and the Portage near Niagra, they are near as numerous as all the rest of the Six Nations and they lye next to other Nations who thro' means of the Emigrants endeavor to render them discontented. Indeed one half of the Senecas have behaved with great fidelity, but the Example of the Rest may have an evil effect upon them, & this conduct of the upper Senecas will not at all appear surprizing on perusing the accounts I have formerly given of its motives and Causes. In short they had always emissaries from, and were loaded with favors by the French as appeared clearly by the Books of accounts which fell into my hands when I had the honor to take possession of Niagra, which very important Fortress I beleive we should have found it very difficult to reach, much less to reduce with so small, an army, & without a single vessel on Lake Ontario, but for the secrecy and fidelity of the Senecas at that time, who having had a little misunderstanding with the French, I took care to improve it by shewing them the many advantages they would derive from its being reduced, and by Promises concerning fair Trade &c<sup>a</sup> which altho' I was authorized to make, I am sorry to say it was never yet in my power to perform with effect. For all these reasons, I was well pleased to hear the Senecas give me such assurances as they have lately done & shall do all in my power to improve their present disposition, as it will induce the rest of the confederacy to act with more spirit, and strengthen their attachment to us, when they find that their advice has succeeded with the upper Senecas & that their Interests are no longer separate—and as I purpose to hold a congress with the Shawanese Delawares Hurons &c<sup>a</sup> next month I shall then endeavour to put a stop to their pernicious practises with the Six Nations Emigrants &c. as well as to other more dangerous matters, after which I shall do myself the honor of writing to your Lordship

I have the honor to be with the highest Esteem—My Lord

Your Lordships most obed<sup>t</sup>

& very humble Servant

Teyawarunte Speaker of Onondaga addressed Sir William Johnson on behalf of all the Six Nations present and after performing the Ceremony of Condolence according to the usual form delivered—
3 Strings of Wampum

Sir William then after acquainting them that he was unwilling to give them any delay in proceeding to business repeated what they said, as is usual, and then returned the ceremony of condolence on the parts of the English in due form, after which he delivered them

3 strings.

Sir William then added that as they had been detained for some days untill all their chiefs came to the Council fire, & as the Customary Forms were now finished, he was ready, and desirous that they should proceed immediately to business.

Teyawarunte then, on behalf, of the rest, told Sir William, that agreeable to his desire they were ready, and would immediately proceed to business. He then repeated sundry past transactions particularly Sir Williams speech of October last respecting their Conduct towards the Twightwees, Piankashaws, &c, and assured him that the Six Nations had paid due regard thereto, & would faithfully deliver their Sentiments to him, to which they begged he would pay due attention.

Gave a Belt of 6 Rows

He then proceeded

Brother Warraghiyagey

We have thought very seriously on your former speech, wherein you pointed out to us the many ill consequences that must attend our People's entering into foreign alliances or associating in Councils with those who have not paid due regard to their engagements, or who were not of our natural confederacy—We have since taken this into full consideration among ourselves, and we think your advice so wholesome, and friendly, that we are now sensible of the errors into which some of our Nations were running, and have taken measures accordingly to prevent it by withdrawing from the Councils and Politicks of these people. You may therefore depend that it is the unanimous determination of all our People to follow your advice

A Belt of 5 Rows

Brother Warraghiyagey.

We are all very thankful to you for reminding us in your former speech of our ancient Customs, and pointing out to us the impropriety of the Conduct of some of our People in carrying on private Transactions and neglecting the proper Fire Place. We are now fully sensible of all this, and unanimously resolved to pay due regard to what you have said, by avoiding any bad connections, and by the openness of our conduct, to which end, we shall undertake nothing without your knowledge and we flatter ourselves that we shall act mutually together upon this occasion in preserving entire all past engagements

Brother

We have taken notice of your having pointed out to us those things in which some of us have erred, and followed evil councils without considering our true Interests, and of your recommending it to the Mohawks, and Onondagas, as elder Branches of the Confederacy to bring the Senecas to a due sense of their Inattention to its true Interests.—We thank you very kindly for your advice, and do assure you on behalf of the Senecas, whose chiefs are here present, that it has had the desired effect, and that they are heartily sorry for their imprudent Conduct, which was wholly owing to Agustarax the old Chief (now deceased) who turned his face the wrong way and did not act as the Door to our confederacy to the Westward; but the Senecas now assure you that they will no longer be misguided but keep their face towards the great Council fire at Onondaga, and this Place, and set a good example to the rest by listening only to you, and their own confederacy, and taking care that the Door, to the Westward be not kept continually open to receive all bad News, as has been the Case— We likewise assure you on behalf of the whole Confederacy that we shall pursue the measures we have already taken for bringing our People from the scattered villages within the Pale of the Confederacy, to which end we have sent to Kayashota the Chief on Ohio, and the People there to direct them to pay due regard to what was recommended to them, and in this we declare that we are sincere of which the Senecas give you assurance by this Belt

We embrace with pleasure your advice to cultivate the friendship of the English, and strengthen the union between us—be assured we shall testify to all nations, our firmness therein, pay due regard to all our old engagements with you, and bring any offenders amongst us to a sense of their duty—Thoroughly persuaded that you speak for our Interest and having for many years experienced your knowledge of all our Nations, and your capacity to advise us to what will best tend to our Happiness, we likewise by this Belt assure you on behalf of the Warriors, that they are determined to abide by, and enforce what we here promise, and to follow your good council, requesting that you will continue to us your advice, and assist us in the undertak<sup>g</sup>.

Brother

As soon as the Messengers return from our People on Ohio, we shall then as an unanimous body call a General Council at our own Great Fire Place at Onondaga and summon the Twightwees Piankashaws and other troublesome Nations to appear and answer for their conduct—we have already called upon them twice, and agreeable to our own ancient customs shall do so the third time, before we strike: but should they then neglect us, you may be assured we shall fall upon them, and shew them their folly, and our attachment to the English, who we believe have suffered much from them to the Southward; and to give them an opportunity of making proper atonement, we prefer this delay to any harsh measures, unless we find them irreclaimable.—But, Brother, we must observe to you, and we request it may be seriously considered that the misconduct of these Nations is much owing to the English themselves for these Nations were never hearty, and some of them, not even pretended friends to the English. Yet the English Traders and also the French have of late years rambled in great numbers all over this Country, for the sake of Gain, and are but too often guilty of frauds which inflame their resentment. In the French time, their Traders rambled in that manner, they were often plundered, and killed; but the French did not resent it, knowing it to be their own faults—And we must again remark, as we have often done lately, that there is no certain way of preventing this, but by having fixed Posts, and proper Regulations for the Traders. whilst these, there were seldom any Outrages, the Indians were better pleased, and the Traders had Profit enough—we heartily wish that you would consider these things as matters of great importance to the general Peace

Brother

When we first saw the White People and fastned their ship to the great Tree, the Band of our Union was a fair Trade. When we strengthened our Alliance with the English, and fastned their ship with an Iron chain (there being one afterwards made of Silver) Trade was our mutual object, and in most subsequent Treaties, it was provided that Trade should be plentiful and that we should not be cheated. The Places of Trade were few, and the Traders were all well known;—the like promise was made to us whenever Canada should be reduced, for a time it went on pretty well, but of late the Traders go about where they please, and sell at the most exorbitant Rates, besides following us to our hunting Grounds to take advantage of our people by means of Liquor the bring with them. Of all this the Indian Nations complain; for as they live by hunting, it becomes a more heavy greivance to them, than it would do to others. we have often complained of this, but we find no redress, and therefore if these repeated Impositions obstruct our good intentions the fault is not ours. Brother we beg you will consider our Case, so as that the Governors concerned may do what has been promised, we must likewise sollicit the favor of the General that bothe he and you may lay our Hardships before the King, who I trust will releive us. In this hope we now on behalf of all our confederacy, renew, strengthen and brighten the Covenant Chain and the Senecas particularly assure you that they and all their Dependants, do now take hold of it, and brighten the same, firmly resolving to contribute all their endeavours, in conjunction with the rest of the Confederacy to keep it bright, hoping that you will be assisting therein for our mutual Interest and the preservation of Peace A large Covenant Chain Belt with 12 Squares, 11 Rows.

Sir William answered them that he had given due attention to what they had said, and would give them an answer there tomorrow, then gave them Pipes, Tobacco and some Liquor, after which the withdrew to their several Encampments

At a Congress with the Six Nations Held at Johnson Hall on Friday April 9th 1773.

PRESENT — as before

Sir William Johnson addressed the Indians as follows viz.

Brethren of the Six Nations

I have heard and fully considered all you said to me yesterday, and am glad you remember so well my Speech of last Autumn. As the purport of your three first Belts is nearly the same I answer them with this Belt, assuring you that the regard you say you have paid to my advice & admonitions is highly pleasing to me, and as I advised you to shake off all connections which were foreign to your true Interests, so I expect that it will appear by your actions, that you have done so, which you will find to be to your advantage A Belt

Brothers

It gives me great satisfaction to hear that the Mohocks, and Onondagas agreeable to my advice, have brought the Senecas the third elder Branch of their Confederacy to their proper senses, in which, through the advice of the rest, and the good Councils I shall give them, I hope they will remain, and I am well pleased to hear the same strengthened by their present declaration, and Promises — I am not ignorant, that Aguastarax & several others of that Nation, sought Interests foreign to yours, and that he was highly criminal in sending and receiving bad Belts, acting therein as your general Enemy, though it was his duty, as the Western Door of the Six Nations, to take care that nothing dangerous should enter. At the same time, I do not yet find much satisfaction concerning those bad Belts which certainly are still lurking some where, and which I expect to see very soon to confirm my opinion of the Senecas good intentions You act very wisely in the Steps you have taken to bring your straggling people within the immediate influence of your confederacy, as they are at present exposed to bad advice and negligent of your directions. I persuade myself that Kayashota, their chief will cooperate with you therein, and I hope to see it soon effected. A Belt.

Brothers

I hear with satisfaction that you repeat your resolution of bringing all refractory members of your confederacy to order, that you will act with firmness, and that you appear thoroughly satisfied that my advice is wholesome, and good, and I am greatly pleased to hear the Declaration of the Warriors to support & strengthen the same, which I expect they will do with becoming spirit, according to the design intended A Belt

Brothers

You tell me that as soon as all matters are settled with your people at the Ohio you will call a general Council at Onondaga, and summon the Twightwees and their adherents to attend the same for the last time. I do not doubt, but that in this, you imagine you act right, and agreeable to ancient custom; but you must be sensible that I do well know your ancient customs, that I cannot be mistaken in them, having committed them all to writing an age ago, when they were better understood than they are at present, and from which I assure you, that there is no necessity of your using so much delicacy with people, who so little deserve favor from your hands, especially as you are in a great measure accountable for the actions of those who have been always deemed your dependants:—and perhaps it were better that you brought them to reason, than by tolerating their depredations to expose them to the powerful arm of the English, who will certainly no longer suffer them to Act as they have done with impunity. Whatever therefore you do, should be done quickly before the People are so involved in guilt, that the resentm<sup>t</sup> of the English cannot be restrained.—I can hardly think that their conduct is merely owing to abuses in Trade, but rather to a malevolent spirit and evil Communication—and as to the establish<sup>m</sup> of Posts for Trade I have long since acquainted you that His Maty has left the Trade free, and open with a view, that you should find plenty of Goods: at the same time that he recommended it to each of the American Governments to fall upon such Regulations, as would prevent any abuses therein which they promised to do, and which I have often recommended, and I shall still continue as far as is in my power, to recommend the necessary Establishments for that purpose A Belt

Brothers

I am well acquainted with the nature, and terms of your first Treaties with the English, and that Trade was always considered as an article of much importance, neither can I find that it was ever withheld from you.

After the reduction of Canada, it was greatly enlarged by the addition of many new Traders, whereby goods were plenty and cheap. Among such a number, there are doubtless some that will deceive you, especially as long as you continue your passion for that liquor, which is the source of so many evils—There is hower no doubt, that when the Colonies are agreed as to the nature of the regulations, Provision will be made against the abuses you complain of, and in the mean time I recommend it to you to endeavour at reforming yourselves by a more moderate use of that liquor, in which case the Traders will bring less into your Country, and you will be more on guard against their Frauds, whilst I use my endeavors as I have hitherto done, to procure you the salutary establishments you require

Your case has been already laid fully before the Governors, and I can assure you that the Governor of this Province, and those of the other Colonies that are concerned in the Regulations for the Indian Trade are heartily disposed to promote every thing in your favor—The General who commands the army, is also much your friend, and as he is shortly to go over the Great Lake, he will I persuade myself, recommend these points to the Great King who is heartily disposed to protect and favor all faithfull Indians

I thank you for renewing & brightening the ancient chain of Friendship, and particularly in that the Senecas are so wise as to take a firm hold of it—Whilst they value themselves and their confederates, I hope they will retain it firmly, and I expect that as they are the western Door they will henceforth take care that they admit nothing among them, that may give offence to those in the middle or at the East end of the Chain, but hearken to good advice and follow it

To promote all this, I do now on behalf of the Great King and his subjects Renew, strengthen and brighten this Chain assuring you that it shall be held fast and kept bright on the part of the English and that it shall last for ever, if you do your parts to preserve it. I hope you have too much sense of its value to expose it to any danger and that you will treasure up my advice as essential to your happiness.

Brother

We thank you for what you have done and for acquainting us with the good inclination of the Governor of this, and the other Provinces. We are sorry that the General, who has been so long known, and so kind to us is going away, as we have a great friendship for him. At the same time we think it will be a good opportunity for laying our Greivances before the Great King, and we hope the General will continue his friendship to us when he gets over the Great Lake, from the Success of which we have much expectat

Saturday April 10 The Indians being all assembled. Seriohana Cheif of the Senecas of Chenussio then addressed Sir William Johnson

Brother Warraghiyagey

If we were not sufficiently explicit regarding the bad Belts, it was really because we thought it needless, as they are no longer of Force, nor shall they ever rise to disturb the peace. It is very true that after having made repeated complaints ineffectually concerning the murder of several of our friends to the Southward, as well as at Juniata we were so exasperated, and alarmed lest the English had a general design against us, that some of our People sent Belts thro' the Nations, adviseing them to have the Hatchet in readiness in case of an attack on notice from us—These Belts were sent far South, and one is now in the Cherokee country, but our bad advisers are now dead, and our Resolutions now changed, as a Proof of which we shall immediately send for that Belt, and bring it in case it is not taken up by Kayashuta, as he was directed, and have now entered heartily into the measures recommended by you, and the confederacy, and assure you by this Belt, that we shall faithfully observe the same

A Belt.

Sir William then told the Chenussios, that they were right in making a plain declaration respecting the Belts especially as it was accompanied by assurances of fetching them away and acting a different part in future all which he expected to see fully perform<sup>d</sup> as an atonement for the offence.

He then acquainted them with the intelligence he had just received from the General respecting the Conduct of the Powtawatamies, six of whom, and three Squaws, last December had wounded and attempted to murder M<sup>r</sup> Van Slyck a considerable Trader at St Joseph's killed one of his People, and dangerously wounded an other and that one Indian was killed, and two wounded. That Van Slyck was obliged to fly leaving goods of his and M<sup>r</sup> McComb's of above £1500 value behind them [Note. The French were in fault on the occasion, & particularly that Lauison Chaville a very bad man who was married to a Squaw, encourages these murders]—Sir William observed that the unparalleled ill conduct of those Powtawatamies would no longer pass unresented, and asked them what they thought of it

After some consultation among themselves, they returned their answer declaring their detestation of such proceedings which they said were much owing to the French who ought to be removed out of that country. At the same time, as a proof of their aversion for the Powtawatamies on account of their repeated ill behaviour, they the Six Nations, were ready to resent it, to which end they delivered Sir William a Belt from them to the Powtawatamies to be sent by his express to the Commanding officer at Detroit acquainting these Indians that their conduct towards the English reflected on all the Nations That they advised them immediately to desist and repent heartily of what they had done, otherwise that they the Six Nations would think themselves under the necessity of compelling them thereto by force and that without delay, they therefore desired to have an answer soon.

Sir William told them that he would forward their Belt, as they desired, and after acquainting them that he intended meeting the Shawanees Delawares, and Hurons in May put an end to the Congress, and on Monday following delivered them out the Present.

Johnson Hall April 30. 1773.

My Lord

After finishing the dispatches which accompany this I was honored with your Lordships letter (No 3) of Feb<sup>r</sup> last, from which I am concerned to find that the copy of the Proceedings referred to in my letter of last Nov<sup>r</sup> was omitted to be sent, a circumstance which never before happened to me & which can only be attributed to the peculiar hurry and trouble in which I am involved at the close of every Congress, a Degree of trouble which can not be conceived by those who are not spectators of it

As the general scope of that congress was given in my letter, and as the proceedings of the late one which accompany this are in some measure a recapitulation of the former, but more especially as the Packet will sail by the time this can reach New York, I think it best to forward these without waiting till a copy can be made of the former Transactions, and as it appears necessary immediately to answer your Lordships last Dispatch.

With regard to the acquiescence of the Six Nations on the subject of His Matys Intentions to establish a Government on the Ohio, I am to assure your Ldp that after having (agreeable to my orders) fully acquainted them therewith, they unanimously expressed their satisfaction at the same, and their inclination to support their Grant at the same time I beg leave to observe that the Lands comprised within that proposed Government have never been claimed with any colour of right, and are not more especially in the Southern Parts occupied by any Indians claiming the same and scarcely by any Indians whatsoever.

The advice which I gave the Six Nations to draw their People from the Branches of Ohio, and bring them nearer the Capital residences of their confederacy was chiefly in consequence of the repeated complaints to me that these emigrants were thro' the practices of others perpetually acting contrary to Treaty, and the Maxims of their own people, and who therefore declared that they could be no longer answerable for their conduct, but as my not having been sufficiently particular in describing the actual residence of these Emigrants, has naturally induced your Lordship to consider the scheme for their removal as in some measure affecting the new Government, it is my duty to assure your Lordship that it was not founded on any principle relative thereto, neither can it in any manner affect the same, for the place of Residence of the Emigrants proposed to be removed is far to the Northward of the New Governm<sup>t</sup> upon the upper forks & Branches of Ohio, towards its Head, and on the Northern side thereof, but still too far from the chief Residence of the rest, & the object is purely to weaken the factious of disaffected Tribes, and make the 6 Nations accountable for the conduct of all their own People whose depredations joined to those of their associates have long threatened us with a war, a few Ineians were formerly scattered about the Neighbourhood of Fort Pitt, but all these removed some years ago, and tis on the North side of the Ohio, and for the most part far to the Northward of that River that these Indians reside who have created us any trouble or are likely to do so.

I flatter myself that on due consideration of the foregoing, the design of withdrawing the Six Nations Emigrants will appear in a more favorable point of view but if it should not, I must request to receive the honor of your Lordships farther commands respecting the same.

I have the Honor to be with perfect esteem — My Lord

Your Lordships most obliged & most

New York. 1st May. 1773.

My Lord,

I have the honor to transmit to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> two acts I rejected last Session of Assembly. My reasons for rejecting the Act entitled "An Act for the more easy recovery of the possession of Lands" I viewed as dangerous to the property of the poorer Inhabitants, by extending the right of ejectments so far back as sixty years. This I conceived would place the meaner settlers (who may perhaps have set down on their possessions under very colourable Titles) too much in the power of the proprietors of the exorbitant grants in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, as the doubtful bounds to many of them would give the owners a plea to eject all those settlers, that should come within their computed claims.

The Act entitled "an Act more effectually to call in the Bills of Credit of this Colony, and for Cancelling the same" was objectionable, as coming in my estimation, within the Terms of the second Clause of the Act of Parliament, passed in the fourth year of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Reign to prevent the Emission of paper Bills of Credit etc. in America, as the object of the Bill was to sink all the paper money remaining of the different emissions before the passing of the Act of Parliament, and which has no other credit at present, but the common consent of the Country. I should wish to be honored by Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> by any expedient to call in and destroy the old Bills, as the public faith seems pledged to redeem them, tho' the Laws for that purpose have expired. If my construction of the present act is found to be too rigid, as is the opinion of many Gentlemen here, I hope I may have leave to assent to the passing of the Bill next Session.

My Lord,

I have been honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 5. and agreeable to your Commands have communicated to General Bradstreet the paragraph that related to his Petition for part of the Lands claimed by the Proprietors of the Hardenburg patent.

I esteem myself unfortunate in differing with your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in the mode of defending the Crown's right against the exorbitant claims of that and other large grants. There is but little doubt, but the original proprietors of many of the large Patents within this Govern<sup>t</sup> left their boundaries oftentimes purposely dubious, in order to have the better plea of encroachment on the Indians by setting up extravagant claims to their grants. Encroachments, that in many instances operates now against the Crown where the Indians have ceded their titles to the Sovereign.

I am peculiarly thankful to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> for your earnest recommendation to My Lord president, to obtain a speedy decision to the important disputes respecting the property of Lands within this Govern<sup>t</sup>

I was this morning informed by His Excell<sup>ty</sup> General Gage, that about a fortnight ago, the wind being very boisterous, a Chimney at Crown Point took fire, which communicating itself to the Neighbouring buildings, afterwards to the Ramparts, and at length to the Magazine, blew up one hundred barrels of Gunpowder, and totally destroyed all the Fortification and other buildings in that Garrison. I presume that your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be furnished, by the General, with a particular account of this accident, but it being a principal post on the Frontiers of this Province, I esteemed it incumbent on me to make some mention to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of a circumstance of this nature, when happening within the limits of my Govern<sup>t</sup>, altho' I have had no official notice of that unfortunate affair.

My Lord.

I returned to this City from Connecticut the 22<sup>d</sup> inst.; and have the pleasure to inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that the Commissaries who met at Hartford have amicably and unanimously agreed upon a line of partition between the Govern<sup>ts</sup> of New York and Massachusetts Bay, and the Gov<sup>r</sup> Hutchinson and myself assented to and approved of the same; one of the originals of this agreement with an actual survey of that Part of Hudson's River, which lies opposite, upon a medium course, to the dividing line, I have the honor herewith to transmit to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>. As the earlier the Royal decision is had upon this matter, the happier for both Govern<sup>ts</sup>. I am satisfied that single reflection will be a sufficient motive with your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to press forward this business. It is very probable the parties may not agree to run the line until the Royal confirmation is obtained. I laid the above agreement before the Council Board the 26th when it was unanimously approved.

My journey through Connecticut was made very agreeable by the hospitable attention I received from the Gentlemen of that Country and particularly from Gov<sup>r</sup> Trumbull.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> JONATHAN TRUMBULL, son of Joseph Trumbull, of Lebanon, Connecticut, was born in 1710, and was graduated at Harvard College in 1727. He was chosen Governor of Connecticut in 1789, and was annually elected till 1783, when he resigned, having been occupied for fifty years without interruption in public employments, and having rendered, during the eight years' war, the most important services to his country. At the termination of the contest and on the establishment of the independence of America, he withdrew from public labors that he might devote himself to the concerns of religion and to a better preparation for his future existence. He died August 17, 1785, aged 74. Washington, in a letter of condolence on his death to one of his sons, placed Governor Trumbull among the first of patriots. Allen. — Ed.

The opportunity this expedition gave me of an acquaintance with Gov<sup>r</sup> Hutchinson afforded me real satisfaction. It is a matter of much astonishment to me, that a Gentleman of such genuine worth, probity and decency, of manners, should be made so unhappy in his Govern<sup>t</sup>. Were the public Offices within the Govern<sup>ts</sup> of America at the disposal of the respective Gov<sup>rs</sup>, I am lead to believe, His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s affairs on this side of the water would wear a smother aspect,

New York. 1. June 1773.

My Lord.

By the tenor of Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s letter N<sup>o</sup> 6. I have reason to apprehend my arrangement of the Militia is not entirely approved. The Militia Law I believe is nearly similar to what has been usually passed in this Govern<sup>t</sup>, nor have I made any new arrangement under it, but in the case where Counties by their increase of settlers made it necessary for the conveniency of the Inhabitants to augment the number of the Battalions in some of the Counties. The nine independent Companies formed last year in this City, were not embodied under any express clause of the Militia Law, except one of the Cadet Companies, but purely in virtue of the delegated prerogative of the Crown. And as this Town, by its Situation lies extremely open to the insults of an Enemy, I thought, times of public tranquility were the most leisure (and best) season to form a body that might in time of occasion be of public service. I purpose, however, next session of Assembly to endeavour, under a Clause of the Militia Act, to incorporate into one Battalion seven independent Companies, keeping the two Companies of Cadets, or Governor's Guards as a distinct Corps, under a Coll: Commandant. But this or any other regulation, that may be directed, shall most punctually be obeyed.

Under the consideration of the expense of Arms, Cloaths, and accoutrements, that has attended the forming these Companies, the disbanding them by a Repeal, or a discontinuance of the Militia Law, would cause great disappointment to those who voluntarily entered and equipped themselves for the public service

Whitehall. 2. June. 1773.

Your several Dispatches numbered 21. 22. 23. 24. 25 and 26. have been received, and laid before the King.

I had flattered myself that the disputes concerning Titles to Lands between the Rivers Hudson & Connecticut, and upon Lake Champlain, might have been ended upon some equitable Plan of accommodation; the utmost however that I can now hope for is, that where different Grants have been made by different Governors of the same Land, the validity of the Titles may be tried in the Supreme Court of Justice in the Colony upon some General question that shall comprehend every case, and the suit brought to such an issue, either by a special verdict or otherwise, as that the whole merits may come before His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in His privy Council by appeal.

With respect to the lines of Jurisdiction that are finally to limit the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of New York on the side of New Hampshire and of Quebec, His Majesty's pleasure has been already declared on that head; and as to all lands within the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of N. York for which the Governors of that province have not granted Patents, whether they be waste Lands, or lands claimed under grants from the Gov<sup>r</sup> of N. Hampshire or from the Crown of France or its Officers, the King reserves to himself as a matter appertaining to his own Dignity and Authority, the determination of what may be advisable to be done thereupon; His Majesty however does not think fit that any countenance should be given to claims founded on Indian purchases of the nature of those to which your letter refers, and therefore the utmost those purchasers can hope for is, that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may be induced out of his Grace and indulgence, to consent that they should be repaid their expences out of any monies that hereafter arise by the disposal of those lands upon such plans as will probably soon be adopted.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXV.]

N<sup>o</sup> 35.

New York, June 2<sup>d</sup> 1773.

My Lord.

It gives me real concern, that the motives of my conduct respecting the Indian purchases, at the last Congress, as explained in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 9. have not met with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s approbation. This transaction unhappily affects the Interest of many of his Majesty's subjects who, on the faith and authority of Govern<sup>t</sup>, having expended large sums of money in exploring the Country, and in the purchases and necessary Surveys, and being now disappointed of their Grants, look up to me as the author of their misfortunes, and earnestly sollicit for redress; and indeed with too much justice, as if any error has been committed, I who ought to have understood and pursued the Royal Instructions am alone to blame. But I flatter myself when your Lord<sup>sh</sup> is more fully informed of the course of issuing Grants of His Majesty's Lands, within this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, I shall still have the satisfaction of being entirely justified.

Had I been so fortunate as to have conceived that the objection arose from the License, in not specifying that a Thousand acres only should be purchased for one person, by explaining the occasion of it sooner, I should have spared your Lord<sup>sh</sup> the trouble of this letter.

However uncivilized, there are no people more cautious and deliberate in business, than the Five Nations; and as in a Colony which begins to be so rapidly settled, there must be frequent applications for Grants; if it should be necessary to Negotiate a separate bargain and sale for every Tract of a Thousand acres of Land, there would be no end to the Time, the expense and fatigue of a Congress; and indeed it must become impracticable for the Gov<sup>r</sup> whose presence by a late Instruction is rendered essential, to attend this Branch of his numerous duties without neglecting others.

Besides, as the Indians have no Record but the memory, and no idea of figures or measurement, a misconception of the Boundary in such a multitude of different Tracts, must prove a perpetual source of jealousy and discontent; against which there is no effectual expedient but to consult nature, and to bound their sales by remarkable Mountains and streams of water, or some land mark notorious among themselves, or in some instances by the Magnetic course of the Compass.

Hence has it become usual for the Inhabitants when they incline to purchase to form associations; and after contributing to the expense, to leave it to a few of their Number to manage the business in Trust for the rest, and in their names alone the Petition and License, and the purchase itself are negotiated. The Cession is immediately to the Crown, and the purchasers who advance the money derive no other advantage from it, than a Claim upon the honor and justice of Govern<sup>t</sup>, to a preference in Letters Patent. For this purpose a second Petition is presented praying for a grant, and here the advice of Council is again as necessary as before it had been, to authorize the License. In this stage of the proceedings all the parties interested become petitioners by name, and to each is advised to be granted a Thousand acres and no more. The Surveyor General then receives the Governor's Warr<sup>t</sup> requiring him to Survey for each of those Petitioners a Thousand Acres, and their proportions are united, and laid out in one Tract or Township or in separate lots, as they agree among themselves. The return completed it is presented to the Commiss<sup>r</sup> for laying out the Crown Lands, who are to examine and see that it corresponds with the Instruction; and having given their certificates to that effect, a Warr<sup>t</sup> issues to the Attorney General to prepare the Draft of letters Patent, and this being done and accompanies with his certificate, that they contain nothing contrary to His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> interest, the draft is delivered to the Secretary to be engrossed, and the seal being affixed, it is registered and Docketed in the Auditor Gen<sup>l's</sup> office.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be pleased to observe, that according to this system, which is in all cases (except on a Mandamus) strictly pursued, the Indian Deed makes no part of the Subject's Title, who holds immediately from the Crown; and it is of no other moment, than to satisfy the claim of the Native occupants. It must therefore appear to be immaterial, whether that deed is expressed to be taken for the benefit of one, or many, since it vests no legal right; and none can be obtained but by the Royal Grant, and in the mode which the Instructions prescribe.

I am sensible, that it frequently, and I believe, generally happens, that the purchasers, by making use of the solicitations and names of their Friends, eventually obtain a greater share in the Tract than one thousand acres. But if this is an evil, it is hardly to be prevented. Men of property in a Country where the soil is of little value, must have it in their power to purchase large Tracts, if they chuse this method to raise their families, tho' as the benefit seems, at present, remote, the temptation is not very strong. For my own part, I should think it good policy rather to encourage than to check such a spirit. The Subordination which arises from a distinction in Rank and fortune, I have found from experience, to be friendly to Govern<sup>t</sup>, and conducive to the strengthening the hands of the Crown, and perhaps it will prove the only counterpoize against a levelling and Republican spirit, which the popular constitutions of some Colonies, and the Temper of their Inhabitants, who are spreading themselves throughout this Continent, so naturally excite.

Precautions against the secret Trusts of Patentees, seems extremely difficult, nor can I think of any other, than to oblige Petitioner to swear that the Grant for which he applies, is for his own immediate benefit, and even that, would not prevent subsequent alienations, but whether the multiplication of oaths is not already one of the great misfortunes of our Govern<sup>t</sup>, and to be dredged as an inlet to perjury and a corruption of morals, seems to deserve consideration.

Having thus laid before your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, a circumstantial detail of the method of appropriating the Crown Lands, permit me to add in my own vindication, that as in granting the lincence and consenting to the Indian Deed, I pursued and adopted the usual practice, so I never entertained the most distant thought I was deviating from my duty in the least circumstance. Embarrassed as I now am, with the purchasers who have parted with their money in a firm reliance upon the authority and honor of this Govern<sup>t</sup>, I entreat your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to intercede with His Maj<sup>ty</sup> that I may be left at liberty to do for them what, religiously appears to me, to be no more than an act of Justice, and which they importunately solicit at my hands. Was I conscious of having erred, or offended, it would be my duty to be silent, and I should not presume to ask this Favor; but as my intentions were upright, and I was acting in the ordinary Course of the Landed Departm<sup>t</sup>, I confess it would give me very great uneasiness and concern to be reduced to the necessity of dismissing those Petitioners & Purchasers without redress or compensation, and I conceive I cannot in honor dismiss them.

I am sorry the conduct of this Govern<sup>t</sup> respecting the Canadian and New Hampshire claims, appears to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in an unfavorable point of light, and altho' the chief of those transactions happened before my Administra<sup>tm</sup> the honor of the Council Board, and the Interests of the Officers and Soldiers, as well as many other of His Majesty's subjects under my care, call upon me to communicate every useful information, which has come to my knowledge on this subject, and this must plead my excuse for troubling your Lord<sup>sh</sup> with a few observations in addition to those which I have already submitted to your consideration.

The Country between the Connecticut River, and the Wood Creek, Lake George and Lake Champlain, had long been the scene of war, and was first rescued from encroachment and obscurity by the conquest of Canada. Natural was it for the Military who were entitled to lands by the Bounty of the Crown, and of which they had the Election by the express terms of the Royal Proclam<sup>tm</sup> of 1763, to fix upon that district, which they considered as won by their valor. Besides, as the rest of the vacant Lands were subject to the Indian claim, the Clause of the Proclam<sup>tm</sup>, requiring that their grants should pass without Fee or Reward, could not have been obeyed, but by complying with their Election. Indeed, I am assured, that L<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Colden, who then presided represented those applications to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Secretary of State, with his opinion of the Canadian claims, intimating, that he should withhold the Grants, for a limited time in order to receive the King's Commands, after which, being furnished with no directions to the contrary he proceeded to affix the seal.

The prohibitory instruction on occasion of the Petition of the New Hampshire claimants, was not framed or communicated till the year 1767, long after the military rights had been located & surveyed, and in general appropriated by Patents. Had it accompanied the Royal decree of the 20th day of July 1764. which determined the controverted boundary between New York and New Hampshire there is no doubt, but it ought implicitly to have been obeyed; the jurisdiction and Soil as Your Lordship justly observes, being in the Crown and the property at His Majesty's disposal, according to his gracious pleasure. Indeed, had those lands at the time of his Royal adjudication been settled and improved either under Canadian or New Hampshire Grants, it must be admitted that no steps ought to have been taken to the prejudice of the occupants, without His Majesty's directions, and Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will find from the proofs accompanying the cases which I lately had the honor to transmit, that all the Country comprized within the Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester where they now at that time chiefly settled, were reserved for their benefit; and that even to the Westward, and within what remained part of the County of Albany, a suitable provision was made by reserving out of every Grant two hundred acres for each occupant, who had strayed so far within the known limits of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>. If those adventurous people had not encroached within the ancient N. York Grants, there could after so equitable a disposition in their favour, have remained no room for uneasiness or discontent; but here it was not in the power of Govern<sup>t</sup> to protect them, if it would have been just in itself. A small Military grant of 2000 acres in Bennington, included a few of the settlements under N. Hampshire, but it was surveyed and returned as I am informed before the Govern<sup>t</sup> was apprised of the circumstances of that part of the Country, which induced them in tenderness to the occupants to make the abovementioned provision for their security.

I hope, My Lord, that these considerations will have weight in removing any unfavourable impressions with respect to general conduct of His Majesty's servants within this Govern<sup>t</sup> on occasion of a contest, which has introduced so much trouble and disorder, & which I anxiously wish for a happy termination.

It is with the warmest gratitude that I return Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> my sincere thanks, for the honorable mention you are pleased to make of my zeal for His Majesty's service, Your favorable sentiments of the uprightness of my intentions, and your disposition to recommend me to the King's favor

I am—etc.

Sir,

I am honoured with your letters of the 14th wishing to be informed, on whose behalf, and on what question, I desire to have Counsel heard against the Canadian Grants on Lake Champlain.

You will be so good as to acquaint their Lord<sup>sh</sup>s, that I would have Counsel heard on behalf of the grantees under New York Govern<sup>t</sup>, who are composed in a great measure of half pay Officers, that have received grants, agreeably to His Majesty's Proclamation. And I am instructed to take care of the interests of these Grantees, not only so far as they are concerned, but also so far as the territorial rights of the Province may be affected by the French claims.

I beg leave to be heard by Counsel (if their Lord<sup>sh</sup>s should not expressly confine the Counsel) to all such matters, as they, or the parties shall advise as proper and effectual towards invalidating the said French Grants, and establishing the rights of the New York Grantees—

I am with great regard

Sir

Representation of the Lords of Trade to the Committee of the Privy Council.

[ New-York Entries, LXIX., 9.]

My Lords,

In obedience to His Majesty's Order in Council of the 5th of March last We have taken into Our Consideration the Petition of Major General John Bradstreet setting forth amongst other things that the Petitioner for himself and in behalf of others his associates in the year 1769 in the Presence of Sir Henry Moore then Governor of New York and with the approbation of Sir William Johnson Superintendent of Indian Affairs did in His Majesty's name purchase for a valuable Consideration of the Tribe of Aughquagey Indians at a public Meeting of the said Indians held for that purpose by His Majesty's said Governor agreeably to the several Rules and Forms in such case prescribed by His Majesty's Royal Proclamation a large Tract of Land therein particularly described containing by estimation 300,000 Acres and humbly praying for the Reasons therein contained that His Majesty will be graciously pleased to grant and confirm to the Petitioner and his Associates under the Great Seal of Great Britain the said Lands to be holden under the like reservation of Quit Rent &c as in Case of Lands purchased by Sir William Johnson and confirmed to him or in such other manner as to his Majesty shall seem meet.

This is the substance of Major General Bradstreet's<sup>1</sup> Petition but before we enter into any discussion of his particular Case it will be necessary in General to premise to your Lordships that upon full and early Conviction of the many prejudicial Consequences which were found to result from the practice of obtaining Grants and Concessions of Lands from the different Tribes and Nations of Indians it was considered as a matter of Great Importance both to the Interest of the Crown and the welfare of the Provinces within whose Limits such Grants had been obtained to restrain by particular Instructions all persons purchasing Lands of the Indians without special and particular licence for that purpose from the Governor of the Colony within which the lands should lye and this Policy in General obtained throughout the Provinces till his Majesty's Proclamation of the 7th of October 1763 put a more effectual stop to the practice by an express prohibition strictly forbidding any private person to presume to make any Purchase from the Indians of any Lands reserved to the said Indians within those parts of the Colonies where his Majesty had thought proper to allow Settlement this being the case whether we consider the circumstances of the purchase which the Petitioner alleges to have finally concluded with the Indians in the year 1769 or advert to what has been offered in his behalf of his having enter'd into agreement with them during the course of the War previous to his Majesty's Proclamation it does appear to us that proceeding has been such as can neither in the one instance be reconciled to the Spirit and intent of his Majesty's Instructions subsisting before the Proclamation by which all private purchases whatever are forbidden at the same time we cannot omit observing to your Lordship that the present petition goes to a very considerable extent being for a Tract which by Estimation contains 300,000 Acres and we doubt not that your Lordships are well apprized of the objections which operate against recommending or confirming Grants and Concessions to private persons of so exorbitant a nature at the same time it is a justice we owe to the Character of Major General Bradstreet to observe that thro' a long Course of public Service his merits have been such as seem to recommend him in a particular manner to the Bounty and Munificence of His Majesty. Having therefore laid before your Lordships this together with every other Circumstance which may serve to direct your Judgements in the Case we must submit it to your Lordships to give such advice to His Majesty upon the whole as your Lordships duly weighing the Matter of the Petition on the one hand and the Merits of the petitioner on the other shall in your Wisdom think expedient.

We are

Governor Tryon to the Earl of Dartmouth.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXV.]

N<sup>o</sup> 37.

New York. 1. July. 1773.

My Lord.

The confidence with which your Lord<sup>sh</sup> is pleased to honor me in your dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 8. as it is a proof of your favourable opinion calls for my gratitude. However difficult and delicate the task, I should be wanting in duty to my Sovereign, and respect to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, if I did not readily obey your commands by communicating without reserve, my candid & undisguised sentiments on so interesting a subject. This appears to me the more necessary, as your Lord<sup>sh</sup> seems to be apprehensive, with good reason, that there are facts and circumstances unstated, the knowledge of which may be found essential to any plan for reestablishing the public tranquility to a province unfortunately involved in disputes with several of the neighboring Govern<sup>ts</sup>.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> is already apprised that the measures recommended by the Lords of Trade cannot be carried into execution without the authority of the Legislature, and you will permit me frankly to declare that I think, I cannot flatter myself with the slightest hope of procuring the concurrence of the Assembly of this Prov<sup>ce</sup> in a scheme so repugnant to the claims of persons who from their numbers and connections have a very powerful influence in the Colony.

With respect to that part of it, which concerns the Land in controversy between this Province & the Massachusetts Bay, I foresee no great difficulties, for the late agreement at Hartford I believe will, if it receives the Royal approbation, happily terminate these disputes, whether they regard private property or public Jurisdiction.

There are four Tracts of Land affected by that Partition, the Manor of Renselaerwyck granted in 1685 the Manor of Livingston in 1686. The Patent of Hosick in 1688. and the Patent of Westenhook in 1708. and I do not learn there are any possessions under either of them to the Eastward of the line agreed upon by the Commissaries.

As these Grants are very extensive and valuable on the western side of the Line and charged with trifling rents and reservations, I have no reason to imagine the New York Patentees will either set up their claims in the Massachusetts's Courts, or seek for a compensation out of any other of the waste lands that belong to the Crown.

It is also very improbable on the other hand, that these N. York Proprietors will meet with any further trouble from the Massachusetts's Claimants, whose titles and possessions on the West side of the line are modern, and whose losses can be abundantly recompensed by the Govern<sup>t</sup> under which they settled, out of the vacant lands of Sagadahock which are comprehended within the Charter.

In the list of claimants under the Massachusetts's Bay, I do not reckon those whose lands were discovered to be on the North side, which was adjudged on the settlement of the controversy between that Prov<sup>ce</sup> & New Hampshire in 1739, to be the North boundary of the Massachusetts's Bay. These composed the Townships of Brattleborough and Putney, and that Part of Hinsdale, which was granted to Coll. Howard, the first settlers of which, upon that determination all acquired new Patents under New Hampshire, esteeming the Massachusetts's title a meer nullity, and those Patents to have issued through mistake. Besides, My Lord, as to Brattleborough and Putney, they are both confirmed under New York, and so Hinsdale might have been, if the occupants, either from an unwillingness to pay the quit-rents, or a slight of their Interest, had not neglected to make themselves and their case known to this Govern<sup>t</sup>, until a part of their Township was granted to Coll: Howard, who brought over the Royal order for a grant of Ten thousand Acres, and agreeable to the priviledges given him in the Mandamus made his Election of that spot.

To me therefore it appears clear, that no person can justly avail himself of a Massachusetts's title out of the line assigned for the North Boundary in 1739. and I submit it therefore to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, whether it will not be inexpedient to excite applications to the Crown for compensations; and to guard agst frauds, I must observe, that as some of the New York Patents extend several miles beyond the partition agreed to at Hartford, an ill use may be made of the generosity of the Plan by a concert between the New York Patentees, and the Massachusetts's Possessors to set up a very extravagant demand of fifty acres for every three that are improved by the latter, beyond the partition, and within the letter of the New York Patents, the Proprietors of which have made no improvements there, as I have already observed, and who, (the extent of their Grant remaining out of controversy considered, with the smallness of the rents they are chargeable with) ought to be content, though they should receive no allowance.

But the chief objection that will be raised against any Law grounded upon the plan proposed by the Lords of Trade will relate to the second and third Articles of it, which respect the disposition of the Country to the Northward of the Massachusetts's Bay.

I presume that their Lord<sup>sh</sup>s were not aware that the curve line they propose for the Western side of that immense Tract which is the object of their Report, will run to the Westward of Lake Champlain, before it reaches the Northern extent of this Prov<sup>ce</sup> in the latitude 45°. But this, My Lord, will be the Fact, for tho' the course of the River from Albany is Northerly to about 3. miles to the North of Fort Edward, yet it then takes a turn for several miles to the Southward of West, and then again a Northerly direction as far as it has been explored, many miles to the westward of the Lakes George and Champlain. And as the River Connecticut on the other side, tends so far to the Eastward of the North as at the 45th degree of latitude to be ninety one miles from Lake Champlain, Your Lord<sup>p</sup> will perceive, that the Report of the Board of Trade must effect a great number of Patents Granted under this Govern<sup>t</sup>, and give a preference to the New Hampshire Claims home to the waters of Lake Champlain, and to lands three times as far west as the Curve line would leave to the Massachusett's Bay, where the intermediate distance between such curved line and the Connecticut River, does not exceed thirty miles; the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut being there not more than fifty miles apart, and were probably thought to keep that distance when the Lords of Trade first conceived the idea of countenancing an extent of the N. England claims to a line so far West as to twenty miles from Hudson's R<sup>r</sup>.

The Patents under N. York within the district distinguish'd by the Report are very numerous, and contain many hundred thousand acres. And as they now belong to an infinity of persons, in and out of the Prov<sup>ts</sup>, & valuable considerations have been paid by the original proprietors, never to be recovered back on account of the changes wh<sup>ch</sup> time has made in their circumstances & situations, how is it possible, My Lord, to frame any Law for the distribution of Justice to the present claimants? or what prospect is there that such a number of persons, of all Ranks, Civil and Military, can be brought to submit to any project to diminish Estates that are held under the Royal Grants—that were bought for large sums, and some of which have been improved, & maintained at a still greater expense? Indeed, My Lord, the task would be a very difficult one, if we had only to deal with the first Patentees, but it has become unspeakably more arduous and delicate, as these lands are now claimed by creditors and bona fide purchasers, under all the modes of alienation, as well as by the original Proprietors and their Heirs.

And that Your Lord<sup>p</sup> may more fully comprehend the reasons that induce me utterly to despair of the co-operation of the Assembly, I beg leave to particularize a few of the many obstacles to the proposed Act, that rise to my view.

First—Loud Complaints will be made of the Crown's reseizing of unimproved lands by those who have had New York Patents since the Royal decision in 1764 for Tracts not before granted by N. Hampshire. For these Proprietors will insist that no advantage can equitably be taken of their unsettled Parcels, since the non improvements are to be imputed to the violence & power of the general opposition of the N. Hampshire Planters in the vicinity—and the justice of their claims to an exemption from the forfeiture seems to be strongly enforced by the neglect of Government to aid them in repelling this violence, which it must be confessed, they have repeatedly implored as essential to their deriving any benefit from their grant; and Secondly; even as to such of the New York Patentees whose claims interfere with prior Grants under N. Hampshire; they too indulge an unshaken confidence in their Titles, and are encouraged in it by the common suffrage of the Colony—May I not be permitted to say more?

The two Provinces contending about their partition, it was referred to the decision of the Crown. The King was pleased in 1764. to declare the West Banks of Connecticut River to be the Eastern boundary of New York, and this considered with reference to the Grant of the Province to the Duke of York in 1664, which conveyed to His Royal Highness all the Lands from the head of Connecticut to Delaware, together with the whole of the River Hudson, which is between them, what room was there for questioning the Right of this Colony to issue Patents for those lands? and being issued, the Patentees will most assuredly assent and maintain the Title in all the Forms in which they can be justified by the Law of that Land.

Thirdly; There are fifteen Townships granted by New Hampshire, and which have been confirmed by N. York. These Proprietors, who above all things, have avoided to give umbrage to the Govern<sup>r</sup>, or disturb the tranquility in both Provinces, must surely be entitled to special indulgencies; but thro' the troubled State of the Country, great Part of these Townships remain still unimproved, and their case will be thought singularly hard, if they are to loose the unsettled parcels.

Fourthly; difficulties will also attend the provision that is to be made for the Officers and Soldiers, who are the objects of the Royal promise in the Proclam<sup>tn</sup> of the 7th of Octob<sup>r</sup> 1763 — I cannot comprehend, in what way the value of their lands and improvements is to be adjusted without expense to themselves; nor by what arguments they ever can be persuaded to dismiss their claims until they are actually vested with the equivalent. Besides, many of these Military Grants are now owned by other persons who have paid for their possessions and will never become volunteers in the cession in expectation of other Tracts, while there is reason to apprehend, that the residue of the Land in the district, out of which they are to be satisfied, (free from claims) is not of sufficient value, its remoteness and quality considered to compensate for the surrender of what they hold by their Patents.

Fifthly; how, My Lord, can the State of the possessions and improvements which are to remain to the Patentees be settled by Inquests in so extensive a Woodland Country— will not the partial prejudices that prevail in the respective Provinces of N. York & N. Hampshire exclude the Inhabitants of both as Incompetent Tryers? and by whom is the expense to be sustained? This will be considerable, for disinterested and fair Jurors, must be brought from distant places. I shall only add, My Lord, Sixthly; that scarce any measure can raise a more General discontent in this Colony, that a Law to vacate Patents for non-settlement—those of which the advantage might be taken are many, and the dread of a precedent of this kind will unite all the Landholders to oppose a project so alarming to their Interest. I will not presume to say, there is no instance, in which the avarice of a Patentee ought not to expose him to the forfeiture on the condition for settlement; but I must nevertheless observe to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that some of these Patentees, plead in excuse that their improvements have been obstructed by the Incursions of the Savages, or by disputes with the neighbouring Colonies, and that it is the general opinion, that the Prov<sup>ce</sup> is improved according to its Population, and that the Burthen of the Quit Rents, is a sufficient spur to sales & cultivation.

I should be happy, My Lord, after showing the improbability of executing the plan proposed by the Lords of Trade if I may be able to suggest any other in its place to answer their Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s benevolent design of appeasing these animosities, which have given so much trouble to the Administration, & daily afford new ground for serious apprehension.

In contemplating the State of this Country, it is material to observe; that there are one hundred and fourteen Tow[<sup>o</sup>]ships of Six miles square granted by New Hampshire, besides those fifteen which have been confirmed by New York; that the Patents under this Prov<sup>ce</sup> to Officers and Soldiers, & others include about six hundred thousand Acres; that many of those grants interfere, and that it is almost impossible to ascertain what part of any N. Hampshire Patent is included in the Grant under N. York, for as N. Hampshire proceeded with precipitancy and without previous Surveys to seize a priority of possession, and thereby countenance their Claim, there is the utmost uncertainty in the description and bounds of these Grants; and it is more than probable that they would be found upon a Survey to interlock with each other, or spread beyond the breadth of the Country in which they are supposed to be contained.

That these Charters, grant Priviledges conformable to the popular Bias of the New England Colonies.

That the Eastern Parts of this Country, comprehend in our New Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester, pay a cheerful submission to this Govern<sup>t</sup>, and that none of the Inhabitants even on the most westerly Parts of the Counties of Albany and Charlotte, where the New York Patents chiefly clash with the New Hampshire grants, are desirous of a change of Jurisdiction for any other reason, than because they conceive hopes of a support of their Charters and claims by the Juries and Courts of Law in that Province.

Whence it results, and more especially as the malady consists in the double Grant of the same lands to different persons, that independent of the original right of this Prov<sup>ce</sup> and the Royal decision in 1764. there are the most cogent reasons for continuing that Country under the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York and suffering the doctrine to prevail, that all the grants within it under the Seal of N. Hampshire are void.

I feel therefore a very sensible pleasure in the reflection that I need be at no pains to assign any reasons to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> against a Revison of the declaration of July 1764, for I collect from Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s correspondence that His Majesty has no intention at present of changing the Jurisdiction.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has doubtless adverted to the smallness of the rents reserved to the Crown by these numerous Charters under N. Hampshire; and it is my duty to observe, that there is more than ground for mere conjecture, that they would under that Govern<sup>t</sup> be totally lost. Issued as they were without Surveys, and for lands described without accuracy, and often clashing with each other, a handle would be made of their uncertainty for the purpose of eluding the payment and performance of the Quit Rents and conditions by a spirit of litigation, which would be restless and active in proportion to the number of Planters in like circumstances, and the popular aversion to all verdicts in favor of the Crown.

I understand it, My Lord, to be a question of Law between the Patentees of both Govern<sup>ts</sup>, whose is the best title? and that if they are obstinate in their claims it must receive a determination in the Courts of Justice. Certainly, both Govern<sup>ts</sup> had not authority to issue grants of the same Lands.

If there is no hope of a decision from the Legislative Authority, the only prospect of a speedy restoration of the common tranquility, must depend upon Govern<sup>ts</sup> prevailing with one or other of the contending Parties, to make voluntary cession of their claims. For reasons to be mentioned in the sequel, I am not to expect that the N. York grantees will come into such a measure; but I do not despair that this event may be effected on the other side, if the present opportunity is speedily embraced. I believe, My Lord, that the claimants under New Hampshire may be induced to throw up their Charters, upon Terms.

The discontented inhabitants of Bennington have declared their readiness to submit to the Royal opinion in this controversy upon an apprehension, that it must one day come before His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in a Court of Errors. The point they hold is, that the order of 1764. settled the Jurisdiction only from that time, and that a prior grant under N. Hampshire is valid.

As these are the most tenacious asserters of that Doctrine and Claim, I cannot help wishing for some new Declaration of His Majesty's mind upon this subject; for if their title should be deemed void, and an immediate submission take place in this Quarter, it will doubtless prevail throughout the whole extent of the controverted Territory. And even upon the supposition that this desirable end should require compensations from equitable considerations, towards the N. Hampshire claimants yet if proper distinctions are attended to, it may be effected without any Tragical consequences to the settlers as persons at a distance and unacquainted with their real State and condition may imagine.

In prosecuting this subject I must first take notice of the disparity between the N. Hampshire Patents & those under New York. The solidity of the latter being uncontroverted in this Colony, and especially those issued after the year 1764; the sales of them commanded high prices, not to mention that these patents cost very considerable sums for the Survey's and Fees; whereas, the suspicious circumstances attending the N. Hampshire Grants rendered them proportionably cheap, & the purchasers of them were considered rather as gaining Adventures than certain and substantial acquisitions

And among these New Hampshire Grants we carefully distinguish between such as are improved, and those which from the little value set upon them, are not only unsettled, but their very situation not accurately known, except in their relation to others, upon which they are described to abutt, and as they stand ranged upon a general Plan of an insurveyed Territory.

Again, My Lord, with respect to the Townships which have the Name of being settled, even these will upon examination be found to be but few, and the improvem<sup>ts</sup> on such slight estimation, that compensating them for their losses out of the unsettled Townships, or the unpatented part of the Country, will require no great proportion of the waste lands of the Crown.

At all events, these waste lands alone will be more than sufficient for the indemnity of all such of the N. Hampshire Grants, as can set up any equitable pretensions to His Majesty's favourable notice, especially as the Crown can besides, ease the Grantee by deferring the payment as well as reducing the quantum of the Quit Rents, and give a still further relief by commanding that the New Patents issue upon moderate Fees to the Officers of the Govern<sup>t</sup>, and without any to His Governor, if this should be thought reasonable.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may rest assured that of all the N. Hampshire Grants interfering with Patents under N. York, there are none considerable for their improvements, except that part of Hinsdale which was granted under the Royal Mandamus to Coll: Howard, and the Township of Bennington, and one or two more in that Vicinity; & I am persuaded, that the main difficulty will lay in satisfying the settlers in these Townships, and that His Majesty's Grace to the other N. Hampshire Grantees will be most gratefully accepted.

To guard against any improper advantage that may be taken of His Majesty's instructions in favor of possessions and improvements, Terms used in the Report of the Lords of Trade, I must not omit mentioning to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that with the Inhabitants of America, they are not restrained to Houses, and Barns and Lands inclosed, and prepared for the Scythe and Plough, but applied often to a Tract of girded Trees surrounded by dry loose brush, and a square Hutt made of unhewn Logs, and covered with Bark.

I am sensible, My Lord, that agreeable to these Hints, the peace of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> is to be purchased at His Majesty's expense, but there seems to be an inevitable necessity for the Sacrifice-

If it be thought to be most eligible for His Maj<sup>y</sup> to take the work into his own hands, without the Legislative aid, which, I fear cannot be had in the Colonies, I hope your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will pardon my importunity in repeating the intimation that its success will depend upon the proper measures being immediately prosecuted. The parties concerned, who, in the present Infant State of this controversy, may now listen to the Royal Voice and overtures, will in a very short time, look only to the Law, for a settlement of their disputes, and when strengthened by numbers, impoverished by Law suits and animated by a concourse of Banditti, whose interest it is to flock to such troubled quarters, the Law itself will loose the authority, and the whole Country become a scene of the wildest confusion, equally destructive to the felicity of the subject, and the interest of the Crown.

But tho' I conceive the restoration of the common tranquility, practicable with some liberality to the N. Hampshire Grantees, yet nothing but a sense of duty prompts me to urge it, foreseeing as I do, that in the execution of the trust, much must be left to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s servants in this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, and that the jealousies of avarice and ignorance of the Petitioning Claimants will render the service neither desirable nor easy.

Before I conclude, and for your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s more ready comprehension of my idea of the State of the Country in dispute, the condition and situation of the Claimants, and what general principles will best suit the exigency of those affairs, I shall, with the utmost deference offer several propositions for your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s attention, to which I confess myself a Convert.

That some more Easterly line be substituted instead of the Curve line proposed; be it a continuation of the line agreed upon at Hartford, or the Western boundary lines of the Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester, dividing them from Albany and Charlotte as established by an Act of our last Session either of which will reduce the object of the Report from that degree of liberality to New Hampshire, so alarming to the Proprietors under New York.

That all the New York Patents within this Govern<sup>t</sup> be declared valid whether they do or do not interfere with prior or subsequent Grants under N. Hampshire.

That all New Hampshire Patents be declared void being destitute of Legal foundation. But that all occupants under New Hampshire Grants not covered by New York Patents, may have confirmations of their Possessions under the Great Seal of this Prov<sup>ce</sup> in such propositions, and upon such terms as His Majesty shall prescribe.

That all occupants under New Hampshire Titles, and within New York Patents, whether the latter be prior or subsequent, have such liberal equivalents out of the waste lands, and such other indulgencies by a suspension of Quit Rents, as His Maj<sup>y</sup> shall think equitable, the situation of these Settlers being the consideration of the greatest hardship & difficulty.

That all persons generally, who shall be found to have made settlements at the time of the Royal order for terminating these differences be considered as bona fide occupants, it being conceived to be impracticable to distinguish them according to the different periods of settling; and that the settlers would not accept of such partial tho' perhaps equitable distinctions.

That a time be limited for all occupants to make their applications to Govern<sup>t</sup>, and in failure to be excluded.

That the terms of the future instructions upon this subject be, as much as possible, absolute and unaccompanied with conditional Clauses, that are dependant on the dilatory declaration or the consent, of the interested Parties.

It only remains to say, that the more speedy the Royal decision, the more liberal the adopted principles, the greater the bounty to those New Hampshire settlers who are within the N. York

Patents, and the more extensive the confidence given to His Majesty's servants of this Government, the more readily will the present storm be dispersed, and a fertile Country be reduced to a State of cultivat<sup>n</sup> and improvement.

Notwithstanding all this, I stand ready to make any experiment with the Assembly which Your Lordship shall be pleased to point out. I am to request in the mean time that your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will excuse any imperfections in these sentiments as they proceed from a sincere desire to give you all the information in my power with that candour, which your commands and the confidence you honor me with, call for. The subject being unusually delicate and difficult, I have made the proper enquiries respecting it, but in the use I have made of the information procured, I have preserved the free exercise of my own judgement, and the whole is humbly submitted to His Majesty's Great wisdom, and the sagacity of his Ministers.

I am, with the greatest respect and esteem

Sir

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatches numbered from 27 to 32 inclusive.

Your attention to the provision of the several Acts of Assembly offered to you for your assent, is very commendable, and the King approves your having rejected the act for the more easy recovery of the possessions of Lands and also that for calling in & cancelling the Bills of Credit, for the reasons assigned in your letter of the 1st of May; but as the present State of this paper credit of the Colony, is an object of great importance and seems to require the aid of the Legislature in order to give it a due stability, I will not fail to take the first opportunity of bringing the consideration of it before the Board of Trade as early as possible in the ensuing autumn.

The final settlement of the Boundary line between the Provinces of New York and Massachusetts Bay will be equally for His Majesty's interest and the advantage of his subjects; and it will be a very great satisfaction to me to hear, that this important business has been accomplished to the mutual satisfaction of both provinces.

My Lord.

As every appendix of Dignity to His Majesty's Commission to His Governors in America gives an augmentation of strength and influence to the respective Govern<sup>ts</sup>, and in some measure promotes, the public interest, I submit to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> the expediency of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s investing his several Govern<sup>ts</sup> with the privilege to appoint each a Chaplain, & the Crown out of its bounty to allow an adequate salary for the support of the Gentleman nominated.

This would be a peculiar mark of distinction to the members of the church of England, who stand in need of every possible aid and protection from Govern<sup>t</sup>, and as such I humbly propose its consideration to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s attention, and your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s favorable countenance.

New York. 23. July 1773.

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s favour of the 10th of April last I was honored with on my return hither, on the 13th inst.; after the close of our Commission at Rhode Island concerning the affair of the Gaspee. It gives me great pleasure that my representation of the 20th of Febr<sup>y</sup> has the honor of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s approbation; and now beg leave to observe to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, what has occurred to me after the finishing our Report. For waiting some days at Newport for a passage wind & weather, I was accidentally informed of a piece of evidence, wh<sup>ch</sup>, had it come to light sooner, would most probably have cut our business shorter.

An Officer of a Man of War stationed at Newport, to whom the Negroe Aaron was turned over, informed me, that upon his examining the fellow one day before his Master, and his two Negroes who came on Board, and interrogating face to face, the fellow prevaricated much, but still persisted in the main of his story, notwithstanding confronted by the Master and his two Negroes, who declares that he slept with them all that night, on which the Gaspee was destroyed. The Master and his Negroes being dismissed, the Officer upon what he had heard from the Master and his Negroes, & had observed from the conduct of Aaron upon the occasion, concluded, he was an Imposter, and charged him home as such, and told him he was convinced, he was no more concerned in that affair than he himself was, and conjured him to tell the truth, and at length he confessed twas all a fiction, which he was constrained to, for saving himself from the punishment threatned him on board the other Man of War, as they had charged him so positively with being one concerned, & therefore thought he must confess himself guilty and name some principal people as Accessaries.

My Lord, a few days, after the Gaspee burnt, one of the stationed ships at Newport, went and anchored close by the Island called Prudence, where the Master of Aaron lived, about seven miles from where the Gaspee lay, and Aaron purposing to run away from his Master went on board in a small Canoe, and they rightly guessed of his intention and threatened to whip him, but on second thoughts charged him as a confederate in destroying the Gaspee, and if he did not confess and make discovery, they would whip him, and hang him up at the yard arm.

And thus, My Lord, this forced confession of the Negroe Aaron has been held up by the Marine as a hopeful and sure clue to unravel this mystery of iniquity. The Fellow might probably have heard the names of the most noted and principal Traders, at Providence and other trading Towns in that neighborhood, though he might not know their persons, and one Dr Weeks inserted in his list he might know personally, as an attendant upon his Masters family; but my sentiments upon the whole are that this daring insult was committed by a number of bold, daring, rash, enterprizing sailors, collected suddenly from the neighborhood, who banded themselves together, upon this Bold enterprize, but by whom stimulated for the purpose, I cannot conjecture, they cunningly calculated the attack at a time of night under the Gaspee's disadvantage a ground, when 'twas probable, the Crew would be below deck and a sleep, as was the case, only one centry on deck, and thus by surprize easily boarded and plundered her.

My Lord, I have been two voyages of four hundred miles each upon this occasion at great expense, & no small fatigue for a person of my age viz<sup>t</sup> seventy six, and I assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, I am already upwards of two hundred pounds out of pocket, and am still liable for my proportion with the other Commissioners for the pay of the Clerks we found necessary to attend us upon the service, and though we have not had the wished for success, we hope his Maj<sup>ty</sup> will graciously accept our sincere endeavours.

My Lord, I have lately received Advice, that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has been graciously pleased to sign a Warr<sup>t</sup> for my salary as Chief Justice, which further adds to the obligations your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has conferred upon me, which I cannot but esteem with the utmost gratitude.

I am with profound respect,

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obliged & dutiful
humble servant

N<sup>o</sup> 11.

Whitehall 4 August. 1773.

Sir

Your Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 33, 34, 35 and 36. have been received and laid before the King.

The settlement of the line of jurisdiction between the Provinces of New York and Massachusetts's Bay, is a very fortunate event, and your attention in this business is very much approved by His Majesty. You may be assured, Sir, I will do every thing on my part that the Royal Confirmation of the agreement shall be obtained as soon as possible, but I fear, the unavoidable forms of Office, and some delicacy as to the mode of signifying that confirmation, will not allow me to send it to you before the next Packet.

In your Dispatch 34. you say, you have reason to apprehend, that your arrangement of the Militia is not entirely approved; but I am persuaded, Sir, you will do me the justice to believe that I could not mean to disapprove any arrangement which, in your opinion, was essential to the security of N. York or to the dignity of its Govern<sup>t</sup>; I certainly, however, did mean to convey an opinion that such arrangements ought not to be made until the nature & extent of them have been fully stated, and the King's pleasure signified thereupon.

I have read and considered your letter 35 with great attention, and still remain of opinion, that a License given without the King's previous consent and Instruction, to private persons to make purchases from the Indians of above a million of acres of Land, accompanied with an engagement to confirm their title by letters Patent under the Seal of the Colony, was contrary to the plain intention of the Royal Proclam<sup>m</sup> of 1763. incompatible with the spirit of the King's Instructions, and an improper exercise of the power of granting Lands, vested in the Gov<sup>t</sup> and Council. At the same time, Sir, if I have expressed any thing in my letters to you upon that subject, which conveyed the most distant censure of the motives on which you acted, it was more than I either felt or intended to express, being fully satisfied, that your conduct did not proceed from any unworthy motives, but was the result of an opinion in which you was misled by the practice of some of your predecessors—

It will not however become me, thinking as I do of this transaction, to advise the King, in the present moment, to permit the Royal Fiat to be given to a Grant of the Lands; nor do I at the same time wish that the persons, who have really and bona fide, incurred expenses upon this occasion, should be discouraged from the hope of a reasonable and just compensation in some shape or other; but I must be better informed of many circumstances before I can judge in what mode it can be given; and it is for this reason, as well as from a consideration of the want of a more ample and precise explanation of the state of the province in general respecting those different claims to lands which have been the source of so much disquiet and disorder, that I have humbly moved the King that you may be directed to come, for a short time to England, & His Maj<sup>ty</sup> having been graciously pleased to approve thereof. Enclosed I send You the Royal sign Manual for that purpose, not doubting that you will come fully prepared with every information that may be necessary in the consideration of a business that involves such variety of pretensions, and is entangled with such uncommon difficulty. I am to acquaint you however, that it is not expected that you should come away immediately, if either the King's service or your own private affairs should, in your own opinion, make it inconvenient to you.

I am etc.

Sir

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatches of the 22nd and 30th of April.

The importance of keeping the Confederacy of the Six Nations firmly attached to us must be obvious to every one, and your attention to that object and to preventing any defection of the Senecas is approved by the King

What you state in your letter N° 5 respecting the view with which you endeavored to bring back such of the Six Nations as had separated themselves from the Confederacy, is very full and satisfactory, and from your explanation of your conduct on that occasion, and of the situation to which they had removed, I see clearly the utility and advantage of your plan and am persuaded it will have a good effect

What you have said also of the entire acquiescence of the Six Nations in the Plan for establishing a Governm<sup>t</sup> on the Ohio, has satisfied all my doubts on that head, and I hope the other Tribe will by degrees, be better reconciled to that measure

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXY.]

New York 31. August. 1773.

My Lord.

I have the honor of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatch N° 9.

No event can be more desirable or more essential to this Colony, than a generous & equitable plan, for accommodating the disputes concerning the Lands, between Connecticut & Hudson's Rivers, and on Lake Champlain; and it is among my warmest wishes that, the great pains & anxiety which your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has been pleased to bestow on these delicate points, may yet be productive of success. My own sentiments I submitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s consideration in my dispatch N° 37. and to which after the most deliberate consideration I am obliged to adhere, firmly persuaded, as I am, that nothing but a provision for the New Hampshire occupants out of the waste lands, can afford any tolerable prospect of a settlement to this Branch of the controversy. Emboldened by impunity and under no restraint of Law, the turbulent part of these people, are continually guilty of the most flagrant excesses, which, while they call aloud for the animadversion of Govern<sup>t</sup>, lead this Country earnestly to wish, that whatever expedient to extinguish these troubles, shall be dictated by His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s wisdom and Justice, its effects may be immediate and decisive, for until each event, that part of the Country which is the object of the dispute, will continue in a state of Riot, barbarity & confusion.

I may venture to assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that while the New Hampshire Claimants can flatter themselves with the idea even of the possibility of a determination in their favor, they will never submit to Govern<sup>t</sup>, and the authority of the Laws, and if the verdict of the Courts of Law should be against them, nothing less, than compulsion will quiet or remove the Banditti flocking to those parts.

It is a misfortune that no suite can be brought fully to comprehend the merits of every case and lay the foundation of a general question which could be decisive, for though all the N. Hampshire claims originate from the same source, and depend on the same authority, yet there are particular circumstances that distinguish them. In some instances the New York grantees have the first title, in others and most generally the N. Hampshire Charters are prior; tho' I am told in some of these cases, a few N. York Patentees are the first occupants.

Again in some instances the New Hampshire intrusions preceeded the Royal Decree of 1764. though in general they were subsequent. In some they have encroached within 20 miles of Hudson's River, in others, kept at a greater distance, and lastly, the reasons assigned in my Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 37. will show the impracticability to collect the numerous New York Proprietors, or obtain their sentiments on any system for a general pacification. These hints I have thought it my duty to suggest, that your Lord<sup>p</sup> may be fully informed of every thing that occurs to me on the occasion.

On the principle, My Lord, that the Grants from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New Hampshire, or from the Crown of France, or its officers were issued without Lawful authority, and consequently convey no right to the grantees, nothing can be more just and proper, than, that the King should reserve to himself the determination of what is adviseable to be done thereon, and that the Claimants unable to sustain their pretensions, should be referred to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s grace and indulgence.

These are sentiments, which I formed after a deliberate consideration of every thing which could throw light upon the subject, and it is with singular satisfaction, that I observe, they so well agree with what your Lord<sup>p</sup> is pleased to express on this occasion.

I shall not at present trouble your Lord<sup>p</sup> with any remarks respecting the Indian purchases; I can truly say it is to me a subject of pain and uneasiness, as if any thing wrong (and that innocently) has been done, it is to be ascribed to me alone. I foresee, that the repayment of the purchaser's whole expenses, at a remote day, and out of lands, which they consider as their own, will neither be thought a compensation, nor relieve me from their importunities nor complaints. Permit me therefore to beseech your Lord<sup>p</sup> to give my Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 35, which relates expressly to this business a favorable perusal, and to recommend it to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s gracious attention.

I am with all possible respect and esteem

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s most obedient servant

The very alarming Insults and injuries that have been lately offered by the N. [New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXV.]

New York. 1 Sept 1773.

Sir,

I have just received the honor of your letter of this day's date, with the minutes of Council therewith sent, on which I beg to make the following observations.

That in the present circumstances of affairs in America, it appears to me of a dangerous tendency to employ Regular Troops, where there are Militia Laws, and where the Civil Magistrate can at any time call upon its trained Inhabitants to aid and assist them in the performance of their office, and the execution of the Laws in force against Rioters, and for the protection of the lives and properties of His Majesty's subjects.

That the idea, that a few lawless Vagabonds, can prevail in such a Govern<sup>t</sup> as that of New York, as to oblige its Gov<sup>r</sup> to have recourse to the Regular Troops to suppress them, appears to me to carry with it such reflection of weakness as I am affraid would be attended with bad consequences, and rendered the authority of the Civil Magistrate when not supported by the Troops, contemptible to the Inhabitants.

I have further to observe that Crown Point, being entirely destroyed and unprovided for the quartering of Troops, and Tieonderoga, being in a most ruinous state; such Troops as might be sent thither, would not be able to stay a sufficient time at those posts to render them of much utility.

If however you persist in your request and think it absolutely necessary to send troops thither, I beg to know the number of Troops you will think necessary, & when they may be wanted. You will also please to provide for the expenses that may attend their transportation etc to these Posts.

I have the honor to be with the greatest esteem and respect—Sir—Your ettc

My Lord

My late ill state of Health having rendered it necessary that I should go the Sea Side, in order to make use of the Sea Water, It was not sooner in my power to say any thing material, to y<sup>r</sup> Lordship on the subject of your dispatch of April last (N<sup>o</sup> 4) especially as I wrote two letters to your Lordship during that month (N<sup>os</sup> 4 & 5)

Amongst other particulars of intelligence since my last transmitted by my Deputy to the Southward and from the Indians, I find that a certain Captain Bullet<sup>1</sup> with a large number of <sup>1</sup> Captain THOMAS BULLY, of Virginia, the founder of the city of Louisville, Ky., was a man of great energy and enterprise. He served under Washington on the frontier, and was afterwards in the battle which resulted in Braddock's defeat. Having been sent down the Ohio in 1773, by Governor Dunmore, to make surveys, he landed and built the first cabin on the site of the present city of Louisville. The knowledge acquired of the country in this exploration confirmed him in his determination to settle in it, and he accordingly hastened back to his friends to procure supplies and to induce them to accompany him to his new home. But he was unfortunately prevented from accomplishing his purpose by sickness and sudden death. Marshall's History of Kentucky, I, 31.—Ed.

People from Virginia are gone down the Ohio beyond the Limits of the proposed Government, with authority (as is said) to survey and lay out Lands there, which are to be forthwith Patented this has a good deal alarmed the Indians who sent Six Shawanese from Sioto to Pittsburgh with a message thereupon a copy of which is herewith enclosed. A little before these Messengers were dispatched from Sioto, Two Indians returned to that Town from the Arkansas and Dussesses where they had been on public business, who were called to a meeting by some Spaniards and French who delivered them several Speeches, setting forth the danger all their Nations were in from the designs of the English, who they said had it in view to possess all their Country. Custalaga Cheif of the Delawares with a hundred of his Nation have retired on invitation below the falls of Ohio,<sup>1</sup> the Wabash Indians, there are still eight hundred Delawares & Munsies at their former places of residence about Ohio, but many of them talk of removing lower down, with a view as I understand & have reason to believe, of joining the other Tribes and becoming more formidable to us—The Indians in April last at Sioto, returned my Deputy for answer to the information I gave them of His Majestys Intentions to form a Colony on Ohio, and of the evacuating of Fort Pitt, that they were very thankful for the whole they had thereof and hoped that the person appointed to govern there would prove a wise man and restrain the abuses in Trade & irregularities committed by the Frontier Inhabitants, which continued to cause much discontent<sup>m</sup> amongst them. After this, they proposed to hold conferences with the Ouabache Indians and Cherokees &c<sup>a</sup> in July, & then if the Season would admit of it, purposed to come to a congress with me which they could not do earlier as my dispatches and Belts had been unluckily delayed at Fort Pitt, so long that they could not meet me at the time appointed The Shawanese on the whole appear at present the most attentive to the Six Nations Councils of any to the Southward, but they are much alarmed at the numbers who go from Virginia &c<sup>a</sup> in pursuit of new settlements leaving large Tracts of Country unsettled behind them, and who I am sorry to find can not be restrained being numerous, & remote from the influence and Seats of Government, and the old claims of Virginia conspiring to encourage them, so long as they confine themselves within the ceded Tract. The Indians can be satisfied that they have little cause of complaint, & this was one principal reason for the extent of the purchase but these People are not to be confined by any Boundaries or Limits, and the rest of their conduct is alike disorderly, so that Robberies & Murders are & will be committed, and I wish it may go no farther, as it assuredly would have done long since, had I not thrown difficulties in the way of their scheme for a general alliance.

These settlers generally set out with a general Prejudice against all Indians and the young Indian Warriors or Hunters are too often inclined to retaliate, a Party of the latter from the upper Senecas very lately killed four French men in a Birch Canoe on Lake Ontario, they made light of it till they were told that these men were British Subjects and under our protection, but I have not as yet received the particulars when I do, I shall take the Steps proper on that occasion, most of these evils result from the rapid intrusion on Lands, and the unrestrained irregularities in Trade, to which I see no prospect of a period, from any steps that are likely to be taken in the Colonies.

During my absence from this place M<sup>r</sup> Richard Shuckburgh<sup>2</sup> Secret<sup>y</sup> for Indian affairs died suddenly I mentioned in a letter my desire to be permitted to recommend to that office on such an event from the opportunity I may be presumed to have of choosing a gentleman well & sufficiently qualified for the discharge of its duties, in the hopes of which indulgence, I shall take the liberty of recommending such person in the next letter I shall have the honor to address your Lordship, when I hope to have it in my power to impart a more satisfactory account of the Indian Councils and the prospect of affairs with them

The suits of the Court of Chancery within this Colony, are so greatly encreased both, as to numbers and the value of Property, that it is wholly out of my power to give the necessary dispatch, so essential to Courts of Equity, and attend the other important duties of my Station.

I am therefore humbly to request your Lord<sup>ps</sup>'s solicitations with His Maj<sup>ty</sup> for permission for me to appoint a Master of the Rolls, with the same powers as that office is vested with in the Court of Chancery at home.

If it should not be found expedient to affix a salary for the support of the Master, I have some foundation to hope a provision may be made for him by the Legislature here at the next Session. The Country sensibly feeling, no less than myself the necessity of such an officer.

My Lord,

By the honor of your Lord<sup>ps</sup>'s letters N<sup>os</sup> 10 & 11. I have the extream satisfaction to learn, my conduct, respecting the Acts therein mentioned, has met with his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation, as well, as my attention to obtain with Gov<sup>r</sup> Hutchinson the settlement of the Boundary line, between this and the Massachusetts's Colony; Commiss<sup>rs</sup> from the two Govern<sup>ts</sup> are to meet the 11th of this Month on the spot to carry the Survey of the line into execution.

Unhappy as I find myself in not persuading your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the equity in letting the Proprietors of the Indian purchases, have the confirmation under the seal of the Prov<sup>ce</sup>; I am nevertheless myself much consoled by your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s very delicate and honorary sentiments on the motives of my conduct in that transaction; these Licences for Indian purchases were obtained in the Earl of Dunmore's Administration; the application of the million of Acres did not originate with me; Indeed, I thought myself truly within my duty, not viewing the steps taken, either as incompatible with the Royal Proclamat<sup>n</sup> of 1763. or the King's instructions, otherwise than as circumstances of the case required, in order to carry into execution the Royal intention of Indian sales, Americans, I guess will hardly be found to buy lands, considered as already purchased by their countrymen; if the lands remain unpatented, there, will be equal prejudice both to Crown and Parties, the King being withheld from his Quit Rents, and the Proprietors debarred from the cultivation of their purchases. Upon the whole, I plainly foresee, that the confirmations of these lands to the parties soliciting for them, will be the business of my successor in office.

Were more effectual Laws framed in the several Colonies for the punctual receipt of the King's Quit Rents, the whole vacant lands in America could not, in my estimation, be too soon thrown into the hands of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s subjects liable to the Quit Rent. The Revenue arising therefrom would be more solid as well as more valuable than any occasional Emolument growing from the sales of the King's lands; which, upon experience, I fear, will fall short of the speculative plan (distinction being made here between the King and the subject selling of land). As my opinion however on this point is merely speculation, I submit it with great deference to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s reflection. I am with all possible esteem and respect — My Lord,

New York. 3. Nov' 1773.

My Lord,

It is with real regret, I acquaint your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the ferment the minds of many of His Majesty's subjects have been in since the late arrival here, of some of the Country ships in the London Trade wh<sup>ch</sup> brought intelligence of the East India company's intention to ship Tea on their own account to America; and the refusal of the masters of those Vessells to take it on Board. The publications inclosed are all, that have come to my hand; productions calculated to sow sedition, and to support and make popular the cause of those who are deepest concerned in the illicit Trade to Foreign Countries. They are certainly declarative of the extent to which smuggling is carried on in the single Article of Tea. Much discourse is had on the construction of the Act of Parliament that Grants the License to export this Article (an Act I have not been honored with from your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s Office). Some assert that the words: "discharged from all duties whatsoever" respects only the exportation, and that the importation duty of three pence per pound, still subsists; while others maintain that all duties both, of export and Import, are absolutely wiped away by the aforesaid words, and subsequent clause in the said Act, a construction strongly implied by the liberty granted to export the same commodity to Foreign Countries free of Duties. Thus, while they are fluctuating in variety of opinions, some are fertile in expedients to oppose and obstruct its sale and landing.

If the Tea comes free of every duty, I understand it is then to be considered as a monopoly of the East India Company in America; a Monopoly of dangerous tendency, it is said to American liberties. By such futile argument, they endeavour to enflame the passions and mislead the Loyalty of their fellow Citizens. So that let the Tea appear free or not free of duty, those who carry on illicit Trade will raise objections, if possible, to its being brought on shore or sold. Under the present uncertain situation of Public affairs, I cannot form the judgement what may be the issue; I however flatter myself in the opinion, that the peace of the Govern<sup>t</sup> will be preserved, an object His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may be assured I shall be watchful to maintain with all the diligence & prudence in my power.

I am with all possible esteem and respect My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>e</sup>'s most obedient humble servant.

My Lord,

Since information has been received that the Teas shipped by the East India Company, are subject to the Importation Duty in America the Commissioners appointed for vending those Teas finding it would be impossible to carry into Execution the Powers granted them, have this day presented a Memorial, requesting Government would take the Teas under its Protection. The Memorial, and Minute of Council herewith transmitted will explain both the extent of the Request and the measure of Protection advised to be granted. I have accordingly applied to Captain Ayscough of His Majesty's Sloop the Swan, to take the Vessel, when arrived, under his protection until the Tea can be landed, which I am informed will be effected, without obstruction, though the General Voice is no Sales, no Consumption while the American Duty remains unrepealed by Parliament.

The Publications inclosed are by no means to be thought the Sense of the Inhabitants further than the general Reluctance to take any Articles from Great Britain subject to Duties in America.

My Lord,

By the Honor of your Lordship's Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 13. I am fully informed of His Majesty's Intention in what cases the Military Force should be applied for, in support of the Civil Authority. While I rejoice that the late Requisitions made to General Haldimand by the Advice of His Majesty's Council of this Province, were laid aside, I cannot help viewing the Settlers under this Government within the Contested District with great Compassion, and as Subjects truly worthy of His Majesty's Protection; It is with equal Regret I behold the Seeds of a Civil War growing apace in the District of Bennington, and the adjacent Townships, and which I fear, will be found out of the reach of the Civil Authority to stop, even after the Declaration of the Royal Will is made known concerning the Controversies in Question. It may not be improper to observe on this Subject that the shutting up of the Land Office, particularly with regard to the Lands lying between Lake Champlain and Connecticut River, must shortly, add to the other Difficulties, as the Inhabitants of the Eastern Colonies are swarming over that part of the Country, and what they improve of the vacant Lands, they hold as their rightful possessions, and to persuade them to a different doctrine may require a Superior Force to what they can oppose.

Sir

I have received your Dispatch No 6, and have laid it before the King; and am glad of this opportunity of expressing my wishes that your journey to the Sea side may have had the desirable effect of restoring your health

The Proceedings of such of His Majestys subjects as have, in open violation and contempt of his Royal Authority, attempted to acquire the possession of, and to settle Lands within a part of the Country where such settlement is forbid by His Mátys Proclamation, are most irregular & unwarrantable, they must have the effect to disturb the public tranquillity by exciting the Savages already too jealous of our growing power to commit hostilities, and will hasten that union of interest among the Savages which you have with so much industry and ability endeavoured to prevent

You will see by the enclosed extract of my Letter of this date to General Haldimand, what I have said to him upon this subject, and you will not fail to co-operate with him in every measure that you shall think may have a tendency to disappoint the dangerous designs of these lawless adventurers

There certainly has hardly ever been a time when Indian affairs were in a more critical situation, & great as my confidence is in your zeal & activity I can not but be under some alarm for what must be the consequences of the lawless and unrestrained Settlements of the Kings Subjects on the one hand, and on the other hand of the promises & expectations held out to the Savages by the French & Spaniards on the Mississippi.

The enclosed copy of a private letter from a Gentleman in America to his correspondent here, contains the substance of a Message supposed to be sent from the French King to the Six Nations thro' the Channell of Canada, but is of such a Nature and expression, that I should not have paid much attention to it, had it not, in the general Terms of it corresponded so exactly with the substance of the Messages and Speeches which you say the Indians have received from the Mississippi. For this reason it appears to me to deserve some notice, and I transmit it to you in full confidence that if any such Message has been sent from Canada you will be able to trace it out, and to assist us in the discovery of the Channel thro' which it came

I am very sorry to hear that you have lost so able a servant as your late Secretary, and you may be assured I will take no steps in regard to a Successor to him, till I have your recommendation

My Lord.

Last month I had the honor to receive your Lordships letter N<sup>o</sup> 5) and about the same time the Cheifs of the Six Nations arrived at this place on the subject (as they gave me notice) of the murder committed by a small party of Senecas on Four Frenchmen on Lake Ontario as mentioned in the last letter I had the honor to address to your Lordship; when after sundry conferences as well in private with the principal men amongst them as in public with them all, I have at length satisfied them that their antient custom of making attonement and covering the graves (as they term it) is not, neither can it be deemed any satisfaction for murder, in consequence whereof they have agreed to make restitution for the Peltry taken from the deceased, & to deliver two of the murderers (the other having fled) for the performance of which they have left three hostages in my hands; As this is the sum of the Proceedings at the late Treaty, I have not thought it necessary to give your Lordship the trouble of a Copy of the Transactions, but I must observe that in case they fulfill their engagement it will on many Acc<sup>t</sup> be the best policy to shew the Prisoners as much clemency as is consistent with the Dignity of Government, because they are both young, inconsiderate, & have been entirely influenced by the wicked fellow who escaped, & indeed it is the first instance wherein the Six Nations have been induced to make the attonement required by our laws, for as they derive no benefit from, & are not admitted to partake of them, they think it peculiarly hard to deviate from their own antient usages in such cases, which were even confirmed by agreements between them & the White People at the first settlement of the Country, & generally practiced to the present time, and more especially as this tho' an act of Justice by our laws, will be made use of by those who are dissaffected in the other confederacies much to our prejudice, on account of the many murders committed by our people with impunity, of which there are no less than eighteen recent instances.

I have lately received information that one George Klock a person long known here for his infamous practices in defrauding the Indians in Land matters as well as in a variety of other Instances which have verry nearly produced the most dangerous consequences, is lately gone secretly to some of the sea ports with three inconsiderate Indians of Conajohare, whom he has seduced to accompany him to England, as it is said, with a view to some interested matters in which thro their means he hopes even to deceive Government. This Fellow has been obliged for some years to keep himself concealed on account of sundry breaches of the laws, & lately had a violent quarrel with the Conajohare Cheifs. The Indians of that Tribe therefore have made a heavy complaint to me of his rash conduct therein, & of his taking away their people, & request that they may be restored to them. On which subject I wrote to the Governor of New York but I since hear he has taken another rout, so that I am obliged to give your Lordship the trouble of this, as a few years ago Klock was the means of sending two Indians over with a fellow who exhibited them in London, & sold one of them, who, as I understand, was released by General York,<sup>1</sup> then Ambassador at the Hague;—from the pride & independency of spirit of the Indians there is nothing can appear more disgracefull or give more offence to their nation, but in most of the Indian Towns on our Frontiers there are some idle fellows to be found who give themselves up entirely to ease & drinking, and being cast out by the rest, are made the instruments of fraud by the worst part of our people, I am sorry that these things have often happened, especially as I see no remedy against it, for altho it has been the sense of Government repeatedly expressed to me, that Indians should not be permitted to go to London without my pass certifying the importance of their journey, and that even this should not be encouraged, yet designing people have seduced and are still likely to seduce them, there being no positive law to prevent, and in this last instance the fellow went to the sea coast by some unfrequented paths in the woods (by which means he escaped the fury of the Indians who pursued Him) obtaining a pass from an ignorant Inn Keeper who happens to be a Magistrate, whom he imposed on by a petition subscribed by some poor people who do not even know it's contents. I have had much trouble in pacifying the Indians by assuring them that the man will be punished, & their people sent back for it betrays a weakness of us in their eyes when they see that such instances go unpunished, I should not have taken up so much of your Lordship's time with this matter, but that it plainly shews the dangerous tendency of tolerating private persons to interfere with the Indians, as it destroys the designs of the regular superintendency thro' which channel His Majesty was pleased to order all their affairs to be uniformly conducted, and at the same time it gives the Indians reason to suspect us either of want of power or of inclination to do them justice, which enters into their public transactions furnishes them with excuses for their own misconduct and often proves greatly prejudicial to His Majesty's Interests & in those of the public. The schemes that have been for some time in agitation to the South West are not as yet sufficiently developed for me to come to any determination about them, but as every measure has been taken to prevent the evil they plainly portended I shall I trust in a little time be enabled to lay before your Lordship the true state of these matters, and in the interim continue my endeavours for the public Tranquility.

I have the honor to be

My Lord,

It gives me the greatest concern to inform your Lordship that in the Night of the 29th Instant the Government House in Fort George accidentally took fire. So rapid was it's progress that in a few moments after we were alarmed a thick cloud of fire and smoke pervaded the whole building, and in less than two Hours it was entirely consumed. With the utmost Difficulty my Family, an unhappy Maid excepted, were through Divine Providence graciously preserved. My Daughter reduced to the sad extremity of leaping out of a Window of the Second Story, was received on a deep snow, and escaped unhurt. From this dreadful Conflagration Nothing else (excepting a little Furniture out of the Parlour) within the Walls of the House, not even my Commission, Instructions or a single paper, either public or private, could possibly be rescued. The Great Seal which was found this Evening, notwithstanding the Intenseness of the Heat, has suffered no Injury. Captain Nicholas charged himself with this Dispatch, and to him for the particulars of this Melancholy Event, I beg leave to refer your Lordship.

Severe as has been my Loss I have the highest reason to be thankful to the Almighty that so many Lives are spared, in a Calamity beyond description sudden & resistless, and which would have communicated itself over most of the City, if the deep snow lodged on the Roofs of the Houses, had not contributed with the Fire Engines to prevent its spreading. The manner in which the Fire originated remains, as yet, undiscovered.

I am with all possible respect &amp; esteem,

My Lord,

The Measure of the East India Company's exporting Tea to America, has given too general an alarm on this side of the Water, and the conduct pursued has been too extraordinary for me, in my publick Despatches to your Lordship, to be silent upon a matter which employs the pen of many here, and engrosses the attention of all. I conceive it, my Lord, difficult to determine with precision what might have been the Sentiments of Americans on this subject, if they were left to the unbiassed influence of cool Reflection. The daily publications on this Head have been so various and contradictory that it is impossible to comprize within the compass of a letter a regular digest of the whole for your Lordship's ready and immediate inspection. I have therefore, as the best and only Method of information, herewith, inclosed to your Lordship the publick Gazettes of the three printing Offices in this City, from which may be learnt the various steps which have been taken and the different sentiments thrown out, from the Begining to the Publick, alternately, by good Citizens and fair Traders, by men of cool sense and just discernment, on the one hand, by fraudulent dealers, artful smugglers, inflammatory politicians & Patriots on the other.

Until the arrival of the Account of the Tea being destroyed at Boston I had conceived very sanguine Hopes that Temperate measures might have been manifested in the Conduct of the Body of the People of this Province on the arrival of the Tea, The association paper inclosed, and which was universally approved by all better sort of the Inhabitants, seemed to justify the opinion so far as to the protection of the Property, but the Boston intelligence instantly gave a different turn to affairs, and I am now entirely uncertain what may be the issue; My best Endeavors, however will be constantly exerted for the peace of Society, and the good order of this His Majesty's Government, now, if possible, since the Outrage at Boston, become a more important object of my attention; From the general Appearance of the united opposition to the principle of the Monopoly, and the Importation Duty in America, I can form no other Opinion than that the landing, storing, and safe keeping of the Tea, when stored, could be accomplished, but only under the protection of the Point of the Bayonet, and Muzzle of the Canon, and even then I do not see how the consumption could be effected.

I am, with all possible Respect & Esteem

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

most Obedient Servant

Sir,

Since my letter to you of the 1st of last Month I have rec<sup>d</sup> your Dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 54 & 55; and have laid them before the King.

When I consider that the Alarm which has been spread with a view to excite an opposition to the Landing of Teas sent by the East India Company to New York, is apparently, nay avowedly founded upon self-interested motives, I cannot but flatter myself that the authors and abettors of such unwarrantable proceedings will meet with Disappointment and Disgrace, and that any new attempt to disturb the peace and tranquillity of a Province, so deservedly distinguished for its peacable and good government, will be defeated.

The inclosed Extracts of my letter of this Days Date to Major General Haldimand will however inform you, that there has not been wanting a due attention to what may be necessary in case matters should turn out contrary to my hopes & expectations, and the civil power should, in case of any public Disturbance be found inadequate to the preservation of the public peace, and the protection of the King's subjects.

I must however again repeat to you, that it is His Majesty's Wish & Intention, that no Requisition should be made by the Civil Magistrate upon a slight ground, but only in cases of absolute Necessity when every other effort has failed.

Sir,

On the 10th of last Month I received your letters N<sup>o</sup> 56, 57 & 58. which were immediately laid before the King, & I have also laid before His Majesty a letter, which I received from you yesterday, containing the very disagreeable Account of the Government House at New York having been destroyed by Fire.

I am extremely concerned for the loss you have sustained by the Destruction of your Furniture and Papers, rejoicing at the same time that, in a situation of such danger and distress, the Consequences were not more fatal to yourself or Family.

The Advice given by the Council on the 1st of December, upon the Memorial of the Persons to whom the East India Company had consigned their Tea, is a proof of their attention to the preservation of the Public peace, without giving up the dignity of Government, and the King approves the Measure you took in consequence thereof.

The informations however, which I have since received, of what appears to be the spirit of the People, on hearing of the destruction of the Tea at Boston, leaves room to fear that the landing of the Tea, should it be attempted, may be attended with greater difficulty than was to be expected, but I am persuaded, Sir, that your Fortitude will not suffer you to yield to the like Insults as have been offered to the Authority of this Kingdom in other places.

What has already happened, on occasion of the Importation of Teas by the East India Company into some of the Colonies, is of the most alarming nature, and I have it in Command from the King to acquaint you, that it is his Majesty's firm Resolution upon the unanimous advice of His confidential Servants to pursue such measures as shall be effectual for securing the Dependence of the Colonies upon this Kingdom

Whitehall 5th Fèbry. 1774.

I am commanded by the King to transmit to <sup>your Lordship</sup>you the inclosed additional Instruction, containing directions for your future Conduct in the Disposal of His Majesty's Land.

His Majesty considers the Object of these Instructions as a matter of the highest importance to the public Interests, and as the good effect of the measure depends so much upon a faithful

Execution of them I have no doubt that you will be particularly attentive to discharge your duty to the King with Honor & Fidelity, and that every attempt that may be made from interested motives to defeat this plan will be resisted with Firmness & Resolution.

It is not the King's Intention that those who have hitherto obtained orders in Council for Lands in America, and have not yet located them, should be precluded by this plan from carrying those orders into execution, conformable to the Directions contained therein, nor is it meant to preclude any claim to a Grant of Lands founded on any antecedent step that can, in Equity give a title to such Grant.

It is intended that in every case where a Warrant of Survey has been obtained, the Grant shall be completed, provided however that in no case whatever the location be allowed either upon Lands, which, by Instructions you have already received, you are restrained from granting, or upon any Tracts that shall have been surveyed for sale, conformable to the orders now given to you.

GEORGE R.

ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTIONS to Our Trusty and Welbeloved William Tryon Esq<sup>r</sup>
Our Captain General and Governor in Chief of our Province of New York, (L. S.) and the Territories depending thereon in America; or to the Commander in Chief of our said Province for the Time being. Given at Our Court at St James's the Third day of February 1774 In the Fourteenth Year of Our Reign.

WHEREAS by our Commission to you under our Great Seal of Great Britain, bearing Date the _____ of _____ in the _____ Year of our Reign, you are authorized and empowered with the Advice and Consent of our Council for our said Province of New York under your Government to settle and agree with the Inhabitants of our said Province for such Lands Tenements and Hereditaments as now are or hereafter shall be in our Power to dispose of, and them to grant to any Person or Persons upon such Terms and under such moderate Quit rents, Services and Acknowledgements to be thereupon reserved unto us, as you, by and with the Advice aforesaid, shall think fit; And whereas the directions for the due Execution of the said Powers and Authorities, contained, as well in our general Instructions to you accompanying our said Commission, as in other Additional Instructions which may have been given to you from Time to Time, respecting the Mode of Granting Lands within our said Province, and the Terms and Conditions, on which the said Grants were to be made and passed, have been found to be inadequate improper and inconvenient; We have therefore thought fit, with the Advice of our Privy Council to revoke and annul, and We do hereby revoke and annul all and every Part of the said Instructions, and every Matter and Thing therein contained, in so far forth as they relate to the laying out and passing Grants of Land within our said Province, and to the Terms and Conditions upon which the said Grants are to be made. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, and we do hereby direct and appoint, that the following Rules and Regulations be henceforth strictly and punctually observed in the laying out, allotting and granting such Lands. Tenements and Hereditaments, as now are, or hereafter shall be in our power to dispose of, within our said Province. That is to say.

First. That you our said Governor, or our Governor, or Commander in Chief of our said Province for the Time being, with the Advice and Assistance of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, our Surveyor General of Lands for the Northern district of North America, our Secretary, our Surveyor General of our Lands, and our Receiver General of our Quit-Rents for our said Province of New York, or any three of them, do from time to time, and at such times as you shall, with the Advice aforesaid, judge most convenient, cause actual Surveys to be made of such parts of our said Province not already granted or disposed of, the Settlement and improvement whereof You shall think will be most advantageous to the public Interest and welfare; taking care that such districts so to be Surveyed and laid out, as aforesaid, be divided into such a number of Lots (each Lot to contain not less than one hundred, nor more than one thousand Acres) as our said Surveyor General shall judge best adapted to the Nature and Situation of the District so to be Surveyed.

2<sup>d</sup> That when the said Survey shall have been made, a Map of the district so Surveyed, with the several Lots marked and Number'd thereon, be hung up in our Secretary's Office within our said Province, and Duplicates thereof transmitted to Us by one of our Principal Secretary's of State, and to our Commissioners of our Treasury, accompanied with a report in writing signed by our said Surveyor General descriptive of the Nature and Advantages, not only of the whole district in general, but also of each particular Lot.

3<sup>d</sup> That so soon as the said Survey shall have been made and returned, as aforesaid, You our said Governor or Commander in Chief of our said Province for the time being, do, with the Advice of our Council of our said Province, and of the Officers herein beforementioned, appoint such time and place for the Sale and disposal of the Lands contained within the said Survey*to the best bidder, as you and they shall think most convenient and proper, giving previous Notice thereof at least four Months before such Sale by printed Advertisements, to be published not only within our said Province, but also in the other Neighbouring Provinces, and that You do proceed to such Sales at the Times appointed, unless you shall first receive directions from Us to the Contrary under our Signet and Sign Manual, or by our Order in our Privy Council.

4th That you our said Governor, or our Governor, or Commander in Chief of our said Province for the Time being, do, with the Advice and Assistance aforesaid, fix the price  $\text{¶}$  Acre, at which the several Lots shall be put up to Sale, according to the Quality and Condition thereof, taking care, that no Lot is put up to such Sale at a less Price than six pence  $\text{¶}$  Acre, and all such Lots are to be Sold subject to a Reservation to Us, our Heirs and Successors, of an Annual Quitrent, of one half penny Sterling  $\text{¶}$  Acre.

5th That the printed Advertisement, containing Notice of the Time and place of Sale, so as to be published, as aforesaid, be as full and explicit as may be, as well in respect to the Number and Contents of the Lots to be sold, as the Terms and Conditions, on which they are to be put up to Sale, and the general Situation of the Lands, and the Advantages and conveniency thereof.

6th That the Person, who at such Sale shall bid most for any Lot, shall be the Purchaser, and shall, upon payment of the purchase Money into the hands of our Receiver General, or his Deputy, who is to attend at such Sales, receive from him a Bill of Sale of the Lot or Lots so purchased, upon producing whereof to you our Governor, or to our Governor, or Commander in Chief of our said Province for the time being, he shall be forthwith entitled to a grant in Fee simple of the Land, so purchased, as aforesaid, by Letters Patent under our public Seal of our said Province, subject to no Conditions or Reservations whatever, other than except the Payment to Us, our Heirs, and Successors of the annual Quit Rent of one halfpenny  $\frac{1}{2}$  Acre, as aforesaid, and also of all Mines of Gold, Silver or Precious Stones.

7th That the Fees to be paid by purchasers of Land in manner herein before recited, be such as are allowed by Law and no other, and that neither our Governor, or Commander in Chief of our said Province, or any other Officer or Officers entrusted with the Execution of these our Instructions, do for the present and until some other Arrangement be made for that purpose take any other or greater Fees.<sup>1</sup>

And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that neither you our Governor, nor our Governor, or Commander in Chief of our said Province for the Time being do, upon any pretence whatever, presume to grant any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments within our said Province, which are in our Power to dispose of, upon any other Terms, or in any other manner than as herein before recited, without our express Authority for that purpose under our Signet, and Sign Manual, or by our order in our Privy Council, except only in the Case of such Commission Officers and Soldiers, as are entitled to Grants of Lands in Virtue of our Royal Proclamation of the 7th of October 1763, to whom such Grants are to be made and passed in the proportions, and under the Conditions prescribed in the said Proclamation.

And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that in all Districts, which shall hereafter be Surveyed, in order to a sale of the Lands in Manner herein before recited, there be a Reservation of such Parts thereof, as shall appear from the Report of the Surveyor to be necessary for public Uses.

And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that you our said Governor, or our Governor or Commander in Chief of our said Province for the Time being do, from time to time, and as often as any Survey or Sales of Land shall be made in Manner before mentioned, make a full and particular report to Us, by one of our principal Secretaries of State, of all proceedings in Regard thereto, together with a State of the expenses attending the said Survey, and Sales,

7th That the Fees to be paid by purchasers of Land in manner herein before recited be as followeth and that neither Our Governor or Commander in Chief of Our said Province or any other Officer or Officers entrusted with the execution of these Our Instructions do take any other or greater Fees, that is to say

To the Governor
For every Grant of 100 Acres.....	0 10 0
For every Grant above 100 Acres and not more than 500 Acres.....	0 15 0
For every Grant above 500 Acres.....	1 — —
To the Secretary
For every Grant of 100 Acres.....	0 5 0
For every Grant above 100 acres and not more than 500 Acres.....	0 10 0

Since my letter to you of the 5th of last month, I have received your Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 2, 3, 4 & 5. and have laid them before the King.

As your letter N<sup>o</sup> 2 relates to a matter which must remain for discussion upon your arrival here, and as no final resolution has as yet been taken upon what has passed in America, respecting the Teas sent thither for sale by the East India Company, I have not at present any thing in command from the King on the subject of those Dispatches, but I must lament that the Body of the People within your Province should have been so influenced by the audacious insult offered to the Authority of this Kingdom at Boston, that in your opinion the landing those Teas at New York could be effected only under the protection of the Point of the Bayonet, & Muzzle of the Cannon.

Lords of Trade to the Lords of the Privy Council.

[New-York Entries, LXIX., p. 21.]

My Lords

Pursuant to your Lordships Orders of the 21 of Feb<sup>ry</sup> last we have taken into Our Consideration the humble Petition of George Clarke Esq: Secretary of His Majestys Colony of New York complaining of William Tryon Esq: Governor of the said Colony for having dispossessed him of a Branch belonging to his said office Viz: That of Register to the Ordinary and Prerogative Court of the said Province of New York for the Granting Probates of Wills and Letters of Administration and other business of that kind and for his having disposed of the same in favour of Edmund Fanning Esquire his private Secretary and humbly praying for the reasons therein contained that such appointment of the said Edmund Fanning may be declared void and that the Petitioner and his deputy may be restored to the exercise and Enjoyment of the said Branch of his Office and that he may be also restored to the Fees he has lost by having been dispossessed thereof we have likewise had under Our Consideration the answer of Governor Tryon to the said Petition together with copies of several papers and Documents relative to this Matter. Whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships.

That having duely weighed and examined what is here set forth by the parties concerned on each side of the Question We are of opinion that the duty of Register to the ordinary or Prerogative Court of the said Province of New York for granting of Probates of Wills & Letters of Administration and other business of that kind together with all Fees Perquisites and Emoluments legally appertaining thereto is a Branch of the office of the Secretary of the Province constantly held and enjoyed both by the Deputy of the Province<sup>1</sup> Patentee and all other preceeding Secretaries and agreeable to such usage was virtually confirmed and renewed to the Petitioner by His Majesty's Letters Patent under the Great Seal of Great Britain bearing date the 10th day of April in the first year of his Reign when the Commissioner<sup>2</sup> of Secretary was renewed to him together with all Fees Rights Privileges and Advantages whatsoever thereunto belonging in as full and ample manner as any Secretary in the said Colony had heretofore held and enjoyed or of right ought to have held and enjoyed the same and we think that his Majesty's Gov<sup>r</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Tryon was not warranted in excluding the Petitioner and his Deputy from the possession of the said Branch of his office and in disposing of the same in favour of the said Edward Fanning Esq; his private Secretary thereby depriving the said Patentee of the exercise of the Ministerial parts of the office of Register to the ordinary together with the fees and emoluments incident thereto which are stated to constitute a considerable part of the profits appertaining to the general office of Secretary

With respect to the reasoning adopted by M<sup>r</sup> Tryon in his answer to the petition wherein he contends that by an Act of the Colony passed in the year 1692 there was a severance of the Register from the Secretary's Office of<sup>3</sup> the said Registry put under the disposal of the Governor we can by no means concur with him in his interpretation of this Act on the contrary it does appear to us to operate rather in confirmation of the Petitioners claim and against the Governors position in as much as the Courts of Common Pleas which in some of the Counties are empowered by this law to take the examination of Witnesses to Wills are thereby expressly required to transmit the same with the Will to the Secretary's Office that the Probate thereof may be granted accordingly thereby implying a precedent Right in the Secretary to issue such Probates.

Viewing the Case of the Petitioner in this light we think it Our duty to propose to your Lordships to advise His Majesty to comply with the prayer of the petition by instructing and directing His Governor to revoke and declare void the Grant Appointment and Authority given by him to the said Edmund Fanning to do and transact the aforesaid Branch of business of Register to the Ordinary appertaining to the said Patent Office of Secretary and to restore the Petitioner and his Deputy to the Exercise and enjoyment of the same as fully as it was held and enjoyed before the late innovation took place and also to restore the said Petitioner to such Fees as it shall appear he has lost by means of the said Acts and proceedings of his Majesty's said Governor.

Sir,

In my private letter to you, by a former mail, I expressed a wish that you should not come away from your Government until you should be relieved by a Lieutenant Governor, but having learnt from your Friends here that your Disorder increases upon you, I must not suffer that Restraint upon your Intentions to continue any longer, & therefore you will consider yourself at liberty to come to England, whenever it shall be most convenient to you.

Colonel Skeene<sup>1</sup> having presented a Memorial to the Lords of the Treasury praying a remission of the Quit Rents payable from his Lands in New York, I have reason to believe

<sup>1</sup> Colonel PHILIP SKENE was the grandson of John Skene, of Halyards, in Fifeshire, Scotland, and a descendant of the famous Sir William Wallace. He entered the army in 1739, in which year he served in the expedition against Portobello, and in 1741 was at the taking of Carthagena. He fought in the celebrated battle of Fontenoy in 1745, in that of Colloiden the following year, and in 1747 was present at the battle of Laffeldt, under the Duke of Cumberland. Gentleman's Magazine, LXXX., 672. He came to America in 1756, and on the 2d of February, 1757, was promoted to a company in the 27th or Enniskillen regiment of Foot, which formed part of the force under Lord Loudon's command that year. He was next engaged under Lord Howe at the unfortunate attack on Ticonderoga in July, 1758; was appointed, on the 31st July, 1759, Major of Brigade by Sir Jeffery Amherst, with whom he served on Lakes George and Champlain, and in October following was left in charge of Crown Point, the works of which he had orders to strengthen. Wilson's Manuscript Orderly Book. His position at Crown Point made him familiar with the surrounding country, and encouraged by Sir Jeffery Amherst, he projected a settlement at Wood Creek and South Bay, at the head of Lake Champlain, and in the prosecution of that design, soon after settled about thirty families there; in 1762 he was ordered on the expedition against Martinique and Havana, and was one of the first to enter the breach at the storming of Moro Castle. On his return to New-York, in 1763, he renewed his efforts to complete his settlement at Wood Creek; went to England; obtained a Royal Order for a considerable tract of land at that place, for which a patent was granted, March, 1765, and his tract was formed into a township under the name of Skenesborough. New-York Land Papers, XVII.; Book of Patents, XIV., 56. His regiment having been ordered to Ireland, Major Skene exchanged into the 10th Foot, in May, 1768, so as to remain in America; but he did not continue long in the army, for he sold out in December of the following year, (Army Lists) and in 1770 established his residence at Skenesborough, (now Whitehall, Washington county.) Here he erected forges for smelting iron, mills for sawing timber, and opened a road to Salem and Bennington, which was afterwards known as Skene's road. Fitch, in Transactions of New-York State Agricultural Society, VIII., 967. His plans were interrupted by the Revolution. In May, 1775, a detachment of volunteers from Connecticut entered Skenesborough and seized Major Skene, his family and servants, (Barber's Historical Collections of New-York, 349,) and carried them prisoners to Hartford. He was allowed to reside on parole at Middletown, their Lordships are well disposed to favor his request; In the mean time as he is apprehensive that some process may issue for enforcing the Payment of what is due, I should be very glad if any step might be taken to suspend such Process untill the determination of the Treasury can be known.

Sir,

It has given the King great satisfaction to find, by your Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 7, that the result of your meeting with the Indians, on the subject of the murder committed by the Senecas at Lake Ontario, has been so favourable to your own wishes, and that you have been able to impress upon the minds of those Savages such proper ideas of publick justice.

I intirely agree with you in thinking that we ought to shew as much clemency as is consistent with the Dignity of Government to the Delinquents that are to be delivered up upon this occasion, and you will do well, if they have not already been brought to trial to urge every argument that may induce the Court, before which they may be tried, to consider the matter in the same light.

The conduct and character of M<sup>r</sup> Klock induced me to wish that it had been in my power, upon his arrival here, to have taken any step that might have vindicated the honour of Government by subjecting him to due punishment; But, tho' I found that I could do nothing that would have that effect, yet the enquiries I made concerning him created such an apprehension in him of being proceeded against that I understand he remained here but a few days, & then took his Passage back to America with the Indian that accompanied him.

WHEREAS there was this Day at the Board a Report from the Right Honorable the Lords of the Committee of Council for Plantation Affairs dated the 12th of this Instant in the Words following viz<sup>t</sup>

Your Majesty having been pleased by your Order in Council of the 15 January 1772 to refer unto this Committee, the humble Petition of George Clarke Esquire Secretary of your Majesty's Colony of New York in America, complaining of William Tryon Esquire the Governor of the said Colony, for having dispossessed the Petitioner and his Deputy of a Branch of his Office Viz<sup>t</sup> That of Register to the Ordinary and Prerogative Court of the said Colony of New York, for the granting Probates of Wills and Letters of Administration and other Business of that kind, and for his having disposed of the same in Favour of Edmund Fanning Esquire his private Secretary, and humbly praying that such appointment of the said Edmund Fanning may be declared Void, and that the Petitioner and his Deputy may be restored to the Exercise and Enjoyment of the said Branch of his Office, and that he may be also restored to the Fees he has lost by having been dispossessed thereof. The Lords of the Committee, in Obedience to your Majesty's said Order of Reference, did on the 21st of March 1772, take the said Petition into Consideration, and thought proper to Order a Copy thereof to be transmitted to the said Governor for his Answer thereto, and Governor Tryon having accordingly returned his Answer, and transmitted therewith Copies of several Papers in Support thereof—The Lords of the Committee did on the 21st February last proceed to take the same into Consideration, and directed the said Petition, Answer and Papers therewith transmitted to be referred to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations who have thereupon Reported to this Committee “That having duly weighed and Examined what is set forth by the Parties concerned on each side the Question &c.

The Lords of the Committee upon Consideration of the whole Matter, do agree humbly to Report as their Opinion, that it may be adviseable for Your Majesty to Direct the Petitioner or his lawful Deputy or the Secretary of the said Colony for the Time being, or his lawful Deputy, to be forthwith reinstated in the said Office of Register to the Ordinary and Prerogative Court of the Province of New York, that he may hold and enjoy the same, as he and his predecessors have heretofore held and enjoyed the same before the late Innovation took place as incident to and always going with the Office of Secretary of New York and as an Appendage thereof, together with the Salary, Advantages and Emoluments to the said Office of Register to the Ordinary and Prerogative Court of the Province of New York belonging and appertaining.

His Majesty, taking the said Report into Consideration, is Pleased, with the Advice of His Privy Council to approve of what is therein proposed, and doth hereby accordingly Order require and Command, That the Petitioner or his lawful Deputy, or the Secretary of the said Colony for the time being, or his lawful Deputy be forthwith reinstated in the said Office of Register to the Ordinary and Prerogative Court of the said Province of New York, that he may hold and enjoy the same, as he and his Predecessors have heretofore held and enjoyed the same, before the late Innovation took place, as incident to, and always going with the Office of Secretary of New York, and as an Appendage thereof, together with the Salary, Advantages and Emoluments to the said Office of Register to the Ordinary and Prerogative Court of the Province of New York belonging and appertaining And the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Commander in Chief of the said Province of New York for the time being, and all others whom it may concern are to Yield due obedience to His Majesty's Pleasure hereby signified as they will answer to the contrary.—

Johnson Hall 17th April 1774.

My Lord,

I should never have attempted to trouble your Lordship on a subject which is liable to misrepresentation or disregard, but that I look upon it to be my duty to lay before His Majesty the sentiments of the Indians on every material occurrence, and that I only comply with their repeated desire, on the present occasion; for this reason I shall decline offering much in favor of my own judgment in this matter, but relying on your Lordships known character submit the matter to your Consideration, from a thorough conviction of my own disinterestedness and zeal for his Majesty's service.

The several duties & fatigues I formerly experienced for many years both in a Military and Civil capacity, having within these few years drawn upon me a train of Infirmities which have often threatned my life, & at best renders it very precarious, the Northern Indians well acquainted with these circumstances have for some time expressed great anxiety about it, as well on my account as they express it, as on their own, for they observe, what I have experienced to be true, that personal regard & attachment has vast influence over their actions, and the more thinking part of their chiefs, from the knowledge they have of other Peoples conduct have been long & are strongly of opinion that my Death may produce events which I know it would be deemed vanity in me to enlarge upon, they have therefore upon many late occasions repeated (what I had by many former Instructions from His Majesty assured them) that all affairs with them should be conducted by an Agent belonging to His Majesty as the most regular & best channel, and that which was most agreeable to them, at which they expressed infinite satisfaction, at the same time they observed that they had judgment enough to perceive that they were likely to be misrepresented both with regard to power, genius & disposition; and that they had reason to fear that in case of my Death their affairs might fall into some of those channells which gave them their first prejudice against the English, or into the hands of some Person unacquainted with the nature & politicks of the people, and the duties of my office, and as these reflections tended to render the Chiefs irresolute & to create much uneasiness, they earnestly solicited that I would lay their request before His Majesty for the nomination of a Successor who should not only be acquainted with their affairs & the mode in which they had been hitherto conducted but personally known to & esteemed by their people, & proceeded to express their ardent desire that such nomination if agreeable to His Majesty might be in favor of one of my Deputys Col. Guy Johnson. On this head I have often told them that they might rely with confidence on His Majesty's esteem, his love of Justice & repeated assurances of Himself & His Royal Predecessors to afford them protection and to guard their rights, and that therefore it was needless for them to concern themselves about what might possibly prove a more remote contingency than the state of my health promised, but this was in no wise satisfactory, I am so wearied out with their reiterated solicitations that I find myself under the necessity of communicating them with such reflections as occur upon the subject. — I flatter myself that it is unnecessary for me to point out either the importance these People are still of in America, their capacity to hurt us, the advantages resulting from their friendship, or the peculiar necessity there is (& likely will be for some time) to have their affairs conducted in one regular channel, by an Agent of the Crown, without the difficulties & contrary interests that must result from Colony Management, as all these points were, & still are the sentiments of the wisest & most disinterested men, and should any doubt arise on any of these important points thro' the misrepresentation, partiality or ignorance of pretenders, I trust, nay I am confident, I can remove it, I must therefore take these principles for granted because I am thoroughly persuaded (not from casual or partial reflection) but from honest principles founded on long experience that the Trade & Settlement of this Country depends greatly on conduct flowing from such sentiments.—The reasonableness and expediency of such an affair being shewn, the propriety of such application at this time must remain with His Majesty, and it becomes not me to exceed the limits which my station & inclinations prescribe to myself of suggesting with all humility such thoughts only as are derived from my knowledge of the present state & inclinations of those committed to my superintendency, with whom I have been intimately acquainted more than thirty years, and who are so peculiarly situated and circumstanced that those only who possess the advantages are judges of their affairs. If this then is the case (of which I hope there is no doubt) then it will naturally follow that this being a peculiar Department, to which no other is similar, the person nominated to it, must possess such Qualifications, without which, he must be doubtless inadequate to the trust, there are doubtless few officers in the State that a Gentleman of good abilities after some little application may not be able to discharge with at least tolerable success, but this, My Lord, is of a very different and difficult nature, the most shining capacity must here be at a loss without a long series of application & knowledge which very few of any capacity at all have inclination or opportunity of acquiring, to all which, the affections of the Indians should necessarily be added as an ascendancy derived therefrom is so indispensably necessary, that I can affirm I have often carried the most important points nearly thro' personal influence when all other sanction had failed, If therefore I have the least claim to indulgence in support of the application of the Indians, I cannot withhold my warmest recommendations in favor of the Gentleman they wish for, and whilst I assure your Lordship that I rate my present reputation & future fame too highly to prostitute it for interest or partiality, I would rather hazard the imputation of both than refuse my testimony towards a measure that may benefit the Public when I am no more.

The Gentleman I have mentioned is my son in law. He has served His Majesty from his earliest youth, throughout the whole war in America. He often attended me in the field by permission of the Commander in Chief as my Secretary &c<sup>s</sup>, and was when appointed my Deputy in Seventeen Hundred & Sixty two a Lieut. in His Majesty's service, since which, his corps being reduced, He has been constantly employed in the Duties of his Office, and in that of Secretary which he principally discharged, the Gentleman appointed proving either superannuated or disqualified for that Office, by these means he early acquired a knowledge of Indian affairs, their politicks, & the mode of conducting Transactions, in all which he has been of great use to me, & to which he has been fortunate enough to add their highest esteem, but, My Lord, I shall urge the matter no farther, I still believe that I possess that confidence which his Majesty has been pleased to honor my faithful & long services, from which if I derive any judgement or value my own reputation I must have regard to the propriety of what is recommended, and I persuade myself that your Lordship will do me the justice to believe, that this application is owing to my disinterested convictions in it's favor. I beg to be honored with your Lordship's answer with His Majesty's gracious determination, so as to enable me to satisfy the Indians that I have fulfilled their desire.

I have the honor to be with the most profound Respect My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient

The Right Honorable
the Earl of Dartmouth.

& most faithfull Humble Servant

Johnson Hall May 2<sup>d</sup> 1774

My Lord,

I have the honor to transmit herewith a Copy of the principal transactions with Two Hundred and Sixty Cheifs and Warriors of the six Nations who brought here two Senecas concerned in a murder committed last Year on four Frenchmen on Lake Ontario as mentioned in my letter (N<sup>o</sup> 6) which persons contrary to antient customs I made a point of their delivering up to justice, & having at length prevailed, they are now committed to the County Jail, where they are to remain until I hear from General Haldimand, who some time since joyned me in opinion that on their making restitution for the goods they plundered at that time, it would at this juncture be good policy to discharge them, in consideration of the many murders committed on their people, for which no satisfaction could be obtained, & of the youth of the parties who were influenced thereto by a fellow who fled. Besides it being considered as an Act of clemency, there were no proofs to convict them, neither could restitution be expected if they suffered, w<sup>h</sup> would have proved very injurious to those Traders whose goods were taken. Indeed this is the first instance wherein the Senecas were ever prevailed on to sacrifice their antient customs to our laws, by delivering up offenders, & therefore I hope it will establish a good & wholesome precedent, without even carrying it to the utmost rigour of the Laws.

I come now to answer your Lordship's of the 1st of December (N<sup>o</sup> 6.) the effects that may derive from the unwarrantable establishments on the lands therein referred to, and of which your Lordship appears so sensible, are really alarming, and your Lordship may be assured of my full cooperation with Gen<sup>l</sup> Haldimand in every wholesome measure for preventing an evil of so dangerous a tendency, tho' I must confess I have very little hopes that settlements can be restrained by any ordinary measures, where the multitude have for so many years discovered such an ungovernable passion for these lands, and pay so little regard to a fair title, or the authority of the American Governments.—At the same time your Lordship's most judicious reflections on the present critical situation of Indian Affairs, arising from these causes combined with the endeavours of our natural enemies give me a full persuasion that Government will use every consistent measure for applying a remedy to these growing evils.—Last Summer I received a long account of a Message said to be sent to the Indians by the French King thro the channel of Canada with many particulars not mentioned in the Copy I had the honor to receive from your Lordship tho corresponding generally, indeed I have met with the like so often since the reduction of Canada, & have so often transmitted accounts of such intelligence that I am grown cautious how I enlarge on such reports to His Majesty's Ministers (for reasons I shall give presently) without such undeniable authorities as will remove every doubt, and these are not likely to be obtained. It is true I always had some men employed to gain intelligence, who have been of great use, who have never deceived me, and whose attachment & interest secures their fidelity, but these men are Indians, and as such, extremely cautious of giving a public Testimony that would endanger their lives, neither would their authority I apprehend be deemed sufficient to criminate those they accused, for their united accounts have borne hard on not only many of the clergy, but other persons in Canada, some of whom have within these few years had the address to acquire powerful advocates, of whom they could little avail themselves were their artifices as well known to others, as they are to myself, but however persuaded I am within myself of the truth of such informations, in general, it is probable I may be mistaken as to some of the parties, and it is neither consistent with my character or feelings to expose an innocent person to suspicion or bring so heavy a charge on such authorities without demonstrative proof.

The religion, government & genius of the French conspire to render them dangerous to us, & their enterprising disposition with the plausible manner they use to lull us into security until they compass their views has often been felt, and may as often be experienced hereafter, but in this capacity to do us harm, the Canadians exceed the native French, as they have less liberality of sentiment, stronger prejudice founded on greater ignorance, so that they are never without inclination to hurt us, or hopes of success, and this is not so much the case of their common people as of those, who from the difference of our government, are lowered as Noblesse or principal Traders injured by our application to commerce, which they would engross to themselves, and which they use every means to keep in their hands, in short their disposition and attachment to old interests is still so strong, that I have known some of them when speaking to the Indians, who even in my presence could scarcely be restrained from reflections on the English & encomiums on the French. I am sensible there may be several that think or say otherwise, but I speak from longer experience, and as little prejudice, emboldened by a consciousness of my own integrity. This system of politicks, & national character of the French as it led them to cultivate the affections of the Indians, has probably occasioned the French Government to consider them as very well calculated to create a diversion here, in case of a rupture, or to second their endeavours should they find it eligible to reestablish themselves in America, to which end emissaries are necessary for keeping up an intercourse with, & increasing the Indians jealousy of our growing power, but the effects are nearly the same, whether the Crown of France interests itself therein, or not, for the Canadians are full of these sentiments, and would find their account therein, if they had no other object but that of possessing the most valuable part of the Trade, which their people in the back country can carry on when our colonies are engaged in war, of which there were proofs enough during the late Indian troubles.—from which so ever of these causes or from whatever authority, the fact is pretty certain that immediately on the reduction of Canada, very large belts were delivered by some of the Clergy and other persons of consequence to certain French men & Indians who carried them thro' all the nations to Detroit, Michilimacina &c<sup>a</sup> importing that the King of France 'tho' conquered in one place was still alive, and that a French & Spanish Fleet would soon make its appearance, when they should all be made happy, and freed from the encroachments of the English. That therefore they should be in readiness with their axes sharp to strike a blow when called upon & in the interim that they should guard the avenues to their country against the English. The next year 1761, more belts were sent to Detroit advising them that the time was come for mischief, and exhorting them to rise, care having been taken by Jean Caire who had great influence with the upper Senecas, a people much inclin'd to the French, to induce the former to joyn therein, and Deputies went accordingly to the Nations at Detroit &c<sup>a</sup> but the plan being timely discover'd, and arriving there myself on the same year, when I held a congress with the surrounding nations, the storm blew over for that time. The ensuing Winter the Belts were renewed, and four French partizans went with them thro' all the Nations inviting them to a general confederacy, & to attack our posts, traders & frontiers at once with assurances of an approaching Fleet &c<sup>a</sup>. The complaints of grievances increased fast, & in my letter of the 20th August 1762 to the Lords of Trade I stated my sentiments & apprehensions, as well as afterwards communicated my farther discoveries. Lt Col. then Major Gladwin a worthy man & a brave officer of the 80th Regm<sup>t</sup> in March of that year obtained from two or three different Indians a verry circumstantial account of the whole design, with even a list of those Clergy & others who had explained & delivered the Belts to the Indians, at the same time I received sundry corroborating proofs but people in general were not inclin'd to think that the Indians were capable or willing to embark in such an undertaking, and many unlucky events too tedious to be at this time recapitulated then occurring, the ensuing spring the storm begun, the Out Posts & Traders fell the first sacrifice, & the effects are too well known to require a relation. In justice however to the major part of the Six Nations who preserved their fidelity, & whose situation renders them so consequential to us, I cannot omit observing that they were of signal use at that period against the enemy, amongst others, one Indian detachment I sent out attacked a party coming against our settlements, made the chief with forty others prisoners who were committed to our jails, & whose impending fate tied up the hands of their people, and these circumstances did not a little contribute to the calm that succeeded, however the attempts to rouse the Indians did not end with the War, those who contributed to excite it, saw plainly how much Indians could do without aid, and how little they could suffer. The old belts were revived, additional ones with messages brought by way of Mississippi, and delivered to the Tribes on the branches of Ohio &c<sup>a</sup> accompanied with verry substantial presents, False reports circulated, & every extravagance of the disorderly frontier Inhabitants and encroachers exaggerated, parties excited to do mischief on our communications, as well as to rob, murder & banish our traders whilst those from Canada were caressed, who are now in many places become factors for the English, & derive reputation from their goods. So that what with the artifices practiced by designing men amongst them, the Encroachments & many other acts of injustice of the Inhabitants on most of the Frontiers, the incapacity and (as it appears to the Indians) unwillingness of our American Governments to redress them, the jealousy of the Indians is rather encreased, and the belts are secretly cherished by those most aggrieved as so many assurances of relief, in so much that it was with great difficulty I had some of them delivered up, and there are yet more which I am using every practicable measure to obtain.—The fresh ones that have lately crept in amongst them with a view to revive the former, like all the rest were delivered by cautious men, in the most secret manner, without witnesses, as the only information to be obtained is in our laws defective & the testimony of Indians however clear, or corroborated by others is in general regarded with a slight, which is sensibly noticed by themselves.

In effect my Lord, tedious as this epistle may appear it really contains only heads, which to state fully would require much enlargement. Your Lordship will imediately perceive from what I have already mentioned, how difficult a task it must be to detect the authors, or trace such belts or messages to their true origin to which I should add that the Indians are so universally averse to our modes of capital punishment, that they would never stand to their information even against an Enemy, much less a secret friend from an apprehension that the parties must suffer death, of all which I could give instances, those who give the intelligence are often unacquainted with the authors, or content themselves with the relation of what they have heard, but this shall not prevent me from using all my endeavors to detect them, as well as to prevent y<sup>e</sup> operation of such schemes, & artifices, in which should I fail thro' any unhappy combination of unlucky events, I am still confident that I can divide them & make good use of the fidelity of a verry large number, than which, nothing can be more alarming to the Indians, who sensible of our numbers, dread most a disunion of Confederacies.—

On all those matters, I hope to give your Lordship more particular satisfaction after the intended Onondaga Congress, & the return of the Embassy I sent to the Westward.—

I am much obliged by your Lordships politeness respecting the appointment of a new Secretary, for which office, I take the liberty to recommend Mr Joseph Chew a gentleman of a respectable family in Virginia, who was formerly an Officer in the Troops of that Colony, & afterwards a Captain in the levies of this Province under my command in 1747 in which he behaved very well, He has since had many opportunities of being acquainted with the Indians, & has been for some time settled in this part of the Country; where he is a Magistrate, I trust that if he meets your Lordship's approbation, he will acquit himself with fidelity in that post.

I remain with the highest Esteem, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient,

& most devoted Humble Servant,

The Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth.

I am heartily glad that Providence has permitted us to meet you in health here at this Council Fire. I beg therefore, Brother, that you will give attention to what I am going to say to you which is on behalf of all our warriors as far as Canawago, and is of great importance.

Brother, Agreeable to the Engagements entered into by our Sachems to you last fall, We have used our endeavors to search after, and apprehend those men of our nation who killed four Canadians on Lake Ontario. Altho' this was done by some of the Seneca nation only, yet be assured that all the confederacy are much concerned, & affected thereby lest they shou'd be suspected of being privy thereto.—But we can assure, Brother that it was merely the wanton Act of the perpetrators alone without the knowledge, and contrary to the inclinations of the Confederacy, the Intelligence of which shocked us greatly, and accordingly we have spared no pains to apprehend the murderers to deliver them up to you, but the Ringleader suspecting our intentions, has made his escape, and there only remains the two young lads who were with him, and who were persuaded by him to join therein, for which we apprehended them, and have now brought them here with us to deliver them up to you. At the same time, Brother, we must observe, and I am sure you are very sensible it is a most delicate point with us, and a strong proof of the opinion we have of your advice that we now deviate from our ancient customs w<sup>ch</sup> in this case as well as many others differs widely from yours, by putting our people into your hands, when at the time we give you this proof of the regard we pay to our late engagements with you. You cannot be ignorant that many of our people have been lately murdered on the frontiers without our receiving the least satisfaction on that account, and surely it wou'd be highly unreasonable to exact from us an obedience to your laws, when your own people are permitted to escape.—We wou'd further observe that these young men according to custom but obeyed their leader, and were ignorant of the consequences, and therefore we presume that when you have duely considered all these circumstances, you will not use them with severity.—for we cannot help saying that it wou'd be far from appearing like an act of justice in the eyes of the many Indians Nations whom we are now endeavoring to attach firmly to the English, and who have been so troublesome for many years past. Those indeed who by only seeing a few of our people living within your country, may think us a people void of power, and understanding,—but you Brother know better, that we have often complained of the murders committed on our people without redress, and that we have at your desire, used our strongest endeavors to prevent our warriors from revenging their treatment, which altho' we know you are a great people it was in our power to obtain.—for our young men are all Warriors, and the great Spirit has still preserved to us the Springs of the Waters, and taught us all the paths to your Frontiers.—Brother. As we know all your people are great, so we hope they will be just, and not too severe upon us, considering what we daily suffer from them. We once more with this Belt recommend the affair to your serious consideration,—and as there are in every nation some bad intermixed with the good, we hope you will not lay the commission of this murder to our whole nation, but to that bad man who was the author, whom we have made diligent search after. Gave a large Belt.

Then added that the Prisoners were in their Camp at Sir William's disposal ready to be delivered up whenever he demanded them.

Adjourned to next day.

At a Congress held on Tuesday the 19th of April.

The Indians being all assembled painted, and dressed, acquaintee Sir W<sup>m</sup> of their being ready to proceed to business & accordingly Sayenquaraghta arose and spoke as follows.

Brother Warraghiyagey,

Having yesterday gone through the most essential part of our business of this present meeting, we come now to another point, which is your having last fall strongly recommended to us to endeavor to obtain Restitution for the Loss of the Peltries, those that were murdered had in their possession, which belonged to some persons in Canada. We are determined, Brother, according to our promise to you, to try all in our power to indemnify the sufferers in this unhappy affair, and therefore made it known to all the Warriors as far as Canawagow,<sup>1</sup> who have accordingly collected all the skins they possibly cou'd, some of which are already delivered up, and there are now at a village called Onoghsadago near Canawago, two packs which will shortly be send down with some others.—We hope therefore, brother, it will be evident to you that we have spared no pains in making up the losses of the sufferers as much as lay in our power, and that the English will not require us to make a double atonement.

Gave a Belt.

The Speaker then produced some Strings of Wampum relative to their Proceedings for discovering certain bad belts said to be still in the hands of some Indians to the Sout West & related the same as follows.

Brother, The messengers that last winter were sent by us to the Shawanese town Kagoughsage al. Akonwarage, when they arrived at Fort Pit, were informed that there were some of the Principal Indians of that Shawanese town, and nation then there, in consequence of which they went to those Shawanese, and asked whether they cou'd take upon them to hear, & receive the messages they had for their Nation from the Six Nations. The Shawanese replied that the head men of Agonwarage were then assembled there with some Twightwee Chiefs, and they thought it convenient, and proper they shou'd deliver their message there, and agreed to hear them the next day.—however ten days elapsed before they met, & the meeting being opened, the Shawanese expressed great satisfaction in seeing messengers from the Six Nations, telling them that Darkness had a long time reigned between them, and the Six Nations, and they were happy to see at last light appear from that Quarter, and at the same time were glad of the opportunity of having some of the Twightwees with them to hear what they had to impart from their Confederacy. Upon which the Deputies opened the Meeting with the usual Ceremonies, and then proceeded to observe that as the Six Nations had been for a long while employed in establishing peace upon a solid footing with their Brethren the English, and their whole Confederacy, and Dependants, and being told that a War Ax was still concealed, and unburied among them the Shawanese, which, it was said they had received from the Upper Senecas, and which the Onondagas some time ago unsuccessfully demanded, the Seneca Nation, in order to acquit themselves of all suspicion, were determined to come to the bottom of the matter, and therefore had sent them once more with a strict charge to enquire as much as possible into the affair, and if the report shou'd prove true, positively to demand the

Delivery of that Ax. To which the Shawanese Chief Nererahhe replied, that they the Shawanese were very glad to hear from the Six Nations, & kindly thanked them for their message, at the same time they must inform them that they were strangers to what they demanded of them, and that as they said they were sure where the Ax was concealed, they wou'd be glad they wou'd point it out to them, and convince them of the truth of their assertions that they might be able to clear up the matter satisfactorily.

The Messengers then told the Shawanese that the Onondagas Messenger Kakendanaye who was at Kakoughsage last in quest of the said Ax, had seen it there, upon which the Shawanese Chief replied that what Kakendanage saw at their town, was by no means an Ax Belt, and that he wou'd explain the matter to them as in reality it was viz'. That a Message was sent from the Hurons after making peace with the English at a Congress with Sir William Johnson in 1765, to the Delawares on Ohio, acquainting them that peace was made with the English in the strongest and most lasting manner, and with that condition that whatever nation of Indians declined entering into the same, or shou'd molest the English, the whole Confederacy were to punish them until they corrected their Error, that therefore they the Hurons had sent this belt to them the Delawares to keep themselves in readiness whenever called upon by the Confederacy on the like occasion.* When the belt was delivered to the Delaware Chief, he replied that he was an old man, and not capable of receiv<sup>e</sup> such messages, the Delaware nation being looked upon as women, and that it were best to apply to the Shawanese, upon which he sent the belt to him Nererahhe, but he being a Sachim, sent it to the Chief Warrior of his nation, Sowanowane to keep it, as he, as a Sachim, did not meddle but in matters of Peace, and Sowanowane received it, and assured him that he was of one mind with the Confederacy for rendering the peace universal, and was ready to comply with the Intention of the Hurons message of chastizing any nation that wou'd act contrary to the engagements the Confederacy made with their Brethren the English.—At the same time Nererahhe observed to them the Deputies, that he found by their message that the Onondaga Deputy Kakendinaye inflamed the same account of the Hurons Belt greatly, by calling it a Hatchet Belt against the English, and begged that Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson might be made acquainted with the truth of the matter, and drop and forget any evil thought or Construction he might have upon Kakandinaye's Report, that one of the Messengers not being thoroughly satisfied with this account of the War Ax told the Shawanese Chief of the Imputation their nation lay under with regard to their late Chief Akastarax, who professing himself no great friend to the English, had been suspected of sending an Ax to them the Shawanese, and other nations upon Ohio, and wou'd be glad to be satisfied in that point. The Shawanese Chief told them he knew nothing of it but wou'd refer him to Kaghsigwarote, the only one that consulted with, & delivered Akastarax his Messages to them, and was now living in their nation, who wou'd best be able to inform him of the particulars relative to that affair, and which Saweeto was determined to do on his return, but Kaghsigwarote having lost his niece, the cou'd not then speak to him, it being contrary to their custom, but intended to do it as soon as conveniently he cou'd.

With regard to the summons from the Six Nations to those on the Ohio, and its environs Nererahhe told the Messengers that himself, and his Nation had been ready on the first call to go to Onondaga, but that the rest of the Nations summoned at the same time, were not then ready, but that now all that were summoned were determined to go, and thirty runners were prepared to proceed from Scioto to announce their coming, and himself with another Chief was ready, and upon the point of setting off, desiring the Messengers to have a large hut got ready for their reception, as they wou'd be very numerous, that then having all the Confederacy together he hoped they wou'd be able to find out where the fault lay, and why this long desired peace cou'd not be brought about.

* N. What the Shawanese here say is partly true, that is with regard to the Belts in 1765, but they artfully evade giving an account of the bad belts rec'd from the Enemy in search of which the Messengers then were.

Nererahhe proceeded addressing himself to the Twightwees.

Brothers. You have now been present, and heard all the transactions between us, Sir William Johnson, and the Six Nations. It gives me pleasure it happened in your presence, for we receive all the News from the Six Nations concerning you, and the other nations round about you, and forward, & communicate it to you carefully in order to preserve peace and a good understanding between the Confederacy, and our Brothers the English.—but no sooner do our Messengers turn their backs, than y<sup>n</sup> alter, and put false constructions upon the friendly messages, and advice we send you, and by that means poison and corrupt the minds of the Indian Nations round about you which cannot but be productive of mischief on your side, as well as ours, & is liable to involve you in trouble, and expose you to the resentment of our Brothers, the English, whereas if you were to mind the wholesome advice you from time to time receive from Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, and the Six Nations, you wou'd enjoy peace & happiness. Let me therefore admonish you to act differently for the future, and you will soon taste the sweets of peace, and a free intercourse & friendship with your Brothers the English.

Whereupon the Twightwees replied that they wou'd defer giving an ans<sup>w</sup> until their Deputies shou'd meet at the Congress shortly to be held at Onondaga.

Sayenquaraghta then acquainted Sir W<sup>m</sup> that Kayashota the Chief of the Ohio had been indefatigable in the discharge of his Embassy, and that to manifest their cooperation therewith, he had been accompanied from the Seneca country by five of their Chiefs.

At a Congress with the Indians Thursday April 21st 1774

PRESENT— as before

Sir William Johnson addressed them as follows,

Brothers,

Though I am allways glad to see you punctual in your attendance according to engagement, yet I cannot help expressing my concern at meeting you on so disagreeable an occasion: For although I shou'd be unwilling to think that the murder committed upon Lake Ontario was an act that received the sanction of your people, yet I cannot but look upon it as a piece of cruelty, and injustice, that without proper satisfaction must reflect on the whole,—For if it is as disagreeable to you as I am inclined to believe, the punishment of the Guilty is meerly an act of justice you shou'd rather wish for, than oppose by any arguments whatever.

I have duely considered all you have offered upon the occasion, & as it is beneath the character of the English to evade, I shall not deny that some of your people have been killed on the frontiers, but I tell you as I have done before upon like occasions that too many of them are often concerned in irregularities upon our frontiers which expose them to the resentment of angry men who have no prospect of any redress from you.—For although among so numerous a people as the English who are spread all over the country some men may act ill, especially when remote from the seats of justice, yet you will always find an ear to hearken to your complaints, & a disposition to relieve them on due proof of the same.—We don't want you to set, but to follow an example which is of the highest importance to your peace & happiness, and we may naturally conclude that as the principal in the late murder cou'd not fly to us as some of our people have done to you, that it was in your power to have secured him, and sacrificed him to justice, and the character of your Confederacy.

However I shall in compliance with your desire, lay the matter before the General who commands all His Majesty's Troops in America, & use my endeavors with him in behalf of the Prisoners, thro' compassion of their ignorance, & a belief that you are heartily concerned at it. In the main time the prisoners must be put into confinement and when I receive the General's answer it shall be communicated to you. A Belt

Brothers.—I am glad to find that in consequence of my desire you immediately ordered collections to be made of skins, & peltry as a restitution to the owners of the goods when the murder was committed. Some of these are already sent down, but I expect, and insist upon it that you see that the restitution be ample, and that both in quantity and quality the sufferers may be fully reimbursed for their losses, for without this you can lay no claim to favor, neither shall I pay any regard to your declarations. Remember my words, and see that this is fully performed. A Belt.

Brothers.—I have duely attended to the particulars you gave me of your peoples proceedings with the Nations assembled at Ohio, of which I long since received an account from thence.—For I know all that passes in every Quarter. I have also spoken several times to yourselves upon the occasion of that Embassy; so that I shall defer giving my farther thoughts on the matter 'till I hear the Result of the intended Congress at Onondaga, when I expect that you will see that all the Nations concerned do punctually attend, and that every thing is conducted in such a manner as may convince the other Indians of your sincerity, and attachment to the English.

I am glad to hear of the good conduct of the Chief Kayashota in his Embassage, and that you have sent five of your Chiefs to accompany and enforce his endeavors. As I repose a Confidence in him, from my knowledge, and experience of his good behaviour, I shall always shew the same countenance to those who are distinguish'd for their fidelity & zeal, and I expect that from the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in him, the Nations whose heads have been for some time turned may be restored to their senses, which will tend greatly to your happiness, and the satisfaction of the English, who have hitherto sat still with their Axes, under their feet, thro' the fatherly tenderness of our Great King for these deluded people, and his regard for you, but they must remember that our people never take up the hatchet without cause, or lay it down w<sup>o</sup>ut satisfaction. A Belt.

Adjourned till next day.

PRESENT— as before.

Being all seated Sayenquaraghta Chief of the Senecas arose, and addressed Sir W<sup>m</sup> as follows.

Brother.—We have considered all that you have last said, and advised us to, and the Six Nations who always rely on, and follow your wise direction, now assure you that the most strict Orders have been given for collecting the full quantity of skins w<sup>ch</sup> the Traders have lost, what yet remains, you may be assured shall forthwith be sent to Onondaga, & from thence brought down the country for the sufferers, that you may see we are Warriors, and men of our words, and this the warriors desire me to assure you of.

Brother we have already told you of the escape of the principal concerned in that unhappy affair.—Here are now the two young men who were persuaded to be concerned therein.—We deliver them into your hands, because you insisted upon it.—We know your words to be sound, and good, and we can refuse you nothing, but, Brother, you must remember, you must be sensible, that this is a thing new, and uncommon to us, that it is contrary to our customs, and we must say, what was never required formerly,—neither cou'd we have agreed to it but to shew you that our arguments have great force with our people.—but as these are young men, & may be much alarmed at what appears so uncommon to them, we request you will allow us to leave three chiefs, friends of theirs here, with liberty to visit them occasionally in their confinement, until you hear from the General, and we think that what we have already done, is a strong assurance of our readiness to comply with all the other matters recommended to us, and that we though of some power, and strong in our alliances set a fair example to the other Nations.

To which Sir W<sup>m</sup> answered.

Brothers. I am pleased with your repeated assurances of delivering a full equivalent to those persons who lost their goods, and I expect you will be speedy: for it is beneath the character of Warriors to use fraud or falshood, and your speedy performance of your engagements is highly necessary at all times, but more especially at present.—I am not inclined to doubt you, because as you all know I never deceived you, I am the readier induced to think you will not impose on me, and thereby degrade, and injure yourselves.

Brothers. It gives me much satisfaction to hear that my arguments have determined you to deliver up these persons. For those Customs which you have so much regard for, are weak, and insufficient.—natural justice demands them at your hands, and the greatest men among us must suffer the penalties of the Laws because the English love justice.

I have no objections to those persons staying, whom you have mentioned, and they shall be permitted, now and then to see the Prisoners who must remain in safe custody 'till I receive answers from the General.—In the main time I recommend it to you to act with prudence & discretion, and to shew by your conduct with the other Nations that you deserve the favor of the English, and that you are true to your engagements.

New York, 4th May 1774.

My Lord,

By Governor Tryon's Absence from this Government, the Administration has again devolved upon Me. It shall be my study so to discharge my duty, that I may ensure your Lordship's Protection, and be made happy by my Royal Masters approbation of the last services of a very old servant.

Governor Tryon went home enabled to give your Lordship the fullest Information of the state of this Province. I need not mention any thing that he was acquainted with. The only Matter of Consequence which has occur'd since he left us, is the Transactions relative to the Tea from London.

Captain Lockyer, with the so long look'd for Tea from the India Company, arrived at Sandy Hook on the 19th of last month. The ship came no farther up, and a few days after sail'd from thence again for London with the Tea on Board. Neither the Capt<sup>l</sup>, nor any other, made the least Application to me, about the ship or her Cargoe. The Account of this Affair published in the enclosed News paper, is as particular and full as any that I could procure.

In the same Paper your Lordship will find an Account of some more violent Proceedings against a parcell of Tea imported by Capt<sup>l</sup> Chambers of the Ship London; who arrived here while Captain Lockyer was in this Place. As no application was made to me by Captain Chambers, or any other, before or since this riotous event, I cannot give your Lordship a better account of it than is contain'd in the printed Paper.—It happen'd early in the Evening, and, tho' a pretty large number of Spectators were assembled, the Quarter where I reside, and the greater part of the Town was perfectly quiet. It is said Captain Chambers drew the particular Resentment of the People upon himself by the duplicity of his Conduct. Last Voyage he claim'd applause here, for being the first who refused to take the India Company's Tea on Board his Ship; and received Public thanks from the People of this place for it.

A few days after Governor Tryon went from hence, a small sloop loaded with Dutch Tea, Duck &c. was seized by an Officer of the Custom House. She was taken in this Port, at Noon Day, and secur'd without any tumult on the Occasion.

Since Governor Tryon embarked I have received your Lordship's letters N<sup>o</sup> 17. and 18; likewise His Majesty's Additional Instruction of the third of February, and your Lordship's Circular Letter of the 5th accompanying it. I laid the Instruction and Letter before the Council, who have them still under Consideration, in order to form such Rules for our future Conduct, as may be consonant to His Majesty's Commands. I have likewise received your Lordships separate Letter of the 5th of February relative to Capt<sup>l</sup> David Price. I beg your Lordship may be assured that I will pay the strictest Obedience to His Majesty's Commands, and that I will endeavour to execute them in the most faithfull manner.

I am with great respect & submission

My Lord,

Your most Obedient and

faithfull Servant

[New-York Entries, LXIX., p. 26.]

John Robinson Esquire

Sir

Your letter to me of the 6th Instant inclosing a Memorial of two papers therein referred to presented to the Treasury Board by Major General Clinton has been laid before the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations and I am directed to acquaint you for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury that it does appear that General Clintons father was appointed Governor of New York in 1741 that he had an instruction in like manner as his predecessors had to take to himself out of the Revenue of this Province the annual Sum of one thousand two hundred pounds Sterling being the Salary allotted by the Crown for the Governor of that Province; that the operation of this Instruction was however defeated by the Assembly having upon the expiration of the Act on which this Instruction was founded adopted a method of providing for the support of Government annually instead of for a term of Year and appropriating annually a certain specific Sum to the Gov<sup>r</sup> for his Salary which Sum tho at first nearly adequate to one thousand two hundred pounds Sterling very soon fell short of it considerably by the Great variation in the course of exchange and the Consequential depreciation of the Coinage of the Province.

Upon this General view of General Clinton's Case the Lords of Trade are of opinion that he was well warranted to expect that both in Justice and Equity the Assembly of that Province should have made good to him the loss he sustained by the consequence of a deviation from the ancient mode of Granting Supplies adopted with a view to extend their own Authority and to create in the Officers of the Crown an improper dependance upon them.

This Act of Justice to M<sup>r</sup> Clinton was however repeatedly refused and such was the state of the Province and the conduct and temper of the Assembly during his whole Administration that he thought it advisable not to press a point in which his own interest was concerned from an apprehension that it might have the consequence to occasion a disappointment of more public Services which the exigencies of Government in time of War absolutely required and many of which thro' the backwardness and indisposition of the Assembly, M<sup>r</sup> Clinton was obliged to provide for out of his own Pocket.

From these considerations their Lordships are of opinion that General Clintons claim is equitable and they submit to the Lords of the Treasury whether it may not be reasonable that he should be compensated in whatever sum the allowance made to his father by the Assembly fell short of the Salary allotted by his Instructions.

I am,

Sir

Your most obedient and

Most humble Servant

No 2.

New York 1st June 1774.

My Lord,

I have received your Lordship's Commands of the 6th of April N<sup>o</sup> 19. I Immediately sent Mr Elliott the Receiver General of Quitrents, an Extra[c]t of what your Lordship writes in favour of Col. Skeene, and you may be assured no process will issue against his lands, for the Quitrents, 'till the Determination of the Lords of the Treasury is known.

The Act of Parliament shutting up the Port of Boston, was brought to this Place by a Merch<sup>t</sup> Vessel, a few Days before I received it from your Lordship's Office. The Act was immediately publish'd in all our News Papers, and was the subject of all Conversation. I knew that People universally in this Colony had received such Ideas of being taxed at the Pleasure of Parliament, that I was particularly anxious, upon this occasion, to discover the Sentiments of those who might have most Influence over others, and was assured by the Gentlemen of the Council, and others of weight in the City, that no means would be omitted, to prevent the hot headed People takeing any measures that might endanger the Peace and Quiet of the Colony.

The Men who at that time call'd themselves the Committee—who dictated, and acted in the name of the People, were many of them, of the lower Rank and all, the warmest zealots of those call'd the Sons of Liberty.—The more considerable Merchants & Citizens seldom or never appeared among them; but I believe were not displeas'd with the Clamour and Opposition that was shewn against internal Taxation by Parliament.—The Principal Inhabitants being now afraid that these hot headed men might run the City into dangerous measures, appear'd in a considerable body, at the first Meeting of the People after the Boston Port Act was publish'd here.—They dissolved the former Committee, and appointed a new one of 51 Persons, in which care was taken to have a number of the most prudent and considerate People of the Place, some of them have not before join'd in the Public proceedings of the Opposition, and were induc'd to appear in what they are sensible is an illegal character, from a Consideration that if they did not; the Business would be left in the same rash Hands as before.

Letters had been received from Boston with an Invitation from that Town to the Sister Colonies immediatly to come into a Resolution to refrain from any Commerce with Great Britain and the West India Islands, till the Act for shutting up the Port of Boston was repealed. A printed Hand Bill of this Proposal is inclosed.

I am inform'd that the New Committee, in their Answer to Boston, have given them no reason to expect that the Merchants of this Place will adopt so extravagant a measure. And People with whom I converse assure me, that they think it cannot be brought about by the most zealous advocates of Opposition.—As yet no Resolutions have been taken by the People of this Colony, and the cool prudent men will endeavour to keep Measures in suspence till they have an opportunity of adopting the Best.—I am told that they have propos'd that the Colonies be invited to send Deputies to meet together, in order to Petition the King for Redress of Greivances and to deliberate upon some Plan whereby the Jealousies between Great Britain & her Colonies may be removed. It is allow'd by the intelligent among them, that these Assemblies of the People, without Authority of Government, are illegal and may be dangerous; but they deny that they are unconstitutional when a national grievance cannot otherwise be removed.—What Resolutions will be taken I cannot as yet say.—The Government of this Province has no coercive Power over these Assemblies of the People, but the authority of the Magistrates in all other cases, is submitted to as usual.

I have reason from your Lordship's letters to suppose there is a Design to appoint another Lieutenant Governor of this Province. I trust in His Majesty's Justice, that when he is pleased to dismiss an old Servant, He will evince that tho' He may think Me too old to serve Him at a time when the task is become uncommonly arduous, I have not forfeited his Royal Protection and Favour. I shall persevere, my Lord, in constant application to a faithful Discharge of my Duty, and in endeavouring to preserve this Government in good Order

I am with the greatest respect & submission

My Lord

your most obedient and
faithfull Servant

Report of Governor Tryon on the Province of New-York.

[New York, CLXXVI.]

Report of His Excellency William Tryon Esquire, Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over the Province of New York and the Territory depending thereon in America, Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the same—
On certain Heads of Enquiry relative to the present State and Condition of His Majesty's said Province.

What is the situation of the Province under your Government, the nature of the Country soil and Climate: the Latitudes and Longitudes of the most considerable places in it: have those Latitudes and Longitudes been settled by good Observations, or only by common Computations, and from whence are the Longitudes computed ?

ANSWER

Situation of the Province The Province of New York is situated on the Atlantic Ocean which washes its Southern Shores: The Colonies of Connecticut, Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire lying to the East, Quebec to the North, and New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the Indian Country to the West.

Nature of the Country and its soil. The Face of the Country is every where uneven, with all the variety of soil to be found any where—In the Northern Parts are low lands enriched by the overflowing of Rivers, but little of this sort lies within Seventy miles of the City of New York the Metropolis—The soil in general is much thinner and lighter in the Southern, than in the Northern Parts and having been longer under Culture and subject to bad Husbandry, is much more exhausted.

Climate. The Province extending nearly Four Degrees and an half of Latitude, the difference of Climate between the Southern and Northern Parts is remarkable. In Summer the Heat is sometimes excessive, and in general much greater than in England.—Melons and many other Things are raised here by the natural warmth of the climate which in England require the aid of Hot Beds and Glasses.—The Winter in all parts of the Province is more severe than in England,—tho' the Latitude of London is about ten Degrees more North than the City of New York—Even in the Southern Part the Mercury in Farrenhight's Thermometer sinks some Degrees below  $^{\circ}$  and rises to  $90^{\circ}$  but these extremes are always of short Duration.—At Albany and to the Northward of that City the Harvest is about a Month later than at New York, and the Winter is much earlier, Hudson's River is generally frozen over many miles below Albany before the middle of December but no Quantity of Ice is found in the River within thirty Miles of the City of New York, earlier than the Month of January—In March the Navigation is again open up to Albany; And it is observed the Seasons both as to Heat and Cold grow more temperate.

The Light House at Sandy Hook .....	40 <sup>o</sup> 27' 40.
Fort George City of New York .....	40 41 50.
Mouth of Mackhacamac Branch of Delaware, where the Line settled between New York & New Jersey terminates .....	41 21 37.
City of Albany .....	42 36 00.
The South End of Lake George .....	43 16 12.
Crown Point .....	43 50 7
Windmill Point .....	44 57 18.
Point au Pine .....	44 58 48.
Moores Point .....	45 00 00.

Longitude The Longitude of the City of New York has been found by good Observations of the Satellites of Jupiter to be  $74^{\circ}$  38 West from London.

What are the reputed Boundaries, and are any Parts disputed, and by whom ?

ANSWER

Boundaries of the Province The Boundaries of the Province of New York are derived from Two Sources First, the Grants from King Charles the Second to his Brother James Duke of York dated the 12 March 166 $\frac{2}{3}$ , and the 29 June 1674, which were intended to convey to the Duke all the Lands claimed by the Dutch, the first Occupants of this Colony.—Secondly, from the Submission and Subjection of the Five Nations of Indians to the Crown of England.

As grounded on the Grants from Charles the 2d to James Duke of York. The Descriptive part of both the Duke's Grants is in the same Words and exclusive of the Territory Eastward of Connecticut River, since granted to the Massachusetts Bay by their Charter of 1691, comprehends "All that Island or Islands commonly called Mattawacks or Long Island, together with Hudson's River, and all the Land from the West side of Connecticut River to the East side of Delaware Bay. Connecticut River extends beyond, and Hudson's River takes its rise a little to the Southward of the Forty fifth Degree of Northern Latitude; And as a Line from the Head of the River Connecticut to Delaware Bay, would exclude the greatest part of Hudson's River, which is expressly granted to the Duke of York, the Boundary most consistent with the Grants to the Duke, and the Claim of New York founded thereon, is, a Line from the Head of Connecticut River to the Source of Hudson's River, thence to the Head of Mohawk Branch of Hudson's River, and thence to the East side of Delaware Bay.

That this has been the reputed Boundary under the Duke's title is confirmed by the Grants of this Government extending Westward nearly to the Head of the Mohawk Branch of Hudson's River, and Southward of that Branch to within a few miles of the North Boundary of Pennsylvania.

No other Construction will satisfy the Terms of the Grants to the Duke, nor any Lines less comprehensive, include the Lands patented by this Province, or ceded to the Crown by the Indians, at the Treaty at Fort Stanwix in 1768.

And as grounded on the Claim of the Five Nations of Indians. The Second Source of the Title of this Government is grounded on the Claim of the Five Nations who are in the Treaty of Utrecht acknowledged by France to be subject to Great Britain.

Soon after the English conquered this Country from the Dutch, pursuing their system of Policy, they entered into a strict Alliance with the Natives, who by Treaties with this Colony, subjected themselves to the Crown of England, and their Lands to its protection, and from this period were always treated as Subjects, and their Country consider'd by this Government as part of the Province of New York, which probably gave rise to the extended jurisdiction of the Colony beyond the Duke's Grants, signified by the Words "The Teretories depending thereon" which are found in all the Commissions of the Crown to its Governors. Nor has the Crown except by the Confirmation of the Agreement fixing the Boundary of Connecticut at about Twenty miles East of Hudson's River at any Time contracted the jurisdiction of the Colony Westward of Connecticut River and Southward of the Latitude 45 the Proclamation of His present Majesty of the 7th of October 1763, leaving the jurisdiction Southward of that Latitude as it stood before, tho' it prohibits for the present the farther Extension of the Grants and Settlements into the Country thereby reserved to the Indians, to avoid giving Umbrage to that people who complained they were too much straitned in their hunting grounds. It is uncertain at this Day to what Extent the Five Nations carried their claim to the Westward and Northward but there is no doubt it went to the North beyond the 45 Degree of Latitude and Westward to Lake Huron, their Beaver Hunting Country being bounded to the West by that

Lake, which Country the Five Nations by Treaty with the Governor of this Province at Albany in 1701, surrender'd to the Crown to be protected and defended for them—Mitchel<sup>1</sup> in his Map extends their Claim much further Westward, and he is supported in this opinion by Maps and other Authorities very Ancient and Respectable.

The above Treaty of 1701 is to be found among the Records of Indian Transactions but it is recited and the surrender made thereby confirmed in a Deed dated the 14 September 1726 by which the Seneca, Cayouga and Onondaga Nations also surrender'd their Habitations to King George the first, a Copy whereof is inserted in the Article of the Appendix Number 1.

Oswego on the South side of Lake Ontario was first established by this Colony about 1724, a Garrison of the Kings Troops supported there at the Expence of this Government, and the Jurisdiction of New York actually exercised Westward to Oswego and its Vicinity until the Commencement of Hostilities in the late War.

His Majesty's Order of the 20 July 1764 confirming the Ancient Limits as granted to the Duke declares "The Western Banks of the River Connecticut, from where it enters "the Province of the Massachusetts Bay as far North as the Forty fifth Degree of Northern

JOHN MITCHELL, M. D., F. R. S., was a native of England, and was sent to Virginia in the fore part of the 18th century, for the purpose of investigating the Botanical treasures of America; his residence was chiefly at Urbanna, in the county of Middlesex, Va., a small seaport about 18 miles above the mouth of the Rappahannock. He was a great botanist and seems to have paid particular attention to the hybrid productions. After discovering many new genera and species he returned to England. The following is a list of his works:

“Latitude,” to be the Boundary Line between the two Provinces of New Hampshire and New York: And if the Agreement lately concluded at Hartford should finally be ratified by the Crown, the Eastern Limits of this Colony where it borders on the Massachusetts Province, will extend about Twenty Miles only East from Hudson’s River.

Without any view to the more Westerly claim of the Five Nations, supposing the Colony to comprize within its Limits or Jurisdiction, the Country those Nations surrendered to the Crown by the Description of the Beaver Hunting Country surrendered to the Crown by Treaty with this Province in 1701. Country as before mentioned—The Boundaries of the Province of New York are as follow.

Description of Boundary supposing the Colony to include the Beaver Hunting Country surrendered to the Crown by Treaty with this Province in 1701.

On the South.

The Atlantic Ocean, including Long Island, Staten Island and others of less note.

On the West.

The Banks of Hudson’s River from Sandy Hook, on the Ocean, to the 41 Degree of Latitude, thence the Line established between New York and New Jersey to Delaware River—Thence the River Delaware to the Northeast Corner of Pennsylvania or the Beginning of the Latitude 43, which in Mitchel’s Map is by mistake carried thro’ the whole of that degree.—Thence the North Boundary Line of Pennsylvania, to the Northwest Corner of that Province; and continuing the same Line to a point in Lake Erie which bears due South from the East Bank of the Streight of D’Etroit and of Lake Huron to the Forty Fifth Degree of Northern Latitude.

On the North.

A Line from a point on the East bank of Lake Huron in the Latitude of forty five East to the River St. Lawrence, or the South Boundary Line of Quebec; Thence along the South Boundary Line of that Province across the River St. Lawrence to the Monument on the East Bank of Lake Champlain, fixed there in the 45 Degree of Northern Latitude; Thence East along the Line already run and marked to the Monument or Station fixed on the West Bank of the River Connecticut in the same Latitude.

On the East.

The Western Banks of the River Connecticut from the last mentioned Station to the Southwest Corner of the Province of New Hampshire, in the North boundary Line of the Massachusetts Bay; and from thence along that Line, (if continued) and the Western limits of the Province of Massachusetts Bay, and the Colony of Connecticut.

In the Appendix Number 4, is a Map of the Province of New York according to the preceding Description of its Boundaries.

The Boundary of the Province of New York (in respect to the other Governments) being established in every part except where it borders to the East on the Massachusetts Bay, it was conceived, the late agreement with that Province when ratified by the Crown, would extinguish every Controversy respecting the Limits of New York, the North boundary Line of the Massachusetts having in the year 1740 been ascertained by a Royal Decree of the King in Privy Council, in the Contest between that Province and New Hampshire. But the Massachusetts Commissaries at the late meeting at Hartford in 1773, declared that they had no authority to settle their North Boundary, which they considered as undetermined with respect to New York And one of those Gentlemen intimated that they still left open their Western Claim to the South Sea.

Disputes that may still arise with Massachusetts Bay, in respect to the Limits of this Province.

Hence two very important Disputes may still arise of great Consequence to the Interests of the Crown, as well as the Property of His Majesty's Subjects of this Colony.

Observations on the Massachusetts Northern Claim. The Massachusetts Northern Claim beyond the Line settled between that Province and New Hampshire, extends North from that Line about Fifty Miles, and from thence Westward to within Twenty Miles East of Hudson's River, and after passing this Province, is commensurate with their Western Claim to the South Sea—The immediate object of their Northern Claim is a Country between Connecticut and Hudson's Rivers about fifty miles in length and about Forty in breadth, and includes not only the greater part of the County of Cumberland, but a large district of the Counties of Albany and Charlotte.—The Lands there in question are wholly appropriated under Grants of this Province of New Hampshire, and the Families settled thereon are not less than Two Thousand, tho' they probably exceed that Number.

The Massachusetts Bay long acquiesced in the Royal Decree of 1740, the Line established by that Decision hath actually been run and marked from the South west Corner of New Hampshire Westward, to within about Twenty Miles East of Hudson's River, And the Inhabitants of New York and the Massachusetts Bay have deemed that Line to be the utmost Extent of the Massachusetts North Boundary, whatever might have been determined as to their Western Limits. And that this was the sense of the General Court of that Province soon after the Treaty of 1767, for settling the Boundary of the two Provinces, appears clearly by their Resolution of the 23<sup>d</sup> January 1768 in these Words "Resolved that this Court will concede to and confirm the last proposal made by their Commissioners on the Part of New York at their late conference, in the words of the Report of the Lords of Trade and Plantations in May 1757, That a streight Line be drawn Northerly from a point on the Southern Line of the Massachusetts Bay Twenty Miles due East from Hudson's River, to another point Twenty Miles due East from the said River, on the Line which divides the Province of the Massachusetts Bay from New Hampshire, be the Eastern Boundary of New York."

Nor can any Line more favorable to the Massachusetts Colony be hereafter established, without subverting the Principles, and calling in question the justice of the Royal Decree pronounced in 1740 after full hearing of the merits of the Massachusetts claim on the Appeal of both parties to the King in Privy Council; and which could it now be effected, must not only prove highly injurious to the Crown in respect to the right of soil, its Quit Rents and Escheats, but be productive of the greatest Disorder and Confusion in that Country.

Remarks on the claim of Massachusetts Bay Westward to the South Sea, showing a Defect in their Title as a Corporation and the propriety of ratifying this as an objection, should they prosecute their claim to a North Boundary beyond the present line established between that Province and New Hampshire, or their Western claim to the South Sea. The Province of Massachusetts Bay ground their claim Westward to the South Sea on the Deed dated 19 March 162 $\frac{1}{2}$  from the Council of Plymouth to Sir Henry Roswell &c. and their associates.—As also on the Charter or Letters patent of Charles the First dated the 4 March 162 $\frac{3}{8}$ .—The Lands granted are the same in both, being in breadth about sixty miles, and extending as described in these Instruments "From the Altantic and Western Sea and Ocean on the East part to the South Sea on the West part."

But the Crown being divested of these Lands by the Grant to the Council of Plymouth in 1620, could not pass them by its Charter of 162 $\frac{3}{8}$ , which had no other Operation than to form the Massachusetts Bay into a Province, and to invest the same with powers as a Body Corporate.

It became necessary therefore for the Massachusetts Bay after they were incorporated, to obtain a conveyance to the Corporation of the Lands granted to Roswell &c. and Associates. —That they obtained such conveyance has not been pretended. —If they had, the Crown either became rezeized of the Lands of the Corporation by the Judgment in 1634, which vacated the Letters Patent of 1628<sup>o</sup>, or the property reverted to the Grantees of the Council of Plymouth.

Had the Crown been rezeized it might have passed the same lands to the Massachusetts Province by the present Charter of 1691: But instead of so extensive and unreasonable a Grant of Three Thousand Miles in length, they obtained, it is true, by that Charter a great addition of Territory Eastward, but were confined in their Western Limits, which extend “towards the South Sea as far as the Colonies of Rhode Island, Connecticut and the “Narragansett Country,” This Description in strict construction of Law will carry the Massachusetts Bay West no further than the Eastern Bounds of Connecticut, and by the most liberal interpretation do not extend their Boundary beyond the West line of Connecticut, then and for some years before determined by Agreement between that Colony and New York, to be upwards of Twenty Miles East of Hudson’s River.

On the other hand admitting the Massachusetts Bay after their Charter of 1628|9, and before it was vacated in 1684, did not obtain a Conveyance of the Lands granted to Roswell &c. and Associates, the Judgment which vacated that Charter did not affect the Lands but left the Title in Roswell &c and Associates, and the Crown could not by the Charter of 1691, grant them to the Massachusetts Colony; so that the Title, if any exists, must at this day be vested in the heirs or Assigns of Roswell &c and Associates in their private Right, and not in the Government of the Massachusetts Bay, unless transferred to or vested in the latter by some Act of their Provincial Legislature, if such an Act could possibly have any Efficacy.

It is however presumed no Law of that Tendency has been passed, and if any should hereafter be presented for His Majesty’s approbation, that it will be objected to (so far as it may countenance the Extension of their Northern or Western Claim beyond the Limits of their present Charter) as a measure calculated to divest the Crown of the right of soil in that very large and extensive Territory, which lies Westward of the Colony of New York to the South Sea.

This claim had it been considered as well grounded would long since have been prosecuted and brought to a decision.—The Massachusetts General Court or Assembly assert it in a Resolve they passed on the 29<sup>d</sup> of January 1768, but whether with an Intention to maintain it, Time must discover.—A claim so long dormant, can hardly be expected under any Circumstance to be now revived with a prospect of success, and whatever Judgment the Assembly of the Massachusetts Bay may have formed, certainly their present Governor had no opinion of its solidity, when at the late meeting of the Commissaries of both Provinces at Hartford in 1773 he declared “That it was a mere Ideal, Visionary project, in which he “believed Nobody to be sincere,” and discovered an anxiety least it should interrupt the progress of the Treaty.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 3.

What is the size and extent of the Province, the Number of Acres supposed to be contained therein; What part thereof is cultivated and improved; and under what Title, do the Inhabitants hold their possessions?

ANSWER.

The extent of the Province from North to South is about 300 Statute Miles, Size and extent of the Province Nassau Island (commonly called Long Island) is situated to the South; its length from East to West, is about 150 miles, and its breadth on a Medium about fifteen Miles; The breadth of the Province Northward of this Island is various. From the City of New York North about 20 Miles up the Country, the breadth does not exceed 14 miles, and lies wholly on the East side of Hudson's River, New Jersey being bounded by the opposite shore — From the 41st degree of Latitude the Province extends on both sides of that River; Soon widens to about 60 miles; and increases in breadth up to the 42<sup>d</sup> Degree, where it is about 80 miles wide; supposing the Western Boundary to extend to the Line mentioned in the Answer to the preceding Question N<sup>o</sup> 2, the Extent from the 42<sup>d</sup> Degree to the North Line of Massachusetts Bay (a distance of 49 miles) is about 456 miles, and from thence to the 45th Degree, it extends East and West on a Medium about 500 Miles, and on the like supposition the number of Square Miles contained within this Province exclusive of the Lakes is 82,112, or 52,551,650 Acres, which is one fourth less than the number contained in the Province of Quebec.

Parts cultivated. Nassau or Long Island which contains Kings, Queens and Suffolk Counties. Staten Island which forms Richmond County and the Counties of New York, Westchester, Dutchess, Orange and Ulster, are all well inhabited, and not many large Tracts of improveable land are left uncultivated. — The County of Albany tho' the Inhabitants are numerous, and the Lands in general under Cultivation in the South, contains extensive and valuable Tracts unimproved in the North part. — Tryon County, tho' thinly settled, as its extent is great, has many Inhabitants. — The cultivated parts of Charlotte County are inconsiderable, compared with what remain to be settled, and the same may be remarked with respect to the Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester. — In the Appendix is a List of the Inhabitants White and Black in the respective Counties, according to the returns of their number, in 1771, since which they are greatly augmented, but it is to be observed, that the new Counties of Charlotte and Tryon were then part of Albany.

The proportion of the cultivated to the uncultivated parts of the Province (the Limits as stated in N<sup>o</sup> 2) is as one to four; or one fifth only improved.

Titles under which lands are held. With respect to the Titles under which the Inhabitants hold their possessions; Before this Province was granted on 12 March 166 $\frac{2}{3}$  by King Charles the Second to his brother James Duke of York, the Dutch West India Company had seized it, made settlements and issued many Grants of Land. — In August 1664 the Country was surrendered by the Dutch to the English, and by the 3<sup>d</sup> Article of the Terms of Capitulation it was stipulated "That all People shall continue free Denizens and shall enjoy their Lands, "Houses and goods wheresoever they are within this Country and dispose of them as they "please." Some lands of the Province are held under the old Dutch Grants without any Confirmation of their Titles under the Crown of England, but the ancient Records are replete with Confirmatory Grants, which the Dutch Inhabitants were probably the more solicitous to obtain from an Apprehension that the Dutch conquest of the Province in 1673, might render their Titles under the former Articles of Capitulation precarious; tho' the Country was finally restored to the English by the Treaty signed at Westminster the 9th Feb<sup>r</sup> 1674.

From that period it has remained in the possession of the English, and the Duke of York on the 29th of June 1674, obtained a New Grant from the King, of all the Territories included within the former Letters Patent in 1663.

During the life of King Charles the Second the Duke of York as proprietor of the soil, passed many Grants (by his Governors) in Fee, and since his Accession to the Throne, Grants have continued to issue under the Great Seal of the Province, in consequence of the Powers given the several Governors by their Commissions and Instructions from the Crown.—Two Instances only occur of Grants or Letters Patent for Lands under the Great Seal of Great Britain.—One to Sir Joseph Eyles and others on the 15th May in the 4th year of His late Majesty King George the Second for a Tract of 62,000 acres, called the Equivalent Land from its having been ceded to New York by the Colony of Connecticut (on the settlement of the boundary between the two Provinces) in lieu of a like Quantity yielded up to Connecticut by the Province of New York.—The other lately, to Sir William Johnson Baronet—The Lands granted to Sir Joseph Eyles and his Associates are not possessed by them or their assigns, Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the Province of New York having passed to others for the same Lands, before it was known here that the Royal Grant was obtained; and the Lands are now in possession of the New York Patentees or their Assigns.

These are all the different modes by which the Inhabitants have derived any legal Titles to their Lands within the Limits of this Province, whence it appears that all their lawful titles to Lands in Fee, except in the cases of old Dutch Grants unconfirmed) originated from the Crown either mediately thro' the Duke of York before his Accession to the Throne, or immediately by grants under the Great Seal of Great Britain or of this Province.

Purchases from the Indian Natives, as of their aboriginal right have never been held to be a legal Title in this Province, the Maxim obtaining here, as in England, that the King is the Fountain of all real property, and that from this source all Titles are to be derived.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 4.

What Rivers are there, and of what extent and convenience in point of Commerce?

ANSWER

Rivers Hudson's River is the only Navigable River in the Province, and affords a safe and easy Passage for Vessels of Eighty Tons Burthen to the City of Albany, which is about 180 miles from the Sea.—It has already been mentioned that it extends nearly to the Latitude of 45—but the Navigation except for small Vessels terminates at or near that City.—To the Northward of Albany about Ten Miles this River divides. The Western Branch which (above the Great Cahoo Falls) is called the Mohawk River, or the Mohawk Branch of Hudson's River leads to Fort Stanwix, and a short cut across the carrying place there might be made into Wood Creek which runs into the Oneida Lake, and thence thro' the Onondaga River into Lake Ontario.

The other Branch being the continuation of the main River tends to Fort Edward, to the North of which it seems practicable to open a passage by Locks &c. to the Waters of Lake Champlain which communicate with the River St. Lawrence, passing over the falls at St. Johns.

Both Branches are interrupted by Falls and Rifts; to surmount these obstructions, an Expence would be required too heavy for the Province at present to support, but when effected would open a most extensive inland navigation, equal perhaps to any as yet known.

Between Nassau or Long Island and the Continent the greatest Distance scarcely exceeds Twenty Miles.—Near the City of New York it is less than one Mile, and is there called the East River, and from thence bears the appellation of the Sound. The River and Sound afford Navigation for Vessels of any Burthen towards the Collonies of Connecticut, Rhode Island, and the Massachusetts Bay, in some degree hazardous however at the noted place distinguished by the name of Hell Gate about six miles East of the City of New York.

Connecticut River where it divides this Province from New Hampshire is included within the Limits of the latter.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 5.

What are the Principal Harbours, how situated and of what Extent; and what is the Depth of Water, and nature of Anchorage in each?

ANSWER

Harbours There is but one principal Harbour, which is the Port of New York being that part of the East River fronting the City and lying between that and Long Island.—The Harbour is in length from the North east to the South west about two Miles, and its Breadth across to Long Island about one Mile. The Depth of the Water from Four to Eight Fathom, tho' in some places not more at low water than Ten Feet. In Nip Tides the Water rises about Four Feet and an half, at the Full and Change of the Moon, Six, and if at those Seasons a Strong Easterly Wind prevails, the rise of the Tides increase to Eight Feet. The Anchorage is good in a bottom of Mud: there is only one remarkable Reef of Rocks about Mid: channel, half a Mile within the Entrance; And the Harbour being shelter'd in front by Long Island; to the East by a sudden bend in the River, and to the West by Nutten Island; Vessels during the hardest Gales ride in great safety, and are only incommoded a few days in the Winter by the floating Ice.

The Map in the Appendix marked number 3, presents a full View of the Harbor, the Situation of Sandy Hook, and shews the Depth of Water from thence up to the Port.

What is the Constitution of the Government?

ANSWER

Constitution of the Government By the Grants of this Province and other Territories to the Duke of York in 166 $\frac{2}{3}$  and 1674, the powers of Government were vested in him, and were accordingly exercised by his Governors until he ascended the Throne when his Rights as Proprietor merged in his Crown, and the Province ceased to be a charter Governm<sup>t</sup>

From that time it has been a Royal Government, and in its constitution nearly resembles that of Great Britain and the other Royal Governments in America. The Governor is appointed by the King during his Royal Will and pleasure by Letters pattent under the Great Seal of Great Britain with very ample Powers.—He has a Council in Imitation of His Majesty's Privy Council.—This Board when full consists of Twelve Members who are also appointed by the Crown during Will and Pleasure; any three of whom make a Quorum.—The Province enjoys a Legislative Body which consists of the Governor as the King's Representative; the Council in place of the House of Lords, and the Representatives of the People, who are chosen as in England: Of these the City of New York sends four.—All the other Counties (except the New Counties of Charlotte and Gloucester as yet not represented send Two —The Borough of Westchester, The Township of Schenectady and the three manors of Renselaerswyck, Livingston and Cortlandt each send one; in the whole forming a Body of Thirty one Representatives.

The Governor by his Commission is authorized to convene them with the advice of the Council, and adjourn, prorogue or dissolve the General Assembly as he shall judge necessary.

This Body has not power to make any Laws repugnant to the Laws and Statutes of Great Britain. All Laws proposed to be made by this Provincial Legislature, pass thro' each of the Houses of Council and Assembly, as Bills do thro' the House of Commons and House of Lords in England, and the Governor has a Negative voice in the making and passing all such Laws. Every law so passed is to be transmitted to His Majesty under the Great Seal of the Province, within three Months or sooner after the making thereof and a Duplicate by the next Conveyance, in order to be approved or disallowed by His Majesty; And if His Majesty shall disallow any such Law and the same is signified to the Governor under the Royal Sign Manual or by Order of his Majesty's Privy Council, from thenceforth such law becomes utterly void.—A law of the Province has limited the duration of the Assembly to seven years.

The Common Law of England is considered as the Fundamental law of the Province and it is the received Doctrine that all the Statutes (not Local in their Nature, and which can be fitly applied to the circumstances of the Colony) enacted before the Province had a Legislature, are binding upon the Colony; but that Statutes passed since do not affect the Colony, unless by being specially named, such appears to be the Intention of the British Legislature.

The Province has a Court of Chancery in which the Governor or Commander in Chief sits as Chancellor, and the Practice of the Court of Chancery in England is pursued as closely as possible. The Officers of this Court consist of a Master of the Rolls newly created.—Two Masters.—Two Clerks in Court.—A Register.—An Examiner, and a Serjeant at Arms.

Of the Courts of Common Law the Chief is called the Supreme Court.—The Judges of which have all the Powers of the King's Bench, Common Pleas & Exchequer in England. This Court sits once in every three months at the City of New York, and the practice therein is modell'd upon that of the King's Bench at Westminster.—Tho' the Judges have the powers of the Court of Exchequer they never proceed upon the Equity side.—The Court has no Officers but one Clerk, and is not organized or supplied with any Officers in that Department of the Exchequer, which in England has the care of the Revenue.—The Judges of the Supreme Court hold their Offices during the King's Will & Pleasure and are Judges of Nisi prius of Course by Act of Assembly, & annually perform a Circuit thro' the Counties. The Decisions of this Court in General are final unless where the value exceeds £300 Sterling, in which case the subject may be relieved from its errors only by an Application to the Governor and Council, and where the value exceeds £500 Sterling an appeal lies from the Judgment of the latter to His Majesty in Privy Council.

By an Act of the Legislature of the Province suits are prohibited to be brought in the Supreme Court where the value demanded does not exceed £20 Currency.

The Clerk's Office of the Supreme Court, has always been held as an appendage to that of Secretary of the Province.

There is also in each County an Inferior Court of Common Pleas, which has the cognizance of all Actions real, personal and mixed, where the matter in demand is above £5 in value.—The practice of these Courts is a mixture between that of the King's Bench and Common Pleas at Westminster.—Their errors are corrected in the first Instance by Writ of Error brought into the Supreme Court; and the Judges hold their Offices during pleasure.—The Clerks of these Courts also hold their offices during pleasure and are appointed by the Governor, except the Clerk of Albany who is appointed under the King's mandate.

Besides these Courts the Justices of peace are by Act of Assembly empowered to try all causes to the Amount of £5 currency, (except where the Crown is concerned, or where the Title of Lands shall come into Question;—and Actions of Slander) but the parties may either of them demand a Jury of Six Men.—If wrong is done to either party, the person injured may have a Certiorari from the Supreme Court, tho' the remedy is very inadequate.

The Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction are Correspondent to those in England.—The Supreme Court exercises it in the City of New York, as the King's Bench does at Westminster.—The Judges when they go the Circuit have a Commission of Oyer and Terminer and General Goal Delivery; and there are Courts of Sessions held by the Justices of the Peace; the powers of which and their proceeding correspond with the like Courts in England.—The Office of Clerk of the Sessions, is invariably connected with that of the Clerk of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas in the respective Counties.

By Acts of the Provincial Legislature the Justices of the Peace have an extraordinary Jurisdiction with respect to some offences by which any three Justices, (one being of the Quorum) where the Offender does not find Bail in 48 Hours after being in the custody of the Constable, may try the party without any or a Jury, for any Offence under the Degree of Grand Larceny; and inflict any punishment for these small offences at their Discretion, so that it exceeds not to Life or Limb.—And any three Justices of the Peace (one being a Quorum) and Five Freeholders have power without a Grand or Petty Jury to proceed against and try in a Summary Way, Slaves offending in certain cases, and punish them even with Death.

The Duty of His Majesty's Attorney General of the Province, is similar to the Duty of that Officer in England, and the Master of the Crown Office: He is appointed by the Crown during pleasure, and His Majesty has no Solicitor General nor Council in the Province, to assist the Attorney General upon any Occasion.

There are two other Courts in the Province. The Court of Admiralty which proceeds after the Course of the Civil Law in matters within its Jurisdiction, which has been so enlarged by divers statutes, as to include almost every breach of the Acts of Trade.—From this Court an appeal lies to a Superior Court of Admiralty, lately Established in North America by statute; before this Establishment an appeal only lay to the High Court of Admiralty of England.

The Prerogative Court concerns itself only in the Probate of Wills and in matters relating to the Administration of the Estates of Intestates and in granting Licences of Marriage. The Governor is properly the Judge of this Court but it has been usual for him to Act in general by a Deligate.

The Province is at present divided into fourteen Counties, viz' The City and County of New York—The County of Albany—Richmond (which comprehends the whole of Staten Island) King's, Queen's and Suffolk (which include the whole of Nassau or Long Island.) Westchester, Dutchess, Ulster, Orange, Cumberland, Gloucester, Charlotte and Tryon.—For each of these Counties a Sheriff and one or more Coroners are appointed by the Governor, who hold their offices during pleasure.

As to the Military power of the Province, the Governor for the time being is the Captain General and Commander in Chief and appoints all the Provincial Military Officers during pleasure.

QUESTION N° 7

What is the Trade of the Province, the number of shipping belonging thereto, their Tonnage, and the number of Seafaring Men with respect to the Increase and Diminution within ten years past?

ANSWER

Trade of the Province The Province carries on a considerable Trade with the British Settlements on the Continent of North America, supplying some of them with the produce of the Colony, others with British Manufactures and West India Goods.—The Trade to the British West Indies is extensive they having a constant demand for provisions and lumber of all kinds, which articles are the natural produce of this Province.

The returns from the American Ports and West India Islands, are made in such produce and manufactures of the Provinces and Islands, as best suit the Trade & Consumption of this Colony—There are also fitted out from the Port of New York several Whaling and Fishing Vessels.

Number of Vessels & Quantity of Tonnage and number of Seafaring Men. The above together with the Trade to Great Britain, Ireland, Africa and the foreign ports in Europe and the West Indies as stated in the Answers to Questions N° 8 and N° 9, include the whole Trade of the Province which employed

In the year	Vessels	Tons Burthen.	Men.
1762 .....	477 .....	19,514 .....	3,552
In 1772 .....	709 .....	29,132 .....	3,374
	232	9,618	178

So that the increase of Shipping in that period of Ten years is 232 Vessels and of the Tonnage or Burthen 9618 Tons.—And the Decresse of Men 178. A less number of Hands being employed on board of Vessels in peace, than they sail with in time of War.

QUESTION N° 8.

What Quantity or Sorts of British Manufactures do the Inhabitants annually take from hence, What Goods and Commodities are exported from thence to Great Britain, and what is the Annual Amount at an Average?

ANSWER

Imports from Great Britain More than Eleven Twelfths of the Inhabitants of this Province both in the necessary & ornamental parts of their Dress are clothed in British Manufactures, excepting Linen from Ireland and Hats and Shoes manufactured here. The same proportion of Houses are in like manner furnished with British Manufactures, except Cabinet and Joiner's Work, which is generally made here.

When the number of Inhabitants are considered a better idea may be formed of the Quality and Variety of Sorts of British Manufactures used in this Province, than can be done by enumerating the Names under which they are imported.

Besides the Articles necessary for cloathing and Furniture, there are imported from Great Britain, large Quantities of all kinds of East India Goods.—Grocery of all sorts (except Sugars, Coffee and Ginger), Ironmongery, Arms, Gunpowder, Lead, Tin, Sheet Copper, Drugs, Brimstone, Grindstones, Coals, Chalk, Sail Cloth, Cordage, Paints, Malt Liquors & Cheese.—There are indeed few articles the British Market affords, but what are in some proportion imported here, except such as are among the Number of our Staple Commodities particularly mentioned in the Answer to N° 11.

If the Brokers in Great Britain employed as Shippers of goods were for one year obliged to give in the value of the Goods when they apply for Cockets, the exact amount of what the Inhabitants of each Province in America take from thence would be easily ascertained. In this Country it is not possible to make such a Calculation with any Degree of Precision, for as the Amount of the Goods never appears on the Cockets, no judgment can be formed of their Value from the Quantity or Number of pieces.—Silks for Instance come out from 25*l* to 2 Shillings per yard, and in general the other Articles differ in the same proportion from the first cost of the highest to that of the lowest in quality.

Value of Articles Imported from Great Britain. When no particular Stop is put upon the Trade with Great Britain, it is generally estimated here that the annual Imports from thence into this Colony, amount on an Average to Five Hundred Thousand Pounds Sterling.

Exports to Great Britain The Goods exported from hence to Great Britain that are the produce of this Colony are chiefly pot and pearl ashes, Pig and Bar Iron, Peltries, Beeswax, Masts and Spars with Timber and Lumber of all kinds;—And of the produce of the West Indies and Honduras Bay, Log Wood and other Dye Woods and Stuffs, Sarsaparilla, Mahogany, Cotton, Ginger and Pimento with some Raw Hides—And Tar, Pitch and Turpentine, the produce of North Carolina.

Value thereof The annual amount of the Exports to Great Britain on an Average, is One Hundred and Thirty Thousand Pounds Sterling exclusive of the Cost of Ships built here for the Merchants in England to the Amount of Thirty Thousand Pounds Sterling annually.

QUESTION N° 9.

What Trade has the Province under your Government with any Foreign Plantations, or any part of Europe besides Great Britain; how is that Trade carried on, what Commodities do the People under your Government send to or receive from Foreign Plantations, and what is the annual Amount thereof at an Average?

ANSWER

Trade with Foreign Plantations &c. A considerable Trade is carried on from this Province to the Foreign West India Islands, Surrinam and Honduras Bay: Provisions and Lumber are the principal Articles with which they are supplied from hence.—The Returns are generally in Sugar, Molasses, Dye Woods, Mahogany, Hides, Silver and Bills of Exchange.

With Africa. There are a few Vessels employed annually in the African Trade, their outward Cargoes are chiefly Rum and some British Manufactures.—The high price and ready Sale they meet with for their Slaves in the West Indies, induce them always to dispose of their Cargoes among the Islands.

Madeira & Teneriffe. To Madeira and Teneriffe the Trade from hence is considerable. The outward Cargoes are composed of Wheat, Indian Corn, Flour, Provisions in General, Lumber and Beeswax.—The returns are made in Wines, the greatest part of which are carried directly from Madeira to the British & Foreign West India Islands, there sold and a West India Cargo purchased with which the Vessel returns.

NEW-YORK COLONIAL MANUSCRIPTS.

Spanish & other Foreign Ports in Europe, southward of Cape Finistire.

When Grain is scarce in Europe there is also a very considerable Trade from hence to the Spanish parts in the Bay of Biscay and to other Foreign Ports in Europe lying to the Southward of Cape Finistire.—To these places are exported, Wheat, Rye, Flour, Indian Corn and Beeswax; and the returns are in Specie, Bills of Exchange and large Cargoes of Salt—Sometimes the Vessels employed in this Trade take in a Load of Wines and Fruit, and call at some of the Outports in England for clearances agreeable to Law.—The Trade is Carried on in Ships belonging to British Subjects and navigated conformable to the Acts of Trade.

Value of Foreign Exports.

The annual Amount of the Commodities exported from hence to Foreign Countries is on an Average, One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Pounds Sterling; and the foreign Imports on an Average One Hundred Thousand Pounds Sterling.

Exports to Ireland

Besides the Trade to the Foreign Ports in Europe, there is every year a great Quantity of Flax seed and Lumber and some Iron sent to Ireland, in ships generally belonging to that Kingdom, which come out annually with passengers and Servants; as also Linens, Beef and Butter.

To Gibraltar and Minorca.

The Province hath likewise some Trade with Gibraltar and Minorca; the Cargoes out generally consist of Grain, Flour, Provisions of other Kinds, Lumber, Naval Stores and Rice.—As they are British Ports, it has ever been the practice here to allow enumerated goods to be shipped to them, the Master of the Vessel giving the enumerated Bond at the Naval Office.—The Returns are Specie, Bills of Exchange and Salt.

QUESTION N° 10

What Methods are there used to prevent illegal Trade, and are the same effectual?

ANSWER

Means to prevent illegal Trade.

At this Port there is generally one of His Majesty's Ships of War, stationed near it's principal Entrance, except during the Four Winter Months when she is obliged on account of the severe Weather and the Ice to come to the Wharf.—The Custom House Officers are Eight in number, viz. The Collector, Comptroller, Surveyor and Searcher, Land Waiter, Tide Surveyor and three Tide Waiters; There is also a Naval Officer. The Tide Waiters are mostly employed on Board of Vessels that arrive with dutiable goods, so that there are but three other out door Officers to look after the business of a very extensive Harbour, lying on two sides of the Town, which is situated on a point between two large Rivers.

As all Articles of Commerce, Provisions and Fuel are conveyed to Town by Water in a Number of small Boats, from landings that lay on each side of both Entrances to the Port, the strictest attention of the Officers of His Majesty's Ship, or the vigilance of the Collector and Comptroller (who speak favorably of their present out door Officers) cannot altogether prevent the illegal Trade in a port situated as this is; there can be no doubt therefore but that assistance different from what the Officers have at present, would be very necessary, and tend much to the increase of His Majesty's Revenues in this Province.

QUESTION N° 11.

What is the natural produce of the Country, Staple Commodities & Manufactures, and what value thereof in Sterling money may you annually export?

ANSWER

The natural produce and Staple Commodities of this Province, are Wheat, Indian Corn, Oats, Rye, Pease, Barley and Buck Wheat, Live Stock, Masts and Spars, Timber and Lumber of all Sorts, Furrs, Skins, Beeswax, Iron Ore, Pork, Beef, Flour, Pot and Pearl Ashes.—And its Manufactures are, the making of Pig and Bar Iron, Distilling of Rum and Spirits, Refining of Sugar and making Chocolate; from Molasses, Brown Sugar, and Cocoa imported.—The making of Soap and Candles, Hats, Shoes, Cordage and Cabinet Ware, Tanning, Malting, Brewing and Ship Building.

The annual amount of the above mentioned Articles exported (Hatts excepted) is on an Average Four Hundred Thous<sup>d</sup> Pounds Sterling.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 12.

What Mines are there?

ANSWER

There are few Mines yet discovered in the Province.—One of Iron Ore in the Manor of Livingston in the County of Albany belonging to Robert Livingston Esquire.—Another of Iron also in Orange County, the property of Vincent Mathews<sup>1</sup> Esquire and one in the Manor of Philipsburgh in the County of Westchester lately leased for 99 years (pursuant to the Royal Order) to Frederick Philipse Esquire.—It is called a Silver Mine, but from the small Quantity of Silver the Ore has hitherto yielded, may perhaps more properly be classed among the Richer Sort of lead mines.—The Works belonging to the First are carried on to great Advantage.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 13.

What is the Number of Inhabitants, Whites and Blacks?

ANSWER

By the last Account taken in 1771, the Number of Inhabitants stood thus

Whites .....	148,124
Blacks .....	19,883

Total Number of Inhabitants in 1771..... 168,007

Supposing the increase from 1771 to 1774 to have been no more than the Average Proportion of the Increase between 1756 and 1771, there must be added to compleat the number of Inhabitants to the present Time

Whites.....	12,974
	<hr/>

Total number of Inhabitants in 1774..... 182,251

<sup>1</sup> VINCENT MATHEWS of Mathewsfeld, Cornwall, Orange county, was, it is supposed, son of Colonel Peter Mathews, who came to this country as captain under Governor Fletcher; was afterwards proprietor in Orange county, and died in 1719. Vincent was appointed clerk of that county in 1736, (Commissions, III,) and died in June, 1784. It appears by his will, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals, that he was married first to Catalina Abeel, of Westenhook, Columbia county, by whom he had four children, Fletcher, James, David and Bridget, who married a Jones. By his second wife, Elizabeth, he had a daughter of the same name, who married Theophilus Beckman of New-York. David was Mayor of New-York, in which city Fletcher also resided. James was the father of General Vincent Mathews, who died at Rochester, at the head of the Bar in Western New-York, in 1846. The family was originally from Ireland. Turner's History of Phelps and Gorham Purchase, 614. — Ed.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 14

Are the Inhabitants increased or decreased within the last Ten Years; how much and for what Reasons?

ANSWER

Increase of Inhabitants    The Number of Inhabitants in 1771, as appears in N<sup>o</sup> 13 was . . . 168,007

By the Returns in 1756, from which year to 1771 no Census was taken, the Number appears to have been .

1756	}	Whites . . . . .	83,233
		Blacks . . . . .	13,542
				<hr/>
				96,775

Which shews the increase from 1756 to 1771 to be . . . . . 71,232

Admitting the Increase for the succeeding three years to be no more than the Average Proportion of this Number which is much less than the proportion at which it ought to be rated, there must be added for the Increase from 1771 to 1774 . . . . . 14,244

Increase of Inhabitants from 1756 to 1774 a Period of 18 years . . . 85,476

Hence by taking the proportion of the last mentioned number it is found that the Inhabitants of this Colony are increased during the last Ten Years according to the lowest Calculation . . . . . 47,480.

Causes of the Increase of Inhabitants    The Reasons commonly assigned for the rapid population of the Colonies, are doubtless the principal causes of the great Increase in this Province.

The high price of Labour and the Plenty and cheapness of new land fit for cultivation, as they increase the means of subsistence, are strong additional Incitements to Marriage, and the People entering into that state more generally and at an earlier period of life than in Europe, the Proportion of Marriages and Births so far exceeds that of populous Countries, that it has been Computed the Colonies double their Inhabitants by natural Increase only in Twenty years.

The increase in this Colony has been nearly in the same proportion, but it cannot be denied that the accession to our numbers by Emigrations from the neighboring Colonies and from Europe, has been considerable, tho' comparatively small to the Number thus acquired by some of the Southern Colonies.

What is the Number of Militia and under what Regulations is it constituted?

ANSWER

Number of the Militia.    The White Inhabitants amounting to 161,102 the Militia may be supposed to consist of about Thirty Two Thousand

Regulations under which it is constituted.    A Law is passed annually or every two years for regulating the Militia; The Act now in force directs That every Man from Sixteen to Fifty years of age (a few excepted) shall enlist himself with the Commanding Officer of the Troop of Horse, or Company of Foot in the place where he resides.—That the Militia armed and equipped (as the Law prescribes) shall appear and be exercised Twice a Year.—And imposes Fines on both Officers and Soldiers for every neglect of Duty, with other less material provisions relative to this service    The Officers are all appointed by the Governor, and the Whole Militia is under his command and subject to his Orders, agreeable to the power vested in him as Captain General of the Province by the Royal Letters Patent or Commission.

As no Act relative to the Militia was passed during the last Session of the general Assembly the above regulations will cease on the first day of May 1774, when the present Militia Law expires by its own Limitation.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 16

What Forts and places of strength are there within your Government, and in what condition?

ANSWER

Forts & Places of Strength. The City of New York the Metropolis, is protected by a Fort and a Range of Batteries at the Entrance of the East River or Harbour, in good order and capable of mounting about one Hundred pieces of Ordnance.—Albany and Schenectady are defended by Forts, and both places incircled by large Pickets or Stockades, with Blockhouses at proper Distances from each other, but which since the Peace have been suffered to go to Decay and are now totally out of Repair. The Western Posts are Fort Stanwix, and the Forts at Oswego and Niagara; the two former are Dismantled; a few men only kept at Oswego.—Niagara is occupied by a Garrison of the King's Troops.

The Northern Posts are, Fort Edward which is abandoned.—A few men only are kept at the Works at the South End of Lake George to facilitate the Transportation to the next Posts, which are Ticonderoga and Crown Point; these are both Garrisoned by His Majesty's Troops, but since the fire which happened at Crown Point, only a small guard is kept there, the principal part of the Garrison being withdrawn and posted at Ticonderoga.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 17.

What number of Indians have you & how are they inclined?

ANSWER

Number of Indians & how they are inclined The Indians who formerly possessed Nassau or Long Island, and that part of this Province which lies below Albany, are now reduced to a small number, and are in general so scattered and dispersed, and so addicted to wandering that no certain account can be obtained of them.—They are Remnants of the Tribes—Montocks and others of Long Island—Wappingers of Dutchess County—Esopus, Papagonk &c in Ulster County and a few Skachticokes.

These Tribes have generally been denominated River Indians and consist of about Three Hundred Fighting Men—They speak a language radically the same, and are understood by the Delawares being originally of the same Race. Most of these People at present profess Christianity, and as far as in their power adopt our Customs—The greater part of them attended the Army during the late War but not with the same reputation as those who are still deemed Hunters.

The Mohawks the first in Rank of the Six Nation Confederacy tho' now much reduced in Number, originally occupied the Country Westward from Albany to the German Flatts, a space of about 90 miles, and had many Towns; but having at different times been prevailed on to dispose of their Lands they have little Property left, except to the Northward, and are reduced to Two Villages on the Mohawk River and a few Families at Schoharie. The lower Mohawks are in Number about One Hundred and Eighty Five, and the Upper or those of Canajoharie Two Hundred and Twenty One making together Four Hundred and Six ; this Nation hath always been warm in their attachment to the English, and on this Account suffered great loss during the late War.

The Nation beyond and to the Westward of the Mohawks is the Oneidaes ; The Villages where they reside including Onoauhquaga are just beyond the Indian Line or Boundary established at Fort Stanwix in 1763, And their Property within that Line except to the Northward has been sold—This Nation consists of at least Fifteen Hundred and are firmly attached to the English.

The other Nations of that Confederacy and who live further beyond the Indian Line are the Onondagaes, Cayouges, Senecas and Tuscaroras and are well inclined to the British Interest—The whole Six Nations consist of about Two Thousand Fighting Men, and their number of Souls according to their latest returns at least Ten Thousand ; The Seneca Nation amounting alone to one half of that Number.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 18.

What is the Strength of the Neighbouring Indians ?

ANSWER

Strength of the neighbouring Indians.

The Indians North of this Province near Montreal, with those living on the River St. Lawrence near the 45th Degree of Northern Latitude form a Body of about Three Thousand five Hundred. They are in Alliance with and held in great esteem by the rest, are good Warriors, and have behaved well since they became allies to the English previous to the Reduction of Canada.—

The Tribes of Indians within the Province of Massachusetts Bay and the Colonies of Connecticut and Rhode Island &c are under similar circumstances with those denominated River Indians and the Stockbridge Indians living on the Eastern Borders of New York may be considered as within it, as they formerly claimed the Lands near Albany, and still hold up some claim in that Vicinity. They served as a Corps during the late War and are in number about three Hundred.

Of the Susquehanah Tribes many are retired further Westward among which are some not well affected to the British Government—They are all dependants and allies of the Six Nations.

Total Number within the Northern Department

Within the Department of Sir William Johnson His Majesty's Superintendent of Indian Affairs there are Twenty Five Thousand Four Hundred and Twenty Fighting Men, and may be about One Hundred and Thirty Thousand Indians in the whole, extending Westward to the Missisippa.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 19

What is the Revenue arising within your Government, and how is it appropriated and applied ?

ANSWER.

Revenue

The Revenue of the Province arises as follows—First from the Duties on Articles imported viz, Slaves, Wines, Distill'd Liquors, Cocoa, and all European and East India Goods from the British Islands in the West Indies—Also a Duty of two per cent. on certain species of Goods sold at Public Auction or Outry and from Lycenses granted to Hawkers and Pedlars.

The Annual Amount of the several Duties on an Average of the last five <sup>Currency</sup>
 Years is..... £5000
 Secondly from the Interest of £120,000 in Bills of Credit emitted by a Law of the Colony passed the 16th February 1771 and put out on Loan at 6 per cent, by which a clear Revenue untill 1776 is to be paid into the Treasury..... of 5602

From the year 1776 one Tenth part of the Principal sum is to be paid yearly into the Treasury until the whole Sum of £120,000 is paid. So that this Branch of Revenue decreasing Annually in that proportion, will totally cease in 1785.

The Revenue arising from the Articles under the first Head as it is grounded on Laws annually passed, (except the Duty on goods sold at Auction granted for three years) is appropriated by annual Laws towards payment of the Salaries of the Officers of Government, and other necessary Expenses for the Public Service enumerated in such Laws.

And the Interest Money arising from the Loan above mentioned, which is the Second Branch of Revenue, is annually applied in furnishing necessaries for His Majesty's Troops quartered in this Colony, for which there is usually granted £2000 Currency, And the residue is occasionally applied to the payment of Debts contracted by the Province, such as repairs to the Fort and Batteries, the Governor's House, the making of gun carriages &c.

A Third Branch of the Revenue is the Excise on Spirituous Liquors.

By a Law passed the 8 March 1773 This Fund is appropriated for Twenty years as follows—The Sum of £800 (part of £1000 to be raised by the Excise in the City and County of New York) is to be paid annually for Twenty years to the Governors of the Hospital now erecting in the City of New York for the support of that Institution, and the remaining Sum of £200 is for the First Five years to be paid to the Corporation of the Chamber of Commerce, for encouraging a Fishery on the Sea Coast for the better supplying the Public Markets of the City, and during the remaining Fifteen years this sum is appropriated for repairing the Public Roads.

By the same Law the Sums which shall be raised by the Excise in the other Counties subject to this duty, are directed to be appropriated for the same period of Twenty years towards repairing the Highways and defraying the necessary Charges of the respective Counties.

The whole produce of the Excise Fund before the passing of this Law usually amounted to about £1450 per annum.

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 20

What are the ordinary and extraordinary Expenses of Government ?

ANSWER

The ordinary expenses are the Sallaries allowed by the Province to the Officers of Government, which exclusive of the Salary of the Governor now paid by the Crown amounted in 1773 to the sum of..... £3120 2

And will continue nearly the same while the Salaries remain on the present footing—

The Extraordinary Expenses of Government are the Allowance for the necessaries with which the Troops quartered in the Colony are furnished usually amounting to..... 2000

And the Expences arising from the Settlement of the Boundary Lines of the Colony, Repairs to the Fortifications and the Governors House,—Carriages and Utensil for Guns, Barracks &c. which in the year 1773 amounted to... £1807 11 4 $\frac{3}{4}$
 For payment of Expresses and other small contingent articles of Expense there is annually allowed..... 100

QUESTION N<sup>o</sup> 21.

What are the Establishments Civil and Military within your Government and by what Authority do the Officers hold their Places, what is the Annual value of each Office, Civil and Military, how are they respectively appointed and who are the present Possessors ?

ANSWER

Civil Establishment. The Civil Establishment in this Province consists either of the Officers whose Salaries are paid by the Crown ; or of such Officers as receive their Salaries by virtue of a Law annually passed by the Provincial Legislature.

<sup>1</sup> ABRAHAM LOTT, merchant of New-York, was the youngest son of Abraham Lott, of Flatbush, L. I.; he married Gertrude, daughter of Andrew Coeymans, of Albany county; was elected clerk of the Assembly in 1751, and superintended the printing of the Journals of that body, 2 vols. folio, in 1762. He was elected Treasurer of the Province in 1767, and died in New-York at an advanced age. Thompson's Long Island, II, 470; Journals of Assembly. — Ed.

There is no other Provincial Civil Establishment in the Colony. Most of the above mentioned Officers have Fees appertaining to their Offices, the amount of which (if within the object of the present Enquiry) can only be ascertained by the Respective Officers.

The Province has a Court of Chancery, the Governor is Chancellor, and the Officers of the Court are a Master of the Rolls newly created:—Two Masters:—Two Clerks:—a Register:—An Examiner, and a Sergeant at Arms.—There is also a Prerogative Court of which the Governor is Judge: Its Officers are a Register and one or more Surrogates in every County.—In each of the Cities of New York and Albany there is a Mayor, Sheriff, Clerk and Coroner, and in each of the other Counties of the Province there are Three or more Judges, and a number of Justices of the Peace: One Sheriff, one Clerk and one or more Coroners.—None of these Officers have any Salary but have Fees annexed to their Offices and they are all appointed by the Governor.

Military Establishments Military Establishments have only taken place in Time of War. The Province during the late War, raised, clothed and paid a large Body of Forces, which was disbanded at the Peace, and there is at present no Provincial Military Establishment unless the Militia may be regarded as such; The Officers of this Corps are as already observed appointed by the Governor, and having no pay their Offices must be rather expensive than lucrative.

The Militia are not subject to Garrison Duty, and all the posts where any Garrisons are kept are occupied by the King's Troops.

(N<sup>o</sup> 6.)Johnson Hall, Oct<sup>r</sup> 22<sup>d</sup>, 1773.

Sir

I am just honored with your Excellency's letter of the 29th Ult<sup>o</sup> concerning the Dispatches you received from the Earl of Dartmouth, & inclosing me such of his Lordship's Queries as are connected with my Department.

On this subject, I shall most willingly transmit your Excellency all the Intelligence that can as I conceive be deemed necessary, so far as the present state of the Indians within this Province can be known at this time.

You are doubtless sensible that the Indians who formerly possessed Long Island and the rest of this Province below Albany are now reduced to a small number, and that they are for the most part so scattered & dispersed & so much addicted to wandering that no certain Acc<sup>t</sup> can be obtained of them. It will be therefore sufficient to observe that they are Remnants of the following Tribes, Montocks & others of Long Isleand, Wappingers of Dutchess County, Those of Esopus Papagonk &ca in Ulster County, and a few Skachticokes, All these last have generally been denominated River Indians, and may make Three Hundred fighting Men they speak a Language radically the same, and are understood by the Delawares, being originally of the same race, most of these people at present profess Christianity, & adapt as far as they can our Customs, and the greater part of them attended our Armies during the late War, tho' not with the same reputation with those who are still Hunters.

The next People to be considered are the Mohawks the first Nation in Rank of the Six Nation Confederacy, 'tho now much reduced in Numbers, they originally occupied the Country Westward from Albany to the German Flats and had many Towns, but having at different times been prevailed on to dispose of their lands, & suffered many Impositions, they have very little property remaining except to the Northward, and are reduced to Two Villages on the Mohawk River and a few Families at Schohare, The lower Mohawks are One Hundred and Eighty Five Souls, & those of Conojohare Two Hundred and Twenty One, making together Four Hundred & Six Souls, They are and have been faithfully attached to the English on which Acc<sup>t</sup> they suffered great losses during the late War. The Nation beyond & to the Westward of the Mohawks are the Oneidaes, The villages of their residence including Onooughquage are at a small distance beyond the present limits or Boundary Line of this Province, but their property within it except to the Northward has also been sold, This Nation will make at least fifteen Hundred Souls, & they are faithfully attached to the English.

The rest of the Nations of that Confederacy living farther beyond the Limits of the Government do not appear to be the Object of the present Enquiry, it may however be proper to observe that the whole Six Nations are about Two Thousand Fighting Men, making at least Ten Thousand Souls according to the latest Returns, & that the Senecas alone are one Half of that number.—The Indians North of this Province near Montreal, with those living on the River S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence near the 45th Degree of Lattitude make about Three Thousand Five Hundred, they are allied to & much regarded by the rest, are good Warriors, & have behaved well since they entered into an Alliance with Us, previous to the Reduction of Canada.—The Indians within Massachusetts Bay, Connecticut, Rhode Island &ca. are at present under much the same predicament with those denominated River Indians. The Stockbridge Indians living on the Eastern Border of this Government, may indeed be considered as within it, as they claimed the lands near Albany & do still lay some claims in that way, they served as a Corps in the late War, and are at least Three Hundred Souls.—Of those Tribes living West of this Province on Susquehanna Many are retired farther Westward, amongst which were some not well affected to the English, They are all Allies & Dependants of the Six Nations.—As the rest of the Nations do not appear to be concerned in this enquiry, it will be sufficient to add that the whole Indians within my Department amount to Twenty Five Thousand, Four Hundred and Twenty Fighting men, & will be about 130000 Souls, Extending Westward to the Mississipi.—I could not be more particular concerning some of the Tribes, for the reason I gave in the beginning of this letter, but I presume this will fully satisfy y<sup>r</sup> Excellency on the subject. And I remain with great Esteem

Sir,

Your most Obedient
& most faithfull Humble Servant

His Excellency Governor Tryon

N<sup>o</sup> 9.

Johnson Hall June 20th 1774.

My Lord,

I am highly gratified on finding from your Lordship's Dispatch (N<sup>o</sup> 7) which I had lately the honor to receive, that His Majesty is so well satisfied with my conduct in bringing the Senecas to make restitution & attonement for the murder committed on Lake Ontario.—In my letter of last month (N<sup>o</sup> 8) I gave some farther particulars respecting that affair with Gen<sup>l</sup> Haldimand's concurrence in opinion that on restitution of the goods plundered the two Senecas should be discharged.—This proves a work of time, because according to their agreement the skins are to be collected in due proportion from their severall scattered villages, and this delay joyned to the close confinement so unusual to Indians has brought a disorder on one of the Prisoners which is so rigid that he is deemed past recovery, and many of the Indians naturally suspicious have insinuated that he has been poisoned, this report with many others occasioned by their long imprisonment, I have been at much pains to remove, which I had nigh effected, when I received the very disagreeable & unexpected intelligence that a certain M<sup>r</sup> Cressop<sup>1</sup> an inhabitant of Virginia had trepanned and murdered forty Indians on Ohio, for the most part of <sup>1</sup> Captain MICHAEL CRESAP was the son of Colonel Thomas Cressap who immigrated from Yorkshire early in the last century to this country and settled in Maryland, in the western part of which Province the subject of this sketch was born 29 June, 1742. After finishing his education he married a Miss Whitehead, of Philadelphia, and returned to the western frontier of Maryland, where he set up as a trader and failed. He moved thence to the Ohio in 1774, and commenced clearing land. Difficulties with the Indians followed and Cressap returned to Maryland and received a commission of Captain in the Virginia militia, and afterwards served in the expedition under Dunmore against the Western tribes. In July, 1776, he was commissioned Captain of a rifle company re-quired from Maryland under a resolution of Congress, and proceeded to Boston, where he joined the army under Washington. He was obliged, by ill health, to return to New-York, and died in that city, of fever, on the 18th of October, 1778, at the early age of 33. His remains were buried, with military honors, in Trinity Church yard. Captain Cressap's name has been immortalized in the celebrated speech of Logan, the Indian Chief, and in Jefferson's Notes of Virginia. Mayer's Discourse on Logan and Cressap, before the Maryland Historical Society, 1851.—Ed.

the 6 Nations, and this was followed by dispatches brought by two trusty Indians from my Agent at Fort Pitt across the country, by which I understand that the Traders have in consequence thereof been driven out of the Country by the Shawanese, except a few whom it is feared have fallen a sacrifice to their resentment, and that the unworthy author of this wanton act, is fled, together with a considerable number of the inhabitants on the confines of Virginia. The Extracts which I herewith enclose will give your Lordship more particular information respecting this & other matters, which excited much commotion and which must prove very alarming to the Frontiers of Virginia and Pensilvania and may extend much farther unless the steps I am now taking may prevent it, concerning which I must have great doubt, from the warmth of the Indians resentment, the disorderly measures of the inhabitants, & the present imbecility of the American Governments, who are I fear as unable to procure, as their people are unwilling to afford justice for the Indians.

Your Lordship will please to recollect that in my last dispatch I mentioned my expectations of a favorable issue to the prior differences that arose in that quarter thro the address of Kayagshota, and the Embassy that then accompanied him for these salutary purposes, and from the known influence and approved fidelity of that chief supported by the name and heads of the six Nations, I had good reason for such expectations, but the least ill consequence that can attend the unlucky obstruction to this business occasioned by the cruelty & baseness of Cressop, is, the present disappointment of the object intended by that Embassy, for altho some of the Indians in that quarter have spoken fairly & profess to believe it was merely a private act, they in reality regard it in a verry different light, the professions we are often necessitated to make of the advantage derived from our laws, & of our authority over our people, will strengthen their suspicions, and the disorderly behaviour of the Frontier Inhabitants will confirm them, neither is there any hopes that those who have occasioned these troubles, will contribute to the defence of the country, for I have had occasion often to observe, & now find it true, that those who disturb the public tranquility, thro' mistaken and ill timed zeal against the Indians, are the first to abandon their settlements.—for more than ten years past the most dissolute fellows united with debtors, and persons of a wandering disposition have been removing from Pensilvania & Virginia &c<sup>a</sup> into the Indian Country, towards & on the Ohio, & a considerable number of settlement<sup>ts</sup> were made as early as 1765 when my Deputy was sent to the Illinois from whence he gave me a particular account of the uneasiness it occasioned amongst the Indians, many of these emigrants are idle fellows that are too lazy to cultivate lands, & invited by the plenty of game they found, have employed themselves in hunting, in which they interfere much more with the Indians than if they pursued agriculture alone, and the Indian hunters (who are composed of all the Warriors in each nation) already begin to feel the scarcity this has occasioned, which greatly encreases their resentment.

The Cession to the Crown at the Treaty in 1768 was secured by the plainest & best natural boundaries, and the Indians freely agreed to make it the more ample that our people should have no pretext of narrow limits, and the remainder might be rendered the more secure to themselves & their posterity, neither did they expect that we should push settlements immediately over the whole of their cession, and His Majesty with great wisdom and discretion was pleased to direct that none should be now made below the Great Kanhawa River, with which I acquainted the Indians agreeable to my orders, but numbers of settlements had been made there previous to the cession, attempts made since to form others on the Mississippi, and great numbers in defiance of the cession, or the orders of Government in consequence thereof, have since removed not only below the Kanhawa, but even far beyond the limits of the Cession, and in a little time we may probably hear that they have crossed the Ohio wherever the lands invite them; for the body of these people are under no restraint, they perceive that they are in places of security, and pay as little regard to Government, as they do to title for their possessions, whilst at the same time not only individuals but bodies of men are interested in the growth of these settlements, however injurious to the old colonies, & dangerous to all; but 'till better order is restored elsewhere, little can be expected in that quarter, & in the interim these settlements increase, and what is much worse the disorders of which the Indians principally complain grow to an enormity that threatens us with fresh wars.—under such circumstances, my Lord, I fear the most that can be done, is to prevent the evil from being too general, to encourage the fidelity of those Nations on whom I can rely, with those that will joyn them, & secure as much of the frontiers as possible from incursion, should the various methods I am now taking to ward off the impending evil, in any part fail.

My Lord, I have daily to combat with thousands who by their avarice, cruelty or indiscretion are constantly counteracting all judicious measures with the Indians, but I shall still persevere, the occasion requires it, and I shall never be without hopes, 'till I find myself without that influence which has never yet forsaken me, on the most trying occasions.

Since the news of the murders committed by Cressop and his banditti, the Six Nations have sent me two Messages requesting the enlargement of the two Senecas who are confined, & representing that it is in their opinion a reasonable demand, after the late loss they have sustained, for which they have such slender expectations of satisfaction, & I trust I shall be enabled to gratify them in a few days, as they are daily collecting skins, & furs as a retribution for the robbery. The Chiefs of the whole Confederacy have likewise signified that they request to hold a congress with me immediately on the present critical situation of Affairs, above two hundred of them are already arrived for that purpose and the rest are on the road to the amount of three or four hundred more.—I have discovered from some private conferences with the principal men, that many of them are sensible of the Artifices practiced for some time past by the Shawanese and their adherents, it is therefore my design at the Congress to strenghten that opinion and shew them that the conduct of these people have not a little contributed to produce the late unhappy disorders, and I shall do every thing in my power for rendering the Congress advantageous at this critical juncture; the issue of which I shall transmit to your Lordship as soon as possible.

I beg to be honoured with your Lordship's commands, signifying His Majesty's pleasure on any matter contained in this letter, and I remain with the utmost respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

most obedient

The Right Honorable
the Earl of Dartmouth.

& most Humble servant
W. JOHNSON

Extract from the Journal of Alexander McKee, Sir William Johnson's Resident on the Ohio &c<sup>a</sup> March the 8th 1774.

A Shawanese Speaker address'd M<sup>r</sup> M<sup>c</sup>Kee as follows.

Brother,

We came here last fall upon a friendly visit to you, and as we are now about returning home, we request you may inform Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson of what we have said, and that we shall do every thing in our power to preserve the peace, and tranquility of this country.

Brother. We must observe to you, that to facilitate this good Work, your wise men should be acquainted of the very great numbers of your people going down this River beyond the Bounds fixed for them, and overspreading the Hunting Country of our young men. no doubt but it is in the power of your great men to stop it. This is the only direct method of bringing about good order on your side, as well as ours, for from this cause proceed at present all our disturbances; and altho' it is highly contrary to our Inclinations and Intentions, as Chiefs, that our young men shou'd be concerned in any mischief, yet it is likewise out of our power to prevent these evil Resolutions they form when absent from us; for when they are disappointed in their hunting, and find the woods covered with the White People, and their horses, where they used to find their Game, they are foolish enough to make reprisals without waiting to apply to the great men that shou'd redress their complaints and regulate the conduct of their White Brethren towards them.

Breth<sup>n</sup> We have had many disagreeable Dreams this Winter about this matter, and what we have seen and been witnesses to since we came here serves also to confirm our fears, as well as the constant assembling of our Brethren with Red flags* convince us that war is still apparent in their minds, otherwise such preparations wou'd be laid aside.—We are likewise informed that the White People propose building a large Fort low down the River this Summer.—let our wise men be strong.—it is still in their power to govern headstrong, and foolish people, and restore that regular friendship that ought to subsist between us.

Kayashota the Seneca Chief who then arrived, after repeating to me the heads of several speeches he was charged with from Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson for restoring good order to the Southward, and bringing the refractory Tribes to reason, addressed Cap<sup>t</sup> Connoly Command<sup>t</sup> of the Militia as follows.

Brother,

As I understand you have an appointment to command in this country, I therefore take this Opportunity of informing you that at this time it will be very detrimental to the public Interest to suffer spirituous liquors to be sold, or carried into the Indian Towns, for I am sorry to observe that there appears at present a great deal of confusion, and discontent among many of the Indian Tribes, and the addition of Rum will serve greatly to increase their disorderly conduct.—I spoke to the Traders last fall upon this subject, & desired they wou'd desist for their own sakes as well as ours from taking such quantities of rum with them a trading; but I received no answer from them and it seems, since they pay no regard to what I recommend to them, but have continued this pernicious practice.—This is the reason, I wou'd therefore request you to use your influence in preventing them until things appear more settled.

A String of Wampum

On May the 1st the following alarming intelligence arrived at Fort Pitt by one Stephens who had proceeded in a Trader's Canoe which was attacked on the 16th by the Cherokees in order to have carried her to the Scioto, who gave the following particulars viz<sup>t</sup>

* By this is meant the Surveyors who use flags in laying out the lands.

That on the 26th upon his way down the river, and near Whaling Creek, he observed a canoe coming up the River, which suspecting to be Indians, he made to the opposite side to avoid them, but upon his approach near the shore was fired upon, and a Shawanese Indian in the canoe with him was killed; upon a second fire from the shore, a Delaware Indian who was also in the canoe was likewise killed.—Said Stephens further says that he cou'd not perceive who it was fired upon him, as they lay concealed in the weeds, & having thrown himself into the river, observed the canoe that was coming up to be white people, upon which he made towards them, and found it to be one Michael Cressop with a party of men who denied knowing any thing of what had happened to them, although from circumstances he the said Stephens is well convinced that the above murder was done by some of said Cressop's associates.—Stephens likewise informed me that while he was in company with said Cressup, he heard him make use of threatening language against the Indians, saying, “he wou'd “ put every Indian he met with on the river, to death, and that if he cou'd raise men sufficient “ to cross the River, he wou'd attack a small village of Indians living on Yellow Creek.”

The same evening one Major M<sup>c</sup>Daniel of Virginia, who had been down the river as low as Kannaway returned to this place with an account that a skirmish had happened between a party of Virginians, and the Indians near the Big Kannaway, that a number was killed one both sides which had occasioned the Surveyors, and Land hunters from that Colony to return, —and that on his way hither the 27th ins<sup>t</sup> he was at Mich<sup>l</sup> Cressup's House at or near Whealing, when an account was brought to said Cressup by one M<sup>c</sup>Mahon, that five Indian Canoes had stopped at his house on their way down the River, containing fourteen Indians, who asked him the said M<sup>c</sup>Mahon for some provisions, which he refused to give them, and told them that two of their Brethren had been killed by the White People the day before. The Indians replied that if it was so, they knew nothing of it, and then proceeded down the River.—Upon this information the said Cressup collected fifteen men, pursued them, & overtook them near Grave Creek where they had stopped, and drawn up their canoes in the mouth of a Creek that was hardly perceivable on account of the bushes, where they had prepared themselves to receive the White People, suspecting that they wou'd be followed after what M<sup>c</sup>Mahon had told them, and that upon the s<sup>d</sup> Cressup's observing the Indians, he fired upon them, upon which a skirmish ensued between them; but the Indians retired after losing one man, — & one man was killed also on the White People's side.—Cressup & his party found sixteen Keggs of Rum, two saddles, and some bridles in the deserted Ind<sup>a</sup> canoes.

Upon receiving the above Intelligence I dispatched Messages to the Chiefs of the Indians who are nearest at hand, to attend here as soon as possible, and made application to the Officer commanding the Militia to dispatch expresses to the said Cressup to know from what provocation he acted towards the Indians in this manner, and to desist from any further Hostilities till matters cou'd be enquired into, and settled if possible.

May the 2<sup>d</sup>.

Parties of Militia were employed in bringing in the Inhabitants of this Place, in order to set about fortifying, but instead of going upon this service, most of them fled down the country to avoid the resentment of the Indians.—

Received Information from Cap<sup>t</sup> Crawford<sup>1</sup> and one M<sup>r</sup> Nevill<sup>2</sup> from Virginia that on their way to this place they met a number of Inhabitants settled below this, moving off, among whom was a party who presented sev<sup>l</sup> Indian Scalps, and related their having taken them in the following manner, Viz—“That a number of Indians having encamped at the mouth of Yellow Creek, they with one Grithouse had collected themselves at the house of one Baker opposite to the said Indian Camp, and decoyed two Indian men, and two women over to their side of the river to drink with them, who upon finding them intoxicated fell upon them & knocked them in the head, and scalped them,—that soon after two other Indians came over to see what detained their friends, and were served in the same manner, after this the Indians appeared uneasy, and six of their men were coming across the River to see after their people, who approaching near the shore observed them the said White People where they were laying in ambush for them, and attempting to return to their camp, were fired upon, and two of them were killed, who dropped into the river, and two others they observed fall dead in the canoe, and the fifth upon their landing, they cou<sup>d</sup> discern to be very badly wounded, so that he cou<sup>d</sup> scarce get up the bank,—and that they heard the Women and Children at the Camp raise a very melancholy cry. Among those who were killed, was an Indian Woman the wife of one of our Traders who had a young child upon her back, which she had bore to him, and after some altercation between those murderers whether they shou<sup>d</sup> put the child to death, they agreed to take it along with them.—the said M<sup>r</sup> Nevill asked the person in whose custody the child was, if he was not near enough to have taken its mother prisoner without putting her to death in that inhuman manner? He answered that he was about six feet distance, and that he had shot her in the forehead, & cut the strap by which the child’s cradle hung at her back, and that he intended to have dashed its brains out, but that he was struck with some remorse on seeing the child fall with its mother.—That one of his companions recommended their taking it along with them that they might have an opportunity of sending it to its father to take care of it &

<sup>1</sup> Colonel WILLIAM CRAWFORD was born in Berkeley county, Virginia, in 1732. He afterwards emigrated with his family to Pennsylvania and was a Captain in Forbes’ expedition against Fort Duquesne in 1758. He also served, during the Poodiac war, in defence of the frontiers of Pennsylvania in 1763-64, and was an efficient officer in Dunmore’s campaign against the Scioto Indians. He was an intimate friend of Washington. Having settled at Braddock ford, on the Youghiogony, in 1768, he raised, at the commencement of the Revolution, a regiment by his own exertions and held a commission of Colonel in the Continental army. In 1782, he accepted, with great reluctance, the command of an expedition to ravage the Wyandott and Moravian Indian towns on the Muskingum. On this expedition he was taken prisoner in June 1782, conducted to Sandusky and put to death by the most execrating tortures. Howe’s Virginia Collections, 193; Craig’s History of Pittsburg, 179, 180; Monette’s Valley of the Mississippi, II, 137, 138.

<sup>2</sup> General JOHN NEVILLE was the descendant of a lad who at a very early day was kidnapped in England and brought to Virginia, where he subsequently accumulated a good property. He was born on the head waters of the Occaquan river, in that colony, on the direct road from Washington’s paternal estate to Winchester and Cumberland. He served in Braddock’s expedition in 1755, and subsequently settled at Winchester, Frederick county, where he held the office of Sheriff for some time. Prior to 1774, he had made large purchases on Chartier’s creek, Pa., and was about to remove there when the Revolutionary troubles began. He was elected in that year a delegate from Augusta co., (Pittsburg) to the Provincial Convention of Virginia, which appointed Washington, Peyton, Randolph and others to the first Continental Congress, but was prevented by sickness from attending. Subsequent to the Revolution, he was a member of the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania. When Congress passed an excise law in 1791, Gen. Neville was appointed inspector for Western Pennsylvania, as, in consequence of his claims as a soldier and a patriot, ’twas supposed his popularity would help the execution of that odious statute. But in the Whiskey Insurrection, as it is called, in 1794, his property in the vicinity of Pittsburg was totally destroyed by the insurgents, and he himself barely escaped with his life. Craig’s Pittsburg, 229. — Ed.

“ that after they had perpetrated this barbarous murder, they made off with their families —
 “ Also they further said, that by this time the whole country was deserted, as Michael Cresup
 “ who committed the first mischief was likewise then on his way to Redstone.”

May the 3<sup>d</sup> 1774.

I called a Meeting with Kayashota, the White Mingoe, and some other six Nation Chiefs at Col. Croghan's house, where was present the Commanding Officer of the Militia, and several other Gentlemen, when I informed them of the melancholy murders of their people as before mentioned, which they had not before heard, and assured them at the same time of its being done by a few inconsiderate White People, and not by the intention or knowledge of any of our wise people,—that I made no doubt but the Governor of Virginia, when he was made acquainted with the unhappy loss they had sustained by his people, wou'd fall upon every measure to make them ample satisfaction as it was not done by the intention of Government, that in the mean time I enjoined them to afford all the assistance in their power in accommodating the unfortunate breach of friendship that had happened between our people, and them, as a general difference could not be attended with any thing but the utmost distress on their sides.

A large string of wampum.

They returned for answer.

That they had considered what we had said to them, and as the Chiefs of the Delawares were expected in, to night, or to morrow, they wou'd consult with them and know what reply to make, that we might be assured they wou'd do every thing in their power to keep matters quiet, which they made no doubt might be done, from the general dispositions of their own people, provided we wou'd be strong on our parts in preventing our rash people from commencing any further outrages against the Indians.

May the 5th

This day I had a meeting before a number of the principal inhabitants of Pittsburgh with several chiefs of the Six Nations and Delawares, when I condoled with them for the losses they had sustained by the barbarity of some rash people from Virginia, covering the bones of their deceased friends with some goods suitable to the occasion & agreeable to their custom.

I delivered them some messages also agreeable to the present circumstances to be conveyed to their people at their sev<sup>l</sup> towns with the utmost dispatch, desiring some of them who had influence, to exert themselves upon this business, as the present emergency required the answer of those of their other friends who had likewise suffered by the late unhappy outrages, hoping they wou'd not delay acquainting us as soon as possible with their sentiments on this unfortunate affair, and in order to convince those people of our sincerity, and to shew them that we did not countenance these misdemeanors, two of our people wou'd accompany them in the execution of this good service.

Brethren

It is you who are frequently passing up and down the Ohio, and making settlements upon it, and as you have informed us that your Wise People were met together to consult upon this matter, we desire you to be strong, and to consider it well.

Breth<sup>a</sup> We see you speak to us at the head of your Warriors whom you have collected together at sundry places upon this River where we understand they are building forts.—and as you have requested us to listen to you, we will do it, but in the same manner that you appear to attend to us. Our People at the Lower Towns have no Chiefs among them,—but are all warriors, and are also preparing themselves to be in readiness that they may the better be enabled to hear what you have to say.

Breth<sup>a</sup> You tell us not to take any notice of what your people have done to us. We desire you likewise not to take any notice of what our young men may now be doing.—And as no doubt you may command your Warriors, when you desire them to listen to you, we have reason to expect that ours will take the same advice from us when we require it,—that's to say when we have received peaceable tidings from Virginia.

Breth<sup>a</sup> of Pennsylv<sup>ia</sup> It is some years ago since we had the satisfaction of seeing you at Pittsburgh when you came there to renew that antient friendship that subsisted between our fore fathers, and it gave us great pleasure to assist you in the good work, when the path was opened between you and us,—And we now tell you that your Traders who have travelled it shall return the same road in peace, and we desire our Grandfathers the Delawares to be strong in conducting them safe to you.

A string.

May 26th Capt<sup>t</sup> S<sup>t</sup> Clair,<sup>1</sup> on behalf of the Pennsylvanians having made a speech to the Six Nations highly commending them for their good disposition in maintaining the peace, and tranquility so long subsisting between them and their forefathers, and at the same time expressing his thanks for their good conduct towards their Traders &c. The Delawares then returned thanks for the good opinion their Brethren of Pennsylvania had expressed of them, and that their sentiments corresponded so nearly with their own with respect to keeping bright their antient Chain of friendship, and they called upon their Uncles the Six Nations to witness their now declaring their resolutions to preserve it unhurt from the attacks of bad people.

Kayashota then told his nephews the Delawares that he was rejoiced to find them so determined upon supporting the good order, & peace of the Country, which he had been sent by Sir William Johnson to promote, that they might always depend upon being backed by the Six Nations in so laudable a resolution, who were so strongly linked in friendship with the English, that it cou'd not be broken,—therefore that what they had now heard from them was very agreeable.

<sup>1</sup> Major-General ARTHUR ST. CLAIR, of the Revolutionary army, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1735, and accompanied the fleet to America in 1755. On the 17th April, 1759, he was appointed Lieutenant in the 60th or Royal Americans, and served under Wolfe at Quebec. At the close of the French war he obtained a grant of 1000 acres of land in the neighborhood of Fort Ligonier, Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, where he settled, having been placed in command of the fort by the government of that Province. When the Revolution broke out, he embraced the American cause; in January, 1776, was appointed to the command of a battalion of Pennsylvania militia, and was engaged in the expedition against Canada; he was afterwards at the battle of Trenton; in August was appointed brigadier, and in February, 1777, Major-General of the Continental army. At the close of the war, he returned to his former residence in Pennsylvania, of the Executive Council of which State he was a member in 1783. In 1785, he was elected to Congress, and in 1787, elected president of that body. In October following, he was appointed Governor of the Northwestern territory and retained that office until November, 1803. In 1791, he commanded an expedition against the Miami Indians, by whom he was defeated. He was worn down

Although you have frequent Meetings with our great men, and they profess a friendship for you, and that they wou'd not keep any thing a secret from you, I have reason to believe that they do not divulge all they know, to you, therefore I am come to inform you of what I have heard. I have not lived long among them, altho' I am a Shawanese, but am only on a visit from the Creek Country which is my home, and to where I intend to return in a short time.—Brothers, You have heard that a great Meeting has for some years past, and is now expected to take place at Scioto, & Indians from Nations Westward and Southward expected to it, this meeting, whenever it happens is the fixed time of striking the English; for when the Chiefs are once assembled the Warriors can readily bring all Nations into the Measure, and although the Chiefs of several Nations have been busied in conducting good speeches about, the Warriors are of different sentiments in general & use it as a cover to this general design, and the hopes depending upon it have prevented many broils with the white people, though now mischief seems almost unavoidable from the Disposition of our people in general, owing to the Encroachments upon our Lands, the ill treatment received from the Frontier People, & the interruption the Indians meet with in their Hunting.—The Chenussios, tho' they may deny it, have their share in this plan; for it is no new one, but it has been upon foot many years,—and indeed, I may say such a one has been in being since our first acquaintance almost with the English, & particularly since the French left their belts to the Northward, for we discovered an early design in them of taking away our Country, and it will be a difficult Task to collect all the bad belts that have been handed from the Canada and Chenussio Indians to us upon this subject.—At present almost all the Indians this way wish to strike those people gone down the River, and we are only waiting to hear again from the Northward, the Senecas being dissatisfied with the terms offered them by the English on account of a breach of friendship their young men had been guilty of, which Terms were so hard that they could not comply with them.

The foregoing intelligence appears to have been the real sentiments of the Informer, but he was ignorant as to those of the different nations intended to compose the Scioto Congress, who held very different opinions from the Shawanese, and it was chiefly the last mentioned nation, that designed to inflame the Warriors at that Congress.

Sir,

I have received your letters N<sup>o</sup> 1 & 2. & have laid them before the King.

As there is nothing in these letters which requires any particular Instruction, I have only to express my Wishes that His Majesty's Subjects of New York may not be led into any further rash & hasty proceedings, that may expose them to the just Resentment of Parliament, and that persons of Credit and Character in the Colony will exert their Influence to put a stop to that licentious Spirit which has led to Measures so disgraceful to the City of New York.

Sir William Johnson having acquainted me that two Seneca Indians have been committed to the Goal in Tryon County as Accomplices in the Murder of Four Frenchmen in the last year, His Majesty is graciously pleased upon Report to him of the Circumstances of their Case, to signify his Pleasure that they be both set at liberty forthwith, & you will not fail to take the proper steps for that purpose.

It being under Consideration to reestablish the Military Posts, either at Crown Point or Ticonderoga, or at both; It is the King's Pleasure that the Lands reserved by Sir Jefferey Amherst for the Convenience and Accommodation of those Posts, be excepted out of any future Sales or Grants of Lands whatever.

Whitehall July 6th 1774.

Sir,

I have received your dispatch of the 2<sup>d</sup> May, & have laid it before the King.

The delivering up, by the Seneca Nation, of the two Indians concerned in the murder of the four Frenchmen, last year, is such a testimony of their submission to our Laws as deserves a proper return on our part; and it is the King's pleasure that, if not already done, the Prisoners should be immediately released, & restored to their friends, and I have accordingly signified the same both to Governor Gage, and to the Lieutenant Governor of New York.

The intelligence which I acquainted you in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 6 had been received that some of the King's subjects had formed a design to make settlements on the lower part of the Ohio was but too well founded, for I find, by a letter which I received a few days ago from Lord Dunmore, that some persons, Inhabitants of Virginia, have purchased of the Illinois Indians a very large tract of land extending 30 leagues up the River, and I wish that this Transaction had met with such Discouragement from that Government as the nature of it deserved.

There are many reasons urged by Lord Dunmore in favor of this measure, but they have no weight with me, and as I still continue of opinion that such a proceeding cannot fail of being attended with the most dangerous and alarming consequences, I shall lose no time in taking the sense of the rest of the King's servants upon such propositions as it may be necessary to submit to His Majesty upon this occasion.

What you state in your letter respecting the expectations that have been from time to time held out to the Indians of measures being taken by France to recover possession of Canada, gives a greater degree of credit to the paper I transmitted to you in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 6 than I at first thought it deserved, & therefore I shall be impatient to receive from you that intelligence which you say you expect to collect after the intended Onondaga Congress, & the return of the Embassy you sent to the Westward.

The King has been graciously pleased to appoint M<sup>r</sup> Joseph Chew Secretary of Indian Affairs, and, inclosed, I send you a warrant for that purpose.

I am &c<sup>a</sup>

No. 3.

New York 6th July 1774

My Lord,

In my letter of June the 1st I inform'd your Lordship that the People of this City had chosen a Committee of 51 Persons, to correspond with the Sister Colonies on the present political Affairs that many of this Committee were of the most considerable Merchants, and Men of Cool Tempers, who would endeavour to avoid all extravagant and dangerous Measures. They have had a continual struggle with those of a different Disposition: and having for several Weeks succeeded in suspending any Resolutions, I was in hopes they would have maintain'd the only Conduct which can excuse them. But accounts repeatedly coming to hand, from different Parts of the Continent, of the Appointment of Deputies to meet in general Congress, this Measure was so strenuously push'd that it was carried in the Committee of 51; on Monday last; and five Persons were named for the Deputies from this Province.—The Persons named are James Duane<sup>1</sup> and John Jay,<sup>2</sup> two eminent Lawyers, Isaac

<sup>2</sup> JOHN JAY, LL. D., the eighth child of Peter J. and Mary Van Cortland, of Westchester county, was born on 12th December, 1745, and in 1753 was put to school at New Rochelle. He was graduated at King's College, New-York, in 1764, after which he studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1768, and acted as Secretary to the Commission for running the boundary line between New-York and New Jersey. He was a prominent member of the Congress of 1774 and of that of 1775, and in 1776 assisted in framing the government of New-York. He was elected Chief Justice of that State in May, 1777, and resigned that office in 1779, when elected President of Congress. In September, 1779, he was appointed Minister to Spain; was one of the signers to the definitive treaty of Peace at Paris in September, 1783; and returned to America in 1784, having been previously appointed Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He became Chief Justice of the United States in 1789, and in 1794 was appointed Minister to England; was Governor of the State of New-York from 1795 to 1801, after which he retired from public life, and died at Bedford, Westchester county, on 17th May, 1829, in the 84th year of his age. Blake's Biographical Dictionary.—Ed.

Low,<sup>1</sup> Philip Livingston<sup>2</sup> and John Alsop, Merchants.—I am told a violent Effort was made in the Committee to have John Scott, an eminent Lawyer, and Alex<sup>r</sup> M<sup>c</sup>Dougale, the Wilkes of New York, named, in place of Jay and Alsop.—It is said the People are to be invited to meet on Thursday, to approve of the Deputies named by the Committee.—These Transactions are dangerous, my Lord, and illegal; but by what means shall Government prevent them? An Attempt by the Power of the Civil Magistrate, would only shew their weakness, and it is not easy to say upon what foundation a Military Aid should be calld in.—Such a Measure would involve us in Troubles, which it is thought much more prudent to avoid; and to shun all Extreame, while it is yet possible.—Things may take a favourable turn.—The Purpose of the Congress, it is said, is to Petition for a redress of Greivances, and to consider of a Plan for settling the Controversy with Great Britain. But no Instructions for the Deputies have yet appear'd that I know of.

The present Political zeal and frenzy is almost entirely confined to the City of New York. The People in the Counties are no ways disposed to become active, or to bear any Part in what is proposed by the Citizens. I am told all the Counties, but one, have declined an Invitation, sent to them from New York, to appoint Committees of Correspondence. This Province is every where, my Lord, except in the City of New York, perfectly quiet and in good Order: and in New York a much greater freedom of Speech prevails now, than has done heretofore. An Opposition has been declared to the vile Practice of exhibiting Effigies, which I hope will prevent it for the future.

I beleave your Lordship will expect a particular Account of the state of the Province from Me, which I hope will be a sufficient Excuse for my troubling you with such minute Transactions. I am anxious to perform my Duty, and to merrit your Protection by being Johnson hall July 12th 1774.

My Lord,

I am so deeply affected at the Melancholy occasion which renders it my duty to write to your Lordship, that I hope it will procure an indulgence for the inaccuracies of this letter.

My much esteemed Father in law Sir Wm. Johnson in his last Dispatch to your Lordship which was of the 20th June (N<sup>o</sup> 9) had the honor to lay before you the very critical situation of Indian Affairs occasioned by the Cruelties and Murders committed by Cressop, who with some Frontier Banditti causelessly murdered near 40 Indians on Ohio, & that the Six Nations were then on the way to and some of them already arrived at this place in consequence thereof.—About the 7th of this inst. they all assembled at a time when Sir Wm. found himself much indisposed, which may principally be attributed to his indefatigable labors for the public security at an alarming juncture, he nevertheless held several conferences with them on the present posture of affairs until yesterday afternoon when his disorder increased thro' his over exertion so much that he was obliged to be supported to his chamber where he was seized with a suffocation of which he expired in less than two hours.—The Effect this produced on the Indians was as he had always apprehended, they assembled to the number of 500, around the House, and expressed the utmost confusion & doubt, they next proceeded to send Belts thro' all the Nations to notify his death, & their apprehensions that he had not as yet received his Majesties pleasure, respecting the care of their affairs, disorder might ensue & the Chiefs could no longer consult on, or promote peace.—I must confess my Lord, that the sudden loss of a man of his public & private virtues very much disconcerted me, until my attention was awaken'd by their resolutions, the consequences whereof at this time were but too obvious, I therefore went to them, & charged them not to be too hasty, that if their professions of regard for me so often made to Sir W. Johnson were as sincere as I had reason to believe, they should follow my advice, & do nothing rashly; that his Majesty was too wise & just a Monarch to neglect his attention to all faithful Nations, that they might be assured he would pursue such measures as in His wisdom seemed best for the Agency of their affairs, that they should with full confidence in his justice and regard patiently wait His Royal pleasure which could not yet be obtained, and that in the mean time I should take particular care of their affairs and endeavor to the utmost of my power to pursue the wise measures of that worthy Man for whose loss they expressed so much concern, in full expectation that they would shew their regard for their engagements, and his memory by acting like men, and attending to the important business now before them.

The satisfaction this afforded them is scarcely to be described, they imediately assured me that their minds were made easy by my words, that they should return to their Encampment & consider on the Ceremony of Condolance, after which they would be ready to proceed to business as usual desiring that I would express their hopes & confidence in His Majesties gracious attention to their request as formerly signified by Sir W. Johnson.—

This Morning I prepared a proper message, suitable to the exigence with which they have sent Messengers, and when the Ceremony of Condolance is performed, I shall meet them again, & endeavor to bring the Congress to a Conclusion on the Principles it was begun with.

The Request which the Indians referred to me at this time, your Lordship will find at large in Sir Wm. Johnson's dispatch of 17 April last (N<sup>o</sup> 7.) which was occasioned by the Declining state of his health, the alarm it caused amongst the Indians, and their repeated solicitations in my favor, he therein set forth the importance it was of to keep the office of Agent for Indian affairs immediately under the direction of the Crown, and the Transactions in one channel, the peculiar qualifications required for its discharge, and that such an officer should have a long acquaintance with and influence over the Indians.—On these heads he was pleased to make mention of me (at their desire) in terms that are very flattering as coming from a Gentleman of his judgment and candour, but such as I cannot conceive myself entitled to: All I can venture to offer, is, That I have for many years served in his Department, and particularly dedicated my time thereto, (as his immediate Dep<sup>y</sup>) since the reduction of the Corps I served in, <sup>1</sup> & laid aside all endeavors that might contribute to my advancement in any other way, and that if thro' the desire of the Indians and his recommendation I am judged capable of that difficult office, on its present establishment or under such regulations as His Majesty shall see fitting I am ready & desirous to devote the rest of my life, and the utmost of my abilities to the public service in that station.—I am sensible, My Lord, of the disadvantages I must lye under, being unknown, unsupported by solicitations and at a distance, neither is it prudent that I should attempt a personal application at a period when my presence here may be of some use, I must therefore chiefly depend on His Majesties opinion of His late honest & faithfull servant, and on your Lordship's Discernment, for I have no pretensions to your Patronage tho' I would willingly aspire to it.—

L<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn has in a letter just received, strongly represented the distresses of his frontier, and requested Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson to use his Influence with the 6 Nations thereon, and endeavour to procure their mediation &c<sup>a</sup> I am preparing to pursue this and every other object of the Congress in the best manner I can, the particulars of which I shall take the liberty of laying before your Lordship humbly requesting to be honored with his Majesties Commands that I may govern myself accordingly

with much respect
My Lord

Your Lordship's most

Johnson Hall July 26. 1774

My Lord,

I have the honor to acquaint your Lordship that the Congress with the Six Nations (which in my last of the 12th instant I mentioned had been interrupted by the sudden death of Sir Will<sup>m</sup> Johnson Bar<sup>t</sup>) is now happily terminated and such measures resolved on by that Confederacy as will I trust be very soon productive of advantage to the Public, the Indians having dispatched an Embassy composed of some of the principal men of each nation to the Southward charged with such belts and messages as will I persuade myself have considerable effect at this alarming Crisis; the principal parts of their public transactions I have now the honor to transmit a copy of.

In one of Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's last letters he complained of those who by their indiscretion were constantly counteracting all his endeavors for the public tranquillity, and it is with concern I repeat it, for those people whose characters and conduct have been fully described by him, increase in numbers & irregularities and under pretence of revenge for acts which their own cruelties occasioned, they have formed large bodies, one of which of more than a thousand men is gone to penetrate into the Indian country and build forts, whilst small detachments are acting offensively against all Indians they meet.—One of these parties lately pursued some faithfull Indians who had escorted a body of Traders to Fort Pitt,—As such Acts of injustice and indiscretion must tend to destroy the confidence, and weaken the attachment of those Indians there who have hitherto acted as friends, so is it in a particular manner disagreeable to the Six Nations who are alarmed for their Emigrants on Ohio.—On the Other hand the people on the frontiers of Pensilvania have abandoned their settle<sup>m</sup> to avoid the resentment of the Indians, and the authors of all this never reflect that their conduct must produce such an union of Interests amongst the several Tribes as may end in their utter ruin which they would have experienced long since but for the successfull measures adopted by Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson.—I have since his decease had the good fortune to convince the Six Nations that it was their duty and interest to calm their people, and their resolutions thereon will have that effect unless the disorderly persons on the frontiers shall continue their Acts of Violence and Intrusion.—At all events the fidelity of that Confederacy is what I principally depend on for restoring peace to that Country, & preventing the disorder from Spreading.

Since my last I had the satisfaction to receive General Gage's approbation and direction to take upon me the Superintendency of Indian Affairs until His Majesty's pleasure is signified, which has induced me to make such provision for the exigency of the times during that interval, as will prove a sensible inconvenience to me should superior interest, or different representations disappoint my hopes derived from the recommendation of so experienced an officer as Sir Wm. Johnson, whose sentiments of me have been so fully expressed to your Lordship as to leave no room for any addition of mine.—I must however beg your Lordship's indulgence to add that tho' warmly solicited by the Indians, as will appear from the papers herewith transmitted I should not solicit for the management of their Affairs, was I not conscious that from personal influence & the superior opportunities I have had, I may be enabled to render His Majesty some services, tho' I enter upon it at a most critical period at the risque of my own reputation, and (which is as dear to me) that of the worthy man, to whose good opinion & recommendation I am so much indebted.

In one of the private conferences I had with the Indians they agreed to send a private instruction to Kayashota, & the delegates with him, with a view to divert the attention of the other Tribes near Ohio from the Shawanese who depend entirely on their support, and thro' them have endeavored to effect that general but dangerous union they have long had in view; I shall very soon hear the result of these measures as well as of the proceedings of the Shawanese themselves, wch will enable me to consider on the part the Six Nations should next take, their Chiefs having given me private assurances that whenever required they will proceed to extremities with those Tribes, an offer which I am humbly of opinion should not be accepted of but in case of great necessity.

I hope my next despatch will afford your Lordship more satisfaction respecting Indian Affairs, and I humbly solicit your Lordship's countenance & directions, as it shall be my study to cultivate the one, by a constant attention to the other, and the faithful discharge of my duty.

I have the honor to be

with much respect

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient

& most humble Servant

The R<sup>t</sup> Honorable
The Earl of Dartmouth.

Proceedings of Sir William Johnson with the Indians.

[Plantations General, CCLX.]

Proceedings at a Congress with all the Chiefs, and Warriors of the Six Nations at Johnson Hall in June and July 1774.

On the 19th of June a large party of Onondagas &c. arrived at Johnson Hall, and acquainted Sir William Johnson that the Chiefs &c of all the Six Nations were on their way to his House to hold a Conference on the critical state of Indian Affairs, and other matters. From the 19th of June to the 8th of July, parties continued to come in, amounting in the whole to near 600.

On the morning of the 8th of July, one of the Prisoners confined in Goal for the murder of the Frenchmen on Lake Ontario, died, & the Indians held a Conference with Sir William, earnestly requesting that the other Prisoner might be restored to them, as they had lately been so ill treated to the Southward, and as the one had died, as they apprehended, through the Circumstances of a confinement, to which he had not been accustomed, for all which, and as it appeared agreeable to the General from the state of affairs, and as they had brought in all the skins they had been able to collect, as a restitution for the robbery, Sir William agreed to their request, & they thereupon delivered up some packs, and a quantity of some loose bear, racoon and other skins, which with those delivered up at Ontario amounted nearly to the real loss sustained by the Canadians w<sup>ch</sup> appear'd to have been much exaggerated.

The Senecas expressed great satisfaction on the occasion, and Sir William told them that he expected they wou'd act a faithful, and becoming part for this instance of lenity which they owed to their particular solicitations, His Majesty's compassion, and that he expected this wou'd be the last instance of irregularity on their parts.

At a Meeting of the Six Nations at Johnson Hall the 9th of July 1774.

Conaghquayeson, an Oneida Chief opened the Meeting with the Ceremony of Condolance with the Indians on the death of the young Indian Prisoner, who died the day before, to which the Indians returned their thanks in the usual manner.

Gave Six Strings, & two black Strouds.

Then Serihowane a Seneca Chief proceeded upon the business they assembled for, and addressed Sir William as follows. viz<sup>t</sup>

Brother Warraghiyagey.

You told us last fall to remember, and keep up strictly to the old engagements entered into with the English which was in general intended for our interest, and welfare, and that you was apprehensive that the sincerity of the Senecas was not so perfect as you cou'd wish.— We can assure you, Brother, of the contrary on our side, and shall be happy if the English on their parts are as sincere towards us, and we beg you will not give ear to every report that is made to our prejudice.

Returned a String

Brother, To convince you that we keep fresh in our memory the engagements entered into, with you, we now produce to you the Chain Belt of Alliance and Friendship, you delivered to us at Niagara in 1764 after the Senecas had got bewildered, and acted an unbecoming part towards you. We can assure you, Brother, ever since we have endeavored our utmost to keep that chain of Friendship bright, and the Path of Peace unobstructed, notwithstanding which we have observed with concern that many of our people were still suspected of insincerity, which we cannot think we deserved from the English.

Shew'd the Belt.

Brother, You likewise recommended to us to collect all our straggling people about the Ohio, and its Branches, & convinced us that it was for the good of the Public that they shou'd be brought under our eyes to prevent them from being led astray by bad people. This Brother, we have endeavored, and are still endeavoring to do, but hitherto without success, which is in a great measure owing to the conduct of the English, the neglect of the Provinces, and the behavior of the Traders.

When you convened us at Niagara, and after settling every matter for our mutual welfare, You also told us we shou'd enjoy a plentiful Trade, and mentioned to us the different Marts where we could have our necessaries, and trade with the English, which we really accordingly enjoyed, and Trade was carried on for some years to our mutual satisfaction, but to our sorrow, that Regulation, by some means or other, did not continue long, and as you informed us soon after, the management of Trade was left to the Regulation of the respective Provinces: but the Provinces have done nothing, and the Trade has been thrown into utter confusion by the Traders being left to their own will and pleasure and pursuit of gain, following our people to their Hunting Grounds with Goods and Liquor, where they not only impose on us at pleasure, but by the means of carrying these Articles to our scattered people, obstruct our endeavors to collect them, which we might have easily effected if the Traders had been obliged to bring their Goods to Niagara, or other Markets, as before.— Brother, you cannot imagine the many ill consequences this change in the regulation of Trade has occasioned: but we shall still persevere, and hope that you will give orders to your Resident at Fort Pit to assist us in Removing our People living at Canawago & elsewhere.

Brother, We are sorry to observe to you that your People are as ungovernable, or rather more so, than ours. You must remember that it was most solemnly, and publicly settled, and agreed at the General Congress held at Fort Stanwix in 1768 on behalf of the great King of England our Father, and the Governors, and Commissioners of the several Provinces then assembled there, that the Line then pointed out and fixed between the Whites and Indians should forever after be looked upon as a barrier between us, and that the White People were not to go beyond it.—It seems, Brother, that your People entirely disregard, and despise the settlement agreed upon by their Superiors and us; for we find that they, notwithstanding that settlement, are come in vast numbers to the Ohio, and gave our people to understand that they wou'd settle wherever they pleas'd. If this is the case we must look upon every engagement you made with us as void and of no effect, but we hope it is not so, & that you will restrain your people over whom you say you have authority, and make them lay aside their ill designs, and encroachments, as it has already occasioned jealousies and ill blood, and may be productive of infinite mischief, and trouble, and we must beg that if your people insist upon settling so near ours, they may be made subject to some authority that can keep them in order. We entreat you will make this, our request, known to His Majesty, and the Governors of these unruly people, until which time, and until the return of Kayoghshota from his Embassy to the Nations on the Ohio, we promise for ourselves, as well as on behalf of our Head Women, who have much influence with our young men, to keep them quiet, they being much affected, & exasperated at the cruel murders committed by their lawless people on their friends and relations

Gave a Belt.

Brother, You recommended to us the Six Nations, last fall, to consider the distressed situation of the Montauk Indians who being surrounded by the White People of Long Island, were in a fair way of being dispossessed of all their lands by them, on which they had requested that we wou'd afford them a piece of land in our country to which they might retire, and live peaceably hereafter. We have taken your desire into Consideration, and agreed to fix them at Canawaroghere. We are glad of the opportunity of serving them in this respect, and shall with pleasure take them under our protection in the same manner as fond parents do their children, & hope they may prove deserving of it.

Gave a Belt.

Then a Cayuga War Chief arose, and addressed Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, saying that he must inform him how disagreeable it was to their nation to have Traders continually among them who sell rum, and thereby occasion much mischief, and trouble, and requested they might for the future be prevented to go there, in order to avoid accidents that might happen to them,—that they thought it not so far, if they had any thing to sell, to bring it to market on the Mohawk River, and therefore desired that neither the White People, or Indians be allowed to come to Cayuga to trade for the future, that if they chuse to pass their towns in their way to the Seneca Country they had no objection, but only desired they wou'd not dispose of any thing to their people, and at their towns.

Gave a Belt.

P. M. Sir William had a conference with the Chiefs wherein he communicated to them the particulars of the account he had received from the Southward respecting the late murders, with the steps taken by his Deputy on the occasion, after which he enlarged on the many irregularities committed by the Indians about the branches of Ohio and Mississippi, and some late charges against them, as the cause of the late ill behavior of Cressup and his associates, and after using many arguments to convince them they shou'd exert more authority over their allies, and keep them in better order, he lastly gave them a particular account of the different schemes of the Shawanese, and their friends for several years past to cast an odium on the Six Nations, with a view that the latter might lose our friendship, and then be induced to join in their evil designs, adding, that it was now high time to stop such doings, and that charity for these weak people induced him to wish that the Six Nations wou'd save the English the disagreeable trouble of compelling these troublesome people to alter their behavior. He likewise fully explained to them the consequences, shou'd the Shawanese &c. continue to prosecute their revenge on the Provinces of Pennsylvania and Virginia, without waiting to obtain regular justice whenever they appeared to be injured.

At a Congress with the aforementioned Indians on Monday the 11th July 1774.

PRESENT — as before

Sir William addressed them as follows.

Brothers, I have considered your speeches, and am always glad to hear that you preserve in Remembrance your engagements, which I trust you will be equally careful to fulfill. You now all see that through my Representations, and the tenderness of the English Government, you have the Prisoner restored to you, I hope you will make a good use of this, and of every other act of kindness you receive, and then you need not to apprehend you are in any wise suspected, or fear evil reports, to which I am by no means inclined to give ear.

Brothers. I am glad you have preserved the Great Belt I delivered to you at Niagara, and I hope you will keep the contents of it, and all others I gave y<sup>a</sup> in Rememberance, for, if you do, you cannot neglect endeavoring to the utmost to keep your people in good order, and preventing those who live at a distance from following evil Councils, which draw reflections on your Confederacy.

Brothers. I told you long since the reasons why the affairs regarding trade were left to the Direction of the Colonies, who it was imagined wou'd best regulate, and restrain their own people, and I also shew'd you the difficulty and time it must take up to make regulations adapted to their respective circumstances and yours. I am persuaded the Colonies have it still at heart: but I cannot think it any material obstruction to the withdrawing your people from about the Ohio, and I apprehend it is in your power to redress yourselves in the particular you complain of without giving offence.— For, wherever you find traders obtruding themselves upon you, with liquor, or following your parties to their hunting Grounds, you may easily tell them to retire to more convenient places, as you will not allow them to go about in the manner you mention, in which case, I have great reason to think that such traders will withdraw, and give you no trouble.

Brothers. I am sorry to hear of the encroachments made by some of our people, of which you so often complained, this, you may be assured is without the consent or knowledge of government, and the King will take measures to prevent Intrusion; but it does not so materially affect you as it affects some of your Southern Dependants, several of whom have acted such a part of late as to encourage some of our ignorant frontier Inhabitants to commit irregularities, of which, otherwise I hardly think they wou'd be guilty.—These men will be sought after & punished. It is your business to enquire into the conduct of these your Dependants, & to punish them, who by their misconduct afford encouragement to others.—You may easily believe that in so extensive a country, and among such a number of people, it is a matter of difficulty to find out and punish the authors of mischief, although we have good, and sufficient laws for that purpose.—but none of our principal men are concerned in these Acts, whilst many chiefs of the nations to the Southward are the real authors of the mischiefs done by the Indians. I wou'd therefore advise you to put a stop to such evils in time, and you may rest assured that I will lay these matters you complain of, before His Majesty, and the Governors concerned, that every thing on our parts shall be done to restore peace, and afford you satisfaction where you have a claim to it. At the same time I must greatly approve of the steps of my Deputy on the late unfortunate affair, as well as of Kayagshota, and the Delawares, I expect you will strengthen their hands on this occasion, and that I shall soon receive favorable accounts from that Quarter.

Brothers the Cayugas.—I have heard the complaints you have made of the traders who are among you, and I apprehend if you pursue the advice I just now gave to the rest of your Confederacy, it will have the desired effect, however I shall willingly do every thing in my power for preventing their giving you any trouble, and I expect you will be satisfied with my endeavors for that purpose. A Belt.

Then Deckarihoga Chief of the Conajohares spoke as follows.

Brother. It is with pain I am under the necessity of complaining again, against that old Rogue, the old Disturber of our Village George Klock. You are long acquainted with his artifices, and evil conduct, & you have often assured us you had applied for redress, but whatever is the reason we never yet obtained any satisfacton, and we begin to be doubtful whether the English will afford it to us, for which reason we are driven to the necessity of mentioning our grievances to you in the presence of the whole confederacy that they who know our rank may espouse our cause, as it is their duty to do, and convince the English that we have friends & deserve attention.

Brother. I will not take up your time with telling you and your brothers here present, the many artifices he has made use of to cheat us of our lands, & to create divisions among ourselves.—I shall only mention his last Actions,—This evil spirit last winter by his cunning seduced one of our foolish young fellows to steal away with him to England, where he exposed him for a show, and cheated him out of his money.—Klock has since, stolen home like a Rogue as he went out, and when we had notice of it, and applied to him to sign the release of the lands which he stole, which all the rest did, he appointed a time for it, but when we came to his house, and brought a Justice of Peace to be present, he refused admittance to him, and us, and has since ran away, and propag[a]ted a story that some of us threatened his life.—It is true, Brother, that the man he cheated went and took some of his own money, and probably some of our young fellows, after his own evil example, might have used angry threats to induce him to sign the release, but we disavow it, as we do all his falsehoods, and are ready to wait for justice. It has often been promised, but never been afforded us. We beg the great men who manage the White people may obtain justice for us, and cause him to sign the Deed, and let us alone, and if we thought this wou'd still be done we wou'd willingly wait a while patiently, otherwise we cannot answer for the consequences.

To which Sir William answered. —

That they need not to have mentioned this matter to their Confederacy, who had no business with it,—that he wou'd again lay the matter before Government, and use all his endeavors for their satisfaction, that they shou'd patiently wait without attempting any act of violence, which wou'd be highly resented, and that he was authorized to tell them, Klock's conduct was disagreeable to the King.—

Then Sir W<sup>m</sup> ordered Pipes & Tobacco, and some Liquor for the Indians, and adjourned with design to give them time to consider of the principal objects of the Congress, but having been very weak from his former Indisposition, the fatigue brought on him a Relapse which in about two hours threw him into a fit in which he suddenly, and most unfortunately expired.

Immediately on the Death of Sir William Johnson, the Indians assembled in the most apparent Confusion, and applied to Colonel Johnson to know whether he had received authority to transact affairs with them, to which he replied that there was not then sufficient time to receive His Majesty's Commands touching their former Requests, but that they shou'd rest contented as he would continue to conduct these matters 'till farther Orders; Whereupon the Indians appeared very uneasy and proposed to send off alarming Belts thro' all the Nations, but Colonel Johnson prevailed on them, as it was then late to retire to their encampments, assuring them that he shou'd early in the morning give them more particular Information, on which they retired.

Tuesday July the 12th

On this Day Col. Johnson assembled the Chiefs & addressed them as follows.

Brothers,

As it is not conformable to your Customs that those who have suffered a great loss should speak first, I shou'd have declined addressing you 'till after the Ceremony of Condolance, did you not express so strong a desire to send extraordinary messages through the Nations with the news of the late melancholy accident.—Upon this occasion I am necessitated to advise you, least it might occasion too great an alarm, that the worthy Sir William Johnson, agreeable to the desire you have often signified, recommended it to the consideration of the Great King, that I shou'd be in his stead. His Majesty's answer is not yet arrived; but there is no doubt from his esteem for all good and faithful Indians of his doing what he shall think best; and in the mean time you may acquaint all the Nations, that though I feel myself at pres' unequal to the load, when I reflect on the conduct and character of that great and good man who left us yesterday, yet as I have long lived under his direction, and transacted, for many years, his affairs, and correspondences respecting you, I trust that the Great Spirit will give me strength, and wisdom to conduct those important matters in some measure corresponding with his great example. It remains for you, Brethren, to be strong and steady in your engagements, all which I am well acquainted with, and to shew your friendship to the English, and your respect and reverence for the memory of your great & good Adviser, by supporting me under this arduous undertaking, which if you do, you may be allways assured of my sincere regard.—Send these Words thro' the Nations, assuring them that the fire still burns, and the Road is open to this place.—And let it be told Kayaghshta, that he may be strong, and continue his good endeavors for the preservation of Peace, and the security of yourselves, and your Posterity, whose Interests I shall be ever desirous to promote.

A Belt.

After which the Indians returned thanks promising to forward the Belt directed, and to consider on the Ceremony of Condolance to be performed after Sir William's Interrment, requesting likewise to be permitted to attend his Funeral Obsequies.

P. M. July the 13th

The Corps of the late Sir William Johnson was carried from Johnson Hall to Johnstown, and deposited in the Family Vault in the Church which he erected, attended by, upwards of 2000 persons from the neighboring Country, with the Indians, who all behaved with the greatest Decorum, and exhibited the most lively marks of real sorrow. The Pall was supported by His Excell<sup>ty</sup> the Governor of New Jersey the Judges of the Supreme Court of New York, and other Persons of note who happened to be at Johnstown at that time, and on their return from the Funeral to Johnson Hall, the Indians acquainted Col. Johnson that they wou'd perform the Ceremony of Condolance the next day.

Thursday July the 14th

The Chiefs of the Six Nations assembled early in the morning to perform the Ceremony of Condolance for the Death of Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson.

And addressed Col. Johhson as follows viz.

Brother. It yeilds us vast pleasure to find that the Fire which was in danger of being totally extinguished by the great loss we have sustained, is for the present rendered bright by you.—the good Words you have spoke to us yesterday, having revived us, and kept our young men within reasonable bounds, who otherwise wou'd have lost their senses, we rejoice at it and accordingly with this Belt we cause the Fire to burn clear as usual at this Place, and at Onondaga which are our proper Fire Places, & we hope the great King will approve, and confirm it.

<sup>1</sup> STEPHEN DE LANCEY was the son of Peter de L. Supra, VI, 469. On 25th January, 1765, he was commissioned clerk of the city and county of Albany, where he married Esther Rynderts. Holgate says he was a member of the Albany Committee of Safety at its first formation, but if so, he afterwards fell off from the popular cause. In that city, the 4th of June, 1776, (the King's birth day) was ushered in with firing of guns, and other rejoicings "not agreeable to the inhabitants," and in the evening a party assembled to do honor to the day, with Abraham C. Cuyler, the Mayor, at their head, and were found "carousing, and singing God save the King." The citizens became exasperated, rushed in and seized Stephen de Lancy and others and carried them off to jail, whence they were shortly after removed to Hartford, Conn. Mr. de L. remained at that place until 26th December following, when he was released on his parole and allowed to return to his family. 5. American Archives, I, 890; III, 1434. Brother. With this Belt we sweep the Fire Place clean, removing from it all impure, and disagreeable objects, so that we may sit round it, and consult for the public good as usual

A Belt of 7 Rowes.

Brother. With these strings we request that when our Ceremonies are performed, you will apply y<sup>r</sup> attention to our affairs and continue to give good Advice to the Young men as your Father did.

A Bunch of Strings

Brother, We know that you must be loaded with grief on this melancholy occasion, we therefore now cleanse your Body, and wash your Inside with clear water so that you may once more attend to & proceed upon business.

Brother. The heavy clouds which have hung over you, and us, have prevented us from seeing the Sun, it is therefore our business with this string to clear the sky which was overcast. — And we likewise with this String put the Sun in its proper Course, that it may perform the same as before, so that you may be enabled to see what is doing & pursue the good works of peace.

2 Strings.

Then added. Brother. Since it hath pleased the Great Spirit to take from us our great Brother Warraghjagey, who has long desired at our Request to put you in his place, we very much rejoice to find you ready to take this charge upon you, without which we shou'd be in Darkness, and great confusion. We are now once more happy, and with this Belt we exhort you to take care of our Affairs, to follow his footsteps, and as you very well know his ways, and transactions with us, that you will continue to imitate them for the good of the Public.

A Belt of 6 Rowes.

Then, Tyerhansera Chief of the Mohawks spoke as follows. viz<sup>t</sup>

Brother,—The business being so far happily set on foot again, we think it necessary to observe to you that this is a very critical time, and that our Brother having suddenly died at a time, when great troubles are begun to the Southward, it is incumbent on you to be strong, and to follow closely his practises in all things, as you knew them. Our business with our brother was nearly brought to a conclusion, and his last words to us concerning the great troubles in Virginia to withdraw our people, were answered by us in the papers lying before you.—

Brother.—We must tell you that it is the White People only who prevent it; for if they did not make a Practice of coming in great numbers with rum into that country, our people wou'd be wise, and come to our Fire Places, but they are tempted to stay there.—And now, Brother, we must desire you to be strong, and to use all your endeavors for putting a stop to your people, and fulfilling his promises to us, that we may be enabled to bring them away, as you desire.—Another thing, Broth<sup>r</sup> we have to say, is, to remind you that at the Fort Stanwix Treaty in 1763, we gave up a great deal of land which we did not expect wou'd be suddenly overspread with people, but we now see with concern that they do not even confine themselves within their limits, which must end in troubles. We therefore beg that they may be restrained, and brought under some Government. These things, Brother, and particularly the murders and robberies your people commit have kindled a flame which is as yet small, but unless quenched in time, it will overspread the country so that we can't stop it. We therefore hope for your vigorous Endeavors to put it out.

Then Conoghquieson stood up, and with a large black & white Belt said.

Brother. We now speak in the name of our whole confederacy, and dependants, expressing our thanks that agreeable to our former request to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, we now see you taking care of our affairs.—We earnestly exhort you to take due care of them, as that great man did, who promised you to us, and we now desire that you will send these our Words to the Great King, who, we hope will regard our desires, and approve of you as the only person that knows us, and our affairs, that business may go on as it did formerly, otherwise in this alarming time of trouble without your care, and attention our affairs will fall into great confusion, and all our good works will be destroyed. We beg therefore you will accept our good wishes, and that you will continue to take care of the great business in which we are all concerned.

A large black Belt of 9 Rowes.

Then added that they wou'd retire for the present, and wait Colonel Johnson's answer which he told them they shou'd have in the Afternoon.

P. M. Assembled as before.

I am extremely happy that by your Condolance, & our mutual performance of these ceremonies occasioned by the Death of your late worthy Superintendent, I am now enabled to lift up my head, and proceed upon business of public concern, and I am particularly glad that you join me so heartily in making up the Fire, which was very nigh being extinguished.—be assured that nothing shall be wanting on my part to preserve it.

Brother.—I am very happy to find that my acting for the present in consequence of your former desires, proves so agreeable to you and you may be assured that however unequal I am to follow the steps of so great an experienced a man, I shall endeavor, so long as I am authorized, to do every thing in my power for the Interest of the Public, and your own; but I expect at the same time that your good behavior will continue as an encouragement to me to follow his good example.

Brother. I well remember the wise maxims which governed your late worthy adviser in the business on which you come here last, and you may be assured that I shall to the utmost strive to put his last Words, and Promises into execution by a faithful Representation of your Grievances to those persons in Authority, whose Duty it is to correct the abuses of which you complain.—but I cannot help thinking that it is in your own power to bring your people from among those Tribes, who by their daily practices, endeavour to bring a general reflection on your Confederacy, and I trust that you will join heartily with Kayagshota in this good Work, whereby you will pay a kind Tribute to the memory of your deceased faithful friend, and shew your influence over these your own people.

Brothers of the Six Nations Depend<sup>t</sup>

I have heard your words, and kindly thank you for the regard you express for me, and the desire you shew for my conducting your affairs.—This matter has been already laid before His

<sup>1</sup> BENJAMIN CHAPMAN entered the army on the 8th March, 1760, as Ensign in the 18th or Royal Irish regiment of foot, in which he became Lieutenant 11th September, 1765; in 1767 the regiment came to America, and he obtained his company there on 2d June, 1771. Majesty who regards all faithful Indians, and will act therein as he sees most fitting, with which determination, it is your business to acquiesce. I shall however comply with your Request, at the same time it is my duty to communicate your Transactions to the General of the Army who is newly returned to this country, & has long known, and regarded you, and whose authority will enable him to do what shall appear necessary at present, and I earnestly desire that you will act such a part as shall entitle you to the attention of Government, by taking fast hold of the chain, and giving all your assistance towards the restoring peace in the country, and security to yourselves, as the only means of convincing His Majesty of your fidelity;—and I desire that these, my words, may go to the setting of the Sun. A Belt

Brother. The purport of the Intelligence that came from the Governor of Pennsylvania respecting the Ravages committed by the Shawanese & others in his Province, are of such a nature that I expect you will enable me to assure him that you will immediately discountenance, & put an end to all such cruelties, otherwise your Reputation as a powerful Confederacy will greatly suffer in the Eyes of the English, and the Resentment of that Province may fall heavy upon that deluded people, who have done so much mischief, without waiting for that justice, which Government was willing to afford to your complaints.

Conoghquieson then arose, and said.

Brother.—You all know that Kayagshota, with three of our people of the greatest consequence are at present employed in the good work you recommend; but further to promote it, we have agreed to send this Belt forward through the Nations with a deputation to consist of two, or three Chiefs from each of our Nations to enforce it; and we are glad that the Governor of New Jersey has heard what we have said, as he may assist in making our Sentiments & Grievances known to the neighbouring Governors.—To which His Excell<sup>ty</sup> answered that the Inhabitants of New Jersey had no concern in any of the Disputes but were well disposed towards them, and that the Indians might recollect that three men were formerly executed under his Administration, and that through his inclination to do them strict Justice, but that nevertheless he would be aiding in promoting peace & harmony between the English & Indians.—

They were then treated with Pipes, and Tobacco &c. as is usual, after w<sup>ch</sup> they adjourned.

Friday July the 15th

Col. Johnson assembled the Indians & spoke as follows.

Brothers.—It pleases me much to find you unanimous in your late Resolutions, as it is a proof of your sense, and fidelity, at the same time it is so essential to your importance and happiness that I will not entertain a doubt of your determined intentions to check the Incursions of your Dependants who run about like drunken men, and ought to be disarmed by those who are sober, and peaceable, least the English shou'd be obliged to raise their powerful arm against them, which might have dreadful consequences. On my part you may be assured that I shall communicate your Grievances respecting the Affairs of the Southward, to the Governors interested, who will do their utmost to restore order, and tranquility.

I shall likewise lay the Complaint of the Conajohares concerning George Klock before the Governor of New York and acquaint the Montauk Indians with your good Intentions towards them, and in evry thing else, to the utmost of my power, fulfill the promises made to you, in consequence of which I expect that my words will be faithfully, and without any alteration, delivered by your Deputies, and that you will continue to testify your reverence for the King, and your Regard for His Subjects, and your love for the Memory of your faithful friend, my deceased father in law, by a punctual discharge of your engagements, and the strictest candour in your transactions wth me which you may rest assured I shall return, so long as I have any thing to do with your affairs, by a faithful attention to your Interests, and an upright conduct towards yourselves, which characterized the actions of your late worthy Superintendent, and will always secure the esteem of a wise & good people.

The Indians returned many thanks for this speech, & shook hands purposing to return home the Day following, and in the afternoon Colonel Johnson had a private Conference with Sayenquaraghta, and some other principal men, to whom he pointed out the danger to which the Ohio Senecas wou'd be exposed, unless the present disturbances were accommodated, and concluded with advising them by all means to withdraw their people from the neighborhood of the rest, who were endeavouring to alienate them from their own Confederacy.

Saturday July the 16th

Colonel Johnson gave a handsome present to the Chiefs, and to those who were instrumental in apprehending the Murderers, as well as to such as had acted a good part on receiving the news of the late murders on Ohio, after which they took their leaves with many expressions of Satisfaction, having first presented the Chiefs who were to go [to] the Southward, and explain the purport of their Embassy.

Lords of Trade to Governor Tryon.

[New-York Entries, LXIX., 19.]

William Tryon Esq., Governor of New York.

Sir,

The Acts of Legislature in the Province of New York are in General so reasonable and the objects of them so commendable that it is with great Reluctance We cannot comply with the wishes of the Assembly in the Case of the Law "for defraying a moiety of the expenses accrued on settling the contested boundaries between the Patented Lands commonly called "Cheescocks and Kakiate"

The inclosed copy of M<sup>r</sup> Jacksons Report on that Law states very material objection to it: they are not however the only ones; the unlimited power given to the Commissioners to ascertain whatever Sum they please as the proportion to be paid by that part of the pretended Lands of Kakiate which are contested is not only liable to great objection in the abstract view of it; but is still more so by the provision made, that the Certificate of those Commissioners, as to the Sum, shall be final without any appeal either to a Court of Quarter Sessions or any other Superior Court whatever.

Upon the whole therefore we cannot lay this Act before the King for his Majesty's Confirmation; It certainly ought to be disallowed; but when we consider its general utility, and that it has probably been long ago carried into execution and has had its full effect we shall at present suffer it to lye by trusting that if it has not been carried into execution the legislature will from a conviction of the Justice of our sentiments upon it pass an explanatory Act that shall remove the objections and that you will in that case take care that a clause be inserted therein suspending its execution until the Kings pleasure be known the omission of which in the original Act has occasioned much difficulty and was an inattention to your Instructions which it is our duty to take notice of.

No 4.

New York 2<sup>d</sup> August 1774

My Lord,

The Public have met with a very great loss in the Death of Sir William Johnson, which happened on the 11th of last Month. He was engaged in Business of Importance, with a large Number of Indians who were then with Him, on the present critical state of Indian Affairs on the Frontiers of Virginia and Pensylvania. He had been unwell some Days, but applied closely to Business, in consultation with the Indians Cheifs, 'till he was obliged to call for Assistance to get to his Room, and expired soon after.

Sir William Johnson's greatest Abilities, and singular Disposition, enabled him to acquire and hold a greater Influence among the Indians than any other English Man ever had.—I am told he recommended his son in law, Col. Guy Johnson, to His Majesty to succeed him in his Department. The Col. took up the remaining Business of the Congress, after Sir William's Death; and I know no Person so proper to succeed his Father in Law. By Sir William's Death his Seat is vacant at the Council Table. I hope Governor Tryon is now with your Lordship. He is the proper person to recommend for filling up that vacancy.

In my letter N<sup>o</sup> 3. I submitted to your Lordship my Opinion, that Government here, cannot prevent the frequent Meetings of the People, which have become common everywhere; and I am now convinced that if Government had interfer'd, the most violent men would have gaind great Advantage, and would have prevented the acquiescence in the nomination of moderate Men, which has now taken place, to meet at the general Congress of Deputies from all the Colonies proposed to be held at Philadelphia next Month.

The Meeting of the Deligates, I am of opinion, cannot be prevented. If they pursue only such prudent measures as are calculated to remove the destructive Dissentions which subsist between Great Britain and her Colonies, the meetings, tho' illegal, it may be hoped, will produce some good. Great pains has been taken in the several Counties of this Province, to induce the People to enter into Resolves; and to send Committees to join the City Committee; but they have only prevailed in Suffolk County, in the East End of Long Island, which was settled from Connecticut, and the Inhabitants still retain a great similarity of manners & sentiments.

From a view of the numerous Resolves of the People in all the Colonies, which appear in every news Paper, your Lordship might be led to think a stupid, fatal hardness intoxicated the whole. But there are every where many People who are seriously alarm'd at the critical Posture of the contention between Great Britain and her Colonies. They look forward with deepest anxiety, and would rejoice in any prudent Plan for restoring Harmony and Security.—Could it be thought consistent with the wisdom of Parliament to lay aside the right of raising money on the Subjects in America; and in lieu thereof, that the several American Assemblies, should grant and secure to the Crown, a sufficient and permanent supply to pay all the Officers and ordinary Expenses of Government; They are of Opinion this would be a ground work upon which a happy reconciliation might be effected.—The Dependence of the Colonies on Great Britain secured.—Government maintain'd and this Destructive Contest amicably terminated. For this purpose they hope an Address to His Majesty will be form'd at the general Congress.

I am with the greatest respect & submission

My Lord,

Your most obedient & faithfull Servant

Sir

The Governors of Kings College in New York have desired that the Draft which they have made of a Royal Charter may pass through my hands to your Excellency, I make no doubt you will use your Influence with the ministry in order to obtain it

The Dissenters from the Church of England have the sole education, not only in all the Seminaries of Learning in the New England Colonies, but likewise in New Jersey and other Colonies. It therefore seems highly requisite that a Seminary on the principles of the Church of England be distinguished in America, by particular Priviledges not only on account of Religion but of good Policy, to prevent, the growth of Republican Principles which already to much prevail in the Colonies. But your Excellency is so well acquainted with the State of the Colonies that it is needless for me to add any thing more than that I am with the greatest Respect

Your Excellency's

Most dutifull & obedt Serv<sup>t</sup>

(N<sup>o</sup> 23.)Whitehall 7th Sept<sup>r</sup> 1774.

Sir,

I have received your letters of the 6th of July & 2<sup>d</sup> Aug<sup>t</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 3 & 4. and have laid them before the King.

You certainly are right in thinking that it is your Duty to transmit a particular Account of all public Occurrences in the Province under your Government, & you will not fail to embrace every opportunity that offers of writing to me.

The King has seen with concern that His Subjects in the different Colonies in North America have been induced upon the ground stated in their different Resolutions to nominate Deputies to meet in general Congress at Philadelphia.

If the object of this Congress be humbly to represent to the King any Grievances they may have to complain of, or any propositions they may have to make on the present state of America, such Representations would certainly have come from each Colony with greater Weight in it's separate Capacity, than in a channel, of the Propriety and Legality of which there may be much doubt.

I fear however the Measure has gone too far to encourage any hope that it has been retracted, & I can only express my Wish that the Result of their Proceedings may be such as may not cut off all hope of that Union with the Mother Country, which is so essential to the Happiness of both.

Among the many Objects that will deserve your attention in the present state of America, the Contraband Trade carried on between New York & Holland is not the least important. The number of Vessels that continually load in Holland for that Province is a Melancholy evidence of the extent of that illicit commerce, & it is more particularly alarming now from the Intelligence received of very large Quantities of Gunpowder shipped there for New York.

My Information says that the Polly Cap<sup>t</sup> Benjamin Broadhelp bound from Amsterdam to Nantucket has among other Articles received on board no less a quantity than three Hundred thousand pounds weight of Gunpowder & I have great reason to believe that considerable quantities of that commodity as well as other Military stores are introduced into the Colonies from Holland through the Channel of S<sup>t</sup> Eustatia.

You will therefor, Sir, with as much Secrecy and Prudence as possible endeavour to inform yourself of the nature and extent of this Contraband Trade in General, & to attend particularly to the Intelligence I now send you with respect to the Ship Polly Cap<sup>t</sup> Benjamin Broadhelp.

It is most probable that the object of her voyage will be completed before this reaches you; but if any measures can be fallen upon that may lead to a Discovery of the Circumstances above stated, it will be of great Use, & may possibly suggest a means of putting a stop to so dangerous a Correspondence.

I am &c<sup>a</sup>

New York 7th September 1774.

My Lord,

I have the honor of your Lordship's Letter of the 6th July N<sup>o</sup> 21.

The Destruction of Captain Chamber's Tea was so unexpected and sudden, that no measures could be previously thought of to prevent it.

Afterwards, the Gentlemen of Property, and principal Merchants attended the Meetings of the Populace, when call'd together by their former Demagogues, who thereby have lost their influence, and are neglected. The Populace are now directed by Men of different Principles, and who have much at stake. Many papers have been publish'd in this City, to expose the Measures which had been proposed by the former Demagogues, in opposition to Government.—Men now speak and publish Sentiments, in favour of Government, and argue upon the political subjects of the Times, with much greater freedom and security than has been known here for some years past, which I hope is a sign, that the licentious spirit which has govern'd the People to their great Disgrace, is check'd.—We have no more burning of Effigies, or putting cut-throat papers under Peoples Doors. I hope I am not deceived in thinking that the People of this Province will cautiously avoid giving any new offence to the Parliament, but great Numbers, are so fluctuating, that some unexpected Incident may produce bad effects.—

The Five Gentlemen whom I formerly inform'd your Lordship, were appointed by this City to be their Deligates at the general Congress, went to Philadelphia, the place of meeting last Week.—Seven Counties of this Province, neither appointed Deligates for themselves nor concur'd in the choise made by the City; and two Counties have sent Deligates of their own.—I found the City Deligates were embarrassed by this Dissention of the People.

You may be assured, my Lord, that I will grant none of the Lands reserved for the Garrisons of Crown Point or Ticonderoga; but I am inform'd that Lord Dunmore, while in this Government, granted the Land reserved for the use of the Garrison at Crown Point, to Adolphus Benzell, an Officer of the Army and Assistant Engineer; and that there is a Clause in the Pattent, that he shall surrender the Land, whenever the King shall require it for the use of his Garrison. In the meantime the Firewood may be cut off.

I am with entire submission

Sir.

A few days ago I received your letter dated Johnson Hall July 12th 1774, containing an Account of the death of Sir William Johnson on the 7th of that Month, and by a New York Mail that arrived yesterday I received your letter of the 26th of July, inclosing copy of the Proceedings with the Six Nations of Indians in the late Congress.

These letters have been laid before the King, and His Majesty was graciously pleased to express His concern for the loss of so able and faithful a servant and to command me to signify to you His Majesty's pleasure that you do for the present, and until the state of the Indian Department can be further considered, continue to act as His Majesty's Agent to His faithful subjects and allies the Six Nations of Indians, with the like allowance and emolument enjoyed by Sir William Johnson, under the Commission granted to him for that Office in the year 1764.

Guy Park Sept<sup>r</sup> 10th 1774.

My Lord,

I am just honor'd with your Lordship's Dispatch of 6th July (N<sup>o</sup> 9) to the late Sir Wm. Johnson my father in Law, whose sudden Death during the July Congress, I communicated an Account of in the letter which I had the Honor to address to your Lordship on the 12th of that Month with the steps I had taken in consequence thereof; my next which was of the 26th July was accompanied with a copy of the principal transactions at that Congress, and General Gage's Direction to take upon me the Superintendency of Indian Affairs until His Majesty's Pleasure should be signified on the recommendations in my favor, and the particular one made at the desire of the Indians by Sir Wm. Johnson in his letter to your Lordship of the 17th April last (N<sup>o</sup> 7).—

In Sir Wm. Johnson's last letter to your Lordship which was of the 20th June (N<sup>o</sup> 9) he gave his opinion fully on the extravagance & disorderly behavior of the Frontier Virginians, and the consequences they were likely to produce, the death of one of the Seneca Prisoners and his intention to release the other which has been since done with the approbation of the Commander in Chief.

The Conduct of the Frontier Inhabitants to the Southward is not only the source of great discontent amongst the Indians but is highly disagreeable to the other Colonists whose Frontiers &c<sup>a</sup> are thereby endangered, Of this Sir W. Johnson appeared truly sensible in his last dispatch to your Lordship where he observes that under the Circumstances he stated "he feared the most that could be done was to prevent the Evil from being too general, to encourage the fidelity of those Nations on whom he could rely, with those that would joyn them & secure as much of the Frontiers as possible from Incursion." &c. I trust my Lord it appears that since I have had the honor to [be] SuperIntendant [of] this difficult Department, notwithstanding many additionally aggravating Circumstances affairs do not wear a worse aspect.

Soon after my last Dispatch I received accounts that the Shawanese and their Confederates had sent Belts with Messengers to the Nations living about Lakes Huron, Michigan &c<sup>a</sup> to invite them to take up the Hatchet & joyn them against the English who they complained had began their attack from Virginia but that they apprehended it would be general.—Some of the Nations to the Westward, with those who had attended to the advice of the Chief Kayashota, rejected their application. They then sent 3 Deputys to Onondaga to sollicit the aid of the Six Nation Warriors claiming their right of protection, but as I had reason to suspect they would take this measure, and that several of the Upper Senecas who had lost their Friends when Cressop first attacked the Shawanese, were full of resentment, I imediately dispatched some persons of Weight & Character with proper Belts thro' all the Confederacy, advising them to shut their ears against those who might endeavor to seduce them from their Engagements, and to regard only the Council of their own Chiefs, & that which they should receive from this Council Fire, where I attended to their true Interests; My Messengers fortunately arrived at Onondaga before the Shawanese Deputys, which proved a great Check to those who were inflamed by the late losses; The result was that the Shawanese Dep<sup>ts</sup> were told, they must expect no assistance from them, That they the Six Nations should in a few weeks hold a general Congress of the whole Confederacy, when they would take proper measures for promoting peace, to which they expected all Nations would pay regard.

The Principal Chiefs of each nation are now on their way down to consult me respecting their measures at the ensuing Congress, I shall take care to prepare them accordingly, and shall take every other necessary step for rendering it of much importance at this time, whereby the Frontier Inhabitants (who have been much alarmed) will recover themselves and the Shawanese &c<sup>a</sup> be convinced that they will meet with opposition rather than countenance from the Six Nations.—I have constantly laid all material occurrences before the Commander in Chief, and I have good hopes that my endeavors will produce a more favorable issue at this juncture than may be expected, But, My Lord, I labor under great disadvantage in the Exercise of my Interest & Influence at this time from the uncertainty of my continuance in Office which lays a great restraint on me in several matters, and renders many of our most faithfull Indians irresolute & uneasy. I am sensible that this is unavoidable at present and I have endeavored to do every thing consistent with the nature of my tenure, or rather more when the service required it.

My Lord, I was peculiarly circumstanced when I undertook the Office, The Southern Indians had been Struck (as they term it) they formed alliances, carried bitter complaints to the Six Nations who had likewise suffered loss in that affair. The Northern Indians were all alarm'd, & full of resentment; At this Critical Period Sir William Johnson the object of public hope to whom the Governors had wrote in the most earnest terms suddenly died, the consequences were obvious to all persons conversant in the state of the Country or of the Indians; I imediately sent Belts and Messengers to prevent the effects and to tell them that the Fire still burn'd, after which I gave the Chiefs as promising an account as the exigency required, & went thro' buisness as usual assuming all Expenses &c<sup>a</sup> 'till I received the General's letter that he had wrote in my favor, with orders to continue in Office 'till his Majesty's pleasure was signified; Since which I have done all that the service required, with good success, and I trust that before the receipt of the Royal Determination I shall be enabled to do justice to Sir W. Johnson's warm recommendation of me, by transmitting a very agreeable account of the fidelity of the Northern Indians.

I have the honor to be with great respect

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient

and most humble Servant,

I have received M<sup>r</sup> Chews Warrant for Sec<sup>y</sup> of Ind<sup>a</sup> Affairs, and I take the liberty of inclosing a Copy of Sir Wm. Johnson's Letter N<sup>o</sup> 7. attested by Sir John Johnson, the original was sent off, a few days before his Dispatch of the 2<sup>d</sup> of May.—I shall acquaint the Indians with M<sup>r</sup> Chew's appointment.

New York. 4th October 1774.

My Lord,

The enclosed Copy of a Petition, and affidavit, laid before me and the Council, will inform your Lordship, how much His Majesty's peaceable Subjects in a part of the Province mentioned in the Petition are mollensted and insulted, by a lawless sett of Men who at first settled there under a claim made by the Government of New Hampshire; but since they have been disown'd by that Government, they will pay obedience to none—assume all power to themselves—chuse Magistrates, erect Courts and inflict punishments &c.—Fugitives from all the neighbouring Governments resort thither, so that they are now become a numerous and dangerous Body of Banditti, which is every Day encreasing. The Council advised me to apply to General Gage for Military Assistance to preserve the Peace only: His answer is that, General Haldimand, had, on a similar Requisition, declined giving any Military Assistance, and his refusal had been approved of by His Majesty's Ministers, and for that reason he declined giving any Assistance.

My Lord, this Body of lawless men, fugitives from all parts, daily increasing, may soon become very dangerous, by encouraging the worst of Men to resort thither, and to stand in defiance of Law and Government; I therefore humbly conceive it deserves your Lordships immediate attention. The first settlers from New Hampshire, and the leading men among them, pretend that they have Encouragement from their Agent in England, that your Lordship entertains a favourable Opinion of their claim and pretensions, but I am persuaded they can have no foundation for such hopes.

The greatest part of the lands those troublesome people are settled on, my Lord, have been granted by this Government, to reduced Officers and disbanded Soldiers of His Majesty's Army who served the last War in America, in obedience to the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October 1763. I hardly need to mention to your Lordship that where the lands are private Property, dispute of title can only be determined in the Courts of Justice. The Patentees under New York, those who hold by Military Grants, as well as others who have Patents in the common Way, think their title is indubitably good. The Governors of this Colony have had full authority to grant the lands quite to the West Bank of the Connecticut River, ever since the Duke of York received his grant of the Colony. A dread of the French and Indians from Canada, prevented for many years, any grants or settlements being made in that part of this Province where these People are now settled. The Governor of New Hampshire who never had authority to grant one Foot of Land West of Connecticut River, his Government being bounded to the Westward by his Majesty's other Governments, finding this Country an uninhabited Desert, upon the peace after the War before the last, laid hold of the opportunity, and in a very short time granted away this extensive tract of country, down to the waters of Wood Creek and Lake Champlain. A full information, has been different Times, transmitted to your Lordship and your Predecessors in Office, of the very unjustifiable manner in which those grants were made, in defiance of the earliest Notice from this Government that Connecticut River was our Boundary. Your Lordship is possess'd of such ample Information on this subject, that I will not presume to trouble you with any thing more upon it now, but to repeat my humble opinion of the necessity there is that these lawless People should be discouraged from entertaining any Hopes, but in the Judgements of the Courts of Justice; where only the Property of the Subjects can be determined

I am with most entire submission

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most faithfull

& obedient Servant,

N<sup>o</sup> 7.

New York. 5th October 1774.

My Lord,

I have received your Lordship's Commands N<sup>o</sup> 22, and in obedience thereto, have published in the usual manner, His Majesty's Disallowance of the Act pass'd here in February 1773.

By my letter of the 7th of September, your Lordship would find I entertain'd Hopes that the People of this Province would adopt moderate Measures, and avoid giving any new offence to the Parliament.—I knew such was the sentiments of the Farmers and Country People in general, who make a great majority of the Inhabitants. I had a confidential conference with one of the Deligates from this City to the Congress now met at Philadelphia, who I thought had as much Influence as any from this Place, and he gave me assurance of his Disposition being similar.

A great Deal of pains has been taken to persuade the Counties to chuse Delegates for the Congress, or to adopt those sent by this City. Several of the Counties have refused to be concern'd in the Measures. In Queens County, where I have a House and reside the Summer Season, Six Persons have not been got to Meet for the purpose; and the Inhabitants remain firm in their Resolution not to join in the Congress. In the Counties that have join'd in the Measures of the City, I am inform'd that the Business has been done by a very few Persons, who took upon themselves to act for the Freeholders. A Gentleman who was present when the Deligates were chosen in Orange County, says there was not twenty Persons at the Meeting, tho' there are above a thousand Freeholders in that County; and I am told the case was similar in other Counties that are said to have join'd in the Congress.

The violent men in this City, who lost the Lead among the People, when the Committee of 51 were appointed, as mention'd in my former Letters to your Lordship, hoped they had got an opportunity to regain their importance, and to throw the City into Confusion on Occasion of Orders which were received by some of our Merchants to furnish Articles wanted by the Army at Boston. These violent Men, last Week call'd a Meeting of the Citizens, which few, but the lower Class of People attended, and not a great many of them: yet they had the Impudence to send a Committee to the Merchants who were engaged in supplying the Articles wanted for the Army at Boston, with a very Impertinent Message, and endeavour'd to deter them, and all others, from furnishing the Army any Transports with any thing whatever. These Manœuvres occasion'd some Bustle among the People for a few Days, and obliged the Committee of 51 to desire a Meeting of the Inhabitants on Friday last, when a large body of the principal People and Merchants appear'd, and declared that those who had taken upon them to threaten the Merchants, had acted without any Authority from the Public, and that they highly disapproved of their Conduct; which has once more silenced the turbulent factious few, who are never easy, when the People are quiet and orderly. The Merchants now go on compleating their orders without further Interruption.

It is my Duty to give your Lordship the best Information I am able, of the Disposition of the People of this Province. With this view I mention the most material transactions among them. It is extremely Difficult at such times to give an opinion of what may happen. The most trifling unforeseen incident may produce the greatest Events. I have already said, my Lord, that I am well assured almost the whole Inhabitants in the Counties wish for moderate measures. They think the Dispute with Great Britain is carried far enough, and abhor the thoughts of pushing it to desperate Lengths. In the City a large Majority of the People wish that a Non-importation agreement may not be proposed; and were very much surpris'd on finding that such a Measure would probably be resolv'd on by the Congress. I have some hopes that our Merchants will avoid a Non-importation agreement even if proposed by the Congress. I am certain a majority of the most considerable are convinc'd it is a wrong Measure, and wish not to come into it, but whether they will have resolution enough to oppose the Sentiments of all the other Colonies, can only be known when they are put to the trial.

The Speeches in Parliament, and other inflammatory Papers publish'd in London, and reprinted in America, make the worst Impression on the minds of the People. They are oppos'd in this Place by publishing more Papers in favour of Administration, and against Measures which must be offensive to Parliament, than in all the other Colonies put together.

The Pamphlet which I received under cover from your Lordship's Office, in Defence of the Quebec Bill is reprinted here.<sup>1</sup>

Sir John Johnson has desired me to inform your Lordship that he is desirous of being appointed of the Council of this Province, in place of his Father, deceased.—Sir William Johnson has deserved so much by his great and indefatigable Services, that I make no doubt of your Lordships Inclinations to give such an Instance of His Majesty's favour to the Son of so worthy a Man, Sir John excuses his not making an earlier application, by reason of his affliction on the sudden Loss of so affectionate a Parent.—As Governor Tryon is in England, I did not intend to trouble your Lordship with my Recommendation on this Subject, but I could not reject such a Request, from the Son of my old and much esteem'd Friend.

I am with entire submission most faithfull and

My Lord,

In my last of the 3<sup>d</sup> Ult<sup>o</sup> after mentioning what occurred respecting affairs I acquainted your Lordship that the Chiefs of the Six Nations were on their way to conferr with me respected the measures to be pursued at the proposed General Congress at Onondaga; Immediately after writing, the Indians arrived at Johnstown to the number of 235 Chiefs and Warriors, and I have now the honor of transmitting herewith a copy of the Proceedings at the Congress with them which lasted till the 20th ult<sup>o</sup> & which has terminated much to my satisfaction, and I am persuaded greatly to the advantage of the Public. The Indians present were the first Men throughout the Confederacy as to character, fidelity & influence, and some of them persons in whom Sir William Johnson had reposed an entire confidence, whose loss they sincerely regretted, and then proceeded to express their satisfaction, at finding their Affairs conducted by me as they had desired and wished, after which they laid before me the Great Old Belt of Union, with the succeeding ones for strengthening the same, & some others, all tending to shew their resolutions to act faithfully and be governed by my advice, as they had been by Sir William Johnson's, In short the advice I gave them in Public, as well as in private audiences, (not inserted in the proceedings,) and their assurances thereon will I trust prove an effectual means of rendering their Measures at the Council at Onondaga of much advantage to the Public by uniting them in such resolutions as shall intimidate those Tribes who thro' the conduct of the Virginians have disturbed the Frontiers.

<sup>1</sup> Probably the one entitled: "The Justice and Policy of the late Act of Parliament for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, asserted and proved; and the conduct of the administration respecting that Province, stated and vindicated. 8vo. London. 1774." Rich. — Ed.

Two days after the Departure of the Six Nations, Kayashotu the great Ohio Chief, who had been sent on an Embassy by Sir Wm. Johnson, returned to report it's issue which had proved as successfull as could be expected after the obstruction occasioned by the Virginia banditti, several of the Nations thro' which he passed having given him assurances of their readiness to reduce the Shawanese to peace provided no farther attempts were made by the English that might prove alarming, they likewise agreed to call all their Chiefs to the General Council Fire early in the Spring to enter upon general and conclusive measures; On hearing of Sir W. Johnson's death and that I acted as Super Intendant they transmitted 3 Belts by him to assure me of their friendship, and that they would unite with the Six Nations in following my advice, The Belts he has delivered to the Mohock Chiefs to be laid before the General Council, and he will immediately return to Ohio charged with belts from me to the Nations there, acquainting them with the steady resolutions of the Northern Indians, and with my Intention to pursue such measures, and afford them such advice as they have hitherto found to be for their benefit, I have also fully explained the Ambition & views of the Shawanese & their allies in such a manner as the necessity of the times require, These latter must sue for peace finding themselves unsupported by the Six Nations, but the Virginians having lands for their object neither consider their own frontiers or the state of their neighbors, and I am well assured that 3000 men are proposed to be raised there to march immediately against the Shawanese, at the Expense of £70,000 that currency, as these people are few in number, so large & expensive a body may confirm the reports that circulate amongst the Indians of a general design against their liberties which may produce very serious effects, or at least interest many Warriors in the defence of a people whom they consider as the first victims in a common cause, howèver I shall use all my endeavors to prevent this as far as is possible. From my knowledge that the French left many belts amongst the Indians & transmitted others thro' Agents who are Canadians which thro' prudent management were defeated in their object I sho<sup>d</sup> incline to pay little regard to those remaining; the Agents concerned, Sir Wm. Johnson glanced at in his letter of May last N<sup>o</sup> 8. but thro' delicacy declined giving names on Indian Evidence, however convincing to himself, Yet as a circumstantial account had been given of the belt your Lordship mentioned to Sir William, I immediately made some enquirys which produced the French axe belt I have now the honor to send herewith, and which is the only one remaining amongst the lower Nations; some of the particulars regarding it are mentioned near the close of the proceedings that accompany this, and I am persuaded the Indians have spoken with candor in their acco<sup>t</sup> of it, but altho' a neglected belt, the circumstance of their delivering it up which they did inform the other day will have a good effect on the ill disposed, and I have already made a proper use of it.

As the bearer M<sup>r</sup> Phyn, a Merch<sup>t</sup> of good credit and most fair character is returning to London, I shall commit these dispatches, and War belts to his care to be delivered to your Lordship in order to be laid before his Majesty, and I thought it a good opportunity, as this Gentleman's extensive acquaintance with the back Country, & his strict integrity enables him to answer any ocuring Questions in the compass of his knowledge in a candid & satisfactory manner.

I have the honor to be with much respect, My Lord,

Proceedings of Colonel Guy Johnson with the Six Nations.

[Plantations General, CCLX.]

Proceedings at a Meeting with the Chiefs & Warriors of the Six Nations held at Johnstown in September 1774.

PRESENT—

Col. Guy Johnson Superintendent.

P. M.—The Bunt Chief of Onondaga with Tagawarunte the Speaker Deiaquanda, head Warrior, & Sayenqueraghta, & other principal men desired, and had a private Interview with Col. Johnson, to whom after usual salutations, & giving thanks to the Great Spirit for enabling them to meet, they expressed their great concern for the death of Sir William Johnson, & for their absence at that time. The Bunt then recapitulated the many instances he had of Sir William's friendship and confidence, the effects it produced, & his firm resolution to act with the same fidelity towards Col. Johnson, whose Appointment afforded him, and all that Nation, the greatest satisfaction, as they were sensible of his thorough knowledge of their affairs, and capacity to superintend them.

To which Col. Johnson answered in a few words, thanking the Onondagas for all they had said, professing his particular regard for, & attachment to that respectable nation, founded on his particular knowledge of their conduct, & of Sir William's peculiar good opinion of them. After which Deiaquanda a Chief who had long enjoyed Sir William's particular confidence, arose & said.

Brother,

Though full of the deepest sorrow for our late severe loss, a loss which not only we, but all the English must in our opinion feel, I cannot help expressing the pleasure I feel in seeing you act in his place, without which we are all persuaded nothing cou'd be seen, but Confusion. The hope of seeing you acting in this Situation was my sole Comfort, after losing my great friend, who reposed his greatest Secrets in me, and to whom I made always the like return,—And now, Brother, I shall, to shew you my disposition towards you, communicate a circumstance that he mentioned to me in private conference about three years agoe, when he was very much indisposed, on which Occasion I cou'd not help expressing my apprehensions for his safety, and my uneasiness for the consequences in case of his sudden death, unless yourself, with whose abilities I was acquainted, was empowered to act in his Office.—He then told me not to be concerned at the Event of an Accident with which his ill state of health threatened him, for that you who enjoyed his particular confidence, and knew all his affairs, would doubtless act in his place, that therefore whenever I shou'd hear of his death, I shou'd use my influence to assure the Indians that they wou'd not be neglected, and to make them sit still, after which, I should come down to you, or in case of accident to Col. Claus his other Deputy, when I should receive particular information, but that he trusted and expected that you wou'd succeed him.—These, Brother, were his words, which he afterwards repeated more than once to myself, and be assured that this comforted me greatly when I heard of his death, & encouraged me to go amongst the Indians, and to keep their heads from being turned, without which they would certainly have gone astray,—for we lost him at a dangerous time, when the White People had made the Indians to the Southward mad, and had alarmed us all, and filled us with discontent.—Brother, I tell you this as an assurance of my Love, & of my inclination to confide in you, as much as I did in your great Father in Law, & as he did in me, which was attended with many advantages both to the English, and to the Indians. I enter warmly into your friendship, and shall communicate many other material things to you, in confidence, that as you know his Rules and Ours, you will do the same, & walk in his steps.

He then advanced, & saluted Col. Johnson who answered him. —

Brother, It is a mark of a good mind to repose a generous open confidence in those who are deemed entitled to it. I agree to your Desire, and embrace your friendship in the same manner as my dear Father in Law did, and with the same openness you shall always find me act. The instance you now give me is a proof of the esteem he had for you, and as I know your merit, I shall always set a true value on it, as well as for all your nation, whom Sir William Johnson particularly esteemed for their honesty and fidelity, and who I trust will continue to act in the same manner towards me whilst I have the care of their affairs.—Then shook hands with the Chiefs who told him that the next day they wou'd proceed to other matters, then ordered them some Refreshments after which they retired to their Encampment.

Monday September the 12th

In the Morning the Chiefs, and Warriors of the Onondaga Nation desired a Conference, and accordingly assembled.

Indian Chiefs

The old Bunt, Chief of Onondaga Tegawarute.—Speaker of Onondaga Deiaquanda Chief Warrior.—
 Serihoana, Ch. of Seneca

Tayawarunte arose, and addressed Col. Johnson as follows.

Brother Gorah,

We are very thankful to the Great Spirit for permitting all our Chiefs & Warriors to see you here this day, and we hope that the Dark Cloud which our late & heavy loss of your Father in Law occasioned may be dispelled by your presence and assistance,—As some of the principal men now present did not attend at the last congress, they must continue in grief 'till the Ceremony of Condolence is performed, when they will be enabled to attend to public affairs of consequence.—They are all happy in this opportunity of doing so, and particularly in seeing you sustain the post of that great man who loved our Nation, and whose sudden Death spread grief and concern all over the Country. Then with three strings, the Onondaga Speaker went through the Ceremony of condolence, Covering the Grave, wiping away the tears that were shed, removing the grief from the Heart, clearing the Sky &c. &c.

3 Strings

Col. Johnson then addressed them.

Brothers, I am heartily thankful to the Great Spirit for permitting me to see you all this day, more especially for seeing so many great and wise men amongst you, from whose Deliberations much good may be expected.—I am also much obliged by your Ceremonial of Condolance, and the regard you shew for the Memory of your true friend and my Dear Father in Law whose sudden Death left us all in Affliction. I consider your Words as proofs of your affection to him, & as an earnest of the affection I may expect from you, and which I shall return by a faithfull attention to your true interests, and a close imitation of that great man who merited all your esteem.—Then returned the Ceremony of Condolance in the usual manner, and gave three Strings.

3 Strings.

After which the Bunt's Eldest Son arose & after giving thanks for the Ceremonial he recapitulated the several services in which he had been engaged by Sir William Johnson from his first entering into his friendship, and produced the different marks of regard he had received, Then (according to the old custom after such an event) he laid them down consisting of a silver hilted sword, laced hat, medals, flags &c. before Col. Johnson, observing that his dear friend, being now no more, these things must be restored to Col. Johnson for his disposal, then a noted Chief and particular friend of Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's arose, took off his medal &c and did in like manner as the former, as did some others, after which Col. Johnson took them up severally, and having surveyed them, said that he was pleased to find that they had so carefully preserved those Testimonials of their merit, received from their departed friend,—that he well remembered the different occasions on which they were given, and that agreeable to antient usage, he requested them to receive them back & preserve them as mementos of past friendship, and that they wou'd serve to remind them of their engagements, and encourage them to deserve his Majesty's favour in future, and that Col. Johnson wou'd likewise according to custom, deliver them some distinguishing badges of his friendship, and esteem for their past services, in expectation of their future good behavior.

Then Col. Johnson put the medals &c. about their necks and returned the several articles they had surrendered, exhorting them to continue their good behavior, at all which they expressed much satisfaction.

Deiaquanda, next arose & related to Col. Johnson his proceedings with the Indians since the death of Sir William Johnson, and the particular steps he took to preserve peace, adding that

Olonquat, the Seneca Chief had related to him the satisfaction he had received from his conferences with Col. Johnson, with his assurance to observe his words, & to do his utmost for restoring tranquility.

Col. Johnson thanked Deiaquanda and Olonquat for their conduct. These Indians then observed, that, as the Chiefs of the other Nations were not all arrived, they must defer entering upon business, but wou'd give notice when they were ready.

At a Congress held at Johnstown with the Chiefs & Warriors of the Six Nations on Thursday September the 15th 1774.

Teyawarunte

	with the Chiefs & Warr <sup>rs</sup> of the rest.

Being all seated Teyawarunte of Onondaga Speaker for the Six Nations arose and spoke to Col. Johnson as follows. viz<sup>t</sup>

Gorah Ughscare,—Our late Superintendent Sir William Johnson gave us this Belt in order to bring the Shawanese our younger Brothers to a meeting, & desired to know the result of that Meeting, in consequence of which we sent Messengers, as we did on your Belt after Sir William Johnson's death. These last Messengers met deputies coming from the Shawanese with whom they returned to Onondaga, where the Shawanese spoke as follows.—Elder Brothers, You are very much for making peace, and have sent your Messengers thro' all the nations for that purpose, and you have also taken the Ax from us, and buried it.—When you took this Ax, you desired us to promote peace with all about us; but whilst we were doing this, an Ax was struck into your Heads, and ours by the Virginians, You, therefore who took the Ax from us, shou'd now consider our case, and as we have nothing left us to defend ourselves except a small Switch, we earnestly desire you will give us the Ax again.

Returned the Belt.

Brother. We told the Shawanese that we shou'd not agree to their request, but as we find that they are, not only using all their endeavour to disturb the peace between the Six Nations, but also between them and the English, we have sent Messages to the Seven Nations in Canada, and the rest of our Confederacy to meet us at our Council Fire at Onondaga, where we shall determine on measures to put a stop to these troubles, and where we request that our Brothers, the Mohawks will send Deputies to attend, and represent you, and we hope they will send wise men, and not young, or foolish boys, on a matter of so much consequence.

Brother. When we made our Council Fire, it was agreed between us, and all our Confederacy, that if any thing disturbed it, we wou'd all meet, and throw that thing from amongst us, and that we wou'd on these occasions strenghten the Fire that it might burn brighter.

Brother. The Shawanese told us that they very well knew whenever any thing was told to the Six Nations, that they immediately informed the great man the Superintendent, and the English of it, but desired that this might not be told them, but kept private; but Odonquot the Seneca Chief, & Otrawanoë, the Cayuga Chief together with the rest of the nations directly agreed to acquaint you with this.

He then produced the great old Covenant Chain of twenty one rows & spoke as follows

Brother. This is the Covenant Chain delivered to the whole Six Nations by our late Superintendent in presence of Commissioners from nine Governments, which we have kept clean from rust, and held fast in our hands.—This makes us remember the words that were told us when it was given, and which we always look upon, if any one offers to disturb that peace, and harmony subsisting between us.—this we now shew you, that you may know the bad words of the Shawanese have no effect upon us.—

Brother. This Belt of fourteen rows was given us by that great man, our Superintendent Sir William Johnson to make us always keep in mind the Covenant Chain, and to assure us that his heart was always with us to do us good, and keep us in the right way, which we now bring you, that you may see that we have followed his advice.

A large Belt of 14 rows.

Brother. It gives us great satisfaction to see you here taking care of our affairs and it is our earnest desire that you do so as long as you live, and also that Col. Clause may continue to act for us. Brother, as you are long acquainted with our customs, and the ways of that great man your Father in Law, who has been taken from us, we beg you will continue to attend thereto, and walk in his steps. It wou'd grieve, and trouble us to have any body else concerned in our affairs:—for others have no knowledge in them.—We love you, and all Sir William's Family.

A Belt of Six Rows.

Brother. I now speak to you for, and on behalf of the Onondaga Sachems & Warriors, the particular friends of your Father in Law, our late Superintendent, who are now here and rejoice to see one of his family, whom they so much regard, and respect, acting in his place, and who, we hope will long continue to take care of our affairs. A Belt of 8 Rows.

Brother.—We assure you that we will be steadfast and hold fast by the Covenant Chain,—that we will follow the good advice given us by our late friend your Father in Law Sir William Johnson, and what you also told us since, and we hope & desire that you will follow his ways, it being our earnest Desire that the Peace & Friendship between us, may always continue, and never be interrupted, and we hope that M<sup>r</sup> Butler, and those who have been employed, may continue to interpret, and act faithfully, promoting the good work of peace.

A Belt of Six Rows.

Then Decarrihoga Titular head of the Mohocks arose & in a short speech repeated that the Six Nations had been the night before in private Conference where according to antient custom they had fixed on a new name for Col. Johnson in consequence of the office he now discharged.—The Onondaga speaker then arose, and repeated the same on behalf of all the Confederacy, and mentioned the name which was Uraghquadrha i. e. Rays of the Sun enlightening the Earth, after which Col. Johnson stood up, and the name being repeated by a Chief of each Nation, the Ceremony concluded with the Yo-Ha as is usual, the Speaker directing that the same might be proclaimed in every Nation of the Confederacy.—

Col Johnson then told them that he had received His Majesty's Commission appointing Mr Chew (then present) to be Secretary of Indian Affairs, who was to act as such for the future, whereupon they immediately agreed to confer a name on him by which he shou'd be known, and accordingly named him Decariaderoga.<sup>1</sup> i. e. the Junction of two Lakes of different Qualities.—After which the Speaker addressed Col. Johnson and told him that the Seneca Messengers who arrived last night were ready to relate their Intelligence.—The Messengers then seated themselves next to the Speaker, who delivered the same as follows.

Brother Gorah Uraghquadirha.<sup>2</sup>

We have received messages from Kayashota, who was sent by our late Superintendent to the Western Nations, acquainting us that he had been with many of them, and had used his best endeavours towards effecting the business he was sent upon, but that they were greatly obstructed by the Virginians, and that the Season being far advanced they cou'd not be expected 'till the Winter or Spring.—Brother these four Strings of Wampum we have received from the Delawares, our Nephews, who thereby assure us they will mind our Words, keep their Young Men from doing mischief, and avoid all things by which the public Peace might be disturbed, and they desire you may be acquainted with these their good Intentions. Four Strings.

Brother Uraghquadirha.—Kayashota and Canaragayatia have also sent us word by these Strings that in consequence of Sir William's, and our desires, they have done all in their power to persuade our people that are amongst the Shawanese, to leave them, but have been able to prevail on only two families as yet, and almost despair of getting any more of them to come away in these troublesome times.—

4 Strings

Brother. This Bunch of Strings the Messengers received from Mr Mc'Kee, and Mr Croghan, who assured them that they are using their best endeavours to keep Peace on the Ohio.—

A Bunch of Strings.

After which Deiaquanda head warrior of Onondaga arose, and said he desired to acquaint Col. Johnson that in Conversation with Adonquat the Seneca Chief, on returning from the last meeting, he had assured him that he was so well pleased with Col. Johnsons words [in private Conference that he had determined to promote peace, and cooperate with Deiaquanda therein, and sent a Belt of Wampum as a proof thereof—Then the Day being far spent they were treated with pipes, tobacco & a dram & retired to their encampm<sup>ts</sup>.

At a Congress with the aforementioned Nations on Saturday September the 17th 1774.

PRESENT — as before.

Col. Johnson addressed them as follows.—

Brother.—I have maturely considered the several matters you have laid before me the other Day, and am now prepared to answer them, to which I must desire your attention.

Brothers. It is with great Satisfaction I find that you immediately dispatched Messengers to the Shawanese agreeable to Sir William Johnson's desire, that you might support your Dignity by bringing them to the proper Fire Place, & I am well pleased that you have so faithfully related all that passed with the Shawanese Deputies at your Council, as well as with your declining to give any Satisfaction to a People whose endeavors are to lead you from your engagements, and disturb the Public.—Your calling a Congress of your whole Confederacy, is a very proper measure at this time, provided you take particular care that it is conducted with wisdom, and a strict regard to your Alliance with the English, so as to convince the Disturbers of peace that they have nothing to expect from you, but resentment.—And I think you have given a very prudent caution to the Indians to send men of wisdom on business of such importance, 'Tis what I have always recommended, & which I hope will be followed.

Brothers. It was wisely agreed when you made the Council Fire, to cast from you whatever shou'd disturb your Union, and refresh your fire that it might burn brighter, and more steadily.—Brother I have long observed, and your late worthy Superintendent well knew, and told you, that the Shawanese were they, who created trouble, and aimed at raising themselves on your ruins.—I am very glad you perceive it yourselves, so that you may guard against their Artifices.—Their accusing of Communicating matters of Import to the Superintendent, & to the English, is much to your Honour: for they are your true friends, and you would fail in your duty to solemn engagements, if you concealed anything from them.—I am obliged to Odonquat, and Atrawana, as well as to all your people for communicating this charge of the Shawanese, which I hope you all despise, as an artful contrivance calculated to lead you into such behavior towards the English, as would render your fidelity suspected.

Brothers. I view with much pleasure the Great Belt of the Covenant Chain, which binds you fast to the English, and gives you Importance and Security. I am happy to find you remember so exactly the Contents of it, that you have preserved it so long entire, and that you cast your eyes upon it on every difficulty. I must exhort you to continue to preserve it with the greatest care, to repeat what was said upon it to your young men, and children, that your latest posterity may reap the benefit of it, and that you always look upon it, as your best friend, & surest guide. This will enable you to guard against all enemies, and I am glad to find it has produced so good an effect on your conduct with the Shawanese.—I now return the same to your custody charging you to preserve it with the utmost care, and I now renew, brighten, and strengthen the same recommending it to every Nation to keep fast hold of it, and to consider it as the band that secures Happiness to them, and that it shou'd be preserved for ever.—

Returned the great Covenant-Chain Belt.

Brothers. I well remember the large Belt now before me, and the occasion, on which it was given by your worthy friend Sir William Johnson.—I thank you for the care you have taken of it, and assure you that if you will carefully preserve it, it will fix your Eyes and your Heart forever on the Coven' Chain. As often as you see this Remember the words of your best friend, and the Happiness you enjoyed under his wise Councils, and this will direct you to act in such a manner as will secure these blessings to you. I now return it to you, and I charge you to keep it safe as formerly, and to preserve the Words that were given upon it, and I now strengthen, and renew it on my part that the memory of it may remain for ever.

Returned Sir William's Belt—14 Rows.

Brothers. I am much obliged for the preference and regard you express for Sir William Johnson's Family, for the Satisfaction you express at my having the management of your affairs, and your desire that it shou'd continue. Be assured that so long as it does, I shall exert all my abilities, and employ all the experience I have acquired for your interest, and happiness, and that Col. Claus who much respects you, will do the same on his part, & you may depend on it, that whatever his Majesty may be graciously pleased to direct respecting the care of your Affairs, will be dictated by wisdom & an attention to your happiness. I therefore request you will consider your own Interest, and continue to deserve his Royal favour.

A Belt.

Brothers of Onondaga. I am particularly to thank the Chiefs & Warriors of your faithful Nation for the respect shewn to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's family, by your approbation of me, & your wishes for my continuance in office.—You may be assured I shall employ my time for your Interest; and as I have long been acquainted with your faithful conduct, I expect the continuance of it, which will encourage & strengthen my endeavors for the public benefit.

A Belt.

Brothers.—As I interest myself warmly in all that regards your welfare, I receive with great pleasure your assurances of holding fast by the Covenant Chain, & following the wholesome advice you have received for that purpose. I now assure you, you may rely upon it, I shall do the same, and that the great King, and the English are of the same way of thinking.

A Belt

Brothers. M<sup>r</sup> Butler who has been long employed in the Department, is continued by me, and will, I dare say, act wth fidelity in every thing committed to him.

Then Col. Johnson answered in regard to the Messages bro<sup>d</sup> by the Senecas. viz<sup>t</sup>

Brothers. I am much obliged to you for your good conduct in promoting the affairs of peace, & laying before me the substance of the Intelligence you have just received from the Ohio, and I thank the Senecas for their faithful communication of the same wishing they may continue to unite closely with you in all good works, and that Kayashota's endeavors may have success;—I am also well pleased to find the Delawares are wise & have given assurances of their pacific Disposition.

Returned the Strings.

Brothers. I am extremely well pleased with the conduct of Kayashota and Canaragayate, but sorry that their endeavors have, thro' the late troubles failed in some measure, with regard to the removal of your people from Ohio. I wish that you may still persevere, and exert your influence to bring them from a place where they get corrupted, & draw reflections on the confederacy. I therefore by these strings, exhort them to persevere in their good endeavors for removing their people.

Gave a Bunch of Wampum.

I wrote long since to M<sup>r</sup> M<sup>c</sup>Kee at Fort Pit, am glad you have heard from thence, and persuade myself that he will do his Duty with strict fidelity.

Ret<sup>d</sup> the Strings.

Brothers. In order to convince you of my openness, and readiness to return your good offices by a free communication of whatever concerns you, I shall now lay before you some intelligence I have received from the Southward, by which you will further see into the Artifices, and Pride of the Shawanese. (Here communicated some necessary parts of Intelligence received from Fort Pit, Detroit &c.) & proceeded.

Brothers. I have mentioned these things to you that you may see how these people whom you conquered, are endeavouring to raise themselves above you, & whilst they speak to their friends on Ohio in the most lofty stile, amuse you at Onondaga with their distresses to draw you into a quarrel, & abandon you afterwards.—All the Nations to the Westward, who are wise have rejected their requests, they know them to be a troublesome people, who have been so long engaged in mischief, that they at length excited the resentment of some Frontier Virginians, who struck them and fled, whilst without waiting for redress, they fell on the innocent Inhabitants, contrary to the ancient rules, and practices subsisting between us, and now want you to countenance them in their Wickedness.—Be strong, Brothers, and despise their Artifices.—Consider your present happiness, and the danger into which they wou'd involve you, and shew yourselves men of sense, and men of your words at the ensuing Congress.

Sunday Septem<sup>r</sup> the 18th

The Chiefs desired to meet again to answer Col. Johnson's Speech and confer on & communicate sundry matters, previous to which the Chiefs of Conawaroghere<sup>1</sup> desired a private conference, when they spoke as follows by Thomas ál. Adioghkonoran their Speaker.

Brother Gorah Uraghquadirha.

We the Oneidas have been for some time employed in endeavoring to discover any thing that is bad remaining amongst our Confederacy, to remove any suspicions, or misrepresentations cast upon our people by any ill designing people, which we had reason to suspect was the case from some matters which Sir William Johnson informed us, particularly regarding an Axe. After much enquiry, we have found a large black belt with two axes on it, which was given by the French at the end of the War to one of the people who had been in their Interest, desiring him to watch the motions of the French, that when they raised themselves, the belt would shake, and give him notice when he was to rise.—This Belt afflicted him much when he had time afterwards to reflect on it, and on his death bed, two years since, he divulged the whole to His Brother, whose wife now has it, & is desirous to take it to pieces for the sake of the Wampum, otherwise we wou'd have brought it down, as we will do if you desire it;—but really we thought little about it,—For as it is well known we are a faithful, and a Christian People, we cou'd not suppose that any wou'd be so weak, or illnated as to imagine we regarded such things, seeing we mind nothing but peace—besides it is well known that there have been many such belts given by the French to different Indians at different times, most of which we believe are disregarded, so that it must be some ill designing, or some vain person, who wanted to appear very wise, that made this report, and thought he wou'd get something for his news, by telling what every body knows to be a common thing. We hope there is no person amongst us who wou'd go to cheat the King by telling such a story seriously, if there is any such man, he must be dangerous, and we know to deal with him.

3 strings.

Col. Johnson thanked them for their information, and told them that he had recollected there had been some Representation made to Government concerning a bad belt but that the suspicion did not lye on any nation in particular, however he desired to see the belt, for which the woman shou'd be paid, and hoped they would always act above suspicion.

Then all the Chiefs of the Oneidas, and Tuscaroras came in and by their Speaker addressed Col. Johnson as followes.

Brother Uraghquadirha.

We take this opportunity to express in a particular manner the great concern which our dear friend Sir William Johnson's death occasioned amongst our people, chiefs, warriors, and women. We hung our heads, and sat in darkness 'till we heard the agreeable news that you rose up to take charge of our affairs. This, Brother, we always hoped, & wished for, and we beg you may be assured of our fidelity, and that it is the Resolution of all our people to act agreeable to your advice, which we hope you will continue to afford us, and that you will walk in our late Brother's steps with which you are well acquainted. A Belt of 10 Rows.

Brother.

At the close of the French War we left a large Belt with Sir William Johnson for an assurance of our affection, and that as we were Christians, and of one heart, we wou'd follow his advice & live & die with the English. In Consequence of this our warriors went in the late Indian war against your Enemies about Susquahanna & were successful. About three years after finding Sir William's health decline, we were uneasy, & desired to know of him what was to be done in case of his death, when he observed to us that you knew our affairs & his mind, and he hoped you wou'd take care of us, at the same time charged us to behave well, and peaceably as we had done, & to shew this great Belt to his Successor, which we beg you will take notice of and set a mark upon it.

Deliv'd a very large white with black Diamonds.

Brother.—With this String we beg on behalf of our Hunters for some ammunition of which they are much in want.

A String.

Brother.—We are in the last place to tell you that we are in want of a Chief to replace Onowacka, who was killed by the English to the Southward, & we have fixed our inclinations on his Brother here present, who is a man of sense, and knows our affairs. We hope you will approve our choice, and appoint him in the place of his late Brother.

Three Strings.—

Col. Johnson answered.

Brothers.—You have much obliged me by the concern you have expressed for the Death of my worthy father in law, whose sudden death was a very severe loss. It is with pleasure I find you express so much satisfaction at my entering on the care of your affairs, to which you may be assured I shall pay all possible regard; and as I hope for the continuance of your good behavior, it is also my determined resolution to imitate his virtues as far as it is in my power.

A Belt.

Brothers. I very well remember the Belt you left with Sir William Johnson, & the large one you now produced from him, and I am glad you recollect the occasion of both, and that your intentions are still the same. As you are Christians, it would be inexcusable in you to swerve from solemn engagements entered into with your true friends.—I respect this belt very much, and I desire you will remember the good advice your deceased brother gave you thereon,—and I have fixed a parchment to it that its contents may be better known hereafter.—

Returned the belt with a label to it.

Brothers.—I am glad you have made choice of so fitting a person to supply the place of Onowacka. I approve of him very much, and shall cause an entry to be made of his appointment with the name desired.—Then returned their Strings, and took the new Chief by the hand, exhorting him to follow good examples.

Brothers.—To morrow, when I consider the wants of the rest, I shall not forget those of your Hunters.

The Oneidas &c. then retired after which the Chiefs of Onondaga &c. desired to meet on business of the Confederacy, and being assembled their speaker addressed Col. Johnson as follows. viz'

Brother Gorah Uraghquadirha.

We now meet you to express the very great satisfaction which we have received from your whole speeches, but particularly for your strong recommendation of the Covenant Chain, and of Sir William's great Belt, and for your good Advice, and also for the Intelligence you so freely communicated to us. This we consider as a strong proof of your Regard, and we will shew you that we deserve it.

Brother. To shew you our sincerity, We of the Great Council, and Fire Place at Onondaga, considering the great age of our Chief, the Bunt a true friend to the English, and that all our late appointed Chiefs may be made known to you, do now introduce them, that you may be well acquainted with those to whom our affairs are committed.—Onagogare is to succeed the Bunt at Chenughivata, he will in his steps, and follow your Councils.—the next are Deiaquandoa a (head Warrior) Sayenqueraghta, Oghsaghta, Keekhoa, Serihoana, Teyawarunta (Speaker) Onoghranoron, Kakedoa (Bunt's son) Tegatscara, and Goananonda.—These are all great men who rule us, they are of one mind, resolved to remember Sir William Johnson's Words, and follow your advice.—They are men to be trusted.—This Brother is our old custom, which has been always used to acquaint those who get the management of Indians, with the names & characters of our great men.—This we did on former occasions. We did it with Sir William, and now we do it with you. We are, at the same time sensible, that you know them all, and we hope that you will regard them, as they mean to do you.

Brother—We have now one private matter to communicate to you, and then we have done. Brother. There came lately to our Council at Onondaga several Missasages charged with Belts, and speeches from Ten different Nations. The Ottawas of Michillimacinae also sent Deputies on behalf of seven other Nations, by their Chief Oneghiatis; The purport was to enquire into our resolutions, & to assure us that they would fling all Evil behind them, and abide by our Councils, all which they have desired to lay before our Confederacy at the General Congress.

We have nothing further to say at this time, but that you may rest assured we shall strictly abide by the Covenant Chain, and that the sole cause of our meeting is to unite in strengthening the same, and bringing those who have disturbed you, to order.

Col. Johnson then returned them thanks for the fidelity they expressed and for the great Decorum they had shewn during the Congress, advised them to act in the like manner on their way back, and told them he expected soon to find their assurances realized by their resolves at the proposed Congress.—After which he told them he had some marks of favor to bestow on the Chiefs, and such as distinguished themselves by their fidelity, which shou'd be delivered out the next day.

French Axe-Belt sent to the Indians.

[Plantations General, CCLX.]

Extract of Intelligence just received from Niagara.

Some time since an Indian reported here, that on his way to hunt he called on a Mr Sang-Blanc, a Frenchman trading among the Senecas who at that time had a number of that nation together & and spoke to them as follows.

Children—Tho' your Father the French King has not been able for some time past to take care of you he cou'd wish to do of his children, I hope you have not altogether forgot his former kindness.—I am happy now to be able to acquaint you that an army of French and Spaniards are expected up the Mississippi early in the Spring to free you from the Tyranny of the English, who are at this time plotting your ruin, and gathering together from all Quarters, to cut you off. Orders to that purpose are already sent to Niagara, Detroit and Fort Pit. Remember, I now warn you of your danger, and it is my advice to you to take up the Hatchett & give the English the first blow.—I understand they want to draw me from among you, but I do not care for them. The ground about Fort Erie & that side of the Lake they may call theirs, but this where I live is my ground, French ground, and I will not be turned off it by any man,—And if the Commanding Officer of Niagara was to send me an order to that purpose, I wou'd tear it in pieces, & trample it under my feet. This Speech (tho' the Indian himself said he did not believe it) had such an effect upon him, that he immediately returned home to guard his family. The same Indian, and many others have since reported that the said Sang Blanc has often since began the War Dance & invited the Senecas to join the Shawanese against the Virginians as that he wou'd go with them.

Lieutenant-Colonel Caldwell to Colonel Guy Johnson.

[Plantations General, CCLX.]

Sir

Though I am confident that you are already made acquainted with the Reception the Deputies from the Shawanese met from the Sachems of the Six Nations, assembled in Council last August, yet I think it right to inform you that Soieiva, the Chief of the Senecas has been here & acquainted me that the Shawanese demanded in form the aid & assistance of the Six Nations to carry on the War against the English, which being refused, they wou'd not accept of a Belt of Peace, or the Advice given to make up their Quarrel with the Virginians, but offered a War Belt and demanded a Hatchet to strike the English, which so enraged old King

Bunt, that he threw their belt back to them, with great resentment & told them that the Six Nations had lately sent out belts of friendship, and peace which they were determined not to recall, that they were resolved not to take any part in the present disputes, and that all they would or could do for the Shawanese, was to act as Mediators, by recommending Peace, and endeavoring to procure it for them by sending this autumn a Deputation of their Chiefs to Fort Pitt, for which purpose a Council is to assemble immediately, & they have dispatched Messengers to the Coghnowagey Indians and those of the Onondagas residing on the River St Laurence to acquaint them, with their resolves, to insist on their remaining faithful to the English, & to desire the attendance of their Chiefs at the approaching Council. I find likewise that the business is now likely to be carried on more systematically, and in a more regular manner than formerly, as all the Chiefs of the Warriors have lately entered into an agreement, not only, as usual to consult the Sachems, but also to allow their Determinations to be decisive, & to follow immediately their advice; if any Individual receives Intelligence he is to report it immediately to the Chief Warrior of his Tribe who is to communicate it without Delay to his Sachem, whose Advice & Orders he is to receive, and punctually observe. This Plan will prevent each man from acting from either private caprice or revenge, and in respect to us must be favorable, for as the Sachims are old men, may be sufferers, & cannot expect any advantage from War, they naturally will be inclined to peace, whereas the young men, were they allowed to act of themselves, must as naturally wish for war, as the only road left them to acquire fame, flatter their pride, indulge their ambition, and gratify their revenge, passions so very characteristic amongst them.—I have spared neither trouble, or expense to get all possible intelligence relative to the Dispositions of the Six Nations, & the Senecas in particular. I have conversed with many of them, Chiefs & others, drunk & sober, and by all I can gather from them, I am certain that, tho' the young men are ripe for mischief, yet the old men will keep them quiet, at least 'till it is known whether peace can be obtained for the Shawanese, which (as the Six Nations will not join them) they will gladly accept, if not sue for: but shou'd the Virginians persist in carrying on the War, I think it is most natural to conclude that the War will be general, & that the Six Nations will take up arms sooner than see their younger Brothers, as they call the Shawanese, cut off & entirely destroyed. Your knowledge, experience & abilities in conducting Indian Affairs will undoubtedly greatly facilitate, on the part of the Indians this intended accomodation & certainly Government & Lord Dunmore in particular will take every step that wisdom & justice can suggest towards promoting that peace & tranquility so necessary for the Traders & those other of His Majesty's Subjects who inhabit the interior parts of America. In all my speeches with Chiefs and Warriors, I have endeavored to convince them of our strength and their weakness, that as I was sent to Niagra in the character of Sachim, as well as Warrior, I wou'd recommend Peace, tho' indifferent as to war, that as they were a wise people, I esteemed them, that as they had been long friends & neighbours of the English, I loved them, and wou'd assist them whilst the Hatchet lay buried, but if once lifted, I bid them consider & remember well that it cou'd never be laid by, and that there must be an eternal war between us whilst a man of their nation existed. I granted that they might at first get some few traders scalps, and plunder, but that they must soon suffer in their turn: for if the English when at War with all the World found little difficulty in conquering America, how easily cou'd they now, when universal peace prevails, extirpate every savage upon the Continent. Shawatongue who delivered me a belt of Friendship soon after my arrival here, listened very attentively to the latter part of my speech, which I have reason to think he has made a proper use of, in every conversation he expressed the strongest attachment to the English, and I believe him sincere, tho' I often wished to find more content in his countenance than I could perceive there, certainly his mind was not ease, tho' he would not discover what disturbed it.—Saiewea is undoubtedly a clever fellow, I wish he may go to Fort Pit this Autumn, as by all accounts he wishes well to the English, & may be depended upon.—I send the inclosed paper for your perusal, it is but a report, and an Indian one. I shou'd be glad of your sentiments upon it, as well as upon any other subject, you think may be of use to a stranger in this Indian World, and unacquainted with the business, but who wishes to be of use; the only excuse I can make for troubling you with this tedious letter.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

His Majesty having thought fit, by His Order in Council this Day, to prohibit the Exportation from Great Britain of Gunpowder, or any sort of arms or ammunition, I herewith inclose to you a Copy of the Order, and it is His Majesty's Command that you do take the most effectual measures for arresting, detaining and securing any Gunpowder, or any sort of arms or ammunition, which may be attempted to be imported into the Province under your Government, unless the Master of the Ship having such Military Stores on Board shall produce a Licence from His Majesty, or the Privy Council, for the exportation of the same from some of the Ports of this Kingdom.

Sir

I have received your letter of the 7th of Sept<sup>r</sup> & have laid it before the King.

<sup>1</sup> Lieutenant-Colonel JOHN CALDWELL was appointed Captain in the 7th or Royal Fusileers, on the 20th December, 1755, and became Major of that regiment 18th July, 1766. He was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the 8th or King's Foot 27th October, 1772. Army Lists. This regiment, during the war of Independence, was stationed at Niagara, where Lieutenant-Colonel Caldwell presided at a Council held with the Six Nations and western tribes, in September, 1776, at which they resolved to take up arms against America. Stone's Life of Brant, II., 4, note. Detachments of the 8th accompanied the Indians in most of their forays into the settlements, and took a part in the battle of Wyoming in 1778, but Lieutenant-Colonel Caldwell did not participate in these operations, as it appears by the Army Lists that he had retired from the service or died in November, 1776, or shortly after presiding at the Council above mentioned.—Eo

From the Accounts you give of the Characters and Tempers of the Five Gentlemen appointed by the City of New York to be their Delegates at the General Congress I should suppose they would not be likely either to advise or support rash & violent Measures; but there is but too much reason to fear that the Majority of Delegates are of a different Complexion.

In my letter to you of the 7th of Sep<sup>r</sup> I acquainted you with the Information I had received of large quantities of Gunpowder exported from Holland to North America & I mentioned to you a particular Instance of that dangerous Commerce: I make no doubt that you have in consequence thereof done every thing in your power to detect & punish such Practises; but I am nevertheless again called upon to exhort you to be more than commonly attentive to that object, as every day almost furnishes some fresh intelligence of the Americans purchasing large Quantities of Arms & Ammunition in the different parts of Europe.

N<sup>o</sup> 8.

[New-York, CLXVI, No. 8.]

New York 2nd November 1774.

My Lord,

I have received the Honor of your Lordship's Commands of the 10th of September, N<sup>o</sup> 23.

The Congress, at Philadelphia, broke up last Week. They have publish'd an Extract of the Proceedings, of which I inclose your Lordship a Copy. It was received in this Place only two Days agoe, so that there has not been time to discover the General Sentiments of the People upon it. It is certain that the Measures of the Congress do not meet with rapid applause here; but on the contrary the People, even in the City, appear to be rather Dissatisfied. They continue, so far as I can discover, averse to all violent and irritatng Measures. The Merchants seem to disrelish the Non-importation Association.—and if I am not very much deceived, the Farmers will not bear the Non-Exportation—but at present it is impossible to say with certainty what steps the People will take in Consequence of what has been advised and determined by the Congress.

I think I may continue to assure your Lordship that a great Majority in this Province are very far from approving of the extravagant and dangerous Measures of the New England Governments.—that they abhor the thoughts of a Civil War, and desire nothing so much as to have an End put to this unhappy Dispute with the Mother Country.

Our Assembly have not met, for some years past, till after the Christmas Holidays. Before that time I will endeavour to learn whether I may expect that they will propose conciliatory Measures, and pursue the Method which your Lordship so justly points out as most proper. If I have reason to hope they will, I shall propose it, and use my utmost Influence to have it done in a proper manner.

Nothing material has happend in this Place since my last letter to your Lordship. The Merchants are at present endeavouring to sift out each others Sentiments upon the Association proposed by the Congress. A certain Sign, I take it, that they wish to avoid it.—General Haldimand left me half a dozen Officers, and about One Hundred Men of the Royal Irish Regt here, when he went to Boston. About four score Artificers went from hence with the General, to work on the Barracks there; and last week some Iron Potts and Stores were ship'd for the use of the Troops at Boston, without an attempt being made to prevent it.

The Contraband Trade carried on between this place and Holland, is my Lord, an object that I behold with great concern. It prevails to an enormous Degree.—Must destroy the morals of the People—create the most inveterate enemies to Government—Nourish the spirit of mobing; and abolish all fare Trade. It appears to me that the Officers of the Customs at this place want more assistance than they at present have. There is not a Boat of any kind belonging to our Custom House. The Surveyor and Sarcher of this Port, who is my Grandson,<sup>1</sup> has made several seizures since he was appointed. He has been an Officer in the Army, and was some Time in Quarters on the Isle of Man. He thinks two or three such Vessells as they have there, under similar regulations and directions, would be the most effectual means of stoping this illicit Trade. Men of War, even the Sloops are too large for this purpose; and besides the Captains seem to think it an indignity to become Custom House Officers.

As Mankind, my Lord, are in general most active when their Duty and Interest are connected, I think the Officers and Men employed in this Service, should have such an allowance out of the seizures, besides a daily pay, as would make to<sup>2</sup> too expensive to the Merchants to offer them any thing nearly equal in Bribes. The Officers of the Boats might likewise be frequently removed from one Port to another, in Order to render Bribes ineffectual. A superior Officer at each Port might have the direction of the Cutters and Boats independant of the Custom House, which I am told is the case at the Isle of Man.

My Grandson tells me that soon after he enterd upon his office, he was made to understand that if he would not be officious in his Duty, he might depend upon receiving £1500 a year. His Answer and Conduct has convinced them of his Integrity and Resolution to discharge his Duty with fidelity. I mention this, My Lord, as an Instance how highly the illicit Traders can Bribe.

The Vessells from Holland, or S<sup>t</sup> Eustatia, do not come into this Port, but anchor at some Distance in the numerous Bays and Creeks that our Coasts and Rivers furnish, from whence the Counterband Goods are sent up in small Boats. I believe it would be very proper to make some Regulations that might discourage the owners of these small Boats from engaging in this Business. When they are now seized, their Boats are sold at so low a price, that the Owners recover them with a Loss that the poorest of them does not regard. The risque being so small, they engage with the illicit Traders at low Wages. This increases the Profits of that Trade. But if all Boats and Vessells, that did not fetch above certain Rates to be fix'd in proportion to their Burthen, were ordered to be burnt or destroyed, the illicit Traders would find it much more difficult to procure the assistance they require.

It is, I think, very probable that the Crowns share of the seizures would at first defray the Expense of such an Establishment. The Fund would decrease as the illicit Trade decreased; but then, the Increase of Dutys paid might be more than equivalent.

Dutch Gun Powder has been in use in this Colony ever since I came into it. How it was formerly imported, I know not.—I make no Doubt, all we now have is brought in clandestinely I have not been able to learn any thing of the ship Polly, Captain Broadhelp. I shall pay the strictest attention to your Lordships Directions on this Subject, which appears to be a matter of great Consequence.

I shall not neglect to observe your Lordship's Commauds, to lay before you, by every Opportunity, an Account of what occurs among Us.

I am with the greatest Respect

My Lord,

faithfull Servant

My Lord

Notwithstanding the business which this time agitates America, is such, that we continually expect some event of great importance, what has occurred in this Province since my letter to your Ldp of the 2<sup>d</sup> of November, has not been very material.

The first thing done here, in consequence of the resolutions of the Congress, was the dissolution of the Committee of 51 in order to choose a new Committee to carry the measures of the Congress into effect. A Day was appointed by advertisem<sup>t</sup> for choosing sixty persons to form this new Committee. About thirty or forty citizens appeared at the election, and chose the sixty persons who had been previously named by the former Committee I can, no otherwise my Lord, account for the very small number of people who appeared on this occasion than by supposing that the measures of the congress are generally disrelished. The non importation association affects the smugglers as well as the fair Traders. No Tea is to be imported from any part of the world after the first day of this month. The Smugglers expect large quantities of Dutch Tea, and insist that it shall be exempted from the effect of the Association. Others declare that the fair Traders shall not be the only sufferers. It is a dispute which I think may very probably defeat the Association Several Vessels are daily expected here with goods from England and I am told ten or twelve from Philadelphia. It is however shocking to reflect my Lord, that smuggling is such a business among us as to be publicly espoused by numbers and more strenuously advocated than the legal Trade

In the present Committee of this Place there are several gentlemen of property and who are esteemed to favor moderate and conciliatory<sup>1</sup>. I was surprised to find such men joining with the Committee whose design is to execute the plan of the Congress. I have at length discovered that they act with a view to protect the City from the ravage of the Mob. For this purpose, they say they are obliged at present to support the measures of the Congress. That if they did not, the most dangerous men among us would take the Lead; and under pretence of executing the dictates of the Congress would immediately throw the City into the most perilous situation. That however considerable the numbers may be, who disapprove of violent riotous measures, yet the Spirit of Mobing is so much abroad, it is in the Power of a few People at any time to raise a Mob; and that the Gentlemen, and men of Property, will not turn out to suppress them. I fear my Lord there is too much truth in this representation. It is a dreadful situation. If we are not rescued from it, by the wisdom and firmness of Parliament, the Colonies must soon fall into distraction and every Calamity annexed to a total annihilation of Government

M<sup>r</sup> Gallaway one of the Philadelphia Delegates, has been lately there<sup>2</sup> on a visit. He furnished me with Heads of a plan for the Government of the Colonies proposed by him to the Congress and seconded by M<sup>r</sup> Duane of this Place—These Gentlemen are of opinion my Lord, that there is a defect in the constitution of the British empire with respect to the Government of the Colonies, and that the most effectual means of reconciling the present unhappy differences; and for preventing the like hereafter, would be to obtain from the King and Parliament one General constitution that should establish a political Union not only among the Colonies, but with great Britain upon Principles of safety and freedom to both. These were the guiding objects in M<sup>r</sup> Gallaways Plan, which underwent a Debate in the Congress. and was entered on their minutes; but was afterwards not only totally rejected without proposing a substitute but expunged from their minutes. I enclose your Lordship a copy of M<sup>r</sup> Gallaways Plan, with two sets of introductory resolves How amazing is it my Lord that when a rational mode of proceeding evidently tending to a Reconciliation, was introduced and supported by men of the best judgment the Congress should prefer a method big with wickedness, extravagance & absurdity. A fatal Pride and obstinacy seems to have governed them. The Delegates from Virginia were the most violent of any—those of Maryland and some of the Carolinians were little less so these Southern Gentlemen exceeded even the New England Delegates:—they together made a majority that the others could have very little effect on M<sup>r</sup> Gallaway and M<sup>r</sup> Duane tell me that, at the close of the Congress they dissented from the proceedings, and insisted to have their dissent entered on the Minutes, but could not by any means get it allowed.

The Assembly of this Province stands prorogued to the tenth day of January, and by the advice of the Council, Summonses are issued for them to meet on that day. Many people think there is a probability that they will go upon conciliatory Measures, and propose some thing that may be countenanced by administration. The event is uncertain but on such occasions I think every thing is to be tryed, that may possibly avert the calamity which hangs over this country. I do not apprehend there is any danger that the Assembly will make Matters worse than they are Several Peices have been published there exposing the extravagant and dangerous proceedings of the Congress; and advising the people to rely on the Assembly that they will take the most reasonable and constitutional means of restoring Peace and Harmony between great Britain and this Province

Whitehall Dec<sup>r</sup> 10th 1774.

Sir,

I have received your letters No<sup>s</sup> 6 & 7 and have laid them before the King, together with the Petition & Affidavit enclosed in the first of them, relative to the lawless and violent proceedings of such of the Inhabitants of the Township of Bennington, as claim lands in that Township under Grants from New Hampshire.

The circumstances attending those Disturbances are very alarming; and if it be true that those parts of the Province are now an Asylum for Fugitives from every other part of America, it certainly is become an object that deserves the fullest attention. I cannot however be of opinion that the assistance of the King's Troops ought to be called for until every other effort has been tried & found insufficient.

Whenever the matter comes to that Issue it will certainly be the Duty of the King's Servants to advise His Majesty to strengthen the hands of Government by an application of a Military Force, but I do not at present see sufficient ground for the adoption of such a Measure, and I cannot [be] without hopes that, when the present very alarming situation of the King's affairs in North America, from other causes, will leave our hands more at liberty, some means may be found to accommodate these Disputes without the Risk of Bloodshed.

I trust it will not be long before We shall find sufficient Leisure for such a consideration, and His Majesty's subjects who have claims in that part of the country, under Grants from New York, may rest assured that their Pretensions will meet with every Countenance and Support that can be shewn consistent with Justice; for I can with truth say that the Conduct of that Province in general, & more especially in the present Moment, has been such as justly intitles its well disposed and peaceable Inhabitants to His Majesty's particular Favor and Indulgence: and I have the satisfaction to assure you that their Conduct is seen in a very favorable Light, and the Wishes they have in general expressed that all Violence might be avoided, & the Sovereign Authority of the Supreme Legislature might be supported, are graciously considered by the King as Evidences of their Respect & Affection for His Majesty, & of the just sense they entertain of the Rights of the British Empire.

Inclosed I send you, by His Majesty's Command, printed copies of His Majesty's most gracious Speech to His Parliament, and of the Addresses in answer thereto, which were passed in both Houses by a very great Majority.

The Declaration which His Majesty has been graciously pleased to make, of His firm & steadfast Resolution, to withstand every Attempt to weaken, or impair the authority of the Supreme Legislature, over all His Majesty's Dominions—The Resolution of both Houses to support those great Constitutional Principles, by which His Majesty's conduct hath been governed, and their entire approbation of the steps His Majesty has taken for carrying into Execution the Laws passed in the last Session, will, I trust, have the effect, to remove those false Impressions which have been made upon the minds of His Majesty's Subjects in America, and put an end to those Expectations of support, in their unwarrantable Pretensions, which have been held forth, by artful and designing Men.

Guy Park. 14. December. 1774.

My Lord.

With my last Dispatch of October 6th (N<sup>o</sup> 4. of mine) I had the honor to transmit my proceedings with the Six Nations at the September Treaty, with a French Belt delivered to me, all which I committed to the care of a Gentleman returning to England. I have now the honor to acknowledge your Lordship's dispatch of Sept<sup>r</sup> 8th containing his Majesty's Commands for my continuing as superintendant for the present, and until the state of the Indian Department could be farther considered ettc, on which I beg to express my most dutiful obligations for His Majesty's Royall attention to my eudeavours and to the warm recommendation of his very faithful servant Sir William Johnson, and others, as well as my most grateful thanks to your Lordship; most humbly assuring His Majesty, that as I have spent much time and pains, in acquiring an influence with the Indians and the knowledge of an office for which very few persons are by any means qualified, I shall continue to discharge it as an active servant, and an honest Man, and although I am sensible that at this distance, both Men and things are exposed too much misrepresentation which his Majesty's most faithful servants have often experienced, I shall always offer my sentiments with candour and truth, from a perfect reliance on your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s indulgence.

In my last I mentioned, that the Six Nations were to hold a general Congress at Onondaga at which Deputys from all their immediate Dependants were to be present and whither I had sent persons of approved fidelity. I have now the honor to inform your Lordship that the Congress ended very favourably, and that the principal Chiefs with others amounting to 106. have laid before me the whole proceedings a copy of which, together with their transactions with me here, I have the honor to transmit herewith.

The Indians after duly considering all I had said at the September Congress, and the nature of the application from the Shawanese for support, rejected the latter, and having agreed on an answer to them, and appointed Deputys to carry it, directed that they with the Chiefs of each Nation should immediately lay the whole before me for my farther direction, which they have determined to follow.

I find that the intelligence the Six Nations lately received from the Southward has greatly increased their suspicions of the other Colonies, and that those most distinguished for their fidelity found it a very difficult task to procure a favourable issue to the Treaty; that some weak but furious Zealots have busied themselves in telling several Indians of the American disputes, that the King was set against the Americans and Indians, and that the latter must not expect any further attention, which occasioned much disquiet and many private conferences when it was agreed on, that the Chiefs should make further enquiry of me into these matters, that if I satisfied them thereon, they should fulfill their resolutions otherwise they were immediately to take measures for their general interest by supporting their oppressed Dependants and carrying on war against the Frontiers. However, many of the Chiefs declared their determined resolution to abide by their engagements, and some persons of considerable influence observed that if their suspicions were well founded there was time enough to take violent measures; that they remembered what Sir William Johnson had said to them; that I had several times since his death explained these matters with assurances on which they might rely, and that as they wished for me and had many other suits to make to his Majesty they should recommend themselves to favour by their fidelity and good conduct. This had a good effect and contributed to the resolutions that followed; in consequence of which they have now dispatched Messengers to the Southward with a speech a copy of which goes herewith; they likewise mentioned some private grievances that will appear in the minutes; they are nevertheless still in doubt in some measure, and the evil reports they hear greatly increase it, for Indians should never be engaged in our differences, least it should lead them to disrespect Govern<sup>t</sup>, and incline them to measures they would not otherwise think of, and this is the more to be apprehended, when they hear that such disputes will affect themselves, and therefore I have done all in my power hitherto to restrain those whose indiscreet warmth, might lead them to intermeddle with the Indians. So many concurring circumstances must, My Lord, render it very difficult to conduct matters successfully at present but I have as yet succeeded and I shall still endeavour to do so. The Indians are not as unreasonable as may be imagined; they will hearken to those in whom they have confidence, and who understand their affairs, whilst they find support from the Royal authority, on which they have always depended, and this has contributed greatly to the public tranquility, for the different interests, and views of the Colonies are by no means agreeable to their inclinations.

The invasion of the Shawanese Country by Virginia, is very alarming to them. It has been the practice of some of the Colonies to acquire territory by conquest rather than purchase, and this renders every movement in that quarter suspected, and the Indians cant help believing, that it will be followed by other attempts on their Country or liberties, whilst many private unredressed grievances strengthen their apprehensions, and most of the frontier settlers, are rude, and insensible of the danger to which their indiscretions expose them. This is particularly the case of those to the Southward, encouraged by success without reflecting that they owe it to the address by which the Northern Indians have been hitherto prevented from assisting their dependants, for I can affirm with confidence that had the Six Nations been permitted to afford their aid to these people, the whole frontiers and Trade, would have severely suffered. The Delawares intermeddled little in it; the Shawanese can scarcely muster 300 Men, and had but few associates who were chiefly Mingoes and others intermarried amongst them, and living on the branches of Ohio, yet they attacked 14, or 1500 Virginians at the Great Kanhawa in October, of whom Coll<sup>d</sup> Lewis<sup>1</sup> and Field, with 4. Captains, 3. Subalterns and 45 Rank and file were killed; One Field Officer, 3. Captains, 4. Subalterns and 79. Men wounded, with little loss on the side of the Indians, altho' the number and loss of the latter are in all such cases much exaggerated; what must have been the consequence if supported by the Northern Ind<sup>ns</sup>? The Six Nations alone can muster 2000 fighting Men without taking in their Dependant Tribes in Canada, or about the Lakes who would for the most part follow their fortune and who lately sent them Messages to that effect. The want of reflecting upon this and the little attention one Colony pays to the distresses in which it may involve its neighbours is a very alarming consideration. Tho' all the Colonies might be sensibly affected by an irruption of the Six Nations; the Northern frontiers and the Furr Trade are more particularly exposed to them, both of which depend on their peaceable disposition, and have never experienced the contrary, thro' good management and attention, as in the late War with France, they were preserved in our interest, as well as in the succeeding rupture, (a few only excepted of the Upper Senecas). As I know, that these observations are capable of the clearest demonstration, I venture with all humility to suggest them from the attention they appear to me to deserve at this time.

I immediately communicated to the Indians His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s commands respecting my Super Intending their affairs at present which afforded them great satisfaction and contributed to remove some of their apprehensions, for having been so many years acquainted with me and my office as Sir William Johnson's immediate Dep<sup>y</sup>, and of my connection with him, for whose memory they retain the warmest regard, their partiality for me is extremely natural.

The inconveniences I labour under through the uncertainty of my Authority, never abated my endeavours; for altho in this office a variety of steps are often necessary that in prudence require some knowledge of its duration, I did not neglect any thing that the service required, but made proper provision as well for the necessary subordinate Officers, as for the various contingences of the Department omitting nothing that was essentially requisite, thro' regard for the public security, and the interests of the Crown, in humble confidence, that as I had long detached myself from all other interesting objects, to qualify myself for attaining an honest reputation in this peculiar post, it would prove an additional recommendation to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s favour, and the continuance of it in myself under the present or such other establishment, as might enable me to employ my talents and acquirements in the manner most conducive to His Majesty's service, and thereby gratify a laudable ambition. These hopes and sentiments encourage me to a vigorous discharge of my duty, and the times require it, for the Indians still apprehend they have much cause to doubt, and design as I find to watch all motions, till those evils which have been long engendering are removed from their remembrance and such measures carried into execution as may enable the Government to lessen their attention by imperceptible degrees & without hazard.

There is an account, that peace has been made with one of the Southern Tribes since the Action at Kanhawa, on their ceding a Tract of Country to Virginia. The Indians have heard of it, and have sent to me for particular information which I cannot as yet give them, but if it is as reported it must have been the effect of necessity on the one side, and therefore will be little regarded, by the Shawanese, who will doubtless excuse themselves to the Six Nations, and probably excite the latter to regard it as an invasion of their rights, in which light it will be too readily considered, as the Shawanese have no Title, or pretensions to treat about lands. This with the revival of some alarming claims may aggravate their discontent and without good management produce very serious consequences, so that it will be expedient for me to be honored with His Majesty's commands respecting them that they may be explained in the way most agreeable to Govern<sup>t</sup>, and likewise to know whether the Indians should be passive, or take an active part (which many enquire about) in the present or any other disputes. In the interim I shall in these matters act to the best of my judgement and with the approbation of General Gage, relying on His Majesty's favour, Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s countenance of my endeavours, & indulgence for the immoderate length of this letter.

I have the honor to be with high respect—My Lord

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient and
humble servant.

G. JOHNSON.

Proceedings of Colonel Guy Johnson with the Six Nations.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXLI.]

Proceedings of a Congress held with the Chiefs and Warriors of the Six Nations at Guy Park December 1st 1774.

PRESENT—Col: Guy Johnson his Majesty's Superintendent
Col: Daniel Claus, agent for Indian Affairs
Joseph Chew Esq: Secretary
John Butler Esq Interpreter.
M<sup>r</sup> Daly, Doctor Adams and other Gentlemen, and
The Sachems, Chiefs, and Warriors Deputed for that purpose.

The Superintendent informed them he was ready to proceed on business, when Abraham the Mohawk speaker performed the ceremony of condolence with three strings; by wiping the Eyes and clearing the throat etc in order to speak freely & prepare them properly for entering on business. After which Tyawarunte the Speaker of the Fire place, returned the ceremony of condolence in the usual manner, and then proceeded to repeat all that had been recommended to them by Sir William Johnson and Col: Johnson, that they well remembered & had strictly regarded it; and accordingly had called together all their people and Dependents at Onondaga to a general Congress the proceedings of which he was going to relate and therefore desired attention might be paid to it.

He then arose and Addressed the Superintendent as follows :

Brother Gorah Uraghqudirha

As Joseph Tayendanegah<sup>1</sup> attended the general Congress on your behalf and by your authority & took down in writing what passed, all which we believe he did very exactly shall be brief in repeating the same and we desire your attention.

Then repeated the transactions at Onondaga as in the annexed sheets after which he proceeded as follows :

Brother.—When we had settled matters at Onondaga as we have related to you with the heads of the Six Nations, the Deputies from our Dependant Tribes in Canada and on the Susquehanna We then produced this large Belt with which we confirmed and strengthened our resolutions and bound all present to fulfill the same, this is the great Belt of union delivered to us before the late war, for the purpose of peace and friendship with the English, it likewise reminds us of the King's kind promises to us formerly and we beg that you will lay these our proceedings before the King, entreating his Majesty to continue his kind attention to us and to our affairs as he has done, and that he will give orders to his Governors to the southward to check their people, and be aiding to us in reestablishing peace, and we also desire that you will signify the same to the Governors themselves, who we hope will consider the matter wisely and not give us reason to think ill of their designs.

This great Belt has always lain at our Council fire, but we shall now deposit it with the Senecas who are the western door of our confederacy, and whom we thereby charge and injoin to look towards us and to follow strictly the resolutions they have now confirmed with us and to unite strongly therein.—Delivered an extraordinary Belt near 5 feet long and consisting of 30. Rows of white wampum in breadth with a figure of Black wampum in it.—

Brother. This Belt the Seneca's of the Ohio as far up as Canwagan<sup>2</sup> received from the Governor of Pennsylvania inviting them to Fort Pitt to a Council there to assist in restoring peace; but upon a Message received from thence, that a skirmish had happened between the Virginians and the Delawares, in which two of the latter were killed, and the other succeeding troubles, we thought it would not be safe for them to go there and that the meeting proposed, could not take place; we therefore now bring the Belt to you in order to have your opinion on the matter, and that you may give a proper answer to Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn for us.

Brother. This is a Belt sent by Sir William Johnson to us requiring us to call all our people living on the Ohio away in consequence of which they all expect a few that were married amongst the Shawanese, came away.

Then they concluded with expressing their concern at hearing that the dispute to the Southward had rather increased, and that there had been an engagement lately, that they expected to be fully informed as to this and any other intelligence as a test of friendship and also as to reports propagated of a large body of troops at Boston and a dispute between the King and the people here that might affect them.

Col: Johnson answered in a few words expressing his esteem for them and his satisfaction in finding them unite in such wise resolutions, that he should consider the whole and answer them fully thereupon the next day in such a manner as must convince them of the good intentions of Government and of his personal regard.—on which they appeared satisfied.

Saturday December 3<sup>d</sup> 1774.

At a Conference with the Chiefs of the Six Nations

PRESENT — as before.

The Indians being all assembled and seated, Col: Johnson addressed them as follows.

Brothers. Having duly considered your speeches and the several matters laid before me, I am now to answer you and desire your attention thereto. It gives me much pleasure to find, that what you say corresponds so exactly with what had been laid before me by the person I sent to attend the Congress, and that the issue was so strictly conformable to my advice, and to the measures, which it was your interest to pursue.—

I consider this as not only a proof of your wisdom and friendly regard to the English, but of your particular affection for me, which I shall always return by candid advice, faithful representations of your conduct & plain dealing with yourselves. I much approve of your making use of the Great Belt on this occasion and I exhort the Senecas to pay the utmost regard to it, for the future, as I now put my hand to it, to prevent its falling to the ground and as a proof that it will be supported; you may be assured that I shall lay what you desire before his Majesty and the Governors concerned and I am convinced of the King's Regard for your welfare and interest, and that his General and the Governors will use their endeavours for restoring peace.

Returned the great Belt.

The Belt the Ohio Senecas received from Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn was undoubtedly for pacific purposes, but the unhappy troubles that succeeded did not admit of their taking any resolutions thereon & I persuade myself that the resolutions you have lately taken and now repeated to me will render it unnecessary, and therefore as you desire it, I shall acquaint Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn with your answer, and your present good dispositions.

Your next Belt is a proof of what I have often said to you; You there find that it was the desire of your great and worthy friend Sir William Johnson, to draw your people out of temptation that they might not get connected with those who are remote from, and secret Enemies to your Council fire; & I am glad to find that you have at length complied with his and my repeated advice. Therefore let me advise you now, that you have collected so many of your people to keep them in good order & turn their faces to your proper Council fire.

Then acquainted them with the intelligence from Ohio and the dispute with the Colonies as a matter in no wise relating to them.

Then Col: Johnson addressed them as follows.

Brothers of the Six Nations.

It now remains for me to hear from you the particulars of the Message you have agreed to send to the Southward, and whether you do not intend to send Messengers from each Nation and whom.

Brothers. You have acted wisely hitherto in your Councils but it will be to little purpose unless your resolves are carried effectually into execution by trusty Men, who will faithfully discharge what is committed to them, I find you have chosen some faithful and spirited men, and I hope they will prove so, I leave you to consider of this matter and rely on your giving me a true and satisfactory answer.

Then retired according to custom.

Brother. We are thankful to you for your good advice and we tell you, that we have at the late Congress, acted in all respects agreeable to your advice and desires. The Mohawk Messengers have been with you some days; the Senecas sent a very able Messenger who voluntarily offered his services for the public, and is a great Man. The Cahugas have also made a proper choice as have the Onondagas.—The Oneidas have chosen a young Man, but a Man that is brave and may be relied on; and to prevent mistakes we purposely made our Message short, having put all, that was on 13. Belts from our allies into one great Belt to tell the Indians to the southward that we have heard of their situation, but after mature deliberation we will take no part in it, as they are a troublesome people, that we have sent them two Messages, and now send the third and last desiring them to consider their interests and lay down the axe, and that if they neglect to do so, they shall not hear more from our Chiefs, or from those who are concerned in affairs of peace. Now Brother, as we take so much pains we expect the English will take some also; that the people of Virginia who are white Men, and supposed to be under command, will stop their hands, bury their Axe and not invade any part of our country. This & this only, Brother, can make us easy, we have been greatly disturbed, but the satisfaction we receive from your councils and assurances, had made us sit still, for we the six Nations are not inclined to break our engagements, till we see ourselves lessened, or our affairs in danger. Our dependants around the lakes and in Canada, wait for our call, and not we for theirs.—We thank you Brother, for what you have told us concerning the affairs to the Southward and we hope the fire will not spread further there.—We also thank you for informing us concerning the disputes we have heard of, to the Eastward, we have strange stories about them, and many other things concerning ourselves.—But we hope that the great King will remember that we are a faithful people and that at the Great Treaty at Fort Stanwix when we gave up so much land we did so, as we then mentioned, in the hope and confidence, that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> would continue his regard to us and prevent us from being defrauded; by giving strength to the great Man who had the care of our affairs, that they might be, conducted in one direct road and properly attended to, and we hope, that what we have said, will not be forgotten, for we remember it still, and you have it all in writing; and we rely on your reporting what we have said to the great King and that you will acquaint the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Virginia with our desires and send an answer to Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn's Belt, which we now leave with you for that purpose, and we hope that you will supply the Messengers going to the Southward with such articles as they may want on so long a journey.

To which Col. Johnson answered

Brothers. I approve much of your Message to the Shawanese and of the persons, who are to be the bearers of it; who, I have reason to believe will deliver it faithfully and thereby do you much credit and prove of service to the mad people to the Southward—at the same time, I have reason to hope that the dispute is nearly terminated, as it is at most only a dispute with the people of Virginia in which none of his Majesty's troops on any of the other Colonies are concerned, and in which a wise people should be cautious how they interest themselves, least it should prove hurtful to them, without benefiting others. You may be assured that I shall lay all your proceedings faithfully before the King, and that you will continue to experience his fatherly protection, so long as you act with discretion and fidelity. It is therefore, your particular interest to be governed by good Councils, to listen to my advice and act as you have done, and for your further satisfaction, I can now acquaint you that the Great King, thro' his regard to you has been pleased to order me by a dispatch from the Secretary of State to continue the superintendency of your affairs at present, and he will doubtless in all his actions consult your happiness and satisfaction, provided you continue to deserve it, by adhering strongly to your engagements and by your good behaviour, enabling me to report you a faithful people.—I shall not fail to lay your desires before the Governor of Virginia and I trust it will merit attention. I shall also send your answer to Gov<sup>r</sup> Penn, and report your good resolutions; and as I am sensible that your Messengers have a long journey to make, I shall furnish them with such articles as are necessary to assist them on the Road.—

December the 4th

PRESENT as before.

The Indians assembled when Col: Johnson delivered a large kettle to the Speaker of Onondaga to be used at a dance in consequence of a dream agreeable to their ancient Customs.—He also delivered a Flag to a Chief; after which the Indians having signified that they were ready, the Speaker arose and spoke as follows:—

Brother. We have heard for sometime, that there are some bad white people, who have been endeavouring to deprive our Brothers the Mohawks at Fort Hunter and at Conajoharie of the little remains of land at these Villages, and we heard always, that our late Brother Sir William Johnson protected them & prevented the Conajoharies from being driven to despair. We find however, that the same wicked endeavours to cheat them, are still practised and that the Rogue Klock continues to render them very uneasy. This Brother, gives us much concern, for we cannot suppose, the English will be well disposed to us if they do not do Justice and shew kindness to those faithful people living at their doors.

We therefore by this Belt request that you Brother will continue your good Offices to them as Sir William Johnson did, and that you will represent strongly their case to the King and his wise Men, that they may at length be made easy, and that their heads may not get turned, for being a part of us, it may affect our senses.

A Belt of seven Rows.

Then the Indians returned a Belt delivered by the Mohawks at Onondaga, recommending it to all the Nations to obey their Chiefs etc, and assured the Mohawks that they approved & would follow their advice. They also delivered a Bunch of Strings to Col: Johnson to the same effect. The Onondagas then, on a Bunch of strings gave a strict caution to their Hunters to behave well, & acquainted Col: Johnson (according to ancient custom) that 18 more of the Hunters of their Nation were then come to Hunt in the neighbourhood and hoped that they would be assisted with some ammunition.—Col: Johnson answered that as they hunted of late much in that part of the Country, he thought their caution to their Hunters extremely necessary and in hopes of their behaving well, would consider their wants. He then arose and addressed the whole as follows:

Brothers of the Six Nation Confederacy.

I have heard, what you have said regarding the case of the Mohawks, who I trust will be honestly dealt with by the people at Albany, claiming the lands, and my endeavours shall not be wanting to procure a final settlement of the affair.—As to that of the Conajoharies it was settled (thro' Sir William Johnson's endeavours) by all parties concerned but one Man who imprudently stood out. However the matter has been laid before the Gov<sup>r</sup> lately, and I am persuaded that every possible measure will be taken for their relief, as your speech will be sent to your kind Father the King, and also to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of this province, who is heartily disposed to serve you.

Brothers. The business of this meeting being thus far satisfactorily concluded it remains for me (according to Custom) to give you this belt as a proof of my being ordered by the King, to continue for the present in the management of your affairs; to assure you of my sincere attachment to your interests and of my resolution to follow the most prudent measures for promoting your happiness.

With this Belt I remove all evil Councils from you, cleansing your Council fire and turning your heads to the right way, and I have affixed to it my seal, as a mark of my sincerity and a representation of my heart, which is open and will be always inclined to you, whilst you continue to act wisely and to follow my advice; to reverence the King and to live in peace with his subjects, and after this Belt has been shewn as usual, thro' the Nations, I desire that it may be deposited at Onondaga there to be as a proof of my words and as a necessary guide to you for your future conduct.—

A Long Belt of 9. Rows.

The Indians returned Col: Johnson thanks for his assurances respecting the Mohawks and then the Onondaga Speaker arose and after repeating all that Col: Johnson had said on the last Belt addressed him as follows.

Brother Gorah Uraghquadirha.

This Belt which you have now given us affords us more satisfaction than any thing else. We are made very happy by hearing that you have the King's orders to take care of us, we were really a good deal uneasy on account of many idle stories, and this has for the present removed our concern. We wish you long life and health and that you may long continue to take care of our affairs after the example of your late Father in Law. We shall, after we have shewn this Belt put it carefully up amongst our great Belts at Onondaga, and frequently look upon it that we may never forget any part of it. We desire that you may particularly offer the thanks of the Six Nations and their Allies to the great King for his continuing to us a person so long and so well acquainted with our affairs, the only person we wished for, hoping that his Maj<sup>ty</sup> will continue you to us, and assuring the King that His orders to you have given us more satisfaction, than we could receive from words or speeches for it strengthens our belief, that he really loves us and consults our happiness and satisfaction and we shall act accordingly.

To which Col: Johnson replied:

Brothers. I am much obliged to you for your speech and I have great reliance on your sincerity; it only remains for me to advise each of you to contribute on your parts towards the reestablishment of tranquility by repeating your engagements frequently to your people at their Towns, and as you are the most considerable persons in your Confederacy, enforcing their observance by your example, keeping your eyes fixed on the proper Fire place; shutting your ears against all rumours and flying reports and opening your hearts to me according as I have done to you with a firm reliance on the Fatherly attention and justice of the great King of England whose favour will always be proportioned to your fidelity.

After which Col: Johnson gave a charge to the Conajahories to live united and peaceably amongst themselves, and to avoid any further threats against G. Klock or any of his Majesty's subjects, but to recommend their case to Government by their patience and moderation.

He also advised the rest to direct their Hunters who came down in greater numbers than formerly, not to intermeddle in the white peoples affairs, or to hearken to the Stories they might hear least it might prove of ill consequence as they were incompetent Judges of the characters & capacities of the white people, most of whom on the frontiers were strangers to public affairs; that it besides exposed them to temptations from liquor, which produced quarrels, and the train of evils incident thereto. All which, the Indians faithfully promised to observe.

JOHN CHEW. Sec<sup>y</sup>

On the 5th of December, the Chiefs and others who had distinguished themselves for their fidelity received some suitable presents, after which, they proceeded for their respective nations.

Proceedings at a Congress held by the Six Nations with their Dependants at Onondaga in November 1774. Referred to in the 2nd page of the foregoing.<sup>1</sup>

The Indians of the Six Nations and of Canada having waited for several days for the upper Senecas, the Deputies from the latter arrived at last and on the 5th inst: they all assembled when Tyawarante Speaker of Onondaga opened the Congress with the following speech.

Brothers of the Six Nation Confederacy.

We are all assembled this day at this our Council fire, which our Forefathers unanimously established as the Grand Council fire, and where they made rules and settled all things in a proper manner. (here he repeated all the original rules and ceremonies, and their different Treaties and alliances, and proceeded) Brothers, we are now according to custom lay before you all the business on which we are assembled, which is to remind each other of our engagements with all Nations and to take your determined resolutions on the subject of the application made to us by the Shawanese for Assistance.—Now Brothers, we the Onondagas, who keep the great Council fire remember almost every thing that our Fathers did and agreed upon, and we resolve to follow their advice and will stand to our engagements with the English, and the assurances we have given our Brother Uraghquadicha i. e. Colonel Johnson; we will not take any notice of these Shawanese Belts, for the Belts are not of weight enough to get an axe from us.—Having thus delivered our minds to you all, our desire is to hear of your determined resolutions, and we leave these things to the consideration of you & the Confederacy. We hope you will do it well, for we look upon it that this of the Belts is such a case as our Fathers meant, when they said if any thing should happen after we have made every thing good or if a bad Creature or Snake should come near the fire, we are to join all hands to take a stick and throw the Snake away, (then layd the Shawanese Belts and five Scalps before the Confederacy, which they threw down) — After a short silence :

Takerehoga the Conajoharrie Chief arose, and on behalf of the sachems of the Mohawks, Oneidas, and Tuscaroras, spoke as follows.

Brothers, We the Mohawk Sachems on behalf of ourselves and also on behalf and at the desire of the Sachems of Oneida and Tuscarora, are going to deliver our sentiments at this Council place, on the affair the Confederacy are now met about, as it is very necessary and expedient that every Nation here present ought to give and deliver their opinion freely — We the three above mentioned Nations have consulted together, and hereby unanimously declare before this Congress, that we are firmly determined to hold fast and preserve the peace and to hold fast by the agreements we renewed with Uraghquaderha i. e. Col: Johnson, as much as is in our power and the more as we find all our most sensible allies and dependants are that way inclined. It would be acting a very wrong and base part to take notice of the Message from one inconsiderate Nation (meaning the Shawanese) and therefore our sentiments are as above declared.

Then a Cayuga Chief named Oyeghseragearat spoke as follows :

Brothers of the Confederacy. We the Cayugas approve of what you desire that every Nation ought to declare publicly their sentiments and I hereby on behalf of my Nation assure you that we are all one mind with our Father and Brothers, Col. Johnson, Mohawks, Oneidas and Tuscaroras and being firmly determined to stick to peace and tranquility, I by this Belt assure you that nothing shall be able to shake my firmness in this resolution. —

A large Belt.

The Senecas then in behalf of their whole Nation spoke by Sorihawane a Chenussio Chief as follows :

Brothers of the Confederacy.

You are very right in making every Nation declare their sentiments upon the matter in question, it being certainly of more weight. I therefore on behalf of our Nation being the upper Door tell you that it is but lately, you have repaired the door of the Confederacy at a meeting at this place, and then settled every matter tending to the peace and welfare of the whole, and that then we assured you, that we the Chiefs & Warriors of our Nation should always join in sentiments with you for the future, our late friend and Gov<sup>r</sup> Sir William Johnson the very day he died having so strongly recommended it to us to preserve peace amongst us on this alarming News from the Shawanese, and we having given the same assurances to Col: Johnson since, we should fail in respect and esteem to Sir William Johnsons memory and regard to our engagements with his successor if we did not act up to our last promises and therefore, we once more assure you, that we will maintain peace in our Nation. —

Then the Mohawks, Oneidas and Tuscaroras, resumed speaking and little Abraham proceeded as follows.

Brothers. Having unanimously agreed in sentiments at this fire place, upon the affairs we met and that we are all for the preservation of peace thro' the whole. — we therefore recommend it to you Onondagas, who in a manner are head of us all to keep up the Council fire and to study the welfare of the whole Confederacy in every respect, we now recommend it to you in the strongest manner to cause your young Men to be vigilant on the present critical occasion in giving due notice to the Confederacy on any emergency, and you the Cayugas and Senecas, we once more admonish you to enforce your present determinations, since after this your declaration, should you fail in your performance, our great King and his people would consider you in a very bad light after your solemn promises; We the Mohawks on our part are not the least apprehensive but that our young men will always look for advice to the Chiefs.— according to the custom long since established and therefore shall never be the aggressor and hope that you and your Warriors will follow the same example.

The Warriors then spoke :

Brothers. We the Warriors also speak our minds in the strongest manner, that we are firmly resolved and determined to pay strict attention to what our Brother Uraghquadirha i. e. Col: Johnson and our head Men advise, and shall not oppose their endeavours for preserving peace and will be always subject to them, because if any thing should happen, that appears to be to our prejudice or hurt, they will consider on it and make use of the best means to settle it, in the properest way for us. We therefore recommend it to you all, to do the same and endeavour to help all our Sachems to perform their promises—we will therefore wait, until we hear further from them. a Black Belt.

Then Serrihowane in behalf of the Seneca Warriors spoke as follows.

Brothers. The Warriors of our Nation charged me to acquaint you, that they are sorry, they had not an opportunity of being all present at their Congress, they not having been summoned as they had a Message from you and the Cognawagey Ind<sup>m</sup> in Canada last summer, by which you hinted to them, as if they had been the occasion of disturbing the peace for several years past, and in consequence and by virtue of the said Belt (being a very large one) you advised them to reform and for the future be peaceably inclined as it would be satisfactory to the whole Confederacy, they the Seneca Warriors therefore intended to return their thankful answer to the Confederates for their good advice, & they had upon consultation together resolved to follow it, and it was also the full determination of all the Seneca Warriors from Canadauge to Canawako, that they would listen to their Chiefs and prevent all their people and young Men from doing any thing that might disturb the peace.

Gave a large Belt in return for that of the Confederates.

Then the Seneca Chiefs said, they had also a Belt from the rest of the Confederacy, to almost the same purport as that of their warriors, which they then also exchanged with their thanks thereupon, assuring them, that they had taken a full resolution for the future to communicate & be of one mind with the rest of the Confederacy which they hoped would strengthen and preserve the chain of peace and friendship inviolable for ever.—After which the Onondagas & Mohawks in a spirited speech observed that there was no occasion for a moment's hesitation about a Message to the Shawanese, that it would be time enough to think of violent measures when they found themselves in real danger, that Sir William Johnson's last words assured them of the contrary, that Col: Johnson had at two Congresses since fully satisfied them all; that they should be wanting in respect to Sir William's memory and confidence in Col: Johnson, if they doubted what had been said, and that as they had so much wished to have him to manage their affairs, their good conduct then, would recommend them to the great King as deserving his favour.

The Indians then of every Nation after a little deliberation, declared themselves of one mind, after which they proceeded to consider & repeated on a large Belt the purport of what they intended to say to the Shawanese and others to the Southward, to compell them to consider their situation and sue for peace, and resolved that the Chiefs of each Nation should wait on Col: Johnson and lay the whole before him and take his advice as to the Messages to the Shawanese.

The Conajoharies afterwards raised John of the Wolf Tribe to be a Sachem and delivered three strings of 2000 Wampum to the younger Branches of the Confederacy on the occasion, after which they spoke on a large Belt to all assembled recommending peace and unity amongst themselves respect and reverence to the person, who had charge of their affairs and to their Chiefs and that notice should envy any favours bestowed on them.

Then Congress ended.

A literal translation of the Message from the Six Nations Confederacy to the Shawanese etc.

Younger Brothers.

We are come running to you from the great fire place, take notice of what I have to say as I am the Older Brother. It happened that you came lately to the middle of the Council house to our fire place of peace, for the Six Nation Confederacy, you there spoke to us on a subject we did not understand, we would not give ear to, or agree to it as our fire place is for peace, and we tell you we will only listen to affairs of peace there.

Younger Brothers. We are now here and we tell you again before all the Nations who observe you and see your bad works, we have been twice here to advise you to peace, but you have not attended, and in compliance with our ancient customs, we are come the third time to tell you, you must be at peace, this is the third time, & the last that you shall hear from us if you do not hearken to us.

We charge you to consider the case of your Warriors your women and your children, and we desire you sachems to use your authority over your people, that they may mind what we say. Leave the business of War, repent and mind peace alone and then you will be preserved. Quarrelsome people are dangerous, we advise you for your good, for we pity you, and we know from our Superintendent, that the King is inclined to desire you should be at peace & has sent orders to Virginia to promote it. Mind our words, they are strong, they are the words of the Six Nations, who are the heads of the Confederacy; all the Northern nations have left their Belts in our hands and refered themselves intirely to our Government and determination, they have joined their words to us, who are the head of the whole, and you now see them all in us here present, who are now sent with authority to charge you to follow our advice.

a Very large Belt is then to be given.

Sir,

Certain persons styling themselves Delegates of several of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Colonies in America, having presumed, without His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> authority or consent, to assemble together at Philadelphia, in the mouths of September and October last; and having thought fit, amongst other unwarrantable proceedings, to resolve that it will be necessary, that another Congress should

My Lord

I have received your Ldps Commands of the 19th of October, with His Majestys order in Council of the same date, which I shall endeavour by every means in my power, to execute in the most effectual manner. I immediately communicated to M<sup>r</sup> Elliot the Collector of this Port, the orders which I had received, and gave him the necessary directions for the conduct of the officers of the Customs. I am well assured he will be very attentive to this important duty. A day or two after this order was received one of the Custom House officers discovered ten chests of Arms, three Boxes of Lead and one Barrell of Gun-Powder on Board a Vessel bound to Rhode Island. It has been found on enquiry that these arms were lately imported on board the ship lady Gage Capt<sup>n</sup> Mesnard and it is said, were shipped at London as Hardware; but there was no Cockett for them under any Denomination. M<sup>r</sup> Elliot secured them all, and for greater safety sent them on Board the Man of War in the Harbour where they remain

That sett of people who lye waiting for every opportunity to raise a Mob and throw the City into confusion, made an infamouse attempt to frighten M<sup>r</sup> Elliott into a surrender of the Arms, which they insisted were legally supported. The principal Gentlemen and Merchants, to prevent mischief waited upon M<sup>r</sup> Elliott in a body, assured him they were perfectly satisfied with his behaviour, and declared warmly against any who should attempt to insult him on account of what had happened, which silenced the others who were working in the dark and endeavouring to raise the populace My Lord the measures pursued as well by the Southern as Eastern Provinces puts the moderate & peaceable disposition which prevails among the Majority of the people of this Province dayly to the Tryal. Enthusiasm is ever contagious; and when propagated by every artifice, becomes almost irresistible. The Assembly of this Province, as I formerly informed your Lordship are to meet next tuesday. If I find that there will not be a Majority for prudent measures, I shall incline to prorogue them for a short time, that the Plan of the New Parliament may be known here, before the Assembly do any thing. On the other Hand there is Room to fear, that if the Assembly do not meet, an attempt will be made to convene a provincial Congress in imitation of our Neighbours which may be of worse consequence. I propose to take the advice of His Matys Council Tomorrow upon the interesting and important situation of affairs. When all depends upon the humour of the Populace, one can only, My Lord, form very uncertain Conjectures of future measures. I can only say with certainty that there is still a good Majority of the most respectable people in this Place who promote Peace and discountenance violence. I am, my Lord, with entire submiss<sup>n</sup>

Since my letter to you of the 10th of December I have received two from you, the one dated the 2<sup>d</sup> of Nov<sup>r</sup> inclosing the Proceedings of the general congress, the other of the 7th December inclosing a Plan of Union between Great Britain and the Colonies, proposed by Mr Galloway in that congress

The affairs of America are now come to a crisis, and as the consideration will be taken up by the Houses of Parliament immediately after the Holidays, it can not but be the wish of every candid & unprejudiced person that the proceedings of the general congress had been of such a colour and complexion, as to have united accommodation without provoking the vengeance of the mother country.

The Idea of Union upon some general constitutional plan, is certainly very just, & I have no doubt of its being yet attainable through some channell of mutual consideration and discussion.

Inclosed I send you the copy of a memorial of Colonel Ord<sup>1</sup> whose long & faithfull services in America render him an object of public attention; and I am commanded by the King to signify to you His Majestys Pleasure, that he be allowed to locate the 5000 acres for which he obtained a Mandamus, upon the Tract to which he refers in his Memorial

With this letter you will receive a Package inclosing to General Carleton the King's Commission & Instructions & other Documents, for the Government of Quebec under the new constitution and as it is of great consequence that he should receive these Instruments as early as possible, I am commanded by the King to signify to you His Majestys Pleasure that you do engage some trusty person to carry the dispatch to Quebec by the way of the Lakes and that you do draw a Bill upon Mr Pownall for whatever reasonable expence shall be incurred in that Service

The address which I received yesterday from the General Assembly of this Province, has given me so great satisfaction, and appears to me to be of such importance at this time, that I think it my duty to lay hold of an opportunity by a merchant ship going from hence to Exeter, to transmit to your Lordship's my speech at the opening of the Sessions and the Councils and the Assembly addresses

It was some days before a sufficient number of the members of Assembly got to town, to make a House, and there are still twelve of them absent; which has occasioned the House to put off the farther consideration of their important business to the seventh of next month at which time they have ordered all their members to attend. It is thought, my Lord, that there at least as many friends to Government among the absent members, as advocates for the late congress and that the House will therefore when they are altogether, be able to act up to the sentiments of their address—Every Machination that restless spirits can devise, will in the mean time be exerted to obtain an approbation of the Proceedings of the Congress which is the grand point the aim to carry—This delay to the 7th of next month will however my Lord be of advantage by giving us an opportunity of receiving the Kings Speech and the addresses of the Lords and Commons which we hope the December Mail will bring out

New York 1st Feb 1775

My Lord,

Yesterday I had the Honor to receive your Lordships circular letter of the 10th Dec<sup>r</sup>, with His Matys most gracious speech, and the address's of the Lords & Commons, and your despatches No 25 of the same date

The Assembly of this Province which was to meet on the 10th of last month did not make a House till the 13th when I opened the Sessions with a speech which I now take the honor of enclosing to your Lordship. The Councils addresses did not give so much satisfaction even to the people, as that which I received afterwards from the Assembly, I am happy in having it in my power to transmit to your Lordship an address which I am persuaded will give you pleasure to lay before His Majesty and will confirm the favorable opinion he is graciously pleased to entertain of his Subjects in this Province

Although the address passed in the House my Lord with only one dissentient voice, there is a party in the Assembly of very different principles who I expect will be continually endeavouring to do Mischeif, Finding a great Majority against them, when the address pass'd, the moved to have a call of the House on the 7th of February, and that the consideration of the weighty business which was before them should be put off to that day. This the House agreed to, and immediately sent out orders for the absent members to attend, However, two Members coming in last week, who were known to be violent in their opposition to Government, a Motion was made that the House should take into consideration the Proceedings of the Congress held at Philadelphia in September last. A warm debate ensued and upon the Previous Question the Motion was rejected by eleven to ten. These ten are my Lord the whole strength of that Party The nine members which have not yet appeared in the House, it is well known will join the eleven. When they come the Majority will be so great, that I hope the House will not again make so near an escape from a Motion brought by surprize upon them

When your Lordship considers that every American Assembly which has met since the Congress was held at Philadelphia, have approved of and adopted the Proceedings of the Congress, and that in those Colonies where the Assembly has not met, the People have in Provincial Congress, or otherwise done the same, the loyalty and firmness of the Assembly of this Province, and of the People in general, will appear in a very striking light. I am persuaded his gracious Majesty, and his Ministers will encourage this good and singular disposition, by such instances of indulgence and favor, as shall be wisely calculated to render most evident the good effects of the conduct of this Province.

Yesterday before the Packet arrived, a motion was made, and agreed to in the Assembly, to appoint a day to take into consideration a state of the Greivances of this Colony—to make an humble firm, dutifull and loyall Petition to the throne, a Memorial to the Lords, and Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain. A Committee was appointed for this business, who are to report after the call of the House on the 7th of this month I have strong expectations, my Lord, that the conduct of this Province will every day more evidently shew the loyalty and affection of the People for their gracious Sovereign, and their earnest desire for a Reconciliation with great Britain

I enclose to your Lordship a Paper Published last week by the Quakers of Philadelphia, they are likewise a very respectable body of People in this Province. It is imagined the address of our Assembly was even a great means of producing this paper from the Quakers Till the address appeared every Body was afraid to oppose what seemed to be the Sentiments of all the Continent

I thought the address of our Assembly of such consequence that in order to give your Lordship the earliest intelligence of it I transmitted it to you by a Merchant ship which sailed from this Port for Exeter, the beginning of last week

I am with great Submission and respect

Colonel Guy Johnson to the Earl of Dartmouth.

[Plantations General (S. F. O.) CCLXLI.]

My Lord,

I had the honor to transmit to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> with my last Dispatch of December 14th the proceedings of the Six Nation Deputies who came to advise with me concerning their transactions at a general Congress at Onondaga, and I then fully stated the situation of Affairs.

Soon after I received an express to notify the approach of the Chiefs on very important business, who arrived and opened their conference on the 20th Ult<sup>o</sup>, a copy of the principal parts of which I have now the honor to inclose, tho' I have been scarcely able to digest it, as I caught cold during the Congress which brought on me a severe fit of the gravel, from which I am now slowly recovering.

The coming of the Indians was occasioned by a Message they had just received from the Shawanese, giving an account of their transactions and Treaty with Virginia, and that the latter intended to quarrel with the Six Nations, on which the Shawanese invited them to a Congress on Ohio next Spring. This intelligence has given them great concern, at the same time the Oneidas gave an account, that they were told, His Maj<sup>ty</sup> would allow no more goods to be sent to the Indians or Colonists; that powder would soon be at 3 or 4. dollars for a Jill, with other particulars corresponding with what was mentioned in my last, and amongst others they accuse a Dissenting Missionary at one of their Villages (a Native of New England lately returned from his Friends in Boston) and a Trader of that Country, who resides amongst them, as the authors of this report of which I had heard before from some white people of credit; as well, as that various schemes are on foot, to persuade the Indians to take part in the dispute. Tho' I can scarcely believe that Men of good character, more especially any Clergyman would recommend such a measure, yet I know there are not wanting, inferior enthusiasts in the cause who are capable of, and even speak of it, and who on particular enquiry, can easily deny the charge, or attribute it to malice in the Indians whose testimony has seldom the deserved weight. Such Reports, when powder rises so much in value, and other Articles grow scarce, are easily credited and (notwithstanding all my endeavours) removed with great difficulty.

The Indians seem satisfied that the greatest part of the Shawanese intelligence is without just foundation, and that it is calculated to create a jealousy of the Virginians for some future evil purpose, and accordingly propose to decline meeting the former, and to require their attendance at a Congress to the Northward in my presence, when the Confederacy meets in the spring, for which I am now making the necessary provision as well as the scarcity of some articles will permit, as it will be an important Congress, and the Tranquility of the Northern Indians will greatly depend on it for the ensuing summer, the event of which I am anxious about, as I have an opportunity of discovering many things that cannot be known to Government, and I see plainly that (unless timely prevented) some extraordinary steps may be taken to embarrass Govern<sup>t</sup>, and its Officers, the Indians being rather in a state of suspence than any other, until their different disputes are accommodated, and they hear respecting the several matters laid before the Crown.

The tranquility of this part of the Country to which the Indians always so much resort has been hitherto much owing to the influence of the family, with which I am connected, and some threats of a deluded populace have been thereby prevented; I am not to be intimidated by the ordinary modes practiced, tho' I may meet with some obstruction in my duties, and the Indians get disturbed at a time when their uneasinesses are not extinguished.

The last Conferences, were but just ended, when a party of Deputys arrived to acquaint me, that the Shawanese had sent a second Message to desire the attendance of the Six Nations, otherwise the Virginians would put seven Senecas to death, who having lived for many years with the Shawanese, and engaged in their cause were now confined and in irons at Fort Pitt; and although their conduct is condemned, yet the Six Nations have requested the interposition of Govern<sup>t</sup> and are much alarmed at their situation, they being no more culpable than the Shawanese, and the latter will seize this occasion to irritate the Six Nations, whose fidelity they have long endeavored to shake.—So many circumstances will oblige me to meet the Confederacy soon, and I shall be very happy if, in the interim, I am honored with His Majesty's commands, respecting the points in my former letters, that regard the security of the Mohawk's Lands, the boundary line, or any of their requests, as they may apply for an answer, and it will conduce much to their satisfaction, and the public repose, if I am enabled to give them satisfactory assurances thereon.

I have the honor to be with great respect,

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>s</sup> most obedient and
most humble servant

G. JOHNSON.

69. Warriors and Chiefs of the Six Nations, also the Mohawks and Conajohares.

Teyorhansera the Mohawk Chief arose and performed the ceremony of Condolance for the deaths of some Oneidas and Cayhuga Chiefs, and gave three strings; which ceremonial being returned as usual by the Onondaga speaker with three strings, the speaker arose and addressed the Superintendent as follows.

Brother Gorah Uraghquadirha.

We thank the great spirit for enabling us to meet this day being sent with full authority from our whole Confederacy to you on business of very great importance otherwise you could not have expected to see several old Chiefs at this season of the year.

Brother. There arrived lately at our great fire place, Messengers from the Southward acquainting us with the particulars of the Battle at Kankawa, who say, that the Virginians marched an Army and fought with our Dependants the Shawanese for almost a day, that the Commanding Officer of the Virginians, then required a cessation till the Gov<sup>r</sup> arrived, who, when he came, desired to speak with the Indian Chiefs; that some warriors went to him, whom he sent back, that then some Chiefs went, who asked him why he invaded and destroyed their people, observing, that they had only attacked some Virginians for having killed their people; the Gov<sup>r</sup> acknowledged he had bad people in his Government, but advised them to make peace, if it was most agreeable to them. That whilst this was in agitation, a Shawanese runner arrived and declared he was the only person escaped alive from a village then lately attacked; on which, the Indians upbraided the Virginians with their falseness, but the Governor took pains to excuse them, and still advised them to peace, which was at length agreed to, and that the Indians lost thirty Men in the Action of which three were Senecas of Ohio; that when the peace was made, the Gov<sup>r</sup> gave some arms and presents to the Shawanese and sent for the Mingo's who were at some distance to join in the peace, but on their arrival, he put them all in irons and has sent them prisoners to Williamsburgh, telling them, that as they associated with the Shawanese he was determined to collect his Troops at Fort Pitt and elsewhere, and march against the Five Nations in order to cut them off; and the Shawanese further advise us that the prisoners are to be put to death in case the five Nations take measures for their security. The Shawanese therefore requested us by these strings to consider their case and to come with all the Northern Indians in the spring to a meeting at Fort Pitt, and that the Superintend<sup>t</sup> or some of his Officers should attend the same.

Delivered the strings from the Shawanese.

Brother. When we considered this Message, we were greatly surprized at the unreasonable conduct of the Virginians and looked upon, it high time for us to shew our power and the strength of our alliances to these people, who have used us so ill in return for our fidelity, for had it not been for our sitting still and following your advice, they would have felt our power long ago; at the same time we thought it a little extraordinary, that the Shawanese, our dependants, should call us, who did not engage or assist them to a meeting, and therefore we agreed to disregard their Message, and to come down to you, in order to have more information in these matters & to see if you could afford us more satisfaction upon these and other things that disturb our minds.—We therefore desire on behalf of all the confederacy, that you will give us full information advice and assistance, on this and what else we shall say, and as we have likewise heard that this quarrel was partly occasioned about land, and that the Shawanese have now given a great deal of land to the Virginians, which you know they have no right to do, we desire to hear from you about it and that you will acquaint the great king, it is our earnest desire and expectation that he may remember our large cession made in 1768. and set his foot on the boundary line then settled, that no person may cross it; and we desire by this Belt that you will do the same.

A Belt of 8. Rows.

Then Conogqueisen Chief of Oneida on Behalf of the whole arose and said.

Brother. We are now to speak to you on another subject which much affects us; we hear many strange stories of late from the White people, that give us much trouble. We lately told you of some bad advisers we had met with about your own disputes they now come into our towns. We complained to you last summer that the Clergyman at Canowarighare was a very busy Man, that he refused to Baptise some of our people, who were not agreeable to him, and administering the Sacrament to children, whose parents were of his party. We have now much more to say on this head, for he goes on in such a manner that our chiefs are desirous to get rid of him; for he has a store in our village and is concerned in trade with his Brother, which is very unbecoming in him, and he minds public affairs more than Religion, for he is always collecting news and telling us strange matters of the white people, whilst he endeavours to represent us as a people of no consequence to them, in short, he has become such a meddler in things he has no business with, that we desire once more that you will cause him to be removed to prevent further trouble with him.

The Onondaga speaker next arose and spoke as follows :

Brother. When our Chiefs returned last from hence to Onondaga our young Men were mostly abroad, so that the Message to the Southward was delayed for some days and we have since heard that in consequence thereof one of the Messengers wrote a letter to you upon it which letter arrived at the village of Canowaroghare, where it was stopped and read by the Minister, who advised not to forward any news that might be disagreeable, but to burn it, which was accordingly done. We therefore beg that you will not look upon it to be an act of ours, or with our knowledge, and that should you hear any accounts of the Messenger's delay in consequence thereof, that you will believe our sincerity and not give ear to it, and by this Belt we beg that you will give orders that no busy people shall hereafter give ill advice, or obstruct the Messengers sent by you and us, as we believe this Minister has done, who we find to be a very busy Man, and a Man interested in Trade and things which we always thought unbecoming the character of a Clergyman.

A Belt of 7 Rows.

Having ended ; Col: Johnson answered as follows.

Brothers the Chiefs. I have carefully attended to your speeches, and as they contain some weighty matters, which require some thought, I shall consider the whole seriously and give you a full answer with such advice and directions, as will I trust prove satisfactory to you.

Then gave them pipes, Tobacco, & some liquor, & adjourned.

Saturday 21. January.

Some Indian Chiefs being still behind, did not proceed on business, and as the Post was expected with some letters on sunday, that might contain matters necessary to be communicated to the Ind<sup>ns</sup> the Superintendent's answer was postponed to Monday Morning.

Monday 23<sup>d</sup> January.

At a meeting with the before mentioned Ind<sup>ns</sup>.

PRESENT— as before

The Indians being all assembled and seated Colonel Johnson, made them the following speech.

Brothers of the Six Nations here assembled.

I am glad to see you all here safe and in health this day, especially as the season is severe and some of your Chiefs are aged Men and as I have now duly considered the subjects you spoke upon I desire your particular attention to my answer which I expect will prove very satisfactory to you.

Brothers. In answer to what you say concerning your intelligence from the Shawanese, I must remind you, that at our last meeting, I told you what I had heard relative to the action at the Great Kanhawa, the particulars of which were not then so well known, and you thereupon determined to send Messengers, who were accordingly dispatched to the Southward, directing the Shawanese to make peace; since which it appears from the accounts I have received from my Deputy, that the Shawanese have made peace with the Virginians, have delivered up all prisoners, negroes and horses in their possession, with hostages for the performance of it; and it is in the prints, that the Shawanese have ceded a Tract of Land to the Virginians; on this subject I wrote to the Earl of Dunmore who is Governor of that Province, but as I have not yet received his answer, I, consequently cannot give you particular information respecting the situation or extent of the cession if any such has been made; the particulars you have mentioned respecting what passed at and after the Action may possibly be in some measure true tho' not altogether; as to the Lands ceded, if they lay within the limits of your cession to the King in 1768, you have no reason to complain, for it will be considered as only a relinquishment of the pretended claim of late set up by the Shawanese to lands there; if they are of lands beyond the Ohio, you may be assured, that on proper representation to His Majesty you will have Justice. With regard therefore to the Lands, I recommend to you to be moderate and wait patiently until I have an opportunity of more particular information respecting the same, when, if it appears that any thing has been done contrary to the Cession in 1768 you may be assured of my exerting myself in the best manner for procuring you Justice by proceeding in the only proper channel for obtaining redress.

Brothers. As to any threats you may have heard made use of by the Virginians against you, I advise you to pay little regard to them, & consider the character and views of the people who brought you such intelligence; they, tho' a small people and your Dependants have long endeavoured to lessen your reputation, and it is their design to bring you over to their purposes by various artifices. Be assured that whatever common people might indiscreetly say, the Gov<sup>r</sup> or any persons in high station, must think differently and would never make use of threats against a people, that far from associating with the Shawanese have taken great pains to restore peace; as persons in authority must know, that the few stragglers of your Confederacy, who are dispersed to the Southward are too remote and negligent to attend to your Councils, and that you can hardly be accountable for their errors, or much interested in their punishment, neither can I find that any of them are in confinement. But with respect to the invitation of the Shawanese, I look upon it, as of a dangerous tendency, and calculated to make you appear as parties in their quarrels, and therefore agree with your Chiefs to reject their invitation.

Returned the Shawanese strings.

Brothers. The application of the Shawanese to you to attend a meeting with them next spring on Ohio, appears to me to be one of the strongest proofs of their artifice; if any of your people are disliked or threatened by the Virginians, you probably owe it to their misrepresentations. You have often been told by Sir William Johnson that your Emigrants and stragglers on the Ohio have also often brought your name in question; with this view, you were desired to call them from thence. I know, this is a difficult task, as they are married and intermixed with others, but I hope you may still effect it. Your Dependants, the Shawanese, have twice declined to come to you on a summons to the great Council fire, yet now, ask you to a meeting on Ohio; this seems to me as done with a view to make you partners in their guilt, and to lay part of their faults on your head, and that you may be on some future occasion the easier suspected, and thereby drawn in to join in their quarrels. I advise you to avoid this snare which is laid for you, to reject their desire as you had no part in their quarrels and rather to call them to your proper Council fire to answer for all their neglects and misconduct; this you will find to be wholesome advice, and if you follow it, you will act wisely and encourage me to represent the protection of your land and of the great Treaty of Cession in the strongest manner to his Majesty, who, you will always find, warmly disposed to protect and promote your interests, as a Tender Father would those of his children. Provided, by attending to his advice, and those to whom he has given authority for your affairs, you appear to deserve his favour and protection. I therefore give you this Belt, in assurance of my attention to all your concerns and interests.

A Belt of seven Rows.

Brothers the Chiefs of Oneidas.

I hear with much concern your complaints against the Clergyman at one of your villages; you have, 'tis true, more than once applied on this subject, and I am very sorry to find them now much aggravated, as I am always inclined to judge favourably of the Clergy and willing to hope, that they have only for their object the promoting Religion and virtue. I could wish for the credit of Religion and the character of that Gentleman, that your charges were not well founded; I hope that you have considered all this, and as the nature of this charge, if true, renders his conduct very culpable, I shall be glad to have the most circumstantial account of such particulars, before I can determine on any thing, and in the interim, if you are convinced, that you have fairly stated the matter you may signify your disgust in such a manner as becomes moderate Men towards a Minister, whose person should always be treated with respect on account of his sacred profession. His recommending it to you to Burn a letter sent to me on public affairs, appears very extraordinary indeed, for whatever were the contents, it was unjustifiable to stop it and I hope you yourselves will be more carefull in this particular in future and not give encouragement to people who have no authority to intermeddle in public affairs.

Brothers of the Six Nations.

You have greatly surprised me with the news of the stopping a letter sent, from a public Messenger who was on his Majesty's service, and being an intelligent Indian, was ordered by me to write from time to time, and furnished with paper and other implements for that purpose. I shall inquire further into this matter, as it may, if passed over be attended with very dangerous consequences to the public on some future occasion. I am heartily sorry for the person who is accused as the adviser of it, but as I am not inclined to credit idle reports, you may be assured, that I shall not entertain any doubts of your sincerity, my disposition will naturally incline me to point out to yourselves any errors I discover whilst I trust your prudence and good conduct will seldom render it necessary.—

A Belt of 8 Rows.

Brothers. With concern I have heard that many of you, excited by reports from idle people have busied yourselves with the little differences between England and some people in America, a dispute which I sufficiently explained to you at our last meeting and with full authority, I have further to tell you that this dispute was solely occasioned by some people, who notwithstanding a law of the King and his wise Men, would not let some Tea land, but destroyed it, on which he was angry, and sent some Troops with the General, whom you have long known, to see the Laws executed and bring the people to their senses; and as he is proceeding with great wisdom, to shew them their mistake, I expect it will soon be over. This matter, I hope you are all convinced you have nothing to do with any more, than you have with those foolish people who talk to you about, what they dont themselves understand. I charge you therefore to shut your ears against such reports, and I have full authority to assure you, that His Majesty, the great and amiable King of England, is and will be your only true Father, Protector and Friend, that the General of the army, whose long residence in America has enabled him to know your character and whose benevolence inclines him to favour you, will manifest himself your true friend and that as neither himself or the troops under his command have done or intend to offer you any injury you have nothing to fear but a great deal to hope from his friendship & their protection, and I trust and expect you will continue to distinguish between those who are your true friends, and those who are not, & recommend yourselves to his Majesty's fatherly attention as well by your loyalty, as by your pacific conduct, in the hopes of which I give you this Belt.

A Belt of 6. Rows.—

Then adjourned.

At a Meeting of the Six Nation Chiefs etc. at Guy Park. Tuesday January 24.

PRESENT — as before.

The Speaker after asking whether they were all present and being answered in the affirmative acquainted the Superintendent, that they had met to reply to his speech. On which Teyerhansera Chief of all the Mohawks being appointed for that purpose arose on behalf of the rest and spoke as follows :

Brother Gorah Uraghquadirha.

Having yesterday to our satisfaction heard from you such particulars as you received concerning the affairs of the Virginians and the Shawanese and other very interesting matters, we now return you our hearty thanks for your free communication thereof, and for your good advice to us.—As to the invitation of the Shawanese to meet them next spring to be present at their transactions with the Virginians, we are sensible of its impropriety, it never having been the case of any of the Dependants of the Six Nations on such occasions to change the Fire place or appoint them to meet any where else, but at the Council place at Onondaga, or the residence of the Superintendent of their Affairs; we are therefore determined to refuse their invitation and call them to one of our fire places early in the spring, and have pitched upon two principal Shawanese Chiefs, Soherise and Onererarbe to bring with them what assistance they think necessary of their Chiefs etc of that Nation and if it is necessary, we desire you will write to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Virginia to send some of his principal Men to be present at what is transacted (if they have any business with us) in order to be convinced of the Six Nations Neutrality in their disputes.—They then mentioned three Messengers who were to carry the Message to the Southward to be delivered to the Delawares who were to forward it to the Nations on the Ohio.

Shewed the Belt of invitation.

Brother. You acquainted us yesterday with the particulars of what occasioned the King to send an armament to Boston, and told us it was a matter not in the least concerning us, which we were sensible of when we heard your reasons, and therefore shall not readily give ear to the reports spread relative to that affair by those who have no authority to treat with us on public business, and request of you to do the same and listen to nothing upon Indian matters, but what comes from us by authority; but as some of our people may be exposed to hear such idle stories, we wish you would endeavour to prevent them. We are very thankful for the good will and attention the great King our Father has shewn us and for the general's regard and we hope may continue to merit the King's favour and the General's friendship —

Exchanged a Belt.

Brother. Your answer upon what the Oneidas mentioned to you concerning the behaviour<sup>1</sup> was quite pleasing to us, and it will behove that nation to make a strict enquiry into those matters, it being of great consequence to our mutual welfare, to come to the bottom of such out of the way practices, and we advised the Oneidas to tell the plain truth, and use their utmost endeavours to detect such matters.

They then asked for the necessary articles the Messengers would require on their journey, and desired Col: Johnson's advice and directions respecting their intended Message and the manner in which it should be transmitted which he promised to take into consideration.

Then adjourned.

Wednesday January 25.

Col: Johnson being much indisposed with a fit of the gout and gravel occasioned by a cold he had caught the day before, the Indians did not assemble.

Thursday January 26.

The Indians had a private meeting respecting the Message, and in the evening Col: Johnson had a private meeting with some of the Chiefs in his bed chamber.

Friday January 27.

The Chiefs assembled in the morning in Col: Johnsons Room.

PRESENT — as before.

Col: Johnson then gave them his opinion fully respecting their conduct towards the Shawanese and after shewing them how negligent the latter had been of their past advice and invitations, & that the Shawanese had now undoubtedly misrepresented the affair with the Virginians and appeared to have some artful design in calling them to Ohio, recommended it to them to fix on a short Message that could not be mistaken, to send it after the former Messages, and if they could be overtaken, to acquaint them that the present state of affairs required the original Message to be altered.

The Indians thanked Col: Johnson for his advice and begged that he would frame the substance of a Message for that purpose, which they would take into consideration, which was accordingly drawn up in the words following and being transacted into the Indian language and delivered to one of them who could read, they withdrew to consider on it.

Message to the Shawanese.

Younger Brothers. We had just sent off our Messengers to you for the last time with good peaceable advice, when we received a strange Message from you, telling us of your Action with the Virginia people, that you had made peace, and that they threatened to invade us and requesting that we should go to a meeting with you in the spring at Fort Pitt to settle matters.

<sup>1</sup> of the clergyman — or some such words, seem wanting to make up the sense of this sentence. — Ed.

Younger Brothers. This greatly surprises us and we cannot pay regard to it. Sure, you know that our proper Council fires are at Onondaga and at our Superintendent's, and that you lately neglected to come to us, when we called you to our great Fire place; besides, you know, we have had no concern in your quarrel, we were all along for peace, and therefore we have nothing to do with the Virginians, whom we did not attack—we therefore cannot go.—But as we have heard many things concerning you, we desire that you will be in readiness to come to our proper Council Fire, when we next send to you.

The Oneidas then came in and being seated, Conoghquieson the Chief, acquainted Col: Johnson that they came to lay before him the particulars relative to their charge against the Clergyman on which he spoke as follows:

Brother. I shall lay the whole before you in a few words; one of our first disputes with the Minister of which we formerly complained to you, was, for refusing to Baptize some of our children, whom we carried to him for that purpose, and earnestly requested it, but he refused us, altho' one of the children was at the point of death, and died soon after, saying that unless the parents were Christians, he would not Baptize the Children, when we told him we could take our Children to the German Calvinist Minister, or any other at the German Flats, who had offered to Baptize them, he answered, that we might as well throw them into the fire; for that the French, the English and Dutch, were all wrong, but that he was in the right way, and stood under the protection of the Arm of the Almighty.—On our reckoning up, we find, that thirty children died, to whom he refused Baptizm. These and many other things he formerly related, have greatly disgusted us at him; but of late he grows much worse, for he engages in civil matters; he told us some time ago, that the New England people had taken a survey of all the Indian Country, and the Numbers of each Nation; and on being asked the reason, said: it was with a view to take possession of several fine flats.—On his last return from Boston in October he told us, that he had very bad news for us, that the King wanted to be paid for all the money he had laid out on America, and had sent Tea over, which occasioned a quarrel, whereupon the King had stopped all goods and would not permit any more to be brought to America, and that they would shortly be obliged to pay perhaps three or four Dollars for a jill of Powder.

The Indians of Canowaroghere then held a meeting, on which, the New England Trader, who lives there, came from the Minister's house and said he was sorry to tell them that, that was the last time he believed he should have any goods for them as the King had stopped all goods from coming over and although he would try, if they desired it, he despaired of succeeding in getting any more.

Brother. These and many other matters are still better known at the Village he lives at, as well, as his carrying stories to and from Boston that gives great uneasiness, and on these things our Chiefs had several conferences and resolved to come down and lay it before you some time ago. It is with great satisfaction therefore that we hear from you, that these bad stories are without foundation.

Col: Johnson answered them, that he was very sorry to hear that any Minister of the Gospel should have acted so base a part as they represented; that he would consider of measures for preventing the like in future, and charged them to remember his advice and not to hearken to any persons who misrepresented Government or entered upon Matters foreign to their profession in which they had no concern.

Sunday January 25th

The Chiefs Assembled.

PRESENT — as before.

The Onondaga speaker addressed Col: Johnson and after repeating the Message to the Shawanese, declared their entire approbation of the same and their resolution to have it faithfully delivered, then gave an exhortation to those who were to carry it recommending it to them, not to hearken to any ill advisers they might meet on the road, but to mind alone the business they were sent on. — Col: Johnson then gave the whole particular advice respecting their conduct, charging them to avoid giving credit to the several Reports which were propagated by designing persons, whether Whites or Indians, that his Maj<sup>ty</sup> having first formed the Depart<sup>mt</sup> for preventing abuses, had directed that all transactions with them, should pass thro' one general Channel whereby, their grievances and all their affairs would be soonest known, and attended to by Government, from whom they should conceal nothing, and in so doing, every thing necessary for their information should be communicated to them, and that their adherence to this advice would secure them the continuance of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s favour and protection.

The Indians in return expressed their thanks for this advice, which perfectly corresponded with their resolutions — and then after some cloathing and presents etc were given to the Chiefs they took their leave. —

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXI. ]

Inclosed I send you, by the King's command a joint address by both Houses of Parliament to His Majesty upon a Consideration of the papers which had been communicated to them relative to the state of the American Colonies, together with His Majesty's most gracious answer to the said address.

I likewise send you a printed copy of a Bill brought into the house of Commons for restraining the Trade and Fisheries of the four New England Governments for a limited time, together with the copy of a resolution declaratory of the sense of Parliament upon the subject of taxation, which resolution was moved in the Committee on Monday last, and carried by a Majority of 274 to 88.

As these two measures are as yet in the first stages only of consideration, and as the Bill may possibly admit, in its farther progress, of some alteration, I shall only say upon them, that I flatter myself, that the firm determination of Parliament to preserve the Colonies in a due dependance upon this Kingdom, tempered with the Justice and moderation expressed in the last resolution of the Committee, will have the effect to produce such a conduct on the part of the Colonies as shall lead to a restoration of the public tranquillity.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII., No. 12.]

New York 1st Mar 1775

My Lord

I informed your Lordship in my last letter of the 1st of February that the Assembly of this Province had resolved to petition the King &c. The Committee of the House appointed to state the greivances of the Colony, did not report till the latter end of last week. The Report was recommitted to a Committee of the whole House and is to be taken into consideration this day. They have not got their Petition ready to transmit by this Packet. I was informed that the Boston and Quebec Bills were at first rejected in the Committee, as not being any part of the Greivances of this Colony, it seems, however, my Lord, that they were at last brought into the Report, and I am afraid may not now be got rid of in the House. The Assembly have been very firm in rejecting several attempts to draw them into an approbation of the Proceedings of the Continental Congress. The numbers on the negative side have been nearly two to one. Last week a Motion was made to take the sense of the House on the necessity of appointing Delegates to join the continental Congress in May next, which passed in the negative seventeen to nine

It is surprizing, my Lord, that notwithstanding the firmness with which the assembly have discountenanced the Measures of the late Congress, and the approbation this part of their conduct has received from a large Majority of their constituents, the non importation association of the Congress is ever rigidly maintained in this Place. The enemies of Government do all they can to propagate an opinion that the Ministry will yet draw back and quiet the Colonies by a Repeal, they constantly hold up the case of the stamp Act, and find this an Argument which influences many friends of the Government to lye by; dreading the consequences of making themselves conspicuous in the Cause should Government again yield. I doubt not they will before long be convinced of the Folly of such expectations. But at present I really think, my Lord, such an opinion has a good deal influenced the measures that have been pursued here, so contrary to the Spirit of our Assembly Votes. Two vessels have arrived here since the first of February one of them from Glasgow has been obliged to depart with her Cargo to Jamaica. Neither the Master of the Ship nor the merchant to whom the Cargo was consigned, would demand any assistance, or shewed any inclination to have the goods landed. It was not therefore possible for Government to interfere with any propriety. The second ship is from London; she still lies a few miles below the Harbour, and it is said is to carry her Cargo to Halifax. Neither the master nor owners of this ship or Cargo, have made any application to Government. The success, my Lord, which the violent Party have had in preventing these vessels from Landing their Cargoes here, has given them great spirits, and is a strong counterpoise to the conduct of the Assembly—Your Ldp. will beleive it has chagrined me a good deal

Since it was known that our Assembly would not appoint Delegates for the May Congress the mischeivous folks have been very busy at work endeavoring to bring about a Provincial Congress in this Colony; in order by that means to get provincial delegates appointed. They may no doubt get some people to meet, and these may take upon them to act for the whole Province, tho not the twentieth part. I find my Lord many people are apprehensive this business may embroil the Colony in troubles, that have been hitherto kept at a distance

We have had, My Lord, only one hundred men of the Royal Irish Regiment<sup>1</sup> in this City for several months past, and the Kings Fisher Sloop of War in the harbour. The moderate Inhabitants have constantly expressed a wish that we had a more formidable Power in the Place to awe the licentious & encourage the freinds of Government. convinced that it would be for His Matys Service, I wrote to Admiral Graves on the 20th Ult<sup>o</sup> and suggested to him the utility of sending one of the large Ships from Boston to this Place. I mentioned of what consequence it would be to keep the command of Hudsons River which must be passed by the Southern People before they can join the Eastern. The Idea of their really fighting the Kings Troops, is so full of Madness and folly, that one can hardly think seriously of it—yet my Lord a neglect of proper precautions may encourage wild enthusiasts to attempt what they would not otherwise venture upon.

Except the measures that are pursued in support of the non importation association, the people of this Province are in other respects very quiet and shew no inclination to copy the extravagant Plans of their neighbours

I send your Lordship a Pamphlett lately published in this Place. We have had several good political peices published here this winter this is esteemed one of the best, it is wrote by M<sup>r</sup> Galloway of Philadelphia<sup>2</sup>

I am My Lord with great submission

[New-York Entries, LXIX., p. 85.]

To the Governor of New York

Sir

We have had under Our consideration the Laws of New York passed in February and March 1774 and altho we do not see sufficient reason to recommend the disallowance any of them yet some of them appear liable to objections which it is Our duty to point out to you.

The Acts for empowering the Magistrates of Albany and New York to raise money for the purposes therein mentioned subjects those Magistrates to punishments and penalties of which there is no example or precedent in any case of the like nature provided for by similar Laws in this kingdom and such severity is not only in its nature improper as tending to lessen the dignity of and throw an odium upon the first Magistrates of those Cities but is also unnecessary because by the common law they would be responsible for any neglect that should have the effect essentially to defeat the purpose of the Acts.

The Act to prevent the abatement of Suits is in many respects very objectionable indeed the whole tenor and purport of the Bill is liable to much doubt but the principal objections lie to those Clauses by which an Action may proceed without making all the persons interested parties in the Cause. and allowing only eighty days for the appearance of the Representatives of deceased parties which term however reasonable it may be in respect to persons residing in the Colonies must be accompanied with a manifest injustice to such as may happen to be avoided either in England Ireland or the East Indies.

The Act for the relief of Insolvent Debtors with respect to the imprisonment of their persons by confining the benefit to a few individuals appears to us to be improper it is contrary to the usage and practice in this Kingdom and has an aspect of partiality that ought ever to be avoided in such Cases.

Unless there may have been some peculiar reasons which do not appear for adopting this Mode. We cannot but think it is a precedent that ought not to be followed in any future provision for such a purpose but that the benefit of Insolvency whenever it may be fit to be granted should be made general.

You will have seen in the King's answer to the joint address of both houses of Parliament on the 7th of February, which address & answer have already been transmitted to you, how much attention His Maj<sup>ty</sup> was graciously pleased to give to the assurance held out in that address, of the readiness of Parliament to afford every just and reasonable indulgence to the

<sup>1</sup> CHARLES FRANCIS GREVILLE, second son of Francis, 1st Earl of Brooke and Warwick, was born 12 May, 1749, and died, unmarried, 23d April, 1809. He was a member of the Board of Trade from January 25, 1774, to September 6, 1780. Beaton's Political Annals, III., 61. — Ed.

Colonies, whenever they should make a proper application on the ground of any real grievance they might have to complain of, and therefore I have the less occasion now to enlarge upon the satisfaction it hath given His Maj<sup>y</sup> to see that address followed by the inclosed resolution of the house of Commons, which, whatever may be the effect of it, (I trust a happy one) will forever remain in evidence of their Justice and moderation & manifest the temper which has accompanied their deliberations upon that question, which has been the source of so much disquiet to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s subjects in America, and the pretence for Acts of such criminal disorder & disobedience.

His Maj<sup>y</sup> ardently wishing to see a reconciliation of the unhappy differences which have produced those disorders, by every means through which it may be obtained, without prejudice to the just authority of Parliament, which His Majesty will never suffer to be violated, approves the resolutions of his faithful Commons, and commands me to transmit it to you, not doubting that this happy disposition to comply with every just and reasonable wish of the King's subjects in America, will meet with such a return of duty and affection on their part, as will lead to a happy issue of the present disputes, and to a re-establishment of the public tranquility on those grounds of equity justice and moderation, which this resolution holds forth.

The King has the greater satisfaction in this resolution, and the greater confidence in the good effects of it, from having seen, that, amidst all the intemperance into which a people jealous to their liberties have been unfortunately misled, they have nevertheless avowed the Justice, the equity, and the propriety of subjects of the same State, contributing, according to their abilities and situation, to the public burthens; and I think, I am warranted in saying, that this resolution, holds no proposition beyond that.

I am unwilling to suppose, that any of the King's subjects in the Colonies, can have so far forgot the benefit they have received from the Parent State, as not to acknowledge that it is to her support, held forth at the expense of her Blood and Treasure, that they principally owe that security which hath raised them to their present state of opulence and importance; in this situation, therefore, Justice requires that they should in return contribute, according to their respective abilities, to the common defence, and their own welfare and interest demand that their Civil Establishment should be supported with a becoming dignity.

It has been the care, and I am persuaded it is the firm determination of Parliament, to see that both these ends are answered; and their wisdom and moderation have suggested the propriety of leaving to each Colony to judge of the ways and means of making due provision for these purposes, reserving to themselves a discretionary power of approving or disapproving what shall be offered.

The resolution neither points out what the Civil Establishment should be, nor demands any specific sum in aid of the public burthens. In both these respects it leaves full scope for that Justice and liberality which may be expected from Colonies, that, under all their prejudices, have never been wanting in expressions of an affectionate attachment to the Mother Country, and a zealous regard for the general welfare of the British Empire, and therefore the King trusts that the provision they will engage to make for the support of Civil Government will be adequate to the Rank and Station of every necessary Officer, and that the sum be given in contribution to the common defence will be offered on such terms, and proposed in such a way, as to increase or diminish according as the public Burthens of this Kingdom are from time to time augmented or reduced, in so far as those Burthens consist of Taxes and duties which are not a security for the National debt. By such a mode of contribution the Colonies will have full security that they can never be required to tax themselves, without Parliament's Taxing the subjects of this Kingdom, in a far greater proportion, and there can be no doubt, that any proposition of this nature made by any of the Colonies, and accompanied with such a state of their faculties and abilities as may evince the equity of the proposal, will be received with every possible indulgence, provided it be at the same time unaccompanied with any declarations, and unmixed with any claims, which will make it impossible for the King, consistent with his own dignity, or for Parliament, consistent with their Constitutional rights, to receive it. But, I will not suppose that any of the Colonies will, after this example of the Temper and moderation of Parliament, adopt such a conduct; on the contrary, I will cherish the pleasing hope that the public peace will be restored, and that the Colonies, forgetting all other trivial and groundless complaints, which ill humour hath produced, will enter into the consideration of the resolution of the house of commons with that calmness and deliberation which the importance of it demands, and with that good will and inclination to a reconciliation, which are due to the candor and Justice with which Parliament has taken up this business, and at once declared to the Colonies what will be ultimately expected from them. I have already said that the King entirely approves the resolution of the house of Commons, and His Majesty commands me to say that a compliance therewith by the General Assembly of ..... will be most graciously considered, by His Majesty, not only To New York add:—Assembly of New York, which has already shewn so good a disposition towards a reconciliation with the Mother Country as a Testimony of their reverence for Parliament but also as a mark of their duty and attachment to their Sovereign, who has no object nearer to his heart than the peace and prosperity of His Subjects in every part of His Dominions. At the same time His Majesty considers himself as bound by every Tie to exert those means the Constitution has placed in his hands for preserving that Constitution entire, and to resist with firmness every attempt to violate the rights of Parliament, to distress and obstruct the lawful commerce of his subjects; and to encourage in the Colonies ideas of Independence inconsistent with their connection with this Kingdom.

Guy Park. 16. March 1775.

My Lord,

The 6th ult<sup>o</sup>, I had the honor to write to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, and enclosed some proceedings with the Indians about a Message they had received from the Southward, since which several Deputations of Chiefs have been with me on the matters contained in the minutes I now have the honor to transmit. The first part concerns some farther advices brought by the Onejdas Onoghquageys of another Message from the Shawanese, the request of the former ab<sup>t</sup> the boundary line, and matters regarding their Missionaries, one of whom had been accused by the Oneidas of spreading alarming reports of the American Disputes as mentioned in my letter of last month. This last party of Oneidas are his friends and speak in his favour, but are at least as partial as his Enemies, for according to the Clergyman's acc<sup>t</sup> whom I have since seen, they made a very false report of the transactions of the rest a this place. He acknowledges that he has occasionally explained the prints to them, & agreeable to his judgement observed that the Dispute arose, from the Crown's endeavouring to obtain a large reimbursement, for the expenses of the late War, which the Colonies could not comply with and therefore an Army was sent to compell them; I remarked that this was a gross misrepresentation of a matter, with which the Indians, should have had nothing to do, and that some persons of credit had corroborated the charge brought by the Indian Chiefs, to which he replied with many protestations of his innocence, and I heartily wish they may be relied on, but at all events I have taken care to prevent the evil operation of such reports amongst the Indians in future.

The next part of the inclosures contain Transactions with the Chief of the Lower Senecas (a Man of great fidelity) and with a party of Cayugas, and the last is the substance of my proceedings with those Six Nation Indians who inhabit about the Susquehanna, and who are much alarmed on finding that the boundary line lately run from Owegy on the before mentioned river to Delaware includes four of their Villages contrary to the intention of the Fort Stanwix Treaty in 1768.—This error was occasioned thro' the want of a proper survey of the course of the Susquehanna, at that time, all the Maps then to be found having given it a much more Northerly direction than it appears to have (above Owegy) according to the late survey which leaves their Villages within the limits of the Colonies & thereby causes much discontent, not only amongst those immediately affected, but the rest, who have applied to me for redress, as previous to their executing the Deed of Cession they in a public speech stipulated: "That the Lands of the Mohawks, as also the residences of any others of the "Confederacy, affected by the Cession should be considered as their sole property" And therefore it may appear necessary to give them some security for the lands they occupy about the Villages so circumstanced, otherwise at a time when so much jealousy subsists on account of lands and encroachments, this would be aggravated into a high grievance by the Confederacy (who are bound to provide their people with lands) and probably incline them to engage in some of these evil Councils or Associations, which it has been my constant endeavours to prevent. I therefore hope to be enabled to signify to them His Majesty's commands thereon, and if I can also receive orders respecting some land (and other) matters mentioned in former letters, previous to the General Congress, that must shortly take place, it will prove of great advantage to the service, for I find that reports of encroachments etc, have spread amongst the Nations to the Westward, and, I likewise discover, that measures are now in agitation to draw the Six Nations into the schemes of the disaffected by persuading them, that they are in danger and that their applications will be disregarded; so that any marks of attention at this time will strengthen their confidence in His Majesty which I continually labour to promote, than which nothing can be more necessary, when not only many amongst themselves, but also a great number of the White people are endeavouring to alienate their affections and even spirit them up to the worst purposes. This I have hitherto been fortunate enough to prevent, and under the sanction of Govern<sup>r</sup> I trust, I shall neither prove wanting in zeal or influence to render their schemes abortive.

I have the honour to be with true respect,

My Lord.

humble servant

Proceedings of Colonel Guy Johnson with the Oneidas and Oughquageys.

[ Plantations General ( S. P. O. ) CCLXI. ]

Extracts from the proceedings with the Chiefs etc of Oneida and Oughquaga, before Col: Guy Johnson Superintendent.

Friday February 10th 1775.

Twenty one Oneidas and Oughquagas arrived here and after shaking hands condoled with three strings, and then with two gave an account of the death of their Chief Chiketah, which they desired might be told to the Mohawks, who, they wanted to be present, having news of importance to communicate to them.

Saturday 11th of February

The Oneidas and Oughquagas assembled.

PRESENT— The Superintendent with the officers of the Departm<sup>t</sup>

Col: Johnson first returned the ceremony of condolence with three strings, and then the like for the death of Chiketah, one of their Chiefs. Then Thomas arose and spoke as follows.

Brother. Here is the Belt which was sent thro' the Nations with the account of the death of our late worthy Superintendent Sir Wiliam Johnson; when it came to the Hurons, they expressed their great concern on the occasion, and joined in recommending it to the Six Nations to withdraw their people from the Shawanese. When the Belt came to the Shawanese, they doubled it, and desired that the Six Nations should listen to them, and come to a meeting, proposed to be held at Fort Pitt, at which they requested you to be present.—

A Belt of 8 Rows.

Brother. Here is a string from Canawagore where Kayashota and Adonquat now are, the former of whom, when at Fort Pitt, saw some of his people in confinement, but could not procure their releasment; they therefore beg, that you and the Six Nations will come to the meeting proposed by the Shawanese, and thereby procure a discharge for their people.—

3. Strings.—

He then gave an account of Kayashota's application to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Virginia to have seven Senecas released, that at length two of them were released, and the irons taken off the rest, but that they were still detained in confinement; that some of them, tho' they had for many years lived very distant from the Six Nations, were nearly connected with several principal Chiefs, who requested Col: Johnson's interposition with Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage and the Gov<sup>r</sup>, that they might be discharged in consideration of the fidelity manifested by the Six Nations

Then Peter with a Belt expressed the concern which Sir William Johnson's death had given them, for which, they had heard the rest of their people had long since condoled, and had congratulated Col: Johnson on succeeding him, that they now again repeated their satisfaction at the latter, hoping that Col: Johnson would always continue to follow his steps, and give them good advice.—

A Belt of Six Rows.

Then after repeating Sir William's having established a large Fire on the Mohawk River for the purposes of peace, and to bring all Nations into a right way of thinking, he expressed their satisfaction that it continued, and hoped that it would still be a place of peace and shelter, and to which all people should resort, give an account of their conduct, and receive good advice.

A Belt of ten Rows.

Then repeated Sir William Johnson's past care of them, and his sending Soldiers to protect their Families in the late war, his recommending it to them to cast their eyes one way, and use one road of peace, which they faithfully observed, and refused all advice, and invitations from the Enemy, assuring Col: Johnson they still continued in the same sentiments.

A Belt half Black and White, nine Rows.

Then produced a Belt, and observed, it had been given to them formerly by Sir William Johnson, as a proof of his regard, advising them by the King's authority to look only to him, and not meddle with, or attend to provincial affairs, and that, whenever any thing happened among them, or any bad news arrived, they should look to him for advice, and direction, and that his ear would be open to them.

A Black Belt with nine Rows, with the letters W: I. and 1756. in white on it. Adding, that they had strictly followed these advices, and always kept them in remembrance, and that they were determined to continue firm in their resolution, and to promote peace, and every thing required of them;—that, no doubt Col: Johnson must have great trouble in conducting the affairs of so troublesome a Departm<sup>t</sup>, but they hoped the great spirit above, would enable him to do it wisely, and would give him strength to support it.—

A Belt of 7. Rows.

Next with three strings observed they were very happy in pursuing their present resolutions and following his good advice,—that as so many disputes had arisen about lands, it had given them great pleasure to find the line between them and the White people established at Fort Stanwix, and that the King had strengthened the boundary, and set his foot on it to secure it, so that no person should in future attempt to encroach on any part of it, on any account. This the Indians had desired, not meaning that it should be only a temporary boundary,—that they were now greatly alarmed at the endeavours of people to cross it lately, and requested that they might be immediately prevented; adding, that the Surveyors had lately run a line thro' their Country, which came up to the Tuscarora village, and was in no wise agreeable to their intentions in 1768, and that they requested the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Pennsylvania and New York, might be acquainted with it, that they might desist.

3. strings.

Then Adam of Onoghquagey arose & said that they had now some matters of a private nature to mention.—That many years ago, M<sup>r</sup> Schuyler the Presbyterian Minister at Scohare applied to them for some lands at their village for Baptizing their Children, and other Religious services, which he had long neglected, and therefore they had resolved on taking the lands back; that some of their people were for, and others against it, but that his sons came there, and were very urgent to get the land, and many others were continually teasing them for settlements; all which they begged might be prevented.

He then proceeded to give an account of their Disputes about the New Englan Minister at Oughquagey, and the divisions occasioned in their village, some taking part with him, and others threatening to drive him away, as he was not a member of the Church of England, and as he refused to Baptize the children of those who had led immoral lives, or did not approve of his worship; and expressed their wishes that these differences might be accommodated. Then delivered a letter from M<sup>r</sup> Aaron Crosby<sup>1</sup> the dissenting Minister, to Col: Johnson, which was in the words following:

Ononhohquage 25, Jan<sup>r</sup> 1775.

Honoured Sir,

The differences subsisting here, and the desire of a considerable number of the Inhabitants together with some things reported among them induce me to write to you, not to refer the matter to your decision, for that would be inconsistent with the nature of that part of administration committed to me, as well, as an unlawful Imposition upon you. For the Supreme head of the Church, requires that every one should act conscientiously in matters of such importance, agreeable to which there has been an Act passed by the King and Parliament proclaiming liberty of conscience to all the worshippers of the true God.

As to the manner of Worship; here I am, though unworthy to be called a servant of Christ laboring in his Vineyard, acting according to the dictates of my conscience, aiming at the glory of God and the good of souls. Against the Church of England, have I spoken nothing, neither against the Church at Scohare.—The things reported concerning me, are through mistake or malice, I would hope the former; though some are of a different opinion with respect to the administration of ordinances, also with respect to the qualifications of persons to be admitted to ordinances, yet I would put on that charity which hopeth all things, and believeth all things, and so hope, that all act conscientiously in their Administration, therefore I can't condemn others, altho' my conscience obliges me to act in some instances, different from them. I require those who are guilty of great sins, which are known to all, to make public confession, thereby to satisfy those whom they have offended and aggrieved, then exhort them to take care for the future, that they don't again fall into these sins, of which they have repented, and give them such instructions as appear necessary, as they are liable to bear them. Yet there may be some among them here who insist upon it that I shall Baptize Children, without conversing with the parents respecting their knowledge in these important matters; in short, they would have me Baptize those that come for Baptism, be their life, and conduct what it will.—And old Isaac lately told, that a certain Man living near the Mohawk River, who has great influence among the Indians told him to drive away their Minister, if he would not Baptize Capt<sup>r</sup> Jacob's child in that manner in which he desires; but I don't credit the report, for I can't believe that Gentlemen of such superior wisdom as those Gentlemen are said to be endowed with, could be guilty of acting such a part so unbecoming their character. The old Man Isaac and Capt<sup>r</sup> Jacob have publicly ordered me to leave the place, but the rest of the Headmen, and all the Tuscaroras with united voice, desire me to continue with them, which request I am in duty bound to comply with; for there are 290 souls of those who desire my assistance. I understand that Isaac expects to leave it to your honor to determine the affair, but the others understand so much of the nature of the affair, that they would not willingly impose upon your honor in such a manner as to ask him to decide matters which they ought to do themselves, and which they have done already—Thus much from Your most obedient and humble servant.

AARON CROSBY.

P. S. I determine by leave of Providence to wait upon your honor in my journey to or from New England.

Your's as above

A: CROSBY.

* This letter being read, Thomas said, that he had heard the dissenting Minister at Canawaroghere was accused by the Indians of interfering in worldly matters and of many other things; that as to his burning a letter, he could not tell whether it was done by the Minister, or not, as he was abroad when it happened, but he believed the Minister never meant to concern himself in any thing, but Religion; that indeed they all found that the New England Trader there, was a bad Man, and they had accordingly ordered him away, and concluded with a request that Col: Johnson would rely on their sincerity and assurance of following his advice.—Then adjourned.

Monday February 13.

The Indians assembled to receive Col: Johnson's answer, which he delivered as follows:

Brothers. I have heard, and considered attentively the several subjects on which you spoke, and am now going to answer the same, desiring you will hearken to my words.

Brothers. What you tell me on your first Belt concerning the Shawanese, having doubled the Belt, and invited you to meet them the next spring to the Southward, is very extraordinary. I have lately given the Chiefs of your Confederacy my full sentiments respecting these people, and their motives for drawing them to a meeting, that they may appear interested in their quarrel, of all which the Chiefs appeared so sensible, that I looked upon it as a thing concluded upon, that they should disregard their invitation. The News I have from my

* Mr. BUTLER the Interpreter, considering himself as alluded to in this letter, said that he had not told the Indns to banish their Minister for refusing Baptism, but that he said, he looked upon it as very uncharitable, to refuse it to children for the faults of parents, and that he still thought so

Deputy, and others to the Southward does by no means justify their apprehensions respecting the persons in confinement, who are not kept, as I hear for any other purpose, than as Hostages, till their friends about the Scioto shall lay down their arms and join in the peace made by the Virginians with the Shawanese, and as these who are confined, are long alienated and estranged from you, I think you should not interest yourselves in their fate, but regard them as a people, who have been doing wrong, and who endeavour to draw down reflections on the Confederacy; if therefore they act contrary to their first resolutions they will find the ill consequences of it very soon, and therefore I expect they will persevere in what they agreed to, in which case I shall lay the matter before his Excell<sup>y</sup> the General, & Lord Dunmore, who will take the case of these persons into consideration and act agreeable to Justice.

Brothers. The strings which you have delivered that were forwarded from Canawagon have been occasioned by mistaken notions of the Chiefs, who are interested for those in confinement, whose cause you should not espouse, & therefore I can neither approve of their desire, or of your paying any regard to it, and I am fully persuaded, that the persons said to be in confinement, are by this time either released, or that they will be soon so, being only detained until they made the same concessions, as parties in the war, which the Shawanese have done, & with which you have nothing to do; for altho' you may pity their folly, you cannot interest yourselves in their fate, without appearing to favour a War you publicly disapproved; some of these complied with your desires, though often signified, and therefore their temporary confinement for crimes, in which the name of your Confederacy was brought in question, should not disturb you.

Then Col: Johnson returned them thanks for the concern they had expressed for the Death of Sir William Johnson and for their congratulations on his succeeding, and assured them of the continuance of his regard and attention to the duties of his Office.

Returned their Belt of 6. Rows.

Then told them that he was glad they received so much satisfaction from the Establishment of the King's Council fire, and that they should still find it a place of peace and shelter for those who acted discreetly.

Returned their Belt of 10. Rows.

Next he said, he was pleased to find, they remembered their many obligations to Sir William Johnson, and his good advice, and that as they had always profited by it, he expected they would still follow it.

Returned their Belt.

After which he told them, that he recollected the Belt, with the initials of Sir William's name, which was to keep them steadfast in obeying the King, and following the advice of those his Maj<sup>y</sup> appointed to take care of them, by which, whenever they were disturbed, they should be entitled to his powerful protection; that they had hitherto lived happily by keeping that in remembrance, and that so long as they did so, they might be assured Col: Johnsons Ear would be open to them in like manner, and his endeavours directed to their interest and advantage.

Returned the Belt.

Then told them, he was glad to hear them declare their strict observance of past advice; that he knew they had in general acted agreeable thereto, and that it was their interest to do so. That no doubt the office he held was very troublesome, but if they acted wisely and steadily in their engagements, endeavoured to promote peace, and hearken to wholesome advice, he did not doubt with the divine assistance he should acquit himself of its duties, as he should not have been recommended, neither would he have taken the office upon him, if he had been unacquainted with it.

Returned their Belt.

Then observed that they might be assured the Government had no intention to violate the Treaty at Fort Stanwix, or break thro' the Boundary line, that their apprehensions were therefore ill founded; that some of themselves had given rather too much encouragement to individuals to harbour in their neighbourhood, who once established, could not be easily removed, and therefore, they must blame themselves in such cases; that if any persons intruded it, or passed the line, they should warn them to retire, and they would certainly do so, or on notice, would be compelled to do it, and that thro' the want of an actual survey of the Susquehanna at the Fort Stanwix Treaty in 1768, the boundary line, though run strictly corresponding therewith, did on measurement appear to come very close to them; that however, he was persuaded the Governments concerned, would not take any immediate advantage of distressing them; that he would lay the matter before them according to desire, advising them to rest satisfied with their good intentions. Returned the strings.

He next answered the Oughqûgoes, observing that their old promises of land to individuals, gave no title to such persons to force themselves upon them, that they might tell M<sup>r</sup> Schuyler, or any one else claiming under the same, & who had neglected the conditions, that the settlement of the Boundary line precluded them from any title there, and that they could not be expected to make good any old conditional promises that defeated the purposes of it, and that in all these matters, they should endeavour to be unanimous, otherwise their application to Govern<sup>t</sup> would be defective.—As to their differences about the New England Missionary at Onoghquagey, he heard of them with concern.—That Sir William Johnson shortly before his death wrote to them about it, remarked, that they had hitherto lived happily under the direction of Old Isaac, a pious Chief who had read the service to them, and gave them many wise exhortations, which he thought might answer their purpose, till a fitting settlement could be made there.—That Sir William Johnson's advice was good and wholesome, and that Col: Johnson was sorry to find, that notwithstanding the residence of Missionarys at two of their villages, discord and quarrels appeared to have increased which had occasioned one of their people to be dangerously wounded; that the letter this Missionary had now wrote, set forth his disinclination to Baptise the children of those parents, whose lives were not agreeable to him, and gave an account of a large party, equal in number to the whole settlement who had entered into fixed resolutions in his favour, and particularly mentioned the Tuscaroras. That Col: Johnson could not take upon him to interfere about religious tenets, and presumed that the Tuscaroras, who were a people lately received from principles of humanity by the rest, would not dictate to them in matters of Religion, that they might determine for themselves, and if the Missionary was disagreeable to them, or, endeavoured to force the consciences of those educated in a different persuasion, he should certainly be prevented, adding, that the Christian Religion was a Religion of peace & moderation, that those persons were wrong, and bad Men, who endeavoured to pervert them, or lead away those who were educated in different sentiments from theirs; and that they should come to some terms of accommodation amongst themselves, in which case they would meet with the protection of Govern<sup>t</sup>; that although he was no Enemy to any religious people, he could not help remarking that the complaints against some of their Missionaries were too many and various to be destitute of some foundation, and that the charges against the Clergyman among the Oneidas, demanded a particular enquiry, and that he was glad to find they had discovered the faults of the Trader there, and would remove him—adding, that any persons who interfered in matters foreign to their duty, should be discountenanced and removed; and concluding with desiring them to remember his repeated advice, to pay no regard to those who were not authorized by the Crown to transact affairs with them, as it was to the Crown they owed their happiness and security, and all the favour they received, the continuance of which depended on their following the King's advice and those in authority under him. After which adjourned.

February the 14th

The Indians assembled again to answer Col: Johnson.

PRESENT— as before.

The Chief arose, and on behalf of the rest, returned Col: Johnson many thanks for his speech which gave them great satisfaction.

Then proceeded to observe, that they were so fully satisfied of the artifices of the Shawanese, and the little they had to do themselves in their affairs, that they would not only disregard their summons, but send three faithful Messengers to Kayashota and Adonquat to explain their sentiments and resolutions to them, to advise those who had their friends in confinement, to a reliance on the clemency of government, and not give themselves any trouble about the fate of these foolish people. That they would use all their influence to dispose the whole Confederacy to continue to look upon the Crown as their true protector, whence they expect redress in all matters, & in the interim to avoid hearkening to ill advisers.—The Oughquageys said, that their Minister was mistaken in saying they had determined on matters before they left home, for that they had really come to Col: Johnson for his advice and direction, and that what he had said was so convincing to them that they should return, and in order to restore peace in their Town, enter into a general resolution to abide by the Lithurgy printed in the Indian Language; that they had reason to believe the Missionary would conform to it in which case, they would let him stay, otherwise they would use the Lithurgy themselves till a proper person could be provided.

Then they retired to make choice of proper persons to send thro' the Confederacy, on which Col: Johnson charged them to choose only Men of character and fidelity.

Wednesday February the 15th

The Indians assembled and repeated to Colonel Johnson the Message they had agreed on as before mentioned, and acquainted him, that agreeable to his advice, the Mohawks would send Capt: Daniel, The Oneidas Thomas alias Adiaghquonoron, and that they would be directed to apply to the Bunt at Onondaga to send two persons of his own family with them.—Col: Johnson approved of their choice, and told them he would send a Belt with a particular message from himself to the Onondaga fire place, and that he expected it would be faithfully delivered; that its purport, would be to strengthen the late advice he had given to direct them to rely on the crown for redress, and on account of the people in confinement to be in readiness to attend his next summons.—Then gave particular advice and instruction to the Messengers who retired with the rest to prepare for their departure.

Thursday the 16th of February.

In the morning Col: Johnson delivered his Belt to the Messengers, after repeating its purport, and then after recommending it to them to be firm and steady in their conduct, he clothed the Messengers and several of the principal Men, and they all departed.

Proceedings of Colonel Guy Johnson with Cayuga and Susquehanna Indians.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXI.]

Proceedings of a Congress with the Chiefs and Warriors of the Cayugas and several Chiefs of the Six Nations Confederacy held at Guy Park Feb<sup>r</sup> 25th 1775.

PRESENT—Col: Guy Johnson Superintend<sup>t</sup> for Indian affairs
Col: Daniel Claus agent for Canada.
Several Officers of the Departm<sup>t</sup> & other Gentlemen.

The Cayuga Chief, began with the usual salutation of the Warriors, who being, as he observed, a plain people, would use but few words.—He then recounted briefly the proceedings and resolutions at the General Congress at Onondaga, and that in consequence thereof, the Chiefs of the Cayugas on their return to their Towns recommended it to their Warriors to live peaceably have nothing to do with the Axe but to support their engagements. The Chief women joined in promoting the same; to all which, the warriors paid strict regard. That at first, they were uneasy on account of the absence of seven of their people, least they might have been misled by the Shawanese, but they fortunately returned, without hearkning to bad advice, and the warriors after a meeting on the occasion, resolved that a deputation of their Chiefs should come down to acquaint the Superintendent with the news they had brought, and with their firm resolutions to abide by his advice, and have nothing to do with the Shawanese or their Councils.

Gave a Belt of Seven Rows.

then proceeded as follows:

Brother. The seven Cayugas who returned from the great plains, at their Departure received three strings from Decarohogas Brother and a young Mohawk, who have both lived there for several years, setting forth that the Six Nations have not appeared to be attentive for some years to the news that passed through that Country or to the Messages.—they therefore ordered these strings to be delivered to the Chiefs of the Senecas at the Western door of the Confederacy desiring them to forward the same to exhort them to be more attentive to these interesting matters and to all public messages assuring them, that they would return and see them early in the spring.

Gave 4. white strings.

Brother. These strings came from another warrior from Canundageh, on this side of the great plains on behalf of three Nations, recommending it to the warriors of the Six Nations to be for the future in all things unanimous, to mind the true interests of the confederacy, and to follow strictly the advice & councils of their Chiefs, and desired these strings to be forwarded thro' all the Nations.

Gave 4. short strings black Wampum.

Brother, These strings were delivered to our people at the same place on behalf of Aghetaghcrege the head of the Hurons and their eight Confederate Nations whereon they remarked the good advice they received formerly from Sir William Johnson the Message they received from Colonel Johnson and their adherence to peace and their engagements.—in the midst of which they heard of an unlucky quarrel between the people of Virginia and the Shawanese, which gave them great uneasiness, but shortly after, they received a message from Col: Johnson and the Six Nations assuring them that the latter would not engage in any quarrel against the English but would promote peace, which Message settled all their minds and gave them great satisfaction; they therefore after condemning the conduct of those of the Six Nations who lived at a distance from the Confederacy exhorted each of the nations to be particularly attentive to the Superintendent's advice and to the Councils of their Chiefs, at the two proper Fire places and to attend only to peace and their engagements. Expressed a desire of meeting us here, and they particularly recommended it to the Onondagas to continue faithfully to preserve all transactions and to promote attention to public affairs at their Fireplace.

Gave 4. strings, Black Wampum.

Brother, This is a string from the Senecas to the Onondagas in consequence of a drunken quarrel at Adigie on Ohio, between the Senecas & others—wherein the former killed a Shawanese and two Delawares, for which a Deputation, according to ancient Custom is to be sent by the Onondagas that the affair may be passed over and this matter is to be immediately taken into consideration.

4. Black strings.

Brother, As these matters are of weight & moment, it was not thought adviseable to send it with three or four Messengers, and therefore, we, the Cayugas have been accompanied at the desire of the Confederacy by sundry of the principal Men of each Nation, that they might hear the same faithfully delivered and receive your advice and direction.

To which Col: Johnson answered:

Brothers. I have heard with great attention the several matters, you were directed to lay before me. I thank your Chiefs for their attention to the same which I shall take into consideration and give you an answer to morrow.—Then distributed pipes, Tobacco and some liquor amongst them and adjourned.

Wednesday March. 1st

At a meeting with the Chiefs of the Six Nations.

PRESENT— as before.

Col: Johnson asked them whether they were all assembled; and being answered in the affirmative he proceeded as follows:

Brothers. I have duly considered and am now prepared to answer your speech and to give you my opinion on the several matters you laid before me, and I desire your attention.

Brothers, I am very well pleased with the Conduct of your Chiefs at the Onondaga meeting as well as with the Warriors for paying a due regard to the advice they received, and I hope they will always be governed by wholesome advice. Your apprehensions for those of your people who were to the Southward, was very reasonable; they were in a dangerous situation and exposed to evil temptation, which Warriors are too often apt to listen to. Every instance shows plainly that, which you have been often told, the danger of your peoples living and getting connected to the Southward and the necessity there is for the removing them, I wish your endeavours hitherto had met with more success, and I again advise you, either to bring them home or to cast them off in case of refusal, as a people who bring disgrace on your Confederacy and endeavour to attach you to interests, which may at some one time prove your ruin; it is for your benefit that I repeat my advice, and you may depend on my sincerity as my heart is open, my inclinations disposed to serve you, and my judgement constantly exercised in promoting your happiness.

A Belt of 12. Rows.

Brothers. These strings which you received from the two young warriors near the great plains, appear to me in a very odd light. It is not a miss to hear good Council from any person but I believe it never was the practice of Whites or Indians to take Council from a few Lads who have left their Country and associated with people of a troublesome disposition; neither does it appear to be intended so much for your benefit as to draw you into measures with others and I find from the Journal of my Southern Deputy, that these young Men talked big and represented themselves as of great consequence to the Virginians and as having vast influence over you; Your Warriors therefore did right in hearing the same with caution and I address them plainly as a warrior to hearken to me and to the Councils of their Chiefs in their own Towns as that is the sure road to reputation.—

Returned the strings.

Brothers. The Strings you received from the Indians at Canundageh, appear to be to the same effect and for the same purposes as the former, for I can't see how they who have left your Confederacy and hitherto have declined returning to it, can with any propriety direct you, and I clearly understand that the unanimity they recommend has in view an intercourse and association with interests you should avoid; let those who express so much regard for your interests, give a solid proof of it by returning to their proper Council fire, where their advice will be better credited; but whilst they remain where they are, they can have no true regard for your welfare.

Returned the Strings.

Brothers. The strings, which went to the Southward from the Hurons and their Confederacy were I believe well intended. The Hurons have acted wisely during the late troubles; but the reports that came from the Southward in which thro' the folly of your people that live there, your name is always liable to be brought in question, gave concern to the Hurons till they heard of your good and pacific resolutions, and their advice to you to persevere therein and to hearken to your true advisers, is a proof of their wisdom and friendship and merits your particular regard and I have that confidence in your Chiefs that I believe they see there true interests, and I charge them to pursue them.

Returned the strings.

Brothers. The quarrel which was the Effect of that pernicious liquor, to which you are so much addicted, is a fresh instance of the fatal consequences of intoxication. You see it has ended in blood and gives you the trouble of sending a great way to make reparation. I have no objection to your complying with the Institutions of your Ancestors in these cases, which may be done by a small Deputation of those most interested in it.

Delivered the strings to the Onondagas.

Brothers. I approve of the wisdom of your Chiefs in causing all these matters to be laid before me and they may be assured of my Best and most candid advice in return.—I doubt not (seeing so many great Men here) that it has been faithfully related, but I wonder I hear nothing of an extraordinary string lately brought to me by the Oneidas as sent thro' the Nations from the Shawanese, with a strange account that some of your people would be put to death at Fort Pitt, and that you must go and meet them on Ohio. Perhaps this string rose out of the ground or came from the evil spirit, for I am sure that it could not come from any persons that understood and regarded your true interests. I have given my opinion fully on it to those that brought it and they have joined in sending a proper answer by special Messengers who were dispatched a few days past. I have also explained these matters fully in private Conferences with the Chiefs here present and others and I hope you will all regard it as coming from your true friend. What I have further to say thereon is but a few words to exhort you all to consider solely the interest of your proper confederacy and not to take part in any dispute with those who never apply to you, but for their private purposes or to lessen you in the King's estimation by making you appear as parties concerned with them—you have been often advised to keep your eyes fixed on the place from which you always receive the greatest benefits and the wisest Councils; 'tis to the King alone you are indebted for redress of grievances and for all the favours you receive and not to any particular Colonies or Societies of White people, they will all, I trust, do you Justice, but where they refuse it, the King will consider your case.— 'Tis therefore to him you are to look in all cases, and in the affair<sup>1</sup> he has intrusted with your affair you should solely confide and I give you this Belt to strengthen the hands of your Chiefs for that purpose.

A Belt of 9. Rows.

then adjourned.

Thursday March 2nd

The Indians assembled, and after thanking Col: Johnson for his speech, and assuring him that they did not look on the strings sent from the Shawanese as deserving their attention, proceeded to acquaint him, that as the Hurons had expressed a desire of conversing with them on the State of affairs, they had considered together and it would be very agreeable to them, that Col: Johnson should signify to that Nation the desire of the Six Nations that some Chiefs from that Country might attend their next public meeting and this they observed would be the surest Channel for conveying their Message that it might not be liable to misrepresentation

Then the Speaker proceeded as follows:

Brother. We are very sensible of the truth of what you have said to us and extremely thankful for your advice on all the subjects we spoke upon—we greatly regret that the late troubles interrupted our correspondence to the Southward and prevented our collecting our scattered people; in this matter we mean to be governed by your advice, as well as in every thing else, and we put our hearts into our hands with a resolution to continue to love the King and to follow your directions and faithfully to deliver what you have said at the great Council fire.

To which Col: Johnson answered:

Brothers, I have great pleasure in your Conduct whenever you act with wisdom and discretion and I shall confide in your declarations from the good opinion I have of you. I shall be glad to see some of the Huron Chiefs and to that end I shall give them notice of your desire to which they will doubtless agree, and I now take this opportunity to acquaint your whole Confederacy, that I continue in the same sentiments I have always expressed for your collecting your scattered people, without delay, and I advise you to cast off all those who refuse to comply, as Enemies to their country. I therefore give you this Belt to strengthen the resolutions of your Chiefs and encourage them to Act with vigour in collecting these people and placing them under your immediate guidance, within the influence of your great Council fire, and I desire, this Belt may be forwarded through the Nations for that purpose.— Gave a Belt.

Then acquainted them, that in consequence of their request last fall, he had wrote to, & received Gov<sup>t</sup> Penn's answer, which was agreeable to what he had before told them, that the Gov<sup>t</sup>'s Message to Fort Pitt, had been sent early the last summer to recommend peace with his people to them; that he was pleased with their conduct and had no intention or occasion for calling them to a meeting. After which Col: Johnson delivered out some presents to the principal Men particularly to Sayenguaraghta the faithful Chief of all the Lower Senecas and his family, and recommending it to them to preserve his words and act accordingly. He dismissed them in the usual manner.

Friday March 3rd

The Indians after receiving provisions orders ettc, took their leave and set out on their return home.

P. M. Thirty two Chiefs and Warriours arrived from Chenango and the branches of the Susquehanna, who after the customary entertainment and salutations went to their incampment.

Saturday March 4th

The above Chiefs and Warriors assembled.

PRESENT— as at the last meeting :

After performing the ceremony of condolence on both sides as usual, the Speaker addressed Col : Johnson as follows :

Brother. We the Chiefs of the two Tribes at Chenango the Chughnuts, Owegy, and Tiaogos, being five several Nations express our great satisfaction at meeting you this day the rather as few of us have had the pleasure of seeing you since you have had the care of our affairs.

Brother. We heard from the Six Nations long since, the death of our late Worthy Brother and Guardian, Sir William Johnson but had not the particulars, till sometime after, when we were told that you had succeeded him, which gave us all much pleasure, and by his death, we were thrown into the deepest sorrow ; our eyes were cast down, and our bodys lay groveling on the earth ; but so soon as we had intelligence of your being raised up in his place, we revived again, arose and became chearful. We now give you these strings as an assurance of the satisfaction we receive from your Management of our affairs.

Brothers ; We the Chiefs, having heard of your several wise transactions with our Confederates in very troublesome times, do on behalf of all our people express our entire approbation thereof and our determined resolutions to follow and be governed by your advice and to attend to the Councils of the great fire place, we have acted agreeable to the advice you gave by the Messengers sent thro' the Nations on the death of Sir William Johnson, we shall continue to do so and we give you this assurance of it.— a Belt of seven Rows.

Brother. The Warriours desire to acquaint you by these strings, that they were cast down to the earth on account of the death of Sir William Johnson, and that they are alone revived by the news of your succeeding him, and are now once more happy and ready to follow your advice.

4. Strings.

Brother. Our Chief Women who have great influence with us, take this opportunity of congratulating you on your present Office assuring you that they are now become chearful and will always assist in recommending good works to the young people that they may act agreeable to you and obtain your favour.

3. Strings.

Then after speaking of the boundary line fixed, and Cession made to His Majesty at Fort Stanwix in 1763, he added that they had something interesting to say on that subject, and proceeded :

Brother, We very well remember and know, that the boundary line was run from Owegy to the Delaware, and to run from thence North to the Susquehanna River at the mouth of the Tienaderhah. This we agreed to, Brother, and at the same time, we mentioned in our speech, that should any of these lines appear to affect any of our settlements, it should not be taken advantage of, but our properties should be excluded; all which was promised us. Now Brother, we find, that the Surveyors last Summer have run that line in such a manner along the Susquehanna as to affect our property very much, and as we apprehend contrary to the intention of the Treaty; we are not fond of disputing and have great confidence in the King and therefore we hope you will represent our case in such a manner as to obtain redress for us, that we may be made easy in our minds.

To which Col: Johnson answered:

Brothers. I am glad to see you here this day and I have heard your speeches with attention and shall deliver you an answer to morrow.

Then after treating them as usual adjourned.

Sunday March 5th

The Indians assembled to receive Col: Johnson's answer

PRESENT— as before.

Brothers. I heartily thank the Chiefs of the several Nations here assembled as well for the regard they express for the memory of Sir William Johnson as for the satisfaction they shew at my succeeding in his Office as I shall always endeavour after his example to promote the happiness of all well disposed Indians. I am well pleased with the assurances of the Chiefs and hope they will pay due regard to their engagements. 3. str<sup>es</sup>

Brothers. I am happy to find, that my transactions during a troublesome period are so agreeable to you, as I know and consult your true interests, you may always be assured that my advice shall be wholesome and good and so long as you follow it and hearken to the Councils of your proper Fire place you will enjoy the protection and favour of the Great King and may rely on my best Offices for your service. I therefore give you this Belt as an assurance thereof and as a renewal of the ancient league of friendship and alliance between you and the English. A Belt of 8 Rows.

Brothers. I am much obliged to the Warriors for their expressions of regard, and the promises they make, and they may rely on their friendship & good advice; I therefore recommend it to them to regard it as tending to promote their true interests, and not to be led astray from the Councils of their wise Men at the proper Council fire. 4. strings.

Brothers. I also thank the Chief women for their kind congratulations and I expect they will continue to act wisely and to lead the young people to follow good Councils by which means they will enjoy the blessings of peace and the protection of Government.—

4. strings.

Brothers. I have considered what you said respecting the boundary line with the particulars of which I am well acquainted, and I have often explained it since to many of your people, particularly at a late meeting with the Oneidas. You all remember, that at the time of the Fort Stanwix treaty the line was agreed on, to be run Eastward from Owegey to Delaware; now as the English had never surveyed the Susquehanna above that place to avoid giving you any suspicion, the course of that River from thence to the patented lands was taken from the Maps then in being, and your own description, which I am sorry to find does not agree with the late Survey, as the great Bind comes to that line contrary to all our expectations. This was not the fault of Govern<sup>r</sup>, it arose from the want of information, and no doubt, according to the terms of the Treaty, the Govern' will take some measures for your satisfaction on my making a proper representation of the matter. Here is a Map drawn by myself, from which you will see the real course of the River and be satisfied that as it was not formerly conceived it took that direction. There could have been no design in view to deceive you, I recommend it therefore to you to be satisfied with my assurances, and you shall soon hear further respecting it.

Then shewed them a Map<sup>1</sup> lately made of that Country, after which they returned thanks for the kind assurances they had received and begged, the affair might be attended to as it affected 4. Villages.

After which, they represented, that several of their old people were in great want, and they were accordingly supplied with some necessaries and departed March 6th

[A like Instruction, mutatis mutandis to Our Trusty and Wellbeloved Josiah Martin Esqre, Our Captn General & Govr in Chief, in and over our province of No Carolina, in America, or to our Lieut. Govr or Commaader in Chief of our said province for the time being— Given. ettc.]

WHEREAS an humble application hath been made to us by ALLEN M<sup>c</sup>LEAN Esq<sup>r</sup>e late Major to our 114th Regiment, and Lieut Col: in our Army setting forth, that a considerable number of our subjects, who have, at different times, emigrated from the North West parts of North Britain, and have transported themselves, with their families, to New York, have expressed a desire, to take up Lands within our said Province, to be held of us, our heirs and successors, in fee simple; and whereas it may be of public advantage to grant lands in manner aforesaid to such of the said Emigrants now residing within our said province as may be desirous of settling together upon some convenient spot within the same. It is therefore our Will and pleasure, that upon application to you by the said Allen Maclean, and upon his producing to you an Association of the said Emigrants to the effect of the form hereunto annexed, subscribed by the heads of the several families of which such Emigrants shall consist, you do cause a proper spot to be located and surveyed in one contiguous Tract within our said Province of New York, sufficient in quantity for the accommodation of such Emigrants, allowing 100 acres to each head of a family, and 50 acres for every other person of which the said family shall consist; and it is our further will and pleasure that when the said Lands shall have been so located as aforesaid, you do grant the same by letters patent under the seal of our said Province unto the said Allen Maclean,<sup>1</sup> in trust, and upon the conditions, to make allotments thereof in Fee simple to the heads of Families, whose names, together with the number of persons in each family, shall have been delivered in by him as aforesaid, accompanied with the said association, and it is Our further will and pleasure that it be expressed in the said letters patent, that the lands so to be granted shall be exempt from the payment of quit-rents for 20 years from the date thereof, with a proviso however that all such parts of the said Tracts as shall not be settled in manner aforesaid within two years from the date of the grant shall revert to us, and be disposed of in such manner as we shall think fit; and it is our further will and pleasure, that neither yourself, nor any other of our Officers, within our said Province, to whose duty it may appertain to carry these our orders into execution do take any Fee or reward for the same, and that the expense of surveying and locating any Tract of Land in the manner and for the purpose above mentioned be defrayed out of our Revenue of Quit rents and charged to the account thereof. And we do hereby, declare it to be our further will and pleasure, that in case the whole or any part of the said Colonists, fit to bear Arms, shall be hereafter embodied and employed in Our service in America, either as Commission or non Commissioned Officers or private Men, they shall respectively receive further grants of Land from us within our said province, free of all charges, and exempt from the payment of quit rents for 20 years, in the same proportion to their respective Ranks, as is directed and prescribed by our Royal Proclamation of the 7th of October 1763. in regard to such Officers and Soldiers as were employed in our service during the last War.

G. R.

<sup>1</sup> Colonel ALAN MACLEAN, of Torloish was, in 1747, Lieutenant in the Scotch brigade, which also went by the name of "the Dutch briga-Je," from the circumstance of its being at the time in the pay of the States-General. In cutting his way through the French lines at the famous siege of Bergen op Zoom, Lieutenant Maclean was taken prisoner and immediately admitted to parole by General Lowendahl, with this complimentary address: "Had all conducted themselves as you and your brave corps have done, I should not now be master of Bergen op Zoom." Having left the Dutch service, he obtained a company in the 62d or first Highland battalion on its organization in 1757. With this regiment, whose number was afterwards changed to the 77th, he came to America and served under Forbes, at the taking of Fort du Quesne in 1758, and in the following year was with Amherst in the expedition up the Northern lakes. He raised the 114th Highland regiment in 1759, of which he was appointed Major commanding, but it was reduced in 1763 and Major Maclean went on half pay. On 25 May, 1771, he became Lieutenant-Colonel in the army, but was not again called into active service until 1775, when the paltry scheme detailed in the Text was concocted to raise men in America, to support the Royal cause. With that warrant and some followers, Colonel Maclean came to New-York in the spring of 1775; next visited Boston, where his scheme got wind; then hastened back to New-York, repaired to Col. Guy Johnson on the Mohawk river and thence proceeded to Oswego and so to Canada, where he collected, in the course of the summer, a body of men, chiefly Scotch refugees and disbanded soldiers, formerly belonging to the 42d, 77th and 78th Highlanders, under the title of the Royal Highland Emigrants. On the approach of the American army by Lake Champlain, Col. Maclean was ordered to St. Johns with a party of militia, but got only as far as St. Denis when he was deserted by his men. Quebec being next threatened by the American army, under Arnold, Col. Maclean made the best of his way to that city, which he entered on the 12th November, 1775, just in time to prevent the citizens surrendering the place to the Americans. His conduct during the siege is mentioned in the handsomest terms. But after all his zeal, his corps was not yet recognized, though he had at the outset been promised establishment and rank for it. He therefore returned to England, where he arrived on the 1st September, 1776, to seek justice for himself and men. They were not received until the close of 1778, when the regiment, which consisted of two battalions, one in Canada and one in Nova Scotia, was numbered the 84th. In January, 1780, he was appointed Colonel in the Army. The Royal Highland Emigrants were disbanded in 1783 and Colonel Maclean died in 1784. Army Lists; Brown's Highland Clans, IV., 242, 307, 363; Smith's Canada, II., 83; Garneau's Canada, 2d ed., II., 436; 5. American Annals, I., 24, 626. — Ed.

FORM OF ASSOCIATION.

We, whose names are hereunto subscribed, do hereby severally and respectively promise and engage, that we will demean ourselves as good and Loyal subjects to His Majesty King George the Third, and peaceably submit to the Laws enacted by the Parliament of Great Brittain, and that we will, at the hazard of our lives & fortunes, oppose all illegal combinations or insurrections whatever, and give our utmost aid in suppressing all such proceedings & practices as are contrary to the Laws of the Land and the authority of the King.—And if His Majesty or those acting under His Royal authority, shall judge it necessary or expedient for us to be assembled and embodied for the purpose of maintaining the peace, order and good Government of the respective provinces in North America, wherein we reside, We, the subscribers, to hereby bind and oblige ourselves, forthwith to assemble and embody accordingly, and to serve on the same terms, and under the same regular discipline and command, as in His Majesty's other Military service & establishments.

And moreover, if his Majesty, or those acting under his Royal authority, shall deem it requisite for such of us, as are fit for actual service, to be embodied, and to act in conjunction with His Majesty's regular forces, we do hereby bind and oblige ourselves forthwith to assemble and to be embodied accordingly, to obey all the orders of our proper Officers, and commanders respectively, and to continue to serve, in our respective stations, during his Majesty's Royal Will and pleasure.—

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII., No. 14.]

New York 4th April 1775

My Lord

The General Assembly of this Province being yesterday adjourned, by my directions, to the third day of May, I am now to give your Lordship some account of the Bills which have been past, I have assented to seventy one Bills, and refused two; viz a naturalization Bill, and one for making perpetual a particular Section (the VI) of the Quit Rent Act

It has been on this occasion mention<sup>d</sup> to me, my Lord, that His Majestys Instruction, prohibiting his Governors from passing a naturalization Bill, opperates very partially to the prejudice of this Colony surrounded as we are by charter Governments where such Instructions have no effect. Many usefull Foreigners are by this means driven out of this Province where they cannot acquire landed property, and settle in the Charter Governments, where they meet with the greatest encouragement

The Bill for making perpetual the sixth Section of the Quit Rent Act, I did not assent to, because I thought it was inadvisable to make any part of that Bill perpetual, while those, which provide for collecting the Quit Rents, are left to expire

A Militia Act appeared to me to be very expedient at this Time, to prevent that confusion which the Province might otherwise be thrown into, by the endeavors that some People would certainly make, to establish a militia, by election of the People—This was so strongly represented to me by the friends of Government that I could not doubt of the propriety of passing the Militia Bill, which was one of the number prepared for my Assent.

There are only two other Acts on which it is necessary to trouble your Lordship with any remarks the rest being Chiefly to revive other Acts with a few new ones for ordinary & immaterial purposes

Upon the Act for the general quiet of His Majestys subjects in this Colony, against all pretence of concealment whatever, I need only to observe to your Lordship, that it is passed with a suspend<sup>d</sup> clause, and therefore it is entirely in His Majestys Power to give it effect or not

The Act to regulate elections for Representatives in general Assembly for the City and County of Albany is thought necessary to prevent the exhorbitant Influence which the very large Mannors in that County give to the Proprietors or Lords of the Mannors as they are called: There are two Mannors & a Borough, my Lord in that County which each send a Representative to the Assembly, besides the two Members that are return<sup>d</sup> for the City and County. The Freeholders in the Borough & Mannors have had a right to vote in the County, as well as in the Borough or Mannor upon a Freehold which lay [in] the Mannor or Borough only. This Right they have never exercised, but should they at any time do it, they are now become so populous that it is in their power to determine every Election in the County & may in effect return all the five Members In this light the People of the City & County view the privilege claimed by the Mannors, as dangerous to them; and in my opinion it must be very disadvantageous to Government, that any one or two families should be able to return so large a proportion of the Members of our assembly. The present Representatives of the Mannors have distinguished themselves in the opposition to Government, and were the warmest supporters of the Congress. I therefore thought it was a proper time, my Lord, to abridge this privilege, when the Majority both in Council and Assembly were for it. It may not hereafter be in the power of Government, to have it done, when the Effects have taken place

An other Act which your Lordship may take notice of, is one for admitting the mode of administering an oath practiced in Scotland to be used by such persons in this Colony as make matter of Conscience of it. There are many sober discreet Inhabitants, who from the prejudices of education, have suffered great uneasiness for want of such an indulgence in this Government. No alteration is made by this Act, but that of holding up the Right hand, in place of kissing the Book. I could not therefore my Lord, discover any thing to induce me to refuse my assent to the Bill, which the Council & Assembly upon mature deliberation thought proper to pass

I am with perfect submission

My Lord

Your most obedient

and faithfull Servant

Rt Honble

My Lord

I have received your Ldps commands of the 7th of January N<sup>o</sup> 26 and your circular letter of the 4th of the same month. I have the pleasure to inform your Lordship that the conduct of our Assembly, with respect to the congress proposed to be held at Philadelphia in May, is entirely agreeable to His Majestys Sentiments. as expressed in your circular letter. No person has been appointed by them to attend that Congress, and when it was proposed in the House, the motion passed in the Negative by a large Majority. The disaffected party are however exerting their utmost influence to obtain an appointment of Delegates by the people. It is not in the power of Government to prevent such measures; they are supported by individuals in their private characters and do not come within the energy of our Laws. Your Lordship may however be assured that a great part of the people are against appointing Delegates to meet the May Congress, and that their disapprobation will be public. I therefore hope His Majesty will look upon the Majority in the Assembly as speaking the sentiments of their constituents.

When I reflect my Lord upon the event of this Session of Assembly how much the measures pursued have tended to preserve this Government from the dangerous and extravagant Plans which are formed in almost every other Part of the Continent. The moderation, loyalty and affection with which the Assembly have laid their Greivances before His Majesty and Parliament & the hearty disposition they have testified to obtain a permanent reconciliation, I feel a satisfaction which can only be heightened by His Majestys approbation, and the final happy accomplishment of this important business.

On Monday last I gave my assent to all the Bills which passed the Council and Assembly, except two, and then directed the speaker to adjourn the House to the third day of May. In an other letter I gave your Lordship a particular account of the Bills.

I now transmitt the printed Journals of the Assembly from which your Ldp will be able to judge of the disposition of the different parties, and I am persuaded you will be convinced that the Majority in the Assembly have acted with a very sincere Inclination to accomplish a permanent reconciliation with great Britain.

About a month agoe I received accounts of farther outrageous and most illegal proceedings of the Benington Rioters, of which your Ldp has already heard so much. Their Acts grow from time to time more daring and dangerous. They have now had the hardness to seize a justice of the Peace, to try him before a mock Tribunal of their own, formally to pass sentence upon him, and after inflicting a punishment of 200 Lashes on him, to banish him from that part of the Country which they call their own. Indeed the authority of Government is entirely lost among them, and I am afraid can not be restored but by Force. They began with pretending only to hold possession of the Lands on which they had settled. but your Ldp. may be assured they have extended their Designs much farther, and are dayly growing more and more formidable and dangerous to Government.

I have lately received accounts likewise, my Lord, of a dangerous Insurrection in Cumberland County of this Province which is connected with Massachusetts Bay on one side and New Hampshire on the other. A number of People in Cumberland, worked up by the example and Influence of Massachusetts Bay, embraced the dangerous resolution of shutting up the Courts of Justice. With this design they took possession of the Court House immediately before the Courts of General Sessions of the Peace, and common Pleas, were to be opened there in March last. They persisted with so much obstinacy to resist the Sheriff and his Posse that he was obliged to have recourse to fire Arms, by which one of the Rioters were killed and several were wounded upon which they quitted the House and the Courts were opened. But by the next day such numbers had joined the Rioters from New Hampshire & Massachusetts Bay, as made them too powerfull for the Majistrates: they took one of the Judges the Sheriffs Clerk of the Court and several other persons prisoners, and after confining them for several days in the Goal of their own County carried them into Massachusetts Bay, and put them into the Goal of North Hampton where they remaind when the last accounts came from them

It was necessary for me, my Lord, to call upon the Assembly for aid, to reinstate the authority of Government in that county and to bring the atrocious offenders to Punishment. They have given but one thousand Pounds for this Purpose which is much too small a sum, but the party in the Assembly who have opposed every measure that has a tendency to strengthen or support Government by working on the parcemonious disposition of some of the Country Members had too much influence on this occasion I am now waiting for an answer from General Gage to whom I have wrote on this affair in Cumberland: by his Assistance I hope we shall soon be able to hold a Court of Oyer and Terminer in that County, where I am assured there are some hundreds of the inhabitants well affected to Government; and that if the Debts of the people who have been concerned in this outrage, were all paid, there would not be a six pence of property left among them

It is proper your Lordship should be informed, that the inhabitants of Cumberland County have not been made uneasy by any dispute about the Title of their Lands; those who have not obtained Grants under this Governm<sup>t</sup>, live in quiet possession under the Grants formerly made by New Hampshire The Rioters have not pretended any such pretext for their conduct: the example of Massachusetts Bay is the only reason they have assigned. Yet I make no doubt they will be joined by the Bennington Rioters, who will endeavor to make one common cause of it, tho' they have no connection but in their violence to Government

Some weeks before I received His Majestys commands for locating Coll Ords Land, I had sealed a Patent granting 5000 Acres of Land to him upon his mandamus, in another part of the Country, where his agent had petitioned to have it granted before Governor Tryon went from hence. It was now therefore out of my Power to comply with his Majestys directions

& respect

My Lord

Your most obedient

and faithful Servant

J POWNALL

<sup>1</sup> JAMES RIVINGTON was born in England in the year 1724, and was bred a bookseller in London and as such went extensively into business in that city. He became fond of amusements and regularly attended the horse races at Newmarket; at one of which he lost so much money as to conceive himself to be ruined. He was therefore induced to persuade one of his principal creditors to take out a commission of bankruptcy against him. After due examination into his affairs, his creditor assured him that it was unnecessary, as he possessed property more than sufficient to pay all demands against him. Rivington, however, persisted in his request, and went through the process required by the bankrupt act; he eventually paid twenty shillings in the pound and had something left. This event determined Rivington to remove to America, where he arrived in 1760 and settled as a bookseller in Philadelphia. The year following he left his business in Philadelphia with a partner by the name of Brown, and came to New-York; opened a book store at the lower end of Wall-street and made that city his place of business. After some years he failed; but very speedily settling his affairs, he recommenced business. He eventually adopted printing; and, in April, 1773, published a newspaper, entitled Rivington's New-York Gazetteer; or The Connecticut, New Jersey, Hudson's River and Quebec Weekly Advertiser. This paper commenced its career April 22, 1773, on a large medium sheet, folio. He also printed several books for his own sales, among which was Cook's Voyage, in two volumes, 12mo. and dealt largely as a bookseller and stationer. In the beginning of 1775 the Gazetteer contained a number of attacks against Congress and the leading Patriots, whereby Rivington became very obnoxious to the popular party, and as early as March of that year was denounced in Rhode Island, New Jersey and Ulster county, N. Y. On the 10th of May the storm burst over his head. The mob which had paid a visit to President Cooper (supra, p. 297, note) attacked Rivington, who was fortunately rescued by one or two friends and subsequently sought refuge on board the Man of War. His conduct was taken up by the Provincial Congress, which referred his case to the Continental Congress, then in session in Philadelphia. Rivington thought it best to make his peace and sent an apologetic letter, promising to avoid giving any further offence; he afterwards signed the General Association. But his appointment as King's Printer and his intimate connection with the pensioned writers on the Royalist side, brought him again into collision with the popular sentiment and his press and printing office were destroyed in November, 1775 (supra, p. 219, note), when a stop was effectually put to his Gazetteer. Soon after this event Rivington went to England, where he supplied himself with a new printing apparatus. After the British gained possession of the city, he returned; and, October 4, 1777, recommenced the publication of his Gazette under the original title, but in two weeks exchanged that title for the following, Rivington's New-York Loyal Gazette, and on the 13th of December following he called his paper The Royal Gazette. "Published by James Rivington, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty." While Rivington entertained the supposition that the Americans would be subjected by the British arms, he continued his hostility to their cause; but when he despaired of their subjection and believed that Great Britain would, herself, acknowledge the Independence of the United States, he deemed it prudent to conciliate the minds of some of the leading American characters. To this end, it is said, he sent out of New-York such communications as he knew would be interesting to the commanders of the American army. In consequence of these peace offerings he was protected when the war ended, and remained in the city, having discarded from his paper the appendages of royalty. It was no more the Royal or Loyal Gazette, but a plain republican newspaper, entitled Rivington's New-York Gazette and Universal Advertiser. It was, however, considered as a wolf in sheep's clothing, and not meeting with support, the publication of it terminated and the editorial labors of Rivington ended in the year 1783. He continued his trade in Books and Stationery, but failed a third time, and died in July, 1802, at the advanced age of seventy-eight years. Thomas' History of Printing, II., 111, 812.—Ed.

Sir

In consequence of the conversation I had with you yesterday, respecting the proposition of making grants to Mess<sup>rs</sup> Totten, Crossfeild, Van Renslaer, Low, Jessup & others, His Majestys subjects in New York, of lands purchased by them of the Indians in 1772, I think fit to acquaint you, that, fully sensible of how much importance it is in the present moment, that His Majestys faithfull and well disposed subjects in New York should be gratified in every reasonable request, as far as may be consistent with the Kings Justice and dignity, I shall submit to His Majesty my humble opinion that whenever the persons really, and bona fide interested and concerned in those purchases shall make humble application to His Majesty for such grants accompanied with a disavowal of all association to obstruct the Importation or Exportation of goods to and from Great Britain it may be adviseable for His Majesty to comply with their request and to confirm to them the possession of the said Lands by letters Patent under the Great Seal of Great Britain & not otherwise

With regard to the other matters stated in your letter to me of the 12th Instant, and which you think are objects of importance to Government in the present Situation, I shall not fail, at a proper time, before your return to New York, to receive and to communicate to you His Majestys commands upon such of them, as are not in train of consideration before the privy council & Board of Trade and upon which therefore I am precluded from giving any Instructions, until those Boards shall have submitted their opinions to the King

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatch of the 13th February N<sup>o</sup> 6.

It is to be expected, that the Enemies to the restoration of the public tranquility will pursue every indirect measure, and propagate every falsehood that may answer their wicked purpose of exciting jealousy and apprehension in the minds of the Indians; but the King trusts that, through your influence and attention, their evil designs will be defeated.

His Majesty has at all times being desirous of complying with every just and reasonable request of his faithful subjects and Allies the Six Nations of Indians, and if you are of opinion that, in the present moment, any particular instructions from hence are wanting for the accommodation of their Disputes, or upon any other matters necessary to their welfare and satisfaction, it will be your duty to make an immediate and particular representation home of the different heads upon which you wish to be instructed and your opinion of the means by which His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may manifest his gracious purpose of exerting his Royal authority in every case in which their peace and security may require it

New York May 3<sup>d</sup> 1775

My Lord

I have received your Lordships Despatches of the 22<sup>d</sup> of February and 3<sup>d</sup> of March, both circular and one private of the last date. Likewise your letter No 28.

In all my correspondence I have studied to give your Lordship an exact Idea of the real situation of the Province, and of the most material transactions of the People. The Accounts which I am now to give will almost entirely destroy the expectations you have had reason to entertain of the conduct which this Province would pursue: yet I am persuaded the Proceedings of our Assembly and other information which I doubt not your Lordship has received, will justify the representations I have made

The disunion of the Colonies being held up in America and by many in Britain likewise as the only thing which could defeat the measures of the congress, the moment that the legislative Body of this Province, deviated from the General Association of the Colonies, and pointed out a different conduct, a design was evidently formed in the other Colonies, to drive the people from acquiescing in the measures of their Assembly, and to force them into the General Plan of Association and Resistance. This design was heartily seconded by many among ourselves. Every species of public and private Resentment was threatened to terrify the Inhabitants of this Province if they continued disunited from the others. The certainty of losing all the Debts due from the other Colonies, which are very considerable and every other argument of private Interest that could influence the Merchants, or any one was industriously circulated. The minds of the people in the city were kept in constant agitation, by Riots and attempts to prevent the Transports from loading here, with stores, Provisions &c for the army. The want of any degree of Resolution in the Magistrates to support the authority of Government in opposition to popular measures, rendered the leaders of the People insolently bold and daring —The friends of order and Government saw no power either in the exertion of the Magistrates, or the feeble aid that could be afforded by the very small body of Troops quartered in the city to protect their persons and property from violence and destruction. Several Incidents combined to depress all legal Authority; and to increase the Terror of the Inhabitants, which seemed to vanquish every thought of Resistance to popular Rage. In this unfortunate situation of the City, the first accounts of an action between the Kings Troops and People, near Boston, was published with horrid and aggravating circumstances. The moment of consternation and anxiety was seized. The people were assembled, and that scene of disorder and violence begun, which has entirely prostrated the Powers of Government, and produced an association by which this Province has solemnly united with the others in resisting the Acts of Parliament. The Gentlemen of His Majestys council, in support of their advice for proroguing the Assembly to the 7th day of June having gone into a particular detail of the most material Transactions of the People from the 23<sup>d</sup> of last month to the present time, I beg your Lordships leave to refer to the extracts of their Minutes. It contains a full description of the present state of the Province, which at this time I think will be most properly laid before you in their own words. Two of the Council have this moment informed me that a copy of the minutes has been shewn to the City Committee and that they have sent to request that it may be transmitted Home.

The pretence given out for the necessity of shutting up the Custom House, was to prevent the exportation of Provisions of which it was said all that was in the place would be wanted for the armies of the Colonies. But it is more probable, my Lord, that the real Intention was to strike terror by the boldness of the action. Having effected this purpose and established the absolute Power of the Committee; the Keys of the Custom House have been return<sup>d</sup> to M<sup>r</sup> Elliott, but at the same time a declaration published that no vessell shall be suffered to clear for Boston or Halifax

The whole military Force we have in this Province, my Lord, is the Kings Fisher sloop of War and 100 men of the Royal Irish Regiment commanded by Major Hamilton.<sup>1</sup> This small Body of Troops are quartered in the City Barracks without any kind of Protection but in their arms Lord Dunmore when in this Governm<sup>t</sup> converted the Fort Barracks into Stables, and dismantled the Fort itself which before that time was a sufficient security against the attempts of a Mob The Troops now found the want of this security and that they were not only a force too small to make any formidable opposition to the violence of the People, but in their situation appeared insufficient to deter the rash designs which were meditated to destroy them, and which there is reason to think would have been attempted if some of the inhabitants had not supported moderation and wisdom enough to prevent the spilling of Blood

The Posts between this place and Boston are stopped, as all letters have been opened on the way, and many secretted since the affair of the 19 April I hope General Gage will employ a Cutter to go between us, as a communicat<sup>n</sup> of intelligence may be very necessary

Governor Carleton informs me that he has received the Box with his Commission and Instructions, which I received from your Lordships office with your orders to forward it to him I inclose a printed Copy of the Association

I am with great respect

and submission

Whitehall 4th May 1775

Sir

As it is the Kings pleasure that you should without delay, return to New York, I have thought it my duty humbly to submit to His Matys consideration the several matters stated in your letter to me of the 12th Instant, and upon which you urge the necessity of having some Instructions before your departure <sup>1</sup> ISAAC HAMILTON was appointed Lieutenant in the 18th or Royal Irish, 1st October, 1755, and Captain 4th March, 1760. The regiment came to America in 1767; on the 16th December, of that year, he was promoted to be Major. He left the army in July, 1775. Army Lists. — Ed.

The difficulties which have arisen in a variety of cases occurring in the Land department, are obvious points of immediate attention, and I should do injustice to the intentions of my Royal Master if I did not assure you of His Majestys gracious disposition to give every reasonable satisfaction to His faithfull subjects in New York, as well upon those points, as in every other case in which it may be proper to meet their wishes To this end the board of Trade has now under its immediate consideration not only the claims of Lands lying to the Westward of Connecticut River both under New Hampshire & Canadian Titles, but also the case of Kings District between Hudsons River and the Western Limit of Massachusetts Bay, and as it is their Lordships Intention to proceed upon this business de die in diem, I hope it will not be long before I shall be able to send you His Matys orders upon those heads. In the mean time, it will be your duty to take no further steps whatever regarding those cases, and to avoid, in conformity to the Instructions you have already received, making any grants or allowing of any survey or location of Lands in those parts of the country which are the seat of the present disputes The Proposition of establishing a Title to those Lands which have been purchased of the Indians under Licenses from Lord Dunmore and yourself, is happily not embarrassed with those difficulties, which prevent an immediate Determination in the other cases; and it is with great satisfaction I signify to you his Majestys Pleasure, that you do acquaint the persons interested in those purchases that when ever they shall make an humble application to His Majesty for a confirmation, of their Titles, His Majesty will give direction for passing a grant of the Lands by letters Patent under the Great Seal but as it appears, from your representation of this matter that most of the considerable Persons within the Province, are interested in the purchase such a mark of His Majestys Grace and favor must not be expected, so long as any association shall subsist for preventing the lawfull importation or exportation of goods, or otherwise obstructing the Commerce of this Kingdom

It is with concern the King sees that difficulties have arisen in the final completion of the agreement for a Boundary Line between New York and Massachusetts Bay and His Majesty acquiescing in what you have suggested on that head, will direct instructions to be given to the Surveyor General of the Northern District conformable thereto

The rebuilding the Governors House, Secretarys office, and the Hospital, are considered by the King as very commendable Services, and his Majesty is graciously pleased to allow you to assent to any Bills, that either have been, or shall be preferred, for making provision for defraying the expence of those services, either by Lottery or in any other mode the Assembly shall think fit to adopt

The King has no doubt that the religious communities in New York as well the Dissenters as those of the Established Church are fully satisfied of His Majesty's gracious Intentions to afford them all reasonable support and Protection; His Majestys good disposition in that respect hath been manifested in many recent Instances of Grace and favor to both

What is now requested, however by the reformed Dutch & Presbyterian churches and by the Members of Kings College involves constitutional questions of great difficulty, and it is more especially necessary that the Charter proposed in the latter case should have the fullest consideration before any step is taken upon it. To that end I have received the Kings Commands to lay the Draft of that charter, transmitted to you by M<sup>r</sup> Colden, before the Privy Council in order that it may be put into such a train of examination as shall be judged necessary, but I do not think it likely that their Lordships will be induced to advise the King, to grant a charter which is to have the effect to increase the number of Members in the House of Representatives without the consent and concurrence of that House; in other respects the Charter does not appear to me to be liable to any material objection

The only doubt or difficulty that has occurred, upon the request of the reformed Dutch & Presbyterian Churches for Charters of Incorporation, is whether such Charters would not have the effect to give an establishment inconsistent, with the Principles of the Laws of England, and it is the more necessary to attend to this difficulty, as it was first stated by the Council of New York, in the case of the application made in 1766 by the Ministers, Elders and Deacons of the Presbyterian church within the City of New York; if however upon consideration of the several cases in which this privilege is now requested, the Law Servants of the King in the Province, and the Council whom you will consult upon them shall be of opinion that they are free from any difficulty of such a nature, it is the Kings pleasure that you do grant such charter of incorporation, conformable to what has been approved of by His Majesty in a like Case within the Province of New Jersey of which you will be particularly informed by the enclosed Papers.

The foregoing, sir, are all the Instructions which I have at present in command from the King to signify to you in consequence of your letter to me of the 12th Instant, but it is with very particular satisfaction that I add thereto, that I am further commanded by the King to acquaint you, that His Majesty is graciously pleased to permit and allow that the Assembly of New York, may if they think fit, by an Act, or Acts, settle upon you such sum or Sums, in addition to your salary, as they shall think proper, and you are accordingly allowed to give your consent to any Act or acts of Assembly for that purpose provided that such sum or sums be settled on you and your successors in that Government, or at least on you during the whole time of your Government there, and provided the same be done by the first Assembly, and within one year after your arrival in your Government

Whitehall 23rd May 1775.

Sir,

In a very short time after you embarked upon your return to your Government, the Petition to the King, the Memorial to the House of Lords, and the representation to the House of Commons of the Assembly of New York upon the subject matter of the Greivances they complain of in various instances of the exercise of the constitution<sup>l</sup> authority of Parliament were received and M<sup>r</sup> Burke having delivered to me the Petition to the King, I had the honor to present it to His Majesty who was well pleased to receive it with the most gracious expressions of Regard and attention to the humble requests of His faithfull subjects in New York who have on this occasion manifested a duty to His Majesty and a regard for the authority of the parent state, which had they not in the Memorial to the House of Lords and in the Representation to the House of Commons been unfortunately blended with express<sup>m</sup> containing claims which made it impossible for Parliament consistent with its justice and dignity to receive them, might have laid the foundation of that conciliation we have so long and so ardently wished for.

I will however still hope (and I am encouraged in that hope by private advices received from Penvsylvania) that the resolution of the House of Commons of the 27th of Feb<sup>r</sup> will remove all obstacles to the restoration of the public tranquillity and I am commanded by the King to say that nothing can give greater satisfaction to the Royal Breast than to see us again a happy and united People

Should such an event take place it will be and ought in Justice to be attributed in great measure to the moderation and good disposition which has appeared in the Assembly of New York and whilst they continue firm the body of the People must soon be convinced how equally vain and improper it is to insist upon claims inconsistent with their dependance on the authority of Parliament, and that the only constitutional method of obtaining redress for any greivances they may have to complain of is through the channel of their legal Representatives in Assembly

Representation of the Lords of Trade to the Committee of the Privy Council.

[New-York Entries, LXIX., p. 88.]

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lord[s] of the Committee of His Majesty's most Hon<sup>ble</sup> Privy Council for Plantation Affairs.

My Lords,

Pursuant to two Orders of your Lordships of the 26 of August 1773 We have taken into Our Consideration the Petition of sundry Officers of His Majestys Army who served in North America during the late War humbly praying that certain Lands lying in the Province of New York heretofore claimed by John Van Rensselaer Esq: may be granted to them agreeable to the proportions specified in His Majesty's proclamation of the 7 of Oct<sup>r</sup> 1763 whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships.

That the Petitioners having failed in a Suit which under His Majesty's protection and support they had instituted in the Courts of New York in order to set aside M<sup>r</sup> Rensselaers claim under his original Grant and the Governor of New York having in consequence thereof thought fit upon a surrender of part of that claim to establish M<sup>r</sup> Rensselaers Title to the rest by new grant there remains reserved out of the said claim a very considerable Tract of Land lying between the North and South Manors of Rensselaer bounded on the West by a Patent called Kinderhook and on the East by a line of Jurisdiction between the Province of New York and Massachusetts Bay.

It is necessary however that we should observe to your Lordship that there are two claims to these lands which upon this occasion will require to be considered the annexed Copy of a Petition presented to us by M<sup>r</sup> James Savage in behalf of himself and others will shew your Lordships that this Country has been for a long Series of years in the actual possession of a number of his Majesty's Subjects who principally under encouragement from the Government of Massachusetts Bay while it was supposed to belong to that province have seated themselves upon those Lands.

The other claim to which we beg leave to refer your Lordships is founded upon a Grant to sundry Inhabitants at New York in the year 1705 commonly called the Westhook Patent the Circumstances of which Grant will more fully appear to your Lordships from the annexed copy of a petition presented by<sup>1</sup> Governor Tryon by the proprietors of that Patent and by him delivered to us But we beg leave to observe to your Lordships that upon the fullest consideration of this Claim and of every thing which has been offered to us in support of it we cannot think it ought to have any weight in this Consideration there being no evidence whatever the lands supposed to be conveyed thereby were ever taken up at any time or indeed that they ever could have been so taken up as the description of the limits in the Grant itself has no reference whatever to any places or point of determination at present known or to be found with<sup>2</sup> the district in question.

With regard to the case of the other Claimants who are stated to be in actual possession of the Lands comprehended within that district we submit to your Lordships that it appears to us to deserve a much more favourable consideration not only from the Claimants having had possession for many years and from their having cultivated and improved the Land with great Industry and labour and at a great expence but also from their having at all times according to the representation made to us by Governor Tryon demanded<sup>3</sup> themselves with distinguished loyalty and attachment and from their having by their dutiful and peaceable conduct merited the encouragement and protection of the Government of New York under these circumstances therefore however desirous we are of shewing every proper attention to the case of the Officers whose Petitions have been referred to us by your Lordships yet we could not consistently with any principles of Justice and Equity recommend such a Location of their Grants upon this Tract as should prejudice the interests of the other claimants at the same time we have the Satisfaction to acquaint your Lordships that this difficulty has been happily removed by the following proposition suggested by the petitioners and assented to by M<sup>r</sup> Savage on behalf of his constituents which proposition is as follows Viz<sup>t</sup>

“ That the Officers be allowed to locate their Lands claimed under the Proclamation upon
 “ that Tract within the Province of New York which lies between the North and South “ Manors of Renselaer bounded on the West by the Kinderhook patent and on the East by “ the Jurisdiction line between the Provinces of New York and Massachusetts Bay as far as “ such locations can be made without prejudice to the present occupancies (now under actual “ improvement) allowing to each occupant at the Rate of fifty Acres of Woodland for every “ two hundred Acres of Land under actual Improvement and so in proportion for a greater or “ lesser number of Acres such parcels of Woodlands to be as contiguous as possible to each “ occupancy to which the same shall be respectively allotted and if any quantity of Woodland “ shall have been already inclosed by any of the occupants such Woodland if less than the “ proportion abovementioned shall be reckoned as part of the Woodland so directed to be “ allotted to each occupancy as aforesaid and if it exceeds the number of fifty Acres in that “ case no Woodland shall be allotted and that in so far as the vacant Lands shall fall short of “ the quantity claimed by the Petitioners they be allowed to locate double the quantity of such “ residue in some other part of the province of New York or elsewhere in North America not

As this proposition appears to us to be just and reasonable in every light in which it can be viewed we trust your Lordships will agree with us in opinion that it will be fit for his Majesty to give his Royal sanction to it and therefore we beg leave to recommend to your Lordships to advise his Majesty to send such Instructions to his Governor of New York as shall correspond therewith.

My Lords

Pursuant to your Lordships order dated the 17th day of June 1772, we have taken into our consideration the Petition of Michel Chartier de Lotbiniere, Cheavalier and styling himself Seigneur de Alainville and d'Hocquart, setting forth amongst other things that he has been deprived and dispossessed of his two Lordships of d'Alainville and d'Hocquart situated at the head of Lake Champlain in a most advantageous position and consisting of the best and richest land in the Province of New York to which they were annexed eighteen Months after the Treaty of peace and humbly praying for the reasons therein contained that they may be reinstated in the full enjoyment of his said two Lordships in the same manner as when under the Government of France and that he may be reimbursed the expense he has been at in endeavouring to obtain redress therein and to be indemnified for having been kept out of his estate and property for so long a time as well as for the damage his said Estates may have sustained. Whereupon we beg leave to report to your Lordships,

That the petition of Mons<sup>r</sup> de Lotbiniere refers to two tracts of Land under very different circumstances.

With regard to that Tract which is claimed by the Petitioner under a Title derived from a purchase made by him of Mons<sup>r</sup> d'Hocquart in April 1763 after the conclusion of the peace with France, it consists of two Seigneuries which amongst several other Seigneuries were granted by the most Christian King or under his Authority by the Governor of Canada upon Lake Champlain after France had in violation of the Rights of the Crown of Great Britain usurped the possession of the late and the circumjacent Country and forcibly maintained that possession by erecting in the year 1731 a fortress at Crown Point.

It appears by the most authentic evidence upon the Books of our Office that Lake Champlain and the circumjacent Country were at all times claimed by the five nations of Indians as part of their possessions and that by agreement with them the Land on both sides the Lake to a very great extent was granted by the Gov<sup>o</sup> of New York to British Subjects long before any possession appears to have been taken by the Crown of France which having by the express stipulation of the fifteenth Article of the treaty of Utrecht acknowledged the Sovereignty of the Crown of Great Britain over the Five Nations had upon every principle of Justice and Equity precluded itself from any claim to the possession of any part of their Territory

Upon these Grounds it was that erecting a Fort at Crown Point in 1731 was then, and ever after complained of as an Incroachment on the British Territories and a violation of Our Rights and so carefull were the Ministers of this Country to preserve those Rights that when in the consequence of the Treaty of Aix La Chapelle Commissaries were in the year 1750 appointed to settle with Commissaries on the part of France the limits of each others possessions in North America, they were instructed to insist that France had no Right to any possession on the South side of the River St Lawrence.

Under these circumstances therefore and for as much as we are clearly of opinion that the Stipulations of the Treaty of Paris, by which Canadian property is reserved doth both in the letter and Spirit of them refer only to the property and possession of the Canadians in Canada of which we insist that the Country upon Lake Champlain was no part, we cannot recommend to your Lordship to advise his Majesty to comply with what is requested by the Petitioner or to do any Act which may in any respect admit a right in the Crown of France to have made those Grants under which the possessions upon Lake Champlain are now claimed either by Canadian Subjects or others deriving that claim under purchases from them: We do not however mean by any opinion of Ours to prejudice their claims in any Suit they may bring for establishing those claims by due course of Law and we submit [whether] under any circumstances of the Case the question in dispute between these claimants and the possessors under New York Grants can be properly decided by his Majesty in Council, unless upon any appeal from such Courts as have constitutionally the cognizance of such Matters.

On the other hand when we consider that many of his Majestys Subjects trusting to the validity of the Canadian Titles have become proprietors of these Seigneuries under purchases for valuable considerations We cannot but be of opinion that the making Grants under the Seal of New York of any part of those Seigneuries was an unjust and unwarrantable proceeding That the claimants therefore ought to be quieted in the possession of at least those parts which remain yet ungranted by such order as his Majestys Law Servants shall think more effectual for that purpose that the Governor of New York should receive the most positive orders not to make any further Grants whatever of any part of the Lands within the limits of any of these Seigneuries and that a suitable compensation should be made to the claimants for what has already been taken away by giving them gratuitous Grants, equivalent in quantity, in other parts of his Majestys Provinces of Quebec or New York.

With regard to the other Tract claimed by the petitioner under the description of the concession of d'Alainville, when we consider its situation to the South of Crown Point, that it is stated to have been granted to him at a time when his Majestys Armies had penetrated into, and occasionally possessed themselves of the Country and that independent of these objections there is no evidence of the Grants having been ratified by the Crown of France, or registered within the Colony we cannot recommend to your Lordships to advise His Majesty to give any countenance thereto; But if<sup>1</sup> the Petitioner, if he thinks he has a good title, should be left to establish that Title by due course of law in such mode as he shall be advise<sup>1</sup> to pursue for that purpose.

Having said thus much upon the merits of the petition itself, in so far as it regards the validity of the petitioners title to the Lands he claims we think it necessary in Justice to the noble Lord, that presided at this Board in the year 1764 to take some notice of what is alledged therein in respect to the declaration said to have been made by his Lordship to the effect of what is stated by the petitioner; and to observe that admitting that his Lordship had, in conversation with the petitioner made use of the expressions he states, they could only refer to possessions and property in general any where, to which he could shew a legal title; and as an evidence of this meaning we beg leave to lay before your Lordships the annexed extract of a letter to the Lieutenant Governor of New York written in consequence of the petitioners application and subscribed by the Earl of Hillsborough which is so far from admitting a Title in the petitioner to these Lands which he claims in particular that it expressly reserves any discussion upon that question until the evidence of the legality of the Title should be more authentically adduced and in the mean time with equal Justice and humanity forbids any further Grants being made within the limits of the Seigneuries claimed by the Petitioner

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII., No. 17.]

New York 7th June 1775

My Lord

My Letter to your Lordship No 16 of the 3<sup>d</sup> of May, and the minute of Council then transmitted, contained a full account of the unhappy confusion and disorder introduced into this Province in consequence of what had happened at Boston on the 19th of April. After those accounts, and every particular circumstance of our situation which your Lordship would be informed of, by the Gentlemen of the Council, and others who went to England in the May Packet, you will not be surprized to hear that congresses and Committees are now established in this Province and are acting with all the confidence and authority of a legal Government. The Provincial Congress of this Province, now sitting, consist of upwards of 100 Members. Except the remote Counties of Tryon, Gloucester and Cumberland, and some districts in Queens County on Long Island, every other part of the Province have sent Deputys. The City Committee and Sub Committees in the Country places, are likewise kept up; and that the new Plan of Government may be compleat, for carrying into execution the determinations of the continental and Provincial Congresses, those few places which have not yet appointed their sub Committees are now called upon by the provincial Congress to do it immediately.

The principal matters said to be under consideration in the Congresses are raising money and an army to oppose the Kings Forces, and erecting such Fortifications as may best keep the command of the Country, and obstruct the March of an army. The Congress are well aware, that an attempt to raise money by an immediate assessment upon the People, would give a disgust that might ruin all their measures, and therefore propose to do it by issuing a paper Currency. I am told this measure has been referred by the Continental Congress to the several Provincial Congresses and that the Congress of New York have approved of it, as no doubt all the others will.

The Places proposed to be immediately fortified, in this Province, are Kingsbridge, upon the little River which separates the Island of New York from the Continent, about 14 miles from the City: and some place on each side of Hudsons River, which may be best situated for maintaining the Command of that River. It was mentioned in the Minute of Council transmitted with my last letter to your Lordship, that a number of Cannon were removed from the City into the Country. The Continental Congress approved of this measure and recommended that all the Cannon and Ammunition should be remov<sup>d</sup> into the Country, except those belonging to the King; which has accordingly been done. I am told the amount to above 100 Pieces of Ship Cannon belonging to the Merchants, tho' many of them are not fit for use. It is said there is but a small quantity of Ammunition in this Province, it having been bought up by the New England People, whatever there is, is removed into the Country. The Spirit of arming, and military Parade still runs high in the City Several companies are formed who have appointed their own officers, are well armed and cloathed in uniform. The Contagion has not yet spread much in the Country where the people would be very glad to remain quiet, but indefatigable pains are taken to bring the whole Province into one plan of Measures

It must excite the most pointant sensations of Pain and anxiety, my Lord, in every Breast where the principles of humanity, are not obliterated by the rage of Political Enthusiasm, to see a people thus calmly determine to involve a Country in dreadfull War and desolation; not even seeming to pay the least attention to a peaceable accommodation tho' benevolently held out to them by their gracious Sovereign and the Parliament. In this gloomy prospect of affairs the friends of Government have received a glimpse of hope upon hearing that M<sup>r</sup> Duane a Delegate from New York, has moved in the Continental Congress to introduce a plan of accommodation which produced a warm debate but was carried in favor of the Motion. Any measures, my Lord, are to be preferred to those of Hostility. A Negotiation once begun, will give the people time to cool, and feel the consequence of what they have already done, before they become as desperate as are the Eastern Colonies

I transmit your Lordship Copies of an address made to me by the Committee of New York on the 13th of last month, and of my answer. It is evident that the real design of the address, tho' the pretence is different was to take an opportunity of declaring their Sentiments upon the present unhappy controversy. A direct answer to this, tho' the material part of the address, I was well convinced would not be of any use at this time of Delusion. I therefore, in opposition to their assertion that all applications from the Colonies have been rejected introduced a short account of the benevolent disposition of His Majesty and the House of Commons as expressed in your Lordships letters and the resolution of that House. The recent instance of Disorder attended to in my answer, was a most scandalous outrage upon Dr Cooper,<sup>1</sup> the president of our College. He narrowly escaped being seized by a Mob, who broke the College Gate open, and would certainly have committed the most violent abuse upon him if he had not happily saved himself by Flight. The Doctor is since gone from this distracted country to England and will give your Lordship a further particular account of the transactions here. The odium excited against him is for his warm attachm<sup>t</sup> to Government and his being a supposed author of almost every peice that was published on that side of the Question I presume your Lordship is so well acquainted with his Character & Merit that I need not add anything to introduce him to your attention. Mr Revington the Printer of one of our newspapers was attacked by the same Mob and rescued out of their Hands by the Resolution of one or two friends He has since taken refuge on Board of the Man of War and will not yet venture to return to his House. His Crime is only the liberty of his Press

While these transactions engrossed the attention of the City a matter of greater importance was carried on in the Northern part of this Province No less than the actual taking His Majesty's Forts at Tienonderoga and Crown Point, and making the Garrison Prisoners. I have not any account my Lord of this affair, but what I have collected from the Current Reports for all intelligence to Government, thro' the country is effectually cut off. The only people of this Province who had any hand in this expedition, where that set of lawless people whom your Lordship has heard much of under the name of the Bennington Mob. They were joined by a party from Connecticut and an other from Massachusetts Bay They surprised the Garrison & took the Forts without opposition. The Prisoners are carried into Connecticut These people advanced across a lake as far St Johns; took a Vessel there and destroyed a number of Boats and some Store Houses. This will retard the operations which Governor Carleton will probably undertake on this occasion. He alone has it in his power to do any thing in that quarter, and I hope he may have an opportunity of severely retaliating this wanton Act of Treason. Many people there are of opinion, my Lord, this has been a plan concerted by our neighbours of the East, in order to embarrass this Colony, and impell us into a situation like their own—It is evident that all the neighbouring Colonies saw with outmost Jealousy, the moderate Temper of the Majority of our people, and the conduct of our Assembly—They determined to hold up such terrors as should effectually prevent us from accepting of the indulgences and favours intended by Parliament. We were looked upon as highly inimical to their Designs, and plans were laid to effect our Destruction, or produce an explicit union with them which have been executed with great success I am told the People who took the Forts, immediately dispatched a Messenger to the Continental Congress but I have not learnt, with any degree of certainty, what resolutions either they or the provincial Congress have taken upon it.

His Majesty's Ship Asia came into our Harbour about ten days since. In my letter of March 1<sup>4</sup> No 13 I informed your Lordship that I had suggested to Admiral Graves the propriety of sending one of the large Ships to this Place. He answer<sup>d</sup> that I might expect the Asia here by the

1st of April. I am heartily sorry she was not, for I really think the Countenance of that Ship would have had a good effect by encouraging some and discouraging others—The friends of Government saw no security for their persons or Property but by joining with the multitude

I have considered my Lord, with great attention, the sudden change of Measures, and to all appearance of Sentiments, which has happened in this place, and upon the best judgement I am able to form, it is my opinion, that if the same number of Regular Troops had been here which we have had at all times since the Peace, till now, this change of Measures and Prostration of legal Authority had not happened. And upon the information I have received, I will venture to say, that when ever a sufficient Protection appears, it will be found that His Majesty has many true and loyal Subjects who are at present compelled to acquiesce in the Plans of opposition. I have reason to believe that numbers now appear in Arms in the City, who have not the least intention to oppose Governm<sup>t</sup> but will join to support legal Authority when there is an opportunity. I know of one company in particular who have associated to support Government, but for the present appear and parade as others do. The association mentioned in the minute of Council to which I have already referred was signed by many Hands during the first impulses of Confusion and Despair; but that having subsided, the spirit of signing has very much abated. I am told only 1800 have signed in the City of New York There must be at least three times that number who have an equal Right to sign. The Congress have lately directed a fresh application to be made to every Man throughout the Province who has not signed and the names of those who do not sign to be returned to them by the 15th July

As it is not possible for me my Lord, in our present situation to obtain regular Intelligence— I am obliged to mention such Reports of Matters of consequence, as I have any reason to believe true. Of this kind is a Report that a body of 2500 Connecticut men are enamping at Greenwich, a place in that Government about 40 miles distant from New York City, the declared purpose of this army is to keep this Government in awe, and prevent any defection here from the general Plan of Measures; and to assist, if necessary, in opposing the measures of Government

In my letter to your Lordship N<sup>o</sup> 16 I mentioned the very disagreeable & critical situation of the Few Troops who were quartered in the Barracks of this Place and that only by the interposition of the more prudent Inhabitants, they were suffered to remain in Peace. No Pains however were spared to debauch the men and induce them to desert. Large Rewards and certain Protection they were assured of; which had such effect that the officers began at last to apprehend they were in danger of loosing the whole. In this situation General Gage wrote to Major Hamilton, by the Asia, that he thought it would be a proper measure to put the Troops under his command on Board of that Ship, and desired him to consult with me upon it. As I was very sensible this small number of Troops could not be of any use in the Barracks, and were exposed to those very disagreeable circumstances I have already mentioned, I did not doubt of the propriety of the Measure proposed by Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage a difficulty however arose on account of the women and Children, who were too numerous to be taken on Board with the men, almost the whole that belong to the Regiment being in the Barracks here with this detachment. This occasioned a delay of eight or ten days in which time several soldiers deserted. We at length thought of enamping the Women and Children on what is called the Governors Island, till they could be otherwise taken care of, and yesterday was fixed for embarking the Troops on Board the Asia, The Provincial Congress had notice, that some people proposed to stop the embarkation upon which they published a hand Bill advising the People by no means to molest the Troops, or interrupt them in their design. They likewise appointed a number of their members to join the City Magistrates and assist them in preventing any interruption to the Troops. As soon as the Troops marched from the Barracks, several People began to harangue them, exhorting them to desert, and assuring them of sufficient Protection Two or three fellows had the hardiness to turn off with their arms, from the Ranks, and were immediately carried away by the People, when the Troops got upon the Deck<sup>1</sup> where they were to embark on board of Boats, the Carts following in the rear with their Baggage, were stopp'd and in the Face of the Mayor, Aldermen, Congress and Committee men, turn'd about by a few desperate fellows, carried to a Place in Town, where they opened the Baggage, and took out a number of spare arms and all the ammunition belonging to the Detachment. The Troops embark<sup>d</sup> without their Baggage

This violent outrage has much alarmed the Inhabitants, and many of the Congress and Committee Men themselves, who did not expect that their authority would meet with a public contempt, which demonstrated how inadequate they were to the Government or Protection of the People. Yesterday made it sufficiently evident that a people encouraged to trample on Majistrates and legal authority, will not be governed by any thing but their own wild and dangerous Passions

I have received the Despatches from your Lordships office, by the April Mail and the Secret Dispatch by Lieut<sup>t</sup> Coll M<sup>c</sup>Lean with whom I have not yet had any consultation He immediately after he arrived, embark'd again for Boston in a vessel which waited here for the Generals Despatches, I hope the Plan he is on may succeed

I am with entire submission and respect

Address of the New-York Association to Lieutenant-Governor Colden.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) GLXVII.]

To the Honorable Cadwallader Colden Esq<sup>r</sup> Lieutenant Governor and Commander in Chief of His Majestys Colony of New York & the Territories thereon depending in America &c &c.

The Humble Address of the General Committee of Association for the City and County of New York

May it please your Honor

It frequently happens under every Form of Government, that the measures of administration excite the just jealousies of the People, and that the same measures pursued divest them of all confidence in those, in whose Hands the ordinary executive Powers are lodged. In such a state of things it is natural for the people to cast their eyes upon those of their fellow sufferers, on whose abilities and integrity they can rely; and to ask their advice and direction for the Preservation of all that is dear and valuable to them.

That such is the Frame & Temper of our Inhabitants; you have had the fullest opportunity to know, in the course of that Residence with which you have lately honored us

This City and County, as well as the rest of the Colony have exercised the greatest Patience in waiting tho' in vain, for a redress of the many unconstitutional Burdens under which this whole Continent has groan'd for several years past. To their inexpressible greif they have found, that the most dutifull applications for Redress have not only been rejected but have been answered by reiterated violations of their Rights

You cannot therefore wonder, Sir, that at this most interesting crisis, when their all is at stake, and when under the authority of administration the Sword has been drawn, tho' unsuccessfully against their Brethren of Massachusetts for asserting those invaluable Rights which are the common inheritance of Britons and Americans, that the City and County of New York have proceeded to associate in the Common cause, and to the election of a Committee and Delegates in Congress to represent them in their claims, and to direct their Councils and conduct for the preservation of those inestimable priviledges, to which the Great Creator the Order of their being as rational creatures, & our happy constitution, have given them an undoubted title.

To this important end they have unanimously invested us their Committee with a Trust which we are determined, with the best of our abilities, and most faithfully to discharge; and in the execution of which we think it our indispensable duty to declare

That our Constituents, while they chearfully yield that the legislative of the Parent State may make Provisions in their Nature merely calculated to regulate the Trade of the empire, yet they claim as their indefeazable Birthright a Total exemption from all Taxes internal and external by Authority of Parliament; and from every Aid to the Crown, but on Royal Requisition to their Representatives in Assembly, constitutionally convened and freely deliberating & determining upon every such requisition

That they never can, nor will submit to the establishment of unconstitutional Admiralty Jurisdictions; but will ever regard them, as Engines that may be employed for the most Tyrannical Purposes

That they are determined never to part with their precious and lately invaded Right of Trial by Peers of their Vicinage in any case whatsoever

That they look with the utmost dread on every expedient by Authority of Parliament or otherwise, that may tend to secure from condign punishm' Offenders against the most essential Rights of human Nature, by removing them for their trial to places distant from the Scene of Perpetration at the discretion of a Governor or Commander in Chief

That they esteem and therefore will by every lawfull means oppose the late oppressive restraints upon Commerce as subversive in their Nature of the liberties of America.

That they regard the hostile blockade of the Port of Boston, the attack upon the venerable Charter Rights of Massachusetts, the extension of the Bounds of Quebec, the establishment of Popery, and an arbitrary form of Government in that Province, and the exclusive Priviledges virtually given to it in the Indian Trade; as so many Steps of an ill judging administration that most eminently endanger the liberty and prosperity of the whole Empire

That they view with inexpressible horror the bloody Standard erected in the Eastern Part of the confederated Colonies; and feel as in their own bodies every stroke which their brave compatriotes have received from the hands of their fellow subjects; cruelly & unnaturally armed against them by mistaken ministerial severity

In short that they are determined to equip themselves for maintaining with successful bravery & resolution, the unquestionable Rights of Englishmen

Permit us at the same time, Sir, to assure you in their behalf that tho' they are arming with the greatest Diligence and industry; it is not with design to oppose, but to strengthen Government in the due exercise of constitutional Authority, it is to be in a state of readiness to repel every lawless attack by our Superiors, and to prevent anarchy and confusion to which ministerial misconduct has evidently paved the way. It is to defend the liberties of the subject, and to enable your Honor and those in office under you efficaciously to administer the just Government of this Colony

Your Honor cannot but see the sudden Transition of the Inhabitants of this Capital, from a state of Tumult occasioned by the Hostilities committed against their Brethren; to Tranquillity and good order, as the consequence of our appointment. It is our ardent wish, Sir, that the same Tranquillity and good order may be permanent.

We look forward therefore with deep concern at the expected arrival of Troops from Great Britain. An event that will probably be attended with innumerable mischeifs. Their Presence will doubtless revive the Resentment of our Inhabitants at the repeatedly avowed design of subjugating the Colonies by military Force. Mutual jealousies may break out into reciprocal violence. Thousands will in that case be poured in upon us from our other Counties, and the neighbouring Colonies, who we are well assured have resolved to prevent this City from being reduced to the present situation of Boston. Thus, instead, of being a secure Garrison Town and Place of Arms, as is vainly expected by some, the streets of New York may be deluged with Blood, Such a destructive evil we are well assured your Honor will do every thing in your Power to prevent, Permit us then, sir, to beseech you to apply to General Gage for orders that such Troops as may arrive from Great Britain or Ireland, do not land or encamp in this City and County, and in case of their arrival before your honor shall receive the Generals answer to solicit the command<sup>r</sup> officer to the same purpose

Give us leave, Sir, to conclude by assuring you, that we are determined to improve that confidence with which the People have honored us, in strengthen<sup>d</sup> the hand of the civil Magistrate in every lawfull measure calculated to promote the Peace and just Rule of this Metropolis; and consistent with that jealous attention which above all things we are bound to pay to the violated Rights of America

We are Sir, with the greatst

Respect

Your Honors

Most obedient and

humble Servants

By the unanimous order of the Committee

HENRY REMSEN Dy Chairman

May 11. 1775.

Answer of Lieutenant-Governor Colden to the Address of the New-York Association.

[ New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII. ]

Gentlemen

I have the best authority to assure you, that our most gracious Sovereign and both Houses of Parliam<sup>t</sup> have declared their Readiness to afford every just and reasonable Indulgence to the Colonies, whenever they should make a proper Application, on the Ground of any real Greivances they may have to complain of. This Declaration has been followed by a Resolution of the House of Commons, which it was expected would have manifested the Justice & moderation of Parliament, and a disposition to comply with every wish of the Subjects in America. They offer to forbear every kind of Taxation or Assessment on America; except such as are necessary for the Regulation of Commerce; and only require that the Colonies should make Provision by such ways and means as are best suited to their respective circumstances, for contributing a proportion to the Common defence of the Empire, for the support of their own civil Government and the administration of Justice. His Majestys Ministers did not doubt this Temper in Parliament would meet with such a Return on the part of the Colonies, as would lead to a happy issue of the present disputes, and to a re-establishment of the public Tranquillity on Grounds of equity, justice, & moderation. Is it not then to be lamented as a most unfortunate event, that the Patience of the People was exhausted at the moment of this prospect of a peaceable and happy accomplishment of all their wishes. Will not those in whom they now confide yet endeavour to obtain it? must this Country, till now happy and flourishing beyond Paralell be involved in the dreadful Calamities ever attendant on civil Wars, while there remains one possible means untried, by which so great so cruel an evil might be averted?—You tell me, Gentlemen, that the people have lost all confidence in the ordinary officers of Government and that they have cast their eyes upon you for advice and direction. I can not divest myself of the most affectionate concern for the welfare, the Peace, and prosperity of the people over whom I have so long presided as the immediate Representative of their August Sovereign; with whom I have lived the Term of a long life & among whom I leave all that is dear and valuable to me. I am impelled by my duty, and a most zealous attachment to the Interest and safety of this People, to exhort you not to irritate the present enraged state of their minds, nor suffer them to plunge into Labrynth from whence they can neither advance nor retreat, but through Blood and Desolation

His Majestys ministers have, in the Strongest Terms expressed the satisfaction with which the King received the Assurances of the loyalty & affection of his faithful subjects in this Governm<sup>t</sup>, and of their ardent desire for a permanent Reconciliation with the Mother Country I can not then conceive upon what grounds a suspicion is entertained, that the City of New York is to be reduced to the present State of Boston, I have not had the least intimation that any Regular Troops were destined for this Province. It is proper that General Gage should know your sentiments on this subject, and I shall embrace the first opportunity of communicating your request to him. At the same time I think there is reason to suspect, that this report has been invented to facilitate the introduction of an arm'd Force from Connecticut, which I am told is meditated. Will not the Apprehension of such a design rouse, you, Gentlemen, & every virtuous cityzen to avert, by every means in your power, a Measure so degrading, so dangerous to the Honor, safety, and freedom of this Colony

I have beheld with inexpressible anxiety, the state of Tumult and disorder which raged in the Metropolis of this Province; and I am sorry that a recent instance, since your appointment, revives the threatening prospect of Insecurity, to which the inhabitants are reduced. I exhort you to carry into effect the assurances you give me, that you are determined to improve that confidence with which the people have honored you, in strengthening the hands of the civil Magistrates. Let this be done immediately, and with impartial Firmness on every occasion; that the Houses, Persons, & Property of your fellow citizens may not be attacked and insulted with impunity, and every Degree of domestic security and Happiness sapped to the foundation.

CADWALLADER COLDEN

Earl of Dartmouth to Governor Tryon.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII.]

Whitehall, 1st July 1775

Sir

The Proceedings at New York upon the first Intelligence of what had passed on the 19th of April in Massachusetts Bay, are of a most extraordinary and alarming Nature for as, on the one hand, the acts of Violence committed and the Powers assumed by the Populace are (as the Council truly state) a Prostration of all Government, so, on the other hand, the advice of that council in consequence thereof, that General Gage should be told, that unless he desisted from all measures of Irritation, or, in other words laid down his arms, no Reconciliation could be expected is in effect no less a Prostration of the authority of this Kingdom to the unwarrantable claims and Pretensions of America

It is hoped however that this advice proceeded from their Timidity in consequence of the consternation they were thrown into by the Intelligence of an event untruly and unfairly related and His Majesty receiving it in that light, is graciously pleased to excuse a conduct which if it had proceeded from other motives must have been considered as an insult to the Kings dignity, more especially after the fullest assurances had been given of His Majestys firm Resolution to maintain the constitution and after both Houses of Parliament bad in their joint address pledged themselves to support His Majesty at the hazard of their lives and Fortunes against the Rebellious Attempts of His Subjects in Massachusetts Bay

I am persuaded, Sir, you must have seen that transaction in the same light, and as you would have been able to have fully explained to the People the real Sentiments of Government here upon the present unhappy disputes with America, and the true spirit of His Majestys Measures; I am in great hope, that, upon your arrival, the vigor of Government would have been restored and the People would have recovered that good sense and good Humour which gave us so well grounded an assurance that they would have calmly and dispassionately have taken up the consideration of the Resolution of the House of Commons of the 20th of February

Be that however as it may, I am commanded by the King to say, that it is His Majestys firm Resolution to exert every power which the constitution has placed in His hands to compel obedience to the Laws and authority of the supreme Legislature. To that end orders have been already given for augmenting our Naval Forces in America, and we think we shall soon be able to make such addition to the Army under General Gage as will enable him to withstand the utmost efforts of that Rebellion into which the People of the four New England Provinces have so rashly plunged

It is hoped that notwithstanding the present unfavorable appearances at New York & the other Southern Colonies they will not attempt to send assistance to the Rebels, but it is judged expedient at all events to guard as much as possible against it, and for that purpose the Admiral will be directed to send to New York such a Part of his Fleet, as he shall think may be necessary to secure (as far as depends upon Naval Service) the Passes of Hudsons River, and to support the operations of the Four Battallions ordered thither, in case General Gages situation will admit of their acting as a separate Corps

In our present State of uncertainty anxiously waiting for further advices from America, I have nothing to add but this single reflection ; that however desirable a Reconciliation with America may be, it must not be sought for on the ground of a submission of the authority of Great Britain to their Pretensions, but can only be found in their submission to that authority which as it can never be exerted but for the common good Obedience to it is and must be that Bond of Peace & unity, upon which the Dignity and security of the empire are to depend.

I am &c

New York 3<sup>d</sup> July 1775

My Lord

In my letter No 17 I inform<sup>d</sup> your Lordship that I had received your secret dispatches by Col Allan Maclean and that he was gone to Boston. He has since returned and sat out again from hence the 25th ult<sup>o</sup> for Albany. He is obliged to proceed very cautiously, and must use some address to get to Coll Johnson; from thence he proposes to go, by way of Oswego to Montreal

While Col Maclean was at Boston, the Provincial Congress discovered that one McDonald, formerly a Serjeant was endeavouring to engage men to join the Kings Troops; they seized him, and on his examination found that he had been employed by Major Small<sup>1</sup> for this Purpose;

<sup>1</sup> JOHN SMALL was born in 1726 and entered the army early in life. He was on half pay in 1756, when appointed Lieutenant in the 42d Highlanders on the eve of its departure for America, to join the expedition under Lord Loudon. In 1758, the regiment served under Gen. Abercromby against Ticonderoga, and Lieut. Small accompanied the expedition under Amherst the following year to the same part of the country, and in 1760 went down from Oswego to Montreal; he served in the West Indies in 1762, and on the 6th of August of that year was promoted to a company. The second battalion then returned to Scotland, where it was reduced in 1763, and Captain Small went on half pay, where he remained until April, 1765, when he was appointed to a company in the 21st or Royal North British Fusiliers which came soon after to America. He continued with this regiment until 1775, when he received a similar commission to that of Lt. Col. Maclean (Supra, p. 563), to raise a corps of Highlanders in Nova Scotia in aid of the crown. He was accordingly appointed Major, commanding the 2d battalion of the 84th Royal Emigrants, with a portion of which he joined the Royal armies under Sir H. Clinton at New-York in 1779, and in 1780 was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment. The Grenadier company was at the battle of Eutaw Springs. In 1782 he was quartered on Long Island and in 1783 the regiment was disbanded. The men who were Americans, and had enlisted while the 84th was stationed on Long Island, emigrated to Nova Scotia, where they settled the present town of Douglas. Lt. Col. Small became a Colonel in the army on the 18th November, 1790, and was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey in 1793; he was promoted to the rank of Major-General 3 October, 1794, and died at Guernsey on 17th March, 1796, in the 70th year of his age. Gentleman's Magazine, LXVI, 353; Brown's Highland Clans, IV, 155, 167, 309; Army Lists; Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs, VI, 269; Halliburton's Nova Scotia, II, 112; Onderdonk's Queens County, pp. 203, 519, 523. — Ed.

they sent him a Prisoner into Connecticut. This has raised a violent suspicion against the Scots and Highlanders and will make the execution of Coll Maclean's Plan more difficult

The Connecticut Troops, which in my last letter, I informed your Lordship were stationed on the Borders of this Province, marched last week to this City and encamped in the suburbs This we are told is done by the order of the Continental congress, but for what purpose is kept a secret. The same Congress have appointed George Washington Commander in Chief of the American Army. Lee and Philip Schuyler Major Generals and Horatio Gates Adjutant General—They all arrived here from Philadelphia the 25th Ult<sup>o</sup> Schuyler who is of this Province is left to take the command in this Quarter, the others went forward to Boston

I have now informed your Lordship of every thing of consequence that has happened in this Province up to the day of Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryons return to his Government which was on the 25th Ult<sup>o</sup> I entreat your Ldp to beleive that I am with the firmest attachment to His Majestys Person and Government and the Greatest respect to your Lordship

My Lord

I arrived in the Governm<sup>t</sup> the 25th of last month with apparent satisfaction to the Inhabitants of this city, and received the next morning the Great Seal of the Province, and the diminished authority the Lieutenant Governor had to transfer to me.

The General Revolt that has taken place in the Colonies has put his Majestys civil Governors in the most degraded situation, left in the exercise of only such feeble executive Powers as suit the present conveniences of the Country, and this dependant on the caprice of a moment. To attempt coercive measures by the civil aid would hold up Government to additional contempt by the exposure of the weakness of the executive and civil Branches, and as to calling in the legislative authority the reasons set forth in the minutes of Council herewith transmitted, as well on the first of May as upon the occasion of my asking the advice of Council in this time of general Tumult, will point out the impossibility of obtaining at present any success to the Resolution of Parliament for accommodation especially since the Colonies to the Southward whose Legislatures have met have uniformly referred the consideration thereof to the Continental Congress. If it were the wish it is not in the Power of any one Province to accommodate with Great Britain being overawed and controuled by the General confederacy Oceans of Blood may be spilt but in my opinion America will never receive parliamentary Taxation. I do not meet with any of the Inhabitants who shew the smallest inclination to draw the Sword in support of that principle, a Principle, I apprehend, the extremity of Calamity which threatens America will not induce her to accept The firm friends of Government here upon any other Ground of Parliamentary authority are now depressed by those who have taken the Power into their Hands possibly for deeper designs.

Five thousand men are raising through this Province for the general Defence as it is said of the liberties of America to be paid out of the two millions of Dollars issuing in Paper money at Philadelphia a measure that will be permanent ruin to the Merchants of this, who will be compelled to take it in discharge of Bond Debts, Dry Goods & c &

The Continental Troops were ordered here by the Continental Congress, as well to endeavor to check the four Regiments which were intend<sup>d</sup> for this Province, as a mark of disgrace and Punishment to New York for the conduct of her General Assembly last Session. The pay of these Troops, who are embodied for five months from May last is placed to the account of this Province

The Communication through the Province, and I understand through the Continent, are stopt. Every traveller must have a Pass from some Committee, or some Congress. We are therefore extremely in want of more frequent Communication by Water to Boston As General Haldimand is well informed of the military operations on this Continent, I beg leave to refer your Lordship to him for particulars. And to Coll Morris<sup>1</sup> & M<sup>r</sup> Watts<sup>2</sup> for the true State, Sentiments, & desperate Situation of this once happy, but now distressed Country

I am with the greatest respect My Lord

Your Lordships most obedient Servant

<sup>1</sup> Colonel ROOSA MORRIS was born in England 28th January, 1717, and obtained a Captaincy in the 48th Foot, 13th September, 1745. Army List, 1758. His regiment having been ordered to accompany the expedition under Braddock, Captain Morris was appointed one of the General's Aid de Camps and was wounded in the engagement of the 8th July, 1755, on the banks of the Monongahela. In 1757 he served, with his regiment, in the expedition under Lord Loudon. On 19th January, 1758, he married Mary, daughter of Frederick Philipse, of Yonkers, Westchester county, N. Y., and in February following, purchased a majority in the 35th Foot, with a detachment of which he did duty at Halifax. In the winter following he was stationed at Fort Frederic, and was occasionally detailed to chase the Indians who harassed the British settlements in Nova Scotia. In 1759, he accompanied Wolfe in the expedition against Quebec and was attached to the corps d'elite, the Louisbourg grenadiers, with whom he participated in the battle on the Plains of Abraham; Major Morris also performed good service at the battle of Sillery, 28th April, 1760, in which the French defeated the English. In May following, he was promoted to be Lieutenant-Colonel of the 47th Foot in the place of Hale, appointed to the 18th Light Dragoons, and commanded the 3d battalion in the expedition against Montreal that summer, under General Murray. He sold his commission and retired from the army in June, 1764, when he was elevated to the Executive Council of the Province, in which body he took his seat on the 5th December following. Council Minutes, XXV, 594. Having adhered to the Crown in the Revolution, his name was included in the New-York Act of Attainder of 1779. In December, 1781, Commissary-General Hake addressed a letter to Lieutenant-Colonel Oliver De Lancey, Adjutant-General of the Royal forces, accusing Mr. Morris of "disloyalty." This letter was forwarded by Sir Henry Clinton to Governor Robertson and laid before the Council; but after investigation, the charge was declared "false, scandalous and malicious." Council Minutes, XXVI, 462-467. At the peace, Mr. Morris retired to England, where he died on the 18th September, 1794, aged 77; his widow survived him until July, 1825. Their remains were deposited near Saviourgate Church, York. Sergeant's Expedition of Braddock, 369, note; Knox's Historical Journal, I, 163, 203, 297; II, 69, 344, 374; Warburton's Conquest of Canada, II, 364. — Ed.

<sup>2</sup> Hon. JOHN WATTS was the eldest son of Robert Watts, of Rose Hill, near Edinburgh, and Mary, eldest daughter of Wm. Nicoll, of Islip, L. L. He was born in New-York on the 5th of April, 1715, and in July, 1742, married Ann, youngest daughter of Stephen De Lancey. In 1747, he acquired the Rose Hill farm, containing over 130 acres, and which lay on the East river, between 21st and 30th streets, and between the 4th avenue and the water; he had a smaller farm adjoining on the west. Valentine's History of New-York, 382, and map annexed. His town house was No. 3 Broadway. He represented his native city in the Assembly for many years, and was appointed to the Council 19 December, 1767, and took his seat in that body 10 June, 1768, during the administration of his brother-in-law, Lieutenant-Governor De Lancey. New-York Council Minutes, XXV, 241. He continued a member of the Council until the 4th May, 1775, when he retired to England, two months after which (3 July, 1775,) he had the misfortune to lose his wife. In October, 1779, he was attainted by the legislature and his property confiscated; but on the 1st July, 1784, the Commissioners of Forfeitures for the Southern District of the State of New-York, reconveyed the most valuable part of the forfeited premises to his sons Robert and John, the latter of whom afterwards endowed with princely liberality that noble institution of charity, "The Leake and Watts Orphan House," New-York. The Hon. John Watts died in Wales in August, 1789, in the 60th year of his age. Gentleman's Magazine, LIX., 769. The following are the names of his children: Robert m. Lady Mary Alexander; Anne m. Sir

I have already in my dispatch of the first instant said every thing to you that was necessary in consequence of what passed at New York upon the Intelligence that was received of the affair in the neighbourhood of Boston on the 19th of April.

The advices which we have lately received contain the fullest evidence that all America, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Georgia, & the Floridas excepted, is in arms against Great Britain, and that we have to encounter an unnatural Rebellion that menaces the subversion of the Constitution

In this situation it is the Kings firm Resolution that the most vigorous efforts should be made both by Sea and Land to reduce his rebellious subjects to obedience and the proper measures are now pursuing not only for augmenting the army under General Gage but also for making such additions to our Naval strength in North America as may enable Admiral Graves to make such a disposition of his Fleet as that besides the Squadron necessary for the New England Station there may be separate Squadrons at New York within the Bay of Delaware, in Chesapeake Bay and upon the Coast of Carolina.

After what has passed there can be no doubt what ought to be the Plan of Operations for the Squadron upon the New England Station, and I think it necessary to acquaint you, for your own information, that Admiral Graves will be instructed to exert the most vigorous efforts, for suppressing the Rebellion now openly avowed & supported in that Country and to seize & detain all ships and Vessels belonging to the Inhabitants thereof, such only excepted as are the property of Persons who are friends of Government & have shewn an attachment to the Constitution

There is still some Room to hope that the Colonies to the Southward may not proceed to the same lengths with those of New England, it is however His Majesty's intentions that the Commanders of the separate Squadrons I have mentioned should be instructed to prevent all Commerce between the Colonies within their respective stations and any other places than Great Britain Ireland and His Majestys Islands in the West Indies That they should receive on Board and give protection to any officers of the Crown who may be compelled by the violence of the People to seek for such an Asylum and to proceed as in the Case of a Town in actual Rebellion against such of the sea port Towns being accessible to the Kings Ships, as shall hereafter offer any violence to the Kings officers or in which any Troops shall be raised or military works erected, other than by His Majestys authority, or any attempts made to seize or plunder any public Magazine of Arms or Ammunition

With regard to the plan of operations to be adopted by General Gage it must depend upon his own Judgment and the opinion of the able Generals with him, and therefore I have only to add that it is His Majestys express command that you do exert every endeavor and employ every means in your power to aid and support him and Admiral Graves in all such operations as they may think proper to undertake for carrying the Kings orders into full execution and restoring the authority of His Majestys Government.

Whitehall 5. July 1775.

Sir,

I have received your letter of the 17th of March, N<sup>o</sup> 7 and have laid it before the King.

The present state of affairs in His Majesties Colonies, in which an unnatural Rebellion has broke out that threatens to overturn the Constitution, precludes all immediate consideration in the Domestic concerns of the Ind<sup>as</sup> under your protection; nor it is to be expected that any measure which the King may think fit to take, for redressing the injuries they complain of respecting their lands, can, in the present moment, be attended with any effect. It will be proper, however, that you should assure them, in the strongest terms, of His Majesty's firm resolution to protect them and preserve them in all their rights; and it is more than ever necessary that you should exert the utmost vigilance to discover, whether any artifices, are used to engage them in the support of the Rebellious proceedings of his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> subjects, to counteract such treachery, and to keep them in such a state of affection and attachment to the King, as that his Maj<sup>ty</sup> may rely upon their assistance, in any case in which it may be necessary to require it.

At the same time it will be very proper that you should collect together, and state to me in the fullest manner, the different subjects of complaint referred to in the several conferences you have held with them, and that you should report your opinion, by what means those grievances may be effectually redressed, and all ground of discontent removed?

I am etc.

My Lord

In the delicate state of my health and public situation, & it being very probable I may be either taken Prisoner, as a state Hostage, or obliged to retire on board one of His Majestys Ships of War to avoid the insolence of an inflamed Mob, you will see the expediency of my humble request to His Majesty for discretionary leave to return to England and that it may be sent out to me by the next Packet; was I to remain three four or five months on board the ship on Salt Provisions, in my billious Habit of Body I should afterwards have but little prospect of compleating the voyage, the King may be assured I will make no wanton, hasty, or improper use of such Grace, and if I find I cannot stay in my Government will resign my Commission as Governor on my arrival in England. But should His Majesty have the least wish to recall me, I shall most cheerfully and obediently submit to His Royal Will Your Lordships good offices in obtaining for me the above request will greatly oblige my Lord

My Lord

The Mayor & Corporation of this City having come to a Resolution to present an address to me a copy of which was left with me by the Mayor the 3<sup>d</sup> Instant, I appointed yesterday to receive it. About ten in the morning the Mayor came to me to acquaint me he had an order from the Provincial Congress forbidding the Corporation to wait on me with their address. An order carrying so much personal Insult to the Kings Governor and so derogatory to the liberties of the Citizens, I told him, I hoped would not be regarded by the Corporation, and that they might reconsider the propriety of their waiting on me after they had left the copy of their address, and that I would be at home this day at twelve o'clock to receive it. Accordingly the Mayor waited on me with the inclosed apology from the Corporation, I then ordered him to deliver to the Corporation when assembled the answer I had prepared to their address as the best means to convey it to the citizens, since the situation of public affairs forbad them to wait upon me. The address and answer I have the honor herewith to transmitt

The intimidation and apprehension under which the Mayor & Corporation have acted on this occasion is a melancholy evidence of the impotence of His Matys Officers and Ministers of Justice in this Province and of the Dispotic Power with which Congresses & Committees can controul any body of People among the Inhabitants of America

I am, with great regard My Lord

To His Excellency William Tryon Esquire Captain General and Governor in Cheif of the Province of New York and the Territories thereon depending in America and Vice Admiral and Chancellor of the same

The Humble Address of the Mayor Aldermen & Commonalty of the City of New York

May it please your Excellency.

We wait on you Sir, to congratulate you on the better establishment of your health and to bid you welcome to a people, who from the rectitude of your administration could not part with you without the deepest regret, and who must therefore receive you again with all that confidence of safety and protection which the experience of your virtues and abilities can inspire

Would to Heaven that an event so honorable to you as this fresh mark of the Kings approbation really is and which is so acceptable to us, had found us in a condition more propitious to your felicity, for even amidst the complicated distresses of this melancholy hour we feel an addition to our Greif from the unfriendly aspect of the times, upon the happiness we sincerely wish you to enjoy.

To whatever causes the suspension of the Harmony once subsisting between the parent state, and her colonies, may be imputed be assured, Sir, that we sigh with the utmost ardour for the reestablishm<sup>t</sup> of the common Tranquillity upon that ancient System of Government and intercourse which has been such a fruitful source of general Prosperity and opulence

It is with affliction we behold a nation as renowned for wisdom as for valor involved in a civil War, in which disloyalty in His Majestys American Subjects to their Prince, or want of affection to their mother country constitute no part of the unnatural Controversy, and we trust, under a merciful God, in the aid of your intercession with His Mâty, for a speedy termination of those hostile animosities of his contending subjects, which undermine the power and threaten the destruction of the empire.

The above is a copy of the address which was intended to be presented to his Excellency Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon by the Corporation of the City of New York and which I delivered to him on the 3<sup>d</sup> July 1775 by order of the Common Council

In Provincial Congress New York

July 5th 1775

This Congress being informed that the Corporation of the City of New York intend to address His Excellency Governor Tryon. Resolved that tho' this Congress entertain the highest Respect for His Excellency, yet it will be altogether improper for the said Corporation, or any other Body corporate or individuals in this Colony to address His Excellency at this most critical Juncture—Resolved also that one of the Secretaries of this Congress Do forthwith serve his worship the Mayor with a copy hereof

A true copy from the Minutes

ROB<sup>t</sup> BENSON Secry

The above Copy of an order was served on me the day of the date thereof

WHITEHEAD HICKS Mayor.

<sup>1</sup> WHITEHEAD HICKS, the eldest son of Thomas and Margaret Hicks, was born at Flushing, L. I., August 24, 1728, and being destined by his father for the legal profession, received a good preparatory education, after which he was placed as a student in the office of the Hon. William Smith, where he had for his associates William Smith, Junior, the historian of New-York, and afterwards Chief Justice of Lower Canada, and William Livingston, afterwards Governor of New Jersey. Mr. Hicks was admitted to the bar Oct. 22. 1750 (New-York Commissions, III., 505), and immediately entered upon the practice of the law in the city of New-York, where he met with well merited success, and shared with his cotemporaries in the best business of his profession. He rose in a few years to the highest rank at the bar of the superior courts of the province, and was esteemed in a special manner for the integrity and courtesy which distinguished his professional and private conduct. On 12th March, 1752, he was appointed clerk of the county of Queens, and held that office until 28th February, 1757. New-York Commissions, VI., 23, 118. In October following he married Charlotte, only child of John Brevoort. In October, 1766, he succeeded Mr. Cruger as Mayor of the City of New-York, and continued in that office till 14th February, 1776, when he resigned on being appointed one of the judges of the Supreme Court of the Colony (New-York Commissions, VI., 184, 186), and thereupon retired with his family to Jamaica, where he remained a few months, when, his father dying, he took possession of the patrimony at Bay-side, Flushing, and there spent the remainder of his life. It is believed that he was privately in favor of independence, but timid in disposition, and holding an important judicial office under regal authority, he concluded to remain silent on political matters, while his cautious prudence equally prevented suspicion and ill treatment from both parties; in consequence of which, his person and property were unmolested. But he was not without apprehension that his neutrality might incur the reputation of favoritism to one party, or hostility to the other. This state of apprehension, which was wholly imaginary, produced such an effect upon a constitution naturally excitable, that it evidently hastened his death, which took place, October, 1780, and was a subject of the most universal regret. Thompson's History of Long Island, Vol. II., 511, whose errors, however, are corrected from official sources.—Ed.

N° 3.

The Mayor, Aldermen & Commonalty of the City of New York in Common Council convened, present their most respectful compliments to His Excellency Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon, beg leave to assure him, that it was their intention to congratulate him on his safe arrival, and testify their regard for him by an humble address a Copy of which was left with His Excellency the 3rd Instant, since which they have had reason to think, that any address from any public body, presented at this critical Juncture would occasion a dissatisfaction, not from a Disregard to His Excellency, but from the present troubles of the times They therefore humbly beg His Excellency will excuse their not waiting on him to day as was proposed, flattering themselves that His Excellency, will waive such a publick Testimony of their Esteem for the reason above mentioned

By order of the Common Council

(Signed) WHITEHEAD HICKS, Mayor.

New York July 6th 1775.

N° 4.

The Governors Answer to the address of the Mayor, Aldermen & Commonalty of the City of New York, delivered to the Mayor to be laid before the Corporat<sup>rs</sup>

Gentlemen

I receive with satisfaction your congratulations on my return to this Country, and obliging assurances of your affectionate regard from my former Residence among you and your continued confidence in me at this melancholy crisis of public affairs, already carried to an extremum much to be lamented by every good man and well wisher of his King and Country

I confess my disappointment at the change of Circumstances in this Government, and feel the weightiest distress at the present unfriendly aspect of the Times—Long Residence in the Colonies and a happy experience of repeated friendships have as it were naturalized me to America, & bound me while I remained in England, faithfully to represent the loyalty, Sentiments & situation of the inhabitants of this Province, and to support their Interests with my best endeavours.—At the same time, my Breast glowing with an ardent zeal for the Honor of my Sovereign and affection for my native Country, I was induced to embark again for this Government cherishing the pleasing hope of being able to contribute, in some small degree, the hastening the General wish of the Nation for a speedy and happy reconciliation between Great Britain and her Colonies

If there can be a Time when it would be wisdom and Humanity to listen to the calm and dispassionate voice of reason and moderation it surely must be at present. I wish to embrace the Idea that neither Disloyalty in His Majestys American subjects, or disaffection to their mother country constitute any part of the present unnatural controversy. But that the Contention flows from a mere misconception of constitutional principles

The Parliament in their Resolution of the 27th of February have made the first advance to a measure of accommodation. It would surely be glorious in the Americans to avail themselves of so important an opportunity in so noble a cause. In the present moment were America to liberate the restraints she has laid on her Commerce & constitutional authority, and through her Provincial Assemblies, grant, suitable to the ease of their circumstances, supplies to the mother Country for the protection of the whole British State. I am confident in my own mind the controversy would fall to the Ground and that many Acts of conciliating Grace would be extended to America by Great Britain, which National honor cannot suffer to have torn from her by violence. I am acquainted in a Dispatch from the Earl of Dartmouth, that tho the memorial & Representation of the General Assembly of this Province were unfortunately blended with expressions containing claims which made it impossible for Parliament consistent with its Justice and Dignity to receive, yet the Petition to the King has been presented to His Majesty who was pleased to receive it with the most gracious expressions of Regard and attention to the humble requests of his faithfull subjects in New York and I am authorized to say that nothing can give greater satisfaction to the Royal Breast than to see us again a happy & united People

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXLI ]

Whitehall. 24. July 1775.

Sir,

I have already in my letter to you of the 5th inst: hinted that the time might possibly come when the King, relying upon the attachment of His faithful Allies, the Six Nations of Indians, might be under the necessity of calling upon them for their aid and assistance in the present state of America.

The unnatural rebellion now raging there, calls for every effort to suppress it, and the intelligence His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has received of the Rebels having excited the Indians to take a part, and of their having actually engaged a body of them in arms to support their rebellion, justifies the resolution His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has taken of requiring the assistance of his faithful adherents the six Nations.

It is therefore His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure, that you do lose no time in taking such steps as may induce them to take up the hatchet against his Majesty's rebellious subjects in America, & to engage them in His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service upon such plan as shall be suggested to you by General Gage to whom this letter is sent accompanied with a large assortment of goods for presents to them upon this important occasion.—

Whether the engaging the Six Nations to take up arms in defence of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Government, is most likely to be effected by separate negociation with the Chiefs or in a general Council assembled for that purpose, must be left to your judgement, but at all events as it is a service of very great importance, you will not fail to exert every effort that may tend to accomplish it, and to use the utmost diligence and activity in the execution of the orders I have now the honor to transmit to you.

I am etc.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII., No. 5.]

New York 7th Aug. 1775

My Lord

Since I had the honor of transmitting to your Lordship my publick Dispatches by the last Mail Colonel Skeene<sup>1</sup> has been taken through this Province under a military Guard The Detachment from Philadelphia delivered him to the Connecticut Troops who conducted him to Hartford. While the Colonel was at the encampment near this City I sent my Secretary to wait on him and receive his commands, but he was not admitted to an interview, supposed to be owing in a great measure to M<sup>r</sup> Lundie, (who was confined with Col Skeene) having made his escape the evening before

Last week Capt<sup>o</sup> Nordbergh<sup>2</sup> who was taken prisoner at Lake George the 12th of April last, informed me that the Provincials had taken about a hundred Cannon & some mortar pieces at Crown Point, which they were mounting on Carriages for the purpose of converting them to the use of the continental army. He also inform<sup>d</sup> me that several armed vessels or Boats were building and fitting out on the Lakes. The Captain also adds that he thinks the number of Continental Troops at Tyconderoga, Crown Point and Lake George, may be about three thousand

On the 13th ultimo a Boat belonging to His Majestys Ship of War the Asia (the only Kings Ship now in this Harbour) under the command of Capt<sup>o</sup> Vandeput<sup>3</sup> was seized and set on Fire by the Mob. The Mayor and Corporation took up the Matter as a high misdemeanor, & attempted a discovery of the perpetrators of an outrage so manifestly contrary to the general sense and inclination of the Citizens. At the same time they engaged to Captain Vandeput an immediate restitution, and in that were supported by both the City Committee & Provincial Congress. The Boat when partly finished has since, in the night been secretly cut in Pieces. An other Boat I am told is to be built, and I hear it is to be secured against any attempts to destroy it.

The Kings Stores have been frequently broke in upon, and some carried away. The Report of M<sup>r</sup> Stevens the Keeper of the Kings Stores will best explain this matter to your Lordship

Part of the Connecticut Troops are gone to Albany, as will the Regiment raised in this city in a few days, tho' at present in possession of both the upper and lower Barracks

Eleven companies of Riflemen, consisting of about one hundred men each, with Ammunition from the Provinces of Pensilvania, Maryland and Virginia have lately passed thro' this Province crossing over Hudsons River at New Windsor in their march to the Provincial Camp near Boston.

Capt<sup>a</sup> Sinclair<sup>1</sup> was taken up last week by order of the provincial Congress in his way through this City to his Government in Canada and sent Prisoner to Suffolk County on Long Island. We have had no intelligence from Canada, and nothing from Boston, since the account of the action at Bunker Hill. These are the principal occurrences of late. There are other Circumstances dependant on report and matters of opinion that I confess myself at a loss how to write upon. Every thing is conducted in the Committees and Congresses with such Secrecy, and Reports are so various & contradictory that scarcely any conclusion can be formed from them they are the Rumours of the Day and mostly founded in Fiction and misrepresentation. The Gazettes and other Papers which accompany this Dispatch it is hoped may assist your Lordship in forming some conception of the deplorable state of affairs in the Colonies. The Gentlemen who go passengers to England in the Packet from this and some other of the Provinces may be able to give your Lordship further information.

From the Military Manœuvres and preparation already made and making, the complexion of the declared original cause of contention between Great Britain and the Colonies seems to have undergone an entire change. The Americans appear to have lost sight of first principles & first causes, and have gone on to adopt measures & prosecute Plans of the most determin'd opposition and resistance, and I fear are fatally abandoned to the Resolution of hazarding every thing rather than to submit to the principle of Parliamentary Taxation. Unhappily therefore, my Lord constrain'd to adhere to my former sentiments on this subject, I would with the greatest deference submit it to the wisdom and Beneficence of His Majesty and His Ministers whether it might not be expedient in compassion to the unhappy prejudices of opinion and wild delusion of His Majestys American subjects to hold forth some further conciliatory measures and also to grant a Repeal of the duties on Tea. It would be removing the original ostensible cause of discontent and greatly abate the early prejudices among the Populace and Peasantry of this Province. Five or six thousand or more, Regulars being then sent to New York, supported by three or four regiments of Americans which I am confident might then be raised in this Province & the Jerseys, the authority of His Majestys Government, now entirely prostrate through the Colonies might at least be reinstated in this The influences of Committees and Congresses receive a check and a body of the People brought to a sense of duty and Allegiance. The embodying of a few Regiments of Americans upon the same establishment with His Matys regular Troops I apprehend, my Lord, might be followed with the happiest effects, actuated by a sense of duty as well as allured by the Rewards of offices & appointments, for I would recommend that the officers of the Regiments so raised should be nominated by the Governor, and at reduction both Officers and men have the same bounty as under the Royal Proclamation in 1763) many would enter into the Service who by their influence and Connections would divide the opinions, excite the Jealousies and weaken the Confidence of the Inhabitants of America among themselves, with a facility & in a Degree most probably superior to any other measure whatever.

<sup>1</sup> Lieutenant-General PATRICK SINCLAIR entered the army as an Ensign in the second battalion of the 42d Highlanders in October, 1758, and served the following year against Guadaloupe, in the West Indies, where he was wounded. Browne's Highland Clans, IV., 160, 163. He served next in America, where he was promoted to a Lieutenancy 27th July, 1760. On the regiment being ordered to the West Indies in October, 1761, Lieutenant Sinclair exchanged into the 15th Foot, and continued to serve in America until 1768, when that regiment returned to England. In April, 1772, he was promoted to a company, and thereupon applied for leave to come back to America, but could not, it seems, perfect the arrangement; and he sold out or retired in 1773. The English government having resolved on employing the Indians, Captain Sinclair was appointed Lieutenant-Governor and Indian Superintendent at Michilimackinac, but on landing at New-York was summoned before the Provincial Congress, 3 August, 1775, by whom he was sent a prisoner, on parole, to Long Island, where he remained until March, 1776, when he was allowed to return to Europe. In April, 1780, he was appointed Captain in the 84th or Highland Emigrants, on duty in Canada, with permis-<sup>io</sup>o to retain his rank in the army, in which, in June, 1782, he became Major, and retired on half pay in 1783. On 12th October, 1793, he became Lieutenant-Colonel, and on the 26th January, 1798, was promoted to be Colonel in the army; in September, 1803, he became Major-General; Lieutenant-General on 25th July, 1810; and was the oldest Lieutenant-General in the army at the time of his death, which occurred in 1820. Army Lists; Journals of New-York Provincial Congress, I., 100, 380; II., 97, 175; 4 American Archives, V., 102, 352, 1393.—Ed.

A Body of Troops in this Province with a strong Naval Force, seems highly necessary and important as it might check a disposition in some of the Americans evidently verging towards an independancy it also would occasion a division of the Continental Forces and extend the awe of His Majestys arms more generally through the Colonies. For permit me to assure your Lordship that the influence and terror of His Majestys Forces at Boston has hitherto been very little felt at this place and it must necessarily be still less in the Colonies further Southward Confined within so very limited a prospect of rendering His Majesty the least service in my civil Capacity here, and being frequently informed it will be my lot, will all other Crown officers, to be led captive to Hartford as hostages for the good treatment of any prisoners General Gage may take I most humbly request my Sovereign to grant me discretionary leave of absence from my Government or to recal me, as his Majesty in his wisdom shall think most proper.

I am with the greatest Respect

Report of Mr. Francis Stephens, Storekeeper of His Majesty's Ordnance.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII.]

Memorandum

On Wednesday the 12th Instant, between the hours of 9 & 10 o'clock at night, being at the house of Mr Banyar, in the neighbourhood, The Clerk of Stores came and acquainted me, that a number of men with side Arms &c, had got over the Fence of the shot yard, and were breaking open the several doors of the Armory, Store house and those of the Artificers shops whereupon I immediately repaired to the front doors of the two first ment<sup>d</sup> places, and on hearing a great noise proceeding from their ransacking the premises. Instantly called upon Mr Alderman Brewerton acquainting him therewith and requested his interposition, but he replied, as an individual he could by no means render me any assistance, and in that case advised me to wait on the Mayor, which I accordingly did, but he was not in Town. I then, in my way to the Governors met with Capt<sup>n</sup> Thos. W<sup>m</sup> Moore who had the command of the Guard appointed to preserve the Peace of the City & to whom I communicated the above & entreated his assistance in order to put a stop to the Felonious proceedings of a number of armed men who were carrying off his Majestys Stores, as also some of my own private property, & which I conceived was his Duty to protect, soon after Capt<sup>n</sup> Moore came down to the Storehouse, and brought with him a party of armed Men who with myself went in amongst the people that were committing the depredations aforesaid, demanding by what authority they presumed to carry off the Kings Stores when some of them replied to M<sup>r</sup> Moore—That it was by order of their Colonel Ritzma they came there, and did what they had done, upon this Captain Moore told them, That no persons whatever had a right to order them to act in that manner and advised them to disperse which they soon did after carrying off several Drums a considerable number of Iron Ram-Rods and sundry other articles of His Majestys property. Two hours after they were gone namely about 2 oclock in the morning a considerable number of the Connecticut Forces, supposed to be upwards of a hundred came to the Store Houses afore mentioned, where they continued untill nigh day light, rummaging & ransacking every place & carried off such articles as they thought proper.

Thursday the 13th about 8 oclock in the evening, Francis Staple, the person who has the care of Turtle Bay, came to Town, and informed me of the following particulars (Viz<sup>t</sup>) that about 3 oclock this afternoon, a Sloop came from New York, there, and run along side the Wharfe, and was met by a party of the Connecticut Troops, supposed to be about fifty men, who put on board the said Sloop (as near as he could well guess) about five Hundred, 24 pounder Round Shot, Fifty 10 inch & like number of Cohorn Shells. They likewise broke open the Storehouse took out the Major part of what remained there, such as sand Bags, empty Boxes &c and then went off: The same night about half past 9 oclock, a company of armed [men] came to my dwelling house & demanded admittance, pretending that they had received certain intelligence, of a number of small arms being concealed in the upper apartment of said house, and as such was determined to be satisfied by searching the premises, which was accordingly done, to their great disappointment. They then requested of me the Keys of an other Store House which they said had not as yet been examined into, observing that the arms must of course be certainly there & notwithstanding my utmost endeavors to dissuade them to the contrary They violently broke open the Doors of the same & robbed it of the following articles (Viz<sup>t</sup>) Two Brass Pettards, some Tents, Powderhorns, nails Ballast Baskets & many other things which at present is by no means in my power to particularize

My Lord

Tho' your Lordship must from all Quarters be informed of the revolted and hostile State of America You may not possibly be acquainted how far some of those who now exercise the usurped Powers of Government evidently mean to pursue their dangerous designs. Independency is shooting from the root of the present contest; it is confidently said if Great Britain does not within six months adopt some new plan of accommodation the Colonies will be severed from her, as to any system of solid and general Union; that the standard of Freedom and independency may be erected on this Continent, when all those who have not taken an active part in the Commotions (tho inimical to the principles of Parliamentary) taxation will fall a sacrifice to the resentment of their Rulers, and their Estates confiscated to defray in part the expence of the civil War, at the same Period it is beleived the Ports of America will be declared free, and the Powers of Europe invited to Guarantee the Independency of the Colonies, it is also whispered, propositions have been made for that purpose, and that a French officer of distinction was at Philadelphia a few weeks ago on some important embassy. Large supplies of Ordnance, arms and ammunition have been procured from Hispaniola and Martinico. Calamitous as this conduct must prove to the confederate Colonies. The cheif Rulers seem determined to drive on their measures, I should however do great injustice to America; were I to hold up an idea, that the Bulk of its inhabitants wishes an Independency I am satisfied (not to answer for our Eastern neighbours) a very large majority particularly in this Province are utter enemies to such a principle but the Great Affliction is, the American friends of Government in general consider themselves between Scylla and Charybdis, that is the dread of Parliamentary Taxation and the Tyranny of their present Masters. Could the first principal be moved out of the way His Majesty would probably see America put on a less determin'd complexion notwithstanding sharp Struggles I beleive would be made against the operation of some British Statutes extended to America, yet many would be drawn from the confederacy to the support of Governm<sup>t</sup>

Should the principles of Governm<sup>t</sup> now overturned, not be soon reestablished but the present internal convulsions be carried to the extremities suggested, it may be a question on what foundation the future settlement of North America may rest; unhappily at present I am without any public line to walk on; That some plan may be fixed for the settling this melancholy contention must be the ardent wish of every friend of humanity.

I am with all due respect

My Lord

I detained the Packet one week in expectation that General Gage might send his Despatches in that time for Government. A Transport arrived last night in this Harbour from Boston with a letter to me from the General of the 18th of last month with the Communication that nothing had happened since the affair of Bunker Hill. The General says "He should think "it no difficult matter to get provisions sent to them but finds every body shy of undertaking "it" In the present state of affairs it is impracticable to obtain any to be sent to Boston from this Port while the Penalty of even the attempt is forfeiture of ship and Cargo, as in M<sup>r</sup> Van Vleeks case published in the New York Gazette

The inclosed secret intelligence came to this Town the 6th Instant from the Commanding officer of the Provincial Troops at Tyconderoga. In consequence of which yesterday the Regiment raised by M<sup>r</sup> McDougal left this Town for Albany. A Duplicate of this information I shall forward to General Gage as worthy of his Notice

Secret Intelligence 6th Aug. 1775.

The New York Troops under the command of Coll M<sup>c</sup>Dougle, ordered to march immediately for Tyconderoga, when joined by one thousand Rifle Men will amount at least to three thousand men. These to be joined by four thousand New England Forces to Rendezvous at Crown Point, from thence to proceed to Montreal and Quebec (even if over the Ice) better than half the Canadians having promised to join these Forces.

Proceedings of the Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies with the Six Nations.<sup>1</sup>

[S. Massachusetts Historical Collections, V., 75.]

German Flats, Tuesday, Aug. 15, 1775.

At a meeting with the sachems and warriors of the Six Nations at this place.

PRESENT —            Volkert P. Douw, Esq. }
                                  Turbot Francis, Esq. } Commissioners.

The following speech was delivered by Col. Francis.

Brethren of the Six Nations attend.

We acquainted you yesterday from whence we came, and by whose authority; namely, by the authority of the Twelve United Colonies dwelling upon this island of America. We acquainted you that we were two persons of five appointed by the Twelve United Colonies now met in council at Philadelphia, to invite you down to Albany, where you may expect to meet our other three brethren, appointed to act in conjunction with us. When we meet you, our brethren of the Six Nations and your allies, at Albany, we will rekindle the council-fire which our ancestors and yours formerly kindled up at that place, and there sit down and converse together upon the present situation of the Twelve United Colonies, and disclose to you their minds thereon. We have important matters to communicate to you, our brethren of the Six Nations, and your allies, which cannot be disclosed until the council-fire be kindled up at Albany, and we are in full assembly.

Brethren,

We observe that many of our brethren of the Six Nations are not here present; and as it is the wish of the Twelve United Colonies that there may be a general meeting of their brethren <sup>1</sup>The attention of the Colonial Congress was very early drawn to the importance of securing the alliance, or at least the neutrality of the Indian tribes during the impending conflict. It was accordingly determined, on the 12th of July, 1775, to establish three departments of Indian Affairs, the Northern, Middle and Southern; the Northern to include the Six Nations and all other tribes to the Northward of them; and that Commissioners should be appointed "with powers to treat with the Indians in their respective departments, to preserve peace and friendship, and to prevent their taking any part in the present Commotion." The Commissioners for the Northern department, chosen on the 13th of July, were Major-General Philip Schuyler, Major Joseph Hawley, Mr. Turbot Francis, Mr. Oliver Wolcott and Mr. Volkert P. Douw. These Commissioners, with the exception of Major Hawley, who declined serving on account of ill health, held the above Treaty with the Six Nations. Note by the Publishing Committee of the Society. The Journal thereof was printed, for the first time, by the Massachusetts Historical Society, from a MS. in its archives, and afterwards in 4. American Archives, III., 474. — Ed.

of the Six Nations, we their deputies, in their names, beg you would send to all these absent brethren of the Six Nations, and invite them to come down and sit at the council fire at Albany, that they may hear from us the sentiments of their brethren of the Twelve United Colonies.

Brethren,

We now inform you that your brethren of the Twelve United Colonies have sent you and your allies a token of their love and friendship, which is now at Albany, and which we shall deliver to you at that place. A String.

Brethren,

As our friends and your allies, the Caghnawagas, and the seven towns upon the river St. Lawrence, live at a great distance, and have not yet had an invitation to come down to the council-fire which we, the deputies of the Twelve United Colonies, will kindle at Albany, we beg your assistance in forwarding an invitation to them; and wish you would immediately appoint four or six of your most active and sensible men, who may be relied on, to transact the great and important business which they will have in hand. A Belt.

Brethren,

As many mischievous and ill-disposed persons may attempt to raise up in your minds sentiments that are unfriendly to your brethren of the Twelve United Colonies, we beg you will shut your ears and fortify your minds against any such evil and false reports; and if any such liars and deceivers should appear among you, and attempt to poison your minds, be assured they are as much your enemies as the enemies of your brethren of the Twelve United Colonies together, and which is now going to be made stronger at Albany. A Belt.

To this Kanaghquaesa, an Oneida sachem, replied.

Brother Solihoano and our Albany Brother, Commissioners from the Twelve United Colonies,

You have now opened your minds. We have heard your voices. Your speeches are far from being contemptible. But as the day is far spent, we defer a reply till to-morrow, as we are weary from having sat long in council. We think it time for a little drink; and you must remember that the Twelve United Colonies are a great body.

German Flats, 16th August, 1775.

The council having again assembled, Tiahogwando, an Oneida sachem, addressed himself as follows.

Brother Solihoano and our Albany brother, attend.

We are now assembled at the German Flats, at which place you kindled up a council-fire, and yesterday called us together, and acquainted us from whence you came and by whose authority, — namely, by that of the Twelve United Colonies, and you opened your business to us. Brothers, now attend. Through the mercy of God we are brought to this day, and the Six Nations are now in full assembly at this place, where we smoke a pipe in friendship and in love. We are glad to hear your voices. You are come in the name of the Twelve United Colonies to invite us down to Albany to a council-fire of peace. You desire we should all attend with our confederates, as you say the council-fire that is to be kindled up at Albany, is of much importance. Brothers we thank you for this invitation; it meets with our entire approbation. Here we are of every tribe in the Six Nations; it shall be done as you have said.

Brothers,

You have desired that all our confederates should receive this invitation. This cannot be done short of one year, as we extend very far, and could not possibly call the extremities of our confederacy to this intended meeting. But possess your minds in peace. When this Congress is over, and the council-fire raked up, we shall acquaint all our allies with what has passed. Brothers, this is the answer of all the Six Nations, who are now here represented from every tribe.

Brothers, attend.

Yesterday you said that you were sensible our confederacy extended to Caghnawaga, and the Seven Tribes upon the river St. Lawrence; that it would be very agreeable for your brothers from that quarter to attend this great council-fire to be kindled at Albany by order of the Twelve United Colonies; and that it was the desire of your brethren of all those Provinces, that they should attend together with us.

Brothers,

You therefore desired our assistance to forward this your belt of invitation to the Caghnawagas and the Seven Tribes in that quarter. Brothers, possess your minds in peace. We the Six Nations are put to difficulty to grant this request.

We are very much embarrassed for this reason. The man is now there who will vex your minds, and never consent to their coming down, and will draw hard upon their minds another way. Brothers, possess your minds in peace. We of the Six Nations have the minds of the Caghnawagas and the Seven Tribes in that quarter. At our central council-house when this took place, they addressed us of the Six Nations in the following manner: You are better capable of maintaining peace than we are; therefore we deliver up our minds to you. For these reasons we advise you to reconsider your petition to us, seeing we are so embarrassed we cannot grant it. Perhaps you will say to us when your intended council-fire shall be over, Brothers, do you of the Six Nations acquaint all your confederates and allies of what has passed at this council-fire of peace; and this we shall do with great care and exactness. Now, brothers, you see we are embarrassed; and therefore give you this advice.

Belt returned.

To this Col. Francis answered.

Brethren of the Six Nations,

It gives us a great deal of uneasiness to find you cannot at present convey this belt to our friends in Canada. We have heard your reasons, and are sorry to find one of our blood is already there, endeavoring to draw their minds from us, when we mean nothing but peace towards them. As there are a great many Englishmen in Canada, we know not who you mean. We shall therefore be glad to have the particular man pointed out.

To which Abraham, a Mohawk sachem replied.

Brothers,

We take it for granted that you all know the very man we mean, as we said he was of your blood. We see no necessity of pointing him out more explicitly.

Tiahogwando, the Onondago sachem, then spoke again.

Brother Solihogany and our Albany brother,

We take it for granted you have called us to a council of peace and entire friendship ; and you have taken us by the hand. As there are men of different minds, and some may be illy disposed, we desire you will admonish your own people that they offer us no abuse in the way down to your council-fire of peace. If this caution should be neglected, some misfortune might happen ; as all people do not meet so much like brothers as formerly, on account of the present situation of affairs. It would be unhappy if our council-fire should be crushed by any mischief-makers. We have given you this caution, that while we are marching along in peace and quietness, we might not be alarmed by a blow struck in our rear. We therefore desire you would begin, even at this council-fire, to publish your admonitions to unwise and ungovernable people. By this belt we declare to you, our brothers, that the road is as open for passing and repassing, and free from all embarrassments through the Six Nations, as it has been for a long time. Therefore we desire that we may have the same open road down to your intended council-fire at Albany.

To which Col. Francis made the following answer.

Brethren of the Six Nations,

By this belt you desire that we may clear the road to Albany, that none of our people may injure you. The road shall be as clear for you to go to Albany as it is for us to go to the country of the Six Nations. The Twelve United Colonies have given us great power over the white people. We will appoint white men, who speak your language, and love your nations, to see you safe down to Albany, and to provide provisions for you on the way. We shall set out for Albany to-morrow morning, to prepare matters for kindling up the great council-fire there.

At a meeting of the Commissioners for transacting Indian affairs in the northern department, held at Albany on Wednesday, the 23<sup>d</sup> August, 1775.

PRESENT—	Gen. Schuyler.
	Col. Francis,
	Mr. Douw.

Resolved, unanimously, that the Indians of the Six Nations be invited to receive our congratulations on their safe arrival here ; that it be at five o'clock this afternoon ; that the committee of the city of Albany and the principal gentlemen of the place be requested to accompany the Commissioners ; and that the following letters be wrote for that purpose to the chairman of the committee.

Albany, 23<sup>d</sup> August, 1775.

Gentlemen,

Your generous exertions to support the American cause against the nefarious schemes of a wicked and profligate ministry, the propriety with which you have conducted those Indian affairs that have become the subject of your consideration, a consciousness that without your aid, and that of gentlemen of the town conversant in those matters the important business of the ensuing conference cannot be so properly conducted as our zeal for the service makes us wish, are so many motives which point out to us the necessity of calling on you and those gentlemen for your aid and advice; which we entreat you will give us without reserve; and be assured that it will be attended to with all that deference that is due to your respectable body and to their good judgment. We propose to pay a visit this afternoon at five o'clock to the Indians. We beg the favor of the committee to honor us with their company, as so respectable a body will greatly add to the complimentary visit we mean to pay them. We shall go from Cartwright's, and shall take it as a favor if the gentlemen of the town, who are not of the committee, would be pleased to go with us.

We are, gentlemen, with great respect,

Your most humble servants,

P. SCHUYLER,
VOLKERT P. DOUW,
TURBOT FRANCIS.

To which the committee returned the following answer.

Gentlemen,

Your polite invitation for us to join in paying a complimentary visit to the Indians this afternoon at five o'clock we accept of, and shall for that purpose attend at Cartwright's at the hour appointed.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants.

By order of the committee,

ABRAHAM YATES, JR. Chairman.

The sachems and warriors of the Six Nations being assembled, the Commissioners, attended by the committee and principal gentlemen of the city of Albany, met them, and addressed them as follows.

Brethren of the Six Nations,

We, the deputies appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, the descendants of Quedar, and the gentlemen of the city of Albany, congratulate you on your arrival here. They are glad to see you well, and thank the great God that he suffers us to meet in love and friendship. We now invite you to take a drink, and smoke a pipe with us; and we propose, if you are ready, to proceed to business the day after to-morrow.

A String.

To which Kanaghquaesa replied:

That they were glad to see us; that they thanked God that we met in love and friendship; and that they would cheerfully take a drink, and smoke a pipe with us, and would be ready to proceed to business on the day which we were pleased to appoint for that purpose.

Thursday Evening, August 24, 1775.

A deputation of Sachems from the Six Nations having desired a conference with the Commissioners, they were accordingly met at Cartwright's Tavern by General Schuyler, Colonel Francis, Colonel Wolcott, and Mr. Douw.

When Senghnagenrat, an Oneida Sachem, informed the Commissioners that they had been called down to this meeting, by invitation from the Committee at Albany, previous to the appointment of Commissioners by the honourable Continental Congress; they thought they ought, in good manners, first address themselves to the Committee of Albany, and give the answers to the questions put by them to that body; but as this would take up very little time, they desired they might proceed to business with the Commissioners immediately after they had spoke to the Committee at Albany.

To this the Commissioners replied, that they were pleased with what had been communicated to them, and that it was perfectly agreeable to them that the Committee of Albany should be spoke to, previous to entering upon the great business upon which they were met.

The Commissioners desired they would appoint one of their Sachems as a speaker, to communicate to the Six Nations what they the Commissioners should lay before them; but the Indians leaving the choice to the Commissioners, they fixed upon Abraham, a Mohawk Sachem, for that purpose, which the Indians said was agreeable to them.

The Commissioners informed the Sachems, that if they had no objections, they would provide a guard to encircle the place of meeting, to keep the people from pressing in upon the Council, and to preserve silence and good order. This the Sachems thought right, and to which they had no objection.

Tiahogwando concluded the conference by saying that many of their kettles, axes and hoes, were out of order, and wanted mending, and that they hoped the Commissioners would give orders to have them repaired, as had always been the case heretofore.

The Commissioners informed them that every thing of that kind should be complied with, and appointed Mr. Gerardus Lansing and Mr. Bleecker to see it done.

At a meeting of the Commissioners for transacting Indian affairs for the northern department, held at the city of Albany, on Friday, 25th of August, 1775.

PRESENT —	Gen. Schuyler,	Col. Francis,
	Col. Wolcott,	Mr. Douw.

The following message was sent to the committee of the city of Albany.

Albany, 25th August, 1775.

Gentlemen,

The Commissioners of Indian affairs are to open the treaty with the Six Nations this morning, about eleven, at the Dutch church. They request the favor of your attendance, and that of the principal gentlemen of the town, and would wish, previous to the meeting, to be honored with your company at Cartwright's.

To Abraham Yates, Jr. Esq. Chairman of the committee of Albany.

The chairman and committee attended agreeable to invitation.

Albany Committee Chamber, August 25, 1775.

The Committee, about half an hour after ten, received a note from the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, which is in the words following, to wit:

The Commissioners of Indian Affairs are to open a treaty with the Six Nations this morning, about eleven o'clock, at the Dutch Church. They request the favor of your attendance, and that of the principal gentlemen of the Town, and would wish, previous to the meeting, to be honored with your company at Cartwright's. By order of the Commissioners.

TENCH TILGHMAN.

The Committee accordingly immediately repaired to Cartwright's, when the Commissioners informed them that the Indians said they came down here in consequence of an invitation from this Committee, and that they chose to speak with the Committee before they talked with the Commissioners. The Committee told the Commissioners that this was a surprise to them, as they had not received the least intimation of such their design, before that juncture, either from the Indians or any other person or persons whatsoever; however, not to retard the publick business, and after consultation with the Commissioners, (who desired the Committee to gratify the Indians and the representatives of Queder,) this Committee resolved immediately to hear what the Indians had to say; and that it might be the more publick, the Committee gave them notice that they would be ready instantly, and would meet them in Youker's Street, back of the Dutch Church; appointed a committee to inform the Commissioners of this, requesting their presence at the meeting, and sent the bell-man round the city, inviting the inhabitants that thought proper to attend; and also a committee, viz: Walter Livingston, Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, and Samuel Stringer, to inquire of the Commissioners whether, in case the Indians' talk with the Committee was of such a nature as to require an answer, they would supply them with proper presents for the Indians. The Committee reported that the Commissioners answered, that they must first see how the Indians behaved in their conference and speeches. And then the following speech or answer to the invitation was delivered by the Indians, in presence of the Commissioners and many of the inhabitants of the City.

Senghagenarat, one of the Oneida chiefs, in behalf of the Six Nations, speaker:

Brothers of Albany: We beg you will acquaint us when your body is complete.

Brothers of Albany: The day is now come that we have arrived in consequence of your invitation. When you saw four of the Oneida Nation, you said you was glad to see them at your council chamber. We are now here in consequence thereof. You told us you would be glad to see us again, that you rejoiced to see them, and that you would open the ashes and rekindle the old council-fire at Albany. We are glad to see that some sparks of that old council-fire yet remain. We rejoice even to excess to find it so.

Brothers, attend: I have one addition to make to what passed between four of the Oneida Nation and you, when last at your council chamber. When you found, from our conference with your brothers at the German Flats, that our sentiments of publick affairs so much coincided with yours, you further told us that all the Governments of America, on the sea-coasts, were anxious to know whether we were disposed to peace; and that you, the Twelve United Colonies, were resolved to support your civil constitution and liberties, and you rejoiced to find that we all so firmly resolved to maintain peace.

Brothers of Albany: You further observed, in the intercourse you had with four of the Oneida nation, that you greatly rejoiced at the conference you had at the German Flats. You further said that you were surprised about a letter Guy Johnson had received from the chief warrior, General Gage, about removing the ministers from among us; that you rejoiced that the Indians were instructed in the Christian religion, and that the ministers that were among us might continue.

Brothers of Albany, attend: We have something further yet to relate of your speech. You desired, at the intercourse you had with the four messengers, that we should acquaint the Six Nations with your speech, and that thereafter three or four of each nation should come down. You further said that you would have been glad to have attended at the council-fire at Guy Johnson's, to hear what he should say to the Indians, and see if his sentiments and yours should coincide; but you then soon heard that he had removed from there to Fort Stanwix, from there to Oswego, that you despaired of hearing any thing from him, and therefore desired us that we would let you know what was done at that fire.

Brothers, attend: You made another proposal at the intercourse you had with four of our nation, which was this: that you had heard that there was to be a council of the whole of our nation at the German Flats. You desired our people that they would let you know what passed between us and them. Our Delegates, in our names, then told you that it would be more agreeable that two or more of your members should attend, and hear themselves what passed there. This, brethren, is the substance of what passed between you and the four of the Oneida Nation.

Brothers of Albany, attend: We are now, upon this day, going through with what passed between some of your members and us, when the conference ended at the German Flats. You said, brothers, let us both endeavour to keep peace, that we may continue to enjoy its blessings. We desire not that you should trouble yourselves in the least with these disputes between us and those over the great waters; only exert yourselves in maintaining the covenant that was made between your and our forefathers at this place of our council-fire. Your Delegates told us at the German Flats, that although you should be drove back from the sea-coasts by your enemies, yet you would not ask our aid.

Brothers of Albany, further attend: Two things more you delivered at the German Flats; the first was this: that we, the Oneida Nation, should give a kind ear to your speech. You there produced two ancient belts of wampum, one of twenty rows, which was the old covenant between the whole Oneida Nation and Queder Gorah; another that was given by the Six Nations, by the Indian called Kayinguaraghtoh, of the Seneca Nation. You also said that these belts should again be produced, for the inspection of the whole Six Nations, at the intended council-fire to be rekindled at Albany.

Brothers of Albany: We have now finished the principal subjects that passed between you and us; The Oneida Nation, and we, all of us, the Six Nations, are here now present to hear what has passed, and to prevent any false reports that may be propagated by news-carriers.

Brothers of Albany, now attend: You, also, the Commissioners who are here present, lend your ears and hear our voices:

You, our brothers of Albany, have desired the sentiments of the Six Nations. We, the Six Nations, and our allies, which extend to Detroit, Ohio, and Caughnawaga, upon our first hearing the bad news that circulated along the eastern shore of this island, assembled and resolved upon a union amongst us Indians, and to maintain peace; and we rejoice that nothing more has been asked of us. There is nothing different in our minds than what we have now told. We shan't take notice of any hostile propositions that may be made to us, for we bear an equal proportion of love to you, and the others over the great waters, in the present dispute; and we shall remain at peace and smoke our pipes, and the Six Nations will always keep the path open; and we call God to witness to the truth of what we now say, and it proceeds from our hearts.

A belt of eight rows.

Brothers of Albany now attend, and incline your ears to what we have now to say.

We, the Six Nations, have heard the voice of a bird called Tskleleli, a news-carrier, that came among us. It has told us that the path at the western communication, by Fort Stanwix, would be shut up either by the one party or the other. Brothers, let it not be, and let the communication be open, for passing and repassing, and let not our country be stained with blood; and be always compassionate to the old women, and let the young ones grow up and enjoy the blessings of peace. Brothers, let not that passage be shut up by you, but confine yourselves to the dispute to the eastward, for this western communication lies near our council-fire, and the consequences might be fatal. Indeed, brothers, your language and Colonel Guy Johnson's coincides, in some things, with one another, and the party that applies to us to shut up that passage we will look upon as deceivers and transgressors; and we despise a double dealer from our hearts, and whom we look upon God Almighty will hereafter punish as such. And we hope that when you give your answer, you will speak from the integrity of your hearts, as we now have done.

A belt of fifteen rows.

Brothers of Albany, attend: The Five Nations just now said they would open their minds in full to you; they would tell you every thing they brought with them. This belt respects the letter Guy Johnson received from Gen. Gage, concerning the removal of the ministers from among us. Our father, the minister who stands here, we love; we love him exceedingly. Perhaps, in a little time, he may be wrested from us, carried off like a prisoner. Our hearts tremble for him; we tremble greatly. He has been threatened, and should he be taken, it might overthrow the whole Five Nations. Our brothers, the white people, would perhaps say that the Oneida Nation had delivered up their minister, and that the Six Nations did not regard their missionaries. But truly we regard our father the minister, and missionaries; therefore we propose to your consideration whether it be not wise that the missionaries retire for a little while, particularly our father the minister, Mr. Kirkland, should reside a short space with his family, as we hope this quarrel cannot subsist long, because you are brothers, both of one nation and blood, and we hope it will soon be settled; and when a reconciliation takes place, let our missionaries immediately return to us. This, however, we refer to your consideration, and leave at your pleasure. Now, brethren, we have unburdened our minds and opened our bosoms, and delivered what we had to say.

To which, at the request and by the approbation of the Commissioners, we made the following reply:

Brothers of the Six Nations: We thank you for your speech. The Commissioners appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, and with our consent, will first transact business with you; after they have done, we will answer your speech.

At a treaty began and held with the Indians of the Six United Nations at the city of Albany, on Friday, the 25th of August, 1775.

PRESENT—

Gen. Schuyler,	} Commissioners.
Col. Oliver Wolcott,
Col. Turbot Francis,
Volkert P. Douw,

The chairman and committee and principal inhabitants of the city of Albany.

Senghagenrat, an Oneida sachein, opened the treaty with the following speech.

Brothers,

We waited upon you yesterday evening, and acquainted you that we should first speak to our brethren, the committee of Albany. We have done so, and have opened our whole minds to them.

Brothers,

When we met two of your body at the German Flats, they presented these strings to us, and invited us to come down to Albany, and kindle up a great council-fire of peace under the auspices of the Twelve United Colonies. Now as these strings have never been changed, we return them to you again, and desire that the great council-fire of peace may be kindled up.

Brothers,

By this belt you desired us to shut our ears and fortify our minds against any evil reports that we might hear on our way down, and to pay no regard to what any liars and ill-disposed persons might say to us; as they would only mean to sow dissension between us and our brothers of the Twelve United Colonies. Brothers, our minds are proof against the attempts of such wicked persons. Now, brothers, let us give you advice on our parts. There are liars and mischief-makers among the Indians, as well as amongst the white people. Therefore pay no regard to this or that, that any single Indian may say, but attend to what you may hear from the mouth of the great council; for that will be the truth, and the sense of all the Six United Nations.

The Commissioners then addressed themselves in the following manner.

Brothers, sachems, and warriors of the Six Nations,

We return thanks to the great God that has suffered us to meet together this day in love, peace and friendship. In token of which we will now sit down and smoke the pipe of peace together.

(Here the great pipe was lighted up and went round; after which the Commissioners proceeded.)

Brothers, &c.,

We, the deputies appointed by and in the name of the Twelve United Colonies, assisted by the descendants of your ancient friend Quedar, and your Albany brethren, embrace this opportunity to rekindle the ancient council-fire, which formerly burnt as bright as the sun in this place, and to heap on it so much fuel that it may never be extinguished: and also to renew the ancient covenant chain with you, which you know has always been kept bright and clean, without any stain or rust; and which by this belt we now strengthen, that forever hereafter you and we may have but one heart, one head, one eye, and one hand. A Belt.

Brethren,

Our business with you, besides rekindling the ancient council-fire, and renewing the covenant, and brightening up every link of the chain, is, in the first place, to inform you of the advice that was given about thirty years ago, by your wise forefathers, in a great council which they held at Lancaster, in Pennsylvania, when Cannassatego spoke to us, the white people, in these very words.

“Brethren, we, the Six Nations, heartily recommend union and a good agreement between you, our brethren. Never disagree, but preserve a strict friendship for one another; and thereby you as well as we will become the stronger. Our wise forefathers established union and amity between the Five Nations. This has made us formidable; this has given us great weight and authority with our neighboring nations. We are a powerful confederacy; and if you observe the same methods our wise forefathers have taken, you will acquire fresh strength and power. Therefore, whatever befalls you, never fall out with one another."

These were the words of Cannassatego.

Brothers,

Our forefathers rejoiced to hear Cannassatego speak these words. They sunk deep into their hearts. The advice was good; it was kind. They said to one another, "The Six Nations are a wise people. Let us hearken to them, and take their counsel, and teach our children to follow it. Our old men have done so. They have frequently taken a single arrow, and said, Children, see how easy it is broken. Then they have taken and tied twelve arrows together with a strong string or cord, and our strongest men could not break them. See, said they, this is what the Six Nations mean. Divided, a single man may destroy you; united, you are a match for the whole world." We thank the great God that we are all united; that we have a strong confederacy, composed of twelve provinces, New Hampshire, &c. These provinces have lighted a great council-fire at Philadelphia, and have sent sixty-five counsellors to speak and act in the name of the whole, and consult for the common good of the people, and of you, our brethren of the Six Nations, and your allies; and the talk of this great Council we shall deliver to you to-morrow.

A Belt.

Albany, Saturday, 26th August, 1775.

PRESENT —

this day,

Gen. Schuyler,	} Commissioners.
Col. Francis,
Col. Wolcott,
Mr. Douw,

The chairman and committee of the city of Albany.

The Indians having informed the Commissioners they were ready to proceed to business, the treaty was opened in the following manner.

Brothers, sachems, and warriors,

Let this string open your ears to hear, and incline your hearts to accept the talk of your brethren of the Twelve United Colonies, which they have sent to you by their deputies. They speak as follows.

Brothers, sachems, and warriors of the Six United Nations,

We, the delegates from the Twelve United Provinces now sitting in General Congress at Philadelphia, send this talk to you, our brothers. We are sixty-five in number, appointed by the people throughout all these Provinces and Colonies, to meet and sit together in one great Council, to consult together for the common good of this land, and to speak and act for them.

Brothers,

In our consultation we have judged it proper and necessary to send you this talk, as we are upon the same island, that you may be informed of the reason of this great Council, the situation of our civil constitution, and our disposition towards you, our Indian brothers of the Six Nations, and their allies.

Brothers and friends, now attend.

When our fathers crossed the great water, and came over to this land, the King of England gave them a talk ; assuring them that they and their children should be his children, and that if they would leave their native country, and make settlements, and live here, and buy and sell and trade with their brethren beyond the water, they should still keep hold of the same covenant chain, and enjoy peace; and it was covenanted that the fields, houses, goods and possessions which our fathers should acquire, should remain to them as their own, and be their children's forever, and at their sole disposal. Trusting that this covenant should never be broken, our fathers came a great distance beyond the great water, and laid out their money here, built houses, cleared fields, raised crops, and through their own labor and industry grew tall and strong.

They have bought, sold and traded with England, according to agreement, sending to them such things as they wanted, and taking in exchange such things as were wanted here. The King of England and his people kept the way open for more than one hundred years, and by our trade became richer, and by union with us greater and stronger than the other kings and people who live beyond the water. All this time they lived in great friendship with us, and we with them, for we are brothers, one blood.

Whenever they were struck, we instantly felt as if the blow had been given to us. Their enemies were our enemies.

Whenever they went to war we sent out men to stand by their side and fight for them, and our money to help them and make them strong. That we have done this, brothers, you have been all witnesses to in the last war. You know we assisted them in taking Niagara, Cataroqui, Ticonderoga, Crown Point, and Canada; and lastly, when they had no more enemies upon this island, we went to fight and helped them to take many large islands that lay in the hot countries, where they got more than thirty cart-loads of silver. They thanked us for our love, and sent us good talks, and renewed their promise to be one people forever; and when the war was over, they said, Children, we thank you that you have helped to make us great. We know that it has cost you a great deal of money; and therefore, Children, we give you a present that you may maintain your warriors.

A Belt.

Brothers and friends, open a kind ear.

We will now tell you of the quarrel between the counsellors of King George and the inhabitants and Colonies of America. Many of his counsellors are proud and wicked men. They persuade the King to break the covenant chain, and not send us any more good talks. A considerable number have prevailed upon him to enter into a new covenant against us, and have torn asunder and cast behind their backs the good old covenant which their ancestors and ours entered into and took strong hold of. They now tell us they will slip their hand into our pockets without asking, as if it were their own, and at their pleasure they will take from us our charters, or written civil constitutions, which we love as our lives; also our plantations, our houses and goods, whenever they please, without asking our leave; that our vessels may go to this island in the sea, but to this or that particular island we shall not trade any more; and in case of non-compliance with these new orders, they shut up our harbors.

Brothers,

This is our present situation. Thus have many of the King's counsellors and servants dealt with us. If we submit, or comply with their demands, you can easily perceive to what state we shall be reduced. If our people labor in the field, they will not know who shall enjoy the crop. If they hunt in the woods, it will be uncertain who shall taste the meat or have the skins. If they build houses, they will not know whether they may sit round the fire with their wives and children. They cannot be sure whether they shall be permitted to eat, drink, and wear the fruits of their own labor and industry.

A Broken Belt.

The Commissioners then informed the Indians, that as the business they were upon was very important, and as they knew they were a wise and prudent people, and weighed every thing with great deliberation, they would not at this time hurry them, nor burthen their memories with too much, and therefore would defer what they had further to say until Monday.

Albany, Monday, 25th August, 1775.

The treaty was again renewed.

PRESENT—	Col. Francis,	} Commissioners;
	Col. Wolcott,
	Mr. Douw,
	Mr. Lynch, of South Carolina,	} Members of the Continental Congress;
	Mr. Duane, of New-York,
	Mr. Robert Livingston,
	The chairman and committee of the city of Albany.

The Commissioners proceeded with the speech of Congress.

Brothers and friends, attend.

We upon this island have often spoke and entreated the King and his servants the counsellors, that peace and harmony might still continue between us; that we cannot part with or loose hold of the old covenant chain, which united our forefathers and theirs; that we wanted to brighten this chain, and keep the way open, as our forefathers did; that we want to live with them as brothers, labor, trade, travel abroad, eat and drink in peace. We have often asked them to love us and live in such friendship with us as their fathers did with ours. We told them again that we judged we were exceedingly injured; that they might as well kill us, as take away our property and the necessaries of life. We have asked why they treat us thus. What has become of our repeated addresses and supplications to them? Who hath shut the ears of the King to the cries of his children in America? No soft answer, no pleasant voice from beyond the water has yet reached our ears.

Brothers,

Thus stands the matters betwixt Old England and America. You Indians know how things are proportioned in a family between the father and the son; the child carries a little pack. England we regard as the father; this island may be compared to the son. The father has a numerous family, both at home and upon this island. He appoints a great number of servants to assist him in the government of his family. In process of time some of his servants grow proud and ill-natured. They were displeas'd to see the boy so alert, and walk on so nimbly with his pack. They tell the father, and advise him to enlarge the child's pack. They prevail, and the pack is increased. The child takes it up again—as he thought it might be the father's pleasure—speaks but few words, those very small; for he was loth to offend the father. Those proud and wicked servants, finding they had prevailed, laugh'd to see the boy sweat and stagger under his increased load. By and by they apply to the father to double the child's pack, because they heard him complain, and that without any reason, say they. He is a cross child; correct him, if he complains any more. The boy entreats the father, and addresses the great servants in a decent manner, that the pack may be lightened; he could not go any farther. He humbly asks if the old fathers, in any of their records, had described such a pack for the child.

After all the tears and entreaties of the child, the pack is redoubled. The child stands a little while, staggering under the weight, ready to fall every moment. However, he entreats the father once more, though so faint, he could only lisp his last humble supplication; waits a while; no voice returns. The child concludes the father could not hear. Those proud servants had entirely intercepted his supplication, or stopped the ears of the father. He therefore gives one struggle, and throws off the pack, and says he cannot take it up again; such a weight will crush him down and kill him; and he can but die, if he refuses. Upon this those servants are very wroth, and tell the father many false stories concerning the child. They bring a great cudgel to the father, asking him to take it in his hand and strike the child.—This may serve to illustrate the present condition of the King's American subjects or children.

Amidst those oppressions, we now and then heard a mollifying and reviving voice from some of the King's wise counsellors, who are our friends, and feel for our distresses. When they heard our complaints and our cries, they applied to the King; also told those wicked servants that this child in America was not a cross boy; it had sufficient reason for crying; and if the cause of its complaint was neglected, it would soon assume the voice of a man, plead for justice like a man, and defend its rights, and support the old covenant chain of the fathers.

Brothers, listen.

Notwithstanding all our entreaties, we have but little hope the King will send us any more good talks, by reason of his evil counsellors. They have persuaded him to send an army of soldiers and many ships of war, to rob and destroy us. They have shut up many of our harbors, seized and taken into possession many of our vessels. The soldiers have struck the blow, killed some of our people. The blood now runs of the King's American children. They have also burned our houses and towns, and taken much of our goods. A Black Belt.

Brothers,

We are now necessitated to rise, and forced to fight, or give up our civil constitution, run away, and leave our farms and houses behind us. This must not be. Since the King's wicked counsellors will not open their ears, and consider our just complaints, and the cause of our weeping, and have given the blow, we are determined to drive away the King's soldiers, and to kill and destroy all those wicked men we find in arms against the peace of the Twelve United Colonies upon this island.

We think our cause is just; therefore hope God will be on our side. We do not take up the hatchet and struggle for honor or conquest, but to maintain our civil constitution and religious privileges; the very same for which our forefathers left their native land and came into this country.

A Black Belt.

Brothers and friends,

We desire you will hear and receive what we have now told you, and that you will open a good ear and listen to what we are going to say. This is a family quarrel between us and Old England. You Indians are not concerned in it. We don't wish you to take up the hatchet against the King's troops. We desire you to remain at home, and not join either side, but keep the hatchet buried deep. In the name and behalf of all our people, we ask and desire you to love peace and maintain it, and to love and sympathise with us in our troubles; that the path may be kept open with all our people and yours, to pass and repass without molestation.

Brothers,

We live upon the same ground with you. The same island is our common birth-place. We desire to sit down under the same tree of peace with you. Let us water it roots, and cherish its growth, till the large leaves and flourishing branches shall extend to the setting sun, and reach the skies.

Brothers, observe well.

What is it we have asked of you? Nothing but peace, notwithstanding our present disturbed situation; and if application should be made to you by any of the King's unwise and wicked ministers to join on their side, we only advise you to deliberate with great caution, and in your wisdom look forward to the consequences of a compliance. For if the King's troops take away our property, and destroy us, who are of the same blood with themselves, what can you, who are Indians, expect from them afterwards? A White Belt.

Brothers of the Six Nations,

When we perceived this island began to shake and tremble along the eastern shore, and the sun darkened by a black cloud which arose from beyond the great water, we kindled up a great council-fire at Philadelphia; and we sat around it until it burnt clear, and so high that it illuminated this whole island. We renewed our hold of the old covenant chain, which united and strengthened our ancestors, and which was near slipping out of our hands, before we had kindled this great council-fire at Philadelphia. We have now taken fast hold, nor will we let it go until a mighty struggle, even unto death.

Brothers,

We are now Twelve Colonies, united as one man. We have but one heart and one hand. Brothers, this is our Union Belt. By this belt, we, the Twelve United Colonies, renew the old covenant chain by which our forefathers, in their great wisdom, thought proper to bind us and you, our brothers of the Six Nations, together, when they first landed at this place; and if any of the links of this great chain should have received any rust, we now brighten it, and make it shine like silver. As God has put it into our hearts to love the Six Nations and their allies, we now make the chain of friendship so strong, that nothing but an evil spirit can or will attempt to break it. But we hope, through the favor and mercy of the good Spirit, that it will remain strong and bright while the sun shines and the water runs.

Delivered the Union Belt.

Brothers,

It is necessary in order for the preservation of friendship between us and our brothers of the Six Nations and their allies, that a free and mutual intercourse be kept up betwixt us. Therefore the Twelve United Colonies, by this belt, remove every difficulty that may lay in the great road that runs through the middle of our country; and we will also clear up and open all the small roads that lead into the great one. We will take out every thorn, briar and stone, so that when any of our brothers of the Six Nations or their allies have an inclination to see and talk with any of their brethren of the Twelve United Colonies, they may pass safely without being scratched or bruised. Brothers, the road is now open for our brethren of the Six Nations and their allies, and they may now pass and repass as safely and freely as the people of the Twelve United Colonies themselves; and we are further determined, by the assistance of God, to keep our roads open and free for the Six Nations and their allies, as long as this earth remains.

Path Belt.

Brothers,

We have said we wish you Indians may continue in peace with one another, and with us, the white people. Let us both be cautious in our behavior towards each other at this critical state of affairs. This island now trembles; the wind whistles from almost every quarter. Let us fortify our minds, and shut our ears against false rumors. Let us be cautious what we receive for truth, unless spoken by wise and good men. If any thing disagreeable should ever fall out between us, the Twelve United Colonies, and you, the Six Nations, to wound our peace, let us immediately seek measures for healing the breach. From the present situation of affairs we judge it wise and expedient to kindle up the council-fire at Albany, where we may hear each other's voices and disclose our minds more fully to one another.

The Pipe of Peace with Six Small Strings.

Brothers,

You now know our disposition towards you, the Six Nations and their allies. Therefore we say, Brothers, take care, hold fast to your covenant chain. We depend on you to send and acquaint your allies to the northward, the Seven Tribes on the River St. Lawrence, that you have had this talk with us at our council-fire at Albany.

Brothers,

Let this our good talk remain at Onondago, your central council-house, that you may hand down to the latest posterity these testimonials of the brotherly sentiments of the Twelve United Colonies towards their brethren of the Six Nations and their allies.

To which Kanaghuoesa replied.

Brothers,

We have sat round and smoked our pipes at this our ancient place of kindling up our council-fire. We have heard all you have said, and have heard nothing but what is pleasant and good. As you have communicated matters of great importance to us, we will sit down to-morrow and deliberate coolly upon them; and the day following will give you answers to every thing you have laid before us.

At a treaty continued with the Indians of the Six Nations at Albany, on Thursday, the 31st day of August, 1775.

PRESENT—

Col. Francis,	} Commissioners;
Col. Wolcott,
Mr. Douw,
Mr. Duane of New York.

The Indians being informed that the Commissioners were ready to hear them, Abraham, a Mohawk sachem, spoke as follows.

Brothers, great men deputed by the Twelve United Colonies, attend.

We are this day called to meet you in council, in order to reply to what you have said to us. We hope we need not recapitulate the whole of your discourse. We shall only touch upon each head. At our last conference in this house, we promised to return you our answer the day but one following. We did not do it, and we mean to make you an apology. We hope you have taken no offence. We were not prepared by that time, and that was our reason. Brothers, you informed us that there was a great Council of sixty-five members convened at Philadelphia, and that you were appointed by them to deliver a talk to the Six Nations. It seems you, our brothers, having a desire to rekindle a council-fire, took to your assistance the descendants of Quedar, and have kindled up a council-fire that shall never be extinguished. To which the Six Nations reply: This you have done by order of the great Council at Philadelphia. We are glad to hear the news. It rejoices our hearts, and it gives exceeding joy through all the Six Nations.

Brothers,

As you desired your belts might not be returned, but be deposited at our central council-house, we shall only make use of them to refresh our memories and speak upon them as we go on with our answer. Brothers, we shall not recite every particular, as we before mentioned. You observed, when these commotions first began, a council of sixty-five members convened together at Philadelphia, and you put us in mind of what Canassateego formerly said at Lancaster respecting the necessity of a union among you. An old sachem, a brother of Cannassateego, is here present, and remembers the words of his brother. You illustrated the necessity and use of a union by one and twelve arrows. You said your grandfathers had inculcated this doctrine into their children. You said that as the tree of peace was formerly planted at this place, you desired that the Six Nations might come down and sit under it, and water its roots, till the branches should flourish and reach to heaven. This the Six Nations say shall be done. Brothers, we need only remind you of a few of the things you said to us, as you have them all written down. You informed us that by an ancient covenant with the King of England, you were to enjoy the same privileges with the people on the other side the great water; that for a long time you did enjoy the same privileges, by which means you and your brethren over the water both became a great people; that lately, by advice of evil counsellors, you are much oppressed, and had heavier packs put upon you than you could bear; that you have frequently applied to be eased of your burthen, but could obtain no redress; that finding this the case, you had thrown off your packs. The Six Nations thank you for acquainting them with your grievances and methods taken to obtain redress. You likewise informed them of what resolutions you had formed in consequence of these matters.

Brothers,

After stating your grievances, and telling us you had not been able to obtain redress, you desired us to take no part, but bury the hatchet. You told us it was a family quarrel; therefore said, "You Indians, sit still, and mind nothing but peace." Our great man, Col. Johnson, did the same thing at Oswego; he desired us to sit still likewise. You likewise desired us that if application should be made to us by any of the King's officers, we would not join them. Now therefore attend, and apply your ears closely. We have fully considered this matter. The resolutions of the Six Nations are not to be broken or altered. When they resolve, the matter is fixed. This then is the determination of the Six Nations, not to take any part, but as it is a family affair, to sit still and see you fight it out. We beg you will receive this as infallible, it being our full resolution; for we bear as much affection for the King of England's subjects on the other side the water, as we do for you, born upon this island. One thing more we request, which is, that you represent this in a true light to the delegates from all the Colonies, and not vary, and that you observe the same regard for truth when you write to the King about those matters; for we have ears, and shall hear, if you represent any thing in a wrong point of light. We likewise desire you would inform our brothers at Boston of our determination.

Brothers,

It is a long time since we came to this resolution. It is the result of mature deliberation. It was our declaration to Col. Johnson. We told him we should take no part in the quarrel, and hoped neither side would desire it. Whoever applies first, we shall think in the wrong. The resolutions of the Six Nations are not to be broken. Of the truth of this you have a late instance. You know what the Shawanese have lately been engaged in. They applied to us for assistance, but we refused them. Our love for you has induced us not to meddle. If we loved you less, we should have been less resolute.

Brothers,

You likewise informed us, that when you perceived this island began to tremble, and black clouds to arise beyond the great water, you kindled up a great fire at Philadelphia, a fire which shone high and clear to your utmost settlements; that you sat round that fire, deliberating what measures to pursue for the common good; that while sitting round it, you recollected an ancient covenant made between your fathers and ours when they first crossed the great water and settled here, which covenant they first likened to a chain of iron. But when they considered that iron would rust, they made a silver chain, which they were always to rub and keep bright and clean of spots. This they made so strong, that an evil spirit could not break it. This friendship chain you have now renewed. This covenant is to continue to future generations. We are glad you have thought proper to renew this covenant, and the whole Six Nations now thank you. This covenant belt you desire us to deposit at our central council-house, that future generations may call to mind the covenant now made between us. You may depend we shall send and inform all our neighboring council-fires of the matters now transacted. We close with the whole Six Nations repeating their thanks that you have renewed the covenant made between their forefathers and yours.

Brothers, attend.

As you had renewed the ancient covenant, you thought proper to open the path, and have a free communication with this place. As the fire had for some time been put out, the path had got stopped up. You removed all obstructions out of the great roads and paths, all stones and briars, so that if any of us choose to travel the road, we should neither meet with any obstruction or hurt ourselves. Brothers, we thank you for opening the road. You likewise informed us you were determined to drive away, destroy and kill all who appeared in arms against the peace of the Twelve United Colonies. Brothers, attend. We beg of you to take care what you do. You have just now made a good path; do not so soon defile it with blood. There are many round us, Caghnawagas, who are friends to the King. Our path of peace reaches quite there. We beg all that distance may not be defiled with blood. As for your quarrels to the eastward, along the seacoasts, do as you please. But it would hurt us to see those brought up in our own bosoms ill used. In particular, we would mention the son of Sir William Johnson. He is born among us, and is of Dutch extraction by his mother. He minds his own affairs, and does not intermeddle in public disputes. We would likewise mention our father the minister who resides among the Mohawks, and was sent them by the King. He does not meddle in civil affairs, but instructs them in the way to heaven. He absolutely refuses to attend to any political matters, and says they do not belong to him. They beg he may continue in peace among them. The Mohawks are frequently alarmed with reports that their minister is to be torn away from them. It would occasion great disturbance, was he to be taken away. The King sent him to them, and they would look upon it as taking away one of their own body. Therefore they again request that he may continue to live in peace among them.

Brothers,

After having informed us of the situation of affairs, and having finished your business, you advised us to shut our ears against false reports, and that we should not attend to flying stories, but to what wise and good men should say; for which reason you had kindled up a council-fire at this place, that we might always converse together, and know the truth of things. Brothers of the Six Nations say, "Let it be so; it shall be as you desire." They thank you for this advice, and desire you would use the same precautions; that you would shut your ears to flying stories, but keep your eye upon the chief council, such as you see now convened. The Six Nations desire you would always inform them fully of what respects them. We have for this purpose opened our ears and purified our minds, that we may always hear and receive what you have to say with good and clean minds; and whenever we receive any important intelligence, we shall always bring it to this council-fire.

Brothers,

You delivered us this pipe; on one side the tree of peace, on the other a council-fire; we Indians sitting on one side of the fire, and the representatives of the Twelve United Colonies upon the other. You have desired that this pipe may be left at our central council-house, and that the tree of peace may be planted, and that the branches may be so high as to be visible to all our allies. Brothers, we thank you, and shall take care to deposit this where you desire, and when we meet to deliberate upon business, shall always use this as our council-pipe.

Brothers, attend.

In the course of your speech you observed, we of the Six Nations were a wise people, and saw a great way before us; and you asked us, if you upon this island were conquered, what would become of the Indians. You say you are uncertain of holding your possessions, and that you do not know who may enjoy the product of your labor. Now therefore, brothers, attend; you, particularly, our brothers of Albany; we address ourselves particularly to you. Our brothers of Albany have taken two pieces of land from us, without any reward, not so much as a single pipe. We therefore desire you will restore them, and put us into peaceable possession again. If you refuse to do this, we shall look upon the prospect to be bad; for if you conquer, you will take us by the arm, and pull us all off. Now therefore, as the Twelve United Colonies have renewed this covenant of peace, we beg that there may be no obstruction upon your part, but that you would restore our lands to us; for which, as we said before, you never paid us even a single pipe.

Brothers,

You have now finished your business, and we have made short replies. You have kindled up a council-fire of peace, and have planted a tree of peace, according to ancient custom. We find that you have omitted one thing, which is this. According to our ancient custom, whenever a council-fire was kindled up, and a tree of peace planted, there was some person appointed to watch it. Now as there is no person appointed to watch this tree, we of the Six Nations take it upon us to appoint one. Let it be the descendant of our ancient friend Quedar. He has to consider whether he will take the charge of it, and communicate to us whatever may respect it. He that watches this council-fire, is to be provided with a wing, that he may brush off all insects that come near it, and keep it clear. That is the custom at our central council-house. We have one appointed for that purpose.

Brothers,

As you have this day renewed the ancient covenant of friendship, and have again brightened the ancient chain, renew likewise another ancient custom respecting the regulation of trade. Let us have a trade at this place, and likewise at Schenectady, as it was in former times, when we had hold of the old covenant. For then, brothers, if our people came down with only a few musquash skins, we went home with glad hearts. Brothers, let it be so again. Let the Twelve United Colonies take this into consideration. A Belt of ten rows of Wampum.

Tiahogwando, an Oneida sachem, then spoke.

Brothers,

This is all the Six Nations have to say at present. They would just mention one thing more before they break up. The Six Nations look upon this as a very good time to speak their minds, as here are the representatives of the Twelve United Colonies. The dispute between the people of New England and Penn seems to us to become a serious affair, and therefore the Six Nations take upon them to speak their minds freely, as they address the inhabitants of the whole continent. Many years ago, at a council held in Pennsylvania, when Cannassateego, that has been before mentioned, was present, Penn desired the Six Nations would sell him that piece of land known by the name of Scanandanani or Susquehanna. The Indians of the Six Nations refused to sell it, saying the great God would not permit them. Therefore they made him a present of that land, known by the name of Scanandanani. Penn received it, and made them valuable presents. After this, Col. Lydius, a gentleman employed by the people of Boston, treated with some of the Indians to get that land from them. But he never kindled up a council-fire upon the occasion. He spoke to them whenever he met them; never with more than ten. From these he pretended to make a purchase of that tract. Gov. Penn also, at the great treaty at Fort Stanwix, in the year 1768, desired that the land might be his, and distributed among the Six Nations, Shawanese and Caghnawagas, ten thousand dollars, for which they gave him a writing. This is an affair with which all the Six Nations are acquainted, and any one would lie who said they knew nothing about it. We have taken an opportunity to speak of this matter now, as the mind of the whole continent is now here.

At a treaty held this day with the Indians of the Six Nations, at the City of Albany, PRESENT—	Colonel Francis, Colonel Wolcott, M <sup>r</sup> Douw,	}	Commissioners.

----------	--	---	----------------

The Commissioners gave the following answer to the speech delivered by the Indians yesterday :

Brothers of the Six Nations, attend.

We yesterday heard with pleasure your answer to the Twelve United Colonies, and we return thanks to the great Governor of the universe, that he has inclined your hearts to approve and accept the brotherly love offered you by the Twelve United Colonies. It makes us happy to hear so wise and brave a people, as our brethren of the Six Nations are, publicly declare their unalterable resolution to maintain and support peace and friendship with the Twelve United Colonies. This, brothers, you have said, and we sincerely believe you. Brothers, we requested of you Indians of the Six Nations, not to interfere in our quarrels. We are not in the least doubtful of success, as our cause is just. We will live or die like men. We can raise an army of three hundred thousand fighting men, who are brave, and are determined not to part with their civil and religious privileges. Therefore we now repeat to you, brothers of the Six Nations, take great care of the strong friendship you have now made with the Twelve United Colonies. Let that be your care, and that only. Peace is what we wish to establish.

Brothers of the Six Nations,

You yesterday told us, that as the roads in your country were opened for you and your brothers of the Twelve United Colonies to pass and repass, you desired at the same time that we would not stain the road with blood. Brothers, be assured we have no intention at present to spill blood in your country, and we hope it never may happen; and it never can, provided those wicked men who are come so far from home in order to disturb the peace of the Twelve United Colonies, do not appear in your country. But as we are determined to be free or die, we must pursue them until we drive them from off this island, or until they confirm our ancient privileges. Therefore, brothers, rest assured, whatever may happen between us and our enemies, we never will injure or disturb the peace of the Six Nations, but preserve invariable the friendship that is now established, even unto death.

Brothers,

You also desired yesterday that some of your friends of our blood should remain in peace, and particularly the missionary at Fort Hunter, who did not concern himself with the affairs of this world, but was earnestly engaged in conducting you to happiness, and instructing you in the reverence due the great God who governs the universe. Brothers, such a man we love, and we are desirous of his remaining quiet and happy with you. We are also desirous that all the other missionaries, who have been engaged in the same good cause, may safely continue among you, and instruct you in the Gospel, which will be the means of your happiness in this world and the one to come.

Brothers,

As we always looked upon you, brothers of the Six Nations, to be a wise and capable people in conducting business of every kind, we were a little surprised to hear you say that no one was appointed by the Twelve United Colonies to attend and watch the fire that they have kindled up at this place; when we have repeatedly told you that they had appointed five persons, whose business it is to attend and preserve it bright and clear, and that two of those five live in this town, who would take particular care, and who had full authority from the Twelve United Colonies, to keep the flame bright and clear. Brothers, for fear you should not have understood us fully, we again acquaint you that the Twelve United Colonies have authorized Gen. Schuyler and Mr. Douw, both of this town, to keep the fire burning, that it may illuminate the whole country of the Six Nations, who may always see the way down to it, and sit in peace round it.

Brothers,

You yesterday desired that the trade may be opened at this place and at Schenectady. We also wish it, and it will be done, so that you may trade as you formerly did, and be able to return home with your goods to your entire satisfaction.

Brothers,

You yesterday mentioned some matters concerning land claimed by the people of Albany, and also the land in dispute between Connecticut and Governor Penn. We now inform you that we are not authorized to transact any business of that kind at present, but will represent the matter to the Grand Congress at Philadelphia.

Brothers,

We have now finished, and let you know the present that we have from the Twelve United Colonies is preparing for you, and when it is ready, will acquaint you. Wagons shall be provided for you, whenever you are ready to set off for Schenectady.

Six strings of wampum.

After which, each of the different Nations gave the yochaas.

Captain Solomon, the Chief of the Stockbridge Indians, then addressed the Commissioners as follows:

Brothers appointed by the Twelve United Colonies:

We thank you for taking care of us and supplying us with provisions since we have been at Albany. Depend upon it, we are true to you, and mean to join you. Wherever you go, we will be by your sides. Our bones shall lie with yours. We are determined never to be at peace with the red coats, while they are at variance with you. We have one favour to beg. We should be glad if you would help us to establish a Minister among us, that when our men are gone to war, our women and children may have the advantage of being instructed by him. If we are conquered, our lands go with yours; but if we are victorious, we hope you will help us to recover our just rights.

A belt.

To which the Commissioners replied:

Brothers of Stockbridge: We have heard what you have said, and thank you. It is not in our power to answer the two questions you have put to us—the first respecting a Minister, the second concerning your lands. We say it is not in our power to give you an answer just now; but we will represent your case to the Continental Congress, and we dare say they will re-establish you in all your just rights.

Albany, September 1, 1775.

We, the subscribers, appointed by the honourable the Continental Congress as Commissioners for Indian Affairs for the Northern Department, do certify that the foregoing is a true copy of all matters and proceedings relative to a Treaty begun with the Indians of the Six Nations and their allies, at the German Flats, on Tuesday, the fifteenth day of August, 1775, and finished at the city of Albany, on Friday, this first day of September, 1775.

TENCH TILGHMAN,

Secretary to Commissioners for Northern Dep't.

Albany, Friday, September 1, 1775.

This day finished our Treaty with the Indians of the Six Nations, and informed them that to-morrow morning the Presents from the Twelve United Colonies would be ready to be delivered to them, and that wagons should be prepared to carry them to Schenectady, whenever they pleased to move homewards.

Resolved, That we recommend to the Honorable the Continental Congress the Rev. Samuel Kirkland and Mr. Dean, for their service in this present Treaty.

Resolved, That whereas it has been customary to keep two Smiths in the Indian country, for the purpose of mending their Arms and Utensils, that we recommend it to the Continental Congress to appoint two proper persons, with adequate salaries.

TURBUTT FRANCIS,
OLIVER WOLCOTT,
VOLKERT P. DOUW.

TENCH TILGHMAN,

Secretary to Commissioners for Northern Dep't.

Albany Committee Chamber, September 2, 1775.

Resolved, That an invitation be immediately sent to the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, desiring their attendance at the Presbyterian Meeting-House this morning, at eleven o'clock, as this Board will then answer the Speech of the Indians.

The Committee, at the time appointed, repaired to the Meeting-House, and there delivered, in the presence and with the consent and approbation of the Commissioners, the following Answer:

Brothers of the Six Nations: We beg you will acquaint us when you are complete.

Brothers: We suppose it will not be insisted upon to repeat the whole of your speech, as we conceive it unnecessary, and therefore shall only take notice of the material parts.

Brothers: You said that you were glad to see us at this place on the 25th August, in consequence of our invitation, and that you were glad to see some sparks of the old council-fire yet remained, and that you rejoiced even to excess to find it so.

Brothers: We thank you for your kind congratulations and salutations at meeting us here, and rejoice in the opportunity you have given us at this time of meeting one another in friendship and peace, to talk of old times and renew our ancient treaty.

Brothers: We are happy to find that you so readily accepted our request to come and see us, and that you have had so much patience and behaved so orderly during your short stay among us.

Brothers: At the conference of our Deputies with you at the German Flats, they showed you some old belts of wampum which you expressed a desire to see. Here are those belts and we hope even time will not wear them out. This is the belt given by the Oneida Nation, and is the old covenant between the whole Oneida Nation and Gorah Queder. This is the belt that was given by the Indian called Kayinguaraghtoh, in behalf of the Six Nations.

Brothers, attend: In your speech you further observed that you had long since taken a resolution to take no active part in the present contest for liberty. We do not offer to censure you for your conduct, but admire your wisdom, praise your pacifick disposition, and hope you will have fortitude to maintain and persevere in it.

A belt.

Brothers: You further said that the road to the westward you heard by the bird was to be stopped up. This matter is beyond our limits. The Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies having spoken to you at large about the roads, that they shall be left open; we entirely agree with them in this, and therefore shall add nothing on this point, and return the belt.

Brothers: You said, further, and delivered us this belt, that you were anxious about and concerned for your Minister, Mr. Kirkland, and asked our advice about his remaining among you, who we do not see that you should be deprived of without your consent, any more than the Mohawk Tribe should be deprived of their Missionary. We highly approve of your concern for the Ministers of the gospel, and your attachment for the pure precepts and doctrine of Christianity. But if your Minister is removed, we should fear the consequence, it would certainly give occasion of jealousy to your brethren, the white people, that you Indians were not well disposed. Therefore it is our ardent wish that they may all remain among you, as your teachers and instructors in virtue, piety, and true religion; and we hope you may benefit and profit by their instruction.

A belt.

Brothers: Before any Commissioners were appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, from the disagreeable condition of our country and the ancient friendship and alliance subsisting between us, commenced in the days of your ancestors and our forefathers, we took upon us, as the representatives of the people of the City and County of Albany, to give you an invitation to pay us a friendly visit, that we might have an opportunity of seeing you here, at the place where the first fire was kindled, that we might rake up the old ashes, and not suffer it to extinguish, but renew the old covenant chain, and make it shine with brighter lustre.

Brothers: We are happy to find from your speech that you still retain that affection for us which a well founded friendship will naturally produce, and which we hope, from our conduct towards you, is not unmerited; and we rejoice to find that you feel for our distresses, and lament the unnatural quarrel of brethren, which you express so warmly by a desire of an amicable settlement.

Brothers: Time will not permit us at present to mention to you how and on what occasion the first covenant was made between your and our forefathers. They have never deserted you, but kept their covenants and agreements with you; nor do we mean to act otherwise on our part.

Brothers: This covenant, afterwards improved upon, was confirmed between you and us in the year 1665, one year after this Country went over to the Crown of England. Since this you have, from time to time, admitted into your chain the Tuscaroras, and most, if not all, the Twelve United Colonies.

Brothers: There are five gentlemen, Commissioners, appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, at the Grand Council at Philadelphia; the management of the publick business in the Indian Department now belongs to them. These gentlemen have informed you of the nature of the dispute between Great Britain and this Country, and testified their desire of keeping up the council-fire between us.

Brothers: We know it is customary, at the renewal of any covenants between us, that a present should follow. We now make it known to you that the goods you will receive of the Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies are partly ours. We pay our proportionable part towards them; so that what you receive from them is from us also. We are the same; there is no distinction.

Brothers: If our memory does not fail, we think that when we invited two or three of each of our brethren, the Six Nations, to come down here, we also desired that you would acquaint us what had passed in the Congress held at Oswego, which as yet we know nothing of. You say, indeed, that you are glad we are peaceably inclined, as well as Colonel Johnson; but you have told us nothing else that was transacted there, which we had expected, and do wish that our brothers conceal nothing from us, especially as you called God to witness for the truth of what you said.

Brothers of the Six Nations, and you the Mohawks in particular: We apprehend the bird Tskleleli<sup>1</sup> has been busy again; he seems to be a mischievous bird, and ought not to be nourished or entertained. In your answers to the Commissioners you addressed yourselves to the inhabitants of Albany, complaining that they had taken from you two pieces of land, without giving the value of a pipe of tobacco for them, and that you desired they would restore you to the peaceable possession of them; and that the Commissioners would look into this matter, and afford you relief. The land you speak of we suppose to be Ticonderoga.<sup>2</sup>

Brothers: This is a matter foreign to the business we met upon, and we are not authorized or qualified to enter upon the subject; it is a business that belongs to the Corporation of Albany; yet, as we may be considered the representatives of the people at large, our entire silence may be construed into guilt of the heavy charge fixed upon us. For your satisfaction, as well as of the audience, we will endeavour to show that the accusation is groundless, by a few remarks. The lands alluded to are granted by the Charter of Albany; we never heard that any of your nation have been dispossessed or driven off those lands, but you hitherto have and still enjoy those lands, without the least interruption.

Brothers: As we observed before, the matter cannot properly come before us, but belongs to another body, and therefore the application to us is improper. However, give us leave to say, that instead of complaining, we think the Mohawks, if they considered their own interest and that of their posterity, and would be candid, must acknowledge the truth of the fact, and rejoice at this day that they have had such faithful guardians and trustees; for if it had not been so, who would have enjoyed these lands now? There have been complaints concerning this matter before, and inquiries into it before proper tribunals; and for your information, and that of the curious, we refer to the proceedings of the House of Assembly of this Colony, and also to the minutes taken on a conference between the Corporation of this City and yourselves, at which Sir William Johnson was present; and therefore return you the belt.

To which they returned the following Answer, by Abraham, Chief of the Mohawks, speaker:

Brothers of Albany: We return you thanks for your speech, and that you have informed us that the Twelve United Colonies, by their Commissioners, have opened all the roads; and we now take for granted that the communication at Fort Stanwix is not to be shut up, and that the New England people never will do it. This, brethren, has been the occasion of some anxiety in the minds of the Six Nations.

Brothers of the Six Nations, attend; you, also, the People of Albany; and you the Twelve United Colonies, by your Commissioners:

Last spring Colonel Johnson informed us that the New England people were near him, to take him prisoner; upon which we, like people intoxicated, took up our guns and ran to assist him, as he was our Superintendent. But, brethren, as it happened in the manner beforementioned, we hope you will look upon it in that light. We, the Six Nations, have now made and renewed our ancient covenants. The proceedings just now mentioned have brought me down. I have made a proper acknowledgment to the Six Nations, and now do the same to you; and I hope you will raise me up again. The news I was just speaking of came not from a bird, but from your own people.

Brothers of Albany, further attend: I shall only make a short reply to your speech relating to the lands; many agreeable things are therein. You further say that you never heard that any of us were drove off those lands. There was one thing which was not so agreeable; it is the Tskleleli. You, brothers, know how that matter is; and in case I was to answer that part of your speech, it might, perhaps, draw us into an argument; and as you are not, as you say, the proper body to which we ought to have applied, and as you have referred us to former proceedings, we shall close.

Brothers of Albany: We, the Six Nations, now tell you that it is at your pleasure to call on us, and we will inform you of what passed in the Congress at Oswego.

Abraham Yates, Jun., Chairman of the Committee, replied:

Brothers of the Six Nations: We are now ready to hear it, and should be glad you would inform us.

Abraham, the Mohawk Chief, then proceeded:

Brothers of Albany; You sent for us to inform you of what passed at Oswego, but you have not, since we have been down, desired it; we have always been ready; and as you have not asked us, we will now tell you, and think it our duty, as we look upon it that God will punish us, if we conceal any thing from you.

Brothers: The transactions of that treaty were very public; the Shawanese were there, and some from Detroit. Mr. Johnson told us that the fire kindled there was a fire of peace; that all the white people were the King's subjects; and that it seemed they were intoxicated. Mr. Johnson also told us, that the white people were all got drunk, and that God's judgment hung over them; but did not know on which side it would fall. Mr. Johnson further told us that the council-fire was kindled, on account of the present dispute, and desired us not to interfere, as we were brothers, and begged of us to sit still and maintain peace; this is what Colonel Johnson told us at that council-fire. He also said he had his eye on Mr. Kirkland;<sup>1</sup> that he was gone to Philadelphia, and along the sea-coast; that he was become a great soldier and a leader. Is this a Minister? says he; do you think your Minister minds your soul? No. By the time he comes to Philadelphia he will be a great warrior, and when he returns he will be the Chief of all the Five Nations.

Brothers: There were present five people of Detroit, five from Caughnawaga, and two of the Shawanese. Colonel Johnson told them that by the time he returned from Canada they should have all their men there, and he would then kindle a council-fire; and desired them also not to take any part in this dispute, as it was a quarrel between brothers. Mr. Johnson also told them that this council-fire was kindled upon peace; and that it seemed, by reason of the white people's intoxication, that God's judgment hung over them. He also told us that he was going to the Governour of Canada, who was of a different opinion from him, but would talk with him; and further said that he would tell the Caughnawaga Indians the same he told us; and for that purpose desired that two of each nation might go along and hear it. He likewise desired us to consider which way we would have our trade—whether up this river, or from Canada. He at the same time assured us that we should not suffer for want of goods, as we were not concerned nor had any hand in the present dispute. He also mentioned something about the council-fires—he said there are two fires which you will keep your eyes upon; and if they call you down to Albany, don't you go; for they will deceive you and tell you a great many fine stories. We are very glad that your language and Colonel Johnson's so well agree.

My Lord,

As I was on Long Island at the time of the disturbances in this city occasioned by the citizens removing in the night of the 23rd of last month Twenty one peices of Ordnance, nine <sup>1</sup> Rev. SAMUEL KIRKLAND, a distinguished Missionary among the New-York Indians, was born at Norwich, Conn., in 1742. He was educated at Dr. Wheelock's Indian school, and in 1761 was sent to the Mohawk Indians to learn their language. He entered Princeton College in 1762; in 1764 he returned to the Mohawk country to teach school and perfect himself in that language, and received his collegiate degree in 1765; he was employed among the Senecas in 1765 and 1766. On the 19 June of the latter year he was ordained at Lebanon as an Indian Missionary, and in July following took up his residence at Oneida Castle. He continued to labor among that tribe for forty years. During the Revolutionary war he was in the pay of the United States, and in 1779 was brigade chaplain in General Sullivan's campaign against the Indians of Western New-York; after the peace he remained among the Oneidas, and in 1788 assisted at the great Indian council for the extinction of their title to the Genesee country. So sensible was the State Government of the value of his services, that in the year 1789 it granted him a tract of land two miles square in the present town of Kirkland, whither he immediately removed. In 1792 he made a liberal endowment of land for the purpose of founding a school, which was originally called the Hamilton Oneida Academy, and has since been incorporated under the name of Hamilton College. After a life of much public usefulness, he at length departed this life on the 28th February, 1808. His remains were carried to the church in Clinton, Oneida co., where, after a funeral sermon, they were interred near his house. Jones' History of Oneida County, 203-220. pounders, that were mounted on the Battery under Fort George I transmit to your Lordship copies of the correspondence that passed between the Mayor of the City and Capt<sup>n</sup> Vandeput of his Majesty's ship Asia on the occasion as the best evidence I can collect of that affair.

On my receiving intelligence the twenty fourth in the evening of what had passed, that a mob had searched my house the same evening though they said for Capt<sup>n</sup> Foy,<sup>1</sup> and that a party of Provincials had been on Long Island in quest both of Captain Foy & myself. I nevertheless the next morning came into Town and got together (not in Council) as many of the Gentlemen of the Council as were on the spot, and proposed to them to meet the principal inhabitants of the city and country that were in Town in the Council Room at the City Hall, including the corporation, Provincial officers, Committees and Provincial Congress, in order to persuade them to desist from carrying things to farther extremities. This measure considering the high ferment of peoples minds, my friends approved of and I met the Gentlemen the next morning accordingly. When after lamenting the present unhappy controversy, and alarming situation to which the public affairs of the Country was reduced I recommended to them for the present public safety, that the Guns taken from the battery might remain on the Common That no further attempt should be made on the Kings Stores as I was confident a fresh attempt would produce fresh disturbances & endanger the city as Captain Vandeput had those stores under his protection and must do his Duty. That the town should furnish the Kings ship with fresh provisions, but to prevent disorder the Boats from the city might carry the provision on Board. I urged how important it was to their own Interest to preserve a temperate conduct, and not wantonly to draw down calamity upon themselves but wait the determination of Great Britain, as some further plan of accommodation might be held out for the ground of a reconciliation. Since I knew it was the warmest wish of the Royal Breast to see us again a happy and united people. This was nearly the substance of what I said to them. I was heard with Temper and attention. The city has remained quiet since, and fresh provisions are to be delivered on the Governors Island for the Asia.

I sent Capt<sup>n</sup> Vandeput a letter the 25th a copy of which is herewith enclosed to inform him of my intention to meet the principal Inhabitants of the Country Since which there has been no direct Communication between the Asia and the Town. A Boat which carried only some milk on Board was burnt on her return to shore as was last Sunday a country Sloop for having put some provisions on Board of the man of war. Such is the rage of the present animosity. For further particulars of our Situation I beg leave to refer you to Capt<sup>n</sup> Foy, who from the Frenzy of the times has been pursued and drove from this distracted Country.

At least one third of the citizens have moved with their effects out of Town and many of the Inhabitants will shortly experience the distresses of necessity and want.

I am, with the greatest Respect

My Lord

Your Lordships

most obedient Servant

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII., No. 7.]

New York 5th Sept<sup>r</sup> 1775

My Lord

In the present stage of the American controversy advanced as it is to an open opposition to the measures of Government, I shall not trouble your Lordship with a minute detail of the publick occurrences in this Country. Every day produces fresh proof of a determined Spirit of Resistance in the confederate Colonies. The Americans from Politicians are now becoming Soldiers and however problematical it once was there can be now no doubt of their intention to persevere in their determinations to great extremity, unless they are called back by some liberal & conciliatory assurances.

Their dread of being taxed by Parliament is the grand sinew of the League, no arguments or address can persuade them that the British Nation does not mean to exercise that principle and deeply impressed with that consideration they look upon themselves as mere tenants at Will of all they possess. I could wish for some explicit Declaration from Great Britain to refrain from what it would never be expedient to make them again feel, because I flatter myself it would lower the present alarming irritation and end in a Restoration of the common tranquility. Would it, My Lord, put anything to risk to disclaim an intention, if never meant to be carried into execution—Besides I find on the spot such a Temper as leads me to believe that the terror of being taxed without their own cooperation, once removed, and the acts in support of that principle which alarm them, done away, the contest would either cease or such dissensions be produced among themselves as would reduce the opposition now so inauspicious to a very manageable state, when seconded by the powerful aid of Government, I indulge therefore the hope that this great obstacle will be removed.

I must next remind your Lordship of several particulars which though of subordinate importance will nevertheless require immediate attention as soon as the languid arm of authority begins again to be raised in this Country.

The Colonies have outgrown the Government anciently set over them which ought to rise in strength and dignity as they increase in wealth and population. It will therefore be of great utility to extend the confidence of the executive authority to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of the Provinces as far as his Majesty can safely rely upon those he thinks fit to honor with that Trust. They want more particularly ampler scope for the exercise of that liberality which is of the greatest use in every species of Government, always expected by the multitude, and absolutely necessary to place the power of the Kings representative above their contempt I must therefore interceed with your Lordship for an establishment that no patent in future, for any office or place in the Colony issue independant of the Governor and also for a settlem<sup>t</sup> respecting Rank and precedence. That the Governor in His Province take the pre-eminence of all others, except the Blood Royal, on every occasion, not meerly military, that the Kings Council in their order follow the Commander in Chief of the army and after them the Speaker of the Assembly.

The state of the waste Lands of the Crown will also require your Lordships consideration not only to prevent inquietude & Disorder, but to secure His Majestys revenue & Rights. I left such a plan with your Lordship as I believe will restore Peace to the District formerly claimed by New Hampshire.

As to the Indian Cessions of 1772 your Lordship cannot forget the anxiety I expressed to perform my Engagement to those who laid down their money for the purchases, relying upon my word Their expectations being just, I can not express an impatience for liberty to fulfill my promises under the Great Seal of this Province

The Crown is also doubly concerned in a reconsideration of the general restraints the Governor lies under by the new arrangement which prevents the further granting of Lands under that arrangement. It is impossible my Lord in a Country, like this where population proceeds with such large and rapid strides to prevent intrusion upon the ungranted territory on the inland Frontiers, and when these are multiplied the strength of the occupants will deter others from suing Patents for their Possessions who themselves are generally too indolent or confident in their own Force, to solicit Grants to secure their settlement

As the Hostile preparations and appearances that surround me make it very doubtful if I may have an opportunity of sending any more public dispatches to your Lordship from this Country, I think it my duty to be at this time as I have been at all others, very explicit in my sentiments on the public affairs of this Colony which are with all possible Duty and Fidelity most humbly submitted to His Majestys wisdom

I am, with the most perfect respect and esteem

My Lord

Your Lordships

most obedient Servant

Sir

It is my duty in the absence of Lord Dartmouth who is gone into Staffordshire for a few days, to transmit to you His Majestys permission to you to return to England if you think fit

This permission has been granted in consequence of your letter to Lord Dartmouth of the 7th of July and the assurances you give in that letter that you will not make a hasty or improper use of it

The state of His Majestys Governm<sup>t</sup> in New York is certainly of late very much altered for the worse, but I trust that its authority is not irrecoverable and that instead of your being driven to the necessity of choosing either of the disgraceful alternatives you suggest you will soon be in a situation publicly to avow those sentiments and openly avow those measures that shall correspond with the Kings Resolution to exert every power which the constitution has placed in His Hands for subduing this unnatural Rebellion, a resolution in which there is the fullest assurance that his Majesty will be supported by his faithful subjects in this Kingdom, who will I am persuaded be found on this occasion as zealous to preserve entire the sovereignty of the supreme Legislature over all the British Dominions as they ever have been to maintain the liberties they derive from our most excellent constitution.

(N<sup>o</sup> 8)

Montreal. 12. October 1775

My Lord.

The uncommon trouble and various difficulties I met with in the discharge of my duties the last summer, together with the uncertainty of events prevented my writing to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> for some time past, and indeed there only offered a single opportunity since I came into this province; however, I could not let the Vessel sail at this time without doing myself the honor of giving your Lord<sup>p</sup> a brief sketch of my past transactions, hoping to lay the whole before you more fully in a little time.

Finding in May last, that all necessaries for the Indians were stopped by order of the Committees, and myself threatned with an attack from a considerable armed force, and having then received secret Instructions & dispatches from General Gage respecting the measures I had to take, I left home the last of that Month, and by the help of a body of white Men and Indians, arrived with great difficulty at Ontario, where (in a little time) I assembled 1458 Indians, and adjusted matters with them in such a manner, that they agreed to defend the communication, and assist his Majesty's Troops in their operations. The beginning of July I sat out for this place, with a chosen body of them and Rangers to the number of 220; not being able to get any Craft, or even provisions for more, and arrived here the 17th of that Month, and soon after convened a second body of the Northern Confederacy to the amount of 1700 & upwards who entered into the same engagements, notwithstanding they had declined coming in some time before, on Gov<sup>r</sup> Carleton's requisition, their minds, having been corrupted by New England Emisariers and most of them discouraged by the backwardness of the Canadians. These Ind<sup>m</sup> remained encamped for a considerable time waiting the Motion of Troops, and I detached from them about 100 Indians to serve as Scouts and covering parties to the Troops at S<sup>t</sup> John's, which were then much exposed. These Indians had several Skirmishes with the New Englanders, in one of which, they killed Cap<sup>t</sup> Baker an Out Law of New York and a very daring and dangerous Rebel, who was returning to the Enemy with a particular State of the force etc at S<sup>t</sup> Johns.

The preparations for the defence of this Province and the annoyance of the Enemy going on very slowly, thro' the prejudices of the Canadians, and the want of Influence among the Noblesse, and Gov<sup>r</sup> Carleton not judging it expedient to permit the Indians to pass the limits of the Colony, the latter after a stay far beyond what is usual with Ind<sup>m</sup>, begun to return to their respective Countries giving assurances of their readiness to return whenever there was a prospect of Troops, or Military operations, leaving with me however, a body of about 500 in three camps.

On the 6th of September the Rebel army advanced in view of S<sup>t</sup> John's, and the first division consisting of about 700 Men, under a General Montgomery, began to land near that place; on which, the Indians there marched out, and tho unsupported by any Troops etc gave them so warm a reception, that after being twice repulsed they retired with precipitation, with the loss of about 100 killed and wounded; on our side, one of my Captains was shot thro' the thigh, six Indian Warriors killed and as many wounded. The number of Indians in that Action was under 90, & at that time I had in different encampments 408 of the several Nations.—This, My Lord, was the critical time for striking such a blow, as would have freed the country of these Invaders, and greatly contributed to assist General Gage's operations; but such was the infatuation of the Canadians, that they could not with all General Carleton's endeavours, be prevailed on, even to defend their Country, and the Enemy after a pause of some days at Isle aux nois, returned, invested the small body of Regulars at S<sup>t</sup> John's, cut off all communication with it and Montreal, & scattered their parties thro the Country, some of whom came within sight of that City, whilst the Ind<sup>m</sup> disappointed at finding none to cooperate with them, began to take measures for their own security, and many of them retired.—During all this time, the Enemy employed their most fitting Officers with parties to draw in the Canadians to join them, and numbers did so.—Encouraged by this, and relying on some persons said to be disaffected in the City, Col: Allen, their most daring partizan, advanced with a body of about 140 Rebels very near Montreal, which was thrown into the utmost confusion;—a body consisting of some Regulars, Volontiers and 32 Officers and Men of my Department with a few Indians Marched out to oppose them on the 25th of Sept<sup>r</sup> & engaged them within less than 3. miles of the gates where the Rebels were defeated, and Col: Allen being vigorously pressed by those of my Corps surrendered to M<sup>r</sup> Johnson one of my Officers.

This small affair promised great consequences, and had the Gov<sup>r</sup> been able to pursue it immediately, this Colony would now have been freed from the distress under which it has long laboured, but the Canadians have not as yet come in, in such numbers as to answer the design of Govern<sup>t</sup>, and the season being very far advanced in this cold climate, the few remaining Indians propose to return home in a day or two.

This, My Lord is but a hasty sketch of the Affairs of the summer part, every part of wh<sup>ch</sup> would require much enlargement & therefore finding my person proscribed, my Estate advertised for sale, and nothing to be done till next May, I have judged it best after regulating the affairs of the Department and posting my Officers in proper places for preserving the friendship of the Indians, to pay my personal respects to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, receive His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands, & fully explain the several matters required of me in your last letter, as well as several other things of such essential importance & requiring such immediate regulation, that when I have the honor of an interview, I persuade myself Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be fully satisfied with the propriety of this measure.

As the nature of the services I had to perform in pursuance to the General's instructions etc, occasioned an expense far exceeding the ordinary peace establishment of the Department; I have after consultation with Gov<sup>r</sup> Carleton, as there is no money to be had here and the communication with Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage over for the season, found it necessary to satisfy those who have supplied me with cash and goods, by giving too or three orders on the Lords of the Treasury, in which I hope to be justified from the peculiar situation of the affairs here & circumstances which I can fully explain, and your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may be assured that I shall take every possible measure for promoting the interests of Govern<sup>t</sup> with the Indian Nations during my necessary absence.

I have the honor to be with the utmost respect My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient & most faithful humble servant.

G. JOHNSON.

P. S. The Indians who live in the neighbourhood of this City have assured me that should, any body of Troops advance against the Rebels late as the season is, they will join them.

My Lord

Since the taking away of between Thirty and Forty Load of the Barrick Masters and Hospital Stores in the night of ninth Ins<sup>d</sup> and the Inhabitants replacing them the next day, on my requisition to the Mayor, the City has been in continual agitation and ferment increased by a recommenda<sup>m</sup> and resolve of the Continental Congress, that this provincial congress, should take into consideration the expediency of siezing or securing the Crown Officers Upon the first receipt of this Determination I communicated it to the officers most interested, and kept out of Town all Thursday at the Governors Island, & in the evening the asia's boat landed me at Long Island, and lay at M<sup>r</sup> Astells at Flatbush

Hearing that the congress had not gone upon any determination upon that subject, I returned early next morning to the City and wrote the Mayor the letter A. Yesterday he brought me the answer B. which conveying no pledged security to my person I sent him the letter C. which will be under deliberation to-morrow, as many of the principal Inhabitants are expected in Town this evening. Sir

His Excellency Governor Tryons second letter to your Worship of the 14th Instant: has been laid before the Committee We flattered ourselves that the Sentiments of respect expressed in answer to His Excellencys first letter to your worship, and the assurances that his information from Philadelphia was ill grounded, would have removed every suspicion of Injury intended to his person or property.

We can with great truth assure his Excellency that we are not apprehensive of the least danger to his person or Property; and that he may rest assured of all that Protection from us and our fellow citizens, which will be consistent with the great principle of our safety and preservation, declaring at the same time that we have the utmost confidence in his Excellencys Disposition to serve the true Interest of this Colony, and that he will by his wise and prudent mediation, use his best offices to restore that harmony between Great Britain and the Colonies so ardently wished for by us. The Committee therefore can not but again express their most earnest desire, that his excellency would continue his residence among a people, who have the most grateful sense of his upright and disinterested administration

We have the pleasure to acquaint your Worship that the above letter was unanimously approved of in a full Committee, and are Sir,

On Board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon New York Harbour
Nov 11. 1775

My Lord

Since the 30th of last month I have been on Board of the ship Dutchess of Gordon under the protection of the Asia Man of War, with M<sup>r</sup> Kempe Attorney General and M<sup>r</sup> Barrow Deputy Pay Master to His Majestys Forces. This measure though expensive was necessary as I could not have kept up any communication with the Country had I gone on Board the Asia Man of War, Whereas in my present situation the Friends of Government freely come to me, and I beleive my removal has brought many to a deeper reflection of their dayly and increasing distress than while I remained among them, when the consider<sup>d</sup> me as a pledge for the Redemption of any principal Rebel that may fall into the hands of the Kings Forces—It is certain that within this fortnight the Spirit of Rebellion in this Province, especially in the city, has greatly abated and we wait now only for five thousand Regulars to open our Commerce and restore our valuable constitution.—The Counties Westchester, Dutchess, King, Queen and Richmond, had the bulk of their Inhabitants well affected to Government and some friends in all the other Counties. They call for protection as the enemies to Government are daily insulting and disarming them; and succours from Connecticut have very lately made new incursions into West Chester for that wicked purpose. If we have no aid for the friends of Government to associate under this winter. I dread the impending consequence to those who are friendly to Government and remain unprotected. The Sword, My Lord, is drawn and it is that must now establish a constitution. Yet could it be compatible with the dignity and justice of the British Sovereignty to give explicit satisfaction to America that the principle of internal Taxation in America should not be exercised by the British State until a Plan was agreed upon for the Representation of America or other accommodation, the General confederacy would in my opinion speedily if not immediately, unravel; and Bodies even of the enemies to Government stand forth with its present friends to suppress those who should then continue in Rebellion. I am confident one thousand Regulars here with such an olive Branch would be equal to five in the present state of the contest. Not but that I have expectations of the General Congress settling before the spring a Quota for each Province, with Instructions to the Delegates of the respective Provinces to communicate the said Quota to the General Assemblies of their Provinces, that the offer of support for the General purposes of the State may be made constitutionally to Great Britain through the General Assemblies. This doctrine I have inculcated and every other that I thought could promote the restoration of the Authority of his Majestys Government.

I am with the most perfect Respect

My Lord, Your Lordships

most obedient Servant

On Board the Dutchess of

Gordon New York 11th Nov 1775

My Lord

The inclosures herewith transmitted will abundantly testify the Anarchy of this Province and the Malignant Spirit that is spread through the Country.

The Paper marked A was received from the Fountain head, and was the ground of my subsequent conduct in removing on Board the Packet.

Fort Chamblee fell into the Hands of the Rebels the 18th of last month, but as St Johns by letter from Ticonderoga of the 31st of october was still beseiged it is hoped the attempts of the enemy on that Fort will be defeated through the Bravery of the Garrison, favored by the severity of the season or relieved by General Carleton who it is confidently asserted has levied a Body of Highlanders and Canadians for that purpose

The enemy have two objects in view in constructing the Fort at the highlands, on Hudsons River; The one to preserve the communication open above those Heights between the Western and Eastern Colonies, which will be important to them when the Kings Ships next Summer command Hudsons River as far up as the Fort: The other object is to prevent the Junction by water of any Forces that may march from this city and Canada to retake the Forts on the Lakes. This Fort however when the Friends of Government can associate in conjunction with the Regulars, will probably soon be dismantled by the Country people or taken by the Kings Forces.

I have detained the Packet considering at this Crisis Government would be anxious to know the issue of the Canada Invasion, however as the mercury Packet is arrived I shall dispatch the Halifax in two or three days, tho' no fresher intelligence should arrive

I am with all possible Respect

My Lord

Your Lordships

Enclosure A.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVII.]

The letter produced to the continental Congress and the Copy sent to this, in New York has the following words.

“Tryon with all his malignity of heart is obliged to lay still as the four Regiments are gone to Boston; he is high in esteem with administration for his behaviour at N. Carolina, his plan that he laid for enslaving this country, when in England is not laid aside, it will be a capital stroke to secure Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryons person;” it goes on to point it out by “your acting in conjunction with Gov<sup>r</sup> Carleton.”

Hancocks letter to the Congress “I also enclose you a resolve of the continental congress respecting those who in your opinion are dangerous by going at large which I also refer;” This resolve I can’t get sight of I beleive it is destroyed. 150 men working at the Forts, 200 weight of Powder there. Beacons to be erected 30 miles this side of the Forts all the way up at proper places to give the alarm. A plan is laid to build two more batteries this side the Forts, an application to Congress for 25 men to keep watch at night, at the Fort building up the north River. A Plan to sink Blocks to stop up some narrow places going up to the Forts, in order to prevent large vessels going up. Two sloops sailed last sunday fortnight with money for powder, I beleive to the French Islands.

A wounded soldier left St Johns 14th of october examined before Congress. St Johns close besieged, stand half leg died in mud and water, a new baterie to be opened the day after he came away, next day heard heavy firing. They said in the camp if they did not take it in three or four days they never should. A rumor in the Camp four or five thousand Canadians were coming to the releif of St Johns—Stop’d and dismissed by the President. This man told before he came to Congress he was sure not a provincial was at St Johns by this time. A motion made in Congress by M<sup>r</sup> Isaac Low, to lay all the affairs before Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon relating to him as above objected to

New York Harbour, 6th Dec<sup>r</sup> 1775

My Lord,

Since my Dispatches sent by the November Packet this province has experienced a fresh outrage from the Connecticut people. Near one hundred of their horsemen with Isaac Sears, <sup>1</sup> James Brattle, who had formerly lived with Governor Tryon, was at this time servant to James Duane, a member of Congress, whose minutes he was in the habit of purloining, on his master retiring to bed, and afterwards sending them and other information to Governor Tryon. On being discovered he absconded, and was sent to England by his employer. 4. American Archives, V., 44. — Ed.

Sam<sup>l</sup> Broom, and other turbulent fellows at their head came into the City of New York and going up to Mr Rivington's house, part of them dismounted, went into his printing office and took away all his Types with other articles out of the Shop, and then, to the disgrace of the City, were suffered unmolested to leave the Town. But before they quitted the Province they ill treated & took prisoners some inhabitants of West Chester County; particularly The Reverend M<sup>r</sup> Seabury, and burnt one Sloop belonging to persons friendly to government. Mr Rivington injured almost to ruin throws himself on the benevolent consideration of the British State. The freedom of Mr Rivington's publications, & especially in his last paper herewith transmitted, drew this lawless Violence upon him.

Isaac Sears is evidently a tool of the Continental Army, publicly declaring he acts regardless of Congresses and Committees; and I am told by good Authority he shewed a letter he received from General Lee, recommending the seizure of my person, and that he should do it at all events, and that the Continental Army would bear him out. It probably will not be long before the assumed powers of the general congress will be transferred to their Army.

Reports prevail that all the Plate on the Continent is to be secured, & continental Paper Money given in exchange. This Robbery is to insure the circulation of that fraudulent currency as well as to furnish Resources for future occasions.

The intimation of Isaac Sears' design speedily to revisit this Province with a more numerous body of the Connecticut Rioters, and to take away the Records of the Province induced me to order such publick Records as were most interesting to the Crown to be brought on board to me, which measure has been since approved by the unanimous advice of Council.

The peaceable demeanor & loyalty of the Inhabitants of Queen's County, with a firm Resolution to defend their families & property from insult has drawn on them the threatened Violence of Sears and his adherents. But unawed by these threats, it is believed they will be firm united & spirited in their resistance to such a lawless & wicked attack. Lieu<sup>t</sup> Governor Colden & his Family have much merit in promoting this laudable spirit of opposition to the Measures of Committees and Congresses in Queen's County.

The rage of the populace in this province for Committees & Congresses seems to have greatly abated. Several Counties have refused to send Delegates to the provincial Congress, and they have not been able to make a house, as they call it, since the late Dissolution. And was it not from the awe of the inhabitants of the neighboring Colonies and the controuling influence of the Continental Congress I am persuaded there would be an immediate End to all Committees and Congresses. But unassisted & unprotected as the well disposed and loyal Part of the Inhabitants are I can determine nothing with certainty as to what may, or may not be, the state of publick Affairs in this Province. I can only say that my best and unremitted endeavors have been constantly exerted for the Service of my Sovereign, and the Dignity of his Majesty's Government.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect and esteem,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant

My Lord,

I have engaged John Woods, Thomas Allen, & William Tunx, three skilful Gunsmiths to quit working at their trade in forwarding the execution of purposes contrary to the feelings of their natures, as Englishmen, in the present unnatural Rebellion. There is only one Workman now remaining in America that is capable of the business of Gun welting, as I am informed. This conduct I thought deserving of Encouragement and meriting protection. I have therefore paid thirty Guineas for their passage to England in the packet, and advanced them twenty Guineas more to support them up to London. I have made it the express condition of their leaving America that they shall be employed in the Tower, or other the King's Armory. The fulfilling this positive engagement, My Lord, I rest to your Lordship's particular care, as an Encouragement due to men, voluntarily, and at the hazard of their lives & property, fleeing from Employment advantagious to their present Interest, though obnoxious to their Sentiments, disloyal to their Sovereign, & injurious to the measures of his Majesty's Government.

Sir

Your dispatches by the Halifax Packet have been received and laid before the King, and the intelligence they enclose, of the loss of Chambles and St Johns, which has been confirmed by advices received to day from Quebec, clouds the fair prospect we had of the advantage which a disappointment to the Rebels in their design upon Canada would have given us, yet this ground of advantage is not irrecoverable, and I trust and beleive, that if the measures His Majesty has thought fit to adopt, for a vigorous exertion of his Forces in the Spring turn out as we have good reason to expect, we shall soon see a different prospect of affairs

In the mean time it will be your duty to encourage by every means in your power, any expectation in the Kings well disposed subjects in New York of every assistance & protection the state of this Kingdom will enable His Majesty to afford them, and to cherish every appearance of a disposition on their part to withstand the Tyranny and misrule, which accompany the acts of those, who have but too well succeeded in the total subversion of legal Government.

It is painful to His Majesty to see the distress and difficultys to which His faithful servants in the Colonies are exposed, yet His Majesty commends the resolution you have taken that nothing but the most unsurmountable difficultys shall induce you in the present state of Insurrection & Revolt to avail yourself of that permission His Majesty has been graciously pleased to give you to return to England

<sup>1</sup> GEORGE SACKVILLE, youngest son of Lionel, 1st Duke of Dorset, was born 26 January, 1717. Having entered the army, he served under the Duke of Cumberland, and was wounded in the breast at the famous battle of Fontenoy, 11 May, 1745. On the 1st June following, he was appointed Colonel in the Army, and 9th April, 1746, Colonel of the 26th Regiment of Foot. On the 1st November, 1748, he became Colonel of the 12th Royal Dragoons; and on the 18th January, 1750, of the 3d Horse or Carabiniers; on the 22d February, 1755, he was promoted to be Major-General; on the 5th April, 1757, was appointed Colonel of the 2d or Queen's Dragoon Guards; on the 30th November following, Lieutenant-General of the Ordnance; and on 26th January, 1758, became Lieutenant-General in the Army and Privy Councillor. In the expedition to Germany, this last year, in aid of the King of Prussia, Lord George Sackville was appointed second in command of the English forces, under the Duke of Marlborough. On the death of the latter, on 28th October, 1758, the command-in-chief of those forces devolved on Lord George. He held that office until the memorable battle of Minden, 1st August, 1759, when, in consequence of some misunderstanding between him and Prince Ferdinand, he returned to England in disgrace. The King, with his own hand, erased his name from the list of Privy Councillors, and deprived him of all his appointments. He was next tried, at his own request, by a court martial, found guilty of disobedience of orders, dismissed the service and declared forever incapable of serving in a military capacity. As his Lordship was patronized by the Prince of Wales, some suppose him, in this instance, to have been severely dealt with in consequence. He represented Dover in the 11th Parliament and in 1760 was returned for the port of Hythe. After the accession of George III., he was again received at Court, and the remainder of his life was devoted to civil affairs. Lady Betty Germain, at her death in 1769, left her property by will to Lord George Sackville, on condition of his assuming her surname, which he did accordingly. In December, 1770, he fought a duel with Mr. Johnstone, governor of West Florida, in which neither was hurt. Having joined Lord North's party, he was 10 November, 1775, appointed Secretary of State for the Colonies. (Robert Thompson of Woburn, Mass., afterwards Count Rumford, was his Lordship's Under Secretary.) He retired from office in February, 1782, when he was raised to the peerage by the title Baron Bolebrooke and Viscount Sackville, and died at his seat, Stoneham Lodge, Sussex, on the 26th August, 1785, in the 68th year of his age. Army Lists; Entick's History of the War, III., 79, 179; IV., passim; Chatham Correspondence; Grenville Papers; Gentleman's Magazine, LV., 667; LVI., i., 208. — Ed.

On Board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon

My Lord,

The Merchant Ship Sampson being chartered by some gentlemen wanting a passage to England gives me an opportunity of writing to Your Lordship which I gladly embrace, notwithstanding my present impaired State of health, and the excruciating pains of a fit of the Gout with which I have been afflicted for some days past. It is not however, My Lord, that any particular circumstances hath occurred since my last public Dispatches, materially to alter or change the face of things in America, that I trouble You at this time, but to impress upon Your Lordship the idea I have of the progressive State of the astonishing extravagancies to which the American views & claims are extending, and the increasing expediency (permit me, My Lord, to use a stronger expression and say, Necessity) there is of raising Regiments out of, and giving Employment and Protection to the well affected part of his Majesty's American Subjects. The case of these distressed individuals, which, believe me, My Lord, are not a few in this Colony, is every day becoming more trying, and distressing. They suffer from Committees, Congresses, & Minute men, in their persons and property, a species of Tyranny and Despotism scarcely to be equalled in History. Oppressed beyond all measure and without arms or ammunition even for the harmless purposes of self Defence. They incessantly wait upon me with the strongest assurances that they look up to their King for protection, and most ardently wish for a speedy restoration of the Powers of his Majesty's Government and the peaceful blessings of their former constitution. The cause of those unhappy people, My Lord, is the cause of humanity. But if left without a hand to aid or a power to succour, urged by want and compelled by persecution they may through despair be drove to abandon their allegiance, and become soldiers of necessity, at once against their principles and their lawful Sovereign. The investing, My Lord, at this momentous season, some great and distinguished person with similar powers of a Vice Roy both in the civil and Military Departments in each Province, I apprehend to be of the greatest importance to the British State. Might he not be authorized to raise Regiments of Americans, and be supplied with arms, ammunition and clothing, to fit them for immediate service, with unlimited credit upon the Treasury for the ample support of the service? And to prevent the ill effects arising from the despair of pardon, to be fully authorized (with such exceptions as may be judged necessary) to grant his Majesty's most gracious pardon to the deluded and reclaimed. Under such circumstances I am confident the Royal standard, guarded at first with some regiments of Regulars, might be erected with the greatest success. To facilitate such a Measure, & to accomplish a purpose so important to the British Empire, I could most willingly consent to make way for such a Personage in the Government of this Province, where with my present limited and restricted powers & situation, I am without authority to support the Dignity of my station, or enforce the delegated powers of my gracious Sovereign. My letter to General Howe of the 13th of December which I have the honor to transmit, will give Your Lordship an Idea how far I could probably co-operate with his Majesty's Regular Forces.

I have the honor to be, with the greatest deference and respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant

If Sir John had the title of Superintendant of Indian Affairs it would give the greatest weight to his Majesty's Indian Affairs. The Indians having the greatest affection for the Son of their late generous Benefactor. Sir.

I hope the occasion and intention of this letter will plead my excuse for the liberty I take in introducing to your Excellency the bearer hereof Captain Allen M<sup>c</sup>Donell who will inform You of many particulars that can not at this time with safety be committed to writing. The distracted & convulsed State that this unhappy country is now worked up to, and the situation that I am in here, together with the many Obligations our family owe to the best of Sovereigns induces me to fall upon a plan that may I hope be of service to my country, the propriety of which I entirely submit to Your Excellency's better judgement, depending on that friendship which you have been pleased to honour me with for Your advice on and Representation to his Majesty of what we propose. Having consulted with all my friends in this quarter, among whom are many old and good Officers, I have come to the resolution of forming a Battalion, and have named all the Officers, most of whom have a good deal of interest in their respective neighbourhoods, and have now a great number of men ready to compleat the plan—We must however not think of stirring till we have a support, & supply of money, necessaries to enable us to carry our design into execution, all which M<sup>c</sup> Donell will inform Your Excellency of. I make not the least doubt of the success of this plan, should we be supported in time. As to news I must beg leave to refer you to M<sup>c</sup> Donell who will inform you of everything that has been done in Canada that has come to our knowledge. As I find by the papers you are soon to sail for England I despair of having the pleasure to pay my respects to you but most sincerely wish you an Agreeable Voyage and a happy sight of Your family & friends. I am,

This Certifies that it is the Opinion of this Committee and of the County Congress, & People in general in this County, that all law, for the collecting of private Debt, ought by all means to cease for the present, in New York Government as well as this, till a new Constitution is provided for all the Colonies, by the Continental Congress. We think it exceeding hazardous to our common cause & tending to disunite us, and fling money into the pockets of our Internal Enemies, which ought finally to go into the Continental Treasury, to allow of the Collecting private debts by a course of law.

Provided nevertheless if any Person give reason to suspect that he is about to run away he ought to be obliged to give reasonable security to his said Creditors.

As to what M<sup>r</sup> Van Olstine has done in suing M<sup>r</sup> Moray when he made him the fairest Offers it is our opinion he ought to lose the cost himself and that the bail M<sup>r</sup> Moray was constrained to give is unreasonable, & that the said Moray ought to be assisted by the good People in this County, against the unreasonable demands of the said Van Olstine. <sup>1</sup> PETER VAN SCHAACK WAS BORN at Kinderhook, Columbia Co., N. Y., in March, 1747, and was graduated at King's (now Columbia) College, about 1766. He studied law in the office of William Smith, was admitted to the bar in 1769 and took up his residence in the city of New-York. In 1773, when only 26 years of age, he was appointed to the responsible office of collecting and revising the Statute Laws of the Colony. This, which was known as the Van Schaack edition, was published by Hugh Gaige of New-York in 1774, in 1 vol., fol., pp. 835. In the beginning of the difficulties with England, Mr. Van Schaack was friendly to the measures of non-importation and non-consumption, and was in favor of peaceful opposition, and in May, 1775, removed his residence to Kinderhook, where he employed a considerable portion of his time in Vattel, Puffendorf, Grotius and other such writers, in the hope of finding precedents to support American resistance. Having made up his mind to remain neutral, he declined signing the association to take up arms in 1776, and in 1777 refused to take the oath of allegiance to the State of New-York, whereupon he was ordered to Boston. In April following he was allowed to return to Kinderhook on parole. In June, the Legislature passed a law appointing commissioners of conspiracies, to call such persons before them as they might think fit, and administer to them an oath acknowledging the independence of the State of New-York. Mr. Van Schaack, on being summoned, refused to take the prescribed oath; the penalty was perpetual banishment. Accordingly he sailed in October, 1778, for England, where he remained until the 10th of June, 1785. He landed at New-York on the 20th July and in January, 1786, a law was passed restoring him to the rights of citizenship. He resumed the practice of his profession in his native village. In 1788 a law work was published at New-York, entitled, "Conductor Generalis, or The duty and authority of Justices of the Peace, High Sheriffs, Under Sheriffs, Coroners, Constables, Gaolers, Jurymen and Overseers of the Poor," &c., which Mr. Van Schaack revised and adapted to the United States of America. After many years of successful practice, he at length departed this life 27th September, 1832, in the 86th year of his age, and was interred in the village churchyard at Kinderhook. A Life of Mr. Van Schaack has been published by his son, 1 vol., 8vo, New-York, 1842, from which the above particulars are borrowed.—Ed.

Kinderhook, as well as elsewhere, that he means to put in suit, it is our opinion he ought to be obliged to desist from any such measure. The People in this County stand ready to aid and assist the Sons of Liberty & Friends of their Country in Kinderhook and King's District, against the wicked designs of the Tories, in distressing the friends of their Country by Law. In Witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands.

Sir.

I confess that I flattered myself with hopes that this Province might have been induced by Your advice to set an example to the rest, for a return from their wanderings in that wide field of discontent opened by the Continental Congress in 1774. My Brother assured me that several of the Delegates were favorably disposed, and I consented to fall in at a Tavern where he collected a number of them, to give me an opportunity to open a plan towards a Reconciliation, under the form of Instructions to the Delegates for this Province at Philadelphia. The prospect was fair until a Triumvirate discerned a spirit of moderation would be inauspicious to their private aims, of gaining seats in the new Assembly, and by working upon the general jealousies of the main Body, and the ambition of some members who had ends similar to their own, they procured after several Days debate, the Rejection of a sett of Resolves which my Brother<sup>1</sup> had incautiously framed, as introductory to the Instructions, that would have succeeded best without any Herald or Trumpet; and then on his withdrawing in disgust, they went further than they at first intended and carried not only a Resignation of their deliberative Powers to the Continental Congress, but established their own Dominion over the Colony by constituting a Committee of Safety, in which only three of 21 Delegates for this City, and about a dozen for the whole Province, are to have Voices. These Events and the recent restraint upon the Assembly of New Jersey, in stopping their intended application to the throne, shew a Design on their High Mightinesses at Philadelphia to exclude all the Provincials Congresses from a Share in their Councils, and to reduce them to meer executive instruments; and therefore the Torrent sets too strong for any resistance on this side of the water.

I cannot sufficiently express the anxiety I feel in being obliged in candor to make a Confession so repugnant to my desires and unfriendly to my Country. If it may be expected, and I should be miserable without the expectation, that we may be yet saved, by the magnanimity of Great Britain, who can with your ease smooth down the rough brow of suspicion, at that critical moment, when the news of the liberality of Parliament arrives. I tremble, Sir, at the thought of Your absence at such a juncture, and yet I dare not say another word to persuade Your excellency to continue Your Sacrifices, for a Province that has so illy requited them, if the Act of a Congress, in which several Counties are not represented, & upon which many members have turned their backs, can be imputed to the Body of the people, as I think it ought not.

But if we must be abandoned to the Genius of Discord, ought not the Assembly to be dissolved, and Your intention of sailing concealed, till the Elections are over. The Dissolution will enable men of temper, to testify their Disapprobation of the present Violence, under a popular and safe cloke form a Confederacy to correct and undermine the Tyranny erected over the Colony, turn the eyes of the multitude to a power that is constitutional, and favor future overtures for the restoration of harmony; and if you leave the Province before the new house is formed, many who would otherwise be active will resign themselves to that Torpor, ever attending a state of Despair. It is with reluctance I obtrude these confidential Hints, and from a perfect affiance in the rectitude of Your intentions, and my veneration for Your judgement, I shall give my Opinion to the winds, the moment it meets with Your disapprobation, having the honor to be, Sir, very affectionately and sincerely Your most obed<sup>t</sup> Serv<sup>t</sup>

Colonel Guy Johnson to Lord George Germain.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXII. ]

Brewer Street Golden Square

Jan<sup>y</sup> 26. 1776.

My Lord.

In obedience to your Lordships commands I have now (as soon as my health allowed, committed to writing such matters as appeared necessary for his Majesty's information) respecting the state of Indian affairs, accompanied with the heads of my proceedings last year, and as I have express'd myself with candour and truth, I can with better confidence rely on your Lordships indulgence and favorable reception of this letter, which I shall begin by considering the state of things from the late war to the present times; pointing out as briefly as possible those matters that appear to require redress, with the consequences to be derived therefrom.

After the reduction of Canada the Indians received (by order of Government) every possible assurance that their affairs and interests should continue to be strictly attended to under the same happy system or plan of Super-Intendency, which from its institution had proved so advantageous to the Crown and so satisfactory to them; and those of Canada having complained much of the treatment they had met with from the French Agents, were particularly assured that those persons should never again be permitted to have any concern in their affairs, and they were all promis'd relief whenever the case required, with a fair and open trade, & a security against encroachments on their lands, But as the natural jealousy of the Indians was much increased by our success, they resolv'd to keep a watchfull eye over our conduct, and their suspicions encreased as our views and settlements extended. To account for their conduct since as well as to form a judgmen[t] of what may in future be expected from them, it is therefore necessary to enquire how far their hopes and expectations have been answered, and what remains necessary to be done to remove any doubt of justice and strengthen their attachment to government.

With regard to the Super-Intendency it was indeed preserved, but most of its authority derived under the Kings instructions met with opposition, some of the Colonies wished to have the Indians dependant on them, probably with a view to some future sinister purposes, and individuals thought it a bar to their schemes of encroachment which began about that time. A judicious system was prepar'd by the Board of Trade in 1765. which was honor'd with his Majesty's approbation, but it was never carried into effectual execution. For altho' it would have proved of general advantage & convinced the Indians that government had both power and inclination to serve them, it was represented as affecting some Indian traders; in consequence of which part of the regulations were left to the Colonies, and the rest fell through; on which subject Lord Hillsboro' in his letter to Sir Wm. Johnson of 1771. (Number 17.) says "I lament that your authority does not extend to redress those grievances " which are most material, and I am persuaded that could it have been foreseen that the Colonies would have been so backward and negligent in meeting those gracious intentions " of the King which induced His Majesty to leave the regulation of the commerce to them, " their representations on the subject would not have so far prevailed as to have occasioned " such a deviation from the plan at first proposed, as has almost entirely defeated every usefull " object it had in view." Sir Wm Johnson had before given it as his opinion that altho' the Colonies wished for the power of regulating these matters, they would be at no trouble or expence on the occasion, and with regard to Indian Lands, the thirst after them was become too general to be prevented by any ordinary means in the power either of Super-Intendant or a Governor; and the like might be said of many other circumstances of fraud and over reaching, because the Indians were not under the laws and declined coming under them, neither had the laws made provision for the peculiar state of these people; so that the clearest evidence of Indians, even of those who were christianized had no weight in a Court of Justice; consequently the Indians, sensible when injured, attributed the want of justice to want of inclination, and were often, with difficulty, prevented from committing the most violent outrages.

The fears of a French power in America being remov'd, many persons travelled into the back countries, who generally assumed to themselves some knowledge of Indian Affairs, and affected to decry their power, genius, &c thereby endeavouring to prevent any enquiry into these matters, and many of the French partizans accustomed to domineer over these Indians, who lived within their power, disgusted them so soon as these Indians were by treaties restored to the Confederacies from whence they had been seduced. The Indians also became more sensible of the value of their lands, as they diminished in quantity; every new application to them on that score alarmed their jealousy and produced secret meetings among them; which would have often ended in war, but for Sr William Johnson's vigilance and address. Some unjust dormant claims began to be revived, which sensibly affected the Mohocks and spread thro' all the Nations, and some New England Agents at the treaty at Fort Stanwix in 1768 endeavored under religious pretences to obtain a large tract in the midst of the Indian country; defeated in this, they erected a seminary far up on Connecticut River, to which their emissaries drew some young Indians from Canada and by that communication endeavored to alienate the Canadians and Indians from government, which they in some measure effected during last winter.

Under all these circumstances so disadvantageous to government, the grievances of which the foregoing are but a part, the jealousies and doubts thereby produced of the intentions of the Crown, the fidelity of the Indians has not only been preserved, but from an impartial review of their conduct last summer, tho' unhappily unsupported, they demonstrated an attachment to the Crown, equal at least to what they had ever shewn under the most favorable circumstances and the most powerful aids; and if it was not in their power to save, they, by their bravery & perseverance protracted the fate of Canada. In these points, my Lord, I really do them but justice, tho' the affection they have shewn for me intitles them to my warmest gratitude; an attachment to a person who was dear to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, and for many years particularly conversant in their affairs, was natural enough, & it was my ambition to render this subservient to His Majesty's interests, whilst I believe they were encouraged to persevere in the hope of recommending their suit to the King, respecting the powers of the Super-Intendency and the redress of Grievances; and I am fully persuaded that an attention to their interests, with a proper management of their concerns, will always secure their fidelity to the Crown.

To preserve the Indians dependance on, & their attachment to the Crown, was one of the objects in establishing the Super-Intendency. Had the Indians been without an Officer on the part of His Majesty dispos'd to exert his utmost influence, and sacrifice every consideration to the service of the King, there is the strongest reason to believe that the Indians would have been deluded by those arguments which led the common people of America into rebellion, and it's easy to conceive what they might have done with proper support, when a part of them have acted with so much spirit and perseverance under the most discouraging circumstances. Convinced therefore (as I am) that these people may be secured to the Crown and rendered serviceable now, or on any future emergency, I shall with all due submission deliver the heads of those matters which they have requested me to lay before His Majesty.

The first I shall mention is the case of the Mohocks which Sr Will<sup>m</sup> Johnson had represented to have been long considered as a grievance by the whole Confederacy, the redress of which would afford them the highest idea of our justice. This regards a power given by the very strange old Charter of Albany to take up one thousand acres of their lands, which lately that Corporation have attempted to lay on the very lands they cultivate and live upon. The rectifying an error in the Boundary Line of 1768, then occasioned thro' the want of a proper survey, by which the dwelling places of some of the Indians have been taken in near the River Susquehanna, contrary to the express intentions of the parties at that time.—The giving some confirmation or assurance to the Canajoharies of the lands on which they live, which had also been claimed and afterwards released by all the claimants but one person, whose obstinate refusal has given infinite disquiet. The taking some effectual measures for preventing encroachments on the Boundary Line, & securing to them certain portions reserved by the Fort Stanwix Treaty, which was ratified by His Majesty.

The cases of which the foregoing are but heads, can be more fully explained by the Papers in my custody.

Another point on which they have repeatedly applied regards Religion. That of the Church of England was early introduced among them; but for want of a sufficient fund there is at present but one Missionary<sup>1</sup> of the Church throughout the whole Confederacy, which has afforded an opportunity for introducing New England Missionaries, who diffuse their evil principles with their religion; and I must observe that the only part of the Six Nations with whom I found any difficulty, was a village of the Oneidas where a New England Missionary resided. The Indians therefore humbly request that some provision be made for enlarging their religious establishment, which will be gratefully acknowledged and strengthen their attachment to government. The modes of effecting this can be more at large explained.

The next point which they request concerns the Super-Intendency, that its powers and extent may be so far ascertained as to afford them all the protection that can be expected from such an Officer. On this subject they said much more to me than I incline to repeat. It may however be proper to inform Your Lordship that Sir Will<sup>m</sup> Johnson's favorable opinion and repeated advice induced me to apply a series of years in acquiring a knowledge of Indian Affairs, well judging that a stranger must want both influence and capacity to serve His Majesty therein, and that as I enter'd on the office with a view of being usefull so Your Lordship may be assured I should never hold any post in which I could not promote the interests of government; as this is my ambition, it is also my duty to mention that a proper commission & instructions from His Majesty, with some local or other rank when in the field, are necessary for the effectual discharge of the duties of that office. Without a proper authority the Super-Intendant can be expected to do very little, and without some rank he cannot properly manage or preserve order among his own officers. To this I might add the fixing limits to the Department conformable to those of the Confederacys within it, or in such manner as to be clearly ascertained; and this is the more necessary as after Major Campbell's arrival, I could have no real authority in Canada, altho' I remained there whilst there was any prospect, or the season would permit the Indians to stay; after which, agreeable to their own wishes (and after posting my officers in the best manner I could) I came over to receive His Majesty's commands on all the foregoing matters, that I might return in a capacity to render him good & faithfull service.

The Indian Chief who accompanied me, with his companion, are persons of character and influence in their country; they can more at large speak on any matters that may be required of them. Whilst I humbly offer the foregoing at the desire of the Indians and from a thorough conviction that an attention thereto will produce solid advantage to the Crown, & altho' the several subjects of this letter have drawn it to an immoderate length, yet I am sensible some parts will require a more full explanation, which I shall take the liberty of offering whenever I am honor'd with the opportunity, that I may be the more effectually enabled to execute His Majesty's commands.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, My Lord

Your Lordships most obedient

and most humble servant

G. JOHNSON

Journal of Colonel Guy Johnson from May to November, 1775.

Extracts from the Records of Indian transactions under the Super-Intendency of Col. Guy Johnson during the Year 1775.

Col. Johnson having early perceived that the different Colonies were about to follow the example of the Massachusetts Bay, and finding that various measures were taken by New England Missionaries and others, to alienate the affections of the Indians & spirit them up to bad purposes, he communicated the same to Lord Dartmouth in March, and soon after sent messengers to call the Six Nations &c to a General Congress. The 14th of May he received by express an account that a party of New Englanders were on their way to make him prisoner, on which he fortified his house and kept a large guard at a considerable expense. A few days after he found that his expresses to the Indians had been stopped, and the purport of his messages altered, and that the provisions &c his agent had provided at New York were seized, together with the Ammunition and goods he was providing for the intended Congress. Finding this & that his communication with the Indians would soon be totally obstructed, he resolved to proceed to the Westward (with such presents &c as he then had) and meet them in their own country, while it remained practicable; and during his preparation for this he secretly received a dispatch from Gen<sup>l</sup> Gage, containing instructions. He then with such of the Mohocks as were at home, and a body of armed white men, making together about 250 marched to the Upper Settlements under every circumstance of difficulty, and leaving all his property at the discretion of the misguided populace, from thence he proceeded to Fort Stanwix, where he met 260 Oneidas and Oughquagas with whom he held a conference, but was obliged to take leave of them for want of provisions, the whole country being then in arms behind him, and no possibility of obtaining supplies from thence. He accordingly wrote to the Commanding Officer at Niagara and Oswegatchy for vessels and provisions, and on the 17th of June he arrived at Ontario,* to which place he had directed them to be sent, and where one small sloop shortly after arrived with 90 barrels, which tho' all that could be spared from Niagara was very unequal to supplying the Indians who assembled there in a few days to the number of 1455. with about 100 white men, including the officers of the Department. From the state of the country and the villainous stories propagated it required some time with great skill and influence to remove false reports and fix the Indians heartily in the interests of the Crown. He however had the good fortune at length to bring them to resolve to co-operate with His Majesty's troops in the defence of the communication and waters emptying into the River St Lawrence, and in the annoyance of the enemy, and also to send their band of Warriors present with him, to Montreal, to inspire their dependants there with the same resolutions. He also procured the like engagements from the Huron Chiefs of Detroit, who attended the Congress; which they very faithfully observed & thereby prevented the design of the Virginians against that country, as the papers in his hands will shew. After which he delivered them a handsome present, and a parcel of New arms &c and his provisions being nearly exhausted prepared to proceed for Montreal, but the Indians having few Canoes and those unfit for crossing the Lake he was obliged to set out July 11th with the sloop and four or five small boats carrying together 220 white men and Indians, the remainder of the latter being necessitated to return home for want of craft to transport them; After giving him assurances of their readiness to follow when called upon. Col. Johnson on his landing at Montreal July 17th with 220 Indians from Ontario, he had immediately an interview with General Carleton, to whom he communicated his instructions and design to assemble the Indians in that Country, to join those that had accompanied him; he also acquainted him with the accounts he had received of the preparations making by the New Englanders at Tieonderoga, and that they considered Canada as an essential object, adding that it would be extremely necessary to put the Indians as soon as possible in motion, as they were unaccustomed to remain long idle. The General observed that he had but a slender force of regular troops, that the Province of Quebec must depend on the Canadian Militia, that he had some hopes in a little time of assembly<sup>1</sup> a good body of them and that the Indians must in the mean time be amused in the best manner that could be found, as he did not think it prudent to let them go beyond the 45th deg. of Lat: or over the Province Line. Col. Johnson had proposed to hold his conference with the Indians at La Chine, to prevent the intemperance to which they must be exposed at Montreal, and the Indians were so sensible of this, that they were prevailed on with difficulty to come into town to oblige General Carleton who wanted to see them there. On the 26th of July the Indians all assembled pursuant to Col. Johnson's summons and finished their business on the last of that month when their number amounted to 1664. who readily agreed to the same measures engaged by the Six Nations, after receiving a valuable present, were disposed of in different camps on the Island of Montreal. An Indian Officer and thirty men were also sent to S<sup>t</sup> Johns to remain there at the desire of Gen<sup>l</sup> Carleton. On the 5th of August the Indian Officer at S<sup>t</sup> Johns informed Col. Johnson of his having discovered a large body of the enemy near P<sup>l</sup> Aufer (above S<sup>t</sup> Johns on Lake Champlain) who fired on his party, and of the eagerness manifested by the Indians to form a large body and go against them. Col. Johnson immediately communicated this to Brig<sup>ad</sup> Prescott<sup>2</sup> who commanded on General Carleton's departure for Quebec. He also told Gen<sup>l</sup> Prescott that the Warriors of the several Nations were to assemble that day, when he would give them the war belts, as they appeared very spirited and in consequence of the rebels approach would gladly go and dispossess them of any posts they had taken on Lake Champlain, and that he should be glad to have his sentiments upon it. The General answered that if any partys were sent out to gain intelligence and see what the enemy were doing it might be well, but at present he did not intend acting out of the line of the Province. On Col. Johnson remarking that Indians could not be managed as other people, it being necessary at times to keep up their spirit and encourage them, and therefore he should be glad to know what to say for their satisfaction on that subject. The General replied that arguments were needless on this occasion, his orders being such as not to act out of the Line of the Province. Col. Johnson observed that this did not appear to correspond with his instructions from General Gage, and that it would be a very difficult matter to manage Indians under such circumstances and limitations; on which the General concluded with saying that all in the Province must be subject to General Carleton's orders and that Col. Johnson must act in the best manner he could without going out of the Colony. However the Indians being assembled, Col. Johnson delivered each Nation a War Belt to be held ready for service; which the Indians cheerfully accepted, but said they were afraid the Axe would cut them if they kept it long without using it. Several of the Six Nations, Oughquissasnies &c having waited till the 12th of August in hopes of some operations, returned with their War Belt to Onondaga, after assuring Col. Johnson that they would be ready to return whenever there was a prospect of vigorous measures. Col. Johnson continued to releave the party at St Johns by detachments from the different Indian Encampments & endeavoured all in his power to render them contented with their situation. The party at St Johns continued to scout on Lake Champlain (within the limits prescribed) and on the 22<sup>d</sup> of August 4 Indians detached from a larger party seized a new barge with which the rebels were reconnoitring, which brought on a skirmish, wherein Capt. Baker a noted rebel was killed; whose head, together with his instructions, plans, &c they brought into St Johns. In this affair three Indians were wounded. For some time past, notwithstanding all the cares to prevent it, some of the Inhabitants &c continued to sell liquor to the Indians and to strip them of their cloathing, propagating also many dangerous reports among them, and telling them that they approved of the rebells coming, as it was for the interest of the Colony. The Indians complained much of all this, and as they had already waited inactive, far beyond what they had ever done before, Col. Johnson wrote to Gen<sup>l</sup> Carleton representing their urgency to go against the rebells or attack their communications; with his opinion that it would answer great purposes, whilst restraining men unaccustomed to inactivity would abate their ardour and might occasion their defection. To which the General answered that no one thing had yet happened to make him alter his opinion in regard to the keeping the Savages within the line. Col. Johnson therefore took all possible pains to amuse them and satisfie them on that head. On the 3<sup>d</sup> of September in consequence of reports brought by the Indians that the enemy were advancing, Col. Johnson augmented the party at St Johns to 4 officers and 121 Indians, and on the afternoon of the 4th General Prescott desired him to stop sending any more partys, but keep them about the town, least the rebells might make an attempt on the City of Montreal, by crossing the country. The next day an express arrived from one of Col. Johnson's officers at St Johns, informing that a scouting party of Indians had discovered the rebell army on Isle au Noix (16 miles from St Johns) and that a second Scout had fallen in with some of them & exchanged a few shots, by one of which an Indian was wounded. The General immediately ordered the walls of Montreal to be repaired, and summoned the inhabitants to appear armed on the parade that evening, and Col. Johnson sent off an officer and party of Indians, to cover the King's Magazines near La Chine, a body of 86 Canasadagas Warriors also came in & joyned Col. Johnson, who told them the General requested that they should remain in readiness to march when their service was most wanted. The next day the

Rebell army came before S<sup>t</sup> Johns and on the 7th at day light two Indians arrived with letters, giving an account that the day before the first division being about 1000 men under a General Montgomery, covered with vessells, row galleys &c began to land about a mile from S<sup>t</sup> Johns, when the Indians sallied out & engaged them with so much success that they obliged them to retire twice, and that they had at length crossed the Lake and afterwards retreated to Isle au Noix. The loss of the rebels according to the best accounts was one Field Officer 2 Captains, 2 Lieut<sup>s</sup> and about 30 men killed, and the wounded were since found to be double that number. On our side Capt. Tice one of Col. Johnson's Officers was shot through the thigh; Cap<sup>t</sup> Daniel a faithful Mohack one Conijoharre, with 2 Caughnawagas killed, and several wounded, of which 3 dyed soon after. The Indians complained much that there was no troops to support them, and in the evening a detachment of 16 of the 26th regiment, with some of the recruits and volunteers were ordered out, with whom Col. Johnson sent 2 officers and 70 Indians. On the 10th of Sept<sup>r</sup> on a report that some Canadians had assured the Caughnawagies that the rebels would destroy their town, Daniel Claus Esq. Dep<sup>y</sup> Agent was sent there to remove any fears on that head; to whom the Indians complained that they had lately been much traduced by some of the French gentlemen, who were too apt to be busy about them, and resented that the Indians would not attend to them, observing that at the reduction of Canada they had been assured that such persons should no longer interfere with them. They added that their case was now very hard as they were threatned with ruin by the rebels, assured by the Canadians that they would not oppose them, and that there appeared no prospect of relief from any other quarter. From all which Col. Johnson perceived that these people were so circumstanced that they could no longer be depended on. And this day Major Campbell arrived, being appointed Agent of Indian Affairs for the Province of Quebec. The next day a party of Indians reconnoitring were fired on by a considerable body of the enemy, and Perthuus an interpreter, with an Indian, surprised & killed at a house on Lake Champlain. On the 12th Col. Johnson held a conference with the Caughuawagas, to remove their apprehensions, and on the 13th another was held in presence of General Carleton (then returned from Quebec) in consequence of intelligence given Col. Johnson by the Six Nations that the rebels had employ'd Agents to negotiate a neutrality with the Caughnawagas. This day General Carleton gave his thanks to the Indians in general orders in the words following:

The General gives his thanks to the Indian Chiefs and Warriors who behaved so gallantly in the action of the 6th Instant near S<sup>t</sup> Johns and desires that the same may be communicated to them and their Nations by Col. Johnson their Superintendent.

Montreal Sept. 13. 1775.

Col. Johnson continued his endeavours notwithstanding the general discouragement among the Indians, that they might be in readiness in case the General could raise any force to go against the enemy. On the 20th one of Col. Johnsons Officers with his party of Indians were obliged to retire from the Prairie, as did the Indians from S<sup>t</sup> Johns, which was now compleatly invested, and accounts received that a certain Livingston<sup>1</sup> with the inhabitants of Sorelle had joined the rebels, on which the Generals &c put their papers and baggage on board of vessells in the River. The Rebels had now over ran all the country, and were in many places joyned by the perfidious Canadians. The Indians thus without prospect of aid, began to provide for their own security, after complaining bitterly of the disappointment of their hopes of succours, and on the 25th Col. Ethan Allan cross'd to the Island of Montreal and with a party of about 140 partly Canadians, began his march for that city, when he was opposed by a small [party] of the 26th regiment, some voluntiers and thirty Officers Rangers and Indians of the Indian Department; the latter of whom fortunately falling on the flank were Allan was, he delivered up his sword and surrendered to one of Col. Johnson's Officers, who with his party took the most of those made prisoners. On the 27th Col. Johnson renewed his application to General Carleton for marching a body of men, in which case he could still get many of the neighbouring Indians to cooperate; to which the General answered verbally (by the Secretary of Indian Affairs) that he hoped affairs were taking a more favourable turn, and that he should very soon be able to form a better judgment. From this time to October 12th every art and means was used to assemble the Canadians and several came in, were clothed and armed, and afterwards joyned the enemy. Finding therefore the season so far advanced, the Indians almost all withdrew discontented, unwilling to credit any farther promises of aid; that those that remained earnestly solicited for troops to be sent out and that Col. Johnson should procure them the redress of sundry greivances they had often represented, and also having at the same time received Dispatches from the Secretary of State directing that their several greivances should be immediately laid before the King; finding likewise that Major Campbells powers as Agent for Canada must occasion some difficultys that would effectually obstruct the service, Col. Johnson signified his intentions to go to England, get these points in some measure adjusted before the Indians from their respective Nations could take the field next year. In which resolution he was confirmed by the Indians, who deputed a faithfull young Chief to accompany him, and having posted his officers as such places as they might be most usefull to preserve the fidelity of the Indians, with proper instructions, he proceeded for Quebec, from whence he sailed for England the 11th of November.

The foregoing is a brief Abstract from the minutes of Indian Affairs, and may serve to give a general sketch of his conduct and success the last campain, tho' labouring under every circumstance of disadvantage; but the points necessary to be inquired into and regulated, on which the future good conduct of those hitherto faithfull people must depend, and the reasonableness and propriety of Col. Johnson's proceedings, will appear from the annexed state, which is honestly and impartially submitted.

<sup>1</sup> Colonel JAMES LIVINGSTON was the son of John L. and Catharine Ten Broeck of Montreal, where James married Miss Elizabeth Simpson. Possessing some influence among the Canadians, he raised the standard of the American Congress in Canada, and with a body of those men seized Fort Chambly, its entire garrison and stores, and afterwards accompanied Montgomery to Quebec. On the failure of the expedition Col. Livingston returned to New-York, and in 1776 his men were incorporated by Congress into a regiment called the Canadian Battalion. He was at the battle of Stillwater in 1779; in 1780 was quartered in the Highlands, and in January, 1781, his regiment was reduced. — En.

My Lord,

The loyal Inhabitants of this Province have experienced a variety of injuries and insults since my despatch of the 5th of Jan<sup>r</sup> (N<sup>o</sup> 28). The latter end of last month twelve hundred men from New Jersey, under the command of Col<sup>o</sup> Hard went over to Long Island, and after ten days marauding disarmed upwards of six hundred inhabitants of Queen's County, and took seventeen of the principal gentlemen prisoners, who have since been marched under guard to Philadelphia.

The same manœuvre has been practiced by Gen<sup>l</sup> Schuyler at the end of near four thousand armed mob: He marched to Johnson Hall the 24th of last month, where S<sup>r</sup> John had mustered near Six hundred men, from his Tenants and neighbours, the majority highlanders, after disarming them and taking four pieces of artillery, ammunition and many Prisoners, with 360 Guineas from S<sup>r</sup> John's Desk, they compelled him to enter into a Bond in 1600 pound Sterling, not to aid the King's Service, or to remove within a limited district from his house: Such, My Lord, is the degrading situation of His Majesty's faithfull Subjects in this Colony. The Rebels have been active in disarming other parts of the Colony, and this plan was grounded upon a Recommendation of the Provincial Congress here to the Continental Congress, to send Troops from other parts to the Delinquents of this Country, as will be seen by the copy of their letter among the enclosures.

I am with great respect,

Earl Dartmouth.

I am happy to have an opportunity to communicate to Your Lordship the victory obtained by General Carlton over the rebel forces before Quebec the 31st Dec<sup>r</sup> last, in which action their Commander General Montgomery was slain.

General Wooster's letter from Montreal to Warner and an account Major Skene sent me are the best accounts received of that fortunate event, wherein I am informed but three men of Arnold's party (consisting of Eight Hundred) escaped, being either killed or taken prisoners.

Accounts were received yesterday from Canada (I can't learn the date) which mention that General Carlton had sent out partys into the Country, and taken many of the Canadian Rebels who had been tried and convicted, and Twenty two hanged. It is generally belevied the Provincials have entirely evacuated Canada; some detachments however have left Philadelphia, New England, and the Green Mountain Boys to reinforce the Debris of the Provincial Army in that Country.

By late Secret Intelligence from the Northward and as far Westward as Detroit, I have the agreeable information that the Indians are firmly attached to the King's interest. The Indians have chosen Peter Johnson, the natural son of S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Johnson (by an Indian Woman) to be their Chief. He is intrepid and active, and took with his own hand Eathan Allen in a barn, after his detachment was routed near Montreal.

The Indian Department demands all possible attention and a Commission of General to Peter would be politic. To fix and retain the Indians, by very liberal presents & encouragement will be of the highest importance to the King's service at this Crisis. Presents sent to them by way of Quebec will be the most certain channel, and an Assortment sent to this Port will also be very expedient to be sent up to Albany, as soon as the Troops arrive in this Colony.

I am assured the Indian Nations will make a powerfull diversion on the Borders of the Lake very early this Spring, cut off all Parties going to reinforce the enemy, and probably seize all the Vessels, Battaus, and Row Gallys before they are liberated from the ice, and then join General Carlton in Canada, or come down to Albany as occasion may require.

This, My Lord, is the Plan of Operations for the Iddians and I expect it will be executed and succeed. The enclosures relative to Canada transactions herewith transmitted will farther explain to Your Lordship the happy restoration of his Majesty's affairs in that Government.

I am with all possible respect and esteem, My Lord, Your Lordship's most ob<sup>d</sup>
 humble Servant,

Earl Dartmouth.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXVIII.]

Montreal 6th Jan<sup>r</sup> 1776

Dear Sir.

With the greatest distress of mind, I now sit down to inform you of the event of an unfortunate attack made upon Quebec, between the hours of 4 & 6 of the morning of the 31st Decemb<sup>r</sup> last. Unfortunate indeed for in it fell our brave General Montgomery, his Aid de Camp M<sup>r</sup>Pherson, Captain Cheeseman, Capt<sup>m</sup> Hendrick of the Rifle Men, & two or three Subaltern Officers, & between sixty and a hundred Privates, the number not certainly known, & about three hundred Officers and Soldiers made prisoners. Amongst which is Lieut. Col<sup>o</sup> Green, Major Bigelow, Major Miggs, & a number of Captains and inferior Officers.

Col. Arnold was wounded in the leg in the beginning of the action, as was Major Ogden in the shoulder, and brought off to the general hospital. I have not time to give you all the particulars, but this much will shew you that in consequence of this defeat our present prospect in this Country is rendered very dubious, & unless we can be quickly reinforced, perhaps they may be fatal, not only to us, who are stationed here, but also to the Colonies in general. As in my Opinion the safety of the Colonies, especially the Frontiers, greatly, very greatly, depends, upon keeping possession of this Country.

You know as well as any man the temper, disposition & character of the Canadians. That they are not to be depended upon, but, like the Savages, are very fond of chusing the strongest party. Add to this, our enemies in this country, of which there are many, they use every method to excite the Canadians against us; Among other things they tell them the United Colonies intend to abandon this country, the clergy refuse absolution to all who have shewn themselves our friends, and preach damnation to all those who will not take up arms, against us, & tell them that even now it is not too late, that we are but a handfull of Men, &c &c.

I have sent an express to Gen<sup>l</sup> Schuyler, Gen<sup>l</sup> Washington & the Congress, but you know how far they have to go, & that it is very uncertain how long it will be before we can have relief from them. You, Sir, and the valiant green Mountain Corps, are in Our neighbourhood, You all have arms, and, I am confident, ever stand ready to lend a helping hand to Your bretheren in distress.

I am sensible there was some disagreement between General Montgomery<sup>1</sup> and you. Poor man he lost his life in fighting valiantly for his Country. But why do I mention anything about disagreement to you. I know private resentment cannot prevent your exerting every faculty to vindicate the rights and privileges for which we are so nobly contending.

Therefore let me beg of you to collect as many men as you can. Five, or Six, or Seven hundred if it can be done, and some how or other get into this country, & stay with us till we can have relief from the Colonies.

You are sensible we have provisions here in abundance and the weather in this Country I assure you, is far, very far, from being so frightfull as many have imagined. You'l see that proper Officers are appointed under you & both Officers and soldiers shall be paid as other Continental Troops are. It will be well for Your men to set out as soon as they can be collected. It is not so much matter whether together or not, but let them be sent by Tens, Twentys, Thirtys, Fortys, or Fifty's as they can be collected, for it must have a good effect on the minds of the Canadians, to see Succours coming on.

You will be good enough to send copies of this letter, or such part of it as you think proper, to the people below you; I can't but think our Friends will push for this Country. I am confident you will not disappoint my most fervent wish and expectation of seeing you here with your men, in a very short time.

Now is the time to distinguish Yourselves, & obtain the united applauses of your very grateful countrymen, & of Your distressed Friends in Canada, & of Your sincere friend

& most h<sup>ble</sup> Serv<sup>t</sup>

My Lord,

General Clinton arrived in this Harbour in the Mercury the fourth Ins<sup>t</sup> with much satisfaction I communicated to him every circumstance of a public nature that has come to my knowledge, <sup>1</sup> Major-General DAVID WOOSTER was born in Stratford, Conn., in 1711, and graduated at Yale College in 1738. On the breaking out of the Spanish war in 1739, he was appointed Captain of an armed vessel fitted out by the Colony for the protection of the coast, and in 1745 served as Captain in Col. Burr's regiment at the siege of Louisbourg, on which occasion he was taken prisoner and sent to France. When released, he passed over to England and was rewarded with a commission of Captain in the 51st or Sir Wm. Pepperell's regiment, and went on half pay in 1748, when that regiment was broke. On the renewal of the war with France in 1755, he was appointed Colonel of a Provincial regiment, in which capacity he served under Amherst in 1759, 60, and when peace was concluded, returned to private life. He received half pay as Captain in Pepperell's regiment until 1774, when his name was stricken off the roll. In the following year he was elected Brigadier-General in the Continental service, and served in Canada in the unfortunate campaign of 1775, 6. He soon after resigned his commission and was appointed first Major-General of the Connecticut Militia, when he directed his attention to securing that State against the enemy. Whilst opposing a detachment of British troops sent to destroy the public stores at Danbury, he was mortally wounded on the 27th April, and expired on the 2d May, 1777, aged 66 years, leaving behind him the character of a brave and good officer, an ardent patriot, and an honest, benevolent and virtuous citizen. Barber's Connecticut Historical Collections, 407. — Ed.

and furnished him with such information of the Southward Colonies as I am hopefull may be of some service.

Gen<sup>l</sup> Lee came into this Town last Sunday, escorted by a company of Rifle men, his body guard, and a Regiment of Connecticut men, commanded by Col<sup>o</sup> Waterbury.

The day before Yesterday Lord Sterling at the head of four Companies of Jersey troops also arrived here, and more are expected. This City is in Terror and confusion: One half of its inhabitants have withdrawn with their effects, hundreds without the means to support their families.

It is said preparations are making that indicate hostilities against the King's Ships. The Asia and Phœnix have been obliged to draw very near the Wharfs, having been much distressed by the floating cakes of Ice, but as the weather is abated, I trust the severity of the Season is past.

The Secretary of the Province came Yesterday to inform me he had orders from the Committee to remove the Records, he declared he could not without the Order of Government. Then, said they, go to the Governor. The inclosed offer made to the public through the Mayor I prepared accordingly. I have had such Records as immediately concern the Crown some time on board the Dutchess of Gordon.

My family of Servants have been insulted in my house, one taken out of it and confined twenty four hours in the Barracks.

My communication with the shore I am told is to be stopped. I am with all possible respect, My Lord,

The Governor thinks the town in perfect safety, unless an attempt is made to annoy, the King's Ships, or remove his Majesty's Artillery, and if there is that design, he is willing to charter a vessel to put the records on board, and to lay in this harbour, and will pledge his honour that no injury shall come to the Records from any of the King's Forces, but that they shall be kept in security for the public, but he will not assent to the removal of them to any other place on shore, as he thinks they cannot be there in any place of greater safety than they are at present.

ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTION to Our Trusty and Welbeloved Guy Carleton Esquire, Our Captain General and Governor in Chief in, and over Our Province of Quebec in America and of all Our Territories dependent thereupon. Given

WHEREAS an Act hath been passed in the present Session of Parliament, intituled "An Act to prohibit all Trade and intercourse with the Colonies of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, the three Lower Counties on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia, during the continuance of the present Rebellion within the said Colonies respectively; for repealing an Act made in the fourteenth year of the Reign of His present Majesty to discontinue the landing and discharging lading or shiping of Goods Wares and Merchandize, at the Town and within the Harbour of Boston in the Province of Massachusetts Bay; And also two Acts made in the last Session of Parliament for restraining the Trade and Commerce of the Colonies in the said Act respectively mentioned; and to enable any person or persons appointed & authorized by His Majesty to Grant Pardons to issue Proclamations in the Cases and for the purposes therein mentioned," It is Our Royal Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby instructed and required to have especial care that the said Act be duely observed by all persons within Your Government, and it will be your particular duty in Granting Licences in writing under your hand and Seal to Ships and Vessels for going to any Port or Place in the aforementioned Colonies to see that the said Licences be granted to such Ships and Vessels only as are specified and described in the said Act, and that the Form or Forms observed by you in granting the said Licences, be strictly agreeable to what is therein prescribed and laid down; for your better Government and Direction wherein, We have hereunto annexed the Form to be observed by you as follows, Vizt

"To all Flag Officers, Captains, Commanders and other commissioned Officers in His Majesty's pay, And also to all others, whom these presents shall or may concern. In

The Lordship of Hocquart is described as lying on the East side of Lake Champlain extending four leagues in front and five leagues in Depth and may be computed to contain about 115,000 Acres of Land.

By the proceedings of the Council of New York on the 2<sup>d</sup> day of Sept<sup>r</sup> 1771 it appears that almost the whole of this Lordship was granted away under the Seal of New York principally to Officers and Soldiers according to His Majestys proclamation of the 7th of Oct<sup>r</sup> 1773.

As the greatest part therefore and probably the best in quality of those Lands has been thus granted away we think that the most equitable way of making Compensation to M<sup>r</sup> Lotbiniere will for his Majesty to direct the Governor of Quebec to make a new Grant to M<sup>r</sup> Lotbiniere of other Lands within that Colony equivalent as nearly as may be in point of extent and in the advantages of Soil & Situation to that of Hocquart to be held upon the like terms and Considerations as Lands are now held by His Majestys other Canadian Subjects; provided that upon his being put in possession of this Grant he shall cause a full and ample surrender to be made of all his right and title to the aforesaid Lordship of Hocquart so that the present occupants who chiefly consist of Officers and Soldiers disbanded at the conclusion of the last War may be quieted and secured in their possessions.

At the same time that we state this as what we think will be a liberal compensation to M<sup>r</sup> Lotbiniere we should have been glad to have informed your Lordships that he had acquiesced in the same sentiments but as he has declined giving his attendance at Our Board though invited thereto we submit the whole to your Lordship with this observation that if M<sup>r</sup> Lotbiniere shall not think proper to accept the proposed compensation it will then remain for him to pursue his Claim or Claims by due Course of Law in such manner as he shall be advised.

We are My Lords

Speech of Captain Brant to Lord George Germain.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXII. ]

The Speech of Thayendenegeh a Chief, accompanied by Oteroughyanento a Warrior, both of the Six Nations. 14 March, 1776.

Brother Gorah.

We have cross'd the great Lake and come to this kingdom with our Superintendent Col. Johnson from our Confederacy the Six Nations and their Allies, that we might see our Father the Great King, and joyn in informing him, his Councillors and wise men, of the good intentions of the Indians our bretheren, and of their attachment to His Majesty and his Government.

Brother. The Disturbances in America give great trouble to all our Nations, as many strange stories have been told to us by the people in that country. The Six Nations who always loved the King, sent a number of their Chiefs and Warriors with their Superintendent to Canada last summer, where they engaged their allies to joyn with them in the defence of that country, and when it was invaded by the New England people, they alone defeated them.

Brother. In that engagement we had several of our best Warriors killed and wounded, and the Indians think it very hard they should have been so deceived by the White people in that country, the enemy returning in great numbers, and no White people supporting the Indians, they were obliged to retire to their vilages and sit still. We now Brother hope to see these bad children chastised, and that we may be enabled to tell the Indians, who have always been faithfull and ready to assist the King, what His Majesty intends.

Brother. The Mohocks our particular Nation, have on all occasions shewn their zeal and loyalty to the Great King; yet they have been very badly treated by his people in that country, the City of Albany laying an unjust claim to the lands on which our Lower Castle is built, as one Klock and others do to those of Conijoharrie our Upper Viliage. We have been often assured by our late great friend Sr William Johnson who never deceived us, and we know he was told so that the King and wise men here would do us justice; but this notwithstanding all our applications has never been done, and it makes us very uneasie. We also feel for the distress in which our Bretheren on the Susquehanna are likely to be involved by a mistake made in the Boundary we settled in 1768. This also our Superintendent has laid before the King, and we beg it may be remembered. And also concerning Religion and the want of Ministers of the Church of England, he knows the designs of those bad people and informs us he has laid the same before the King. We have only therefore to request that his Majesty will attend to this matter: it troubles our Nation & they cannot sleep easie in their beds. Indeed it is very hard when we have let the Kings subjects have so much of our lands for so little value, they should want to cheat us in this manner of the small spots we have left for our women and children to live on. We are tired out in making complaints & getting no redress. We therefore hope that the Assurances now given us by the Superintendent may take place, and that he may have it in his power to procure us justice.

Brother. We shall truly report all that we hear from you, to the Six Nations at our return. We are well informed there has been many Indians in this Country who came without any authority, from their own, and gave much trouble. We desire Brother to tell you this is not our case. We are warriors known to all the Nations, and are now here by approbation of many of them, whose sentiments we speak.

Brother. We hope these things will be considered and that the King or his great men will give us such an answer as will make our hearts light and glad before we go, and strengthen our hands, so that we may joyn our Superintendent Col. Johnson in giving satisfaction to all our Nations, when we report to them, on our return; for which purpose we hope soon to be accomodated with a passage.

Dictated by the Indians and taken down by Governor Tryon.

Whitehall 25th March 1776

Sir.

I must not omit the opportunity of a Packet, which I am dispatching to Boston with letters for General Howe, to acquaint you that Your resolution and perseverance in the exertion of every commendable effort to promote his Majesty's service in a situation that exposes you to so much distress and Inconvenience is highly approved by the King, as well as the great attention you have shewn to the procuring and transmitting to me the very important Intelligence contained in the Dispatches I have received from you.

The severe check the Rebels met with on the 31st Dec<sup>r</sup> before the walls of Quebec, of which fortunate Event we received the first authentic intelligence from you, has, I trust, secured to his Majesty the possession of that fortress, and I hope that the very considerable Force which his Majesty intends to employ on that side will find little Obstruction to their penetrating into New York by the way of the Lakes, and giving succour to those operations which I think cannot fail of having the effect to re-establish the Constitutional authority of Government in that Province.

In the prosecution of these operations Your advice and assistance will be very useful and it is very fortunate for his Majesty's Service that there is upon the spot, where those operations are to be carried on, a person upon whose judgement his Majesty's Officers may, with so great confidence, rely.

His Majesty's Pardon has been obtained for the three convicts mentioned in Your letter of the 8th of Dec<sup>r</sup> and they have been admitted to employment in the Ordnance Department. I have also taken the proper Steps for a due compensation being made to M<sup>r</sup> Rattle, & that Your servant should not go unrewarded for his care in bringing over Your last Dispatches.

North River, New York.6th April 1776.

My Lord,

By the Swallow packet I had the honour to receive the 10th of last month Your Lordship's Dispatches to the 23<sup>d</sup> of December with their Inclosures. The late Act of Parliament restraining the Commerce of America I forwarded to Captain Hyde Parker, commanding Naval Officer of this Port, with Your Lordship's Communication of His Majesty's Commands thereon.

Several of the numerous and Spirited Addresses contained in the London Gazettes I had copied (as I could not get them published) and circulated them through the Province, as well as every other publication that could tend to withdraw the people from the madness of their Proceedings. The Pamphlet entitled "The Rights of Great Britain asserted against the Claims of America" has been greedily sought after.<sup>1</sup> I should have been pleased to have had one thousand of them to distribute through the Country, the inhabitants whereof are kept by the tyranny and misrule of their leaders in the blindest ignorance of the true state of their Situation. My letter of Exhortation to the Inhabitants of the Colony (which they have had the grace to put in the publick papers) has drawn upon me the ill will of the dregs of the City, insomuch that they publickly exhibited an effigy of me, attended with all the parade of savage malice to mark their Resentment and have since Offered five hundred pounds for the capture of my person.

The whole North Front of Fort George is dismantled and Merlons erected on the Faces of the Fort that look to the North and East Rivers. Also Merlons are constructed on the lower battery. I am told they purpose to intrench and fortify upon the Banks of the Narrows, that is on Staten and Long Island, and every where else that they think can obstruct the approach of the King's Fleets and Armies.

Provisions have been hitherto Supplied (some very short capricious Intervals excepted) both to the King's Ships, and the Dutchess of Gordon, but am credibly informed no more will be sent after this week, as the Eastern army now in the City is determined to cut us off from every supply from the shore, as soon as their plan of operations for that purpose is completed. I expect I have provisions in the Ship for three Months, but trust I shall be relieved by the strength of His Majesty's Armament before I am quite drove out of my Government by either force or famine.

Permit me, My Lord, humbly to express the warmest duty and gratitude of his Majesty's servants in this Province for his gracious consideration of their distressed & exposed situation, and the consolation I receive in the Royal approbation of my remaining in my Government in its present revolted state.

I am, with all possible Respect,

My Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant

Lord George Germain.

Ship Dutchess of Gordon, North River
New York, 6th April 1776.

My Lord,

Since my last publick Dispatches by the Brig three Sisters, to N<sup>o</sup> 33 inclusive, this Province has become more particularly the Object of attention and Military Operations by the enemy than formerly. General Clinton's departure from Boston, subsequent arrival here, occasioned a considerable Body of their Troops to be assembled at this Metropolis, and being assembled something was to be attempted. The first Object was to seize on the King's Artillery and Military stores in Fort George, and on the lower battery, which they carried off without opposition on the 11th of February (the same day that General Clinton sailed out of this Fort) Cap<sup>t</sup> Parker finding it impossible to interrupt this outrage otherwise than by firing on the City. The ice keeping the Ships of war so near within shore that he was of opinion he could not bring the Ships under his Command to lay off the Fort and Battery, where the Artillery and Chief Part of the stores were deposited without great risk to the King's Ships from the Ice at that severe season. The destruction therefore of the City where there were so many friends to Government, with the loss of all their property, & the consideration of preserving the town for the King's army was thought to be too great sacrifices to make for only retarding the removal of the Artillery and Stores, which even after such sacrifices could have been carried off by the Jersey and the Connecticut Troops; who came into town with full expectations, and the declarative purpose of sharing in the plunder of the effects of the Inhabitants as soon as the King's Ships should fire on the City.

The day after the removal of the Stores &<sup>c</sup> I received a letter from Cap<sup>t</sup> Parker<sup>1</sup> signifying his intentions of going to Sandy Hook with His Majesty's Ships under his command. I in answer suggested to him some reasons for wishing he might continue in the East River. Copies of the letters that passed between us on this occasion I have the honour herewith to transmit to Your lordship. Cap<sup>t</sup> Parker delayed the removal of the Ships until the 17th which gave me an opportunity of proroguing the General Assembly and I am satisfied from what has since happened that his staying longer in the East River could not have been attended with any advantage to the King's Service. On the removal of the Phoenix to below the narrows Cap<sup>t</sup> Vandeput in the Asia was stationed in the North River, under whose protection I have remained since the 17th of February.

It would be impossible, My Lord, from my confined situation to give you a particular detail of the various manœuvres of the Americans. The Gazettes and other Papers herewith transmitted will afford you much information of the unabated vigor and desperate excesses with which the efforts of the enemy are carried on in Opposition to His Majesty's Government in most Parts of the Continent. The Streets in the City of New York are barricaded with Breast Works, and every head land and commanding Spot of ground in its Environs, are fortified, or to be fortified, with Intrenchments, Redoubts, and Batteries.

<sup>1</sup> Sir HYDE PARKER, Knt., second son of the Vice-Admiral of the same name, was born in 1739; became Lieutenant in the navy 25 JANUARY, 1758, and was promoted to be Captain July 18, 1763, when he was put in command of the frigate Hermione, 28. He commanded the Phoenix, 44, on the North American station, and was attached to the fleet to oppose Count d'Estaing in 1778. On the 27th November of that year, Commodore Parker sailed from New-York in command of the convoy against Savannah; and having reduced that place, issued a proclamation 4th January, 1779, offering freedom to the slaves, and pardon to deserters, and grace to all who should join the Royal Standard. As a reward for his services, he received the honor of Knighthood on his return to England in 1779, when he was attached to the fleet under Admiral Sir Charles Hardy that was sent out to oppose the combined navies of France and Spain, then threatening a descent on England. In January, 1780, his frigate formed part of the convoy of the merchantmen to the West Indies; and on the 7th August, 1781, he commanded the frigate Latona, 38, in the engagement, when his father defeated the Dutch fleet off the Doggerbank. In 1782 he was promoted to the Goliath, 74, and was attached to the fleet under Rear Admiral Kempenfelt, and in the fall his ship formed part of the fleet sent under Lord Howe to the relief of Gibraltar, then besieged by the Spaniards. He died Admiral of the White, 16 March, 1807. Rivington's British Almanac; Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs; Burke's Baronetage. — Ed.

I was an eye witness to the burning of the hospital on Bedlow's Island by four hundred Rebels in Seven Pitiaguas on the 2<sup>d</sup> Instant. The Asia fired two Cannon Shot which obliged them to precipitate their retreat. They burnt a stack of hay and killed a number of poultry I had reserved for General Howe's expected arrival. Part of their plan was to have seized about sixty Countrymen who had fled from persecution, and were subsisted by me on that Island. But getting intelligence of the design I removed all the men on board the Ship Lady Gage a few hours before the enemy landed on the Island, which Ship was taken a short time before by the men of War's cutters from a Dock on Staten Island, and which I have taken up for the reception of Recruits and distressed Persons. The King's Ships have also taken several other prizes.

The removal of the Fleet and Army from Boston has been the occasion of much speculation as to its destination, and by the movements of the enemy it is generally expected in here. General Putnam commands in New York about seven thousand men, and it is said will soon be joined by General Washington and five brigades.

As I have just received a letter from Capt. Parker acquainting me of the arrival of the Savage Sloop of War, and requests that I would come down in the Dutchess of Gordon to the Phœnix, as he has Intelligence of importance to communicate I shall close this Dispatch, and get under sail as soon as the Tide will serve, only mentioning that the Packet has been detained here until certain intelligence might be obtained of the destination of the Fleet and Army.

I have the honour to be, with perfect respect and esteem, My Lord,

Lord George Germain.

Ship Dutchess of Gordon

Below the Narrows, New York 15th April 1776.

My Lord,

On the Seventh Instant I fell down the River to the Phœnix. But before we reached the Ship we were alarmed by heavy Platoon Firings from the Staten Island Shore, which by the help of a Spy glass we discovered to be the enemy firing upon the Seamen that were landed for water at the watering place under cover of the Savage Sloop of War. A very short space after the Platoons firing the Savage began a cannonade which was kept up for some hours till Cap<sup>t</sup> Bromadge was called off by a signal from the Phœnix. For the particulars of this affair I beg leave to refer Your Lordship to the within account received from Capt. Parker.

It was with grief and horror I received this insult to the King's Flag. A treachery the more base considering the lenity and forbearance with which the commanders of the King's Ships had uniformly shewn both to the persons & properties of the inhabitants, that came within their power. And the more perfidious as at this time the Ships had publicly fresh provisions sent them from New York. It affects me to find hostilities have been so shamefully committed against the Parent State within this Province which if left to itself would not in the present cause of dispute have thus plunged itself into the Calamities of a Rebellion.

Lord Sterling, I am told, headed five hundred men on this attack upon eighteen unarmed seamen. The mortification I experienced on this treachery was encreased when Capt. Parker the same day informed me that his dispatches from Admiral Shouldam by the Savage Sloop acquainted him that the Fleet & army from Boston were sailed for Halifax, and that the scarcity of provisions in the army had occasioned Removal. I had no Dispatches or letters myself.

This movement has let loose the Cambridge Army on this devoted Colony. My Feelings on this occasion are not to be expressed, and I look forward with increasing anxiety for the Time when the continental army shall be opposed by a Body of the King's Forces sufficient to give them an entire overthrow. Until which Event no provisions, or assistance, can be depended upon for his Majesties Fleets and armies from this Country, the whole continent being at this time so absolutely under their control.

All Communication between the Ships and the Shore, is now cut off. Even the Element of Water is denied us, which cannot probably henceforth be procured but under the fire of his Majesty's Ships.

The Nautilus, Cap<sup>t</sup> Collins, came in here the 11th Inst. & brings an account from Cap<sup>t</sup> Wallace's Squadron at Rhode Island that on the 6th Inst. an engagement happened between the Glasgow, and the five ships of the continental Fleet.<sup>1</sup> The inclosed account of the Action I procured from Cap<sup>t</sup>. Collins who believes if another King's Sloop had been present they might have taken the greatest part of the Fleet.

I am with all possible respect, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant

Lord George Germain.

Ship Dutchess of Gordon.

Sandy Hook. April 18th 1776

My Lord,

The general Assembly of this Province is now dissolved. The Council, by whose advice it was prorogued to the 17th Instant not having been permitted to wait on me agreeable to my Summons in Order to advise concerning the further prorogation of it. A strong evidence of the little attention that is now paid even towards preserving the Form of a legal and constitutional Representation of the people.

<sup>1</sup>The infant navy of the United States consisted, at this time, of the ships Alfred, Captain Dudley Saltonstall; Columbus, Captain Whipple; brigs Andrew Doria, Captain Nicholas Biddle; Cabot, Captain John B. Hopkins; and sloops Providence, Fly, Hornet and Wasp. It was commanded by Commodore Ezech. Hopkins of North Providence, R. I. The first named five ships made an unsuccessful attack on H. M. ship Glasgow, 20, Captain Tyringham Howe, off Block Island. Staples' Annals of Providence, R. I., 267. — Ed.

I have now got down with my Ship under the guns of the Phœnix man of war, which is anchored within the Bay off Sandy Hook. This was necessary in order to replenish the Ship's water which was considerably expended.

As I judged the possession of the Light House might prevent the Seamen from insults when watering at the well near the Light House, I have ordered a Serjeant and 12 men, from Cap<sup>t</sup> Campbell's new raised Company, for a night guard. Captain Parker assuring me that in case of extremity he could cover their retreat by the cannon of his Ships.

The Pilot's house adjoining to the Light house is burnt down to prevent its being made a lurking place to the enemy, three or four hundred of which appeared yesterday near the Isthmus of the Peninsula where the Light house stands.

I am with all possible respect,

My Lord,

P. S. 19th April. By secret express this morning who left New York on Wednesday I have the satisfaction to acquaint Your Lordship I am informed that General Lee is certainly taken by General Clinton, with his Artillery, in Virginia. The enemy confess that Lee is taken but charge him with treachery. It is said a second attempt has been made against Quebec but without success. A large body of the Rebels within these few days have gone up the North River under the command of Gen<sup>l</sup> Sullivan<sup>1</sup> & Gen<sup>l</sup> Thompson<sup>2</sup> for Quebec. This indicates that the Lakes are open for the Vessels, yet I flatter myself the Reinforcement from England will be at Quebec to receive them.

<sup>1</sup> Major-General JOHN SULLIVAN was the eldest son of an Irish emigrant who settled in Massachusetts about the year 1723. He was born in the year 1741, and practiced law in New Hampshire. He was member of the first Congress in 1774; was appointed Brigadier-General in 1775, and commanded at Winter Hill, near Boston, after the battle of Bunker Hill. He superseded Arnold in command in Canada in June, 1776, and on the 10th August following, was promoted to the rank of Major-General. He succeeded Gen. Greene in the command of the division of the American army on Long Island, and was taken prisoner in the battle of the 27th August of the same year. He was exchanged in November for the English General Prescott. In August, 1777, he executed an expedition against Staten Island; in September and October took part in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown; in 1778 was detached to command the troops at Rhode Island, and in 1779 was sent to Western New-York to chastise the Six Nations of Indians, a duty which he successfully accomplished, and then resigned his command. He afterwards resumed his practice at the bar; was one of the convention that formed the State Constitution of New Hampshire; was chosen in 1785 into the first Council and sat in Congress, and in 1786, 1787 and 1789 was President of the State. In October, 1789, he was appointed District Judge, and died at his seat at Durham, January 23, 1795, aged 54 years. Farmer and Moore's New Hampshire Historical Collections, II, 201; Allen. — Ed.

<sup>2</sup> Brigadier-General WILLIAM THOMPSON was a Captain in the Pennsylvania service during the French war. Pennsylvania Colonial Records, VIII, 111. He afterwards lived at Pittsburgh, where he was joint purchaser of the buildings of old Fort Pitt. Pennsylvania Archives, X, 483. In 1775, Congress authorized a battalion of riflemen to be raised in Pennsylvania. Captain Thompson was appointed Colonel of the regiment, which marched to the camp at Cambridge, near Boston, and in November following had a brush with the English at Lechmere Point. He was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General 1st March, 1776, and soon after succeeded General Lee, as commander of the troops in New-York, and in April was ordered to Canada, to reinforce Gen. Sullivan, by whose orders he attacked the enemy at Three Rivers, in June, when he and several other officers were taken prisoners. He returned to Philadelphia in August, on parole, but was not exchanged for more than two years. He died previous to 1785. Pennsylvania Archives, ut supra. — Ed.

Answer of Captain Brant to Lord George Germain.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) COLXII. ]

The Answer of Thayendanagea a Sachem, and of Ohrante a warrior of the Mohocks to the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> Lord George Germaine.

Brother.

When we delivered our speech you answered us in few words, that you would take care and have the grievances of the Six Nations on account of their lands, particularly those of the Mohocks and Oughquagas, removed; and all those matters settled to our satisfaction whenever the troubles in America were ended, and that you hoped the Six Nations would continue to behave with that attachment to the King they had always manifested; in which case they might be sure of his Majesty's favour and protection.

Brother. We return you thanks for this promise, which we hope will be performed, and that we shall not be disapointed, as has often been the case, notwithstanding the warm friendship of the Mohocks to his Majesty and his government, who are so immediately concerned, that the same has been often mentioned by the Six Nations and their getting no redress a matter of surprize to all the Indian Nations.

We are not afraid Brother, or have we the least doubt but our brethren the Six Nations will continue firm to their engagements with the King their father. Our Superintendent knows that in order to keep true to their treaties they have at times punished their friends and Allies.

Brother. The troubles that prevail in America and the distance we are from our country, allows us only to say that on our return we shall inform our Chiefs and Warriors what we have seen and heard and join with them in the most prudent measures for assisting to put a stop to those disturbances notwithstanding reports of their generally taking the strongest side. Which was not the case last Summer when we offered to prevent the invasion of Canada and lost several of our people in defending it. The only reason we mentioned the conduct of the Six Nations at that time was, that they might have credit for what they actually did, as we have heard much that affair has been attributed to the Nippissings and other Indians of Canada.

Brother. As we expect soon to depart for our own Country having been long here, we request you, and the great men who take charge of the affairs of government, not to listen to every story that may be told about Indians; but to give ear only to such things as come from our Chiefs and wise men in Council; which will be communicated to you by our Superintendent.

London May 7th 1776.

This speech is wrote down as the same was dictated to me by the before named Chief.

Whitehall 17th May 1776

Sir.

Since my letter to you of the 25th March I have not received any of Your dispatches, nor have I any commands from his Majesty to signify to you, but I have the satisfaction to acquaint you that the Embarkations of the Troops destined for the reinforcement of Gen<sup>l</sup> Howe's army, have succeeded so happily, that the corps of Highlanders sailed from the Clyde the 29th of last Month, and the first division of the Hessians were clear of the channel on the 10th Ins<sup>t</sup> and we are in hourly expectation of the arrival at Spithead of the remainder of that Body, which has been some time on Board the Transports in the Weser. So large a Reinforcement will I trust enable General Howe to open the campaign with advantage, and to strike some blow which will give Spirit and Vigour to the Friends of Government, and incite them to take an active and resolute part in freeing themselves from that cruel oppression under which they have so long groaned.

The Province of New York will certainly be a main object of the general's attention, and as I am not without hopes that before this letter comes to your hands you will have the satisfaction of seeing him, it is unnecessary for me to acquaint you further with the operations which are intended to be carried on in that Province; I shall therefore only add my most hearty wishes for their success, and that they may in their issue restore the blessings of peace and legal Government to His Majesty's faithful subjects.

N<sup>o</sup> 4.

Governor Tryon.

Whitehall 11th June 1776.

Sir.

Your several Dispatches by the Swallow Packet, number from 1 to 9, inclusive, and two private letters dated the 17th April, were received at my Office the 3<sup>d</sup> Instant and I immediately laid them before the King.

The intelligence contained in the papers you transmit with these Dispatches is of the greatest importance, and altho you do not say what degree of credit ought be given to it, yet, as the accounts stated to have been received at New York of the Rebels having met with a second repulse at Quebec, are corroborated by many circumstances, & particularly by the measures they have taken for strengthening their posts on the frontiers, we flatter ourselves that the first vessel which arrives from Quebec will bring a confirmation of this good news.

I will not however anticipate the consequences of an event which is not yet confirmed ; but if it proves to be only in part as favorable as Your Intelligence represents I shall have little doubt that our operations on that side will have all the success we could wish, and that Crown Point and Ticonderoga will be restored to His Majesty's possession before the Campaign is ended.

It was to have been expected that the departure of the troops from Boston would turn the attention of the rebels to New York ; but I trust General Howe has ere this, fixed his head quarters in that City, and that he will soon find himself in sufficient force to drive the Rebels out of the Province, and give effectual protection to his Majesty's loyal subjects, and I will hope that not only those who have adhered to their duty, but even many who have been misled into a concurrence with the rebels in some of their measures, will be induced to take up arms and join the King's Standard, from a just sense of the dreadful consequences which they have experienced, and which must ever follow a departure from the mode of government established by the Constitution, and an Opposition to lawful Authority.

Your influence & advice at such a time must be attended with the happiest effects and I am commanded by the King to repeat to you his Majesty's great satisfaction in your continuance in Your Government and that the firm and prudent conduct you have persevered in, notwithstanding all the difficulties you have encountered and the hazards to which you have been exposed, is very much approved by the King.

The facility with which Lieutenants Campbell and Grant have enlisted men at New York, is a very pleasing proof of the good disposition of the people to return to their duty, if they were assured they might do it with safety ; and I doubt not General Howe will reward the diligence of those Officers, by continuing them in the command of the companies they have raised, but I must acquaint you that in this instance, as well as in all others which may occur, the Officers who are appointed to command corps raised in America, are to be on the same footing in respect to rank as the provincial troops employed in the last war, and that they are neither to expect Rank in the army after their reduction, in consequence of such Commissions, or to be entitled to half pay. I should be very glad to shew every attention to your recommendation, but, from what I have told you, in respect to the Lieutenants Campbell and Grant, you will readily perceive the difficulties which oppose themselves in the way of Cap<sup>t</sup> Stevenson's request.

Two hundred Copies of the pamphlet you mentioned in Your letter of the 6th April will be sent to you with this Dispatch by the Packet ; and I shall order 5000 more to be put on board the first Ships that sail from hence for New York.

I am &c<sup>e</sup>

GEO. GERMAIN.

P. S. When I was closing my letter Major Caldwell arrived express from Quebec with the account of the raising the Siege which you will see in the inclosed Gazette extraordinary ; and also it shews our former intelligence to have had no foundation it happily agrees with it in the event, on which I most heartily congratulate you.

Governor Tryon to Lord George Germain.(N<sup>o</sup> 11.)Dutchess of Gordon, off Staten Island
8th July 1776.

My Lord,

I have the satisfaction to acquaint Your Lordship of the arrival of the Fleet under the command of Admiral Shuldham<sup>1</sup> in this port of the 29th Ultimo, and that General Howe disembarked the troops under his command on Staten Island the 2<sup>d</sup> Instant without opposition, on which occasion the inhabitants of the Island came down to welcome the arrival of their deliverers, & have since afforded the army every supply & accomodation in their power.

On Saturday last I received the Militia of the Island at Richmond Town, where near four hundred appeared, who cheerfully, on my Recommendation, took the Oath of Allegiance & fidelity to his Majesty. Tomorrow I am to have another muster for the inlistment of Voluntiers to form a Provincial Corps for the defence of the Island as the General finds it an important Quarter to hold against the Rebels. This testimony given by the inhabitants of the Island, of loyalty to his Majesty, & attachment to his Government, I flatter myself will be general through the province as soon as the King's army gets the main body of the Rebels between them and the sea, which will leave all the back country open to the command of the King's Friends and yield a plentiful resource of provisions for the army and place them in a better situation to cut off the Rebels retreat, when forced from their strong hold.

In the promotion of General officers in America I do not find it has been His Majesty's pleasure to employ me in this Country in my military character, I shall however do every thing in my power in my civil capacity to promote his Majesty's service.

The fortifications in and about New York have, I am told, undergone little change since the enclosed Observations were delivered. Every matter of further information I have laid before General Howe since his arrival, as they came to my knowledge.

I am, with great respect, My Lord,

<sup>1</sup> MOLINEUX SHULDHAM was a Lieutenant in command of the bomb ketch Blast, on the Jamaica station in 1745, and was promoted to be Captain in the Navy 12 May, 1746; in 1756 he commanded the Warwick, 60, on the Leeward Islands station, and in 1769, the Panther, 60, on the same station; in 1760 he was in command of the Reasonable, 64, in the West Indies, and served in the expedition against Martinico in 1762; in 1763, he was captain of Rodney's flag ship, the Foudroyant, and in 1770 commanded the Royal Oak, 74, in the dispute with Spain about the Falkland Islands. He was appointed Rear Admiral in 1775, previous to coming to America, and was superseded the same year by Lord Howe, when he was created Baron Shuldham, on the peerage of Ireland. passage and much molestation from the rebel Vessels for the last 3 weeks, one of which attacked us near Bermudas, but was, after a pretty close engagement of an hour and a half, beat off with much loss, tho' she damaged our masts and rigging so much that we could not pursue her. My Surgeon is shot thro' the leg, and 5 others slightly wounded; a trifle considering her great superiority, for she had more than double our compliment of men and carried 14 six pounders and swivells against our 12 three pounders. My Officers and the Indians behaved very well and were very usefull at small arms

The General had been arrived here some time with the troops from Halifax, and from him your Lordship will doubtless receive an acco<sup>t</sup> of affairs here. I however think it necessary to inclose your Lordship a copy of the best and latest intelligence I could procure, respecting the back country and the Indians, and I have good hopes that my Officers there have discharged their duty and conducted the Indians agreeable to my instructions and the promises of the latter. At present every thing waits the Grand Operation, and on its issue our future measures must depend. I think the prospect is favorable and that the Declaration for an Independency must totally silence any advocates they had in England. At all events I flatter myself I shall discharge my duties as far as time and circumstances will admit; in good hope that I shall soon be enabled to meet our friends to the Northward, when I shall endeavour to merit His Majesty's favor and your Lordships patronage by a zealous attention to the trust reposed in me. This moment an inhabitant of the Mohock River has found means to reach our Camp, and informs that he had heard Sir Jn<sup>o</sup> Johnson had reached General Burgoyne, that a Col. Dayton<sup>1</sup> with 600 men was repairing Fort Stanwix & that General Schyler had opened a Congress at the German Flats, but that only some of the Oneidas and Oughquagys attended it, & adds that the rebels had carried off my negroes &c and demolished every thing on my estate. The Indians that attended Schyler have been long under the influence of N. England Missionaries and I found some difficulty with them last year.

I beg to be honored with your Lordships commands and I am with very great respect, intelligence he had rec<sup>d</sup> partly by means of M<sup>r</sup> Gumersall, found it necessary to leave his home & withdraw to Canada, to effect which he procured 3 Indians from the adjacent village as guides thro the woods, & was accompanied by about 130 Highlanders & near 120 other inhabitants of the country attached to government, with whom he proceeded from the house of M<sup>r</sup> McDonnell called Collaghy on or about the 13th of May last for Oswegatchy in Canada. That the said M<sup>r</sup> Gumersall who was instrumental to him on the occasion, accompanied him a few miles further on his rout & then took his leave; after which with much difficulty after secretting himself & marching by night about 5 weeks he arrived at Staten Island (where His Majesty's troops were) on the 19th of July & was by Gen<sup>l</sup> Howe's favor, thro' the accommodation of John Small Esq<sup>r</sup> Major of Brigade, appointed to his present office, in consideration of his sufferings & service, having been oblig'd to abandon a very advantageous branch of trade in which he was largely concerned. M<sup>r</sup> Gumersall further declares that he was credibly informed that John Butler Esq. who was left at Niagara by Coll. Johnson Superintend<sup>t</sup> of Indian Affairs, with other officers, to encourage the Indians to joyn His Majesty's troops this season, rec<sup>d</sup> several letters from M<sup>r</sup> Schyler a rebel Gen<sup>l</sup> inviting him down & promising him protection &<sup>c</sup> but at the same time employed the messenger (an Indian) in case he refused, to bring his scalp, for which he was to have a reward of one hundred dollars. That about 3 days after S<sup>r</sup> John's departure, Lady Johnson rec<sup>d</sup> a letter from John Butler, Esq addressed to Sir John, acquainting him that he had, agreeable to Coll: Johnsons instructions, assembled a considerable body of Indians ready to go on service, & only waited to receive news from Col. Johnson or orders to proceed; and M<sup>r</sup> Gumersall believes and has heard that the Indians had proceeded agreeable thereto, & that Lieu<sup>t</sup> Gray late of the 42<sup>d</sup> and M<sup>r</sup> Gumersall help'd to raise the men who accompanied S<sup>r</sup> John, and M<sup>r</sup> Gumersall advanced them money on that occasion.
My Lord

Ship Dutchess of Gordon.

Off Staten Island. 14th Aug<sup>t</sup> 1776.

My Lord,

I have been honoured with Your Lordship's several Dispatches by the Sandwich, Lord Hyde, & Halifax, Packet Boats, to N<sup>o</sup> 4 inclusive. I am happy to learn my endeavours to promote the interest of the present great national cause, has been so well accepted by His Majesty, I wish the strength of my constitution could keep pace with my inclinations to serve my Prince: broken and impaired as the former is I am nevertheless not without the hope of having a share in the restoration of the publick tranquility.

The confederate Colonies have declared themselves independent States: Enclosed is a printed copy of their Declaration of Independency, which was published through the streets of New York the middle of last month, where the King's Statue has been demolished, as well as the King's Arms in the City Hall, the established churches shut up, & every Vistage of Royalty, as far as has been in the power of the Rebels, done away. The persons of the Mayors of the Cities of York and Albany, Judges, Counsellors, Magistrates and principal gentlemen of the Country that are not in rebellion seized and secured, and even down to the meanest planters persecuted and tyrannized over.

The whole armament destined for this part of America, except the last division of the Hessians, being now assembled here, I expect, by the courage and strength of this noble Army, tyranny will be crushed and legal government restored.

As the Military and Naval operations do not lye within my department, I shall leave the relations of them to those gentlemen who have the honor to guide them.

I am with all possible respect, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient Servant,

Lord George Germain

Governor Tryon.

Sir,

I am very glad to find by Your letters of the 8th July, which I received by Lieutenant Colonel Blunt,<sup>3</sup> that Your information of the disposition of the inhabitants of the Province continues to give you ground to expect that when the pressure of the Rebel Force is removed, and Protection held forth by the King's troops, they will in general give testimony of their fidelity to his Majesty and attachment to the Constitution.

<sup>3</sup> Lieut. Col. HANAY BLUNT was appointed 1st Lieutenant in the 23d, or Royal Welsh Fusileers, 28th August, 1756; Captain, 28th October, 1761; Major, 28th August, 1771. The 23d regiment served as the garrison of Fort St. Philip in Minorca in 1756, when reduced by Spain; was part of the expedition against St. Malo, in 1758, but did not come to America until 1775, when it took a part in the battle of Bunker Hill. Major Blunt became Lieut.-Colonel of the 4th or King's Own, 20 Sept., 1775, and continued to serve in America until July, 1776, when on account of his private affairs he had leave to return to England, where he quit the army in 1777. Army Lists; Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs; 5 American Archives, I, 106.—Ed.

The steady loyalty of the people of Staten Island cannot be too much commended, & their affectionate reception of the troops under General Howe cannot fail to recommend them to the particular favor of Government, and I have the pleasure to acquaint you that it is his Majesty's command that you do signify to them, in the most public manner, His Majesty's very great satisfaction in their conduct, and in the proofs they have given of their loyalty and affection, & to assure them of His Majesty's paternal Regard and constant Protection.

The next advices we receive from General Howe will I trust make it necessary for me to give you some Instructions respecting your Government, In the mean time I have the satisfaction to repeat the assurances I have been before authorized to give you, that your perseverance in the line of conduct you have adopted upon such laudable motives is very much approved by the King

My Lord,

New York 24th September 1776

My Lord,

At the same time that I have the happiness to acquaint Your Lordship that on the 15th Inst General Howe, with the forces under his command, by admirable skill, spirit and conduct, made himself master of the City of New York, and one-half of the Island; It grieves me to inform You that on the 21st, about two in the Morning, the Western part of the Town was set on fire by a number of Incendiaries, and which raged with such violence as destroyed, it is thought, one fourth part of the City, before the flames could be extinguished. Many of the incendiaries are now in prison, and two or three were killed as they were detected in their hellish design. Many circumstances lead to conjecture that Mr Washington was privy to this villainous Act, as he sent all the bells of the churches out of town, under pretence of casting them into cannon, whereas it is much more probable to prevent the alarm being given by ringing of the Bells before the fire should get a head beyond the reach of Engines and Buckets: besides some Officers of his army were found concealed in the City, supposed for this devillish purpose. The town was thought to be saved more by a sudden change in the wind (which blew strong), and pulling down intermediate houses, than by water. It is afflicting to view the wretched and miserable inhabitants who have lost their all, and numbers of reputable shop keepers that are reduced to beggary, and many in want for their families of the necessaries of life. The fire broke out in sundry places nearly at the same time, but was first discovered at White Hall Stairs, and has burn't the whole body of the buildings that lyes between George Street and Broad Street, as high up as the City Hall, and all the buildings on the North of Fort George, lying between the North River and Great George Street as far up as King's College, excepting a few houses and St. Paul's Church, and almost all the houses on the Church Estate, with Trinity Church, is totally consumed; It really seems the conflagration was directed against the interest of the Church. The Ship Docks, Warehouses, and the Commercial part of the City is as yet safe, and every measure pursued by General Robertson, Commanding Officer in New York, assisted by myself, to establish such regulations and police as may ensure its future security. I was at Flatbush at M<sup>r</sup> Axtell's four miles from the City for the recovery of my health and strength when this dreadful event befell this devoted City.

As this Country is in the present period too much convulsed for the civil Government to act with any good effect. It is the opinion of both His Majesty's Commissioners for restoring peace to the Colonies that I should postpone any executive Acts of Government, untill the Province is more liberated from the controul of the Rebels. I therefore have kept the executive powers of Civil Government dormant, leaving every thing to the direction of the Military, never ceasing however to throw every information I can procure to the General and Admiral as it may concern them, and to exhort and recommend to the Inhabitants the proper line for their duty and interest.

General Oliver De Lancey under General Howe's orders is endeavouring to raise a Brigade of Fifteen hundred men for the Defence of Long Island, and Major Rogers a Corps of Provincials for the war generally.

The two New York Companies under the Captains Campbell and Grant have acquitted themselves in Action so honorably as to obtain the General's thanks, transmitted to them in public orders. I am with all possible respect, My Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient and most humble Servant

My Lord.

The last letter I had the honor to address to your Lordship was of the 9th of August giving an account of my arrival at Staten Island and of such particulars as I had been able to obtain respecting Indian Affairs. Since which I have, by General Howe's orders waited the event of such military operations as might enable me to proceed to the Indians with such presents and marks of the King's bounty as are absolutely necessary at our interview; but altho' the advanced season when these operations commenced, tho' conducted with much success and rapidity, has hitherto prevented that wished for opportunity, I have the pleasure to assure Your Lordship that the Indians have faithfully observed the promises they made to me, rejected all the proposals of the rebels, and a considerable number of them proceeded on service. And notwithstanding the artifices practis'd by the Indians of the Oneida villages, influenced by their New England Missionary Kirtland, the inclosed intercepted letter, communicated to me by Lord Howe, will show their fidelity of the Six Nations and evince their attention to me.

In my last interview with your Lordship I took the liberty to observe that whatever measures had been resolved on by the Indians, were about that time carrying into execution, and that I had a confidence in the treaties made before me at Ontario with the Six Nations and Hurons &c of Detroit, and with the rest in Canada, notwithstanding they were so surrounded by deceivers possessed of the back country, that even their neutrality was an object of some importance. But I hope they will appear in a much superior light and that I shall ere long be enabled to collect such necessaries as they want. To pave the way for their future operations, I have, with the approbation of General Howe, lately dispatched (in disguise) one of my officers with Joseph the Indian Chief (who desired the service) to get across the country to the Six Nations, and from their activity and knowledge of the way I have hopes of their getting thro' undiscovered, and of their preparing the Indians to cooperate with our military movements; but the many difficulties which retarded the Northern Army, disappointed our hopes of a junction until the hunting season now come on, when the Indians must necessarily provide winter stores for their families. This done, I think I can answer for them, from my confidence in General Howe's enabling me to get what is necessary for the Indians, as I hear that the articles sent out last year are much damaged and deficient; nor should I mention this matter, but that is an essential consideration in affairs with Indians.

The Rebels on the frontiers of this Government have taken uncommon pains to prevent the success of his Majesty's arms from coming to the ear of the Indians and have destroy'd the effects of all the loyal party there. Mine have been totally plundered and my negroes carried off; but I am sensible that this must be the fate of any man in office, particularly in such a one as mine; & therefore I little regret it so long as I preserve your Lordships favor, and am enabled to serve His Majesty with a zeal and loyalty displeasing to his enemys

I hope to be honor'd with Your Lordship's commands on any occurring subject, and I am with great respect My Lord

Your Lordship's most devoted humble servant

G. JOHNSON.

P. S. A Gentleman of my acquaintance who made his escape from Schenectady is just arrived and informs me that about six weeks since a large Belt came down to the Oneidas and Mohocks from Niagara, from the Six Nations and others, desiring to know the state of the latter and that as the whole Confederacy had acted during the Campaign agreeable to their promises to me, they wished to strengthen the hands of the Lower Nations & desired their attendance at a General Meeting to concert farther measures; and that if they found themselves obstructed by the rebels, the Upper Nations would come down and open the road for them.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXII.]

Copy of a letter intercepted from S. Kirtland a New England Missionary among the Oneidas to M<sup>r</sup> Schuyler a rebell General and Manager of their Affairs. Oneida May 22. 1776.

To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Philip Schuyler Esq. Commissary &<sup>e</sup> from the Oneida Chiefs.

Brother Governor,

We the Oneida Chiefs think proper to acquaint you with the result of the meeting at Niagara with Coll. Butler. This we do at our own option without being desired by the other parts of the Confederacy, tho' it has been reported among them that General Schuyler ought to be informed. We sent two Oneidas to hear what should pass at Niagara; they returned the night before last and bring the following account.

N. Col Butler is the person lett by Col. Johnson to act as his Depy in that part of the Department.

N. The answer as related by the Onondaga Deputies, is partially given, in get favor from Schuyler & therefore where they speak well of the 6 Nations attachment to Government, we may give a larger latitude to it.

The Representatives of the Six Nations delivered the answer to Coll. Butlers Belts that was formed and agreed upon in full Council at Onondaga, of which we suppose you have been made acquainted. The purport of our answer was that the Six Nations with the Cagnuagas and the Seven Tribes in that vicinity, had all united and resolved to maintain peace, both with the King and the Bostonians, and receive no Ax from either.

Coll. Butler replies —

Brothers. I am glad to hear you are all united but I am surprised to find you talk of maintaining peace with the Americans and at the same time support the King's peace or Government. Brothers, Your resolutions are very surprising; where is there any one or body of men to be compared to the King? As for Gen<sup>l</sup> Schuyler (and the other Commis<sup>rs</sup>) of whom you boast so much, what is he? He was born but yesterday; just now, as it were, started up out of the ground, and tomorrow will return into the earth whence he came. It will not be the space of a month before you hear him cry. He has no men, guns, cannon and ammunition or cloathing, and should he survive the summer he must perish by the cold next winter for want of blankets. But the King wants neither men or money; there is no computing his numbers. As to the Cagnuagas claiming Seven Tribes as under their jurisdiction, it is false; they tell a lie; the Cagnuagas are by themselves alone and they are become Bostonians. But the other Six tribes in that vicinity, with all the back nations, are at the King's command and will take his side. And as for Canada they are all (except twelve persons) returned to the Kings side.

The Cagnuagas are dependants on the 6 Nations.
G. J.

Brothers. You had better recall your resolutions and determine to keep the Kings peace, and the King will then be glad to hear from you. What a wretched situation must you be in when the King attacks all the sea ports in America and comes in earnest to sweep off the Americans, if he finds you supporting the Americans.

To this the Sachems made an immediate reply.

Brothers.

We will support the Kings Peace or Government and we now speak from our very inside, and don't think it proceeds only from our lips.

For this Coll. Butler returned thanks & expressed great joy. Then the Commanding Officer of Niagara<sup>1</sup> (whom the Indians call Oguhaenjes) addressed the Indians as follows.

Brothers

The King of England is very great and wise: he was never yet conquered. He has subdued both France and Spain. Pray what can this handfull of men in America do with such a King? The King is very subtle, he has deceived the Bostonians with a witness. He ordered his forces to continue at Boston till the Bostonians had collected all the cannon that could be found from Philadelphia, N. York, and even from Virginia, and brought them to that place. The Bostonians having all their force and cannon collected, were about to destroy the town; but the King's Officer commanding there forbid them, telling them he would leave it in a peaceable manner, as the purpose of his coming there was now answered. And now Brothers you will soon hear that the King's Ships have laid waste all their sea ports, as they can make no resistance, having sent all their cannon and stores to Boston. Virginia has had all, already Brothers. I shall not give up this post (Niagara) to the Bostonians, without a struggle. My men must fall first before the Bostonians shall take possession.

After this Col. Butler proceeds, addressing himself to the Sachems.

Brothers

I propose to your consideration that a number of your Warriors should go in quest of Coll. Johnson; here is a large vessel ready for sailing. Let them embark who desire a speedy interview with Col. Johnson; he must at this time be at Quebec or in the Rivers and upon my hearing of his actual arrival, I shall immediately pursue and will certainly see him. If the Bostonians should be betwixt me and Coll. Johnson, I will turn out of the Road and pass by them. I have also another vessel proposed for the back nations as soon as they come. The Sachems reply — We shall not consider the matter, for we know it is already settled and they are now embarking. Did we know that Col. Johnson was actually arrived at any particular place, we would consider the affair.

Brother Gen' Schuyler — we now inform that Col. Butler prevailed, and upwards of fifty of the Six Nations, have embarked twelve days ago in quest of Col. Johnson, and a number of the Back Nations, the whole amounting to one hundred. Brother we dread the consequence; we this day send off four of our young men to acquaint you & then proceed to Kaghawaga to inform them. The one from Oriske is a chief man and one of the two sent to Niagara, and will give you particulars. The next called Kanaghwiaiga is a young Sachem of great influence in this Nation. The third Sewajis is chosen to a Sachemship. We the Sachems of Oneida end our love to you and wish you success.

My Lord,

I have been honored with Your Lordship's Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 5 & 6 with their enclosures: The Duplicates were delivered by M<sup>r</sup> Kemble to all which I shall pay due regard.

I have communicated to the principal inhabitants of Staten Island, by an Extract from Your Lordship's Dispatch, his Majesty's approbation of the loyal and affectionate conduct of the people of that Island, and his most gracious assurances of paternal regard for, and constant protection of, them: But as that Island from the present operations of the war is not in a state of absolute security, and has within these few weeks been visited by some parties of the Rebels I have not thought it prudent, in the present moment, to make a Public Declaration of the Royal Disposition in their favor.

As the Militia Law is in force I am getting proper lists of Officers, as also of Magistrates, that the civil Government may have its full operation as soon as it is judged proper to reestablish it with all its powers.

M<sup>r</sup> White<sup>1</sup> one of his Majesty's Council arrived here with the last division of the Hessians and is very usefull to me from his influence among the Citizens, in such regulations of Police as are left me in my restricted sphere of executive power, arising from the present necessity of the times.

The Liberty Poll erected some years ago in this City, and which remained as a monument of insult to the Government, and of licentiousness to the people, was last month by my recommendation to the Inhabitants, very properly and very quietly taken down and removed by them.

I am with all possible respect

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and very humble Serv<sup>t</sup>

Lord George Germain.

My Lord,

The inclosed Plan of Fort George with the Works on the Lower Battery, and the intermediate buildings, will exhibit a Plot of ground which I esteem upon a settlement of the present war would be extremely advisable to be secured as Crown Land.

The Fort with proper buildings might contain the King's Arsenal and Armoury and when all the buildings and Barracks now standing are Demolished, a proper esplanade might be marked out for the Soldiery, and a handsome range of barracks constructed for as many men as might be thought proper for a standing Garrison.

The Inhabitants who claim the property in the houses and lots in Pearl Street and buildings adjoining, might probably be satisfied out of the Rebel Tenements within the City, upon Confiscation.

By this arrangement Your Lordship will observe the soldier would be kept distinct from the Citizen and the Commercial Interest of the Town not in the least injured, as no Docks or wharfs have ever been built where the line of works border on the East and North River. All the ground within the dotted black line from Whitehall to the North River is proposed to be reserved to the Crown for the purposes above mentioned

I am with all possible respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and very humble Servant

New York, 28th Nov<sup>r</sup> 1776.

My Lord,

It is with the most singular Satisfaction I have the honor herewith to transmit to Your Lordship Copies of the Addresses of the City and County of New York, and also of King's and Queen's County to the King's Commissioners, testifying their wishes to return under the King's peace and Government.

The Dissolution of the Committee of Suffolk County and the Committees of the several Townships in the same, with the Revocation of all their proceedings and orders under the Congress was effected at my particular recommendation to them for that purpose; Copies of all which are herewith transmitted: When the pressure of the Rebel Army is removed from this Province I have the strongest expectations that a like spirit will be adopted through the Colony.

On my Reviewing the 4th Inst. while with the Army such part of the Militia of Westchester County as was within the protection of the King's Army, and which amounted to upwards of five hundred men, I found them impressed with a loyal disposition to Government: But from the vicinity of the Rebels and the uncertainty of the Royal Army giving them continued support I could not think it expedient at that time to invite them to take up arms, or to petition the King's Commissioners, as either measure at that period would on the removal of the troops bring down instant destruction to their Properties and Families; Indeed what with the Conflagrations of the Rebels, and the marauding of both armies, the inhabitants of that County are reduced to great distress.

I must beg leave to offer my congratulations to your Lordship on the repeated and honourable achievements of the British and Hessian Troops; another Campaign pressed with equal vigour, I trust will restore tranquility and union to the British Empire.

I am with all possible respect,

My Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient

My Lord.

On the 10th inst: I received the Militia of Queen's County at Hampstead, when eight hundred and twenty Men were mustered, and on Thursday following I saw the Suffolk Militia at Brookhaven, where near eight hundred Men appeared, to all of whom, as well as to the Militia of Queens County, I had in my presence an oath of allegiance and fidelity administered, the form of which is herewith transmitted.

I took much pains in explaining to the people (having formed them into circles) the iniquitous arts etc that had been practiced on their credulity to seduce and mislead them, and I had the satisfaction to observe among them a general return of confidence in Govern<sup>t</sup>. A very large majority of the Inhabitants of Queen's County have indeed steadfastly maintained their Royal principles, as have small districts in Suffolk County. Some Men from South and Easthampton townships, who attended the Review, assured me, Rebel parties from Connecticut were then on the Eastermost part of the Island, and which prevented in general the settlers in that quarter from attending my summons, but that they are very desirous to live under a peaceable obedience to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s authority.

The inclosed letter from their Presbyterian Minister<sup>1</sup> will more fully explain their sentiments.

Three Companies I learned had been raised out of Suffolk County for the Rebel Army; most of whom I was made to understand would quit that service, if they could get home.

I have the pleasure to assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, through the whole of this Tour, I did not hear the least Murmur of discontent, but a general satisfaction expressed at my coming among them; and to judge from the temper and disposition I perceived in them; there is not the least apprehension of any further commotions from the Inhabitants on Long Island; all are industrious in bringing to Market what provisions the Island affords.

The late success of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s arms in the Jersey's and Rhode Island, will assuredly open considerable resources of Provisions and forage for the Army, which with the plentiful and

When the Island fell into the hands of the British in 1776, he was very useful to his people and successful in protecting them. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Dartmouth College in 1791 and died July 19, 1798, aged 81 years. A brief memoir of Dr. Buell has been published by his son-in-law, the Rev. abundant supplies from the Mother Country will enable this high spirited and victorious army to take the field early next spring.

The General has been pleased to give my Secretary Coll: Fanning<sup>1</sup> a warr<sup>t</sup> to raise a Battalion of Provincials of Five Hundred Men, they are to be listed for the American service, and for the term of two years or during the war, at the General's option. This Corps, I expect will be completed so as to be ready to take the field with the army.

While on long Island, I gave certificates to near three hundred Men who signed the declaration prescribed by the King's Commissioners Proclamation of the 30th Nov<sup>r</sup> last; large bodies of the people have already taken the benefit of the Grace therein offered them.

I am with perfect Esteem and respect

My Lord

Last Sunday evening M<sup>r</sup> Wallace & M<sup>r</sup> Jauncey, two of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Council of this province, with several other Inhabitants thereof, came to Town from Connecticut, having been discharged by Gov<sup>r</sup> Trumbull from their confinement upon the express obligation of not taking up arms against America, and to return to their captivity if required. By these Gentlemen I understand the temper of the Warmest Patriots in Connecticut is much softened, and that they wish for peace; they also tell me, from the intelligence they had opportunities to collect, they are positive, a Majority of the Inhabitants West of Connecticut River are firm friends to Govern<sup>t</sup>. This report I can give the more credit to, from the number of Connecticut Men that inlist in the Provincial corps now raising.

The Rebels carrying off the Hessian Brigade under Coll: Rall at Trenton, has given me more real chagrin, than any other circumstance this war; the moment was critical, and I believe the Rebel Chiefs were conscious, if some stroke was not struck that would give life to their sinking cause, they should not raise another army. Unlucky as was this loss, I have received great comfort by the assurances Heister and Gen<sup>l</sup> Kniphausen have given me (who are most sincerely and deeply mortified at the event) that the Rebels will not with all their arts be able to seduce the Hessian Prisoners from their allegiance to their Prince and duty to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>. I trust, this tarnish to the Campaign, will in due season be wiped away by some brilliant enterprize of the King's forces who entertain the keenest sense of the insult.

Sir

I had the satisfaction to receive by Capt<sup>n</sup> Gardiner the 30th of last Month your Dispatches Numbered 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21. and have laid them before the King.

The warm expressions of duty and affection to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> contained in the several addresses of the Inhabitants of such Parts of the Province as have been delivered from the oppression of the Rebels by the happy and rapid success of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s forces, were very pleasing to the King; and I trust that the time is at no great distance when the return of the deluded people to their duty will become general and the Prov<sup>ce</sup> be entitled to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s peace, and to all its former commercial advantages.

The early attention you have shewn to the future security of New York, is no more than the unremitted Zeal & Attachment to the King's service, which has been so conspicuous in your conduct, would have led us to expect; and altho' the time is not yet come for entering upon the consideration of what measures will be proper to be adopted for retaining the Colonies in their duty, yet, I may venture to assure you, whenever it does come, that the security of New York will be a principle object of attention; and it is therefore highly necessary, that you should avail yourself of the present circumstances to secure, for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s use, such part of the destroyed Town, as in the opinion of the Engineers will be most proper for erecting a Citadel, or other works, as well to command the Town as for the defence of the harbour.

I have communicated to the Lords of the Treasury your letter N<sup>o</sup> 20 and have not failed to recommend the subject of it to their Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s benevolent consideration

I was very glad to find by your letter of the 9th August that you were safe arrived at New York with the two Indians that accompanied you, and who gave such proofs of their spirit & bravery in the engagement the packet had with a rebel privateer. I hope the one who you tell me in your letter of the 25th Nov<sup>r</sup> is set out with the design of getting to his nation will succeed in his purpose, & I make no doubt from the Accounts you transmit, as well as from those I have received from Canada, that a considerable body of the Indians will be in readiness to second any operations which Sir William Howe may think fit to direct towards Albany in the Spring. In this expectation I have judged it necessary to order such part of a supply of goods suitable for presents to the Indians as had been purchased for Canada, and shipped on board the Lord Shuldham Transport (which is returned to England having lost her passage to Quebec) to be sent in her to New York for Sir William Howe's disposal. And I have some reason to think that the other parts of this supply, which were on board the General Conway and Union Transports, will also be brought to New York, as neither of those ships have I fear been able to get up to Quebec.

My Lord,

I have solicited General Howe to give me eight hundred stand of arms for the Loyal Inhabitants in Queen's County, which he was pleased to grant, and accordingly last week they were sent to Col: Ludlow<sup>1</sup> Coll: of Militia to distribute among the most faithful subjects.

The General this day signified his wishes that I would choose out five hundred of the most trusty Citizens to arm for the defence of the City should it be thought necessary to March out a considerable part of this Garrison against the Rebels, who are assembling in a large body near King's Bridge. I am engaging all the Citizens to take the same oath of allegiance & fidelity administered to the Militia on Long Island, and I give to each the certificate as inclosed; this My Lord will give confidence to the Citizens who are well effected and distinguish the Friend from the Enemy.

The Inhabitants of King's County (through the recommendation of M<sup>r</sup> Axtel,<sup>2</sup> a member of the Council, and Col: of the Militia of that County) have contributed three hundred pounds currency towards the raising of Col: Fanning's Battalion of Provincials, this laudable spirit I shall encourage and have already recommended to the Society of the Quakers to distinguish they Loyalty and zeal by an Act of liberality in furnishing the Provincial Corps with some necessary's of clothing of which they are in great want; the benefit of which measure they have now under consideration

New York. 11. February 1777.

My Lord,

The success that accompanied my endeavour to unite the Inhabitants of this City by an oath of allegiance and Fidelity to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> and His Govern<sup>t</sup>, has met my warmest wishes. Two thousand nine hundred and seventy of the Inhabitants having qualified thereto in my presence, the Mayor Recorder and Alderman Waddle<sup>1</sup> were employed in administering the oath.

I have the satisfaction to assure your Lordship as the invitation to the people to give this voluntary testimony of their Loyalty to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> & his Govern<sup>t</sup> was made even without a shadow of compulsion, it gave me peculiar satisfaction to see the cheerfulness, with which they attended the summons; I verily believe, there are not one hundred Citizens who have not availed themselves of the opportunity of thus testifying their attachment to Government. The Mayor since I went through several wards, has attested fifty more Men, (and is daily adding to the number) which makes the whole sworn in the City Three thousand and  $\frac{10000}{10000}$  which added to those attested on Staten Island, in the three Counties on Long Island, and in Westchester County, (all which amounted to upwards of two thousand six hundred) makes the whole amount to five thousand six hundred Men.

Thus, My Lord, I have used my best endeavours to secure the fidelity of the Inhabitants of this Govern<sup>t</sup>, within those districts, thro' which the King's troops have moved. I have assured the General, that sh<sup>d</sup> he remove all his Troops from this City, there would not be the least risk of a Revolt from the Inhabitants, but on the Contrary was confident, large numbers would take a share in the defence of the Town against the Rebels.

The Loyal Inhabitants of Queen's County received the eight hundred stand of arms distributed by the General's permission, with demonstrations of Joy and with a professed resolution to use them in defence of the Island.

I am anxious that some Grace from Govern<sup>t</sup> may speedily be extended to this Loyal Quarter of the Province.

Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe was pleased to approve the proposition, but has not as yet appointed the staff, or other arrangement for that Command.

This offer, My Lord, flows from the warmest Zeal to promote His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s service in the line in which I esteem I could be most serviceable in the present war. Should this measure be honored with my Sovereign's approbation, and Your Lordp's countenance it will afford me the highest encouragement and satisfaction.

My Lord,

Inclosed, is a copy of the instrument now carrying about the several Wards of this City and County; the Inhabitants thereby revoking and annulling all powers and authorities of Congresses, Committees and Conventions over them. This measure I recommended as salutary for the purpose of making known to the Province and other Colonies that the Delegates in Continental and Provincial Congresses for the City and County of New York, were no longer acting under the Colour of the, even unlawful, authority; and should these Delegates presume longer to Act after such revocation; their doings must appear still more flagrant and arbitrary than when veiled under the sanction of their Constituents.

Inclosure in Governor Tryon's Letter to Lord George Germain. 15. Febr<sup>y</sup> 1777.

WHEREAS certain persons now Members of What is called the Provincial Congress of the Province of New York, do claim and actually exercise the power of representing this City and County, and are with such Congress pursuing measures totally subversive, as well of His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s Govern', as of our Liberty and Happiness; we therefore, the Freeholders and Inhabitants of the City and County of New York, whose names are hereunto subscribed, do herely in the most explicit manner, disavow, renounce and disclaim such their assumption of power and all submission or obedience to any orders or resolutions of the said Provincial Congress, and of any Continental Congress Committees, or Conventions whatsoever, claiming to exercise any such unlawful power over us, hereby recognizing and acknowledging our submission to His Majesty's Govern<sup>t</sup>, under which alone, we wish and expect to derive those solid and permanent blessings, which are peculiar to the British Constitution, and the inheritance of a British subject.

New York Feb 15. 1777.

My Lord.

I lately by desire, laid before Sir William Howe, the State of my Department, with such hints as I thought best for the service, and which I flatter myself the General will countenance as far as he sees eligible; but the Indians, tho' they faithfully observed the promises they made to me, and assembled in great numbers last year both in Canada and at Niagara, were little employed, and by the arrangement of Indian Affairs my authority does not extend to Canada, neither has there been any communication yet formed by which we could bring those Indians who are under my Super Intendency to act with General Howes army, where they could be very serviceable. This consideration moved me to represent that if such an opening was not likely to be effected this way, I would willingly, if a body of troops went around by the Lakes or otherwise to the Northward, accompany them and do what service I could in that country on being properly authorized; but as General Howe is sensible of the advantages the Indians would be of to this army, and as I have sent messages to prepare them to avail themselves of the first opportunity to joyn it, I at the same time took the liberty to suggest my thoughts as to the mode of effecting such a junction, which in my conception deserves particular attention for any early movement that will facilitate their meeting us, will afford great advantage to the troops & promote the success of the subsequent military operations; and the terror of their name, without any acts of savage cruelty, will tend much to the speedy termination of the Rebellion, I presume on your Lordship's indulgence to mention these matters by the opportunity which Gen<sup>l</sup> Robertson affords me; hoping to write soon on those of more importance, for I wish to render myself acceptable to His Majesty by an attention to my duties, and I trust in your Lordships support and countenance for rendering them more effectual.

I have the honor to be, with much respect

N<sup>o</sup> 1 Ryder Street 1 March 77.

Sir.

Before my departure for America I take the liberty of inclosing you my feeble thoughts about the management of the Northern Indians in America, but am afraid I have not been able to express my ideas so as to be very intelligible. However as you are very well versed in those matters, I dare say you will guess at what I mean. They are my sentiments without partiality, interest or view, and according to my notion of carrying Indian Affairs, will after this rebellion in particular, prove of utility to government, which should appropriate Ind<sup>a</sup> matters entirely to itself, by confining them to His Majesty's garrisons on the Frontiers.

I must entreat you Sir not to leave me to the mercy of a stranger in assigning me a vessell at Cork for a passage across the Atlantic. As to myself, I never made myself uneasy, and always leave those matters to chance; but when women and children (some of which not being my own) are in the case, one would willingly use as much precaution as possible, to guard ag<sup>t</sup> blame and self accusation in case of accidents. I understand the Alexander is a fine vessell, and wish I could go in her or such like.

I likewise humbly conceive that a hint to Gen<sup>l</sup> S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Howe with regard to my allowance, might be of service. Lord G. Germaine was pleased to tell me a short time ago, that anything you could suggest to him with consistency, to be of service to me, he would with pleasure agree to.

I intend setting off by next Monday's Chester Coach; wishing you every happiness you can desire, and am, with the greatest esteem and gratitude for your many kindnesses and good offices while in England

Sir

Your most obedient and most obliged humble Servant

To William Knox Esq

DAN. CLAUS.

Colonel Claus' Remarks on the Management of the Northern Indian Nations.

The Indians in North America in general and those in particular that live any distance from the European settlements, consider themselves a free and independent people, liable to no subjection or subordination and consequently must be managed and ruled, either by persuasion or influence or some kind of awe, or military authority & parade.

The persons therefore who are to have the care and superintendancy of their affairs under government and would carry on business with them by persuasion and influence, ought to be possessed of an even temper, great patience and good nature, being well acquainted with their customs manners and language, persons of authority and consequence, of merit and character in publick life, and, according to the Indian phrase, have been great and successfull Warriors in their time.

Any one who has had a moderate acquaintance with the late S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, will allow that gentleman to have been possessed of the above qualifications, as much as any mortal possibly could be, keeping up a uniform conduct in every one, for upwards of 30 years. And these were the motives which indeed<sup>1</sup> the Indians to have so universal and firm an attachment to, and regard for him; even those that never saw him, held him in respect and esteem from the report of others, and received his messages and speeches with due attention. But with him all these necessary qualifications were buried, and it may with confidence be ascertained that there is hardly one to be found to equal him, in that respect, in America; and yet without some of the most essential of the above requisites, no one can be of much service to the Crown in Indian matters, particularly if a man cannot keep a private conference with an Indian it is a great defect, as their most consequential business often consists in such interviews. Indians in general are fond of carrying secrets to their Superintendent, which they would not choose should come thro' the mouth of an Interpreter, and such defects have already been noticed and regreted by them. To convene a body of all sexes & sizes of Indians is an easy matter when there is a prospect of presents and provisions; but to get them to perform any business or service for government, without the person that requires it commands some awe and respect with them, they will give evasive answers and seldom or never comply.

Wherefore the above alternative, which will as near as possible or perhaps better, answer the ends of government in preserving the friendship and attachment of the Indians and make them serviceable to the Crown, is to endeavour to draw some awe and respect from them by a military show and parade, which they are fond of, and may be brought about by having their affairs superintended under the direction of the Commanding Officers of the respective posts in the Indian country, whom the Indians always regard as the King's Representatives and respect them as such. At the same time no meeting of public Business ought to take place, without the whole garrison being present and clean, the Officers to assume an air of consequence & decorum on the occasion, which is very striking and taking with the Indians, and was always practiced by the French in the Indian Country & procured them that respect & awe the Indians used to have for them.—Indians in general show a greater esteem for the Military while used friendly by them, than any man in civil life, all their politics being founded upon war; and the more they are accustomed to the soldiery the better, as they may easier be brought to act together upon an emergency. Wherefore it appears more natural and reasonable to carry on their affairs in a military channel, the services chiefly required of them being of a military nature.

The late Sr W<sup>m</sup> Johnson was very sensible that Niagara or Detroit, were the properest and most central places to convene Indians at, after the reduction of Canada, having held Congresses himself at each, and would have done it frequently had his health permitted him latterly.

A Superintendent therefore in a Civil Capacity ought by all means & at least constantly reside at Niagara, & visit the other posts and Indian countries in their turn; as the calling of Indians living about the Upper Lakes to the settlements of any of the Provinces is very inconvenient & disagreeable to them, besides expensive to the Govern<sup>t</sup>. And some ill minded inhabitant may upset the proceedings of a Congress by a malicious & disaffected discourse in broken Indian, and in general Indians on their return from such a meeting, have liquor sold them by bad people, to get their presents or other necessaries from them, and often come home to their families strip'd of every thing, & perhaps bruised & beat in the bargain, which must create ill blood & disputes, & perhaps affect a whole nation. All which may be easily prevented at a post.

Wherefore the whole management of Indian Matters, as well as Trade, ought to be carried on under the direction of the Commanding Officers of the posts of the Ind<sup>n</sup> Country, their duty easily admitting of it; and as Niagara is the head Quarter of those garrisons, it ought to be fixed upon the principal meeting place for the Indians in the Northern District upon public occasions and business of consequence.

The Superintendency of the Northern District in general ought to be vested in the Governor or General of Quebec; who whenever he thought it necessary or had any thing of importance to propose to the Indians in behalf of His Majesty, might summons the whole Confederacy to Montreal and meet them himself, which would give his proposals the more weight; some of the Officers of every garrison to accompany the Indians & attend the Congress, and return with the Indians, reminding them of their engagements to the Governor, & prevent any insults from the inhabitants. All Indian proceedings at the Posts to be wrote down and reported to the General of the District in order to be recorded.

It is a mistaken notion to pretend dividing the grand Confederacy of the Northern District and having it superintended by persons independent of each other; which may occasion much confusion in Indian Affairs. That there were two Confederacies of Indians in the Northern District is very true, viz<sup>t</sup> the Iroquois or Six Nations who claime an alliance with the Hurons at Detroit, and all the Indians to the West and South West of them to the Illinois including the Ohio; and the Seven Nations in the Province of Quebec, who claim an alliance with all the Indian Nations to North and North West of them. These two Confederacies however have since the conquest of Canada united themselves, and act in concert in all matters of importance, and the appointment of Officers will not make them alter their plan. It was a great object with the French for many years to gain over the Six Nations to their interest, and thereby bring about this grand Confederacy of Indians, in order to facilitate their plan of having a chain of Forts from Canada to Louisiana, and all the Indian Nations in their interest; which they very near effected, by having already gained over the Upper Senecas, a numerous Nation, and others living in the neighbourhood of Niagara, of Cayouga and Onondago. Those Senecas are a people of consequence with the Nations to the Westward, having many of their people dispersed among them, and while well used by us may prove very serviceable, they being at present well attached to Government. They had so much influence at the breaking out of the late Indian War in 1763 as to engage all those Nations in their interest, who cut off then the different garrisons in their country.*

NOTE * These Upper Senecas alias the Tainusios have been chiefly in the French interest, since the French were in possession of Niagara, it being with their consent and permission they were allowed to establish themselves there; that Nation of Indians claiming the property of the Soil. In consideration of which privilege they were much caressed and indulged by the French, and had the liberty to enjoy the emoluments of that Carrying Place, which were so lucrative & considerable to that Nation, that in a short time they enriched themselves thereby, and had besides some other advantages in trade and other necessaries of life. When the plan for attacking that fortress was laid in 1758, it having been since the attempt by Genl Shirley in 1755, entirely new laid out & constructed by that able Engineer Monsr Bouchoet, the late Sir Wm Johnson apprehended the greatest obstacle on the side of the Indians, who were so well contented with their neighbours the French and their own prosperous and happy situation. He therefore had no small point to gain, in obtaining the consent and assistance of those Indians to join the army that was to besiege it, as without which, success must in all probability be doubtful; but he surmounted that difficulty by that cleverness in Indian Politics so peculiar to himself; and an expedition was set forward in June 1759 against a Post the most regular finished in Canada, being the key from the Westward, the troops consisting of the 44th 46th 2 compo of 60th Regt and the New York Provl Regt with a very indifferent train of Artillery

Good faithfull and sober interpreters are requisites for the commanding Officers at the Posts, in whom the Indians may have confidence; it is to be lamented there are few or hardly any to be met with in the Northern District, and what adds to the defect is, that none of the Officers appointed to the management of their affairs, understand any Indian language at all, which is very inconvenient and disagreeable to the Indians. Government should loose no time to encourage parents living about the upper posts, to send their children very young to the neighbouring Indian towns, to acquire their languages and to remain among them until they became perfect in the pronunciation and accent, which may be in 3 or 4 years time; after which to give them a grammar education, then send them to the garrison they were intended for, & they will be of great use: the generality of Interpreters being very illiterate, not having their own language sufficiently to translate it either way.

Armorsers and Blacksmiths are likewise essentially necessary to be kept up at the posts, to make & mend the Indians arms and other implements; and what the Crown allows to be done for them in such articles, ought to be by an order from the Commanding Officer upon application from the Chieftain of the party that has any such work to do, which will give the former the more consequence and influence, and be considered by the latter a great piece of friendship and favor.

Presents ought to be given very cautiously and well timed, & seldom or never without some services or merit entitle an Indian to it, or real want and objects of poverty require it; for if presents are given without the above motives and considerations, the Indians will look upon which Genl Prideaux found fault with. At the same time the Indians consisting of upwards of 1000 were the pilots, guides, and in a manner, guards to that expedition, continually scowring the woods with which our little army was surrounded, and sending scouts to the Westward wherefrom a reinforcement of French and Indians was expected, and in consequence gave Sr Willm Johnson all the intelligence he could desire of its approach and the disposition of the Indians, which he found was friendly; so that he had nothing or at least very little to fear from that quarter, & which the event manifested, and the success of that siege was in a great measure owing to the vigilance & dexterity of the Indians; and General Haldimands gallant action at Oswego in defeating a party of French and Indians commanded by the Chevr La Corne, of a much superior number to him and before he had time to make his Camp defensible. Had the French succeeded, the communication with our provin would have been cut off, and in all probability the place must have been abandoned again. The conquest of Niagara at the same time was the means of the most consequential diversion in favor of General Wolf that campaign, which the most knowing people in Canada will allow; for it set the whole Colony in an alarm, disheartened the Canadian army at Quebec, as it was expected our army would make a descent that Fall, down the river St. Lawrence and take possession of Montreal, and General Levy was in consequence detached with a body of troops to proceed to Swegachy to oppose our descent, on which occasion he built Fort Levy afterwards Wm Augustus; So that General Montcalms army was much dispirited and weakened thereby, before he attacked Genl Wolf; the Canadians not engaging at all. After the conquest of Canada, the Indians in general were disregarded. The Tainusio Inds had their privilege of Niagara portage and other advantages taken from them, and having for many years entirely depended upon that for their support, they soon were reduced to a naked & starving condition, not having been accustomed to hunting from that time, besides their country being scarce of game. What added to their misfortune was, that in the Fall 1762 a Dutch Indian Trader was killed by a vagrant Indian from the Ohio, in their Country, and fled for it; for which murder the Commander in Chief demanded satisfaction from them, and they not capable to give it as required, hostile measures were put on foot against them. In this situation they saw themselves necessitated to call the Western Indians to their assistance; who being then unfriendly to us, thro' the instigation of the French traders about the upper Posts and some principal people at Montreal, readily accepted their messages, and in Spring 1763 by a well concerted plot, cut off all the posts beyond Niagara, except Detroit; which was happily discovered before executed, and the Tainusio's cut off the communication to Niagara by land, and defeated a party of 100 men of the 80th Regt and thus brought on that destructive Indn War which cost so much blood & treasure before it could be settled again. Indians not easily forgetting injuries, the Tainusio's still harbored ill will against those they ascribed their misfortunes and losses to, in reflecting upon their once happy days at Niagara, & could not be prevailed upon to attach themselves cordially to the British interes, till after the unwearied pains and endeavours of the late Sr. Willm Johnson they about 5 years ago declared themselves publicly at Johnson Hall firm friends and allies to the Crown of Great Britain, and have hitherto behaved as such.

it as a due, or some interested view in the giver, and it will answer very little purpose. If the Chiefs and principal men of each nation, have now and then a little favour shewn them, it will influence the whole & keep them well disposed, and a little refuse provisions given to those that really want it will have a good effect upon the rest.

Indian Affairs being carried on agreeable to the above hints, may in all probability prove for the good of the service as by good usage and fair trade the Indians will become familiarized and attached to the troops and garrisons in their country, and consequently be solely under the direction of the Crown and thereby prevented from being tampered with and debauched by the Colonists, and the posts become a formidable frontier; a scheme the French so long wished and laboured for to bring about, in order to overawe the British Colonies, and which, after matter are brought to rights with the Colonies, may be serviceable to government upon the same footing the French intended it, in case of future disturbances, for which the Province of Quebec and its frontier garrisons are extremely well calculated. As the rebels attempted to take the management of Indians in their hands, it will be a good reason to give to the Indians for putting the above plan in execution.

N. B. The Indian Nations to whom the above plan would rather be inconvenient, are the domesticks of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of New York, viz<sup>t</sup> the Mohawks, some Oneidas & Susquehanna Indians, as the distance is too great for them to go to Niagara on private business to have their armours and smiths work done; and as they have always been indulged in that particular on account of their antient fidelity to the Crown, a person might be appointed to transact their business and satisfy them in that respect, under the direction of the General of the District, who being nearer that the Superintendent at Niagara.

Sir,

By His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s ship Bristol, I received your dispatches numbered from 22 to 27, and this day those numbered 28 and 29. have arrived in the mail of the New York packet.

When I had the honor to lay these dispatches before the King, His Majesty observed with great satisfaction the effusions of Loyalty and affection which break forth in the addresses of his faithful subjects upon their deliverance from the Tyranny and oppression of the Rebel Committees, & the proof given by the Inhabitants of King's County of their zeal for the success of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s measures, by so generously contributing towards the expence of raising Col: Fanning's Battalion, was highly pleasing to the King, and cannot fail of recommending them to his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s favour. Should their example be followed by the King's other loyal subjects, it must be productive of the best effects, and not only remove that reproach of lukewarmness in the cause of the Constitution, which I am sorry to say is but too generally cast upon them, but have a great tendency to dash the hopes of the Rebels by convincing them, that Govern<sup>t</sup> has resources, even in America, for crushing their Rebellion; and for the greater encouragement of the King's faithful subjects to stand forth upon this great occasion, his Maj<sup>y</sup> is graciously pleased to authorize you to give assurances of grants of like portions of land to the non Commissioned Officers and private Soldiers of the corps which shall be raised in your Province, and continue in His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s service during the war, as were given to His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s Troops of the same Rank by the Proclamation of 1763.

The doubt entertained by the Officers of the Navy, of the competency of a Court of vice-Admiralty constituted at New-York, to condemn captures while the restraining act has its operation upon that Province, does not appear to me to be void of foundation, and I shall take an early opportunity of referring your letter and the clause you propose to His Majesty's principal Law servants, for their opinion of the necessity of enacting that, or a similar clause, in order to give legality to the proceedings of your Court.

I am etc.

My Lord,

Herewith is transmitted the names of the persons in this City whom I mentioned to have taken the Oath of fidelity and allegiance to His Maj<sup>y</sup> and his Govern<sup>t</sup>, with a publication containing the declaration of its Inhabitants renouncing all authority to Congress and Committees.

I have also the honor of inclosing to Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> my letter to Gen<sup>l</sup> Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe, accompanying the plan for the Establishment of the Provincial Corps, which is now under His Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s consideration. From the nature of the service I shall be employed in, it is very probable I may not have opportunities of sending any Dispatches to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> during the campaign; should therefore esteem it very expedient, that a Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>t</sup> should be on the spot to communicate to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> the Civil transactions of the Province.

The happy success of the Detachment under Col: Bird<sup>l</sup> at Pecks Kill, has been important and must greatly retard the operations of the Rebels.

Sir.

I have received by General Robertson,<sup>1</sup> triplicates of your letters numbered 32, 33, and 34. and laid them before the King; but neither the originals or duplicates of Numbers 30 and 31. have come to hand.

The success which has attended your endeavours to unite the Inhabitants of New York in engagements to maintain the Constitution, and defend themselves against any attack of the Rebels, is at once a proof of your Zeal for the King's service, and of their conviction how entirely their happiness and security is connected with the maintenance of His Majesty's just rights, and a due subordination to the authority of the Supreme Legislature, and I shall be very happy to find their disavowal of the Acts of those, who call themselves the Representatives of the Province, has the good effect you hope for, in awakening the influence and exciting opposition to the arbitrary proceedings of that illegal Body.

It was a great pleasure to me to find by a dispatch I received from General Sir William Howe, at the same time with your's, that he intended accepting the offer you made of your service to command the loyal American levies, and I have the further satisfaction to acquaint you, that I have had the honor to signify to the General His Majesty's approbation of that intention.

I am etc.

GEO: GERMAIN.

<sup>1</sup> Lieutenant-General JAMES ROBERTSON was appointed Major of the 1st battalion of the 60th or Royal American, in December, 1755, and in May, 1758, was appointed by General Abercromby Deputy Quarter-Master General of the army in North America. He accompanied the expedition against Louisbourg in 1758, as Quarter-Master General (Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs, III, 173; Knox, I, 162, 189), and was promoted to be Lieutenant-Colonel in the army 8th July 1758. In 1759 he accompanied Amherst up Lakes George and Champlain, in charge of the Quarter-Master's department, and on the 29th October of that year, was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the 55th regiment. Wilson's MS. Orderly Book. In February, 1760, he exchanged into the 15th, which regiment formed part of the expedition against Martinico, in 1762, and returned to England in 1767, and in the following year Lieutenant-Colonel Robertson exchanged into the 16th, which remained in America. In 1772 he became Colonel in the army. In July, 1775, he was stationed at Boston (Journal of New-York Provincial Congress, I, 119); was appointed Major-General in America 1 January, 1776, and Colonel commanding 60th regiment 11 January following; when the army evacuated that city that year, "General Robertson, under an official cover, seems to have been as great a plunderer as any, and to have conspired at the rascally conduct of smaller villains. He might possibly answer to himself for the part he was acting, by viewing what he secured as an equivalent for the many thousands he has out at interest and in property in the Colony of New-York and elsewhere, should the same be seized." 4 American Archives, V., 425. He accompanied the army under Howe to Staten Island, and commanded the 6th brigade in the engagement of the 1st August, and afterwards in the battle of Long Island, when he shortly after came to New-York city. He returned to England in February, 1777 (5 American Archives, III, 1317), and on 29 August of that year became Major-General in the army. On 14 May, 1778, he was appointed Colonel of the 16th regiment, and on 4th May, 1779, received a commission as Governor of New-York, and was accordingly sworn in on 23d March, 1780. New-York Council Minutes, XXVI, 469, 473. He became Lieutenant-General 20 November, 1782; embarked at New-York for England on the 16th April, 1783, and died in 1788. Army Lists. — Ed.

New York 7 April 1777

My Lord.

Last month I was honor'd with Your Lordships dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 1. previous to the receipt of which I had propos'd to prevent farther disappointment or least this communication should not be opened in good time, to go to Canada, & with permission of the General there, to assemble my own Indians and march them as the service shou'd require; but after considering the situation of things here, Sr W<sup>m</sup> Howe thinks this rout most expedient, & I have sent messages across the country to prepare the Indians to meet our army on their first movement to the Northward, and they may then be directed East or West as there shall be occasion.

I cannot help considering the possession of Hudson's River as an object of the greatest importance; as it will separate the Eastern from the Southern Colonies, open a door to a large body of distressed but truly loyal subjects, and enable this army to have the assistance of the Indians in all their future operations; and I am encouraged to hope as well from Your Lordship's letter as from the destination of the Indian presents that this rout will be among the first objects, when from the attention of my officers in the different parts of the Country, the zeal of the Indians, and the measures I am taking, such a junction will be formed, as will facilitate the ends of government; and I am now forming some good woodsmen (with the General's approbation) out of sundry persons who have found means to escape to me from the back country, and who will be particularly usefull to accompany Indian parties, as has been the practise in this Department. I beg to assure Your Lordship that I shall act to the best of my judgment and the utmost of my power for His Majesty's service, and I have the honor to be, with the greatest respect

Governor Tryon to Secretary Knox.

New York, 21 April. 1777.

Dear Sir,

I thank you for the favour of your letter of the 14th of January, which gave me much satisfaction, in the assurance, that my sentiments respecting the present Rebellion correspond with those of my superiors. I am exactly of opinion with Colonel La [Corne] S<sup>t</sup> Luc, who says; Il faut lacher les sauvages contre les miserables Rebels, pour imposer de terreur sur les frontiers; Il dit de plus, (mais un peu trop pour moi) "qu'il faut brutalizer les affaires," assurement, il est bien enragée de la mauvais traitement, qu'il a reçu de les avengles peuples—but not to blunder longer on in a language I know imperfectly, I shall express his other sentiments in the English dialect. He assured me that upon the opening of the first assembly with the Savages in Canada, his feelings would be to poignant at their first interview, as would impose a perfect silence upon him, while tears would run down his cheeks; & that when he should be able to expatiate on the indignities and injuries he had experienced, they would instantly take up the hatchet, and resent his affronts. So reciprocal is the affection between the Father and his Children, for such they style each other respectively, and by whom he is as much cherished, as was Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson by the Indians of the Six Nations. These anecdotes you may esteem worthy to communicate.

I shall be silent on Military prospects, you must have them from the fountain head.

I am Dear Sir

Your most obedient servant.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXIX.]

New York. 19. April 1777.

Honoured Sir.

Your Excell<sup>ty</sup> well remembers, what circumstances you found me in, on your arrival to this Govern<sup>mt</sup>; that I was then Chief Justice of the Province, and had been so for eight or ten years (as my memory serves me) and had no other allowance on the assembly for the support of the dignity of that office, than the miserable pittance of three hundred pounds a year this currency, and the fees of the office, trifling and insignificant, but upon your Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s recommendation home, his Maj<sup>ty</sup> was pleased to allow me Five hundred pounds sterling a year, which I was to receive half yearly on the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of Trade at Boston, w<sup>h</sup> I did to the time of their removal to Halifax, since which, has incurred one year and a half the beginning of this month; but I am much at a loss how to apply for it, but as the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> are now in London, I have wrote to them for information.

When the duties arisen by Trade fell, the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> had directions from the Lords of Treasury to give drafts upon them for the salaries of the Officers of Government, of which I have had two, the salary being payable half yearly.

Your Excell<sup>ty</sup> well remembers, that three or four years ago (I think) the King's special Commission was sent over by Lord Dartmouth, then Secretary of State, empowering the persons therein named, (of which I was one) to enquire into the affair of the destruction of

His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s schooner Gaspee at Rhode Island. Your Excell<sup>cy</sup> knew the State of health I was in at the time I embarked for Newport, much enfeebled by the Rheumatism, the time of year, in December, when it is generally expected the River is full of ice. Myself unable to walk without help, and at a time of life drawing near to fourscore; but as Lord Dartmouth's directions, was to proceed immediately to that place, in order to execute that Commission, I did not hesitate to undertake it, but was obliged to take with me my Wife, carriage and two horses, without which, I could have been of no use. After passing several weeks there, and doing little to the purpose, the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> found it necessary to adjourn over to the next year, which occasioned a second voyage under the like circumstances and at length the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> were obliged to close the Commission having not been able to make any discovery to answer the intent of the Commission; upon which occasion I expended upwards of two hundred pounds of my ownmoney, which remains out of pocket this day, and hitherto my trouble for nothing.

Upon the proceedings of the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> being sent home, Lord Dartmouth directed the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> to send home their accounts of the expenses they had been at. It was imagined with a view to compell Rhode Island Govern<sup>t</sup> to discharge them, but if that was the intent, the alterations of the circumstances of that Govern<sup>t</sup> in these times of Confusion, that expectation is at an end, and in the anarchy and distraction, which now surround us, and the great difficulty in getting money amongst us which is our due, Your Excell<sup>cy</sup> knows how needful it is to be solicitous for it, where it is due in other quarters. I must humbly entreat Your Excell<sup>cy</sup> to represent my case to Lord George Germain, hoping, from his clemency and goodness to have a method pointed out, by which I may have satisfaction made in the foregoing particulars.

I am with the greatest respect

Sir

Your Excell<sup>cy</sup>'s most devoted, obedient, humble servant

(Referred to the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> Lord Geo: Germain by W<sup>m</sup> Tryon.)

My Lord,

The bearer, M<sup>r</sup> Laight, is a good and faithful subject, which testimony he desired, I would give your Lord<sup>sh</sup>. The success of the Enterprize in Connecticut under my command, I must leave to General S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Moore<sup>1</sup> to particularize, I shall only observe, that my obligations to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Erskine are beyond the measure of praise on the occasion; without him I should have been much embarrassed if nothing worse, and with his aid I met with no difficulties, but what the spirit and activity of both Officers and Soldiers honorably surmounted—Submitting myself to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s patronage I am very respectfully Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s obed<sup>t</sup> humble serv<sup>t</sup>

Whitehall 19 May 1777

Sir.

His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s ship Bristol being under orders to return to North America, I avail myself of the opportunity to acquaint you that I have received your Dispatches numbered 31, 35, 36 and 37. together with three private letters of the 9th of April by the New York Packet, which arrived the day after the last mail was sent from hence.

The reasons you suggest for the appointment of a Lieut' Gov<sup>r</sup> of the Province would incline me to submit to the King the expediency of making that appointm<sup>t</sup> immediately, if I knew a proper person to recommend to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> for the Office. You must be sensible that there being no Salary annexed to it, and the chance of any emoluments arising from the execution of it in the present circumstances so small, no fit person here could be expected to accept it, and I am not sufficiently informed of the real characters of those in New York, who might desire to be appointed, to vouch for their fitness. I wish therefore to receive some further information, before I take any steps in this business, and I must desire the favour of you to acquaint me with the names and characters of such Gentlemen as Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe and yourself shall judge best qualified, for this important Station.

In the mean time as Civil Govern<sup>t</sup> is not restored, I do not apprehend any material inconvenience can happen from the Senior Counsellor being intrusted with the exercise of the small share of authority which devolves to him upon your departure from the capital.

I beg you will be assured that I should find a particular pleasure in forwarding any proposition of your's of a tendency to promote your happiness or advantage; but I am so sensible of the important services you have done to the public, and of the great benefit the Kings affairs must receive from your continuing in the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York, until peace is restored, & the Constitution has resumed its legal form and authority, that I cannot, consistent with my duty to the King, or regard for the public, recommend to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> a compliance with the request you make in one of your private letters, and therefore I have not judged it proper to mention it to His Majesty.

The rapid success in raising a Corps of Provincial Loyalists, which has followed your appointment to the Command of it, is a striking proof of your influence over the Inhabitants, and of the zealous endeavours you have exerted for bringing them back to their duty.

The King commands me to express to you His Royal approbation of your unceasing attention to His service; and I have the satisfaction to add that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has the greatest reliance on the spirit and loyalty of His faithful American subjects under your command, and entertains very high expectations, that the most important consequences will attend their vigorous efforts under a Command they are so much attached to, and whose fortitude and ability afford the fairest hopes of success in all his undertakings.

I am etc.

GEO. GERMAIN.

New York. 8 June 1777.

My Lord.

I have been honored with your Lord<sup>ps</sup> dispatches up to N<sup>o</sup> 9. inclusive; His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation of the Conduct of the Militia of King's County in raising a sum of money for the encouragement of Colonel Fanning's Battalion, (which is nearly compleat) encouraged me to forward that Spirit among the districts of the Province within the limits of the Army. Accordingly I published an extract of your Lord<sup>ps</sup> letter, recommending the measure, and appointed certain Gentlemen to receive the subscriptions, who are now engaged in that service.

I received information last night, that the Inhabitants of Staten Island, have raised five hundred pounds for the comfort and encouragement of the Provincial Forces raised in this Province; queen's and Suffolk Counties are now forming their contributions & this City has already contributed, (tho' the subscription was opened but last week) upwards of two thousand pounds.

These testimonials of Loyal liberality, I have the pleasure to assure myself will be pleasing to His Majesty.

The Court of Admiralty has not yet been opened, waiting for an act of Parliament to give it, its full competency, for the want of which the captors of prizes have been great sufferers by the waste & damage to both vessels and cargoes, tho' I am informed, many perishable articles have been sold, which Acts I presume will require the sanction of Parliament.

I am with all possible respect

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>ps</sup> most obed<sup>t</sup> & very humble serv<sup>t</sup>

Colonel Guy Johnson to Lord George Germain.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXIII.]

(N<sup>o</sup> 5).New York June 8th 1777.

My Lord.

In my letter of April last (N<sup>o</sup> 4) I mentioned briefly the state of matters at that time; a few days after a person whom I employed to carry messages to the Indians an obtain an account of the state of the rebel garrisons returned, with a full state of the strength and circumstances of the Forts from Tienderoga to Albany, which he obtained thro' his address under an assumed character, & likewise gave a particular account of a large magazine of military stores and provisions collected at Danbury in Connecticut: which I communicated to S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Howe, who soon after sent a body of troops there, that effectually destroyed the whole, as he has doubtless acquainted your Lordship.

The last of April a person had the good fortune to arrive from Canada, who brought me letters from my Officers, with an acco<sup>t</sup> of the Six Nations having called in and assembled all their people, in order to make a diversion on the frontiers of this Province & Pennsylvania, agreeable to my messages; since which they have made several attacks along the back settlements from Fort Stanwix to the Ohio, with such success that the rebels have been obliged to detach General Hand<sup>1</sup> with some troops to protect the frontiers and are in much consternation. This loyalty of the Indians is a great obstruction to their levies, and is as much as can be expected 'till we open the natural communication by Hudson's River to them, for they are very badly supplied with arms and ammunition, and as they never lay up more provisions than become absolutely necessary for family consumption, they can only carry on the war in flying partys, till a communication is effected with our army, when they may be supplied and marched in large bodies as the service may require; and event for which I am extremely anxious, as I conceive it would much facilitate the military operations. We have indeed for some time expected to hear of the approach of the Northern Army and the favorable season there, with the readiness in which they were represented to be, in the letters I received, gave the strongest grounds for it. Sir Will<sup>m</sup> Howe's first movements will be for another quarter, but from his orders to me I have reason to hope that a push will be soon made to the Northward.

The vessel with Indian presents, mention'd by Your Lordship, arrived some time past, and its contents are well stored 'till there shall be occasion for them.

M<sup>r</sup> Chew (my Secretary) having been lately on some business towards the East end of Long Island, was made prisoner with many others by a party of rebels, and as some think betray'd by the disaffected inhabitants in that quarter. But however general the infatuation of the multitude may be, the mistaken fidelity of the Indians is a sensible check to them, & I cannot too much applaud the loyalty of the Six Nations, under the many disadvantages they must labour 'till the rout is opened, which will enable them to see the strength of His Majesty's arms and to receive the necessary supplies for prosecuting the war with vigour.

I beg to be honoured with your Lordship's commands and to assure you that nothing shall be wanting on my part for promoting the true ends of government, and meriting the confidence of my Royal Master thro' your Lordship's favorable opinion, and I have the honour to be, with great respect & esteem, My Lord,

Your Lordships most obedient

and most humble Servant

G. JOHNSON.

<sup>1</sup> Brigadier-General EDWARD HAND was born at Clyduff, King's county, Ireland, on the 31st December, 1744, and entered the British army on 27th February, 1772, as Ensign of the 18th or Royal Irish regiment of foot, then serving in America. He served about two years with this regiment, and then settled in Pennsylvania. At the beginning of the Revolution he was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel; on 7th March, 1776, was promoted to be Colonel of a regiment of Riflemen in the army at Cambridge, at the head of which he served at the battle of Long Island in August following and shared in the retreat from Brooklyn, of which he has left a graphic account. In October following he was stationed at Delancey's Mills, Westchester county, New-York, and was in the battle of Trenton at the close of the same year. He was appointed Brigadier-General in April, 1777, and commanded at Pittsburgh during the following summer and fall. In October, 1778, he commanded at Albany, and in 1780 was appointed to the command of one of the Light Infantry brigades; and at the close of the year, succeeded Seammell as Adjutant-General, which post he held until the close of the war. General Hand died at Rockford, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, on the 3d September, 1802, in the 58th year of his age. — Ed.

My Lord.

As the success of the late expedition to Connecticut to destroy the Rebel stores at Danbury has been transmitted by the Commander in Chief, I only beg leave to assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, every praise is due to the persevering courage and spirited behaviour of both Officers and Men, on that service S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Erskine<sup>1</sup> was of important service in his double capacity, as Brigadier and Quarter Master Generals, I hold him in such honorable esteem and regard, and confess his Military abilities so superior to my own, that were I allowed to make a request to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in his behalf, it should be, that he might succeed to the command of a Regiment before me, as much as I wish for that honour myself.

I am, My Lord, most respectfully

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXIII.]

(N<sup>o</sup> 6)New York July 7th 1777.

My Lord.

The day after dispatching my last letter, I had the pleasure of receiving one from the Chiefs of the Six Nations written by Joseph, by their order; informing that they had assembled in May agreeable to the directions I had given, wished much to hear from S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Howes army, as they were all in readiness (the Oneidas excepted) and all determined as they expressed it "to Act as one Man" referring me to the bearer for particulars which might have made their billet too bulky. This information was that they had cut off a Serjeant and 12 men at Fort Stanwix, had sent several partys to the back of Pensylvania &c to the great terror of the inhabitants, and had cut off a party, with 50 head of cattle for the rebel garrisons on the Mohock River, that their main body of about 700 Indians were assembled near Owegy on the Susquehanna which would be much increased so soon as any movement was made to the Northward, adding that they would soon strike a blow.

<sup>1</sup>Lieutenant-General Sir WILLIAM ERSKINE, Bart., was appointed Captain of the 9th or Queen's Dragoons 25th December, 1755, and became Major of the 15th Light Dragoons in March, 1759, in which corps he served in Germany. On 29th March, 1762, he became Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment and so continued until 1770, when he was unattached. In 1776 he was appointed Brigadier-General in America and commanded the 7th Brigade in the engagement on Staten Island, he afterwards took a share in the operations near Brooklyn and commanded the detachment which took General Woodhull prisoner on 28th August, 1776. He was next appointed Quarter-Master-General and acquitted himself with credit in that department. In December, 1777, he became Colonel of the 80th Foot, and in the winter of 1778, '9, commanded the eastern district of Long Island. In the last mentioned year he was promoted to be Major-General; in 1782, became Colonel of the 26th or Cameronian Foot, and Lieutenant-General in September, 1787. On the breaking out of the war between France and England, he went to Flanders in 1793, as second in command to the Duke of York. After serving during that and the following campaign he returned to England in 1795, and died in the month of March of that year. Army Lists; Philipart's Royal Military Calendar. — Ed.

This intelligence I communicated to S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Howe, who expressed his satisfaction of their conduct, and advised that they should be in readiness to joyn the first army that should come to the Hudsons River communication; which I forwarded by the person who brought their letter, with such farther directions as occurred, respecting the stroke intended.

Our army, having evacuated New Jersey, will proceed immediately on some important expedition. I wish it was for some quarter favorable to a junction with the Indians, whose patience will I fear be exhausted if this event does not soon happen, as they are not calculated for remaining long in one place. I have just heard from Capt. Claus that thro' your Lordships favor he is appointed to a command of Indians in Canada, a circumstance that will I am persuaded give them great pleasure there; but I find by letters from thence that L<sup>t</sup> Col S<sup>r</sup> Leger<sup>1</sup> is gone on the proposed expedition by way of Ontario, and from the orders I have given I make no doubt that the Six Nations will joyn him or the main army under General Burgoyne (now said to be before Tienderoga.) If there is no favorable movement from hence before he advances, & till some junction is formed, they cannot be expected to do much, for the Indian mode of carrying on war by themselves, is in small scattered partys, who return home and feast after every little blow, whereby much time is lost, and little material performed beside alarming the peasantry; which in the present war is not alone sufficient; but when they have once joyned the army and can be armed clothed and properly attended to, I can then march them with the army or form large detachments as the service may require, and both cover the troops and annoy the rebels to good purpose. This was successfully practised in the last war by Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, and I expect to shew it in the present; the opportunity only is wanting, I hope it is not distant, for I have nothing to fear but delay, the Indians having treated the applications of the rebels with the greatest contempt, and in all respects equalled my most sanguine expectations.

I have had an interview with the Montok Indians on Long Island who tho' few in number and surrounded by disaffected people, have offered their services whenever the General shall please to make use of them, and I hold myself in readiness to proceed on the first movement that can favor a junction to the Northward when the General tells me I shall receive his further orders. I have the honor to be, with the greatest respect <sup>1</sup> Colonel BARRY ST. LEON entered the army on 27th April, 1756, as Ensign of the 28th regiment of foot, which he accompanied to America in the following year, and in 1758 served at the siege of Louisbourg as Captain of the 48th, and afterwards under Wolf at Quebec. In July, 1760, he was appointed Brigade-Major preparatory to marching to Montreal (Knox, 11, 345), and on the 16th September, 1762, became Major of the 95th, but was unattached in 1763, when his regiment was disbanded. In May, 1772, he was promoted to a Lieutenant-Colonelcy in the army, and in May, 1775, was appointed to the 34th foot, and was sent soon after to Canada. His unsuccessful expedition against Fort Schuyler in 1777, when he held the local rank of Brigadier, is a matter of history. In November, 1780, he rose to be Colonel in the army, and died in 1789 without having acquired any distinction in his profession. Army Lists. — Ed.

My Lord

My Lord.

I am honored with the receipt of the original and duplicate of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 10. dated the 2nd April last.

His Majesty's Gracious approbation of my offer to take the command of the Provincial Forces, conveyed in such obliging terms by your Lord<sup>sh</sup> is very flattering to me. In consequence of this offer, the General has put me in orders to command the Provincials raised in this Colony, and to receive the Rank of Major General of Provincials. By this designation I find myself not only placed after all the Major Generals in America, though of later standing in the army, but must also be under all such as may hereafter be appointed here, or come out under the King's Brevet.

As your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s will perceive the mortifications that cannot but attend me under such an arrangement, you will allow me to hope, that the propriety of some attention to my seniority in the Army upon actual service with it, will induce Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> to submit the matter to His Majesty's Royal consideration.

Until the King's army penetrates into the interior part of the Country, or until a junction of the two armies be effected (a most important event in the present war) the Provincial Levies cannot be expected to make any material augmentations; but I have no doubt of receiving immediately upon the accomplishment of those measures, considerable additions to their present force from the northern Counties of this Place; many of whose Loyal Inhabitants have suffered much from the inroads of the Rebels, for their uniform attachment to His Majesty's Govern<sup>mt</sup>. Sir.

I was lately favored with your letter by order of Lord Geo. Germain accompanying some copys of the late Act of Parliament, and I have by this opportunity wrote to His Lordship on Indian Affairs, having the pleasure to find that agreeable to my orders the Indians assembled early in May, have made some successfull attacks on the Rebels, and are now (at the desire of Sr W<sup>m</sup> Howe) lying in readiness to joyn either this or the Northern Army, whichever shall first come on the Hudson's River communication. I have had for some time great hopes that a movement from hence that way would have been among the first objects, because I am persuaded of the importance of a junction with the Indians, till when the latter can act but feebly thro' the want of supplies and the mode of their warfare. However I hope the period is near at hand, and that their unshaken fidelity will meet with no farther disappointment. Capt. Claus writes me that he has got an appointment in Canada, which I know will be very pleasing to the Indians there, and will promote the Service.

I take this opportunity Sir of returning you my best acknowledgements for your kind attention & civility whilst I was in London to which my hearing from you occasionally wou'd be an additional and a sensible obligation, for I greatly respect your character, and I am with much esteem and respect Sir

Several of the King's faithful subjects in the Prov<sup>ce</sup> of South Carolina, having been permitted by the Rebel Committees to withdraw from thence and to embarque, with some part of their property, on board vessels belonging to the Rebels bound for foreign Ports, some of those Vessels have been taken and brought into England: Of these the ship called the Three Sisters has lately been libeled in the Court of Admiralty here, and upon the hearing the effects on board belonging to the King's Loyal subjects were claimed by themselves, or their agents, and the Court having allowed their claim, I have thought it proper to send you the inclosed authentic copy of the sentence, that it may serve as a guide to the Court of V. My Lord.

I have been honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatch of the 19th May last, wherein I had the Great satisfaction to receive His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s most gracious approbation of my public conduct.

As your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has not thought it proper, for reasons too flattering to me, to lay before His Maj<sup>ty</sup> my wishes relative to myself, communicated to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> in my private letter, I dare not presume to state them in this public dispatch, wishing for a more suitable season to renew them.

The incidents that have occurred to me since my return to this Country, my present situation, and the state of my family affairs, all powerfully invite me to return home. The fee simple of this vast Continent, would be no temptation for my residence in a country in which I have struggled through so many scenes of trouble and disappointment, ag<sup>t</sup> all which, a principle of pure affection for His Maj<sup>ty</sup> and his Govern<sup>t</sup> has, thank God, hitherto sustained me.

By Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe's permission and Sir Henry Clinton's<sup>1</sup> approbation, I have raised a Troop of light Horse from the Westchester Militia to consist of fifty private Men to serve during the

<sup>1</sup> Sir HENRY CLINTON, K. B., was the eldest son of Admiral George Clinton, formerly Governor of the Province of New-York (VI., 475), and grandson of the 6th Earl of Lincoln. He entered the army early in life, having been appointed, during his father's administration, Captain-Lieutenant of the New-York companies. He became Lieutenant in the Coldstream guards 1st November, 1751; and was promoted to Captain of a company in the 1st Foot guards 6th May, 1758. Mackennon's Coldstream Guards, II., 487. In 1762 he became Colonel in the army, and of the 12th regiment of Foot on the 28th November, 1766. After gaining great credit by his services during the seven years' war in Germany, he rose to the rank of Major-General 25th May, 1772, and in May, 1775, arrived at Boston. In June he distinguished himself at Bunker Hill, and was rewarded, on the 1st September following, by being created Knight of the Bath and advanced to the rank of Lieutenant-General in America. On 1st January, 1776, he was appointed General in America and was defeated that year at Sullivan's Island; commanded the first line of the British army at Staten Island 1st August; on the 27th of the same month, commanded a division in the battle on Long Island; in October, defeated a portion of the American army on the Bronx, in Westchester county; and in December, and against his will, was sent to take possession of Rhode Island. In 1777, he was engaged in operations on the Hudson river for the relief of Burgoyne; was appointed Lieutenant-General in the army in August, and in October was present at the storming of forts Washington and Clinton. In 1778, Sir Henry Clinton was commissioned Commander-in-Chief, and conducted the retreat from Philadelphia to New-York; was appointed Colonel of the 84th Royal Highlanders in December, of the same year. In April, 1779, became Colonel of the 7th Light Dragoons, and in December embarked for Charleston, which he reduced. He was succeeded in the chief command by General Carleton in 1782, when he returned to England, where he published a Narrative of his Conduct in America, 1782; Observations on the Earl Cornwallis's Answer, 1783; Letter to the Commissioner of Public Accounts, 1784; and Observations on Mr. Stedman's History of the American War, 1794. Campaign. They are Cantooned between our lines and the Rebels at the White Plains, and have taken up several Deserters, for which I give them a guinea for each Man, which checks the evil spirit of Desertion.

This Troop is truly "Elite" of the Country, and their Capt<sup>o</sup> M<sup>r</sup> James De Lancey<sup>1</sup> who is also Colonel of the Militia of Westchester County; I have much confidence in them, for their spirited behaviour.

The appointment of a Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> to this Province from the present appearances of Public affairs, I believe may be postponed; I really do not know any person on this side the Atlantic, I could recommend for that office, while no Emolument or Salary is affixed to the Character. I am with all possible respect Montreal 16. Octob<sup>r</sup> 1777.

Sir,

I take the liberty to give you such an acc<sup>t</sup> of the expedition I was appointed to this campaign, as my capacity will permit me, and which tho' tedious, I used all the conciseness in my power.

On my arrival at Quebec 1st June, Sir Guy Carleton being at Montreal, my letter from my Lord George Germain was forwarded to him by L<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Cramahe that day, and myself arrived there a few days after. I waited on Sir Guy who acknowledged the receipt of the letter, but said nothing farther upon it, than addressing himself to Capt. Tice, who was in England with Joseph and then at the Levy, that I had now the command of him and those Ind<sup>a</sup> Officers and Indians that were destin'd for Brigadier S<sup>t</sup> Ledgers expedition. A day or two after I waited on him again for his orders and instructions and asked what rank I was to have on the Expedit<sup>o</sup> He replied only on the later; that it could not be settled here. I then spoke about the Equipm<sup>ts</sup> necessary for Indians going on service. He said I shou'd find every thing ready on my meeting with L<sup>t</sup> Col. Jn<sup>o</sup> Butler Dep<sup>t</sup> to Col. Johnson. Finding there was a sufficiency in the Indian Store at Montreal after serving General Burgoynes Indians, I applied for the most requisite articles for an Indian Expedit<sup>o</sup> for fear such might have been expended by Col. Butler, and if not, cou'd be returned again, such as a few arms, pipehatchets, tomyhawks, knives, kettles, vermilion, Ind<sup>a</sup> shoes, flints &c I was told I shou'd find all these things with Col. Butler.

<sup>1</sup> JAMES DE LANCEY, son of Peter de Lancey and Elizabeth Colden, was, for many years, sheriff of Westchester county, New-York. At the close of the war he retired to Nova Scotia, where he became member of the Council in 1794, and died in 1800. Holgate's American Genealogy, 120.—Ed.

Some time before our march I informed myself of Sir Guy Carleton, of the state Fort Stanwix was in; he told me that by the latest accounts from Col. Butler, there was 60 men in a picketed place;—determined to be sure I dispatched one John Hare an active Indian Officer with the Mohawk chief John Odiserundy, to collect a small party of Ind<sup>m</sup> at Swegachy and reconnoitre Fort Stanwix, as well as possible and bring off some prisoners if they could.

On the 23<sup>d</sup> June I set out from La Chine near Montreal. The Brigadier who was getting the artillery boats ready to take in 2 six's, 2 three's and 4 Cohorns (being our artillery for the exped<sup>n</sup>) was to follow the day after; and proceeded for an Island destin'd for our rendezvous in the entrance of Lake Ontario, called Buck Island, in company with Sir John Johnson and his Reg<sup>t</sup>; in my way thither I collected a body of 150 Misisagey and 6 Nation Indians. All the Indians of the inhabited part of Canada whom I had under my care for 15 years, and was best acquainted with were destin'd for General Burgoyne's army. The Misisagey and 6 Nations, the Brig<sup>r</sup> intended should accompany him in an alert to Fort Stanwix, by a short cut thro' the woods, from a place called Salmon Creek on Lake Ontario, about 20 miles from Oswego; in order to surprise the garrison and take it with small arms.

Between 60 and 70 leagues from Montreal my reconnoitring party returned, and met me, with 5 prisoners (one Lieu<sup>t</sup>) and 4 scalps, having defeated a working party of 16 rebels as they were cutting sodd, towards repairing and finishing the Old Fort, which is a regular square and garrison'd by upwards of 600 men, the repairs far advanced and the rebels expecting us and were acquainted with our strength and rout. I immediately forwarded the prisoners to the Brig<sup>r</sup> who was about 15 leagues in our rear. On his arrival within a few leagues of Buck Island he sent for me, and talking over the intelligence the rebel prisoners gave, he owned that if they intended to defend themselves in that Fort, our artillery was not sufficient to take it, however he said, he has determined to get the truth of these fellows. I told him that having examined them seperately they agreed in their story. And here the Brig<sup>r</sup> had still an opportunity and time of sending for a better train of artillery and wait for the junction of the Chasseurs, which must have secured us success, as every one will allow. However he was still full of his Alert, making little of the prisoners intelligence.

On his arrival at Buck Island the 8th July, he put me in orders as Superintendent of the Exped<sup>n</sup> and empower'd me to act for the best of my judgment for his Majesty's service, in the management of the Ind<sup>n</sup> on the Exped<sup>n</sup> as well as what regarded their Equipm<sup>t</sup> presents &c he being an entire stranger thereto. There was then a vessel at the Island which had some Indian Goods on board, which Col. Butler had procur'd for the Exped<sup>n</sup> but upon examination I found that almost every one of the above articles I demanded at Montreal, were deficient, and a mere impossibility to procure them at Buck Island, had I not luckily provided some of those articles before I left Montreal, at my own risque, and with difficulty Brig<sup>r</sup> S<sup>t</sup> Ledger found out 30 stand of arms in the Artillery Store at Swegachy, and I added all my eloquence to satisfy the Indians about the rest.

The Brig<sup>r</sup> sat out from the Island upon his Alert, the 19th July, I having been ordered to proceeded to Oswego with Sir John Johnson's reg<sup>t</sup> and a Company of Chasseurs lately arriv'd, there to convene & prepare the Indians to join the Brig<sup>r</sup> at Fort Stanwix. On my arrival at Oswego 23<sup>d</sup> July I found Joseph Brant there; who acquainted me that his party, consisting of about 300 Indians, would be in that day, and having been more than 2 months upon service, were destitute of necessaries, ammunition, and some arms. Joseph at the same time complaining of having been very scantily supplied by Col. Butler, with ammunition when at Niagara in the spring, altho' he acquainted Col. Butler of his being threaten'd with a visit from the rebel General Herkemer<sup>1</sup> of Tryon County, and actually was afterwards visited by him with 300 men with him, and 500 at some distance; when Joseph had not 200 Indians together, but resolutely declaring to the Rebel General that he was determined to act against them for the King, he obliged them to retreat with more menaces, not having 20 lb. of powder among his party.

The 24th of July I received an express from Brig<sup>r</sup> S<sup>t</sup> Ledger, at Salmon Creek, about 20 miles from Oswego, to repair thither with what arms and vermilion I had, and that he wished I wou'd come prepared for a march thro' the woods. As to arms and vermilion I had none, but prepared myself to go upon the March, and was ready to set off, when Joseph came into my tent and told me that as no person was on the spot to take care of the number of Indians with him, he apprehended in case I shou'd leave them they wou'd become disgusted, and disperse, which might prevent the rest of the 6 Nations to assemble, and be hurtfull to the Exped<sup>n</sup> and beged I wou'd first represent those circumstances to the Brig<sup>r</sup> by letter. Brig<sup>r</sup> S<sup>t</sup> Ledger mention'd indeed, my going was chiefly intended to quiet the Indians with him, who were very drunk and riotous, and Capt. Tice, who was the messenger, informed me that the Brig<sup>r</sup> order'd the Indians a quart of rum apiece, which made them all beastly drunk, and in which case it is not in the power of man to quiet them. Accordingly I mention'd to the Brig<sup>r</sup> by letter the consequences that might affect His Majesty's Indian interest in case I was to leave so large a number of Indians that were come already and still expected. Upon which representation and finding the Indians disapproved of the plan & were unwilling to proceed, the Brig<sup>r</sup> came away from Salmon Creek and arriv'd the next day at Oswego with the Comp<sup>s</sup> of the 8th and 34th Reg<sup>ts</sup> and about 250 Indians.

Having equiped Joseph's party with what necessarys and ammunition I had, I appointed the rest of the 6 Nations to assemble at the 3 Rivers, a convenient place of rendezvous, and in the way to Fort Stanwix, and desired Col. Butler to follow me with the Indians he brought with him from Niagara, and equip them all at the 3 Rivers.

The 26th of July left Oswego, and 2<sup>d</sup> of August arrived with the Brig<sup>r</sup> and the greatest part of the troops before Fort Stanwix, which was invested the same evening. The enemy having stoped up a narrow river called Wood Creek by cutting of trees across it for about 20 miles, along which our Artillery provisions and baggage was to pass, which passage to cut open required a number of men, as well as cutting a road thro' the woods for 25 miles, to bring up the Artillery stores &c that were immediately wanted, which weaken'd our small army greatly. The 3<sup>d</sup> 4th and 5th the Indians surrounded the Fort and fired from behind logs and rising grounds, at the garrison, wherever that had an object, which prevented them from working at the Fortifications in the day. The 5th in the afternoon, acc<sup>u</sup> were brought by Indians sent by Joseph's sister from Connoharee, that a body of rebels were on their march and wou'd be within 10 or 12 miles of our camp that night. A detachment of about 400 Indians was ordred to reconnoitre the enemy. Sir John Johnson asked leave to join his company of Light Infantry and head the whole, which was granted: Col. Butler and other Indian Officers were ordered with the Indians. The rebels having an imperfect acc<sup>t</sup> of the number of-Indians that joined us, (being upwards of 800) not thinking them by  $\frac{1}{4}$  as many, and being sure as to our strength and artillery (which we learned by prison<sup>m</sup>) that they knew it from their emissarys before we left Canada. They therefore on the 6th marched on, to the number of upwards of 800, with security and carelessness. When withiñ 6 miles of the Fort they were waylaid by our party, surprised, briskly attacked and after a little resistance, repulsed and defeated; leaving upwards of 500 killed on the spot, among which were their principal officers and ringleaders, their General was shot thro' the knee, and a few days after died of an amputation. We lost Capt<sup>m</sup> Hare and Wilson of the Indians, Capt<sup>m</sup> Lieu<sup>t</sup> M<sup>c</sup>Donald of Sir John's Reg<sup>t</sup> 2 or 3 privates and 32 Indians, among which were several Seneka chiefs killed. Capt<sup>m</sup> Watts,<sup>1</sup> Lieu<sup>t</sup> Singleton of Sir John's reg<sup>t</sup> and 33 Indians wounded. During the action when the garrison found the Indians Camp (who went out against their reinforcement) empty, they boldly sally'd out with 300 men and 2 field pieces and took away the Indians packs, with their cloaths, wampum and silver work, "they having gone in their shirts, or naked, to action;" and when they found a party advancing from our Camp, they returned with their spoil, taking with them Lieu<sup>t</sup> Singleton and a private of Sir John's Reg<sup>t</sup> who lay wounded in the Indian Camp. The disappointment was rather greater to the Indians than their loss, for they had nothing to cover themselves at night, or against the weather, & nothing in our Camp to supply them till I got to Oswego. After this defeat and having got part of our artillery up, some Cohorn shells were thrown into the Fort, and a few shot fired, a flag then was sent with an acco<sup>t</sup> of the disaster of their intended relief, and the garrison was summoned to surrender prisoners of war, to be marched down the country, leaving baggage &c behind, to satisfy the Indians for their losses. The rebels knowing their strength in garrison as well as fortification and the insufficiency of our field pieces to hurt them, and apprehensive of being massacred by the Indians for the losses they sustained in the action; they rejected the summons and said they were determined to hold out to the extremity. The siege then was carried on with as much vigor as possible, for 19 days, but to no purpose. Sir John Johnson proposed to follow the blow given to the reinforcement (who were chiefly Mohawk River people) to march down the country with about 200 men, and I intended joyning him with a sufficient body of Ind<sup>s</sup>; but the Brig<sup>er</sup> said he could not spare the men, and disapproved of it. The inhabitants in general were ready (as we afterwards learned) to submit and come in. A flag then was sent to invite the inhabitants to submit and be forgiven, and assurance given to prevent the Indians from being outrageous; but the commanding Officer of the German Flatts hearing of it, seized the Flag consisting of Ensign Butler of the 8th reg<sup>t</sup> 10 soldiers and 3 Indians, and took them up as spies. A few days after, Gen<sup>l</sup> Arnold coming with some cannon and a reinforcement, made the Inhabitants return to their Obedience. The Indians finding that our besieging the Fort was of no effect, our troops <sup>1</sup> Major STEPHEN WATTS, fourth son of the Hon. John Watts (supra, p. 590), and Ann de Laney, was born in New-York December 24th, 1754. but few, a reinforcement as was reported of 1500 or 2000 men with field pieces by the way, began to be dispirited, and fell off by degrees. The Chiefs advised the Brig<sup>r</sup> to retreat to Oswego and get better artillery from Niagara, and more men, and so return and renew the siege; to which the Brig<sup>r</sup> agreed, and accordingly retreated on the 22<sup>d</sup> of August. On our arrival at Oswego the 26th and examining into the state of the troops necessaries, the men were without shoes and other things which only could be got at Montreal, the Brig<sup>r</sup> at the same time having rec<sup>d</sup> a letter from General Burgoyne to join him, either by a march thro' the woods back of Tryon County (which was impracticable) or the way he came. He adopted the later, on account of procuring necessaries for the men. The Indians were as much as possible reconciled to this resolution with a promise that they shou<sup>d</sup> be conven'd as soon as Col. Butler cou<sup>d</sup> return from Montreal with some necessaries for them.

There being Indian Traders at Oswego, I saw myself under a necessity to cloath those Indians that lost their packs by the rebels at Fort Stanwix, which made them return home contented.

Thus has an expedition miscarried, merely for want of timely and good intelligence. For it is impossible to believe that had the Brig<sup>r</sup> S<sup>t</sup> Ledger known the real state of the Fort and Garrison of Fort Stanwix, he could possibly have proceeded from Montreal without a sufficient train of artillery and his full complement of troops. And yet by what I find, very large sums have been expended on Acc<sup>t</sup> of Governm<sup>t</sup> at Niagara, upon the Indians these 2 years past, and they at the same time kept inactive: whereas had these presents been properly applied, the Six Nations might not only prevent Fort Stanwix from being reestablished, but even let not a rebel come near it, or keep it up; it being almost in the heart of their country, and they with reluctance saw the Crown erect a Fort there last war. All the good done by the exped<sup>n</sup> was, that the Ringleaders and principal men of the rebels of Tryon County were put out of the way; but had we succeeded it must be of vast good effect to the Northern operations, and it's miscarrying I apprehend, to my deep concern, to be the reverse.

Col. Butler on his arrival at Quebec with Sir Guy Carleton and producing his Acc<sup>t</sup> previous to Fort Stanwix Expedit<sup>n</sup> had immediate payment ordered him, without even examining the currency, which at Niagara is that of York, and it was paid him in Halifax better than  $\frac{1}{3}$  more; himself discovering the mistake, he was desired to give the Crown credit for it: and upon proposing to raise a Reg<sup>t</sup> of Rangers at Niagara or its neighbourhood, which after miscarrying at Fort Stanwix is highly improbable, it was granted him. All the Rangers he can muster up at present are not 50. who were chiefly engaged under Col. Johnson, and never intended to be established into a separate corps. The origin of Rangers since the late Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's time, was to intermix them with the Indians when on service, and be commanded by the Indian Officers. Formerly none but what were acquainted with the Indians and their language were admitted, and rec<sup>d</sup> half a Crown pay; now that distinction tho' essentially necessary is no more made, which makes his commission become an additional useless expence, tho' very beneficial to him.

I having staid a fortnight at Oswego after Col. Butler, and left it with the Brig<sup>r</sup> on my return to Canada and meeting with Sir Guy Carleton at S<sup>t</sup> Johns on my way to Tyconderoga, at the same time pushed by the merch<sup>ts</sup> that furnished me with Indian goods at Montreal and Oswego; asked him for a warrant to see them paid. He reply'd he cou<sup>d</sup> not transact any money matters there, but refer'd me to his examining into what had been advanced Col. Butler and others, on Col. Johnsons acc<sup>t</sup>; which I told him I thought I had no concern with;

my appointment being directed to be paid from a different channel, I should imagine it the same with the expences; so trifling in comparison to the others. But I remonstrated to no purpose, and therefore saw myself obliged to return to Montreal to satisfy my creditors; they wanting to send remittances by the London vessells which were ready to sail tomorrow, and under necessity to draw on the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury for £1500 ster<sup>r</sup> in two drafts, which I take the liberty of advising you of, begging your representing to their Lordships the urgent reasons for so doing.

I am with great respect

P. S. Before I left Oswego, I ordered three of Col. Johnson's Indian Officers to reside in the Six Nation country. They are people well liked, intimate and held in esteem by them. Their residence is to be in the Seneka and Cayouga towns. I gave them ample directions & instructions in writing, how to act, and endeavour to prevent any intercourse with them and the rebels, and as much as possible promote His Majesty's interest among them, and making them sensible of the advantage and satisfaction they have, in being plentifully supplied in merchandize by the traders, by means of the Kings ships cruizing in the Mouth of the River St Lawrence to prevent the rebel ships from interrupting that trade.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXIII.];

Montreal 6 November 1777

Sir

Before the sailing of the London vessells under the convoy of the Warwick man of War, I made a second application to Sir Guy Carleton, for the payment of the Indian expences incurred during Fort Stanwix expedit<sup>a</sup> under my Superintendency and by authority of the Officer that commanded it, urging at the same time the importunity of the people that advanced me the Indian goods &c that in case I could pay them here I might stop the bills and save their Lordships the trouble of paying them at home. I received Sir Guy Carleton's answer by letter, that his having issued several warrants on acco<sup>t</sup> of the Department of the Five Nations to Col. Butler and others, particularly to the former for a draft of upwards of £4000 but the other day, he thought it now highly necessary to put the direction of those matters under one person which was the Commanding Officer of Niagara, to whom he must refer me.

Seeing this being done merely to expose me and give me trouble, there being no such thing this time of the year as getting the Acco<sup>t</sup> or a letter to Niagara without great expense and perhaps no answer to be expected before May or June next and my creditors unwilling to wait so long, I saw myself under a necessity to let the Bills go to England; not doubting their

Lordships will accept them as public expences incurred by authority of His Majesty's Officer commanding an expedition; without which I should never have acted, and who if any was the properest person to inspect them; Col. Bolton<sup>1</sup> the Command<sup>r</sup>. Officer at Niagara being perhaps 200 miles from the spot where they were expended and as yet an entire stranger to the business, as any Command<sup>r</sup> Officer unacquainted with Indian Affairs must be, such expences being of so different a nature from the regulated services of the Crowns. I conversed with Brig<sup>d</sup> Maclean and acquainted him what step I was obliged to take in the affair. He was observing that myself as Superintendent of that Expedition ought to have inspected Col. Butler's acco<sup>ts</sup> as having been on the spot where they were expended, and best acquainted with what was delivered to the Indians. My 15 years Indian expences as Superintend<sup>t</sup> and only Indian Officer in this Province, during which time I had a 2 years Indian war to manage & engage Indians against Indians who were in the French time allies, did not amount to one fourth the sum to what I hear M<sup>r</sup> Butler's expences do within these 2 years, and that expended merely to keep the Indians inactive, contrary to their inclination; and yet they were pass<sup>d</sup> by the Commanding Officers of Niagara and paid by Sir Guy Carleton as expences to be charged to Col Johnsons Department, and he an entire stranger to it. But I consider my expences distinct from the other Departments, and such as incurred upon an extraordinary occasion, and therefore to come under the head of Army Contingencies, there having been Nations of three different Ind<sup>n</sup> Departments employed in that expedition besides I should not wish them to be blended with such enormous sums nominally spent upon the 6 Nations. It is the opinion of severall that had I not appeared at the Expedition and Joseph acted so indefatigably and cleverly with his party as to cause an emulation, the Six Nations would not have been encouraged to act (when the rebels advanced upon us) by Col. Butler, they having declared publicly that they were not called to war, but to a Congress to be held at Oswego, and receive presents; the Detroit Indians alledged that for a reason for coming unprepared for war and with so few men.

Joseph, since his arrival from England has showed himself the most faithful and zealous subject His Majesty can have in America, in Ind<sup>n</sup> matters, and deserves to be noticed as such. He is now busy among the Six Nations and has been with them these several weeks past; he is perfectly acquainted with M<sup>r</sup> Butlers sentiments and conduct and disapproved of them; for which the latter dislikes him. I have fully wrote him and given him my opinion and sentiments how to act with the 6 Nations, and I am persuaded he will carry his point and bring them to action before Col. Butler gets among them, they having partly engaged to me before I left Oswego so to do, and be revenged upon the rebels for the loss of their chiefs at Fort Stanwix and for some of their peoples being put in irons and confined at Albany, and I expect daily to hear their putting it in execution, they having acquainted all the Western Nations with their intention, and advised them to follow their example, before I came away from Oswego; and I accompanied their messages with some from me, confirmed by large strings of Wampum. And by what I could learn from the messenger, of the Nations living on the Ohio and Misisipy, they are all in the King's interest, and when they find the Northern Indians, of their sentiments, they will act with more vigor and spirit. The Six Nations metaphorically say, that our Hatchet is dull, on account of being restrained these 2 years from acting ag<sup>t</sup> the rebels, and our expedition to Fort Stanwix not sufficiently equipt, that they intend taking up the Hatchet their forefathers gave them, w<sup>ch</sup> was burried in a deep pit, but very sharp, and would force its way wherever pointed, without controul; at the same time they declare that they only mean to restore peace to the country, and make the King's children to repent and return to their duty.

<sup>1</sup> Lieutenant-Colonel MASON BOLTON became Lieutenant in the 9th Foot on 2d October, 1755; was promoted to a company in that regiment 23d March, 1764, in which year the 9th was sent to Florida. The regiment served in America until 1769, and he was appointed its Major 31st May, 1773. On the 11th November, 1776, he became Lieutenant-Colonel of the 8th or King's foot, then in America, and continued in that command until November, 1780, when his name disappears from the Army Lists. — ED.

Sir Guy Carleton has ordered one fourth of the presents sent from England for the Canada Indians, to be delivered to Col. Butler for the use of the Six Nations; which I think well judged, since Col Johnson could not deliver his as yet, and they being told of and expected it impatiently: but Col. Butler has thought proper to add some more goods on his own account and 50 puncheons of rum, a quantity that must rather obstruct than forward the Ind<sup>a</sup> service.

It is evident that Sir Guy Carleton dislikes my appointment being from home, which I apprehended before I left England; for he has not given me any positive order or direction as yet in Ind<sup>a</sup> affairs. However I shall (without giving offence) endeavour to do my utmost in promoting His Majesty's Indian interest wherever I am; flattering myself to be countenanced in it by Governm<sup>t</sup>; for the Indians in this Province as every one will allow are much discontented on acco<sup>t</sup> of indifferent usage received during their Campaign with General Burgoyne, and they having no person here to converse with or confide in, I cannot prevent them to come and advise with me, tho' I discourage them as much as with prudence I well can do.

On my arrival here with Brig<sup>r</sup> St Ledger's rear, I received Brig<sup>r</sup> MacLeans orders (as by Copy annexed) to collect as many Indians as I could, and send them to St Johns' (Tiyondarogo being then invested by the rebels.) I sent as many as were at home, and proceeded myself with the last party in order to go on to Tiyondarogo, the Ind<sup>t</sup> being unwilling to go without me. On my arrival at St Johns, I waited on Sir Guy for his orders. He said he had none to give me, and I might do as I pleased, and then put me off with my acco<sup>t</sup> of Indian expences during the Campaign; and altho' I intended at any rate to proceed to Tiyondarogo, having promised Sir John Johnson to follow him, who was to join General Burgoyne, I found myself under a necessity to return to Montreal in order to arrange matters with the people I had Indian goods from. Such like friques and jealousies I am afraid have been rather hurtfull to our Northern operations last Campaign.

The Indian action near Fort Stanwix happening near a settlement of Oneida Indians in the rebels interest, who were at the same time in arms against our party; the Six Nation Indians, after the action, burnt their houses, destroyed their fields, crops, &c killed and carried away their Cattle. This the rebel Oneidas, after our retreat, revenged upon Joseph's Sister and her family (living in the Upper Mohawk Town) on Joseph's account; robbing them of cash, cloaths, cattle &c and driving them from their home; then proceeded to the Lower Mohawk Town and dealt in the same manner with the poor women & children whose husbands were in the King's service.

Joseph's sister and family fled to Onondaga the Council place of the 6 Nations, laying her grievances before that body. The Six Nations with whom she always had a great sway during the late Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's life time, and even now, and I understand the Six Nations have decreed to render her satisfaction by committing hostilities upon that tribe of Oneida rebels that committed the outrage. The Lower Mohawk families were obliged to flee to this place to the number of 100 souls, where they threw themselves under my care, being entire strangers in the country. I acquainted Sir Guy Carleton with their distressed situation, asking his orders and directions about them. He wrote me in answer "that he should give "orders to one of Maj<sup>r</sup> Campbells Deputies to take care of them as much as he could:" which really surprized me, having been obliged to furnish them for 8 days with lodging cloaths and provisions (before I could receive an answer from Quebec,) unless I would let them for that time, or longer, lay in the streets hungry & naked, after their long and faithfull services and attachment to Government, no officer of the Canada Department being in town. The person who is to have the care of them is an entire stranger to their language, manners, and every thing else; they at the same time knowing my having an appointment from home for their District, must think very odd of it, and indeed it is impossible for me to disengage myself entirely from them while here; shall therefore endeavour to act so as not to displease them or government. This Deputy of Maj<sup>r</sup> Campbell's, as I am told, is one of the gentlemen who by their harsh and indiscreet treatment of the Indians, were the occasion of the greatest part of them to quit General Burgoyne's army, which emboldened the rebels to assemble in such numbers ab<sup>t</sup> it, when before they were in awe of the Indians.

I find that what a Gentleman acquainted about head quarters told me the other day, to turn out as he said, "that had my appointment been made thro' any one else but my Lord George Germaine, things would go smooth between me and Sir Guy"

I have the honor to be, with great respect

Sir,

To William Knox Esq<sup>r</sup>

[ Plantations General ( S. P. O. ) COLXIV. ]

( N<sup>o</sup> 7. )

New York. 11 November 1777.

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> has been already informed, that altho' I had great hopes of a movement up Hudson's River as well from your letter, as from my own idea of its importance and propriety and that the Indians had assembled in that expectation early in the season, as they acquainted me by a Messenger, yet lest it might happen otherwise. I took the liberty to propose to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe, that if such movement would not probably take place, I should then incline to go by sea to Canada and from thence proceed as the service required. But probably the time necessary for making the Detour and joining Sir William Howe's army in the manner that then occurred to him, occasioned my being ordered to remain till some movement offered from hence, and accordingly, I dispatched Messengers into the Indian Country, directing the Indians to join the first British army on the communications, which they faithfully performed. And I have the pleasure to hear from all those persons who have got down the Country, by some of whom I receive Messages, that the Indians behaved very gallantly, and were of great use; and that they remained as long as usual or as could reasonably be expected.

The greater part of those from the Six Nations with my Officers in that Country, joined General S' Leger's Troops and Sir John Johnson's provincials, and were principally concerned in the action near Fort Stanwix, when the Rebels lost their General and several of their principal Officers and a large number of their Men; and the Indians had about thirty of their principal Warriors killed, and undoubtedly had the number of Men under Brigadeer Gen' S' Leger been adequate to the service and the difficulties they met with, the Indians would have rendered more material service.

On the other communication Gen' Burgoyne has testified for them; to whom the Mohawk Tribes were obliged to retire after the unlucky affair of Bennington, which raised the drooping spirits of the Rebels, who have since, burned the Mohawk villages of which I shall avail myself, as it will strengthen the resentment of the several Nations. The Rebels have also completed the destruction of my property and parcelled out my Estate. The Six Nations complain much of Oneidas; the manner in which they have been seduced by New England Missionaries, I long since represented. I know they are much more inclined to a neutrality than to war, but they are too inconsiderable to deserve much notice, whilst the Loyalty of the rest under so many disagreeable circumstances, merits every thing that I can say for them.— It was my good fortune early in 1775 to prevent them from being seduced by the most active agents of Rebellion; otherwise, from their situation, it would have been impracticable to draw them back to the interests of Government. And I trust with confidence that they shall be preserved by the means they were procured. On which subject permit me my Lord, most humbly to propose, as I have lately done to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe; that in case there is not a movement from hence to the Northward early next season, I would wish with permission to go round to Montreal by the first opportunity, and from thence with proper assistance to such place as shall then appear most eligible for a rendezvous with the Ind<sup>ns</sup> and there keep them in readiness to join any of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Troops or to penetrate into the Country in such manner as I may be directed.

Should it be impracticable to commence operations early in that quarter; it will be still more expedient to assemble the Indians at some distance from the Rebel Agents influence and their own villages the better to secure their affections.— This may be done by drawing them to some part of the River S' Lawrance, Ontario or Crown Point, where I can be answerable for them and can send partys on the communications, attack convoys, and greatly harrass the Rebels, till other matters take place.

Should a movement be made from this quarter early in the season, I would then appoint a Rendezvous for the Indians calculated for their joining our Troops as they advanced, and proceed as I, should be ordered. At all events I shall immediately send Messages to prepare the Indians for any orders I may receive, which, with the attention of my Officers, dispersed among them, will keep them in readiness for next season.

The time in General when we may expect their services, is from May to the beginning of October, the rest of the year being necessarily spent in hunting for their families; very few of whom can be supplied by us from their situation, and, there are many other circumstances in their case, which when well known will show the difficulty an Officer is often under in satisfying a people so little understood, and so much exposed to misrepresentation; even acts of cruelty may be prevented by judiciously directing the Indians against the King's Enemies who shall be found in arms.

I beg to lay this Dispatch before his Maj<sup>ty</sup> and to entreat an indulgence for what I have honestly suggested, through a sincere zeal for his service, in which, I hope for your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s favour and support, which I shall ever be ambitious to deserve.

I beg to receive your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s commands on any of these matters, and I have the honor to be
My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient and
most humble servant.

Narrative of Sergeant William Grant.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) COLXIII. ]

Narrative of William Grant late a Serjeant in the Rebel Army dated 24th Nov<sup>r</sup> 1777 from on board the Queen Indiaman at Gravesend.

Sir,

About the beginning of July 1776. the Cherokee Indians, excited by a number of the friends to Government, in that place commonly called Tories, who had fled from North Carolina, fell upon the Western frontiers of Virginia; whereupon the Committees of the several Counties detached severall small parties of militia to stop their progress thro' the Country, untill such time as an army could be raised to oppose them, which at that time was very difficult, as the major part of the youth who were zealous for the cause, were already in the service against the King's troops. In this juncture they were obligated to have recourse to the Militia law, which compels every male from the age of fifteen to sixty, after having settled three months in one place, to take up arms against all enemys; upon their refusal they forfeit the sum of £20 of that currency. By virtue of which law they collected about 1200 men before the middle of August, the chief command of which was conferred upon Col. Smith, a native of that country. He immediately assembled his new Army at Staunton, a small town in Augusta County, lying about 20 miles to the Westward of the South Mountain, from whence he marched Aug<sup>t</sup> 18th and proceeded directly to Holstein, a settlement upon the frontiers where the Indians were then ravaging; but upon the approach of the army retreated with their booty. The Col. finding they would not come to a decisive engagement so far from home, determined to pursue them to their towns, to expediet which he encamped his army on an island formed in the river Holstein, generally known by the name of the Long Island, untill such time as he could be reinforced with provisions and men, upon which there were severall draughts taken out of the Militia, General Washington at the same time petitioning for more troops, and a draught of the Militia being granted, it fell to my lot to go as one. At that time I taught a school in Augusta County, but being zealous for government was determined not to go, but finding I was not able to withstand their power, which was very arbitrary in that part, I thought it better to enter into the service against the Indians than to go into actual service against my Countrymen. Accordingly some troops were raising at that time by Act of the Convention of Virginia (to be stationed at the different passes on the Ohio to keep the Shawneese &c in awe and to prevent their incursions) upon these terms, vizt that they should enlist for the term of two years, that they should not be compelled to leave the said frontiers or be entered into the Continental service without their own mutual consent, as also that of the legislator. Taking this to be the only method of scree[n]ing myself from being deemed a Tory and also of preventing my being forced into the Continental service, I enlisted the third of Septemb<sup>r</sup> into Capt. Michael Bowyers's Company of Riflemen, to be stationed at the mouth of the Little Kennarah upon the River Ohio. Soon after we marched in company with 150 militia, to the assistance of Coll. Smith, who still continued on the Long Island. We had several skirmishes with the Indians during our march, without any considerable loss on either side. Sept<sup>r</sup> 19th we joined the main body, and on the 22<sup>d</sup> decamped and proceeded towards the Cherokee towns. The enemy continued to harrass us in our march with numberless attacks, sometimes appearing on our front, sometimes upon our flank, so giving us a brisk fire for some minutes, would immediately retreat into the woods. Thus we continued our march thro' the woods the space of three weeks, about which time we received intelligence from our spies and from some prisoners that had escaped, that the Indians had removed every thing from their towns into the mountains, had cut down their corn & set fire to every thing they could not carry away which they thought might be of service to the white army. Upon the confirmation of this account Coll. Smith being persuaded they would never hazard a general engagement, and knowing that his army was but badly supplied with provisions, sent severall companys back into the different Settlements where the Savages were still making incursions and murthering the inhabitants; the Company to which I belonged was one of this number. We were sent to a place lying in the Allegany mountains (upon the banks of the River Monongalia) known by the name of Tygar's Valley where we were ordered during the winter, in order both to defend the Inhabitants and to make canoes to carry us down the river to the place where we were to be stationed the ensuing Spring; in which place I was made Serg<sup>t</sup> in which I continued during my stay in the army. In the mean time the Indians, finding the Virginians fully bent to search them out and an army of Carolina troops approaching on the other side, sent Deputies to Col. Smith to sue for peace, which was granted upon their delivering up the prisoners, and restoring the goods that they carried out of the Settlements. Hereupon the Militia was disbanded, and the other troops that were enlisted on the aforementioned terms were distributed amongst the frontier settlements during the winter. About this time the war was very hot in the Jerseys, and the Congress determining to recruit their army as soon as possible in the Spring, sent a remonstrance to the Convention of Virginia, alledging that they had a number of troops on their frontiers that were of very little or no service to the country, as the Indians were peaceably inclined. Therefore they desired that they should be sent to the assistance of the Continental army as early in the Spring as they possibly could. The Convention immediately repealed the Act on which the troops were raised and directly entered them into the Continental service, and issued forth commissions for the raising of six new Battalions, amongst which the troops formerly raised for the defence of the back frontiers were to be distributed. Agreeable to this new Act we received orders to march to Winchester, there to join the 12th Virg<sup>a</sup> Reg<sup>t</sup> commanded by Col. James Wood;<sup>1</sup> pursuant to which orders we marched from Tygar's Valley in the begining of Aprill and proceeded with all expedition; which march we compleated in the space of eight days; after having rested a few days at Winchester we proceeded to join the Continental Army, which at that time lay partly in Morristown, partly at Boundbrook a small town on the Rarington river about 6 miles from New Brunswick, where His Excellency General Howe had his head quarters. May 19th we joined the grand army which then consisted of 20000 foot (chiefly composed of Virginians, Carolinians, and Pennsylvanians, the major part of whom were volunteers, altho' for the most part disaffected to the rebel cause, they being for the most part convicts and indented servants, who had entered on purpose to get rid of their masters and of consequence of their commanders the first opportunity they can get of deserting) and about 300 light horse commanded by General Washington assisted by Lord Stirling, Major Generalls Stephens,<sup>1</sup> Keyn, Sullivan; Brigadiers Weeden,<sup>2</sup> Millenberg,<sup>3</sup> Scott,<sup>4</sup> Maxwell,<sup>5</sup> Conway,<sup>6</sup> which

<sup>1</sup> Major-General ADAM STEPHEN was Captain in 1754 in the Frey's Virginia regiment, and accompanied Colonel Washington to the Great Meadows that year. He served with distinction the following year under Braddock as Captain of a company of Virginia Rangers (Sargen's History of Braddock's Expedition, 329), and in 1756 was Lieutenant Colonel in command at head-quarters at Winchester. In 1763, he commanded the forces raised for the defence of the frontiers against the Indians; and at the commencement of the Revolution was appointed Colonel of one of the regiments raised by Virginia. On 4th September, 1776, he was elected Brigadier-General by the Continental Congress, and on the 19th February, 1777, was promoted to be Major-General. He behaved with great spirit and judgment at the battle of Brandywine, and also at Germantown. In the following winter he was dismissed from the service. Washington and the Generals of the American Revolution, 329.

<sup>2</sup> Brigadier-General GEORGE WEEDEN was originally an inn-keeper at Fredericksburgh, Virginia, and exhibited great activity in support of the Revolution. He was elected by Congress Colonel of the 1st Virginia battalion on the 12th August, 1776, and appointed Brigadier-General 24th February, 1777. He retired from the service on account of some difficulty about rank, while the army lay at Valley Forge. In 1781 he was in command of the Virginia militia at Gloucester, Virginia. Ibid.

<sup>3</sup> Major-General PETER MUELLENBURG, son of the Rev. Dr. Henry Melchior Muhlenburg, was born in Philadelphia, October 1st, 1746, and, after studying divinity with his father, was settled over a church at Woodstock, Virginia. He was elected member of the Convention in 1776; raised a regiment, of which he was chosen commander; served at Sullivan's Island with his battalion against Clinton; was appointed Brigadier-General 21st February, 1777; served under Wayne at the storming of Stony Point in 1774, and was at Yorktown in 1781. He was appointed Major-General at the close of the war and settled in Pennsylvania. He was afterwards Vice-President of that Commonwealth. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1801, and in 1802 was appointed Collector of the port of Philadelphia, and held that office until his death, which occurred 1st October, 1807. His remains were interred in the Lutheran burial ground of the village of Trappe, Montgomery county, Pennsylvania. Day's Historical Collections of Pennsylvania, 487.

<sup>4</sup> Brigadier-General CHARLES SCOTT was born in Cumberland county, Virginia, in the year 1733. He served as a Corporal in Braddock's expedition in 1755, and on the breaking out of the Revolution raised the first company of Volunteers south of James river; was appointed to the command of the 3d Virginia battalion, 12th August, 1776, and raised to the rank of Brigadier-General in April, 1777, and was in the two following campaigns with the army in New Jersey. He was afterwards ordered to South Carolina; was taken prisoner at the surrender of Charleston and was not exchanged until near the close of the war. He next moved to Kentucky, and in 1785 settled in Woodford county. He was with General St. Clair at his defeat, 4th November, 1791, and in 1793 was engaged against the Indians at the Wabash. In 1794 he commanded under General Wayne at the defeat of the Indians in the battle of the Fallen Timber; and in 1808 was elected Governor of the State. He filled that office until 1812, and died October 22d, 1817, aged 74 years. Collins' Historical Sketches of Kentucky, 516; Allen.

<sup>5</sup> Brigadier-General WILLIAM MAXWELL entered the Continental service as Colonel of one of New Jersey regiments and served in the disastrous campaign of Canada in 1776. He was appointed Brigadier-General 23d October of that year, and commanded the brigade of that State at the battle of Brandywine and afterwards at Germantown. He was next employed in New Jersey, and resigned his commission 23d June, 1780. Duer's Life of Stirling; New Jersey Revolutionary Correspondence.

<sup>6</sup> Major-General THOMAS CONWAY was a native of Ireland, but, when only six years old, was taken by his parents to France, where he was educated. He rose to the rank of Colonel in the French army and was decorated with the Order of St. Louis. He came to America in 1777, and in May, 1778, was appointed Brigadier-General. He was in the battle of Germantown, and was next elected Inspector-General with the rank of Major-General. He was afterwards ordered to Albany, and latter is a French man. Likewise a number of French officers who commanded in the Artillery, whose names or ranks I never had an opportunity of being acquainted with. Nothing worthy of notice happened until the 30th of that Inst<sup>n</sup> on which the Continental Army decamped and retreated about 2 miles into the Blue Mountains and incamped at Middle Brook, where they were joined in a few days by the other part of the army that lay at Morristown. Here they lay for some considerable time, during which they were employed in training their troops who were quite undisciplined and ignorant of every military art. Their Officers in general are equally ignorant as the private men, through which means they make but very little progress in learning. Wherefore it is generally believed by the unprejudiced part of the people that the rebels never will hazard a general engagement, unless they are so hemmed up that they cannot have an opportunity of waving it; from which reason and the deplorable state the Country in general is now reduced to, which in many places near to the seat of war is entirely destitute of labourers to cultivate the ground, insomuch that the women are necessitated for their own support to lay aside their wonted delicacy and take up the utensils for agriculture. From these and many other weighty reasons it is generally supposed that they cannot continue the war much longer. Nothing material was transacted on either side till about the 24th of June, when a party of General Howe's army made a movement and advanced as far as Somerset, a small town lying on the Rarington betwixt Boundbrook and Princetown, which they plundered, and set fire to two small churches and several farm houses adjacent. General Washington upon receiving notice of their marching, detached 2 Brigades of Virginia troops and the like number of New Eng<sup>d</sup> to Pluckhemin, a small town about 10 miles from Somerset, lying on the road to Morristown. Here both parties lay for several days, during which time several slight skirmishes happened with their out scouts, without any considerable loss on either side. On the 29th the enemy retreated to Brunswick with their booty and we to our former ground in the Blue Mountain. Next day His Excellency General Howe marched from Brunswick towards Bonumtown with his whole army, which was harassed on the march by Col. Morgan's Riflemen. As soon as General Howe had evacuated Brunswick, M<sup>r</sup> Washington threw a body of the Jersey militia into it, and spread a report that he had forced them to leave it. July 2<sup>d</sup> there was a detachment of 150 Riflemen chosen from among the Virginia regiments, dispatched under the command of Capt. James Dark a Dutchman, belonging to the eighth Virginia Reg<sup>t</sup> to watch the enemy's motions. The same day this party, of which I was one, marched to Quibbleton, and from thence proceeded towards Amboy. July 4th we had intelligence of the enemy's being encamped within a few miles of Westfield; that night we posted ourselves within a little of their camp and sent an officer with 50 men further on the road as a picquet guard, to prevent our being surprised in the night. Next morning a little before sun rise the British army before we suspected them, were upon pretty close on our picquet before they were discovered, and fired at a negroe lad that was fetching some water for the officer of s<sup>d</sup> guard, and broke his arm. Upon which he ran to the picquet and alarmed them, affirming at the same time that there was not upwards of sixty men in the party that fired at him. This intelligence was directly sent to us, who prepared as quick as possible to receive them and assist our picquet who was then engaged, in order for resigned his commission. On the 4th July, 1778, he was engaged in a duel with General Cadwallader, in which he was severely wounded. He returned to France at the close of the year and died in that country. He, unfortunately for his reputation, became prominent, in the history of his day, by his connection with what was known as the "Conway Cabal," an abortive intrigue among certain officers of the American army to place Gates in the chief command. — Ed.

which, as we were drawing up our men, an advanced guard of the enemy saluted us with several field pieces, which did no damage. We immediately retreated into the woods from whence we returned them a very brisk fire with our rifles, so continued firing and retreating without any reinforcement till about 10 o'clock, they plying us very warmly both with their artillery and small arms all the time; about which time we were reinforced with about 400 Hessians (who had been taken at sea going over to America & immediately entered into the Continental service) and three brass field pieces under the command of Lord Stirling. They drew up immediately in order to defend their field pieces and cover our retreat, and in less than an hour and a half were entirely cut off; scarce sixty of them returned safe out of the field; those who did escape were so scattered over the country that a great number of them could not rejoin the Army for five or six days, whilst the Kings troops marched off in triumph with three brass field pieces and a considerable number of prisoners, having sustained but very little loss on their side. This was the last engagement that happened in the Jerseys before General Howe embarked at York. During this time the rebel army advanced as far as Quibbletown where they lay three days, then countermarched back to the Blue Mountains and there continued until they rec<sup>d</sup> an account of embarkment of the enemy at York. Capt. Dark collected the remains of his shattered party in the best manner he possibly could and continued to execute his orders in reconnoitring and sending intelligence to the Camp, until General Howe crossed over in Strattan Island, at which time we returned to the Camp with scarce two thirds of the men we took away, where we remained 4 or 5 days, then decamped and marched to Morristown and lay there until we received certain intelligence that the army had gone on board and stood out to sea bearing to the Northward. Upon this news we instantly decamped and marched toward the North River, and encamped at the Clove, about 12 miles South from King's Ferry, where General Sullivan left us with about 5000 men and crossed the Ferry. Soon after we again decamped and proceeded further up the River towards Albany. The weather being excessive rainy we were obliged to halt severall days during which time we rec<sup>d</sup> an account of Gen<sup>l</sup> Howe's appearing in the Bay of Delaware, which caused us a very hard and fatiguing march, often marching at the rate of thirty miles per day, which killed a number of the men. It was no uncommon thing for the rear guard to see 10 or 11 men dead on the road in one day occasioned by the insufferable heat and thirst; likewise in almost every town we marched through, their Churches were converted into hospitals. Another great hurt to the army was the scarcity of salt and bread, the former of which was not to be had at any rate, for at that time in the Jerseys it sold for 20 dollars pr bushell: as to the latter they were almost in the same condition, altho' they had plenty of flour they had not time to bake it. Thus we marched till we came to Germantown a village about 6 miles from Philadelphia, where we encamped for severall days, and we[re] reviewed by the Congress. In the interim the British fleet stood out to sea again and steering to the Northward as at first, we again removed and marched to the Cross roads in Bucks County, about 20 miles to the Northward of Philadelphia, and there we pitched our tents, expecting every day to hear of their landing at York, or in some part of the Jerseys. During our stay here we were joined by the 13th Virg<sup>a</sup> Reg<sup>t</sup> a small body of new raised troops to the amount of about 200. About this the Rebel army was very sickly, occasioned greatly by the scarcity of salt, and the great fatigue they had sustained, during the late hard and fatiguing march; which was soon followed by another as hard tho' not so long. August 22<sup>d</sup> we rec<sup>d</sup> an account that General Howe had landed in Virginia. Next day we decamped and marched 15 miles towards Philadelphia and prepared to march through the City next day, which we did in the best order our circumstances could permit, and proceeded towards Virginia with all expedition; but received soon after a true account of his being at the head of Elk in Maryland. General Washington, being determined to stop his progress towards Philadelphia, posted a body of militia at Ironhill an eminence about three miles from General Howe's out posts. He also posted three brigades of Virginians with 6 field pieces at Christian Creek about 8 miles from Wilmington, from each of which they detached a party of 100 light armed men, as scouts, under the command of Col. Crawford. Among this number I had the good fortune of being one, as I was determined to embrace the first opportunity of escaping, which I fortunately effected. General Washington with the remainder of his army (which in whole by his own account only consisted of 13000 men) and the artillery park, which consisted of 15 brass field pieces and severall howitts, encamped at Brandywine Creek about 12 miles from Elktown where General Howe held his head quarters. On Saturday August 30th we received intelligence by some prisoners that General Howe intended to make an attack on Ironhill next day. Accordingly next morning between two and three o'Clock, we marched over the hill, and formed our selves into an ambuscade, in which position we continued till five, when being persuaded that no attack would be made, a party of 150 men was immediately chosen and sent under the command of the afores<sup>d</sup> Capt. Dark, to reconnoitre. In this party I went as a volunteer, fully resolved never to return unless as a prisoner. However, marching from thence, took severall by roads, untill we had got past severall of the Hessians posts undiscovered, and proceeding toward an iron work where they had another post, we discovered a few of the Welch fusileers cooking at a barn in the middle of a large field of Indian Corn. Capt Dark resolved to take them if possible, on which account he divided his men into 6 parties of 25 each, under the command of a Lieu<sup>t</sup> and 2 Serjeants. The party on the left to which I belonged, he ordered to surround the field, which we did, but were discovered by those whom we thought to surprise, who were only a few of a party consisting of fifty that were out foraging. They drew up immediately and marched out of the field; upon which our Lieu<sup>t</sup> and 4 of his men fired upon them, which they returned with a whole volley, and plyed us very warmly from among the trees for some considerable time, untill the other parties came up and attacked them in the rear; whom they also gallantly repulsed and put to flight. The party I belonged to upon the approach of the rest, retreated; at which time I left them, and made the best of my way to the English Camp. In my way I saw severall of the rebels lying dead, and was afterwards informed that a number more of them fell in that action; which in every probability will be the fate of the whole, if they come to a generall engagement, which of necessity they must in a short time, as it is impossible they can sustain the war much longer; the Country being entirely laid waste, the inhabitants disaffected and entirely wearied of the war, and independency; numbers of them are detained from coming to the Royal Standard only through fear of being detected by General Washington's army, the army small, undisciplined, disaffected to the cause, badly paid, in very dull spirits, being certain they are far inferior to the British troops in every point, and entirely destitute of every necessary for carrying on the war, having neither arms nor ammunition, but what they receive from the French or Dutch. From these and many other cogent reasons it is highly probable this unhappy war will soon be terminated to the honour of His Majesty and a terror to all other who may attempt to rebel in like manner for the future.

Thus Sir I have given you a short narrative of the facts that came to my knowledge during my stay in the rebell army, and hope it will give your Honour the satisfaction required. I think myself happy in having the honour of serving you in this manner and of subscribing myself

King's Bridge Camp. 1. December 1777.

My Lord,

I seize the opportunity by Gov<sup>r</sup> Wentworth, whose conduct while in this Govern<sup>t</sup> has been truly meritorious, to acquaint your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that my sphere in Civil Govern<sup>t</sup> is not enlarged this last Campaign. The operations of the Grand Army being directed to the Westward, could not afford support to the military movements in this Province. I can now hardly be said to sit within the shade of my Govern<sup>t</sup>. If therefore it should be His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure, I would cheerfully wish to resign my Govern<sup>t</sup>, If I might be honored with the command of a Regiment, and liberty to sell my Company in the Guards, which I desire might be purchased by Lord Rawdon,<sup>1</sup> whom I have the honor to be distantly connected with in relationship, and who is willing to purchase.

Sir Henry Clinton has intrusted to me the charge of this important Post, and I have every reason to be satisfied with the liberal confidence, with which he honours me.

The short time we were up the North River (and only on its Banks) I swore in near three hundred of the Inhabitants, and about one hundred listed in the Provincial Corps. Numbers <sup>1</sup> FRANCIS, 1st Marquess of Hastings, K. G. and G. C. B., eldest son of John Rawdon, 1st Earl of Moira, was born 7th December, 1754. He entered the army in the 17th year of his age as Ensign in the 15th foot (7th August, 1771), and obtained a Lieutenancy on the 20th October, 1773, in the 5th regiment, and embarked for America. The bloody fight of Bunker Hill was his first battle, and in July following, he was appointed to a company in the 63d, and soon after Aid-de-Camp to Sir Henry Clinton. He was at the battles of Brooklyn and White Plains, in the attack of Fort Washington, Fort Clinton and in other affairs of 1776 and 1777. In 1778 he was named Adjutant-General of the army in America, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and was engaged in the retreat through the Jerseys, in the battle of Monmouth, and at the siege of Charleston. In 1780 he raised a Provincial Corps called the Volunteers of Ireland, and was engaged with it in the battle of Camden, where one-half the regiment was killed or wounded. He afterwards defeated General Greene at Hobkirk Hill, 25th April, 1781, and then retired to Charleston. He was obliged, however, by illness, to embark for England; on the passage the vessel was captured by the French and carried into Brest, but he was almost immediately released. On his return to England his regiment was accepted, and numbered the 105th; he was appointed Aid-de-Camp to the King and Colonel in the army 25th November, 1782. In 1783 he was created a British Peer by the title of Baron Rawdon. He succeeded to the title of Earl of Meira, 20th June, 1788, and in October following became Major-General. In 1794 he was sent to Flanders with reinforcements for the Duke of York, whom he extricated at Malines. He became Lieutenant-General in 1798; in September following, was promoted to be General in the army, and appointed commander of the forces in Scotland. In 1804 he became Colonel of the 27th Inniskilling regiment; in 1806 Master-General of the Ordnance and Constable of the Tower, of London, and in 1813 Governor-General of India. In 1816 he was advanced to the dignity of Marquess of Hastings; became Governor of Malta in 1824, and died 28th November, 1826, in the 72d year of his age. Philippart's Royal Military Calendar, I., 67; Debrett. — En.

yet remain inflexibly Loyal notwithstanding the coercive Tyranny of the Rebel Party, and long disappoinment of relief, have operated strongly against their principles.

By the inclosed correspondence between me and Gen<sup>l</sup> Parsons, Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> may judge of the tone I think should be held towards the Rebels.

I have ventured as Civil Gov<sup>r</sup> to supply the Hessians on this Island, with some blankets by way of present, of which they stood in much need, a donation that has been gratefully received, and I flatter myself will meet with His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation and allowance, at a time when every insidious art and invitation of Putnam is renewed to debauch them, but am confident will prove wholly unsuccessful.

General Robertson has undertaken to embody the Inhabitants of the City in my absence, and I understand he has met with some success.

I am with all possible respect

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient and
very humble servant

.21. Nov<sup>r</sup> 1777.

Sir,

Adding to the natural horrors of war, the most wanton destruction of private property are acts of cruelty unknown to civilized nations, and unaccustomed in war, untill the servants of the King of Great Brittain, have convinced the impartial world, no acts of inhumanity, no stretch of Despotism are too great for them to exercise towards those they are pleased to term Rebels.

Had any apparent advantage been derived from burning the houses, on Phillips's Manor, last Monday night, there would have been some appearance of reason to justify the measure, but when no benefit can result from destroying those buildings, and striping the women and children of necessary apparel to cover them from the severity of a cold night, and leading off the captivated heads of those families in Triumph to your lines, in a most ignominious manner, I cannot assign a justifiable cause for this act of cruelty; nor can I conceive a reason for your further order to destroy Tarry Town.

'Tis not my inclination, Sir, to war in this manner against the Inhabitants within your lines who suppose themselves within the protection of the King. But necessity will oblige me to retaliate in kind, upon your friends, to compel the exercise of that Justice which humanity used to dictate; unless your explicit disavowal of the conduct of your Captains Enrick and Barns, shall convince me those houses were destroyed without your knowledge and against your order.

You cannot be insensible 'tis every day in my power to destroy the buildings belonging to Col: Philips and M<sup>r</sup> Delancey; each as near your lines as these burned by your Troops were to the guards of the Army of the United States, nor can your utmost vigilance prevent the destruction of every building on this side King's Bridge.

'Tis not fear, Sir, 'tis not want of opportunity has preserved those buildings to this time, but a sence of the injustice and savageness of such a line of conduct, has hitherto saved them ; & nothing but necessity will induce me to copy the example of this kind so frequently set us by your Troops.

I am Sir,

Your obedient humble servant

King's Bridge Camp. 23. Nov' 1777.

Sir,

Could I possibly conceive myself accountable to any revolted subject of the King of Great Britain I might answer your letter received by the Flag of Truce yesterday, respecting the conduct of the party under Capt<sup>m</sup> Emmerick's command upon the taking of Peter and Cornelius Vantassel. I have however candour enough to assure you, as much as I abhor every principle of inhumanity or ungenerous conduct, I should, were I in more authority, burn every Committee Man's house within my reach, as I deem, those Agents the wretched instruments, of the continued calamities of this Country, and in order the sooner to purge this Colony of them, I am willing to give twenty silver dollars, for every acting Committee Man, who shall be delivered up to the King's Troops. I guess, before the end of the next campaign, they will be torn to pieces by their own Countrymen whom they have forcibly dragged, in opposition to their principles and duty (after fining them to the extent of their property) to take up arms against their lawful Sovereign, and compelled them to exchange their happy Constitution for Paper, Rags, Anarchy and distress.

The ruins in the City of New York, from the Conflagration of the Emissaries of your party last year, remain a memorial of their tender regard for their fellow beings, exposed to the severity of a cold night.

This is the first correspondence, I have held with the King's Enemies, in America, on my own part, and as I am immediately under the command of Sir Henry Clinton, your future Flags, dictated with decency, would be more properly directed to His Excellency.

I am Sir,

Your humble servant,

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

<sup>1</sup> Major-General SAMUEL HOLDEN PARSONS, son of Rev. Jonathan Parsons, was born at Lyme, Connecticut, 14th May, 1737, and was graduated at Harvard College in 1756. After studying law, he entered on the practice of his profession in 1759. He was member of the General Assembly of Connecticut from 1762 to 1774, and moved to New London in 1775, when he was chosen Colonel of militia. On 9th August, 1776, he was appointed Brigadier-General by the Continental Congress, and in 1779 succeeded Putnam in the command of the Connecticut division. On 23d October, 1780, he was promoted to the rank of Major-General. In 1785 he was appointed one of the Commissioners to treat with the Western Indians, and in 1788 was named Judge of the Northwestern territory. He acted, in the following year, as Commissioner to treat with the Wyandots and other tribes for the extinction of their claims to the Connecticut Western reserve, and on returning from this service to his residence at Marietta, Ohio, was drowned by the upsetting of his boat in the rapids at the Big Beaver river, 17th November, 1789, in the 53d year of his age. Allen. — En.

The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty having authorized you to grant Commissions of Marque against the Rebels, it is to be expected, that vessels bearing such Commissions will bring their prizes into the Ports within your Government, and you may be under some embarrassment in respect to the disposal of the Prisoners, I have therefore received the Kings commands, to signify to you His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure, that when any prisoners taken in any Rebel privateer or armed Cruiser shall be brought into any of the Ports within your Govern<sup>t</sup>, you do commit them to the common Goal, or other place of safe custody, and apply to the Assembly for an allowance for their maintenance, and other expenses attending their confinement; and in case, the Assembly shall not think fit to take upon themselves the providing for such expences, you are to draw upon the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Treasury for the amount, taking care that every thing be done in the most frugal and careful manner, and accompanying your Bills with the proper vouchers; and when any opportunity offers of putting them on Board any of His Majesty's ships, you will deliver them to the Commanders in such numbers as they can be received, in order to their being sent to England, under the Admiral's direction; and in case you cannot so dispose of the whole, you may agree with the Masters of different Merchant ships, to take the remainder in small numbers and carry them to England, as prisoners, their passage to be paid here, upon certificates of their delivery on board any of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s ships at Plymouth, Portsmouth, in the Downs or at the Nore; and you are at the same time, to transmit to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, one or more affidavits, properly authenticated, that such prisoners were taken in an Armed vessel commissioned by the Rebels. In regard to the Crews of any Trading Vessels belonging to the Rebels, such of them as the Commanders of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s ships do not think fit to press into the King's service, must be left at liberty.

The King ever desirous to promote the welfare and happiness of all His subjects, has seen with great concern, the calamitous consequences of the dispute with the Colonies; and willing to hope that even those who have been most forward in bringing on these misfortunes, are now convinced of the fatal tendency of their conduct and would gladly return to their allegiance, if they were not withheld by apprehensions, that advantage would be taken of their submission to pursue measures dictated by resentment of their past behaviour and to impose upon the Colonies intolerable burthens or restraints. To remove all grounds of such apprehensions, and to prepare the way for the return of peace, his Majesty was graciously pleased to signify his Royal pleasure to his most confidential servant, on whose advice His Maj<sup>ty</sup> relies in matters of the greatest importance, that they should deliberate upon, and concert such measures as would be most likely to produce those happy effects and in consequence of that deliberation, Lord North on the 17th inst: propounded to the house of commons the inclosed Resolution, which was unanimously adopted, and Bills have been prepared in pursuance of it, and this day, presented and read in the house.

The King commands me to send you copies of those Bills inclosed herewith, and to signify to you his Royal pleasure, that you do cause them to be printed and dispersed throughout the (neighbouring) Colonies, by such means as shall be most likely to make them generally known and considered; and that you embrace every opportunity of circulating them by Flags of truce, or private persons, among the Rebel Troops, and in those Parts of the Country where the authority of the Congress prevails; and this you are to do with all possible expedition, so as the people at large may be acquainted with their contents before ill intentioned persons can have time to diffuse prejudices against them, or by misrepresenting their tendency, excite jealousy and distrust of the favourable disposition of great Britain towards the American Colonies:

I am etc.

GEO: GERMAIN.

Lord George Germain to the Commissioners for restoring Peace, &c.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXIV. ]

To the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> for restoring peace, Sir William Howe, Sir Henry Clinton, Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon, Governor Tonym, and Commanding Officer at Rhode Island.

Whitehall. 11. March 1778.

In my letter to you of the 19th of last month, I transmitted copies of two Bills, which were on that day presented and read in the house of Commons; they have since passed both houses and received the Royal assent, very few essential alterations having been made in them during their progress through the Houses, except such as were made, in order the more effectually to remove all shadow of doubt about the purity & sincerity of the purpose of Parliament.

I now send you herewith printed copies of these Acts by the King's command, and I am to signify to you his Royal pleasure that you do transmit copies of each to the Congress, & the Commander in Chief of their Troops, and cause them to be made public and dispersed throughout the Neighbouring Colonies that His Majesty's faithful subjects may, as speedily, as possible, be informed of the favourable disposition of His Majesty and Parliament towards the American Colonies.

I am ettc.

GEO: GERMAIN.

P. S. You will of course, observe, by the Acts I have sent you herewith, that altho' the Commissioners to be sent out from Great Britain, have sufficient powers to suspend in any places, or for any times, during the continuance of the Bill under which they are appointed, the operation and effect of any Act or Acts of Parliament w<sup>ch</sup> have passed since the tenth day of Feb<sup>r</sup> 1763; yet the King and Parliament of great Britain have more particularly taken into their consideration the Tea Act, and the Act for the better regulating the Government of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, which have been repealed, as you will perceive by the Acts herewith inclosed, and I hope this attention to the wishes of many people, may have the desired effect, of inclining those who have been unhappily engaged in the present Rebellion to return to their allegiance.

Sir,

Mr Fisher,<sup>1</sup> Collector of Salem in Massachusetts Bay, who was compelled by the Rebels to fly to England, will have the honor to deliver this letter to you. He returns to America at this time with the view of using the influence which he imagines he still has in the Colonies, to induce them to accept of the offers now held out to them, and return to their allegiance. The manner in which he may be best employed in effecting so important a service, will depend upon the state of things at his arrival and the manner in which the late Acts were received. He is, therefore directed to consult with you (and Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon or Sir Henry Clinton) what steps it will be proper for him to take; and I have therefore, only to recommend to him to you as a person in whom you may repose the fullest confidence, and to request you will shew him all proper attention.

New York. 12. March 1778.

My Lord.

The last letter which I had the honor to address to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> was of the 11th of November, which I believe was misnumbered, I therefore now transmit a duplicate of it, and of N<sup>o</sup> 6. to prevent any mistake.

In my letter N<sup>o</sup> 7. I briefly explained what I then proposed to Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe, which I took the liberty to recommend to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s attention, that I might be enabled to proceed upon it in due time.

I have now the pleasure to inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that notwithstanding the event of last campaign to the Northward, the Indians are as firm as ever, and are eager for service; a Courier having just arrived here with Messages to me and a Billet to the General signed by L<sup>t</sup> Col: Bolton commanding at Niagara, and by my Deputy M<sup>r</sup> Butler, of which the inclosed is a copy, which briefly shows their zeal, readiness and abilities.—On this subject I have by direction of Sir Henry Clinton, wrote at large to S<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Howe, whose commands I hope, shortly to receive, that I may send back such messages as he approves, or such as will prepare them to meet me, agreeable to the proposal I submitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup> and to him, at such time and place to the Northward, as should be approved of, for the purpose of keeping the Indians out of the reach of Rebel Emissaries & of employing them in the way most serviceable to Govern<sup>t</sup>

In my letter of November last, I explained the general design I had in view, and although from the nature of this war, the best schemes may be in some measure rendered abortive, I think I can venture to rely on the advantages to be derived from what I have proposed, as it will keep the Indians out of the reach of the Rebel arts, and employ them in some serviceable manner; for until we have possession of some direct communication to the Six Nations, we cannot have them better occupied than as I have mentioned, before the arrival of more Troops, unless they are let loose to carry on the Petite Guerre in their own way.

Indians, with small bodies of Troops are often exposed to what appears to them as very discouraging difficulties, in which cases they cannot be expected to keep together like British Troops, nor can they ever do so after the beginning of October, because of the Hunting season. They do not adopt the same ideas of Bravery, neither can they feel so much interest in our cause as Britons do, but in all other respects, they afford much security to an army, and strike a Terror into the Enemy.

The French system of management by several distinct Agents was calculated for that Govern<sup>t</sup>, and the State of the domesticated Tribes near their Cities in Canada, but suits no others, as Sir William Johnson fully demonstrated to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Ministers. — No uniform system could be pursued on such a plan, and the French, after much expence and trouble, lost the Ind<sup>ns</sup> by it. They entered into the fullest Treaty before me at Ontario and in Canada in 1775, they have hitherto adhered and will still adhere to the same if duly attended to, but to render them truly serviceable, the nature of the service and the time it is likely to take up are necessary considerations, as well as under what restrictions they are to act, since it appears, that they are so much misrepresented in the article of cruelty.—It is well known, My Lord, that the Colonies solicited the Ind<sup>m</sup> early in 1775—that they proposed to make me prisoner—that they carried some Ind<sup>m</sup> then to their camp near Boston, as they did others since, who were taken in the Battle on Long Island; that the Tomahawk which is so much talked of, is seldom used but to smook thro', or to cut wood with, and that they are very rarely guilty of any cruelty more, than scalping the dead, in which article even, they may be restrained. It is also certain that no objection was made to them formerly, that the King's Instructions of 1754 to Gen<sup>l</sup> Braddock and many since, direct their being employed, whilst some of the American Colonies went further by fixing a price for scalps. Surely foreign Enemies have an equal claim to humanity with others.

Perhaps some of these hints are not amiss, my motives will I hope apologize for them. I am persuaded, that I am by no means destitute of the feelings of humanity, and that I can restrain the Indians from Acts of Savage Cruelty, but as I must be ignorant of the intended operations, I can only humbly propose, as I have already done to collect the Indians in some fitting place out of the reach of the Rebel Agents, till the arrival of more Troops, or till some movement can be made, that will give us possession of the important communication between this and the Lakes, and if in the interim I can be honored with your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s commands, or be directed to give any further agreeable appearances to the Indians, it will be highly pleasing to them and usefull to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service.

I have the honor to be with great respect
My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s most obedient & most
humble servant,
G. JOHNSON.

My Lord,

I am honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatch of the 10th January last. As soon as I receive the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Admiralty's authority to grant Commissions of Marque against the Rebels, (which I can not learn is transmitted by the Harriot Packet, unless in Lord Howe's dispatches, which are forwarded to Rhode Island) I shall be careful to carry all his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands into execution relative to the disposal of the Prisoners of War taken by the ships so commissioned.

I have the satisfaction to assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup> that this measure is most gratefully received by the Citizens, and that several have already begun to fit out their vessells, that they may be ready to put to sea, so soon as they can be Commissioned.

Great expectations are formed of their success as the Commanders of these Privateers have a perfect knowledge of the Coasts, and will go into Creeks & Harbours, that will not admit of the King's ships, it is also believed, that numbers of men in the Rebel ships, will quit that service, to enter aboard these Privateers — I am etc.

New York. 15 April 1778

My Lord.

I have the honor to transmit the inclosed correspondence between Lord Howe and myself, (with the Attorney General's opinion) on the subject of issuing letters of Marque, in the present State of this Province; But have not yet received the necessary powers from the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Admiralty.

As the letters of Marque would be always subject to the search of the Officers of the King's ships, and as Masters of Transports who lost men, might be empowered also to search the said letters of Marque; I am apt to think, few Men in the King's service could be carried off, in the said vessels by stealth.

I can assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, it will be a deep chagrin and disappointment to many of the Loyal Inhabitants in this Govern<sup>t</sup>, to be deprived of fitting out letters of Marque against the Enemy.

I am with all possible respect etc

Eagle, off Sandy Hook. 11. April 1778.

Sir,

Capt<sup>n</sup> Duncan has delivered to me the copy of the circular letter from the Secretary of State, & the Message he was charged with by Your Excell<sup>cy</sup>, respecting your determination to grant letters of Marque conformable to the tenor of it, as soon as you shall be furnished with the requisite authorities from the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Admiralty.

Persuaded of the dangerous consequences that must ensue to the King's service, by the temptation thereby offered the Seamen to withdraw from the transports, on which the subsistence of the Army immediately and entirely depends, as well as from the ships of War, I trust that you will, in regard thereof, be prevailed on to postpone the issue of such letters of Marque; at least in the present circumstances of the War, or until the King's further pleasure (if deemed necessary to be taken) can be had upon the matter.

I am more particularly encouraged to hope for this testimony of your indulgence when I consider the tenor and spirit of the circular letter, which as I conceive, is not obligatory, nor indeed applicable to the State of this Province.

The letter obviously respects the Provinces, in which the civil Govern<sup>t</sup> is regularly exercised, and the Laws are still in Force.

Application is to be made to the Assemblies regarding the maintenance and security of the Prisoners; and as a necessary ground for the operation of that civil authority, it is presupposed, that the captures will be brought into some port within your Govern<sup>t</sup>, whereas, by the late restraining Acts, the special License of the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> therein mentioned, is required for exempting this Port from the Effect of the General prohibition extended in the case, to all the Provinces not in the king's peace.

I have the honor to be, with great respect

Sir,

Your most obedient humble servant.

HOWE.

Copy of M<sup>r</sup> Kemp's (Attorney General) opinion on fitting out letters of Marque.

Upon mature deliberation, I cannot help thinking that the issuing letters of Marque here, may be attended in some degree with the inconveniencies mentioned in Lord Howe's letter; nor can I see any means by which they can effectually be prevented. The most obvious is that of taking securities from the owners of the Vessels to be Commissioned, that no Seamen belonging to the Transports, or the King's ships, shall be engaged by them or their officers; but this will be subject to evasion and abuse, as no precaution will be effectual to prevent them from being imposed upon, by Seamen, who wish to engage with them, and who will not hesitate to declare themselves perfectly disengaged from His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s or the transport service—regiment was disbanded in 1763, and he remained on half-pay until 1775, when he was appointed Governor of East Florida. He became Colonel in the army 29th August, 1777; Major-General 19th October, 1781; and retired from the Government of East Florida in 1783. He was appointed Colonel of the 48th Foot 23d May, 1787; Lieutenant-General 12th October, 1793; General in the army 1st January, 1798, and died towards the close of the year 1804. Army Lists. — Ed.

and as justice could not forfeit these bonds, unless they were wilfully violated, the difficulty of making this appear, would render them almost useless.

I am not a sufficient judge, how far these inconveniencies may be counterbalanced, by the good effects, which may probably result from the issuing of letters of Marque; they appear to me to be these:—a greater Number of vessels will be distressing the Rebels, and without expence to the Crown—Vessels which are now useless to us, will be thus employed; 'tis not improbable that some which might otherwise cruise against us, will cruise against the Rebels—They will generally be small vessels, capable of running into the inlets on the Coasts, where our Frigates cannot go, and into which great part of the importations for the use of the Rebels is made, and from whence their exportations are also made, and will in general be commanded by persons well acquainted with these little harbours. Add to this, that the spirit of privateering is so prevalent in this Province in particular, and in the Colonies in general, that we may expect the most vigorous exertions will be made, and that a great many who Man the Rebel ships (Cruizers as well as Merchantmen) will be induced to come over to us, as they will be employed as much to their interest, and more to their safety; besides this, many Landsmen, now in the Enemies lines, who do not come over to us for the want of the means of subsistence (and who do not chose to become Soldiers) will probably come into us, partly from interest and the spirit of privateering, and partly from the dread of being compelled by the Rebels into their army as soldiers.

Your Excell<sup>ty</sup> is the best judge how far the tenor and spirit of the circular letter is obligatory upon you, and how far your powers are discretionary, this indeed will be best determined by the inspection of your powers when they arrive.

I cannot see, why the circular letter is not applicable to the State of this Province, so far at least, as it respects the measure under consideration. If this measure had not been thought proper to be pursued here, by His Majesty's Ministers, and the Lords of the Admiralty, it seems unaccountable why the one should delegate the powers, or the other direct you to pursue them; the State of this Province does not seem to have been in his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Councils at home, an objection against the pursuit of this measure; 'tis true, till the Assembly shall again meet, the Prisoners cannot be maintained, by a provision to be made by the Legislature here, for that purpose, but there is an alternative mentioned in the letter by which they may be supported. I should judge therefore that the circular letter respects this Province altho' the Civil Govern<sup>t</sup> is not regularly exercised in it, nor do I see how this affects the question, or that it can operate against your powers in this instance; indeed, to be explicit, I cannot conceive that any of your authorities in the civil line as his Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> of this Prov<sup>ce</sup>, may not be exercised, nor that the Laws have ceased to be obligatory, altho' the exercise of the one and the operation of the other have been suspended by the violence of the Rebels.

Without the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> license for bringing the prizes taken by letters of Marque into this Port, the same doubts of the competency of the Court of Admiralty to condemn such prizes will recur as took place the before passing the late Act of Parliament—Add to this, that their prize goods cannot be exported but by the License of the Commiss<sup>rs</sup>; the want of these licences 'tis probable will give such a check to the letters of Marque, that few will chose to meddle with them.

1. January 1778.

Sir,

Since I received yours of the 23rd of Novemb<sup>r</sup> I have been employed in matters of importance, which have not left me at liberty to acknowledge the receipt of your letter before; lest you should think me wanting in the respect due to your character. I beg your acceptance of this letter, which closes our epistolary correspondence.

It will ever be my intention to dictate with decency any letters I may send, however remote it may be from my wish to copy the examples of the persons my duty may compel me to correspond with; as propriety and decency ought to be observed in every transaction even with the most infamous characters, I shall never hope so nearly to assimilate myself to them as to be found wanting in that respect which is due to all my fellow beings in their stations and characters in life.

I should not have entertained a thought you have failed in the duty you owe to your King in every part of the Globe, or that you did not fully possess the spirit of his Ministry, which has precipitated the present crisis, even though you had omitted to assure me this had been the first correspondence you had held with the King's Enemies in America.

The conflagration of New York, you are pleased to charge to the American Troops under the decent name of a party.

This deserves no other answer, than to assure you, it has not the least foundation in truth, & that we are assured, it gains no credit with Officers, whose Rank and Candor gives opportunity to know and believe the truth.

This, like many other circumstances is charged to the account of those who were never believed guilty, to excite the rage and resentment of the ignorant and misguided, ag<sup>t</sup> very improper objects.

Perhaps I might suggest, with as much propriety and more truth, this unhappy event was brought about by your own party from the same motives which induced them in August 1776. to mangle the dead bodies of some of the Foreign Troops in a most shocking and inhuman manner, and place them in the most conspicuous parts of the Roads their brethren were to pass. A justifiable resistance against unwarrantable invasions of the natural and social Rights of Mankind, if unsuccessful, I am sensible according to the fashion of the World, will be called Rebellion; but when successful is viewed as a noble struggle for every thing important in life.— Whither I am now considered as a revolted subject of the King of Britain, or in any other light by his subjects is very immaterial and gives me very little concern— future ages, I hope will do justice to my intentions and the present to the humanity of my Conduct.

Few Men are of Talents so very inconsiderable as to be unalterably excluded from every degree of Fame. A Nero and a Caligula have perpetuated their memory; perhaps twenty silver dollars may be motives with those you employ, to do great honor to your Machiavelian Maxims, especially to that which advises, never to comit crimes to the halves, and leave lasting monuments of your principles and conduct which will hand your memory down to posterity in indelible characters.

We act on a different scale and hold ourselves indispensably bound, never to comit crimes, but execute what's necessary for our safety uninfluenced by sordid mercenary motives.

In the field of conjecture, I shall not attempt to follow you; your talent of guessing may be greater than I can boast of, this satisfaction at least you may enjoy, if you find yourself mistaken in one conjecture, you have an undoubted right to guess again.

I shall content myself to wait 'till the event verifies your prediction or shews you are mistaken. Assuring you, I shall never pursue your measures for restoring peace, whither my authority should be greater or less, further than necessity shall compel me to retort the injuries the peaceable Inhabitants of this Country may receive from the hand of violence and oppression.

I am

Sir.

Your obedient servant

Sir.

Since my circular letter of the 9th of March I have received your Dispatches N<sup>o</sup> 45, 46, 47 and 48. and a private letter of the 18 of March.

It was a great pleasure to me in the course of last Month, to have the honor to lay before the King for His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Royal signature, a Commission giving you the Rank of Major General in America, according to that you held as Colonel, and which your merit and services so well entitle you to, and upon which, and your appointment to the command of 70th Regiment, I beg you will accept my congratulations.

Some legal difficulties, that I was not informed of, I find were the occasion that the Lords of the Admiralty did not send you a Commission to grant letters of Marque at the time I acquainted you it would be dispatched. Those difficulties I have the satisfaction to tell you, are now so far obviated that you will receive herewith, the necessary authority to grant letters of Marque in all such case as the prohibitory Act will allow. These cases, are ships in the service of Govern<sup>t</sup>, Ships licensed to bring provisions or Stores to the Fleet or Army, or for the supply of the Inhabitants, & ships carrying out prize goods. Under these descriptions only it is, that any Trading ship can enter or clear at New York without incurring forfeiture, and therefore none else can possibly perform the requisites that entitle them to letters of Marque; but of this you will be fully informed by the Acts themselves, and the Instructions you will receive from the Lords of the Admiralty; I have therefore only to add my wishes, that you may find the Authorities you are vested with, sufficient for the purpose and satisfactory to the Loyal Inhabitants.

On the 6th of last month I received your dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 50 and 51. with the duplicate of 49, & a few days after the original of that dispatch with the printed paper of Intelligence referred to therein, was brought by the Packet from Philadelphia.

The arrival of the Acts and of the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> appointed by His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to treat with the Colonies, which, I hope, will have happened shortly after the date of your last dispatch, must enable us to discover whether the disposition we have been so often told prevailed among the people at large to return to their allegiance really exists, or that they are determined upon a separation from this Country; I trust the former will prove to be the case, and that the next accounts we receive, will inform us of the commencement of a Treaty.

My Lord,

I am honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s Dispatches of the first of April and have circulated the communications directed.

As the necessary Authority from the Lords Commissioners of Admiralty to grant letters of Marque has not reached me, no Privateers have, or can be fitted out from this Port; two or three private ships have gone from hence indeed to East Florida and got letters of Marque from that Govern<sup>t</sup>; such is the present discouragement the Inhabitants here labour under. I apprehend when the powers do arrive, the opportunity will be lost.

The King's Commiss<sup>rs</sup> arrived in this City last week; as their powers are competent to appoint Governors, I beg His Maj<sup>ty</sup> will recall me from my Govern<sup>t</sup>, being perfectly convinced I can no longer be serviceable in my civil line.

Sir,

I have received your Dispatches, N<sup>os</sup> 52, 53. & 54. and thank you for the papers inclosed, which add to the many proofs we before had of the insidious designs of France in encouraging and abetting the Rebellion.

My circular letter of this day's date will inform you of the resolution His Majesty has come to respecting that Court, which makes it unnecessary for me to say more here upon the subject, than to express my hopes of seeing all his Majesty's Loyal American subjects again at liberty to exert themselves in distressing the Trade and punishing the perfidy of our natural Enemies.

The French King have issued orders for seizing or destroying all ships or vessels belonging to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> or His Subjects, it has been judged proper by His Maj<sup>ty</sup> in Council to authorize the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to grant Commissions of Marque & reprisals for seizing or destroying the ships and vessels of the French King and his Subjects. Their Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s have, in pursuance of this authority, delegated the same powers to the King's Gov<sup>r</sup> in the American Colonies, and you will receive from their Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s by this conveyance the proper instruments for that purpose, together with Instructions for your guidance in the execution of those powers. I have only to add to those Instructions that it is the Kings express command that you do not grant any Commissions but to persons whose Characters and properties are such as shall be a sufficient pledge and assurance of their strict observance of their instructions, and that you do take every precaution to prevent any injury or molestation to the Trade of His Catholick Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s subjects, or any just ground of complaint from any neutral power.

In addition to my Secret and Confidential Circular letter of the 5th inst.; I am commanded by the King to acquaint you, that, His Maj<sup>ty</sup> judging it highly proper that all succour & assistance should be cut off from the Enemy, it is His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pleasure, that you do take every precaution in your power, to prevent any intercourse with, or supplies of any sort whatever being sent to the subjects of France from Your Govern<sup>t</sup>; and that you do seize & confiscate to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s use, all ships & commodities of what nature soever that may be attempted to be carried out of the <sup>Province</sup> ~~Island~~ to any of the territories of France, or to be delivered at sea for the supply or use of the French King or any of his subjects.—

I have received your letter N<sup>o</sup> 55. and have laid before the King your request contained in it, of leave to quit your Govern<sup>t</sup>; and I am commanded by His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to acquaint you, that in the present circumstances of affairs in America, while there is hope, that an accommodation with the revolted Colonies may take place, His Majesty thinks, your presence at New York necessary for his service; but that as soon as peace is made, or all hope is lost, of the province you are appointed to govern, returning to its allegiance, His Majesty will grant you the permission You request.

N° 56.

New York. 5 Sept<sup>r</sup> 1778.

My Lord,

I am honored with the Duplicate N° 14. and original N° 15. of your Lord<sup>s</sup> Dispatches, also with the necessary powers for granting letters of Marque, near forty vessels are fitting out here, which when ready to sail, will take letters of Marque.

I arrived last evening from the East End of the Island, with a Detachment of near one Thousand provincials, where I had marched to secure the peaceable behaviour of the disaffected inhabitants in that quarter, and assist the Commissary in obtaining about one Thousand fat Cattle for the Army. Inclosed is the oath I administered to all the Inhabitants, on the North side of the Island, giving them the alternative either to take the oath or remove with their families and furniture to Connecticut; not one of the whole chose the latter, even the hottest Rebels said, my proposal was generous, and took the oath, which convinces me that the acrimony of opposition is much softened by the late concessions of Government.

Were I at this crisis, to dare to give an opinion on public affairs, it would be, that the British Forces on the Continent (taking the present ground of the War) were never in so good a condition as at present to reconcile America to the dependency on Great Britain; the Army being as it were united and in possession of the four Islands: New York, Long Island, Staten Island and Rhode Island, (the center of the American Coast) from whence it might make such vigorous and hostile deprivations, on the continent as would oblige America to call aloud for the settlement offered by the King's Commiss<sup>rs</sup>; but if large detachments are made from this Army, and the Troops thereby obliged to remain defensive on the Continent, I apprehend, American dependency on Great Britain will be precarious indeed.

Mr W<sup>m</sup> Smith<sup>1</sup> the Counsellor is returned to Town, and declares the Rebels are in a bad condition, and impotent in force as in courage, and who only expect success from procrastination. I am hopefull, he may be usefull to the Commiss<sup>rs</sup> no one is better informed of the politicks of America, and I trust he means to mark his endeavours, to promote a reconciliation on the terms proposed, if liberally encouraged, he could give much weight to Govern<sup>t</sup> from his abilities.

The late fire and explosion of the Powder Vessel, has done great mischief to this City, upwards of sixty houses, having been destroyed, and many greatly damaged. The perpetrators of the conflagration are still unknown. I am with all possible respect,

My Lord,

My Lord,

The honor of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s duplicate Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 14. conveyed to me the grateful information of my succeeding to the 70th Regiment, and also obtaining my Rank in America agreeable to my seniority in the Army; both which Commiss<sup>ns</sup> are safely arrived. These most gracious marks of His Majesty's bounty towards me has filled my mind with gratitude for such Royal benevolence.

I shall most cheerfully serve thro' this campaign, at the expiration of which, unless very opening prospect should present itself to render some essential service on this continent, I shall entreat the Commander in Chiefs permission to quit America that I may lay in, a better stock of health for future services, and settle my private affairs in England, which daily become more pressing. In the mean time I shall be happy whenever His Majesty shall think proper to exchange my present Civil for a Military Govern<sup>t</sup> as before solicited.

My Lord.

Soon after dispatching my letter of March last, I received one from Sir William Howe,<sup>1</sup> approving much of my former proposal, & requiring me to lay before him a state of such points as were necessary for his giving me final instructions; before this could be done, Sir Henry Clinton took the command of the Army, and it was then found necessary to wait the answer of the Congress to the terms proposed by the Commissioners. Immediately after the French Fleet blocked up this Port, and prevented any Vessels from sailing; but all these delays and difficulties are at length surmounted and I am this day to embark for Quebec from whence (if I am fortunate enough to escape the Cruisers) I propose to write more at large.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will have heard before this can reach you of the successful incursions of the Indians and Loyalists from the Northward. In conformity to the Instructions I conveyed to my Officers, they assembled their force early in May, and one division under one of my Deputys (M<sup>r</sup> Butler) proceeded with great success down the Susquehanna, destroying the Posts & settlements at Wioming, augmenting their number with many Loyalists, and alarming all the Country, whilst another Division under M<sup>r</sup> Brandt, the Indian Chief cut off 294 Men near Schohare and destroyed the adjacent settlements with several Magazines from whence the Rebels had derived great recourses, thereby affording encouragement and opportunity to many friends of Government to join them.—As the Indians and well affected Inhabitants had long expected either a movement of the Southern army up Hudson's River or by some Rout that might be favourable to a junction, they have hitherto kept their ground and sent in several persons disguised, requesting orders for their future Govern<sup>t</sup>, and wishing to know, what movement was intended, favourable to their hopes and expectations, but as the state of things has not admitted of it, and the Season is already far advanced I do not apprehend it will be practicable for them to continue much longer embodied this year, so that I propose on my arrival at the Northward to concert measures for rendering them as usefull as possible the ensuing season, and for preserving order & an attachment to Govern<sup>t</sup> among them, as well as for prosecuting any part of my plan which may meet with the General's approbation, in affecting which, acts of Savage cruelty may be avoided.—My Officers to the Northward have enlisted several good Woodsmen, and from my knowledge of the people, I am persuaded I can raise a large body to accompany the Indians if authorized.

As my voyage and means of supply of cash and necessaries are from present circumstances attended with a risque, that may be highly injurious to myself and family, I am hopeful that whilst my endeavours appear to be directed by judgement, and attended with success, I may experience the necessary aid and countenance of Government.

I have the honor to be with much respect My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient and
most humble servant.

G JOHNSON.

As I have some good reasons to apprehend that difficulties may arise respecting my Rank as Colonel of the Six Nations, which seems the more extraordinary, where Men never in any service are Colonels and Brigadiers, I could wish this point was obviated, a request I humbly presume to be the more reasonable, as I desire it principally in cases where the service renders it necessary.

Having in a second excursion brought all the Inhabitants on the East end of Long Island as far as Montauk Point, under an oath of peaceable behaviour to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Govern<sup>t</sup> (and with good humour,) I acquainted Sir Henry Clinton therewith, and that I now only waited to receive his orders to act under his command. He has accordingly this day, ordered me to join the Corps above King's Bridge, under the orders of Gen<sup>l</sup> Knyphausen.<sup>1</sup>

I therefore beg leave to repeat my earnest solicitation that the Civil Govern<sup>t</sup> of this Province may be put into other hands, hoping His Maj<sup>ty</sup> will grant me a Military one in exchange.

It is my present purpose, before the King's Commiss<sup>rs</sup> return to England, to resign my Govern<sup>t</sup> to them, and to endeavour to obtain Sr Henry Clinton's leave to go to England.

The Manifesto and proclamation herewith transmitted is greatly approved by the Inhabitants within the King's Lines and will I conceive work powerfully without the lines towards a reconciliation.

I have been honored with Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatches of the 5th and 7th of August, at the same time with the necessary powers, from the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Admiralty to grant letters of Marque and reprisals against the French, which are taken up with great avidity.

As I have not been able as yet to get any proper place in this City to confine the prisoners, that have been brought into this Port by Privateers; I have left the Commissary of Prisoners hitherto, to take charge of them as other prisoners, until the letters of Marque can procure the Admiral's protection against pressing, out of those ships at fitting out. Most of the Men, who would be adventurers in those ships, abscond, and are backward in entering into that service. Few of the privateers have yet sailed, waiting the Admiral's pleasure, for his license & protection.

Sir,

I received your dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 56 & 57. & have had the honor to lay them before the King. It gave His Maj<sup>ty</sup> much satisfaction to learn that so many of his Subjects had availed themselves of the power granted to them, for fitting out letters of Marque, and His Maj<sup>ty</sup> trusts that the success, which will follow that laudable spirit of enterprize, will prove not only detrimental to the Commerce of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Enemies, but lucrative in a considerable degree, to the owners of the privateers so fitted out.

Your expedition to Long Island, seems to have answered the End proposed, in securing the Cattle, and in obtaining such assurances of the peaceable Department of the Inhabitants there, as the oath which you administered to them required. Nothing could have been more moderate than the terms in which that oath was prescribed, or more just, than that those, who would not give such a pledge of their allegiance, should absent themselves from a place, in which if they continued, they would probably be employed in purposes injurious to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interest.

I trust that notwithstanding the Detachments which have been made, the good condition in which you described the remaining Troops to be, and in which opinion every body concurs, the superiority of our Fleet, and the gracious terms held out by His Maj<sup>ty</sup> thro' His Commiss<sup>rs</sup> are circumstances which will make the American dependency on Great Britain less precarious, than you seem to apprehend, especially when the confidence of the Rebels in their own Force, as well as in that of their Allies, has in fact so much subsided.

I am much concerned at the Damage done by the Conflagration, but am in great hopes that if that misfortune befell the Town from design, the perpetrators of it will be discovered & punished.

Nothing could be more proper than the handsome manner in which you express yourself towards His Majesty, on your being appointed to the Command of the 70th Reg<sup>t</sup>, and obtaining the Rank you desired, and I can assure you that it gives His Maj<sup>ty</sup> the sincerest pleasure to do Justice to an Officer of your merit and zeal for his service.

My Lord,

The situation of public affairs here, seems the same as when the King's Commissioners left this Port. More letters of Marque have been taken out, but principally for ships going to Europe and the West Indies. The Admiral has been pleased, from representations I made to him, to order his Secretary to publish an encouragement for sailors from the Enemies quarters, to enter on board letters of Marque, which I believe will have a good effect.

I have been obliged from the frequent duties that the Militia of King's and Queen's County, have been called upon to perform, to appoint an Aid de Camp, an Adjutant and assistant to execute my orders, and to summon and regulate the Militia, in the two Counties, with the pay of the Army of Aid de Camp and Adjutant to the two former, and three shillings a day to the Assistant.—

My Lord.

By the arrival of the October Packet, I have had the honor of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s Duplicate dispatch of the 2nd Sept' (N<sup>o</sup> 17.) communicating His Majesty's pleasure that in the present circumstances of affairs in America, I should continue a certain time longer in my Govern<sup>t</sup>; to which Royal command, I beg His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may be informed, I shall pay the most dutiful and zealous obedience.

On the ground, My Lord, the King's Commissioners Manifesto has rested the war with America, I am sanguine enough to believe her allegiance is to be restored to great Britain, and in that idea will hazard my sentiments on some measures, that I esteem will cooperate with what may be the grand operations of the next campaign, for the accomplish<sup>t</sup> of so desirable an end.

<sup>1</sup> Colonel ARCHIBALD HAMILTON entered the British army in 1755, and in Feb., 1757, received a commission as Lieutenant in the 1st Royals, which regiment served in the expedition against Louisbourg in 1758, and accompanied Amherst up the Northern lakes in 1759. He was promoted to a Captaincy in October, 1761, and joined the 31st foot on 12th April, 1765, and served in America until 1774, when he left the army on his regiment returning to Europe (Army Lists), and settled at Flushing, Long Island. On the approach of the English army to New-York, the Provincial Congress ordered his arrest on the 5th June, 1776. Journal, 477. He was admitted to parole on 24th (Onderdonk's Queen's County, 66); in August following, he was again taken up and sent to New-York, when General Washington, "for special reasons and a confidence he reposed in" him, sent him to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, by whom he was permitted to reside at New Brunswick. On 23d September following, he was permitted to return home to his wife and family. American Archives, I, 934, 1614; II, 1374. He soon after joined the Loyalists and was put at the head of the Queen's county militia. Riker's Annals of Newtown, 201. In January, 1780, his house at Flushing was destroyed by fire. He was in active service until the close of the war.

<sup>2</sup> Captain FREDERICK DE PEYSTER, fifth son of James De Peyster and Sarah Reade, was born in New-York 10th December, 1758, and after the breaking out of the Revolution he commanded the Axtel guards, a corps raised to protect his grand uncle, Colonel Axtell, at Flatbush, and was afterwards Captain in the New-York Volunteers, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Turnbull. He was wounded in 1780, and was taken prisoner at the Lower Pedee, with twenty-eight of his men. After the peace he emigrated to St. Johns, New Brunswick, and was a magistrate in 1792. He eventually returned to the United States. Captain De Peyster was twice married, first to Helen, daughter of Commissary-General Hake; second, to Ann, daughter of Gerard G. Beekman and grand-daughter of Lieutenant-Governor Van Cortlandt. De Peyster Genealogy, 34. — Ed.

That a Proclamation from the Crown or Parliament issue, with a reward of one thousand pounds for every Member of the General Congress, & Civil Governors, Usurpers, that shall be delivered up to the King's Troops.

Also a Proclamation of Pardon (and revocation of transportation) for every transport in America that will enter into the King's service, and at the end of the War to have their passage paid to their native Country, if they procure a certificate of their faithful services from the Commanding Officer of the Corps they served with.

It is well known, that the main stay of the Rebel Army, are the old Country Men. This grace may Detach them from so unnatural a connection.

That every American prisoner, without distinction or consideration of expence be sent to England and that the Rebels (if an exchange of prisoners is thought proper) be obliged to pay their passage back to America. One hundred Men thus sent home would make more impression than one thousand killed in the field of Battle.

That higher bounties be given to Provincial Recruits, and the clothing of Provincial Regiments (at least I wish of those raised in this Province) be sent from England to the Commanding Officers of said Corps, who might be made answerable for them.

That two or three squadrons of ships with Troops on board, during the proper season, do make continual deperadation on the Coasts and up Navigable Rivers, most, if not all of which, are vulnerable. This would draw the Enemy out of their fastnesses, and open an opportunity of bringing on by certain junctions & manœuvres a general Action.

That the Indian Nations lying between Quebec and West Florida be let loose on the Frontiers of the revolted Colonies, unrestrained, excepting to Women and Children.

That a display of political courage firmness and wisdom be manifested on this side the water, & go hand in hand with the vigorous exertions of the King's Troops. These measures, My Lord, accompanying whatever may be the general design of the campaign, must accumulate distress to the Enemy, animate the friendly part of America and most probably draw the War to a decision in favour of Govern<sup>t</sup>

These hints are humbly submitted to your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s contemplation, being objects that strike me from a nearer view of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s affairs here, than your Lord<sup>sh</sup> can possibly have from your remote distance from them, and which may be subject to more sudden variations, from the designs and movements of the Enemy, than from the wisest sistematical plan, projected in the Cabinet of State.

I am with all possible respect My Lord,

My Lord.

The adventurers in the letters of Marque derive great comfort and encouragement in the expressions of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s satisfaction, you are pleased to communicate, on their laudable spirit of enterprize. The success that has accompanied their zeal bears testimony, that I was not erroneous in my suggestions of the important utility of that depraudatory commerce. One hundred and forty two vessels, having been taken by letters of Marque, and brought into this Port, (as by the within Register of the Judge of the Admiralty) since the beginning of last September, when the first ships were Commissioned. Merchants of the best credit here assure me, the value of their captures, amount much above two hundred thousand pounds sterling.

The glorious success that has accompanied the spirited exertions of His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s arms, in the West India's and Georgia, are powerful incitements, as well as resources for that service.

Many Men have found their way thro' the Rebel lines, to enter on board these ships in consequence of my Proclamation of encouragement

The list of letters of Marque issued are herein inclosed.

The expectations of the King's Friends grow more vigorous every day, as that of the Rebels subside. The Rebel Leaders are their obstinate adherents, meriting no further management on the Part of Government. I have great confidence that the wisdom of His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s Councils, the force of his arms, and the High spirit of the Nation will, this campaign, effect the much sought for reconciliation.

I am with all possible respect

My Lord.

Halifax. 11. Febr 1779.

My Lord.

Agreeable to my letter N<sup>o</sup> 9. which I had the honor to address to your Lord<sup>p</sup> I sailed from New York on the 10th of September last for Quebec, but after many delays occasioned by contrary Winds, and after passing almost thro' the Gulph of St Lawrence, we were driven out by a storm in which the ship suffered much, and in our next attempt to proceed we met with a second Gale which carried away some Yards and so damaged our Rigging & disabled the people that we were necessitated to make this Port in October; the ship could not proceed, neither could Gen<sup>l</sup> McLean procure for me or the detachment on Board any conveyance at that season, so that we were necessitated to remain here till spring, when I have assurance of his aid. I have however been fortunate enough to get Sir Henry Clinton's Dispatches safely conveyed to General Haldimand's hands by an Officer and some of my woodsmen, who luckily escaped the Rebel partys that infested the Country about St John's River.

On my arrival here I found that a Treaty had been just concluded between this Province and the Indians, before M<sup>r</sup> Franklin acting as an agent, and that he had received from them a Treaty, the majority of them had entered into with the Massachusetts Bay by which they were to furnish a certain number of Men to the latter, and they likewise gave up some Commissions they had received from that Rebel state all which I understand L<sup>d</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Hughes<sup>1</sup> will lay before Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, the dates of which will shew, that notwithstanding what has been said of Indians and their cruelty, the Rebels early endeavoured to avail themselves of their assistance. M<sup>r</sup> Butler my Deputy (to whom, as formerly mentioned I had transmitted instructions) continued when we heard last from New York to make a very useful diversion on the frontiers with a good party of Loyalists & Indians, and Joseph the Indian has with a large body of Indians struck some capital strokes, which obliged the Rebels to detach part of their force that way, and has greatly disconcerted them, and by those who carried the Dispatches to Gen<sup>l</sup> Haldimand, I sent instructions for meeting the Indians soon after the waters become open hoping to leave this place so as to arrive at Quebec, about the second week in May, which is as soon as any thing can possibly be undertaken from thence, & I have lately heard from Sir Henry Clinton thereon.

I persuade myself with meeting in Canada that Countenance and support, mentioned in my letter N<sup>o</sup> 9. and which appears so highly necessary to the effectual discharge of my duty; I wish for no more, and I hope to shew its propriety, in the consequences that shall derive from it; as to my unavoidable detention here, it is a much greater disappointment to myself than it can be to the service at this season, which must soon expire, when I shall be enabled to proceed, where I have so long wished to go.

An account has arrived here lately of formidable preparation making in New England against Canada; some say 15000 Men are destined for that purpose, a number I cannot give credit to, as I dont conceive the time could admit of the necessary arrangements for such a body. I have mentioned it to Gen<sup>l</sup> Haldimand, but whatever their design is, if it be not carried into execution in the course of this month, they will (from the season) find it impracticable, the lakes not being afterwards passable for Artillery in general.

I mentioned in my last, that many good Woodsmen had been lately enlisted for my service; as the late Sir William Johnson expressed and I have experienced the utility of incorporating them with the Indians, I persuade myself it will meet with approbation; and as the conduct of the Indians has sufficiently evinced their attachment and importance to Government, I am confident it would greatly tend to secure their fidelity if I am unable to give them some assurances of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Royal approbation, when I am next honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s commands.

I have the honor to be with true respect

My Lord,

My Lord,

By the Mercury Packet, I am honored with Your Lord<sup>ps</sup> Duplicate Dispatch N<sup>o</sup> 18 and Circular letter accompanied with His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Speech and Addresses of both houses of Parliament, copies of which I shall send up the Country.

Our Privateers have taken above one hundred and fifty prizes since the 18th September last; yesterday a small sloop, loaded with amunition was brought in here by the Revenge, from Philadelphia, bound to South Carolina. Seldom a day passes without a prize by the Privateers.

I returned the 27th of last month from an alert at Horse Neck and Greenwich, the Report of which, I have made to the Commander in Chief. The experience of that fatiguing March convinces me of the necessity of the Fleet cooperating with the Troops, for the purpose of disembarking the Men in strength and vigor, & reembarking them when fatigued, in the execution of the plan formed, and perhaps harrassed by the Enemy while on shore. Without rapidity in pursuit, the object is removed, and by delay in retreat, the Enemy shortly collect in Numbers, with the advantage of a better knowledge of the Country, often hang on our Rear successfully.

I remain perfectly in the same sentiments respecting some measures I presumed to recommend for your Lord<sup>ps</sup> consideration.

I am most respectfully

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>ps</sup> most obedient and very humble servant.

Whitehall. 3. March 1779.

Sir

Since my letter to you of the 4. of Nov<sup>r</sup> I have received your Dispatches Numbered from 58 to 67. (except number 62 which is still missing) and laid them before the King.

His Majesty very much approved your cheerful acquiescence in Sir Henry Clinton's desire that you should remain with the Army during the Winter, as so few General Officers were present; and it will be very pleasing to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> to find your health has not suffered materially by your compliance.

His Majesty does not however intend that you should again be subject to the like inconvenience; for the late promotion of Officers having filled up the vacancies on the American Staff, His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has been graciously pleased to permit me to acquaint Sir Henry Clinton, that His Majesty consents to his giving you leave to return to England, as soon as General Robertson arrives at New York, who I hope will go out with the reinforcement of the Army. I shall also send you by Gen<sup>l</sup> Robertson His Majesty's License of absence as Gov<sup>r</sup> of the Province of New York; but in respect to your request of exchanging that Govern<sup>r</sup> for a Military one, I am not authorized to give you any expectations that such an exchange will take place; neither have I authority to tell you that the Board of Treasury is disposed to augment your Salary, so as to make it equal to the full value of the office of Civil Governor before the Rebellion, but perhaps when you arrive, you may be able to satisfy their Lordships of the propriety of it.

The Officers you have appointed to the Militia appear to be necessary, and the pay allotted them not unreasonable; but I hope you have made those appointments with Sir Henry Clinton's concurrence, as all expences of a Military nature must come through him, and be defrayed out of the Army-extraordinaries.

I am etc.

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will perceive by the inclosed certificates, that the ninth of December 1775 I received by the Advice of Council, certain public Records of the Province of New York on Board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon; which shortly afterwards, for greater security (the Rebels threatening to Board in the night, and take the said Vessel,) were put on Board the Asia under the care of Capt<sup>n</sup> Vandeput. The Asia being ordered home, soon after the taking of New York, and the first great conflagration of that City, Capt<sup>n</sup> Vandeput desired me to inform him what he should do with the two Boxes of Public Records; I acquainted him, as the Enemy boasted they would burn up the remainder of New York that Winter, the Records would not be safe on shore, and accordingly recommended him to put them on Board the Eagle Man of War. Capt<sup>n</sup> Vandeput sailed a few days after, since which I have never heard, what he actually did with those Records.

I presume he either put them on Board the Eagle or if he carried them home, that he has lodged them in the Plantation Office, of which your Lord<sup>sh</sup> must have had notice—

Whitehall. 1. April 1779.

Sir

Since my letter to you of the 3rd of last Month, I have received your Dispatches N<sup>os</sup> 68 and 69 and laid them before the King, and His Majesty observed with great satisfaction the good Effects of the Measure you were enabled to take of granting letters of Marque in weakening and distressing the Enemy in their own commerce, as well as in their depra-dations upon ours, and above all in depriving them of the Assistance they had derived from our seamen that had fallen into their hands and been compelled to enter into their service by the terrors of ill treatment, while they remained prisoners, and of being pressed on board the Men of War when they returned, and it is a great pleasure to me to find the event has so fully justified a step from which I always expected the best consequences, although there were not wanting the most strenuous endeavours to oppose it.

The fair prospect there is of a successful campaign and an extension of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> possessions on the side of New York renders it necessary, that a Civil Governor should be upon the spot to take upon him the exercise of his function the moment a fit occasion presents itself, and in the mean time to hold out to the King's faithful subjects in all the Revolted provinces, His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> gracious intention to restore to them the blessings of Civil Government, when the prov<sup>ce</sup> is subdued, or returns to its allegiance and to remove all apprehensions of their being ruled hereafter by Military Law; His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has therefore been pleased to appoint Major General Robertson to succeed you as Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York, and he will carry out with him in the next Ship of War that sails for North America His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Commission for that purpose.

Mr. Richard Jackson to the Lords of Trade.

[New-York Papers, Bundle Uu., No. 81.]

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

May it please Your Lordships.

In obedience to your Lord<sup>pp</sup>s commands signified to me by a letter of M<sup>r</sup> Cumberlands inclosing a copy of part of the Commission of the Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York relating to the Custody and use of the great seal of the said province and informing me that it was surmised, that the said seal is at this time in the power of the Rebels, and desiring me to consider and report what further authority is necessary to be given on that head, and what seal may be substituted in the Place of the public Seal until another one can be made and allotted for that Province.

I have taken the same into consideration and conceive that His Maj<sup>ty</sup> may by his sign manual legally appoint any seal to be used as the Great Seal of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> either for a longer or shorter time, and consequently to be used as such, until a new great seal can be made in the manner, new Great seals have usually heretofore been made for the Provinces in America.

I cannot however, but represent to your Lord<sup>pp</sup>s that it seems expedient that the interim seal (if I may so call it) should be, if possible, sufficiently discriminated from all other seals, that impressions of it in Wax should be sent to the Sherriffs at least to so many of them within the province as are in the obedience to His Majesty, to the end, that they may make the same known to His Majesty's subjects by Proclamation, or that the knowledge of the said seal should be otherwise published; and it seems proper that the seal used as a great Seal, should be used for no other purpose; and should be destroyed in the presence of proper Officers, when the New Great seal shall be delivered to the Gov<sup>r</sup>.

All which is humbly submitted by

My Lords

Your Lord<sup>pp</sup>s most obedient most humble servant.

Sir

In pursuance of your advice respecting the Great Seal of New York we have amended the Article in General Robertsons Commission by adding—"Or such other Seal as We may direct " to be used instead thereof."

<sup>1</sup> RICHARD JACKSON, King's Counsel, F. R. S., F. S. A., was the son of the Deputy-Governor of the South Sea Company. In 1764 he became Secretary to Mr. Grenville, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and represented Weymouth in the House of Commons. After filling various offices, he became, in 1782, one of the Lords of the Treasury, and died at the Southampton buildings on 6th May, 1787. On account of his extensive reading and retentive memory, he was known as Omniscient Jackson. At the time of his death he was Governor of the Society among Dissenters for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and a member of Parliament. Gentleman's Magazine, LVII, 464.—Ed.

M<sup>r</sup> Eden<sup>1</sup> tells us that M<sup>r</sup> Tryon uses a Seal, (whether an interim one, or not, he cannot tell) upon this information I request to know whether the Secretary of State may not give the Kings Commands to Governor Robertson to use such Seal as M<sup>r</sup> Tryon used if it shall so prove that the Rebels have got the Great Seal without formality of a Sign Manual founded on a Representation from the Board.

To Thomas De Grey<sup>2</sup> Esquire under Secretary of State &c &c.

Sir,

There being some reason to apprehend that the public Seal of New York is in the hands of the Rebels, my Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations in preparing that Article of Major General Robertsons Commission as Gov<sup>r</sup> of the said Province, which gives him the use and custody of the public Seal have proposed to add in the following words—"Or such "other Seal as His Majesty may direct to be used in lieu thereof"—I am therefore directed by my Lords to suggest to you, for the information of Lord George Germain, that it may be adviseable for his Lordship to signify to Major General Robertson by His Majesty's Command that if he should find (as it is apprehended) the public Seal of the Province in the hands of the Rebels in that case he should use and keep such other Seal in lieu thereof as hath been used and kept by his predecessor Governor Tryon and therewith Seal all things whatsoever that have usually passed the Great Seal of the said Province under this Government.

My Lord.

The honour of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s Dispatch of the 3rd March afforded me the highest satisfactions in the assurances it conveyed to me of the Royal approbation, on my remaining last Winter with the Army; Though the King's most gracious intention to allow me a speedy return to my family is a cordial to my spirits; yet permit me to request of you My Lord, to assure His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, however necessary the attendance to my private concerns, however warm & sanguine my wishes to re-visit my native Country & family, I have not formed the least idea, in the present momentous period of the war, to withdraw myself from a situation, wherein I wish to be honored by the Commander in Chief, in some share in the efforts of what may very possibly be a decisive Campaign.

The instances of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s benevolence towards me, has been too much, and too recent, for me to be uneasy about my expectations I might have formed, respecting an exchange for my Civil Government.

I flatter myself I shall be able on my return to England, to satisfy the Lords Commissioners of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Treasury, of the propriety of their Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s fulfilling the assurances given me by your Noble and Honorable predecessor in Office, of an additional Salary to the Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York.

The appointments I made to certain officers of the Militia on Long Island, was with the concurrence of the Commander in Chief, and will be defrayed by his Excellency out of the Army extraordinaries, while continued.

Sir

I have received your Dispatches numbered from 70 to 74 inclusive, and have laid them before the King; and as the same conveyance brought me an account of your expedition to Horse Neck from Sir Henry Clinton, in which he does justice to your zeal and good conduct, and the activity & perseverance of the Troops you commanded; and I have had the satisfaction to acquaint him, they have met with his Majesty's approbation.

The Proclamations of which copies are enclosed in your's N<sup>o</sup> 73. appear well calculated to produce the effects you expected from them, and gives me great pleasure to find the spirit of annoying the Commerce of the King's Enemies increases among the Loyal Inhabitants of New York and that their exertions have been attended with so much private benefit as well as public advantage.

M<sup>r</sup> Apthorp's Loyalty and sufferings certainly render him an object of attention and intitle him to the share in the public benevolence; but as Sir Henry Clinton is directed to use his discretion in relieving the distresses of such of the King's faithful subjects as are at New York, M<sup>r</sup> Apthorp<sup>1</sup> must make his situation known to him.

I have directed the proper inquiry to be made for the Records of New York that had been put on board the Eagle Man of War, and I hope soon to be able to inform you, they are in safety.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXX.]

Whitehall. 25 June 1779.

Sir,

Your letters N<sup>os</sup> 75, 76. and 77. have been received and laid before the King.

Your determination to remain with the Commander in Chief in your Military capacity, and to afford him your services during the present Campaign, does you great honor.

I learnt with great satisfaction the number of letters of Marque which you had Commissioned, & the success they had met with. Nothing could have tended, in my opinion, more effectually to a successful Campaign, than the employment of so large a body of Men, which, at the same time, that it distresses the Trade of the Enemy, must be a great impediment to the recruiting the Rebel Army.

I cannot but flatter myself that the Commissions to cruize against Spanish vessels, which will be forwarded by this conveyance, and of which I have apprized you in my circular letter of the 17th inst. will tempt a considerable part of M<sup>r</sup> Washington's Army, as well as of the Inhabitants at large, to fit out the vessels, not only against the Ships of His Catholic Majesty, which may be met with in the Atlantic, but even to extend their views to the Spanish Commerce, and possibly even to some of the Spanish possessions in the South Seas.

I have the pleasure to assure you that Admiral Arbuthnot means to give every possible degree of assistance and encouragement to the fitting out of privateers, and that no attention on his part will be wanting to give the Men such exemptions and protections as may be most conducive to the success of such a measure.

I trust that our exertion in America, as well as in great Britain, will increase in proportion to the danger which threatens us, and that we shall all join in defending the British Empire, with the most active zeal and alacrity, and in the prosecution of such measures, as will tend most effectually to subdue His Majesty's Enemies.

Whitehall. 9. July 1779.

Sir,

The King having been graciously pleased to appoint you Gov<sup>r</sup> of the Province of New-York, and the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of the Admiralty having appointed His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Ship Raleigh to convey you to your Govern<sup>t</sup> I am commanded to signify to you His Majesty's pleasure, that you do proceed thither without delay.

Such instructions as it has been judged fit to give you, in the present circumstances of the Prov<sup>ce</sup>, under His Majesty's sign manual, for your guidance, you will receive herewith; and so long as the parts of the Province in the possession of the King's forces, continue subject to the restraints of the prohibitory Act, and to be governed by Military Law, the orders of the Commander in Chief must be the rule of your conduct in all cases to which these instructions do not apply. Nevertheless as Sir Henry Clinton is vested with powers to restore to peace the whole, or any part of the Province, if he shall judge it fitting; in which case the Civil Constitution shall revive, and your authority as Civil Gov<sup>r</sup> become competent to the purposes of the Commission His Maj<sup>ty</sup> has honored you with; in the hope therefore that circumstances will be so favorable as to induce Sir Henry Clinton to take this step, with respect to a part, at least, of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> I shall proceed to point out to you such measures as it is wished you should adopt, as opportunities may offer for carrying them into execution.

It is most essential to the King's service, and the public welfare, that the Loyalty of the Members of the Council, and every person employed in the executive part of Govern<sup>t</sup> should be firm and pure. It is therefore His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s express Command that you do not appoint any person to a seat in the Council, or to any other office, nor suffer any person to continue a Member of the Council, or in the execution of any Office, of whose Loyalty and attachment to the Constitution, there can be just ground to doubt. The calling an Assembly is a matter which will require much consideration, and the proper time of doing it, must be left to your and the Council's judgement. It is the King's wish to give that proof to the Inhabitants of New York, and of all the other provinces, that it is not His Majesty's intention to Govern America by Military Law, but to allow them all the benefits of a local Legislature, & their former Constitution; but it would defeat that end, if an Assembly were convened before such part of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> was restored to peace, as that the Members returned would compose the majority of the whole, if all those to whom the Laws of the Prov<sup>ce</sup> give a right to elect, had returned Members.

It is impossible to say what measures will be fit to be proposed to the first Assembly; for none should be proposed, that there is any likelihood of being rejected, or occasioning disagreement or altercation between the different branches of the Legislature. Your knowledge therefore of the temper and disposition of the Members will be your best guide in this case; but whatever is effected for the purpose of chastisement ought to appear to come from themselves.

The abrogating and annulling of all Laws and pretended legal proceedings, since the abolition of legal Govern<sup>t</sup>, must of course be the object of a declaratory Act. The arming the executive authority with sufficient powers to check and prevent disaffection and Rebellion in future, will I hope, be judged proper for another; and that the making reparation for the injuries and losses sustained by Loyal subjects during the Rebellion, will become the object of a third.

The making a permanent provision for the Provincial expence, and fixing a ratio for the contribution of New York to the General charge of the Empire, would be no more than suitable returns for the generosity of Parliament in relinquishing all purpose of imposing taxes, in the Colonies, except as regulations of Trade, and even in that case, suffering the Revenue arising from them to be carried to the account of the Colonies, and should New York take the lead in so dutiful and grateful a measure, it could not fail of recommending the Prov<sup>ce</sup> to peculiar favour, and obtaining for her some extraordinary indulgence.

Should you find the Assembly disposed to take such a step, as an encouragement to them to proceed, you may assure them that His Maj<sup>y</sup> will most graciously consent to remit the arrears of quit rents, and it is His Majesty's intention to apply their future produce, and also the casual revenue, to public services within the Province.

It may be expected that if the Rebellion continues, numbers of Loyal subjects will come into New York, from the revolted Provinces, who may be desirous of becoming settlers. To all such, it is the King's pleasure you should make gratuitous allotments of Land, of such extent as you and the Council shall think sufficient for each of their accommodation, subject to the usual conditions; but you will take especial care to avoid being mistaken in regard to the persons to whom you shall make such allotments, and to prevent any but Loyal subjects from obtaining or being benefitted by them.

When you are upon the spot you will be able to form an opinion, what improvements or alterations in the former Constitution would be acceptable to the people, as tending more firmly to unite the Prov<sup>ce</sup> with Great Britain, and to render that union indissoluble, & I must desire you will state fully to me, in your correspondence, what you may collect to be their wishes on this important subject. — I shall at present only add my wishes for your prosperous voyage and safe arrival, and am — etc.

New York, 28. July. 1779.

My Lord,

The honor of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s duplicate dispatch of the 5th May N<sup>o</sup> 21. afforded me the greatest satisfaction in the King's approbation of my conduct on the Alert to Horse Neck. It will be an additional comfort to me, if my late expedition on the Coast of Connecticut meets the same Royal testimony; the report of which service is made to the Commander in Chief.

My opinions remain unchangeable respecting the utility of deperadatory excursions. I think Rebellion must soon totter if those exertions are reiterated and made to extremity. To seek the Rebel Chief in the highlands, may be hunting a Wolf in the mountains, farther than removing the obstructions to the navigation of the North River, but when accumulated distress on the sea Board calls aloud for succour, he must meet the King's Army on less advantageous ground, or Risk, the loss of the Colonies thus attacked.

I transmit herewith copies of the propositions I have laid before the Commander in Chief. The one for embodying the Refugees under Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin; the other for instituting an Office of enquiry, both which are now under his Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s consideration. I conceive it will be good policy and attended with advantage to the King's cause, to set Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin forward in contrast to His Father's conduct, and may have its weight probably in the eyes of Europe.

I am with all possible respect

Dear Sir.

I have the honor herewith of forwarding to Your Excell<sup>ty</sup> my reveries on the subject of setting Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin at the head of the Refugees, and embodying them under his command on a liberal footing.

I conceive it the soundest policy to place him in a respectable point of view, in contrast to his Father's principles. Whether I am wright or wroug I feel a satisfaction in freely communicating my public sentiments to you, and more satisfaction in the candid consideration you give them.

With perfect esteem I am ettc etc.

Governor Tryon's Reveries submitted to Sir Henry Clinton concerning the Embodying Loyalists etc.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXX.]

(copy)

There being many hundred Loyalists within the British lines, and more expected, who for various reasons will not inlist themselves soldiers, and many of whom are nevertheless willing to take up Arms and contribute their aid for the suppression of the Rebellion — is is proposed.

1st To call upon them to embody themselves under the immediate command of Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklin with the rank of _____ of Provincials, and the Title of Director General and

Commandant of the Associated Loyalists, and that he have power to nominate and appoint Officers and make such Orders & regulations (subject to the approbation of the Commander in Chief) as may be judged necessary for the Government of this body and the most efficacious exertions of its force

2<sup>dly</sup> That they be furnished with arms, ammunition and Camp equipage (if it can be spared) their Director giving receipts and engaging to account for the expenditures.

3<sup>dly</sup> That they be occasionally supplied with Rations to be repaid when required by an equivalent in live stock for the use of the Army and hospitals.

4th That a number of small armed vessels with boats assigned for their use, to be returned or accounted for. These to be manned by the Loyalists.

5th That their Commandant shall plan and direct their enterprizes for distressing the Enemy in any quarter not forbidden by the Commander in Chief and have liberty to form conjunct expeditions with such private vessels of war as may be willing to act with them.

6th Their places of Rendezvous to be at Rhode Island, or Long Island, East from Oyster Bay, at Hobock, and occasionally at Staten Island, or Sandy Hook.

7th That the Commanding Officers of Out Posts & Guard ships, near the places where they assemble, or Pass, be ordered to give them countenance and if occasionally wanted assistance & support.

8th The Associated Loyalists to be entitled to the plunder they take, which is to be only from Rebels and not from Loyalists tho' living among them. Restitution to be speedily made for deviations from this article or a compensation to the value of the Loyalists loss; and no excesses, barbarities or irregularities to be committed contrary to the Law of Arms as practised by civilized Nations.

9th The Prisoners made by the Loyalists to be kept apart from others and exchanged only for Associated Loyalists except in special cases directed otherwise by the Commander in Chief. The exchanges to be in ordinary under the conduct of the Director General and the King's Commissary General for Prisoners.

10th The Associated Loyalists when required by the Commander in Chief to join the King's Troops on special services, and during the time of such co-operation to receive pay and subsistence as the King's troops.

11th Intelligence acquired to be forthwith communicated to the Commander in Chief.

12th A sum of money to be advanced by the order of the Commander in Chief to the Director General, and credit to be given to his drafts as far as twenty or thirty thousand pounds, to be applied for these services and accounted for quarterly. The whole number of the Association not to exceed two thousand Men, without the further order of the Commander in Chief.

Lastly. The Associators to be under articles to ensure mutual confidence among themselves, and be submitted for the approbation of the Commander in Chief.

All which is referred to the wisdom & pleasure of the Commander in Chief by his most obedient servant

Governor Tryon to Sir Henry Clinton.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXX.]

New York. 26. July. 1779.

Dear Sir,

It being evident that the complicated nature and extent of the powers of the Commander in Chief, must in such a war as the present, call his attention to innumerable objects, as well of political as Military consideration, and as information concerning the State, condition, transactions temper & designs of the revolted Colonies flow to this place from all quarters, and in order that such information may be rendered usefull to Govern<sup>t</sup>, by collecting and digesting the material points of intelligence, the following project is submitted to your Excell<sup>ty</sup> as a measure of General and great utility, viz<sup>t</sup>

That an Office be instituted and entitled an Office of Enquiry with authority to make enquiries at large, and to examine all persons coming into the British lines, of every rank and class, and that their discoveries be registered, and from time to time transmitted, with remarks and references to the Commander in Chief.

The Intendants to be two persons well acquainted with this Country, and one of them within doors, while the other pursues his enquiries abroad.

They will want a register, a Clerk, a door keeper and a Messenger, a small house, fuel & stationary. The Intendants, Register and Clerk, to be under an oath of Secrecy, and to examine all persons sent to them, Deserters, prisoners, Refugees and others, & to give special attention to references from head quarters.

The order for their appointment, should entitle them to the aid of the Commandant, to enforce attendances when necessary, and the Assistance of the police, who should be required, to direct such as come in, to this Office, or report their names, and where they may be found.

It may be a part of the business of the Intendants to transmit to the Commandant such Information as may be worth attention in this Department, and to the Superintendent, what meerly concerns the Police.

This Office may also occasionally take affidavits of the Prosecutions and cruelties the Loyalists suffer from the Rebels. These Affidavits transmitted to the King's Ministers may be necessary to confute many of the assertions of the opposers at home to the measures of Government.

I am with great respect

Your Excellency's

most obedient humble servant

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON. M. G.

Governor Tryon to Vice-Admiral Arbuthnot.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXX.]

Sir.

In the clearest conviction of the utility of employing Privateers, upon the shoals and Navigable Rivers of this extensive Coast, to intercept the supplies collected from foreign Parts by the Rebels, or making their remittances for the same in the produce of this Country while the Royal Navy was engaged in more signal and glorious achievements, I have neglected nothing in my power to forward the design, since His Majesty gave command and authority upon that subject.

Encouraged by Admiral Gambiers public assurances, and urged by my proclamations, (copies of which I take the liberty herewith to put into your hands) many Marines as well as Landsmen, have been drawn to us from various parts of the revolted Provinces, and this branch of general service is so prosperously advanced, that if I am not very much misinformed, the Crews Commissioned from this Port, amount to upwards of Six Thousand Men, many of whom are Converts from the Rebels, and others persecuted Loyalists who have in this way found subsistence without charge to His Majesty and fortunately out of the spoils of his Enemies.

I shall be extremely happy, if the measures I have pursued, meet with your approbation, and to find them countenanced by your influence and Power.

Under an apprehension that the declension of the Rebellion, until the happy hour of its total suppression, will prompt the Usurpers to still greater cruelties, both upon His Majesty's faithful & penitent subjects, and that the objects of compassion will thus be daily multiplied, I cannot in justice to my own feelings, repress my wish for some early & explicit declaration on your part, in support of the public faith pledged by Admiral Gambier and myself, and which has contributed so much to weaken our Enemies, to animate the hearts of our friends, and to promote the general commerce of the Nation.

I only add, Sir, as a motive to some early expression of your Intentions; that Sir George Collier has not thought proper on my application to him to repeat the Assurances given by Admiral Gambier, and that by his Proclamation of the 13th of April (which is also inclosed for your inspection) however well intended, or proper for the prevention of Desertion from the Kings ships cannot fail of damping the ardour of the Merchants & Adventurers, as well as of traversing another main object of the prior proclamations, which was, if possible to prevent our Marines in captivity from being tempted to serve in the Rebel Cruisers, by which our Trade has been so much injured, & acquisitions made for the protraction of this unnatural Rebellion.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your. etc.

My Lord.

By the arrival of Admiral Arbuthnot's Fleet, I was honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s dispatch of the 1st of April; the duplicate of which was acknowledged by the last Packet, and by General Vaughan.

For want of Armed ships continually cruising off Sandy Hook, as well as being stationed within the Hook, a number of Vessels have been picked by the Rebel privateers from Egg & Barnegate Harbours etc, and several of the privateer's prizes been taken near the Hook also the June Packet.

I have presented my letter to the Admiral, respecting encouragement of the privateers, a copy of which has been transmitted to your Lordship.

The arrival of the Roebuck is looked for every day, in which Gov<sup>r</sup> Robertson is expected, to take upon him this Govern<sup>t</sup>'s agreeable to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s appointment.

I am with all possible respect My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient and

Sir,

As in case such parts of the province of N. York as are in His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s possession, should be restored to the King's peace, the care and disposition of the deserted lands and Tenements will properly fall under your direction, it is judged necessary to inform you of the ideas entertained here of the uses to which they may be applied until such time as the Legislature of the Province may otherwise dispose of them.

The easing this country of the heavy expence of the Loyal Subjects, who have been deprived of their property in America and taken refuge in Great Britain or other parts of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s dominions, is the first object to which these lands and tenements should be applied. Such therefore of those meritorious sufferers as are present at New York or may come there, who have allowances from the public Revenue for their support as are capable of employing any of those Lands to advantage and are willing to take them in lieu of their allowances, or such part thereof as you shall judge them equivalent to, you will put in possession of the lands they apply to you for, upon such terms, as you shall agree with them for, and transmit to me a list of their names in order that their allowances may be lessened or discontinued accordingly. Should there be more deserted lands than you can dispose of in this manner it will be proper to lease them to such Loyal subjects as are desirous to take them at certain Rents, which you will appoint a proper person to collect in order to their being made a fund to go in aid of the grant of Parliament for the support of the Loyal Refugees in general.

With respect to the deserted tenements, such of them as shall be judged necessary for the accommodation of the King's troops must be appropriated for that purpose, and the remainder leased out upon certain Rents in the manner as is directed to be done with the deserted lands, and the income collected, and reserved for the same purpose; and an exact account of the income of the whole transmitted. You will however be careful, that on no pretence any new charge is brought upon the public.

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>ps</sup> Dispatches of the 17th and 25th of June, the former Circular, the latter N<sup>o</sup> 22, are safely arrived with their inclosures. I shall endeavour to fulfill His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s directions therein; and I have the satisfaction to assure your Lord<sup>ps</sup>, the Loyal Inhabitants here, derive more expectations of successful enterprize from the unanimity at home, than apprehensions from the Spanish War.

Admiral Arbuthnot has assured me of every assistance to the letters of Marque and is to issue a Proclamation explicit of that intention.

The authorities from the Lords of the Admiralty, for issuing letters of Marque against Spain came directed to Gov<sup>r</sup> Robertson, which I opened, and inclose a copy of the Commission and superscription. I shall in virtue of the spirit and expediency of that Commission issue letters of Marque against the Spaniards.

If I may not have fulfilled the Lords Commiss<sup>rs</sup> intentions in this point, I trust the irregularity, if any, through your Lord<sup>ps</sup> good offices, may be set right.

My Proclamation setting forth His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s gracious determination of giving the Royal share of prizes to the captors of Spanish Vessels, is also herewith transmitted.

[Platations General (S. P. O.) CCLXV.]

My Lord.

I had the honor to address your Lordship with a few lines on my departure from Halifax last June, explaining the delays which retarded my setting out till that time.—On the 17th July I arrived at Quebec, where the General Judged it expedient that I should remain till the arrival of the Fleet, which he apprehended might bring him some particular matters in which I might be concerned, but at my solicitation to go up to the Indian Country, he instructed me to that purpose sometime after, and accordingly I arrived at this place on the 29th ult<sup>r</sup> from whence I shall set out for the upper country within two days, accompanied by a good party of Indians.

When I arrived in this Province, I found a Deputation of the Six Nations had newly come down, who were particularly solicitous about Troops, and the reestablishment of the important post at Ontario, which the General had under contemplation, but from the difficulty that attended the transport of provisions, he did not think it practicable this season.—The Indians were the more urgent on this point as there were certain accounts that the Rebels were marching in a considerable body into their Country, of which we have since had more particular information, and that my Deputy Major Butler was advancing to the relief of the Senecas.—I herewith inclose a copy of the proceedings with the General, and shall take another with me to the Indians, but since my arrival in this City, the General has from further accounts judged it proper to order up a body of Troops with Sir John Johnson to support and encourage the Indians, which I consider as very necessary measure, and I heartily wish it could have been undertaken sooner, for I may venture to affirm that the Six Nations are now, from situation and circumstances of such superior consequence to Govern<sup>r</sup>, that should they receive a blow of a capital nature, the Rebels might do what they pleased on the frontiers, and we should very soon lose the possession of the lakes and communications as well as the friendship of the other Indian Nations, the effects of which, I need not to point out.

If the Rebels are not able to effect any thing material very soon, I hope to furnish a seasonable reinforcement to oppose them, and I am confident, that if I was armed with a proper authority to encourage the many white people, who constantly retire from the Rebels to the frontiers, and are good Woodsmen, I could soon have a very respectable body of Men fitting to be incorporated with the Indians. Sir John Johnson could likewise do the same, and thus bodies might be formed on the spot, capable of much larger undertakings than can be expected from the present force in that Country.—

Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, has been long since informed I presume that the Indian goods sent to New York and ordered by Sir W<sup>m</sup> Howe into the Quarter Master General's Store house, were burnt last summer (when that house and about sixty others were consumed by fire) except a few pieces of cloth, that were thrown out of a window, estimated at about £200 sterl: but in fact too much damaged for the use of the Indians. I thought it necessary to acquaint your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of this latter circumstance, that provision may be made accordingly as the service may require, more especially as the goods ordered in the Three Brothers are not yet arrived here, and may come so late as to oblige me to purchase most of the articles immediately wanted, which however I shall do with a strict eye to economy.

I am by no means doubtful of success, (if the present inroad of the Rebels fails) so long as I am supported in that authority and field Rank, essential to my station, and which always accompanied it, and should they even succeed in some measure I am not without resources; I have been so well supported by my Officers in different quarters, that the service has never suffered thro' my disappointments—disappointments, which I have never fully explained, tho' it is amply in my power to do so, I now hope, that they are at an end, and that I may thro' your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s countenance be enabled to transmit such favourable accounts of Indian Affairs, as will evince my zeal and endeavours for His Maj<sup>y</sup>'s service.

I humbly request, that this Dispatch may be laid before the King, and I am with profound respect

My Lord,

Your Lord<sup>p</sup>'s most obedient and
most humble servant.

G. JOHNSON

P. S. I find, my last, should have been numbered 11, I have numbered this accordingly.

Conference of General Haldimand and Deputies from the Five Nations.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXV.]

At a Conference with Teyohagweanda a principal Onondago Chief & three Cayugas at the Castle of S<sup>t</sup> Louis, Quebec 20th August 1779.

Col: Guy Johnson sole Agent and Superintendent of the Six Nations and their Confederacy—

Daniel Claus Esq<sup>re</sup>.

Col: Carleton & several other Officers—

General Haldimand having called the above Deputies of the Five Nations to this place to give them an answer upon Messages they were charged with from the Confederacy, as well as to convince them by several proofs that there was no French Fleet in this Harbour, and the place in possession of the French; as reported among them by the Rebel Oneidas.—And after their having been here for six weeks, and seeing the Cork and London Fleets arrive; they were told they might return, and dismissed with the following speech.

Brothers. I am glad to meet you this day, to signify my thanks to you for having come here at my call, and to see the English Ships arrive; that you may report to your Nations on your return what you have seen. As you have delivered your speeches to Col: Campbell, and the seven Nations of this Province, I shall give my directions in writing to Col: Campbell, to give you a full answer in conjunction with the seven Nations of Canada, at the same time I shall give you my sentiments upon them in a few words, that you may say you had them from my own mouth. — With regard to your enquiry why Oswego was not established, I am to tell you, that when I sent you my speech early this spring of my intending so to do, and in consequence had appointed your patron, the late Sir William Johnson's son, Sir John Johnson, to march with his Regiment for that purpose, I then had intelligence that the Rebels were preparing Boats at Saratoga and Albany, to go up the Mohawk River with an intention to take Post at Oswego, but in the course of a few weeks I received a different account, that, that was not their intention, but that a large Rebel Army was come up Connecticut River, under the command of the Rebel General Haysen,<sup>1</sup> with an intention to invade this Province, which according to events in war, made me put a stop to Sir John's proceedings, at the same time to throw some additional force into the garrisons of the Indian Country, I sent a reinforcement to Detroit, another to Niagara, and one to Carleton Island, & kept some light companies ready upon the first notice to March to your relief; at the same time let me tell you, that the Great King your Father is not sparing of his Troops, nor lets you fight his Battles by yourselves; if you were to see the numerous armies along the sea coast, and their vigorous operations, you would stop such reflections, and rather acknowledge that your Country's safety greatly depends upon that, for you know very well, that the Rebels in 1774 attempted to dispossess you of your Country, and if they once got the better of the King's Troops, they would soon pursue their encroachments upon your Country, and drive you a great distance in the back Country.

As to your apprehensions of the Rebels coming to attack your Country, I cannot have the least thought of it; if they mean any thing; it is to secure their Frontiers against your incursions and depredations; and in order to enable you to keep them the better at Bay, I shall give my leave and encourage the seven Nations of Canada to co-operate with and join you in opposing your Enemies, the Rebels.

His Excellency then thanked them for having visited the Micmacks, and given them their advice so cordial and strong, for their future conduct, and he hoped they would acquaint their Nations with what past on their return. At the same time, as they saw before them Col: Johnson, the late Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson's successor, who he hoped they would esteem and respect as they did Sir William, and follow his directions and advice, he having likewise some Messages to deliver to the Five Nations from him.

Teyohagweande then repeated over the substance of the Generals speech, and returned their hearty thanks for every thing they said, and that it was very pleasing and satisfactory. With regard to their old friend and acquaintance, Col: Johnson, they assured the General, that he need not have the least doubt, but that they should perfectly agree; that they had been for many years perfectly acquainted with him, having been always about their great friend the late Sir W<sup>m</sup> Johnson, by which means he became so well acquainted with their public affairs, customs and manners, and that His Excell<sup>cy</sup> might be assured he would on his arrival in their Country be received with shouts of joy from the whole Confederacy.

The above speech, and answer was interpreted by the Chev<sup>r</sup> de Lorimier, M<sup>r</sup> La Force, Onondago interpreter being present.

Interpreted by the Chev<sup>r</sup> Lorimiere.

[New-York Papers (S. P. O.) CLXX.,]

Whitehall. 4. November 1779.

Sir,

As Major General Robertson sails for New York in a Frigate which goes round by Georgia, it is possible it may be some time before he relieves you in the Govern<sup>t</sup>, and therefore I conceive that this letter acknowledging the receipt of your correspondence from N<sup>o</sup> 78 to N<sup>o</sup> 85 inclusive may possibly reach you before you take your departure for England.

I have signified to Sir Henry Clinton, His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s approbation of your conduct, and that of the Officers under your command in the late expedition to Connecticut, to which I refer you.

The Commander in Chief was certainly the proper person to take cognizance of the proposition you have submitted to him of embodying the Refugees under the Command of Gov<sup>r</sup> Franklyn, and I am confident Sir Henry Clinton will give all proper encouragement to their zeal & Loyalty in the mode which he judges most suitable to the public service.

The Commission with which Sir Henry is lately vested by the King's command, and the Council by which he is to be assisted, will probably answer the end of the Court of enquiry you proposed, and I am glad you think such an institution will have a good effect.

I hope Admiral Arbuthnot's assurances of assistance to the letters of Marque, will encourage that part of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s faithful subjects to still greater engagements in that useful mode of offence. It were to be wished that such operations might be extended to the South Seas. It was a laudable instance of your zeal not to take the letter but the spirit of the Lords of the Admiralty's Commission, and to consider the authority for issuing letters of Marque as intended for the Gov<sup>r</sup> for the time being, until Gen<sup>l</sup> Robertson's arrival, and I have the satisfaction to acquaint you, that the Lords of the Admiralty will send you their approbation of what you have done by this conveyance.

I am etc.

[ Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXVI ]

N<sup>o</sup> 13.

Niagara 11. November 1779.

My Lord.

Previous to my departure from Montreal the beginning of last September, I had the honor to inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s of my destination at that time, a duplicate of which accompanies this Dispatch. A few days after I went up the River S<sup>t</sup> Lawrence, with about one hundred and thirty Whites and Indians, who were augmented to two hundred and twenty at my arrival at Carleton Island, where accounts were just received that the Rebels had hastily retreated out of the Indian Country after destroying almost all the Villages and cornfields of the Six Nations, and that Major Butler my Deputy with a considerable body of the Indians, had retired to Niagara.—As this in a great measure defeated the object the General had in view in ordering up Sir John Johnson with about five hundred Men to their support, the next considerations was whether any thing further could be undertaken with those Troops assisted by Indians, on which subject Sir John and I conferred, and it was proposed to rendezvous at Aserotus<sup>1</sup> ab<sup>t</sup> thirty-five miles West of Oswego, to call some Ind<sup>ns</sup> from Niagara to that place, and thence proceed according to circumstances and information, and to that end a detachment was sent in boats along the South side of the Lake, accompanied by Cap<sup>t</sup> Frazer and the Canada Indians; who were to send a large party to the neighbourhood of Fort Stanwix, to bring off Cattle & provisions, whilst Sir John and myself with the rest proceeded directly for Aserotus in the vessels, but were forced by a hard gale of wind to go to Niagara, where without loss of time we proceeded to collect the Indians and return to Aserotus; but this (notwithstanding the zeal and readiness I found in the greatest part of the Indians) was a work of some days, & from the accounts received at Niagara, there appeared little prospect of effecting any thing beyond the harrassing the frontiers with detached partys; however, Sir John's zeal for the service induced him to make every effort, and accordingly, we left this place the tenth of October, and proceeded for Oswego, where it was thought best from accounts received to collect the whole, & where we were joined by the Indians etc, from Aserote, but a considerable body of the Indians were obliged to march from this place for want of Craft to transport them under the care of Cap<sup>t</sup> Brant and other of my Officers, for whom we waited a considerable time, during which, it was found that the Canada Indians were notwithstanding all the pains taken by Cap<sup>t</sup> Frazer, very little attached, that they had declined going towards Fort Stanwix, and that they opposed any measures against the Oneydas, the only object then in contemplation with any prospect. At the same time the General's dispatches arrived with the Distribution for winter quarters, and orders to Sir John Johnson to return, accompanied with his approbation of the measures that had been pursued, and a letter to me for the dividing the Indians between Niagara Carleton Island etc. on account of provisions. About this time an Officer of my Departm<sup>t</sup> with five Indians, who were advanced a few miles in front of a body of Rangers, captured three Oneyda Rebels, who had been reconnoitring, and another party took a Rebel Serjeant, from whom we learned that the Rebels had reinforced the environs of Fort Stanwix with six hundred Men and had notice of our motions, mentioning particularly my own. Sir John Johnson, in consequence of his orders, as well, as that the party by land had not been able to come up, accordingly decamped, and I returned to this place on the 25th ult<sup>o</sup> where I have been a good deal occupied in endeavouring to prevail upon the Indians to send a large body of their people down to Carleton Island for the winter, which they do not much incline to, as their late losses induce them to be more united, however, their number is now reduced to 2628, the majority of whom will remain here abouts, and from the situation to which they have been reduced through their attachment and sacrifices to Govern<sup>r</sup> I humbly conceive they are entitled to every mark of attention that can be afforded as well from principles of Justice as policy; I propose to employ them usefully on the communications during the Winter; and to use every endeavour for keeping up their spirits and preserving their attachment to Govern<sup>r</sup> which has hitherto proved of so much use to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s interests, and on which the safety of this Country so much depends—It is an arduous undertaking since their late losses, but I enter on it with confidence, in the expectation of your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s countenance, & I persuade myself if measures can be taken next spring for reestablishing Fort Ontario, (which they have much at heart) and supporting His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s arms with a proper body of Troops, they will not a little contribute to their success.

I cannot conclude without recommending the good conduct of all my Officers to His Maj<sup>ty</sup> because I am convinced, they have in their respective stations, acquitted themselves with as much zeal and performed as much as any other subjects of the King, and whilst the good of the service requires my recommending, what was mentioned in my last respecting myself to His Royal consideration, I cannot avoid doing that Justice to their merits, which they have faithfully deserved—I request to be honored with your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s commands, and I am with very true regard—My Lord

most obedient servant

G. JOHNSON.

New York 17 Dec<sup>r</sup> 1779.

My Lord,

By M<sup>r</sup> Morrison I have the honor to acquaint your Lordship, this Province is in the same situation as when I sent my last dispatches.

The very signal and glorious defeat by His Majesty's Arms over both French and rebel Troops at Savannah, have given a new spring to the King's affairs on this continent, and the enemy within the rebel lines, sensibly feel the accumulated curses of their revolt.

The New York privateers have not had these latter months, their usual success on this coast, from the French Fleet having the command of the seas Southward, and the eastern colonies having fitted out stronger privateers than many of ours, however some prizes of value have been sent in here by them, and I am informed more have been carried to the West Indies.

General Robertson is supposed to be in the Cork Fleet, expected here as well as the October Packet, every day.

I am with all possible respect,

My Lord,

Governor Tryon to Lord George Germain.

(N<sup>o</sup> 89) Duplicate

[New-York, CLXXI, No. 89.]

New York 26th Feb<sup>ry</sup> 1780.

My Lord,

I am honored with your Lordships Dispatches of the 4th Nov<sup>r</sup> and Circular letter of 4th Dec<sup>r</sup> and derive great comfort from His Majesty's gracious approbation of my Conduct, and the officers under my command on the Connecticut expedition, last summer.

Sir Henry Clinton having left me in Command of the British Troops in this district, I have made my report to His Excellency of the Military occurrences that have happened since his departure to the Southward:— We have strong Intimations from Philadelphia, that the Commander in Chief is in possession of Charles Town, tho' no authentic accounts yet received.

The intense severity of this Winter has for some Weeks past so solidly froze all the Rivers, that Troops and cannon have passed over them, which offered to the Enemy as free a communication to all our Posts, as if they had been actually on the Continent.

We are in daily expectation of the Cork Fleet with Gen<sup>l</sup> Robertson by way of Georgia; it was a fortunate event they did not arrive while the navigation of the River was blocked up with ice, and which has been open only to the Hook, since the 21st Inst.—the North river above the town is still impassable for vessels, being full of fixed ice on the banks, and floating ice in the channel.

I have the gratefull satisfaction to assure your Lordship, the friendly part of America keep up their spirits, and are sanguine from the flattering prospects of His Majesty's affairs in all quarters, that the re-union of the Empire will be yet happily established, and those who have been with circumstances of cruelty, drove from their estates and families, restored in peaceful possession of them again.

I am with all possible respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

most obedient and

W<sup>m</sup> TRYON.

Judge Ogden to Governor Tryon.

[New-York, CLXXI. ( No. 2 in No. 89. )]

Sr

Permit me to give you my sentiments on the present critical appearances, General Washington with an army of about 6,000 continental troops, within one day's march of New York, besides many of the militia of New Jersey at his command, when called for, an army at and near the Fish Kills, a great number of the militia in the northern parts of the Colony of New York, and in Connecticut ready to march on an expedition, promising success, Passauk, Hachingsack, Hudson's & Harlem Rivers froze so as to be passable with an army, to New York Island; from these circumstances it is very probable, that the rebels will make a grand attack upon the City of New York (as their case at present seems desperate) the rebels from New Jersey, can at any place within five miles of the city cross Hudson's river on the ice, and the rebels from the northward cross Harlem river, below the fortifications and lines at King's bridge, at places where there is not sufficient force to oppose them, these armies being united may be too numerous & powerful for the King's Troops in this City, New York may also be in danger of being taken in the night, by surprize by rebels coming from New Jersey and crossing the River near the City. I submit, if it will not be a prudential and necessary measure to order to New York Island, immediately all the King's Troops from the West end of Long Island as far as Jamaica and embody the citizens of New York without delay, putting them under proper officers, for the defence of the City.

The shameful want of firewood may be an objection to the removing of the King's Troops, to New York Island at this time, this I conceive may be soon remedied, if the providing of wood was taken out of the hands of the present managers, and given to those who would exert themselves, in that Department, pay the wood cutters and cartmen every week for their labour and did not seek their own emolument more than the publick good, besides which positive orders might issue, for each farmer on Long Island, living within 6 miles of Brooklyn to bring without delay 6 or 8 loads of good wood to the ferry from whence it might almost every day be brought to the City.

I beg your Excellency, will excuse me, in laying before you the above sentiments, which may perhaps serve as hints, coming from one firmly attached to His Majesty's Government, the success of His Arms, and with the greatest Regards, Your Excellencies

New York Jan<sup>y</sup> 19. 1780.

Most obedient and

very humble servant

General Tryon

<sup>1</sup> Judge DAVID OGDEN, son of Josiah Ogden of Essex county, New Jersey, was born in Newark about the year 1707, and was graduated at Yale College in 1728. He studied law in New-York, and practiced his profession in his native Colony, where he soon arrived at the head of his profession and was looked up to as an oracle of the law. In 1772 he was appointed Judge of the Supreme Court, and on the breaking out of hostilities retired to the city of New-York, where he was a member of the Board of Refugees, established in 1779, over which Governor Franklin presided. He drew up the outlines of a Plan for the government of the Colonies, after their submission to Great Britain. Mr. Ogden retired to England in 1783, his property in New Jersey having been confiscated. He returned, however, to the United States in 1790, and took up his residence in Queens county, Long Island, where he died in the year 1800, at the advanced age of 93. Mr. Ogden has left behind him the reputation of having been "one of the giants of the law in New Jersey." He was, perhaps, the first of a race of men, afterwards numerous in that State, namely, thorough bred lawyers; men who love their profession, devote themselves to it, who are satisfied with its honors and look not beyond it for distinction. Field's Provincial Courts of New Jersey, 182, et seq. — Ed.

It is submitted, to the Generals of the Army in New York for their Consideration, if it would not tend to the safety of the City, to cut an opening in the ice of about ten or twelve feet broad, before and near the City in Hudson's River, within the reach of small arms from the east shore, this may be done with Cross cut and hand saws and the ice cut may with long spikes and hooks, be put under the body of the ice, proper places may be left, to pass to and from Paulus Hook, or a bridge of Boats, may be made use of, — an opening thus made will not soon freeze; if it should, it may be easily kept open.

[ New-York, CLXXI. (No. 6 & 9 in No. 89.) ]

Intelligence by Ensign John Pell of the Queen's Rangers, given 5. Feb<sup>r</sup> 1780.

Having been imprisoned as a Loyalist and released from Northampton Jail in the Massachusetts 5th Nov. last he got in at King's Bridge the 17th Dec<sup>r</sup> last.

He was born at Sheffield on the east side of the Manor of Livingston and is well acquainted with the Country between the Rivers Hudson and Connecticut from the Sea Coast to the Northward up to the Towns of Northampton, Hadley & Hatfield.

It abounds with Loyalists and among them he knows many of the first class for understanding and Property, whose names from his knowledge of their Intentions it may not be proper to be too free in disclosing.

He is well satisfied that the Majority on the West side of the Connecticut are desirous of the Restoration of the King's Authority, and that in many Towns and Districts both in New York, Connecticut and the Massachusetts Bay they are nearly all so.

That they are in anxious Expectation of the advance of the King's Army up the Hudson next Spring, and have agreed on that event to rise and flock to the River to join it and to drive their cattle and the cattle of the rebels before them and to prevent the escape of the rebels into the New England colonies. That with the same view, they endeavor to prevent the Usurpers from collecting and carrying off their grain, some of which is unthressed and other parts of it ground and buried or otherwise concealed. That they have collected arms for the purpose, which they conceal, that besides the arms retained and hidden by Individuals as they think proper, there are two large Magazines in secret places.

That the number of the King's Friends has been on the Increase ever since the Proposals of the Commissioners and that the party grows daily in proportion to the Calamities of the Country which are very great and fill the general body with apprehension.

That no wheat is to be bought for the Contiente money — nor for hard money under twelve shillings a Bushel, which is more than double the old price prior to the public troubles. — That many dread a Famine the last Harvest being short on account of a blast which was general thro' the North Country, and a fly which before the snow falls of this Winter devoured the green blades so that a part of almost every field, and some intire fields were perfectly eaten up and destroyed & the fields in some instances resown or reserved to be ploughed up in the winter if the frost would permit or in the spring.

That there is a park of 72 pieces of brass cannon, the largest, long, old fashioned nine pounders, at Springfield on Connecticut river, and some Military stores; and a small park of General Burgoyne's Ordnance at Farmingtown, ten miles S. W. from Hartford.

That he could not discover, tho' he made diligent enquiry, of any Magazines of Provisions, in all the north and east countries, either of salt meat or bread, and he is confident, from the scarcity of salt and flour, that there are none, and that it is impossible to form any. That salt is only to be procured (& that of had quality) for hard money, or in a way of barter for wheat. At Kinderhook a bushel of salt fetched a half Jac in November last.

That he knows the Farmers in general, have agreed to raise nothing more than they want for their own consumption, & necessities; conceiving that the improvement of their farms & stocks would only tend to feed and prolong the rebellion.

That the usurpers took from the Farmers for Washington's Army last fall one eighth of their wheat and when he was at Dover in Dutchess in his way down they were collecting a fourth of the residue. That this gave rise to great discontent and to declarations that they would arm and oppose any further drafts.

That he conversed with some of the discharged soldiers of the rebel army who were going home, and with some of their officers.—He learnt from both, that there was no possibility of perswading any to reinlist, but such as were inebriated first tho' offers were made of 500 Dollars bounty per man.—That on observing to the men, that they would be sent back as drafts from the Militia, they spoke with great fire at the ill usage they had received and the insignificancy of their pay, and swore they never would be drafted. And from the general temper of the Militia, he apprehends the drafting for the next Campaign, will produce with other causes an open Resistance in various parts of the eastern country.

Tuesday.

He left the rebel park of artillery Sunday Evening, and came to Staten Island last night. He was Corporal of Proctor's or the first Pensilvania Reg<sup>t</sup> of Artillery.—Three others came with him to near Springfield by about 4 in the morning. St. Clair commands 500 men there. They retreated on an Alarm that the British Light Horse were coming, & then the three others were apprehended. The informer hid himself, and the next night got in.

He listed 17th Aug<sup>t</sup> 1776 for 3 years, and was intitled to his discharge last Aug<sup>t</sup> but because he had no certificate to show, was obliged to take the 100 Dollars, & serve for the war. The Colonels have 8 Dollars, for every Soldier they return as sworn during the War, & they return every man as listed for the War, that can't shew a certificate. The New England Colonels don't serve their men so, and many of them are accordingly discharged: this makes great dissentions. The Southern Troops and the New Englanders hate each other, as much as enemies can. The Southern Troops are not suffered to come near the British Lines, for they wish to be with the King's Army. By Southern Troops he means the Troops of New Jersey, & all the other Provinces to the South.—About a month ago Maxwel's<sup>1</sup> Brigade lay at Springfield, & it is said 235 deserted from it in one night. The week before last a party of 200 were sent to the Lines, & last Sunday is returned but 90 strong. He counted them. . . .

said in Camp that the Army has lost about 2000 by desertions since they came into Winter Quarters. He can't tell what the present strength of the Army is at Morris Town, for he came but lately from the Magazine Guard, which is a[1] Suckysunny, about 12 or 14 Miles to the Westward of Morris Town, at a Meeting House. The Guard there a Subaltern & 15 privates, 2 Sergeants, 3 corporals, a drum and a fife. Washington is stately at a big white house, about half a mile this side of Morris Town, and about 5 miles to the Northward of the Camp-Alarm Post, which is about 2 miles from M<sup>r</sup> Kemble's, & in a course about North West or near it. From the Alarm Post you can see the whole Camp.

There has been lately talk of an Expedition. Last Saturday it was in orders to draw Six days provisions, 2 to be cooked, & to be ready at a Minutes warning. Last Friday some heavy Cannon came to the Park from Easton, 2-24—4-18—2 long 12 & 2-13 inch Mortars.—The general talk that 6000 standing Forces were to move with the Jersey Militia. The Talk among the Soldiers, that Staten Island is the object.—The York and Connecticut Troops were ordered for the March, which of the rest he did not hear. Orders out to press 800 slays.

The Army has been badly off for Provisions. Those on the Lines have flour, Those in camp rice. The allowance  $\frac{3}{4}$  of a pound & 1 lb of fresh beef.—a Quart of salt to 100 weight.—No Rum or other spirit except to the Artillery he is of, to which Pensilvania allows  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb of Tea, 1lb Chocolate, 1lb Coffee, 1 d<sup>o</sup> Tobacco 2 d<sup>o</sup> Sugar,  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb Soap & a Gall Rum every month. There are three other artillery corps Crane's Harrison's and Lamb's.

There has been a considerable quantity of flour brought late from the Westward. It is now scarce again. The very Field Officers draw half in Indian meal. The detachm<sup>t</sup> made to the Southward took 10 pieces of ordnance with them all six pounders.

More than half of the Army are old country people and disgusted with the service, & would be glad to get away.—They thought they were fighting for liberty, but find they were getting daily more and more into bondage.—About 6 weeks ago, the whole artillery went about the Camp, huzzaing for 13 King's and no Bread, crying one King with Bread is enough. The officers pass'd it off with a laugh. None restrained or punished for it.

A great Quantity of cattle came lately from Connecticut. They are in and about Morris Town—Forage scarce.—Only a few Express Riders there. The Horse sent to distant quarters. Washington has a few about him and a small foot guard.

The snow road from Morris Town to Elizabeth Town well beaten.—very deep out of it, some places drifted to the height of 4 feet.

The Informer was on Sullivan's Expedition. Had with them 2500 horses.—Went from Easton with 2 sixes, four threes & 2 5 $\frac{1}{2}$  inch Hoyets;—join'd by Clinton's Brigade at Tioga 102 miles above Wioming.—proceeded as far as Chinese.—Half a pound of flour &  $\frac{1}{2}$  pound of beef the allowance for 30 days, which was the interval from leaving Tioga, to their return to New Town. Only one skirmish in the whole Expedition, and that at Middle Town 3 miles above Chemong. Took one Tory & one Negroe in the March, & in the return 2 old Squaws—No more prisoners than these. It was reported that 50 scalps were brought in at Middle Town. but the informer never saw more of the killed than 7.—He believes there were 2 others killed, because Maxwell's Brigade Major (forgets his name) gave 2 soldiers each a gall of whisky, to skin 2 Indians from the Hip downwards, and they did so, & the Indians the Informer saw, had their skins intire. The Informer saw the skins, and boots were made of them at Easton after the return. The Indians retired all the way before them as they advanced from Tioga, 12 to Chemong, 3 to Middle Town, 9 to New Town, 18 to Catharine Town, 18 to Apple Town, 12 to Canidesege, 14 to another town, 8 miles to another, 9 more to another, then 12 to Chinese. They destroyed the Hutts & Cabbins & Grain. At Canidesege there were 4 or 5 small framed houses—a good many at Chinese—at the other villages, none but wigs and log houses—The Corn at Chinese was burnt in the houses.—It took all day to collect it.—Sullivan's army called (Battee men and all) about seven thousand. The Guide was a Presbyterian Minister, who had lived at Canidesege, as a Missionary. They lost 2 killed & 17 wounded at Middle Town,—Boyd's party 17 killed & scalped—Boyd & a serjeant prisoners, & butcher'd at Chinese. 27 more killed & wounded at Chemong in the night.—very few horses got back—As they gave out they were shot—forty or 50 of a day.—The Cannons were carried by water to Tioga, & thence the pioners cut roads for the carriages all the way. The Indians did not hang upon the army as it retired to Easton.

Heard nothing of the taking of Charles Town—No bad news ever suffered to come to camp.

Many British deserters in the Rebel Army, who are very desirous of an Act of grace, that they may come in.

[New-York, CLXXI. (No. 11 in No. 89).]

Intelligence by Cornelius Stagge. Given 18 Feb<sup>r</sup> 1780. Friday.

He is a native of New York, where he has a Mother and a Brother.

He has served 3 years in the Rebel artillery, in Wool's Company of Lamb's Regiment. Had his discharge on the 9th of January last, from the Park at Morris Town.

He attempted an escape from the rebel service shortly before the reduction of Fort Montgomery, but was apprehended & brought back. He left the Park yesterday 8 days, skulked about Hackinsack, and crossed to Greenwich yesterday.

He has been to Albany since his discharge. Was at West point in his way up on the 17 Janu<sup>r</sup>. He learnt there, that there had been a fire a few days before, at a redoubt on the East side of the River above M<sup>r</sup> Robinson's, which commands the Fort at West Point except Putnam's Fort.—This is a small redoubt (he thinks) but of four Guns. The Fire damaged the redoubt, and had well nigh blown up the small magazine in it. It was thought to have been owing to treachery, because a barrel of powder was found buried on the outward side, but a council of war reported it to be accidental.

On his return from Albany, which he left the 23<sup>d</sup> of January, he halted at West Point for several days, There was a great fire there, on the night of Wednesday the 2<sup>d</sup> of February Instant. He lodged at Major Beaumont's, and was alarmed with the cry that Fort Arnold was on fire. He saw the South barracks in it in a blaze. They were intirely consumed. The wind being favorable, the Northern barracks and Magazine escaped. The Southern were the principal lodgements, and comprehended the stores. He continued there two or three days after the fire, and saw the ruins. The loss was lamented by the Officers as very great, but the soldiery rejoiced and wished for more fires. The stores were called state stores, and he thinks belonged to the Massachuset. The articles consumed, consisted of clothing, tent equipage, sugars, molasses, pepper, chocolate, coffee, officers baggage & money.

The Troops then in the Highland Forts mostly New England men.—They have 2 or 3 companies of Crane's artillery, and one of Lamb's there. Lamb's are in the main Yorkers, and wish to get away, and so do those in the Companies at Morris Town, and indeed the bulk of the Army.

He had opportunities for much intercourse with the people of the country, in his journey to Albany. A great majority in all places are on the King's side, & tired & sick of the war. A man fares ill on the road, and the worse for being in a Continental uniform.

The Army greatly reduced by desertions of late. He can't say what it consists of—some say 7—others 10,000.—It shrinks daily, and gets not a single recruit. The chief cause of Desertions, is the Arbitrary return of the three years men as listed for the War.

The Informer has left his wife at Mendam near Morris Town, with instructions to come to a relations at Barbadoes Neck near Hackinsack, & there watch an opportunity to get into the Royal Lines.

New York 25th March 1780.

My Lord,

Under a very severe gout I am-scarcely able to do more than to acquaint your Lordship that Governor Robertson arrived the 21st Ins' and the next day took the Oaths at my bedside, in the presence of the Council, who (it is with great pleasure I mention it) are all firm in their fidelity to the King's cause—I then gave the seals to my Successor; and on account of my Indisposition, the rest of the formalities were transacted in an adjoining room.

Your Lordship will find under this cover, the train of intelligence I have acquired, since the absence of the Commander in Chief; of which, had my health permitted, I should for your Lordship's ease, have framed a digest.—Copies of some and abstracts of the rest of these papers, were transmitted to Sir Henry Clinton by the Virginia Frigate last week.

My present purpose is to avail myself, of his Majesty's gracious permission to return to England, as soon as my health is sufficiently restored, to bear the fatigues of the voyage; I add with much satisfaction, that the face of Public Affairs in this Country, for reasons which I have not strength to communicate seems to indicate such a declension of the rebellion, as gives me great hope of its terminating without the dismemberment of the Empire.

Major General Robertson being Senior British Officer here, the British and Provincial Troops within these Lines, fall under his command, and Lieu' General Knyphausen has ordered all returns and reports of the said corps, to be made to Major General Robertson accordingly.

I am with all possible respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's

Most obedient and

very humble servant

New York 26th March 1780

My Lord,

It is my Duty to acquaint you, that I arrived here on the twenty first of this month; next day the Council was summoned, and I took possession of the Government in the manner set forth in the Minutes of Council inclosed.

Finding Governor Tryon does himself the honor of transmitting to you full Information of the state of the Province, as well as all Intelligence received here about the Enemy, and being told by General Knyphausen that he at this time means to lay before you all Military Returns and Information, nothing is left for me to say on either of these subjects.

General Knyphausen has intimated to me a wish, that I would inform you of what had passed in regard to the Exchange of the Convention Army.*

I can't express this more full nor do so much justice to General Philips's sentiments, as by laying before you the letters he sent me on that subject, which I obtained his leave to do.

I have the honor to be

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obed<sup>t</sup>

and humble servant

JAMES ROBERTSON

P. S. This moment an intercepted letter from General Schuyler another from Francis Lewis and a circular letter to the several Provinces from Congress have been brought to me.— I enclose copies of these—believing that their Contents are of much Importance.

Brigadier General De Lancey<sup>1</sup> is extremely desirous I should mention his name to your Lordship by this very occasion.—I can't do this without saying that he is a man of consequence in the Country, and has suffered much by the Rebellion, the Authors of which he is earnest to punish.

Intercepted letter from Major-General Philip Schuyler.

Dear Sir,

I arrived here on Sunday, on Monday I advised Congress, that I could not consistent with my honor serve under the appointment they had been pleased to make, The other Commissioners were ordered to proceed in the business, but intimations having been given that my aid was necessary, a Committee was appointed and I put on it. As this does not <sup>1</sup> Brigadier-General OLIVER DE LANCEY, eldest son of Stephen de Lancey and Ann Van Cortlandt, was born in the city of New-York in 1717. In 1742 he married Miss Franks, of Philadelphia, and in 1756 and 1758 was in command of the New-York provincials in the military operations at Lake George. In 1759 he was elected one of the representatives in the Assembly for his native city, and the following year was called to the Council, where he retained his seat until the dissolution of the government. At the breaking out of the Revolution he adhered to the Crown; raised the corps of provincials called the De Lancey battalions, and was appointed Brigadier-General. By the Act of 1779 his property was confiscated. After the peace he retired to England and died at Beverly, October 27th, 1785, aged 68 years. His remains were interred in the choir of the Cathedral of that place. Holgate's American Genealogy, 121; Gentleman's Magazine; Journals of New-York Assembly; New-York Council Minutes, XXV., 341.—ED.

comport with my ideas of propriety I continue to refuse. Men of sentiment approve my firmness and delicacy, others are chagrined but dare not drive me to a pointed explanation, which I will never give otherwise then in writing, that my Constituents and all my Countrymen may see my principles.

The subject of Finance has for some time past engrossed the attention of Congress in a Committee of the whole, but paradoxical as it may seem, that a part should be more competent than the whole, it has been thought necessary to refer the business to a lesser Committee, composed of Burch, Elsworth, Holtn, Haustin, Livingston and Scuyler, a Report will probably be completed by Monday, my object is a fixture of the present circulating medium at a given ratio, calling it in, speedily destroying it, a new emission quoted to States and sent forth on permanent funds, the quantum to be emitted to be proportioned to the periodical destruction of the present bills, the new ones to bear a specie interest payable at their redemption or in bills on France at the option of the holders. I believe the reports will bear this Complexion, but what transformation it will undergo in the House is impossible to determine, as every man wishes to be thought a Financier and must have his ideas. It will probably be like Joseph's coat a composition of patches partly coloured.

I can say nothing yet about your Department, a few days will enable me to do it, and you will have the necessary communications, as far as shall be in my power to afford them, the Vermont business is not yet on the Tapis.

If my Financing Ideas should prevail our state will be able to extricate itself out of its difficulties without continuing the burden of taxes. Provided always that our Legislature will be prudent and decisive, and that Men of considerable property will do their duty; altho I am amongst the middling class of these, I propose to rob them all of the honor of being the first to set a good example, this is perfectly enigmatical at present to you, and so it must continue until I am at liberty more fully to explain myself. You that love your Country shall follow me; at least I will give you an opportunity of doing it at the Risque of our property, may be, a little, but the sacrifice will be glorious, and perhaps too our countrymen may honor us with the all endearing name of true and virtuous patriots. That you, I and all like us, and all our more distressed fellow Citizens may truly deserve that pleasing appellation is my sincerest wish, my fervent prayer, Adieu, my friend, and believe me to be sincerely such

Whitehall 3<sup>d</sup> May 1780

Sir,

It gave me a great pleasure to find by your Dispatch of the 26th March, which I received the 26th of last Month, that you were safely arrived at New York, and had taken upon you the Exercise of your Government. The Loyal and Spirited behaviour of the Inhabitants in so chearfully and unanimously taking up arms and embodying for the defence of the town when it was laid open to an attack on all sides & deprived by the strength of the frost of the natural defences the rivers at other times afforded, which Major General Pattison<sup>1</sup> has fully stated to me, does them great honor, and has given the King particular satisfaction, & it is his Royal Pleasure that you should take the first fit opportunity of acquainting them that their conduct is highly approved by His Majesty. I am sorry to find by the papers you have transmitted, copies of which I have also received from Major General Phillips<sup>2</sup> that the late negotiation for an Exchange of the troops of the convention has proved as fruitless as all the former attempts; but, I am happy to learn from some part of Gen<sup>l</sup> Phillips's Correspondence that he has hopes of effecting the business without the formality of a treaty or meeting of Commissioners, An object of so much importance to the King's service will, I am sure, engage your attention & assistance in attaining it, but I cannot intirely concur with General Phillips in the propriety of the Terms upon which he thinks the agreement may be made; especially as I flatter myself Sir Henry Clinton's success in Carolina will put into our hands a full equivalent of prisoners to exchange upon an equal footing; The intercepted letters you inclosed agree with a variety of other Intelligence I have received in representing the state of the rebel finances to be very desperate and their cause decliuing fast among the people, and I trust the operations to the Southward will give velocity to its fall, the season is certainly favorable for your views, and I have so great reliance upon your influence & able management that I flatter myself you will find means of effecting some very important public service. I am much obliged to you for the copy of your letter to Lord Amherst and of the plan of the environs of Charles Town transmitted with it, as they gave me a clearer idea of the situation of things there than I could have had from the other accounts I could have received from thence; Brigadier General De Lancy by the zealous part he took, at first in opposing the progress of the Rebellion, and since in endeavouring to reduce it, has shown himself a faithful subject of the King, and it must be a Satisfaction to him to know that his services are approved by His Majesty.

I inclose a copy of Baron Nolken, the Swedish Minister's note to me requesting the discharge of Nils Myrin, a private man in the New Jersey Volunteers which I beg you will obtain, as I should be glad of an opportunity to oblige His Excellency. I am &c<sup>a</sup>

[New-York, CLXXI.]

New York. 18th May 1780.

My Lord,

The Pearl on the second of this month brought me your Lordship's of the 18th March.

<sup>1</sup> General JAMES PATTISON was appointed Captain of the artillery 1st August, 1747; Lieutenant-Colonel in the army in 1761; Colonel commandant of artillery, 25th April, 1777; Major-General 19th February, 1779. He accompanied the expedition against Charleston in 1780; and was raised to the rank of Lieutenant-General 28th September, 1787, and of General in the army 26th January, 1797. He died at his house in Hill-street, Berkeley Square, London, March 1st, 1805, aged 81 years. Gentleman's Magazine, LXXV., 291.—Ed.

<sup>2</sup> Major-General WILLIAM PHILLIPS was appointed Captain of artillery 12th May, 1756; and brevet Lieutenant-Colonel in 1760, and in 1776 was named Major-General in Burgoyne's expedition; in the battle of Stillwater both his Aide-de-Camp were wounded, and he shared the fate of the British army which capitulated in October, 1777; he followed the troops to Virginia. He did not long survive his misfortunes, for he died in the latter part of 1781 or beginning of 1782. Major-General Phillips, at his death, held the sinecure office of Lieutenant-Governor of Windsor. Army Lists; Beaton; Ambrey's Travels.

The crew being very sickly, your dispatches to Sir H. Clinton after being, (as desired) perused by General Knyphausen and myself were forwarded by the Iris, & probably reach'd him about the ninth instant.

General Knyphausen had time by the Delaware then under sail for Halifax to give notice to General McLean<sup>1</sup> of what your dispatch contain'd, of the force time of sailing and supposed destination of the French Armament. By a Canadian the same notice was sent to General Haldimand thro' the woods.

Commodore Drake finding no countermand in Admiral Arbuthnot's dispatches from the Admiralty, proceeded about this time to sea in consequence of former orders. He directed Captain Montague to get a Convoy agreeable to the requisition I had made for the troops order'd to Quebec, no time has been lost by him, but it was not till yesterday that two sloops of war could be got ready for sea. To strengthen this convoy the Thames Frigate sails & proceeds with them to the Mouth of St. Lawrence, & then cruises to try to get early notice about the French Fleet. I send with this an embarkation return.

As I find General Knyphausen's correspondence will only reach you after making the round to Carolina thro' Sir H. Clinton, I give this the chance of carrying you earlier information, tho' I do not command here, as the eldest British General, I hope my writing to you on Military subjects, will not be considered as presumption.

Before I had the honor of your letter, I learn'd from the rebel Camp, that exactly the Armament you mention, was to sail from Brest before the end of March, and would be here or at Charlestown before the end of June. The probability of their being informed of the destination as well as the force, is increased by the reports made by the people I have sent into Jersey to listen to the discourses and find out the preparatory directions for the reception of a French fleet and army.

Agreeable to your commands every thing is preparing for a vigorous defence on both the land and sea sides. Batterys are made and guns placed on them where ever they can most effectually dammage the enemy's ships, but these can only annoy, a fleet with a favorable wind & tide can't be prevented by any number of cannon from coming up to our wharfs, to prevent this, twenty five small vessels are ready loaded with stones, they lye at the hook, and on notice will be taken out to the bar and sunk there according to a plan form'd with exactness, a few anchors are sufficient to render the inner channel impracticable even for frigates. The bar will not be spoil'd nor the vessels be sunk till the enemy's approach makes it absolutely necessary. It would cost them some days to remove these obstructions, we are prepared to create more by sinking two or three ships in the channel between the East and West bank. I'm disappointed by the Engineer who can't now get ready the draughts we have been making and meant to have sent you.

You have a return of the Troops here, they especially the Germans are in high order, health and discipline.

<sup>1</sup> Brigadier-General FRANCIS McLEAN was appointed Captain in the 2d battalion of the 43d Highlanders on its being raised in October, 1758, and afterwards came to America and joined Amherst's expedition against Montreal. In January, 1761, he exchanged into the 97th regiment, a newly organized corps, and was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel in the army 13th April, 1762. On the regiment being disbanded the following year, he went on half-pay, where he remained until the 16th December, 1777, when he was gazetted Colonel of the 82d foot, which was sent to Halifax, where Colonel McLean held the rank of Brigadier-General, and died in 1781. Browne's Highlanders, IV., 160; Army Lists; Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs VL, 173; Political Index, II., 137. — ED.

No part of Sandy Hook is within three miles of the bar, guns placed there could not annoy a fleet in passing so well as they could on places nearer at hand and which we can better support, there is no time to make a work that could stand a seige—a fascine work that can contain one hundred men is all that is constructed, and this is round the light house. A large square fort is built at Brooklyn heights, the works at Paulus Hook are strengthened, and these at Fort Knyphausen put in order—The towns people are employ'd in joining the redoubts near the town with lines.

But our real strength consists in this, our forces can be brought together in a few hours, from our situation and number of boats our movements can be quicker than any enemys that present themselves. The whole troops may be led to fight the enemy, in the mean time six thousand arm'd inhabitants, will defend the town and all the island on this side Harlaam, a victory would immediately restore the posts we might give up to unite our force.

General Knyphausen never lets an opportunity escape of attacking the rebels posts, the plan, secrecy, precision and choice of the leaders, have insured success to all his measures. His attention and capacity place him high in the opinion of the troops.

Our friends and the General himself wish that Washington could be attacked, he lyes at Morristown with only about 4000 men, these dissatisfied, desirous to desert, and in want of every necessary. The lateness of the season, there not yet being a blade of grass, and the facility with which Washington could avoid an action, by withdrawing some marches from a post which we could not keep, nor acquire any thing by keeping are probably the reasons that have hitherto kept us only employ'd in defensive works.

The Marquis de la Fayette who landed at Boston from the Hermione Frigate, in his way to Mr Washington's camp nearly escaped a party General Knyphausen sent to intercept him at the Clove.

The ship that carries this is of small force, I have only had a few hours notice of her sailing, which I can not delay, as this would deprive her of the benefit of the Quebec convoy now under sail. This prevents my sending you by this occasion an account of what has passed in the Province in detail. I can in general say that all my proclamations and answers to addresses have been calculated to gain the people without the lines. They are discontented with their own Government, and from the sons of some of the most considerable familys who have come into me, I am assured that their general intention is to return to their allegiance. Those within the Lines give me a better proof than words, of their opinion of the permanence of His Majesty's Government, since my arrival, I observe they begin to repair and rebuild houses and to enclose and manure fields. I will defer speaking of the advantages His Majesty may derive from these changes of circumstances and inclinations in point of Economy and force till I have a better opportunity of again doing myself the Honor of professing the regard with which I am

[New-York, CLXXI.]

New York 1st July 1780.

My Lord,

On the 26th of June the paquet brought me your dispatches of the 3<sup>d</sup> of May.

Your Lordship employed me most agreeably in announcing to the Inhabitants His Majesty's approbation of their behaviour last winter—charmed and honored by His Royal goodness they will arm with increased alacrity against His Enemys.

Sir Henry Clinton being arrived it would be presuming and improper in me to trouble your Lordship on the subject of future operations—But I take the liberty at General Knyphausen's desire, (who is fonder of forming and executing plans than of describing them) to give you some account of a movement he made into Jersey, and of his motives for doing it.

He had intelligence that Washington's Army at Morris Town did not exceed 4000—2200 of these Philadelphia troops who had given evident proofs that they hated Congress and were tired of rebellion. Washington had made a detachment to protect the Cheseapeak against Sir H. Clinton; another to protect the County of Albany from Sir John Johnson, who was then on the Mohawk river; and a third to cover the frontiers of Pensylvania against Butler and his Indians. The account of the reduction of Charlestown was fresh. The General thought under these circumstances by approaching the enemy to find means of giving advantages to the King's arms, and increasing the difficulties of the rebels. On the 6th of June we sail'd with as many troops as could safely be spared from the defence of this Province—6000—to Staten Island, from thence we landed our advanced guard the same night at Elizabeth Town, where they waited the landing of a second embarkation by the return of the boats—these Bodys moved on, with orders to try to surprize Maxwell's Brigade of Jersey Troops, stationed near to the road we marched by, to endeavor to get possession of the strong post at Short hills, to wait there the arrival of the third embarkation of the army—from whence if our intelligence should show circumstances favorable, it was intended to march directly with the whole against Washington, who had been sending his stores from Morristown, but was still incumbered there with a great many.

After marching a few miles, we found Maxwell's Brigade, and about a thousand Militia in Arms, they occupied and gave us the trouble of driving them from every advantageous situation; by twelve o'clock, we drove them as far as Springfield, about twelve miles—Here we learned from Prisoners and Deserters, that Washington had got time to occupy with all his force the strong post of Short hills; at this moment we got notice that Sir H. Clinton was not bound for Chesepeak, but in a few days would be at Sandy Hook. As the success of our project depended on the rapidity of our march, we brought no carriages with us, or provisions but what the men carried—We had a number wounded whom we could not carry forward; Under these circumstances General Knyphausen gave up the intention of forcing Washington to an action in such an advantageous post, and resolved to wait in Jersey Sir Henry Clinton's arrival, that he might be ready to act jointly or separately with him.

On the 17th of June Sir Henry arrived at New York, and immediately received notice from General Knyphausen of our and Washington's situation. Sir Henry landed the part of the Army that came with him on Staten Island on the 19th,—On the 23<sup>d</sup> he embarked & went with them up the North River, He desired that a strong patrol from our part of the Army should penetrate into the country to verify or contradict the report we had of Washington's March to the Highlands—if he had marched, we were to pass and carry the bridge we had made to Staten Island; if he remained Sir Henry was to return to us. General Knyphausen marched at the head of 3,000 men; The rebels as before occupied every favorable situation, and fought in a manner that shows honor may be got by destroying them, but a double advantage to the state by bringing them to be good subjects; they were however always beat. Being well assured of Washington's march towards the Clove, General Knyphausen returned, passed his bridge, removed it, and brought off his rear guard without losing any man or thing.

The Orders of the troops were conceived in a spirit to shew the people that we considered the Country as the King's, and those who did not appear in Arms as His subjects & our friends; The reverence the Germans have for their General made them comply with his orders; The domestick animals strayed about unhurt among them; no plunder nor rudeness took place—A house from whence the rebels fired was burnt by the British, some refugees took this as a signal that allowed them to vent their revenge, and they wantonly by burning several houses, deprived us of the reputation the General's intentions merited, and gave too good foundation to the rebels to represent us as inimical to the Country.

The consequences of this move, are, The rebels have lost more militia on this occasion than ever they did before; in future they will not consider turning out as an amusement. Washington on this occasion called to the different governments to draught their militia, every fourth man; I have now messages from hundreds that they will escape this by coming to us—their distress for provisions, has been greatly encreased by this move—And ours for forrage which could not be had within our lines has been releived at the expence of the enemy—Washington was obliged to recall his detachments, which may have given advantages to our arms in other quarters.

As the General and Admiral have acquainted your Lordship of their different sentiments about the renewal of Civil Government, they and the state will benefit by the appeal; but no advantage could arise from the publick or even the Councils being informed that they did not think alike on the subject—I have taken some pains to keep the Question out of sight—And as these Gentlemen equally intend that the subject be protected in his property, be secured against the abuses & insults of military misrule, that a good police and good discipline may make the neighbourhood of the Army advantageous to the inhabitants, and the industry of these being excited by security and order, useful to the state, Sir Henry means to direct me to take the management of the police of the province, and subject to his inspection, to endeavor to give the people all the encouragement and real advantages graciously intended them by His Majesty on my appointment—The Admiral expresses his approbation of the expedient; for my part I shall most gladly exert my utmost endeavors to answer the end of my appointment; If I can serve His Majesty and have the honor of executing the spirit of the instructions you honored me with, I care no more than the people will by what name I am called.

war on the Spaniards; I intend to encourage that spirit within the lines, and am hopeful to make this a means of lessening the rebel army.

Whitehall 5th July 1780.

Sir,

A few days after the date of my letter to you of the 7th of June, Lord Lincoln<sup>1</sup> arrived here with the glorious and important account of the surrender of Charles Town with the whole of the Rebel Land and Naval Force there. This joyful event, which you will long since have been informed of, must greatly serve to dispirit the rebels, and indispose them for any cooperation with the Forces carried out by Mons<sup>r</sup> de Ternai; and as I trust Sir Henry Clinton, with a part of his victorious troops is safely returned to you as he proposed leaving Charles Town the beginning of June, I do not apprehend any attempt will be made upon New York: indeed I should have been in no pain for the event if I had supposed it to be attacked by the joint forces of Mons<sup>r</sup> de Ternai and M<sup>r</sup> Washington even before Sir Henry Clinton with his reinforcement could have arrived, as the number & excellence of the King's Forces, the ability of their Commanders and the spirit & loyalty of the Inhabitants gave me full confidence that such a defence would have been made as all the force that could have been brought to the attack would not have been able to overcome.

Your letter of the 18th of May, which I received the 17th of last month, confirmed me in this opinion, and opens the pleasing prospect of a restoration of the King's Government in the Province, and which I see with particular satisfaction your public Acts are all calculated

Lieutenant-Colonel Dalling was appointed to that office (Edwards' West Indies, Soc., 1793, II., 311), and exchanged into the 36th foot, then stationed on that island. In 1772 he changed into the 50th, and a few years after, on the death of Sir William Trelawney, became Governor-in-Chief of Jamaica. Edwards. In January, 1776, he was appointed Colonel Commandant of the 3d battalion of the 60th Royal Americans; Major-General 29th August, 1777. He got up an expedition against the Spanish Main in 1780, and became Lieutenant-General in November, 1782. He was raised to the rank of Baronet in 1783 (Beaton's Index, I, 210); in November, of the same year, appointed Colonel of the 37th foot, and died in 1798.

<sup>1</sup> THOMAS PELHAM CLINTON, afterwards 2d Duke of Newcastle, was born July, 1752, and entered the army as Ensign in the 12th foot 17th March, 1769. His next step was that of Captain in the 1st or King's dragoon guards, 12th July, 1770. He exchanged into the 1st regiment of foot guards 5th April, 1775, and next came to America, where he served as Aid-de-Camp to his second cousin, Sir Henry Clinton, the Commander-in-Chief, with whose dispatches, announcing the fall of Charleston, S. C., he went to England in 1780. Beaton's Naval and Military Memoirs, V, 28. He, shortly afterwards, was promoted to be Colonel in the army and appointed Aid-de-Camp to the King. In 1782 he became Colonel of the 75th foot; in 1785, of the 17th light dragoons; Major-General in 1787. He succeeded to the dukedom in 1794, and died 17th May, 1795. His grace was succeeded in the command of his regiment by Lieutenant-General Oliver de Lancey, of New-York. Army Lists. — Ed.

to promote, & I should think cannot fail to make a deep impression upon the minds of all reasonable men, and remove those unjust prejudices entertained of the vindictive disposition of Great Britain towards the revolted Provinces, Your next dispatch will I hope inform me of the happy effects the success at Charles Town and the generous terms granted to the Garrison have had upon the people without your lines, and in the neighbouring Provinces, which may give occasion for an extension of your powers as Civil Governor. In the mean time I have the pleasure to send you inclosed herewith a printed copy of the Act passed in the present Session, "for allowing the trade between Ireland and the British Colonies and Plantations in America and the West Indies, and the British Settlements on the Coast of Africa to be carried on in like manner as it is now carried on between Great Britain and the said Colonies and Settlements." which I hope will remove the difficulties which the Trade of the City is now under, and prove satisfactory to the Inhabitants.

[Plantations General (S. P. O.) CCLXVI.]

Niagara 26. July. 1780.

My Lord.

In my letter of the 4th of May I gave a brief account of the faithful and successful services of the Indians under my superintendency against the Rebels during the Winter and of the endeavours of the latter to draw off the Six Nations, thro' the negotiations of four disaffected Indians sent to this place for that purpose.

I have now the honor to acquaint your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that the major part of the disaffected Tribes are come in, and at length restored to the British Interest, and I shall also lay before you the good conduct and success of the Indians, since my last. Being sensible that those Oneidas and others who had during the War remained on the Rebel frontiers, and under their influence were rather governed by situation and imposed on by artifice than led by inclination to espouse their interest, & finding that their continuance in that quarter exposed our motions and served to cover that part of the Country, our Indians however averse to their conduct not inclining to cut off part of their own Confederacy, I seized a favourable occasion last winter to intimate, that if they ever expected to be restored to the favour and protection of Govern<sup>t</sup>, they had no time to loose; in consequence of which I rec<sup>d</sup> last month a Message from them, informing me that they had approved of my advice, & were preparing to leave their Country and join me which they did the beginning of this month, to the amount of three hundred and thirty souls, of whom above one hundred are Men, more than seventy of whom have since marched with my War partys, and will, I expect, do their utmost to efface the remembrance their past conduct, having told them that they owed their reception to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s clemency, but they must merit his favors by their actions. The particulars of my proceedings with them are transmitted to the Commander in Chief and I am assured, that the small remainder still with the Rebels will soon follow their example, and thereby lay open the Rebel frontier towards the Mohawk River, which will promote the service by facilitating parties and encourage the Six Nations as much as it must distress and disappoint the Rebels.

The success that attended those I sent out at a season when it had not been usual for many to go to War, encouraged others, the number of killed and prisoners amounted early in June to one hundred and fifty six, and is now much enlarged, besides which many houses and granaries from whence the Rebels drew supplies with many Cattle were destroyed and an interruption given to their planting as well as recruiting on the Frontiers. The partys have ranged along the rear of New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and although (unaccompanied with Troops) their mode of Warfare does not admit of any thing capital, it is still of much importance to His Majesty's service in keeping the Rebels in a continued state of Alarm & apprehension, and destroying their resources; it is with great satisfaction I can add that these services have been effected without acts of cruelty, and that altho' three of the Indians were treacherously murdered, they have at my entreaty withheld their resentment & suppressed their darling passion—revenge—in an unusual manner. From principles of humanity I could wish their example had been imitated by the Rebels, who in many instances have exhibited a very different conduct.

The number of Men of the Six Nation Confederacy (exclusive of their people to the Southward) is about sixteen hundred, above twelve hundred of whom are Warriors, and of the latter, eight hundred and thirty six are now on service agst the frontiers, and more in readiness to follow them, which far exceeds what has ever been out at one time without the army, few, or none remaining, but those necessary to assist in planting and providing for their families; I hope soon to have favourable accounts from them, as so great a number must prove very distressing to the Rebels, and contribute much to favour the operations of the Campaign. The large body that was to be provided for at this Post during last Winter in consequence of the Rebel invasion and the destruction of many Indian Towns, occasioned much expence and a great consumption of provisions, which I have endeavoured to restrain as far as was consistent with the service, and the Commander in Chief afforded his assistance for re establish<sup>g</sup> them and enabling them to plant as early as he could, to promote which as well as to forward partys; I have lately visited their new Settlements, one of which on the Ohio rout is encreasing fast, and I have already induced above twelve hundred of their people to settle and plant at these places, which will lessen the burthen of expences, at the same time, I have no doubt should any material operations be undertaken from hence, that notwithstanding the Indians have been constantly employed all the season, they will readily & cheerfully assist.— Since my arrival here last September, I have not omitted any thing in my power for promoting his Majesty's interests with the Indians, and rendering their services usefull to Governments; I am highly gratified in being honoured with the Commander in Chiefs approbation of my Conduct, and that of these faithful people, and I shall study by every possible exertion in the discharge of my duty to merit your Lord<sup>s</sup> favourable representation of my endeavours, to His Majesty have the honor to be with much respect

My Lord.

Your Lord<sup>s</sup> most obedient and

most humble servant,

G JOHNSON.

Governor Robertson to Secretary Robinson.

[ New-York, CLXXI. ]

New York 4th August 1780.

Sir,

Permit me to beg you will do me the honor to lay the following particulars before the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, and that you will have the goodness to let me know their Lordships pleasure upon them.

I was appointed Governor of New York on the fourth of May 1779; was kept in London on publick service and not by my own wish till the 16th of Sept<sup>r</sup> following, and then being confined to go in a particular ship and that ship to pursue a course that led me to Cork, Savannah and South Carolina—I did not arrive at my government till the 21st of March 1780: On my arrival there I found that the expence of every thing is treble, and the income of government not half what it had been—My Predecessor Governor Tryon<sup>1</sup> showed me a representation he had made through you to the Lords of the Treasury in his letter of the 10th of November 1779—expressive of the well grounded hopes given him by His Majesty's Ministers, that the diminution of income would be made up by an encrease of Salary.—I will add nothing to what he says, but a remark that the expence has continued to augment, and the income to decrease, As among other methods I have taken to render the present mode of government grateful to the people I admit no fees whatever to be taken, and therefore pay the Secretary I employ out of my pocket.

I formerly represented to their Lordships, and the Earl of Dunmore<sup>2</sup> and Lord Drummond both eye witnesses certified that when New York was set on fire I commanded in it, and could have saved my own house from the flames if I could have been prevailed on to follow an advice that was given me to retain one engine for that purpose; finding that the King's ships & magazines were in danger, by sending away the engine I saved the ships and stores, worth more than 200,000 pounds—but lost my house which cost me independent of furniture £2,000.—I find that the province house where my predecessor General Tryon lived was burnt, not for the public good but by the carelessness of servants—The province gave him five thousand pounds and their Lordships had the goodness to grant him a further very liberal indemnification;

<sup>1</sup> Lieutenant-General WILLIAM TRYON received a commission as Lieutenant and Captain of the 1st regiment of foot guards 12th October, 1751 (Army Lists); in 1757 married Miss Wake, of Hanover-street, with whom he received a fortune of £20,060 sterling (Gentleman's Magazine, XXVII, 577), and on 30th September, 1758, became Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel in the guards. Through some Court influence probably, (as we find a Miss Tryon maid of honor to the Queen (Gentleman's Magazine, XXXI, 431), and he claimed relationship with the Rawdon or Moira family), he was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of North Carolina, where he arrived 27th October, 1764, and, on the death of Mr. Dobbs, was gazetted Governor of that Colony 20th July, 1765. Gentleman's Magazine, XXXV, 347. He administered that government until July, 1771, when he was advanced to that of New-York. He was promoted to a Colonelcy in the army 25th May, 1772; became third Major of the guards 8th June, 1775; Major-General 29th August, 1777, and Colonel of the 70th regiment 14th May, 1778. In 1779 his name was inserted in the New-York Act of Confiscation. It is unnecessary here to speak of his career in America, as that is already as notorious as it was odious. He resigned the government, for many years only nominal, of New-York 21st March, 1780, and returned to England, where he was appointed Lieutenant-General 20th November, 1782, and Colonel of the 29th foot 16th August, 1783. Governor Tryon died at his house, Upper Grosvenor-street, London, 27th January, 1788, and his remains were deposited in the family vault at Twickenham. A highly eulogistic obituary notice of him, doubtless from the pen of his son-in-law Fanning, appeared shortly after, in the Gentleman's Magazine, LVIII, 179. "The name of Tryon," it asserts, "will be revered across the Atlantic while virtue and sensibility remain." The State of New-York manifested its "reverence" soon after by erasing the name of Tryon from the only county that bore his name in the State.—Ed.

He has since hired a house to live in, and draws on their Lordships for the rent—I hope the mention of these circumstances, will induce their Lordships to pay for my house as a salvage for the ships and stores that were saved by its destruction—in that case I will make over the ground it stood on to the Crown, where when it is judged proper may be built a house for a Governor, the situation being very proper for that purpose, and I will give up every claim for any allowance of house rent.

I have taken the liberty to draw on their Lordships for fifteen hundred pounds; when you have the goodness to signify to me, their Lordships pleasure about the commencement and the amount of my Salary, and of the satisfaction they will have the goodness to make me for the house burnt, or their permission to hire one to live in; I will render this with the future draughts exactly conformable to their Lordships pleasure.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient, and
most humble servant.

Governor Robertson to Lord George Germain.

[New-York, CLXXL.]

New York 1st September, 1780.

My Lord,

As Sir Henry Clinton not only writes but sends his Quarter Master General to explain his plans, and as the Generals Mathews<sup>1</sup> and Pattison are very able to give satisfactory answers to all questions your Lordship may do them the honor to ask on military subjects, I will avoid the mention of these, but so far as the events have an influence on the dispositions of the people and the state of the country.

I have omitted no means to render government pleasing, and have not found this a difficult task, men who for years have had nothing they could call theirs, find in security, and freedom from military misrule unspeakable blessings. Gentlemen of known loyalty to the King, and who have the esteem and confidence of the country are appointed to act as magistrates or arbitrators, and prevent or settle all differences, without delay, fee, or expence. The contrast between the happiness and order that has taken place within our limits, and the anarchy tyranny and exactions exercised among the rebels, could not long escape observation, and I had daily notices from numbers that they meant to return to His Majesty's obedience and to aid his arms.

The means of escape to us, is become somewhat more difficult by our withdrawing our posts, and confining ourselves to the three Islands. The arrival of a French force, the expectation of a further reinforcement, and more than all this the language held by the friends to rebellion in England, leads people who were on the point of declaring for us, to hesitate. Washington, whose army was weak even in numbers could not induce men to enlist for the greatest premiums, and durst not use force. Since the arrival of his allys, has got confidence to encrease his army, by pressing, by fines, and making it impossible for any but declared active rebels to exist— Thus the emigrations to us have been partly prevented, and Washington's army is swelled to twelve thousand. By parading with La Fayette, displaying colours, finery, and carrying off the cattle and forrage in sight of New York, he hopes to raise a belief that he will soon end the war, and makes his army hope for the plunder of this rich city. A man of reflection, will be sensible, that New York can be in no danger from such an army. Seventeen thousand regular troops can be drawn to its defence in less than 24 hours, and five thousand inhabitants are armed and disposed to fight in its defence.—It is easy to perceive that the smallness of the French force and their inferiority at sea, have disappointed the rebel expectations, and broke their designs against this place.—The French notions about command shock levellers, that the contempt of the manners of Americans disgusts them, and that the jars already commenced are likely to encrease.—so that the accession of the French is no great real addition to the rebel force—that an army compelled together like Washington's will finally prove an addition to ours—they desert by dozens tho they swim miles to get at us, and they relate that hundreds hide in the woods or skulk in the marshes waiting a possibility to escape—for several months past the deserters have at an average amounted to a hundred a month, the number has doubled since the press, Deserters too arrive from the Convention army, these find their way for more than four hundred miles, they are known, fed, and concealed, this is perhaps a better proof of the favorable disposition of the inhabitants, then can be set against it, as the other instances may be resolved into force or fear—on the whole a just reasoner will conclude, that the rebels being disappointed, as they surely will be in their hope of expelling us from hence, ending the war, and establishing their kingdom, tired cut and exhausted by this extraordinary exertion, finding their army as usual dwindle before winter, will court the blessings of and submit to His Majesty's Government. But one who superficially views appearances will imagine our situation desperate, and cry out for a force which perhaps cannot be spared in such an extensive war, without considering that a demand that cannot be complied—will embarrass Administration, and may prove an effectual means of obtaining the wish of the rebels and their friends.

If the facts and the reasonings were to be layd before your Lordship, the falacy of the conclusion would soon be detected, but conclusions vehemently urged and repeated without carrying with them the means of detection, should be guarded against and this leads me to assert that if the British and German regular troops are completed to the old establishment only,* and if our friends in America are assured of the continuance of His Majesty's protection, that Washington's army will fill up our provincial forces, and we will have hands enough to end the war successfully.

* To complete the Army under Sir Henry Clinton to the old establishment, the recruits or reinforcements now supposed on their passage, should be made up to 6100 men.—To complete the Army to the new establishment (exclusive of additional Companies) requires 2400 men.

An Officer from General Dalling is arrived here to recruit for an expedition under his direction. I have got a few rebel officers to engage to bring men from the rebel army on condition that they are to command them—and propositions of this nature have been made to some of rank—they are not without effect even now, but would have been better listened to six months ago.

I hope to provide for the wants of refugees and to lessen the expence of government, by sharing the possession of rebel lands and houses among those whom they have driven from their own, and by the smallness of the lots, to call forth a higher degree of cultivation, that the wants of the army may be supplied at a less expence than at present, which exceeds all belief and example—I am of opinion this might be cured by regulations particularly of wages, now at more than ten shillings a day; but I dare not trust my own judgment, and those I talk with are divided.

M<sup>r</sup> Smith<sup>1</sup> thinks himself much honored by his appointment to the Office of Chief Justice, tho' he had considerable property and a great income, I find that now, it is convenient for him to entreat me, to apply to your Lordship to direct some mode for the payment of his Salary.

M<sup>r</sup> Ludlow was one of the Judges, had always been clear in his loyalty and zealous, his abilities great and himself high in the people's esteem. These on Long Island had hitherto been reduced to bring all their questions and quarrels to New York, where the length of time and difficulties arising from the great distance made them chuse rather to suffer than seek redress. I have prevailed on M<sup>r</sup> Ludlow to act as superintendent on Long Island—Sir Henry Clinton who considers the office as military will pay him an allowance out of the Contingency, he does good to the service and credit to the trust he has received.—The Office of Master of the Rolls is vacant by the death of James Jauncey, I wish to fill it up by naming M<sup>r</sup> Ludlow, that when Civil Courts open, he may act—neither the pay or duty to commence till this happens.

I take the liberty to enclose my letter to the Lords of the Treasury, to beg you will take the trouble to peruse it, and favor the request it contains as far as you judge it proper and reasonable.

I have the honor to be My Lord, Your Lordship's

most obedient and

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup>
Lord George Germain.

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your Dispatch of the 1st of July, & am much obliged to you for the very particular detail it contains of Lieut General Knyphausen's Expedition into the Jerseys. The care taken to prevent plunder, & to protect the peaceable

Every measure that has a tendency to restore the civil Authority to it's former dignity, will be very pleasing to the King, & the placing the management of the Police of New York in the hands of the Civil Governor is certainly a judicious step, and I have no doubt that the people will find themselves happy, and the King's service be greatly promoted by your prudent conduct.

Dear Sir,

Let me in the first place thank you for the obliging notice you have taken of my family ; I next own myself much your debtor for the information and satisfaction I received from your letter by the July packet—we have nothing later from England. Inclosed I send you a Copy of my Commission to your Deputy ; you will observe that I have paid a cautious attention to what you said and Henry White advised.—It is only in the Prerogative Court that M<sup>r</sup> Bayard's Office has hitherto been beneficial—The people have at least found one advantage in military Government, they pay nothing at my Office, tho' it is sufficiently crowded ; If Civil Government is restored, the Governor and the Officers of the Crown will resume their fees & functions ; while I act as Lieu<sup>t</sup> General superintending the police of the Province, I do the people all the good in my power, gratis.

You will be well informed of the very handsome things Lord Cornwallis has done ; and have better access, than I, to know what great things Sir George and Sir Henry are meditating ; So I will say in general that since the year 1777, I have not seen so fair a prospect for the return of the revolted provinces to their duty.

I found means to have a conference with a man versant in the rebels Councils, I give you what he related—as I think it will explain the state of the Country and convey you information that might not be preserved in an extract.

A privateer took some papers out of a Spanish despatch boat ; tho' the mails were thrown overboard, I had the papers found in a chest examined, and extracts taken from them, you have this ; and as I thought you might make discoveries from circumstances, that escaped us, I send such letters as are thought most important.

I only by this occasion presume to trouble Lord George Germain, with a duplicate of my former letter, knowing that if this contains anything worth his attention, that you will present it and me favorably to his notice.

I ever am with much regard Dear Sir,

Your most obedient and

most humble servant

I took no notice of the publication said to be a letter to His Lordship—No person here took it to be from Sir Henry Clinton—no more than you will suspect the enclosed to come from the hand of Gates

<sup>1</sup> WILLIAM KNOX was born in Ireland in 1732, and received the first rudiments of his political education from Sir Richard Cox, one of the ablest statesmen that Island ever produced. In 1756 he was appointed by the Earl of Halifax one of his Majesty's Council and Provost Marshal of Georgia, and accompanied Governor Ellis accordingly, to that Colony, to assist in promoting its settlement and forming its civil Constitution. He returned to England in 1761, and in 1763 visited Paris with his friend and patron, Lord Grosvenor. Immediately after the peace with France he drew up a paper, which Lord Grosvenor put into the Earl of Bute's hands, recommending such provisions in the Constitutions of the Colonies and such improvements in the system by which they had been governed, as would produce a desire in them to continue united with Great Britain and render their union beneficial to the whole Empire. This was to create a Colonial aristocracy and to give the Colonies representation in the British Parliament. But he acknowledges that the then haughty spirit of the House of Commons would render it impossible to carry through Parliament the measures he proposed; to have asserted Rights in the assemblies of the Colonies would have excited general indignation. He was soon after appointed agent for Georgia and East Florida, and was thus brought into communication with Mr. Grenville, then Chancellor of the Exchequer; and when that gentleman procured the passage of the American Stamp Act, Mr. Knox published, in 1765, two pamphlets in defence of the measure; one entitled, "A Letter to a Member of Parliament, wherein the Power of the British Legislature and the Case of the Colonists are briefly and impartially considered;" the other, "The Claims of the Colonies to an exemption from Internal taxes imposed by authority of Parliament, examined, in a Letter from a Gentleman to his friend in America;" and sent almost the whole edition of the latter Tract to such of the Colonies as he had any correspondents in. The consequence was, that the General Assembly of Georgia passed a resolution on the 19th of November, 1765, dispensing with his services as Agent of that Colony. He was examined that year before a committee of the House of Commons on the state of the American Colonies, and being afterwards asked his opinion of the effects of the repeal of the stamp act, answered: "Addresses of thanks and measure of rebellion." "By G—d, I thought so," exclaimed one of the opposition. He became now an active supporter of the Grenville party, and published, in 1768, his principal political work, "The Present State of the Nation: particularly with respect to its Trade, Finances, &c., &c., addressed to the King and both Houses of Parliament." This defence of the Grenville administration was ascribed, at the time, to the head of that party, and was answered, under that supposition, by the celebrated Edmund Burke, then a protégé of the Rockingham ministry, in a tract entitled, "Observations on a late State of the Nation;" in reply to which Mr. Knox published "An Appendix to The Present State of the Nation containing a Reply to The Observations on that Pamphlet. London, 1769." At the same time he brought out a volume entitled, "The Controversy between Great Britain and her Colonies reviewed; the several pleas of the Colonies, in support of their right to all the liberties and privileges of British Subjects, and to exemption from the legislative authority of Parliament, stated and considered; and the Nature of their Connection with, and dependance on Great Britain, shewn, upon the evidence of historical facts and authentic records." After his arrival in Georgia it was his first care to make himself acquainted with the Constitutions of the several Colonies; he soon perceived that the seeds of disunion were sown in the first plantation in every one of them, and that a general disposition to Independence prevailed throughout the whole. It was this knowledge which enabled him (he says) to tear off their masque of loyalty to the King and attachment to Great Britain, and to expose and confute, in the above Review, all their arguments in support of their claim of exemption from the authority of Parliament whilst they enjoyed the privileges of British subjects. Extra Official Papers, II., 11. But this reasoning was sharply and successfully attacked by Dr. Edward Bancroft, of Massachusetts, then one of the editors of the London Monthly Review, who, it is said, however, had the benefit of Dr. Franklin's advice and suggestions. As a reward for those efforts in support of British supremacy, Mr. Knox was appointed, in 1770, Joint Under Secretary of State with Mr. Pownall. In 1774 he published a pamphlet in defence of the Quebec Act, entitled "The Justice and Policy of the late act of Parliament for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec asserted and proved; and the conduct of the administration respecting that Province, stated and vindicated;" and soon after drew up a "Project of a permanent Union and Settlement with the Colonies" (Extra Official Papers, II., 30), which seems to have served as a basis for Lord North's conciliatory proposition of 1775. In 1779, whilst the people of Maine were occupied in forming a State Constitution, a portion of their territory was taken possession of by a party of British troops from Nova Scotia. In the following year Mr. Knox drew up a plan to erect it into a Colony to be bounded by the River Penobscott on the west, and the St. Croix on the east, and to be called New Ireland, of which Thomas Oliver was to be Governor and Daniel Leonard Chief Justice. It received the

Mr Heron's Information in a Conversation at New York Monday 4: Sep<sup>r</sup> 1780.

[New-York, CLXXI.]

He lives at Reading in Connecticut, came in with a Flag—returns this Afternoon

He has had every opportunity he could desire to be acquainted with the public affairs, & especially of that colony. Till April last he was in Assembly, & a member for the County Correspondence—is now in office respecting the public accounts. He ever was an Enemy to the Declaration of Independency, but he said little, except to the most trusty Loyalists. He stands well with the Officers of the Continental Army—with General Parsons he is intimate, & is not suspected.

He was at the Interview between General Parsons and Mr Izard,<sup>1</sup> who arrived in Ternay's Fleet, and went on to Philadelphia. Izard has held a language that fills the Country with jealousies—That the American Agents were duped by the Cabinet of France, Dr Franklin superannuated, and all their Agents unfaithful and despised, except the Lees. That they had given to France the Newfoundland Fishery, & to Spain the Floridas, & he thinks Georgia too. Whatever else of the Continent might be conquered, is to belong to the United States. He assured Parsons that France neither could nor would give the help requisite to establish the countenance of the Ministry and the approval of the King, but was knocked in the head by the Attorney General, Wedderburn (afterwards Lord Loughborough), who refused his concurrence, on the ground that the lands had been included in the Charter of Massachusetts bay. Ibid, II, 61; Appendix, 83. Mr. Knox served as Under Secretary of State for the American department until the accession of the Earl of Shelburne, in 1782, when the office was suppressed. He continued, however, to be consulted on measures connected with the remaining Colonies and their Trade, and drew up the Order in Council of 2d July, 1783, utterly excluding American shipping from the West India Islands. He had such a high opinion of this remnant of crude barbarism that he wished it to be engraved on his tombstone, as having saved the navigation of England. Ib, 58, 56, 57. He submitted a plan, the same year, for a new Province between the River St. Croix on the west and the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the east, and from the centre of the Isthmus at Bay Verte on the south to the Canada line on the north. This territory was erected into the Province of New Brunswick in 1784 for the accommodation of the Loyalists from the Northern States, whilst the Bahamas were laid aside for these from East Florida and the Southern States. Ib; Appendix, 52, 54. After the death of Sir James Wright, Mr. Knox was joint agent with Graham for prosecuting the claims of the Georgia Loyalists to compensation for losses, and had a pension of £600 a year settled on himself and a like sum for his wife, as American sufferers. Ib, L. 32, 35. In 1789 he published two valuable though very immethodical volumes, entitled, "Extra Official State Papers. Addressed to the Right Honorable Lord Rawdon, and the other Members of the two Houses of Parliament, associated for the preservation of the Constitution and promoting the prosperity of the British Empire. By a late Under Secretary of State," and a second edition of his Tract on the Quebec Bill. Among his other distinct publications were:

Three Tracts respecting the Conversion and Instruction of Negroe Slaves and Free Indians. 1768.

Considerations on the State of Ireland. 1776.

Helps to a Right understanding the Merits of the Commercial Treaty with France, addressed to the Members of both Houses of Parliament. 1787.

Observations upon the Liturgy, with a proposal for its Reform. 1789.

Considerations on the Universality and Uniformity of the Theocracy. 1796.

The Revealed Will of God, the sufficient Rule of Man: 2v. 1801.

After a life of much activity he died at Great Ealing on the 25th of August, 1810, aged 78 years. Gentleman's Magazine, LXXX, 197; British Almanack, 1765; Extra Official State Papers, I, pt. ii.; 1 Appendix, 8; II, 25-31; White's Historical Collections of Georgia, 188; Grenville Papers, III, 109, 110. — Ev.

<sup>1</sup> RALPH IZARD was born in South Carolina, in 1742; was educated at Cambridge College, England, and in 1767 married Alice, daughter of Peter De Laney, of Westchester. He visited England in 1771, and went on the continent of Europe in 1774. In 1775, after returning to England, he went again to France, and was afterwards appointed by Congress Commissioner at the Court of the Grand Duke of Tuscany. He returned to America 10th July, 1780, and was next chosen one of the delegates from South Carolina to Congress, and so remained until 1783; after which he returned home. He was chosen United States Senator on the formation of the Federal Government, and retired from public life in 1795. He died 30th May, 1804, in the 62d year of his age, and was buried at the parish church of Goose creek. Memoir prefixed to Izard's Correspondence.

Independence of America. No further aid than what Ternay<sup>1</sup> brought was coming. Whoever said there was deceived them. The British Navy in real strength was superior to the Fleets both of France & Spain, & doubtless would continue so during the war. He did not believe they would be able to join this year, & the French would in that case be blocked up. That Ternay brought about 5000 land forces, and from what he had heard of the American Army, that aid would do little.

General Parsons was so much affected by this conversation, that immediately after M<sup>r</sup> Izard was gone, he wrote to General Green at the Camp in Jersey, beseeching him if possible to check M<sup>r</sup> Izard, from the dangerous tendency of his Information upon the People at large.

General Parsons' lives at Reading, & his particular charge is to forward on the Eastern Recruits to Washington's Camp.—He is greatly discouraged, under the prevailing disinclination of the People to the prolongation of the War. Very lately he told M<sup>r</sup> Heron that but 800 men of the 2500 drafted in Connecticut had gone on. They either refuse absolutely to go, or set out and leave the party, and sculk about in other places, than the towns from which they are levied. These draftings are made at a rate excessively distressing to the people. They are classed, some to find a man for 6 months, and others for three months.—Thirty & forty pounds is raised by the class for him that goes. They give him bonds for the money. The 6 months men, will be releasable on the 1 of Jan<sup>y</sup> but the three months men the 14th of next month; and as there is scarcely any hard money in the Country, but what goes to Long Island for English goods, there will be horrible dissensions, when the militia return and put their bonds in suit.

He had not heard what precise numbers have gone from Massachusetts and New Hampshire, but the comp<sup>ts</sup> are as loud ag<sup>t</sup> them as ag<sup>t</sup> Connecticut. The people every where are tired of the war, are become beggarly and distressed, & suspicious of private views in all who are for continuing it.

Washington's Army including the Highland Garrison all the 3 & 6 months militia, was between 10 & 11 thousand, when he crossed the Hudson last month to Croton's River. They gave out that they were fifteen thousand, but M<sup>r</sup> Heron had his information from Officers of Rank in a confidential way. It is certainly an Army, on which there can be no dependance. The Continentals are less than half of it, & half of them Europeans, & notoriously determined to desert, under very strong disgusts as appears from the impossibility of getting any man whose time is out to reinlist,—And as to the Militia—Part of it, they will seek the first opportunity to get home, from a service they detest. Many are loyalists, drafted thro' Pique.

There was a general talk of raising men enough before the French arrived, who with them were to take New York.—It died away upon the smallness of the French Force, and the difficulty of bringing up the drafted militia.—Lately Washington conceived hopes from his project for procuring Militia Volunteers. He recommended subscriptions from house to house, to raise bounties of hard money, to be paid out to such as would take the field for the campaign in the reduction of New York. General Parsons employed many instruments to give it success, but it was abortive, not a single town would come into it, some went so far as to say, they would serve provided they were not to be subject to Military Discipline, but might come away as suited their attention to their Families, or in other words at their own pleasures. Of such persons there was ground for suspicion.

M<sup>r</sup> Heron was in the High lands among the Officers very lately, and had much conversation with them. They have had no pay for ten months past. Some of them have had their pay reduced, and especially all the Surgeons and Hospital Attendants. The Surgeons have sent in their resignations to Washington, who said he could not blame them. He forwarded them to Congress, and they were waiting for the answer.—There is much discontent in the Army.—Lately they were 5 days without meat. The whole Highland Garrison is now at half allowance. Many of the Officers especially of Massachusetts, wish the acceptance of their Resignations, and yet said they dreaded it, as they had not many to carry them home. He dined with General Arnold, who commands at Col<sup>l</sup> Beverly Robinson's<sup>1</sup> House, and parted from him last Wednesday.

On the day before, certain Officers came from the Northward with accounts that the British had cross'd the Lake, and were erecting works at Teononderage. That Sir John Johnson was still on the Mohawk, since the burning of the barns and harvests at Cannajohare and Schohare, and there was a call of the Militia to come up. He does not believe any Force went up from the Highlands, but General Starke<sup>2</sup> was sent off, to conduct such militia as could be raised. He believes no men could be spared from the Highlands.—They had but 400 men at West point, with 2 Companies of Artillery, and a thin Regiment or two of 6 months men on the Eastern side.

He can't be very positive concerning the Brigades of the Continental Army.—Connecticut has two, Parsons's & Huntington's.—New Hampshire one Poor's, which last spring had but 300 men as he well knew.—New York one, James Clinton's.<sup>3</sup>—Massachusetts three, Glover's, Nixon's & he thinks Learned's.<sup>4</sup>—Rhode Island one, Green's.—Jersey one, Dayton's, <sup>1</sup> Colonel BEVERLY ROBINSON was born in Virginia, of which Colony his father had been president. He came to New-York and married Susanda Phillips, an heiress, and resided on his estate, opposite West Point, on the banks of the Hudson river. On the breaking out of the Revolution he adhered to the side of the Crown, whereby he lost all his splendid property; was appointed Colonel of the loyal American regiment, and is suspected of having been privy to Arnold's treason. He retired to England at the peace and resided at Thornbury, near Bath, where he died. — Ed.

<sup>2</sup> Major-General JOHN STARKE was born at Londonderry, N. H., 28th August, 1728, and in 1752 was a captive among the Indians of St. Francis. He served as Captain of rangers in the French war (Knex, I, 322), and at the opening of the Revolution received a commission as Colonel and fought at Bunker Hill in June, 1775; went, in 1776, to Canada, and at Trenton commanded the van of the right wing of the American army. He was also in the battle of Princeton, but being omitted in the promotions, threw up his commission in March, 1777. He raised a body of troops in New Hampshire, and in August, following, defeated Colonel Baum at Wallumschaek. After this he was reinstated in the Continental army as Brigadier-General. He served in Rhode Island in 1778 '9, and in 1780 in New Jersey; in 1781 had the command of the Northern department, and was one of the members of the court-martial on Major André. He died, full of years and honors, May 8th, 1822, aged 93 years, and was buried on a small hill on the banks of the Merrimack river. Allen.

<sup>3</sup> Major-General JAMES CLINTON, fourth son of Charles Clinton, was born 18th August, 1736, in Orange county, New-York. In 1756 he received a commission of Ensign in the militia, and held the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in 1774 of the Ulster county militia. He was appointed, June, 1775, Colonel of the 3d New-York regiment; was made Brigadier-General 9th August, 1776, and distinguished himself during the war by his gallant conduct at the storming of Fort Clinton, in 1777. In 1779 he accompanied Sullivan against the Indians of Western New-York, and was afterwards present at the siege of Yorktown and surrender of Cornwallis. His last appearance in arms was at the evacuation of New-York, by the British, November, 1783. After that, he returned to his native county, where he died, 22d September, 1812, aged 76 years. General Clinton was the father of De Witt Clinton, for many years Governor of the State of New-York. Eager's History of Orange County, 629.

late Maxwell's, who resigned on account of the mutinous spirit of his officers.—He does not recollect the Pensilvania Generals.—They have no troops in this quarter, of the more Southerly Colonies.

Washington's difficulties are now coming on, many of the American Officers as well as others in the country at large are jealous of his late promotion in the French Army, as a provision for himself at all events, and dislike that his Risks in the controversy are become less than theirs, And yet none of their Generals is so popular as he. It may continue a little longer.

M<sup>r</sup> Heron is confident the whole rebellion must fall soon from the internal weakness of the Country in General, and the still greater weakness of the party that have hitherto fomented the troubles, who lose ground every day, and divide from each other.—All subdivisions are for peace with Great Britain on the old Foundations.

Lately before the Committee of Accounts at Hartford, M<sup>r</sup> Champion only Commissary for the purchase of cattle, shewed that he owed three millions of Dollars.—M<sup>r</sup> Cottis the Deputy Commissary General for all the country East of Hudson's River, shewed his Debts for general purchases of bread &c, to be a million and a half, and the Deputy Quarter Master General for the same District, 7 or 8 hundred thousand Dollars—While these sums are withheld from the People, horrible Taxes are levying. The Committee are astonished and distressed. The Creditors are if possible to be paid out of new emissions.—but they insist upon the public bearing the loss, by the Depreciation of the continental money since the debts were contracted, that is to say, all beyond the Depreciation of 1778, when it was sunk only twenty for one.—Here is a copious source of animosity without remedy.

Jemiah Wadsworth of Hartford is Commissary of purchases for the French. The Vendors of cattle &c. looked to him for bullion, but the French have had the art to borrow of the Province new paper money, & give him that to lay out. Prodigious disgusts have arisen upon this account. What he gives away is with a depreciation of 3 for 1. In short the Inhabitants in general, from an infinite variety of causes are so changed, that people of all classes in & out of the Army, pronounce the war at or near its end.

It is not doubted by any man, that John Adams is authorized to make peace with Great Britain, and that he will be directed from time to time by Congress, according to the condition & prospects he is made acquainted with from hence, and his own views of events on that side of the water.—M<sup>r</sup> Heron thinks he will receive orders to strike this winter, upon the best terms he can get for the Continent, for it will be impossible, when the 3 months & 6 months men leave Washington, for him to figure with an army thro' the winter, or to form another in the Spring. By that time the whole strength of the Continent must be exhausted, and all public credit at an end.

Undoubtedly the majority of the Continent have long been for a reunion with Great Britain. From his intimate knowledge of Connecticut, he is firmly persuaded that not a tenth of the Inhabitants are for contending for the Independency, if well assured by the Government, that the Charter shall stand good. The greater part of the loyalists are for preserving the Charter, and many became loyalists, because they conceived the Independent Party, exposed it to Dissolution, by their intemperate measures. Others now listen to them as men of wisdom and patriotism, and execrate the danger to which an indiscreet heat has exposed the Charter.—It would strengthen the hands and increase the number of the King's friends, if Governm<sup>t</sup> would issue a Proclamation, promising safety to the Charter, on the Colony's returning with obedience.—They have conceived good hopes from Governor Robertson's Proclamation to the people of

New York, of the King's good Intentions. But the new Proclamation had better be postponed till some event favorable to the British turns up, or till after the 3 months men quit the Army 14th Oct<sup>r</sup> He can't say what proportion they are of it. They were to be two fifths of the militia levies, and probably are more, because the objection to serve for 3 months was not so strong as for six

He hears of no Magazines for provisions in any part of the Continent. It was impossible to form any. No man would sell upon trust, & what is got is by force, & not enough for daily consumption. All contracts are now made in private dealings in bullion, whether the party can comply or not. All paper therefore is gone and congress has no other money. They are insolvent even with that at their command;—All departments in debt.—There is short sowing and short husbanding among all the farmers, that they may have no surplus to be seized—Not more than a third of the usual harvest of Indian Corn, will come in this fall, owing to a cold spring & the summer drought.

Whitehall 9th Novem<sup>r</sup> 1780.

Sir,

I have received and laid before the King your Letter to me of the 1st of September, and I have the pleasure to acquaint you that it gave His Majesty much satisfaction to find that the restoration of the Civil Governor's Authority, by placing the direction of the Police of New York in your hands and the judicious measures you have adopted, have been productive of such good effects as rendering the people within the lines happy and content, and exciting an earnest desire in those under the Rebel jurisdictions to partake with them in the blessings of His Majesty's gracious protection and mild government: Nothing will more serve to promote & diffuse these favourable sentiments than the strict attention I have no doubt you will continue to pay to the characters and dispositions of such as you appoint Magistrates, or to exercise any branch of Civil Authority; and as the exemplary punishment Lord Cornwallis<sup>1</sup> has so properly inflicted on such of the Rebel Prisoners as had broke their Parole and repeated their violation of their Oaths of Allegiance, will soon be known in the rebel army, and throughout the Country, the deserters from it will certainly increase in numbers, and many others will withdraw from the rebel cause when they find we are not afraid to punish, and may justly dread the consequences of continuing to support a rebellion, which is evidently declining to the last—Such of these as are willing to enter on board the King's ships or privateers should be encouraged to do so in small proportions, and it will be a most acceptable service if you can induce those that are fit for recruits to join the regiments in the West Indies, or to engage in the Jamaica Corps, or take part in the enterprizes carrying on against the enemies possessions in that quarter.

<sup>1</sup> CHARLES, 2d Earl and 1st Marquis CORNWALLIS, was born 31st December, 1738, and having entered the army became Lieutenant-Colonel of the 12th foot 1st May, 1761, and Colonel of the 33d regiment 21st March, 1766; Major-General, September 19th, 1775. He came to America in 1776 as Lieutenant-General under General Howe, and participated in the military operations during the war of the American Revolution, which closed by his memorable surrender at Yorktown in 1781. After his return to England he was appointed Constable of the Tower; was Governor of Bengal from 1785 to 1792, when he was created a Marquis; became a General in the army 12th October, 1793, and Master-General of the Ordnance in 1795. He was appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland in 1798, and returned to India, a second time, in 1804, as Governor of Bengal, and died at Gauzeepoor, 5th October, 1805. — Ed.

I was always of opinion that the arrival of French Troops in America would produce jars and divisions and even if nothing further should be attempted on our part against M<sup>r</sup> Rauchambeau and de Ternay than the confining them at Rhode Island, I am persuaded the cause of Great Britain will be much benefitted by it, tho' I am not without hopes something more important and decisive will be effected by our superior land and sea force. I have sent the usual rotice of M<sup>r</sup> Smyth's appointment to the Treasury to the end that the same allowance may be made him as was given to his Predecessor, but as the fund for paying the salaries of the American Civil Officers has become deficient thro' the neglect of the Revenue Officers to collect the Duties in such parts of America as are in the King's possession, I am afraid it will be some time before the Chief Justice will receive the Emoluments of his Office, unless proper diligence is used in collecting the duties, which I understand the Lords of the Treasury have enjoined, and which you will countenance and support as far as your Jurisdiction extends.

Your recommenda<sup>n</sup> of M<sup>r</sup> Ludlow to be Master of the Rolls will be duly attended to when it is judged proper to fill up that office and in the mean time the employment you have given him upon Long Island appears to be very necessary, and I doubt not the public will derive much utility from his exercise of it. Every fit means should be used to reduce the great expence of maintaining the King's faithful subjects who have been driven from their property by the rebels, and the parcelling out among them the rebel estates is a measure equally just and œconomical.

My Lord,

It has been suggested to me by an authority I respect "That as the prohibitory Act works "no incapacity in the Kings Officers, but only restrains them in the exercise of their Office the "instant that restraint is removed they are fully Authorized to do every thing they were "before empowered to perform; that from not understanding this, the revenue Officers had "done a great injury to the poor American exiles by not collecting the duties from whence "their allowance arose"—

A wish to relieve these Gentlemen and to correct every error that exists where I am supposed to have power, led me into a minute inquiry on the subject—All I am able to learn is collected in a letter from M<sup>r</sup> Elliot to me tho' he supposes that Policy only restrains the exercise of Civil power but that the collection of duties is restrained by law Yet imagining a connection between the Subjects he has treated of the first, as an introduction to the second.

That I may not weaken the force of his reasoning, I will give the whole of his letter, tho' his opinion about civil Government is different from mine. I think that a loyal American Assembly, might at this time hold to Americans a language useful to Britain and I know that from the places within Our protection, we could call more than half the number of representatives that usually formed the Assembly—After making these observations I am induced to submit the whole letter and references to your Lordships observation, because I think beside all the matter relative to the present question it contains some information that under your Lordship's direction may be of Importance in future—If it procures me the honor of any directions from you, I will attend to them with the care and respect that becomes one who has the honor to be

Dear Sir,

By the Packet which Sailed last Thursday, I told you I would send to Lord George Germain a full state of all that relates to duties, it goes with this, I wish I could have shortened it, I will not add any thing to the subject as the task of perusing it will fall to your share, I will be very attentive to any directions I may receive in consequence, You will see that a circumscribed power like mine can do nothing. I told you then that the Jersey Brigade had revolted and that I was just embarking for Staten Island to improve the revolt At this season and when there is two feet Snow on the Ground, nothing but an opportunity of engaging the Enemy to advantage or of winning over the Revolters to join us, could justify carrying the Troops into the field, I therefore left the Troops in New York ready to embark and join me on a signal, If I could find a probability of accomplishing either of these views. I sent spies and offers to the Revolters, offered them the money due by the perfidious Congress, to receive them as friends without desiring them to inlist, offered to receive any person they might send to treat and to land with a body of Troops to cover and protect their March to Elizabeth Town till I should receive an Answer I was doubtful of the effect of an invasion perhaps the appearance of John Bull might have led the quarrelling dogs to a reconciliation My intelligence did not tempt me to make the signal I am just returned tired and hardly able to write, happily an account of this matter to the Minister will come from Sir Henry Clinton it will not be impertinent in me to tell you, That Congress has made the same agreement with the Jersey Brigade as with the Pennsylvania Line, — every man who can prove or swear that the time for which he engaged to serve is expired is to have his discharge out of 900 all but 150 are under this predicament those discharged are to have cloathing and as there is no hard money for a dollar due in<sup>1</sup> 75 in paper is to be paid the 150 who remain are to chuse new Officers they insist that all but three of the old shall be turned off. The Brigade has gone back from Springfield to the Barracks at

Pompton where they were quartered when the Revolt began to have the agreement executed, as the cause of the evil remains and will be increased with the increased emission of Paper the disorder will soon break out again the Troops of all the other states have given in their claims and to prevent being forced Congress has ordered the same conditions to be granted, this has reduced Washington's Army to less than 5000 men and destroyed his hope of raising 35000 for the War according to the regulated Quotas which were to be furnished and paid by each Province, I am sorry to tell you that three French Ships having sailed from Rhode Island, the Bedford Culloden America & Adamant were sent by Admiral Graves to follow them, all of them were in a dreadful Storm on Monday night last, the Culloden was driven on Long Island her men Guns & masts will be saved the Bedfords masts were cut away, she is safe in Gardners Bay, The America and Adamant have been seen with their Masts standing since the Storm, we have the inhuman consolation to hope that the French have fared worse. We know from the Rebel Papers that Arnold has destroyed the Rebel Stores and taken their Archives at Richmond. I fancy he has done them a deal of Mischief as they burn and abuse him with double Malice; I have given by Henry White's advice an Office in Chancery to your Deputy.

New York 6 May 1781.

My Lord,

On the 22<sup>d</sup> of April I had the honor of Your Lordships Circular letter of the 20 of Dec<sup>r</sup> 1780.

I have published this with the accompanying Manifesto and used every other means I could think of, to call the people to Arm Ships against the new Enemy the Dutch—But this Measure is at present obstructed by a still more important object.

The French men of War & Transports with Troops on board lye ready to sail at Rhode Island, while that under Adm<sup>l</sup> Arbuthnot having landed 1400 Sick & Scorbutic men, is here unable to go to Sea for want of hands. On the Admiral's requisition, with the Commander in Chiefs consent, other applications having proved ineffectual, all the Sailors here have been pressed for the Fleet.

This at present puts a stop to Privateering but on my representation to the Admiral that by encouraging Privateers and giving all men an easy access to them, We not only hurt the Enemy's Trade but lessen their Army. whereas by pressing we force the Sailors to fly and man the Rebel Ships of War, he has promised that as soon as the important blow he now meditates is struck or as soon as a sufficient number of his Sick recover, he will discharge all the men now impressed and will not renew a measure which nothing but the present state of his and the Enemy's Fleet could justify. I hope soon to be able to revive the Spirit of Privateering the obstructions to this have given the Rebels but too many opportunities lately of carrying into their Ports many of Our Ships and great numbers of their own.

Sir Henry Clinton after receiving this morning Information, which I presume he communicates to Your Lordship, signified to me that he thought it for his Majesty's Interest that I should immediately take upon myself the Command of the Army in Virginia I embark to Morrow Morning in the Amphitrite Frigate.

Well knowing the talents & disposition of Lieut' Gov' Elliot, I am perfectly satisfied he will continue every endeavour we have jointly used to make Government agreeable to the people, and hope on the whole that the Kings Service will not suffer by my absence from the Province, as this is to continue no longer than till the Army in Virginia falls under the Command of an elder Officer

Niagara. 11. October 17S1.

My Lord.

I had the honor to address your Lordship by letter of the 20th November last, and having since frequent communications with His Excell<sup>y</sup> General Haldimand, who would doubtless inform your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of any thing material respecting my Department, I deferred writing 'till this season when military operations are nearly at an end in this quarter.

The transactions of the present year & the proceedings of my Indian Partys, correspond in many respects with the last, and the Petite Guerre in these parts have never appeared to me of sufficient importance to lay a minute detail of them before your Lord<sup>sh</sup>. The six Nation Confederacy have, however, distinguished themselves more than usual this year in several smart actions with the Rebels in which, thro' the good conduct of the Indians, and of my Officers they have been every time successful, and in different parts have killed and taken several noted partizans, and laid waste a country abounding in supplies for the Rebels, which has compelled the latter to contract their frontier, and confine themselves within little Forts.—A large detachment is lately gone with a body of Troops ordered on service by the Commander in Chief, and I have just set off, two large parties to co-operate with them.

In a former letter I informed your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of my having prevailed on many of the Indians (who for their faithful services and sufferings expected to be maintained here during the War) to go upon planting grounds at a convenient distance from hence, and the great expence and difficulty attending the Transport of provisions to this Post, having made it necessary to get as many as possible to withdraw, I have been indefatigable in my endeavours for that purpose, and can now assure your Lord<sup>sh</sup>, that I have re established near four thousand of them, tho' at much expence, as by the destruction of their Country in 1779, they were in want of every thing, & their demands greatly encreased, but by settling them, I have not only reduced the consumption of provisions but also of all other expences, which will in future be very low, whilst supplied with goods from Europe, as the Indians were continually asking favours whilst here, neither was it prudent to refuse a people, who independent of their sacrifices for Govern<sup>ts</sup>, are the security in a great measure of all this communication and who give the example to the rest.

Some endeavours have been lately made by the Rebels to draw them into a neutrality which most of them disdain; I hope, shortly put an end to such attempts as well as to reconcile the Indians to the plan of Oeconomy now entered upon for reducing expences which however enormous, was for a time unavoidable, the accomplishing of this will afford me much satisfaction, for the expences which were only occasional before they were driven out of their country, and whilst they lived at a considerable distance, encreased so much by their residence here, as to require immediate reduction.—Some of the principal Chiefs now here, request that I may make favourable mention of their zeal and fidelity to His Maj<sup>ty</sup>, which I constantly tell them, is done, as every such assurance is very flattering to them, and indeed their conduct deserves it, having seldom less than 500 on service who are generally successful without cruelty.—As the Commander in Chief is fully acquainted with the State and services of my Department, it is needless for me to add more than, that I am with very great respect My Lord, Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s most obedient & most humble servant.—

<sup>1</sup> Colonel GUY JOHNSON was born in Ireland, and, coming to America, entered the Indian department under Sir William Johnson, as early as 1756. Supra, VII., 175. He served in the subsequent expedition against the French and accompanied Amherst up the lakes in 1759 in command of a company of rangers, and entered Montreal the following year with the army, remaining there sometime as Indian Agent. After the peace he married one of Sir William Johnson's daughters; was appointed one of his deputies and was placed on half-pay as Lieutenant in one of the New-York companies. Army Lists. On the death of his father-in-law, in 1774, Guy Johnson was appointed superintendent of Indian affairs (New-York Documentary History, II., 1006), but at the commencement of the public excitement in 1776, found it necessary to abandon his residence at Guy Park and proceed to Oswego with his family and some Indians, and thence to Montreal, where he arrived in July. Supra, p. 659. In November, he sailed for England, where he remained until the following summer. He landed at Staten Island in August, 1776, with a new commission as superintendent, and remained in New-York until 10th September, 1778. During his sojourn in that city he was one of the managers of the old Theatre in John-street. Stone's Life of Brant, I., 152, note. He next sailed for Halifax, where he remained until June, 1779; thence proceeded to Canada, and in the following campaign was present at the battles of Chemung and Newtown, in Western New-York, fought between General Sullivan and the Five Nation Indians. Stone's Brant, II., 19. His head-quarters, after this, were at Niagara, where he had a handsome house within the fort. Ibid., II., 54, 67. He went to England after the peace, and died at his residence, in the Haymarket, London, 5th March, 1788 (Gentleman's Magazine), up to which time his name continued on the half-pay list. In person he is described as short and puffy, hair powdered, of stern countenance and haughty demeanor; his voice was harsh and his tongue bore evidence of his Irish extraction. Stone's Brant, II., 67. His property, in the State of New-York, was confiscated by the act of 1779.—En.

My Lord,

While Officers of superior Rank and better informed, Account to your Lordships for the disaster that has befallen the Kings Arms. A Governor would do injustice to the people & disappoint their expectations if he did not inform you that they had made every effort within their power to prevent it.

With a zeal equal to the importance of the Service every hand and every means the place could afford was offered for fitting out the Fleet every Merchant and every man of consequence exerted his influence and liberally contributed with his fortune to raise Volunteers to Man it. and all the Sailors who were dead to the calls of generosity were with the assistance of the inhabitants pressed into the Service. The Fleet was finely fitted & manned, persuaded that if this had arrived in the Chesapeak before Lord Cornwallis was compelled to surrender, the event would have been disastrous to the Enemy. At the same time the people wish it should be known that no exertion of theirs was wanting to create dispatch they declare that sensible of his Majesty's goodness in allotting so great a part of his force for the defence of America, when he is attacked by so many powerful enemies far from being dejected they will endeavour by an increased Ardor to repair an unfortunate Event I am &c

Glanville Street. 23. March 1782.

Sir,

I was last night honored with your letter of the 18th inst: informing me that the King has been most Graciously pleased to appoint me Superintendant General and Inspector of Indian Affairs; this Mark of His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> favour and confidence, does most assuredly impress me with the warmest sentiments of duty and gratitude, and will ever excite me to exert my utmost endeavours to render my present appointment beneficial to the public, by establishing the strictest economy through all branches of my Department, by which means I hope to recommend myself to His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> further favour and attention.

Therefore, and in obedience to His Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Commands I shall immediately prepare to return to Quebec, to take upon me the exercise of my Office; nothing remains to prevent my immediate departure, but the want of a conveyance for myself, Family and baggage, in which, I must beg, you will please to assist me by an Order or in such other manner as you may judge fit.

I shall most punctually observe all orders and instructions that I may receive from the Commander in Chief, and I have no doubt but the allowance for my services, will be adequate and proper.

I have the honor to be with the greatest respect—Sir,

NOTE to p. 704.

The Book of Common Prayer in Mohawk, and its Translators.

Colonel DANIEL CLAUS or Classe, as the name is sometimes written, was probably a native of the Mohawk Valley, where he acquired, in early life, a knowledge of the Iroquois language, and was in consequence attached, as Interpreter, to the department of General Johnson (supra, VI., 964; VII., 30) whom he accompanied as Lieutenant of Rangers, in the expedition against Dieskau. New-York Documentary History, 8vo., IV., 281. In 1756 he was appointed Lieutenant in the 60th or Royal American regiment and continued at Johnstown or thereabouts until 1759, when he accompanied the expedition to Niagara, whence he went with the army to Montreal, where he was stationed as superintendent of the Canada Indians. Supra, VII., 246, 378, 435; New-York Colonial Documents, IV., 303. On the 6th July, 1761, he was promoted to a Captaincy in the 60th, but went on half pay in 1763, on the reduction of his regiment. Army Lists. Having returned to Fort Johnson, he continued to act as one of Sir William's Deputies and in 1766, assisted at the treaty concluded with Pontiac at Lake Ontario. Supra, 854. In 1767 he went back to Canada (New-York Documentary History, II., 860), but did not remain there; for having married one of the daughters of Sir William Johnson, he resided near Johnstown until the breaking out of the Revolution, when he retired to Canada. He visited England with Brant, in 1776, and arrived in Quebec 1st June, 1777, with a commission as Deputy Superintendent of, and with instructions to bring, the Indians to cooperate with the British army in the campaign of that year. He accordingly accompanied those tribes in the expedition against Fort Schuyler, in August, 1777, under Brigadier-General St. Leger, who commended his exertions on that occasion. On the failure of this expedition, Colonel Claus returned to Canada and, after peace was declared, proceeded to England to obtain some remuneration for his losses, as his name had been included in the Outlawry Act of 1799, and his property confiscated. He died at Cardiff, Wales, in the latter part of 1787. Gentleman's Magazine for 1787, p. 1024. Mrs. Claus survived her husband thirteen years and died in Canada in 1801. Stone's Life of Brant, II., 451. Colonel Claus' early and long connection with the Indian department as interpreter, rendered him thoroughly conversant with the Iroquois tongue; his services were therefore highly useful in superintending the publication of a correct Translation of the Book of Common Prayer into the Mohawk language, a history of which may be of interest. In the year 1704, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts sent the Rev. Thoroughgood Moor as missionary to the Mohawks, but his stay was too brief to be productive of any benefit. Supra, IV., 1077, note. After his departure the Rev. Mr. Freeman, Minister of the Reformed Dutch church at Schenectady, administered to those Indians, and translated for them the Morning and Evening Prayers, the whole of the Gospel of St. Matthew, the three first chapters of Genesis, several chapters of Exodus, a few of the Psalms, many portions of the Scriptures relating to the Birth, Passion, Resurrection and Ascension of our Lord, and several chapters of the 1st Epistle to the Corinthians, particularly the 15th chapter, proving the Resurrection of the Dead. But his work was not printed. In the year 1709 some Mohawk Indians visited England with Col. Schuyler, when application was made for some Missionaries. The Reverend William Andrews was accordingly sent out in the year 1712, by the Society, and the Reverend Mr. Freeman having given the Propagation Society a copy of his translations, they were sent to Mr. Andrews, for his use, with instructions to print a part in Indian and distribute them among his flock. Accordingly the Morning and Evening Prayers, the Litany, the Church Catechism, Family Prayers and several chapters of the Old and New Testament, were printed in New-York "about the year 1714." Humphrey's Historical Account of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 302, 303; Preface to the London edition of the Mohawk Prayer Book, 1787; Hawkins' Historical Notes, 266. The New-York Historical Society possesses a copy of this, which is the first edition of the Book of Common Prayer in Mohawk; for an examination of the interesting relic, we are indebted to the politeness of GEORGE H. MOORE, Esq., the learned Librarian of that valuable institution. The following is the title, of which we subjoin a translation, as nearly literal as may be:

The portions of Scripture translated are Psalms L, XV, XXXII; Genesis, I, II, III; and Matthew; I, II, V.

In the summer of 1762, Sir William Johnson communicated to the Rev. Dr. Barclay his design of getting out a new edition of the Indian Prayer Book, under the inspection of that clergyman who had been, in early life, a resident Missionary to the Mohawks. Sir William accordingly sent a translation of the Singing Psalms, Communion service, that of Baptism and some prayers to be added to the old edition; "and as the Square Figure rendered that somewhat inconvenient," he requested the new one to be "a handsome small Octavo." An agreement was entered into with William Weyman of New-York to print an edition of 400 copies, for thirty-six shillings, New-York money, a sheet, exclusive of paper. The work, however, was not commenced until the fall of 1763, and before much progress had been made, Dr. Barclay fell sick. This circumstance and his death in August, 1764, put a total stop to the work for two years. The Rev. Mr. Ogilvie who, like Mr. Barclay, had been a Missionary to the Mohawks and was conversant with their language, was next entrusted with the superintendence of the printing, which was again interrupted in 1768 by the death of Mr. Weyman, after having completed only 9 sheets, that is, signatures A to I, or as far as the 74th page. Hugh Gaine thereupon undertook to complete the work, and though obliged to reprint signatures A and H, the printing was finished by Christmas, 1768, and the first bound copy of the Prayer Book forwarded to Sir William Johnson on the 2d of February, 1769. New-York Documentary History, IV., 321, 334, 340, 364, 384, 386, 405. The New-York Historical Society has a copy of this second edition also, the Title of which is as follows:

Very few copies of this edition remained among the Mohawks when they retired to Canada in 1777. Apprehensive that the Book might be wholly lost in a little time, and desirous of a new supply, these Indians petitioned General Haldimand, then Governor of that Province, for a new edition. This request was granted, and one thousand copies were ordered to be printed under the supervision of Colonel Claus, "who," the Preface states, "read and understood "the Mohawk Language so as to undertake the Correction of the Book for the Press." But "as that gentleman's employ "would not permit him to remain at Quebec during the whole printing of the Book, almost one-half of it was corrected "at Montreal and sent weekly by half sheets to Quebec," until he returned to the latter city and finished "the remainder of the Book." The difficulties experienced by the Quebec printer in the composition, were quite as great as those encountered by Weyman and Gaine with the edition of 1769. He was "an entire stranger to the Language and obliged to "go on with the printing of it letter by letter, which made it a very tedious piece of work;" accents were now introduced for the first time to facilitate the pronunciation of the long words, "Paulus Sahoo wádi, the Mohawk Clerk and Schoolmaster, being present at the correction of every proof sheet to approve of their being properly placed." By these precautions many mistakes of the first edition, which were copied in the second, were avoided. The following is the Title of this Quebec edition, from the volume in our possession:

The Order | For Morning and Evening Prayer, | And Administration of the | Sacraments, | and some other | Offices of the Church | of England, | Together with | A Collection of Prayers, and some Sentences of the Holy | Scriptures, necessary for Knowledge and Practice. | Ne Yakawea. | Niyadewighniserage Yonderaenayendakhkwa Orhoenkéne, | neoni Yogarask-ha Oghseragwegouh; | Ne oui Yakawea, | Orighwadogeaghti Yondatnekosaraghs, | Tekarighwageahhadont, | Neoni óya Adereáuyent ne Onoghsadogeaghtige, | Oni | Ne Watkeanissa-aghtough od'yake Adereanaiyent neoni tei- | niyoght-hare ne Kaghyadoghsradogeaghti ne wahooni | Ayakoderiéandarake neoni Ahooddatterihonnie. | The Third Edition, | Formerly collected and translated into the Mohawk or Iroquois Lan- | guage, under the direction of the Missionaries from the Venerable | Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign Parts, to the | Mohawk Indians. |

This edition became soon exhausted; thereupon the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts resolved to have a new impression printed, especially as Colonel Claus, who was in England at the time, consented to superintend the impression, critically revise the whole and correct the sheets as they came from the press. His accurate knowledge of the Mohawk language, (continues the Preface) qualified him for the undertaking; and it is no more than justice to say, that this is only one out of many instances of this gentleman's unremitting attention to the welfare of the Indians. The fourth edition of the Mohawk Book of Common Prayer appeared accordingly. The previous ones had been printed in the Mohawk language only; in this the English is also printed on the opposite page. Besides this addition, the Gospel of St. Mark is inserted, with a translation of it into Mohawk by Captain Joseph Brant, being the first of the Gospels that was printed entire in that language. This volume has two Title pages, of which the following is a reprint:

The Book of | Common Prayer, | And Administration of the | Sacraments, | and other | Rites and Ceremonies | of the | Church, | according to the use of the | Church of England: | together with | A Collection of Occasional Prayers, and | divers Sentences of | Holy Scripture, | Necessary for Knowledge and Practise. | Formerly collected, and translated into the Mohawk Language | under the direction of the Missionaries of the Society for the | Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, to the Mohawk | Indians. | A New Edition: | to which is added | The Gospel according to St. Mark, | Translated into the Mohawk Language, | By Capt.
