WOMEN BY THOUSANDS ASSEMBLE IN MARCH TO CAPITOL WITH PETITION

Spectacular Parade at Washington in Purple, White and Gold To-day Demon- strates Insistence of American Women for Equal Franchise

Washington, May 9.—With banners flying, ten bands playing and the women singing a marching song, several thousand suffragists from various sections of the country to-day paraded Pennsylvania avenue from Lafayette Square to the capitol. There were 531 of them representing every state in the Union, who were assigned one to each senator and representative, and presented to the members of congress petitions asking the passage of the Bristow-Mondell resolution calling for the federal constitutional amendment enfranchising women.

When the capitol was reached the bands were massed on the plaza before the east front, where they played the "March of the Women," composed by Dr. Ethel Smyth, of England, accompanying a chorus of 1,000 women, wearing robes of white with green stoles and fillets of purple on their heads.

There were many novel features in the parade, and the marching women were cheered loudly by the throngs. First was borne aloft a banner 20 feet wide, bearing the inscription: "We demand the passage of the Bristow-Mondell resolution." Then came the first section, the pageant division, typifying spring, youth and hope, which had been arranged under the direction of Mrs. Ellipant Andrews, a well-known artist. Thousands of garlands of flowers were carried by the young women and children, the color shades of the blossoms having been selected with an eye to harmonizing with the union's colors, purple, white and gold. In this division also marched the chorus of 1,000, led by Mrs. Apolline M. Blair. The cavalry section was commanded by Mrs. Juliet Barrett Rublee, of Washington, who also was the mounted grand marshal of the procession. In advance of the cavalry contingent were seven color-bearers on horseback, each carrying a purple, white and gold flag.

Mrs. George Odell was chairman of the foot marshals of the political division, which was next in line, and which was subdivided into various sections. The sections that created the most interest were those of the women writers and the actresses.

Other groups included women, farmers, waitresses, saleswomen, laundresses, women printers, stenographers, social workers, seamstresses, artists, physiciennes, dentists, nurses, lawyers, teachers, taxpayers and home-makers, the latter section organized by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of Washington, wife of the noted pure food expert.

An interesting feature was a large delegation of women voters from the ten states where members of the fair sex are now allowed to cast the ballot. Walking at the head of this contingent was Dr. Cora Smith King, of Seattle, treasurer of the National Council of Women Voters.

BAND OF REGIMENT PLAYS TO PRISONER CENSURE IN SENATE

Ottawa, May 9.—In the senate yesterday Senator Cloran complained that when a man had been sent to jail in Halifax recently for contempt of the king's provincial legislature of Nova Scotia, the band of the King's Royal Canadian regiment, carrying the British flag, had been turned out to serenade the prisoner. The band had been made to commit this piece of insubordination, and the minister of militia, who stood up for the man who would kick the king and the crown into the Boyns, had not disciplined them. The spirit which actuated the Halifax incident was the same spirit which actuated Carson and Bonar Law, who, he said, were the worst enemies the British Empire had in the last 100 years.

On motion for second reading of a government bill prohibiting the sales of butter substitutes, Hon. Mr. Loughheed explained that there was now such legislation and that the bill was designed merely to make the present law more definite.

CEREAL FOOD MAKER

SUICIDES WITH GUN

Charles W. Post, Millionaire
Fighter of Unions, Found
Dead at Santa Barbara

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 9.—With a bullet from a rifle he had previously concealed in his apartment, Charles W. Post, the millionaire manufacturer of cereal foods, the national propagandist against union labor, killed himself to-day at his winter home here. Evading a trained nurse, who had been attending him since he returned from London a couple of days longer, he went to his apartment, placed the muzzle of the rifle in his mouth and kicked the trigger with his toe. The top of his head was blown off.

Post was convalescent from an illness which necessitated a major operation two months ago at Rochester, Minn. At that time he was hurried across the continent in a special train so that he might arrive at Rochester in time for the surgeons to save his life.

Returning here a few weeks ago, he seemed to be exceedingly nervous and Mrs. Post, who returned to their winter home here with him, engaged nurses to attend him.

Mr. Post rose at his usual hour this morning, breakfasted and lounged about until 10 o'clock, when he excused himself, telling the nurse on duty at the time that he wished to go to his apartment and lie down. A shot was heard. Mrs. Post and a nurse rushed to the apartment upstairs and found the millionaire stretched on the floor dead.

Both Mrs. Post and the nurse said they did not know how Mr. Post had procured the rifle. Its presence in the room was taken by them to indicate that he contemplated the deed.

MAZATLAN OFFICIALS READY FOR FLIGHT FALL OF WEST COAST CITY IS IMMINENT

Federals Set Fire to Pier to Prevent Refugee Ship Sailing; Bodies of Vera Cruz Dead Nearing New York; Texas City Brigades for Mexico

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan, May 8.—By Wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 9.—The fall of Mazatlan seems to be imminent. The city officials embarked last night on the federal gunboat Guerrero and the steamer Limantour, both of which are ready to sail for Salina Cruz. By order of Huerta, lighthouse service on the west coast of Mexico has been abandoned and the coast last night was in darkness.

The federals have abandoned the gunboat Morelos. A wild shot from the Guerrero to-day passed through a street of the city creating a panic. As a result of a three-days' battle the townspeople are in a state of terror and hundreds are fleeing.

Refugees from Manzanillo told of narrow escapes when they arrived here on the British steamer Cetriano, which was made into a refugee ship at the instance of the commander of the German cruiser Nurnburg. While the British steamer Cetriano was at the dock in Manzanillo, according to Capriano, the vessel's commander, and Consul Edwards, the Mexican federals set fire to the pier with oil and then resorted to dynamite to make the destruction more certain. Some of the last of the refugees to reach the ship made their way to safety only at great risk.

The Cetriano was cleared from the burning pier with much difficulty, and as she was swinging out into the stream several shots were fired across her decks from shore. Arrival of the cruiser Raleigh put an end to the firing and to the deprecations of the Mexicans along the waterfront.

New York, May 9.—The battleship Wyoming left the Brooklyn navy yard to-day to meet the armored cruiser Montana bearing the bodies of the United States marines and bluejackets killed at Vera Cruz. The Wyoming will remain at anchor off the Ambrose Channel light house, outside New York harbor, until the arrival to-morrow of the Montana. With the Montana will be the presidential yacht Mayflower, carrying Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

The funeral ship will move up the bay late in the afternoon. The dead will be taken off and placed on caissons at the Battery. They will remain there under a military guard until transferred to the Brooklyn navy yard Monday morning.

Washington, May 9.—Secretary Garrison to-day continued supervision of preparations to send the remainder of the second division of the army to Vera Cruz as a precautionary measure. Orders have gone to the fourth and sixth brigades at Texas City to be ready to reinforce General Funston. Arrangements were made for eleven transport ships.

TWELVE VILLAGES ARE RAZED BY EARTHQUAKE

Extra Rumbles Overturning Homes in Hamlets Around Catania—Death List Known to Number 135 Persons—Damage to Property Enormous

Catania, Sicily, May 9.—Earthquake and volcanic eruption, followed by fire, destroyed twelve or more villages on the slopes of Mount Etna last night. The disaster caused the death of at least 100 persons. The number of injured will reach several hundred. Refugees declared the property loss is as great as in the Messina disaster of 1908.

Railroad tracks were torn up, churches razed to the ground, houses shaken to ruin, and telegraph poles overturned over a radius of several miles around Catania.

Terror-stricken people rushed from the villages into Catania before daybreak to-day, bringing stories of ruin and disaster.

Roofs Fall in, Walls Collapse, Killing People

The villages of Linera and Consentini were transformed into heaps of ruins.

At Zafferana every house was destroyed. Enormous damage was caused at Santa Venerina. Roofs fell in and walls collapsed in the hamlets of Santa Maria Ammalati, Carico, Guardia, Margano, Santa Tecla and Bongiaro. The village of Santa Maria Vergine Catania was razed.

Fifty persons are known to have been killed in the village of Linera, which was destroyed. Among the ruins of Passopomo, Bongiaro and Malati twenty bodies have been found this morning.

Interruption of railroads and telegraphs made it impossible to obtain any accurate details as to the loss of life.

Official reports late to-day placed the number of dead at 135 and the injured at 283. These figures will probably be increased by more complete advices from the wrecked villages.

HINDUS NECESSARY AS LABORERS SAYS ANGUS

Canadian Pacific Director Says Natives of India Fill Out in Canada

Montreal, Que., May 9.—R. B. Angus, aged 83, accompanied by his son James Angus, his daughter Mrs. Charles F. Martin, and Dr. Martin arrived in Montreal yesterday afternoon after a trip around the world. The party crossed the continent on Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's special train. Sir Thomas was returning from his annual tour of inspection and the Angus party joined him at Victoria. Mr. Angus spoke of the reception given the party by the viceroys of India, Lord Hardinge, and Lady Hardinge, at Delhi, and mentioned that his excellency had expressed concern to him at the threatened exclusion of some of his majesty's subjects from the British Columbia coast. He felt that the exclusion of all Asiatics might be fairer.

"I replied," said Mr. Angus, "that this would seriously embarrass some branches of industry and would also be met with a weighty protest from Japan."

"After seeing these people in their native land and gaining some idea of their mode of life and manners, what is your opinion on this question?" Mr. Angus was asked.

"Well, you know we want this to be a white man's country," was the reply, and then he added, "but there is no doubt that the Japanese and Hindus make splendid laborers and they are needed in the British Columbia canneries and for the construction of the railroads through the mountains. The Hindus are splendid men in the lumber industry also. In their country they are poor emaciated persons, but they improve over here. They fill out and seem to make very good workmen."

WAITING GOOD CROP CANADA MARKS TIME

Stringency Evident to Shaughnessy but Vital Interests Remain Unhurt

Montreal, Que., May 9.—"I return more optimistically inclined than when I started out," said Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, back from the west this morning.

He saw signs of the general stringency, but some unmistakable signs of recovery. Improvement, indeed, was beginning to manifest itself, he said, but it was not marked, nor would it be so for some little time.

"I could see the state of things as far as our own business is concerned in the trains, in the hotels, in the freight shrinkage, there being comparatively little to move. People are on an even keel and they are marking time. I do not look for any great recovery until the fall, when, if we have a good crop, and all the signs point that way, there will be a recovery, and that of a wholesome and rational nature."

"On the other hand, there is nothing in this country fundamentally unshaken from the business point of view," said Sir Thomas. "If I thought differently I would, with the evidences of stringency, begin to feel a little anxious. That is not the case absolutely. The country is sound. No vital interests have been irretrievably hurt. As far as we are concerned, our position is strong. There has been a shrinkage, but when we consider our returns upon the stock and when we consider, above all, that the business of the country in its large aspects is sound and that we share in it, there is no cause for anxiety. The stock has its intrinsic value apart from any speculative interest, and then too, we have other large assets not directly associated with the business strictly. Of course these may be affected by the fluctuations of economic law but they have the inherent value."

DENMARK SOVEREIGN WILL REACH LONDON TO-MORROW ON VISIT

Dangerous to Give Vote to Foreigners Too Soon Says Speaker at Toronto

London, May 9.—The King and Queen of Denmark, travelling on the Danish royal yacht Dannebrog, will land in England to-morrow morning, and will arrive in London in the afternoon. They will be the guests of the king and queen at Buckingham Palace for four days.

The official visit terminates on May 13, but, according to present arrangements, their majesties may remain in London for a couple of days longer as the guests of Queen Alexandra at Marlborough House.

On May 2 the Danish sovereigns will visit the city and be entertained at luncheon at the Guildhall. The entertainments arranged in honor of the royal visitors will also include a ball and banquet at Buckingham Palace and a performance at Covent Garden opera house.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER SUSPECTED OF CRIMES

ONE JUROR WANTED TO TRY CHARLES BECKER

Cranbrook, B. C., May 9.—P. A. Ard and another man named Sheridan have been arrested by immigration officers at Kingsgate, B. C., and held as suspects in connection with the murder of G. N. R. extra gang at Bonner's Ferry, Idaho. When placed under arrest they had revolvers and 125 rounds of ammunition.

The sectionmen of G. N. R. found O'Hennessey lying on the tracks shot through the body, and took him to the bunk car, where he died. Ard and Sheridan are supposed also to be responsible for the robbery and murder of a man at Hilliard, Washington, the day before, and answer closely to the description of the men wanted by the C. P. R. in connection with a murder and robbery near Moose Jaw about April 23.

They are held in jail at Sand Point and will be charged with murder.

IMMIGRANT SUBJECT OF EMPIRE DAUGHTER

ONE JUROR WANTED TO TRY CHARLES BECKER

Toronto, May 9.—The Daughters of the Empire held a special meeting yesterday prior to their departure for Hamilton as the guests of the Hamilton chapter. The meeting was called for the purpose of hearing an important paper on immigration by Mrs. W. J. Brown, and enthusiasm was exhibited at the close of her able address.

"Canada is a magnet of wonderful power," said Mrs. Brown, "whose greatness and wealth are drawing with irresistible force the restless and ambitious from all over the world."

"They are looking to Canada as the land of promise. In ten years 1,715,336 immigrants came to Canada and in the last two years they have come at the rate of 400,000 a year. The law should be changed which gives the immigrants a vote after three years in the country, except in the case of the British immigrant. It is dangerous to give the vote to such men, who are but tools in the hands of unscrupulous politicians. One irresponsible foreign vote kills the vote of one Canadian. We have in Canada 400,000 people who are not our kith and kin, many of whom are but one generation removed from serfdom. What are we going to do with these people? It seems that too little is being done to get the right kind of people. If methods were improved it would be possible to induce a better class of Brits to come out. There are tens of thousands of time-expired army men who would make excellent farm hands. Australia is to-day making a special bid for the boy immigrant and ex-army man."

"What practical work can the Daughters of the Empire undertake in connection with the problem? Use our influence to secure a better class of immigrants through improved legislation. We can also undertake the work of alleviation of social conditions, raising the standard of citizenship, the promotion of educational effort, and the training of our youth in patriotism. Mere greatness of territory or commercial achievement or numerical strength of population are insufficient to make us permanent as a nation. The foundations of our institutions have been laid in accordance with British ideals. May we determine that Canada shall remain a British nation in sentiment, ideals and allegiance."

That greater care should be exercised in admitting newcomers was advocated; also more stringent rules at the various shipping ports.

The delegates will disperse to-day. Next year's meeting takes place in Halifax.

TORONTO UNIONISTS PARADE WITH BANDS

WOMAN CONFESES TO POLICE OF ROBBERY COMMITTED AT SAN FRANCISCO

Toronto, May 9.—With twelve bands blaring out "Boyne Water" and "Protestant Boys" 15,000 Toronto Unionists marched through the city to-day to protest against the imposition of Home Rule upon Ulster and to prove to Premier Asquith that there are men overseas who want to see a compromise which will leave Ulster out.

SAYS HUSBAND LACKED COURAGE FOR CRIME

JURY TALKS THIRTEEN HOURS AND DISAGREES

San Francisco, May 9.—Mrs. Rosalie Gober confessed to the police that she and her husband, John T. Gober, snarled and robbed Edward S. Preston, a realty dealer at the Presidio Tuesday night, and that she planned and generated the scheme. The two were arrested last night after Preston had done some detective work for three nights.

Preston told the police that he was relieved of $394 in cash, a diamond stickpin and a gold watch, but the woman said that all she got for her risk was $5. She accused her husband of lacking courage to carry out his just share of the crime she plotted.

STORY OF MASSACRE BROUGHT FROM PERU

New York, May 9.—Captain W. P. Aspinall, of the steamer Gregory, which arrived yesterday from Iquitos, 2500 miles up the Amazon, brought a story of a massacre of forty-five Peruvian soldiers, all Indians, who had murdered and killed their officers.

The story is considered almost unbelievable, but Captain Aspinall gives it on the authority of the man who carried out the expeditions, Captaina Fernando Casabel, a passenger on his ship as far as Barbadoes.

DIVISION OF ONTARIO HOLDS REDISTRIBUTION

Prospects of Agreement in Quebec
Encouraging; Bill Should Pass
This Year.

Ottawa, May 9.—An agreement between the parties on the subject of redistribution is apparently not as near as it seemed to be recently. The principal hitch is in Ontario, where eight seats will be marked out. In Midland sex, where one seat must go, there is a dispute as to whether in the rearrangement the county will be divided east and west or north and south.

In North York the question at issue is whether Stouffville will remain there or go to an adjoining constituency. In the eastern part of the province there is a problem respecting the proposed elimination of Russell county. The prospects for an agreement in Quebec are encouraging, but what has taken place is unofficial.

The expectation is that the bill will pass this year, though certain Conservatives in Quebec have no objection if it were deferred until next session.

SERVICES FOR THOSE WHO DIED AT LUDLOW

San Francisco, May 9.—Workingmen and women held a mass meeting on the street in the business district to-day as a memorial to the women and children who met death recently at Ludlow, Colo., in the miners' strike. The names of the dead were read, the speaker saying that it was proposed to establish each as an individual in the minds of his hearers, thus getting away from a custom of speaking of the poor only in numbers.

The services were conducted by the Rev. John M. Jackson and Rabbi J. Nieto.

WOMAN SENTENCED

Oakland, Cal., May 9.—Mrs. Bazel Lux, who shot and killed William Garland in February because she said he had refused to marry her, was sentenced to-day to serve a life term in San Quentin prison. Mrs. Lux was found guilty of second-degree murder.

U. S. PRIVATE RODE INTO LINES OF MEXICAN ARMY

Washington, May 9.—General Funston to-day from Vera Cruz confirmed unofficial reports that Private Parks, supposed to be insane, had been captured by Mexican federals, into whose lines he rode with two horses belonging to Lieut.-Colonel E. F. Taggart, whom he served as orderly. General Funston did not report that Parks had been executed but mentions the execution of an unidentified civilian.

CASPIAN SEA SURFACE FOUND TO BE SINKING

St. Petersburg, May 9.—The scientific world in Russia has for some time been occupied with a curious natural phenomenon. The surface of the Caspian has, since June, 1910, been continually sinking, and is now beginning to be inconvenient for navigation, as steamers in many places cannot reach the landing stages.

Professor Shokalski, commissioned by the government to study the subject, has ascertained that the amount of water contributed by the rivers flowing into the Caspian, especially by the Volga, has considerably diminished. It is therefore quite possible that the river flowing into the sea is not sufficient to make good the loss caused by evaporation.

TWO AVIATORS KILLED

Stettin, Germany, May 9.—Lieut. Faber and Lieut. Kurtz, German army aviators, were killed to-day while attempting to make a landing here. They were on a flight from Schwerin to Fosen.

WAGE AVERAGE RISES IN AMERICAN CITIES

Washington, May 9.—The average rate of wages per week in forty of the leading cities of the United States for more than sixty of the principal industries was higher on May 15, 1913, than on May 15, 1912, with the single exception of the millwork carpenters, which showed no change, says a statement issued to-day by the bureau of labor statistics. The greatest average increase was for marble setters, which was 6.6 per cent.

SELKIRK TUNNEL IS FIFTY-ONE FEET IN

Pioneer Bore of C. P. R. Driven 1,800 Feet to Aid in Construction

Vancouver, May 9.—Recent progress reports received at the office of the general superintendent of the C. P. R. indicate that work is now rapidly advancing on the boring of the five-mile, double-track tunnel under the base of the Selkirk range. More than 1,800 feet of the "pioneer" bore, which is being pierced in a line parallel with the main passage, has been excavated and the large tunnel has been scooped out a distance of 51 feet.

The force of drill men now employed on the work attack the tunnel from a number of points by means of side drifts from the "pioneer." So far, drilling operations have been confined to what is known as the eastern portal, but the excavation of the approaches at the western side of the mountain range is nearly complete and another similar bore will be started soon from the other end.

The Rogers Pass tunnel scheme is the largest undertaking of its kind ever taken in hand on this continent, and the passage will be the longest railway bore on the continent. It will obviate the present necessity of using two long spiral loops on the western slope and eliminate miles of snow sheds as well as effect a big grade reduction and cut out several miles of the detour now made to cross the Selkirk range.

STRAINED RELATIONS IN IRELAND HURT FARMING-SIDELIGHTS IN ENNISKILLEN

Effect of Home Rule Indecision Not Confined Solely to Trade; Newspaper Proprietor in Limelight; Only Three Protestant Home Rulers in One Town

(Special letter to the Times by correspondent in Ulster.)

Londonderry, April 27.—A good story is told in connection with the recent manufacture of pyjamas by Ulster women in preparation for the possible necessity of hospital treatment—a campaign so successful that enough pyjamas were supplied to supply a far larger army than Ulster's. A number of ladies had met together to fashion these very necessary garments, and there arose quite a dissension as to whether nightgowns or pyjamas should be made, the more fashionable ladies holding out for pyjamas, while those not quite so well situated favored nightgowns. The controversy waxed quite warm. Finally, however, it was settled by the following pious pronouncement by a little woman, who should have been a lawyer: "Pyjamas, you say. Sure and if a man had both legs shot off, how could you put him into pyjamas?" They made gowns.

Practising at Bandaging. The instruction of hundreds of Ulster women in nursing has also an amusing side to it. "It may not have occurred to you," a very dignified officer remarked to me, "but as a matter of fact nothing is more natural than that our wives should practise on us, and as a matter of fact they do. My wife is continually bandaging me up in all sorts of ways, and of course I can't object, though sometimes it's a nuisance, you know. I got a little cold while out riding the other day," he added, "and my wife has had a fine time curing me." He was a very stiff-looking and serious-looking gentleman, and to see him all tied up in a knot with bandages must have been a rare picture. But just as square shoulders are being formed by Ulster drills, so will more capable women be the result of Ulster nursing instruction. The doctors have co-operated very heartily in this work, but indications point to the probability of its lessening the number of calls on physicians in future.

Affairs at Enniskillen. Enniskillen, Ireland, April 27.—In Canada at election time the politics of a stranger in almost any typical town are judged by the politics of the hotel where he is staying; in Ireland at the present moment a very similar state of affairs prevails. Little may a man hope for from the Protestants if he stays at a Catholic hostelry, and vice versa. In Ulster the lines are being drawn very closely indeed. I know of one instance where a lifelong Protestant client was told by a Roman Catholic lawyer that he had better transfer his legal business to some other firm, as his frequent visits to the law office were getting it "in wrong" with suspicious people.

I have already referred to the scandalous writings on the ceilings of railway coaches which the youth of both parties perpetrate. In a railway depot the other day I saw a fireplace all scribbled over with such comments as "No Home Rule," "Ulster bluff," "Askwith (so spelled) by the man in grey," in a railway compartment I saw the legend, "A Fenian King."

Business Shows Depression. Men on both sides of politics and in many branches of trade admit freely that the feeling which prompts this sort of thing has had a bad effect on business, and even if the whole home rule question were settled, the sorrow that hangs over the people, and of course takes no political attitude. But I am told that there is plenty of evidence to be seen at its depot of the strained relations between Protestant and Catholic farmers who take their produce there, and that neglect of business by these farmers is also manifest to some extent.

All this, of course, extremely bad for Ireland, and indeed the ill-feeling between the two parties is injuring the land in countless ways. At Enniskillen, for instance, there is a fruit and vegetable show, and certain comments made by a Unionist newspaper proprietor about a Catholic exhibitor resulted in the former being fined 15 in Dublin, a fine which, with costs, his friends insisted on paying. And now there is talk of boycotting this year's show as a result of the unpleasantness. The same sort of thing permeates all branches of life. In the case of pulling together the people of Ulster are pulling against themselves, and the result is somewhat unfortunate. Also, each party blames the situation upon the other.

By Force of Circumstance. The newspaper proprietor mentioned is one of the interesting characters which the Ulster situation has brought into prominence. He is W. Copeland Trimble, a name well-known to the many Fenian people in and about Toronto. Just as Canon King, of Limerick, was thrust into the publishing business by the Ulster movement, so was Mr. Trimble thrust into commanding three squadrons of horse. Canon King had, of course, written considerably for magazines before circumstances made him the leading Ulster pamphleteer, and Mr. Trimble had a general knowledge of military affairs before he became a commander. But he had not been an army man, and fate pitched him into his present position in a rather curious way.

In 1912, a visit from Sir Edward Carson was thought to necessitate a mounted escort. What was everybody's business, however, proved nobody's business, and in the end, Mr. Trimble had to act himself. He had not ridden for 25 years, but he got about 250 men together. They proved to be the nucleus of the Enniskillen Horse, to-day the crack mounted men of the Ulster army. Their mounts are not quite so good as last year, for war talk on the continent made troop horses worth £10 to £15 more than normal price, and many members sold their choicest animals. Nevertheless, with mounts and equipment, the Enniskillen horse represents an investment of £10,000. The men elected Trimble their commander, a position which he has filled with great satisfaction. Equipment is complete.

I have not seen any regiment of volunteers in the Ulster Infantry so completely equipped as are the Enniskillen horse. They have uniforms of sage khaki with a touch of yellow. They carry knives with gay red and white pennants.

They even have a crest on their buttons, and hats of a smart pattern. They have some B.S.A. 1913 magazine rifles and more Lee-Enfields. And they ride like soldiers, these farmers' sons who used to hunt with the slouching careless seat of the "man not trained to get the most out of his horse. Among them are some old yeomanry and cavalry men.

They represent a territory within twelve miles of Enniskillen, the town also having a foot regiment. Naturally the Unionists are proud of these squadrons, and show them to the many deputations which are being brought over from England and Scotland to be impressed with Ulster's readiness for war. The origin of the deputation idea is of some interest. Mr. A. L. Horner, M. P., was challenged at an English meeting when he told the story of Ulster's preparations for trouble. He offered to pay the expenses of a deputation which could see for itself on condition that it would "report back" to the constituency. The trip was such a success that other deputations have been brought over with a like object in view.

Enniskillen now has the distinction of having Enniskillen Dragoons in India and Enniskillen Horse at home, and the regulars are said to be proud of their volunteer namesakes, whose title, indeed, was at one time borne by a regiment of regulars.

Three Protestant Home Rulers. To give an example of the closeness with which political lines conform to religious beliefs in Ulster, I might cite a statement made to me by a Unionist that there were only three Protestant Liberal Home Rulers in this town, one of whom receives emoluments from the government. Not accepting his statement, I went to the men in question and found their version to be practically the same. They admitted that they were the only ones of their kind in the place—openly, at any rate.

In another Ulster town I had a talk with men similarly situated, and they declared that many who secretly are not opposed to Home Rule are opposing it for business reasons. "In some communities," they said, "it takes considerable courage for a Protestant to favor Home Rule in public." One of them scoffed at the idea of the volunteers fighting. "I know some of them very well," he said, "Methodist local preachers among them, and they have no more intention of fighting than you have of cutting your head off."

But from what I have seen, I cannot agree that the Ulster volunteer force is a bluff, or drills in a spirit of bluff. That spirit might carry through a spectacular parade or two, but it would not take men to the drill halls night after night to go through the most arduous exercises. Ulster means business. And I am informed that some of the Protestant farmers in districts almost entirely Catholic are alarmed at the attitude of their fellow-Unionists in the cities, for they feel that in case of hostilities, reprisals would certainly be indulged in, and that they, isolated among their foes, would reap the whirlwind. G. H. MAITLAND.

NATIONALISTS FIRM FOR PASSAGE OF HOME RULE

LONDON, Eng., May 9.—The Daily Telegraph says that nothing has happened in the conferences between Sir Edward Carson and Bonar Law, and it is a fact that there is not likely to be any resumption of the conversations. The indications are that the home rule bill will go forward to its final stage under the Parliament Act, without any understanding between the parties.

Sixty-five members of the Nationalist party in the commons have prepared an "ultimatum" for presentation to the prime minister. Its terms are that: 1. No concessions to be given to Ulster in the direction of exclusion further than the six-year period already put forward.

2. Falling acceptance of this, the home rule bill must be passed as it stands under the Parliamentary Act, at the latest, before the end of May. 3. In the event of the government postponing the passage of the bill we shall at once deem it our duty to abstain from the division lobby. 4. If Mr. Asquith's private assurance

FALSE ADVERTISING WILL BE PUNISHABLE

Bill in Commons Principally on Real Estate Statements is Read

Ottawa, May 9.—In the commons yesterday government bills were under consideration, including bills to give the government power to forbid the exportation of petroleum from Canadian crown lands, and to amend the criminal code by making it a punishable offence to state untruths in advertising matter.

The latter bill received a third reading. The former stood over in order that certain suggestions made by the opposition may be considered by the government.

The minister of agriculture announced that the department proposed to encourage farmers to organize breeders' associations to secure suitable sires, the department to pay a portion of the cost. The present system of giving bonuses would be discontinued.

Hon. C. J. Doherty gave notice of motion to amend the Canada Temperance act and an amendment in regard to the contestation of elections. Any voter on either side can be heard before a superior court.

Hon. Frank Oliver asked if the amendment in regard to the compiling of lists applied to the unorganized portions of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Mr. Doherty said that it did. In regard to the pickled fish bill the legislation will apply to both the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, and the minister expressed the opinion that there was a great future for the fishing industry on the Pacific coast.

During the consideration of a bill providing for the allowance of $500 per annum to Mrs. Alice Joyansen, the widow of J. H. Joyansen, a guard in the British Columbia penitentiary, who was killed in the performance of his duty, Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that it would be a wise thing to have a general law dealing with such matters. Such a law would provide that in the event of any official losing his life in the performance of his duty his widow and family should be allowed a pension.

Hon. C. Doherty agreed with the suggestion, and intimated that such legislation would likely be enacted.

The bill on advertising will make persons who insert untruthful statements regarding property in advertisement liable to punishment.

A. K. Maclean asked if the bill would apply to a false statement that goods were all-wool or that shoes were the best in town.

Mr. Doherty said that the case of the shoes was a matter of opinion. If goods were advertised as all-wool when they were not all-wool, that would come within the scope of the bill.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux doubted whether it was necessary to protect the people who bought townsite property in the West without seeing it. Such transactions were pure speculation, and he doubted whether people who went into them should be protected against themselves.

Mr. Doherty answered that the purpose of the bill was not to protect the people, but to punish the liars.

Sir Wilfrid—That is a very large contract.

Mr. Doherty—As they have no fear of God in their hearts, we propose to put a little fear of the law in them.

Mr. Lemieux wanted to know if the act would apply to false statements made at elections, and whether the member for Chateauguay (Mr. James Morris) could be prosecuted for his promise that the people who went into them should be protected against themselves.

Mr. Doherty did not think the act could apply.

Mr. Graham said that false information was often given in real estate advertising by means of pictorial representations. He thought that it should be amended to cover such cases. This suggestion was supported by R. B. Bennett, Calgary, and accepted by the minister of justice.

Hon. Frank Oliver brought up the question of the responsibility of a newspaper. He was not anxious that they should be liable, but he would like to know how far the law went.

Mr. Doherty replied that the bill was not aimed at correspondence, but at individuals. If, however, a false advertisement was published with the knowledge of any individual connected with the newspaper, that person would be liable under the act.

W. Knowles, Moose Jaw, thought the legislation was dangerous. He feared it would be abused by purchasers who regretted their bargain to recover the money they had paid by threats of criminal prosecution.

Mr. Doherty replied that the evil which Mr. Knowles feared existed under the present law. If money had been paid, the person who circulated a false advertisement in order to secure that money was already liable to criminal prosecution for fraud.

Mr. Knowles added that most of the representations in regard to western real estate were made by eastern people.

"Hear, hear," interposed Mr. Bennett, Calgary.

"It is western land, but the liars are eastern liars," said Mr. Knowles.

James McKay, Prince Albert, said that he was in favor of creating the offence, but thought the method of procedure was dangerous legislation.

Mr. Bennett interjected that the idea was to make the procedure simple.

"Yes, but by making it a simple procedure, a man might lose his right of appeal," said Mr. McKay.

Mr. Doherty said there was no desire to make this a heinous offence, but to provide a mild punishment as a deterrent and to stop people from making false advertisements in regard to real estate.

Mr. F. B. Carvell said that he heartily approved the bill.

Mr. Knowles said that it was very common to advertise fire sales where

BRITISH DRINK BILL FOR 1913 $18 EACH

Spirits Consumed in Year 1,267,000 Gallons; Beer 1,002,000; Wine is Third

London May 9.—The drink bill of the United Kingdom for the past year shows an increase of twenty-five million dollars. The United Kingdom Alliance, whose mission is to decrease the consumption of alcoholic liquors, makes this report, and suggests that the increase is probably due to unprecedented prosperity, for the kingdom had never experienced a greater wage bill. The encouraging feature, according to the alliance, is a decrease shown in the per capita consumption, which attained its maximum during similar trade revivals in 1874 and 1899.

A discouraging feature is the increase in the consumption of spirits, which leads with an increase of 1,267,000 gallons. Beer is second with 1,002,000 gallons, and wine third with 1,002,000 gallons. The share of each individual in the United Kingdom in the drink bill for 1913 was $18, while the average for a family of five persons was $90. Since these figures do not allow for the boys and girls under fifteen years of age and the total abstainers, it may be assumed that among the drinkers the average per capita expense for drinks is much higher than stated.

During 1911, 2,802 men and 2,074 women were certificated to have died in England and Wales alone as the result of alcoholism. This number does not include those whose deaths have been accelerated by the use of alcohol. Dr. W. C. Sullivan is quoted in the report as making the statement that twenty per cent. of the suicides in the United Kingdom are due to the use of alcoholic stimulants.

A startling feature of the infant mortality figures furnished by the alliance is the fact that in 1912, 1,176 babies under one year of age were suffocated while sleeping with their parents or other elders, and the organizer claims that most of these cases can be laid at the door of alcoholic indulgence. The organization also points out the effect of alcohol on the physique of the race, on crime and on divorce.

COLONEL STEELE IN LINE FOR INSPECTOR-GENERAL

Ottawa, May 9.—It has been rumored here in official circles for some time that Colonel S. B. Steele, D. O. C., M. D., No. 19, Winnipeg, will be the man selected to succeed Gen. W. H. Cotton, Inspector-general of Canadian military forces. It is understood that some objection has been raised in the east by friends of several officers who claim seniority over Col. Steele.

SEATTLE PHYSICIAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Seattle, May 9.—Dr. Louis H. Radon, a physician with offices here, was picked up unconscious in the alley behind the White building at 12.30 o'clock this morning and taken to the city hospital, where it was found that he had suffered the fracture of several ribs and possible fracture of the skull. His recovery, it is said at the hospital, is extremely doubtful. The manner in which he received his injuries is still a mystery.

CHURCHMEN OF COAST TO MEET AT SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, May 9.—The eighth international Pacific coast conference of churchmen will be held here September 2-6, inclusive. The conference is made up of churchmen of the Protestant Episcopal church in California, Oregon, Washington, Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia.

BOY KILLED, THREE ARE INJURED BY EXPLOSION

Vancouver, May 9.—David Mayne, nine years old, who lived with his parents at Sixty-first avenue and Ontario street, South Vancouver, was instantly killed about 7 o'clock last evening when he exploded a dynamite fulminating cap by striking it with a stone. His young brother, Alexander Mayne, four and a half years old, was injured, and two little girls, Beatrix and Florence Milsted, aged 7 and 3 years respectively, were also injured, but not so severely.

EVANS NOW ORGANIZING COMMISSION ON CANAL

Ottawa, May 9.—W. Sanford Evans, chairman of the Georgian Bay canal commission, has been in the capital for a few days organizing the commission for the purpose of inquiry. It is the intention to gather all the statistics and facts already available. This data is expected to cover the question of traffic on the lakes, shipping facilities on the lakes and diversion of traffic to American ports.

REVELSTOKE NATIONAL PARK ORDER IS MADE

Ottawa, May 9.—An order-in-council has been passed setting aside as a national park an area of 95 square miles, located within the railway belt of British Columbia and in the vicinity of Mount Revelstoke. The park will be known as the Revelstoke National Park. It will border on the Illicitlawet river. It possesses striking natural beauty, including glaciers, great mountain peaks and water falls.

DERBY FAVORITE.

London, May 9.—Sir John Thursby's colt Kenmore, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, according to official club betting is now firm favorite for the Derby at 5 to 2, having displaced the winter favorite, The Pet-rarch, whose price has gone out to 9 to 2. The doubt about the latter is whether he can be got ready for the race, which is run at Epsom on May 27. His bad leg stopped his preparation, though he is reported now to be doing some hard gallops. Then again, even if he goes to the post there is the possibility that he may break down should the going be hard. If he is fit and well and can produce his form of last year his wonderful speed puts him in a class by himself. Black Jester is quoted at 8 to 1.

CANADIAN NORTHERN AID.

We are not very much concerned with the accusation that we suppressed the interesting news that four provincial premiers had written to the Prime Minister urging that federal assistance be granted to the Canadian Northern railroad...

Not only is railroad construction cheaper in the Northwest but enormous freight business is assured at once. The profitable sections are the most profitable parts of our transcontinental railway systems...

But there is another consideration implied in the recommendation of the provincial premiers. It is that aid to the Canadian Northern is necessary for the preservation of the credit of the provinces. In this connection we note that the well-informed Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Gazette says: "They (the premiers) have asked the government to lend Canada's credit to save the road from going into liquidation with all that this would involve in the way of destroying provincial credit."

What does this mean? It means that the criticism levelled against the contracts adopted by this province in 1910 and subsequently was absolutely sound; that the transactions between the government and Mackenzie & Mann were imperilling the provincial credit; that the province was shouldering an enormous liability on account of a company whose methods were such that liquidation was inevitable without federal intervention.

What a commentary the urgent requests of the provincial premiers afford on the high-faluting assurance of Sir Richard McBride and his local echo, the morning paper, as to the ironclad stability and security of the Canadian Northern railway! Mark the change in the key. The tune now is that our credit is so heavily involved with that of the company whose bonds we have guaranteed for $47,000,000 that federal aid is required to help us out.

The Times does not contend that no aid should be given the Canadian Northern railroad, but it strongly objects to the terms of the agreement brought down by Mr. Borden. Under that arrangement the security received by the government is worthless. For the most part it consists of a second mortgage on the numerous branch lines, or a third mortgage, if we place the bondholders first. In addition it holds merely a minority of the common stock. The promoters themselves are not compelled to put up a cent of personal security, although they have vast private interests in various portions of the continent acquired indirectly through their association with a railroad system built almost entirely on the public credit.

SERIOUS ALLEGATIONS.

It will not do for the Attorney-General to dismiss with a platitude or wave of the hand Mr. Brewster's charges against his department in regard to the enforcement of law and order in the Skeena district. The allegations of collusion between the provincial police and keepers of blind pigs and other dives call for a searching inquiry by an impartial investigator. Is it possible to conceive of a more disgraceful spectacle than that of a member of the provincial police behind the bar of an illicit drinking place? The disclosures of the Tammany regime in New York, or, farther back, of the flagrant lawlessness which prevailed in the western states in the early days, were no worse than this. What effect will this farcical enforcement of the law have upon the foreign immigrants who are likely to come to this province upon the opening of the Panama Canal? It undoubtedly encouraged the setpette of thugs to hold up a Hazelton bank in broad daylight with fatal results to themselves a few weeks ago, and the majority of these desperados were foreigners.

The history of the Tammany regime of New York proves that if an unscrupulous political machine is permitted to live long enough it inevitably allies itself with law breakers of high and low degree. This always is the case where the police become an important part of the machine. Lawlessness is not only winked at but actually facilitated by the men sworn to uphold the law, in return for contributions to election funds and other considerations. Trace the exploits of the four gunmen who killed Rosenthal to their beginning and the trail will be found to lead to the wigwam of Tammany. Do we want these conditions reproduced in this province? Well, they are not as remote as many people imagine. When the citizens of a community in mass meeting pass a resolution recommending the government to withdraw its police because they are a menace it is high time to take note of the situation. This is exactly what the people of New Hazelton did after reviewing the long criminal record of the district which culminated in a pitched gun battle in the streets of their town.

NAVAL VOLUNTEERS' PROGRESS.

Referring further to the pressing desirability of early government recognition of the Royal Canadian Naval volunteer movement at this port, we would point out that the request has been made to Ottawa not on behalf of an organization of doubtful promise but of one whose progress would be surprising if it were properly supported. The results so far have more than justified the enterprise and confidence of those who promoted the corps. The members have entered into their course with an intelligence and enthusiasm most gratifying to their instructors, and in many respects they are not far, if any, behind the regulars in their knowledge of the work.

In this connection we are informed that the use of the Rainbow would be invaluable as a part of the course of training. This ship, with the Niobe, was dismantled and put out of commission by the federal government at the instigation of its Nationalist allies shortly after gaining office. Her enforced idleness is doing the vessel more harm than good. Why not put her in commission far enough to enable the volunteers to take short, week-end instructional cruises on her? The organization includes engineers, electricians and other men skilled in mechanics, who, with a few regulars, would be able to look after the motive department of the vessel, while the remainder could further their instruction in the various other lines of naval routine.

There are now one hundred and twenty men in the local naval volunteer corps, a very satisfactory enrolment when we remember that the movement was due altogether to private initiative and has been fostered under the same conditions. We have not the slightest doubt that had the naval law been continued and government support accorded there would have been an enrolment of several times that number at Victoria alone, furnishing a substantial nucleus for a naval reserve and reviving the spirit which once was a distinguishing characteristic of this Imperial outpost. More than that, the movement would have spread all over the dominion. It would have taken hold on the Great Lakes and Atlantic seaboard. But what can you do when the government frowns upon any attempt to promote a national interest in naval matters because the idea is repugnant to Nationalists who profess to fear that Canadians some day may "have to fight England's battles"?

AN EXTRAORDINARY PROPOSAL.

A measure has been introduced at Ottawa providing for the appropriation of more than a million dollars to recoup the depositors of the Farmers' Bank, which failed in Ontario four or five years ago. If this proposal is adopted a most dangerous precedent will have been created. The federal government was not responsible in any way for the disaster to the institution.

Sir William Meredith, the commissioner appointed to investigate the affair, absolved the Ottawa authorities from all blame. The former manager is now serving a term in the penitentiary for his part in the calamity. While nobody would withhold sympathy from the unfortunate depositors, a child can see readily where such a proposition as that introduced by the Finance Minister will lead.

Since confederation twenty-four chartered banks in Canada have failed, but if the bill passes this will be the first time the federal government will have recouped the depositors out of the public pocket. Henceforth every time a bank fails the country will be expected to make up the losses. Thus the Dominion assumes a new responsibility towards the banking business of the country, guaranteeing depositors against loss. Is not this pretty near the limit? Are not the people of Canada guaranteeing enough in all conscience?

How comes it that such an extraordinary measure has been proposed by the ministry? In the campaign of 1911 a number of Ontario members, conspicuously the Hon. Thos. W. Crothers, now Minister of Labor, promised that if they were elected they would see that the government recouped the depositors and shareholders for the amount of their losses in the bank. This, more than reciprocity, was the main issue of the election in many rural constituencies, and in view of the fact that the Liberal candidates very properly refused to pledge the people of Canada to such an obligation their prospects of success were hopeless. When the new government took office the depositors demanded that the pledge be fulfilled. But the ministry feared to introduce such a proposition in parliament in the first and second sessions. The depositors were insistent. They had the pledges of a number of the men they elected, among them a minister, and fustled headquarters with reminders. Finally Mr. White has brought down a proposal to vote $1,200,000 for the purpose, and we may be sure he and his colleagues are praying that the Senate will throw it out. It certainly should be rejected. It opens another slit in the public purse, which is full of holes already.

Our Hindu fellow-subjects, judging from the intensity of their desire to obtain a foothold in this province, have no misgivings as to the nature of its future. They are going to get in if they can, and when they are in we are quite sure they will stay in. As far as they are concerned, opportunities for advancement are unlimited here compared with the conditions in their own densely-populated land. India long has been famed for its wealth, but British Columbia evidently is deemed to be richer by far than the British possession so many nations have coveted. The labor situation in this province just now is peculiar when you come to look into it. There is not an abundance of employment for Europeans, yet all the Hindus appear to find plenty for their hands to do. They have thrived, waxed robust and altogether are quite a different-looking lot of men from the lean and hungry-looking horde who first landed. Is our climate nearer perfection than it ought to be, having in view the peace and tranquillity of our white population?

F. P. Gutelius, general manager of the Intercolonial railway, purchased large quantities of coal from United States mines for use on the government road last year. He is now inviting a dozen American mines to tender for the coal supplies for 1914-15. Mr. Gutelius is an American engineer, who took out his naturalization papers only after Mr. Borden appointed him to investigate the National Transcontinental railroad. For a government whose motto three years ago was "no truck nor trade with the Yankees," the circumstances are peculiar. At the present time some of the Canadian mines are closed down owing to lack of business. Why send to the States for coal when it can be purchased in Canada, especially when it is to be used on a Canadian government railway?

George Mitchell, the young amateur boxer who was knocked out by Georges Carpentier in a fraction of a minute, regards the abrasions he received in the same light as a Heidelberg student looks on the scars inflicted in a duel. In an interview given in Parliament Mitchell said he expected to get an enthusiastic reception from his townspeople when he reached home, being pointed out as the man who was defeated by the renowned Carpentier in record time. This reminds us of the man who sat in the window of a shoe store in Seattle some years ago under the placard, "This gentleman was held up by Bandit Harry Tracey last Tuesday."

The militants describe forcible feeding as unpeppably brutal. If they were permitted to starve themselves to death the government would be described by them as assassins. Thus, according to the militant logic, the government has two alternatives. One is to allow frenzied women to burn buildings, destroy private property, mutilate pictures and assault public men without interference and the other is to give them the vote. Personally we favor the extension of the franchise to women, not because of militancy, but in spite of it.

Messrs. Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius, the commissioners appointed to investigate the National Transcontinental railroad, said that if the road had been built on a lower standard the country would have been saved $40,000,000. Well, the Canadian Northern meets this condition and the country has to go good for $45,000,000 to complete it. There also is this difference: the Canadian people own the National Transcontinental, while Mackenzie & Mann own the Canadian Northern.

We were glad to learn from an Ottawa dispatch yesterday that the Minister of Militia still remembers that the federal government purchased land for a rifle range in the vicinity of Victoria, for which it paid a very considerable figure. From the delay in getting the range ready for use we had come to the conclusion that the government had forgotten all about the transaction.

We have noticed in several exchanges from the United States side the remark that the population of New York is greater than that of London. This, of course, is wholly incorrect. The population of London, that is what is known as Greater London, is 7,252,963. The population of Greater New York, according to the recent census, is slightly over five millions.

We hope the captain of the Gunhild will keep the craft away from the "wash" of large incoming transoceanic liners. No chances should be taken with a boat like the Gunhild. If anything happened to her we might have to buy a new one, and we would not get off as easily as we did in the last transaction, which involved the insignificant sum of $12,000.

The bank clearings of New York for the week ending April 23 were $2,172,650,000. Those of the remainder of the United States were $1,413,572,000. The clearings of one city alone, therefore, were two-thirds as large again as those of the rest of the union.

SNOBBERY IN PARLIAMENT.

(Toronto Star.) There is a good deal of snobbery in all this talk about Mr. Asquith's "motley following." Those who use the phrase have, back to their minds or hearts a certain contempt for the representatives of the laboring classes; a certain feeling that they are not as good as the representatives of the capitalist and professional classes; or a certain feeling that an Irish member is not quite as good as an English member. No such objection can hold good. Every elected member has a right to his place, and any group of members has a right to combine in order to carry out a common programme of legislation.

THE UPPER-TEN OFFICERS.

(London Morning Advertiser.) The old idea that only what society calls gentlemen can make officers is beginning to fade. The experience of Napoleon and the later experience of the United States, has shown its fallacy. The lesson can be easily learned in Britain. Conditions sometimes change very rapidly. And if the ordinary British officer gets the idea that he can dabble in politics and interfere with the powers elected by the people a change may come before he is aware of it.

SETTING A MERRY PACE.

(New York World.) It is the testimony of silk manufacturers that "the great number of dancing gowns demanded by the average woman has had a direct stimulative effect upon the silk industry." Considering its far-reaching effects, from lifting the lid to increasing the output of silk mills, the tango must be reckoned with as one of the important influences of the time.

MORE LIKE A LEFT-OVER.

(Charleston News and Courier.) "Mrs. Pankhurst" says an admirer, "is ahead of her time. She was born too soon." That depends. Mrs. P. could have made quite a hit in the French revolution.

WHERE EVANTUREL ERRED.

(Toronto Telegram.) The sin of Ewanturel was in his tendency to seek retainers with a brass band instead of accepting retainers by stealth like so many other legislative ornaments of his noble profession.

It Makes a Difference.—Many people tell you that it makes no difference where you place your life assurance, so long as you select a company that is financially sound. If you wish to test the correctness of this statement, let us refer you to some good citizens of Victoria who have during the past year received settlements from eastern Canadian and American companies on policies taken out twenty years ago, at the same time that similar assurances were effected by them with the Great-West Life. Their experiences will be an eye-opener to you. You compare rates and values before making other business investments. It will pay you to investigate before you place that policy which may mean so much to your family. Our office and staff are at your service. 109 Union Bank building. Phone 4887.

Lady Douglas Chapter.—The Lady Douglas chapter, which met on Wednesday, the regent, Mrs. McMicking in the chair, adjourned for the summer, and will not resume meetings until next September.

Sugar Prices Low.—Householders who are enjoying the advantages of the present low price of sugar (which dropped a further fifty cents per barrel yesterday) are buying this commodity at a lower price than ever before in the history of the city, according to dealers. For some time past the Chinese sugar merchants have been competing for a place in the Canadian market, and the present drop in prices is but one phase of the competition between the Oriental and the Occidental product.

Unfriendly Fences.—In reporting on a letter from George Carter & Sons, Ltd., and other owners on Courtney street, complaining that the fences at both the corners of Courtney and Douglas streets are in a "dilapidated, unsightly, unsanitary and dangerous condition, the city engineer stated to the streets committee yesterday that he could not see that the committee had any authority to deal with the matter. A copy of the report will be sent to the owners complaining. The committee was of the opinion that the fences are unsightly and perhaps dangerous, but that they cannot be said to be unsanitary.

Centennial Epworth League.—The Centennial Epworth league held the first meeting of the new conference year this week, Miss Heffron presiding, and Miss Henderson, president of the Fairfield Methodist league, giving one of the most interesting addresses of the session, on the subject: "Christ's Teaching Concerning His Kingdom." An interesting discussion followed. Next week the meeting will be of unusual interest, as Rev. Mr. Kwan, resident Chinese missionary, will speak on mission work among his own countrymen here. All young people are urged to attend this meeting.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Victoria Times, Thursday, May 9, 1889.

A great many improvements have been made in the fire department recently and the fire on Johnson street proves that the firemen can reach a night fire in quick time. In the Deluge engine-house steam is always kept ready. The driver has introduced a swing for the harness which is the most-perfect on the Pacific coast. The horses standing in their stalls are tied during the night and are loosened by an electric contrivance perfected by one of the engineers.

New Westminster wants a share of the Martini-Henry rifles recently sent from Ottawa to this city for the militia.

The members of the medical board of this province concluded their business last evening. Considerable business connected with the profession was gone through, as well as the examination of candidates. Three doctors were admitted to the register. The next semi-annual meeting will be held in November of this year at New Westminster.

The steamer Yosemite is being overhauled at present and will go on the Vancouver route during the Islander's trip to Alaska.

WHAT THE WORLD IS DOING

There is a wonderful news value to the advertising in a live newspaper like The Times. Every line voices the World's Work.

It is the message of industry—the story of the wheels going round.

To be up to date one must be a reader of the advertisements, for they tell a story of what is going on that is told nowhere else. Advertisements are the business news of the day.

Start reading them with this issue and see how interesting they are.

Building Permits.—Building permits have been issued by the inspector to the following: C. W. Macintosh, dwelling on Begbie street, to cost $2,500; Samuel Strange, dwelling on Jackson street; Harry Jarvis, dwelling on Richmond road, to cost $2,000; Mrs. A. S. B. Neroutsoff, Dallas road, and J. Ringshaw, Montreal and Michigan streets, garages; E. Greenwood, improvements to building on Johnson street in accordance with approval of fire warden.

Motions for Council.—Ald. Porter, chairman of the streets committee, has posted notices of resolutions to be submitted to council on Monday evening, dealing with works of local improvement which have been decided upon. These are the laying of an asphalt pavement on Fairfield road, from Dallas road to Fowl Bay road, and the laying of a concrete sidewalk on the north side of Fort street, from Richmond avenue to Fowl Bay road, with the removal of the poles.

Award is Made.—The arbitrators have handed in their award in the matter of the arbitration held between the city and E. J. Bittancourt in regard to the amount to be paid by the city for a piece of land owned by Mr. Bittancourt which is being taken by the city as part of the site of the Humpback reservoir. Mr. Bittancourt asked for $9,349, the city offered him $2,000 and the arbitrators—Hugh Kennedy, for the city, J. J. Shallcross, for the owner, and W. J. Cox—gave him $3,000.

Pioneer Visits City.—After an absence of thirty years from the island, J. J. Sollitt, whose home is now in Chicago, has returned here to revisit some of the scenes familiar more than three decades since. Mr. Sollitt came here in 1852, to follow the gold-seekers into the Cariboo, abandoning his purpose, however, after hearing some of the discouraging accounts of miners returning from the interior. Subsequently he took up farming at Someon, a place which he recently visited again, recalling, and drawing comparisons with, the district in 1874, when he left Canada for the United States.

Organist Retires.—At the Easter vestry meeting of St. Paul's church, Esquimalt, the Rev. W. Baugh-Allen in the chair, the resignation of the organist, H. P. Johnson was received with regret. A resolution expressive of the vestry's appreciation of his services, and of regret at his retirement, was passed. Other business at the meeting included the appointment of a new organist. Joseph Hinton being chosen for this office. Chas. Peterson and Fred Jones were appointed church warden and people's warden respectively. The church warden's accounts for the past year showed an increase of $150 over last year.

Witnessed Rescue.—It fell to the lot of members of the "Versatiles," now on their way out from England to provide summer outdoor engagement at Stadacona park in this city, to witness the rescue of a boat-load of the members of the crew of the ill-fated steamship Columbia, burned in the North Atlantic. Billy Oswald, well known to many Victoria citizens, and other members of the Versatiles were making the voyage on the S. S. Franconia and they were present when the sailors were sighted and pulled up to the deck of the liner from the small boat in which they had floated about with little food and water for forty hours. On disembarking at Boston, Billy Oswald sent a telegram to F. Stuart Whyte, detailing the event.

Aged Women's Home.—At the fifteenth annual meeting of the board of management of the Aged Women's Home this week it was reported that during the 16 years since its foundation the Home had sheltered 123 women, 48 at present being cared for there. Twenty-two pay for their maintenance; 15 are supported wholly by the city; 2 partially by the city; one by the province, and one partially by the province. During the year six inmates had been taken by death. Thanks were expressed by the board to various ministers, to various young people's societies, to Dr. Hermann Robertson, G. A. B. Hall, Thomas, Fowler and others for services given. Officers for the following year are:

FIRST HOSPITAL CONTRACT

Work of Excavation of Site is Let by Directors; British Citizens to Be Employed.

The first contract for the new Royal Jubilee hospital was let last night by the directors at their meeting. This is for the excavation of the site for the building.

Out of five tenders that of Mr. James, Esquimalt, was accepted, at $2,900. The figures of the tender are $2 per cubic yard for the excavation of rock and 60 cents a yard for soil, gravel and all other material. The tenders ran up as high as $7,000.

As will be done in the other contracts there is a clause to be inserted providing that none but British workmen of British nativity shall be employed on the work.

This forecasts an early start on the building of the hospital, and further contracts will be awarded shortly.

WILL HOLD ROSE SHOW

Camosun Chapter Plans Fete for June 24; Programme Replete With Interest

The Camosun Chapter of the I.O.D.E. met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Croft to discuss the details of a fete to be held on Rose Day, June 24. It was the original intention of the chapter to celebrate the anniversary of Coronation Day, but as Mrs. Croft is lending her beautiful garden for the occasion the date was not practical. Consequently the chapter decided to celebrate Rose Day, the day approved by the Queen Mother, for the raising of funds by the sale of roses for the work in hospitals.

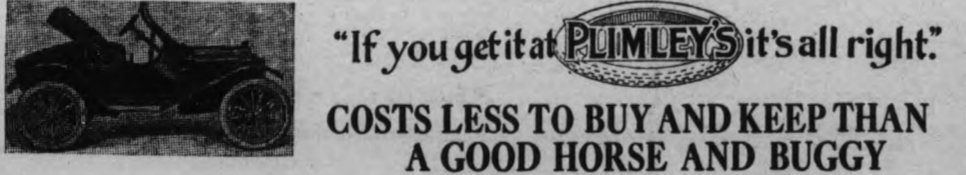

door entertainment, and the affair is practically an assured success. A small admission fee will be charged, and refreshments will be served. A band will be in attendance, and old-fashioned dances will be given on the green by a number of children. Another diversion will be provided by minstrels, while the Misses Dunsmuir will provide a part of the programme. A rifle-range, picture-gallery, and Punch and Judy show (for the children) will form other entertainment. Sweets and ice cream will be on sale throughout the day, and a stall of useful and fancy articles will no doubt attract many purchasers. It is hoped that the event will be largely patronized by the people of Victoria.

PAID HEAVY FINE

"International Citizen" Carried Revolver; Magistrate Orders It Confiscated

Earl Frost paid a fine of $50 at the police court this morning for having in his possession concealed weapons. He described himself on the police court book as "international man," which he explained by saying that he belonged to no particular place. When arrested he had in his possession over eight hundred dollars, and a fully loaded Smith & Wesson revolver. This was ordered confiscated by the magistrate.

Asked why he carried the weapon he replied that he carried it for protection, thinking it might be useful in case of attack. To an inquiry as to what he was doing he replied that he had been in Victoria for six weeks, and was doing nothing but paying his way. Detective Heather described arresting the man in company with Detective Edens amongst the trees between Moss street and Fairfield road. Several complaints had been sent in about a man in the neighborhood who packed a gun about with him, and it was also stated that he had been seen around Beacon Hill park.

Shipping News from Day to Day

MANY LIVES LOST AT SEA IN BIG TYPHOON

Ships Are Driven Ashore on Japanese Coast; Fishermen Blown Offshore

Oriental liners which arrived here during the past week reported encountering the first typhoon of the season on the run from Shanghai across to Moji. Most of the vessels lost considerable time crossing the disturbed waters. The Antiochus, of the Blue Funnel fleet, which arrived yesterday, brought word of terrible loss of life among the fishing fleets of Moji and neighboring Japanese ports. Many schooners which were caught in the blow were swept out to sea and all hands lost.

Moji advices state that on the afternoon of April 16, 172 fishermen, of Hirao-machi, Ibaraki prefecture, were engaged in their calling of Ka-shima, when a terrible gale suddenly set in, all the boats being carried out to sea. The men were given up as lost by their relatives who had noticed from the shore that something unusual had occurred. Two days later, however, one of the vessels, owned by a man named Uchi, with 24 men on board, safely returned to Hirao-machi.

In response to inquiries, the survivors stated that the storm which they and the missing men encountered, was far more severe than that which swept the coast in February, 1909, when more than 300 fishermen living in the neighboring districts were drowned.

The whereabouts of the other fishermen, numbering 148, and eleven fishing vessels on which they had embarked is unknown, and it is believed that all have been drowned.

Seventy Vessels Wrecked.

It is reported that the number of vessels wrecked or damaged as a result of the typhoon is expected to total about seventy, of which 14 belong to the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, 10 to the Mitsubishi, while the Isobe and Yasukawa firms are also sufferers.

Many shipping accidents are reported from Osaka, and its vicinity. A Japanese sailing ship, the Daiichi Kotohira Maru, dashed against a breakwater in the port of Osaka and broke up, but the crew was saved. Two sailing ships, the Meiji Maru and the Mankin Maru, and a motor-boat were wrecked and sank off Sakai. Ten lighters sank in the port of Osaka and Sakai, but all the crews were saved.

SOPHIA TAKING CATTLE.

Bound for Prince Rupert and Skagway, the C. P. R. steamer Princess Sophia, Capt. D. Robertson, left port last night with a good list of passengers and considerable cargo. At Vancouver to-day she is loading a shipment of cattle for the north.

MORE WHALERS TO GO TO SEA DURING WEEK

Kyuquot Reports Say Whaling Still Remains Good; Weather Moderating

During the coming week some of the whalers still at their winter quarters here will be dispatched to the coast stations to assist the craft already out in chasing the big game of the Pacific. The weather shows signs of abating off the west coast and the officials of the Canadian North Pacific Fisheries, Ltd., are expecting word any day from the Naden Harbor whalers as to the success they are having in their work. Kyuquot station still continues to report whaling as favorable and the little steamers have towed in quite a few sulphur bottoms and humpbacks. Sechart has not sent any information recently as to the kind of luck being experienced there, but it is evident that it is not making as good progress as the station to the north. The weather has been very boisterous in the vicinity of Sechart ever since the season opened and the little vessels have had to be careful on their cruises. The result is that few harpoons have been found their mark. Now that the weather is moderating the catches should start to reach large totals.

Fourth Station Ready.
It is understood that the station at Rose Harbor, Queen Charlotte Islands, will be opened very shortly. The season there is only a short one, owing to the tempestuous nature of the weather, save for a couple of months in the summer. When the good weather sets in at Rose Harbor several of the whalers are withdrawn from the other stations and ordered there.

The four whalers at present have been overhauled and are ready to put to sea on short notice.

RIPS OPEN HULL ON SNAG AND FOUNDERS

Tug Constance, Owned by Capt. Blackstad, Victim of Peculiar Accident

Crashing on some kind of a submerged snag which lifted her almost bodily out of the water, the Vancouver tugboat Constance, owned and commanded by Capt. Hans Blackstad, ripped her hull open so badly that she filled and sank inside of 50 minutes. The accident occurred at 8 o'clock yesterday morning when the Constance was one mile southwest of Turn Point on her way from Victoria to Vancouver. Capt. Blackstad arrived here this morning to confer with Capt. W. H. Logan, of the London Salvage company, and R. P. Rithet & Co., representing the company with which the tug was insured, and brought the story of the loss of the Constance. "We left here yesterday morning at 2 o'clock," said Capt. Blackstad in speaking to the Times, "bound for Vancouver. When we were nearing Turn Point we ran into a lot of drift wood and I had just relieved the mate when the tug was struck by the snag. The tug was lifted out of the water and as I looked out I saw what I thought was a large submerged pile. I think this must have been what she struck.

Filled Rapidly.
"I think she must have been struck near the bilge. For a moment the water did not come in and we thought everything was all right. Then with a rush the water forced the coal from the bunkers into the engine room and

CHICAGO MAY MAKE A FIFTEEN-DAY VOYAGE

Maru Reported Last Night 1,320 Miles Away; Other Deep-Sea News

Unless bad weather interferes it is quite likely that the Osaka Shosen Kaisha liner Chicago Maru, Capt. Goto, will reach William Head on Wednesday morning at daylight. She is coming in from Hongkong and Yokohama and is making a smart passage of less than fifteen days. The Chicago came within wireless range last night and reported her position as being approximately 1,320 miles from Victoria. The Chicago Maru is bringing in the usual passenger list and her cargo will not amount to over 200 tons. There are about 50 Orientals in the steerage for this port, and all but five of them are Japanese.

Big Ships Are Leaving.

MASTER SAVES ENGINEER FROM BURNING SCHOONER

Seattle, May 9.—Another tale of cool-headed heroism was added to the annals of the Alaska coast when the half-burnt fishing schooner Montana caught fire early last week in Redoubt bay, near Sitka, flames sweeping the vessel from end to end only a few minutes after the crew had rowed to safety. Capt. M. Scott and half of his crew of fourteen men arrived yesterday morning on the steamer Dolphin, of the Alaska Steamship company. The rest of the crew stayed in Ketchikan.

The schooner had 2,500 gallons of engine distillate in her tank. The engine back-fired, setting the engine room floor ablaze. The flames ran back into the stern and in a few moments the after part of the vessel was ablaze. Two dories were launched. Capt. Scott personally lowering the second one and getting the crew safely aboard. He then jumped into the second dory. "Where's the engineer?" he asked. "In the engine room," replied a fisherman. Although the oil tanks were expected to explode any moment, Capt. Scott rowed to the bow of the burning schooner, quickly climbed aboard and made his way into the engine room. There he found Tynen, cool and cheerful, still trying to subdue the flames. Scott yanked him out of the engine room and the two men then hurried over the side. While the tanks did not explode, the flames melted the solder on the pipes and a few moments after the pair left the boat, the oil was hissing from the tanks in blazing streams, setting the vessel aflame from stern to stern.

THREE 18,000-TON SHIPS MAY COME FROM HAMBURG

That three new 18,000-ton passenger and freight liners will be added to the fleet of seven ships of the Hamburg American line that now operate to the Pacific Coast from Europe and the Orient is the statement made by officers on the big freighter Sudmark, of the same line, which arrived here recently from the Orient with a big cargo of hemp and matting. The officers of the Sudmark say that three 18,000-ton vessels were launched from the company's shipyards in Hamburg shortly before the Sudmark sailed for the Orient and Victoria, and that these vessels are intended to be put in service from Hamburg to the Orient, Seattle, San Francisco and Europe when the Panama canal is opened for general traffic next year.

CRIPPLED PASSENGER VESSEL TOURING SOUTH

Seattle, May 9.—In tow of the steamship Admiral Evans, of the Admiral line, which broke her tail shaft and lost her propeller while docking at Seldovia, Alaska, left that port for Seattle Wednesday morning and will arrive here the middle of next week. Word to this effect was received by General Manager C. W. Wiley, of the Admiral line, in a cablegram from Alaska late yesterday afternoon. The Evans is being brought down by the tug Gollah, of the Puget Sound Tug boat company. She left Seldovia at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

NANOOSE COMES OFF WAYS.

The C. P. R. towboat Nanoose has been out on the ways for a couple of days overhauling and comes off to-day.

MEETINGS

Social Evening.—L. O. L., 1610, will meet in the Foresters' hall on Monday night at 8. Important business will be transacted, after which there will be a social evening.

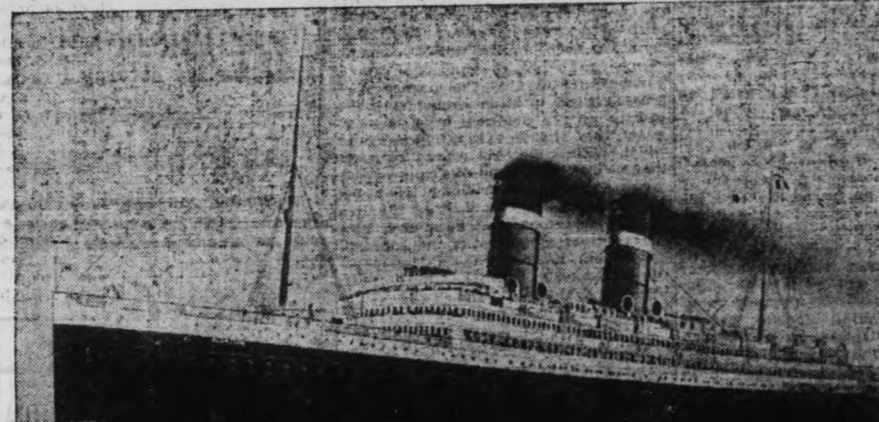

Diocesan W. A.—The tenth annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to Missions of Columbia diocese, will be held in Christ Church schoolroom on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 14, 15 and 16. The opening service is to be held in Christ Church cathedral at 10 a. m., with holy communion and a sermon by the bishop of the diocese. All interested will be welcomed at the sessions.

Will Speak Here.—Dan Crawford, the noted African missionary and author, arrived in the city this afternoon, and will preach in several of the churches while here. His opening sermon will be preached in the Reformed Episcopal church to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. His next address will be before the Metropolitan Methodist congregation to-morrow evening. On Monday and Tuesday evenings he will preach in the First Congregational church. He will also deliver a sermon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Tel El Mahuta Temple.—The regular monthly session of Tel El Mahuta Temple, No. 155, D. O. K. K., will be held in the Knights of Pythias hall on Monday, May 11, at 8 p. m. A very fine programme has been arranged by the committee, which has charge of staging the "Jack Contest." For this, Royal Prince T. Walker has offered a valuable trophy, which was responsible for the bringing out of several contestants. The services of the social committee were made necessary, and here von taken charge of the supper arrangements. Members are asked to be present early and to wear the fez.

Lectures Here.—Under the auspices of the Victoria Council of the Knights of Columbus a lecture will be delivered in the Alexander club on Tuesday evening next on the subject of Christianity vs. Socialism. The lecturer, David Golstein, is a member of the order and has been commissioned by the supreme council to deliver a series of these lectures throughout Canada and the United States in accordance with the decision of the supreme convention held in the city of Boston last August. Golstein has gained a wide reputation in the lecture field. As all expenses of this campaign are borne by the Knights of Columbus, admission to these lectures is free.

NO NEWS OF KOMAGATA

No further news has been received concerning the position of the Japanese steamship Komagata Maru, which is coming in from Hongkong and Shanghai with a large party of Hindus. Shipping men would not be surprised if she slipped into port some time to-morrow, as ships about which little information can be secured usually come into port on Sundays. The speed of the vessel is not known, but if she is to make an average passage across the pond she should be in by to-morrow or Monday. She, however, may be slower than the ordinary tramp, and under those circumstances it may be well on into next week before she shows up off the coast.

The Osaka liner Mexico Maru is the next ship due to arrive from the Orient, prior to the Komagata Maru has not arrived in the Mexico some accurate news as to her whereabouts should be forthcoming from her officers and passengers.

soon flooded it and put out the fires. We used blankets and mattresses and tried to fill the holes but the water gained on us rapidly. When we found that we could do nothing to save her we launched the lifeboat and tried to tow her into shallow water. The tide was too strong and we were nearly swamped. Fifty minutes after she struck she disappeared completely in 40 fathoms of water.

Attempts will be made to save the Constance although Capt. Blackstad does not hold out very high hopes for success. As soon as his business here is completed the captain will leave for the scene of the accident and try to grapple for his craft. He thinks, however, that the strong under-currents there will move the Constance about. Capt. Blackstad is well-known at this port, having sailed out of Victoria for nearly 20 years. He was one of the last men to quit the business, having been out in 1911 in the schooner Thomas F. Bayard, now the Sandheads lightship. After leaving the sealing business he went to Vancouver and some time ago purchased the tug Constance, investing his money in her. She was worth about $5,000, and Capt. Blackstad carried $4,900 insurance on her. He failed to save any of his personal effects from the tug before she sank. Capt. Blackstad had with him on the tug Mate Berland and Engineer Albert Linden.

STILL ANOTHER CANAL LINE.

Aberdeen, May 9.—Following news from Washington, D. C., that this harbor is not to be neglected by the government, comes the statement by Edward Christensen of the firm of Sudden & Christensen, of San Francisco, who has been in the city a week and who left for Willapa Harbor yesterday morning, that Sudden & Christensen will establish a line of lumber-carrying steel steamships between this port, Willapa Harbor and New York city upon the opening of the Panama Canal. It is reported from Hoquiam on the authority of Mayor Knoell that the harbor will be made a port of call for Oriental steamers operating from New York through the canal.

PORTLAND GETS FRESH FISH.

Portland, Ore., May 9.—Back in port with 9,000 pounds of halibut, the gasoline schooner Decorah, the first deep-sea fishing vessel to enter this port with a catch in twenty years, arrived yesterday. Capt. R. E. Voeth, master and owner of the vessel, disposed of the entire catch of fish within an hour. "I secured the Decorah on Puget Sound fully equipped and she is well fitted for the work," said the new owner.

BRENTWOOD HOTEL OPENS

New Centre Will Form Delightful Summer Resort for Victoria Citizens

Brentwood Hotel opened for business to-day and a number of the directors, who are prominent Victoria business men motored out to Brentwood Bay this afternoon to have dinner. There will be a big formal opening in the course of a week or two. Captain R. P. Clark has moved out to assume the office of manager and a staff of 20 is already on the premises.

The hotel, which is a handsome structure, occupying a commanding site with a view over Tod Inlet and Saanich Arm, is a decided acquisition to Victorians. The management wishes to attract a high class of patronage and intends to conduct a place which will form the nucleus of a charming summer resort. Already R. P. Butchart and G. H. Barnard, M. P., possess delightful summer homes adjoining the hotel premises and many Victoria business men have made inquiries with a view to having their wives and families live at the hotel throughout the summer, with the intention of motoring in to business morning and evening.

The proximity of the hotel to the city is one of its attractive features. It is just 10 miles by motor and is also not more than 150 yards from the B. C. Electric suburban line. A launch can reach the hotel in four hours by rounding the north end of the peninsula and there is ample water at the B. C. Electric dock to accommodate large steamers. There is 30 feet of water right up to the dock, and it is understood that during the summer the C. P. R. will run occasional excursions to Brentwood Bay.

There are a few details in which the hotel is not quite ready. But these slight defects will be remedied within a week and in about 10 days it is hoped to have two tennis courts and a garage which will accommodate 12 cars.

One splendid feature of the hotel is the water supply.

The hotel has been furnished with circassian walnut, fumed oak and mahogany purchased through David Spenser, Ltd., from the Toronto Furniture Factory and the beautiful carpets, china, etc., were procured from England through Spencers' agency.

NEW JAIL AT VICTORIA IS APPROACHING COMPLETION

The new provincial jail for the Victoria judicial district is expected to be ready for the reception of prisoners some time next month at latest. The building which is to replace the old structure on Topaz avenue is situated on Wilkinson road, not far from the

Interurban station. As will be seen by the above view, taken a couple of days ago, it is a handsome addition to the provincial institutions in or near the capital. The exterior is quite finished, but a great deal of work remains to be done in the interior, especially in the placing in position of the cells and the steel grilles which will shut the unfortunate wrongdoers off from the world for a term. The whole plan of the interior is in line with the most modern methods of prison architecture. In connection with the prison there will be a farm, such as is proving such a benefit to the prisoners at Burnaby, and on it the prisoners will be set at work. This form of dealing with prisoners has been found very successful in Ontario, and the attorney-general of British Columbia decided to adopt it in this province.

GREENROOM NOTES

SCOTT PICTURES.

The splendid scottion picture film of the late Capt. Scott's memorable Antarctic Journey, which will be shown this evening and every afternoon and evening next week at the Royal Victoria theatre, cause many who see them to open wide their eyes with astonishment at some of the sights recorded. For instance, a motor sledge gliding majestically over a limitless field of sea-ice is something very few people have ever seen, and consequently it is almost unbelievable, since, to the layman, there is no visible means of such a feat being accomplished. Yet one glimpse at the pictures in motion and all doubt is dispelled. Not only does the sledge propel itself but it transports tons of freight; true the speed is not fast, never exceeding more than three miles an hour, but it is sure and efficient. Then, too, another innovation is observed at the rear of the sledge. It is a meter, attached to a miniature wheel, which is in turn hitched to the rear of the sledge and so at the end of a journey, but one little look is required to ascertain the number of miles traversed. In direct contrast to the slow-moving, if unique, motor sledge, is the "flying" dog team, which literally races over the ice. Other things of great interest are the penguins, the killer whales and the seals, which saw their way through the ice with their teeth.

"ARE YOU A MASON?"

"Are You a Mason?" is the title of the offering of the Victoria Stock Company at the Victoria theatre for the week beginning Monday, May 11. A retired pork-packer from Chicago, wishing to account for his frequent absence from the domestic fireside, tells his wife that he holds a prominent office in a Masonic lodge. His married daughter encourages her husband to become a Mason in his turn, and the resulting situations, complicated by the appearance of a real Mason, involve the entire cast in an excruciatingly funny mix-up. One of the funniest situations in the comedy is where James Mitchell, to help his friend out, assumes the disguise of Miss Marie Ductos, a dressmaker's assistant. Mr. Belasco plays the prevaricating husband; Miss Hilda Graham is Tom's credulous wife; Mr. James is the henpecked husband assuming Masonic honors; Miss Tucker will play the strong-minded Mrs. Packer; Miss Malory will be Kitty, Jack's sweetheart; Mr. Horne plays Mr. Jordan, the retired farmer who wants to be a Mason; and Mr. Gilbert plays Mr. Travers, the only real Mason.

"HONEYMOON EXPRESS."

The Winter Garden in New York has come to be recognized as one of the institutions of the American metropolis. It is a mammoth enterprise and the entertainment it furnishes is of such varied type that it makes appeal to every class of play-goer. So universal has its renown become that the success of any production there makes for it a country-wide reputation. Thus the announcement that the latest and most successful of all Winter Garden productions, "The Honeymoon Express," which furnishes the undeniable funny Al Jolson with an excellent outlet for his comedy, will be seen at the Royal Victoria theatre for a single performance on Monday evening, May 18, will be welcomed by theatre-goers. Speeding on a limited schedule, "The Honeymoon Express" is brought up to the minute in its delightful patter, music, and the latest gyrations, which masquerade under the name of dancing, with a stage full of pretty girls furnishing a display of femininity at its happiest. This show filled the Winter Garden for thirty weeks, and since leaving there, has repeated that same success in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities.

WEEDS IN VACANT LOT

Police Are to Be Requested to Wake Owners and Tenants up to Their Responsibility.

Complaints were made to the streets committee yesterday that some of the boulevards in the city are in a disgraceful condition with weeds, and that many vacant lots are worse, and that the citizen who is trying to keep a clean, trim lawn finds all his efforts wasted because of the fact that the weed seeds from adjoining patches of uncared-for ground blow over and find a lodgment in the soil. A citizen who is a sufferer in this way wrote to complain of the state of the boulevards in his vicinity, and said that what were meant to be a source of pride to the city were being ruined for lack of care by the proper guardians. Ald. Cuthbert corroborated this by reference to the neglect of owners of vacant lots, and the equal neglect of the city to force them to keep these clean. He instanced two lots on Linden avenue, where the wild mustard fills the unkempt area, and declared that it was an outrage that this should be there for five minutes. The parks committee will be asked to deal with the complaint regarding neglect of boulevards and the chief of police will be requested to take up the matter of failure of owners to observe the requirements of the weeds by-law. This latter legislation forbids owners, lessees, tenants, occupiers or agents of owners to permit any thistle, burdock or other noxious weed to be upon any land within the city owned, occupied or under their control. The definition of a noxious weed includes the thistles, oxeye daisies, wild oats, rag weed, charlock, sorrel, burdock, wild mustard, tumbling mustard, shepherd's purse and stinkweed. What happened to his order couldn't be understood outside the peculiar convolutions of a restaurant kitchen, but he spent half an hour sitting there staring ahead of him. At last it came. As the waitress put the order before him he started from his deep study, as if he had forgotten he had an order coming. Then, looking up at the fair transporter of edibles, he said, "You don't look a day older!"

NEGLECTED A PIN SCRATCH—DEAD!

A boy died last week in hospital from blood-poisoning, the result of a pin scratch!

Do you ever think such a fate might easily be yours? Suppose you knew that although you have had scratches, cuts, burns, sores, and have escaped blood-poisoning so far, the very next time you sustained such an injury blood-poison would set in and you might die! Wouldn't you be very careful to see that the next wound, although only slight, received prompt attention? Certainly. Now get this further thought. You can't say that the very next cut or scratch or burn or scald you get and neglect will not turn to fatal blood-poisoning. Did it ever strike you that way? The same applies to your children. The surest safeguard against blood-poisoning is Zam-Buk. No single poisonous germ has yet been discovered that Zam-Buk does not kill. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a cut, burn, scratch, tear or sore place, that injury is insured against blood-poisoning from the germs in the air. Not only so, but Zam-Buk stops the smarting and pain. Healing is set up right from the first application, so that at the same time Zam-Buk is antiseptic, soothing and healing. No other salve acts so splendidly. That is why in every country in the world Zam-Buk is now the most widely used ointment. For cuts and wounds, eczema, piles, ulcers, abscesses and all skin injuries and diseases Zam-Buk is without equal. All druggists and stores at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. If you have not yet tried Zam-Buk, cut out this article, write across it name of this paper, and mail with 1c stamp, to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will send you free trial box.

A democratic army, I suppose, means an army of hired bravoos, who are to carry out the political wishes of a government dependent upon the votes of Mr. Redmond and the labor party.—Lord St. Audries.

London Letter

The Ford Co.'s Scheme.

BY ARTHUR SCAIFE, J. P.

London, April 25.—Labor can no longer say that capital has never come forward of its own volition with an offer to ameliorate the condition of the working class and raise wages. The proposal of the Ford Motor company, Manchester, has knocked the wind out of the sails of that contention and set those socialistically inclined wondering "what next?" If capitalists are to come forward and voluntarily offer to increase the scale of pay of their employees the occupation of the demagogue, as that of Othello, is likely to be gone. Although the Ford proposition has been in operation for some little time in the American branch of the business, it is entirely novel in this country, and people don't quite know what to make of it. We don't like the unprecedented over here and are greatly averse to making experiments, and strange as it may appear the Ford scheme has for the moment almost as many hostile critics as it has warm friends. We are hardly yet prepared to subscribe to the doctrine enunciated by the Ford manager in the press, that "the man who dusts the machine is just as valuable an economic factor as the clerk." We have been talking glibly about the necessity of a living wage for all and the evils attendant upon unfair competition, inequality of remuneration and the like for a long time past, but few of us were prepared for so sudden an application of the principles we are wont to profess as that evinced by the Ford Motor company. They have gone one better than even the most sanguine amongst us had dared to hope. Not only have they fixed the minimum wage for all male workers over 22 years of age in their employ at £3 per week, irrespective of the nature of employment, but they have reduced the hours of labor to forty-eight, or eight hours per working day. Hence clerical and manual labor will be paid for at exactly the same rate. Boys under eighteen and women workers will come within a somewhat different category unless others are dependent upon them, in which case they will be treated in precisely the same manner as adults. The office boy will get a minimum of twenty-five shillings a week, probably more than the equivalent of the maximum now earned by the best paid agricultural laborer in the country. One of the objects which the Ford people have ultimately in view is the elimination of all labor in their works under the age of eighteen. They contend that at the higher scale of wage represented by their minimum of £3 a week, the father will be able to keep his boys at school until they have attained that age, a consummation greatly to be desired. There is an important proviso that employees will have to be industrious and sober. No mercy will be shown to the wastrel or the drunkard, and the strictest observance of these conditions will be insisted upon. To test the experiment no less than £50,000 has been set aside, and it is worthy of note that this sum is to come out of the pockets of the shareholders and is not going to be recouped by raising the price of the company's machines. This is the point which John Bull finds difficulty in believing or indeed understanding. He quite sympathizes with the idea of increasing wages, which he admits are altogether too low, provided it can be done out of increased profits, but voluntarily to offer larger salaries and at the same time refuse to raise prices beats him entirely. He regards the experiment as Utopian and unpractical and solemnly shakes his head in pitiful wonder. "Why pay more for an article, whether labor or cheese, than the price asked in an open market?" Social reformers will watch the working of the experiment all over the country with intense interest. As John Burns said in a recent speech, when alluding to some of the legislation introduced by the present Liberal government, "there is a human touch about it" which arrests attention and ensures sympathy. The trade unions, which up to the present have only wrung concessions from capital by the threat or application of the strike, are hard put to it to know what to say or do. Workers in the Ford factory are now getting unasked more in the way of wages than was ever dreamt of in trade unionist philosophy, and the whole system of organized labor is gasping in astonishment. If the Ford company make good, as they are convinced they will, other employers of labor throughout the country will eventually have to follow suit and it is quite within the

TOLD GREAT STORY OF MOUNTED POLICE

Col. McIlree Interested Many Members of Women's Canadian Club With Address

A wonderful story of hardihood, determination and heroism was told yesterday by Colonel McIlree before the Women's Canadian club, the members of which turned out in rather larger numbers than usual to hear the history of that brave corps of men which broke the way for the pioneer to the Northwest, the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Mrs. Hart presided, and introducing the speaker, who, she pointed out, had spent more than thirty-seven years in the saddle as a member of this rugged band.

Colonel McIlree's story was told in a straightforward, simple manner, no emphasis being placed on the bravery of the men in their acts of heroism in the face of terrible deprivation. The fundamental reason for the foundation of the Northwest Mounted Police, he said, was in order that the unscrupulous trade in intoxicants to the Indians might be put a stop to, as whiskey was reducing them to a state of absolute poverty, and at the same time engaging them to such a point that they were really dangerous to other settlers. It was also for the purpose of breaking up the medicine dances, which would militate against any attempt at order so long as they were permitted; to stop horse-thieving; to win the Indians' loyalty and respect; and for the purpose of collecting customs on goods imported.

The first strength, according to the original outlines was not to be over 300 men, a portion of whom should be mounted, and the general corps modelled along the lines of the Royal Irish Constabulary.

The promptitude, endurance and fortitude which the men were called upon to display on their memorable trip to the west appeared rather between the lines of Colonel McIlree's story than in the actual wording thereof, and his hearers were given a vivid idea of the difficulties encountered in the long marches, the loyalty of the men, and their devotion and self-sacrifice to each other and to their horses.

Another part of the speaker's reminiscences pictured in graphic manner their first encounter with buffaloes, six bulls being seen, five of which—to the later regret of the hunters, who found the meat very tough—were killed for food. After this, however, herd upon herd were seen, and at times the band seemed to be in the midst of great bunches of them. As the journey progressed these disappeared, however, and the party suffered from lack of water, lack of fuel (except buffalo chips which were collected by the men as they neared camp, and piled up for the evening fires), and insufficient covering and clothes.

In the latter part of his address the speaker told much about the Indians, and in his story of the repression by the Northwest Mounted Police of the favorite pastimes of the tribes—sun-dances, horse-thieving, etc.—he evinced sympathy for the resentment which periodically was expressed by the one-time free red man of the wilds, and said that it was little to be wondered at that the savage hated the repression and cheek which had been placed upon his erstwhile free movements. To the Indian it was a creed almost amounting to a social code that the man who stole the most horses should be highly regarded by his fellows for valor and courage. It was, therefore, little to be expected that he could so soon be meekly brought to the viewpoint of the white man in this respect.

The concluding part of the colonel's story told of the opening up of the West by railroads, and part of his narrative dealt with the sending north of a detachment to reinforce the force in the Yukon at the time of the gold rush thither.

"We were all young men once," he said in closing, "and we may have done some foolish things, but we drew the line strictly at anything dishonorable. I think Canada has a right to be proud of the record and of the work that has been done and is still being done by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police." A standing ovation of thanks, moved by Mrs. H. E. Young, and seconded by Miss Maria Lawson, was accorded the speaker at the close of this most fascinating of stories, which concluded the 1913-14 history series of the Canadian Women's club.

Photo Drama of Creation To Be Again Exhibited Free

The Bible Vindicated by the Photo-Drama of Creation—Greatest Evangelistic Effort of Modern Times

Part I of the Great Bible Drama of Creation will be exhibited here to-morrow. In the production of the Drama some 10,000 feet of motion picture film is used and additionally about 500 slides. Both films and slides are beautifully hand-painted, and are indeed works of art. No time or expense has been spared in making the Drama all that it stands for—the greatest vindication of the Bible in modern times.

The Bible is harmonized from Genesis to Revelation. Science, history and the Scripture reveal one great, harmonious plan. The pictures and films are only one feature of the Drama as each item of interest is beautifully explained by the unseen orator whose deep, melodious voice fills the auditorium from pit to dome.

The International Bible Students' Association have made arrangements whereby the Drama will be exhibited here for the next four Sundays. Part One of the Drama will be exhibited Sunday, May 10, and Part Two Sunday, May 17, in the Empress theatre. Parts Three and Four will be shown in the new Pantages theatre Sunday, May 24 and 31, respectively.

Where the Abydas Tablet Was Discovered, "Scenes From the Drama."

On account of the large number of people who were unable to see the Drama, through lack of room, when it was last here, the Drama management have decided to refuse admittance to children under fifteen. The Drama will be exhibited at 10.30 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. As many as possible are urged to come in the morning, as undoubtedly in the afternoon and evening many will be unable to obtain entrance. Part One of the Drama commences with the Creation, tracing with wonderful accuracy the Genesis account on to the time of the Deluge. The presentation in the Drama not only harmonizes the Bible, but science and history corroborate its testimony in a manner hitherto never approached. Indeed, it is only the wonderful increase of knowledge that renders such a production possible. The pictures and explanation of the Deluge and the scenes dealing with "the world that was" are truly wonderful; not only the eye, but the ear is carried back thousands of years to the time when the human race was in its infancy, and the Pyramids were unknown. The pictures of Abraham and his son Isaac, and the wonderful faith of the old Patriarch in offering his son as a sacrifice and the scenes dealing with same, fills many eyes with tears. The corroboration of the Bible account of the Creation of Man as found in the Abydas Tablet, is explained in this part of the Drama. This tablet was discovered cut in the solid rock sixty feet below the surface.

The Drama is being shown on this continent to approximately 1,250,000 people monthly, and soon will encircle the world. It is for the rich and poor alike, and is being exhibited absolutely free. No collection is taken. With the concluding exhibition of Part Four on May 31, the drama will probably not be shown in this city again, so all should avail themselves of this opportunity. The doors open half an hour before the Drama commences.

ISLAND CENTRES GIVE HEARTY CO-OPERATION

Courtenay and Duncan Will Be Represented at Ottawa on Bridge Deputation

A communication from the city council of Duncan was received by Mayor Stewart this morning, in which the information was conveyed that nine of the members of the council will be able to go to Ottawa on any deputation that may be formed in connection with the Seymour Narrows bridge project. The city will be represented by F. H. Shepherd, M. P. It is explained that Mayor O. T. Smith was unable to get away the day of the conference took place here on the subject, or he would have attended. The Courtenay board of trade was also heard from this morning, in the form of a copy of a resolution passed a few days ago. In this the board places on record its opinion that the best interests of western Canada demand that the bridge be constructed at an early date, and H. S. Clements, M. P., is asked to use his influence with the government to have a sufficient amount put in the estimates to secure a preliminary survey. The board is further of opinion that in the event of the bridge being built it would be with a view to connecting with a trans-continental railway to bring the traffic of the interior to a west coast port.

A telegram received by the mayor last evening from Hon. E. G. Prior, president of the board of trade, states that he agrees with the members for the district that it is not advisable to send a deputation to Ottawa just now. In view of the late date in the session he thinks that all that can possibly be done will be done by the local members.

A lengthy letter has been drawn up and will be sent out on Monday to the boards of trade at Edmonton, Saskatoon and Prince Albert, Sask., asking for co-operation in presenting the case to the federal government. It is pointed out that the shorter haul and the superior climatic conditions give this port a great advantage over any other outlet for the wheat of the prairies, thus conducing a quicker and larger returns to the grain-growers, and that the concentration here of traffic will result in cheaper distribution being brought about. The present and projected harbor facilities here are mentioned and the boards are asked to name members of a deputation to meet any deputation from this island and province at Winnipeg and proceed to Ottawa.

The greatest inventions do not always bring the larger financial rewards. Roller skates are said to have brought their inventor £600,000, while nearly half a million was realized by the man who first devised bootlaces. The inventor of the safety-pin, who took the idea from a reproduction of a Pompeian fresco, made £2,000,000. On the other hand, Frederic Sauvage, who is credited with the invention of the screw-propeller, was imprisoned and died bankrupt and insane.

BEES LET ANOTHER GAME GO TO SEATTLE EXTRA INNING STRUGGLE ENDED 4-3

McKerry Weak in the Pinches; Swain Led at Bat; St. Francis Team Plays at Port Angeles Against Olympics

Seattle, May 9.—The Bees continued on the downward grade yesterday when they dropped the fifth straight game of the series to the locals. It was a tenning battle and the score was 4 to 3.

Dell and McKerry, the opposing pitchers, were in good form, and pitched air-tight ball for three innings. In the fourth Victoria broke into the scoring, Netzel, whom Victoria secured from Portland, doubled and advanced to third when Dell let Scanton's attempt sacrifice go through him, and scored on Zimmerman's sharp single to left.

RECORDS BROKEN AT HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Cutler Wins All-Round Title and Lowers Mark for 100 Yards; the Winners

Billy Cutler is the all-round high school champion. He achieved this distinction by winning the majority of sporting events at the annual high school meeting at Oak Bay yesterday, scoring 23 points. His nearest rival, Farquharson, gained 19. Tommy Heyland was tied with Cecil Hay, a junior, for third honors, each scoring 15 points.

Cutler gave a wonderful exhibition of running for a youngster not out of his teens. His time for the 100-yard dash, 10 2-5 seconds, was notable. Credit is also due Tommy Heyland, who finished a few inches behind the speedy winner.

Four junior records were smashed while the only senior record to be shattered was when Cutler sliced 4-5 of a second off the previous 100-yard mark.

The following is the complete list of results: 100 Yards (Boys' Senior)—1, W. Cutler; 2, T. Heyland; 3, D. Heyland. Time, 10 2-5 secs. Former record, 11 1-5 secs., set by Cutler last year.

BASEBALL MATTERS DECIDED AT MEETING

Junior League Age Stated as Under 18; Senior Entries Extended

The meeting of the Victoria Amateur Baseball league last night at the Y. M. C. A. was very largely attended, each club being represented by at least two delegates.

The junior league age was announced as under 18 years and not 18 and under. It is possible that several of the clubs registered for entrance will withdraw.

In previous years the age was 18 and under, but the constitution was altered this season for the benefit of a few teams which have schoolboys playing.

This season the Capitals withdrew from the intermediate with the intention of giving the younger teams a chance. A few of the present teams entered in the second division league should be playing senior instead of mingling with their younger opponents.

Entries into the senior league were postponed a week to give senior nines a chance to organize. James Bays are the only ones after the senior title at present.

The following is the list of intermediate and junior teams entered in the league: Intermediate—Victoria Wests, Cap- itals, North Wards, White Sox, Van- couver Island club, Cardinals and Es- quimalt. Juniors—Senators, Little Bees, Beacon Hill, City Messengers, Camosuns and White Sox.

Frankie Carroll yesterday signed with the City Messenger nine. Several junior league teams were after his services.

Sunday morning at 9:30 sharp the Beacon Hill junior nine will hold a practise match at the Beach Diamond. All members are requested to attend.

OXFORD TRAINING OF THE PRINCE OF WALES

When King Edward went to Oxford he was not allowed to live in college, to know any but picked undergraduates, or to take any share in the life of the university. He was not even allowed to go to lectures; the lecturer had to go to him. For all that he knew of the university, he might as well have been living in a little country town.

There could not be a greater contrast than the life of the present Prince of Wales at Magdalen, where he has now been an undergraduate for fifteen months. He does pretty much as he likes. His tutor is almost invariably in the background, and practically no check is put on his move- ments. He has been thrown into the normal life of the university, and Oxford has been trusted to be worthy of her charge. No friends are chosen for him. He makes his own—and they are not only among the aristocracy of Magdalen. His chief friend is of the middle-classes.

The Daily Work. The prince works very nearly as hard as the average undergraduate. That is to say, he works three hours a day, which may seem very little, but the experience of many genera- tions has proved that it is just enough to make pleasure possible for the rest of the day. And the prince is not at Oxford to work. He is there for the same reason that hundreds of young men are there—to learn some- thing of men and things and to enjoy himself. But he goes to a few lectures on history and political economy and other subjects, and he writes an essay for the president of the college every week, and he works a little in his room at modern lan- guages. Just now—this was written before the Scandinavian visit—he is being rather seriously bored by Rus- sian.

But as soon as the morning is over, and his three hours are done, he is free to enjoy himself in the manner of the ordinary undergraduate. Per- haps a game of golf has been or- ganized. Then the car is waiting out- side at two, and the prince drives his opponent up to the links. Or perhaps he is playing in a football match—not in the first eleven, for he is not good enough for that—but in the second, for which he is just good enough. There is hunting, too, with the South Oxfordshire, or bag- ging—the prince is a pretty good run- ner—or perhaps Magdalen is doing something on the river, and then the prince must run along the bank.

Then tea with other undergraduates in his rooms—remarkable chiefly for the windows being curtained—and later visits to his friends, or a cigar- ette with "Old Gunner," beloved by many generations of Magdalen men, and dinner in hall, and the coffee or something else somewhere or other, or perhaps the theatre.

That is how, the Prince of Wales is being educated. He is learning little of academic things, but he is learn- ing a good deal of what other men are like. Probably he could not take his B. A., but he is graduating in knowledge of the world, or at any

OXFORD APPRECIATES HIM

Oxford has received him in the spirit in which he was sent. He is treated with no special respect, and he cannot very well help learning that he lives in a democratic time. A short time ago, when he left his seat at the theatre between the acts, it was promptly taken by another undergraduate. On his return the prince was told laughingly that there was no room for him, and that he must go somewhere else. And he had to go. In so frank a way does Ox- ford educate the Prince of Wales.

What is the personality of the prince? The truth seems to be that he has the personality of the average undergraduate. Those who know him at Oxford will tell you that he is just like the other men, that he has no pronounced individuality, that he is an amiable, high-spirited, and very normal young man. He has no views of any originality, and—in common with most undergraduates—few views of any kind. He talks, as most under- graduates talk, of the smaller things, and he has the ordinary undergraduate's liking for the light and genial side of life. He is as free from eccen- tricity as the average public school- boy, and his outlook is the ordinary outlook of the healthy and normal young man. He is not, as is generally supposed, inclined to be serious. He enjoys a laugh; and what amuses him as much as anything is the periodical report that he is about to become engaged to some princess.

No Side. He behaves in all situations as the ordinary well-trained young man be- lieves. He has no "side." The other day, when he went to dine with an undergraduate in rooms, the landlady asked him if he would sign his name in her visitors' book. "Like a shot," said the prince. He has already shown that his friendships are not affected by social position. He does the ordinary courteous and kindly things—such as picking up a little girl he has knocked down in the street; an act which, significantly, must be recorded in a prince. He has, in short, all the virtues of the average undergraduate, and—perhaps luckily—all his limitations.

He has nerve and courage, for he hunts and drives his own motor car. He has all the modesty of the public schoolboy. He can play a moderate game of golf, and he is as interested in sport as the average Englishman. He is not troubled with ideas, and he is unlikely ever to do anything sensational or startling.

So far, then, his education seems to have been unusually successful. It was designed to produce an ordinary normal Englishman, and that is ex- actly what the Prince of Wales at present is. His conventional education has shown him to be of plastic material, easily moulded by surround- ings. Oxford, it is clear, has been worthy of her traditions, and is help- ing him to be a young English gentle- man. There remains for him the army and a journey round the world, and, it is to be hoped, some acquaint- ance with the poor. After Magdalen, why not Toynbee Hall.—London Daily News.

VANCOUVER CUEISTS WIN FROM VICTORIANS

Marshall was the only local man to return victorious over the Terminal City invaders in the inter-city billiard contest last night, winning from Park. Marshall got off with a rapid start, scoring over 100 points, while his Ter- minal City rival had secured not a score of points. Park started a rally, making the high run of the evening, making 70 points, and almost over- taking the local cueist. With the score at 299 to 298, the Victoria man scored into the pot. The other local men were easily beaten. Inman, a brother to the famous Melbourne Inman, beat Cowan, Victoria, 300 to 145. Shotton beat Wool- cock, 300 to 121. McMillan beat Camer- on, 300 to 181. Matthews scored a win over Irish, 300 to 188.

After the match Cowan, the local man, was dissatisfied with his poor showing and a return match was ar- ranged for this afternoon at 2:30 in the Westholme parlors. Inman to concede 150 points in a 500-point competition for a wager of $50.

Schulte, the hard-hitting Chicago outfielder, is off with a bad start. The opening week he failed to bat 100.

ORCHARDING IN TASMANIA

The Sanatorium of Australia

We want it widely known that we are offering Orchards and Orchard Lands in our State, which has a climate unequalled on the globe. The lowest temperature is around 30 degs. Fahr., which is followed by a rise during the day to around 50 degs.; the highest reading is 80 degs. Fahr., occasionally 90 degs., with a cool sea breeze. The yearly average range between the Summer and Winter average temperature is 15 degs., the smallest in the world for places in or about the same latitude, 42 degs. Drought has never been known. No irrigation is necessary. Rain-fall, 20 to 40 ins.

WE HAVE CONSIDERABLE AREAS AVAILABLE FOR ORCHARDS IN THE MERSEY VALLEY, NORTHWEST COAST, TASMANIA.

The fruit is already famed throughout the Commonwealth and the British markets for the beauty of its high color, more than King David's, and other highly colored fruit grow to perfection.

On account of our position on the globe, we hold the British and Continental markets without competition from March to June.

Land varies from 25 to 215 per acre, freehold, in the virgin state, according to its position and facilities.

Railway, deep water port, townships, stores, telegraph, telephone, schools, churches, sea-beach for bathing, etc., are all at hand.

Partly cleared farms, growing oats, potatoes, turnips, etc., and pasture lands, with butter factories near by, and all modern conveniences, are available at from 215 to 230 per acre.

The lands of Tasmania are regarded by all sound investors as being the lowest in price in the Australian States. They therefore offer the best chance of solid holding of value.

PRODUCING NEW PLANTS BURBANK'S CREATIONS

How New Forms of Plant Life Are Created to Meet Specifications

(By Louis Honig.)

I asked Luther Burbank the other day what he thought was the greatest achievement of a scientist and he answered, "A small can to amuse a child, followed by furrows in his brow. He had been asked the same question perhaps ten thousand times in the last ten years. One way of answering it is in a reference to his catalogued creations with a prompt dismissal of the subject. But this time he gave the question a deeper thought.

"The greatest thing I have ever done," he said, "is the reason that I have taught the world that PLANT LIFE IS PLIANT."

And there he stopped. For the next twenty-five or thirty minutes he furnished enough exemplification and amplification of the thought for the foundation and superstructure of a hundred romances—yet each was but a story of the unfolding of nature in its simplest, most elemental form.

Continuing, Burbank said: "For untold centuries man was content to assume that the evolutionary processes in plant life were unchangeable by him. As nature declared, so must it be, or, rather, as accident determined, so must it be accepted. And nature, unaided by man, went along evolving here and there, improving on the old—slowly, with results, perhaps, but never shaped along lines predetermined by man. It is now an uncontestable fact that plant life is pliant. "To cite an example: Three years ago a man came to me and asked me if I could produce an edible sweet pea of a certain uniform size and taste, of a specified color and texture quality, peas that would ripen early and all at the same time. He wanted them for canning purposes. It seemed to the packer that he was requesting an unusual, radical thing and he doubted that the matter could be put upon a contractual basis, like an order for a suit of clothes, or a building, or anything else made by the hand of man. He was genuinely surprised when I answered that after a pattern designed three years later the plant that would produce the desired kind of pea was ready for him. Six planting stages were all that were necessary, but each one represented selections from thousands and thousands of grown plants. The packer has his pea and it is a permanent variety—it will never go back to its forbears."

Three years is a short time in which to create a new variety. As a rule, Burbank needs a cycle or more to evolve new creations. It took him sixteen years to eliminate the thorns from Spiny cactus. But once the finished product leaves the Burbank factory—the soil of his proving grounds—it is a fixity, the same as a manufactured article of commerce, and after a pattern designed by the hand of man and run off in endless duplication in man-made machines. To give a new shade to a rose; to make nature remove or so modify the pit in a plant that it is practically stoneless; to produce a cherry bigger than any cherry ever known, and to get more cherries at the same time on the individual tree; to force an onion to produce an eight-inch growth in three; not to speak of making a superior potato quality of a size that would be preserved as a phenomenon, and commonplace throughout the world; or to produce a tomato from cactus, and a hundred and more other achievements, and to be able to do all of them upon actual predetermined specifications, is the remarkable element in the Burbank accomplishment. It is truly teaching the lesson that plant life is pliant.

I was curious to know whether Burbank's later years would add to the glory of his name, and I asked him if the report that he would shortly announce the creation of new varieties that would vie with the old in sensational character, were true. He answered:

"For twenty years there have been accumulating a large number of productions that are just about ready to be pronounced fixed. They are the evolution of many years of effort and research. I have a number of these new creations up my sleeve and they will add greatly to the good of mankind. This is the time for fruition. The accumulated effort of years is ready to show in consummation. They will be announced in due time."

It is known that Burbank has evolved a new kind of edible berry that is a marvel for size and flavor. What it will be called no one knows; what its basic taste, what its color is, and its size are also unknown. Reading between the lines and mounting the safety of reference with which Burbank usually surrounds his unannounced creations, it is safe to say that this berry will contest with the famous Himalaya and Wonderberry for honors and recognition. The taste of mankind is longing for a new kind of a berry. Burbank knows it. The specifications of taste, size, color and previous conditions of berry service are before him. Undoubtedly his new and latest "manufactured" natural production has taken them all into account and the issue being met in detail and generally. "Up my sleeve" is a favorite expression of Burbank when referring to new varieties that have not yet been announced. It is suggestive of necromancy and wizardry, the two words in the English language that he enjoys the most. "Up my sleeve" in Luther Burbank's case means many years of the most exhausting scrutiny and experimentation, of exact scientific thought and action, of knowing in advance what and where the road will go in a straight scientific line toward it. It means the employment of sharp-edged senses, an acute understanding of nature. To others it is mystery. To Burbank it is method.

Luther Burbank is in his sixties. He is spry physically, alert and keen mentally. He still refuses to see about a hundred people a day, limiting his interviews to a constantly reducing minimum. He adopted the policy of denying interviews several years ago, because he found it interfered with the productivity of his labors. Save for the time consumed in his short automobile trips from his embowered home in Santa Rosa to his horticultural laboratory and proving grounds in Sebastopol, Burbank's day is devoted entirely to the study of nature, not delving deep into the mysteries of nature, or conducting experiments, he is dictating to a corps of stenographers, all of whom he keeps busy tabulating and recording an answer to each question. He answers every letter he receives and they stack up in formidable piles several times a day. Burbank's little home in Santa Rosa has been the scene of more notable interviews than any other dwelling house in this or any country. Thousands of world-noted men who have visited California have made the pilgrimage to Santa Rosa to see the man who is the world's writer and artist, business magnates, the men famous in transportation and commerce, all of whom he has interviewed. Many of them, recalling the pleasant hour or less that was spent with him, frequently send their host of other days a message of good wishes, and none is less than a glowing testimonial. A few men Burbank corresponds regularly. They are as a rule scientists in other fields than his own. They are, to his mind, of his old—solidly.

At night comes his only real relaxation. This consists in occasional social intercourse with a few intimate friends, or being read and played to. He is very fond of literature and reads widely, in order to save his eyes for scientific experimentation he has his secretary read to him. The literature he comes in mental contact with nowadays includes technical disquisitions on the practical application of electricity, advanced chemistry, history and popular novels after they have stood the test of a year's time. The popular mania for science fiction, which is his favored diversion and he finds equal to his own, is not so much inspiring and the canned varieties, his sitting room containing the latest mechanical music producing models.

It is now some forty years since Burbank first conceived the idea of his senses on the production of new forms of plant life, and it is safe to say that few men in the world have as keen a sense for color, taste and smell as he. Necessarily his knowledge must include the art of mixing colors; he must know how to blend varying or harmonizing tastes and magically combine different essential qualities.

"Do you rely on your own taste entirely in the creation of new varieties of fruits?" I asked him.

"No," said Burbank. "If I did that, the fruits that I have created would lack largely the quality of beauty. I select the very finest specimens that I select for evolutionary development. Frequently I ask for the judgment of my assistants. It would be an eight-inch growth in three; not to speak of making a superior potato quality of a size that would be preserved as a phenomenon, and commonplace throughout the world; or to produce a tomato from cactus, and a hundred and more other achievements, and to be able to do all of them upon actual predetermined specifications, is the remarkable element in the Burbank accomplishment. It is truly teaching the lesson that plant life is pliant.

INADEQUATE PROTECTION.

Cowichan Anglers' Association Formed to Compel Prosecution of Illegal Fishing.

The inefficiency of the government's system of fish protection in the Cowichan river, Cowichan lake, Shawigan Lake, Koksilah River, Cowichan Bay and Saanich Arm is responsible for the organization of a body known as the Cowichan Anglers' association, which intends to take upon its own hands the prosecution of illegal fishing.

The government will also be asked to increase materially the number of fish wardens and put one man with a swift launch on Saanich Arm and Cowichan Bay. Such steps are absolutely necessary if the members of the new organization believe, if the sport is to be preserved, the depredations of conscienceless fishermen having done serious injury already due to the inefficiency of the government protection.

Efforts will also be made to exterminate the Merganza duck, which is the most numerous of the highest, and procure ponds for maturing fish as well as for the young fry in connection with the Cowichan Lake hatchery.

Officers were elected as follows: President, L. C. Ratray, Duncan; secretary, J. Y. Copeman, Victoria; committee, Newton Burdick, Victoria; J. Y. Copeman, Victoria; W. E. Liver, Oak Bay; J. Wise, Victoria; S. Martin, Victoria; A. Wyde, Shawigan Lake; Vincent Schwab, Cobble Hill; T. Geiger, Cowichan Lake.

MILITARY MATTERS

Incidents of the Week With the Men in Uniform.

ISLAND SQUADRON IN NEXT GAZETTE

List of Officers Given and Experience of Over 60 Applicants

Announcement was made during the week of official approval of the organization of the island squadron of the 21st Regiment of P. C. Horse, and the gazette will contain the official notice.

No new military unit on the coast ever was formed under such favorable auspices. At the present date, before the squadron is gazetted, there are only two or three vacancies in the ranks. There are fewer than a dozen among the 60 odd applicants who have not had previous service, and the number of men who have had active service is almost 50 per cent of those with previous militia experience. Every man is an expert horseman and no other applicants are considered. In addition the class of men entering the regiment is of the highest, the officers and men alike numbering among them some of the best known and most prominent citizens of Victoria.

During the week the men who are doing much to organize the squadron have accomplished one big achievement, obtaining horses. Arrangements have been made whereby there will be over 60 horses available for every drill, the horses being loaned by various owners in and around Victoria.

As has been previously announced Capt. Bapty, M. D., will be commander of the squadron with the rank of major. Dr. Bapty saw service in South Africa with the second Canadian contingent. He was attached to the R. C. F. A. under Major Eaton, who is at present conducting the staff course at Werk Point barracks. He was also in the Canadian Scouts under Major Howard, of Northwest rebellion fame. At present he holds the rank of captain in the Army Medical Corps, and is attached to the 88th Regiment.

W. W. Foster, M. P. P. for the Islands will be captain of the squadron. While not a service man he has had militia experience with both the 5th and 4th Regiments, having held sergeant's rank in both regiments. Three of the four lieutenants will be Bruce Irving, A. F. Nation and J. F. Hyndman. The fourth lieutenant has not yet been chosen. Irving and Nation are R. M. C. men.

Two sergeants will be J. T. Marshall, Karl B. Spurgin, J. B. Tighe and C. A. Booth, all of whom hold one or more service medals. Marshall won the British empire tent-pegging contest in 1901, and holds 32 medals altogether for tent-pegging and swordsmanship and other contests of the sort. The squadron sergeant-major will be R. A. Meeking, who has had five years' experience in the R. N. W. M. P., and three years in the Staffordshire Yeomanry. He held the position of riding instructor with the mounted police.

Among the other applicants for ensigns in the squadron are E. P. Fox, formerly of the Durham Light Infantry, and with a Natal medal; A. James, South African medal; T. Bell, South African medal; E. R. F. Dennison, five years in H. A. C.; S. C. Richards, three years in R. N. W. M. P.; Alfred W. Webb, seven years in Manitoba regiments; Joseph Moon, Duke of Lancaster's Yeomanry; Karl B. Spurgin, South African medal; R. McKane, South African medal; S. Boond, seven years in 6th L. C. A.; C. A. Booth, South African Constabulary; W. C. Pailser, Yorkshire Dragoons and 5th Regiment; A. D. Radford, service in India and South Africa; R. Auscomb, Royal Field Artillery; London; A. V. Danby, 5th Regiment; George Spratley, Aldershot Remounts; A. G. Maynard, 5th Regiment; F. G. Maynard, 5th Regiment; A. D. Davies, King's Own Yeomanry; W. M. Patt, 5th Regiment; M. H. Taylor, South African medal; J. Thomson, South African medal; J. B. Tighe, South African medal, attached as scout to Benson's column; G. P. Heineken, South African medal; J. F. Mason, Surrey Yeomanry; W. Arnold, 5th Regiment; R. C. Hoyle, commission R. L. E.; W. Weaver, London R. F. A.; John Warren, R. N. W. M. P.; R. Lewis, no experience; H. Brownling, no experience; R. S. Johnson, four service medals; N. A. Foster, eight clasps, South African; Alex. MacKinnon, no experience; J. Lowe, no experience; F. G. Bradley, V. C.; R. F. Child, no experience; P. Worrall, South Africa; H. H. Moseley, Imperial Yeomanry; J. H. L. Moseley, no experience; M. W. Oliver, 5th Regiment.

Fully two-thirds of the experienced candidates have held non-commissioned ranks, while several have held commissions but are now going in as privates or non-commissioned officers.

National defence is one of the primary and most imperative obligations of every state. It is, however, a profound and dangerous error to suppose that national defence consists only of dreadnoughts, guns, rifles and drill—MacCallum Scott, M. P.

UP-COUNTRY CAMP.

Colonel Roy Will Personally Direct Cavalry Operations at Vernon Beginning May 18.

The annual cavalry camp begins on May 18, and will be held for 12 days at Vernon under the personal command of the D. O. C. the 11th district, Colonel A. Roy, M. V. O., who will be accompanied by Lieutenant Irving, C. G. A., as his orderly officer. Major L. J. Lipsett will act as general staff officer, and Captain Moore as A. A. G. and Q. M. G.

The two regiments of B. C. Horse will occupy the camp for twelve days with the Army Service corps and an Ambulance unit. On May 24 they will be joined by the 4th Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles, the 11th Irish Fusiliers, the 72nd Sutherland Highlanders, all from Vancouver, and the 104th Westminister Fusiliers from New Westminster, and the 102nd Rocky Mountain Rangers.

Companies will parade at the G. T. P. wharf at 8 p. m. as follows: Monday, May 11, A and B companies; Tuesday, May 12, C and E companies; Wednesday, May 13, F and G companies.

Private S. Watson (G Company) to be acting lance-sergeant vice Acting Lance-Sergeant D. G. Lumsden who reverts to the rank of private at his own request.

Lieut. F. Sturges is transferred from B Company to G Company.

The monthly meeting of the officers' mess will be held on Thursday, May 14, at 8.45 p. m.

A general meeting of the sergeants' mess will be held on Thursday May 14, at 8.45 p. m.

R. T. TOWNSEND, Lieut. Acting Adjutant.

"A" COMPANY HAS ADVANTAGE.

The committee in charge of Fusiliers' Company trophy has decided that in future five complete scores, instead of six, shall qualify a man for a place on the team of his company for this competition.

The standing of companies is given. A company has really a distinct advantage in having three men who have made the required number of scores, and this company may be expected to take a much higher place in a few weeks.

G company—Capt. Harvey, 397; Sgt. Newberry, 378; average 77. B company—L. B. Boggis, 423; Col. Sgt. Blackmore, 318; average 74. F company—Col. Sgt. L. 417; Cpl. Rogers, 399; average 71. A company, Cpl. Harding, 401; Sgt. Summers, 333; Col.-Sgt. Anderson, 304; average 69.

UNIVERSITY CADETS SHOOT.

Boys Make Excellent Scores Over 200 and 500-Yard Ranges in Bad Weather.

The university cadets held two practices last week to compensate for having none the week before. The best ten scores on each occasion are given, out of about twenty who fired. Both these scores are ahead of any practice scores in previous years, in spite of the fact that the weather was bad.

Bloom of Youth Now Easily Attained

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the most obstinate blemishes, pimples, spots, imperfections, are gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth. Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercurized wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago. Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered salicylic acid in a half pint witch-hazel, bathe the face in the solution and say—there's nothing that will so effectively, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines.

Then see anyone who has used D. D. D. according to directions and ask if the cure was not permanent. Remember: D. D. D. Prescription has been recognized as the standard skin remedy for many years, while imitations in liquid form as well as salves and "blood" cures have come and gone. Druggists generally carry D. D. D. and we recommend it strongly. If you have any kind of skin blemish, rash, or insect bite—no matter how slight—get at our store and ask us about D. D. D. Prescription.

Apply D. D. D. to the skin and see how the itch is gone—instantly—the moment the liquid is applied.

NEW SUGGESTIONS FOR THE TROUSSEAU

Many Colored Blouses and Parasols; Styles for Life in the Open

New York, May 2.—Preparations for that great event, the June wedding, are now in progress. The bride-to-be is busily superintending the making of the various gowns of her trousseau. For the all-important wedding-dress the model used for the first illustration is suggested. It expresses both dignity and grace, qualities which should be inherent in this gown of gowns. White taffeta is the material used, with handsome silk-run lace for the vestee and rolling collar. The round-length skirt has a charmingly modest and graceful bustle drapery, especially becoming to the youthful bride. Moire, charmeuse, satin meteor, and crepe-de-chine are charming materials for such a dress. For the veil, white tulle is especially pretty, draped from a coronet of orange blossoms, as illustrated.

For the bridesmaid's gown there is no greater fabric than daintily-tinted organdy, plain or figured. The charming model chosen for the second illustration is of pale yellow organdy, with triple ruffles of fine-hashed net bound with bias strips of organdy. The becoming hair worn with this dress is a dream of old-time leghorn loveliness in

Gifts for the Bride

To those people who recognize and appreciate the difference between the commonplace and truly distinctive, between mere commercialism and real merchandising service, the SHORTT, HILL & DUNCAN STORE must at all times—and particularly at "gift time"—stand out conspicuously as the one gift store in Victoria distinctly typifying highest standards.

The gift suggestions offered in this store show in a measure the extremes to which we go to secure the exclusive and the unusual.

Visit us and note how we refrain from extravagant eulogies.

as are also the same crepes with the daintiest sort of colorings. The blouses for the summer are indeed things of beauty—so dainty and cool. The organdies are perfect in all the smart shades of yellow, blue, pink, green, and rose. Most of them are trimmed with white collar and cuffs, and often bows of darker ribbons at neck and sleeves. One very smart blouse is of yellow organdy with half-inch stripes of French blue, outlined with a hairline of black. The trimming consists of a white collar and cuffs, and a bow of two-inch black moire taffeta ribbon at the point of the V-shaped neck. Among the more desirable dressy blouses, one sees beautiful white chiffon stamped with exquisitely-colored flowers. These are trimmed at neck and sleeves with dainty shadow-lace ruffles, and having just a line of black through the lace gives a smart touch. Beneath these waists of sheerest materials are worn the daintiest of dainty corset-covers. Some are shadow-lace and some are dainty white batiste run with delicate pink or blue ribbons, while others have winsome Dolly Varden designs on a ground of white. All, however, should be glimpsed through the fabric of the waists in a misty manner. Many styles of taffeta coats in all colors are to be used to throw over the dainty lace, chiffon crepe and lingerie gowns, but quite the newest and smartest thing yet shown for formal occasions is a kimono-shaped, medium-length coat of colored net, with wide flounces, which taper toward the front. Lovely narrow feather trimming circles the neck and tops the flounces on the sleeves. Quite the most wonderful creations

SANOL Anti-Diabetes

Has Cured Thousands of Cases of DIABETES

The public were sceptical when we first made the claim that diabetes could be cured, but we have demonstrated in thousands of cases that Sanol Anti-Diabetes actually cures.

We can give you the names of people in all parts of the Dominion who have been cured. One writes: "To-day I am as healthy as a man could be. I was told by several doctors that I had Diabetes and the only thing for me to do was to keep on a strict diet to prolong my life. But on October 17, 1911, I heard of Sanol Anti-Diabetes and am proud to say that not only has it done me good, but has completely cured me. I am advised by the doctors to eat anything and everything. My cure finished completely on July 29, 1912.

INDUSTRY QUEENS.

In an interesting article on the growing army of queens of industry in the April issue of Munsey's Magazine, Mr. Edward Hungerford shows that the feminist movement in America aims not as here in securing "votes for women," but in obtaining some of the plums of the great professions and trades.

"The big feminist movement is not marked by gay suffragette flags of yellow. You see it in the great office centres of New York—solid substantial offices in solid substantial structures. In these offices sit the executives in command—women of keen mind and cool judgment, who cannot afford to make errors, since a single mistake might bring overwhelming disaster."

Mr. Hungerford describes the rise to big positions of such women as Miss Alice Durkin, an architect, and Miss Josephine Chapman, a contractor. The latter, he says, has built a number of New York's skyscrapers. She started, Mr. Hungerford tells us, at the very bottom of the ladder—as an apprentice in an architect's office. After a time she declared her intention of building houses and leaving her impress on the homes of America.

"And so saying, she began to turn out colonial houses, renaissance houses, Spanish houses, although she will tell you that she would rather design for you the long, low, rambling dwellings of brick, half-timber, many-gabled, thick-roofed, that are so dear to the English heart."

Miss Chapman has a keen rival in Miss Fay Kellogg. One of the most distinguished of all the public buildings of Manhattan—the Hall of Records—was largely designed by her. No woman in the business world, says Mr. Hungerford, has made the meteoric success of Miss Elsie de Wolfe. When she decided to leave the stage and go into the business of interior decorating her friends shook their heads dubiously.

"But Elsie de Wolfe knew herself better than her friends knew her. Half a dozen years from the back of the footlights and Elsie de Wolfe had her own shop and the best clientele in the country, with a net income from her business of $75,000 a year."

Bessie Marbury is a marvellously clever woman, who "is the head and inspiration of the big play-brokerage business over which she presides. She conducts a big establishment, having branches in nearly a dozen European cities."

SANOL Anti-Diabetes Has Cured Thousands of Cases of DIABETES

The public were sceptical when we first made the claim that diabetes could be cured, but we have demonstrated in thousands of cases that Sanol Anti-Diabetes actually cures.

We can give you the names of people in all parts of the Dominion who have been cured. One writes: "To-day I am as healthy as a man could be. I was told by several doctors that I had Diabetes and the only thing for me to do was to keep on a strict diet to prolong my life. But on October 17, 1911, I heard of Sanol Anti-Diabetes and am proud to say that not only has it done me good, but has completely cured me. I am advised by the doctors to eat anything and everything. My cure finished completely on July 29, 1912.

Write to-day for free medical book and names of well-known patients who have been cured. Sanol Anti-Diabetes is sold by All Druggists.

Dignity and Grace Are Appealing Characteristics of This Stylish Wedding Gown.

an adorable flat shape, trimmed with the most exquisitely dainty flowers. Narrow black velvet ribbon streamers of "the once upon a time" are caught at one side, with one end forming a bride.

For the trousseau, many materials and types of wraps and gowns are suitable. One of the new materials which is most popular for summer wear is the lovely golfine, which comes in all sorts of beautiful colors and several qualities. It has all the smartness of corduroy without the weight, and for sports' clothes is much better than the easily-mussed fabrics of former seasons.

A stunning suit for motoring or sports is made of the light-weight golfine, with a straight skirt that has just a suspicion of drape from the hip-line to the waist, and quite a marvelous jumper, that hovers between a coat and a sweater. This is either "walked into," after the present-day manner of donning a skirt, or put on over the head. A square collar rolls back from the V-shaped neck, which is quite low, giving the pretty line to show the dainty blouse underneath. A three-inch loose belt at the waistline finishes this thoroughly cool, comfortable, yet striking outfit.

Then the wonderful top-coats, that are made of the heavier golfine, in all the bright shades of the season, are perfect, since one need not look warm and unhappy in a motor coat, for, although beautifully dressed, one can yet be fully protected. One beautiful model has the long, loose back, the front being long and straight, with large revers. One side of the coat is buttoned high, so that a loose draped effect is obtained. A high double black velvet collar stands well away from the neck, giving an air of jauntness to an already wonderful coat.

Beautiful ratine in bright colors and large sporty-looking checks are among the summer suitings. Tasteful straight, narrow skirts are made of these checks, which should be worn with a pretty blouse, and one of the thin silk sweater-coats. These are shown in the same colors as the ratine, and are eminently smart for the well-put-up woman who plans a day's outing of any sort.

For the dressy summer afternoon frock, soft white crepes, with gorgeous colored figured borders, are distinctive, for the summer of 1914 are the bathing suits. Many are more like afternoon dresses, made knee-length. One suit of dark blue taffeta, trimmed with light cerise golfine, has a darling cap made of the same golfine, with a hemstitched band of the blue taffeta around the face, tying in a saucy bow directly in front. Silk bathing shoes of cerise, with dark blue silk stockings, and a parasol of the two colors, complete a bathing costume much too beautiful to be plunged into the briny deep.

Another excellent suit is of two-toned green taffeta, with a cap of the same, gathered, not only on a band around the face, but at the crown forming a stunning sort of rosette, like a cock's comb, on the top of the head.

The parasols, of varied colors, are more beautiful than ever. The lovely "cherry blossom" from Japan is in soft colors or brilliant checks, while the "Arcadia" has each dainty gilt rib returned and tipped with a tiny ball of ivory or ebony to blend with the coloring of the silk of the parasol. These two are most desirable and very smart.

Among the summer lingerie the coolest of summer nighties are seen in beautiful washable silk. White, with pretty Dresden flowers, are to be preferred. These have the low neck and very short sleeves, finished with ribbons to match the colorings in the silks.

ORANGE LILY WOMEN CURED AT HOME Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lily. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the perives, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts. In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 25-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address. MRS. FRANCES E. IN THE LODGE ROOM

Native Sons.

On Tuesday evening next Post No. 1 will receive an official visit from the grand factor, Bro. J. J. Johnston, of New Westminster, and the officers desire a full attendance at the meeting, which commences at 7.30 sharp. The post will also receive a visit the same night from the grand historian, Bro. His Honor Judge Howay, also of New Westminster. Judge Howay has kindly consented to give an historical lecture, and the lodge has invited its pioneer friends to attend.

The post will be open to receive its visitors at 8.30 o'clock, at which time the regular business will be closed. During the evening several candidates will be up for initiation, and the delegates to the grand post meeting to be held in Vancouver next July will be elected. Refreshments will be served in the dining room and music will also be provided.

Meetings Next Week.

Monday—Victoria Lodge No. 1.
Tuesday—Cofax Rebekah Lodge No. 1.
Wednesday—Columbia Lodge No. 2.
Thursday—Dominion Lodge No. 4.
Victoria Lodge No. 1.

At the meeting of the lodge last Monday evening Bros. T. Hubbard and W. J. Gilliland were elected representatives to the grand lodge, and Bro. A. McCabe and W. J. Gower as alternates. The initiatory degree was conferred on several candidates at this session. An invitation has been received from Columbia Lodge for the degree team to exemplify the initiatory degree next Wednesday evening.

Cofax Rebekah Lodge No. 1.

There promises to be a very interesting session of this lodge next Tuesday evening. Delegates to the Rebekah Assembly will be elected, the Degree of Rebekah will be conferred, and the nomination of officers for the ensuing term will also be held. As the competitions take place in less than a month, the members of the degree team are practicing faithfully for the event. Judging from recent performances of the team, there is no doubt they will acquit themselves in a very creditable manner. Although handicapped by the absence of several of the team through illness, their places have been filled by competent substitutes who will take part during the competitions if the regular members of the team are unable to attend. It must be a source of considerable gratification to the officers and to Sister Simpson, P. G., team captain, to have charge of a team so proficient in every way. The members of the various subordinate lodges are very enthusiastic about Cofax degree team, and it is the general opinion that the first prize team meets in the I. O. O. F. hall in this city every second and fourth Tuesday in the month.

The members of Cofax lodge are pleased to learn that Sister Taylor, P. G., is rapidly recovering from her recent illness.

Vancouver Encampment No. 1.

There was a good attendance at the encampment meeting on Tuesday evening last. The patriarchal degree was conferred upon several candidates in a very satisfactory manner. The nomination of officers for the ensuing term also took place.

Columbia Lodge No. 2.

This lodge has extended an invitation to the degree team of Victoria Lodge No. 1 to confer the initiatory degree next Wednesday evening. There will no doubt be a large attendance as many of the members of the other lodges have not had the pleasure of seeing the degree team of Victoria lodge in action. At the conclusion of the business of the evening, refreshments will be served in the banquet hall recently fitted up. To encourage the members of the degree team, it is hoped there will be a large attendance. Last Wednesday evening Bros. J. Wilby and F. Fornert, were elected representatives to the grand lodge, and Bros. A. P. McConnell and H. Thompson were elected alternates.

Canton Victoria No. 2.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of Canton Victoria last night, and considerable business satisfactorily disposed of.

A. O. U. W. of B. C.

Preparations for the annual picnic are already under way, the joint committee, representative of the three city lodges, having met during the past week for organization purposes. Bro. C. T. Wriglesworth, of No. 1 lodge, was elected chairman, and Bro. Arthur Attwell, of No. 7 lodge, was chosen as secretary. The date and scene will probably be decided on at the next committee meeting, to be held next Wednesday night. During the past week Bro. Albert Nichols, M. W. No. 7 lodge, received official notification of his appointment as D. D. G. M. W. for Victoria district.

Court Vancouver, A. O. F.

Court Vancouver, No. 5755, A. O. F., held its regular meeting Monday evening in the A. O. F. hall, there being a good attendance. Two new members were admitted. The question considered was whether the A. O. F. Island courts should secede from Court Columbia district, A. O. F. of B. C., and form an island district of their own. After considerable discussion the motion to do so was passed. Bro. E. Banner presided as chief ranger.

MAKE YOUR WILL TO-DAY

To-morrow May Be Too Late—Lawyer Unnecessary—Use a Tried and Tested Form.

When you are dead and gone, the first thing the law looks to is your will, to know who you intend to have your belongings, no matter whether they are big or little. If you have made no will your property may be divided in a way you never intended. Loved ones may be missed out entirely. Family quarrels often result. Your property may be eaten up with costly legal expenses. All this would never have happened if you made a will.

The thing to do to-day is to secure a Bax Legal Will Form from your stationer. If he hasn't the original, genuine Bax, don't take a substitute. It's important to get the real Bax, the only copyrighted form that has stood the test of years in the law courts. Or tear this out, write your name and address plainly in the margin and mail to us with 35 cents. If you want three Forms, send $1.00. We will mail the Form to you by return mail, post free. We send full instructions, also a sample Will Form, all filled out, so you know exactly how to proceed.

The Bax Will Form has exclusive copyrighted features, and is successfully passing through the courts every day. Write to to-day. Address Bax Will Form Co., Room 192 280 College street, Toronto.

"My dear," remarked Jones, who had just finished reading a book on "The Wonders of Nature," this really is a remarkable world. Nature is marvellous! Stupendous! Where is a work like this it makes me think how puny, how insignificant is man." "Hub," sniffed his better half. "A woman doesn't have to wade through four hundred pages to find out the same thing."

ST. MARGARET'S HAS ANNUAL SPORTS DAY

Many Attend to Witness Entertaining Events at Oak Bay Grounds

Quite a large number of the girls' friends attended the annual sports day of St. Margaret's school Thursday afternoon at the Oak Bay grounds. The conditions were most favorable for the holding of the various events, and the programme was carried out without a hitch. Miss Lena Cotsworth, the games mistress of St. Margaret's, opening the proceedings, and event following event in rapid succession. The Rev. G. H. Andrews presided at this part of the proceedings in his usual agreeable manner. The awards were as follows:

A total of 13 points placed Miss Davida Brown-Constable in possession of the senior championship, Miss Dorothy Edwards coming second with 11. Betty Medd won the junior championship with 19 points, Margaret McVitie and Barbara Bullock-Webster tieing for second place with 11 each.

The winners were the recipients of silver loving-cups, while Service's "Songs of a Sourdough" were presented to the winner of the visitors' race, Mr. Grey. Miss Cotsworth was presented with a bouquet of scarlet and white carnations, representing the school colors, and three lusty cheers and a "tiger" were given in turn for Miss Barton, Miss Cotsworth and the Rev. G. H. Andrews before the guests departed for their homes. Tea and ices were served during one of the intervals in the proceedings, and the occasion proved a most enjoyable one for all present.

FALLING HAIR AND ITCHING SCALP

Entirely Needless—Use Parisian Sage; It Quickly Removes Dandruff; Your Head Feels Fine

Now that Parisian Sage can be had at any drug or toilet counter, it is certainly needless to have thin, brittle, matted, stringy or faded hair. No matter how unsightly the hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, use Parisian Sage—it is all that is needed. One application removes dandruff, the hair roots are nourished and stimulated to grow new hair, itching scalp and falling hair cease—your head feels fine. Best of all, the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life and beauty.

You will be surprised and delighted with Parisian Sage. Try at least one fifty cent bottle. D. E. Campbell will refund the purchase price if you are not satisfied.

Look for the trade-mark—"The Girl with the Auburn Hair"—accept no other.

Rushing into a smoking compartment of an American train, an old man cried excitedly, "A corker! Who's got a corker?" A score of hands sought pockets, and a score of kindly voices said, "Here you are!" "I thought so!" said the old man. "And now I lay before you, gentlemen, some temperance pledges! Who will sign first?"

BOYS TO GIVE PLAY

Junior Y. M. C. A. Members Will Present "The Upper Trail" in Aid of Camp Equipment.

In proportion to the growing membership of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., diversions and pastimes for the junior members of the association are being planned and prepared for. Foremost among the interesting things under way at the present time is a comedy-drama, "The Upper Trail," rehearsals for which have been going on for the past two weeks. This entertaining event is to take place in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, May 29 and 30, at 8.15, under the auspices of the boys' department, who have obtained as coaches for the rehearsals Colonel Hobday, the mere association of whose name with any undertaking of the kind is sufficient guarantee of its artistic success, and Mr. Bissell.

The story of "The Upper Trail" deals with the gang life of boys and their experiences at camp. A special feature of the production will be the evening camp-fire and a programme by the campers. About thirty boys will take part in the presentation of the story, and additional help will be given to the occasion by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra under the direction of Frank Chinchin. W. D. John is giving capable assistance by coaching the young actors in the musical parts of the play, and Mr. Williams, of the Princess theatre, has kindly offered to lend the necessary scenery for the occasion.

Mr. Baker is to act as business manager, and Paul Hayward as assistant business manager.

In connection with the ticket-selling for the performance, a competition is being organized, the boy selling the largest number of tickets to be given

$5 toward his summer camp fee; the boy selling the second largest number will be given $3 toward the same end, and the third prize will be awarded by the Drake Hardware company. The competition will open next Monday.

The proceeds of the performance will go toward the summer camp fund, to buy equipment for the lads who join the camp at Albert Head.

CITY LOSES TERRITORY

Boundary Monuments on Fowl Bay Road Are Out Four Feet and a Half, According to Surveyors.

It seems that the city has been enjoying a few feet of space more than it should in the eastern end, adjoining Oak Bay. The result of a survey shows that between Fort street and Oak Bay avenue both sides of Fowl Bay road are in the neighboring municipality, and that this obtains for a distance south of Oak Bay avenue as well.

The matter came up in a letter from the municipal council which was due to a communication from F. A. Devereux sent to that body. On receiving this the matter was referred to the city engineer, and his report made to the streets committee yesterday is as follows:

"I gather from this correspondence that according to Plan No. 4 on both sides of Oak Bay avenue the correct boundary line is from zero to 4 1/2 ft. west of the lot lines, so that Fowl Bay road, between Oak Bay avenue and Fort street, and for a distance south of Oak Bay avenue, is outside the city, and a number of the lots which encroach upon the road lie within the municipality of Oak Bay.

"It seems to show that the boundary line as indicated by the stone monuments on Fowl Bay road is not

STUDY "HANSARD."

"Hansard" has been the subject of many eulogies. "Let me tell you how to get on in the House of Commons," said Disraeli to Sir John Pope Hennessy. "When the house is sitting be always in your place; when it is not sitting read 'Hansard.'" "He was a constant student of 'Hansard,'" writes Lord Morley of Richard Cobden, "and for one who seeks to make himself well versed in the political transactions of the century there is no book so well worth the labor of ransacking." But note the wise man's qualifying phrase—"ransacking." No man could possibly read steadily through "Hansard" and live.

KIDNEYS CURED AND VITALITY REGAINED

Prominent Ontario Merchant Says He Is Enjoying "The Best Health I Ever Had" Thanks to "Fruit-a-tives"

B. A. KELLY, ESQ.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work, and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old time vitality. To-day I am as well as ever, the best health I ever had, and I unhesitatingly give you this letter and my photo for publication if you wish."

B. A. KELLY.

"The greatest kidney remedy in the world," is what thousands of people say about "Fruit-a-tives." And it is true. "Fruit-a-tives" heals the kidneys, strengthens the kidneys, cures the kidneys, as nothing else will. All over Canada to-day, hundreds of people who were sick and suffering, are curing themselves of kidney and bladder troubles, Rheumatism, and Lumbago, by taking "Fruit-a-tives," the famous medicine made from fruit juices.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c—or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MOON DESKS give you continuous service throughout the whole day

There's no putting away of papers or piling them to one side to get at the typewriter, because the entire top of the desk is always available, just the same as with an ordinary desk.

And when you wish to use the typewriter, just a gentle lift on the sliding shelf brings it to position—the correct height, rigid, and with only a half-turn of your chair to place you in front of it.

At the side of the machine is an extension table that will be found extremely useful for papers or note book, and when closed in with the rolling shutter, there is practically nothing to distinguish this from any other handsomely finished desk of the sanitary type.

One point you'll appreciate very much. You can see it here before you buy it. You don't have to wait while we get one for you.

THE GALLERY CLOCK OF BRITISH POLITICS

By H. F. GADSBY

(Special Cable from Staff Correspondent. Copyrighted.)

London, April 20.—One bishop and two vicars hang over the railing of the peers' gallery in the House of Commons. A stubborn old bishop and two stiff-necked vicars with their three silk hats on the seat beside them. They make a solemn but angry picture.

The bishop is taking notes with a fierce light in his eye. So are the two vicars—they are doubtless going to write to the Times about it. They listen eagerly, and like most listeners they hear no good of themselves. Liberal members down below frankly blame them for putting the Welsh Church bill where it is. There was a time when the bishops and vicars could have commuted their life-interest for a lump sum, but they chose to fight, being led astray by the promises of Bonar Law, Arthur Balfour and others, who said that the Welsh Church—meaning the established church in Wales—should get back from the Unionists everything the Liberals took away from it. So the bishops said no compromise, just as King Carson says no compromise in Ulster—indeed, it's the prevailing Tory spirit—and no compromise is what they are getting.

They are not being so badly treated at that. When the church is disestablished in Wales it will still retain its cathedrals, churches, palaces, rectories, churchyards, and all its endowments, public and private, since 1862. But the ancient endowments, that is to say, the properties and privileges which Henry the Eighth and persons like him wrested from one church to give to another, they will revert to the crown and will be administered for the benefit of the whole of the Welsh people. The English church in Wales will no longer have a landed and titled, but it will still be a comfortably rich organization with an income of £100,000 over and above the voluntary offerings of its members. The other £50,000 of which it is deprived under the disendowment clauses of the bill will be devoted to public libraries, college education, and other purposes quite as good in a secular way as the religious uses to which it was formerly applied.

Church No Object of Pity. The English church in Wales, though disestablished and disendowed, will be no object of pity. It is not a case of robbing God, as ardent churchmen claim; it is simply a case of redistributing God's money with an unselfish eye to present and future. The change may even do the church good, as Lord Robert Cecil, one of its best friends, admits, by throwing it on its own resources and reinforcing it with the missionary spirit. But—and here Lord Robert shakes a long, lean finger at the "Fruit-a-tives" advertisement, beware. Though good may come of the evil they do—the good will not come to them. Evidently Lord Robert believes in curses.

This is the same debate I heard a year ago, nothing added, nothing left out. The only difference is that the house is just a shade more heated with it. This is the fourth session reading the Welsh Church bill has had in four years, two of them under the old rules and two under the Parliament act, and it has a third and last trip to make next year, after which it will become law, the House of Lords notwithstanding. It is, indeed, you can see very cold cabbage, indeed, and the house would much rather be out of doors enjoying the golden April weather than pulling a long Sunday face as it listens to another sermon on this interminable subject. Besides, it's ill wrangling over a dead horse no matter how senseless of duty constrains. The Tories fight the Welsh church bill as Tories might be expected to fight, but they are good enough politicians to see that the English church in Wales is the church of a very small and very rich minority and that ninety per cent. of the people will not go on forever paying tithes to a church to which they do not belong. Another fact not to be blinked is that thirty-one out of the thirty-four Welsh members in Parliament are for disestablishment and that every election in Wales for the last thirty years has been overwhelmingly in favor of it. If the Tories came in and their muttered threats to give the money back became a matter of practical politics, I do not think they would saddle the established church on Wales again—they would lose too many votes by it.

Ulster Overshadows Wales. All these things combine to take the fire out of the Welsh church debate. It's an interlude anyway—a mere stopgap between the army plot, the next Lloyd George budget, plural voting, and similar absorbing matters. Nobody is interested in Welsh curates when there's the Ulster conspiracy waiting to be talked about. Nobody, that is to say, except the bishop and the two vicars in the peers' gallery. However, the thing's got to be done, so let's get along with it. And it's a mighty good debate at that, because the two protagonists, Lord Robert Cecil and Sir John Simon, are master swordsmen and each has a foe worthy of his steel.

Lord Robert is against the bill, of course. The Cecils are very ecclesiastical, for these secular days. Having profited by the spoils of the church centuries ago, they are resolved that nobody shall profit by the spoils of the church again. Once is enough—for the Cecils. If Lord Robert had lived in Henry the Eighth's time, he would have been a bishop. If he had lived in William the Conqueror's time, he would have been an abbot with a taste for building cathedrals. This pale, ascetic face of his, this austerity of manner, this theological fervor of disputation, sit better on a mediæval monk than on a Tory barrister practising mostly before parliamentary committees.

However, as it was not his good fortune to organize a crusade for the recovery of the Holy Sepulchre, he must seek contentment with saving the Welsh church—an he can.

The Cecils have managed to keep their brains in their heads for over four hundred years. The process of selection has not caused them to run entirely to legs and nose. This has been the fate of many noble families, whose skulls have thickened through the ages until at last there was no room for a mind to turn round in. The Cecils have been luckier than that. There are still minds in the Cecil family, notably Lord Hugh's and Lord Robert's, which compare favorably with their great Elizabethan ancestor. If the rest of the peerage had preserved its intellectual leadership as well as the Cecils, there would never so much talk about the House of Lords in these levelling days. I am bound to pay this compliment to Lord Robert—that no man, not even Sir John Simon, whom I consider the defeat caustic in the United Kingdom, could have made as much out of the case against disestablishment as Lord Robert Cecil.

Lord Robert plunges into court history to prove that all the leaders of Welsh nonconformity were former members—or vicars—of the Established church. Sir John Simon counters with the statement that these vicars became Nonconformists because religious; Sir John comes back with extemporaneous prayer, personal testimony, and such. The point the attorney-general is making is that the Welsh do not wish to throw off the Established church because of irreligion or materialism. They are among the most religious people in the world, and he claims to know, because he is the son of a Nonconformist parson himself, and has spent a large part of his boyhood in Welsh surroundings.

Would Give More Endowment. Lord Robert surmises that the function of an Established church is to carry the nation by its momentum over slack periods, over intervals of spiritual depression; Sir John surmises, on the other hand, that the English church in Ireland has done much better work since it was disestablished in 1869, and that statistics will show it. Lord Robert says that what is wanted is not disestablishment, but concurrent endowment. He points to the central reserve funds of every great Nonconformist body, is founding, and suggests that the state, instead of taking away from her Established church, contribute to the endowments the dissenters are piling up for themselves. He is even willing that the Nonconformist heads of the dissenting churches, should have equal rank with the Established church bishops in a reconstituted second chamber. One way and another, he is strong on conciliation, but not to the extent of sharing the endowments of the Established church with outside agencies, compelling as it is, does not draw him that far.

Getting away from historical arguments and doctrinal points almost metaphysical in their fineness, Lord Robert and Sir John come to modern instances. "You propose," says Lord Robert, "to inflict an injustice on an English institution in Wales by means of Scotch and Irish votes." "You cannot," says Sir John, "meet the national aspiration of Wales for spiritual freedom with the statement that Wales consists of four dioceses in the English ecclesiastical province of Canterbury."

Coming down to cases, Lord Robert has a letter from a Methodist preacher in Wales, evidently high church, who says that disestablishment will be a curse. The noble lord is not at liberty to quote the name. Strangely enough, Sir John has a letter on the same point from a vicar in Wales, who says that disestablishment will be a message of peace to a distracted country. Sir John is not at liberty to quote the vicar's name. My own idea is that the Methodist preacher was a Tory and that the Welsh vicar was a Liberal, but as I know that clergymen are never influenced by party politics, I do not see how they came to get their wires crossed so badly. Neither did Lord Robert or Sir John explain.

Sounds Like Ottawa. Lord Robert makes some play with a petition against disestablishment signed by one hundred and three thousand Welsh nonconformists. He dwells on its bona fides and says it is not like certain Liberal petitions in Wales, which secured signatures by telling the old people that Lloyd George would take away their old age pensions if they didn't sign. But Sir John doesn't seem to think much of the petition, hints that most of the signers are under Conservative pressure, and asks what a hundred and three thousand are anyhow, compared with a total population of two millions and a half. These latter arguments may not have the breadth and reach I look for in Lord Robert and Sir John, but they sound like Ottawa and make me feel at home.

And so the debate wags on. Sir Alfred Mond takes a fling at the established church in general as Henry the Eighth's divorce court. Keir Hardie announces why the Labor party in the House of Commons will vote for disestablishment—because it makes for democracy by removing a privileged institution, because it will clear the way for social reforms, because the power of Christianity will be increased by putting all churches on a basis of equality, because it will facilitate church unity. Walker Long, good honest Tory squire, wants to know why kill the church now because it was slack on the job in the eighteenth century. But all this sawdust the house has heard from Mr. Walter Long before. He gives it a practical touch, however, a more cunning touch than you might give him credit for, when he suggests that the salary of the rector is a sort of minimum wage standard, its tendency being to keep the pay up all round. This touch is calculated to rouse the self-interest of the nonconformist clergy, who are a little anxious as anybody else to subsist on farm laborer's wages. The disestablishment bill takes good care of the bishops, canons, deans, rectors, vicars, and the other incumbents of church livings, but of the curates, the faithful, industrious, and over-burdened curates, the working class of the church, as Keir Hardie calls them, the bill takes no care at all. If the lords want to do a real act of kindness they will forget the bishops for a while and look after the curates, when the bill is under amendment.

But it is a just bill on the whole, and David Lloyd George can stand being called Henry the Eighth if he does his Welsh fellow-countrymen a good turn. But the bishop and the two vicars in the peers' gallery think poorly of it. I can see wrath and dismay written on their countenances.

BOYS FORM LEAGUE.

At Meeting at Y. M. C. A. Organize for Baseball; Age Limit Put at 15.

A meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening for the purpose of organizing a baseball club in connection with the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., when the following officers were elected: President, Howard Watson (for the Y. M. C. A. juniors); Arthur Dowell (Y. M. C. A. employed boys); Douglas Scott (Metropolitan Sunday school); D. Hughes (Corrig college); D. Donaldson (Oxford Wharf club); Morris Humber (Ritchie club). Mr. Bissell was appointed president of the league, and Douglas Scott secretary. The age limit of boys to be admitted to membership is to be 15 years and under, and the league will be open to any club in the city. Games will be played on Saturdays and Sundays from May 16 to July 1, the field to be announced prior to each match. It was decided that a fee of $1 would be charged each member of the club, the proceeds to be used in buying a medal for the winning team. Entries should be made with Mr. Bissell, of the Y. M. C. A., by Thursday, May 14.

Let me talk to you about Anaemia

Our blood is composed of red and white corpuscles—the red to nourish the body, the white to fight disease. In Anæmia, the red corpuscles are more or less deficient. Thus the blood cannot properly sustain and nourish the body. The eyes become dull, the face white, and a feeling of intense weariness pervades the whole system. There is nothing so effective in Anæmia as 'Wincarnis.' Because 'Wincarnis' floods the body with new, rich, red blood, which gives a sparkle to the eyes, brings the roses into the cheeks, and gives new vigour, new vitality and new life to the whole body. SMOKE BELLEW

By Jack London

1.--The Taste of the Meat

(Copyright.)

Editorial Note.—This is the first of a series of red-blooded stories of the White North, in which Jack London "prints the thunder." The character of "Smoke" Bellew, at first a tenderfoot and then a "sour dough"—and a match for the best of them—appears in all the stories. And, too, there's a girl—so that love and adventure go side by side in the series. Naturally, you'll not want to miss a single "Smoke" Bellew story, so be sure that the Times is left at your house regularly every day.]

In the beginning he was Christopher Bellew. By the time he was at college he had become Chris Bellew. Later, in the Bohemian crowd of San Francisco, he was called Kit Bellew. And in the end he was known by no other name than Smoke Bellew. Nor would it have happened had he not had a fond mother and an iron uncle, and had he not received a letter from Gillet Bellamy.

"I have just seen a copy of The Billow," Gillet wrote from Paris. "Of course O'Hara will succeed with it. But he's missing some tricks." Here followed details in the improvement of the budding society weekly. "Go down and see him. Let him think they're your own suggestions. Above all, don't forget the musical and art criticisms. Another thing, tell him to kick around and get some gink to turn out a live serial, and to put into it the real romance and glamor and color of San Francisco."

And down to the office of The Billow went Kit Bellew faithfully to instruct O'Hara. O'Hara listened. O'Hara agreed. O'Hara fired the dub who wrote criticisms. Further, when O'Hara wanted anything, no friend could deny him. Before Kit Bellew could escape from the office, he had become an associate editor, had agreed to write weekly columns of criticism till some decent pen was found, and had pledged himself to write a weekly instalment of ten thousand words on the San Francisco serial—and all this without pay. The Billow wasn't paying yet, O'Hara explained; and just as convincingly had he expounded that there was only one man in San Francisco capable of writing the serial and that man was Kit Bellew.

And thereat had begun his servitude to O'Hara and the insatiable columns of The Billow. Luckily for Kit, he had his own income. Small it was, compared with some, yet it was large enough to enable him to belong to several clubs and maintain a studio in the Latin quarter. Yet he was always broke, for The Billow, in perennial distress, absorbed his cash as well as his brains. There were the illustrators, who periodically refused to illustrate; the printers, who periodically refused to print; and the office boy, who frequently refused to officiate. At such times O'Hara looked at Kit, and Kit did the rest.

When the steamship Excelsior arrived from Alaska, bringing the news of the Klondike strike that set the country mad, Kit made a purely frivolous proposition.

"Look here, O'Hara," he said. "This gold rush is going to be big—the days of '49 over again. Suppose I cover it for The Billow? I'll pay my own expenses." O'Hara shook his head. "Can't spare you from the office, Kit. Then there's that serial."

The next Kit heard of the Klondike was when he dropped into the club that afternoon and encountered his uncle.

"Hello, avuncular relative," Kit greeted. "Won't you join me?" He ordered a cocktail, but the uncle glanced with irritated disapproval at the cocktail and on to his nephew's face.

John Bellew came of the old hard and hardy stock that had crossed the plains by ox-team in the fifties, and in him was this same hardness and the hardness of a childhood spent in the conquering of a new land. "You're not living right, Christopher. I'm ashamed of you."

"Primmose path, eh?" Kit chuckled. "I wish it were the primmose path. But that's all out. I have no time." "Then what is it?"

John Bellew snorted his disgust. "I'm glad your father didn't live to see you in all the glory of your gracelessness," he said. "Your father was a man, every inch of him. I think he'd have whaled all this musical and artistic foolery out of you." "Alas! these degenerate days," Kit sighed.

The older man looked at his nephew with unconcealed disgust. "Well, I'm going to take another one of those what you call masculine vacations. Suppose I asked you to come along? Hal and Robert are going in to Klondike, and I'm going to see them across the pass and down to the lakes, then return."

"He got no further, for the young man had sprung forward and grasped his hand. 'My preserver!'"

John Bellew was immediately suspicious. He had not dreamed the invitation would be accepted.

"When do we start?" "It will be a hard trip. You'll be in the way."

"No, I won't. I'll work." "Each man has to take a year's supplies in with him. There'll be such a jam the Indian packers won't be able to handle it. Hal and Robert will have to pack their outfits across themselves. That's what I'm going along for—to help them pack. If you come you'll have to do the same."

"When do we start?" "To-morrow."

"You needn't take it to yourself that your lecture has done it," Kit said, starting. "I just had to get away somewhere, anywhere, from O'Hara."

Kit Bellew landed through the madness of the Dyea beach, congested with the thousand-pound outfits of thousands of men. This immense mass of luggage and food, flung ashore in mountains by the steamers, was being carried slowly to the Dyea valley affix across Chilkoot. It was a portage of twenty-eight miles, and could be accomplished only on the backs of men.

Tenderest of the tenderfeet was Kit. Like many hundreds of others, he carried a big revolver swung on a cart-strap. Leaving his party on the beach to wait for the putting ashore of the freight, he strolled up the beach toward the old trading-post. A strapping, six-foot Indian passed him, carrying an unusually large pack. Kit swung in behind, admiring the splendid calves of the man, and the grace and ease with which he moved along under his burden. The Indian dropped his pack on the scales in front of the post, and Kit joined the group of admiring gold-rushers who surrounded him. The pack weighed one hundred and twenty-five pounds, which fact was uttered back and forth in tones of awe.

"Going to Lake Linderman with it, old man?" Kit asked.

The Indian, swelling with pride, grunted an affirmative.

Here Kit slid out of the conversation. A young woman, standing in the doorway, had caught his eye. Unlike other women landing from the steamers, she was neither short-skirted nor bloomer-clad. She was dressed as any woman travelling anywhere would be dressed.

The bright beauty and color of her oval face held him, and he looked overlong—looked till she resented, and her own eyes, long lashed and dark, met his in cool survey. From his face they travelled in evident amusement down to the big revolver at his thigh. Then her eyes came back to his, and in them was amused contempt. She turned to the man beside her and indicated Kit. The man glanced him over with the same amused contempt.

"Chekako," the girl said.

The man, who looked like a tramp in his cheap overalls and dilapidated woolen jacket, grinned dryly, and Kit felt withered, though he knew not why. But anyway she was an unusually pretty girl, he decided, as the two moved off.

"Did you see that man with the girl?" Kit's neighbor asked him excitedly. "Know who he is?"

Kit shook his head.

"Cariboo Charley. He was just pointed out to me. He struck it big on Klondike. Old-timer. Been on the Yukon a dozen years. He's just come out."

"What does 'chekako' mean?" Kit asked.

"You're one; I'm one," was the answer. "Tenderfoot."

Kit's first pack was a success. Up to Finnegan's Crossing they had managed to get Indians to carry the twenty-five-hundred-pound outfit. From that point their own backs must do the work. They planned to move forward at the rate of a mile a day. It looked easy—on paper.

Since John Bellew was to stay in the camp and do the cooking, he would be unable to make more than an occasional pack; so to each of the three young men fell the task of carrying eight hundred pounds one mile each day. If they made fifty-pound packs, it meant a daily walk of sixteen miles loaded and of fifteen miles light. "Because we don't back-trip the last time," Kit explained the pleasant discovery. Eighty-pound packs meant nineteen miles travel each day; and hundred-pound packs meant only fifteen miles.

"I don't like walking," said Kit. "Therefore I shall carry one hundred pounds." He caught the grin of incredulity on his uncle's face, and added hastily: "Of course I shall work up to it. I'll start with fifty."

He did, and ambled gaily along the trail. He dropped the sack at the next campsite and ambled back. It was easier than he had thought. But two miles had rubbed off the velvet of his strength and exposed the underlying softness. His second pack was sixty-five pounds. It was more difficult, and he no longer ambled. Several times, following the custom of all packers, he sat down on the ground, resting the pack behind him on a rock or stump. With the third pack he became bold. He fastened the straps to a ninety-five-pound sack of beans and started. At the end of a hundred yards he felt that he must collapse. He sat down and mopped his face.

"Short hauls and short rests," he muttered. "That's the trick."

Sometimes he did not make a hundred yards, and each time he struggled to his feet for another short haul the pack became undeniably heavier. He panted for breath, and the sweat streamed from him. Before he had covered a quarter of a mile he stripped off his woolen shirt and hung it on a tree. A little later he discarded his hat. At the end of half a mile he decided he was finished. As he sat and panted, his gaze fell upon the big revolver and the heavy cartridge-belt.

"Ten pounds of junk!" he sneered, as he unbuckled it.

He did not bother to hang it on a tree, but flung it into the underbrush. His short hauls decreased. At times a hundred feet was all he could stagger, and then the ominous pounding of his heart against the eardrums and the sickening totteriness of his knees compelled him to rest. And his rests grew longer. But his mind was busy. It was a 28-mile portage, which represented as many days, and this by all accounts was the easiest part of it.

"Wait till you get to Chilkoot," others heard of it, and many were the occasions when he climbed with hands as well as feet. But when he reached the crest of the divide in the thick of a driving snow-squall, it was in the company of his Indians, and his secret pride was that he had come through with them and never squeaked and never lagged.

When he had paid off the Indians and seen them depart, a stormy darkness was falling, and he was left alone, a thousand feet above timber-line, on the backbone of a mountain. Wet to the waist, famished and exhausted, he would have given a year's income for a fire and a cup of coffee. Instead, he ate half a dozen cold flapjacks and crawled into the folds of the party unrolled tent.

In the morning, stiff from his labors and numb with the frost, he rolled out of the canvas, ate a couple of pounds of uncooked bacon, buckled the straps on a hundred pounds and went down the rocky way. Several hundred yards beneath, the trail led across a small glacier and down to Crater Lake. Other men packed across the glacier. All that day he dropped his packs at the glacier's upper edge, and by virtue of the shortness of the pack, he put his straps on one hundred and fifty pounds each load. His astonishment at being able to do it never abated.

Unwashed, unwarmed, his clothing wet with sweat, he slept another night in the canvas.

In the early morning he spread a tarpaulin on the ice, loaded it with three-quarters of a ton, and started to pull. Where the pitch of the glacier accelerated, his load likewise accelerated, overran him, scooped him in on top, and ran away with him.

A hundred packers, bending under their loads, stopped to watch him. He yelled frantic warnings, and those in his path stumbled.

He had become a work animal. He fell asleep over his food, and his sleep was heavy and beastly, save when he was aroused, screaming with agony, by the cramps in his legs. Every part of him ached. He tramped on raw blisters. When they had moved the outfit across the foot-logs at the mouth of the canyon, they made a change in their plans. Word had come across the pass that at Lake Linderman the last available trees for building boats were being cut. The two cousins, with tools, whipsaw, blankets and grub on their backs, went on, leaving Kit and his uncle to hustle along the outfit. John Bellew now shared the cooking with Kit, and both packed shoulder to shoulder. Time was flying, and on the peaks the first snow was falling. To be caught on the wrong side of the pass meant a delay of nearly a year.

The older man put his iron pack under a hundred pounds. Kit was shocked, but he gritted his teeth and fastened his own straps to a hundred pounds. It hurt, but he had learned the knack, and his body, purged of all softness and fat, was beginning to harden up with lean and bitter muscle.

Also, he observed and devised. He took note of the head-straps worn by the Indians and manufactured one for himself which he used in addition to the shoulder-straps. It made things easier, so that he began the practice of piling any light, cumbersome piece of luggage on top. Thus he was soon able to band along with a hundred pounds in the straps, fifteen or twenty more lying loosely on top the pack and against his neck, an ax or a pair of ears in one hand, and in the other the steaming cooking-pails of the camp.

But work as they would, the toll increased. The trail grew more rugged; their packs grew heavier; and each day saw the snow-line dropping down the mountains, while freight jumped to told him as they rested and talked. "where you climb with hands and feet. Wait till you hit the Canyon. You'll have to cross a raging torrent on the boat-planks."

John Bellew grew anxious. Capturing a bunch of Indians back-tripping from Lake Linderman, he persuaded them to put their straps on the outfit. They charged thirty cents a pound to carry it to the summit of Chilkoot, and it nearly broke him. As it was, some four hundred pounds of clothes-packs and camp outfit was not handled. He remained behind to move it along, despatching Kit with the Indians. At the summit Kit was to remain, slowly moving his ton until overtaken by the four hundred pounds with which his uncle guaranteed to catch him.

Kit plodded along the trail with his Indian packers. At the end of a quarter of a mile he desired to rest. But the Indians kept on. He stayed with them, and kept his place in the line. At the half-mile he was convinced that he was incapable of another step, yet he gritted his teeth, kept his place, and at the end of the mile was amazed that he was still alive.

Then, in some strange way, came the thing called second wind, and the next mile was easier than the first. The third mile nearly killed him, but though half delirious with pain and fatigue, he never whimpered. And then when he felt he must surely faint, came the rest. Instead of sitting in the straps, as was the custom of the white packers, the Indians slipped out of the shoulder and head straps, and lay at ease, talking and smoking.

A full hour passed before they made another stop. To Kit's surprise, he found himself a fresh man, and "long hauls and long rests" became his newest motto.

The pitch of Chilkoot was all he had

Below, on the lower edge of the glacier, was pitched a small tent, which seemed leaping toward him, so rapidly did it grow larger. He left the beaten track where the packers' trail averted to the left, and struck a patch of fresh snow. This arose about him in frosty smoke, while it reduced his speed. WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belleville, N.S., Canada.—"I doctored for ten years for female troubles and did not get well. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I write now to tell you that I am cured. You can publish my letter as a testimonial."

Another Woman Recovers. Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, No. 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from women's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ed out his frozen shoes, then boiled coffee and fried bacon. It was a chilly, miserable meal. As soon as it was finished, they strapped their blankets. As John Bellew turned to lead the way toward the Chilkoot Trail, Kit held out his hand.

"Good-by, Avuncular," he said. John Bellew looked at him and swore in his surprise.

"But what are you going to do?" Kit waved his hand in a general direction northward over the storm-lashed lake. "What's the good of turning back after getting this far?" he asked. "Besides, I've got my taste of meat, and I like it. I'm going on."

"You're broke," protested John Bellew. "You have no outfit."

"I've got a job. Behold your nephew, Christopher Smoke Bellew! He's got a job. He's a gentleman's man. He's got a job at a hundred and fifty per month and grub. He's going down to Dawson with a couple of dudes and another gentleman's man—camp-cook, boatman and general all-round hustler. Good-by."

But John Bellew was dazed, and could only mutter, "I don't understand."

"They say the bald-face grizzlies are thick in the Yukon Basin," Kit explained. "Well, I've got only one suit of underclothes, and I'm going after the bear-meat, that's all."

The next "Smoke Bellew" story, entitled "The New Gentleman's Man," will appear in this paper next Saturday. And the adventures that befall "Smoke" in the role of a gentleman's man are exciting in the extreme. The story reveals Jack London—who knows the Frozen North intimately—at his best.

TO-DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

On this date in 1763 Pontiac, the famous chief of the Ottawa Indians, began his memorable blockade of Detroit, then a Canadian frontier post. On May 9, 1763, Pontiac and his braves appeared before the fort and asked for a council in the fort, so that the Indians might, at a given signal, begin a general massacre. A squaw revealed the scheme to Major Gladwin, the commandant, and he permitted the council but so disposed the garrison as to intimidate Pontiac. Later in the month about a hundred men under Lieut. Cuyler, ordered by the Montreal authorities to reinforce the Detroit garrison, were attacked by the redskins and were forced to surrender. Their captors compelled them to navigate their twenty batteaux up the Detroit river to Hog Island, where they were massacred. The following month the Indians, by the strategy of a game of lacrosse, obtained entrance to the fort at Michilimackinac and butchered the garrison. In July a fleet of gunboats and 300 men under Capt. Dalzell managed to reach Detroit, and marched against Pontiac. The chief heard of the attack and formed an ambush at Bloody Bridge, where the British were defeated and Dalzell and a score of others killed. Pontiac remained before Detroit until May of 1864, when Colonel Bradstreet forced him to retreat. Pontiac, who was the son of either a Nipissing or a Miami father, was long the most powerful of Indian leaders. The siege of Detroit was part of a vast conspiracy he had formed against the English in Canada and the American colonies. In 1746 Pontiac had assisted in the defence of Detroit by the French against the combined northern tribes under Mackinac. In 1760 Pontiac made peace with Major Rogers, who had been sent by General Amherst at Mont-ross to take possession of the Michigan posts, but within a year he was plotting against the British.

HUMAN PROCESSION

Sir James Matthew Barrie, the great novelist and playwright, who has won millions of admirers and friends on this side of the Atlantic through Maude Adams' interpretations of his plays, will pass his fifty-fourth milestone to-day. Sir Matthew, as he is called by most of his friends, is pictured as the gentlest, shyest and most retiring of men, who shrinks from all publicity. Few modern writers, with the possible exception of the late Joel Chandler Harris, creator of "Uncle Remus," have been so averse to the limelight as the celebrated Scotchman. There is another side to Barrie's character, however, and that part of him is as adventurous as a Richard Harding Davis hero. Barrie's intimates have been largely men of action, and in Sir Ernest Shackleton, the late Capt. Scott and other adventurers he found kindred souls. At heart the shy, sad-faced novelist is a soldier of fortune, with a tremendous curiosity regarding the unmapped and the unknown. In "Peter Pan" he gave a name to this mysterious land where he wanders in fancy, "Never-Never Land."

SCRAP BOOK

Ministers All Over America Will Observe "Mothers' Day."

explorer confided his son, Peter, to Barrie's care. It has been asserted that Barrie was the anonymous donor of a considerable portion of the fund for Sir Ernest Shackleton's antarctic expedition.

George Meredith was the literary patron of Sir James, but his allegiance is divided by his great admiration for Robert Louis Stevenson, a novelist who not only wrote about strange lands, but lived in them. Barrie was born in Kirriemuir, Scotland, and was educated at Edinburgh university. In his youth he was a journalist and entertained an ambition to become a critic. He was twenty-seven when his first book, "Better Dead," was published. The following year he published three volumes, including "When a Man's Single," a story of his struggles as a newspaper writer. "A Window in Thrums," now a quarter of a century old, established his reputation and succeeding novels and plays have won for him wealth, honor and title.

The one great adventure of Barrie's life was when, with only a few shillings in his pocket, he left his native Scotland to try his fortunes in the great city of London. There were several lean years awaiting him, when he struggled daily with poverty and privation, but by the time he was thirty he had triumphed over obstacles and won recognition for his genius—won it solely by his genius, for he was too modest to push himself forward or "toot his own horn."

Viscount Bryce of Dechmont, which is the new title of that great diplomat and author who formerly represented the British king at the court of Uncle Sam, was born in Belfast seventy-six years ago to-morrow. Probably no other ambassador sent to Washington ever gained such widespread popularity among the American people as the Rt. Hon. James Bryce. He was a real diplomat, and he proved it on many occasions by delivering addresses dealing with men or incidents of the American revolution in a manner which was highly pleasing to both the British and American people—an oratorical triumph not without difficulties.

FIRST THINGS

The first parliament of the Australian Commonwealth was convened thirteen years ago to-day, May 9, 1901, the union of the six original Australian colonies, New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia and Tasmania having been proclaimed on the first day of that year. The Australian parliament, which has been called "the most progressive in the world," has initiated many measures of reform at which older countries would stand aghast. The Upper House of the Australian parliament consists of thirty-six members, six for each state. Australian senators are chosen for six years, instead of for life, as in Canada. The House of Representatives consists of seventy-five members, elected for three years. Women are not eligible to membership in either branch, although the fair sex votes in all elections in Australia. The power of conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond any one state is vested in the Australian parliament. Parliament now meets at Melbourne, but a new federal capital is in process of construction at Yass Canberra.

FOR STUDENTS—YOUNG AND OLD A COMPLETE ATLAS FOR TIMES READERS

The Times has received from the printers a consignment of the Canadian Home and Office Atlas of the World. One copy of which can be procured by any subscriber to the Times on presentation of the coupon printed below and payment of $1.25. This Atlas sells elsewhere for over double that price and is procurable in Victoria only through the Times. This is cost price to the Times in large quantities, our object being to provide readers of the Times with a book that they need.

The Atlas contains a new series of maps compiled from Government surveys and exhibiting the latest results of geographical research. The book contains 1262 pages and is divided in four sections, as follows:

- First Section, pages 1 to 62—Maps of Canada, the British Empire and all parts of the world; 62 full pages of beautiful and accurate maps.
- Second Section, pages 1 to 40—Population figures of all cities and towns of Canada, principal cities of the world and a descriptive gazetteer of the principal cities of the world.
- Third Section, pages 1 to 8—The World in half-tone.
- Fourth Section, pages 1 to 16—Panama and the Canal.

The Times offers it only to subscribers and readers who present this coupon at the Times office, where the book can be inspected. Sent by parcel post at same price.

DISCUSS MILITANCY FOR THIS PROVINCE

Many Members of Political Equality League Against It to Debate Again

Some condemnation of the apparent lack of interest among the members in pushing forward the educational work of the society was mingled with numerous expressions in favor of non-militancy in local methods at the meeting of the Political Equality League last evening in the Y. W. C. A. rest rooms. The discussion on the main issue of the evening: "Whether or not the time had arrived for the adoption of militant methods in British Columbia," became so keen that much of the regular business of the meeting had to be deferred to an adjourned annual meeting of the league to be held next Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30, when officers for the ensuing year will be elected, and other business transacted, including further debate of the question of militancy.

WELL KNOWN VICTORIAN AND A LEADING GEOLOGIST PASSES AWAY AT UCLUELET

A painful shock came to hundreds of citizens who know W. J. Sutton, when the news came from Ucluelet, on the west coast, that he had died there suddenly this morning. There is just the brief announcement so far, and nothing has been learned further.

OUTSIDER WON HANDICAP

London, May 9.—The Kempton Great Park Jubilee Handicap was won today by Lord Cadogan's "Curragh"; J. B. Joel's "Blue Stone" was second and George Edward's "Drinmore" was third.

THEATRE ACTION TRIED

Opera House Company's Defence is Demand for Proof of W. H. Raymond's Authority.

Trial of the first of the mechanics' lien actions in connection with the construction of the Royal Victoria theatre was begun before Judge Lampan this morning, an imposing array of counsel representing the various interests involved. The Nepean, McKenny company, which did the electrical work, was the plaintiff represented by F. A. McDiarmid, while the defendants, Pinner & McLeellan were represented by D. S. Tait, the Opera House company by L. Crease, K. C., the mortgagee, E. B. Hamilton, by M. B. Jackson, and the two debenture-holders, F. B. Pemberton and Andrew Wright, by L. Crease, K. C.

The plaintiff's claim was originally for $7,190, but Pinner and McLeellan protested items amounting to $4,120, for which payment had been made and this was admitted. No defence was put in by Pinner and McLeellan for the remaining $3,070, which amounts to an admission of liability. An item of $417 for extras is contested by the Opera House company as they were ordered by W. H. Raymond. The Opera House company demands that Mr. McDiarmid prove Raymond's authority to act for the directors. Raymond is not in Canada at present.

LOCAL NEWS

Cookery Course Concludes.—The course in cookery lessons for the Methosin Women's Institute, by Miss Livingstone, concludes this week, and the lecturers returned to Colwood to resume her work there.

Architect Pays Visit.—Architect Horwood paid a visit to Victoria during the past week to settle a number of details which have arisen in connection with the superstructure of the Hudson's Bay building. Work is progressing favorably.

Made Reappearance.—Bailey Van Dusen, who earned attention by his escape from the city lock-up recently, made his weekly appearance in the police court this morning from a provincial jail where he is serving a three-month sentence for jail-break. The commission in Minneapolis is still sitting, taking the evidence in his case, and it is likely to be some time before it is heard in the local courts.

Given Another Chance.—James Murphy has only been out of jail for a few days after a long term, but he appeared in the dock of the police court again this morning for begging on Government street, where he was arrested by Constable Clark. To the magistrate he pleaded for leniency, so that he might be allowed to get a job at the powder works at James Island. He was told to get out and never show his face inside the police court again. He departed joyfully.

Awards for Papers.—The council of the Institution of Civil Engineers has made the following awards for papers read and discussed during the session: F. W. Cowie, Montreal; a George Stephenson gold medal to F. E. Wentworth-Sheldis, Southampton; Watt gold medals to Thos. Clarkson, Chelmsford and Henry Fowler, Derby, and Telford premiums to Professor E. G. Coker, London; W. A. Scoobe, London; W. D'Almeida Selton, London.

Fire at Dyeworks.—A fire which might easily have been attended with very serious consequences broke out at Paul's Dyeworks, Gladstone street, early this morning. Fire Chief Davis started the cause of the blaze which started while the building was empty. A passerby saw the first flames and communicated with the fire department. In spite of a record run to the building, however, the rear part of the frame structure was strongly ablaze by the time the machines reached there, and some difficulty was experienced in getting the flames under control. Some danger also lay in the Pictures of Creation.—The Photo Drama of Creation, part one, is to be exhibited to-morrow in the Empress theatre at 10:30 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. The management would like as many as possible to attend in the morning. No children under fifteen will be admitted, the seating capacity of the theatre being limited. Seats will be free, no collection will be taken, the International Bible Students' association bearing expenses.

To Address Y. W. C. A.—Miss McGregor, organizer of the Women's Missionary Society for the Presbyterian church in western Canada, will arrive at 2:30 o'clock, from her parents' residence, 1259 Fairfield road. The Rev. John G. Inkster will officiate. Interment Ross Bay cemetery.

Tenders Were Opened.—Nine tenders were received for the eight-mile section of the sewerage in Esquimalt for which the contract will be let on Monday evening. The bids were opened at a special meeting of the council last evening and as the tenders were itemized they were referred to the engineer for his report. Six local firms and three from Vancouver applied for the work.

Allowed Bail.—J. Gordon Grant, who was committed for trial on three charges, obtained bail from Judge Lampan this morning, the same two securities of $500 each being accepted for his appearance. He will elect as to his manner of trial on Monday. R. C. Lowe is his counsel.

DISCUSS THE PLACE OF RACES AT FAIR

Directors of Association Present Case to Council; Rev. J. G. Inkster Speaks

When the members of the city council met yesterday afternoon to discuss with the officials of the B. C. Agricultural association the merits of the case for and against horse-racing at the fair, all the members but one were present.

At the outset Mayor Stewart stated the gist of the case presented to him the day before by Reeve Oliver on behalf of Oak Bay, to the effect that that council will deal only with the city council in receiving or granting applications for permits to hold racing within that municipality at the Willows.

to be done in every other large fair city.
Three years ago, Dr. Tolmie said, there had no betting allowed at the races at the fair, and the consequence had been a deficit, which had to be met by the city.

Mr. Sangster added to this that he had not yet to hear of any complaints from Oak Bay or the city as to the way the fairs were conducted.

At the outset Mayor Stewart stated the gist of the case presented to him the day before by Reeve Oliver on behalf of Oak Bay, to the effect that that council will deal only with the city council in receiving or granting applications for permits to hold racing within that municipality at the Willows.

OTHER EMPLOYERS AND WHO TRACED IT TO THEIR BETTING AT THE WILLOWS.

For Ald. Cuthbert's benefit, Ald. Bell Bell defined professional gambling as the act of a man who was engaged in professionally "staking" the public.

From A. W. Bell, for many years past manager of the Winnipeg fair: "Racing has always been the bulwark of the Winnipeg exhibition, and the best and cheapest of our attractions, as the horsemen pay in entries, etc., ninety per cent. of the purses.

OWNERS PROTEST THAT ROADWAY IS FAILURE

Aldermen Admit Vancouver Street Has Never Been Successful

Another deputation of property-owners who are not satisfied with the work given them by the city, and who are refusing to pay their assessments until some understanding is come to, was heard by the streets committee yesterday afternoon. These represented Vancouver street, between Humboldt and the park. A date had been set for them to be heard by the special committee which is dealing with these matters on Wednesday next, but some of the owners had been informed that the conference was to be held yesterday, and as they were in attendance the committee decided to hear them then and there.

This street was about the very first to be done as a work of local improvement and has always been looked upon as an unsuccessful attempt at laying a macadam roadway. Former members of the council were quoted by owners yesterday as having stated that they could not pass the work as a properly-executed one. In former years there were some negotiations looking towards the laying of an asphalt pavement, but these never ended in anything so far as the city was concerned, and the matter has gone dragging on until the threat to sell the properties for the unpaid assessments led the owners to press their case upon the council once more.

There were some fifteen or twenty of the owners present, and their case was stated by W. W. Berridge, Robert Matheson and Charles I. Clegg. It was pointed out to the committee that the roadway had never been a good one, that it was so acknowledged by civic officials and by aldermen, and that it seemed to be to ask people to pay assessments, and he submitted a petition to their petition, a macadam roadway. Aid. Cuthbert admitted that the macadam construction was a mass of loose rock and that the street had never been any good.

Mr. Clegg reminded the committee that two years ago the council had promised to lay an asphalt surface on the street, but had never made any attempt to carry out that promise. The city was supposed to keep the street in good condition but had never done that either. The sole object seemed to be to make the owners pay assessments, and he submitted a petition to their petition, a macadam roadway. Aid. Cuthbert admitted that the macadam construction was a mass of loose rock and that the street had never been any good.

City Engineer Rust said it was a cheap road in the first place and the people were only paying for what they got.

Aid. Todd remarked that this seemed to be a parallel case to Pemberton road, where an arrangement has been come to with the owners to lay an asphalt surface, with the cost divided half and half, and he asked whether it could not be treated in the same way. Mr. Rust replied that there was not as much macadam on the street as there was on Pemberton road, and he did not think an asphalt surface could be put on as the street stands. He thought he could give the people a good street, however, by re-surfacing it with macadam. Mr. Rust mentioned to some of the aldermen who had not heard of any arrangement with the Pemberton road owners that an agreement was signed in 1912 by which the asphalt surface was to be put on at a cost of one dollar a yard, to be paid for half and half, the city to pay any excess over one dollar a yard in addition to its half and the owners to pay the interest on that excess. It was equally news to those who knew of the agreement that nothing has ever been done to carry it out.

Aid. McNeill stated to the deputation that while it had to be admitted that the city did not carry out the by-law as it should have done, and did not give them a good street, yet the deputation had been sold and one year's interest paid on them, so that the owners were out of court so far as any objection was concerned.

"Was not our protest in before the first year's interest was paid?" asked Mr. Clegg.

The chairman of finance committee replied that a protest to the council was not one that would be of any avail. The only way the owners could have protested for the protest to have any force was through a legal action.

"Then if that is so the city should have so informed us and not misled us," was Mr. Berridge's comment on this.

Mr. Matheson advised the committee to look up the report of the sub-committee which inspected the work, and which consisted of two members of the then council, A. M. Bannerman and A. G. Sargison, and the then city engineer, Angus Smith. He thought it would be found from this that this committee had refused to pass the road.

In view of what the city engineer had said he was asked to prepare a report as to the best means of improving the road and the cost, and to have it ready for next Friday, and with this the members of the deputation expressed themselves satisfied for the time being.

How to Neutralize Dangerous Stomach Acids

Few people besides physicians realize the importance of keeping the food contents of the stomach free from acid fermentation. Healthy normal digestion cannot take place while the delicate lining of the stomach is being inflamed and distended by acid and wind—the result of fermenting food in the stomach. To secure perfect digestion, fermentation must be stopped or prevented and the acid neutralized. For this purpose, physicians recommend getting a little bisulphated magnesia from the druggist and taking a teaspoonful in a little hot or cold water immediately after eating. They recommend bisulphated magnesia because it is pleasant to take, has no disagreeable after-effects and instantly stops fermentation, neutralizes the acid and neutralizes the sour acid, sweet and easily digested.

The regular use of bisulphated magnesia—be sure you get the bisulphated, as other kinds of magnesia are of little value—is an absolute guarantee of healthy, normal digestion, for it overcomes and prevents that acid condition which alone is the cause of trouble.
