IT is amazing that the Christian Religion, whose Characteristick is Love and Humility, should be so far debased, as to carry no other Marks than those of Cruelty and Pride. That Vows of Poverty should entitle Men to the Riches of the whole World; that Professions of Chastity should fill Countries with Uncleanness; that solitary Anchorites should engross the Pumps of the City; and that the Servant of Servants should become the King of Kings. But what Contradictions are not designing Priests capable of, when the Enlargement of their Power is in View? It was with this View that Auricular Confessions was introduced; that a new Hell of Purgatory was invented; and the Power of even creating their own God was blasphemously assumed. By these Arts came the Secrets of Families into the Hands of Priests; by these Arts they seized on the Purses of whole Nations; and by these Arts they arrived to be the Idols of the People, who were glad to part with their Estates, with their Liberties, and with their Sences too, to these spiritual Usurpers.

Not to mention the Follies of other Nations, our own Chronicles can inform us to what a Degree Bigottry had once prevailed, of which let this Instance suffice. * John Bale, an Author of unquestioned Fidelity, who was himself a Carmelite Friar, informs us in his Acts of English Votaries, that in the Year 1017. King Canute by the superstitious Counsel of Achelnotus then Archbishop of Canterbury, was prevailed upon to believe that Monks Bastards were his own Children, and that Fulbertus the Old Bishop of Carnote in France, was even then suckled by the Virgin Mary; nor did he stop here, but after having burdened this Land with the Payment of that Romish Tribute called Peter's Pence, he went to Winchester, where by the aforementioned Prelates Advice, he formally resigned his Regal Crown to an Image, constituting it then King of England.

Thus was a mighty King converted to be the Tool of his Priests, and thereby became the Darling of the Church, whose Practice then was, not only to feed upon the Spoils of the People, but even to make their Monarch a Prey to their Ambition. And in those Times a Prince acquired the Title of Good or Bad, not from his Conduct in the Secular Government of his Subjects, but according as he was either more or less a Promoter of the Grandeur of his Clergy. Thus Canute though an Usurper and a Tyrant could merit a Canonization, nization, whilst King John (from whom we receiv'd that great Security of our Liberties, the Statute of Magna Charta) meerly for not encouraging the Corruptions, and spiritual Tyranny of the Romish Church, was branded with the Name of Apostate, and forced at length by an usurping Priesthood to hold his Crown as tributary to the See of Rome. When our Kings were thus managed, it was no Wonder if our Laity following their Example, submitted their Necks to the same Priestly Yoke. A sufficient Evidence of which, we may collect from the Perusal of the ensuing Catalogue of religious Houses (as they then called them) whose Founders Names I have purposely omitted, because I would not willingly write what might be thought a Satyre upon so many Hundred Families.

That the debauched Part of our Clergy are longing after these Onions of Ægypt, and desiring this Papal Power er and Wealth, which sets them above the greatest Sovereigns, is beyond Contradiction plain. Else why have we been taught so many introductory Doctrines ; as first, that the Church is independant on the Crown ; that old Scaling-ladder of Priestcraft, by which Antichrist and his shaven Army have storm'd the Pallaces of all the Princes in Christendom. By the Model of Times past, we may learn how well our Laws, our Lives, and our Liberties would be secured to us, should this Doctrine so much contended for, be once established here ; we may guess, when the Church is exempted from Secular Authority, how well Villany, Rapine, Murder, and Treason, committed by Priests will be punished, when Priests are Judges, when Priests are Juries.

The trite and absurd Topick of the Divine Right of Succession, with which likewise our Ears have been so filled of late, is a Doctrine observed never to have

have been broached, but upon one of these two Accounts; either to maintain the Tyranny of a Bigotted Prince in Possession, or with a Design to introduce some Priest-rid Tool of a Pretender.

A Third Tenet also much inculcated within these few Years, is that of Passive Obedience without Reserve; a Doctrine preached in all slavish Countries, but never practiced in any; a Doctrine that of it self discovers its own baseness, since no good Prince can have Occasion for it. I would not be thought here to insinuate, that a Legal Submission to Princes is not a Christian Duty; but when our Pulpits shall ring with—
 † “ We ought not to take up Arms at any “ Time, in any Case, upon any Colour, or “ Pretension whatsoever: Not for the a- “ voiding of Scandal, not at the Instance

“ Power upon Earth, nor for the Main“ tenance of the Lives or Liberties either
 “ of our selves or others, nor for the De“ fence of Religion, nor for the Preserva“ tion of a Church or State; no nor yet,
 “ if that could be imagined possible, for “ the Salvation of a Soul, no not for the “ Redemption of the whole World. I say, when we hear such a Charge as this sounded from the Pulpit, surely all true Britons must take it as an Alarm to warn them of the approaching Danger of their Liberties.

These and such like pernicious Notions, which have been so industriously spread by many of the Clergy, and so greedily swallowed by the Multitude, were the Occasion of my collecting this concise Catalogue of Religious Houses; thereby if possible, to open the Eyes of deluded Protestants, by shewing them what vast Revenues they must part with, whenever these three absurd and dangerous Doctrines shall prevail; which, though they have been, by many of our Priests, advanced under the Name of Zeal for the Church; yet are no better at the Bottom, than Engines for the Introduction of Popery, Slavery, and Beggary, three inseparable Companions of Priestly Power.

For doth not Divine Indefeasible Hereditary Right set a Papist upon the Throne? Doth not Passive Obedience furnish the Prince with Power enough to impose his Religion? And lastly, doth not his Religion command him to make use of that Power, and resume all those Lands which are dedicated to pious Uses? And then may we resist? No! not for the Maintenance of the Lives or Liberties of our selves or others, nor for the Defence of Religion, nor for the Preservation of a Church or State, no! nor yet, if that could be imagined possible, for the Recovery of our Abby Lands. Alas! what then will become of the Landed Interest of our Country Gentlemen, when so many Hundred Houses (or rather Capital Messuages and Tenements, nements, to which so many Thousand Farms belong) shall be taken away from them ? What a pretty Figure will the Squire make, when the Church shall resume Eight or Ten Thousand Pounds a Year, and leave the poor sacrilegious Wretch (for so he will be then called) to live upon Three or Four Hundred, the only Estate perhaps, which his Ancestors could brag of before the Reformation ; and it will be a great Favour, if that too is not taken from him for his Arrears. It will be no great Comfort to him, at such a Time, to see the Trading Interest ruined, and the Funds seized upon for the Maintenance of those Dragoons, which shall be employed in keeping him steady to his Principles.

What ever vain Hopes some Men may build on the Bonâ Fide of a Popish Pretender, they may assure themselves that notwithstanding any Promise he shall make in Favour of their Interests, his Religion, to which he is already a

Bigot,

Bigot, will teach him that godly Maxim; that Faith is not to be kept with Hereticks. But were there no such Precept in his Church, yet how can these Men expect, that a Prince will ever deal sincerely with them, who knows, that they could never have espoused his Cause, but by breaking through the solemnest Ties, that human Wisdom could invent. But why should I dwell upon Arguments, when the Conduct both of the late King James and his pretended Son in their Exile, has sufficiently demonstrated to the World, that no Protestant can hope for any considerable Share in the Favour of a Court so enslaved to the Church of Rome. And if the Pretender will implicitly be governed by the Directions of a Pope, we need not doubt of his being strictly charged with that religious Duty of restoring the Abby Lands, which are too ample a Revenue, for the Papacy long to neglect, as will appear from the following Computation.

As

The P R E F A C E. xiii

As far as we can collect, the religious Houses in England and Wales, are in all to the Number of 1041. of these only 653 are of known Values, whilst there remains 388 of which we have no Estimate. The only fair Method of computing the Value of the latter, will be by considering the Proportion they bear to the former in Number. Common Arithmetick will inform us, that if 653 Houses were estimated at 171,314*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.* then 388 Houses may reasonably amount to the Sum of 101,792*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.*¹/₂ which added together, make 273,106*l.* 18*s.* 3*d.*¹/₂. Now one Penny in those Days was equivalent to a Shilling at present, as doth undoubtedly appear from the Observations that may be made upon the Proportion that Labourers Wages *

* The Wages of an Hay-maker in the Reign of Henry the 7th, was settled at one Penny, and in the Reign of Henry the 8th, never exceeded three-half-Pence, whereas Twelve-Pence now is there lowest daily Hire. Vid. Stat. 11. H. 7. and Stat. 6. H. 8. concerning Artificers.

the Price of Wheat, * and the Subsidys † granted in Parliament then, bear to those of our Time. For this Reason, you ought to multiply the above-mentioned Sum of 273, 106l. 18s. 3d.½ by 12, which will give you the

 We have no direct Accounts of the Price of Corn in Henry the 8th's Time, but we may suppose it the same, as it was in that of his Predecessor and Successor. In the Second Year of Henry the 7th, Wheat was Sold for three Shillings the Quarter; in his Seventh Year when a terrible Dearth happen'd, it did not rise to above Twenty pence the Bushel; and in his Tenth and Fifteenth Years, was Sold for Four Shillings the Quarter. In the Reign of Queen Mary, unless in Time of Famine, Wheat was commonly Sold for Five Shillings the Quarter in London, and for Four Shillings the Quarter in the Country. So that we may fairly compute the Price of Wheat, in Henry the VIIIth's time, to have been Four Shillings the Quarter, which Multiplied by Twelve, amounts to Two Pounds Eight Shillings, which is but a reasonable Price for Wheat at this Day. Vid. Baker's Chron. Vit. Hen. 7. and Queen Mary 1.*

† In the Tenth Year of King Henry the VIth, an Hundred and Twenty Thousand Pounds was granted by Parliament for the Scotch Wars, which was looked upon to be so exorbitant a Tax, that Sixteen Thousand Men rose in Rebellion to oppose its being levied. This Aid (which was granted but 38 Years before the Dissolution of the Abbies) were we to multiply it by Twelve, would make but a trifling Sum, compared with the Subsidys that have been yearly raised for the late Wars. Vid. Lord Verulam's Hist. of Hen. 7. Page 163, 164.

real Value at this Day, and amounts to the Sum of 3, 277, 282*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* Now although this may appear to be an almost incredible Sum ; yet we are not to imagine, that it was the only Income of these religious Houses : For it was only the reserved Rent of their Mannors, and the yearly Produce of their Demesnes, without computing Fines, Herriots, Renewals, Deodands, &c. which would have, perhaps, amounted to twice as much. But to be more exact in our Calculations, let us from this yearly Income of the Monastick Houses, deduct a sixth Part for Demesnes, and then the remainder will be meerly their reserved Rents. If therefore from 3, 277, 282*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* you will subtract 546, 213*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* there will exactly remain for their Rent, 2, 731, 069*l.* 12*s.* 11*d.* Now the reserved Rent being, in all Church Tenures, at least a fifth Part of the Estate ; it will follow, that the Lands which the Monks had out upon Lives, in all amounted amounted to the Sum of 13, 655, 345 l.

 4 s. 7 d. and if to this you add their Demefnes, we may fairly affirm that the whole Land, which the Monks were Lords of, came to 14, 101, 558 l.
 11 s. 2 d. How great a part of our Land this must be, you may learn from the following Calculation. The Land Tax, is paid so unequally, that when it is nominally Four Shillings in the Pound, tho' in the Mid-land Counties they are kept up to the Rigour ;
 yet in the North and in the West, in many Districts, only one and a half, in others two, but in almost no Place above two and a half is paid. We may therefore fairly affirm, that when the Land Tax is assessed for Four, it brings in but full two Shillings in the Pound, or a tenth Part of the Income of our Estates reckoning one Place with another. The Land Tax is supposed one Year with another to bring in two Millions, and this may be accounted when multiplied by Ten, to be the Value

Value of all the Lands in England, which is Twenty * Millions per Ann. Of which only Fourteen Millions, one Hundred and one Thousand, Five Hundred, Fifty Eight Pounds, Eleven Shillings, and Two-pence was dependent on our poor and humble Clergy, which is in other Words, that the Monks were Masters of above Fourteen Parts out of Twenty of the whole Kingdom. And out of the six Parts which were thus kindly left dependent on King, Lords, and Commons, were the four numerous Orders of Mendicants to be maintained, against whom no Gate could be shut, to whom no Provision could be denied, and from whom no Secret could be concealed.

* Gregory King's Calculations, published by Dr. Davenant, compute the whole Rent of Lands in England to be but Fourteen Millions, and Sir William Pettys Calculations, which were much older, do only compute them at Eight Millions a Year.

The latter of these wrote in the middle of the Reign of King Charles the II^d. and the former in the Reign of King William. And the vast difference between them as to the Annual Value of all the Lands and Houses in England, we may chiefly attribute to our Trade, the encrease of which, has in half a Century, much more than doubled the Rents of our Estates in this Nation.

If this Calculation should appear greater, than what my Reader can easily give Credit to, I must advise him to look into Pöpish Countries, where he will discover that their Clergy are to the full as rich in Proportion as ever ours were here. A flagrant Instance of which, we have from a Calculation taken by the Great Duke of Tuscany himself in his own Dominions, wherein the Priesthood were found to enjoy Seventeen Parts in Twenty of the whole Land; which had it not been for that seasonable Statute of Mortmain, they would soon have possessed here.

As the religious Houses in this Island were of several Denominations, it will not be improper to give the Reader a short Explanation of their Titles, least else he should meet with Terms in my Catalogue, which he might be at a loss to understand.

An Abby.

When in any Society of religious Persons, whether Male or Female, one Abbat or Abbess (so called from the Hebrew אבא Abba, which signifies Father) presided, presided, then that was stiled an Abbey. This Governour had the sole Power over the Convent, could place or displace any Officer at Pleasure, and prescribe what Rules the Monks or Nuns should be obliged to observe.

But when the chief Person in the Monastery bore the Name of Prior, that was stiled a Priory. A Priory. And these Kind of religious Houses were of two Sorts; either they were such, whose Prior was independent, and as absolute a Tyrant as any Abbat could be; or they were such as depended upon some great Abby, from which they received their Prior, and to which they were often obliged to pay a small Pension or Annual Acknowledgment. And whensoever the Convent, to which any Priory belonged, was beyond the Seas, then it was stiled an Alien Priory.

When a certain Number of Secular A College. Canons assembled themselves under the Government of a Warden, Dean, Provoft or Master, they were called a College or a Collegiate Church.

xx The P R E F A C E.

A Præceptory Whensoever the Knights, Templars, or Hospitallers had any considerable Mannors or Farms, they erected Churches for the Service of God, and built a convenient House for Habitation, to which they sent part of their Fraternity, under the Command of one Preceptor. And these Houses were called Preceptories or Commanderies.

A Monastery. When the Society of religious Persons consisted of Men, it was called a Monastery.

A Nunnery When it consisted of Women, 'twas stiled a Nunnery from the Hebrew בַּיִת Filia, according to Hospinian.

A Cell. When any Monastery or Nunnery was subject to another, then it was called a Cell. And many have imagined that the Revenue of the Cell was included in that of the Mother Abby; which if it were true, would very much diminish the Calculation I have made of the Monastick Wealth. In Justification of my Method, I have this therefore to

to say. 1st, that all those who have written upon this Subject, have calculated Cells distinct from the Abbies they appertained to. 2dly, that many Cells were given in at their Dissolution at a certain Value, and their Mother Abbies reckoned up distinct from them at another Value; and we can scarce imagine, that the Monks would at that Time make themselves appear more rich than they really were. 3dly, that of the Cells mentioned in my Catalogue, a considerable Number were Alien Priories, and belonged to Monasteries Abroad, which are not valued there at all. 4thly, that the whole Number of Cells, which can be thought to have been included in the Revenue of their Mother Abbies, amount not to above Forty; whose Part in my Calculation would easily be supplied, by inserting in their room Chantries, Gilds and Hospitals, which were equally detrimental to the Publick, and superstitious in their Foundation.

Chantries

A Chantry. Chantries were Chappels erected and endowed for the singing of Masses for the Souls of the Deceased.

An Hospital. Hospitals were Houses founded for the Entertainment of all who went any Pilgrimage on a religious Pretence.

A Guild. Gilds were Societies of Lay Brethren, who lived together like Monks, but were professed of no Order.

But to support yet farther my Assertion, that the Monks were Lords of Fourteen Parts out of Twenty of our whole Nation, I must take Notice of an Argument which Mr. Tanner furnishes me with, in the Preface to his Notitia Monastica. That ingenious Gentleman takes Notice, that Sir William Temple in his Introduction to the History of England, p. 175. asserts, that

The P R E F A C E. xxiii

that in William the Conqueror's Time, a third Part of the Lands of the Kingdom were found to be in the Possession of the Clergy. This he very fully refutes and proves that they had but a twelfth Part, * there being but one Hundred Monasteries and endowed Churches founded before the Conquest. The same Author gives us an Account of Eight Hundred more, and the several Reigns they were founded in. Now if One Hundred Monasteries and endowed Churches amount to a twelfth Part of the Nation, then Nine Hundred must be computed at nine Parts in twelve of the Kingdom, which is much more than I contend for.

Having neither Leisure nor Inclination to trouble my self with a dry search after Manuscripts or Monuments, I have in my Compendium, followed the best printed Authorities I could

* Tanner's Notitia, Pref. p. 52, and following.

xxiv The P R E F A C E.

meet with, and have not set down the Value of any one Monastery, but according to one of these three approved Authors, Mr. Stow, Mr. Speed, and Sir William Dugdale. Mr. Speed is the Man whom I have chiefly followed in my Valuations, as being the most Authentick; for at the End of his History of the Reign of King Henry the VIIIth, he has set down that very Catalogue, which was taken by a special Commission and given into the King, by that great Antiquary Mr. Leland, at the Time of the Dissolution of the Abbies.

Not to amuse my Reader with any farther Observations, I shall only intreat him seriously to consider, whether it can be the Interest of our Laity to hazard the Ruin both of their Bodies and Souls by a Rebellion, which, if attended with Success, can have no other Consequence, than the procuring for the Clergy fourteen Parts out of Twenty of their Estates, besides that tenth Part, which they enjoy already.

Y Reader after having perused the Catalogue of Abby Lands, will doubtless be curious to know how these spiritual Societies came to possess such prodigious Temporal Estates. The first Monks we read of, were in the middle of the Third Century ; Men whom the Persecution of the Heathen Emperors compelled to live in Desarts, and who being, by a long Course of Solitude, render'd unfit for human Society, chose to continue in their Monastick Way, even after the true Cause of it ceased.

The Example of these Men was soon followed by a Number of crazy Devotees, who were so ignorant of true Religion, as to think that their Way to Heaven, lay through wild and uninhabited Desarts, and who finding that they had not Charity enough to observe that Precept of Christ, of loving their Neighbours as themselves, were resolved to have no Neighbours at all, thereby frustrating the Design of Christianity, which was to establish the good of Society.

The next Monks were a Set of worthless, but ambitious Wretches, who having no other Way of making themselves famous in the World, retired out of it; where they revered Idle Ceremonies of their own Institution, where they pretended Conferences with Angels, with the Virgin Mary, and even with God Almighty; not unlike Numa the High Priest of the Heathen Romish Church, who abused the People with Stories of his nightly Interviews in a Cave with the Goddess Ageria. At length these holy Cheats to gain yet more Veneration, began to practice on their Bodies the most cruel Severities, till at last they were worshipped by the thoughtless Mob as Saints: Imitating in some Measure, the Example of that Heathen Monk Empedocles, who to be though a God, leapt into the burning Mount Atra.

After this, designing Men, who saw how great an Influence these pretended Saints had over Mankind, took upon themselves the same exterior Form of Godliness, thereby, not only to raise an empty Name as the former had done,

done, but to enrich themselves at the Expence of the deluded Multitude. From hence flowed those many profitable religious Maxims: “ That to give to the Church was Charity “ towards God, and as such, would atone “ for a Multitude of Sins, were they ever “ so heinous: That the Church was not the “ Congregation of the Faithful, as St. Paul “ fancied it to be, but the Body of Priests: “ That the Priest, tho’ ever so like the Devil, “ was God’s Representative, and ought to be “ honoured as such: That there was such a “ Place as Purgatory, and that the Prayers of “ Monks (like Orpheus’s Harp) were the only “ Musick, that could mollify the Tyrant of “ that Place, who, being their very good “ Friend, would release a poor Soul at any “ time for their Sake: That * whispering all “ Secrets in the Ear of a Priest, was the only “ Cure for a sick Soul: That every Priest had “ a Power of pardoning all Sins, except those “ only, which were committed against him- “ self: That Indulgences purchased in Fee, “ could entitle a Man and his Heirs to merit “ Heaven by sinning: And lastly, that the “ Priest could by Vertue of a Hocus Pocus, quit “ Scores with his Creator, by creating him,

* There is a Beast mentioned in Pliny, whose Bite can only be cured by whispering in the Ear of an Ass. Vid. J. Hale of Auricular Confession.

These and such like Money-catching Tenets, soon drew the whole Wealth of the Laity into the Hands of these Contemners of the World, and all its Poms and Vanities; who not only flourished in Agypt and Italy where they first sprang up, but were spread through all Christendom, and began quickly to vie in Power and Riches with the greatest Monarchs even in their own Territories, till at last Kings and Princes themselves were proud of becoming Monks and Abbots.

But not to amuse my Reader with a long Detail of the divers religious Orders which swarm in other Countries, I shall confine myself only to give some short Account of the Original Rise and Progress of those, that were established here. And these were the Benedictines, the Cluniacs, the Carthusians, the Cistercians, the Regular Canons of Saint Austin, the Præmonstratenses, the Gilbertines, the Mathurins, or Trinitarians, the Franciscans, the Dominicans, the Carmelites, and the Hermites of St. Austin.

The Benedictines.

The first of these that prevailed here was the Order of the Benedictines, whose Rule was introduced into this Nation by † Augustin the Monk, in the Year of our Lord 596. The † Dugdale and F. Bale, his English Votaries.

Founder of this Order was St. Bennet, who in his own Life-time erected Twelve Monasteries. The Rules that this great Saint left behind him (altho' the Papists affirm that they were dictated to him by the Holy Ghost) are stuffed with most trifling and superstitious Ceremonies, and his whole Seventy-Three Chapters contain but four wholesome Precepts, two of which only, that relate to eating and drinking, his Followers observe, neglecting the other two, which are the Fundamentals of their Order enjoining Humility and Poverty; for in his Seventh Chapter, St. Bennet assigns twelve Degrees of Humility for his Monks to practice; which how well they comply with, you may find by the humble Titles of the Abbots of Mount Cassin the head Monastery of his Order, of which himself was first Abbot.

his Disciples, and in Obedience to this Rule, the above-mentioned Monastery of Mount † Cassin so renounced the World, as to be possessed of but “ Four Bishopricks, Two Dukedoms, Twenty Counties, Thirty-six Cities, “ Two Hundred Castles, Three Hundred Territories, Four Hundred and Forty Villages, “ Three Hundred and Six Farms, Twenty-three Seaports, Thirty-three Islands, Two “ Hundred Mills, and One Thousand Six Hundred Sixty-two Churches. This was their holy Poverty ; and thus you may see how religiously these two Rules have been observed, and how spiritually the Followers of St. Bennet retreated from the World in Italy, who were soon imitated, in these Kind of holy Self-denials by their pious Brethren here in England, as you may learn from the vast Number of rich Abbies which the Benedictines were possessed of. These were the humble Priests, from whom our Gallant King Henry the Second, received the Discipline of Eighty Lashes, for having, like an undutiful Son of the Church, dared to contend in Power with their Patron Thomas a Becket, whose Stirrup he had before been obliged twice to hold, whilst that meek Prelate mounted.

As these Monks began to be notorious to ^{The Cluni-} the World for their Obscenities and Luxury; ^{acks.} in the Year of our Lord 912 * Oden Abbot of Cluny, took upon him to correct their Abuses, and gave Rise to the Cluniacks; who were the same Year translated by Alphreda Queen of England; for, who more proper to promote Superstition, than a zealous ignorant Woman. However to shew how thoroughly these Men reformed upon St. Bennets Followers, especially in Point of Humility, they were not settled one whole Century, before the Abbot of † Cluny contested the Title of Abbot of Abbots, with those of Mount Cassin.

The next Order was that of the Carthusians, ^{The Car-} first established in the Year 1086, in the De- ^{thusians.} part of Chartreuse in Grenoble, by one Bruno, who was thereunto moved by hearing a dead Man cry out three times "That he was condemned by the just Judgment of God, which was a very plain Precept for building of Monasteries. This Man professed to follow the Rule of St. Bennet, adding thereunto many great Austerities by way of Reformation; amongst others he ordained § that they ought to be satisfied with a very little Space of Ground about their Cells, after

after which let the whole World be offered unto them, they ought not to desire a Foot more. This I suppose, they have construed to signify a Foot more than the whole World. For their Cells even in St. Bernard's time, became stately Pallaces, and their little Spaces of Ground, stretched themselves into great Tracts of Land. They first settled themselves in England in the Year 1180, and in a very short time, had gained as much Wealth by their Vows of Poverty, as any other Order.

The Cister-
cians:

The Cistercians so called from Citeaux, where they first assembled, and soon after admitted St. Bernard for their Head (from whence they are also stiled Bernardines) were another Reformation upon the Benedictines. * St. Bernard himself founded One Hundred and Sixty Monasteries, who at first would have no Possessions, but lived by Alms, and the Labour of their own Hands; which being too Apostolick a Life for Monks, they soon grew as weary of Poverty and Industry as their Neighbours; and in a little time rivalled those, on whom they pretended to reform, in Wealth, Luxury, Wantonness, and such like Monkish Vertues. At their first Institution, they wore black Habits, till the Virgin Mary, out of her great

* Dugdale Monast. Vol. 1. Pag. 695, 699, 700.

Love to these fat Friars, came down from Heaven on Purpose to reform their Dress, as being the most Essential Part of their Order. † She appeared her self to their Second Abbot, bringing a white Cowl in her Hand, which she put upon his Head, and at the same Instant, the Cowls of all the Monks then singing in the Choir, were miraculously turned to the same Colour. Thus did the blessed Virgin change the Habits of the Cistercians from Black to White, as they had before altered their Lives, from a sad melancholy Retirement, to a merry jovial Society; Black being no more fit for a jolly Priest, than White is for a mornful Penitent. Besides the old Monk Satan being represented as Black, the Holy Virgin was unwilling, perhaps, that her Friends should be like him in Dress, tho' they resembled him in every thing else. These Locusts swarmed first in England, according to John Bale about the Year 1132, and continued here in the innocent Exercise of their Sanctity, a remarkable Instance of which, * was their Poisoning the Good King JOHN at Swineshead in Lincolnshire, an Abby of the holy Cistercian Order.

The Canons There was another Sort of religious Orders in the Church of Rome, who were called Canons. These were to live in common, and to have but one Table, one Purse, and one Dormitory. But as many of them began to abate of the strictness of their first Rules, a new Sect sprang up that pretended to reform upon the rest, and these were called Regular, whereas the other by way of Reproach, were stiled Secular. They all pretended to have received three Rules from St. Augustine, two of which, † Erasmus and § Hospinian prove to be Forgeries, and affirm that the third was not written for his Clergy, but for the Use of some pious Women, which lived in common under the Conduct of his Sister. When Canons began is not certain; but the first Regulars we read of, are those whom Pope Alexander the Second sent from Luca to St. John Lateran. * These Regular Canons were so irregular and guilty of such abominable Crimes, that even Pope Boniface the 8th was forced to drive them away, and for the Peace of the Church, placed Secular Canons in their room. Berinus in the Year 636 first introduced these Augustinians into England, who strictly followed the Example of their Brethren of St. John Lateran.

The † Premonstratenses, who followed the same Rule with the former, were founded by St. Norbert about the Year 1120, at a Place which the blessed Virgin pointed out to him, and which therefore was called Pre-monstre or fore-shewn. These Monks to get a greater Esteem in the World, after the Death of their Founder, publish'd that he had received his Rule, curiously bound in Gold, from the Hands of St. Austin himself, who appeared to him one Night and said thus. “ Here is the Rule I have written, and if thy Brethren observe it, they like my Children need to fear nothing at all in the Day of Judgment. Indeed these pious Fathers for their great Security in the last Day, have firmly adhered to one of his Precepts, that commands them to love one another, which they are supposed to do in the most inordinate Manner. What confirms this Suspicion, is their Declaration in the Year 1273; in which, after having acknowledged that Women are worse than the most venomous Aspicks, and Dragons, they resolved never to have any more to do with them.

The Premonstratenses.

The next Order is that of † St. Gilbert a little crooked School-master, born in Lincoln-shire, who by reason of his Deformity, despairing ever to bring the Women to answer his lewd Inclinations in a secular Manner, was resolved to make Religion his Bawd; and to that End (being moved thereto by a peculiar Zeal) he founded Thirteen Monasteries containing both Sexes together, to the Number of Seven Hundred Men, and Fifteen Hundred Women; wisely providing against the Lusts of the Flesh, by assigning at least, two Sisters for the Mortification of one Brother, who were kept from Criminal Correspondence by such a strong Partition, that only three Parts in four of these vestal Virgins were pregnant at once. This Hermaphrodite Order of the Gilbertines, was established at Sempringham in the Year 1148, and was thence called the Sempringham Order. At their Dissolution, great Quantities of Bones were found in their Cloisters, and in the Houses where they eased Nature; which it seems, belonged to the Infants of these charitable Sisters, who could murder the very Fruits of their Labours to keep up the Name of Chastity.

The Gilbertines.

The Mathurines.

The Mathurines so called from their Founder * John Matha, were likewise stiled Trinitarians, because they lay under an Obligation of dedicating all their Churches to the holy Trinity; they professed the Rules of St. Austin, and added to them several others; amongst which, is that remarkable one of riding upon an Ass, the only thing in which I can find that these godly Fathers imitate Christ. They were instituted in the Year 1207, and settled in this Island in the Year * 1257. The original Design of their Establishment, was for the Enlargement of Captives, and whatsoever Substance fell into their Hands, was to be divided into three equal Parts; one of which, was to be remitted to Christian Slaves for their Redemption, whilst the other two were to remain in the Possession of these charitable Bankers, as a Satisfaction for their great Pains in making such a Return, which an unmerciful Jew would have done more faithfully, and for a tenth Part of the Reward. But two Parts in three being too scanty a Recompence for the great Toil of a lazy Friar, these Mathurines having no other God but Money; to approve themselves true Trinitarians to that Deity, often cheated the poor Captive of his third Part, rather than they would divide the Substance.

Thus have I passed through those Eight religious Orders, who were possessed of our Land; I come now to those, who, although they had no Possessions of their own, and therefore are not mentioned in my Catalogue, yet were in Effect Masters of all the Land in this Nation, it being accounted a Crime equal to Sacrilege, to deny them entrance into any Place, which they would honour with their Presence, I mean those four lowfy Orders, the Franciscans, Dominicans, Carmelites, and Hermites of St. Austin.

The Franciscans.

The Franciscans or Grey Friars, were instituted in the Year 1206 by * St. Francis, whose first Prank of Holiness was robbing his Father, for which pious Act being disinherited, he like a true Ranter, stript himself stark naked and ran away to a Chapel near Assisy in Umbria, where being a Beggar himself, he began a begging Order; which being founded on Sloth and Idleness, drew in so many Converts, that † St. Francis even in his Life-time saw Two Thousand Five Hundred Convents of his own Monks, all Mumpers, Gypsies, Vagrants, and such like Persons, taking upon them his Profession of Sanctity, which agreed so well with their own Inclinations. It were endless here to innumerate those many ridiculous and blasphemous § Miracles, with which his lying Legend is filled ; such as his bearing the Marks of Christ upon his Body, which were imprinted there by Christ himself ; such as his conversing intimately with the Virgin Mary ; such as his healing the Lame and Blind, nay, and even raising the Dead to Life. Miracles, upon the Strength of which, his blind Followers have not doubted to publish him * greater than St. John the Baptist and all the Apostles, and to affirm that a † Roll from Heaven declared him to be the ‘ Grace of God. Nay they have not been ashamed to call him § “ Jesus of Nazareth King of the Jews. Relying upon the Sincerity of the Author of his Legend (I mean Lucifer, * whose Seat this great Saint now fills in Heaven) who being once abjured by a Priest, answered † “ that there were only two in Heaven marked alike, Christ and Saint Francis.

The Dominicans, or Black Friars, took their ^{The Domi-} Rise in the Year 1216, from that godly Butch-^{nicans.} er Saint § Dominick, whose Catholick Zeal was first manifested in the barbarous Croisade, which he fet on foot against those Innocent People the Albigenses, of whom, above One Hundred Thousand were massacred at once, by this Saint's Instigation. For at a smaller Price of Blood he could not hope to purchase a Canonization in a Church, which was so well stocked with such Kind of Saints before. To give yet a farther Instance of his Christian Charity, when he saw how the Number of Hereticks was diminished by his wholsom Severities, like a true High-church Champion, he lifted into his Order a Set of merciless Ruffians, whom he stiled the Militia of Jesus Christ; whose Employment was to cut the Throats of all those who were so schismatical as to dissent from him in Opinion. It was he also, who founded that merciful Court of Justice, called the Inquisition, of which himself was made the Head. Nor did he want for Miracles any more than his Brother St. Francis; For tho' he had no such bodily Marks, * yet he received the Holy Ghost with the same Glory of a flaming Tongue as the Apostles did; and whereas Christ being Verbum Dei, only proceeded from the Mouth of God, Saint † Dominick was seen to come from his Breast. Nay farther, he like St. Paul was ravished into the Third Heaven, where seeing none of his own Order, he complained to Jesus Christ of it; who upon that * pulled up his Mother's Petticoates, under which he saw an innumerable Number of his Followers, whom the Virgin Mary cherished there. This diabolical Sect pretended to follow the Rule of St. Austin, and multiplied so fast, that in the Space of Two Hundred and Seventy Years, they had One Thousand One Hundred and Forty-three Convents.

The Carmelites or White Friars, pretend The Carmelites. that the † Prophet Elias was the first Carmelite, who obtained of our Saviour, at the time of his Transfiguration on Mount Carmel, this grand Privilege, that his Order should remain till the End of the World: But this Forgery is so gross, that the Papists themselves cannot swallow it. The true Time of their Foundation, was in the Year 1122, by § Albert Patriarch of Jerusalem, who gathered together a few Hermites that lived on Mount Carmel, and gave them the pretended Rule of St. Basil. When Palestine was taken by the Saracens, they flocked into Europe, where Pope Honorius the Fourth altered their Habits, and for an Indication of their Humility, dubb'd them Christ's Uncles, ordering them to be called Brothers of the Virgin Mary. Innocent the Fourth, upon their parting with that heretical Clause in one of their Rules * “ That they ought to hope for Salvation only from our Saviour, like a true Pope granted them many Immunities and Privileges; whose Example was followed by Pope John the 23d. he being thereunto moved by a Vision of the blessed Virgin, who (according to her pretended usual Familiarity, with sodomitical Popes, and bawdy Friars) accosted his Holiness in these Words. † “ By express Command of me and my Son, thou shalt grant this Privilege, that whosoever enters this my Order, shall be free from Guilt and Punishment of their Sins, and eternally saved. Urban the Fourth was likewise favourable unto them; as was Eugenius the Sixth, who mitigated their Rule, and permitted them to eat Flesh, as a Reward for their having burned alive one § Thomas, Brother of their own Order, for blasphemously affirming that the Abominations of the Church of Rome needed a Reformation. This successive Friendship of Popes to them, encreased their Convents to a Number not inferiour to that of any other Order. And they made such good Use of the Virgin Marie's Favour in exempting them from the Guilt of Sin, that * Nicolaus of Narbona General of their Order, after having reproached them with their Hypocrisy, Incest, and Sodomy, in the Year 1270 retired from their Society, being no longer able to bear with their scandalous Lives. † They came over into England about the Year 1265, and had for their General St. Symon Stock, so called from his living in a hollow Tree.

The Austin Friars derive their Original from the same Person with the Regular Canons of that Name, which hath sufficiently been proved a Forgery, both by § Erasmus and * Hospinian. In short their Beginning was founded upon this ridiculous Story, which I have taken out of their own Legends. Once upon a time as Pope Alexander the Fourth lay half a-sleep, and half a-wake, the great Saint Augustine, tho' dead and rotten some Hundred Years before, appeared to him under a dreadful Figure, having a Head as big as a Tun, and the rest of his Body as small as a Reed, by which mysterious Form, his Holiness immediately knew the Saint, and concluded that he ought to found an Order to this holy Father, whose Head could not be at rest in the Grave for want of a Body: And this gave Rise to these Mendicant Augustinian Friars, who being confirmed by following Popes, encreased so prodigiously, as to have in a few Years above Two Thousand Convents of Men, and Three Hundred of Women. * They passed from Italy into England, in the Year 1252; and at their Arrival, a raging Sickness broke out in London, and spread over the whole Kingdom, as a Prefage of the Destruction and Plague, which these Vermin would in time bring upon this Nation.

The Knights, Hospitall-
ers, and Templars.

Thus according to my first Proposal, I have gone through a short Historical Account of the Original, Rise, and Progress of all those religious Orders, which flourished most in this Island; among which Number, I shall not reckon the Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, nor the Knights Templars, their Institution being chiefly Military. Let it suffice therefore to observe of them that they † followed the Rule of St. Augustine, in many Points, but were wholly excluded from the Exercise of the Canonical Office; that their Vow was to receive, to treat, and defend Pilgrims, and also to maintain

maintain with Force of Arms the Christian Religion in their Country; that none were admitted amongst them but those who were of noble Extraction, whilst the religious Societies were for the most part composed of the Dregs of the Earth: And lastly, that they acquired to themselves such immense Treasure, as procured them the Envy and Hatred of all other Orders; which was the true Cause of the total Exterpation of the Templars, and contributed to the Diminution of the Power and Revenue of the Hospitallers, who are now called Knights of Malta.

Not inserting therefore these two Military Societies, we shall find that our Number of Religious Orders amounted exactly to Twelve; Two Plagues more than ever Agypt felt, and of a much more dreadful Nature. For Moses only turned their Rivers into Blood; whereas our Monks by their Persecutions, converted our whole Nation into a Sea of Blood; he sent Frogs, Lice, and Flies into all their Quarters, much less troublesome Vermin, than those Mendicant Friars, who swarmed in all our private Families: He called for Murrain upon the Agyptian Cattle, and for Boiles upon the Flesh of their Inhabitants; and what were our religious Orders less, than the Consumers of our Substance, and the Corruption of our People? He commanded Hail and Locusts, which destroyed only one Seasons Crop, but these sanctified Catterpillers devoured our Land for Ages together.

together. He caused a Darkness, which soon passed away; but the Eclipse which these Men brought upon the Light of the Gospel, endured for more than Twelve Hundred Years: And lastly, the First-born only in that unhappy Land, were slain by an Angel of God, whereas in our (then much more miserable) Country, these Messengers of the Devil sacrificed our whole Families to their Covetousness and Lust. That Men should desire the Onions of Ægypt, is no wonder, but that they should long for its very Plagues, is a Folly peculiar only to this Generation. And what less than that are they doing, who endeavour to impose a Popish King and his Religion, upon their own Protestant Nation.

The Nuns. I have hitherto said nothing concerning the Nuns, whose Rules were exactly the same with those of their Brethren the Friars, in each respective Order, to whom they served only as an Appendix or House of Ease. All that may truly be affirmed of them, is that they were a Set of silly superstitious Women, who thought it a piece of spiritual Devotion to be subservient to the Monks, though it were in gratifying the Lusts of the Flesh, and bore to the World the Face of chaste Christian Sisters, whilst, like a Turkish Seraglio, they carried in private the teeming Marks of the Labour of their ghostly Fathers.

Besides

Besides the Religious Orders which we have The Jesuits mentioned, had it not been for the Glorious Reformation wrought by Prince Henry VIII. we might have expected to have felt one Plague more, much exceeding all the rest; I mean the Jesuits, who sprang up in the Year of our Lord * 1540. Their first Founder was Ignatius Loyola, a Spanish Souldier, who collecting together all the different Monastick Rules of preceeding Orders, added thereunto some extraordinary ones of his own, particularly this; † “ That the General, Provincials, and Superi“ ors of his Order, may dispence with all “ Laws Human and Divine, dissolve all Oaths
 “ and Vows, and free Men from the Obligati“ on of all Rules and Decrees. They were called Jesuits, from a pretended § Vision of God the Father, who appeared visibly to Saint Ignatius Loyola, and desired his Son Jesus Christ, who stood by loaden with an heavy Cross, to take a special Care both of him and his Companions, which Christ promised he would not fail to do at Rome. This Pestiferous Sect multiplied so fast, that in the Year 1608, Ribadiniera reckons that they possessed Thirty-one Provinces, Twenty-one profest Houses, Thirty-three Noviciates, Ninty-six Residential Rouses,

* Hoffæus, & Salmanazer Jesuitæ.

and Two Hundred Ninty-three Colleges, besides their * first College, which they pretend was in the Womb of the Virgin Mary. These Jesuits are much the most dangerous Vermin of all those, who pretend to the Name of Religious, inasmuch as they declare, no Villany, no Treachery, nor Cruelty, to be criminal, provided it tends to the Benefit of their Society. And by this Means, whensoever a Nation is so unfortunate as to be over-run with this hellish Crew, no one Member of the Community, can promise himself a Security either to his Life, Honour, or Estate. Nay, the Sacred Person of a Monarch is not exempted from Danger, when he is once become an Object of Jesuitical Spleen; as was notoriously manifested in the whole Series of the Reign of King Henry the Fourth of France, whose Life was † many Times attempted by these ghostly Fathers, before they accomplished their wicked Ends. To pass over many others, I shall only mention three of their most remarkable Conspiracies. The first was that of § Peter Barriere a Soldier, engaged to commit this Murder by Chri-

† Charles Ridicove of Ghent, Peter Anger, Clement Odin, Nicholas Anglois, were all of them engaged at different Times in Conspiracies to murder this King. stopher Abre Curat of St. Andre des Ares, and by Varade the Rector of the Jesuits College. The former told him “ That by such an Act, he “ would gain great Glory and Paradise. The latter, “ That the Enterprize was most Holy, and “ that with good Constancy and Courage, he ought “ to confess himself, and receive the blessed Sacra- “ ment, which he accordingly did; and being thus Jesuitically prepared, he embarked in the Attempt, but whilst he was watching an Opportunity to put his bloody Design in Execution, was timely discovered, and received the due Reward of his Villany.

The Second Conspirator was Jean Chastel, Son to a Draper in Paris, and by his own * Confession, bred up amongst the Jesuits in their King-killing Doctrine; and being persuaded by them, that the Murder of King Henry the Fourth would † atone for all his past Sins and merit Heaven, he attempted it by stabbing that Monarch in the Mouth with a Knife, which occasioned this remarkable § Saying of the King’s: “ It seems then, that “ it is not enough, that the Mouths of so macontrived by Priests against his Life. That the Jesuits employed this Murderer, we have the Testimony of that great and learned Man Father Paul, who lived at that Time; and as he was Councillor of State to the Republick of Venice, was perfectly well acquainted with the Intrigues of all the Courts of Europe. He tells us in his * Letters, that the Jesuits were the Trainers up of Ravilliac's and King-killers, and that they were the † Authors of the Death of this great Prince,

It were tedious to enumerate the Murders, Treasons, Rebellions, Blasphemies, and such like Crimes, for which this Society has been banished out of France, from Dantzick, from the Venetian Territories, out of Thorn and Cracovia, and from Bohemia; not to mention that inhuman & Contrivance of theirs here in England, to blow up both a King and Parliament at once.

It hath been a Topick which the Ill-designing Jacobites, have delighted to urge against our Protestant Dissenters, that they were the Cause of the Murder of one of our Kings, an Action which they both condemn and detest. But were they guilty of that Fact, with what Face can these Men raise such an Objection against them, when at the same Time themselves are endeavouring to bring in a biggotted Popish Pretender, who cannot fail of introducing with him a Swarm of this King-killing Society of Jesus, who hold it for a fundamental Principle, * that the Depositing or Assassinating of a King, when his Death will be advantagous, either to the Romish Church in general, or to their Sect in particular, is so far from being any Crime, that it is rather a superlative Piece of Merit towards God. And therefore when they esteem it necessary to put any Prince to Death, they sanctify Daggers, and consecrate Murderers to that End, as if it were for the Execution of a holy Office.

This

* Instead of Hundreds of their Authors, who might be produced to prove this Assertion, let these Four suffice. First, Their great Apostle Bellarmine affirms that the Pope — “ Potest mutare Regna, & “ uni auferre atq; alteri conferre. Bellarm. de Rom. Pont. Lib. 5. Cap. 6. And in another Book he sayeth — “ Quod possit eos “ Regnis atq; Imperiis exuere, eaq; Regna & Imperia ab aliis “ ad alios transferre. De Translat. Imp. Rom. Lib. 1. Cap. 12. And this he tells you, was the Opinion of the whole Society of Jesus. — “ Siquidem inter omnis convenit posse Pontificem maxi- “ mum Hæreticos Principes Jure deponere, & subditos eorum “ ab Obedientia liberara. Mat. Tort. Resp. Pag. 9.

The Second is that Famous Jesuit of Brabant, Martin Becanus, Confessor to Ferdinand the Second, who affirms, that Kings ought to be killed if they disobey the Pope. — “ Alliquando factum est etiam essent Leprosi, ergo poterat Pontifex mandare, ut scorsim habitarent, & si nollent obedire, ut Vita privarentur nihil certius; hinc colligimus Pontificem duplici Titulo potuisse Reges privare suo Regno, primo quia poterat eos, si contumaces essent, privare Vita, ergo & Regno Nemo dubitat. Becan. Controvers. Angl. Page 115.

To this may be added the Opinion of their great and infallible Doctor Franciscus Suarez a Jesuit, who assures us, that Kings may be murdered by any private Man after the Pope hath passed Sentence upon them. — “ Post Sententiam latam omnino privatur Regno, ita ut non possit Justo Titulo illud possidere; ergo ex tunc poterit tanquam omnino Tyrannus tractari, & consequenter a quocunq; Privato poterit interfici. Suarez Defensio Fidei. Lib. 6. Cap. 4. 14.

The last Jesuit I shall mention, who vindicated the Murder of a Sovereign, is Francis Verone, who wrote a Book to justify Chastel's stabbing HENRY the Fourth, which he calls a Generous, Virtuous, and Heroick Action, and comparable to the most Renowned Deeds of the Ancients, either in Profane or Sacred History. Fran. Verone Apol. pour Jean. Chastel, Part 1. Cap. 7. where he likewise stiles him a Martyr, Page 23. He says also — “ Son acte est purement Juste, vertueux & heroique, Part 2. Page 25. And again; “ cest un Acte tres Saint, tres humain, tres digne, tres louable, & tres recommandable. Ibid. Part 4. Cap. 1. Page 147. And lastly he affirms it to be, “ Ce que Nature mesme enseigne, & qui est Justifie par le Droit tant Civile, que canonique — Celle que la Nature enseigne, & conformement a Dieu, aux Loix, au Decrets & a l'Eglise. Ibid. Part 4. Cap. 3. Page 155, 156.

This we shall be apt to think the worst of Heathens were incapable of doing, much less could we incline to believe it the Practice of a Society that carry the Name of Jesus, had we not an Authentick Original of one of their religious religious Ceremonies instituted for that very Purpose, which being somewhat curious, I shall for the Entertainment of my Reader here subjoin.

The Jesuits Manner of consecrating both the Persons and Weapons employed for the murdering Kings and Princes by them accounted Hereticks, as it is extant in an Original Process, Printed at Delph, by John Andrea, Bookseller, and quoted by Hospinian in his History of the Jesuits.  “ ted Associates, they terrify the soon retrived

 “ the Allurements of Merit, enflame the “ Courages of the Unwary, and having en“ tangled them in the Noozes of sacrilegious
 “ and bloody Attempts, precipitate both Soul
 “ and Body into Eternal Damnation.

This is the Christian Method by which the Holy Society of Jesus clear themselves from their Enemies; how happy then must that Nation be, where these Loyolists flourish, who will not permit a good King to live, and will always be the Directors of the Councils of a bad
 One?

And in how dismal a Situation must the Affairs of Europe be, should these Men once become Masters of those inexhaustible Mines in the West-Indies, which are now in the Hands of the King of Portugal. This is not so remote a Fear, as the Generality of Mankind may imagine.

imagine. For this Holy Society * is already possess'd of a vast Tract of Country, called Paraguay, situated between Brasil and Rio de la Plata, which although originally held independent on the Crown of Spain, is now in a manner wholly exempt from that Jurisdiction.

The Indians † in this Country believe, that they can only merit Heaven by an Implicit Obedience to these ghostly Fathers, and that all Commerce or Communication with other Europeans is sinful. So that should a Spaniard or Portuguese enter these Territories, the best Fortune he can hope for, is that he shall be seized and carried before some Jesuit, who will be merciful enough to send him home again. The Apprehension that the Mission has been under for some time concerning this Settlement of theirs, was, lest the King of Spain who granted it to them, should resume it. To prevent which, they have taught the Natives the perfect Use and Art of making not only Slings and Swords, but even of Fire-Arms and Bayonets. Many Circumstances there are, which seem to prove, that (besides Spices, Oils, Paraguay and other valuable Commodities) there are in these Countries large and rich Mines, of which we cannot expect to have any certain Account, since no Body is admitted there that might be able to spy out their Strength. But whatsoever Wealth the Jesuits are Masters of already, it is certain, they are still grasping at more. For they have lately planted a new College near to the great Brasil Mines; which perhaps, when the World is least apprehensive of it, may be seized upon by these greedy Monks, who are so well prepared for the Performance of such an Exploit, as to be able to raise an Army of Sixty Thousand Indians, in less than Fourteen Days Time.

Not to detain my Reader any longer; I shall only assure him, that the Account of the Religious Orders in the Church of Rome, with which I have entertained him, contains in it nothing but what the Monks themselves are for the most Part my Vouchers for; and I have advanced no one Matter of Fact, but what the Authorities which I have set down in the Margin, will justify me in. And if so ridiculous a Scene of Superstition, Falshood, and Blasphemy, as that which appears in the Original and Progress of every Order, be not sufficient to create an Aversion to Popery, even in its most zealous Lay Advocates, they must have lost all Sense either of Plenty, Liberty, or Religion; and do indeed deserve to groan under that spiritual Tyranny, which they so foolishly contend for.

TO
HENRY BOWER, ESQ. F.S.A.

DEAR SIR,

THE following Catalogue will make part of a large topographical work, now nearly completed, in the preparation of which you have cheered and aided my labours. I print it also in this form, that it may be more easily accessible to many to whom our literary history is an object of greater interest than our topographical history. I have added a few notices of other libraries of the same class, to invite the public attention to a much-neglected department of our antiquarian literature.

So trifling a matter as this Catalogue will have a value in your eyes, to whom nothing is indifferent which can in any degree illustrate the history or the condition of our ancestors. It will have another value, from its connection with Worsborough, a place which has, for more than two centuries, been benefited, both in piety and good letters, by the liberal foundations of one of your kindred. And I have much satisfaction in the thought that this pamphlet is a small but enduring memorial of that high respect and esteem with which I am

Your truly obliged friend,

And very faithful Servant,

Bath, Nov. 24, 1830.

JOSEPH HUNTER.

PREFACE.

THE Priory of Bretton was founded in the reign of Stephen, or early in the reign of Henry the Second, by Adam the son of Swein, the son of Ailric. This was a Saxon family, one of the very few who were allowed to hold lands of any considerable extent under the Norman chief lords. He placed it in a retired situation, on the banks of the river Dearne. It was remote from any of the great seats of population; and Bretton may have been one of those "desolate places," the remoteness of which from the scenes of human concourse contributed to reconcile Bale to the dispersion of the libraries collected in them. It was a small foundation; and there is nothing remarkable in its history. A struggle for independency, which it long maintained with the house of St. John of Pontefract, on which the founder had made it dependent, is almost the only peculiar circumstance. It had its succession of priors and other monks till the time of the dissolution of all the monastic foundations; but it does not appear that any of them attained celebrity beyond the walls of their own monastery.

Immediately on the dissolution of the society who inhabited it, the buildings of the monastery were granted to William Blitheman; the same person, no doubt, (for the name is a remarkable one,) on whom Mr. Raine has affixed a note of infamy for his depredations on the church of Durham. Blitheman immediately proceeded to take down the beautiful church of Bretton, which he sold piecemeal to any person who would purchase of him a window or a door-way. The grant of the site of a monastery appears to have conveyed, not only the buildings, but the furniture, unless there was a reservation of it; so that the libraries would probably pass into the hands of those worldly and avaricious men who were the original purchasers of the monasteries. Blitheman was not a man to value books. What he did respecting the Bretton library we know not; but as late as 1558 it seems to have been in an entire state, and then in the care of certain ecclesiastics, who were connected with the house before its dissolution, and who still lingered near the scenes of their happier days. Certain it is that a catalogue of the books was made in that year, and entered in a chartulary which was written then, or not long before.

Complete catalogues of the libraries of the English religious houses are very rare remains of the middle ages. Hearne printed a catalogue of the Glastonbury library, but it was one made as early as 1247. The catalogues of the books which belonged to the houses of Peterborough, Leicester, and Reading, are also printed. Beside these, catalogues of the libraries of the monastic foundations of Deping, Ramsey, and St. Martin's of Dover, are known to be in existence. It is possible that other catalogues may be found, as we are by no means at the end of our discoveries in the monastic chartularies.

These catalogues contain of course the best account which we possess of the stores of early literature which were repositied in the libraries of the monasteries, and consequently of the books to which our ancestors of the middle ages had access. Next to these are the invaluable notices of Leland. He went under a royal commission to visit the monasteries, not to spy out their wealth, but to look into their libraries with the eye of an antiquary, an historian, and a scholar. His manuscripts contain numerous notices of the books which he found in them, and often copious extracts. These extracts are of great value, as some of the manuscripts themselves have perished, and form the substance of his Collectanea de Rebus Britannicis, published by Hearne. Beside what we can learn from Leland and the existing catalogues, there is little to be recovered. The whole of what could now be collected on this subject would lie in a small compass. It is to be desired that what still remains in manuscript should be brought to light, and that what is to be found in our printed literature should be collected. We should then know with greater certainty how far the English character received impression from the wisdom of former ages; for, beside the libraries of the monasteries, there were scarcely any other. Forgotten names would be recovered, and our imperfect catalogues of English writers be rendered less incomplete.

The library of Bretton consisted of about 150 distinct works. Some were printed books, but by far the greater part were manuscripts. To us, who are accustomed to reckon the books in even ordinary libraries by thousands, this appears a very small number. The donation of Humphrey duke of Gloucester to the University of Oxford, however, was considered a donation truly princely, and yet it did not extend beyond 129 volumes. The library of Deping consisted but of 23 books. It is somewhat surprising that the monks of Bretton, in their retired abode, should have accumulated so many; and perhaps some of the books in this list may have been the spoils of other libraries, collected between 1534, when the house was dissolved, and 1558, when the catalogue was made. The cost of 150 works, if they were all manuscript, must have been great. We can scarcely estimate the labour required to produce them at less than twenty pounds for each volume, taking the large and the small together.

On comparing the Bretton catalogue with that of other religious communities, we find the libraries of the English monasteries composed of very similar materials. They consisted of—

1. The Scriptures; and these always in an English or the Latin version. A Greek or Hebrew manuscript of the Scriptures is not found in Leland's Notes, or, I believe, in any of the catalogues. In Wetstein's Catalogue of MSS. of the New Testament, only one (Codex 59) is traced into the hands of an English community of religious.

2. The Commentators.

3. The Fathers.
4. Services and Rituals of the Church.
5. Writers in the theological controversies of the middle ages.
6. Moral and devotional writings.
7. Canon-Law.
8. The Schoolmen.
9. Grammatical writers.
10. Writers in mathematics and physics.
11. Medical writers.
12. Collections of epistles.
13. The middle-age poets and romance-writers.
14. The Latin classics.
15. The Chronicles.
16. The historical writings of doubtful authority, commonly called Legends.

Most of the manuscripts which composed the monastic libraries were destroyed at the Reformation. Bale, writing about fifteen years after the suppression of the monasteries, says, "I know a marchaunt-man that boughte the contentes of two noble lybraryes for XL shyllinges pryce, a shame it is to be spoken. Thys stuffe hath he occupied in the stede of graye paper by the space of more than these x yeares, and yet he hath store ynough for as many yeares to come. A prodygouse example is this, and to be abhorred of all men which love their nacyon as they shoulde do." And in another place he says that the choicest manuscripts were often torn to pieces in the houses of the persons who bought the monasteries of the king, or were sold by them to grocers and dealers in soap to wrap up their wares. Others were sent over the sea to be used by the bookbinders, “not in small nombre, but at tymes whole shyppes full, to the wonderynge of the foren nacyons.” Bale, who says that he could scarcely write of the dispersion of these libraries without tears, has a sensible proposal, that there should be established “in every shire of England one solemyne [solemn] lybrary, for the preservacyon of noble workes and the preferment of good learnynges in our posterytè.” Something of this kind might even now be done for the provinces by government, if governments can be allowed any leisure to attend to affairs such as these. We are far behind, in this respect, the nations of the continent. It is much that the reformers did nothing to preserve the treasures of ancient learning; for there were among them a few men who understood the value of it. But a great part of the work was carried on by ignorant zealots; and the remark of the eloquent writer of the Essay on Sepulchres, is but too just, that the age of the Reformation “was signally a period in which a plot was laid to abolish the memory of the things which had been, and to begin the affairs of the human species afresh.”

A good book contains the best thoughts of the finest minds, and no where can we find the result of so much labour lying within what is so manageable a bulk. Many might have deserved preservation, as exhibiting what was the literal character used in successive ages, and thus assisting to determine the age of manuscripts of far greater importance than themselves. Even those which we now esteem of the least value would have remained sensible and evident proofs of what was the kind of reading in the middle ages, and what the extent of knowledge on important points; which might enable us to set a just value on the opinions of the men of those times, whenever they are to be put in opposition to the opinions of a more enlightened age. The commentators, the schoolmen, the theologians, have thus an historical value; and I see not how the history of any science is to be conducted through the middle age period, but by the assistance of the works of science of the middle age writers, though the contents of them, as works of science, may have now become of little value. It is perhaps fortunate for biblical literature that scarcely any manuscripts of the Christian scriptures in the original tongue, the most important of all, had found their way to England; but we cannot but regret that so many copies of the Latin version perished; some of which were of the highest antiquity, and had an additional value from the circumstance of their connection with some venerable name in the early history of Christianity in Britain. The Red Book of Eye was the very copy of the Gospels which had belonged to Felix. The loss of every manuscript of a classic subtracted something from the evidence of the integrity of the text of that writer, if something was not also lost of that integrity itself. And not a Chronicle could perish, by which the world lost not the knowledge of some fact in our public history; and facts, like experiments in physics, never lose their value.

The Bretton books were in 1558 at the little village of Worsborough, a few miles from the Priory, famous as the birth-place, in later times, of Dr. Obadiah Walker, the learned master of University-college, Oxford, and of Edith the mother of Pope, whose memory he has so effectually and affectionately saved from oblivion. The chartulary which contains the catalogue is preserved in the library of a neighbouring family, and is perhaps the only book of this collection which has escaped the common fate of the monastic libraries.

LIBRARIES OF OTHER RELIGIOUS HOUSES.

Leland had his Commission in 1533, to search after “England’s Antiquities, and peruse the libraries of all cathedrals, abbies, priories, colleges, &c.; as also all places, wherein records, writings, and secrets of antiquity, were repositied.” All that we now know of the results, as respects the libraries, is in the Collectanea, mixed with other matter. The notices which follow of the Monastic Libraries, are to be understood to be derived from the labours of Leland, if no other authority is mentioned.

ABBOTSBURY.

Six works, all theological, are noticed by Leland. Among them is a fragment of a Saxon version of the Old Testament.

ABINGDON.

The library of this house had an imperfect copy of the Antiocheidos of Joseph of Exeter, (called Britannus by Leland) a poem which Camden supposed to be lost. See Remains, p. 313. Two other books are mentioned.

BARDNEY.

Here Leland found an old Chronicle, in English; a Life of St. Oswald, in verse; Commentaries, of Bede on the Acts of the Apostles, of Isidore on the Old Testament, of Anselm on the Epistles of Saint Paul, and of Pompey upon Donatus.

BARNWELL.

Leland has given extracts from two anonymous Chronicles which he found in this house. There were also the Chronicle of Hugh de St. Victor, two books of Epistles of Symmachus and Cassiodorus, a treatise Contra inanem nobilitatem, and a work, partly verse and partly prose, by Alexander Nequam or Necham, entitled Prometicus.

BATH.

Leland speaks in his work de Scriptoribus, of the monks of Bath possessing books which had been given to their house by king Athelstan. In his Collectanea we find only six books mentioned, two of which were works of Galen, and a third a treatise on Fevers, from the Arabic. There was also the Isagoge of Joannicius,* the Hipognosti-

* Adelard, who is the glory of this house, translated from the Arabic a work described as "Isagoge minor Japharis Mathematici," a copy of which is in the Bodleian Library, No. 1669, Digby 68. The other Arabic translation in the Bath library was no doubt by his hand. Adelard has the high honour of being the first who brought Western Europe acquainted with Euclid's Elements, which he translated into Latin from an Arabic copy, nor was it till ages after, that the Greek original was known in these parts of the world. Adelard was contemporary with Henry I. and with John de Villula, a great benefactor to Bath.

con, a poem by Laurence of Durham, a writer of the 12th century, and the Commentaries of Cæsar. Works in Medical Science were to be expected in such a place as Bath.

BATTLE.

Nineteen books are named by Leland. Among them is the Chronicle of Jordan Bishop of Ravenna, perhaps the same which is mentioned by James as being in his time in the library of Bennet College, Cambridge. See Vossius, de Historicis, p. 788. Here were also works of Bede and Alcuin, the Topography of Wales and Ireland by Giraldus, the Itinerary of Antonine (which was defective in the part relating to Britain), and a Chronicle of William de la Lee, who seems to have been a brother of the house. The rest were theological.

BEAU-LIEU.

In the library of this house were the Lives of Anselm and Wilfrid; Claudian De statu animæ; several Commentators; and a few other works.

BRISTOL.

All that Leland has told us respecting the libraries of this city is, that the Augustinian Canons had the Topica of Cicero, and the Chronicle of Ivo.

BUKFAST.

The library of this house abounded in the Schoolmen. There was a copy of Trivet's History, from the Creation to the birth of Christ; and of a Commentary, by the same author, on Seneca's Tragedies.

BURLINGTON.

Here was a large collection of the works of Robert the Scribe, who was the fourth prior. There were also several other theological works, and a Commentary on the Almagest of Ptolomy.

BURNE.

Leland mentions only one book, a little History of Britain.

BYLAND.

Four theological works only.

CAMBRIDGE.

Leland gives a long catalogue of books in the greater and the less public libraries, and in the libraries of the colleges. There were houses at Cambridge of three of the orders of friars, the Augustinians, the Dominicans, and Franciscans. Each had its library. That of the Augustinians contained only Schoolmen and Divines. The Dominicans had an English version of the Scriptures; Bartholomeus; a Commentary of Trivet on Valerius De non ducendâ uxore. In the library of the Franciscans were 127 Epistles of Bishop Grosteste, with others.

CANTERBURY.

The great monastery of St. Augustine had many books. Leland calls Philippus super Job, "liber venerandæ antiquitatis." Here were several of the works of Alcuin; Bede de arte metricâ; Isidore de naturâ rerum. There was also a copy of Terence, and the Ænigmata of Tatwin and Aldhelm.

Leland has preserved also a catalogue, or extracts from it, of what he calls the Bibliotheca Cantuariensis. It consists of 65 articles, the most curious of which are: Historia Anglicana vetus, apud Talebotum; * Chronica Jordani Episcopi Ravennaten. de rebus gestis Gothorum; Itinerarium Antonini; Suetonius; Chronica Eusebii; Chronica Gervasii; Historia Hibernica, autore Giraldo; Historia Radul-

* This was doubtless Robert Talbot the friend of Leland, who wrote also a Comment on Antonine, concerning whom see Pitz, p. 737.

phi de Diceto; Liber Aluredi de custodiendis accipitribus; Liber Soratii Medici ad Cleopatram reginam, de Mulieribus; Historia de lege et naturâ Saracenorum; Joannes Sarisbiriensis de statu curiæ Ro.; Athelardus de natural. quest. secundum Arabicos.

We have also notices of other books to be found in the libraries of this ancient seat of learning and religion. They are for the most part Commentaries and Theological works.

CASTLE-ACRE.

Works of Quintilian, Boetius, Bede, and others.

CERNE-ABBAS.

This house was of Saxon foundation. Leland speaks of an ancient manuscript in the library relating to Saxon History; and of a life of St. Edwold.

CIRENCESTER.

The library of this house contained many of the writings of Alexander Necham, who had a high reputation in the middle ages. Leland says that he was the sixth prior of this house, a fact in his history not mentioned by Pitz, p. 298. The other books named by him are theological.

COGGESHAL.

In the library of this house was a copy of Ailred's Life of David King of Scotland; also Godard De triplici modo computandi; Stephen Langton De Pænitiâ; and a Commentary on the Pentateuch by Odo, whom Leland calls, "Theologus exactè eruditus."

COLCHESTER.

The monks of this house had for their recreation, "omnes fere Latini poetæ." There were also the History of the Normans, by Dudo, a writer of the 10th century; the works of Paul Winfrid, an historian contemporary with Alcuin; and the Cosmography of Ethicus.

CROYLAND.

It can be but a small part of the library of this learned society which is mentioned by Leland. They had Fulcher, Turpin, and a history of King Richard, in verse; two Commentators; and Dymmoc against Wickliffe.

DEPING.

A catalogue of twenty-three books, which formed the library of this house in the middle of the 14th century, may be seen in the Monasticon, new edition, IV. 167.

DOVER.

A complete catalogue of the books belonging to the house of St. Martin, as they stood in 1389, is now in the Bodleian Library, marked Bodl. 920. Leland saw here Apuleius de Deo Platonis, and a little history of the town.

DUNKESWELL.

The Epistles of Symmachus.

DUNHOLME.

This house had several of the works of its own prior Laurence; Trivet's Commentary on the Metamorphosis; a History of King Pepin; and a few others.

EVESHAM.

Here were several works of Adam, who was the abbot in the time of king Henry II.; a Commentary on the Timæus of Plato; a work of Apuleius; with the History of Paul Winfrid, and Fortunatus, another Italian historian of about the same age.

EXETER.

Two libraries are mentioned by Leland, that of the Canons, and that of the Predicants. The former appears to have been the more extensive. It contained several of the works of Roger Bacon; a Tract of Wickliffe, and another by a writer against him; the Chronicles of Ivo; the Itinerary of Anthony the Martyr from the Holy Land; and many others named by Leland. Among the books of the Predicants, which were schoolmen and theological, was the Harmony of the Gospels by Clement of Llantony, for which see Pitz, p. 232.

EYE.

Here was preserved a truly venerable volume, called The Red Book of Eye. It was used in the time of Leland as the book on which oaths were administered in that part of the kingdom. It was a copy of the Gospels, and the tradition of the house was that it had formerly belonged to Felix, whom Sigebert, king of the East Angles, had made the prelate of his kingdom, and seated at Dunwich. He died A.D. 647. It was written in the uncial letter; "litteris majusculis Longobardicis." Coll. IV. 26. These monks had also Fulcher's History, and a Map of England.

EYNSHAM.

Henry of Huntingdon; Prosper; and William of Malmesbury, on the Lamentations of Jeremiah.

FEVERSHAM.

Giraldi Cambrensis Topographia, Solinus, a Chronicle of William of Malmesbury, and four other books.

FORD.

The works of John, its own abbot. Isidore de Viris illustribus, and a few others.

FOUNTAINS.

Seven works of Divines and Schoolmen.

Four works of the schoolmen.

GLASTONBURY.

“ Eram aliquot ab hinc annis Glessoburgi Somurotrigum, ubi antiquissimum simul et famosissimum est totius insulæ nostræ cœnobium, animumque longo studiorum labore fessum, favente Richardo Whittingo, ejusdem loci abbate, recreabam, donec novus quidam cum legendi tum discendi ardor me inflammaret. Supervenit autem ardor ille citius opinione. Itaque statim me contuli ad bibliothecam, non omnibus perviam, ut sacrosanctæ vetustatis reliquias, quarum tantus ibi numerus quantus nullo alio facilè Britannia loco, diligentissimè evolverem. Vix certè limen intraveram, cùm antiquissimorum librorum vel solus conspectus religionem nescio an stuporem animo incuteret meo, eâque de causâ pedem paululum sistebam. Deinde, salutato loci numine, per dies aliquot omnes forulos curiosissimè excussi. Inter vero excutiendum, præter alia multa admirandæ vetustatis exemplaria, reperi fragmentum historiæ à Melchino scriptæ, &c.”

These are the words of Leland in his de Scriptoribus, p. 41. In his Collectanea we have a list of thirty-nine works belonging to this library, among which are Grammatica Euticis, a book which had been the property of St. Dunstan; a life of St. Wilfrid by Stephen the presbyter; another, in verse, by Archbishop Odo; Trivet's history; Rabanus Maurus (who is in many other libraries); Ænigmata of various authors; the Saxon version of Orosius; Dictionarium Latino-Saxonicum; Hegesippus; St. Victor; the writings of William of Malmesbury, relating to Glastonbury.

Hearne has printed in the Appendix to his John of Glastonbury, a complete catalogue of the library as it stood in 1247, p. 423—444.

The monks of Glastonbury were very active in the Scriptorium. Tanner has printed a list of books written in this house during the presidency of one abbot. They amount to fifty, and many of them were works of great extent. Notitia, pref. p. 69.

GLOUCESTER.

Twenty works are mentioned by Leland, chiefly divines and schoolmen. The Panormia of Osbern, a monk of Gloucester, a vocabulary, which Pitz calls “ingens opus,” was amongst them.

GUILFORD.

A Life of St. German, and two others.

HARTLAND.

A medical volume; and another by Robert de Cricklade, prior of Oxford. Coll. IV. 153. See also p. 148.

HELY.

Eight books only are mentioned by Leland, among which is a copy of Vitruvius and of Antonine's Itinerary.

HENTON.

The following books are specified in an indenture of the year 1343, as having been lent by the prior and convent of Henton, to another house.*

* This curious chart, curious on account of its contents, and as showing an unobserved usage of the Monasteries, has never before been printed. I owe the knowledge of it to the Collections of sir Thomas Phillipps, a gentleman who, with the spirit of a Bodley, a Cotton, or a Harley, and deserving, like these illustrious men, the respect and gratitude of his country, has brought together a collection of the manuscripts of the Middle Ages, such as never before was assembled in private hands. It is far from being improbable that amongst the thousands (for thousands there are) of the manuscripts which he has brought to our shores, may be some of the contents of those “ship-loads” mentioned by Bale, which were sent abroad on the suppression of the English monasteries.

- Two books of Homilies, to be read in the Refectory.
 The four Gospels.
 The Meditations of Anselm.
 The Enchiridion of Saint Sixtus.
 A treatise by Peter Cluniacensis.
 Life of John the Almoner.

 The Meditations of St. Bernard.
Quendam libellum inter Orosium et Augustinum ; et Templum Dei.
 Life of Paul the Hermit.
 Excerpta from the Lives of St. Anthony, St. Hilarion, and St. Sylvester.
De orto Pilati.
Libel. de Manipul. flor.
Dialogus S. S. Gregorii et Augustini.
 I Legend. totius anni, abbreviat.
 Primar. Ecclesiast. et II Primar. Puerorum.
 A Breviary.
 Liber qui sic incipit, " Qui bene præsent presbyteri."
Stimulus Amoris, et multa alia edificatoria de manu Domini Will. de Colle.

The engagement to restore these books was formally drawn and sealed.

HIDE.

Ænigmata Simposii.

JOREVAL.

Here Leland found a copy of Nennius, the Chronicle of the Abbey, and a book of Homilies.

KEYNSHAM.

Here were two works of William of Malmesbury, and the Lives of Elfege and Aldhelm.

KIRKHAM.

A Life of Walter Espec the founder, written by Ailréd, abbot of Rievaulx, was preserved in the library of this house; a book of William of Malmesbury de Legibus; and the Decrees of Anselm.

LAUNDE.

Pliny the Second de re medicâ, the Chronicle of Isidore, and another work, are mentioned by Leland.

LEICESTER.

Six manuscripts only are mentioned by Leland; but the best information respecting this library may be seen in Mr. Nichols's History of Leicestershire, where the entire catalogue may be found.

LETLEY.

Rhetorica Ciceronis.

LLANTHONY.

Here was a copy of Terence, a classic which occurs perhaps more frequently than any other. Leland calls it a "vetus Codex." Here was also a copy of the works of Sidonius Apollinaris.

LONDON.

The notices of the libraries in London by Stowe are less numerous than might be expected from the turn of mind of that writer. Leland has ample notices of the books repositied in six libraries, viz. those of St. Paul's, St. Peter's, the Franciscans, Predicants, Carmelites, and Augustinians.

In St. Paul's Library were William of Malmesbury, and numerous theological works, among which were many relating to Wickliffe. In what he calls the Bibliotheca Petrina (distinguished by him from the Bibliotheca Petrina of Westminster) he has taken notice of only four Schoolmen.

In the library of the Franciscans, among a great assemblage of Divines and Schoolmen, were The Life of St. Edward the Martyr; the History by Ivo; the History by Sigebert the Monk; and Chronica Martini. The library of the Predicants was of the same character; as were also those of the two other orders of Friars. The Carmelites had, however, a very antient copy of Solinus; the History of the Normans by Dudo; and Macrobius. A copy of the Problemata of Adelard in the Predicants' library had been greatly injured.

MALMESBURY.

Leland mentions twenty-four books which he found in the library of this ancient and learned foundation. None of the historical writings of William of Malmesbury are named except his life of Aldhelm. There are Commentaries by him on the Gospels and the Lamentations; Juvencus, a poet; the works of Fortunatus, in verse; a Life of Paternus; a work of Apuleius; the Epistles of Alcuin. The rest are for the most part Fathers and Divines.

MONTACUTE.

Paschasius de septem sacramentis.

NEWBURGH.

Leland enquired in vain here for the Chronicle of William of Newburgh, who was a canon of this house. He was shown a Commentary upon the Canticles by the same writer.

NORWICH.

He found several libraries existing in this city. The Christicola had several historical works, as Flores historiarum, the works of Martin the historian (q. Martin of Alnwick?), Giraldus on the History of Ireland, and the Life of St. William. The Computus Roberti Lin- colniensis, the Pantheon of Godfrey of Viterbo, and Trivet's Commentary on Augustine, are the other books specified by Leland.

At the Predicants he notices only three works, all theological. At the Franciscans a geographical work by Roger Bacon. And at the Carmelites several mathematical works and classics; as the Questiones naturales of Adelard; Euclides de oculo and de visibus; Geometria Wiberti pseudo-apostoli; Nicholas de Linnea de judiciis, &c. The classics were Suetonius and Terence, the latter a "vetus codex," Apuleius de Deo Socratis, with two treatises of Aristotle. There were also Albritius de origine Deorum, an Historiola of Ailred of Rievaulx, and a few other books.

Some of the books had been stolen from the Carmelites' library, when Leland was at Norwich. We have special testimony to the fate of the books which remained. "I have bene also at Norwyche," says Bale, "oure seconde cytie of name, and there all the library monumentes are turned to the use of their grossers, candel-makers, sopesellers, and other worldly occupyers; so studyouse have we ben there for a comen wealth, and so careful of good lernyng. O negligence most unfryndly to our nacion! I woulde have bene sory to have uttered so obscure a facte, had not the ungentilnesse of the thing required it, to the warnyng of them whiche shall come after, for doying the lyke to the hindaunce of the realme."

OSENEY.

Ivo's Chronicle; a work de cessatione legalium; Lives of Saint Jerome, Saint Frediswith, Saint Winifrid, and of archbishop Odo, of which the Life of St. Jerome was by Dr. Thomas Gascoign, are all the books noticed by Leland in the library of this little foundation.

OXFORD.

The catalogue of books in the public library, and in the libraries of the colleges, fill several pages of the Collectanea. The Carmelites and the Predicants had each a house at Oxford, and each had a few books; but none of any peculiar interest. The Franciscans had also a house and a library, but no books in it. Leland's remark is curious: "Apud Franciscanos sunt telæ aranearum in bibliothecâ, præterea tineæ et blattæ, amplius, quicquid alii jactent, nihil, si spectes eruditos libros. Nam ego, invitis fratribus omnibus, curiosè bibliothecæ forulos omnes excussi." He seems to have found some difficulty in acting under his commission.

PERSHORE.

A Comment by Bede on the Proverbs and Apocalypse, and Elfric's Grammar Latino-Saxonica.

PETERBOROUGH.

It is a very imperfect notice of the library of this house which is given by Leland. He enumerates only fifteen works, of which the historical are only the following: Passio Sanctorum Wolfadi et Rufini, filiorum Regis Wolpheri; Vita S. Eustachii carmine heroico; Liber Epistolarum Gulielmi de Semperingham; Vita Gisleni episcopi Græci; Vita Felicis, eleganti carmine scripta; Ferculphi Historia; while the Catalogue printed in Gunton's History of Peterborough Cathedral contains many hundreds.

PLYMPTON.

A few theological volumes.

PONTEFRACT.

Two books of Homilies; Valentius on the Sentences; and Albertus de naturâ locorum.

RAMSEY.

Among the rolls in the Cotton collection is one of five skins, marked I.16, containing an extensive catalogue of the library of this house. The more curious articles are specified in the new edition of the Mo- nasticon, vol. II. p. 554. Leland notices several of the books, and among them is a copy of Antonine.

READING.

A catalogue of the books belonging to the society of religious in this town is printed in the Supplement to the History and Antiquities of Reading, 4to. 1810. See also the new Monasticon, vol. IV. p. 38. Leland specifies Bede de naturis Bestiarum; a Comment on the Mythologicon of Fulgentius; and two works of Necham's, which he saw at the Franciscans' at Reading.

REVESBY.

A Life of St. Modwen, by Geffery abbot of Burton, and a Commentary on the twelve Prophets, by Robert of Burlington.

RIEVAULX.

The monks of this house had preserved many writings of Ailred their second abbot, and of Walter his deacon; but Ailred's Life of Walter Espec their founder, does not appear to have been among them. They had other works, chiefly theological.

SAINT ALBAN'S.

In the library of this monastery were a few medical works. A copy of Matthew Paris's History had been stolen from the Library. Leland gives extracts from the Life of King Offa, and from the Lives of the Abbots, by Matthew Paris.

SAINT BENNET AT HOLME.

Five works only are mentioned. Alexander Necham de utensilibus; Robertus Lincolnensis (Grosteste) commentary on the books of Dionysius de Hierarchiâ, from which Leland inferred that this Robert was skilled in Greek; Speculum Sacerdotum of Richard of Leicester; a Chronicle of Alexander the Great; and Henry of Huntingdon de Herbarum virtute, in verse.

SAINT DENIS.

Homilies, by Bede.

SAINT EDMUND'S BURY.

Here was a large collection of Commentators; a few of the Schoolmen; a Life of St. Edmund; the Sufferings of Demetrius the Martyr; the Letters of Alcuin; the Dialogues of Adelard de naturis rerum; Trivet's Commentary on Boethius; and two works on the Monastic Life, by Ured, a monk of Durham. There were also the Ænigmata of Aldhelm, and a poem of the same author de Virginitate; the Laws of the Lombards; Vitruvius; the Histories of Freulf and of Hoveden; and a Sallust, a very ancient manuscript, "vetustissimus."*

SAINT NEOT'S.

A Life of the Patron Saint.

SALISBURY.

The British History, in verse, from Brute to Cadwallader, after Geffery; the Quodlibets of Trivet; and Leo Papa de Conflictu Vitiorum et Virtutum. These were at the Predicants.

SAWTRY.

Two minor works of Henry of Huntingdon and Laurence of Durham.

SHERBURN.

Here were several works of Adam de Barking, a monk of this house;

* The frequent application of vetus to the manuscripts of the classics leads to the suspicion that most of the manuscripts of that class then in England were really of very high antiquity, and that few of them were transcribed in what we may call the latter half of the middle age period.

Lives of Saint Dunstan, Saint German, and of Swithin, of which the two last were in verse.

SPALDING.

A book of Adalbert the deacon; and another of Alexander Necham.

STRATFORD.

All the works of Stephen Langton, archbishop of Canterbury.

SUDWICK.

Henry of Huntingdon; Bede's History, in Saxon; and a treatise of his de Die Judicii.

TAVISTOCK.

Constantinus Africanus de Re Medicâ, and three other works.

TAUNTON.

Here also were medical works, and Ivo's Chronicle.

TEWKSBURY.

It can hardly be supposed that the five works mentioned by Leland were the whole collection of the monks of this ancient foundation. Among them were Bosham's Life of Thomas à Becket, and a Treatise on Astronomy by Alfragan.

THETFORD.

A Life of St. Edmund; Bede de Tabernaculo, and de Situ Terræ Sanctæ; and Gilbertus super Psalterium, are the only books specified by Leland.

THORNEY.

Eglogæ aliquot Marci ex-Questoris, qui floruit tempore Justiniani;

Isagoge Porphyrii, Victorino interprete; and works of Waleys, Necham, and John of Cornwall.

THORNTON.

Three theological works; and Peter de Vineis, pro Frederico contra Pontificem Romanum.

TINMOUTH.

An anonymous Chronicle relating to the Saxon times, from which Leland has given extracts.

TOPHOLME.

Fulcher's History; and a fragment of an Historiola de Britannia.

TOTNESS.

Historia Evangelica.

TWINHAM.

Certain Laws in Saxon; and William of Malmesbury's Life of Saint Patrick. (See Coll. iii. 273. iv. 149.)

WALDEN.

Here was the Chronicle of Peter de Hanham, a monk of this house, beginning with Hengist, and continued to his own time, 1224. Here also were Bede on the Canticles, and Berengaud on the Apocalypse.

WALSINGHAM.

Gervase on the Psalms; and Capgrave.

WALTHAM.

The library of this house contained several of Stephen Langton's Commentaries; the Ænigmata of Aldhelm, Simphosius, Eusebius, and Tatwin; with the Vocabularius, or Elucidarium Bibliothecæ of Alexander Necham. There were a few other books.

WARDON.

In the library here were many of the Commentaries of Thomas Walleis, and the moral Stichæ of Geoffery prior of St. Swithin of Winchester. There were also other Commentators; Lisbonense Consilium; and a poem of Richard, a monk of Canterbury, having for its title “Unde Malum?”

WAVERLEY.

Liber Heraclidis de Vitis Patrum; an epistle of Bede de Æquinotio; and three books in the department of Theology.

WELLS.

Few libraries were better furnished than that of the canons of Wells. Leland enumerates not fewer than 46 different works.

The first in the list is the principal poem of Hautville, entitled Architrenius. Pitz says that there was a manuscript of this poem in his time in Benet College Library, p. 267. The name of Hautville has not before appeared; and yet, if we may trust to Pitz, he was the Virgil, Ovid, and Horace of England, all in one, and he certainly had a high reputation among the scholars of Europe when learning began to revive. His æra is the reign of John. The next is Bede de Arte Metricâ. Then the Mythologia of Necham; a translation of Dante into Latin, the only manuscript of that kind which we have found; with a very beautiful (“pulcherrimus”) copy of Terence.

There follow, Liber Ermeneuticon; Interpretationes Eucherii de Nominibus Hebraicis; Orthographia Bedæ; the Mythologicon of John of Salisbury; Rabanus de Naturis Rerum; Proterius; and two works of Isidore.

Next in Leland's list follow the historical writings. Herman's Chronicle, from the Creation to A.D. 349; William of Malmesbury on the Miracles of Mary; the Chronicles of William de Newburgh and Walter de Gisburn; and the Book of Thomas Beckington, who was afterwards Bishop of Bath and Wells, on the right of the King of England to the throne of France.

There were two Saxon manuscripts, the Dialogues of Gregory and the Sermons of Alfric, and various theological works, among which several are enumerated which belong to what may be called the Wickliffe controversy.

The only work of science is a treatise of Bishop Grosteste de Cometâ; unless the Hexameron of the same writer is to be regarded as a work of science also.

Last of all are placed the works of John Chandler, who was Chancellor of Wells in the time of Bishop Beckington. These were an Apology for the State of Human Nature; Orations in praise of the two cities of Bath and Wells, of which not even a fragment or quotation is now known to exist; four epistles in praise of Bishop Beckington; and his Opuscula, containing, amongst other things, the Laudes et Celebria Facta Gulielmi Wiccamiensis.

WESTMINSTER.

The library of St. Peter's, Westminster, as it appears in the pages of Leland, is far less curious than might have been expected. There are no biblical manuscripts, no classics, no chronicles, no science; but the works only of divines, canonists, and schoolmen, which, however valuable to the age in which they were composed, have now nearly lost their value and their interest also.

WHITBY.

Leland gives extracts from the Chronicle of an uncertain author, which he found at Whitby; and from Lives of Saint Bega and Saint Hilda. He appears also to have found here a Life of Thomas à Becket, by Elias, a monk of Evesham.

WIGMORE.

An old Chronicle.

WIMUNDHAM.

Cassiodorus de Animâ; and a treatise on Computus, by Roger abbot of St. Alban's, a distinguished mathematician.

WINCHCOMBE.

Here were several of the writings on moral subjects, of Ailred the abbot of Rievaulx; and the Homilies of John de Abbeville.

WORCESTER.

Here were the Lives of Egwin, Ethelbert the Martyr, and Gregory the Great; the Cosmography of Ethicus; the Epistles of Leo; the Commentary of Duncaht, an Irish bishop, on the books of Martian Capella. This Leland calls "opus eruditum." Here were also the Epistles of Senatus prior of Worcester; Bede de Arte Metricâ; a work of Rabanus, and one or two others.

YORK.

The library of the great abbey of St. Mary without the Walls, contained many valuable books. Here were the Chronicles of Ralph de Diceto; Giraldus de Topographiâ Hiberniæ; the Lives of Saint Machutus, and of Saint John of Beverley, who was the fifth archbishop; Horman on the Astrolabe; Trivet's Commentary on Augustine de Civitate Dei; the same author's Commentary on the Tragedies of Seneca, and Commentaries on the same Tragedies by Albertus Musacus. Here were also a poem by Hilasius de Hercule, which Leland says was commonly ascribed to Virgil; two works of Bishop Grosteste; and many of the writings of Richard Rolle, the hermit of Hampole. The site of St. Mary's Abbey, which is lately anew devoted to science and literature, was thus in ancient times consecrated to good letters, as well as to religion and piety.

When Leland visited the library of the Canons of York, he found in it scarcely any good books: "jam fere bonorum librorum nihil est." He gives the titles of two only: Roger de Waltham de nobilibus Dicitis et Factis, and the Commentary of Wateley on Boetius de Disciplinâ Scholarium. Waltham was a writer of the 13th century, and Leland calls his work "opus insigne."

It was not without concern that our good antiquary saw the destitute state of the Canons' Library at York. He contrasts its state with what it had been in the time of Alcuin, who, in a letter to Charlemain, speaks of it as being plentifully enriched with the best books of the best authors. This library, which was collected by Egbert, the seventh archbishop, a contemporary of Alcuin, was destroyed by fire, either by the Danes or by the Normans. There was a second attempt to found a library, by Thomas the first archbishop after the Conquest: "Ecclesiam a se constructam libris et ecclesiasticis ornamentis, tam ad splendorem quàm ad usum, abundè instruxit; et magnâ sollicitudine doctissimos viros undique conquisitos in eâ collocavit, cum quibus crebros sermones de rebus literariis conserere solebat, non tam animi causâ, quam ut eos ad studia literarum excitaret."* This library was consumed in the great fire of 1137, when the cathedral, the abbey of St. Mary, and most of the churches of York, were destroyed.

But the loss of Egbert's library is the most to be regretted; for Egbert lived as early as the 8th century, and he had collected Greek and Hebrew manuscripts, as well as Latin. In the poem de Pontificibus et Sanctis Ecclesiæ Ebor. attributed to Alcuin, we have a valuable notice of this library: and the verses will form a suitable conclusion to these brief memoranda:

" Illic invenies veterum vestigia Patrum,
