MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

SCENE. — A photographer's saloon. Entrances R. I E., L. I E., L. 2 E., and C. D. in flat. Camera up R. Other furniture ad libitum. Table down L. and chairs.

(CHARLES AUGUSTUS discovered seated at table reading letter.)

CHARLES. Another letter from Miss Johnson, — charming creature, she's dead in love with me. Now here am I, head over heels in debt, and business dull. I live in fear of my creditors, who come every day by the dozen, dunning the very life out of me. (Enter SALLY C. D. unperceived, and stands behind CHARLES.) Now, Miss Johnson has plenty of stamps, and is handsome as a Venus. I think I'll elope with her and get married. But what is to become of Sally? I've promised to marry her. Alas, she is poor, and I never could support her, so I will let her slide, and I'll write to Miss Johnson, and propose to her to elope with me. (Writes.) My Dear Miss Johnson: I am in raptures reading your letter. That I love you I solemnly swear, and I will ever be true to you. Say you will elope with me, and hasten to have the marriage ceremony performed at once, that I may call you mine forever. Yours truly, Charles Augustus.

SALLY. Oh, you villain ! Oh, you deceiver ! Oh, you doubledyed monster !

CHARLES. My dear Sally, it's only a joke.

SALLY. Only a joke, you rascal! I'll fix you for this. I heard your conversation. You're going to elope with Miss Johnson, hey? I'll go and get my brother Jim, who stands six feet high, and he'll give you a thrashing you richly deserve — you horrid, mean, contemptible wretch!

CHARLES. Hold on, Sally, I assure you -

SALLY. Don't talk to me. (Exit hurriedly C. D. slamming door behind her.)

CHARLES. Confound the luck! Caught in the very act. I've put my foot in it now. Gone after brother Jim — great big fellow he'll eat me up. The best thing I can do is to fly from here, and stay away until this affair blows over. I'll shut up shop and go at once. (Enter CAPT. NEVERSINK.) Oh, Lord! here he is now. CAPT. How are you, sir ?

CHARLES. How will I ever get out of this scrape? (Aloud.) I beg your pardon, sir, you have the advantage of me.

CAPT. No! you've got the advantage of me.

CHARLES. I assure you, sir, it was only a joke.

CAPT. Joke! Well you just fork over five dollars, and there won't be so much of a joke.

CHARLES. Five dollars ? Why, ain't you brother Jim ?

CAPT. No, I'm not brother Jim. My name is Captain Neversink, of the good sloop "Nonesuch."

CHARLES. Ah, you want your pictures taken. Sit right down, Captain Nonesuch.

CAPT. Neversink, sir.

CHARLES. I hope you never will, Captain. Remove your hat -

CAPT. No, you don't. You took some pictures of me the other day and warranted them fast colors. See here! (Show cards.) All faded.

CHARLES. They have vanished.

CAPT. Well, I should say they had vanished. Here, give me my money.

CHARLES: Sit again. I'll take some more for you.

CAPT. No. A burnt child is afraid of fire. Give me my money and I'll go somewhere else.

CHARLES. All right. You'll have to wait until some one comes in to have pictures taken. When they pay me, I'll pay you.

CAPT. I'm in a hurry — I can't wait. Go borrow it of somebody.

CHARLES (aside). I'll go and leave him in charge of the office, and brother Jim will take him for me. (Aloud.) Ah, Captain, sit down a few minutes, and I'll go and try and raise you the money. (Takes off morning-gown, and puts on his street coat.)

CAPT. How long will you be gone ?

CHARLES. Five minutes. Here put on this coat — you're the boss now. If any one comes in, say your operator has stepped out for a moment. (Exit CHARLES, D. in F.)

CAPT. (puts on morning-gown). If that rascal don't come back, I'll take enough furniture to get square with him. (Looks around room; goes to R. I E., dog barks, he jumps back.) I'll be dog-goned if I go in there. (Goes to camera, and looks in it; bus. ad lib.; enter DEPUTY SHERIFF; he looks around and discovers CAPT. looking in camera; goes to him, catches him by the ear, and drags him to R. H. corner of stage. CAPT. shouting "Murder! Let go my ear!" etc.)

SHERIFF. I'm looking for you. (Beats him with stuffed club.) CAPT. I'm sorry you found me.

SHERIFF. I know you, Jeremy Diddler. (Same business.)

CAPT. I'm not Jimmy the Fiddler. I'm --

SHERIFF. I know you, Charles Augustus. (Beats him.) CAPT. That's not my name, it's —

SHERIFF. Don't deny your autograph, Charles, t'won't do. Too thin. Ain't you Charles Augustus?

CAPT. No, sir. (SHERIFF beats him.) Yes, yes, I'm Charles Augustus.

SHERIFF. So far, so good.

CAPT. So far, very bad.

SHERIFF. You have eluded me long enough. Here's a bill from your former landlady - come, settle. Sixty-five dollars.

CAPT. I don't owe any landlady sixty-five dollars.

SHERIFF. What, you deny the debt?

CAPT. Yes. (Beats him.) No, no - I owe it. I'll pay it.

SHERIFF. A bill from your tailor - suit of clothes and ulster ninety-six dollars.

CAPT. I haven't bought a suit of clothes in five years.

SHERIFF. You dispute that bill, hey? (Beats him.)

CAPT. Yes! No! I owe it, certainly. Any more bills?

SHERIFF. Now I'm satisfied. Come, settle, Charles.

CAPT. Say, Mister, you're wrong! I'm not Charles Augustus. (SHERIFF is about to beat him). Hold on! Let me speak. My name is Captain Neversink, of the Good Sloop "Nonesuch." I am from Mud-cum-Slushy. You mean the other fellow - he owes me five dollars, and I'm waiting here while he has gone to get it.

SHERIFF. What, have I made a mistake? My dear Captain, I apologize.

CAPT. Pound a man to death, then apologize.

SHERIFF. Say not a word about this; my reputation is at stake. CAPT. Yes, my back is all chops, cutlets and porter-house steaks.

SHERIFF. I'll meet you again and make amends for this.

CAPT. Never mind; if I meet you again, I'll cross over on the other side of the street.

SHERIFF. I'm very sorry about this affair. Good-day. (Exit.) CAPT. You look sorry. I'll leave this place before some one else comes. (Goes to door and is met by SALLY who cowhides him all around stage to L. H. corner. She discovers her mistake and screams.)

SALLY. Oh, I beg your pardon. I took you for the other fellow. I hope I haven't hurt you.

CAPT. Oh, no. You've cut my legs all to pieces, that's all. SALLY. I am very sorry, indeed. I hope you will forgive me. Ta, ta. (Bus. ad lib.) I'll see you again. (Exit D. in F.)

CAPT. Not if I see you first, you won't. (Noise outside.) Somebody else is coming. (Goes to R. H., dog barks; runs to C. D., is met by BUTCHER, who stands C. of stage.)

BILL. Say, young fellow, when are you going to pay me that meat-bill? (Shows bill.)

CAPT. What meat-bill? BILL. Two dozen porter-house steaks, a dozen mutton chops, twenty-eight veal cutlets, six pounds of liver and a beef's heart. Twenty-two dollars and forty cents.

CAPT. My good fellow, I don't owe such a bill as that.

What do ver soy? (Bus. ad lib. shown.) Soy, if you. BILL. don't settle that bill the next time you come down to the market, I'll give you a bath in the corn-beef tray. If I don't, I hope I may never leg another lamb. (Bus. and exit.)

CAPT. (bus. of imitating BILL). This is enough fun for one day, so I'll seek consolation aboard my sloop. (Is going when JIM enters and knocks him down.)

IIM. Get up, and let me knock you down again.

CAPT. No; I'm down, I'll stay here.

JIM (pulls him up on his feet). Oh, you deceiver of innocent females !

CAPT. No, my friend; what do you mean?

IIM. You refuse to marry my sister, hev?

CAPT. How can I? I am a married man.

IIM. So you are a double villain. (About to strike CAPT.)

CAPT. Hold on, I ain't the other fellow, he's gone out.

JIM. Isn't your name Charles Augustus?

CAPT. No, my name is Captain Neversink.

JIM. What? Have I made a mistake?

CAPT. Well, I should say you had.

JIM. Why, Captain, I beg ten thousand pardons. (Shakes his hand violently.) My dear fellow, I'm very sorry indeed. I wouldn't hurt you for the world. What are you doing here?

CAPT. I had some pictures taken here and they all vanished. I come to get my money back, and he's gone out to get it, and left me in charge of the store. What might be your name?

IIM. My name is Jim.

CAPT. What! Brother Jim?

IIM. I'm brother to the young lady who has been deceived by - (about to strike).

CAPT. Hold on, Jim, it's the other fellow. JIM. Oh, I see how it is; but we'll get even with him. Say, lets you and me take some pictures.

CAPT. I don't know anything about the business.

JIM. I'll show you. That room is where the chemicals are; go and light the gas. (L. I E.)

CAPT. What kind of gals?

JIM. Chemicals. This room is where he keeps the plates. (L. 2 E.) Don't you disturb any of the bottles; if you do you will suffocate. Now I'll go and prepare the plates, and you light the gas, and be very careful. Here's some matches. (Gives CAPT. matches.)

CAPT. Say, you light the gas, and I'll find the plates.

JIM. Pshaw! Go ahead, Captain, there's no danger !

(Both exeunt; enter CHARLES AUGUSTUS, and looks around.)

CHARLES. The Captain gone. Tired of waiting, I presume. hear my creditors are going to raid me, so I'll lock up the place and leave the city for a few weeks. (Goes to L. I E., locks door; same L. 2 E.; is about to go.) I declare I forgot to fix my chemicals. If I had an enemy and wanted to get rid of him, I'd lock him up in this room, and he'd suffocate in five minutes. (CAPT. groans.) Hello, what's that? Have I locked some one in there? (Opens door L. I E., when CAPT. falls in his arms nearly suffocated.) Why, Captain, is that you?

CAPT. Yes, what there is left of me.

CHARLES. What were you doing in that room?

CAPT. (points to L. 2 E.). He told me to go and light the gas. CHARLES. He? Who?

CAPT. Jim; he's in there.

JIM (knocks at L. 2 E.). Oh, Captain !

CHARLES. What a narrow escape ! (JIM knocks again, bus. ad lib.)

CAPT. Have you got my five dollars?

CHARLES. No, Captain, but I'll get it for you directly. (Aside.) If I let him out, he'll kill me. I'll leave the place as it is. Here, Captain, is the key; you let him out, and I'll get your money immediately. (Exit D. in F.).

JIM. Captain, what have you locked me in for? CAPT. Shut up!

JIM. If you don't open this door, I'll break it down. CAPT. Smash it, I don't care.

JIM. Oh, won't I give it to you when I get out of here.

CAPT. Well, you stay there then.

JIM. Open this door!

CAPT. All right, I'm coming. (Crawls to door and unlocks it; IIM knocks him down and stands over him.)

JIM. What did you lock me in for?

CAPT. I didn't, Jim; he's been here.

IIM. Who?

CAPT. Charles Augustus.

IIM. Why didn't you tell me he was here?

CAPT. How could I? He locked me in there. I was nearly dead when he discovered me.

IIM. Where is he now?

CAPT. Gone. When I told him you was in there, he gave me the key, and told me to let you out when I got ready.

IIM. You stay here? I'll find him. (Exit D. in F.)

CAPT. No, sir. I'll just take five dollars worth of things here and make tracks for my sloop. (Takes tablecloth, books, etc. and is going towards C. D., when drum and horn are heard. Door opens and several men enter with tar bucket; bag of feathers and rail, and march round CAPTAIN who retreats to R. H. corner of stage. The others halt at back L. C., then very mysteriously pantomime to CAPT.)

FIRST MAN. There's the wretch.

SECOND MAN. Let's proceed at once.

THIRD MAN. Hold! Let's question him. (To CAPTAIN.) Miserable man, why hast thou dastardly assailed the holy laws of matrimony. Thou inhuman monster !

CAPT. See here -

OMNES. Silence !

SECOND MAN. Justice cries out for deep and dire revenge for your diabolical crimes. Thou perjurer!

CAPT. Now hold on — OMNES. Silence !

THIRD MAN. Thou hast cruelly deceived an innocent and lovely maiden. Oh, horrible wretch! CAPT. Say, my friends —

OMNES. Silence!

FIRST MAN. How canst thou atone for thy dark deeds of villainy, thou incorrigible fiend!

CAPT. Let me -

OMNES. Silence !

THIRD MAN. See, the guilty wretch has nothing to say in his defence.

CAPT. Will you give a man a chance?

OMNES. Silence.

FIRST MAN. What say you? Is he guilty or not guilty? OMNES. Guilty!

SECOND MAN. Thou base ingrate! Hear the sentence which this honorable body has prepared, and which shall be executed upon thee for the ignominious crime you have committed against the fairer sex. Thou shalt be divested of thy clothing, thou shalt be besmeared with boiling tar from head to foot, thou shalt be covered with a complete suit of feathers, and be ridden upon a rail through the streets of the city as a warning to all evil doers of thy stripe.

CAPT. Say, you're wrong! I'm not the man. I'm Captain Neversink, of the good sloop "Nonesuch." The other fellow did it. FIRST MAN. Let the sentence be executed.

(They are about to seize him when SALLY and JIM rush on bringing CHARLES AUGUSTUS, who breaks away and kneels in C. of stage imploringly. In the meantime the CAPTAIN has gone off R. I. E. and returns with dog attached to his back. He swings around crying " Call off the dog!" etc.)

NEW PLAYS,

DIALOGUES, DRILLS AND MISCELLANEOUS ENTERTAINMENTS

BAKER'S ACTING EDITION.

Price, 15 cents, unless otherwise stated.

A RICE PUDDINC. A Comedy in Two Acts. By ESTHER B. TIFFANY. For two male and three female characters. Scene, a simple interior, the same for both acts. Costumes modern and simple, but affording opportunity for elegant dressing, if it is desired. No properties required beyond what may be found in every house. The story of this piece deals with the mishaps of an inexperienced housekeeper in a new house. Its humor is abundant, its satire of the "Cooking School" shrewd, its incidents dramatic, its dialogue brilliant. Time in playing, an hour and twenty minutes. (1888.) Price, 25 Cents.

ANITA'S TRIAL; OR, OUR GIRLS IN CAMP. A Comedy in Three Acts, for female charactersonly. By ESTHER B. TIFFANY. Eleven female characters. Its story is entertaining, and its dialogue delicately humorous. One scene only is necessary for the three acts — a camp in the woods, easily arranged. The dresses are simple and picturesque camping costumes. The enormous success of "Rebecca's Triumph" has created a demand for this sort of piece, to meet which we confidently present "ANITA'S TRIAL," in which is solved, with no less success than in its predecessor, the difficult problem of constructing a play of strong human interest without the assistance of male characters. Plays two hours. (1889.)

THE WAY TO HIS POCKET. A Comedy in One Act. By ESTHER B. TIFFANY. For two male and three female characters. Seene, an interior; costumes modern. All its requirements are simple to the last degree, and offer no difficulties. This little play is in Miss Tiffany's best vein, and admirably continues the series of parlor pieces, refined in humor and clever in plan, of which she is the author. Plays about an hour. (1889.)

AN AUTOCRAPH LETTER. A Comedy Drama in Three Acts. By ESTHER B. TIFFANY. For five nale and five female characters. This is by far the strongest work from this writer's pen, and unites to the sparkle and grace which characterized her earlier pieces, dramatic power of a high order. As in all her pieces, the dialogue is distinguished by brilliancy, and its humor genuine but refined. Two scenes only, both interiors, are required, and the properties and dresses are simple, modern in character, and easily gotten up. Equally suitable for stage or parlor performance. Plays about two hours. (1889.) Price, 25 Cents.

THE BAT AND THE BALL; OR, NEGATIVE EVIDENCE. A Farce in One Act. Four male, three female characters. Scenery, costumes and properties simple. Time in playing, about forty minutes. Showing the difficulties that may arise from the practice of Amateur Photography. A roaring farce. (1889.)

SHAMROCK AND ROSE. A romantic Drama of Irish Life during the Rebellion of '98, in FOUR Acts. By JOHN FUTZGERALD MURPHY. Seven male and three female characters. Costumes and scenery not difficult. Every part a good one. A sure hit. Printed as played under the author's personal direction at the Dudley Street Opera Honse, Boston, and the Newport Opera Uruse. Plays two hours and a half. (1887-89.) Price, 25 Cents.

A FOOL FOR LUCK. A Farcical Comedy in Two Acts. By W. M. BROWNE. For four male and three female characters. This laughable comedy of modern society turns upon the main for stock speculation. The leading comedy character is a type of Englishman not unrelated to Lord Dundreary, the other personages and the scene being American. The dialogue is very bright, the scenery and costumes very easy. Plays one hour and a half. (1889.)

Price, 25 Cents.

Baker's Monthly Bulletin.

THE EOOK OF DRILLS; PART SECOND. A collection of entertainments for stage, hall or parlor, by MARY B. HORNE, author of "A Carnival of Days," etc. Containing: THE NURSERV MAIDS' DRILL. Arranged for ten little girls of from six to ten years of age. THE JAPANESE UMBRELLA DRILL. For twelve girls or young ladies in Japanese costumes. Very pieturesque. THE SUNFLOWER CHORUS; OR GRANDMOTHER'S GARDEN. For boys and girls ad libitum. Introducing songs and recitations. Good NiGHT MARCH. For six of the very smallest children. Very quaint and amusing. (1889.) Price, 30 Cents.

THE CHRONOTHANATOLETRON; OR, OLD TIMES MADE New, An Entortainment in Oue Act. For sixteen girls. Written for the Class Day Exercises at Dana Hall School, Wellesley, Mass., by two members of the Class of '87, and first performed before the members of the school and their friends, June 18, 1857, and later at Ellsworth, Maine, April 6, 1888. No scenery, The "Chronothanatoletron" (or Time and Death Annihilator) is an invention by means of which any woman of any epoch can be brought a once into the presence of the "operator." (1889.)

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL. A Farcical Entertainment in Two Scenes. By M. R. ORNE. For any number of characters, male or female, either or both, many or few, big or little. Scenery simple; costumes easy; time in playing, about forty minutes. This sketch carries the spectator back to his school-boy days in the little red school-house. Grown folks, the older and more dignified the better, take the parts of the pupils in "The Country School," put on again the pinafores and pantalettes of their school days and get as much fun out of it as they give. The nost uproarionsly conical entertainment out. Closely similar to "The Old District School" (§1.00) and "The Deestrick Skule" (50 cents.) (1890.)

THE TENNIS DRILL. An Entertainment for parlor or lawn. By MARGARET FEZANDER. This pretty and picturesque entertainment will be a novel and popular feature for a school exhibition, a parlor entertainment, or a lawn party. Sixteen girls, or less, can take part, regulation tennis suits in two colors, being worn, with fascinating "deerstalkers" and "blazers" to match. It is very easy to get up, tennis apparatus being universally handy, and is highly recommended for its novelty, picturesqueness and equal adaptability for in-door or out-door use. (18-9.)

RIO CRANDE. A Drama in Three Acts. By CHARLES TOWNSEND. Seven male, four female characters. Modern costumes; scenery, one interior and one exterior. Time in playing, two hours and twenty minutes A play of Western "border" life, and one of the finest dramas ever written by this successful author. Its interest is unflagging, it is full of bright, clean fun, and roaring comedy situations alternate with thrilling and pathetic scenes. Every character is a good one and worthy of the best talent. This piece is preceded by a chapter of "Remarks" in which are given in the author's own words, special instructions regarding the play, the acting of each part, and all necessary details of stage management. (1891.) Price, 25 Cents.

A DOUBLE SHUFFLE. A Comedy in One Act. By HFNRY OLD-HAM HANLON. Three male and two female characters. Scenery and costumes very simple. An admirable little parlor piece, playing about thirty-five minutes. Fred Somers, a collegian, with a taste for practical joking, tries to play a little joke on his sister and his fiancée, but they succeed in turning the tables completely upon him and his two college chums. Very bright and amusing. A sure hit. (1891.)

THE CORNER-LOT CHORUS. A Farce in One Act. By GRACE LIVINGSTON FURNISS. Seven female characters who speak, and ten Jury Girls. Costumes, modern and tasteful. Scenery of little or no importance. Plays about forty minutes. This elever little piece, by the author of "A Box of Monkeys." satirizes the weak side of amateur actors, and with bright and elever performers is a sure success. It affords a chance for elegant dressing, if desired, and for telling local hits. In its original performance by professional actresses it was a laughing success. (1891.) Price, 25 Cents.

COUNSEL FOR THE PLAINTIFF. A Comedy in Two Acts. By ST. CLAIR HURD. Four male and five female characters. Scenery, two interiors, easily arranged; costumes, modern and simple. Plays an hour and a half. This little piece has more "plot" than is usual in plays of its length, and works up to an exciting climax. Good Jewish comedy character. (1891) THE OLD-FASHIONED HUSKING BEE. An Old Folks' Entertainment in One Scene. By NETTIE H. PELHAM. For eleven male and five female characters, and as many more as desired. Scene, the interior of a barn, easily arranged; costumes old fashioned. Plays forty minutes or more, according to number of songs and specialties introduced. Very easy to get up, and very funny. An excellent introduction for a dance, supper, or sociable, where a mixed entertainment is desired. (1891.) Price, 15 Cents.

A VISION OF FAIR WOMEN. A Dramatic Paraphrase in One Scene. Based upon Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women." By EDITH LYNWOOD WINN. Thirty-nine girls are called for, besides the "Dreamer" who has the vision; but a smaller number oused, at pleasure, by simply reducing the number of tableaux. No scenery is required, and the costumes can be easily contrived by home talent. This is a very picturesque and enjoyable entertainment, and by giving a large number of pretty girls a chance to look their best, is sure to please them and every one else. (1891.) Price, 15 Cents.

JOINING THE TINPANITES; OR, PADDY MCFLING'S EXPERI-ENCE. PART I. A Mock Initiation for the amusement and instruction of Secret Societies. Adapted to all orders, and containing nothing to offend any secret organization. By DAVID HILL. For thirteen male characters and supers. Scenery unimportant, the stage representing the interior of a lodge-room. Costumes, burlesque regalia. Plays forty-five minutes. This is an uproariously funny travestie of the forms of initiation, and is just the thing for a lodge-room entertainment. Any number of men can assist as members, etc. (1891.)

Price, 15 Cents.

JOINING THE TINPANITES. PART II. The second Degree of this popular Burlesque Order. Characters, scenery, and costumes same as in Part I., of which it is a continuation. Can be played independently, or in connection with Part I., which it naturally follows, but without in the least depending upon it. (1892.) Price, 15 Cents.

JOINING THE TINPANITES. PART III. The Third and Highest Degree of this laughable "side" Order. Characters, scenery, and regalia, the same as in Parts I. and II. Like the other two, can be given as an independent Mock Initiation, or as the third part of a more elaborate ritual. (1892.)

Price, 15 Cents.

THE CHAPERON. A Comedy in Three Acts. By RACHEL E. BAKER. Fifteen female characters. Scenery not difficult. Costumes, tennis gowns and modern street and evening dresses, with picturesque Gypsy costumes for Miriam and Jill. Time in playing, two and a half hours. This clever play of life at school and in society continues the series of plays for ladies so admirably begun by "Rebecca's Triumph," and is deservedly popular. It unites refined fun with a strong dramatic story, and is at once amusing, interesting, and picturesque. (1891.) Price, 25 Cents.

THE SPY OF CETTYSBURC. A Drama in Four Acts. By CHARLES TOWNSEND. Eight male, three female characters. Time of playing, two hours and thirty minutes. Scenery, two interiors. Costumes, modern and military — easily arranged. This is one of the best war dramas ever published, and is especially suitable for amateurs. It is full of bright fun and soul-stirring incidents. The interest is awakened at the outset, increases with each act, and the final climax brings a whirlwind of applause. The characters are all firstclass. Solomon, the negro, is one of the most laughable darkey characters ever seen in any play. The incidents of this play cluster about the tremendous struggle at Gettysburg, and depict the adventures of the hero while acting as a scout for General Meade. The book contains a chapter of special interest, giving careful instructions regarding the style, make-up, and costuming of each character. (1891.)

Scenery of the very simplest character. Plays about an hour, or longer, according to specialties, songs, etc., introduced. This entertainment is a decided novelty, and is excruciatingly funny. First-rate Irish soubrette part, and capital comic old man. Prof. Baxter's patent process for making old people young again suits everybody, both on the stage and off. (1891.) THE CREAT MORAL DIME SHOW. An Entertainment in One Scene. By MARY B. HORNE. Nine male, seven female characters. Costumes simple; scenery, an ordinary interior, or may be dispensed with altogether. Plays from half an hour upward, according to the number of specialties introduced. This smusing piece is a burlesque of the "dime-museum," but is entirely devoid of the vulgarity of its original, and perfectly adapted to church or home performance. The characters are a wonderful collection of "freaks" of nature (somewhat assisted by art) who sing, dance or recite, according to their special abilities, in illustration of the explanatory lecture. It can be made uproariously funny, and is in character as well as fact a successor to "The Peak Sisters." (182). Price. 15 Cents.

This most amusing entertainment is a burlesque of the ordinary "dime-museum," so-called, but is entirely devoid of the vulgarity of its original, and perfectly adapted to church or home performance. The characters are, save the lecturer and her assistant, a wonderful collection of "freaks" of nature (some-what assisted by art) who sing, dance or recite, according to their special abilities, in illustration of the explanatory lecture. It is most clastic in its requirements, can be played on any stage or platform, with or without scenery, and with a greater or smaller number of characters, according to taste or necessity.
