It has been my practice to prepare the ground thoroughly in the fall and to sow the seed early in spring. In November I dig a trench ten inches wide and one foot deep; then put four inches of well decomposed horse manure in the bottom of the trench. Tramp it firmly and put in two inches of soil on top of the manure. Then give a liberal dusting of pure bone meal and cover this with soil in rough condition and let the trench remain until spring.

Sowing the seed depends greatly upon the weather and condition of the ground but the seed should be planted not later than the middle of March. Should the soil in the trench be too wet take some dry soil from the shed and put one inch of this in the trench. After sowing the seed cover it with one inch of dry soil. The white varieties are most liable to rot and should not be sown before April 1. These varieties also require dryer soil than the other colors. These two conditions must be strictly observed in order to have success with white sweet peas.

It is a good plan to have a ridge along the side of the trench to prevent surface water from running into it. Do not fill up the trenches with soil while the vines are growing. Allow a slight grade down into the trench and by keeping the ground cultivated the spring rains usually wash all the soil into the trench which is necessary to be about the vines. As warm weather appears use a mulch in the trench and give a good watering as the ground gets dry.

This has been my method of cultivation and its success can be seen from the fact that I have been awarded first prize for three consecutive years, in the competition for the Henry F. Michell prize, for best general display of sweet peas exhibited before this society.

It is advisable to sow named varieties in order to secure a full collection of the grandest blooms. In my opinion the following varieties are the leaders in their different colors:

Pink: Blanche Ferry, Katherine Tracy, Miss Hunt, Princess Beatrice, Apple Blossom.

White: Blanche Burpee, Queen of England.

Red: Cardinal, Firefly, Splendor.

Blue: Navy Blue, Countess of Radnor, Monarch.

Yellow: Primrose, Mrs. Eckford.

Orange Pink: Lady Mary Currie.

Inventories for Florists.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Your letter with request for my views as to the best methods of running greenhouses so that one can determine the profits on different stock growing has been received. You certainly have made a mistake in asking me. You will notice that your correspondent wants the opinions of florists above the average. I do not claim even so much as our friend Rudd, being a very poor average, but if I were to say anything, I would repeat Mr. Rudd's advice and say "Me, too."

In growing general stock it is certainly an impossibility to correctly determine the cost of any one item unless it is grown in large quantities. The idea of taking an inventory in the greenhouse business has never occurred to me and I cannot see how it could be done with any degree of satisfaction. The value of plants is certainly very hard to determine; it could only be estimated. The value of a plant is the same as with any other class of goods, worth just what it would sell for, or what profit you could get out of it, which would be hard to tell.

I think Mr. Rudd's figure of depreciation is full high, if the houses are well taken care of. I have houses that have been built for over twelve years and with care I expect that they will last more than that time to come and have a large salvage left. Certainly the best time to find out what the profits or losses may be is at the end of the business year, which is the first of July. I do not think it is practical to try to determine the expenses of each month separately, but take the year as a whole. How could you well charge all the expense of July and August to these months? Your houses are giving you no returns and your expenses are very heavy; the results you get later.

In our business, where we are obliged to grow a little of everything, we take the year's business. In expense account we take repairs, depreciation, taxes, water, insurance and everything that could come under the heading of expense, excepting new work, and deduct that from the amount of sales and the difference is either the profits or losses. If there is any more satisfactory way of getting at what you are doing, like your correspondent, I would be glad to learn of it.

O. P. BASSETT.

I believe it to be practically impossible for the average florist to take any inventory that would prove reliable or satisfactory as a basis from which to figure the value of his stock in cash at the time the cutting is made, the seed sown or the bulb planted. From that time on the stock changes so rapidly and the results are so various, even in the hands of the most skilful growers, while prices obtained depend so much upon growth conditions to which the caprices of a constantly changing market contribute an additional element of utter uncertainty, that an inventory value is but little more than the merest guessing. In short, it is unwise to figure your wealth till the money is in your pocket.

Of course there are certain classes of plants, such as palms, azaleas and some others, that in certain sizes have a solid wholesale value that can be figured on, but these things usually constitute a small item in the average florist's stock, the bulk of his goods being, in fact, items of loss instead of profit if not disposed of at the proper time.

I do not wish to be understood as condemning inventory taking. On the contrary, it is a necessary thing when the object to be attained is the correct one, namely, to ascertain what you have; whether too much or too little of the various things you grow, and in order to do this properly, it seems to me that it should be done several times a year. Exercise your best judgment in having the stock ready at the right time and it seems to me that the money in the bank at the end of the season is about the only reliable valuation of the year's stock.

In regard to allowance for depreciation, this must always vary greatly according to the class of material and workmanship that goes into a greenhouse, as well as according to the uses it is put to and the extent to which repairs are kept up. I think that generally speaking, for a well built wooden structure, ten to twelve per cent should cover depreciation and repairs.

ADAM GRAHAM.

It seems to me that where the books of any establishment are kept in a proper, systematic manner and balanced every month, it is the correct thing to take an inventory each year. I take mine about June 1, each year, because at that time the quantity of stock on hand is much smaller than at any other time during the year. I commence with my establishment and allow five per cent depreciation on the iron frame houses and ten per cent on the wooden frame houses; and in order to be on the safe side I estimate my plants at about half wholesale price, and all supplies at about half cost price. Surplus bedding stock, doubtful and bad book accounts, etc., I consider very little. I always aim to bring each inventory much below the actual value, in order to avoid estimating above real worth. Of course, not having a partner in my business, I am not as particular in the matter as other concerns would necessarily have to be, where several persons might have interests in the business.

Device to Hold Long-Stemmed Flowers.

The accompanying illustration shows a remarkably simple but useful contrivance for holding cut blooms of chrysanthemums, lilies or any other long-stemmed flowers. A butter tub, four laths and a piece of wire is all there is to it. It is cheap, light and is better for the foliage on the stems than a deep vase, as it does not exclude light and air.

American Dahlia Society.

The American Dahlia Society held its annual meeting at the rooms of the American Institute, Wednesday, September 26, Mr. Henshaw presiding. This gentleman was afterward elected as president of the society for the ensuing year; Rev. W. T. Hutchins, vice-president; and James W. Withers secretary and treasurer. A committee on nomenclature was elected as follows: M. S. Higgins, East Bridgewater, Mass; W. W. Wilmore, Denver, Colo.; W. F. Bassett, Hamonton, N. J.; Rev. W. C. Bolton, Pelham, N. Y., and Rev. W. T. Hutchins, Indian Orchard, Mass.

The secretary was authorized to make arrangements with the authorities of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y., for the holding of a dahlia show in connection with the exposition next fall.

The following new dahlias were brought before the society and passed upon: W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia, presented Harlequin, fancy pompon, flowers two and one-half inches in diameter. The plant accompanying the vase of blooms showed its extreme floriferousness and adaptability as bedder. A vote was taken and the variety received a certificate. Magnificent, canary yellow, was offered by the same exhibitor but the committee asked that the variety be brought before them again. Salmon Queen, decorative, from the same exhibitor was certificated. In connection with Salmon Queen the original introducer, L. K. Peacock, withdrew the name Aginaldo, making the statement that only a very few plants had gone out under that name. This was accepted by the committee.

Rowehl & Granz, Hicksville, L. I., presented a fancy, color buff and crimson, under the name of Menheddy Beauty. This received the full number of votes and was certificated. O. B. Coombs, Queens, N. Y., exhibited a number of blooms under the name of Miss Helen Gould. The committee disqualified this exhibit on the grounds that the variety was already known under the name of Uncertainty. It also has the following synonyms: Mary Eustace, Floral Park Jewel and Miss Roth. Their decision was that the variety was simply a light colored form of Uncertainty and that the chances are that the stock will revert back to the deeper color by which Uncertainty is known; hence recognition was refused.

The varieties Salmon Queen and Harlequin were registered with the society by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia.

In the World of Plantsmen.

To those who have never visited Dreer's nurseries at Riverton this remarkable place will prove a revelation, as it is so unlike any establishment of its kind in America. In looking at the immense quantities of palm seedlings and plants in sizes up to 4-inch pots it would seem as if there was enough stock in sight to supply all America and that the market would be over-stocked. But such is not the case, as larger sizes of palms, from 6-inch up, while largely grown here, are never in such quantity as will supply the demand and thousands are obtained each season to fill orders, from local and European growers. Importations of palms in large sizes have been arriving by the car-load the past week, one block of Phoenix Canariensis being very fine.

Jacob D. Eisele, who has been spending the summer in Europe, has just reached home. He looks well and says he had a very pleasant trip. He says that growers abroad all seem very prosperous; new establishments are opening and there is great enthusiasm everywhere. Prices are kept well up and stock is held at figures which leave but very small margins for the importer. This applies particularly to desirable stock, such as sells quickly. They do not seem, even in the palm growing centers of Europe, to be able to keep up with the demand. Mr. Eisele says that the phoenix is becoming very scarce, as they seem to be subject to a disease when growing outside in the south of France, where they are raised until large enough for 8-inch to 10-inch pots. Although grown out of doors they are always kept in pots, as they do not stand lifting. They have to be grown in a greenhouse for a year afterwards to finish them.

Mr. Eisele says that the Belgian growers can keep their stock closer together on the tables and also grow plants on shelves over the others without their drawing or getting spindly as they would in this country. There must be something in their climate that favors them as such a course here would ruin everything.

In England Mr. Eisele found the Rochford establishment growing with all the vigor of a young place. Something like an area of thirty-five acres is covered with glass, which requires the attention of over 400 employees. The cold storage plant here is perfection itself. That there shall be little danger of neglect in this department, the men in charge are relieved every four hours. The temperature is kept at from 26° to 28°. Liliun longiflorum bulbs were seen that had been on the shelves for a whole year and seemed to be plump and in perfect condition. A number of plants, among them Azalea Mollis, also looked very well and none the worse for their long sleep. Eight million lily of the valley pips is now the season's requirement, and millions of tulips, hyacinths and narcissi are also included in a season's forcing.

The stock of palms is more stupendous than ever and all are sold through the medium of Covent Garden market. One of the sights was three large houses of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine in perfect condition. Mr. Eisele brought back with him an importation of the new white Lorraine, which carried very well.

The business at Riverton is growing very fast. An immense quantity of stock has been sold and shipped this fall and "sold" tags are seen in many places. The recent sowing of palm seeds includes seventy-five bushels of kentia seeds and 100,000 young kentias and the same quantity or more of young arecas are in sight. Adiantum Farleyense grows here like a weed and is finer this year than ever. When I asked Mr. Eisele how it is does he said that he had heard the man who has charge of it say that if he followed the directions of some of the fern experts who have written on its culture his success would soon turn to failure.

An immense quantity of all kinds of ferns are to be seen here, all, or nearly all grown outdoors in frames during the summer and housed in the fall. I might enumerate the houses of araucarias and the latanias, a fine lot, for which there is a great demand, because, Mr. Eisele says, they take up more room to grow well than the average small grower can spare and who only buys a limited quantity at a time. Suffice it to say that everything is grown that is at all in demand at the present day. One of the sights is 2,500 tons of Buckwheat coal in one pile. Whether the strike ties up the coal market is a matter of little concern at Riverton just at present.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met in New York city on Friday, October 5, for the purpose of revising the schedule of prizes for the March show, next year, which will be held in New York. This was accomplished as regards the regular classes, which remain much as last year, but important alterations and additions were made, as will be seen when the schedule appears, in about a week or ten days. Copies will be sent on request to the secretary, Leonard Barron, 136 Liberty street, New York.

A gold challenge medal will be offered for the display of novelties of the four years preceding the date of the show and a handsome challenge piece is instituted for gardeners. Important additions are made in the classes for pot plants and prizes are to be offered for the best individual bloom in several named classes for hybrid perpetual, hybrid teas and teas.

Perhaps the most significant action was in regard to a scale of points by which the judges at the March show shall work. Two distinct scales were adopted as follows for competitive classes:

Size .....	15
Color .....	20
Stem .....	20
Form .....	15
Substance .....	15
Foliage .....	15

Total.....100

For judging novelties entered for certificate:

TWO VERY GOOD EXHIBITIONS IN THE BRITISH METROPOLIS.—DAHLIAS ON DISPLAY AT THE ROYAL AQUARIUM.—CACTUS VARIETIES ARE IN THE LEAD.—NOTES OF THE EXHIBITS.—SHOW AT THE LATE SEPTEMBER MEETING OF THE ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—QUITE A VARIETY OF EXHIBITS.—WHAT THE GROWERS OFFERED AND THE AWARDS.

The dahlia show at the Royal Aquarium, September 18 to 20, was a great success, all the available space in the large hall being well filled and the exhibits so arranged as to make a most effective display. All the classes were well represented but the great feature of the show was the cactus varieties, among which were many striking novelties; the new varieties were chiefly confined to this class. They seem to have almost entirely superseded the more formal show varieties.

The competitive classes were all well contested, especially those for cactus and pompon varieties. The single sorts do not appear to be so popular as formerly, although there is considerable improvement in the varieties. We also have some fine single cactus varieties, very regular and perfect in form. Cheal & Son take the lead in the last named. Of trade exhibits, Hobbies, Ltd., (J. Green) made one of the finest, consisting entirely of cactus varieties. Dobbie & Co. made a fine exhibit in which all classes were well represented. Their exhibit also included many other subjects, African and French marigolds being very good.

Cannell & Sons filled a large table with a grand assortment of cactus dahlias and cannas. Burrell & Co. showed cactus dahlias and gladioli in grand form.

JARDINIERS OF PLANTS AT THE EXHIBITION OF FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS, FRANKFURT, GERMANY, JUNE 22-24, 1900.

H. J. Jones had a miscellaneous group in which cannas and begonias were a great feature, the latter consisting of good, single, tuberous varieties and some of the best winter flowering sorts. Moonlight, Gloire de Lorraine and Richardsiana were conspicuous. Gold medals were awarded for each of the five exhibits referred to above.

C. F. Fowle, of Devon, showed a good collection of sweet peas, the blooms being very fine for so late in the season. Begonia blooms from Messrs. Peed & Sons were very good, especially the double yellows and amber varieties. I. S. Ware's group of hardy flowers was very attractive. I should add that the dahlias arranged in vases with foliage were an attractive feature. If we could get more exhibits of this kind the meetings would be far more attractive than the old, formal way of arranging single blooms on boards and would give a much better general idea of the true value of the different types and varieties.

The Royal Horticultural Society's meeting, September 25, was most interesting, the hall being again filled to its utmost capacity. The most prominent exhibit was a large collection of pitcher plants from Veitch & Sons. The most conspicuous were Sir W. T. Dyer, long, broad leaves and pitchers over a foot deep, of a bright green, marbled with brown. Chelsoni excellens, Burkei, Balfouriana, Morganiæ, Amesiana, Dicksoniana, sanguinea, Mixta-sanguinea, Mastersiana, Lineyi and Rafflesiana were all shown as fine specimens. A gold medal was awarded for this exhibit.

Dahlias were again well to the front, J. Green again staging a large bank of cactus varieties. Mr. Stredwick showed some new varieties. Certificates were awarded for Lord Roberts, creamy white, of perfect form; General French, deep apricot, large full flowers; Miss Jewett, apricot, shaded amber, and Bessie Mitchell, buff, with a red shade. All were of the cactus type. Other certificated varieties were as follows: From Mr. Mortimer, Prince of Wales, a fine yellow of the cactus type. From Cheal & Son, Venus, a pompon cactus, pure white, and Shamrock, single, deep crimson with a shaded margin. From M. V. Seale, Doris, pompon, mauve with light center, and Thalia, pompon, rosy red.

A box of colchicums and sternbergias was very attractive. First-class certificates were awarded for Sternbergia macrantha and Colchicum speciosum album. A fine collection of bamboos was exhibited by Mr. Russell, of Richmond, many of the specimens being of great size. Michaelmas daisies were well shown by Mr. Davis and by H. J. Jones. Mr. Jones also exhibited a collection of begonias. H. B. May showed Begonia Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild, a sport from B. Gloire de Lorraine. The flowers were larger than in the type but of a pale, washed-out pink, certainly not so pleasing a shade of color as its parent.

Kniphofias (tritomas) and helianthus were well exhibited by Veitch & Sons, also a good basket of Hydrangea hortensis Mariesi. The plants were dwarf and flowers of a deep rose, the outer flowers only having the broad florets. From Mr. Pritchard came two good varieties of Aster amellus, Riverslea, deep violet, and Stella, mauve. From A. Perry came Aster amellus Beauty, deep violet.

A good collection of sweet peas came from Johnson & Son. Mr. Beckett exhibited a collection of capsicums. These were clean-grown specimens with well developed fruits, which well illustrated their value for decorations. Roses were again shown by W. Paul & Sons. They consisted chiefly of hybrid teas and were staged in large clusters with plenty of foliage.

B. R. Cant exhibited a new hybrid tea rose, Mrs. B. R. Cant, bright rose with a creamy shading at base of petals. The plant shown was of vigorous habit and full of buds, and the bunches of cut blooms were very attractive. This gained an award of merit. Hardy flowers were shown by A. Perry and Barr & Sons, the latter having a good variety of Helianthus rigidus, named H. S. Moon, for which an award of merit was given.

SURPRISE IS SPRUNG AT THE ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS FOR THE MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—THE REGULAR NOMINEE DEFEATED WHEN NO OPPOSITION WAS ANTICIPATED.—A LARGE DISPLAY OF DAHLIAS.—GOLD MEDAL FOR SEEDLING ORCHIDS.—STATE OF BUSINESS.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF VARYING INTEREST.

The unexpected happened at Horticultural Hall last Saturday on the occasion of the annual election of officers of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the farmer element electing, as president, O. B. Hadwen, in whose interest they had been secretly working, and defeating Gen. F. H. Appleton, the present incumbent and regular nominee, whose friends were caught anapping. Mr. Appleton's four years of service as president have been years of great and substantial progress in the society but his aggressive efforts have not been always to the liking of the conservative wing, which opposed the plan of removal and rebuilding when that question was under discussion and has been arrayed generally in opposition to President Appleton's policy. Gen. Appleton accepted a renomination this year with extreme reluctance but was induced to do so on the plea that he should remain at the helm until after the completion of the new edifice. His defeat does not, however, affect his position as chairman of the building committee. O. B. Hadwen, the president-elect, has long been an active and honored member of the society and has been prominent in horticultural and arboreal affairs in Worcester, where he has resided since boyhood and where he has for many years been engaged in farming. His age is 76 years. At present he is president of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, a position which he filled once before for a term of twenty years. He is a trustee of the Worcester Agricultural Society and of the Amherst Agricultural College and has for many years served with much devotion and zeal on the board of park commissioners of the city of Worcester.

A large display of dahlias was made on Saturday last in Horticultural Hall, the absence of frost being taken full advantage of by the dahlia growers. Lothrop & Higgins, C. S. Pratt and W. C. Winter were among the leading exhibitors. G. H. Hazzard was represented by a fine collection of cactus dahlias. E. O. Orpet, gardener to E. V. R. Thayer, was the happy recipient of a gold medal for five seedling cattleyas, all very beautiful flowers. They were C. Thayeriana, C. intermedia × C. Schroderia alba; Lælia nigrescens, L. pumilla × L. tenebrosa; Lælio-Cattleya Blanchleyense, L. tenebrosa × C. gigasanderiana; Lælia juvenalis var. superba, L. pumilla var. præstans × L. Perrinii; and Lælio-Cattleya C. G. Roebing, C. Gaskelliana × L. purpurata aurea. There were also handsome orchids from H. A. Wheeler and Oakes Ames.

Business is generally very slow to move, although some of the retailers are getting more or less good work. At the wholesale places the quality of stock received is discouragingly poor. Roses show the effects of the dull weather and find customers but slowly. Carnations are becoming more plentiful and chrysanthemums begin to assert themselves here and there. Violets are coming in but attract no attention as yet and are very dead stock.

Hitchings & Co. have just put in one of their big No. 58 sectional boilers for the Botanic Garden at Cambridge. One of the same size was installed last week, also, at H. H. Hunnewell's.

W. E. Coburn has given up the greenhouses he has been running at Chelsea and will be hereafter associated with his father, I. E. Coburn, at Everett.

John Walsh & Son took first prize for plants at the Reading fair and George Hollis was similarly successful at the So. Weymouth fair.

Otto Ruoge has leased the greenhouses of the late C. R. Tuttle and will conduct the establishment hereafter in his own name.

E. M. Wood & Co. are to plant their three high houses with Asparagus plumosus.

H. E. Barrows won first premium for cut flowers at the Brockton fair.

Visitors in town: Winfried Rolker and H. S. DeForest, both of New York.

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER INFLUENCES THE CUT FLOWER SITUATION.—THE MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—PLANS FOR A BIG EXHIBITION NEXT YEAR.—HENSHAW DISSEMINATES ON OUR NEW POSSESSION.—LANTERN PICTURES OF MUCH INTEREST.—MOVEMENTS OF GROWERS, WHOLESALESMEN AND RETAILERS.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

A succession of dismal-visaged, foggy or rainy days, accompanied by a temperature abnormally high, has had a most debilitating effect on greenhouse flowers of all kinds, particularly roses. Stems are drawn and slender, buds are soft in substance and pale and washed-out in color and, although cut very close, are hardly started on their way to market before the buds become open blooms of the most disconsolate type. Really good roses are impossible under these conditions, and it will require quite a spell of the clear, frosty weather that all are longing for to restore the product to an acceptable grade. For the same reasons stems are not improving as they should in carnations, and chrysanthemum and violet growers wear a look of concern that is readily interpreted. Most noticeable in the general flower stock at present is the large number of cattleyas seen in the windows and the superb quality of the blooms. Cattleya labiata is easily the queen of commercial orchids and indispensable to the florist who has any ambition to be up-to-date.

The regular monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club, on Monday, October 8, was well attended for a rainy evening. A number of aftermaths from the convention were disposed of, among them a proposition to assume the cost of transportation of exhibits to the horticultural exhibition, which was settled by a unanimous vote in the affirmative. The books show a considerable amount of money outstanding which is due the club from advertisers in the souvenir book and the trade exhibition and it was voted to call a special meeting for the fourth Monday in October to consider and adopt means for its immediate collection. The matter of another public exhibition for next year was broached and advocated by President O'Mara with much earnestness, there being abundant resources in the neighborhood of New York for an exposition of great magnitude. Mr. Manda spoke enthusiastically in approval and assuring the fullest support from both private and commercial sources, and Mr. Henshaw, in endorsing same, repeated the offer made some time ago of necessary exhibition space and accommodations at the Botanical Garden in Bronx Park.

On the completion of routine business Ex-president Samuel Henshaw entertained the meeting with a series of beautiful stereopticon views of scenes in Trinidad and Porto Rico, with descriptions of life in Ponce, San Juan and other places lately visited by him, much amusement being created by the groups of boys and others dressed "mainly in sunshine." These views were alternated with a large number of lovely colored pictures of flowers and garden scenery painted by Mrs. Van Brunt and loaned to Mr. Henshaw for this occasion. A few similar slides were shown by Dr. Britton in his lecture at the convention, and those who were fortunate enough to see them can imagine the beauty of the larger series exhibited by Mr. Henshaw. On the exhibition table were dahlias exhibited by Bobbink & Atkins, E. C. Miller and H. Beaulieu, which were favorably commented upon. Messrs. Burns, Young, Weathered, Stewart and Troy were appointed a special committee to express to Ex-president Plumb their regret at the loss sustained by his return to England and their good wishes for his future prosperity. Ten new members were added to the roll.

Gerbera Jamesoni, the beautiful vermilion daisy illustrated in the AMERICAN FLORIST a few weeks ago, is blooming freely at Mr. Herrington's, in frames, from seed sown last spring. There can be no question as to the value of this flower commercially; once generally introduced it would become indispensable. Mr. Herrington says it is a continuous bloomer and if sowed at once when gathered the seed germinates in a few days. It is not likely to become very plentiful, however, for a long time, because of the small amount of seed produced. Mr. Herrington has a house 33x200 in which are 4,500 chrysanthemums, each trained to a single bloom.

John Reimels, at Woodhaven, has a house of White Cloud carnations the appearance of which tends to disprove the theory held by some growers that this variety is not a satisfactory early bloomer. The benches are well whitened with bloom equal in size and finish and superior in color and stem to the average Flora Hill, and the price they bring on the market is at the top notch. Mr. Reimels has a good showing of all the popular varieties of to-day, among which Ethel Crocker stands, as elsewhere, pre-eminent in every feature, and also the invariable bench of seedlings with possible "trotters" showing here and there in the bunch.

A. M. Westwood has opened a spacious store at 489 Columbus avenue, between West Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth streets. Mr. Westwood, who came here from Toronto a few years ago, has been located on Columbus avenue for the past three years, where, in a modest way, he prospered and now looks for an equal success in this larger venture. The store, which is 100 feet in depth, is effectively but not extravagantly decorated and furnished and the undoubted tendency of the period is evidenced in the ample provision made for handling and displaying decorative plants and filling plant dishes and ferneries.

The auction sale by Sander & Co., at Cleary's on Tuesday, October 16, is the subject of much talk about town and the interest displayed indicates that there will be a big demand for the orchids, of which over 2,000 plants will be offered. Paintings of the different varieties will be shown at the time of sale so that their value commercially may be understood by purchasers unfamiliar with their character.

C. W. Ward is engineering an arrangement whereby 30,000 carnations are to be contributed by the florist trade to be worn as boutonnières by the participants in the dry goods trade section of the big McKinley and Roosevelt parade on November 3.

W. H. Gunther, who for many years has confined his business chiefly to the sale of violets, is now handling roses and orchids in quantity, as well, and has facilities for accommodating a full line of all cut flowers during the coming season.

Thomas Gordon, recently in the retail cut flower business down town, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, scheduling liabilities of $2,523.37; his assets are $161.05, of which $111.05 is due on book accounts.

Harry May was taken seriously ill at Painesville, Ohio, two weeks since and his father, John N. May, went west and brought him home to Summit, N. J., where he is now, happily, convalescing.

Alex. McConnell has been in the market for a large number of evergreens to be used in planting an extensive Italian Topiary garden which he is laying out for George Gould at Lakewood, N. J.

Theodore Lang reports business as good on Sixth avenue, where the plant trade, this season, is running far ahead of all past records in his experience.

W. A. Manda reports the demand for hardy herbaceous plants this season as unprecedented. The same is true of fancy conifers.

The number of carnation flowers received at the New York Cut Flower Company's place on Monday last was 14,500.

Frank Millang reports business at his stand in the Thirty-fourth street market as exceedingly good in all lines.

Henri Beaulieu is greatly interested in dahlias and has some promising seedlings at Woodhaven.

In John H. Taylor's mammoth carnation house, recently erected, 7,500 plants are accommodated.

Frank McMahon returned from his European trip on Saturday, October 6.

BUSINESS BEGINS TO SHOW SOME LIFE.—PRINCIPAL DEMAND STILL FROM OUTSIDE SOURCES AND FOR FINE FLOWERS.—CHRYSANTHEMUM PROSPECTS.—CLUB MEETS AND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY PLANS FLOWER SHOW.—A FAMOUS CATTLEYA.—A NEW DRACENA.—RINGIER OUT AGAIN.—JOTTINGS HERE AND THERE.

Things have been fairly satisfactory this week, although the period began with a blue Monday, the dulllest on record for some time. Shipping trade has been the reliance all the week, the local buyers not yet having awakened to the fact that the time has arrived for doing business. Qualities are improving in the rose and carnation cut and production is falling off a bit because of cooler weather, so that sales are at a little better prices, but the seconds and still lower grades do not yet bring enough so that the grower will go into ecstasies over his returns. Shipping stock has not stiffened as much as might be expected from the fact that demand is fair and only about ten per cent of the receipts are good enough to be acceptable at the end of a long journey; the result has been to make a market for a few flowers which otherwise would go as seconds. Violets are in abundant supply and are of pretty fair quality, but the sales are not what they should be. Chrysanthemums are from ten to fourteen days late and the supply is decidedly under the demand. One wholesaler was able to get off an order of 500 blooms to Buffalo one day this week, and all the houses are getting in a few each day, but the growers say it will be well into next week before there is anything like a heavy cut. The total number of blooms in course of development for this market this year promises to be about equal to last year's cut, although Weber Brothers, who had 40,000 last season, are confining themselves to other lines at present.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club October 5. Andrew McAdams read a paper on the best ferns for pans and baskets, which was very favorably commented upon. August Jurgens gave an interesting talk on the best and most profitable varieties of tulips and hyacinths for commercial purposes, also their method of growth. J. S. Wilson, who was to discuss the Boston fern, was unavoidably absent and this subject was deferred until a later meeting. The Galveston relief committee reported subscriptions amounting to $147.74. The following candidates were elected to membership: H. N. Bruns, Otto Wittbold, Louis Wittbold, August Jurgens and John Hoeft. Messrs. Hauswirth, Smyth and Samuelson were appointed as a committee to confer with the Horticultural Society of Chicago for the privilege of the cut flower booth at the chrysanthemum show, the proceeds to go to the suffering florists of Galveston. It was suggested that all growers who feel interested in this good work lend a helping hand by donating stock. The matter of the annual banquet was brought before the club and W. N. Rudd was appointed as a committee of one to perfect the arrangements.

The Horticultural Society of Chicago met at the Sherman House on Tuesday afternoon and, aside from electing a number of new members, passed upon several matters of detail connected with the chrysanthemum show to be held at the Auditorium theater November 6 to 10, under the superintendency of N. P. Miller. The judges are to be Patrick O'Mara, President of the S. A. F.; John N. May, of Summit, N. J., and Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge. It was virtually decided to permit the Chicago Florists' Club to conduct the flower booth for the Galveston sufferers. The society voted to increase its executive committee to eight instead of six and make five constitute a quorum of the committee.

Nathan Smith & Son, of Adrian, have been supplying Cattleya labiata to some Chicago houses, and on Wednesday sent J. B. Deamud a spray with six remarkably fine blooms from one sheath. Smith & Son write that many of their plants are producing four and five flowers on one spray, but that this is the only one of six of which they have knowledge. The wholesalers and retailers who saw it were unanimous in pronouncing it unusually beautiful but said it was not so serviceable for cut flower work as if it were three sprays of two blooms each.

Wm. Stoeffers, who has worked for two or three local florists, disappeared about a month ago and is supposed to have had $2,000 in cash at the time. He came from Germany and recently inherited $4,000 from his father. The balance is still in the hands of the German consul here. Stoeffers was to have been married last Tuesday and the bride-to-be has fears foul play. A lodge to which he belongs has offered $50 reward for information as to his whereabouts.

The George Wittbold Company has a plant of Dracena Cantleyi which they obtained from Sander & Co., St. Albans, England, some months ago, and of which they have formed so high an opinion as a decorative plant that they propose to work up a stock and offer it to the trade.

Arnold Ringier is again at his desk at W. W. Barnard & Co.'s after a severe tussle with rheumatism. He was discharged from Alexian Brothers' hospital a week ago, after two weeks' treatment there, but is yet far from well.

Brant & Noe are reported to have opened a wholesale cut flower store in Minneapolis, a plan which they have had in mind for some time. They already had a large trade in the northwest.

The Chicago Carnation Company has completed its big iron greenhouse and has it planted. They have taken on some big shipments for the season.

Weiland & Risch have their range of new glass in good working form and are cutting some nice stock. They say trade is good.

Adolph H. Poehlmann is about ready for business at his new wholesale cut flower store at 49 Wabash avenue.

Since the Florists' Club's meeting last week the Galveston subscription list has reached $200.

C. L. Washburn has been at St. Louis and Kansas City this week.

Visitors: N. J. Burt, Burlington, Ia.; C. E. Finley, Joliet, Ill.; W. L. Wirt, Parsons, Kas.; Herbert Heller, New Castle, Ind.; George Souster, Elgin, Ill.

SOME growers recommend poor soil as the best for pompon dahlias.

WELL glazed houses serve to save coal and give improved quality of stock.

THE growers of decorative plants were very generally never more busy than at present.

THERE seem to be inexhaustible supplies of the Boston fern and an insatiable demand for it.

It is said the republican party will spend $20,000 for blooms of Roosevelt carnations, to be used in parades, etc.

THE keeping quality of a cut flower is one of its most important attributes and yet many growers fail to give it attention.

It is reported that the condition of the hardy cut fern crop is such as to cause fears as to the keeping qualities of the quantities in cold storage.

MEN old in the trade report this a remarkable autumn in that throughout the United States frosts have held off to an unprecedentedly late date.

SMOKE consumption will soon be a feature of up-to-date boiler rooms, the greater cleanliness of glass being alone sufficient to earn interest on the investment.

Pressure From Water Tank.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Will a tank of the capacity of 10,000 to 12,000 gallons, six feet or eight deep, the bottom of the tank eighteen feet above the greenhouse floor, give a pressure of fifty pounds to the inch? If not, how high must it be to get that pressure? T. E. B.

The capacity of the tank has nothing to do with the pressure, which is determined by the weight of a column of water one inch square. As the weight of a cubic foot of water is 1,000 ounces, or 62.5 pounds, it will be seen that an elevation of 144 feet will be required to give 62.5 pounds pressure, or approximately 115 feet will be required for a pressure of fifty pounds. When a tank that is elevated eighteen feet contains four feet of water there will be but about nine pounds pressure, and in determining the pressure at the end of a hose for purposes of syringing, allowance must still be made for friction in the pipe and hose.
Ordinarily the pressure at the nozzle will not be more than one-third the vertical distance between the level of the nozzle and the surface of the water in the tank.

Memorial Day Flowering Plants.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please give a list of of the most desirable flowering plants for sales around Memorial day. C.

Colorado.—Owing to the danger of frosts here until the middle of June, the Memorial day trade in plants has never reached large proportions, the demand being mostly for cut flowers. Pansies, feverfew, marguerites, geraniums, hardy pinks, hybrid roses and the California pink, or mesembryanthemum, are all suitable and are salable in limited quantities. J. A. VALENTINE.

Returning Water to Boiler.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have three even-span houses, north and south with boiler house across the north end and on low land. The boiler is on a level with the houses; have city water connected direct to boiler, allowing all return water to escape outside. Is there any way to return the water into the boiler? I use low pressure steam, with 1½-inch flow and 1-inch return pipes. A. L. J.

When the boiler is above the level of the coils, a low-pressure trap may be used to raise the return water, but a better way will be to put in a receiving tank and a pressure pump which will automatically return the water. This, however, will require a somewhat higher pressure than is ordinarily desirable for

Piping Greenhouses.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have two greenhouses 20x62, even-span east and west, boiler shed being on the west end of houses. The boiler has four 4-inch taps, two flows and two returns. Would you please give me information on piping the houses? I want a night temperature of 50° to 55° and have either 2-inch or 1½ inch pipe with which to pipe the buildings. D. E. S.

Indiana.
A 3-inch supply pipe will answer for each house, and these may be used in the houses as either overhead or under-bench flow pipes, or each of them may be broken up into three 2-inch or two 2½-inch pipes.
For 55° eleven or twelve 1½-inch pipes, or nine or ten 2-inch will be required.
The returns may be either on the side walls, or they may be arranged in horizontal coils under the benches. If three flow pipes are used it may be well to have one of the coils under the middle bench if there are three in the houses.
L. R. T.

Propagation of Ficus Elastica.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—How should rubber plants, Ficus elastica, be grown from cuttings. I have an old tree with fifty or sixty fine branches, each of which have from ten to twelve eyes, and I wish to know the best way to obtain young plants from them. H. C. H.

The best way to turn the fifty or sixty branches of the one tree into plants would be to cut a tongue or slit half way through the different branches in a longitudinal direction, placing a little piece of wood to keep each incision open.
Then wrap with sphagnum moss one inch deep and four inches in length, immediately over and around the cut branch. Keep this moss continually moist and in a temperature of 68°. In three weeks time, if the moss is kept wet, the branches will have rooted nicely, when they may be potted off. The product should be every branch a young ficus on a bush so treated. Keep moist and moderately shaded for a few days after potting. This is the scientific way of producing good rubbers. E. G. HILL.

Capacity of Boiler.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We are building one house 22x125, twelve feet to ridge, and one 14x125, eight feet to ridge. The walls are four feet six inches high and double boarded, with paper between. We expect to eventually add another house 22x125. We can get a tubular return boiler nine feet long, three feet four inches in diameter, with thirty-eight 3-inch tubes. Would it heat all three houses by steam? J. F. F.

Philadelphia.

A boiler such as is described would rate at least twenty-five horse-power, which would be sufficient for 2500 square feet of radiation. The use to which the houses are to be put is not specified, but if the average temperature is not more than 60° they can be heated with 1800 feet of radiation. This leaves a fair margin, but it is none too much for so small a boiler, unless there is a fireman on duty at night, which is seldom the case.
L. R. T.

Pyrethrum "The Pearl."

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We have a nice lot of Pyrethrum "The Pearl." Can they be made to bloom indoors during the winter and when shall we take cuttings to have large plants well in bloom by the middle of May, for Memorial day sales?
C.

Pyrethrum roseum, a variety of which is known as "The Pearl," has not been satisfactory as a winter bloomer in my experience, but the plants may be forced along gently in a cold house or frame to be in flower for Memorial day, though even with the best of care the stems may not be as stiff and wiry as we see them on outdoor plants. The clumps should be lifted in fall and planted out in the frame; give them plenty of time to get established before frost sets in. Early in March sash should be put over the frame; give plenty of air during the day and if the weather is not too severe, a little air should be left on at night, also. The plants will start into growth slowly at first, still in ordinary seasons buds are developed by the middle or end of April.
After that the plants can be potted up, lifting carefully with ball, and they may be placed in an airy violet or carnation house, or else left in the frame to bloom

there. The best time to propagate pyrethrum is in spring, taking the young outdoor growth with a heel; treated like carnation cuttings, they root readily. Either potting off singly or planting in flats for a few weeks will put them in condition to go into the field and one summer's growth in fairly good soil will perhaps give you just such clumps as are wanted for your purpose. J. B. K.

OBITUARY.

P. COSGROVE.

P. Cosgrove, the Madison, N. J., rose grower, who died suddenly two weeks ago, is said to have been the seventh member of his family who has died within the past year. The greenhouses will be conducted by his son.

JOHN A. JEFFREV.

From Torrington, Conn., comes word of the demise of John A. Jeffrey, who had for some months suffered with cancer of the liver. The end came on the morning of October 4. Mr. Jeffrey was a devout Christian and the sympathy of the community goes out to the widow and children.

JAMES HENRY.

James Henry, died October 6, in the Odd Fellows Home at Philadelphia. Mr. Henry was born in Ireland, November 23, 1823, and in 1850 came to this country, locating in Germantown, where he carried on the business of a florist until July, 1898, when he retired, owing to his being stricken with paralysis. One month later his wife died, and having no children or relatives he became a resident of the Home, on October 4 of that year. He was a member since 1871 of Philomathean Lodge, No. 10, I. O. O. F.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

THE impression gains ground that the coming season will see better prices on all garden seeds.

LONDON seed trade reports indicate that the price of blue peas has been materially advanced.

POTATOES are reported to be rotting in many sections, probably owing to rains about September 1.

VISITED St. PAUL: J. B. Comont, representing Carter, Dunnett & Beale, and S. B. Dicks, representing Cooper, Taber & Co., London, England.

ONION sets are drying out well under recent favorable weather. The stocks vary so much in size and quality "preparing" will be quite a feature in marketing them.

MANY losses have been experienced this fall by importers, through the arrival of Japanese longiflorum lily bulbs in rotten condition. Lots per steamers Empress of China and Tartar recently delivered at New York were in very bad shape, one large importing house losing about 500 cases out of 900. Embarrassments and uncertainty in filling orders for growers naturally results from this unfortunate state of affairs. Some varieties of tulips, notably Proserpine and other popular forcing sorts are in short supply but, generally speaking, the Dutch bulb market has been unprecedentedly slow this fall, so far. This is probably attributable mainly to the late, warm season, which tempts people to leave their garden flowers undisturbed and to defer bulb planting until Jack Frost does his work. There are indications, however, of an over-supply of Dutch hyacinths.

EAST BRIDGEWATER, MASS.—The dabella farm of Lothrop & Higgins has been at its best in late September and has attracted many visitors.

VAN WERT, O.—C. W. McConahy has gone into business at 328 George street. He has one house 12x40 and another 20x60 under construction.

SOUTH PORTLAND, ME.—Niles Nelson is cutting some good stock, including early violets and chrysanthemums as well as roses and carnations.

SKOWHEGAN, ME.—F. G. Danforth, of Norridgewock, has purchased what is known as the Whittier property here and will erect an extensive range of greenhouses.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y.—Frank Niquet has gone to Warren-on-the-Hudson to take a position on the place of James Speyer. His business has been leased by Eugene Blanjan.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—At the quarterly meeting of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society, held on October 2, it was decided that the annual exhibition should take place on November 6, 7 and 8. W. G. Saltford was appointed manager; W. Sloan and John Galvin, press committee; S. Goldring and J. H. Troy, judges of cut flowers; Wm. Turner and G. H. Hale, judges on plants. Donations and premiums this year will exceed those of any former year by $50.

SEVERAL very large shipments of JAPAN LONGIFLORUM have arrived in very bad condition—more than half of the bulbs having been lost by heating. This large loss will make a scarcity in this article, and probably many dealers will be unable to fill their orders in full. If you do not succeed in getting your full supplies, we have still to offer a fine lot of

These Bulbs are in splendid shape. We can supply them at $14 PER CASE; 350 Bulbs to the case. We also have a fine stock of

LILIUM HARRISII

7-9 inch size is generally scarce, but we have a very fine stock of this size still on hand—a lot of bulbs that were left in the ground and dug late, and in consequence they are in grand shape. Bulbs are plump, bright and clean, and as fine a lot of Harrisii as anyone would want to handle. We can supply them, as long as unsold, as follows:
5-7's, 400 bulbs to the case, only $16 per case. 7-9's, 200 bulbs to the case, only $18 per case.

Order at once before we are sold out.

We also offer a very fine stock of

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
THEO. J. SMITH Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

J. E. SMITH, of Ridley Park, Pa., is about to retire from the nursery business.

Missouri apples have thus far taken eight first prizes at the Paris Exposition.

S. D. WILLARD, of Geneva, N. Y., has been tendered appointment as director of the pomological exhibitions at the Pan-American Exposition.

THADDEUS N. YATES has succeeded to the business of his brother, the late David G. Yates, the Mount Airy Nurseries, established 1869, at Philadelphia.

Missouri apples will be represented by counties at the Pan-American Exposition, a space of 1800 square feet having been allotted, to properly fill which will require about 200 barrels of apples. Storage will be provided free by the Armour Packing Co. at Kansas City.

As the result of the efforts of the Eastern Nurserymen's Association the Canadian officials have extended the period of admission of nursery stock from the United States, under the same regulations as prevailed last spring, from October 15 to December 15. The original intention was to withdraw the privilege November 15.

Springfield, O.

The National League of Improvement Associations was organized here October 10 by a convention of prominent ladies and gentlemen from all parts of the country. Prof. Charles Zueblin, of the University of Chicago, was chairman and D. M. Rowe, of Dayton, secretary. The constitution and by-laws adopted provide that all special commercial or religious organizations having as an object the fostering of outdoor art shall be entitled to membership at a cost of $2 for every 100 or fraction; individual members $1.

The league will organize village improvement associations everywhere. Springfield will be headquarters, where the disseminating of plans of work will be made. These officers were elected: President, John L. Zimmerman, Springfield; first vice-president, Edwin L. Shuey, Dayton; second vice-president, Mrs. Conde Hamlin, St. Paul, Minn.; recording secretary, E. G. Rouzahn, Dayton; corresponding secretary, D. J. Thomas, Springfield; treasurer, Frank Chapin Bray, Cleveland; organizer, Miss Jessie M. Good, Springfield.

Regulations Regarding San Jose Scale.

The United States Department of Agriculture has collected and published as Circular No. 41, Second Series, the regulations of those foreign countries which have, through fear of the introduction of San Jose Scale, adopted measures prohibiting the importation of American plants and fruits or requiring inspection before admission.

Austro-Hungary prohibits the importation of American plants or fruits or wrappings which have contained same which show presence of the scale. The ports of admission are limited to three.

Belgium permits the importation of American plants and fruits through certain ports if the shipments bear certificates from competent authorities; otherwise the shipments are held for inspection and destroyed if found infected by scale.

British Columbia requires inspection at wharf or station by her own officials. Infested shipments are ordered disinfected or destroyed.

Canada prohibits importations of nursery stock from the United States, Australia, Japan and Hawaii, requiring the destruction of stock arriving. Greenhouse plants, herbaceous plants, conifers, bulbs and tubers are exempt. Certain periods are named during which prohibited stock may be imported through certain ports after fumigation.

The Cape of Good Hope prohibits the importation of all plants and fruits from the United States.

France prohibits the importation of living plants from the United States and admits fruits only after inspection.

Germany prohibits the importation of plants, also fruits when inspection shows presence of scale. Dried or evaporated fruits are now admitted at certain ports without inspection.

The Netherlands prohibit the importation of American plants unless accompanied by certificate of inspection at port of shipment.

New Zealand admits live plants only at Dunedin, Christ Church, Wellington and Auckland, when accompanied by certificate or after fumigation.

Switzerland prohibits the importation of plants.

Turkey has interdicted the importation of trees, plants and fruit from the United States.

St. Paul.

WEATHER BAD AND TRADE GOOD.—OPENING OF THE SEASON VERY AUSPICIOUS.—STATE OF SUPPLY.—WHAT THE GROWERS ARE PROVIDING.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS LATE.—NOTES.

The weather has been very bad of late but sales have been very good; in fact the volume for September was larger than ever before for the same month. Roses and carnations constitute the main stock in trade in the line of cut flowers. A few late asters are seen and a few early chrysanthemums are coming in, but neither have any influence on the state of the market. Cosmos is seen occasionally and assists in making a store bright and attractive, but it sells slowly. The first crop of early planted roses is on and flowers, as a rule, are of good quality. Golden Gate is coming in quite plentifully. The flowers are large and last a long time, but the variety is not a general favorite with the elite trade. Carnations are coming in quite freely but the supply is inadequate to the demand. G. H. Crane has been planted extensively, quite superseding Jubilee and other red varieties. The plantings of Mrs. Bradt have been larger than heretofore, also of Chicago, its fine red sport. Chrysanthemums appear to be later than usual and but few good blooms will be had before October 25. There are frequent calls for violets but none are yet in the market. Decorative plants are in good demand. Nice specimens of the Boston fern sell on sight. People seem to realize the value of this beautiful variety as never before.

John Nilsen has sold his greenhouses on West Seventh street to Hangen & Swanson and is now working for August S. Swanson. E. F. Lemke is again managing the houses on Hague avenue which he rented to Hangen & Swanson.

Carl Johnson, salesman for several years in L. L. May & Company's city store, has accepted a similar position with Olsen's department store, Minneapolis. FELIX.

LYNCHBURG, VA.—Harry R. Brown has gone into business with 5,000 feet of glass. Mr. Brown had formerly been with his father, H. W. Brown, at Danville.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—The prizes in the floricultural classes at the late state fair were pretty evenly divided among the three firms which exhibited, namely, the South Side Floral Company, Brown & Canfield and Louis Unverzagt. It rained every day of the fair and it is estimated that the deficit will amount to about $17,000. Trade is fairly good, but the florists look for busy times the coming season.

At Chicago.

The Chicago Florists' Bowling Club went "up against the real thing" at Anson's alleys, Monday evening, October 3, when they tackled the All Stars, the best team Chicago can afford. Degnan rolled two games and Asmus then took his place. The following score shows how well the florists acquitted themselves.

The bowlers who represented Chicago at New York last August were entertained at the Bismarck Hotel Thursday evening by a number of their friends.

At Flatbush.

The Flatbush boys rolled their first game on the new bowling alleys Thursday evening, October 4. The attendance was large as befitting the importance of the event, quite a number of ladies viewing the animated scene from the visitors' balcony. The alleys are located in a spacious pavilion, eight on the ground floor and two in the basement and the entire equipment, pins, balls, etc., is new and up-to-date. The bowlers were delighted with the alleys although, as the following table shows, no phenomenal scores were recorded. A nice lunch was served during the evening.

At New York.

The New York Florists' Bowling Club met on the evening of Monday, October 8, for the purpose of electing officers and mapping out the winter's campaign. There were enough members present to fill all the offices and a couple more besides. President O'Mara held down the chair with characteristic dignity and Treasurer Burns awakened appreciative applause when he announced the possession of a balance, to the good, in cash. After the exchange of mutual compliments, unanimous votes of thanks, the election of officers was proceeded with under difficulties, extreme modesty prompting declinations and soft entreaties until, at last, the list was filled as follows: President, J. M. Theilmann; vice-president, A. L. Marshall; treasurer, A. S. Burns; recording secretary, Theo. Lang; there being seven seconds to each nomination. On the selection of captain there was a tie between Messrs. Traendly and Theilmann but on the second ballot Capt. Traendly triumphed. Messrs. Traendly, Burns and Lang were appointed a committee to select alleys and arrange dates for practice games during the coming season. A vote of thanks was passed to Chairman Roehrs and his assistants in recognition of their effective services in connection with the recent convention tournament. Alfred Zeller, of Flatbush, was present and in extending an informal invitation to the new Flatbush alleys advised that all bring their patent leather shoes with them.

Philadelphia.

STOCK SHOWS CONTINUED IMPROVEMENT.—PRICES HAVE AN UPWARD TREND.—TRADE VERY FAIR.—DOINGS HERE AND THERE AMONG GROWERS AND RETAILERS.—PERSONAL MENTION AND VISITORS.

The stock of flowers now coming in shows great improvement all along the line. Bridesmaids and Brides are larger and the color of the former is much better. Some very fine Kaiserins are seen, the Brides looking very inferior in comparison. Beauties are scarcer; the stems are cut longer, the buds are larger and the price is also swelling rapidly. What a grand rose is the Beauty, with its luxurious foliage, stiff stem, large flowers of good color, its lasting qualities and delightful fragrance. Truly it is the rose of roses. The past week its price has ranged at from 75 cents to $3 per dozen. Teas sell at from $2 to $4 per hundred; Kaiserins, $3 to $6. Carnations are waking up; $1 to $2 is the price. The varieties most common so far are Scott, Flora Hill, Eldorado, Cartledge, Bradt and Dana. A few Ethel Crocker were sent in by Robt. Craig & Son on October 9 and were fine, although not long in the stem. A few right nice flowers of many varieties have been seen the past week and the stock will soon be offered without apologies. Lily of the valley is in good demand with some days' business using up every available spray. The price is $3 to $4. Cosmos is in and sells for about 50 cents per hundred. No chrysanthemums except a few samples are seen as yet; they seem to be a trifle late in opening this season. Peacock, of Atco, is cutting some very fine dahlias; the colors and flowers are fine; in fact, the dahlia as he grows it is almost like a new flower. Greens are plentiful. Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus sell for 25 cents to 35 cents per bunch, with strings of the latter at 35 cents to 50 cents. Smilax ranges from $12 to $15. Adiantum is 75 cents to $1 per hundred. Orchids are seen in most of the store windows, cattleyas selling for 25 cents to 35 cents per flower.

Alexander Scott, of Robert Scott & Son, is erecting a fine dwelling near the nurseries at Sharon Hill, which he will occupy as soon as completed. He is holding back his first large house of Liberty, preferring to get a crop of extra fine flowers for the holidays rather than bring in a lot of medium stock to compete with the surplus stock of the fall season.

Robert Craig & Son have prepared an immense bed of manure in the center of one of their largest new houses in which to finish off rubbers and crotons that have been growing outside. A little bottom heat induces a quick root action, which is very beneficial to the plants. They have a great stock of branching rubbers that should find ready sale with the best trade.

J. W. Colflesh has just finished a fine greenhouse, with brick walls and brick-lined table spaces inside. This is the way he contends that houses should be built, for then they are there to stay. The house runs east and west, with quite a rise toward the eastern end, so that the sash bars shall cast the least shadow as the sun gets around to the west.

Charles Poryzell will soon have to remove from his Fifteenth street store. The block of buildings in which he is situated is to come down about January 1 to make way for an immense office structure with stores beneath. He has not as yet secured another location.

The auction sale at Stoke Pogis Nurseries was fully up to the expectation of the proprietors and Mr. Cleary was complimented for his able work. There was a large attendance of buyers and good prices were realized, especially on the first day.

Robert Stewart has resumed business at his old location, Thirteenth street near Walnut, but in a new store. He has now one of the neatest, up-to-date shops in the city and will, no doubt, largely increase his business the coming season.

George C. Watson says that it seems as if there will be more mushrooms grown this season than ever; at least the demand for spawn is constantly increasing. He reports the sale of fall bulbs as also being very satisfactory.

H. A. Dreer has received filthy plants of the new fern, Nephrolepis Wittboldii, for trial and stock.

Visitors: Luther Burbank, Santa Rosa, Cal.; A. J. McConnell and J. A. Penman, Jr., New York; E. M. Wood, Natick; W. G. Eisele, Long Branch; Henry Siebrecht, New Rochelle. K.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—J. N. Champion & Co. have opened a branch store at 856 Chapel street.

PONTIAC, MICH.—Charles Watrous has leased the greenhouse business of the Pontiac Floral Company.

WALTON, N. Y.—The Egleston greenhouse property has been sold on foreclosure. George St. John was the purchaser.

HORTON, KANS.—C. H. Hollid is retired from business, Arthur Hopper continuing the place, which is owned by J. D. Stanley.

NEWARK, N. Y.—The Jackson & Perkins Company has two more houses in course of construction, to be used for propagating roses.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—At the meeting of the horticultural society on Tuesday, October 2, G. W. Thorniley, read a paper on the culture of begonias.

BENTON HARBOR, MICH.—Thomas Evans, who has been with the Twin City Floral Co., is starting in business for himself, procuring his stock plants from Crabb & Hunter.

MEETING OF THE CLUB.—PREPARATIONS FOR THE NOVEMBER SHOW.—A COMMITTEE TO PERFECT ALL PLANS.—SCOTT READS AN ESSAY.

Arrangements for the flower show to be given by the Denver Florists' Club are slowly taking form, and within a few days the club hopes to be able to announce the full programme, the nature of the exhibits and the names of the exhibitors. With a view to securing entries from eastern florists the club has been in correspondence with some of the best known men in the country, but no definite replies have yet been received.

Thus far the arranging of details for the show has proceeded slowly, as the members of the club have all been busy with their fall work, but at the meeting October 5 a committee of five was appointed which will take entire charge of the arrangements and the work is expected to proceed rapidly from now on. This committee consists of J. A. Valentine, A. J. Graham, A. E. Mauff, A. M. Lewis and Bernard Behr. The committee will meet during the week, and it is expected that it will be able at the next meeting to give an outline of its plan for the show. E. T. Klein, chairman of the committee on finance, made a report showing the progress the committee had made in soliciting subscriptions. He said that liberal donations had been promised.

Philip Scott read a paper on "The Easterner," showing how florists are trained in the east and the advantages which they have to learn the business. He said that there are great opportunities for the trained florist in the west, owing to the climatic advantages. The club discussed the social features to be given during the winter and then adjourned.

GARDENERS' CLUB'S DAHLIA SHOW WAS PRONOUNCED A SUCCESS.—MANY GOOD EXHIBITS.—JOTTINGS OF INTEREST.

The dahlia show was a success if judged by the varieties and quality of the blooms staged and, considering the rainy night and the counter attractions in the city, the attendance was as good as could have been expected. The largest display was by R. Vincent, Jr., & Son, of White Marsh, Md., though that of W. P. Peacock, of Atco, N. J., was of superior flowers finely finished and in charming variety of form and color. Other exhibitors of dahlias were F. C. Bauer, of Govanstown, and Henry Fischer. John Cook exhibited roses, Baltimore and Mrs. Robt. Garrett. H. A. Dreer sent a very pretty lot of nymphæas from Philadelphia.

The propagating houses at Druid Hill Park are being enlarged to double their former capacity. Wm. Hamilton, the gardener there, expects to propagate a minimum of 100,000 plants next spring.

The weather is becoming decidedly colder, and the hard freeze which is being hoped for as a stimulant to trade is evidently near at hand. MACK.

MARSHFIELD, WIS.—R. H. Macklin, formerly of Stevens Point, has started in the florist and nursery business here.

EAST MORRIS, CONN.—James Benedict is retiring from business. He has sold his boiler to O. T. Roeske, at Watertown.

AZALEAS.

Special Prices for Immediate Orders.

If you have not yet placed your order for Azaleas it will be to your interest to do so at once, thereby securing the choice of the stock at lowest cost for transportation, as the plants can now be forwarded with perfect safety by fast freight, even to the most distant points.

All of our importations of Azaleas are sent here in bulk, and all are repacked at our own nurseries, so that any plants that may have not carried well are set aside. This insures our customers of securing only first-class stock, which cannot be compared with cheap assorted case lots, which are made up in Belgium and are distributed on this side just as received, frequently not only containing damaged plants, but also, as a rule, many varieties not at all suited to the American trade.

The varieties we supply are only the most popular sorts suited to the American market. Our own representatives make personal inspection of the plants in Belgium previous to shipment, thus enabling us to secure the best stocks grown.

AT THE HOME OF CRESSBROOK.—GOOD METHODS PREVAIL AT THE WARBURTON PLACE.—FAVOR FOR A WINTER MEETING OF FLORISTS.—NOTES.

A cross between Mrs. Bradt and Scott, partaking of the best traits of each and with some excellent traits of its own; such, in brief, is Cressbrook, the seedling which Chatterton Warburton has been growing for the past three years and which he intends exhibiting for the first time at Baltimore, in February. What is especially attractive about it is its color, a rich, deep pink unlike anything in the market at present. A stroll through the Warburton houses, ten in number, and comprising about 30,000 feet of glass, shows as fine a lot of carnation and rose plants as I have seen in my recent travels, neatness and order obtaining throughout. Funeral work has kept Mr. Warburton more than ordinarily busy during the past week. With the advent of the season a decided improvement all along the line is a foregone conclusion.

Appropos of Mr. Craig's suggestion that the S. A. F. hold a meeting and exhibition in February, I have yet to meet the first florist who would protest against a permanent change of the month of meeting. Mr. Craig has unquestionably hit the mark, so to speak. The month of August is generally a busy one with most of the florists, repairing, building and planting all coming in during this month.

F. Buffington's establishment shows that things about it have been kept a'humming during the spring and summer seasons.

Geo. Smith, the Peckham street florist, has recently returned from his vacation, spent in Maine. NOMS.

CHENOA, ILL.—Frank Hensler has made a ten years lease on some lots on South Commercial street at Second avenue and has begun to move his greenhouses on to them.

SOMEVILLE, MASS.—Pote & Wallace are a new firm recently starting at Prospect Hill. They are building a commodious office at the entrance to their driveway.

MARIONETTE, WIS.—George Vatter has two houses of chrysanthemums which will be ready in about a week. He is growing the very best sorts, as he is of carnations.

LIBONIA, PA.—Ora E. Huber has resigned his position with G. W. Park because of ill health and returned to his home at Chambersburg. He has been succeeded by Wm. Clugston, who has removed his family from Doylesburg. Miss Maggie Park, who is Mr. Park's private secretary, is quite ill.

SUMMIT, N. J.—Joseph A. Manda reports a prosperous first month of The Manda Co., started on Springfield avenue in this place. The orders for cut flowers have been numerous and several contracts for landscape gardening, which is made a feature of the new business, for next season have already been booked.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—The floral display at the annual fair here in late September was exceedingly good. H. E. Gould made an extensive showing of plants, flowers and bulbs. The special prize offered by Burpee for sweet peas was won by T. L. Hay with a collection comprising over fifty varieties. D. Mackintosh showed a very large and varied collection of decorative plants.

NOTINGS HERE AND THERE AMONG THE CRAFT IN THE BLUE GRASS METROPOLIS. —WHAT THE GROWERS ARE DOING.

Chas. Raynor, of the Anchorage Rose Co., Anchorage, Ky., has purchased twenty acres of beautiful, rolling blue-glass land adjoining his new plant. He has the largest plant in Kentucky now devoted exclusively to the wholesale growing of cut flowers. His roses are in magnificent condition and his cut now, although some houses are off crop, is very large. He has one house of carnations, 20x300, in which the plants are looking fine.

Wm. Walker has moved to a larger store and one remodeled to suit his business. It has a conservatory in the rear and his new ice box is fitted with large plate glass ends and sliding doors and is so light that the flowers can be seen from the street nearly as well as if they were in the show window. The bottom of the box is Tennessee marble and the shelves are plate glass.

H. Kunzman, Coenen & Co., and Wm. Mann have all grown some magnificent specimens of Boston ferns and as there is a nice premium offered at the chrysanthemum show the competition will be lively.

Mrs. Chas. Reimer had a fine display of white chrysanthemums in her window last week; they were the first on the market here.

Louis Kirch, the carnation specialist, has removed his greenhouses to a larger tract of land so that he can spread out.

Violets have begun to come in but they are small and do not sell well as yet.

Business is reviving and all the florists anticipate a good season.

Nanz & Neuner are cutting a good many Beauties now.

George Schultz has completed his new rose house. H. G. W.

Connersville, Ind.

C. A. Rieman now has a very fine range of glass, having recently completed a rose house 18x120, giving him a total glass area of 15,000 square feet. The new house is planted with Bride and Bridesmaid and the growth is very vigorous. Mr. Rieman has about 1500 chrysanthemum plants in good condition, the single stem plants being from three to six feet high, with fine foliage. He also has about 3,000 plants of the leading varieties of carnations, promising a fine cut in the near future. It is Mr. Rieman's constant endeavor to keep things up to date. This year, besides enlarging and repairing his glass, he put in a new thirty-five horse-power steam boiler and built a store, in connection with his greenhouses, at a cost of $350, in which everything is conveniently arranged, including a dumbwaiter for cut flowers. Trade is already brisk. Mr. Rieman is also superintendent of City Cemetery.

LOCKLAND, O.—W. K. Partridge has completed a range of four new houses 200 feet long which are thoroughly modern in every respect and among the finest in the vicinity of Cincinnati.

ORANGE, N. J.—Popken & Collins have housed an unusual number of chrysanthemums in anticipation of increased interest in this flower from the prospective exhibition of school children's work. Their carnations are in good shape.

New Jersey Floricultural Society.

At the regular meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society, October 3, Vice-president J. B. Davis occupied the chair because of the absence of President Peter Duff in Philadelphia. The essay committee had failed to provide a programme, so a question box was proposed and resulted in so much interest that it was voted to make it a permanent feature of each meeting. Resolutions were adopted expressive of the sympathy of the society in the death of President Duff's father. The matter of the forthcoming show and exhibition of school children's work was left to the executive committee to meet at the call of the chairman. An invitation was received and accepted to visit the H. A. Dreer nurseries at Riverton.

J. B. D.

MENOMINEE, MICH.—L. Zechetto, who was supposed to be doing a successful business, has departed, leaving letters to his creditors telling them that he expects to pay them eventually. F. C. Nowack has taken possession of the greenhouses and W. E. Kuhnle the store in the Odd Fellows block.

MINNEOLA, N. Y.—The horticultural display at the Queens-Nassau Fair the last week in September eclipsed all efforts of the kind ever made on Long Island. The principal exhibitors were John Lewis Childs, Wm. L. Swan, proprietor of the Seawanhaka Greenhouses; R. P. Jeffrey & Son, Ferd. Boulon, M. E. Titus and Wm. Rogers.

MY PICTURE AS A "KID."

When I was young, you will observe, I was very backward; but I have got over that, and now come to the front claiming to have the best WATER HEATER, VENTILATING APPLIANCE and SASH HINGE for greenhouse purposes, that are in the market.

Furthermore, they are so simple in construction I can afford to sell them much cheaper than other styles.

Now florists, don't be backward in sending for a catalogue. Remember, when you find you NEED a thing, the sooner you get it, the more you will have for your money, again I say "DON'T BE BACKWARD," but "keep up with the band wagon." Let me hear from you AT ONCE.

Inventories for Florists.

I have found the best time in which to take an inventory is at the close of our business year, which is June 30, at which time our stock has been almost all planted in the field. We prefer to take our inventory after our stock has been planted out, as at the time of planting out we go through our annual cutting down and discarding of varieties which have been out-classed and fallen behind as commercial sorts. In setting out plants for stock purposes we also cull the stock thoroughly, discarding those plants which we do not consider in sufficiently good health for propagating purposes. An inventory can be taken at any season of the year, and it will show the comparative conditions of the business, provided it is taken upon the same date each year. We find it advantageous to take it after our spring rush is over, and also after the heavy labor of planting out our stock is done.

Mr. Rudd's statement that stock should be inventoried at the exact amount which it cost to produce up to the day the inventory is taken is correct, although this is a difficult matter to determine. Our method in inventorying is to take into consideration the selling value of the plant to some extent in determining the price at which it should be inventoried. Where we are producing new seedling plants, sometimes cultivating an acre of seedlings out of which we get perhaps two hundred varieties to carry on for trial, and the second year cutting these two hundred varieties down to four or five, it is quite difficult to determine closely what the stock of that seedling has cost to produce. Naturally the stock of a new seedling carnation which is considered sufficiently good to be introduced should be inventoried at a considerably higher figure than the stock of a common variety, such as Scott and McGowan. In order to show the value of stock in an inventory some regard should be paid to its selling value as well as to its cost of production; in many instances manufacturers are compelled to inventory large lots of goods at very much less than what they cost to produce, for the simple reason that the stock will not sell for the cost of production.

I would also agree with Mr. Rudd in estimating the depreciation on greenhouse buildings, even of the better class, as five per cent per annum. The depreciation on the average factory building and machinery is frequently computed at ten per cent per annum. I do not believe any factory computes at much less than five per cent, and I would consider a greenhouse nothing more nor less than a plant manufacturing establishment. Of course houses built very cheaply and which are not calculated to last more than seven or eight or ten years should be charged up with a depreciation of not less than twenty to twenty-five per cent per annum. I think that Mr. Rudd's method of finding what it costs to maintain a square foot of bench space during each month is a good method, as, having the said cost, by charging up to any plant produced the space occupied by that plant during its period of production, at the price which it costs to maintain said bench space, would give the approximate cost of the plant after the items of general expense had been added to that cost. Probably the best and shortest way to secure a fair estimate of the cost of producing plants is to ascertain the cost of maintaining the square foot of bench space during the winter months—that is to say, November, December, January, February, March and April—and then to charge up the average price per month against said space. It will, of course, be assumed that it costs more to carry plants during the months of December, January and February than it does during the months of November and April, but if the cost is averaged through the six months one will get near enough to the actual cost for all practical purposes. The same thing could be done for crops produced during the summer months, as at that period everything would be grown practically without the use of fuel, excepting stove and other tropical plants, and in these the cost of fuel would be so light that averaging it throughout the six summer months would bring a result sufficiently accurate for all practical purposes.

Many of the smaller florists who are assisted in their greenhouse work by members of their own families are liable to underestimate the cost of production seeming to think that if their sons George or Henry, and their daughters and wives do a certain quantity of work in the greenhouses, that work is clear profit. This is a false method of reckoning. Every bit of work performed in the greenhouses by the florist himself, as well as by the members of his own family, should be charged against the cost of producing the plants at fair wages for the services performed. Any florist who deprives his children of a portion of their educational advantages in order to get the benefit of their services in the greenhouse is cor-ducting his business at a loss if he does not compute these services at a fair ratio in estimating the cost of producing the commodity which he sells, and who is not able to sell his produce at a fair profit above the cost thus computed. The fact that his family works in the greenhouses and that he is saved thereby from hiring a man does not benefit him in the least unless he sells his product at a price sufficient to cover the value of the services of his family, but on the contrary he is depriving his own family of advantages to which it is entitled, and is actually making a present of the products of his own family's labor to his customers.

There is another item entering into the cost of producing and selling plants which is frequently overlooked, and that is, unsold stock at the end of the season, which must be destroyed or lost. If a florist produces 50,000 plants, sells only 40,000 of them and is obliged to lose the remaining 10,000, the entire amount which it cost to produce the 50,000 plants should be charged up as the cost of producing the 40,000.

Another Lonsdale Wrinkle.

Edwin Lonsdale uses a little contrivance for holding up his steam radiator pipes that seems destined to become universal. The usual cast iron fixture has the objection that if not put up perfectly true the pipes, in expanding and contracting, are apt to grip the rest and gradually loosen the fixture from its fastening. Mr. Lonsdale's appliance consists of a six-inch wire nail and a piece of a 1/4-inch iron pipe two inches in length slipped over the nail from the point. The spikes are then driven into the wall posts at an angle, so as to prevent the steam pipes from slipping off. The small pipes fit loosely on the spikes and act as rollers, turning readily as the steam pipes expand or contract. With these spikes it is easy to get the pipes to a perfect grade. They are also very cheap. Altogether it is a handy and useful device.

Carnations Up-to-Date.

[Read by Wm. Gammage, of London, Ont., at the Montreal convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association.]

Carnations have been divided into several distinct classifications and to describe each would require volumes. It was not until the nineteenth century that particular attention was paid to growing carnations, although in the early part of the sixteenth century the development began to attract the attention of historians, and the gardeners of that date contributed numerous improved varieties. It is said that in the early part of the nineteenth century the artificial means of developing the flowers, as then practiced, by what is known among English gardeners as dressing, removing all imperfect and superfluous petals with a forceps and arranging the remainder in a formal manner, had much to do with its downfall, as from about the middle of the century little is heard of it until within a comparatively recent date.

To come down to the present times and the varieties which will interest you most, the work of improving the carnation has gone steadily forward. It was about the year 1840 that Delmais, a French gardener, produced the variety from which was developed the carnation as grown to-day. Its improvement was followed up by M. Alphonse Algatiere, who, by his skillful crossing, obtained a number of fine varieties with stiff stems. These received the name of tree carnations.

In 1866 a number of varieties were imported from Europe by Messrs. Card, Zeller and Dailedouze. The varieties were La Purite, Pres. Degraw, Edwardsii and a variegated La Purite. These were grown for a number of years as pot plants for summer and winter flowering. At what date the bench system of growing was adopted, I am not prepared to say, but, from personal recollections, I would estimate that it has not exceeded twenty years. At about that date we find such varieties as Grace Wilder, Buttercup, Peter Henderson, Hinze's White, Morocco, Hinsdale, La Purite, Degraw, Edwardsii and Snowden were the principal ones grown. Disbudding had not been practiced to any extent and carnations with stems from two to four inches long were, with few exceptions, the only ones to be had.

We have but little conception of the interest which was created in the work of improving the carnation by the discussions and essays published in the early days of our present trade papers. It was through their influence and the practical lessons taught that many who had but indifferent success took up the work and became not only successful growers, but have contributed many new and meritorious varieties.

It was not until the year 1891, when Daybreak was sent out, that Grace Wilder found its first real rival in a light pink. Until the present year, although it has had many competitors for honors, Daybreak has been able to hold its own. But now, with the advent of so many light pink varieties with improved flowers and better constitutions, it, too, will have to stand aside. At the present, with so many meritorious varieties, one is somewhat puzzled to know what to grow. While there will always be a demand for ordinary stock, for comparison, say Scott and McGowan, the demand for a higher grade and better quality will also have to be met. However, each individual grower will have to govern himself according to his market and conditions for growing. To try to grow varieties that do not succeed well in some localities, or to try and grow high grade flowers in rickety, ill ventilated, poorly lighted, old houses is, to say the least, working at a disadvantage.

The advance in the methods of cultivation has kept pace with the improvement in varieties. To-day we find whole ranges of houses built in the most substantial manner, devoted entirely to the production of the carnation. There are thousands of people employed in this industry and the value as a commercial product is of no inconsiderable amount.

To mention even the varieties that have proved of greatest commercial value during the last ten years would take up too much time. Certain it is that some varieties do better in some localities than in others, but where a variety is not successfully grown it more often happens that the grower does not understand the requirements of that variety, as the surroundings are not congenial; in such cases the value of experimenting cannot be too strongly urged.

With the advanced methods and constant experimenting, the system of growing has undergone an almost complete evolution in the past five years. With the permanent and substantial structures, the raised bench system is gradually giving way to the solid, or where the site will not permit of the natural soil, the tile bed. The advantages of this system and indoor summer cultivation are easily seen when we compare the quality of the high grade flowers produced now, and those of five years ago with the same varieties.

The substance and keeping qualities of carnations are governed almost wholly by cultural methods. Those grown in a high temperature and liberally fed with liquid manure will invariably have large flowers with weak stems and go to sleep as soon as you place them on the counter, while those grown in a lower temperature, the manure incorporated in the soil, not over-watered, are of a quality that it is a pleasure to offer a customer.

Again, the keeping qualities of carnations are very much affected by the treatment they receive immediately after picking. We have found that the best place to, so to speak, cure them in, is a light, dry room, a few degrees cooler than the temperature in which they were grown. When so placed for twenty-four hours before shipping or taking to the store, they will keep from five to ten days and give good satisfaction to customers where the same flowers put immediately after picking into an ice box or taken to a warm room will not last over two days.

The varieties are now so numerous that to make a selection and say what is the best or most profitable to grow would be next to an impossibility, for what we consider the best one season, is very often completely eclipsed the next. However, to the grower who retails his own flowers, I would suggest the following varieties: For white, Mary Wood, White Cloud, Flora Hill and McGowan; for red, G. H. Crane, America and Jubilee; for pink, Victor, Melba, Scott, Mrs. Joost, Lady Van Horn and Daybreak; for crimson, Gen. Gomez; for yellow, Mayor Pingree and Eldorado, with Mrs. Bradt for a variegated. The above will give a good collection and with skillful growing can be had in bloom from September to September.

How many of the introductions of 1900 will prove to have all the merits claimed for them by their introducers it is, at this early date, premature to say, but a few notes on their present appearance will not be out of place. Lady Van Horn, field grown, has an ideal growth, it has made the best plants of any we are growing this year. Next to it Ethel Crocker has made a very satisfactory plant. Genevieve Lord, too, is doing nicely. Olympia has not made as large plants as I would have expected, considering the strength of the young stock. The Marquis and Mrs. Lippincott were indoor grown; they have made good, strong plants and will no doubt give us some very fine flowers later in the season.

With us this season has been a favorable one for field cultivation. Ordinarily plants would not be as large a month later as they were at mid-August, so that a comparison between indoor and field cultivation this season would be no criterion to go by. This season we are experimenting on indoor cultivation, with some twenty varieties, planting at different dates, but it is yet too early to pass an opinion, and I hope at some near future date, when this association holds a winter carnation meeting, to be able to give you a more practical paper, embracing the results of our experiments.

CARNATIONS.

PRESENT TREATMENT FOR THE PLANTS.

There is no time so suitable as the next four weeks in which to get your carnations into good shape for the holidays. Chrysanthemums have the call and there is no use in crowding the market with second-class carnation stock. Plants housed between August 10 and September 10 ought, if they have been properly treated, to now be in good health and well established. Such plants can stand a little trimming up and be all the better for it, but if from any cause your plants are not in good growing condition do not cut any wood from them.

Go over the houses carefully to see that every shoot intended for flowering is growing straight, to make a good stem, and cut all weak shoots out to give the stronger ones the advantage of additional light and air.

If the plants are heavily set with buds that will open during the chrysanthemum season, thin them out fully one-half. By this I do not mean disbudding; all good growers do that. What I mean is that where a plant has ten long-stemmed buds that will open during chrysanthemum season, five of them should be cut out, and where a plant has five such buds two or three of them should be cut out, leaving those which promise to produce the best flowers. This gives better flowers and flowers that will sell in competition with any other flower that grows. Moreover, if the half crop does not bring in as much money as the full crop would have done, you are storing up strength in your plants for their winter's work and that is better than a few extra dollars now.

Do not let any "Tom, Dick or Harry" do this trimming up. Do it yourself or have it done by someone who understands the habits and requirements of carnations. Too often carnation houses are turned over to employes who do not understand plant life and who consequently do not note the gradual retrogression of the plants until they have gone so far as to be beyond getting them back into a state of vigor that will enable them to produce first-class flowers before the end of the season.

The successful carnation grower will look after his carnations as carefully as an engineer will look after the steam in his boilers. Constant examination of the plants now will enable you to learn the requirements of the different varieties and you can govern their winter culture accordingly.

Some growers put heat into their houses too early; others delay it too long. There is no iron-clad rule to adopt, but a pretty safe one to follow is to leave ventilation on both day and night so long as the temperature outside does not fall below 40° and to keep heat out of the houses so long as the temperature in the houses does not fall below 35°. Of course a continued temperature of 35° would be injurious, but where it lasts only for one or two nights and then turns in warm again it is better to keep the heat out of the houses altogether rather than fire up one night and not fire the next. This treatment may give you a few hursted calyxes but that is better than to soften up your plants with heat and force them into bloom when flowers are not wanted. ALBERT M. HERR.

Keeping Dahlias Dwarf.

There are several methods of keeping dahlias dwarf without checking their growth and we follow a number of plans, one in conjunction with the other. In the first place, we do not make our ground too rich in the beginning. Secondly, as soon as the shoots appear, we pinch them out, which is known as the single pruning system. Of course we remove all but the strongest. Then we stir or cultivate the soil very deeply, in many cases from four to six inches. This is really root pruning, and while it does not check the growth of the plants it checks the rapid growth. As soon as the plants commence blooming we cultivate lightly, only one to one and one half inches deep. This gives the full strength of the soil to the plant and the flowers are consequently large and are produced in quantities. When the flowers commence to get smaller we top-dress the soil with pure bone meal, four parts of the meal to one part nitrate of soda. This top-dressing we renew as often as the flowers show that it is needed.

In regard to pruning the plants, I would say that all we do is to remove all the shoots but the one strongest in the beginning. You then have but one strong, sturdy stem. All the pruning we do after that is to cut the flowers and, as we keep cutting out the tops of the plants in cutting the blooms on good stems, the lower shoots develop and bloom. This materially keeps the plants low and dwarf. This, of course, is in open ground or field culture.

If plants are grown in a garden or anywhere where they cannot get plenty of pure air and sunlight, I doubt if this system would be satisfactory. In other words, without plenty of air and sunlight the plants would grow tall and would have to be staked.

L. K. PEACOCK.

Deceptive Preparations.

A recent mail brought from Fort Worth, Tex., the letter reprinted below, which was submitted to L. H. Bailey, Professor of Horticulture at Cornell University, and to Prof. Albert F. Woods, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Division of Vegetable Physiology and Pathology, whose opinions are subjoined:

Probably the greatest obstacle to the success of those who are engaged in horticultural pursuits throughout this country is the damage inflicted on trees and plants by the almost countless number and variety of insect pests, against which they have to wage eternal warfare. Hardly a plant or tree but that is susceptible to the ravages of some insect enemy. The most effective remedy now in common use is a mixture or emulsion of one kind or other which must be administered by spraying. While this method is useful and has been the means of saving many crops of fruit and vegetables that would otherwise have been lost, it must be admitted that the process is somewhat slow, cumbersome and troublesome.

The writer, like many others, has long felt the need of something not only more effective, but more easy of application than spraying, and now after five years of constant study and over three years of experimenting, believes that something has been found, which is destined in the near future to supersede spraying and fumigating to a great extent, if not altogether. This preparation or antitoxin, as it might be called, will destroy all sorts of insect pests, especially scales that infest maple, box elder, different varieties of palm, pandanus and many other plants. As for the San Jose scale, we have never seen a tree infested with it, but presume it is about the same as the scale that infests the above mentioned, and if so, the antitoxin spoken of will certainly destroy it.

The preparation referred to is not only a perfect insecticide, but is also a plant food, and will show its effects on the growth very soon after application. This antitoxin is prepared in powdered form, a small quantity of which is inserted into an incision in the bark of the tree. It is also prepared in liquid form for application to the roots of cabbages, tomatoes and other vegetables. In each case the antitoxin, so called, is absorbed by the tree or plant, and insects attacking same, after it becomes inoculated with the preparation, are soon destroyed.

The writer realizes that the assertions above are pretty broad, but they are made in full confidence of his ability to demonstrate their correctness. We have thoroughly tested this preparation in our nursery and orchard grounds here until we are fully satisfied and in addition have testimony of local vegetable and fruit growers, and other citizens engaged in horticultural pursuits, who will testify to its merits.

We expect in the very near future to put this preparation on the market and advertise it through the proper mediums. Before doing so, however, we desire further tests from fruit and vegetable growers and horticulturists throughout the country, in order that these tests may be made under as many different conditions, climatic and otherwise, as possible. To this end, we will be pleased to furnish any of said parties who will send their address and a couple of stamps to defray postage, with sufficient of our antitoxin to treat five trees, together with full directions for use. We want to hear from earnest, practical men who will test the remedy fairly and according to directions. Furthermore, would say that we should be glad to have a few specimens of small branches of trees infested with this San Jose scale, and if a limited number of your readers will kindly mail us a branch, we will, in return, mail them enough antitoxin to treat five trees.

Holding ourselves at your disposal for any further information on this subject, which is of the most vital importance to all who are engaged in orchard and garden enterprises, and thanking you in advance for the courtesy of publishing this letter, we are, etc.,

Albert F. Woods

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Every now and then some one devises a process of putting some kind of poison or preparation in the trunk of a tree, expecting that the sap will take it up and kill all the insects and diseases which infest the plant. There is no recorded scientific experiment, however, to show that this is possible without killing the plant at the same time. As a matter of fact, plants will rarely take up any injurious compound in sufficient quantity to destroy the pests. If it did, it would probably destroy itself. For myself, I should have no faith in such recommendations. L. H. BAILEY.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I will say in regard to the document which you submitted, that all remedies of the kind mentioned have proved worthless. A few years ago a great many people were taken in by a similar remedy for the elm-leaf beetle. Any substance which inoculated into a plant would kill an insect would kill the plant also. In our opinion, therefore, there is absolutely nothing in the so-called "antitoxin."

ALBERT F. WOODS.

Variegated Asparagus Sprengerii.

"Among the sowings I make yearly of Asparagus Sprengerii there are always several seedlings with more or less variegated foliage," writes R. Koemann in Moller's Deutsche Gartner-Zeitung. "I have always made it a practice to save these variegated seedlings, but I soon found that they never thrived, no matter how well treated, and never attained the growth and vigor of the green stock. Among the seedlings of last June's sowing appeared a colored plant that soon demonstrated right after it was potted that it possessed as much vigor as the green plants. I therefore took particular pains with it, by frequent repotting into rich soil and with an occasional application of liquid manure. The coloring of the leaves having rather increased than decreased since then, I presume it will remain constant. The greater part of the foliage is green and white, only a few of the shoots being entirely white. The plant is as healthy and vigorous as any plant of the green type. For the present this new plant is hardly of great value, since propagation by cuttings is impossible, and so the only means of increase would be by division or from seed. It is very doubtful whether the percentage of variegated plants from seed is very large. The plant is at present in full bloom on nearly all the branches."

The Use of Shrubs in Cemeteries.

[Read by O. C. Simonds, of Graceland Cemetery, Chicago, before the fourteenth annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents, Cleveland, O., September 11-13, 1900.]

The reports of our meetings show that during recent years the subject of shrubbery has been neglected. In fact, judging from many of the cemeteries which our association has visited, one would think that the shrubs themselves were very little appreciated. Undoubtedly the removal of fences, hedges and railings and the substitution of grass walks for those of other materials is a movement in the right direction, but in confining the features of a cemetery to grass, trees, roads and monuments is there not danger of producing an effect of baldness and monotony? We have been in some burial places where the whole area included within the boundaries could be seen at a glance and a multitude of stones would obtrude themselves on our attention, and then the naked trunks of trees would fill the view with vertical lines. Some low foliage, hiding portions of the roadway and at least nine-tenths of the monuments, would have made a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the grounds. We come here to learn how to make cemeteries beautiful. Nothing will help us more than an abundance of good, healthy-looking green leaves. Foliage adds as much to the beauty of a landscape as plumage does to the beauty of a bird.

To make a cemetery attractive and interesting in appearance the attention must be confined to one object at a time by shutting other objects out of view. By so doing the changing of one's position brings new features into sight. In this way we are attracted from one object to another and our interest in what we are looking at is maintained. It follows, therefore, that masses of shrubbery covered with foliage reaching from the ground to points above the eye are exceedingly useful in producing the desired effect. It sometimes happens that trees with foliage coming to the ground serve the same purpose as masses of shrubs, but in too many cases the lower branches of the trees have been cut away.

The hiding of certain objects, however, is not the most useful purpose served by shrubs. They are beautiful in themselves. What is more pleasing to the sense of sight and the sense of smell than a great mass of lilacs when in bloom? How delicate in color and fragrance are the pink and white flowers of the Tartarian honeysuckles! How graceful are the curving branches of some of the spiræas when weighted down with a profusion of clusters of white flowers. But I think the beauty of the various shrubs, although surpassing one's powers of description, yields in importance to the part which they serve in making artistic compositions. They make the most pleasing boundaries of lawns, forming a background in one place, carrying a point of foliage forward in another, so as to give a prominent point of light in contrast with deep shade, and everywhere varying the outline so that it is as beautiful as the margin of a summer's cloud. The effect of shrubs as seen in moonlight, when their color is for the most part lost, shows their fundamental value, but a strong light, which brings out the variety of color, helps to complete the picture.

I have spoken of masses of shrubs, but we sometimes see them dotted about upon the lawn in a way to weaken the general effect. And even in masses, too great a variety is frequently used. A large group of one kind of shrub is generally very satisfactory and if two kinds are used they should not be mixed so as to produce a spotted appearance, but each kind should predominate in its own part of the group. Only such shrubs should be planted as prove hardy in the locality in which they are used. I have read that there is no country more abundantly supplied with shrubs than the United States, and none where the climate is more favorable to their growth. We certainly have enough native shrubs to make any locality as beautiful as the fairest park. I have seen prairie roses make a ravine in which they were at home more beautiful even than the "wooded island." How attractively the elderberries fill out the corners of a rail fence, and how beautiful are the viburnums and dogwoods, to say nothing of the evergreen shrubs of New England and the Alleghenies. All shrubs which make the country so beautiful are certainly appropriate in a cemetery.

It is sometimes said that there is not space enough for shrubs in a cemetery and I have even known rules to be adopted prohibiting their use, but there is room enough for anything that people like. People wish to place their dead among most beautiful surroundings and, with those who can choose, the general effect is the first consideration rather than a given amount of space. The people who spend fortunes in erecting ugly stone tombs would not hesitate in securing all the space required for any tree or shrub or any combination of such beautiful objects if they could fully appreciate them. Shrubs can usually be placed along the boundaries of cemeteries, the margins of ponds and in acute angles of lots or sections without taking any space that is valuable for other purposes. Sometimes they can be placed about the trunks of trees with good effect. I know of no reason why they should not occasionally be allowed to grow directly over a grave. We might think of them as reaching out their branches to protect a spot that is sacred. They would form a place of refuge for the birds whose music would continue to bring cheerfulness each spring for a period longer than a granite monument will last.

A group of shrubs should form a complete ground covering; that is, the foliage should meet the lawn and no attempt should be made to grow grass underneath the branches. Usually no trimming should be done after the plants are once established. It is a mistake to trim up shrubs. If they get too high or too broad, the longest branches should be cut at the ground. If this treatment produces a bush that is too straggling perhaps the whole shrub should be cut to the ground and allowed to sprout again.

It is also a mistake to rake the leaves from underneath a group of shrubs. The fallen leaves always look better than the bare ground during the late fall, winter and early spring, and in summer they are not seen. They conserve moisture and furnish plant food. They will also protect certain early spring flowers which naturally find a home near shrubs, out of reach of chilling winds, such as snow-drops, crocuses, bloodroots, erythroniums, trilliums and hepaticas.

Frequently the greater portion of the shrubs needed for boundaries and margins of ponds can be taken from the surrounding country. The panicked dog-wood with its rich foliage and white berries on little red stems, the red-branched dogwood, the witch hazel, the viburnums of different kinds, the common hazel, the elderberries, both the red and the black-berried species; the spiræas of different kinds, the chokeberry, the different sumachs, varying in size from the small, aromatic form to the staghorn which is almost a tree; the prairie, swamp and meadow roses, and the New Jersey tea are examples of attractive shrubs that are found almost everywhere in the northern states. In favored localities the evergreen shrubs, including the rhododendrons and laurels, make a beautiful addition to the list. But, of course, we should take advantage of the beautiful shrubs that come to us from other countries. The forsythias, covered in spring with a profusion of yellow flowers, the Japanese quince following with bright red flowers, the honeysuckles, lilacs, syringas, spiræas, viburnums, roses, barberries, etc., that fill our nurseries are all delightful and should be used in abundance.

If I should make but one suggestion for beautifying our cemeteries, it would be to use more of these smaller, woody plants which clothe the ground so attractively and feast the eye with a profusion of flowers, leaves and fruit, and which even in wintertime soften the outlines of a landscape and often catch and hold the snow in a delightful way. They are as important in the real pictures which we try to form as children are in the family. Let us use them with boldness, creating broad, quiet effects, and by so doing make the cemeteries more truly resting places.

Heating With a Flue.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I would like you to tell me the best way to build a brick flue to be heated with soft coal. I have a house 16x60 feet, three-quarter-span-to-the-south, fifteen feet to the ridge, and will devote it to carnations and general stock. I intend to add two more houses next spring and will then put in steam heat.

SUBSCRIBER.

In building a flue for greenhouse heating the arch or furnace should be placed at one end of the house, with the doors opening into the coal shed. For a house 16x60 feet the grate should be about two feet square, and the fire pot and ash pit should be constructed much the same as the fire box and ash pit for a horizontal tubular boiler, except that the roof will have to be arched over or supported by iron bars. The first twenty-five feet of the flue should be of fire brick, and about twelve by eight inches inside, except that the upper courses should be slightly drawn in so that it will not be over six inches wide at the top. The furnace should be sunk, with the top about level with the surface, and the flue should connect, at the rear end, with its upper surface even with the top of the heater, so that there will be no chance for the gas to pocket. The furnace should be located at the center of the end of the house and the flue should be carried with a rise of one-inch in five feet, and at an angle of forty-five degrees, under the walk, to a point beneath the center of the side bench, when it should run parallel with the wall around the house to a point six feet from the end where it started, when it should turn and run to the chimney, which should rest upon the side wall of the furnace with an opening into the fire pot. A slide should be provided so that the direct draft can be closed after the fire has been well started. All except the first twenty-five feet of the flue may be of 10-inch glazed sewer pipe, but care should be taken that the joints approved specimens of approved varieties. The first flowers to suffer from the effects of the incoming chrysanthemums are the carnations, which have dropped in value considerably, and top grade American Beauties, for which the outside price is $20 to $25 per hundred, and that obtained only with more or less of a struggle. Violets are still moving very slowly, with no indications of any immediate promotion. Cattleyas are entirely too plentiful and have this week touched $10 a hundred in quantity, an unprecedentedly low figure. Nobody looks for any permanent improvement in business until after election.

Politics, for once, seems to have done are properly cemented and well-supported. There should be no wood-work in contact with the furnace or flue.

MARKET DEMORALIZED AND NO PROSPECT OF BETTER CONDITIONS UNTIL AFTER ELECTION. — CHRYSANTHEMUMS TAKE POSSESSION. — POLITICS A GOOD THING FOR THE CARNATION. — PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

Up to Friday of last week business was generally satisfactory, everything considered, but about that time shipments of flowers to this market increased greatly in volume and, a rainy Sunday intervening, conditions were such that considerable loss of stock was inevitable and so prices were wrecked. Another cause of the broken and unsatisfactory market existing at present writing is the appearance, in full ranks, of the chrysanthemum host, and so it is reasonable to look for a continuance of this demoralizing influence for at least a month to come. Bergmann, Montmort and such premature varieties are already back numbers and not worth the price of asters since Polly Rose, Glory of Pacific, Yellow Monarch and White Monarch have taken possession. As to prices they range from $6 to $25 a hundred for a service for the flower trade, the booming of the carnation as a campaign emblem having given that flower a boost that will undoubtedly affect favorably its fortunes throughout the entire season. Absurd stories as to the expenditure of many thousands of dollars for carnations for the coming demonstration in this city have been circulated and accepted without question by people in the trade and out of it, but the truth of the matter is that the carnations for that affair, some 30,000 to 35,000 are to be contributed, as stated in our New York notes last week, by the florists, to be donated to the dry goods division of the parade. Those of dark color, regardless of actual name of variety, will be known as Roosevelts and the lighter pink in like manner will be called McKinley, it being manifestly impracticable to provide that number of any one of the newly introduced varieties. C. W. Ward is "the man behind the gun" in this movement and is putting it through with characteristic thoroughness and enterprise.

The Fernery, Miss C. Tucker proprietor, which has been located for two years on Lexington avenue, is to be reopened in a fine store on West Thirty-third street, opposite the Waldorf-Astoria.

Carnation plant dealers are highly elated over the business of the present fall. In fact, some have found the demand far greater than their resources and have been obliged to draw upon the neighbors for stock to fill orders. There is practically nothing salable left in the hands of any good grower who has properly advertised his stock.

RECEIPTS ARE HEAVY AND BUSINESS NOT ACTIVE.—FAKIRS DOMINATE THE MARKET.—ALL CLASSES OF MATERIAL SUFFER.—VIOLETS IN THE DUMPS.—FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS AND DECLARES A DIVIDEND.—PERSONAL JOTTINGS OF WIDELY VARYING IMPORT.—VISITORS AND OTHER NOTES.

Extreme dullness continues in the flower business. Heavy receipts of flowers add to the embarrassment of the situation for all sections of the trade excepting the street fakirs, who are never so happy as at such times and who have been taking full advantage of the opportunity for the past week to call attention to their importance by jostling along the sidewalks loaded down with burdens of roses and carnations, selecting for their parade the most crowded thoroughfares. All kinds and classes of roses are found in the vast accumulation thus reaching the street buyer, the lordly, long-stemmed Beauty and the petted Liberty being companions in misfortune with rag-time Brides and bleached and frowsy Bridesmaids with whom the fog-laden atmosphere has dealt most unkindly. Splendid Carnots with faultless stems and foliage stand in the ice-boxes waiting for the buyer who never comes, until, wide-expanded and over-mature, their heads are snapped off, toothpicked and stuffed into the crazy quilt border surrounding the "at rest" on a two-dollar pillow for some "elderly person."

Violets languish in the public estimation this season and, although both double and single varieties are of excellent quality and low in price, they find but few takers. Possibly the long-lingering garden splendor with its still uninterrupted display of salvias, asters, canas, geraniums, dahlias and heliotropes is responsible for the violet's plight; or maybe the selection of the carnation as the standard of the dominant political party has something to do with it, but the best lesson the violet grower can learn from the situation is the unprofitableness of any effort for an "early crop" of this winter and spring favorite.

The annual distribution of prizes for ornamental gardening about the stations of the Boston & Maine railroad gives South Lancaster the first prize of $50 and Waltham second, $40. Three hundred and fifty station agents competed and there were 171 prizes bestowed.

The eighth annual meeting of the shareholders of the Boston Co-operative Flower Growers' Association was held on Saturday evening, October 13, forty-five members being present. Officers were elected as follows: President, W. C. Stickle; vice-president, Wm. Nicholson; secretary and treasurer, Geo. Cartwright; directors, W. W. Edgar, John Walsh, E.

Sutermeister, L. W. Mann, Peter Fisher and E. N. Pierce. A twenty per cent dividend on the capital stock of $1500 was declared and the treasurer reported a surplus of several thousand dollars.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS COME FROM DISTANT SOURCES.—LOCAL CROP ALL LATE.—LIBERTY SCARCE AS YET.—CONDITION OF OTHER SUPPLIES.—CARNATION BELT EXPANDING—ALL ABOUT THE PRICES—A NEW SWINDLER—MEETING OF HORTICULTURISTS.—A NEW PARTNERSHIP IS ANNOUNCED.

The question of the hour is as to where the chrysanthemums are. There have been some about, but very few, and all cut too soon. Some had to be procured for the early weddings, nearly all of which came from a distance, for the home supply is still in the bud. Some say there is a knack in getting in the early ones and that it is easy to have them a week or so ahead of the full supply. There may be something in this but I am inclined to doubt it; at any rate the little knack or kink is out of order this fall and the chrysanthemums are all late. After October 20 they are promised, for sure. The few offered so far have brought $3 per dozen. Cosmos is now in full flower and sells for 25 cents to 75 cents per hundred. Dahlias bring from $1 to $4 for the same quantity. Roses are improving despite the unfavorable weather and prices are a little stiffer, $5 to $6 being asked for the special teas. The Liberty is being called for but nobody seems to have any worth mentioning except a few from R. Scott & Son. It seems as if the plants have to be a good size before flowers can be furnished with any length of the stem. They seem to throw so many buds that one is kept busy cutting them off so as to get the plants up to my size. It will not belong, however, before it will be added to the dealers' daily stock. Carnations are looking up. Scott and Hill are the two leaders, with a few of the many new kinds coming occasionally. This will be a great year for the carnation. The Chester county community, or carnation belt, is rapidly increasing in glass area, many new places and additions to old ones having been made the past season. How best to keep the blooms when in the florists' stock is a problem. They will stand for a week in a country packing shed and still look well, but go to sleep in the florists' ice box over night. And, again, some wholesale men can keep them for three or four days in an ice box and say they improve if not too old when they get them. The blooms now in the market bring $1 to $2. Violets are plentiful at 25 cents to 35 cents for the single sorts and 50 cents to 75 cents for the doubles, a few of which are now seen.

A mean trick was recently played on Mrs. Eaton, of Twelfth street and Girard avenue. She received a large funeral order from a bright looking young woman, to be sent to a certain address c. o. d. The designs were made up as ordered but upon delivering no such street number was found. The usual funeral notice was not in any of the papers and the whole transaction was done with evident intent to defraud, although, as in similar cases, no check was presented for change. The same woman, it seems, tried to leave a similar order at two other places but as she was a stranger and as no deposit was forthcoming the order was not accepted. It is well for the craft generally to be upon their guard for this swindler. She is very lady-like in appearance, apparently about 20 years of age and a very plausible talker. How she would profit by such a transaction was not developed but she

The October meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, held last Tuesday evening, was very interesting. There were several tables of exhibits, mostly cosmos and dahlias. These were fine and made a good showing. There were also a few orchids, among them a seedling cypripedium for which Alphonse Pericat, gardener to Mrs. G. B. Wilson, received the society's silver medal. Some one proposed a reduction in the price of admission to the fall show, making the admission 25 cents, but he was overwhelmingly voted down.

We are sorry to have to say goodbye to genial George McClain, who has been for the past twenty-five years the foreman for George Craig. He is now one of the firm of Walker & McClain, of Youngstown, Ohio. We wish these gentlemen all the luck possible. They are both, from their long experience in the two branches of the trade, just suited for the partnership they have now formed and they will no doubt build up a successful business.

We had the pleasure of a visit from William Scott, of Buffalo, who spent several days in our city last week in the interest of the Pan-American Exposition, the horticultural department of which he says will be the greatest the country has ever seen. He spent a few hours among the growers with Henry Pennock and his automobile and says that while frightened half to death most of the time he had a most glorious ride and got over more ground than he believed possible in one afternoon. TRADE GOOD BUT STOCK IS SOFT AND PRICES LOW.—CONDITIONS NOT WHAT GROWERS OR WHOLESALERS WOULD LIKE THEM TO BE.—COOL WEATHER BRINGS SOME IMPROVEMENT.—GRAND RAPIDS HAS STOCK TO SEND TO MARKET.—AN AUCTION SALE OF PALMS IS ANNOUNCED.—MINNEAPOLIS BRANCH STARTS OFF WELL.—VARIOUS DOINGS AND ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Wholesale trade has been good this week, but wholesalers themselves are far from satisfied with the state of the market and the growers have equal cause for complaint. While shipping orders have been more numerous, if anything, than a year ago at this time, the orders have been very small and prices have been comparatively low. Mr. Pieser, who is something of a statistician and thorough student of the trend of trade, says that commission men are selling as many flowers in value as in last October, when trade was particularly good, but that it is necessary to handle about twice the amount of stock to take in the same money. There is very little satisfaction in such a market, particularly when the stock is soft and it is difficult to send a shipping order to any distance and to have the material carry well. With regard to the market condition, an instance is pointed out wherein a country buyer last year sent in his first order on September 18 and by October 10 had bought $173 worth of cut flowers; this year his first order, dated October 10, was for 500 ferns, and he says that he has thus far had no call to go outside his garden and greenhouses for cut flowers. The last few days of cool weather have had a very perceptible effect upon the qualities of roses and carnations. For the past month stock has been steadily improving but it has been very soft and of poor keeping quality because of the weather conditions, but now some very fine Beauties and tea roses are obtainable and there is life in the carnations. Violets, too, are becoming more plentiful and are fair in quality. The brisk autumn demand for them has not yet developed but returns in general are good enough to make them profitable. There is beginning to be more variety in chrysanthemums, although many growers will hardly begin to cut before the middle of next week. Fair blooms in white, pink and yellow early varieties are now obtainable and are selling at satisfactory prices, considering the fact that the stock is hardly up to the grade of last year. Better qualities are promised in the near future.

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at Handel Hall, Friday evening, October 19, when the following officers were elected: President, Andrew McAdams; vice-president, George Woodward; recording secretary, Charles Hunt; financial secretary, Edgar F. Winterson; treasurer, Edgar Sanders; trustees, E. Wienhoeber, G. L. Grant, John Reardon, W. N. Rudd and John Degnan. It was voted to hold the annual banquet on the evening of November 8 and the club appropriated $50 for the purchase of flower show tickets for its members in good standing. A motion to change the evening of meeting from the first and third Fridays to the first and third Tuesdays was referred to the trustees.

The Harms Park Floral Co. is to have a big auction sale of decorative plants at McKellar & Winterson's next week, Wednesday and Thursday. This is a new concern composed of A. B. Everett, E. R. Tauch and Louis Gregor, the two former having been with Walter Retzer & Co., Mr. Everett as partner and Mr. Tauch as foreman. They started in business on Berteau avenue, September 1, and propose to grow cut flowers for the wholesale market, making carnations a specialty. They have two and one-half acres of land and ten greenhouses, two of them, each 22x125, being now in the course of erection, the Moninger Company supplying the material. They report business as starting in well.

Chas. Chadwick and Henry Smith were down from Grand Rapids the early part of this week and report things in good shape in their town. Grand Rapids has nearly twice as much glass this year as it had last and is coming to be a floricultural center of the first magnitude. Mr. Smith says that it is probable that there are 100,000 violet plants in his town and Mr. Chadwick has himself benched 65,000 carnation plants, including all the best varieties, which is more than the largest Chicago grower had under glass last winter, and is about as much as all except the largest of them have this year.

Interest in the approaching flower show seems to indicate an increased number and variety of exhibits. The information that one or two of the exhibitors who have been accustomed to cut a large figure in the plant and cut flower classes for chrysanthemums will be absent this year, has led a great many smaller growers to determine to go into the contest. If the rose market doesn't brace up within the next three weeks the big growers will probably be largely in evidence, something heretofore unknown.

D. W. Brant, of Brant & Noe, has returned from Minneapolis, where he has been for the last two weeks, engaged in starting their new wholesale cut flower house. They have a location on Sixth street, N., in the wholesale market, and one of the decided advantages of the place is that they have artificial refrigeration. Mr. Brant says that they feel very much encouraged by the way their venture has been received by the retailers of the Twin Cities. The store is in charge of a young man who came to them from the Van Bochove Brothers, at Kalamazoo.

The Geo. Wittbold Company has just completed the installation of two new boilers, one for steam and one for hot water. Last season they were rather short for heat but they will have no difficulty in this direction this year. During the summer they put up the tallest smokestack in their neighborhood and it gives them a draft that is almost sufficient to draw the fire up the chimney.

J. A. Budlong has a big crop of Brides and Bridesmaids on just now and is cutting some very fine stock. On Monday his cut was 11,000 roses. His Beauties are also good but his houses are not yet in full crop. He has made arrangements for a big supply of chrysanthemums again this year, one grower alone consigning 25,000 blooms to him.

E. C. Amling is receiving some very fine blooms of Dorothy, the pink seedling carnation which originated with Mrs. E. T. Graves, at Richmond. Mrs. Graves has made such a success of carnation growing that she has this season increased her range of glass to 30,000 square feet.

P. Broadbeck, of White Daybreak carnation fame, who as a prognosticator can give points to the forecast officials of the weather office in the Auditorium, says that autumn will last until Christmas and that this is to be a remarkably mild winter.

The funeral of Mr. Fargo, who has figured largely in the express business for many years, created a large demand for designs on Tuesday. One "creation" was a miniature floral express wagon built for the employes of Mr. Fargo's company.

N. J. Wietor is getting busy. Doubling the size of one's range of glass in a single season gives the selling department something to do to handle the largely increased output. They have 65,000 American Beauty plants on the benches this year.

Adolph Poehlmann has his new Wabash avenue wholesale store, fitted up in modern style, all ready for opening under the management of Chas. S. Stewart. They will shortly have a very large cut of roses, which will be their specialty.

Between H. Bauske, of Bowmanville, and Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, A. L. Randall does not take a back seat for anybody when it comes to American Beauties. He says that business is all that he could reasonably expect.

Bassett & Washburn are so well pleased with the work of the two boilers which they recently equipped with smoke consumers that they have commissioned the Under Feed Stoker Company to fit out the remaining nine boilers.

Wm. J. Smyth has an attractive addition to his establishment in the form of a conservatory which is nearing completion. The structure is about 30x36 feet. He has also constructed a new up-to-date ice box.

Thomas W. Lawson, who has recently been supplementing his carnation notoriety by large winnings on the turf, will be in Chicago with a string of fancy equines for the horse show.

Mrs. G. W. Scott, who was associated with her husband in the undertaking and retail florist business on West Madison street, died last week and was buried on Monday.

Gov. Roosevelt carnations, all the way from the Cottage Gardens, have been on exhibition this week in the windows of A. Lange and the Central Floral Co.

Weiland & Risch are cutting some very good blooms of the newer carnations. Mr. Risch says he expects Mrs. Lawson to be the belle of the season.

Herbert Heller, of the South Park Floral Co., has been up from New Castle again this week, called by the death of his grandmother.

J. W. Kunz, of St. Louis, has entered the employ of C. A. Samuelson. He is widely experienced and very capable in his department.

J. B. Deamnd is receiving some very fine chrysanthemums notwithstanding the fact that these are unusually late this season.

The many friends of Mrs. Edgar F. Winterson will be pleased to learn that she is convalescing from her recent illness.

Robt. Georke, well known around town, is now with W. E. Lynch.

MEETING OF THE CLUB.—AID FOR GALVESTON FLORISTS.—PROGRAMME OF ESSAYS FOR THE WINTER.—PREMIUM WINNERS AT THE FAIR.—A TRIP TO CHICAGO IS PLANNED.

At the October meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club applications for membership were received from C. L. Eichhorn, Theo. Miller and Philip Goebel. H. G. Berning and C. A. Kuehn were appointed to secure subscriptions for the Galveston florists. During the session two essays were read, one on profitable winter blooming plants by Emil Schray, and one on roses by F. J. Fillmore. At the November meeting H. G. Ude will speak on "Successful Violet Culture," and C. C. Sanders on "Hardy Flowers for Florists' Use." At the December meeting F. W. Ude will relate "The Latest Facts About Carnations" and A. L. Halstedt will discuss "Carnations from a Commercial Standpoint." In January F. J. Ammann will tell "How to Grow Good Perle Roses." F. C. Weber will discuss "Cut Flowers for Retailers' Uses." At the February meeting H. G. Berning will tell what he knows about "The Best Methods of Wholesaling Cut Flowers" and J. J. Beneke will dissertate upon "The Methods to be Adopted to Elevate our Business." At the March meeting Robt. F. Tesson will contrast "The Cultivation of the Rose To-day and Ten Years Ago." At the April session E. W. Guy will talk on "Bulb Stock and How to Make It Pay." At the same session Carl Beyer will tell "How to Grow Pot Plants Profitably." In May Rudolph J. Mohr will talk of "Orchids from a Commercial Viewpoint" and Max Herzog will tell what he knows about "Sweet Peas and How They Should Be Grown."

The fortieth annual fair at St. Louis was the best on record and the floral section was particularly strong. The collection of 1500 cacti exhibited by A. Greiver was a most remarkable feature and the cut flower, plant and floral design classes were all well filled and meritorious. Emil Schray took nine first premiums worth $119 and four seconds worth $23. C. Young & Sons Company took seven firsts worth $81 and ten seconds worth $70. Ellison & Tesson won three firsts worth $34 and four seconds worth $20. Mr. Greiver's first was only $20 but the Schisler-Cornelli Seed Company took a prize with the same amount on a display of seeds.

There is a prospect that the bowling team will go to Chicago sometime during November, and it is likely that it will be accompanied by a large party, who will stay a couple of days to visit the big growers and other points of interest.

A VOYAGER ON THE SEA OF TRADE CHATS WITH SOME LIVE MEN.—NOTES OF A EUROPEAN TOUR.

George L. Graham has returned from his European tour brimful of new ideas, new impressions, an enhanced enthusiasm and renewed energies. What he saw abroad would fill a book. While in Belfast, Ireland, he visited the Hugh Dickson rose gardens, where hybrid perpetual roses and tuberous-rooted begonias are grown to perfection indoors. At the time of his visit Mr. Dickson's roses made a clean sweep of all the first prizes at Carlsh, Scotland. The Manchester Botanical Gardens next claimed his attention. There he saw ferns the like of which he had never seen before. One house, about 75x300, is given to woodbine. These are grown downward; that is, the strings are suspended from the roof and grow to within about five feet from the floor. Mr. Paull, the superintendent of the establishment, extended every courtesy to Mr. Graham and Mr. Weathers, the proprietor, was in no wise behind in extending a welcome to his American visitor. The Kew Gardens, of London, were worthy of a visit, and there, among other things, Mr. Graham saw the finest calceolarias that he has ever beheld. During his nine weeks' trip Mr. Graham visited Ireland, England, Scotland and France. The Paris exhibition, as a matter of course, claimed his attention and proved a revelation. Mr. Graham's own place underwent some overhauling during his absence and his general stock is all that could be desired.

Although the S. A. F. convention has long since passed into the realm of bygone events, it is by no means forgotten, and still furnishes interesting material for discussion. In my recent travels I have met a number of the "stay-at-homes" still regretting their missed opportunity and promising to do better next time. W. C. Rockwell is one of the number. With him, however, it was a question of choosing "between love and duty." Time was precious and work plentiful. Mr. Rockwell naturally decided that "business before pleasure" was a golden rule to be followed at all times and under all circumstances. Having given his greenhouses a thorough overhauling, and with stocks of roses and carnations, both standards and of recent introduction, that are in the best of condition, there is no wonder that Mr. Rockwell is inclined to view things from the standpoint of the optimist. His violets, both double and single, look vigorous and promising. He never made a failure of growing violets.

G. R. Oliver believes that whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well, and accordingly, while overhauling his houses, he did it in a thorough manner, cementing the walks, putting in the very best benches that money could purchase and ingenuity devise. Mr. Oliver's is a model establishment, while Mr. Oliver himself is a successful all-around grower.

WHAT THE CRAFTSMEN ARE DOING.—EVERY ESTABLISHMENT IS IN ORDER FOR A BUSY SEASON.—MUCH GOOD STOCK.—STEM ROT PREVALENT.

Baker's is one of the busiest places in town; they are shipping their fine ferns all over the country. They report, also, a good demand for cut flowers and funeral work. They have some very good seedling carnations in their second year. Everything about the place is in good shape under the supervision of Frank J. Baker, and we bowlers are proud of our Captain Baker, as we know he will lead us to victory. Syracuse bowlers please take notice.

Wm. Mathews, the veteran orchid grower, has his violets promising a good crop soon. He has a very fine house of chrysanthemums just right, planted late but they have made fine growth and fine foliage. His carnations are of extra quality and all doing well excepting The Marquis. He put in the finest of this variety in this section, but he says he is throwing them out every day on account of stem rot.

Peter Crowe's place looks well. He is our prize rose-grower and is having a large cut, but every flower goes and he could use more, and we expect to see splendid roses from his place this winter. We also see for him more gold medals, more cups, more prizes, and then each member of the Florists' Bowling Club will expect a new pair of white bowling shoes.

J. C. Spencer has thoroughly overhauled his place and painted it throughout. He has some seedling carnations, one of which he thinks will more than crowd the Lawson, and that is saying a great deal. There was no stem rot on The Marquis here.

At Wm. Pfeiffer's carnations are good but they are also having the prevailing trouble with The Marquis, stem rot, and they have taken the greatest care of them, too. Violets here are healthy. They are in good shape for the winter trade.

C. F. Seitzer, whose place always looks clean, has the finest bench of Daybreak carnations in the city; other carnations are also good here. He has just finished cutting a big bed of smilax. Mr. Seitzer has promised to bowl with us soon.

F. E. Shaw's place never looked better. Carnations are good, especially a bed of Joost. Roses are also healthy. He has some early chrysanthemums in flower. One also sees here a fine lot of Boston ferns.

SOME of the new hybrids of Scabiosa Caucasia are quite attractive.

THE cactus dahlias appear to be fast superseding the older large flowered types.

THE new scale of discounts of the window glass trust amount to a ten percent increase in the prices of double strength greenhouse sizes.

THERE is a demand for competent growers, particularly those experienced in roses, probably the result of the large increase in glass this year.

IN answer to "J. S." we wish to state that we give no attention whatever to questions of party politics. "The flowers that bloom in the spring have nothing to do with the case."

PROSPERITY, the new carnation which Dailedouze Bros., of Brooklyn, N. Y., are placing on the market, will always be better known as No. 666. It is usually the best policy to give a new variety a name before it is placed on exhibition.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., registers new cannas as follows: Pennsylvania, orchid flowering; color, bright scarlet, foliage green, height five feet. An American hybrid. Betsy Ross, color soft pink, foliage green, height two and one-half feet.

Wm. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

American Carnation Society.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

Dailedouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., register Prosperity; color, white ground overlaid with pink in mottles deepening toward the center; habit and health the nearest to the ideal yet produced; flowers four inches in diameter, freely produce on long, stiff, wiry stems and with a calyx that does not split. This is the carnation known as No. 666.

Philip Heilig, Franklin, Pa., registers Mrs. Philip Heilig; color, cream white ground, with pink markings on the edge of the petals, in size three and one-quarter inches, with a good, strong calyx and a stiff, upright stem; strong, healthy growth with dwarf habit and can be grown without supports.

Philip Heilig, Franklin, Pa., registers General Charles Miller; color, pure white, flowers very large, being three and one-half inches in diameter October 13; stem eighteen to twenty-four inches long; flower very full of petals with heavy, high built center and lower petals standing straight out; habit strong and sturdy and free from disease.

Syringing With Nicotine.

A French paper states that the addition of a small amount of soap, wood alcohol and carbonate of soda to nicotine solutions greatly increases their adhesive power and effectiveness. The following proportions are recommended:

Water.....	1000 parts
Nicotine.....	1 "
Wood alcohol.....	10 "
Soap.....	10 "
Carbodate of soda.....	2 "

The manufacturers of tobacco extracts state the percentage of nicotine they contain and when using them it will be necessary to add enough to bring the amount of nicotine up to the proportion specified. The formula is taken from a bulletin of the French National Society of Agriculture.

Regulating a Rose Crop.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have a rose house planted to grafted Brides, Bridesmaids and Liberty, which are growing freely and are now (September 27) coming into full crop. Can anything be done to regulate the flowering so that a crop may be reasonably expected at least at Christmas? The plants were benched the first week in May and are in good health.

NEW MEXICO.

A grower can regulate his crop of flowers to a certain degree by going over his plants and carefully disbudding, i. e., picking or cutting off all buds in sight about the end of this month, to ensure a crop of flowers for Christmas; it usually takes about eight weeks from one full crop to the next; that is, under ordinarily favorable circumstances. Thus by picking off the flowers and buds which are on the plants the last week in October, a good crop can usually be ensured for the end of December, providing, of course, the plants are in a healthy, vigorous condition. If a somewhat extended crop is desired, rather than the whole at one time, the disbudding should be extended to cover twelve or eighteen days for the whole house, or in other words, half the house could be disbudded say from October 25 to 30 and the other half from November 6 to 12.

Boiler and Piping.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am building a violet house 12x110. On the north side is a work shed, on the south, glass, walks along the walls, a seven-foot bench in the center. How many runs of 2-inch pipe will it take to heat the house when the outside temperature is 20° below zero? How shall I pipe the house? What style of boiler would you recommend, wood being used as fuel?

YOUNG FLORIST.

From the reading of the question it is inferred that the house runs north and south and that it is the ends rather than the sides that are referred to. If there is no glass in the sides of the house and the walls are not more than four feet above the surface of the ground outside and the roof is not more than fifteen feet measured over the ridge from plate to plate, one 2-inch flow and two returns on each wall will be ample. One of the returns on each side should be provided with a valve so that it can be cut off, as it will not be required except in cold weather. The boiler should have a capacity for 500 feet of radiation, and very few of this size have fire boxes sufficiently long or fire-pot door sufficiently large to permit of the use of the large sticks that are desirable to maintain a fire through the night. Some of the saddle or horizontal sectional heaters will probably be as well adapted as any for this purpose. L. R. T.

Trade has picked up nicely since cool weather set in and everybody is correspondingly happy. Roses look well. Gentemann has a fine lot of them. Gross and Heckenkamp have very large stocks of chrysanthemums; the latter will give his third annual chrysanthemum show the first part of November. Maag has a fine lot of McGowan carnations although carnations here are more or less affected by dry rot. Mrs. Vonedam has dispensed with her florist and will henceforth conduct her business personally, with the help of her two sons. Some large funeral orders and a large number of weddings are keeping cut flower stocks very low. F. H.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLOANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

THE radish seed crop is very small, whole fields yielding next to nothing.

VISITED CHICAGO: John Watts, of the John R. Watts Seed Co., Louisville, Ky.; Mr. Chesmore, of the Chesmore-Eastlake Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

THE C. A. Smurthwaite Produce Co., of Ogden, Utah, has received the highest award, a silver medal, for their exhibit of alfalfa and timothy seeds at the Paris Exposition.

THE tomato seed crop in Michigan is turning out very poorly and may fall short of the estimates, notwithstanding that these were made out on a very conservative basis.

The Seed Harvest.

The outlook for the seed crop, says the Gardener's Chronicle, is by no means assuring, as from every quarter there is evidence of an unusual shortage of all agricultural and vegetable seeds. This is attributable in a large measure to the drought which prevailed at the planting season a year or so ago. In addition to this, many of the plants put out were killed by the severe winter.

In March last the plants of mangel, standing for seed, which had been put out in the previous August, then looked flourishing but the severe drought which followed caused many of the roots to go blind. This applies particularly to the tender sorts, such as Golden Taokard. The average of the mangel crop is only about one twentieth of its usual bulk and from France and Germany have come reports showing that the crops there are also very short.

The yield of white-fleshed turnips is more satisfactory than that of mangel or swedes. When the plants started into growth in the spring, however, the forcing weather caused them to become thin and drawn, so that at the time of blooming a well-branched plant was the exception. Consequently the seed crop was decidedly light. The acreage for swede turnips was less than has been known for many years, and anyone taking a journey to the swede growing districts would see a solitary field here and there instead of hundreds of acres. In July and early August violent winds wasted much of the seed, in some cases resulting in an almost entire loss of crop.

With regard to the general crops of peas, it may be stated that the first early varieties, both round and wrinkled, show very short supplies, owing to the general drought. Storms in Germany and drought in Canada have severely affected the yields in those countries. Late peas promise rather better but of no section can it be said that there is an average crop. Blue peas are about three-fifths of an average crop and samples are small. The markets in which these are quoted opened at about twenty per cent advance in value as compared with the corresponding period last year.

Radishes are much scarcer than has been experienced for years. The crops in France are an absolute failure. The German crop was reduced to a lower level of yield. English crops are still standing on the ground, but they are not good.

Parsnips and parsley are both short crops and further illustrate that there is everywhere a general shortage of yield.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The will of the late Louis Menand was admitted to probate September 24. It distributed an estate of $49,500 among his sons and daughters.

TACOMA, WASH.—The Tacoma Gardeners' and Florists' Association has held no meetings for nearly a year, the members many of them being in Alaska.

PALM SEED, KENTIA BELMOREANA.

Fresh importation, just arrived in prime condition; 1000 at $4.00 per 1000; 5000 at $3.75 per 1000; 10,000 at $3.50 per 1000.

JACKSON & PERKINS CO., Newark, New York. Please mention the American Florist when writing.

SEVERAL very large shipments of JAPAN LONGIFLORUM have arrived in very bad condition—more than half of the bulbs having been lost by heating. This large loss will make a scarcity in this article, and probably many dealers will be unable to fill their orders in full. If you do not succeed in getting your full supplies, we have still to offer a fine lot of

These Bulbs are in splendid shape. We can supply them at $14 PER CASE; 350 Bulbs to the case. We also have a fine stock of

LILIUM HARRISII

7-9 inch size is generally scarce, but we have a very fine stock of this size still on hand—a lot of bulbs that were left in the ground and dug late, and in consequence they are in grand shape. Bulbs are plump, bright and clean, and as fine a lot of Harrisii as anyone would want to handle. We can supply these, as long as unsold, as follows:

5-7's, 400 bulbs to the case, only $16 per case. 7-9's, 200 bulbs to the case, only $18 per case.

Order at once before we are sold out.

We also offer a very fine stock of

Extra quality bulbs, 12-15 ctm., in case lots, 2100 bulbs to the case, $16.00 per 1000.

SALES FOR GREENHOUSE FLOWERS DESPITE THE LATE FALL —LARGE STOCKS EVERYWHERE.— MATTERS OF INTEREST.

Although there are plenty of outdoor flowers, on account of the warm weather, the demand for roses and carnations is growing every day. While plant trade is still slow, every man in the trade here is ready with a large stock when it opens, and no doubt competition will bring the prices of palms, ferns and blooming plants to rock bottom. Carnations, roses and violets are in fine condition everywhere in this locality.

J. Austin Shaw, Martin Reukauf and a score of other salesmen of the craft have visited here lately. Their tales of the prosperity of our western and southern brethren in the trade make one think of Horace Greely's advice: "Young man, go west," etc. Martin Reukauf tells a hair-raising tale of a narrow escape from the Galveston disaster. We are all glad he escaped, for his visit is always a pleasure, and there is one good thing about Martin, he never exaggerates.

Carl C. Reck, son of John Reck, is anchored in Germany for a year. He is at present working in the Wilhelm Pfitzer establishment in Stuttgart, and from there he will go to Erfurt to put in the rest of the year with Haage & Schmidt. From there he will go to Belgium, France and England.

The West End Greenhouses have been dismantled. Some fine residences are to be built on the land they occupied. The store business of the firm will be continued. There has been but little new building in this neighborhood.

AMERICAN BEAUTY ROSES.

Every point that goes to make absolutely good Beauties, size, color, stem, form, substance, foliage, and last but not least, keeping quality, you will find in our Beauties.

Making a specialty, as we do, of Beauties, there is not a point that we fail to perfect.

We have large, new houses built especially for Beauties, soil especially adapted to them; both hot water and steam heat in every house, and boilers heated by natural gas from wells on our own place.

We are producing absolutely strong, healthy stock. The kind that can be depended upon to ship well and keep well. We are now cutting 1000 to 1200 Beauties per day and 1500 to 2500 tea roses.

E. C. AMLING, Chicago, sells our stock. COMMENCE BUYING OF HIM NOW and you can depend on getting it all winter.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO.

AZALEAS.

Special Prices for Immediate Orders.

If you have not yet placed your order for Azaleas it will be to your interest to do so at once, thereby securing the choice of the stock at lowest cost for transportation, as the plants can now be forwarded with perfect safety by fast freight, even to the most distant points.

All of our importations of Azaleas are sent here in bulk, and all are repacked at our own nurseries, so that any plants that may have not carried well are set aside. This insures our customers of securing only first-class stock, which cannot be compared with cheap assorted case lots, which are made up in Belgium and are distributed on this side just as received, frequently not only containing damaged plants, but also, as a rule, many varieties not at all suited to the American trade.

The varieties we supply are only the most popular sorts suited to the American market. Our own representatives make personal inspection of the plants in Belgium previous to shipment, thus enabling us to secure the best stocks grown.

C. J. T.

At Philadelphia.

The alleys are well patronized these days and some very good scores are made. John Westcott is right in it, making three two-hundreds the past week, 210, 233 and 212, and enviable record. The first team is considerably elated with their victory over the strong Century Wheelmen's six. They, next to the florists, of course, are the best bowlers in the city and this is but the second time they have been defeated on their own alleys, where the game was played Monday, October 8. The florists' score was as follows: Moss, 486; Connor, 414;

Harris, 422; Johnson, 570; Westcott, 457; Allen, 501. Total, 2850. Century's total, 2841, the florists winning by nine pins. As it is hardly likely that the Centurys can win in the return match on our alleys, the florists will, if they win, hold the championship of the city. K.

At Flatbush.

The new alleys are still puzzling the boys and scores are not of the kind to incite to shouting or call forth levity. Should any of our readers meet a Flatbush man and note an unwonted, troubled and careworn look on his countenance the trouble can be attributed to these new alleys and incorrigible new pins. But better things are hoped for in the near future. On Thursday evening, October 11, scores were recorded as follows:

Player	1st	2d	3d	Av
E. Dailledouze.....	138	157	146	147
Riley.....	143	147	148	146

VAN WERT GREENHOUSES, Van Wert, O.

Jacksonville, Ills.

It gives one great pleasure to visit Joseph Heinel's well equipped greenhouses. He has added this season two rose houses each 20x100, a propagating house 10x43 and two houses, 10x60 and 18x100, for carnations and violets. This gives him about 50,000 feet of glass. Garland's iron gutters were used in all the new houses. Mr. Heinel has the double ventilating system on all the new houses. The plant is heated by two Carmody and one No. 11 Kroeschelle boiler. There is a two horse-power gasoline engine to do the pumping and give an ample supply of water. Harry Heinel has full charge of growing the stock and it is something he may well be proud of. The new evergreen juniper, which Mr. Heinel imported some two years ago, is selling well. The flower and seed store is conducted by Will Heinel, where part of their stock is disposed of. Mr. Heinel has his winter's supply of coal all stored on the place. C. W. S.

PLYMOUTH, MICH.—Carl Heide has leased the Starkweather greenhouses here and is remodeling them, putting in a new heater and preparing to greatly increase his output.

Denver.

THE BUSY SEASON OPENS AUSPICIOUSLY.—ROSES VERY PLENTIFUL.—FROST FINISHES OUTSIDE MATERIAL.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Trade is picking up nicely and the season promises to be a good one. Chrysanthemums have begun to make their appearance, the Collax Company showing some very fine Mrs. Robinson. American Beauties and tea roses have been very plentiful; in fact the supply has been greater than the demand. Carnations are very scarce and poor. Violets are now on the market but poor in size and color. October 6 we had our first killing frost, which had the effect of making the assortment of flowers very limited. There has been great activity and many improvements going on during the dull season and the prospects are good for a busy winter and a supply of flowers to meet the demand.

Mrs. Mauff, in addition to remodeling her Logan avenue place, has added two new houses for carnations at the Harmon plant. This establishment never looked better, the stock being in the best shape; Brides and Bridesmaids are exceptionally fine.

A great deal of interest is being taken in the coming fall show to be held at the City Park the early part of November. This show is to be open to the public free, and the competition among the florists promises to be keen. C. J. T.

MONTPELIER, VT.—R. G. Robinson has disposed of his fixtures and retired from the florist business.

WESTBROOK, ME.—Benj. B. Nourse, formerly a manufacturer of plant trellises, folding plant stands and Wardian cases, died suddenly on September 24, aged 84 years.

TRADE IMPROVES WITH COOLER WEATHER.
—VARIOUS NOTES.

J. H. Small, Jr., has returned from his trip of several weeks, visiting Yellowstone Park, the Puget Sound country, the Pacific coast, Colorado and the middle west. He was much benefited in health by the journey and was largely impressed with the business activity everywhere encountered, especially at Seattle, Washington.

George C. Shaffer has opened a floral establishment at the corner of Fourteenth and I streets N. W. The store has been tastefully and conveniently fitted up and a nice stock of decorative plants is shown in addition to cut flowers. Mr. Shaffer was for some time with Z. D. Blackstone.

Trade in general is fairly good but some of the florists do not expect much business for the next three weeks. There are plenty of outdoor flowers, such as dahlias and cosmos, also roses, violets and carnations.

Wm. R. Smith has returned from his trip to inspect the parks of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Biltmore, N. C. He says they are much in need of rain.

A. Gude & Brother are quite busy with funeral work and a few weddings.

Visitors: Wm. Scott, Buffalo; Lemuel Ball, of Philadelphia. P. G.

TRADE SHOWS STEADY IMPROVEMENT.—LITTLE LIKELIHOOD OF ADVANCE IN PRICES TILL CHRYSANTHEMUMS ARE OVER.—DOINGS AT GASSER'S.

Business continues to brighten upright although about the only advance in price so far is in carnations, which have sold up to $1 50 per hundred. This, however, is not general, but results more from the advent of a limited quantity of inside grown stock not heretofore to be had at all. It is doubtful if there will be any real increase in prices for some time now as chrysanthemums have begun to appear in limited quantity. The varieties so far or mostly Montmort, with a few Fitzwygram, Bergmann and Glory of Pacific. Cosmos is obtainable in quantity and all the store windows are gay with it.

Probably the most important event of the past week has been the opening of the new store of the J. M. Gasser Co., incorporated, and successor to the business of J. M. Gasser. S. F. Damell and Isaac Kennedy are the new members of the firm, of which Mr. Damell is manager, having been with Mr. Gasser many years. Mr. Kennedy is a newcomer from Philadelphia, having had charge of the greenhouse end since last spring. The new store is just east of Erie street on Euclid avenue and is formed of two stores thrown into one, giving much the most spacious and imposing establishment of any in Cleveland. In the rear is a roomy conservatory for the handling of a large line of plants. One good feature is the complete separation of the wholesale and retail departments, obviating much confusion and annoyance.

"Home week," a new idea so far as Cleveland is concerned, resulted in some work for the florists. At the end of the week a floral exhibition was given in one of the large office buildings, which was prettily decorated with greens and electric lights for the occasion. Considering the impromptu character of the exhibition, it was very creditable. A.

TRADE GOOD AND WEATHER FINE.—WEDDING DECORATIONS IN DEMAND.—VARIOUS PERSONAL DOINGS.—VISITORS.

Trade has been what every one wished for. The weather has been excellent and wedding orders are numerous. Adams had the largest this week, which called for a goodly number of chrysanthemums, Bride roses and lily of the valley. Meteor roses are in profusion now, but Bride, Bridesmaid and Kaiserin are none too plentiful. Carnations are good but there is no surplus. White chrysanthemums are fairly plentiful but yellow and pink are scarce. Store windows are very attractive, Palmer, Zimmerman and Rebstock making excellent showings with chrysanthemums, orchids, Boston ferns and lily of the valley.

Wm. Scott is making an extended trip east in the interest of the Pan-American Exposition. W. H. Grever, of Adams' store, was with him in New York last week and says one day with Scott is better than a week by one's self.

W. F. Kasting has moved his office to the rear of his building, where more room and less noise are obtained. Wiese, Adams and Neubeck will have to look for a new resting place.

Rebstock has been cutting some fine Harrisii, which met with ready sale.

Visitors: Wm. Stroh, Attica; S. B. Smiley, Lancaster; Henry Wiese, East Aurora; C. L. Dole, Lockport; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J. W. A.

When I was young, you will observe, I was very backward; but I have got over that, and now come to the front claiming to have the best WATER HEATER, VENTILATING APPLIANCE and SASH HINGE for greenhouse purposes, that are in the market.

Furthermore, they are so simple in construction I can afford to sell them much cheaper than other styles.

Now florists, don't be backward in sending for a catalogue. Remember, when you find you NEED a thing, the sooner you get it, the more you will have for your money, again I say "DON'T BE BACKWARD," but "keep up with the band wagon." Let me hear from you AT ONCE.

Autumn Work Among Herbaceous Plants.

Fall work among perennials should not be delayed too long, for hard frost may be upon us at any time. If any new planting or replanting is contemplated, the sooner one gets at it now, the better; plants will have ample time to take hold in the ground before real winter sets in, and consequently start with more vigor in spring. I will not say that one may not have success with even December plantings, if the weather permits and proper care is administered during the winter by mulching, shading, etc., but if at all possible, the planting should be finished not much later than the present date.

Some strong and robust growing plants, like the helianthus, rudbeckias, boltonias, veronicas, phloxes, asters, cephalarias, platycodons and most of the achilleas will bear very late planting and come out nearly always unharmed in spring, but alyssums, arnebias, stokesias, primulas, heucheras, epimediums, aubretias, trollius and, in fact, the great majority of spring and early summer flowering perennials are very sensitive to disturbance in late fall. It is a safe rule to begin the dividing and planting with the spring flowering plants, followed by the summer bloomers and finishing with the late autumn bloomers. It seems a pity, anyway, to disturb the fall bloomers while so many of them are in full bloom, even some of the late summer bloomers keeping up a most remarkable show under the favorable weather conditions prevailing this season.

Where an assortment of perennials is grown merely for cutting purposes, it may be desirable to plant more largely of some special variety or species and if the stock on hand is old and strong enough to be divided, this is the easiest and quickest mode of increasing. But bear in mind that the more carefully this operation is performed, the more satisfactory will be the result. Do not use the spade to chop them up; a sharp knife should be used in every case. Dig up the old clumps and shake off nearly all the soil so that you can see, or at least feel with your fingers, just where the separation is easiest performed without mutilating roots or crowns more than is actually necessary. Carefully made divisions, properly planted, will invariably be ahead of any others.

Of course we may as well delay all planting until spring if we feel perfectly sure that the work can be performed then at the right time, but as spring usually is a very busy season with all of us, we would better resort to fall planting, even if it has its disadvantages.

Where August or September sowings of hardy plants have been made no time should be lost pricking them out in frames, if strong stock is wanted for next season. It is astonishing what headway the little seedlings will make under this treatment in a few weeks, merely giving them ordinary care and an occasional watering when necessary.

So-called permanent borders may also want a little attention. Some of the stronger growers may have encroached on their weaker neighbors, overrunning or shading them too much. Carefully examine and go over every foot of border to see that none of the plants crowd each other; where you find any of them rambling into forbidden ground, dig them up, divide and replant in proper place or else leave enough old plants undisturbed to fill the space. All borders should be neatly forked over and cleaned, a light mulching or top dressing of well decayed manure to go on afterwards. By this I do not mean a covering for the winter; that should not be spread over the plants until very severe weather sets in. Early covering always does harm. Wait at least until the ground is frozen good and hard before you protect your plants. Even with new, recent plantings, be not in too much of a hurry to cover the beds; the early part of winter never hurts our herbaceous plants; the heaving out is caused by alternate freezing and thawing toward spring when the sun gets stronger.

In conclusion I may say that it is not advisable to disturb such things as aethionemas, arnebias, cedronellas, gaillardias, some of the coreopsis, Pyrethrum roseum, pinks, centranthuses, catananches and some others in autumn; they will come safely through the winter if you let them alone. The time to divide these is either early in spring or in the summer months, soon after their flowering period is over.

J. B. K.

Planting Spring Flowering Bulbs.

In the early days of spring, as soon as the snow has left us, the first flowers to appear are such as the snowdrop, the crocus and the scilla. These are followed in succession by tulips, hyacinths and narcissi and remind us that winter has really ended and that the season is at hand when we may assist nature in beautifying our home grounds, our parks, cemeteries and public gardens. A few remarks at this season may serve as a reminder that now is the time to prepare for the beauties of next spring. From now until freezing weather comes all varieties of spring flowering bulbs may be successfully planted, but it is better not to delay too long, for winter may come all at once. Besides, if set now, many of the varieties will commence the formation of roots, thus giving them the advantage of an earlier as well as a stronger start in the spring.

Where beds are to be solidly planted with spring flowering bulbs, the soil should be well prepared in the first place. A rich, sandy loam is undoubtedly preferable, but perhaps the most essential part of all is that the beds have perfect drainage, so that there will be no danger of water standing during winter, to rot or weaken many of the bulbs. The soil should, if not naturally sandy, have a good coating of sand and should be dug to a depth of at least fifteen inches. Well rotted cow manure is the best fertilizer that can be used, but a liberal sprinkling of fine, ground bone will also be beneficial. The beds are better if raised a few inches higher than the surrounding ground.

In planting the bulbs many growers put a small quantity of sand around each bulb, or often the top soil is taken off the bed to the depth at which the bulbs are to be planted, a coating of sand spread over the bed, the bulbs then set the proper distance apart and the top soil carefully replaced. Where the bed has been prepared as mentioned in the first place this plan need not be adopted, as the bulbs may be more readily planted with a trowel.

The depth at which bulbs should be planted depends mainly on the variety, but care should be taken that every bulb in a bed is planted at the same depth, so as to insure blooming at the same time. From four to five inches is deep enough for tulips, five to six inches for hyacinths and small bulbs like crocuses and scillas are deep enough at three to four inches; but better results will follow from a little too deep than too shallow planting. Larger bulbs, such as lilies, should be planted to a depth of from eight to twelve inches.

Before severe freezing weather sets in a mulching of from six to eight inches of coarse litter or leaves, covered with some fir or pine branches to prevent scattering by the winter winds, should be put over the beds. This will prevent the alternate freezing and thawing of the ground. This mulching should be removed on the appearance of spring. It is better to take it partially off at first, thus leaving a light protection until the plants appear above ground.

When bulbs are planted in beds it is generally necessary to lift the bulbs before they are thoroughly ripened. This may be done by lifting some soil with each bulb and planting somewhere else till ripened, when they may be laid past for another season's planting.

In the hardy border, and who does not have an old-fashioned hardy border, bulbs may be planted to great advantage, in patches among the hardy plants. They will not only do well and make the border look showy from earliest spring, but they have a thorough chance of ripening the bulbs and need not be disturbed from year to year. Where this is done, and the leaves have ripened off, annuals may be planted to take their place.

On the home grounds no better plan than this may be followed with spring flowering bulbs. In fact, all varieties of bulbs may be treated in this way, commencing with snowdrops, crocuses, scillas, aconites, on through the season with hyacinths, tulips and daffodils, followed by the early flowering lilies. In ripening these bulbous plants in the border do not allow them to go to seed, for in going to seed the strength of the bulb is greatly reduced if not entirely destroyed.

There is another plan of planting spring flowering bulbs, which, to the lover of natural effect, is perhaps the most pleasing. This is planting in the lawn or semi-wild sod land. In many places no better effect can be gained than from large patches of daffodils or narcissi above the green sward. In a closely kept lawn only such small and early flowering varieties as crocuses and scillas may be planted, but what can be more pleasing in a semi-wild place than patches of the different shades of narcissus and in shady places the erythroniums, blood-roots and bleeding hearts. When this style of planting is adopted each variety or color should be in large patches, if space will permit, the larger the better. Nature always plants in this way.

Phyllocactus Deutsche Kaiserin.

Herewith we reproduce from Die Gartenwelt an illustration of Phyllocactus Deutsche Kaiserin, a new and attractive variety of P. phyllanthoides. The flowers are of a beautiful rose shade and measure over three inches in diameter. It is said the blooms have good keeping qualities.

Profitable Winter Blooming Plants.

[Read before the St. Louis Florists' Club by Emil Schray.]

Profitable winter blooming plants are somewhat scarce; that is, plants which can be grown quickly, sold at a good price and give satisfaction as house plants.

Begonias afford a considerable range for choice but very few varieties can be recommended as house plants; consequently those which will stand house culture are the best to grow, as one can always find a sale for them. The varieties I find most profitable are Begonia rubra, B. Pres. Carnot, B. Souvenir de Hunnewell, B. Paul Bruant and B. Gloire de Lorraine.

Bougainvillea Sanderiana can be had in bloom nearly all winter and sells well when grown as a specimen plant, as there are very few large flowering plants in mid-winter. I have often used bougainvilleas as cut flowers as they make a splendid show and sell readily, and then have sold the plants at Easter for church decorations. The only drawback this plant has is that it will not stand the dwelling room temperature.

Bouvardias are not of much use as pot plants but if one can get them into good shape by Christmas, they will find a sale. The most profitable way to grow these plants is to propagate from root cuttings and plant them in the open ground as early in spring as the weather will permit; pinch them back several times in summer and by August they will be nice, bushy plants for 6-inch or 7-inch pots.

In mid-winter there is not much sale for heliotropes but a few plants will always come in handy, as the flowers can be cut for many purposes. Cuttings taken August 1 will make good plants and can be had in full bloom by Christmas.

There is always some demand for mignonette in winter, and if not sold as pot plants the grower can always dispose of the flowers, as there is more demand for the spikes of bloom than there is for the plant. To get plants for very early flowers, seed must be sown about July 1.

I think the calla is one of the most profitable plants one can grow, as they bloom from November to June. One can cut flowers from them all winter and then sell the plants at Easter for church decorations. Plants grown from medium sized bulbs I find most satisfactory.

The calceolaria is not a very profitable plant, as it takes too much time and patience to get large, well-grown plants, the only ones that are profitable. To get these, seed must be sown by June 15.

Gardenia florida, the cape jasmine, I have found very easy to grow and it can be had in bloom from November to spring. Young stock planted in the field in early spring and potted up September 15 will make good plants for 6-inch and 7-inch pots.

The earlier one gets cinerarias the more profitable they are. To grow these plants well and get them to flower early, seed must be sown in July. The plants must be shilled as needed; never let them get pot bound. Give them plenty of room. Thrip and greenfly are great enemies of these plants; they are kept off by placing fresh tobacco stems on the bench between the plants.

The cyclamen is one of our best winter blooming plants, but I find large, well-grown plants the most profitable. Seeds of these must be sown in August, in boxes, in leaf mould and the seeds covered with sphagnum moss, which must be kept moist. I never had much success in growing cyclamens in the house in summer but grow them in frames outside, with top and bottom ventilation. I use white cotton sheeting for shade as it lets some light through and makes the plants grow short and bushy. Thrip must be kept away by using tobacco stems between the pots. Move the plants into the house about September 15.

Agathaea celestis, the blue daisy, is a very pretty little plant for winter blooming. The color of the flowers is sky blue and it sells well because blue flowers are always scarce in winter. Young stock out of 3-inch pots, planted in the field in spring, will make the best plants, as they do not grow well in pots in summer; at any rate they are not profitable if grown in pots. Pot them up from the field August 1.

The poinsettia is a plant for Christmas and if well done brings a good price.

Young plants propagated from soft wood cuttings and grown outside through the summer are the most profitable for pot culture.

Geraniums are easy to grow for winter use if you can find a sale for them. Cuttings taken August 1 make good plants by Christmas.

Primula Sinensis is one of our best winter blooming plants. To get good strong plants for early flowering, seed must be sown in March and April, in shallow boxes, using good light soil; leaf mould I find to be the best. Cover the seed with fine, sifted sphagnum moss; this covering is light and makes the seeds germinate more evenly and quickly. The young plants must be pricked off as soon as they can be handled, in shallow boxes, as if they are not pricked off in time there is great danger of their damping off. Over summer I grow these outside in frames, the same as cyclamens, as they make stronger and healthier plants than when grown in the house.

There are only two varieties of roses that I find profitable to grow for winter flowering in pots. These are Hermosa and Clothilde Soupert. These can be had in flower by Christmas. These two varieties, if they are not disposed of with their first bloom, can be cut back and will make good plants again for spring sales.

There are other good plants for winter blooming but they are not profitable because their period of flowering is too short. In my experience I have found that all blooming plants to be profitable must be well grown, as good plants will always sell.

The Flush o' Dawn.

M. H. Walsh, of Wood's Holl, Mass., has a new hybrid tea rose which he has christened Flush o' Dawn and of which a photograph is herewith reproduced. The flowers are light pink, changing to white, and are very fragrant. They are five or six inches in diameter when fully expanded. The plant is a vigorous grower and the flowers are borne on long stems, two and one-half to three feet. The foliage is dark, glossy and abundant and the variety has thus far proved a continuous bloomer.

To Be Seen At Madison.

He who has not seen this noted New Jersey town for a few years would scarcely recognize it now, so greatly has its appearance in the vicinity of the railroad station been improved. Handsome buildings now stand where sheds once marred the view and a tract formerly disfigured with hovels and rubbish has been transformed into a tastefully laid out public park. This is called James Park, in honor of the gentleman who purchased, improved and gave it to the people, who also provides for its maintenance and to whose public-spirited liberality is due much of the recent embellishment of this picturesque old town.

Wm. Duckham, the gardener in charge of the D. Willis James estate, is now away on a short visit to England, having started soon after the close of the S. A. F. exhibition, to the success of which he had contributed not a little, and expecting to get back in time to take a hand in the November exhibition of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, of which he is president. In his absence his brother, James, superintends affairs and, notwithstanding that gentleman's modest and unpretentious manner, the visitor does not get far through the well-kept conservatories before acquiring a very exalted appreciation of his abilities.

We stop in admiration before a noble specimen of Bentinckia Nicobarica and note in the graceful outlines and poise of Phoenix Roeblingi a future dangerous rival for the popular Cocos Weddelliana. There are giant athuriums and other tropical subjects in abundance and also at present a fine show of blooming cattleyas. Some of Mr. Duckham's specimen plants show the severe effects of their trip to the New York convention, their discolored leaves attesting that they left the unfavorable atmosphere of the Grand Central Palace not a minute too soon, notwithstanding considerable criticism of the early breaking up of the horticultural exhibition was heard at the time. Outside, the flower garden is ablaze with autumn bloom and, being well-protected, it is likely to maintain its beauty for sometime to come.

It is difficult to believe that the towering trees that almost touch the top of the lofty dome in the palm house at

H. McK. Twombly's have been in their present quarters less than three years. Here, in a size and perfection of health rarely seen, are Martinezia caryotaefolia, Caryota urens, Latania Borbonica, Kentia Forsteriana and Cycas revoluta and a host of other stately palms, and provision must soon be made for lowering the tallest of them, otherwise they will be in a way to push the roof off.

Two novelties which Mr. Herrington prizes highly are Clerodendron fallax and Gerbera Jamesonii. The latter, known abroad as the Barberton daisy, is a South African plant which, grown as a hothouse annual, produces vermilion daisies of large size, with long stems and strikingly beautiful. An illustration of this flower appeared in a recent number of this journal. A good market awaits the grower who will get up a stock and grow these flowers commercially. Plants of Clerodendron fallax from seed sown last spring are now two to three feet tall, with handsome, massive foliage and crowned with luxuriant heads of scarlet, ixora-like bloom. As a Christmas bloomer this plant has a great future; it has the true Christmas color and when disseminated cannot fail of immediate popularity. Mr. Herrington has 300 acres under his charge. The plantations of conifers and deciduous trees and shrubs and hardy herbaceous plants are very extensive and the broad sweeps of level lawn advantageously placed, afford unobstructed views of the surrounding country for many miles. C. H. Atkins is foreman.

A farm of several hundred acres must be crossed to reach the commercial establishment, also under Mr. Herrington's supervision. Here, in care of C. H. Totty as foreman, are ten modern houses devoted respectively to nectarines, grapes, cattleyas, cyripediums, orchids and chrysanthemums. One house is filled with Cypripedium insigne and another with C. villosum, the latter blooming directly after C. insigne. Cattleya labiata is now in full bloom and makes a beautiful sight. These plants are wired on osmunda root stumps from the woods. Mr. Herrington says that this beats all the orchid peat and the undoubted health of the plants is the best kind of a testimonial to the correctness of his views. Where specimens in wooden baskets have outgrown their quarters they are not transplanted but pieces of this fern root are simply tied on the outside and the roots take hold of it eagerly. A house of Cattleya Percivaliana is ready to follow the labiatas and thus fill in the gap until the Trianaes are ready. One house of C. Trianae, 100 feet long, in which the plants are all grown on long, sloping boards, produced 6,000 flowers last winter. After the Trianae a house of C. Mendelli and C. Mossiae will come in, thus covering the greater part of the year with a succession of cattleya blooms.

Mr. Herrington has in one house 4,500 chrysanthemums from which he expects to cut close to 4,500 specimen blooms, they being all disbudded to one flower each. They give every promise of being exceptionally fine exhibition flowers, the stems and foliage being massive and the immature buds of enormous size. The earliest variety grown here is Robinson and the latest is Golden Wedding. T. J. Warren, the Yellow Carnot, makes a favorable impression. Mrs. R. Jones is a new early white from England. Its foliage is inferior and the petals seem inclined to decay at the first suspicion of a foggy night, so its future is not at all bright. Soleil d'October is one of the most promising looking early sorts. Other varieties included in the list are Sunderbruch, Solar Queen, Australian Gold, Pennsylvania, Henry Hurrell, Mutual Friend, Frank Hardy, Mayflower, Bonnaillon, Jeannie Falconer, Vivian-Morel and Col. Appleton. In the grape houses are temporarily housed the boxes of carnations which are to take the place of the chrysanthemums as soon as they are disposed of.

It is many years since Madison first came into prominence as a rose-growing center. There was a time when the enterprising growers here practically dominated the rose trade of New York city. The names of most of the men who led in those days have disappeared from the list of Madison's rose producers and in some instances the old establishments have likewise vanished, but with nearly fifty rose growing concerns and an area of 700,000 square feet of glass devoted to this industry, as shown by the directory of to-day, it is evident that Madison must still be classed in the front rank, while her influence is also directly extended all over the country in the many prosperous growers who began their experience and training here.

The three Noe establishments cover, in the aggregate, over 120,000 square feet and are still being added to. Four new houses have been erected by one and one by another and three more are planned for next spring. Beauty is the main crop with each, Bride and Bridesmaid being principally confined to the side benches which do not afford sufficient height for Beauty. The Beauties are remarkably clean this season, no disfigurement being apparent, other than the weakening effects of the prevalent damp days, although all are apprehensive of the appearance of the dreaded black spot should this dark, moist weather continue much longer. Liberty is doing finely here, making strong, luxuriant growths that give promise of fine flowers later on. The capable foreman, Jos. Ruzicka, is especially pleased with some grafted Liberty, the plants of which show a decided advantage over the ungrafted.

Elwood Brant appears to be making a success with the old Slaughter place. It was hadly run down at the time he took hold of it and to turn it into a paying institution seemed an almost hopeless undertaking, but it has been newly benched and the stock is in excellent condition now. As with others in the neighborhood, Beauty occupies a large portion of the space. Up to the present time the profits as between Meteor and Liberty have been in the proportion of about ten to one in favor of the former but the scales will no doubt turn the other way when winter comes. Mr. Brant, who was formerly a clerk for Mr. Herrington, is a bright, unassuming and industrious young man and his hope that at the end of his five years' lease he may have made money enough to pay for a place of his own, seems in a fair way to be realized.

One of the newest places in Madison as well as one of the most complete and substantial ranges of glass in the country is that of Henry Hentz, Jr. There are nine houses under the management of Mr. Nelson, each 20x175, devoted to roses, and two north houses, of equal length but narrower, filled with Mand Dean carnations. The carnations seem perfectly at home under these somewhat unusual conditions and are in profuse bloom at the present time. The entire range is connected by a shed, 20x324, the slope of the land allowing for spacious, stone-walled and cemented boiler room and storage apartments.

Marmaduke Tilden's establishment is this year under the care of Mr. Thielman, who was last winter with Bruen, Morris & Crane. Here, too, Beauty fills the central benches and teas are planted on the sides. Over on the other side of the town is the domain of R. M. Schultz, which now also includes the old H. H. Francis place. Mr. Schultz is not in sympathy with Mr. Francis' theories regarding the growing of roses in boxes and a big renovation has taken place which shows beneficial results already, the boxes being now in line for the wood pile. The mignonette for which this establishment has long been famous still occupies a considerable section and when spring comes will make way, as usual, for sweet peas as an alternate crop.

THE SANDER S. A. F. CUP.

Once within the magnetic influence of Mr. Schultz's irresistible hospitality further exploration of Madison is out of the question. There are many more places of past and present interest that we shall introduce on a later occasion. All are looking forward with keen anticipation to the annual exhibition, which will be held on November 7 and 8, when the task devolving upon the judges will be anything but a "cinch."

The Sander Cup.

We present herewith an illustration from a photograph of the Sander cup, won at the recent S. A. F. convention by Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J. This cup was offered by Sander & Co., St. Albans, England, to be awarded to that exhibitor in the trade section whose display was best of all, all points considered, and its possession is an honor of which Mr. Roehrs may well feel proud, for he won over many meritorious displays.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Young.

In a pleasant home at Passaic, N. J., are living the venerable lady and gentleman whose portraits are presented herewith, quietly enjoying the sunset of life together, with the satisfaction of a happy and useful career to look back to and a family the majority of whose members have inherited from their father horticultural instincts that have secured for them an honorable reputation in their calling.

Thomas Young is now 82 years of age, having been born at Eastbourne, Sussex, England, in 1818, and Mrs. Young, who was born in Devonshire, is nine years his junior. Mr. Young commenced his gardening career at the Duke of Devonshire's place in Eastbourne. From there he went to Boddegan Hall on the island of Anglesea, North Wales, thence to Messrs. Henderson's Pine Apple nurseries and thence to Mrs. Lawrence at Eaton Park, and afterwards to Abernaut Park, Glamorganshire, where he was fifteen years and achieved a wide celebrity as a pine apple grower. They came to this country in 1870.

Of a family of seven sons and daughters four are prominent in the flower trade of New York: Thomas Young, Jr., long established as a leading wholesaler in the city; John Young, also a wholesaler and the popular secretary of the New York Florists' Club, and George and Wm. Young, who have won distinction as American Beauty growers at Clifton, N. J., George Young being reputed the most uniformly successful cultivator of that rose for the New York market.

Mr. and Mrs. Young will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary November 10.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—J. N. Champion recently had a public opening of his renovated store and made a very fine decoration of plants and flowers. Many visitors were in attendance, each being presented with a small fern as a memento.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America has appropriated $20 for the purchase of a cup, to be competed for and awarded under the joint auspices of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the Horticultural Society of Chicago, for the best ten blooms of any variety of chrysanthemum. The judges appointed by President Herrington to pass upon same are as follows: John N. May, Summit, N. J.; Patrick O'Mara, New York, and Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.

Complete committees as appointed by the president to examine and pass upon seedlings and sports at the various centers are herewith announced as follows:

Boston, Mass.—A. H. Fewkes, chairman, Horticultural Hall, Tremont street; E. A. Wood, J. H. Wheeler.

New York, N. Y.—E. Dailedonze, chairman, care New York Cut Flower Co., 119 West Twenty-third street; James W. Withers, A. Small.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A. B. Cartledge, chairman, 1514 Chestnut street; Wm. K. Harris, John Westcott.

Chicago, Ill.—James S. Wilson, chairman, care J. B. Deamud, 51 Wabash avenue; Geo. Stollery, E. Wienhoeber.

Cincinnati, O.—R. Witterstaetter, chairman, care Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care janitor.; James Allen, Albert Sunderbruch.

Remaining dates on which chrysanthemum seedlings and sports may be examined are as follows: November 3, 10, 17 and 24.

Exhibits to receive attention from the committees must in all cases be prepaid to destination, and the entry fee of $2 should, when possible, be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week preceding examination.

WORK OF THE COMMITTEES.

Boston, October 20.—Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., exhibited Iolanthe, a Japanese, incurved, pink variety, scoring commercial scale 85 points. Tendency of the petals to drop may injure it as a shipping variety. The extreme earliness of the variety was taken into consideration in making the above judgment.

The Liberty Rose.

From present indications we will hear quite a few complaints about the behavior of the new rose, Liberty, during the coming season. The fact that this rose belongs to the hybrid tea section has probably been lost sight of by some growers who are trying it for the first time, and may account for the partial failure in handling. During a recent journey through the middle west, and eastern states, I found the majority of growers rather sceptical in regard to the staying qualities of Liberty and not infrequently was it remarked that it was another one of those novelties which, after having enriched its introducers at the expense of the commercial growers, will fade into oblivion, lacking the qualities that make up a good, paying commercial forcing rose.

When we were told that Liberty would thrive with the same temperature and treatment as given Bridesmaid, it was hailed as a gem of the first water. No doubt many a grower longed for its introduction with the expectation of planting it in place of Meteor, which meant the saving of coal bills on account of the lower temperature that it would require. Those who have acted upon this suggestion too hastily may have occasion to regret their decision, for this season, at least; in fact, we doubt very much if Liberty will ever entirely replace the Meteor as a forcing rose. We are inclined to think both varieties have come to stay, just as Bride and Kaiserin share honors as the leading white forcing roses, one variety being at its best at a certain period, while the other is preferred during another part of the season. So Liberty and Meteor will most likely share honors in the class of red varieties. Liberty at its best will no doubt always command a little higher price than the best of Meteors, since with its other charming qualities it has fragrance, and that is where Meteor is wanting. But, taking the whole season into consideration, we think it a close race as to which would bring in the most money when both varieties are given the same chance.

Our experience with Liberty is that it wants about the same treatment as given Souvenir de Wootton, except that it wants 2° or 3° higher night temperature, say 58° to 60°, day temperature 10° to 15° higher. Like Wootton, it is a gross feeder. A soil consisting of two-thirds medium heavy clay and one-third good rotten cow manure suits it admirably. Give plenty of water, providing the benches are well drained. Liberty should always have a little more water than Perle or Bridesmaid, otherwise you will only get short-jointed growth, producing inferior flowers.

Disbudding is one of the principal factors in growing this rose successfully, and it should be done systematically. Do not pinch off the buds just when you happen to see one, but go over the plants carefully when the buds are about the size of a pea, and then use a sharp knife, cutting two or three leaves with each bud. This is the secret in getting the young plants into a good growth for winter flowering. When we first grew Liberty we made the mistake of nipping out the small buds alone, without cutting any growth with them. It seemed only a short time until the plants were again full of buds; the more we picked the faster the buds appeared, and each succeeding bud had a shorter stem than the previous one. We began to despair, for, while there was no question about its freedom of bloom, the flowers were all worthless. We finally adopted Mr. Asmus' method of cutting the plants back to solid growth, which seems to us the only way of handling this rose to produce good flowers on strong stems.

Liberty is one of those varieties which will respond readily to the best treatment, but is very impatient of abuse. In the hands of a good grower it will prove a splendid investment. We advise every grower to give it a fair trial before condemning it.

Shrubbery for Forcing.

If you wish to bring any shrubbery into bloom during the winter or for Easter, your preparations should be completed now. If you have plants which are pot-grown, tip them out of the pots about the last of October and place them closely together on the bare floor of a cold house or root cellar. These can be packed three rows high; fill in the spaces and cover the mound thus formed with short manure to prevent drying out. Have the halls moist when tipped out of the pots and if the ground below is moist it will prevent their becoming too dry before they are wanted.

If you have no pot-grown stock, select those in the open field that are well set with buds. Perhaps the most valuable varieties are lilacs, forsythias, Deutzia gracilis, D. Lemoinei, and Spiraea Van Houttei, all of which have set their flower buds by this time, so that you can select those which have sufficient bloom in prospect to be profitable. To be first-class the plants should have been pruned just after blooming, in May or June. Look for buds at the ends of the branches, particularly the growth of the last two seasons, also along the stems in the crotch between the stem of the leaf and the branch. These buds should be large, firm and nicely coated outside for winter protection.

The illustration shows two branches of Spiraea Van Houttei and two of lilac. The spiraea to the left is a "go-as-you-please" branch on which there are a few small pieces that will bloom, but they will bear indifferent flowers. The second branch has been carefully pruned, turning all the energy into a few shoots, which are well set with buds and which will make a beautiful spray when in bloom. Of the two lilacs, both the same variety, the larger promises fine bloom, the smaller only leaves.

It is advisable for every grower to cheapest and can be the most successful but the pot-grown will be more uniformly good for a larger number of growers

Treatment of Carnation Blooms.

Mr. Rudd's note on the treatment of carnation blooms after being cut is along modern lines, is very nearly complete and quite correct as far as it goes. My ideas concerning the treatment of carnation blooms have for several years past been along exactly similar lines. I am a firm believer in the idea that total darkness tends to take from rather than preserve the keeping qualities of the flower.

CONTRASTING SPECIMENS OF SHRUB GROWTHS FOR FORCING.

have at least a small nursery in which to grow shrubbery. He can then select the finest for winter forcing. Moreover, the flowers on those which bloom outside are almost always salable and, before they become too large for handling, the plants can be disposed of profitably. Replenish your rows each fall from nursery grown stock.

Weigela rosea is also a pretty shrub for Easter forcing. In putting away your roses for Easter blooming, bear in mind that the nature of the plant is entirely different from the shrubbery mentioned. Roses have not set their buds yet, as with the shrubs mentioned. They bloom on new growth each season. That is one reason why they must be started earlier to come in on time. The strong growth which they may show is of no particular advantage to you unless you handle the roots so carefully as to render severe pruning unnecessary. Particularly with the Ramblers, a long, curved cane, studded with flowers is, of course, beautiful, but unless you succeed in handling them without injury to the roots, it is necessary to cut them back considerably in order to ensure growth of a robust, healthy character. This is why pot-grown stock is safest for the average grower. The field grown is

But worst of all is the ice-box, with its lack of ventilation and consequently damp interior. With its use decomposition is held in check by the cold temperature, but such blooms, when subjected to warmer temperature, soon succumb.

The flowers which will invariably keep the longest are the ones which are cut somewhat before maturity and kept in clean, pure water, in a semi-darkened, well ventilated room from six to twelve hours after being cut. The conditions under which they are cut will regulate the length of time they should be stored before shipping.

It is true that carnation blooms, or almost any other, for that matter, will improve if left in the storage room for several days, but only in the case of necessity should this be done, and then with discretion, as, for instance, holding back for a particular order, holiday occasions, etc. This improvement, which some writers speak of, should take place in the hands of the connoisseur rather than in our storage rooms.

We contemplate the erection of new storage rooms in the near future. The room will be built into an ice house. Light will be admitted from the north side, so there may be no inconvenience from direct sunshine. This window will be fitted with a frost proof shutter for use in extreme weather, also a curtain to subdue the light. Ventilation will be provided by a large underground tile which will reach the outside air in a cool, shady spot. To insure good circulation an ample sized box will lead from the ceiling to a point above the ice.

Flowers, as well as plants, delight in pure, fresh air, not laden with moisture and bad odors. The grower who supplies this great invigorator judiciously will always find his customers pleased and dealers anxious to buy his stock.

WM. WEBER.

In regard to the statement sent by W. N. Rudd, on the treatment of carnation blooms after cutting, I will say that Mr. Rudd has stated the facts so thoroughly that I have not a word to say against it, only to indorse every word of it, as it is the method which I have followed for the last four years.

WM. NICHOLSON.

We prefer a temperature of 45° for carnation blooms, with clean dry air, and cut the blooms the day before shipping when possible.

Rudd Ratiocinates Some More.

Oh! Dear me! What troubles I do have, Mr. Editor, to be sure! What delight every one seems to take in "putting the boots into me!" How they take their hand axes and chop out a sentence here and there, spike on those offensive quotation marks and use them as targets for all sorts of missiles! And what poor marksmen they are! Lots of noise, lots of smoke, plenty of flame, but they don't seem to damage anything except where the gun kicks.

Now here is Wallace, as a case in point, a good and honored member of the Ananias Society. Was I going to be cruel enough to publish broadcast, so that the whole world would know, that he and his paper were printing such mistaken advice? Not I! Out of pure good fellowship and kindness of heart I concealed the damning fact by speaking of "another paper," and now he acts as though my kindness was not appreciated. What an ungrateful man. What a football player that chap would make! How he wiggles and dodges and runs around the ends, only he always runs out of bounds and never seems able to kick a goal. He claims what he said was that "about 40°" was right for storing carnations, with strong emphasis on the "about." Worse and worse, brother! Isn't 38° "about" 40°? I guess yes. But now he says "anything lower than 40° should not be maintained," etc. Further on he says the "best growers and largest shippers in the vicinity of New York hold their cut flowers in a temperature of between 45° and 50°." Pray, brother Wallace, is 45° to 50° "about" 40°? Is it possible that the editor of "another paper" does not know that a temperature of 50° is not warmer than the majority of carnations are now carried at night by many growers? His words must be so construed.

No! No! Brother Wallace, the writer has discovered neither a "mangy dog" nor a "mare's nest," but just a great big blunder. For carnations which have been grown right, and which have been cut at the right time, 50° is the best temperature for storage, while those blooms which have been left on the plant until the "commencement of decay" should not be stored but cast into the rubbish pile.

UNSEASONABLE STATE OF THE MARKET.—UNWIELDY RECEIPTS IN NEARLY ALL LINES.—FLORISTS BUSY PLAYING POLITICS.—TAKE A HOLD ON EACH SIDE.—FUNERAL OF HENRY BUTLER.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

We have been favored with unseasonably warm weather this week, more like early September than late October, and the already demoralized rose market has had a very hard time, in consequence. Wholesalers stand aghast at the immense heaps of Beauties, Brides, Bridesmaids and Meteors that are loaded in on them every morning and the hopelessness of the situation is intensified by the equally unwieldy receipts of chrysanthemums, this disturbing crop having already caught up with itself and being now on time instead of a week or ten days late, as it was reputed to be a few days ago. Notwithstanding its political advantages, the carnation has been forced to take a tumble with everything else and prices are only about one-half of what they were. The violet seems to have discreetly withdrawn from any prominence in the field and so long as the warm weather lasts will not give much trouble, apparently.

The New York Florists' Sound Money Club is an organization of the younger members of the city trade, chiefly retailers, for the purpose of participating in the big parade of business men on November 3. They held their second meeting on Tuesday evening, October 23, and arranged details of banner, decorations, boutonnières, etc., W. L. Trumppore presiding. "Billee" Bogart was elected sergeant-at-arms and was also selected on account of his good looks as color sergeant for the parade. The fun of the evening began when John Morris appeared and entered a protest against what he considered a deceptive infringement of the rights of the New York Florists' Club, in the title of the organization, and the amusing scene then and there precipitated will doubtless be recounted many a time fifty years hence, when the young men present have all become grandfathers. As an imperialistic ruler Chairman Trumppore would make Tom Reed turn green with envy and a photograph of the dignified sergeant-at-arms discharging the duties of his office would be worth its weight in sound money. On the evening preceding the above mentioned occurrence some of the local floricultural lights of the opposite political persuasion had a little circus of their own, a bunch of them having attended a Tammany meeting at Cooper Institute with a big Boer flag in their possession which, at an opportune moment, was sprung on the audience with electrical effect and completely ruined the well-meant but tiresome address of a prosy orator. Thus do we while away the unprofitable weeks preceding the election.

On Saturdays during October and November the staff in charge at the New York Botanical Gardens will receive members and their friends and lectures will be given on botanical subjects in the Museum building at 4:30 p. m. The Harlem Railroad Company has begun the erection of a new station at Bedford Park, near the entrance to the garden, which will cost $30,000. During the absence of Dr. Britton in Europe, Dr. D. T. MacDougal is acting director.

The funeral of the late Henry Butler took place on Sunday from St. Luke's Chapel, with burial at Woodlawn Cemetery. There was a profusion of floral offerings, many of them from fellow-florists, and among the friends present were Theo. Roehrs, Alex. McConnell, Frank Traendly, Geo. M. Stump, C. A. Dards, A. Schultheis, H. Scherrer, J. Fitzgerald, J. Hammond, Wm. Burns, C. Butler and all the employees of the deceased.

The handsome new store at 14 West Thirty-third street which is to be opened by Misses S. M. Tucker and A. B. Babcock under the name of The Fernery, will be ready about November 1. A chrysanthemum show will be given on November 8. W. H. Long, the veteran florist, has been engaged as chief of staff.

Chas. Behnken, a small flower dealer in Jersey City, committed suicide by shooting himself, on October 13. He was 24 years of age and had been married only a few days previous.

On October 15 the new plant nursery department at Bronx Park was formally opened. The collection of plants is already quite extensive. Robert Demcker is the gardener in charge.

Miss Violet Stransam Nash, daughter of J. Nash, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, was married on Wednesday, October 24, to Mr. Arthur Joel, at St. Agnes' church.

A letter from Wm. Plumb tells of his safe arrival in England after a very narrow escape from shipwreck on the Irish coast.

E. B. Sutton, Jr., is gleeful over the fine condition of carnations at Babylon, Ethel Crocker being his especial favorite.

John Young is receiving a large quantity of chrysanthemums suited for exhibition purposes.

C. A. Dards returned last Thursday from a pleasant European trip.

Thorley used some 4000 red carnations at a funeral recently.

WARM WEATHER IN QUAKERTOWN.—ALL ABOUT THE CUT FLOWER PRICES.—FIGURES FOR THOSE WHO LIKE THEM.—GRAHAM'S NEW HOUSES.—CARNATION GROWERS' TROUBLES.—AZALEAS AT DREER'S.

We are now having fakirs' weather and plenty of it; these gentry are all doing extra service, preferably with American Beauties, with great armloads of which stock they are to be seen parading the streets in the shopping districts during the busy hours of the day. One or two warm days make a wonderful difference in the quantity of stock and what is held high one day is sold for a song the next. Prices of Beauty are about the same as last week, only they soften more quickly. Between "have you any?" and "don't you want?" there is a difference of anywhere from ten to fifty per cent. Instead of a query as to where the chrysanthemums are it is now a problem where we shall put them, for the market is rapidly filling up. Yellow and white Merry Monarch, Bergmann and Glory of Pacific are the kinds now in and the prices range from $1 to $1.50 per dozen. Ivory will be seen in a day or so and after that the demand will need to brisk up considerably to keep the market from clogging. Carnations are slowly getting better. Whites seem scarce at times but now that chrysanthemums are in they will have a chance to catch up. Prices range from $1 to $2. Violets are getting better; 60 cents to 75 cents is the price for the doubles and 25 cents to 35 cents for the singles. Cosmos and dahlias are still with us but are not now a factor. Plants are getting to be more in demand but the clerks in the stores could wait on a few more customers daily if they had the chance. Business, however, is picking up all along the line, the volume getting greater as the season advances.

Hugh Graham has just finished a range of houses at his place on the old York road. There are three joined together on the Dreer pattern, with pillars under the gutters. They cover a space 60x150 feet and are to accommodate their tall palms. A new carnation of the Victor type but more like Daybreak in color, called Mrs. Van Rensselaer, seems like a winner. Chrysanthemums look well here and perhaps a few surprises in seedlings may be sprung later on.

Carnation growers in this neighborhood are complaining of the plants damping off in the beds inside, stem rot seeming to be more prevalent than usual. There are certainly a great many obstacles to overcome between the cutting bed and the final returns from flowers sold and this stem rot is getting to be not the least one of the many. Who knows a remedy?

At Dreer's one day last week eight car loads of azaleas arrived from Europe. They are in fine condition and even after the export orders are all out it will tax their resources to house the balance.

MARKET IS OVERSTOCKED AND TRADE DULL.—PLANTSMEN ALSO COMPLAINING.—AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

In common with other sections of the country Boston is just now embarrassed by an overstock of flowers of all kinds, resultant from the summery weather and full crops of everything, including chrysanthemums, which are now coming along with amazing rapidity. Plant business is also very dull, so the growers state, and altogether there is little in present conditions to excite boasting or encourage confidence. But we are hoping for better things before long.

Last Saturday was a big day for the mushroom and toadstool cranks, who half filled Horticultural Hall with the curious products of their excursions through woods and fields. Other than these the only exhibits were a fine hybrid cattleya, C. Maronii (C. velutina × C. aurea) for which J. E. Rothwell got a certificate of merit, and a chrysanthemum seedling named Iolanthe, a handsome, incurved Japanese raised by crossing a seedling of Marquis de Montmort and Mrs. Bergmann with Mrs. Perrin. The color is a bright silvery pink.

The Horticultural Club had its first meeting and banquet of the season at Meusset's, on Thursday evening, October 25. The guests were Messrs. Farmer, from South Africa; Duncan, from Alaska; Powell, of Taunton; Finlayson, of Brookline, and Thiemann and McGregor, of Manchester.

Wm. W. Edgar has just finished unpacking nineteen large cases of plants from Sander & Co. Among them are some of the finest specimen rhododendrons ever imported for this market.

H. J. Townsend, of Hyde Park, is a petitioner in bankruptcy.

R. G. Danforth, of Skowhegan, Me., is a visitor in town.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—A SLIGHT BRACE AFTER A PERIOD OF REACTION.—TOO MUCH STOCK OF EVERY KIND.—PROSPECTS FOR A BIG WINTER.—NEED OF BRISK WEATHER.—INTEREST HIGH IN FLOWER SHOW.—SUCCESSFUL AUCTION SALE OF PLANTS.—WITH BOWMANVILLE GROWERS.—PERSONAL DOINGS AND VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

We have had variegated weather, too much politics, too much stock and too little business this week. The influx of chrysanthemums began October 11, and since then they have ceased to move with the rapidity which is necessary to a first-class market. Prices range up to $4 per dozen for the better class of material, but the average price has been much lower than it would be with brisk autumn weather. Violets, too, are coming in by the thousands and the market is overloaded, clean-up sales going on record at $10 for 500 bunches. Roses are also sharing in the general stagnation and there is an unusual accumulation, even in American Beauties although good stock of this latter specialty is selling out clean. The Brides and Bridesmaids, while of fair quality, are very soft and do not keep well, so that an accumulation means an inevitable loss. Carnations are doing a little better because of their various utilities, but they, too, are in over-supply. The fakirs are the outlet for the very heavy over-stocks, and they are handling huge basketsful of stock. This condition of affairs is very generally blamed to the weather and the campaign. The first of the week was stormy and little was doing, and the following days have been almost summer-like, a condition not conducive to a demand for cut flowers. It is the consensus of opinion that the approach of the flower show and the advent of brisk weather will stiffen up the market so that growers will have not a word of fault to find. Every indication points to a splendid season's business as soon as things settle down to their normal conditions. Every man who has ever bought flowers in this market has been heard from this season, and a great many new buyers have come in. Although as yet all orders have been small, this presages a lively demand this winter and there are few who doubt that the increased production, as compared with last year, will be readily taken care of.

Several features promise to add much interest to the forthcoming flower show. The competition for the silver cup, offered by the Chrysanthemum Society of America, promises to be very sharp because only ten blooms are called for, with no restriction as to variety. There are a great many growers who think that they can stage ten blooms which will beat any other ten, and the judges will probably have their hands full when they take up this class on Friday, November 9. The retail florists all want to possess the sterling silver service offered for the dinner table decoration, and are already making arrangements with the sources of supply for the flowers necessary to make their best show. The rose growers promise to be more in evidence than heretofore, and there is a handsome silver cup offered for the best rose never before exhibited in this country.

The plant auction of the Harms Park Floral Co., at McKellar & Winterson's, on Wednesday and Thursday, attracted a good-sized crowd of the local greenhouse men and storekeepers. Williams, Barker & Severn were the auctioneers and realized fair prices for the stock, which was divided into small lots in order that all the bidders might be admitted to the competition. McKellar & Winterson think so well of the success of the auction that they are inclined to make plant sales a regular feature of their business. Edgar F. Winterson should be the Cleary of the west.

Out in the floricultural district north of town, the Kruchten brothers have gone into carnation growing. Nick Kruchten is located near Bauske, in Bowmanville, and has ten 100 foot houses, built this year and stocked with the best varieties of carnations. Henry Kruchten is on Lincoln avenue, near Webers', where he has four 200 foot houses devoted to carnations. Both of these growers have previously devoted their attention to vegetables. They are considering their cut to J. A. Budlong.

Adolph H. Poehlmann has opened his wholesale store 55 and 57 Wabash avenue. He has not yet completed all the decorations of the place but he has one of the finest ice boxes in town ready to receive his cut should he have any stock which is not sold upon arrival. He is making every preparation to handle shipping trade and, although he is at present growing nothing but roses, has made arrangements to supply every variety of stock which the market affords.

N. P. Miller, superintendent of the approaching flower show, will have office hours from 2 to 5 p. m. daily, commencing October 29, at room 1002, 185 Dearborn street, where exhibitors may apply for space. The present indications point to a strong pressure upon the available room and exhibitors will do well to make their arrangements with Mr. Miller at once, particularly those who have entries for the first day.

Although general report is that local retail trade is dull, the Central Floral Company is doing a big business. This firm will have to seek a new location in the spring, as Marshall Field & Co. have acquired the Central Music Hall property, in which the florists are now located, and will tear it down shortly to make way for what is to be the finest retail store building in the world.

Andrew McAdams, who has spent nearly a lifetime in the retail business on the south side, says that the competition between the department stores and the street fakirs is steadily grinding down retail prices and that a man has to do a large business these days to pull out any profit.

Wm. Fluegge, who is growing carnations under about 25,000 feet of glass out Bowmanville way, is so well satisfied with the prospects that he is already planning to build three houses 22x116 next year. He sold a great many field-grown carnation plants this fall.

Peter Reinberg had chrysanthemums which in August were well up toward the glass and looked as though they would be remarkably early, but they are just ready to cut and are hard to beat, either for size of flower, length of stem or profusion of foliage.

Poehlmann Brothers have got their chrysanthemum cut well under way. They also have a stock of specimen plants, in several varieties, which will be ready soon. They found these very salable last season.

Flint Kennicott, president of the Kennicott Bros. Co., has returned from his summer residence in the country and is now nicely domiciled at 5607 Washington avenue, in Hyde Park.

A. L. Randall has thrown a partition across his store, converting the rear half into a cool room, which he finds excellently adapted to the purpose of keeping cut flowers pending sale.

The Geo. Wittbold Company had a big decoration for a reception at the home of A. M. Rothschild on Wednesday. A large number of palms and 1,000 American Beauties were used.

This is the third year that John Assa has been growing carnations out in Bowmanville. He has four houses 25x250 and is producing some very good stock.

George Reinberg has his houses just coming into crop and will have supplies to meet the very brisk demand which everybody expects next month.

Wietor Brothers are cutting some Meteors which will set Liberty a warm pace if the new introduction is to supplant the old favorite.

A. H. Budlong was 30 years of age on Wednesday and Mrs. Budlong invited a number of their friends to help him celebrate the evening.

F. F. Bentley reports that, while stock has been a little over plentiful of late, he finds business good and expects a remarkably busy winter.

George Ede has removed to Chillicothe, Ohio, with his family, to take charge of the establishment of the McKellar Floral Company.

Weiland & Risch are cutting better blooms of Mrs. Lawson every day and are more than pleased with the variety. Local parties who have imported azaleas this year report the plants arriving in unusually good shape.

E. E. Pieser, of the Kennicott Bros. Co., has been confined to his home this week by tonsillitis.

The condition of Mrs. Ed. F. Winter-son's health has not improved.

A PAIR OF NOTABLES GIVEN A WARM GREETING.—A VISIT TO THE OLD HIPPARD PLACE.—POPULAR PHILADELPHIANS SURE TO MAKE A BIG SUCCESS WITH IT.

William Jennings Bryan and myself struck town simultaneously. Each of us was given a most hearty welcome, Bryan by his host of admirers, I by my former townsman, the genial, whole-souled John Walker. And right here I will remark, in passing, that to know Mr. Walker means to entertain the highest regard for him. If honesty, strict attention to business, straight forward methods of dealing and popularity in the general acceptance of the term, count for anything, Walker's venture in Youngstown is an assured success. It is not my object, however, to sing John's praises.

What attracted my attention upon entering his flower store was the carnations. I never saw the like of them at this season of the year. Flora Hill seemed to have expanded to its full extent, the blooms measuring, on the average, three and one-half inches in diameter. Scott, Oneida, Peachblow and a seedling as yet unnamed presented a sight worth seeing, while Red Jacket, Crane, America and Seneca Chief were likewise at their best.

To visit the greenhouses, located within a mile from the center of the town, was next in order. Here I beheld a range of fourteen splendidly equipped and well stocked houses. The master mind presiding over the plant was evident on all sides, in every nook and corner, system, order and up-to-date methods obtaining throughout the establishment. Although but seven weeks in Youngstown, Mr. Walker has had a little experience which would have discouraged the average man, but which to him proved rather amusing. He had no sooner moved into his residence, than his landlady was "awfully sorry" to inform him that she had sold the property and would have to trouble him to look for quarters elsewhere. Nothing daunted, John packed up and moved into a beautiful house on Price street.

Carnations had to be planted and help, experienced help, was at a premium. Again John was equal to the occasion, his resourceful mind soon finding a way out of the difficulty. He reasoned thus: Any man intelligent enough to handle a spade can dig up carnation plants; to haul dirt and fill in the benches does not require any especial skill; to plant carnations one could soon learn under the guidance and instruction of an experienced grower. As there were numerous applicants, big, heavy, strapping fellow from the surrounding mills and foundries, hands laid off, he hired several and was in no wise disappointed. These fellows did their work admirably, handling the "posies" or "posy" plants in a manner to do them credit. Some liked it so well that they applied for permanent jobs. The way one 250-pounder, a mill hand, dug the carnation plants and laid each one tenderly aside would furnish a splendid subject for the cartoonist.

While roses and carnations will be grown extensively, it is Mr. Walker's intention to branch out in palms and decorative plants. A house full of young plants, arecas, kentias and latanias look strong and promising.

The day I left, Geo. McClain, for twenty-six years with George Craig, of Philadelphia, was expected to arrive in Youngstown to take charge of the store on Federal street. It would be hard to point out a better team than Walker and McClain, the former a grower second to none, the latter a designer, decorator, artist and all-around storeman, than whom there is not a better in the country. Success to you, Walker & McClain! May your shadows never grow less!

Having disposed of his greenhouses E. Hippard will give his entire attention to his standard ventilating machine and his ingenious steam trap. Mr. Hippard reports a marked increase in the number of orders. It is Mr. Hippard's opinion that prosperity is in store for all of us.

TWO NEW AND WELL EQUIPPED FLOWER STORES.—STATE OF TRADE AND SUPPLIES.

Lewis P. Litzinger and Thomas J. Wade have opened a flower store at 1714 Fourteenth street, N. W. The store has been neatly fitted up and quite a display of plants and cut flowers is made. Mr. Wade was formerly with Thorley and Fleischman, at New York, and recently with Looze and Freeman, in Washington.

Chrysanthemums are coming in plentifully but are in little demand, although a number are being shipped to neighboring cities. Violets are improving in size. Carnations are not very good yet.

A. Gude & Brother are cutting a large number of fine roses, Meteor, La France, American Beauty, Kaiserin and Bridesmaid. One house of chrysanthemums is full of color.

George C. Shaffer has opened a flower store at the corner of Fourteenth and I streets, where he is nicely equipped for business.

Bennett, Pa.

Breitenbaugh Bros., of Little Beauty fuchsia fame, have somewhat expanded since I last visited their place. By expansion I mean an additional palm house built during the past summer, which covers 40x115. It is a fine structure, built in an up-to-date way and equipped with all the modern appliances. Not content with the laurels which Little Beauty won for them, they will soon come to the front with a White Beauty, a beautiful fuchsia, a compact, strong grower, a continuous bloomer and one which is sure to make its mark. Their Monarch coleus is pre-eminently the monarch of its kind. They intend putting it upon the market during the coming season. To strike a vein of coal upon a hill within a stone's throw of one's place is what may be called luck. The Breitenbaugh brothers have made the discovery and are reaping the benefit therefrom.

C. H. Koenig has made extensive additions to his place and is growing both bulbous stock and carnations for the wholesale market. His small kentias and latanias look well, his larger plants having found a ready and speedy sale in the local market.

Montgomery, Ala.

Last year the city of Montgomery purchased a natural grove of forty acres for a public park. The same has been laid out with drives and walks and flower beds, and now presents a most attractive appearance. The work was done under the superintendence of Jos. Pfingstl, who has shown himself a landscape gardener worthy of the name.

Rosemont Gardens, W. B. Paterson, proprietor, just outside of this park, has erected seven new houses 100 feet long this season. One of these is planted to smilax, one to asparagus, one is occupied by palms and ferns and four by carnations. In addition to these they have three older houses in carnations, one of Beauties, two of Brides, Bridesmaids, Golden Gate and Chatenay. Two houses are used for chrysanthemums, one for violets and one for propagating. Mr. Paterson's business shows a steady increase and his stock is in excellent condition.

Miss Lucy Wilson has built a fifty-foot house this summer.

WASHINGTON, PA.—I. Shelby Crall is now located at 113 N. Main street, in a larger store, where he has all the facilities for increased business.

KENTON, O.—W. Sabransky is a believer in expansion and has recently annexed considerable adjoining property. He now occupies nearly a city square for his business.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—H. F. W. Busch has begun the erection of three new greenhouses at Fiftieth street and Lyndale avenue S. Two of the houses will be 21x200, the other 21x100.

MORRISON, ILL.—Davis Brothers built three new 100-foot greenhouses this summer and have two of them planted with carnations, the other with violets. Two of their old houses they have just planted with cucumbers, sterilizing the soil before putting it on the benches.

it without making a great change in the other piping. SUBSCRIBER.

If I correctly understood the question,
"Subscriber" merely asks the best method of piping a cool greenhouse 16x40 feet.

For a house of this length either 1½ or 2-inch pipe may be used, and for a maximum of 50° ten of the former and eight of the latter size will be required, of which two should be flow pipes. If it is desired to combine the two sizes, use three 2-inch flows and six 1½-inch returns. If a single supply pipe is desired a 2½-inch flow pipe will be amply large. If all the pipes are under the benches, the circulation in the various houses will be even. L. R. T.

one house.

New Haven, Conn.—John Doughty, two houses 18x100.

Westfield, Mass.—Frank Perould, one house.

Bradford, Pa.—G. P. McFarland, one house.

Concord Junction, Mass.—Geo. Milne,
one house.

Boiler and Piping.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—My boiler and work room is 10x28 covered by tin. To the south of it are two even-span houses, one for carnations, 18x40 and ten feet to ridge, one for plants, 15x40 and eight feet six inches to ridge. Between the boiler shed and the residence to the north, connected with each, is a rose house 15x32, nine feet to ridge. Each house is double boarded all around and lined with heavy building paper three feet high. In each house there are three benches, two on the sides and one in the center, each bench two feet nine inches above the ground. How large a hot water boiler will be required to heat these houses and how much piping, the outside temperature seldom falling below zero?
I wish to use 2-inch pipe; what size flow and returns should I use and how many runs? J. H. R.

A boiler with a capacity of 900 to 1000 feet of radiation will be desirable, although the amount actually in use will be but little more than 700 feet. For 50° in the carnation house and 60° in each of the others ten 2-inch pipes will be required, of which either two or three can be flows and the others returns. If the supply for all of the houses is taken from one port of the boiler it will be well to use a 4-inch pipe, but a 2½-inch pipe will supply the rose house, and a 3-inch will be sufficient for the other two, with a 2½-inch branch to each house. The main returns should be of the same size as the supply pipes. The above is calculated to give economy of fuel and labor of firing, but if a low first cost with a slightly larger expense for labor and fuel than would be necessary as outlined above is preferred, the number of pipes can be reduced from ten to nine, or even eight under favorable circumstances.

L. R. T.

A Question of Flows.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We have two houses, 16x66 and 20x66. Our boiler has two 2-inch flow pipes, one for each side, but we propose to put in a larger heater.
Will it be all right to have one 4-inch flow from the boiler branching into two 2-inch flows, one for each house? What size flows and how much radiation are required to keep a temperature of 55° in Illinois, the houses being nine feet to ridge and with four-foot side walls?
G. & B.

A 4-inch main flow pipe will answer for both houses, but it should branch into two 3-inch, one of which will supply each house. For the flow pipes inside the houses it will be better to use two 2½-inch in each, with seven 2-inch returns in one house and ten in the other.
L. R. T.

Piping for Hot Water or Steam.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am building a new house 16x75 feet and nine and one-half feet to ridge. There are eighteen inches of glass in each side but the north end is protected by the boiler room and another house. If I use steam heat how many rows of 1½-inch pipe, with one 2-inch overhead flow, will it take to ensure 55° in zero weather? If I should decide to use hot water, how many rows of 2-inch pipes will it require with an overhead flow? If steam heat is used is it practicable to get the condensation back into the boiler, the base of the boiler being six feet below the floor of the greenhouses. How can it be done?
Please state the capacity of the boiler, both steam and hot water, necessary to heat the house already described and one 17x50, three-quarter-span, east and west, nine and one-half feet to ridge, north wall six feet and south wall four feet, the buildings somewhat exposed to northwest winds. B. J. A.

To heat the house by steam it will require eight 1½-inch pipes in addition to the 2-inch flow; if hot water is used it will be desirable to use ten 2-inch pipes, of which three should be flows. The water will return to the boiler if the water level is two feet below the returns, although more than this is desirable.
The returns can be united and one 1½-inch pipe will answer to carry the water by gravity to the bottom of the boiler. The amount of steam radiation actually required will be considerably less than 600 square feet, and although one horse-power is considered sufficient for each 100 square feet of radiation, it is not desirable to use less than a ten horse-power boiler for the two houses. In a similar way the hot water radiation of less than 900 square feet, should have 1,000, or, better yet, as much as 1,200, square feet as the capacity of its boiler.

OBITUARY.

HARRISON A. LYON.

Harrison A. Lyon, an old and respected citizen of Rochester, N. Y., died October 17. Mr. Lyon was born in Saratoga county, New York, in 1815 and from 1830 had lived at Rochester, with the exception of a period spent in travel. He was for many years a partner of A. J. Fisk in the nursery business, then in its early stages, and was later in business with L. W. Hall, continuing this connection until 1899, when he was compelled to give up active pursuits. He leaves a widow, one son and a daughter.

THOMAS C. AUSTIN.

Thomas C. Austin, of the firm of T. C. Austin & Sons, of Suffield, Conn., died on October 20. He suffered a paralytic stroke, two days before and did not regain consciousness. Mr. Austin was one of Suffield's oldest citizens and was born and had always lived in the house where he died. He was one of the twelve children of Thomas Austin, and was the last of the six sons. Mr. Austin had been a nurseryman and florist over forty years, and had built up an extensive business. He leaves, beside one sister, eight children, the sons Charles C., Edgar, Arthur H., T. C., Jr., and William, all of Suffield, and Burton, of Willimantic.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.—Italian gardens of an elaborate character are to be laid out on the estates of Messrs. Benedict and Weidenfeld. The work is to be done by August Ellwood, the Southampton florist.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

THE delayed frosts were advantageous to the bean crops.

BUYERS have been looking for gladioli much earlier than usual this year.

EXTRA fine weather and politics are responsible for decrease in counter trade.

It takes about sixteen years, says the Mail Order Journal, to establish a paying mail business without capital.

R. & J. FARQUHAR & COMPANY will, on January 1, occupy the entire building at 6 and 7 South Market street, Boston, with store on the street floor.

AMONG the promising novelties for next year are Mont Blanc sweet pea, Aquilegia chrysantha, fl. pl., Arctotis grandis, Lathyrus latifolius Pink Beauty, Delphinium Blue Butterfly and Eschscholtzia Californica caniculata rosea.

VISITED CHICAGO: Albert McCullough, of J. M. McCullough's Sons, Cincinnati, O.; L. L. May, St. Paul; Mrs. S. Y. Haines, Minneapolis; Arthur Luck, of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, on his wedding trip; Alfred J. Brown and wife, Grand Rapids, Mich.

THE Samuel Wilson Co., seedsmen, Mechanicsville, Bucks county, Pa., were discharged as voluntary bankrupts on October 22. This firm succeeded the late Samuel Wilson, who died several years ago. He carried on a mail seed business of considerable magnitude for many years.

SIDNEY, O.—B. P. Wagner is erecting three greenhouses here, 22x75. Mr. Wagner is identified with the Wagner Manufacturing Company.

SAGINAW, MICH.—The business of William Roethka has been incorporated with $25,000 capital stock by F. W., Bertha, C. L. and O. T. Roethka and Mrs. E. Grauses, all of Saginaw.

MONTREAL, CAN.—The Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club has postponed its chrysanthemum show for one week, to November 12, 13 and 14, because of the lateness of exhibits in general.

SEVERAL very large shipments of JAPAN LONGIFLORUM have arrived in very bad condition—more than half of the bulbs having been lost by heating. This large loss will make a scarcity in this article, and probably many dealers will be unable to fill their orders in full. If you do not succeed in getting your full supplies, we have still to offer a fine lot of

These Bulbs are in splendid shape. We can supply them at $14 PER CASE; 350 Bulbs to the case. We also have a fine stock of

LILIUM HARRISII
7-9 inch size is generally scarce, but we have a very fine stock of this size still on hand—a lot of bulbs that were left in the ground and dug late, and in consequence they are in grand shape. Bulbs are plump, bright and clean, and as fine a lot of Harrisii as anyone would want to handle. We can supply these, as long as unsold, as follows:
5-7's, 400 bulbs to the case, only $16 per case. 7-9's, 300 bulbs to the case, only $18 per case.
Order at once before we are sold out.

We also offer a very fine stock of

Extra quality bulbs, 12-15 ctm., in case lots, 2100 bulbs to the case, $16.00 per 1000.

Paper White Narcissus Grandiflora
Case lots, about 1300 bulbs to the case, $7.50 per 1000.
5% discount from above-named prices when cash is remitted with order.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE Crothers peach, a late freestone variety, has given very good results this year.

MANY nurserymen say that fall shipments were never so heavy as they are this season.

THE Jewell Nursery Co., Lake City, Minn., has begun fall deliveries which are reported to be the heaviest in their history.

JOHN B. HARRIS, of Champaign, Ill., has sold his twenty-acre nursery tract to E. S. Swigart, who will divide it into building lots.

JONATHAN apples, grown in the northwest and shipped in boxes to the eastern markets, are selling at an excellent price where the growers have been careful to pack none but perfect fruits.

AN excellent prospect for fall trade is what Thos. Meehan & Sons, the nurserymen of Germantown, Pa., report. The rapidly increasing business of this firm has made necessary a handsome two-story addition to their offices.

About Tree Seeds.

During the last twelve years the U. S. Department of Agriculture has received from farmers and other landowners a very large number of letters asking how to procure tree seeds and how to raise seedlings.

For the purpose of supplying the desired information to farmers and all others interested in tree planting, the Department has prepared, and has now in press, Bulletin No. 29, Division of Forestry, entitled "The Forest Nursery: Collection of Tree Seeds and Propagation of Seedlings." The bulletin was prepared by Geo. B. Sudworth, Dendrologist of the Division of Forestry, and in endeavoring to give this information one point has been kept prominently in view, to lead the propagator to produce plant material which will succeed best under inexperienced management. The number of plants to be grown on the allotted space of seed bed and nursery has, therefore, been sacrificed to what is believed to be a more important consideration, the production of vigorous plants.

The treatment of the various subjects considered is based upon a long experience in collecting and storing large quantities of tree seeds and their propagation, upon a careful study of the practices of professional nurserymen, and on an extensive study of tree seedlings in the wild state.

The farmer or other landowner who contemplates planting forest trees must provide his stock either by raising it or buying it. To the average farmer the cost of this material, however small, is likely to be an important consideration, and it is always desirable, and often indispensable, to reduce the cost of forest planting as much as possible; therefore the farmer should collect seeds and raise seedlings himself.

The bulletin gives the regions of seed supply, a list of market prices for tree seeds, names the seeds desirable to collect, when and how to collect them, the manner of storing and the means used for testing their vitality.

The propagation of tree seeds is similar to that of garden seeds and there is practically no difference in the care and soil necessary for the best results from either class of seeds. Given a moderately rich, gravelly, or sandy, porous, moist soil, within the proper range of temperature, any tree can be propagated from the seed and made to live for a longer or shorter time.

Natural seeding is too often uncertain, because the necessary conditions for germination are perfect only by chance, and where the farmer's purpose is to produce useful timber without loss of time natural seeding is not to be depended on. Direct planting of sufficiently advanced nursery stock has the advantage over natural seeding of establishing more quickly and with greater certainty only such timber trees as are wanted.

The bulletin shows that planting tree seed with cultivated crops, or sowing broadcast on prepared and unprepared land is uncertain, giving less uniform results than planting nursery-grown seedlings; that seed bed culture requires the least labor and produces the most and best stock; that the seed bed should be located on a well-drained site, and that a deep, sandy loam soil is preferable.

Propagating trees from cuttings, wintering and transplanting seedlings, care of nursery stock and use of wild seedlings are other matters which receive attention.

The bulletin will contain a list of useful timber trees to plant, and will be illustrated with five plates and eleven text figures.

Milwaukee.

The Reitz Floral Company has just completed a very convenient and attractive conservatory adjoining the Vliet street store. It is 20x50, of a good height and heated by hot water.

Adam Zender, of Chicago, has visited his friends and business interests here. He reports Liberty rose in his locality to be suffering from black spot. C. B. W.

OUR PASTIMES.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

At Chicago.

The Florists' Bowling Club re-elected P. J. Hauswirth president at the last meeting. J. S. Wilson is vice-president, George Asmus, secretary and treasurer, and E. F. Winterson, captain. Following the election some straggling games were rolled, Hauswirth making high score, 173.

At Flatbush.

And still the new alleys keep the boys a-guessing. Riley alone seems to have got a line on them and even he is not at all sure as to what is going to happen. Last Thursday the scores were as follows:

Player	1st	2d	3d	4th	Av
Riley	171	141	165	149	157

At Philadelphia.

There was a warm contest on the club alleys last Tuesday night, when the florists defeated the strong Century team by twenty-two pins in a three game match. The first game the florists won by nine pins, making 946 to 937 for the Centurys. The second game was even closer, the florists losing by two pins, 920 to 922. All was excitement for the last game, as each had an almost equal chance of winning. A spurt by the Centurys, even in the last game, would have won, but they were not equal to it, the florists taking the game and the match. The score follows:

Florists	1st	2d	3d	TI

Robert Bard, of Syracuse, came down to see how the boys were doing on the alleys and in honor of his presence October 22 the alleys were very nicely decorated with Peter Crowe's fern, named after Mr. Bard, and we had on hand a few of Bard's patent nozzles to remind him that we had not forgotten our friend "Bobbie." The evening passed very pleasantly; following is the score:

TRADE ON THE INCREASE.—CUT FLOWERS IN DEMAND.—A NEW GROWER.—VISITORS.

There has been a decided improvement in business during the past two weeks and cut flowers of all kinds are in fair demand. Palms and ferns sell slowly and prices are not as high as last season. Violets and chrysanthemums have made their appearance.

John Doughty, formerly gardener for J. Hubinger, has severed that connection to go into the growing of bedding plants for himself. He is building a range of houses on Kimberley avenue.

Recent visitors: J. W. Jefferson, of Louisville, Ky.; E. J. Taylor, Southport, Conn.; Mr. Ludwig, with A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Geo. C. Goodwin, West Hartford, Conn. G. H.

Peoria, Ill.

The florists are glad the corn carnival is at an end for, contrary to predictions, it did not help trade. There has been no killing frost; still the demand is increasing daily, with a fair supply of roses and an increasing cut of carnations. Violets are coming along nicely and are improving in size and color. A few chrysanthemums are to be seen.

Cole Brothers and Murray were well represented in the recent industrial parade, having very showy and tastefully arranged wagons.

Geo. A. Kuhl, of Pekin, is cutting some very fine Golden Gate roses and Ethel Crocker carnations. He is having good sales on his Boston ferns and has devoted one of his largest houses to them.

J. C. Murray's Beauties are in full crop and are very fine. PEORIAN.

CARNATIONS FIELD-GROWN PLANTS

Genevieve Lord, only 1000 extra-fine plants left. These plants are under cover, safe from frosts. We recommend it as a fitting successor to Wm. Scott, and the most profitable Carnation every offered to the trade. Per 100, $12.00; 200 or more at $10.00; 500 at $7.50.

James Whitcomb Riley, $12.00 per 100.

Also a few Daybreak, Pingree and Wm. Scott, fine plants; to close out, $5 per 100.

THE STATE OF TRADE.—SUCCESS WITH CHRYSANTHEMUMS AS YET UNCERTAIN. —DOINGS OF THE SOCIETY.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Our summer has been quite pleasant, with no excess of heat and enough rain to give us a good supply of flowers during the whole season. Still, the chrysanthemums seem to be behind this year. Their main value is for our Decoration day, the first of November. Planting the early kinds is very uncertain, as we grow them outside and late warm weather and rain will very likely injure the flowers. The late kinds, or even the mid-season ones come generally too late. We are not able to say yet how they will turn out this year. So far Glory of Pacific seems to be in good time. Kate Brown also shows good buds, in good shape to be open in proper time.

It has been decided to have an informal chrysanthemum exhibit at our next society meeting, the third Thursday of November. At our last meeting we had as a visitor Roy McGregor, of McGregor Bros., Springfield, O. We had the pleasure of hearing from that gentleman the modus operandi of rose propagation as worked in Springfield. Many of us could not see any reason why we could not do the same thing here, but others have the firm idea that our climate is entirely against the successful propagation of roses by cuttings, at least on a large scale.

A committee of three has been appointed to devise the best way to send either money or stock to whoever is left of the Galveston florists. Every member of our society seems to be ready to contribute his share to the sufferers.

SECRETARY HERR ENTERTAINED AT A SMOKER.—MUCH GOOD CHEER.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

The smoker given by the club in honor of Albert M. Herr was the most enjoyable entertainment in which the members have taken part for a long while. Mr. Herr's short address on the coming carnation show was followed by a programme which left the crowd with aching sides and grinning faces. If "laugh and grow fat" is a reliable motto, then the increase in avoirdupois on the part of those present will be plainly perceptible. Jas. M. Clayton, Russell Jones, Frank Harmon and Harry Kleinfelter furnished the music and recitations; last, but by no means least, came the collation and smoker.

The expected freeze has not materialized, consequently business is still flat, with the exception of an occasional flurry in funeral designs.

G. V. Smith is adding an office and two houses to his Waverly place and Jno. Donn's plant sanitarium is under way.

BUSINESS IS BRISK IN THE TENNESSEE TOWN.—WEDDINGS NUMEROUS.—STATE OF SUPPLY.—JOYS LOSE A STREET EXHIBIT BY FIRE.

The early fall days have produced a marked improvement both in the volume of trade and in the quality of flowers. The opening of the large boarding schools for young ladies has helped to bring about a briskness in trade, and an unusually large number of fall weddings has caused a good demand for decorations and bridal flowers, although the society reporter had it that some of the houses were decorated with "studied simplicity" which may have been very "effective" but did not net much to the florists' pocketbooks. Bridesmaids, Brides and Kaisers are much larger in size than a few weeks ago and many good Beauties are being cut. The latter are only bringing medium prices, hardly up to the quality given. Cosmos, dahlias and all fall flowers have been abundant. Chrysanthemums are now coming in and very handsome early varieties in pink and white are to be seen in the florists' windows.

Joy & Son, who had a booth and exhibit at our street fair, given under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association, were so unfortunate as to get caught in a fire that broke out in the fair, destroying a number of booths. They lost all that was shown, palms and decorative plants, but with commendable enterprise they redecorated the booth the next day. Messrs. Joy had the same misfortune last year at the street fair.

The little granddaughter of Mrs. C. A. Birn, who has a flower store on Church street, captured first prize in the children's flower parade at the street fair.

M. C. DORRIS.

PORTLAND, ME.—Jas. Fyles & Son have opened a branch store at 267 Congress street.

WICHITA, KANS.—Mrs. J. W. Wingart has sold her greenhouses to the Wichita Greenhouse Company, who will remove the structures to Waco street, where they are erecting a large range of houses for the purpose of growing cut flowers.

BUSINESS VERY FAIR.—LARGE FUNERAL AND WEDDING ORDERS.—DOINGS OF THE FLORISTS' SOCIETY.—NOTES.

Business might be termed fair, for the Friend wedding at Lockland last Monday and the Goepper funeral Saturday used up immense quantities of flowers. At the Goepper obsequies it was impossible to get all the flowers into the house, there being three wagon-loads taken to the church. The cry at present is for American Beauty roses and about the only good ones coming in are from George & Allan, which sell readily at $3 per dozen, wholesale. Chrysanthemums made their appearance in quantity last Wednesday, Bergmann, Willowbrook and Glory of Pacific being the varieties. There were only very few previous to that, but from now on this market will be pretty well supplied.

The meeting of the Florists' Society Saturday evening was poorly attended, there being not more than a dozen present. The fall festival float committee handed in its report. Mr. Witterstaetter, in behalf of the society, made a neat little speech in which he thanked the committee for their efforts. There were rumors afloat that the committee was short of funds, but when Mr. Brooks read the report it showed a cash balance of $7 26. Probably this will make one or two parties breathe a little easier. The committee on exhibitions reported progress and we will have the first of our monthly shows in November, of chrysanthemums, roses and carnations.

Frank Ball, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Co., made a trip to Columbus recently and reports the different places he visited as being in first-class condition, with all the boys ready for a good business the coming winter.

They say at the Cincinnati Cut Flower Company's that "Freddy" Gear is an expert telegraph operator. If you don't believe it ask "Benny" George or "Charlie" Jones.

E. G. Gillett has moved into more spacious quarters, just across the hall from his old place of business, 113 East Third street. Ed. will now be right in line.

Packing and Shipping Cut Flowers.

[Read before the Chicago Florists' Club, November 2, 1900, by Walter S. Heffron.]

The subject of marketing cut flowers is one so broad, if treated in its entirety, embracing as it does business methods as well as how, where and when, that I scarcely believe it to be the committee's intention that I should attempt to solve problems over which many able men are, have been and will continue to study with all their strength of mind influenced by strongest self interest. In attempting to instruct how to place cut stock on a wholesale market in as perfect condition as possible, some few generalities will apply with equal force to all localities and conditions.

The shipping box is an important and much neglected feature. On its suitability much depends. The proper dimensions are not arbitrary and are wholly dependent on class and variety of stock to be shipped. Great depth, breadth and excessive length and weight are to be avoided. Depth because of pressure from weight on the lower part of the contents, also because of greater liability of stock heating in transit. Width because of unwieldiness. The various express companies as a rule have at the several points of transfer but a single employee to handle the packages and even where there are several it is rarely that more than one attends to the same package. A box, then, that is overly wide is a constant source of temptation. Nine times out of ten it will be on edge, with more or less disastrous result to the contents. Weight speaks for itself. Excessive length is open to the same general objection that attaches to great width with the added drawback that for all stock, save that particularly long stemmed, there is increased difficulty in properly securing it from shifting. Safe proportions for a shipping box, in my estimation, would be one ranging from six to ten inches in depth, never exceeding eighteen inches in width and three times the length of the stems of the stock packed in it. This proportion is for average general stock, roses, carnations, etc., and would not hold good for extra short or long, the exception proving the rule.

The box should have a fastening reasonably secure, but one that can be unfastened on arrival easily, quickly and without damage to the box or contents. Nails or screws should never be used, save possibly on special shipments, where, for good reasons, the regular box is not used. There is no necessity of attempting to make a burglar proof box. The smallest loss a grower has is that of pilfering in transit, and a fastening that provides for a reasonable amount of delay in opening will safeguard that contingency. A tight fitting lid with one of the several good hasp devices or metal catches is excellent. Nothing excels a heavy sash cord or light rope of good quality. Straps are a nuisance, as the strain soon puts the hole in the wrong place for the tongue of the buckle and either the strap is soon ruined and worthless from efforts to remedy it or the cover is never tight enough to prevent the air from having too easy entrance.

The shipping box should always be lined with paper. Several thicknesses should be used. It not only acts as a cushion, equalizing the jar, but the dead air spaces so formed are the best non-conductors that could possibly be provided. Many growers use a lining during severe weather to keep out the cold. Is it not just as essential to prevent the penetration of heat? One is as destructive in its effects as the other; the remedy is the same. Nothing is better for this purpose than the ordinary newspaper.

In placing several layers of stock in the same box, always be careful to have them carefully separated and so separated that they can be removed at destination without destroying the layer as originally packed. Many use tissue or wax paper for this purpose. They are both unfit. Wax paper draws the tissue and ruins color, fragrance and texture of many kinds of flowers, and wax and tissue alike are so soaked by the moisture and drainage from foliage and stems above and below that they almost invariably give way with the weight of the layer. The result is one jumbled mass. Manila or newspaper in several thicknesses is the best, as they have strength enough to stand considerable strain and, being porous, they quickly absorb any surplus moisture, retaining same for a long period, providing a tempering of the enclosed air very beneficial on a long or hot trip.

In placing flowers in the box, care should be taken to place the deepest colored stock, where substance of flower is equal, in the bottom of the box, grading upward, the lightest colored or white on top, as colored stock will show the effects of weight and crushing less freely.

I will not go into the question of proper cutting and bunching. That is a local question and depends on the outlet. Some markets want carnations fifty to the bunch, some twenty-five, some bulbous stock in dozens, others again in quarter hundreds, some heads even, some stems, and so on. These are all important points but I presume them to be known to the shipper.

All flowers after cutting and before packing should be placed in water long enough to ensure the stem having absorbed sufficient water to keep the flower fresh until arrival at destination and some hours after. Pots and jars that are used for that purpose must be kept clean and, if practicable, should never be used for any other purpose. Many flowers have been ruined from having absorbed oil and various chemicals through the water in which they were placed.

Particularly during hot weather do not freshly recut stems before packing, except where necessary to facilitate packing. The pores at the cut have partly closed, retaining the water. If recut the stem will drain and the flower be deprived of moisture and will wilt.

Lilies, chrysanthemums and other large-petaled flowers are better underdone than overdone on the hardening off side. The petals of such flowers, if full of water and chilled, at each jar and move are apt to crack or bruise; if soft and even inclined to wilt they will yield to movement and pressure, will show no trace of bruise or crack afterward and will straighten up under proper treatment in a short time. Many more can be packed in the same space, saving time, trouble and expense.

Stems of most annuals and perennials and other soft-wooded blooms should be cleaned of bottom foliage before being sent to market. Many become offensive within a few hours after being placed in water and the chance of sale is thereby lessened and the price lowered. Many, after reaching that stage, are so permeated with the odor that even if the stem be cleaned the flower or upper foliage retains so great a part of it that, notwithstanding the bloom to be perfect, it has gone past the selling stage. This should not be done, however, excepting for above-stated reason, unless it is to remove unsightly foliage, as many flowers absorb water nearly, if not quite, as readily through the leaf as through the stem.

The use of highly colored twine in tying bunched stock should be avoided. The dye nearly always runs when the bunch is in water, and the dye strikes in. The customer then insists that the flowers are old, when the contrary is the case. Take lily of the valley as an example. I have seen many dollars worth of value taken off of a shipment from this alone. The stems at the bottom, being bleached nearly white from forcing, are also soft and the dye from a blue, green or yellow string will run in the stem like ink in a blotter. On the contrary, some flowers should always be tied with string to match the stem in color; that is, of course, where the bunch goes to the customer as originally tied.

Violets, lily of the valley, most bulbous stock and any easily wilted flower should have a quantity of moist tissue paper wrapped around and over the end of the stems. Smilax is better sprinkled and should always be rolled singly. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri will ship best and keep better afterward if kept perfectly dry.

A safe rule is to never sprinkle any flower for shipment. The foliage only should be freshened and that, in the majority of cases, but sparingly. The only exception to this that comes to mind at present is the poinsettia, and that which we call a flower is really not the flower at all, simply highly colored foliage surrounding the flower proper and which retains all its leaf characteristics.

Treatment of Carnation Blooms.

Mr. Rudd's remarks on the treatment of carnation blooms are very good indeed. Am afraid I cannot improve on them, or give any additional information. As he says, I think the temperature in which to place carnations should be about 50°, and the room clean, dry and well ventilated. A refrigerator, cooled by ice, is most assuredly the worst place imaginable in which to keep stock and have it preserve its appearance and quality after removing. The atmosphere is very damp, and consequently damaging to the carnations. When taken into the outside air, the moisture rapidly evaporates, causing the flowers to dry up and go to sleep. For this reason, as well as others, the cold storage room is a vast improvement over the refrigerator.

A cool, well-ventilated vault is about the best place in which to keep carnations, but in the city, vaults are not generally a success, owing mainly to bad, impure air and lack of proper ventilation. Where these vaults are situated in the country, there is certainly no better place to develop and store carnations before sending to market.

Oftentimes the reason carnations cannot be kept a greater length of time is that the growers are apt to cut their stock too fully developed. They naturally expect the flowers to reach their destinations in as good condition as when shipped, whereas, when they arrive at the dealers, they deteriorate instead of improving. If cut sometime before maturity and allowed to stay in water for several hours before shipping they will invariably improve and appear to better advantage after the dealer receives them.

I think if the growers kept more in touch with the market it would help them a great deal in the manner of cutting and shipping their carnations and be better for both growers and dealers in general.

SAMUEL S. PENNOCK.

With reference to the temperature calculated to keep carnation flowers best and longest, I am constrained to endorse Mr. Rudd's remarks in every respect except temperature, and as we have not conducted any experiments along temperature lines, I do not feel competent to discuss it. But in a general way I consider W. N. Rudd's statements as very probable; we have practiced the very principles he stands for. We keep our carnations and all flowers in a large, airy cellar, avoid putting them in an ice box, try and have at all times a good circulation of fresh air, and above all things to avoid a close, stuffy atmosphere, and are far better satisfied with flowers so kept than when we kept them in a large ice box we have. The cellar is about 24x30 and flowers keep remarkably well.

The Chicago Poster.

The poster has become an institution of the annually recurring exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago. That of 1900, a reproduction of which in black and white is shown on this page, is the work of A. E. Philbrick and was lithographed in colors by Phillips, Greenwood & Schmoel.

Aquatics and their Winter Protection.

At the close of a most unusually hot and trying season for all decorative flowering plants no one can but admit that aquatics have stood the ordeal the best of all. During the hottest weather they can be relied upon to produce a magnificent display of gorgeous coloring, and not only coloring, but magnificent individual flowers, bold and massive, unique and rich and delicate in coloring. The conditions under which these flowers have been so satisfactory only enhances their popularity, the cultural methods are so simple. The amount of labor bestowed on them is less than is necessary on any other equal space, while no comparison can be made as to the results. These plants are in greater demand every season and of some varieties the supply is not equal to the call.

Cultural notes have been written in these pages time and again, yet it requires something of an object lesson to demonstrate their practical features. It is gratifying to note an increasing demand for cut blooms of nymphæas, and that florists have been in daily receipt of first-rate specimen flowers. During the season hundreds and even thousands of these flowers have been used for decorations on special occasions. They have also been much in evidence at various exhibitions during the summer, and our public and private gardens manifest a greater interest in this class of plants—neither is the demand limited to our own land, for all Europe is intensely interested in aquatic plants and foreign markets are drawn upon as the call is greater than the supply.

The past season has seen the introduction of several novelties, and these include some fine American varieties, both hardy and tender. Among the hardy kinds Nymphæa William Falconer, intense light garnet, is pre-eminently the largest and richest dark colored variety in cultivation. The stock of this variety is limited and will command a high price for some time. Nymphæa gloriosa is one of the very best of French introductions. It is of the Marliacea type, color rosy to dark carmine, a very symmetrical, full flower. Nymphæa Aurora, yellow to carmine; Nymphæa Andreana, beautiful red and orange; Nymphæa Lucida, an exquisite variety, rosy vermillion, outer petals light rose, are all worthy novelties. A number of French varieties are variable in color, changing from light to darker colors; such are very pleasing, even fascinating.

Nymphæa William Doogue is a superb, massive flower, color a very pleasing soft pink, very highly esteemed. Nymphæa William Stone, a hybrid of N. gracilis, has flowers eight to ten inches across, violet blue shaded amaranth; flowers open all day and first rate for cutting. The list of new varieties grows rapidly, but it is gratifying to note the advancement and the improvement along this line, especially new and unique coloring which a short time since was inconceivable.

The general advancement in the line of culture is very noticeable. Many who made a trial with a few tubs have arrived at a stage when, by experience, they find that a tub twenty-two inches to twenty-four inches in diameter is by far too limited a space in which to grow a good water lily. They are not content with small or moderate flowers or such plants after seeing the large specimens in public and other gardens where nymphæa leaves are to be seen twenty to twenty-two inches across and flowers ten to fifteen inches in diameter. More commonsense methods are now adopted in the culture of aquatics. A few years ago running water was considered necessary, or there would be stagnation, malaria, mosquitoes and other pests, but this fallacy has long since been dispelled. Plant life in the water oxygenates and purifies the water as do plants and trees the air we breathe, and fish destroy insects, so running water is no longer advocated by practical cultivators.

Now that the season is over, although drawn out unusually late, and numerous flowers are yet to be seen, it is full time that all plants required for stock should be housed, or everything in readiness for security against a sudden fall in temperature. After the first freezing, or even after a period of low temperature, it will be wise policy to remove them to safer quarters.

Where hardy varieties are in water of sufficient depth to be below freezing they will need no further protection, but where choice hardy varieties are grown in an artificial pond and it is necessary to draw off the water to preserve the masonry, the best way, or a very good way, at least, is to dig up the plants and pack them pretty closely together in a box and place this in a pond in water of a sufficient depth to be secure against freezing. If no such pond exists the roots may be packed closely together in a tub and covered with water and kept in a cold house, or even sunken in the ground and covered with boards, covering these in turn with leaves and litter.

The tender varieties that have flowered freely all summer are difficult to keep over unless they can be placed in a tank or shallow pond in the aquatic or other house, where they can be kept in a quiet state, not growing, yet not cold, so as to lose all leaves, such conditions to continue until the days lengthen. Where no tanks are available, and the resources of a greenhouse are at command, then, after the plants are nipped by frost, trim off most of the leaves and roots and remove the stool with a fair amount of soil around it and plant it under the bench near the walk; give a good soaking of water to settle the soil and keep the leaves in as fresh a condition as possible for a time. It will be unnecessary to give another watering. Let the plants, with the tubers attached, if any, dry up. The central crown will surely die, but the side shoots will ripen good tubers. An examination may be made after a few weeks, and where the roots and leaves or leaf stalks have decayed the soil may be pressed in and around firmly, but the main thing will be to keep them dry and yet not so dry that they will shrivel. In this condition they may remain until spring. These remarks apply to all the night-blooming varieties that form compound tubers, but not to the Zanzibar and other African or blue water lilies, unless they are small plants in from 4-inch to 6 inch pots. Plants in these sized pots can be readily placed in a tub of water under the bench.

Nelumbiums in tubs must be protected against freezing. Either sink them in the ground and protect, as before recommended for nymphæas, or keep in a cool house where they will not freeze. Where growing in an artificial pond it will be prudent to protect the masonry where frost is likely to be severe, remembering that the nelumbiums are safe only as they are below the frost line. Muskrats must be hunted down and destroyed if you value your water lilies.

Horticultural Society of Chicago's Prizes.

The illustration herewith presented is from a photograph of the silver and cut glass trophies offered as premiums by the Horticultural Society of Chicago for competition at the exhibition next week.

The most valuable of the prizes is the sterling silver service of five pieces, offered as the first premium in the competition for table decorations, the exhibits to be re-arranged each day, and the exhibitor scoring the highest average number of points to win.

The second prize in the competition for table decorations is the pair of splendid cut glass florists' vases shown upon either side of the silver service. These vases cost the society $90.

The sterling silver cup donated by C. D. Peacock and offered for the best twelve blooms of a rose never before exhibited in this country is shown standing in the center of the tray which is a part of the silver service.

The Season's Work Among Cannas.

The blooming season for cannas is now over, the recent frosts having checked the growth and spoiled the bloom. The conditions from planting time to date were very favorable, as we were favored with plenty of heat and moisture. During the extreme hot weather in August we had a good opportunity to note the enduring qualities of the different varieties. The following were ahead in this respect: Buttercup, Gloriosa, West Grove, Conqueror, Egandale, Admiral Schley, Queen Eleanor, President Cleveland, Luray, Martha Washington, Philadelphia, Souvenir de Antoine Crozy, Florence Vaughan, Winona, Niagara and numerous unnamed varieties under numbers; also Queen Charlotte. The growth of the plants was above the average, especially the dwarf varieties. The amount of bloom for the season was enormous and not exceeded in any year since we have grown cannas in quantity. Following is a list of the leading varieties noted:

Abraham Lincoln, color deep crimson; large flower and truss; height six and one-half feet.

Alphonse Bouvier, this old favorite wilted in the August sun but showed up well the latter part of season; six feet.

Albino, color pink and white; three feet.

Augusta, gilt-edged, large; three feet.

Alfred Tennyson, clear pink; five feet.

Alsace, cream white; four and one-half feet.

Admiral Schley, large, gilt-edged; two feet.

Annie Laurie, pink, white throat; four feet.

Black Prince, crimson maroon, flower very large, early and very free; six feet.

Buttercup, deep, rich yellow; the best of its color on our grounds; three feet.

Baltimore, bright red, large, early; three feet.

Brilliant, yellow, lower petals striped maroon; five feet.

Blazing Torch, red; four feet.

California, large, orange, rather flimsy petals; four feet.

Chicago, scarlet; four and one-half feet.

Charles Henderson, bright red; four feet.

Conqueror, largest gilt-edged, very early and enduring; three and one-half feet.

Champion, large, scarlet; four and one-half feet.

Comte de Bouchard, spotted yellow; four feet.

Coronet, pure yellow; four feet.

Duke of Marlborough, crimson maroon; four feet.

Doctor Nansen, pure sulphur yellow, early and very free; three feet.

Duchess of Marlborough, clear pink, poor for field culture; four and one half feet.

Enchantress, pink; four feet.

Egandale, cherry red, bronze foliage, early and very effective; four feet.

Eldorado, yellow lightly dotted; four feet.

Flamingo, red, very early; three and one-half feet.

Florence Vaughan, yellow, spotted; five feet.

Fairy Queen, yellow, mottled; one and one-half feet.

Fair Persian, pink and orange; four feet.

F. R. Pierson, red, yellow throat; four feet.

Favorite, cherry red; three feet.

Florida, Queen Charlotte type; three and one-half feet.

Gloriosa, large, gilt-edged; has surpassed all former records this season; two and one-half feet.

Giant Crimson, large flower, enormous trusses; five feet.

George Washington, very large, velvety red, very early and most effective; three and one-half feet.

Janus, yellow, spotted, large; three feet.

Jacksonii, clear cherry red; three feet.

Lorraine, pink, yellow border; four feet.

Luray, pink, early and very free; four feet.

Maiden's Blush, Daybreak carnation color; three and one-half feet.

Mme. Crozy, the standard variety; four feet.

Mme. Molin, clear red; four feet.

Mlle. Berat, the French pink; five feet.

Martha Washington, large, clear pink, erect head, very effective; four feet.

Mt. Etna, Philadelphia red, bronze foliage, early bloomer; four feet.

Mrs. Fairman Rogers, gilt-edged; three feet.

Montana, cream white, large; three and one-half feet.

Niagara, very large, gilt-edged, perfect form, color deeper than Gloriosa; three feet.

Orange Queen, pure orange; two and one-half feet.

Othello, orange scarlet, bronze foliage; seven feet.

Olympia, violet pink, early; four feet.

Philadelphia, clear red; four feet.

Paul Marquant, orange scarlet; four feet.

President McKinley, bright red; three feet.

President Cleveland, scarlet; four and one-half feet.

Pillar of Fire, bright scarlet, early and very free bloomer; seven feet.

Primrose, light yellow; four feet.

Pink Ehmani, pink; five feet.

Queen Charlotte, gilt-edged; four feet.

Queen Eleanor, yellow, spotted; three feet.

Queen of Holland, pure orange, large, large bronze foliage, very free; four feet.

Rosalba, pink and white; four and one-half feet.

Rosemawr, large, pink, enormous trusses, early and very free; four feet.

Robert Christy, orange scarlet, early and free bloomer; five feet.

Shenandoah, pink, bronze foliage, a new shade in this class; four feet.

Starlight, cream white, large; four feet.

Sunset, yellow, deeper center; three feet.

Sam. Trelease, scarlet, yellow edge; three and one-half feet.

Souvenir de Antoine Crozy, bright gilt-edged, very free; four feet.

Topaz, light yellow; three feet.

Triumph, bright scarlet; three feet.

Winona, violet pink, yellow border, immense trusses; five feet.

West Grove, coral red, early, very firm flowers and foliage; six feet.

Zephyr, pink, dwarf; two feet.

Miss Kate Gray, deep orange, gold-veined, flower very large, foliage immense; six feet.

Pennsylvania is a new hybrid orchid flowering variety, color clear, pure scarlet; size the largest to date; foliage massive; height seven feet.

Allemania, Austria, Burbank, Italia and Partenope, orchid flowering varieduced the greatest amount of bloom and endured the extreme hot weather better than the orchid flowering varieties. The hybrid orchid flowering varieties Pennsylvania and Miss Kate Gray are a decided advance, having more substance in the flower, combined with a freer blooming habit.

In the bronze-leaved section several remarkable breaks in color and form have been produced. A new shade of pink, orange and pure yellow are numbered among the novelties of 1900. Only one of these will be offered in 1901. In fact, advance has been made all along the line. Those who imagine that there has been no real advance made in American varieties need only compare these side by side with the best European varieties.

And the development of the canna is only in its infancy. It is a plant easily grown from seed. Our best American strains will begin to bloom in seventy-five to ninety days from the time seed is planted. Our batch of seedlings, about 18,000, were started in the greenhouse from May 10 to 15, and as soon as they ties, all made a good growth and produced a fine crop of flowers which showed off well in the morning and on cloudy days.

From the middle of July to the close of the season, October 15, the American grown named seedlings and a limited number of the European varieties pro-were up about an inch or two they were potted into 2½-inch pots. The second week in June they were planted in the field. They gave us an average of two months of bloom this season. The most of them were very good and a few were an advance on existing varieties. Developing seedlings is slow work and quite an expense, as the numbered varieties are usually tested three years in the field before they are placed on the market.

Silver Cup for a Golden Flower.

The feature of the approaching exhibition of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, November 7 to 9, promises to be the competition for the silver cup offered by the F. R. Pierson Company for the best twelve blooms of Col. D. Appleton chrysanthemum. The gardeners upon the estates of half a dozen multi-millionaires near Tarrytown are after the trophy and some splendid blooms are sure to be staged. Col. D. Appleton is a magnificent Japanese incurved variety introduced last spring and many good judges esteem it the best yellow to date. It originated with J. R. McDonald, Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y., who sold the stock to the Pierson company. An illustration of the cup offered at the Tarrytown exhibition is herewith presented.

A Californian Flower Show.

The first chrysanthemum show at Santa Barbara, Cal., was held in early October, and the flowers which were staged were a credit to the growers, as the accompanying illustrations will show. The flowers were grown outside, with cheese cloth shelter. In form and color the blooms were very fine, with good stems and foliage.

The principal white varieties were Mrs. Robinson, Marie Louise, Queen and Mrs. Jerome Jones; in yellows, Golden Wedding, Modesto and Bonnaiffon. The pinks were fine and rich in color, Mrs. Perrin, Queen of Plumes, Princess and Eda Prass being shown in the class for single flowers.

W. H. Morse, gardener to C. B. Hale, captured the Dreer prize with three fine vases of Marie Louise, Phenomenal and Golden Wedding. In the class for fifty blooms in one vase W. H. Morse was first with Phenomenal and a few blooms of Marie Louise to break the color. W. Adair was second with Mrs. H. Robinson. J. McLeir, gardener to W. P. Gould, was third.

The Chamber of Commerce put up two fine cups for first and second for the best display of plants and flowers staged for effect, to cover 100 square feet, and this was left to the trade. W. Adair staged a fine table, well built up, and captured first; Mrs. Helmer, second, and Dr. Franceschi, third.

We had an exhibit of palm leaves with the fruit attached, each one labeled. This exhibit came from J. W. Gillespie. There were sixteen species and eighty-three varieties and this did not include many choice varieties which Mr. Gillespie owns but which were too small to cut leaves from. This exhibit won a well earned special prize.

Interest at Waban Conservatories.

The new 700-foot houses at Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., have been a center of interest since their completion and scarce a day passes without seeing a number of visitors. One of the problems in connection with such long houses that seems to interest visitors especially is that of expansion and contraction of the steam pipes. These are arranged to run on iron spools instead of the usual supports, and midway of the house a brass socket and plunger has been inserted at one of the joints, which accommodates itself automatically to the varying changes of length caused by fluctuations of temperature. Mr. Montgomery finds that the maximum expansion at fifteen pounds of steam is five and one-half inches.

These houses have been planted, one with Liberty and the other with American Beauty. It is acknowledged that the cutting of flowers from Liberty up to the present time is unwise. It is a rose the season of which will be from November till May and the intervening months should be devoted to getting a good, strong growth on the plants. The strength thus acquired would enable the rose to better withstand the attacks of black spot, a disease to which it appears to be very susceptible, and the reputation of the variety would be conserved by withholding it from the public during a season when its flowers are almost worthless. Those on their own roots appear almost free from black spot, the trouble being confined to the grafted stock.

American Beauty looks promising. A part of the stock is last year's, the roses having been replanted in fresh soil and cut back in July. The expense for new plants is thus saved and there is the additional advantage of being able to run the houses to cut from all through June, a good month always for high grade roses. These cut-back plants are now coming into flower nicely.

As usual, there are several houses of very handsome Brides and Bridesmaids, the two-year-old stock being especially fine just at present. Where the plants are older than two years they are tied down instead of being cut back. These latter are not so forward as the others. Mildew, which is so generally seen on roses coming to the market just now, is absolutely invisible. It is an unvarying doctrine with Mr. Montgomery that mildew is as bad as fire. It is a doctrine worthy of wide dissemination.

One lean-to house with a brick back wall is to be planted with Cornelia Cook. This same house turned out unrivalled specimens of this old favorite rose for many years in the past and it is believed there is still room in the market for a few of the same class.

Chrysanthemums are several days later to bloom than they were last year and have required much watchful care during the dark, foggy weather we have been passing through. Two old rose houses that are now used as grafting houses in the grafting season are filled with chrysanthemums to occupy the time in which the houses are not in use.

English Horticultural Notes.

Salvia splendens grandiflora was well shown at the Royal Horticultural Society's meeting October 9, also S. grandiflora nana, but I should not recommend the latter, for almost all the flowers dropped when removing the plants after the meeting; in fact, the ground was covered with fallen blooms before the plants were touched. The grandiflora seemed to stand better and is certainly the finest Michaelmas daisies have been extensively shown by several growers and some very good things appear among the new varieties. An interesting collection of nerines came from H. Elliott, including some new varieties, but, though very pretty, they failed to gain certificates. J. Williams staged some fine plants of chrysanthemums, including a yellow sport from Lady Fitzwygram, named after the exhibitor. This gained an award of merit. This was the only variety to receive distinction from the N. C. S., which awarded it a first-class certificate.

Some very fine tritomas were shown, T. Leichtlinii aurea and T. Triumphi gaining certificates. Dracæna Offeri is a very neat growing, highly colored, narrow leaved variety making a very handsome table plant. About two dozen varieties of houvardias were exhibited by H. B. May, dwarf, bushy plants which had evidently been grown well exposed only gold medal awarded for a chrysanthemum exhibit went to Wm. Godfrey, of Exmouth.

Gold medals were awarded to J. Laing & Sons and Spooner & Son for very fine displays of fruit. A gold medal was also awarded to H. J. Jones for a large group of flowering and foliage plants, begonias being very prominent. The exhibit also included a good collection of early flowering chrysanthemums cut from the open ground, which had been grown without being disbudded. I noted the following as being very fine exhibition varieties of chrysanthemums: Soleil d' Octobre, Mutual Friend, Mme. Von Andre, Mrs. Combes, Miss A. Byron, Lady Cranbourne, Reginald Godfrey, R. H. Pearson, Lord Coleridge, L. Humphreys, Attraction, Mrs. White Bopham and Triumph.

Begonia Caledonia is now being distributed and we shall soon see what the various growers can make of it. From the appearance of plants received I think it will prove equally as free as the type. The foliage being exactly like its parent, it will have to be labeled when it is necessary to distinguish one from the other when not in flower. It will undoubtedly become a plant of the future, for, although there are several good white begonias, the fact that the flowers hold on so well will ensure this becoming a favorite. I find female flowers are more numerous than in Gloire de Lorraine, and it will be interesting to know if they are likely to prove fertile. H.

WITH THE GROWERS.

THE FLORAL EXCHANGE, EDGELY, PA.

The illustration on page 443 is from a photograph showing a partial view of the thirty-five greenhouses of The Floral Exchange, of Philadelphia, located at Edgely, Pa., and which have become noted as the home of the new rose, Queen of Edgely, the pink American Beauty. The large houses to the left in the view, of modern construction, thirty feet wide and 225 feet long, are the palaces of the "Queen." These houses are noteworthy for the light construction and also for the glass, 16x24, all being set the twenty-four inch way. It is the rule of the firm to experiment carefully on a small scale before adopting anything new and three years ago they tried this plan on the range to the right in the view, finding only ten lights broken in 10,000 feet in three years.

The three large houses in the center of the view were built this year and are called the Colonial house, as thirteen beds, each named after one of the original states, are planted with Brides and Bridesmaids. This house, of which an interior view is given, replaced five of the oldest houses on the place. It is eighty feet wide and 100 feet long, with iron gutters and iron supports, making it as light as day. In constructing this house, old glass 12x16 was used on the north and new glass, 16x24, on the south side, set the twenty-four inch way. The use of material from the old houses brought the cost of the house down to a little over one-third of the cost of a new house, and it is infinitely superior to the old houses, requiring 2400 feet less piping than in the old range.

The entire establishment is given up to roses, Meteor for some years being a specialty. There are many novel features on the place, the arrangement of heating appliances being of much interest to par-variety of the winter flowering salvias we have. Ficus radicans variegata, was exhibited in pots and baskets by Hill & Son and it is a most effective plant.

Captain Halford contributed a splendid collection of autumn-tinted foliage, certainly one of the brightest displays we have ever seen. The bright, rosy tinted foliage is coming much more in use than formerly and I might here mention that the chrysanthemum exhibits arranged for effect with colored foliage were a great feature at the National Chrysanthemum Society's October show.

to the sun. If growers would bear in mind that they cannot have too much sun, and that they like plenty of air, bouvardias would be more appreciated and would flower pretty well throughout the winter. Another cactus dahlia received an award; it was named Venus, by far the finest white yet seen.

The October show of the National Chrysanthemum Society was generally considered the best early show the society has ever had, but, as mentioned before, there were few new varieties of note. Ettie Mitchell may be regarded as a useful early variety for market work. The ties who are troubled with water in fire holes. This being a source of much annoyance for many years, all the returns are now run back by gravity to a receiving tank and lifted by a small pump, working automatically, into the different boilers, all of which are several feet above the level of the pit. The boilers aggregate about 700 horse-power and the reserve coal pile is 500 tons, the wisdom of which was proved during the present coal strike.

The superintendent has devised a novel appliance, by which an electric bell in his bedroom notifies him when the steam on the boilers gets above or below specified points. The cooling room, of which a full description, with plans, was given in our issue of August 18, is a most important adjunct to the establishment, which shows in every detail and arrangement, much thought for the handling of a large business. Records are kept of the cut of every house, by which it is easy to learn in a moment the cut of any house for any day in the year, or for any part of a day, if desired.

The nurseries were founded in the early seventies by the late Dr. Edw. Morwitz and later carried on by his son, Jos. Morwitz, under the management of D. Fuerstenberg. At present, The Floral Exchange is an incorporated concern, of which Mr. Fuerstenberg is president and H. C. Geiger, is secretary. Harry Simpson, who discovered the pink American Beauty in the Edgely nurseries, is the superintendent. Plans are now being made for the addition of 25,000 feet of glass in a single house on the lines of the Colonial house, which so far proves to be a fine house for roses. By purchasing the materials in the winter and getting everything painted and cut to shape, the firm finds that a very considerable saving is made and the house erected in good time for early planting. NO RELIEF FOR THE CONGESTED MARKET.—TOO MANY FLOWERS AND TOO FEW BUYERS.—ROSES SUFFER WORST OF ALL.—NO FIXED VALUE FOR ANY LINE OF STOCK.—VARIOUS NOTES.

No rift appears yet in the clouds, either the material ones or the symbolic, and as the colored roses grow paler and softer under the effect of continued cloudy skies, so also do spirits droop and patience flag under the influence of an overloaded and unresponsive market. There is practically no change in market conditions from those indicated in our brief note of last week. So monotonous has this state of affairs become that the apathy of buyers is no longer remarked and the prevalent dullness has ceased to be a matter of discussion when dealers meet.

On chrysanthemums, with the exception of a limited number of large specimen blooms there is no fixed value. They are now coming in by the thousands, the varieties bringing best price being Robinson and any good yellow. A few Bonnaffons, Ivories and Pink Ivories are beginning to show up. All roses are suffering severely from the unfavorable weather. Beauty is still a laggard, values having now dropped on all grades and on other varieties a price of $4 to $5 a thousand in bulk as received from the growers is a not uncommon price.

Carnations are becoming more plentiful every day and, from all accounts, there will be more than enough of these and yellow chrysanthemums to supply all demands for the paraders on Saturday. Violets continue far below the standard of valuation for this time of the year, the bad weather injuring their sale for street wear. A very few especially fine blooms in bunches of 100 are bringing, with an effort, $1.25 to $1.50 per hundred. The balance will not average over one-third that figure.

Lily of the valley is being received in enormous quantities and moves only at prices too low to be mentioned. Cattleyas are scarcer and have advanced in price. Dendrobium formosum giganteum is abundant at low figures.

The "plan and scope" committee of the New York Florists' Club met on Monday evening and organized permanently with Walter F. Sheridan for chairman and Alex. Wallace, secretary. A sub-committee was appointed to look into the matter of securing a suitable building in which to hold an exhibition in 1901.

MARKET OVERLOADED WITH ALL CLASSES OF MATERIAL—BIG ORDERS MAKE NO IMPRESSION ON STOCKS ON HAND.—CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW SCHEDULED FOR NEXT WEEK.—NOVELTIES TO BE SHOWN.—VARIOUS NOTES AMONG THE TRADE.

Enormous quantities of flowers are piled into this market daily at present, far in excess of the necessities, and the only disposition possible with much of the stock under the very weak demand now existing is through the medium of the street boys at prices that are unquotable. The wholesalers are doing all they can with the situation, holding the stock and caring for it so long as it keeps presentable before sacrificing it, in hopes that a change in weather or diminution of the supply through some means may offer a way out of the difficulty, but the greater part of it has to go eventually at anything it will bring. Two large orders in one establishment, one of them for 10,000 roses, were filled without making any noticeable impression on the accumulated material and either of the orders might be duplicated several times from the stocks on hand.

Next week is the time set for the annual chrysanthemum show at Horticultural Hall. No doubt it will be equal to any of its predecessors and will be visited by many strangers. Among the novelties exhibited will be the Queen of Edgely rose from the Floral Exchange, of Philadelphia, and Begonia Caledonia from R. & J. Farquhar & Co. It will be the last chrysanthemum show in the old halls. There was a small exhibition last Saturday, when M. H. Walsh again showed his new rose, Flush o' Dawn, and Mrs. Gill exhibited a group of chrysanthemums. George Hollis showed flowers of Chrysanthemum Peerless.

M. B. Bunker, who has conducted the flower stand in the Parker House for a number of years, is about to open and move to a new store at the corner of Beacon street and Tremont place.

N. F. McCarthy has sold a large tract of land which he purchased at Egypt, Mass., a few weeks ago, at an advance of fifty per cent on the price paid.

WARM WEATHER FORCES STOCK ALONG AT A GREAT RATE.—ACCUMULATIONS INEVITABLE AND PRICES WILT.—QUOTATIONS FOR GILT-EDGED STOCK — THE LIBERTY ROSE PROMISING WELL — VARIOUS NOTES.

Things are going from bad to worse, there being nothing in the shape of cool weather to hold the flowers in check. The plants are blooming away without seeming to care what is to become of the buds, and causing their owners any amount of trouble. The cold boxes are everywhere full to the doors and the only happy faces are those of the takirs, who are fattening their bank accounts at a great rate. Violets, American Beauty roses and carnations are their favorites and the great armloads and basketsful they carry about the streets are a sight to behold. As to prices, they are knocked into "smithereens." No reasonable offer is refused, as the accumulation must be moved somehow. To add to the load, the chrysanthemums are now putting themselves forward and trying to get to the front. They have succeeded in a measure, as the windows in most of the stores are filled with them. Some dealers, however, draw the line at the chrysanthemum as a window flower, keeping this important section for choicer stock, such as Beauties, orchids and violets.

Trade the past few days has been very quiet, nearly all the retailers complaining. There were some coming-out teas last week, but they seem now to be postponed for awhile. Nobody sees much in sight until after the election, which event, if Bryan and McKinley are elected, will no doubt give all hands a busy season. Prices, that is those asked, are about as last week; $3 to $5 for teas; $1 to $3 per dozen for Beauties. This is for gilt-edged stock and anything just short of this goes begging and can be had at job lot prices. Carnations are also slumpy in price and $1 to $1.50 will buy about the best, although a few extras bring a little more. Lily of the valley sells for $3 to $4, but for the latter figure it must be extra fine. Violets can be had for almost any price; 50 cents is about high for good doubles, while the singles are very cheap. Chrysanthemums are coming in very fast and prices are sagging in consequence; they range from $4 to $20 per hundred, the latter price for the extra choice.

The Liberty rose seems a lively topic just at present. The past week has seen quite a few more of the flowers about and some good stock is to be had. Growers say that the plants have improved considerably of late and now look very promising. Meteors have been exceptionally good this fall, and at this stage it takes a good rose to beat them; in fact they have ranked next to Beauty, but from now on the bull-heads will commence to appear and, as the Liberty will get better as the plants grow stronger, it is claimed it will more than satisfy those who have had the faith to try it.

Plants in flower are a little late, but the stocks of the various growers look well, although not over-abundant. Robert Craig's house of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is a sight worth going miles to see. The plants are a very even lot and are rapidly coming into flower. A house of cyclamens also looks well.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's fall show promises well. Secretary Rust says the entries are coming in fast and that the quality of the flowers and plants shown will be fully up to the average of previous seasons. K.

MARKET OVERBURDENED BY THE UNPRECEDENTED CUT OF ROSES.—AMPLE SUPPLIES IN ALL LINES—HEAVY BUSINESS FROM THE SOUTH.—ROSES BY THE CARLOAD.—EVERYTHING PROPITIOUS FOR THE FLOWER SHOW.—PLANS FOR THE CLUB BANQUET.—CHANGES IN THE WHOLESALE MARKET—VARIOUS ITEMS OF VARYING INTEREST.

The glut! The glut! Not in many years has this market been so clogged with material as within the past ten days. Roses, in particular, have been in tremendous over-supply and the growers have received very inadequate returns. It seems that every rose house in this territory, and there are a great many more of them than there were last year, is in full crop, because of the warm and pleasant weather. The result is that, although sales are large, the legitimate demand makes very little impression upon the unwieldy bulk of each day's consignments. Any wholesaler or commission man can these days supply a thousand roses and never miss them from his stock. The result is that the fakir is a man of eminence in the community. The All Saint's day demand from New Orleans came as a saving clause on Monday, and it is estimated by good authorities that that day's shipments were as great in bulk as those of any one day in recent years. Every house in town enjoyed its share of the business, but while it was necessary that the Illinois Central put an extra express car on each of its south-bound trains Monday night, the demand was not sufficient to produce any effect on market prices; it merely served to clean out the market fairly well for one day. Even with nearly two carloads of roses going out, it was not necessary for any wholesaler to make extra effort to fill his orders. The only skirmishing required was in connection with the orders for chrysanthemums, some of which ran up to 1,500 blooms. Carnations are holding their own much better than roses but chrysanthemums are suffering. The warm weather has brought along the crop with remarkable rapidity in the last few days, and prices have gone down proportionately. Extra fine stock still commands $4 per dozen, and on Wednesday ten blooms of Col. D. Appleton sold for a five-dollar bill, but the general tendency has thus far been downward. There is this about it, however, if the warm weather continues the chrysanthemum crop will be out of the way quite a little earlier than usual. Violets are not cutting so much figure as they did a few days ago. The storm of Halloween night cleared off cold and every one is hoping that the seasonable weather will remain with us; it will cut down production, improve qualities, add life to trade and strength to the market.

Last Sunday morning the mutilated body of Anton Lizl was found in the woods not far from the greenhouses of Brant & Noe, where the murdered man had been in charge of a range of Beauty houses. Geo. Dolinski, a relative, was arrested for the murder, which was committed Saturday night as Lizl was on his way from the greenhouses to his home, where a three months' bride awaited his coming. Jealousy is supposed to have been the cause of the crime. Mr. Brant speaks highly of the murdered man and says that he was a very competent grower.

Walter Retzer & Co. have been at work upon their boiler room until it is now one of the best in the trade. Their establishment was short of heat last winter but there will be no such difficulty this season. One of the new features is a smoke consumer, made necessary by the many protests, in past winters, of the nearby residents. Their houses are full of nice stock, including a big shipment of azaleas, just arrived, and the firm will be in evidence at the show next week.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. are not only having a fine wholesale trade in these autumn days but are doing a large amount of decorative work from their two retail stores. They think that their exhibitions at the flower show bring them a great deal of this work, and they are making preparations to make their usual good showing next week in the classes for decorative plants and cut flower arrangement. They have some exceptionally well grown specimen plants this season.

Andrew McAdams has a number of hybrid hibiscuses raised from seed produced by his old partner, John Good, who is now living on the Indian river, down in southern Florida. Mr. McAdams thinks that the hibiscus will regain its popularity at no far distant date, and expects to get something worth while out of this batch of seedlings, although the plants have not yet reached a stage at which their value can be determined.

Mangel has had a very attractive window this week, the central feature being a vase of huge blooms of Col. D. Appleton chrysanthemum. He also had a vase of a red seedling rose, which bore a card informing the public that the variety "lasts longer than any other rose." Another feature of the window has been a number of plants of Cattleya labiata in bloom.

They have been planting bulbs at the parks this week and many thousands of tulips and hyacinths have been put in. Just now there is a very fair crop of mushrooms in South Park, the result of favorable weather conditions. The neighbors are harvesting the esculents and have not yet gathered toadstools by mistake.

The Florists' Club's annual banquet will be held in the Egyptian Hall of the Auditorium Hotel at seven o'clock on the evening of next Thursday, November 8. Tickets may be obtained from W. N. Rudd at any time at the flower show. There will be a considerable number of guests from out of town.

Show preparations are progressing apace and the prospects are for a splendid exhibition. A big force of workmen will begin to lay the false floor in the Auditorium theatre at the close of the Thomas concert to-night and by Monday morning the hall will be ready to receive exhibits.

The flower booth at the show will be under the management of the Florists' Club and will be conducted for the benefit of the Galveston florists. Anyone wishing to contribute stock can send it to P. J. Hauswirth for the committee.

E. C. Amling has received a number of fine blooms of Chrysanthemum Monrovia from Gannar Teilmann, the Marion, Ind., grower, who has made a reputation by his success with Major Bonnafon. Mr. Teilmann writes that next year he proposes to grow Monrovia extensively.

W. E. Lynch, who has long been identified with the wholesale cut flower business in Chicago, closed his commission house, at 64 Wabash avenue, on October 29 to assume the management of the cut flower department of E. H. Hunt.

The florists of Louisville are figuring that the approaching twenty-eighth triennial conclave of the Knights Templar will bring them more than $20,000 worth of business. This is a tip for Chicago wholesalers.

One of the week's visitors has been A. Dimmock, of Sander & Co., St. Albans, England, who reports a very nice trade in new plants, orchids, palms and the numerous specialties for which his firm is noted.

The Florists' Club met last night and, after the new officers had been installed, J. S. Wilson read a paper on the Boston fern and W. S. Heffron one on the best methods of packing and shipping cut flowers.

Mons Olson, who has for some years had charge of the flower department of E. H. Hunt, is now with J. A. Budlong, where increasing trade has made the necessity for an augmented force.

Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., have sent some very fine blooms of Chrysanthemum Goldmine to J. B. Deamud. This is the variety which captured the C. S. A. cup last year.

J. N. Jakobsen is back from Denver, where he spent the summer. Mr. Jakobsen was formerly associated with Fred. Hills, at Maywood, and now contemplates remaining here.

W. J. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was in town this week and we hope he will arrive at the goal of his ambition, the judgeship of the superior court in this county.

Walter Retzer has filed suits for damages aggregating $55,000 in the circuit court against A. B. Everett, Louis Gregor and E. R. Tauch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Budlong have returned from a two months' trip, visiting friends in New York, Providence and Boston.

Albert Fuchs is enroute home from Europe, where he has spent the summer, and is expected in Chicago early next week.

C. J. Reardon has returned from Calumet, Mich., where he assisted in starting a new florists' business this fall.

E. E. Pieser is on duty with the Kennicott Bros. Co. again this week, but is not yet fully recovered from his illness.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn had been quite ill for a number of days past.

STATE OF TRADE, BOTH WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.—RANGE OF PRICES.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

Trade is reported as very good in the upper part of the town, especially in cut flowers, but down town the sales are not many. Roses sell at $1.50 per dozen in best grades. Beauties and large chrysanthemums bring from $3 to $6 a dozen and tuberoses, of which there are a few, are selling at from 5 cents to 10 cents. The wholesalers report a medium sale, roses bringing all the way from $1 to $4 per hundred, carnations 75 cents to $1.50 for fancy stock. Chrysanthemums are sold for 3 cents and 4 cents for the small ones and 20 cents for fancy and large blooms. Violets are coming in quite plentifully and are wholesaling at 25 cents per hundred.

By order of Park Commissioner Ridgely, all the roses of the different city parks are to be cut and sent to the city and private hospitals in a few days. Superintendent Pape thinks there will be about 3,500 roses cut if no heavy rains occur. Water hyacinths are the only other thing that is not taken in, but the people have been allowed to collect them for the last few days and at present very few are left.

The new greenhouses at Shaw's Garden are completed and the plants will soon be moved into them. The planting of the twenty-acre extension of the garden is being carried on as fast as possible and about 5,000 plants have been set, of the 20,000 that are to go in. This extension is to be planted entirely to North American trees and shrubs.

The horse show is now open and along Grand avenue the florists claim it is bringing trade. Geo. Waldbart says that the whole season has been good, as the proceeds of this summer and fall are much better than last year during the same months.

The eleventh annual banquet to gardeners, florists and nurserymen, provided for in the will of Henry Shaw, is to be given this year at the Mercantile Club, St. Louis, on November 3.

It is hoped that now, as the cool weather starts, we will have a better attendance at the alleys, so that we can be in trim for next year's meeting of the S. A. F.

There is an excellent prospect for a good chrysanthemum show this year. It will take place November 14 to 16 in the Music Hall of the Exposition Building.

F. J. Foster will soon move to his new stand at the corner of Eighth and Olive streets. He has a nice store and ought to have a good trade.

The Michel Plant and Bulb Company had the decoration, last week, of the "Boston," the new department store that has just opened.

The Eggeling Floral Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $3,000. We hope that the new company has good luck.

J. M. Kimberlin and son, of California, were recent visitors. M.

BUSINESS POOR BECAUSE OF WARMTH.—GOOD STOCK AT THE FLOWER MARKET.—SEEN IN THE WINDOWS.—FIVE FLORISTS TO ONE BLOCK.

Business the past week, owing to the very warm weather, was very poor. The thermometer would run up to 80° in the shade during the day. The commission houses were loaded down with fine roses, chrysanthemums and lily of the valley Saturday evening at closing time and very few orders came in. The flower market presented a beautiful sight Saturday afternoon, some very good plants and flowers being shown. Noticeable among them were some fine pot chrysanthemums and Pteris tremula on Julius Schumann's stand and some fine Boston ferns and Enquirer carnations at Richard Witterstaetter's.

Our store men are now decorating their windows in great shape. Peterson had a novel display last week. In one window he showed some fine Cattleya

*labiata*s and Oncidium varicosum Rodgersii with Adiantum Farleyense, and his other window was decorated with autumn foliage. The whole thing was very attractive and received a great deal of favorable comment. Sunderbruch & Sons have displayed some fine Robinson and Mrs. E. G. Hill chrysanthemums, together with Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, Adiantum cuneatum and a large Areca lutescens for background. Julius Baer has had four of Kiff's flower holders filled with lily of the valley, carnations and roses suspended from the ceiling, with a large vase of Robinson chrysanthemums set in a group of fine palms. By the way, Julius is getting his store fixed up in great shape and if he keeps on will some day have the "swellest" place in town.

We now have five stores in one square on Fourth street between Main and Walnut streets. Among the new comers are J. W. Rodgers and Hardesty & Co. One of the florists is said to have suggested that they get together and have their boxes all labeled, naming that square "florists' square." Wouldn't that jar you?

About the only thing doing this week in society was the opening ball at the Phoenix Club. Sunderbruch had the decorations and about a dozen bouquets for the same. D.

VERY LITTLE TRADE EXCEPT FOR MATRIMONIAL OR MORTUARY EVENTS.—STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The weddings and receptions scheduled for October came off as per arrangements, and several have called forth a goodly number of flowers, but the steady sale of cut flowers with the usual scarcity always found in October, has been lacking because of summer-like weather, and we find Bridesmaid, Bride and Meteor in very good supply. Kaiserin, while not so plentiful, is still good. American Beauties have dropped off in sale, not on account of supply or quality, but, I think, because of the supply of chrysanthemums, although they are not yet over-plentiful. Carnations are not too plentiful and what are coming are good. Guenther, of Hamburg, and Brookins, of Orchard Park, have by far the best.

New York, I see, gives carnations to the McKinley parade. We not only bought our chrysanthemums, but walked behind them in the sound money parade of 1896. Why should florists give flowers away when they pay two prices for coaches and other innumerable things only used to excess at election time? We trust that some election bets will be paid in flowers, not all in candy, gloves and theatre tickets.

William Scott, who has just returned from an extended trip east, is about to depart for St. Louis, Toronto and back to Elmira to judge chrysanthemums and talk Pan-American Exposition, as he can do to the edification of all.

W. J. Palmer & Son had a very large wedding last week. About 300 palms, together with wild smilax, chrysanthemums and orchids made a grand showing, as large, if not larger, than any other this fall.

Kasting has about completed the alterations in his store and ended up by installing a cash system which is equal to his hustling place of business.

C. S. Ford, Jr., of Philadelphia, was here last week, followed by Walter Mott, of Drear's. W. A.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

ALREADY there is a list of losses as the result of fires due to defective heating apparatus.

FOREHANDED, careful florists are buying their Christmas stocks of decorative plants while they can be shipped safely and economically.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the publication of a new supplement to Nicholson's "Dictionary of Gardening." Two volumes will be issued, of which the first is now ready.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society of England a pale yellow sport of Chrysanthemum Lady Fitzwygram was given an award of merit under the name of Mrs. James Williams.

W. N. RUDD says that Col. D. Appleton is apparently the best yellow chrysanthemum to date. With the color of Golden Wedding, dwarfier habit, extra large size of blooms and vigorous, healthy growth, it probably approaches nearer the ideal chrysanthemum than any other yellow variety in the trade.

DR. L. WITTMACK, who will be remembered by horticulturists in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition, of Chicago, has lately celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as secretary of the Prussian Horticultural Society. The event was celebrated by a number of valuable presents, complimentary addresses and a reception.

Its Up To the Retailer.

Robert Craig said a good thing in his bantering, genial way when he asked the reason for there being only four roses on the florists' list to-day and queried: "Is it want of intellect on the part of the retailer," to which he himself replied by an emphatic "No; for," said he, "we poor growers run up against the retailer every day and always get the worst of it, so we know it isn't the want of intellect; but I think rather it is intellect expended in a wrong direction."

And then the speaker went on to show in the most convincing way that if the retailer would put half his beating-down energy into talking intelligently to his customers and getting them interested in other flowers besides the everlasting four, he would not only afford a blissful relief to the grower but would undoubtedly increase and diversify his business. A florist should really be something above the mere dealer, should partake somewhat of the spirit of the cultured professions, and be broad enough to build for next year and the year after.

Society of American Florists.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, register new Lilliputian canna, Little Gem; flowers orange scarlet, each petal lightly edged with yellow; very dwarf and compact, the extreme height to tip rarely exceeding two feet.

WM. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

A Question of Ethics.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Is it a violation of the code for a florist, on learning of a death, to go or send an agent to the home and friends of the deceased for the purpose of securing orders for designs and funeral flowers? Please give full details of what is permissible under the circumstances.

S. B.

[The practice of seeking funeral orders by direct solicitation is commonly known as "crape chasing" and is not only in very bad taste but is a poor business policy for one who aspires to anything better.—Ed.]

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

Following are the reports of the committees judging seedlings and sports:

Boston, October 27.—George Hollis, South Weymouth, Mass., exhibited Peerless, a white Japanese variety, scoring commercial scale 85 points. This variety was judged as an early one, as the flowers shown could have been cut a week or two weeks earlier, or as early as Bergmann.

Cincinnati, O., October 27.—Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., exhibited Omega, a canary yellow, reflexed Japanese variety, which scored commercial scale 79 points, exhibition scale 81 points.

The scale for judging plants and blooms of chrysanthemums, in its entirety, is as follows:

Scale A.—Scale of points for bush plants and standards. Single specimen, or any number up to six, in an exhibition where the class under consideration does not form the chief feature in the exhibition hall.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIAND, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

STEELE, BRIGGS & Co., Toronto, have purchased the seed business of Robert Evans & Co., Hamilton, Ont.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—The following seed growers met here on October 18 to consider prices for the coming season: S. M. Pease and W. B. Grey, of Cape Vincent; W. A. Dennison, of Ellisburg; F. M. Williams and M. B. Swan, of Belleville.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—The A. A. Berry Seed Company's new storage plant is about complete. It is a four story brick building with ample capacity for storing seeds and bulbs of every description. The firm expects to send out over 40,000 catalogues next season.

Washington.

AUTUMN WEATHER HOLDS SUMMER FLOWERS.—CANNAS ARE EXCELLENT.—NOTES IN THE TRADE.

After a few light frosts the weather has been very pleasant. Some of the cannas that were somewhat sheltered from the winds are blooming and making a better show than during the hot summer months. On the last day of October, Mrs. Kate Gray, Luray, Chicago, Allemania, Olympia, Duke of Marlborough, Martha Washington, Victory, Mount Etna, America, Red Indian and Souvenir de Antoine Crozy were fine. Dahlias are exceedingly good. All this has a tendency to keep prices down on indoor flowers.

The American Rose Company is cutting some fine chrysanthemums. J. Louis Loose is bringing in some fine violets.

Adolph Minder, of Minder Bros., has been confined to his bed for several weeks with typhoid fever, but is convalescent.

Charles W. Wolf, lately with A. Gude & Bro., is now with Z. D. Blackstone. P. G.

Owosso, MICH.—H. B. Deal has grown 1000 chrysanthemums, each to two blooms and has them in fine shape.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA.—Gustave Obermeyer will offer his new canna, West Virginia, in 1902. It is a dwarf variety, the flowers crimson, gilt edged.

PITTSBURG, PA.—It is estimated that 15,000 persons on last Sunday visited Phipps conservatory to view the chrysanthemum display which Superintendent Falconer opened that day.

WILBUR A. CHRISTY, Kinsmen, O.

SEVERAL very large shipments of JAPAN LONGIFLORUM have arrived in very bad condition—more than half of the bulbs having been lost by heating. This large loss will make a scarcity in this article, and probably many dealers will be unable to fill their orders in full. If you do not succeed in getting your full supplies, we have still to offer a fine lot of

These Bulbs are in splendid shape. We can supply them at $14 PER CASE; 350 Bulbs to the case. We also have a fine stock of

LILIUM HARRISII
7-9 inch size is generally scarce, but we have a very fine stock of this size still on hand—a lot of bulbs that were left in the ground and dug late, and in consequence they are in grand shape. Bulbs are plump, bright and clean, and as fine a lot of Harrisii as anyone would want to handle. We can supply these, as long as unsold, as follows:
5-7's, 400 bulbs to the case, only $16 per case. 7-9's, 200 bulbs to the case, only $18 per case.
Order at once before we are sold out.

We also offer a very fine stock of

Extra quality bulbs, 12-15 ctm., in case lots, 2100 bulbs to the case, $16.00 per 1000.

Paper White Narcissus Grandiflora

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
 THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
 GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

W. E. FREYER is building a large storage cellar and packing house at his nursery at Kasson, Minn.

THE American Association of Nurserymen will make another attempt to obtain a national inspection law during the next congress.

It is an interesting fact that the Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., handled about 520 carloads of stock during the past season.

A SPECIAL commission has reported to the city authorities of New Haven that the elms for which that city has been famous are rapidly approaching extinction.

THE Farmers' Nursery Co., of Phoneton, O., has lost heavily through an agent in Champaign county, Ohio, to whom it paid commissions on fictitious orders.

Toronto.

INCREASING BUSINESS ACTIVITY.—WELCOME FOR RETURNING WARRIORS.—PLANS FOR NEXT WEEK'S SHOW.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Increasing activity in all branches of the trade is decidedly in evidence and it bids fair to become a record season for all. It is the eve of the return of the boys from the South African veldt, after an absence of nearly a year, and they return covered with glory and honor well earned. A right royal welcome awaits them for the city is putting on its gala attire. Business will practically be suspended and triumphant arches are to be seen on all the principal thoroughfares.

The secretary of the club has received a letter from Wm. Scott, of Buffalo, accepting an invitation to act as judge for the show. Some dissatisfaction is felt at having the show open November 7, as most growers say their best chrysanthemums will not be in by that date, but the executive committee has decided to run a wire into the Pavilion and post the returns of the election on that date, as they expect it will prove a great drawing card.

Lord Strathcona was tendered a banquet in the Pavilion on Monday night and the decorations were spoken of as being the finest ever seen in Toronto. Large yellow chrysanthemums were used with beautifully colored maple leaves.

Miller & Son, of Bracondale, have bought Mr. McKerrigan's store.

Fred. Brown is going to open a branch on Yonge street in a few days.

Mr. Thomas, of Queen street, West, wants to sell out. H. G. D.

SKOWHEGAN, ME.—H. R. Mitchell & Son will shortly remove their store to a new and better location.

BELTON, PA.—J. F. Winkler has his place in very good shape and will send out some choice stock this season.

PEACEDALE, R. I.—James A. Tefft has been very ill for some time but his condition now promises ultimate recovery.

ANDOVER, MASS.—The annual exhibition of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club will be held in the Town Hall on November 8 and 9.

INDIAN SUMMER RUNS INTO CHYSANTHEMUM SEASON WITH DISASTROUS RESULTS. —MARKET VERY DULL.

The unseasonable weather Cleveland has been enjoying for the past month is certainly not of any benefit to the unhappy florist. When cannas, geraniums and even coleus out of doors hardly show signs of the advent of November, the outlook for the florist with chrysanthemums coming on in full force, roses in full crop, and carnations beginning to come in full bloom, is certainly a rather gloomy one. And that is the present situation. Dahlias, cosmos and other backyard favorites are curtailing the market, while the weather remains simply phenomenal in warmth. There has not been the first sign of frost. In the meantime good flowers of all sorts that cost money to grow are hardly salable at any price. All that can be done is to hold on and hope for frost, for which the indications are at present not at all favorable.

A recent visitor has been A. Wiegand, of Indianapolis. A.

PLEASANT WEATHER PROVES UNPLEASANT FOR GROWERS.—FLORISTS ASSIST COMRADE AT AN ANNIVERSARY.

Much to the dislike of growers, we have had most beautiful warm weather up to date, with but one little touch of frost; consequently flowers of all kinds are plentiful, especially roses and chrysanthemums, and low prices prevail. Fortunately there is a good demand and the stock is all absorbed. Violets, which were plentiful and comparatively good this time last year, are yet away behind regarding flowers.

October 25 thirteen florists enjoyed the hospitality of Robert McKeand at his residence in Garfield Park. On that day Mr. and Mrs. McKeand were celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding. Among other presents was a chair from their florist friends. In his address of thanks Mr. McKeand had much to say of the kindness and true friendship shown to him by his fellow florists, to which he said was due the larger part of his success in life, especially in this city, but we all knew better, for a man as good natured, broad minded and expert in his calling cannot help make friends and be successful. Excellent spirits prevailed during the evening and a political discussion between Messrs. Langstaff and Hukriede was an especially entertaining feature.

William Bertermann has returned from Germany. H. J.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y.—At three o'clock on the morning of October 18 the four greenhouses of Mrs. Mathias Olm were destroyed by a fire due to defective heating apparatus. The place will be rebuilt.

WIDE AWAKE FLORISTS ARE PUTTING IN THEIR CHRISTMAS STOCK OF PLANTS

Before cold weather, thereby taking advantage of low freight rates and the following very reasonable quotations for well-grown, strong, healthy Palms, Ferns and Decorative Plants. Our stock is still complete and we can make shipments at once. We offer these plants in comparison with the stock and prices of other growers.

Nephrolepis Wittboldii is meeting with a warm welcome far and wide over the country. We think it every whit as good as the Boston Fern, if not quite a little better, and some of the very best growers are sharing in our enthusiasm. We are sending plants daily to almost every state in the Union, but Nephrolepis Wittboldii propagates very rapidly and we can still offer strong rooted runners, for 3-inch and 4-inch pots, for shipment upon receipt of order. Introductory price, $1 each; $10 a dozen; $75 per 100.

VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE METROPOLIS OF MARYLAND.—DOINGS OF PARK BOARD.—PLANS OF HORTICULTURISTS.

The third annual meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society will be held in Baltimore, December 20 and 21. There will be a large exhibition. Addresses will be made by Prof. L. H. Bailey, of Cornell University; by J. H. Hale, the New Englander who has become the peach king of Georgia, and by Roland Morrill, the Benton Harbor, Mich., seed and fruit grower.

The park board is expending between $4,000 and $5,000 in the erection of several propagating houses in Carroll, Patterson and Clifton Parks, which will affect a saving of fully $5,000 a year hereafter. During the winter the board expects to propagate 550,000 stock plants for the different parks and squares.

Sam'l Feast & Sons are preparing to leave the stand where they have been for many years, and take a building adjoining that of Halliday Bros., one block farther up Charles street. They are very busy just now making the needful alterations.

Quite a glut of white roses is on, and complaints of dull trade are general; in fact, the quiet, deserted appearance of the retail localities, proclaims the fact more convincingly than the lips of the proprietors. MACK.

AURORA, ILL.—A. Warimont, gardener at the C. B. & Q. greenhouses, has a pure white seedling chrysanthemum which he expects to exhibit at the Chicago show.

To be in time for our grand Autumn Number which will be issued November 10, your special advertisement should be mailed now to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Wheeling, W. Va.

Hess a Benedict and the owner of well filled houses.—TRADE GOOD, CONSIDERING THE SEASON.—NOTES OF THE GROWERS.

Max L. Hess is wreathed in smiles and as happy as the proverbial lark. And no wonder; his chrysanthemums are the talk of the town, such varieties as Mrs. Robinson, Glory of Pacific, Monarch, Henderson and others having surpassed his own expectations, while his carnations are doing nobly. Nor is there any complaint about roses. A stroll through his range of houses proved quite interesting, everything about the establishment showing care, neatness and order. There is, however, another more potent reason, for Mr. Hess' happy frame of mind. His beautiful home is no longer the abode of the lonely bachelor. Max has embarked upon the sea of matrimony, having married Miss Anna Hess on August 8. Congratulations are still in order.

L. A. Smith has added a good sized, up-to-date house to his range, which is filled to the brim with azaleas, palms and rubbers. Mr. Smith has no complaints to make, save one. He thinks that August weather during the latter part of October is altogether out of place. There is not a business man who will dispute it.

Franz Laupp has given his houses an overhauling and is growing more carnations than heretofore. He also grows a large quantity of bulbous stock. Business, considering the weather, the election, or the uncertainty thereof, has been quite brisk and encouraging.

W. F. Zane & Son seem well equipped to meet the demands of their increased cut flower trade. Bedding and all sorts of decorative plants are still the leading features of their business, but they have of late added cut flowers and have found it a paying branch. NOMIS.

NORTHFIELD, MASS.—Jas. Field and Frank Perould have rented the greenhouse of Mrs. John Morgan.

Elmira, N. Y.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM RETAINS ITS POPULARITY.—LARGE SUPPLIES AT HAND — THE ANNUAL SHOW.—SCOTT TO JUDGE.—NOTES.

The chrysanthemum seems to retain its popularity among the Elmira growers. John Rudy, gardener for Hon. J. S. Fassett, has a house full of very fine ones, among them two or three yellows not yet disseminated that are very promising. His roses and general stock are also clean and thrifty. The soil on this place is a very heavy clay, but by working in plenty of manure, and with proper attention to watering, Mr. Rudy has been able to grow some of the finest hardy roses and beds of cannas to be found in the country.

Grove P. Rawson has more chrysanthemums than ever this year and has made arrangements for satisfactorily disposing of the blooms. He has several seedlings that will probably have a commercial future before them. G. H. Crane and Marquis carnations are planted largely at Mr. Rawson's and are looking well.

The Elmira Board of Trade presented to the horticultural society a valuable silver cup to be offered as a premium for the best seedling chrysanthemum exhibited at the fall show, to be held one year. It was won by Mr. Rawson last year. He will be after it this year but will have considerable competition. The show is to be held November 14 and 15 and Wm. Scott, of Buffalo, is to act as judge.

The usual amount of rebuilding and repairing has gone on this season. E. M. & H. N. Hoffman have rebuilt two houses, putting in larger glass and rearranging the benches to get better light. They are filled with carnations that are looking fine. America, Bon Ton, White Cloud, Lawson and Ethel Crocker are doing well with them. Violets and roses are also strong and prolific.

J. E. Anthony, formerly gardener for Gen. Magee, of Watkins, is now in charge of F. L. LaFrance's greenhouses and is getting things in fine shape.

George Backer started in the florist business a year ago with three houses, and has added two more houses and a large boiler this season. E.

THE EXHIBITIONS.

Chicago.

The tenth annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago is drawing to a close after a period during which the attendance has not been commensurate with the many merits of the exhibition, although the display, as was expected, because of the unpropitious season, has not been up to the very high standard set last year. It has been an exhibition a large measure of the success of which is due to the efforts of the retail florists. The unfavorable weather conditions prevailing all autumn have had their effect upon all classes of flowering plants and both cut blooms and specimen plants of chrysanthemums are hardly as numerous nor as excellent as in previous seasons, although some very fancy stock was shown.

Those in attendance, while their number was not so great as was to have been hoped, have been unstinting in their praise of the exhibition management and the artistic effects in the staging produced by Superintendent Miller and his corps of assistants. The center of the great hall was occupied, as last year, by the exhibit of Mrs. Geo. M. Pullman (J. Algots, gardener), but this was not entered for competition. The group contained many admirable specimens of the palms and ferns for which this grower has long been noted. The principal exhibit of palms, ferns and other tropical plants was from the establishment of the George Witthold Co. They were entered in more classes than any other exhibitor and their stock was of the highest order of merit. J. C. Vaughan exhibited fine specimens in many of the classes for miscellaneous plants. Andrew McAdams brought some excellent araucarics and had a good group in the class for best display of decorative plants. Walter Retzer & Co. also brought some very fine palms and ferns, but did not enter their group for competition.

The private establishments represented in the plant classes were those of Mrs. P. D. Armour, Jr., (Otto Speidel, gardener), Martin A. Ryerson, (John Reardon, gardener), A. S. Trude, (Robt. Mueller, gardener), John J. Mitchell, (Geo. Woodward, gardener), Frank R. Chandler, (Melchior Luetsch, gardener), and Arthur Orr, (John Sleigh, gardener).

Several other members of the society brought exhibits, but not for competition.

In the classes for chrysanthemum plants J. C. Vaughan was the principal exhibitor, and he staged some very good stock, although some of it would have been better for a few days more under glass. Martin A. Ryerson was his principal competitor, although A. S. Trude and Crabb & Hunter had conspicuous displays.

The classes for cut blooms of chrysanthemums brought out as competitors a number of exhibitors who have never before figured prominently in the exhibitions of the society. Gunnar Teilmann, Marion, Ind., was one of the principal prize winners. H. Weber & Sons, of Oakland, Md., are also frequently mentioned in the prizelist. John Felke, of Wilmette, Ill., was another new exhibitor. John Steight, of Evanston, was also a new name, and Fritz Bahr, of Highland Park, staged fine blooms. The Hinsdale Rose Company showed their usual good stock and Vaughan and Nathan Smith & Son were leaders, as was to have been expected. A number of entries from E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., were delayed by train wreck until too late for staging.

The interest of the second day centered in the rose display, which was rather better than heretofore. The competition was keen between the South Park Floral Company, Bassett & Washburn, Peter Reinberg, W. W. Coles and others. Bassett & Washburn lead on American Beauty, Meteor and Kaiserin, and had magnificent vases. The South Park Floral Company staged unexcelled Brides and Bridesmaids and Peter Reinberg had the best twenty-five blooms of Liberty. The keenest interest of the day centered in the competition for the Peacock silver cup offered for twelve blooms of a rose never before exhibited in this country. There were but two entries, both of the same variety, the red rose known as No. 19, which was staged in splendid form by both E. G. Hill and Bassett & Washburn, the latter securing the award. The originator's name for this rose is Marquis Litta and it will be distributed in this country under that appellation, probably next season. The Floral Exchange, of Philadelphia and Edgely, Pa., staged a fine vase of their pink sport of American Beauty, which they have named the Queen of Edgely, and it received special mention at the hands of the judges. The fashionable ladies who visited the show expressed themselves as much delighted with the color of this rose, although the blooms were not so good as they would be with better weather and a shorter journey. E. G. Hill also showed a vase of Sunrise.

On Thursday carnations held the center of the stage, and the display was by all odds the best ever seen in Chicago. Bassett & Washburn were the principal exhibitor and won a majority of the prizes, but the Chicago Carnation Company staged many vases of splendid blooms. They were, however, unfortunate in having several vases of their choicest product disqualified because of error in the count. In the class for "any other dark pink" they put up a vase of Mrs. Lawson which was not outclassed by any other single exhibit on the tables, but it contained only forty-nine blooms, when the schedule called for fifty, and the prize went to a pink sport of Armazindy. The Joliet growers suffered the same consequences for short count in their vases of Gomez and Chicago, and in their vase of White Cloud, offered as the best 100 blooms in the exhibition. This prize, a sterling silver cup, fell to G. H. Crane, shown by Bassett & Washburn, the seedling, Dorothy, exhibited by Mrs. E. T. Graves, Richmond, Ind., being so close a second that the judges recommended a certificate of merit for it. Honorable mention was made of Enquirer, exhibited by R. Witterstaetter, of Sedamsville, O. Other exhibitors and prize winners were Anton Then, W. J. & M. S. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mrs. A. M. Schafer, Wietor Bros., W. P. Harvey, of Geneva, and the Guardian Angel Orphan Asylum. One hundred blooms of Genevieve Lord, shipped from Oakland, Md., by H. Weber & Sons, failed to arrive in time for competition.

A feature of the main hall was the displays made in the boxes by Wittbold, Wienhoeber, Lange and Mangel. This was a new competition to be rearranged and judged each day, and the displays were thoroughly creditable to each of the contestants. Lange and Mangel scored first and second respectively on the opening day, and Wienhoeber and Mangel first and second on Wednesday. On Thursday Mangel lead with Wienhoeber second. The same positions were maintained on Friday. The final result of the competition cannot be announced until next week.

The first three days' competitions in table decorations resulted as follows: First day, Wednesday, Anderson Floral Co., first prize, with mound of pink and white Ivory chrysanthemums. A. Lange, second, and John Mangel, third, mounds of Mrs. Perrin chrysanthemums. Second day, Anderson Floral Co., first with mound of Kaiserin roses; John Mangel, second, mound of lily of the valley; A. Lange, third, mound Kaiserin roses. Third day, Anderson Floral Co., first, mound of Golden Gate roses; A. Lange and John Mangel tied for second place with mounds of American Beauty roses.

Fifty blooms Mrs. Bradt, first, Bassett & Washburn; second, Chicago Carnation Co.

Fifty blooms any other striped, except those with yellow ground, first, Bassett & Washburn, with Olympia; second, Chicago Carnation Co., with Mrs. J. K. Robinson.

Fifty blooms Gold Nugget, first, Bassett & Washburn; second, Chicago Carnation Co.

Twenty-five blooms pink, not lighter in color than Wm. Scott, introduction of 1900, first, Chicago Carnation Co., with Mrs. Thos. W. Lawson; second, Bassett & Washburn, with the same variety.

Twenty-five blooms pink, introduction of 1900, lighter in color than Wm. Scott, first, Bassett & Washburn, with Morning Glory; second, Chicago Carnation Co., with The Marquis.

Twenty-five blooms, introduction of 1900, any other color, first, Bassett & Washburn, with J. Whitcomb Riley.

One hundred blooms, one variety, seedlings admissible, prize silver cup valued at $25, won by Bassett & Washburn with G. H. Crane.

The judges recommended a certificate of merit for Dorothy, a seedling exhibited by Mrs. E. T. Graves, Richmond, Ind., and honorable mention was awarded for 100 blooms of Enquirer, exhibited by R. Witterstaetter, Sedamsville, Ohio.

FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Vase of roses arranged for effect, first, John Mangel, with American Beauties; second, South Park Floral Co., with same variety.

Vase of chrysanthemums arranged for effect, first, John Mangel, with Jerome Jones; second, Anderson Floral Co., with Golden Wedding.

Bridal bouquet, John Mangel and Anderson Floral Co. scored an equal number of points; first and second prizes were divided equally between the two contestants.

VIOLETS.

Best display of violets, first, Eli Cross, Grand Rapids, with Swanley White and Lady Campbell; second, Crabb & Hunter with Imperial, Swanley White and Lady Campbell.

Ten violet plants in bloom, not over 10-inch pots; first, Crabb & Hunter; second, Eli Cross.

Special trophy of silver cup offered by the Chrysanthemum Society of America for best ten blooms of chrysanthemums, any variety, was won by Miller & Sons, Bracondale, Ont., Canada, with vase of Timothy Eaton, a pure white.

Certificates of merit were awarded to A. Herrington, Madison, N. J., for a large white, named Madam Deis; Nathan Smith & Son, for Mrs. Elmer D. Smith; Jno. N. May, for Yanariva, a bluish pink variety.

Certificates of merit were awarded to C. W. Ward, Queens, L. I., for Governor Roosevelt carnation; Jno., N. May for collection of pompon chrysanthemums; Nathan Smith & Son for similar exhibit.

FLORISTS' CLUB BANQUET.

The annual banquet of the Florists' Club was held in the Egyptian dining-room of the Auditorium Hotel Thursday evening at 8. Seventy-two were present. President Andrew McAdams made a cordial speech of welcome and introduced J. C. Vaughan as toastmaster. Patrick O'Mara, of New York, president-elect of the S. A. F., was the first speaker and was very enthusiastically received. After a grateful expression of thanks for the glad hand of welcome so generously given him, Mr. O'Mara briefly outlined the history of the S. A. F. He accorded its founders and leading members much praise for its past, and predicted a still rosier future, saying that its work was but begun. He made a very strong plea for united action by every thoughtful florist in the trade and pictured enthusiastically the possibilities from such united effort. Short informal talks followed Mr. O'Mara's address and nearly every interest, and nearly all visitors were heard from. The Chicago Florists' Club's quartette rendered four songs during the evening, each of which received a hearty encore. Mr. Balluff's recitation of the Italian story of George Washington and his hatchet was much appreciated, as was also the dialect speech and stories by Mr. Kohlbrand. Edgar Sanders gave "Little Brown Jug," to the great pleasure of the audience. Remarks were made by Messrs. John N. May, E. G. Hill, W. N. Rudd, John Thorpe, G. A. Rackham, G. L. Grant, C. C. Pollworth, J. Hess, Wm. Edlefsen, P. J. Hauswirth, Edgar Sanders, E. Buettner, E. F. Winterson, John Reardon, Geo. Woodward, Geo. A. Kuhl, Meyer Heller, C. M. Dickinson and others. The gathering adjourned by singing "Auld Lang Syne" at 11:45.

Andrew McAdams.

The new president of the Chicago Florists' Club is a Scotsman born at Londonderry, in the north of Ireland, fifty-three years ago. His sister married John Goode, who was one of Chicago's pioneer market gardeners, nurserymen and florists, and at her solicitation Mr. McAdams came to this country when 18 years of age, subsequently going into partnership with Mr. Goode, who had come to Chicago in 1857, a few years later removing to St. Louis and returning to Chicago in May, 1869, to establish a business two blocks north of Mr. McAdams' present location, what is now the property on Fifty-first street, between Madison and Kimbark avenues. At that time there was no house in sight; now it is one of the finest neighborhoods in Hyde Park. In 1890 Mr. Goode sold his interest in the business, which was removed to its present location in 1882, to Mr. McAdams and went down to the Indian river, near Melbourne, in southern Florida, to enjoy the sunset of life. He is now 88 years of age. Mr. McAdams has spent his lifetime in floriculture in Chicago. He has many friends, the respect of every acquaintance and every quality to entitle him to the honor bestowed by the Chicago florists when they elected him president of their club.

The Judges of the Chicago Exhibition.

Look far and wide, though one might, it would be impossible to find three men better qualified to pass upon floral exhibits than are the trio who were chosen by the Horticultural Society of Chicago to judge its show of 1900. They are a triumvirate of recognized attainments in their profession.

John N. May, of Summit, N. J., is a rosarian of worldwide repute, a carnation grower of remarkable success and the originator and introducer of a number of excellent varieties of chrysanthemums. Skilled as a plantsman, he is schooled in every branch of the art.

Patrick O'Mara is the president-elect of the Society of American Florists, the president of the New York Florists' Club and the head of the plant department of one of the great houses of the trade. He is listened to as one who speaks with authority.

Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill., is regarded as one of the most skilful growers in the west. He is an adept in many lines and is no novice in the matter of passing upon exhibits offered in competition, having been several times called upon to serve in the capacity of a judge of the Chicago show.

Boston.

The exhibition this year was superb as to quality of both plants and flowers and had the new hall only been available in which to make the display, the show might without question take its place in chrysanthemum annals as coming nearer to perfection, from the standpoint of the expert culturist, than any that has preceded it in America or possibly anywhere else. The arrangement of the exhibits was, however, anything but satisfactory, it being necessary, on account of the insufficient space, to locate them so that much of their interest was lost to visitors. As in the past, the upper hall was devoted mainly to the plant groups, the exhibits of Mrs. B. P. Cheney, John Barr, gardener, filling one-half of the hall space and being extensive enough, in fact, to completely fill a hall twice as large if given sufficient space to properly display their individual beauty. Represented in this collection of twenty-seven grand specimens were the following varieties: Louis Boehmer, Peter Kay, The Bard; Mutual Friend, Red Warrior, Mrs. F. A. Constable, Silver Cloud, Mrs. J. G. Breer, Mrs. E. B. Freeman, Georgiana Pitcher, Mrs. H. Weeks, Marion Henderson, Lady Hanham, Golden Trophy, Georgienne Bramhall, Black Hawk, Arethusa, Savannah, Lady Isabel, Kate Broomhead, Shilowa, Mrs. Lewis, Edith Smith and Mongolian Prince. The six last named were shown here in plant form for the first time. The plants grown to single stem and flower in small pots were uniformly good with all exhibitors, there being a very full competition in all these classes.

The cut flowers were, if anything, larger and more uniform in finish than ever before. Other than this no material difference in comparison with latter years was apparent and there was nothing of striking prominence or especially sensational in any class. The winning sets in the more important classes were marvelously even and uniformly large, it seeming impossible to improve upon them in either of these respects. Among the new things were Winona, Orizaba Souci, Luciola, Nesota and Lavender Queen in Mr. Dumaresq's exhibit and several seedlings from J. N. May, of which Bruce, a copper red with gold reverse, and Yanariva, an Inter Ocean type of pink, and several pretty pompons were the best. P. A. B. Widener sent seedling D. Josephine, a light yellow. Mrs. A. W. Spencer's winning set in the great Bradlee class of six vases of six varieties of ten blooms each included Eureka, Mrs. Geo. West, John Shrimpton, Inter Ocean, Pennsylvania and Vivian-Morel. The big china vases with their contents towering eight or ten feet above the floor were as effective as ever, there being seven competitors in this class. It is worthy of record that in the classes calling for vases of ten blooms of one color each the competing varieties were in most cases identical. In pink the competition was confined to Vivian-Morel, in red they were all John Shrimpton and in the open class Kate Broomhead was entered by both competitors. In white Eureka beat White Carnot and in yellow Modesto came in first, all the other entries being of Peter Kay.

The carnation growers were in with some interesting exhibits. Dailedouze Bros. were on hand with Prosperity and M. A. Patten showed a group of splendid blooms comprising most of the recent introductions. A. Roper staged a lot of seedlings that attracted great attention, especially one of decidedly new character, pale pure pink, and one resembling Prosperity. Wm. Sim showed Emily Colbeck, a seedling white with pink pencillings. In roses there were the Queen of Edgely, from the Floral Exchange, and Robert Montgomery's Mrs. Oliver Ames, both of which were much admired. R & J. Farquhar & Co., displayed Begonia Caledonia, the famous white Lorraine and received therefore a certificate of merit. Lager & Hurrell staged a brilliant group of orchids of special value commercially for cut flowers. Wm. W. Edgar had an exhibit of superb ferns, crotons and Gloire de Lorraine. I. E. Coburn showed a lot of fine pansies. Kenneth Finlayson set the old gardeners' eyes a'dancing with these specimens of Erica Willmoreana, each over four feet in height and nearly as big across.

The following were the awards for plants: Twelve plants, first, Mrs. B. P. Cheney; third, E. S. Converse. Ten plants, second, E. S. Converse. Three Japanese incurved, Mrs. Cheney. Three reflexed, Mrs. Cheney; second, Mrs. Cheney. Four anemone flowered, E. S. Converse. Specimen incurved, Mrs. Cheney; second and third also to Mrs. Cheney. Specimen reflexed, Mrs. Cheney; second, H. H. Rogers; third, Mrs. Cheney. Specimen anemone flowered, second, E. S. Converse. Specimen pompon, Mrs. Cheney. Twelve plants grown to one stem and bloom, Dr. C. G. Weld; second, E. S. Converse; third, H. Dumaresq. Six plants ditto, but all of one color, red, H. Dumaresq; second, J. Nicol; third, E. S. Converse. White, Dr. C. G. Weld; second, J. Nicol; third, E. S. Converse. Pink, H. Dumaresq; second, Dr. Weld, third, Dr. Weld. Yellow, J. Nicol; second, Mr. Nicol; third, Dr. Weld. Any other color, Dr. Weld; second and third, Dr. Weld. Six plants grown to bush form, without stakes, Francis Blake; second, H. H. Rogers. Group of chrysanthemums, arranged for effect, with palms and decorative foliage plants, Mrs. Gardner.

Twelve blooms, incurved, second, Dr. Weld; third, E. S. Converse. Japanese, Mrs. Cheney. Japanese incurved, Mrs. Cheney; second, Joseph H. White; third, Col. Charles Pfaff. Anemone, Dr. Weld; third, E. S. Converse. Six blooms incurved, E. S. Converse; second, Dr. Weld. Japanese, Joseph H. White. Japanese incurved, H. Dumaresq; second, Mrs. G. W. Knowlton; third, Col. Chas. Pfaff. Reflexed, Joseph H. White; second, Mrs. Cheney; third, Col. Charles Pfaff. Anemone, E. S. Converse. Six best varieties, introductions of the current year, H. Dumaresq. Vase of ten blooms on long stems, pink, named, Robert Laurie; second, Mrs. Cheney; third, Mrs. A. W. Spencer. Red, Miss E. J. Clark; second, Mrs. Spencer; third, Chas. D. Sias. White, Mrs. Spencer; second, Robert Landis; third, Miss Clark. Yellow, Mrs. Spencer; second, Robert Laurie; third, Col. Pfaff. Any other color, Miss Clark; second, Mrs. Cheney; third, Mrs. Spencer.

Vase of blooms, on long stems, arranged in the society's large china vases. Awards first day: John Simpkins; second, Col. Pfaff; third, Mrs. Spencer; fourth, Miss E. J. Clark. These four prizes are to be repeated each day during the exhibition, and a silver medal is to be awarded to the winner of the largest number of first prizes and a bronze medal to the winner of the largest number of second prizes.

Best seedling, red, never disseminated, six blooms, John N. May for Brutus. Best seedling, any other color than red, pink, white or yellow, John N. May, for Yanariva.

Josiah Bradlee Fund. Twenty-five blooms of twenty-five varieties, Mrs. B. P. Cheney; second, Miss E. J. Clark; third, Col. Charles Pfaff; fourth, Joseph H. White. Six vases of six varieties, ten blooms each, Mrs. A. W. Spencer; second, Mrs. B. P. Cheney; third, Norris F. Comley.

Henry A. Gane Memorial Fund. Twelve blooms, Charles D. Sias; second, Mrs. A. W. Spencer.

Toronto.

The eleventh annual chrysanthemum show, under the direction of the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association, was decidedly the best on record, a credit to exhibitors and pleasing to visitors, but the inclemency of the weather did not help the attendance. The Pavilion was decorated very nicely and in the center was a large group of foliage plants in which numbers of crotons were used and their variegated foliage blended nicely with the different colored chrysanthemums. On either side of this group were similar ones, looking like a glimpse of the tropics. Great progress is being made by our orchid growers and the exhibition of these blossoms was a delight to the eye of every lover of the beautiful. The stage was banked with cattleyas, cypripediums, oncidiums, nepenthes and Adiantum Farleyense, nicely arranged with bark and log moss, and was very creditable to the exhibitor, Exhibition Park. The judging was excellent and all were pleased.

In chrysanthemum plants Horticultural Gardens and Exhibition Park captured all the firsts. The Horticultural Gardens were first on best specimen, best three specimens white, three yellow, twelve distinct varieties, twelve distinct varieties single stem, twelve white single stem, twelve pink, twelve yellow, twelve any other variety and on twelve distinct varieties, three plants of one variety in a 6-inch pot single flowered.

Exhibition Park took firsts on best standard of any variety, best three specimens pink not larger than 8-inch pots, and best three specimens any other color in not larger than 8-inch pots.

Best group of foliage plants arranged for effect was won by Horticultural Gardens with a prettily arranged group; Manton Bros. second, and Exhibition Park third.

The best six flowering plants, distinct varieties, were shown by Horticultural Gardens, Exhibition Park second, and Manton Bros. third.

Cut blooms of chrysanthemums, twenty-five distinct varieties, first went to Jno. H. Dunlop, Wm. Jay, second; J. Jennings, third.

Dunlop received firsts on twelve distinct varieties, twelve yellow, twelve any color, six white, six any color and for twenty-five blooms any variety in one vase.

Miller & Son received a special prize for best chrysanthemums in the show, first for twelve blooms white, twelve pink, twelve any variety.

Geo. Hollis was first for best six yellow; and the H. Dale estate was second for twelve blooms white and twelve blooms pink.

In the rose classes the Harry Dale estate was first on Perle, Bride, Hoste, Morgan, Meteor, and in three classes for varieties not enumerated. J. H. Dunlop was first on Bridesmaid. W. Lawrence was first on American Beauty.

On carnations Dunlop took five firsts, Dale one and W. Lawrence one.

On violets Dale took two firsts and Manton Bros. one.

On floral designs F. Brown was first on hand bouquet and on presentation basket of chrysanthemums. C. Tidy & Son were first on funeral design and presentation basket. Dunlop was first on flat basket of chrysanthemums.

Hartford, Conn.

The fourteenth annual fall exhibition of the Hartford Horticultural Society was held in Good Will Hall, November 6, 7 and 8. Among the more prominent exhibitors was T. Dryden, who showed twenty-two fine specimen chrysanthemums in 10-inch pots, which were awarded first prize. He also took first prize for the best single flower, a fine bloom of Chadwick. Mr. Dryden's ability, as shown in these plants, was highly spoken of by the gardeners present, who know the rather inconvenient circumstances under which he had to work.

Theodore Wirth, superintendent of Elizabeth Park, showed a beautiful collection of fifty varieties of cut blooms, and Walter Angus, gardener to R. & H. Scoville, of Chapinville, showed twelve vases of twelve blooms which were greatly admired. He was awarded first prize in this class, also in the class for twenty-five single blooms and twelve single blooms, and for two splendid bunches of Gros Moroz grapes he was awarded a diploma.

The exhibition, for a city like Hartford, was disappointingly small; the lack of interest displayed by the florists and private gardeners generally being very deplorable.

House of Specimen Chrysanthemums.

Our illustration shows a house, 20x70, in which were grown the twenty-seven plants which appear in the picture, and which took all the first premiums for specimen plants at the chrysanthemum exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston. The grower, John Barr, the gardener at Mrs. B. P. Cheney's, has distinguished himself on many occasions in the past as an expert plant grower and visitors to the Boston exhibitions have learned to look for something fine at every occasion in which he participates.

The Chrysanthemum, from a Commission Man's Standpoint.

[Paper read by Samuel S. Pennock before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, November 6, 1900.]

I am deeply sensible of the difficulty that besets one who undertakes the discussion of the subject which has been allotted to me. Should I not reach the standard of excellence which would be warranted by such an audience, I trust that you will bear in mind that a statement is never so hard to make as when the thought that it contains is well known to its hearers.

The value of the chrysanthemum for all purposes is well recognized. As a showy and handsome decorative flower, the queen of autumn has no peer. No flower can be had that will make the elaborate display and give the value that the chrysanthemum does in decorations generally. Everyone waits anxiously for the first bloom of the season to arrive. Each dealer tries to outdo his neighbor in securing the first cut, and naturally pays an extra price for it.

Blooms that will hardly be noticed later in the season, bring fancy prices. Some one color, owing to a temporary demand for it, will cause the price to advance, while some particular occasion, such as an important foot ball game, will produce a similar result. With the advent of October we look for the first blooms. The season, which runs for two months, is generally terminated by the Thanksgiving trade, which is improving each year.

Some authorities claim that the best paying varieties are the early ones, while others contend the late ones are preferable. Solid colors, not mixed ones, are the best sellers. Among these the yellow and white predominate, with pink coming next. The best results can be obtained from a limited number of varieties, say six or a dozen, giving a succession of bloom throughout the season, in the colors mentioned. The incurved varieties are the best commercially, as they stand more abuse and do not drop their petals or wilt so easily. With the most careful handling the ragged ones do not carry at all well.

Both as a cut flower and as a pot plant, the Ivory has no equal as an all-around commercial variety. There are hundreds of varieties that might be mentioned. Among them are the following: Willowbrook, an early white; Lady Harriett, an early pink; October Sunshine, a very pleasing yellow, blooming about the same time as Whildin; R. Hooper Pearson, fine, large, stiff stemmed yellow, following Whildin; Mrs. Trainor L. Park, a fine late yellow; Florence Harris, a very pretty shade of yellow, good size with long, stiff stem; Mrs. Geo. W. Childs, a good red; Pink Ivory, Major Bonnaffon, Maud Dean, Jerome Jones, Robinson, Vivand-Morel and Modesto.

Maud Dean is certainly about the best all-around pink, as a money earner. Mrs. Perrin, for a pleasing and beautiful shade of pink, cannot be equalled but it is not profitable from a grower's standpoint, on account of a large percentage of the blooms coming disfigured in spite of all the grower can do.

Well grown stock is oft times spoiled by being cut prematurely, or allowed to stay on too long and the same difficulty results from improper care in handling between the time of cutting and delivery to the dealer. The attention of growers is particularly called to both of these difficulties, for in them lies a prolific source of the causes leading to poor returns.

All flowers should be put in water immediately after cutting, and set in a cool place for from three to eight hours previous to packing and shipping. This treatment will harden them with far better and more lasting results than if they are placed in water some time after being cut. A flower is always in better condition to absorb water at this than any other time. If once allowed to wilt it will never quite regain its original beauty, and its keeping qualities will have become very much impaired. An equally important matter is that of proper packing. Here the grower will oft times endeavor to save expressage by crowding the flowers into a box not large enough to properly accommodate them. This is always a short-sighted procedure, for the damage resulting therefrom will often amount to several times the expressage. A great source of comfort to the flower man is cool weather. There is much more satisfaction in handling the cut blooms. They are more crisp and firmer in texture, and give better results in every way.

One objection that is often advanced against the chrysanthemum is that so much is given for value received, and that this lessens the demand for other flowers, roses, carnations, etc., often going begging during the reign of this beauty. Those who grow the other flowers, either from preference or force of circumstances, are more than satisfied when the chrysanthemum season has drawn to a close. Indeed, there are often others who are also glad when the end is in sight. Both retailers and wholesalers have been known to express their views in this respect very decidedly, wishing the "mums" had never been "invented." But for all this they have their place and are here to stay.

It may not be amiss at this point to note that the facility with which the purchaser may reach a large stock of the flowers is, from all points of view, a very important consideration. This purpose is best served by the accommodation, room and ease of distribution with which the wholesaler can supply, together with his ability to have the flowers always on hand.

In the matter of distribution, attention is properly called to the fact that the location which he is able to and does invariably select, is one that is within easy reach of the grower and retailer alike, both at home and abroad. This benefit cannot be overestimated, and vastly exceeds any which could possibly be the outcome of any conditions from which the presence of our commission man would be eliminated.

The chrysanthemum, being large and bulky, necessarily requires ample room. In the wholesale establishment can be congregated large quantities of bloom of every kind, sufficient to meet all demands on short notice. To it can come the purchasers who, for these very reasons, can invariably find what they wish, when, did the commission man not exist, it would be impossible on many occasions for them to be satisfied. He is the agent of grower and purchaser, and it is to his interest that both parties should be properly served. His ability in this direction also arises from the fact that he possesses peculiar advantages in the matter of keeping in touch with the market, and such ability as he has, must, from the very nature of his business, be absolutely at the disposal of those for whom he acts.

Having considered the queen of autumn from these various points of view, we come naturally to the question: "What means are we to employ in the proper placing of our product before the public for the purpose of sale?" The answer is plain: "By judicious advertising and display." This is to-day largely accomplished by business cards and descriptions inserted in the papers and periodicals, so as to quickly catch the eye and appeal to the intelligence of the reader.

Another source of success in this direction is the store and window decorations, which are used to such good effect by the dealers, who are constantly exercising that keen intelligence and artistic taste for which they are noted.

We have brought to our minds very forcibly, at this season of the year, the fact that this purpose is also accomplished in a most admirable manner by the chrysanthemum show, which presents to view all the bravery of resplendent color and beautiful form, attracting the people as no other display of flowers can. What grander and more picturesque sight is there than our annual fall show? This institution is a wonderful benefit to the flower interests in general. It induces curiosity, starts the community to talking, is educating in its effect, and leads to purchases which otherwise never would be made. Each and every florist should do all in his power to foster and encourage these exhibitions. A successful show means far more to the flower trade than can be estimated. Judicious advertising by this means, is a paying investment, and is sooner or later sure to be productive of good results.

As to the advancement made in the cultivation and perfection of this flower, we now have varieties of size and quality of which we never dreamed fifteen years ago. As time goes on we shall all be striving and struggling as we have heretofore. As the past has been so full of benefits unforeseen, we look forward not only to retaining the glory which we have won, but to the winning of new laurels in fields ever new and broadening. The bloom which now is receiving our tenderest care has returned to us full benefits. Let us not be slow in recognizing the goodness of a beneficent Providence, and in return show our appreciation by adding to the talent with which we have been entrusted.

Packing Specimen Blooms.

Growers of fine chrysanthemums will be interested in the method of packing blooms for shipment for exhibition, etc., practiced by A. Herrington, as shown in our illustration. Wooden cleats, well wrapped in tissue paper, are securely fastened across the box and each individual flower is tied thereto just below the base of the bloom. No amount of rough handling by expressmen can possibly do any damage to the contents, and as an additional precaution against dryness or heat the end of each stem is wrapped in a generous wad of water-soaked tissue paper.

Growing the Boston Fern.

[A paper, illustrated with sample plants, read before the Chicago Florists' Club, November 2, 1900, by James S. Wilson, of Western Springs, Ill.]

In growing the Boston fern as a pot plant my method of culture is as follows: First, I plant up a house of young plants from 3-inch to 4-inch pots about December 1, using a rather stiff loam, one-fourth well-rotted cow manure with sprinklings of bone meal. As the plants begin to grow I tie the fronds of each plant loosely to a light cane stake so as to keep the leaves off the soil and to let light and air reach the soil between the rows, which makes the young plants, which begin to appear about February, dwarf and stocky, such as this sample runner I have here. Such runners when potted into 2½ inch pots never wilt or lose a leaf, which is usually a saving of from six to eight weeks' time over long, drawn-up runners, which, when potted, lose their leaves or must be cut, leaving eight to twelve inches of the fronds.

As the benched stock, or mother plants, as they may be termed, get larger thin them out by cutting out the largest old fronds, leaving only sufficient fronds to sustain the action in the growth of the runners. After each batch of runners is taken off, re-tie the old plants and give them a top-dressing of fine, sifted soil with a good sprinkling of fine bone meal mixed in. Then the bench is in good shape for another crop.

When the runners have made two or three leaves and are about six to ten inches high, they are pulled up with a nice bunch of roots (such as the runner has which I have already shown you) and potted into 2½ inch pots. In three weeks' time they are rooted through and ready for a shift into 3 inch and then into 4 inch pots, and so continue, never permitting the growth to become checked. In potting use the same kind of soil.

When the plants reach a 4-inch pot and are ready for a shift into 5 inch or 6-inch there are a number of air roots extending over the side of the pot. I am always careful of these roots, and in shifting to a larger pot twine them around the ball about one-half inch under the soil around the rim. They soon take root and send up young growth, which makes the plant full and bushy, such as the 10-inch size I show here.

You will note the bushy, compact growth of this plant and I am often asked how they are kept to this shape. In the first place, my benched stock-plants are never shaded. The runners, I shade a little after potting, but after a few days give them the full sun. This, I believe, accounts for the sturdy, compact growth so much desired by buyers of this popular fern.

I am aware that a great many writers and florists advocate and grow these ferns by planting out in benches, keeping them there until the required size is attained, then lifting and potting them. I do not approve of the plan and claim a first-class plant cannot be produced by this method, because you only have the old, mother plant to lift. The cutting away of all the runners leaves nothing but the old plant, which soon becomes hard-stemmed and leggy, with no foliage around the top of the pot, unsatisfactory to handle and unsatisfactory to the buyer.

The pot I use is the azalea or half pot, in sizes from six to twelve inches. The plants grow better, throwing out runners and forming young plants much sooner than when planted in the old, deep pot. Besides, they look much better and are not so clumsy to handle, while the retail store men like them much better for counter trade.

I have seen the statement that the country is being over-stocked with the Boston fern; the same cry has been often applied to Beauties, carnations and cannas. The fact remains that the demand for this fern was never so strong as to-day, while well known, shapely plants of the best selling sizes are continually scarce and often out of stock for weeks at a time.

Practical Chrysanthemum Growing.

Believing that a few notes on the present status of the chrysanthemum industry among the practical florists in the vicinity of Philadelphia would be interesting at this time, I took a run among a few of the more prominent places the other day and you can now look at the matter through my spectacles and see in five minutes what took me a good many hours, as I have tried to leave out all that was not worth talking about or unnecessary in adding "artistic versimilitude to a bald and uninteresting narrative."

The growing of chrysanthemums, at least around Philadelphia, does not appear to be the Klondike it once was. Fine blooms do not bring the prices and consequently many of the most extensive growers have largely given them up.

Notwithstanding this, however, there still seems to be enough and to spare among the retail stores for all demands. This is accounted for from the increased production by a greater number of smaller growers.

One of the old standbys who still devotes considerable space to them in this vicinity is George Campbell, at Broad and Germantown avenue. The bulk of his trade is in pot plants, part of which are used in his retail trade and the balance at wholesale. According to Mr. Campbell there has been nothing particularly meritorious produced in the past two years, with possibly the exception of W. Paul Binder's Willowbrook, a Japanese, white slightly tinged lemon, not very large but very early and has proven a fine commercial sort; and Lady Harriet, a pink incurved Japanese. These two varieties have done particularly well and are very meritorious. Binder's Harry A. Parr has also done well.

Charles Mecky, a near neighbor of Mr. Campbell also grows a considerable quantity in pots for the wholesale market. He does not go in much for novelties, confining himself mostly to the standard, tried and tested sorts.

W. K. Harris devotes four houses to cut blooms. His varieties are mostly seedlings of his own which he has never disseminated, consequently their merits are unknown outside of his own establishment and unless they should be disseminated later a description of them would be superfluous. Mr. Harris used to grow pot plants largely in years gone by but has now given that up.

Samuel Bunting, at Sixtieth and Elmwood avenue, is another grower who goes in largely for chrysanthemums and has been quite successful with them. Many other florists grow more or less but there is no craze for them to compare with what it was six or seven years ago.

Perhaps the most representative practical grower here who goes in heavy on chrysanthemums is Hugh Graham. Mr. Graham's establishment is on the old York Road about twenty minutes by steam car or trolley from Philadelphia. This place is ably presided over by Victor Groshens, who is admitted to be one of the ablest, all-around growers in this vicinity. I called at Mr. Graham's city establishment and asked if I would be likely to find Victor at the place that morning. "Find him," replied Mr. Graham, "I guess you can; why, you could not drive that man away from the place. I do not think he has been away twenty-four hours in the last twelve months." This remark shows how devoted Victor is to the duties of his profession, and sure enough, I found him hard at work at the top of a fifty-foot ladder, superintending the erection of an expansion tank in one of the out-buildings.

With his usual good nature he willingly "came off his perch" and showed me over the place. The first batch of chrysanthemums we came to was a house of Ivory, both the pink and the white. Their experience is that Ivory is still the best for a pot plant, the white being the most popular and by far the best seller. They also grow in pots Major Bonaffon, Mrs. Canning, Mrs. Potter, Lincoln and Mrs. Buettner, the latter being one of the finest late yellows which they know of. They find these pot plants very useful for decorations as well as for store sales.

Among the crimson varieties for cut blooms only the George W. Childs is given a prominent place, it being in their experience the best crimson. It grows better, is stronger and gives the largest blooms in its color. The football matches always call for crimson and this variety is indispensable for that kind of function. In yellows Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, both of which were originated by Graham, are largely grown and hold their own with the best of them. The best pink with them is Mrs. Potter, one of their own seedlings, which has never been sent out. It is a good color, fine grower and very easy to handle; it is also good as a pot plant. Among the best whites are William H. Chadwick and Yanoma. The latter is later than Chadwick, very large and a good one, although perhaps not quite as good all around as Chadwick.

A whole house is devoted to Bonaffon, which is still one of the grandest in its color and generally very free from disease. It is one of the very best sellers in its color. Among the varieties grown in smaller quantities for cutting may be mentioned Leoni, Vivand-Morel, C. Davis, Pluto, Leonidas, Mrs. Constable, Fe du Champsaur, Modesto, Faure, Iora, Golden Wedding, Golden Gate, Mutual Friend, Mrs. Robinson and Frank Hardy.

Quite a collection of last year's novelties were planted for trial but they were overtaken by a small red insect, something like red spider but smaller, which has made the experiment almost a failure and it is impossible to judge of the merits of any of them in consequence.

Among other interesting things worthy of notice besides the chrysanthemums which I saw on my visit to Mr. Graham's, may be mentioned their new palm house. This house is somewhat unique and is a valuable addition to the facilities of the establishment. It is sixty feet wide and 135 feet long, in three spans, the middle span being even and the highest, those on each side being three-quarter span and four feet lower in elevation. The posts are iron, on single 4-inch brick walls. The house is heated by hot water. A new Kroeschell boiler was just being installed. Victor thinks this type the best for more than one reason, one of the chief being that it gives plenty of heating surface and also requires less depth in setting, being flatter.

Two or three houses are devoted to palms, standard varieties such as kentias, arecas, etc. Victor has a very good word to say for the Caryota urens. It is the greatest "laster" of any of them and a very good thing for any one to have who has any decorating to do. Another house is devoted to orchids, the varieties grown being mostly cattleyas, cypridium and odontoglossums.

Several houses are devoted to carnations, the varieties grown being principally Victor, Maceo, White Cloud, Crane and Daybreak. They have had some trouble with carnations this fall. Some kind of fungus attacking the stem just between wind and water, it commences to rot both up and down, and in a few days the plant is dead. I think it is what is known as anthracnose, but am not enough of an expert to say positively. I therefore mail you a sample plant, Mr. Editor, as you are rightly supposed to know everything, and will be pleased to have you give your opinion of it and say what it is and what the remedy.

Quite a large section of the establishment is devoted to roses, three houses being in Bridesmaid, four or five in Beauties and the balance in other standard sorts. Most of the Beauties are looking well, I only saw one house that had much of the spot in it, although this is a numerous visitor in this neighborhood this season, probably on account of the muggy weather we have experienced. One house of Beauty they were getting ready to clean out and will replace with Brunners for a spring crop.

A novelty in roses which I observed here, and have not seen elsewhere, was Sunrise. This was offered by E. G. Hill & Co. last season for the first time. Mr. Graham has about 200 plants of it. It is an English variety, a sport from the Perle. It has much darker foliage. The flower is red on the under side of the petals and yellow on the upper; when the flower opens both colors show at once, which gives a very charming, unique effect. The fragrance is very similar to the Perle.

Victor has a number of new seedling carnations, some of which he says are promising, but none of them were enough in flower at the time of my visit to enable judgment of any importance to be formed on them. A little later in the season there may be something to tell about these; so far I would only venture to mention one of them, a pink, a shade lighter than Daybreak but a much larger flower. Victor intends to call this Mrs. Van Rensselaer, but will not disseminate it until he gives it another year's trial and sees how it behaves.

There is no fault to find with Liberty here. It is doing well and will do better later in the season, when Meteors are off. Glad to say a good word for it after all I have heard around here the past month.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

but a mixture of lime and soot placed around the stems, and spraying with Bordeaux mixture, have been mentioned as preventives.—Ed.]

WITH THE GROWERS.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., NEW CASTLE, IND.

Down in the Hoosier state there is a concern which is forging to the floricultural front. It is the South Park Floral Company, at New Castle, in the gas belt, and but a little way from Richmond, already famous for its flowers. The South Park people began business in a small way not more than five years ago, growing a miscellaneous stock. Now they have 100,000 feet of glass devoted to one flower. In the second year of its existence the concern grew nothing but roses and carnations and, while the latter were good enough to capture a number of the prizes at the exhibition of the American Carnation Society of that year, the natural conditions were proven to be particularly favorable to rose growing. Since then that flower has been made a specialty, with results which form the basis for an extended reputation.

When it was decided to go into roses exclusively, the old houses were torn away and replaced by structures better adapted to rose culture. The following season four more houses were built, and last spring a new range of 50,000 feet, bringing the total up to 100,000, was added. This new range is planted with American Beauties and the balance of the place is given over to Bride and Bridesmaid, with one house of Perle and a stock of the new rose hitherto designated only as No. 19, which is shortly to be introduced as Marquis Litta.

Last spring a fine tract of land was purchased adjoining the new range and in the foreground of the accompanying illustration, the photograph for which was taken from the derrick at the natural gas well which supplies the fuel for the five big boilers with which the place is heated. The soil not only covers a fuel supply of immense value but is in itself a treasure, as it is a rich clay loam, just right for filling rose benches.

A tour of the greenhouses shows a robust health, a vigor of growth and a luxuriance of foliage seldom equalled, and for this the proprietors give large credit to the natural gas heat, which enables them to maintain a very even temperature, regulating it largely by ventilation. They claim that this also improves the keeping quality of their product, a most important attribute of cut stock.

The South Park Floral Company is composed of two brothers, Meyer Heller and Herbert Heller, whose foreman is William Ditman. They are always ready to extend a greeting to a visitor and few are the florists who cannot learn something new of rose culture by a tour of their establishment. New Castle is forty-five miles east of Indianapolis and is accessible by three railroads.

CARNATIONS.

RESULTS OF A PECULIAR SEASON.

A peculiar summer coupled with an unusual fall has been none too good for the general health and welfare of carnations and the careful grower will regulate his methods, as far as practicable, to the unusual weather conditions. With October giving us the weather of May, the season is turned topsy-turvy and instead of our plants having that good, hard, healthy growth we naturally look for in the fall, they are a bit soft and somewhat drawn. If we have a cool November, and it is to be hoped that we do have, this can all be overcome and the plants be little the worse for their experience.

As I have stated a number of times, there can be no set rules laid down for carnation culture, and here is a striking instance. Carnations that would, under ordinary conditions, stand a temperature of 35° for one night and be all the better for it, will, on account of the summer weather in which they have been growing, suffer if the temperature falls below 45°. It is therefore advisable to start fires whenever there is any indication of a fall in temperature and at the same time leave on a bit of ventilation, so that the house may not get much above 45° at night.

Continuous firing may be necessary by the time this article gets into print, but, in order to get the plants into the best possible shape for producing good stock the balance of the season, it is not advisable to allow the temperature to get much higher than 45° at night for a few weeks. At the same time give the plants all the water they can make good use of at the roots. There is nothing which will put the plants into better shape than cool, moist, sweet soil and a moderately cool atmosphere, not too dry, but at the same time not humid. If, however, the days should continue hot and summer-like, then a better plan will be to withhold all the water possible without actually stunting the growth of the plants and harden them by the dry process instead of the wet.

Another point in carnation culture affected by the hot weather is the addition of extra fertilizers. This extra growth may have, in some cases, impoverished the soil to such an extent that feeding may be a necessity, but in most cases the plants will be better off without extra fertilizer until the first or second week of December. Forcing of any kind should be avoided, but at the same time do not allow your holiday crop to be short in quantity for the sake of quality unless you are sure of making more money out of the quality than the quantity.

It costs money to grow fancy carnations and it takes a good market to make them pay. Some growers who started growing fancy stock without a good market for the same, have, after a few years of steady loss, gone back to good quality stock at remunerative figures and a few of them have dropped carnations entirely, for it also costs to grow poor carnations and the grower is pretty sure to come out short at the end of the season and shorter every year that such stock is produced.

The grower who has the market for fancy stock cannot make it too fancy, but the great majority of growers will have to content themselves with the production of first-class blooms at such a figure that there will be a little balance in their favor at the end of the season. And it is this class of growers who have to carefully watch every point of culture so as to get the fullest returns with the least cost.

The question of varieties is also quite an item with every grower and if it were possible for us to get a good, honest expression of opinion from a number of localities it would give us a basis on which to form an opinion as to what we would try for another season. Owing to the unseasonable weather it is hard to decide at this date as to the merits of the new candidates, as some have been affected more than others by the season.

White Cloud has some very good flowers on good, long stems, the latter being a little weak and the flowers not over-abundant, but the growth is good and some time this winter there will be a big crop of flowers.

Elm City has produced quite a nice crop of flowers, on moderately long stems, and in growth it is neat and sturdy, with an immense crop of flowers on the way for December and January.

Peru, the latest of the three whites I am growing this season, has made a little more stem than Elm City, but not quite so stiff, and the flowers have not been produced as freely, but it gives promise of making up later on all shortage and if anything is a whiter and better flower.

Maceo would make a flower to every little branch, not very large nor very long-stemmed at this season of the year, but it is certainly a wonderful producer.

Gomez has more stem but not so many flowers, although being a brighter color makes up for the difference in blooming.

G. H. Crane is certainly outclassing Jubilee. In color it is now as good as Jubilee and the hot weather seems to suit it quite well; in point of production it will go ahead of its predecessor.

Leslie Paul, as usual, is a bit late but there are enough buds showing for the holidays to make it worth growing on account of its color and good points as a flower.

Genevieve Lord has not shown its full quality as to size but the color is all there and the blooming qualities leave nothing to be desired, so that it promises to give good results soon.

Mrs. Bertram Lippincott is a little slow in giving its improved Daybreak flowers but some of the plants have seven and eight buds that will be open between now and January 15, so that it will likely prove a standard sort.

Ethel Crocker is showing up well; it always has in the three years I have been growing it. The stems are not quite as strong as they will be later on, but the flowers are good in color, good in size and there have been plenty of them since early in September. As this is a discovery of my own I want to give a few words as to the methods I use to get the best results from the variety. In the first place it does not want too heavy feeding but it does want as nearly as possible a night temperature of 50° or even a little more. If it is cut before the flowers have fully opened and put into water not too cold and placed in a cool room, say 40° to 45°, with some light, for from six to twelve hours and then kept strictly away from all ice boxes it will be one of the best keepers storemen ever handled. If the grower wishes to feed it, give it small doses often repeated rather than a heavy fertilization at one time, but it will be found that it will thrive best with rather moderately rich soil and the proper attention to watering and temperature. If allowed to get too cold it will not give the best results.

Olympia has been coming a bit single on account of the heat but, from the buds it is showing and the nature of its growth, it looks as if it would be a good one to have on the place.

Mrs. Bradt is behaving as it always does and a few Bou Ton sent me by the originator for a second trial would almost tempt one to plant his whole place to it.

This is not a very big list of varieties but to get the best results one variety to a house gives chances for special culture that it is impossible to give in a house of mixed sorts and we will no doubt eventually come to this sort of culture with the carnation, just as the rose growers have done with their roses.

ALBERT M. HERR.

TREATMENT OF CARNATION BLOOMS

Regarding the temperatures for keeping carnation flowers after they are cut, my experience has been that an average of 50° is the best, in conjunction with a dry, healthy atmosphere, without drafts or currents of air directly on the flowers. A moderate amount of light without direct rays of the sun is essential to their good keeping qualities. A thing to avoid, more especially, is ice in any form. Gas, either illuminating, from a furnace, or sulphuric from heating pipes are all poison to carnation blooms. Clean receptacles with clean, fresh water every day, with no dust or dirt in any form in the storeroom are important factors in keeping the flowers in the best possible condition. All flowers should have their stems in water for ten or twelve hours before shipping, but there should be no water on the flowers themselves.

JOHN N. MAY.

The Yuccas.

The yucca family has many species and all are native on the western continent. The name, yucca, was the original word for the plant among the Indians. The kinds which are most commonly planted for their many merits are Yucca angustifolia and Yucca filamentosa. The former is, as its name implies, narrow-leaved and stands, when in bloom, rarely over two feet high. Yucca filamentosa, the subject of the accompanying illustrations, is popularly known as the Adam's needle. The stiff, needle-like, pointed leaf of the edge of the foliage suggests the possibility of stitching together Adam's first suit of clothes.

Yucca filamentosa is classified as a shrub and resembles the agave in not having any stalk above the ground and the thick, bayonet-like leaves, bristling out from the center, remain green all winter. The leaves in the center are sometimes three years old before they wither and dry up. After sending up a grand stalk five or six feet high, with lateral branches all loaded with creamy, waxen bells an inch and a half long, the main root stalk forms larger eyes for next year and the center eventually dies and a cluster of several plants takes its place.

In propagating such plants can readily be cut off from the parent root. This method is quicker and the plants are larger than when raised from the very numerous seeds, which rarely germinate in this climate. The yucca thrives in almost any soil, but prefers a medium rich, light loam. The stately panicles which come in June are decidedly showy, whether used separately on the lawn or in connection with other shrubbery. For a semi-tropical effect this broad-leaved evergreen takes first rank and has no substitute among hardy plants.

Seasonable Work of Plantmen.

To ensure the best results in plant growing there are many details to be considered and precautions to be taken, and what may be considered as one of the foundation stones upon which to rear success is a proper supply of potting soil, for without this much time and labor will inevitably be wasted. A well-developed compost heap should be a feature of every greenhouse establishment, and may be taken as some indication of the foresight of the manager, though there is frequently found considerable difficulty in keeping up the supply of soil on places that are located within the limits of a city.

The best raw material for this purpose is found in the form of sod taken from an old pasture, and the least laborious method of digging it is to turn the sod over with a plow, making it comparatively easy to shovel the sod into a cart to transfer it to the place selected for the compost heap. This old sod provides a goodly quantity of humus in the soil, as the grass and roots decay, and thus furnishes a quantity of available plant food that cannot be supplied by the addition of fertilizers. A disadvantage that appears with the use of this soil is the great number of cockchafer grubs, the larva of the June bug, that are frequently found in it, but these grubs are large enough to be readily seen and may be destroyed as the soil is used.

The soil, having been carted into the compost yard, should be stacked up with several layers of good stable manure, the proportion of one part of manure to six parts of soil being a good one for general purposes, while other special fertilizers may be added at the time the soil is used. It is preferable that this work be done in summer or early fall and the compost allowed to stand in the stack until the following spring, when it should be turned over and thoroughly mixed and will then be ready for use.

Another of the smaller details at this season of the year is that of getting a sufficient quantity of potting soil under cover to enable the workers to be independent of the weather, delays being frequently caused by having to bring in frozen soil during the winter and then wait until it is thawed out and dry enough to be used.

The baking or steaming of potting soil prior to its use, for the purpose of destroying the seeds of weeds and to kill the insects and eggs of insects that may be contained therein, has been practiced to some extent of late years and with a considerable degree of success. Wm. K. Harris, the well known and successful Philadelphia plantsman, has contrived a box for this purpose, the bottom of which is fitted with steam pipes. Such an apparatus is a great convenience, though not a necessity, and should be used with judgment, for, in the opinion of some growers, good soil, if cooked, should preferably be a trifle "rare" rather than overdone.

So mild an autumn as this has been is quite favorable for late pottings of foliage plants, the warm weather encouraging renewed root action and enabling the plants to become much better established than would be the case in a season when fire heat alone has to be depended upon.

The busy season for the retail florist seems to be growing shorter, owing to the fact that so many of his customers, in the city trade, at least, have acquired the habit of staying at their country places or of continuing their travels until much later in the year than was the former fashion. This postponement of trade in the fall not only makes a short, though high-pressure season for the retailer, but also affects the grower to some extent, he being anxious to empty some of his benches early enough to permit the repotting of some young stock that may become marketable by spring. But these little difficulties will doubtless continue to arise with the march of time and progress, and as few growers have ever been known to admit that they had space enough at any time, perhaps it is of small consequence whether trade is early or late.

Many growers have been experimenting with a few palm seeds this season and to those not familiar with the usual routine followed in the growing of this class of stock, it may be said that the sooner all seedlings that are ready, and in most cases that means when the second leaf starts, are potted off, the better it will be for them, for when potted off during the winter they are usually much slower in becoming established. This remark applies with much force in regard to seedlings of Cocos Weddeliana, the young plants of this palm being quite tender about the root at all times, and are especially slow in taking hold when potted off too late in the season.

Areca lutescens should also be potted off as early as they are ready, and are somewhat susceptible to the cold if allowed to go without fire heat as the nights grow longer and cooler in the fall. Kentia seedlings, and also those of Latania Borbonica, are more hardy and a less percentage of loss is liable to result from late potting of these than of the foregoing, though even the latanias are much longer in becoming established when the first potting takes place during the winter months.

For a length of time the only conifer that was handled in quantity by many retail stores was the beautiful Norfolk Island pine, Araucaria excelsa, in its various forms, but there are other pot-grown conifers that now find a market in some of our large cities, among them being some of the retinosporas, for example R. plumosa, R. pisitara aurea, R. leptoclada, R. filifera and R. squarrosa, also Cryptomeria Japonica and C. elegans, and several of the thujas. These are plants that have been lifted from the nursery and potted into 6 inch to 10 inch pots, according to size, and early enough to enable them to be well rooted before being offered for sale. Such plants may be plunged in a frame outdoors until sharp frosts are expected, when they should be brought into a cool house, given full light and kept well ventilated, for though plants of this description would not be seriously injured by exposure to frost, yet such exposure is liable to change the color of the foliage and make the plants less attractive to the average buyer.

We were again reminded of the beauty of Eurya latifolia variegata by the interesting exhibit of this species that was presented at the S. A. F. convention in New York. It is indeed a beautiful plant, the foliage lasting and the variegation rich and constant, and only requires a winter temperature of 45° to keep it in good condition. Unfortunately the eurya is a somewhat slow plant to grow into a salable specimen, and therefore does not appeal to the grower for market as does Ficus elastica or the Boston fern.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Notes on Hardy Vines.

It is very often the case when a new house is built that the grading around it is left to improper hands and the work is done with no thought save as to the quickest and easiest way. We find then, generally, that around the walls of the house the soil is mostly lime, rubbish and subsoil from the excavation of the cellar, with a thin covering of good loam for the lawn grass to take root in. In cases where this has been done there is not only a poor lawn, but vines, shrubs and trees that have been planted with the expectation of a rapid growth eke out only a miserable existence.

To ensure the quick and healthy growth of a climber it is absolutely necessary that a deep, rich soil shall be provided. Having done some extra work in the first place to attain this end we will be satisfied, after seeing two seasons' growth, that we are amply repaid for our extra work at the start. A few remarks on worthy climbers may not be amiss at this season.

Actinidia arguta is a strong growing vine from Japan, where the fruit is edible. The flowers are white, in large panicles. A. Kolomitka, perhaps the finest of the actinidias, is comparatively little known in this country, although it has been grown in European gardens for the past three decades. The flowers are white and bell-shaped. It is in the leaves that the beauty of this plant lies. These are cordate, about two and one-half to three inches in diameter. They are first green, with a white blotch at the apex and often halfway down the leaf, then gradually changing to pink and brown. It is, in my opinion, identical with the vine which is being introduced as the true A. polygama.

Akebia quinata is an old favorite which cannot be too highly spoken of. As a covering for porches it is unsurpassed, having a clean, bright green foliage and pretty, dark brown flowers, occasionally followed by curiously shaped seed pods of a dove gray color, gradually turning to a pretty shade of blue and opening to show the abundance of jet black seeds.

Aristolochia Siphis is too well known to require a description. Our only objection to it is its being infested by an ugly looking caterpillar, Papillio philinor. It requires constant watching to keep the large leaves from being entirely eaten up. There are many sections where this butterfly is not plentiful and where Aristolochia Siphon is one of the finest climbers that can be had.

Bignonia grandiflora is a Chinese variety which is the finest of all the hardy trumpet vines. The flowers are of a yellow scarlet color, borne in large panicles, each individual flower about three inches in diameter. It is not such a strong grower as the common variety, B. radicans. In planting B. grandiflora it should be examined to see if it is grafted on the roots of the common variety, as this is generally the means of propagation. If grafted, no suckers should be allowed to come up from the roots.

Celastrus scandens, our native bitter-sweet, and the two Japanese species, C. articulatus and C. punctatus, are vines which deserve more attention than is given them. From now on through the winter months the berries will be a perfect mass of yellow and scarlet.

Schizophragma hydrangeoides is often confounded with Hydrangea scandens, which it somewhat resembles. It is not so hardy, however, but makes an excellent covering on a sheltered wall where it can receive some protection in winter.

Lonicera brachypoda and its variety, L. brachypoda aureo-reticulata, are perhaps the best of the honeysuckles. L. Halleana is a free flowering variety, as well as a rapid grower. The native coral honeysuckle, L. sempervirens, is a very pretty variety and ought to find a place in every collection.

Lycium Chinense is excellent for planting among rocks or by rough stone walls. During the fall months the bright scarlet berries are very showy.

Vitis heterophylla variegata is another excellent covering for rough rock or rustic work. It has beautifully variegated foliage and the loose bunches of blue-colored berries which appear in fall make it very attractive.

Ampelopsis quinquefolia, the Virginian creeper, is another vine, like the preceding two, very useful among rustic work. The brilliant hues of the autumn foliage are its chief attraction.

Wistarias, though rather slow of growth at the start, will in the end amply repay for the patience of waiting a few years. The Chinese varieties, W. Sinensis and W. Sinensis alba, are perhaps the most satisfactory, though the Japanese varieties, W. multijuga and W. multijuga alba, have much larger racemes of flowers.

Forsythia suspensa, though not often used as a climber, is easily trained as such and when in bloom in the early days of spring nothing can be more attractive than the richness of the golden bells. The foliage is also a clean green color, making it attractive the whole season.

Travelling through Massachusetts recently the writer could not but admire the beauties of Clematis paniculata; at almost every porch it seemed to find a place, and not unworthily. The great abundance of bloom and season of flowering will always permit this vine to hold its place as a leader among our hardy climbers.

JOHN W. DUNCAN.

The Pan-American Exposition.

The accompanying illustration shows a portion of the Pan-American Exposition grounds as they appeared on September 13. It is a view from the forecourt looking westward and includes a portion of the grounds set aside for exhibits. To realize the progress that has been made it must be remembered that the whole surface of this part has been raised over three feet from its natural grade since the first of last May. The clay was excavated from one of the mirror lakes on the right of the picture. The trees and shrubs were planted about the first of June, using large quantities of good soil; then the whole surface was covered with four inches of good loam, with a surface covering of fine manure and sand. The sowing of grass seed was continued without interruption every day during the summer, and with the constant use of the hose it has been a phenomenal success; in fact, the grass over this portion of the grounds is a most excellent lawn and has the appearance of having been down several years instead of only three months. There are several hundred beds of all dimensions, which do not show in the picture. Wherever a bed was designed the clay was excavated fifteen inches, and in many cases eighteen inches, and strong, heavy loam, with about one-third of manure, was filled in.

The beds of dark foliage in the foreground are hybrid perpetual roses from several exhibitors. There are also many more of these that can not be readily seen. These plants were taken from a root house between June 1 and June 10, six or seven weeks later than is usually the time for planting. With a severe pruning and a liberal use of the hose they made a good start and in most cases have made a wonderful growth. Beds of Ulrich Brunner, Paul Neyron and other rounding the grand basin will be a brilliant display of bulbous plants.

A great deal of work has been done on the southeast section of the grounds and on the islands. Thousands of shrubs are being planted and there are no bare spots. In every available place where it is too shady to have grass thrive the surface is covered with Vinca minor, money vine and other creeping plants.

The banks in the foreground of the second illustration are the west side of what is known as the forecourt, from which a fine bridge will pass over to where one can see the unfinished retaining wall. The building in the distance is the only building left standing on the grounds that existed when the ground was acquired, and is the most unpretentious of all. It was formerly the Country club and after a suitable embellishment it will be handed over for the Women's building. The building in course of construction to the right is a portion of the Mines building, which is now complete.

Though not in the horticultural line, the writer cannot refrain from mentioning the beautiful appearance of the buildings now that the coloring is going on. Instead of being a "White City" the eye is charmed with the most exquisite blending of colors, and this is to be carried out on every building. The Horticulture building will soon be completed, also the conservatories leading to the Mines and Graphic Arts building. The conservatories will be heated by the first of the New Year.

varieties, containing 500 of each variety, have in some cases reached a height of five feet.

Many large exhibits of tulips are now being planted. There will be no vacant beds on the first of next May. In all there will be upwards of 100,000 tulips and hyacinths, Spanish irises and other bulbous flowers. A few dozen small beds will be left for masses of pansies in different colors. This section of the grounds, entering from Elmwood avenue, must make a grand display. Mr. Ulrich, the landscape architect, is also planting in the grand court a very large exhibit of bulbs. Long panels, 12x400 feet, are filled with tulips and hyacinths in geometrical designs. In many places sur-be more beautiful than that much advertised affair, and in horticulture we shall be lengths ahead. Several car loads of plants have lately arrived from California to be used in the adornment of the grand court. They consist of yuccas, dracenas, bamboos, pampas grass and many large palms. The Department of Works is propagating many thousands of plants to be used in vases, hundreds of which will be distributed over the grounds, and also boxes, which will be lavishly used at the base of many of the buildings.

ELECTION AND OTHER MATTERS DIVERT THOUGHTS FROM THE CONGESTED MARKET.—UNFAVORABLE CONDITIONS CAUSE LITTLE GRUMBLING.—AMPLE SUPPLIES OF CARNATIONS FOR MANY MARCHERS.—AT THE HOME OF ERICAS.—SCHULTHEIS AND HIS MANY DOINGS.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

The city has been well supplied with diversions, political and otherwise, and although the wholesale flower market has continued in a state of congestion, people have accepted the situation as a matter of course and turned their thoughts elsewhere for the time being and the accumulating ranks of chrysanthemums seem powerless to even ruffle the good nature of the sorely tried wholesalers, while growers, with admirable judgment, are discreetly keeping away from the wholesale section at present. The retail element as represented by the younger generation, is quite out of its head over the success of last Saturday's parade and the novel sensation of having really gotten together for once and co-operated in something; so now they are seriously discussing the feasibility of forming some sort of an organization where they can meet one another more frequently in a social way. This is something decidedly new in retail history and indicates a movement upward in the scale—a benefit for once directly traceable to politics.

Our prediction of last week, that there would be enough carnations and chrysanthemums for all demands on account of the big parade, were fully borne out in the results. True, the rain had a disastrous effect and curtailed business badly in this line, but the accumulation left on the market was a sufficient index that, even with the brightest of skies, there would have been no shortage. With the immense resources of to-day the chances of tying up the market on any particular class of flowers are so uncertain that it seems a folly for anyone to attempt it. Some of the more sanguine operators, who bought up heavily last week in anticipation of a boom on Saturday, were, on Sunday morning, sadder, also wiser men, and considerable material was unloaded at less than the cost. The carnation did not make as brilliant a success in the parade as would have been the case had the chrysanthemum not been also in the field. Its overpowering bigness was too much for the divine flower under such circumstances, and the thousands of flaring paper "carnations" that were worn also had a share in placing the real article in an uncomfortable light. Roses are having a rather hard time of it a'together. A Greek, bearing away on his shoulders a bundle of American Beauties nearly as big as himself and flaunting the bill showing that he had purchased them for eight dollars a hundred last Monday, was a good indication of the prevailing condition of the rose market supply and demand.

Ericas at A. Schultheis' are exceedingly fine this season. Several houses are filled with the popular Christmas bloomers, melanthera and Wilmoreaana, besides epacris and several novelties, and there are long frames outside filled with spring flowering species. These frames are almost indispensable in a business of this kind. They are heated with several lines of hot water pipes and furnish accommodations for thousands of azaleas for Easter, ardisias for next season, etc. Ericas have made a good growth the past summer and have set the buds well, but are rather late as compared with past seasons. The recent warm weather has pushed them forward rapidly, however. Azaleas, home grown, so called because imported last spring and grown on in frames during the summer, are very luxuriant and well budded and are more pleasing in their slightly irregular outlines than the close cropped forms that prevail in the newly imported specimens. Among the newer azaleas is Schreiveriana, a pink and white double-flowered Easter variety. Bougainvillea Sanderiana is being kept cool and almost totally dry to induce the formation of flower buds, this process being indispensable if a grower is to make any success with this plant. Mr. Schultheis has over 200,000 forcing bulbs stored in flats and pans in the big bulbshed and is still spreading out, three new houses and a storage shed especially for bay trees having been just completed.

A bogus check swindler had a good time in Brooklyn the other day, Messrs. Weir and Phillips both being neatly victimized, which proves the operator to have been more than usually brilliant. Detectives, however, finally landed him in the police station.

A. Herrmann has leased a building at 709 First avenue, where he will do all his manufacturing of cypas wreaths, metal designs, sheaves, etc., and the place on 34th street will be used entirely for show rooms and salesroom. Mr. Herrmann reports an unprecedented October business, with the supply of many things behind the demand.

Thorley has opened his new branch establishment at Forty-fifth street and Fifth avenue. It is elegantly equipped and decorated.

Chas. Stahl has started a new retail store at 610 One Hundred and Forty-third street.

H. A. Bunyard has moved from 42 W. Twenty-eighth street to number 38, same street.

The American Institute chrysanthemum show will be held on November 14 and 15.

The New York Florists' Club will meet on Monday evening, November 12.

WEATHER AIDS AN IMPROVEMENT IN QUALITIES, BUT BUSINESS SHOWS NO CHANGE.—MARKET DULL.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS AT THEIR HEIGHT.—ANNUAL MEETING OF MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—MANY VISITORS IN TOWN.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

There is very little change in the business situation as indicated in recent notes, excepting that better weather seems to have generally improved the quality of stock coming into the wholesale establishments. Election has interfered, as usual, with business and things have not yet recovered their normal conditions. It is apparent, however, that chrysanthemums are now at their full height, and, having been driven in rapidly by the recent warm weather, may be expected to get on the decline soon. In other lines of flowers the supply is not increasing to any extent, and it is probable that should cold, wintry weather be experienced soon, there may be something of a scarcity in certain lines. All are looking forward now to Thanksgiving, which is the next occasion of importance to the floral trade, and there is considerable conjecture as to how the supply at that time will hold out. The retail florists generally speak hopefully of the future, as it appears from their standpoint, and are fairly well satisfied with their fall business up to date, it having been in some respects better than was anticipated.

On Saturday, November 3, at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the executive committee reported an appropriation of $8,200 for prizes and gratuities during the coming year. It was voted that President Appleton should continue chairman of the building committee and that President-elect Hadwen be added to that committee. A letter was received from H. H. Hinnewell, announcing his resignation from the executive and finance committees of the society and same was accepted with regret. It was voted that the recent bequest of $2500 from John S. Farlow be used as a fund the interest of which shall be used to purchase books for the library. W. N. Craig, gardener for Mrs. F. L. Ames, received a silver medal for an exhibit of twelve seedling cypripediums.

The chrysanthemum show at Horticultural Hall has attracted quite a number of strangers to the city, among those in attendance being, W. P. Craig, of Philadelphia; Henry Hurrell, Summit, N. J.; D. Macrorie, South Orange, N. J.; J. H.

Playdon, Andover; B. J. Connolly, Taunton; J. W. Withers, New York; Robt. Laurie, Arthur Griffin and Andrew Pow, Newport, R. I.; Eugene Dailedouze, Flatbush, N. Y.; C. Warburton, Fall River; Geo. McWilliam, Whitinsville; Jos. Clark and H. Shaw, Manchester; John Shields and Edw. Dolby, Dalton.

Mrs. M. Thompson, formerly with the Twombly Co., has opened a retail florist's establishment at 171 A Tremont street.

J. H. Cox has gone to Peoria, Ill., to take charge of the establishment of J. C. Murray.

SUPPLY OF STOCK SHORTENED BY COOL WEATHER.—PROST INVIGORATES DEMAND.—ITEMS OF SUPPLY AT HAND.—STORY OF THE CURRENT MARKET PRICES.—THE CLUB HAS A MEETING.—SMOKER PLANNED.

The weather is a little cooler, which has shortened up the crops of roses somewhat and has made a slight improvement in the demand. Maids have been poor, the color being bad. There has been an extra tinge noticed, however, the last day or two. Beauties continue to improve and they are now to be had with almost any length of stem. Prices range from $1 to $3 per dozen. Teas sell from $3 to $5, the latter for the best grade, although a few specials selected from these are quoted at $6. The best white rose is still the Kaiserin, but the Brides are fast coming into shape and will supersede them for the season. Carnations are quite plentiful; the old standbys, Scott, Hill and Cartledge, are much in evidence. They are cutting them now with good length of stem. New sorts, such as Crane, Crocker and a few Lawson are showing up well, but rather short of stem, the Lawson quite so; still the flowers are large and will soon come all right in other respects. Violets are getting better, but are none too plentiful and the price has receded to 50 cents for all but the extras, for which 75 cents is asked. Chrysanthemums are now in full supply and there can be said to be no glut, most of the stock, if at all good, moving along nicely at fair prices. The varieties now in are Ivory, Queen, Maud Dean, the unrivalled pink; Modesto, Whilldin, Bonnaffon, Mrs. Childs and some of W. K. Harris' seedlings, the best being Florence Harris, a large, straw-colored yellow, of good form and a fine stiff stem. This latter Mr. Harris has grown for some years, but will not sell the stock as he can sell a house of this kind nicely at a fair price, but thinks if it was generally grown he would have trouble to meet the competition. Prices of chrysanthemums range according to quality from 50 cents to $2.50 per dozen, those selling for from $1 to $2 per dozen being the most popular and quick selling kinds. Plants are moving with more life in the stores and the general prospects for business are much better.

The November meeting of the club was quite well attended. The feature of the evening was the paper on "Chrysanthemums, from the Commission Man's Standpoint," by S. S. Pennock. This was a very scholarly essay showing careful preparation and appears in another column in this paper. The chrysanthemum show being so near at hand, it was thought advisable to have a smoker to entertain any out of town members of the craft. This will be held on Wednesday evening, admission being by card only, to be had of any member of the house committee, which, with John Westcott, as chairman, has entire charge of the affair.

There promises to be a very good show, from the way the entries are coming in. Secretary Rust is all smiles these days and says there will not be any spare room in the hall the day the exhibition opens. K.

DEMAND NOT YET STRONG SAVE FOR EXHIBITION BLOOMS.—CUTS SOMEWHAT REDUCED BY COOLER WEATHER.—BRISK BUSINESS ANTICIPATED.—PROSPECT FOR A SHORTAGE OF ROSES.—VARIOUS LOCAL NOTES OF INTEREST.

The one improvement in the cut flower market this week has arisen from the fact that the rose crop has shrunk very materially, although not enough to have any effect on prices. There are still roses of all grades for all orders, but as compared to a week ago the over-supply is nothing. The result of the unfavorable weather has been that qualities have deteriorated somewhat and it is not unlikely that the next few weeks will see a considerable shortage, as nearly everyone's houses are off crop. Carnations are still pursuing the even tenor of their way, with no great over-supply and a fair demand for stock of good quality. There are, however, too many chrysanthemums to be moved at what the growers consider satisfactory prices. The election and its attendant excitements have had effect upon demand, as has the stormy weather, and very good blooms have been selling at $1.50 per dozen, stock which once brought $2.50. Violets have not made any great commotion in the market this week, and miscellaneous items, such as lily of the valley, have been in about the right supply. There is a very general feeling that business will wake up next week and that it will be the real opening of the season. Every one seems to feel confident of good trade, in which event good stock should command fair prices.

The new red rose which captured the silver cup at the flower show is already favorably known by a great many local retailers, it having been on sale here for some time under the designation of "No. 19." Its name is Marquise Litta. Mr. E. G. Hill brought the variety from Europe and has divided the stock with Bassett & Washburn and the South Park Floral Company. All three growers have been sending in good flowers for several weeks past. The sort has an excellent color and the retailers say that it possesses remarkable keeping qualities.

E. G. Hill was unfortunate in that the train that brought his exhibition stock from Richmond was delayed two hours and a half by a wreck and his blooms arrived after the judging had commenced. Among other things which he sent up for exhibition were twenty-five very handsome blooms of Mrs. O. P. Bassett, twenty-five of Mrs. Robinson, twenty-five of G. W. Childs, and an entry in the class for the collection of not less than forty named varieties.

E. E. Pieser, of the Kennicott Bros. Co., has long maintained that Major Bonnaffon was the best commercial chrysanthemum, but he says that this is crowded hard, if not distanced, by the new claimant, Colonel Appleton, of which they have been receiving some very fine blooms of late. They have brought the top price.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a great many blooms of Leopold Ine's red seedling carnation, of which he benched several thousand plants, and is satisfied that it is the most prolific bloomer to date. The variety has not yet been named, but the stock will very likely be offered next season.

W. W. Barnard & Co. report a very brisk fall season. Arnold Ringer has recently been in the greens district and reports that the crop is of excellent quality this season, but that picking began late and supplies may be cut off by severe weather.

The Lincoln Park conservatories will be lighted by electricity and open to the public evenings during the annual chrysanthemum show there. The plants are in fine condition and make a very attractive display.

James Jensen had an editorial in last Sunday's Tribune on "Parks and Boulevards and their Influence on the Life of the Community." Mr. Jensen is doing quite a little work this fall at Lake Geneva.

Wieter Bros. have 65,000 plants of American Beauty on their benches, and are congratulating themselves that they will have a good crop for Thanksgiving and a better one for Christmas.

C. M. Dickinson and W. E. Lynch are figuring that they will be able to handle more business this season than ever before in the history of the firm of E. H. Hunt.

T. J. Corbrey's health has improved so rapidly of late that he has decided to remain in Chicago and continue his business on West Madison street.

Poehlmann Brothers have been having Romans and Paper Whites for several days, and have a big lot of bulbous stock coming on.

E. C. Aming is figuring that it will take 3,000,000 ferns to supply his trade up to the time new ferns are to be had next year.

A. Dietsch & Co report the past season the busiest in their experience and say that they expect much building next year.

"Uncle John" was around as usual for the chrysanthemum show.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET TO HORTICULTURISTS.—ORATORS FROM MANY POINTS TELL INTERESTING THINGS.—VARIOUS NOTES OF THE CRAFT.

The Shaw banquet to gardeners, florists and nurserymen was held on November 3 and 112 gentlemen were present. The table decorations were very good and were made by Wm. Schray & Sons. The speakers' table had three large pieces, one of pink roses in the center and two of white chrysanthemums at each end, and the entire table was trimmed with fern leaves and smilax, with a pink carnation at each plate. The small tables and the entire hall were also neatly decorated. The menu was of the very best, and after the dinner Prof. Trelease, who was the toastmaster for the evening, gave a short talk on why the dinner was given, and then introduced Patrick O'Mara, of New York. Mr. O'Mara spoke for a few moments about the S. A. F., and invited all present to attend the next meeting at Buffalo in 1901. Prof. Trelease next introduced Julius Burge, of St. Louis, as the "Man with a Home." Mr. Burge gave a talk on what the house and yard of a private citizen should look like. Jared G. Smith, of Washington, D. C., and formerly at the Missouri Botanical Garden, gave a very good explanation of why Mr. Shaw made the garden what it is to-day. J. J. Beneke then spoke about the previous chrysanthemum shows and the coming one. Mr. Scott, of Buffalo, spoke at some length on the horticultural and floricultural departments of the Pan-American Exposition. Ex-governor Francis, Mr. Nelson and others also spoke.

The wholesale market has not been very good and the prices vary considerably. The market is somewhat glutted with white chrysanthemums and white carnations, but outside of that all others sell well. Some fine and select Major Bonnaffon and Robinson are seen and sell on sight. The retail trade is reported very slow down town, but out a ways all greenhouse stores report fairly good business.

Everything is running smoothly towards a good exhibition next week, and if the weather holds cool and remains bright I do not see why we should not have a big crowd with the admission lowered to 25 cents.

The Missouri Botanical Garden Improvement Club will hold its next meeting on Monday, November 12, and several interesting papers will be read.

The Englemann Botanical Club will hold its next meeting on Thursday, November 15, at the accustomed place.

CANADIANS CELEBRATE THE RETURN OF SOLDIERS.—FLORISTS DECORATE.—MUCH EXPECTED OF A NEW CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Never before in the annals of the city has more enthusiasm been shown than was accorded the soldiers who have just returned from South Africa, and never have such quantities of hemlock and pine wreathing been utilized as were required on this occasion. The florists made a special hit by tying bows of patriotic ribbon on chrysanthemums, and hot cakes never sold as readily as these souvenirs. Great praise is due Park Commissioner Chambers for his ingenuity in arranging the decoration of the lawn of New City Hall, which was highly spoken of by everyone. Dunlop also caught the patriotic feeling by having in his window a large Union Jack made of cape flowers, a stack of rifles, drums and other accoutrements of war. For a background he used khaki and the display proved very effective. All the florists made some attempt at decorating, using many yellow chrysanthemums for khaki color.

The new chrysanthemum grown by Miller & Son looks fine and I was told by the head of the firm that the entire cut, some 4000, with the exception of what are to be used for show purposes, was sold to Timothy Eaton, after whom the flower is named. Great things are expected of this chrysanthemum and, as the originators are going to show it at New York, Philadelphia, Providence and other cities, we expect it to be a large factor in bringing Canadians more in touch with the florists of the United States. Word has come that the variety won the C. S. A. cup at Chicago November 9.

A week ago our show was looked on as a probable failure, but with the weather we are having, chrysanthemums are developing nicely and all prizes will be keenly contested for. The flowers do not look as large as in former years but the colors and foliage are splendid.

Society is now in its glory and good stock is not over-abundant, for the growers are saving their best blooms for the show.

WARM AUTUMN HAS A VERY BAD EFFECT ON STOCK AND THE MARKET.—THE CLUB ENJOYS ENTERTAINMENT, REFRESHMENTS AND SMOKE.

The past few weeks have been a period of extreme dullness in the flower trade. The weather was extraordinary for the season, the days being invariably bright, with high temperature, which hastened the maturity of chrysanthemums and brought an immense crop of roses. The same conditions had the effect of a decided decrease in the ordinary demand expected at this season, for everywhere there could be seen flowers outside, which easily survived the very light frosts that have visited us. Funeral work was responsible for what little activity there was, but just at present it is getting colder and the beneficial effect upon trade is immediately felt.

The club meeting Wednesday evening was attended by almost every member, active and honorary, the occasion being a "smoker," and the second of the kind in the history of the club. It was an event that will be long remembered as most enjoyable and serving the purpose of a permanent value to the participants because of the friendship and good feeling it engenders and fosters. Before the hilarity of the evening commenced the regular order of the meeting was carried out, which included the reading of a paper on geraniums by Mr. Strittmater. The varied experience of the author enabled him to handle the subject in a masterly manner which greatly pleased and interested his many hearers. The entertainment committee had provided a long and varied programme, which included music, humorous speeches and recitations. Refreshments were served, and at midnight the party visited Breitmeyers' chrysanthemum show.

Capper, Fowler & Company is the firm name of the latest accession to the ranks of the retailers, at 319 Woodward avenue. Their good location and neatly arranged place indicate a successful future.

President Geo. A. Rackham took a late train for Chicago Wednesday evening to attend the chrysanthemum show in that city.

SPLENDID SEEDLING CARNATIONS GROWN BY BAUM.—GOOD CHRYSANTHEMUMS—JOTTINGS OF OTHER GROWERS.—BUSINESS GOOD.

C. L. Baum's stock is looking well. Chrysanthemums are good and he has been cutting some very nice Robinson and Ivory. Most varieties are late this season, but his one house in chrysanthemums will give 4,000 fine blooms. Carnations are starting very nicely. He has two houses of them and one bench in another house. Mrs. G. M. Bradt is good and promises well. Late planted stock is much better than that which was planted early, as the weather in July and August was very hot and dry. Most growers will not plant next year until in October. Mr. Baum has a nice lot of seedlings in their first, second and third years. A red, now in its third year, a cross of Jubilee and Armazindy, is very prolific, more so than any red he has ever grown. The stem and bloom are identical with Armazindy except in color, which is a little lighter than Jubilee. It does not burst the calyx and stands heat and drought better than any other variety Mr. Baum has ever grown, which is very essential in the south, as a great many varieties burn up here. The next best carnation for the field and also inside here is Armazindy. If it were only pure white it would be the ideal white for this locality. Mr. Baum also has a pink sport of Armazindy, now in its third year, which he will make his standard pink next season.

Charles W. Crouch has added a large rose house this summer, now having twenty-four houses. His stock is looking fine. There are seven houses in carnations. The other houses are in roses and miscellaneous plants.

Business has been very good considering the unusual warm weather we have been having. There was no frost until Sunday morning, November 4, where we almost always have killing frosts by October 10.

William Crouch has built a forcing house, 20x125, heated by hot water, and intends to use it for cucumbers and other vegetables. He has quite a large vegetable garden and a good trade. SOUTH.

TRADE GOOD IN THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS AND CARNATIONS IN DEMAND.—WHOLESALE PRICES.—COL. APPLETON PRONOUNCED A WINNER.

Trade has been very good in this city during the past few weeks, there being a brisk demand for chrysanthemums and carnations. Malmo & Co. and the Woodland Park Floral Company both make a fine display of these blooms. The wholesale price for the best Ivory and Major Bonnaffon is 20 cents each for the first grade flowers, 15 cents for second and $1 per dozen for ordinary stock. Carnations are worth, wholesale, Marquis, 4 cents; Crane, Flora Hill, Mrs. Bradt, Gen. Maceo, Genevieve Lord and America, 3 cents, and Wm. Scott, Cerise Queen and Lizzie McGowan, 2 cents.

The Washington Floral Co., whose business is principally wholesale, have undoubtedly the finest carnations and chrysanthemums seen in Seattle at this time of the year and they have a demand for more than they can supply. This firm commenced cutting chrysanthemums October 1, Midge being the variety, followed by Ivory ten days later, and for three weeks they had the market entirely to themselves, except for some stock shipped in from California, which cannot compare with their product.

The character of growth and the fine blooms of the new chrysanthemum, Col. D. Appleton, as seen here should denote this variety as a winner. Among carnations G. H. Crane is a great favorite and a good seller here. Marquis also is doing well and is liked better than Genevieve Lord; though the latter has made good growth, it seems inclined to be more "grassy" than Marquis. The Mrs. Thomas Lawson is doing well, producing flowers that are truly wonderful. In whites Flora Hill is the best of them all out here, with Glacier a good second.

Temperature Indicator.

ED. AM. FLORIST.—With regard to the inquiry of "S" as to the Wilder electric temperature indicator I wish to say that last winter I found the device most accurate in ringing alarms.

Portland, Ore. F. SEYMOUR.

New Rose Registered.

The American Rose Society registers the following for John Charlton & Sons, Rochester, N. Y.:

Rose President McKinley, saved from a promiscuous lot of seedlings, raised from seed saved from a collection of H.
P. roses. It is a strong growing variety, having large, attractive, fine foliage. It makes strong shoots, which are quite spiny, and is entirely hardy. Its color is deep rose-pink and is quite persistent.

American Rose Society.

Secretary Barron has mailed Bulletin
No. 3 of the society, containing a preliminary schedule of premiums for the second annual exhibition to be held in New York in March, 1901. As regards regular classes the schedule remains much as last year, but a number of innovations are listed, including a gold medal to be held one year by the grower making the best display of cut blooms of varieties introduced within four years. Noteworthy additions are made to the section for pot plants. In the special classes many valuable trophies are again offered, a number of them having been up last year and not becoming personal property of the winner. A challenge cup is offered for competition among private gardeners, but the details are not announced. There are altogether 256 classes. The scale of points to be employed in judging this exhibition was published on page 345 of our issue for October 13.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

Following are the reports of the committees judging seedlings and sports:

Chicago, October 27.—Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Michigan, exhibited Omega, a yellow, reflexed, Japanese variety,
which scored 87 points, commercial scale.

Philadelphia, November 3.—John Cook,
Baltimore, Md., exhibited a bluish white, Japanese, reflexed variety, scoring 89 points, commercial scale; 87 points, exhibition scale. Name will be furnished next week.

Ernest Schreiber, gardener for Wm. L.
Elkins, Esq., Elkins, Pa., exhibited an incurved, Japanese, pink variety, which scored 79 points, commercial scale; 76
points exhibition scale.

Wm. Kleinheinz, gardener for P. A. B.
Widener, Esq., Ogontz, Pa., exhibited D.
Josephine, a bright yellow, incurved, Japanese, scoring 89 points, commercial scale; 88 points, exhibition scale.

New York, November 3—Wm. Kleinheinz exhibited D. Josephine, which scored, commercial scale, 83 points.

John N. May, Summit, N. J., exhibited a terra cotta red variety, Japanese, reflexed, scoring, commercial scale, 87 points. A very light pink Japanese reflexed, by same exhibitor, scored, commercial scale, 74 points. Names of these varieties will be furnished next week.

EDWIN LONSDALE, Sec'y.

The Best Roses.

The records of the English exhibitions during the past seven years, according to the Journal of Horticulture, show that the following are the best twenty-five hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses, in the order named: Mrs. John Laing, Ulrich Brunner, Mrs. W. J. Grant (H. T.),
Mrs. R. G. Sharman-Crawford, Caroline
Testout (H. T.), A. K. Williams, Marquise Litta, (H. T.), Her Majesty, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria (H. T.), La France

three latter varieties, it should be stated that they occupy the same numerical positions in the list.

Cincinnati.

STATE OF TRADE.—DEMAND SHOWS A CONSIDERABLE IMPROVEMENT.—WITH THE NEW CARNATIONS.—JONES MEETS A FALL.—NOTES.

Business Monday and Tuesday was very poor. Warm weather brought out an abundance of stock, a good deal of which found its way into the waste barrel. Wednesday, however, the Paxton-Price wedding used up considerable stock, and with the advent of cooler weather Thursday business braced up and by Saturday night stock was pretty well cleaned up in the commission houses. There seems to be a scarcity of small chrysanthemums, undoubtedly owing to the demand for All Saints' day. Good carnations are none too plentiful. In writing about carnations a few words about some of the most prominent of the season's introductions would not be amiss. Ethel Crocker and Genevieve Lord seem to be the most satisfactory, with Lawson next. Olympia plants are small but healthy. The Marquis flowers look as if they were going to sleep. This variety, however, is sending up some splendid shoots which will give us some good blooms later on. Growers at the flower market last Saturday exhibited chrysanthemums galore. Phil Popp's stand showed up the best, with well grown pot plants and fine blooms of yellow and white Robinson.

What might have proved a serious accident happened to Charles Jones, of the Walnut Hills Floral Bazaar, last Friday. He was filling a large stand with plants in his shed when the stand fell over, and in trying to get out of the way Charley slipped and fell down the steps leading to the boiler room, the stand falling on top of him. He received two bad cuts on the arm, which were sewed up.

The first of our monthly exhibitions for the season will take place at the Jabez Elliott Flower Market, up stairs in the club room, on Saturday, November 17. It will be a chrysanthemum show with roses and carnations as a side issue.

About the only event in society the past week was the Price-Paxton wedding last Thursday. Sunderbruch decorated the church with white chrysanthemums and palms, and the residence with pink roses and asparagus.

Frank Ball, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Co., reports shipping trade as good since Wednesday.

Henry Wellman, who has been bothered with rheumatism, is able to be about again. D.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLOIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

JOHN T. BUCKBEE, they say, has gone to Hawaii for an indefinite period.

CHARLES MAY SEARS, senior member of the firm of Sears & Nichols, Chillicothe, Ohio, packers of vegetables, died October 22.

LESTER C. MORSE, of the C. C. Morse Co., Santa Clara, California, is making his eastern trip and will be in Chicago November 10.

QUEDLINBURG, Germany, October 25.—The crop of flower seeds in general has turned out pretty fair, exceptions being such perennials as bellis, campanula, polyanthus and a few others. In vegetable seeds many kinds are short, especially peas, beans, celery, mangel and carrots.

GEORGE URQUHART, late vice-president of the Plant Seed Co., St. Louis, and still a stockholder, has retired from active duties in that concern. Mr. Urquhart has been connected with the seed business for the past fifty-three years and although a veteran in the ranks says he is enjoying good health and is as active as ever. He is making his headquarters at present with the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., which has just moved into a new store at the old stand, the former store having been totally destroyed by fire last February.

Washington, D. C.

Trade is improving a little and some of the prominent florists have a decoration for a wedding or a small reception now and then. Roses are very plentiful. Most of the store windows are tastefully decorated. Many are using autumn foliage to good effect.

J. H. Small & Sons and J. R. Freeman have been cutting quite a number of fine chrysanthemums.

George A. Leissler's carnations, violets and roses are making a fine showing, as are his Boston and other ferns. P. G.

HUDSON, MASS.—Kennedy Bros., of Stow, have bought the large hothouse built by C. B. Brigham last winter and will remove it to Stow.

PARIS, KY.—The blue grass establishment of R. B. Hutchcraft, including 20,000 bushels of grass seed, was destroyed by fire November 2.

WESTERLY, R. I.—S. J. Reuter has 600 plants of Mrs. Lawson carnation which he is growing for propagating purposes. They are showing splendid health.

DIXON, ILL.—O. L. Baird has a range of five houses, well stocked, and everything in first-class condition. He is growing many more violets than heretofore.

FORT DODGE, IA.—H. E. Mitting, formerly a stockholder in the Morris Floral Co., Morris, Ill., has bought an interest in the Fort Dodge Greenhouse and Nursery Company, of John U. Kellenberger, and will henceforth be the business manager of the concern.

CHRYSANTHEMUM.

COL. D. APPLETON.

This variety, which we introduced last spring, has proved to be a prize-winner in every respect, and is undoubtedly the finest yellow chrysanthemum grown to-day, either for commercial purposes or for exhibition. If you failed to secure a stock of it last spring, let us book your order at once, while you think of it, for a stock of this for next year. This is not a variety that can only be grown by experts, but it is one of the healthiest growers and the most easily grown of all the varieties. It is a wonderfully healthy grower, with the most perfect foliage, and can be grown to perfection under ordinary culture; it is as easily grown as any variety that we know of. It has a magnificent flower of large size, and meets all the requirements of a commercial and exhibition sort. Let us book your order at once for spring delivery. We can furnish fine plants of the true stock. Plants ready February 1, 1901. Price, $8.00 per 100.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

has now arrived, and we have filled all orders in hand, and have a small surplus. Advices from Europe are to the effect that the crop runs very much shorter than expected, and that prices have advanced, and it is doubtful if all orders will be filled in full. If you have not already secured your supplies, we would advise you to place your order without delay.

We offer extra quality three-year old German pips, first-class quality—$22.50 per case 2,500 pips; in smaller quantities, $10.00 per thousand. Our Pierson's Premier is a fine selected Valley for those who want a superior article at a moderate price. This is a grade that we sell largely. $27.50 per case 2,500 pips; in smaller quantities, $12.50 per thousand. Pierson's Perfection, an extra selected grade for those who desire the very finest Valley obtainable, and a grade that should be used for very early forcing. No better Valley can be supplied than this grade. It will produce the largest spikes, with the greatest number of bells, and will give the very largest percentage of first-class flowers; can be forced earlier than any other quality. $32.50 per case 2,500 pips; in smaller quantities, $15.00 per thousand. We are also in receipt of our importations of

Stock is in fine shape. We have a small surplus, and offer it as long as unsold at the following prices:

Extra fine, strong clumps especially grown for forcing,

JAPONICA.....	$8.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, $4.00 per 100.
COMPACTA MULTIFLORA.....	9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.
ASTILBOIDES FLORIBUNDA.....	9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

CONDIS M. PARKS has sold his nursery at Bourbon, Ind., to J. E. McCoy.

E. H. RIEHL will start a nursery at Alton, Ill., having purchased the farm known as the John Howard place.

IN spite of the large crop apple growers are securing excellent prices where they are careful to pack only prime fruit.

IT is the consensus of opinion that this season has seen larger plantings than heretofore of decorative nursery stock.

P. S. PETERSON & SON have just planted an arboretum about the High School building at La Grange, Ill. They made use of 166 varieties of trees and shrubs and also thirty-five species of herbaceous plants.

THE American white elm possesses a character peculiarly typical of New England, but it thrives over an extended area and there is nothing better for avenue planting. It is not the tree of the day, but of the century.

NURSERYMEN of the States are taking full advantage of the opportunity to send stock into Canada. The only ports of entry are St. John, Windsor, Niagara Falls, Winnipeg and Vancouver and the traffic must cease December 15.

By a recent purchase Thomas Meehan & Sons, of Germantown, Philadelphia, acquired two extensive properties adjoining their Dreshertown nurseries. These will be added to the already large acreage and planted immediately with the better class of hardy ornamentals.

Sioux City, Ia.

Business is very satisfactory, considering the unusual weather conditions, and roses and carnations are in good demand. J. R. Elder has some splendid violets which are selling rapidly and his chrysanthemums promise well. He will have Golden Wedding "as big as a hornet's nest."

The weather has been remarkably fine all season and at the end of October there had been no time to injure outdoor stock. But everyone is ready for winter and expects a prosperous season.

J. C. Rennison added one large house to his establishment during the past summer and J. R. Elder also added one for carnations.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The Springfield Botanical Society, on October 26 and 27, gave an exhibition of mushrooms, about which there is at present great interest here. The society endeavored to instruct the visitors as much in the dangers lurking in the mushroom as in its many merits as an article of food.

WE ARE PROUD of the high grade of the Stock we handle; our Cut Flowers are not excelled in any house; there are none better in the country. We are equipped with large supplies of American Beauty of the best quality, strong, clean stems, well clothed with foliage, and good buds in whatever length desired. Our Brides and Bridesmaids absolutely out-class everything in the market. We have led on Chrysanthemums since the beginning of the season; we shall keep it up. Our Carnation growers are producing blooms of exhibition grade and we can supply such fancy sorts as Dorothy, Ethel Crocker, G. H. Crane, The Marquis, Mrs. Lawson, Genevieve Lord, Mrs. Bradt, White Cloud, Jubilee, Triumph, America and Mary Wood.

We are making every effort to take care of the buyers who want regular supplies of strictly high-grade stock, and as our capacity is very large we shall be pleased to add you to our list of customers. We can at all times supply everything which is to be had in Chicago.

OUR PASTIMES.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Addresses all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

NEW YORK.—Election excitement and other diversions proved too much for the majority of the bowlers last Monday and the alleys were almost deserted. Next Monday, November 12, the games will be played in the afternoon because of the club meeting in the evening.

At Flatbush.

The sensation of the last meeting of the bowlers was Riley's score of 202, which shows that this gentleman and the new alleys are getting to understand one another and makes the outlook for the future rather gloomy for would-be "pot" winners.

At Utica.

The following is the score made by Utica florists on the evening of November 5:

Player	1st	2d	3d	Av

QUIS.

At Chicago.

There has been much bowling in Chicago this week but the most noteworthy contest was that between Chicago and Milwaukee at Anson's alleys on Wednesday evening. Milwaukee took two out of three games but Chicago was ahead on the total score. Following are the figures in detail:

CHICAGO

At the conclusion of the match game both teams played another game in which the Chicago team won by 186 points. Following are the scores: Phil Hauswirth, 163; Chas. Balluff, 131; Jno. Degnan, 203; Geo. Stollery, 195; Fred. Stollery, 213; Ed. F. Winterson, 154, total, 1049. The Milwaukee scores were as follows: H. V. Hunkel, 161; Wm. Edlefsen, 128; Otto Sylvester, 144; Fred. H. Holton, 141; Alex. Klokner, 100, and C. C. Pollworth, 189.

At West Hoboken.

The North Hudson bowlers had another good time on Helfich's alleys on Wednesday evening, October 31. Scores are rather irregular as yet but the boys expect to get steadied down after a few more practice games. The following scores were recorded:

Forcing Pickaninnies.

"Mistuh," said the colored woman who was leading by the hand one of the tiniest pickaninnies that ever grew, "does you speck I could git dis chile a chance to work in dat census buildin'?"

"Why, he isn't big enough to earn a salary."

"I doesn't want 'im to git no salary. It's his smallness dat makes me wanter git 'im de place. He's de backwades' chile 'bout growin' I ever did see, an' I was in hopes dat if I could git him in de hot sun under dat glass roof I could foce 'im along a little, same as if he were a radish or a tomato."—Washington Star.

TRADE SHOWS A VERY CONSIDERABLE IMPROVEMENT.—SOME VERY GOOD STOCK AVAILABLE —NO FLOWER SHOW.

Trade is much better than two weeks ago and there seems to be a good demand for chrysanthemums, which are just now at their best. There are very few specimen plants this year and the demand seems to be for medium-sized plants to cost about $1. Roses are not in it for a few weeks, but carnations seem to hold their own. Palms are selling very slowly.

It was decided not to hold any show this year, on account of the summer being so dry that very few had any luck with their plants. They will try hard for it again next year.

E. J. Morse is sending in the finest chrysanthemums seen so far this season, in all of the leading varieties; also some very fine longiflorum lilies.

J. N. Champion & Company gave an exhibition of chrysanthemums in their foyer November 6 to 10, some very nice plants being shown.

K. Rosien, of Westville, is putting in a boiler and fixing over his boiler house. He is cutting some fine carnations, Scott and Flora Hill.

Recent visitors: J. E. Beach, Bridgeport, Conn; J. Scott, Brooklyn, N. Y. G. H.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The Central New York Horticultural Society will have a series of lectures to members this winter, but no autumn chrysanthemum show.

BUSHNELL, ILL.—E. D. Lauterbach has a water grate down-draft hot water boiler which he finds very satisfactory and which can be operated in fair sized ranges without a night fireman.

A1 A1

We are now marketing the cuts of some of the largest and best growers for this market. We have 40,000 blooms in sight, A1 in every respect, and the supply will hold on until Christmas or later. We can handle any order; none too small and none too large; give us yours.

Our own big range of glass is devoted exclusively to roses and we can at all times supply the best grades this market affords. Not only are our Beauties as good as the best, but our Brides, Maids and Meteors are a little better than most growers produce. We like to have buyers visit our rose houses at Bowmanville.

We have adequate supplies of the best quality of Carnations, all varieties, standard and novelties. Give us your order.

Every order, of whatever nature, shipped within two hours of receipt and billed at Chicago market rates.

If You Don't Buy Cut Flowers From Us,

WE sell to the house you DO buy from, so indirectly we sell to you. If you don't want it that way, send US your orders direct and WE will save you their profit. Our Beauties, Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors, Perles and Carnations are the best that come to this market. We will have a large stock right along and hope you will add your name to the list of customers this season. We will serve you promptly with good stock and no "cinch" prices so prevalent on so-called shipping orders. Two shipments daily from our greenhouses: 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. We cut from 7,000 to 10,000 daily. All stock carefully selected for shipping. No charge for P. & D.

GREENHOUSES, HINSDALE, ILLINOIS

Newark, O.

NOTINGS OF A VISIT TO TWO VERY CAPABLE GROWERS.—MUCH GOOD STOCK IN EVIDENCE—TRADE REPORTED VERY BRISK.

Chrysanthemums, plenty of them and very fine ones, both pot plants and single-stemmed, is what greeted my eyes during a recent call on Geo. L. Miller. Glory of Pacific, Robinson, Wanamaker and Mayflower do especially well with him, the blooms I saw being well worthy of the blue ribbon at any exhibition. That Mr. Miller finds a ready sale for his stock goes without saying; to put it in his own words, he is "often compelled to nip them in the bud," which means that the demand is such that the blooms are cut before they are fully developed. His general stock is all that could be desired. I noticed, among other things, a fine batch of small kentias grown from seed, and a houseful of Boston ferns.

A. J. Baldwin has added a house 20x100 to his range, now having seven houses and about 15,000 feet of glass. Mr. Baldwin, I may add, never does things by halves; his houses are built in the most approved way, vitrified tile being the material for the walls. He seems to have hit it right on Boston ferns. A houseful of these in 6-inch and 7-inch pots cannot possibly be surpassed anywhere. While the local demand for Boston ferns is quite brisk, his wholesale trade is equally encouraging, and between the two his Bostons are moving rapidly. I do not know of any place where chrysanthemums do better than in Newark. It is Mr. Baldwin's intention to give a chrysanthemum show at his place during next week. Both Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Miller report business good, with the outlook in favor of a big season. Both are alert, progressive and all-around good growers. NOMIS.

WEST MENTOR, O.—Carl Hagenburger has just completed a range of five modern houses, an office, boiler room and 50-foot smoke stack and has installed an eighty horse-power boiler. He now has a range of twelve houses and 26,000 feet of glass.

Which please keep for future use as I do not issue a catalogue and this advertisement, which appears only once, contains all I have to offer. In thus saving expenses I am enabled to sell first-class stock at moderate prices. My aim is to grow the best plants possible in the smallest pots possible to save freight charges. Below I give as close as possible description of my plants, as depending on size of pots only you might get deceived. I quote here prices, the lowest possible for the quality offered, per single plant, so the small buyer will get stock as cheap as the larger one. I always add extras to help pay freight. This offer is good as long as stock lasts, which is crowding at present a bench space of over 20,000 square feet.

Nephrolepis ...Wittboldii

is the only production of a long life among decorative plants which has been deemed worthy of dissemination under the family name. This is a credit to it. It is the equal and we think the superior of the Boston Fern and we are offering it with the firm conviction that within a comparatively brief period it will be more in demand than that justly popular variety which is now an indispensable part of every florist's stock. We pin our faith in

GEORGE WITTBOLD.

Nephrolepis ...Wittboldii

possesses all the points of excellence of the Boston Fern and out-classes it in many respects. It has the same robust growth and the enduring qualities of a house plant and in addition it has a wider, heavier, handsomer frond and the pinnae are undulated, curled, crinkled in a most distinct and attractive fashion. It propagates with great rapidity. We have grown this for several years and are sure that every grower will shortly confirm our faith in the money making quality of

FIVE REASONS Why You Should Place Your Orders for . . . AZALEAS

With Us at Once

BECAUSE You can still take advantage of the mild weather, and have the plants come through safely by freight.

BECAUSE We are the largest buyers of Azaleas in the world, and make personal inspection of the stocks before they are shipped to us, and buy for spot cash, which enables us to secure the lowest prices, and you the benefit in quality of the plants.

BECAUSE Our importations are all repacked at our own nursery. Plants that have suffered in transit, and which are not well set with buds being discarded, you receive nothing but first-class stock, which is certain to give satisfaction.

BECAUSE We can give you any special assortment of varieties that you may wish. This is a great advantage over the usual assorted case lots sent over from Belgium, which invariably contain many varieties not at all suited to the American market.

BECAUSE We wish to convince you, as we have convinced many of the leading florists of the United States, that you can buy Azaleas from us to better advantage than if you make your own importations.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT
SOC. OF AMERICAN FLORISTS

Of the Judges appointed by the PHILADELPHIA FLORISTS' CLUB to examine this Rose:

"WE ARE CONVINCED THAT THIS VARIETY IS A VALUABLE ADDITION TO THE LIST OF FORCING ROSES, BEING IN EVERY RESPECT, EXCEPT COLOR, THE EXACT COUNTERPART OF THE AMERICAN BEAUTY. THE COLOR IS A BEAUTIFUL BRIGHT PINK, WHICH IS GOOD, EVEN IN THE FULL FLOWERS. THE FRAGRANCE IS ALSO AS FINE AS THAT OF BEAUTY, AND THE EXHIBITED BLOOMS SHOWED REMARKABLE VIGOR.

SHOW WINDOWS BRIGHT WITH GOOD CHRYSANTHEMUM BLOOMS.—GOOD SALE FOR STOCK AT SATISFACTORY PRICES.

Florists' windows are now gorgeous with chrysanthemums, which are in full bloom. There seem to have been a large quantity grown and of remarkable size and quality. There has been a good demand and the prices have been very satisfactory. The white varieties predominate, while a few pink and fewer bronze sorts are noted. The yellow kinds are just beginning to show. Some good plants are in the market, too, and bring good prices, although none of the florists have grown the fancy plants of a few years ago. While not quite so showy, the plants of the present season are much more satisfactory than the fancy stock in point of profit. Violets are coming in abundantly and the prospects are fine for a great profusion through the season. Roses continue to improve in quality and are now coming on in good sizes. Some very pretty specimens of Golden Gate have been shown by one of our florists.

M. C. DORRIS.

FALL SEASON BACKWARD.—PROSPECT OF GOOD BUSINESS.—A NEW RETAIL STORE.

The season is very backward and business is unusually slow in opening because of the warm weather. Stocks have not looked so well in this vicinity for several seasons and the prospects are for a good winter's business.

W. L. Morris has just opened a new store, having removed from 516 Walnut street to 609 on the same thoroughfare. The room is commodious and contains all the devices necessary for a thoroughly up-to-date retail business. The decorations are in white and gold.

Dear Sirs:—Since using your ice case in our retail flower department we have saved 30 per cent in the consumption of ice. Our saving in flowers we cannot accurately determine, but should estimate conservatively 25 per cent. Not only this, flowers keep with us as they never did before, and retain their salable appearance longer. Your box is certainly a boon to the florists, and we predict a wonderful sale on them, especially to the florists, when their qualifications become known.

Yours truly,

MY PICTURE AS A "KID."
(Presenting a rear view of a stern reality.)

When I was young, you will observe, I was very backward; but I have got over that, and now come to the front claiming to have the best WATER HEATER, VENTILATING APPLIANCE and SASH HINGE for greenhouse purposes, that are in the market.

Furthermore, they are so simple in construction I can afford to sell them much cheaper than other styles.

Now florists, don't be backward in sending for a catalogue. Remember, when you find you NEED a thing, the sooner you get it, the more you will have for your money, again I say "DON'T BE BACKWARD," but "keep up with the band wagon." Let me hear from you AT ONCE.

THE EXHIBITIONS.

Philadelphia.

The fall exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society opened under most favorable auspices last Tuesday evening. The weather, a most important adjunct to the success of the box office department of the show, was perfect. It was clear and cold and put a ruddy color into the cheeks of the visitors, of whom, by the way, there were more than on a first night for four years past. As to the merits of the exhibition, it is a very creditable display and quite the equal of the annual fall shows of the past four years, while in some respects it excels.

On entering the outer foyer, large hay trees exhibited by Robert Craig & Son were placed about and had a very decorative effect. In the staircase hall, D. Landreth & Son occupied one whole side with a large exhibit of the goods they carry in stock, seeds, bulbs, gardening utensils, etc. The bulb display was arranged on a round table space surrounded by a rustic fence in the center of which rose a pyramid of trays filled with bulbs, on top of which rested a large Boston fern. The whole was illuminated with miniature, colored electric lamps, the whole making a very effective exhibit.

In a corner a very unique feature was a collection of standard chrysanthemums by the Alburger East Park nurseries. These attracted considerable attention, being the only standards in the show. On the opposite side of the hall the Rexborough Rustic Company had erected a miniature summer house and seats. H. F. Michell is the agent of the company.

The Ives kromoscope, showing flowers in their natural colors, direct from photographic plates, completed the exhibits in this hall. Their table was surrounded at all times by people with incredulous looks on their faces, who could scarcely believe their own eyes, the process being such a revelation.

The grand staircase was devoid of decoration up to the first landing, where, on the middle posts, were two immense arecas from the nurseries of J. W. Cotting, Swarthmore, Pa. On either side of the right and left flights to the main floor were placed large vases filled with entries of dozens and twenty-fives. There were not as many of these large vases as formerly and their absence was noted and commented on by not a few of the visitors.

The main hall was very well filled with groups of palms and decorative plants along either side, while the center and ends were taken up with the chrysanthemums in pots. These exhibits which, if creditable, give character and finish to a fall show, were this season better than for several years, the only criticism being that they were for the most part a trifle tall, it not being possible for any one under six feet to get a view from above on most of them. They were, however, very well covered with bloom and most of the flowers were perfect and a good size. The varieties that were found most often in the collections were Golden Queen, Irving Clark, Geo. W. Childs, Mrs. Weeks, Rustique, Mutual Friend, Minerva, Georgiana Pitcher, Yellow Mayflower and Pembroke. There were several very fine specimens of Geo. W. Childs.

In this class J. Hurley won eight prizes; Gordon Smirl, eight; Wm. Robinson, four; H. Carey, four; Jos. McGregor, three, and Messrs. Alex. Kerr, J. McCleary, J. Whitaker and F. Canning, one each. No plants in bloom were exhibited by commercial men, all the entries being by amateurs through their private gardeners.

The groups of palms and other foliage and flowering plants arranged for effect were very nicely placed and it must have taken a good stock from which to select such choice specimens. The first prize was won by John Hobson, second by J. H. Dodds. Some magnificent fern specimens were shown by John Thatcher. They were perfect in every respect, from four to five feet in diameter and would have been hard to beat anywhere. In a collection of smaller specimens by the same grower a fine plant of Nephrolepis Washingtoniensis was seen. When of good size this fern makes a beautiful growth and is a handsome addition to a collection.

There were some splendid crotons, very well grown and magnificent in coloring. John Thatcher was first for these and Jos. Hurley was given a special prize for culture for his group. The latter grower was also given a certificate of merit for fancy caladiums.

H. A. Dreer had some fine entries, one of aquatics in a tank with a background of palms. In the tank were some specimens of fine water lily flowers and plants. In the north entrance to the foyer surrounding the grand staircase they had a table on which, in front of a background of palms there was displayed some sixty vases of pompon chrysanthemums, all labeled. These occupied either end of the space; in the center surrounded by Farleyense ferns was a group of the new white begonia, Caledonia, or white Lorraine. Either side of the central group was arranged about fifty plants of the Begonia erecta, a more erect growing Lorraine, which is also somewhat lighter in color. The whole effect was very good. The display cards of a light green, white bordered background, with the lettering in a dark green were very neat and yet conspicuous.

One of the features of the show was the Washington Cycas revoluta, a tall plant with a good crown of leaves. This plant was owned by George Washington when there were but few plants of its kind in the country. It was shown in the center of a round table, and around the tub of the plant was arranged an exhibit of choice orchids. Bunting in the national colors was draped about the table. This was one of the advertised features and for which Mrs. Geo. B. Wilson, of this city, received the highest gift of the society, its gold medal. Silver medals were awarded to H. A. Dreer for collection of aquatics and to John Thatcher for his specimen ferns.

Jos. Heacock received a certificate of merit for culture for a collection of palms, which were very noticeable for their bright, well-finished appearance and great vigor. Robert Craig & Son were given a cultural recommendation for their collections of cyclamen and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. The begonias are perfection and the cyclamens are the best plants ever grown commercially in this city.

As before remarked, the collection of cut flowers was not quite as full as usual, although the quality was up to the standard of former years. It would seem, however, as if the development of the flower had taken a halt for awhile, as nothing new or startling, such as used to wake the boys up with each recurring season, has made its appearance the past few years. The sensation in the cut blooms, if it can be called such, was the new white, Timothy Eaton, shown by Miller & Sons, of Bracondale, Ont. This is a huge flower, something on the Minnie Wanamaker type but a much larger and better finished flower, with a strong stem. It was awarded a certificate of merit as well as the prize for the best white seedling.

John N. May received first for the best American variety, never disseminated, for his new shell pink, Yanariva, and also for his pink seedling, Mrs. W. B. Chamberlain. Mr. May also staged some fine pompons which would sell well in sprays in the general market. There were also some good collections of six and twelve of a kind, as well as some vases of twenty-five. John Cullen and Wm. Robinson staged some beautiful flowers. John Kuhn had a fine vase of Philadelphia which was much admired.

Hugh Graham's exhibit in the center of the main hall was prettily arranged. In the center of a square table rose a tree of autumn leaves studded with electric lights. Around the base was a mound of growing plants, mostly ferns and orchids in flower. On the outer edge of the table was placed a row all around of large flowers of chrysanthemums. These were shown as in the old days, without stems, lying flat on the table. Four tall floor vases containing about fifty flowers each, at equal distances from the corners of the central group, completed the decoration. J. Kift & Son had an exhibit of window boxes, ferneries, house plants and their fairy vase stands, also several chevel glasses decorated with roses, carnations and chrysanthemums in their glass holders.

The rose show the second day was not noticeable for large numbers of exhibits, but for their quality. On the grand staircase, at the first landing, Fred. Ehret placed a vase of twenty-five Beauties with six-foot stems and gorgeous flowers, grown by John Andre, of Doylestown. They were certainly a credit to Mr. Andre, as at this time, when they are so scarce, it is hard to get enough to fill orders. The collection of roses for prizes was very meager. It is not often, however, that five new forcing roses are exhibited at one time; such were to be seen here, however. The Floral Exchange made a nice display of their new rose, the pink American Beauty, Queen of Edgely. A vase of fifty blooms was set against a wall space with a suitable background. It was the center of attraction during the whole exhibition and was certainly one of the features of the show.

Robert Scott & Son carried off the honors with Robert Scott, a cross between Merville de Lyon and Belle Siebrecht, a light Baroness pink and about the same size and form of flower, said to be freer than the Beauty. A silver medal was awarded this entry. Sunrise was next, the new English copper-tinted tea. This received a certificate of merit. A silver medal was also awarded for new rose Florence Pemberton, a seedling of Dickson's, of Ireland, and not yet in commerce. It is a light shell pink, or even lighter in color, a large flower, good stem, but the outer petals seem to reflex in such a way as to give the bud a rather straggling appearance.

Marquise Littta was entered by E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Indiana. This looks like a good thing. It is a large, full flower, with stiff stem in the strong shoots. The color is a bright, deep pink, not so red as Meteor, but more red than cardinal. It is a hybrid tea and is said to be a free bloomer. It was given a certificate of merit.

In the carnation exhibit there were not many entries, but the quality was good. Messrs. Dailedouze had a vase of their Prosperity, fine flowers which won the Craig silver cup for best American seedling never disseminated. C. W. Ward, of Queens, showed some fine Governor Roosevelt, also a good scarlet. Robt. Craig & Son won the Landreth prize with Ethel Crocker. There was a display of violets, the principal feature being that they were nicely bunched. R. Eisenhart was first with Princess and Luxonne, while W. C. Pray won with Lady Campbell and Marie Louise. K.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The sixth annual exhibition of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society was held in the Armory, November 6 to 8. Compared with previous exhibitions there appeared to be a falling off in the number of entries, this being particularly noticeable in the classes where handsome prizes were offered. But although some strong exhibitors held aloof there was a very creditable display in every department. In classes for chrysanthemums some very fine blooms were exhibited by the Hon. L. P. Morton, who was successful in carrying off the coveted Dieterich prize for which the competition was strong.

A very attractive group of chrysanthemums in pots was furnished from the green houses of F. W. Vanderbilt. This group was tastefully arranged and certainly merited the award offered by W. B. Dinsmore, although unfortunately there was no other competitor. All classes for roses were well contested with the exception of the class for twenty blooms Liberty, wherein there was no aspirant for the Asmus prize.

The display of carnations was very creditable, there being several competitors in the class for thirty-six blooms of three varieties, but it is a noteworthy fact that The Marquis was the only representative of the newer varieties. The keenest competition in the whole exhibition appeared in the violet class, in which a prize of $25 was offered by Mayor Sherrill for the best two bunches of 200 blooms of double violets. There were ten entries in this class and to the casual observer each exhibit looked as good as the other. The prize was awarded to C. F. Bahret after much careful deliberation on the part of the judges.

Much attention was given to the tables of orchids arranged for effect, particularly the exhibit from the W. B. Dinsmore estate, which was tastefully arranged with cattleyas, cyripediums and Adiantum Farleyense and which carried off first premium. Pompon chrysanthemums were represented by a handsome display from the gardens of Vassar College. Several other exhibits not for competition added to the attractiveness of the exhibition, which was a financial success, as evidenced by a good representation of the general public. Following are the awards:

Dinsmore prize for group of chrysanthemums 100 square feet, F. W. Vanderbilt, U. G. Agor, gardener.

Group of foliage plants, A. Rogers, S. Horn, gardener; second, F. W. Vanderbilt.

Denver.

The flower show held at the pavilion in City Park, November 8 to 11, proved a great success so far as attendance was concerned and some very fine chrysanthemums, both in pots and cut, were shown. One of the features in the hall decorations was an arch of palms and decorative plants, in the center of which was a facsimile of the Burns monument erected by our Scotchmen at City Park. The City Park made a very creditable showing of chrysanthemums, palms and geraniums, but owing to the crowded condition of the hall very little showed to advantage. The cut flower display, also the floral arrangements, showed a very marked improvement over former years, which all goes to show the advanced condition in all branches of the business in Denver. Some exceedingly fine carnations were shown, the Mrs. Lawson by the Park Floral Company being almost perfect, large, of good color, but a trifle short in stem. Other new varieties were equally well grown. The competition in carnations was hardly fair, as the Lawson was entered in competition with blooms of older varieties, barring the smaller grower, who had none of the newer kinds.

In tea roses the competition was very keen, the display being the best ever seen in Denver. Mrs. R. Mauff carried off first honors in this class and to her belongs the credit of showing Brides, Bridesmaids and Mermets that would make some of the best rose growers in the east envious. There were but two mantel and four table decorations shown, the hall being so far from the business center that the retail florists did not feel justified in competing with those who had their sources of supply only a few blocks from the hall.

There were no exhibits from outside of Denver, excepting those sent from Colorado Springs. Following is the record of the premium winnings:

The Park Floral Company was first on six specimen chrysanthemum plants white, six pink, six yellow, twenty plants single stem, six begonias, twelve geraniums, six carnations in pots, best collection flowering plants, twelve palms, twelve ferns, six Rex begonias, twelve chrysanthemum blooms yellow, twelve of color not specified, funeral bouquet, basket of chrysanthemums and on basket of other flowers, on twelve cut blooms Kaiserin and on six sorts of carnations, including Mrs. Lawson, Maceo, Olympia and a seedling named Lowelsa. They were awarded the Wolcott silver cup for the best vase of chrysanthemums and also took several second premiums.

The Colfax Avenue Floral Company was first on group of palms and decorative plants, twelve blooms white chrysanthemums, twelve pink, six vases of six each, twenty vases twenty varieties, on twelve blooms Perle, twelve Liberty, on twenty-five white carnations and on twenty-five William Scott. They also took many second premiums.

Mrs. R. Manff was first on Beauties, Wootton, Bride and Bridesmaid roses. The Gallup Floral Company was first on hand bouquet. F. J. Crump, of Colorado Springs, was first for Meteors. J. W.

Smith, of Colorado Springs, was first on double violets and T. C. Waterbury first for singles.

Altogether the show was a success and vastly to the credit of Denver and the trade. C. J. T.

Baltimore.

Notwithstanding the small hall and the rather limited number of contributors, this year's show was, to a far greater extent than could have been anticipated, a brilliant success. The weather was perfect, the hall was thronged, and, to use the language of a skilled chrysanthemum man, "some of the finest and largest flowers ever seen in Baltimore were on exhibition." It would be hard, if not impossible, to hold any one of the prominent exhibitors up for admiration where such uniform excellence prevailed.

The exhibition was almost altogether chrysanthemums. Ed. Holden, gardener to Mrs. Robt. Garrett, had a nice vase of cypripediums among his vases of chrysanthemums, and Chris Gregorious had a vase of violets. The entire exhibit of the Ruxton Floral Company was eight vases of roses, and John Cook showed a fine vase of Baltimore, his new seedling, almost pure white with a center shading to pure cherry red. Mr. Cook had with him, in a small box, two buds of a very promising rose, of which, though non-rose buds at the bottom, and a beautiful basket of white and yellow chrysanthemums. The other exhibits were, from Richard Vincent, seven vases of pompon chrysanthemums; from M. J. Hannigan, gardener to Mr. Gary, five vases large varieties; W. Paul Binder, gardener to Harry A. Parr, four vases; Lehr Bros., five vases; Phil. B. Welsh, seven vases; G. D. Lotze, a vase of Trainor L. Park, pronounced by some the finest yellow in the building; Ed. Kress, vase of very fine Bonnafton.

The whole show was of the most surprisingly excellent character and will no doubt encourage the participants to renewed exertions next year. MACK.

Indianapolis.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held its exhibition at the Agricultural Rooms of the State House on November 14. The show was a success beyond all expectations. The display was excellent, the attendance large, and the auction following the show brought a handsome sum. At the meeting, held in connection with the show J. W. Bernard and Fred. Herlemann, both of Marion, were elected members and an invitation from Wm. Langstaff to hold the December meeting at his house was accepted. All members expressed their satisfaction with the committal, as usual, he evidently thinks a great deal. Among the other outside flowers was a vase of very good carnations from Henry Fisher.

The massive bank of palms that stretched across the end of the hall and added greatly by giving a background to the show, was from Halliday Bros. F. G. Burger sent a wreath of white chrysanthemums with a cluster of red show. Among the visitors were J. A. E. Haugh, of Anderson; Herbert Heller, New Castle; Mr. Knopf, Richmond; W. W. Coles, Kokomo; E. E. Bissel, J. W. Bernard and F. Herlemann, Marion.

Mr. Knopf, on behalf of Mrs. Grave, of Richmond, and Mr. Heller, for the South Park Floral Co., of New Castle, invited the association to visit their places.

In the exhibition the following were prize winners:

H. W. Rieman first on six market plants of chrysanthemums, on specimen plant, on six cut blooms in six varieties, ten of ten varieties and twenty-five of one variety. He was second in several classes and was given special mention for a vase of seedling chrysanthemums.

E. Hukriede & Son were first on ten single-stemmed chrysanthemums and for six blooms W. H. Lincoln. They were second for collection of six varieties.

The Westview Floral Co., Knights-town, was first on cut blooms in six varieties, on six pink, six yellow and six "any other color." They were second on white roses.

Gunnar Teilmann, Marion, was first for twenty-five blooms of one variety and second for six "any other color."

J. W. Bernard, Marion, was first on white carnations, on red and on "any other color;" second on pink. He was second on six pink chrysanthemum blooms, on twenty-five of one variety and on ten blooms in ten varieties.

W. W. Coles, Kokomo, was first on white roses, on pink, on "any other color" and on vase of roses. In carnations he was first on pink.

Baur & Smith were given special mention for Elma, a light pink seedling carnation, and were second in several classes.

Special mention was given to Bertermann Brothers for their display, to John Hartje for a vase of May Williamson, to John Heidenreich for a collection of market plants of chrysanthemums, to R. A. McKeand for four vases of seedling cannas, to Stuart & Haugh, of Anderson, for Abondale, a pink sport of Armazindy, to R. Witterstaetter, Sedamsville, O., for Enquirer carnation and to the South Park Floral Co., New Castle, for collection of roses not entered for competition. Prominent in this display was Marquise Litta, or No. 19, a new bright pink of great promise. H. J.

Chestnut Hill, Pa.

The first annual exhibition of the Chestnut Hill Horticultural Society, November 7 to 9, was an unqualified success. It was largely a show of the skill of the private gardeners of the vicinity. The stock shown was first class in every respect and the prizes were distributed as follows:

William Robertson, gardener to J. W. Pepper, of Jenkintown—Five first prizes and three second prizes.

William Boyce, gardener to Randal Morgan, of Chestnut Hill—One first prize and one second prize.

Robert G. Carey, gardener to Thomas C. Price, of Chestnut Hill—Two first prizes and one second.

George W. Brown, gardener to R. N. Carson, of "Erdenheim," Chestnut Hill—Three first prizes and four second prizes.

Hans Reuter, first assistant gardener to Charles W. Henry, of Wissahickon Heights—One first prize and one certificate of merit with a first prize, and one second prize.

James Ward, first assistant gardener to John Bohlen, of Chestnut Hill—One second prize.

Frank Gould, gardener to John T. Morris, of "Compton," Chestnut Hill—Eight first prizes and three second prizes.

Joseph Monahan, gardener to Charles W. Trotter, of "Sugar Loaf," Chestnut Hill—One first prize and one second prize.

Robert Forrest, gardener to Beauveau Borie, of Jenkintown—Two first prizes.

CHRYSANTHEMUM COL. D. APPLETON.

Richard Moore, gardener to James Cheston, Jr., of Chestnut Hill—Two first prizes and one second prize.

Charles A. Knapp, of the Mermaid Nurseries, Chestnut Hill—Two second prizes.

John Little, gardener to John Lowher Welsh, of Chestnut Hill—Seven first prizes and seven second.

William Kleinheinz, gardener to P. A. B. Widener, of Elkins, Pa.—Four first prizes and four second prizes.

Henry Carey, son of Robert G. Carey, secretary of the society—Three first prizes and a certificate of merit.

John McNeill, gardener to Charles W. Henry, of Chestnut Hill—Six first prizes and three second prizes.

James Yelland, first assistant gardener under Robert G. Carey—One first prize and five second prizes.

The new pepper, "Improved Celestial," exhibited by Robert G. Carey, was awarded a special mention in the judges' report.

A new seedling canna, exhibited by the same gentleman, was also given a special mention and the judges also stated that it exceeded anything in dark red foliage that they had ever seen. A specimen plant of heliotrope exhibited by the same gentleman was very much admired.

An exhibit made by H. A. Dreer, of Philadelphia, of thirty-one varieties of pompon chrysanthemums was considered to be a most magnificent collection, and was made a special article of mention by the judges.

Madison, N. J.

The fifth annual exhibition of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held in the Assembly Rooms, Madison, on November 7 and 8. The cut chrysanthemums, always a strong feature, this year surpassed all previous displays, and the fine special prizes offered brought some outside competition. For six varieties, six blooms of each, W. Duckham, gardener to D. Willis James, was first with a grand exhibit, comprising Nellie Pockett, a new cream white reflexed Jap on the style of, but far surpassing Mayflower, Mons. Chenon de Leche, Mrs. H. Weeks, Jennie Falconer and Mr. T. Carrington, an enormous flower, magenta rose with silvery reverse

P. Duff, gardener to J. Crosby Brown, Orange, was second, the most notable in his exhibit being a fine vase of Col. Appleton.

Mr. Duff was first for three varieties, six of each, with grand vases of Weeks, Morel and Trainor Park. A. Herrington, Florham Farms, was second in a very close competition which took the judges a long time to decide. For twelve blooms in four varieties A. Herrington won handsomely, showing grand blooms of Merza, Col. Appleton, Morel and H. Hurrell. G. Bird, Morristown, was second.

The special prize for twelve Col. Appleton was won by W. Duckham with a splendid lot of large, well-finished flowers. In the single vase classes G. Bird was first for yellow with Pennsylvania; H. Hentz, Jr., Madison, first for pink, with Helen Bloodgood, and F. Burnett, Madison, first for white with Robinson.

In groups of chrysanthemums and foliage plants J. Davies, gardener to Mrs. A. R. Whitney, Morristown, was first, and A. Coren, gardener to Mrs. J. Catlin, Morristown, second. A grand group not in competition, as also a number of specimen plants, were shown by W. Duckham. J. Jones, of Convent, was the winner for a group of foliage plants alone, and A. Coren for twelve ferns. Lager & Hurrell, Summit, took the special prize for orchids with a charming and varied exhibit.

The rose growers this year did not make their usual showing; in fact it was hard to believe we were in the rose city. They all had the same excuse, weather, but there may be others. L. A. Noe and H. Hentz, Jr., were winners in the order named for eighteen American Beauty, while for twelve Beauty H. Hentz was first and the only exhibitor. F. Burnett was first for eighteen Bridesmaids and H. Hentz for the same number of Brides. For six Brides and Bridesmaids, F. Burnett and D. Falconer were first and second. E. Brant was the only exhibitor of Liberty and took the special prize.

Messrs. R. Craig & Son, Philadelphia, sent on a nice exhibit of Queen of Edgely, which was awarded the society's certificate.

Vegetables and fruits filled a room adjoining the main hall and visitors evinced as much interest in them as in the flowers. Among non-competitive exhibits special mention must be made of a fine lot of carnation Prosperity from the Dailledouze Bros., which was certificated; a nice group of pompon chrysanthemums in pots from J. N. May, Summit, and a well-grown group of Adiantum Farleyense from Dean & Parse, Summit.

The judges were Mr. J. W. Withers, of New York, Mr. N. Butterbach, Oceanic, and Mr. Geo. Smith, Orange.

At the close of the show Vice-President Totty mounted the rostrum and auctioned off the flowers on behalf of the fund being raised for the Galveston florists, and with brisk bidding times were lively and a substantial sum was raised.

Tarrytown, N. Y.

Successful as was the first exhibition of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, it was eclipsed by the second annual exhibition held in Music Hall on November 7, 8 and 9. In all classes the quality of the exhibits was superb, and in many cases excelled anything that has ever been witnessed in this vicinity.

The arrangement of the hall was perfect, allowing each class of exhibits to display its individual merits in a striking manner. The center of the hall was devoted to the display of cut blooms and on the sides were arranged the fruits and vegetables, while at each end of the hall were the various groups of chrysanthemums and foliage plants. On the stage were placed the specimen plants of chrysanthemums interspersed with a few palms, etc., and backed up by a canvas woodland scene, all of which imparted a very pretty and cheerful effect. The specimen ferns were displayed on the balconies, to which the public had easy access, and where they lingered to admire the beautiful display below.

Taking the order of the schedule, the awards were as follows:

Group of chrysanthemums in pots, Louis Stern, Thos. Cockburn, gardener; second, C. C. Worthington, L. A. Martin, gardener.

In the next six classes for specimen chrysanthemum plants Wm. Rockefeller, Wm. Turner, gardener, was the only exhibitor, and as each plant showed great cultural skill he was awarded all prizes.

In the class for twelve plants, single stems and blooms, S. Goodman, Jos. Howarth, gardener, captured first prize over Jos. Eastman, Wm. Scott, gardener.

The prize for the group of palms and foliage plants brought out four competitors and the premium was captured by S. Untermeyer, W. H. Waite, gardener, Wm. Rockefeller being second.

The best specimen palm was S. Untermeyer's Kentia Belmoreana, and he was first on fancy foliage plant other than palm and for the table of decorative plants. In the class for six table plants F. A. Constable, W. Anderson, gardener, was first and Mr. Untermeyer second.

For three specimen ferns Jos. Eastman was first, but F. A. Constable carried off the prize for the best single specimen, there being no less than seven entries in the class.

Mr. Eastman was first for the pair of selaginellas and again for the best pair of adiantums. In the class for the best Adiantum Farleyense J. B. Trevor was the only exhibitor, taking first prize. The prize for six cyclamens was taken by Major R. E. Hopkins, R. Angus, gardener.

In the class for thirty-six blooms, six varieties of chrysanthemums, W. Rockefeller was first with Robinson, Bassett, Jones, Col. D. Appleton, Vivian-Morel and Major Bonaffon, while Hicks Arnold, A. Grierson, gardener, was second with Duke of Wellington, Col. D. Appleton, Australian Gold, Purple Emperor, Vivian-Morel and Mrs. Geo. Lewis.

Jos. Eastman was the most successful exhibitor in the class for twenty-five blooms, twenty-five varieties, and won the premium for twelve blooms, twelve varieties, with Col. D. Appleton, Swanley Giant, H. Hurrell, Anita de la Agriculture Merville, Frank Hardy, Minerva, Mme. Carnot, J. G. Warren, E. Salisbury, Golden Wedding, Mrs. Geo. Lewis and T. Carrington, while Hicks Arnold won second with R. J. Jones, Col. D. Appleton, Nellie Pocket, Portia, Chatsworth, Australian Gold, Modesto, T. Carrington, Madame Deis, President Bevan, R. J. Upton and Mrs. Coombs.

For the best six blooms, white, Robt. Mallory, Wm. Smith, gardener, was first with Mrs. Weeks; W. Rockefeller, second, with Mrs. H. Robinson.

Mr. Rockefeller was first with Major Bonaffon in yellow and F. A. Constable second with Col. D. Appleton; the class brought out five competitors.

Miss Blanche Potter, W. Nye, gardener, received the award for the best six pink on Vivian-Morel, while the award for the best six crimson went to Hicks Arnold on E. M. Bigelow.

The most effective vase of twenty-five blooms with foliage of any kind was staged by F. O. Mathieson, A. Taaffe, gardener, while Jos. Eastman's exhibit was second.

The Pierson cup for the best twelve blooms of Col. D. Appleton brought out keen competition, there being no less than six excellent entries. The judges awarded the cup to F. A. Constable, W. Anderson, gardener, while Robt. Mallory, W. Smith, gardener, received second premium. The exhibits of Wm. Rockefeller and Louis Stern in this class were worthy of special mention.

In the classes for roses S. Untermeyer was first for Beauties, Mrs. Geo. Lewis for Brides and Bridesmaids, F. O. Mathieson for Perles and Morgan. Wm. Rockefeller took both prizes for Liberty. There was good competition in all these classes.

In carnations Wm. Rockefeller was first with White Cloud, Crane and Gold Nugget. He was also first on thirty-six blooms, six varieties, second with Mrs. Bradt, Olympia and with twenty-five of one variety. J. T. Williams, G. M. Hay, gardener, was first with Olympia, Mrs. Bradt and Mrs. Lawson; second on thirty-six blooms, six varieties, with Crane and Genevieve Lord. Whitelaw Reid was first on pink with New York. The best seedling was Prosperity (No. 666) shown by Dailledouze Bros.

Geo. E. Dickinson was first for double violets, C. C. Worthington second; Wm. Rockefeller first for singles, J. B. Trevor second; Miss Blanche Potter first for Lady Campbell, Mr. Worthington second.

J. Fursey was first with table center piece of Beauties, F. O. Worthington second with Bridesmaids.

Robert Mallory was first on apples and J. Caunce on pears. Jos. Eastman was first on black greenhouse grapes and on three varieties; J. Caunce was first for white grapes and C. C. Worthington for dish of outdoor grapes.

In vegetables Wm. Rockefeller was first on late celery, early celery and lettuce. Jos. Eastman was first on onions, Mrs. E. B. Munroe on leeks, C. C. Worthington on cabbage, Louis Stern on cauliflower, J. T. Williams on mushrooms and J. Caunce on collection of vegetables. F. O. Mathieson took the Thorburn prize for a collection of vegetables. W. E. M.

Andover, Mass.

The fourth annual exhibition of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Andover was held at the Town Hall on November 6. In the commercial classes for cut blooms, J. H. Playdon and George D. Millet won most of the premiums for chrysanthemums and carnations. On violets, Warren Johnson and J. H. Playdon were the principal exhibitors. Mitchell Bros., Carl Lindquist and J. D. Fairweather showed some very good pansies. George Piddington was the only exhibitor in roses. Chrysanthemum plants in good form were shown by J. H. Playdon, George Ripley, George D. Millet, George Piddington and J. D. Fairweather. J. D. Fairweather and William Langlands were awarded first and second premiums, respectively, on group of ferns; George Ripley and George Piddington on group of decorative plants; George Piddington and George D. Millet on plant arrangement for table decoration; Warren Johnson and Carl Lindquist for collection of begonias; George D. Millet and George Piddington for display of bedding plants and William Langlands for display of evergreens. There was also a good representation of amateur exhibits in plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables.

WITH THE GROWERS.

F. R. PIERSON CO., TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

The establishment of the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y., is a very extensive one and covers many lines of trade. The main offices are at Tarrytown, with the seed department, including bulbs and general supplies. Here also is the original greenhouse plant of the concern, filled with general ornamental stock in excellent condition. Our representative noted especially ficuses, Pandanus Veitchii, P. utilis, Acalypha Sanderi, Boston ferns, araucarias, palms in leading commercial varieties, Asparagus plumosus nanus, A. Sprengeri and some very fine large plants of Dracena indivisa. Azaleas and bay trees are handled in large quantities. Particularly noteworthy was a specimen of a new sport of the Boston fern (Nephrolepis exaltata Bostoniensis) so far unnamed. This novelty has all the grace and utility of the parent with the difference that the pinnae take after the character of N. rufescens tripinnatifida.

The nursery proper and trial grounds are at Scarborough, about half an hour's drive from the home offices. This short journey along the Hudson river is very delightful, splendid estates of wealthy New Yorkers skirting the route. A large proportion of the nursery grounds, twenty-five acres in extent, is devoted to select nursery stock in the best of health notwithstanding the severe drought of the past summer. One range of houses here is devoted to stock of such plants as carnations, Boston ferns and chrysanthemums, hardy roses, etc. A range of seven Lord & Burnham houses, each 20x300 feet is taken up with American Beauty, the blooms being produced for the New York market. These houses are on the regular Lord & Burnham plan with a space of about 20 feet between each. The roses at the time of our representative's visit were mostly planted in benches containing four inches of soil. In several instances small houses, nine feet wide, are run along the north side of these rose houses for propagating purposes and also for growing such plants as adiantum and Asparagus Sprengeri.

There are many plants under trial in the nursery grounds, the most noticeable of which were cannas and phloxes. Among the new cannas the following were rather striking: Black Prince, flowers of a very rich deep red; Pandora, dark variegated foliage and large reddish flowers, rather odd and attractive; Crimson Bedder, very free flowering and rich in color; Floribunda, a good yellow, darker than Eldorado, slightly spotted; Kate Gray, flowers orange red and trusses very large, a vigorous grower; Michael Faurichon (Crozy) a good red of medium height with large flowers. Other older cannas grown in quantity on account of their excellence were Tarrytown, Duke of Marlborough, Buttercup, F. R. Pierson, Eldorado, Mlle. Berat, Rosemar, Secretary Chabanne, Chas. Henderson, J. C. Vaughan, Sam Trelease and Genereux.

The strain of new perennial phloxes is very fine and the following varieties are especially good: Esperance, dwarf and very free, light purple flowers, very large; William Ramsay, very dark purple; Coquelicot, bright red, quite showy; Argon, lavender pink; R. P. Struthers, deep pink, rather tall in habit; Mars Le Tour, very light pink with deeper eye, flowers very large and a very handsome variety; Candeur, good dwarf, pure white; Amphitryon, whitish, shaded deep lilac; Lumineux, bright pink; Crepuscule, very large flowers, pale lilac with reddish purple eye and shadings; Rayonnant, bright reddish petals with deep white margins; La Cygne, good white, taller than Candeur; Ferdinand Cortez, very large bright carmine flowers with reddish center. It was noticeable here that the coal piles were exposed in the open and white-washed to prevent theft.

The immense carnation establishment of the F. R. Pierson Co. is at Briar Cliff Farms, Sing Sing, N. Y. The illustration on this page gives a view in one of the two fine new carnation houses completed the past season by Hitchings & Co. The houses are each 54x306, iron frame, and heated by four of Hitchings' No. 58 sectional tubular boilers. No better evidence of the position to which the carnation has reached in floriculture can be given than the erection of such structures for its special cultivation.

As may be judged from the foregoing, F. R. Pierson, the chief of the concern, is a very busy man. In addition to his commercial interests he is much taken up with his local town affairs, having been water commissioner of Tarrytown. He is now president of the local school board and has just completed a new school at a cost of $135,000. In his various trade duties he is ably assisted by Paul M. Pierson, Edward W. Neubrand, J. E. White and his well known traveling rep-representative, J. R. Fotheringham. At the forthcoming Pan-American Exposition it is the intention of the firm to exhibit rather extensively.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

SPECIMEN PLANTS.

The chrysanthemum season is here and most of the specimens upon which much care has been bestowed for nearly a year will be on exhibition before these lines are printed.

Chrysanthemums would last a long time in perfection if properly cared for after they come into bloom. When the late H. A. Gane, of West Newton, Mass., was alive he kept his plants in good condition until December. But his show, as he called it, was hardly in at exhibition time. He grew his plants cool, and for years did not have any heat at all.

Rarely we find, in even the best places, houses especially fitted to show chrysanthemums to the best advantage. With the usual run of foliage plants, palms, dracenas, ficuses, etc., no matter how arranged, they never seem to harmonize. We expect a blaze of color, and we should have it—"a parting gift of nature." They are radiant in sunshine, so we should have plenty of light. Abundance of air and a moderate temperature, not over 50° at night, are also essentials.

We are not in the "show business" just now, but we have at the H. H. Hunnewell place a nice exhibition of serviceable plants. The color masses are effectively relieved by tubbed specimens of Japanese spindle trees in white and yellow variegated, Osmanthus (olea) fragrans, Aucuba Japonica, some Pittosporum Indicum, cryptomerias, and a number of small grevilleas, with Browallia speciosa major, blue, used for the front line, making altogether quite an effective harmony.

It is a bad practice to set the plants on boxes, tubs, or staging of any kind. They are seen to far better advantage arranged so that we can walk among and look down on them. Now also is a time for note taking, for stock taking, too, of varieties difficult to secure.

The storing of plants demands some attention. It is a mistake to stow them under benches as if of no more use. Good cuttings are essential to success, and to get them our plants should be stored in well lighted and cool quarters. We have used cold frames for several years, well packed about with leaves and covered with mats and shutters. They freeze sometimes, but we have always been able to get good, stout cuttings whenever they were wanted.

T. D. HATFIELD.

MARKET CONDITIONS SHOW DECIDED IMPROVEMENT.—STOCKS SHORTEN UP AND TRADE BECOMES FAIRLY BRISK.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—NOMINATION OF OFFICERS.—EXHIBITION AT THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE.—PRIVATE GARDENERS LARGELY IN EVIDENCE.—GOOD EXHIBITS BY THOSE IN THE TRADE.

It is a pleasure to be able, at last, to report a decided change for the better in the flower trade of this city. Wholesalers are happy and the solicitude that has been their lot and the lot of the growers, as well, for the past few weeks, has been transferred to the shoulders of the retailers, whose buyers now find themselves with plenty of cause to use up shoe leather chasing from one place to another for the material they must have.

The causes leading up to this healthy condition are various—some transient, others direct and permanent. Of the former may be mentioned the big wedding of the daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, for which Thorley had the decoration, and the funerals of two men of prominence—Marcus Daly and Henry Villard. The shortage in supply is, however, the legitimate consequence of the continued bright, warm weather, which has forced all crops ahead into bloom at once and the plants are now in an exhausted condition which is likely to affect the supply greatly for some time. Were it not for the chrysanthemums, which are still coming in abundantly, there would be a positive famine to face this week. Cattleyas, dendrobiums and oncidiums have got into the same current and values have advanced sharply, while carnations of the highest grade sell at from $3 to $5 per hundred, Roosevelt and Lawson being the leaders at the latter figure. Fancy chrysanthemums are doing better and, while prices on these remain about as before, sales are more readily made and stock no longer accumulates in wholesalers' hands.

The club meeting on Monday evening was attended but poorly. The nomination of officers for the coming year was the principal business on hand. After the usual confusion resulting from withdrawals and scattering votes the ticket, with the required two candidates for each office, was reduced to the following names: For president, W. F. Sheridan, Frank Traendly; vice-president, Julius Lang, C. G. Weber, A. Wallace; secretary, John Young (no second choice); treasurer, C. B. Weathered, A. S. Burns. The nominees for trustees are Charles Hewitt, F. H. Traendly, A. S. Burns, John Morris, W. H. Siebrecht and W. W. Burnham. Election will take place at the December meeting. Samuel Henshaw was elected a trustee to fill out the unexpired term of Wm. Plumb. A set of resolutions concerning the departure of Mr. Plumb for England was presented by A. S. Burns and ordered to be engrossed. The "Plan and Scope" committee reported progress. President O'Mara entertained the meeting with a very interesting account of his recent visit to St. Louis and the Shaw Garden. W. I. Brower placed on exhibition a silk cover for violet stems for corsage wear which was received with much favor and awarded a certificate of merit.

The exhibition of the American Institute on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday, November 14 and 15, was one of the best on record and deserved more ample accommodations than the limited size of the hall afforded. There were no specimen plants to speak of but the classes for cut chrysanthemum blooms were well filled and the quality of the exhibits was uniformly high. Premiums had not been awarded at the time of writing this report. Among the prominent contributors in the cut flower section were G. H. Hale, gardener to E. D. Adams; Wm. Scott, gardener to Jos. Eastman; A. McKenzie, gardener to T. W. Taylor; Wm. Duckham, gardener to D. Willis James; Thos. Cockburn, gardener to L. Stern; J. G. McNicoll, gardener to Geo. C. Rand; Kimball orchid houses; Chas. Webber, gardener to Mrs. J. Hood Wright; Jas. Allen, gardener to C. Lambert; J. N. May and Miller & Son. The fifty blooms of their white seedling, Timothy Eaton, brought by the latter from Bracondale were the sensation of the show. J. N. May's Yanariva attracted much attention. Wm. Scott's flowers were superb all through. A magnificent group of orchids, palms and choice decorative plants was staged by Julius Rochrs. There was also a fine lot of stove plants from G. H. Hale and of orchids from Lager & Hurrell. H. Nicholl, gardener to Mrs. J. B. Trevor, showed some superb specimen ferns. Liberty rose from Wm. Turner, gardener to Wm. Rockefeller, appeared in excellent form. There were good roses from Geo. M. Hay, gardener to J. T. Williams, who also showed a fine vase of Lawson carnations. Briar Cliff Manor's collection of carnations was very extensive. C. W. Ward had some very promising seedling carnations and there were good violets from Geo. T. Schuneman, A. W. Williams, J. W. Feeter and L. H. Martin. On baskets of chrysanthemums there were two competitors, H. Nichols and The Rosary, the former being white and pink and the latter yellow.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Wm. A. Hautf, whose wife died last Sunday of quick consumption. She leaves one child eight years of age.

Visitors: A. Leuthy, Thos. Clark, W. H. Elliott, E. N. Pierce, T. J. Grey, W. E. Doyle, Wm. Nicholson, all from Boston; W. R. Smith, Washington, D. C.; Miss Menand, Albany.

Chicago.

COLD WEATHER HAS ITS EFFECT UPON MARKET CONDITIONS.—FEW ROSES AND NO STRONG DEMAND.—BUSINESS SLOWLY PICKING UP.—PLENTY OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS.—WITTBOLD'S PLANT LABEL.—WITH HINSDALE GROWERS.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Winter arrived during the week and the result was early apparent in the quantity and quality of stock available, but it was not for several days that the brisk atmosphere had any effect upon demand. For ten days past a peculiar situation had existed in the cut flower market; there had been few roses and very little demand for them. Usually when there are no flowers every one wants them, and vice versa. By Wednesday of this week the demand had increased to such an extent that quoted prices were strictly maintained, although at the same time the freezing weather had put the street fakir temporarily out of business. Carnations are not so good as one would like them to be. The percentage of really first-class flowers is very small, and these are the only ones which are in active demand. The supplies of chrysanthemums continue undiminished and the call for them has been rather slower than was anticipated, so that the returns to the growers will not average so well as last season, it is feared, although there is a prospect for a period of better demand. Within the last few days violets have advanced to their proper position in the market. At the first of the week 60 cents bought a hundred fairly good violets, but by the end of the week the quotation was $1.25 to $1.50, and some extra fancy stock went still higher. Lily of the valley continues in fair supply at $4 to $5 per hundred and smilax is again in demand. The prospects are that Thanksgiving day will see a very generally inadequate supply of roses, although a number of growers say that they will have fair crops on within another week or two. Every indication points to a brisk demand for Thanksgiving.

In the seedling competition at the flower show on the closing day John N.

May was awarded a silver medal for his chrysanthemum Yanariva. Crabb & Hunter exhibited Irene among the carnations, but not for competition, it having taken a silver medal a year ago. This variety is to be disseminated next year and meets with much favor. In the retail florists' competition, rearranged and judged each day, E. Wienhoeber won first premium, $100, and John Mangel, second, $70. The $125 silver service for dinner table decorations was won by the Anderson Floral Company, A. Lange taking the $90 cut glass vases which were the second premium; the third prize, $60 cash, went to Mangel. A great deal of credit is due the retailers, including Wittbold among them, for the showing they made. Late in the week very creditable exhibits were staged by W. C. Egan, of Highland Park, Ill., (cactus dahlias) and F. A. Baller, Bloomington, Ill., (clematis). Fred. J. Wells, of the C. B. & Q. R. R., exhibited some fine chrysanthemum blooms which were disqualified because they were staged without the requisite exhibitor's number. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md., received a silver medal for a light pink seedling carnation.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club, November 16, the club committee in charge of the booth in aid of the Galveston sufferers reported as follows:

Your committee in charge of the flower booth at the annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago for the benefit of the Galveston sufferers in the trade, submits the following report:

Flowers for the booth were contributed by the following: J. C. Vaughan, Edwin Eagle & Co., Anton Then, George Barrer, N. P. Miller, Chicago Carnation Co., John Felke, P. J. Hauswirth, Guardian Angel Orphan Asylum, Walter Retzer & Co., Emil Buettner, Johnson & Carlson, A. McAdams, J. T. Anthony, August Jurgens, A. Friend, Geo. A. Rackham, Detroit, Mich.; John Bauscher, Jr., Freeport, Ill.; Samuel Batson, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Geo. Engel, Xenia, Ohio; Mrs. E. T. Grave, Richmond, Ind.; Gunnar Teilmann, Marion, Ind.; W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., and several others that failed to send their cards with their contributions.

The committee desires to express its thanks to the above named for the very liberal contributions that were received. Respectfully submitted,

P. J. HAUSWIRTH,
W. J. SMYTH,
CHAS. SAMUELSON, Committee.

Too much credit can not be given to Phil. Hauswirth, Mrs. Hauswirth and their children, Miss Elsa and J. Edwin Hauswirth, and Miss Annie Kreitling, of the firm of Walter Kreitling & Co., for their unceasing industry in connection with the Galveston booth. Their portraits will be found elsewhere in this issue.

The Geo. Wittbold Company report their October business to have exceeded that of any month in their previous experience. They say that there is still an active demand for decorative plants and that shipments are large, although freezing weather interferes to some extent. They are tacking a card to all their boxes, which has met with so much approval that a number of other shippers have asked permission to use it. It reads as follows: "Notice to agents! This box contains live plants. In freezing weather it should not be delivered by the Express Company unless the delivery wagon is heated. If not so delivered, keep in warm room and notify consignee of its arrival." These instructions, if followed, will save many an exasperation and loss.

One day during the flower show Bassett & Washburn took a party of twenty or more visiting florists, including the judges of the exhibition, to see the sights at their establishment at Hinsdale. Everything is in the finest of condition there and the visitors found very many things of interest. Mr. May said that he had never seen a finer stock of carnation plants than theirs, and the roses came in for equal commendation. One of the things which was studied closest was the rose No. 19, now known as Marquise Litta. Bassett & Washburn seem to have adopted just the treatment this rose requires and the visitors were unanimous in their predictions of a bright future for it.

Brant & Noe lost two-fifths of their pæonies in the severe winter of two years ago, but, as supposedly dead plants continued to appear above the ground all through the following summer, they had hoped that this season might prove their loss to have been considerably less than they had estimated. They were disappointed, however, as hardly a plant appeared during the past summer which had not showed up the year before. There have been large plantings of pæonies for cut flower purposes in various parts of the country this year.

The secretary of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, on being questioned about certain charges which have been publicly and privately made regarding shortages in count on certain exhibits, states as follows: "The occurrence is a most unfortunate one and greatly to be regretted, but positive evidence in my possession indicates beyond the peradventure of a doubt that the exhibits were not tampered with after leaving the hands of the exhibitor and his employes."

Kennicott Bros. Co. is mailing out a new catalogue of wire work and florists' supplies from the press of D. B. Long, of Buffalo. The catalogue is not only an artistic piece of typography but is a novelty in that the use of the wire designs is illustrated with good halftones showing the made-up pieces. It is a catalogue which the user of florists' supplies will be apt to keep, and that is the kind of printing that pays.

The Lincoln Park chrysanthemum show is attracting a great many people. They have a very nice batch of seedlings there, in their third year, some of which they exhibited in the recent flower show. Probably the two best are Mrs. P. M. Woodworth, named for the wife of the president of the Lincoln Park board, and Mrs. J. H. Channon.

A. L. Randall says that he expects a very good trade for Thanksgiving day, with good supplies of carnations, violets and chrysanthemums. He figures that there may be too few roses to meet all demands upon this market, and is advising his customers to book their orders early.

Otto Fehrlin is here from Galveston in search of a business. He is one of the Galveston florists who lost everything, but his life and his bank account, in the great storm of September 8. He contemplates locating in Chicago and has two or three places, which are for sale, in view.

J. A. Lynn is turning out some very nice work in the line of birch bark receptacles for pot covers, ferneries, plant baskets, etc. His latest plant basket is in the form of a canoe and it is taking well with retail florists.

E. E. Pieser says that of all the carnations coming to this market at present he knows of none which is a better keeper than Irene, the pink seedling which Crabb & Hunter, of Grand Rapids, are to introduce next spring.

Mox Ringier is the latest addition to the force at Amling's. He has been with Frauenfelder on the west side for some time past.

The South Park Commissioners have approved of a rose garden for Washington Park, to be situated west of the conservatory.

A. L. Vaughan, representing Hagemann & Meyer, of New York, returned to town November 13.

MEETING OF THE FLORISTS' CLUB—INTERESTING PAPERS AND DISCUSSIONS.—OPENING OF THE ANNUAL SHOW.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

The Florists' Club met on Thursday, November 8, with only fourteen members present. Details of the flower show were disposed of and C. C. Sanders read a very interesting paper on hardy plants for florists' use. This brought up a very lively discussion, one of the most interesting speakers being Walter Mott, of Philadelphia. At the next meeting Dr. A. S. Halstead will read an essay on new carnations from a commercial standpoint and F. W. Ude will follow on the same subject. The bowling club will begin practice again next week.

The annual flower show opened on Wednesday, and although the hall is not as large as the Coliseum and there are not as many exhibitors as a year ago, the exhibition is, nevertheless, very creditable. The principal exhibitors are Carl Beyer, Geo. Windles, C. C. Sanders, Michel Plant and Bulb Company, Emil Schray and F. J. Fillmore. Out of town exhibitors were W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne; Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian; E. G. Hill, Richmond, and several others.

Fred. W. Bruenig reports trade picking up and a heavy demand for his stock. He expects to sell out clean on chrysanthemums as everything is good. Mignonette is one of his specialties.

Frank Ellis will open a wholesale cut flower store at 1402 Pine street, Monday, November 19. At the first of the year he will move to a new store that is being fitted up in good shape.

Carl Beyer has some very nice stock at his houses and so have Young & Sons Co. The latter have been giving a chrysanthemum show at their place this week.

F. J. Foster has moved into his new store and has everything in first-class shape. At present he has a great chrysanthemum show in the windows.

Emil Schray has a place which is full of things worth seeing. It is the recipient of a call from nearly every florist visiting St. Louis.

J. W. Dunford, Jr., is again in line with carnations, with old and new sorts, and is likely to offer the best in the market again this year.

The Michel Plant and Bulb Company has some very fine Boston ferns among other good stock.

F. J. Fillmore has just finished repainting his place and has everything snug for winter. M.

MRS. HAUSWIRTH, of Chicago, says that violets best retain their odor in wooden boxes.

THE executive committee of the American Rose Society was in session at the Westminster Hotel, New York, November 16.

C. W. WAERD evidently believes in sub-irrigation, judging from the large number of his carnation benches now adapted to this system of watering.

THE demand for cut flowers and plants for Thanksgiving day shows an annual increase. It is rapidly becoming one of the most important of holidays.

THE report of the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, held at New York last August, has been received from Secretary Stewart.

A FEW jobbers in glass anticipate a reduction in price owing to the cutting of some of the independent factories but good authorities say that present quotations are about down to the cost of production and that a general lower price is hardly in prospect.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

Following are the reports of the committees judging seedlings and sports:

CINCINNATI, November 10.—John N.
May, Summit, N. J., exhibited Yanariva, a flesh pink, Japanese reflexed variety,
which scored 86 points commercial scale.
The foliage on this variety was its weakest point.

H. W. Riemann, Indianapolis, Ind., exhibited Nellie, a creamy white, Japanese incurved, which scored 87 points commercial scale.

Theo. Bock, Hamilton, O., exhibited Arab, a bronze Japanese variety, scoring 79 points commercial scale.

John N. May exhibited Mirabeau, a yellow Japanese incurved, which scored 80 points commercial scale.

BOSTON, November 10.—Yanariva, shown by John N. May, scored commercial and exhibition scales 93 points.
Mirabeau, by same exhibitor, scored 67
points commercial scale.

NEW YORK, November 10.—John Marshall, Purchase, N. Y., exhibited
No. 6, magenta pink, incurved Japanese, scoring commercial scale 71 points.

John N. May exhibited No. 345, white, Japanese reflexed, which scored commercial scale 64 points.

John B. Rady, Elmira, N. Y., exhibited
Mrs. J. S. Fasset, light yellow, Japanese, which scored 59 points commercial scale.

Yanariva, exhibited by John N. May,
scored 77 points commercial scale.

PHILADELPHIA, November 10.—Wm.
Paul Binder, Rider, Md., exhibited Lillian, creamy white, reflexed Japanese,
which scored 80 points commercial scale,
74 points exhibition scale.

George O. Brown, by same exhibitor, a very dark rose, reflexed Japanese,
scored 77 points commercial scale, 79
points exhibition scale.

Yanariva, exhibited by John N. May,
scored 86 points commercial scale, 85
points exhibition scale.

The chrysanthemum exhibited by John Cook, Baltimore, Md., on November 3, at Philadelphia has been named Joseph W. Cook.

The "terra cotta red" exhibited by John N. May at New York on November 3 is named Brutus, and that of the "very light pink," is Yanariva.

Exhibitors should in all cases mail to the secretary, legibly written, the name of the variety which they have sent for examination to the committees in ample time, so that same may be correctly spelled when reported to the horticultural press. EDWIN LONSDALE, Sec'y.

ANNUAL VISIT TO THE CHRYSANTHEMUM HOUSES AT WABAN.—QUEEN OF AUTUMN TO GIVE WAY TO ASPARAGUS THERE.— BANQUET FOLLOWS THE TOUR OF THE GREENHOUSES.—FINAL AWARDS AT THE CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.—MARKET
DEBILITATED.—NEED OF MORE BRACING WEATHER.

The annual visit to the chrysanthemum houses at Waban Conservatories took place on Thursday, November 8, about fifty gentlemen attending. The pilgrimage through the big houses disclosed the usual brilliant show of exhibition blooms and it was learned with much regret that this year is the last in which chrysanthemums will be grown there, Mr.
Montgomery having decided to devote these houses to Asparagus plumosus, for which their height well adapts them.
The opportunity to get asparagus, regularly, of the same high quality that characterizes all other specialties grown at Waban Conservatories will be welcomed by the trade generally and the extent of glass to be devoted to this specialty assures a steady supply. Among the newer chrysanthemums admired by the visitors Ellthorne Beauty, a pink variety, took the lead. A yellow sport from Frank Hardy has appeared and Mr.

Montgomery is much pleased with it.
The roses were found in the same excellent shape as heretofore, notwithstanding the unseasonable warm weather of the past two weeks, which has set the crops ahead and started growths that, unless retarded by a compensating spell of bleak weather later on, will upset all calculations as to Christmas crops and interfere seriously with market conditions generally. More Morgans are being grown this year than heretofore, the steady demand for this rose seeming to warrant its more general cultivation for this market.

The customary banquet followed the inspection of the houses, the guests being conveyed by special car to Woodland Park Hotel, at Auburndale, where a royal good time was enjoyed by all.
Among the visitors who were called upon and who made appreciative and entertaining remarks were John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.; Robt. Paterson, Portsmouth, N. H.; Wm. Appleton and Wm.
O'Connor, of Providence; Carl Jurgens, Jr., Newport, and Hermann Thiemann, Manchester. All the local lights, including F. L. Harris, John Galvin, M. H.
Norton, P. Welch, E. N. Pierce, Lawrence Cotter, Fred. L. Mathieson, Warren Ewell and other celebrities, contributed to the oratory of the occasion and, in the many compliments extended, Mr.
Montgomery shared the honors with Mr. Wood. The words of kindly welcome uttered by Mr. Wood were received with vociferous delight and it is safe to say that had it been possible to decide his fate as a candidate for the legislature by a reference to this happy party the vote would have been an unanimous affirmative. W. J. Stewart officiated as toastmaster.

The final awards at the chrysanthemum show gave Col. Chas. Pfaff, Geo.
Melvin, gardener, the silver medal for having won the largest number of first prizes in the large vase competition and the bronze medal in the same class went to the Simpkins Estate, John Jeffrey, gardener, as second in the race. Entries not mentioned in our report of last week, because made during the latter days of the exhibition, were some fine roses from
J. W. Howard, violets, single, from N. F.
Comley and Wm. Sim and double from Mrs. A. W. Spencer and N. F. Comley, to whom the prizes were awarded in order named. Robert Montgomery received a bronze medal for his new rose, Mrs.
Oliver Ames, the pale pink sport from Mrs. Pierpont Morgan. The attendance at the show was very large. Speaking of the great display of specimen plants made by John Barr, Mr. W. R. Smith said enthusiastically, "without a parallel on earth."

Business in the cut flower section is exceedingly unsatisfactory. To dispose of the enormous receipts of chrysanthemums, roses and carnations that have been coming to the market daily has been out of the question and the wholesalers are swamped, ice boxes overflowing with material held over necessarily from one day to another until ready to drop to pieces. All are looking for some real November weather to come and even things up. Should Thanksgiving bring in such a period there is likely to be some old-fashioned hustling for flowers, as everything in the shape of a bud is being pushed along prematurely, and, as it appears that late-blooming varieties of chrysanthemums are fully two weeks ahead of their time, no interference with a big upward movement in prices is likely to come from the chrysanthemum.

H. Stevens has opened a flower store at 20 Pearl street, Somerville.

Visitors: W. R. Smith, Washington; J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.; Carl Jurgens, Jr., Newport, R. I.; P. J. Donahue, Lenox; Wm. Appleton, E. J. Johnston and Wm. O'Connor, Providence.

Toronto.

ERRATIC WEATHER AFFECTS TRADE CONDITIONS.—PLENTY OF STOCK IN THE STAPLES—VARIOUS NOTES.

Rain, sleet and snow have retarded business for the past week, but now that we have about four inches of snow with about 15° of frost we hope to get over this erratic streak and continue the month in the good way we started. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and some very good ones are coming in. At present Golden Wedding is about the best, but as this variety was too late for show purposes they were not deprived of their good blooms like the others. Philadelphia is also very large at present, but the color is too pale to take with most people. Of other varieties Mrs. Perrin, Mrs. Weeks, President Smith, Major Bonnaffon, Black Hawk and Niveus seem to be about the best. Ivory is not as large as in former years. Good roses are plentiful and some good teas are to be had but Beauties are not as good nor as plentiful as compared with the same time a year ago. Violets, orchids and lily of the valley are about the only flowers we are short of.

Grobba & Wandery are sending some fine Washingtonensis fern to the city and it is a very good seller when properly grown. Three and four plants are placed together in a 10-inch pan and, although more expensive than the Boston, sells quite as well. Ferns are a specialty with this firm and after sending out thousands this fall one would wonder where they were taken from, as the houses seem quite full.

Miller & Son are showing Timothy Eaton in New York and Philadelphia this week, but at the time of writing do not know how they fared.

F. Brown has opened his new store.

OBITUARY.

LUCIUS D. DAVIS.

Lucius D. Davis, a well known journalist and advocate of horticulture, of Newport, R. I., died recently at the age of 75.

EDWARD Pynaert.

European journals record the death of Edward Pynaert, the famous Belgian horticulturist, October 28. He was born at Ghent, Belgium, in 1835.

HENRY MILLER.

Henry Miller, one of the oldest and best known florists of Brooklyn, died, after a short illness, Sunday, November 11, at his home on Jamaica avenue, aged 78 years. He was born at Alzey, Germany, February 19, 1823, and came to this country in 1841, securing a position as gardener at Ex-governor Morris' for three years, after which he started in business for himself in the old town of New Lots, now the Twenty-sixth ward of Brooklyn. It was there that he conducted his business until three years ago, when he retired and was succeeded by his son, A. L. Miller.

HERMAN W. LIEDERLEY.

Herman W. Liederley, a well-known florist of Lansingburgh, near Troy, N. Y., and a citizen highly respected and esteemed, died suddenly November 9. Though Mr. Liederley had been complaining recently of stomach trouble, it was not supposed that his illness was of a serious nature, and his death was a shock to his many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Liederley were contemplating a trip to Europe in the near future. The deceased was fifty-three years of age. He conducted for many years a florist's business at the corner of Fifth avenue and Third street, Lansingburgh. He had conducted greenhouses in Troy and Lansingburgh for the last thirty years. He was born in Berlin, Germany.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. R. Roach, representing Jerome B. Rice & Co., of Cambridge, N. Y., going eastward.

The Toledo clover seed market has recently shown a better tone. A large foreign order reduced stocks considerably last week.

SWEET CORN for seed has ripened well owing to the continued warm weather in September and October and is being offered freely.

THE output of bouquet green from the Wisconsin district is likely to be only from sixty to seventy per cent of an average crop, possibly less.

A. C. NELLIS, of New York, according to the Grain Dealers' Journal, is buying fifty car loads of seed in California to fill his contract with the government.

BOSTON, Mass.—Sixty cases of Japan longiflorum bulbs, sold at auction by the appraiser, were bought by E. N. Pierce at an average price of four dollars.

REPORTS from Hamburg, Germany, indicate that owing to very unfavorable weather the assorting of the valley pips by the growers in the fields has been delayed. The same reports indicate a firm market, the medium grades being generally short.

CROMWELL, CONN.—John Carlin, of the A. N. Pierson establishment, and Miss Anna Johnson were married on the evening of November 3.

MOBILE, ALA.—Miss Maria Minge has secured a window and space in the store of Chas. Mohr & Son in which to conduct a retail flower stand.

WINDSOR FLOWER SEED CO.,
2 Milwaukee, Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

CHRYSANTHEMUM Col. D. Appleton

This variety, which we introduced last spring, has proved to be a prize-winner in every respect, and is undoubtedly the finest yellow chrysanthemum grown today, either for commercial purposes or for exhibition. If you failed to secure a stock of it last spring, let us book your order at once, while you think of it, for a stock of this for next year. This is not a variety that can only be grown by experts, but it is one of the healthiest growers and the most easily grown of all the varieties. It is a wonderfully healthy grower, with the most perfect foliage, and can be grown to perfection under ordinary culture; it is as easily grown as any variety that we know of. It has a magnificent flower of large size, and meets all the requirements of a commercial and exhibition sort. Let us book your order at once for spring delivery. We can furnish fine plants of the true stock. Plants ready February 1, 1901. Price $8.00 per 100.

LILY OF THE VALLEY has now arrived, and we have filled all orders in hand and have a small surplus. Advices from Europe are to the effect that the crop runs very much shorter than expected and that prices have advanced, and it is doubtful if all orders will be filled in full. If you have not already secured your supplies we would advise you to place your order without delay.

We offer extra quality three-year-old German pips, first-class quality—$22.50 per case 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $10.00 per thousand. Our Pierson's Premier is a fine selected Valley for those who want a superior article at a moderate price. This is a grade that will sell largely. $27.50 per case, 2500 pips; in smaller quantities $12.50 per thousand. Pierson's Perfection, an extra selected grade for those who desire the very finest Valley obtainable, and a grade that should be used for very early forcing. No better Valley can be supplied than this grade. It will produce the largest spikes, with the greatest number of bells, and will give the very largest percentage of first-class flowers; can be forced earlier than any other quality. $32.50 per case 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $15.00 per thousand. We are also in receipt of our importations of SPIRAEA. Stock is in fine shape. We have a small surplus, and offer it as long as unsold at the following prices:

- JAPONICA.....$8.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, $4.00 per 100.
- COMPACTA MULTIFLORA..... 9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.
- ASTILBOIDES FLORIBUNDA.... 9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THERE is a scarcity of two-year cherry trees among western nurserymen.

THE Cumberland Nurseries have been incorporated at Jersey City, N. J., with a capital stock of $100,000.

It seems that the fall deliveries of nursery stock have not been quite so heavy as generally expected.

In a recent bulletin (No. 175) of the North Carolina Experiment Station W. W. Ashe describes twenty-one new North American species of crataegus.

CERASUS PADUS is gaining in popularity as a lawn tree. It may be grown either branched to the ground or trimmed to a single trunk with large, round head.

THE Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., note a tendency to defer orchard planting until spring, which meets with their approval, as they think it harmful to dig stock so early as is required for many fall plantings.

Louisville, Ky.

Cut chrysanthemums have sold well this season, many florists having sold out right along. The retail price ranged from $1.50 to $3.00 per dozen.

The Knights Templar have their conclave here next August and several nice orders for decorating buildings have already been placed.

Mrs. L. Gibson died November 4, aged 58 years. She was the wife of one of the oldest florists in Louisville.

The Society of Kentucky Florists has abandoned having a chrysanthemum show this fall.

Jacob Schultz and Nanz & Neuner will have chrysanthemum shows at their stores. H. G. W.

KENT, O.—George F. Braybon has received word of the death of his uncle, David Sprigins, an old time florist at St. Albans, England.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—M. F. Hayden is growing his roses in solid beds instead of on tables and thus far in the season is more than pleased at the results.

ERIE, PA.—During the past week S. Alfred Baur has been assisting the Girl's Friendly Society of St. Paul's church to make a success of the chrysanthemum show at the parish house.

GRAND NEW LARGE-FLOWERED

Lily of the Valley.

"FORTIN VARIETY."

First Class Certificate R. H. S. of France.

First Class Award of Merit
R. H. S. of England.

Why buy Foreign Flowering Crowns
when you can grow your own?

This grand new Lily of the Valley, of which we are now able to offer "1-year" planting crowns in large quantities, is twice the size and substance of the best strain of the Berlin Variety. The foliage is particularly robust and the flower spikes equally so, averaging one foot in height; the individual bells are quite double the size of the best Berlin Valleys, of purest white, very highly scented, and average 18 to 20 bells on a spike. It has been in commerce for some years and is now becoming generally grown and appreciated.

It is undoubtedly a most valuable introduction, as it will grow and thrive where the Berlin variety will not live.

At Utica.

While our scores were quite low we had a big turnout and a very pleasant session November 13. We might possibly account for some of the low scores by our best rollers; Rowland's thoughts, for instance, were, perhaps, distracted by the new place of four acres he had bought that day, and Capt. Baker, our alderman of the third ward, had to attend a special meeting of the council and we do not know how things went there. We had for our guest F. R. Ward, of New Britain, Conn., who seemed to enjoy it very much. The scores:

BUSINESS IS BEGINNING TO MOVE AND STOCK IS RATHER SCARCE.—PROSPECT FOR HIGHER PRICES.—VARIOUS NOTES AND VISITORS.

Business is getting a move on, and this together with the cold and cloudy weather is making the boys hustle to get enough flowers to fill their orders. The anatomy of the wholesalers' ice boxes and cool rooms is painfully apparent these days and they are also put to their utmost to keep their trade supplied. One of the "route" men said that when he offered carnations and maiden-hair and asparagus, his entire stock, at the various stores on his route he was politely told to — etc., and no amount of explanation would do. Violets are very scarce, the buds not seeming to open at all these dark days. Prices will no doubt soon take a soar if the present scarcity continues. Teas are now selling at prices from $5 to $6; Beauties $10 to $25; carnations, $1 to $2.50. Chrysanthemums, which are now going very well, bring from $1 to $2 per dozen with a few of the specials at $2.50. Orchids are very scarce and as there are to be a number of coming out teas the next two weeks there will be a great scramble for these precious blossoms; $5 per dozen is now asked for cattleyas and but few are in sight. Cypripediums are more plentiful at 12 cents to 15 cents each.

Some new stores are opening. Herman Schoenfeld has established himself on Seventeenth below Chestnut, and another store is seen on Fifteenth above Chestnut, owned by a former assistant to C. Poryzell.

Visitors in town: Mr. Miller of Bracendale, Ont.; E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; Eugene Dailledouze, of New York; C. W. Ward, of Queens; A. Herrington, of Madison; Harry May, of Summit; W. A. Manda, of South Orange; W. R. Nicholson, of Boston; J. L. Dillon, of Bloomsburg, and others. K.

Canna Black Beauty, True

Finest dark leaved canna in existence, as richly colored as a Dracaena. Fine grower, 4 1/2 to 5 feet. The best canna for centers of large beds. We have the largest stock in the country and can supply it in quantity.

$2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100 for divided roots, 1 to 2 eyes. Special prices quoted on lots of 1000 or more.

New Canna Cinnabar. (Ward).

Clear Cinnabar red with distinct gilt edge, fine round flower of great substance. Clean, vigorous habit, about 3 1/2 to 4 feet high; profuse bloomer in good trusses which clean themselves nicely. A distinct new shade and an acceptable addition to the list of bedding varieties.

Strong roots 25c each, $2.50 per doz., $20.00 per 100.

New Canna Mrs. Kate Grav. A splendid hybrid of the Italian class. Fine strong habit, broad bronzy green foliage. Good strong clean spikes well above foliage. Individual floret very large; 7 inches across at times. Color bright orange scarlet at times striped with deeper scarlet and edges of petals flamed with golden yellow. Stands the sun well, blooms early. Foliage very broad and effect of plant is decidedly tropical.

Fine strong roots, 25c each, $2.50 per dozen.

Canna J. D. Eisele.

Deep crimson scarlet. We have been growing this canna with increasing satisfaction for the past four years. In substance of flower, color, profuseness of bloom, form of petal and spike, it is in every respect fully the equal of Columbia, and in addition is a healthy, clean grower and propagates easily.

Field-grown clumps, $25.00 per 100; divided roots, 1 to 3 eyes, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000.

GENERAL LIST OF CANNAS.

TRADE FAIR IN WHOLESALE CENTERS.—
CHRYSANTHEMUMS NOT ACCUMULATING.
—PERSONAL NOTES.

The past week's business has been good, with fair prices prevailing. The commission houses sold out every day and they say shipping trade is very good. Chrysanthemums seem to be coming along just about right. In past seasons the wholesale houses were loaded down with chrysanthemums, and at times did not know what to do with them. But this year it is different, for when a grower sends in a hundred or so they are sold within an hour or two. The fall opening of one of our large dry goods stores Monday and Tuesday made roses and carnations scarce for the two days.

Fred. Gear came down to the commission houses last Thursday wearing a broad smile and passed the good cigars around to the boys. "Freddy" was on the right side of the election and pulled down a nice pile of coin. He says he does not care if Beauties do go up 5 cents on the dozen now.

Theo. Beck, of Hamilton, was a visitor last Saturday. He is very enthusiastic about the way his chrysanthemums are selling.

Al. Bruner, who was injured in a street car accident about two months ago, is recovering slowly.

Wm. Mann, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Company, is down with a touch of pneumonia. D.

SHEFFIELD, O.—A. A. Padley is putting up a new greenhouse for miscellaneous stock.

RACINE, WIS.—A. J. Fiddler is extending his business considerably, having completed a new house 22x100, with one 35x125 under way.

A FLORISTS' CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW MEETS THE SUCCESS WHICH IT DESERVES.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

A. Washburn & Song gave a chrysanthemum show on November 9 and 10. To the credit of the Bloomingtonians be it said there was no lack of attendance, the spacious store, which has been recently enlarged and remodeled, being filled to overflowing on both days. The show itself, as I viewed it, was well worthy of the flattering comments heard on all sides. There were chrysanthemum plants of all sizes, shapes and colors. Some grown fanlike, many medium sized plants, of the kind that the average storeman never has left on his hands, and quite a number of specimens, such as one is accustomed to see at an exhibition hall in New York, Chicago or Philadelphia. Such varieties as Glory of Pacific, Bonnaffon and Mrs. Robinson showed up remarkably well, both on the plants and in the vases. The store and conservatory adjoining were tastefully decorated for the occasion, the Chinese lanterns suspended from the ceilings and in every available corner lending a charming effect to the whole.

A carnation house, 35x140, even spans, is a recent addition to the Washburns' already extensive range of houses. It is certainly an ideal structure, of the kind wherein carnations of whatever tendencies are sure to do well. I will remark in passing that there is not a carnation of recent introduction but what is grown at the Washburn place. There is no complaint about any of them thus far. Nor do their roses lack in the attributes generally accorded to fine stock, Meteor and Liberty vying with each other for supremacy, while the Bride and Bridesmaid and Golden Gate are in nowise behind. A batch of cyclamen plants in full bloom and with perfect crowns was well worthy of seeing.

W. T. Hempstead, having remodeled his plant and with a general stock that never looked better, is now prepared to do an enlarged business.

FIVE REASONS Why You Should Place Your Orders for . . . AZALEAS

With Us at Once

BECAUSE You can still take advantage of the mild weather, and have the plants come through safely by freight.

BECAUSE We are the largest buyers of Azaleas in the world, and make personal inspection of the stocks before they are shipped to us, and buy for spot cash, which enables us to secure the lowest prices, and you the benefit in quality of the plants.

BECAUSE Our importations are all repacked at our own nursery. Plants that have suffered in transit, and which are not well set with buds being discarded, you receive nothing but first-class stock, which is certain to give satisfaction.

BECAUSE We can give you any special assortment of varieties that you may wish. This is a great advantage over the usual assorted case lots sent over from Belgium, which invariably contain many varieties not at all suited to the American market.

BECAUSE We wish to convince you, as we have convinced many of the leading florists of the United States, that you can buy Azaleas from us to better advantage than if you make your own importations.

...PRICES...

SPECIMEN AZALEA

"Indispensable"

EDITION OF 1900,
POSTPAID, $2.00

This is the only word which describes the American Florist Company's Trade Directory. This book, 387 pages of facts tersely told, is issued annually and is an aid to business and money making which no wholesaler or traveling salesman can afford to be without. It contains the name of every Florist, Nurseryman and Seedsman, arranged both by states and towns and alphabetically; and new lists of Gardeners or Superintendents of private estates, Experiment Station Horticulturists, Landscape Architects and Horticultural Supply Concerns. It will save many times its cost by enabling you to cover America with your catalogue and at the same time waste no printed matter or postage on dead names.

NOTINGS OF THE DOINGS OF A TRIO OF NEWARK'S REPRESENTATIVE TRADESMEN.—MUCH GOOD STOCK IN EVIDENCE.—TRADE IS GOOD.

H. C. Strobell has a fine store at 783 Broad street, where he carries everything in the line of cut flowers and also a general assortment of plants. The plants come direct from his Elizabeth avenue nursery, where there are four houses devoted to stock of this kind, chiefly to supply home and store trade. Among Mr. Strobell's collection are to be noticed particularly fine specimens of Pandanus utilis, Areca lutescens, Kentia Belmoreana, Lantana Borbonica, sago palms, Acalypha Sanderi, Boston and maiden-hair ferns, dracaenas, rubber plants, Otaheite oranges and crotons. He also has in stock a goodly number of plants of Asparagus Sprengeri, A. plumosus and A. tenuissimus and selaginellas in variety.

Mr. Gerlach, of the firm of Begerow & Gerlach, has retired from the partnership. Mr. Begerow is carrying on the business, which is a very prosperous one. He reports a good general trade and many wedding orders. Over the door in the rear of his store is the word "welcome" in immortelles. This door leads into a house where Araucaria excelsa, Boston ferns, rubber plants and palms are grown. The young ficuses and palms have their pots plunged in a bed through which runs a heating pipe. This Mr. Begerow chooses to call the "hospital," although the plants are the picture of health. Above the store is a conservatory for "boarders," many of which are sent there every spring. On the side benches and in vacant spaces in this department are primulas and Paper White narcissi which will come on for holiday trade.

Chas. Witheridge carries a full line of decorative plants, cut flowers and bulbs. Among other things in his propagating house and conservatory at the rear of his store are some very nice plants of poinsettia and Boston ferns. C.

The Famous Kudzu Vine—Hardy as a rock. Lasts 50 years. Can be cut back every year. Grows 50 feet in one season. $7.00 per 100.

Asparagus Sprengeri—Strong 3/4-in., $6.00 per 100.
 New Rose Snowflake—The Daisy Rose, $10 per 100.
 New Lace Fern—Fronds last a month, $6.00 per 100.
 New Russelia Multiflora—2 1/4-inch, $4.00 per 100.
 50 New Plants not to be Had Elsewhere.
 Callas—White, $3 per 100; Spotted, $3; Yellow, $20.
 Cannas, Dahlias, and all summer blooming bulbs.

Mark Aitken is well satisfied with his chrysanthemum crop, both quantity and quality being strong features with him, while the demand for the blooms, and especially of the choicer grades, exceeds his own expectations. He is, however, well equipped to meet all demands, there being no shortage in sight for some time to come. Social functions of one sort or another have of late kept Mr. Aitken and his staff of assistants quite busy. Rumor has it that a brand new delivery wagon drawn by a pair of spirited bays may soon appear upon the streets of Springfield. Aitken is a progressive, up-to-date florist and whatever he undertakes he usually accomplishes in the best possible manner. His chrysanthemum show given recently, was well attended by the general public. NOMIS.

New Orleans.

THE FIRST DAY OF THE MONTH BROUGHT MUCH BUSINESS AND MANY BOXES OF NORTHERN FLOWERS.

All Saint's day is past and as usual the decorations at the cemeteries were very elaborate, the larger part being natural flowers. Our local chrysanthemums did not turn out very well. Many were behind time and good buds of early sorts were spoiled by unfavorable weather. Some very good stock came from Mississippi but the larger quantity came from Chicago. About 300 boxes were received on November 1 to supply the different florists. Good chrysanthemums retailed at from $4 to $5 per dozen.

J. B. Heiss, of Dayton, Ohio, is in town with a lot of foliage plants and roses as samples. He is very well satisfied with his sales, with good prospects for the future. M. M. L.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—George E. Hunt has been sick for some days but is now improving.

LA CROSSE, WIS—It is reported that Mrs. A. Guillaume will start a branch flower store at Madison.

BANGOR, ME.—A. J. Loder has his new greenhouse well stocked and is in business on a much larger scale than heretofore.

GALESBURG, ILL.—I. L. Pillsbury has been giving a chrysanthemum show this week. He induced the street railway people to light his greenhouses for him during the show for the fares they would get from the attendance, he doing considerable advertising.

KANSAS CITY, Mo —W. L. Rock gave a chrysanthemum show and an exposition of "the best that grows in cut flowers" at his store, 1116 Walnut street, November 8 to 10. He issued very neat invitations and was rewarded with large attendance and good business.

THE EXHIBITIONS.

St. Louis.

The tenth annual chrysanthemum show was held November 14 to 16 at the Exposition Building and though the weather with the exception of one day was good, the show did not prove to be, financially, a success; to just what extent can not as yet be said, but it is thought to be very little. The hall, though not as large as last year, was decorated much better and the groups of palms and ferns were shown to better advantage. The cut flowers were of the very best, but the plants though very good were not of the highest quality. The exhibitors of cut flowers were mostly from a distance, though some of the home growers, such as Sanders, Schray, Fillmore, Michel, Windler and Beyer, were present. Principal among the others were Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., Fred. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., Geo. M. Kellogg, Kansas City, and several others from Belleville and surrounding towns.

The center of the hall was taken up by groups of chrysanthemums of different sizes, shapes and colors, while immediately in front of the door were several more beds with a background of three large groups of palms which took up the whole side of the hall, and on the sides were benches for the cut flowers. The palms were exhibited by Schray, Beyer and Michel, who took the Shaw premiums for the largest and best collections of named varieties, not less than twelve kinds, in the order named. At one end two large groups of named begonias were placed and awarded Shaw premiums, Schray first and Michel Plant & Bulb Co., second. At the other end were the collections of twenty-five flowering plants for house decoration, exclusive of chrysanthemums and not more than three varieties of any species, and in these Schray was first, Fillmore second and Sanders third. In different parts of the hall were three large collections of named ferns of not less than twelve kinds; Michel first, Schray second and Beyer third. Beyer had several large and beautiful specimens of Cibotium Shiedii which were much admired. Several groups of variegated foliage plants, begonias and ferns excluded, showed up well, the prizes going to Schray first, Beyer second and Michel third.

On each side of the entrance there was a table with twelve named geraniums in bloom. These showed up very prettily with their bright colors, Fillmore receiving first and F. J. Windler second. Another thing that took the eyes of quite a number was a display of several tastefully arranged fern dishes filled with growing plants and not over twelve inches in diameter; Michel first, Sanders second and Schray third. For the best pair of named climbers and best pair of Asparagus Sprengeri, Beyer received first and Schray second in each case and Fillmore third in the last. Schray being the only one to compete for ten named cyclamens in bloom, received the blue ribbon. The display of Boston fern was very large, and some very large plants were shown. C. C. Sanders received first, Michel second and Chas. Beyer & Son third. The judges scale of points by which they were judged was, size 50, form 25, and foliage 25. The largest were in 10-inch pots. There were two large groups of hardy evergreens and evergreen shrubs of not less than twelve kinds for which C. C. Sanders took first, with Miller second. The Shaw premiums for the best specimens of the following plants were awarded as follows: Araucaria, F. Fillmore first, Beyer second, Schray third; Areca lutescens, Beyer first, Sanders second, Schray third; Howea Belmoreana, Beyer first, Schray second, Sanders third; Howea Forsteriana, Beyer first, Sanders second, Schray third; Livistonia Chinensis, Beyer first, Sanders second, Schray third; Pandanus utilis, Beyer first, Schray second, Fillmore third. The judging scale was the same as used for the Boston fern.

The competition for the best single specimen chrysanthemum plant resulted as follows: White, Beyer first, Windler second, Schray third; yellow, Schray first, Beyer second, Windler third; pink, Beyer first, Windler second; Schray third; any other color, Beyer first, Windler second, Schray third. Ten specimen plants 10-inch pots, Beyer first, Schray second, Sanders third. Five specimen plants, 10-inch pots, Beyer first, Schray second, Sanders third. Groups 100 feet square of chrysanthemum plants, Windler first, Beyer second, Schray third. In the five classes calling for fifty plants one or more varieties; twenty-five plants, white, one variety; twenty-five plants, yellow, one variety; three plants, white, yellow and pink; and two plants, pink and white, Chas. Beyer & Son received all the first prizes. Wm. Schray & Sons received firsts for two and for one specimen palms. C. C. Sanders received first and Beyer second for two Boston ferns, and Beyer received first on best specimen fern. For twenty-five carnation plants in bloom, Fillmore first, Schray second.

The cut flowers for Wednesday were very good. Chrysanthemums—Forty-eight blooms, Nathan Smith & Son first, E. G. Hill Co. second, Sanders third; twenty-five blooms, white, one variety, Nathan Smith & Son first, Vesey second, E. G. Hill Co. third; vase of fifty blooms, quality and arrangement to be equally considered, Vesey first with fine Bonnaffons, Nathan Smith & Son second, and Schray third; vase of twenty-four blooms, white and pink, E. G. Hill Co. first, Nathan Smith & Son second. In roses Schray received first on twenty-five blooms of Souvenir de Wootton; Vesey first and Ammann second on twenty-five Bridesmaids; twenty-five Bride, Ammann first, Vesey second. The American Beauties were of the very best and Ammann received first, Kellogg second. With carnations a vase of fifty Ethel Crocker was very good and took the blue ribbon for Vesey, while an equally good vase of Daybreak took first for Schray. A beautiful vase of mignonette was exhibited by Schray, and took first prize.

For Thursday the cut flowers seemed to be much better, as was also the attendance. Chrysanthemums—Vase twenty-five, pink, one variety, E. G. Hill Co. first, Kellogg second; vase of fifty, quality and arrangement to be equally considered, Nathan Smith & Son first, Vesey second; vase twenty-five, yellow, C. C. Sanders first, Vesey second. The roses were very good and our Perle King, Fred. Ammann, did not fail to take first on a vase of twenty-five Perle des Jardins with Fillmore second and Sanders third; vase of twenty-five Meteor, Vesey first, Kellogg second; vase of Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, W. W. Coles first, Kellogg second, Vesey third. A very fine vase of fifty G. H. Crane carnations took first for Vesey and second went to F. Ammann; vase of sixty variegated, one or more varieties, Vesey first, Nathan Smith & Son second. John Steidel exhibited some very fine double violets.

On Friday the weather was cold and it rained the entire day and evening, and although the attendance was good it was not as it undoubtedly would have been under better conditions. Chrysanthemums—Twenty-five blooms, yellow, one variety, Vesey first; vase of not less than twelve varieties, Vesey first. This being the last night the Shaw premiums were offered and the competition was good. They went as follows: Twelve blooms each of Mayflower, Major Bonnaffon and any other yellow, Vesey first, Teilmann second, Sanders third in each case; twelve any other white, Vesey first, Michel second, Sanders third; twelve any pink variety, Teilmann first, Sanders second, Michel third; twelve blooms, any variety introduced in 1898, 1899 or 1900, West End Floral Park first, Michel second, Teilmann third. Some of the yellows that were shown for three were: Sunderbruch first, Eugene Dailedouze second, Golden Wedding third; for four, Robinson first, Miss Florence Pullman second, Mrs. Jerome Jones third. Fee du Champsaur though very fine did not get a ribbon. For five, Helen Bloodgood first, Mrs. Murdock second, Mme. F. Perrin third. Twenty-five blooms of Liberty roses, E. G. Hill Co. first, Schray second, Steidel third; four vases roses, fifteen of a kind, American Beauty and American Belle excepted, Vesey first,

Ammann second, Fillmore third; twenty-five American Beauty (special), Kellogg first; twenty-five American Beauty (special), Ammann first, Kellogg second. Vase of white carnations, fifty blooms, Vesey first with Mrs. Wood, Steidel second and Fillmore third, each with a vase of Flora Hill; vase of pink, Vesey first with Mrs. Lawson, very fine, Ammann second with Wm. Scott, which were good; a vase of fifty, Jubilee, exhibited by Vesey were very good. Some of the other carnations exhibited were White Cloud, Genevieve Lord, Francis Joost and Triumph.

Julius Schray had some very good seedling chrysanthemums which attracted considerable attention, especially after they had named them after some of the late presidential candidates, and several of them are very good and will add to our list of good varieties. One was named Wm. McKinley. This was a white with a faint blush of pink, but of very good substance. Another was Wm. Bryan, a large and excellent white with a good center and strong stem and foliage. Theodore Roosevelt was of a light pink shade but somewhat weak. Stevenson is a good pink resembling Mme. Perrin, of which it is a seedling; it has good holding qualities and with care it will without doubt pass its parent. Miss Allen is one that caught the eyes of all the ladies, as it was a white with a penciling of pink at the tips of the petals. Last, but best of all, was Mr. Dickman, named in honor of our new sheriff, an oldtime seedsman. It is a large white with a full center and strong stem. Mr. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., thought with a little care, of which the blooms shown had very little, it would be one of the best whites on the market. Malcolm Lamont, a dark red chrysanthemum was among the new things that the people saw. The Pride of Belleville, exhibited by Emmons, of Belleville, Ill., was awarded a certificate of merit by the judges.

The Queen of Edgely, or pink American Beauty, attracted a great deal of attention and, though it had been three days on the way, it was as good as ever. Rose

No. 19, or Marquise Litta, also came in for its share of praise, which it undoubtedly deserved, as it was very large, of good color, with strong stem and foliage. M.

Providence, R. I.

The second fall show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held at Tillinghast Hall, Providence, November 14, 15 and 16. Chrysanthemums formed a leading feature of the exhibition and gave a specific name to the show, although it was general in character. Carnations were shown in good form and were very much in evidence, even though forced to divide the honors with the more magnificent autumn flower. Several large groups of palms and foliage plants, finely arranged, added much to the general effect of the display. Taken as a whole the hall presented as attractive an appearance as could be desired. The annex was occupied by an excellent display of fruit.

Specimen plants of chrysanthemums were not included in the schedule and but one or two were on exhibition, and these would rank only as ordinary, in view of the possibilities in this direction. An artistically trained standard shown by Col. Wm. Goddard was striking and commendable. This class of exhibits showed such a falling off in quality in past years that it was decided to drop them from the schedule entirely. Isn't it better policy to establish the rule that no prize shall be awarded to an exhibit which is not meritorious? A little soothing syrup in the form of a mention or gratuity is not out of place and the wise judge will not hesitate to offer encouragement in this form any more than to withhold prizes where they are not deserved.

It is to be regretted that competition was not more spirited. In fact it was almost entirely lacking from the territory from which this society naturally draws its material. Except for entries by an exhibitor from the vicinity of Boston, one local grower would have had a complete walkover in all the classes for cut blooms, as he did in some of them. This state of things is not creditable to the stay-aways, and certainly is not to their advantage nor to that of the winner. Tennyson says, "'Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all," which can well be paraphrased into, "'Tis better to have tried and failed than never to have tried at all." If there is one man who so much outclasses others in the excellence of his productions that he is usually the winner, he deserves what he gets, but there ought to be plenty of others with energy, spirit and ambition enough to be ready and willing to push him close enough to put him on his mettle and to give the public and the society the benefit of a race for the money. The competitor to be feared is not the one who gives up when he is beaten once or twice, but the one who in defeat studies his own weak points, remedies and strengthens them for the next occasion and then goes in to do his best the next time. Even if he retains his laurels, the champion has to keep his eye on that fellow all the time. A city of the size of Providence ought to have within its tributary district more than one grower who is willing to cast his gauntlet into the arena and meet all comers. As is usually the case, the attendance was not such as the merits of the show deserved. Are our flower shows advertised in the best and most effective manner? I fear not.

The Floral Exchange, of Philadelphia, contributed a vase of the new rose, Queen of Edgely, and R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, a vase of the new seedling carnation, Enquirer; both were in fine form and were awarded certificates of merit. Charles S. Cooper, of Brockton, Mass., received honorable mention for carnation Copley. Prizes were awarded as follows:

Chrysanthemums—Six specimen plants grown to single stem, white, second, Wm. Hill; pink, Wm. Hill; yellow, Wm. Goddard, second, Wm. Hill; "any color," Wm. Hill. Best specimen, new variety, second, Wm. Goddard. Vase thirty blooms, John Barr, gardener for Mrs. Cheney, Wellesley, Mass.; second, Farquhar Macrae. Fifty bottles, cut blooms, Farquhar Macrae. Twelve cut blooms, incurved, John Barr. Six blooms, incurved, F. Macrae. Six blooms, reflexed, F. Macrae. Best single flower, white, John Barr, second, F. Macrae; pink, John Barr, second, F. Macrae; yellow, F. Macrae, second, John Barr; "any variety," John Barr, second, F. Macrae. Six vases, ten blooms each, first, second and third, F. Macrae. Amateur collections, Mrs. V. R. Joslin; second, Miss Jennie Sweet; third, Annie M. Lewis.

Carnations—Cut blooms with foliage, not less than six varieties, S. J. Reuter; second and third, John Macrae. Twenty-five blooms crimson, S. J. Reuter, with Gen. Maceo. Twenty-five blooms dark pink, S. J. Reuter, with Mrs. Lawson; second, F. Macrae, with Triumph. Twenty-five blooms light pink, S. J. Reuter, with Morning Glory; second, F. Macrae, with Daybreak. Certificate of merit, N. D. Pierce. Twenty-five blooms scarlet, John Macrae, with E. G. Hill. Twenty-five blooms white, S. J. Reuter, with Mary Wood; second, F. Macrae, with Flora Hill. Twenty-five blooms yellow, John Macrae, with Eldorado; second, F. Macrae, with Eldorado. Best new seedling raised in Rhode Island, first and second, F. Macrae; third, W. S. Nichols.

Most artistically arranged exhibit of chrysanthemums, palms, ferns and foliage plants, first, E. J. Johnston; second, J. F. Parks; third, Col. Wm. Goddard.

Gratuities were awarded to Mrs. V. R. Joslin for display of pansies, to S. J. Reuter for display of roses and for vase of Bridesmaid, to N. D. Pierce for evergreens, cyclamens and ferns, to H. G. York for vase of seedling chrysanthemums and to Wm. Hill for crotons.

H. F. BURT.

Newport, R. I.

The ninth annual chrysanthemum show of the Newport Horticultural Society was a grand exhibition in every sense of the word and the members of the society have good reason to be proud of it. The writer is assured, and feels justified in saying, that at no other place in the country has a show been held that eclipsed the Newport exhibition in the point of excellence of the material staged. The groups of palms and foliage plants and groups of palms, ferns and chrysanthemums arranged for effect were superb. There were just enough groups to surround the hall and make a complete decoration for the side walls.

Throughout the center of the hall the specimen plants were placed. At the south end of the hall there is a balcony and upon a raised platform the palms, ferns and other specimen plants were arranged, making a pretty background for the large vases of cut blooms, fancy baskets and table centerpieces of chrysanthemums. The cut flowers were shown in a room adjoining the hall. They were very uniform in size and finish and it certainly required the skill of an expert to pick the winners and do justice to the other competitors. The cut roses, carnations and violets were also staged here and much admired for their excellence of culture.

Robert Laurie, gardener to Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, was first on group of decorative plants, on group of decorative plants and chrysanthemums, on six bush plants, on six bush plants, yellow, with Peter Kay; on six pink, with Vivian-Morel; on six red, with General Maceo; on six "any other color," with Inter Ocean; on arca, on kentia, on six blooms incurved chrysanthemum, on six blooms reflexed, on ten pink, on ten "any other color," and on table centerpiece.

John Barr, gardener to Mrs. B. P. Cheney, South Natick, Mass., was first on specimen yellow chrysanthemum with Golden Trophy, on pink with Louis Boehmer, on red with The Bard, on "any other color" with Louis Boehmer, on specimen pompon with Savanna, on specimen fern, on twenty-five cut blooms of chrysanthemums, and on twelve blooms

Alex. Fraser, gardener to H. McK. Twombly, was first on six bush plants, white, with Frank Hardy; on ten cut blooms, white, and on bunch of violets, James Garthley, Fairhaven, Mass., was first for specimen white chrysanthemum with Mutual Friend and on specimen anemone with Garza.

Harry Westley, gardener to I. T. Burden, was first for any nephrolepis and on fancy basket of any flower other than chrysanthemums. Andrew Meikle, gardener to W. S. Wells, was first on any palm other than arca or kentia, and on Adiantum Farleyense.

Edward Jenkins, Lenox, Mass., was first on American Beauty, on Bridesmaid and Kaiserin. Farquhar Macrae, Providence, was first on ten cut blooms of a yellow chrysanthemum.

John Ash, Pomfret, Conn., was first on ten cut blooms of a red chrysanthemum, and also showed a magnificent bloom of F. H. Constable. W. Barth, gardener to Perry Belmont, was first on carnations.

Prize winners in the amateurs' classes were George Taylor, William Hazard and Mrs. E. P. Marsh.

Robert Laurie was awarded a first prize and a silver medal for General Maceo in the class for seedling chrysanthemums and John Barr received the society's silver medal for having the best plant on exhibition, Louis Boehmer.

M. D. Pierce, Newton, R. I., showed a new seedling carnation named Beau Ideal which appears to be an improvement on Daybreak. John Allen, of the Coswell Greenhouses, showed several vases of fine carnations but not for competition.

Robert Craig & Son, Philadelphia, staged the Queen of Edgely, for which they received a certificate of merit. It was much admired.

Frank Brinton, gardener to Theo. Davis, staged fine groups of well grown ferns not for competition.

Geo. A. Weaver & Co., made a good showing of seeds, bulbs and general horticultural supplies.

Edward Jenkins staged a vase of Sunrise, the new rose which E. G. Hill & Co., sent out last year.

The judges of the show were Wm. J. Stewart, Boston; James Wheeler and Kenneth Finlayson, Brookline, Mass.

Among the visitors were: D. F. Roy, E. A. Wood, T. J. Grey, Boston; Alex. Rennie, Farquhar Macrae, John Macrae, T. J. Johnston, E. N. Pierce, E. J. Johnston, Alex. Millar, J. B. Canning, Providence, R. I.; W. R. Smith, Washington, D. C.; W. P. Craig, Philadelphia. J. J. B.

Houston, Texas.

The greatest success in the form of a chrysanthemum show ever held in Texas was that at Houston, November 15 and 16, under the auspices of the Faith Home Association. It was their seventh annual exhibition and it is looked forward to each year by the flower loving people of south Texas as a kind of holiday time. The attendance was like the show itself, twice as large as ever before, and the net profits will not fall short of $1000.

The leading feature was the entries from as many as seven noted florists outside the state, which made competition very lively and interesting in the classes for cut blooms and plants "open to all" growers in America.

Following is a list of winners in a few of the most popular classes:

Best twenty blooms, twenty varieties, Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., first; William Kutschbach, Houston, second.

Best ten blooms, white, J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, first.

Best ten blooms, yellow, Michel Plant and Bulb Co., St. Louis, first.

Best ten blooms, pink, J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, first.

Largest bloom any color, J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.

Nanz & Neuner, of Louisville, also sent a large and creditable display, which elicited favorable mention. The center of attraction, however, was the large and magnificent group of single-stemmed chrysanthemums exhibited by James Morton, of Clarksville, Tenn. They added greater honors to the reputation of this popular expert as the pioneer of chrysanthemum growers in the south. These plants were of even height, splendid foliage and the most exquisite bloom.

In the cut flower classes J. C. Vaughan, the Chicago seedsman and florist, had the best of it. His Chadwicks were the best cut blooms in the hall. The exhibits of Nathan Smith & Son were extremely fine and the greatest in variety. Goldmine, by Vaughan, was successful as the largest bloom in the show. Competition of from five to seven growers in each of the above named entries was extremely gratifying to the management and made the race for supremacy extremely interesting.

Among the Texas florists Wm. Kutschbach easily won first honors on a large number of entries. Owing to the great storm, exhibitions heretofore held at Galveston, Alvin and Dickinson were abandoned and patronage as well as many fine exhibits from those points centered at Houston. The prize list embraced roses and opportunity for the display of decorative skill. The season for roses was splendid and brought out the finest Beauties, Brides, Bridesmaids, Kaiserins and La France ever seen here. The decorations, as well as a number of booths for the sale of flowers, were very artistic and added to the general ensemble.

The marvel was how so beautiful a show could have sprung up after the recent great storm. Flowers amounting to more than a carload came from all parts of the country and the response will be duly appreciated during the spring trade. In the prize winning groups the newer varieties of chrysanthemums were not as successful as some of the popular older sorts. S. J. M.

Cold-Spring-on-Hudson, N. Y.

The second annual exhibition of the Putnam County Horticultural Society was held in the town hall on November 8 and 9. The exhibitors in all classes were local, with the exception of the contest for the president's prize, which attracted outside exhibitors, W. Rockefeller, Wm. Turner, gardener, carrying off the coveted silver cup. The quality and finish of most exhibits was all that could be desired and it was a gratifying sight to see local society taking a keen interest in the results of the judging, which were as follows:

Chas. De Rham, R. Griggs, gardener, was first for group of chrysanthemum plants, specimen chrysanthemum plant, group of foliage plants, specimen Asparagus Sprengeri, twelve chrysanthemum blooms crimson, six blooms crimson, six blooms "any other color," twenty-five blooms in vase, twenty-four varieties on boards, twelve blooms on boards, twelve blooms Rose Perle des Jardins, twelve Meteor, twelve scarlet carnations and on three dishes of pears. He also took a number of second premiums.

Mrs. V. R. Osborne, W. Buckley, gardener, was first on specimen fern, on one single-stemmed chrysanthemum, twelve blooms Col. D. Appleton, on twelve Bridesmaid roses, twelve Bride, twelve Liberty and on pink carnations. She also took a number of second prizes.

S. Sloan, J. Cassidy, gardener, was first on six chrysanthemum plants and on twelve plants in six varieties, on late celery, collection of vegetables and took a number of seconds. S. Cunningham was first on three single-stemmed plants.

Wm. Rockefeller, W. Turner, gardener, was first on thirty-six blooms of chrysanthemums, on twelve blooms white, twelve yellow and on three varieties of carnations, twelve blooms of each.

Col. W. E. Rogers, L. Hustis, gardener, was first on decorative plants, on three heads early celery, and second on other entries.

W. Sargent, W. G. Gomersall, gardener, was first on twelve blooms pink chrysanthemums and on twelve blooms "any other color."

General D. Butterfield, W. Dyos, gardener, was first on six foliage plants, on six ferns, on six poinsettias in pots and took several seconds.

J. T. Sherman, W. Haynes, gardener, was first on six blooms white, yellow and six pink in the chrysanthemum classes.

Capt. Metcalf, J. Lowry, gardener, was first on white carnations; second on scarlet.

Mrs. J. M. Toucey, E. Howe, gardener, was first on violets and on apples.

Orange, N. J.

The sixth annual exhibition of the New Jersey Floricultural Society took place on Wednesday, November 14, at Bray's Hall. It was remarkable in that its chief feature was the exhibit made by the school children, the displays of the florists and professional gardeners being intended mainly as a setting for this unique show. There were nearly 1,000 children's entries and the affair attracted an immense throng of visitors old and young, the exhibits, many of them, being exceedingly creditable to the youthful horticulturists and the promoters are highly pleased with the success of the enterprize. The scheme had its inception in the fertile brain of J. N. May, who was a sponsor, promoter and generous donor of plants, seconded by W. A. Manda, A. D. Rose, J. C. Williams, Peter Duff, Malcolm Macrorie, John Hayes and others, and was under the management of Joseph A. Manda, who received unstinted praise for the efficiency and patience displayed in handling the unprecedented number of entries.

Statias as ever were the big latanias, kentias and cycads from those princely growers, Malcolm Macrorie, Peter McLaughlin, George Smith and W. A. Manda. Oscar Carlesen, the youngest exhibitor among the professionals, also made a good record for himself with cycads and pineapples. The center of the hall was adorned with a superb group of foliage plants from Peter Duff. George Smith won the special premium for the largest chrysanthemum bloom and a painting by Mrs. Kitchen for the best exhibit. D. Kindsgrab showed a group of foliage and decorative plants, Geo. Von Qualen fine carnations and Peter Duff roses in variety.

Popken & Collins made a fine general display and showed how closely the commercial men are now following the expert private gardeners in the matter of quality. Their chrysanthemums and carnations were first-class, and their exhibits artistically grouped. Other trade exhibitors were, J. N. May, with several new varieties of chrysanthemums, for which he received three certificates of merit; W. A. Manda, with decorative foliage and flowering plants that brought him a certificate; J. C. Williams, who received a certificate for pompon chrysanthemums; A. David Rose, with fine chrysanthemum blooms and ericas; and Paul Wilcox, whose four cycads also were similarly honored.

Waco, Tex.

The fifth annual flower show at Waco, Texas, November 12 to 17, under the management of the Texas State Floral Society was given with the aid of the most auspicious weather possible and while no better than on former years the outcome may be classed as a fair success. The premium list was a very large one, offering good inducements in a variety of classes in floriculture and decorative art, but the response in entries was limited and not large enough to make competition interesting. The only florists entering from out of Texas were Baur & Smith, of Indianapolis, who won prizes in chrysanthemums and carnations as they chose.

Among the Waco florists who won are J. Woll and Miss Anna West, the latter having splendid success on competition in hanging baskets, design work and collection of palms. Mrs. S. W. Cohen, a prominent amateur grower, won on window garden, palms and collections of plants.

The auditorium which held the exhibition was a large and commodious building arranged chiefly for theatricals. Seats came in good stead for the comfort of goodly crowds of visitors who came as much to enjoy the band concert as the flowers. Governor J. D. Sayers, who was in attendance, formally opened the exhibition with a complimentary talk and was presented with a bouquet of handsome chrysanthemums in acknowledgement.

Among the prize winning chrysanthemums were noticed Major Bonnafton, Golden Wedding, Modesto, Minerva, Mrs. Weeks, Florence Pullman, Chas. Davis, The Queen, W. H. Chadwick, Evangeline, S. T. Murdock and Vivian-Morel. The most successful feature of the show was the hall decorations and decorative exhibits, which showed marked talent and artistic skill for the ladies in charge. The patronage was most gratifying and should encourage the management to endeavor to secure a larger display, especially among chrysanthemums, and livelier competition than in the past.

Mt. Kisco, N. Y.

The fifth annual exhibition of the Bedford Flower Club was held in the Mount Kisco opera house November 8 and 9. While the number of exhibits was not as large as in previous years, the quality of the plants and cut blooms was superb and the show was very gratifying in other respects. A. L. Marshall, gardener to J. B. Dutcher, Powling, N. Y., took the lead on cut chrysanthemum blooms. He was first for best collection, limited to seventy-five; for five vases of six blooms, of different colors, and for twelve blooms and six blooms Col. D. Appleton, the Pierson prizes. The principal competitor in these classes was Geo. W. Barton, gardener to J. D. Layng, who was the leader in pot plants.

TWO EUROPEAN LEADERS.

Mr. Marshall was first for twelve blooms of undisseeded seedling carnations. For the best seedling H. A. Spavins was first with a good white, Mr. Marshall second with a crimson variety. The latter was first for the best dozen blooms of any carnation.

H. A. Spavins brought the best violets and Mr. Marshall had the best collection of canna blooms. He was given a certificate of merit for a seedling with extra wide petals.

In plants Mr. Spavins was first for a collection, for pair of araucarias, and for Asparagus Sprengeri. Mr. Marshall was first for specimen decorative plant, for collection of geraniums, for pair of adiantums and for Begonia Rex.

In the amateur classes plants grown by J. E. Gorham, W. R. Mason and Geo. Mollison were accorded distinction. A. L. Marshall had the six plants best suited for house decoration.

A special prize valued at $100, offered by H. F. Bailey, for the best twenty-four chrysanthemum blooms of not less than eight varieties, was won by Andrew Grierson, of Rye, N. Y., with a collection including Swanley Giant, Mme. Deis, Mrs. Mease, Mme. Carnot, Chatsworth, Mr. T. Carrington, Australian Gold, Duke of Wellington, Col. D. Appleton, H. J. Jones, Nellie Pockett and a very fine unnamed yellow seedling. Wm. Duckham, of Madison, N. J., was second and W. Angus, of Hartford, Conn., third.

Oceanic, N. J.

The regular meeting of the Monmouth County Horticultural Society was held in Red Men's Hall, Oceanic, N. J., November 8. A free exhibition was held at the same time, which was very fine but suffered on account of the smallness of the hall, the exhibits being necessarily too crowded to be seen to advantage. Some of the first prize winners were, H. A. Kettel, N. Butterback, H. Birch, W. Kennedy, G. Kuhn, and Robert Murphy.

Mr. Kettel showed a yellow seedling, a cross between E. D. Adams and Miss Hartshorn, which promises to be an acquisition. A very good white seedling was also exhibited by N. Butterback. In the vegetable department Mr. Birch showed a remarkable collection of vegetables, including some fine peas, something rare at this time of the year. W. Kennedy was also a successful contributor in this department. The judges were T. MacIntosh, J. T. Cruser and A. Brighton. At the annual election of officers all of the last year's incumbents were re-elected. The report of the auditing committee showed that the funds of the society are increasing steadily. It was decided to have the annual dinner at the time of the next meeting, when the installation of officers will take place.

Manchester, Mass.

The North Shore Horticultural Society gave an elegant chrysanthemum show at their hall on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, November 13. It was a great success in point of merit and in attendance. Among the prominent exhibitors were C. D. Sias, J. Scott, gardener; W. F. Spry, H. L. Higginson, Jos. Clarke, gardener; Mrs. R. C. Winthrop, A. G. Thayer, J. B. Dow and W. E. Walker. The judges were J. McGregor, T. W. Head, Herbert Clark and Wm. Griffin.

Two European Leaders.

Among the European concerns doing an extensive American trade, there is none better known than that of F. Sander & Co., of St. Albans, Eng., and Bruges, Belgium. The personality of the senior member of the firm, Fred. Sander, is not so familiar to the trade of this country as that of its genial traveling representative, Alfred Dimmock, but doubtless a few particulars of the career of each will prove interesting and instructive to the many young men now in the business. The history of a successful man is always inspiring.

Fred. Sander, the famous orchid expert and plantsman, was born at Bremen in 1847. Early in life he was apprenticed to Karl Schubert, of Weemar, a landscape gardener of renown; later he went to C. Cropp, at Erfurt, subsequently joining Peter Smith's forces at Hamburg. In 1867 he removed to England, becoming identified with the establishment of Messrs. Carter, at Forest Hill, where he remained six years.

Benedict Roezl, the great collector, often visited Carter's. He delighted in orchids but at that time there was not even a livelihood to be gained by collecting them. Such as he gathered he consigned to Messrs. Ortgies, at Zurich, sending only miscellaneous plants and seeds to the English nurserymen, at whose place he met the young German and took a fancy to him. Roezl after a time offered to withdraw his orchid consignments from Ortgies and send them on favorable terms to Sander.

This entailed a great responsibility but with this agency in prospect Mr. Sander opened business at St. Albans. Shortly afterward the Roezl consignments began to pour in. There was at that time no talk of the extermination of orchids. They came by hundreds of thousands, in such receptacles as came to hand, many of those on the outside perishing but serving as a protection for those inside. Mr. Sander had no place to store them in safety and then, too, he had to sell to get some money with which to meet his daily needs. But after a while the result of the large supply was a brisk demand. Roezl, who had lived from hand to mouth for a lifetime, was enabled to retire in five years to spend his old age in peace at Prague. Other collectors, scarcely less noted than Roezl, kept up the consignments of orchids for some years, when Mr. Sander put his own men in the field.

Prior to 1873 Mr. Sander had no greenhouses but in that year he built one with his own hands for the care of the consignments of orchids. In 1881 he built the first of the houses now famous, just outside St. Albans, and now has five acres of glass and is the largest collector and importer in the world. In recent years Mr. Sander established a depot at Bruges, Belgium, to supply his American and continental patrons with palms, azaleas, bay trees, etc., which he grows there on twenty-five acres of land on which are over 100 large greenhouses, the largest nursery of the kind in Belgium.

One feature of Mr. Sander's success worthy of special mention is that connected with the cultivation of hybrids, begun in 1878. His results in crossing different species of orchids have been remarkable and have afforded the horticultural world many splendid subjects and at the same time brought the experimenter a substantial reward. Notable among the many hybrids are Lælio-cattleya Arnoldiana, which has twice obtained the gold medal of the Royal Horticultural Society of England; Lælio-cattleya Rothschildiana, Lælio-cattleya Fred. Boyle, Epidendrum-lælio Hardyana, and dozens of others. He has gained many international honors and innumerable medals and certificates by his skill as a plantsman.

Alfred Dimmock comes of good gardening stock and to this, no doubt, much of his success is due. As a boy he assisted Mr. Sander when he built his fifth greenhouse some twenty years ago. Five men were then employed by the establishment while the firm now employs 200. After a thorough drilling in the stokeholes, potting and packing sheds, greenhouses and London plant auction rooms, Mr. Dimmock was "put on the road," covering the north of England and part of Scotland. Thirteen years ago he came to this country to assist the late I. Forstermann, whom he succeeded after his demise. Mr. Dimmock is pretty close to his fiftieth voyage across the Atlantic and he has been identified with the distribution of many new and interesting plants, most of which are familiar to our readers. He has met many famous plant collectors and in this way acquired a vast fund of information as to the conditions which attend the lives of plants in their native habitats.

Two New Chrysanthemums.

The two chrysanthemums herewith described and illustrated originated with Jno. N. May, of Summit, N. J.

Yanariva (reflexed).—Vivand-Morel form, deep blush pink in center, gradually decreasing in color to a pale blush at the outer edges; quite distinct from any known variety, and a grand acquisition; seven inches through by five to five and one-half deep. Terminal buds in season from October 30 to November 15. Certificated. (Page 562).

Brutus (reflexed).—Bright orange red, two and one-half to three feet, dense foliage, heavy stem, flat petals, the whole forming a handsome flower of glowing sunset red, averaging six inches through by four and one-half deep. Crown or terminal buds in season October 20 to November 1. Certificated. (Page 564).

CARNATIONS.

*SPECIAL FERTILIZERS FOR CARNATIONS.

The question of additional fertilization will soon be occupying our attention, and without assuming to be an authority as to just the proper method, I will give a few ideas, partly learned from experience and partly from observation and reading. Couple these with your knowledge of your own soil and its requirements and they may be of some use to you.

If we have started with the soil in our beds well filled with humus in the shape of stable manure we can now begin to stimulate the plants with any special manure with which we may have had experience. Aside from the addition of extra fertility to the soil we must not lose sight of its mechanical condition, as this is quite as important to the health of the plants and the production of good flowers with substance to their petals.

The soil should not be allowed to become so fine or compact as to exclude air. The continual application of manure water every two weeks for the balance of the season, and especially so if made from animal fertilizers, has a tendency to put the soil into such a condition. Some forms of phosphates or special manures will do the same thing and in the application of such fertilizers a constant watch must be kept that the soil does not get too compact.

Here, as in every other part of carnation culture, there can be no set rules. A soil that is so porous as to allow the water to run through, carries, with every drop of water that goes through the bench, a proportion of the elements of fertility and therefore is a constant loss to the plants. Such a condition can be remedied in no better manner than to apply liquid manure not too highly diluted with water.

It is generally conceded that the three substances most needed in nearly all soils are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash and that very few soils contain sufficient of these ingredients to fully cover the wants of the plants.

Of these three nitrogen is the one most needed by the plants and the others follow in the order named. It therefore stands to reason that in using what might be termed a stimulating fertilizer, we especially want these three elements in as concentrated a form as practical and our composition well filled with nitrogen.

Those who have not had experience with special fertilizers had better use them on very small plots and note results carefully for future use, as there is danger of supplying too much of one material and not enough of the other for the demands of our soil and plants and this often results in a serious and direct loss.

Of all animal fertilizers sheep manure is the richest in nitrogen and phosphoric acid, where it can be obtained in a comparatively fresh state. As it is seldom filled with litter it can be used as a mid-winter stimulant to good advantage; perhaps nothing else is quite so good in every particular. Very ordinary results will be obtained if the material is old or has been exposed to the weather for any length of time, for in addition to its being the richest in nitrogen of all animal fertilizers, it also is the quickest to lose that nitrogen unless it is artificially fixed and even then it is not to be compared with the fresh.

Next to sheep manure, and preferable to much of it, is a composition made of well rotted, screened stable manure. Take four bushels of screened manure, one-half peck of good bone, mix the two and allow them to ferment a week or ten days; then add one-half bushel of wood ashes and one-half peck of air slaked lime and mix the whole thoroughly. Apply this as a top dressing in quantity according to the needs of the plants. In making the compost the manure should be sufficiently damp to keep up a proper degree of moisture for the ten days without the application of water. The pile should be made under cover where it does not freeze and should not be over one foot in depth. It should be turned several times so as to thoroughly mix the ingredients and keep it from heating.

The more bone that can be added to such a mixture the better it will be, providing the bone is good, pure and safe to use. As much as two bushels of bone can be used to four of manure and the quantity used on the beds decreased accordingly, with just as good or better results. This week or ten day nitrification of the compost prevents the formation of the mould that forms on the beds where pure bone is used and puts all of the materials into a more available plant food than when used alone.

Ground bone, providing it is pure, can be used to advantage by itself, as it is rich in available plant food and can be applied so lightly that it adds comparatively nothing to the bulk of the soil. It should be stirred into the soil with a short-toothed scratcher to a depth of about one-half inch; it is then soon absorbed by the soil and ready for the plants.

A soil that is deficient in potash can often be made to produce wonderful results by the application of wood ashes, as they contain, if good, about fifty per cent of potash. Whenever the foliage of the carnations does not come up to their normal standard of green, wood ashes can be applied to advantage and they will often help to tone up poorly colored flowers.

Whenever the soil is "sick" from an overdose of fertilizers, and this is oftener than most growers would think, an application of air slaked lime will usually put it into normal condition. In such cases the lime should be stirred into the soil to a depth of from two to three inches, even at the expense of some of the plants' roots. Even where the soil is good, carnations, as a rule, take kindly to a little lime and if they do not need the mixture advised as a fertilizer, a light sprinkling of lime stirred in to the depth of a half an inch is time well spent.

There could be much written about the organisms that nitrify our soils and the proper amount of moisture and heat to give the soil for their increase and activity, but most of us have learned by experience the moisture and heat necessary for our carnations and a simple reminder that these two points are more necessary than manures will suffice.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Palm Culture in Belgium.

Palm propagating and palm growing as practiced in Belgium is simplicity itself. The soil is sandy and one can dig very deep without encountering even a pebble and this natural soil is what is used in palm culture. The seeds are planted at a depth of about two inches under the benches in moderately warm greenhouses and an occasional watering is all the attention they receive until they have pushed through and the seed leaf is formed.

They are then unearthed with a broad piece of iron, potted, and placed in a house heavily shaded by painting the glass and the addition of a shading of thin, one-inch strips of wood about one-quarter of an inch apart. They are then encouraged to rapid growth by warmth and frequent syringing and are repotted as they attain size. The heavy shading is not only a safeguard from injury by the sun but insures a dark green color on the foliage.

In the cases of some of the more tender kinds more careful attention than above indicated is required. Cocos Weddeliana, for instance, because of its sensitive tap root, is started in flats, the seed being laid upon the surface of the soil and covered with sphagnum. As soon as they begin to germinate they are potted off into "long toms," in which they are grown. Large sized plants of this species are seldom seen. The largest I have noted in quantity were at the nursery of Thos. Rochford, Bronxbourne, England. These were from two and one-half to three feet in height and remarkably handsome.

MARKET SLIDES BACK INTO A CONDITION BORDERING ON A GLUT.—LITTLE DEMAND AND FORTUNATELY LITTLE STOCK.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST.

The advance in the flower market noted last week can hardly be said to have been maintained, although, no doubt, much of the depression now felt is due to the renewed warm weather. Open street cars and shirt waist attire have prevailed up to present writing but overcoats and furs are placed within reach in case of the arrival of the blizzard which we learn our western neighbors are enjoying. The best that can be said is that there is no "glut" on as yet although the market is on the ragged edge and, with the exception of orchids, everything has taken a drop since last week. Violets have not experienced the looked for boom. Roses are coming in soft and are losing color under the darkened skies, Beauty and Bridesmaid suffering most. The horse show is a disappointment as far as special demand for flowers goes and the large orders of last week are sadly missed by the wholesalers and growers. In general, it may be said that the flowers most affected by the present conditions are the middle grades of American Beauty, also Bridesmaids and lily of the valley.

The employes of the florists in the vicinity of Greenwood Cemetery have an association of their own. They held their annual entertainment and dance at Prospect Hall on Wednesday evening, November 21. The hall was handsomely decorated and the members and their friends enjoyed themselves as only florists can.

A chrysanthemum show under the management of John Condon is going on at the Eden Musee this week. In announcing the event some of the newspapers got John Condon, the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society hopelessly mixed.

A delegation of fifteen flower and plant dealers called on Mayor Van Wyck on Monday to urge the provision of suitable accommodations in a new market for plants on the site of the old Clinton market.

John Young has secured the control of the sale of Miller & Son's sensational chrysanthemum, Timothy Eaton.

CONDITIONS GREATLY IMPROVED IN THE WHOLESALE MARKET.—CHANCES FOR A LIVELY TIME PRECEDING THE DAY OF TURKEY DINNERS.—FEW OF GANE'S CHRYSANTHEMUMS EXHIBITED.—FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND ORCHIDS.—NOTES.

Conditions are greatly improved in the cut flower market since last week. Roses have shortened up sufficiently to wipe out the surplus and make increased prices possible, although it is also true that the advance in values is combatted at every step by the retailers and the wholesalers have not been able to reach the point aimed at in any line. Violets have advanced slightly but there are enough carnations for ordinary demands, the abundance of Ivory and other serviceable white chrysanthemums serving as a safety valve to keep carnations under control. Thanksgiving Day is always a big event in this market and with the present condition of crops and the predicted cold weather there is plenty of stimulus for a real, old-fashioned circus in the flower market during the coming week.

It is to be deplored that the liberal prizes for which Mrs. Jerome Jones provided a fund in memory of her father, the late Henry A. Gane, were not more generally competed for at the recent chrysanthemum exhibition here. The only variety shown that originated with Mr. Gane was the Mrs. Jerome Jones and this was well worthy of the premium it won. But the intent of the fund was to keep in cultivation, if possible, the entire list of Mr. Gane's productions, of which West Newton, Mrs. Henry A. Gane, Marsia Jones and Bessie Jones might be mentioned as especially worthy.

The exhibition of winter fruits and vegetables on November 17 was quite complete, especially in apples, pears and celery. An interesting group of orchids from the greenhouses of Mrs. F. L. Ames were shown, including Miltonia vexillaria Amesiana, Laelio-cattleya Pallas, Laelio-cattleya epicostra and Laelio-cattleya Lady Rothschild (C. Warszewiczii × L. Perrinii) the latter being awarded a certificate of merit. H. H. P. Carstens showed a nice plant of Stanhopaea oculata.

John B. Reardon has gone to Moosehead Lake on a hunting trip.

Robert Christianson has leased a tract of land on Sylvan street, Maplewood, where he will open a nursery business.

MARKET ACTIVE AND STOCK SHORT IN ALL LINES.—ALL ABOUT THE RISE IN PRICES.—FIGURES ON THE GRADES.—FALL SHOW ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL.—WAS WELL MANAGED.—MANY VISITORS.—VARIOUS NOTES OF VARIED TRADE INTEREST.

The past week has kept the boys moving at a great rate. Business was good but nothing extra doing. The dull cold weather, however, shortened up the crops to such an extent that it was a grand struggle each day to get stock enough to fill the orders. All kinds of flowers were scarce, and violets, oh! my; what a time there was guarding the few bunches that came straggling in. Even New York sent over and tried to get a portion of the few, but the out of town shipments were very light, as in times like these the fellows on the ground have the advantage. Prices, as a consequence, have soared considerably. Beauties are now selling for $1.50, $2.50, $4 and $5 per dozen. Teas bring from $6 to $10 per hundred; Liberty, $8 to $12, and some extras $15 per hundred. W. J. Moore is getting in some gilt-edged stock of Liberty that makes the Meteors look common. If this rose continues to improve at the rate it has for the past three weeks, it will stand in a class by itself and next the Beauty as a seller. Beauties, by the way, have never been finer at this season. The past week some exceptionally good stock has been seen, the improvement being noted in all stocks, although, more pronounced in some than others. The weather has probably had much to do with this, at least it is so accounted for by some growers. Carnations are also up, $1.50 to $3 now being the figures. Ethel Crocker is showing up fine with nearly all those who have planted it, and is easily the largest pink at this time. Violets have sold as high as $1 per hundred for the California, 75 cents to $1.50 being asked for doubles. Chrysanthemums are selling well; $1.50 to $2 per dozen for good flowers is the price, with $2.50 to $3 for a few of the choicest. Robert Craig & Son's Chadwick, a fine white, is hard to beat, and there is a great demand for Harris' Our Dear Friend, a fine light yellow. Bonnaffon, of course, leads in the yellows, with Golden Wedding also a favorite.

The chrysanthemum show just closed was one of the most successful, particularly in the point of attendance, of any for the past five years. The retail florists did not, we are sorry to say, take any, or comparatively little, interest in the exhibition, as but two or three made exhibits. Secretary Rust managed the show with great system, having the premium cards placed on the exhibits immediately the judges made their report. There was also a number of typewritten copies of the awards, sufficient for all the papers, ready at the close of each day, which is a great help to the reporters and an excellent advertisement for the show. There were a great many out of town visitors, so many in fact, that we could not get the names of near all of them, but it seemed that almost everybody of consequence from all over the country was here.

The fair debutants are now in the height of their season, and each day sees several of them introduced to society. The custom of sending bouquets is, we are happy to say, as much in fashion and being observed with as much vigor as for the past few years. May it always remain fashionable, as to have to chronicle its decline would be a most melancholy task.

S. S. Pennock is putting a new water proof, silk-lined stem or handle covering for bunches of violets, on the market. It is easily slipped on the handle and the ribbon or tasseled cord, which is passed through a loop in the top, acting as a drawing string when the bow is made, fastens it on tight. It is a great convenience, and is a finish to a beautiful bunch.

Francis Supoit has imported a large lot of lilacs and is now in the market with the flowers. These are forced on stems or branches three to four feet long and with some laurel branches it is easy to simulate a plant such as is seen on the lawn in June. The price is 25 cents per branch.

Miss Magdalen Fox, daughter of Chas. Fox, and Herman Bieg were married on the evening of November 12 at the Church of Our Redeemer, Sixteenth and Oxford streets. The floral decorations in the church were lavish.

On November 16, fire caused by a defective flue, inflicted a damage of $2,000 at the greenhouses of Julius Koehler & Sons, bridge street and Frankford avenue.

H. C. Schmidt has given R. M. Pierson the contract for a greenhouse at the corner of Ridge avenue and Crease lane, to cost $4,000.

G. Gustave Papsch, recently with La Roche, of Collingsdale, Pa., has gone into business for himself at West Moorestown, N. J. K.

THE WHOLESALE MARKET EXPERIENCES A PERIOD OF SHORT SUPPLY AND LIGHT DEMAND.—PROSPECTS FOR THANKSGIVING.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF PERSONAL DOINGS IN THE TRADE.—VISITORS.

This week has seen very small supplies of roses and only a few good carnations, but the demand has been no more than could be easily taken care of. There have, however, been far more chrysanthemums than could be assimilated without clogging the channels of trade. The first three days of the week were very wet and there was no business doing, and even when the skies brightened the retailers would not touch first-class chrysanthemums at more than $1.50 to $2 a dozen, and some very fine stock was sold at this price. The prospects are that the Thanksgiving trade will be heavy in comparison to anything which has been experienced thus far this season. The growers and commission men are figuring that they will not have roses enough to go around and that the increased call for carnations will exhaust everything of fair quality in this line. It seems, however, that there will be enough chrysanthemums to meet all demands, unless the shortage of other stock should occasion an unlooked for call for the larger and more easily obtainable material. Violets have been going a little slower in the last few days, but they will doubtless be in brisk demand next week. There are some calla lilies now to be had. Smilax has been selling well of late but the very large supplies which are at hand have prevented any material rise in prices. One commission house says that it could supply 6,000 strings on two days' notice at current market rates.

At the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, Friday evening, November 16, Frank Oechslein and John Mangel were elected to membership. The committee in charge of the flower booth at the show presented its report, as given in our last issue. The club voted to extend a vote of thanks to all donors of stock for the benefit of the Galveston florists. There were no papers read at this meeting, but there are three in order for the meeting of December 7. The subject will be forcing roses, and will be discussed by Messrs. George and Luke Collins and Paul Kopanka.

The police have been on the lookout for a man named Ferro, who is supposed to be on his way from San Francisco to his native Italy. Ferro worked for Stephen Ferreri, near San Francisco. Ferreri planted, among other things, a tin can containing $700 in coin. Shortly after Ferro started for home the can was missed. It is not at all certain that Ferro dug up the can, but the police have been asked to question him about it should he stop off in Chicago en route to New York.

In the report of the chrysanthemum show, page 471, issue of November 10, J. J. Mitchell (George Woodward, gardener) should have been credited with three prizes with which we credited A. S. Trude (Robt. Mueller, gardener) as follows: One araucaria, first; one croton, second; geraniums, second.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn has been in a private sanitarium on the South Side for the past two weeks, in care of Dr. Billings, one of Chicago's most renowned physicians. She is gradually regaining her health but Dr. Billings says it will be another month before she can return to her home.

Albert Fuchs, who spent the summer in Paris, is journeying about among his old friends wearing a smile of content. He says he has no business cares and that he is very nearly free from the rheumatism with which he suffered for so long.

There are several growers who think that early forced pæonies will be a good thing in the spring, and H. Schiller is not likely to have a monopoly on this item as in the past. There is considerable rivalry as to who will be the first in.

Geo. Harter, of Morton Grove, is going into carnation and rose cuttings more extensively next year than in the past. He has a large stock of Ethel Crocker, which he considers the best pink carnation at present on the market.

The National Irrigation and Good Roads Congresses have been in session at Central Music Hall this week. There has been a large attendance and some noted men have discoursed upon topics of live interest.

Anton Then has a nice crop of baby primroses which he is distributing among the local retailers, who find it a first class article for filling baskets for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

E. H. Hunt is winding green in the Wabash avenue basement formerly occupied by W. E. Lynch, where a large force of girls is easily accommodated.

Weiland & Risch, who pride themselves upon the up-to-dateness of the stock they grow, are preparing to go into the rooted cutting business on a large scale.

The report is that far less orders than usual have been received in advance for Thanksgiving and the rush, if any comes, will be at the last minute.

Geo. Reinberg is at Sioux Falls, S. D., on a pleasure trip. He expects to find some good shooting.

McKellar & Winterson are adding a fine mosaic floor to the attractions of their store.

Visitors: B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; E. H. Giesy, of the Lockland Lumber Co., Lockland, O; Miss Miles, daughter of Isaac Miles, of Oshkosh, Wis., returning from Denver, where she spent the summer; John Schneider, Kansas City; M. F. Kyle, Kalamazoo, Mich.

TRADE FAIR IN THE CAPITAL CITY.—RETAILERS ARE ALL MAKING GOOD SHOWINGS IN THEIR STORES AND WINDOWS.—SOME DESCRIPTIONS.

Weddings and receptions are keeping some of the florists quite busy, and aside from the funeral work chrysanthemums are having full sway. Violets are very fine and are in good demand. Carnations are good.

A. Gude & Bro. have had their store tastefully decorated. Near the entrance was a bank of Adiantum Farleyense and the mirror was decked with orchids. In the rear was a bank of Nephrolepis davallioides furcans and palms. But the bulk was chrysanthemums. In the window were some fine vases of the leading varieties, also some fine American Beauty and La France roses, the latter with stems three feet long.

J. H. Small & Sons last week had their store decorated with large palms, a number of specimen chrysanthemum plants, and large vases of choice cut blooms of chrysanthemums. The improvements they lately finished give them much better facilities.

Z. D. Blackstone has made a fine display in his large window with autumn leaves and a large vase of Golden Wedding chrysanthemums. The store is well stocked with palms and other plants.

W. W. Kimmel has sold out his business at 805 Vermont avenue, and has accepted a position with Z. D. Blackstone as chief decorator.

Litzinger & Wade say they are getting a good trade at their "Floral Hall," which they keep well stocked with plants and cut flowers.

J. R. Freeman, J. Louis Loose and the American Rose Company have had their stores and windows tastefully decorated.

George C. Schaffer is making a good show at his store and says he is doing fairly well. P. G.

DISPLAY OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS AND OTHER FLOWERS AT THE CLUB MEETING.—NOTES OF THE PREMIUM WINNERS AND EXHIBITS.

Chrysanthemums are now in their glory and although the show at the club rooms, on November 17, was not as large as in previous years, what it lacked in quantity was made up for in quality. The E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., had the best display and captured three first prizes out of four entries, taking first on yellow with Lincoln, on "any color" with Mayflower, and on twelve blooms, twelve varieties. They also showed twelve blooms of Quito for pink. This firm exhibited its new rose, Marquise Litta, a red rose of good fragrance and fine form. Before awarding a certificate for it the judges asked them to exhibit it again in February. Richard Witterstaetter showed twenty-five Bonnaffon which should not have been cut for another week, as one-half of the flowers were not nearly open. Mr. Witterstaetter also staged Enquirer, Mrs. Lawson, Estelle and Elinora carnations for exhibition only, for which he received honorable mention. A new white seedling, No. 723 A, is certainly a "dandy," and so was his vase of Enquirer. J. W. Rodgers showed twenty-five Major Bonnaffon and twelve Mme. Perrin, for which he received first prize on twelve best pink. Geo. Bayer, of Toledo, received first with twenty-five Major Bonnaffon, fine blooms and well arranged. J. Goldmann, Middletown, Ohio, entered for twelve red roses with Meteor, and twelve yellow roses with Sunset and Perle. He received first on vase of yellow. George & Allan exhibited Meteor for best red and received first, also first on Bride and Bridesmaid. This firm had eight vases of chrysanthemums on exhibition, and vases of lily of the valley, of Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi. There was a vase of the new rose, Queen of Edgely, which received honorable mention. The judges were Albert Sunderbruch and James Allan.

Trade the past week was good, with hardly enough roses and carnations to go around. Several weddings and much funeral work kept the store men pretty busy. D.

RHODE ISLAND GARDENERS ELECT OFFICERS AND PLAN A BANQUET.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

At the regular November meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, Wm. Hill was elected president; Michael Sweeney, vice-president; F. Macrae, treasurer; A. M. Rennie, secretary, with the same subordinate officers as last year. It was voted to hold the annual banquet in the club hall, on the first meeting night in January. A committee was chosen to make all necessary arrangements for same. The club extended its sympathy to Michael Sweeney, whose absence was occasioned by the sudden death of his daughter, Lizzie.

Lawrence Hay, employed as foreman by T. O'Connor, for several years, has severed that connection to take charge of the Brown University botanical gardens. A greenhouse will be erected in the spring on the garden site.

A lessor's sale of the greenhouse property and stock of E. J. Collamore took place a few days since. The property was bid in by the lessor's attorney.

G. W. Wagner will spend the winter at the Sulphur Springs of Colorado, for his health. LITTLE RHODY.

ANDOVER, MASS.—The annual exhibition of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held in the Town Hall on November 8 and 9.

JOLIET, ILL.—Joseph Labo's business is increasing so rapidly that he is crowded for room. He is doing a highly satisfactory business.

VIOLENT WEATHER INJURES TRADE AND DAMAGES GREENHOUSES.—MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—SUCCESS OF TIMOTHY EATON.—VARIOUS NOTES.

A very violent wind storm has caused much damage in this vicinity and the growers are busy replacing the glass which was broken. The weather has been most unfavorable the last few days and "the boys" are all complaining about business. Some very good chrysanthemums are coming in. Carnations are very good, although not plentiful, and violets are at a premium.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held Tuesday night and, as a report on the recent show was expected, the attendance was good. As all the subscriptions have not been paid, the treasurer was unable to give a complete statement of results. George Hollis showed a new white chrysanthemum seedling very similar to the new Timothy Eaton and was awarded a certificate of merit by the club.

Miss Mable Dunlop, daughter of John H. Dunlop, was married Wednesday afternoon to Augustus K. Butchart. The residence of Mr. Dunlop was handsomely decorated and the presents received by the bride were many and valuable.

Mr. Miller has returned highly elated with the success of his new seedling, Timothy Eaton, it having won three cups, two medals, one first prize and a certificate of merit at the various flower shows at which it was exhibited.

J. Hay & Son, of Brockville, gave their annual chrysanthemum show last week and it met with great success. The store and greenhouses were most artistically decorated.

J. R. Fotheringham, representing the F. R. Pierson Co., is in town.

Frank Brown, of Barrie, has lost his entire plant by fire. H. Y. D.

St. Louis.

Otto Fehrlin, formerly a leading florist of Galveston, has bought out the Vale of Cashmere Co., doing business at 1044 North Grand avenue.

Arnold Ringier, representing W. W. Barnard & Co., of Chicago, was among the visitors chrysanthemum show week.

Frank Ellis has his new store in running order and is doing well. We wish him the best of good luck.

Eugene Michel has been down at Waco, Texas, acting as judge at the exhibition recently held there.

Business is reported as having improved considerably, prices being good.

F. J. Fillmore's Flora Hill carnations are about perfection.

Charles Kunz is now with H. G. Berning. M.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The fourteenth annual convention of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations was held here last week. About 100 scientists, representing twenty-eight states and some foreign countries, were in attendance.

SHARON, MASS.—An interesting contest is in the court here as to the authority respectively of the tree warden and the selectmen. The tree warden has ordered all signs, electric light fixtures, etc., removed from the street trees and the selectmen have secured an injunction restraining him from interfering with the same.

OWING to pressure on our space several reports of exhibitions and other important matters are held over to next week.

THE death of Mrs. John Laing, November 7, is reported, she having survived her husband, the eminent English plantsman, only a few weeks.

THE florist who has not given a free chrysanthemum show at his greenhouses during the past fortnight has missed one of his best business opportunities.

IT is interesting to learn from one of our subscribers of Dunedin, New Zealand, that the two days' spring show of the local horticultural society closed September 27.

WHILE many sections of the country are still experiencing unseasonably warm weather, localities in western New York have had a blizzard accompanied by the heaviest snow fall recorded in years.

NEXT week the day of closing the forms on the AMERICAN FLORIST chances to be the one upon which all laboring men, particularly printers, are accustomed to cease work to give thanks and devour turkey. Therefore mail your "copy" to reach us Wednesday.

"Bonnaffon."

(Lines on a yellow chrysanthemum.)

Oh! you pretty, fluffy thing
Of soft canary yellow,
One would think you ought to sing,
You Japanese fellow,
You're made of such a feathery stuff,
With head just like a powder-puff.
Did merry little Tu-Su San Ever paint you with her brushes?
Methinks she used, in far Japan,
To shield with you her blushes!

Go, whisper now the message sweet
To her to whom I send you—
"My heart is ever at your feet Such grace doth nature lend you."

Christmas Trees.

It is reported that Christmas trees are already being cut in Washington county, Maine, and the season's output from that section will amount to 400 car loads, with 360 bunches to a car. Each bunch consists of from two to six trees.
The trees are sent to New York and Boston, where they will retail for about ten times as much as they are worth on board the cars in Maine.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N.
Y., registers new fern Nephrolepis Piersoni, a sport from the type of Nephro-lepis exaltata known as the Boston fern.
The pinnae are subdivided so that each has the appearance of the full frond in miniature, giving a beautiful crested effect; otherwise the plant is identical with the Boston fern.

WM. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

American Carnation Society.

Fick & Faber, San Francisco, Cal., register the following carnations:

Miss Louise Faber, bright pink, two and one-half to three and one-half inches in diameter, occasionally reaching four inches. Flowers well formed and fringed and on stems from two to three feet long.
A continuous bloomer.

Purity, the purest and largest white yet introduced, flowers three to four inches in diameter, finely fringed and well formed. Stems from eighteen to thirty inches long and very wiry.

ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

The Ethics of Renaming Sports.

When a prize winning chrysanthemum has established its reputation among scores of raisers, and for a series of years, is it right to give a name to a sport from that variety which in no way suggests the original name, when the bloom, the foliage and the stalk are identical with the original and a variation in color is the only difference? The case in mind, which appeals to me, is the Mrs. Jerome Jones, raised by the father of the lady for whom it is named, the late Henry A. Gane, in 1891, several recent sports of which have been given names which are in no way suggestive of the original prize winner or its originator. The judgement of the officers of the Chrysanthemum Society of America or other experts would be appreciated.

JEROME JONES.

The S. A. F. Annual Report.

The report of the proceedings of the sixteenth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, held at New York city last August, mention of the receipt of which was made in our issue of last week, is an interesting volume of 175 pages. As usual it contains a portrait of the president-elect but it this case, the engravers in the process of retouching the original photograph have lost something of the true expression of Mr. O'Mara's jovial face. One can hardly say what it is, but surely something is lacking.

The volume as usual begins with the reports and addresses of the officers.
Among these the treasurer's report, although already familiar to most members will be scanned with especial interest and gratification for the encouraging increase shown. The balance in the general fund January 1, 1898, was only $399.09. On January 1, 1899, this was increased to $850.55 and on August 15, 1900, the amount was $1247.58. The successful meeting at New York should add largely to this amount and the society should begin the next year with a most excellent bank balance.

The life membership fund of $807.23 is an additional nest egg and is the first step on the way to a permanent endowment fund. The action of the committee in transferring to this fund the interest receipts is to be commended. A very full report of papers and discussions follows.
In passing, we can not resist noting the broad gauged charity shown in admitting the address on the carnation meeting in 1901 (entitled "Come to Baltimore" in the programme) which again leads back to the giving up of a session at Detroit to the rose society. There is hardly a parallel to these two gracious acts to be found. The minority report of the Sander cup judges and the protest of Siebrecht & Son on the award are very interesting and instructive. There are only thirteen reports of state vice-presidents. What is the matter with the other gentlemen occupying these honorable positions? It is to be hoped that another year each will awaken to a sense of his duties and that there will be no reports missing and thus one of the most valuable features of the annual volume be established.

The report of the committee on fertilizers contains much of interest and should be carefully read by every grower. Much careful work on the part of the secretary is shown by the list of plant introductions of the year and this list together with the list of new names registered will cause the volume to be consulted frequently. Taken all in all the volume answers fully and completely that question so often asked by the gumblers: What do I get out of the society? It shows that every member gets his money's worth many times over.

To Reduce Cost of Fuel.

The Daily Commercial, of Bangor, Me., in its issue of November 17, devotes considerable space to an appliance designed by Carl Beers, the well known florist of that city, by which the price of his fuel is reduced to fifty cents a ton. The inventor uses coal dust, with a chimney seventy feet high, in an offset of which, forty feet from the base, an aluminum fan is revolved at a rapid rate by the surplus heat within the stack, thus producing a good draught over the fires without the energy expended on an ordinary blower. Mr. Beers has also applied for a patent on a substance which he calls coaline, a compressed composite of coal dust and five other ingredients the names of which are held secret.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

Following are the reports of the committees judging seedlings and sports:

Boston, November 17.—Nathan Smith & Son exhibited Mrs. Elmer D. Smith, scoring 94 points commercial scale, 87
points exhibition scale.

Mrs. Ritson, a white sport from Vivian-Morel, reflexed, by same exhibitors, scored 90 points exhibition scale.
The committee says the flowers arrived in poor condition, but judging from the excellence of its parent, Vivian-Morel, they consider the sport worthy of this score.

John N. May, exhibited Mrs. W. B. Chamberlain, which scored 88 points commercial and exhibition scales.

NEW YORK, November 17.—H. A. Molatsch, Brooklyn, N. Y., exhibited No. 19, a bright yellow, Japanese, incurved variety, which scored 87 points commercial scale.

E. G. Hill & Co., Richmond, Ind., exhibited Malcolm Lamont, crimson, reflexed, scoring 85 points commercial scale.

John N. May, Summit, N. J., exhibited Mrs. W. B. Chamberlain, light pink, reflexed, Japanese, which scored 85 points commercial scale.

PHILADELPHIA, November 17.—Miller & Son, Bracondale, Ontario, Canada, exhibited Timothy Eaton, white, Japanese, incurved, which scored commercial and exhibition scales 92 points.

E. G. Hill & Co. exhibited Malcolm Lamont, which scored 90 points commercial scale, 91 points exhibition scale.

Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., exhibited Mrs. Elmer D. Smith, a yellow, Japanese, incurved variety, scoring 91 points commercial scale, 90 points exhibition scale.

Mrs. W. B. Chamberlain, exhibited by John N. May, scored 83 points commercial scale, 85 points exhibition scale.

No. 112, by same exhibitor, chrome-red, Japanese, reflexed, score 84 points commercial scale, 85 points exhibition scale.

Ferdinand Heck, gardener to George F. Baer, Reading, Pa., exhibited a yellow, Japanese, incurved variety, which scored 84 points commercial and exhibition scales.

CINCINNATI, November 17.—H. L. Ragan, Springfield, O., exhibited Gold Smith, a bronze-yellow sport from Pres. W. R. Smith, Japanese, reflexed, scoring 83 points commercial scale.

E. G. Hill & Co. exhibited Mary Hill, a pink incurved variety, scoring commercial scale 89 points. Malcolm Lamont, by same exhibitors, scored 85 points commercial scale.

Nathan Smith & Son exhibited Mrs. Elmer D. Smith, which scored 93 points exhibition scale.

Exhibitors should make an effort to mail to the undersigned the name of the variety or varieties legibly written which they have sent for examination to any of the committees in ample time so that they may be correctly spelled when reported to the horticultural press.

The announcement has already been made that November 24 would be the last day that the various committees at the different centers would be on hand to examine seedlings and sports. To judge late seedlings it has been the custom for the committees to meet on following Saturdays when requested. Arrangements can be made for those having late blooms to show if a letter to that effect be addressed to any of the following chairmen in good time to give them an opportunity to get their committees together:

A. H. Fewkes, chairman of Boston committee, Newton Highlands, Mass.

E. Dailedouze, chairman New York committee, Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A. B. Cartledge, chairman Philadelphia committee, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

James S. Wilson, chairman Chicago committee, Western Springs, Ill.

R. Witterstaetter, chairman Cincinnati committee, Sedamsville, O.

EDWIN LONSDALE, Sec'y. Wyndmoor, Pa.

CHRYSANTHEMUM Col. D. Appleton

This variety, which we introduced last spring, has proved to be a prize-winner in every respect, and is undoubtedly the finest yellow chrysanthemum grown today, either for commercial purposes or for exhibition. If you failed to secure a stock of it last spring, let us book your order at once, while you think of it, for a stock of this for next year. This is not a variety that can only be grown by experts, but it is one of the healthiest growers and the most easily grown of all the varieties. It is a wonderfully healthy grower, with the most perfect foliage, and can be grown to perfection under ordinary culture; it is as easily grown as any variety that we know of. It has a magnificent flower of large size, and meets all the requirements of a commercial and exhibition sort. Let us book your order at once for spring delivery. We can furnish fine plants of the true stock. Plants ready February 1, 1901. Price $8.00 per 100.

LILY OF THE VALLEY has now arrived, and we have filled all orders in hand and have a small surplus. Advances from Europe are to the effect that the crop runs very much shorter than expected and that prices have advanced, and it is doubtful if all orders will be filled in full. If you have not already secured your supplies we would advise you to place your order without delay.

We offer extra quality three-year-old German pips, first-class quality—$22.50 per case 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $10.00 per thousand. Our Pierson's Premier is a fine selected Valley for those who want a superior article at a moderate price. This is a grade that will sell largely. $27.50 per case, 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $12.50 per thousand. Pierson's Perfection, an extra selected grade for those who desire the very finest Valley obtainable, and a grade that should be used for very early forcing. No better Valley can be supplied than this grade. It will produce the largest spikes, with the greatest number of bells, and will give the very largest percentage of first-class flowers; can be forced earlier than any other quality. $32.50 per case 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $15.00 per thousand. We are also in receipt of our importations of

SPIRAEA. Stock is in fine shape. We have a small surplus, and offer it as long as unsold at the following prices:

- Extra fine, strong clumps especially grown for forcing,
- JAPONICA.....$8.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, $4.00 per 100.
- COMPACTA MULTIFLORA..... 9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.
- ASTILBOIDES FLORIBUNDA..... 9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.

 GEORGE C. SBAOER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

The nurseries at Salem, Ore., shipped twenty-five cars of stock this season, mostly to adjacent states.

J. H. H. Boyd reports that the crop of Tennessee tree seeds is generally short this year. He has orders on for several hundred thousand forest seedlings.

KANSAS CITY has let contracts for planting 1,500 street trees this fall and will plant 9,000 more in the spring. City Forester James Pigg reports that the present contracts range from $1.83 to $2.44 per tree.

Word comes from Berkeley, Cal., that Prof. L. H. Bailey, of Cornell University, has accepted an invitation to join the faculty of the next summer school at the University of California, where he will lecture on horticulture.

A NEW orange has been produced which will probably prove of great value to California, inasmuch as its early maturity will prolong the orange season. This new variety was grown from seed by Hiram Smith, of Redlands, Cal., and fruited four years ago. Close observations show that it is fully equal to the navels in quality and ripens from forty to sixty days earlier. Like the navels it is practically seedless.

Rambling Jottings on the Clematis.

Clematises should have a good depth of loam with a fair supply of well decomposed manure. In hot, dry weather a very good method of watering is to bore, with a post auger, four or five holes eighteen inches deep; fill these with manure and old turf into which pour the water, enough to permeate the soil containing the roots. Allowing the surface of the ground to remain dry is a great advantage as it prevents rapid evaporation and gives nutriment easily assimilated when the process of growth is most active. The clematis is not a deep rooter by nature. Its roots are inclined to spread out like a spiders' web just below the surface and it evidently requires more air than the general average of plants; for this reason constant soaking of the surface, causing all the air to bubble out, is injurious.

C. recta, a non-climbing perennial, white, is quite valuable for cutting. It produces long, drooping sprays, resembling C. paniculata somewhat in the flowers. The stems of bloom, three feet long, are produced in abundance, keep well in water and would surely take well in our flower markets if some one were enterprising enough to grow and consign. This variety blooms long before C. paniculata shows its buds.

The varieties of the clematis commonly handled by commercial florists bloom on wood formed the same season. Therefore they may well receive their trimming this fall, when you thatch them for the winter. Simply cut out the branches that are weakest and some of the other branches down to where you can see that good, strong leaf buds have developed.

To set out a clematis requires time and patience. The roots must be spread out evenly and care taken to cover each root as though it was the only root it had. Earth must touch the roots on all sides, particularly at the terminals. To wind up the roots into a ball or switch and cover them up is murder.

A very important matter is that of providing good, firm trellises for clematises, particularly for the young, brittle-stemmed plants. A bend or switch by wind, if it does not break the stem, very often cracks the outer bark and opens a way to various fungus diseases and perhaps insects.

Clematises are frequently killed by a tiny worm making its way into the stem just below the surface of the ground. This has been frequently noticed in C. paniculata this last summer. A sure method of destroying this insect, I believe, has not been discovered.

For winter see that the soil is well drained, not surface drained, only, but under drained, so as to be aerated; also thatch the plants with straw to prevent the bark from drying out in the sun.

The large flowered varieties are valuable for decorations if grown in pots, particularly the lavender tinted varieties with six to eight petals to the flower, but they are not easily used if cut.

I do not advise laying the clematis down because it is liable to crack the bark and there is no advantage to offset this danger.

Clematis paniculata, white, and C. coccinea, scarlet, can be grown on strings very easily for cutting. C. B. W.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Samuel Murray had a chrysanthemum show in his store November 15 to 17 and found that it attracted many new faces to his place.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—The Florida Natural Products Company has moved to this city from Orlando. They are doing a big business in perpetuated palms and material for manufacturing the same and moved to secure better facilities.

OUR PASTIMES.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

At Chicago.

On Monday evening, November 19, the Chicago florists rolled three very good games against the Laurels, of Anson's League, but the best they could do was to tie one game. Following is the record:

Player	1st	2d	3d	T'l
Geo. Stollery.....	159	156	178	493
Fred. Stollery.....	159	157	152	468

Total.....	825	881	811	2517
Laurels.....	825	886	832	2543

The Vaughan's Greenhouse Bowling Club is the latest in the field. Regular meetings will be held at the La Grange bowling alleys Monday evenings. Geo. C. Kittle, Western Springs, Ill., is secretary.

At West Hoboken.

The following is the record made by the North Hudson Florists' Club at West Hoboken, N. J., on November 7:

Player	1st	2d	3d	4th	Av
G. Brown.....	157	166	153	135	154

O. Grundmann.....	120	116	103	169	112

The feature of last Wednesday's bowling was John Birnie's rapid crescendo. With the same percentage of increase in his score it would not have taken him long to reach the proud position of champion of the world. If John keeps on we must raise his salary. And here are the scores:

Players	1st	2d	3d	4th

At St. Louis.

The bowling club met at the accustomed place and there was a good attendance, with several new faces. The club will howl every Monday evening at Fourth street, between Chestnut and Market streets. The scores were as follows:

M.

At New York.

The present alleys are "boys' play" for Theo. Lang and Willie Siebrecht. Alex. Burns and Frank Traendly would be happier and less argumentative if they could keep up alongside these cyclone rollers, and once in a while Larry Hafner gives them a cold chill. Otherwise the bowling club is happy and prosperous, with an eye fixed on Buffalo. Following are last Monday's score:

Player	1st	2d	3d
Burns.....	148	181	154

With Philadelphia Gunners.

On the invitation of the Keystone Shooting League the regular monthly inanimate target tourney of the Florists' Gun Club was held on their grounds, at Holmesburg Junction, Tuesday, November 13. For several months there has been considerable agitation among the Keystone members with the view of having the Florists abandon their grounds at Wissinoming and join the Keystone League in a body. Some of the Florists do not wish to make such a move, as it would mean the disorganization of the most popular inanimate target club in the state. Their only reason for joining the Keystone League would be because their shooting-house is small and uncomfortable, especially in cold and stormy weather.

The Florists' monthly shoot calls for twenty-five targets, unknown angles, and twenty-five at known angles, also a fifty target contest at unknown angles, for the club championship. Owing to the fact that the expert traps were not in place the club event at known and unknown angles was dispensed with. The principal event was for the club championship, which was won by John Burton, who scored 42. George Anderson finished a close second with 41. The summary follows:

Burton.....	42	Ball.....	31
Anderson.....	41	Sheeler.....	31

At Utica.

We missed our genial president, Peter Crowe, last Monday evening, but he was excusable, as he had the misfortune to have a boiler give out and was hustling to get in another before cold weather. Following is the score:

CLUB PLANS SERIES OF PRACTICAL TRADE TALKS BY COMPETENT AUTHORITIES.

The Detroit Florists' Club has arranged for a series of essays and discussions at its meetings during the winter. The following is the programme in full:

- November 21.— "Is the Holding of Chrysanthemum Shows a Benefit to the Trade in General?"
Breitmeyer, Stock, Holznaegle and Bemb.
"Is the Growing of Exhibition Blooms Profitable to the Grower, or to the Retailer?"
Carey, Klagge and Breitmeyer.
- December 5.— "What Line of Credit Should be given the Retailer by the Grower, and by the Retailer to his Customers?"
Beard, Taylor, Sullivan and Flammer.
- December 19.— "Paper on House and Church Decoration. Writer to embody Estimates, etc."
B. Schroeter.
- January 2.— "What has the Florists' Club done in the Past," and "What can be done in the Future for the Members?"
Scribner, Flowerday, Briscoe and Dilger.
- January 16.— "Best methods of Handling Cut Flowers by the Retailer for Display, Adaptability, etc."
Sullivan and Breitmeyer.
- February 6.— "Method of Handling Cut Flowers by the Grower."
Taylor, Carey and Klagge.
- February 20.— "The Relations of Employer and Employee on the Employee's Standpoint."
Knope, Kolbe, Reynolds and W. B. Brown.
- March 6.— "Is it Better to Grow Specials than Mixed Stock?"
Dunn, Meisel, Beard and Watson.
- March 20.— "How the Retailer should Conduct his Business as told by the Grower."
Holznagle, Rackham and Taylor.
"How the Grower should Conduct his Business as told by the Retailer."
Sullivan, Taepke and Scribner.
- April 3.— "All About Easter."
- April 17.— "How I Built my Greenhouses."
F. H. Beard.
- May 1.— "Talks About Orchids." Taplin and Fruck.
- May 15.— "New Carnations; and Does it Pay to Force Bulbs, and How Much?"
P. Breitmeyer.
- June 5.— "Succession of Plants to keep the Greenhouse Benches Full."
Pickworth, Pautka, Damerow and Plumb.

Buffalo.

FLORISTS STILL ASKED TO DO WORK GRATIS FOR CHARITY.—PLANS FOR THE NEXT CONVENTION.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Although the florists have all signed an agreement to do no work for nothing for various charitable and other purposes, they are still called on for such contributions and recently were approached for a charity which appealed to them so strongly that they agreed to do the work for cost, but the offer was declined. It developed that one gentleman had volunteered to collect enough money to pay for etables but no one would do as much for the flowers, even at bare cost.

There have been very heavy snows in the vicinity of Buffalo although here the fall was only enough to cover the ground. At Orchard Park Jerry Brookins lost three houses, crushed by the weight of the snow, and many other growers lost in less degree. Mr. Brookins lost one house of Bonnaffon and Golden Wedding chrysanthemums from which he had not cut a flower. His loss will probably foot up $3,000.

Cool weather has caused a reduction in the supplies of roses, and Brides and Bridesmaids are not only poor but scarce. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and of good quality; the sale of them is fair. Violets are not in great demand as yet.

At the last meeting of the club a plan of convention work was outlined. President Kasting will shortly announce his committees. The next meeting will be held at the residence of the president, upon his invitation.

J. E. Dalgleish, of Small & Sons, Washington, D. C., was a recent visitor.

Wm. Scott has been to Elmira to judge their chrysanthemum show.

E. J. Nolan, formerly at Scott's, is now with C. D. Zimmerman. W. A.

FREMONT, NEB.—C. H. Green gave a chrysanthemum and flowers show November 16 and 17 at the W. C. T. U. Temple for the benefit of that organization.

The Famous Kudzu Vine—Hardy as a rock. Lasts 50 years. Can be cut back every year. Grows 50 feet in one season. $7.00 per 100.

Asparagus Sprangeri—Strong 3 1/2-in., $6.00 per 100. New Rose Snowflake—The Daisy Rose, $10 per 100. New Lacs Fern—Fronds last a month, $6.00 per 100. New Russelia Multiflora—2 1/2-inch, $4.00 per 100.

50 New Plants not to be Had Elsewhere. Callas—White, $3 per 100; Spotted, $3; Yellow, $20. Cannas, Dahlias, and all summer blooming bulbs. Electro and Cuts for Florists and Seedsmen. A. BLANC, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ROBT. CRAIG & SON
Roses, Palms
and Novelties in Decorative Plants.
Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA PA.

St. Joseph, Mo.

The chrysanthemums and cold weather are now with us. Up to November 9 we had no killing frosts, and cannas, moonvines, etc., were in full bloom, but they are a thing of beauty no more. Society trade with the florists has been very light this season, but a number of large funerals have helped even up the sales. The supply of chrysanthemums is fully equal to the demand but violets are scarce, as are Beauties. Other roses are more plentiful, some very good while others have more mildew than foliage. Carnations are coming in slowly, about equal to the demand.

Mr. Richards is looking forward to some good wedding decorations.

BROCKVILLE, ONT.—J. Hay & Song gave a flower show, November 15 to 17, at their greenhouses. They issued neatly printed invitations, announcing, among other exhibits, vases of Mrs. Lawson and Liberty. They had good crowds.

MEETING OF THE LOCAL SOCIETY.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS ARE SHOWN.—OLMSTED BRINGS PLANS FOR AUDUBON PARK.

Although we have had at different intervals, some very nice chrysanthemum shows, the florists of New Orleans did not find it advisable to have one this fall. A few of them brought some very nice flowers to our last club meeting, the best being raised by President Paul Abele. After a discussion on the merits of the various sorts, everybody seemed to agree that as a white chrysanthemum coming in at the right time, November 1, none is better than Mrs. Robinson. After hearing the report of the committee which had in charge the collection of plants to be sent to the Galveston sufferers it was decided to also send a donation in cash and a check of $25 will be sent in the name of the New Orleans Horticultural Society.

John C. Olmsted, of Brookline, Mass., is in the city looking to the final plans for the improvement of Audubon Park. Mr. Olmsted brought with him the plans which he has prepared for the firm of Shepley, Ruston & Collidge, of Boston, for the new public shelter which is to be located on the St. Charles avenue side of the park. Mr. Olmsted also brought the planting plans for the park. Should they be approved by the association bids will be advertised for at once. M. M. L.

Seasonable Notes on Orchids.

Odontoglossum crispum and its numerous sub-varieties, Pescatorei, Uro-Skinneri, pulchellum majus and others have made marked progress during the past few weeks. The past summer, with its intense heat, was especially trying on this class of orchids. The months of June, July, August and September are always telling on what we may term alpine orchids, and the high temperatures usually recorded during those four months make the successful culture of odontoglossums, masdevallias and other cold orchids very difficult.

Our odontoglossum house is a lean-to facing due north. In spite of shading, abundance of moisture and almost closed ventilators the temperature on excessively warm days last summer would rise to 85° or 90°, and with full ventilation on would not fall below 70° at night; this for a class of plants which in their native habitat occasionally experienced light snowfalls and frosts is very weakening.

Now that cooler weather prevails, the plants, which were kept on the dry side during the heated period, are afforded more moisture at the roots. All shading has been dispensed with for several weeks, and a night temperature of 50° to 52° maintained; when fire heat is used, plenty of top air is kept on. Odontoglossums will not tolerate coddling or forcing any more than camellias will.

Thirty years ago odontoglossums, because they "come from a warm country" were given stove treatment, with, of course, disastrous results. Even twenty years ago we saw many of them ruined by heat, but their cultural requirements now being more fully understood they are not killed by the wholesale as in those days. The demand for this class of plants, however, seems ever to be on the increase, judging by the immense importations received and auctioned at the various London salesrooms at this season of the year.

The finest batch of Odontoglossum crispum I ever saw were hung, or stood under a tree in fairly thick shade at an establishment in the west of Scotland. Four months of this treatment, drenching rains included, made the plants the very picture of health. Unfortunately our high temperatures make this treatment impossible here. Possibly in the years to come, with the continued advance of horticulture, we may expect some of the retired Klondykers and other moneyed people on the Pacific slope to take up their culture. With their colder nights and absence of abnormally high day temperatures we may yet hear of these cold orchids being better forcers in the State of Washington or British Columbia than they ever were in the east.

Cœlogyne cristata and its varieties are among the most useful of florists' orchids and being of comparatively easy culture may well form part of the stock in trade of any retail florist, for even if he cannot use the flowers in design or other work, he can usually find a market for them in the large cities. *Cœlogyne*s seem to thrive equally well in pots, pans and baskets (but do not succeed so well on blocks) in a compost of rough, fibrous peat, or fern fibre and sphagnum moss, providing ample drainage in the form of oyster shells, potsherds or charcoal. Some cultivators place them outdoors in the summer months with satisfactory results. We grow them very successfully in a house with cymbidiums, Cypripedium insigne in variety and Miltonia vexillaria, but the plants will thrive well in almost any ordinary greenhouse.

Flower spikes are now showing prominently from the bases of the new bulbs and water, from this time on, should be applied more sparingly, just enough to keep the bulbs from shriveling. Care must also be exercised not to wet the sheaths of the spike too much or the buds may rot. While *cœlogyne*s will stand a high or low temperature, and still retain apparent vigor, they are impatient of forcing, and those who handle a few and think "they would be nice for Christmas" had better not try the rushing process too much, as it is liable to end in disaster.

While C. cristata is the most widely grown variety, its white form is now comparatively cheap and grows more freely than C. cristata. A large pan or basket of *cœlogyne*s bearing hundreds of flowers is a beautiful picture, and the plant is well adapted for house furnishing. No other orchid makes a better show in a large, low jardiniere than Cœlogyne cristata, and by a little judicious manipulation, where a batch of these is grown, plants may be had in flower for several months.

In addition to C. cristata and its varieties there are quite a number of other species, mainly found in the East Indies and Malay Archipelago, including C. Dayana, C. Massangana, C. Lowii, C. ocellata maxima, C. Sanderiana, C. Fostermanii and others, some of which are pretty and interesting, but as a rule they are more interesting to botanists than they are useful to florists. Those florists who can find room for a few orchids should certainly include Cœlygne cristata. It is of easy culture, increases rapidly, is inexpensive and with even ordinary treatment will soon pay for itself.

Dendrobium Wardianum and D. nobile are two of the most widely grown and popular of the whole family of dendrobies. The flowering nodes on these are now showing signs of swelling, and the leaves, if they have not yet fallen from D. Wardianum, will soon do so. We give these a dry, airy house with a night temperature of 55° at present. A graper from which the fruit has been cut would answer admirably. For some time to come water will be given sparingly, just sufficient to keep the pseudo bulbs from shriveling. It is interesting, day by day, to watch the expansion of the nodes. Until it is possible to see the flower buds the plants are better in a comparatively cool, airy and dry atmosphere, after which time they can be removed to a warmer house to expand.

Of the many sub-varieties of D. nobile some of the best we grow are Amesia with a very dark disk, and very pale tips to the sepals, petals and tip of the lip; Nobilium probably the finest variety grown; Wallichianum rubrum, Cooksoni, pulchellum, majus, elegans, virginalis, Sanderiana and others. Dendrobium nobile is one of the oldest orchids in cultivation having been introduced from China in 1836, but it remains one of the most popular.

While the bulk of the genus dendrobium are East Indian plants, D. nobile will succeed in almost any warm or cool house, and some of the finest specimens I ever saw were grown in a house with azaleas, acacias and other hard wooded plants. It will even succeed tolerably well as a house plant and a year or two ago I saw a nicely flowered plant which a lady had grown in her house for several years and always succeeded in flowering well. There is no reason why this, and one or two other easily grown orchids, such as Cypripedium insigne in variety, Oncidium flexuosum, Lycaste Skinnerii, and other easily handled sorts should not be more generally cultivated as house plants.

Of course the general impression is that orchids are costly and difficult to grow and flower, and plants for the few and not the many. I believe, however, that a few years will see more of them grown as house plants, and that florists will be able to sell certain varieties of these in bloom, just as they can sell hydrangeas, cyclamens, primulas or azaleas to-day. The first cost may be a trifle more but there are an increasing number of people who are becoming interested in orchids, and little incentive is needed to start them as cultivators on a small scale. The man who has a small greenhouse wants a few and some are handling them with success as window plants.

Dendrobium Phalaenopsis and D. Phalaenopsis Schroederianum are among the most beautiful and useful of all orchids, their splendid, graceful sprays of flowers, whether on the plant or cut, keep fresh a long time. The flowers vary so much in color that in a batch hardly any two are exactly alike. While the type has pale mauve petals and somewhat paler sepals, some flowers are very much deeper in color, while there are some pure white forms, such as D. Phalaenopsis Schroederianum album, and D. Phalaenopsis hololeuca. While in bloom the cattleya house is a very suitable place in which to hang them, the ventilation being better, and the air drier than in the warmest house. As soon as the flowers are all faded, which is generally by the end of the present month, the plants should be stood together in a sunny position in a dry house to ripen up the pseudo bulbs, water being administered sparingly to prevent shriveling of the bulbs.

The fact that this orchid flowers naturally from September to November, during a considerable portion of which period flowers are scarce, makes it especially valuable. Many fine batches of this splendid orchid have been ruined by the dreaded dendrobium beetle, and the greatest care is necessary in examining all new importations for this destructive pest. While Dendrobium Phalaenopsis will grow and flower fairly well in a house where the temperature falls occasionally to 50° it succeeds best in an East Indian temperature, and grows well in small pans or baskets hung close to the roof, in a compost of fern fiber and sphagnum moss.

Cypripedium Leeannum, now flowering, is one of the most beautiful of the family. This excellent variety was raised in the fine collection of Sir Trevor Lawrence, of Burford Lodge, Dorking, England, by crossing C. insigne with C. Spicerianum and has maintained the best characteristics of both parents. The variety C. Leeannum superbum is much superior to the type. Other fine forms are C. Leeannum Masereelianum (C. insigne Chantinii × Spicerianum), and C. Leeannum pulcherrimum. Several fair spikes this season are twin flowered. A new seedling raised here by the late W. Robinson, which recently flowered and is named C. Leeannum pallidum, was obtained by crossing C. insigne Sanderæ with C. Spicerianum. This plant was included in a group of seedlings exhibited before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on November 3. The tip, as the name denotes, is much paler than in the other Leeannums. W. N. CRAIG.

LEOMINSTER, MASS.—Joseph Fuller has purchased the large greenhouse, 40x150, recently erected by Mr. Tatro, Central street.

A Huge Liliium Auratum.

In the accompanying illustration we have an example of the unusual proportions to which Lilium auratum attains occasionally. We do not recall a specimen so floriferous as this one, which was grown by Charles Dunham, gardener to N. E. Valley, Dunedin, New Zealand. The plant is shown in the open border where it was grown. The stem as it appears here bears 202 blooms, but a branch which broke away from the main head carried 140 flowers, a total of 342 on one stem.

Pompon Chrysanthemums.

We present herewith a reproduction of a photograph of the set of six new pompon chrysanthemums which John N. May is exhibiting and which will be offered to the trade during the coming season.

No. 1 in the illustration is Lula, a very good white of globular form.

No. 2 is Gallia, a bold, handsome flower, deep pink in color, said to be a clean, healthy grower.

No. 3 is Quinola, deep orange yellow, a bold, handsome flower and one of the best of its class. It has been exhibited as No. 80.

No. 4 is Miss Ada Williams, blush shaded white, slightly laced with violet; it is of good size and round form.

No. 5 is Klondike, the most brilliant yellow of the whole family. It is of only medium size but is very fine in every way.

No. 6 is Aileen, a deep lilac pink, of compact form and medium size. It is free from rust.

ANNUAL FALL EXHIBITION OF THE FRENCH ECLIPSES ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS.—MORE ENTRIES THAN EVER BEFORE.—VILMORIN THE PRINCIPAL EXHIBITOR.—LISTS OF THE PRINCIPAL VARIETIES SHOWN.—ENGLISH SOCIETY WELL REPRESENTED.—JAPANESE SHOW SPECIMEN PLANTS WHICH ARE THE ADMIRATION OF THE AMATEURS.

The entries for our recent autumn show were much larger than at any other chrysanthemum exhibition ever held in Paris, and all the space of the Horticultural Palaces was required to accommodate the exhibits. Vilmorin began to grow chrysanthemums in 1893 and therefore entered the arena only of late years, but has made such progress that his firm was the largest contributor to this exhibition. They had several large beds of differently grown pot plants. The beds made up of standard grown specimens were composed of the following varieties: Parachute, Transvaal, Princess Alice de Monaco, Telletier Claude, Miss Alice Montigny, President Lemaire, Miss Th. Mazier, President Felix Sahut, Souvenir de Ch. Roissard, Miss Nellie Pockett, Mme. Vve. Claverin, Charles Davis, Perfection rose, Banquise, Pride of Madiord, Roxane, Impertinent, R. H. Pearson, Mrs. C. Harman Payne, Mrs. Louis Remy, Reginald Godfrey, Orqueil Belatrix, Dr. Roche, Braise, Pride of Stokell, Chenon de Leche, Soleil de Minuit, Henry Weeks, Capella, Vivian Morel, Mrs. A. Barrest, Delavier, Cythere, Countess of Beaulaincourt, etc. As an underground or carpet Vilmorin planted the dwarf yellow chrysanthemum, Gerbe D'Or, which was very effective. The beds of bush-formed plants comprised, besides many of the above, the following sorts: Alcyone, Altair, Ami Gauthier, Ami Rene, Edouard Andre, Armada, Marie Calvat, Marie Charmet, George W. Childs, Coppelia, Gustave Defrance, Mrs. V. Delavier, Demay-Taillandier, Duke of Wellington, Feerie, Princess Galitzine, Gloire Automnale, Eugenie Grandet, Ralph Hatton, Miss Hestin, La France, Le Takir, Pierre Legrand, Luzerta, Megrez, Mermaid, Montbrillant, Orion, Mrs. Melidoff, Plumage, President Nonin, Rene Puyt, Rayonnant, Rosamonde, Mrs. Eugenie Sibourg, Souvenir de ma Socur, Paul Terret, Emily Towers, J. R. Upton, Villard, Mrs. Von Andre, Mrs. Catherine d'Orves, Beauty of Truro, Frederic Bauer, Jules Chretien and Petit Paul. Vilmorin's new sorts, Alcyone, Bellatrix and Princess Galitzine, received a special first prize.

Nonin had a fine bed of pot-grown plants, conspicuous among which was Countess of Beanlaincourt, Bouquet des Alps, Myrto, Wm. Seward, Wm. Tricker, Yellow Mogul, Vulcan, Baronne de Vinols, Miss G. Sardou, Orqueil, Duchess of Orleans, Salome, Liger-Ligneau, President Lemaire, Volcan, Mrs. G. Debrie, Mrs. George Mazuyer, Princess Alice of Monaco, Emile Descine and Mrs. Guilmant Loffroy.

Lemaire showed well grown specimens of Mrs. Ed. Roger, Wm. Seward, President Lemaire, Francois Pilon, Perle fine, Soleil d'Octobre, Volcan, Mrs. A. Fray, Edouard Andre, Countess of Paillot, Souvenir de Charles Boissard, Globe de Feu, Rayonnant, Duchess of Orleans, Braise.

Oberthier, of Rennes, had an effective group composed of Jaune Poitevine, President Felix Sahut, Charles Davis, Mrs. George Bruant, Yellow Mrs. Carnot, Mrs. Edmond Roger, Queen of England, President Lemaire, Viviant-Morel, Van den Heede, Mrs. Louis Remy, Mrs. Gustave Henry, Mrs. Jossier, La Gracienne, Tatiana, Gambetta, Wm. Tricker, Phebus, Soleil d'Octobre, Mrs. T. A. Compton, Mrs. C. Harman Payne, Souvenir de Charles Boissard, Amiral Avellan, Marie Calvat and Perle fine.

Patrolin, of Bourges, also had a creditable lot of standard grown specimens of Calvat's Australian Gold, Wm. Tricker, Marie Calvat, Gabriel Syveton, President Lemaire, Duchess of Montebello, Reveil, Mrs. W. J. R. Budd, Princess Alice of Monaco, Ernest Hello, Solfatara and President Felix Sahut.

The collections of single cut blooms were all of excellent quality and in grand condition. It would be difficult to say which was the most remarkable. Calvat, the famous French grower, had a lot of blooms of Attila, Felix Allard, Bacchus, Barnave, Berlioz, Mrs. Charles Borrel, Brumaire, Brunehilde, Calvat's Sun, Croix du Sud, Mrs. Charles Diedrich, Etoile du Nord, Falguiere, Fructidor, J. B. Galand, Hebert, La Framée, Jungfran, Le Nain Jaune, Lona, Mrs. Loubet, Regina Nansen, Roi Soleil, Salambo, Mrs. Stepman, Art Nouveau, Waldeck Rousseau, Brumaire, Pompadour, Thais, Mazali Roxane, Voie Lactee and Vranie, which proved a feature. The blooms were shown well above the ground, the latter being covered with dried moss. Calvat's new sorts, Waldeck-Rousseau, Mrs. Loubet, Brunehilde and Croix du Sud, received a special first prize.

The blooms staged by the National Chrysanthemum Society of England were very much admired. They included the following sorts: Mrs. Coombs, Miss Maud Douglas, President Nonin, Mermaid, Admiral, W. Towers, White Popham, Mrs. J. Bryant, Soleil d'Octobre, Miss Nellie Pockett, Mrs. Barkley, Snow-drift, Miss Marie Hoste, Hairy Wonder, Australian Gold, Australie, Lady Crawshaw, Mrs. J. W. Barks, Miss Alice

SOME POMPON CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Byron, Lily Mountford, Phœbus, Mrs. G. Bruant, Mr. W. Reid, Molyneux, Hooper Pearson, G. Gibson, Morden Park and Mrs. E. Roger. Some of the blooms were shown in boxes and others were exhibited among green ferns interspersed with a few palms to relieve the flatness.

W. Wells & Co., Earlswood, England, had a grand display of chrysanthemums, Mrs. J. Bryant, Mrs. A. Cordonnier-Wibaux, Miss Lucy Cheeseman, W. R. Church, Mrs. Coombs, General French, Miss Maud Douglas, Mrs. Tripp, Lord Ludlow, Charles Longley, Mrs. J. L. McKellar, Mermaid, White Popham, Silver Queen, Millicent Richardson, Lord Roberts, Louis Remy, C. I. Salter, Mathew Smith, J. R. Upton, Mme. Von Andre, W. Towers, Triboulet, Lady Hanham, Amateur, J. Lechapelais, Alette and Ernest Bettsworth. Their flowers were staged in bamboo holders well above the soil, the latter being covered with dried ferns and leaves.

Cordonnier was well to the fore for the quality and size of his blooms, some of which measured eight inches across. His collection included: Australie, Dr. Felix Allard, Aphrodite, Brunehilde, Chenon de Leche, Mrs. Coombs, Croix du Sud, Frederic Daupias, Charles Davis, Miss Maud Douglas, Dragon, Maurice Donnay, Duchess of Orleans, Duke of Wellington, Duke of York, Blanche Douillet, Etoile de Lyon, Mrs. Gerand, Giralda, Mrs. Emile Girat, H. J. Jones, Jubilee, Beaute Grenobloise, Lady Hanham, Mrs. Gustave Henry, Lionel Humphrey, Mrs. Charles Keyser, Le Nain Jaune, Master Tucker, Miss Therese, Mazier, Mrs. Mease, Melusine, Viviant-Morel, Nansen, Oceana, Orion, Paul Oudot, Mrs. C. Harman Payne, Petite Genevieve, Francois Pilon, President Nonin, Mrs. Paolo Radacli, Regina, Mrs. Louis Remy, Roi Soleil and Royal Sovereign. Cordonnier's blooms were simply stuck in the soil, on which he spread some branches of Asparagus Sprengeri.

Other prominent exhibits were those of Charmet, with Surpasse Amiral, Gaston Morin, Jules Chretien, Ami Charmet, Miss Clemence Kleber, Duchess of Orleans, Yellow Mrs. Carnot, Tzar Nicolas, Marie Calvat, H. Payne, Le Grand Dragon, and of Molin, of Lyons, Leroux, Leveque and Shermitte.

The Japanese, who are said "to beat the world," did not exhibit their plants in the Horticultural palace in competition with the other growers, but they availed themselves of the festival given in honor of the forty-eighth birthday of the Mikado to show us, at their pavilion of the Trocadero, five immense plants. Mr. Foukouba, who grew the plants in the glass houses of the City of Paris, at Boulogne, claims that he has raised plants at Tokio which measured eighteen feet across and carried 800 flowers. The cuttings which he had brought over from Japan suffered too much on the route to be used. He therefore had to procure some Parisian grown plants. Is it to that circumstance that his plants only measured from six to eight feet and bore only 200 flowers? It is true enough that the five plants were splendid specimens, trained with marvelous skill, and were well worth the admiration bestowed on them by all the amateurs. But I could not refrain from thinking that I have seen in America plants which must have borne at least the same number of flowers and would have been a good match to those of the Japs.

ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF THE NATIONAL CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.—SHOW SURPASSES PREVIOUS RECORDS IN EVERY PARTICULAR.—BEGONIAS FEATURED AT THE MONTHLY MEETING OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS MORE POPULAR THAN EVER.—MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

The exhibition of the National Chrysanthemum Society held at the Aquarium, November 6 to 8, proved a great attraction and never have we seen a better display. There was a falling off of the large specimen plants in numbers, but those shown were very good. A great feature of the show was the class for twelve Japanese varieties shown in vases, five blooms of each variety. The blooms were of exceptional quality and, being cut with long stems and foliage, made a much finer display than those on boards.

may be congratulated on his success. Norman Davis secured the second gold medal given by the French society and also first prize for a group. There were five competitors in this class and all showed well, the groups being arranged more effectively than formerly. The premier bloom in the show was adjudged to be Mrs. Barkley, shown by Mr. Mease. The non-competitive groups were again numerous and gold medals were awarded to Cannell & Sons, T. Rochford, W. J. Godfrey, Cutbush & Sons, H. J. Jones, R. C. Pullen and Geo. Bunyard & Co., the last named being for a splendid exhibit of fruit. Mention may be made of some attractive floral designs shown by R. Jameson, of Dublin. The secretary and committee should feel well satisfied with the results of their labors for it was a splendid show and the attendance was above the average.

One of the most prominent features at the Royal Horticultural Society's meeting on November 6, was a group of the beautiful hybrid, Begonia Mrs. J. Heal, shown by the raisers, Veitch & Sons. I have seen it exhibited on previous occasions, but never in such splendid condition. The plants were a mass of rich, crimson flowers standing up well above the foliage. B. Socotrana is one of the parents of this variety, and it should prove as useful as other varieties which this distinct species has given us. Some marvelously well flowered plants of Begonia Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild were seen. Though not so bright in color, it is certainly more vigorous and has larger flowers than its parent. Carnation Mrs.

them in by wagon-loads, not packed in boxes but just loaded up like bundles of greens. On one occasion three of these large wagons were sent together to Covent Garden. Good specimen blooms are always scarce until after the principal exhibitions are over, and this year has been no exception.

Of miscellaneous exhibits at the Aquarium one of the most interesting was from Thos. Rochford, who showed azaleas, lily of the valley, Lilium longiflorum, etc., in splendid condition. Cutbush & Sons also had many spring flowering plants in their large exhibit, which also included a good selection of seasonable plants. Among carnations was Mrs. Lawson.

Neerines seem destined to come to the front. Several growers have exhibited very fine seedling varieties during the season. Among those shown by Mr. Elmes, on November 6, one was selected for an award.

Begonia Caledonia has been shown in several collections but we must hope to see it better another season, for, though a distinct novelty, the plants shown have hardly been up to what we might expect.

MARKET CONDITIONS DISAPPOINTING.—NO ACTIVITY EARLY IN THE WEEK AND EVERY PROSPECT OF HEAVY SUPPLIES ON THE EVE OF THANKSGIVING.—CARNATION GROWERS DISCUSSING MEANS OF DEFENSE AGAINST STEM ROT.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER EXHIBITION MATTERS.—MATTERS OF MINOR INTEREST.

Growers, wholesalers and retailers, all have been wishing for some clear, cold seasonable weather that would put backbone and ambition into plants and customers alike but up to present writing nothing of the kind has hove in sight and the prospects of a real good Thanksgiving trade suffer in consequence. Predictions are of no value at this time. All that can safely be said is that the early part of the week sees a sufficient if not abundant supply of most flowers in the market with a very light demand and indications that the day preceding the holiday will see a big increase in receipts on account of the material being held back by many of the growers, a condition which is likely to hinder any material advance in values. Roses are pretty good at present, American Beauty especially having improved greatly in quality within a few days, but prices are below the average for the time of year. Carnations also rule at slightly lower figures, on an average, than at a corresponding date in recent years and are overabundant for the needs of the market, which has had chrysanthemums to fall back upon for any and all purposes, although it is also true that of white carnations more might be sold if obtainable. Growers of carnations are worrying more, however, over the prevalence of stem rot than over the question of supply or price, as they do not regard the carnation season as really started until after Thanksgiving and the chrysanthemums have both passed into history and they do not anticipate a surplus of cut at any time this winter because of the large number of plants the stem-rot has destroyed. Chrysanthemums, although showing evidences of fatigue, are yet displaying remarkable tenacity and it looks as though it would be some time yet before they would finally vacate. Violets are

Wherever we look it is chrysanthemums. Never have they been more popular or so numerous as this season. Owing to the absence of frost, they have been very gay out of doors and the quantities put on the markets have been excessive. One grower who plants largely in the open ground has been sending something of an enigma just now; their status will be determined before long. The recent appreciation in price seems to have lacked the elements of permanency and the stock for some days has dragged badly. Orchids are decidedly scarce, except cypripediums.

The New York Florists' Club held a special meeting on Monday evening of this week, attended by about twenty-five members, to consider the matter of the proposed exhibition for next fall. There is an earnest desire manifest among the members to accomplish something that will be notable in this line, but in New York it is a difficult problem and, done as it should be in the metropolis, entails a heavy financial responsibility that can not be assumed without careful deliberation. The discussion of the various projects resulted in the appointment of a committee consisting of W. F. Sheridan, C. W. Ward, J. N. May, J. W. Withers and C. B. Weathered to consult with the Madison Square Garden managers as to possible terms for a first-class exhibition to be held in the latter part of October, and report results at the December meeting of the club. This is a thoroughly good committee and can be depended on to recommend wisely.

TRADE HOLDS OFF UNTIL THE DAY BEFORE THANKSGIVING.—RUSH COMES AT LAST MOMENT AND PRICES DOUBLE IN A NIGHT.—SHORTAGE OF ROSES GREATLY TO THE ADVANTAGE OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS.—WHITE FLOWERS IN DEMAND.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF TRADE INTEREST.

The clerk of the weather condescended to favor us with ideal Thanksgiving weather, but not until the day before the holiday, and up to that time flower-dealing in this neighborhood was anything but a pastime, nobody seeming to have any settled ideas as to what the outcome was to be. But "all's well that ends well," and it is gratifying to have to report that Thanksgiving trade was fully up to the record and all reasonable people are well satisfied. Roses proved to be far short of the demand that materialized early on Wednesday and at prices hitherto prevailing many times the available stock could have been disposed of. But when buyers came to realize that values had doubled "in a night" their enthusiasm was quickly cooled and they turned contentedly to the chrysanthemum which was good-naturedly standing around in countless numbers waiting for just this contingency to develop. So Bonnaffons and other good every-day sorts were taken up with surprising alacrity and acres of greenhouses which only yesterday were aglow with pink, yellow and white are now clean-shorn and ready for the lilies that are all ready to move in. Carnations have sold well, considering the presence of the chrysanthemums, and violets have been sufficiently short in supply to warrant the advanced price asked, which, while below ordinary New York quotations, is yet about as high as this market will stand. A noticeable fact this year is the good demand for white flowers. Past experience has been that anything but white could be sold at Thanksgiving, but this year this preference seems to have been forgotten and good white carnations or chrysanthemums sold as readily as the colored sorts. Not much seems to be doing in the flowering plant line, a few Gloire de Lorraine begonias being about the only blooming things in evidence, but ferns and ficuses have been brought in in quantity and appear to have found plenty of buyers.

Mrs. Oakes Ames, R. M. Grey, gardener, made a remarkable exhibit of cypripediums in bloom at Horticultural Hall on Saturday, November 24. In the collection were the following yellow varieties of C. insigne: Aureum, Wm. Mille Dow, Sanderæ, Lutwythianum, citrinum, Dorothy, Laura Kimball and Balliæ. Also C. insigne Harefield Hall var. Baron Schroder, Amesianum, Gilmoreanum, Gravesiæ (argus × niveum) and a Lecanum natural hybrid.

Ingram & Lynes have built up by industry and perseverance a remunerative business at Reading. Chrysanthemums have been a main crop with them this fall and 6,500 longiflorums are in readiness to take the place of the chrysanthemums. There is a fine house of G. H. Crane carnations. Thos. Capers' seedling carnation, Conquest, is a favorite with Mr. Ingram, which means that it is a good one.

The November meeting of the Horticultural Club was held at the Quincy House on the evening of November 22. The guests were J. Woodward Manning, B. C. Marble, of Manchester; J. F. Lord, Alex. Montgomery, S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, R. I.; J. B. Shea and J. O. Christensen.

That otherwise peerless carnation, Olympia, has been hitherto regarded as rather deficient in stem but the fault is evidently not an insurmountable one judging from the specimens shown by Patten & Co. at the recent exhibition, which were as "erect as a willow."

A silver medal was awarded by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society to Mrs. Oakes Ames for Cypripedium insigne Harefield Hall var. Baron Schroder and certificate of merit for C. insigne Dorothy and C. Gravesiæ.

Wm. Sim places the pink incurved F. B. Hayes chrysanthemum among the leaders as a commercial variety. He has brought in a big crop of them this fall and they have sold well all through.

H. N. Eaton has had the market practically to himself on Harrisii lilies, of which he has been cutting heavily. The demand at this time is not very great and Mr. Eaton just about fills it.

Norris F. Comley has a promising yellow chrysanthemum, a cross between Golden Wedding and Modesto, which shows strongly the good features of each. It is named Alice F. Comley.

The premiums appropriated for the exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for the year 1901 aggregate $8,275.

THANKSGIVING TRADE NOT UP TO EXPECTATIONS.—ADEQUATE SUPPLIES IN NEARLY ALL LINES.—BEAUTIES AND HIGH GRADE COLORED CARNATIONS THE ONLY SHORTAGES.—SOME OF THE REASONS FOR THE CHANGED CONDITIONS IN THIS MARKET.—MANGEL TO HAVE A NEW STORE ON THE SOUTH SIDE.—NOTES OF INTEREST HERE AND THERE.

This Thanksgiving has been as unsatisfactory to the wholesalers and growers as were the six weeks preceding. There were no extraordinary supplies of anything except chrysanthemums, but where a shortage of roses had been anticipated, none developed, except on Beauties, and of carnations there were far too many whites and hardly the usual holiday shortage in the colored sorts. There were enough violets so that $1.50 per hundred was about as high as the best stock reached and the inferior qualities, of which there were a considerable proportion, were difficult to move at half the money. Of chrysanthemums there were more than this market has ever seen in a single week. They came in great cases which packed the commission men's places of business to the doors. There was not near counter room for a display of the vast supplies and a characteristic feature was that in nearly every wholesale house there were more yellows than all other colors combined. In many cases there were more Major Bonnaffons than all other varieties combined. The result of this may well be imagined. Extra yellows could be bought at $1.50 per dozen, stock that would have been worth much more had there been an adequate supply of the other colors, for the demand seemed all for the colors which were not to be had in quantity. Local trade seemed rather lighter than at previous Thanksgivings, but shipping orders were just as numerous as ever. The marked feature, however, was that few orders attained the oldtime proportions. The order that called for more than $50 worth of stock was decidedly the exception. Most of them called for from $5 to $15 worth. It is worthy of note that on Monday many more flowers could have been sold than were received, but that as the days passed supplies increased until there was a surplus of almost everything save extra Brides and Bridesmaids, Beauties and fancy carnations. On Wednesday and Thursday there was little doing.

This has been such an unusual season that speculation as to the cause of the unsatisfactory conditions is more or less a waste of time, but there are several influences that are worth serious consideration. Repeated attention has been called to the fact that where a few years ago a country florist had only a small conservatory and was a retailer pure and simple, he now has two or three greenhouses and grows so much stock that in times of slack business he has a surplus to consign to the market where once he sought his entire supplies. Then, too, there are many growers throughout the country who have gone on building until they are able to consign to the city market an increased amount of stock and at the same time have supplies to send direct to several of those retailers nearest to them who were once among the best patrons of the city wholesalers. At the same time, a dozen growers whose entire output is sold in Chicago markets can be mentioned whose aggregate increase in glass during the past summer covers more than half a million square feet of ground. It would be idle speculation to undertake to tell the total increase of glass among the hundreds of growers whose product finds its outlet here. These changing conditions are doubtless at the bottom of the unsatisfactory business situation and they demand the attention of every man whose livelihood depends upon the profits taken from the flower business.

John Mangel is figuring on a new store on Lake avenue which is to outclass everything of the kind in town. It is to be built for him just south of his present location at the corner of Lake avenue and Forty-seventh street on a lot 90x130 owned by Montgomery Ward. The architect has planned a one-story and basement conservatory with a dome forty feet high, the interior arrangement to be such that the structure can be used for receptions and other social affairs. It is understood that Mr. Mangel is taking a twenty-year lease upon the property. He does not contemplate discontinuing his store at the corner of State and Washington streets, where business is very good with him just now.

The chrysanthemum display at Washington Park has been unusually fine for the past few weeks. Of the many excellent pot plants displayed those of W. H. Lincoln have been particularly attractive. Similar plants ought to find a ready sale if grown for market. Work has already begun upon the rose garden to be planted opposite the conservatory in Washington Park.

Among the best chrysanthemums coming in have been those from Geo. Baer, of Toledo, Ohio. Mr. Baer is one of the most extensive growers in his state and had 25,000 blooms this season. They were all very good but were late. None of his sorts were better than Major Bonnaffon.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine has been in evidence in the retailers' windows this week and has attracted a great deal of favorable notice. The growers who have stocks of this plant for Christmas will not fail to reap a satisfactory compensation for their efforts.

The demand for green is greater than the supply, which was cut off short by bad weather. The wholesale handlers of this commodity are very cautious in taking orders and prices are likely to reach the highest point recorded in some years.

The Mrs. Lawson carnation is now coming in good with nearly all the growers. It has fully demonstrated its commercial value and there will be a big demand for the cuttings next spring.

The Chicago Carnation Company, say a number of the daily papers, has been incorporated, the incorporators being Spencer F. Adams, Rowland S. Ludington and Duncan M. Moore.

P. M. Broadbeck disbudded his roses during the season of glut and had a splendid crop on for Thanksgiving but says that he is afraid he will miss it for Christmas.

Peter Reinberg and Henry Wietor have returned from a ten days' shooting trip into Arkansas. Mr. Reinberg goes Monday to Marion, Ill., on a similar errand.

Flint Kennicott, president of the Kennicott Bros. Co., has been laid up with rheumatism for a week but is now able to be about with a limp in his gait.

Vaughan's Seed Store received three carloads of bouquet green the past week, a large consignment considering the season's scarcity.

Adolph H. Poehlmann now has his wholesale store completely fitted up and it is one of the pleasantest places in town.

S. Angel will open a new retail store at 2358 Indiana avenue December 1.

Mrs. C. W. Pike has been down from Racine this week.

BUSINESS MOVES ALONG VERY WELL.—THANKSGIVING DEMAND VERY BRISK.—THE PREVAILING PRICES.—WAGON BUILDERS BUSY.—SOME GOOD DECORATIONS.—LIBERTY FINE AND IN BRISK DEMAND—VARIOUS ITEMS.

Business is moving along very well for the season. There have been a number of weddings, and debutant's teas. These latter are using up considerable choice stock, nothing being too good for them. Good flowers, that is first grades, are in demand all the time at fair prices; in fact there is not enough of this class of stock. Prices are about the same as last week: Beauties $2 to $5 per dozen; teas $5 to $8. Bridesmaids are not a good color, running too pale. A few Morgans in the Pennock stock look well. It would seem as if there should be more of this rose grown, as it certainly makes a good showing. Carnations seem to sell fairly well, as the prices hold at from $1.50 to $3. Violets are scarce at from 50 cents to $1 for the singles and 75 cents to $1.50 for the doubles. Romans and narcissi are in at from $3 to $4. Mignonette is scarce; there should be more of it about as it is in good demand at profitable prices. Chrysanthemums are selling well. Prices range from $10 to $25 per hundred, the latter price being for R. Craig & Son's Mrs. Chadwick, which is certainly a fine variety. Charles Meehan, of Germantown, has a house of yellow and white Mrs. Jerome Jones which will be in great demand this week.

The wagon builders are being kept busy with florists' work these days. Joseph Heacock is about to put a fine van on the street, mainly for the business of delivering palms, his trade having increased so as to render the extra conveyance necessary. Herman Reissert will soon have a fine new wagon, one of the right-up-to-date kind. Pennock Brothers are having a handsome wagon built, which will be on the street before long. Rumor says it is to be a dandy and quite in keeping with their handsomely appointed store. Woodroffe & Bernheimer, the Ludlow street commission men, are also in line with a handsome rig. They have recently made a large addition to their storage or cold room capacity, made necessary by their increasing business. Every wholesale florist in town now has, I believe, a delivery wagon, several of them being as handsome and well appointed as those of the retail trade.

President McKinley was entertained by the Union League, our crack republican organization last Saturday evening. The house was very well decorated and the dinner tables were lavishly dressed with flowers. Pink carnations were mostly used in recognition of the fact that this flower had been adopted by the G. O. P. as its floral emblem. Graham had the house work while Battles arranged the tables.

There was not a little comment by rose growers over the fact that although a premium was offered at the recent exhibition for the new rose, Liberty, there was not a single entry received by the secretary. This was seized upon by the men who did not plant any stock and used to condemn the variety. At this time, however, some very fine blooms are coming in from several growers and it is selling very well and bids fair to become very popular with flower buyers.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SEASON AT ITS HEIGHT. — PRICES NOT AS HIGH AS IN PREVIOUS YEARS — LARGE SALES DUE TO EFFORTS OF THE RETAILERS. — THE CLUB ENJOYS AN AFTERNOON AT MOUNT CLEMENS. — MANY INTERESTING THINGS NOTED AMONG THE GROWERS.

The chrysanthemum season has reached its zenith and large numbers of the blooms are being used, but prices are not as high as the same quality of stock bought last year. There is no evidence of this flower increasing in favor with the public and it is largely due to the efforts of the florists to push their sale and use them in as many ways as possible that so many of them are sold. It is also noticeable that pot plants of chrysanthemums are not so much sought for as in former years. Carnations are in good demand and very fine ones are being cut but the quantity is not equal to the call. Roses, except Beauties, move slower and the quality is only fair. The warm weather of October followed by rainy and cloudy weather the past ten days has been very disastrous for rose growers.

Last week an outing was enjoyed by thirty members of the club. Leaving the city at one o'clock on the Rapid Railway we journeyed to Mt. Clemens, the home of celebrated growers of violets, roses and carnations. The first stop was made at Breitmeyers'. This well-known place of over 100,000 feet of glass is largely devoted to roses. One house of Meteors was especially fine and the houses of Beauties, Bridesmaids and Brides that are at present off crop are making splendid growth which will crop nicely by the holidays. One table of Liberty that is being tried does not show the satisfactory results which we read of elsewhere and Mr. Breitmeyer is greatly disappointed.

Four houses are devoted to violets, some of them showing the effect of the warm fall weather, but on the whole they are healthy and full of promise for the coming season. Here the bottomless pot is much in evidence, as it is at Mr. Klagge's place adjoining. The utility of the device is apparent in the present condition of the plants. With its use no flowers are lost by damping off, as by the usual method of growing. In chrysanthemums Rough Rider shows up conspicuously and was pronounced an elegant sort. Immense blocks of white and yellow Mrs. Jerome Jones, Mrs. S. T. Murdock, Yanoma, Niveus, Ermenilda, Maud Dean and Bonnafion were showing evidence of careful and skillful growing. Four houses of Beauties planted in solid beds will be dried off after Thanksgiving and rested and frozen through the winter and again started for spring and summer flowering. One house of Perle and one of Kaiserin will be similarly treated except as to the freezing feature.

We next visited Robert Klagge's, where no one remembers of having ever seen a poor crop of anything. His violets, while not as grand as last year, are very fine and he has no fear of their future, though they are at present off crop. About eight hundred cyclamens are remarkably fine plants and he is justly proud of them. One house is devoted to smilax and Asparagus Sprengeri. Those who think Daybreak a back number should see his two houses of them, planted inside the last of July and now coming into heavy crop. It is hard to conceive it possible for any variety to be stronger and healthier.

A short distance from Mr. Klagge's are the three new houses of F. Gutschow & Son, just completed and planted with carnations. Each of the houses is 20x112, with 16x16 glass, heated with steam. Their plants were put in late but are looking well. John Carey's was the next place visited. His specialty is Meteor roses and he has them fine. One house is devoted to chrysanthemums and two to carnations, all looking well. His Brides and Bridesmaids are just right for a Christmas crop.

We next visited James Taylor. He is often called the violet king because of his continued success with them, and this year is no exception, though he, too, complains of off crop at present but promises much in the near future. His carnations, too, are hard to beat and some fine blooms will come from his place soon. From here we went to the Monroe Hotel for supper and spent the remainder of the evening in bowling, returning to the city about midnight.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EXPERIENCES THE BENEFITS OF HEAVY RAIN AFTER DROUGHT. — RETAIL FLORISTS PREPARED FOR A BUSY WINTER. — DOINGS, PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE, OF GROWERS, RETAILERS AND OTHERS.

Within the past fortnight California has been enjoying the luxury of the heaviest rainfall she has experienced for more than ten years and the heaviest on record for November. It is a great state that can glory in from six to fifteen inches of rain, vivifying all vegetation in the southern part, and as many feet of snow covering the mountains in the northern section. Conservative estimates are that this rain is worth $20,000,000 to the fruit and vegetable interests and as the world looks to this state for large supplies of seeds and bulbs the trade generally will be gratified to learn that the crops for the coming season promise to be abundant. Of course some damage has been done but it is trivial compared to the beneficial results. The greatest loss of which we have learned occurred to the celery crop on the peat lands in Orange county. The latest estimate of loss is 600 carloads, equal to one-third of the entire crop. Over 400 acres of celery, fully grown, ready for marketing, has been washed out and carried by the flood into the Pacific ocean. The rain destroyed all the open flowers on the carnations, perhaps 100,000 blooms being lost to the growers, but they are well satisfied, knowing the next few weeks will produce much more and finer blooms than if there had been no rain.

The flower stores are all ready for a busy season and have been made as attractive as possible. Capt. F. Edward Gray has refitted the Ingleside Floral Company's store and decorated it in olive green and gold. O. C. Saakes has repapered and painted the Central Park Floral Company's establishment, which is the oldest in this part of the state. Morris Goldenson has opened a new store at 207 South Spring street, in the Hollenbeck Hotel building. Everything therein is new except the proprietor, who has been in the business here for the past ten years, and in that time has established a nice trade. The Redondo Floral Company starts the season with a new manager for the store. John Schlaloss, who was in charge for two years, resigned to accept a position in Phoenix, Arizona. A Mr. Borden is now in charge and has one of the finest stores in the city. The Diamond Hill Nursery is making a fine display in their store at 327 South Spring street and should succeed in doing a good business in this location.

Hot weather in early November made a very short season for chrysanthemums. They bloomed earlier than usual and, as a rule, fault was found with their keeping qualities. We think it safe to say there was no money in chrysanthemums this year, either for the grower or retailer. So far the violet crop is poor, flowers small, and stems short. Paper White narcissi are already on the market in limited quantity.

At one of the fashionable women's clubs some of our professional women florists recently gave instructive addresses as follows: Mrs. J. E. McNeil, on the cultivation of ferns and begonias; Mrs. Randall Hutchinson, on the cultivation of annuals; Mrs. R. T. Whittlesey, on carnations in California; Mrs. R. W. Poindexter, on cacti, and Mrs. T. B. Shepherd, of Ventura, an exhaustive essay on begonias.

E. J. Vawter has about four acres planted solidly to carnations which are the finest plants we have seen this year. These are mainly local varieties although he is experimenting with the leading eastern sorts, hoping to find some that will succeed with the open air culture given here. Mr. Vawter has sold the entire crop of blooms to July, 1901, to Capt. F. Edward Gray.

Speaking about carnations, the varieties that succeed here are very few and it is interesting to know that Ethel Crocker is among the number. Some very fine blooms are now being sold in this city, grown by Mrs. Watson on Boyle Heights. The Japanese gardens in Santa Monica are also sending in a very good dark pink sort that is greatly admired.

Anton Kravchik, of the Los Angeles Floral Store, was obliged to remove from his Spring street location to make room for a half-million dollar hotel building. He secured a desirable storeroom at 417 South Broadway.

Miss Harriet Goodwin, at 440 South Broadway, is enjoying a profitable business in the location she selected last spring, where she always has some of the choicest flowers to be found in the city.

John Reeves is usually too busy to call on his many friends, but now he is nursing two fractured ribs, the result of a fall from his bicycle, and can take time to look around.

An excavation for a new building dropped a portion of the floor in the Elite Floral Company's store on West Fourth street. The loss will not exceed $100.

E. R. Meserve, the Broadway florist and nurseryman, was married on November 4. D. R. W.

GREAT BARRINGTON, MASS.—Theodore Dellert has leased the Raifstanger greenhouses.

PORTLAND, ME.—E. J. Harmon is on a gunning expedition in the eastern part of the state.

The Ethics of Renaming Sports.

ED AM. FLORIST:—In reply to the query of Jerome Jones I wish to say that the late Henry A. Gane gave us one of the most beautiful flowers known to admirers of chrysanthemums and, as he originated it, he, of course, had a right to name it Mrs. Jerome Jones, but the yellow and bronze sports of the variety are the property of the parties with whom they first showed the variations. The owners having the legal right to propagate, disseminate or destroy, it follows that they have a perfect right to give them any name they may see fit to select as long as they do not conflict with the rights of those who may have prior rights. Had these people named their sports Yellow Mrs. Jerome Jones, or Bronze Mrs. Jerome
Jones, then on complaint of Mrs. Jerome Jones, or the aggrieved party, if they could prove that innocent persons were liable to get the wrong flower for the genuine and original Mrs. Jerome Jones, they might have a case to carry up to the C. S. of A. I do not think a sport should carry the name of the original flower. Every flower should have a distinctive name, and the more agreeable and charming the name the better business judgment the introducer shows.

Hugh Graham named his beautiful yellow sport Pennsylvania. This is far more acceptable than would be Yellow Philadelphia. Mr. Graham had a beautiful sport of W. H. Chadwick this season, a clear, bright yellow which I hope he will be able to perpetuate, as it is a decided acquisition and far superior to Rawson's straw-colored sport named Eclipse. By the way, Mr. Jones will agree, I think, that Eclipse is a better name for a chrysanthemum than would be "Straw-colored Chadwick."

The Mixing of Lime and Manure.

I have noted with much surprise the recommendation that lime and wood ashes be mixed with bone meal and manure and composted, in the last number of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Nitrogen is, as the writer states, the element most needed by the plants. It is also the most costly. Nitrogen exists in both manure and bone as ammonia. Lime sets ammonia free to pass off in the air and be lost unless the compost is covered with some substance which will absorb it. Wood ashes contain a large proportion of lime. The addition, then, of either lime or ashes will result in the loss of a valuable portion of both the manure and of the bone, especially when, as in this case, the heap is to be spread out thin and frequently turned over. The process which will ensue during a week or ten days will hardly be nitrification to any extent. The composting of manure and bone without the lime is good practice, but should generally be carried much longer than a week or ten days.

Lime and wood ashes are valuable for many soils, and the addition of lime is essential in some cases. Both lime and wood ashes, however, should be mixed with the soil, whenever possible, in sufficient quantities to carry through the season, and be allowed to become thoroughly incorporated with it before adding the manure. When it is necessary to apply either or both of these substances to the benches after planting, they should be worked and washed into the soil thoroughly, after which the bone and manure mulch can be applied without much danger of loss. We have used in place of wood ashes a small quantity of sulphate of potash together with a liberal application of lime, and secured equally good results. Many soils contain sufficient potash for the needs of the plants. On such soils wood ashes would only be of value by reason of the lime they contain, which could be supplied much cheaper by applications of air-slaked lime.

W. N. RUDD.

American Carnation Society.

The following carnations have been registered at the office of the secretary of the society:

By Fred Dorner & Son's Co., Lafayette, Ind., Lorna, pure white, a great improvement on White Cloud in that it has longer and stronger stems, larger and better formed flowers, is an earlier bloomer and has a much more satisfactory growth. The habit is all that can be desired.

By Elmer J. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa., Midnight Sun, a bright crimson much brighter and livelier in color than Maceo, also much larger in size. Stems long and strong, a free and early bloomer with good habit and a good calyx.

By Elmer J. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa., Lancaster Pink, a good, rich color, very large flower with good calyx and long, strong stems. An early and continuously free bloomer; in growth strong and healthy.

Any carnation enthusiast who wishes to award any special premiums for the exhibition to be held in Baltimore, February 21 and 22, should forward full information of the same at once to the secretary, Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., so as to get them into the premium list which goes to press early in December.

In connection with the exhibition there will be held a general lecture on carnation diseases by Prof. Wood, of Washington, and a general discussion on the subject of stem-rot, also a paper on hybridization by Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., and other subjects of importance to carnation growers.

All who are interested in carnations should attend the meeting and matters of interest for the question box can be sent to the secretary at once so that suitable men may be selected to prepare answers.
ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

Chrysanthemum Society of American.

Following are the reports of the committees judging seedlings and sports:

CHICAGO, November 10.—Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., exhibited Mrs.
Elmer D. Smith, yellow, which scored 93
points commercial scale.

CHICAGO, November 17.—E. G. Hill
Co., Richmond, Ind., exhibited Mary Hill, pink, which scored 78 points commercial scale.

Malcolm Lamont, crimson, by same exhibitor, scored 81 points commercial scale.

PHILADELPHIA, November 24.—John N.
May, Summit, N. J., exhibited Chestnut Hill, a yellow, Japanese, incurved variety, which scored 85 points commercial and exhibition scales. Last year this variety scored 90 points commercial scale, 88 points exhibition scale at Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, November 24.—Chestnut Hill, exhibited by John N. May, scored 81 points commercial scale.

BOSTON, November 24.—John N. May exhibited Chestnut Hill, which scored 88 points commercial scale, and Zampa, a brownish crimson, salmon reverse, scoring 78 points exhibition scale.

CINCINNATI, November 24.—Chestnut Hill, shown by John N. May, scored 86 points commercial scale.

The following letter which has been received from Monsieur Ph. Rivoire, Secrétaire General Societe Francaise des Chrysanthèmes, under date of Lyon, France, November 10, 1900, will be of interest, we believe:

MONSIEUR EDWIN LONSDALE, Secrétaire, de la Chrysanthemum Society of America, Wyndmoor, Pa., U. S. A.

I have the honor to inform you that the variety which has taken the prize of $25 which the Chrysanthemum Society of America has been good enough to offer to our society to be competed for under its auspices, is a variety called Mademoiselle Marie Liger exhibited by Monsieur Liger-Livreau, horticulteur, Orleans.

The award of the prize was made by the vote of the members of the Floral Committee, which was the committee on awards to examine novelties at the Exposition of Paris. There were other varieties competing, among them may be mentioned "Caivat's Sun" and "Sada-Yaoco."

I renew in the name of our Society our thanks for the generous gift from the Chrysanthemum Society of America, and beg you to receive the assurance of our best regards.

Le Secrétaire general,
PH. RIVOIRE,
T. S. V. P.

P. S.—I hear, at the moment of closing this letter, from Monsieur Dubreuil, that he has received from your treasurer, Monsieur John Newman May, the amount contributed. It will be forwarded forthwith to Monsieur Liger. I must add that the variety which has taken the prize is not so extraordinary as we could have wished, but we have chosen the best among the many varieties exhibited. It is a Japanese incurved, with tubular florets of a very pretty rose color.

EDWIN LONSDALE, Sec'y.
Wyndmoor, Pa.

Cincinnati.

A VISIT TO THE WITTERSTAETTER ESTABLISHMENT SHOWS MANY THINGS OF EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY AND INTEREST.—SEEDLINGS AND NOVELTIES.—VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST.

A visit to Richard Witterstaetter shows his place to be in even better shape than usual. Two houses of Boston ferns will certainly be good stock for the holidays. Another house of chrysanthemums, such varieties as Goldmine, Mrs. Jerome Jones, Major Bonnation and W. H. Chadwick were just right for Thanksgiving. There are two houses of Enquirer carnations. Last season there was some talk about the splitting of the calyx of this carnation but thus far this season it seems to be free from this fault. There is also a house of Mrs. Lawson, Genevieve Lord, Ethel Crocker and Estelle, all fine plants. There is a house of Adonis, of which those who attend the annual meeting and show of the carnation society, at Baltimore, in February, can in a measure form their own opinions. The seedling house contains many noteworthy things, but the two which will soon be heard from are a splendid red and a white seedling designated as No. 720 A. Visitors to the Witterstaetter place should insist upon seeing the carnation houses before "Dick" takes them down to the cut flower cellar, for the atmosphere down there is very exhilarating, and when they come from the cellar they might not be able to see the carnations.

Undoubtedly the majority of florists have read about the closing of the German National Bank of Newport, owing to the sudden departure of a clerk with about $200,000 of the bank's funds. John Freis, Julius Schuman, D. Rusconi and the Pfeiffers were among the florists who are depositors in this bank. There is a movement on foot to reorganize with a new set of directors who will try to pay dollar for dollar. In the meantime these florists have about $10,000 tied up.

At the annual banquet of the Commercial Club at the Queen City Club, Thursday evening, November 22, the guest of honor was Mr. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister. The spacious banquet hall of this swell club was very tastefully decorated by Sunderbruch.

The next exhibition and meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will take place at the club rooms on Saturday, December 8. It will be an exhibition of carnations and roses.

Frank Ball, J. A. Peterson and R. F. Brooks were among a class of forty who were initiated into the order of the Mystic Shrine at the Scottish Rite Cathedral last Saturday.

Trade has been very satisfactory of late, with ample supplies of all flowers except American Beauties.

Ask Ben. George what the boys brought him when they returned from that hunting trip.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—W. H. Skeels suffered the loss of two greenhouses and contents crushed by the weight of snow in the recent blizzard.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—The eight florists who have stands in the public market have petitioned the City Council to set aside the northwest room in the market for the exclusive use of the florists. Their prayer will probably be granted.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y.—Amenzo Brown; who has carried on an extensive gardening business here for many years, committed suicide on November 20 by hanging himself from a beam in the loft of his barn. Dependancy over sickness in his family was the cause.

CHRYSANTHEMUM Col. D. Appleton

This variety, which we introduced last spring, has proved to be a prize-winner in every respect, and is undoubtedly the finest yellow chrysanthemum grown today, either for commercial purposes or for exhibition. If you failed to secure a stock of it last spring, let us hook your order at once, while you think of it, for a stock of this for next year. This is not a variety that can only be grown by experts, but it is one of the healthiest growers and the most easily grown of all the varieties. It is a wonderfully healthy grower, with the most perfect foliage, and can be grown to perfection under ordinary culture; it is as easily grown as any variety that we know of. It has a magnificent flower of large size, and meets all the requirements of a commercial and exhibition sort. Let us hook your order at once for spring delivery. We can furnish fine plants of the true stock. Plants ready February 1, 1901. Price $8.00 per 100.

LILY OF THE VALLEY has now arrived, and we have filled all orders in hand and have a small surplus. Advices from Europe are to the effect that the crop runs very much shorter than expected and that prices have advanced, and it is doubtful if all orders will be filled in full. If you have not already secured your supplies we would advise you to place your order without delay.

We offer extra quality three-year-old German pips, first-class quality—$22.50 per case 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $10.00 per thousand. Our Pierson's Premier is a fine selected Valley for those who want a superior article at a moderate price. This is a grade that will sell largely. $27.50 per case, 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $12.50 per thousand. Pierson's Perfection, an extra selected grade for those who desire the very finest Valley obtainable, and a grade that should be used for very early forcing. No better Valley can be supplied than this grade. It will produce the largest spikes, with the greatest number of balls, and will give the very largest percentage of first-class flowers; can be forced earlier than any other quality. $32.50 per case 2500 pips; in smaller quantities, $15.00 per thousand. We are also in receipt of our importations of

SPIRAEA. Stock is in fine shape. We have a small surplus, and offer it as long as unsold at the following prices:

- Extra fine, strong clumps especially grown for forcing.
- JAPONICA.....$8.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, $4.00 per 100.
- COMPACTA MULTIFLORA..... 9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.
- ASTILBOIDES FLORIBUNDA.... 9.00 per case 250 clumps; less quantities, 4.50 per 100.

CHRYSANTHEMUM DISPLAY AT WASHINGTON PARK—STATE OF TRADE.—DRUMMERS COMING.—VISITORS.

The bureau of parks of the department of public works closed, November 26, the chrysanthemum exhibition which for the previous two weeks had been held in the lake house, Washington Park. It is a fact to be regretted that the attendance was not so great as it might have been, the inclement weather being a large factor in the cause. The display was quite creditable. There were 450 plants comprising some 255 varieties on exhibition. Most of the plants were of the standard varieties which have been known to the trade for the past two or three years.

Business so far this season has been very good. Next week the social season will begin with one or two balls for the debutantes. This with the approach of the holidays and the convening of the legislature in the first week in January will keep the trade ball rolling merrily for the next six weeks. The recent election brought a number of new members into both branches of the legislature and the custom is for the friends of a new member to place on his desk at the opening of the legislature some handsome floral pieces.

The demand this season has been confined largely to chrysanthemums, the favorites being Golden Wedding and Chadwick, which are very popular with the public. Next to chrysanthemums rank violets and roses, the demand for the latter being confined in a measure to American Beauty.

The drummers for the large supply houses in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago have sent out advance notices to the trade here that they will be on hand to book orders for Christmas green and supplies within a few days.

E. Holly and R. W. Allen, who are extensive growers at Hudson, were in town Saturday and visited several of the local florists.

VISIT TO GROWERS WHOSE ESTABLISHMENT IS A RECENT DEVELOPMENT.—MODERN HOUSES AND UP TO DATE STOCK.

The Boehringer Brothers are growing growers. Their recent growth consists of two magnificent houses, one 25x100 for carnations, the other 12x100, for violets. There is certainly nothing slow about the Boehringers. Having embarked in the flower business about seven years ago, they have built up a plant, consisting of ten modern, well equipped houses, and comprising about 22,000 feet of glass. Among the various improvements about their place, the one most noteworthy is the introduction of the tiled benches and solid beds. As compared with the rickety benches, requiring annual repairs and overhauling, which are still in vogue, though happily fast disappearing, the brick walled beds and tiled benches are a great improvement.

The Boehringer Brothers have about thirty seedling carnations, scarlet predominating. Among these I noticed four, which are decidedly promising, and two crimson which may rank among the best of their color. There are also a few white ones and several striped or "fancies," that will require at least one more season to determine their merits. On the whole their seedlings look well and are quite interesting.

Their general stock is all that can be desired, chrysanthemums being plentiful and selling well. With ten well stocked houses, a brisk business and a bright outlook, the Boehringer Brothers have no cause for complaint.

WABASH, IND.—J. E. Cochran, of Elwood, has purchased the D. W. Fowler greenhouse.

GALENA, ILL.—Benjamin F. Vandervate attracted a great many people to the Schmohl building November 8 to 10 by a free chrysanthemum show.

OUR PASTIMES.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

At New York.

The special meeting of the Florists' Club interfered somewhat with the bowling on Monday evening, November 26, but there were a few enthusiasts who couldn't be enticed away from the alleys by any special meeting and these worked hard and faithfully, being joined at a late hour by a small delegation from the club meeting. Scores were as follows:

Player	1st	2d	3d	4th	5th
Burns.....	161	162	163	129	122
Hafner.....	173	141	148	180	150

At Flatbush.

The feature of the bowling on November 22 was the visit of New York's sturdy champion, Theodore Lang, who came over to have a little fun and incidentally to show his Flatbush friends where the middle of the alleys was to be found. The following scores show what he did to them:

Player	1st	2d	3d
Riley.....	138	158	183
A. Zeller.....	116	138	94
Raynor.....	108	135	108

Wocker.....	121	87	120
Woenner.....	115	104
Lang.....	199	194

At St. Louis.

There is quite a little interest in the bowling practice and new faces are seen on the alleys at almost every meeting. Some of the new members are making great strides. Here are the scores for November 26:

Player	1st	2d	3d	Av
C. A. Kuehn.....	179	163	168	170
J. J. Beneke.....	172	120	184	159

FIVE REASONS Why You Should Place Your Orders for . . . AZALEAS

With Us at Once

BECAUSE You can still take advantage of the mild weather, and have the plants come through safely by freight.

BECAUSE We are the largest buyers of Azaleas in the world, and make personal inspection of the stocks before they are shipped to us, and buy for spot cash, which enables us to secure the lowest prices, and you the benefit in quality of the plants.

BECAUSE Our importations are all repacked at our own nursery. Plants that have suffered in transit, and which are not well set with buds being discarded, you receive nothing but first-class stock, which is certain to give satisfaction.

BECAUSE We can give you any special assortment of varieties that you may wish. This is a great advantage over the usual assorted case lots sent over from Belgium, which invariably contain many varieties not at all suited to the American market.

BECAUSE We wish to convince you, as we have convinced many of the leading florists of the United States, that you can buy Azaleas from us to better advantage than if you make your own importations.

Canna Black Beauty, True

Finest dark leaved canna in existence, as richly colored as a Dracaena. Fine grower, 4½ to 5 feet. The best canna for centers of large beds. We have the largest stock in the country and can supply it in quantity.

$2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100 for divided roots, 1 to 2 eyes. Special prices quoted on lots of 1000 or more.

New Canna Cinnabar. (Ward).

Clear Cinnabar red with distinct gilt edge, fine round flower of great substance. Clean, vigorous habit, about 3½ to 4 feet high; profuse bloomer in good trusses which clean themselves nicely. A distinct new shade and an acceptable addition to the list of bedding varieties.

Strong roots 25c each, $2.50 per doz., $20.00 per 100.

New Canna Mrs. Kate Gray. A splendid hybrid of the Italian class. Fine strong habit, broad bronzy green foliage. Good strong clean spikes well above foliage. Individual floret very large; 7 inches across at times. Color bright orange scarlet at times striped with deeper scarlet and edges of petals flamed with golden yellow. Stands the sun well, blooms early. Foliage very broad and effect of plant is decidedly tropical.

Fine strong roots, 25c each, $2.50 per dozen.

Canna J. D. Eisele.

Deep crimson scarlet. We have been growing this canna with increasing satisfaction for the past four years. In substance of flower, color, profuseness of bloom, form of petal and spike, it is in every respect fully the equal of Columbia, and in addition is a healthy, clean grower and propagates easily.

Field-grown clumps, $25.00 per 100; divided roots, 1 to 3 eyes, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000.

GENERAL LIST OF CANNAS.

Our list of varieties is select, containing no inferior sorts; bulbs are in finest condition. You will make no mistake in placing an early order with us and getting your stock shipped in by freight.

St. Louis.

TRADE MOVES APACE FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON.—PRICES DO NOT ADVANCE MATERIALLY.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The wholesalers have been experiencing a busy week, but trade has not been so brisk that prices have gone extremely high. Roses have wholesaled all the way up from 2 cents to 7 cents and carnations from $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Beauties sold well and at fair prices. There have not been so many chrysanthemums of late and sales have been quicker and at better prices. Violets are very scarce and have sold out early at $1 a hundred, with a slight rise for Thanksgiving. The recent hot weather is given as the cause of the present shortage in violets.

There were no entries at the recent show for the Shaw gold medal offered annually for the best new plant, commercially, of the year.

The Michel Plant and Bulb Company had a large bench of chrysanthemums which they cleaned up nicely at Thanksgiving.

F. W. Bruenig's place is in very good shape and he reports business showing considerable recent improvement. M.

SALEM, O.—William Mundy is unable to be about because of a severe attack of blood poisoning.

BAR HARBOR, ME.—John H. Stafford, who has charge of the Malvern Land Improvement Co.'s greenhouses, has gone to Scotland and will be absent three months.

JANESVILLE, Wis.—Long & Hodson have a house 12x50 feet which has been a mass of color with chrysanthemums. Their rose house is 20x50 and the carnation house 12x50 and all the stock is good. In addition, they are cutting fine violets and callas.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE

$2.50 per dozen, $17.50 per 100.

BEGONIA Light Pink LORRAINE

50c each, $5.00 per dozen, $40.00 per 100.

Plants of either of the above from 2 1/4-in. pots, strong and healthy.

See Convention Number for description of the last named newer variety.

They will be the most popular plants for Christmas holiday gifts for years to come.

One of the annual society events of this city is the chrysanthemum show at Tippecanoe place, the residence of Hon. Clem Studebaker, for the benefit of the Dorcas Society of Milburn Memorial Chapel. This year the exhibition took place on November 12 and Gardener F. Schultz, who has had charge of the Studebaker grounds and greenhouses for a year, had 650 plants ready for the display. He had more than fourscore varieties, including many novelties. Of new sorts he had good specimens of Orizaba, Monrovia, Lavender Queen, Superba, Bonita, Primo, Winona, Fee du Champsaur, Mrs. Trainor L. Park, Shilowa, Neno and others. Among novelties he had several European sorts which have not been reported as figuring in any other American exhibition this year. One of them is Golden Shower, a very distinct sort with long, narrow petals, yellow intermixed with red and bronze. Marie Calvat is a Japanese, reflexed pink, and Mme. Edmond Roger is the nearest approach to a green flower yet offered; it is French. It is a broad petaled flower, the outer ones creamy white, those near the center having a greenish cast.

New Haven, Conn.

Trade has been very lively for the past couple of weeks, with enough funeral work to use up all surpluses in supply. Roses have been rather short as most of the houses have been off crop, but it looks as though we should have stock enough for Thanksgiving. A few days before Thanksgiving trade for that occasion promises to be very brisk, as most of the florists have already booked numerous orders for dinner parties, etc. Violets were in great demand for the Yale-Harvard foot ball game last Saturday, and the calls were much like the score, 28 to 0. Supplies were received from New York, Philadelphia and Boston and retail prices were anywhere from $2.50 to $4 per hundred. G. H.

CUT FLOWER TRADE SHOWS CONSIDERABLE IMPROVEMENT.—WEATHER CAUSES QUALITIES TO DETERIORATE.—NOTES.

There is a decided improvement in the cut flower trade. During the past week many social functions and several large funerals have used up the surplus stock. We have had considerable rain and stock is not benefited by the dark weather, the quality having fallen off very much. The best blooms are being cut from Meteor, Morgan and Cusin. Brides and Bridesmaids, the latter of very poor color, are soft and stems very weak. The shortage of carnations is not so noticeable. Callas, hyacinths, narcissi and stevia are coming in larger quantities and will soon be very plentiful.

McConkey's annex, which has lately been fitted up in New York style, is using up large quantities of chrysanthemums. The decorations for several of the balls held there the last week have been a credit to this city.

Tidy has the first Begonia Gloire de Lorraine to be seen in town. The plants are not large but are well flowered and prove very attractive.

Dunlop has a window of Golden Wedding chrysanthemums and poinsettias, the first of the season. H. Y. D.

WILMINGTON, N. C. — The Masons recently had a very successful chrysanthemum show. In the classes open to florists Miss Lucy Moore was the principal prize winner, although Mrs. H. Rehder had the best display of miscellaneous cut flowers. J. H. Small & Sons, of Washington, sent the prize display of cut chrysanthemums.

Latest Facts About New Carnations.

[Paper by Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, December 4, 1900.]

With many growers December 1 is the beginning of the carnation season, and even where the grower is willing to have his season begin September 1 he will find many varieties refusing to do work at that date, not getting down to actual business before now. Very often these lagging varieties are those of the preceding season's introduction. This fact makes it hard to give an intelligent opinion as to the merits of the "newer carnations" to-night, and is my apology for the shortcomings of this paper.

The introduction of carnation novelties has been so fast and furious that all of our varieties are "new carnations." We do not learn how to handle a variety, so as to get the best results from it, before another of the same color is introduced and has so many points of superiority over the old that the latter is discarded for the new, and another season or two of experimental growing started. It is this everlasting change, change, change that is responsible for a goodly portion of our failures.

Another source of failure for novelties the season after their introduction, is the pernicious habit of holding the delivery of cuttings until a late date in the winter or spring, instead of taking what good cuttings the plants produce right along and filling orders when stock is wanted. By holding all orders until a late date there are a number of deteriorating influences that are bound to have a decided effect on a portion of the stock sent out. If there is any demand for the variety worth talking about, orders will have to be filled, either with cuttings that have been rooted for some time and held over until date named for delivery, or they will be filled from stock propagated later, even, than the already late date named.

Another evil of this system, and the greatest of them all, is the necessity of having an immense quantity of cuttings for the special date, and if there is not a good supply of them rooted early there is danger of taking cuttings that should not be used and taking so many from the plants at one time that they are weakened for subsequent propagating.

Carnations are not boxes or hardware, that can be manufactured and stored away for future delivery. The cuttings should be taken at that stage of their growth when they will make the best plants for next winter, and the buyer should have them direct from the cutting bench, as soon as they are rooted, if he so desires. His method of handling them after they are rooted and the introducer's may be entirely opposite, and it is more likely that he will know how to get the best results in his soil better than the introducer of the variety. When this is more fully recognized there will be fewer failures with novelties.

As to last season's introductions, in order to do no one an injustice, I have secured opinions from a few different localities and will give them as received, omitting only the name of the writer.

Starting with Boston, the "Hub of the Universe," a letter, dated November 22, says: "So far Ethel Crocker and Genevieve Lord have proved the best. Marquis, Lippincott and Peru not very promising so far. Olympia up to date not very free."

From New York I have two, dated November 15. One gives: "Up to date the only sort satisfactory is Genevieve Lord. Crocker is a great disappointment and so are all the others we have tried." The other one says: "Lawson is to date the best of any of the novelties. Lord is also showing up well. Early in the season Crocker made a magnificent showing of growth and plant and set of buds. Up to three weeks ago it was the finest bench of carnations on the place, with the exception of an unintroduced novelty. It then commenced to stem-rot and over half the plants are gone; what have survived are good plants and what few flowers we get are as fine as one could wish. Marquis made good growth in the field but lifted poor. It has proved late, decidedly short-stemmed and as far as we can judge will be at its best during February and March."

From Chicago, November 14, comes this word: "We place Lawson at the head of the list. Olympia is very satisfactory but are undecided as to whether it will displace Bradt. Marquis has not as yet done well; it is late in flowering, but from present indications it will give a lot of flowers from Christmas on."

Maryland, November 17, gives the following: "Genevieve Lord is leading them all. Lawson is next, although its short stems have as yet brought little money. Marquis is next with fine growth but with flowers very scarce and few expected before Christmas. Crocker would be ahead of Marquis if all the blooms were good, but a great many are streaked and bad color; we believe this will disappear later. It blooms early and comparatively free. Estelle Olympia, Riley and Morning Glory look fairly well, but see nothing in their favor worthy of special mention."

Pittsburg, November 15, says: "Bertram Lippincott, very free and healthy grower; splendid. Olympia not doing much yet. Lawson picking up nicely. Crocker doing well; a free grower. Marquis, healthy, free bloomer and good grower."

From Indiana, November 19, (not Hill): "Ethel Crocker leads in pink with Lord a second. Lawson and Marquis show great promise for later in the season. Olympia did not make heavy growth in the field but is doing nicely in the house. Peru is now coming in and looks like a continuous bloomer."

California (not Sievers) gives: "Mrs. Lawson is 'O. K.' with exception of short stems for such large flowers. Estelle, a very good scarlet, will grow plenty next year. Olympia very good but rather single. Crocker best of all for winter. Lord could be larger. Peru lacking in form and does not keep."

My own observations of novelties is rather limited. What I have seen of Lawson would incline one to the belief that it will be a good carnation handled differently from what it has been this season. There is something lacking, and I think it is knowledge as to its habits, a knowledge that will be attained this winter and will no doubt place it with the standard sorts. Marquis is apparently a late bloomer and therefore a great disappointment at this time. It is to be hoped that its behavior later will overcome this early disappointment.

Crocker is, with me, and, as far as I have been able to learn, with all of my customers, a decided success. Without wishing to boast or detract from any other variety I want to say that I have plants of Crocker that will make from the date of their planting in up to January 1 as high as eighteen flowers per plant, by actual count, and that out of the thousands I have cut up to this date I have had practically none that could be called seconds, either from lack of color, size or form.

The failures that have come to my notice with this variety are nearly all with growers who feed their carnations pretty heavily, and this Crocker will not stand. Overfeeding will make it grow too strong and the flowers will come off color and often burst or poor shaped. This may not apply to every soil but it certainly does to mine. To get results that will place Crocker on its true merits the plants should be a good size in the field by August 20, or even earlier, and then housed into fairly rich soil. Then give them nothing else excepting good treatment as to watering and temperature, with possibly a little lime or good bone added to the soil some time during the winter when flowers are at a low ebb, as this addition of extra fertilizer will affect the plants at once, both as to the number of flowers produced and their quality, but in a few weeks the effect will be worn off enough to get them back to their natural conditions and this once should keep them going for the balance of the season.

Next to Crocker in earliness and a little ahead of it in point of productiveness is Genevieve Lord. The flowers are not nearly so large as Crocker and a portion of them come off color, the same as old Grace Wilder used to do, but this latter trait can, I think, be eliminated by selection. Olympia, with me, and as far as I have seen it, is ahead of Bradt in point of productiveness and will, no doubt, become a standard sort.

Peru is, up to date, lacking in form, has some bacteria and lots of rust, but it is pure white and very productive, so that it may prove better than it looks. Elm City, a white that few growers have tried, is a model in form, full of petals, almost as large as Flora Hill and has, up to date, produced more flowers per plant than any other variety, with no sign of cessation, so that I think it will prove a stayer.

There is almost a universal complaint of stem-rot from many sections and the novelties all seem to be affected with an undue proportion of it. This matter will be brought up at the next meeting of the carnation society and fully discussed with the hope of getting some information. We Lancaster growers have practically no trouble in this direction. Whether it is owing to the pure moral and religious atmosphere of our county, or the fact that we nearly all plant into solid beds instead of benches, or is simply a case of good luck, I am unable to say.

There are a number of new candidates that will be bidding for favor this season, all of which will be forcibly brought to our notice at the coming show of the carnation society. The usual number of seedlings are being tried for their second and third year and those growers who are wise will endeavor to have some of these in good shape for the show in Baltimore next February. Baltimore will be the Mecca for all carnation men then and the citizens of that city are waiting for us with the wide open arms of true southern hospitality.

Before closing I want to say that it is not always wise to give up the old varieties for the new, until you are sure of the new being the best. I have seen at Henry D. Rohrer's place Lily Dean that left nothing to be desired in the shape of a striped variety, White Cloud that seemed to lack nothing of being the ideal white, Crane that filled the bill entirely for a scarlet and Triumph that will net him more money per square foot than any of the new pinks. From what I understand the Dailedouze Brothers are as well off with several houses of Scott as if each plant were a share of Standard Oil stock. All of which goes to show that there is quite as much in the grower as in the variety, and that no judgment should be passed on a novelty until it is properly grown. Then if it falls short it can be truthfully condemned.

We carnation growers are usually too positive in our opinions. As the years progress we will some day look back to the beginning of the century and wonder how we could have any positiveness at all with the varieties and methods then in vogue.

An Armazindy Sport.

At the recent exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago the first premium in the class open to pink carnations not lighter than Scott fell to Guardian Angel, a sport from Armazindy, which originated in the greenhouses at the Guardian Angel Orphan Asylum, Chicago. The prize vase is illustrated herewith. N. A. Schmitz, the gardener at the Asylum, has been watching this sport for several seasons, and has been growing it largely for the wholesale market. He finds it has all the good qualities of Armazindy, including floriferousness, stem and habit. It is a popular color and a good seller, so that it will probably be disseminated next spring.

Chrysanthemum Novelties.

H. L. Ragan, of Springfield, O., has a cream yellow sport from Chrysanthemum President W. R. Smith of which he thinks highly and which is herewith illustrated. The sport has been christened Gold Smith and those who are acquainted with the parent, as nearly everyone is, have a very good idea of the excellent character of the new candidate for popular favor, which differs only in color and in that, with Mr. Ragan, it is dwarfer than the parent, with a very strong stem up to the flower, which is, if anything, rather better finished and heavier. There is a tint of light bronze in the yellow and the flower makes a fine show. There is, without doubt, a commercial future before this sort. Exhibited at Cincinnati, November 17, it scored 83 points.

Of the many meritorious seedlings exhibited by Nathan Smith & Son, they consider Mrs. Elmer D. Smith as best of all, excelling even Goldmine, the great reflexed golden variety which captured the C. S. A. prize cup in 1899. It is a Japanese incurved, of most perfect form, full double and high, rounded center. It is bright yellow, deeper than Golden Wedding. In the contest for the prize cup of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, at Chicago, during the recent exhibition, Mrs. Smith stood second, falling but one point behind the winner, the sensational Canadian variety, Timothy Eaton. The blooms exhibited in Chicago were seven inches in diameter. Its height is scant three feet but stem and foliage are perfect. The originators expect this sort to rival Major Bonnafon, being brighter in color, more dwarf, very similar in form, with heavier and stronger stem. Four of the C. S. A. committees have passed upon this variety this season and have scored it to an average of 92.75 points. It reaches its perfection between November 1 and November 10.

Bracondale, Ont., is not wholly dependent upon the success of Timothy Eaton for the reputation of its chrysanthemum growers, for the seedling which George Hollis has been exhibiting as No. 222 is a white of largest size. It is illustrated herewith. The plant is a strong grower and the stem is heavy, well able to support the well finished bloom. The variety was given a certificate of merit by the Toronto Florists' Association on November 22 and the stock has since been acquired by the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.

Spot Disease of the Violet.

The following important facts are set forth by P. H. Dorsett, in Bulletin No. 23, illustrated, of the United States Department of Agriculture, issued November 28, 1900:

The subject of this paper is one of the most widespread and destructive maladies known to attack the violet. The disease has been discussed in the florists' journals under a variety of names, such as leaf spot, leaf rust, leaf blight, small-pox, etc. More commonly, however, the trouble is known as the violet disease, growers not generally recognizing the fact that there is more than one malady attacking the violet. The disease occurs throughout this country wherever the violet is grown, and is probably of American origin. The cultivation of the violet has been abandoned in many sections of the country on account of its ravages, while in others it has become necessary to adopt new methods of handling the plants during the growing season.

Five or six years ago, for example, 50,000 to 75,000 square feet of glass in the vicinity of Alexandria, Va., were devoted to the cultivation of this crop, but on account of the disease the industry has been practically abandoned. A large grower near Boston was forced, a few years ago, to abandon growing stock plants at his place on account of this trouble. He had to have them grown for him during the summer, at considerable expense, in localities that were free or comparatively free from the disease. After transferring these plants to his place in the fall and setting them in the houses he experienced little or no difficulty in keeping them healthy during the remainder of the season. Many other instances of the destructive nature of this disease could be cited.

The large amount of florists' literature relating to this subject when collected and condensed was found by the writer to contain only a confused mass of contradictory opinions regarding both the cause and treatment of the disease. This is not strange to one familiar with the violet. All growers know the violet to be variable, seldom if ever behaving any two seasons alike. Practical growers recognize the fact that methods of handling the plants followed with little disease and good results during one season may, though rigidly adhered to, result in disease and failure the next.

It is also a well known fact that growers in the same section and in close proximity to one another often practice widely different methods in growing this crop, and yet the results obtained are practically the same. A novice in violet growing may have little or no difficulty the first few years in growing good flowers. After this, however, his troubles usually begin and failure more often than success crowns his efforts. Unless he is possessed of peculiar abilities and a determination to succeed a few years of reverses are sufficient to cause him to abandon the culture of violets and turn his attention to some other industry, where the chances of success are at least equal to those of failure.

GENERAL APPEARANCE OF THE DISEASE.

Spot disease of the violet (Alternaria violæ) attacks the plants at any stage of their growth from the small unrooted cutting in the cutting bed to the mature plant in full flower. Plants that are making a vigorous, rapid, but soft or succulent growth are most subject to the disease. The disease may occur on any portion of the plant above ground, but causes the greatest amount of loss when present upon the foliage. Its first appearance upon the leaves is characterized by small, definite, usually circular, greenish or yellowish white spots, resembling very much the bite or sting of an insect. They vary in size from dots scarcely perceptible to the unaided eye to spots a thirty-second of an inch or more in diameter. The light-colored central portion or point of infection is surrounded by a narrow ring of discolored tissue, usually black or very dark brown at first, but changing to a lighter shade as the spots grow older.

As the spot develops the central portion remains unchanged in appearance, while the tissues immediately surrounding it, either to one side or more frequently in a circle, become diseased by the ramifying growth of the mycelium of the fungus through this portion of the leaf. This usually takes place within a few hours after infection. The freshly diseased portion of the leaf at first presents a water-logged appearance, frequently being semi-transparent, and is lighter in color than the adjacent healthy tissue. The diseased portion around the central point of infection in a few days fades or bleaches to a yellowish or grayish white, sometimes to a pure white, the time depending somewhat upon the conditions of the weather.

The development of the disease may stop at this point and the plants apparently entirely recover from its effects; in which event the diseased portions of the leaves after a few days separate from the healthy tissue and fall out, leaving the leaves full of holes. More frequently, however, the disease continues to develop in the parts of the leaf adjoining or surrounding those already diseased. These freshly diseased areas in turn pass through the same changes as the parts previously attacked. Unless checked by some means the disease continues to spread in this way until the entire leaf is destroyed. It is seldom, however, that a single spot upon a leaf develops to this extent. More frequently the leaf is attacked at a number of different points and as the disease progresses the spots become larger and one or more of them coalesce, forming large irregular areas or blotches upon the leaf.

A well-developed spot of this disease therefore shows a light-colored central portion, the point of infection, partly or wholly surrounded by alternate rings of dark and light colored tissue, the lighter colored portions as a rule being very much broader and more conspicuous than the darker. The majority of these spots are usually free from fungous spores except under conditions peculiarly favorable to their development. Spores are produced, however, in great abundance upon most of them, especially upon the central or older portions of the spots, after the leaves have been placed in a saturated atmosphere for from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. It is frequently the case that spores are produced in sufficient numbers to be discernible by the unaided eye, but usually the aid of a hand lens or a microscope is necessary to determine their presence. The spores are borne in chains on dark brownish hyphae that rise from the diseased surface. The spores break from their attachment and separate from each other easily, and being very small and light they are carried around by currents of air and finally settle upon other leaves.

THEORIES AS TO CAUSE OF THE DISEASE.

Perhaps no subject relating to floriculture has received more attention in the floricultural and horticultural journals during the past eight or ten years than the disease in question. The most varied opinions have been expressed in regard to it, and the explanations advanced as to its cause and the possible course of treatment are numerous. Some of the more important of these hypotheses are given here.

Some writers claim that the plants are of necessity weakened by being forced during the winter into heavy flower production, and that the taking of cuttings from such plants, and the rooting and forcing of them in the same way from year to year has resulted in producing a weak strain peculiarly susceptible to injury of all kinds. They recommend fall propagation to secure strong, vigorous healthy wood before the plants are weakened by flowering. The cuttings, after being rooted in clean, sharp sand, are transplanted into thumb pots, or into flats and carried through the winter in a house or in frames, where the temperature is kept as low as possible, not allowing the plants to freeze, however. By this treatment the plants are given a rest, which is believed by many to be necessary to strong, vigorous growth. While growers generally admit that slightly better results are usually obtained by this treatment than by the one generally practiced, they are, as a rule, of the opinion that the benefits derived will not justify the expense necessary to carry the young plants through the winter in good condition for spring planting. This is an important problem, the practical solution of which would no doubt prove of great value to all interested in the cultivation of the violet. We have this work under way at the present time, and hope in a few years to obtain some interesting results.

Other writers claim that the disease is due to improper soil conditions. The soil is either too heavy or too light in texture, and as a consequence holds, or gives up, too much or too little moisture, or contains too much or too little plant food. They advise selecting soil suited in every way to the best growth and development of the plants. Since good soil is one of the prime factors governing strong, vigorous, healthy plant growth, this advice is good, but extremely difficult to follow. The question of securing proper soil is one of the most perplexing with which the grower has to contend, requiring judgment that can be gained only by many years of practical experience.

Still others attribute the disease to improper methods employed during the growth of the plants, such as growing them in the open field, where they are exposed to drought, rains, dews, and the direct rays of the sun during the summer, and lack of attention to properly heating, ventilating and fumigating the houses and to cultivating, watering and cleaning the plants. As a remedy they propose furnishing the necessary conditions for vigorous, healthy growth at all times. This is a good doctrine, but begs the question.

FUNGOUS NATURE OF THE DISEASE.

Over four years ago the writer succeeded in producing upon violet leaves spots that were in every way identical with those above described by spraying the leaves with distilled water to which spores of the fungus, Alternaria violæ, had been added. Since that time he has proved by numerous laboratory and greenhouse experiments, details of which will be stated presently, that the so called spot disease of the violet is unquestionably due to the attacks of this fungus. Other fungi are known to attack the violet, producing upon the leaves spots very similar in outline and appearance to those caused by Alternaria violæ, with which they are often confused, but in the writer's experience in the study of the violet and its diseases he does not recall a single instance where these fungi have come to his attention as causing any serious trouble. It is possible, however, for them to do considerable damage under conditions peculiarly favorable to their development. Ninety-five per cent of all the specimens of the so-called violet disease received at the Division laboratory during the past four or five years were found, upon careful microscopical examination, to contain spores of the particular fungus mentioned.

The fungus was isolated by agar poured cultures in Petri dishes, and comparatively little difficulty was experienced in securing pure cultures for inoculation experiments. The growth and development of the fungus on artificial media is, as a rule, quite rapid, normally producing spores in from four to six days after the sowing of the spores or the transferring of a single germinating spore from one plate culture to another.

The growth of the fungus in agar is normally in concentric rings, each ring marking the amount of growth made in twenty-four hours. The color of the fungus growing on agar before spore formation is grayish white. Spore production begins at the center on the older growth, and gradually extends outward, until the entire surface of the colony is covered with a dense mass of olivaceous spores. The fungus grows well on other culture media, especially young lima bean pods.

The first inoculation experiment with Alternaria violæ was made February 12, 1896. Two plants of Marie Louise violet, in 4-inch pots, were removed from the Department greenhouse to the laboratory. They were quite uniform in size and, as far as could be ascertained by observation, entirely free from disease. Plant No. 1 was sprayed with sterile distilled water and placed under a bell jar in a saturated atmosphere, where it was kept. Plant No. 2 was sprayed with sterile distilled water in which spores from a pure culture of Alternaria viola had been sown, and was then placed under the same conditions as Plant No. 1. The temperature of the laboratory at the beginning of the experiment—3:30 p. m.—was about 80° F. The following notes, made during the progress of the experiment, are descriptive of the results obtained:

February 14, 1896, 9:30 a. m. Plant 1 apparently in a perfectly healthy condition, leaves covered with moisture, but showing no ill effects from the spraying or from being kept in a saturated atmosphere. Plant 2 badly diseased, nearly every leaf showing one or more spots of infection, which are in every particular identical with the first stages of the disease as naturally produced.

February 15, 1896, 9:30 a. m. Plant 1 still remains healthy and apparently uninjured by the treatment. On Plant 2 the disease is progressing rapidly. There is a peculiarly disagreeable odor present when the bell jar is removed that is not noticeable under the same conditions with Plant 1. This odor, so far as I am able to judge, is identical with that noticed with plants suffering from an attack of the disease under normal conditions. This odor is one of the characteristics of the disease, and its presence in the house, frame, or field is usually the first intimation the grower has of the presence of the disease among his plants.

February 19, 1896. Plant 1 still healthy and apparently in good condition. The spots on Plant 2 are a little further developed and resemble more closely those produced under natural conditions.

Numerous greenhouse and laboratory experiments under strict control conditions have confirmed these results, and show that spot disease of the violet is due directly so the attack of the parasitic fungus Alternaria viola, and not to any of the other causes suggested. Indirectly, however, other conditions may have their effect. Any one or a combination of all of the conditions included in the various theories advanced may cause the plants to become susceptible to the attacks of the fungus.

CONDITIONS FAVORING DEVELOPMENT OF DISEASE.

The conditions favoring the development and spread of the fungus may be considered under two heads, viz., natural conditions and artificial conditions.

Among natural conditions those of the damp, warm, cloudy weather of the summer season are the most difficult to modify or control. Conditions of this nature are almost invariably present during the months of August and September. The days are long and usually hot and dry, followed, as a rule, by cool, moist nights. The plants at this time are subjected to extreme changes, viz., from the hot, dry atmosphere during the day, which frequently causes them to become wilted and remain so for several hours, to the cool, moist atmosphere of the night, which causes them to become excessively turgid. Conditions of this kind induce a rapid, weak, soft or succulent growth of the plants which is particularly subject to disease and at the same time favors the germination and development of the spores of the fungus. It is at this season of the year, as a rule, that the spot disease is most abundant and destructive. This is the time for great vigilance, and every condition influencing plant growth must be made as favorable as possible to a hardy, healthy growth which will be able to withstand the attacks of disease. The grower who is able to accomplish this and tide his plants over this critical period of their growth in a comparatively healthy condition is fortunate, and, as a rule, has little to fear from the disease during the remainder of the season.

Artificial conditions include those wholly or in part under the control of the grower. They are too often neglected, resulting as a rule in disease and consequent loss and discouragement. They may be enumerated as follows:

AN HARMONIOUS ARRANGEMENT OF PLANTS OF EASY CULTURE.

1. Not keeping the houses or frames clean, fresh, and sweet by frequently repairing and painting them and by removing and destroying rubbish of all kinds as soon as it appears.

2. Not keeping the plants clean and in the best possible growing condition at all times.

3. Not selecting stock from strong, vigorous plants that have been entirely free from disease.

4. Not being careful to select only strong, vigorous, healthy stock from the cutting bed for planting in the spring.

5. Not giving the proper attention to the selection and preparation of the soil, to the date and method of planting, and to the care and cultivation of the plants during the growing season.

6. Not giving due consideration to the several varieties and their adaptability to the soil and location in which they are to be grown.

SUSCEPTIBILITY OF VARIETIES.

While the susceptibility of the plant to disease depends largely upon the way in which it has been grown, still, as a whole, some varieties are more susceptible than others; Marie Louise, for example, even under conditions most favorable to growth, is more subject to injury from spot than is Lady Hume Campbell. The former variety can be grown to perfection only under the most favorable conditions, but when thus grown it has no equal for size, color, and excellency of flower. The hardier, more resistant and more prolific variety Campbell stands next to Marie Louise in quality of flowers, lacking only the deep rich color of the latter. The single varieties are as a rule more resistant than the double, though occasionally they are seriously affected.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES.

So far as we are aware there is at present no effective remedy for this disease when it has gained a foothold. The principal fungicides in common use for the prevention and check of plant diseases have frequently been tried for this trouble, but with varying results. The experiments of the Division in spraying violets with some of the more important of these, among them Bordeaux mixture and ammoniacal solution of copper carbonate, seem to show that they possess little or no value in preventing the disease, while on the other hand they render the foliage worthless for bunching with the flowers, and thus occasion considerable loss and inconvenience. From the writer's experience and that of many others it would seem that the solution of this problem of controlling the disease lies in preventing it by giving careful attention to the production of vigorous, healthy plant growth rather than in attempting to check the trouble after it has once gained a foothold.

The successful growing of violets free from disease and the production of flowers of the best quality are governed by a number of factors which must be kept in mind. The principal rules which should govern the grower are the following:

1. Study carefully the behavior of the plants under the varying conditions surrounding them. Endeavor by modifying these conditions, when necessary, to secure plants of ideal development. Set the standard of excellence high and be satisfied with nothing short of its attainment.

2. Grow the plants during the entire season where they can be given the conditions necessary for making a vigorous, healthy growth, and where they can be protected at all times from conditions likely to induce disease.

3. Keep the houses or frames clean, sweet, and in perfect condition for growing healthy plants, by repairing and painting them when necessary, and by removing and destroying all rubbish likely to harbor vermin or disease.

4. Propagate only from healthy, vigorous stock of known parentage at the season most favorable to the plants.

5. Select each spring none but perfectly healthy, vigorous plants from the rooted cuttings for planting into the houses or frames. Old plants are sometimes carried over, and occasionally yield a large crop of flowers. They are not as reliable as the young plants, however, and are much more liable to all kinds of disease. The best growers rarely use them if it is possible to secure strong, healthy young plants for spring or early summer planting.

6. Keep the plants clean of yellow, dead, or dying leaves, being careful to destroy them after removing them from the plants.

7. Keep the plants free from insects and other animal pests.

8. Give careful attention to ventilating, heating, and shading the houses or frames and to watering, cleaning, and cultivating the plants.

9. Renew the soil in the beds each season before setting in the young plants by removing from eight to twelve inches of the surface soil and replacing it with that freshly prepared.

10. Set the young plants early in the spring in the beds where they are to remain during the season, so that they may get well established before the hot, dry weather of summer makes its appearance.

Careful attention given to the above directions for a number of years will, it is believed, result in the production of a strain of plants that are not only practically disease resistant, but are also ideal as regards regularity and symmetry of growth, length, and strength of flower stems, and yield, size, substance, and quality of flowers produced.

Plants for Baskets and Pans.

There will be a demand during the winter, particularly at holiday time, for arrangements of flowering plants, either in baskets or pans. An essential feature in plants for such work is that they be well furnished at the base, so as to cover the pot; that means that they must not be crowded while growing. When you undertake to arrange a basket of plants provide something as a special feature. It is best that it be some perfect specimen of a seasonal plant, something possessing individuality, which must not be made obscure by clustering various companions about it. Have the others selected and placed so as to assist the variety selected as a leader.

For filling baskets one should have a fresh set of leaders about twice a month; that would be twenty-four varieties annually, so selected as to mature at nearly equal distances apart dur-

The beautiful, drooping plant at the lower right corner is gray green; Lotus peliorhynchus, a most charming plant and easily grown. The coccoloba, with its curious, flat stems or leaves, is always pretty and interesting to a customer. The variegated abutilon, now commonly used for bedding, and the old-fashioned drooping variety, often fills in, with its peculiar brown tints, to advantage and the carex, with its grass-like foliage, is almost always useful, particularly where bulbous flowers are used.

The florist who caters to the public and the grower who wishes to have business from the best storekeeper, must contrive to co-operate in the supply and arrangement of these details. Flowers at so much a dozen, the same as eggs, are not what flower-lovers are looking for now-a-days; it's the effective arrangements which can be easiest accomplished with the assistance of potted plants, a ing the twelve months. Some of the plants suitable for this purpose are euphorbias, begonias, justicias, primroses, cyclamens, azaleas, lilacs, deutzias, spiræas, the various flowering bulbs, pansies, heliotropes, the choicest geraniums, pot grown campanulas, allamandas, mahernias, choicer amaryllises and crinums, peperomias, anthuriums, cyripediums and other orchids, erythrinas, eucharises, hydrangeas, calceolarias, ericas, metrosideros, lopezias, some of the cacti, etc.

The common mistake is to crowd into one arrangement too many blooming plants. Every florist should have constantly on hand a few plants that are decorative without flowers that will always be ready to assist in filling a basket and bring out the beauty of your leader, whatever it may be. The illustration on page 625, of a small group of such plants, will perhaps illustrate my meaning. Every plant here shown is easily grown; they are of form and color always convenient to arrange and varying so in character as to render the selection for harmony quite easy, no matter what blooming plant you have to deal with. Of course there are the ordinary ferns and Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri, as well, but they are made to do service for almost everything now, which is a pity. The Asparagus tenuissimus here shown is surely the most useful variety for florists' general use, whether used cut or in pots; no decorator can afford to be without it.

departure also which enables a grower to serve many customers with less waste than is entailed in the ordinary method of consigning cut flowers to the commission dealer. All crops of plants hold for several days and can be sold by sample and shipped as wanted, the special crops can be brought on in various quantities as the season warrants and the business is one of many attractions aside from the profits. #### A Kentucky Establishment.

The accompanying illustration shows the greenhouse establishment of Jacob Schultz, at Louisville, Ky. It can be seen at the place that there is nothing commonplace about the range, the low granite wall, the group of lofty trees in the background removed far enough so as not to obstruct the light, the fine residence, suggestive of ease and comfort, and the elegant office, all combined, making it one of the finest as well as one of the most picturesque places of the kind in the country.

The story of the proprietor's business career is but a leaf from the history of floriculture for the past quarter of a century. It is the story of healthy, continuous and uninterrupted growth, of advance and progress along the lines of a chosen life's work. Mr. Schultz, although a commercial florist, and of the conservative school, is an enthusiast, withal, there being no plant, rose, carnation or chrysanthemum of any merit but what is grown on his place, and to hear him speak of the past, as compared with the present, one cannot help but entertain the brightest hopes for the future. Unlike many old-timers he holds with Lowell, that: "Think not the past is wise alone, for yesterday knows nothing of the best."

It is therefore safe to assume that Mr. Schultz will invest in quite a few novelties of "to-day," although those of "yesterday," such as The Marquis, Mrs. Lawson and Ethel Crocker, are doing well with him. It is the best, and the very best, that he is after. Besides remodeling his entire plant, Mr. Schultz has added a violet house 15x140, and a fern house 20x150. Three new boilers, each of forty horse-power capacity, were likewise put in during the past summer.

Pan-American Notes.

The month of November was one of the worst for outside work that we ever remember and somewhat retarded the finishing up of the ground work around the buildings. Between snow storms and rains the horticultural department managed to get in all the bulbs. Of hyacinths, tulips, narcissi, Spanish irises and other kinds there are upwards of 200,000 planted in the various beds in that portion of the grounds known as the music gardens. There are upwards of 150 beds and with few exceptions, they are filled with spring flowering bulbs, and are the exhibits of many different firms.

These beds are of all sizes, ranging from a surface of 100 square feet to that of 8,000 square feet. This portion of the grounds, which one enters immediately from the Elmwood gate, consists of some fifteen to twenty acres and is practically finished. It must present a most beautiful appearance in the spring, as those few beds not occupied by bulbs will be filled with pansies. There are about twenty-five beds reserved for pansies, which will be planted as soon as the ground is in condition to work in the spring, and a few are occupied by hybrid perpetual roses, so that during the month of May this part of the grounds will be most attractive. A large quantity of herbaceous plants has also been planted in several long borders.

The department of works has also planted about a quarter of a million bulbs. The two long borders on each side of the cascades, each about 500 feet in length by fifteen feet in width, are planted with a great variety of hyacinths and tulips in geometrical designs. The large beds destined for summer blooming plants have also been filled with bulbs. These must make a most brilliant show in the early days of the exposition. With all the inclement weather a great deal of planting has been done in the neighborhood of the island, on the banks of the eastern canal and in that portion of the grounds occupied with the foreign and state buildings.

The large consignment of palms, dracaenas, oranges, etc., from California has been carefully housed in large wooden buildings with sufficient light for their welfare. As there are to be thousands of feet of boxes filled with flowers and drooping and climbing plants, and also many hundreds of vases to adorn the grounds, the propagating at the greenhouses is going on very rapidly. With all these and the immense amount of carpet bedding that the plans call for an enormous number of plants will have to be ready by the first of June.

LITTLE ACTIVITY IN WHOLESALE MARKETS BUT CROPS ARE LIGHT AND SUPPLIES NOT ACCUMULATING.—PECULIAR STATUS OF THE VIOLET.—POPULAR PRICES IN DEMAND.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The cut flower market is decidedly inactive this week and all that prevents a disastrous breaking of prices is the rather light crop in some lines and the practical exit of the chrysanthemum as a disturbing factor. The warm, sunny weather of Sunday and Monday served to replenish the stocks depleted by the Thanksgiving demand and since then there has been an abundance of everything for all needs, with but slight prospect of any recurrence of last week's conditions until the Christmas rush is upon us, and there are no reliable indications as yet as to what may develop then. Roses are running poor, the proportion of off-colored specimens being large. Carnations improve every day, holding their own as to price as well as anything else on the market. Narcissi and Roman hyacinths are increasing in quantity with a downward tendency in values. Violets have probably seen about all they will see of very high prices for this season. They are lower than for some weeks and the plants are full of buds ready to open soon, so that no legitimate scarcity is likely. The sooner they come down to a popular figure the better for the violet, the man who grows it and the man who sells it. The great majority of the city florists refuse to touch violets when they reach the prohibitive price and their sale is limited to the few very high-class establishments. At an acceptable figure hundreds of the smaller florists are ready to invest and distribute them as a flower so universally liked is entitled to be distributed. In the long run it is unquestionable that the violet grower benefits by moderate prices and the steady demand thus encouraged.

George Ditzenberger, who conducts a business at Seventy-fifth street and Fifth avenue, Bay Ridge, has caused the arrest of Albert Zaugg, a grower employed by his father, on a charge of attempted blackmail. Zaugg is said to have threatened to prosecute Ditzenberger for stealing a watch unless paid for silence. It is a trivial affair.

Kretschmar Brothers are sending a quantity of fine seedling carnations to Langjahr, which find a quick sale. Standard varieties are also coming in good form from these successful growers, Flora Hill especially being of exhibition grade.

John Reickert, the Union Hill expert, has about 2,500 fine azaleas in perfect shape for Christmas.

Will, second son of A. Hulsebosch, aged nine years, died on November 22, of scarlet fever.

Chas. Scallen is contemplating the opening of a new store on Forty-second street.

Visitors last week: W. R. Smith and W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; H. H. Battles, Philadelphia; C. H. Fleming, Bridgeport, and J. N. Champion, New Haven.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Timothy J. Galvin, head gardener at the Harvard observatory, and Miss Nora A. Bresnahan were married Thanksgiving evening.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Roderick McKenzie, who has been gardener for E. Henry Barnes for nineteen years, died on November 26, having been ill but five days with typhoid fever.

MARKET SWEEP CLEAN AT THANKSGIVING AND GREENHOUSES CUT BARE.—SCARCITY AND HIGH PRICES PREVALENT.—DEMAND IS FOR BEAUTIES.—WHITE LILAC A NOVELTY.—DOINGS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The Thanksgiving holiday left the market in this locality, as on similar occasions, bare. Chrysanthemums had been practically mowed down by their owners, who had become tired of seeing them around, and, everything else having been cut close, the next few days brought troublesome conditions for everybody. The advanced prices on all kinds of flowers were only tantalizing to the growers, who, with nothing to cut, could take no advantage of them. The retailers were equally unhappy because they found themselves, for the time being, at the mercy of the dealers, hence "couldn't make any money," and the wholesalers were nearly overwhelmed with demands from all sides, which they found it impossible to gratify.

A peculiarity of this market at such times is the way the producers suddenly become buyers. New England is plentifully supplied with small growers who do a local business and either sell their surplus in the Boston flower exchange or ship it to Boston wholesalers, who have learned, however, that they may expect nothing from these people at holiday time or when crops are off generally and stock scarce. At such times the growers are on the market as buyers and all the logic and eloquence in the world is ineffectual to convince them that they are getting a fair deal when they are called upon to pay three or four times as much as they were able to realize on the same kind of goods when they had them to sell.

A novelty offered here at present is white lilac and it comes from Philadelphia—hence is good, as is everything that comes from that estimable town. It is grown by Francis Supiot and Welch Bros. sell, or try to sell, it. It is the habit of some retailers to perpetually criticize the flower growers for not producing something besides the half dozen or so standard florists' flowers, but when a really nice thing, such as this lilac is, appears, it appeals in vain to these fastidious gentlemen, who, however, clamor for Brides and Bridesmaids incessantly. In this instance, the Brides and Bridesmaids being impossible, the lilac and even the despised Paper Whites had to be taken, but there was much grumbling thereat.

American Beauty growers have been wishing for the past week that they were the possessors of ten times as many houses as they have. The question of grade was overlooked for once and buyers were satisfied if only they got Beauties, regardless of the distinctions of fancies, extras and specials. In some degree this has also been true of all varieties of roses. Carnations are in short supply, too, and the field being now deserted by the chrysanthemums every carnation has its value to-day. Roman hyacinths have arrived and will now assist the Paper Whites in caring for the funeral demands.

At the meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on December 1, Walter Hunnewell was elected to fill the vacancy on the finance committee caused by the resignation of his father, H. H. Hunnewell, and F. H. Appleton was selected to replace Walter Hunnewell on the executive committee. The matter of an appropriate exhibition on the occasion of the opening of the new horticultural building next spring was discussed at length and a proposal that the building committee arrange with Prof. C. S. Sargent to assume the entire management of this notable event was received with unanimous approval. It is understood that this will be a non-competitive display.

A sheet has been prepared by the Secretary giving in detail all the changes from last year's list as made in the prize schedule of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for the coming year and copies of this as well as of the full schedule may be obtained by intending exhibitors by addressing Robert Manning, secretary, Horticultural Hall, Boston. The exhibitions scheduled after May 1 are conditional upon the new hall being in shape to accommodate them.

R. M. Grey, gardener for Oakes Ames, started for Cuba on Friday, November 30, to make a scientific investigation of certain features of the sugar cane industry.

The annual exhibition of children's herbariums at Horticultural Hall was held on Friday and Saturday of last week. Both halls were filled.

BUSINESS MOVES ALONG AT A LIVELY PACE. —A HUSTLE TO GET STOCK AND FILL ORDERS.—PRICES ARE UP.—THE FIGURES ON THE STAPLES.—GOOD FLOWERING PLANTS FOR CHRISTMAS.—MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—SOME GOOD EXHIBITS.

Last week was all right; it was a grand hustle from Monday until Saturday. The debutantes, Thanksgiving day and two big foot ball games kept everybody busy, first getting flowers and then filling orders. Prices stiffened somewhat, but not to any great extent. Beauties are most in demand at prices ranging from $2 to $6 per dozen, the latter figure for the very select. Teas are scarce at from $6 to $12 per hundred. Liberty is scarce as yet at from $12 to $15. Carnations are not loading up the cool rooms to any extent and all good stock is quickly taken up at from $2 to $4. Scott, Cartledge and Hill are most common, with Crocker, Crane, Maceo and a few Lawson among the fancies. Good greens are becoming more necessary all the time and there is a great demand for good adiantums at from 75 cents to $1 per hundred. Asparagus plumosus sells last if in sprays at from $2 to $4 per hundred sprays. Lily of the valley has been scarce at $3 to $4. Romans and narcissi are now in all the commission men's stocks at from $3 to $5. Violets are scarce but of good quality. Prices for singles are 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Doubles range from $1 to $2.

The outlook for Christmas stock in this market, in the way of blooming plants, is good. Robert Craig & Son's begonias are easily first in point of beauty and effectiveness. They have a lot put into pans with birch bark coverings, some planted with ferns around the edge and others plain. They are fine and should sell on sight. Azaleas will likely come next in favor and Craig, Harris and Becker are each strong in their stocks of azaleas. There are also a number of smaller stocks about. Cyclamens come next, Craig & Son having about the only large stock. They are fine plants. Cox, of Second and Bristol, also has a nice lot. A lot of peppers at Craigs' should sell well, as they are a novelty. In Jerusalem cherries John Westcott is strong. Zimmer also has a nice lot. Harris, it is said, may have in some bougainvilleas. There are several growers in with poinsettias, which are great Christmas plants. Boston ferns and other foliage plants, such as red dracenas, are also in demand, although the latter are nearly all sold out. There are but few primulas and scarcely any Harrisi lilies.

The December meeting of the club was rather slimly attended. There was a nice show of flowers on the billiard table, which is our exhibition stage. A vase of a dozen Queen of Edgely roses was the feature, the flowers being of good size, form and color. A smaller lot of the new hybrid tea, Robert Scott, also attracted attention, the specimens being good. John Kuhn showed his new red carnation, a fine flower, called John Habermehl. J. R. Dillon, of Bloomsburg, had a vase of his new white, Queen Louise, and Albert Herr exhibited Elm City, a good white, said to be very prolific. The feature of the evening was Mr. Herr's paper on carnations, which was read by Robert Craig. It appears in full in another column of this paper. "The best house ferns and why," is the paper for next month, by Charles Cox. "Ladies night" was discussed and the date set for this important entertainment was Wednesday, January 23. K.

A WEEK OF VARIABLE SUPPLY AND ERRATIC DEMAND.—WHOLESALE HAVES PLENTY OF STOCK BUT NOT THE THINGS MOST WANTED.—VISITORS AND THEIR DOINGS.—JOTTINGS HERE AND THERE AMONG THE CRAFT.—PERSONAL ITEMS OF VARYING INTEREST.

This has been another week like those immediately preceding, with supply variable and the demand so erratic that it has made the life of the wholesalers full of care and trouble. Last Saturday there was a demand for carnations which exceeded anything that has been known this season, but by Monday the call had fallen off on everything except for red and by the middle of the week the bright colored sorts were the only ones that were not dragging more or less. There were more roses than could be used to advantage, although the supplies were not large. The only items which have been briskly salable were Beauties and the higher grades of tea roses. For these the demand was fully up to the supply and the best grades were held at very good prices. Chrysanthemums are very nearly used up but a number of growers still have good stocks which will hold on until, probably, after Christmas, so that orders, particularly for yellow varieties, can be filled for some weeks to come. Violets seem to be behaving badly with all growers this year, as the supplies are very light. This may be a fortunate state of affairs, as the demand is very weak except for the very choicest qualities, and qualities are generally poor. Cattleyas are at an end for a time, unless obtained in the east, but there are ample supplies of such things as lily of the valley, hyacinths, narcissi and callas. Indications already point to large cuts at Christmas.

Capt. H. Schueneman is in port with his twenty-first annual cargo of Christmas green in the schooners Ida and F. Moss, tied up at the Clark street bridge. Capt. Schueneman lost the Mary Collins in a wreck on October 6, while going north in a fog. The insurance expired

October 1 and he was $5,000 loser through the variation of his compass. Two years ago his brother, Capt. August Schueneman, was wrecked in the gale of November 7, while bound south with greens, and lost his life. This year's cargoes consist principally of Christmas trees, very little bouquet green being gathered. He has made some wreathing and what bulk green he had he sold at 10 cents a pound, although 12 cents has since been offered.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was in town this week exploiting the new roses Queen of Edgely, Marquise Litta and Robert Scott. The last named variety is a cross of Belle Siebrecht and Merveille de Lyon, raised by Robert Scott & Son, of Sharon Hill, Pa. It is a very prolific bloomer with globular flowers, quite full, and of an extremely pleasing shade of light pink. If persistent effort and a serene smile count for anything, Mr. Hill is making a strong impression with these novelties.

The Geo. Wittbold Company report sales steadily increasing on their new nephrolepis. They are not only highly gratified at the way the trade is taking to this, the only plant which they ever introduced to commerce, but are pleased to find that at their retail stores it is chosen by customers in preference to the Boston fern.

Kennicott Bros. Co. had a vase of Irene, Crabb & Hunter's pink seedling carnation, on exhibition this week that attracted much attention. They were very fine flowers on very good stems and upheld the variety's reputation as a keeper.

McKellar & Winterson this week received some of the finest violets which ever came to this market. They were from a Wisconsin grower and sold for $3 per hundred. Unfortunately the shipments were but a few dozen bunches at a time.

Walter Retzer & Company have a house of azaleas of early varieties, many of which are showing color and will be in nice trim for Christmas. Most of them are already spoken for among the local retailers.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn has been gaining in strength in the past few days and on Friday was removed to Hinsdale, it being thought that she would convalesce more rapidly in the surroundings of her own home.

E. C. Amling is preaching quality to his growers. He tells them that, no matter the state of the market, the strictly high grade grower gets the best end of every transaction.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, came to town one day this week with samples of his stock of plants for the holiday trade, including some exceptionally fine Adiantum Farleyense.

Charles Wiffin, at Des Plaines, has recently completed a carnation house 16x144. His stock is in good shape and he is reasonably well satisfied with results thus far.

One of the week's visitors has been Frederick Dickerson, of Miami, Fla., a large grower of decorative plants and a leading wholesaler of Florida's floricultural products.

Experts declare that there never were finer American Beauty roses than those now to be seen in the new houses of Bassett & Washburn at Hinsdale.

Albert Fuchs has gone to New York, and confided to his friends that he was shortly to wed a Miss Richter, of that city.

Prices on bulk bouquet green are noted on the street at 12 to 15 cents per pound.

Joseph Reeve will open a retail store at the corner of Fifty-fifth street and Washington avenue, on December 8.

Martin Foley, of the Great Northern Nursery Company, of Baraboo, Wis., has been here this week.

Mrs. Lawrence Kelley and child went to Galesburg, Ill., Wednesday for a visit.

E. R. Tauch has withdrawn from the Harms Park Floral Company.

A. L. Randall has been slightly under the weather this week.

C. W. Ward, of Queens, N. Y., is expected here shortly.

Other visitors: Fred. Breitmeyer, Mount Clemens, Mich.; George Hopp, of Hopp & Lempke, Grand Rapids; Fred. J. Foster, St. Louis; A. C. Brown, of Brown & Canfield, Springfield, Ill.

TRADE IS BRISK AND MUCH GOOD STOCK IS AVAILABLE.—RETAILERS ARE GETTING GOOD PRICES.—DOINGS OF THE STAR CARNATION GROWER.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

Stock is looking fine and nearly all flowers are selling at good prices. Roses are very plentiful, but good carnations are short of the demand. A few chrysanthemums are still seen and bring a fair price. Violets are coming in more regularly and from all reports a good crop will be on for Christmas. Some of the Brides and Bridesmaids that are seen on the market are of extra quality, the buds being very long, the stems strong and the foliage good. A few narcissi and lily of the valley are coming in.

J. W. Dunford has a very fine collection of new varieties of carnations from which he will retain the best for his next year's stock. He makes it a practice to invest every year in the new varieties to see how they do. This year he has only about 200 plants of Jubilee, compared with 1,200 last year, Crane taking its place, and next year he will drop Jubilee entirely. He is a great friend of Morning Glory and believes that it will surpass Day-break in every case. Wm. Scott is his principal variety and he gets it about as good as one could wish. His Bradts are also very good, having strong stems eighteen to twenty-four inches long. He does not believe in letting the plants bloom in the field but keeps the buds well pinched off, even after they are in the house for awhile, so that they start to bloom nicely the beginning of November and come in well for Christmas and New Years. He is very careful to send only perfect flowers to market and he bunches them in such a way so that every flower is visible when the bunch is held up.

Geo. Waldhart claims that prices are better than they have been for some years. His store is decorated very tastefully with palms and the ever present Boston fern, with a few chrysanthemums to give color.

Fred. C. Weber reports very good business. He has his store and one greenhouse filled with very fine palms and Boston ferns. He has done well with potted chrysanthemum plants.

C. C. Sanders has cut all of his chrysanthemums and so have several others, but a great many of the late varieties will be in for Christmas.

The Florists' Club will meet December 13, when several good papers will be read.

John M. Hudson has started a new store at 1212 Olive street. M.

BUSY SEASON IS AT HAND.—NOVEMBER BUSINESS AHEAD OF PREVIOUS YEARS.—WANTED: A COMMISSION HOUSE.—VARIOUS NOTES.

We are now in a season of unusual activity in the cut flower trade, for the month just passed has proved to be the best November in our history, with twenty-five per cent increase over the record of a year ago. Stock of good quality is in great demand and the many orders received daily from the provincial florists leads us to believe that a commission house in this city would be a paying investment. Dunlop's successful exhibition at the meeting of the American Rose Society, at New York last spring, is bringing many letters from commission houses of the larger cities in the United States soliciting consignments of select stock, but so many orders are booked ahead that all available stock is wanted in the Dominion and good prices are being paid for it.

Large numbers of chrysanthemums are being received and in good quality, which sell readily at $3 a dozen. Golden Wedding, Autumn Glory and Mrs. Jerome Jones are the leading varieties and make the store windows attractive. The prevailing dark weather has proved disastrous to Beauties and good stock is scarce and prices are away up. Teas are in good demand and sell at from $2 to $3 a dozen.

Grobba & Wandrey are sending in some very good cyclamens. This firm grows about 4,000 and supplies Toronto with specimen plants.

The F. R. Pierson Company, of Tarrytown, N. Y., has purchased chrysanthemum seedling No. 222, from George Hollis.

Mr. Nugent, of Young & Nugent, New York, is in the city. H. Y. D.

PROSPERITY ATTENDS THE GOOD GROWERS AND RETAILERS OF THIS PROGRESSIVE CITY.—SIGHTS TO PLEASE.

One seldom calls on the Van Bochove Brothers without being ushered into a new house, the latest addition consisting of a violet house 20x150, one of the best of the kind I have seen. This may account for the exceptionally fine violets which they ship to the wholesale market. A new coal house, a packing room apart from their retail department and the extension of the cross house, or shed, 100 feet have kept them quite busy building, this season. But the end is not yet, for two more houses will be built next spring. At present their plant consists of sixteen modern houses, or 55,000 feet of glass.

A stroll through the range shows a fine lot of Brides, Bridesmaids, Perles, Beauties and Meteors, the plants looking clean and healthy and the buds perfect. When one sees Meteor roses as I saw them here, of perfect color and form, with long and erect stems, the wish for "something better" vanishes.

Nor are they less successful with American Beauty, of which they grow one house. The only undesirable feature about their American Beauties is that the supply is not keeping up with the demand. "Ship all the Beauties you have," is what they continually hear from their wholesale customers, and "I want some Beauties," comes by telephone from the ladies in the fashionable part of the town. A second house will be given to Beauties next season.

Carnations, both standard and new sorts, do remarkably well, among fancies

Mrs. Bradt being in the lead. Nor have they missed it on chrysanthemums, Vivian-Morel, Bonnaffon, Robinson, Wanamaker and several others being in quality all that could be desired.

The Dunkley Floral Company recently gave a chrysanthemum show which was well attended. Their chrysanthemums are, indeed, worthy of being exhibited, those grown to the single stem comparing favorably in size with the average Jersey cabbage, while otherwise the blooms are perfect and the stems good. Their roses and carnations, on the whole, look remarkably well. Among other things, I noticed a fine batch of cyclamen plants, which promise to bloom in profusion about Christmas.

Mrs. Dunkley intends to force a lot of hybrids and Crimson Ramblers for Easter. Both she and the Van Bochove Bros. report a brisk business. NOMS.

THE next two weeks will be the harvest

THE opinion is gaining that growers own vicinity should be able to give the most accurate estimate.

WE cannot too strongly urge upon carnation growers the importance of clean sand in the cutting bench, selected cuttings and not too much manure in the soil at planting-in time. We thoroughly believe that proper attention to these points will largely do away with the stem-rot, which has been so disastrous this season.

PROF. B. T. GALLOWAY, whose address at the New York convention of the S. A.
F. contained some interesting floricultural statistics, estimates that not less than a million dollars' worth of violets are sold every year and that, were it not for the violet spot, the production would increase twenty per cent. He therefore figures that the spot represents an annual money loss of $200,000.

American Carnations in England.

Mrs. T. W. Lawson carnation received an award of merit from the Royal Horticultural Society of England recently.
Some criticism was made in regard to the color. The variety America received the same honor and was designated as of a salmon rose color.

Frogs in Mushroom Houses.

A writer in La Semaine Horticole states that being greatly troubled with insects and snails in a bed of mushrooms —so much so that he was unable to secure any perfect mushrooms—he introduced a few frogs into the house. The bed was quickly cleared of the pests and the experiment is regarded as a perfect success.

Chrysanthemum Society of American.

Following are the reports of the committees judging seedlings and sports:

CHICAGO, November 24.—Chestnut Hill, yellow, exhibited by John N. May, Summit, N. J., scored 88 points commercial scale.

The variety exhibited by John N. May at Philadelphia, November 17, under No.
112 has been named Zampa.

South Hadley Falls, Mass.—Joseph Beach, one house.

North Lisbon, N. H.—Wesley Gordon,

West Manchester, N. H.—F. S. Worthen,

To Pipe Greenhouses.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have 160 feet of 3-inch and 800 feet of 2-inch wrought iron pipe which I wish to use in piping two greenhouses 17x60 and 10x50, on the same level. The boiler is a No. 6 Scollay hot water heater and stands two feet below the level of the greenhouse floor. I wish to run all the pipes under the benches. How shall I connect the flow pipes with the coils, and the returns with the boiler? Where should the expansion tank be placed? Would it be better to have the returns discharge into the expansion tank and thence to the boiler or to connect them directly with the boiler? E. P.

If 60° is desired in the narrow house use a 3-inch flow and two 2-inch returns on each side. There will then remain sixty feet of 3-inch pipe which can be used as a flow pipe on one side of the other house, with four 2-inch returns. On the other side use six 2-inch pipes, either two or three of them flows and the others returns. The pipes may be run down hill, or the flows may be given a slight rise and the returns a fall of about one inch in ten feet. If the piping is arranged on the down hill method, the expansion tank should be connected with the highest part of the system and no air vents will be required. The expansion tank can be of heavy galvanized iron with a capacity of fifteen gallons, with a 1-inch pipe connecting the bottom of the tank with the system and an overflow pipe near the top to carry off surplus water.
L. R. TAFT.

The Mixing of Lime and Manure.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am sorry to have been misunderstood by Mr. Rudd, or anyone else, and wish to say that if they will carefully read my article regarding fertilizers they will find that I advise the composting of the bone and manure for a week or ten days and then, just before using, adding the lime and wood ashes, after application stirring it into the soil.
If the lime and ashes are mixed in with the compost just before using and the mixture, then applied at once and stirred into the soil there will be practically no loss of material and the action will be much quicker and more satisfactory. Of course if they are mixed in when the compost is started there will be a great loss of good material and I did not wish to be so understood.

Publications Received.

THE PROTECTION OF SHADE TREES IN TOWNS AND CITIES.—Bulletin No. 131, November, 1900, Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station.—
This Bulletin relates more especially to investigations undertaken in the city of New Haven and recommendations arising therefrom, but is most interesting and valuable and will apply equally well to the generally existing conditions of carelessness, neglect and wanton mischief which occur in nearly every city and town. A careful consideration is given to the causes of injury and remedies are suggested. In discussing injury from lack of nutriment the following odorless fertilizer is recommended, the quantity being sufficient for one acre:

50 lbs. nitrate soda,	$1.13
300 lbs. cotton seed meal,	4.05
100 lbs. acid phosphate,	.75
100 lbs. muriate of potash,	2.13

Total 550 lbs. costing $8.06

The mixture is to be made just before use and is to be sown broadcast upon the ground immediately under the tree branches. Applications of air slaked lime are also recommended in addition.
The mixture is also stated to be excellent for the grass as well as the trees. Spraying for the destruction of insects is discussed and formulas given.

The elm, sugar, Norway and red maples, the pin oak, the tulip tree and the sycamores are recommended for street planting while the silver maple is condemned.

An important recommendation is that, when possible, especially in laying out new streets, the trees be planted next the lot line, between it and the sidewalk, instead of near the curb, as is commonly done. This gives more feeding room for the roots, removes them further from the gas mains, makes them less liable to injury by horses and saves the cutting of roots when setting curbs.

The bulletin is well illustrated and will be of great value to all interested in the subject.

CRUDE PETROLEUM VERSUS THE SAN JOSE OR PERNICIOUS SCALE.—New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, Bulletin No. 146, November, 1900.—In this bulletin Dr. Smith discusses further successful experiments in spraying with crude oil. In conclusion the following remarks are made:

Extermination is impossible, but it is no more impossible to grow fruit in spite of the scale than to grow potatoes in spite of the potato beetle. I would far rather have a pear orchard infested by San Jose scale than one infested by the sennata borer***.

We believe Prof. Bailey is on record with similar statements.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE U. S. DEPART-MENT OF AGRICULTURE.—This report has, as usual, no reference to floral matters and gives no indication that any work of the department has been done in this direction.

The Profit of Chrysanthemum Shows.

The eleventh annual chrysanthemum show given by Breitmeyer's Sons at their flower store and conservatories in Detroit proved an event of unusual interest to the elite of that city. As usual Philip Breitmeyer, who had the affair in charge, proved equal to the occasion, the display surpassing all his previous efforts. The invitations, or announcements, sent out were gems of the printer's art, and for the benefit of those who may in some future season wish to emulate the Breit-meyer example in giving an individual chrysanthemum show, I will quote their "Foreword" in its entirety:

"This season, the eleventh in our series of flower shows, promises an unusual and interesting yield of chrysanthemums. We have completed arrangements with the most extensive growers in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Indianapolis and Michigan. We shall be supplied with the choicest flowers, and in order that both early and late blooms may be seen in full perfection, we have decided to extend our exhibition over a period of two weeks, beginning Wednesday, November 7.

"We propose to make this display the finest ever seen in Detroit, not only as to numbers, but in size and variety of blossoms. The days set apart for the various displays will be announced in the newspapers. We trust that the kindly interest and appreciation given to these exhibitions in the past will continue and that lovers of flowers will make frequent pilgrimages to our conservatories during this November carnival of chrysanthemums."

It need hardly be added that the show was well attended daily, rain or sunshine. "Do chrysanthemum shows pay?" I ventured to ask the genial Phil.

"Most decidedly," he announced promptly, adding after a moment's reflection, "providing one does the thing rightly and expects no immediate gains. In other words, in giving a show put forth your very best efforts and count with certainty upon cumulative results rather than upon immediate profits."

Mr. Breitmeyer has had experience, and therefore he knows whereof he speaks.

The Chicago Flower Show.

In spite of bad weather an average of 2,000 people for each of the five days attended the flower exhibition which recently occupied the corridors, first tier of boxes, main floor and stage of the Auditorium.

This was the tenth annual exhibition of this sort in Chicago, and it not only presented additional varieties as compared with those appearing on previous years but in general it marked the steady progress of that spirit of adventure in horticulture and that enhancement of skill which this series of displays has had so much to do in promoting.

While Chicago cannot compete in such shows with Boston, where they were begun during the last century, and where there is an endowed horticultural society and a special Horticultural Hall, public interest distinctly approves the efforts of amateurs and professionals in promoting these local events, and their influence is undoubtedly to be discerned not only in the gardens and greenhouses of the rich but at least to some extent and secondarily in the yards and windows of many common people.

The desire has often been expressed that such exhibitions might be held, on a smaller scale, in some of the poorer neighborhoods, as is done in foreign cities, for example in the People's Palace in East London, where considerable competition from the residents of the neighborhood is stimulated. The love of flowers is not so well developed among Americans as among the English people, where one will often see at the public market the wife of the wage-earner adding a "pennyworth" of flowers to her basket of family supplies. This national difference is also indicated by the lack in our cities of the window flower boxes found in the business districts and the gay front yards which grace the humbler quarters of British cities.

Every flower exhibition is calculated to stimulate such embellishments of city life, and it is certainly to be desired that there should be flower shows of a neighborhood character in the closely inhabited districts of our cities, and that those districts should be enlivened with far more of the color and cheer of horticulture than they now possess.—Chicago Tribune.

BRISK BUSINESS AT THANKSGIVING IN MARKED CONTRAST TO THE CONDITIONS PRECEDING.—CLUB DECIDES TO HOLD A FLOWER SHOW.

Thanksgiving trade was certainly the very best ever known here and the activity in retail circles contrasted strongly with the period of rather sluggish trade that preceded it. It marked the wind up of the chrysanthemum season, though some fairly good flowers are yet on the market but find rather slow sale. Violets were never so scarce before at this season and the demand was unprecedented. Beauties and other roses, as well as carnations, all sold well and good prices prevailed, though perhaps not much in advance of the prices realized a year ago, except on violets. All the carnations obtainable were cleaned out and there were some reports of a shortage in Beauties and other roses. If the violets needed could have been secured it would have been a truly satisfactory Thanksgiving business throughout.

The club meeting Wednesday evening was largely attended, which was the result of a call by the president to consider the subject of a flower show next November. Everyone present was in favor of the show and all were enthusiastic in their determination to make it a success. It will be advertised and known as a "flower show" and, although chrysanthemums will predominate and will furnish the showy splendor, all other flowers obtainable in that month will be shown, and premiums offered to cover the same, as well as worthy specimens of palms, ferns and other decorative plants. The exhibits for competition will be confined to members of the club, but non-competitive displays by other growers will be accepted and properly provided for. A committee is already appointed and will meet next Tuesday evening to prepare a preliminary premium list.

The subject of credits between wholesaler and retailer and between the retailer and his customers was freely discussed with much interest, after which four more candidates were received into the club, which brings the membership up to seventy-eight.

Visitors: Ed. Fetters, Cleveland; J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati. J. F. S.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

L. A. BUDLONG and Joe Budlong are on their annual duck hunting trip in Texas.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Increasing business has caused the removal of Ross Bros. to better and more commodious quarters at 90-92 Front street.

W. H. METSON, the California seed grower, passed through Chicago December 1, on a flying trip to Washington, Philadelphia and New York. Mrs. Metson accompanied him.

THE nasturtium seed crop in Germany has turned out very badly. With less than half a crop in California and a very poor one in France we can look for much higher prices than ruled the last two or three years.

SEDALIA, Mo.—L. H. Archias, of Archias Seed Store, is adding 200 new seed drawers, also more shelving and counters and is preparing for a large spring trade. T. S. McNaull, representing Rush Park Seed Co., of Independence, Ia., was in the city last week.

PARIS, November 7.—We are just now favored with perfect weather. The question is often asked how the biennials for seed purposes bear themselves at the present date and what are the prospects for next season. It is of course too early to give any points to the seedsmen in that regard. The drought which we experienced last summer prevented most of the growers from sowing their seeds at the right time. They had to await some rain, which came very late, before they could entrust the seeds to the soil. The plants are consequently weak and require four or five weeks more of the present weather to pass the winter well. But the astronomers threaten us with colder weather and should some hard frosts set in soon, the prospects for next season would not be brilliant. The stocks of most articles will have run out before the end of the present season and another general short crop will bring up the prices to a level which has been unknown for many years. PARISIAN.

California Notes.

I have recently learned that in making shipments to eastern dealers, Fred. Rafferty, of Santa Ana, lost a large consignment of calla bulbs in a railroad wreck, and C. A. Braze & Co., of Wilmington, had at about the same time a quantity of freesia bulbs burned in a wreck. Both firms had to hustle to refill their orders as the demand for these bulbs consumed the entire crop in this vicinity.

Usually several hundred pounds of Grevillea robusta seed is gathered each season in Southern California and sold to eastern dealers. This year the crop is an entire failure and all orders for same had to be refused.

Charles A. Braze, of Wilmington, the well-known bulb grower, was married recently. D. R. W.

Omaha.

BUSINESS AFFORDS FLORISTS A CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING.—BEST TRADE IN YEARS.—VARIOUS JOTTINGS OF THE PERIOD.

The Thanksgiving trade exceeded that of any previous year and all the florists of Omaha were duly thankful. Chrysanthemums retailed at $6 a dozen for the best and American Beauties commanded the same price. Good roses brought $1.50 and carnations 75 cents to $1. Hyacinths sold for 60 cents and narcissi and lily of the valley $1.

Hess & Swoboda had a wedding decoration Thanksgiving eve which was one of the finest ever put up here. American Beauties and white chrysanthemums were used, together with 200 strings of smilax and a great deal of asparagus.

Louis Henderson had a fine crop of roses on for Thanksgiving and S. R.

Faulkner had a good supply, particularly of La France, which he grows to perfection.

A. Donaghue and S. B. Stewart have been making handsome window showings, the former with decorative plants and bulbous stock and the latter with Beauties.

Paul Floth reports that he sold out his chrysanthemum crop at Thanksgiving at satisfactory prices.

Peterson has had the best pot grown chrysanthemums shown here this season. GRIPPE.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

CANADA'S open door to nursery stock from the United States will close next Saturday, to remain securely locked until spring.

AMERICAN fruit has risen greatly in favor in European markets by reason of the excellence of the showing made at the Paris Exposition.

An important feature of the forthcoming report of Prof. F. A. Waugh, horticulturist at the Vermont Experiment Station, is a detailed statement of the author's experiments in the propagation of plums.

BARABOO, WIS.—In the trial of the recent case of J. G. Stein against Charles Hirschinger, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the latter. Some years ago Stein purchased 500 apple trees supposed to be Duchess of Oldenburg and claimed that all but 100 proved to be inferior kinds. Expert witnesses testified that the trees said to be inferior were the Milwaukee, a better variety than the Duchess in this section. Stein sued for $1,000 damages.

Nursery Irrigation in California.

The Chase Nursery Company has a tract of 1500 acres at Ethanac, Cal., almost all of which is under cultivation at the present time. Alfalfa is grown extensively, and the green fields stretch away in the distance in beautiful contrast to the dry country around. Five wells furnish the tract with water and another one is being dug to still further increase the bountiful supply. The two largest wells are located near the Santa Fe tracks and it is exceedingly refreshing after a ride over the hot, dusty plains of the Perris valley, to see 250 inches of clear, cold water running over the casing and into the ditches which lead to the surrounding fields. These two wells are 130 and 200 feet deep, respectively, and from the largest of them there is a flow of 170 inches of water. The five wells have a capacity of about 600 inches of water. The water rises to within forty-five feet of the top, from which point it is pumped by a 350-horse-power Hamilton-Corliss engine. The electrical machinery and boilers which form the pumping plant are very elaborate. They were installed by Moore & Co., of San Francisco. For fuel, oil is used, a tank having a capacity of 50,000 gallons being in close proximity to the engine-house. The Chase Nursery Company owns its own oil well in Los Angeles, from which all of its fuel comes. It is estimated that the engine consumes a quart of oil every forty seconds.

Saginaw, Mich.

BUSINESS GOOD WITH ALL THE GROWERS AND STOREKEEPERS.—VISITS TO A NUMBER OF PROSPEROUS ESTABLISHMENTS.—MANY THINGS OF INTEREST.—JOTTINGS OF SPORTSMEN.

Notwithstanding unfavorable weather, business continues good all along the line, there being a brisk demand for cut flowers, single-stemmed chrysanthemums selling readily at $2.50 and $3 per dozen, while funeral work and decorations of one sort or another have kept the florists quite busy of late.

At the William Roethke establishment things are in "apple pie" order. Their chrysanthemums presented a sight worth seeing, both quality and quantity surpassing their own expectations. It was likewise interesting to go through their rose and carnation houses, both showing up finely and promising large yields for the period just before Christmas. I regret having missed Chas. Roethke. The genial Charlie is one of those young men who combine the good qualities of grower and sportsmen. Having put things in the best of condition, leaving the place in charge of Otto, his younger brother, himself a young man of sterling qualities, Charlie, accompanied by Joseph M. Fordney, congressman of this district, is now sojourning somewhere in the woods in the northern part of Michigan, enjoying the good shooting.

J. B. Goetz is never satisfied unless things about his establishment are in the best possible order. "Let well enough alone" does not hold good with him. His place underwent considerable overhauling during the past summer, the result being a model establishment throughout. Mr. Goetz, among other things done well on his place, grows fine American Beauties. This rose is becoming more and more popular with his trade and since his customers are willing to "foot the bills" Mr. Goetz is equally willing to grow and supply the Beauties. His third year scarlet seedling carnation, mention of which has already been made in these columns, is showing up well. Mr. Goetz, however, is not quite ready to put it on the market. It will be shown at Baltimore in February.

Chas. Frueh & Son have a house of poinsettias, about 3,000 in number, which it would be difficult to duplicate. They are just beginning to color up and by the time they are shipped to Chicago, for they have sold the entire crop to a Chicago wholesaler, they will certainly present a "study in red." Chrysanthemums, roses and carnations have never looked finer, which is saying considerable, considering the fact that the Fruehs invariably "do them up to a turn." What attracts especial attention among the carnations are two seedlings, a bright scarlet and a beautiful delicate pink. After a couple of years more trial they may be heard from.

Charles Frueh, Sr., has recently returned from a week's hunting trip, two immense bucks accompanying the nimrod. There is plenty of venison now to go the rounds in the neighborhood of Hoyt street. Like a true sportsman, Mr. Frueh delights in sharing the spoils of his gun with his neighbors.

Henry Goetz is now with Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, and is well pleased with his new surroundings. NOMIS.

WELLINGTON, O.—T. G. Yale enlarged his place considerably last summer and now grows everything from lettuce to chrysanthemums, finding a good sale for each item.

ATLANTA, GA.—The Nunnally Company, 34 Whitehall street, has deepened its candy and soda water store, adding a conservatory in the rear, which is well stocked with plants.

At New York.

Monday night, December 3, at the alleys on Eighth street, saw the largest crowd of the season in attendance. There were bald heads in abundance and conditions favored a rollicking good time in every way. The customary noise was not lacking and there were many little episodes full of humor that will doubtless bring frequent reminiscent chuckles to the participants as they attend to the more serious business of life in succeeding days. The Flatbush team came over to try conclusions with the New Yorkers and went back well thrashed in three successive games, but with a determination to turn the tables on their opponents when the latter visit the Flatbush alleys in return, as is planned for Thursday of next week. Following are the scores:

NEW YORK.

At Flatbush.

"What has bowling to do with horticulture?" This question, sometimes asked by well-meaning but illiberal critics, is answered at Flatbush every Thursday evening in a manner pleasantly convincing to any but a man of unreasonably contracted sentiments. The daily life of a florist is one of drudgery and worry that only his innate love for his profession makes tolerable; holidays and Sundays, as such are understood by the majority of his fellowmen, are not for him. Doubly welcome, then, is he to the recreation of an occasional evening at the bowling alley, and it is to his credit that he prefers to share these hours of relaxation with his fellow florists rather than with promiscuous associates. Meeting thus, friendships are made where otherwise jealousies would prevail, and the bowling alley often serves as a medium for interchange of views and valuable experiences which could never be brought out in the formality and reserve of the lecture hall or club room. Many of our brightest and most successful floriculturists find interest and pleasure in the innocent frolics of the bowling alley, and so long as that remains true we shall continue to devote a little space to the record of their sports.

Thanksgiving evening is always a great event with the Flatbush fraternity. It is essentially a members' night, too, it being an inconvenient time for visitors to come. Instead of the customary "pot" of dimes, turkeys are provided as premiums for the successful bowlers. On this occasion there were four of these birds, three being contributed by the club and one presented by J. P. Cleary. The latter, won by D. Y. Mellis, was a twenty-pounder. The other three were captured by A. Zeller, P. Riley and John I. Raynor. The figures for the evening as recorded in the scorer's book were as follows:

Player	1st	2d	3d
Wocker	98	128	110
E. Dailedouze	158	146	119
Raynor	131	151	150

TRADE WAS BRISK FOR THANKSGIVING.—SOCIAL FUNCTIONS NOW IN ORDER.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The Thanksgiving retail trade was exceedingly good this year, everybody having plenty to do. The supply was plentiful and stock was in good condition, although a few of the growers cut their roses very close. Violets are fine and in fair demand, bringing $1.50 to $2 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are holding up very well. Carnations were not over plentiful but were in fair demand. With the convening of Congress and some teas and receptions trade has boomed up and everybody is busy.

J. H. Small & Sons furnished the bulk of the flowers for the Carlisle reception, which was a grand affair.

Minder Bros. are still cutting a number of very fine chrysanthemums and violets.

A. Gude & Bro. are cutting a quantity of fine roses, especially American Beauty and La France.

Litzinger & Wade dispose of quite a number of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and small ericas. P. G.

JOTTINGS OF THE DOINGS OF THE GROWERS.—MURCHIE IS WELL AGAIN.—MANY IMPROVEMENTS NOTED—GOOD SEEDLINGS IN EVIDENCE.

John Murchie, who was taken seriously ill on September 19, is out and about, once again in his native element, that is, among his carnations. The stock never looked better, the general complaint about Mrs. Bradt having short or weak stems having no foundation as one sees it here. The Marquis, Ethel Crocker and Genevieve Lord are coming on in fine shape, promising good crops for Christmas trade. Mr. Murchie has three white seedlings in their second year, two of which may well rank with the best. It is his intention to send one or both to Baltimore in February. Since my last visit Mr. Murchie has added a propagating house to his range.

M. I. O'Brien has built an additional house during the past summer, 20x110. He has also replaced his old boiler with one of a better grade and greater capacity and gave his entire place a thorough overhauling, which likely accounts for those exceptionally fine roses and carnations grown on his place this season. Mr. O'Brien is well satisfied with both his wholesale and retail business.

E. McConnell & Son have not only overhauled their entire place, but have added a carnation house 35x100. All the sorts of recent introduction, such as Lawson, Marquis, Ethel Crocker, Genevieve Lord, Mrs. Bertram Lippincott and others, are grown successfully here, while a few seedlings of their own look equally fine and meritorious. Among these is one which is especially fine, a blush white unlike anything grown at present. It certainly has a field all to itself and, having grown it for the past three years successfully, it is Mr. McConnell's intention to put it on the market this season. NOMIS.

Albany, N. Y.

TRADE AT THANKSGIVING HEAVIER THAN IN PREVIOUS YEARS—EYRES BUYS A NEW ESTABLISHMENT.—OTHER NOTES.

Thanksgiving trade in Albany was very good. Some dealers estimate that it was fifteen per cent better than that of a year ago and others place the estimate as high as twenty-five per cent. There was a great demand for violets, which cleaned out the local supply in short order. The price went up to $3 and even $4 per hundred. The season for chrysanthemums has practically closed.

H. G. Eyres, an enterprising florist on North Pearl street, has purchased the greenhouses and property formerly owned by William Davidson, at the corner of South Knox and Morris streets. There are five greenhouses on the lot and these will be added to in the spring, as Mr. Eyres contemplates making additions for the purpose of raising decorative plants.

F. A. Danker, florist on Maiden Lane, has added a storeroom and shipping department 30x35 feet to his attractive store.

George T. King, of Hyde Park, Mass., called upon several of the local florists a day or two ago. R. D.

Sidney, O.

Ben. P. Wagner has laid out a park of twenty acres which promises to speedily become one of the finest residence portions of the city. Nine fine dwellings have already been erected and two more are under way. One of the features of the place is a greenhouse establishment which has been placed in charge of August Fischer, who has been in business for himself at Quincy, Ill. The Wagner greenhouses are three in number. The front building is a palm house 20x80 feet. At its rear, running east and west, are the two other houses, one 22x75 feet for carnations and one 26x75 for roses. There is in addition a propagating house, a neat office building and a boiler shed.

Choicest Stock, LOWEST PRICES.

TRADE GOOD FOR THANKSGIVING.—CHRYS- ANTHEMUMS ARE GONE.—CARNATIONS NOW IN DEMAND.—A SHORTAGE AT MURPHYVILLE.—NOTES.

A good business makes all the florists happy. Frank Ball, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Co., states that never before has he handled as much business for Thanksgiving as he did the past week, and this seems to be the universal statement from all the florists. Chrysanthemums are pretty well cleaned up by this time and the demand now seems to be for fancy carnations. And how the boys do hustle to get their orders placed in the wholesale house for Enquirer. One store man has placed an order for 100 blooms three times a week at $8 per hundred. Not so bad for this time of the year.

What's the matter with Murphyville? In past years by this time they were sending in from 10,000 to 15,000 carnations a week, but now it seems about 6,000 is all they can gather.

Walter Gray is cutting a fine lot of Brides and Bridesmaids. His roses are in full crop and Walter wants to know "where he'll be at" about Christmas time.

Al. Bruner is able to be about again, after being laid up for ten weeks, the result of a street car accident.

E. G. Gillette says he is well satisfied with business so far this season. D.

LOWELL, MASS.—On the night of November 30, police officers discovered and extinguished an incipient conflagration in the greenhouses of Harvey Greene, thereby preventing a heavy loss.

KENNETT SQUARE, PA.—Wm. Swayne's office building was destroyed by fire on the night of November 27 and there was some loss on stock. The blaze originated in the loft over the office, in some excellent stored there.

THANKSGIVING TRADE PROVES RATHER BETTER THAN USUAL—BEAUTIES AND VIOLETS UP IN PRICE—CLUB TAKES STEPS TOWARD CONVENTION WORK.

From all reports Thanksgiving trade was good, rather better than last year. Stock was about equal to demands, chrysanthemums benefitting largely from the increased business. There were enough roses so that there was no increase in prices except on Beauties, the quotations on which took a sudden upward shoot. Violets were scarce and high, $4 per hundred being the retail price. There was no surplus of carnations but bulbous stock and other items were in good supply. Chrysanthemums are nearly at an end now. It is noticeable that there has been less than the usual sale for pot grown chrysanthemum plants.

A dozen blooms of Timothy Eaton were sent here last week for exhibition and it is a great flower but not what one could call a fine one. While it is large it is somewhat coarse and if grown a little smaller would be more salable. Golden Wedding or Lincoln, both yellow, or Maud Dean would sell, I think, in preference to it.

At a recent meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club several steps were taken to forward the work of preparation for the S. A. F. convention in August. C. H. Keitsch was appointed to superintend the exhibition.

Scott has a house of poinsettias which are a sight. Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is also very fine with him.

A. N. Broadhead, of the Lakeview Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., was a recent visitor. W. A.

WARREN, O.—Frank H. Adgate has taken a half interest in the greenhouse establishment of J. H. Adgate.

THORNTON, O — Frank Therkildson, manager of Mrs. E. Miller's greenhouses, is highly pleased with the Liberty rose as it is now showing with him.

THE Gardeners' Chronicle.

A Weekly Illustrated Journal.

ESTABLISHED 1841.

The GARDENERS' CHRONICLE has been FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS THE LEADING JOURNAL of its class. It has achieved this position because, while specially devoting itself to supplying the daily requirements of gardeners of all classes, much of the information furnished is of such general and permanent value, that the GARDENERS' CHRONICLE is looked up to as the STANDARD AUTHORITY on the subjects of which it treats.

VARIOUS SUCCESSSES OF THE BOYS FROM PHILADELPHIA.—GOOD STOCK AND GOOD TRADE.—HIPPARD IS HAPPY.

Walker & McLean report "plenty to do." Funeral work and weddings have kept them more than ordinarily busy, while cut flowers have sold unusually well all through the season. They hit it on chrysanthemums for their stock was excellent and the prices realized were by no means of the "bargain counter order;" $2.50 and $3 per dozen was readily paid for choice stock. Another noteworthy success is that which they have achieved with Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. Those who have seen the plants at Craigs' can easily form an idea of what Mr. Walker's Youngstown "Gloires" look like. That they will sell goes without saying. Early Romans, like the early strawberry, are sure to attract attention and what is equally certain, the best prices are realized for choice, early bulbous stock. Early in November, the first Romans, about fourteen inches in length, made their appearance at Walker & McLean's and sold at sight. A fine new delivery wagon has just been put on the street.

E. Hippard feels happy. In the first place, he rejoices over the re-election of his friend from Canton and, in the second place, he has had a good season, shipping lots of ventilators. His new machine shop on Phelps street is a model of neatness and convenience. Judging by the number of inquiries there will be many additional houses built during the coming spring. NOMIS.

CARNATIONS.

STEM-ROT, ITS CAUSES AND REMEDIES.

Stem-rot seems to be almost universal in some sections of the country this season. Indeed it is so prevalent that some growers think the carnation is threatened with extinction unless there is a remedy forthcoming. This might be a good time to make a few notes in plain writing on good cardboard and nail them up in one of the carnation houses for reference next season.

In the first place recall the day the cuttings were taken out. Was there any sign of fungus about them when potted up? I can trace a number of cases of stem-rot this season right to the cutting bed of last spring. While this may not always hold good, in seeking for information, causes and prevention, it will be well to do a little tracing on your own account. Possibly one particular batch of cuttings may have been affected with fungus. If so you will be likely to find that particular batch of plants affected with stem-rot.

We can therefore write on our card: "Do not use any cutting that has been within three inches of a spot of fungus in the cutting bench." Where the cuttings are boxed or planted into beds instead of potting, even greater care should be used, as one cutting may affect the whole box, perhaps not noticeably, but enough to start a nice case of stem-rot.

Carelessness in planting and field culture in some instances will develop the disease, and especially so during a wet season. Planting too deeply and throwing dirt among the lower leaves in cultivating are about the only things to be avoided at this stage of their culture. Planting on a slightly elevated ridge is a good preventative for field stem-rot, but is not so good for their general growth, with such dry seasons as we have had the past few years.

Carelessness in planting in the houses is quite often a cause of stem-rot. Several such cases came under my notice this season. In one case the roots were sticking out at the top and the lower branches of the plants were all embedded in the soil. In another case the roots were all right but the branches were down in the soil. This state of affairs is much more common than most of us would suppose. It is a direct invitation to stem-rot and one almost invariably accepted. Put it down on your card that every planter must get the roots down into the soil and the tops up, with at least half an inch of stem between the top of the soil and the lower branches of the plant.

After having good cuttings and planting them properly, both outdoors and inside, a very bad case of stem-rot can be developed by improper watering, too close an atmosphere, or even by an undue proportion of humus in the soil. A very prominent grower told me that one of his men believed in lots of water and little air for freshly planted carnations and before he knew it the soil was in such a condition that stem-rot became almost an epidemic.

In looking for remedies we have much to learn. Where trouble arises from the cutting bench fungus, a liberal application of air-slaked lime around the base of the plants is sometimes a check to the trouble. Possibly some grower may have a more effective fungicide, but not to my knowledge.

Where the trouble comes from careless planting in the houses there is nothing to do but to take the plants out and replace them properly. Where it comes from an improper condition of the soil, and no doubt much of it does come from this cause, the prompt application of air-slaked lime to the soil will usually check the trouble and put the soil back into normal condition.

Perhaps the mechanical condition of my soil is not conducive to stem-rot; at least I have been fortunate enough to escape it excepting when I would occasionally get hold of a batch of cuttings that had fungus among them.

Whether we have it or not, it seems to be a growing evil, and it will pay every grower to keep his eyes wide open for facts. At the meeting of the American Carnation Society in Baltimore, February 21 and 22, a portion of the time will be devoted to this subject and with all parts of the country represented there will no doubt be much valuable information brought out. ALBERT M. HERR.

DISEASED CARNATIONS.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We send you by express to-day a carnation plant infected by a disease that is new to us. It first appears as small spots on the leaves, which soon shrivel, and the disease spreads from plant to plant quite rapidly. It made its appearance in a new house, 35x150 feet, built last summer. We have run the house at a night temperature of 48° to 50° and there have been but few nights when we have not had some air on. We have not seen any red spider or thrip in the house and the plant we send is a fair average of the stock. Can you inform us about the disease and give a cure or a remedy to prevent its spreading? The plants were grown in the field during the summer and were planted in the house about the first of September.

W. S.

The plant is apparently suffering with a bad attack of spot. Like all fungous diseases, and insect diseases, too, for that matter, this is greatly favored by any conditions which produce a weakened condition of the plants. Judging from the looks of the one plant shown it would seem that the bench has been so closely planted that a crowded condition has occurred, shutting out the air from the lower shoots and encouraging a soft growth. This plant has been set, apparently, much deeper in the bench than we think best or else a heavy mulch has been applied. From the looks of some of the shoots it is quite likely that the soil has been more or less soured by too much manure.

I would suggest that the plants be thinned by cutting away weak and diseased growth and loosened to admit as much air among the shoots as possible. That the mulch, if any, be removed and the whole bench be whitened with air slaked lime, to be well washed into the soil. The resulting crust on the soil, when dried, must be well broken up. A second and even a third application may be necessary. Run the plants a little dry. Discontinue all syringing and all feeding. If red spider appears use Prof. Serrine's Ivory soap spray. If a decided improvement does not appear in two or three weeks the writer would not hesitate to throw the plants out and replace with any other convenient crop. W. N. R.

STEM-ROT IN CARNATIONS.

The Agricultural Experiment Station at Kingston, R. I., has been continuing the experiments in this matter, a report of which appeared last year. The main purpose of the present year's work was to ascertain whether the use of stable manure encouraged the spread of the disease. The results of this season's work do not change the conclusions drawn from the work of last year.

New, clean sand should be used, and soil in which carnations have previously been grown should not be used. There is nothing to indicate that the use of stable manure favors the spread of the disease.

Rochford's System of Retarding Plants.

That well known grower, Thomas Rochford, of Hoddesdon, Eng., has recently adopted a system of retarding plants, bulbs, etc., at his establishment, particulars of which are taken from a recent issue of the Gardeners' Chronicle, as follows:

"Mr. Rochford first commenced independent trials in connection with the retarding of lilies by means of cold air, some five or six years ago, and used a small, non-conductive chamber fed with cold air from an oil engine. The results obtained from this small beginning must have been very satisfactory, for they were sufficiently convincing to lead Mr. Rochford to sink a large amount of capital in the erection last year of the immense chambers now in use, and of a large engine and boilers. There is so much forcing of lilies carried out annually at the Turnford Hall nurseries, that Mr. Rochford had not to rely upon the experiences of others, even of those who may have bought retarded crowns from himself. Under his directions the crowns were purchased from the continent, placed in the conditions afforded by the small cold chamber, removed from the chamber into a temperature in which they could develop flowers, and were eventually sold by him in the market. And the experience that has been already obtained from the new and larger chambers is as satisfactory as it could be expected, after proceeding upon so thoroughly careful lines as did Mr. Rochford. All these details in experience that have been gained are useful to prove the safety of the system, and the certainty with which good results may be looked for from its practice.

"Before inspecting the chambers themselves, we were shown the two large marine tubular boilers by which the engine is worked, and the engine itself. The production of cold air is done by applying a well known scientific principle, that of compression. All that is needed to reduce the air to a state of coldness is to compress it, and the more it is compressed the colder it becomes. Mr. Rochford's plant reduces the air to a temperature of 90° below freezing point, and when it leaves the engine, it has a pressure of fifty pounds to the square inch. This is conducted into the cold chambers, and means are taken to get it to thoroughly circulate through them. If a plug be removed from the conducting pipe between the engine and the chambers, the compressed air is belched out in vapor just as steam would be. We held our hands over this for a brief moment and it numbed them; but imagine one's self in a temperature of 90° below freezing point!

"As we entered one of the four chambers, and one still containing a large number of dormant crowns of lily of the valley, bulbs of several species of liliium, also seakale, spiræas, plants of Azalea mollis, lilacs, etc., all of them still in the dormant state that commenced last winter, the hands and feet became cold, and the film of ice that covered the walls, the hardened state of the material packed around the resting plants, every condition we noticed, reminded us of vegetation out of doors during a spell of hard frost. Yet there is a very great difference, and one that may exist for a long time, though eventually, we doubt not, it will be overcome—and it is the difference between light and darkness.

"At present cold chambers are necessarily dark, because the roof must be made as non-conductive as the walls, or it would be impossible to maintain the degree of cold required when the sun is hot in June. And this darkness is a total absence of light, or as Mr. Rochford's manager expressed it, 'a darkness one can feel.' This fact at present prevents the retarding system from being applied to plants that hold their leaves through the winter. Total deprivation of light can only be endured for a long season by plants that have no leaves at the time, and by bulbs and tubers. If it were otherwise, then there would most likely be the certainty of a supply of ripe strawberries on every day in the year, just as lilies of the valley may be obtained every morning without a break; and notwithstanding what we have already written, we shall be surprised if means are not found to apply the system in a modified degree to strawberry plants, if only to retard them fruiting for a fortnight or a month later than the latest varieties out of doors.

Having said something of the conditions of the cold chambers at the present time, and the method by which they are maintained cold, it should be mentioned that they are built entirely above ground, and that the walls are constructed in a manner similar to that adopted in cases of first-class fruit rooms, in order to render them as non-conductive of heat or cold as possible. They contain a vertical layer of sawdust, and one of still air. In the chambers themselves there is a cubic space of sixty-five thousand feet, and as resting plants may be stacked from floor to ceiling, a very large quantity indeed can be thus housed. Lily crowns are not put into the chambers in baskets as they are received from the continent, but in flat boxes and other receptacles, so that their heads are exposed, except for the cocoanut fiber around them, which barely covers them. If put away stacked in baskets, it would probably be found that the cold air being unable to circulate freely through such a mass, some of them would make attempts to grow, which, though unsuccessful, would lessen their value very considerably. Lily bulbs, azalea plants and lilacs are also bedded, so to speak, in cocoanut fiber.

"In connection with the subsequent cultivation of these retarded plants, it is necessary to point out that they require to be afforded very little warmth. After prolonged subjection to so cold a temperature, they appear to be more easily excited into growth, being actually impatient to commence, and no greater mistake could be made than to put them immediately into a strong heat. A temperature of 45° to 50° is amply sufficient.

"It may be interesting to give a few particulars in respect to the time required from the moment the plants are taken from the refrigerator, until they are in full bloom, which we are permitted to extract from a memorandum book at Mr. Rochford's nursery. Treated as coolly as possible, lily of the valley crowns have bloomed and are thrown to the rubbish heap in three weeks. Lilium speciosum (lancifolium), L. longiflorum, and L. auratum require from ten to twelve weeks; Azalea mollis, three to four weeks; and various spiræas about five weeks.

"Although it has been stated that the temperature of the air as it leaves the engine is about 90° below freezing point, it is severely modified in the chambers, where the degree of cold is nothing approaching to this. The temperature is regulated according to the experience that has been gained, but it may probably be found that there is more to learn in this particular, and continued trials will be made until the exact degree of cold needed by each plant has been determined. Then will be saved any waste of force in the manufacture of more cold than is necessary.

"Beyond the plants we have mentioned, no other species has been subjected by Mr. Rochford to this retarding process, but it would be very easy to name others that would be as amenable to the system as these. It should be remembered, however, that from the commercial point of view, it is not expedient to afford valuable space in these refrigerators to plants that it is known might be successfully retarded thereby, unless there is reason to believe also that it would pay to delay their flowering season."

A Carpet Bedding Advertisement.

A florist of New York City, Wm. Nilsson, of Woodlawn, has hit upon a good plan of attracting attention to his establishment, by means of carpet bedding designs. The place is close to the fashionable Woodlawn Cemetery, and, as will be seen from the accompanying illustration, the railroad tracks run alongside the lawn. About 200 passenger trains pass this point daily, and the designs, which have been a feature of the place for several years, have become an annual source of interest during the summer months to the numerous travelers who see them frequently.

The most attractive feature is a clock which keeps accurate time. This bed is twelve feet in diameter with a border of Echeveria secunda (light green). E. secunda glauca (white) is used in center, with Alternanthera paronychioides (red) for the figures. The hands are of wood painted red, and connected with machinery—in the building thirty feet in the rear—which moves them correctly. This machinery was furnished by the Seth Thomas Clock Company, of Thomaston, Conn., at a cost of $300, and Mr. Nilsson says it has repeatedly paid for itself in advertising.

The train shown in the illustration is on a slope two feet high, five and one-half feet wide and sixty-five feet long. The engine and cars are composed of Echeveria secunda glauca, with E. secunda and Alternanthera paronychioides for the windows. The flag in front is twenty-four feet long by sixteen feet wide. The stars are of Echeveria secunda glauca on a ground of pine cones painted blue. Six of the stripes are of the same echeveria and seven of Alternanthera paronychioides.

Mr. Nilsson retains interest in his bedding designs by showing something new and popular every season, the clock and the train being reproduced each year. In 1897, for instance, he had a design of the steamship St. Louis; in 1898 the battleship Maine; and in 1899 a rough rider on horseback and the yacht race cup. Our illustration shows the designs of the present year.

Experiences of Wholesale Rose Growing.

[Read before the Chicago Florists' Club by George Collins, foreman for Peter Reinberg.]

I was requested to write particularly about American Beauties grown in center benches only. Last year we planted a range of twelve houses in Beauties. The roses did well up to the end of November, and by that time the plants had grown up to the glass on the south side and also on the north side, and we had to spend considerable time in keeping them tied away from the glass. When we syringed the plants, owing to the amount of foliage on them, the plants would not dry at night and then our troubles began. It was hard to keep away the black spot, so I thought it would be best to plant the center benches only, and I am well satisfied with the experiment. At the present time our plants are good and will have a heavy crop of flowers for the holidays.

In the two ranges that were built this year with the Garland gutter we have four benches in each house, and have planted the north and south benches with Brides and Bridesmaids, with Beauties in the two center benches. At the present time they are very good but we shall be able to tell later if the shade caused by the Beauties makes much difference to the north bench. In the summer I had the Beauties carefully watered, great care being taken not to water the soil between the rows. After they had been planted about one month we put on a mulch of well rotted manure which I think was an excellent plan to protect the soil from the sun. We have given them one top dressing of bone meal since then. Our plants are in excellent health and are producing lots of fine flowers with bright prospects for the future. After the holidays we shall give them some manure water.

Under what conditions can roses be grown with profit more than one year? The Brides and Bridesmaids can be grown the second year in the same soil. About the first of July we commence to withhold water, only syringing the plants every day. We continue this treatment for about six weeks; then we prune the tops and take out all the poor wood in the bottom and scrape off some of the soil, as much as possible, from the surface and then put on a top dressing of manure and soil mixed. After that we bend them all down and syringe twice a day. After the eyes commence to break the soil can be more freely watered till thoroughly soaked through.

We have some Golden Gates which we kept growing all the summer. This is a grand rose, it is so prolific. It must be shaded in summer, as it cannot endure the hot sun; the petals will burn. The two year-old roses are greatly benefited by manure watering every two weeks during the winter.

Cosmos Under Glass.

A few plants of cosmos were grown during the past season at the Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, N. Y., both in pots and in the garden. The latter were killed to the ground by the frost of October 2, before any buds opened. The seeds were sown under glass March 8, in small seed boxes and pricked into 2-inch pots March 28. As the pots became filled with roots the plants were shifted into 4, 6, 8 and finally into 12-inch pots. The plants intended for the garden were planted from 6-inch pots but those intended for forcing received the last shift into 12-inch pots, June 20. The soil used was three parts rotted sod to one part sand, no fertilizer being applied until the buds began to show, after which several applications of liquid manure were given. To make strong, bushy plants, all branches were kept cut back until the final shift was given. Early in June the pots were plunged into coal ashes in a cold frame, remaining there until September 10, at which time they were brought into the greenhouse.

A record was kept of the number of ter, with stems three to five inches long; the pink and the white averaged three inches in diameter, many measuring three and one-half inches across, with stems four to eight inches long. On November 14, as the space was required for other plants, all buds were counted. The following table gives the results of blooming:

Variety.	First bloom	Blooms to Nov. 14	Buds Nov. 14	Total
Giant Fancy Pink	Oct. 10	660	171	831
Giant Fancy Red	Oct. 10	696	77	773
Giant Fancy White	Oct. 10	889	101	990

One objection to the plants is the space required. Nearly every specimen measured five feet by four feet. Yet in quantity of bloom and purity of color they are equaled by but few plants, and were it not for the chrysanthemums in bloom at this season they would find a ready sale at good prices. O. M. TAYLOR.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

The accompanying illustrations of a house and single plant of this beautiful winter flowering begonia are from photographs taken at the establishment of Robert Craig & Son, Forty-ninth and Market streets, Philadelphia. The Messrs. Craig have been very successful with this plant, while with many growers it does not seem to do well. Here it is grown in almost full sunlight, with plenty of air. It is kept rather on the dry side and early in its growth is pinched back to get compact and bushy specimens. It is propagated by branch and leaf cuttings. Mr.

closely together. If grown compact and stocky with branches and leaves that hold up well, it will last in the dwelling for a long time if given ordinary care. K.

MARKET RATHER UNCERTAIN AND BEST GRADES THE ONLY SURE SELLER.—BEAUTIES AND VIOLETS SCARCE.—CHANCES OF SHORTAGE OF STOCK FOR CHRISTMAS.—ALL BED FLOWERS IN EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND.—BUYERS IN SEARCH OF EARLY QUOTATIONS.—PRINCE RETIRES FROM THE FIELD.—HUNT GETS THE STOCK.—VARIOUS JOTTINGS OF VARYING INTEREST.

The market this week has been rather better than heretofore but trade has gone by fits and starts, some days being quite busy and others very dull. At the same time the buyers have been playing favorites, some houses reporting better business than the average. But as a general rule it can be said that all first-class stock has sold out at good prices, while cheap and indifferent material has been difficult to get rid of even at forced sales. American Beauties have been the principal item of shortage and have held up strong to printed quotations. Fancy carnations are also hard to obtain in the brighter colors. Most of the violet growers seem to have met with misfortune this year and the daily receipts are infinitesimal as compared with the same period last year. The failure seems to be quite general and extends all the way around the lake from the Wisconsin territory to Grand Rapids. At the latter place one grower who has five houses of violets is not cutting enough to supply his local demand, and another grower with seven houses is shipping in virtually nothing at all. The largest stock of late chrysanthemums which has been supplying this market is now run out and the chances are that there will be very few of these flowers in the way at Christmas time. The consensus of opinion is that there will be a general shortage of supply for the holidays. It is predicted that American Beauties will be in such great demand as to make it quite impossible to fill all orders and advance quotations run up to $12 and $15 per dozen for the extra choice long-stemmed. Meteor and Liberty roses, too, will be hard to get and the growers are only booking orders at $15 and $18 per hundred for the best. Fancy carnations, particularly the bright colored sorts, are also expected to be a shortage and the dealers are exceedingly cautious in booking advance orders on them. The Christmas price lists just out are virtually reproductions of last year's lists, so that buyers may know what to expect. It is thought probable that there will be enough of the common grades of roses and carnations to about go the rounds at quoted prices. There has been a great deal of quoting on big advance orders, considerably more than usual.

A. G. Prince & Co. have given up their city salesroom at 78 Wabash avenue and Mr. Prince will hereafter devote his attention to the affairs of the Hinsdale Rose Co., at Hinsdale and Downers Grove, the product being now sold on consignment by E. H. Hunt. Mr. Hunt's business has been increasing quite rapidly of late and he is in a position to make very good use of these increased supplies. He is also in need of more room and, after the holiday rush, the partition wall which has heretofore separated the Hunt and Prince establishments will be removed, affording red, pink and white blooms cut from three average sized plants. The three colors came into bloom October 10 and from that date until November 14, the flowers were cut every three days. The Giant Fancy Red gave the smallest blooms, averaging two inches in diame-

Craig thinks that growers who fail, give it too much attention and kill it with kindness. All that it requires is a good, clean bench and plenty of light and air. It should not have too much pot room, but of course it must not be allowed to become pot bound or be crowded too largely increased facilities. The Henry Payne stock, of asparagus, adiantum and smilax, will also now go to Hunt's and will fit in nicely.

The perspicacious grower who prepared a stock of the Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is now reaping the rewards of his enterprise. There are so few of these novelties available here for Christmas that well flowered plants in 4-inch pots are wholesaling very rapidly at $7.50 per dozen. Wherever this plant is tried here it is winning warm friends and everybody will want it next year. It is admirable for many varied purposes and has certainly come to stay.

The Chicago Florists' Club wishes to extend its thanks to the following contributors to the fund for the recent annual banquet: E. C. Amling, M. Barker, O. P. Bassett, O. J. Friedman, J. B. Deamud, James Hartshorne, E. H. Hunt, Kennicott Bros. Co., A. Lange, McKellar & Winterson, George Reinberg, Peter Reinberg, J. D. Thompson, J. C. Vaughan, Weiland & Risch, E. Wienhoeber, Wietor Bros., and a friend.

Bassett & Washburn report themselves very well pleased with the way the Liberty rose is doing with them. They recognize that they did not give it the best treatment early in the season but are so well satisfied with the results obtained by the methods recommended to them by Mr. Asmus, that they say they will plant the variety in increased quantity next year.

There seems to be rather less than the usual supply of poinsettias. This is always a popular Christmas subject and good cut poinsettias are wholesaling very rapidly at $4 per dozen. Those which have been grown as pot plants are rather too "leggy," as a rule, to meet with great favor.

The shortage of bouquet green is becoming so pronounced that many other decorative materials are profiting largely thereby. Holly seems to be exceptionally good this year and in very brisk demand. Two specialties which the retail florists are using to good effect are mahonia leaves and the berried branches of Ilex Cassine.

Vaughan's Seed Store has taken in five "jumbo" cars of the "get there" brand of holly in the past eight days. This house is also receiving a ton of very choice Mexican mistletoe and making a fine show of box trees, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and other holiday plants.

Weiland & Risch last week purchased two acres of additional land near their Evanston property and opposite the Glen View Golf Club. They contemplate building there some time in the future, possibly next season.

At the last Florists' Club meeting, aside from the reports of committees, there were papers on rose growing by George Collins and Paul Kopanka. W. N. Campbell was elected to membership.

Peter Reinberg has a big crop of Beauties coming on in the range of houses built last year and thinks that the Christmas crop will be the heaviest he was ever able to cut.

C. S. Stewart is no longer with Adolph H. Poehlmann, at 55 Wabash avenue, and Fred. Ewert, formerly with J. A. Budlong, is performing the duties of salesman there.

Peter Reinberg and party of friends have returned from Marion, Ill., where they spent ten days in hunting. They were very successful with quail and rabbits.

Kennicott Bros. Co. are to have Papa Gontier roses for Christmas. This is one of the specialties at Klehms' nursery.

H. W. S. Cleveland, who laid out and planted both Washington Park and Drexel boulevard, died at Hinsdale last week at the age of 86 years.

E. R. Tauch, who recently withdrew from the Harms Park Floral Company, is now employed by the Geo. Witthold Company.

The South Park Floral Company is sending Amling a big cut of long Beauties, their cut running now to the better grades.

McKellar & Winterson report an unprecedented demand for the various holiday specialties they are handling.

Wietor Brothers have hit it well with Meteor, that rose being one of the greatest scarcities at present.

C. W. Scott, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is confined to a local hospital with muscular rheumatism.

A. C. Kohlbrand, of Amling's, has been suffering with the grippe this week.

MEETING OF THE CLUB.—THE ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—GRAND HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION DECIDED UPON FOR OCTOBER OF NEXT YEAR.—OTHER DOINGS AT THE MEETING.—HEAVY RECEIPTS OF STOCK AND LITTLE BUSINESS ACTIVITY.—CARNATIONS EXTRA GOOD.—BLOOMING PLANTS IN EVIDENCE.—NOTES.

The New York Florists' Club, at its regular December meeting last Monday night, disposed of several important matters. One was the election of officers for 1901. The following is the list of the new incumbents: President, Walter F. Sheridan; vice-president, Alex. Wallace; secretary, John Young; treasurer, C. B. Weathered; trustees for three years, W. H. Siebrecht, F. H. Traendly and W. W. Burnham. Appreciative remarks were made by each of these gentlemen in response to the applause which greeted the announcement of their election, all promising to work faithfully for the best interests of the organization during the coming year. The pledge thus given was by no means a light matter, for there is a big amount of hard work laid out for the coming season. Most important of all, and of far-reaching influence upon the club's future, was the decision to hold a big exhibition in Madison Square Garden next October. It is a number of years since anything of this kind has been attempted here with the exception of the fine horticultural display so successfully associated with the recent S. A. F. convention, and many of the most enterprising members have felt that the time had now come to make an effort to begin what is hoped to be a series of annual flower shows commensurate with New York's horticultural importance. Mr. Sheridan reported for the committee recently appointed to confer with the Madison Square people and the scheme as outlined was so fair and promising that after a brief discussion it was adopted almost unanimously. A committee to prepare a schedule was at once appointed, also a committee on ways and means to secure a guarantee fund for the premium list, which will probably amount to upwards of $3,000. The date set for the exhibition is the week of October 21, 1901, and it is hoped to have schedules completed by March 1. A number of hold-over committees reported. The Dewey Arch committee was relieved of its duties amid much merriment. The resolutions complimentary to ex-President Plumb were handed in beautifully engrossed, and the Starin resolutions were read and accepted. The treasurer announced satisfactory progress in settling all financial matters connected with the convention, and also promised that the club medals awarded last August should be distributed to their owners before January 1, the delay having occurred at the mint in Philadelphia, where the medals are being struck off. Frank McMahon entertained the members with a brief account of the beautiful gardens he had seen on his recent European trip and J. B. Nugent told of the wonders he had been shown on a visit to Canada a few days ago.

The cut flower market this week is embarrassed with excessive receipts of Bride and Bridesmaid roses, which are necessarily disposed of in bulk at very low rates, some instances as low as $10 per thousand having been recorded. Roman hyacinths are also doing poorly and have accumulated in wholesaler's hands although the quality is equal to the best ever seen in this market. Violets are slow, cypripediums ditto, but they, at least, will keep until conditions improve. Carnations average of the highest quality and sell more satisfactorily than most other flowers but it is a very quiet period now with all the retailers and there is not likely to be much activity in any line until Christmas. Heaths, poinsettias, azaleas, primroses, ardisias, oranges and solanums are plentiful in all the florists' windows.

Alfred Bunvard is at the Presbyterian Hospital, suffering with typhoid fever.

W. A. Manda is confined to his home, threatened with typhoid fever.

C. W. Ward has gone on a trip westward for two or three weeks.

W. H. Long is now located at Thorley's new Fifth avenue store.

Visitors; Robt. Craig and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia.

MARKET STIFFENS UP UNDER THE SPELL OF COOLER WEATHER.—PROSPECTS FOR CHRISTMAS.—ORCHIDS ARE SHOWN AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—UNDESERVED CRITICISM OF A VERY GOOD PLANT.—AT THE CITY GREENHOUSES.—NOTES HERE AND THERE.

The cut flower market is strong this week and prices, while not advanced materially from recent quotations, are maintained much better and stock received at wholesale markets is disposed of to advantage. This is due, not so much to an increased business, early December being never a busy season, as to the scarcity occasioned by the decidedly wintry weather that has been experienced during the past few days, which has given a healthy tone to the market and is therefore welcome even if it does deplete the coal bin. Christmas talk is already in the air but it is too early yet to foresee just where cut flower prices will locate at that time. Speculation as to abundance or scarcity of certain lines of stock is heard on all sides, but opinions vary widely and, again, much depends upon the weather.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has announced the following awards: Lowell prize for best house of chrysanthemums, to Mrs. A. W. Spencer, South Framingham; for house of lettuce, G. D. Moore, Arlington; house of cucumbers, Wm. Proctor, Fitchburg; house of carnations, M. A. Patten, Tewksbury; strawberry garden, also vegetable garden, W. H. Heustis, Belmont;inery, E. S. Converse, Malden; rose house, E. M. Wood & Co., Natick. Silver gilt medals are awarded to Col. Fred. Mason, Taunton, for vegetable garden; to Mrs. B. P. Cheney for chrysanthemums in pots, and to Col. Chas. Pfaff for chrysanthemums on benches. Other gratuities went to Dr. Fisher, Mr. Nevins, A. F. Estabrook, Edward Hatch, Lothrop & Higgins and Mrs. Cheney.

On Saturday, December 8, occurred the last exhibition of the year, at Horticultural Hall. Orchids were the special feature, H. A. Wheeler taking first prize in the classes for six, three and one specimen plant and Mrs. J. L. Gardner, second for three and for one specimen. Laelias, cypripediums, oncidiums and Dendrobium formosum giganteum were the principal sorts shown. W. J. Clemens exhibited a good Oncidium tigrinum and E. S. Converse a group of well grown poinsettias. The untidiness of the wooden boxes on which the orchids were elevated excited general unfavorable comment. Something better should be provided for such purposes. An alley-way florist would not decorate a fifth rate dance hall with such accessories.

We have been reading some undeserved criticisms recently of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. That this plant is inclined to drop its flowers on removal to a living room, when properly grown, is not true. The writer had one in his dining room window last winter which was in full bloom when received from Mr. Edgar's greenhouse and continued for several months a thing of beauty, and there are numerous instances equally authentic in this vicinity. Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is one of the most satisfactory blooming plants for the house ever introduced, when grown in the right manner.

The Boston Sunday Herald, of December 2, devoted almost an entire page to illustrations and description of the city greenhouses and nursery on Massachusetts avenue, under the management of Superintendent Doogue. The area of glass in houses is given as over two-thirds of an acre and in frames about half an acre. A small nursery for trees and shrubs is also connected. The elaborate floral displays in the Public Garden and some of the city squares in the summer are supplied from this establishment.

Efforts on the part of local wholesale dealers to advance the price of American Beauties have been practically fruitless owing to the shipments of this rose from Philadelphia at rates lower than those prevailing here.

The annual reunion of the employes of the Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation was held at the American House on the evening of December 6. About 250 persons participated.

Oakes Ames has presented to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society a valuable collection of water color sketches of rare orchids which is to be added to from time to time.

George A. Sutherland has leased a very spacious establishment at 34 Hawley street, to which he will remove after it has been fitted up.

Michael Magee's houses and stock were damaged $150 on the night of December 9 by a fire originating from an overheated furnace.

N. F. McCarthy has returned from an extended trip among the holly cutters in Virginia. He has some elegant stock on the way.

In town: G. W. Hilliard, Exeter, N. H.; J. N. May, Summit, N. J., and J. R. Fotheringham, Tarrytown, N. Y.

EXETER, N. H.—George W. Hilliard's American Beauty houses are in splendid condition this season and promise to equal their enviable record of last winter. Meteors, Brides and Bridesmaids are also good and Madame Chatenay is making a favorable impression. Liberty is nearly leafless and, up to date, has been very disappointing.

BUSINESS CONTINUES VERY GOOD AND STOCK HARD TO GET.—ALL ABOUT THE PRICES ASKED.—PROSPECTS FOR CHRISTMAS.—SCARCITY OF STOCK ASSURED.—PLANTS WILL HELP OUT.—SUPPLY MEN BUSY.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

Business is still booming and it takes a great deal of hustling to get stock for the orders. All rose crops seem to be light just at present. In fact everything seems to be scarce, violets particularly so. Teas are about the same price as last week; if anything a little softer, as $8 will now buy the kind that were $10 a week ago. Beauties are a little harder to get, mainly on account of an increased demand for the coming out teas, as most of the growers say their houses are doing well. Prices range from $2 to $6 per dozen. Carnations are creeping up; $2 is now low for any kind of salable stock, with $3 to $4 for the fancies. Violets are very scarce and $1.25 to $1.50 is asked for good doubles, with $1 for the southern and common kinds. Singles sell at from 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Mignonette is scarce at $2 to $4 per hundred. Lily of the valley is also scarce; $4 to $5 is the price. Cattleyas are a bit easier to get at 50 cents each. Cypripediums bring 15 cents.

Charles W. Cox is gaining a reputation as a good grower of ferns. He does them well and in large quantities. At the February meeting of the Florists' Club he is to tell the members about the best varieties of ferns for commercial use, and why. This was announced as the special event for the January meeting but that was a misunderstanding of George C. Watson, the chairman of the essay committee, who got promptly called down by Mr. Cox the day after the meeting. The special event of the January meeting will be "Herbaceous Plants for Florists' Use," by Ernest Hemming, who is in charge of the herbaceous department at the Meehan nurseries and who will no doubt be able to give us considerable useful and interesting hints on that subject.

Some growers say that stock is going to be very scarce at Christmas. Storekeepers say that this is an annual statement, which emanates from the producers about December 15, and that for a matter of fact flowers do get scarce, very scarce, the week following, owing, it is said, to the weather, which, whether sunny or stormy, always seems to have a bad effect on buds and prevents their opening. All of this should be taken with a few grains of salt, which we will have to take anyhow when the belated stock arrives. As to the actual scarcity below the demands of the holiday season, we believe the flower growers are prepared for it, and should they fail, then the plant men will get their oar in and keep the craft from falling behind.

The florists' supply men are nearly worked to death, as one of them expressed it, getting their orders out. Both Bayersdorfer & Co. and Rice & Co. have been doing overtime for the past month, trying to catch up. It is almost worth giving an order just to see Bayersdorfer's team of stylish roans bringing it up to the door.

Christmas greens are appearing in quantity with the exception of ground pine, which at this writing seems to be almost out of the market. There will be plenty of good holly, mistletoe and laurel, but the lycodium will be greatly missed, as it has been largely used.

Joseph Heacock's new wagon is on the street. "Only the best palms and roses grown by," etc., is the inscription on the sides, which about tells the truth, as Joseph certainly does deliver good stock.

H. H. Battles has bought the entire cut of the new rose Robert Scott for this season. K.

TRADE BRISK AND STOCK IN FAIR SUPPLY.—MUCH FUNERAL WORK CALLS FOR WHITE.—RED ALSO IN DEMAND.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

Trade has picked up wonderfully within the last few weeks and everybody reports good sales at fair prices. It is thought that we will have plenty of stock for Christmas week. Roses are coming to the wholesale houses in large numbers and much of the cut, particularly Bridesmaids, is of excellent quality. White carnations are scarce because of the great amount of funeral work. American Beauties bring from $4 to $5 per dozen, there being quite a little extra demand for them. The last chrysanthemums are selling well. Bulbous stock is somewhat scarce, but what is coming in is very good; Roman hyacinths, narcissi and lily of the valley bring from $4 to $5 per hundred. Smilax is also scarce, selling at from 12½ cents to 15 cents a string.

The new addition to the Missouri Botanical Garden is finished as far as this year is concerned. This twenty-acre addition will be opened in 1903, the year of the World's Fair, and by that time a lover of shrubbery will not have to go far to be in his element.

J. J. Beneke was called to serve on the jury in the Probate Court on Monday, just at a time when he had a lot of funeral work in hand and a large decoration on for the evening. Several of his friends came to his rescue and helped him out.

Wm. Young & Sons are turning out some excellent made up plants, a large plant in the center of the pot or pan and smaller ones around it. They offer a great variety of these and are the first in this city to plant in this fashion.

Miss Theresa Badaracco reports her trade as very good. She is so close to the Castle Square Garden and its operas that she could hardly help but be in the swim.

We find the storemen working like good fellows to get their greens in shape. Bouquet green roping retails at 10 cents a yard. Holly is not yet seen in quantity. R. J. M.

WINTER ARRIVES IN EARNEST AND TRADE PROSPECTS BRIGHTEN.—BUSINESS FAIR.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Winter weather is here at last in generous measure, both as to snow and low temperature, and it is to be supposed that business will take a sharp turn for the better in consequence, although on the whole there has not been much to complain of in that way for some little time. Trade has been nothing phenomenal, but stock has sold fairly well, more especially since the wane of chrysanthemums. Carnations have been the leaders in point of easy selling, good stock bringing from 2 cents to 3 cents and some fancy stock selling at 4 cents.

The outlook for the Christmas holidays seems about as in other years as to supply of stock, with the possible exception of carnations, which will hardly be in as heavy crop as during the holidays of last year. Those who are interested in lycodium report a shortage in sight which may be difficult to overcome. Other greens will probably be sufficient.

Smith & Fetters have taken the store-room adjoining their present quarters and will occupy it during the winter season in addition to their old store, thereby doubling their accommodations. A.

MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB PROVES A DISAPPOINTMENT.—VISITORS, BUSINESS AND OTHER MATTERS.

The December meeting of the Florists' Society was held at the residence of W. Langstaff. The evening was not a pleasant one, consequently only six members were present, which was a great disappointment to the host and hostess. A fine spread had been prepared for at least double the number. As the invitation had been accepted at the foregoing meeting, an apology is due them. As long as there is no way of telling whether two or twenty members will be present at our meetings, a permanent meeting place should be selected.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, and Mr. Stover, of the Stover Floral Company, Grandville, Mich., were recent visitors to our city. Mr. Hill brought a magnificent bunch of his new rose, Marquise Litta. Mr. Stover has astonishing results with his Lady Campbell violets. Last year his average was $1.25 per plant, which is more than double the amount that we consider a fair average in this neighborhood.

A. Pahud has bought two lots near the west entrance of Crown Hill Cemetery. An office and two greenhouses will be erected thereon in the near future and conducted as a branch to his establishment at the east entrance to the cemetery.

Business is still very slow. Thanksgiving made less of an impression than ever before and there is grumbling at the market as well as in the stores.

John Hartje has a valuable novelty in a yellow seedling chrysanthemum.

BUSINESS BRISK IN FAR AWAY UTAH.—LITTLE BUILDING REPORTED.—JEALOUSIES PREVAIL.—NOTES.

Trade has been fair for the past few months with all the dealers here but collections have been slow. The outlook is for a good Christmas trade, as the early demand for plants, flowers, holly, etc., is rather more than usual.

About the only extensive building which has been going on here lately is the addition to the range of Schwartz & Heinecke, who have been succeeded by a corporation called The Sugar House Floral and Seed Company.

V. V. Morris, who assumed the management of the B. C. Morris Floral Company upon his brother's death, reports that things are progressing favorably with them.

We have no club or other organization here for there is no spirit of sociability among the craft here. Instead there is a very great deal of jealousy of the kind which does the trade no good. W. M.

MANSFIELD, O.—G. W. Hunt & Son report a fine trade, particularly in chrysanthemums, both cut blooms and pot plants. They have a new covered wagon this fall, its first use having been to take out a big load of palms for Senator Sherman's funeral.

THE houseleek (sempervivum), says a superstition that the house upon which it grows can not be destroyed by fire.

The plant is there known as the "man of

CHRYSANTHEMUM stock in England is each year more largely propagated from plants which have not been fed and flowered inside but have had the sum-

One trade grower is said to grow 30,000 stock plants in this way, transferring them to a cool house in the late fall and propagating no stock except from these plants.

eter; stems long, strong and graceful;
delightfully fragrant and a good keeper and shipper; splendid habit and of wonderfully vigorous growth.

Egypt.—Color a rich, warm, scarlet crimson; flowers averaging two and one-half to three inches, with an exquisite spicy odor and borne on stems two and one-half to three feet long. A continuous and free bloomer from November 1 to November 15 and for the balance of the season.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

H. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md., register new carnations as follows: Norway, a seedling of Mrs. Fisher; color, pure white; flowers two and one-half to three and one-half inches in diameter; fragrant; stems long and strong. Egypt, color scarlet crimson; flowers uniformly two and one-half to three inches in diameter; fragrant; stems two and one-half to three feet.

A. C. Zvolanek, Grand View, Somerset county, N. J., registers sweet pea Miss Florence E. Denzer, a white seedling between Zvolanek's Christmas and Emily Henderson; height four feet outdoors, five and one-half feet under glass. A continuous bloomer, especially adapted for winter flowers; stems up to sixteen inches long, usually bearing three flowers each; foliage narrow and of a dark green color.

WM. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

Forcing Daffodils.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Will you kindly tell me when to bring in my daffodils for forcing for cut flowers? I planted the narcissus bulbs in flats September 15, and by December 1, with ten weeks in which to make root, they were, many of them, up to a half inch. This is a new venture for me and I should like to get the flowers to market as soon as possible.
How shall I proceed?
SUBSCRIBER.

The fore part of January is as early as Holland-grown daffodil bulbs should be brought into the houses, even though they were planted in the middle of September. They should be kept in a temperature of about 65° at night.
A. N. PIERSON.

Standard Chrysanthemums.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—What are the best early chrysanthemums for standards—white, yellow and pink—and when should they be started?
D. G.

The best chrysanthemums, in my judgment, to grow for early standards are Enfant des Deux Mondes and Snow Queen for white; John K. Shaw and *Mrs.
Ferrin* for pink, Miss Georgiana Pitcher and Mrs. T. L. Park for yellow. We use a great many other varieties for standards by grafting, using a strong, tall grower to get height and graft the top with any dwarf sort. To have good standards early in November cuttings should be rooted at once and kept growing as fast as possible. It is well to start many more than are wanted, as many plants throw a flower when in a 3-inch or 4-inch pot and, of course, are then useless.
J. S. WILSON.

Too Many Horticultural Societies.

The Gardeners' Chronicle in a recent editorial, after listing some eight English societies devoted to the advancement of special plants, discusses the question whether this subdivision of work is wise, and whether better results could not be obtained by affiliating all of these various societies with the Royal Horticultural Society.

The editor asks: "Do they contribute anything proportionate to their means and opportunities to the education of the public and the gardener, or to the increase of the general sum of knowledge? Is there not a great risk by this specializing of frittering away the advantages which accrue from membership of a large society****?"

All of this recalls most vividly the bitter wrangle which occurred here a few years ago over a like proposition. Some of the wounds received at that time are still unhealed. No one will doubt the wisdom of affiliation, but can it be done, or if done can it be so managed as not to sacrifice interests of equal value to the prospective gains?

The present close and friendly relations of the American societies are gratifying to nearly all of the members and it may happen that in years to come the various organizations may grow closer and closer together until they become in effect, if not in name, one body. The obtaining of a national charter for the S. A. F. and O.
H. may set the current stronger in this direction.

OBITUARY.

DAVID S. WRIGHT.

David S. Wright, the founder of the Dunkirk Seed Company, died at Dunkirk, N. Y., on the evening of November 23, aged 76 years. He was born at Cambridgeshire, England, in 1824, and came to America as a boy. After a number of years' experience at gardening and the seed business, in 1861 he started in business for himself, achieving a very considerable success. In 1888 he retired from active business, placing the concern in the hands of his sons, George W., Ruben W. and David S. Wright, Jr. Again this firm has been divided and there now exists the Lake Shore Seed Company, with Ruben W. and David S. Wright, Jr., as proprietors. Mr. Wright was a man of exemplary character and had played a prominent part in the business, political and social life of his community.

HORACE W. S. CLEVELAND.

Horace William Shaler Cleveland, who died at Hinsdale, Ill., on December 5, was one of those rare men who by comparison make most of their fellows seem as though made from coarse and common clay. Born at Lancaster, Mass., in 1814, he began the practice of landscape gardening at Salem in 1854, at first in partnership with Robert Morris Copeland. He lived at Danvers, Mass., for ten years and was subsequently employed at Tarrytown, N. Y., going thence to Prospect Park, Brooklyn, where he was associated with Frederick Law Olmsted. In March, 1869, Mr. Cleveland removed to Chicago and engaged in the practice of his profession, in partnership with Wm. M. R. French, present director of the Art Institute. For many years he was a well known and striking figure in the city. At one time it was his custom to wear a plaid shawl, in Highland fashion, and to carry a long-stemmed meerscham pipe, and as he strode along with head erect and firm and vigorous step he presented an appearance which caused his friends to dub him playfully "the burgo-master," a term which was both meant and felt by them to be a compliment. In 1886 Mr. Cleveland moved to Minneapolis, where he was employed upon the park system in that city until 1894, when he returned to Chicago to spend his declining days with his son Ralph. As a landscape gardener Mr. Cleveland was one of the foremost men in the country. He had charge of many important works, among which may be mentioned Washington Park, Chicago, and Drexel boulevard, which were arranged and planted from his designs and under his direction; Roger Williams Park, Providence, R. I.; the grounds, walks and drives about the Natural Bridge, Virginia; the grounds of the Jekyll Island Club, Brunswick, Ga.; Como Park, St. Paul; all the parks in Minneapolis and Omaha; Brookside, Indianapolis, Ind.; the grounds of the state capitols at Topeka, Kans., and Madison, Wis., and Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Concord, Mass. Mr. Cleveland was for twelve years corresponding secretary of the New Jersey Horticultural Society, and was an honorary member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, of the American Park and Outdoor Art Association and several kindred organizations. He was a pleasing writer and published several volumes on horticultural and other topics.

BUSINESS IS VERY SATISFACTORY.—VIOLETS VERY SCARCE.—RED ROSES IN SHORT SUPPLY FOR CHRISTMAS.—CARNATION EXPERIENCES.—NOTES.

We are now in the midst of our usual winter's business, enjoying very cold weather and steady trade. Roses are much better than a week ago and sell readily at good prices. The best blooms of chrysanthemums have all been disposed of and, though a quantity of medium flowers are still on the market, they look as though they had been held too long. Violets are of good quality but very scarce and the price realized is the highest this city has ever paid at this season. I visited some of the large growers a few days ago and saw some good plants and quite a showing of buds, but it will take considerable sun to bring them in for the Christmas trade. Roses were looking well and a splendid crop is expected in teas but there will be a great shortage of Beauties and Liberty. Some of the older varieties of carnations are badly rusted but the newer varieties look exceptionally good and all, with the exception of Olympia, are very well liked. Olympia seems soft and many complaints are heard. Azaleas are now in season, Dunlop having shown them for the past week.

Tidy & Son have a new delivery wagon, rubber-tired and all that. Its only fault is that it runs by horse power instead of electricity. It should have been an automobile.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wetherfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

F. PERRY WATSON, of Australia, and recently in the seed business at Sacramento, is reported sailing from New York for England next week.

ALFRED EMERICH, who has been in this country for some weeks in the interest of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, sails from New York December 20.

AN action is about to be commenced to set aside the probate of the will of James M. Cleveland, the well known seedsman of Adams, N. Y., who was killed by a train in that village, August 10, 1899.

THE Nebraska Seed Co., Omaha, will shortly occupy the four-story structure known as the Garfield building, on Howard street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, which is now being remodeled for their use.

REGARDING Early Spring cabbage, a Long Island grower writes: "There is an increasing demand for this cabbage and it must therefore give satisfaction, but to me it does not seem to justify the claims made for it. I do not find it as early as the Wakefield, as some claim; in fact with me it shows about the same season of maturity as our second early sorts, Early Summer, and others of this class. It is a very good stock and heads well with us, and from the fact that the demand seems rather to increase I presume it has come to stay for a time at least."

Insurance Suit Goes Against S. F. Leonard.

The first of a number of cases against insurance companies resulting from a fire and explosion which destroyed a building at 139 and 141 West Lake street, November 1, 1899, was tried in the United States circuit court yesterday before Judge Kohlsaat. The plaintiff was Simeon F. Leonard, lessee of the building. The defendant was the American Central Insurance Company of St. Louis. The policy on which suit was brought provides for its nullification in case a loss is caused by an explosion not preceded by a fire. Mr. Leonard failed to show that the fire occurred first, and Judge Kohlsaat entered a verdict in favor of the defendant.—The Chicago Record, December 14.

The Government Seed Shop.

Burnet Landreth, secretary of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, in a recent circular rightly says: "If the government established a seed shop and sold its seeds it would certainly be a most active competitor in the seed business, but it does worse—it gives them away. It has established a seed shop larger, with two or three exceptions, than any of the fifty or sixty large seed establishments in this country. It runs against them a most active competition."

"For years the seed trade has been the only business thus crushed down by the government, and the competition is annually getting worse, and can only have the one effect of driving some reputable dealers out of the business, and yet the government is now prepared to foster a specially selected business by dividing up among the firms the sum of 10,000,000 of the government dollars annually (ship subsidy bill). The government takes care not to antagonize any other interest except the seed business, yet it might just as well present to the farmers' wives baking soda or soap, or to the coal miner powder or dynamite."

Japanese Longiflorum Exportations.

From July 20 to September 20, 1900, 20,111 cases of Liliun longiflorum were shipped from Yokohama to the following places:

To Hong Kong, India, Australia and New Zealand there were shipped in all 277 cases containing 33,858 bulbs, making a total exportation from Japan of 20,111 cases containing 4,340,766 bulbs. At the time the report was made there were orders for October shipments of 175,000 bulbs for London and 30,000 bulbs for Hamburg. There were orders for 32,000 bulbs for shipment to Chicago in November so that the total exportations of Liliun longiflorum bulbs from Japan of the crop of 1900 will amount to 4,750,000 bulbs, according to Moller's Gartner Zeitung.

The above amounts probably contained some small lots of L. auratum and L. speciosum, but the great bulk were L. longiflorum. The correspondent predicts that the cultivation of L. longiflorum for next year will decrease considerably since a great many bulbs were left unsold in certain districts, which are now being sent to London auctioneers where the bulbs will probably be sold at slaughter prices. Until last year foreigners were not allowed to rent land outside of the foreign settlements in Japan.

MONTHLY EXHIBITION OF THE CLUB BRINGS OUT A FINE DISPLAY OF STOCK. — CARNATIONS ARE THE FEATURE. — PROSPECT OF SCARCITY OF STOCK FOR HOLIDAYS.

The exhibition at the club rooms on December 8, owing to the miserable weather, was poorly attended, although the flowers exhibited were even better than last year. The South Park Floral Company, New Castle, Ind., showed some excellent American Beauties, Brides and Bridesmaids. The latter were the best ever seen at any of our exhibitions and easily won first prize. They did not enter their Beauties for competition, but received honorable mention. W. K. Partridge, Lockland, Ohio, had Bride and Bridesmaid roses and White Cloud, G. H. Crane, Joost, Flora Hill and a vase of 100 blooms of mixed varieties of carnations. He received four first prizes for carnations and special mention for best general display. R. Witterstaetter won the Smith prize for the best fifty blooms pink with Enquirer and George & Allan's prize for the best seedling carnation with Elinor. H. Weber & Sons gave Elinor a close run with seedling No. 11, there being only a difference of one point in the scoring. The Evans prize for the best seedling carnation was also captured by Witterstaetter with a vase of Enquirer, which was easily the best vase of carnations in the room. White seedling No. 723 A. scored eighty-nine points. It is a very large flower on a good stem. George & Allan received first on Meteor and Perle roses. J. R. Goldman, Middletown, Ohio, showed some good Kaiserin, Bride and Bridesmaid roses. H. Weber & Sons showed seedling carnation Norway, white, which scored eighty-six points. Egypt, crimson, scored eighty-five and one-third. Mrs. E. T. Grave, Richmond, Ind., showed Dorothy, which scored eighty-six points, which entitles this variety to a certificate, it having scored eighty-six points here last March. The judges were Frank Ball, James Allan and Albert Sunderbruch.

About the only business of importance transacted at the club meeting in the evening after the exhibition was the election of John Evans, Richmond, Ind., Herbert Heller, New Castle, Ind., and Edwin Helfrich, Washington Court House, Ohio, to be members of the society. Visitors were John Evans, Herbert Heller, Edwin Helfrich and Mr. McHutchinson, of New York.

Dark, gloomy weather, with rain the latter part of the week, and little doing in society, does not help to swell the receipts of the florists. There have been plenty of flowers to go around, of all kinds except fancy carnations and Beauties.

From present indications it seems as though this market will experience a shortage of roses and carnations at the holidays, such as we have not seen for the past ten years. D.

Aurora, Ill.

Business has been good this fall, Thanksgiving sales running at least twenty per cent ahead of last year. Chrysanthemums are practically out of the way, although a few will be with us at Christmas. The prospect is for a good holiday trade and, while we expect to have enough roses for the demand, the carnation crop will be short with all the florists. In flowering plants primroses and cyclamens will be in good shape and at Smely's a lot of azaleas and poinsettias will be just right. Mr. Smely finds poinsettias good sellers and very profitable. Grown in 5-inch pots and up to large pans, good dwarf plants, well foliaged, bring good prices and are chosen in preference to azaleas. W. R. Rees, of R. Rees & Son, is now Superintendent of Water Works for the city. B.

REPORT OF THE JUDGES

Appointed by THE PHILA. FLORISTS' CLUB to judge our grand new ROSE,

Queen of Edgely, PINK..... AMERICAN BEAUTY.

"We are convinced that this variety is a valuable addition to the list of forcing roses, being in every respect, except color, the exact counterpart of the American Beauty. The color is a beautiful, bright pink, which is good, even in the full flowers. The fragrance is also as fine as that of Beauty, and the exhibited blooms showed remarkable vigor. (Signed),

ROBERT KIFT, WM. MUNRO, JOS. HEACOCK."

The last two named were winners of first prizes for American Beauties at the Rose Show, Eden Musee, March 27, 1900.

QUIS.

FON DU LAC, WIS.—E. Haentze is just recovering from a siege of sickness.

Pittsburg.

TRADE HAS BEEN GOOD FOR SOME WEEKS.—SOCIAL ACTIVITY BEGINS WITH THE CLOSE OF THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.—THE PARTICULAR CUSTOMER.—NOTES.

Ever since the first of November trade in Pittsburg and vicinity has been exceptionally good. Previous to that time, however, it was very much affected by the lack of interest in things social, because so many people remained away from home until after the election excitement. Debutante affairs have been quite numerous and enclre parties, for which small decorations were required, have been very popular in society. Trade during the past week has been very brisk all around, there being a good demand for chrysanthemums and good quality roses and violets. Roses and violets are rapidly improving in quality and chrysanthemums are now becoming scarce and poor, the late varieties dragging along in odd lots. There is a good demand for American Beauties, which are not any too plentiful but are fair in quality. Thanksgiving showed a reasonable increase in trade and that money was free; judging from this and the way orders are coming in the prospects for a brisk Christmas are very good.

These days before Christmas bring with them many amusing happenings. There is the well meaning maiden lady of unmentionable age and curls who desires a nice box of flowers sent to a friend on Christmas, outside of the city limits, and who will not pay more than $1. "Do, please, put some nice carnations in it and some roses and a small bunch of violets and one, only one, nice American Beauty in the box," all for $1. On December 26 the florist who takes this order receives a call, early in the morning, when he is cleaning up his store after the rush, from a very irate maiden lady who endeavors to impress upon his tired mind that she was not at all pleased with the "flowers which were sent out for her. Let us be patient!

These are days, too, when we meet the man from "Five Points" or "Four Corners" with a wagon load of Pittsburg smoked laurel, a very good variety but rather heavy for nice work.

Fred. Burki has been turning out some very good chrysanthemums this season. Most of the stock was marketed early in the season. Mr. Blind and Mr. Koenig have also been producing some very good chrysanthemums during the season.

Pittsburg and Allegheny retailers are anxious for more stock of better quality than that now coming to hand.

Vaughan's XXX XMAS HOLLY

WE HAVE MADE THE STANDARD.

Our Holly NOW ARRIVING is only six days from the woods and ten days from time of cutting. These last car loads have opened strictly choice and yet we give every case reinspection. We can practically guarantee you satisfaction on every order. We ask a fair price, yet Vaughan's XXX twice inspected grade is worth five times the small advance which we charge over commission or cut rate stock.

Our price is low, considering the pains we take with it and the price we pay our cutters. Our men have "passed up" over five cars of stock—rejected—which has gone to the commission houses.

Let us have your order and in time. "It gets there."

5 CASE LOTS, $22.50.

CREAM CITY DEALERS FIND TRADE GOOD.—THANKSGIVING BUSINESS UNEVENLY DISTRIBUTED.—EASTER LILIES IN.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

For the last six weeks large quantities of flowers have been sold. Beauties and violets were scarce, also Asparagus plumosus. Asparagus tenuissimus and A. Sprengerii of medium length have been plentiful. Asparagus decumbens and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine have made their appearance for table decorations. Ordinary roses and carnations have been plentiful. November was a good month and very little stock went to waste, but Thanksgiving trade was wanting. An unusual number of fashionable functions made some retailers quite busy but those who had no share in this business were slack. Harrisii lilies and Roman hyacinths are now in good supply. Good stevia is more popular than ever. Good poinsettias have brought 50 cents in wholesale market.

E. Haasch was the only one in this city enterprising enough this season to fix up his store and invite the public to a free flower show. His chrysanthemums, cyclamens and miscellaneous stock were good and attractive.

The papers have said considerable about the show of chrysanthemums at Mitchell Park but they were not a remarkably good lot. C. B. W.

QUINCY, ILL.—Joseph F. Kroner has bought out the business of Ernst Maag, at 2021 Spring street, where he proposes to erect a new rose house in the spring. He now has 3,500 feet of glass.

Ethel Crocker

WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers. With the largest stock of this variety grown by any one grower in the country I can fill your orders with carefully selected cuttings, at $4 per 100 or $30 per 1000. SEND FOR LIST OF OTHER VARIETIES.
