PERFORMANCES OF THE NEW CARNATIONS.
—ESTELLE THE BEST RED.—LIBERTY
DOES WELL.—TRADE VERY GOOD.—PROS-PECTS BRIGHT.

Of the new carnations, Mrs. Lawson was short at first, but it is fine now, with lots of buds and new growth which gives promise of steady blooming. The flowers are fine in color and large. Crocker is a strong grower and fair bloomer, large, long-stemmed and bright, even pink. Genevieve Lord is a strong grower, not very free, but of good color. It reminds me of Grace Wilder very much, but it has a larger flower. The Marquis has made lots of grass but seems slow to throw buds and the flowers do not keep very well after being cut. Estelle did not make good growth in the field but has grown very fast inside and is the freest bloomer we have in red. We think very highly of it. In the older varieties White Cloud leads for a fancy white, with Kobinoor the best all-around white. This variety is the strongest grower and freest bloomer we have. The flowers are large, very fragrant and borne on long, stiff stems. America, Crane, Gomez, Maceo, Gold Nugget, Joost, Argyle and Pingree are all doing well. Several varieties were affected with stem-rot but we seem to have got the best of it now. The only new rose we tried was Liberty, growing it in a house with Brides and Bridesmaids. It has made good growth and produced flowers of fine color with good stems. We intend to plant more of it next year.

Trade has been very good lately. Thanksgiving trade was the best we ever had. Every one was cleaned out and there were hundreds of chrysanthemums sold for the foot ball game, Nebraska vs. Minnesota, which was played here. Stock is fine and promises to be so for Christmas. C. H. F.

THANKSGIVING THE BEST ON RECORD.— ALL FLOWERS NOW SCARCE.—PRICES.— PROSPECTS FOR CHRISTMAS.—NOTES.

There has been very little change in business during the last two weeks except that flowers of all kinds are scarce. Thanksgiving was better than last year, everything selling well. Roses have taken a jump in price and are now worth anywhere from $1.50 to $3 for Brides and Bridesmaids and $4 to $10 for Beauties. Carnations sell for 35 cents to 50 cents per dozen. Violets find ready sale at from $2 to $2 50 per hundred. Flowering plants are coming in very slowly. Primroses and cyclamens are the only varieties seen, excepting a few very fine Begonia Gloire de Lorraine which have to fetch $1 to $1 50 each. Christmas trade promises to be very good, some large church orders having already been placed. Holly is on sale in most of the stores, very well berried, much better than last year's stock.

John A. Long, of East Haven, is building one new house for bedding plants, 20x125. His carnations are the best seen, such fancy sorts as Bradt and Maceo.

Recent visitors: Robert Greenlaw, Boston; Paul Berkowitz, Philadelphia; S. E. Banks, Westport, Conn. G H.

WARSAW, IND.—H. D. Seele has completed a modern greenhouse on what is known as the Wallace property at the corner of Center and Detroit streets.

They will be the most popular plants for Christmas holiday gifts for years to come.

TRADE PROSPECTS BRIGHTENING IN THE NORTH. — MUCH FUNERAL WORK. — AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Thanksgiving trade was not unusually heavy here and since then the weather has been unfavorable for our business. Roses and carnations are in good demand, white particularly so because of the need for many funeral flowers. Violets are very scarce, not nearly enough being obtainable to supply the demand. Chrysanthemums have made their exit for the season. Trade has picked up a little in the last day or two and the prospects are for a big Christmas.

E. Nagel & Co. have a pretty arrangement of decorative plants in their store. Ralph Lathorn is in charge there and keeps the place always looking its best.

Brant & Noe, of Forest Glen, Ill., who started a wholesale store here in October, report a satisfactory trade.

Donaldson's Glass Block people report trade exceptionally good during the past month.

A. Swanson has his store tastefully decorated with a fine lot of ferns and palms. C. R.

Albany, N. Y.

The employes of the testing department of the General Electric Company's works, Schenectady, held their first annual banquet at the Stanwix Hall, in Albany, on Saturday evening, December 8. Covers were laid for 160 guests, among whom were numbered many of the prominent officials of the company. Eyres had the contract for the decorations. The six large pillars in the banquet hall were wound with laurel. Southern smilax and potted plants were used to decorate the tables, while beside each plate was a Bride or Bridesmaid rose. R. D.

SOCIAL SEASON OPENED BY STATE DINNER AT THE WHITE HOUSE.—MANY GOOD DECORATIONS NOW REQUIRED.

The social season began Wednesday night at the White House, with the state dinner in honor of the commissioners of the United States to the Paris Exposition. The White House having been recently renovated, everything looked fresh and attractive. The decorations in the state dining room were as usual very elaborate. The table decorations consisted of a centerpiece of Adiantum Farleyense and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. This was under the direction of Henry Pfister, head gardener at the White House. The decorations of the East Room were of plants and flowers arranged under the direction of Geo. H. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh entertained the Paris commissioners Thursday, the party going by boat to Mount Vernon. On the return trip hot luncheon was served in the handsomely decorated cabins. Friday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Walsh gave a grand reception at their residence. J. H. Small & Sons supplied all these decorations, also those for the Gridiron Club's dinner Saturday night, at the Arlington hotel.

The Standard Floral Company has opened a very neat store at 507 F. street N. W., where a full stock of choice flowers and plants will be carried. P. G.

MONTGOMERY, ALA. — Thanksgiving trade was better than ever before and the demand is holding up well, so that the outlook for Christmas is bright. The Rosemont Gardens are in excellent shape this season.

ROSES.

MID SEASON ROSE NOTES.

Everybody is complaining about the weather. It seems as though nature had sprung a leak; we are certainly getting our share of rain and cloudy weather. Growers of roses and flowering stock find it difficult to keep up the high standard of their product during such trying times. While the weather can be blamed for much of our disappointment, there are many things that the grower can avoid by attending carefully to the important minor details that growing crops demand. We are apt to blame the weather for things which might be kept under control if we only studied the conditions more thoroughly that produce the trouble. We all know that sunshine is what the grower needs to produce high grade stock, but we want roses whether the sun shines or not, as it is during the time that the sun does not shine that roses are selling at high prices.

In these days of rapid evolution in methods of culture, together with the introduction of newly discovered preventatives for insects and diseases, the principal thing to consider is the timely and persistent application of such remedies. Here it is that the careful grower will show himself to advantage over his more careless competitor, in that he is ever ready to anticipate and prevent evils instead of trying to cure them. During these dark days we find it necessary to use the sulphur bellows quite frequently. For this purpose we use the white sulphur or grape dust. We believe in light applications and except where mildew has shown its presence we do not apply it to the plants at all. During a prolonged cloudy spell we make it a point to go through the walks of the houses with the sulphur bellows every evening. It is the work of only a few minutes if performed by a person who has a little life in him. We start at one end of the house, walk backward and with the bellows blow the sulphur into the air above the walk. This is sufficient to purify the air and also dries it. We also keep a mixture of one-half yellow sulphur and one-half lime painted on the steam pipes. There is danger of getting this too strong, especially during heavy firing. We find it sufficient to paint one 1/4-inch steam pipe with the mixture in each house 20x100 feet.

If your roses have had a mulch of manure any time within the last eight weeks it would be best to have about three-fourths of it removed. For the next six weeks they will not need any feeding of any kind. If the soil in which they are planted is as it should be it contains sufficient food to carry them along without any stimulant. We would never advise using fertilizer of any kind from December 1 to January 15, as this is the most critical period of the whole season. Nature is almost at a standstill at this time and will resent any attempt to arouse it from its slumber. Many a fine batch of rose plants has been ruined by attempting to force them unreasonably at such times.

How to get a big crop of roses for the holidays is a question that has been worrying many a grower. This can only be done by either growing them specially for the holidays, or else so regulating your cut that the crop previous to the holidays will be off about seven weeks before. This will give the plants time to produce their next crop for the holidays. If your roses were in condition to bloom it has done no harm to increase the temperature 3° or 4° for the ten days before Christmas to get a few more flowers to meet the extra demand. Give all the air possible; this will improve both the stem and flower.

Present indications point to a scarcity of stock for the next few weeks, but do not let an extra price induce you to force your plants beyond reason. Remember you have still over four months' work for them to do. To weaken them now for the sake of a few extra flowers may mean failure for the balance of the season.

NEW ROSE ROBERT SCOTT.

The new rose, Robert Scott, has created a favorable impression wherever seen. Its delicate pink color and large size render it attractive to every rose lover and flower buyer. This rose is a seedling from Merville de Lyon. Belle Siebrecht was the pollen parent. The offspring combines the large size and form of the hybrid remontant, the seed parent, and the tree and continuous flowering qualities of the pollen parent, which it will be remembered is a hybrid tea. I am not quite sure but am inclined to think that Liberty has some of the Belle Siebrecht blood in it.

The color of Robert Scott is a very delicate pink, yet there is a brightness and freshness even in the full blown flowers that appeals to everyone. It looks very much like Baroness Rothschild in shape; the color may be a few shades darker than that well known hybrid perpetual, nearer possibly to the color of Mrs. John Laing or Mme. Gabriel Luizet. This point is difficult to determine, however, without having all the varieties named side by side for comparison. We will have to wait until spring time comes again before we can decide that point. It is a color, however, always in demand among roses and other cut flowers because ever popular.

Out at the rose growing establishment of Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., where this rose originated, same may be seen in fine shape. They have two large houses planted with it, each house containing 1250 plants or 2500 in all. This is an evidence of the faith this firm has in their new rose, which we believe is destined to become a standard winter blooming variety not soon to be displaced by anything superior to it in its line of color.

H. H. Battles, the popular and well known retailer of Philadelphia, knows a good thing when he sees it, hence he has secured the whole cut crop for his own exclusive use among the swell flower buyers of the Quaker City.

EDWIN LONSDALE.

SHRIVELING OF BLIND ROSE WOOD.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—We should like to know what causes the young wood on our Bride and Bridesmaid roses to shrivel and flatten. The plants were benched June 1, in four and one-half inches of wild grass sod. We began to feed on October 1, at which date the plants were healthy and free from mildew. They had a light top dressing of well rotted manure, soil and a sprinkling of air slaked lime. The night temperature was rather high through October and the plants made a rapid growth and light green foliage. Now the young blind wood on the weaker plants shrivels and flattens so that the stems lop over, while the foliage retains almost its natural color. Can you tell the cause and cure? Is it because the night temperature was too high?

D. & S.

The trouble may possibly be caused by the high temperature. The night temperature would certainly produce a very soft growth, which means that it has not enough wood fiber to support its rapid growth. A free circulation of air during the day and a temperature as nearly as possible 56° at night, maintained for the balance of the season, will gradually strengthen the wood and give a much better quality of flowers. Another cause for the trouble, or at least a factor in producing it, may be the want of some particular element in the soil necessary for the full development of the plants. This in conjunction with the above may be the actual cause of the trouble.

JOHN N. MAY.

DYING OFF OF ROSES.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have been growing roses for eight years and each season, in October or November, I have the same trouble. The plants will appear to be as healthy as one could wish and the crop of buds will be large and fine, when some of the plants will appear to rot and soon die. The rot always begins at the top of a shoot and progresses downward, until the plant is dead. Sometimes a plant will throw a splendid, strong, red shoot and in a day or two the rot will appear on some other part of the plant and finally the plant will die. Some years I have lost twenty-five or thirty plants in a house 20x100; other years the loss will be much less, but this year, in a house 20x100 and one 25x100. I have lost over fifty plants. The soil is clay sod and one-fifth cow manure, well rotted. After the soil was brought in I worked twenty pounds of bone meal into each bench 4x100. In four or five weeks, when the plants were growing well, I gave a mulch one and one-half inches thick of two parts well rotted cow manure and one part soil. About eight weeks later I cleaned off the benches and gave a sprinkling of bone meal, then putting on one and a half inches of mulch. The plants are making good growth, with fine dark green foliage. The new wood is red and the whole lot are as good as any roses I ever saw, but the dying off is as bad as ever. What is the cause and the remedy?

E. H.

This trouble undoubtedly comes from too much humus in the soil. The compost, as described, with the addition of the liberal dressing of bone meal would be ample stimulant to carry the plants well along into winter, but "E. H." adds another whole inch of manure to the already rich soil and before the plants have made any great root action in the compost, and then, only eight weeks later, adds another heavy mulching. If "E. H." will try another season to use only one-third the amount of mulching each time, half an inch each time instead of one and one-half inches, I think he will not lose his plants by rotting.

JOHN N. MAY.

Odontoglossum Crispum in Belgium.

This orchid, which ranks among the finest of the genus, is grown very extensively in Belgium for cutting as well as for the plants. Odontoglossum crispum comes from the mountains of Columbia and is found at an altitude varying upwards to 7,000 and 8,000 feet above the level of the sea. Various collectors say they have been seen in the early morning covered with a hoar-frost, which shows they should be grown cool. The maximum temperature should be about 55° and the minimum temperature about 45°.

It was once thought that Odontoglossum crispum would only succeed in peat and moss, but some ingenious Belgian tried them in the mould of oak-leaves with success and now the leading nurserymen grow them in pure leaf mould, with a top dressing of live sphagnum moss.

When newly imported plants are about to be potted it is best to fill the pots three-quarters full of potsherds and then fill with the leaf mould and moss, but when the plants have become established one crock is placed over the hole in the pot and the repotting is done as with any common plant.

They delight in plenty of air and moisture and plenty of water at the roots; in fact, they should never be allowed to become totally dry, as they have no resting season, like cattleyas and dendrobiums. Shading is also important, as they are very easily burned by the direct rays of the sun. The houses here have ventilators on the sides as well as on the roof, and are left open night and day throughout the summer. The plants are also syringed overhead after a warm, bright day, or in the morning before the sun gets very strong.

Fire heat is injurious to Odontoglossum crispum if carried to an excess, as it helps to breed thrips, which soon disfigure the young, tender leaves.

A plant of Odontoglossum crispum recently exhibited in London by F. Sander & Co., which was grown in their Bruges nursery, showed well the merits of this orchid. It had two spikes two feet long on one bulb, the two spikes bearing twenty-seven flowers, each of which measured from two and one-half to three inches in diameter. The pure white flowers on drooping spikes were a fine sight.

The leaf mould in Belgium is naturally adapted for orchids as it is intermixed with the fine sand of which Belgium is chiefly made up, which is carried by the wind during stormy weather. The moss if chopped fine and if kept moist will soon commence to grow and gives the pot a glossy green surface.

R. S. EDGAR.

The New Carnations.

A desire to know the experience of others in regard to some of the newer carnations, leads me to relate my own. I find Peru to be the purest "glistening white" I have ever seen; it is like a morning frost. The flower is good, is very fragrant and does not burst, but, like most other whites, the plant is weak constitutionally and with me rusted a little. It is a very free bloomer and does not crop. An all-around white seems hard to get. The best I have seen is owned by H. C. Rath, of Flushing, N. Y. White Cloud is a fine flower but I have not been able to coax many blooms out of it.

G. H. Crane is a good red, very free, healthy, etc., but some of mine came a little off color. I think I prefer Estelle, that funny little Tom Thumb with a big flower. The color is better and it is a good bloomer. It seems to be perfectly healthy and a great many plants can be crowded into a small space. I would think seven inches each way would be plenty of room for it. The stem is not very long but wiry.

Armazindy is a good plant for a fancy, also Gold Nugget. Gomez is a beautiful, rich color, a good bloomer and this year, so far has been perfectly healthy with me. I think Maceo the strongest, constitutionally, but I suppose Roosevelt will make it take a back seat next year. To my mind Olympia is the most perfect blossom in shape of any of the new ones but the plant seems to be a poor grower, and flowers are mighty scarce with me and about half of my plants succumbed to stem-rot.

Genevieve Lord is a good, strong, healthy plant, has most too much foliage but is a very free bloomer, does not burst and is easy to grow. The flowers are of good size but I prefer a brighter pink. The Marquis is a beautiful shade of pink, good sized flower, well filled, but does not open out enough to suit me. The plant is a little grassy and has proved healthy so far, but I am watching it and must have it for its color.

If I could only have one variety I don't know which I should choose. Ethel Crocker or Mrs. Lawson. Ethel Crocker is a great flower, well nigh perfect in color, size, shape, fragrance, etc., but Mrs. Lawson is a great plant. The florist who gets a seedling combining the best qualities of each will just about be "it." Crocker is a good, strong, healthy plant, symmetrical and almost ideal in growth, but Lawson grows like an ailanthus tree and there is not a superfluous leaf upon it. So far as growth is concerned, it is a lion among carnations. The blooms are the largest and brightest, yet it lacks the delicacy in color and outline and gracefulness of some other varieties. What a robust grower it is, and its strength extends to its seedlings. You can tell them as soon as they open their seed leaves. No matter what the cross has been the blood of Daybreak shows. Some of them have the same curl in the leaves, reminding one of the curl in the tail of a fat pig, well bred and well fed.

This is as far as I have got. Next year I shall try Roosevelt and Prosperity and some of this year's introductions, also some pet seedling of my own to lie about and foist upon an innocent and unsuspecting public. WILLIAM T. JAMES.

Chestnut Hill Horticultural Society.

At the December meeting of the Chestnut Hill Horticultural Society, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, John T. Morris; vice presidents, William Boyce, Alexander Stewart, Frank Gould and Fred. Michell; treasurer, Wm. H. Houston; executive council, Chas. A. Knapp, Robt. G. Carey, Hans. Reuter, Chas. W. Henry, Randal Morgan, Robert Le Boutillier and J. H. Humphreys.

The exhibits were of good quality, first prizes being awarded to G. W. Brown, James Bell, Michael Punch, William Vander Ver and John Little. Frank Gould, gardener to John T. Morris, showed a fine specimen of Sansevieria Zeylanica. It is a rare thing to find this plant in flower, but this specimen was heavy with bloom. Edwin Lonsdale had on exhibition a plant of the rare Cypripedium insigne Ernestii. This variety has flowers with lip and petals of a decided shade of yellow, and what few spots there are on the dorsal sepal are quite faint, whereas in the type the prevailing color is a greenish yellow and the spots quite numerous and brown in color. Mr. Lonsdale also had a display of Lorraine begonias, both the original variety and its sport, which produces delicate pink flowers. The plants of the newer variety seemed more compact in manner of growth, yet more robust and the flowers appeared larger.

Eleven persons were admitted to membership and the committee on the fall show reported all accounts and premiums paid and a small balance still in the treasury. We feel that this is a fairly good showing for a year's work.

J. H. H.

Chrysanthemum Jottings.

We illustrate in this issue a house of chrysanthemums on the place of William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass. The variety is F. B. Hayes, a very good pink which Mr. Sim is growing with excellent results. The house shown was grown to cut for Thanksgiving and the photograph was taken November 25. The variety may be brought in later by growing cooler. The plants were set in rows six by eight inches in the beds and were grown to three flowers. The plants average two and one-half feet in height.

Omega is a second early yellow, reaching its perfection about October 25. The blooms are the shade of Mrs. J. J. Glessner, and develop to about seven and one-half inches in diameter. This is after the style of Vivian-Morel, but the petals are broader. Nathan Smith & Son have received the C. S. A. certificate of merit for Omega.

Mrs. Ritson is listed among the European novelties offered by Nathan Smith & Son. It is a white sport from Vivian-Morel and possesses all the characteristics of that variety.

ALL THOUGHTS CENTERED UPON THE AGGREGATE OF CHRISTMAS TRADE.—DETAILS OF THE SITUATION—LOW GRADE MATERIAL THAT WHICH IS TO BE FEARED.—PLANT TRADE IS PROSPEROUS.—RETAILERS DECORATE THEIR STORES.—BASKETS AGAIN IN HIGH FAVOR.—AMERICAN INSTITUTE MEETING.—NOTES.

Interest in the immediate present of the flower market—its ups and downs—is swallowed up in the more momentous question of the coming holiday supply and demand. In view of the discrimination now exercised by customers in buying any flowers of which varying grades are offered and the strong prejudice against the inferior grades, existing even among the lower class of buyers, it is not to be expected that there will be any surplus of fine choice material on Christmas day or the day before and for this brief period, at least, those who demand high grade material will have to pay well for it. But it is to the stock left after this selection has been made and which comprises the larger proportion of the aggregate cut that dealers look with apprehension and to the stock received in the market or stored in the cellars in the dull and profitless days in the interim, which, however, high in quality at time of cutting, must necessarily in these days of critical buyers, if unsold previous to the holiday, take its chances in the same class with the fresher lower quality stock. It being an indisputable fact that customers are generally able to detect at once any traces of age in a rose, it follows that the place for roses as soon as they are ready for market is in the wholesalers' hands and not in the cellar of the grower. The former understands the situation best and may be depended upon to get for the goods all they will bring by immediate sale or by withholding them for a rise, as the condition of the market may justify. Had this oft-repeated advice been heeded and acted upon during past years the cut flower industry would not have been in the humiliating position it occupies to-day in relation to the plant industry and from which there now seems no possibility of extricating it.

The holiday plant trade is in a most prosperous condition if the order books of the growers serve as any index to the situation. Practically all really good stock in flowering and berried plants is all sold two weeks in advance, and the late buyers will find, but little available material at any establishment of good reputation. For oranges, ardisias, solanums and poinsettias the call on the growers has been very heavy and the wholesale demand for azaleas, begonias, primroses and ericas would indicate that the retailers anticipate a tremendous sale. The less showy subjects, such as palms, cyperus, dracenas, araucarias, aspidistras, pandanus, ficuses and ferns large and small, have naturally been in less active demand but of all these sales have been greatly augmented, especially in the small ferns and other things that harmonize acceptably with blooming material in the mixed fancy baskets and jardinieres which are now so popular. During the few remaining days most of the time in the city florists' stores will be devoted to arranging and preparing these attractive combinations, in the grouping of which there is fully as much scope for the display of artistic taste as was ever the case with the cut flower creations of bygone days.

The growing popularity of the zinc lined hampers and fancy baskets for growing plants or combinations of plants and cut flowers has given an impetus to the basket maker's trade that will be appreciated by them. In the old days of the short-stemmed flower the basket shared with the formal bouquet the popular favor and the basket houses found the floral demand an important item of their business, but with the introduction of the long stemmed flowers and the consequent changes in the floral fashions the basket demand languished and the basket maker had to look to others than the florists if he wanted to stay in business. In the interim the basket people have evidently not forgotten their old friends and now when the opening is given them they are placing at the disposal of the florists, productions which display both enterprise and artistic taste and the florist who fails to provide for his customers a good assortment of these beautiful and appropriate holiday gifts is making a great mistake.

At the meeting of the American Institute on Wednesday, December 12, there was a fine display of orchids contributed by C. G. Roebeling, John Crosby Brown, G. C. Rand, Julius Roehrs and Lager & Hurrell. Mr. Lager gave an interesting account of some of his experiences in orchid collecting and Dr. Rydberg and H. A. Siebrecht also made remarks on the same subject. The New York Horticultural Society held a meeting afterwards and Dr. Britton, who had recently returned from a European trip, described what he had seen at the foreign botanical gardens and museums and the horticultural pavilions of the Paris Exposition.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met in this city Saturday, December 15, and finally decided to hold the spring exhibition of roses at the Waldorf-Astoria in March, the exact date to be announced later. The price of admission tickets has been set at $1, and the proceeds will be for the benefit of the city branch of the Loomis Consumptives' Home.

At Thomas Young, Jr.'s, a fine bunch of the new rose, Robert Scott, was seen a few days ago. This promises to be a fit companion to the American Beauty and its silky pink color is sure to be popular.

J. K. Allen is making an effort to re-introduce the white camellia to the elite florists' trade. He says that it is now time to bury the hatchet and give the grand old flower a chance.

TRADE LIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS.—CARNATION VALUES ARE UP.—PROSPECTS FOR HOLIDAY SUPPLY.—GROWERS HOLDING THEIR CUTS.—WITH MISTLETOE AND GREENS—VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST.

Naturally the general demand in the cut flower business is quite light this week, but very stiff prices have ruled on carnations, the lower grades of which are bringing from $3 to $5 a hundred, fancy sorts being quoted fully as high as roses in some instances. Roses have not, so far, displayed any ability to soar. There appears to be a sufficient supply of them for all immediate requirements and the customary Christmas rates will evidently have to wait until the actual Christmas distribution begins before they will be operative. There is little likelihood that, even then, stored stock will participate in the higher prices or, in fact, bring any more than it would if marketed fresh this week. Violets are not abundant in the market and have not been for a fortnight. Growers say that they are not blooming; city dealers, on the other hand, are skeptical, asserting that the flowers are purposely being left unpicked and that there will be no scarcity of violets the day before Christmas. The present scarcity, however, does not appear to cause any privation. Prices have been advanced to the limit which this market will stand on the quality produced for it, and customers are by no means tumbling over one another to procure violets.

The market shows the usual line of material for Christmas in cut flowers and plants, with a noticeable increase, in quantity and variety and advance in quality, of the latter. The season seems to have favored the azaleas, which are especially good, Deutsch Perle, Simon Mardner and Vervaeneana being the varieties in evidence. Mistletoe is arriving in perhaps better shape than ever before. This not true of holly, however, which has in many instances been received in a badly dried-up condition by the jobbers and, being unsalable at any figure, will be a loss to the shippers. The trouble appears to be that, being unable to foresee the warm, open fall, the pickers collected the holly too early in the season and the weather has been more than it could stand. This is the more to be regretted because of the large quantity of berries this season. Late picked holly is arriving all right and is, as a rule, very fine. Prices have been badly cut and demoralized and there is but little profit in holly now for any one.

WHOLESALE TRADE AT THE HEIGHT OF THE CHRISTMAS RUSH.—MANY VERY LARGE ORDERS BOOKED FOR SHIPMENT.—ONLY FIRST CLASS STOCK WANTED AND MOST OF THE SUPPLIES ARE LOW GRADE.—BEAUTIES ARE GENERALLY GOOD.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

This issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST makes its appearance in the midst of the Christmas rush and while it is yet too early to form any definite conclusions as to the aggregate results of the season's business. The week began with a moderate demand and a short supply of flowers, particularly first-class roses and colored carnations. There can be no doubt that the growers were holding back their product for the high prices which they expect to realize just before Christmas, and the result was that the prices for the items most in demand went up very nearly to the holiday level. He is a smart grower who holds back his cut the second week before a holiday and gets it in during the period when all other producers are holding back. As the week progressed a great many orders were booked for shipment on Saturday and Sunday, and many of the orders ran into the hundreds of dollars. It seems probable that never before in the same period were there so many flowers shipped out of Chicago as will be the case in the three days before Christmas this year. In fact the shipping business began on Thursday, when the long distance boxes went out, but the bulk of the orders were for Saturday and Sunday shipment. While the bright sunshine of the past few days has done much to bring along the roses and carnations, there is, at the time of going to press, no indication of other than a shortage of the better grades of these items. All of the wholesalers are facing a demand which calls for nothing but first-class stock and it is a regrettable fact that only a very small proportion of the cut can be classed as strictly first-class. Indeed, it is asserted by some growers that the Christmas flowers have seldom been as poor, on an average, as they are this year. This is accounted for from the fact that the warm fall caused weak growth in both roses and carnations, from which the plants have not yet recovered. Some growers even go so far as to say that they fear their plants will not be in good shape during any part of the season and that low grade stock is all they expect to be able to produce before it is time to throw out the plants. This observation does not apply to Beauties, for they are very good with most growers, and there are some excellent carnations, although many of them have weak stems.

L. Koropp has a nice stock of Asparagus decumbens from which he is cutting sprays. Wienhoeber and Samuelson are using them with good effect in nice work that requires a light, airy green, but the price is too high for the ordinary run of floral work. However, Mr. Koropp says that he is not yet able to grow this variety at a profit at a popular price.

F. H. Anderman, who some years ago had extensive greenhouses at Lake Forest has been on trial for his sanity but Judge Jones, at the Detention Hospital, pronounced him of sound mind.

Phil. Hauswirth celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday December 18, and the members of the bowling club took advantage of the occasion to present him with a regulation ball and cover.

There have been large supplies of holly in this market and some of it very good. There is, however, a large proportion of the cases which are not worth the very low prices asked.

McKellar & Winterson have a lot of good Harrisii lilies in from one of their growers for Christmas. They were quickly sold at 25 cents per bud and flower.

Frank W. Williams, who has been connected with a number of well-known establishments in the east, is in town with the intention of locating here.

Chas. Raupach, of Park Ridge, Ill., is at present supplying, as he has often done before, as fine Bridesmaid roses as have ever been seen in this market.

Niel Jakobsen, formerly with the Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo., is now assistant to James S. Wilson, of Vaughan's greenhouses, Western Springs, Ill.

George Reinberg shipped his first batch of carnation and rose cuttings on December 17. He reports the cutting trade opening in fine shape.

E. C. Amling was down to New Castle last Sunday and says that he found there the finest crop of Christmas Beauties he ever handled.

C. S. Stewart is now buyer at Schubert's, having succeeded Mr. Murphy, who goes with the Art Floral Company.

John Schneider has returned to Kansas City after spending two weeks here, resting up.

PROSPECTS FOR A BUSY HOLIDAY SEASON.—BUSINESS QUIET BEFORE THE STORM.—MILD WEATHER FAVORABLE TO ALL CONCERNED.—SPORTING TALES.—QUEEN TO QUEEN.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

At this writing the prospects for a busy Christmas are bright. The retail demand is said to be fully up to last season at this time and the commission men say their books are rapidly filling up with orders for holiday trade, the select stock being particularly in demand. The prices will be about the same as last season, there being very little change in the advance lists sent out over those of a year ago. The weather, which for the past week has been cold, the glass showing for several days from 10° to 15° of frost, has now moderated to above freezing and clear. If this continues it will insure a very good supply of almost everything. Business the past week has been quiet, as it generally is before a holiday. Prices, however, have kept up, as even with the light demand stock did not seem to accumulate, that is, at the city end, which is the limit of our vision. The ground pine was certainly scarce and prices ran up as high as 20 cents per pound, where the parties had to have it. The holly arriving is very good, as is also the mistletoe. The mild weather was a boon to the growers and saved them much labor. If it continues the storemen will also have a deal to be thankful for. Poinsettias are scarce; they are a great Christmas plant but for some reason the growers hereabouts do not seem to grow them.

If you want to hear a fresh subject treated artistically just ask George Anderson or Bart. Cartledge the difference between a "flush" and a "blind" and see what will happen. You will find yourself down in the North Carolina woods with your nerves on edge for wild turkey, quail, cottontails and other cute and wary denizens of the forest, and all thoughts of gun club averages and handicap percentages completely forgotten in listening to the graphic and picturesque details from the doughty sons of Nimrod. If their other senses were all as well oiled as their linguistic faculties it must have been a cold week for fur and feathers. Their tongues are surely hung in the middle.

The Queen of Edgely has gone on a visit to the Queen of England, Alfred Dimmock, now on his way home, having a box of this fine rose in his charge. Each rose is supplied with water during its journey from one of Kift's rubber-capped flower tubes. It will be interesting to see how they carry, as the success of the venture may open a new market for Philadelphia rose growers.

Pennock's new van is on the street. It is a handsome wagon and makes the folks turn around as it goes by, so it can be said to be a great success.

Robert Craig expects to start for the west next week.

SIXTEEN CLUB MEMBERS TO ONE DECEMBER MEETING.—THE UDES PRESENT ESSAYS AT THE SAME FUNCTION.—SAMPLE BLOOMS ARE SHOWN.—GOOD CHRYSANTHEMUMS AND CARNATIONS.—PRIZES OFFERED FOR JANUARY EXHIBITS.—NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held on Thursday, December 13, with sixteen members present and, after the usual order of business, Dr. Halstead was called on to read his paper on "New Carnations from a Commercial Standpoint," but asked to be excused until next meeting as he had not had the time to prepare himself. F. W. Ude, Jr., read a very interesting paper on "The Latest Facts about Carnations." He spoke principally of the new varieties, mentioning as those which have done best with him Ethel Crocker and Joost. Olympia has disappointed him. H. G. Ude sent his essay on violets to the secretary, as he could not come in person. He wrote that it is his practice to keep the runners picked off the violet plants until about two weeks before planting. He then plants without pinching, gives an abundance of water and does not pinch the runners again until the plants have started into strong growth. One year he took up his plants and pinched them back when he planted them; the result was that he had a late crop and the plants stayed weak for some time.

Nathan Smith & Son, of Adrian, sent blooms of their new late pink chrysanthemum, Superba, which was of good color, stem and foliage and should be a good thing for Christmas trade. President Guy, of Belleville, brought a nice vase of The Marquis, which showed good color and stiff stems. Fred. Ammann, who is an old grower of Wm. Scott, claims that both Genevieve Lord and Frances Joost surpass it for quality and quantity. His roses are looking good, he says. Dr. Halstead brought a nice box of carnations, including the four reds, Chicago or Red Bradt, Jubilee, Fire-fly and Crane. Some of the others that he showed were Mrs. Geo. M. Bradt, Joost, Wm. Scott and C. A. Dana. His Danas are very large and strong plants and are blooming well.

The annual carnation show will be held at the next meeting, January 12, and $10 will be offered in three prizes for the best vases of fifty carnations, competition open to members only. From now until summer the trustees will award $10 in prizes each month. The secretary was instructed to write to firms that have new carnations and ask them to send a few blooms for exhibition purposes.

Rudolph J. Mohr mentioned the Zvolanek's Christmas sweet pea which he is growing. He planted the seeds October 15, in pots and at present is cutting some nice flowers. The wings and keel are white, while the standard is pink with darker penciling. He was asked to bring some blooms to the January meeting.

The South Side Carnation Company is rather late with lily of the valley for Christmas, but will get them in time for the New Year. They have also a nice lot of calla lilies and narcissi. Their carnations were troubled with rust in the field but seem to have outgrown it in the houses.

R. J. Mohr has gone to Omaha for the holidays. R. J. M.

FLORISTS AND GARDENERS ELECT A CORPS OF OFFICERS FOR NEXT YEAR.—TRADE GOOD AND PRICES HIGH BECAUSE OF SHORT SUPPLIES—VARIOUS SETTINGS OF CANADIAN INTEREST.

The regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Florists' and Gardeners' Association was held in St. George's Hall, December 18, but owing to inclement weather the attendance was poor. The financial part of our recent show was settled and officers were elected for the ensuing year, as follows: President, J. W. Lawrence; vice-president, Walter Woods, second vice-president, Ernest Collins; secretary, Wm. Jay; treasurer, George Mills; executive committee, Thos. Manton, John Chambers, Walter Muston, Joseph Graham, H. G. Dillemath, John H. Dunlop and A. Watkins; auditors, George Manton and D. Robertson. As delegates to the Industrial Exhibition John H. Dunlop and Walter Muston were elected. This carried the meeting until a late hour and after a movement that a letter of sympathy and condolence be forwarded to the family of W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, it was decided to adjourn and keep the speeches for our next meeting.

The past week has been a very busy one, and, owing to a large number of weddings and other social functions, the lull which usually precedes the storm has not visited us. Stock of all kinds is very scarce, although we have had several bright days which have developed buds, and the demand is so great that very little can be held back for Christmas. Unless Old Sol favors us with some more of this brightness there will be a decided shortage for the holidays. Roses are good and very free from mildew. I went through a 600-foot house at Dunlop's and it was a pleasure to the eye, filled completely with Brides and Bridesmaids, full crop. Many plants had from four to six flowers almost developed. The outlook for Beauties and Liberties is poor and the stems are not as good as one expects at this season of the year. Carnations are very scarce but the stock is excellent and brings good prices. Those few growers who are fortunate enough to have a few violets are asking big prices and, what is better, getting them.

A Bit of Trade History.

It is an odd fact that the largest commission cut flower business in the west should have had its inception in the failure of two brothers to make a success of a retail store. It was in the spring of sixteen years ago that Flint and Amaza Kennicott started a flower store at 263 Wabash avenue, Chicago. It took but a few weeks to convince them that, no matter how thorough their horticultural knowledge, they had mistaken their calling; they then resolved to begin wholesaling, relying chiefly upon the garden flowers from the family homestead at The Grove, where Amaza Kennicott still lives and where Flint Kennicott spends his summers. The Kennicott Brothers started wholesaling in 1884 at 74 Washington street, where Marshall Field's new retail building now stands. The beginning was in a room nearly as large as the average wholesaler's ice box of to-day. At first it was necessary to go to the buyers with stock in a basket but soon some consignments were secured and since then the business has developed apace with the extension of commercial floriculture. C. W. Northrup, of LaGrange, was the first consignor to the firm and it is a matter of pride with them that they still handle his cut. After a time Flint Kennicott bought out his brother's interest but continued the business without change of firm name. At the time, now nearly ten years ago, when the experiment of a cut flower exchange was tried unsuccessfully in Chicago, Mr. Kennicott saw a decided advantage in increased capital with which to push the business and he incorporated the Kennicott Brothers Company, with the result that a block of the stock soon passed into the hands of Edward E. and G. H. Pieser and they became associated with Mr. Kennicott in the active management of the business. E. E. Pieser has had a varied experience in the flower business and as a salesman has no superior. He is of an analytical turn of mind and his favorite occupation for leisure moments is the study of cause and effect as related to the state of the market. It is the function of the secretary to preside over the accounts of the firm, no inconsiderable task, but one so well within his grasp that he keeps things up-to-the-minute without reducing his comfortable avoirdupoise.

TRADE VERY GOOD.—PREPARATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS.—RETAILERS STOCKING UP WITH PLANTS.—CUT FLOWER PRICES HIGH.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

Trade was exceptionally good the past week, roses and carnations being in sufficient supply to satisfy all, with a shortage in violets. The retailers are busy decorating for Christmas, each trying to outdo the rest. A good many are stocking up with azaleas, primulas and other blooming plants, and state they will not stock very heavy in cut flowers, as the prices are too high. Beauties are the roses most in demand, with Brides and Bridesmaids available in surplus. There is always a good demand for Meteors and it seems to be the prevailing rose here, taken in preference to the Beauty. Plenty of design work keeps the culls cleaned up in nice shape. Carnations are in fine condition, Lawson, Joost, White Cloud and Mrs. Bradt being exceedingly good. They are bringing all the way from 50 cents to $1 a dozen.

E. Nagel & Co. have a display of primulas in their window this week, fine plants, full of bloom and in a good, healthy state.

Miss H. B. Whitted has a pretty display of palms, ferns and blooming plants tastefully arranged with holly and wreathing and causes many to linger and feast their eyes.

R. Will, whose specialty is carnations, reports trade excellent. He intends to enlarge his plant in the near future.

LOCAL ORGANIZATION OF GARDENERS AND FLORISTS PLANS TO ESTABLISH PERMANENT HOME.—STATE OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

The Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club had a well attended meeting on December 10 at which it was voted to have the annual dinner in January. The club has determined to make an effort to procure a home of its own and a committee consisting of G. Robinson, J. McKenna, J. Bennett, H. Wilshire and W. Hall was appointed to further the project. Following the business meeting A. Pinoteau read an excellent paper descriptive of his trip to the Paris Exposition and the many horticultural things of interest he saw there.

Unfavorable weather is prevailing and stock is scarce. The skies are overclouded almost all the time and we have had a number of very cold days, so that all blooming is retarded. Chrysanthemums are becoming scarce. They sold out very well this season, especially the first-class blooms. It is the large flowers that are wanted this year. Carnations are not yet up to the standard but there is more call for them than we can supply. Roses, violets and mignonette are all in demand but are also poor in quality. Romans and Paper White narcissi are becoming plentiful.

TRADE VERY QUIET IN THE CRESCENT CITY.—DULL PERIOD BETWEEN SEASONS.—AT AUDUBON PARK.

For the last month business has been very slow. It is not far enough in the carnival season to expect many balls and decorations and it is too soon for the opening of trade on market plants, so we shall not have much to do for awhile. Beds of pansies, sweet alyssum, petunias, phlox, etc., are seen here and there, for we have had no killing frosts thus far. Owing to the good weather, work is being pushed well forward everywhere.

At Audubon Park a chain of lakes and a wading pool for children have been decided upon by the commissioners. The board has also ordered a large number of trees, now in the nursery, to be taken out and distributed in the park where they are most needed, but it is more than likely that they will have to get many more from northern and western nurseries.

Mr. Good, of Good & Reese, Springfield, Ohio, has been in town. It was his first trip to the Crescent City.

KAISERIN KING VISITS THE GOOD GROWERS AT MARION.—EXCELLENT CHRYSANTHEMUMS EVERYWHERE.—CARNATIONS DOING WELL.

A few weeks ago, when chrysanthemums were occupying the center of the stage, I made a visit to Marion and was met at the depot by Gunnar Teilmann, who drove me to his greenhouses two and one-half miles north of the city. After a bountiful dinner we were escorted to a house 20x125 in which the Major Bonnaffons were truly a grand sight, well worth our journey. Nearly every bloom seemed to be an exhibition flower. After seeing these well finished flowers I am not surprised that Mr. Teilmann was a successful exhibitor at Chicago, Indianapolis and St. Louis. In another house of the same size we saw Mrs. S. T. Murdock, Mrs. H. Robinson, Mrs. O. P. Bassett, Vivian-Morel and several other varieties, all well done. Among the sorts on trial was Fee du Champsaur, which Mr. Teilmann regards as the best commercial white. He says that Bonnaffon is the most profitable commercial variety with him, as every bloom is marketable. I asked him how he managed to get Bonnaffons in a week or ten days earlier than most people. He said: "I think that is due to high feeding. I am a great believer in giving them lots of good food and I always attend to that myself." His rose plants were small but healthy and I judge they will be in good shape for Christmas. Carnations were very good and gave promise of a continuous crop all winter.

Mr. Teilmann drove us to Mr. Barnard's greenhouses. Here we were met by Ed. Bissell, the genial foreman, who showed us some extra fine Mrs. H. Robinson, grown in 10-inch pots, three plants to a pot and one flower to a plant. They were the largest and best finished Robinsons I ever saw, but unfortunately some of the lower petals showed signs of damping before they were quite finished. Vivian-Morel, Bonnaffon and several other varieties were grown on benches. Mr. Barnard has two houses of carnations which are in the best of health. America and Crane are remarkably fine, having been grown inside all summer. Mr. Barnard has this summer built two houses each 25x100 feet, which are located about half way between his old site and the Soldiers' Home. One house is planted in carnations and the other in roses; the carnations looked especially fine.

The Soldiers' Home was also visited. Here a large house of chrysanthemums was in full bloom and nearly every flower in the house would be a credit to any chrysanthemum show in our large cities. The varieties which produced the best blooms here were Mrs. Robinson, Golden Wedding, Modesto, Niveus, Mrs. Murdock and Bonnaffon. Mr. Robinson is the successful grower. W. W. COLES.

TRADE IS VERY BRISK.—CROP PROSPECTS FOR CHRISTMAS.—CLUB TAKES ACTION ON DEATH OF FOUNDER.—VISITORS.

Trade has been good and this week will be another busy one for receptions, although the florists would prefer that the social events come between Christmas and New Year's, when it is decidedly quiet. Carnations and violets are scarce and will be so for Christmas. Roses will be equal to the demand, although Beauties will not be in overstock and prices will be high. There is a surplus of holly, while pine is scarce. Laurel is in demand.

A special meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club was called on Saturday to take action on the death of the founder of the club, W. J. Palmer. A motion was made that a wreath of lilies of the valley be sent by the club and that they all attend the funeral, which was carried. It was also moved that a committee of three be appointed to draft suitable resolutions and send to the family. President Kasting appointed Wm. Scott, D. B. Long and W. A. Adams on this committee.

A SPLENDID WHITE CARNATION.—OTHER GOOD STOCK.—AN ADVOCATE OF SUB-WATERING.—BRYFOGLE IS PROSPEROUS.

J. L. Dillon has a peerless white carnation in Queen Louise. It is all that need be in size and form of flower, length and strength of stem and strength of calyx; the color is pure and it is in crop continuously from October to June. Mr. Dillon is naturally pleased to show the variety to both retailers and growers. He is now offering cuttings. As usual Mr. Dillon is growing verbenas by the hundreds of thousands. Orders are already being booked for present and spring delivery. A stroll through the rose houses shows Liberty to have made splendid headway, showing a quantity of fine, long-stemmed buds. The plants look vigorous and healthy. There is a small lot of Sunrise, the new copper-colored rose introduced last season by the E. G. Hill Company. It is doing splendidly here and Mr. Dillon thinks it sure to rival Perle, if not displace it. During the summer very nearly all the benches in the establishment were equipped for sub-irrigation, in which Mr. Dillon has come to be a firm believer.

At W. C. Brytogle's things are in the best of condition. Carnations are doing finely, especially Ethel Crocker. Roses, too, are good. Bedding stock of all sorts is grown in quantity here, the demand for the past few years having induced Mr. Brytogle to largely increase his facilities in this direction. NOMIS.

NOTEWORTHY THINGS AT THE ULLRICH ESTABLISHMENT.—IMPROVEMENTS COMPLETED AND CONTEMPLATED.

One seldom calls on Lewis Ullrich without finding that gentleman with much to attend to. During my recent call it was a case of funeral work, a wagon load of it, there being three funerals in town that day. Something new is always going on at Mr. Ullrich's. The latest improvement is in the heating facilities. A new brick smoke stack is up and doing good work. It is a lofty monument to a florist's enterprise, being eighty feet tall and put up to stay. A new boiler room, with one of the finest of 100-horse-power boilers, was also finished during early autumn. Next on the list will be a modern asparagus house, one wherein strings can be grown to meet the requirements of the most fastidious decorator. It is Mr. Ullrich's intention to build this house during the coming summer. He is now growing 30,000 asparagus plants. As grown here the Golden Gate rose is a great thing. I have often wondered why this rose is not grown more extensively elsewhere. All the stock is doing well, both roses and carnations and miscellaneous plants. NOMIS.

West Hoboken, N. J.

Some of the best azaleas ever seen in this neighborhood at Christmas are blooming at John Rickert's. There are a large number of them but they will all go and there is an enormous quantity of bulbous stock ready to occupy the space as soon as vacated. That the smiling and popular proprietor is making money is very evident. For a place of the size the quantity of material turned out annually is astonishing. There are dracaenas, rubbers and small ferns, lilies, stevia, narcissi and Roman hyacinths packed into every available corner and the two new houses built this season are crowded to the limit with salable stock.

Otto Grundmann, of Seacaucus, has a smaller quantity of azaleas, etc. This grower makes a specialty of hardy roses in pots and Jacqs. for cut flowers. These are still in process of freezing. There are about 5,000 potted hybrids which will give a good account of themselves when the spring time comes.

Rudolph Asmus, whom everybody likes, is having good success with his roses this year. With the exception of Liberty they are all in fine shape. Growers generally are beginning to believe that Liberty must have bottom heat in order to be a success as a winter bloomer.

Over at Seacaucus, L. Nelson has a big supply of ferns, including Boston ferns in specimen sizes. He makes a specialty of small ferns in pans. The large variety of tough sorts now being grown makes these little assorted groups very popular for table adornment on account of their good keeping qualities.

Scranton, Pa.

The outlook for Christmas trade is hopeful and the craft is preparing for the usual rush and push, as it all comes at once, so unlike some other lines. The usual greens will be a feature in the early trade. There will be the usual cry of high prices for cut flowers, but the people are getting used to it and there is less complaint than formerly. The boys are all glad to see the cold weather come, as it makes everybody more lively. Trade in the coal fields was unusually dull this summer and fall. The coal miners' strike and the after effect have hurt all lines of trade in the coal district more than the outside world knows and we want no more strikes here. The price of coal has gone up, and the large companies are buying up all of the individual coal operators, which will mean that the prices to the consumer in this region will be still higher.

Some of the growers in Scranton and Wilkesbarre have nice lots of well grown poinsettias in pots and fern pans.

T. B. McClintock added a house to his place this summer and Ira G. Marvin, of Wilkesbarre, added another range to his large place.

The stock at George E. Fancourt's and B. F. Dorrance's, on the Kingston flats, is exceptionally fine. These men grow mostly roses and they turn out good stock.

SCRANTONIAN.

Wilmington, Del.

Wm. H. Vance has been busy making additions and improvements at his plant, which now contains between 17,000 and 18,000 feet of glass. He has enlarged one house, making it 30x100, and has built another house 14x40 for forcing purposes. He grows chrysanthemums, asparagus, smilax and carnations especially and all his stock is looking well, as, for that matter, is the stock of every grower in Wilmington. In this neighborhood growers have not been bothered by stem-rot in carnations, as has been the case in other sections, and everybody seems to have a good crop coming on for Christmas. In carnations Ethel Crocker has done well with every one, and so has G. H. Crane. These two are good ones. With us Genevieve Lord is about like Crocker. Mrs. Lippincott, Mrs. Joost and Mack Richmond are doing splendidly and are sure to become standard sorts. The Marquis has not done so well but is coming along nicely now. Hill, Scott, McGowan and Cartledge are the stand-bys here.

Mansfield, O.

If one is to judge by the various improvements made on the place since I last visited it, the Berno Floral Company is certainly moving forward. A brand new stable, a new system of hot water heating and a thorough overhauling of the entire plant were the work of the past season. Their new delivery wagon, a very useful as well as an ornamental affair, could not possibly be improved upon. Trade has been unusually good all through the season, cut flowers selling well at fair prices and funeral work and decorations of one sort or another helping to swell the volume of business. The Berno Floral Company had several excellent orders for designs for Senator Sherman's funeral.

NOMIS.

Birmingham, Ala.

Holiday trade promises to be equal to our trade of last Christmas, which was our largest since Lindsay opened the first retail flower store in Birmingham, about ten years ago. The sale for blooming plants has never been as large here as in northern cities of equal size, all calls being for cut flowers. Mrs. Lindsay has now six 100-foot houses, all in good condition. Her American Beauties are the only ones grown here and compare favorably with those at the north. A house of Brides, one of carnations and one of Marie Louise and Swanley White violets are fully up to standard.

F.

Columbus, O.

The A. W. Livingston Seed Company is pushing the bouquet green and holly business more than ever and a large force is at work on roping and holly wreaths. One of the best chrysanthemum seasons in the history of the firm has just been brought to a close. Miss Stubenrath, formerly with C. H. Roth, is now in the cut flower department at Livingston's.

Geo. L. Miller, of Newark, O., was a caller this week. He is very much taken with the new carnation, Columbus, a cross between Daybreak and Scott, which is doing so well at the Franklin Park Floral Company's place. S. S. Skidelsky has his eye on it and will no doubt control the whole stock. The flower is a shade deeper than Daybreak and it is a most prolific bloomer, producing flowers the size of a large Daybreak.

Gus. Drobisch is preparing for a large spring trade. He has a largemail trade, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. Drobisch is one of the best posted florists in the state.

CARL.

Harrisburg, Pa.

Roses, carnations and violets are scarce here just now, particularly the latter. Tea roses sell at from $3.50 to $6 per 100; Beauties, $3 to $6 per dozen; chrysanthemums, $1 to $3 per dozen. The largest growers here are J. D. Breneman, Gus Hanson, Robert Graham, John Schalteister and Mr. Parker. Wm. Miller, across the river, also has a considerable range and brings in some good stock. Most of the growers also do more or less retail business, but the Melrose Floral Company, Joseph Schmidt, Wm. Winters and others all report fair business, with good prospects for the holidays.

T. J. W.

Meridian, Miss.

The florist business is gradually increasing in the south and those in this vicinity who are well equipped are at present facing a prospect for a very prosperous season. Christmas trade promises to be good, a number of orders having been booked three weeks or more in advance. Both decorative and flowering plants promise to be in active demand as Christmas gifts.

John W. Marshall, Jr., has just completed an establishment costing $3,000. It is up-to-date in every particular. He has benched 1,500 rose plants and 500 carnations, the rest of his space being devoted to miscellaneous stock.

M.

Lincoln, Neb.

At this date trade continues good, weather cloudy, cold and damp. A visit to Lincoln growers shows them to be busy and well cleaned out of stock. Carnations and roses are looking well, with good crops in sight. There is little in the line of blooming plants. Very few azaleas will be in for Christmas, but there will be a plenty of good palms, Boston ferns and rubbers to go around.

EASTER of next year, 1901, falls on April 7.

WE wish all our patrons a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

DEFECTIVE heaters are the cause of many a disastrous greenhouse fire at this season.

THE circle of friends of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is widening as rapidly as acquaintanceship with this meritorious subject spreads.

THE strike of the window glass makers has been declared off, the men acknowledging defeat, and production is now likely to be considerably increased.

THE new revenue law which has passed the lower branch of Congress does away with the penny stamp tax on express receipts, which has proved very annoying to florists.

IN addition to what will be found in another column respecting the new rose Robert Scott, it has been awarded honors wherever shown, namely, a certificate of merit and silver medal by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, a preliminary certificate of merit by the American Rose Society, and a certificate of merit in Ireland, the Messrs. Scott having forwarded plants two years ago to Alexander Dickson & Sons, Belfast.

The Holly Bough.

From every hedge is pluck'd by eager hands
The holly branch with prickly leaves replete
And fraught with berries of a crimson hue;
Which, torn asunder from its parent trunk,
Is straightway taken to the neighboring towns,
Where windows, mantels, candlesticks, and shelves,

Quarts, pints, decanters, basins, jugs,
And other articles of household ware,
The verdant garb confess.

A recent purchase of a $2 palm, sickly and frail, carried in its train a demand for a $7 jardiniere and a $3 tabourette. The fire must now be kept up nights for it, and every time the owner's husband passes the palm, he shakes a fist at it.—Atchison Globe.

A Disclaimer.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—It may possibly interest you to know, for the benefit of your readers, that plant agents have been operating in Indiana, at least, as representing a firm located at Shaw's Garden, St. Louis, Mo. One such party is said to have given the name of G. A. Sawley & Company. If you care to protect your readers who may be subject to similar misrepresentations, kindly announce that "Shaw's Garden," as the Missouri Botanical Garden is popularly called, is not a commercial establishment, does not sell plants or have agents on the road, and knows nothing of persons making representations similar to those that are here referred to. WM. TRELEASE,
St. Louis, Dec. 14. Director.

American Carnation Society.

E. T. Grave, Richmond, Ind., registers, Dorothy; color pink, Scott shade; flower large and symmetrical, built out nicely in center; calyx strong, never bursts; stems long and stiff, being well able to support the flower; a continuous and very free bloomer from early until late; an excellent keeper and shipper.

Dorothy is a duplicate name of an old variety, but the above has been shown and advertised before being registered and there being none of the former Dorothy grown at this date, the name is practically new. If growers of new carnations would register the names before giving them to the public, duplication could be avoided to a great extent.

ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

Trouble With Chrysanthemums.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—During the past season some of my chrysanthemums when in bloom, began to spot and a great many of the flowers were spoiled. It was like a damping off of the petals. Some varieties suffered more than others. Will you please state the cause of this and how to prevent it, as I would not like to have it happen again. W.

The trouble above mentioned may well be called the chrysanthemum bloom blight. It is due to a fungus that ordinarily does not affect living plants, but is common upon dead vegetable matter and usually abundant in the refuse heap, where it helps to decompose the rubbish. The chrysanthemum flowers, as they obtain age, are not able to withstand the growth of this fungus and the only treatment is to exclude the spores of the pest from the showy heads of bloom. It is likely that the complainant has refuse somewhere near his chrysanthemums, where the enemy is propagated. Let him see to it that all rubbish is located a long distance from his chrysanthemums.

Some Recent Fires.

QUEENS, N. Y.—A greenhouse belonging to Dr. B. F. Sill was damaged $150 by fire December 16.

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—The greenhouses and contents at the John Crosby Brown place were destroyed by fire on the morning of December 14.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The greenhouse owned by Mrs. Jane L. Wheeler was totally destroyed by fire at midnight December 15. The loss was $3,000, with $500 covered by insurance.

SOMERVILLE, N. J.—The greenhouses of Houston & Norton were totally destroyed by fire on December 12, the loss being estimated at about $6,000. The fire was caused by the explosion of a boiler.

TORONTO, ONT.—The greenhouses at Mount Pleasant Cemetery were destroyed by fire at three o'clock on the morning of December 15. The stock was a total loss. The houses were heated by the old-fashioned flue system.

TORONTO, ONT.—The greenhouses at 41 Shirley street owned by J. Badgerow and occupied by H. J. Allen, took fire December 13. The loss on the structure was small but the cold spoiled $500 in stock. There was $300 insurance on the buildings and $1,400 on the contents.

FALL RIVER, MASS.—The greenhouses of Edwin Fernley, with tenement house adjoining, was badly damaged by fire on the morning of December 10. The loss, amounting to about $2,000, is covered by insurance. An over-heated pipe is believed to have been the cause.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—On the night of December 14 a fire originating in the boiler room at M. J. Lynch's place damaged two houses adjoining. One house contained 2500 carnation plants, the other 1500 Harrisii. It is thought this stock is a total loss and that the stock in the other hands was more or less injured by the derangement of the heating facilities.

To Carnation Raisers.

OBITUARY.

W. J. PALMER, SR.

The dean of the Buffalo florists passed away on Thursday, December 13, after only a few days of illness. William J. Palmer, Sr., was born at Cheltenham, England, in 1835, and came to this country at the age of 19, locating at Buffalo, where he entered the employ of Porter Thompson. He has been a familiar figure in the horticultural life of the Pan-American city for almost half a century, and few men can number more friends than he, either in or out of the profession. It was in 1860 that Mr. Palmer embarked in business for himself, upon a location which is now a part of the public park system and from which he removed a number of years ago, to Lancaster, Erie county, where he has since developed an establishment of 150,000 feet of glass which is devoted entirely to the growth of cut flowers. The firm of W. J. Palmer & Son has maintained a retail store at 304 Main street, where a splendid business has been done under the management of W. J. Palmer, Jr. The firm has long enjoyed a reputation as producing the best of stock in their various lines and Mr. Palmer has given very close attention to the growing department. He was a florist of the old school, one who has lived through the changing conditions which have brought the trade from the crude state in which it was when he first embarked in business to the perfection of the present day. He delighted in his profession and took rare pleasure in discussing trade topics with his contemporaries. He was one of the best liked men in the city and the obsequies on Sunday afternoon, December 16, were attended in a body by the Buffalo Florists' Club. Interment was in the family lot in Forest Lawn Cemetery. Mr. Palmer leaves a son and two daughters.

Babylon, L. I.

A recent visit to the fine establishment of E. B. Sutton disclosed the fact that this gentleman has developed into a big carnation grower, the entire range once devoted exclusively to violets being now, with the exception of three houses, in carnations alone. As elsewhere on Long Island, the soil here seems to be very congenial to the carnation, and one seldom sees a lot so uniformly good in every respect as are these. Not a trace of stem-rot or of any of the other ailments that torment the average grower is to be seen on the place. The finest variety at present is White Cloud and here, at least, Flora Hill is distanced in every particular by this superb carnation. Another variety seen in perfection is G. H. Crane, from which a good Christmas return is assured. Scott is also in full flower and making good profits at present. The Marquis looks fat and promising but has not come into bearing yet. Mrs. Bradt is equal to the best ever shown of this sterling variety. Altogether Mr. Sutton would seem to have made a wise move in changing his establishment to carnations. There is a good market always in New York for the quality he is turning out.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The Hartford Florists' Club has elected the following officers: President, T. J. McDonalds; vice-president, W. W. Hunt; treasurer, D. A. Spear; secretary, J. F. Coombs; trustees, John Coombs, George Osborn and G. W. McClunnie.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLOGANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conu., Sec'y and Treas.

F. BARTELDES & Co., of Lawrence, Kansas, are again the early birds with their catalogue.

We understand that the space allotted to Peter Henderson & Co. and Vaughan's Seed Store at the Pan-American Exposition has been confiscated by the exposition authorities for other purposes.

A COMMITTEE of seedsmen from the Seedsmen's League visited the United States Senate at Washington, December 20, to protest against further appropriations for free distribution of seeds by the government.

BURNET LANDRETH's circular contrasting the proposed ship subsidy and the government seed distribution has received editorial attention in many of the great newspapers of the country, most of which pronounce the continuation of the free seed distribution wholly indefensible.

THE Iowa Seed Co., of Des Moines, Ia., reports that indications are very favorable for next season's trade. This concern has erected a large seed warehouse on South Eighth street. The building consists of three stories and basement, and is located so near the railroad track as to be very convenient for carload shipments.

CAPTAIN A. S. ROWAN, who "carried the message to Garcia," and who is now located on the Island of Cebu, in the Philippines, has written to his home in Atchison for onion, lettuce and radish seeds. He writes that the troops have no fresh vegetables except onions and potatoes shipped from the United States. —Topeka Breeze.

That Government Seed Shop.

The Seedsmen's League is out with a circular, dated December 12, urging action against this long suffered wrong against the trade, as follows:

The most effective move which can be made towards cutting out the "seed purchasing section" of the agricultural bill will be to bring a pressure to bear, firstly, upon the agricultural committees of both the senate and the house, and secondly, upon the appropriation committee of the house. The names of these various members are as follows:

SENATE AGRICULTURAL:—Redfield Proctor, Vt.; Henry C. Hansbrough, N. D.; Francis E. Warren, N. Y.; Addison G. Foster, Wash.; Wm. B. Bates, Tenn.; Heruando D. Money, Miss.; Wm. V. Allen, Neb.

HOUSE AGRICULTURAL:—J. W. Wadsworth, N. Y.; E. Stevens Henry, Conn.; Wm. B. Baker, Md.; Wm. Lorimer, Ills.; Wm. Connell, Pa.; Geo. H. White, N. C.; Willis J. Bailey, Kans.; F. C. Wright, Pa.; Gilbert N. Haugen, Iowa; Hermon B. Dahle, Wis.; Jno. S. Williams, Miss.; J. W. Stokes, N. C.; Jno. Lamb, Va.; James Cooney, Mo.; Robt. B. Gordon, Ohio; Wm. Neville, Neb.; Jno. F. Wilson, Arizona.

HOUSE APPROPRIATION:—Joseph G. Cannon, Ills.; Henry H. Bingham, Pa.; Wm. W. Groat, Vt.; James A. Hemenway, Ind.; Samuel S. Barney, Wis.; Wm. H. Moody, Ky.; Henry C. Van Voorhes, O.; Samuel J. Pugh, Ky.; James T. McCleary, Minn.; Lucius N. Littaner, N. Y.; Leonidas F. Livingston, Ga.; Thos. C. McRae, Ark.; Jno. M. Allen, Miss.; Jno. C. Bell, Col.; Rice A. Pierce, Penn.; M. E. Benton, Mo.; Robt. W. Taylor, Ohio.

Letters addressed in protest to these members will have some influence, possibly more than credited. The effort is worth the trouble. Will you do it? If so act promptly.

BURNET LANDRETH, Secretary.

It is to be hoped that every seedsmen who reads this will at once write to any member of congress mentioned above from his own state, or with whom his letter might have some influence, and report to Mr. Landreth at Philadelphia what he has done.

The Leonard Insurance Cases.

We are advised that the insurance cases of S. F. Leonard, of Chicago, which are yet to come up comprise less than one-third of Mr. Leonard's total loss, the other two-thirds having been already settled. There are five or six more cases to come to trial and Judge Kohlsaatt, who rendered the decision referred to in our last issue, must have some doubt as to the position he took in the first case as he has now turned over the other cases on the docket to Judge Seaman. Mr. Leonard's attorneys have appealed the first case and are confident that they will reverse it.

The Government Seed Contract.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, has placed the government seed order with the New York Market Gardeners' Association at $101,975.59. The last contract, that for 1901, was awarded to Charles Parker, Santa Clara, Cal., at $64,900 and the order for 1900 was executed by the New York Market Gardeners' Association on a bid of $70,980. The other bidders for the order for 1902, and their bids, are as follows: Market Gardeners' Association, New York.....$101,975.59 Phillips Seed and Implement Company, Toledo, O..... 113,065.87 California Seed Growers' Company, San Francisco..... 118,000.00 E. J. Weatherly, Marquette Building, Chicago..... 119,765.00 Ullathorne Seed Company, Memphis..... 119,957.00 Germain Seed and Plant Company, Los Angeles..... 122,000.00 Sioux City Seed and Nursery Company, Sioux City..... 130,000.00 J. L. Schiller, New York..... 150,000.00

MAYVILLE, N. Y.—J. Ruland has given up the Baldwin greenhouses and moved to Westfield.

RACINE, Wis.—A. J. Fidler reports the prospects for Christmas trade far ahead of last year. He expects to double last year's sales. The call is all for first-class stock, inferior grades being unsalable.

TRINIDAD, COL.—George Paget, who has for many years been connected with the greenhouses of C. S. Thorp & Son, has secured control of the place under lease and will hereafter conduct it under his name.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

PROF. FRED. W. CARD, of the Rhode Island College, will conduct a school of horticulture, opening at Kingston, February 20, 1901, and continuing six weeks. Last year's course was very successful.

Western Wholesalers Meet.

It is the unanimous opinion of members of the Western Wholesale Nurserymen's Association that there will be a considerable rise in the prices of nursery stock before spring. A discussion of the subject occurred at the annual meeting at Kansas City, December 11, and the fact was brought out that the available stock is the shortest it has been in years and that the supply is certain to be found far short of the demand when spring opens. This is especially true of the larger fruits, apples, pears and peaches, etc., and of cherries. Apples, it is said, will be found very scarce, and cherries extremely so.

The association membership embraces the states of Alabama, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma Territory and about thirty members were present. The following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, A. L. Brook, Topeka, Kas.; vice-president, R. H. Blair, Kansas City, Mo.; secretary and treasurer, E. J. Holman, Leavenworth, Kas.; executive committee, Peter Younger, Geneva, Neb.; A. Willis, Ottawa, Kas.; R. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; J. H. Skinner, Topeka, Kas.; A. C. Griesa, Lawrence, Kas.

Moving Large Trees.

The possibility of moving mature elms from one place to another without injuring branches or roots has often given a new lease of life to trees that otherwise must for one cause or another either perish or dwindle away by degrees. Tree life is nothing more than a practical survival of the fittest, a history of a struggle for light and moisture in which the elements are leagued against the growing trees. Few catastrophies in nature are more unfortunate than the cutting down of a tree that has passed through the uncertainties of youth and attained the age of twenty-five years. It often occurs that trees which have arrived at that age without interfering with one another come into competition at maturity and one of them must go, generally in grounds where there is a wealth of trees. The woodsman's axe usually settles the difficulty, and in cases where both the competing trees are equally beautiful it seems hard to sacrifice either. The science of tree moving here comes to the rescue and one of the trees, with branches, bark and roots unscathed, is simply transplanted to a more favorable location.

An instance where a twenty-year elm was successfully moved a distance of 300 feet from the street line is shown in the accompanying illustration. The tree stood too near a maple on the street line and was taken up and reset so as to screen a neighboring barn, where it will have a good chance to attain the age of 100 years or more. With it was taken a ball of earth 12x18 feet and thirty-six inches deep. The great care to be taken is to be sure that the full quota of root fibers are afforded for next season's growth. It frequently happens that three, four or five trunk roots will run a long distance in one or more directions, reaching a fertile piece of ground, where large fan shaped clumps of rootlets will form for assimilating the nutrition required. To cut this off and leave only the trunk roots almost bare of rootlets would render the tree helpless to maintain the growth which should start next spring, by development of the buds already formed from nutriment stored for the occasion before the leaves were entirely dead. The roots, therefore, should be dug out carefully and rolled up toward the trunk, packed in damp moss and covered with hay while moving. In the case under consideration the tree grew were terminal buds cut off, so that the tree does not need heading in.

In preparing the tree for moving a deep ditch was dug on two sides and three feet below the surface a hole was tunneled to admit a large timber (a); then the ball was clamped by plank and bolts (b). Short pieces of plank were next driven across from one timber to the other, so that when these timbers were raised they supported a floor under the ball. To get it out of the hole, two very heavy timbers were put across the ball on top, at right angles with lower timber, (c), heavy bolts were run through timber, ball and lower timber and made fast by screw nuts and washers. Jack screws

in stiff clay and the roots were equally distributed on all sides except where stopped by the curbing. The fibers were plentiful throughout the soil, so that where the roots were cut the number was large, and the size small. Close by the ends of all roots cut were a quantity of dormant buds which would not develop while the terminals were undisturbed, but now these may be depended upon to send out new fresh fibers next April and there will be about as many of them as there were put under the four ends and raised by blocking in the ordinary way until high enough to admit additional timbers and rollers. In planting out, a good bed of loam was provided and the ball was packed with three feet of first-class loam on all sides. The bed was carefully drained, the surface well covered with long manure to exclude frosts, and the top secured by ropes to prevent the wind from moving it about so as to break off any rootlets that may form. WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers. At West Hoboken.

The North Hudson County bowlers had just settled down to a quiet little home game last Wednesday evening when a demonstrative delegation arrived from the big city across the river and put an end to all prospects of a quiet evening. The visiting party included John I. Raynor, John H. Taylor, Wm. Ford and W. J. Stewart. John Birnie, who upholds single handed the prestige of the Scottish race in this essentially Teutonic community, was not slow to take advantage of the opportunity so unexpectedly afforded him and it was not long before "A hundred pipers an' a' an' a'" and "The bonnie, bonnie banks of Loch Lomond" had drowned out "Du bist verricht, mein kind" in a volume of aggressive melody. In the meantime the game went on and an appetizing lunch served to keep the inner man happy. Scores were recorded as follows:

The Utica Florists' Bowling Club had a very interesting meeting on December 17, at which there was a very full attendance, as a large, fat turkey was offered as a prize in a handicap contest. It was won by Somers, who increased his average very much and will now have to be put up near the top of the column. He was followed very closely by H. Mathews. Below is the score:

QUIS.

DES MOINES, IA.—There is only a fair supply of holiday stock in sight, with blooming plants scarce. Our people do not order until the last moment so that it is impossible to foresee what the Christmas trade will be.

LOCAL SUPPLIES OF CHRISTMAS GREENS.—SAND LAKE HAS TREES, GREEN AND LAUREL.—GOLDRING SELLS OUT.—TRADE GOOD.—NOTES.

The season for Christmas greens is now at its height. The Albany market, in addition to receiving considerable supplies of holly, laurel and southern smilax from the large dealers in New York and Philadelphia, receives considerable supplies from a place called West Sand Lake, eight miles east of Albany, among the foothills of the Hoosac Mountains, a spur of the Berkshires. This region sends to the local market every year about 1500 evergreen trees, mostly balsams and spruces. Sand Lake also supplies both Albany and Troy with Christmas greens. About 75,000 yards are made by twenty families who have a monopoly of the business. A considerable amount of moss is worked up into wreaths. For the past few years the Sand Lake collectors have been sending laurel wreaths into the local market, but the demand is not great.

Samuel Goldring, who for nearly four years, conducted a floral establishment at 30 North Pearl street, has sold out his business to W. C. King, who will conduct it under the firm name of W. C. King & Co. Mr. King is a young man, the son of George King, gardener in charge of the greenhouses at the Governor's mansion. For some time past he has been conducting greenhouses of his own on Yates street. The store will furnish an outlet for the plants and flowers.

Trade is large but there is a scarcity of stock. The demand for wreaths, laurel, smilax, palms and ferns is great. The flowers for the Christmas trade will be violets and roses, for both of which the demand is increasing.

Whittle Brothers have been awarded the contract for the decoration of All Saints' Cathedral for the Christmas services. Palms, laurel roping and southern smilax will be used in the decorations.

Florists are very well satisfied with the outlook for stock for the holidays, as it is coming in just right. The rose supply will be excellent and from present prospects sufficient to cover the demand. There will also be plenty of Romans and narcissi. Carnations will also help to swell the supply. Potted plants are plentiful. The streets are full of wagons laden with holly and other greens. The holly is beautifully berried and commands a fancy price. It is not as abundant this year as in previous years. Holly is native in the hills around this city but the constant cutting of recent years has thinned it out to a great extent.

BUSINESS DULL BETWEEN THANKSGIVING AND CHRISTMAS. — GOOD CROPS AND BRISK DEMAND IN SIGHT.—JOTTINGS OF PERSONAL AND TRADE INTEREST.

Trade is dull just now, for there is no funeral work, nothing in the way of social events, and Christmas buying has not yet begun. Thanksgiving trade was very good and everybody seemed to be happy. Stock was scarce and brought pretty good prices. The weather was very bad for growing, every day for about two weeks before Thanksgiving being dark and gloomy.

Patten sent out another new wagon the other day and it is a dandy. It is a square wagon for heavy delivery and, with his up-to-date light delivery wagon put out a few months ago, makes a good addition to the business. Patten disposed of a lot of poinsettias and Gloire de Lorraine begonias during Thanksgiving week.

Tingley is cutting some fine Joost carnations which readily find a market. He expects to cut a fine lot of Princess of Wales violets for Christmas. Tingley has the Belgian hare fever and owns some fine animals.

M. A. Patten's houses in Tewksbury are in fine shape for Christmas. All the leading varieties of carnations are grown here and everything is in apple-pie order. William A. Roberts, formerly junior partner with Patten & Roberts, has launched into the undertaking business in connection with the livery business.

A. Roper has got something up his sleeve in shape of a new carnation. John N. May was on to see it the other day and was greatly pleased with it.

All kinds of greens will be in abundance around here; there being no snow every-body is out picking.

C. L. Marshall has had his store renovated, painted and papered and has put in electric light.

Geo. Foster will have a nice crop of pinks for Christmas, by all appearances.
M.

Mobile, Ala.

The outlook is for a very good holiday trade with such roses as Bride, Bridesmaid and Perle very plentiful. Romans, Paper Whites and violets will be plentiful if hard frosts do not come to ruin the flowers in the lightly protected beds. Carnations are scarce because of the long continued warmth, which caused many to damp off. There are very few good Beauties grown here. Most of those required must come from the north. There will be good Christmas supplies of Camellia Japonica if not ruined by hard frosts. Indoor chrysanthemums have been good but in little demand. Outdoor stock was a complete failure this year on account of the heavy rains in July and August.

C. Ravier & Sons have made a considerable addition to their glass, building especially for roses.

TRADE VERY GOOD AND PROSPECTS BRIGHT. — DECORATIONS IN DEMAND. — SOCIAL ACTIVITY MAKES BUSINESS.

Trade has been very good the past week and everybody is looking forward to and making preparations for a big Christmas and New Year's trade. Roses are in demand and are bringing fair prices, American Beauty from $9 to $12 per dozen and teas from $1 to $6 per dozen. Violets are good and average about $1.50 per hundred. Carnations continue scarce. Poinsettias are plentiful and very good this year.

J. Louis Loose had the decoration for the Farquhar-Garton wedding at St. John's church, December 12. The chancel was banked with palms and other foliage plants and the altar vases filled with white roses. The Bride carried a bouquet of Bride roses and the maid of honor a bouquet of Bridesmaid roses.

The decorations at the White House for the national capital centennial were rather plainer than usual. The dining room was tastefully decorated, the table centerpiece being of pink chrysanthemums and the mantles banked with Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and ferns.

Z. D. Blackstone had the large decorations for the recent Shepherd-Wagner wedding. He also decorated three of the automobiles for the floral parade at Convention Hall Thursday night, the one decked with 300 La France roses winning first prize.

Clark Brothers have quite a lot of fine chrysanthemums and good heads of poinsettias. They are also cutting some fine blooms of Souvenir de President Carnot.

The American Rose Company has a large house of poinsettias, some almost twenty-four inches across.

James Rosh Marshall will have charge of the decorations for the inaugural ball.

SUFFERERS BY THE GREAT STORM ARE BUSY REBUILDING.—EVERYBODY CHEERFUL.—CLOTHING COMES IN TIME.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The weather is fine here just now, and the ground that was full of salt mud after the storm is beginning to get life again. Some of the cratt have fine stands of seedlings; pansies, daisies, sweet peas, cicerarias and vegetable plants are pushing along without showing any bad effects from the flood. All the brethren look with confidence and good cheer to the future without mourning their financial losses. Most of them are rebuilding and repairing their houses, putting in glass to keep out the cold northers that usually visit us at this time of the year and tending to the stock of plants that their generous brother craftsmen from north and south, west and east have so kindly contributed to them. All of us feel the nearness of our friends and we wish them a merry, merry Christmas.

We had our regular meeting on December 13, and, as Mr. Ward's box of clothing had arrived, nearly all of us were made happy by receiving some warm clothing, either for ourselves or our children. F. J. Laeverenz, our worthy secretary, showed himself adept in distributing and fitting the clothes to the recipients.

Mrs. John Maurer has her greenhouse finished and so has Chas. Steding. Paul Pappé is building. J. D. Pruessner has one house and some cold frames filled with plants. He is also repairing a house 20x60, which will be ready in ten days, and building an office 18x20.

We all look with some hopes to a fair Christmas trade, though all kinds of greens, such as smilax, holly and mistletoe are scarce this year, owing to the storm.

Otto Fehrlin is in New York and Mrs. Fehrlin, with the two children, is preparing to join him soon. J. D. P.

SAUGERTIES, N. Y.—M. J. Barry is dangerously ill with typhoid fever.

ST. PAUL, MINN., December 8, 1898.

WHITE ENAMEL REFRIGERATOR COMPANY, St. Paul, Minn.:

Dear Sirs—Since using your ice case in our retail flower department we have saved 30 per cent in the consumption of ice. Our saving in flowers we cannot accurately determine, but should estimate conservatively 25 per cent. Not only this, flowers keep with us as they never did before, and retain their salable appearance longer. Your box is certainly a boon to the florists, and we predict a wonderful sale on them, especially to the florists, when their qualifications become known.

Yours truly,

STATE OF TRADE IN THE CAPITAL CITY OF MINNESOTA.—PROSPECTS FOR CHRISTMAS SUPPLY.—PLANTS PLENTIFUL—GREENS IN DEMAND.

Thanksgiving trade was very good indeed, and following right on the heels of that holiday was the funeral of the Hon. C. K. Davis. This called for quite a good many flowers, though the florists had provided enough to go around. Since then trade has been fairly good, though rather light on some days. For Christmas indications point to an unusually good city trade, both in cut flowers, plants, greens and sundries. Advance prices would indicate that cut flowers are scarce in the large markets but a few days of bright weather will undoubtedly increase the supply, so that there will be enough to go around. In our home market there will be a shortage of carnations, Beauties and violets, a fair supply of roses and plenty of bulbous stock. Primroses, cinerarias, azaleas and lilies will be in bloom with many, so that plants at reasonable prices may be had, even if cut flowers are scarce. Lycopodium is very scarce but holly is in evidence on every hand and meets with ready sale. Other greens are in good demand and everything sells well.

THE CHRISTMAS TRADE.

Optimists aver that the old century never saw another such a Christmas as that of its closing year; pessimists fear that the new century will not produce its equal; it is all in the point of view, the consensus of opinion being that the holiday business of 1900 was a decided advance on that of 1899, itself a record breaker. Reports received from east and west, north and south, with remarkable fidelity voice the general satisfaction. There was some scarcity of stock, but increased glass area has done much to overcome the usual Christmas shortage and the scarcities were generally due to local causes. Red flowers were in strongest demand and American Beauty and Meteor roses and bright colored carnations were the almost universal shortages, carnations being particularly popular. As a rule bulbous material was dependent for a market upon the exhaustion of other stocks. It is a noteworthy fact that in the east the plant trade was heavier than ever, with a marked preference for blooming subjects, with this class of material leaping into favor wherever in the west desirable wares were offered. Holly sold well, generally, although there are exceptions to this rule. A number of the reports follow and others will be presented next week:

BRATTLEBORO, VT.—C. E. Allen reports sales good and above last year's. There was enough of everything except carnations, which were in increased demand.

MARION, IND.—Gunnar Teilmann reports Christmas sales double those of a year ago; all good stock sold, carnations being far in the lead. Holly was in greater demand than ever before.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—S. D. Horan says stock was good, plentiful and business twenty-five percent ahead of a year ago. Plants and ferneries brought good prices. There was the usual call for holly but mistletoe did not sell.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Van Bochove Brothers report Christmas sales about as last year, with enough stock except carnations and a very light demand for bulbous flowers. The call for plants shows no increase over a year ago.

LINCOLN, ILL.—W. H. Gullett & Sons report trade as fifty per cent increase. There was a larger supply than usual of bulbous flowers and carnations were the greatest shortage. There was a decided increase in the sale of flowering plants.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Trade held off until the last moment, at which there came a great rush, making the aggregate of sales one-quarter larger than a year ago, with the prices of roses advanced twenty per cent because of scarcity. Nearly all bulbous stock sold out. The notable increase in call was for choice roses, especially Meteor, and carnations. Plants of all kinds sold well.

NASHUA, N. H.—August Gaedke & Co. figure more than sixty per cent increase in their Christmas business, having adequate supplies of cut flowers of superior quality. The marked preference of the buyers was for Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—C. W. Crouch says Christmas trade was twenty per cent ahead of a year ago, with nearly enough stock except carnations. There was a marked increase in the call for American Beauties. Roses were of better quality than usual.

ATLANTA, GA.—American Beauty was the flower most in demand, although the qualities of stock were generally lower than a year ago. Bulbous material moved slowly. George Hinman estimates the volume of sales as twenty per cent ahead of last year.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—J. C. Rennison says there was increased sale for both flowering and decorative plants. Trade in general increased twenty-five per cent. There were not enough roses, carnations or violets and the particular call was for bright colored carnations.

DETROIT, MICH.—Breitmeyer & Sons report their Christmas trade twenty per cent ahead of a year ago, with prices slightly higher and nearly enough cut flowers to meet all demands. Stock was much better than usual, with a particular demand for such novelties as Bon Silene rose buds, sweet peas and plant baskets. They report a fifty per cent increase in their sales on flowering and decorative plants.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Anders Rasmussen reports trade as one-fourth larger than a year ago, with carnations scarce, in extraordinary demand and higher in price. Qualities were good. Roses were in supply about equal to demand.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—Trade was rather better than a year ago with prices about on the usual level and stock in inadequate supply. J. D. Robinson notes the principal increase in demand as for carnations, with increased call also for plants in flower.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Everyone reports Christmas trade the heaviest on record, with prices up to the highest level. Bulbous stock dragged. Plants in baskets were in extra demand. Holly was fine and sold well, but all sorts of stores handled it.

RACINE, WIS.—Christmas trade was far ahead of last year, everyone having enough bulbous stock and to spare but not sufficient supplies of roses, carnations and violets. Plant sales were about as last year, A. J. Fidler noting that the greatest increase in demand was for red carnations.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Trade at Christmas was ten per cent ahead of last year, the increase being made by a rise in prices. Plants took precedence over cut flowers, although the latter were better than usual. The only cut flower shortage was on violets, H. G. Walker & Co. reporting sales at $4 per hundred.

LARAMIE, WY.—G. A. Hertzog says that it is difficult to make western people see why they should pay greatly increased prices at Christmas time and for that reason sales were not much larger than last year. There was no oversupply of cut flowers and a marked increase in the sale for flowering plants.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—Christmas trade showed a small increase with prices the same as last year. There was enough of everything except carnations, which the Cincinnati Cut Flower Company report in unprecedented demand. There was increased call for holly wreaths, festooning and other Christmas greens.

CLEVELAND, O.—Trade came with a rush at the last minute and made a slight increase in sales over last year. There was enough stock, with light demand for bulbous flowers, even Harrisii. Carnations and Beauties were better than usual. J. M. Gasser failed to note any increase in the sale for plants.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Trade was far ahead of a year ago and would have been double last year's record had stock been procurable. There were not nearly enough roses, carnations or violets and bulbous stock profited by their shortage. Stock was rather poor. W. A. Chalfant reports the holly trade as gone to pieces.

MITCHELL, S. D.—E. C. Newbury reports trade thirty per cent ahead of a year ago, with retail prices slightly advanced over last year's rates. He was short on roses, carnations and violets but found bulbous stock in about right supply. The stock was all better than usual and the increase in demand was for carnations.

AURORA, ILL.—All the florists report increases in Christmas trade, from ten to fifty per cent over last year. Everything good in cut flowers sold out clean, with red carnations and violets particularly scarce. The increase in plant sales was noticeable, every azalea which was ready selling. Poinsettias sold well as pot plants and not at all if cut. J. M. Smely voices the general sentiment when he says prices were the same as usual at Christmas but easier to get.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.—Christmas brought more cash sales than heretofore, and table decorations were greatly in demand. Trade showed a twenty-five per cent increase. There were enough roses and violets, but carnations were scarce. J. F. A. Schaefer reports increased trade in plants and a particularly brisk call for poinsettias in pots.

FRED. R. MATHISON.

MONTRÉAL, CAN.—J. S. Murray says that trade was much heavier than usual with little inquiry as to prices, the demand being entirely for highgrade stock. Prices were higher than usual on roses, lily of the valley and Princess of Wales violets. There was particular demand for American Beauties in cut flowers and azaleas among plants.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.—Christmas trade was about on the level with last year. There were plenty of violets and roses, too few carnations and too many bulbous flowers. Qualities were generally poorer than usual at Christmas. Carnations showed the greatest increase in demand. Jno. White reports that the holly trade was less than usual.

DAVENPORT, IA.—A conservative estimate would put trade ten per cent ahead of last year, with roses and carnations in fair supply and violets short. There was more bulbous stock than could be used. There was increased call for carnations and poinsettias and all flowering plants sold better than heretofore. J. T. Temple notes a particularly brisk sale for cyclamens.

FREMONT, NEB.—Trade was twenty per cent ahead of last year, with stock scarce except in bulbous flowers, for which there was no demand, and it was necessary to work them off in mixed boxes. Flowers were much better than last year, but there was a shortage of violets, which were in demand without regard to prices. There was little call for plants, according to the report of the Fremont Greenhouses.

UTICA, N. Y.—Christmas business was one-third larger than a year ago, with no demand whatever for poor grades of cut flowers. There were adequate supplies of nearly everything and there was good demand for bulbous stock. There was a marked preference for flowering plants as compared with those which were merely decorative. Cyclamens and azaleas were the favorites.

DES MOINES, IA.—The consensus of opinion here is that Christmas trade was one-fifth larger than a year ago; prices the same as last year; carnations principally in demand and the greatest shortage; stock was better than usual, except carnations. W. L. Morris reports no increase in the call for flowering plants and a falling off in the sales on palms and ferns.

KOKOMO, IND.—W. W. Coles says trade was a third greater than last year with prices about the same. More roses and carnations could have been sold but there was no call for bulbous stock. Beauties were better than usual. Carnations are increasing in favor every year; Mrs. Lawson, Ethel Crocker and Mrs. Bradt sold for best prices. Everyone sold out on flowering plants and there were more palms and ferns sold than last year.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Samuel Murray reports the Christmas trade the best he has ever known. He says that retail prices were no higher than usual at Christmas except on violets and Beauties, which were the particular shortages and most in demand. Mr. Murray reports flowers rather better than usual, except Gontier roses. It was the greatest plant year on record, azaleas and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine selling at sight at splendid prices.

Fred. R. Mathison.

The portrait herewith is one of Boston's most successful rose growers. Thirty-two years ago Mr. Mathison came to Boston from England. Three years ago he leased his well-equipped establishment at Waltham to two of his employes and retired from active business with an income sufficient for all his wants. Clear-headed, observant and industrious he had acquired a competency, had won the respect of his associates and by his generous and companionable traits had endeared himself especially to the society of the progressive, broad-gauge element of the florists' profession which has been so potent in the horticultural life of New England. Although out of business Mr. Mathison is still deeply interested in all that pertains to the welfare of the profession and his advice is often sought, freely given and always good. He is active in the S. A. F. and is now serving acceptably as state vice-president of that body. On Sunday, December 16, Mr. and Mrs. Mathison observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, an event which was fittingly recognized by their "Old Guard" friends, who sent them a suitable silver token of their congratulations and good wishes. May they live long to enjoy it.

A Wreath of Funeral Flowers.

The accompanying illustration is a reproduction from a photograph of a simple wreath of flowers for a casket. The cicutium is the predominant feature and the color effect is given by a few good auratum lily blooms. Such arrangements are unconventional and therefore frequently more pleasing than the everyday designs of roses and carnations. Moreover, they may be made of material which lies at the hand of every man who owns even a small greenhouse.

Sprigs From The Spice Bush.

That caption for two reasons: First, because, although this sprig is mainly a sort of nosegay composed of Philadelphia Christmas tradejottings, it is not entirely so and latitude was wanted so that a sprig could be culled anywhere and on any subject. Second, because, variety being the spice of life, there is warrant in departing from the beaten track if by so doing the subject can be made more attractive and interesting to the general reader.

Besides, I want to keep your regular correspondent out of trouble. They tell me I am always saying something to rouse the wrath of all creation and if that is so I want to take all the blame and not have someone else shouldering it. On that point I want to say right here that I consider myself the most inoffensive creature in the world and my sole object in wielding the pencil is for your entertainment and I would not stamp on anyone's corns for a crown of gold. A person who takes offense where no offense is meant is a — well he is at least lacking common sense. How's that, Mr. Editor? That ought to scare off some of those fellows who are always spoiling for something to kick at. Very few like to own up that they are not smart and they will if they take offense at yours truly.

Well then, to commence at the commencement, I went up to the top of a tall tower and took a survey of the Christmas festival in Philadelphia and it was a pleasant and inspiring sight. I gazed and gazed and the more I looked the more beautiful the scene became, the flowers fragrant and lovely and flaming, the greens so fresh, and everything beribboned in the most charming manner. And what artistic progress from the methods of ten years ago in arranging the flowers and plants, whether in bouquets or in baskets! No signs here of any step backward.

And the basket-makers! How wonderfully charming they do make those receptacles now and what a variety of shapes and materials! The basket maker has certainly kept pace with the progressive spirit of the age and deserves all credit. One particularly lovely creation, to my eye, was an oblong basket of birch bark trimmed with luffia fiber, the latter dyed a bright green and contrasting with the white bark in the most charming manner. There were dozens of other patterns, all new to me and most of them dainty. How any woman could refrain from going crazy with ecstasy over these things when filled with beautiful flowering plants and decked off with gay ribbons I cannot imagine. As for buying—they simply had to buy them! Resistance was out of the question!

In regard to novelties, I cannot say that I could see, from my lofty perch, anything specially new this year, either in plants or flowers. All the old standbys, such as poinsettias, ardisias, cyclamens, azaleas, solanums, dracenas, etc., were there in good supply and mostly well done. Cape heaths were also there in plenty and, as last year, they were very popular. White lilac was used extensively in mixed baskets and Supoit was happy. That clever and indefatigable Frenchman was also in with a fine batch of helleborus (Christmas rose) which found a ready niche in the market, as it is not seen much now-a-days.

Some of the cyclamens were pretty mean stuff, weedy looking, straggly flowers that were no credit to the man who grew them. But I saw one fine lot at Pennock Brothers, and they certainly were good. They were from Robt. Craig & Son's place and a credit to it. I'm glad I don't know the fellow who grew the other kind. I'd have to say something, whatever happened. The truth would prevail if the pillars of the universe crashed. Zimmer sent in some dainty Forbesi primroses in 6-inch pans. They were very well done and looked charming in that shape and size. Azaleas were in fair supply and good. Jacob Becker had a splendid lot of these. The varieties were mostly Simon Mardner, Van der Cruysen, Deutsche Perle, and Vervaeneana. Mardner was in admirable flower and a most beautiful Christmas plant. A russet orange variety called Apollo seemed to find considerable favor with some. The plants were in good shape but to my thinking not worth houseroom as to color. Becker only starts these six weeks before Christmas and yet he manages to bring them in good. He keeps them on the dry side at about 65° to give them good color and is very careful about watering. No hose.

Holly was very good this year, well berried and clean, glossy foliage. Mistletoe about as usual. Not much new in wreaths, crosses and such things. Holly, immortelles and other dried flowers and grasses were used about as usual. Thompson, at Thirteenth and Walnut, had some unusually dainty work in this line. The grey statice was worked up into very airy, graceful wreaths, and went all right as "heather." A good cheap substitute for the grey heath, indeed, and "Bill" squared his conscience by calling it "German heather," when he had to. That's all right. Germany is the land of cheap substitutes.

Many of the department stores had their places decorated. As usual Graham and Habermehl had the lion's share of this work. I noticed one job by Habermehl at Jacob Reed's Sons' which I thought very effective. Graham has the contract for the New Year decorations for the City Hall. I understand $1000 is the price for this work but by the way the daily papers enlarge on the subject one would think a million was being spent. Wm. Graham is the chief of the decorating end and few know the kinks of that business better than he. One advantage is his cleverness in putting a sketch of his ideas on paper. In his role as a lightning artist he has captured many a good job. At present his decorating force is augmented by a tall, blonde-haired scion of the house of Roehrs. It was thought that a very few days of the genuine getting-down-to-work of the decorating business would satisfy that young gentleman. But he is still there and so has better stuff in him than he was given credit for.

Habermehl, with his up-town store, deserves credit for the cute way he keeps in the swim notwithstanding that handicap. His hotel and other central decorating work, with handsome wagons constantly around the principal retail thoroughfares, is doubtless the means of bringing him many a customer of the profitable kind. On a recent visit to his store, at Twenty-second and Diamond, I was greatly impressed with the spick and span finish of all the fittings and arrangements. A new counter with brass legs and a marble top struck me as the daintiest thing of the kind I had ever seen. The shelves for tissue paper, etc., under this counter are plate glass and are open at front as well as back.

The Jersey holly is always more or less in evidence but it ranks behind the Delaware and Maryland product. This season John Westcott had a lot brought up from his Barnegat estate (the home of the Westcott Rod and Gun Club that is to be) and with a little assistance from a Maryland parcel it made splendid work. The Westcotts were "in it" again this season with a well grown lot of solanums. As for pot-grown English ivies, and camellias, they are like Standard Oil—have it all to themselves. Big specimens of Boston ferns and well done poinsettias were also part of their outfit that stood out prominently. The Commodore himself was up to the eyes—or should I say eye? He has only one good optic at present from trying to tie a shoe lace before lighting up at five o'clock one fine morning recently. Anyway let's say up to the ears in business, and the fraternity at the club room have to get along the best they can without him until the New Year.

Speaking of the club room reminds me to say that that institution has had a very good year; revenue has exceeded expenditure largely and the officers and members are to be congratulated. All the bonds that could be reached have been cashed or otherwise cleared and there is a handsome balance in the treasury. Various improvements are being talked of, among them being a committee room, a new score board and a reading desk. The present officers, Messrs. Harris, Westcott, Lonsdale and Colflesh, are largely responsible for this improved state of the society.

"Ladies night" at the club is down for January 23 this year, being the fourth Wednesday of the month. The proceedings will commence with a president's reception from 8 to 8:45 p. m. The games will commence at 8:45 and will continue for the rest of the evening except for an intermission of half an hour, from 10 to 10:30, for refreshments. Complaint was made last year that long enough warning was not given and many who wanted to come had already made other engagements. No fault can be found in that respect this year.

I heard lots of echoes of salted stock, indicating that there is not much improvement in the morals of some growers this year more than in days gone by. One man took an order to deliver 500 Beauties Christmas day and good judges say it would take him three weeks to cut that many from a place of the size. Carnations are held up, too, I'm told. Good pinks are really scarce, and $8 to $10 per hundred marked the relation between supply and demand in clean cut style. Even pretty second grade stock sold readily at $4 to $6. Sam Pennock and George Moss and "Billy" Baker and Leo. Niessen, the commission kings, were badgered and baited and frothed at over "the state of things" but they finally emerged from the four days' struggle with no more damage than a wild glare in their eyes and with their glossy locks a wee bit towlsed.

I understand $15 a dozen was the figure for bang up Beauties, but I approach that subject with fear and trembling, being an outsider. One retailer whose veracity I've great confidence in said $15; a grower who is adamant in his imitation of the father of his country, the immortal George, told me $18; and still another retailer, whose morals I know nothing about, told me $12. So "you pays your money and you takes your choice." All kinds of figures ruled for other grades, $10, $6, $4, and so on according to quality. A good many cypripediums and cattleyas were in evidence and proved a welcome addition to the list of cut flowers, the former being also seen here and there as a pot plant. Mignonette was rather scarce, good stock bringing $8. Single violets 75 cents to $1 per hundred, double violets $1.50 to $2.

The Chestnut Hill people were said to be "off crop" but I suppose that must be taken with a grain of salt. They are almost too modest sometimes, it seems to me. I say that with bated breath also. These out-of-town commuters have no more manners than a kicking cow and are as little particular as to where or when they hit back or whether they spill milk or whether they don't. So I must be very careful.

I would like to endorse your New York correspondent's remarks in regard to the effect of salting. He hits the nail on the head when he makes the point that the important position held by the flowering plants in pots, which have largely displaced cut flowers as gifts, is greatly due to this pernicious practice as regards the cut flowers. There is no doubt but that buyers are much keener about the quality of cut flowers than they were five or six years ago and it is high time the cut flower men instituted a radical reform if they are to hold even a respectable place in the race for holiday trade.

John Burton is greatly pleased with his new acetyline plant. His near neighbors, Myers & Samtman, have one installed, also, but of a different pattern. They each think theirs the best. There are several other neighbors so impressed with the thing that they have given orders to the company. Acetyline is undoubtedly the light of the future for the country districts and all points beyond the gas mains. When a servant has to fill sixty kerosene lamps a week is it any wonder they won't stay with you long? I trow not.

Edwin Lonsdale had a busy time with his stock of that pet and protege of his, the Lorraine begonia. Craig and Lonsdale had the largest blocks of Lorraine this year, although there are many growers now who handle it in limited quantity. It is as dainty and popular as ever and a little lower in price. About everything left the greenhouses except barely enough for stock purposes. "E. L.," after another year's trial of the Light Pink Lorraine is more than ever convinced that for many reasons this is much the best form for commercial growing. Sometimes at flower shows and club meetings when judges are selected at random they fail to report properly. That was the reason, probably, why "E. L." sympathized so strongly with Alphonse Pericat, the head gardener at the famous Wilson orchid conservatories, when he became indignant at not receiving proper recognition for a fine specimen of Laelia autumnalis alba, last P. H. S. meeting.

However, that judging matter was topped by a greater mistake by the same meeting. The private gardeners elected their own class for vice-president and council and now have everything their own way and the commercial element has only itself to blame, for I don't believe more than half a dozen of them were present. I have nothing against the private gardener. On the contrary I consider him the foundation of the whole horticultural fabric. When he has won his spurs and become noted in some direction he takes a step higher into the ranks of commercial horticulture. There are exceptions to this, of course, but as a general proposition it holds true. Now who would you rather exalt over you in office, a private gardener or an eminent all-around horticulturist like Robert Craig or John Westcott or Joseph Heacock? I do not blame the gardeners present for voting for their own compeers and acquaintances, but it was a mistake to lower the standard of official ability and experience. The day the commercial element ceases to influence a representative horticultural society in a metropolitan center will be a cold day for all concerned. Let's hope that next year the trade will turn in and put this coffee pot bottom end down. What are clubs and societies for but to influence the general public to horticultural pursuits and more of them? And how much is that recognized by any florists' club? What has any of them done to justify their existence, looked at from this, the proper point of view?

Take the Philadelphia florists' club. Has it been the means of interesting the public more in horticultural pursuits? Has it ever done anything to increase the trade of its members a single dollar? You say: "Oh, well! It's the horticultural society's business to give exhibitions." But what kind of a horticultural society is it with no horticulturists in it—for you might as well not be in it if you take no part? And of course the commercial florist is the horticulturist par excellence.

No sir; there's got to be a radical shaking up of this apathetic attitude of the trade at large in regard to clubs, societies and exhibitions. The social feature, the papers read, the little grievances aired, are all good in their way but they ought to be all subordinate to "What are we here for?" We ought to have a much broader ideal than we now have. The Philadelphia club has taken in fifty-seven associate members and that's about the only thing they've done toward influencing the outside public.

Unfortunately these fifty-seven join for the social feature and it will take a long time to do much good through them. The true method is the flower show on the space-renting plan like the S. A. F. and give the space holders the tickets to distribute. Either that or else every man jack of us should turn in and work the horticultural society.

The retail seedsmen did their usual holiday trade in plants and greens. Michell, Landreth and Johnson & Stokes were the most enterprising in this direction. The bulb season has been long and all stocks should have been lower than they are considering we had open weather to near Christmas. Such seasonable, late-arriving stocks as spiræa, valley, pæonies, etc., are moving nicely, however, and no doubt all the hyacinths and tulips and such-like will eventually find a home somewhere.

Speaking of pæonies reminds me of an afternoon I spent at the pæony show in Boston last June. Of the hundreds of varieties of lovely blooms on exhibition I picked out five as the creme de la creme. If you come across any stock of any of these don't be afraid to sell your shirt to possess them in plenty:

Madame Calot, a perfectly formed white, a large broad flower with guard petals. It was faintly tinged with blush in the flowers exhibited.

Modeste, a lively pink of graceful form, not ragged; neither is it too stiff.

Lady Carrington, white turning pinkish, some flowers pure white; very large and loose but yet well formed.

Pottsi Alba, a fine blush; very large
Festiva Maxima, a very good white, slightly ragged, but yet with something graceful in its make up; a charming flower.

I see Walter Sheridan has been elected president of the New York Florists' Club. What a pity! No doubt Walter deserves it all right, for there's no better heart beating; but he'll never see anybody now as he walks Broadway with his head in the air, it's so proud he'll be! Well, I'm glad I first got from him those photographs of our trip to Kennebec Lake in Maine last June. He'd have no timenow, and besides he appears in one with something suspiciously like a demijohn in his hand. No doubt he'll say that was Lou Green or "Old Man" Dirwanger or George Moulton or W. J. Stewart or your humble servant, but don't you believe it. And whenever he gets too chesty I'll publish it, as a corrective, for as Locker puts it:

"We eat and drink and plod and think,
And go to church on Sunday,
And many are afraid of God,
But more of Mrs. Grundy."

As a corollary and finishing touch to this little bouquet of Christmas news, nonsense and sublimated wisdom, let me give you Commodore Westcott's welcome speech to the boys at the club room next Tuesday, New Year's day:

"Now then, boys!
Up my lads to the punch; spare it not!
If you do not think it good, let it alone.
I am not like those officious and unfortunate Sots who by force, outrage and violence Constrain an easy, good natured man to Whiffle, quaff, carouse and what is worse.
All honest gouty men, all such as
Are a-dry, coming to this little bowl of Mine need not drink thereof if it please them
Not; but if they have a mind to it and the Punch prove agreeable to the tastes of their Worshipful workshops, let them drink, frankly, Freely, and boldly, without paying anything and Welcome! (Hear! Hear!)"

I know the Commodore will claim I dreamed that speech of his. Maybe. I've heard something like it before and hope both of us may live long as speaker and listener in that respect. Lots of folks dream things. There's Doc Kustner, for instance, scared his wife into conniption fits the other night by jumping out of bed and shouting

"Confound it all! There's only five of them down!"

Nothing worse than the scare and bruised shins resulted, but the doctor has not been as often at the alleys since, and I don't blame her.

The New Year and the new century are almost on us as I write, and it is fitting that I speak from Philadelphia and send warmest greetings to every reader. May you live a thousand years and have bouncing luck, and may I be here to see it. May all good attend you, con amore, is the sincere prayer of you, yours to command,
GEORGE C. WATSON.

THREE OF MAY'S NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

H. Patterson invited the entomologist to experiment in one of his large greenhouses at Waverly, and on December 15 Professor Johnson, with Professor Townsend, state pathologist, fumigated the greenhouse, which was so badly infested that the plants were almost ruined. In less than an hour every creature had been destroyed. Hydrocyanic gas was used and the plants were exposed to its fumes for thirty-two minutes.

Mr. Patterson said the experiment was of great value to him and that in the future he would certainly have no difficulty in keeping his violets free from this insidious pest. John M. Rider and the Lehr Brothers, florists, of Brooklyn, Md., who witnessed the experiment, also expressed great satisfaction at the results. The entire cost of the fumigation of this house, which is 10x65x9 feet, was less than 40 cents for the chemicals used. The rapidity with which the gas is generated and its insignificant cost make this a most valuable remedy.

The gas is a very deadly poison and must of necessity be handled very carefully, but there is no danger whatever if the proper precautions are taken. It was generated in this instance at the rate of fifteen-hundredths of a gram of cyanide per cubic foot of space inclosed. The entire house on this basis required only nineteen ounces, by weight, of cyanide, about thirty ounces, liquid measure, of commercial sulphuric acid and forty-five ounces of water. Professor Johnson will be very glad to give anyone interested exact directions regarding the fumigation of his violet houses.

CARNATIONS.

THE LAWSON CARNATION IN ENGLAND.

Mr. R. Sydenham, of Birmingham, writes: "I notice in your issue of the 17th ult., you illustrate this much-talked-of carnation, but I think many will agree with me that it is not a good specimen from an English grower's standpoint. We have heard so much about the variety we certainly expected something very much better, and I am little less than astonished that the floral committee of the Royal Horticultural Society awarded it a certificate, for in my opinion it is not an improvement upon varieties already in commerce. I certainly did not see this particular flower, for I was not at that meeting, but judging from flowers I have grown myself, those exhibited at the Aquarium, and those seen in one or two other places, it has come small, it has come ragged, and with practically little or no scent, and is unfortunately inferior to one somewhat similar though slightly paler in color, Mrs. Leopold Rothschild, which has decidedly more fragrance and is a better flower.—Gardeners' Magazine.

CHICAGO CARNATION CO., JOLIET, ILL.

On the occasion of a recent visit to the establishment of the Chicago Carnation Co., at Joliet, Ill., we found carnations in the usual good condition for which this house is widely known, and propagation in full blast. Mr. Hartshorne is now using brick bottoms for his cutting benches, with from two to three inches of sand, the former depth preferred. Passing through the houses Mr. Hartshorne spoke well of Maceo; considered White Cloud very fine, coming in right for the holidays; The Marquis good for fine blooms and stems from Christmas onward; and Mrs. T. W. Lawson all that has been claimed for it, but should be grown at a temperature of about 54°.

The great magnet here just now, however, is the "Big Four" combination of new varieties which the company is offering for distribution in 1901, namely, Sunbeam, Bon Homme Richard, Nydia and Prolifica. The great claim made for these novelties is that they produce a greater number of good, salable blooms in a given space than most other kinds now on the market and this was certainly substantiated by the appearance of the plants at the time of our visit. Sunbeam is a light pink of good size and form on stiff stems two feet and over in length. Bon Homme Richard, white, Nydia, white striped with light salmon, Prolifica, cerise pink, possess much the same characteristics as Sunbeam.

Judging from the large number of other seedlings under trial here, a great deal of attention must have been bestowed upon crossing and seed-saving. It is safe to estimate that there are hundreds of them, many of which give every indication of taking a prominent place in future lists. One especially noticeable was an extra large red variegated with no defects so far perceptible. It is the intention, we understand, to exhibit some of these trial seedlings at the Baltimore meeting of the American Carnation Society, and it will be interesting to watch how they fare with the judges and critics.

We failed to notice the presence of disease or insect pests in this extensive area of carnation plants and cuttings, but every desirable preparation has been made to combat any trouble that may develop. For example, there is constantly on hand ample supplies of a preparation of tobacco water and soap, which is strongly recommended as a remedy for thrip and red spider when applied to the plants in the form of a fine spray. There are now over 66,000 square feet of glass devoted exclusively to carnations at this establishment. The new iron house 30x300 feet, erected, heated and ventilated by Lord & Burnham last summer, is affording every satisfaction.

CUTTINGS AND THEIR TREATMENT.

Just what constitutes a good cutting is a matter of some dispute, one grower preferring cuttings taken from the blooming shoots, another using the wood from the bottom of the plant, such as has not yet shown signs of making a flower, and still another using the young shoots that form at the base of the flowering shoots or at the top of the stub left after cutting the flowers.

Following the theory of evolution we would naturally look for a gradual increase in the floriferousness of plants produced from the cuttings taken from the flowering shoots and a consequent gradual decrease in the vitality of the plant. In cuttings taken from the bottom of the plant we would look for increased vitality in the plant and a slight decrease in the number of flowers produced. From cuttings taken at the base of the flowering shoots the natural result would be a perfect duplication of the parent plant, both in vitality and floriferousness, at least as near such a duplication as it would be possible to get from a cutting.

Unfortunately theories do not always hold good in horticulture, or rather the difference in the seasons, in soils and a hundred other causes, often give us just the opposite result from that which we expected. This should not, however, be used as an excuse by growers for carelessness in the selection of their cuttings.

Personally, I have no use for the cuttings taken from the bottom of the plant, but I would not like to be quoted as saying that they are not in some cases preferable to those from the other parts of the plant. A safe rule to follow, or as nearly a safe rule as one grower can give another, is to alternate the cuttings used. That is, one year use the cuttings taken from the flowering shoots, generally known as side pips; then the next year use those that are formed at the base of the flowering shoots. This keeps up a healthy degree of vitality in the plants and at the same time keeps up the number of flowers cut per plant. This, of course, is not infallible, but is as nearly so as any rule, in my experience, that can be laid down in carnation culture.

There is such a variety of experiences in carnation culture that it seems folly for any grower to say that a particular practice is correct or incorrect to follow. Some years ago I advocated the use of separate houses for the carnations we intended for blooming stock and those which we intended for propagation. I advocate it to-day and fully believe that if it were followed up there would be fewer failures with carnations and our varieties would be much more long-lived. This form of culture was not taken up, and will not be to any extent so long as expense is an item, for it would add considerably to the cost of the cuttings per thousand. The above is offered as the next best method, unless you have a better, in which case it would be folly to change.

One absolutely safe rule to follow is not to propagate from plants that are unhealthy from any cause whatever. If care is used to take cuttings from plants that are in good growing condition, the form of cutting taken is really not so much of an item. As some of our good varieties are so affected with rust that it would be hard to find a plant entirely free from it, this one disease can be made an exception. By experience it has been found that cuttings taken from very rusty plants will give better results than if taken from plants affected but very slightly with other carnation diseases. Very often the cuttings taken from rusty plants will be entirely free the next season, this being the case with several varieties on my place now.

After having selected your cutting it is a matter of taste as to whether or not it is trimmed before putting it into the cutting bench. We trim all of ours, taking a few of the lower leaves off each one, so as to give them a nice, clean base for sticking into the sand. It is a theory with me that a cutting not trimmed, with the leaves around its base partly plunged into the sand, is an invitation for cutting bench fungus. If such a cutting escapes the cutting bench fungus it is liable to stem-rot at some stage in its life, owing to the accumulation of dirt in the axils of the lower leaves or their being buried in the soil when the plants are bunched.

The material used in propagation should be absolutely clean and to make assurance doubly sure it should never be used for more than one batch of cuttings. This does away with the danger from cutting bench fungus, and by using one batch now, and a fresh lot for the second batch of cuttings, with the first thrown out to the weather, this lot can then be brought in again for a third lot of cuttings if they are wanted. This may not apply to all materials used but will with some as the action of the frost and air will sweeten it up enough to make it practically new.

Cleanliness is one of the essential features for successful propagation and should be practiced to its extreme limit in the cutting house. Temperature is also an important item and the very best results will be obtained by keeping the cutting house 5° cooler than the houses in which the stock plants are growing. Bottom heat in excess of the above temperature will reduce the number of days required for rooting but most growers consider that it also reduces the vitality of the cutting and on this account it is rarely practiced.

Carnation cuttings are especially sensitive to sunlight and currents of air during their first few weeks in the cutting bench. They should be carefully shaded during the whole of the day for two weeks, even on partly cloudy days, and protected from all currents of air for the same period; then if they are getting along nicely they can be left open a little later in the morning and the shading taken off a little earlier in the evening until you have them well rooted, when they should be given the full benefit of the sunshine for a short time. Two weeks may not be enough in some cases for complete shading, that being a matter for each one to regulate for himself, the object being to avoid even the slightest wilting of the cutting in the bench, and to the shading must be added careful syringing whenever necessary, on bright days once in the morning, once again at noon, and, when firing is pretty strong, an occasional syringing at night may be necessary.

After the cuttings are well rooted and they have been hardened off with plenty of sunshine and ventilation they should be handled as quickly as possible, and especially if the propagating material used is sand, as they will weaken in health if kept too long on a water diet, and this is all they get from the sand.

SATISFACTORY REPORT FROM ALL DEPARTMENTS OF THE TRADE.—ALL GOOD ROSES CONSUMED AT CHRISTMAS.—CARNATIONS IN PROFUSION AND EVEN FANCIES REMAIN UNSOLD.—DEMAND ALL FOR BRIGHT COLORS AND WHITE HANG IN WHOLESALERS' HANDS.—BIG TRADE IN PLANTS AND GREENS.—TOO MANY CHRISTMAS TREES.—VARIOUS NOTES OF INTEREST.

The Christmas report from all departments of the florists' business is very gratifying. In cut flowers, where the greatest apprehension was felt, the demand came very near absorbing all the good stock in the market and undoubtedly would have more than done so but for the warm days of the preceding week. As it was, all good Beauties, Meteors, Liberties and Bridesmaids found buyers. As to Bridesmaids, however, it may truthfully be said that the proportion of flowers of particular excellence was very small. As predicted in these notes for last week the trade asked for the best in everything and seemed to have no use for inferior grades. These latter finally went to the street hawkers and even these gentlemen were critically disposed, hence only bought at figures which might, even at ordinary times, seem low. So in the end most of the rubbish found a buyer at some figure, although there was a large percentage of this low grade class. Scarcely, indeed, have the small roses, pink ones in particular, been so poor in quality. Special Beauty and Liberty were up to grade and were all that could be desired in every respect and supply and demand were about equal. Brides, as usual at this holiday season, were not in demand. At such times it is the custom of many of the retailers to buy white roses only to fill orders actually booked. Growers, in examining the returns from their wholesalers should keep this fact in mind as fully explaining the disadvantage in financial results which Bride shows as compared with Bridesmaid. Later on the pendulum may swing the other way.

The carnation market was in a very healthy condition but the supply was greater than the demand and there were many left in wholesalers' hands at the close of business on Christmas day, not only of the ordinary varieties but of the fancy sorts as well, white being naturally the most unfortunate in this respect. Advance sales of the more desirable fancy carnations were large and prices on such were higher than ever before quoted in this market, ranging as high as $10 to $15 a hundred on Crane and $15 to $25 on Lawson. Violets were not plentiful and the splendid shopping weather helped to contribute to good prices and clean sales, the average values received being much above those of a year ago. Hyacinths and narcissi sold at no advance over ordinary figures and suffered, as usual, from the holiday discrimination against white flowers. Harrisii lilies were scarce. There were plenty of poinsettias, smilax and asparagus, prices normal and sales fairly good.

The plant trade showed an enormous increase over any past season. Plant growers made greater preparations than ever before, azaleas, begonias, ardisias, oranges, poinsettias, ericas and decorative foliage plants being provided in abundance and of excellent quality generally. The salubrious weather was a great factor in favor of the plant growers and also of the retailers on account of the great saving of labor and expense of packing for delivery. The retailers in the fashionable localities had little time to devote to cut flower matters during the week preceding Christmas, the work of preparing the popular arrangements of plants in baskets and jardinières occupying them fully and keeping a large force of skillful clerks busy far into the night. Many of them had fitted up the basement of their store with potting bench and other facilities for handling these goods and the quantity of plant material thus used up was unprecedented. Among the popular foliage plants made general use of were Pandanus Veitchii, Dracæna terminalis, Dracæna Godseffiana, araucarias and an extensive variety of small ferns. Small flowering plants such as cyclamens and Chinese primroses were not welcomed by the large establishments, the objection being that the value of these things was too insignificant to permit of giving them room or going to the expense of delivering them at such a busy season.

Baskets and hampers of braid, luffia, birch bark and such fancy material, with zinc receptacles, were used generally with individual plants or groups of plants and red ribbon bows, cords, tassels, etc., seemed as popular as ever for brightening up these Christmas gifts.

The usual holiday greens business was done, but probably in greater volume than ever before. Holly beat the record as to quantity received and sold lower than last year, when it was thought bottom had been reached. Princess pine ran short, prices doubling up early in the week. Dunne & Co. had enough of this material to fill all orders, but they were the exception. Christmas trees were in over-supply. Evidently this was the case in other markets, for a large cargo which had been consigned to Philadelphia found that market overloaded and was ordered to New York as a last resort, where it only added to the existing congestion. Retailers used up large quantities of the scarlet-berried branches of the deciduous ilex and the prevalent desire for something red necessitated the use of red immortelles in immense numbers, even in establishments that usually bar out material of this sort. The only novelty of importance noted in the various accessions made use of was a sort of willow chip mesh which came in the form of a napkin in various colors, and was used with a sort of careless effect, as a flower pot cover.

The Kervan Co. did an immense business in holiday greens. Not only was their regular establishment crowded to its utmost with material and workmen putting it together, but a large extra store at 34 W. Twenty-ninth street was also utilized. H. A. Bunyard was "in it" as well and made use of a large vacant store on West Twenty-eighth street for the enormous receipts of southern smilax, holly, galax, etc.

Growers of Roman hyacinths for this market make a great mistake in their manner of bunching the flowers. The addition of a quantity of foliage to each bunch of twenty-five spikes would help them to carry and to keep better and add materially to the selling value. As the foliage is otherwise useless there is no reason why it cannot be made use of.

Louis Schmutz was in with thousands of well grown Chinese primroses. The prevalent antipathy to these pretty little plants afforded him an opportunity to tell the story of the historical primrose that he once sold to Herman Kuhn for $2, which that gentleman promptly retailed for $12.

Among the most effective things in the plant line for the Christmas trade were the pans of dwarf poinsettias. These were grown dwarf, five or six plants in a pan and, tied with a bow of ribbon of the same color as the bracts, made very showy and popular gifts.

Saturday was a big day at the Thirty-fourth Street Market. After the heavy morning's business had been completed the boys had a good time raffling for turkeys.

"Billy" Fogarty, one of George Stumpp's most efficient salesmen, has been ill at the hospital with appendicitis for four weeks.

Julius Roehrs had a wagon and load of plants burned on the Patterson Plank road on its way to the city on Saturday.

Fred Stewig has renovated and fitted up the old Donahue store, on Sixth avenue, in fine shape.

Among the Christmas visitors was M. Macnair, of Providence, R. I.

John Young is fortunate in having a good supply of choice orchids in these days of scarcity.

CHRISTMAS TRADE GOES FORWARD BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS.—SHIPPING ORDERS MORE NUMEROUS THAN EVER BEFORE — CITY TRADE COMES AT THE LAST MINUTE TO TAKE WHATEVER IS LEFT.—PICKLED STOCK IS MUCH IN EVIDENCE.—LOW GRADE VIOLETS, WHITE CARNATIONS AND BULBOUS STOCK SUFFER DURING THE RUSH.—WHAT THE RETAILERS WERE DOING.—VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST.

It is undoubted that the Christmas business of 1900 was the largest week's trade ever known in this market. Never before at any holiday season have transactions been so large, either in the amount of stock consumed or total sales in money. One disappointing feature was in the quality of stock. It is the opinion of many wholesalers that never before has so large a proportion of the available material been of a character commonly called "pickled." On the Saturday morning before Christmas roses and carnations literally poured into the market. There were thousands upon thousands of them where during the few days preceding there had been scarcely dozens. The strength of the demand was such that in many instances the wholesalers were compelled to ship out more or less stock which was not fresh or fail entirely in filling the order. Buyers who received this class of material should restrain their wrath. They should understand that the wholesaler was as reluctant to ship it as the buyer was to receive it, and that it was a case of that or nothing. There was a considerable proportion of the "pickled" stock which was so bad that it could not be used by any reliable florist, and it was sold to fakirs even where orders for Brides and Bridesmaids at 12 cents and 15 cents were going unfilled. There were numerous instances where growers sent in thousands of roses on Saturday and Sunday which were sold to fakirs at 2 cents when had the same flowers been shipped in when first cut they would have readily brought 6, 8 or even 10 cents. While the Christmas trade was far the heaviest on record, most houses filled their orders fairly well on everything except Meteor and Liberty roses, medium grades of American Beauty and red carnations. As the week progressed it was seen that there would be an over-supply of violets and prices weakened somewhat. The good bunches were picked out of every shipment and sold readily at good prices, but the poorer grades hung everywhere. Some of the retailers say the trade did not take to violets this year, and that they lost on the purchases which they made in anticipation of Christmas morning business. On Monday there developed an over-supply of white carnations. The city retailers did not buy until Monday afternoon and evening, and then worked nearly all night putting up orders. Neither the city nor country trade wanted bulbous stock, and there were never larger supplies of Paper Whites and Romans, the result being that these specialties were closed out at very low prices. There were few Harrisii, the general report being that they are even later than last year. There was more or less trouble because of the inability of the express companies to handle all business promptly. Since Christmas prices have been well maintained because of the scarcity of good material, carnations being particularly in demand. American Beauties have eased off somewhat, a number of growers, Bassett & Washburn, Wieter Bros., the Reinbergs, the South Park Floral Company, Budlong and the other Bowmanville growers, all having good crops. The chances are that New Years will see the inside prices of the Christmas list prevailing.

The retailers agree that it was the best Christmas on record, but most of them assert that the business was done with cut flowers, Friedman, for example using as one item thirty dozen long American Beauties, for which he received $20 a dozen. Even the George Wittbold Co., which is plant headquarters, found the calls to be for cut flowers, although they sold a great many of Lynn's birch bark baskets filled with Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and adiantum. Wienhoeber had a tasteful thing in a basket of lily of the valley, and he found that the fancy baskets were required on a very large proportion of his orders. Samuelson had some of the best azaleas in town, the stock being generally very poorly flowered. At Smyth's the piece de resistance was the basket of Gloire de Lorraine begonias and at Mangel's the same was true, although the latter had some very good poinsettias in fern pans and not over nine inches high. The Anderson Floral Company did a good trade in both plants and cut flowers, and so did Lange but the Central Floral Company made no effort to push the plant business, not having room. While some palms and ferns were sold, the call was for flowering stock and some good ardisias at Friedman's were as good as anything in this line. Kreitling had an extensive demand for holly, also violets and American Beauty roses. Hauswirth made a fine display with poinsettias and he had some of the best American Beauty roses he had ever handled; plants went well, especially Pandanus Veitchii, heaths and azaleas, but tulips in pans, although good, found little demand with him. One noticeable feature was the way the trade used immortelles, they being in evidence everywhere, even in the very best places, and the stock of red immortelles was exhausted.

E. E. Pieser calls attention to the fact that the growers are overdoing the Lady Hume Campbell violet. He recommends that a larger proportion of the plantings be Marie Louise or Farquhar, as the buyers pass over the light colored variety as long as the darker sorts are available, often refusing Campbell altogether at this season.

John Zeck did not have a merry Christmas. His little son, 3 years old, died on Friday, December 21, after an illness with scarlet fever. Mr. Zeck has a wide circle of friends and every one of them will be pained to hear of his great loss.

Miss Edlefsen, daughter of William Edlefsen, of Milwaukee, was down on Thursday. She says that Christmas trade was never so good in the Cream City. On Christmas morning they delivered over 500 orders.

J. A. Budlong and A. H. Budlong, father and son, have each invested in a new pair of skates and now they are hoping for cold weather, without a thought of the coal bin.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn, who has been steadily improving in health, suffered something of a relapse this week.

Good Old Saint Nic remembered Wieter Brothers' employes with turkeys and $5 bills.

W. N. Rudd has been confined to his home with quite a serious attack of grip.

Chrysanthemum Sports.

Although the origin or cause of sports is still as obscure as ever, there is one point that should be borne in mind, that any sport coming from a sterling variety like Phoebus as a Japanese, or Charles Curtis as an incurved, is sure to bear a close, or I might say identical resemblance to its parent in habit of growth, and in all points except color. The same rule will not apply to varieties raised from seed of known varieties, though occasionally seedlings also possess a habit very
Molyneux in Gardners' Chronicle.*

Weeping Chrysanthemums.

A weeping chrysanthemum named Pioneer is one of eleven seedlings from a cross between Eva Knowles and Viscountess Hambleon, raised by Mr.
Austen, Ditting Court, Maidstone. The peculiarity of all eleven plants consisted in the downward geotropic direction of the branches, which are bent downward like those of a weeping ash, but upturned heliotropic at the ends, when flowers are produced. This peculiar habit would render the plant very useful for certain decorative purposes. No cause could be assigned by the members of the Royal Horticultural Society's scientific committee for the drooping tendency.—Gardeners' Magazine.

American Rose Society.

Arrangements have been completed for holding the second annual exhibition of the American Rose Society on March 19, 20 and 21, 1901. The exhibition will take place in the ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel and the proceeds will be devoted to the charitable department of the Loomis Sanitarium for Consump-tives, an institution which has enormous calls upon its resources in and around New York city. The schedule of the exhibition which has been already distributed will be sent by the secretary, Leonard Barron, 136 Liberty street, New York city, on application. Several special prizes in the form of cups and other plate are being arranged for and indications point to a brilliant event. The art management of the exhibition will be in the hands of one of New York's most able artists.

The Trade in Holly.

Holly continues to be the feature of the holiday greens trade and the amount sold by all dealers increases. The cheaper grades go through commission houses and produce dealers who buy outright at wholesale. The holly output shows probably a twenty per cent increase.
Owing to the absence of freezing weather up to December 1, stock cut during the last ten days of November was almost too soft to carry well and where used for long distance shipments, as such early gatherings are, showed a tendency to lose color. Sharp, frosty weather seems necessary to give the holly leaves their bright, glossy appearance and harden them to stand shipping when closely packed. Freezing en route does not injure the foliage as much as many suppose. If cases are thawed slowly at a temperature of 45° before unpacking, but little damage will result.

Boston.

STORY OF THE GREATEST CHRISTMAS
NEW ENGLAND HAS EVER ENJOYED.—
PLANT TRADE VERY LARGE.—WHITE FLOWERS SAVED FROM DISASTER.—RED FLOWERS IN GREATEST DEMAND.—DE-MAND ALL FOR SUPERIOR GRADES—
VIOLETS DO POORLY.—EXPRESS COM-PANIES SWAMPED.—VARIOUS NOTES.

It was a great Christmas in Boston.
Such weather at this time of the year was unprecedented, even within the memory of the boastful "oldest inhabitant." There must have been nearly a million shoppers in the streets during the three days preceding the holiday, and the florists got their full share of the money spent. The fun began with the holly and other greens, of which there was an unlimited supply, of generally excellent quality. The earlier shipments of holly had been received in more or less damaged condition consequent upon the effect of the warm weather, but later cuttings, which were consigned in unexpected quantities, came in splendid shape and, being heavily berried, found an enormous sale, although at lower values than ever before, prices being about one-half those ruling last year, which, at the time, were considered ruinously low.

Mistletoe came in better condition than ever before but found a light demand.

As in other places, the plant trade made inroads upon the domains of the cut flower trade, and all the dealers report greatly increased sales in this line. Azaleas and Lorraine begonias led the procession. Practically all the azaleas in sight were gobbled up promptly, Ver-vaneana being especially popular. The begonia has now got beyond the novelty period and is firmly established as a staple article. Some of the dealers overlooked this fact and put an almost prohibitive value on their plants. Between the grower who forces the life half out of it and the dealer who wants to get the most of his store rent out of the profit on one sale, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine has had its own troubles, but it is "getting there" notwithstanding. Jerusalem cherries, Chinese primroses and cyclamens all fared well, as did also Roman hyacinths in pans. The usual run of foliage plants and ferns found a largely increased demand, and prices were generally reasonable.

White flowers had a narrow escape from disaster. The enormous demand caused by the funeral of Ex-Governor Wolcott and others of lesser note saved the day for hyacinths, narcissi and white roses and carnations, which are always so hard to move at Christmas, and also helped out effectively on the violet problem. The receipts of the latter were very heavy, despite the forebodings of the growers, and proved very refractory stock for those who had loaded up at the enhanced prices placed on them, for the public rebelled at paying a dollar for what they had been accustomed to get for half a dollar. Had it not been for the Wolcott funeral the violet growers would have heard something drop, as the retailers are on the point of open rebellion.

As to red flowers, the old Christmas experience was repeated. Prices soared to an unheard of degree on scarlet carnations, good stock of fancy varieties bringing all the way from $6 to $10 a hundred, Lawsons bringing nearly double these figures. Mrs. Bradt, although only suggestive of the popular red color, moved in the highest priced grade, and the pink varieties were but a little way behind.
Neither the retailers nor the public seemed to feel the resentment regarding the carnation prices that they did towards the violet "hold up," a good reason for which was probably the recognition that the carnations for which they are asked to pay high prices now are very different goods from the cheaper stock of former days.

Not on carnations alone, but on roses, also, the willingness to pay full values for first-class material was everywhere evident and there was no difficulty in getting the highest price quoted for superfine selection. The gap in values between this special grade and the common class of stock was very wide. Top quality American Beauty, for instance, cleaned up at $18 a dozen wholesale, while third quality could not be unloaded at $10 a hundred.

There were a few Harrisii lilies in evidence, and these with white lilacs and yellow trumpet daffodils, were the only things noted as exceptional to the daily run of cut flower stock coming to the market during the past month. A good many poinsettias were used and there were quite a few chrysanthemums, which their owners had succeeded in holding over in fairly good condition, but they seemed out of place and could well have been spared.

Sunday coming on the 23d was a great advantage to the retailers, giving them a respite between the two busy days and an opportunity to get everything in order to meet Monday's rush. To the wholesaler, however, Sunday proved a serious disadvantage. Express shipments, both coming and going, were managed with great difficulty and inconvenience and there were many instances of vexatious delays which the overtaxed express companies were powerless to prevent. Otherwise the wholesalers had every reason to feel satisfied with their Christmas business.

The above recorded facts apply to the days immediately preceding the holiday, and not necessarily to Christmas day. On that morning the receipts of flowers of all sorts were heavy and prices swung back to their old place. White carnations dropped to $2 per hundred with but few takers, and the weather being warm and sunny no scarcity was felt in any line.

J. N. May has just closed the deal with Robert Montgomery by which he becomes the owner of the Mrs. Oliver Ames rose.

W. W. Tailby is pointing with pride to his sales book showing sales of Lawson carnations at $2 a dozen.

Geo. Sutherland and N. F. McCarthy each handled an enormous quantity of holly this season.

E. N. Pierce & Son brought in Monday morning fifty dozen chrysanthemums in several varieties.

The best white carnation seen in this market was Pond's seedling at Welch Brothers'.

The flower trade has been very good here this fall, chrysanthemums selling for better prices than ever before. The everyday stock brought $1.50 per dozen and choice blooms sold as high as $4 per dozen. Joseph W. Vestal & Son had exceptionally fine stock and report a correspondingly active trade. Tipton & Hurst also had good success and William Gallagher's Wm. H. Chadwicks were extra. The pink sport of Chadwick which aroused considerable controversy last winter did very well with Mr. Gallagher. G.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

WILLIAM CASLER has embarked in the seed business at Cape Vincent, N. Y.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y.—R. A. Mather has purchased the T. C. Parkhurst seed business.

THE advance in the prices of onions should increase the demand for seed the coming spring.

THE engagement is announced of Howard Coonley, of Chicago, to Miss Queenie Ferry, daughter of Dexter M. Ferry, of Detroit.

LESTER L. MORSE, of Santa Clara, Cal., visited St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago last week and left for Cincinnati December 24.

WHITE beans have made a sharp advance in price, St. Louis dealers claiming a corner exists at Chicago; price now about $2.25. This advance is likely to affect the growing prices which will be asked by seed farmers for the coming season.

The Government Seed Shop.

As seedsmen are all "honorable gentlemen" and Congressmen not all they should be, why not refuse to supply seeds for this purpose? Firms in many lines of trade refuse to sell their goods to certain parties who cut prices and do other things not to their liking. Why not seedsmen? The man who sells seeds to the government has to buy seeds. Why not stop right here at this man? If a man gets drunk, they hold the seller of rum responsible, according to law. On this question all Congressmen do not think alike nor do all seedsmen, where the latter get the orders.

E. V. HALLOCK.

Alleged Fraudulent Advertising.

An association of Erfurt (Germany) florists and seed growers, comprising sixteen of the important concerns, has given publication in a number of trade papers to the statement that its members will refuse to supply either seeds or plants to a certain Erfurt firm. This action was taken on account of the alleged dishonest competition of the firm in question, which, it is claimed, offered plants, bulbs, etc., at bankrupt prices, wording the advertisements in such a way that the reader can construe them to mean that the advertiser had secured the surplus stocks of all the Erfurt growers for disposal. One of the members of the association has instituted a suit against the party concerned for dishonest competition. German trade papers seem to indorse the action of the association.

Scottish-Canadian Seedsman as M. P.

It is said, and seemingly with a fair amount of truth, that "a Scotsman is never at home except when abroad." We have news of Mr. Frank C. Bruce, a native of Peebles-shire, Scotland, where he was born in 1837. His father was fruit foreman with Dicksons & Co., Edinburgh for upwards of twenty-five years. Young Bruce began life as an apprentice in the seed department of this firm, and there he remained till the year 1857. In that year he emigrated to Hamilton, Canada, and joined his brother, John A. Bruce, in the seed business, which they still conduct. During his long residence at Hamilton, Mr. Bruce has been identified with public affairs to a considerable extent, and has held some of the highest and most responsible positions in the city. His crowning position of honor has culminated in his being returned as one of the M. P.'s for Hamilton, in the Canadian government, at the election in the early part of November last.—Gardening World.

Destroying Insects In Seeds.

Willis G. Johnson, entomologist of the State of Maryland, has issued the following circular with regard to the use of carbon bisulphide for the destruction of insects in seeds:

This department is receiving many requests for a remedy for the destruction of the grain weevil and grain moth in wheat and other grains. These pests are doing an unusual amount of damage to stored grains over a large area of the United States.

The remedy for this pest is a simple one and not difficult to apply, but must be handled with great care. Bisulphide of carbon is the material used. It is a very foul-smelling, volatile liquid, as clear as water, the fumes of which are several times heavier than air. They create a death atmosphere in which no animal life can survive. The material can be placed directly upon grain without the least deleterious effect, so far as injury to the germ is concerned and it does not hurt its edible properties. Although a very foul-smelling liquid, it leaves no bad after effect, and is sure death to insects wherever it reaches them. The material can be bought at about 10 cents per pound.

From one to two pounds of the material is all that is necessary for every hundred bushels of grain in store, or the same amount for every thousand cubic feet of space. The amount used depending upon the tightness of the building or bin and the intensity of the attack. If the bin is very tight, one pound of bisulphide to every hundred bushels will be sufficient. If open, use two pounds. In applying the chemical, after the capacity of the bin or house has been determined, it should be placed in tin pans, soup plates, or any vessel with a large evaporating surface and set around directly on top of the grain. The room or bin should be closed as tightly as possible and left for at least 24 hours. I would advise its use in pans or soup plates, as the fumes are kept more constant for a greater length of time, as evaporation is gradual, and better results are secured.

It must be borne in mind that this material is a very explosive one, when the fumes are mechanically mixed with air; therefore it must be handled with caution during the fumigation of a house or bin. Especial care should be taken that no lights or persons with a light of any kind, even a cigar or pipe, are allowed around the room or building.

With this caution, there need not be any fear to persons applying it, as a reasonable amount can be inhaled without injury during the operation. Of course it is necessary for the person applying the material, to get out of the building as soon as possible.

FRANKLIN, N. H.—The greenhouses of Kelly Brothers have been leased to C. V. Kimball.

WEST HOBOKEN, N. J.—An overheated furnace caused a $1600 loss at the establishment of Charles Heins on December 15. Three houses were destroyed with their contents.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Following the meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, December 19, J. K. M. L. Farquhar delivered his illustrated lecture on Jamaica, being very well received.

LEWELLYN PARK, N. Y.—J. B. Davis is building a gardener's cottage and entrance lodge at Wildmont, gothic in design and with original features in keeping with the rural surroundings of this beautiful estate.

MONTREAL, CAN.—Trade prospects are very good here at present and there is promise of a continuance of same during the coming year. For this week J. S. Murray has extensive ball decorations in which only the choicest stock, including American Beauty roses and lily of the valley, is to be used.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE Great Northern Nursery Company has been incorporated by P. J. Regan, H. J. Paasch and Charles Kane, with $25,000 capital stock and headquarters at Coralville, Ia.

JOBBERS in nursery stock report that the "dollar cherry tree" may become a reality before spring. They say that they cannot now buy at double the price paid a year ago.

CHARLES F. DALLMAN, manager of the Missoula Nursery Co., Missoula, Mont., reports the demand for fruit trees for spring planting the heaviest the northwest has ever known.

At King's Point, six miles from Chattanooga, Tenn., on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, D. W. Hunter and H. Lightfoot have started nurseries separated only by a road. The peach pit plantings of the two number 1,500,000 and there will be large plantings of apple and pear grafts and strawberries.

Paulownia Imperialis.

The magnificent Japanese tree, Paulownia imperialis, was introduced to this country about 1845, and was given very favorable notice by such men as Downing. It was disseminated through some of the best nurseries at that time, and at no time since has been out of the trade. Nevertheless paulownia trees are still a rarity, and good trees are exceedingly scarce. There are some pretty ones in Central Park, New York city, and a few good ones in Washington; but they do not occur often enough but that one always stops and looks a second time when another specimen is encountered. The tree is magnificent in foliage, interesting in form, glorious in blossom, and curious in fruit. The foliage is like that of an abnormally luxuriant catalpa; and the blossoms are something like immense purple catalpa blooms borne in trusses a foot to two feet long. The seed pods have the external form of acorns, and are borne in striking clusters. The accompanying illustration shows a tree loaded with fruit, growing at Denton, Maryland.

The paulownia, unfortunately, is not reliably hardy in our northern winters. Henry Winthrop Sargent records that it is not fully hardy at Newburgh, N. Y., and I remember a single specimen on the grounds of the Kansas Agricultural College at Manhattan which froze back repeatedly, sometimes quite to the ground. Rumpler records that it often freezes to the ground at Erfurt, Germany, though the climate there is not very cold. He says, however, that it sprouts up immediately and very vigorously from the roots, a fact which has been often remarked in this country. It seems to me that this is one of the best ways to treat it in the northern states, just as some landscape gardeners treat catalpa. Plant it for its annual growth, and cut it back every year. In this way it never becomes a tree, and the beautiful blossoms must be foregone; but it adds a striking, clean and useful plant to the shrubby border.

F. A. WAUGH.

CHELSEA, MASS.—The flower store of M. A. McGee, at 390 Broadway, was damaged by fire on the night of December 9. The loss was about $250; insured.

Cleveland.

THE CHRISTMAS TRADE REPORT.—SALES HEAVIER THAN EVER BEFORE.—BEAUTIFUL WEATHER FACILITATES HANDLING BIG BUSINESS.—STORY OF THE WEEK.

All reports so far received from retail florists seem to indicate an unusually satisfactory Christmas trade, in many instances considerably surpassing that of any previous holiday season. Prices do not seem to have varied noticeably from those of other years, excepting to some extent in the case of carnations, which sold at better rates than heretofore. To a considerable extent this was probably due to an improvement in $1.50 per dozen, the latter rate only on fancy stock, with good average material selling at about $1. Those at 60 cents were poor. Roses sold at various prices, owing to the great difference in qualities, running from $1.50 to $3.50. Beauties brought from $12 to $18 per dozen, the latter for very fine stock. Violets were variously reported as to their selling qualities, some reporting everything sold and others having an uncomfortable quantity still on hand. The prices were from $1 to $1.25 per bunch in most cases. A few chrysanthemums were offered and seemed to sell well at from $2 to $3 per dozen. The flowers were not large but seemed firm and good.

quality as well as to the greater popularity of the flower itself. Plants also seemed to be in greater demand than ever. Another feature that contributed greatly to the volume of business was the magnificent weather, which was absolutely as perfect as could be had at this season of the year, no frost until Christmas day, and then only enough to put a little snap into the atmosphere. The trade in trees and Christmas greens, as well as immortelles and other dried flowers, was very satisfactory, everybody reporting good business, with stocks well cleaned out at good, fair prices.

Carnations sold at from 60 cents to

The fine weather facilitated the handling of large quantities of plants, the leaders being azaleas, Boston ferns, primroses, cyclamens, poinsettias, palms, Pandanus Veitchii and P. utilis. They seemed to be in good demand at fair prices and to give purchasers excellent satisfaction, which was not always the case with cut flowers, such as Beauties and violets, the prices of which at times developed a decided inclination to kick, regardless of the futility of the performance at this particular season. In plants the price was usually handed over without a murmur, for the purchasers felt they were getting good value. A.

WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers.

Mushroom Growing in Cellars.

A question which the seedsman here often has to answer has just been decided with legal formality on the other side of the water in accordance with the accepted understanding, i. e., that the growing of mushrooms in cellars is perfectly harmless. The following account is from the Gardening World, of London, Eng.:

"In the sheriff court at Leith, Edinburgh, on December 11, Sheriff-Substitute Maconochie gave judgment in a case raised by the local authority of the burgh of Leith against William McRobbie. The local authority alleged that McRobbie was using certain cellars in various parts of the town for mushroom growing, that the cellars were in proximity to and below the level of dwelling-houses, and contained accumulations varying in quantity from time to time of stable manure, which persistently polluted the atmosphere with gases due to fermentation and the soil with decomposing organic refuse, and that the process of mushroom growing as carried on was a nuisance or injurious or dangerous to health within the meaning of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897.

"On November 13, the sheriff-substitute refused McRobbie a proof, and remitted the matter to Sir Henry D. Littlejohn, M. D., medical officer of health of Edinburgh, for examination and report. Having examined the place where the manure is prepared or "sweetened" at a considerable distance from dwelling-houses, and the three cellars where the business is carried on, he reported that the vaults appeared to him to be well suited for the purpose; that he could detect no objectionable odor, either within or without the respective premises; that he had since his first examination inspected the localities from time to time, and made inquiries of the neighboring tenants whether they had to complain of any odor from the mushroom beds; that he failed to detect any himself in his subsequent visits, and that the various tenants assured him they had no cause to complain. Further, he reported, that under these circumstances he considered that the trade of mushroom growing in the three localities complained of was carried on in a wholesome manner and did not create a nuisance as alleged.

"Sheriff Maconochie has now granted absolvitor to McRobbie with expenses. The matter has excited considerable local interest and McRobbie's defence has been conducted by P. Murray Thomson, S. S. C., Edinburgh, secretary of the Royal Caledonian Horticultural Society."

Kaiserin Roses At Kokomo, Ind.

Enclosed you will find a photograph of my house of Kaiserins, taken a few days before Thanksgiving. We had cut over 1,000 blooms out of this house in the ten days before the photograph was taken. The house is 20x100 feet with solid beds in center and narrow side benches. The solid beds were planted in 1893, about one-quarter of the stock being grafted. The first year after planting the grafted plants were more productive and vigorous than the own-root plants, but since 1894 I can see no difference between the own-root and grafted stock. These plants have been pruned but twice during the seven years and each time were cut back to within ten or twelve inches of the ground.

Since the first week in September, 1893, we have not missed a single day to cut some Kaiserins from this house. We cut only a few, however, during January and February, but during the balance of the year they make up for their tardiness in the first two months. The plants were cut back this year, one-half of them during the last week in July, the remainder being cut down when the first lot began to bloom. This was done so as to give us Kaiserins right through the summer, as my trade calls for white roses nearly every day in the year. Kaiserins should not be grown in a temperature lower than 58° to 60° at night. If grown in a cool temperature, soft, bull-headed buds will be the result. W. W. COLES.

The Christmas Tree Trade.

For the first time in the history of the Christmas tree trade there was this year a greater demand for them in New York than in Philadelphia. Better prices were realized there than ever before, and a week ago the supply became so short that ten carloads of the best trees at Philadelphia were reshipped to New York. A total of 150 car loads from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, about 60,000 trees, were disposed of to Philadelphians. New Yorkers purchased 200 car loads.

Of the entire lot less than three car loads remained unsold Christmas eve, and these were retailed at advanced prices. Thirty wholesalers were interested in the venture in Philadelphia this season, and of that number only three remained Christmas eve, the others having sold out and returned home.

The trees, according to a Vermonter, cost from 5 to 10 cents apiece, ready for hauling to the railroads. Freight charges averaged from $35 to $45 per car, according to distance, the cars containing from 350 to 1000 trees. All the medium-sized trees were first sold, and the largest are the only ones left on hand.

The trees this year were not up to the average grade of former years, and prices were not so good, although the sales in aggregate, by selling out the supply, made the profits larger than for years past. Up to this season Philadelphia has been the best market for the evergreens, with New York second and Boston third. Western cities are not considered worth shipping to, nor are any of the smaller towns in New York or Pennsylvania.—Philadelphia Record.

St. Louis.

ALL REPORTS POINT TO AN EXTENDED HOLIDAY TRADE.—MORE BUSINESS COULD HAVE BEEN DONE HAD GOOD STOCK BEEN AVAILABLE.

We cannot say much regarding the Christmas business, but all whom we have heard from report a greater trade than ever before. Waldbart, Ayres, Weber, Newman and others of our leading West End florists say they did a splendid business, and Reissen, Ellison & Tesson, Foster and others down town claim to have done well, but each one could have done much more if they could have procured more good stock. Select material was very scarce, especially Meteor roses. There was an over-supply of poor stock in roses. Carnations were quite plentiful and sold well, the choice grades bringing 6 cents each. Our wholesale men report having done a larger business than usual at Christmas, especially in shipping. R. J. M.

TRADE THE BEST ON RECORD.—CHRISTMAS ECLIPSES ALL PREVIOUS HIGH WATER MARKS.—NOTES.

The Christmas trade in general was the best in Washington for years. Everybody had his hands full and stock was plentiful and in fine condition. Holly and other green was plentiful and in good demand. The weather was a great factor in the immense business.

F. W. Bolgiano had his conservatory, which had been rebuilt and enlarged during the summer, well filled with desirable plants for the holidays. He said he did a better business than for some time, both in plants and cut flowers.

Z. D. Blackstone did extra well. He sold more roses at $4 per dozen than the higher or lower grades. Violets were in demand, also carnations, but reds seemed scarce.

Litzinger & Wade's best selling plants were of the smaller sizes. Cut flowers sold fairly well.

J. Vincent Phillips, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now with A. Gude & Bro., who were quite busy.

J. H. Small, Jr., said this was the busiest Christmas he has seen for some time.

The Westchester County Gardeners' Association had a large attendance at its annual meeting which was held Saturday evening, December 22, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Robert Williamson; vice-president, Andrew Grierson; treasurer, John Fraser; secretary, Edward Parker; executive committee, John Shore, William Smith, George M. Hay, William Anderson and Thomas France. It was voted to hold the second annual dinner in the near future. Speeches were made by the retiring president, John Shore, who thanked the members for the confidence they had placed in him during the last two terms which he had held the office, by former president Peter McDonald, of the New York Gardeners' Society, who congratulated the society on its progressiveness, and by President-elect Robert Williamson, who urged each and every member to co-operate with him in the furthering the interests of the society during the coming year.

Albany, N. Y.

It is rather early to give a complete report of Christmas trade in Albany but business was most excellent. There was a good demand for stock of all kinds. Violets were scarce and sold on the afternoon before Christmas for $4 per hundred. American Beauties were $8 per dozen a few days before Christmas but the demand increased to such an extent that the price went up and $25 per dozen was asked on Christmas eve. Christmas trees which in ordinary years sold for 25 cents to 50 cents each rose first to 75 cents apiece and on the day before Christmas the price had risen to $3 each. There were plenty of Christmas greens and laurel but good holly was scarce. One dealer sold 400 Christmas trees, the largest number he says he ever handled. Perhaps the situation can be best explained by quoting H. G. Eyres, who said "the demand was the largest ever known and Christmas trade was the best ever seen."

Eyres has been awarded the contract for the decorations in the assembly chamber of the capitol on the occasion of the inauguration of Governor-elect B. B. Odell, Jr., on January 1. Palms, southern smilax, laurel and poinsettias will be used in abundance. The executive mansion will be decorated with plants and flowers from the greenhouses in connection therewith. R. D.

Troy, N. Y.

Louis Menand now has charge of the greenhouses formerly conducted by his father, Felix Menand, at Cemetery Station, on the Delaware & Hudson River Railroad, between Albany and Troy. Mr. Menand tore down one house during the past summer and has erected in its place a modern greenhouse with iron frame construction and other up-to-date features. The house is now well filled with palms and other decorative plants.

W. H. Boardman, formerly with Samuel Goldring, of Albany, and J. A. Sanders, an old employe of H. G. Eyres, of Albany, have entered into partnership under the firm name of Boardman & Sanders. The firm has opened a store at 7 Third street.

The establishment conducted by the late Herman Leiderly, in North Troy, is now run by his widow. R. D.

HOLIDAY TRADE THE BEST EVER SEEN IN THE CITY OF CADILLAC.—NO SHORTAGE OF MATERIAL ALTHOUGH DEMANDS INCREASE ONE-FOURTH.—PLANTS POPULAR WITH MANY BUYERS.

The Christmas trade just over was the largest and most satisfactory ever experienced here. The weather was fine. Plants could be delivered without wrapping. The growers were happy because a few days of sunshine gave increased quantities of bloom and improved qualities materially. As usual at such seasons the growers held back their violets, carnations and roses for ten days previous to Christmas, making it difficult for the retailers to properly care for their trade, and when the growers did send in their entire cut on Monday and Tuesday it was found that the threatened shortage of violets and carnations as well as roses was more fancied than real, for, notwithstanding the reported increase in sales, approximating twenty-five per cent above last year, there was sufficient to meet the demand in most cases. The popularity of carnations was noticeable and they sold readily for $1 per dozen and some of the fancy varieties were sold for $1.50 per dozen. Violets retailed for $4 per hundred, though the advanced price on them was not as agreeable to the public as the advanced prices on other flowers seemed to be. In plants Gloire de Lorraine sold well, also cyclamens, azaleas and Boston ferns, and a limited number of basket effects made up with a combination of foliage and flowering plants. The growing tendency of the majority of flower buyers to indulge in plants at Christmas time was clearly manifested, and the retailers, approving the custom, made every effort to provide the necessary stock.

J. F. S.

Louisville, Ky.

The Anchorage Rose Co., wholesale rose growers, had a grand stock of Brides and Bridesmaids and report Christmas sales twenty-five per cent ahead of last year.

Edward Morat has sold his stock and leased his greenhouses to F. Walker & Co., who will use this range to grow plants for their retail trade.

Mrs. C. W. Reimers has had her store window handsomely decorated with poinsettias but none were in sight the day after Christmas.

Jacob Schultz had so much of his own grown stock that he had to buy very little to supply his retail Christmas trade.

Nanz & Neuner had a large supply of home grown Norway spruce and found ready sale for them as Christmas trees.

Geo. Schultz is considered the crack grower of violets here, but he had very few for Christmas this year.

Miss Alice Miller, who has been away for her health, was at her store during the holiday rush.

Walker & Co., sold four times as much holly this year as last and ran short, even at that.

H. G. W.

MARION, IND.—In our issue of last week the name of the gardener at the Soldiers' Home was given as Mr. Robinson. It should have been Mr. Anderson.

DUBUQUE, IA.—The "big four" in carnations, introduced last spring, Lawson, Lord, Crocker and Marquis, are all showing up well. Genevieve Lord is most prolific. The Marquis does not keep quite so well, is a good seller and a very desirable variety. Crane has suffered most from stem-rot this season.

Queen of Edgely, PINK..... AMERICAN BEAUTY.

"We are convinced that this variety is a valuable addition to the list of forcing roses, being in every respect, except color, the exact counterpart of the American Beauty. The color is a beautiful, bright pink, which is good, even in the full flowers. The fragrance is also as fine as that of Beauty, and the exhibited blooms showed remarkable vigor."

CHRISTMAS TRADE WAS EXCELLENT.— PRICES REALIZED FULLY UP TO THEIR USUAL LEVEL —SCARCITY OF METEOR.

Business was a little quiet until Wednesday before Christmas but then it started with a rush. This Christmas was an exceedingly good one. Wholesale prices went into effect Wednesday as follows: Beauties, $2 to $10 for the best; Meteors, Bridesmaids and Brides, $10 to $15 per hundred; carnations, fancies, $5 to $6; ordinary grades, $3 to $4. Meteors and Brides were in demand, also Bridesmaids, but they were in larger quantities; the call for Beauties was not so large as was expected. Azaleas, primulas and ferneries sold like hot cakes, also the Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, of which A. Swanson had a very fine display. His poinsettias also were their best.

Romans and narcissi were very plentiful. Some of the finest seen were at R. Wessling's Fifth street store, where some fine violets were also displayed. Violets are available in very limited quantities in Minneapolis at present.

The only complaint of Brant & Nee is that their Meteors were not nearly plentiful enough to go around. C. F. R.

London, Ont.

Now that the rush is over a little time can be spared to glance over our books and look around the houses. Comparison with last season proves that again we can report an increase in total sales. The individual percentage has not been quite so large as in some previous seasons, but with an increase of one-third in competition we are still able to write opposite Christmas week an increase of fifteen per cent. The weather could not have been better had we had the ordering of it; there was no snow and just enough frost to keep it hard under foot. The demand for carnations and roses could not be supplied. Roses sold at from $1.50 to $3 per dozen, carnations at from 60 cents to $1 per dozen; violets 25 cents to 35 cents per dozen. While flowering plants sold well there was no noticeably increased demand. Gammage & Sons' was the only firm offering Begonia Gloire de Lorraine; these sold quickly at $1 for plants in 4½-inch pots. Azaleas, Begonia incarnata and primulas were disposed of in large quantities, with a decided revival in the demand for fern pans. W. G.

what you pay for the advertisement but what the advertisement pays you. It pays to advertise in the American Florist.

Rochester, N. Y.

The plant trade during Christmas week was very brisk and satisfactory. Bright colored blooming plants, while provided in large quantities, run short. Azaleas were more plentiful this year and so were cyclamens in large and well grown plants. The various kinds of begonias, among them the bright colored B. rubra, well flowered, sold readily. Ericas and poinsettias were very scarce toward the end and bulbous plants, especially the French yellow Trumpet narcissus in pans found eager purchasers. The berried plants, solanums, ardisias and peppers, were the only articles which perhaps moved a trifle slower than in former years. Prices on all goods, including cut flowers, were above the average compared with other years, and people did not grumble at the advance. The supply of cut flowers was more than equal to the demand. Violets were the only scarce article and more of them might have been disposed of at $4 a hundred. Carnations brought from 75 cents to $1.75 per dozen according to quality. J. B. K.

TORONTO, ONT.—Councillor F. C. Miller, of Bracondale, is confined to his home by a serious trouble with one of his eyes.

MANCHESTER, MASS.—J. Clark has been re-elected president of the North Shore Horticultural Society. The other officers are J. B. Dow, vice-president; T. W. Head, secretary; J. McGregor, treasurer; J. Sanborn, financial secretary; J. Baker, librarian; T. W. Head, H. W. Clark, C. O. Lee, W. J. Griffin and A. Carr, executive committee.

DES MOINES, IA.—The Iowa Seed Co. built seven new houses for plants the past season. No cut flowers are grown by this firm, mail order trade in plants, seeds, etc., being its specialty. Grant Jacobs has leased the greenhouses which for many years have been conducted by A. W. Anderson and David Smeaton has opened a flower store in the former location of W. L. Morris.

HOLIDAY TRADE.

Many reports of good trade during the holidays continue to reach us, a number of which follow:

WATERVILLE, ME.—H. R. Mitchell says the Christmas trade was two-thirds greater than a year ago, with prices averaging higher and inadequate supplies in all lines of stock.

GALESBURG, ILL.—Christmas trade was about twenty-five per cent better than last year. The demand was mostly for cut flowers, according to I. L. Pillsbury. Carnations were in particularly short supply.

DURUQUE, IA.—W. A. Harkett estimates Christmas trade as from ten to twelve per cent ahead of a year ago. He says red roses and carnations were decidedly short of the demand. Plants sold well, also holly.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—Christmas trade was about the same as a year ago, the usual shortage prevailing in cut flowers. The principal change noticed was in the increased call for carnations. Violets are very scarce here this season.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—Christmas buyers called for red in both roses and carnations and there was a particular scarcity in these lines in consequence. As a rule qualities were fully as good as a year ago and the aggregate of sales considerably larger.

WORCESTER, MASS.—H. F. A. Lange says that there were enough roses for Christmas, except of Liberty, and that the shortage was on carnations and violets. There were a plenty of Romans and Paper Whites and the qualities were good all along the line.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—E. Nagel failed to notice a special call for any flower and reports that violets were very scarce and retail prices rather higher than usual all along the line. There was particularly good trade on flowering plants, azaleas being in especial favor.

ADRIAN, MICH.—There was a fifteen per cent increase in Christmas business and prices were a little higher, according to Nathan Smith & Son, who report a shortage of all cut flowers, except violets and bulbous stock, of this latter item there being very little grown because of almost no demand. In general, qualities were better than a year ago and it was noticeable that there was less call for plants, either decorative or flowering.

FALL RIVER, MASS.—Christmas trade was all that could be desired, Chatterton Warburton reporting everything cleaned out except greens, which were handled largely by the farmers. Violets and roses were the shortest stocks. Plants were in good demand and supply limited.

PORTLAND, ME.—J. A. Dirwanger reports that the holiday business was much better than 1899, that stock was scarce and prices were better. Bulbous stock sold out clean. He reports an increased call for orchids, Farleyense ferns, primroses, cyclamens and azaleas.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—J. F. Wilcox says that this Christmas was about as a year ago, with plentiful supplies of roses, but shortage on carnations and violets, carnations being in particular demand. He reports a decreased call for plants, except Boston ferns, which sold well.

AUGUSTA, GA.—L. A. Berckmans says Christmas trade was decidedly ahead of 1899, with prices stiffer. The local supply was inadequate and many cut flowers were shipped in from a distance. Carnations are gaining in favor and there was a decided increase in the sale of palms.

PINE BLUFFS, ARK.—Christmas trade was just double that of a year ago according to the estimate of Mrs. C. A. Starr, who says that prices were about as usual, with a particular demand for carnations, roses not being wanted. There was increased call for all kinds of plants.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—There were more poinsettias and cyclamens sold than ever before at Christmas. Trade increased about fifty per cent, according to J. B. Keller's Sons, and the supply of cut flowers was equal to the demand. Single daffodils in pans were an item which sold very well.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—William Gallagher reports that Christmas trade was very brisk, everything selling well, including considerable supplies of chrysanthemums which retailed as high as $4 per dozen. Vestal & Son and Tipton & Hurst, as well as Mr. Gallagher were well supplied.

LANCASTER, PA.—Albert M. Herr says Christmas trade was better than a year ago by fully one-third and that prices were higher. There was not enough stock in any line except bulbous flowers and qualities were rather inferior. There was increased sale for both flowering and decorative plants.

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—John E. Keller reports forty per cent increase in Christmas business, with prices somewhat better than in 1899, because money is easier. There was enough stock and the qualities were somewhat better than a year ago. A considerable increase was noted in the call for decorative plants.

YORK, PA.—Ten per cent will about cover the increase in Christmas business, with supply short on roses, carnations and violets and prices a little better than usual, although the qualities were not as high. The marked increase in demand was for palms, rubbers and Christmas greens, according to Jacob Reeser.

NORFOLK, VA.—Christmas trade brought a marked increase in the sale for Roman hyacinths in 6-inch and 8 inch pans, all flowering plants being in demand. Harris says trade was twenty per cent ahead of a year ago and also that the supplies of cut flowers were short. There was much more store decorating than usual.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Trade was one-fourth better than last Christmas, as per the estimate of Homer S. Cruikshank, who says there was a shortage on every item of cut flowers, qualities being far ahead of any previous Christmas. Carnations and violets were in unusual demand and there was increased sale for flowering plants.

NEWARK, N. J.—John G. Mueller chronicles a thirty-three and one-third per cent increase in Christmas sales, with prices ten per cent higher and inadequate supplies of all cut flowers, carnations being in particular demand and therefore very scarce. There was an increase in the sales on both decorative and flowering plants.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—Trade was one-fourth better than at the Christmas of 1899, but prices were about the same. Although all kinds of stock was scarce, qualities in general were poor. Thomas Franks reports that carnations were "the whole thing" as to demand and noticed an increased call for decorative plants.

CAMBRIDGEPORT, MASS.—Walter H. Murdock says that the Christmas trade was about as last year, with stock plentiful and prices slightly higher than usual. The demand for flowering plants was excellent. Murdock grew 1500 pots of cyclamens and before Christmas had wholesaled 1300 of them at $8 to $18 per dozen.

FREDERICTON, N. B.—Altogether the last was the most satisfactory Christmas on record. John Buffington says that carnations and roses sold out clean, that the late chrysanthemums all went, together with all sorts of flowering plants, large stocks of azaleas, cyclamens, primroses and bulbous flowers having been provided.

OMAHA, NEB.—Holiday trade has been very good and carnations and violets commanded a better price than in previous years. Palms and flowering plants sold well, also especially well grown cyclamens. Azaleas were somewhat on the decline. The weather was excellent for Christmas, lots of snow with a mild temperature.

DENVER, COLO.—Baskets of blooming plants had the call at Christmas, although first-class cut flowers were well cleaned out and sales increased ten per cent. The particular demand seemed to be for fancy carnations and such varieties as Mrs. Lawson, Ethel Crocker, The Marquis and Olympia brought the best prices ever realized here for carnations. Violets were in over supply and Roman hyacinths were too plentiful. There was good trade in Christmas greens but the florists left it largely to the grocers and street men.

CAMDEN, N. J.—Christmas trade was all that could have been asked for, although the prices on cut flowers were not nearly so high as are reported in various larger cities. The plant trade was very good, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, azaleas and cyclamens being the principal items of demand, according to C. W. Turnley.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Farquhar Macrae says Christmas trade was about the same as last year. Carnations and violets were higher than ever and roses were about as usual at this season. Carnations were the greatest shortage. There was more demand than ever for flowering plants such as azaleas, cyclamens and primroses.

ALLEGHENY, PA.—The Ludwigs report trade as ten per cent ahead of a year ago, with adequate supplies of cut flowers at the usual Christmas rates. Stock was poorer than last year's and there was little unusual in the week's business. Holly was cheaper than ever before, but Christmas trees were in great demand and higher.

COLUMBUS, O.—Christmas trade was all that could be asked for, all stock being consumed at fine prices. Plant trade was excellent. J. R. Hellenthal was about the only one who had poinsettias and azaleas, home grown, and he did splendidly with them. The bottom dropped out of the holly market several days before Christmas.

DALLAS, TEXAS.—The Texas Seed and Floral Company reports that Texas has been very prosperous this year and that people have plenty of money to spend, so that it was not extraordinary that the Christmas cut flower business was double that of a year ago. Prices were about the same on roses, but carnations went up 100 per cent and stock was strictly fancy, far superior to a year ago, and the flowers were in consequent demand, even at the higher prices. There were plenty of roses, but violets were nearly as scarce as carnations. Even bulbous stock all sold out. Beauties were particularly fine. There was a very large increase in the sale for blooming plants, azaleas being particularly popular.

DAYTON, O.—J. B. Heiss says that Christmas trade was about the same as last year, with enough cut flowers of all kinds and very little demand for bulbous stock. There was a marked increase in the call for American Beauties. Both palms and flowering plants were popular. The trade in Christmas greens is all in the hands of the takers now.

CONCORD, N. H.—The Christmas trade was better than usual, but the demand was all for bright-colored flowers. Red and pink carnations were most in demand and bulbous stock was only taken when nothing else was to be had. There was a considerable increase in the sale of plants. Boston fern was easily the most popular subject offered.

HAMILTON, ONT.—Trade was about seventy-five per cent ahead of last Christmas, with prices a trifle better and the usual shortage of roses, carnations and violets. Bulbous stock sold very well and there was lots of it. Roses were not as good as usual, because of too much dull weather. There was increased demand for good flowering plants.

NEW LONDON, CONN.—Trade was very little different from a year ago, according to the estimate of H. H. Appledorn. There was the usual shortage of cut flowers, carnations and violets being in particular demand and the latter very scarce in this locality. Qualities were generally good. The call for plants tended toward the flowering section.

CHATHAM, ONT.—Supplies in all lines were short this Christmas owing to the prevalence of cloudy weather, but nevertheless the aggregate of sales was fifty per cent higher than in 1899. Even bulbous stock sold well and qualities in general were poorer than ever. Fannie Tissiman reports the particular demand to have been for carnations and flowering plants.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Christmas prices were about the same as a year ago, but there was an increase in sales. W. A. Adams says that it was the general experience that there were inadequate supplies of roses, carnations and violets and that the call for bulbous stock was limited. There was increased demand for lily of the valley, poinsettias and flowering plants.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Lawrence Heint estimates Christmas sales in Terre Haute as one-fifth heavier than in 1899, with adequate supplies of cut flowers and prices about the same as a year ago. Roses were better in quality than usual and there were more calls than ever for roses, carnations and violets, also an increased demand for begonias, palms and ferns.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH—Christmas trade was better than in 1899 and prices were higher than then. There were enough violets, but a shortage of roses and carnations, and Paper White narcissi sold well at $1 a dozen. There were some excellent Californian chrysanthemums which sold very quickly at $2 per dozen. There was a marked increase in the call for American Beauties. Potted bulbous stock and azaleas sold well. The city was flooded with holly and mistletoe but the best of the stock sold well.

TRENTON, N. J.—C. Ribsam says the centralization of money was the cause of Christmas business being divided up into very small orders. The increase from 1899 was about ten per cent, with a shortage of supplies in all lines of cut flowers except bulbous stock. Qualities were better than a year ago and there was increased call for carnations and poinsettias.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA.—Retail prices for Christmas stock were twenty-five per cent ahead of a year ago and the money value of sales was fifty per cent ahead of the Christmas of 1899, according to Eugene Trump. There was a short supply of all cut flowers and a particular demand for red roses and bright-colored flowering plants. The same may be said for Christmas greens.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—The aggregate of Christmas sales was about as a year ago, but prices were ten per cent higher. There were enough roses, carnations and violets to meet the demand and qualities were considerably better than a year ago. There was an increased demand for decorative plants, according to J. H. Wade & Co. There was big business in holly, but the grocers got most of it.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A. Gude & Brother say the noticeable feature of the Christmas trade was the fact that there was more business at the last minute than could be rightly attended to. Sales were twenty-five per cent greater than a year ago. Blooming plants had the call but the prices of cut flowers were higher than usual. There were enough roses to go around but not enough carnations.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—This is not a good market for either bulbous cut flowers or decorative plants, but Christmas sales, on the whole, were better than a year ago. People wanted first-class stock and were willing to pay the price. The supply was about equal to the demand, with a slight shortage of carnations, which were especially popular, as were American Beauties, according to M. J. Lynch.

ALEXANDRIA, VA.—The Christmas season brought smaller orders than usual but many more of them, according to J. Louis Loose, who says that the demand was for the medium grade of stock. Prices were about the same as last year and the supply was equal to the demand. Violets were the most popular cut flowers, followed by carnations. Azaleas, cyclamens and primroses were the plants most sought for.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN.—At the Fairview Greenhouses they estimate that the Christmas trade was double that of 1899, with prices at about the usual level. There was not enough of anything, except bulbous flowers, and for these there was no call. Carnations were very good and in great demand. There was also increased call for decorative plants. Everyone could have done more business if they could have obtained the stock.

ATCHISON, KAN.—A marked increase was noted in the Christmas trade as compared to last year. All good stock was sold at fancy figures, the demand being especially strong for violets and red roses. R. J. Graves succeeded in holding back a fine lot of chrysanthemums, which sold well. F. W. Manglesdorf reports that there were increased calls for American Beauties, Boston ferns and holly. He says that seventy-five per cent of all the plants sold were Boston ferns and that the supply was not equal to the demand.

CHRYSANTHEMUM TIMOTHY EATON.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Christmas business was at least twenty per cent ahead of a year ago, with prices at about the usual level, except on carnations, which were both poorer in quality and higher in price. There was too much bulbous stock; rose qualities were better than a year ago. There was marked increase in the call for plants, both flowering and decorative. Holly was very good and sold briskly, both loose and in wreaths.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—William Edlefsen found Christmas trade much heavier than a year ago and says that everyone else in the trade has the same story to tell. There was enough stock to prevent prices going higher than usual and the quality of material at hand was very good. It was noticeable that nearly all buyers required the highest grade of cut flowers. There was an increase in the call for all kinds of plants.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Christmas trade was about the same as last year although a few report a slight increase. Cut roses of good quality, carnations and violets were sold out clean at satisfactory figures. Blooming plants also moved very well, though there were plenty more to be had. Poinsettias, azaleas, Begonia incarnata and Gloire de Lorraine and cyclamens were most called for. There was very little demand for pot oranges, berry-bearing plants and heather.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—L. E. Marquisee reports Christmas sales greater than ever before, with prices higher than are usually obtained at the holidays. Roses were plentiful but violets were rather scarce and there was such a great demand for red carnations that the supply was decidedly inadequate. There was no great call for bulbous stock. Roses were not as good as usual, but other qualities were excellent. Azaleas sold well and as a rule flowering plants were scarce.

OTTAWA, ONT.—Christmas trade was greater than a year ago, according to Graham Brothers. Roses and chrysanthemums were plentiful, but carnations were short and violets shorter, although the former seemed most popular. There was a plentiful supply of bulbous stock, with demand slow. There was a large increase in the sale for flowering plants, but a great number of palms and ferns were moved. The trade had more snap in it than ever before, but credit sales were more numerous than usual.

SEATTLE, WASH.—C. W. Johnson reports Christmas sales as twenty-five per cent ahead of a year ago, with higher prices on all cut stock. The demand was so far ahead of the supply that many orders were refused after December 20. Everybody wanted carnations and The Marquis, Mrs. Lawson and G. H. Crane were the particular favorites. A great many chrysanthemums were sold but it would have been far better for all concerned had they been sold three weeks earlier. There was also a great call for kentias and all flowering plants.

BUTTE, MONT.—Law Brothers report that their trade was twenty-five per cent ahead of a year ago, with prices about the same, except on Beauties, which sold for $20 a dozen as against $12 a year ago. Two-thirds of the supply of cut flowers was obtained from Chicago, Milwaukee and Council Bluffs. The qualities were much better than usual. There was particular demand for red carnations and Beauties. In flowering plants azaleas took the lead. Christmas greens were not up to the usual standard but holly was in great demand.

BANGOR, ME.—Carl Beers figured that his Christmas trade was twenty-eight per cent ahead of a year ago, roses being in ample supply, but carnations and violets much below the demand. These two items, Harrisii and mignonette were in especial favor. There was a marked increase in the call for all plants, among the popular items being Romans and Duc Von Tholl tulips in pots. There was also increased demand for azaleas, cyclamens, primroses and Kentia Belmoreana. There was great demand for ferns in jardinières and the Boston fern sold like hot cakes. Mild weather was a great factor in making the plant trade the largest in history.

PUEBLO, COLO.—I. W. Joseph says that Christmas sales were rather less than a year ago, although prices were ten per cent higher. Home-grown cut flowers were scarce and it was necessary to procure supplies from long distances and the high wholesale rates made it very difficult for local retailers to do business. Tea roses cost $18 per hundred, American Beauties $12 to $15 per dozen and carnations $10 per hundred by the time they reached here, and local trade refused to pay more than $1.25 per dozen for carnations and $3 per dozen for roses. There was the usual demand for plants.

A Five Thousand Dollar Carnation.

The well and widely known carnation specialist, Richard Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, O., has again set the carnation world agog by disposing of the stock of his new seedling, Adonis, for a sum which on indisputable authority is said to exceed $5,000. The purchasers are Robert Craig & Son, of Philadelphia, and the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind. The new owners have already been requested to quote prices on shares of the stock, but Mr. Craig says it is a variety to grow for blooms rather than propagate for distribution and Mr. Hill assures us that he will build a new 400-foot iron house this year for the express purpose of growing it.

Adonis is fairly well known to the trade, having been exhibited at Buffalo last February, where it was awarded the Lawson silver medal for twenty-five blooms of the best undisseeded seedling. The general character of the flowers and stems are shown in the accompanying illustration, the color of the former being bright scarlet. Those who raise thousands of seedling carnations in a single year and expect to make a fortune out of them the next would do well to take pattern after Mr. Witterstaetter in such work. It has taken ten years to develop Adonis by the frequent crossing of scarlet seedlings, the final seed parent being a seedling of Adelaide Kresken and The Stuart, obtained about seven years ago.

Carnation Dorothy.

The seedling carnation, Dorothy, which Mrs. E. T. Grave, of Richmond, Ind., is offering this season, has proved quite popular with buyers of the flowers and at the exhibitions. The blooms are of good size and form, and borne on long and stiff but not ungraceful stems. The color is pink, Scott shade, and the flowers are very fragrant, freely produced, with calyxes that never burst. Dorothy is free of disease, blooms early and continuously, and E. C. Amling, of Chicago, who handles the product, says the flowers sold readily for 8 cents during the holidays and that they have always brought from 4 to 6 cents. It is a good keeper and shipper and was awarded certificates at Chicago, Philadelphia and Cincinnati. The illustration reproduced on the opposite page is from a photograph.

MADISON, N. J.—The annual "blow out" of the florists and gardeners will occur January 9, and the boys are making great preparations.

FINDLAY, O.—The hot water pipes in the greenhouse of Samuel McMichaels burst December 15, entailing a considerable loss by freezing the stock.

Crossing and Hybridizing.

Crossing is the pollination of a flower of one variety with the pollen of a flower of another variety of the same species to effect fertilization. Hybridizing is the same action between two species of the same genus. A crossing between two genera may be possible where relative properties exist. Nature teaches us that cross-fertilization strengthens the vitality and advances perfection in the progeny, while self-pollination results in degeneration. In many plants the flowers are so constructed that pollination is only possible with the help of insects, by carrying the pollen on their hairy bodies from one flower to another, or the pollen is carried by the wind. We notice where plants stand in clusters, seed is more freely produced than when standing alone. A solitary corn stalk seldom produces a good ear of corn. With the knowledge of nature's wonderful and intricate workings we are enabled to extract from her what we receive otherwise only by chance. The production of new varieties, improvements on existing ones, in fruit, flowers and vegetables, as to size, form, taste, fragrance, color, habit and productiveness, beyond the result of good culture, can only be accomplished through the seed produced by cross-fertilization.

The most striking illustration we have of this process is the carnation. With good culture as a basis, and judicious selection for crossing, greater improvements have been made in the past decade than in the century before, when the greatest achievements in the evolution of this flower came mostly by chance. What has been accomplished here can be done with any other genus of plants, be they flowers, fruit or vegetables. In France and England wonderful improvements have been made in the rose. There, also, were made the initiatory improvements in the carnation, which has come to its perfection in this country. Germany took the lead in annual and perennial summer flowers, while in fruit the French are unrivaled. For illustration I will give my experience in carnation culture, and first call attention to some natural laws governing reproduction, favorable and unfavorable to what we want to accomplish in our crossings, mentioning points to be observed and describe the procedure of pollination to effect fertilization.

To make it more comprehensive we must go back to the original, primitive dianthus, the ancestor of the family. To all appearance the flower of the original carnation was single and of a purplish pink color. Culture made the first improvement; it produced the double flower. This was probably preceded by shadings in the color; sports may have appeared of distinctly different colors, and then nature's work of cross-fertilization enlarged what culture had effected in the beginning. Varieties developed so distinct in habit that they were classified as new species. The remount, or ever-blooming variety, originated in France about seventy years ago, and from this type developed our present carnation, much improved in habit and free flowering qualities. It required centuries to develop our present monthly or ever-blooming carnation. Now in our artificial crossing and hybridizing we employ culture, selection and calculation, but we have against us the natural tendency to revert to its primitive form through all the intervening stages in its evolution. Culture is the fundamental base, neglect it and you will assist the natural deterioration, the return to its primitive condition, or what we commonly call "running out."

In the selection of the parent flowers we must exercise the utmost care to choose the most perfect as well in the pollen or male parent, as in the seed bearing or female parent. I will give an illustration from my experience in regard to selection and calculation. Ten years ago, when I made my first crossings, I used as parents the best standard varieties then in cultivation. Among these the most vigorous growers we had were the pink, scarlet, dark red and variegated varieties. The pure whites lacked constitution and a few yellows were weak and shy blooming, producing poor, imperfect flowers of a very light shade. The yellow color was there, and my aim was to produce a clear yellow variety with perfect flowers and a vigorous constitution. The first step was to infuse more vitality and obtain a vigorous, robust growth. In this I succeeded by making repeated crossings during three or four years, between the yellow seedlings and stronger growing varieties, but the stripes of the color of the pollen parent were always there, and where the markings were most pronounced I noticed the most improvement in habit. Where I used the scarlet varieties I also noticed that the yellow became deeper in shade. Then I had some good, strong growing and free blooming yellow varieties, but they were all striped. The next step was to eradicate the stripes. This I accomplished by crossing the best striped varieties with the more profusely striped ones, and with some brilliant scarlets, and some mongrel colors between yellow and scarlet that appeared with the striped yellows. This I had to continue for several years but now I can show some yellow varieties of a pure, clear color, much darker than the yellows of ten years ago, which were rather creamy, and with as strong a constitution as we find in any of the other colors.

To give an idea of the difficulty of such work, I can truly say that among ten seedlings probably one showed progression; the other nine went backward. I made my selections from among hundreds. In this work we very seldom succeed with the first crossing; it generally takes three and four generations to accomplish what we aim for. In general I may say that probably one in a hundred will come up to the standard of the existing varieties, and probably one in a thousand will be better and above the standard. We recognize nature's law that like produces like, but in a plant like the carnation, that has been for centuries under the influence of culture and cross-fertilization, it will hold good only in a general way, when we consider the results of our crossings. The strong tendency to return to its primitive form is there and is stronger than the agents we employ to force it away from it, and naturally the results of crossings are very various. The retrogressive tendency is most plainly shown in the large percentage of single flowering plants, from twenty-five to fifty per cent. Then we find plants that have lost their ever-blooming quality, with a more grassy appearance, resembling more our common bardy garden pink.

In color we find the greatest instability. While most plants from the same seed pod will have the color of one or the other parent or both, there may be a goodly number of entirely different colors. It is not uncommon to see the progeny of two dark red varieties to be a pure white, and vice versa, but when I consult their pedigree I may find that color three, four or more generations back. Then we may find the garden carnation, only blooming through June and July, from which our ever-blooming present carnation descended. On the other side we find a few specimens where culture oversteps its function and produces flowers with ten times the number of petals, very large, often measuring six inches in diameter, ragged, without form or beauty. In the structural parts of stem and flower we may find diversities not found in either parent. Lastly I will mention some plants where nature refuses reproduction, they being imperfect in their sexual organs. Several of my best varieties never produce a grain of seed, with the most careful and repeated pollination, while some others are entirely destitute of pollen but produce seed freely when pollinated. With others pollen is sterile.

The sexual organs of a flower consist of the stamens, with the anthers or pollen bags containing the pollen, and the pistils, in the ovary of which are the ovules or unfertilized seeds; the style and stigma. The procedure of pollination is purely mechanical and very simple. To make a crossing select the flower which is to bear the seed, before it is fully developed, and remove all the stamens. This is done so that there shall be no chance for self-pollination. It is also well, in double flowers like the carnation, to remove part of the petals around the pistil to give this organ a free chance to develop and also that it may be easier of access when it comes time to apply the pollen. When the pistil is matured enough to receive the pollen, which can be easily detected with a little experience, apply the pollen to the stigma with a small, fine camel's hair brush. The pollen is ripe when the anthers burst and lay it bare, and when not too old and dry will readily stick to the brush, the same as to the fine hair of a bee. To moisten the brush by breathing over it will help to hold the pollen. Fresh pollen is always preferable. The morning hours on a sunny day is the best time, and we seldom fail to find fresh pollen at that time. A low temperature and moist atmosphere will prevent fertilization. A mature flower prepared for pollination retains its freshness and vitality for several days, while pollen will soon scatter and be lost with the slightest touch. I found with the carnation, that flowers kept two weeks and were then yet in condition to effect fertilization and grow seed.

I am not advised to what extent artificial crossing has been practiced in fruit culture in this country. Whether our newer varieties of apples, pears and other fruits are results of carefully executed crossings, or found by chance or imported. We have delicious fruit; we have also exquisite flowers, but something new always enlivens the flower market, gives new interest to the lover of flowers, and we feel a beneficial effect through the whole trade. Will it not have the same effect in fruit culture? It is quite a greater undertaking to grow fruit from artificially produced seed than to grow flowers in the same way from herbaceous plants. Here we can see the results in a year or two, while in some branches of fruit culture we have to wait three or four times as long. It would hardly pay to grow 6,000 seedling apple trees, like I do carnations, wait six or eight years, and then find probably a dozen that may be better than existing varieties. It would truly be a hard experience to see one-third or more, return to the wild crab. Fruit culture is in this respect much the same as the culture of our varieties of flowers that have been grown for centuries; we meet the same obstacles to a more rapid progress, the tendency to breed back, a dealing with inferior conditions of long ago. I speak more of the apple as it is probably the most widely spread. With small fruits results can be ascertained much sooner.

I believe most of our native varieties of apples, old and new, have been accidentally produced in nursery rows among the large numbers of seedlings grown for the purpose of grafting. They may have probably attracted attention by some characteristic shown at an early age and were saved out of curiosity, or they were probably found in some fence corner or out of the way place, where a stray seed had grown and been left alone. As I said before, to grow seedlings for the purpose of producing meritorious new varieties on a large scale would be neither profitable nor encouraging. Let us lay dollars and cents and large profits aside, and see if such work on a small scale successfully carried out would not be repaid in the work itself, the pleasure it gives to delve a little into nature's mysteries and see what you can accomplish; it may be profitable in the end. Suppose one would grow a few apples in his orchard from select crossings, use the seed of the best specimens for sowing, and keep a correct record of all his crossings. A like number of seedlings can be grown every year to fill another row in the space devoted to that purpose. When the seedlings are ready to transplant, do not plant them in some out-of-the-way place and leave them to themselves. If you cannot spare a piece of ground suited for apple culture, do not attempt the work at all. Good culture is imperative. The young trees will not need the space you would give in a permanent orchard, but they should have ample room to develop until they bear their first fruit, but give all the care and cultivation a rosarian would give to a bed of his choicest roses.

As your work progresses and you add every year a new row to your proteges, when you see them thrive and respond to your careful cultivation, notice their different characteristics, make comparison with their parents with the aid of your record, indulge in suppositions as to what may be the result, see the first bloom appear, their first fruit ripen, and find probably one, two or three varieties that are above the standard. Then you will realize the fascination this work has, and the satisfaction and pleasure it gives. But I say again, this is only work for one who has love for it, and feels himself repaid by the pleasure it affords; let the business part follow.

Now some may ask how to proceed with such a work. I will try and outline a way as it appears to my mind, but the plan can certainly be improved upon and suited to circumstances. Make your plans as to what crossings you wish to make and select some branches of easy access, on the healthiest trees of the desired varieties, that have a goodly number of sound fruiting buds. When the flower buds appear and attain that rounded form ready to break open, select the strongest and healthiest, as many as you will need, and remove the rest; clip part of the petals away so as to have free access and remove the stamens; this must be done before the bud opens, in order to remove the pollen before it is ripe. When the pistils of the prepared flowers are matured apply the pollen that will be found abundantly on the other parent tree, in the same manner as described before.

During the time of flowering it requires the greatest watchfulness to guard against detrimental influences. In the first place we have to protect the prepared flowers from the insects which perform unwittingly and promiscuously, as arranged by nature, the work one wishes to perform to suit one's fancy. For protection use a fine gauze fabric that will not shut out light and air, and enclose either the whole or parts of the branch or the single flowers, just as it is most convenient. This will also protect against flying pollen carried by the wind, and if left on during the early growth of the young fruit will protect against the ravages of winged insects. If the pollinated flowers can be protected from rain it will be of much benefit, as water will interfere with fertilization. A correct labeling should never be omitted, if one is deeply interested in his work. This is not such an extensive or tiresome work as many suppose it to be; neither is it complicated. All that is required is timely attention. What can be done in Europe can be accomplished here, too, but one must have love and energy for the work, use his brains and not his pocketbook alone.

A Bangor Flower Show.

The annual floral festival given by Carl Beers in the City Hall at Bangor, Me., opened auspiciously, the weather being all that could be desired, quite unusually warm and dry. The attendance was better than last year and taking all in all the exhibition was a decided social and financial success. The decorations were very elaborate. The main festooning was arranged in sections, one section decorated with grapes, others with lemons, oranges and apples, the whole being very artistic and presenting a truly tropical appearance. The pyramids, of which there were six, were of deciduous and exotic plants, the main one of Latania Borbonica some twenty-two feet in height, other smaller ones of phœnix, arecas, kentias and cocos. The flowering display was very elaborate, being for the most part chrysanthemums, showing the McKinley and Bryan and other fine ones too numerous to mention. An extra fine lot of salvias were to be seen. Carnations were extra fine and the varieties shown included many sorts and all the new ones. The church society which co-operated with Mr. Beers was entirely satisfied with the result. Dancing was indulged in in the evening and a picturesque sight it was.

Kreittling Bombardees Crape Chasers and Others.

[Paper by Walter Kveilling, read before the Chicago Florists' Club, January 4, 1901.]

The position of the legitimate storekeeper is beset with many difficulties, and from his position he thinks a more satisfactory business basis or method ought to be established. For illustration, the legitimate storekeeper looks upon the street merchant as a very great factor in disturbing his business, from the fact that he has so little expense. He has but very little rent to pay and no expense for lighting, packing or delivery, no extra help to pay in the busy seasons. Therefore the street merchant ought to pay his legitimate share, either by rental or by license, of those expenses necessarily pertaining to the business of the legitimate storekeeper. The legitimate storekeeper has another insidious enemy to contend with, and that is the crape chaser. To suggest a remedy for this evil is seemingly very hard indeed, and how to proceed or what course to pursue so as to check the crape chaser is a problem that may well be taken up and thoroughly discussed and investigated.

The storekeeper feels that he has another and greater grievance and one that is more injurious than either of the others or all of them combined, namely, the wholesale flower dealers and commission firms who sell to actual consumers any of their goods at the same price as they sell the same goods to practical and responsible storekeepers. Some houses even solicit such business and many funeral designs are made and delivered to private individuals by the wholesalers at a lower price than they can be purchased by the legitimate storekeeper and at a price that would be ruinous to retailers. It is only a few days since a prominent storekeeper was telephoned for and requested to come and arrange flowers for one of his patrons, who coolly informed him that he had found a wholesale house where he could buy his flowers at just about half the price charged by him.

Now, seemingly, this should not be done, and the line ought to be drawn somewhere so that we would have a chance to make a fair profit on all the goods we handle, at least a living profit, without being handicapped by those from whom we purchase goods. Therefore it seems advisable that we thoroughly discuss these evils and endeavor in some manner to remove or at least lessen the difficulties with which we have to contend in doing a legitimate business. I have mentioned these objectionable matters with which we have to contend very briefly, but trust with sufficient clearness to enable us to discuss them intelligently, hoping that some way or means may be suggested or adopted whereby we may be able to eradicate the existing evils.

A Canadian Method of Violet Growing.

I have had practical experience in growing all the varieties of violets and have tried many methods of culture, from the results of which I have become satisfied that Farquhar is the best double violet developed up to the present time.

I have tried a number of ways of propagating, dividing up the plants, taking all the good young crowns; also by rooting runners in the ordinary way. I can safely say that I get one-third more bloom from the plants from cuttings rooted in sand in a very cool temperature, about 50° in the sand and 55° above the bench.

I take cuttings about February 10 and as soon as they are well rooted I plant them about two and one-half inches apart in soil on the bench, where they stay until I plant them into their permanent beds. I keep the house cool and give the plants all the air possible. After planting I give one or two good root waterings, afterwards watering only when the soil is dry at the depth of one inch.

I do not put the glass on the houses in the fall until after there has been frost enough to make the bare ground so hard that when I jump on it with both feet it fails to leave heel prints, and I weigh about 140 pounds. I believe in giving plenty of water. I sprinkle the plants often, about three or four times a day, and try to have them dry at night. I am not alarmed if I find the foliage quite stiff in the morning and I aim to carry the day temperature at as near 45° as possible, watering whenever the soil looks dry.

In preparing the soil for the beds I compost a sandy, well rotted sod with well rotted cow manure, using about two parts soil to one of manure. I set the plants in the beds about June 1, in rows nine inches apart each way. I think drainage to be one of the important details of violet growing. My houses are on a side hill so that I get good drainage, but I put in 2-inch drain pipes under the beds, about three feet apart, running the length of the houses. During the summer I go over the plants about once a month, removing runners so as to get the plants in good shape for fall.

A Mixed Wreath.

Wreaths of this character, if not more beautiful than those ordinarily made by florists, certainly charm a customer for being a departure from the routine of such things. Of course, unless you have your own greenhouse, with numerous odds and ends with which you may help out your individual artistic ingenuity, you cannot supply such work. The wreath illustrated contains a variety of ferns, the beautiful lotus with its gray-green, two varieties of lilies, the exquisitely colored foliage of Cissus discolor, sweet jasmine, begonias, chrysanthemums and a spike of Egyptian papyrus.

STORY OF A RATHER SPIRITLESS NEW YEAR'S BUSINESS.—BRIDESMAIDS THE ONLY ITEM OF PARTICULAR DEMAND.—PRICES VARY WIDELY.—PLANT TRADE NOT PARTICULARLY HEAVY.—DEATH OF MRS. MERRIT.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The weather Monday was most disagreeable and put a damper on trade. I suppose that must have been the reason for the quiet air that pervaded the wholesale market during all of the day. There was no rush, no apparent desire to possess anything in particular and it was not possible to nail a buyer down to anything in the shape of an order, except "a few good 'Maids." There appeared to be a good supply of small roses, carnations, cattleyas and American Beauty and it was seen early in the day that the violet plants had enjoyed the weather conditions since Christmas and had taken a move on, for the supply was hountiful and it was patent that some of the manipulators in the country had thought the matter out and concluded that New Year's ought to be as good as Christmas for prices; so they held a few up. The result is not hard to guess. Fair weather, no doubt, would have contributed to better results and perhaps there were just as many if not more sold this New Year's than a year ago. There are now so many sources of supply that it is difficult to keep track of them all. Where do all the fancy carnations come from? They sold at all sorts of prices, from 4 cents up, and the quality was fine. The ordinary kinds sold fairly well, white having the preference, no doubt because there were fewer of them than of other colors. Bridesmaid, Liberty and Meteor easily led the roses in popularity, the first being the leader. A wide range of price, from $3 to $10 for the common run of stock and for extras up to $20, there possibly being a very few sold at $25, represents the different grades. American Beauty has suffered from lack of admirers for the past week and was not in particular request, perhaps because the consumer does not desire to present the same flowers on the two holidays. A comfortable supply of cattleyas appeared and met with moderate sale. Lily of the valley sold well but the quantity visible was equal to demand. Stevia, narcissi, hyacinths and smilax cleared well for a wonder. The amount of business done in plants was not of large proportions but figured to some extent. It is difficult at this writing to say whether or not the volume of New Year's business exceeded last year. It ought to, to keep pace with the natural growth of our business, in which case it would not be remarked, as the supply has grown to meet increased demand.

Mrs. Richard Merrit, wife of the well known and popular "Dick" Merrit, died suddenly about noon New Year's day. She had been in the hospital undergoing an operation, and had returned, apparently well, only a day or so before. Mrs. Merrit was the eldest daughter of the late J. M. Hodgson, who died about ten months ago, another daughter dying in Newport this summer, which facts make it the more distressing to the bereaved family.

Mr. Grunewegen, of Amsterdam, Holland, and lately with Bobbink & Atkins, returned to his home on Saturday last.

Patrick O'Mara is still confined to his home with a heavy cold.

NEW YEAR BEGINS WITH A DEMAND WHICH AUGERS PROSPERITY.—WHITE IS NOW ON AN EVEN FOOTING WITH COLORED STOCK.—MEETING OF THE GARDENER'S CLUB.—ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—PRIZES OFFERED BY THE MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—OLD HALL TO BE VACATED IN APRIL.

Business seems to have started in for a spell of prosperity with the beginning of the new century. Last week, directly after Christmas, was unbearably dull. The warm, pleasant days brought all flowers along rapidly, so that the customary scarcity after the Christmas slaughter was not encountered and the end of the week found a very heavy accumulation in wholesalers' hands, which was not wanted and which could not have been moved even with a great reduction in price. On Monday, however, things started in with a hum and this has continued ever since, although ordinarily New Year's counts for nothing here. It would have been impossible to care for the trade that has come in so freely this week had it not been for the quantity of stock that had been held over, so "all's well that ends well." Predictions of wintry weather for the immediate future lead to the confidence that all the flowers received during the balance of the week will find a ready market. The discrimination against white flowers which characterized the Christmas demand has ceased and these are as acceptable as any of the colored material. Roses generally are improved in quality. Liberty alone is difficult to get good in any quantity and more than we have might easily be placed in this market.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, which has been torpid for a couple of years, awoke to full activity on Tuesday evening, January 1, the occasion of its annual meeting. The list of names hereinafter recorded as elected officers for the present year are a sufficient guarantee that the interests of the organization will be efficiently cared for and its forces not permitted to slumber. It was decided for the coming year to have four meetings, the date and scope of each to be decided by the executive board. The treasurer's books show a comfortable balance on hand. Officers were elected as follows: President, Warren Ewell; vice-president, J. A. Pettigrew; secretary, W. E. Fischer; treasurer, Edward Hatch; executive committee, Wm. Donald, E. J. Welch, W. W. Edgar, Alex. Montgomery and M. H. Norton.

The schedule of prizes offered by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for its exhibitions during the year 1901 has been received. The first exhibition, that of January 5, comprises Primula Sinensis, P. stellata, P. obconica and freesias; also a choice variety of forced vegetables. The second show scheduled is for February 2, when freesias, orchids, violets, carnations and camellias are liberally provided for. The various exhibitions after May 1 are specified as conditional upon the completion of the new building, as on April 30 the society must vacate the old halls.

Mrs. F. L. Ames, W. N. Craig, gardener, exhibited an interesting group of orchids at Horticultural Hall on December 29. Cypripedium × Chas. Canham was a superb plant bearing twenty-seven flowers and a bronze medal for superior cultivation was awarded. For Læliocattleya × Digby-Mossia a certificate of merit was given for superior cultivation. Cypripedium Sallieri var. aurum was shown with fourteen flowers.

Some of the handsomest specimens of Bride and Bridesmaid roses to be seen in this market are coming to Welch Brothers from S. J. Reuter. Welch Brothers are also handling the Queen of Edgely exclusively for this neighborhood.

Scarlet tulips are seen in the windows occasionally. It is to be regretted that they cannot be brought in for Christmas in good shape as this color is always lacking.

Coolidge Brothers are sending in Carnation Mrs. Frances Joost in superb form. When well done this favorite variety is hard to beat.

HOLIDAY WEEK SEES VERY GOOD BUSINESS.—STOCKS SHORT AND PRICES WELL MAINTAINED.—NEW YEAR TRADE GOOD.—ALL DESIRABLE PLANTS CLEANED OUT.—CAMPBELL VIOLETS ARE POOR.—MANY DECORATIONS.—VARIOUS NOTES.

That was a fine armful of sprigs Mr. Watson gave us from his spice bush last week. They had an aromatic and tonic flavor, even to the last one. When they have had a chance to take effect, we will prune a few where they seem to need it, taking off the ragged edges and smoothing the somewhat ruffled leaves.

Business since Christmas was quite lively, with a scarcity of good stock of all kinds. Prices kept up very well; in fact there was not much difference. Some growers and dealers seem to have lost their calendars and were of the opinion that Christmas lasted until New Year's. Prices were about as follows: Brides, Bridesmaids and Meteors, $15 to $18 per hundred, Beauties from $5 to $12 per dozen, Liberty $25 to $50 per hundred. There has certainly been some grand stock of this rose about of late, with stems and flowers about the size of the best Beauties. S. S. Pennock has been handling some very good Golden Gates, which, when well grown, are found very salable. Carnations have been in good supply, but have sold very well at almost Christmas prices, $4 to $6 for the good ordinary and $6 to $8 for the fancies. A few good Marquis are now to be seen, also some nice Genevieve Lord. These, with Lawson, Crocker, Crane and White Cloud, bring top prices. Violets are hardly up to the demand and good stock is quickly sold if not all ordered before it comes in. Prices for the best singles are from 75 cents to $1.50 per hundred and the doubles run from $1 for the southern stock to $2 for the best local grades. Practically no Marie Louise come to this market, all the stock being Lady Campbell, and in many cases we are sorry to say that from lack of good or kind treatment or other neglect they present a sorry appearance, not at all in keeping with the good name the variety bears elsewhere. The demand for greens, particularly bunch asparagus, both Sprengerii and plumosus, seems to be constantly on the increase. There never seems to be an over-supply, although there is a great deal more grown for this market each season. It sells for from 1 cent to 5 cents per spray, according to size.

New Year's day's business was good, probably a little better than last season, and all available stock was sold at retail prices probably twenty-five per cent below those of Christmas. There was a demand for blooming plants, but not much stock to fill it with. All the begonias were sold at Christmas or the few days after, and but few azaleas or cyclamens were left. The early azaleas were not as much of a success this season as before, the flowers not opening as evenly as is necessary to make a showy plant.

At a special meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, called by President Harris, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The Florists' Club of Philadelphia has heard with deep regret of the death of their fellow member, Edward Lucking, therefore be it

Hugh Graham has had a great many decorations, the past week and his list of social functions for the next month is a large one. He had the decorations for the city's celebration of the advent of the new century, the contract for the City Hall being $1,000. Immense Norway spruces were placed around the entrances to the building and illuminated with electric lights. There were also cut flowers and plants in the rooms of the mayor's suite. Large quantities of laurel wreathing and holly were also used.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—A LULL AFTER CHRISTMAS—NEW YEAR TRADE FAIR.—PRICES FAIRLY WELL MAINTAINED EXCEPT ON BEAUTIES—GOOD STOCK STILL MOVES WELL—RETURNS ON CARNATIONS AND VIOLETS AVERAGING LOW.—SCHUBERT REVIEWS THE SITUATION.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF VARYING INTEREST.

The last week of the old year showed little activity in wholesale markets, but receipts were comparatively light and the demand for good stock was sufficient to clean up everything in sight at pretty fair prices. The Beauty market broke shortly after Christmas and prices went down very materially. All the big growers are enjoying very fine cuts and by the Saturday following Christmas the supply was all that this market could consume at rates one-third less than those prevailing seven days before. During the holiday week there were more or less extra fine, long-stemmed Beauties billed out at $8 per dozen, but there was any amount of very good flowers that sold at $6 per dozen. On the eve of the new century the Beauty market strengthened up a little, but it went off again as soon as the New Year's rush was over and now the top quotations on Beauties do not exceed $6, with a chance that good stock will very soon be down to what seems to the growers like very little figures after the very fine prices which prevailed in the last half of December. For New Year's the rose crop was not heavy and the first grade teas sold well, but the second grades moved slowly and the common run of stock had to be sacrificed. Carnations retained their favor, although prices were on the decline. There were, following Christmas, far more white carnations than could be used, but within the past few days the demand for funeral work has made this stock active, if not profitable. It is quite probable that the growers will be disappointed with their carnation returns for the past ten days. The violet growers, too, are suffering more or less, particularly those who are sending in Lady Hume Campbell. The supplies have been greater, in many houses, than could be handled satisfactorily, even when the stock was pretty fair. It is estimated that on Monday the receipts of violets approximated 100,000 and with a blizzard prevailing only the cream of the stock sold well.

John C. Schubert, who divides his time between inspecting smoke for the city and catering to the "constantly developing æsthetic sense" of the people, delivered himself as follows in the New Year's trade review of the Record: "The growing use of flowers at all social functions may be taken as an evidence of social refinement and culture, as a constantly developing æsthetic sense among the people, as well as an evidence of business prosperity. The delicate and graceful expressions of sentiment which are carried in the various social uses to which flowers are put, showing a refined sense of modern social customs on the one hand and of an equally refined and gracious appreciation on the other, have quite as much to do, perhaps, with the material growth of the florists' trade in Chicago as any other influences that might be named. This is why during the year just closed florists in Chicago have no reason to complain as to the volume of business done. This is why their trade shows a satisfactory increase over that of the previous year. In common with other lines of business, prices have advanced, especially for the choicer lines of goods, for which there has been a demand fully up to the supply. So far as the volume of business is concerned Chicago as a flower market is second to no other city in the country. The outlook for the future is of the most promising character. At any rate, judging by the past, there should be nothing to discourage the florist in his trade contemplations for the coming year. Dealers generally share this view and are looking forward to an increasing volume of business for 1901."

Bassett & Washburn are very highly pleased with the way the Mrs. Lawson carnation is behaving with them, but they say they are not yet able to get the length of stem which Peter Fisher had in the blooms of this variety sent here last year. This seems to be a general complaint with all the local growers, but the trouble will probably be remedied with a little more experience.

O. J. Friedman, in an illustrated interview in last Sunday's Times-Herald, placed the retail cut flower trade in Chicago at Christmas as aggregating $100,000. He says that in general the carnation is the popular flower of the day, but that the public has not yet come to an appreciation of the rare beauty of the Roosevelt-Gomez-Maceo class.

The Chicago Carnation Co., of Joliet, Ill., announces a free excursion to their establishment January 18, by train leaving the Rock Island depot at 11:45 a. m. This is the date of the carnation meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, and all who visit the city on that occasion are invited to join the excursion party.

John Pierson, who formerly conducted the Majestic Flower Store, on Rush street, is now on the road for the George Wittbold Company. He has made a trip west to Omaha and north to Minneapolis and St. Paul, doing fair business. He sells a few Wittbolds to nearly every man he calls upon.

John Poehlmann says that there is no rest for the weary. Poehlmann Brothers' big cut of chrysanthemums is no sooner out of the way than the bulbous stock comes in heavily. As usual they have big supplies at Morton Grove again this year.

Peter Reinberg is out to do a big business in the plant line this season and he is propagating carnations and roses by the many thousands. Everything is in very fine shape at his big place just now, particularly the Beauties.

E. C. Amling says that now that business has fairly caught the swing of the winter he expects trade to move steadily onward in very brisk fashion. He is very optimistic in his views of the probabilities of the new year.

D. W. Brant has returned from a Christmas visit to the wholesale store of Brant & Noe, at Minneapolis, where he found things going along very nicely. He says trade is good in the Twin Cities this winter.

Some of the ferns arriving from the east are opening up in a more or less damaged condition, and the annual rise in price is presaged by the stiffening of jobbing rates in the local market.

Wietor Brothers are offering cuttings of their pink offspring of Armazindy, which they have named The Sport. It has done splendidly for them this season.

Weiland & Risch report a very good demand for Liberty rose cuttings. The second year price for this novelty has been started off at $8 per hundred.

E. R. Tauch has gone to Marquette, Mich., to take charge of the greenhouses of Mrs. L. H. Stafford.

C. W. Scott, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is about again and hopes soon to start on his customary trip.

Kreiting has done quite a lot of decorative work for the Chicago Club this week.

CHRISTMAS TRADE WAS GOOD AND BUSINESS KEPT UP WELL INTO THE NEW YEAR.—WHAT THE RETAILERS DID.—EVERYONE SATISFIED.

The Christmas business through this section was the best ever seen. The trade in the cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny was very heavy and the small towns all report a very large increase. Violets were very scarce and sold at very high prices. All other flowers were plentiful and sold at good figures although not exceeding those of other years. Roses grown in this section were very good, likewise carnations. The growers all seemed to have had the crops come at the right time to meet the Christmas demand. In Pittsburg plants sold better this season than ever before.

Breitenstein & Flemm's windows and store presented a very artistic appearance. J. B. Murdock & Co. also had a beautiful window but it was not so thoroughly a florist's window as some of the others. A. M. Murdock had a very attractive window and showed good taste in the arrangement. T. M. Uiam's store was arranged in a very attractive manner and the store during the whole week presented a very busy appearance. L. I. Neff reports a good business.

Taking the florists as a whole they are very well satisfied with their Christmas trade and will no doubt go about preparing for good Easter business. Business also kept up well all through the week following Christmas and the New Year's trade was very good.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Company reports a heavy trade in cut flowers, both locally and throughout the small towns in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

A. W. Smith's store was decorated largely with fine specimen plants of poinsettia and palms and ferns, and his trade was very good. WOODWARD.

STORY OF THE CHRISTMAS TRADE.—LITTLE STOCK NOT PROMPTLY SOLD.—RED CARNATIONS HAD THE CALL.—PLANTS IN GENERAL FAVOR.

The Christmas just passed was a record breaker and stock of good quality was easily disposed of at prices which were the best in Toronto's history. Everyone reports an increase over last year's sales. Christmas eve many orders were refused, where good stock was needed, as it was not possible to obtain more stock in this vicinity. Beauties and Liberty roses were very scarce and what few could be had brought fine prices. Meteors were good in color and stem and were the first of the teas to run out, but Brides and Bridesmaids soon followed. Carnations were in excellent crop and finest quality and were easily sold. G. H. Crane was most in demand and did not stand on the counter long, for it blends nicely with holly berries and makes an effective table flower. All fancies sold well and brought good prices. Violets were much sought but the prices asked were so high that one could usually induce a customer to purchase some flower which was more plentiful. Harrisii were very scarce and were sold as soon as displayed. Large pans of cyclamens were in great demand and brought good prices. Gloire de Lorraine begonia seemed too high for most people but azaleas sold well. Baskets of ferns sold and pans of cocos and adiantums did as well. H. G. D.

A GREEN CHRISTMAS WITH CHRISTMAS GREENS VERY SCARCE.—CUT FLOWERS AND PLANTS SOLD AS NEVER BEFORE.—EVERYBODY BUSY.—NOTES.

A green Christmas has come and gone and the florists are happy; one and all report trade ahead of last year. The weather was fine and of course saved an enormous amount of labor, tying up plants and bundles and delivering them. It was a common sight to see customers carrying off nice palms, rubbers and ferns without any paper on them at all. Flowers of all kinds had a good run. Carnations brought a higher price than ever before and violets sold briskly at good prices. Evergreen was very scarce and of course everybody wanted it.

A. G. Hood, of the Pearl street conservatories, had the misfortune to be thrown out of his wagon the day before Christmas. His legs were caught in the wheels and were badly bruised, but at present writing he is able to be around. Mr. Hood reports a fine sale of plants and cut flowers. The Paybrook Gardens had all they could hustle to. Kirby Floral Company sold everything they had. Ingram & Company had five extra clerks and then were rushed.

Social affairs are just now keeping all the florists very busy. Friday, December 28, was the date of the Charity Ball and some very fine flowers were used, but the big run was on violets. The decoration was by Hood.

Herman Stacke, of West Manchester, raised some very fine pinks and had no trouble at all disposing of them. He has some of the latest varieties, which seem to do very well for him. QUEEN CITY.

ROSE GROWERS' EXPERIENCES AT CHRISTMAS.—ONLY FAIR CROPS AND QUALITIES OFF.—EXPRESS COMPANIES INCUR CENSURE.

The rose growers of Madison had a fair crop of Brides and Bridesmaids for Christmas, but American Beauty and Meteor were very scarce. Yet I cannot say that the Madison roses were up to the standard on the output of Brides and Maids. Many were "pickled" and arrived in the market very soft and in some cases unsalable on account of the delay in delivery. Most of the shipments were not delivered in New York till one o'clock and that created a great deal of unpleasantness between grower and wholesaler, and here let me mention that the commission men were "raked over the coals" for once in their lives when they didn't deserve it, the fault being with the express company. First class roses sold very well, and a little in advance of last year, but these were scarce, while there was plenty of poor stock that did not sell well. L. M. Noe, our "Beauty King," was off crop on Beauties, but I understand some of his choicest sold unusually well. Taking general results the Madison growers did not fare as well as last season and some growers speak of holding the express company liable for their losses. G. F.

FICUS RADICANS VARIEGATA, says a writer in the Gardeners' Magazine, makes a good basket plant for a warm greenhouse or stove house.

ENGINEER PRIOLEAU, who has been working on the water hyacinth trouble in southern rivers, claims to have discovered a chemical preparation which destroys the pest.

ESTELLE, another of Witterstatter's seedling carnations, according to a prominent grower, is likely to prove useful for small Christmas pans, three or four plants in each.

ROBERT CRAIG claims there is a future for Begonia Caledonia, the white form of Gloire de Lorraine, used as small plants in pots with adiantum for the base of large designs.

THE fifteenth annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held at Indianapolis on Tuesday, January 8. Provision has been made for a considerable trade display.

Calendars Received.

We are in receipt of calendars from the following firms: H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa; Plant Seed Co., St.
Louis, Mo.

Some French Spelling.

The Journal des Roses in a recent issue attempted to give a list of some American prize winners at the Paris Exposition. The following is a literal copy of the list of winners of second prizes:
"M. M. Voris Neaga, Gros Hsoif, Baier, Arlnigline Heighils, Rive Side, E. Maud, Harry, E. Fuller." One can guess at Arlington Heights and Riverside, but the "Gros Hsoif" and "Voris Neaga" are too much for us. Can any of our readers guess who or what is meant?

To Heat in Zero Weather.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have an even-span house 22x66 feet; twelve feet to ridge; glass ends to within three feet of the ground; walls four feet high; south wall protected.
I wish to know whether one 2-inch steam flow and ten 1-inch returns will keep the house at 50° in zero weather? The house is close to boiler and so far the results are satisfactory. H. O. W.

So far as the amount of piping is concerned there should be no difficulty in maintaining the desired temperature.

L. R. TAFT.

Changing Pipes.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have two houses, one 18x61, the other 14x36 feet. The former is heated by the overhead hot water system, with two 2-inch flows and five 1½-inch returns. I wish to use more pipes in the first and also to pipe the latter, running the pipes under the benches. The flows would be five feet lower than those now in use and I wish to know whether the circulation under the changed conditions would be satisfactory. FLORIST.

If the returns are upon about the same level, and especially if the mains to the two houses start from the heater there should be no trouble. The higher system always has the advantage in the flow, everything else being equal, but this can be regulated by means of valves. When one system is higher than another, or is more direct, there is often a marked difference in the circulations if they are both supplied from the same main, as the water always takes the easiest course. This is especially true when the supply pipe to the higher or more direct system is a large one, as practically all of the water may go through it. Care should then be taken that the flow and return to the favored system is not larger than is required to supply its radiating surface. L. R. TAFT.

Dirty Flues.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Kindly tell me whether flues for small greenhouse furnaces and stoves can be built so that accumulations of soot and ashes can be readily removed? I find that they choke up quickly where the draft is almost shut off. SUBSCRIBER.

If a brick flue is used iron "clean-out" doors can be placed at intervals of twenty or more feet, or it may be so arranged that the covering course of bricks can be taken off. In tile flues similar doors or an occasional tee may

Injury to Carnation Blooms.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Some pest is causing injury to the calyxes of my carnation blooms as per enclosed samples. Please state cause and remedy. A. K.

The injured calyxes look very much as if they had been bitten by grasshoppers while in the bud stage. I have had a little experience of this kind each season in houses with side ventilation, where the grasshoppers could get in, but in the course of a month they have all died or been killed off. It is a little risky to put any form of poison on carnations while in bloom, on account of the habit some people have of putting the stems of flowers in their mouth. The only remedy I can suggest would be to carefully watch for the grasshoppers and kill them whenever found. ALBERT M. HERR.

American Carnation Society.

The following new carnations have been registered with the society by the Chicago Carnation Company, Joliet, Ill.:

Sunbeam, light pink; this is an entirely new shade of what is generally called flesh pink; flowers of good form, averaging three inches, borne on stiff, wiry stems from twenty-four to thirty inches long, free from disease and a very strong, healthy grower; produces more blooms per plant and bench space than any other variety known regardless of color.

Bon Homme Richard, white; this flower has a fine form and at times will show the faintest flush of light pink on the petals, which fades out entirely as the flower matures and even when discernible it detracts nothing from its beauty; blooms will average three inches, on strong, wiry stems two and one-half to three feet long; its habit is such that plants in benches with from thirty to thirty five buds on and flower spikes stand very comfortably in the Model wire support. It will produce fifty per cent more blooms than White Cloud and commands the same price when grown under the same conditions.

Nydia, variegated; the ground work of the flower is pure white, striped with light salmon, which, with its splendid form, gives an extremely beautiful effect in a vase for decorative purposes; grand keeper, improving as the flower ages; not as large as Mrs. Bradt but will produce twice the quantity of blooms; stems are very strong, from twenty to twenty-six inches in length, and the health and habit of the plant are of the best.

Prolifica, cerise pink; a shade deeper than Mrs. Lawson; average size of blooms three to three and one-half inches, with strong, stiff stems from two and one-half to three feet in length; an idea as to its freedom can be had from the fact that representatives of the trade papers counted on the original plant three seasons ago sixteen open flowers, fourteen large buds and an abundance of new

Packing Joints in Heating Pipe.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have recently taken charge of a range of five new houses heated by hot water, circulating through 4-inch pipe, the joints of which are packed with tow and cement. When we came to fire up the joints were found to leak very badly. I find that the expansion and contraction of the pipes cracks the cement and I fear we shall have a great deal of trouble when severe weather comes. At the worst of the leaks I have had the cement taken out and the joints closed with iron fillings, etc. Please tell me of the better way.

SOUTHERN.

When properly made, iron fillings make a very satisfactory joint so far as durability is concerned. Care must be taken not to crack the bells. With long runs there is always danger that cement joints will pull apart and to lessen this the pipes should be supported every ten feet upon rollers of 1-inch gas-pipe. Many of the failures with cement joints are due to the rapid setting of the cement. It is a good plan, two or three days after the joints are made, to fill the pipes with water and if the pipes are exposed to the sun to cover the joints with wet cloths, straw or other damp materials.

Potatoes for the Chinese.

A telegram from Tacoma to New York reports large exports of potatoes from that port to Shanghai. Several firms have been introducing the potato to the native Chinaman, and he has seemingly liked it, for he has ordered more. It is even claimed by the Tacoma exporters that the potato may eventually vie with rice as the Chinaman's staff of life. The telegram adds that an Irish-American commercial agent was the first to urge the value of the potato upon the Chinese.

CHARLES SCRIVNER.

Charles Scrivner, for the past ten years superintendent of Laurel Grove Cemetery, Paterson, N. J., died December 28, and was buried with Masonic rites on the following Sunday. He was for some years a resident of Buffalo, being engaged in the leading cemetery of the city. His death comes as a great shock to his many friends, his demise being unforewarned, resulting from congestion of the lungs.

EDWARD LUCKING.

Edward Lucking, aged 31, of Fifth street and Fairmount avenue, Philadelphia, died on December 29, of typhoid fever, after a short illness. His death was a great shock to his many friends in the craft. He was always in good spirits, bright and companionable, and will be much missed at the meetings of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, where he was a regular attendant. At a special meeting called by President Harris, suitable resolutions were passed and flowers ordered to be sent in the name of the club. Deceased leaves a wife and two children.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

VISITED OMAHA: Arnold Ringier, of W. W. Barnard & Co., Chicago.

WILLIAM BARNARD, father of W. W. Barnard, of Chicago, died on Christmas day at Champaign, Ill. He was 79 years of age.

R. R. MCGILL, with W. W. Barnard & Co., of Chicago, who has been on the sick list the past three weeks, is now recuperating.

A REPRESENTATIVE delegation of wholesale seedsmen will meet again in Washington, D. C., January 7, to protest against the appropriation for free seed distribution for 1902.

The Government Seed Shop.

In a recent interview, Roland Bolgiano, of the firm of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., expressed himself as follows on the free distribution of seeds by the government:

"We are determined to leave no stone unturned in showing the people that the free distribution of seed is nothing more than the use of public money for the purpose of paying off political debts. The government spends $75,000 a year for the seed, and that represents just so much business taken from the firms who have to make a living out of the industry.

"As long as the giving of seeds was limited to spreading through the country new or little known varieties of useful plants there could be no objection and everybody was benefited. A sample of good work is to be found in the introduction of seedless oranges and a new variety of cotton in some parts of the south. This is all right, but when it comes to giving away peas, beans, corn and other things which can be purchased at any country store, then we object. With just as much reason the authorities might distribute hats and horses to the farmers.

"In view of the fact that Congress is now getting ready to help the ship business by appropriating $10,000,000 for subsidies we think it rather inconsistent to appropriate $75,000 to carry on a work which is seriously interfering with our equally as worthy industry."

Chattanooga, Tenn.

CHRISTMAS TRADE WAS FAR AHEAD OF THE BEST RECORD OF PREVIOUS YEARS.—GOOD STOCK TURNED OUT AT THE CROUCH ESTABLISHMENT—OTHER DEALERS DOING WELL.

The holiday business far exceeded anything in the history of the trade in this city. There was a strong demand for American Beauties; in fact, there was hardly a rose of any description to be had after noon on Christmas day. Carnations were in favor, but scarce; violets plentiful and sold well. There was good call at fair prices for hyacinths, narcissi and tulips. Small palms, ferns and decorative plants sold well. There were a number of funerals and weddings during the holiday week and between them and the usual run of business about everything in the way of cut flowers was exhausted. We anticipate a brisk demand for both plants and cut flowers until after the New Year's receptions are over.

The decoration for the Christmas ball at the Stanton House, by Mrs. J. W. Crouch, was one of the prettiest ever seen in this city. Out at Rose Terrace Mrs. Crouch has some fine American Beauties. Her carnations, including such varieties as Ethel Crocker, G. H. Crane, Gen. Gomez, America, Melba and a few other of the later varieties, are looking well though they were benched rather late. Mrs. Crouch intends growing Beauties and carnations extensively another year.

C. Zbinden, proprietor of the Nixon Floral Co., reports trade highly satisfactory. He has been cutting some fine Perles for this season of the year. The stock at this place is looking better than in previous years. Since taking control of this place last spring Mr. Zbinden has made many improvements and contemplates others next season.

Although I have not visited John Karsten's establishment lately, judging by the numerous packages addressed to him through the local express offices the past few days, he has not been asleep.

ALEX.

New Orleans.

PAPWORTH PLANS A BIG HORTICULTURAL ESTABLISHMENT.—SECURES MANY ACRES OF FINE LAND.—CHRISTMAS TRADE IMPROVING.

We had the pleasure lately to look around a piece of land which H. Papworth has just secured and on which he is going to establish a first-class southern nursery. The location is ideal, being only a few minutes' walk from the city terminus. The land is elevated, for the larger portion, starting from the Metairie ridge and sloping to Lake Pontchartrain, measuring in all about 200 acres. The soil is loamy and very rich, which is shown by a beautiful crop of vegetables which is growing on it at present. Already an order of 20,000 roses has been given by Mr. Papworth, in order to get wood enough to make his own cuttings, which he expects to make in proper time. No doubt with the experience and knowledge of Mr. Papworth, backed by ample means, the undertaking will be a big success.

Not many years ago Christmas trees and decorations were hardly in vogue in the south, being more closely identified with the Anglo-Saxon observance of the holiday season; few of our people would resort to them for the holy days. Nowadays many spruces are received from the north, the number being on the increase every year. This year the importation has been quite large, with a good demand and profitable prices. Our swamps and woods also furnish large quantities of red berried branches with a good many long needle pines. Few plants were sold.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
 TREV. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
 GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

EVERY nursery is preparing for a record breaking delivery of stock next spring.

FRED. WELLHOUSE has been elected president of the Kansas State Horticultural Society.

It is said that the original tree of the Sudduth pear is standing near Williams-ville, Ill., and that it is nearly 80 years of age.

AT Dayton, Ohio, Nic Ohmer has been elected president and N. H. Albaugh vice-president of the Montgomery County Horticultural Society.

TREE planting is progressing apace in Iowa and it is predicted that within the next few years the area covered by shelter belts and orchards will be one-fourth the total area of the state.

AT Nashville, Tenn., on December 27, J. I. and A. W. Newson, proprietors of the Cumberland Nurseries, made a voluntary assignment to the Nashville Trust Company. The liabilities are estimated at $64,000, Brewer & Stannard, Ottawa, Kans., being the largest creditors in the trade, with a claim of only $434. It is thought the assets will about cover the liabilities.

Augusta, Ga.

The weather has been extremely mild and favorable for outdoor planting. About the middle of November we had a killing frost which hardened up all stock. There have been very few rainy days to interrupt work until the holidays, when for several days it rained heavily. Demand for nursery stock, palms and plants for house decoration has been unusually heavy. The outlook for large spring trade was never better. Heavy plantings of peach and plums for commercial purposes are being made in the peach belts of the state. The estimated plantings of peaches for commercial purposes this year is two million trees. The P. J. Berckmans Company shipped seventy large cases of nursery stock to South Africa in December.

The state authorities, recognizing the great benefit derived from the Entomological Department, granted an additional appropriation of $2,500 a few days since. Our state entomologist, Prof. W. M. Scott, is a most efficient and wide-awake official.

Several shipments of nursery stock infested with San Jose scale were recently smuggled into the state without the Georgia state tag but these infested shipments were seized and destroyed, according to law. The railroad officials are working in conjunction with our entomologist.

Moving Large Trees.

In the issue for December 22 "C. B. W." gives an illustration and description of the method employed in moving a large tree. Anything in the way of moving large trees successfully is always of interest to me, as I have done a great deal of this work, many trees moving very successfully, while others remained in a stunted state for several years. I used the most approved tackle then in use for the purpose. "C. B. W." gives the dimensions of the ball of earth which was moved in this case as 12x18x3 feet. Such a mass of soil would require some heavy timbers. If "C. B. W." would give a little more information I think it would be very interesting to many. For example, how many men were employed on the job? How long did it take from start to finish? How many feet of lumber did it require and at what price per thousand feet? Say the string piece or main timber was 12x12 inches and twenty-four feet long, and at that size it would have to be almost clear, as in the jacking-up it would be very trying if there were large knots in the timber. I think we might put the price of lumber clear enough for the purpose, that size and sizes, even if Norway pine, at $20 per 1,000 feet. Then to box in the whole ball, say beneath the ball with 4x12 inch planks, eighteen feet long; sides with 2x12 inch stuff, eighteen feet long; ends with 2x12 inch stuff, twelve feet long, as this length could be obtained at the lumber yard, there would be no cutting to waste. The lumber could be used several times if there were several trees to move, but if there was only one tree the lumber would be quite an item. Then the bolting together adds to the cost, which I should like to see figured out. I would also like to ask "C. B. W." if he is not afraid of the wind splitting such a tree, as is shown in the illustration, after being protected by a large maple, then to be placed in an unprotected position? Perhaps he is in a more favored locality than ours, where he does not get the full benefit of the northwest winds.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—M. J. Lynch had no difficulty in getting a prompt settlement with the insurance company after his recent fire and at once went to work rebuilding.

Denver.

IDEAL WEATHER FACILITATED THE HANDLING OF A SPLENDID HOLIDAY TRADE.— EXCELLENT SUPPLIES OF CUT FLOWERS AND PLANTS.

Again we have passed one of the busy seasons and this year it proved a very successful one in every respect. All the florists report the largest business in the history of Denver. Ideal whether prevailed, with an abundance of flowers and flowering plants, the latter being exceptionally fine. Azaleas, poinsettias and lilac were the most plentiful, with a very good showing in cyclamens, prices ruling about the same as in former years. Owing to the bright weather violets seemed to be a little more plentiful than before, and much better in quality. There was a scarcity in some quarters in greens, but we fail to see that it was to any disadvantage, as it enabled the retailers to better care for plant and cut flower trade.

Mrs. R. Manff, the Park Floral Company and the Colfax Avenue Company are the leaders in the plant line, while the cut flower growers in the suburban districts did their share to give Denver the best stock ever seen here at this season. Very little was shipped in, as in former years, it having been proven that stock shipped from distant points is very unsatisfactory, both to dealers and customers.

The Christmas season just passed also showed a marked improvement in store and window decorations. On Christmas morning, after everyone was about as tired as could be, the Park Floral Company made a beautiful window of violets and birch bark, while those of the Thies Floral Company and Glauber & Webb were in green and red, both using poinsettias and red ribbon to very good effect.

Produces a Sure Crop of Pink Hybrid Roses for Christmas.

A seedling from Merveille de Lyon crossed with Belle Siebrecht, retaining the size, form, color, and growth of the Hybrid Perpetual, with the everblooming qualities of the Tea Rose. This new rose is practically an Everblooming Hybrid, and the first of a type that will not only flower profusely during the spring and summer, but will flower during the winter. It has no tendency to go dormant during the winter, and every shoot has a flower bud. The habit of growth is strong and vigorous, with bright green foliage. The buds are of large size, and are produced on stiff stems with the heavy hybrid foliage almost up to the bud, like its parent—Merveille de Lyon. The open flower is of immense size, very double, and is almost as beautiful as the half expanded bud. The color is new in Everblooming roses, and is only seen in the Hybrid Perpetual class. Clear rosy pink, shading to flesh color on the outer petals. Robert Scott will not only be a very welcome addition to our small list of forcing roses, but is everybody's rose. Awarded honors wherever shown. Certificate of Merit and Silver Medal by Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. Preliminary Certificate of Merit by American Rose Society. Certificate of Merit in Ireland.

All Retail Florists Admire Robert Scott Rose, and want it, for there is no other rose of a delicate Laing-Luizet color that will flower in November, December and January. All our cut of this rose has been purchased by Mr. H. H. Battles, of Philadelphia.

The Leading Rose Growers endorse it. We give a few of the letters received from prominent growers who have seen it growing at Sharon Hill:

SUMMIT, N. J., December 26, 1900.

MR. ALEX. B. SCOTT, Sharon Hill, Pa.

DEAR MR. SCOTT:—Yours of the 24th received enquiring for my opinion of new Rose Robert Scott. This beautiful rose has in my opinion a grand future; its large size, elegant form, and lovely color, combined with exceedingly free blooming qualities, will make it the business man's rose to grow where fine flowers are wanted the year round.

Yours very truly,

JOHN N. MAY.

WYNDMOOR, PA., December 27, 1900.

MESSRS. ROBT. SCOTT & SON, Sharon Hill, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—It gives me great pleasure to be able to say a good word for your new rose "Robert Scott." I am very favorably impressed with it, because it is of that delicate pink color which was always a favorite of mine, and its free blooming qualities as seen a short time ago at your greenhouses indicates that it will be a profitable variety for the grower, and being of large size, of the regulation hybrid remontant shape, in addition to its beautiful color, will make it popular with flower buyers in general. I congratulate you most heartily on your good fortune in the possession of such a rose, and the public at large is also entitled to congratulations in having a new-comer among roses, which will be a desirable change among pink roses from the few varieties now offered for sale to be selected from.

Very truly yours,

EDWIN LONSDALE.

RICHMOND, IND., Dec. 27, 1900.

MESSRS. ROBT. SCOTT & SON,

Sharon Hill, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—In regard to the Rose Robt. Scott, the general make up of this new rose is so nearly like the famous Baroness Rothschild that there is certainly a large place for such a variety. Its continuous blooming qualities and its fine foliage and the fine tone of color all lend value to the variety. You will certainly find a good sale for what may be termed a free, continuous blooming Baroness Rothschild. Yours truly,

THE E. G. HILL CO.

OUR PASTIMES.

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

At New York.

Monday evening, being New Year's eve, the bowling contingent was busy on their own alleys making as many strikes as possible. The two veterans, Alex. Burns and Lawrence Haffner, however, took advantage of this to put in a few practice games and bowl the old year out and the new year in. Up to this writing their modesty has, however, prevented them making a report of their scores, which is causing the captain much worryment.

At West Hoboken.

The score here recorded should go a long way toward locating the Hudson county aggregation in the dangerous list. Like the Dutchman's dog, they are not saying much but are keeping up the rest of it and next summer may have to be reckoned with at Buffalo.

At Philadelphia.

Following is a newspaper clipping reporting a match which rounded to the glory of our club. It was played January 1: "A. Hamilton, the crack bowler of the Florists' Club, won a notable victory over Warker, of the Century Wheelmen, at the Pencoyd Club, yesterday. The match was for a side bet and the championship of Philadelphia, the best three games out of five to decide. Hamilton won three straight games, with a handsome margin to spare in each. The Pencoyd Club alleys are new and in splendid condition, so that the match was decided distinctly on its merits. The score:

	1st	2d	3d	T'l
Hamilton	226	215	183	624
Warker	182	159	164	505

These scores break the record for the Pencoyd alleys, and, in fact, on any Philadelphia regulation alleys for three consecutive match games."

There will, now that the holiday business is over, no doubt be a number of matches arranged, as the prowess and skill that is going to waste is something appalling. A great time there was on January 1, nearly all the games bowled being sweepstakes. There was not much gained or lost, however, as it was handicap bowling and things were pretty even. The December averages follow:

WEST GROVE, PA.—William M. Mumm, formerly with a Buffalo paper, has taken charge of the floral publications of the Dingee & Conard Company.

Lowell, Mass.

EVERYONE HAS A GOOD WORD TO SAY FOR THE BUSINESS AT HOLIDAY TIME.—ALL STOCK WAS GOOD, THOUGH NOT VERY PLENTIFUL.—EVERYTHING SOLD WELL—SEEN HERE AND THERE.

Christmas trade here was very good, among the best for recent years. There was not an over-abundance of flowers, but what there was were very good, none of them pickled. There were flowering plants in plenty, and both plants and flowers brought good prices. Greens of all kinds were in good supply and sold well, considering that almost everybody was handling them. One of the local societies hired an empty store about two weeks before Christmas and did a rushing business, and yet they expect the florists to give them advertisements for the programmes of their concerts and for their cook books.

Marshall had a gang of men making up trimming. They made all their own at this establishment, and the window looked pretty, arranged with ferns and poinsettias. Patten's and Burt's stores are side by side and during Christmas week it was a miniature forest in front. Burt had his windows whitened, all but a circle in the center, and then inside were some candelabra with candles lit, the decorations consisting of purple and white crepe paper, with a few ferns. Patten's window loomed up alongside, filled with everything that was bright. A large batch of Gloire de Lorraine begonia, artistically arranged in the center, made a pleasing effect. Christmas trade at this establishment was beyond expectations. The covers of all the cut flower boxes sent out by Patten were decorated with a branch of holly.

One of Wm. Hodges' little boys met with a painful accident the other day. The little fellow bit his tongue in two. A physician was called and sewed up the severed member, but it is feared the lad will have an impediment in his speech. Mr. Hodges is a grower for H. B. Greene.

This is the first year for Gloire de Lorraine in this town and they went like hot cakes. The weather being fine, the plants were sent out without being wrapped, which is a blessing at such a time.

McManmon had all he could attend to and he was perfectly satisfied with his Christmas trade.

H. B. Greene disposed of a plenty of flowering plants. He reports trade the best he ever had.

Albany, N. Y.

HOLIDAY WEEK NOTABLE FOR THE FREQUENCY OF SOCIAL EVENTS.—A NUMBER OF GOOD DECORATIONS.—LOCAL TRADES-PEOPLE HAVE ALL THEY CAN DO.

The past week has been notable for society events by which the florists profited considerably. On Thursday evening, December 27, J. P. Ord, general manager of the Edison works at Schenectady, gave a ball at the Ten Eyck, in honor of Miss Mary Hun, one of the season's debutantes. H. G. Eyres had charge of the decorations, which were superior to any seen in this vicinity in many years. The corridor leading to the ball room was decorated with southern smilax, needle pine and poinsettias. The reception room was decorated with Scotch heather in pots, large kentia palms, Roman hyacinths and Easter lilies. The ball room was decorated with kentia palms grouped in masses, Christmas green and laurel roping. A huge branch of mistletoe was suspended from the middle of the ballroom ceiling by means of frosted crimson ribbon. Potted Scotch heather, holly and red carnations were used to decorate the diningroom tables, which were set for 280 covers. The floral decorations cost $500.

Dr. F. J. H. Merrill, state geologist, gave a reception at his home on Washington avenue on Friday evening, December 28, to the members of the Geological Society of America, which held its winter session in Albany, December 27 to 29. The decorations were holly wreaths, laurel wreaths tied with crimson ribbons, bunches of holly, Christmas green and carnations.

The inauguration of Governor Odell took place on New Year's day and the opening of the legislature the day after. These events help business greatly during the winter. The florists of Albany have at present all the work they can do.

F. A. Danker had charge of the decorations at the ball of the Adelpi Club given in Odd Fellows Hall on the evening of January 1. R. D.

Buffalo.

THE HOLIDAY TRADE WAS SATISFACTORY TO ALL CONCERNED.—GOOD STOCK BROUGHT FINE PRICES AND SEVERAL ITEMS WERE SCARCE.—NOTES.

Christmas and New Year's left everyone satisfied. Stock was not as plentiful as in other years, especially violets and carnations, which brought good prices, the former even more than they were worth, causing some to get left on a few. Violets at from $4 to $6 per hundred is a pretty high price. Poinsettias found ready sale in pans at from $2 upward, and other plants sold very well. Primroses were asked for but not many were to be had. Carnations were also scarce and of fair quality, fancies bringing $1.50 per dozen. Holly was decidedly a glut on the market and sold at all prices. Grocers who object to hucksters selling their goods were the biggest opponents to the florists. Receptions last week and the week before have been very numerous and Palmer has put up some fine decorations. While everyone shared in the business, he had the largest orders.

The windows of Palmer and Adams were the talk of Buffalo, as they were entirely new and very attractive. Rebstock carried out the idea of stars, etc., in immortelles, while Anderson's was ferns and assorted flowers.

Kasting has been very busy with his wholesale trade and trying to catch the robbers who entered his house on two different occasions, getting about $600 in all in silverware.

Anderson has been receiving congratulations on a fine boy who arrived at his house on Christmas morning. W. A.

Quincy, Ill.

Christmas trade here was the best for years, cut flowers and blooming plants being in equal demand. The demand for roses and carnations far exceeded the supply. Heckenkamp's carnations, consisting mainly of Flora Hill, Crane, Crocker, Lord and Jubilee, are fine and were in their prime for the holidays. Gentemann also had a fine lot of carnations and lily of the valley. Gross was in it on roses.

Ernest Maag has sold out his business to Jos. Kroner, a young man raised in the business by Heckenkamp. He is a hustler and has things in good shape. H.

Montreal.

THE BUSIEST CHRISTMAS ON RECORD — CUT FLOWERS INADEQUATELY AVAILABLE. — POPULARITY OF FLOWERING PLANTS. — HIGH PRICES PREVAIL. — EXPERIENCES OF THE RETAILERS

As predicted, Montreal enjoyed the busiest Christmas on record. Growers and retailers are unanimously satisfied, especially the retailers. Flowering plants were in great demand and anything good was disposed of. In the plant trade azaleas were the leaders, poinsettias next. Boston ferns were also in great demand. The unfavorable weather for the past two months was responsible for the scarcity of azaleas and cut flowers. This might account for the high price paid for the latter. Roses in general were in good demand, and commanded from $4 to as high as $18 a dozen for American Beauties. Carnations sold well at $1 to $1.25 a dozen. Violets, which were in rather short supply, brought $1.25 a bunch. Paper Whites, Romans, mignonette and lily of the valley sold quickly. A tour of the leading retail stores showed what an enormous stock Montreal trade can dispose of. All their windows were in their best attire.

Miss Murray found the supply of cut flowers too short and told me it was the best Christmas she ever witnessed. She had a good choice of plants. I may say here that J. Murray, who is afflicted by paralysis, is kept interested in the trade by his daughter's daily report.

The most tasteful window, without doubt, was that of S. S. Bain, who made an original show, using ribbon of all shades among his plants. An electric fan was also in operation to prevent his window from frosting, giving the plants a constant movement.

J. Bennett had a fine window and by far the best stock in the city. His azaleas were all in; this is more than other florists can congratulate themselves on. His Beauties were the talk of all the trade.

Wilshire Bros. had a fine display and they disposed of nearly all their stock. All the pots were hid by colored tissue paper. A great many fancy baskets, tastefully put up, were sold at $5 each.

P. McKenna & Son, although not retailers, sent off a good stock of poinsettias, maiden hair ferns and Begonia incarrata. Their euphorbias, though very good, were not popular.

B. T. Graves, who has reopened a store on St. Catherine street, had not so complete a stock as formerly, but his carnations were fine.

At Campbell's they claimed to have done a very good trade, but they did not get their azaleas ready in time.

Harris & Hopton had a large and clean stock. Their solanums were very good and brought $1.50 each.

Logan Girdwood reports a good trade, cut flowers leading. G. V.

LA CROSSE, Wis.—George Muetze, out on the Mormon Cooley road, has a new and well-stocked greenhouse.

PORTLAND, Me.—J. A. Dirwanger, intends extending his greenhouse facilities considerably the coming season.

NEW YEAR'S TRADE IN THE CAPITAL CITY. —EVERYONE PLEASED WITH EXISTING CONDITIONS.—NOTES OF VARYING INTEREST.

New Year's trade was good, but not as good as Christmas. J. H. Small, Jr., says this is the first time he has sold carnations for $3 per dozen. They are receiving a quantity of fine carnations from H. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md. They had a good run on high handled plant baskets, filled with ericas, poinsettias, azaleas and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. All the retailers report a fair trade for New Year's. A. Gude & Bro. are cutting a fine lot of American Beauty and other roses. They had a fine New Year's trade in cut flowers and also disposed of quite a number of plants for Christmas and New Year's.

David I. Saunders has been suffering with nervous prostration for some time but is recovering slowly. His son, Harvey Saunders, is managing the business and is cutting some very fine White Cloud and G. H. Crane carnations. Their violets looked very promising but in the last few weeks they have been going backwards.

The decorations at the White House for the New Year reception were very neat and leucothoe sprays were used freely. The east window was draped with palms and poinsettias, the mantel banked with Licuala grandis and adiantums.

Shine & Davidson have dissolved partnership and John Davidson is now with Gude & Bro. P. G.

Galveston, Tex.

Christmas trade was quite brisk in both cut flowers and plants. Many people bought collections of plants for presents to restock the little greenhouses of their friends, who lost their plants in the big storm.

Thomas Shimins is doing a good business in his store and so is Mrs. Chas. Eickholt, who opened a store, just a few days before Christmas, on Tremont and Postoffice streets.

The weather is cloudy and dark but we have had no frost here as yet and everybody is busy fixing up and rebuilding.

Otto Fehrlin has returned home from an extended trip to the north and east.

F. G. Laeverenz is going to leave town and make Houston his future home.

J. D. P.

Ethel Crocker

WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers.

Tarrytown, N. Y.

ANNUAL ELECTION AND BANQUET OF THE SUCCESSFUL LOCAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—SMITH IS NOW PRESIDENT.—EXCELLENT MENU AND GOOD TALKS AT BANQUET.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held December 27, with President Turner in the chair and a large attendance of members. The chief business of the evening was the election of new officers. The following gentlemen were chosen: President, James W. Smith; vice-president, William Scott; treasurer, E. W. Neubrand; secretary, Thomas Cockburn; press secretary, L. A. Martin; executive committee, M. J. Connellon, Francis Gibson, A. A. Taaffe, William Turner, Wm. F. McCord, D. Mac Farlane, A. Fallon and John Eagan. The reports of operations for the past year were very satisfactory, the members of good standing now numbering ninety-five while the balance at the bank proves that affairs have been well managed. Two new members were elected, H. H. Waite, Greystone, Yonkers, and John Elliott, Scarborough. A vote of thanks was given to the retiring officers and then the members with guests, numbering sixty-five in all, adjourned to the Florence Hotel, where the committee, Messrs. Smith, Neubrand and Gibson, had spread the second annual banquet.

The dining room was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, smilax and asparagus donated by some of the members, also with flags of all colors, and the monogram T. H. S. The catering was a credit to the committee. As soon as the cigars were passed the president asked for a few words from the newly elected officers, who gladly responded. Mr. Scott was appointed toastmaster and filled the position in a very able manner. Among the speakers were F. R. Pierson, J. W. Withers, Thomas Withers, J. I. Donlan, M. Butterfield, and Messrs. Gomersall, Lynch and Saltford for the Dutchess County Horticultural Society. As the representatives of the Westchester County Horticultural Society, Messrs. Shore, Grierson and Williamson, had to leave us early to make connection with their train, we greatly missed the good advice usually given by John Shore. Music and songs were given by John Taaffe, Messrs. Whyte, A. A. Taaffe, Butterfield, MacFarlane, Mooney and Martin. L. A. M.

THE HOLIDAY BUSINESS WAS ENTIRELY WITHOUT PRECEDENT.—GOOD STOCK IN DEMAND.—MUCH INFERIOR MATERIAL SHIPPED IN.—JOTTINGS.

Christmas trade beat all the records for former years, for there was no limit to the calls for good stock, which was very scarce. A great deal of inferior stock was shipped in, which had to be sold at about cost, and was very expensive at that. Good plants never were in so great demand, but unfortunately there were not near enough plants to go around. Palms at $5 to $10 sold fast; very few good ones were left, and some of the stores are cleaned out. Samuel Murray and A. Barbee grew most of the azaleas that were to be had in this market; consequently they were strictly in it, especially Murray, for he had a house of good ones, of which several sold as high as $25 each. Holly went well and everybody cleaned up, with very little left for New Year's. We noticed that people complained less this year of the high prices, which indicates good times and plenty of ready money. Some of the local growers were off crop, attributable to the advanced season.

BUSINESS A LITTLE SLOW AFTER CHRISTMAS BUT THE OLD YEAR PASSES OUT BRISKLY.—LAWSON A FAVORITE CARNATION.—BUILDING IN SIGHT.

Business was a little slow after Christmas but New Year's started it in full swing again and 1900 passed away with everybody well satisfied. After having time to look over business that was done Christmas we find that there was more holly sold this year than any preceding season. A large business was also done with evergreen trees. Bridesmaids are the only roses offered in quantities at present, with white carnations also in surplus. The Lawson shows up finely and is becoming quite a favorite, bringing from $1 to $1.50 a dozen.

There will be considerable greenhouse building in the spring. William Donaldson, John Munson and P. Will intending to enlarge their plants considerably. In addition, the Minneapolis Floral Company will put up a big range of glass.

Mr. Brant, of Forest Glen, made a short call last week.

Paterson, N. J.

THE CHRISTMAS TRADE WAS QUITE THE BEST IN YEARS.—LARGE CALL FOR PLANTS.—CUT FLOWERS IN DEMAND.—GROWTH OF THE TRADE.—JOTTINGS HERE AND THERE.

The Christmas trade in general was much better than it has been in past years. Greens were used in great profusion and holly wreaths sold at from 10 cents for poor ones to 35 cents each for the very best. There was a big demand for loose holly. Roping moved slowly, because the farmers stood on our main street selling it for whatever they could get. All the stores report doing a very good business. There was larger call for palms, rubbers, azaleas and flowering plants this year. Violets were in big demand and good ones brought from $2 to $3 per hundred. Carnations sold at from 50 cents to 75 cents per dozen. Good roses, such as Bridesmaids and Brides sold at from $1 to $3 per dozen.

Paterson has become quite a town for flowers during the past few years. While it is the largest silk center in America, it is only a few years ago that there was but one flower store in the city, that of the late H. E. Chitty. Then Joseph Towell started and within a few years Edward Scery opened a store. For a number of years these three had everything their own way. Then the city had a population of 40,000; now it has 120,000, with ten stores in the florist trade. This with the farmers who come in three times a week and stand all day on the market to sell flowers, also the number of greenhouses in and near the city, makes competition very lively at times.

Joseph Towell has been on the sick list for a long time. He has a nice lot of cypripediums and Asparagus plumosus.

Vreeland & Condee are cutting some very nice Golden Gate roses.

The Paterson Rose Company has a good stock of roses.

Martin Werne has a nice collection of palms. SILK CITY.

PORTSMOUTH, OHIO.—Mrs. Catherine Herms has sued the Portsmouth Gas Company for $5,000 damages, claiming that the escaping gas of the company ruined her stock.

CAMDEN, N. J.—C. W. Turnley, who recently erected a thoroughly modern establishment at 535 Federal street, a prominent part of the city, reports more than usual prosperity.

The Plant Grower's Work.

The holiday season of the year 1900 is now but a memory, and to a majority of those in the trade is doubtless a pleasant memory, owing to the amount of business done and the fact that it was at fairly remunerative prices. Another important factor in regard to the holiday business, of our eastern cities at least, has been the prevalence of mild weather, this having made the matter of the safe delivery of plants and flowers a thing of joy rather than the tribulation that often reigns at that season.

But after the storm there comes a lull, and this is especially evident among the plant growers for two or three weeks after Christmas, and, as a matter of fact, this breathing spell, as we may term it, is sometimes abnormally long, and in turn may itself become a source of tribulation, for the coal pile is disappearing and the other regular expenses are running on just the same.

It has sometimes been suggested that an account of stock might be taken at this time, after the manner of most mercantile establishments, but this does not seem to be the best time for such an operation, for one cannot make a very good showing on a stock book when the best of the stock is gone, and it therefore seems better, at least for the grower of decorative stock, to defer taking an account until after the summer clean-up and when the space is filled up with salable or soon to be salable plants, say from July 1 to August 1.

But there is a good deal of planning that may be done now in order to avoid the mistakes of the past season, for we take it for granted that though the perfect plant grower may be among the wonderful productions of the twentieth century, yet it can scarcely be said truthfully that he now exists, for we all make mistakes at some time or other, and some of us make quite a great many of them.

One of the lessons of the holiday season is that in many places there is not variety enough of good plants offered, and that bright colors are particularly sought for. Bright-berried plants such as well-grown ardisias, well-colored dracaenas of the terminalis type, Azalea Simon Mardner and poinsettias quickly attract attention and find ready sale, while for the cheaper trade some shapely solanums are very useful.

But it must be remembered that a salable ardisia in a 5-inch or 6-inch pot usually takes two years in preparation for the market, so one cannot grow them as a "catch crop," as may be done with Boston ferns or other rapid growing plants, and consequently they cannot be sold profitably at a very low price. A night temperature of 55° to 60° is about as high as should be given to Ardisia crenulata in order to grow stocky and well furnished plants, and they should not be crowded too much or the lower leaves may suffer. If these plants are given too high a temperature much more trouble is had from insects, both white and brown scale and red spiders being very troublesome under such conditions.

The bright-colored dracaenas referred to require a much less time for their production. Young stock in 3-inch pots in June will make good specimens in 6-inch pots before Christmas if they are shifted on as soon as ready and given liberal treatment generally. These dracaenas enjoy heat and moisture during the summer, the moisture being especially necessary overhead in bright weather to discourage thrips and red spiders, but during the latter part of the season plenty of ventilation should be given so that the foliage may be hardened to some extent before the plants are offered for sale. Various fertilizers may be used in reasonable quantity with good results in dracaena growing, but so much depends on the character and quality of the original soil that it is not safe to offer a positive formula, and it is probably safer to advise the experimenter not to overdo the matter at first, or a severe attack of indigestion and possibly a bad case of "spot" may be developed among the plants.

It is a little too early to do anything with poinsettias yet, this being about the time the old plants begin to take a rest, but after a few weeks of ripening in seclusion they may again be brought forward, for example, after the Easter rush is over and various spaces on the benches are yawning to be filled. And the mention of Easter reminds me that this great festival of flowers falls due on April 7 this year, and that consequently that twelve weeks period that is usually conceded to be required for the forcing of hydrangeas should begin at once, or else there is likely to be a very much forced finish given to the plants, with the inevitable result shown in the poor quality.

Easter lilies should be moving along nicely now and should preferably be about six inches in height at the present time, and some of the empty bench space may be well occupied in spreading this valuable stock, for perfect plants of either

L. Harrisii or L. longiflorum should be furnished right down to the pot with healthy, dark green, unbroken leaves. This may seem like a high ideal, but, nevertheless, perfection does not mean anything less than this in regard to the foliage, while the flowers must be uncrippled by the bites of aphids. The free use of tobacco stems among the lilies or the vaporizing of tobacco extract in the house in which they are grown are doubtless among the most effective methods of fighting the aphids, but to gain the best results the fight should be begun before the enemy appears by using the tobacco as a preventative.

Among the foliage plants in general the growth is not very active just now, and an extensive repotting had better be deferred until the sun gets stronger and the conditions are better adapted for progress. But any lots of young stock that may be badly pot-bound and liable to lose color should be potted without hesitation, provided that a sufficient degree of heat can be given the newly potted plants to ensure their re-establishment. This does not mean an extremely high temperature, but rather a steady one averaging 60° to 65° at night, this being quite enough for the usual list of palms, ferns and other decorative stock that is found in the average commercial place. Such a temperature as that noted would be scarcely enough for growing on young crotons, but with a heating apparatus capable of providing a night temperature of 70° to 72° there need be no delay in shifting young crotons just as soon as they are in need of a shift.

W. H. TAPLIN.

A Succession of Plants.

[Read before the Chicago Florists' Club by John Reardon, gardener to Martin A. Ryerson, Chicago.]

The gentleman who introduced this subject, a succession of plants to keep greenhouse benches full, must have had in mind the days of thirty years ago, when it meant something to have a succession of plants. The practice of late years has been to plant permanently. I am glad to see some of the good old plants coming to the front again. In a paper of this kind it is impossible to name all the plants that are required by a florist to round out his year's work. Our trade papers cover the ground accurately and fully.

The up-to-date gardener must anticipate six months ahead what he will keep his benches full with and whether he will raise his plants from seed or cuttings. The first of October ought to find all available space occupied. The chrysanthemum house will be the first emptied, and what a wreck one quickly makes here. I pity the florist who has not made provisions to fill this house. It may be that the florist who has the material to fill the empty benches is not always the one in most need of the money. This may sound funny but it's true. Gentlemen, kindly pardon me if I don't hew closely to the lines of my subject.

There is a difference of two months or more between the early and late chrysanthemums; it requires some knowledge of varieties to plant the house right. On the south bench plant the early varieties and if possible commence cutting at the east end of the other benches. By so doing you never have much of the benches empty at any time and your chrysanthemums do not throw shade on the plants you fill up with. For a succession of plants I would suggest primroses, cinerarias, Roman hyacinths, Paper White narcissi, azaleas of early varieties, stevia, heaths and if possible, bouvardia, cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias. Wholesale growers fill up with Lilium longiflorum and L. Harrisii for their winter and especially for their Easter trade.

As you dispose of your stock have something always to take its place. Christmas trade has left us with some empty space. Bring in tulips and Dutch hyacinths and Von Sion narcissi. Keep a sharp lookout now for what you want for spring bedding plants. The propagating bench must be kept busy. Keep up the succession with lilies, azaleas, Astilbe Japonica, calceolarias, acacias, heaths, rhododendrons, genistas, hyacinths, tulips, hydrangeas, hybrid perpetual and Crimson Rambler roses and fuchsias. These are the plants you want for Easter trade.

The first of March is a very busy time for the gardener, sowing seed, propagating and repotting. Keep the greenhouse benches full with geraniums, cannas and the thousand other plants that go to make up a florist's stock for his spring and summer trade. Don't forget you may want to plant the chrysanthemum house again; have plenty of stock. Keep the houses looking as well as possible through the summer. This can be done with gloxinias, gesneras, achimenes, Mevenia erecta, Rex begonias and fancy caladiums.

I said I was glad to see the plant trade reviving again. When I see the heather brought down from the mountain after a sleep of twenty years, can you wonder that the younger gardeners do not know how to treat Old Rip. I believe there is a good business awaiting the man who will go into this feature of the plant trade near Chicago. What grower around here has made as much money at Christmas time as the Chicago retail florists sent east for their plant trade?

It may not be out of place for me to mention a few good old plants coming to the front again, such as Mahernia odorata, Euphorbia jacquinaeflora, chorozema, and Poinsettia pulcherrima. The epacris and ericas, known as heath, are grand plants and are as easy to propagate as carnations and can be had in bloom from Christmas to Easter. Bouvardias, jasmynes and camellias are all useful. The azalea always held its own, but how maltreated it is in most florists' hands to-day. I have often thought and wished that the source of supply of this plant was cut off for a few years in order that florists would appreciate and take better care of this, the grandest of all our spring flowering plants.

In conclusion I may say if you don't grow chrysanthemums, grow the list of plants I herewith present to you, grow plenty of them and you will always have plenty of stock to keep your greenhouse benches full.

Banquet to President O'Mara.

Patrick O'Mara, the retiring president of the New York Florists' Club and the new executive of the Society of American Florists, was feted at a banquet given by the New York organization on the evening of Thursday, January 10, at which nearly 100 gentlemen were seated, including many notables from a distance. The banquet hall was decorated in the highest art of the craft, and Charles B. Weathered officiated as toastmaster with his customary ability and dignity. The menu was one of the kind to tickle the palate of an epicure, and the gastronomical feast preceded a flow of soul such as might have been expected with such a gathering. Mr. Weathered's first call was for the toast "Our Honored Guest," to which Wm. J. Stewart responded, saying in part:

When called upon to select men to fill positions of trust we choose from among our fellows those whom we regard as most capable and worthy of the honor conferred, but the only lasting honor that can come to the individual thus singled out depends, in a great degree, on the fidelity and zeal with which he deals with the responsibilities committed to him. Then, when problems have been met and solved, when the fight has been made and victory won, when the record has been written and we find it clean, then it is such an occasion as this that impresses us with its appropriateness and significance. From far and near we have gathered around this festal board, actuated by the same impulse, to testify, in this social manner, our esteem for a friend whom we have proved worthy of all this, and to speak to him those sublime words, "Well done good and faithful servant." In thus honoring him we can truthfully say we are also benefitting ourselves, for the world affords no greater incentive to enterprise and manly effort than the influence of good example. Occasions like this, induced by such an object, ennoble life, strengthen fortitude, cement friendship and tend to leave us better men in every respect.

Mr. Stewart then alluded appreciatively to the enduring lustre that has come to the New York Florists' Club and the broad benefits to American horticulture through the administration of affairs under President O'Mara during the momentous year just closed. He praised his diplomacy, his patience and the harmonizing influence which he exercised, and then, addressing Mr. O'Mara, presented to him, on behalf of the company, a handsome scarfpin, an emerald set in diamonds, as a memento of this pleasant event and a pledge of fealty during the coming year, assuring the recipient that the beautiful green stone typified the undying love and friendship that had prompted the gift.

A scene of unbounded enthusiasm followed, and Mr. O'Mara, ordinarily so self-possessed, was completely nonplussed for once. After he had time to collect his thoughts he made an appropriate address, which was closely listened to and frequently applauded. He deprecated any special claims to credit for the work accomplished by the New York Florists' Club during his administration, stating that he had only tried to do his duty as a man owed it to himself and to his fellow men. He said that was the spirit by which he hoped to be actuated for life and that he had been nobly supported by his fellow members and had taken pleasure in standing shoulder to shoulder with them as comrades in good work. He said that while we may not all be called upon to lead great events, whenever the call does come let us all do our part in the age in which we live. Jokingly, he said there was danger that he might get too "chesty" and find difficulty in getting down to earth again, but he assured his hearers of one thing, however, that when there is work to be done they will find him "the same old Pat." He took the opportunity to make an appeal for earnest effort on behalf of the national society during the coming year, and also spoke hopefully regarding the plans of the New York Florists' Club for a great exhibition next October. In closing, Mr. O'Mara expressed fervent thanks for the token of friendship, saying that in his memory this event, like the emerald, will always remain green.

The orchestra then lead the company through a verse of the "Star Spangled Banner" and W. C. Barry, of Rochester, was called upon to respond to the toast, "Our Country." Mr. Barry's address was both patriotic and eloquent. He said no victories are ever won without a struggle, either by nations or individuals, and pointed to the guest of the evening as an example worthy of emulation. He spoke of the remarkable progress of the S. A. F. and the wonderful advancement achieved in horticulture, a progress in which America holds no second place. He said that the tillers of the soil are doing their part to uphold their country's glory and to maintain her prestige, and that the other nations of the world are just beginning to realize our importance and power.

John N. May responded to the toast, "Our Profession," and stated that he could offer no better example of what the followers of our profession should be than by indicating the guest of the evening, a man of broad mind, kindly disposition, generous to a degree, a man in whom the poor and struggling gardener never fails to find a friend. Mr. May went on to show briefly the wide range of subjects covered in the modern practice of our profession, and stated that no one person can possibly attain proficiency in all the varied details of floriculture as it is followed to-day. He spoke of the skill of the landscape artist, of the men of floriculture who have done so much to improve roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, orchids and many other subjects, and also said a word for the man whose art has done so much to bring flowers into favor, remarking that no greater progress has been made than in the art of floral designing as compared with the methods practiced not so many years ago.

W. F. Gude, of Washington, an ex-president of the S. A. F., responded to the toast "Our Societies," and soared to heights of eloquence attained by no other orator of the evening. In forecasting the administration of President O'Mara, he told the story of the French ambassador whom Louis XIV instructed that his lines of conduct were to be shaped in a course entirely different from that of his predecessor. "Sire," replied the courtier, "I hope to act so that your Majesty will not need to give such instructions to my successor." Mr. Gude said that the parent society should be proud of her offspring, the rose, carnation and chrysanthemum societies, for they are doing much good, each in its chosen way.

J. W. Withers spoke for literature, A. S. Burns for our pastimes and E. M. Wood, with his customary gallantry, paid tribute to the ladies. John Young, secretary of the Florists' Club, read many congratulatory letters and telegrams from all over the country, and the festivities of the evening concluded with Auld Lang Syne. The elaborated menu was as follows:

Christmas Plants in New York.

In the number of flowering and foliage plants disposed of for holiday gifts New York is far in advance of her sister cities in America as she also is in the manner of presenting them and making them attractive to the public by the use of various decorative accessories. The causes which have led up to the present popularity of plants at Easter time and the holidays and the question of the responsibility of the cut flower profession for the encroachments made by the plant trade in recent years have been discussed and speculated upon quite generally, but, aside from all other considerations, it is an undoubted fact that the care and taste exercised by the retail florists of the metropolis in giving an attractive holiday dress to the goods, which pleases buyers, has had much to do with the rapid growth of this branch of their business.

The general illustration of plants in the store of Geo. M. Stumpp gives a good idea of the interior of the better class of florists' stores in New York as arranged for the Christmas trade. The work of making up these plant combinations is all done in the basement and only the finishing touch of ribbon or cord and tassel is done in the salesroom. Nos. 1, 2 and 3 of the basket illustrations represent some of the most popular styles arranged by Alex. McConnell. No. 1 is a round basket of straw braid, the handle wound with scarlet and tied with a bow of the same color. The contents are Dracæna terminalis, Dracæna Godsefiana, ardisias and ferns. From the handle is suspended a bell of scarlet immortelles and the ribbon bears the inscription "Merry Xmas" in gold letters. No 2 is an oval dish of braid and seagreen luffia. Dracæna terminalis, Pandanus Veitchii, Erica melanthera and ferns are the material used in filling and the effect is very rich. No. 3 is a round braid basket containing fruiting orange trees, and decorated with a bow of orange satin.

The other examples are selected from the stock of George M. Stumpp, and it will be noticed are distinctly more floral in their contents than are those offered by Mr. McConnell. No. 4 is an ivory white hamper filled with Gloire de Lorraine, lily of the valley and erica, and trimmed with a bow of white satin. No. 5 is a hamper of birch bark and seagreen luffia. A pink flowered epacris, Gloire de Lorraine, and adiantum are the contents, and the combination with seagreen ribbon and cord and tassels is exceedingly delicate and pretty. The Christmas wreath of pine, holly and ilex berries, with bows of scarlet and gold green ribbon (No. 6) represents the prevailing popular style of wreath among the high class buyers. Mr. Stumpp made a specialty of these tied with a heavy cord and tassel in place of the ribbon. No. 7 is a single plant of epacris in a celluloid pot cover and festooned with a little pink cord and tassels.

The Christmas Trade.

The following belated reports of the holiday trade show that prosperity was general during the season from New England to the Pacific:

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Trade was one-fifth ahead of a year ago, with supply adequate except Meteor roses and carnations, and these were the principal items of demand. Crabb & Hunter say that the sale for greens fell off.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—W. J. & M. S. Vesey report holiday business as one-fourth greater than a year ago, with inadequate supplies in all lines of cut flowers. Carnations were particularly good and very popular. There was lively sale for ferns for gift purposes.

OMAHA, NEB.—S. B. Stewart reports Christmas sales greater than ever before, and says that more carnations might easily have been disposed of had they been available. There was a good demand for bulbous stock and a fair supply. Decorative plants sold well.

QUINCY, ILL.—Christmas trade and business since has been unusually good. C. F. W. Gentemann reports disposing of everything in the line of blooming plants, and at Christmas obtained the best prices on record for roses and carnations. Most of the growers here had good crops at the holidays.

SAN JOSE, CAL.—The Garden City Floral Company reports that holiday prices were about as last year and that there was not stock enough of cut flowers although sales increased twenty per cent. There was very little call for bulbous material. Qualities were generally better than the year before.

WATERBURY, CONN.—The holiday season brought increased sales of plants, Boston ferns being particularly popular. Holly and greens were in great demand. Sales in the aggregate increased about one quarter, according to Alex. Dallas. There were short supplies of roses and carnations, and prices on the latter were rather higher than usual at Christmas.

READING, PA.—Trade is estimated to have increased twenty-five per cent over the holidays of last year, with prices about as heretofore. There were adequate supplies in all lines of cut flowers. Roman hyacinths were in good demand and stock was better than a year ago throughout the list. Hoskins & Giles report increased sales in flowering plants.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—H. A. Lindsay reports that Christmas sales were fifty per cent ahead of last year's, and that retail prices were proportionately higher owing to the higher prices paid for stock shipped in. There were not nearly enough roses, carnations or violets, and hyacinths and narcissi outran lily of the valley ten to one, but the principal demand was for carnations.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—E. W. McLellan & Co., report that while Christmas sales were greater than ever before, the increase in demand was for the medium grades of stock, the sales of select flowers not being larger than a year ago. There was increased call for flowering plants and also for violets. There were more bulbous flowers than could be sold, but not enough roses, carnations or violets.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—James Pont reports that the holiday season brought increased calls for flowering plants and carnations, although roses and violets were preferable to bulbous flowers in the eyes of nearly all buyers. The supply was not equal to the demand, although prices were not advanced over last year and sales were little, if any, larger. Qualities were about as heretofore.

CARTHAGE, MO.—Perry Finn says that the holiday sales were double those of a year ago, with prices on the usual level. Carnations and violets were short but there were adequate supplies of bulbous stock, although that was not very much. There was a special call for red carnations. Christmas greens were also in demand, and flowering plants were in increased favor as Christmas gifts.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—U. J. Virgin says that his Christmas sales were about forty per cent higher than a year ago. He had adequate supplies of cut flowers, but in general the qualities were not as good as they should have been. Roses sold well but there was little call for carnations. The plant trade increased about fifty per cent. Azaleas and ferns sold well, but flowering plants were most popular.

TIFFIN, O.—Lewis Ullrich reports the holiday trade as much better than in any previous year. He sold out every cut flower on the place. A great many plants were moved and there was an unusually good business in holly and Christmas trees. During the holiday week Mr. Ulrich gathered a crop of 100,000 seeds of Asparagus plumosus and has about 50,000 more to pick. The most of these he will sow at once.

NEW BEBFORD, MASS.—W. G. Kraber says that there was enough stock to meet all the Christmas calls, but there was no surplus. Trade was twenty-five per cent higher than a year ago, with prices very good. There was a marked increase in the call for carnations and the flowers were very fine. Begonia Gloire de Lorraine sold very well. Competition outside the trade spoiled the holly and wreathing business for the florists.

VICTORIA, B. C.—Christmas trade was fifty per cent ahead of a year ago. There were not nearly enough cut flowers because the cloudy weather retarded crops. Bulbous material was the only item in adequate supply. A large quantity of chrysanthemums were still on hand and sold well. A great many palms in 5-inch or 6-inch pots might have been sold had they been on hand. The supply was early exhausted, according to J. T. Higgins.

RICHMOND, IND.—The E. G. Hill Company reports that the holiday just past saw prices more freely paid than usual. First-class stock was wanted, with little call for lower grades. Sales in Richmond were estimated at fifty per cent ahead of last year with prices about twenty per cent higher than the previous Christmas. The principal shortages were in the items of stock which were most in demand, Beauties, violets and red carnations. There was no demand for bulbous stock. The growers of blooming plants enjoyed increased sales.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—A. S. Swanson thinks twenty per cent increase over a year ago the correct estimate of the present holiday trade. There were plentiful supplies of all lines of cut flowers but it was necessary to procure a great deal of the stock from Chicago. Qualities in general were not up to the usual standard, except on Beauties, which were very fine. There was, perhaps, an increased call for red carnations but they are always in such great demand at Christmas that there are not enough of them to go around. There was increased call for flowering plants for gift purposes, and, as usual, the preference was for the bright colored sorts.

Meeting of Indiana Florists.

The annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at the agricultural rooms of the State House, Indianapolis, January 8, in two sessions, afternoon and evening. President Haugh, of Anderson, opened the meeting by reading a paper in which he gave a review of the progress made by the florists of this state the past year. He said in part that last year, generally speaking, had been a prosperous one for our trade, but that 1901, according to indications, would be the banner year. He also called attention to the fact that florists more and more show an inclination to build of more lasting material and thereby greatly increase the value of their places. This, the speaker said, more than anything else, shows the healthy condition of our trade. Mr. Haugh's paper was listened to with more than ordinary interest and was warmly applauded.

CHRISTMAS PLANTS IN STORE OF GEO. M. STUMPP, NEW YORK.

At the evening session, the ever-present show question being brought up again, Bertermann Brothers asked whether they would have the support and good will of the society on the following proposition: They, in connection with a few other florists and several business men of the city, to take the management of a fall show in their own hands, put up a guarantee fund sufficiently large to insure payment of all expenses, including premiums, the society to be consulted in making out the premium list. After an animated discussion it was announced that if the promoters could report their plans in working order at the February meeting they would have the support of the society; if not the society will make an effort to arrange for a show on different lines.

On Mr. Langstaff's "perennial" motion, Messrs. Hill, Langstaff, Coles, Rieman and Heller were appointed a committee to undertake the hopeless task to secure a state appropriation for the society.

In the choice of officers the present incumbents were re-elected as follows: President, J. A. E. Haugh; vice-president, W. W. Coles; secretary, Robert McKeand; treasurer, Mr. Huntington. Frank Aliey was elected second vice-president in place of Mr. Langstaff, who declined re-election.

Upon the executive committee Wm. S. Bertermann, W. W. Coles, Herbert Heller, John Heidenreich and H. Junge were appointed.

A. Nelson invited the society to hold the next meeting at his place, and Herbert Heller asked that a visit be paid to New Castle February 15. On a motion of E. G. Hill, the secretary was instructed to invite the American Carnation Society to honor Indianapolis by making it the meeting place in 1902.

The exhibition was unusually fine and comparatively large. Mr. Coles, of Kokomo, made a fine display of carnations. The varieties shown were Genevieve Lord, Bradt and Crocker, the latter being especially fine. It was much praised by Mr. Coles, who declares it to be his favorite pink. The E. G. Hill Company exhibited roses, Liberty, Sunrise and White Lady. The latter is a tea hybrid similar in color to Pres. Carnot, but larger and a shade lighter. Sunrise is said to be a seedling of Perle, with very dark, almost bronze foliage, and a color approaching orange, otherwise resembling the parent. Their carnation display consisted of Avondale, Marquis, America and Elma. The latter is a new, promising shell pink which originated with Baer & Smith, of Indianapolis.

They also had in their display a fine vase of John Hartje's new chrysanthemum, Golden Beauty.

The South Park Floral Company showed a vase of Bridesmaids of well known New Castle quality. Bertermann Brothers had a vase of carnations in varieties which were beautiful and a table of pot plants admirably arranged. An immense cyclamen plant, several orchids in bloom and quite a number of foliage plants were specially noticeable in their display. Henry Riemann had a similar display. Most prominent on his table was a vase of a promising pink carnation seedling and several specimen plants of Gloire de Lorraine begonias. He also had several plants of Cypripedium insigne, quite a specialty of his, and a very fine plant of Phoenix Canariensis. As usual the Smith & Young Company showed Marie Louise violets that would be hard to beat.

The judges, Messrs. Hartje, Nelson and Junge, awarded certificates of merit to E. G. Hill's new rose, White Lady, and Stuart & Haugh's new carnation, Avondale. They also made honorable mention of W. W. Cole's display of carnations, Bertermann Brothers' general display; Henry Riemann's begonias and phoenix, of roses exhibited by the South Park Floral Co., and of violets exhibited by the Smith & Young Co. Boulevard Planting in Chicago.

On November 27, 1900, the park authorities in the city of Chicago awarded a contract for the landscape embellishment of the middle parkway on Douglas boulevard. This improvement has been under consideration for nearly two years and six local landscape architects have, in the meantime, made one or more plans each, until finally the design furnished by P. S. Peterson & Son was accepted. The money payment called for by the contract is $10,850.

Douglas boulevard extends west from Douglas Park, on what would be Fourteenth street, for over a mile to Hamlin avenue, where it enters a small park which is soon to be the site of an ornamental bronze fountain costing $15,000 set in the center of the lawn space. From here the boulevard goes directly north for another mile to Garfield Park. Unfortunately the term "boulevard" is used so indiscriminately in Chicago that often a narrow street which is swept by park employes is so designated. However, this one is 250 feet wide. The sidewalks along the abutting property are eight feet wide; then there is a grass plat of fifteen feet, with a row of six-inch elm trees. The central lawn, 125 feet in width, is flanked by forty-foot drives, one being asphalt and the other macadam, thus offering a choice of roadbeds. This boulevard is to be the gem of the West Park system and the class of residences already built there are of a character in keeping with the improvement.

Compared with Drexel boulevard, Douglas is longer, fifty feet wider and the soil is much richer. There was a great diversity of ideas as to the advisability of running walks down the center lawn, through the plantations, in addition to those along the lot line. Formal walks make it necessary to plant in a very rigid, monotonous manner and many of the designs make no provision whatever for paths.

The consensus of opinion, however, was that a continuous scheme of walks was demanded, so as to relieve the congestion at the two parks which it connects, and that in certain blocks the paths should be supplied with seats. Of the sixteen blocks into which the work has been divided, there is an equal number planned with regular and irregular walks. The paths are in places so arranged as to conform with the short cuts which the public makes in taking the elevated or surface roads. The total improvement has been considered as a unit and as many varied effects presented as would be consistent with harmonious treatment. The styles vary from strictly formal through all intermediate stages to purely rural and in certain sections the predominating idea is to obtain a special effect for a particular season; however, there has been interspersed into every landscape sorts with different characteristics so as to always produce a pleasing view.

The material called for in the plan ranges from herbaceous plants, through a great variety of shrubbery from one to ten feet high, to the thirty-five foot trees eight inches in diameter. Over 10,000 plants are called for in the specifications and the contract requires local, acclimated nursery stock and the selection embraces a comprehensive arboretum of everything hardy and of merit in this region. The sizes are in every instance to be the best for both immediate and permanent effect. Owing to the difficulty of making evergreens do well in the city none have been planned for. In a few blocks reservations have been made for hedging plants, though for the present such material will not be planted. According to certain standards in landscape work variegated or purple-leaved shrubs are not favored; however, a limited number in three blocks have been used in formal individual beds instead of foliage plants. A large assortment of perennials is to be used in a similar manner.

The formal block illustrated is from the north and south section, at Twelfth street, and is the most simple of any in treatment. This walk is fourteen feet wide, with trees set back six feet and twenty-six feet apart down the row. These forty-six line trees are cork-barked elm, Ulmus racemosa, six inches in diameter and each one of them a selected specimen, uniform in every particular and as straight as a ramrod. All were planted with frozen ball of earth six feet across and three feet deep. No. 6 in the diagram, the shrubbery at each end, is prickly ash, which serves the double purpose of being ornamental and keeps the corners from being cut across. This, like most of the blocks, is 600 feet long and unfortunately had the cross-walks all in before the planting was begun. The oval group in the center relieves the severity of the line and hides the cross-walks. No. 2 consists of catalpas in bush form, ten feet high; No. 3 is Russian mulberry six feet high, planted on the outer edge; No. 4 is paniced dogwood three feet high, along the mall and under the elms, and the four points of the oval are green barberry three feet in height.

The other block illustrated lies west of Kedzie avenue and is selected to show the opposite extreme. It is the only block of natural treatment where two walks are used; these are eight feet wide and after uniting continue ten feet in width. Aside from the four cross-walks, all the paths are pleasingly curved to harmonize with the location of the trees and shrubbery and were planned to be inconspicuous and as little in evidence as possible. Two European lindens stand as sentinels at the entrance. No. 3, are specimen thorn bushes planted individually. No. 14, are canoe birch. All the mass planting is to have the outline cut in a waving manner, with the sod turned under between the shrubbery. Nos. 5 to 9 inclusive are various kinds of willows, with the ring-leaved willow in the center, and are surrounded by low-growing varieties such as the dwarf golden and Rosemary. No. 2 is a large Morrow's honeysuckle; No. 12 is a group of aralia; No. 15 consists of four Rouen lilacs; No. 18 is Hydrangea paniculata, and No. 21 Syringa josikæa.

Among the rare trees called for elsewhere in the plantations are found Schwedler's maple, the Tartarian maple, the rubicunda horse chestnut, beech, hornbeam, caragana, katsura, Kentucky coffee tree, bronze ash, ginkgo and sycamore, with several kinds of birch, oak, flowering cherry and flowering crab. One block contains thirteen varieties of elm, another five kinds of sumach, including Osbeck's from Japan. In shrubbery use is made of Celastrus Orlax, Euonymus alatus, Euonymus Hamiltonianus, Rhodotypos kerrioides, Lonicera Morrowii, Shepherdia argentea, Tamarix Odessana, Elaeagnus argentea, Elaeagnus angustifolia and Rosa Gallica. Four kinds of lignustrum are used, eight of cornus and seven of viburnum. Some of the large trees moved with frozen ball of earth are fifteen hackberry, thirty-five Norway maples, twenty-four lindens, averaging five inches in diameter; some six-inch English elms and eight-inch Gleditschia inermis.

Wm. A. Peterson, the manager of Peterson's Nursery, who prepared the plans for this important improvement, says that two days after they took the contract their engineer and a force of men were in the field and from that time until the ground froze up, the Saturday before Christmas, they planted 8,000 trees and shrubs, outlined the edges of the paths by lifting a strip of sod, dug very large holes for the shrubs and seven-foot holes, two feet at least in depth, for all the trees. All these excavations were filled with black soil. During the last two weeks they have planted with frozen ball 160 trees. Four days' work next spring will complete the planting. All of the material came out of the contractor's own nursery and Mr. Peterson takes pride in the fact that many of the varieties are unobtainable elsewhere. The work is covered by a three-year guarantee with heavy bond. Mr. Peterson says that they are prepared to take two more similar contracts for execution before spring with material from their nursery.

CARNATIONS.

CARNATION QUEEN LOUISE.

The accompanying illustration shows a house 20x210 feet at the establishment of J. L. Dillon, at Bloomsburg, Pa. This house is planted with Carnation Queen Louise, the white variety with which Mr. Dillon captured the first prize for 100 blooms at the exhibition in connection with the Buffalo meeting of the American Carnation Society. The photograph from which this illustration was reproduced was taken at Christmas, for which special demand it supplied 2,700 blooms of the first quality. As this is one of the newer varieties, it is interesting to note that in December this house afforded 8,872 blooms and since planting in time, September 15, it has produced 20,800 flowers.

A CONNECTICUT CULTURAL METHOD.

I have had very good success with carnations and believe that my methods of culture will interest many growers. The compost should be fairly rich, about one-third rotted cow manure and two-thirds soil. As the heap is being composted, add the necessary lime and bone meal, at least fifty pounds of the bone and half a barrel of air-slaked lime to enough compost to fill a 100-foot house.

Have the plants well cleaned before planting them in the house, as cleaning them afterwards gives them a great setback. After the house is planted and the paths are swept out, give the benches a thorough watering, one which will wet the soil clear through, and from then on never allow the soil to become dry, that is, dry enough so as to crumble in the hands like bread crumbs. The soil should be moist at all times, as carnation plants do not take kindly to being soaked and then allowed to get pretty dry before another soaking; this alternate soaking and drying causes many plants to die of stem rot. I keep my soil moderately wet, even if I have to do some watering every day. I also give my plants a good, stiff spraying at least once in two weeks. This washes the dust from their lungs, as more or less dust is bound to gather in them, and keeps red spider in check.

At the first of November I give my plants at least two good manure waterings, waiting only four or five days after giving the first one before giving the second application. No more fertilizer need be given until the middle of January or first of February and then give them four or five doses of it, one week apart, and the plants will be in fine shape to hold all summer. The quantity and quality of bloom amply repays for all time and trouble and by applying the stimulant at the time I speak of I find it helps my crops in for Christmas and Easter.

I never bench my plants with any buds on them and hope to strike crops just right for Christmas and Easter. To get plenty of flowers for these two periods I find my plants must all be housed before September 1 and have a night temperature of 50° to 54° and a day-time heat of 65° to 70°. I keep them at that right through the season, although I sometimes increase this temperature 5° ten days before Christmas to hurry up some extras.

The top of the soil should be lightly scratched over at least every four to five weeks. Work the soil away from the plants, not up against them. In the summer, when the sun is red hot, I keep my houses well shaded, and when loosening the soil break off any dead or dry branches that may be on any of the plants.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND VERY EVENLY BALANCED.—TRADE FAIRLY ACTIVE AND SKIES BRIGHT.—NEW PRESIDENT OF HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY TAKES UP REINS OF MANAGEMENT.—A VERY EXCELLENT EXHIBITION.—VARIOUS NOTES OF TRADE INTEREST.—JOTTINGS HERE AND THERE.

Business has taken up the even tenor of its way and, with sunny skies, there is nothing sensational in the way of demand that cannot be supplied and nothing in the way of supply that cannot be taken care of, if values are not too ambitious. Roses are moving along fairly well, all varieties finding a market at average rates. Carnations are coming in more rapidly, with downward tendency of prices. Violets are blooming heavily and have got down to rock-bottom figures but are of excellent quality as compared with the average as found in this market. Retailers are fairly busy and it would seem that the customary mid-winter business is well under way with a prospect of its continuance without interruption until Ash Wednesday blooms on the calendar.

At the January meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society President-elect Hadwen took his seat and delivered his inaugural address, which was mainly of a reminiscent character. The committee appointed some months ago to consider the matter of a revision of the constitution and by-laws, presented a report recommending a radical change in the method of government which has prevailed up to the present time. After considerable discussion the matter was assigned to the October meeting, many of the members desiring time to deliberate on so important a move. The new constitution, which has been prepared with the utmost care to conserve all interests in the society, is likely to make friends during the intervening time, as its provisions become better understood.

The usual January exhibition of primulas was held on the same day. Chinese primroses were very well done but no special improvement in strain over those shown in recent years was apparent. Primula stellata was not quite equal to some former shows. Obconica was seen to especial advantage, the size, substance and range of tint in the flowers being materially improved, and they were much admired. Oakes Ames received a certificate of merit for Cypripedium James Garfield (C. tonsum var. superbus × C. regale) and honorable mention for Cypripedium James K. Polk (C. Chamberlainianum × C. nitens). J. E. Rothwell was given honorable mention for Cypripedium Longwoodense (C. Leeanum var. Masarelianum × C. Charlesworthii) and showed also an interesting set of six Faireanum hybrids. Jos. Tailby & Son showed a sport from Gloire de Lorraine begonia, with flowers measuring from two to two and one-half inches in diameter, which they have named Gloire de Wellesley, and N. D. Pierce brought a vase of his new pink carnation, Beau Ideal, a seedling from Daybreak, which promises to be a fine commercial variety.

R. and J. Farquhar & Co. have moved into their new quarters at 6 and 7 South Market street, and now have the finest seed establishment ever opened in Boston, the salesrooms being on the ground floor and very spacious. They have signaled their new departure by the introduction of a new race of American hybrid gladioli, a colored plate of which adorns the title page of their catalogue.

The Eastern Chemical Company has put upon the market a new nozzle for automatically mixing and distributing Bordeaux mixture and other spraying materials according to gauge and it is meeting with favor.

R. M. Grey has recently returned from Cuba, his investigations and experiments in the hybridizing of sugar cane having been very successful.

DEMAND FALLS OFF SOMEWHAT AND VARIOUS PRICES PREVAIL IN WHOLESALE MARKETS.—WHAT THE LEGITIMATE DEALER IS REQUIRED TO PAY.—MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—CRAIG ON THE ADONIS DEAL.—A GOOD DECORATION.—NOTES.

There has been a little lull the past week but as the crops are a bit off the accumulation of flowers is not at all serious. It is astonishing, however, how quick stock does pile up, or perhaps we had better say how very quick some of the middlemen lose what little portions of sand they possess. Carnations, the past two weeks, have ruled high; nothing worth looking at or that would be considered by the poorest fakir has been quoted at less than $2. Yet very nice looking carnations were offered, by the curbstone merchants last Saturday evening for 15 cents per dozen or two dozen for 25 cents. Liberty roses, of which the very lowest grade has been selling for 15 cents, were also to be seen, very fair flowers, offered at 50 cents per dozen. Get all you can from one set of buyers and take what the other class offers seems to be the modern way, these days, of wholesaling flowers. Prices have receded a trifle. Beauties, specials, still bring $8 to $9 per dozen, with the lower grades selling at from $2 to $5. Brides and Bridesmaids bring $10 to $15; Liberties from $1.50 to $4 for the best, per dozen. Carnations range from $1.50 to $5 for the specials, the grade at $2 to $3 being the most popular. Romans and narcissi bring $2 to $3, lily of the valley $3 to $4, violets $1 to $1.50 per hundred for the doubles and 50 cents to 75 cents for the singles. They are becoming a little more plentiful, which, with the easing up in the price, will help their sale. Some very nice azaleas are now to be seen in the store windows, Harris, Craig and Becker all having them nicely in flower.

The meeting of the Florists' Club last Tuesday evening was poorly attended. After the routine business and election of several members, Ernst Hemming read a very interesting paper on herbaceous plants for florists' use. This showed careful preparation, and gave valuable information on a subject that should interest most florists, particularly those who retail their products themselves. The subject for the February meeting is the best ferns for florists' use; the reasons will be given by Mr. Cox. At the March meeting W. P. Craig is to tell us all about the carnation convention.

Hugh Graham recently put up a very fine decoration for a private ball held in Horticultural Hall. All the accessories of handsome furnishings were made good use of and large quantities of stock were consumed, two walls of the hall being covered by a drapery of wild smilax. Palms, ferns, rubbers, bay trees, begonias and azaleas were used, together with much smilax, carnations, American Beauty and Queen of Edgely roses, white lilac, lily of the valley, hyacinths and other material.

Robert Craig has returned from the west, where he has been spending the last two weeks. On being told that the statement that he is one of the gentlemen who paid $5,000 for the new carnation, Adonis, was looked upon by some to have a sort of Lawson flavor, he said that he did not care what people thought, the figures named are genuine and that they have since been offered $2,000 for their bargain, which shows what a truly great variety the new comer is.

The Queen of Edgely rose was shipped across the continent to San Francisco and carried very well, the flowers having the appearance of just being cut, so the amateurs who received them said. Each one was supplied with a rubber capped tube in which the water was only about half exhausted. They were seven days on the way. Those shipped to England at the same time did not carry so well, most of the petals falling when removed from the box.

J. G. Eisele, of Dreer's, is off to Europe, sailing last Saturday on the Fuerst Bismarck. K.

TRADE IS LIFELESS AND WHOLESALE VALUES ARE TENDING DOWNWARD.—PROSPECT FOR ACTIVE DEMAND A LITTLE LATER.

Business since New Year's is very flat and prices are tending downwards steadily. Carnations and violets are suffering from over-production for the time being. Roses hold their position a little better because the crop is only moderate. History, however, teaches us that from January 1 to January 15 little can be expected; the latter date opens the active season and demands more nearly equal the supply. Just at present the receipts of carnations are excessive and, a light demand being experienced, the result has been a slaughter in prices such as has been rarely seen in this market. Violets are excellent in quality but are coming in so rapidly that they sink of their own weight and the street man regulates the price.

At Prospect Park, Brooklyn, they are anticipating a great show of orchids in the immediate future. Frank Segnitz is the gardener in charge of the collection, and D. C. Thompson is the head gardener.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—BUSINESS STILL ON THE MOVE BUT SUPPLIES ARE LARGE AND PRICES GO TO PIECES.—CARNATIONS GENERALLY GOOD.—ARMOUR FUNERAL CALLS FOR MANY FLOWERS.—MEETING OF THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—ANDREW MILLER RETIRES AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS ON STATE STREET.—PERSONAL DOINGS AND VARIOUS JOTTINGS OF INTEREST.

Trade has been fairly active during the current week but, despite the apparently unfavorable, cloudy weather, there have been large supplies in all lines, sufficient to force prices down to a comparatively low level. Beauties continue to be very good and are of such abundant supply that $6 has been a very good price, and a good many sales of nice stock have gone on record at $4 per dozen. In tea roses there were vastly too many, except of the choicest grades, which continue to sell pretty well. Carnations are improved in quality and it is quite probable that at no time was the supply ever better than it has been in the last few days. The blooms are large and the length of stem is all that could be asked for in the cut of nearly every grower, but, nevertheless, prices have come down to such an extent that it is quite probable that growers who sell on consignment will be in fault-finding moods when they read their return slips. As a general thing, the desired quantity of violets can be obtained anywhere and frequently at such prices as the purchasers are willing to give. The funeral of P. D. Armour, on Wednesday cleaned up the market in very fair style on a great many lines of goods. Mr. Armour was not only one of the richest, but one of the most widely known and highly esteemed men in the country, and the floral tokens at his obsequies were as profuse as anything which has ever been seen in this country. Every one of the leading florists in the city had all the work he could handle for this occasion and the demise redounded considerably to the profit of the florists, if to the irreparable loss of the community in general.

One thing which made the wholesalers much trouble during the holiday rush was the carelessness with which buyers made out orders. One prolific source of uncertainty is the telegraphic order for "one each brides maids perles," for that is the way the message comes, without punctuation or capitalization. The wholesaler is never certain whether both Brides and Bridesmaids are wanted or only the latter. In telegraphing the word Bridesmaid should never be written in full, and where both Maids and Brides are wanted the Maids should be mentioned first. Observance of this rule will avoid confusion and frequent misunderstanding and loss.

W. N. Rudd experienced the worst half hour of his life on Monday. He was at his office in Mt. Greenwood Cemetery when he was called home by telephone with the announcement that his little daughter Phyllis, had taken strychnine. It took nearly thirty minutes for Mr. Rudd to make the trip to Blue Island and it seemed to him as though transportation had never been so slow as then. Prompt medical assistance brought the child around all right but it was a close call, and needless to say, there will be no poison in the reach of children in the Rudd residence hereafter.

The Horticultural Society of Chicago met on Tuesday, E. G. Uihlein presiding, and re-elected President Wm. H. Chadwick, vice-presidents E. G. Uihlein, H. G. Selfridge and Ernst Wienhoeber, and executive committeemen, J. C. Vaughan, O. P. Bassett and G. L. Grant. The election of a secretary and treasurer, directors and two new members of the executive committee were all postponed until the April meeting. Four new members were elected, none of them in the trade.

Andrew Miller has retired from the Central Floral Company, having sold his interest to his partner, Charles Schneider. He intends to engage in railroading on the Illinois Central, hoping thereby to benefit his health, which has not been of the best for several seasons past. Mr. Miller has been in the cut flower business on State street since boyhood, and in his experience wonderful changes have taken place in the trade.

Last Saturday evening fire destroyed the house and furnishings at the home of George H. Bowditch, who has charge of an American Beauty section for Bassett & Washburn at Hinsdale. Mr. Bowditch has been married only eight weeks, and his employers and fellow employes came to his rescue with a purse which did much toward starting him up in house-keeping again, and for which he is very grateful.

At the Guardian Angel Orphan Asylum they are preparing to build a new propagating house and are contemplating adding considerably to their range of glass in the near future. They are just now introducing their pink sport of Armaziody, which is known as Guardian Angel. They find it the most profitable carnation they grow because it is so prolific, and they will have about 25,000 cuttings to give to the trade this year.

The Florists' Club's carnation show next Friday, January 18, is to be held in the wholesale district, in a hall on one of the upper floors at 47 Wabash avenue. The secretary has asked exhibits of all the leading growers and nearly all the new sorts will be shown. At 11:45 the club will go to Joliet, over the Rock Island, as guests of the Chicago Carnation Company, reaching Chicago again at 3:45.

The National Society of Horticultural Inspectors was organized at a meeting in Chicago January 4. All persons officially connected with the inspection of nurseries and other horticultural property in the United States and Canada are eligible to membership. Professor S. A. Forbes, State Entomologist of Illinois, was elected president.

On Wednesday Hauswirth made a large amount of very good floral work for the funeral of Mrs. Tripp, wife of the manager of the Auditorium Hotel, where Mr. Hauswirth is located. A particularly handsome piece was a spray of mignonette, one of Morning Glory carnations and another of Genevieve Lord and adiantum.

E. W. Marland has been engaged to take charge of the carnation section, comprising about 36,000 square feet, at the Weiland & Risch establishment at Evanston. Mr. Marland has served under C. W. Johnson at Mt. Greenwood for several years, but lately had been with Walter Retzer & Co.

Louis Wittbold has been confined to his room this week with the grippe. His physician tells him that it is necessary to be careful, as a great many cases of pneumonia have been developed from mild attacks of the prevalent disease and that pneumonia is unusually fatal this year.

E. C. Amling has just completed his first year in his enlarged quarters, and he is very well pleased with the results, as, for instance, he figures that his Christmas business was 115 per cent ahead of the Christmas of 1899, when he was located at 51 Wabash avenue.

Edgar Sanders, chairman of the Galveston relief committee, has received a check for $15 from C. H. Kazman, treasurer of the Kentucky Society of Florists. Mr. Sander's local collections amounted to $558 10.

Anton Then, John Felke, C. M. Dickinson and Edgar Sanders went over into Indiana the latter part of the week to visit Dorner, Hill and other good growers of carnations.

The Western Window Glass Jobbers' Association advanced prices twelve and one-half per cent at a meeting in Chicago January 3, a penalty to be exacted for price cutting.

The five Kreitling brothers will have a bowling tournament with an "all star" team at Boyes' alley, Kedzie avenue and Twelfth street, January 13, commencing at 7:30 p. m.

Intoxicated boys broke considerable glass of the Haas greenhouses in Anstin on Saturday night. Justice Schott added $10 each to the expense of their celebration.

Meyer Heller was up from New Castle this week placing orders for the material for a range of ten new houses 26x265 for the South Park Floral Company.

Flint Kennicott has been confined to his home for several days, and is suffering from a combined attack of grippe, bronchitis and rheumatism.

Lee Walz was called to Cincinnati last Saturday by the death of his brother Fred, who was one of the most popular growers of that city.

Many of the growers have had their forces more or less reduced during the past ten days by the prevalence of the grippe.

Louis G. Gresenz, of Bassett & Washburn's city wholesale store, welcomed a baby boy, his first, into his family this week.

The demise is chronicled of George Scott, superintendent of Elmwood Cemetery. Interment was on December 30.

John Zuck has been laid up with the grippe and his little daughter is very ill with scarlet fever.

Visitors: Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Eugene Dailedouze, Flatbush, N. Y.

GALION, OHIO.—Shortly after midnight on Christmas fire almost completely destroyed the greenhouse of Mrs. Louisa Faurot.

NO. CHELMSFORD, MASS.—J. W. & E. J. Trubey have opened a new establishment under the name of the Oak Hill Greenhouse.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—W. T. Hutchins will address the Lenox Horticultural Society on Saturday evening, January 19, on the sweet pea.

TREE cabbages ten feet high are produced in the island of Jersey and grown in cottage gardens there as fences. The stems, it is said, make good walking canes.

MANY florists report slow collections compared with January, 1900. Is it possible that the retail buyers have treated themselves to better Christmas decorations than their prosperity justified?

THE increased circulation and advertising patronage which has come to the AMERICAN FLORIST makes it imperative that contributors and advertisers mail their "copy" early. Matter must be in our hands on the Thursday before date of issue to insure insertion.

PHORMIUM TENAX and its variegated variety are said by writers in English papers to be quite hardy, standing several degrees of frost without harm.
It is stated that a plant of the varie-gated form which has been planted in the open for some years in the Isle of Wight has leaves six feet long and produces flower spikes upwards of eight feet in length.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Here is another dollar; put me down for the "FLORIST" another year. It has saved me many times that amount on purchases made from your advertisers. I will build in the early spring another house 20x100, and the more glass I have the more I need the "FLORIST." C. J. BURDELL.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Nathan D. Pierce, Norwood, R. I., registers new carnation, Beau Ideal, a seedling of Daybreak; flowers shell pink, two and one-half to three inches in diameter; full center, fringed, fragrant; habit upright; stems stiff; continuous bloomer.
Wm. J. STEVART, Sec'y.

American Carnation Society.

The following new carnations have been registered at the office of the secretary:

Anders Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind., registers Hoosier Maid, color pure white, medium to large size, two and one-half to three inches in diameter, very strong grower, with long heavy stems, strong calyx and has never shown diseases of any kind. Daybreak type.

William Hoffman, Pawtucket, R. I., registers The Challenger, color clear, bright scarlet, three to three and one-half inches in diameter, on strong, stiff stems and very prolific. Plant compact, rugged grower, producing cuttings freely, which root easily. Mr. Hoffman also registers Twentieth Century, color bright, light pink, unlike any other pink carnation, three and one-half to four inches in diameter, stiff stems and very free blooming, flower very full and deeply fringed.

The Vesey Greenhouse Benches.

Some knight of the gripsack with flor-icultural inclination must have been describing our system of greenhouse benches to his other customers. We can in no other manner account for the several letters we have received asking for a complete description thereof. As we have the most satisfactory and economical bench known and it not being generally adopted, we think a description may be interesting.

We raise the surface of the ground 12 to 24 inches as desired, and hold in place on each side of walk with 2-inch hemlock well coated with cement on the inside.
This bed is made level and firm. Upon this we lay 4-inch common drain tiles as close together as they can be laid. Above this we put hemlock side boards eight inches wide to hold the soil for plants, which is put upon the tiles. The boards above and below are held in position by 2x4 pieces at the ends of the boards and are stayed across at intervals of about four feet with strong galvanized wire.
This bed affords perfect drainage, a cool, airy bottom, lasts longer and holds a greater weight than do raised benches of wood with tile bottoms. A novice with the hose is safer on these benches than a skillful person on board bottoms. On these benches we grow roses from year to year, without replanting if desired, the 8-inch sideboards giving opportunity to add the mixed soil and manure mulch needed after the resting period, and the tile, while giving the cool bottom needed, prevents the roots from straying into mother earth.

Carnations planted on these benches grow luxuriantly and give a longer season than on the old board bench, and bloom fully as well if not better in midwinter. We at least are able to procure a higher class of blooms both from roses and carnations on these benches than we were able to get on the old style benches.
The cost of construction in this neighborhood is very little more than the cost of cypress benches built of 1-inch material.

Brick for the sides would probably be better than lumber, but there is so little to buy that it costs only a trifle to replace the lumber when necessary.

W. J. & M. S. VESEY.

The Preservation of Iron Pipe.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—About three years ago we put in about 3000 feet of 2-inch black pipe for heating our greenhouses with hot water, we now find that about one-half of our pipe is honeycombed and worn out and we must replace it. The pipe we use is wrought iron. It seems to us that this pipe has lasted a very short time and we would like you to inform us how to treat pipe so it will last longer.
We are buying some galvanized iron pipe for trial. Do you think it will last longer and would you advise us to use it? We have tried painting our pipes with lamp-black and oil, but it does not seem to last long. Last season we bought some asphaltum paint from a man who told us it would be just the thing for our pipes and we tried it on one house, with the result that as soon as we heated up the pipes the fumes almost killed the plants, so we have had to take the pipes all out of this house and burn this paint off. We would like you to tell us of something that would preserve the pipes and still not hurt the plants. If you recommend linseed oil and lamp-black, do you think it would hurt the plants to put it on now when we are firing? We want to put something on the pipes we burned to try and preserve them. Do you think cast iron pipe is better than wrought iron pipe for hot water? We use the open system, having expansions at each end of the runs of pipe. If you think cast iron pipe is better we would like you to let us know the best material to put it together with. Do any florists use lead, the same as they use in laying street pipes? We feel satisfied that there are a great many of the large establishments in the east that use 2-inch wrought iron pipe, the same as we do, and that there must be something that keeps them from rotting out so quickly. What should be the average life of black pipe and galvanized pipe?

R. N.

There must be something radically wrong, either with the water or with the surroundings, when 2-inch wrought iron pipe rusts through in three years. Even when unpainted it should last a dozen years, at least, under the ordinary unfavorable conditions in a greenhouse. If the trouble is due to the action of the water upon the interior of the pipe, the injury cannot be prevented by painting the outside. Everything considered, a paint made of oil and lamp-black is as good as can be used for greenhouse pipes. Cast iron pipe is more durable than wrought iron, but the extra trouble in making the joints, as well as in making changes or repairs, renders it less desirable, especially as 2-inch pipe is preferred to 4-inch.
Rust or cement joints are most commonly used with cast iron pipe. Black pipe kept well painted should last as long as unpainted galvanized pipe.

Heating a Greenhouse.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Will it be practicable to heat a greenhouse 20x100x8 feet, single slope to south of glass, by means of a flue around the three sides? The mercury sometimes drops to 10° and 20° below zero. The house is piped for hot water and I have always burned coal.

My difficulty is that coal is high and I have to haul it four miles up a rise of 600 to 800 feet. On the other hand wood is near by and may be had for $1.50 per cord cut and piled on the lot. Could it be arranged to have the fire heat the water and then the flue? Should not want to sit up nights to fire. E. H. A.

A house 100 feet long is too large to heat with a flue as proposed. For long houses it is customary to have an arch at each end, and run the flues to the middle of the house under the center bench and then carry it back to the chimney, which is near the furnace. Under the conditions named it might be desirable to combine the flue with hot water. Hitchings & Co. make a saddle boiler that can be used in this way. The flue could be used for one end of the house as described, and hot water pipes could be carried under the side benches and used to heat the coils at the farther end.

OBITUARY.

PHILIP CROWLEY.

Philip Crowley, F. L. S., F. Z. S., for years chairman of the fruit and vegetable committee of the Royal Horticultural Society of England, died December 20. He was a specialist in decorative plants, chrysanthemums and orchids.

KARL EHMANN.

Karl Ehmann, of St. Matthews, Ky., died of peritonitis on January 4. He was a native of Stuttgart, Germany, born in 1870. He came to this country in 1887 and has been with Nanz & Neuner ever since. He had charge of the rose and shipping department and has made many friends among those who visited their nurseries and greenhouses. He leaves a widow with three small daughters. Mr. Ehmann's father is the royal inspector of the King of Wuerttemberg's gardens at Stuttgart, and is well known to European florists.

FRED. S. WALZ.

It is with deepest regret that the many friends of Fred. S. Walz, of Cincinnati, will learn of his sudden death, on January 4. The sad event came so suddenly that it is all the more painful to those who had his confidence. He had been, apparently, in good health but on New Year's eve he was taken ill with a complication of diseases in which a paralytic stroke was a principal factor. His death followed in four days. Mr. Walz was 49 years of age and leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters to survive him. He was born on Bourbon Island, Africa, where his father had charge of a French noble's estate. In 1865 he came to America and settled down at the place where he has been located ever since. Mr. Walz was an enthusiastic canna and chrysanthemum raiser, some very good varieties of the former being the result of his labors at crossing. Of chrysanthemums his best known seedlings are the Queen, H. L. Sunderbruch and B. Fleischman, but there are a host of others. Mr. Walz served for some time upon the C. S. A. seedling committee for Cincinnati. The funeral took place on January 6, the Cincinnati florists attending in a body. The obsequies were performed at the German Protestant church, the services being conducted by Rev. Schenk. In speaking of the deceased he said that it was the judgment of those who knew him best that his life was simple, truthful and upright. The floral tributes were very fine and were too numerous to describe separately. Interment was at Spring Grove Cemetery. H. S.

TAUNTON, MASS.—H. F. Burt will address the progressive horticultural society at Springfield, February 1, his subject being the dahlia.

THE SEED TRADE.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLGIANO,
Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn.,
Sec'y and Treas.

C. P. BRASLAN is in Kansas City enroute to Omaha and Minneapolis.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. W. Kiley, H. M.
Claire, B. Suzuki and L. L. May and wife.

IMPORTATIONS of fern halls are opening up badly, quite a percentage being damaged.

SEED potato dealers anticipate high prices for choice stock when active selling begins.

Six new varieties of celery, namely,
Ivory's Pink, Champion Solid White, Standard Bearer, Bibly Defiance, Veitch's Early Rose and Covent Garden Red, have been given awards of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society of England.

THE United States appraisers have in several cases recently advanced the valuations on seed importations. The New York custom house is supposed to be fixing values for the other ports. Seedsmen should ascertain the values set before presenting their invoices.

In a recent circular, Prof. A. S. Hitchcock, of the experiment station at Manhattan, Kansas, says there are five races of corn grown in this country on a commercial scale, viz: "dent," "sweet,"
"flint," "pop" and "soft" corns. The circular contains a description of each race.

SECRETARY WILSON, of the Agricultural Department, is quoted as saying that the free distribution of garden seeds is not a matter of particular pride with him, but is a duty he endeavors to discharge as directed by law. He states that the distribution soon to be made will be more expeditiously accomplished than previous ones.

J. H. KREBLAGE has retired from the presidency of the General Bulb Cultural Society, of Haarlem, Holland, a post which he has uninterruptedly held for forty years. Upon his retirement the members of the society presented Mr.
Krelage with a magnificent life-sized portrait, painted by the renowned Dutch artist, Haverman. The society when started in 1860, had about 200 members and nowadays has about 2,000, all interested in bulb culture, and twenty-eight local sections in the bulb district.
The president-elect is J. H. Wentholt, who recently made a trip through the United States.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—L. L. May & Co., are shipping on an average of three car loads of seeds, mostly packet goods, to eastern and southern points for distribution. From their Lakeland warehouses they are shipping onion sets in refrigerator cars to Texas and Pacific Coast points. These are all put up in bushel baskets with tight covers, as they are more easily handled and reach customers in better condition when shipped in that manner. Their retail catalogue is now being mailed to southern customers.

FELIX.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—In the Journal
Samuel Murray is quoted as estimating the volume of the florists' trade here at $100,000 a year, with a steady increase in sight.

PANSY.

Vaughan's "International" received the only reward for Mixed Pansies at the World's Fair. It is today better and more complete than ever. It contains the cream of the stock of ten Pansy specialists. There is no better mixture in existence, as all of the florists who saw or used it can tell you. Price, per oz., $10; 1/2 oz., $5; 1/4 oz., $1.50; trade pkt., 50c.

Vaughan's "Giant Mixture." If you want large flowers this is the mixture to buy. Oz., $4; 1/2 oz., $2; trade packet, 25c.

Chicago Parks Bedding Mixture, oz., $1; 1/4 oz., 30c; trade pkt., 10c.

Masterpiece. "This strain comes nearer to "Double Pansies" than anything ever introduced under that name. In reality the number of petals is the same as that in other Pansy flowers, but they are crimped and curled in such a fashion that the flowers appear double. The flowers are of enormous size - often three inches across, and the color variations and combinations are odd and striking. Per 1/2 oz. $1.50 trade pkt., 50c.

Pansy, separate sorts, see our florists' catalog.

VERBENA.

Vaughan's Best Mixture. Our grower, to whom we sent some of this mixture last year, reports it to be the best he has ever seen. We feel perfectly safe in stating that this mixture of Verbenas will eclipse every strain offered by any other house. Oz., $2; 1/4 oz., 50c; trade pkt., 25c.

SUCCESSFUL SELLERS

are the successful growers who advertise in

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE Eastern Nurserymen's Association will meet at Rochester, N. Y., January 16.

THERE is a very strong demand for ornamental nursery stock in the east, which is a factor in raising prices.

PROF. F. A. WAUGH recommends that nurserymen give careful trial to Americana stocks in the propagation of plums.

ALEXANDER PULLEN, Milford, Del., has failed. His assets are estimated at $8,000, which will not cover the liabilities by considerable.

THE forty-sixth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society will be held at Rochester, January 23 and 24. William C. Barry is president.

THE firm of F. H. Hunt & Co., the junior partner being John V. Sprague, has been formed to deal in nursery stock at Hammondsport, N. Y.

THE State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania will hold its forty-second annual meeting at Harrisburg, January 21 and 22. Prominent nurserymen and fruit growers will participate in the programme.

THE Storrs & Harrison Company predicts a general advance in prices on nursery stock for spring and fall delivery but states that the rise will be not at all sharp except upon such items of general scarcity as cherry and perhaps apple trees.

BREWER & STANNARD, Ottawa, Kans., dissolved partnership January 2, Eugene Brewer selling his interest in the nursery business to F. H. Stannard. Mr. Brewer will, however, retain his interest in the real estate and large orchards owned by the firm.

Covering Wounds in Trees.

An Antipodean authority says that the wounds made in the stems of trees by pruning or otherwise should have the wood preserved to keep it from decay till the new bark and wood extends over it, but he thinks gum shellac dissolved in alcohol far better than paint. He advises to put the shellac into a wide-mouthed bottle, cover it with alcohol, and let it stand twenty-four hours, when it may be applied with a swab or a brush. It serves, as nearly as may be, as the substance of bark; is not affected by heat or cold, or wet, or dry weather; and retains the sap up the cut, healing the wounds without a scar. Limbs should be cut off slantingly; never square on top, as is sometimes done.—Journal of Horticulture.

A Gardener's Reverie.

I often weary in my toil
Of cultivating nature's soil,
And copying in mimic lines
The lessons from her great designs.
And, longing for some wild retreat
Where I can view her works complete,
I seek a quiet shady glen,
Far from the gaze of other men,
And where wild flowers around me bloom
And leaves distill a sweet perfume.
Upon a mossy bank I rest
And feel content as nature's guest.
To my salute the trees respond,
Tall ferns display each graceful frond,
Cool mosses to my fingers cling,
The birds above me gayly sing,
While leaves and flowers and budding fruit Reveal to me in language mute
The animated soul within That makes all living things akin.
This great organic brotherhood,

With flowing veins and living blood,
Whose bodies, formed from lifeless clay,
An inward monitor obey,
Was in the great Creator's plan
Before the universe began,
And when the "stars together sang,"
And planets with the echo rang
From altars of eternal fire,
Obedient to their heavenly sire,
Winged spirits to each planet fled,
And by celestial instincts led Began to paint God's imagery Upon the lifeless scenery.
Though long defied by igneous rocks,
And oft overwhelmed by earthquake shocks,
Yet ever to their mission true
Each primate form they build anew,
Till as the ceaseless ages roll
Each world presents a pictured scroll,
With brighter tints from year to year,
As various forms of life appear.
For when the trilobite grew old
And crumbled into earthly mold
The higher forms of life await These elements in nascent state,
And while their instinct passions glow
New lives appear in embryo.
Thus by creations long fold
The plans are decked with green and gold,
The hills with forest trees are crowned,
The valleys with gay songs resound,
The air with insect wogs of life
And all the waters teem with life.
Yet all this living splendor brought
No conscious mind, no reasoning thought,
No souls for higher wisdom yearned,
From cruel wrongs no hearts were turned,
While savage beasts and birds of prey
With carnage strewed the fields so gay
And where the weak and timid lie
The leaves with crimson stains are dyed.
But soon a brighter dawn arose
Upon this scene of instinct woes.
To make Jehovah's plan complete
Pure spirits from his mercy seat
Were sent to choose the time and place

For advent of the human race
In search of elemental dust
Peculiar to their sacred trust,
They found perchance in some wild chasm
The heavenly type of protoplasm,
And there the man and wife were reared Secure, till they no longer feared
The lion's roar, the tiger's spring,
Or ruthless swoop of eagle's wing.
With angel face and form divine
And pleasing grace in every line,
With eyes whose magic beams impart
The secret language of the heart,
With conscious power of mind and soul
They held all others in control.
And yet we feel a tie that binds
All instinct life with human minds;
The oak that rears its head with pride,
The birds that in its branches hide,
The cattle resting 'neath its shade,
And we in His own image made
Are children of one father—God—
And kindred to the grassy sod.
From nature's heart all pulses flow
That give to every life its glow.
And nature's God, who rules above,
Bestows on all his equal love.
And when I reach my garden gate,
And all the beauty contemplate—
The elms that mark the boundary line,
The sheltering groups of larch and pine,
The slender birch with drooping spray,
And see the lofty maples sway
Their branches to the summer breeze,
How dear to me are all these trees
My hand hath planted, while I know
That in my care they thrive and grow
More true to nature than if fate
Had doomed them to their wild estate,
And tendrils of the latticed vine
Around my heart more closely twine
As I reflect that they are blind,
And when I see them grope to find A twig that instinct tells is near,
I'm not ashamed to drop a tear.

WE have already supplied a majority of the large growers with stock. Owing to its rapid growth and wonderful reproductive qualities our fern will be as profitable to florists as the Boston fern has been. At the same time NEPHROLEPIS WITTBOLDII has a robust yet graceful appearance which attracts public favor. It has the enduring qualities necessary to hold its popularity when subjected to the trying conditions of the average living rooms.

Many of the large growers of the Boston fern who received stock of NEPHROLEPIS WITTBOLDII when it was first sent out in September, are re-ordering in larger quantities, a sure evidence that it has found favor with them. Here is a sample order:

At Chicago.

The great national bowling tournament has been on in Chicago this week, and on Monday evening one of the local teams, the Lakeside, contesting for the championship of America, played Asmus and also Coulson, a former Buffaloian who has played on the florists' team. Asmus made 172, 169 and 184, a total of 525, and Coulson made 164, 192 and 195, a total of 551, but the team was far outside the money.

C. L. Seybold is a member of the Baltimore team participating in the big tourney and in his three games scored 167, 163 and 146, a total of 476.

With Philadelphia Gunners.

The Florists held their monthly shoot, on Tuesday, at the new grounds at Summerdale, near Frankford, the old grounds having been sold for building purposes. The conditions for the contest were: Fifty targets per man, twenty-five known and twenty-five unknown angles, handicap added to the score. At known angles E. C. Coleman was high, with twenty-two. Anderson made the top score at the unknown angles, breaking twenty-four. Dorp, Burton and Coleman were tied for first place, as all totals of fifty and over are tied. The scores follow:

At Philadelphia.

In the recent contests of the Florists' Bowling Club several new men have loomed up with aspirations, and some indications of developing championship form in time, among whom may be mentioned Archer, Dunham, Adelberger, Barnes and Bimmermann. The Florists are now probably the strongest bowling aggregation in Philadelphia, and to test this fond belief, they have issued a sweeping challenge to any club in Philadelphia or vicinity for a twenty man team match for the championship of Philadelphia, on neutral alleys, loser to pay all expenses. Washington's Birthday is mentioned as a good day to decide this contest. The Public Ledger says here is a good chance for the Century, Maennerchor, Columbia, or some other of the old time champions to come forward and take the conceit out of those raisers of the fresh and fragrant American Beauty.

The growers tried their hands in a match with the storekeepers on the alleys last Monday night. The growers are all right among themselves but when they get up against the real thing they are not in it. A perusal of the score will explain the difficulty, the storekeepers winning by 204 pins:

New Haven, Conn.

MEETING OF THE COMMERCIAL HORTICULTURISTS.—DISCUSSION ON THE MANY CHANGES IN BUSINESS CONDITIONS WITHIN THE MEMORY OF MEMBERS.

The New Haven Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting January 4 in Champion's foyer. Four papers were read by members of the society, on the "Change and Advancement of Cut Flowers in New Haven During the Last Thirty Years."

The first paper was read by Mr. Howe, who reviewed briefly the history of the rose and carnation. He said that great strides have been made in the culture of the rose during the past twenty years, resulting in a finer quality and greater quantity. It was the custom in former years to grow this flower in solid beds, but now the up-to-date grower uses raised benches. The rose of to-day needs careful attention. He then gave a list of the different varieties. He further said that the tendency was now to go back to the old style of beds but with improvements in construction. The modern greenhouse has large glass and but very little woodwork as against the small panes and heavy rafters of two decades ago.

The cultivation of carnations, too, has made rapid advances. The speaker said that there are so many varieties that come in and last but a short time that he would not attempt to name even the best of them. He said it was his belief, based on experiments and observations that the plants of earlier times were more hardy than those of to-day. Yet with the modern greenhouses, giving better light and ventilation, the flowers grown are very much better than those of other days.

A talk on violets was given by J. H. Slocum. In the course of his remarks he made the statement that twenty-five years ago 500 violets a day supplied New Haven. Now there are nine greenhouses on the east side given to the cultivation of this flower. Half of the product is used in this city and half shipped to New York, Hartford, Springfield and Boston. He also said that of all the men who go into violet raising ninety per cent fail, because the violet is the hardest of flowers to grow and the most unreliable.

Mr. Beach spoke very interestingly of the changes in the varieties of cut flowers called for by the public and read a list of those used during the last thirty years. John N. Champion spoke on the retail trade. He showed how the prices of cut flowers have risen and for this reason plants have come into demand. It was commented on that growers here are selling out of town and the retail dealers are buying from out of town growers.

ERIE, PA.—S. Alfred Baur had the decorations for the large Dennison-Walker wedding December 28 and did himself much credit.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Near Gresham John Rinella is building a greenhouse 12x120 which will be used for lettuce this winter and then for propagating stock for planting outdoors.

WORCESTER, MASS.—E. O. Orpet will address the Worcester County Horticultural Society on Thursday, January 17, on the raising of orchids from seed. His remarks will be illustrated by specimens and photographs.

BUSINESS IMPROVES AT NEW YEAR'S AND HAS BEEN GOOD SINCE.—A VERY ELABORATE INSTALLATION DECORATION.

Business was good at New Year's and is increasing on this day every year. The weather is still fine, with no snow yet, and trade continues briskly. Several of the florists were kept busy last Sunday decorating the city hall for inauguration day, which was on Monday. It never looked so well as it did this year. The mantel over the fireplace in the mayor's reception room was banked with adiantum and Gloire deLorraine begonias and made a handsome sight. Beautiful baskets of flowers artistically arranged were placed on the desks of the different heads of departments and several members of the board of aldermen were the recipients of beautiful floral designs. Patten had charge of the floral arrangements, while Whittet and Green had the plant end of it.

McManamon and C. C. Marshall have their windows full of fern balls and say they are selling well. A. M.

RICHMOND, IND.—Beach & Chessman have dissolved partnership, the firm now being Chessman & Schepman. F. W. Beach says that after thirty days rest he will be open for "any old thing, from president of a railroad to cashier of a bank."

PUEBLO, COLO.—G. Fleischer, after returning from a trip to England, Germany and France, has bought the Lakewood Greenhouses, formerly managed by Victor Johnson. The place has 10,000 feet of glass and a nice residence. Mr. Fleischer will build two more houses in the spring.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—At the annual meeting of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society the following officers were elected: President, James Blair; vice-president, Wm. G. Saltford; secretary, W. G. Gomersall; treasurer, Chas. H. Mitchell. The treasurer reports receipts of $965 25 and expenditures of $1029.89.

Do You Want a Few Fine Mrs. Fisher Carnations

for summer blooms? We have about 20.0 to spare in 2-inch pots and now ready for a shift. Write

GEO. A. KUHL, PEKIN, ILL.

Ethel Crocker

WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers.

With the largest stock of this variety grown by any one grower in the country I can fill your orders with carefully selected cuttings, at $4 per 100 or $30 per 1000. SEND FOR LIST OF OTHER VARIETIES.

Mobile, Ala.

Christmas trade was beyond our wild-est expectations, with stock only half sufficient to meet the demand. Every-body was busy and some of the trades-people are preparing to build more glass next season. C. Ravier built three new houses last summer and has some very fine roses in solid beds. Maria Minge has some splendid carnations, probably the best ever grown in this section. She has a new house 20x100 feet which is thoroughly modern in every respect, and attracts a great many visitors. She has been without a gardener for some weeks and finds the work of firing boilers, watering the stock in four houses, making up work and attending to decorations and store trade a heavy tax on one woman's energies. The people here are gradually learning to appreciate the value of the florist's services and trade is steadily growing, although with as much material as lies at the householders' door here, people are slower to call on the florist than they are in more northerly cities. Last month there were two halls, a number of receptions, cotillions and several dinners to cheer the florists up.

M.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—Thomas Franks is building a fine six-room cottage costing $2,000.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL.—At Joseph Heinel's new range everything is in the finest of condition, with roses and carnations looking unusually well. He will have splendid crops.

LINCOLN, NEB —Trade holds up remarkably well, especially shipping to the west. Brides and Bridesmaids are very good and plentiful despite the cold, cloudy weather.

TRADE GOOD SINCE THE OPENING OF THE NEW CENTURY—MUCH STOCK SHIPPED IN BECAUSE OF SHORT LOCAL SUPPLY.—VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST.

New Year's trade was very good, but seems to become less from year to year. Since the advent of the century there has been a good, steady demand for all flowers and prices have kept up well. The weather has been quite favorable and the cut fairly good, although most houses are now off crop. A great many flowers are shipped in here from Milwaukee, Chicago and Joliet, our own growers not producing nearly enough. Country trade is very good, a large portion of it being for funeral purposes, with an occasional party and a few weddings, all of which combine to pay coal bills.

L. L. May and his nephews, W. T. May and F. W. May, have been called to Toronto by the serious illness of a brother and father. FELIX.

Albany, N. Y.

BUSINESS SLACKS UP A LITTLE BUT THE LEGISLATURE AND SOCIAL EVENTS MAKE TRADE FOR SOME DEALERS.

Business is quieter than a week ago and the trade is now experiencing something of the slump that usually follows the holiday rush. The largest social event of last week was the charity ball on the evening of January 4. H. G. Eyres had charge of the floral decorations, for which he received many compliments. The decorations consisted mostly of kentias, ferns, Easter lilies, azaleas and laurel roping.

All those who expressed their opinions of trade incident to the convening of the legislature said that their business on that day was excellent. Whittle Brothers reported that the amount was away ahead of last year. Eyres wore a most satisfied look when the subject was broached and F. A. Danker was positive that his New Year's trade was three times as large as that of any New Year's for the past two seasons. R. D.

Norway Large Commercial White Carnation.

We are pleased to announce to the trade that we have in Norway a commercial white that combines size with productiveness, and therefore must of necessity be a profitable money making carnation. It is exceptionally healthy and vigorous in growth, is not subject to spot, and is entirely free from rust. Stem is always strong at any season of the year. Flowers open rapidly, and is a keeper of the first water. In short it is the white carnation the trade has been looking for for a long time. We recommend it as the best money making white carnation ever offered.

It is so distinct that every grower will need it. It is the best keeper of all the dark varieties; a strictly high grade flower that sells at sight.

Price for the above two varieties $1 50 per doz., $10 per 100, $75 per 1000. Ready February 15th.

BUSINESS BRISK AND ON A STEADY LEVEL WHICH PROMISES TO CONTINUE.—JOTTINGS OF DOINGS HERE AND THERE.

The past week's business shows a large improvement on the preceding one. Monday brought this week in with good trade, which is a fair sign that the activity will continue through. Stock has dropped in price so that business is becoming more settled. Roses and carnations are in good supply. Bridesmaids are still overabundant but the stock is the finest seen for a long time.

A stroll through the houses of Wm. Donaldson & Co. finds everything in good order. Here some extra fine Bradt, Joost, Daybreak and Lawson were observed. Mr. Donaldson intends propagating Mrs. Lawson largely, as it has made a fine showing. James Souden, who is in charge, is pleased to show visitors through his well kept houses at all times. He reports Liberty as doing fairly well.

A. S. Swanson reports his Christmas trade good. His store was the most lavishly decorated of all, and Mr. Swanson takes pride keeping it thus.

C. Johnston, of S. E. Olson Co., reports Christmas trade very good, a great sale on ferneries, which were preferred to cut flowers.

E. Nagel & Co. are displaying a finelot of blooming plants, ferns and azaleas in their window, which make a very pretty show.

Will. A. Desmond, formerly with Miss Whitted, has accepted a position with Wm. Donaldson & Co. C. F. R.

SWARTHMORE, PA.—John D. Erisiman has bought the Richard S. Dare greenhouses and lot 148x258.

STAFFORD SPRINGS, CONN.—Frank Bazine has resigned his position as grower for the Stafford Floral Company and has been succeeded by Henry Lingel, of Elmira, N. Y. Mr. Wyning is the manager of the place, which is now devoted exclusively to carnations.

TRADE VERY GOOD AFTER CHRISTMAS WITH STOCKS SHORT IN MANY LINES.—NOTES OF INTEREST HERE AND THERE.

The week between the holidays was very good, with stock scarce, and New Year's trade was eighty per cent better than last year. This day is proving a large factor to the retail trade. Several stores had to close as they could not get flowers enough to sell. Good flowering plants were easily disposed of but they were so well cleaned up at Christmas that few good plants were seen. The shortage on Beauties and Liberties kept them up to Christmas prices, and not enough to supply the would-be purchasers at that. Of the teas, Meteors had first call at $3 and $4 a dozen, with Bridesmaids and Brides next in demand. Carnations were in good supply but the flowers were not as large as at Christmas. Violets were of excellent quality. A box from Vair, of Barrie, which contained a few hundred, were a pleasure to the eye, the best seen this season. Lily of the valley is very scarce. Harrisii and callas are becoming more plentiful, and are very welcome for design work.

Manton Brothers are cutting some fine blooms of Cattleya Trianae and Eucharis Amazonica.

John H. Dunlop, who was laid up for several weeks with appendicitis, is better again.

Grobba & Wandry have several new seedling ferns which look very promising.

Jennings, of Concord avenue, has the first sweet peas of the season.

F. Duffort is sending in some fine violets and Primula obconica. H. G. D.

MUSCATINE, IA.—At two o'clock on the morning of January 2, the greenhouse at John C. Miller's was damaged by fire. The loss approximated $300.

TRADE GOOD AND TRADESPEOPLE ALL PROSPEROUS.—A VISIT TO SOME UP TO DATE PLACES.—CARRIED OVER GRAFTED ROSE PLANTS.

The holiday trade proved a record breaker, surpassing all expectations, and the usual dull spell generally experienced during the first part of January has in no wise come to pass, both Mr. Dallas and Mr. Cuttle reporting a great trade all along the line. Funeral work of a high order has kept Mr. Dallas unusually busy during the last few days. It was my first visit to Mr. Dallas' North Willow street establishment, and it was worth my while. The seven houses, comprising about 30,000 feet of glass, are models of their kind. Iron rafters, iron posts, cement walks and the most improved solid beds were used. The houses were built to last, and last they certainly will. Here are as fine a lot of Brides and Bridesmaids as I have yet seen, the stock being grafted, some two and some four years old. One cannot help questioning the advisability of replanting every year, as it is generally done. Carnations do equally well here, three large houses being given to their cultivation. Among the pinks, Ethel Crocker and Frances Joost are decidedly in the lead, The Marquis and Lawson being close seconds. White Cloud and Flora Hill do finely, and for "shorts" Lizzie McGowan still earns her board. Crane and Red Jacket do well for reds. One house is given to violets, both the Imperial and Marie Louise being grown to perfection.

At W. M. Cattle's things were equally interesting. The plant consists of nine well built, modern houses, where roses, carnations and violets are doing remarkably well. His monster rose house, 327 feet long, is especially interesting.

R. S. Rasmussen has dispensed with his retail business and is giving his entire attention to the wholesale trade. Of late he has been sending in some fine roses and carnations. NOMIS.

TRADE VERY GOOD.—SINCE THE HOLIDAYS PRICES ARE DOWN CONSIDERABLY.—THE DOINGS OF WHOLESALERS AND RETAILERS.

The trade for the holidays was reported from all sides as being of the very best. The stock that was to be had was sold at good prices and every one seemed to be satisfied. The wholesale market was very good, everything bringing good prices. Roses sold at from $4 to $15 per hundred; carnations were cleaned out quickly, fancies bringing 5 cents and 6 cents, while the others sold to ready buyers at 3 cents and 4 cents. A large number of violets were sold, and most of them brought $2 per hundred. Harrisii and hyacinths were sold at 3 cents and 4 cents, and the few Beauties that were sold brought from $10 to $12 per dozen for the best, and from this down to $4 per dozen for the others. The wholesale prices have taken a considerable fall since New Year's, roses bringing 3 cents to 8 cents; carnations $1.50 to $4 per hundred; violets 75 cents per hundred and Beauties $1 to $4 per dozen.

Frank M. Ellis is in his new store at 1316 Pine street, and has it fixed up in a very neat way; it is one of the best looking wholesale stores in the city. Frank says that during the holidays he has cleaned out his stock very early each day.

J. M. Hudson has given up his store again on account of ill health. J. M.

NEW BRITAIN, CONN.—Carl Lorenzen will shortly move to a new store, George M. Parsons moving to the store now occupied by Mr. Lorenzen.

HYGROMETER
or MOISTURE GAUGE.

THIS Moisture Gauge tells you the difference between dryness and dampness in your greenhouses. We have been testing two of these moisture gauges several months and find they are more indispensable than the thermometer. If you keep this moisture gauge at 70 degrees you will have neither mildew nor red spider in your rose houses. If you keep it at 80 degrees you will not have rust nor red spider in your carnation houses. If you keep it at 85 degrees you will never have fungus in your rooted cutting houses. If you keep it at 75 degrees you will not have decayed leaves in your geranium houses; and if you have a moisture gauge in every house 100 feet long and keep it at above figures you will make at least $100 more per year from each house. Who wants to buy mildewed roses or rusty carnations?

To operate this moisture gauge it is essential to wet the walks in order to get the proper dampness. If your houses are too damp in the winter, fire up a little and in summer time open your ventilators. This has been obtained only by years of experience. Now you can tell your greenhouse hands to keep it at 70 or 80 degrees as you want it, just as you tell your fireman to keep the temperature in such a house at 60 degrees. We never had any intention to sell moisture gauges but they are doing us so much good we have obtained some we can sell at $2.50 each, but we think you will want more. These moisture gauges are made in Germany and France. The French machines come at $10.00 each; they are quite an ornament and no cheap truck. We will give one of the $2.50 machines FREE for a $20.00 order for plants, or rooted cuttings, or unrooted cuttings, from our 1901 catalogue, or from our ads. in the trade papers; or we will send you one for $2.50, and after 10 days' trial if you do not like it you may return it and get your money back.

Paterson, N. J.

COMPETITION REDUCED BY THE FAILURE OF ONE RETAILER. — MUCH FUNERAL WORK. — GOOD DECORATIONS. — NOTES WITH THE GROWERS.

The Hamilton Club, of Paterson, gave a reception last Thursday evening and the club house, the finest in the state, was decorated by Scery. The lower floor was embellished with holly and asparagus while the upper floors were garlanded with smilax, roses and hyacinths. There were 4,000 roses used, 300 strings of smilax and 200 strings of Asparagus plumosus.

There has been considerable funeral work since Christmas. One of the largest funerals was that of the sister of Col. Barbour, the thread manufacturer. Scery and Veselius had the majority of the Paterson work. Scery made thirty-seven pieces in all while Veselius made eighteen pieces. Thorley, of New York, had many orders.

One of our local florists received a box of flowers from a New York commission house Christmas day at noon, which should have been delivered the day before. The commission house refuses to make good, the express company reports the goods were accepted, and naturally the florist is wroth.

There is one florist less in Paterson, Hoffman having left, neglecting a number of unpaid bills both in Paterson and New York. The landlord put a padlock on the store last week and a New York party holds a chattel mortgage on the goods.

A. V. D. Snyder, the bulb grower, shipped 14,000 Romans to New York to one commission house the day before Christmas. He is also cutting some fine Crane carnations.

Vreeland & Condie shipped some fine American Beauties in December and are still right in it with them. They will grow nothing else next year.

Theo. Leonhard, of Haledon, has a fine lot of carnations and it is said he will build two more houses in the spring.

John Thompson expects to put up more houses next year. SILK CITY.

LEADVILLE, COLO.—Mr. and Mrs. T. Stockdorf and Mrs. A. E. Johnson are enjoying very prosperous trade. At the latter establishment they have recently enlarged the greenhouse and are now growing American Beauties for the first time.

EXPLAINED BY THE

following letter:

W. D. SNELL, Newville, Herkimer Co., N. Y., Jan. 2d, 1901, says:
 "I wish to express my thorough satisfaction with the No. 70 Standard Sectional steam boiler which I placed in my greenhouses early in December last year. I have three houses, 20x65, located side by side, with glass in roofs and gables. The houses are built of glass and wood, and contain in all about 5,000 square feet of glass surface. I have in use about 2,000 feet one-inch pipe, or about 700 square feet of radiation. I carry a temperature of about 50 degrees at night, but have had no difficulty in getting any higher temperature desired. I find that the boiler will run ten hours without attention. I attend to it about nine o'clock at night and it will run with no further attention until seven o'clock in the morning. The draft I have is not a good one, yet notwithstanding this objection, I have no difficulty in getting the fire up and getting as much steam as I desire.
 "I can thoroughly recommend the boiler and will be glad to have you refer to me on anyone that wants further information."

The Advance and Progress of Horticulture in the Past Century.

[Read by John H. Dunlop before the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association January 15, 1901.]

The subject assigned me is one of such vast scope and magnitude that in a brief paper such as this it would be impossible to treat the topic in anything like a complete or comprehensive manner. I will try and go over the ground in a sort of superficial way, just touching on the most important developments and advancements in floriculture during the last quarter of a century. In the first place the gardener or florist of that time had a great deal to contend with. He was seriously handicapped; the appliances, buildings, stock and in fact all of his working materials were not such that he could attain the best results.

What an advantage the young man starting out in the floricultural world of to-day has over his less fortunate brother of twenty-five years ago. He has modern buildings of the three-quarter slope to the south type, the short span to the south, the open system where any number of houses are connected in one with the advantage of every foot of space being utilized. Instead of the 7x9 glass we have the 16x24 and larger; instead of flues, we have steam or hot water. What a close calculation it would require to furnish a modern house of say four, six or eight hundred feet in length with one or more brick flues. What an endless amount of work it would mean to try and keep all parts evenly heated. I am afraid we would have to resort to the primitive method of running up a stove here and there to even up a cold spot, with a light of glass knocked out and a stove pipe projecting through the roof as an ornament. His houses may be ventilated by modern ventilating machinery either by hand or automatically instead of the cumbersome devices of twenty-five years ago, too numerous to mention.

What constituted a florist's stock of that time? A miscellaneous stock of plants, for propagating from, with a comparatively small assortment of each variety, all of which have undergone wonderful improvement. In cut flower plants his roses consisted of such varieties as Lamarque, Gloire de Dijon, Marechal Niel, Safrano, Isabella Sprunt, Bon Silene and Niphetos. The list of forcing roses to-day is not very extensive, but we have such varieties as the American Beauty, Bridesmaid, Bride, Liberty, Meteor, Perle, Sunset, Lady Dorothea, Madam Hoste, Madam Cusin, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, etc., all of which are grown to great perfection and in immense quantities. What chance would a florist of twenty-five years ago have to fill an order such as is given at the present time for one, two or three hundred blooms of any one of these varieties? If he was able to get that number of all varieties together he would be doing well.

Among carnations the number of varieties twenty-five years ago was exceedingly limited, Degraw, Edwardsii, Crimson King and La Purite being the principal ones and about the extent of the list. What wonderful improvement we have seen in this grand flower. Why, I can remember less than fourteen years ago where a small house of Crimson King in good crop in this city was more than sufficient to supply the demand for that color. Look at the enormous area of glass that is now devoted to this flower alone. It is simply marvelous, and to the florist of a quarter of a century ago would be beyond conception. At that time any house was considered good enough to grow carnations, but by making a closer study of the flower, its requirements and the gradual improvement which has been going on, we to-day want our lightest, best and most improved houses for its perfect development. To-day we have firms devoting themselves exclusively to its growth and development. What would our brothers of twenty-five years ago think of paying $30,000 for the stock of a new carnation, and within a few days we hear of one specialist receiving over $5,000 for a new variety. Coming to the development of this flower within very recent times, we thought some twelve or fifteen years ago Mrs. Carnegie was a grand flower. How would it compare with such varieties as Olympia or Mrs. Bradt to-day? How would Degraw compare with White Cloud, Glacier, Evelina, Flora Hill, or La Purite with Mrs. Lawson, Marquis, Melba or Triumph? Then we have such varieties as Gomez, Maceo, Crane, Prosperity, Roosevelt, Queen Louise, Crocker, Genevieve Lord, America, Joost, Jubilee, Scott and a host that are new and supposed to be better than any that have preceded them.

We have had in the chrysanthemum some wonderful developments. Although probably not so marked as with the carnation, yet there has been a marked change in the size and beauty of the flowers. I will not undertake to enumerate the varieties of twenty-five years ago or those of to-day—they are too numerous—but I will just say that our own city has been honored by the production of one of the finest varieties exhibited this year. I refer to the Timothy Eaton, which variety carried off the honors wherever exhibited. As to violets, I doubt if there has been any great change, except that the florist of a quarter of a century ago had a much easier task than he of to-day. I doubt if the number of diseases and enemies was as extensive as to-day. It would seem that each succeeding year makes it harder to grow this flower. I will admit that the amount of glass devoted to it is enormous compared with the quantity at that time. Marie Louise was in cultivation then and a small single. We have to-day Farquhar, Lady Campbell, Imperial, California and Princess of Wales.

I have taken up more of your time than I had intended at the outset, as I know there are others who are better qualified to discuss this subject than I am, and I hope some good may be derived from this retrospect. However, I just want to add a word in connection with our association. I am anxious that it should be more liberally patronized by the craft in this city, and I, personally speaking, feel that if all would join hands and try to make the association what it should be—a place for social intercourse, interchange of ideas, and to discuss matters pertaining to our trade or profession—that all would feel benefited with having met together, and I hope all will have a chance to make any suggestion likely to be of interest in the association.

Warren Ewell.

It is a well-deserved honor that the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston have bestowed upon their popular fellow-member, Warren Ewell, in making him their president for the opening year of the new century. Big, not only in body, but in every trait that goes to make a man beloved, Warren Ewell will draw to the support of the organization an enthusiastic following. Those who know him only for his merry companionship and the irresistibly comical "Ewellocution" with which he is wont to convulse his audiences in his occasional "speeches" in company, know but half of Warren Ewell. Those men who are merriest in the holiday hours are often found to be hard and patient laborers in their calling, when the holiday is past. Not only is this true in his case, but to those who have been privileged to know him intimately he is the embodiment of sterling honesty, trusty friendship, and big-hearted liberality. The club will prosper under his leadership.

Horticulture at the Pan-American Exhibition.

Winter has arrested almost all work in the horticultural department. All shrubs, roses, herbaceous plants and bulbs have been amply protected. The lily ponds were allowed to form four or five inches of ice, which they quickly did during the cold spell in December. They were then covered with six inches of leaves, and on that were spread hemlock boughs. The protection given to everything in the horticultural department, as well as that of the department of works, insures the best results in the spring. The horticultural building is complete, and decorating the interior will soon begin. This is the most handsome of all the magnificent buildings on the grounds.

The conservatories are also complete and steam heating is being installed, and by the early part of February the conservatories will be ready for occupancy.

Two very large heated sheds have been erected with ample light and heat for the wintering of many large plants destined for the adornment of the grounds. In the greenhouse a great amount of propagating is going on, and hundreds of thousands of bedding plants will be needed, for in no space where flowers or color can enhance the beauty of the ground will they be omitted. Horticulture is perhaps considered a small part of this wonderful exposition, at least perhaps by those who take a special interest in electricity, ethnology, manufactures, etc., yet to all visitors the beauty and adornment of the grounds must appeal greatly and add to their enjoyment of the whole.

The electric tower has reached its full height and the woodwork and staff covering is nearing completion. It stands now 375 feet high, and there is yet a noble statue to crown its summit. I would not pretend to tell you how much electricity will gleam from this great structure, but I do know that there are 300,000 incandescent electric lights on the buildings and grounds, exclusive of the electric tower. The buildings are all rooted in and the interiors are fast nearing completion. The machinery building, the first large one erected, is ready to receive exhibits. The electric current from Niagara Falls was turned on a few nights ago and those who had the good fortune to see this magnificent building illuminated could form some idea of what the whole scene will be when completed.

The midway features are quite distinct from horticulture, yet all members of the profession, from the professor down, do like to be amused, and in good, clean, novel and striking features this midway will eclipse all that has every gone before. The picturesque and costly structures erected by concessionaires constitute a city in themselves. While mud has been more a hindrance to work than frost, the winter has so far been most favorable. Work on the buildings has gone right along, and ground work and road making has continued with little interruption. WILLIAM SCOTT.

Philadelphia Farmers' Institute.

The annual Farmers' Institute under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture of the State of Pennsylvania was held in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, January 15 and was well attended both during the afternoon and evening sessions.

The address of welcome was delivered by Robert Craig who gave a brief review of the objects of the meeting and told the benefits to the horticultural and agricultural interests of the state that are being derived from this propaganda which is being so ably conducted under state authority.

An attractive programme of essays and addresses on timely subjects was gone through and although several of the numbers had to be omitted on account of the epidemic of grip there was enough left to fill up the three hours allotted to each session.

"Care of Plants in the Home" was the subject allotted to Edwin Lonsdale and he handled this in his usual able and amiable manner, having a good assortment of growing and blooming plants on the stage with him. His exposition of the subject was greatly aided from time to time by reference to the living specimens.

The introduction of "Nature Study into our Public Schools" was advocated by Professor Clinton, of Cornell University, and occasioned considerable discussion. While many thought it would be a good thing as a recreation to the pupil during school hours, others thought, and did not hesitate to say that the children first and foremost went to school to learn to read, write and cipher and that until they had learned these fundamentals thoroughly it was ridiculous to add on a lot of ornamentals. One outspoken member even went so far as to assert that he had been employing boys and young men in his business for the past sixteen years and not one of them was able to spell correctly even common words.

James Boyd, of Haverford, handled the subject "The Best Twelve Herbaceous Plants for the Amateur" in an able and entertaining manner and as he is one of the keenest of amateur cultivators himself in the line of herbaceous plants, his experience is worth something and a copy of his essay will be procured for publication.

"The Care and Management of Poultry" by J. D. Nevius was made an occasion for quite an eulogium on "the little American hen" and reached such a pitch of enthusiasm toward the end that one gentleman arose to his feet and shouted "Good! here is to the great American hen, may her lay always be heard in the land and may her son never set!" During the discussion following this lecture the question whether there was more money in raising mushrooms than poultry was warmly debated. J. J. Styer, of Concordville, told what could be done with mushrooms which, he said, if a good crop, were very profitable. The only trouble was you were not always sure of getting a good crop. He had been growing mushrooms for nine years and his first year's crop was the best he ever had. He did not know any more about them now than he did then.

The other subjects discussed were mostly agricultural and not of great interest to florists generally. The most notable exception to this was the illustrated lecture in the evening by Wm. E. Meehan, of Philadelphia, a son of the well known Prof. Thomas Meehan of Germantown. Mr. Meehan is an enthus-ist on the subject of fish culture and showed where anyone with a running stream or pond could make a good profit by cultivating trout or other fish, besides furnishing a delectable article of food for their own tables. This was one of the most entertaining and instructive lectures of the day and certainly was a revelation to many of those present. It opened up a new field of thought and will no doubt bear good fruit in the future.

Two of the speakers on agriculture stated that more and more attention was being devoted every year to the study of soils. Much has yet to be learned on this difficult subject and every farmer or gardener should devote great attention to it. Mr. Dettrich laid great stress on increasing the humus in the soil and Professor Clinton added that Mr. Dettrich's claim was correct and all important, and exhibited charts showing what an enormous effect humus had by acting on the soil as a sponge for the retention of moisture.

A Handsome Table Decoration.

The accompanying illustration gives a view of one of the handsomest and most effective table decorations I have seen these many moons. As will be noticed the center is of Bridesmaid roses surrounded by white azalea flowers, radiating to the different points, the outer edges being of pink roses, lily of the valley and orchids. The favors are made of pink roses, cypripediums and lily of the valley, tied with pink ribbons. From the ceiling over the center is suspended a half globe of pink carnations, joined to the same being festoons of Asparagus plumosus and pink carnations which radiate to all corners of the room. The rest of the room is handsomely decorated and banked with foliage and flowering plants, the whole making a very charming picture and reflecting great credit on the artist, Hugh Graham, Jr. The occasion was a luncheon given by Mrs. Roberts at Hotel Flanders, Philadelphia, January 9. ## CARNATIONS.

TREATMENT FOR YOUNG PLANTS.

Some of the novelties and many of the standard sorts are changing hands about this time, and care for the young plants becomes part of carnation culture. The method of potting, boxing or planting them into benches is largely a matter of individual choice, and not of so much moment as to have the method one selects properly and carefully followed.

Potting is the method I always advocate and practice. In the first place a good rose pot two inches in diameter at the top and three or three and one-half inches deep supplies the young plant with sufficient root space for healthy growth, say from January 15 to April 15. This puts your plants two by two on the bench and does not occupy much more space than would have to be given them if boxed or planted on the bench. In the second place, each plant is by itself, and if, as often happens, a bit of fungus has been brought with it from the cutting bench, that fungus does not spread through a whole box or plot of ground, but is confined to the individual plant affected. In the third place, the plants can be handled into the field almost regardless of the weather without any perceptible check, and this cannot always be done with transplanted stock.

The main points to be watched in pot culture are that the plants be not allowed to become really dry at any time and that they do not become badly pot-bound. If there is any danger from the latter evil it will pay to repot them, but this work can easily be avoided by a little attention to the character of the different varieties, for a variety which is noted as an exceptionally strong grower can be propagated so as to be ready for potting about February 15, the weaker growers a month or more earlier.

The only drawback to growing the young plants in pots is the extra expense. The cost of pots is quite an item, and to this must be added the labor required for potting, and then the extra labor required in handling them when planting out, but in most cases the advantages will more than counterbalance these extra costs.

Temperature has considerable to do with the future of the young plants and unless the cuttings have been grown very cool it is best not to put the freshly potted plants into a very cool house. Where it is practicable they should be given a temperature only a few degrees cooler than that in which the cuttings have been grown and then be gradually brought down to 40° or even lower just before the time for planting them out. This will give good healthy plants that will not be seriously hurt if they are caught by a light frost after being planted out. On the other hand great care should be used not to put a plant that has been rooted, say in a temperature of 45°, into a house that runs 50° to 60°, as this treatment will weaken the constitution of the strongest carnation.

Shading should always be given for a few days after potting, especially if the cuttings have been rooted in a north side house or heavily shaded, as a strong bright sun would wilt such cuttings no matter how heavily they have been watered, and to allow the plants to wilt at any stage of their life as about as bad a thing as can happen to them. After they have started nicely give them all the sun possible, sunlight and air being very important factors in their lives.

Topping should not be begun until it is necessary and should not be neglected thereafter. There is danger of topping novelties too soon, as the desire to double upon the stock is a great temptation. The careful grower will not allow his cupidity to get the better of his common sense and will not top a novelty any quicker than he would the common sorts, knowing that it is the height of folly to spoil one good plant for the sake of having two poor ones.

If planting into boxes or benches is the method preferred for handling the rooted cuttings they should be given practically the same treatment as if in pots and a careful watch kept for any signs of stem rot or fungus. It is best not to use too rich soil for either boxes or pots and, while never allowing it to actually dry out, care must be used not to have it constantly wet. ALBERT M. HERR.

CARNATION ELMA—A CORRECTION.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I would like to make a correction to the Indianapolis notes in your issue of January 12. Your correspondent says the carnation Elma was succeeded Mr. Niemeyer and is this spring offering it to the trade in conjunction with the E. G. Hill Co., the western agent. The mistake was perhaps caused by the fact that we have at our place considerable stock of the variety, Mr. Niemeyer having made us a present of several plants the first season it was propagated.

The Queen of Edgely in England.

Perhaps the most pleasing gift that came to the Queen on Christmas among the myriad tokens of love from all parts of the world was the box of magnificent Queen of Edgely roses from Philadelphia. The roses were a feature of the decorations at Osborne, and they are still bright and fresh, though more than a week has passed since the Lucania brought them to Liverpool, as was then related by the Express.

It took no less than two years to produce the twelve magnificent roses presented to the Queen on the last Christmas of the century. Two years ago, when the British Horticultural Society held an exhibition of roses in Buckingham Palace, her Majesty graciously asked Mr. David Fuerstenberg, a veteran rose grower of Philadelphia, what he, as an American thought of the English roses. He replied that they were very pretty, but that everyone grew better roses in the States. He pointed out that the roses were small and the stems short, whereas in America great roses were grown with yard-long stems.

Her Majesty expressed a preference for fragrance and delicate loveliness, rather than for size and length of stem, but said that she would like to see the gorgeous American roses. The American on his return home, began experimenting in order to produce the finest roses ever grown, and also to discover a method of preservation certain for at least twelve days. After twenty-four months he accomplished both ends, and sent the flowers arrived in perfect condition. The ends of the stems were placed in long glass vials filled with water, and capped by rubber fitted closely around the stem. The opening buds were then wrapped in waxed paper to exclude the air, and then the roses, stem and all, were buried, each by itself, in soft moss dampened and packed in cracked ice. The box of roses was then sealed in a strong box and placed in the Lucania's cold storage room. When the box was opened it was found that the buds had burst into full bloom, and were entrancingly fragrant and beautiful. They were consigned to the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who saw that they were safely delivered to her Majesty. Thus it was that the loveliest and largest roses in the world came to the Queen on Christmas.—London Daily Express.

[The escort of the Queen of Edgely to England was our well known friend Alfred Dimmock, as already announced. —Ed ]

Asparagus Decumbens.

In the accompanying illustration there is shown a plant of Asparagus decumbens in a hanging pan, grown by Leopold Koropp, of Chicago. The bluish green, pendent stems attain to about three feet in length and are well furnished with small, light green leaves which give the plant a pleasing feathery appearance. Numerous minute white flowers, which possess the fragrance of lily of the valley and red stamens, add to its attractiveness. The small tuberous roots resemble those of a dahlia in miniature and are dormant in summer, the growing season extending from October to May. The stems are very durable and well adapted for decorative purposes when cut. A. decumbens is most desirable for hanging baskets or pans but can also be used for trellises and should be grown in an airy house with moderate temperature and shade, using rich, porous soil and plenty of water. It is easily propagated by means of seeds, which are now to be had at a reasonable price.

American Carnation Society.

The tenth annual meeting of the society will be held in Lehmann's Hall, Howard street, Baltimore, Maryland, February 21 and 22, 1901. The exhibition will be held in the same hall with space 71x53 to fill—room for a good big show, which all the members should contribute their share toward making. The hall will be lighted by electricity, and the gas turned off at the street to avoid all danger from that source. Attention is called to the opportunity these shows afford the introducers of new varieties, in bringing them before a goodly number of buyers. Tables are provided for the display of varieties not intended for competition. Exhibits can be addressed to American Carnation Society, Lehmann's Hall, Baltimore, Md., and must be prepaid. Postal card notice will be sent with changes or additions to this list if any are made.

The following is the programme of essays and discussions:

Prof. Albert F. Woods, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will give a paper illustrated with lantern slide views, on Thursday evening. His subject: "The Carnation in Health and Disease."

Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., will give a paper on "Hybridizing of the Carnation."

There will be discussions on stem rot, sub-watering and other subjects of interest to the carnation grower.

The question box is always open to originated by Baur & Smith, of Indianapolis, which is a mistake. The carnation Elma was one of a batch of seedlings I raised while I was foreman for H. A. Niemeyer, of Erie, Pa. S. A. Baur bought the stock of it along with the rest of the stock of other plants when he dozen promised roses in charge of a famous London florist and orchid collector on the Lucania. The roses are superb, being eight inches in diameter and having stems one yard long. The large blooms are shaped like the American Beauty, but are a bright pink color. The precious inquiring members, and all questions that are forwarded to the secretary, at least two weeks before the meeting, will be assigned to some one competent to answer them.

The following rules and regulations will govern the exhibition:

First. All entries must be forwarded so as to reach the secretary, Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., not later than Saturday, February 16. A charge of $1 for each entry will be made for those not entered as above requested.

Second. All entries not staged by 1 p. m., February 21, will be disqualified from any and all competition excepting for certificate of merit.

Third. All intending exhibitors of carnations who are not members of the society must pay an entrance fee of $2 and, if competing for any of the prizes, medals or certificates, they must become a member of the society, which costs $2 per year.

Fourth. All exhibits must have the varieties correctly labeled if named sorts, or numbered if seedlings, otherwise they will not be eligible to competition in any class.

Fifth. Exhibitors who are competing should leave their names and addresses with the exhibition manager so that he can prepare a card giving the same, and placing it with their exhibit as soon as the awards are made. Parties exhibiting not for competition are also requested to observe this rule.

Sixth. The same vase is not allowed to compete for more than one prize.

Parties wishing to exhibit plants or flowers other than carnations are requested to write to N. F. Flitton, Clifton Park, Baltimore, Md., as early in February as possible for space and information.

The following are the regulations governing the competition for seedlings for the certificate of merit.

First. The variety must have been bloomed not less than three years.

Second. Not less than fifty blooms must be shown.

Third. Exhibitors entering for the certificate are required to pay an entrance fee of $5 for each variety so entered. Those varieties entered in the class for preliminary certificates at Buffalo, will be entitled to compete for the certificate upon the payment of $3 for each variety entered.

Two-year old seedlings can compete for a preliminary certificate by exhibiting twelve blooms and the payment of $2 for each variety so entered, this payment entitling them to compete for the certificate at our next exhibition upon the payment of $3 for each variety from this class.

SCALE OF POINTS.

The scale to be used for judging all carnations at this exhibition is as follows:

Color.....	25
Size.....	20
Calyx.....	5
Stem.....	20
Substance.....	10
Form.....	15
Fragrance.....	5

Total.....100

To secure a certificate or preliminary certificate a carnation must score eighty-five or more points. In the general classes a score of eighty-five or more will be required to award a carnation first premium. This is made a rule so as to bring and keep our shows up to the highest possible standard.

ASPARAGUS DECUMBENS.

Class A. is regardless of variety and uses Scott as the dividing line between light and dark pink. A light pink must be as light as Scott or lighter, and a dark pink must be darker than Scott. This division of color applies to all of the classes. In Class B. introductions of 1900 are not to be entered, they coming under the next class, or Class C.

STORY OF THE MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—PRESIDENT SHERIDAN GRASPS THE GAVEL.—INAUGURAL ADDRESS REPLETE WITH WISE SUGGESTIONS.—BIG AUTUMN EXHIBITION TO BE THE EVENT OF THE YEAR.—EVERY MEMBER URGED TO DO HIS PART.—CARNATION MEETING IN FEBRUARY.—STATE OF TRADE.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The opening meeting of the New York Florists' Club for the year was full of interest but rather poorly attended. The retiring president handed over the gavel to his successor, Walter F. Sheridan, with some pleasant remarks in a reminiscent and hopeful strain, and the latter then proceeded to read his inaugural address. After expressing thanks for the honor of his election and paying a neat compliment to the industry and devotion of Ex-president O'Mara during his administration, Mr. Sheridan said: "The most important event of the year is the show to be given by the club at the Madison Square Garden next October. While the details will be worked out by the committees, success can only be won by the earnest efforts of every individual member, who must feel that he is a valuable factor of the whole. By putting our shoulders to the wheel the result cannot be in doubt. A successful show this year means its establishment as an annual event, and will assure a brilliant future for the New York Florists' Club. Any plan which has for its object the strengthening of our membership deserves your support, and I therefore recommend the appointment of a committee, the members of which would work in the district in which they reside, distributing literature, studying the aims and purposes of the club, and invite those interested to join it. Social enjoyment is also a feature to be encouraged, and it has occurred to the members of the club that we ought to arrange to give a summer outing for members and their families some time during July or August."

Mr. Sheridan further urged that greater encouragement be given to the feature of an exhibition of novelties and specialties at the monthly meetings, and the modification of the rules if necessary to that end. He also recommended a change in the method of nominating and electing officers, and suggested a more general use of the question box at the meetings, closing with the following pertinent remarks which will, doubtless, find an echo in every florists' organization in the country: "I should like also to see more of our members get upon their feet in the club room. Many a subject of vital importance is thrashed out at our 'after meetings,' to the benefit of but a select few, when, were the same enthusiasm displayed in our club room, our meetings would be made far more serviceable than now. I need only remind you that the best orators in our florists' societies today have gained their experience on the floor of the club rooms, where they have learned to become self-confident and to express themselves in the most intelligent and lucid manner."

Reports of secretary, treasurer and various standing committees were then presented. A substantial gain in treasury balance over last year was indicated and also a very large accession to the membership roll, which shows 205 members in good standing to-day. Mr. Withers reported progress on the work of preparing the schedule and rules for the October exhibition, which is to comprise a premium list of nearly $5,000. An appreciative letter was received from William Plumb, acknowledging receipt of engrossed resolutions. It was voted that the next meeting of the club, on the second Monday in February, be devoted especially to carnations and that carnation growers be invited to bring exhibits on that occasion. Committees, regular and special, for the coming year were appointed, including several to consider the various recommendations in the president's address. The president then introduced Richard Vincent, of White Marsh, Md., who was a visitor. Mr. Vincent remarked that he was not an entire stranger as he had started to learn his business years ago at Astoria, N. Y., and facetiously added that he still finds it necessary to come occasionally to New York to learn the art of making money. The hand shake of New York at the convention of 1900 will never be forgotten. Alluding to his business of cabbage raising he made a humorous reference to W. R. Smith's alleged ostracism of the vegetable growers from the ranks of the "ornamental horticulturists" and drew an amusing comparison with the "weeds" which he had noticed growing in rank profusion around the Capitol at Washington, from which he suggested that many of the seeds sent out by the Agricultural Department might have been gathered. Concluding, he invited all to come to Baltimore during the carnation meeting in February. An enthusiastic vote of thanks was given Mr. Vincent. On the exhibition table were vases of sweet peas, Zvolanek's Christmas, Miss Florence E. Denzer and No. 6, exhibited by A. C. Zvolanek. They were superb, with branches two and one-half feet long and fine flowers, and were awarded honorable mention by the judges.

Business has been excellent for the past few days. Owing to this fact and the shortening up of crops, considerable difficulty has been experienced in getting a sufficient supply of roses. All varieties are in short supply but the stringency is most noticeable in the case of Bridesmaids of good quality. Carnations are having a similar experience but in lesser degree. On the other hand, violets are over-abundant and all bulbous stock is being received in quantities greater than the demand. Cattleyas are not so scarce as during the past month and are seen now in most of the florists' windows. Among the novel things occasionally displayed are flowering branches of Japan quince, forsythia and other forced shrub bloom.

Charles Plumb has resigned his position on the Huntington estate and left for Southampton, England, on January 16. On his return he will take charge of the L. C. Weir place.

Charles Loechner, the genial representative of Suzuki & Iida, slipped and fell on the ice last Saturday, spraining his ankle severely.

Samuel Henshaw has resigned his position as head gardener at the New York Botanical Gardens, but is retained as consulting landscape gardener.

Many of the florists, wholesale and retail, are ill with the prevailing distemper. James Carroll, of Thorley's, has been very sick for two weeks.

E. C. Horan handles the fine sweet peas grown by A. C. Zvolanek, blooms of which were exhibited at the club meeting.

Wm. Ghormley is receiving a box of White Swanley violets every day.

ROSES DECIDEDLY OFF CROP AND SUPPLY VERY SHORT.—NO HEAVY DEMANDS BUT SUPPLIES INADEQUATE.—INEFFECTUAL CALLS FROM NEW YORK.—ALL ABOUT THE PRICES.—QUEEN OF EDGELY REACHED VICTORIA SAFELY.—LONSDALE AND OTHERS AT GROWERS' INSTITUTE.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The feature of the past week has been the scarcity of stock. Such a clean up has not been seen before this season. It was a continual hustle for flowers the entire period, particularly for roses, which have seldom been so scarce. Brides and Bridesmaids had the call although anything in the entire list was quickly grabbed up as soon as it made its appearance. The New York market must have been clean sold out, as several messengers tried by personal visits to get flowers for orders among the wholesalers and growers here, but met with little success. Notwithstanding this demand there was not much advance in prices, as it was not so much an increase in business as a shortage in the volume of flowers coming in, everything in the rose line seeming to be off crop. Beauties are selling at from $3 to $8 per dozen; teas from $6 to $15 per hundred. Carnations range from $1.50 to $4 per hundred. Violets are the only flowers that seem equal to the demand; the best doubles bring $1.50, singles 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Francois Supoit's lilac is fine and selling lively at $1.50 per bunch of twelve good double sprays. It makes a good substitute for roses now when they are so scarce. A few Easter lilies are coming in and 15 cents per flower is the price. There has been a great demand for 3-inch pot ferns the present season and $6 to $7 per hundred is the current price, with most of the stocks running low and the plants small.

There was a good attendance at the growers' institute in Horticultural Hall last Tuesday afternoon and evening. Robert Craig made the address of welcome and the feature of the sessions was the practical talk of Edwin Lonsdale on the care of plants in the house. Wm. E. Meehan gave a talk on fish culture, and Jacob Styer told all about mushroom culture, saying that two and one-half pounds was the maximum crop per square foot. Mushroom culture is rapidly on the increase, many of the carnation growers of Chester county taking it up and utilizing the space beneath their tables, which otherwise goes to waste.

The Queen of Edgely roses sent to Queen Victoria have been heard from. They arrived in good condition and lasted, so the report says, for several days after reaching their destination. A letter of thanks has been received by the Floral Exchange Company from the Queen's secretary. This has been photographed and will be shown later. The demand for flowers of this rose is giving the company considerable trouble, as they are devoting their energies mainly to produce a large quantity of healthy plants to supply orders when delivery time comes.

Don't forget ladies' night at the club, next Wednesday, January 23. It promises to eclipse any previous occasion, pleasant as the former receptions have been.

John Gardiner is very ill with the grip. K.

CARNATION MEETING OF FLORISTS' CLUB.—STATE OF THE MARKET.—PRODUCTION DECREASES AND QUALITIES ARE ON THE DOWN GRADE.—BEAUTIES ARE THE WORST SUFFERERS.—CHICAGO MEN VISIT INDIANA GROWERS.—STORY OF THE TRIP AND ITS MANY PLEASURES.—CARNATIONS WERE IN QUEST.—MONINGER COMPANY BUILT NEARLY TEN MILES OF GREENHOUSES IN THE PAST YEAR—FIGURES WHICH ASTOUND.—VARIOUS NOTES OF LOCAL INTEREST.

The carnation exhibition of the Florists' Club, held in a large, well-lighted room in the wholesale district on Friday afternoon and evening, January 18, was a highly successful affair and afforded growers and others an excellent opportunity of comparing many of the new claimants of public favor with the best standard sorts. The room was tastefully decorated with greens for which, and for the neat arrangement of the exhibits, much credit is due E. F. Winter-son and Charles Balluff. The exhibitors and varieties each exhibited were as follows: Crabb & Hunter, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Irene; J. L. Dillon, Bloomshurg, Pa.; Queen Louise; H. Luedtke, of Maywood, light pink sport of Daybreak; Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich., unnamed pink seedling; Fred. Dorner & Sons' Co., Lafayette, Ind., Morning Glory, Lorna; W. P. Harvey, Geneva, Ill.; Evanston, White Daybreak; Wm. Kreutz, of Rose Hill, Armazindy, Wm. Scott; Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., Melba, White Cloud; R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, O., Enquirer, Elinora; John Hoeft, of Park Ridge, Flora Hill, Jubilee, Triumph; H. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md., Egypt, Norway, Genevieve Lord; Bassett & Washburn, Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Maceo, Chicago, The Marquis; Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., Mrs. Higinbotham, Mrs. Potter Palmer, No. 101 (white), No. 78 (variegated); Guardian Angel Orphan Asylum, Guardian Angel, Armazindy, Mrs. T. W. Lawson, White Cloud; Wietor Bros., Triumph, Flora Hill, America, The Marquis, G. H. Crane, The Sport; Peter Reinberg, G. H. Crane, Flora Hill, Genevieve Lord, Melba, Guardian Angel, The Marquis, White Cloud, America, Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Mrs. Frances Joost; Anton Then, White Cloud, Daybreak, Flora Hill, G. H. Crane, Triumph, Argyle, James Dean, Chicago, Mrs. Frances Joost, Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson;

Mrs. Bradt; M. Weiland, Melba, Daybreak, White Daybreak, Mrs. Bradt, Evanston, America, Genevieve Lord, Governor Griggs, Pink Armazindy, Chicago, Gomez, Estelle, Argyle, White Cloud, G. H. Crane, The Marquis. Among other exhibits were Golden Gate and Liberty roses from Peter Reinberg, the former variety exceedingly fine; Marie Louise, Lady Hume Campbell and Swanley White violets from Eli Cross, Grand Rapids, Mich. Several other exhibits were expected as we closed for press, among them Prosperity from Dailedouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., and Governor Roosevelt from C. W. Ward, Queens, N. Y. During the afternoon a party of local and visiting florists to the number of 105 visited the establishment of the Chicago Carnation Co., at Joliet, Ill. The visitors included E. R. Gesler, Galesburg, Ill.; Fred. J. King and daughter, Ottawa, Ill.; Thos. Archer, St. Joseph, Mich.; G. Swenson, Elmhurst, Ill.; Frank Calvert, Lake Forest; Mrs. Eickholt, Galveston, Tex.; George, Frank and W. S. Garland, Des Plaines; Mrs. E. T. Grave, Richmond, Ind.; John Hoeft, Park Ridge; Chas. Klehm, Arlington Heights; J. F. Klimmer, Oak Park; Nicholas P. Miller, Wilmette; Ernest Marland and M. Weiland, Evanston; Andrew Peterson, Paxton, Ill.; Fred. Stielow and Chas. Schweigert, Niles Center; B. O'Neil and Geo. Souster, Elgin; W. J. Vesey and wife, Fort Wayne, Ind.; S. A. Walcott, Batavia, Ill.; Nick Zweifel, Milwaukee, Wis.; J. S. Wilson, Western Springs, Ill.

In the latter days of last week production began to show the effect of the bleak weather which has prevailed for some time and the supply has been gradually decreasing for some days, until the middle of this week saw very little good stock in the market. There are still adequate supplies of indifferent material but the salable qualities are much under the demand. At the same time that supplies were shortening qualities were deteriorating all along the line and the demand for funeral flowers was on the increase. In the past ten days there has been such a run on funeral work that almost all lines of white stock have been used up at very good prices. Beauties more than anything else show the effect of the dark and cloudy weather. Where there were bountiful crops two or three weeks ago there are now very small cuts and the shape of the buds is bad and so is the color. At the same time the atmospheric conditions have a tendency to weaken carnations and they have not now the lasting qualities which they have had during the winter season. There are a great many violets on hand and prices have been very low, even for good stock. During the mild weather the fakirs have been the outlet for what would have been a disastrous accumulation, but, of course, the streetmen's price was very low. All bulbous stock seems to be very late this year although there are now enough Harrisii lilies coming in so that one who needs them can usually be supplied. Callas are a little more plentiful and some of the growers say they are vastly more profitable than Harrisii. Tulips are available in small quantities but are not very good as yet. Romans and Paper Whites are, like the poor, always with us, and just now they are so plentiful that the prices are very cheap.

Last week Thursday Anton Then, C. M. Dickinson, Frank Felke and Edgar Sanders started out for a tour of the Indiana carnation growers, going first to Dorners' at Lafayette, where they met Eugene Dailedouze, Wm. Nicholson and Richard Witterstaetter. The Dorner establishment has culled its 6,000 seedlings of last year down to 1800, and among the lot there are a great many things of interest, but the particular center of attraction at Dorners' this year is Lorna, the new white of which a great deal is expected. From Lafayette the Chicago party went to Indianapolis, where John Bertermann was added to the delegation, although Mr. Witterstaetter left them there to return to Cincinnati. From Indianapolis the party went to Richmond, where E. G. Hill and Mrs. Grave were called upon. Interest centered in the latter establishment because of the wonderful carnations which are being turned out there, the principal sorts of merit being White Cloud and the new pink seedling Dorothy. Mrs. Grave is also growing a few violets and they have all the qualities which have made the reputation for her carnations. In the evenings spent at Richmond, the entire contingent indulged in a little exercise upon the alleys, the average score of the party being 57 pins to a game, these figures including the records of the natives, Messrs. Evans, Hill and Lemon. From Richmond the travelers went to Kokomo to see W. W. Coles' famous eight-year Kaiserins grown in solid beds. Thence they went to Peru to see F. B. Tinker and the white carnation with which he is making his town famous. Then they had a lantern-light view of J. A. Newby's place at Logansport, and returned home on Sunday after a very enjoyable outing.

The John C. Moninger Company has figured out that in the year 1900 they supplied material which would have erected a continuous greenhouse 49,760 feet long, or almost nine and one-half miles. This house would have had an area of 1,094,952 square feet of glass. Of this 915,464 feet was lapped and only 179,488 square feet butted. Of the total glass area sixty-five per cent was sixteen inches wide. The preference of the builders in the matter of ventilation was shown by the fact that 37,238 feet of the ventilating sash was made to open from the ridge and only 12,522 feet had the ventilating sash open from the header. The business of the Moninger Company in 1900 was an increase of something like one-half mile of greenhouses and 125,000 square feet of glass over the record of 1899.

Eugene Dailedouze and Wm. Nicholson visited many of the more important establishments in this vicinity during their brief stay last week. They expressed themselves as astonished at the immense ranges of glass which confronted them at Bassett & Washburn's, Vaughan's, Reinbergs', Wietors' and elsewhere; also at the excellence of the stock. Why, gentlemen, what do you think we visited New York for last summer, not to forget Boston and Philadelphia!

A few of the local growers are already planning to attend the Baltimore meeting of the American Carnation Society, James Hartshorne, Peter Reinberg and J. D. Thompson among the number. Mr. Reinberg will also attend the March exhibition of the American Rose Society.

At Hunt's this week they have removed the partition which formerly separated them from the Prince establishment and now have the entire width of the floor at 76 and 78 Wabash avenue. It makes a very great improvement and gives highly appreciated increase in facilities.

Some of the most tasteful funeral designs which have been turned out this week were made of Morning Glory carnations, and the general impression is, with those who grow it successfully, that there is no place remaining for Day-break.

A. Dietsch & Co. have the order for the cypress for the South Park Floral Company's range of ten new houses, an addition of 75,000 feet of glass, which will be given to Beauties next year.

On Sunday night thieves and stray dogs entered the premises of T. F. Keenan, at 6112 Wentworth avenue, and stole or destroyed Belgian hares to the value of $850.

A. Lange, on Monroe street, and John Blanck, out on Forty-third street, have made white chrysanthemums a feature of their window decorations this week.

O. P. Bassett has been in New York and Philadelphia this week and took occasion to inspect all the novelties offered in the east this season.

The big growers around Summerdale and Rogers Park are firm believers in the Garland iron gutters and they intend to have more of them.

C. W. Ernie, who spent the summer with the M. A. Hunt Floral Company, at Terre Haute, Ind., is now with W. J. Smyth.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn, who has had a very serious time of it this winter, has shown a slight improvement during the week.

Miss Florence Jenks, niece of Flint Kennicott, was married to Claude McKenzie, of Minnesota, on Tuesday of this week.

That cheese was all right Nicholson, but, confound it, once a day was quite enough. We know it.

F. W. Taylor, of the Pan-American Exposition, passed through Chicago last Saturday going west.

Wietor Bros. and George Reinberg will rebuild many of their old houses the coming summer.

Vaughan's Seed Store unloaded a refrigerator car of tuberoses this week.

JANUARY MEETING OF THE CLUB AND THE ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF CARNATIONS.—MANY FINE EXHIBITS FROM GROWERS AT A DISTANCE—CERTIFICATES AWARDED SOME OF THE NOVELTIES, SPECIAL MENTION GIVEN TO OTHERS.—HALSTEAD READS A PAPER TELLING OF COMMERCIAL VARIETIES.—ESSAYS FOR ROSE SHOW MEETING.—OTHER DOINGS.

The annual carnation show was held January 10, at the monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club, and the exhibition was one of the best for several years, as a number of outsiders sent in some very good blooms of the latest novelties. Among the prominent exhibitors were the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.; H. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md.; Chris. Besold, Mineola, N. Y.; W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind.; J. L. Dillon, Bloomsburg, Pa.; Fred. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., besides several local growers.

The Chicago Carnation Company exhibited blooms of Mrs. Higinbotham, a very pretty pink, the flowers of good substance, with strong stems; Chicot, a white with very light penciling of pink; Mrs. John J. Shedd, a very good red with a strong stem; No. 78, variegated, a strong grower and good producer. These have not yet been offered to the trade. They also exhibited the four varieties which they are introducing this season, Bon Homme Richard, Prolifica, Sunbeam and Nydia, all of which were excellent flowers which are offered as having certain points of merit which older varieties do not possess. They also showed a beautiful vase of sixty blooms of the famous Mrs. Lawson, which attracted considerable attention.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey had a vase of blooms of Mrs. Lawson which were very well grown. They brought G. H. Crane that called forth some very complimentary remarks, as did White Cloud, Mrs. Bradt and Glacier, the latter being especially good, as they were large and had good stems. Ethel Crocker was very much admired as the color was of the best, with stems from eighteen to twenty-four inches long.

J. L. Dillon showed his new white, Queen Louise, which was very much admired by all present, and C. Besold had Admiral Cervera and Goethe. The former is a variegated of peculiar color, yellow with considerable pink in it. Goethe is a fancy pink and was very fine, quite an improvement on Morning Glory.

H. Weber & Sons sent several vases of good blooms, among them Egypt, a rich scarlet crimson, strongly scented flower on a strong stem. Their vase of Norway was admired by all for its clearness of color, size of bloom and strength of stem. F. Dorner & Sons Co. sent several nice vases, including Lorna, the new white which is thought quite an improvement on White Cloud, and a vase of Morning Glory which were very good. There was also a fine vase of Irene, Crabb & Hunter's new pink.

Some of the home exhibitors were John Stiedel, Fred. Ammann, E. Emmons, Frank Fillmore and J. W. Dunford, Jr., and the prizes were awarded as named. John Stiedel exhibited some very fine double violets and Rudolph J. Mohr had a vase of the Zvolanek's Christmas sweet pea.

The meeting of the club was called to order by Ex-president Ammann with twenty-nine members and several visitors present. The judges appointed to pass upon exhibits from outside growers were F. J. Fillmore, Dr. A. S. Halstead and J. W. Dunford. James Hartshorne, Max Herzog and Frank M. Ellis were selected as judges of home grown stock.

The judges awarded certificates to Norway, Morning Glory, Mrs. Higinbotham and Bon Homme Richard and special mention was made of Irene, Sunbeam, Glacier, Mrs. Bradt, Ethel Crocker, White Cloud and G. H. Crane. Egypt was determined to be an improvement on Maceo, the fragrance being particularly noticeable; Goethe, a fancy Day-break pink, an improvement on Morning Glory; Lorna, an improvement on White Cloud; Chicot, a good white; Nydia, good bloom well grown; Mrs. Lawson best ever seen in the city; Mrs. John J. Shedd extra good red. Prolifica, very well grown. Stiedel's violets were especially mentioned.

Dr. A. S. Halstead read a very interesting paper on new carnations from a commercial standpoint. He mentioned most of the late novelties and the older ones that are grown in this vicinity. He says that he thinks Marquis can be grown profitably but has not yet had much success with it. He thinks that Genevieve Lord will in time displace Daybreak. Lizzie McGowan is still an old favorite of his and he will always grow it. Flora Hill, he thinks, is only good to propagate rust and bacteria and to combat these two enemies of the carnation he uses a solution of arsenic and carbolic acid diluted in water. Chicago does not do very well with him but Bradt, on the other hand, does very well. Gold Nugget, he says, is the best yellow for this part of the country. Wm. Scott, Ethel Crocker, Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Joost, G. H. Crane and America are some of the others that he mentioned. Olympia is not good with him.

Fred. Ammann followed Dr. Halstead with an essay on Perle roses. Fred. Weber will read his essay, "Cut Flowers for Retailers' Use," at the next meeting in conjunction with H. G. Berning, who will tell what he knows about "The Best Methods of Wholesaling Cut Flowers." At the same meeting J. J. Beneke will give us what he thinks are "The Best Methods to be Adopted to Elevate Our Business."

Mr. Hartshorne was asked to speak on carnations and told of the Mrs. Thomas Lawson, describing it as he first saw it and how they had it protected from the direct rays of the sun in mid-day by drawing muslin under the glass, but he says that he uses only a thin mud wash. It was decided to give our annual rose show at the next meeting, Thursday, February 14, and three prizes will be offered, $5, $3 and $2 for the best vases of fifty blooms, American Beauty and American Belle excepted and open to home growers only. Outside growers are asked to send novelties for exhibition.

The Missouri Botanical Garden Improvement Club held its monthly meeting on Monday evening and the attendance was very good. Several excellent papers were read. One by George McClure on the history of the chrysanthemum was enjoyed very much. Alfred Ulrich read a very interesting paper on bulbs and will in time take up each class separately. R. J. M.

CUT FLOWER MARKET SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE FROM LAST REPORT.—NOTABLE EXHIBITS AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—NOTES.

The general tone of the cut flower market is about as reported last week, carnations and violets being still on the downward road, and roses holding their own fairly well with a very moderate cut on the leading varieties. Carnations are coming in heavily and the quality is, as a rule, superb, but the quantity, especially in the reds, is too great to make a bold front practicable, so values have made another drop. All bulbous material is on the increase and shows improvement in grade throughout.

Three notable cypripediums were shown at Horticultural Hall on Saturday, January 12. C. G. Roebling (H. T. Clink-aberry, gardener), sent C. × adrastus, Trenton var. and was given a certificate of merit. C. Chapmanii (Curtisii × belatulum) from Oakes Ames (R. M. Grey, gardener), received honorable mention. Honorable mention was also awarded to C. × H. Graves, Jr., from J. E. Rothwell (J. Mutch, gardener). Robert Cameron, gardener at the Harvard Botanic Garden, was awarded a certificate of merit for Euphorbia pulcherrima var. plenissima.

J. Woodward Manning delivered an illustrated lecture on ornamental tree and shrub planting at Horticultural Hall, on Saturday, January 12. Many stereopticon views of noted New England estates were shown. Mr. Manning has few equals in his profession.

The name of that portion of the Boston public parks hitherto known as Leverett Park and Jamaica Park has been changed to Olmsted Park in honor of Frederick Law Olmsted.

San Francisco.

BIGGEST CHRISTMAS EVER KNOWN ON THE PACIFIC COAST.—EVERY ONE HAD HEAVY TRADE.—BUSINESS QUIET SINCE THE NEW YEAR CAME.—GROWERS REPLENISHING STOCK.—HEAVY LOSS THROUGH WIND AND RAIN.

San Francisco has outdone itself with this winter's Christmas trade, fifty per cent being the average increase over last year's sales. Good roses and carnations were sold out everywhere and could not be had at any price. Palms of all varieties were in demand and sold well. Adiantums, Boston ferns and poinsettias were to be seen in every store and brought good prices. On account of the weather having been cloudy preceding Christmas the Bridesmaids were considerably off color, looking very much like Mermets. A good many of the growers had been at their old tricks again, holding stock back for a week or more, but these have been given a lesson that they will not soon forget, as this stock was refused in some cases and in others was not paid for and was consequently a dead loss. Immense quantities of green and berries made up in wreaths and bunches have been sold. Of course all the flower stores were looking their very best, the show windows decorated with the cream of everything. Especially was this so with Alex. Mann, the Polk street florist, the largest store of the kind in the western addition. Fourteen employes, all counted, were looking after Mr. Mann's interests. He says the day before Christmas was worth $1,000 cash to him. Pelicano & Co., Podesta & Co., Sievers & Boland, Mr. Stevenson and the Shannahan Floral Co., all report the busiest and best Christmas they ever experienced.

Business since New Year's has been rather quiet, in fact the quietest for years past at this time, giving the growers a chance to recuperate their stock from the over-forcing it received during the holidays. Roses are of considerably better quality than before, especially Beauties and Bridesmaids, showing a deeper color, larger size and good stiff stems. The same may be said of carnations, which, since the dark weather is gone, are stiffening up again and the bluish tint in the pink varieties has disappeared. Violets are not overplentiful, but there are enough to fill all demands. Hyacinths are almost gone and in their place freesias are coming in, which find a ready sale.

San Francisco and vicinity has passed through the most severe rainstorm on record for this season, considerable damage being done to the growers. Among the heaviest losers is Edw. Schwerin, of the Visitation Valley Nursery, half of a new house 30x200 feet being blown down, ruining a beautiful crop of carnations. About seventy-five boxes of large glass, 16x24, were broken. He is now busily engaged in repairing. At Mrs. Pyatt's nursery one house 20x200 is level with the ground, but as nothing of value was underneath the roof, the loss amounts to the glass and lumber. Besides this some sheds and a windmill were capsized. Other heavy losers are Grallert & Co., of Colma, who lost their new windmill and pumps, which by falling smashed a barn and some outhouses. The damage on glass amounts to about seven or eight boxes. Mr. Pottet also lost fifty boxes of glass and Ferrari Brothers about twenty-five boxes. At Fick & Faber's a smokestack was blown down and some ventilators torn off their hinges, the loss on glass being about ten boxes.

Jack Young, of Dwightway Nursery, is bringing in some fine Beauties and Bridesmaids. He has changed almost all his houses from benches to solid beds and judging from the way his stock looks at the present time he has made no mistake.

Pelicano and Chiapari are receiving some wonderfully fine Bridesmaids from Mr. Nickolsen, of Alameda, and Mr. Simons, of the same place.

Sievers & Co. are sending in their usual fine carnations; nothing in sight to heat them. GOLDEN GATE.

Pittsburg.

BUSINESS CONTINUES BRISK AND THE SUPPLY OF STOCK IS INADEQUATE TO MEET DEMANDS.—CLUB NOMINATES OFFICERS.

The trade in Pittsburg, Allegheny and surrounding towns for the past few days has been very good. The falling off in business which usually comes after the holiday season did not last long and was not noticed to any great extent. Cut flowers have been very scarce of late in this vicinity, due to the dark weather and the steady demand for them. Carnations are good but roses are lacking in quality. There are no Beauties to amount to anything. Bulbous flowers are coming in instead but there have not been enough of them as yet to supply the demand. Lilies are still scarce. Plant decorations have been quite numerous and Randolph & McClements and A. W. Smith have been having some very large work in this line.

The Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Gardeners' Club met January 10 at the rooms of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Company about fifteen of the sixty-seven members attending. The nomination of officers for the coming term was the business of the meeting. The following is a list of those who were nominated: President, William Falconer, superintendent of Schenley Park; vice-president, E. C. Rineman, of Allegheny; secretary, E. C. Ludwig, of Allegheny; treasurer, F. Burki, of Bellevue, and John Bader, of Allegheny. The florists should take a greater interest in their club. It would be of benefit to them individually and of great benefit to them as a whole throughout the country.

Perhaps it will be well to mention for the benefit of his friends that William Clarke, treasurer of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., has gone into politics in the little town of Sheraden where he has lived for a number of years. We can only wish him success. WOODWARD.

Montreal.

MEETING OF THE CLUB.—STATE OF BUSINESS.—WHOLESALE PRICES RISING.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The meeting of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, on January 14 was quite well attended and two new members were elected, Fred. Frappier and Samuel Ward. The membership is increasing steadily. After the routine business was over, a number of questions of interest were discussed before the club. At the close of the meeting, Mr. Whitting read a paper, how to plant a garden, advocating groups rather than the systematic and regular lines of planting.

The trade is quiet for the season and the raising of the prices by the wholesalers is far from improving retail business. Roses and carnations are fairly good and in fair demand. Violets are fine but lily of the valley and Paper White narcissi are scarce; Romans are more plentiful. Mignonette is not wanted, not even as a green.

John Doyle was in the city during the holidays, but has now returned to Cacouna.

Antho Simmers, of Toronto, is in town. W. Hall is building a new house.

IOLA, KAN.—W. H. Humfeld, of Humfeld Bros., has been here from Kansas City, looking over the ground with a view to starting a branch establishment. They may determine to build a range of glass here.

FAYETTE, IA.—A few days ago William Goodyear placed a new heater in operation in his greenhouse, and that night it set fire to the establishment, causing the loss in a few moments of the proceeds of three years' labor.

LINCOLN, NEB.—The past week has been cold, but we have had several bright days which have helped to keep up the quality of stock. Trade is up to the average for January, with plenty of everything except carnations. Of these there is a big cut coming in but still more could be sold. In plants there are some fine azaleas, cyclamens, Chinese primroses, and plenty of decorative plants with a steady demand, but no rush.

C. H. F.

CLEVELAND, O.—A swindler has been victimizing the florists here by means of forged checks. His plan is the usual one of making a purchase to be delivered, and offering a check of a larger amount in payment. This man gave his name as John Clayton and was well-dressed, about 25 years of age, weighing 160 pounds, light mustache and hair, and wearing a black suit, brown overcoat and black stiff hat. His checks are signed "W. A. Collier."

"great horticultural thirst." Perhaps some other French scholar can give you the signification of "Voris Neaga."

Tribulations of the Retail Florists.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I firmly agree with Mr. Kreitling regarding what he says of wholesale cut flower dealers, about supplying consumers, and it should also extend to shipments outside of cities. I can call to mind one instance when a leading society lady offered her services to a was-to-be bride, to furnish the wedding flowers and decorations at a much cheaper price than the regular retail florists, which she did, and I now understand she obtained from a Chicago wholesale house about $100 worth of flowers and smilax for the occasion, cheating the regular florist out of at least $50. A little later the same lady wanted flowers for a funeral and obtained them from the same source, and goes farther and tells her friends she can obtain her flowers much cheaper, in fact, at less than half the price of the regular florist. The wholesalers should get together and remedy this in some way. They are surely killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

J. D. IMLAY.

Ward Heirs go to Law.

It is said that David Ward, of Pontiac' Mich., father of the manager of the Cottage Gardens, never had a lawsuit, but his heirs have become involved in one of considerable magnitude. When Mr.
Ward died he left an estate estimated as worth $12,000,000, the heirs to which are the widow, six children and fourteen grandchildren. The executors of the estate are Geo. H. Root, Will C. Ward and Franklin B. Ward. They are given six years in which to close up the estate, and pay over the proceeds to the various legatees. The executors now propose to build a railroad upon land in West Virginia which belongs to the estate, to extend a similar railroad to Charlevoix, Mich., and to invest $250,000 in a sawmill at Menominee, Mich. To this, some of the heirs, notably C. W. Ward, of Queens, Long Island, make strenuous objection. Mr. Ward recently began proceedings before Judge George W. Smith, at Pontiac, Mich., to restrain the executors from making these contemplated investments, and the court on January 12 granted a temporary injunction. Mr.

Ward claims that the proposed action of those in charge of the estate would result in a decided loss to the estate, falling eventually upon the residuary legatees.

The Price of Glass.

On Thursday, January 17, every jobber of window glass was notified of the new scale of discounts which has been agreed upon by the two organizations which now practically control the manufacture of glass in this country. The new scale effects an advance of virtually twenty per cent all along the line. Of course this advance does not restore prices to the altitude to which they had attained prior to the trust's great cut a year or more ago, it would take practically a fifty per cent advance to do that, but it means an increased cost of about 1½ cents per square foot on all greenhouses built this season, for little glass has been sold thus far. The glass industry is fast being ground down to a fine point of organization, even the jobbers in the west now having a strong agreement with penalties inflicted for price cutting. It is an open secret that the American manufacturers have their little hatchets out for the Belgians who are cutting into the window glass trade at the seaboard, but the Belgian blowers have been on strike this season and the industry there is not in a flourishing condition or aggressive position. The chances are against any lower prices this season for greenhouse sizes and there is even a possibility of a further advance.

Society of American Florists.

GREETING TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS:
—The society of which you are honored members fittingly closed the nineteenth century with the grandest and most comprehensive exhibition and convention, in New York, last August, ever held in this country, an exhibition which in the opinion of many competent judges was equal to, if it did not actually surpass, anything ever shown in any country.
We enter the twentieth century stronger as a society than ever before in our history. We have accomplished much, but there is much yet to be achieved. A national charter is one of the objects aimed at; closer relations between the parent society and special trade societies is desired; the development of our natural resources for the production of much which we now import is essential; the collection and dissemination of facts which bear on a higher development of our products is necessary; a more active aid from national and state experiment stations is needed. These and many other valuable advantages may be secured, but united, active support of officers and committees is necessary. A large increase in membership was obtained the past year, but there are hundreds, yes, thousands, outside the fold who should be in, and can be brought in by earnest individual effort. Solicit your friends and neighbors to join the society; impress upon them the advantages of co-operation. The society has obtained cheaper postage, cheaper expressage, cheaper freight; has obtained valuable legislation. It has created a trade press which disseminates valuable information and provides a medium whereby they can buy and sell at an advantage unknown before its establishment. They cannot afford to stand by, idle; they may lose, we all may lose, some of the advantages gained unless we present a solid and gradually extending front. With a growth in membership our powers will increase, our influence widen.

Don't forget your state vice-presidents; send them reports of what is being done in horticulture in your neighborhood. If your state legislature is considering measures bearing on your business get your state vice-president to take the matter up and then support him in his efforts. If existing state laws can be amended for your benefit do likewise. Send suggestions for the improvement of the society to the secretary, who will bring them before the executive committee in due season. Take a lively interest in the society's affairs at all times; it will pay you to do so. Become life members; in this prosperous year celebrate the opening of the new century on a firmer basis. Last but not least, prepare to attend the convention in Buffalo next August. The horticultural department of the Pan-American Exposition will surpass anything of the kind ever seen. Show by your presence that you appreciate the effort.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year and soliciting your hearty co-operation, we remain for success,

Fraternally yours,
 PATRICK O'MARA, President.
 WM. J. STEWART, Secretary.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLOGIANO,
Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD Wethersfield, Conn.,
Sec'y and Treas.

VISITED CHICAGO: Thomas H. Hill, of D. Landreth & Sons, Philadelphia.

THE crop of Lavender Branching aster is again extremely short this year.

REPORTS from London, Eng., are to the effect that stocks and crops of clover seed are proving short.

THE death is announced of William Herbert Dunnett, of the firm of James Carter & Co., London, Eng.

F. W. BRUGGERHOF, president of the firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co., puts it well when he says a love of gardening is the measure of a nation's refinement.

Wholesale Seedsmen Protest.

The House committee on agriculture to-day gave a hearing to the wholesale seedsmen who argued against the free distribution of seed by the government.
They contended that the government was interfering with private business.—
shington Star, January 8.

Unfair Competition.

The agency which handled our advertising last season has forwarded us a letter received by them from the American Sheep Breeder, published by W. W. Burch, of Chicago, in which they solicit an advertisement from us, but state that being large handlers of Dwarf Essex rape seed themselves they would not care to have us advertise rape seed in their paper, the letter being dictated by Mr. W. W. B.

It seems to us that the limit of endurance has been reached when papers, not content with directly competing with seedsmen in their own line of trade, make a condition for entrance into their columns, that seedsmen shall not offer seed the paper itself is handling and which is the very one item which would seem most likely to be sold to their readers. It is said that the worm will turn. Seedsmen generally are a meek and long suffering class, but it does seem as though they ought to refuse to support papers which, while soliciting their support with one hand are knifing them with the other.

NORTHRUP, KING & Co.

The Destructive Pea Louse.

In a recent bulletin of the Delaware Experiment Station E. D. Sanderson gives the following information with regard to the destructive pea louse: "The destructive pea louse destroyed fifty-six percent of the Delaware pea crop in 1899 and with dry weather caused a loss of forty-seven per cent in 1900. Injury was much worse to peas sown broadcast or in 8-inch drills. The lice feed upon clover in late fall, winter and spring. Large numbers of the lice are destroyed by parasitic and predaceous insects, but more by a fungous disease. This disease is more prevalent in wet springs when the lice are consequently less numerous. If practicable, clover badly infested with lice should be deeply plowed under and rolled to prevent their spread to peas.
Peas planted upon well fertilized land, and frequently cultivated, will sometimes bear a fair crop though attacked by the lice. Plant only in rows eighteen to thirty inches apart. Do not plant late peas next season. In warm weather with dry soil, brush the vines with pine branches during mid-day and follow the brushes by a cultivator. Otherwise, brush the lice from the vines into a shallow pan drawn between the rows and partially filled with water and kerosene."

Galveston, Tex.

After the holidays everything is very quiet. Thomas Shimins keeps his store open but Mrs. Eickholt's store is closed; however, a sign reads that it will open again January 15. Everybody is trans-planting seedlings and offering them for sale at low prices.

At present we are having fine weather, and cyclamens, azaleas and hyacinths are showing the effects of this in breaking from buds to blossoms in full gaiety of spring life.

Otto Fehrlin hails now from Dallas, having found, after a long journey to west, north and east, with some experience, that Texas is the place for him to live.

The Acme Nursery of F. G. Laeverenz is now permanently located in Houston, the last carload of plants going up a week ago.
J. D. P.

FALL RIVER, MASS.—Michael Conroy made an assignment on January 10 to A.
J. Edgell. He estimated his assets as worth $300 and his liabilities amount to $1,850

MADISON, WIS.—Mrs. A. Guillaume, the florist of La Crosse, opened a store here November 1 and reports good business.
Her daughter, Miss Emma Guillaume, is in charge.

MINNAPOLIS, MINN.—Welch & Cole have begun work on three greenhouses to be erected at Thirty-first street and Irving avenue South, for the Minneapolis Floral Company. The cost is estimated at $12,000.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.;
GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

ROCHESTER is without question the first nursery center of the United States; Troy, Ohio, and Bloomington, Ills., each claim second place.

C. L. WATROUS, of Des Moines, Ia., believes that he sees many reasons for abandoning the Americana plum, but J. M. Wragg, of Wauke, believes the Iowa plum is second in value only to the apple.

PLANTERS for decorative effect are making large use of weeping trees and of these there is none more desirable than Teas' weeping mulberry, some fine specimens of which are to be seen in Lincoln Park, Chicago.

It is said that orchardists all over the northwest are turning their attention to the apple in the hope of securing a seedling which will win the prize of $1,000 offered by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society for a variety of apple equal to Duchess in hardiness, to the Wealthy in size, appearance and quality and the Malinda in keeping capacity.

Moving Large Trees.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—It seems to me that "C. B. W." goes to a great deal of trouble in moving a large tree. I think I could give a method much more simple than he described in a recent issue of your journal, and one which would be far less expensive. It is one which I have used many times with success. When I lived in the north, in New York, I did considerable of this moving of large trees, and made it a practice to cover the ground around the trees in the fall to prevent the ball from freezing. Then after freezing weather came I would take a force of men and cut out the ball according to the size of the tree to be moved, and pack the bottom of the ball with straw or leaves, leaving the ball to become frozen solid. After it was frozen we would hitch a yoke of oxen to the top of the tree to lay it flat, making a sloping excavation to the bottom of the ball and turn the whole ball and tree out upon what is called a stoneboat. Then two, four or six oxen, according to the size of the load, would serve to transport the tree to its place of planting, and there you are.

MEAGER SHOWING OF ROSES AND VIOLETS AT THE MONTHLY MEETING OF THE LOCAL ORGANIZATION.—GOOD CARNATIONS ARE EXHIBITED.—NOTES OF VARIOUS DOINGS.

The exhibition at the club rooms last Saturday looked as though there was a famine of violets and roses, there being only two entries in each of these classes. C. Goldman, of Middletown, was first for violets, having a unique way of showing them. He arranged a small dinner table, having dishes and silver ware, with violets for favors and a large basket in the center filled with violets. Corbett & Wilson were second, with a very creditable display. In roses Gus. Meier was first in all classes. W. K. Partridge had remarkably fine Brides but there were fourteen blooms in his vase instead of twelve and the judges ruled him out. In carnations Mr. Partridge was first in all four classes and showed some extra fine blooms of Morning Glory, Marquis, Lawson, Crane, Glacier, Peru and America. He received honorable mention for the best display. Richard Witterstaetter, as usual, had his Enquirer, bigger and better than ever. Also that new seedling, 723 A., the largest and best white we have ever seen. He had a vase of new scarlet seedlings on exhibition which were eye-openers. His vase of Elinora was also all right.

There are two ladies in the flower business in this city who have toiled early and late for the past twenty-seven years. The writer has reference to Mrs. H. A. Kresken and her daughter Ada, who have worked side by side all these years. "Mother Kresken," as the boys call her, says that she intends disposing of her store and taking a trip abroad the coming summer. Having by hard work earned a competency for the balance of life she certainly deserves a vacation.

A. Sunderbruch & Sons have been as busy as they could be with decorations and funeral work ever since the holidays. This firm has been disposing of a very great many American Beauties this year. Lloyd Vaughan, of Chicago, is the first bulb man to arrive and from the appearance of his countenance it looks as though the early bird were getting the worm.

Springfield, Mass.

Business has not been very brisk since the entry of the twentieth century, but still we cannot complain, as a short rest gives us a chance to prepare ourselves for emergency. Flowers are more plentiful but very few go to waste. Carnations have dropped in price, two of our florists having cut to 25 cents per dozen, but our leading dealer still gets 35 cents and 50 cents a dozen and can sell all he has. Lemuel Morgan, of Longmeadow, is bringing in some fine carnations and, by the way, grows quite a few seedlings that are as good as the majority that are sent out. One in particular is a cerise pink in its third year and has improved right along. It is a continuous bloomer, a robust grower, has a perfect calyx, bloom three to three and one-half inches, stem long and wiry, holding its bloom erect. We would like to see it go to Baltimore in February.

FORCING PLANTS FOR WINTER AND EASTER FLOWERING.

HARDY AZALEA MOLLIS

These varieties have for many years been very popular for forcing in Europe, and have in recent years met with considerable favor here in the United States, and when better known are certain to gain in popularity, especially for early forcing.

We are handling the stock of one of the most successful specialists, and can supply fine, bushy plants, 12 to 15 inches high, finely set with buds. $1.50 per dozen; $35 per 100.

AZALEA INDICA, for Easter.

DEUTZIA GRACILIS ROSEA. (New)

Identical with the above in general habit, but with flowers fully double the size of that graceful variety, to which is added the additional charm of being suffused with a delicate rosy tint, just sufficient to relieve the dead white which is objectionable in the type, and which will undoubtedly place it in the front rank of shrubs for winter forcing. A limited lot of one-year-old plants.

$2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

DEUTZIA LEMOINEI.

This is now one of the standard varieties for forcing. It surpasses D. Gracilis in its very large flowers being nearly three times the size of the latter variety. These are produced in large cone-shaped heads of 20 to 30 flowers each, and of the purest white. Strong one-year-old plants, suitable for 6-in. pots.

The enthusiastic sporting aggregation whose members make their home on the west side of the Hudson, is keeping industriously at it every Wednesday evening and when they get down to business can show a bunch of expert bowlers that they think able to hold their own anywhere. On Monday afternoon, January 14, there was a full attendance and an abundance of entertainment and frolic on the bowling alleys. Scores ran pretty high, as the following table shows. Frank Traendly accomplished the feat of beating Theo. Lang's best score of the day. This made him entirely too "chesty" and he narrowly escaped annihilation at the hands of Theo. THE OLD YEAR WENT OUT BRISKLY AND THE NEW ONE BROUGHT GOOD BUSINESS. —MEETING OF THE CLUB—EXHIBITS, PAPERS AND DISCUSSIONS.—VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST.

The busiest season on record shares itself with two centuries. A good finish and a good beginning has the social world made this time, and trade largely depends upon society's functions. The hall of the season was given at the pavilion on January 11, and most of the gentler sex used a few flowers for adornment. Cut flower stock is of good quality, with enough to go around. Violets and lily of the valley are more plentiful; Beauties are looking well and a good crop is expected in a few days. Bridesmaids are the best at present. Liberty is also picking up but only a few stray blossoms are to be had. Freesias are now in the market, Wm. Mackay being the first to cut them. Jennings, of Brampton, is sending in some good pointsettias, which would have done much better had they not missed the holidays. Dunlop is cutting some fine spikes of Allan's Defiance mignonette.

A meeting of the Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, and it was pleasing to see so many in attendance. Our new president officiated, and he was very desirous of arousing more enthusiasm among the craftsmen. He appointed a committee to find some means of making our meetings more interesting. Mr. Dunlop exhibited a fine lot of the newer varieties of carnations which were very creditable to the grower and well deserved the vote of thanks extended to him. Mr. Dunlop and Mr. Vair read papers on the advance of horticulture in the past century. During a discussion after the reading, Mr. Vair, referring to the carnation, said he did not think the advancement on these flowers was what it should have been and referred to Thos. Manton, who gave us a synopsis of what he had read in a florists' or gardeners' book published about 1846, that the carnation should have a stem thirty-six to forty inches long, strong and wiry enough to have the flowers looking at the sun, a bloom three and one-half to four inches across, the side buds to be almost as large as the crown flowers and the penceling of the flowers not to be irregular. This led to other topics and the meeting was very interesting. After the usual business Mr. Mills, who had charge, served refreshments.

Tidy & Son are redecorating their store and Simmons has added some drapery to his furnishings. H. G. D.

HACKENSACK, N. J.—The greenhouses owned by C. W. Petty, operated by Henry Hughes, were damaged by fire on the morning of January 5. An overheated furnace was the cause of the loss, which amounts to $400 on the stock and $200 on the buildings, the latter item covered by insurance.

Rooted Carnation Cuttings

No better Carnation Blooms were ever offered in the Chicago market than those we are shipping out this season. Our plants are in perfect health and every cutting offered is well rooted and in first-class condition. We have all the fancy sorts.

Ethel Crocker

WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers. With the largest stock of this variety grown by any one grower in the country I can fill your orders with carefully selected cuttings, at

D. CARMICHAEL, Wellesley, Mass.

Please mention the American Florist to our advertisers.

Madison, N. J.

The annual smoker of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society on the evening of January 9 was an unqualified success and the seventy-five gentlemen who were in attendance have all been saying to their friends ever since, "You don't know what you missed." Beyond a doubt this very enterprising organization understands the art of social intercourse and entertainment as well as its members understand their business, and those who were fortunate enough to see the great prize winning groups of plants staged by Morris county gardeners at the convention in New York last year know what that means.

There was first a business meeting at which the year's work was reviewed, officers' reports presented, etc., all indicating a high degree of prosperity. Then followed the presentation of a gavel to President Duckham, who has been honored with a re-election. After this pleasant little episode the fun began and while the entertainment was going on refreshments were dispensed with a liberal hand. The company included a number of visitors from New York, Orange and other neighboring towns.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Henry Hass will take possession of Mr. McLellan's present stand, Nuss & Atwater moving into the room now occupied by Mr. Hass.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—The eighth annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society will be held here January 29 and 30. An elaborate programme has been prepared by Secretary J. B. Garvin of this city.

Norway

LARGE COMMERCIAL WHITE CARNATION. We are pleased to announce to the trade that we have in Norway a commercial white that combines size with productiveness, and therefore must of necessity be a money making carnation. It is exceptionally healthy and vigorous in growth, is not subject to spot and is entirely free from rust. Stem is always strong at any season of the year. Flowers open rapidly, and is a keeper of the first water. In short it is the white carnation the trade has been looking for for a long time. We recommend it as the best money making white carnation ever offered.

Egypt

A RICH, SCARLET CRIMSON. A radical departure from all other crimson now on the market. Color is unsurpassed in this class; size of bloom 3 inches and over. It has moderate commercial stems 2 1/4 to 3 feet, and extra strong. It has also a strong spicy odor. In these two points it excels all other crimson. In growth it is healthy and vigorous; is in good flower by November 1 to 15, always commands a high price. It is so distinct that every grower will need it. It is the best keeper of all the dark varieties, a strictly high grade flower that sells at sight.

Price for the above two varieties, $1.50 per doz., $10 per 100, $75 per 1000. Ready February 15th.

Genevieve Lord

THE GREATEST MONEY MAKING PINK CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED. Since making her entree last February, Genevieve Lord has acquired a host of staunch friends. We have been congratulated by large and small growers alike on its good behavior and money earning capacity. It has thus far proved our every claim for it, and bids fair to outdo in every particular the old favorite, Wm. Scott. Our stock is in extra fine shape; free from all disease. Ready now. All orders booked and shipped in strict rotation. A good thing is soon exhausted; don't wait, but place your order at once. Price $6 per 100, $50 per 1000.

Also Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Marquis, Estelle, Crocker, Olympia, Morning Glory, J. Whitcomb Riley and the best standard sorts. Correspondence invited.

We have a large stock of TIMOTHY EATON CHRYSANTHEMUM, also all other new and standard varieties. Write us for anything you may want. Our plants have an enviable reputation.

GEO. HANCOCK & SON, Grand Haven, Mich.

Albany, N. Y.

W. C. King, who has lately assumed charge of the establishment at 30 North Pearl street, formerly conducted by Samuel Goldring, is busily engaged in making improvements. Carpenters are at work fitting up a store and packing room about thirty feet square in the rear of his main floor. Other improvements including an ice chest with French plate glass mirrors will be introduced shortly. Mr. King reports that business has been excellent during the past month.

H. G. Eyres has opened a neat flower stand, in connection with his Pearl street store, in the new Union Station which has just been erected in Albany. The booth is the only one of the kind in the handsome new structure and is another evidence that Brother Eyres is wide awake and up-to-date.

F. M. Orcutt, of Boston, representing John C. Meyer & Co., was in town a few days ago and "Mr. Barclay of Barclay street," who represents Vaughan's New York store was welcomed by several of the local florists during the past week.

Troy, N. Y.

Mrs Herman Leiderly, who for a short time conducted the floral establishment of her husband after his death, has sold the property to persons who will erect dwelling houses upon the site. Two of the greenhouses have already been demolished and the work of removing the others is under way.

Walter Mott, with Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, visited the members of the trade during the past week.

Trade is very quiet, being confined largely to funeral work and minor orders.

REPORT OF THE JUDGES

Appointed by THE PHILA. FLORISTS' CLUB to judge our grand new ROSE

Queen of Edgely, PINK..... AMERICAN BEAUTY.

"We are convinced that this variety is a valuable addition to the list of forcing roses, being in every respect, except color, the exact counterpart of the American Beauty. The color is a beautiful, bright pink, which is good, even in the full flowers. The fragrance is also as fine as that of Beauty, and the exhibited blooms showed remarkable vigor." (Signed),

ROBERT KIFT, WM. MUNRO, JOS. HEACOCK."

The last two named were winners of first prizes for American Beauties at the Rose Show, Eden Musee, March 27, 1900.

BUSINESS GOOD AND STOCK ABUNDANT.— THE INAUGURAL BALL CONTRACT.

Trade is fair and stock is equal to demand. Wm. Crawford had the decoration for Mrs. Senator Foster's tea at "The Cairo" last week, the ball room and several adjoining rooms being used for the occasion, Bridesmaid roses and wild smilax predominating in the floral work.

J. H. Small & Sons have been awarded the contract for the inaugural ball decorations at their bid of $4,500. Z. D. Blackstone was the only other local bidder.

P. G.

Columbus, O.

Gloomy weather has had bad effect on stock in general and there have been no good Meteor roses since before the holidays. Society was rather quiet about Columbus during the past week but there was a brisk demand for funeral work.

Affleck Bros., who suffered quite a loss by fire a year ago, are cutting some pretty good stock this season and we think with another year's experience these clever boys will be up with any of them.

Sherman Stevens has struck a soil near his place that makes his roses hum; a better lot of roses has never been seen about this city. Of course Sherman and his staff have a great deal to do with the excellent condition of this stock but there is a great deal in the soil he has used, which he is ready to admit.

Charles Ball, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Co., was a caller this week.

GARDENERS' CLUB AFFILIATES WITH STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—DISCUSSION OF PLANT DISEASES.—TREATMENT FOR CALLA DISEASE.—OFFICERS OF FLORISTS' EXCHANGE.

There was a very fair attendance at the last meeting of the Gardeners' Club, which, by the way, has become affiliated with the State Horticultural Society. The chief attraction was a lecture with stereopticon illustrations on the causes of some plant diseases, by Prof. C. A. Townshend. The calla rot and stem rot in carnations were taken up in the course of the lecture and Prof. Townshend showed on the screen the microscopic germs causing the trouble. The calla rot he attributed to a species of bacteria, and the stem rot to a minute fungus, the filaments of which choke the water channels in the stem and cause decay. He strongly advocates removing every particle of the diseased plant and burning it, though he acknowledges the difficulty, if not impossibility of purifying the soil when these exceedingly small growths once obtain a foothold in it. Thos. C. Stevenson, reported having put what calla roots he had left, whether diseased or not, in a barrel the first of last June, with enough air-slaked lime between them to keep them separated, and leaving them in that condition for two months. When repotted they seemed healthy and up to this time have shown no trace of rot.

At the stockholders' meeting of the Florists' Exchange the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, I. H. Moss; vice-president, Jno. M. Rider; secretary, Wm. Fraser; treasurer, Ed. Kress. The board of directors consists of the above named gentlemen and Fred. Bauer, Ed. Akehurst and Chas. Feast. The affairs of the exchange are reported to be in flourishing condition.

There has been a great deal of funeral work of late and some of the best ever turned out was seen at the recent observances of a society leader. MACK.

WAYNE, PENN.—Thomas Etchingam, of this city, and Miss Annie Noon, of Philadelphia, were married in that city on Wednesday, January 9.

ADRIAN, MICH.—The fiftieth anniversary of the Lenawee County Horticultural Society will be celebrated February 13. An elaborate programme is in preparation for the occasion.

Awarded the only first-class Certificate of Merit by the Society of American Florists at Boston, Aug. 21 1890, for Standard Flower Pots.

or MOISTURE GAUGE.

THIS Moisture Gauge tells you the difference between dryness and dampness in your greenhouses. We have been testing two of these moisture gauges several months and find they are more indispensable than the thermometer. If you keep this moisture gauge at 70 degrees you will have neither mildew nor red spider in your rose houses. If you keep it at 80 degrees you will not have rust nor red spider in your carnation houses. If you keep it at 85 degrees you will never have fungus in your rooted cutting houses. If you keep it at 75 degrees degrees you will not have decayed leaves in your geranium houses; and if you have a moisture gauge in every house 100 feet long and keep it at above figures you will make at least $100 more per year from each house. Who wants to buy mildewed roses or rusty carnations?

To operate this moisture gauge it is essential to wet the walks in order to get the proper dampness. If your houses are too damp in the winter, fire up a little and in summer time open your ventilators. This has been obtained only by years of experience. Now you can tell your greenhouse hands to keep it at 70 or 80 degrees as you want it, just as you tell your fireman to keep the temperature in such a house at 60 degrees. We never had any intention to sell moisture gauges but they are doing us so much good we have obtained some we can sell at $2.50 each, but we think you will want more. These moisture gauges are made in Germany and France. The French machines come at $10.00 each; they are quite an ornament and no cheap truck. We will give one of the $2.50 machines FREE for a $20.00 order for plants, or rooted cuttings, or unrooted cuttings, from our 1901 catalogue, or from our ads. in the trade papers; or we will send you one for $2.50, and after 10 days' trial if you do not like it you may return it and get your money back.

Hardy Herbaceous Plants For Florists.

[Read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia by Ernest Hemming, January 3, 1901.]

It would appear from the title of this paper that hardy herbaceous perennials are a separate class of plants from those usually grown by florists, yet two if not three out of the plants most commonly grown certainly belong to the hardy herbaceous perennials. These are the carnation, violet and chrysanthemum; and if you will only stop to consider their origin and compare the beautiful race of carnations now grown with its progenitors, Dianthus caryophyllus and fruticosus, the chrysanthemum with the original species, Chrysanthemum Indicum, and note the improvement in the violet, you will readily see how ambiguous the title is.

The hardy herbaceous perennials stand in the same relative position to the florists' flowers as the common masses of people do to the leading men of the day. While all are necessary to our economy, only the few come to the front as shining lights. While some are born to high position, like the rose and carnation, yet they all had common ancestry.

It is very evident to any one conversant with the florists' business, that novelty is one of the trump cards of the successful florist, and when you consider the numerous varieties of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, etc. on the market, it hardly seems possible to hope for very striking novelties in that direction. With the general public a new carnation or chrysanthemum has to be labeled, "this is new," before it will attract attention.

Where will the novelties be recruited from? I should say that most of them will undoubtedly come from among the hardy herbaceous perennials. There is certainly a vast field for work to improve and adapt the most promising for the flower market.

If there is one genus of plants that offers a more promising field for success than another it is the wild aster, miserable weeds as they are considered by many. They certainly contain all the elements required to produce a race of florists' flowers equal to the chrysanthemum—robust constitution, good habit, good range of color—and it responds readily to good cultivation, besides possessing a natural grace and beauty and a lengthy flowering season.

There are already a considerable number of hybrids and improved varieties of the different species. I counted seventeen varieties of Aster Novi Belgii catalogued by one nurseryman, four of Novæ Angliæ, besides improved forms of other species, but I am sorry to say they are mostly of foreign origin.

When we consider the aster is indigenous to the New World, and therefore comparatively new when compared with the carnation and chrysanthemum, that have been under the care of the horticulturist for ages, their future usefulness seems almost assured.

With the general run of hardy herbaceous perennials, time of flowering is one of the most important considerations to the florist, and for convenience sake I will divide them into three sections, spring, summer and fall bloomers.

The early spring flowering perennials seem to be the most useful to the florist, owing to the fact that most of them can be forced into bloom before flowers are plentiful outside, such as Spiræa astilboides, S. multiflora, Primula veris, P. vulgaris, German iris, iberis, deronicum, heuchera, lily of the valley, pæonies, dicentra and many others. These, along with the spring flowering bulbs, force very readily and are well known to the florist trade. As regards this section, a very good rule to go by is: All plants that bloom in the open by May, either in herbaceous plants or shrubs, can be forced, with more or less success, and it is useless to attempt to force any of the summer or fall blooming plants.

Success rather depends on the condition of the plants in the fall than their treatment in early spring, because the flower buds are to a more or less extent formed at that time, and I should strongly advocate that they be established in pots the fall previous, and stored in frames, with sufficient protection from the frost to keep the pots uninjured, until it is desired to bring them in.

There are many beautiful subjects among the summer blooming plants and I have often heard florists remark: "If I could only have a house of so and so about Christmas there would be money in it." And doubtless there would, but it seems well nigh impossible to completely change their flowering season from midsummer to midwinter, and I do not think it has ever been done in a practical manner. Yet from observation, I think it is possible. Take, for instance, that section of plants more of a biennial nature, such as hollyhocks, digitalis, Campanula Medium, Polemonium œruleum and others. I have noticed they have a tendency to bloom the first year from seed when the season is a long one. It seems possible that if they were sown in early spring and kept growing all summer so as to have them established in pots, before the cold weather comes taking them inside, that there can be nothing to prevent them from blooming without their winter rest, as they differ from the spring blooming plants by not having their flower buds developed during the winter's rest. Of course it is only a theory and given rather as a suggestion to those interested enough to work on those lines.

As regards the fall blooming plants, there does not appear to be much scope for controlling their flowering season, and their value to the florist rather depends on their improvement. Among this section come the asters already mentioned.

If I may be allowed to express an opinion on such matters, I think the tendency of popular taste is toward natural beauty; this is plainly seen by comparing the floral work of the present with that of the past. The waning of the popularity of the big show dahlias and chrysanthemums, with the increased popularity of the cosmos and sweet pea, and the eliminating of all formal design in landscape gardening seem to confirm my views. Such being the case, it behooves all progressive florists to keep an eye on the hardy herbaceous perennials.

Among the kinds that would be likely to prove useful for the general florist to plant and be allowed to bloom in their natural season, taking them in the order of flowering are Pæonia tenuitolia, P. officinalis and the Chinese section. Pæonies are an exception to the general rule. In the matter of replanting, the longer they are left undisturbed, with an occasional top-dressing, the better they flower, while most herbaceous perennials come to their best the second and third year after planting and then gradually become weedy and poor.

When speaking of the iris I always have a tendency to become enthusiastic in a way that would be liable to make the average florist tired. They are undoubtedly beautiful, and possibly the Germanica section is the most desirable for the florist. Their one great fault is that they do not last and are very poor subjects to handle when cut.

When I first saw the baby primrose in the florists' stores the thought came to me: "I wonder if this will not result in the advent of many more of the primulas, because there are between seventy and eighty species, many of them very beautiful and adapted to florists' use, and yet very few are known to the florists' trade.

While the Japanese irises are in bloom, other hardy perennials must take a back seat, but, like the German irises, their flowering season is brief, but the style of beauty is so distinct that if an oriental style of decoration is desired, no other flower could be used that is so characteristic. While they thrive in almost any locality, wet ground is necessary to produce them to perfection.

There is more than sufficient material about the campanulas to form an essay of itself. The numerous little alpine species are ideal subjects for pot culture, but whether they will ever become of real commercial value to the American florists will only be known by trial. The larger growing kinds, such as Campanula grandiflora, C. Mariesii, C. persicifolia and its varieties, C. latifolia and C. glomerata are undoubtedly good subjects for cutting during the summer.

The prevailing color of delphiniums should alone be sufficient to attract the florist. The commonest species, with their varieties, are perhaps the most useful. Delphinium formosum, D. exaltatum and D. Chinense, sown early in spring, flower the first year from seed, so that there is a reasonable possibility of flowering them during the winter; in fact, I have succeeded in isolated cases, but if you have snails in your establishment don't attempt it.

Phlox decussata or paniculata is undoubtedly a florists' flower and, could it be flowered in winter, would vie with the chrysanthemum in its usefulness. As it is, its merits are winning an increased popularity, as the many and new varieties attest. A good many of us think of it only as the old-fashioned phlox of pinkish purple and white. Now, in good collections, can be seen a splendid range of form and color, from the palest pink to the brightest crimson, and from the delicate shades of violet and lavender to the darkest purple. Very pretty pot plants can be grown by striking the young shoots as soon as possible in spring and growing them in such a manner as you would a single stemmed chrysanthemum, and flowering them in four or five-inch pots. When the retailer sells them he will have the additional privilege of truthfully telling his customers that they are perfectly hardy.

If there is a reason why those beautiful fall flowering plants, Japanese anemones, should not be grown by the florist, I should like to hear it. With the possible exception that they bloom a little ahead of the activity of the flower market, they are very little earlier than the chrysanthemum. To be grown profitably the cut blooms will have to command a good price, as the production of the individual plant is limited. I have found the main points in the most successful method of growing them are to put in root cuttings about one inch long during February or March and pot on as required, shading them in hot weather during the summer, giving them abundance of water, with good drainage and being sure to look out for the blister beetle during July.

The above are perhaps the best known and most showy of the hardy perennials, but they by no means represent all of those useful to the florist. Such kinds as Lobelia cardinalis, gaillardias, Pentstemon Digitalis, Pyrethrum roseum and

P. uliginosum, Rudbeckia Golden Glow and the speciosa section, Helianthus multiflorus, H. Maximilliani and H. orgyalis are all worthy of attention, if there is any spare ground around the establishment.

So far I have only written of the usefulness of those suitable for cut flowers and pot culture, but there is a very large trade done by florists in the way of raising plants for bedding purposes in the spring, and this is where they will become most useful to the florist. The want in the future of the suburban home will be a flower garden on natural lines, and the florist will undoubtedly be called upon to fill that want, either directly or indirectly, of a substitute for the stereotyped summer bedding plants of the present day.

For this purpose the most convenient way to handle the majority of perennials is in pots, for obvious reasons: They require less space, can be packed and shipped to a greater advantage and replanted at almost any time. This applies more especially to the smaller growing kinds. In nearly all cases it is necessary to grow them one year from seed or cuttings to bring them to flowering size and fit them for the florists' market. But no rule can be given to cover them all, as they differ from each other in so many ways. With a wider knowledge of them will come a more extensive use and I trust the motto of the AMERICAN FLORIST will be especially applicable to the hardy herbaceous perennials: "There may be more comfort amidstships, but we are the first to touch unknown seas."

Alfred H. Langjahr.

Visitors to the New York convention, the ladies, especially, who participated in the memorable drive through the parks of Brooklyn, will recognize in the portrait herewith presented, the features of the indefatigable chairman of the Brooklyn entertainment committee who did so much for their pleasure and comfort. Mr. Langjahr comes from good gardening stock, his grandfather, G. Kretchmar, having been one of the pioneers in the Flatbush plant growing industry. Young Langjahr began his business experience in 1891, when he started out to sell the product of his uncles, Messrs. Kretchmar Bros, on commission, being the first commission dealer to locate in the City of Churches. His business has prospered and a good supply of flowers for Brooklyn passes through his hands daily. He has been appointed by President O'Mara as State Vice-President of the S. A. F. for eastern New York.

The Dielytra.

This is what I consider one of the best roots we have for forcing, or making a grand display in our herbaceous borders. Besides being easily grown, few plants are more useful. If you have roots plentiful in the borders get a spade and cut a little bit off each, and pot into 8-inch pots, or rather according to the size of your root. The potting mixture should be turf, leaf mold and sand, using one part of each. Light soil suits. Place in a temperature of 55° to 65° for a few weeks, and after they have grown one foot gradually reduce the heat of your house, as they flower well in a cool greenhouse once they are at that length. This is a plant that is not just finished after done flowering, as you can place the pots in any bare part of the stage for the sake of the nice fern-leaved foliage. The best sorts are spectabilis and s. alba, which is quite new and superior to the older spectabilis. For the front staging of a conservatory, D. eximia comes in very useful, as it only grows about a foot high, and can do with even less heat than spectabilis. The graceful habit of the plant renders it invaluable for decoration. It should certainly be grown more extensively than at present.—T. S. Dick in Gardening World.

What Mr. Dick says about D. spectabilis is very true; but D. spectabilis alba is not by any means a new plant nor is it superior to D. spectabilis. I should say inferior, decidedly; hasn't got the constitution; neither is it a lovelier thing in any way; it will never be a popular plant with the million like D. spectabilis. That good old-fashioned flower is coming in again, and the trade will do well to get up a stock of it for the new generation. I would have liked Mr. Boyd to have included it among his "best twelve." I know he likes it. What could he have been thinking of? G. C. WATSON.

A Wreath On An Easel.

This arrangement again illustrates how important it is that a floral artist have a large variety of material that is not commonly provided by the wholesale grower. As can be easily seen the cut flowers are those now plentiful in market. Lily of the valley and cypripediums are used, softened and rounded out by a bed of adiantums, the balance of the wreath being Bridesmaid roses. Fastened to one leg of the easel is a plant of common cyperus turned out of its pot, wrapped in moss and wired securely. In this are stuck a few other grasses, some of which are in flower, and a few Harrisii lilies. The ball of moss and lower cross bar are covered with a few flat sheets of Ficus repens, as it is pulled off of a wall. The top of the easel is decorated with large fronds of cibotium, the beautiful tree fern, the most serviceable and graceful fronds that can be grown for cut flower work. Each one of these is put in a rubber topped glass tube as soon as cut, and are so wired on the easel as to take their natural growing position. There was no sign of a frond wilting at any time during the day. This arrangement stood in a large room, with a great variety of other pieces, some quite expensive on account of size and the number of high grade flowers used, but this one made a lasting impression upon all who chanced to see it. Florists generally are using too many flowers in their arrangements and make too little use of green. C. B. W.

The Chicago Florists' Club.

The carnation meeting and exhibition of the Florists' Club, held January 18, was one of the most successful in its history. The attendance was very large and two new members were elected, viz., John P. Risch, of Evanston, and Thos. Archer, of St. Joseph, Mich. The Galveston relief fund committee made a final report and was discharged. The carnation exhibition committee on awards, W. N. Rudd, Chas. Knopf and E. R. Gesler, presented a report in which the new varieties exhibited scored points as follows: Mme. Chapman (Henry Smith) 72; White Daybreak (W. P. Harvey) 79; Queen Louise (the committee regrets the variety showed signs of suffering from shipment) 81; Irene, 82; Lorna, 90; Egypt, 82; Norway, 92; Elinora, 82; Guardian Angel (G. A. Orphan Asylum) 85; Mrs. Higinbotham, 80; No. 78 (of Chicago Carnation Co.) variegated, 82; Mrs. Potter Palmer, 77; No. 101 (of Chicago Carnation Co.) white, 90; Pink Armazindy (M. Weiland) 75; Daybreak sport shown by H. Luedtke, Maywood, Ill., no improvement over well grown Daybreak, no award. General display—Well grown blooms of standard sorts as follows: Peter Reinberg, G. H. Crane, The Marquis, Genevieve Lord, Peru, White Cloud, Melba, America, Mrs. T. W. Lawson and Mrs. Frances Joost, also Golden Gate and Liberty roses; W. P. Harvey, Evanston; Bassett & Washburn, Red Bradt (extra fine), The Marquis, Gen. Maceo, Mrs. T. W. Lawson; Nathan Smith & Son, White Cloud, Melba; F. Dorner & Sons Co., Morning Glory; H. Weber & Sons, Genevieve Lord (extra fine); R. Witterstaetter, Enquirer (extra fine); Wm. Kurtz, Wm. Scott, Armazindy; Guardian Angel Orphan Asylum, Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Armazindy, White Cloud; Wieter Bros., White Cloud, The Marquis, Triumph, Flora Hill, America, G. H. Crane (extra fine) and Pink Armazindy; Anton Then, Mrs. T. W. Lawson (the best Lawson in the house), Flora Hill, Mrs.

Dean, Mrs. Bradt, Argyle, Triumph, G. H. Crane, Chicago, Mrs. Joost and Daybreak; M. Weiland, Chicago, Pink Armazindy, Gov. Griggs, Gen. Gomez, Genevieve Lord, Argyle, America, White Cloud, G. H. Crane, Evanston, The Marquis (extra fine), Mrs. Bradt, Estelle, Melba, Daybreak, also vase of cyclamens; John Hoeft, Flora Hill, Triumph, Jubilee; Eii Cross, fine collection of violets. In considering the awards it should be borne in mind that some flowers were staged several hours before others, which was hardly fair to those first in position. The committee is informed that exhibits of Prosperity and Gov. Roosevelt are on the way but have been delayed; the flowers have not arrived in time to be judged.

During the meeting three questions were put to James Hartshorne on carnations, viz: Is the bottomless pot a success? What new varieties of the season give the most promise? Is early lifting in summer preferable? Mr. Hartshorne replied as follows: "I can only state my own experience, and should it not coincide with your views there will be all the more chance for discussion of the subjects herein mentioned. To begin with I can say very little for or against bottomless pot culture of carnations, as I have not tried the method myself, but I have seen it in use where the variety Mrs. F. Joost was used. At planting time the thricest plants were selected for the pots, the next best were planted out on the same bench in the ordinary way. The same treatment has been given both lots, and at the present time both batches look alike, so that would lead most of us to believe that there was no special advantage in the bottomless pot for carnation culture. But the way it appeals to me, it should be a good thing, as it keeps the plants and foliage from resting on the beds, affording a better circulation of air through and underneath the plants, causing less stem rot and keeping them in a healthier and stronger condition, thus enabling them to take up more stimulants. I do not for a moment believe there is enough in its favor to ever warrant a large grower to adopt its use entirely, but if I had a small place I think it would be worth a fair trial, for if I could grow only a trifle better grade with it it would be quite a feature in enabling me to hold my own with the growers who have a large amount of glass. I was informed a day or two ago that Dorner is using it very successfully and is well pleased with his experiment so far.

"What new varieties of the season give the most promise? The question, as I understand it, refers to the introductions of 1900. I am not in as good a position to answer this as one would be who had speculated in all the novelties in equal proportion. I settled the question in my own mind last spring, as every grower should aim to do. I place Lawson at the head of the list, Marquis next, and a make the money when grown by the average florist. The Lawson, I always thought, and am now thoroughly convinced, is the best carnation ever offered to the trade, and when other growers have mastered its peculiarities as we have there is not the least doubt in my mind but that they will agree with me. I predict for it a great future and a longer standing than any other now in commerce. Marquis, too, is a most beautiful color, large, well formed flowers, and is a money maker, I believe, as we grow it. It is, perhaps, too early for any one to pick the positive winner of the others, though I must say Genevieve Lord is the best warm weather carnation I ever grew.

"Is early lifting in summer preferable? There is no doubt of it. Most every one is planting earlier than formerly. Even growers who never planted before September are now planting in July or first part of August. Why? Because they saw their competitors too far ahead of them. Since they have adopted the new method they are right in it for high prices. There are certain hard wooded varieties, Lawson for instance, and any variety that is slow to establish roots in the greenhouse must be planted early to insure success. It has been generally understood, and I think conceded by indoor growers, that a large amount of blooms can be produced from late planted stock, but I'm inclined to think that even that point will not be conceded when we become more accustomed to indoor growing or early planting. We have a large quantity of stock that was planted late last fall that will not give anywhere near the number of blooms as will stock of the same varieties planted in July; even should it do so the first crop was short stemmed and sold for just a verse of a first, but as soon after as possible, and if they are all housed by that date so much the better. If we have unfavorable carnation weather outdoors to better advantage will the indoor stock show up; if favorable, then the difference will not be so marked."

The next meeting takes place Friday night, February 1, when there will be a discussion on greenhouse building, a very timely topic. It seems that despite the increased price of glass, the decreased returns and the increase of production, most of the growers still have the building bee in their bonnets, and pretty nearly every man in the trade is talking of increasing his range or rebuilding his houses after the most approved modern methods. In this connection, George M. Garland has been asked to talk on iron gutter construction, which is being tested by some of the biggest growers in this market. W. N. Rudd is also on the programme for remarks anent iron versus wood construction. It is to be hoped there will be a good attendance at the meeting.

CARNATIONS.

KEEPING QUALITY.

There has recently been considerable discussion about the poor keeping qualities of fancy carnations and much speculation as to possible remedies for the defect, some going so far as to aver that the popularity of the cut flower is threatened. No flower other than the carnation is influenced to the same extent by its environment, and in many instances it may be found by experiment that lack of keeping quality is the result of local causes, but the trouble is wide spread and in a general way the demand for large flowers may be cited as the root of the evil. Large flowers are produced by an almost continuous system of forcing, which is not conducive to hardiness, and the flowers, when put up for sale, must be at their fullest stage of perfection, almost ready for dissolution.

At just what point in the feeding process one should stop in order to secure both size and keeping quality in the cut bloom is a detail that each grower will have to determine for himself. The discovery of an element which can be added to the soil to impart keeping quality to the flowers is also a matter for individual experiment, although the experiment stations have better facilities for such work than have most growers, and might give much valuable assistance in this direction.

But for some time to come we shall have to rely upon the more simple process of cutting our flowers at that stage of their development when they will absorb the greatest quantity of water, this being just prior to the full development of their petals. If cut in this stage, put into luke-warm water and placed in a moderately lighted room with toss up between the others. We are growing those two by the thousands, while we have the others by the hundreds only, in quantity perhaps hardly large enough for us to say much in regard to them. I believe Morning Glory to be a very good commercial sort in its color, a very pale pink. As I have seen it, it is a very free bloomer and those are the ones that ragtime song. The second was cut in time for the holidays, and if we get the third it will be so late in the season that we cannot expect fancy prices, whereas we can always demand a fair price for blooms of stock planted early, and can depend upon a more even supply throughout the year. I don't think it is absolutely necessary to plant in before August a temperature as nearly 45° as it is possible to maintain they will in a short time absorb sufficient water to fill all of the little cells and give them that rigidity of petal and rustle when handled that makes them the delight of the wholesale and retail buyer.

There is one very serious objection to this process of cutting the flowers while they will retain this freshness for several days, and that is the fact that the buyer for the retail store will not pay as high a price for them as for flowers that are more fully developed, but which have lost their keeping properties. Hundreds of such instances can be cited but one of recent occurrence will be sufficient to illustrate this point. A grower who has a fine lot of Peru had been sending them to his commission house in such a stage of development that they would keep and improve for a few days, but the price received was such a trifle that he wrote for information and received a letter in reply stating that the flowers were too small and the retail men would not pay any price for them. His next move was to leave the blooms on the plants until every little petal had attained its full development and the flowers were almost ready to go to sleep. These flowers bring him over twice as much as those formerly sent in and yet the consumer is lucky if they are not asleep ten hours after buying them. And one cannot blame the grower.

On the other hand, the retail man has, I presume, the same trouble with his customers, and can get twice as much for a flower that will not keep as he can get for one that will keep a week, because the latter is not so large and fine looking when first bought. This throws the blame for the existing conditions onto the real consumer of the flowers, a party very hard to reach from the growers' end of the business. These people can be reached by a combined effort on the part of the retail men to educate consumers into buying such flowers as will give good satisfaction in preference to those which will last but a few hours, but this will be a tedious process.

A practical demonstrator at every flower show all over the country could do much good in this line by demonstrating with flowers as his models the sort of flowers that buyers should select to get the most satisfaction for their money. This would reach a large number of buyers and if well advertised would be quite an adjunct to the show.

A closer affiliation between the retail men and the growers would result in a great improvement all around, but a systematic education of the buying public would bring results that can be obtained in no other way. If we all work together we can, in the course of a short time, get remunerative prices for flowers that will keep and the consumers will realize that they are getting more for their money than when they paid the top price for flowers in their last stage of development.

A Christmas Bouquet.

That good results may be attained with simple materials is shown by the accompanying illustration of a pretty Christmas decoration that was evolved from meager supplies. Trails of Asparagus plumosus remaining from the decorations of a September wedding were preserved in a cool place and combined, as shown by the illustration, with bitter-sweet berries gathered in October. The bouquet was then set away in a cool room and brought out for the Christmas festivities in rather more attractive guise than when first made, since the asparagus had retained its color and the berries were improved by having opened their orange scarlet pods to disclose rosy scarlet interiors. The ornamental effect of this combination is retained indefinitely and the bouquet was finally banished from society not from impaired beauty but because the slightest breath of air scattered the dried foliage of the asparagus in an almost impalpable but annoying green powder. No water was used in the vase after the addition of the berries so that there was nothing offensive or unsanitary in keeping the ornament for so long a time, and the airy effect of dried asparagus proved unexpectedly pleasing. If such good results can be obtained with what may be termed second hand material of this class, fresh asparagus vines would seem to deserve more general recognition as Christmas greens. S.

WITH THE GROWERS.

AT OMAHA, NEBRASKA.

Recently I paid a visit to Hess & Swoboda's place and was very much pleased with all that I saw. The establishment is a good example of what men with push can do. Some dozen years ago Hess & Swoboda had only a few tumble-down houses, but to-day it is about the best establishment in the city, consisting of sixteen or seventeen large houses very well stocked. Their Meteor roses are very strong plants and the flowers are something that we do not see every day, as they have long stiff stems and good color. Their Brides and Kaiserins have every merit, while their Beauties have long, stiff and well foliaged stems, large buds and are free from black spot. They have a few hundred plants of the ever popular Perle, for which there is always a demand.

seem not uncommon with good growers everywhere this year. However, the Californias are very good. Their cinerarias are remarkably fine, being nice, stocky plants with good spikes of flowers. They had a few in for Christmas and these sold at good prices, as did the azaleas, primroses and cyclamens, of which they have very fine collections. Some of the carnations which Hess & Swoboda grow are Flora Hill, which seems to split its calyx considerably in this neighborhood; G. H. Crane, Chicago, Mrs. Bradt, Argyle, Gen. Gomez, which is loaded down with buds; the old favorite, Lizzie McGowan; Armazindy, Jubilee, Evanston and, best of all, Mrs. Frances Joost.

They have built one new house across the street from the old houses and intend in time to build more. The last new house is very high and the Beauties that will come out of it will be a sight to behold. They have all the glass on but the piping is not as yet entirely finished. The boiler-capacity that they have provided for this house is an indication that we can look forward to seeing them put up more glass in the near future. They have about 2000 lilies, Harrisii and longiflorum, and there is very little disease among them. They did well on poinsettias during the holidays and at all times carry a good stock of palms and ferns.

A. Donaghue's place is looking very good, especially the house where they grow the Golden Gate rose. They had a very good crop of these in just before the holidays and their Meteors also came in just in time. Their Brides and Bridesmaids were of a good color but seemed somewhat off crop. They have some of the last two varieties in solid beds but they are not as good as they should be; the gardener in charge said that they had been somewhat neglected in the summer.

Mr. Donaghue's carnations are looking very well, with the exception of one house of mixed varieties. Gold Nugget has a nice stem and large flowers with very little red in them. Jubilee is looking very good, as they all have fine, stiff stems and large flowers. Triumph, Lizzie McGowan and Flora Hill are some of the other varieties that were seen, and Frances Joost, which was the best on the place. They have planted their five new houses and a propagating house thirty feet long with carnations. They have several varieties of violets but none seem as good as usual. California, La France, Princess of Wales, Lady Campbell and Marie Louise are all grown here.

George Zimmer's place is in the best of condition and the carnations that he grows are very fine. He has Daybreak, Jubilee, Lizzie McGowan and Scott which are as good as are seen anywhere. He picked about 1500 California violets for Christmas and received 2 cents a bloom wholesale. He also had a nice lot of Marie Louise. R. J. M.

Queen Victoria's Letter.

The letter from Queen Victoria, thanking the Floral Exchange Corporation for its gift of Queen of Edgely roses, is here seen in facsimile. The flowers seem to have been sent at a very opportune time, as they gave pleasure to the Queen and helped to grace and enliven what has proved to be her last Christmas festival. The letter being one of the last few letters that her majesty directed to be written, is doubly valuable and is prized highly by the Floral Exchange Co. The fact that the roses arrived in such good order is interesting as showing how long flowers can be kept if the proper precautions are taken. Another box is shortly to be shipped to Berlin, Germany, as well as to an English rose society meeting.

ROSES.

BACKWARD BRIDE AND BRIDESMAID ROSES.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Can you prescribe for Bride and Bridesmaid roses that are now in backward condition? The plants were of medium size when heached in heavy soil which contained no fertilizer. Liquid manure has since been applied, also bone flour, but the leaves are turning yellow. Temperature 55° to 60°.

From the above I can hardly understand what is meant, at least the conditions are not stated with clearness to insure an intelligent answer. But, if I comprehend it rightly, it means that the plants have not made much growth and now the leaves are turning yellow. The reason for the poor growth is easy enough to solve. They did not have the proper food. If "L. P. S." wants his roses to make good, vigorous growth and produce flowers in quantity he must give them something besides ordinary soil to feed on. In other words the compost for growing roses successfully must be made rich with some kind of fertilizing material before planting the roses. Good manure is by far the best. Lacking this, mixed with the soil, no amount of liquid manure afterward will supply the desired element to make up for lost time in getting healthy, vigorous growth. To plant roses as above, in ordinary soil, without any addition of fertilizer, and expect them to go on working hard continuously for the season is about as reasonable as it would be to feed a man on bread and water for a year or more and then expect him to work hard day and night for another year on the same diet. The cause for the leaves turning yellow on the plants in question may be any one of the following. The bone flour may have had some deleterious matter in it; acids are often used in dissolving the bone; or the liquid manure may have soured the soil; or the soil itself may contain eel worms, which are now affecting the roots. Which of these is the cause can only be determined by careful investigation of the soil on the benches. JOHN N. MAY.

TROUBLE WITH BRIDES AND BRIDESMAIDS.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—What is the cause of unhealthy condition of my Bride and Bridesmaid roses, shown in samples forwarded by express? The growth of the plants was splendid until about three weeks ago, when the trouble started with one plant and spread to the others. Golden Gate and Wootton in the same house are fine. P. L. B.

The sample plants from "P. L. B." had, on arrival here, all the appearance of being starved to death by lack of water. Every particle of the soil at their roots was so absolutely dry that it looked as if dried by furnace heat. It does not follow that the plants were kept too dry in their beds when growing, but appearances favored that condition. I failed to find any trace of disease about the roots. The actual cause of the trouble may be found in the soil itself or something such as the manure or bone used in the compost. The roots of Bride and Bridesmaid are more easily affected than those of the other two varieties named. To locate the actual cause of the trouble it will be necessary for "P. L. B." to investigate these things thoroughly himself, as he has the only means of doing so, being familiar with all the materials used, their source of supply, etc. JOHN N. MAY.

general proportions are of commanding grandeur. Situated in a position of great prominence on the western side of the grounds, the approach from the east is through the esplanade, past the basins of aquatic plants, the fountains and the great urns containing beautiful tropical foliage effects; up the curved incline which is bordered by many odd varieties of fruiting trees and shrubs, to the magnificent doorway which is the subject of the accompanying illustration. Probably no horticultural exhibit has ever had such elegant and appropriate surroundings and no former display has been so well worthy of it.

The horticulture building is connected by semicircular conservatories with the graphic arts building to the north and the mining building to the south. These conservatories are themselves very beautiful architectural features of the exposition and the fine floral displays in them will enhance their attractions to visitors. They connect the three buildings in this group but are distinct and separate buildings, having their own individual style and their exhibits of entirely different character. The court upon which the three buildings of the group face contains one of the superb esplanade fountains.

Fruits of all kinds will be placed on exhibition during the summer. Much of the fruit will be preserved in cold storage, though the exhibit will change as the season advances and the different varieties ripen. A number of states have made arrangements to provide collective exhibits that will properly represent the horticultural products of their particular section. California is arranging for a special exhibit of the wonderfully diversified fruit productions of that state. Other states are taking the matter up with the prospect of making the horticultural exhibit the most complete ever attempted. The same care that characterizes other sections of the exposition will be given to the horticultural division with the view of making it representative as to character rather than exhaustive in detail.

Large as the horticulture building is it will not contain all the horticultural exhibits. A plot of ground has been provided extending across the west front of the building on the opposite side of the grand canal, and extending south as far as the Elmwood gate. This plot has been under course of preparation for many months and will present a restful attraction in pastoral contrast to the hum of busy, energetic action which will be so characteristic of other portions of the exposition.—Pan-American Memorandum Sheet.

Connecting Pipe With Heater.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Kindly inform me how I can connect 3-inch wrought iron pipe with a No. 16 Hitchings heater, which has opening for 4-inch cast iron pipe. E. E. V.

A caulking ring to screw on the end of the pipe can be made by splitting an ordinary coupling. If the bell on the heater is a deep one, it is sometimes possible to use a short coupling, but a split coupling will generally be more satisfactory. After screwing the couplings on the ends of the pipes they can be inserted into the bells on the heaters and caulked the same as cast iron pipe. If the crack between the coupling and the inside of the bell is a wide one it is a good plan to use for caulking it a rope of as large size as possible, rather than oakum. L. R. TAFT.

SCARCITY OF ROSES BRINGS BIG ADVANCE IN PRICE.—CARNATIONS PLENTIFUL AND IN DEMAND.—VIOLETS ARE OVERDONE — BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE.—VARIOUS NOTES.

The past week has been one of scarcity in the rose market such as New York has not experienced in many years. All varieties have been in the same predicament but Beauties have felt the pinch most effectively and values have been nearly double what they were earlier in the month. On all roses of desirable quality the prices have soared well toward Christmas rates. Of carnations there is a good supply coming in but, notwithstanding this, returns have been better on these than they were last week, a result attributable probably in part to the difficulty of obtaining roses. The same influence has affected favorably the sales of bulbous material, there being a considerable amount of funeral work done, for which white bulbous stock must be made use of, and the scarcity of roses leaving a good opening for everything having color. Tulips and daffodils are getting into better shape every day. Cattleyas are more plentiful and many of them are being used for choice work. Violets alone seem to be overdone; they come along faster and faster, with a consequent downward tendency in prices and must be very choice to obtain recognition anywhere, the low grade lots being practically unsalable under these conditions. Excepting as to violets cut flower prospects are all that could be desired for the next two or three weeks. Should the weather be warm and sunny, however, there is scarcely any limit to the amount of violets that the street dealers can dispose of at prevailing low rates. There are still many chrysanthemums of good quality, in several varieties, in this market. They look decidedly out of place among the daffodils and blooming spring shrubbery.

A story went the rounds of the daily papers last week to the effect that millionaire Rockefeller had cornered the American Beauty market for the benefit of his daughter's wedding. As the largest growers could scarcely show up a handful of blooms at any time last week the feat was nothing extraordinary and would not have disheartened even the most retiring Twenty-eighth street wholesaler. By the same token, wholesalers were very scarce in their customary haunts for several days at that time. Their absence was attributed to "grippe," but it is surmised that some of them were on the skirmish line, giving friendly grips to Madison rose men "and sech."

The New York Gardeners' Society held its quarterly meeting, which was also its annual meeting, on Wednesday evening, January 16, but the attendance was so slim that it was decided to postpone the election of officers and other business to a special meeting assigned to Saturday evening, February 2, at which time an exhibition of new carnations will be made.

George L. McGarrett, who has been bookkeeper at Alex. McConnell's for thirteen years, was married to Miss Jessie A. Worrell, on January 7, at St. Patrick's cathedral.

The veteran florist, E. E. Bogan, has been quite seriously ill for some time. Everybody hopes to see him around again soon, in accustomed health and spirits.

The affairs of the Bridgeman Company have finally been settled by Assignee Sheridan and the creditors will receive twenty-two and one-half per cent of their claims.

H. C. Rath's seedling, Bertha Rath, is said to be the finest white carnation being brought into the Thirty-fourth street flower market this season.

Julius Roehrs is assisting in the camellia revival by sending in some beautiful little specimens in bloom, which are finding favor with critical buyers

DIMINUTION OF THE ROSE SUPPLY OPENS AVENUES OF USEFULNESS FOR MANY OTHER FLOWERS—VIOLETS SADLY DISCREDITED.—STRIPE D CARNATIONS IN LARGE SUPPLY.—A VISIT TO WABAN.— PROSPECTS FOR A BIG CROP SOON.—NOTES.

In common with other important flower markets, Boston is enjoying at present a famine in roses and a surfeit in gripe. The rose growers in this vicinity are all "off crop" and, the height of the buying season being now on, the pinch is felt rather severely. Its effect on growers of other varieties of cut flowers is very gratifying, however, as when roses cannot be readily obtained buyers turn willingly to something else and thus lily of the valley, carnations, daffodils, etc., all benefit in some degree. Violets, alone, seem so abundant that nothing affects their present destiny, which seems to be to be disposed of for anything the buyers are willing to pay for them. Carnations have experienced a decided improvement since last week. The number of variegated flowers coming in, such as Mrs. Bradt, seems to be close to the danger mark, the demand for this sort being sharply limited, regardless of how well they may have been grown, and a dealer is, as a rule, safer with a thousand Scott than with a hundred Bradt. Lily of the valley, as now coming in, is shorn of much of its attractiveness, being all of the new crop of pips and almost devoid of any foliage.

A visit, this week, to the Waban Rose Conservatories found that noted place in the same condition of minimum product which is the case elsewhere, but a tremendous crop of enormous flowers is in sight and it will be but a few days before the clippers will be clipping merrily again. The chrysanthemum houses, which are filled with hybrid roses for spring flowering, are taking on an interesting appearance. Brunners are the mainstay in this department but there is one lovely rose that Mr. Montgomery seems to be especially attached to and that is Mrs. Sherman Crawford. Its big, strong canes and vigorous breaks give promise of big results in due time. In the Libertyhouse prosperity in the near future seems assured, all traces of black spot having disappeared and the plants growing and budding vigorously.

Paul Berkowitz, of Philadelphia, was a guest of the Horticultural Club on Thursday evening. H. F. A. Lange presided. Lawrence Cotter is rejoicing over the advent of another fine daughter, who arrived on Sunday, January 20.

TRADE FAIRLY ACTIVE AND SUPPLIES SHORT IN MANY LINES.—ALL ABOUT THE PRICES THE RETAILER HAS TO PAY.—AMONG THE NEW ROSES.—LADIES' NIGHT AND OTHER NOTES

Business is moving along at a good pace, the demand keeping slightly ahead of the supply. The bare shelves of the cool rooms of the wholesalers, are painfully apparent, a single glance being sufficient to get a line on the stock. The occasional buyer fares badly these days, the regulars having the call. The only flowers at all plentiful are carnations, of which there seems to be quite a stock about; prices range from $1.50 to $4, with $5 to $6 asked for a few of the fancies, notably Crocker, Lawson and G. Lord. Weber & Sons are sending some of the last two named, to S. S. Pannock, that are certainly hard to beat and which a year or two ago would have aroused enthusiasm even among the experts at the February meeting. Beauties are still scarce; they have fallen off greatly in quality. The growers say, however, that in a week or so the crops will be on again, with first-class flowers. Teas, particularly Bridesmaids, sell on sight; 15 cents is still the price for the extras, while the next grades readily bring 10 cents to 12 cents. Brides are about the same figure, but not quite such good sellers. Liberty ranges from 12½ cents to 35 cents, with all grades selling well. Daffodils are slow coming in, the Italian single seems to lack substance and it is hoped the Trumpet Major and similar varieties will soon be on the market, as there is a great demand for yellow flowers. Freesias are coming in and seem to sell well at from $2 to $4 per hundred. Violets are now all that can be asked as to quality. Both single and double varieties are plentiful and fine; the prices are 75 cents to $1.50 for the doubles and 50 cents to 75 cents for the singles. Lilac sells for $1 to $1.50 per dozen sprays and is in good demand. Tulips are also to be seen, prices ranging from $3 to $4 per hundred, the same rates being asked for lily of the valley.

Sharon Hill, the home of the Robert Scott rose, has become quite an important railroad station of late, as so many rosarians from different parts of the country, being anxious not to let a good thing slip away, are calling to see it for themselves. With two such novelties of the same class to enter the race with the Beauty next season, the contest will be an exciting one. We hear of a house 50x300 shortly to be under way and ready to be filled with one of the new ones by June 1. It would seem as if one could cut a handful from this territory almost any time, whether the weather suited or not.

Ladies' night at the club last Wednesday night was a memorable occasion. There was a large attendance of the fair sex and every one present seemed to enjoy himself hugely. After refreshments had been served the contest on the shuffleboards and bowling alleys for the ladies only were played and some very creditable scores made. K.

The current week started off with very active business, the local trade being good and shipping very heavy, but the supply of roses was decidedly inadequate to meet all calls. There were, of course, considerable supplies of indifferent grades of stock which were almost good for nothing, but first-class roses have been a scarce article all this week and indications are that they will not be plentiful for some days to come. The weather is very unfavorable for getting in the new crop. Beauties have shown some slight improvement but they are not yet anything to brag about, although the buyers seem very willing to take them as they are. Of carnations there are all kinds and all qualities. While prices obtained for carnations have not averaged as well as last season, the demand for good grades of carnations is now excellent. It is not always easy to get an adequate price on the strictly fancy grades of some growers and the cheap qualities are indeed cheap, but good medium stock is selling satisfactorily, and that is the main point. It seems that carnations have not possessed good keeping qualities since the beginning of the cold, dark weather. Just why this is the growers seem unable to agree, a half dozen causes being alleged, but nevertheless there is quite a little complaint that sometimes even those of the very first quality go to sleep before they can reach their destination on shipping orders. There was a small avalanche of violets early this week and prices went down to a very low level. The best bunches of most of the shipments sold out fairly well but some clean-up sales were made at unheard of prices for January. Prices, furthermore, which would have caused many of the growers of Lady Campbell deep anguish had they been present and seen the urging and exhortation necessary to induce the Greeks to pay more than 5 cents a bunch for the stock which was left after the retail man had picked out one bunch from every ten. Lily of the valley seems to be hardly up to the usual grade at present, but of other bulbous stock there is all that trade demands.

John Blanck, at 160 Forty-third street, froze up on the night of January 17 and on Tuesday filed a petition in bankruptcy, scheduling liabilities of $2,900 and estimating his assets at $3,200. Henry T. Wilson, room 618 First National Bank building, is now in charge of the place, in which there has been no heat since the boilers broke down more than a week ago. Mr. Blanck had a neat retail store and five greenhouses fairly well stocked with palms and ferns, Boston fern and material for filling baskets being the principal items, although there were something like 200 azaleas on hand. These were recently imported and are said to have arrived in a badly damaged condition. There were three boilers on the place, two of them operated by natural gas, and these it was which failed when the other was in such condition that it was impossible to get up steam with coal. Mr. Blanck was supposed to have been doing a good business and his liabilities are mostly owing outside the trade. The stand is a good one and the neighborhood will not be allowed to go wanting for flowers, for J. G. Steinfield, who formerly conducted a place at Cottage Grove and Thirty-first street, has opened a nice appearing store on the corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-third and the Drexel Floral Company, consisting of Mr. Blanck's sister, his former foreman and others, have opened at 163 Forty-third street.

Peter Weiland, son of M. Weiland, is in New Castle, Ind., in search of a site upon which to build a range of carnation houses. Mr. Weiland is a very competent carnation grower, although only 23 years of age, and it is reported that his uncle, Peter Reinberg, will put up a fair sized range of houses adjoining the young man's contemplated investment, leaving them under the latter's management.

McKellar & Winterson are re-arranging their establishment, putting the cut flower department in a space well suited to it in the front of the basement and arranging the supply department to much better advantage in the enlarged room thus afforded.

W. F. Kyle, of Kennicott's is rejoicing over the advent of a ten-pound boy at his home last Sunday, and Grandpa Kyle is already over from Kalamazoo to join in the congratulations.

A. Lange's window has had Roosevelt and Prosperity carnations as its attraction this week. They received the attention of everyone who knew that they were new.

Weiland & Risch are preparing to put up some propagating houses and had intended quite an addition to their range had not glass leaped to unattainable altitudes.

Forehanded Peter Reinberg took occasion to lay in something over 200 boxes of glass last week while the price was still within reach without a stepladder.

Robert J. Purvis, an early settler and a pioneer in the greenhouse business, died at Edgewater, Monday afternoon, at the ripe old of 88 years.

George Reinberg proposes to not only rebuild his oldest houses this year but also to add six new 300-foot houses to his range.

O. P. Bassett and Mrs. Bassett started on Monday for Palm Beach, Fla., expecting to be absent in the south for several weeks.

The fronds of Nephrolepis Wittboldii have been used in some very nice cut flower work of late.

Bassett & Washburn have it in mind to build another of their long houses this season.

Albert Amling will build two big houses this spring.

MONMOUTH, ILL.—A voting contest for a piano worth $400 was recently decided here, various merchants for several weeks giving a blank ballot to each customer for each 10 cents worth purchased. Miss Anna Hewitt, who has charge of Thomas Hewitt's flower store, won, having 925,142 votes.

TRADE IS VERY FAIR AND SUPPLIES ARE WELL CONSUMED.—BEAUTIES SCARCE.—MICHEL COMPANY PROPAGATING FICUSES.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Trade has been very good of late and the wholesale market is pretty well cleaned up each day, although there have been a few more Bridesmaids than were necessary. What few Beauties are seen find ready buyers at from 10 cents to 35 cents each. The teas bring from $3 per hundred, for short stems, to $8 for the best. Carnations run from $1.25 to $3 per hundred. Violets have been coming in very heavily for the last few days, bringing only 40 cents a hundred, and can even be had for less if bought in large lots. Some nice lily of the valley is coming in and finds willing buyers at $4 and $5 a hundred. Homan hyacinths and narcissi bring $3 a hundred. Smilax, of which there is not too much good stock, is bringing from 12½ cents to 15 cents a string.

At the Michel Plant and Bulb Company's place they are hard at it again in making Ficus elastica cuttings and will have a large number to put on the market. They planted out quite a number of plants in one of their greenhouses this fall and now they have them all wrapped in moss after giving them the usual little "love cut." Their houses are in the best of condition and some of the stock is excellent, especially the cyclamens, of which they had quite a number of splendid plants in 4, 5 and 6-inch pots. They have quite a demand for them at retail and also wholesale quite a number. All their other flowering and decorative stock is in good shape and this year they have gone in quite heavily on nursery stock.

R. W. Englert, formerly of Chicago, is working for the Plant Seed Co.

TRADE FAIR AND PRICES HIGH BECAUSE OF SHORTAGE IN SUPPLY.—IDLE TALK OF A GROWERS' COMBINE.

For the week past business has been steady, flowers scarce and wholesale prices high. The quality of flowers has been good considering the weather, which has been very dark. Beauties practically disappeared ten days ago. Bulbous stock still continues rather backward. Many of the growers made a failure of forcing single daffodils and the market is very short on them. There are plenty of Romans and Paper White narcissi, and tulips are coming in quite freely and are very good in quality.

There is some talk of a combination being formed among the growers. Several of the prominent florists, when approached in regard to the matter, denied having anything to do with the project and for many good reasons the growers in this vicinity could not successfully form a combination and all talk of it simply falls upon deaf ears among the largest and most successful of them.

WOODWARD.

MARLBORO, MASS.—F. A. Howe has sold his greenhouse business to W. L. Lewis, who has been associated with him in business for the past few months.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—The conservatories of Charles B. Stow, on Broadway, were damaged by fire and a valuable lot of palms and ferns destroyed at midnight, on Saturday, January 19. Loss is estimated at about $2,000.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

THE U. S. Senate has passed the new revenue bill, removing, among other war taxes, the stamp tax on express receipts, beginning July 1.

EXHIBITION prize lists should be always distributed early in the year so as to give prospective competitors and exhibitors an opportunity to select the right stock to grow.

MUCH inconvenience and unpleasantness will be avoided at the forthcoming carnation and rose exhibitions by shipping exhibits so that they will arrive in good season.

NYPHLEA FROEBELI is described (with colored plate) in the Garden as a new seedling of N. alba rosea raised by Otto Froebel, of Zurich, Switzerland. The blooms are said to be large, dark fiery carmine in color, deep scarlet in the center, and the stamens bright vermillion with yellow tips. The plant is recommended for tanks, small fountain basins or tubs.

To Carnation Growers.

The New York Florists' Club extends an invitation to carnation growers to send exhibits of their seedlings and novelties to the next meeting of the club, which takes place on Monday evening, February 11. Packages addressed to the secretary, John Young, 51 W. Twenty-eighth street, will be properly cared for and meritorious exhibits will receive due recognition from the club. This opportunity for bringing their product before a large number of liberal buyers, many of whom will not be able to attend the Baltimore meeting of the carnation society, will be appreciated by growers.

A Card for the Adams Express Co.

In arranging for the shipment of Gov. Roosevelt and Prosperity carnations to the Chicago Florists' Club's carnation exhibition, the Adams Express Company stated that they had a train leaving New York at 2:10 p.m., arriving at Chicago at 2:50 the next day, and promised immediate delivery on arrival. Telegrams were sent instructing shipments on the train mentioned, but deliveries were not made until the day after the exhibition—some twenty hours after the time agreed and the Chicago florists were disappointed by not seeing these two much talked about new varieties.

This seems to be very much in line with the comments made at the Buffalo meeting of the American Carnation Society on the express company's way of doing business.

The Best Every Way.

AM. FLORIST CO.—We find the AMERICAN FLORIST the best for the florist and for promptness in delivery.

The Price of Glass.

Co-incident with the announcement that the two window glass trusts have combined on new discounts which affect a large advance in prices comes information that the National Window Glass Jobbers' Association has contracted to take 700,000 boxes at the new price, and that until this supply is exhausted (it is for delivery to the jobbers during January and February) a new scale of discounts will apply, making a practical advance of thirty per cent over the prices the jobbers have asked from September to January. The following is the jobbing association's price list:

SINGLE.—PRICE PER 50 FEET.

Table with 4 columns: Sizes, AA, A, B. Rows include sizes like 6x8 to 10x15, 11x14 to 14x20, etc.

DOUBLE.—PRICES PER 50 FEET.

Table with 4 columns: Sizes, AA, A, B. Rows include sizes like 6x8 to 10x15, 11x14 to 16x24, etc.

DISCOUNTS.

Less than car lots, 85 and 5 per cent. For car lots, 88 and 5 per cent. For 3,000 box lots, 89 per cent.

This new list makes 16x24, A grade, cost $4.67 per box in car lots, 450 to 500 boxes. Small buyers will have to pay about twenty-five per cent more if the combination is strong enough to enforce its demands. But there are, as usual, two horns to the dilemma. One may either strive to be content with what glass he already has, or he may assist in securing the adoption of the plan proposed at the Detroit convention, of having the S. A. F. undertake the operation of a glass factory.

Calendars Received.

We are in receipt of calendars from the following firms: Walter Retzer & Co., Chicago, Ill.; Frank S. Platt, New Haven, Conn.; J. Blaauw & Co.; Boskoop, Holland; J. F. Sullivan, Detroit, Mich.; M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Gam-mage & Sons, London, Ont.

American Carnation Society.

The exhibition to be held in Baltimore, February 21 and 22, will be the greatest in the history of the society. About 200 of the society ladies at Baltimore will act as patronesses of the affair. The hall, which is a handsome one, will be appropriately decorated, and the abundant space at our disposal will enable us to fully display all of the exhibits. The liberal premiums offered should bring out a good display of the standard sorts and every grower who has a new variety of merit makes the mistake of his life if he does not bring it to this show. Carnation men will please make mental note of this. Anyone desiring a premium list can secure it by applying to the secretary.

THE SEED TRADE.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Pres.; F. W. BOLOJANO,
Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn.
Sec'y and Treas.

F. H. HUNTER, of the Cox Seed Co., is enroute to California.

ALBERT McCULLOUGH, president of the American Seed Trade Association is now in the east.

THE rapid extension of rural free delivery is of large assistance to mail order seed houses.

E. M. PARMELEE, of the John H. Allan Seed Co., Picton, Ont., will be in New York City next week.

GOOD authorities believe there is little hope of overthrowing the government scheme of free seed distribution.

HENRY A. SALZER, of La Crosse, Wis., is confined to his home on account of illness but expects to be out again shortly.

THERE will be a meeting of the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League at the Astor House, New York, January 31.

W. H. GRENNELL, of Pierpont Manor, N. Y., has delayed his western trip for a week on account of a slight attack of the grip.

HAVING given up the store on Ninth avenue, New York, the Cox Seed Co. will no longer carry any stock in that city. An office, however, will be maintained at 11 Barclay street.

MANY of the spring catalogues contain, besides order blank and return envelope, an application for postoffice money order properly filled in, save spaces for the amount and name of sender.

A MEETING of the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association will be held at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Monday, January 28, to prepare plans, assign topics, etc., for the nineteenth annual convention, to be held June 11-13, probably at Buffalo, N. Y.

Toronto.

CITY JOINS IN UNIVERSAL GRIEF AT DEMISE OF QUEEN.—SOCIAL FUNCTIONS CALLED OFF.—NOTES.

This city joins in the universal grief at the death of our beloved Queen, and all the social functions arranged for the present week have been called off and the many orders for decorations and flowers canceled, which will mean considerable loss. Business until Tuesday was very good, several large funerals using all available stock of all colors, as there was not enough white to go around. Until after the Queen's obsequies there will be very little business, and prices will drop considerably, for the growers will want to dispose of the stock which will accumulate.

The Canadian Horticultural Society had a well attended meeting at Brampton on January 15. Carnations were exhibited by Gammage & Sons, F. Dicks, the H. Dale estate and J. H. Dunlop. The extension of the use of carnations was discussed, and as each exhibitor had his favorite variety with him the meeting proved very interesting.

George Hollis has some very good plants of white cyclamen.

Arthur Frost has some grand smilax, the best in this vicinity.

Cotteril Bros. are sending in some good Asparagus plumosus. H. G. D.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

THEO. J. SMITH, Pres.; N. W. HALE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE first annual inspection cost the 245 nurseries in Illinois an average of $5.77 each.

THE University of Chicago is planning the horticultural embellishment of its grounds on a scale in keeping with so rich an institution.

PROF. A. S. HITCHCOCK, of the Kansas State Agricultural College, has received a call to the position of assistant chief of the Division of Agrostology, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

IT is said that 1,500,000 trees have been fumigated in California this year, more than double the number fumigated the previous season. The cost of fumigation is said to be about 40 cents per tree.

DURING the autumnal period for the exportation of nursery stock to Canada forty-two consignments from the United States, valued at $1199.93, were passed through the port of Niagara Falls, Ont. There will be another limited period during which exportations may be made in the spring.

JOHN LOEHRER, of Boone, Ia., writes that he has practiced the simple method of large tree moving described by F. J. Ulbricht and says that in Germany, where he learned landscape gardening, the plan was to cut out the ball and dig the new hole before frost, effecting the removal as soon as hard freezing weather came.

The Hardest Bamboos.

The hardy bamboos have become quite established in English gardens. Over fifty kinds are in cultivation, but many are so much alike that it is necessary to think only of comparatively few species and varieties. No hardy evergreen is so graceful and beautiful as the bamboo, and it is of freshest green in mid-winter when all else is for the most part brown and comfortless. Deep rich soil, shelter from north and east winds, plenty of water and manure are essential to success. The time to plant is May, and always give each kind sufficient space to develop. The following twelve species comprise the finest of the family, and also the hardest, a point of much importance: Arundinaria nitida, A. Simoni, A. Japonica (better known as Bambusa Metake), A. Fortunei, A. auricoma (the last two are dwarf in growth and have variegated leafage), Phyllostachys Boryana, P. Henonis, P. viridiglaucescens (one of the most popular of all), P. nigra, P. Kumasasa, and P. mitis, also the broad deep green-leaved Bambusa palmata.—The Garden.

BALDWINVILLE, MASS.—The cucumber house of C. C. Stevens was damaged by fire on the night of January 19, causing a loss on house and crop amounting to about $2,000.

SHARPE'S STANDARD PEA.

Award of Merit, R. H. S., 1900.

Raised in our own Trial Grounds, we consider this New Pea the acme of perfection in the Alderman type, and immensely superior to that well-known variety. Height four and a half feet; haulm strong; pods chiefly in pairs, long, straight, and of handsome appearance; peas large and of fine color and superb flavor. We unhesitatingly aver "Standard" to be a great advance upon any Pea of this class at present in commerce, and to be unequalled and matchless for either exhibition or table. An horticultural expert who has tested it this year in competition with many other varieties, pronounces it the best Pea of the season.

SHARPE'S MONARCH PEA.

Award of Merit, R. H. S., 1900.

This is a grand new Pea of the Duke of Albany type. It has a strong haulm and short joints, much more prolific than the Duke of Albany, and less liable to sport; is a heavy cropper, and the filled pods are very heavy—four of them gathered without much selection weighing four ounces. It will be a great acquisition for market Gardeners, and promises to become as deservedly popular as the well-known Sharpe's Queen.

SHARPE'S "DENBIGH CASTLE" POTATO.

First-Class Certificate, R. H. S., 1900.

An extra early white fleshed Kidney, similar to the walnut leaved Kidney of olden days. Claimed by the raiser to be the earliest Kidney variety in cultivation. It is a good cropper, of robust constitution, and a first-class cooker. We are confident that growers both for private consumption and public markets will welcome a variety that has met with such striking success as is indicated by its receiving the above award in the competition for early varieties. Can be strongly recommended for pot culture.

SHARPE'S EARLY PETER POTATO.

Award of Merit, R. H. S., July 25, 1899, Confirmed 1900.

The R. H. S. say of this new Potato—"Flattish Kidney, white, with russety skin, eyes full, medium size, very heavy crop, free from disease, moderate haulm; early or mid season." Stock limited.

At West Hoboken.

The great Izaak Walton wrote: "Angling may be said to be so like the mathematics that it can never be fully learnt." Again he wrote, "You will find angling to be like the virtue of humility." Had that famous sportsman been living in Hoboken about the present time he could, with equal truthfulness, have made his wise remarks apply to bowling. In the following scores M. Hansen's mathematical descent from 179 to 111, and George Brown's similar experience, would indicate that these worthies still have something to learn, and should "Charlie" Dietz get too "chesty" over his 191 all he has to do to acquire humility is to cast his eye back to that 109 and bear in mind that it may happen again any minute. With these few introductory remarks, which are intended to be educational in their application, we present herewith the bowling score made by the North Hudson Bowling Club on the evening of January 16:

Norway

LARGE COMMERCIAL WHITE CARNATION. We are pleased to announce to the trade that we have in Norway a commercial white that combines size with productiveness, and therefore must of necessity be a money making carnation. It is exceptionally healthy and vigorous in growth, is not subject to spot and is entirely free from rust. Stem is always strong at any season of the year. Flowers open rapidly, and is a keeper of the first water. In short it is the white carnation the trade has been looking for for a long time. We recommend it as the best money making white carnation ever offered.

Egypt

A RICH, SCARLET CRIMSON. A radical departure from all other crimsons now on the market. Color is unsurpassed in this class; size of bloom 3 inches and over. It has modern commercial stems 2 1/2 to 3 feet, and extra strong. It has also a strong spicy odor. In these two points it excels all other crimsons. In growth it is healthy and vigorous; is in good flower by November 1 to 15, always commands a high price. It is so distinct that every grower will need it. It is the best keeper of all the dark varieties, a strictly high grade flower that sells at sight.

Price for the above two varieties, $1.50 per doz., $10 per 100, $75 per 1000. Ready February 15th.

Genevieve Lord

THE GREATEST MONEY MAKING PINK CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED. Since making her entree last February, Genevieve Lord has acquired a host of staunch friends. We have been congratulated by large and small growers alike on its good behavior and money earning capacity. It has thus far proved our every claim for it, and bids fair to outdo in every particular the old favorite, Wm. Scott. Our stock is in extra fine shape; free from all disease. Ready now. All orders booked and shipped in strict rotation. A good thing is soon exhausted; don't wait, but place your order at once. Price $5 per 100, $40 per 1000.

Also Mrs. T. W. Lawson, Marquis, Estelle, Cracker, Olympia, Morning Glory, J. Whitcomb Riley and the best standard sorts. Correspondence invited.

We have a large stock of TIMOTHY EATON CHRYSANTHEMUM, also all other new and standard varieties. Write us for anything you may want. Our plants have an enviable reputation.

FORCING PLANTS FOR WINTER AND EASTER FLOWERING.

HARDY AZALEA MOLLIS

These varieties have for many years been very popular for forcing in Europe, and have in recent years met with considerable favor here in the United States, and when better known are certain to gain in popularity, especially for early forcing.

We are handling the stock of one of the most successful specialists, and can supply fine, bushy plants, 12 to 15 inches high, finely set with buds. $4.50 per dozen; $35 per 100.

AZALEA INDICA, for Easter.

We can still supply all the leading varieties in fine, bushy, well-budded stock.

POT GROWN LILACS.

We offer a fine lot of pot grown plants, finely set with buds, in excellent condition for forcing.

Charles X, Red; Marie Legraye, Single White; Mme Lemoline, Double White; $6.00 per dozen; $45.00 per 100.

DEUTZIA GRACILIS.

A fine lot of three-year-old plants, suitable for 7 and 8-inch pots, very bushy, $1.00 per doz., $8.00 per 100

DEUTZIA GRACILIS ROSEA. (New)

Identical with the above in general habit, but with flowers fully double the size of that graceful variety, to which is added the additional charm of being suffused with a delicate rosy tint, just sufficient to relieve the dead white which is objectionable in the type, and which will undoubtedly place it in the front rank of shrubs for winter forcing. A limited lot of one-year-old plants, $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

DEUTZIA LEMOINEI.

This is now one of the standard varieties for forcing. It surpasses D. Gracilis in its very large flowers being nearly three times the size of the latter variety. These are produced in large cone-shaped heads of 20 to 30 flowers each, and of the purest white. Strong one-year-old plants, suitable for 6-in. pots, 75c per doz.; $6.00 per 100.

WHEN store men telegraph that they must have some Crocker for their customers, and commission men beg for consignments, in spite of the fact that there are plenty of other pinks on the market, it is a pretty sure sign that Crocker has some points of merit distinctive from the others and that there is an unfiled demand for the flowers.

Minneapolis.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD.—STATE OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND.—METEOR THE FAVORITE ROSE.—VARIOUS NOTES.

Trade last week was very good and this week started in with a rush. There is a great call for funeral work, every florist having his hands full. This will help to use up the surplus of Romans, which have flooded the market. Carnations are available in large quantities and the stock is fine. Roses are in sufficient numbers to supply the most urgent needs. The Meteors and Bridesmaids have suffered considerably from the dark weather of late, the latter being very light in color. A few daffodils were noticed in market, also some La Reine tulips, but the stems were rather short as yet. Violets are now available in goodly quantities and are of first-class quality.

James Souden and Otto Will have been to Chicago to get points and prices on the latest methods of greenhouse construction. Mr. Souden is in charge of the Donaldson range of 50,000 feet which will be increased to 80,000 feet this spring, and Mr. Will is planning some new carnation houses. Work on the new range of the Minneapolis Floral Company is already under way.

There is not an extra large call for Beauties at present, and there does not ever seem to be the demand for this flower that a city of this size should show for Beauty. The Meteor is chief ruler here.

The retailers have their windows decorated with some fine azaleas and primulas, all being well stocked with them.

Thos. Lynes and S. R. Swanson are reported on the sick list. C. F. R.

BUSINESS CONTINUES VERY GOOD.—ROSES AND CARNATIONS SHORT OF THE DEMAND. —MANY DECORATIONS FOR ALL SORTS OF SOCIAL FUNCTIONS.—NOTES.

Business has been very good the past week. The only complaint made is that good material is scarce, both roses and carnations. The supply of violets is plentiful. Whittle Brothers had charge of the decorations at the banquet of the New York State Bar Association, which was held in the Hotel Ten Eyck on the evening of January 16. The decorations were American Beauty roses, potted palms and southern smilax. The same firm did the floral decorations at the banquet of the Union College Alumni Association held on January 11. Whittle Brothers also supplied the Bridesmaid roses used for decoration at the luncheon given by S. L. Munson at the Fort Orange Club to his fellow members of the New York state electoral college. Covers were laid for forty guests.

F. A. Danker has the order for the decorations for the ball of the Adelpi Club to be given at Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday evening, January 25. A horse which ran away on January 19, among other items of damage, destroyed one of Danker's show windows, valued at about $75. The weather was below zero at the time and it was only with difficulty that the stock was saved from freezing.

H. G. Byres had the decorations for the Sporborg-Dahlman wedding held in Odd Fellows' Hall on the evening of January 22. The large ballroom was festooned with Christmas greens, laurel roping decorated the walls and large kentia palms, massed, decorated the rostrum where the orchestra was stationed.

HYGROMETER or MOISTURE GAUGE.

THIS Moisture Gauge tells you the difference between dryness and dampness in your greenhouses. We have been testing two of these moisture gauges several months and find they are more indispensable than the thermometer. If you keep this moisture gauge at 70 degrees you will have neither mildew nor red spider in your rose houses. If you keep it at 80 degrees you will not have rust nor red spider in your carnation houses. If you keep it at 85 degrees you will never have fungus in your rooted cutting houses. If you keep it at 75 degrees you will not have decayed leaves in your geranium houses; and if you have a moisture gauge in every house 100 feet long and keep it at above figures you will make at least $100 more per year from each house. Who wants to buy mildewed roses or rusty carnations?

To operate this moisture gauge it is essential to wet the walks in order to get the proper dampness. If your houses are too damp in the winter, fire up a little and in summer time open your ventilators. This has been obtained only by years of experience. Now you can tell your greenhouse hands to keep it at 70 or 80 degrees as you want it, just as you tell your fireman to keep the temperature in such a house at 60 degrees. We never had any intention to sell moisture gauges but they are doing us so much good we have obtained some we can sell at $2.50 each, but we think you will want more. These moisture gauges are made in Germany and France. The French machines come at $10.00 each; they are quite an ornament and no cheap truck. We will give one of the $2.50 machines FREE for a $20.00 order for plants, or rooted cuttings, or unrooted cuttings, from our 1901 catalogue, or from our ads. in the trade papers; or we will send you one for $2.50, and after 10 days' trial if you do not like it you may return it and get your money back.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS KEEP THE LEADING RETAILERS VERY BUSY.—SOME OF THE BEST WORK.—VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Representative R. B. Hawley, of the naval committee, gave a dinner Saturday night at the Gordon. Covers were laid for twenty-five guests. The table decorations were elaborate and unique. The center piece represented a man of war, made of white carnations and decorated with miniature silk flags, streamers and orchids. At each plate was a small ship as a favor and filled with Adiantum Farleyense, orchids and lily of the valley. The whole was to represent the White Squadron. Z. D. Blackistone had the decoration.

Litzinger & Wade had the decorations for the dinner given to the Daughters of the American Revolution. The dining room was decorated with palms. The center piece was of pink azaleas and primulas and adiantums. On the cloth were spread Asparagus Sprengerii and lily of the valley. The corsage bouquets were of Bridesmaid roses, lily of the valley and marguerites tied with pink ribbon.

J. H. Small & Sons had the decoration for the hatchlors' cotillion January 22. The decorations were mostly in yellow. The ladies' corsage bouquets were of yellow tulips, the gentlemen's favors white carnations. The ceiling and walls were covered with southern smilax and the stage was banked with palms, making a fine effect.

E. M. Byrnes has been transferred from the propagating garden, where he has been foreman for the last thirty years, to the Agricultural Department. The transfer took place January 16, when the boys at the garden presented him with a handsome desk and an engrossed address.

Trade in general has been good. Roses and carnations are in demand. Violets are very fine, but not much in demand. Rose growing about Washington has been such a success that even New York men are taking notice of them.

Wm. F. Gude met with a painful accident January 15. In hurrying from his home to catch a car he stepped on a round stone with such force that he dislocated his left ankle. P. G.
