

BLUSHED MARKED CONFLICTS AT ODESSA

More Than One Hundred Persons Killed and Wounded--Measures Adopted to Preserve Order in Capital.

(Associated Press.) Odessa, Nov. 1.—Conflicts between Cossacks and students continue. During the fighting between roughs and Jews in Dalitzkaya street last night 37 persons were killed and 81 seriously wounded and taken to the hospital.

London, Nov. 1.—A dispatch to a news agency from Odessa says mobs of rioters have broken loose in various parts of the city, and have been in conflict with bands of students resulting in much bloodshed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 1.—A night fall of snow covered the city with a white mantle during the night, but today a drizzling rain helped to put a danger on the arbor of the crowds already exhausted by the delirium of yesterday.

General Trepoif's warning to the manifestos that he will use energetic measures to prevent disorders, coupled with the resignation of all strikers, has had a restraining influence and the agitators experienced difficulty in again arousing the proletariat.

Many strikers among the railroad men are ready to return to work, and those of continuing the strike have difficulty in holding the majority.

The students and Social-Democratic leaders, who continue to declare that nothing but a democratic republic will suffice, are using every means in their power to keep up the enthusiasm and drive the people into armed collision with the troops.

A scene of big meetings are announced for today. An official thanksgiving service is announced to take place at the Kazan cathedral at 2 o'clock.

The news from the provinces shows that the whole Empire must have been plunged into great excitement yesterday. Everywhere the announcement of the issuing of the manifesto granting Russia a constitution aroused the people to a high pitch of enthusiasm, but everywhere the people was divided into two camps as in St. Petersburg, those who accepted the boon of freedom with intense joy and who are now denominated liberals, and the extreme radicals under the leadership of the student socialists and revolutionary organizations, who used the opportunity to preach the complete overthrow of the government.

Why Kiev Surrendered. Berlin, Nov. 1.—The correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger at St. Petersburg writes: "The news from Kiev is that the city has been divided into two camps as in St. Petersburg, those who accepted the boon of freedom with intense joy and who are now denominated liberals, and the extreme radicals under the leadership of the student socialists and revolutionary organizations, who used the opportunity to preach the complete overthrow of the government."

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR LIBERALS IN ALBERTA In Four Constituencies There Are No Conservative Candidates in the Field.

(Special to the Times.) Winnipeg, Nov. 1.—The latest news regarding the nominations throughout Alberta indicate contests in every riding of the 25. At the last moment, through the instrumentality of Mr. Walsh, president of the Alberta Conservative Association, candidates were placed in nomination against Premier Rutherford in Strathcona, Mr. Rosewell in Wetaskiwin, and Mr. McPherson in Stoney Plain. Altogether there are 37 candidates in the field for the 25 constituencies. In four constituencies there are no Conservatives in the field. In one the government has independent opposition, but in the others the Liberals have no opposition.

AUSTRALIA AND THE PREFERENCE

CANADA'S OFFER IS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Monthly Steamship Service Will Be Established Between the Commonwealth and Boston.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—In a report received from Mr. Ross, Canada's commercial agent in Australia, the terms of the offer which Canada made to Australia for a preferential tariff are given. It is as follows:

His Excellency the Governor-General was moved to inquire whether the Australian government would be willing to enter into negotiations with the government of Canada with a view to establishing preferential trade relations between the two countries, and if so, whether the Australian government would be prepared to offer such tariff concessions to Canada, or would place on November 15th and elections on November 12th, the constituencies in which contests will come off are West Lambton, Westworth and North York, Ontario, and Antigonish, Nova Scotia.

He also states that a monthly steamship service is going to be established by the Empire-Dempster line, between Boston and Australia. The business between New York and Australia has been very large and freights have gone up.

(Special to the Times.) Ottawa, Nov. 1.—The customs revenue grows steadily. For October the customs revenue of the Dominion was $3,980,158, an increase of $27,022 over the same month last year.

Prince Louis of Battenberg has sent the following Marconiogram from the Drake to the Governor-General: "Before the shores of Canada disappear from view I desire on behalf of the captain, officers and men of the second cruiser squadron, to thank our Canadian fellow subjects of all classes, through Your Excellency, for their hearty and hospitable welcome during the last three months and a half, and which makes us leave these shores with genuine regret and a hope that it may be our good fortune to be sent once more across the Atlantic."

CELEBRATIONS IN RUSSIAN CITIES SOCIALISTS ORGANIZED COUNTER DEMONSTRATIONS Several Collisions in the Streets of St. Petersburg During Which Rival Factions Exchanged Shots.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 31.—All Russia to-day celebrated enthusiastically the Emperor's gift of freedom, which the greater part of the people received with the deepest joy, though in St. Petersburg, Moscow and other cities Socialists and revolutionary organized anti-government demonstrations, and red flag parades which are the manifestations between the "reds" and "whites," as the anti-government and royalist factions are respectively termed.

On the whole the day passed more quietly in Russia than had been expected, though collisions between the people and the troops were reported from Pottava, Kazan and Kishineff, and two men were killed.

In each of the two capitals, St. Petersburg and Moscow, the day was such as Russians ever before have seen. The Slavie people, which during the long war just closed and the anxious period preceding the announcement of a new era of constitutionalism, seemed restrained and apathetic, gave itself up to the full jubilation of the movement.

Under the orders of Count Witte and Gen. Trepoff the troops were generally withdrawn from the streets of the city and the fullest rein given to the people to let out their enthusiasm in demonstrations which so long as they were not destructive, were not interfered with.

There were long processions in which hundreds of red flags were carried, and to which everyone was compelled to doff their hats. A great majority of the paraders flaunted on the laps of their coats rosettes and streamers of crimson ribbon, and Socialist cantors delivered fiery orations. They declared the concessions of the Emperor's manifesto were insufficient and that they must have freedom of all political prisoners, the formation of a national militia and the banishment of General Trepoff and all the troops under his command twenty miles from the capital.

Early in the day the "Marseillaise" supplanted the national anthem. The royalists attempted to take the lead against the socialists and revolutionaries by organizing counter parades, in which they carried the red, white and blue banners of Russia and chanted the national anthem, but they were driven off the Nevsky prospect by the overwhelming number of "reds" every time they appeared.

The major portion of the people, tired out by the long celebration of the first day of Russian liberty, went to bed, and at midnight the Nevsky prospect was deserted except for crowds of rongs armed with clubs, who paraded the avenues singing the national anthem, as well as revolutionary songs, and who had freing the disturbances of Sunday were violently removed from the hospital by the police last night and were secretly buried. The city authorities protested this morning and the police were ordered to disinter the bodies, which was done. They will be re-interred to-morrow with extraordinary honors.

RUSSIANS IN MANCHURIA. Military Auxiliaries to Remain in Front—Officers Hurrying Home as They Fear Disorders.

Magnasi, Oct. 31.—On account of the military censorship after the Associated Press correspondents left the front, a statement for the press of the conditions in Russian Manchuria and Eastern Siberia was impossible. There was general rumor of a re-annexation of the territory of the highest personages in Russia, including the Emperor. The newspapers were filled with discussions regarding the causes of the war and the motives by which it was inspired, and being the blame, there was general distrust of all government acts. The military appeared to be anxious to remain in the East indefinitely, most of the officers deciding to return to Russia on account of the terrors of which recurring disorders there gave promise.

The large number of Russians belonging to the progressive element who had settled in the East anticipated a new, modern empire, and were animated by a spirit of revolt. The intelligentsia and anti-government demonstration had been successfully repressed, such an outbreak in the Irkutsk theatre that the Marseillaise was sung and there were shouts of "Down with the government!" "Down with the Emperor!"

The peasants and "red" classes were declaiming against religious practices of the state church, something hitherto unknown. The head of the institute of Oriental languages at Vladivostok was hooded, mobbed, spat upon and driven out by the students. Owing to the strain on the railway caused by the concentration of General Lipavitch's army, demoralization was relatively slow. Generals Kniazin and Rasonoff, commanders of the second and third armies, hurriedly left the field after the treaty of peace was signed. General Komorpatkin will be among the last to leave.

When the armistice was signed at Shiahotsu it was revealed that a scandal in the management of the St. Petersburg River had been discovered in the shortage of the provisions, causing a famine and also military malpractice, owing to which the Japanese refused to negotiate the armistice there, even after their signal victory.

local business firm took the opportunity of placing a good advertisement before the public. The club is some $150 better off financially. For more than a month the sports looked forward to last Monday evening, expecting to see a first class wrestling match between two local champions, Geo. Gray and "Caddy" Johnson. All were disappointed, however. Johnson failed to put up $75, the balance of his $100, but agreed rather than disappoint the public, to wrestle for the gate receipts, instead of for $100 aside and gate receipts. He claimed that during training he was hurt, and had to place himself under a physician's care. Gray was agreeable, and the two men appeared on the mat with Hugh Mitchell as referee. It was apparent from the first that though Gray was in fine condition there would be no strong work put up. Gray planned to weary out Johnson without getting down on the mat. For over an hour and a half there was sparring for advantage, at the end of which time Johnson "threw up the sponge," and Gray was given the match.

VETERAN OF THE BOER WAR IN CITY

COMES FROM AFRICA AND MAY MAKE HOME HERE

Had Supervision Over Large District and Was Prominent Personage in Cape Colony.

A veteran of the Boer war, a large land owner and a former civic officer in South Africa, A. D. King is in Victoria.
Mr. King with his wife and three children are the latest travellers from a far-off foreign land to reach Victoria, and came in yesterday from South Africa.
They are stopping at the Vernon hotel temporarily or at least until they can determine whether to make Victoria their future home. Mr. King is looking around for a good place to locate.

Mr. King is an interesting personage.
He is a Scotchman by birth and a loyal British subject. He went to South Africa in 1898, and located at Durban, going from there to the Transvaal or the Boer republic. He was in Africa a year before the first diamond was found there in modern times, and he has seen and participated in many of the early struggles taking place in Africa. He fought against the Zulus in 1879 in their uprising, and received a medal for the part he took. He was a ranchman, and has large property interests, and was extensively engaged in cattle and sheep raising. He was a field cornet, and exercised supervision over a large country in Africa. In time of peace he ruled over this ward, and if war broke out was looked on as the leader of his people. He took part in the early Boer war, and was one of the committee of three on the side of the British, which was called by Gen. Wood to consult about the settlement of the country after the Majuba battle. To the last Boer war he was living in Cape Colony, and being a married man did not go to the front, but put his name down as a reserve.
Later he was called up by the governor and placed in charge of the reserves with the rank of major. He had a rich territory to guard, and did some good work.
When the war ended and things quieted down, Mr. King decided to move, and he has reached Victoria, where he may make his future home.

In speaking of South African affairs and his early life, Mr. King said: "I went to South Africa in 1898, and localized at Durban and thought it a good place to start. When the Boer war broke out the Boers wanted me to join them, and I was offered a position of commandant, but I would not fight against my own country. After peace was declared at Majuba in 1881, I thought I would sell out and leave Africa. So I sold the bulk of my lands and went to visit my old home in Scotland. I stayed there a month, then decided to cross the water to the United States and look for a location.

"Arriving in the United States I sailed down the Mississippi river to St.
Louis, where I remained some few months. I then journeyed on through Missouri, Kansas, Colorado out through the west to Salt Lake City. The celebrated Mormon temple was not nearly completed then. That was in 1882. I stayed there a few days and pushed on westward to California and visited several of the big cities there. I left California and went to New Mexico and Texas. I did not like the look of things there, and having too much of the British in me to settle anywhere but under the British flag, I left the United States and went to New Zealand. I did not find land there which suited me for farming and stockraising, so went to Sydney. I did not like the look of the place, so drifted back to Africa, and went to the Cape Colony. Here I landed and went up country and settled in East Griqua-land. This was in 1883. I went in for cattle and sheep raising and did fairly well.

"The last Boer war broke out while I was there, and I was one of the reserves, being a married man. Later, about nine months before the end of the war, the Boers were threatening the territories. I was called up and given command of the reserves, with the rank of major, and held this until the end of the war.

"We were in home territory, and no imperial troops were there. The Boers made several attempts to come down, but they got the worst of it. We had lots of good horses and cattle, etc., which would have been of great help to the Boers, but we preserved our territory pretty well all through the war.

"You see after the Majuba affair in the former Boer struggle, the Boers were given back their land, and they got the idea they had licked England.

"Well, the Boers got funny again, and we had to lick them again. They have had a good whipping this last time, and I guess they are satisfied. They are sensible people, and are enjoying the rights of British subjects, and have more liberties than ever before.

"Personally, I could have done well if I had stayed in that country. There is no doubt but that I could have had all the Boer votes had I chosen to run for any office or for parliament.

"Africa is a great place. There is no doubt that it is a country rich in minerals. The great mines are producing immense quantities of gold and other minerals are there in abundance.

"My land consists of 10,000 acres, one-half located in the Transvaal and the other half in Cape Colony. I have rented temporarily. I may take a notion to go back there again, so did not sell.

"I left South Africa in March, 1905, went to Scotland and then on to Canada. I stopped at Quebec and Montreal, and then came to Victoria by way of Vancouver. I expect to stay here a while anyway. I am anxious to put my three youngsters in school. They have lower and school but a governess.
They are, however, well along in school work, and speak Dutch and Kafir very well.

"I believe we will like this climate, and if we decide to stay here I will probably sell out in Africa and go into business here. If not then, will go back either to New Zealand or to my old home in South Africa."

LOCAL PLAYHOUSES.

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" at the Victoria To-night—Other Attractions.

Roselle Knott, who will appear as "Mary Tudor" in Koster's dramatization of Major's novel "When Knighthood was in Flower," which will be seen in the Victoria theatre to-night, has probably been more successful in portraying the part than any other actress who has ever undertaken it, not even excepting Julia Marlowe. Even the best productions are at times forced to play to a comparatively small house, but in her triumphal tour in the same piece two seasons ago Miss Knott was greeted at each performance with a packed theatre.
So great has been her success with the piece that Charles Major has been authorized to prepare another play for her of the same nature and laid along the same lines, in the chivalric times of centuries ago.

Miss Knott's support is well in keeping with her worth, even in the smallest part in the cast. Mr. Conlar will appear as Branolan and Mr. Stevens as King Henry the Eighth of England. The play is staged and costumed with all the elegance that marked the first production.

The Bioscope.
The London Bioscope Company will open a three-day engagement at the Victoria theatre to-morrow night, giving an entertainment, consisting of a matinee performance on Saturday. The pictures produced by the company are of the greatest interest. Among the finest pictures are those of the King and Queen on their visit to Iceland. Many moving pictures are shown, including pictures of the King and Queen, and other pictures include warships, the Lakes of Kilmeray, logging in British Columbia, and scenes from "Hia-wartha." A number of amusing films are also shown during the evening.

Watson's Theatre.
To-night the last performance of "The Jew and the Gentle" will be given by the Watson Stock Company. The play is one of the strongest in the Watson repertoire, which means something as the list includes fifty plays.

Commencing to-morrow night the new play will be produced, Milton Noble's stirring comedy drama, "For Love and Law." There is action in every line of this play, and the lover of the strains in the drama will certainly enjoy "For Love and Law." An interesting feature will be the number of specialties that will be introduced during the action of the piece. The comedy element is very strong, and the play has never yet failed to please. The Watson Company appear to special advantage in such bills as "For Love and Law."

Next week the big production of "Carmen" in the sensational romantic drama, will be given. This is the play that created such a stir in Vancouver a few weeks ago.

Fire practically wiped out the little oil town of Pine Grove in Wetzel county, W.
Va., on Tuesday. Starting with a natural gas explosion in the Pine Grove hotel, it swept everything before it for several hours. The loss is $125,000.
Samuel Steen, a teamster, was burned to death. More than 20 buildings in the town were destroyed, including 15 residences.

sons of their own province and of the new provinces which are now so conspicuous in the eyes of the business world. Furthermore, the C. P. R. contended for years that the business prospects of the southern interior of British Columbia were not sufficiently promising to induce it to consider seriously the question of railway extension thither.

But the company's opposition with all the manifold resources at its command any proposition to permit other railway lines to enter the territory it held in such tight esteem. Now that the objections of the C. P. R. have been set aside and another railway company is actually building in Southern British Columbia, we find the great Canadian company running a stiff race with its rival for possession of the uninviting field.

So that the man who forms his conclusions from observation of current events in the transportation world may be inclined to maintain that there is some virtue in railway competition, British Columbians appreciate what the C. P. R. has done for their province, but they will hope for greater benefits from the old transcontinental when it has the stimulating competition of a new one to stir it up.

AN OLD-OLD STORY.

Why is it that Conservative organs like the Winnipeg Telegram and the Victoria Colonist take such marked interest in the first provincial political contest in Saskatchewan and ignore the equally important fight in Alberta? From the Tory point of view it would appear that the conflict in Alberta should be regarded as the more important. In Alberta the contest is being conducted on strict party lines. Grit being arrayed fiercely against Tory. The forces of the Conservative Opposition are led by that fiery orator, Mr. R. B. Bennett. The Eastern oracle which keeps our local contemporary adroitly respecting the progress of political events in all the divisions of Canada has predicted that the fight in Alberta would be very close, with the chances, if anything, in favor of the Conservative leader and his party. Does the election of three government supporters by acclamation indicate more than that the predictions of the oracle are not to be relied upon?

In the case of Saskatchewan Leader Hamilton, although he is confessedly a Conservative by tradition, family connections and training, has abandoned his party and elected to lead the opposition to the government of Premier Scott as an independent. One of the boasts of the friends of Mr. Hamilton is that three of his candidates are Liberals and that without considerable support from Liberals in the electorate he could not hope to succeed. This confession would tell a man of non-partisan or independent mind appear to be indicative of a decided weakness in the constitution of Conservative in the Northwest. For that reason we cannot comprehend why Conservatives should be so manifestly interested in the contest of independence—Mr. Hamilton in Saskatchewan and so palpably indifferent to the fate of Conservative Mr. Bennett in Alberta. Is it possible, notwithstanding the opinions of the oracle, that the straight Conservative has hope whatever of carrying his province, while there is a forlorn hope that the masquerading Tory, with the assistance of Liberals, he is said to have enlisted in his ranks, may be able to do somewhat better in Saskatchewan? Of course it must not be assumed, in the event of Liberal successes in both provinces, that the result is truly indicative of the will of the electorate? Such an outcome would be in harmony with the political sentiments of Saskatchewan and Alberta as expressed at the late federal elections; but are we not told that there has been a political revolution there since an account of the invasion of provincial rights by the Laurier government? Well, let us wait and see what happens in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and noting ourselves with the reflection that the sturdy, independent men of the Northwest are not of the class who will meekly submit to coercion. If it be a case of all that is noble and true and of good report in politics being arrayed against all that is vile and mean and self-seeking and corrupt, there is little doubt of the triumph of the virtuous.

An Ottawa dispatch says Prof. Ingalls, editor of The Engineering and Mining Journal, New York, has been commissioned by the Minister of the Interior to investigate and report upon the zinc deposits of British Columbia, and in particular that which is situated near Sandon, Altonvale, Laro and other points. Experts have been at work for some time surveying the areas where zinc is known to exist. Prof. Ingalls will master the details of their reports and then give his attention to the economic treatment and transportation of ores, also to the possibilities of establishing a profitable industry. A number of one hundred pound samples of zinc ore will be shipped to Denver, where a modern plant exists in which various processes of concentration will be tested on a commercial scale. Dr. Barlow and Mr. Keele lately proposed to British Columbia for the purpose of exploring zinc deposits which are as yet undeveloped. Prof. Ingalls is one of the greatest living authorities on zinc. He is the author of two books, "Production and Properties of Zinc" and "Metallurgy of Zinc and Cadmium," which are recognized as standard works.

A Seattle young lady who is suing a faithless avain for breach of promise of marriage has been asked to produce her things in court as an exhibit material for the purposes of the defence. The defendant, an ex-cuse his conduct on the ground that his former fiancée is afflicted with tuberculosis, and therefore is not physically fitted to take upon herself the duties and obligations of matrimony. The defendant laid before the court in pathetic terms the terrors he endured at the mere thought of living in the same house with and eating of the food prepared by a person capable of transmitting the most dreaded of diseases to his own shrinking person. Therefore for his own sake and for the good and welfare of the community he contended that he was justified in withdrawing from the acknowledged contract. And so he asked that the lady be subjected to the ordeal of the X-rays; and that the resultant exhibit should be produced in court for the information of the jury. This is science, practically applied, playing its part in the romantic affairs of life.

The shipping business is set in its independent men of the Northwest are not of the class who will meekly submit to coercion. If it be a case of all that is noble and true and of good report in politics being arrayed against all that is vile and mean and self-seeking and corrupt, there is little doubt of the triumph of the virtuous.

munty for the erection of a public building, for example, means nothing more than the distribution of that much money. The building itself who completed adds perfectly nothing to the wealth of the community. It affords little or no further employment, and is exempt from taxation for certain specific purposes. The expenditure of $1,000,000 in the same community in the direction of encouraging shipbuilding would mean the immediate distribution of at least $1,000,000, half of which would go to labor, and the possible expenditure of amounts enormously in excess of this, by the stimulating of an industry capable of almost indefinite expansion. Moreover the vessels thus built would be an addition to a permanent wealth of the community, giving employment to a vast number of men in their operation, their profits bringing in a perpetual flow of money into the community where owned. This money would be a flow and gusher, in addition to the stock of circulating medium, for it would not come from other domestic channels, but would be from the moneys that at present go into the pockets of foreign ship owners.

PERSONAL. C. P. Webster came down from the North yesterday after having spent the summer in the Skeena and Telqua river districts. Mr. Webster is the mining engineer for the Transcontinental Development Syndicate. He reports that a fine semi-anthracite coal property is being developed and an excellent coal for railway purposes is obtained. Mr. Webster with 16 men spent the summer stripping. Seams aggregating 25 feet in all were opened. The work was only of a preliminary character, and it is concluded that not much can really be done in shipping until the Grand Trunk Pacific is built in that territory.

SHIPBUILDING AND KINDRED INDUSTRIES. To the Editor—It is rather a regrettable fact that up to the present time ship building as an industry has not with us the same encouragement. We have here timber and material that is unsurpassed any where, and a class of men who are competent, hardworking and ambitious. Few people realize the amount of money that would be put into circulation in this province were our home products carried in vessels of home construction and owned here. At the present time we are sending our lumber, salmon and coal, three of the chief products of this province, in foreign vessels. The shipping business is set in its independent men of the Northwest are not of the class who will meekly submit to coercion. If it be a case of all that is noble and true and of good report in politics being arrayed against all that is vile and mean and self-seeking and corrupt, there is little doubt of the triumph of the virtuous.

WHY SO WEARY? ALWAYS RESTLESS AND WEAK ISN'T NATURAL—BUT IT'S DANGEROUS. You have to work hard. This uses up lots of nerve force and tears down the body faster than it can build up. The result is a half-dazed feeling you can't shake off. Somehow you must get more vitality. The water in your blood must be turned into nutriment and building material. This is just what happens in using Ferronine, which renews the blood and nerves, and makes each organ do the work that nature expects of it. Ferronine quickly increases your weight, brings appetite and health, color, or instills a reserve of vigor into the system that defies weariness, exhaustion, debility, or sickness of any kind. The stupor-strengthening power of Ferronine is proved in the case of Mrs. Edward Hill of Orr Lake, Ont., who says: "Two years ago I had a nervous breakdown. At night I tossed restlessly in bed, unable to get any rest from sleep. In the morning I suffered from overpowering weakness. My appetite was poor. I grew pale, thin and despondent. A slight hacking cough also added to my burden. "My doctor said to try Ferronine, and it did me good in a few days. I increased in strength, the nervous sensations disappeared, and with my appetite came back my color and good spirits. I have gained over ten pounds in weight, and as my age is 56, I consider Ferronine a marvel." (Signed) Mrs. Edward Hill.

Tacoma exchanges report that when the steamer Lynn of the Boston Tugboat Company, Nov. at Tacoma, sails for the Orient she will have a new passenger, Percy C. Harrington is hovering between life and death as a result of an attempt to commit suicide on Monday in a room at the Bohemian club at Tacoma. He made several ugly gashes in his throat, cutting half through the trachea, and covering himself with blood. He had been drinking for several days.

An "Autumn Tea" was given by Mrs. H. D. Helmeck at her rooms at the Hotel Grand yesterday afternoon. The spacious room on suite were prettily decorated with autumn shades, and the beautiful autumn tints on the leaves and vines, with bunches of natural grapes intermingled with the foliage made a very pleasing effect, and was in keeping with the occasion. Dining table were placed here and there throughout the room, and miniature electric lights were used. The color scheme of the tables was pink and white, in striking contrast to the room decorations and making a beautiful general effect. Professor Clambro's orchestra was present, and solos from the Italian opera were sung by Madame Olandt, adding much to the pleasure and enjoyment of the afternoon. Among those present were the following: Mrs. W. F. Bolton and Miss E. Bolton, Mrs. G. M. Ruggier, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. W. W. Bolton, Mrs. Stuart Robertson, Mrs. P. S. Lamson, Mrs. F. Bolton, Mrs. G. A. MAY'S LAST TRIP OF THE SEASON

SHIP ARRIVED FROM THE NORTH TO-DAY

Steamer Queen Narrowly Escaped running Into a Schooner Off Oregon Coast—Notes.

From Skagway the steamer Princess May brought this morning a large number of passengers. In the company were W. Fleet Robertson, provincial mineralogist; Major Snider and wife, J. H. Conrad, Capt. Williams, Lockie Burwash, Mr. Gore, W. Travis and H. A. Munn. Several of the above departed at Vancouver, among them being Mr. Conrad, who is at the head of the Conrad mines on Windy Arm. He will arrive from the Terminal City this evening. Capt. Williams is the owner of a big fox farm on Conception Island, near Wrangell. He has gone in for the raising of foxes on quite an extensive scale, and expects to have ten thousand of these valuable fur-bearing animals in a few more years. Lockie Burwash is mining recorder in the Klama district, while Mr. Gore is a well known Athlone miner.

The Princess May had in all about 70 passengers on her southern trip. Passengers from the interior report that the steamer Prospero was about to arrive at Dawson on the last trip to be made by any steamer between White Horse and that city when the Princess May left Skagway for Victoria. The Yukon steamer, it was stated, was making very poor headway and was having a good deal of difficulty with the ice. Mr. Munn, who was interested in the sawmill recently destroyed by fire at Caribou, states that the mill will be rebuilt in the early spring.

The Princess May after landing her passengers was taken around to Esquimalt, where her overhaul and improvements will now be commenced.

COLLISION AVERTED.

The steamship Queen and the schooner Cascade met in a fog off the Oregon coast on Friday last. The Queen, with a large number of passengers aboard, was south bound from Victoria. She was running under a slow bell and a sharp lookout was kept on the bow. Suddenly a whistle was heard directly ahead. The Queen blew two whistles. The steamer in the fog answered with two. Then three whistles were blown; the bow of the approaching steam schooner was seen through the fog, bearing directly down on the passenger liner. The propellers of both steamers clanged astern at full speed, the helms were put back over, the bows of the approaching steamers veered off and then they passed each other on the starboard side. The rails of both steamers were lined with passengers. They waited in breathless excitement while the vessels were signalling and manoeuvring. All then, when the danger was past, they gave vent to their relief by cheering Captain Cousins of the Queen.

GAMBLING QUESTION.

Interest Manifested By Members of City Council in Discussion Which Has Arised.

The question of Chinese gambling, which was introduced into the council meeting on Monday evening, is likely to become an acrimonious subject of discussion at the council held for some time to come. It is not unlikely, either, that it may play a part in the forthcoming municipal elections.

As far as gambling in Chinatown is concerned, it is learned that there are two factions of tong. The utmost rivalry exists between them. In all walks of life in Chinatown this animosity is said to be in evidence. This was prominently shown at the time of the trial of the men who were alleged to be concerned in the murder of the keeper of the Chinese theatre a year ago. The two factions opposed one another at that time, and petty cases followed the trial as each tongue tried to gain an advantage over the other. The police commissioners are said to have considered best in the interests of peace to put a stop to all gaming tables in Chinatown, as there was danger of further and more serious outbreaks between the tong. Finally both sides were said to have agreed to desist, and for a time the place were all closed. Then one faction broke faith and proceeded to carry on games in secret. The result was that complaints came from the other side, and in order to avoid the "slighting" of the factions the police determined to keep it stamped out. Raids were planned, and it will be remembered that in the last one access to the place was gained by the police through the skylight.

Following that quietness seemed to reign in the Chinese section of the city, but gradually the games began again. The reason has not yet been explained. The commissioners say they know of no instructions that the police should not interfere. A. H. Fell has pressed for an explanation, and members of the police commission are inclined to set themselves right in the matter, so that they may be expected to call for full explanations also.

THINK WHAT A STORAGE POWER MOTOR MEANS IN A MECHANICAL PIANO PLAYER. It means that the stored power can be used to re-wind the roll.
