Why are you interested in being a Wikipedia Recruitment Ambassador?

If you would like to find professors at a few new universities in your region to use Wikipedia in their classes, which specific universities would you especially target, and why (briefly)?

Describe an experience you had doing outreach (e.g. what exactly did you do? How did you like the experience? What were your goals? The biggest challenges you faced? How did you react to these challenges?). If you do not have specific experience, please explain what strengths will contribute to your efforts.

How do you think a professor can benefit from using Wikipedia in the classroom? How can students benefit?

Why do you think Wikipedia is known as "the free encyclopedia"?

If your goal were to recruit three more professors in your region to incorporate Wikipedia-editing into their classes for next semester, and you have the next month to accomplish this goal, how would you go about doing it? Assume that there are currently already two professors and four Campus Ambassadors in your region participating in the project this semester. Please provide a brief description and timeline of how you would proceed:

Will you be able to commit approximately 5 hours a week to the Regional Ambassador role, between December 2011 and August 2012?

Will you be able to commit approximately 8 hours a week to the Recruitment Ambassador role during December 2011?

Would you be willing and able to travel to other locations nearby to meet professors and Ambassadors in person, if the need arises? (being able to do so is not a requirement)

Which other Regional Ambassadors, Campus Ambassadors, Online Ambassadors, professors, and/or students can speak to your qualifications?
