DEATH DUE TO OVERWORK, IS BELIEF

Something Snapped in His Brain' and U. S. Loses 29th President

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—It is officially recorded that President Harding died of an cerebral apoplexy—something snapped in his brain' is the commoner way of expressing it.

The president left Washington June 20, for his first visit to the great west that lies beyond the Mississippi.

Body Leaves Tonight The president's remains will be taken from the Palace hotel at 8 o'clock this evening and borne to a special train at Third and Townsend streets.

Long, Strange Night It was a long and strange night about the eighth floor of the Palace. After Mrs. Harding retired, members of the cabinet also retired and quiet settled quickly here only a few hours before.

At 1 o'clock this morning she retired, nervously exhausted from the shock of the president's death. She slept fitfully, a nurse constantly with her.

Whole Nation Mourns Him

This striking sketch of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, was made by Bushnell, who draws cartoons for The Glendale Evening News.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY; LEADER LEAVES NO WORD

With Mrs. Harding at His Side, Reading to Him, President Passes, Silently, Easily and Without Uttering One Word

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—While a great nation bowed reverently in its grief today, the body of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States lay in stately simplicity on the top-most floor of a great hotel, 3000 miles away from the capitol.

The president died quietly, easily, and with a suddenness that was shocking at 7:20 o'clock last night, only a few hours after the physicians who had been hovering over him for days, had issued the most favorable news yet of his brief illness.

At about the same hour tonight, 7:30 o'clock, there will start from this far western city a funeral procession across the continent such as the nation has never before witnessed—a funeral train bearing the body of a president of the United States across 3000 miles of desert, plains and mountains.

At the time. A few feet from him was Mrs. Harding, reading to him a magazine article. In the room were two nurses, no one else.

Dies While Listening To Laudatory Article

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—By a queer twist of fate, President Harding died last night as he was listening to Mrs. Harding read aloud a laudatory magazine article about himself and how hard he worked at the job of being president.

BIG POLITICAL TURMOIL HITS REPUBLICAN PARTY

Many Will Seek Nomination; Senator Johnson Of California Certain to Be In Race; 1924 Fight Is Now Wide Open

By GEORGE R. HOLMES For International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—A political turmoil of almost unprecedented proportions has been precipitated in the Republican party by the sudden and dramatic death of President Harding.

Nomination Wide Open

Opinions are many and divergent upon this score, but upon one phase of it there is general unanimity—the death of President Harding throws the Republican nomination in 1924 wide open, even as it was in 1920, with no less than a dozen candidates certain to be in the field.

Johnson Candidate

A number of men who would not announce their candidacies so long as Mr. Harding desired a re-nomination are now expected to become 'available' and to energetically start to point their political ambitions toward next year's convention.

President Coolidge becomes the titular leader of his party, of course. It remains to be seen whether he will become the actual leader of the party.

Johnson lost the nomination at Chicago three years ago in the famous three-way deadlock between his forces, those of Governor Frank O. Lowden and General Leonard Wood.

There is Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover—another candidate of 1920.

And there is President Coolidge, himself. Whether he will be a candidate to succeed himself is a question that is going to be of great concern to the politicians in coming weeks.

Progressive friends of former Senator, now Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, have had a quiet movement under way for months, moving him toward the White House.

The Senator is regarded as being full of possibilities. With the precedent of one of their number having gained the coveted prize only three years ago, there now bids likely to be little limit to Senatorial ambitions.

Hughes Now Ranks Next To President Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The United States will be without a vice president for the next year and a half. The only changes in the system of government, however, will be the elevation of Secretary of State Hughes to ranking executive position under President Coolidge and the election of a permanent presiding officer for the senate.

In the senate, six names were mentioned today for the honor of presiding permanently in the place of former Vice President Coolidge and at his salary. These were Senator Cummins, of Iowa, now president pro tem of the senate; Jones, of Washington, who has been acting president frequently; Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican 'whip'; Moses, of New Hampshire; Watson, of Indiana, and Brandegee, of Connecticut, all Republicans.

FUNERAL AT OLD HOME AUGUST 11

Body Will First Be Taken to Washington, Then to Marion, Ohio

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—President Harding will be buried at his old home in Marion, Ohio, on Saturday, August 11, where final funeral services will be held.

The funeral train will leave San Francisco at 7 p. m. today, arriving in Washington at 1 p. m. August 8. Remains will be taken immediately to the east room of the White House whence they will be transferred to the rotunda of the capitol the next morning, Thursday, August 9.

There they will lie in state until 5 p. m. Then, after a funeral service, they will be taken to a special train, leaving Washington that evening, Thursday, August 9, for Marion, Ohio. The train will reach Marion Friday morning, August 10, and the funeral will be held there Saturday.

The president's wishes for the funeral follow the desires of the president as he had often expressed them in life. He had always said he wished his final resting place to be in Marion, the scene of his early struggles and rise to fame.

The plans were completed at noon today, after Mrs. Harding, Secretary Christian and Mrs. E. E. Rensberg, sister of the president, had conferred.

FRANCE GRIEVES WITH AMERICANS

'A Friend of France' Is Tribute Paid Harding by Paris Newspaper

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service
PARIS, Aug. 3.—France's grief over the passing of President Harding was expressed today in an impressive message of condolence from Premier Raymond Poincare. "All of the people of France bow their heads in sympathy with the grief which moves the United States," said Mr. Poincare. "Yesterday the world press told of President Harding's noble words in the magnificent testament in which he relates to his fellow citizens the permanent court of international justice in which the United States would participate. He outlined in admirable language the essential conditions surrounding such a court, and this was the final action of a man ready to resign supreme power to enter into the silence of eternity. Is this not the most beautiful counsel the chief of state can give to the country he governed and the great people who invested him with power?"

Premier Poincare signed his name to the statement in the presence of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and the American ambassador. Ambassador Herrick was visibly moved by the death of the American executive. He said:

"This news comes to me as a tremendous shock. Yesterday I sent a telegram of congratulations to Mrs. Harding on the good news of her husband's improvement. He was lieutenant governor under me in Ohio, and I loved him as a brother. His death is a calamity to the entire world."

After sending a message of condolence to Mrs. Harding, Mr. Herrick made preparations to sail for home tomorrow on the liner Paris.

The newspaper, La Liberte, issued a special edition containing a picture of the late President Harding, bearing the caption: "A Friend of France."

The death of every president from Lincoln to Harding is contained in newspaper pages owned by J. D. Cole of 628 North Orange street, desk sergeant of the Glendale Police department. Mr. Cole received some of them as an heirloom and has carefully added to the collection upon the death of each succeeding president. Papers announcing the death of President Harding are being added to the collection.

An error made by a child is a blunder; when made by a man it is a habit.

COMMENT That's All

Nation Mourns Harding
He Was Man Of People
Job Full Of Hard Work
Pres. Coolidge Knows It
By Gil A. Cowan

A GREAT nation today mourns the passing of its chief executive in San Francisco last night.

Today was the scheduled time for President Warren G. Harding to have visited this city on his tour of the United States.

And to think that his death should have been so untimely shocks a country and causes profound regret not only on the part of Californians and Americans, but the peoples of the world as well.

However, there is comfort in the thought that the president was not permitted to suffer severely in his final hours.

Even in the little mountain camp where this comment is being written the shadow of sorrow is cast today.

For President Harding was a man of the people, great and human. Yet words, hurried as they are at this moment of grief, utterly fail to expressively tell of his attributes.

To the bereaved widow, however, a word of condolence must be spoken. May she bear the burden of the hand of death bravely.

The work of the presidency is hard work. President Coolidge knows it. In yesterday's Pasadena Star-News, issued while encouraging reports were coming from San Francisco as to the president's state of health, appeared this:

In paying tribute to the conscientious zeal of President Harding in office, Vice-President Coolidge said:

It is evident President Harding has worn himself down in the service of the American people. He has never spared himself, but has been constant in the most earnest efforts to perform the duties of his office even to the minutest detail; it is this painstaking effort that is apparently the main cause of his illness."

Woodrow Wilson also broke down, while president, in his zeal to perform what he conceived to be his duty to the public. Mr. Harding went to Alaska primarily to study officially its needs and to devise ways and means to foster development up there. His strenuous experiences up there, combined with the hard work he had done before starting on this Alaskan trip and his tension, several months ago, when Mrs. Harding was ill, had weakened him so that his resistance to the tainted food which he ate was not what it would have been had

J. D. Cole Has File Of President Deaths

The death of every president from Lincoln to Harding is contained in newspaper pages owned by J. D. Cole of 628 North Orange street, desk sergeant of the Glendale Police department. Mr. Cole received some of them as an heirloom and has carefully added to the collection upon the death of each succeeding president. Papers announcing the death of President Harding are being added to the collection.

Hold Inquest Today On Accident Victim

Inquest into the death of Leonard Glenn, who was killed yesterday morning in Sycamore Canyon, is being held this afternoon, Friday, August 3, 1923, in the parlors of Kiefer & Eyerick.

Leonard is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Glenn. He was born September 18, 1915 in Pomona, where funeral services will be held tomorrow. He is survived by two brothers and a sister: Lowell, Kenneth and Helen.

Harding Was Strong At Start Of Trip

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—President Harding appeared to be in excellent health when he left the capitol. He was keenly anticipatory of the trip and he had labored hard, often times far into the night, at the White House during the holidays of early June, preparing the speeches he was to make en route to Tacoma. He planned these speeches carefully, for they were to make the Republican platform of 1924, at least to chart the course on a dozen great issues.

When the president reached Tacoma and sailed for Alaska he was tired. He showed it, but the glow of his way across the country was stronger than his fatigue. Three weeks were spent in Alaska, one of which into the interior can legitimately be called the hardest trip ever undertaken by any chief executive. He was more tired when he rejoined the naval transport Henderson to return to the states.

At Cordova and at Sitka, the last two stops in the territory, crabs were sent aboard the Henderson. They were served to all the members of the party. Some say that these crabs were infected by the copper poisoning native to the waters there. Some say not. The doctors do not agree. But, whatever be the facts of the case, the president ate them, and five days thereafter he began to experience a slight stomach disorder.

Reached San Francisco

Here the president was put to bed. He spent the thirty-six hours prior to his arrival here in bed aboard the train, but when he reached San Francisco he dressed—as it proved for the last time. He walked probably less than a hundred steps, from the train to the motor, from the motor to his suite on arriving at the Palace.

UNIVERSAL MOURNING FOR HARDING

DIES SUDDENLY, LEAVES NO WORD

Without Speaking, Without Pain, President Passes Away at Hotel

was acting as chief of the president's medical staff. He heard the commotion and leaped across the few feet into the president's bed chamber. "Warren! Warren!" said Mrs. Harding. It was the name she most frequently used in addressing the president.

No Word From Him
Sawyer grabbed the limp hand, bending over the bed.

The president of the United States was dead.

Without groan, without ceremony, without a struggle, he had passed away in that brief instant when, half reclining on the bed, his great figure had slumped. No word had passed his lips to give those in the room a warning. Something had snapped in his brain. The doctors say it was probably the instantaneous rupture of a blood vessel flooding the brain with a sudden gush of engulfing blood. Death, they believe was instantaneous.

This is the story of the president's death as gathered from the few who are in a position to know. The first bulletin of his death said that "Mrs. Harding and the two nurses, Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Sue Dausser, were in the room at the time." Later a correction was issued on this bulletin, saying that General Sawyer also was present.

No more sudden climax ever was conceived by the brain of a dramatist than that of the passing of the president. Only a few hours before the doctors had reported him gaining rapidly and steadily on the combination of illnesses, that only five days ago forced him to abandon the most epochal trip ever undertaken by a president of the United States, and which was more than half concluded at the time of his breakdown.

Almost Deserted
There were few about on the eighth floor of the hotel at the time. The corridors, which have been jammed with the coming and going of constant crowds for days were almost deserted. It was the dinner hour. Members of the cabinet and personal friends of the president who have been his constant companions on the Alaskan tour were downstairs, dining. Only the usual secret service guard and a few casual newspaper correspondents, their vigilance relaxed because of the continued optimistic bulletins on the president's convalescence, were about the halls.

Eight floors below there was a customary dinner throng gay, happy, gathering in the great dining room to the accompaniment of an orchestra.

Into this crowd, there suddenly dashed frantic bell boys paging members of the cabinet, the members of the official party, but loudest of all, the doctors.

Dr. Boone, the naval officer, whose name had leaped first to the lips of a frantic and terrified nurse, was dining with General John J. Pershing. He was out of the dining-room and across the lobby into the elevators while the boys were still running between the tables.

Then commotion broke loose in the hotel. Every one knew that something was wrong. No one knew what.

Issues Bulletin
Shortly the word came down. The president was dead. The death of the president was announced in exactly the same way as the bulletins on his condition have been issued, every day since his illness. Judson C. Welliver, chief clerk of the White House, went to the president's apartment to find out what was wrong. As a member of the White House staff he was permitted to go beyond the "dead line," which was established several days ago, and beyond which newspaper correspondents were not allowed.

Shortly he returned down the corridor.

"There will be a bulletin in a few minutes," he said to the waiting reporters. He went into a stenographer's room and there was a clacking of typewriters. When he emerged he silently handed out this:

"Aug. 2, 1923, 7:50 p. m. The president died instantaneously and without warning and while conversing with members of his family at 7:20 p. m. Death was apparently due to some brain involvement, probably an apoplexy. During the day he had been free from discomfort and there was every indication for anticipating a prompt recovery.

It was signed by the five physicians who have been constantly in attendance—Dr. Sawyer, Dr. Boone, Dr. Work, all of Washington and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the American Medical Association and Dr. C. M. Cooper, an eminent heart specialist of San Francisco.

Duty to Perform
The cabinet officers present, Secretaries Work, Hoover and Wallace, and Attorney-General Daugherty meanwhile had gathered in a room adjoining that where the president's body lay covered with a sheet, reverently drawn over it by the crying nurses. They had a duty to perform. It consisted of the following telegram to Vice-President Calvin Coolidge, now by the whim of an inscrutable fate, the chief executive of the greatest republic in the world.

"The president died at 7:20 p. m. from a stroke of cerebral apoplexy. The end came peacefully and without warning."

Each of the four signed it silently—the attorney-general with fingers that trembled. His eyes were wet. Those who knew of the almost brotherly affection between Warren G. Harding and Harry M. Daugherty did not wonder at his emotion.

Few men in American public life have been closer to each other than were "Warren" and "Harry." By some, Harry M. Daugherty was considered the Warwick who had been largely instrumental in lifting Warren G. Harding from his editorial chair into the Senate and from the Senate into the White House.

His grief was pitiful. He seemed dazed by the shock, and there was none who saw his grief-stricken figure slump down the hall but who felt a silent wave of sympathy. By a strange freak of fate—Daugherty had not seen the president since his arrival in San Francisco. He could have—but he said no—that he didn't want to bother him. Now he is dead and Daugherty saw through the half open door the figure of the man he loved, cold in death.

To Lay In State
In the death room itself, preparations were shortly begun to make the physical arrangements necessary for the transporting of the body back to the capitol where it will lay in state while a great nation pays tribute. Mrs. Harding, whose life a year ago had been despaired of, and who suffered one partial collapse on the present trip, was led from the room, biting her lips and clenching her hands to restrain the emotion that welled within her and which she was controlling only by the strongest effort. She was crying, but she did not collapse, earlier reports to the contrary.

Mrs. E. E. Rensberg, sister of the president, who had come up from her home in Santa Ana only a few days ago to see her brother for the first time in two years, assisted her to her room. She, too, was crying, but, as the president's sister, she undertook to give a few directions.

On Funeral Train
Then the undertaker and his assistants came in and the room which shall forever be historic was closed while they began their work of preparing the body for its long, sorrowful journey across the continent. The same party that accompanied the president from Washington on that memorable June day six weeks ago, will make the return journey on the funeral train. In addition there will be Attorney-General Daugherty, General Pershing and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rensberg and their daughters. The route to be followed will be the quickest, San Francisco, to Reno, Ogden, Cheyenne, Omaha, Chicago and thence into the capitol. No stops will be made other than those necessary in the operation of the train.

Sixteen enlisted men and two officers from both the army and the navy will comprise the last guard for President Harding.

Plan Speedy Trip
The trip to Washington will be a fast one. Sixty-five hours to Chicago, and twenty from Chicago to the capitol was the forecast tonight as preparations were be-

On Special Train
RUTLAND, Aug. 3.—President Coolidge left Rutland for Washington on a special train at 9:35 a. m. The presidential party arrived here by automobile from Plymouth and immediately entered private car No. 99 of the Rutland railroad for the first lap of the journey to Albany.

The presidential train will reach Albany this afternoon and will be attached to the regular train of the New York Central railroad, reaching New York at 5 p. m. Standard time. The final lap of the journey to the capitol will be made over the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving New York at 5:45 p. m. The Pennsylvania train is due to arrive in Washington at 10:55 (Standard time) tonight.

The president and his party will leave their special car at the capitol and be taken to the Pennsylvania station in automobiles.

Throng gathered at the railroad station in Rutland to greet the new president and wish him God-speed on his journey to Washington. Time did not permit an organized welcome, but the citizens turned out when they learned the president would begin his rail trip there.

Married in 1891
On July 8, 1891, the future president was married to Miss Florence King of Marion, Ohio. Following their wedding they went to live in the same house which is the Harding family home today and which has become famous because of the spacious "front porch."

In 1889 Harding made his first entry into politics. That year he was elected to the Ohio state senate from the thirteenth senatorial district. Following two terms in the senate he was nominated and elected lieutenant governor of Ohio in 1903.

It was in 1915 he was elected by a huge majority to the United States senate. As a senator Harding performed commendable work before the entry of the United States into the World War and throughout the war he supported the president in all war measures.

Becomes President
In 1921 he was elected to the presidency in 1920 and inaugurated in March, 1921, at the age of 55 years.

Outstanding in the administration of President Harding were the Washington conference for the limitation of armament; the soldiers' bonus and adjusted compensation bill and the ship subsidy bill.

The president had never forgotten the little farm in North Bloomfield township, Morrow county, Ohio, where he spent his boyhood. It was his intention to retire there and pass his declining years, and on April 4, last, he planned to modernize the old home place, including the old home place, to include a bungalow and golf course.

PRESIDENT'S RISE TYPICAL OF U. S.

Born in Ohio Village, Won Way to Presidency of American Nation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Americans today are recalling with interest the life story of their dead president.

The record of Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, reads like the history of all true Americans. Born in Corsica, Morrow county, Ohio, Nov. 3, 1865, he was the son of Dr. George Tyrone Harding and Phoebe Elizabeth Harding. He grew to manhood in the Ohio village of his birth. After attending public schools there, he went to Bertha, Ohio, to attend the Ohio Central college. Later he studied law and was admitted to the Ohio bar.

His law practice was only in its infancy, however, when he decided he preferred newspaper work, and consequently he soon dropped legal work and purchased the Marion Star.

"From Printer to President" is the title of a biographical sketch by a friend of the late president, telling of his success in the printing and newspaper business, that led him finally to the presidential chair.

Evening News Extras Tell of Death Details

HUNDREDS of telephone calls were answered by The Evening News last night confirming the death of President Warren G. Harding.

And the extras issued by The Evening News contained all of the details of the president's passing.

When the first reports were received, there was doubt as to their correctness. Confirmation came, the news soon spread by this paper's bulletins and extras and the office at the same time was almost swamped with calls over the telephone.

Extra editions of this paper were circulated throughout the city and in neighboring communities—and the people were in mourning for the twenty-ninth president of the United States.

BRITAIN MOURNS HARDING'S DEATH

Royal Family and Statesmen Cable Condolences To Mrs. Harding

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service
LONDON, Aug. 3.—The death of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, left London still shocked today as if it mourned the passing of one of its own loved sons.

Upon receipt of the first cable dispatches bringing the death message, flags on the American embassy were lowered.

Shouting newboys with extras spread the news. The embassy was besieged with telephone inquiries. King George ordered the court in mourning for a week. Premier Baldwin was deeply affected and prepared a message of sympathy. Lord Robert Cecil, and those who knew the president, expressed sorrow.

King Sends Message
King George sent the following message to Mrs. Harding:

"The Queen and I were much shocked to hear of the irremediable loss which has befallen you, and assure you of our heartfelt sympathy in your sorrow. The whole British people join those of the sister nation who mourn the death of their president at the culminating point of his distinguished career."

Former Premier David Lloyd George issued the following statement:

"News of President Harding's death comes as a shock to this country. We were led to believe the crisis was past. Mr. Harding's death is regarded by everyone as a great loss, for his genial, simple straightforwardness won for him the genuine respect and liking of this country. His death adds new complications to a world already tangled in troubles. There is everywhere a deep feeling of sympathy for Mrs. Harding. Our sincere good wishes go to the president in the task he has suddenly been called upon to perform."

Prince Wires Condolence
In a message to Mrs. Harding by the Prince of Wales:

"Please accept my sincere sympathy in the loss which you and the people of the United States have sustained."

Former Senator A. B. Fall of New Mexico, credited with having been one of the president's closest friends, received the news as a great blow.

"The president was beloved by all," he said. "He was one of America's really great men. The secret of his greatness lay in true humanity, his kindly nature and his desire to use his life for the benefit of his fellows."

"I believe his death was due to constant overwork," said Representative Theodore Burton of Ohio. "Every American will regret his death. The loss to the nation and the party is incalculable."

Harding's Death Due To His Overwork

there had been the bustling aftermath of a national tragedy.

Throughout the night the undertakers worked silently in the bedroom where the president died. They completed their task just as the dawn day laid a blanket of fog over the city. This forenoon, the long red carpeted corridor again presented a scene of bustle and activity, as the thousand odd details incident to getting away from San Francisco were being worked out. Military and naval officers completed details for the train guard.

Stunned by the blow, grief-stricken beyond expression, the city of the Golden Gate which so heartily received President Harding last Sunday, today typified in his actions, to the nation's beloved head, to the manner in which the news was received in every city, town and hamlet from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Like swift moving clouds of grey fog which from time to time suddenly envelope San Francisco, the pall of sadness settled over the city as the telephone, wireless and newspaper extras conveyed the news "President Harding is dead."

City Becomes Silent
The city was stricken numb. Orchestras halted in the midst of dance music, diners were forgotten, pedestrians stopped traffic in the streets as involuntarily they halted at the news and stood helplessly. The scenes in the Palace hotel in which the president's suite is located were typical. Diners looked on with interest as messengers dashed into the dining rooms paging the presidential physicians and a few members of the presidential party dining down stairs. The optimistic reports earlier in the evening concerning the president's condition, disarmed all but a few, however, as no further report came as the minutes passed. An assistant manager brought the news down stairs of the president's death.

"He's gone," he said, as he ran down the lobby. Those within hearing stopped as though petrified. Another assistant manager walked across the dance floor to the orchestra, stopped it with a wave of his hand and announced: "The President of the United States is dead."

No one moved for what seemed minutes. Then the dinner tables were deserted, food forgotten and the news discussed in whispers almost. The lobby jammed quickly with a quiet, reverent crowd. No one seemed to know why they were there. Outside the streets on both sides of the hotel crowds gathered in quiet, orderly fashion.

Police reserves who arrived on the scene within a few minutes, passed quietly through the throng with the announcement that the president's body would not be removed and the crowd melted away although all night there were many who came to stand, heads bared, by the hotel in which rested the body of the president.

A crowd of several hundred would gather only to melt away without a sound. The street was never bare, however, of a few score silent watchers.

Within a few minutes after the

Sixth President to Die During Office

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—President Harding, the twenty-ninth president of the United States, was the sixth president to die in office, and the third executive from Ohio so to die.

William Henry Harrison was the first to die while president. He died April 4, 1841, at Washington, after serving but one month of his term.

Zachary Taylor died at Washington July 9, 1850, after serving one year, four months and five days.

Abraham Lincoln was shot by an assassin at Ford's Theater, Washington, April 14, 1865, dying the next day. He had served four years, one month and eleven days.

James A. Garfield was shot while in the Pennsylvania station at Elberon, N. J., September 19, 1881. He had served six and a half months.

William McKinley was shot twice, September 6, 1901, while in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y. He died eight days later, having served four years, six months and ten days.

President Harding, who died last night at San Francisco, had been chief executive two years, four months and twenty-nine days.

Legion Will Adjourn Tonight's Meet Early

Respect for the late President Warren G. Harding will be shown by early adjournment of tonight's session of the American Legion.

Commander Chalmers E. Day stated that little, if any, business would be brought up. He stated that initiation would be carried through as scheduled.

announcement of the president's death the gay decorations on all sides, and the roof of the hotel, flags and electrical effects were being removed.

The presidential flag was hoisted at half mast.

On the proclamation of Mayor Rolph, Jr., decorations were removed all over the city and flags everywhere were lowered to half mast.

SERVES LONG IN PUBLIC SERVICE

Calvin Coolidge, Now Head Of Nation, Prominent in Political Affairs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Calvin Coolidge, although by profession a lawyer, entered the public service almost immediately upon leaving college.

First elected a member of the City Council of Northampton, Mass., the city which had been his home since he became a voter, he progressed steadily upward through the offices of city solicitor, mayor, membership in the House of Representatives and of the Senate of Massachusetts, serving as president of the latter body, upon leaving college he went to Northampton to study law, and in 1920, vice-president of the United States.

In the more than twenty years he gave to these duties his time was almost exclusively devoted to the problems of public affairs. Only incidentally did he turn to the law, although he always maintained an office with an associate at Northampton.

Born in Vermont
He was born in the village of Plymouth, Vt., on July 4, 1872, of Puritan ancestors, who came to this country and settled in Water-town, Mass., in 1630.

He left the farm in 1891 for Amherst college, and graduated with honors in 1895. Immediately upon leaving college he went to Northampton to study law, and finally settled there.

It was Mr. Coolidge's common sense, his insight into legislative tactics and his mentality which first attracted to him the attention of political leaders.

The late Senator W. Murray Crane, who was a resident of Coolidge's Congressional district, was among the first to note these qualities, and he resolved to utilize the first opportunity to project Mr. Coolidge into the national political arena.

Continues to Rise
By hard work and steady progress, Mr. Coolidge continued his rise until he could be considered for high state office, and then it was that Senator Crane and other leaders exerted their powers to have him nominated for the lieutenant governorship.

He was elected in the first campaign won by the Republicans in Massachusetts for several years, due to the Progressive party split. Thereafter it was but logical for him to succeed to the governorship, an office which he held for two terms, and which he left for the vice-presidency.

The dramatic events of the Boston police strike, in which the governor took a firm and unyielding stand for law and order, focused upon him in 1919 national attention and made of him almost overnight a national figure. For a while he was talked of prominently as a presidential possibility.

As vice-president, he became a regular attendant at the president's cabinet meetings, a custom established for the first time in his case.

Mr. Coolidge married Miss Grace Goodhue, whom he first met in Northampton as a teacher, in 1905, and they have two sons.

W. B. Kirk Writes About Sweden And Norway In His Letters To News Readers

A SUMMER sojourn in Sweden and Norway is being described in an interesting way by W. B. Kirk in his travel letters to readers of The Glendale Evening News.

Mr. Kirk's last letter tells of their arrival in Copenhagen, and in a letter just received he continues his story of sightseeing.

"Goteburg, Sweden, July 9. We left Copenhagen with a regret that we could stay no longer. Before leaving on Saturday afternoon, however, we took in the Rosenberg Palace, built by Christian the Fourth. Suffice to say that the marvelous handiwork on the crowns, swords and other royal jewelry was surpassed only by the jewels themselves, mostly diamonds, pearls and emeralds and one enormous amethyst.

"In this letter I think I will try to confine myself to the smaller things, the little details, such as the peculiar habits and customs of the people, and personal experiences.

"The eight-hour trip to Goteburg (pronounced Zherterburg) was made by train and ferry, crossing from Helsingfors, Denmark, to Helsingburg, Sweden. We had our first experience in a foreign dining car. It was not so bad and price 4 kro, each (about $1.08) besides extras.

"Up through the fertile fields of southwest Sweden was a fine trip. The tall fields of rye, almost ready for harvest, the hay in shock and being cut, sugar beets, sleek black and white Holstein cattle, the thick-spt breeds of draft horses, these are the principal features of the picture. Corn is an unknown cereal in Scandinavia, too cool. The barns are large and solidly constructed, with tile roofs and everything so substantial and well-kept.

Hotels Crowded
"If we had not arranged, through some traveling companions, to have rooms reserved for us here at a private place, we would have been out of luck, for every hotel was crowded. As it was, we found ourselves in a nice apartment, where we were also provided with breakfast and dinner. We had single beds with satin coverlets, Irish linen sheets and pillowcases, with drawn-work embroidered borders, can you beat it?"

"We were told to press the button for breakfast any time after 7:30, which we did, and asked the girl, as best we could, to bring us rolls, ham, two cups of coffee and a cup of tea. It took her just an hour. She brought in a small table, immaculate linen and for breakfast: sliced tomatoes, platter of ham, dried beef, Swedish sausage, liver patties, Swiss cheese, marmalade, fancy cakes, rye bread, Knickerbrod, large pot of coffee, pot of chocolate, pitcher of cream and a large pitcher of milk.

"On Sunday we attended church at a Swedish Lutheran near by, which proved to be the largest in Goteburg. We couldn't understand a word but enjoyed the service. "The Exposition is only two blocks away. From the standpoint of the Scandinavians it is undoubtedly of much interest, but by an American, who has been to our expositions during the past forty years, it could be taken in in a few hours. Studying the types of people was as interesting as anything.

They Look Human
"The 'rubies' and peculiar garb we expected to see, were not in evidence. You could hardly have distinguished it from an American crowd, although I don't believe we saw a single American or Englishman. I have seen more 'raw Swedes' in America than I have seen here.

"When we entered Sweden and our passports and visas were examined we were handed a slip telling us that we would have to report to the police department within twelve hours. So Sunday morning through these friends of ours, Mr. and Mrs. Milham of St. Paul, we sent word of our arrival. They brought back word that I would have to report personally Monday morning, state just how long we would occupy our rooms and pay for them there.

"They charged us an extra fifteen per cent, which the city gets as a rake-off. How's that?"
"However, the courtesy exhibited to strangers as well as to each other is a characteristic of these Scandinavians, which is very noticeable. The porter at the hotel entrance bows you in, the elevator man salutes and steps out before you enter, no matter how many times of day you use the elevator, and the little bell-boy bows himself out backwards when he delivers a note. Some of these things are very amusing to us, not the least being the pomposity of the officials of every kind, especially in Sweden.

"Even the traffic officers are decked out in old-fashioned soldier clothes and wear helmets such as we used to see pictures of on the soldiers of the Kaiser.

Bicycles Popular
"Bicycles are the chief means of transportation. They are about as common in Copenhagen as autos with us, and are just as hard to keep out of the way of. The language of the Scandinavian people is very hard, but that of the Danes is the worst.

"You don't know how helpless one feels, when unable to speak a single word which can be understood. And the dumbness of some of them when you try to make signs and get somewhere is exasperating. I will give you a fine illustration of this if you ask me, it would take too long on paper.

"If you don't believe the language is hard ask Mr. Cowan to show you the copies of a Christiana and Copenhagen paper which I sent him. By the way, I am getting hungry for a little U. S. news, to say nothing of California. These newspapers are worth absolutely nothing to us. We get an occasional London 'Mail' or 'Telegraph' (price 12 cents), but there is mighty little in them that interests us.

Glendale Canadians Demonstrate Loyalty
A fine spirit of loyalty to their adopted country and its dead president was shown last night by Glendale Canadians, who were gathered in the K. P. hall on South Brand boulevard for a social evening and dancing.

An unusually fine entertainment had been arranged for the Canadian club last night and a large company of members and friends were gathered and having a jolly time and were just ready to start the dance program at 9 o'clock, when news of President Harding's sudden death was brought to the hall.

A conference was immediately held between club officers and members of Kelly's Shrine club orchestra and the company was dismissed.

Commendation for the club's action was voiced this morning by C. A. Valentine, trustee for the hall.

START FOR EAST

SETTLEMENT OF SUITS IS SOUGHT

Attorneys in Los Feliz Tax Cases Hold Conference In Los Angeles

An attempt to settle claims arising out of unpaid assessments following the improvement of Los Feliz road out of court was made this morning at a conference in the Chapman Building, Los Angeles.

Steddom and Blanchard of Los Angeles, plaintiffs in the cases, were represented by Attorney Harry K. Smith in whose office the conference was held.

The Los Feliz Tax Protective Association was represented by Attorney G. H. Wende of 102-A East Broadway, who explained the status of affairs briefly at last night's session of the City Council.

City Attorney Ray L. Morrow expressed his opinion this morning the suits for the collection of the assessments were brought solely as a matter of "orderliness." Inasmuch as he has been informed that none of the defendants in the action received the required formal notice of the contemplated legal action, he believes that the cases are illegal. He is of the opinion that they can be fought with success.

Deadlock Feared
At 1 o'clock this afternoon, representatives of the Los Feliz Tax Protective association were still endeavoring to reach a settlement with Steddom and Blanchard, plaintiffs, through Milton A. Blanchard and his attorney, Harry K. Smith, in the offices of the latter, Chapman building, Los Angeles.

This statement was made by Ray L. Morrow, city attorney, who added that, while he believed it impossible to arrive at a basis for settlement of the action already brought, it might yet be possible to settle where no papers have been presented.

The Los Feliz Tax Protective association was represented by G. H. Wende, counsel, and by L. W. Chobe, president of the organization. In addition to Mr. Morrow, councilmen Asa Hall and Sam Davis, and A. G. Wheelon of the city engineer's office, were present on behalf of the property owners involved.

OPERATE ON CHILD
Jeannette Dawson, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Dawson of 437 1/2 Ivy street, was operated upon last night at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

KITTERMAN BACK FROM TRIP EAST

Banker Discusses Economic Conditions in Mid-West Farming Region

R. F. Kitterman, vice-president and manager of the Glendale branch, Security Trust & Savings bank, who returned, with his wife and daughter, Miss Kathleen Kitterman, last Saturday to their home at 311 North Kenwood street, from a five weeks' combined business and pleasure trip through Nebraska and southern Minnesota, gives a graphic picture of agricultural and economic conditions there.

Prospects are that there will be bumper crops throughout the Middle West, according to Mr. Kitterman, but business conditions are somewhat retarded, due to the general knowledge that the market for these crops are poor and the fact that, as a general rule, the farmers will make no profits this year.

Farmers Discouraged
"Even though conditions are improved over last year, the situation is still grave," Mr. Kitterman states. "Many farmers I talked with are depressed over low prices and threaten to discontinue farming, while the cities are flooded with farm hands and small town labor, forced to the economic centers by the low wages paid in the outlying districts."

Costs Inflated
"Throughout the country, but particularly in the Middle West," states Mr. Kitterman, "farm lands during the 1914-1918 period turned over again and again, until ultimately their cost became inflated out of all proportion to their value."

Permit to Move Chapel
On motion of Councilman Kimlin, seconded by Councilman Horn, permission was granted the Lutheran church to move their church from its present site at the corner of Maryland and Harvard to a location 150 feet north of Colorado on Kenwood street, and to build an addition to the building on the new site.

Telegram to Mrs. Harding
On motion of Councilman Kimlin, seconded by Councilman Horn, the Mayor pro tem was requested to send a message of condolence to Mrs. Warren G. Harding, expressing the sincere sympathy of the city of Glendale upon the death of her husband, the late President of the United States.

Many Coming West
Mr. Kitterman reports that the rank and file of people generally, in the Middle West, are eager to come to California, and many are laying aside capital and getting their affairs in shape toward that end.

Open Cash and Carry Grocery and Market
The remodeling of E. B. Stewart's grocery at 315 East Broadway has now been completed and the establishment will be known in the future as "Stewart's Cash & Carry Store."

Coupe is Stolen
Miss Helen Tupper of 1003 East California avenue had her Ford coupe stolen yesterday afternoon from the vicinity of the Southern Branch of the University of California.

COUNCIL MINUTES

Council assembled at 8:30 o'clock p. m. Present: Hall, Horn, Davis, Kimlin. Absent: Robinson. On motion of Councilman Kimlin, seconded by Councilman Horn, Councilman Davis was appointed Mayor pro tem, whereupon Councilman Davis took the chair. Reading of minutes of July 30 was postponed until the next meeting.

Windsor, Porter, Garfield
In accordance with call, bids were opened and publicly declared for the improvement of Windsor road, Porter street, Garfield avenue, Fischer street and of Acacia avenue, from the following bidders: G. A. Constantine, Peter L. Ferry, W. J. Curran, E. L. Fleming.

Los Feliz Road Assessment
Attorney Wende, representing the Los Feliz Protective association, addressed the council requesting assistance in the matter of contesting suits brought against property owners in the Los Feliz Road assessment district.

Permit to Move Chapel

John Hyde Braly Tells College Life, Also Of His Teaching, Farming, Mining

A CONTINUANCE of the life sketch of John Hyde Braly is herewith printed, the account being taken from the autobiography he published in 1912 under the title, "Memory Pictures." Mr. Braly's memoirs are full of romance and adventure of the early days in California and Glendalians are interested in reading of the background of this well known and beloved citizen.

In the preceding installment, Mr. Braly's boyhood in Missouri, journey across the plains in a covered wagon and life in California are related, and today The News readers will read of his departure for college and of his educational and business career.

So the young John Hyde Braly left for college. Of this great event he writes:

"Thus, one fine day, I found myself weeping my eyes out on board the old 'John L. Stephens,' steaming out through the Golden Gate in company with 1,000 passengers.

"All my effects were in a carpet bag, save a pistol and $250 in gold. These were belted on my person, the pistol outside and the gold under my clothes around my body."

He arrived in Lebanon, in the middle of Tennessee, on Christmas eve, a strange, timid boy from the Far West, without a single friend or acquaintance in the town.

He was permitted to enter the sophomore class of Cumberland University, where he remained for three years.

Of his university life Mr. Braly says:

"They were the happiest and, I believe, the most profitable years of my life. I graduated with the honors of the class, being given the valedictory. My subject was 'Life's Changes.'"

"Upon leaving school I desired to see something of the country before returning to California. I traveled north to Niagara Falls and thence on to New York. I was so anxious to get back home to see my loved ones and my California that I could not take the time to ride across the plains on a mule. I reached home at last and oh! such greetings!"

Becomes Teacher
The young collegian then entered the teaching profession, first as the president of Sonoma College, a boarding school for boys and girls. After this association he and his brother Frank engaged a heading and threshing outfit and went into a three months' harvesting campaign. He later re-entered the teaching profession, taking charge of Union Academy in San Ramon valley.

On November 24, 1860, Mr. Braly married Martha Jane Hughes, at the Hughes home in Edendale, Alameda county. Mr. and Mrs. Braly spent the first three years of their married life in San Ramon valley. It was during the great Civil War between the north and the south.

In telling of these days, Mr. Braly says:

"In the winter of '63-'64 I became pessimistic about the future of our part of the country and was ambitious to make money a little faster than was possible in school work. I sold out my interest in the academy, left my little family at the Hughes home at Edendale and with our school earnings of $3000 went to the Reese river mines over in eastern Nevada. There I loaned my first money to Sam Langhorn, a high-toned young druggist, $250 at 10 per cent per month compound, or 120 per cent per annum. It now amounts to $3,360,455.25! I never expect to get even the principal."

Little Red Mule
"Six months later I returned, riding a little red mule, with my camping outfit, consisting of a blanket, a tin cup, a package of tea, some crackers, cheese and bacon, and minus our $3,000. The bottom had dropped out of the mines. By alternately running on foot, leading or driving the mule, I made fifty miles a day over the Nevada deserts and the Sierra mountains, a distance of about 700 miles, camping out every night."

Mr. and Mrs. Braly, still courageous and with faith in the future then bought a little farm in Santa Clara county and he took charge of the Mountain View school.

During the summer and fall of 1864 he tells of the greatest drought year ever known in California. (Continued on page 8)

HARDING'S DEATH
HALTS MEETING

City Council Adjourns Out of Respect When Radio Flashes Tidings

A dramatic scene was enacted last night by the City Council which adjourned as a token of respect to the late President Warren G. Harding.

News of the death of the president was received first by Councilman W. A. Horn, who was one of the first radio enthusiasts in Glendale. He was called out of the committee of the whole about 8:15 o'clock to answer the phone.

"President Harding is dead!" was announced. "Just got it over the radio!"

Returning to the committee room, Mr. Horn spread the news to his colleagues: Councilman Sam Davis, Councilman C. E. Kimlin, and Councilman Asa Hall.

After a few minutes' delay, the council entered the council chamber which contained about fifty citizens, most of whom had received the information of the death of the nation's chief executive.

Davis Presides
In the absence of Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilman C. E. Kimlin moved that Councilman Sam Davis should preside. Mr. Davis took the mayor's desk.

Announcement that the meeting would be adjourned out of respect for President Harding as soon as possible was made immediately by Acting Mayor Davis.

The audience received the news with comment. There was no conversation and the council chamber was conspicuously silent.

A motion that the reading of the minutes should be dispensed with was passed immediately.

Councilman W. A. Horn then moved that City Manager W. H. Reeves should send a message of condolence to Mrs. Harding. After this motion had been amended upon suggestion of Councilman C. E. Kimlin to read that the message should be sent by Acting Mayor Davis, it was passed unanimously.

A few minutes later the council adjourned.

Accident Is Verdict In Matice Death Case

"Death by unavoidable accident" was the verdict rendered yesterday morning at the inquest over the body of Douglas Matice, 4 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Matice of 2223 Fargo street, Los Angeles, who was fatally injured Tuesday afternoon when he was struck by an ice truck in front of his home and died later at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

It was found that the child suffered concussion of the brain, which caused his death.

Testimony offered at the inquest, held at the Jewel City Undertaking company's chapel on North Brand boulevard, was to the effect that the accident was unavoidable and fully exonerated the driver of the ice truck from all blame.

Funeral services for the child were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Little Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park.

Would Welcome Aid to Save Historical Tree

Mayor Spencer Robinson has received from the Cambridge, Mass., board of park commissioners a reply to his recent telegram in which he offered to place at that city's disposal the services of Gustav Rasmus, Glendale industrial commissioner and inventor of Plant-pep, to save the historic Washington elm, which was reported to be dying.

The letter states that the commissioners would be glad to welcome any suggestions that Mr. Rasmus might care to offer to Prof. Charles A. Sargent, who has had charge of the elm for the last twenty-two years, and suggests that the former communicate with the professor and lay before him any advice that he may care to offer.

It is probable that Mr. Rasmus will act on the suggestion embodied in the letter from the Cambridge park commissioners.

Lawyers Prosper as Heat Spoils Tempers

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 3.—Summer, with its hot weather tempers and vacations, is wrecking many homes in Indiana, judging from reports of crowded court dockets and busy lawyers' offices from all parts of the state.

Couples who are able to get along passably in the more comfortable months find hot weather and an incompatible mate more than they can stand, attorneys say. Vacations which put husband and wife constantly in each other's company often end in a domestic crash, they explain. A hot Sunday is a hard day for the ill-fated couple, the Monday morning rush of irate wives and husbands at the lawyers' offices, which follows such a day, indicates. "Driving from the back seat" on Sunday automobile trips is said to be a frequent cause of family upheavals.

PARK PURCHASE

Resolution Asks Conference Of Civic Bodies to Formulate Plans

Acting on the belief that there is an urgent need for a municipal park site, and on the understanding that the Haddock-Nibley company is willing to return to the city of Glendale the Verdugo Canyon park it recently purchased, and which was previously the property of this city, Glendale camp, No. 67, of the United Spanish War Veterans, at its last meeting passed the following resolution:

WHEREAS, 1. The City of Glendale is without adequate park site where civic gatherings may be accommodated; and

2. The Verdugo Canyon park formerly owned by the City is the most suitable site for such purposes and can be obtained at a reasonable cost and without delay;

3. It is believed the citizens of Glendale would welcome an opportunity to acquire the Verdugo Canyon Park site; be it

RESOLVED: That Glendale camp, No. 67, U. S. W. V., place itself on record as favoring the purchase of Verdugo Canyon park by the city of Glendale and that the Chamber of Commerce, recognized as the leader in civic affairs and projects, be requested to call a conference of representatives of all civic and other organizations in Glendale for the purpose of instituting such proceedings and taking such action as may be necessary to secure said park site for the city of Glendale.

Asks Revocation of Patrolman's License

The retirement of B. R. Sims of 319 Ivy street from the private patrol business is announced in the following communication received from him by the city administration:

"I hereby request that you permit me to discontinue the private patrol business in the city of Glendale that I have been operating under a permit from you dated August 2, 1922, and to accomplish that purpose I hereby waive any and all rights which I may have under said permit or under Ordinance No. 611 of the City of Glendale. I hereby respectfully request that you revoke my permit."

The new Pacific coast plant is intended to be the company's main hosiery mill. The two plants will co-operate in every way possible, however, and especially in purchasing and marketing.

"Theme Hosiery" is this company's trademark. This will be used jointly by the two plants in national advertising.

Full fashioned hosiery was first turned out in the Wayne Knitting Mills, Theodore F. Thieme secured the inspiration to make hosiery better fitting while visiting hosiery mills in Chemnitz, Saxony. The new plant will be the first factory on the Pacific GROUND will be broken in a few weeks for the first unit of the local plant of the Thieme Brothers' Hosiery Company. George Emerson, manager of the Glendale office at 1737 South San Fernando road for the W. A. Heitman Company, yesterday made this announcement. Mr. Emerson added that the cost of the first unit, exclusive of equipment, will be over half a million dollars.

"The magnitude of this project is not realized yet," asserted Mr. Emerson. "About 2500 persons will be employed ultimately. This will mean a very large payroll. Most of these people will live in Glendale and the Atwater tract. Considering four persons to the family, which is conservative, this plant will support about 10,000 people."

Incorporated Here
A new incorporation was effected this spring under the laws of the state of California to finance the local plant. The stock is controlled, however, by the parent company.

The local plant will be in charge of Fred H. Ranke, secretary and general manager of the California company. He has been with the Thieme Brothers' organization for the past twenty-eight years. He resigned his position as sales manager for the Wayne Knitting Mills the first of May, and is expected within a few days in Los Angeles. John J. Cavalier, treasurer of the company, for several years has been treasurer of the Wayne Knitting Mills, where he was in charge of the accounting and credit departments.

Charles H. Pidgeon, advertising and assistant sales manager, has had twenty-five years' experience as a salesman. For the past ten years he has been in the sales department of the Wayne Knitting Mills, more recently as sales manager.

Harry Pfeiffer, who will be superintendent of the new plant, has had extensive experience in the operating department of the Wayne Knitting Mills. He commenced his career as a knitter's apprentice.

Wayne L. Thieme will be assistant to the general manager. Theodore F. Thieme will participate in the financing of the new factory, but does not intend to take an active part in its management.

Mrs. George Emerson of 129 West Eulalia avenue and two children, "Bud" and Bess Barbara, are spending the summer at Topanga Beach. George Emerson also is spending a large part of his time there. He is manager of the local office at 1737 South San Fernando road for the W. A. Heitman Realty Company.

S. D. Newbill Crossed Plains With Train of Oxen Seventy Years Ago

Another "almost ninety-year-old" has been added to the membership of The Glendale Evening News' Sunset club, in the person of S. D. Newbill of 4328 Perilla avenue, Bible student, preacher and traveler.

It was almost seventy years ago that Mr. Newbill as a young lad drove six yoke of oxen across the plains to Shasta county, Calif.

He was born in Franklin county, Va., May 7, 1834, and lived there until he was eight years of age. Then his family moved about, living in Tennessee, Kentucky and other southern states.

After his journey across the plains Mr. Newbill lived for a while in Sonoma county, where he was in the dairy business.

His first sight of Los Angeles was in 1869. Shortly after he and seven others drove in a big spring wagon back across the plains to Kansas City, Mo. The return to California was by train.

Student of Bible
Bible study is the greatest interest of Mr. Newbill's life and he says that after belonging to the Methodist Church, South, the Holiness church and the Free Methodist church, he became a member of the denomination he calls "Christ's Body."

In his preaching and Bible study he has crossed the continent four times and visited Honolulu, New Zealand and Australia.

Mr. and Mrs. Newbill had nine children, eight of whom are living. They have eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Arthur the Mysterious

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

"You can talk all you wish about women and old people failing for bunk," Dan Carney is fond of saying, "but the ones who are the most easily fooled are the so-called hard-headed business-men." Then Dan thinks of Arthur the Mysterious and, if there is anyone present who has not heard it, tells the story.

Arthur established himself by degrees in the graces and confidence of Wardtown. It was hinted he could tell fortunes and had marvelous telepathic faculties. Those who visited him were impressed with his turban, baggy purple trousers and short red coat, but more so by the fact that he asked no remuneration for his efforts. In time there were many who sought his advice and learned that he specialized in business hints.

When Dan Carney, as a newspaperman, was asked to find out who he could of the man, Arthur had become a sort of stock exchange—one of the queerest that could be found anywhere. For all the reports, seemingly, came to Arthur the Mysterious over the ether. In his Oriental costume, turbaned like a Hindu, he walked back and forth on his strip of bright-colored rug reciting the figures as they came while an assistant marked them on a board. Seated in four rows in front of him was such a group as may be found in many a stock broker's room.

"What's the dif?" one of these men said to Dan. "The papers all show his reports are correct. I'm not worrying how he gets them."

Dan was puzzled. He tried to find out how Arthur was profiting in any way other than an ordinary broker, and then sensed the answer. Some of these men were more than impressed. A person who could read the reports out of his mind and get them right, they reasoned, could give tips and advice. Arthur was building upon their credulity and confidence, was making ready for the big haul. Perhaps, already, he had taken money from a number of them, money to invest upon information given him in mysterious manner.

Dan spent many hours trying to think of a plan to reveal Arthur as an impostor, studied the man carefully as he walked about droning out his figures and, for a while, was baffled.

"I think," he told Crimmins, his city editor, "I've got one end of it. You come today and watch.

The usual crowd was there and Crimmins, for all his reputation for shrewdness, was as puzzled as any.

"Tell me what happens," Dan whispered, then arose and walked out.

In a few minutes a change came over the suave expression of Arthur the Mysterious. His brow contracted and he pressed his hand against his cheek. Then he turned pale, looked startled, and without a word of explanation ran from the room. Wardtown remembers how he ran through the street in full regalia, took the train, and left. In the little room men looked at one another through the tobacco smoke in amazement, then they ceased, the assistant, too, had disappeared. Dan, breathless, burst into the room.

"He skipped," said Crimmins.

"Gentlemen," Dan called to the men who were moving toward the door, "Arthur the Mysterious has flown the coop and I don't think he will be back—unless some of you have good reason for setting the law onto him.

Dan was standing where Arthur had stood. He stooped, pulled up one corner of the rug, then threw it back. On the floor, covering a space almost the size of the rug, was a sheet of copper.

"There is the answer," the youth explained. "Arthur had a little copper spike on his heel and wires up his leg under those funny trousers. Over his head and under that turban was a telephone receiver. A man in the next room got the reports from the exchange in Jonesville and telephoned them, to Arthur. So long as he kept on the rug the connection was maintained."

It was a sheepish group which filed out and the general agreement was that the less said of the matter the better.

"But why did he skip?" Crimmins asked.

"I found the fellow in the other room," Dan confessed, "scared him away and told Mr. Mysterious a few things on my own account. Wouldn't be surprised if I mentioned it would be a good plan to run before I exposed him to the crowd.

DESIGNED FOR YOUTHFUL FIGURES

Of white flat crepe or crepe de Chine, the first frock becomes all the more alluring because of the unusual drapery at the side and the fact that it launders perfectly. The slashed fronts are turned back to form revers, but youthful lines rebel against the addition of a collar. Flowing sleeves are finished with self-pipings. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

A frock does not have to be developed in printed fabrics to be Egyptian in its inspiration. Instead, it can be caught up at the front, after the fashion of the women of the Pharaohs. The model to the right is in gray crepe de Chine, with the attached two-piece skirt laid in forward-turning plaits in front. The wide draped girdle also closes in front. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

First Model—Pictorial Review Dress No. 1568. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

Second Model—Dress No. 1570. Sizes, 16 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON PET VIRTUES

What a funny blend of faults and virtues most people are! Who was it said, "Nothing is so astonishing as the goodness of the bad except the badness of the good?"

Whoever said it, it is true. Most of us have our pet virtues, which we like to exercise—and which we like to blame other people for not exercising.

I know a man who has a very great dislike of anything the least bit off color in the story line. He will refuse a laugh to the most mildly sophisticated tale and will manage to make the teller feel as if he had been rebuked for telling it.

Each Felt Superior

I remember one man who was given this rebuke of the blank face, and who did not even know that he had offended. When he was told he said: "He minded that story, did he? Well, I don't see anything out of the way in it. But I will tell you something I do mind, and that's the way that man dances. I never saw anyone dance so close. I wouldn't dance that way with anyone, and I wouldn't let my wife dance that way with him."

And he swelled with pride over his pet virtue and conscious superiority over the man who lacked it.

Just as the other man when he looked blank had been (unconsciously) rebuked for his pet virtue, so the man who swelled with pride over his pet virtue and conscious superiority over the man who lacked it.

Just as the other man when he looked blank had been (unconsciously) rebuked for his pet virtue, so the man who swelled with pride over his pet virtue and conscious superiority over the man who lacked it.

BEAUTY CHATS

COLD CREAMS

The words "cold cream" are only a designation for an oily paste for use upon the skin. There are hundreds of kinds for dozens of purposes. Do you want some of the formulae treasured by makers?

Here's a tissue-building cream sold widely under various names. It is splendid for wrinkles, dry skin, thin cheeks, hollow neck and an aged look. Its only drawback is that it will grow hair if you have any such tendency:

Tissue-Building Cream—Put one ounce of cocoa butter in an enamel saucepan over slow heat, add an ounce of spermaceti, an ounce of olive oil, six ounces of lanoline and two of oil of almonds. When they have melted add gradually fifty grains of powder and borax. When melted, remove from the fire, stir and beat until ready to congeal, and pour into jars. This massages in best when warm. Heat a little just before using it.

Sulphur Cold Cream—Two tablespoonful of flower of sulphur, made into a sticky paste with a few drops of cologne and a little glycerine. When it is the consistency of cold cream add it to a stencil of cold cream and stir until blended. This cream is particularly good for pimples, facial eruptions and dandruff.

Boric Cold Cream—Cooling, healing and antiseptic, for use after bites, stings, pimples that are beginning to heal or that have not yet broken out; for soreness, chafing and the like. When mixed, one ounce of hard paraffin into little pieces, melt with two ounces of petroleum jelly, gradually sit in four or five drachms of boric acid powder. Stir while it cools and put in an ordinary small cold cream jar. Most druggists will sell these empty jars cheaply.

Worried M. A. D.—The mixture of peroxide and ammonia for bleaching superfluous hair is made up of equal parts of each. The skin should be clean before applying the mixture. Use a small piece of absorbent cotton moistened with the bleach. One application a week should be enough after you have bleached the hair.

Mickey—Use an astringent several times each week to reduce the large pores in your skin. Ice rubs will be a good treatment for this.

Cucumber cream is cool.

If they are used after the skin has been thoroughly cleansed of all soil.

HOUSEHOLD LAMP

The inventor of a new lamp household use claims it gives 10 hours of light from a teaspoonful of kerosene.

You seldom hit the mark when shooting at random.

Next Friday—Milk, No. VI.

There are many bacteria in milk. Some of them get in the milk before it leaves the udder, others get in from the utensils, dust of the air, etc. Most bacteria get into the milk with the dust that falls from the udder and the belly of the cow during milking; so it is important that the regions around the udder be washed before the cow is milked, and that a small topped milk pail be used.

Some bacteria get in from dirty handlers and some get in from the household. They multiply very rapidly unless the milk is rapidly chilled and kept chilled.

Bacteria are very minute vegetation. Most of them are less than 1-25,000 of an inch in diameter. They may be very minute, but how they can multiply—once every twenty minutes to a half hour! One bacteria (germ) divides and produces two, simply by splitting into two. If you want to realize how many one germ will become in twelve hours, work it out. One germ in half an hour is two germs; the next half hour is four germs; the next eight; the next sixteen; the next thirty-two. You continue the figuring, and you will find that there are mil-

YANKS DUE FOR SLUMP, IS CLAIM

But Only Miracle Will Keep Them From Annexing League Pennant

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service
NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Perhaps, as the boys insist, only a modern miracle can prevent the New York Yanks from winning the pennant, by eight games or more. With a margin of twelve and one-half games to work on, the patient might be said to be resting easily this morning, after having spent a comfortable night—but—

The Yanks are due for a slump in the immediate future, as sure as the Almighty made them small, round and sometimes sour. When that moment arrives the rally will become a relapse without further notice and the situation in the American League will be less of a procession and more of a race. In fact and fable, the hare always rests after its lead becomes too long to sustain its vagrant attendance. After the parade there is always a let down with the best and worst of them, and the Yanks are due.

It's Young Outfit
The Cleveland Indians are quite a ball club, a good infield, one of the best officials in baseball, and fair pitching. It is a young outfit for the most part, however, and figures to do better in the closing stages of the campaign because it is just finding itself.

The Tigers also should improve now that they can play Jones at third and Haney at second and be assured of an infield that does not resemble a first-class sieve. The Tigers will always be as uncertain as a flapper's affections until they get better pitching and the speed and offensive strength of the club is too great to allow it to finish the season below the 500 mark.

SELLS PROPERTY NEAR SEA FRONT

Washington-Venice Tract Is Represented Here By Saunders Rty. Co.

The Washington-Venice tract, one of the notable subdivisions of the Southland, is drawing the attention of investors who are seeking homesites and investments where they may reap a profit, according to members of the Saunders Realty Co., the Glendale representatives of the property, 138 North Brand boulevard, who have been featuring this tract to their clients.

The tract is located on Washington boulevard, just a few blocks from the water front at Venice, and the plans for the building of the Greater Washington boulevard will, it is predicted, place this tract among the most beautiful subdivisions in the southland, as well as making it one of the most profitable of real estate investments.

The creators of the Greater Washington boulevard plan to build a road 175 feet wide connecting Whittier and the ocean, with a twenty-five foot parkway of beautiful trees along the entire length of its center, two twenty-five foot parkways along the side and fifty foot driveways to accommodate the traffic that will flow to the sea over the nine-inch asphalt road that is to be built.

Purchasers are already buying home sites in the Washington-Venice tract, according to the Saunders Realty Co., with the idea of building homes in a place where they can enjoy summer climate the year round, where they can be within easy reach of their business and at the same time be able to reach the seaside playgrounds of the Pacific within a few minutes.

Prices on the lots in the Washington-Venice tract, which will include all improvements, are selling at $800 and up, on terms that allow the buyer two years to finish payments, and a clear title is issued on completion of the purchase.

The tract can be reached by driving west on Los Feliz road to Western avenue, then south to Washington boulevard, and then west to the property, or the Pacific Electric cars take passengers to Aviation station, one block east of the tract.

Western Railways to Handle Record Crops
NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Western carriers will handle the heaviest farm produce traffic in their history during coming months, Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific, said on his arrival here following a tour over his company's far western lines.

The potato crop, while not as large as last year, will be of better quality, he predicted. The corn crop, apples and fruit generally is the best in several years, he said.

STRUCTURE COMPLETED AT COST OF $225,000
S. H. Kress & Company Store On Main Floor to Hold Opening

Arthur F. Priest, Architect

Picture taken by Dolberg of Glendale shows the new John Lawson building at the southwest corner of Brand and Wilson, completed at a cost of $225,000. The official opening takes place today and tonight. Only ten offices on the upper floors are now unleased, so great is the demand for office room in Glendale.

The Lawson building, 143-145 North Brand boulevard, largest and finest of its kind in Glendale, begun November 13, 1922, is now completed at a cost of $225,000 and today marks its official opening to the public of Glendale.

To fittingly celebrate their share of this opening, the S. H. Kress & Company's store, No. 160, of their immense chain, who have taken a fifteen-year lease on the entire basement and main floor, a total of 14,000 square feet, have made arrangements for Stamm's seven-piece orchestra, of Los Angeles, to give afternoon and evening concerts today, from 3 until 5:30 o'clock and from 7 until 9 o'clock respectively, at which time visitors will be welcome to inspect the large stocks and up-to-date fixtures of the store.

This announcement is made by D. G. Garver, manager of the store. His assistant is F. J. O'Hara, of the San Diego store. A staff of over 100 girls will be on hand Saturday morning, when the store opens for business, states Mr. Garver.

The second, third and fourth floors of this fine new building are devoted to offices, of which there are twenty-two on each floor, a total of sixty-six, states John Lawson, owner of the building. These rooms average 13.6 by 18.6 feet and are finished in genuine mahogany.

The building itself is of Class B construction.

with steel frame and terra exterior. Elmer Elliott was general contractor. Rough finished lumber, together with sashes, doors and windows, were furnished by Bentley Lumber Company. Hardware and finish hardware were furnished by the Wilson-Bell Hardware Company. The Glendale Wood Flooring Company furnished the flooring. The lime and mortar were supplied by Glendale Mixed Mortar Company. The tile work for the floors, walls, together with the three mosaic entrances to the store, were furnished by Glendale Tile & Mantel Company.

Made in Glendale
These are all local firms, and in Glendale may well be considered as a large letter of approval on the Lawson building. The building is erected on a 50 foot lot at the southwest corner of Brand boulevard and 14th avenue. The structure occupies 50x140 feet, a ten-footing zone being allowed by the city.

Among the many modern features embodied in the Lawson building are tile floors and marble in the corridors, passenger elevators, porter service, compressed air and steam. In fact, states Mr. Lawson, the structure has everything to be in the newest Los Angeles buildings. There will be a barber shop, reception room and other facilities for the convenience of tenants and patrons, in addition to lavatories and rest rooms.

Tile and Marble Mosaic Contract on Lawson Building Handled By Glendale Firm

The tile and marble mosaic contract for the Lawson building, amounting to 8000 square feet of tile and 800 square feet of marble, was awarded to the Glendale Tile & Mantel Company, 4 North Isabel street, by the Lawson building. This is the largest job of this kind ever done in Glendale, states Mr. Fortunato, manager of the company. The next largest job of the kind in Glendale, according to Mr. Fortunato, was put in the Montebello building, on South Brand boulevard, and was also handled by the Glendale Tile & Mantel Company.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Mad Manhattan—pushing, pulling, punneling, racing to subways, running from the "Is."
"Where are you going?" the inquisitive reporter asked.
The middle-aged woman—"To buy a nut sundae."
The middle-aged man—"News-stand—get a golf magazine."
The old lady—"Tickets for the Winter Garden."
The old man—"To get a necktie."
The youth with the oiled hair—"Home."
The flapper in sleeveless gown—"To call a cop, you fresh thing."

This is a sad, sad day for Rose Taylor. They're going to tear down Ludlow street jail. And for fifty years Rose, who is 80, has been hostess to New York's greatest as they rested behind the bars of the historic old Alimony Club, made famous in song and story. Rose's official title was cook.
"Sure an' there's been some lovely boys there," Rose laments. "Well I remember Boss Tweed—but he wasn't boss any more in 1875, the day he went out for a walk and didn't come back for two years," Rose confides.
The Alimony Club of old Ludlow has 3,000 members, active and emeritus.

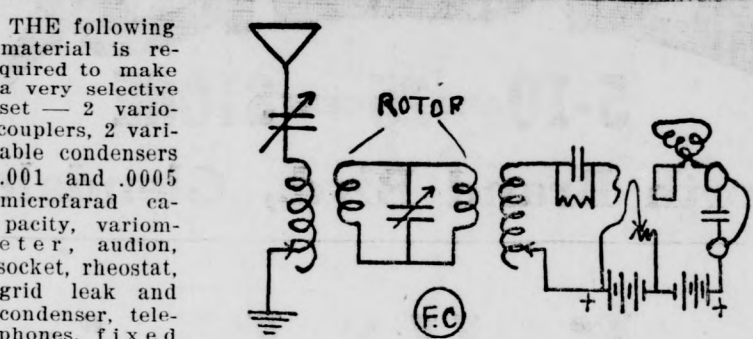

General Gregory Semenoff, of Russia, once languished inside Nicky Arnsstein was another. Harry K. Thaw spent a while there. Conway Tearle, the actor, is an ex-member. The list could go on for columns. All were civil prisoners, no criminal convictions being confined there.

"Why, I've had passes to all the best shows from the stars themselves while they were in here," Rose boasts.
Now the jail is to come down and a playground for children is to substitute.

RADIO

BY FRANK CHAPMAN

THE following material is required to make a very selective set. It consists of two variable condensers, .001 and .0005 microfarad capacity, variable capacitor, rheostat, grid leak and condenser, telephones, fixed condenser, A and B batteries.
This set is patterned after the old Marconi multiple tuner and has regeneration added to it in the form of a plate variometer. It is about the last thing in selectivity and requires considerable skill in operating as it is extremely critical but once adjusted, all other interference is eliminated.

The "intermediate" circuit consists of the secondaries or rotors of the two vario-couplers shunted by the .0005 variable condenser. By manipulating the coupling of these coils to the primaries and moving the variable condenser, selectivity of a remarkable degree is obtained.

It has been found in some cases that part of the windings of the rotors of ready-made vario-couplers had to be taken off for this set to function properly. This can be very readily be done and tests should be made using between 15 and 20 turns on each rotor. Of course, the tests should begin with thirty turns and gradually reduced until the best number has been determined.

If the vario-couplers are made at home, the primary can consist of from 70 to 100 turns tapped every ten turns. The .001 variable condenser used in the primary will tune sharply between the taps, while the second vario-coupler should have unit taps as well as tens, that is, have two switches, the upper one being for the unit turns and the lower one for the ten turns. To make tuning easier, this primary of vario-coupler can be shunted by the .0005 variable condenser and the coil tapped every ten turns, using only one switch but this adds to the number of controls and I believe there are enough as it is, although if one cares to use another control it will add to the efficiency of the set. Similarly, a potentiometer can be used with this set with better results as to distance but will not make it more select. With the large number of stations going now and some of them not so very far above the amateur wave band, a select set is absolutely necessary if you are to copy these stations. On the other hand when you start to copy the stations using the longer broadcasting wave band, if you are situated near the coast or Great Lakes, you will be bothered by interference from ships. Therefore, a select set is necessary to enjoy all the programs. With one of these types of sets, local stations can be tuned out and out-of-town stations tuned in without any trouble, providing they are not on the same wave length. Of course, if you are located on top, as it were,

of a powerful station, their signals will be "forced" on you and no type of set will tune them out and tune others in. If you have several stations in the same city of the same power, there should be no difficulty encountered in tuning any of them in or out at your convenience.

Before out-of-town or distant stations are tuned in, it would be well to note what effect varying either of the rotors, or both, on the variable condenser has on signals. At times, moving the condenser in the intermediate circuit just a trifle will bring in one station and cut out the other. For wave length adjustments, most of the tuning is done with the primary of both vario-couplers, the first coupler being the primary circuit and the second one secondary. The looser you have the coupling between the first coupler the more select will be the tuning.

A large condenser requires closer tuning when tuning than a smaller condenser. If you use a long one-way aerial you won't have to solder any connections to it. If you are going to lay your storage battery up give it a good charge and empty the electrolyte out.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—A friend of mine took me to an all-day picnic and I furnished the lunch. I have always liked him, but he has some ways and is very jealous. While at a picnic he left me alone quite a bit, and at first I felt very unhappy and just like a wallflower. Then another boy saw me and stayed with me until lunch time. He did not have a girl there.

At lunch time I hunted up the boy who had invited me to the picnic and said it was time to eat. He was quiet all through lunch and hardly said a word to me. This made me very angry, and I didn't say much either. After lunch he went off again and left me alone. It wasn't long before the other boy came back, and we had a very good time together.

Later in the afternoon, when everyone started going home, I found the boy who had taken me wasn't anywhere to be seen. When I asked about him, some one said he had gone home. Then the second boy said he would drive me home in his car, and I was very glad to accept his invitation.

After getting home I got a telephone call from the first boy, and he said dreadful things to me about the way I had acted. He had not left the picnic, and when he found I had gone home with some one else, he was furious. He says he never wants to have anything more to do with me. I am perfectly willing he should not, but I do not feel I was really to blame.

Do you think it was my fault that things turned out as they did? DESERTED DOTTY.
The boy brought the trouble on himself by acting as he did. After taking you to the picnic it was most decidedly his place to stay with you and see that you had a good time. You are not in the least to blame. It was most fortunate that there was another young man present to look after you and save you from embarrassment.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I am 19 years old and a stenographer in a downtown office. Yesterday a young man telephoned and asked to talk to me. Before I was on the wire the other receiver was hung up, and so, when I answered the party had been cut off.

At first I thought he would telephone again, but he did not. I am not absolutely sure who called, but I think I know. Would you advise me to phone the young man I think it was and ask him if he was the one?

I would not advise you to telephone the young man you think called you. When you see him ask him if he called, but forget about the matter until you do see him. He probably realizes you were not to blame for the thing that happened.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—Has one girl any right to telephone a boy who is going with another girl and ask him to come to see her? A certain girl telephoned my friend and said she wished he would come over to see her. He told me about it, but he didn't go. Don't you think it was a very bold thing for her to do? SWEET SIXTEEN.

It certainly was bold for the girl to telephone a boy who was not interested in her and ask him to come to see her. It is not a matter to absorb much of your thought, however, since he did not go and did not care to go.

If one will drink one-third of a glass of milk above nutritional requirements every day he will gain nine pounds in a year and ninety pounds in ten years, says Prof. Graham Lusk of Cornell University Medical School.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SALT WELL

Uncle Wiggily, the jolly bunny rabbit gentleman, tooted his automobile horn beneath the window of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was taking her early morning sleep in the hollow stump bungalow.

"Yes! Yes! What is it? Is the water pail on fire?" cried Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, poking her head out of the window.

Uncle Wiggily chuckled so hard that his pink nose twinkled. "I don't see anything to laugh at!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"You would if you were down here where I am," said the bunny. "You have your night cap on wrong side before!"

Nurse Jane quickly snatched off her cap and asked: "Why are you tooting your auto horn so early in the morning if the water pail isn't on fire? You act like a milkman."

"I got up early before the milkman, because you and I are going to take a little run to the seashore," said Mr. Longears. "Hurry down, Nurse Jane. We'll have breakfast and go to the ocean."

So Nurse Jane hurried and soon she and Uncle Wiggily were down on the ocean beach, with the green waves breaking into white, foamy crests, as they tumbled on the sand.

"It is very jolly here," said Uncle Wiggily, kicking around with his hind feet and sending a shower of sand down Nurse Jane's neck.

"Yes, it is lovely," she agreed, as she stood on her head to let the sand run back on the beach.

"I only hope you don't get the rheumatism, and I hope the Fuzzy Fox doesn't chase us." "I'll not get the rheumatism, because it is a warm, hot day," said Mr. Longears. "As for the Fox, I guess he is far, far away." Leaving the automobile to go to sleep under the boardwalk, Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane walked down the ocean shore in the sand, stopping now and then to pick up pretty pebbles or shells and to watch the beach crowd gathering choice, tender bits of sea weed.

"Wait a minute, Uncle Wiggily!" called the muskrat lady after a while. "What's the matter now?" Mr. Longears wanted to know. "There's something in my shoe," answered Nurse Jane. "Perhaps it's your paw," suggested Uncle Wiggily.

"Nonsense! Don't try to be funny!" laughed Nurse Jane. "There is sand in my shoe and I must stop and take it out. It hurts when I walk."

So the muskrat lady sat down and took off her shoe, emptying out the sand that had drifted in as she walked. Then she and Uncle Wiggily went on a little farther and a pretty soon the muskrat lady said again: "Oh, I must stop once more and empty the sand out of my shoe."

"All right!" answered Uncle Wiggily and the tucklers.

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

"You are a nice kind of a policeman," jeered his comrades at the station. Can't find two big goats!"

"I guess you would find them," added one, "if he had butted you as that big goat did me! Just to get revenge on him, I have a notion to go back to the park and look for them myself."

"Go ahead! I wish you would! I lost track of them in the park, but you are more than welcome to go and get on their trail from there."

As he hadn't much to do, the second policeman started out. Arriving at the park, he entered from the north and happened to inquire of the same gardener that the first policeman had interviewed earlier in the day.

When asked if he had seen two goats around there during the morning, the gardener told the same story as he had related to the other policeman.

"Would you mind telling me if those goats be valuable or not?" For someone else has been asking after them this mornin'."

"They have, they have? Who's been inquiring?"
"First comes along a policeman, and then a man so mad that he kept muttering to himself. And when I told him they had just run out of the north gate a few minutes before he came along, I pulled off his hat and started on a run toward the gate, and I saw him pull a pistol out of his pocket and heard him mumble to himself, 'I'll fix you, you old brute! I'll fix you, you old brute! I'll fix you, you old brute! I'll fix you, you old brute!'" had turned his nose on her. "I'll tell you who I wish want that goat," he said. "He is very fierce, and I am surprised that you are alive to tell the tale, for generally he butts or stamps anyone to death who touches him or goes near to him."

"Jimminy crickets! It is a good thing then that I missed him when I went after him with my rake!" "Don't you wonder if the policeman found Billy and Nannie?"

EAGLE ROCK PERMITS EXCEED TOTAL FOR JUNE

Solution of Zoning Tangle Expected to Boost August Building

Eagle Rock's July building permits totaled $159,580, is the report issued by Oliver Phillips, in charge of the local building office. This exceeds the June total of $130,095 by $29,485.

In Mr. Phillips' opinion, the August record will be even better, owing to the fact that in all probability the zoning tangle will be straightened out at the meeting in session this afternoon, in the office of the Los Angeles City Planning Commission, room 30, City Hall, Los Angeles, Gordon Whinnall, director of the commission, presiding.

Eagle Rock is being represented at this meeting by members of the Chamber of Commerce, Realty Board and other local organizations interested in the local map.

"The trouble is," says Mr. Phillips, "Eagle Rock's Zone A permits duplexes, whereas the Los Angeles Zone A is restricted to private residences only."

Another thing, in this section there is too much Zone C, or business, and too much Zone B, as such. Zone B should be limited to the southeast part of the section, and all the property above Colorado boulevard, except boulevard frontage, should be Zone A.

"As Zone C is also the fire zone, where construction must comply with existing fire laws, it is necessary that this section be rigidly defined."

C. of C. Open Forum

The Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular August open forum meeting Tuesday night, August 7, at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of the City Hall, and the public is cordially invited to be present and take part in the interesting discussion that is sure to ensue.

One matter that will undoubtedly come up, according to H. H. Maxson, is that of the borough system of municipal government. Another will be the matter of the water supply, particularly with reference to fire protection.

Those who attended the July open forum session of the chamber will recall the interesting talk on borough government given by George Dunbar. It is believed that an equally well informed and interesting speaker will be obtained for the August meeting.

Rhodes, 1304 North San Fernando road; Mrs. Mary E. Ingersoll, 336-B North Kenwood street.

First, lack of space; second, because no pool hall had heretofore been established in Eagle Rock; and, third, because the establishment of such a business did not meet with the approval of the residents.

Petitions that had been put in circulation directly it became known Mr Margatroyd had in mind to open a pool hall here are believed to have been of material assistance in squelching the application.

BURBANK PERMITS REVEAL GROWTH OF CITY

$100,225 in July Bring Total For Year to $1,218,982, Report States

Building permits issued in this city during July totaled $100,225, exceeding the total of July a year ago by $10,075, is the report issued from the office of the building inspector.

This is the lowest monthly total so far in 1923, being topped by more than half again, in the $157,330 issued during June; and being absolutely swamped in comparison with the $318,750 issued during the record month of May.

The total of permits issued during the first seven months of 1923 now stands at $1,218,982, which nearly equals the entire total of $1,350,940 issued during 1922.

As July is generally considered the vacation month in building, residents of Burbank have good cause for elation over the figures above revealed.

The majority of permits issued, moreover, were for sums ranging between $1000 and $5000, showing that private residences constitute the greatest percentage of the city's building.

The Burbank Municipal band is off in a blaze of glory and a

Mexican Recognition Imminent, le Belief

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The state department anticipates an immediate conclusion of the recognition conference now being held in Mexico City, it was learned officially. While admitting that nothing officially had been received from the American commissioners, officials stated that the conference was "now in its final stages".

It is believed the officials are inclined to give credence to the persistent reports here that an agreement has been reached.

fanfare of bugles, but—a band in civilian clothes isn't exactly the last word in class and would scarcely be mistaken for Sousa's outfit. Therefore, something more substantial than moral support is needed.

Recognizing this, the city trustees have appropriated from the municipal exchequer $125 a month for the support of its musicians, to be expended as follows: Director, $50; players, $60; music, $15. In exchange for the bounty, the band is to give two public concerts a month.

But $125 per month is not very much to finance a full band of forty pieces, giving them an opportunity to contribute $5 and become members of the Municipal Band association.

It is stated that this is the only solicitation that will be made. This band, its promoters believe, will more than repay any outlay of money in the publicity and advertising it will accomplish for the city, as can readily be understood when the influence of such organizations as the Hollywood Legion band is considered.

THE GLENDALE

Johnny Hines in "Luck" continues to be the chief attraction at the Glendale Theatre. As "Torchy," and in "Burn 'Em Up Barnes" and "Sure-Fire Flint," Hines has shown that he is Johnny-on-the-spot. And in the present film he runs circles all around his past reputation as a fast fun-maker.

Included in the strong supporting cast are Violet Mersereau, Robert Edeson, Charlie Murray, Flora Finch, Polly Moran and a whole string of other film thoroughbreds.

"Luck" tells a story of a young chap who makes a wager he can go out and earn $100,000 in one year, starting from nothing. Of course, it is "the girl" that eventually helps out—but oh, boy! There's no limit on the fun in this feature-length rib-tickler.

In short, Johnny Hines seems destined to step up alongside of Charlie Chaplin and Harold Lloyd, as a fun-maker.

THE GATEWAY

It is long since such a picture as "Main Street" has been produced. It is outstanding, due perhaps largely to the sheer strength of the popular Sinclair Lewis novel of that name, but in no little measure supplemented by the masterful direction of Harry Myers, Noah Beery, Robert Gordon, Louise Fazenda, Otis Harlan, Alan Dale and Gordon Griffith, the splendid cast.

"Main Street" is the story of Carol Kennicott and her brave, but pathetic efforts to make Gopher Prairie a better place in which to live. The inhabitants do not sympathize with her and even her husband, Dr. Kennicott, is too engrossed in his medical practice to further his wife's plans.

In despair, Carol turns to Erik Valborg, a young idealist; and then the tongues begin to wag. Erik wants her to elope. What happens then rounds out dramatically a masterful story.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—Attorney General Daugherty held a conference this afternoon with Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of Agriculture Work at the Palace Hotel. It was reported that they were considering charges that have been brought that the California Raisin Growers Co-operative association is in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law. It has been understood that Attorney General Daugherty would investigate these charges, while on the coast. The charges are denied by the raisin growers.

TUJUNGA PLAN CEREMONY FOR NEW SCHOOL

Cornerstone Will Be Laid in New Building Prior to Opening of Term

Appropriate ceremonies are being planned for laying the cornerstone of the Tujunga grammar school, to take place late this summer or early in the fall. Laying the cornerstone in this instance will consist of placing a bronze tablet in the front of the auditorium building which will be started as soon as grading and excavation work on the grounds is finished.

Work on this building, which will combine four class rooms and the auditorium, will be concentrated on the classroom section as much as possible in order to have the rooms ready for the pupils as soon as possible, so that the ceremony may not take place until the classroom portion of the building is well under construction.

The supervising nurse of the County Health department, Miss Lillian Simpson, was in Tujunga recently on school business.

May Extend Boulevard

Further steps were taken to secure an extension of the Foot-hill boulevard from Lamanda park westward through the valley by the committee from the Chamber of Commerce when the proposition to lay out a boulevard along the foothills was placed before the county regional planning commission and approved by that body. The committee consists of Judge H. H. Breidt, president of the chamber, John O. B. Bodkin and E. C. Carlson.

The boulevard was roughly outlined on the planning commission's map at the request of the committee. The proposed route would follow the base of the Sierras at about the 2000 feet level, coming into Tujunga along Hillcrest drive.

Residents of La Canada had already been at work on the project and made plans for the extension from the end of Piedmont avenue to Pickens' canyon.

Hold Skating Party

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Tujunga Community church recently enjoyed a skating party at Alhambra. Among those present were: Rev. Glenn Moore, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Johnston, James L. Johnson, Leslie Buck, Charles Furlong, John Moulder, Albert Wells, Loren Scoville, Miss Ruth James, Miss Laurel Earhart, Miss Mabel Elsie, Miss Katherine James, Miss Frances Hess, Mrs. Estelle Barton, Miss Edith Barton, Richard Franke, Brydon Signor, Robert Mills, Frances Chatfield, Miss Marie Chatfield, Miss Adelaide Gibson, Miss Peggy Thompson, Miss Mary Sharp, Miss Dorothy Moore, Miss Marian Moore, Elbert Johnson, W. H. Stine, Miss Robison, Miss Marian Baker, Miss Elsie Taylor, Miss Beverly Harrison, Miss Bertha Mae Johnson, William Sessions, Miss Fay Haarer, Miss Virginia Gill, Miss Juanita Meade, Jack James, William Hicks, Lee Reese, Miss Imogene Snyder and Miss Lillian Reese.

Thomas R. Davies built a modern prairie schooner on his automobile for a trip to Salt Lake City, which was previously his home. He is accompanied by his family. The car has been converted into a tent house with double metal walls and a canvas roof.

Audrey Isabel Harvey was recently christened by her great-great uncle, Rev. W. M. Forsythe, at the Harvey residence. Rev. Forsythe and his sister, Miss Margaret Forsythe of Fort Bragg, have been visiting the Harveys.

Mrs. Caroline L. Wiggins, mother of Guy D. Wiggins, one of the active and enthusiastic members of Post 250 of the American Legion, recently celebrated a birthday anniversary with a family gathering. Mrs. Wiggins is a very charming lady and is very proud of her great-granddaughter Doris May Henry, aged 2 years and the little girl's line of military ancestors.

Chalmers Henry, Doris' father, served in the World war as a sergeant in Headquarters company, 162nd Field Artillery. During his service at the front he was gassed and never fully recovered from the effects of the deadly poison, passing away on October 24, 1922.

In Foreign Wars

Grandfather Guy D. Wiggins served in the Spanish war as a private in Company F, 50th Iowa, together with two brothers, one a corporal and the other a sergeant. Guy also served in the 8th Cavalry during the Boxer uprising in China. In the World war he was a sergeant in the 14th company, Heavy Coast Artillery.

Others who were in the service of their country were Great-great-grandfather Chadwick, captain during the Revolutionary war; great-great-grandmother, nurse in the Revolutionary war; Great-great-grandfather Clark Chadwick, War of 1812; great-great-grandfather Amos Wiggins, War of 1812 and Mexican war; a Wiggins great-great-grandfather in the Revolutionary war, and a great grandfather, Eli Wiggins, a sergeant in the 35th Iowa Volunteers, infantry, during the Civil war.

All of these had relatives in the service during the different conflicts from the Revolution to the late World war.

LA CRESCENTA BOOK BORROWERS ARE INCREASING

Librarian's Report Reveals Growth in Past Year At La Crescenta

Mrs. Mary B. Darrow, librarian of the Los Angeles County Free Library, La Crescenta branch, states that 599 books were loaned for the month of July. Of these 292 were adults, 140 juvenile, 111 magazines, and 56 non-fiction. There are also 25 new borrowers who have signed application blanks in the last month, which shows the interest taken in the local library by the newcomers. These figures also show an increase over this month a year ago of 55.

The Boy Scouts are home after a jolly time spent at the Camp Royl-Kent at Arrowhead Lake. The boys report a couple of good rain storms up there and very cold nights. They are all glad, however, to have had the privilege of enjoying the trip and look forward to the next one.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce and daughter, Florence, have returned from their vacation spent at Big Bear. Miss Florence reports the horseback riding as being especially good up there.

On Sunday, August 5, the Community church will hold its quarterly communion service. An offering will be collected and it is expected it will be one given in a spirit of self-denial and sacrifice. Those who wish to make this offering but cannot be present in person may send their contribution with a friend.

Work Is Resumed

Work on the church has been resumed and is going along slowly but surely, and the church board wish all interested persons to know the weekly payroll on this work is quite large, and that any who care to visit the building are invited to do so, and see what a credit it will be to the valley in general, when completed.

Sunday school is at 10 a. m. and public worship and preaching at 11 a. m., and the residents of the valley are cordially invited to attend.

These services are at present being held in the school auditorium on Los Angeles avenue, till the new church is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wadey, proprietors of Wadey's oil station on Pennsylvania avenue, entertained a number of friends and relatives at the beginning of the week. Those enjoying the Wadey's hospitality were Miss Barbara and Ted Comer, Miss Anna Strong and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reed of Paso Robles, Mrs.

Speed Officers Wait Reckless Motorists

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 3.—Wisconsin's many state and county highways, which in the past have tempted motorists to "step on it" will shortly be lined with waiting speed "cops."

A bill authorizing the placing of traffic officers along state and county roads to reduce the number of accidents attributed to fast and reckless driving has received executive approval and become effective.

The new speed "cops" will be equipped with badges, but will also serve as road patrols. Any highway commissioner can obtain additional deputies by application to the sheriff of the county affected under the law.

Recovers Rings She Sent With Laundry

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 3.—When Mrs. James E. Clancy, of this city, retired for the night recently she was unable to go to sleep. She was positive there was something wrong somewhere. Suddenly she remembered that her three diamond rings, valued at $800, had been pinned to a nightgown sent to the laundry. The police were notified. At 2 a. m. a squad of bluecoats arrived at the laundry and, after several hours of searching, found the rings.

Thereupon Mrs. Clancy again retired and slept soundly.

Audrey Isabel Harvey was recently christened by her great-great uncle, Rev. W. M. Forsythe, at the Harvey residence. Rev. Forsythe and his sister, Miss Margaret Forsythe of Fort Bragg, have been visiting the Harveys.

Mrs. Caroline L. Wiggins, mother of Guy D. Wiggins, one of the active and enthusiastic members of Post 250 of the American Legion, recently celebrated a birthday anniversary with a family gathering. Mrs. Wiggins is a very charming lady and is very proud of her great-granddaughter Doris May Henry, aged 2 years and the little girl's line of military ancestors.

Chalmers Henry, Doris' father, served in the World war as a sergeant in Headquarters company, 162nd Field Artillery. During his service at the front he was gassed and never fully recovered from the effects of the deadly poison, passing away on October 24, 1922.

In Foreign Wars

Grandfather Guy D. Wiggins served in the Spanish war as a private in Company F, 50th Iowa, together with two brothers, one a corporal and the other a sergeant. Guy also served in the 8th Cavalry during the Boxer uprising in China. In the World war he was a sergeant in the 14th company, Heavy Coast Artillery.

Others who were in the service of their country were Great-great-grandfather Chadwick, captain during the Revolutionary war; great-great-grandmother, nurse in the Revolutionary war; Great-great-grandfather Clark Chadwick, War of 1812; great-great-grandfather Amos Wiggins, War of 1812 and Mexican war; a Wiggins great-great-grandfather in the Revolutionary war, and a great grandfather, Eli Wiggins, a sergeant in the 35th Iowa Volunteers, infantry, during the Civil war.

All of these had relatives in the service during the different conflicts from the Revolution to the late World war.
