FORT POINT A. A.

Annual Outing a Huge Success from Start to Finish.

With band concerts, water and land sports and an illumination, the annual outing and field day of the Fort Point A. A. was held at Fort Point on Labor Day. The affair was the most successful in the twelve years of the history of the association. The committee which had charge, consisted of W. A Arnold, A. L. Barr, George Cary, Charles Randall, E. W. Gorham, Bowe Gladwin, R. H. Baker and W. H. Thayer.

The base ball game attracted a large audience and in a well played game the married men defeated the single men's nine 4 to 3. The batteries were A. L. Barr and Frank Stevens for the winners and Almon Deane and David Tirrell for the single men.

In the handicapped power boat race there were four entries, finnishing in the following order: Sea Bird, Capt. Charles Spear; Gypsie, Capt. A. E. Gladwin; Kayaosh, Capt. Fred Hall; Has-None, Capt. Fred Clark.

Eight of the one-design 15-footers belonging to the Hingham yacht club had a red hot race off the point. The course was eight miles. The race was won by Puzzle, which gives her first place for the commodore's cup, the season's championship prize. The summary:

Harvest Auto Parade.

We have to thank the many Auto Owners who have entered the parade and we can now state with every assurance that Weymouth will witness a brilliant spectacle on Thursday, September 11th.

All plans have been made by the Committee and with good weather it will undoubtedly be a great success.

The parade will start from Lovells Corner at 4 P. M. sharply passing through Jackson Square, Central Square, No. Weymouth, Washington Square to South Weymouth and the Fair Grounds where the Judges will say who has the best largest in the history of the town.

At seven o'clock a collation will be serful game in right field for the winners and ved in the Fogg Opera House after which his throw to third base in the third inning and a short meeting of the Board of Trade will be held.

There are still some Auto Owners who have not entered and we beg to request new beginners, 62 showed up at the Washall such to send in their entrance blanks before the 10th inst.

The Parade will reach the Fair Grounds children an opportunity of seeing it be- positions as follows: fore they leave for home.

Fruit should be handled much as eggs are handled. It will not break as readily as eggs, but it will bruise and depreciate HAYWARD BROTHERS through rough usage and this results in loss.

> The cow, if well fed, may be milked until six or eight weeks of the time for calving, or even up to it if neccessary, but it is better to allow several weeks for the cow to get into condition for producing a large flow of milk when she calves.

A tablespoonful of saltpeter just after dropping her calf is good for a cow, to prevent parturient fever or swelling of the bag. This is the remedy prescribed by an old farmer, who has used it thirty years with unvarying success.

Autumn pruning strengthens growth and invigorates old trees, if properly done. Cut back decaying branches, thin out the others and the fruit will be much larger and of fine flavor. This is particularly true of peach tees.

If farmers would copy methods of big corporations they would make more money. Our methods all around are primitive and faulty. We do not make the most out of our conditions. Many of us buy peaches when we could just as well grow a full home supply and have some to market every fruitful year.

Peaches and muskmelons may be considered luxuries, yet they are wholesome and healthful food, the right kind in warm we only would take the trouble to grow them. It seems ridiculous for farmers to buy canned peaches and tomatoes when they could easily have an abundant supply and to spare of their own at almost no extra cost.

Some people make a dreadful fuss about the poor moulting hen while this moulting process is just as natural as it is for a hen to live and breathe and no more critica than the laying stunt, provided the hens are fed enough to keep up the waste of the body and at the same time manufacture the new feathers, says the Field and Farm. The sooner the feathers are grown the ther, perhaps, he will be glad to learn should be fed liberally. Do not wait for more rain to pack the soil.

Many parents are working hard and laying up money for their sons' education. They expect to send them away for knowledge when they grow older. Not much attempt is made to improve them mentally while they are young. Such is a mistake. Do not worry about what you will do for the farm boy when he is 18. but rather be much concerned what you are daily doing for a farm boy of 8. He can well take care of himself at 18, and at that age what you tell him goes through his head like water off a ducks back, but while he is young and confiding, your words are wisdom to him like a man to a the yard. The pasture lay across a

As to the different sorts of crops that may be sown for this late pasturage, ore must be partly governed by such agencies as weather conditions, conservative handling of the soil, rapidity of the crop's growth, etc. Oats will make a rapid growth and fine pasturage, but if the lateness of the season makes it risky to sow them on account of early frost falling, they should not be sown, as frost ruins them the first time it touches them to any great extent. Millet would not develop quite as rapidly as oats, but it is not so pervious to the damaging effect of frost, and for this reason it is liable to prove quite satisfactory in the majority of cases.

Millet's Difficulties.

Two of Millet's famous pictures, the Sower" and the "Bladers," were profuced in a damp studio, ineffectually warmed by a tiny stove in order to keep warm he would work with his feet in big wooden shoes stuffed with stray himself enveloped in a heavy horse cloth with a hole in the center, weather to make a balanced ration with through which he put his head! In heavier foods. But we could have a these pictures Millet had simply sought dozen or more luxuries in the food line if to express with all his might one of the phases of man's unceasing combat with nature. But "political" parties drew their conclusions. The "labor" party declared that these pictures protested against the misery of the laborer, while official critics said that the artist sought to set class against class. At this time Millet willingly painted a signboard for a Parisian tradesman. But then he painted it so well in the end it figured in an exhibition of his works in the School of Fine Arts.

One day an undergraduete had performed some peculiarly useless and complicated process in arriving at the solution of a problem when the instructor said:

Weight Dead and Alive.

It is a very popular idea that a person when dead weighs heavier than when living. One reason that a dead body is thought to be heavier than a living one is probably this: In carrying a living person we have the center of gravity adapted by the person carried to suit the convenience of the carrier and maintained in a position as far as possible to fall within the base of his body. Again, the elasticity of the structure of the body, especially the cartilages, though not in reality diminishing the weight, gives an appearance of lightness, as we see in the beautiful movements of the stag. and this would seem to corroborate the notion that living creatures are lighter than dead ones. It has also been asserted that the breath makes the living body lighter than the dead. But we need hardly say that a man when dead weighs no more than when living.

They Eat the Bait Off the Hook.

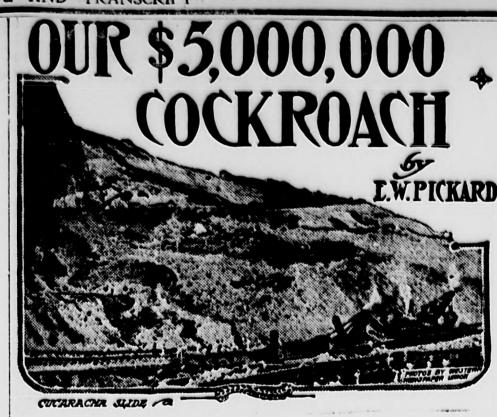

Of all sad things of tongue or pen. the saddest of all is the cunner, that skinny, bony little fish that knows how to enter the jaws of hell and carry off its teeth. This measly vermin of the pathless deep is stronger for its size than the lion of the desert or the red ant of tradition. It is quicker than the wit of woman and more elusive than the shadow of a dream. It is bolder than a Bengal tiger and more justly entitled to kingship among the creatures of the sea than Job's leviathan or the great whale of Scandinavian mythology. Hats off to the cunner. Man is both fearfully and wonderfully made, but in the presence of this superfinny miracle of subaqueous evolution he stands humble and aghast. The best way to get him is with a small hook about the size of a bent pin and a goose pimple full of clam.-New London Telegraph.

The End of the Earth.

The ancient Persians believed in the renovation of the earth. A comet in the course of its revolutions will strike the earth and set it on fire. Rivers of molten metals will float down the mountains and deluge the valleys. All men must pass through these streams The good will find them like baths of milk. The evil will find them tike torrents of lava, but they will be purified thereby and finally will join the good upon the new earth and sins praises to the eternal source of all. This belief was held also among the American Indians and the Hindus The Egyptians believed that the earth would be destroyed by fire and water The Chaldeans said that when all the planets met in the sign of Capricorn the earth would be overwhelmed with a deluge of water, and whenever they all met in Cancer it would be consumed by fire.

Sheets In Scotland.

The custom of sleeping in one large sheet, doubled at the foot, seems to have been peculiar to Scotland and to have made special impression on more than one English traveler. Fynes Moryson, writing in 1598, says, "They used but one sheet, open at the sides and top, but closed at the feet and so doubled," and John Ray, the naturalist, who visited Scotland about 1662. remarked that "it is the manner in some places there to lay on but one sheet as large as two, turned up from the feet upward." The practice, I imagine, was continued until recent times, and I have, when a boy, slept in a sheet of the kind. Such pieces of linen were termed "sheets," par excelence, the single coverings which are now used being called "half sheets."-London Tatler.

Cucaracha in Spanish means a cockroach. In the Canal Zone it means the greatest of the numerous of the Culebra cut so different and so expensive. Why that slide was named the cockroach I could not discover. Certainly even the Panamanian cockroach is not so large, and he moves much more swiftly.

Before the first French company quit operations in 1889 the Cucaracha began to slide, and it first gave the Americans trouble in 1905, the second year of their work on the canal. Be- torn down very soon. tween then and July 1, 1912, nearly removed from the canal because of it. The slide had broken nearly 1,900 feet from the axis of the canal, and covered an area of 47 acres. Last fall the engineers were congratulating stopped, but in January it started moving again, and nearly covered the bottom of the cut.

"What is going to be the cost of that slide to the United States?" I asked Colonel Goethals as we stood at merous small slides and breaks. Those the edge of the Culebra cut and look- are in pockets in the rock wall, and, ed across the chasm to where the annoying as they are, they only need steam shovels and hundreds of men | cleaning out. The Cucaracha started were laboring to remove the vast mass of earth and rock.

"Well," the chief engineer replied,"our estimate is that by the time it is all cleared up it will have required the expenditure of about $5,000,000 more than the cut would have cost if the slide had not occurred. It is still moving, and has broken so far back that now we are shoveling the crest away from the canal in order to relieve the pressure from above. Before the movement in January began the excavation in the cut at that point had been carried to within 15 feet of the canal bottom. Digging out that 15 feet of material removed the support of the Cucaracha, and down it came. If we could have turned in the water and taken out the 15 feet with dredges, I think the pressure of the water would have done much to prevent the slide."

"What of the future?" I asked. "Is there any danger of slides occurring after the canal is opened?"

"Absolutely none, I believe," he answered. "When the excavating and dynamiting have ceased and the water is in, it will be quite safe. We have the slides and breaks mapped out as far back as there is any indication of their extending, and are merely a matter of persistency and patience."

When will the water be let into the cut?"

In October," replied Colonel Goethals. "But there will be no celebration over the event. That one in January, 1915, is giving us enough worry. and we don't forget the premature and ridiculous celebration by Ferdinand de seem almost human, and do a vast turn the water in-that's all. Then we with suction dredges, which will do the work cheaply and rapidly."

"And when will boats be passing through the canal?" "That I cannot say, but the sooner the better, for the operating crews must be properly trained before that January celebration. I wouldn't have an accident occur for anything. If we through before then, I shall ask the government to send naval vessels through, so the operating forces can get the experience. Anyhow, I want ter at the Pacific entrance.

Colon, C. Z.—If you wish to hear to see the canal opened to commerce

Another day I stood with Col. D. D. Gaillard, the engineer of the central division, outside his office in Empire, and watched his army laboring in the cut, the completion of which has slides that have made the completion been his biggest task and greatest glory. Right at our feet a big area had sunk down 70 feet in a night, and if there had not been warnings of the break a wing of the colonel's office building would have gone down with it. "We had just time to remove that wing," said he, "and my office force is rather nervous now, for there are three big cracks under the main building. I expect it, too, will have to be

"These slides used to make us rath-3,000,000 cubic yards of material was er despondent, for it seemed as if they never would stop, but the progress we are making this year has cheered up the operating forces again, and we can see the end of the task. The slide and the break are quite differthemselves on having the cockroach ent. In the former the earth slides at an angle down a sloping face of rock, and in the latter the mass sinks straight down and at the bottom bulges out into the channel. Along both sides of the cut you can see nuas a slide and now it is both a slide and a break.

"Incidentally, that cut should be a great place for geologists. I have found in it every kind of rock except granite, and many interesting fossils and petrification have been discovered there. In one stratum through which we cut there were found a great number of teeth of prehistoric varieties of sharks."

the date when the canal will be ready for commerce?" I asked.

"If I had my say," said the colonel emphatically, "not a commercial vessel would be allowed in the canal until it is absolutely complete down to the smallest detail. In some of the many safety devices were not in operation and an accident should result, the canal would get a black eye from which it might not recover for a long time. Officially, the time for the completion of the canal is still January 1, 1915. It may be done before that date, but in March of this year there | Mass at 7.30 a. m. was still about $50,000,000 worth of work ahead of us.

"We who have been digging the canal and are still here in positions of responsibility-I mean the members of the Isthmian canal commissioncanal is near enough to completion. 7.30. We feel that it would be extremely unjust not to allow us to remain 'cn the job' until after the grand formal opening in January, 1915. It would be much like permitting a boy to complete his university course, and then taking him home before he receives his diploma."

And then Colonel Gaillard said some things about Mr. Taft's efforts to put | 10.30. Second session of this class at into effect that clause last January, 11.45. circus. I don't know which way to look," said one visitor to the zone.

It is indeed a scene of wonderful activity. Giant steam shovels are scattered through it, scooping up enormous masses of rock and earth; on half a dozen tracks on as many different levels snorting and puffing locomotives are swiftly drawing loaded or empty dirt trains; along the ledges working back to those lines. It is are batteries of steam and compressed air drills, making holes for dynamite; suddenly there is a toottooting of a steam whistle, a hundred men scurry to shelter, and a dynamite blast fills the air with sound and dirt and rocks.

Watching the steam shovels is a favorite occupation of visitors who venture down into the Culebra cut. They Lesseps many years ago. We will just amount of work. Their dippers hold five cubic yards of material, weighcan complete the excavation there ing on an average a little more than three tons. This spoil is emptied into cars of several kinds. Flat cars with one high side are unloaded by plows that are drawn the length of the train by cables upon a winding drum. The others are dump cars, the largest of which are operated by compressed air from the locomotive. The trains haul the spoil from the cut to dumping cannot have commercial vessels going grounds, which on an average are about 12 miles distant. Some 18,000,-000 cubic yards of this material was used as filling for the long breakwa-

The annual issue of the Acts and Resolves of the legislature is now in the holster-with its supposed brace of firehands of the public. It is the largest arms-fascinated me unspeakably, and document of the kind ever issued and we say without doubt the most absurd one, in many respects, ever put out. It adds commission after commission to a state already overburdendd with commissions. It adds immensely to every city and town in the commonwealth in clerical and other expenses. It makes it almost prohibitive for a corporation or an individual to do business in the state. It makes it almost impossible for a boy or girl under 16 means of knowing-perhaps caviare years of age to enter any mechanical or mercantile industry. The absurdities of many of the enactments are being shown up as they develop when attempts are made by school and other authorities to to follow them. Look here for some of them next week

Fixing the Price.

A shambling old negro went down the street leading a big dog with a "For Sale" sign on its collar. A little girl spied the dog and wanted it. She teased so hard that her mother finally asked its price.

"Two dollahs," said the negro, an expertant grin dividing his features. "Two dollars!" exclaimed the lady "Wby, the dog isn't worth that much!

I'll give you 50 cents. The negro drew himself up indignantly. "Lady," he said, "Ab couldn't think of it. Why, de fellow Ah got dis dog from gave me a dollah to get rid of him!"- Everybody's.

Cause For Tears. Dr. Pitcairn, being in a church in Edinburgh where the preacher was not only emphatic, but shed tears coplously, was moved to inquire of a countryman who sat by him what it was nil about. "What the deevil makes him greet?" was the inquiry. "Faith," said the man, slowly turning round, "ye had maybe greet yoursel' if ye was up there and had as little to say!"-Dundee Advertiser.

Some Exercise.

"Duke," said the medical man, "you motor, ride horseback and biplane. You never walk. Your legs will become atrophied from lack of exercise."

"My legs get some exercise, doctor. I kick the servants quite frequently." -Kansas City Journal.

TRAVELING ENGLISHMEN.

They're Prepared For Anything, From Golf to Sudden Death.

The equipment of the traveling Englishman is the eighth wonder of the world. He is ready for any emergency from golf to sudden death. I recollect once being in a compartment on the Paris boat train with an English famfly and their luggage, and I do not remember ever being so pleasantly entertained as I was on that trip. As to the luggage, there were twenty-nine pieces of the hand variety which it took pater a half hour to dovetall into the racks while the train stood in the dingy station at Calais and another half hour to pry out when we reached the dreadful Gare du Nord.

This was only a detail, however, and I have never in my life seen a man work harder to get a family of three women comfortably settled. It was in vain that they protested against more wraps and rugs, against smelling salts and speckled fruit. Being a man, he knew so much better than they what they needed, and he gently but firmly had his way.

Finally he dozed off to sleep, resting audibly from his labors. Love In the Stock Market

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

About the close of the last century. when shares on the stock market were rising and falling like the waves of the sea under a storm, James Rigdon was for a time a power in Wall street. When it was reported that Rigdon was selling a stock everybody rushed to sell. When he bought the price would rise like the thermometer on a July Rigdon was a bachelor, and as soon as it became known among his women friends that he knew what stocks were going up and what were going down he received more attention than the handsomest man in New York. One of these ladies, Miss Martindale, he wished to claim as his own, but despite all he could do he couldn't find out whether she had any use for him other than to learn how to make money in stocks.

One evening while with her she importuned him to give her a tip on some stock that was about to be Central Square "put up." He explained to her that when he boomed a stock, if it were known that he was booming it, it would rise in value, but the trouble was that, when he wished to unload. the moment it was known that he had begun to sell, down would go the market and he would be left with a lot of "undigested securities" on his hands. He was about to put up the market price on a certain stock, but he could not take her into his scheme, for if it were known that she was buying and selling by his advice it would result disastrously for him. "But I won't tell," she said.

"Can I rely on you?" "Cortainly."

"Very well. Buy Onarora Copper It is selling at 7 cents a share." "How awfully kind of you!"

"I can rely on you?" "Surely."

She gave his hand a special pressure when he left her and, running to the 1,000 shares of Onarora Copper. He did so without disturbing the market price of the stock half a point. Then she fell to thinking that her father and her brother and her sister would be delighted to participate in her good fortune, so she told them she had bought Onarora. There was no need for them to ask her why, because they knew she had for a long while been endeavoring to get a tip out of Mr. Rigdon. Surely there was no breach of confidence in this. So the Martindale family put what spare money they had in Onarora Copper, and each told his broker his reanumber of speculators hanging about his office who were given the tip. The stock rose slowly and beautifully like a balloon sailing up toward the sky Now and again it would fall back, a few thousand shares being thrown upon the market.

"Manipulation," said those in the secret. "The price is rising too rapidly for him. He hasn't got all he wants. Wait a bit."

By and by these sales grew smaller, and for some time the stock ceased to be offered. Miss Martindale asked Mr. Rigdon if it were not time to sell. He replied, "Not yet." And the stock went higher. Then suddenly it began to tumble. Every one who had been speculating on the Rigdon tip began to get "from under" except the Martindale family. When Onarora had sunk to the price they paid for it Miss Martindale sent for Mr. Rigdon and asked him if the boom was over. "Yes, it is," he replied, "and I have unloaded all I had, some 40,000 shares.

at a fair price." Miss Martindale looked appalled. "I supposed," she said coldly, "that you were to let me know when to sell as well as to buy." "That would not have accorded with my plans. I told you when to buy, and you told others. I knew you would and that your tips to others would put up the stock. If I had told you when to sell it would have spoiled my scheme." "In other words, you have used me to your own advantage. You have not only disappointed me, but you have induced me to disappoint others."

"How have I induced you to disappoint others?"

"Why, they knew I bought the stock and surmised that I did so by your advice."

"And you did not tell them the se cret. Well, you had no occasion to tell them. I believe that, in all, you and your family hold 3,000 shares. Am I right?"

"You are." "Well, when the stock reached its highest stage I sold 3.000 shares for your account and also sold 3,000 shares more for you to be delivered within thirty days after the sale. You and your family have made on the rise of the fall." Miss Martindale stood looking at Mr. Rigdon with astonishment, the cold look on her face breaking into a smile. Then she put out her hand. Mr. Rigdon improved the opportunity by putting the other hand around her waist and, drawing her to him, kissed her, at the same time proposing a new deal by which she should always profit by his operations

"Oh, yes; I understand," went away, shaking his head and lookthat an American is never satisfiednot even with the best.

Brock lowered a window seat in the passage and sat down, staring blankly come of it, of course, was the poor comort of a night in a chair. He knew that it was a train of sleeping coaches. Ah! He suddenly remembered the luggage van! As a last resort he might find lodging among the trunks. And then, too, there was something irritating in the suspicion that she had laughed as if it were a huge toke. Perhaps even now she was doubled up in her parrow couch stifling the giggle that would not be suppressed.

When the garde came back with the lugubrious information that nothing, positively nothing, was to be had it is painful to record that Brock swore in a manner which won the deepest respect of the trainman.

"At 4 o'clock in the morning, m'sleur, an old gentleman and his wife will get out at Strassburg, their destination. They are in this carriage, and you may take their compartment if m'sieur will not object to sleeping in a room just vacated by two mourners who today buried a beloved son in Paris. They have kept all of the flowers in their"-

"Four o'clock! Good Lord, what am I to do till then?" groaned Brock, glaring with unmanly hatred at the door of the Medcroft compartment.

"Perhaps madame may be willing to take the upper"- ventured the guard timorously, but Brock checked him with a peremptory gesture. He proposed, instead, the luggage van. whereupon the garde burst into a psalm of utter dejection. It was against the rules, irrevocably.

"Then I guess I'll have to sit here all night," said Brock faintly. He was forgetting his English.

"If m'siepr will not occupy his own bed, yes," said the guard, shrugging his shoulders and washing his hands of the whole incomprehensible affair. "M'sieur will then be up to receive the customs officers at the frontier. Perhaps he will give me the keys to madame's trunks so that she may not be

"Ask her for 'em yourself," growled Brock, after one dazed moment of dis-

The hours crawled slowly by. He paced the length of the wriggling corridor a hundred times back and forth; he sat on every window seat in the carriage; he nodded and dozed and groaned and laughed at himself in the deepest derision all through the dismal night. Daylight came at 4. He saw the sun rise for the first time in his life. He neither enjoyed nor appreciated the novelty. Never had he witnessed anything so mournfully depressing as the first gray tints that crept up to mock him in his vigil. Never had he seen anything so ghastly as the soft red glow that suffused the morning

"I'll sleep all day if I ever get into that d-d bed." he said to himself, bitterly wistful.

The customs officers had eved him suspiciously at the border. They had evidently been told of his strange mad-

He pictured her as asleep and securely confident in his stanchness. No, he would have it out with Medcroft at some later day.

He was congratulating himself on the acquisition of a bed-although it might possess the odor of a bed of tuberoses-when all of his pleasant calculations were upset by the appear ance of a German burgher and his family. The worst that could terest they found in the scenery which he had come, by tedious familiarity to loathe and scorn.

The actions of two young women near the door attracted his attention From their actions he suddenly gathered that they were discussing him-and in a more or less facetious fashion at that. They whispered and looked shy and grinned in a most disconcerting manner. He turned red about the ears and began to wonder fiercely why his eggs and coffee were so slow in coming. Then, to his consternation, the young women, plainly of the serving class, bore down upon him with abashed smiles. He noticed for the first time that one of them was carrying a very small child in her arms. As she came alongside, grinning sheepishly. she extended the small one toward the astounded Brock, and said in excellent old English:

"Good morning, Mr. Medcroft." Then, with a rare inspiration, "Baby, kiss papa-come, now."

She pushed the infant almost into Brock's face. He did not observe that It was a beautiful child and that it had a look of terror in its eyes. He only knew that he was glaring wildly at the fiendish nurse, the truth slowly beating its way into his be-addled brain. For a full minute he stared as if petrified. Then, administering a sickly grin, he sought to bring his wits up to the requirements of the extraordinary situation. He lifted his hand and mumbled: "Come, Raggles! I haven't a biscuit, but here, have a roll, do. Give me a-a kiss!" He added the next?" That which did come next was even more amazing than the unexpected advent of Tootles. He barely had recovered his equanimity-with his coffeewhen a young lady entered the car. That of itself was not much to speak of, but what followed was something that not even he could have dreamed of if he had been given the chance. He afterward recalled in some distress of mind that his second quick glance at the newcomer developed into little less than a rude stare of admiration. Small wonder, let it be advanced in his de-ble yet delicious. She was coming toward him, still smiling shyly, her lips parted, as if she were breathing quickly from fear or another emotion. He set down his coffee cup without regard to taste or direction, his gaze fixed upon the trim, slender figure in blue. He now saw that her dark eyes were filled with a soft seriousness that belied her brave smile. A delicate pink had come into her clear, high bred face. The hesitancy of the gentlewoman enveloped her with a mantle that shielded her from any suspicion of boldness. Brock struggled to his feet, amazement writ-

"No one has told me of you, for that matter." he apologized, thrilling with a delight such as he had never known before. "Would you mind whispering Work. to me just who you are? Am I supposed to be your father-or what?"

offers a new course in Applied Business and Management in which a practical training is given in Finance, Commerce, Industry, Accounting and allied subjects. Another new feature is the Business Laboratory Demonstration Practice directed by Nath'l C. Fowler, Jr. Other courses are Business, Shorthand, Combined Secretarial, Normal and Advanced Finishing. During the past year all graduates and many past students were placed in good ituations and more than 1600 positions were offered the College that it could not fill because all of its graduates were in satisfactory situations.

New students are admitted every Monday during the school year, and advance individually.

"I believe that the country, which God made, is more beautiful than the city, which man made; that life out of doors and in touch with the earth is the natural life of man. I believe that work is work wherever we find it, but that work with nature is more inspirconventionalized ornament.—New York ing than work with the most intricate machinery. I believe that the dignity of labor depends, not on what you do. but on how you do it; that opportunity comes to a boy on the farm as often is to the boy in the city; that life is larger and freer and happier on the farm than in town; that my success depends, not upon my location, but upon myself; not upon my dreams, but upon what I actually do; not upon luck. but upon pluck. I believe in working when you work and in playing when you play and in giving and demanding a square deal in every act of life."-Suburban Life.

Conserve Your Steam. A man who never amounted to much once got a job running the engine of a sawmill. He was greatly impressed with the importance of his position and wanted every one to know that he was the man who made all the wheels go round. The first morning he steamed up the engine he jerked the whistle wide open and made the welkin ring for miles around, saying to himself as the echoes bounced over the hills, "I am certainly the big noise in this part of the country." Just then the fore man started the force on a big day's work and discovered that there was not enough steam left to start the machinery. He of the big noise was promptly canned, and the job was given to a hole. Moral.-You can't saw wood if you use all the steam blowing your whistle.-Exchange

Poe's Airship Hoax.

Edgar Allen Poe was a pioneer in the art of aerial hoaxing. In 1844 the New York Sun announced one morning: "Astounding news! Atlantic crossed in three days! Triumph of Mr. Monck Mason's flying machine!" Folks rushed for the paper, and found therein a long and detailed account of the crossing of the Atlantic in a steerable balloon by Mr. Monck Mason. Harrison Ainsworth and four others. The balloon was minutely described, long extracts were printed from a diary which Harrison Ainsworth was supposed to have kept on the way, and the whole story had such a touch of truth that it took some days for New Yorkers to realize how completely they had been honxed.-London Chronicle.

Hester Donaldson Jenkins calls attention to the fact that the Turkish verb to sit is used where occidentals would use to live, or stay, or visit. To the question, "Where are you living?" one gets the reply, "I am sitting in Stamboul." Or to the question, "Are you married?" the answer will be, "No, I am sitting at home." And when they sit they sit quietly, "in the perfect repose of a sleeping cat." They don't have to keep their hands busy. They don't crochet or knit. They just sit.

Oriental Gems.

All genus of the finest quality, trrespective of the part of the world from which they come, are generally spoken of as "Oriental," because the supply of precions stones came only from the east for many centuries; and when mines were discovered in the west, it was at first assumed that the stones were inferior. "Occidental" is the term applied to inferior stones to this

On the other hand, "Oriental topaz," "Oriental emerald" and "Oriental amethyst" are really all supphires, and are given these names only on account of their color

The Old School State.

Remember the old school bound in red flannel to prevent the noise of slate rattling that used to be come unbearable until manufacturers found how to muffle them? Stores selling school supplies used to carry great stocks of them, for it was a rare day in a room that did not see a slate or two baken; but where are they all now? Since the boards of health decided that they were insanitary and decreed against them the whole tribe has disappeared.-Columbus Dispatch.

WEYMOUTH, MASS., FRIDAY, SEPT. 12, 1913.

VOL. XLVII. NO. 26.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

Lovell's Corner Improvement Association.

About sixty-five of the members and friends of the Lovell's Corner Improvement association met in Pratt's hall, the occasion being the monthly business meet of the association. After the usual routine of business, an excellent musical program was rendered by the following artists: Miss Catherine Pratt violin; Mrs. Fannie Bates, accompanist; Miss Bertha Hanson, reader; Mrs. Robert Vining and Mrs. Burton Wright, soloists; George F. Madden, vocal solos; Mrs. Alma Madden, piano solo.

After the musical program ice cream, cake and fruit was served and the following question was discussed: "Resolved that the world was a better world to live in fifty years ago than at the present time." John Inkley, Mrs. Charles Hawes, Mr. Clark, Frank Blanchard and George Presing spoke on the affirmative. Theodore Stevenson, George Madden, F. W. Rea, Mrs. George Madden and Mr. Clark spoke in the negative. A large delegation from the Westwood Grove Improvement association were present and were promised the hearty co-operation and help of the Lovell's Corner association in the good work for law and order which they have begun and by no means will let go until the authorities have seen to it that proper restrictions have been made.

Mrs. Martha Joy.

Mrs. Martha Joy, wife of Adoniram Joy, died at her home on Allen street, East Braintree, last Thursday night after an illness of but one hour of heart disease. Deceased was born in South Weymouth in 1844 and was a daughter of the late Noah and Martha Joy. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Hattie M. wife of Edward Whitmarsh and Annie M. wife of William McNeil. The funeral took place from her late home Sunday afternoon and the service was conducted by Rev. Wesley L Smith of Merrimac, Mass., a former pastor of the First Baptist church, Weymouth, of which deceased was for years a member. A male quartet sang. Robert Bleakie's Birthday.

(Read at an informal luncheon tendered termine whether or not any particular by his associates in trade at the Parker House, Boston. Written for the occasion by D. M. Easton.) Thus the oracle spoke :-

> "When first we count our scanty years. But when we've passed our youthful days Life's great struggle to us says: Set aside your rainbow painting And put your shoulder to the wheel Winding the threads on life's great reel. Set your aim on the highest round And at the top at last be found; Set in motion when you can, Plans to help your fellow-men, Build them houses, build them schools, Teach the world that wisdom rules. Set industrial wheels aturning. Keep the lamp of progress burning. Build up banks for money-saving, For darker days the future paving; Bore the earth for water pure Creature-comforts to insure: Keeping dreaded taxes down. And think it not above your station When called in council by the nation Be a friend in time of need, No matter what the cynics say, Be the orpans' hope, the widow's stay, Fill all these mandates that you can, 'Tis your horoscope doth plan.' Thus the oracle spake to you,

And cast your horoscope so true; All the mandates have been filled, Your balm of life has been distilled With honors you have passed the span The Divine decree allotted man. May the radiance of your declining star Guide you through the gates ajar, To an anchorage safe on the other side, And all the rewards that earth denied. Wishing you many returns of your natal and Mrs. Weir are to reside in Waltham. For you and yours we'll ever pray.

WEYMOUTH BOARD OF TRADE.

Opening of Another Season.

The Weymouth Board of Trade opened up a new season yesterday under most favorable conditions, and the committee, with Robert F. Hoffman as chairman. appointed at the last meeting before the vacation season, is entitled to much praise for the grand and successful opening.

The first feature was a Harvest Auto Parade, which was an eminent success and admired by all who saw it. The parade, with Robert B. Binnian as chief marshal, formed at Lovell's Corner and was led by Miss Ipez E. Wheaton, as Pathfinder, who was accompanied by the Misses Eliza R. Hunt, Marguerite Connor and Helen B. Strong.

A well decorated car of the Gas Company containing the band was next in order and they had as followers:

38 Mabel McQuade 39 Howard Bishop 40 J. W. Johnson 41 Alex Faulkner

Very much to the regret of the committee and also to the public it was early discovered that with certain of the machines entire route marked out and a part of North and South Weymouth were left out and at the Fair Grounds at South Wevmouth, where the parade made the circuit of the track, it was reviewed by Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, W. H. Barry, chairman of Selectmen of Rockland and W. H.

Binnaan, committee to award prizes. Fogg's opera house at South Weymouth had been secured for other events and there at 6.30 a fine buffet lunch was served by Bates & Humphrey to members and guests at the conclusion of which the meeting was called to order by the president, E. W. Hunt, who gave a short address of welcome, a statement of the aims and object of the Board of Trade and an earnest appeal for a "get together and build up Weymouth, and then introduced Hon. Geo. L. Barnes as toast master of

Mr. Barnes spoke of the work which had been done by the South Weymouth Improvement Society and other organizations in town, but saw a much larger field of usefulness in a well organized association which covered the entire town, and then introduced Hon. J. H. Corcoran, president of the Mass. State Board of Trade. The speaker classed improvement associations as follows the church, the school and Boards of Trade as commercial factors, of which every municipality should have one.

Mr. Corcoran gave much valuable information which we would like to give our readers in full, but for want of time and space can only say join the Board of Trade and help the town get the benefit of last night's address, and what we say has been explored and surveyed by of this we might well repeat of the next two officers of the United States coast speaker, J. Russell Coolidge, vice-presi- and geodetic survey, and is described dent of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Coolidge is a man with large experience and broad views in regard to the build up spirit of the age, and while he believes in a reasonably low tax rate bers containing beautiful stalactites.

Monarchs Not Over Cleanly. King Charles II. of England dressed shabbily and Louis XIV. of France disliked to wash, a little cold cream applied with a handkerchief being the chief tribute he paid to cleanliness. In St. Simon's detailed account of the king's day, from the passing of his periwig through the closed bed curtains in the morning to the ceremonial placing of the night shirt over his shoulders when he retired, there is no mention of any ablutions.

One Minute Gough Cure For Coughs, Colds and Group

Colon, C. 2.—In writing or talking stances much more. Hanging in long about the Panama Canal the superlative degree is very likely to be overworked. The canal itself is the biggest thing of the kind ever undertaken; the locks are unequalled in size; the work of the department of sanitation is the most remarkable ever carried out, and so it goes. But there is one other feature of the building of the canal that calls loudly for the superlative degree the commissary department and the way in which it has fed the Zone. Not fed it only, either, but largely clothed it and supplied it with household necessities and even luxuries.

The commissary department is a department of the Panama railroad, which is owned by the United States and of which Chairman Goethals is president. As officially stated:

"The commissary department of the Panama railroad is operated by the subsistence department of the Isthmian Canal commission for the purpose of supplying employes of the Panama railroad and Isthmian Canal commission and their families with foodstuffs, wearing apparel and household necessities, and also supplying food for the hotels, hospitals, messes, and kitchens operated by the Isthmian Canal commission and for the United States soldiers and marines located on the Isthmus of Panama, and ships of the United States navy. It is estimated that the department supplies about 70,000 people daily, computing one dependent for each employe.

"The business of the department for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1912, was $6,702,355.68, to transact which it is necessary to carry a stock valued at about $1,000,000."

That sounds decidedly prosaic, but in truth the operations of this great business machine are almost romantic. The vessels of the Panama railroad in unerding procession bring to the

3 at Cristobal the vast bulk of 'les and as continually these are sent out to the score of stores maintained by the department along the route of the canal and at Porto Bello. Every evening each storekeeper tele-S:lectmen & Overseers of the Poor graphs to the headquarters in Cristobal the list of supplies of which he is in need, and during the night the cars are loaded. At 3:45 o'clock each morning the long supply train starts out from Colon. It consists of 21 cars, 11 of which are refrigerated, and the food and ice are distributed along the route so that they may be delivered to the quarters of families by 8 o'clock. In Cristobal is the biggest store of all, and it compares well with the huge department stores of American cities. There may be obtained all kinds of food stuffs, American and European; clothing for men and women, furniture, household wares, supplies for travelers, cigars and cigarettes-indeed almost anything one might call for except intoxicating drinks. Articles from foreign lands, being imported by the government itself, of course pay no duty, and consequently such things as fine English chinaware can be bought there at prices far below those charged in the states. It is said on the isthmus, and generally believed, that the members of congressional junketing parties which from time to time go down to inspect the canal always carry home with them a lot of this choice porcelain. At the head of the commissary department is the subsistence officer, Col. Eugene Wilson, whose huge physical bulk is well matched by his great executive ability. It would seem that no better man could possibly have been found for the position, for he has in hand every detail of the immense business and it runs like clockwork. Seldom is a complaint heard from even the most exacting of housewives, and when one is registered it is courteously received and the fault, if one exists, promptly rectified.

"Cleanliness before godliness every time" is Colonel Wilson's motto and though it is not posted on any wall, every employe understands that his job depends primarily on his cleantiness. In Cristobal are the great cold storage plant, bakery, coffee plant, ice plant, ice cream plant, corned beef plant, butter printing plant and laundry, and in every one of them the unwritten rule "be clean" is adhered to with the utmost care. Nowhere, if it can be avoided, is there personal conand ingenious automatic machines are kept scrupulously clean.

Now let's get back to figures, in order to obtain some idea of the magnitude of the commissary department's operations. Take the cold storage plant first. In its 192,230 cubic feet of for ten days at least, in some in-rows in the ky cold rooms are the carcasses of 400 beeves and hogs and sheep in due proportion. In other rooms, not so cold, are 150 tons of potatoes, and vast quantities of onions, turnipa, beets, carrots, cabbages, yama, celery, tomatoes and other vegetables. In yet other rooms are ten tons of poultry, and elsewhere are boxes of fruit without number. And this enormous supply is daily depleted and daily renewed.

Adjoining the cold storage plant is the bakery, in whose immense ovens are baked each working day about 20,000 loaves of bread, 2,200 rolls and 380 pounds of cake. The coffee department, which roasts and sends out about 800,000 pounds of the roasted berry each year, receives the especial attention of Colonel Wilson, for he is himself a great coffee drinker. He personally makes up the formulas for the blends, and as something of a coffee connoisseur myself, I can testify that he knows what he is about when he does it.

The people of the zone, white and black alike, are very fond of ice cream, and to supply the demand the commissiary manufactures about 140,-000 gallons a year, of three grades. The first grade is as good ice cream as one can get anywhere, and even the third grade is mighty welcome after a hot day in the Culebra Cut or the Pedro Miguel locks.

Are you tired of figures yet? If not, please consider that the ice plant at Cristobal makes nearly 40,000 tons of ice a year, the corned beef plant has an annual output of about 270,000 pounds, and that almost 335,000 pounds of butter is handled by the butter printing plant, all of the butter being brought from the United States. Then we will move to the laundry. In this spacious building, with its long rows of washing machines and drying and ironing devices, all the laundry work of the Zone, excepting that of the Ancon hospital, is done, and in addition that of all the steamship lines running to Colon except one. "We are now handling," said the manager, "an average of about half a million pieces a month, and in the months when the tourists come in greatest numbers the figures mount to about 800,000."

The figures I have been giving are approximate only, for they are changing continually with changing conditions. Here is a list of some of the more important importations of food products during the last fiscal year:

As will be readily understood, the commission is able and willing to sell food at very little above cost. Consequently the housewife on the isthmus can buy at prices that are never above those in the states, and that nearly always are considerably lower. An important part of the commissary plant is the industrial and experimental laboratory in Cristobal, where all the foods are tested and many things, such as flavoring extracts, are manufactured.

The commission conducts more than a dozen hotels for white Americans, where good meals are furnished for 30 cents each; a score of mess halls for European laborers, where a day's board costs forty cents, and about twenty-five kitchens for West Indian laborers, where board casts thirty cents a day. Something like a million meals are served each month in these various establishments, for nearly every employe of the commission eats at a government table. It has been said that no private contractor in tact with the food, and the numerous the world feeds his employes as well as the Isthmian canal commission. Very few of the men ever ate better meals than they are getting on the isthmus, and this is true of the Americans as well as of the Spaniards and

West Indians. No, you cannot avoid the use of the refrigerated space are kept constantly superlative degree in speaking about on hand meat and vegetable supplies | Colonel Wilson's commissary depart ment.

Twenty-two years ago this week the Stetson Shoe GAZETTE was on wheels, the building used being moved from the old site, where it had stood for many years, to where it had stood for many years, to Hendrickson, Gleason, Cross, Reisert from a visit with her parents, Mr. and its present location, to make room for Base on balls by -Reiser 1, P. Seibert 3 Mrs. Charles Rlair of Warren the new Library building which the town Struck out by-Reiser 6, P. Seibert 5. was about to erect.

In due course of time the Library was established in its new home, and from that day to this, by liberal contribution from the town and donations from private individuals, has been enabled to give its patrons the best of service and stands today among the foremost libraries in the

The GAZETTE, like the Library, has kept pace with the time, instead of its limited quarters on the upper floor of the building in use it now occupies the entire building and has use for more room. Instead of a few small job presses, operated by hand or foot, it has more modern presses run by electricity. In stead of a four page paper, two of which were printed in Boston and the other two turned out weekly with John Foster Gray as the motive power, it is now a modern, up-to-day eight page paper and all home print, giving us the best possible opportunity to present to our readers each week the best and latest it is is possible to get of local or other events. These results for the GAZETTE or the Library could not have been attained without a liberal support and patronage from the public, and what we have done to merit this patronage in the past we will continue to do in the future, trying each and every week to make the GAZETTE of more value to the business men and every home in town.

Stetson Shoe 5, Cambridge 2.

On Reed's field, Saturday afternoon, the Stetson Shoe nine, by doing some timely bitting when hits meant rons, assisted by several errors, made by the visitors from Cambridge, won by the score of 5 to 2.

Reiser, who pitched for the Stetson's, only allowed six hits and had them well scattered. P. Siebert pitched for Cambridge and was hit hard, nine hits being made off him.

McMahon's one hand stab of a hard hit ball in right field was the feature play of the game.

Weymouth's Whistling Coon.

We've heard him oft before As he passed by the door And again The morning air resounds,

As he passes through the town, Whistling some refrain. They say that every time He hears a jingling rhyme, He whistles it in tune.

Not another man in town,

Up the street or down. Can whistle like this coon His neighbors, they have said, That he'll nearly wake the dead. As he saunters up the street, But he whistles all the songs,

Those of joy, and those of wrongs, To hear him is a treat We know it is a sin For us to sit and grin At this coon, But his whistle is so shrill, That it sends a cheery thrill,

In the dark, or by the moon. We hope, that in his life, There'll be no storms or strife To check the merry sound, That he'll whistle along the way,

As he has from day to day, On his morning round. (With apologies to O. W. Holmes, for this parody.)

CHAPTER IV.

"I am Constance." HE ordered coffee and toast while he sat there figuring it out When the waiter departed he leaned forward and said quite

"You'll pardon me, I'm sure, but I can't understand how I was so shortsighted as to marry your sister."

"Well, you see, you didn't catch a glimpse of me until after you were married," she railed. "I was in the Sacred Heart convent, you remember."

"Ah, that explains the oversight, I am considered an unusually discriminating person. Let me see: I married a Miss Fowler, didn't I?"

"Yes, Roxbury-four years ago in London, at St. George's, in Hanover square, at 4 o'clock on a Saturday Didn't they tell you all that?"

"I don't think they said anything about it being 4 o'clock. I'm glad to know the awful details, believe me. Thanks! Do you know I decided you were an American the instant I saw you in the door," he went on, quite irrelevantly.

"How clever of you, Roxbury!" "Oh, I say, Miss Fowler, I'm not such an ass as I look-really I'm not. I'm trying to look like"-"'Sh! If you want me to believe you are not the ass you think you look be careful what you say. Remember I am not Miss Powler to you. I am Constance-sometimes Connie. Can you remember that, Roxbury?" He drew a long breath. "Oh, I say, Connie, I'd much rather be plain Brock to you."

"Please don't forget that I am doing adventure. this for my sister, not for myself by He flushed painfully, conscious of the "One does, you know, when he loses "Edith says you are ripping and all that sort of thing." she went on hurriedly, in perfect mimicry. "You come very highly recommended as a brother-in-law."

"Are you to be with us until the end of the play?"

"Yes. The Rodneys are my friends, not Edith's Katherine Rodney was in the convent with me. We see a great deal of each other. I'm sure you will like her. Everybody falls dreadfully in love with her.'

"How very amiable of you to permit it," he protested gallantly. "I'm sure I shall enjoy falling in love. Which reminds me that I've never had a sister-in-law. They're very nice, I'm told. It's odd that Medcroft didn't tell me about you. Would you mind advancing a bit of general information about yourself-and, may I say, about my family in general? It may come handy."

"I feel as though I had known you for years." she said, frankly returning his gaze She leaned forward, her elbows on the table, her chin in her hands. "I'm merely Edith's sister We live in Paris-that is, father and I. I'm three years younger than Edith Of course you know how old your wife is, so we won't dwell upon that You don't? Then I'd demand it of her. I haven't been in Philadelphia since I was seven, and that's ages ago. I have no mother, and father is off in South America on business. So you see little sister has to tag after big sister. Oh!" She interrupted the re cital with an abrupt change of manner. "I'm so sorry you've finished your coffee. Now you'll have to go Roxbury always does."

"But I haven't finished." he exclaim ed eagerly. "I'm going to have three or four more pots. You have no idea

"It's all right, then." she said, with her rarest and most confident smile. "Well, Edith asked me to come to London for the season. The Rodneys were in Paris at the time, however, and they asked me to join them for a fortnight in the Tyrol. When I said that I was off for a visit with thewith you, I mean-they insisted that you all should come too. They are connections in a way, don't you see? So we accepted. And here we are."

"You don't, by any chance, happen to be engaged to be married, or anything of that sort?" he ventured. "Don't crush me! It's only as a safeguard, you know. People may ask questions." "You are not obliged to answer them. Roxbury," she said. The flush had He growls every time that Roxy kisses deepened in her cheek. It con inced

"Heavens, you're not, by any chance engaged, are you?"

the toast poised half way to her lips, "you're not, by any chance, engaged, are you? Appalling thought!"

He laughed delightedly. "People won't ask about me, my dear Constance. I'm already married, you know. But if any one should ask you're not obliged to answer."

She looked troubled and uncertain. "You may be really married, after all," she speculated. "Who knows? Poor old Roxbury wouldn't have had the tact to inquire."

"I'm a henpecked bachelor, believe me."

For the next quarter of an hour they chatted in the liveliest, most inconsequential fashion, getting on excellent terms with each other and arriving at a fair sense of appreciation of what lay ahead of them in the shape of peril and

In fact, he was quite sincerely pleased with himself-for which he may be pardoned if one stops to think how resourceful a woman of his identity." she said sympathetically. tact may be if she is very, very pretty.

And, by way of further analogy, Brock was a thoroughly likable chap, besides being handsome and a thoroughbred to the core. It's not betraying a secret to affirm, coldbloodedly, that Miss Fowler had not allied herself with the enterprise until after she had pinned Roxbury down to facts concerning Brock's antecedents. She was properly relieved to find that he came of a fine old family and that he had led more than one cotillion in New York. He experienced a remarkable change of front in respect to Roxbury Medcroft before the breakfast was over. It may have been due to the spell of her eyes or to the call of her voice, but it remains an unchallenged fact that he no longer thought of Medcroft as a stup!d bungler. Instead he had come to regard him as a good and irreproachable Samaritan. All of which goes to prove that a divinity shapes our ends, rough hew them how we

"I'm sure we shall get on famously," he said, as she signified her desire to return to the compartment. "I've always longed for a nice, agreeable sister-in-law."

"Her mission is life, up to a certain stage, is to make the man appreclate the fact that he has, after all. been snapped up by a small but deserving family," she said blithely "It is also her duty to pour oil on troubled waters and strew flowers along the connubial highway, so long as her kind offices are not resented. By the way, Roxbury, I am now about to preserve you from bitter reproaches. You have forgotten to order coffee and rolls for your wife."

"Great Scott! So I have! It's 9 o'clock." He ordered the coffee and rolls to be sent in at once. "I hope she hasn't starved to death."

"My dear Roxbury," she said sternly, "I must take you under my wing You have much to accomplish in the next twenty-four hours, not the least of your duties being the subjugation of Tootles and Raggles Tootles is fifteen months old. It may interest you to know. We can't afford to have Tootles scream with terror every time she sees you, and it would be most unfortunate if Raggles should growl and snap at you as he does at all suspicious strangers. Once in awhile he bites. too. Do you like bables?"

"Yes, I-I think I do," he said doubtingly. "I daresay I could cultivate a taste for 'em; but, I say," with eager enthusiasm, "I love dogs!"

"It may be distinctly in your favor that Raggles loathes the real Roxbury.

Edith."

"Has he ever bitten Roxy for it?" "No," dublously, "but Roxy has had to kick him on several occasions."

"How very tiresome-to kick and kiss at the same time!" "Raggles is very jealous, you under-

"That's more than I can say for dear old Roxy. But I'll try to anticipate Raggles by compelling Edith to keep her distance," he said, scowling darkly. "Has it not occurred to you that Tootles will be pretty-er-much of a nulsance when it comes to mountain climbing?" He felt his way carefully in saying this.

"Oh, dear me, Roxbury! Would you have left the poor little darling at home-in all that dreadful heat?"

"I'm sure I couldn't have been blamed for leaving her at home," he protested. "She didn't exist until half an hour ago. Heavens, how they do spring up!"

The remainder of Brock's day was spent in getting acquainted with his family, or, rather, his menage. There were habits and folbles, demands and restrictions that he had to adapt himself to with unvarying benignity. He made a friend of Raggles without half trying. Dogs always took to him, he admitted modestly. Tootles was less vulnerable. She howled consistently at each of his first half dozen advances. His courage began to wane with shocking rapidity. His next half hearted advances were in reality inglorious retrents. Spurred on by the sustaining Constance, he stood by his guns and at last was gratified to see faint signs of surrender. By midday he had conquered. Tootles permitted him to carry her up and down the station platform (she was too young to realize the risk she ran). Edith and Constance, with the beaming .nurse and O'Brien, applauded warmly when he returned from his first promenade, bearing Tootles and proudly heeled by Raggles. Fond mothers in the crowd of hurrying travelers found time to look upon him and smile, as if to say, "What a nice man!" He could almost hear them saying it, which no doubt accounted for the intense ruddiness of his cheeks.

"Do you ever spank her?" he demanded once of Mrs. Medcroft after Tootles had brought tears to his eyes with a potent attack upon his nose. She caught the light of danger in his gray eyes and hastily snatched the offending Tootles from his arms.

Miss Fowler kept him constantly at work with his eyeglass and his English, neither of which he was managing well enough to please her critical estimate. In fact, he labored all day with the persistence, if not the sullenness, of a hard driven slave. He did not have time to become tired. There was always something new to be done or learned or unlearned; his day was full to overflowing. He was a man of family.

When not amusing herself by watching Brock's misfortunes she was napping or reading or sending out for cool drinks. With all the selfishness of a dutiful wife she was content to shift responsibilities upon that ever convenient and useful creature-a detached

Brock sent telegrams for her from cities along the way-Ulm, Munich, Salzburg and others-all meant for the real Roxbury in London, but sent to a fictitious being in Great Russell street, the same having been agreed upon by at least two of the conspirators. It mattered little that she repeated herself monotonously in regard to the state of health of herself and Tootles. Roxbury would doubtless enjoy the protracted happiness brought on by these dispatches, even though they got him out of bed or missed him altogether until they reached him in a bunch the next day. He may also have been gratified to hear from Munich that Roxbury was perfectly love-She said in the course of her longest dispatch that she was so glad that the baby was getting to like her father more and more as the day wore on. At one station Brock narrowly escap ed missing the train. He swung himself aboard as the cars were rolling out of the sheds. As he sank, hot and exhausted, into the seat opposite his wife and her sister the former looked up from her book, yawning ever so faintly, and asked:

"Are you enjoying your honeymoon, Roxbury?"

"Immensely!" he exclaimed, but not until he had searched for and caught Connie's truant gaze. "Aren't we?" he asked of Miss Fowler, his eyes tancing She smiled encouragingly

"I think you are such a nice man to work. have about." commented Mrs. Medcroft, this time yawning freely and stretching her fine young arms in the luxury of home contentment Brock went to bed early in Vienna that night, tired but happy, caring not what the morrow brought forth so long as it continued to provide him with a sister-in-law and a wife who was devoted-to another man.

A STORY OF 1925

By F. A. MITCHEL

The nineteenth century, so proffic in inventions and discoveries, laid the foundation for some remarkable steps in knowledge of the functions of the body. During the first decade of the twentieth experimenters in institutions for original research became aware that there was an intermediate state between life and death, since life in many organisms could be suspended by being frozen in liquid air and afterward resuscitated.

It was found that bacteria, the lowest plant organisms, have enormous the lives of frogs, rats, snails and fish Doan's Kidney Pills holds good." being suspended by this freezing proc ess, yet on being "thawed out" after several weeks they revived.

These animals were found to be perfectly normal when placed in a refrigerating jar filled with liquid air at a no other. certain temperature. After a short time the animals appeared lifeless. A month later they were removed and on being massaged showed signs of life. often reviving completely.

It does not appear that these investigators made experiments with human beings. Doubtless human beings objected to being thrust into a glass tank filled with liquid air 360 degrees

Since then there has been no effort to discover whether human beings could be frozen and brought to life. In 1885 a party of tourists started from the town of Chamonix, in Switzerland, by the old route to climb Mont Blanc, the railroad to the summit not then having been built. One of the guides, Hans Twingle, twenty years old, was to be married on his return to Anna Bishof, three years his junior. The lovers, in the first freshness of youth, bade each other goodby, the girl in tears, for she had dreamed that she had been separated from Hans till she was an old woman near sixty, when she met him again, he being a youth of twenty. At that age he had no sympathy for an old woman and turned his back upon her. At the parting she feared that her dream boded some trouble either for her lover or herself. And so it did. When the party returned to Chamonix Hans Twingle was not with them. He had fallen into a crevasse on the glacier hundreds of feet deep, and no effort was made at such a rate that it would bring

Hans' body down to a point where the ice would give it up in exactly forty years. Anna Bishof, though she mar ried, all her life hoped that she would live to look once more on the lover of her youth when he should be returned from his icy grave.

an investigator of the Institute For Original Research, went to Chamonix and heard the story of Hans and Anna. He found the latter an old woman and on questioning her as to the date that Hans had disappeared learned that the body was due to come forth from the glacier during the summer of the year 1925. On the 1st of July last the doctor went over to Chamonix and wait ed for the appearance of the body. He did not reveal his purpose, since it seemed so quixotic that he feared de rision. It was to determine with the $27.71. assistance of the latest scientific meth ods whether Hans was dead or in the suspensory state and, if the latter.

whether he could be brought to life. It was late in September before Hans' body appeared. Dr. Donenshunner had revealed his intention to the deceased relatives and secured their permission to resuscitate him. He had secured a bathtub, which he filled with water at 33 degrees, or one degree above the freezing point. He placed the body in this tub and gradually advanced the temperature, massaging the thorax about the heart and extending the operation over the whole

A record of what further expedients the scientist resorted to be turned over to his institute, where they are on file. Doubtless they would be too profes sional to be given here. The point I wish to mention especially is how his former sweetheart's dream came true. When Hans, still a man of twenty, had been restored Anna, attended by her granddaughter, was introduced to the apartment where he was. Hans sprang up, brushed by his former sweetheart, nearly knocking her over, and, throwing his arms around the granddaughter, exclaimed:

ried Hans.

"Old hag!" whined Anna. Then, losing control of herself, she selzed a broom standing in a corner and belabored him unmercifully. Dr. Donenshunner blames himself for a scene that was too much for a heart that had been frozen forty years He did all in his power to bring Hans back to life a second time, but his efforts were futile.

The incident had a singular effect upon the granddaughter, who was but seventeen years old and not prepared for such a strain. She accused her grandmother of having murdered Hans The people of Chamonix say that the girl gave her heart to a man old enough to be her grandfather

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Weymouth People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a leeling of languor and fatigue Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Weymouth proof of their merit.

Mrs. Thomas Fryer, 56 Philip street, Weymouth, Mass., says: "I can speak highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, having used them both here and in England and powers of resisting death. Bacteria I own my present good health to them. of various diseases were frozen in Occasional use of Doan's Kidney Pills liquid air at a temperature of minus keeps my kidneys in good shape. Stephen A. Douglas, who was born at Brandon, Vt., originated the oft quoted saying, "Vermont is a good state to emigrate from."

This double edged saying, which contains a compliment and a knock, is a good example of Douglas humor. which always had in it a peculiarly Vermont quality. It is said that Dougins' actual words were these: "Vermont is a good state to be born in, a good state to be educated in and a good state to emigrate from." This made the remark more of a "knock" than it is in its usual and more summary form. But when Douglas uttered

In accordance with recent legislation, the Tax Collector issued all poll tax bills to the extent of over three thousand on the first of the month, and many of those who pay other than a poll tax are asking whereof how much is the rest of it. The Tax Collector bas filed his bond, which has been accepted, and is ready for the rest of the business, but up to the time of writing the taxes have not been committed to him.

North Weymouth Improvement Association.

The North Weymouth Improvement Association held a largely attended meeting in Engine Hell, North Weymouth, on Monday evening, September 15th. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Sidney G. Dunbar who then introduced as speaker of the evening, Mr. Albert P. Worthen, town counsel. Mr. Worthen had as his subject: "Trolley Freight," and spoke at some length on the historical facts in regard to the trolley freight in this town. FRIDAY.

Again on Friday the weatherman handed out a very good day for any sort of a fair

With three perfect days, record break- | and another immense crowd gathered for the well-filled program.

The first important event scheduled was the horse racing, with two classes to be run off. In the 2 21 class Hallie Ross pitchers allowed but three hits on each won three straight heats without a skip, side and the fielding was of unusual high although closely pressed by Lucky Bald- order. Time-2.251, 2.281, 2.281. At three o'clock, a large audience gathered around the baseball diamond to witness the baseball game between the Stetson Shoe Co. and the Deweys. The Stetson Shoe Co. nine won 7 to 5. Hazelton pitched excellent ball for the winners and the Stetson boys fielded without a slip-up behind their captain. Ken. Nash and Reg. The motor cycle races attracted a large crowd to the fence around the half-mile track, and the way the boys on the highpowered and speedy machines tore around the track made more than one person remark that aeroplane flying looked safer than motor cycle racing. The one mile race was won by Earl Gove, the wellknown and skilful motor cycle rider of Brockton in 1m. 194s. Ward N. Park of New Bedford was second in 1m. 20s. and

Leon W. Crocker third in 1m. 231s. The ten mile race, open, was won also by Earl Gove, with H. E. Hendrickson second and Ernest J. Marble third. The winner's time was 13m. 35s. As a closing feature, Miss Law again made a successful flight about the vicinity, staying in the air about ten minutes and skilfully landing in the middle of the baseball field without a mishap. SATURDAY.

The largest crowd of the entire fair was in attendance on Saturday, the final day of the fair. The track was in splendid condition for fast racing, and a large crowd of horse lovers thronged the railing all along the home stretch, while the spacious grandstand was taxed to overflowing. The 2.25 class was not very close, Col. Patch easily taking three straight heats with

Van Dyke an easy second. The best racing of the day came in the second heat of the 2.18 class, when J. P. Fay with Hallie Ross, after losing the first heat, overtook Katherine R. by a great drive down the home stretch and won out by half a head. The third and fourth heats of this race were won by Hallie Ross, making the second race won by the mare in two days. Thee summary of Saturday's racing :-

Fully 5,000 people gathered around the ball-field to witness the game between the Stetson Shoe Co. and the fast Braintree A. Marble was second and W. M. Park third. In the wrestling match between Archie Jeannette of the Clapp Memorial Association and Joe Bess, middle weight champion of New England, the C. M. A. boy won two straight falls and the bout. J. E. Fabyan acted as referee of the match.

On account of the high wind Miss Law decided that conditions were unsafe for a flight, much to the disappointment of the large crowd who staid until dark in hopes that the wind would die down.

On all three days the midway was alive every minute, all the space being taken this year and all the merchants did a landoffice business. The state police were on hand to stop any illegal games. A game of ringing money and a chocolate wheel are the only ones reported to have been stopped, and much wonderment was caused by the stopping of the money game as last year it was allowed to go on and has been carried on at all the big fairs this year. Chief of Police Patrick Butler had a large force of Weymouth regular and special officers on duty, and the large crowds were extremely well handled by the officers in charge. A feature of this year's fair was the fine program of band concerts given. On Thursday the Stetson Shoe Company's band entertained, while on Friday and Saturday Mace Gay's famous Martland band of Brockton gave pleasing concerts.

Several improvements have been made on the grounds since last year, the stage. where stage shows in recent years have been held, has been torn down, while directly in front of the grandstand a fine. new bandstand has been erected. All the fences about the grounds have been repaired and several other improvements made, which improve the appearance of the grounds a great deal. A pleasing feature of the fair this year was the large number of auto parties from all over the state that attended. Several cars from states in New England other than Massachusetts were noted and there were also many carriages in attendance from all over this section.

THE HALL EXHIBIT Too much cannot be said in praise of the hall exhibit, handicapped as it was for want of room, as a whole it is said by many to have been the finest ever presented by the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society and a much more spacious hall is needed if the spirit of 1913 continues. Weymouth and surrounding towns did an especially fine thing in the way of fruits of all kinds, undoubtedly fairs which embrace a larger territory will have larger exhibits, but it goes without saying apples, pears, peach, grapes, and othes fruits raised in Weymouth would take first prizes at any fair in New England. The show of garden products was not as large as might have been expected but that on exhibition was of high grade and demonstrated what we have often said that Weymouth can feed its entire population from its own soil.

Some one has said "you can't eat flowers" well no one with a soul wants to and ordinary grass is good enough for the man or woman who thinks of nothing but gorging his or her stomach-to the point. The committee in charge of the floral department has never had better opportunity than did the committee of the present year, like the space in the hall ours is to limited to specialize, let us hope it will be as good next year and every body who can forget their stomach half a day will be there to see' not forgetting to have in

All the schools here (South Weymouth) open pleasantly and with larger numbers than usual, which is an indication of prgress in the right direction The High school has eighty pupils, a number far beyond that of former years.

The school in the new building on Middle street did not commence Monday as was advertised. The furnace not being in position Dr. Fraser objected, as the rooms would be so damp that serious results might follow.

In response to circulars sent out the first of the week, between forty and fifty of the prominent business men of this village gathered at Engine hall last evening to consider the subject of a National bank called to order by N. D. Canterbury, who was chosen chairman, and C. B. Cushing, secretary. A committee was chosen to present and there is no doubt but at the next meeting the necessary steps will be mouth will have a National Bank. It

Caught a Tartar

By SAMUEL E BRANT

John Riggs and Elmer Burch, two young men of the world, spinning at a country hotel and, liking the lay of the land, the scenery and more especially the cuisine of the house, concluded to remain for awhile. They soon discovered a small game going on in a room behind the office and went in to look on. They were adepts at the national game of poker, but only played as gentlemen with gentlemenfor pastime and not for the purpose of replenishing their exchequers.

The game they watched was being played by four men, one of whom appeared to be a greenhorn, who was being fleeced by the other three. They had not been playing long, and Riggs them their revenge during the evening.

The two young tourists felt sure that if the winner played in the evening but whatever he had to lose besides. day. Riggs said he should be warned, but was to win his money from him, then these services. hand it back to him with a lecture on trusting persons he didn't know.

After supper, while the two were smoking on the plazza, the greenhorn came out, and they began to chat with prised at his skill. Riggs chimed in. The result of the talk was that they he had been playing and join them in seemed indisposed to deny the sharpers their revenge and asked the friends if they thought he had a right to do so.

"Certainly," said Burch. "Every sitting at poker stands for itself. If these men had won your money they would not have played again with you unless they wanted to. Isn't that so?" he added, turning to his friend.

Riggs confirmed his opinion, and the three men adjourned to a room upstairs and sat down for a game. For half an hour the greenhorn was permitted to win with ease. He played a very poor game, but the two friends failed to bet on their good hands and always bet on their poor ones. When they had let their opponent win about $50 they changed their tactics and won it all back again. The greenhorn pulled out a roll of crisp fen dollar bills, manifesting an intention to buck against his adversaries for all he was worth.

The friends glanced at each other knowingly. The little game they were not used to spending their time without amusement, and they were getting all they wanted. The greenhorn played even worse than before, and, losing his money, he became excited and lost his head completely. One after another his beautiful banknotes passed into the hands of his opponents. A thousand dollars of his had gone into their pockets for more when Riggs stopped him. Putting his hand on the green horn's arm gently, he said:

"My friend, don't get out any more money. We brought you up here towith whom you were playing before 7.30. dinner. If you had joined them tonight they would have had this money instead of us. They would have kept it. We are going to return it." The man gaped at them as though he could not understand what they were driving at. Presently he asked: "How do you know those fellows I played with are sharpers?" "We could see them 'playing you.' ' "And you're going to give me back my winning it?"

"We are." The greenhorn grasped the hand of each of the friends promptly.

"I'm mighty glad of it. Do you know this money I've lost wasn't mine ing. Reading room open every week day It belongs to a dear little child for from 3 to 5. All are welcome. Subject, whom I am guardian."

When the man had finished his expressions of gratitude the settling up came. The money was put in a pile on the table, and the greenhorn was told to help himself to what he had lost. There was old money, as well as the new bills he had brought out "I'll take the ragged stuff, gentle-clean money." Pocketing the ragged stuff, he grasped his benefactors' hands again, thanked them with moist eyes and NORFOLK, SS. withdrew.

The next morning the friends looked for him, but did not see him. Nor were the sharpers about, either. Burch, needing change, stepped up to the botel clerk and asked him to break a ten dollar bill. The clerk was about to do so when something about the bill caught his eye.

"By jing." he exclaimed, "if that isn't one of those counterfeit tens some one has been circulating about here lately!"

And it was. The greenhorn had their ragged stuff, and they had his coun-

"I say, John," said Burch, "we warmed a serpent in our bosom, didn't we?" "You bet."

"No. sir; never again!"

Stage's Loss Literature's Gain. England's censorship of the drama caused Fielding to turn from playwright to novel writing. Fielding began his literary career as a dramatist, and by his political satires brought about the establishment of the censorship in 1737, the bill being introduced by Walpole, one of Fielding's victims. With playwriting thus barred to him, he turned his attention to the novel.

CHAPTER V. The Distant Cousins.

HE end of the week found Brock quite thoroughly domesticated-to use an expression supplied by his new sister-inlaw. True, he had gone through some trying ordeals and had lost not a little of his sense of locality, but he was rapidly recovering it as the pathway became easier and less obscure. At first he was irritatingly remiss in answering to the name of Medcroft; but, to justify the stupidity, it is only neccosary to say that he had fallen into a condition which scarcely permitted him to know his own name, much less that of another. He was under the spell. Wherefore it did not matter at all what name be went by. He would have answered as readily to one as the

He blandly ignored telegrams and letters addressed to Roxbury Mederoft, and once he sat like a lump, with every one staring at him, when the chairman of the architects' convention asked if Mr. Mederoft had anything to say on the subject under discussion. He was forced, in some confusion, to attribute his heedlessness to a lifelong defect in hearing. Thereafter it was his punishment to have his name and fragments of conversation hurled about in tones so stentorian that he blushed for very shame. In the Bristol, in the Karntner-Ring, in the Lichtenstein gallery, in the gardens-no matter where he went-if he were to be accosted by any of the genial architects it was always in a voice that attracted attention. He could have heard them if they had been a block away. It be-

He had to go down one flight for his morning tub, and he nevin line and await his turn. Mrs. Medcroft had the choicest room in the hotel, looking down upon the beautiful Karntner-Ring. Constance proposed. in the goodness of her heart, to give up to Brock her own room, adjoining hiding in London, saw the reproduced that of her sister, provided Edith would take her in to sleep with her. Edith was perfectly willing, but interposed the sage conclusion that gossipping menials might not appreciate a preference so unique.

of his bed was in close proximity to the upper mechanism of the lift, a thin wall intervening. A French architect. who had a room hard by, met Brock in the hall, hollow eyed and haggard on the morning after their first night He shouted lugubrious congratulations in Brock's ear, just as if Brock's eat had not been harassed a whole night long by shricking wheels and rasping cables.

"M'sieur is very fortunate in being so afflicted." he boomed. "A thousand times in the night have I wished that I might be deaf also. Ah! Even an alil tion such as yours, m'sieur, bas its benedictions."

Matters drifted along smoothly, even merrily, for several days. They were all young and full of the loy of llving. They laughed in secret over the mishaps and perils. They whiffed and enjoyed the spice that filled the atmosphere in which they lived. They visited the gardens and the hofs, the chateau at Schonbrunn, the Imperial stables, the gay "Venice in Vienna;" they attended the opera and the concerts, ever in a most circumspect "trinity." as Brock had come to classify their parties. Like a dutiful hus-

the expeditions. "You are not only a most exemplary wife, Mrs. Medcroft," he declared, "but an unusually agreeable chaperon. 1 don't know how Constance and I could get on without you."

But the day of severest trial was now at band. The Rodneys were arriving on the fifth day from Berlin. Despite the fact that the Seattle "connections" had never seen the illustrious Medcroft, husband to their distant cousin. there still remained the disturbing fear that they would recognize-or, rather, fail to recognize him!-from chance pic- so confounded slow. Afterward the entire fortunate thousands whom he had party would attend the opera, which parte, were in a state of perturbationa condition which did not relax in the place to remark that Brock loathed rival of the 5 o'clock train from the "The Mikado" cult. > As a matter of fact, when Medcroft, interview in the Times, together with editorial comments upon the extraordinary attitude of a supposedly conservative Englishman of recognized ability. he was tried almost beyond endurance. For the next two or three days the newspapers printed caustic contributions from fellow architects and builders, in each of which the luckless Medcroft was taken to task for advocating an impractical and famous New York hobby in the way of construction, something that staid old London would not even tolerate or discuss. The social chroniclings of the Medcrofts in Vienna as dispatched by the correspond ents offset this unhappy "bull" to some extent in so far as Medcroft's peace of mind was concerned, but nothing could have drawn attention to the fact that he was not in London at that partieular time so decisively as the Vienna interview and its undefended front. Even his shrewdest enemy could not have suspected Mederoft of a patience which would permit him to sit quiet in London while the attacks were going on. He found some small solace in the reflection that he could make the end justify the means. On their return to the Bristol, Brock and Miss Fowler found the fair Edith in a pitiful state of collapse. She de clared over and over again that she could not face the Rodneys. It was more than should be expected of her. She was sure that something would go wrong. Why-oh, why was it necessary to deceive the Rodneys? Why should they be kept in the dark? Why wasn't Roxbury there to counsel wise ly, and more, ad infinitum, until the distracted pair were on the point of deserting the cause. She finally dissolved into tears, and would not listen to reason, expostulation or persuasion. It was then that Brock cruelly but effectively declared his intention to abdicate, as he also had a reputation to preserve. Whereupon, with a fine sense of distinction she flared up and accused him of treachery to his best friend. Roxbury Mederoft, who was reposing the utmost confidence in his friendship and loyalty. How could she be expected to go on with the play if he, the man upon whom everything depended, was to turn tail in a critical hour like this? "How can you have the heart to spoil everything?" she cried indignant ly. He looked at her in fresh amaze-

"Roxbury and I didn't have our first quarrel until we'd been married a year," said Edith reflectively.

"Oh, I say, Edith," exclaimed Brock, with a dark frown, "I'd rather you wouldn't be forever extolling the good qualities of my predecessor. It's very bad taste. Very much like the pies mother used to make."

"Silly!" cried Mederoft's wife, now in fine humor.

"Besides, Rox is an Englishman. It would take him a year to produce a quarrel. The American husband is not

Sales, $250,000 Tolls, $36

THIS is the most remarkable incident of its kind that we have heard of in the course of a demonstration of selling by telephone—sales totalling $250,000 at an expenditure of $36 for telephone tolls.

By permission we are enabled to say that the selling was done by MR. GEORGE R. KELLY of George R. Relly & Co., of 104 Hanover St., Boston, New England selling agents of the American Window Glass Company of Pittsburg.

One of our salesmen called upon Mr. Kelly to demonstrate our new toll service selling plans, only to find that already he was employing advanced methods along this line, Said he:

"We anticipated a rise in the price of window glass around January 1, and wanted to give our customers the benefit of current quotations.

"There wasn't time to make personal visits to the trade, letters wouldn't be satisfactory, so we made our calls by tele-

"During the first ten days in December we made toll calls to widely separated points in New England, at a cost of about $36, and booked orders aggregating $250,000."

If any New England house can show greater results from selling by telephone, we would be glad to learn of them.

Business men interested in progressive ideas for the extension of trade are invited to send for our booklet entitled "Madern Methads of Money-Making," and for samples of our "Telephone Passes."

tions. The rounded tops of the rocky islets have been cut off and a little army of men is busy blasting and shoveling and preparing the bulwarks behind which will be mounted long cannon and immense mortars. The four islands are all being connected with each other, and Naos, the nearest, is joined to the mainland at Balboa by a breakwater about 17,000 feet long, on which has been constructed a railway line.

Some eight miles away, nearly due south, lies the larger island of Taboga, and timid souls have suggested that it would form a safe shelter and recuperating point for a hostile fleet, for its hills rise to a considerable elevation and on its south side there is plenty of deep water. But if Colonel Goethals' opinion is to be taken-and it should be-Taboga need not cause Uncle Sam any anxiety.

Session every Tuwell land an army, and the semi-open, rolling savannas between there and the canal would give easy access to the zone.

The army officers on the isthmus make no secret of the fact that their investigations are being carried on mainly with the Japanese in mind. How those islanders could land there and what they could do if they did land are the problems engaging the attention of Colonel Greene and his men of the Tenth. One defensive measure that has been adopted is the clearing out of practically all inhabitants from the zone, except at the ends of the canal and in several of the larger towns, which, as I have said, may be kept as quarters for the soldiers. All holdings of land are being valued by a mixed commission and the residents moved away. When the canal is completed the jungle, much of which has been cleared out, will be allowed to grow up again, for the experience of centuries has shown that that jungle itself is a powerful defense against an invading army. The practicable roads through it are few and far between, the streams not navigable, and the growth of trees, brush and great vines so dense that it is virtually impassable for a body of men, to say nothing of cannon and supply wagons. A rapid dash through the jungle would be entirely out of the question, and when the zone is deserted all food supplies will have disappeared.

Some fear has been expressed that few men could land, make their way should be given to ferns that are small quietly to the canal and blow up the or weak, but do not make the proporlocks. But it seems unlikely that they tion of nitrate more than one-quarter could get ashore and transport to the of an ounce to the gallon, but large canal, undetected, enough explosives plants, and those of vigorous growth to do any great damage.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY YEARS AGO.

Tuesday evening last the voters of Weymouth assembled at the town hall to further consider the subject of obtaining a water supply from Great Pond. The charge of Mrs. Franklin P. Whitten. Re- hall was well filled, but the anticipated crowd of opponents of the movement, who it had been rumored were to be persent to make an effort to obstruct further action, did not put in an appearance. Chairman Lewis called the meeting to order, and called for a report of the committee chosen at the previous meeting to present the names os three candidates for Water Commissioners, and Secretary Whitcomb reported as follows:

Aug. J. Richards, 3 years.

Josiah Reed, 2 years. Henry A. Nash, 1 year.

As it was necessary to appropriate money for the expenses of the survey, etc., on motion of Mr. E. P. Worster $1,000 was voted for the same, and the meeting was dissolved. PRIMARIES ARE OVER Weymouth Makes a Small Exhibit at the Polls.

Of the three thousand or more voters in Weymouth, only about four hundred cast a vote at the Primary on Tuesday.

The Polls opened at four o'clock and Precinct officers were not crowded with callers. The voting was slow as the opinion is growing stronger and stronger each year that the Primary elections, socalled, is a delusion. Many men will not go because they do not care to declare themselves for either party as a whole. Independent voting at the regular election is every man's inherent rite and as a rule voters are coming that way fast. We give below the result of Tuesday, but Don't overload your horses.

Take no weeds to the compost heap that have seeds, but dispose of them by burning.

The first thing necessary in cleaning dairy utensils is to wash them as soon as possible after use

The best supplement to pastures is a supply of good ensilage put up the previous autumn.

Every advantage that we give the calf at an early age makes for the development of a strong and healthy dairy animal.

Pullets are the best layers. Old hens bring down the egg record. Sell off the old hens to make room for the maturing pullets.

In making silage of any of the legumes, it is better to mix corn with it. A certain amount of grain alcohol seems necessary to the best keeping and feeding qualities.

High class butter is not entirely due to the excellence of the cow but to the intelligence and management of the dairyman who attends and looks after everything necessary to produce a good product.

Are you keeping poultry for profit, either in large or small quantities? No matter if you keep only a dozen hens; are they paying you a profit, over and above their keep and eggs and poultry used in your own family? If not, can you explain why not? For poultry properly kept pays the best of any domestic animals.

When the incubating season closes, all the males of the flock may be marketed or otherwise disposed of. They are no longer necessary. Never keep the same males in the flock from year to year, since unbreeding and weakness will result.

Dairy cows are still scarce and high. Those who are anxious to go into the dairy business or keep more cows on the farm for the home milk supply have difficulty in finding desirable animals for sale. In fact, those who have good milk producers are reluctant to sell for the simple reason that the cows are profitable. The WEYMOUTH, MASS. Tel. Weymouth 25 best way to get good cows is to raise

The molting of birds is the shedding of the old coat of feathers and the growing of a new coat. This takes place with chickens during their second year, and frequently with real early hatched chickens. The molting season usually begins in August and runs through September, October and a part of November. With some individuals under special conditions the new coat of feathers is not fully grown till after the beginning of freezing weather. It should be the aim, if possible Assistant Register, J. to have the molt fully over before the beginning of cold weather, and all the hens have settled down to laying.

It will surprise most dairymen to learn that carefully kept cows are given four or five ounces of salt each daily mixed with Sheriff, Samuel H. Capen.

> Up in Somerset county, Maine, there is a man who woke up, a couple of years ago, and wondered if he could not raise some wheat and turn it into money some better way than by selling it to grain deal-He believed he could, and he planted six acres. He got a fine crop, and he sold it in the form of fresh eggs. His hens saved him the necessity of threshing, and made it easier for him to market his newlaid eggs than it would have been to sell the wheat. Dollar wheat is a pretty good proposition, to sell threshed and bagged. But if it need not be threshed and bagged nor hauled to market, why is it not a much better proposition? This is why it is so profitable to raise wheat in New England.

Whaling at Natal.

The whaler Egeland the other morning brought in the first humpback whale captured in Natal this season. It was a good whale and very fat. On a second visit to the ocean the same whaler captured a blue whale 70 feet long, which landed in the evening. Apparently the baleen whales are early this year.-Natal Mercury.

FATE AND A COW

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press

Professor Slocum of the college at Madison was tifty years old at a cer tain date. He was tall and stoop shouldered and ungainly. He was retleent and undemonstrative, and socie-Day of the same town had reached the Herald age of forty-five. She was plain of face and frigid of attitude, and her charms were missing

It was one Sunday in church that an hour. After that it was for the cow to do her part.

One evening, just at sundown, Miss professor discovered his pebbles, the pahl-Philadelphia Ledger. two people discovered each other, and together they discovered a cow. A cow may be simply an animated object on the landscape or she may be a discovery because she is enraged over the loss of a horn knocked off in some way and because she has her head down and her tail up and is charging the pebbles and daisy gatherers.

Then the fifth discovery showed up. It was a cow shed twenty rods away, a rough affair that had seen better days. The mendow was retired, and the shed was more so. They reached it just in time for the professor to find a board and bar the entrance against the cow and later on to further strengthen it. There was no doubt about the bovine being in earnest. She made frantic efforts to tear down the shed with her remaining horn, and when she could not effect an entrance she stood on guard to keep her victims from coming out. Darkness suddenly fell, and then the perturbed couple suddenly realized their situation.

late of Weymouth, in said County, deceased:
Whereas, John B. Whelan, the executor of the will of said deceased, has presented for allowance, the first and final account of his administration upon the estate of said deceased:
You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy in said County, on the eighth day of October A. D. 1913, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, it any you have, why the same should not be allowed.
And said executor is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each "Professor Slocum, I must leave here this instant!" exclaimed the horrified

"And so must I!" was the reply.

"It is not proper!"

"Certainly not!"

\nd I the same!" "mn't go, but you must!" said Miss the cow quieted down. "Proyou must see that you must go

"signust see it!" and, while see it," he replied, "and, while I cannot depart from the shed, I can climb on the top of it."

This he accomplished by making his way through a gap in the roof. He was now in a position of propriety, but there was the cow again. When she saw him perched up there, so near and yet so far, she tried to climb up after him, and at the end of two minutes Miss Day was shricking for protection. Down scrambled the professor, and the cow took to running around the shed to find where he had disappeared. The interior of the shed had now become so dark that nothing could be seen. In trying to strengthen the door some more the professor fell down and rolled over. In trying to go to his assistance Miss Day suddenly found herself sprawling.

Can a person maintain frigidness when surrounded by a cow shed, with a mad cow battering away at the door? Can a person be stilted after rolling in the straw and dirt? Can he or she be severely ceremonious when it is impossible to see each other? The professor wisely decided that they could not, and he reached out and clasped Miss Day's hand. She returned the clasp. Then he put his arm around her in a protecting way, and she did not shrink. Then the old cow made up her mind to melt the frost and bring out the turtledoves if she had to break her neck to do it. She gave a bellow of warning and retreated eight or ten rods and then came for the side of the shed like a runaway locomotive. She hit it fair and square, and twothirds of it caved in like a house of sand. In the caving she was mixed up with beams and boards, and the professor took advantage of the occasion to tear the door aside and then pull his companion out into the open. Then they ran for the nearest fence. It wasn't dignified to fall down three or four times, but they fell. It wasn't eminently proper, when the fence was reached and the cow was hard on their rail, for the professor to throw Miss Day over and then take a scramble himself, but that's the way it was worked. Then as soon as the man in the case could get his breath he realized the inevitable. They were both tattered and frizzled. They had together passed through peril by flood and fire (and cow), and romance had come to their hearts at last. "Miss Day, I have loved you from the first!" announced the professor as e took her hand. "And I-I"- she replied after gasp ing for breath.

Of course she had, too, and of course that settled it then and there. The old row looked through the rails at them. heard the cooing of the doves and with a snort of disgust turned tail and walked away. And yet she had made over two human beings to be like the 225-Corner Liberty St. and Stetson St.

A Captured Royal Standard. The British royal standard which fills the center of the ceiling of Trophy hall, Annapolis, is a splendid example of flag restoration Professor Washburn said that this flag was "in about as fine pieces as chopped bay," yet to day it looks as if it had just left the hands of the weaver. A great deal of historic value is attached to this flag, as it is the only British royal standard in the possession of a foreign nation. In 1813 Commodore Isaac Chauncey and General Montgomery Pike captured the city of York, now Toronto, and took from the parliament house ty knew him not at all. Miss Deborah there this royal standard.—Christian

Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 10 cents per line in the reading matter, or regular rates in the advertising columns.

In addition to tariff discussion, Congress is to take up "New Federal Motor Law, Florida, spent Thursday with Mrs. W. O. with plans for uniform regulation in all the states. In view of the rapidly increasing casualties by reckless auto drivers this matter cannot be taken up too soon.

We congratulate Secretary Bryan; his lecture course has netted him $6,500, Mr. David Kidder severly burned both his which added to his regularly monthly pay hands. of $1,000 as Secretary of State and an income from his reserves of $170,000 may mother, Mrs. Roll, and Mrs. Heise of enable him to get in his winter's coal and | Elizabeth, N J. a few other necessaries.

Members of one of our political parties complain that they are not being treated fairly by the Gazette in regard to publicity. We would say in reply, that in the use of these columns we know of no difference between black man and wnite, Jew or Gentile, Heathen or Christian, but are governed by other conditions. Now, a word in regard to the facts which, undoubtedly, provoked the remarks and public discussion of the, alleged, abuse. A candidate for an office called us up by 'phone on a Monday and asked if we would take an article from him and we told him yes, if we could have it in time. On Wednesday he called us again by 'phone and asked how late we would take it, and we told him we wanted it Thursday morning; the reply was he could not get it ready for the morning but would leave it at our home in East Weymouth, Thursday noon; at 1 o'clock, p. m., it was not there, neither had it arrived at 6.30 p. m., but was left there late in the evening, which meant to us Friday morning, and we did not use it, nor can we take that kind of matter Friday mornings as the limited time we have is devoted to late and important local happenings, and now, in conclusion, we quote the following from the most able address of Senator John W. Weeks in reply to an opponent in discussing the Tariff Bill: - " How easy it is to use popular phrases in will hold an all-day meeting in the Pilgrim political resolutions, to make statements church, on Wednesday, October 1st, to if they do not have to be proven, to con- make plans for the coming fair in Novemstantly repeat clattertrap until people ber. CHAPTER VI. Freddie Ulstervelt.

THE Rodneys descended upon the Bristol at 5 o'clock, rushing down from the Nord-Bahnhof as if there was not a minute to spare. Constance pursued Katherine to her room, where they revelled in the delights of a reunion, gradually coming out of its throes as the hour for dressing approached.

"We dine early, dear," said Constance, "with supper after the opera. I must be off to dress."

"I am so eager to meet Mr. Medcroft. Is he nice?" "He's the dearest thing in the world!"

cried the other, her cheeks aglow. "I'm so glad, on Edith's account. Most of these English matches turn out abominably," commented Miss Rodney, who was twenty, very pretty and very worldly. "Oh, did I tell you that Freddie Ulstervelt is with us?" "We came across him in Berlin, and dad asked him to join us if he had nothing better to do, so he said he would. He was with us in Dresden and Prague and-don't you think he's awfully jolly?" "Ripping!" said Constance with deplorable fervor.

"How awfully English! He said he'd seen you in Paris this spring."

"Yes," said Miss Fowler, her cheeks going red suddenly. "I told him you'd asked me to be with you in June." She could have cut out her tongue for saying this, but it was too late. Katherine laughed a trifle hardly after a stift moment; then a queer light flitted in to her eyes-the light of awakened opposition. Constance was saying to herself: "She's in love with Freddie. I might have known it." Back in her brain lay the memory of Freddie's violent protestations of love, uttered during those recent days in Paris. He had threatened to throw himself into the Seine; she remembered that quite well —and also the fact that he did nothing I've never met him, but I've seen him of the sort, but had a very jolly time on the Fifth avenue stages. You do at Maxim's and sent her flowers by way of repentance. Knowing Freddie so well, it would not have surprised her in the least to find that he had become engaged to Katherine. His heart was a very flexible organ.

"Oh," said Katherine, "I believe he did say that you had mentioned us." Of herself she was asking, "I wonder If she is in love with him?"

And thus it transpired that Freddie Ulstervelt - addlepated, good looking. Inconstant Freddie, just out of college -was transformed into a bone of contention, whether he would or no.

He was of the kind who love or make love to every new girl they meet, seriously enough at the time, but easily passed over if need be. Rebuffs may have puzzled him, but they left no jagged scar. He belonged to that class which upsets the tranquillity of inexperienced maidens by whispering intensely, "Heavens, it's grand!" And he means it at the moment.

Katherine Rodney was in love with him. He belonged to a fashionable New York family of wealth, and he circumstance which, could he have felt had been a young lion at Pasadena during the winter just past. He owned automobiles and a yacht and an his complete misunderstanding of her extensive wardrobe. These notable assets had much to do with the conquest of Mrs. Rodney. She looked with favor | ing love to two girls at the same time. upon the transitory Mr. Ulstervelt, and She was never so beautiful, never so believed in her heart that he had something to do with the location of the was under the spell; he was fascinatshining sun. But of this affair more anon, as the novelists say.

Brock was presented to the Rodneys just before the party went in to dinner. He managed his eyeglass and his drawl bravely and got on swimmingly with the elder Rodneys, until Constance appeared with Katherine and Freddie Ulstervelt. It was not until that Freddie, being from New York. was almost certain to know Brock either personally or by sight. She experienced a cold chill, the distinct approach of catastrophe. Brock had just been told that young Ulstervelt of blood ran cold. He had never seen the young man, but he knew his father well. He had even dined at the mansion in Madison avenue. There was every reason, however, to suspect that Freddie knew him by sight. Even as be was planning a mode of defense in case of recognition the young man was presented. Brock's drawl was something wonderful,

"I-aw-knew your family, I'm sure -aw, quite sure," be said. "You know, of course, that I lived in your-awdelightful city for some years. Strange we never met, 'pon my soul."

"Oh, New York's a pretty big place, Mr. Medcroft," said Freddie good naturedly. He was a slight young fellow with a fresh, inquisitive face. "It's bigger than London in some ways. It's bigger upward. Say, do you know, you remind me of a fellow I knew in New York!"

"Haw, haw!" laughed Brock without grace or reason. Miss Fowler caught her breath sharply.

"Fellow named Brock. Stupid sort of chap, my mother says. I"-"Oh, dear me, Mr. Ulstervelt," cried Edith, breaking in, "you shan't say anything mean about Mr. Brock. He's my husband's best friend."

"I didn't say it, Mrs. Medcroft. It was my mother." Brock was hiding s smile behind his hand. "She knows him better than I. To tell the truth,

"It's extraordinary how many people think I look like dear old Brock," said the false Roxbury. "But, on the other hand, most people think that Brock looks like me, so what's the odds? Haw, haw! Ripping! Eh, Mr. Rodney?"

"Ripping? Ripping what? Good heavens, am I ripping anything?" gasped Mr. Rodney, who was fussy and fat and generally futile. He seemed to grow suddenly uncomfortable, as if ripping was a habit with him.

Dinner was a success. Brock shone with a refulgence that bedimmed all expectations. His wife was delighted. In all of the four years of married life Roxbury had never been so brilliant, so deliciously English (to use her own expression). Constance tingled with pride. Of late she had experienced unusual difficulty in diverting her gaze from the handsome impostor, and her thoughts were ever of him-in justification of a platonic interest, of course, no more than that. Tonight her eyes and thoughts were for him alone, a sure, would have made him wildly happy instead of inordinately furious in manner toward Freddie Ulstervelt. contracts. who had no compunction about makvivacious, never so resourceful. Brock ed; he had to look to himself carefully in order to keep his wits in the prescribed channel.

His self esteem received a severe shock at the opera. Mrs. Medcroft, with malice aforethought, insisted that Ulstervelt should take her husband's seat. As the box held but six persons, the unfortunate Brock was compelled then that it occurred to Miss Fowler to shift more or less for himself. Inwardly raging, he suavely assured the party-Freddie in particular-that he would find a seat in the body of the house and would join them during the entracte. Then he went out and sat in the foyer It was fortunate that he New York was to be of the party. His hated Wagner. Before the end of the act he was joined by Mr. Rodney, horribly bored and eager for relief. In a nearby cafe they had a whisky and soda apiece and, feeling comfortably re-enforced, returned to the opera house arm in arm. long and short, thin and fat. liberally discoursing upon the intellectuality of Herr Wagner.

"Say, you're not at all like an Englishman!" exclaimed Mr. Rodney impulsively, even gratefully. "Eh. what?" gasped Brock, replacing his eyeglass. "Oh, i say, now, 'pon my word, haw, haw!" "You've got an American sense of humor. Mederoft-that's what you have. You recognize the joke that Wagner played on the world. Pardon me for saying it. sir. but I didn't think it was in an Englishman."

"Haw, haw! Ripping, by Jove! No. no! Not you. I mean the joke. But then, you see, it's been so long since man has had time to see the point. Besides. I've lived a bit of my life in

"That accounts for it," said the tactless but sincere Mr. Rodney.

Brock glared so venomously at the eyes were sparkling, and something in her manner bespoke of bated breath.

"You are in love with my sister," was what she said to him. He blushed convincingly.

"Nonsense!" he managed to reply, but without much persuasiveness. "But you are. I'm not blind. Any one can see it. She sees it. Haven't you sense enough to hide it from her?

How do you expect to win?" "My dear Mrs.-my dear Edith, you amaze me. I'm confusion itself; but."

he went on eagerly, illogically, "do you think I could win her?" "That is not for one's wife to say."

she said demurely. "I'd be tremendously proud of you as a sister-in-law. And I'd be much obliged if you'd help me. But look at that confounded Ulstervelt! He's mak ing love to her with the whole house looking on."

"I think it might be polite if you were to ask him out for a drink," she suggested.

"But I've had one, and I never take two."

"Model husband! Then take the girls into the foyer for a stroll and a chat after the act. Don't mind me. I'm your friend."

"Do you think I've got a chance with her?" he asked with a brave effort. "You've had one wife thrust upon you, why should you expect another you are making love to me," she protested, willfully ignoring his question. He returned to the box after the second act and proposed a turn in the foyer. To his disgust, Ulstervelt appropriated Constance and left him to follow with Mrs. Rodney and Katherine. He almost hated Edith for the tantalizing smile she shot after him as he moved away, defeated.

If he was glaring luridly at the irrepressible Freddie, he was not alone in his gloom. Katherine Rodney. green with jealousy, was sending spiteful glances after her dearest friend. while Mrs. Rodney was sniffing the air as if it were laden with frost.

"Don't you think Comie is a perfect dear? I'm so fond of her," said Miss-Rodney, so sweetly that he should have detected the nether flow.

He started and pulled himself together. "Aw, yes-ripping!" He consciously adjusted his eyeglass for a asty glance about in search of the easily disturbed Mr. Rodney. Then, to Mrs. Rodney, his mind a blank after a passing glimpse of Constance and her escort: "Aw-er-a perfectly jolly opera, isn't it?"

Sales Campaigns

CUCH testimonials as the following from the J. E. SOPER OMPANY, wholesalers of grain and feed at 206 Chamber of Commerce, Boston, furnish unimpeachable testimony of the value of the telephone, especially the toll lines, in sales cam-

We quote a paragraph of a letter to the Company from this concern:

"We find that the telephone takes the place, in a large degree, of men on the road, and that our business is done in a much more satisfactory way by having a man sell our goods from the office, as he then knows everything a salesman should know concerning the quality, location and other features of the goods, whereas a man on the road does not always have his information and is frequently induced to guess it, which does not work at all."

We would not suggest this rule in every case. The advantages of face-to-face salesmanship and the magnetism of a personality, coupled with the importance of showing many lines of goods, are not to be depreciated. On standard lines, however, once the salesman's personality is established, the telephone is an efficient auxiliary, and especially helpful to the salesman in making advance appointments.

TRAVELING MEN, interested in little stories of the advantages of the telephone as a business auxiliary, are invited to send for "Modern Methods of Money-Making." In Metropolitan Boston call the Contract Department, Fort Hill 7600.

TANNERSVILLE, N.Y., June 29, 1911.

Dr. A. V. PAYNE, Pulmonol Chemical Co., 46 West 24th St., New York, N.Y. Dear Doctor :

I have seen, and any one who cares to may see, most of these cases of Tuberculosis, both here and in New York City, that have been positively cured by Pulmonol. These cases have been of all grades. My own mother was my first case. Several good physicians in New York City said they could offer us no hope. Mother still lives and has no Tuberculosis today. Pulmonol cured her.

Another lady, a patient of mine, became completely well after having a severe hemorrhage. My third case was a gentleman who came here from the city. He could not walk at that time without the aid of a cane. He is now O. K. These are some of my worst cases. I have seen at least twenty cases cured, and am using Pulmonol every day, for I know of nothing else that does for me what Pulmonol has done and is doing. R. Y. HUBBARD, M.D.

Congregational Church Notes.

The Ladies' Missionary Society will hold its October meeting in the church parlor on Friday afternoon, October 3rd, at 3 o'clock. The president, Mrs. W. H. Commons, will preside, and a paper will be read by Mrs. James Melville on "The Present Situation in Turkey." All the ladies of the parish are cordially invited

-A special business meeting of the Ladies' Social Union, connected with the Congregational church, was held in the church parlor Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. E. Leonard, the president, was in the chair, and there was a good attendance of the prominent members of the union. It was voted to contribute $100 towards the current expenses of the society and to hold five socials and suppers, the first one to be in October. It was also voted to distribute "dime cards" under the direction of Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Hoyt. There will' be a two days' sale and one special entertainment during the first week in December, of which due notice will be given.

CARD OF THANKS.

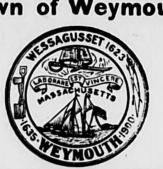

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to the many friends for the floral tributes and sympathy extended on the loss or our beloved mother.
