

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Cuneiform, on a heavily damaged and stained piece of parchment or leather. The text is arranged in approximately 25 horizontal lines, though many are partially obscured by tears, holes, and discoloration. The script is dense and appears to be a form of administrative or legal record. The parchment is dark brown with significant water damage and staining, particularly in the lower half. A small circular hole is visible on the right side, and a larger irregular tear is at the top. The bottom edge shows a white, frayed binding strip.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Georgian, on a heavily damaged and stained parchment fragment. The text is arranged in approximately 25 horizontal lines, though many are obscured by dark stains and physical damage to the material. The script is dense and cursive, characteristic of medieval Georgian manuscripts. The fragment is irregularly shaped, with significant loss of material at the bottom and right edges.