The Prince's Stake.

A Paris journal tells the following story, which, if not a fact, is an excellent fable:

I was walking one damp evening in the gardens of a German Kursaal, when my attention was attracted by several white marble statues, which seemed to be shivering in the shrill night air.

"What have you done, poor things," I said, half aloud, "to be put out there in the cold, when you ought to be sleeping comfortably in a museum?"

The answer was just trembling on their pale lips when the gardener came by and interrupted them; so I put the question to him.

The gardener was a German; consequently a philosopher.

"Ah, monsieur," he replied, "this is a world of vicissitudes. One must do what one can, not what one wishes, here below. These statues once stood in the museum of a Prince of the Germanic Confederation; they were not carved to be set out of doors to catch the rheumatism in the gardens of a Kursaal; but no one knows what his destiny may be. I myself, for example—

"You, yourself, may revive the fate of the statues, and be preserved one day in a museum; but you have not told me how they came here."

"That is just what I was going to do. Monsieur knows that all German princes, great and little, especially the latter, come to this watering place and stake their money at the roulette table. All of them are not Rothschilds, and this one I spoke of lost florin after florin, till he had nothing left. He applied to the bank.

"I am a prince," he said, "a sovereign prince, by the grace of God and the treaty of Vienna. I have an ancient castle in ruins on the top of a rock and a modern chateau on a plain."

"How many florins have you in your pocket?"

"None at all; but I have ribbons of numerous orders, double-headed eagles and silver falcons, and numerous other heraldic animals, which I have a right to display on all ceremonial occasions. I am a colonel, too, of a regiment, somewhere. I don't know exactly where it is at present. They say the Cid once raised a large sum of money on his handsome moustache, and these certainly are worth as much as the most renowned moustache in the world."

"The bank laughed, and would have laughed still, perhaps, when the prince suddenly recollected that besides the animals on his coat of arms, he had half a dozen statues in his museum, and could estimate the value of its contents: so the prince received a bag of florins on this security, and ere eight days passed they were swept in the green pit of the roulette table, which had already swallowed up the ducal treasury. The prince paid his debts like an honorable man, and that is the reason why you see the statues here."

The next day I was walking again in the garden, in the bright sunshine, between two rows of orange trees, which looked very thriving and beautiful in their green boxes, carved to imitate a Swiss cottage.

"Monsieur is admiring the orange trees," said the gardener, who was watching me through the foliage; there is another of the vicissitudes of fortune."

"Like the statues?"

"Precisely; they came from the same source. The prince was walking in this garden the day after his loss, playing with the be-starred ribbon over his shoulder, when he met the proprietor of the Kursaal.

"This is a very fine garden," he said to him, "but there is one thing wanting."

"You mean statues; but, thanks to your highness, we shall have those here."

"No, no that is an old affair. I have fifty fine orange trees, which would look very well in front of your windows."

"Fifty? they would be worth ten thousand florins."

"Any fine orange trees would be worth that; but these are not ordinary trees. They are the very ones at which Mignon was looking when she said to William Meister:

'Knows thou the land where the orange and myrtle
Are emblems of deeds that are done in their clime?'

You have heard of Mignon's song?"

"Oh, certainly; who has not? In compliment to Mignon, then, I suppose I must give five thousand florins more."

"But stay a moment; one must be honorable. I suppose I ought to tell you that I have an infallible secret, by which I can break the bank the next time I sit down to a roulette table."

"If your highness has an infallible secret, that of course, makes a difference."

"I suppose now that you will deduct five thousand florins."

"On the contrary, I will add five; that will make twenty thousand for the trees."

"The prince tried his infallible secret; and the orange trees, in consequence, came to take their place with the statues."

AN HONEST GROWL.—I am sick of politics I am sick of torchlight fizzes. I am sick of "the Prince." I am sick of men who never talk sense to women. I am sick of gloomy Pharisees, and wordy, idealless sermons and narrow creeds. I am sick of lawless Sabbatarians, and female infidels and free lovers. I am sick of unhealthy, diseased books, full of mystifications and transcendental bosh. I am sick of "chaste ribbon" and "ravishing lace." I am sick, in an age which produced a Bronte, and a Browning of the prate of men who assert that every woman should be a perfect house-keeper, and fail to add that every man should be a perfect carpenter. I am sick of women self-styled "literary" who think it a proof of genius to despise every day household duties. I am sick of schools for the manufacture of bent spines. I am sick of parents, the coffins of whose children are already being made, asking teachers to add another branch to the already suicidal pile of lessons. I am sick of overworked, ill paid female operatives. I am sick of seeing tracts distributed where soup and bread should go. I am sick of seeing noodles in high places, and intelligence and refinement sitting in inglorious ease by their own firesides. I am sick of the encouragement held out to women by the other sex to remain pretty idiots, followed by long moral essays upon the enormity of being such. I am sick of flummery and nonsense and humbug and pretension, of every kind. I am sick of this everlasting scrambling and crowding, and pushing and jostling, on the edge of the five feet of earth which all any of us can have at last, after all our pains.

Now, don't lay this growl to indigestion, for I never had it, or biliousness, for I feel as if I were just made, or long arrears of unpaid bills, because I pay as I go. No, sir—as the Episcopals have it, "all this I do steadfastly believe."—There—now I feel better.—Fanny Fern.

A PEDAGOGUE PUNISHED.—"You will please observe," said old school-teacher Lamwell, as he led us through his school, the other day, "that the boys are required to observe the utmost attention to quietness as well as discipline." We had at this moment arrived in front of several boys standing around at a water-bucket, and one had just charged his mouth with the contents of the cup while the old gentleman was stooping over to recover his pen from the floor, when another, passing along behind, snapped his fingers quick under the drinker's ear, which caused him on a sudden to eject the contents of his mouth over the pedagogue's bald pate. Standing upright, with his face and hair dripping, he shouted aloud: "Who did that?" The party unanimously cried out, "James Gunn, sir." "James Gunn what did you do that for?" Jim, appalled at the mischief he had done, muttered that it was not his fault—that Tom Owen snapped him. This changed the direction of old Lamwells wrath, and shaking his cane portentously over Owen's head, he asked: "Did you snap Gunn?" The culprit, trembling with fear, muttered, "Yes, sir, I snapped Gunn, but I didn't know that he was loaded."

WHO WANTS A SAFE PAPER?—If anybody wants to edit the Vicksburg Sentinel he may be edified by the following brief history of some of the men who have figured in that position: Dr. James Hagan took hold in 1837, had a number of street fights, fought a duet with his brother editor of the Whig, and was killed, in 1842, in a street fight by D. W. Adams. His assistant, Isaac C. Patridge died of yellow fever in 1839. Dr. J. S. Fall, another assistant, had a number of fights, in one of which he was badly wounded. James Ryan, next editor, was killed by R. E. Hammett, of the Whig. Next came Walter Hickey, who had several rows and was repeatedly wounded; he killed Dr. Maclin, and was soon after himself killed in Texas. John Lavine, another editor, was imprisoned for the violence of his articles. Mr. Jenkins, his successor was killed in the street by H. A. Crabb, who perished at the massacre of Corvoca. F. C. Jones succeeded Jenkins, but soon afterwards drowned himself.

MANURES FOR GRAPE VINES.—Strong or stimulating manure is most dangerous to the vinous property of the grape.—The general rule in wine-producing countries is to manure only with its own cuttings, or to refuse of the grape when pressed, which contains tartar, essential to the vinous property of the grape. Excessive richness of the soil, though it gives a larger crop, and the best fruit for the table, detracts from the character of the wine. There have been several remarkable instances of this fact; amongst others, the celebrated vineyard of Johannisburg, which, some fifty years since, having been richly manured, it for several years afterwards produced a grape which gave wine of an inferior character, deteriorated in quality. It took twenty years before the soil became sufficiently poor to restore the vinous quality of the grape. Soils which produce choice and rare wines are never manured with any description of fetid manure, generally applied for the purpose of fertilizing land; but wool, horn, bones, and the cuttings and refuse of the vines itself, being only used. The scientific botanist tell us that the vine only takes up from the earth carbonic acid, ammonia, etc.; practice and experience, both ancient and modern, affirm the contrary.—Florist and Fruit-est.

BOARDERS AT SARATOGA.—The first chap we met on our arrival here at Saratoga was a character. We remember him ten years ago as a scoundrel. He was attired in the most gorgeous style, and was picking his teeth on a hotel piazza with a gentle ease and quiet assurance exceedingly pleasant to behold.

At the first time we saw him, he had boarded some two months with a lady, who could not get a dollar from him. At last she thought she would see what baggage he possessed, and for that purpose visited his room. She found only an empty trunk, which was immediately claimed by another boarder. She saw she was swindled and so she made up her mind as to her course of action.

At dinner, when all the boarders were present, she thus accosted him:

"Mr. —, I must request you to leave the house, as I want your room for a paying boarder."

He did not move a muscle; he was a perfect wall of brass.

"I trust you will go to-day," continued the landlady; "I have set your baggage out in the hall."

"Baggage?" said he in surprise.

"Yes, your tooth-brush!"

He finished his dinner and left.

THE LACE-MERCHANT'S DOG.—Wonderful instances are furnished of the instinct of the canine race—the following is not the least remarkable:

A poor but industrious and scheming individual made up his mind to engage in trade. He selected the merchandise which occupied the least space, and was calculated to yield the greatest profit. He borrowed a small sum of money from a friend, and, repairing to Flanders, bought pieces of lace, which, without any danger, he smuggled into France in the following manner: He trained an active spaniel to this purpose. He caused him to be shaved, and procured for him the skin of another dog, of the same kind of hair, and of the same shape. He then rolled the lace around the body of his dog, and put over the skin of the stranger so adroitly, that it was impossible to discover the trick.

The lace thus arranged in his pedestrian contrivance, he would say to his docile messenger, "Forward, my friend." At those words the dog would start, and pass boldly through the gates, of Malines or Valenciennes, in the face of vigilant officers placed there to prevent smuggling. Having passed the bounds, he would wait for his master at a little distance in the open country. There they mutually caressed and feasted, and the merchant placed his packages in a place of security, renewing his occupation as necessity required.

Such was the success of the smuggler, that in five or six years he amassed a handsome fortune and kept his coach.—But envy often pursues the prosperous. A mischievous neighbor betrayed the lace merchant, and, notwithstanding his efforts to disguise the dog, he was suspected, watched, and discovered.

How far does the reasoning of some animals extend! Did the spies of the custom-house, expect him at one gate, he saw them at a distance, and instantly went towards another. Were the gates shut against him, he overcame every obstacle; sometimes he leaped over the wall; at others he passed secretly behind a carriage, or running between the legs of travelers, he would thus accomplish his aim. One day, however, while swimming in a stream near Malines, he was shot, and died in the water. There were then about him one thousand crowns worth of lace, the loss of which did not at all afflict the master, but he was inconsolable for the loss of his faithful dog.

ELOQUENCE AT A DISCOUNT.—"May it please the Court," said a Yankee lawyer before a Dutch Judge, the other day, "this is a case of great importance; while the American eagle, whose sleepless eye watches over the welfare of this mighty republic, whose wings extend from the Alleghanies to the rocky chain of the West, was rejoicing in his pride of place—"

"Shtop dare! shtop I say; what hes dis suit to do mit eagles? It has nothing to do mit de wild birds; it is von sheep," exclaimed the justice.

"True, your honor, but my client has rights—"

"Your client has no right to de eagle."

"Of course, but the laws of language, eh!"

"I undershtant de laws of de Shtate, and dat ish enuf for me. Confine your talk to de case."

"Well, then, my client, the defendant in this case, is charged with stealing a sheep, and—"

"Dat will do! Dat will do! Your client is charged mit shtealing a sheep, shust nine shillings. De Court vill adjourn."

A SAFE BET.—Several gentlemen were riding in a carriage on one of the Boston roads, some years ago, when the conversation turned on the Presidential election, and the changes and merits and the prospects of Webster, Fillmore, Cass and others were discussed at large.—

After some time a solemn individual, who had listened in silence, addressed the party thus:

"My friends, you're all wrong. Before the election of 1852 the world will have come to an end, and Jesus Christ will be President of the Universe!"

Up started an enthusiastic gentleman from the Granite State, who stammeringly said to the Millerite—

"S-sir, I'll b-b-et you t-ten dollars t-that New Hampshire w-won't go for him!"

A roar of laughter greeted the Second Adventist as he made his exit.

SPLENDID CHANCE.—Riding out the other day, a little fellow stepped up and asked to ride. We consented of course, and he was soon seated, and began a busy talk. We inquired as to the chestnut crop, and if he was going to gather any. His eyes brightened up a moment, replying with great earnestness;

"I know where there are six trees loaded down, the trees are very low, and the man is dead."

And one who has gathered chestnuts with the fear of the "man coming," can at once see the advantage of the location of the six second-growths above mentioned.—Ashtabula Sentinel.

ARITHMETICAL.—At what period of life does a young lady devote herself to arithmetic? When she begins to sigh for (cipher) a lover.

It is certainly a paradox that we are naturally desirous of long life, and yet unwilling to be old.

COUNTY COURT.—Next Monday, the County Court—Judge Davis—holds a session for the trial of appeal cases, civil business etc.

FUNNY.—Our friend of the Sacramento Bee, got off last week a facetious squib about Yolo county and "secession" which, after a full investigation, we are satisfied is eminently funny. The "fun" consists in the "print" of the joke, which the witty writer has succeeded in keeping entirely concealed.

TAXES.—The receipt of the revenue department of this county, exhibit the fact that almost the entire assessment of taxes for the year 1860, have been paid to Sheriff Douglas, leaving still due a smaller balance than perhaps was ever known before in any county in the State.

THE KNIGHT'S GRANT CASE.—The suit brought in the District Court by Thos. Sunderland, and against sundry settlers on his part of the Knight's Grant, has resulted in several compromises, by which some of the defendants become purchasers of the property on which the alleged trespasses were committed.

VERY GOOD.—The ball on the night of December 28th, given by Howard Deatherage, at Cacheville Hotel, is said to have been well attended and most satisfactory affair, attended by a happy set, favored with a fine evening, pretty girls and a good supper!

REJECTED.—At the official examination of applicants for the situation of school teachers, held in Cacheville, on Saturday last, we observed that two, out of some seven or eight, were rejected. As the rejections were said to have been made on the grounds of general deficiency in scholastic attainments, we are led to hope for a wholesome improvement in the quality of our teachers.

NO STAGE AGAIN.—We are again put to inconvenience by the non-arrival of the stage, on account of a little rain. Last week, owing to the rain and trying to preserve our stage driver for better weather, we (not being sugar or salt), sent an Express ourselves to Sacramento for papers, letters, etc.; and we should have done it again if Mr. O'Keefe the proprietor had not told us he was going to run regular. We wish some enterprising man would put a stage on this road, by the river which is good all times of the year, to Sacramento. The travel from here is very great but no stage is now running. We understand that the above stage goes to Cacheville, which is only six and a half miles from here.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.—A friend, well informed in the premises, informs us that our county has but one public building—the wood shed (about 8x10 not enclosed) in the public square at Cacheville, to show for the taxes collected in the last five or six years. Now that we have hard money in the treasury, we should settle our county-seat question and build our Court House, jail and public offices.—We have been "camping out" in this matter so long, that our county is becoming a sort of a by-word among our more progressive neighbors.

THE GOLDEN MONTHLY.—The Golden Monthly is the title of a new work, published in San Francisco, by Lucian Everts, Editor and Proprietor, the first number of which, we received and from the appearance and amount of reading matter, we think it ought to succeed, and will, if followed on the way it has commenced. Terms: One year in advance—$2 50.

CALIFORNIA CULTURIST.—We have received the December number of the California Culturist, which contains a variety of interesting matter and information.

1861.—E. B. Davidson, Bookseller and Stationer, Fourth street, Sacramento, has sent us a Pictorial Almanac for 1861. It contains 60 pages, and is only 25 cents.

GONE IN.—Kenovan, the pedestrian, who commenced to walk 112 consecutive hours, in San Francisco, ended, on Wednesday night last, after walking 88 hours.

THE French Railway companies have made a new regulation, whereby every passenger is weighed and charged accordingly.

Our Next Legislature.

On Monday next the chosen representatives of the people of California will meet at the Capital of the State, in the capacity of Legislators.

These annual events are looked forward to with varied emotions of interest by the constituency. Some, and they are not few, expect it to subserve their private interests and aggrandizement by obtaining lucrative positions in the service of that august body, whilst others expect to better their fortunes by means of special legislation. The former is a necessity, for each branch of the Legislature must have its corps of officers, but the latter has been in times past one of the many evils which has blighted the prosperity of our State. But the great masses of our people who look for nothing in the way of offices or private bills to replenish their depleted purses expect, and have a right to expect, wholesome legislation—laws bearing equally upon all, general and uniform on their application.

There is however another class of persons whose solicitude for the well-being of our State would lead them to make great personal sacrifices to serve her, and if they are fewer in numbers than the former they are more exalted in their aspirations, and they, too, like the former feel their dependence upon the favor and partiality of that tribunal, for it can hardly be said that the people in the recent election have manifested a preference for any particular individual for the exalted position of United States Senator.

The election of a United States Senator to succeed Dr. Gwin is one of the most difficult, as well as the most important duties devolving upon the Legislature. The election of a U. S. Senator for a full term is always an important duty, the tenure of the office necessarily renders it so. It is a long time to bear with an unfaithful servant, if he should prove to be such; hence the great importance of selecting an able, patriotic STATESMAN, one wholly devoted to the interests of California. We trust, however, that our Legislature will, in all they do, be governed by wise councils.

Homicide in San Francisco.

In the Union's dispatch, dated San Francisco, January 2d, we find the following account of the homicide.

At eleven o'clock, yesterday morning, Samuel T. Newell, late editor of the Auburn Signal, was stabbed and killed, on Sacramento street, opposite the What Cheer House, by Horace Smith, of Auburn. Smith arrived from Sacramento to Saturday night, and it seems he came here with the avowed purpose of killing Newell, whom he accused of traducing the character of his (Smith's) wife. The parties met in front of Ashim & Co's clothing store, 118 Sacramento street, and without uttering a word Smith plunged his knife, an Alison bowie blade, six inches long, into Newell's neck. Newell ran into the store after the first blow, and fell on the floor. He was pursued by Smith, who dealt another blow as his victim lay helpless on the floor. Smith quietly wiped his knife and walked to the police station, where he said he had cut a man down and desired to give himself up. Newell died in fifteen minutes after receiving the first blow. There is one wound in the neck severing several important blood vessels, and another in the right side under the shoulder blade, penetrating the cavity of the chest.

There are several rumors regarding the cause of the affair. One is that Newell said something in his paper reflecting on the character of Mrs. Smith; another that he (Newell) boasted of intimacy with her; also, that Mrs. Smith interfered to prevent a marriage between Newell and a young lady to whom he was engaged in Auburn. The first statement made public was that Newell had said Mrs. Smith was no better than a common prostitute. Smith is in the city prison. The deceased was a brother to William H. Newell, known as Deaf Newell, a printer, and formerly connected with the press of this city and latterly from Oregon.

The Coroner is now holding an inquest in the case. Witnesses testify to having seen the knife in Smith's hands; others saw him strike the blow. Newell was unarmed.

9:30 P. M.—The Coroner's Jury find that Newell came to his death by knife wounds inflicted by Horace Smith, with intention to destroy life.

SMITH'S OWN STATEMENT.

The San Francisco correspondent of the Bee says:

I have just visited Horace Smith at the county jail; found him in comfortable quarters, writing letters, and not at all agitated in reference to the homicide. He made a partial statement to me about the cause of the affray. The rest I gather from other sources.

Newell had been a visitor at Smith's house in Auburn during the past year, up to within about a month, when he reported a slanderous story in Sacramento, while Mrs. Smith was there and her husband in Auburn.

Smith was only withheld then from punishing Newell by the earnest entreaties of his wife and her friends. Smith sent word to him never to visit his house again. Subsequently Newell, he says, reported that Mrs. S. was an abandoned woman. This I understand, was a few days since. Smith, with his brother-in-law, J. H. Hardy, met Newell for the first time in front of the What Cheer House yesterday at 12 o'clock.

Smith is reported to have said, you are a lying thief, or slanderer, when Newell raised his hand to strike him, when Smith stabbed him with a bowie knife in the region of the heart, which caused his death in twenty minutes. Newell received one or two flesh cuts afterwards, but the first one caused his death.

Newell was a brother of the Newell who published the Chronicle here.

Newell was taken to the dead house, and Smith delivered himself up at the station house and was taken to the County Jail.

Serious Shooting Affray.

ANOTHER CITIZEN SHOT.—Dr. J. R. Boyce, an old resident and highly esteemed citizen of Sacramento, was shot on Tuesday morning, receiving a wound which there is great reason to fear may prove fatal. At about quarter past ten o'clock in the forenoon, as the Doctor and a man named John H. Cassidy were walking at the corner of Sixth and K streets, a man named William Tierney, discharged a revolver at Cassidy. The ball struck Boyce in the back, near the left shoulder, and passed entirely through the body. When about to fall, bystanders came to his aid and he was conveyed to his residence, on M street, near Sixth. Cassidy immediately ran down K street, on the south side, and Tierney followed, about thirty yards behind, still firing at him. Three shots were fired before the parties reached Fifth street, at which point Captain Taylor, overseer of the chain-gang, ran across Fifth street and intercepted Tierney, who asked if he was an officer. On being answered in the affirmative, he put up his pistol and accompanied Taylor to the station house.—Cassidy, after the second shot, placed his hand on his left side, and exclaimed, as he ran, "I am shot! I am shot!" The ball, we are informed passed through his clothing and grazed his skin, but did no injury. He continued to run until he reached the Railroad Exchange, at Third and K streets. Cassidy has been employed as a deck hand on the steamer Swan, one of the Red Bluff boats, and bears the reputation of being an industrious and sober hand. Tierney formerly lived in this city, but has recently been in Carson Talley. He accuses Cassidy of improper intimacy with his wife, from whom he is now separated. Mrs. Tierney now keeps a drinking saloon at the corner of Eighth and L streets. The parties are all Irish by birth. Tierney appears to have come from Washoe with the intention of killing Cassidy, as he had been inquiring after him previous to the shooting, and afterward expressed his regret that he had not killed him. The antecedents of Tierney are said to be of an unfavorable character. Whether Cassidy was aware that he was being sought for or not, we are not informed, but he appears to have been unconscious of the presence of his pursuer at the time of the shooting. No warning was given, and the shot was fired after the two men had turned and were passing down Sixth street. Cassidy, it is said, had sought Dr. Boyce, on the above occasion, for medical advice. After the victim of this foul deed had been taken to his residence, Dr. Thomas and Dr. Stillman were called to his assistance. His condition from the first was considered as critical. Tierney was taken to the Doctor's residence, at the request of the latter, to see whether he knew him or not. Neither recognized the other. Tierney expressed his deep regret at the result of the shooting, but also regretted that the ball had not struck the man whom it was designed. At a late hour last evening the condition of Dr. Boyce was regarded as extremely critical by his physicians.—Union.

The executors of the McMicken estate, in Cincinnati, charged $30,000 for extra services in the management of the property, which amounted to but $49,566 altogether; thus leaving only $18,988 after all charges were paid.

A MAN named Joseph Burnham, who removed some years since from Middletown, in Rutland county, Vermont, to Wisconsin, has recently been discovered to be an heir to an immense property in England. The estate amounts to the round sum of £22,000,000.

SALT FOR FENCE POSTS.—A correspondent of the N. Y. Journal of Agriculture set some white oak posts, about twelve inches square, thirty years ago, and on examining them the other day, he found them all sound. After setting, he bored in to each post, about three inches above the ground, with a two-inch auger, at an angle of about forty-five degrees, and filled the hole with salt and plugged it up. It took about half a pint of salt to each post. The plugs are put in the posts look as sound as when set.

FAVORS.—We are under obligations to Captain John Lewis, of the steamer Henrietta, for late papers.

Arrival of the Pony Express!

Dates to December 21st.

From the Union's Telegraphic Report.

South Carolina Convention.

St. Louis, Dec. 18th.

The South Carolina Convention assembled December 17th, at Columbia, in the midst of a panic created by the small-pox, which was intensely raging among the citizens and strangers. Many members of the Legislature had gone home in consequence.

Some of the members of the Convention were young in appearance, but they were generally middle aged. So far they are calm and unimpassioned.

Jamison was appointed temporary Chairman. An invitation was received from the Legislature to participate in the inauguration of Governor. It was laid on the table for the present.

The Convention was permanently organized on the fourth ballot, on which Jamison received 118 votes, and Orr 30; scattering, 3.

On taking the Chair, Jamison spoke of their duties as the most important which had ever devolved on the State. God only knows, said he, what will be the result of their proceedings, but he would implore God's protection for the State.

A resolution to adjourn to Charleston, in consequence of the small-pox, was discussed.

Miles opposed the motion. He said Virginia and other States would jeer at their timidity, and that the moral power of the present movement would be affected as to other sympathizing States.

Cochrane said he never would leave Columbia till the ordinance of secession was passed.

Keitt said he was ardently devoted to secession, but would urge the change of place. He never would consent to hurry through the proceedings, and gave notice that no ordinance could pass with his consent till every point was duly considered.

Finally the motion to remove to Charleston was carried by a large majority.

Resolutions were adopted inviting the Commissioners of Alabama and Mississippi to seats on the floor.

A similar motion relative to Ex-Secretary Cobb prevailed, with few dissenting voices.

Some members objected, as it would be complimenting him in a manner not according to the Commissioners.

A Convention was held in the evening on secession. The Alabama and Mississippi Commissioners were introduced and addressed the Convention. Both speeches were moderate in tone, and principally designed to show that they acted by the authority of the Governors of their States and the desire of a majority of the people.

A resolution was adopted appointing a Committee to draft an Ordinance.

Another resolution, authorizing any member to hand in a draft or scheme, was discussed.

Cheever remarked that the great aim was to prevent dissension. The first thing is to break the chain of the Union; the next thing will be to study the point of all directions.

Hayne contended that secession is simply a matter of secession of South Carolina, and that there has been sufficient expression of opinion to guide the Committee upon secession, so that all may agree unanimously. He wanted a Committee possessed of the greatest intellect.

Brady urged the separating of the work among different Committees, each having its peculiar province.

The inauguration of Governor Pickens took place before the Legislature at two o'clock. The galleries were crowded, and there were many ladies present. The Governor read his Inaugural Address.—The sentiments were decidedly firm for secession, and were warmly applauded. In the rear of the Governor, were Cobb, Ellmore, the Commissioner of Alabama, and Hooker, the Commissioner of Mississippi.

General News.

Advices from Brazos, Dec. 13th, state that meetings are being held along the Rio Grande, requesting Gov. Houston to convene the Legislature. The feeling of resistance is very strong.

The appointment of Black, as Secretary of State, is confirmed—one third of the members voting against him.

Secretary Thompson left yesterday for North Carolina. He favors secession of certain States in friendly co-operation, when non-slaveholding States refuse to give constitutional guarantees.

Different State delegations are holding meetings at Washington, for consultation.

At a meeting of all the Pennsylvania delegates except Stevens, including both Senators, Monday night, it was unanimously believed to be the opinion of the people of Pennsylvania that the constitutional rights of all sections should be respected and secured; that all laws should be faithfully and promptly executed; and that the union of the States, the Constitution and laws should be enforced in all their integrity.

The House Select Committee was in session four hours on Monday.

Caleb Cushing, whose presence was requested at Washington, was in consultation with the President yesterday morning.

It is understood that the sloop of war Brooklyn is prepared to proceed to Charleston to aid in the defense of the Government forts at a moments notice.

The order created quite a stir among the Naval men.

The Saturday Evening Journal, at Albany, was out yesterday in favor of compromise, and says: "We are almost prepared to say the Territories may be safely left to take care of themselves"—giving a reason therefor. If this suggestion is inadmissible, it proposes a division of the territory as in 1820.—Senator Seward had been three days in Albany, and it is thought the article represents Lincoln's views.

The Georgia Senate, December 17th, had an exciting debate on the bill appropriating thirty thousand dollars to arm the State. A resolution declaring the right of secession was referred.

Since the abolition raid in Jackson county, Missouri, the citizens have organized a patrol of companies of protection.

The St. Louis Volunteers arrived on Sunday from the border, and were gladly received by the citizens.

Two Days Later.

South Carolina Affairs.

St. Louis, Dec. 20th, p. m.

In the South Carolina Convention, Dec. 19th, the President read a telegram to Elmore, the Alabama Commissioner: "Tell the Convention to listen to no compromise or delay." Signed Gov. Moore. [Loud applause.]

McGrath's resolution was considered.

Miles stated that he had no idea the President would send reinforcements. In conversation, and subsequently in writing, he had been informed that the forts will not be taken, because they were necessary to our safety. There were only fifty five men at Fort Moultrie, and he, Miles, felt the necessity of being watchful, lest a few persons at Charleston might seize the fort in the night. Let us wait. Repairs will be to our advantage.

The resolution was adopted.

A resolution was introduced for a Commissioner to each slave State bearing a copy, in advance of secession, and prepare each State willing to unite with South Carolina for the adoption of a Confederacy on the basis of the present Constitution of the United States, and recommending to those uniting to elect members of the Senate and House of the new Congress, and President and Vice-President of the new Confederacy.

Feeling in Maryland.

Hardy, Commissioner from Mississippi, addressed five thousand citizens last night in the Maryland Institute, Baltimore.—He advocated the right of separate secession, and recommended secession before Lincoln's inauguration. Let the entire South join to form a compact until the rights guaranteed to them and their institutions would be respected. Afterwards they could, in a solid phalanx or separately, present their ultimatum to the North, and again unite, if practicable, with the present Constitution amended, on amicable terms. His proposition received unexpected approbation. The meeting was orderly, and attended by many of the best citizens.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent says: "Cushing is about to proceed to South Carolina with instructions from the President to make strenuous exertions to prevent secession."

Miscellaneous.

Douglas has decided to support Crittenden's proposition.

Greary, Governor of Kansas, has resigned.

The Democratic Mayor for Springfield, Massachusetts was elected.

One Day Still Later.

Latest Congressional.

South Carolina Withdrawn.

St. Louis, Dec. 21st

Another resolution was offered in the Charleston Convention for the appointment of three Commissioners to proceed to Washington, and lay the ordinance before the President, and request him to communicate the same to Congress, and treat with the Government for the delivery of the forts, etc., upon the last day of February, provided the forts in the meantime be allowed to remain as at present; also to treat and settle for the public debt and division of property.

On Dec. 20th, Ingalls reported the ordinance of secession, which declares and ordains the repeal of the ordinance of May 23d, 1778, whereby the Constitution of the States was ratified, and all Acts of Assembly to ratify amendments of the Constitution of the States.

The ordinance passed unanimously, at a quarter past one, one hundred and sixty nine members voting.

The news spread rapidly, with immense cheering.

It was ordered that the Clerk telegraph members at Washington.

Before the passage of the ordinance there was a rambling debate upon the condition in which the State would be left, in the absence of Congress. It was generally conceded that State laws would be sufficient until it could be decided what should be done.

The ordinance was ordered to be engraved on parchment, to be signed by the President and members, at half-past six o'clock in the evening, at Institute Hall.

The news produced intense excitement among the members of Congress, and for a long time confused the proceedings.

The number of Marriages, Births and Deaths in Sacramento during the year 1860, was—Marriages 201; Births 183; and Deaths 445.

$50 REWARD

TO THE PERSON WHO WILL bring back or give some information to Dr D'Heiry, at San Rafael, Marin county, about an AMERICAN MARE, stolen from his stable on the night of the 8th-7th Dec. Description of the Mare: American; bay color; all the feet white; white nose; long legs; long neck; large head—bearing her head and neck in the manner of the English racers; mane on the left side; the withers remarkably high; branded on right about sixteen hands; over six months in foal. N. B.—It is highly probable that she was sold at public auction in Sacramento city, on the 10th or 11th instant, and that the old brand has been since covered by a new one.

400 CASH Gifts of $5 each, Nos. 12 to 412,$2,000.

Total, $615,000!

Comprising, altogether, 1,601 acres of Land, 101,000 Fruit Trees, 28,000 Grape Vines, and $2,000 in Cash.

The lands upon which these Orchards are planted, are all bottom lands, and as good as can be found in the State. Apples, Peaches, Apricots, Nectarines, Pears, Plums, Figs, Quince, Black Walnut, Almond, &c., &c., will be found in these orchards in great variety and of the choicest kinds. The character of the Fruit is well known throughout the Northern and Central portions of the State.—All of the Vines and nearly all of the Fruit trees will be of age to bear a good crop the coming year. We append the following certificate for the benefit of persons not well acquainted with the value of the property:

We the undersigned, hereby certify that we are acquainted with most of the above described property and that we do not believe its value as above stated, is over estimated; J. C. Fall, W. K.
