FIRWOOD,

TRUMPINGTON ROAD,

CAMBRIDGE.

My dear Colleague,

Many thanks for your kind telegram of congratulation on my birthday, & still more for the honour you have done me in contributing so in-teresting an article to my Festschrift - a volume which I prize above any present ever made me. Apart from the extraordinary interest of the contents, I derive the greater pleasure from the fact that so many eminent scholars representing 11 different nations have contributed to it, and especially that, for the first time, perhaps, since the War, German scholars have collaborated with English, French & Belgian - Italian scholars.

That our honored Master Nöllken should have contributed is a great source of pride to me. Also that our other great Master, Goldfischer, has since passed away, together with Lyall & Seybold.

I had a wonderful day on February 7 - everyone was so kind; and the fact that not only my wife & two boys, but also my mother (83 years of age) & 3 of my sisters were able to be present, gave me a great additional pleasure.

My Persian friends also sent me an Address & some charming presents, of Which I enclose a brief account.

With renewed thanks & best

Greetings,

I remain,

Yours very sincerely,

Edward S. Browne
