February, 1910.

DEAR SIR,

The Council of the above Institute propose to hold an Exhibition of Mezzotint Engravings during the months of April, May, June, of this year.

It is desired to show examples of the Art from its invention by von Siegen in the early XVII. century, to the end of the XVIII. century, when the Art achieved its highest development.

As it is admitted that Mezzotinting, perhaps more than any other, may be claimed as a British Art, it is proposed to limit the Exhibition as far as possible to British Engravers, and only to the best and earliest states of their plates.

The following is a list of Engravers whose work it is desired to have represented :—

Beckett, Blooteling, Dean, Dickinson, Dixon, Doughty, Dunkarton, Earlom, Faber, Finlayson, Fisher, Frye, Val Green, Houston, Jones, Judkins, MacArdell, Keating, Marchi, Miller, Murphy, Pelham, Pether, Philips, Place, Prince Rupert, Sherwin, von Siegen, Simon, John Smith, J. Raphael Smith, Spilsbury, Spooner, Jan Thomas, Vaillant, James Ward, William Ward, James Watson, Thomas Watson, Watts, White, and Williams.

The Council feel that to insure the success of the Exhibition they will require the assistance and co-operation of all persons who possess, and are willing to lend for the Exhibition, examples of the work of any of the above-named Masters, and the Council would like further to inform intending lenders that they are willing to insure loans against all risks during transit and residence, and to make the necessary arrangements for collecting and returning the loans.

As it is believed that you possess examples of some of these Engravers, it will materially assist if you will kindly notify to the Curator, your willingness to lend any of your collection, and send a list of what you propose. You will, of course, understand that some of the offers made may be duplicates of others, and in such cases the Council will naturally have to exercise their discrimination.

I remain,

Yours faithfully,

WILLIAM AGNEW,
President.

INTRODUCTION

The intention of the Council in arranging the present exhibition of mezzotints has been to set forth a selection of prints showing, in accordance with available space, examples of the art from its discovery in 1642 to its development at about the end of the eighteenth century, and it is hoped possibly on some future occasion that a further exhibition of this charming reproductive process may be held, covering the time from the end of the period now represented down to the present day.

There is somewhat of a romance surrounding the invention of mezzotinting in that von Siegen, an officer in the service of William, the young Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, after having developed the discovery in 1642, kept it a profound secret for about twelve years.

The first plate he engraved was that of the portrait of the Landgrave's regent mother, the Landgravine Amelia Elizabeth, and there is existent the letter sent with impressions from this plate to the young Landgrave, wherein he mentions the discovery of his method. The following is an extract from the letter, dated $\frac{1}{2}$ August, 1642 (and is written from Amsterdam, where he had located himself, having, it is surmised, left the service of the Landgrave), and in which year he had completed this plate:—

“But as I have discovered an entirely new and surprising invention, the like of which has never been seen, I am at present only able to send you a few proofs, because from the copper on which the portrait is engraved, only a few prints can be made because of the delicacy of the work.”

During the years 1642-3 von Siegen engraved two other large plates of William III., Prince of Orange, and his wife.

After having kept his secret until 1654, von Siegen was in that year at Cologne, where he engraved his plate of “Saint Bruno kneeling in a Grotto.” From thence in the same year he went to Brussels, where he met the distinguished soldier and amateur artist, Prince Rupert, nephew of Charles I., who had received his education in Holland, and confided to him the process in all its details. So attracted was the Prince by the wonderful invention, that he mastered the technical difficulties, and when at Frankfort in 1658 completed his truly magnificent plate taken from Spagnoletto's picture of the Executioner, with drawn sword, holding aloft the head of John the Baptist. This plate, known as “The Great Executioner,” to distinguish it from a smaller replica plate of the executioner's head only, engraved by the same artist, though dissimilar in its ground work from the developed style of the later engravers, is a very large plate (No. 2), and a superb production full of vigorous artistic merit.

After returning to England, Prince Rupert explained the method of mezzotinting to John Evelyn, who in 1662 in his book upon engraving, entitled “Sculptura” (2nd ed. 1755, reprint 1906), set forth, for the first time, in English, a brief account of the process, adopting as a frontispiece the plate known as “The Little Executioner” (No. 3), kindly accorded to him by Prince Rupert for this purpose; another fine production of the amateur Prince Rupert is the plate of “The Standard Bearer.”

Baron von Fürstenberg and Jan Thomas, of Yprez, were, in these early days, also initiated into the mysteries of the mezzotint method of engraving, and Wallerant Vaillant, an artist friend of Prince Rupert, acquired the method before its introduction into England.

Having been brought to London, mezzotinting soon became established, and within about twenty years of its discovery, the title of la manière anglaise was at that time generally adopted.

William Sherwin (1669-1714) was the first English exponent, and his plate of Charles II., dated 1669 (No 18), is the earliest dated plate mezzotinted in our country; the engraver accordingly dedicated it to his teacher, Prince Rupert, who, relinquishing the art about that time and living at Windsor, devoted his skill to scientific research, including hydraulics and the preparation of gunpowder.

It may be observed that the ground-work of these early plates would appear to have been partially engraved in line or rouletted; moreover, in certain details, such as the lacework, line engraving has been adopted for accentuating the finest effects. This is only natural, as the tradition of the earlier method was not altogether to disappear immediately.

Francis Place (1647-1728) was probably in point of time the next English engraver, though his plates were not dated; he was shortly followed by Henri Gascar (1635-1701), who was born in Paris; then came Abraham Blooteling (brought to this country in 1673 by David Loggan), to whom must be credited a marked development in the laying of the ground of his plates. He produced the magnificent and almost life-size portrait plate of the Duke of Monmouth after Lely (No 10), this plate surpassing anything that had been done in mezzotint hitherto, and is characterised by considerable richness of velvety tones.

At this period Richard Thompson and Alexander Browne flourished, the latter in 1669 publishing his work "Ars Pictoria," in which he describes the "Manner or Way of Mezzotinto," and wherein he advises those who desire to learn the art and to acquire the tools, to make application to him. Much doubt has always existed as to whether these men were engravers as well as publishers, as it is known that they employed Van Somer, and possibly Vandervaart, Valck, and Verkolje to engrave some of their plates.

In 1650 Edward Luttrell, born in Dublin, from whence a renowned school emanated, to be referred to later, induced Isaac Beckett to take up the art, which he did with a success that has established his fame, and he engraved over one hundred portraits.

A contemporary of Beckett was R. Williams, who from 1680 to about 1700, reproduced portraits by Lely, Kneller, and Dahl—and as being of this period Robert White (1645-1704) claims place—thus did the art become firmly established in England.

During the reigns of Anne, George I., and George II., 1700 to 1750, there was developed a most notable school of mezzotint engravers, and foremost was John Smith, b. 1652, the favourite interpreter of Kneller, from whose paintings he engraved 138 plates. He received ample patronage, and Kneller did him the honour of painting his portrait.

John Simon, b. 1675, was considered almost the rival of John Smith, working like him under the personal guidance of Kneller; and George White, the son of Robert White, who adopted the method of etching his subject in outline before laying the mezzotint ground, worked between 1714 and 1731. John Faber, sen., took up the art in 1707, and was followed by his more gifted son, John Faber, jun., a most industrious man, who produced about 500 plates.

In 1726 Peter Pelham carried the art to America, where he engraved his plate of the "Rev. Cotton Mather."

Then arose the school of the Dublin Masters, the earliest of whom were Thomas Beard, John Brooks, and Andrew Miller. Through them and their successors the art returned to London, and advanced to a high state of perfection under the Reynolds school of portraiture, achieving results never before anticipated. More particularly to the influence of Brooks are we indebted for the work of the great Irish masters—MacArdell, Houston, Spooner, and Purcell—through whose interpretation the portraiture of that great period was made both popular and permanent. With so much sympathetic fidelity did MacArdell render the individuality of the painter that Sir Joshua is recorded to have said that when his pictures had faded away his fame would be preserved by the scholarly interpretive work of this mezzotinter, who, alas, died in his 37th year.

During the whole of the Eighteenth Century the production of plates of the highest quality was extremely prolific, and in the Reynolds and Romney period particularly the genius of the portrait painters and the mezzotinters most fortunately synchronised again; indeed, many of the latter were gifted artists, and the following names may be cited of those whose reputation has been held in the highest esteem by all who have appreciated the work of sincere and assiduous men of genius devoted to their art, viz.: Valentine Green, with his fine velvety grounds, Thomas Watson, John Raphael Smith, John Dean, Richard Earlom, J. Finlayson, W. Dickinson, William and James Ward, and others whose work is worthily represented in this exhibition.

In so limited a space it has only been possible to refer briefly to a certain number of the masters of mezzotint, and those who may be stimulated by the exhibition to still further interest should consult the works of the writers upon the subject, one of whom, the late Mr. Alfred Whitman, of the Print Department of the British Museum, has only recently been taken from us, to the great loss of all students, who were ever welcomed by him with his store of knowledge, so courteously placed at their disposal.

The technical features of mezzotinting have been clearly set forth in the opening chapter of Mr. Whitman's "Masters of Mezzotint." Until about 1640 all metal engraving was the result of lines or dots, either cut into the plate by the graver or the lozenge-shaped tool of the line engraver, scratched by the etching needle, or bitten by acid. The engraver hitherto had begun his work upon a perfectly smooth plate, his purpose being to place upon the metal by means of lines or dots the picture he required, making his lines wide and deep for the parts he intended to appear dark and full upon the printed impression.

In mezzotint engraving, however, the process is the reverse; instead of beginning his subject upon a highly polished surface his copperplate has previously been completely roughened, the entire surface having been most carefully and evenly ploughed over; in other words he has layed his "ground" thereon.

In this grounding lies the discovery made by the inventor, and improved by Bloteling, and a careful study of the impressions or prints of the various engravers will demonstrate the subtle and different characteristics of the artists who developed this important reproductive process so pre-eminently suited to portraiture.

The grounding is performed by an instrument called a "cradle" or "rocker," each stroke of which gives a dotted line, varying from about $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches to $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches in length. The plate is divided equally by parallel lines and traced out with very soft chalk. The cradle is then placed exactly between the first two lines, and is passed forward in the same direction with them, being rocked from side to side, the process being continued till every part of the plate between the lines is covered with a burr. This is repeated with respect to all the other lines till the instrument has passed over every part of the plate.

The same operation is then performed at right angles to the first series, then diagonally, and then again and again at different angles until the plate has been evenly rocked over in some sixty to a hundred different directions; after this a rich even burr will cover the plate, which if printed from would yield a perfectly deep black impression.

The plate is now ready to receive the design, usually traced thereon with chalk, and the real pictorial work of the engraver begins.

The tools he uses are called "scrapers" and "burnishers," and by these means he scrapes away the burr and burnishes those parts where the high lights are to occur, and scraping away rather less for the next highest lights; so continuing, he removes more or less of the roughened surface of the plate as the subject may require for its varying gradations of light and shade, leaving almost untouched the parts of the plate where the deepest shadows are desired. He also uses the roulette, a small wheel set into a handle, this is for re-grounding portions of the plate where the burr may have been scraped away too much, and for strengthening shadows.

It may be gathered from this brief description that in the method of mezzotinting there is absolutely nothing of the nature of a hard line, all is soft, refined, and rich toning, thus rendering re-touching by lines both harsh and objectionable. Plates when worn have been occasionally re-grounded, but this by careful comparison with earlier impressions is often quite discernible.

This in general terms is the process of mezzotint engraving, described in all its details in the books of T. H. Fielding, "The Art of Engraving" (1854); Herkomer, "Etching and Mezzotint Engraving" (1892); and John Chaloner Smith in his wonderful work of reference, "British Mezzotint Portraits" (1878-1883).

As in all other cults, there are pitfalls for the collector of these prints, to be minimised by thoughtful experience and study and the sound advice of the reliable dealing fraternity.

With regard to the preservation of mezzotints from mildew, &c., there is much to be said in favour of keeping them so that occasionally they can be aired; they should be well protected with thickish mounts to prevent rubbing, never laid down nor trimmed, and framed only when necessary, and then always to show the plate mark.

As in the case of grapes grown for show, when once the original bloom of the mezzotint has been removed, much of the joy and value are gone for ever, and no doubt the basis of the reason why margins add so much to their value is the fact that margins certainly conduce to protection.

The Council desire to record their grateful appreciation of the generous response so cheerfully accorded by all those who have placed on loan the treasures of their cabinets and their walls.

So far as the exigencies of space have permitted, the prints have been chronologically arranged; in some instances, however, this has not been possible to be maintained.

FRANK FALKNER.

CATALOGUE

LUDWIG VON SIEGEN (b. 1609, d. circa 1680)

Was born in Holland 1609, subsequently entered the service of William VI., and served in Hesse under the Landgravine. The young Landgrave of Hesse is believed to have been under the care and tuition of von Siegen. Family affairs caused von Siegen to settle at Amsterdam, where his experiments came to fruition in 1642, when he sent to his young pupil the first mezzotint, produced however, not by the rocker or cradle, but by the roulette. He kept secret for many years his method of working, imparting it in 1654 to Prince Rupert, after which time the process was practised by Continental engravers, and ultimately was developed and almost monopolised by British engravers. He produced other plates, and died after 1676.

1—Amelia Elisabetha, D.G., Hassiæ Landgravia, etc., etc. (1642)

Second State (not named, C.S. [2])

She married William, Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, in 1619, and from 1637-1650, during the minority of her son, was Acting-Regent, and governed with remarkable courage and intelligence. She died 1651.

This plate is the first mezzotint engraved. The British Museum contains three states of it—the first with date line to the right and before lacing on front of dress, the second has lacing introduced and date line in centre, the third being the same except that the date has an additional engraved figure, instead of, as usual, it being added in ink, making the date 1643.

PRINCE RUPERT (b. 1619, d. 1682)

The versatile son of Elizabeth, Queen of Bohemia, and grandson of James I., was born at Prague. In addition to being an eminent soldier, during the reign of his uncle, Charles I., and his cousin, Charles II., he was much devoted to artistic pursuits, among them being mezzotint engraving, which for a long time he was believed to have invented. He probably met the inventor, von Siegen, at Brussels, in 1654, and then ascertained the secret process, and quickly recognised its importance and value. Four years later, at Frankfort, he produced his masterpiece, "The Great Executioner," subsequently followed by a few other plates. He is buried in Henry VIIth's Chapel, Westminster.

2—[The Great Executioner] (1658) SPAGNOLETTO

State with full inscription on moulding at the bottom (Second State, C.S. [2])

Represents the executioner holding the head of John the Baptist, signed R. P. F., 1658. Called "great" to distinguish it from the smaller plate of the head only. (No. 3.)

3—[The Head of Executioner] (and copy) SPAGNOLETTO

First State (Only State, C.S. [1])

Engraved by Rupert for and published in "Sculptura," 1662, a book giving the earliest known printed description of the process of mezzotinting, written by John Evelyn, the diarist.

Several copies have been made, including this by Houston, for the 2nd edition of "Sculptura," 1755.

4—Bust of Lady (First State, C.S. No. 12 [1])

JAN THOMAS (b. 1617, d. 1672)

Was a native of Yprès, in Flanders, and a pupil of Rubens. He practised painting at Metz and Vienna, and was Court painter to the Emperor Leopold I. He was probably initiated into the secrets of mezzotinting by von Siegen or Prince Rupert at Frankfort in 1658.

5—Serenissimo Potentmo Invictissimo Principi ac Domino D. Leopoldo I., &c. (1659)

Lettered State (Only State, C.S. [1])

The son of Ferdinand III., was born 1640, and reigned from 1658 to 1705.

6—Achilles [and Cupid], &c. (1659) SIR ANTHONY VANDYCK

Lettered State (Only State, C.S. [1])

The original painting (the reverse way) was exhibited at Burlington House, 1880, and called "Herminia putting on Clorinda's Armour," and probably represents Mary Ruthven, wife of Vandyck.

WALLERANT VAILLANT (b. 1623, d. 1677)

Was born at Lille, the eldest of five artist brothers. He became a painter and etcher, probably met Prince Rupert at Frankfort in 1658, entered his service to assist him in his artistic pursuits, and came to England; practised mezzotinting, becoming the first professional worker in this method, and helping to perfect the technique of the art. He died at Amsterdam.

7—Illustrissimus Serenissimus Princeps Rupertus, &c.

Lettered State

Probably one of Vaillant's earliest plates.

8—Mrs. Vaillant and Children

State, with Engraver's name to left.

ABRAHAM BLOOTELING (b. 1634, d. 1695)

Was born in Amsterdam in 1634, became a line engraver under Cornelius Visscher, and later a mezzotinter under Fürstenberg. It is thought he came to England through David Loggan (a portrait and architectural engraver) in 1673, remaining probably about three years, during which period he scraped many important portraits after Lely and Kneller. Altogether he produced upwards of 130 plates, which did much to popularise the art among engravers and artists. It is probable he invented the cradle or rocker whereby a closer and more even texture of ground was obtained, rendering possible a more finished and velvety effect to the plate.

9—Madonna (1676)

SIR ANTHONY VANDYCK

10—James, Duke of Monmouth, &c.

SIR PETER LELY

Second State, Lettered (Only State, C.S. [1])

The illegitimate son of Charles II., born 1649, created Duke 1663, when the relationship was acknowledged, married Ann Scott, Countess of Buccleuch; served in the wars of Charles II., but on account of conspiracy was in disgrace and banished. After death of his father landed in England, headed a rebellion in the West, proclaimed King at Taunton in 1685, but defeated at Sedgemoor; was executed in the Tower the same year by order of his uncle, James II.

Grammont says that his face was extremely handsome and yet manly, neither inanimate nor effeminate. The writing attached is in the autograph of the Duke.

11 The Duke of Monmouth.

11—[James, Duke of Monmouth]

Before Letters State (not named, C.S.)

The reverse of the preceding and probably unique. Not known, though possibly from the same painting and by the same engraver as the preceding.

12—Joan de Wit raet Pensionaris van Holland, &c. J. DE BANE

Lettered State (not named, C.S.)

Born 1625, at Dort, son of Jacob de Witt. Was an active opponent of William II., Prince of Orange, and head of the Republican party, composed of the nobles and wealthier burgesses. As the Orange influence increased that of de Witt diminished, the populace becoming embittered against him, though he was a man of upright character and of marked ability. He was murdered, 1672.

13—Cornelis de Wit ruward van den Lande van purtten, &c.

J. DE BANE

Lettered State, without Engraver's name (not named, C.S.)

A Dutch statesman, born at Dort 1623, distinguished himself at Battle of Schiveringen 1652, subsequently accused of conspiracy against William II., and tortured. On his release from prison he was murdered, along with his brother John, by an infuriated mob, 1672.

14—Catharina D. G. Magnæ Britanniae, &c. SIR PETER LELY

State before Letters (First State, C.S. [2])

Was born 1638. Her father became King of Portugal in 1640. Became Queen of Charles II. in 1662, who neglected her for his mistresses. Returned to Lisbon 1693. Appointed Regent for her brother Pedro 1704. Died 1705.

FRANCIS PLACE (b. 1647, d. 1728)

Was a native of Yorkshire, and trained for the law; an amateur artist, drawing animals, still life, and portraits in crayon. One of the first Englishmen to practise mezzotint engraving, probably self-taught by studying examples by Blooteling, &c. Died at York.

15—Nathaniel Crew, Episcopus Dunelmensis

Lettered State (Second State, C.S. [2])

Son of John, 1st Baron Crew, born 1633. Bishop of Oxford 1671, and of Durham 1674; married Duke of York to Maria d'Este 1673; died 1722.

WILLIAM SHERWIN (b. before 1650, d. circa 1714)

Son of the Rector of Wallington, Herefordshire, was born at Wellington, Shropshire. He was a line engraver, and learnt mezzotinting from Prince Rupert, and was the first Englishman to practise the art. Probably his circumstances were affluent, for he married a grand-niece of General Monk, and between 1669 and his death produced but few plates.

16—Elizabeth, Duchess of Albemarle

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

The eldest daughter and co-heir of Lord Ogle, who became Duke of Newcastle 1676. She married 2nd Duke of Albemarle before his accession, and subsequently Lord Montagu, who was created Duke of Montagu in 1705. She died 1738. It is said that pride of beauty, family, and wealth affected her intellect, and Lord Montagu obtained her only by pretending to be an emperor, and always had her served kneeling, as a sovereign.

17—The Duchess of Cleveland

State before Letters (not named, C.S.)

Barbara, the daughter of William Villiers, 2nd Viscount Grandison, born 1641; married Roger Palmer 1659. A London beauty, and mistress of Charles II., having much influence with him. Created 1670 Duchess of Cleveland, being supplanted, resided in Paris for several years. Married Beau Feilding (No. 19) 1705; the same annulled 1707. She died 1709.

18—Carolus Secundus D. G. Magnæ Britanniae Francæ et Hiberniæ Rex (1669)

Lettered State (Only State, C.S. [1])

This portrait of Charles II. is the earliest dated mezzotint by an English engraver, and is dedicated to Prince Rupert.

He was born in London 1630, son of Charles I. and Henrietta Maria; took part in battles between the Cavaliers and the Roundheads; proclaimed King in Edinburgh 1649, after the execution of his father; defeated at Dunbar and routed at Worcester; escaped to the Continent, where he remained during the Commonwealth. Proclaimed King in 1660; married Catherine of Braganza (No. 14) 1662. Was often in conflict with his Parliaments. Died 1685. Six of his illegitimate children were created Dukes, including the handsome and ill-fated Duke of Monmouth (Nos. 10, 11).

ISAAC BECKETT (b. 1653, d. 1719)

Born in Kent, apprenticed to calico printing, learned mezzotinting through the Irish engraver, Edward Luttrell, in which art he acquired great skill, especially in facial delineation; was superior to any of the foreign-born mezzotinters working in England, his best work probably equalling that of Blooteling. He engraved about 100 portraits, many after Sir Godfrey Kneller; also scriptural and other subjects.

19—Robertus Feilding Aulæ Feildingensis in Com Warwici Armigr

WILLIAM WISSING

State before Letters (not named, C.S. [1])

Son of John Feilding, of Solhill, Warwickshire, born about 1651. Studied law, but better known for his extravagance in dress, for which he was usually called "Beau Feilding." Sat in Irish Parliament for Gowran 1689. Made a bigamous marriage with the Duchess of Cleveland 1705. (No. 17.) Was a rake and gambler, and a prominent figure in the gossip of the day. Died 1712.

20—Mrs. Yarborough

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

Henrietta Maria, eldest daughter of Sir Thomas Yarborough, of Snaith Hall, Yorkshire; Maid of Honour to Queens Catharine and Mary; married Sir Marmaduke Wyvill. Died 1738.

JOHN SMITH (b. 1652, d. 1742)

The son of an engraver, was born at Daventry, and studied under Van der Vaart and Isaac Beckett. He was the ablest and most prolific worker in mezzotint of his time, and whilst residing with Kneller scraped about 140 plates after portraits by this artist, in all producing upwards of 300 portraits and subject pieces. He also carried on a large business as a print seller. He died at Northampton.

21—Edward, Lord Hinchingbrooke

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State, before J. Smith, fec. (not named, C.S. [2])

Only son of 3rd Earl of Sandwich; was M.P. for Huntingdon in last two Parliaments of Queen Anne; died in the lifetime of his father, 1722. Lord Chesterfield spoke highly of his talents and accomplishments.

22—Tho. Tompion Automatonæus

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State (Second State, C.S. [3])

Was born in Bedfordshire 1639; styled the father of English watchmaking made one of the first English watches with balance spring; died 1713, buried in Westminster Abbey.

23—The Honble Mrs. Sherard

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [3])

Identity uncertain, but assuming date of print as 1699, she was probably Lucy, daughter of 2nd Lord Sherard, a liberal encourager of the fine arts. She married in 1712-3 John, 2nd Duke of Rutland, and died in 1751.

24—The Countess of Ranelagh

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

Probably Margaret, daughter of the 3rd Earl of Salisbury; was the 2nd wife of Richard Jones, only Earl of Ranelagh, out of whose Chelsea estate Ranelagh Gardens were formed. She was one of the Hampton Court beauties, and died in 1727.

25—Mrs. Conwai Hackett

JOHN RILEY

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [3])

Probably the daughter of Sir Andrew Hackett, eldest son of John, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry.

26—Madam D'Avenant

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

Probably the wife of the political economist Charles, eldest son of Shakespeare's godson, Sir William D'Avenant. The date of this print is about 1689.

GEORGE WHITE (b. circa 1671, d. 1732)

Was the son of Robert White, the line engraver; he practised portraiture in oils, crayons, and pencil, and subsequently in mezzotint. He introduced etching of outline of subject before laying the mezzotint ground.

27—Jean Baptiste Monoyer Peintre des Fleurs (1715)

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

Was born 1634, at Lille; decorated the French royal palaces; came to England 1678; painted panels at Hampton Court; died 1699.

28—Henry St. John, late Lord Viscount Bolingbroke

THOMAS MURRAY

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

Born 1678; son of Sir Henry St. John and grandson of Robert Rich, 2nd Earl of Warwick; entered Parliament supporting the Tory party; obtained official position in the government; created Viscount Bolingbroke 1712; dismissed from office on accession of George I.; impeached and name erased from Roll of Peers 1714; pardoned 1723; returning to London joined Walpole's party, which he later attacked; died 1751. He was a friend of Swift and Pope. The word late probably refers to his having been struck off the Roll of Peers.

29—[Thomas Symonds]

JOHN VANDERBANK

State with altered publication address (Second State, C.S. [2])

Said to have been a surgeon who practised near Chelsea, and first cousin to Browne Willis, the antiquary.

30—Mr. John Dryden

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

State before Letters (First State, C.S. [3])

Was born 1631; a scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; wrote poems and dramas; was appointed Poet Laureate in 1670; was buried in Westminster Abbey 1701.

JOHN SIMON (b. 1675, d. circa 1755)

Said to be of an artistic family of Charenton, in France, and came to England as a Huguenot refugee. He produced about 200 portrait plates, was a rival of John Smith, and after the difference between Smith and Sir Godfrey Kneller, he was engaged by the artist to engrave in mezzotint upwards of forty portraits. His work is usually good, and shows artistic feeling.

31—Mr. Cibber

GUISEPPE GRISONI

Lettered State (Only State, C.S. [1]).

Colley, the son of Caius Gabrielle Cibber, was born in 1671. He joined the stage in 1690, was recognised as the leading actor for eccentric characters, produced about thirty dramatic pieces, was appointed Poet Laureate in 1730, and died in 1757. He is here represented as "Lord Poppington" in his own play, "The Careless Husband," attired in the fashionable dress of his day, in the act of taking a pinch of snuff.

32—Mrs. Oldfield Decus et Deliciæ Theatri

JONATHAN RICHARDSON

First State with verses (Second State, C.S. [4])

Was the daughter of a guardsman, and born 1683. Said to have been brought forward as an actress by Farquhar, who overheard her reading a play. She excelled in both tragedy and comedy; became very popular. She was buried in Westminster Abbey in 1730.

JOHN FABER, Jun. (b. 1684, d. 1756)

The son of a miniature painter and mezzotinter, whom he accompanied from Holland in 1687. He excelled his father as a mezzotint engraver, became a rival of John Smith, under whose influence he is said to have come. He was a hard worker, and produced upwards of 400 portrait plates, including Kneller's "Kit Cat Club." His prints date from 1712 to 1756, many of them being published by himself.

Kit Cat Club

SIR GODFREY KNELLER

The complete volume of plates may be inspected on application to the attendant.

33—The Rt. Honble. Mary Viscountess Andover (1746)

State before Letters with burr (not named, C.S. [1])

Was daughter of 2nd Earl of Aylesford; born 1716; married William, son of 1st Earl of Suffolk; is frequently named in Mrs. Delany's Memoirs. She died 1803.

34—The Honble. Lady Christian Moray of Abercairnny

J. DAVISON

Lettered State (Only State, C.S. [1]) C.S. says only four copies are known.

Daughter of the 9th Earl of Eglinton; married James Moray, representative of a distinguished Perthshire family. She died 1748.

By Order,

EDWIN W. MARSHALL,

April, 1910.

Clerk to the Governors.

PETER PELHAM (b. circa 1690, d. 1751)

Of note as probably the first worker in mezzotint in New England, whence he had emigrated after producing a number of portraits in London between 1720 and 1726. He settled in Boston and became the stepfather of J. S. Copley, R.A., whose son was the first Lord Lyndhurst.

35—Mrs. Priscilla Cooper

MICHAEL DAHL

Lettered State before alterations (First State, C.S. [2])

Probably the wife or daughter of Edward Cooper, a leading print-seller of London.

36—Cottonus Matherus, &c. (1727)

PETER PELHAM

Lettered State (First State, C.S. [2])

A Nonconformist divine, the son of Increase Mather; born in Boston, New England, in 1663; was educated at Harvard; became a minister in Boston; published a remarkable book on witchcraft in 1693, and died 1728. This is believed to be the first mezzotint executed in America.

GEORGE LUMLEY (b. circa 1699, d. circa 1768)

He was an amateur, practised as a solicitor at York; he was a friend of Francis Place, and probably learned from him how to scrape a plate. Facts of his life are little known. He died about 1768.

37—The Lady Mary Fenwick, Relict of Sir John Fenwick, Batt., of Northumberland

MICHAEL DAHL

Lettered State, only copy known (First State, C.S. [3])

Eldest daughter of Charles Howard (created Earl of Carlisle 1661). Sir John Fenwick, by an act of attainder, was beheaded in 1696 without trial, for conspiracy in favour of James II. Lady Mary made unavailing efforts to save his life. She died 1708, and is buried in York Minster.

ANDREW MILLER (b. d. 1763)

Was born in London, of Scottish parents, and is said to have been taught his art by Faber. He removed to Dublin, possibly on the invitation of Brooks, about 1740, where he engraved and published most of his plates. His death was accelerated by intemperance. His prints are very scarce.

38—Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of Eng. Scot. and Ireland, and John Lambert, Lieutenant-General of his Forces

MICHAEL FORD

Lettered State before alteration of painter's address (First State, one known, C.S. [2])

Born 1599; matriculated Cambridge; entered Parliament as member for Huntingdon 1628; took leading part in the conflict between the Commons and the King, and was a conspicuous general in the Civil War; dissolved the Long Parliament 1652; installed as Protector 1653; died in 1658, and buried in Westminster Abbey, but disinterred in 1661 and hung on the gallows at Tyburn.

John Lambert was born 1619; became a commander in the Parliamentary Army, taking part in the battles of Dunbar and Worcester; was a leading spirit of the Council which offered the post of Protector to Cromwell; after the accession of Charles II. tried for high treason and condemned to death; imprisoned from 1664 till his death 1683.

The original painting is in the possession of the Greg family, long connected with Manchester.

39—[Princess Sobieski] (1737) FRANCESCO C. TREVISANI

Lettered State (Only State, C.S. [1])

Maria Clementina, granddaughter of John, Duke of Poland; married 1719 James Stuart (the Old Pretender), son of James II., who neglected her. She was mother of Prince Charles Edward Stuart (the Young Pretender), and died

39a—George Frederick Handel (1749) THOMAS HUDSON

Lettered State (Only State, one known, C.S. [1])

Was born in Saxony in 1685; studied at Halle; was in Italy about two years; came to England 1710, and two years later finally settled here; composed operas and oratorios—the “Messiah,” composed in twenty-three days, first heard at Dublin 1741. He died 1759, and is buried in Westminster Abbey.

J. SYMPSON (b. , d.)

Details of his life are not known. The plate was issued by him, and may be his work.

40—Oliver Cromwell SIR PETER LELY

Lettered State before alteration of publication address (First State, three known, C.S. [3])

See note to No. 38.

THOMAS FRYE (b. 1710, d. 1764)

Was born in Dublin, and became successively portrait painter, manufacturer of “Bow” china, and during the last two years of his life a mezzotinter. His style differed entirely from that of other engravers: he engraved life-size heads, many of them portraits secured by himself in a surreptitious manner at the theatre or other public places, and they show great beauty and skill in execution.

41—Portrait of a Man (1760) THOMAS FRYE

(Only State, C.S. No. 14 [1])

One of the series of life-sized heads, most of whom have not been identified.

42—[Thomas Frye] (1760) THOMAS FRYE.

(Only State, C.S. [1])

43—Her Most Excellent Majesty Queen Charlotte of Great Britain, &c. (1762) THOMAS FRYE

Lettered State before Boydell's address (First State, C.S. [2])

Charlotte Sophia, born 1744, 2nd daughter of the Duke of Mecklenburgh Strelitz, married 1761. Companion plate to No. 141.

44—Portrait of a Lady (1762) THOMAS FRYE

(Only State, C.S. [1])

See note to No. 41.

JAMES MacARDELL (b. circa 1729, d. 1765)

Born in Dublin, he was associated with John Brooks and Andrew Miller, and came to London with the former and his fellow pupil Houston, in 1746. Of the illustrious group of Irishmen, he was the most reliable, and his talents attracted the notice of Sir Joshua Reynolds, of whose portraits MacArdell engraved 38, with so great success that the painter used the memorable words, "By this man I shall be immortalised." He also engraved about 25 plates after Hudson, the master of Sir Joshua. He died at the early age of 37, after producing nearly 200 plates by various artists, many of which are marked by fine technical qualities. He was buried at Hampstead.

- 45—Boy Spinning a Top (1756) PHILIP MERCIER
State before Letters.
- 46—Girl with Cup and Ball (1756) PHILIP MERCIER
State before Letters.
- 47—Mr. Pine WILLIAM HOGARTH
State before Letters (not named), C.S. [3]
John Pine was born in 1690; practised as an engraver and print publisher in St. Martin's Lane; became Bluemantle Pursuivant in the College of Arms 1743. He was a friend of Hogarth, who introduced him into his picture, the "Gate of Calais," as a fat friar. He died 1756.
- 48—[Mrs. Sandby] (1756) FRANCIS COTES, R.A.
State before Letters (First State, C.S. [2])
Elizabeth Venables, 2nd wife of Thomas Sandby, R.A. She died 1782. There is, however, according to C.S., some doubt as to identity.
- 49—Jacob, son of the Honble. William Bouverie, &c. (1757)
SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.
Lettered (second) State (First State, C.S. [1])
Grandson of 1st Viscount Folkestone; succeeded in 1776 as 2nd Earl Radnor; died 1828.
- 50—[Mrs. Bastard] SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.
State before Letters (not named), C.S. [2]
Anne, daughter of Thomas Worsley, of Ovingham, Yorks.; married William Bastard, of Kitley, Devon; died 1765.
- 51—Mr. Garrick in Hamlet (1754) BENJAMIN WILSON
Lettered State, touched proof (Only State, C.S. [1])
See note to No. 190; also Nos. 51, 77, 83.
- 52—Mary Dutchess of Ancaster (1757) THOMAS HUDSON
Before Inscription, edge uncleaned, brilliant. (First State, C.S. [3])
See note to No. 149. Attired in a rich hooped satin gown, a masquerade costume she wore at Ranelagh, which is seen in the distance.
- 53—Time clipping the Wings of Love SIR ANTHONY VANDYCK
State before Inscription, in brown ink, probably second of three States.
- 54—Lord John and Lord Bernard Stuart, sons of Esme Duke of Lenox SIR ANTHONY VANDYCK
First finished State before Inscription, brilliant (Second State, C.S. [4])
Sons of the 3rd Duke. They supported the cause of Charles I. Lord John on the left, was born 1621, and killed at the battle of Alresford 1644. Lord Bernard (born 1622), who had been created Earl of Lichfield, was slain at the battle of Rowton Heath 1645. Both are buried in Christ Church, Oxford.

55—Rubens with his Wife and Child SIR PETER PAUL RUBENS

Before Inscription, edge uncleaned (First State, C.S. [2])

Was born at Siegen, Westphalia, in 1577, the son of a lawyer and alderman of Antwerp, where he studied under Verhaecht and van Noort, and subsequently in Italy. He came to England in 1630, was knighted by Charles I., and died in 1640, being buried in the Church of St. Jacques, Antwerp. The lady is his second wife, Helena Forman or Fourment, niece of his first wife, Isabella Brant.

56—Maria Countess of Waldegrave (1762)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before title (Second State, C.S. [3])

See note to No. 71.

57—The Right Honourable Lady Mary Campbell, &c.

ALLAN RAMSAY

S'ate before Inscription, uncleaned edge. (First State, C.S. [2])

Youngest daughter of John Duke of Argyll and Greenwich; born 1726, married 1747 to Viscount Coke. She is said to have been treated with cruelty by her husband. Often alluded to by Mrs. Delaney and Walpole in their correspondence. He dedicated to her his "Castle of Otranto," and said "she might be happy and respected, but will always be miserable from the vanity of her views and her passion for the extraordinary." She is pictured with the theorbo or base lute, but "as she had no ear for music her acquaintances suffered terribly from her performances." She died in 1811. She is referred to in the "Biography of Thomas William Coke, of Holkham, 1st. Earl of Leicester.

58—Lady Fenoulet

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before Letters edge uncleaned (Second State, C.S. [4]). Probably the second State described by C.S., "with names erased to counterfeit proof," of which, however, in this copy there is no evidence.

Anne or Nancy Day was born of humble parentage, near Plymouth. Through Lord Edgecumbe she came to London, and after May, 1761, became the 2nd wife of Peter Fenoulet, who was knighted that year. They separated, and she lived in Calais with her two daughters.

59—Charles Saunders, Esqr. Vice Adml. of the Blue Squadron, &c.

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before Inscription, edge uncleaned (First State, C.S. [4])

Born about 1713, served in the Navy under Anson and Hawke, M.P. for Plymouth; led the fleet and co-operated with General Wolfe in capture of Quebec. Died in 1775, and interred in Westminster Abbey.

60—[Frances Anne Greville and Brother] (1762)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before Inscription (First State, C.S. [2])

Only daughter of Fulke Greville, of Wilbury, Wilts.; married 1766 John Crew, Cheshire, created Baron Crewe in 1806. She was a well-known society leader, and an active partisan on the side of Burke, Fox, and Sheridan, a favourite toast being "Buff and blue and Mrs. Crewe." She died 1818. She had six brothers, this is probably William, who entered the navy, and died 1837. (No. 184.)

61—Ghismonda weeping over the Heart of Guiscardo

ANTONIO A. DA CORREGGIO

(Second State before Inscription [2])

57 Viscountess Coke.

57 Viscountess Coke.

57 Viscountess Coke.

62—Lady Grammont

SIR PETER LELY

State before Inscription (First State, C.S. [3])

One of the fourteen famous "Windsor Beauties"; was a granddaughter of the 1st Earl of Abercorn; born in 1641. In 1663 she married Philibert, Comte de Grammont. Her brother, in his memoirs of her husband, speaks of her beauty and intelligence, and Lely, who never wearied of painting her portrait, declared it to be his best work. She died in 1708. Probably here pictured as St. Catherine.

63—Lady Middelton

SIR PETER LELY

Lettered State (Second State, C.S. [2]) Four states are known; this is the third.

Mrs. Jane Myddelton, born 1645, daughter of Sir Robert Needham; married in 1660 Charles Myddelton, of Ruabon. A famous court beauty and of some literary attainment. Evelyn told Pepys that "in painting, the beautiful Mrs. Myddelton is rare." Probably represented as Pomona.

RICHARD HOUSTON (b. 1722, d. 1775)

A fellow pupil with MacArdell, under Brookes; was born in Dublin, and coming to London about 1746, found scope for his natural gifts. He produced about 160 plates, many of delicate and refined quality, others bold and vigorous, after Reynolds, Zoffany, Hoare, &c., and subject plates after Rembrandt. Intemperance restricted his labour, and made him dependent upon the print publishers of his time.

The copied Rupert's head of the "Executioner" in 1755, for the 2nd ed. of "Sculptura" (No. 3).

65—[Miss Harriet Powell] (1771) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Scratched Letters State (First State, C.S. [2])

Actress and singer, in the character of Leonora in the opera "Padlock." She married Kenneth Mackenzie, who was created successively Viscount Fortrose, and in 1771 Earl of Seaforth.

66—Caroline Dutchess of Marlborough, with Lady Caroline Spencer, her Daughter (1769)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Scratched Letters State (First State, C.S. [2])

Born in 1743, the only daughter of 4th Duke of Bedford; one of the train bearers at Queen Charlotte's coronation; married 3rd Duke of Marlborough in 1762, and died at Blenheim 1811. Her daughter was born in 1763, and married in 1792 the 2nd Viscount Clifden. She died at Blenheim 1813. James Watson engraved a similar print (No. 126).

67—[The Syndics] (1775)

REMBRANDT

EDWARD FISHER (b. 1730, d. about 1785)

Was born in Ireland, and is one of the small group of Irish mezzotinters. He was at first a hatter, but learning to scrape—probably under his countryman, MacArdell, became sufficiently expert to draw from Sir Joshua Reynolds the remark that he was "injudiciously exact." He produced between 1758 and 1781 about 70 portrait plates, one of his best known being "Garrick between Tragedy and Comedy."

74—The Right Honble. Lady Elizabeth Lee, &c. SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

77—[Garrick between Tragedy and Comedy] (1762)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [3])

The great tragedian is smirking in indecision as he is drawn hither and thither by the geniuses of Tragedy and Comedy, who are contending for his possession (Nos. 51, 83, 109). The female figures may be portraits, but they have not been identified.

78—Hope Nursing Love (1771) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Lettered State (Second State, C.S. [3])

This picture of maternity is believed to be a portrait of a Miss Morris, who died on the day the painting was first exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1769.

79—Lady Sarah Bunbury (1766) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [2])

The daughter of 2nd Duke of Richmond, born 1745; a bridesmaid to Queen Charlotte; married 1762 Sir Thomas C. Bunbury; divorced 1781; married same year the Hon. George Napier; was mother of Sir Charles Napier, of the Indian Service, and Sir William Napier, general, and historian of the Peninsula War. She died 1826.

80—Elizabeth Keppel, &c. (1761) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Letters (Second State, C.S. [5])

Was born 1739; 2nd daughter of Earl of Albemarle; in 1761 was a bridesmaid of Queen Charlotte, in which character the artist painted her. She married in 1764 Francis, Marquis of Tavistock (No. 120), and died in 1768, about eighteen months after the accidental death of her husband. Her sons were the 5th and 6th Dukes of Bedford (see No. 104). She is decorating with wreaths of flowers a statue of Hymen.

JOHN FINLAYSON (b. 1730, d. 1776)

But few details of his life are known. He engraved about 30 portraits bearing dates between 1765 and 1773; many of these have merit. He was awarded premiums by the Society of Arts in 1764 for an enamel, and in 1773 for the mezzotint portrait of Lord Romney. His most beautiful plate is the refined and charming "Duchess of Argyle," after Caroline Read. He also engraved after Sir Joshua, and produced theatrical plates after Zoffany.

81—The Right Honble. Elizth. Lady Melbourne (1771)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before name of person (First State, C.S. [2])

Born 1753; only daughter of Sir Ralph Milbanke, of Halnaby, Co. York; married in 1769 Sir Peniston Lambe, who was made Lord Melbourne 1770. She died in 1818. "The rise of the family was due to her brilliant qualities." Her son was premier (1834-41) at the accession of Queen Victoria. Her daughter was wife of Lord Palmerston.

JOHN GOTTFRIED HAID (b. 1730, d. 1776)

A member of a family of mezzotint engravers, was born at Wurtemberg, and came to England on the invitation of John Boydell, who published his prints between 1764 and 1766, including a few portraits after Zoffany and Reynolds, and subject plates after Rembrandt. He died in Germany.

86—The Musician (1764) ANTONIO AMOROSO

State before Title (not named, C.S. [1])

VALENTINE GREEN (b. 1739, d. 1813)

One of the most able and industrious mezzotint engravers, was born at Salford, near Evesham, in 1739. It is said he was for two years in the office of the Town Clerk of Evesham, and subsequently became a pupil of Robert Hancock, potter and mezzotint engraver, of Worcester. The year MacArdell died, 1765, Green arrived in London, where his work became popular and successful; his first dated plate is 1767. In 1775 he was appointed engraver to the king. During his 40 working years he produced about 400 plates, after Reynolds, West, Hoppner, Romney, Abbott, Cotes, &c., many of which are characterised by delicacy of grounding and refinement of touch, rendering them liable to rapid deterioration. He became keeper of the British Institute, and died in London.

100—A Philosopher showing an Experiment on the Air Pump (1769)

JOSEPH WRIGHT, A.R.A. (of Derby)

Scratched Letters State before Title (First State, C.S. [2])

The artist is said when in Italy to have seen Vesuvius in eruption by night, and was so impressed by the sight that fire and candle-light subjects became favourite themes. Green was thus afforded the opportunity of showing how mezzotint was capable of reproducing extremes of light and shadow. The same may also be said of Pether Earlom and Watson. The figures are probably portraits, the family of a Mr. Williams, of Derby, being suggested. Air is being admitted into a receiver, in which is a parrot that has fallen to the bottom in consequence of the exhaust of air. The original picture is in the National Gallery.

101—Sir William Chambers, K.P.S., &c. (1780)

THOMAS FRYE

Lettered State (Second State, C.S. [2])

Companion to No. 43.

ROBERT DUNKARTON (b. 1744, d. circa 1816)

Was born in London, and a pupil of Pether. He practised first as a portrait painter, and from 1770-1811 produced about 50 large mezzotints. Subsequently he was engaged on five of Turner's "Liber Studiorum" plates.

142—Miss Horneck (1778)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before Title (First State, C.S. [2])

Mary, daughter of Captain Horneck (No. 191.). The original painting was left to her by Sir Joshua at his death.

THOMAS BLACKMORE (b. circa 1740, d. circa 1780)

Believed to have been born in London, where he practised mezzotint engraving between 1769-1771. But little is known of his life. He engraved plates after Reynolds, Vandyck, Hals, and other Flemish artists.

143—Ann James (as a Madonna) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Inscription (First State, C.S. [2])

The daughter of Edward Goddard, of Hartham, Co. Wilts. ; married Admiral James, in the Indian Service, 1st Baronet. She was a friend of Laurence Sterne, who probably met Eliza of the "Sentimental Journey" at her house. She died 1798.

JOHN DIXON (b. about 1740, d. about 1780)

Is one of the noted group of Irish mezzotinters. Was born in Ireland, and became a silver engraver in Dublin, arrived in London about 1765, and in about 10 years produced upwards of 40 plates after Reynolds, Hudson, Dance, Zoffany, &c., which are examples of good drawing and richness of tone, and so deeply scraped as to allow a large number of impressions to be taken before serious depreciation of the copper. Notice the use of dry point in the fur and coat of the Duke of Leinster plate. He died at Kensington.

144—Henry Duke of Buccleugh, &c. (1771)

THOMAS GAINSBOROUGH, R.A.

State before Title and Motto in Arms (First State, C.S. [2])

JONES JOHN (b. circa 1745, d. 1797)

Was born about 1745, but probably did little engraving until 30 years of age. His son George became a R.A., and painted battle pieces. This engraver scraped about 30 plates after Reynolds, and about 20 after Romney, and in each case only three are portraits of ladies, which may suggest that his style was not considered sufficiently refined for the rendering of female features. His stronger manner found scope in portraits of men, of which he scraped upwards of 70. He also worked in stipple. The British Museum contains an almost complete collection of his plates.

163—The Right Honourable Charles James Fox (1784)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Open Letters State (First State C.S. [2])

Third son of 1st Baron Holland; born 1743; was a great Whig statesman and orator, the political rival of William Pitt, and by his outspokenness was often in opposition to the Crown. Conducted a remarkable election in Westminster in 1784. Died in 1806.

164—[Fanny Kemble] (1786)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

 Probably a grandson of James Paine, the architect.

WILLIAM DOUGHTY (b. , d. 1782)

Was a native of York, and in 1775 was introduced by the Rev. W. Mason to Sir Joshua Reynolds, in whose house as a pupil he remained about four years. His work is very limited in quantity, nearly all being interpretive of portraits by Sir Joshua, and dated 1779. The following year he married, and left for India; the vessel in which he sailed being captured by the Spanish Squadron, he was taken to Lisbon, where he died.

- 211—The Honble. Augustus Keppel, Admiral of the Blue, &c.
 (1779) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.
Scratched Letters State (First State, C.S. [2])

The 2nd son of 2nd Earl of Albemarle; was born in 1725; he entered the navy and accompanied Anson on a voyage round the world in 1740; Admiral of the Fleet in 1778; court-marshalled for his conduct in operations off Brest in 1779 and acquitted; created Viscount in 1782, and died in 1786.

212—Samuel Johnson, LL.D. SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Scratched Letters State (Second State, C.S. [5])

Was born at Lichfield, 1709, the son of a bookseller; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; became usher at Market Bosworth Grammar School, and subsequently made literature his profession, publishing his "English Dictionary" in 1755. He was a friend and intimate of Goldsmith, Garrick, Richardson, Reynolds, Burke, and of most of the leading politicians and members of the literary and artistic circles of his time. He was a noted lexicographer and controversialist. Probably the finest biography in the English language is the "Life of Johnson," by James Boswell (No. 173). He died in 1784, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

213—The Revd. Willm. Mason, M.A. (1779) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

218—[Miss Jacob] (1762) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [2])

It is uncertain who the lady is. The Society of Arts granted a premium for this engraving in 1761.

ISAAC JEHNER (b. 1750, d. after 1806)

Son of a German gunsmith who introduced silver plating into England, was born in Westminster. By a series of accidents he was dwarfed and deformed, was apprenticed to an engraver and for a time was an assistant to William Pether. He painted portraits in oil, water colours, and crayons, and practised in Exeter, Plymouth, Bristol and London.

219—William Henry Cavendish Bentinck, Marquis of Titchfield, son of His Grace the Duke of Portland (1777)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Letters (not named, C.S. [2]). The Scratched Letters State is dated April 1st, the ordinary Lettered State May 1st.

Was born in 1768, succeeded as 4th Duke 1809, and died in 1854.

ELIZABETH JUDKINS (b. , d. after 1814)

Was sister-in-law and probably a pupil of James Watson and companion of his daughter Caroline, who was an artist in stipple and mixed engraving. Her productions, only numbering eight or nine, are well-drawn and possess great merit; they were issued between 1770 and 1775.

220—Mrs. Abington (1772) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Scratched Letters State (First State, C.S. [2])

Frances Barton was born in London in 1731, and was successively flower seller, street singer, domestic servant, and coopmaid; appeared with success at Drury Lane when 24. Her Shakesporean rôles were Portia, Beatrice, Olivia, and Ophelia, and she was the original representative of Lady Teazle. She is celebrated in comedy as Mrs. Siddons in tragedy. She married her music master, James Abington, and died in 1815. (No. 125.)

JOSIAH BOYDELL (b. 1752, d. 1817)

Was born near Hawarden, Flintshire. He early shewed a love for the fine arts, and was adopted by his uncle Alderman John Boyde, the print publisher, with whom he became partner and subsequently his successor. He practised painting, and was a pupil of Earlom for mezzotinting, and besides portraits scraped a few subject pictures. He died near Shepperton, Middlesex.

221—Regnier Hansloe and Wife (1781) REMBRANDT

Scratched Letters State (First State, C.S. [2])

A Mennonite preacher of Amsterdam, who was born in 1592. The original painting was done in 1641, and in the same year Rembrandt made an etching of the portrait.

JOHN YOUNG (b. 1755, d. 1825)

Was a pupil of J. Raphael Smith whom he succeeded as mezzotint engraver to the Prince of Wales. He mezzotinted about 20 plates after Hoppner, which are excellent for the rendering of the features. He died in London.

- 224—The Right Honble. George Canning, Secretary of State for the Foreign Department (1808) JOHN HOPPNER, R.A.

State with Title in Open Letters (First State, C.S. [2])

Was the son of a barrister, and born 1770; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; early showed great talent; entered Parliament and took office in Pitt's administration, occupying many posts; became Premier and Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1827; died same year.

THOMAS PARK (b. 1759, d. 1835)

An antiquary and bibliographer of note, was brought up as an engraver; he practised the art for but a few years, producing little work, and he finally abandoned it about 1797 for the study of literature and antiquities. He had a unique knowledge of poetical literature and biography.

- 225—Miss Penelope Boothby (1789) SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

Scratched Letters State with Open Letters Title (First State, C.S. [2])

On the monument by Sir Thomas Banks in Ashbourne Church is inscribed: "To Penelope, only child of Sir Brooke and Dame Susannah Boothby, born April 11, 1785, died March 13, 1791. She was in form and intellect most exquisite. The unfortunate parents ventured their all on this frail bark, and the wreck was total."

FRANCIS HAWARD (b. 1759, d. 1797)

Was a student at the Royal Academy, and became an Associate Engraver in 1783. He produced but little in mezzotint, and during his later years his work was almost entirely in stipple. He died in Lambeth.

 JOHN HOPPNER, R.A.
State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [4])
 Sir Thomas, who was married in 1743 to Sarah, daughter of Judge Rhett, of South Carolina, had a large family; the two represented are said to be Marianne and Amelia.
- 271—William Cobbett, Esqr., &c. (1812) J. RAPHAEL SMITH
State before any Letters, attributed to J. R. Smith and W. Ward, but does not correspond with any print in the British Museum, and is not recorded by Mrs. Frankau.
 Born at Farnham, Surrey, 1762; was self taught; served as a soldier; prosecuted for libel 1797; an active journalist in 1801, and three years later he wrote in the Radical interest with directness and vigour; in 1812 was under sentence of two years' imprisonment, seven years' sureties, and one thousand pounds fine to the King for writing and publishing about the flogging of English militiamen; first M.P. for Oldham 1832; he wrote on grammar, economics, and other subjects; and died 1835.
- 272—The Birth of an Heir (1799) W. R. BIGG, R.A.
The only and Lettered State.
 Companion to No. 273.
- 273—Christening the Heir (1799) W. R. BIGG, R.A.
Lettered State, with Title Letters filled in [2].
- 274—A Vegetable Market (1803) JAMES WARD, R.A.
Probably Engraver's Proof, Mrs. Frankau only names a Lettered State.
- 275—Travellers (1790) GEORGE MORLAND
One State, dated February, 1791, is recorded by Mrs. Frankau; this copy is an Unrecorded State, with Open Letters Title, and dated November 27th, 1790.
- 276—Cottagers (1790) GEORGE MORLAND
State with Open Letters Title, and Date, November 27th, 1790. Mrs. Frankau names a state without the Title and one with Letters of Title filled in; the latter is dated February, 1791.

JAMES WARD, R.A. (b. 1769, d. 1859)

Was born in London, became the pupil of J. R. Smith, and later of his elder brother, William Ward. He excelled as the interpreter of Hoppner, and made plates after paintings by his brother-in-law, George Morland, with great success, but after a few years he abandoned mezzotinting and became eminent as an animal painter. He was elected R.A. in 1811. He died at Cheshunt. During his lifetime he presented a large collection of his prints, including progress proofs and other states, to the British Museum.

- 277—[Mrs. Hibbert] JOHN HOPPNER, R.A.
Margins cut off (First State, C.S. [2])
 The eldest daughter of Philip Fonnereau, and wife of George Herbert, who was born in Manchester 1757, a West India merchant and Alderman in London, and M.P. for Seaford 1806-12. He was a collector of books, prints, and drawings; he sold his library in 1829, the same occupying 42 days, and died 1837.

278—[Mrs. Michael Angelo Taylor as Miranda]

JOHN HOPPNER, R.A.

Finished Engraver's Proof (not named, C.S.)

This plate is excessively rare, and is usually attributed to William Ward, and no copy with perfect inscription is known. The late Mr. Alfred Whitman, of the British Museum, has conclusively proved from a copy with the upper portion of the inscription remaining, that the inscription read: "Engraved by James Ward."

Frances Ann, daughter of Sir Harry Vane, 1st Baronet. Her husband, a well-known politician, was one of the committee of management for the impeachment of Warren Hastings.

279—Lieut. General Sir Robert Laurie, Bart., &c.

WILLIAM OWEN, R.A.

State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [2])

Of Maxwelltown, 5th Baronet; died 1804. The baronetcy became extinct on the death of his son, 1848.

280—The Mother's Bribe (1801)

JAMES WARD, R.A.

Lettered State; engraver's progress proofs are in the British Museum.

On a copy in the British Museum, Ward has written in pencil "The Temptation to be Washed." It is said that William Say commenced the plate and Ward completed it. The original picture was exhibited in 1808. The standing lady is Mrs. Morland.

281—[Portrait of the Engraver] (1835)

JOHN JACKSON, R.A.

Touched Proof. Probably a private plate, which never had any lettering. On a print in the possession of Mrs. E. M. Ward, his granddaughter, in the autograph of the engraver is written in pencil: "Published by V. MacDonald, 7, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, June, 1835."

John Jackson married as his second wife Matilda Louisa, the eldest daughter of the engraver.

282—A Poultry Market (1803)

JAMES WARD, R.A.

Lettered (Third) State.

283—The Centurion Cornelius (1800)

REMBRANDT

Lettered State. Four States are known later than Engraver's Proofs.

His granddaughter, Mrs. E. M. Ward, says he always regarded this as his best plate. The painting is also known as "The Unmerciful Servant."

284—The Clean Face Rewarded (1801)

JAMES WARD, R.A.

Lettered State; several engraver's progress proofs are in the British Museum.

The lady seated in the chair is Mrs. George Morland.

285—Sir William Forbes, Bart., of Pitsligo, Edinburgh (1800)

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, P.R.A.

State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [3])

Born 1739, 5th Baronet 1743, became an eminent banker; member of Johnson's literary club, and friend of Garrick and Burke; died 1806.

JAMES WALKER (b. 1748, d. 1808)

Was the son of a captain in the merchant service, when fifteen became a pupil of Valentine Green, published prints between 1778-1783, going the following year to St. Petersburg as Court engraver, returned to England 1802, and died in 1808.

278 Miranda.

286—Mr. Eyles Irwin (1780)

GEORGE ROMNEY

State before any Letters (First State, C.S. [2])

He was born in Calcutta in 1748, of Irish parents, held situations under the East India Service, and published in 1780 "Adventures in a Voyage up the Red Sea." He died 1817. The written title is in Walpole's autograph.

HENRY HUDSON (b. , d.)

Of the details of his life there are very few; he worked between 1782-1793.

287—[John Henniker]

GEORGE ROMNEY

State before any Letters (not named, C.S. [1])

He was born in 1752; when 51 succeeded as 2nd Lord Henniker; M.P. for Rutland and Stamford; died 1821.

GEORGE CLINT, A.R.A.

Was born in London in 1770; was a house painter; learned mezzotint engraving from Edward Bell; became a successful portrait painter; he excelled in theatrical groups; elected A.R.A. 1821, died 1854.

288—Miss Wilmot

JOHN HOPPNER, R.A.

State before Title

289—The Right Honble. William Pitt, &c. (1806)

JOHN HOPPNER, R.A.

Open Letters State

Was born 1759, the 2nd son of 1st Earl of Chatham; called to the Bar 1780; was Chancellor of the Exchequer 1782, and Prime Minister when 25, supporting the King and the Lords; formed a coalition of Continental Powers against France 1793; introduced the Income Tax; procured the Act of Union of Ireland and England 1800; disappointed by the failure of much of his foreign policy; his death in 1806 was caused through the Battle of Austerlitz, his last words being, "Oh, my country, how I leave my country!" He was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Engraver not known.

290—Portrait of a Young Man

REMBRANDT

State before any Letters.
