INTRODUCTORY

AN UNWRITTEN law lays upon the publisher of a city directory the duty of making an estimate as to the population of his city with each successive issue of the book. If he failed to do so, it would be assumed, contrary to the usually accepted adage, that "no news" was "bad news," and that there had been a failure on the part of the city to properly progress. This is not the case on the part of Racine, however, which has kept up the same steady rate of progress which has characterized the city during the past fifteen years. In the last directory there were 15,495 names. In the current issue there are, excluding the names of copartnerships, corporations and deceased persons, 16,180 names, representing an increase during the period under review of 4.4 per cent, the population being estimated at 35,000 in the last directory. This rate of increase would make the present population of Racine 36,500. Nor is the estimate of population reached by this method greatly at variance with that which would be shown by the United States Bureau of the Census. Following the rate laid down by the Bureau, the population of Racine on June 1st, 1906, would be estimated at 33,956—a ratio of gain so nearly in accord with that shown by the directory as to be practically identical therewith.

Again the publisher would call attention to the fact that the area of Oshkosh is nearly double, and that of LaCrosse more than double that of Racine. To properly maintain her place no comparative growth in the National census (which is after all, the final arbiter and that upon which the outside world bases its judgment) Racine should take steps to include within its corporate limits the settled area immediately contiguous thereto, and which is properly a part of its life and its business.

The NEWS makes a specialty of giving you the local happenings. This is delivered at your door for 35c per month.

By an arrangement with the Chicago Journal Company, THE RACINE NEWS and Chicago Journal are jointly delivered at your home for 55c per month.

The Chicago Journal has recently passed into new hands and has been made a twelve-page paper, second to no other in the metropolis of the West. In politics it is independent. The full service of the Associated Press is used and its foreign news comes by cable—not manufactured at home. The miscellaneous department furnishes a page of reading specially interesting to maids and matrons. It is the right kind of a paper for your homes.
