PREFACE.

HAVING already, in a Paper read at the Lincoln (1880) Congress of the Royal Archæological Institute, explained the circumstances under which the labour of collecting material for the following pages was commenced, I need not repeat them here.

It is, however, due to the Rev. J. T. Fowler, F.S.A., to again say that without the inducement held out to me by him, in the placing at my disposal his valuable collection of notes, sketches and casts, I should, probably, not have attempted a work involving so much labour, and calling for so much patience and perseverance.

During the prosecution of my enquiries I had no reason to regret my decision to do my best to complete what Mr. Fowler began, and so to place on record as full an account as possible of the Campanology of Lincolnshire, the interest of which is becoming every year less, as the ancient bells gradually, from various causes, disappear.

For I have received from very many of the clergy and laity of the County information often obtained with much difficulty, and, I may add from all to whom I applied—where nothing more was, or could be given,—uniform courtesy.

My thanks are due, and are heartily tendered to the Rev. J. T. Fowler, F.S.A., and to Mr. Jerram for placing their collections, illustrative of the Lincolnshire Bells, at my disposal; to J. J. Creswell, Esq., and again to the Rev. J. T. Fowler, F.S.A., and through him to some unknown friends, for very careful and exact drawings of many Bellfounders' stamps to illustrate this volume; to J. R. Daniel Tyssen, Esq., F.S.A., W. Amherst Tyssen Amherst, Esq., M.P., F.S.A., and to Ll. Jewitt, Esq., F.S.A., for the use of wood blocks; to the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln for permission to make extracts from their muniments, and to the Rev. Canon Wickenden for very courteously and efficiently making searches for me, and for directing and superintending the transcriber employed; to W. P. W. Phillimore, Esq., for help most kindly given in the Public Record Office, London, (where Mr. Vincent rendered me careful and valuable professional services); to the Rev. W. G. Dimock Fletcher, for (as on former occasions) kindly searching, and making extracts, for me in the Bodleian Library, Oxford; to Mr. Justin Simpson for giving much time amongst, and making extracts from, the Records belonging to the different Parishes, and to the Municipality, of Stamford; and to the Rev. Reginald H. C. Fitz-Herbert, W. H. Jones, Esq., and other gentlemen, who made long journies, and spent many hours amongst dusty and musty Parish Papers, preserved in Church chests, in searching—sometimes with the most meagre result to cheer them—for information about the bells hanging over their heads.

And, whilst I append to this Preface a list of the ladies and gentlemen to whom I am specially indebted, and to whom I here specially offer my thanks, for Rubbings or Casts taken from the bells of the parishes placed opposite to their names, I beg all others who have aided me in a variety of ways, by procuring measurements of their bells, sending me notes on their "Uses," hunting up Traditions, searching the Registers and other Records of their parishes, &c., &c., to accept my best thanks for their valuable assistance so freely and ungrudgingly given.

CHURCH BELLS.

BELLS do not appear to have been introduced into the Christian Church until the fifth century. Prior to that date the Early Christians, so soon as they were able to meet publicly without fear, used, like the Jews of old,* trumpets as a summons to prayer and praise. S. Ephrem (circa A.D. 370) further mentions the Signum—a clapper or tablet—as the call then used to Holy Communion.† The earliest Christian writer who refers to bells is thought to be Saint Jerome, who in the Regula Monachorum (circa A.D. 422) mentions their use as a call to matins, &c.‡ Paulinus, bishop of Nola, in Campania (A.D. 400), has been generally credited with their invention,§ but inasmuch as there is extant an epistle from him to Severus, in which he minutely describes his church, but makes no mention of either tower or bells, we must consider he was ignorant, at least at that time, of their use,* From this tradition, however, we have the mediæval Latin name, Nola, for a small hand-bell, and Campana for the larger bell hanging in the church tower or turret. Church Bells are also called Signa in mediæval documents.

It is not proposed—as being foreign to this work—to attempt a description of the Nola or Tintinnabulum, as the early portable hand-bell was called. Several of these, of great antiquity, are still extant in Ireland, North Wales, and Scotland. Some of them are very elaborately ornamented, and are accompanied by covers of exquisite workmanship. They are frequently formed of a sheet of metal hammered into shape, and rivetted at the side. There does not appear to be any clue as to the precise original use of these curious bells, which in many instances were, until recently, held in high reverence, and even in superstitious dread, by the ignorant peasantry. Some antiquaries think they are relics of the early founders of Christianity in these Islands, and have been, as such, carefully preserved in Religious Houses founded at the time by the saints themselves.†

* The Bell, by Rev. Alfred Gatty, p. 13. The Rev. H. T. Ellacombe in his Bells of the Church, p. 338, gives an engraving of an ancient bell “supposed to have been invented or adopted by Paulinus, circa 420, for church purposes.”

† A very full and profusely illustrated account of these bells will be found in The Bells of the Church, a Tome lately put forth by my venerable friend The Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, F.S.A. In the year 1833 Dr. Petrie read before the Royal Irish Academy an Essay on the Ancient Consecrated Bells of Ireland. This Essay has never been published, but interesting extracts are given in Stokes' Life of George Petrie, LL.D., pp. 277-280.

Pope Sabinian (A.D. 604) having ordered the hours to be sounded on the bells,* is thought by others to have introduced the use of the Campanæ or Signa, as the large bells were called, into churches. He, however, more probably found bells in partial use, and recognizing their beauty and value, encouraged their general adoption, as it is soon after his time that we read of their use in this country. They are mentioned in the Ordo Romanus about that date, as being used to announce Tierce, Mass, and Processions, and S. Owen in the life of S. Eloy (circa A.D. 650) speaks of the Campana.†

Legend tells of S. Columba hearing the midnight bell which called the brethren to matins in his church in Iona, and of his hurrying thither with feeble steps, and there dying before the altar, on June the 9th, A.D. 597. It is, however, nearly a century later before we meet with an authentic record of the church bell as being in use in this country. Bede mentions the existence of one at Streatonshalch (Whitby) in the year 680, which was used to awake, and to call the nuns to prayer.‡ The second excerpt of Egbert, issued about the year 750, commands every priest, at the proper hours, to sound the bells of his church, and then to go through the sacred offices of God. In the year 816 the Canons of Wulfred gave directions as to the sounding of the Signum in every church upon the death of a bishop.§ In the tenth century we trace the existence of

The building of churches, and the founding of bells, were much encouraged at that time by a decree which provided that a Thane's rank might be obtained by a Saxon churl or franklin if he were rich enough to possess about five hundred acres of land, and had a church with a bell tower on his estate.† About that time too, if we may trust Ingulph, we find a ring of bells at Croyland Abbey in this county, which will be more particularly described hereafter. From Ingulph's remarks we may infer that single bells, if not rings, were then well known in this country. Neither were the abbots of Croyland the only ecclesiastics of that period whose names are handed down to us as founders of bells. S. Dunstan, "the chief of monks," an expert worker in metals, cast a bell, which for many ages after his death hung in Canterbury Cathedral; two bells cast under his direction were at Abingdon, where also were other two the work of its founder S. Æthelwold.‡ In the year A.D. 1035 King Canute gave two bells, amongst other rich gifts, to Winchester Cathedral, and in the same century gifts of pairs of bells were made to Southwell and to Beverley, as well as to Stow S. Mary in this county. S. Dunstan also drew up Rules for the ringing of the Bells, as did Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury.* It will thus be seen that bells were well known to the Anglo-Saxon Church; and our word bell is said to be derived from the Saxon bellan, to roar or bellow, so Chaucer "as loud as belleth wind in hell."† So too there is every reason for believing that at the Norman Conquest the art of bellfounding was well understood, and carried to great perfection in this country: the law of Curfew could not have been carried into effect if bells had not then been in general use. The grand old Norman—if not Saxon—towers of our churches (witness Brigstock and Brixworth in Northamptonshire) clearly point to the large and heavy bells which they were built to contain.

The first Englishman who followed bellfounding as a trade at present known by name, was Roger de Ropeforde of Paignton, who, in 1284, was employed to make four bells for the north tower of Exeter Cathedral,‡ and about the same time Michael de Lichfield, bellfounder, was plying gave in kind:—"Metal for the bell. They answer for 180 pounds of brass received as gifts, as in pots, platters, basons, lavers, kettles, brass mortars, and mill-pots. Also for 425 pounds received from one old bell. Also, for 40 pounds of brass, received by purchase. Also, for 896 pounds of copper received by purchase. Also, for 320 pounds of tin received by purchase.

‡ Ellacombe's Bells of Exeter Cathedral, p. 3. See also Notes and Queries, 5th s. iii., p. 77, for an interesting account of the casting of a bell in the same year (1284). An endorsement on the parchment upon which this account is written shows not only the constituent parts of the bell-metal, but also proves the fact that those who could not subscribe to the cost in money,

"Sum 1861 pounds, of which there has been melted in making the new bell 1781 pounds; and there are 80 pounds remaining over."

his craft in that city.* It is doubtful whether Fergus of Boston—circa 1100—who will be mentioned hereafter, cast large bells.

In the thirteenth century we meet with constant mention of bells as of things not in the least extraordinary or rare: indeed Matthew Paris writes as if, at least, every church of note, possessed one bell or more: † and in what are supposed to be the earliest complete lists of the necessary furniture of an English Parish Church contained in the decrees of Walter Grey, Archbishop of York, 1216-1255, and of Robert Winchelsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, 1293-1313, are found—in the former—“campanæ magnæ cum chordis suis,” and—in the latter—“magnæ campanæ campanilis & cordæ ad easdem.” ‡

In the middle ages, when roads were bad, and locomotion difficult, bells were frequently cast within the precincts of Religious Houses, and in churchyards, the clergy or monks standing round, reciting prayers and chanting psalms. An instance of this occurred at S. Albans in the early part of the fourteenth century when the great bell called “Amphibalus,” being broken, was recast in the hall of the sacristy.§ During excavations in the churchyard of Scalford, Leicestershire, some years ago, indications of the former existence of a furnace for the casting of the church bells there were discovered, and a mass of bell-metal was found, which had clearly been in a state of fusion on the spot; and a similar discovery was made a few years ago in the churchyard of Empingham, Rutland. Until quite recently the bellfounders occasionally acted in the same manner. "Great Tom" of Lincoln was cast in the minster yard in 1610; and the great bell of Canterbury was cast in the cathedral yard in 1762.* We also find instances (at Kirby Malzeard, Yorkshire, and Haddenham, in the Isle of Ely,) where a furnace was erected, and bells recast within the walls of the church itself.† The founders, too, sometimes itinerated with the implements of their craft to a central spot, where they set up their furnace, and did what business they could with the neighbourhood around. This was done at Winterton, in this county, by Daniel Hedderly, of Bawtry, in 1734; and by Henry Penn, of Peterborough, at Horncastle in 1717; Henry Bagley (formerly of Chacombe, Northamptonshire), then of Witney, Oxon, also says, in an advertisement issued in 1732, that he would if desired "cast any Ring or Rings of Bells in the town [to which] they belong."

It may be well to state here that the composition of bell-metal may be roughly said to be one portion of tin to three of copper. The popular belief that silver entered into the composition of the metal of our ancient bells, and that it is to its presence they are indebted for the beauty and purity of their tone is a great error. It was a custom to cast a few coins into the furnace, but silver in any appreciable quantity would tend to injure, and not to improve, the tone. Age, no doubt, which changes the colour and roughens the surface of a bell, also improves in some manner—it has been suggested that it is by a very gradual process of oxidation—the character of its tone.

After the bell was cast, and was made ready for its high and airy chamber, it was set apart for its future use by a solemn ceremonial, and by the recitation of an Office which has been variously termed the Benediction, the Consecration, and the Baptism of the Bell. The use of this Office, if not coeval with the introduction of the church bell, is certainly of great antiquity. “It appears from a Pontifical preserved in the British Museum (Cottonian MS. Vespasian D. i. p. 127) that the service commenced with the recital of the Litany, and that whilst the choir sang the antiphon Asperges me, the psalm Miserere and psalm 145, with the five following psalms, and the antiphon In civitate Domini clare sonant, the bell about to be blessed was washed with holy water, wiped with a towel, and anointed by the bishop with the holy oil.”* The Pontifical of Egbert, Archbishop of York, and other early Office books, have similar Services.

The De Benedictione Signi vel Campanæ of the more modern Roman Pontifical enjoins the same ceremonies interspersed with prayers, psalms, and antiphons. The bell is washed by the bishop with water, into which salt has previously been cast ; it is then dried by his attendants with clean linen ; the bishop next dips the thumb of his right hand in the holy oil for the sick, and makes the sign of the cross on the top of the bell, he then anoints the bell again both with the holy oil for the sick and with chrism, saying the words :—

“ Sancti + ficetur, et conse + cretur, Domine signum istud : in nomine Pa + tris et Fi + lii, et Spiritús + Sancti : in honorem Sancti N. Pax tibi.”

after which the inside of the bell is censed.*

This Office bore a close resemblance to that of Holy Baptism, both in the ceremonial used, and in the giving of a name to the bell. That was probably the reason why Charlemagne issued, in the year 789, an express injunction against the baptism of bells. Learned liturgical writers of the Roman Church maintain that the baptism of bells was not in ancient times, and is not now, as used by them, such as confers remission of sins—Southey quaintly observes “the original sin of a bell would be a flaw in the metal, or a defect in the tone, neither of which the priest undertakes to remove”—but the bells are thereby set apart from all secular uses, and blessed or consecrated ; and the hope is that (in accordance with the prayers offered) by their sound the powers of demons may be restrained, and the sources of storm, tempest, and contagion, kept away.* Whilst this no doubt is quite true, it must, nevertheless, be evident that the ceremony did frequently, in mediæval times, surpass that of a benediction, and, by an addition of other ceremonies to those enjoined in the Pontificals just quoted, bore so close a resemblance to baptism, as to present, at least to the eyes of the vulgar, a too close and irreverent resemblance to that Holy Sacrament. Le Sueur, an old French writer, shows this to have been the case. He says "that the imposition of the name, the godfathers and godmothers, the aspersion with holy-water, the unction, and the solemn consecration in the names of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, exceed in ceremonial splendour what is common at baptism, in order to make the blessing of bells more highly regarded by the people. Real baptism," he remarks, "may be administered by all kinds of persons, and the rite is simple, but in what is done to the bells there is much pomp. The service is long, the ceremonies are numerous, the sponsors are persons of quality, and the most considerable priest in the place, or even a bishop or archbishop officiates."† That this was the case in England,

* Lawrence Beyerlink, Canon of Antwerp, &c., &c., in his "Select Sermons of various Subjects" (Cologne 1627) says:—"Hence the custom of sponsors is free from all impiety, although the Roman Pontifical orders no such thing. For why cannot special persons be appointed to have care of the bell and contribute to its expenses. . . . A name is given to a bell, not as if it were a living thing, but just as names are given to gates, harbours, and fortifications, or rather it should not so much be said that a name is given to it, as that it is consecrated in honour of some saint whose name afterwards continues with it." Quoted in Bells of the Church, p. 93.

as well as in France, we learn from a curious entry made by the churchwardens of S. Lawrence, Reading, in their Accounts for the year 1499:—

s. d.

“ Itm. payed for haloweng of the grete bell namyd Harry vj. viij.
 And mem. that Sir Willm. Symys, Richard Clech and maistres Smyth beyng godfaders and godmoder at the consecracyon of the same bell, and beryng all o<sup>r</sup> costs to the suffrygan.”*

This custom of blessing bells before raising them to their place in the church tower points to the origin of bell inscriptions; the earliest inscriptions being simply the name of the saint placed upon the bell when it was cast, and ratified at its consecration.† There is a singular proof of this in an unique inscription on a bell at Crostwight, Norfolk:—

ASLAK JOH'ES JOH'EM ME NOI'AVIT

John Aslak being clearly the godfather at the benediction or baptism of the bell.‡

It may here be worth noting that by a Commission from William, Bishop of Lincoln, dated the 21st of April, 1501, his suffragan, “Thomas Bishop Achaden,” was empowered to consecrate moveable and fixed altars, bells, &c., &c., in tion: indeed some ancient bells have no inscription at all.

the Archdeaonries of Lincoln, Stow, Leicester, and Huntingdon.*

When the mediæval form of benediction was done away with in this country at the Reformation, English churchmen, unfortunately, were not furnished with any form of dedication to supply its place. Consequently, the people in getting rid of the superstitious rite of their fathers, substituted, upon the advent of a new bell, or ring of bells, † indecorous conviviality similar to that which is described by White of Selborne, who tells us that when new bells were brought to his parish in 1735, the event was celebrated by fixing the treble bottom upwards, and filling it with punch. It is a matter for thankfulness that this profane "christening" is becoming a thing of the past, and that the church is again receiving bells within her towers with a dedication service, sanctioned and used by her bishops, which is joyous and reverent in tone, and calculated to give all, clergy and people, a fitting impression of the uses to which the Bells of the Church are intended to be put. After such a dedication they can scarcely be used, as they frequently have been in times past, upon most improper occasions—occasions when things had been enacted completely opposed to the honour of God, and utterly alien to the teaching of the church, whose fast and festival the bells are to mark, and whose summons to prayer and praise they are day by day to sound.

+ A bell is spoken of by ringers in the feminine gender; a set of bells is properly called "a ring;" a performance upon them "a peal."

It is now time to turn to the bell itself, and to see what it has to say in elucidation of its past history. To do this we must ascend to the bell chamber in the church tower, or to the bell turret on the roof. This is not always, by any means, an easy, pleasant, or even a safe, thing to do. Some of the stone staircases in our church towers are so much worn that only a scant and precarious foothold is left, and some of the long ladders by which the bells are reached are almost perpendicular, and, occasionally, so decaying with age, as to render a climb up them a proceeding requiring great care and some nerve. The floor of the bell chamber, too, is occasionally found rotten and covered with filth. Once up, however, the difficulty or danger attending the ascent is forgotten; the ancient bells, so often heard, never, perhaps, before seen, are looked upon with reverence, almost with awe. We think of the many changes which have taken place in all around—many of which they have noted with their solemn tolls or their joyous peals—since they were first placed there. Our reverie, however, is broken by the cold wind rushing through the louvre boards in the windows, so we hasten to complete our work—take our “rubbing” or our “squeeze,” give one hasty glance through the openings at the grand peeps of the surrounding country, so well obtained in our elevated position, and then descend with greater ease, and with much less trepidation, than we ascended.

The earliest bells do not generally tell us anything as to the date when, or the locality in which, they were cast. They usually bear nothing more than the names of the saints in whose honour they were dedicated. Upon the tenor, or largest, bell was frequently placed the name of the patron saint of the church; upon the smaller ones, perhaps, the names of the saints whose altars were formerly in the church below, or who were the patrons of ancient Guilds or Confraternities in the parish.* We shall see that the ancient bells at Croyland Abbey bore names; and from an ancient Roll at Ely we learn that when they cast four new bells for the Cathedral in the year 1346-7 they gave them the names of Jesus, John, Mary, and Walsyngham.† Bells of this class (though not necessarily of this early date) are found in this county. * Inscriptions are usually placed upon the shoulder of the bell: on old bells they are sometimes found nearer the canons.

† Church Bells of Cambridgeshire, p. 6.

A few early dated English bells have, however, been discovered. One (supposed to be the oldest dated bell in the kingdom) is at S. Chad's Church, Claughton, Lancashire, and is dated 1296, thus:—

+ ANNO DNI · M · CC · NONO · VI ·

the letter V being reversed.

At Cold Ashby, Northamptonshire, there hangs an interesting bell dated 1317; and in this county two richly ornamented bells, dated 1423, are at South Somercotes, and another pair, cast eight years later, are still in existence at Somerby, near Brigg.

These early inscriptions are usually in stately Gothic capital letters, and in Latin—the language of the mediæval church.

We soon meet with a slight extension of the inscriptions such as—to quote Lincolnshire examples:—

at Claxby S. Mary:

+ I·S·T·A · C·A·M·P·A·N·A · F·I·E
I·N · H·O·N·O·R·E · S·A·N·C·T·I

+ M·A·R·I·A · M·A·T·E·R · D·E·I
E·S·T · N·O·M·E·N · M·E·U·M

at Whitton.

Bells cast in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries though undated, have generally founders' marks, initial crosses, and other means of recognition by which they can be classified, and, in many cases, assigned to their respective dates and foundries. These trade marks, taken by themselves, are, however, by no means infallible guides as to the date of the bell upon which they are found; for as foundries often went on for generations, and even for centuries, so the marks and stamps were, no doubt, handed down from one founder to another, and so were used for a long period. They also not unfrequently passed from one foundry to another.

On bells of this date, and on to the period of the Reformation, we frequently find the invocation "Ora pro nobis" added to the name of the saint, thus:—

+ S̄CA MARGARETA ORA PRO

as at Enderby Bag, and

+ OMNES SANCTI ORATE PRO

as at Laughton.

These invocations were taken from the Litany; and many of the other inscriptions found on ancient bells in this and other counties doubtless owe their origin to the various Offices of the mediæval church. Very many have, in whole or in part, the angelic salutation:—

and many have, as will be seen hereafter, inscriptions in rhyming verse, often of a precatory character.

Occasionally we find figures of the Blessed Virgin and Child, of men and of angels on bells of this date. Examples of such are found in Leicestershire and Northamptonshire. Figures of the Virgin and Child are upon bells at Haxey and Wellingore in this county.

English inscriptions, though rare as early as the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, were sometimes used. At Long Sutton, near Odiham, Hants, and at East Dean, near Chichester, are bells inscribed:—

HELP MARI QUOD ROGER OF

that is, Help Mary quoth, or saith, Roger of Kirkby, who was vicar 1401—1412.* On the 3rd bell at S. Chad's Lichfield is

+ OUR LADI MARI S[A]UETH AL

+ IESV : FOR : VI : MODIR : SAKE :
SAVE : AL : VE : SAVLS : THAT
: ME : GART : MAKE : AMEN.

at Laceby:—

+ MARY : OF HAWARBY : OF VS : HAVE : MERCY

and (though somewhat later) at Semperingham:—

+ BE NOT OVER BUSIE.

The founder's name, too, occasionally appears, as at Bicker, North Elkington, Sutterton, and Scawby; and the donor's as at Dunsby, Saltfleetby S. Clement, and at Somerby near Brigg, all in this county.

At the date of which we are now speaking there was no such thing known as change-ringing: and, indeed it would seem that neither ringing "rounds" nor chiming in "tune" were possible in the great majority of our churches. In the Returns of the Commissioners for taking lists of the ornaments of the churches in the Hundred of Framland, Leicestershire, in 6 Edward VI. certain churches are mentioned as possessing "bells of a corde" or "bells of one ryng," meaning, I suppose, that the notes of these bells were in musical sequence, and Stow, in describing S. Bartholomew's Church in Smithfield, says, "in the bell tower six Belles in a tune." In the existing Returns from Lincolnshire parishes, Claxby S. Mary and Harrington are each described as possessing "ij bells of one Reinge." The other churches are noted, simply, as possessing a certain number of bells, unfit, apparently, for musical chiming or ringing, but quite adequate to the custom of the time. That custom, probably, was in ordinary churches to have in addition to its own, or parish, bell, a bell for the Angelus, and one for each of the several altars which were usually found there dedicated to different saints, and which was sounded when mass was about being said at its particular altar. At Ludlow in addition to the fore bell, second bell, third bell, second tenor, and great bell, they possessed "our Lady belle," "First mass-bell." and "the gild belle."* Even now one bell is all that is required by the Rubric and (as now followed) by the Canons to be provided, of necessity, in churches at the charge of the parish. There is, however, no doubt that all the bells, notwithstanding their being unfitted for musical ringing or chiming, were used for Divine Service on Sundays. We find the Bell-master at Loughborough, Leicestershire, in the time of Edward VI. or earlier, was obliged "to help to reng to sarvys if ned be." The custom in larger churches where the canonical hours were kept will be referred to hereafter. Towards the close of the sixteenth century care was sometimes taken when bells were recast to have them "in tune." An instance of this occurred at Loughborough, Leicestershire, in 1586, when the churchwardens paid fourteenpence "to John Wever for his tow dayes chardges when he went to Nottingham for them that came to prove the tune of ye bells:" and an earlier instance appears to be pointed to by the churchwardens of S. Mary-at-Hill, who, in the year 1510, paid eightpence for "wyne and pers" consumed by four men and "the clarks of Seynt Anthonys" who went to "see whey' Smythes bell wer Tewnabill or not."

The decay of Gothic art, however, followed by the Reformation, introduced many changes in connection with bells, as it did with other "ornaments" of the church. The stately Gothic capital, and the quaint small "black letter," gradually gave place to clumsy Roman letters for the inscriptions. The beautiful initial cross, also, gradually disappeared. Figures of saint or angel were discarded. English, although it did not supplant Latin, gained a full share of use on the bells. Ancient Inscriptions were sometimes erased, and the old forms were dropped, at first to give place to mottos of a reverent character, which soon, however, drifted, in many instances, into doggerel rhyme—stupid, frivolous, and thoroughly out of place, or into a bare list of names of vicar and churchwardens. Dates, in Arabic numerals, now appear on every bell; and founders' names abound. Specimens of all these will be found on the Bells of this county hereinafter described.

Sometimes eighteenth century bells bear the names of their donors, or commemorate some event of national interest, but bell inscriptions (with some praiseworthy exceptions) after the middle of the seventeenth century afford little interest. With the revival of Gothic art, and a clearer perception of the fitness of things, it is pleasant to note that our new church bells are frequently cast with inscriptions and devices befitting their position and their use.

Very little can be told about the large bells of the Religious Houses in Lincolnshire before their Dissolution:

a diligent search through the "Ministers' Accounts," "Suppression Papers," and other manuscripts in the Public Record Office has only yielded a very brief valuation of the lead and bells of nineteen Houses out of the large number formerly existing in the county. In the second year of Edward the Sixth's reign a Commission was issued to enquire into the quantity and value of church furniture and ornaments throughout England, and to forbid their sale or misappropriation. The following is a copy of the Certificate under that Commission for the greater portion of Lincolnshire. It is dated the 10th of April, 1549, and addressed to the Lords of the Privy Council:—

church goods, to the different churches, since the Inventories of 1549 were made. A new appraised list was drawn up, and the goods therein mentioned were committed to the safe keeping of the Churchwardens and Curate of the parish. A few of these Inventories, dated 19th August, 6 Edward VI., for parishes in the Deaneries of Hill, Nos. 1 and 2, in this county, are preserved amongst the Land Revenue Records in the Public Record Office, and will be quoted from hereafter when the bells in those parishes are described. At the bottom of each Inventory is a statement like the following, which is from the Inventory for Ashby Puerorum:—

Again, in January 1553, a third Commission was issued, under which the Commissioners had power and authority to “collect and bring together all and singuler redye money plate and Juelles certyfyed by our Commyssioners aforesaid [i.e. under the previous Commission] to remayne in any church, chapell, Guild, Brothered, Fraternitye or company in any shire Countye or place within this our Realme of England.” This Commission, which is a long one, directed one or two chalices to be left out of the confiscated plate for use in every cathedral or collegiate church, and one chalice for every small parish church or chapel where chalices were remaining. It next provided for the sale or distribution of the other “ornaments and ymplements” of the churches, and with regard to the bells directed:—

And also to sell or cause to be sold to our use by weight all parcells or peces of metall except the metall of greatt bell, saunse bells, in every of the said churches or chapells.*

This order as to the bells has generally been understood to direct the sale of all the large bells with the exception of the largest, or tenor, in each ring. What was meant, I think, was not the confiscation of all excepting one bell, but that all broken bells—“peces of metall”—and bells, other than the parish church bells proper, were to be sold, and the proceeds remitted to the king’s exchequer: this view is borne out by the fact, abundantly proved, that the church bells were not sold, and also by the express injunction charged later in this same Commission upon all Deans, Provosts, Churchwardens, Ministers, and parishioners of the said churches and chapels:—

That they and everye of them do safely kepe unspoiled, unembesiled and unsold all suche bells as do remayne in everye of the said Churches and chapells and the same to conserve untill our pleasur be therein further knowne.

* Seventh Report of the Deputy-Keeper of the Public Records, p. 312.

When the clean sweep intended under this Commission was effected, an Indented Inventory of the few goods left behind in each parish was drawn up, and a duplicate copy left with the Vicar and Churchwardens. Some of these Indented Inventories relating to Lincolnshire are still extant in the Public Record Office, and will be quoted hereafter; they relate to parishes chiefly in the Deaneries of Bolingbroke, Isle of Axholme, Corringham, Gartree, Grimsby Nos. 1 and 2, Horncastle, Manlake, and Walshcroft. A copy of one of them will explain all the others: the one selected related to the Church of S. Botolph, Boston, a church formerly very rich in plate, jewels and vestments:—

That the quantity of bell-metal that came into the hands of the king was very large there can be no doubt ; and that much of it was purchased for sale abroad is shown by a memorial, still preserved, addressed to the King's Council by Thomas Egerton. In it he desires to have from the king "all the bell metall that his Highenesse nowe hathe in the realme at the price of xx<sup>s</sup> everie hunderith waighte" to be delivered at some port or ports in readiness to be shipped, together with passport, and the king's licence, and the same to be dealt with at the convenience and pleasure of the petitioner. He further asks for six years for payment after the receipt of the last, or else to be bound for payment after the receipt of any part for its value and no more ; and so on, from time to time. As an alternative he offers to pay a third within three years after receipt, and after another three years another third part, and the remaining third after other three years, or else the whole at six years' end as beforesaid. He further agrees to be bound within, or at the end of the six years, to bring into his majesty's mint as much fine gold and silver from beyond the seas, to be coined after the standard, as amount to the value of the bell metal received. He provides for reduction if the standard of money be hereafter lowered; and finally he thinks that no person can offer more without being a loser.*

Upon the death of Edward VI. the sale and the removal of bell-metal in Lincolnshire were not completed. A document, dated in the second year of Queen Mary, throws some light upon the subject. It is an indenture, made on the 26th of July, 1554, between John Bellowe of Newstede, in the County of Lincoln, Esquire, one of the Queen's Surveyors, of the one part, and Henry Hobblethorne of London, Knight, and John Whyte of London, Grocer, of the other part. It witnesses that the said "Harrye" Hobblethorne and John Whyte have received at the delivery of the said John Bellowe by force of a warrant, dated the 25th of April, in the first year of Queen Mary [1554], from Sir William Pollett [Paulet], K.G., Marquis of Winchester and Lord Treasurer of England, and "Davye" Brocke, Knight, Lord Chief Baron of the Queen's Exchequer, the number of seventeen thousand one hundred and twenty-one pounds of bell-metal remaining at the town of Kingston-

The charges for weighing and otherwise defrayed by the said Sir Henry Hoblethorne and John Whyte amounts to £7. 6s. 8d., as appears by a bill of parcels annexed to this Indenture.

It appears from these documents that John Bellow was the Queen’s Surveyor, whose duty it was to see to the weight of the metal handed over to the purchasers, who, in the case of the Lincolnshire contribution, were Henry Hoblethorn of London, knight, and John Whyte of London, grocer, who was also an alderman of the city; the former was, probably, a surety for the fulfilment of the contract by the latter—the real purchaser—for I find another document in which under the head of “Com̄ Licoln̄” is:—

This also shows that only the metal mentioned in the Indenture just abstracted as then remaining at Great Grimsby was from Lincolnshire; the other portion then remaining at Kingston-upon-Hull being probably collected from parishes in Yorkshire.

That the bells were collected at different places in the county, and afterwards sent to Grimsby as the general

Two years later the sound of the stolen bells is still in the air. On the 14th of May 1556, Robert Goche, Esq., Receiver of the County of Lincoln, wrote from his house at Chillwell to Mr. Barners, Mr. Mildmay and Mr. Wiseman, the Commissioners for Lead and Bells. The letter begins with a reference to the “newe weight and the olde of such leadd as was waied by warrinte from my L. North at Grymesbie,” and mentions a book, then missing, which ought to be produced by John Barton; after which a complaint is made against Mr. Bellow, the Surveyor (to whom reference has been already made) in these words:—

For thacompte of the belles I lefte with you therof the viewe the more playnes therof Barton canne enforme you declaringe vnto me that Mr. Bellowe hath takin awaie more belles then didd appeare in his accompte when I was there consideringe there were many smalle belles brokin in peces wth Mr. Bellowe hadd awaie as well as the hoole belles so that the hoole some of belles wille falle out by weight wth cannot appeare in nombre by reason of the brokin belles . . . . .

A not very clear statement of a supposed wrong!

Notwithstanding the Commissions issued in the reign of Edward VI., and the measures taken to prevent it, the occasional robbery of churches still went on. Queen Elizabeth, soon after her accession, tried to stop the mischief by issuing a Proclamation, in which it was said:—

That some patrons of churches and others who were possessed of impropriations, had prevailed with the parson & parishioners to take or throw down the bells of churches or chapels & the lead of the same, & to convert the same to their private gain, by which ensued not only the spoil of the said churches but even a slanderous desolation of the houses of prayer.

Therefore it was commanded:—

That no manner of person should from thenceforth take away any bells or lead off any church or chapel under pain of imprisonment during Her Majesty's pleasure, & such further fine for the contempt as shall be thought meet.*

* Quoted in Heylyn's Hist. of Reformation, II. p. 339.

It will be seen by the Certificate of Plate, Jewels, Bells, &c., in Lincolnshire, dated the 10th of April, 1549, already quoted [see p. 23], that there were then in the churches and chapels of the county, exclusive of the Wapentake of Kirton, in Holland, 1753 great bells and 475 Sanctus bells: if we add to that number the moderate addition of 47 of the former and 10 of the latter for that Wapentake, we find in the parish churches and chapels of Lincolnshire at the time of the Reformation 1800 great bells and 485 Sanctus bells.

Notwithstanding the increase made since in many rings for the purpose of change-ringing there are now only about 100 more large bells than there were three hundred and thirty years ago; and—as might be expected—the Priests' bells, which are the present successors of the Sanctus bells, have very much decreased in number, there being now about 70 only against 485 at the date to which we have referred. A reference to existing Inventories of Church Goods in the Lincolnshire churches in the time of Edward VI. shows that (with only one exception) no church, however small, had then less than two "great bells," whereas there are now about two hundred old parish churches in the county with only one bell, and that, in many cases, a miserable ting-tang*—and as in other counties so in this, comparatively few ancient bells are left. At what time, and for * Things might have been even worse if the old Kentish proverb formerly current at Charing, near Ashford, be true:—

Charing in the Dell lies in a hole
It has but one bell, and that it stole.
Charing has now a good ring of six bells.

what purpose those ancient bells were sacrificed, are questions which naturally suggest themselves.

By the Indented Inventories of the seventh year of King Edward the Sixth the church bells therein named were given into the charge of the parson and churchwardens for use in the churches respectively named. We must therefore look to those church officers, and to the action of the parishioners generally for some intimation as to the way in which they discharged their trust. No doubt during the changes and uncertainties in church teaching and ritual in the reigns of Edward VI. and Queen Mary some church bells were sacrificed by foolish people like the parishioners of Skidbrooke in this county, who being, as they subsequently confessed, "moved by universal talk, and by persons openly preaching against bells and other laudable ceremonies of the church, affirming the use of them to be superstitious and abominable," sold two of their bells for £20, which sum they expended upon repairing the church, and scouring out the haven then choked up with sand. Possibly also a few were seized by private persons, and sold for their own benefit; but it was, I think, the parsimony or poverty of churchmen in after years—in the seventeenth, eighteenth, and even in the present century, that induced the sale of so many bells from the smaller village churches in this county.

Many examples might be quoted: it will suffice to say that Beelsby, where was a fine ring of bells early in this century, has now only one small bell; two bells at Cadney were sold in the last century to pay for repairs at the church; the same thing happened at Fosdyke, where one bell represents an older ring of five; Fulletby, Howell, South Reston, Skegness, Strubby, Sturton Magna, Low Toynton and other churches all lost bells under similar circumstances: Thimbleby lost a ring of six bells to pay for exchanging an ancient gothic church for a so-called classic and unsightly structure; and, lastly, we must mention the needless sacrifice of the ring of the six Lady bells formerly in the grand central tower of the Cathedral church of Lincoln. Some Lincolnshire bells were damaged by the fall of church towers, never recast, and so lost: Conisholme, Fulstow, Lusby, and possibly other parishes, lost their rings of bells in that way.

At a moderate computation a number of bells approaching four hundred—irrespective of the Sanctus or Priests' Bells—must have been lost to the Lincolnshire Churches since the death of Edward the Sixth.

Two other causes operated to lessen, if not the number of bells, certainly the number of ancient ones, and to necessitate the substitution of modern ones in their places. Ordinary and (in some, not all, cases) unavoidable wear and tear is the cause of the gradual loss of a goodly number of our ancient bells. When we remember the nature of the metal of which bells are made—how easily it may be cracked, and how reckless and ignorant, as a body, have been the ringers, into whose charge the bells have frequently been entirely left, we can well believe that many of our ancient bells have from time to time succumbed to their almost inevitable fate. They were cracked, and so obliged to be recast to fit them again for their work. In this way, undoubtedly, many of them disappeared, to be replaced by more modern ones.

The introduction, however, of change ringing in the seventeenth century produced a still greater havoc among our ancient church bells. Early in that century ringing increased in popularity. The churchwardens of Loughborough, Leicestershire, charge in 1616:—

strangers when they came to ringe ... .. xjs.”*

Fabian Stedman, a printer, resident in Cambridge, is said to have reduced change ringing to an art.† He published his “Tintinnalogia” in 1668. Previously to the seventeenth century the ringing in use, where anything of the kind was attempted, was “rounds” or—as a slight advance upon that—at most “call changes,” that is, the bells were rung “in one particular position for a great many pulls consecutively, and changed at some accustomed signal to a variation called by a fogleman or chalked on the belfry wall.”‡ These must, in most cases, have been sorry performances, the bells not being “tunable” and so unfit for the purpose. “With change ringing proper the case”—to quote Mr. Ellacombe—“is very different: here a change is made at each stroke; the bells being never sounded twice in the same order; and

* Thirty years before this date we are told that “certain Lusty young Fellows began to set up Ringing again” at Lynn Regis. See Mackerell's History of Lynn Regis (1738), p. 229.

‡ Bells of the Church, p. 32.

this is continued till the end of the peal, when the bells are brought 'home' to their regular places. This end is only to be attained by each bell being made to follow a certain course, and to change places with the other bells by the evolution of certain rules or 'methods.' To manage his bell properly in this respect, and guide it up and down the maze, making it strike now before, and now after, this or that other bell, not only requires much practice and study, but a cool head and close attention; and this necessity justifies the remark that ringing requires a mental as well as a bodily effort."*

To meet this new art of ringing, important changes in the bells were necessitated. The old rings consisted, usually, of few bells and heavy ones, dignity and grandeur of tone being then the chief thing sought. To ring the "changes," introduced by Stedman and his disciples, a larger number of bells was required. This want could be met in two ways, either by adding new trebles to the existing heavy rings, which was the best, but the most expensive way, or by recasting, say, four heavy bells into six or eight light ones, and so increasing the number without buying more metal. This was the least expensive, and, therefore the most popular plan. By this means a great number of our ancient bells disappeared from the larger town churches. It ceases, therefore, to be a matter of surprise that it is chiefly in small rural churches, with few bells, where the temptation to change-ringing could not exist, that we chiefly expect, and usually find, ancient bells.

The English have been for many generations enthusiastic admirers of the melody produced by a ring of bells. Whilst other nations—the Russians and Chinese for example—possess far heavier bells, and make much more noise by a rude irregular clanging, we have long been accomplished ringers, and our joyous peals—our “rounds” and numberless “changes” have in no slight degree added to the cheerful temperament of “merrie England.” Indeed so popular did the art of ringing become after the invention of “changes” that England became known as the “ringing Island.”

Ringling does not appear, however, to have been in all cases acceptable, for when the bells of S. Stephen’s Chapel at Westminster were rung “men fabuled,” says Stow, “that their ringling soured all the drink in the town.”

Lincolnshire was not behind in this national taste. “This shire” says Fuller “carryes away the Bell for round-ringling from all in England, though other places surpass it for changes, more pleasant from the variety thereof; seeing it may be demonstrated that twelve Bells will afford more changes than there have been hours since the creation.”*

Peal-boards, however, in many of the ringling chambers testify that change-ringling was not neglected in Lincolnshire, and in the Cathedral itself we find a company of Ringers of our Blessed Virgin Mary of Lincoln at the commencement of the seventeenth century.

* Worthies, fo. ed. Lincolnshire, p. 152.

The love of bells is still universal in this country. We need not be surprised at this for "these patriarchs in their tower hold constant converse with man, but they are not of him; they call him to his duties, they vibrate to his woes and joys, his perils and victories, but they are at once sympathetic and passionless; chiming at his will, but hanging far above him, ringing out the old generation, and ringing in the new, with a mechanical almost oppressive regularity, and an iron constancy which often makes them, and their grey towers, the most revered and ancient things in a large city."* In past ages the bells were supposed to be able to reciprocate this affection, and to ring of their own accord upon special occasions: as when Becket was murdered the bells of Canterbury rung without being touched: and as when Grostete the great bishop of Lincoln died in 1254, music, it was said, was heard in the air, and the bells of distant churches tolled of their own accord, so when Hugh, the boy-martyr of Lincoln was buried, it was said that

A' the bells o' merrie Lincoln
Without men's hands were rung;
And a' the books o' merrie Lincoln
Were read without men's tongue;
And ne'er was such a burial

THE CHURCH BELLS OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

THERE are now in Lincolnshire 2034 Church Bells. That number includes 72 Priests' and other small ones. The 1962 large bells, hanging in no less than 683 churches, are thus distributed:— (partaken from 1913)

“Great Tom” and the four Quarter-bells at

Lincoln .....	5
1 Ring of 10 bells .....	10
18 Rings of 8 bells .....	144
46 Rings of 6 bells .....	276
68 Rings of 5 bells .....	340
48 Rings of 4 bells .....	192
203 Rings of 3 bells .....	609
51 Rings of 2 bells .....	102
Single bells .....	248
Carillon bells at Boston .....	36

To the 2034 Church Bells must be added, as worthy of notice, the bell at Wainfleet School, and the curious and ancient one hanging at the Town Hall, Lincoln, making a total of 2036 bells to describe.

Of these 2036 bells the fair proportion of 353, or about  $17\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., may be said to have been cast before the year 1600. This is a larger proportion of ancient bells than is found either in Leicestershire or Northamptonshire; the former county having only about  $14\frac{3}{4}$  per cent., and the latter about  $10\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., of such bells remaining.

There are complete rings of ancient bells still hanging at thirty churches in this county: namely rings of four bells at Branston, and Hacconby; of three bells at Barnetby-le-Wold, Boothby Graffore, Bratoft, South Elkington, Holton-le-Clay, Horkstow, Immingham, Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, Lavington, Limber Magna, Manby, Ruskington, Saus-thorpe, Scampton, Somerby near Brigg, South Somercotes, Tallington, Theddlethorpe S. Helen, Waith, and North Witham; and rings of two bells at West Allington, Canwick, Dunsby, Harpswell, Maltby-le-Marsh, Rowston, Saltfleetby S. Peter, and at Toynton S. Peter. About a score of the Churches now only possessing single bells have preserved ancient ones.

The Dedications and Legends of the 353 ancient bells may be thus classified:—

One (Linwood 2nd) is inscribed with what is meant for

IN NOMINE DEVS

Five are dedicated in the Holy Name of Jesus thus:—

IHSVS (Hacconby 4th).

RVIVS IHV XPI (Honington 2nd).

ihc nazareus (Walesby 1st)

ID THE DAY ME OF IHV SPED ME

(Burwell 2nd).

HOC NOME IHSVS EST AMOR

Nineteen bells are dedicated to the Archangel Gabriel, and six to the Archangel Michael, one is dedicated to

S. Anne the mother of the B. V. Mary, five to S. Andrew, one to S. Anthony, three to S. Augustine, one to S. Barbara, one to S. Benedict, two to S. Botolph, one to S. Clement, one to S. Cuthbert, one to S. Denis, two to S. Edmund, four to S. George, three to the Holy Innocents, three to S. James, fifteen to S. John (one being specially designated the Evangelist and two the Baptist), twelve to S. Katharine (a popular dedication), one to S. Laurence, one to S. Leonard, one to S. Luke, one to S. Mark, five to S. Margaret, four to S. Martin (on one of which the bell is described as "Sci Martini Epi"), three to S. Mary Magdalene (on two of which she is styled simply "Magdalene"), one to S. Matthew, four to S. Nicolas, one to S. Paul, fourteen to S. Peter, (one of which, the 2nd bell at Claxby S. Mary, has an unusual form of inscription), one to S. Thomas, one to S. Wilfrid, and three to All Saints, not including two bells—Canwick 1st, and Killingholme 4th—which have double dedications.

Eleven ancient bells in Lincolnshire are inscribed:—

Sit Nomen Dominum Benedictum

and eight bear:—

Celorum xte placeat tibi rex sonus iste

Two (Corby 4th and South Willingham 2nd, the latter not quite complete) have the text:—

In noē ih̄u xp̄i omē genu flectat' celestiū terstriū t̄ infrōrū and two others (Fleet 5th and Irby-on-the-Humber 2nd) have the prayer :—

FILI DEI VIVI MISERERE
NOBIS

The third bell at Thornton Curtis bears the beautiful and, I believe, unique inscription :—

O DEVS ABSQVE PARE FAC
NOS TIBI DVLCI SONARE

OMNIS SPIRITVS LAVDET
DOMINVM

Many of these 353 ancient bells bear English inscriptions : three have been already referred to, namely Alkborough 2nd :—

IESV FOR VI MODIR SAKE
SAVE AL VE SAVLS THAT
ME GART MAKE AMEN

Laceby 1st :—

MARY OF HAWARDBY OF VS HAVE MERCY

and Semperingham 1st :—

BE NOT OUER BUSIE

No less than twenty others are inscribed :—

IESVS BE OVR [or MY] SPEED

all of which (excepting East Barkwith 1st and Lavington 3rd) are dated.

The 4th at Moulton has :—

THOMAS HILL

The 2nd at Newton, near Folkingham, says :—

HERE AND DRED GOD

SEND PASTORS PURE IN WORD AND LIFE

On three bells, all dated, is the loyal prayer :—

GOD SAVE OVR QVEEN

On five, also all dated :—

GOD SAVE HIS [or OVR] CHVRCH

and on two (Lincoln Cathedral tenor, and Ruskington 1st) we have the prayers for Church and Queen combined :—

GOD SAVE THE CHVRCH OVR QVEEN AND REALME

On two other of these old bells, both dated, we are exhorted to

PRAISE THE LORD

and on another (Hacconby 1st) to

LAWE

HOPE WEL HAVE W[EL]E

on the tenor at Winteringham (the bell with the previous portion of the motto is now lost) :—

THAT EVIL THIKES

BE HOLD SE THE PIRSON
WIFES ACT OF SILK
WILLOBE

On a large number (eighteen) of these ancient bells still remaining in Lincolnshire there is no inscription beyond the letter S repeated several times (probably for Sanctus) with an intervening cross.

On other eighteen bells there are founders' stamps only.

On nine there are portions of the alphabet.

On two (Grasby 1st and Saltfleetby S. Clement 2nd) appear the donors' names only. Donors' names appear on other bells, but not alone.

Upon six bells the date only (or the date and initials only) is given.

Upon four interesting bells the founders' names form the inscriptions.

On three others (South Ormsby 3rd, Pilham single, and Saxilby 3rd) are initials only.

And on other three (Stamford S. John Baptist 1st and 4th and Little Steeping 1st) appear the names of Parson, Churchwardens, or Benefactors.

Of the remaining ten ancient bells three (West Allington 1st, and the Priests' bells at Tallington and North Witham) are devoid of inscription or stamp of any kind: five (Bitchfield 2nd, South Ormsby 5th, Rowston 1st, Sedgebrook 3rd, and Syston 3rd) have imperfect inscriptions, and one is the highly curious bell hanging at the Town Hall, Lincoln.

The earliest dated bells in Lincolnshire are the fine pair at South Somercotes, cast in 1423.

THE LINCOLNSHIRE BELLFOUNDERS.

late in the eleventh century. After the great fire at Croyland Abbey in the year 1091 we read of FERGUS THE COPPERSMITH of Botolph's Town presenting two small bells to that Abbey, which the monks placed within a "humble belfry" which they had erected as a substitute for the tower which had fallen down.* There is no evidence to show that Fergus cast large bells.

Four hundred years later we find two other founders at Boston.

JOHN RED and LEONARD PYNCHBECK, about whom I know nothing beyond their names as given in the Accounts of the Churchwardens of Leverton in this county thus:—

* Ingulph's Chron. Bohn's Ed. p. 208.

- 1503. Itm̄ payd to John Red bellgedar of boston for schotyng of a bell ..... iijli. vjs. viijd.
- 1506. Itm̄ payd to lenard pynchbec of boston in payrt payment for hour belle gyddyng [yetting i.e. casting] ..... vijli. ixs.

There is neither documentary notice nor tradition to guide us to the site of any bellfoundry in Boston.* We know indeed that as early as 1489,† and until quite recently, there was a Lane called Bell Lane, but it was, as a friend writes to me, “such a mere angiportus through a little mass of houses under the Stump that I think if you saw the spot you would feel that the name originated in some tavern rather than in a foundry.”

STAMFORD.

THE first Stamford bell-founder at present known is

TOBIAS (OR TOBIE) NORRIS, who took up his freedom on the 4th of June, 1607. He was one of the “Capital Constables” in that year, and again in 1621-2, and warden

* Although a diligent search extending over several days has been made in the Will Office, Somerset House, and in the District Probate Registry at Lincoln, neither the wills of these two founders, nor those of Wilkinson of Lincoln, George Lee or Richard Sanders can be found. It may be noted that in an “Inventory of the goodes of the Crafte of ffounders of London at Cristmas in the yere of our Lord 1497” is “Item a grete maser harnessed with Silver gilte of the gifte of John Pynchbeck.” Annals of Founders' Company, p. 44.

of S. George's church in 1613-14. His name also occurs in connection with charities belonging to S. George's parish in 1609. He died on the 2nd of November 1626, and was buried in the north aisle of S. George's Church, Stamford, where a small brass thus records the fact:—

HERE LIETH THE BO
DY OF TOBIE NORRIS
BELFOVN : WHO DEC
EA : THE 2 OF NO 1626

and the Register of the parish says:—

1626 Tobbye Norris Bell-founder was buried the iiij daye of November

His earliest bell in Lincolnshire appears to be the 3rd of the ring at Sutton S. James, dated 1603, and his latest the 2nd at Moulton, dated 1626. He did not always place his name as founder upon the bells from his foundry, but he used the several initial crosses figs. 1, 2, and 3, and for intervening stops, figs. 4, 5, and 6. Upon bells cast by him at Gosberton (3rd), Pinchbeck East (3rd), and Stamford S. Mary (7th), he placed the Royal Arms—of James I. on the two first mentioned bells and of Charles I. on the other—similar in style to the stamp (fig. 114) used occasionally by the Nottingham founders, and given further on. Another TOBYAS NORRIS, also a bell-founder (probably a son of the above Tobias), took up his freedom on the 4th of June, 1628, and we find his name as "Toby Norris of Staunford bellfounder" mentioned in a document relating to the church estate in 1638. He apparently occupied a subordinate position in the foundry.

THOMAS NORRIS—who, upon the death of Tobias the elder, succeeded to the business—took up his freedom as a bellfounder on the 31st of December, 1625. He was warden of S. George's Church from 1630 to 1632, spelling his name as Norys and Norris. He was constable for the parish of S. George 9 and 10 Car. I.; elected a "capital burgess" (that is, a member of the body corporate) on the 25th of September, 1638; Chamberlain in 1641-2; and Com-burgess (or, as would now be said, Alderman) on the 27th of January, 1652-3. He was also one of the "Conduit Masters" for several years. While he sat in the Council Chamber it is recorded of him that he was upon several occasions fined ij<sup>s</sup> vj<sup>d</sup> for non-attendance at meetings. In 1656-7 he served the office of chief magistrate as "Alderman"—the title of "Mayor" was not then adopted at Stamford—for his native town.* Besides being a member of the borough senate, Thomas Norris was also a useful parochial officer of S. George's parish, filling several offices of trust and consideration. At a meeting of the Hall, held on the 10th of May, 1663, it being agreed that the sum of £200 should be borrowed towards defraying the expenses of a new Charter from the King, Thomas Norris was one of the sureties.

His career in the Corporate Chamber was not always a pleasant one, for we find that at a Common Hall held on the 13th July, 1665, "Thomas Norris and Robert Whatton two of y<sup>e</sup> Aldermen" had notice "to appeare at y<sup>e</sup> next hall, and in the interim shall doe and p'forme their duty as is enjoyned on y<sup>e</sup> rest of y<sup>e</sup> Aldermen, or others to be chosen in their place." The duty alluded to as being shirked, consisted in carrying out a previous order made by the

* During his tenure of office his apprentice William Saunders "because he hath served seven years apprenticeship in this Corporation is freely admitted to scott and lott." No further mention is found in the Corporation records of Wm. Saunders. It may be worth noting that at a meeting of the Council held 25th April, 1664, the Fee for taking up the Freedom of Stamford by a bellfounder was fixed at £15.

Hall, that in consequence of the plague raging very severely at Peterborough and adjacent places, a strict watch was to be kept day and night to prevent any person entering Stamford without a pass: and in order to see that the guard did their duty, one of the first company (Aldermen) was to be with the guard, one every night in his turn.

From some cause, not recorded in the municipal books, Thomas Norris appears, some years later, to have taken umbrage, for at a meeting of the Hall, held on the 29th of August, 1678, the following letter from him, resigning his seat, was read by the Mayor:—

M<sup>r</sup> Mayor

I have not of late received soe much content and satisfaction in my residence in Stamford as formerly, so am resolved to retire myself amongst other my relations in y<sup>e</sup> countrey, soe y<sup>t</sup> I shall not bee capacitated to doe y<sup>e</sup> Corporacon any further service, and am desirous to resigne up my office of Alderman, and my requests are y<sup>t</sup> you will bee pleased to acquaint y<sup>e</sup> rest of y<sup>e</sup> brethren therewth, and accept of this my resignation, and although I cannot bee ffurther serviceable to y<sup>e</sup> Corporacon, yet I shall alwise pray for y<sup>e</sup> p'spitye thereof, & am,

The resignation was accepted, but to what place Thomas Norris retired is unknown: perhaps to Barrowden in Rutland, where, as the Registers show, a family of his name was living from 1610 to 1699.*

---

* Edith the wife of Thomas Norris (George, Stamford) was buried 28th July, (according to the parish registers of S. 1673.

Although there are many single bells in Lincolnshire cast by Thomas Norris, there is only one complete ring from his foundry—that of Algarkirk, cast in 1662. His bells date from 1628 at Burton Coggles (1st) and other churches, to 1674 at Croyland (1st). A bell of his hangs at Fakenham, Norfolk, dated 1678, the year when, according to the above letter, he resolved to leave Stamford. He used the same stamps as his predecessor, placing the Royal Arms on one bell only in this county—the 4th at Holbeach. His son and successor

TOBIAS NORRIS (who occasionally placed his own name upon bells during his father's life time as at Belleau (3rd) Haltham-on-Bain (1st and 2nd) and other places) was baptized at S. George's Church, Stamford, on the 25th of April, 1634. He was Overseer of the Highways in 1660-7, of the Poor 1678-9, and Churchwarden in 1685-6; his name also occurs in connection with parish charities in 1693. He was buried, as appears by the register of S. George's parish, on the 19th of January 1698-9. His bells in this county, of which there is no complete ring, range in date from 1664 at Haltham-on-Bain (1st and 2nd) to 1695 at Alford (5th), but he continued casting until his death. He occasionally used figs. 1 and 2, as initial crosses, and in two cases—Enderby Mavis 1st, and Tattershall 4th and 5th—a rude S. Andrew's cross, but frequently placed his name, as founder, without any cross or stamp.

The favourite inscriptions of the Norris family were "Mvlti vocati pavec electi"—"Cvm voco ad ecclesiam venite"—"Omnia fiant ad gloriam Dei"—and, occasionally, on the tenor bell, as at Deeping S. James and at Swayfield, "Non sono animabus mortvorvm sed avribus viventivm," which, as has been said, was perhaps "a fling" at the old faith.

Mr. Justin Simpson of Stamford, to whom I am indebted for much of the above information respecting the Stamford bellfounders, tells me that there is, unfortunately, no known record pointing out the precise site of the foundry, but that it is generally believed to have been in the vicinity of the present Gas Works, or of Mr. Blashfield's Terra-cotta Works.

ALEXANDER RIGBY appears to have been connected—perhaps as foreman—with the Stamford foundry for some years before the death of Tobias Norris in 1698-9, for at Great Billing in Northamptonshire the 1st bell there, cast by him, is dated as early as 1684. There are only four bells by Rigby, or as he sometimes spelt his name "Rigbe" in Lincolnshire, but those are sufficient to show that he carried on the foundry for a few years—until his own death—after the decease of the last Norris. Rigby's bells extend from 1704 at Deeping S. James (1st) and Swinestead (2nd) to 1707 at Kirkby Laythorpe (2nd and 3rd): upon the last mentioned bell he placed the initial cross fig. 3, used, as we have seen (see p. 52) by the Norris family. He died at Stamford in the year 1708, and was buried at S. Martin's as appears from the Register:—

He is referred to, in a not very complimentary manner, on the treble bell at Badgworth, Gloucestershire:—

Badgworth ringers they were mad
 Because Rigbe made me bad ;
 But Abel Rudhall you may see
 Hath made me better than Rigbe.

LINCOLN.

THAT there was a Foundry at work here as early as 1641 is evident from the Churchwardens' Accounts of S. Mary's Barton-on-Humber for that year, in which is a minute record of the cost of taking a bell, drawn by six horses and two oxen, and attended by four men, to Lincoln for the purpose of being recast, but the name of the founder is not preserved.* A few years later—in 1676—

“HUMPHREY WILKINSON of Lincoln Bellfounder” entered into an engagement to cast the 3rd bell of Kirton-in-Lindsey, the Bond for the due performance of which is still extant. In 1689 the same founder was casting the new “Cutlers' Bell,” by order of Robert Breilsforth, the Master of the Cutlers' Company in Sheffield. It is somewhat curious that his bells do not appear in Lincolnshire churches until the year 1695, when he sent the Priest's bell to Winthorpe: from that date until 1718, the date of the 1st bell at S. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln, recently recast, he sent a few bells to different churches in this county; in all cases however—excepting Ingoldmells and Middle Rasen where are two—only single bells of his are hanging, showing that his business was a small one. He used a good bold trade mark, fig. 7, which he appears to have copied from that used by Quernbie and Oldfield a century earlier.

BRIGG.

THE Parish Register of Scotter records that the second bell there was new cast by “one RICHARD SANDERS of Brigg" on the 3rd of May, 1673. Unfortunately all the old Parish Records of Wrawby, of which parish Brigg was until recently a hamlet, were destroyed by fire some years ago; so nothing can be learned from them as to Sanders, who was, probably, not a regular bellfounder, but simply a blacksmith: n. registered as a blacksmith

BARROW-ON-HUMBER AND BARTON-ON-HUMBER.

IN the latter half of the seventeenth century there lived at Foulby, a hamlet in the parish of Wragby, near Pontefract, in Yorkshire, a carpenter named Henry Harrison, who had two sons, John and James, the former born in the year 1693, and the latter in 1697. About the last-named date the father moved with his family to Barrow-on-Humber, in this county, where he was parish clerk for thirty-one years. He died in June, 1728, leaving his two sons, John and James Harrison, in business as carpenters at Barrow. They were ingenious men, and set to work attempting to construct an instrument for determining the longitude at sea, for which a large reward (£20,000) was then offered by the Government. The instrument was, after several trials and improvements, completed, as is generally supposed, by John Harrison the elder brother, but the popular impression in their own neighbourhood was that James was the greater genius of the two, and that from his conception the time-keeper was modelled and completed, but that being the most careless and easy of the two in disposition and habits, he allowed his brother to take the instrument up to London, where, as was anticipated by their neighbours, he introduced it as his own sole invention, and obtained the full credit for it himself. However that may have been it is certain that John Harrison obtained all the renown, and, after much trouble, the promised reward; and that the only share James, or his family, received was the free grant to them of the house in which they resided at Barrow.* John Harrison died at his house in Red Lion Square, London, on the 24th of March, 1776, aged 83 years, and was buried in a vault on the north side of Hampstead Church.† His brother

PEDIGREE OF THE HARRISON FAMILY, BELLFOUNDERS.

[This Pedigree is from the late Mr. Heseldine's MS Collection corrected and augmented from the Parish Registers of Wragby, Yorkshire, and of Barrow-on-Humber, and from a Pedigree drawn up in 1836 by Canon Maclell then Vicar of Barrow.]

JAMES HARRISON of Barrow erected the sun-dial still standing in Barrow churchyard and inscribed "James Harrison fecit 1732," and he was also a bellhanger about that date, as is shown by his name on several bellframes. He had two sons, Henry and James.

When the bellfoundry at Barrow was opened I cannot say, but that it was during the life-time of this James Harrison is evident from a letter addressed by him to the

† The Rev. J. E. Cross, Vicar of Appleby, possesses a clock made by John Harrison: at the back of the case is pasted:—

Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, dated the 15th of July, 1763, wherein (offering his services to repair the Lady-bells) he describes himself as "Bellfounder at Barrow near Barton." At that time, or immediately after, his son Henry was working with him, as is shown by an entry in the Parish Register at Hibaldstow, in this county, from which we learn that the great bell there was recast at Barrow "by James Harrison and Henry his son, July 6, 1764." This bell bears the stamp No. 8 on Plate I. The same stamp is upon the 3rd bell at Wootton also dated 1764. James Harrison died in 1766, being buried at Barrow on the 24th of November in that year. The foundry then passed into the hands of his eldest son

HENRY HARRISON (the name of his other son—James—does not appear in connection with it). Henry Harrison was born on the 2nd November, 1732, and married Ann Newton of Barrow on the 10th of September, 1758. From documents still extant at Welton we find he cast the bells of that church in the year 1770, in which year he also cast the ring at Willoughby and the 3rd bell at Sibsey. His name appears on bells at West Keal cast in 1772, and at Redbourne cast in 1774. Four years prior to the last-mentioned date he had opened a foundry at Barton, having cast the Addlethorpe ring of six bells there in the year 1770, as their inscriptions testify. The date of Henry Harrison's death is unknown, but that event occurred prior to 1784, for on the 15th of July in that year Ann the widow of H. Harrison was buried at Barrow. Henry Harrison left five sons—John (baptized the 17th of December, 1763, died the 20th of August, 1784, s. p.), James (his successor), Henry (who went to America), William (to be mentioned presently), and Francis (who died young, being buried the 4th of February, 1778). Although the name of

WILLIAM HARRISON of Barton appears as Founder upon bells at Burgh and at Six Hills: his connection with the craft was brief: he left Barton, and lived and died at Liverpool. The foundry, upon the death of their father, passed into the hands of his second son JAMES HARRISON, who much extended the business. His name appears upon bells cast at Barrow (Saxilby 4th and Wootton 1st) in 1788 and 1789, but the foundry at Barton quickly, in his hands, superseded the original one at Barrow, which was on a very small scale. The Barrow foundry stood on Piking Green, near to Barrow Hall, the seat of G. C. Uppleby, Esq.: no part of it now remains. His Barton bells still hanging in this county, and numbering between seventy and eighty, date from 1789 (Claxby S. Mary 1st) to the year 1833 (Caistor 2nd and 3rd). Upon them is generally found his name, but upon the 3rd bell at Market Rasen), dated 1795, is the stamp fig. 10 on Plate I. He used several border ornaments between the words of the inscriptions, of which figs. 9 and 9a on Plate I. are specimens.

In 1816, in 1818, and again in 1828, James Harrison wrote very long letters to the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln (and which are now amongst the Cathedral Records) respecting the then contemplated recasting of the bells.

His business as a founder extended beyond his native county. Major George Anderson, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, having, in 1831, left £500 to provide a large clock-bell for the church of S. Nicolas in that town, Harrison was selected as the founder. He cast the bell (now called "The Major" from the donor) in the month of November, 1833, at the foundry of Sir R. S. Hawks and Co., of Gateshead. It is a large bell weighing 8021 lbs., five feet in height, and six feet nine inches in diameter at its mouth. When cast it gave so much satisfaction that upon its arrival at Newcastle, being turned upside down, Harrison—so runs the story—was placed in it, and so taken round the town. This admiration must have been excited by its appearance only, for Harrison having tried the experiment of mixing brass with bell-metal produced a very indifferent bell indeed. The tenor of the old ring, which is not nearly so large, can, it is said, be heard at twice the distance. Local historians tell of the large number of persons that could stand in their clock bell, and that whilst in the porch of S. Nicolas, awaiting its rise to the belfry, a shoemaker made the greater part of a shoe in it, even as, in 1793, when the spire of Chester-le-Street was rebuilt, a not less ambitious son of Crispin made, or mended, a pair of shoes on the topmost stone; taking care, however, to do his work before his seat was raised to its intended eminence; a precaution not always disclosed to his audience by the teller of the story.

James Harrison had a great reputation amongst his own townspeople, strengthened, no doubt, by his connection by descent with the inventors of the time-keeper, and many of his characteristics are still preserved by the old people of Barton. They say he was a sober and industrious man of small education, very lax in his religious opinions, and eccentric in his habits. He formed no acquaintances, his mind being so absorbed in his craft that his talk was always of the casting, tuning and ringing of bells. He is said to have made no money by his trade, spending a long time in making his calculations before casting a bell, which if not proving exactly to his mind when cast he would break up and commence again. His calculations were—so it is said—chiefly made in a bed which he had fixed up in his foundry: there he would remain for several days (food being taken to him) until his mental calculations (he seldom used figures) were completed to his satisfaction, when jumping up with the exclamation “I have got it, I have got it,” would proceed to put his plans into execution. He cast his bells in cellars several feet below the road level, and old people say that he cast them in the dead of the night because any sound, such as the braying of an ass, or the crowing of a cock, would be communicated to the bell as the metal set! Indeed both he and his grandfather of the same name were suspected of dabbling in the mysteries of astrology before making important castings. An old gentleman, now living, once asked the son of this James Harrison then (1866) living at Hull whether his father or grandfather consulted the stars or had any practice of that kind before the operation of casting? He answered indefinitely, but added “I don't believe in astrology. It's all nought. I believe in astronomy though.”

The point in his trade upon which James Harrison laid the greatest stress, and the correctness of which he laboured all his life to prove, was that all bells had not only much more metal in them than was necessary, but that their tone would be considerably improved by a less lavish, but a proper, use of it. Writing, in 1821, to the churchwardens of Appleby, who were then thinking of having their bells recast, he gives an estimate

“to form a new and complete peal of six harmonious bells, to be cast with all the advantages of modern improvements (the results of upwards of twenty years pertinacious researches and experiments) whereby the metal is so disposed of as to produce a perfect concordance throughout all the parts of the bells, and consequently affords the softest and sweetest tones, at the same time that the more extended range or greater freedom of the vibrations occasioning more flowing sounds, they are heard further than the generality of bells with a minimum weight of metal.”

The bells of Epworth—six in number, cast without canons, which he always knocked off old bells when he had the opportunity—may be quoted as a ring cast by Harrison on his own principle: they are very wide and thin at the mouth, but they are pronounced by competent judges to be far inferior to the ring of the same number at Haxey, which were cast on the old plan. In 1831 he published a Treatise on the Proportions of the Constituents of Bells, &c., also an Introduction to the same, with a verbose title of about thirty lines in length.*

* Hull: Printed by William Stephenson, Bowlalley Lane. 1831.

Upon the death of James Harrison, which took place at Hull while he was visiting his son there, in the year 1835, the foundry at Barton was closed and the premises sold.

The Barton foundry stood on the west side of the Brigg Road, near to the Market Place: it was purchased, upon the death of Harrison, by Mr. Jervis Watson, a wheelwright, who took down the foundry, and erected a house and wheelwright's shop on the site: some of the cellars in which Harrison cast his bells still remain under the modern premises.

James Harrison had, as just mentioned, a son also named James, who resided in Porter Street, Hull. He was a clock and watch maker: he died, at an advanced age, a few years ago.*

OTHER FOUNDERS

---

IN addition to the Bells already enumerated as cast by the Lincolnshire Founders, there are, of course, a goodly number in the County by other Founders, known and unknown, ancient and modern.

The ancient bells first claim attention, and then notes upon the founders of a more recent date will follow.

WILLIAM FFOUNDER. The stamps figs. 11 and 12 on Plate II. are found upon the 2nd bell at Grimoldy, the 3rd at Partney, and the single bell at Skegness, where, however, the cross is of a larger size (fig. 14).

Again, the shield fig. 11 is on the 3rd bell at South Ormsby in company with a stamp which is, to me, undecypherable: it is also on the 1st bell at Sutton-le-Marsh (where the inscription is in irregular black letter with very small capitals, unlike those on the other bells with this stamp), in conjunction with the shield fig. 13, and the initial cross fig. 18 here engraved.

12

15

It occurs once more on the 4th bell at South Ormsby with the initial cross fig. 15 on Plate II.

The cross fig. 12 is also on the 3rd bell at Osbournby with the handsome cross fig. 16 on the same Plate.

The initial cross fig. 15 also occurs on two other bells (Tallington 3rd and Wrawby 2nd) accompanied in both instances by another cross fig. 17 also engraved on the same Plate.

These stamps (figs. 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17) were possibly used by William Underhill, alias William ffounder, a mediæval craftsman, whose trade marks are well-known to campanists. It appears probable that some of these stamps—for instance figs. 15 and 17—were in the hands of a founder in Kent, from whom they passed into those of a founder or founders at Reading. Upon the Tallington bell (as upon bells elsewhere) are the initials I. S. with a coin between them: those letters may be the initials of John Saunders, who was casting bells at Reading between the years 1539 and 1559.*

ROBERT MERSTON. In four churches near together—North Cockerington 2nd, Maltby-le-Marsh 1st and 2nd, Skendleby 3rd, and Little Steeping 3rd—are bells bearing the founder's seal-like stamp fig. 19 on the next page. Of Robert Merston nothing at present is known. He probably was an itinerant founder, who setting up his furnace at, or in the neighbourhood of, Alford, cast bells for any churches in that locality requiring a bell-founder's skill. Until the year 1875, when they were recast, there were two of his bells hanging at Trusthorpe, another village in the neighbourhood of Alford. His inscriptions are in black letter, with capitals, both of a poor character.

SYMON DE HAZFELDE. The small Sanctus bell at Sutterton bears the name of this founder with the initial cross

fig. 20. The only other bell by the same founder known to me is the 1st at Stanwick, Northamptonshire, bearing a similar inscription to, and in the same form of Gothic capital letters as, this Lincolnshire bell, but in that instance preceded by the singular cross fig. 21. here engraved.

JOHN POTTER. The 3rd bell at West Halton has the inscription:—

+ JHC : CAMPANA : BEATE :
 MARIE : IOHANNES : POTTER
 : ME RECIT

the initial cross and intervening stop being figs. 22 and 23,

both which are also on the 4th bell at Killingholme by the same founder: a bell bearing his name, and the same inscription as that on the West Halton bell is at Holy Trinity, York.

Although I have not met with any certain guide as to the locality of John Potter's foundry, it was probably at Norwich, for "Thomas Potter, Brazyer," who was also a Bellfounder, was admitted to the freedom of that City in the year 1404. The tenor bell at S. John Sepulchre, Norwich, was cast by him.*

In connection with the probability of John Potter being a Norwich founder it is a matter of interest that the Patron of the benefice of West Halton is the Bishop of Norwich.

JOHANNES SLEYHT cast the single bell at North Elkington upon which he fixed his name preceded by the cross fig.

24: a fleur-de-lys being the intervening stop. I found a bell by this founder, with the same cross and stop, at Glapthorne, Northamptonshire, where he spells his name "Sleyt:" another of his bells formerly hung at Owston in Leicestershire.†

* Church Bells of Norfolk, p. 25-6.

† North's Church Bells of Northants, p. 58.

He used a small neat gothic capital letter for the inscription of his name.

VILELMVS DVDELAI. The single bell at Well bears an inscription showing it to have been cast by a founder named William Dudley. The inscription—in small pretty gothic capitals—is preceded by the elegant little cross fig. 25; the words are divided by the equally well formed fleur-de-lys fig. 26. This is the first bell by this founder (about whom nothing is known at present) that has been recorded.

JOHN. There is a curious little Sanctus bell at Bicker inscribed:—

ION : M<sup>M</sup> : VEVT : U

that is, "John cast me." It has no initial cross or other stamp. It is quite probable, judging from the form of letters used, that this bell was cast by MASTER JOHN, a founder of bells at Lynn, Norfolk, in 1299. He is described in a Tallage Roll of that year as "Mag'r Joh'nes fundator campanar'."*

EARLY LONDON FOUNDERS (SUPPOSED). The shield fig. 27 occurs thrice on the 1st bell at Covenham S. Mary. The same shield in company with another shield fig. 29 and the beautiful cross fig. 28—all engraved on the annexed Plate III—is upon bells at Cowbit (2nd), South Elkington

* Church Bells of Norfolk, p. 22.

(all 3), Frieston (4th), Harpswell (1st and 2nd), Scotton (2nd), Thorpe S. Peter (1st and 2nd), Thurlby near Newark (1st), and Welton-le-Wolds (1st and 2nd).

The short ejaculatory prayers on the cross fig. 28 are frequently found on mediæval ecclesiastical work: a variation of them occurs on the brass of William Browne and his wife in All Saints' Church, Stamford: over his head on a scroll are the words "X me spede" (Christ me speed), and over her's a similar scroll, with the prayer "Dere lady help at nede."

The cross, fig. 28, occurs again in company with fig. 33, and the Royal Arms ensigned with a crown fig. 30 (both on the annexed Plate) on bells at Alvingham (2nd and 3rd), Croyland (5th), Grainthorpe (1st and 2nd), and North Thoresby (3rd). The same shield with fig. 33 only is also on the 2nd bell at Tealby.

With regard to this stamp of the shield of the Royal Arms it may be observed that the date of the foundry originally using it must have been subsequently to the commencement of the fifteenth century when Henry IV., in 1406 according to Willement (Royal Heraldry p. 32), or Henry V., in 1413, according to Boutell (p. 296) substituted three fleurs-de-lys in the 1st and 4th quarters of his coat for a semée of fleurs-de-lys previously borne.

The same shield without the crown (fig. 32 on Plate III.) is upon the 3rd bell at Kettlethorpe, and the 2nd at Torksey, in company with the cross fig. 28 and the stamp fig. 33, both referred to above.

In connection with these stamps we find the initial cross

fig. 31 on the annexed Plate, which is alone on the 2nd and 3rd bells at Great Ponton, on the 1st and 2nd bells at Bratoft in company with the two shields figs. 27 and 29; on the 1st at Nettleton with the stamps figs. 32 and 33; and on the 1st bell at Torksey with fig. 32, which is there placed between the letters I ∪ D, perhaps the initials of the founder. He used a fine bold black letter with crowned capitals on some of his bells, on others a rather smaller black letter: drawings of the first set, from the pencil of the Rev. J. T. Fowler, F.S.A., as they appear on the 2nd bell at Thorpe S. Peter, are given on Plate IV.

The little initial cross fig. 34, here engraved, is only on one bell in Lincolnshire—the school bell at Wainfleet All Saints. This, and the seven stamps just referred to, being found in all parts of the country, are supposed, from that circumstance, to have belonged originally to a London founder. That London founders were employed to cast bells for Lincolnshire we know (if we may trust his Chronicle in this matter) from Ingulph, who tells that Abbot John Lytlington caused “five fine and choice bells to be cast in London” for Croyland Abbey in the year 1465.

It is worth noting that the beautiful cross fig. 28 was subsequently in the hands of the Leicester founders.*

fleetby S. Peter was cast by a founder whose stamps figs. 35 and 38 on annexed Plate No. V. have not at present been found elsewhere: the first—a trade mark consisting of a shield bearing the letter W, over which is a tun, and above the shield a plain cross terminating in a cross pattée having a bell hanging from its sinister arm—is used in the place of an initial cross: the stop between the words is a kind of five-leaved rose.

The elaborate stamps figs. 37 and 39 occur as initial cross and stop upon two bells only in this county—the 3rd at Immingham and the 3rd at Whitton: upon the former the Holy Name is ensigned by the running pattern fig. 36, which is used to represent a crown. These are fine mediæval bells, tall and thick.

The 2nd bell at Normanby-by-Spital has the initials E. I.—probably those of the founder—and the date 1571, but no stamp or trade mark of any kind.

The cross fig. 40, see Plate No. VI., is upon two ancient bells in this county—the 1st at Ingoldsby and the single one at Keddington.

The stamp there figured No. 42 is repeated eleven times in lieu of inscription on the 3rd bell at Sausthorpe; and upon the 1st at Market Stainton it is given seven times alternately with the letter Q—the initial of the name of the Blessed Virgin.

The inscription, in coarse gothic capitals, on the single bell at Enderby Bag, and on the 2nd bell at Laceby, are preceded by the initial cross fig. 41. As the church at Enderby is known to have been built by Albini de Enderby who died in 1407, the bell there was probably cast about the year 1400.

On the 4th bell at Springthorpe are the four stops figs. 43, 44, 45, and 50—two being the letter S. The stop fig. 45 is also on the 2nd bell at Laceby in company with the initial cross fig. 41, to which reference has just been made.

There are five interesting bells all with inscriptions in the same gothic letters, and all bearing the same initial cross fig. 47, namely, Heapham 1st, Saltfleetby S. Clement 2nd and 3rd, and Scampton 1st and 2nd: they all (excepting Saltfleetby 3rd, where the stop is simply composed of three dots) bear a fleur-de-lys, fig. 48, as a stop between each word, and the inscriptions on the Heapham bell, and on the 2nd at Scampton, are terminated by the trade mark fig. 46.

The curious "Ave Maria" bell at Hatcliffe has the initial cross fig. 51 and the singular stop fig. 53 (see Plate VII.) between the first six letters of the inscription: these stamps are not found elsewhere in the county.

The little cross fig. 52 which is found once in this county only—on the single bell at S. Mary Magdalene, Lincoln—is valuable as enabling us to fix an approximate date to the bell. Two bells with the same cross still hang in Northamptonshire: on one of them—the Priest's bell at Harringworth—is the inscription:—

+ PHILIPPS : EP̄C̄ : LINCOLN :
SPES : MEA : IN : DEO : EST

which indicates that the bell was the gift of Philip de

Repington, Bishop of Lincoln, 1405-1420: that inscription enables us to give a definite date to that bell, and so an approximate date to any ancient bell on which the same initial cross occurs.

The initial cross fig. 60 here engraved, which is upon two modern bells at Gayton-le-Marsh (2nd and 3rd), and upon a rather older bell at Tealby (3rd) with inscriptions in Roman capitals, is similar in form to a cross found upon some much more ancient bells in Northamptonshire.

On the 3rd bell at Swinderby occurs the initial cross fig. 58 on Plate VII.; and on the single bell at Rigsby (where the inscription is in black letter without capitals) is the cross fig. 56.

The two ancient bells at Sausthorpe (1st and 2nd), with inscriptions in Gothic capitals, bear the initial cross fig. 54, and the 2nd at Grayingham the one fig. 57.

There are two bells at Mumby (2nd and 3rd), with inscriptions in black letter with crowned capitals, preceded by the cross fig. 59, and followed by the cross fig. 15 (see p. 69) and the shield fig. 55. These stamps are found upon bells in Cambridgeshire. "I take" (says Dr. Raven in his Church Bells of Cambridgeshire) "the moon and the stars on the shield to indicate worker in silver and other metals." The bells of this founder are well cast.

The 1st bell at Bonby has the shield fig. 65 on Plate VIII. in company with the initial cross fig. 64, which cross is also on the 2nd bell at Rothwell, and on the 2nd and 3rd at Horkstow where the intervening stop is the elegant S like fig. 67. The shield (fig. 65) is found in Yorkshire and Durham: at Kirkby Fleetham in the former county the name RICHARD PETTE is placed on the crown of the bell, and may possibly be that of the founder.* See below table

Upon the 3rd bell at Covenham S. Bartholomew, and upon the 2nd at Fiskerton are the stamps (no inscriptions) figs. 62, 61, and 69; and on the single bell at Sturton Magna are two of them only—figs. 62 and 69. On the first bell at North Somercotes is (in addition to figs. 61 and 69) the stamp fig. 63, and on the 2nd at Rand—both “Ave Maria” bells—is the fig. 69 only, where the letters are as shown in figs. 70 and 71 and 71a.

The spread eagle (fig. 69) is found on bells in Dorset, Somerset, and Wilts.

There are nine old bells, in churches near to each other, bearing the initial cross fig. 66, viz., Bratoft 3rd, North Cockerington 1st, Hundleby 1st, Orby 3rd, Wispington 3rd, South Ormsby 5th, Theddlethorpe S. Helen 2nd and 3rd, and Enderby Wood single; the first five also have the founder's trade mark fig. 68, bearing, apparently, his initials, rather rudely cut. Of him nothing is at present known: the finding of his bells near together leads to the inference that he was an itinerant founder, who, setting up his furnace in a central spot, did what business he could in the neighbourhood, and so the expense and trouble of sending bells a long distance to a foundry, in days when roads were sometimes well nigh impassable, were avoided. The inscriptions are in small black letter of a poor character, with capitals.

There are eleven bells from the same foundry in which are included some of the most interesting, as certainly the most ornate, specimens of the bellfounder's art in Lincolnshire. Two are the early dated ones at South Somercotes (2nd and 3rd) cast in the year 1423. Both these bear inscriptions in the fine gothic capitals which are engraved on the opposite *Plates IX., X., XI., and XII.**

These inscriptions are preceded by the beautiful decorated

* The moulds and casts of these letters and stamps, and of the letters engraved on Plate XIII., were made by J. R. Daniel-Tyssen, Esq., F.S.A., which casts were engraved by the late Mr. Orlando Jewitt-for W. A. Tyssen-Amherst, Esq., F.S.A., M.P., of Didlington Hall, Norfolk, by whose courteous permission they appear in this volume.

gothic cross fig. 75 here engraved, the words on the first of the two bells being separated by the fleur-de-lys fig. 76 and by the pretty stop fig. 77 on the preceding page; those on the other bell by the fleur-de-lys only: at the end of the inscription on each bell is scratched the trade mark fig. 78 here engraved, one-fourth the size of original.

The same initial cross fig. 75, and the fleur-de-lys fig. 76, are upon the 2nd bell at Toynton S. Peter, where the inscription is in the same grand capitals.

The same initial cross is also upon the 3rd bell at Hainton, and upon the two bells at Somersby, where, however, a small black letter is used for the inscriptions, but with capitals from the ornate set used at South Somercotes.

Another pair of singularly interesting bells cast by the same founder eight years after those at South Somercotes still remain at Somerby near Brigg—the 1st and 3rd. They each have a double inscription—one giving the name of the donor, the other the dedication of the bell. The first inscription on each bell is preceded by the stop fig. 78a, which is fig. 77 shortened one half, and so showing two roses only, and terminated by the trade mark fig. 78 as on the South Somercotes bells.

The second inscription on each bell is preceded by the initial cross fig. 79 here engraved. The gothic letters of these inscriptions are of a smaller character than those at South Somercotes, as is shown by the engravings of them as given on Plate XIII., the initial letters being, however, of the larger and more ornate kind, as is shown by the specimen word MARIE fig. 74*a*, on Plate XII. An inscription with the same letters (fig. 74*a*) is upon the 2nd bell at Hammeringham preceded by the cross fig. 75.

Again there are two other curious bells from this foundry—Beesby 3rd and Gunby S. Peter 2nd. The inscriptions, which in both cases are in the small gothic capitals all of one size shown on Plate XIII., are preceded by the initial cross fig. 79.

These two bells are, I think, a few years later in date than the other nine bells just described, for the founder not only does not use his ornate large initial capitals, but has broken them up, and uses scraps of them as intervening stops: thus we have on these two bells, in addition to the fleur-de-lys fig. 76, the nondescript from the letter T, the mitred head from the letter O, the lion from the letter C, the mask from the letter V, and a sprig of trefoil from the letter L of the fine capitals used at South Somercotes and engraved on Plates IX.—XII. With this description it is unnecessary to engrave these stops.

These eleven bells, all from the same foundry, are undoubtedly, with reference especially to their known dates and their ornamentation, the most interesting group yet illustrated in England.

The initial cross fig. 79 (just mentioned), or a cross exactly the same in form, occurs upon the single bell at Goulceby, and upon the 2nd at Gunby S. Nicolas. The lettering—gothic capitals—is, however, different from that at Beesby and Somerby.

In addition to the old bells already mentioned there are many others to which reference will be made in the notes upon the founders of the more modern bells, to whom we must now give attention.

CHESTERFIELD, DERBYSHIRE.

“RALPH HETHCOTE BELFOUNDER”—the son of Ralph Heathcote, brazier, of Chesterfield, whose will is dated in 1502—released, in 1524, to his son George Hethcote, certain lands, and died in the following year, when an inventory of his goods was taken.

GEORGE HEATHCOTE, another son of Ralph, whose will is dated in 1502, was also a bellfounder. His will is dated on the 4th of August, 1558 (after which date he soon died) and in it he bequeaths his dwelling in Saltergate-head, Chesterfield, and other property, to his wife Margaret, and then says:—“I give and bequethe to Raffe Hethcott my sonne and Heyre all my Lands and allso I bequethe to the same Raffe my sonne all my moldes and Towles all Brass and Bell metell and all other thinges in my workhowse apperteyning to my Occupation.”

There are four bells in Lincolnshire—West Barkwith 2nd, Belleau 1st, Bishop’s Norton 2nd, and Wadingham 2nd—which bear the curious shield fig. 80 on the annexed Plate XIV., which Mr. Jewitt (to whom I am indebted for

82

these notes on the Chesterfield foundry*) thinks may be assigned to this George Heathcote. These four bells in addition to the shield fig. 80 have the stamps figs. 81 and 82; and the Belleau and Wadingham bells have also the cross fig. 83, which also occurs by itself on the 1st bell at Asterby.

The stamps figs. 81 and 82 are also on the 1st bell at Scothorne in company with the capital letter D (fig. 84) used as a stamp, and found on the 5th bell at Matlock, in Derbyshire. This Scothorne bell was therefore from the same foundry as the four just mentioned. The same curious stamp (fig. 84) is also on the 5th bell at Appleby with the shield fig. 89 (see p. 87) bearing the initials of Thomas Bett of Leicester: from what foundry this bell came is uncertain.

It will be noticed that a distinctive feature in the stamps figs. 80 and 84 is the "fyifot," or cross cramponée. The fylfot, or swaslika as it was there called, was used as a symbol by the votaries of Buddha six hundred years before Christ. Centuries afterwards it was known in Scandinavia: and is supposed to have had some mystical signification in mediæval English heraldry and ecclesiastical art: it is found on the earliest known English monumental brass—that of Sir John D'Aubernon (A.D. 1277) at Stoke D'Aubernon, Surrey—and on rather later brasses at S. Leigh's, Essex, and at Kemsing in Kent.

GLOUCESTER.

THIS was the centre of the Bellfounder's art at an early period. John of Gloucester flourished early in the fourteenth century; Sandre of Gloucester and others followed. The Rudhalls worked a foundry here with great success from the end of the seventeenth century till about the year 1831, when it passed into the hands of the Whitechapel founders.

ABRAHAM RUDHALL supplied the ring of four bells at Heighington and three bells at Washingborough—upon all of which is his stamp (fig. 85) here given—in the year 1713: and the ring of eight to S. Peter at Arches, Lincoln, in the year 1728.

HERTFORD.

JOHN BRIANT, bellfounder of Hertford, supplied several bells to Lincolnshire churches. They date from 1793 at Claypole (3rd) to 1805 at Moulton (5th). He was born at Exning in Suffolk. He commenced business as a bellfounder by casting the ring of eight bells at S. Andrew's, Hertford, and his fame as a good founder soon procured him a large connection. In December, 1827, Mr. Briant (being then out of business) was consulted by Mr. Betham, Surveyor to the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, as to the crack then discovered in "Great Tom:" to Mr. Betham's questions Mr. Briant returned very full and practical replies, strongly recommending the employment of a London founder as having a proper furnace for so large a casting. Owing to pecuniary difficulties he ended his days in the Spencer Almshouses, S. Albans, where he died on the 27th of February, 1829, being then in the 81st year of his age. He was buried in All Saints' churchyard, Hertford.

Upon several of Briant's bells in this county the name of JOHN CABOURN is associated with his own as joint founder. Cabourn was a whitesmith, a church bellhanger, and a good change-ringer, but he was not a bellfounder. He began business in his early days with sixteen shillings gleaned in Christmas boxes. He died "after severe and painful affliction which he suffered with patience and fortitude" at Sutterton, in this county, on the 6th of April, 1813, aged 63 years, leaving behind him property of the value of £20,000.* He was buried at Sutterton, where his grave is marked by a plain headstone which records that with much assiduity he "carefully improved his talents," that in him were united "the skilful artist and scientific mechanic," and that he was "celebrated and admired for his professional excellence as a church bellhanger."

LEICESTER.

JOHANNES DE STAFFORD, whose name is mentioned as a bellfounder in the Fabric Roll of York Minster* under the date of 1371, was probably the same as the man of that name who was Mayor of Leicester in 1366, and again in 1370, and whose name appears as founder upon the tenor bell of the ring of All Saints', Leicester. He also cast (as we know from the initial cross, and the form of letters used) several other bells still hanging in Leicestershire. In this county his name appears upon the tenor bell at Scawby, with his initial cross, stop, and letters here engraved (figs. 86, 87 and 88) the size of the originals. The same are also upon the 2nd bell at West Allington, and the single bell at Dry Doddington, both of which are therefore fourteenth century bells, and may be assigned to him.

* Surtree Soc. Vol. 35. p. 9.

The first recorded bellfounder at Leicester is William Millers, who died in 1506: to him succeeded Thomas Newcombe (ob. 1520) who was succeeded by THOMAS BETT, Mayor of Leicester in 1529, and who died in 1538. Whether he was the founder of the 5th bell at Appleby, bearing an imperfect stamp with his initials fig. 89, is very uncertain. He was succeeded by his son-in-law,

ROBERT NEWCOMBE, Mayor of Leicester in 1550. He used the stamps figs. 90 and 91. The following bells in Lincolnshire may be assigned to him: the 2nd and 3rd at Barholm, the 1st at Careby, the 1st at Semperingham, the 3rd at Syston, and the 1st at Tallington. Robert Newcombe had three sons, Thomas, Robert, and Edward, who all became founders.

92

This Thomas Newcombe and his predecessors used many other stamps including fig. 93 found on the 3rd bell at Aslackby in company with the initial cross fig. 94, and on the 2nd at Bitchfield with fig. 91; figs. 95 and 97 on the 5th bell at Swinderby; and fig. 96 on the 1st bell at Bitchfield, and on the 4th at Swinstead; all which bells may be assigned to those founders, as may also the 2nd bell at Normanton, which has its inscription in large ornate gothic capitals like the 4th at Swinstead, but without an initial cross.

This Thomas Newcombe died in 1580-1.

96

97

(2) ROBERT NEWCOMBE another son of Robert placed his name and his stamps upon several bells in Leicestershire.

(3) EDWARD NEWCOMBE, a third son of Robert, was most probably the founder of the 2nd bell at Gretford, dated 1593, upon which he placed the stamp fig. 90 engraved on page 87.

This Edward Newcombe had three sons, Robert, Thomas, and William connected with the foundry, the last-mentioned of whom—William—cast in partnership with Henry Oldfield of Nottingham, Great Tom of Lincoln in the Minster-Yard in the year 1610. Soon after that date the foundry of the Newcombes appears to have merged into, or to have been eclipsed by that of the Watts family.

Several of that family, of whom we have no documentary notice, were casting bells in the sixteenth century. "Hew Watts" placed his name upon the 1st bell at South Luffenham, Rutland, in 1563; "William Wates" cast bells now hanging at Clifton, Bedfordshire, in 1590, but

FRANCIS WATTS appears with certainty as a Leicester bellfounder in 1564 when he bought some bell wheels from the church of S. Peter then being taken down. He died in the year 1600, his Will being proved in that year. These early members of the Watts family used letters and stamps previously used by the Brazyers, founders at Norwich; it is therefore highly probable that the immediate predecessor of one of them had been employed at Norwich, and leaving during the temporary closing of the foundry there upon the death of Richard Brasyer in 1513, found his way to Leicester, bringing some of the old bell gear with him, and opened a foundry there. Francis Watts occasionally joined in partnership with the Newcombes in casting bells: thus they jointly cast the tenor bell of Loughborough, Leicestershire, in 1585, and to such a partnership we may ascribe the 1st and 4th bells at S. John Baptist, Stamford, cast in 1561 upon which appears the stamp fig. 98 which we know to have belonged to the Newcombes, and fig. 99, with the ornate letters to be referred to presently all of which were constantly used by the Wattses: also on the curious

100

Both Francis Watts and his son and successor Hugh Watts also used the stamp fig. 100 which is found in company with their more usual stamp fig. 99 on the 3rd bell at Helpringham, dated 1600, where the inscription is in the ornate gothic capitals, specimens of which are here engraved.

Francis Watts was succeeded in the foundry by his son

HUGH WATTS, who soon obtained a very high reputation as a founder: his bells are still very numerous in Leicestershire, and are all extremely good in tone. He continued to use the stamp fig. 99 upon most of his bells, but only upon comparatively rare occasions did he use the ornate gothic capitals of his father fig. 101 above, substituting sometimes a somewhat plainer gothic letter fig. 102, but more generally a rather clumsy Roman capital. He extended the inscription round the bell, filling up the spaces between the words in most cases with an ornamental acorn band fig. 103. Harlaxton 3rd bell is the only specimen of his founding in this county. It is one of his "Nazarenes," so called by his contemporaries from the frequency with which he used the inscription given thereon.

Hugh Watts died in 1643: portions of his bell gear fell into the hands of the Nottingham founders: his letters are upon the 2nd bell at Blyton, but his stamp (fig. 99) and band ornament never appear after his death.

The Leicester foundry was closed, and no founder appeared again there until Thomas Clay commenced business about the opening of the eighteenth century. He sent no remaining bells into this county. After a second interval EDWARD ARNOLD opened a foundry at Leicester in or about the year 1784. He had worked with, and succeeded, Joseph Eayre, at S. Neots. He sent nine bells into this county—no complete ring—dating from 1787 at Croyland (4th) to 1797 at Stamford S. George (3rd).

MESSRS. TAYLOR. During part of the time that Edward Arnold carried on the Leicester foundry, he also continued his business at S. Neots, into which he received, as an apprentice, Robert Taylor, who towards the close of the eighteenth century succeeded to the foundry there, which at that time was carried on in a lofty brick building situate in the Priory, and built in the form of a bell. The business was carried on there by Robert Taylor, then by Robert Taylor and Sons, until the year 1821, when they removed to Oxford. In 1825 the late Mr. John Taylor, one of the above firm, went to Buckland Brewer, near Bideford, Devon, to cast bells there, and after casting several rings and odd bells in Devon, Cornwall, &c., returned to Oxford in 1835. In 1839 or 1840 he and his son came to Loughborough, Leicestershire, to cast the bells there, and finding the town well situated for business took up their residence in that place. Since that time Mr. John Taylor has died, leaving his son, the present Mr. John William Taylor, the head of the now justly celebrated Leicestershire foundry. The Oxford foundry, which had been chiefly under the superintendence of Mr. William Taylor, brother of the above-mentioned Mr. John Taylor, was closed upon his decease, which occurred in 1854.

The Messrs. Taylor have supplied a large number of bells to Lincolnshire from all their foundries. As their names appear upon them a list in detail is rendered unnecessary.*

KETTERING.

THE Parish Registers of Kettering show that several families of Eayre, Ayre, or Aire were living there in the latter part of the seventeenth, and early in the eighteenth centuries.

John Eayre was Constable in 1662. He and Thomas Eayre (probably his brother) signed the Kettering Vestry Book in 1714, and the latter also signed, with others, the order in the same book, and in the same year, for recasting the ancient church bells. The new bells were cast by Richard Sanders of Bromsgrove, from which we may infer that the Kettering foundry was not then opened. The Eayres were clockmakers, and as such Thomas Eayre's name appears upon the 4th bell then cast as "T. Eayre Horo."

"Thomas Ayre senr." was buried 15 April 1716. I gather from the Register that he was the Thomas Eayre the clockmaker just mentioned, and that he had two sons "Thomas son of Thomas Eayre and Anne his wife [who] was born 26 Aug. 1691 and baptized 21 Jany. 1711" and "Mr. Josh. Eayre an adult person baptized Oct. 26, 1731." This Joseph Eayre subsequently, as we shall see, opened a foundry at S. Neots.

THOMAS AND JOHN EAYRE. It would appear that very shortly after the death of Thomas Eayre the elder, his son Thomas Eayre, in partnership with (as I suppose) his uncle John Eayre, opened a bell-foundry at Kettering, for the 2nd bell at Cranford S. John, Northamptonshire, is inscribed "Thomas et Johannes Eayre de Kettering fecerunt," and is dated "Oct. 1717," and other bells in that county, all dated 1718, were from their foundry. I do not know the date of the death of John Eayre,—who sent no bells into Lincolnshire—but I find no bells bearing his name of a later date than 1718, and the Kettering foundry appears soon after that to have passed into the sole management of THOMAS EAYRE who also continued the business of a clockmaker.

It was of this Thomas Eayre that the Rev. J. Ludlam* subsequently wrote:—"I saw a great deal of the art of bell-founding in the time of the late Mr. Thomas Eayre of Kettering, a man who had a true taste for it, and spared no expense to make improvements. Much of tone depends on minute circumstances in the shape, and Mr. Eayre had crooks or forms cut in thin boards, carefully taken from the inside and outside of all the good bells he could find . . .”*

Thomas Eayre died on one of the last days of the year 1757. He was buried in Kettering Church, most probably in the south aisle of the chancel and in the same grave as his wife Susannah who had died three years previously, but no inscription records his sepulture. The entry of his burial in the parish register is:—

From his will, dated the 24th of September 1757, we learn that he had then four children: three daughters, Ann, Sarah, and Frances to each of whom he left a legacy of £50 and one son, Thomas, who was his sole executor.† This

THOMAS EAYRE (2nd) (who, according to the parish registers, married Eliz: Marshall on the 11th Oct. 1748) was associated with his father in the foundry and carried it on for a few years after his father's death. Mr. Ludlam says he was “a good bellfounder” and that “he cast a dish bell of 5 or 6 cwt. for the church clock of Boston, Lincolnshire, the tone of which was very deep and wild.”

According to a tradition current at Earl's Barton,

Northamptonshire, this Thomas Eayre was employed—as the present inscription testifies—to recast the tenor bell of that ring in 1761: he is said to have become bankrupt at that time, and not to have had enough metal to make the bell the weight it ought to have been. He employed his nephew Edward Arnold, afterwards of S. Neots and Leicester, to complete the job.

About that time the Kettering foundry was closed. Although the bells cast at Kettering were very numerous comparatively few are in this county: Wigtoft having the only complete ring supplied by Thomas Eayre. They are generally well cast and good in tone. His bells in Lincolnshire range in date from 1730 at Anwick (2nd) to 1761 at Folkingham (3rd) and Stamford S. George (1st). Thomas Eayre's favourite inscriptions were "Omnia fiant ad gloriam Dei"—"Gloria Deo soli"—"Gloria Patri Filio et Spiritui Sancto" and "I H S. Nazarenus Rex Judeorum Fili Dei miserere mei." He generally also placed the date and his name as founder (omitted however, on Anwick 2nd and Gretford 1st bells) and used a liberal supply of Croslets fitchy to fill up vacant spaces.

The street in Kettering now called Wadcroft was formerly known as "Bell-Founder's Lane." It is so named in old maps of the town. A few yards down this street, on the left hand entering from the High Street, is a blank wall: about mid-way along this wall may be traced in the pavement the edge stones about what was once the mouth of a well now filled up. This was known as "The Foundry Well," and the wall (to which is still fastened the iron hook which once held up the wooden covering of the well when open) was no doubt the exterior wall of the Kettering foundry. In Gold Street is the Grammar School: a short distance above which—standing a little back from the street, and partially hidden by a modern building—is an old fashioned house of a fair size: this was Thomas Eayre's private residence.*

LOUVAINE.

A. L. J. VAN AERSCHODT supplied the tenor bell of the ring of eight bells, and the thirty-six carillon bells to Boston in the year 1867. The readers of Mr. Haweis' Music and Morals, and of his numerous contributions to bell literature, will know that Peter van den Gheyn was a bellfounder at Louvaine in 1562. From him descended Matthias van den Gheyn (born 1721) "the greatest organist and carillonneur Belgium has ever produced." He died, aged 64, in 1785, leaving a numerous family. The present Louvaine bell-founders, André Louis van Aerschodt and Severin van Aerschodt, are the sons of Anne Maximiliane, his granddaughter. Mr. Haweis says that these gentlemen cast all the best bells that are made in Belgium, and that "certainly the younger brother, Severin, retains much of the artistic feeling and genuine pride in his bells so distinctive of the old founders." It further appears, from Mr. Haweis' remarks, that Boston was unfortunate in the choice between the two brothers: however that may be, it is generally allowed that Boston is not fortunate in the bells composing the carillon. Mr. Haweis explains the matter in a letter to the Times newspaper, written in November, 1878, by stating "that the drawings and plan for the Boston bells were made by Severin van Aerschodt; but the bells were cast by his brother, André Louis, who, on the authority of Mr. Denyn, the greatest living carillonneur, 'is a distinctly inferior maker.' M. Severin van Aerschodt rubs his hands anent these bells. He once said to me laughing, 'My brother had my designs, but he could not cast my bells.'"

NORWICH.

FROM the fourteenth to the eighteenth century Norwich, with slight breaks, had its bellfounders.

JOHN BREND, after being settled in Norwich some years, became a freeman of that city in 1573. He sent four bells in Lincolnshire, namely, Fleet 5th and Toynton All Saints' 2nd in 1572, Healing 4th in 1573, and Benniworth 2nd in 1577. He used Arabic numerals for his dates, and large uncouth Roman capitals for the few inscriptions he used, of which his Lincolnshire bells give specimens. His initials, I. B., which he usually placed upon his bells, are linked together in a quaint manner. He died in 1582.

R. G. There are four other bells (two—Irby-on-Humber 2nd and Langton-by-Horncastle single, dated 1579, Bracebridge single dated 1583, and Baumber 2nd dated 1585) bearing these initials, which, from the similarity of lettering and form of inscriptions, appear to have come from the same foundry, but the owner of the initials is at present unknown. The Baumber and Bracebridge bells bear the initial cross fig. 104. Upon the death of John Brend, as just mentioned, in 1582, the foundry was carried on by his

WILLIAM BREND, who used, amongst other forms of letters, a small black letter without capitals. To him I attribute a few bells in this county, viz.: Quadring 3rd and 4th dated 1619, Quarrington 1st dated 1624, Raithby-by-Spilsby 3rd cast in 1620, Toynton All Saints' 3rd in 1615, and Frodingham 2nd—with a capital initial letter—in 1624. He died in 1634, leaving his bell-metal in equal portions between his wife Alice, and their son, John Brend, and leaving the latter all his bell gear. John Brend carried on the foundry, and there is no record of his mother, Alice Brend, being in any way connected with it, but there is a bell (the 2nd) at Raithby-by-Louth, dated 1636, with an inscription in the gothic smalls (with initial capitals, however, in this case) used by William Brend, and ending with the initials I A B, which most probably mean

JOHN AND ALICE BREND, the mother being very likely associated with her son for at least a time until their joint bell-metal was converted into money. John Brend died in 1658.

No other existing bells in Lincolnshire came from the Norwich foundry, which was closed about the year 1753.*

NOTTINGHAM.

THERE are a large number of bells in Lincolnshire from the Nottingham foundries. Those foundries will, I think, whenever the history of the Church Bells of Nottinghamshire is written, be shown to have been amongst the largest and most important in the kingdom. It would be stepping beyond the boundaries of this volume to attempt the placing upon record more than the shortest possible account of such of the Nottingham founders as are at present known to us, to aid in identifying their bells, and to assist in tracing the founders of some of the more ancient bells now remaining in Lincolnshire churches.

At present we have no very early mention of a Nottingham bellfounder. "William Brasiere de Notyng-ham," who was admitted to the freedom of the city of Norwich in 1376, may have been (as it has been suggested) identical with William de Norwyco, who cast some bells in Norfolk about that date: "a few years residence in Norwich would have entitled him to call himself William de Norwyco."† A hundred years later—in 1488—we meet with

RICHARD MELLOUR, Alderman of Nottingham and "Bel-yetter." Deeds are preserved in the Free Library,

Nottingham, from which we learn that "Rico Mellour de Notyngham Belyetter" was living in 1488. He was Mayor of Nottingham in 1499, and again in 1506. He died, probably, about the year 1508, as there is a Deed extant to which "Dame Agnes Mellers, widowe, executrix of the testament of Richard Mellers, late of Notyngham, belfounder," was a party: it is dated xvij October xxiiij Henry vii.* Richard Mellour was succeeded by his son ROBERT MELLOUR, also Alderman of Nottingham and Bellfounder: he was, probably, the founder of an early ring of Bells, predecessors of those at present at Louth in this county, which ring, we shall see, was cast in 1510, and also of a bell mentioned in the Accounts of the Churchwardens of Wigtoft, as being cast by a Nottingham founder, in the year 1525. His Will, a copy of which is now before me, is dated the 16th of July 1525, and he died shortly after its execution.

It will be seen from the annexed Pedigree, for which I am much indebted to Captain A. E. Lawson Lowe, F.S.A., that Robert Mellour's widow, Juliana, was married, secondly, to Nicolas Quarnbie, and that his only daughter and heiress, Elizabeth, became the wife of Humphrey Quarnbie, Alderman, and sometime Member of Parliament for Nottingham. Whether this Humphrey was a bellfounder is not quite certain: he probably was. It is evident from Robert Mellour's Will that his foundry must have passed with his other property to his daughter and heiress Elizabeth, who was this Humphrey's wife, and their son, Robert Quernbie, was, as we shall see, undoubtedly a bellfounder. This Robert was not born until some few years after his grandfather, Robert Mellour's death, and it is not likely that the foundry would be suffered to remain idle. Thomas Mellour, the younger brother of Robert, (see pedigree), may have been a bellfounder, and possibly continued the business after his brother's death, but it is rather improbable, for this Thomas left two sons, William and Fabyan, neither of whom seem to have been bellfounders. It is most likely that the foundry passed by marriage from the Mellours to the Quernbies or Quarnbies.

ROBERT QUERNBIE, however, the son of Humphrey Quernbie, and grandson of Robert Mellour, is the only one of the name we know, with certainty, at present, as a bellfounder. He was married in January 1567-8. He had six children,—two boys and four girls—: the two boys died young, and so, having no one of his own family to succeed to the foundry, he appears, some time prior to 1593, to have taken Henry Oldfield into his business, for their joint names

ROBERT QUERNBIE and HENRY OLDFIELD are upon two bells still hanging in this county—the tenor at Lincoln Cathedral, and the 3rd bell at Ruskington, both dated 1593. We know that in the same year they also cast four of the "Lady Bells" formerly hanging in the central tower of Lincoln Cathedral. On the two existing bells is the stamp fig. 105, on the annexed Plate XV., bearing the

joint names of the founders. In addition to this stamp the Lincoln bell bears the initial cross fig. 106, and the stamp fig. 108: this last mentioned stamp (fig. 108) is also on the Ruskington bell in company with the rose-like stamp fig. 107. These three stamps will be again referred to presently.

I do not know when Robert Quernbie died, but at his death the foundry was carried on by Henry Oldfield.

Whether the Oldfields were an old Nottingham family or whether one of the name settled there about the middle of the sixteenth century is uncertain: judging from certain bell stamps and letters used by the Oldfields, but which "were certainly made originally for some fifteenth century foundry, probably at York, as they have only been found with their earliest trade marks in Yorkshire, Durham, and Northumberland," it would appear that the latter was the case.*

The first of the name, as a bellfounder, I have met with is

THOMAS "OWEFELD," who cast the Sanctus bell for the church of Melton-Mowbray, Leicestershire, in 1553: but the record does not say he was of Nottingham.†

* See Mr. Fowler's Notes in Yorks. Arch. Journal, II. 65, and see also Church Bells of Somerset, p. 118, for an engraving of an ornate letter afterwards in Oldfield's hands. It may be worthy of notice, in connection with this idea, that bells by John of York are existing in Leicestershire and Northamptonshire, and that one at least of his stamps—the Virgin and Child—is found on a bell at Wellingore in this county, which was most probably cast by the Nottingham founders.

† North's Church Bells of Leicestershire, p. 247.

HENRY OLDFIELD of Nottingham is said to have been living in 1558. There are five undated bells bearing a stamp ensigned with a crown fig. 109 on Plate XVI., which clearly belonged to that family. They are the 1st bell at Mareham-le-Fen, the 4th at Stow, the 3rd and 4th at Walcott, and the 2nd at Silk Willoughby. In company with this stamp, fig. 109, occurs the cross fig. 111 on the bells just mentioned at Stow, Walcott (4th), and Silk Willoughby: also on the Stow bell is found the "Royal Head" fig. 112, on the 4th at Walcott the two "Royal Heads" figs. 110 and 112, and on the Silk Willoughby the former of those two only. These stamps will be presently referred to again. The forms of the inscriptions on these five bells accord with what we should expect to find at the transition period in which this Henry Oldfield lived: they may be safely assigned to him as their founder.

On the Sessions Roll of the town of Nottingham for the seventeenth year of Elizabeth's reign (1574-5) are two presentments of this Henry Oldfield, which are by no means creditable to him and his family. They serve our present purpose, for they give the locality of the Nottingham foundry at that time. He is described as "Henryr Oldefelde bellfounder ov' the Longe Row." This, or the back part of it, became afterwards known as Bellfounder's Yard, and there the foundry continued until its extinction at the commencement of the present century.

The date of the death of this Henry Oldfield is at present unknown.

HENRY OLDFIELD (2nd), who is assumed to have been

the son of the last-named Henry, is the bellfounder who became partner with Robert Quernbie, and of whose bells, dated 1593, at Lincoln and Ruskington, mention has already been made. There are other bells in Lincolnshire, dated prior to 1600, which clearly were cast by him both before and after his connection with Robert Quernbie. Among these may be mentioned Hacconby 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, dated 1596; Kirkby-cum-Osgodby 1st and 2nd, dated 1598; Limber Magna 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, dated 1595; Partney 2nd, dated in the same year; Scampton 3rd, the earliest of his dated bells—1582; Washingborough 3rd, 4th, and 5th, dated 1589; these all bear a similar stamp to the one used by the first Henry Oldfield, but without the ensigned crown: it is engraved fig. 113 on Plate XVI.

The inscriptions on all these bells are preceded by the initial cross fig. 116. This stamp (fig. 113), and similar ones, with the same initial cross, we shall find were used by all the Oldfields.

Other bells cast by Henry Oldfield prior to 1600 also bear the initial cross fig. 111 on Plate XVI., in company with his distinctive stamp fig. 113; such are Boothby Pagnell 3rd, dated 1594; Branston 1st and 2nd, dated 1595; and Moulton 4th, dated 1588.

Again, on the 2nd bell at Fenton, dated 1596, is the initial cross fig. 117 (over) with the distinctive stamp fig. 113, which stamp is without any initial cross upon the 2nd bell at Heydour, dated 1587. The initial cross itself (fig. 116) is alone upon the 4th bell at Branston, dated 1595, the 1st at Hale Magna, dated 1589; the 1st at Newton, near Folkingham, and the 3rd at Swaton, both dated 1596.

This Henry Oldfield occasionally placed the Royal Arms on his bells: the stamp fig. 114 on Plate XVII. is upon the 5th bell at Barton-on-Humber, dated 1598; the 3rd at Boothby Pagnell, dated 1594; the 1st at Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, dated 1598; and the 3rd at Limber Magna, dated 1595. For bands, and to fill up the spaces between the words of his inscriptions Henry Oldfield used occasionally the grotesque pattern fig. 118 here engraved, and the graceful one fig. 115 on the Plate XVII.: the former is found at Barton-on-Humber S. Peter (5th), Corby (4th), Ewerby (2nd), Hale Magna (1st), Kirkby-cum-Osgodby (1st), Scampton (3rd), and at Lavington (tenor): the latter is on bells at Aswarby (3rd), Heydour (2nd), Northope (single), Pilham (single); and also, with the other band fig. 118, on the tenor at Lavington.

We will now leave, for the present, the course of the Nottingham foundry at the date we have chosen as the line between what we call the ancient bells and the modern—A.D. 1600—and see whether the information we already possess will help us in assigning a few more of the ancient bells still remaining in this county to their founders.

Although the ancient bells have not usually either date or founder's name to enable us to say definitely by which particular man they were cast, the founder's stamps very frequently enable us to assign them to distinct foundries, and, allowing a broad margin, to approximate dates. These remarks apply to the Nottingham foundry or foundries carried on by the Mellours, Quernbies, and Oldfields, prior to the year 1600. By learning what stamps those founders placed upon their bells in the sixteenth century we may fairly assign—there being no contradictory circumstances—earlier bells bearing the same stamp, or stamps found in company with them, to the same foundry.

On the 3rd bell at Scampton, dated 1582, is, as we have seen (p. 107), the initial cross fig. 116 in company with the stamp fig. 113, which latter is well known to have been used by Henry Oldfield of Nottingham, whose initials it contains. Now in addition to the large number of comparatively modern bells (about fifty) bearing this cross, fig. 116, there are several more ancient ones, bearing the same cross, generally, like the modern one, on a square block, but sometimes on a lozenge. These bells, which may therefore fairly be assigned to the ancient Nottingham foundry, are at Alkborough (2nd), Asgarby (4th), Aylesby (3rd), North Carlton (2nd), Enderby Mavis (3rd), Hagworthingham (5th), Holton-le-Clay (2nd), Kirkby-cum-Osgodby (3rd), Lavington (tenor), South Willingham (2nd), and Wragby (4th and 5th).

All these, with the exception of the bells at Alkborough, Hagworthingham, and Lavington, also bear the shield fig. 119 on Plate XVIII., accompanied, on the Aylesby bell, with the initial cross fig. 120.

This shield (fig. 119) which bears the trade mark of a founder whose initials were R. C. is interesting to us here because it can be traced back for about five hundred years. It is found upon the curious little bell hanging on the top of the Guildhall, Lincoln, which bell was cast in the Mayoralty of William Belle—A.D. 1371.

This shield being thus fairly assigned to a Nottingham founder, the following ancient bells—in addition to those already mentioned—upon which it appears may also be said to have been cast at that foundry: Althorpe 1st and 2nd, Boothby Graffoe 1st and 3rd, Claxby 2nd, Frodingham 3rd, (with fig. 122, and a Royal Head fig. 110 on Plate XVI.) Honington 2nd, Reepham single, Waith 1st and 2nd, Winthorpe 2nd, and Yarborough 2nd, all with the initial cross fig. 120; and South Carlton single, Hackthorne single, Halton East 2nd, Manby 2nd and 3rd, Scopwick 3rd, and Tetford 3rd all with the initial cross fig. 121. In order to dispose of the cross fig. 121 it may be here noted that it occurs by itself on the 1st bell at Manby, and on the 2nd at Saxilby. Upon the 1st bell at Boothby Graffoe the shield, fig. 119, is alone. Again it is on the 1st bell at

Boothby Pagnell and on the single bell at Swarby accompanied in both cases by the cross fig. 123, which cross is also on the 1st bell at Canwick, the 1st at Rowston, and the 1st at Wispington.

Again this shield, fig. 119, is on the 3rd bell at Deeping S. James in company with the early stamp fig. 124, which is found upon several ancient bells in Leicestershire and Northamptonshire. If we may, from this connection at Deeping S. James, assign this stamp (fig. 124) to an early Nottingham founder, then the following other bells bearing it may fairly be presumed to have come from the foundry there:— it will be noticed that most of them hang in churches on the western side of the county, and so near to Nottinghamshire—: Aswarby 1st, Asterby 3rd, Bassingthorpe 1st, Branston 3rd, Bytham Castle 1st, Carlby single, Fenton 1st, Hale Magna 3rd, Holton-le-Clay 3rd, Immingham 2nd, Lavington 1st and 2nd, Norton Disney 2nd, Semperingham 2nd, Stickford single, Stickney 3rd, Tallington 2nd, Waddington 4th and Welbourne 2nd. Nearly all these bear very simple inscriptions—only the name of a saint, and two of them stamps only—thus indicating their antiquity. On three of them—Bassingthorpe 1st, Lavington 1st and Stickney 3rd—is also the crown fig. 125 (found with the same stamp in Northamptonshire) accompanied at Lavington with a fleur-de-lys very similar, but not exactly like fig. 76 on page 79, and with the stamp fig. 126 here engraved which is also on the 2nd bell at Immingham just mentioned. This last mentioned stamp (fig. 126) is found in Leicestershire, as in this county, in company with fig. 124. We may, perhaps, approximately, date this stamp (fig. 124) by reference to the Will of Alice, wife of Anketel de Mallorby, proved on the 26th Oct. 1412, by which she bequeathed £10. to the fabric of the Campanile of the church of Castle Bytham.* Supposing the tower to be then building, it is very probable that the 1st bell upon which is the stamp now under notice, would be cast about the same time. Lastly the shield fig. 119 is also on the 3rd bell at West Rasen in company with fig. 110, the 1st at Tealby, and the 3rd at Waith, with figs. 110 and 111, and on the 3rd at Wilsford with fig. 111 only, for engravings of which see Plate XVI., all which stamps will be referred to again presently.

In attempting to trace the birthplace of a few more of the ancient bells still remaining in this county, we will look at another early bell known to have been cast by the Nottingham founders.

The 3rd bell at Ruskington, dated 1593, which bears the trade mark of Robert Quernbie and Henry Oldfield of Nottingham (see p. 104) also bears two stamps which are here engraved, and which are found on a large number of bells in Lincolnshire—figs. 107 and 127: the latter appears in two forms, the one here given, which is the more ancient form, and another from a coarser formed stamp (fig. 108 on Plate XV.) which is evidently a later production: it is this ruder form which is upon the Ruskington bell.

These stamps—Rose and Shield, figs. 107 and 127,—are upon ancient bells at Alkborough (1st.), Barrowby (5th), Burton Coggles (3rd), Caistor (5th), Gonerby Great (3rd), Gunby S. Again these two stamps, figs. 107 and 127, are accompanied by the cross fig. 128 on Plate XIX., on the 4th bell at Corby, the 4th at Hacconby, and on the grand bell at S. Mark's, Lincoln, dated 1585, upon which are also the stamps figs. 129 and 132.

At Haxey they occur, on the 5th bell, with the figure of

the Virgin and Child fig. 133 here engraved, which is found in company with the same stamps upon the 4th bell at Stanion in Northamptonshire. At Northope they occur on the single bell with the initial cross fig. 130 on Plate XIX., only found once in this county. At Saltfleetby S. Peter, the 1st bell has them in company with the cross fig. 134 here engraved, and which is not found elsewhere in Lincolnshire. Again these stamps figs. 107 and 127 occur on the 2nd bell at East Kirkby, and on the single bell at Pilham, in company with the shield fig. 131 on Plate XIX., which is also, with other stamps, on the 5th bell at Burgh, dated 1589, and on the 2nd at Snelland, dated 1647, the latter bearing as will be seen, the trade mark of Augustine Bowler.

Once more these stamps—the Rose and Shield—are found with the initial cross fig. 106—which it will be remembered is on Quernbie and Oldfield's bell at Lincoln Cathedral (see p. 105)—on the 1st bell at Normanby-on-the-Wold. There are twenty bells in this county bearing the same initial cross, in several cases accompanied by the Oldfields' marks: all these, which need not be particularized, were cast at Nottingham.

The Rose (fig. 107) is alone upon modern bells at Blyton (1st), Goxhill (2nd), Laughton (3rd), and Normanton (3rd).

The shield (fig. 127) is alone on the 4th bell at Belton, the 3rd at Boothby Graffoe, the Priest's at Hale Magna, the 3rd at North Witham, and the 3rd at Yarborough.

The more modern form of this shield (fig. 108 on Plate XV.) occurs with the Rose (fig. 107) on South Cockerington 3rd (with fig. 170), Hagworthingham 6th, Lincoln tenor (with fig. 105), Lincoln S. Botolph's Priest's, on the 1st and 3rd at Ruskington, and on the 3rd at Saxilby with Oldfield's initial cross.

Another known bell of the Nottingham foundry prior to 1600 is the 3rd bell at Boothby Pagnell, dated 1594, which in addition to Henry Oldfield's stamp (fig. 113) also bears the initial cross fig. 111 (see Plate XVI.), which is found on about seventeen bells in this county.

Again another bell from Nottingham—Ruskington 2nd—dated in the same year as the one at Boothby Pagnell (1594) bears a very similar initial cross fig. 135, which is also found elsewhere. Several of the bells with the cross fig. 111 also bear other stamps (figs. 119 and 109) known to have belonged to the Nottingham founders. These crosses (figs. 111 and 135) are found in other parts of the kingdom frequently in company with stamps known to campanists as

ROYAL HEADS. These "Royal Heads" are supposed to have originally belonged to London founders, and have been assigned, from peculiarities of treatment, to Edward I. and Queen Eleanor, Edward III. and Queen Phillippa, Henry VI., Margaret of Anjou, and her son Prince Edward. Those assigned to Edward III. and Queen Phillippa (figs. 110 and 112 on Plate XVI.) are the only two found in Lincolnshire: they occur upon several bells in addition to those mentioned on p. 106, and it should be observed that so late as 1787 one (fig. 110) occurs on the 1st bell at Wellingore, cast in that year by George Hedderly of Nottingham.

In company with the Royal Heads at Edlington (3rd), Marton (1st), Wellingore (3rd), and Haltham-on-Bain (3rd), is the shield fig. 137 on Plate XX), which is also on bells at Barnetby-le-Wold (2nd), Burton-by-Lincoln (single), Burwell (2nd), Edlington (2nd), Grimoldby (3rd), Immingham (1st), Kelsey South (3rd), Linwood (2nd and 3rd), and Roxby-cum-Risby (3rd). At Wellingore there is in addition another stamp of the Virgin and Child, fig. 136 engraved on Plate XX. This stamp is found upon the 2nd bell at Wanlip, Leicestershire, cast by John of York, who supplied several bells to Leicestershire churches, and his name is also found in Northamptonshire. We can arrive at the approximate date of the shield fig. 137 from the date—1500—which is said to have been on a bell upon which it formerly appeared at Grasby, recast in 1873. A similar shield fig. 139 is found on the 2nd bell at Belton and on the 2nd at Scothorne. The initials are most probably those of Henry Oldfield, the letters and cross at Scothorne being precisely similar to those on Wragby 3rd bell, which has his ordinary stamp fig. 113 (see Plate XVI.).

It should be noticed that of the inscriptions on the sixteen bells with these shields figs. 137 and 139, four commence with IN NOMINE, &c., and seven with the Holy Name of IHS: the same remark applies to similar bells in Leicestershire.

Again as before stated (see p. 107) on the 2nd bell at Fenton, dated 1596 occurs—with the Oldfields' stamp fig. 113—the initial cross fig. 117 reproduced on Plate XX., which is a well known Nottingham stamp: it is also found upon ancient bells at Friesthorpe (3rd), Holton-le-Becker-ing (1st on a lozenge shaped block), Laceby (1st), and Manton (single): on the latter bell it is accompanied with a kind of mason's mark fig. 138. It (fig. 117) is also on several modern, and dated, bells.

BELLS OF "S S." There are a number of bells in Lincolnshire with no inscription beyond the letter S repeated in company with some founder's stamps. The meaning of this letter S is uncertain. It probably means Sanctus, not the Tersanctus, for the number varies, two being found on many bells, three on some, and four on others. In all cases the cross fig. 140 here engraved is repeated with the letter S. This will be found to be the case on Bassingthorpe 3rd, Brigsley 2nd, Legbourn 2nd, Quarrington 2nd, and on the 1st and 2nd bells at Raithby-by-Spilsby: more frequently, however, this cross and the letter S are accompanied by the Rose and Shield (see figs. 107 and 127 on p. 114), one being usually placed over the other, as on the 1st bell at Barnoldby-le-Beck, the 2nd at Boothby Graffoe, the single bell at Bucknall, the 1st at Covenham S. Bartholomew, the 1st at Faldingworth, the 2nd at Friesthorpe, the 1st at Great Gonerby, the 1st at Grayingham, the 4th at Harlaxton, the 1st at Hemswell, the 4th at Leasingham, the 3rd at Normanby near Spital, and on the 3rd at S. John Baptist, Stamford: on Dunsby 2nd, fig. 107, and on Toynton S. Peter 1st, fig. 127 are omitted.

All these are pre-Reformation bells, and none of them are dated, but as we know that figs. 107 and 127 belonged to the Nottingham founders (see p. 113), we have no hesitation in assigning these "S S" bells to them. The letter S as used on these bells will be found fig. 178 on Plate No. XXVF.

TUDOR BADGES. There is another cluster of bells, seven in number, in near proximity to each other, upon each of which occur some of the stamps figs. 141—145 drawn on Plate XXI. These seven bells are Barnetby-le-Wold 3rd, with figs. 142, 143, and 144; Burton-on-Stather 1st, Elsham 2nd, the Priest's at East Halton, Horkstow 1st, and Somerby near Brigg 2nd, with figs. 141, 142, 144, and 145; and South Ferriby 3rd with figs. 142, 143, 144, and 145. Upon the bells at Elsham, East Halton, and Somerby there is no inscription whatever, on the other four bells the the stamps are associated with scraps of the black letter alphabet oddly mixed up, in two cases, of capitals and "smalls," as is shown by fig. 146, which is a reduced copy of the full inscription on the bell at Burton-on-Stather. The Horkstow bell is dated 1578, and so gives, (what is no doubt), the approximate date of the series.

There are two other bells of this date upon which the same mixed jumble of letters appear—Riby 3rd and Wrawby 1st—the latter dated 1581: upon neither of these, however, occur the Tudor Badges, but each bears the initial cross fig. 147, and the latter in addition the shield fig. 148, both here engraved. (Arms of Clare College Cambridge)

Tudor Badges were in the hands of Henry Oldfield of Nottingham, as we know from certain bells of his in Leicestershire.* I suspect he was the founder of these Lincolnshire bells: which suspicion is strengthened by finding on the 3rd bell at Gunby S. Peter, in company with the Rose and Shield figs. 107 and 127 (which undoubtedly belonged to the Nottingham founders) a series of capital gothic letters of the same character as those on the bells with the Tudor Badges, and, like them, clumsily placed, some of them, upside down.

“TRINITATE” BELLS. Again there are eight other bells in Lincolnshire, all from the same foundry, which may be so designated from the inscription they bear:—

Hec Campana Sacra Fiat Trinitate Beata.

These eight bells are Burgh 5th, Haxey 6th, East Kirkby 2nd, Loughton 3rd, Lincoln S. Mark's single, Metheringham 5th, Ruskington 3rd, and Spilsby 6th. Other bells have the same inscription, but they do not belong to this set. Although these eight bells all bear the same inscription it is not always in the same order, for whilst the capital letters are each from separate stamps, the small letters of each word are from a single block, and so although the order of the words could be, and was altered, the same spelling was necessarily always preserved. These bells, and similar ones in other counties, have, since Mr. Fowler called attention to them,* created some interest among bell students because of the uncertainty of their founder; because, by them, the passing on of bell stamps from one founder to another for three hundred years can be traced; and, thirdly, because certain initials H D which appear upon some of them, and upon other bells of the same date and from the same foundry, have hitherto baffled enquiries as to their owner.

Taking these points in their order, although it was suspected that these Lincolnshire examples, and some others like them, were from the Nottingham foundry, it was reserved for the 3rd bell at Ruskington, dated 1593, to declare the fact with certainty; that bell bears, as we have already seen, fig. 105 (see p. 104) used by Quernbie and Oldfield, who in the same year cast the tenor bell of S. Hugh's ring, and four "Lady Bells" for Lincoln Cathedral.* Mr. Fowler says "These letter-stamps were certainly made originally for some fifteenth century founder, probably at York, as they have only been found with their earliest trade marks in Yorkshire, Durham, and Northumberland. It seems likely that a Nottingham founder, possibly an ancestor, or, at least, a predecessor, of the Oldfields, who cast so many bells in Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire before and after 1600, had become possessed of the original stamps, or copies of them made by casting." However that may have been the letters are found on a bell at Sedgefield, Durham, cast circa 1450; we then find them, to quote only dated bells, at S. Mark's, Lincoln, on a bell (removed from S. Benedict's) dated 1585, at Burgh in 1589, at Ruskington, as just mentioned, with the founders' names, in 1593, at Laughton in 1607, and lastly on the 6th bell at which he also shows the founder must have been Henry Oldfield.

Spilsby, cast by Daniel and Thomas Hedderly, in 1744: thus showing that the same stamps and letters were used by a succession of founders for three centuries.

With regard to the initials H C—figs. 149 and 150 here engraved—which are found on the Burgh bell just mentioned, and on the 2nd bell at Ewerby, the 2nd at South Hykeham, the 3rd at Lavington, and the 4th at Corby, it should be observed that the first initial is the letter H from the word Her, and the second is the letter C (reversed to do duty as a D) from the word Campana of the Trinitate inscriptions, thus showing, as already stated, that these capitals were separate stamps. That these two letters are not the initials of the master founder we now know; that they occur too often to be those of a donor or benefactor is quite evident, neither can they, for the same reason, represent the name of Vicar or any other official of the place in which they are found. The most probable supposition is that they are the initials of a foreman, or of some one connected with the foundry, who thus, in a modest way, wished to hand down a memorial of his share in the work of casting some of the finest bells in the county. This supposition is well nigh proved to be correct by a reference to the pedigree of the Quernbie and Mellour families opposite page 125, where we find that Robert Quernbie, the partner of Henry Oldfield in the casting of the Ruskington bell, married Frances, the daughter of Henry Dand: what more probable than that Henry Dand was connected with the foundry, and so placed his initials—using for that purpose two of Oldfield's elaborate capitals—upon such of the bells as were cast specially under his superintendence?*

Two of these ornate capitals, Q and F, are used as initial letters to the inscriptions on the 1st and 2nd bells at Scotter, dated 1692; and the letter H from the same set, with stamps from the Nottingham foundry, is on the single bell at Pilham.

There are a few more late sixteenth century stamps which were in the hands of the Nottingham founders.

* Since writing the above my supposition has been strengthened by the finding that mention is made of Harry Oldfield and Harry Danne, bellfounders, of Nottingham, in the books of Shrewsbury Abbey Church, in 1591.

 OLDFIELD FAMILY.

[The extracts from Registers kindly supplied to me by Captain A. E. Lawson Lowe, FSA]

On the 5th bell at Winteringham is the Tudor Rose fig. 152 on Plate XXII., in company with "The Eagle and Child," fig. 151, and the Fleur-de-lys 154 which is a Nottingham stamp. The Eagle and Child is also upon the 3rd bell at Marsh Chapel, dated 1584, and upon the 4th at Ulceby, dated 1583, upon both of which is also the Tudor Rose, ensigned with a crown fig. 153, which is also on the tenor bell at Lavington—a Nottingham bell. Ulceby has, in addition the fleur-de-lys fig. 154 as at Winteringham, also the stamp fig. 155 found in Lincolnshire only on this bell. The fleur-de-lys, fig. 154, is also on the 3rd bell at Silk Willoughby, and the comparatively modern bells (2nd, 3rd, and 4th) at Irnham, all undoubtedly Nottingham bells.

Without positively asserting that these inferences lead, in every case, to the correct foundry, it may be said, until the contrary is shown, that the ancient bells in Lincolnshire bearing the founders' stamps figs. 105 to 155 both inclusive, were supplied to their several churches by Nottingham founders.

From the year 1600 till the year of his death, 1620, HENRY OLDFIELD (2nd) continued sending many bells into Lincolnshire: Ropsley 1st, being the last supplied by him in 1620. He did not place his name upon his bells, but they are readily distinguished by the presence of one or more of his distinctive stamps already described. He was, as will be seen by reference to the annexed Pedigree, married twice, having at least five children by his first wife, and seven by the second: the baptisms of two only of these have yet been found in the Registers of S. Mary's,

Nottingham, but I find a bell at Everton, Huntingdonshire, cast by Richard Holdfield in the year 1611; Robert Oldfield (according to the Churchwardens' Accounts preserved there) cast a bell for Shillington, Bedfordshire, in 1638, he being, apparently, at that time established at Hertford; and on the 4th bell at Metherringham in this county, cast in 1620, bearing an inscription in the Nottingham letters, is the usual Nottingham initial cross fig. 116 with the shield-like stamp fig. 156 on Plate XXIII., bearing the letters P. H. perhaps the initials of Philip Holdfield: the same stamp is also upon the 2nd bell at Burton-on-Stather, dated 1622; the 3rd and 5th at Metherringham, dated 1620; and the 2nd at Rauceby, dated 1621. It is very probable that Richard, Robert and P. Oldfield were sons of Henry, but there is no proof forthcoming at present. Selden Notes 2<sup>m</sup> 1622 4th

Upon the death of Henry Oldfield, in 1620, the foundry passed into the hands of his son

GEORGE OLDFIELD the register of whose baptism has not been found, but who is assumed to have been one of the second family. He sent a goodly number of bells into Lincolnshire dating from 1620 at Frampton (5th) and other places, to 1674 at Barrow-on-Humber (4th). He very rarely placed his name on his bells: it appears on the 1st bell at S. Nicolas, Leicester, cast in 1656; and as rarely his initials, which, however, are upon the 6th bell at Appleby in this county, one on either side of the Nottingham stamp fig. 116 (p. 107). He more generally used either the stamp fig. 159 here engraved, which occurs only once in this county—on the 5th bell at Great Ponton, dated 1667—or the one fig. 157 on the annexed Plate XXIII., which is found on very many bells.

It will be observed that the stamp fig. 159 is his father's old one, with the first initial H (of which the head and tail appear) altered to G. He soon gave up the use of the old initial cross fig. 116, which had been used for so many years by the Nottingham founders, but which, doubtless, became to be considered out of fashion: it does not appear in Lincolnshire after the year 1636, when he placed it upon the 2nd bell at Welby.

There is a bell at Messingham (3rd) upon which is the stamp fig. 158. This bell does not bear any of the usual Nottingham stamps, but the letters used in the inscription show it to have been cast by George Oldfield.

George Oldfield, who died in 1680, married, in 1622, Elizabeth Green, by whom he had a numerous family (see Pedigree)—three sons, Henry, John, and George, and four daughters. Henry and John died young; George lived longer, was married, and was associated with his father in the foundry, but died, without issue, in 1660—in his father's lifetime. Alice, the fourth daughter and twin with John, was married, in 1663, to one Hugh Oldfield. Who he was is not known: George Oldfield the younger, who, as just stated, died in 1660, left by his Will, dated the 4th of July in that year, and proved in the Prerogative Court of York, five shillings to this Hugh Oldfield, but does not describe him as a kinsman. Who carried on the foundry for some years after the death of George Oldfield in 1680 is uncertain : perhaps William Noone, who will be mentioned presently. Hugh Oldfield died in 1672, and Alice his widow in 1677, leaving an only son

GEORGE OLDFIELD (2nd), who was baptized in 1671, and who eventually succeeded to his grandfather's business. He died in 1741, and a headstone, with the following inscription, yet marks his grave on the north side of the churchyard of S. Mary's, Nottingham, not far from the vestry door :

Here
lieth interred the Body of George Oldfield

Body of Elizabeth the Wife of y<sup>e</sup> said George Oldfield
She died in April, 1736, in the 41st year of her Age.

I do not think this George Oldfield did much in the business of the foundry, which appears, before his death, to have passed into the hands of the Hedderlys. The later Oldfields used several floral band ornaments between the words of their inscriptions: a specimen is here given fig. 160.

DANIEL HEDDERLY, living in 1722, described as of Bawtry in the county of York, in an Agreement dated in 1733,* and

DANIEL AND JOHN HEDDERLY—whether father and son, or brothers is uncertain—described in another Agreement, dated 1732, as both of the borough of Derby, bellfounders,† sent many bells into Lincolnshire. Daniel Hedderly's bells—upon which he frequently placed his initials instead of his name—date from 1723 at Haxey (3rd) and Leadenham (2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th), to 1759 at Digby (3rd); John Hedderly's name is only on two bells at Carlton-le-Moorland (1st and 2nd) dated 1733, and on one at Louth (4th) dated 1726, where are other bells cast at the same time by Daniel Hedderly, thus showing them to be in partnership. It appears that upon the death of John † Reliquary XIII. 225.

Hedderly, Thomas Hedderly became associated with Daniel in the foundry, for the ring of six bells at Spilsby were cast in 1744 by DANIEL and THOMAS HEDDERLY as the inscription on the 5th bell testifies.

When the Hedderlys settled at Nottingham I cannot tell, for no one of the nearly eighty bells in this county upon which Daniel Hedderly's name or initials appear is the locality of his foundry given. That it was before the year 1744 is evident from the 6th bell at Spilsby cast in that year, which bears the ancient "Trinitate" inscription in the handsome gothic letters already described (see p. 123) as belonging to the Nottingham founders.

THOMAS HEDDERLY, who placed his name upon bells during the lifetime of Daniel, sent a few bells to Lincolnshire, dating from 1743 at Donington (4th) to the date of his death which occurred about the year 1778; he left four sons, Thomas, who died in 1785; George, who emigrated to America about the year 1800; John and Samuel. The two first named were bellfounders; and John, who was also described as a bellfounder, became afterwards a framsmith.

THOMAS HEDDERLY (2nd) supplied a few bells to Lincolnshire dated in 1782; and GEORGE HEDDERLY sent a bell to Wellingore in 1787, and two to South Witham in 1785.

The Hedderlys became possessed of several ornate stamps belonging to their predecessors. On the 4th bell at Spilsby are two such—one a crown, and the other a shield-like stamp with three bells; and on the 3rd at Welby, cast by Thomas Hedderly in 1744, are three elaborate stamps, namely, a bird trussing a rabbit on a crest wreath, a bell on an oblong stamp, and a double equilateral triangle in a circle. They generally used coarse Roman letters for their inscriptions, but occasionally as at Appleby (3rd) Daniel Hedderly used a fine gothic capital similar to that on mediæval bells in Yorkshire; and, as at Spilsby, the equally fine gothic black letter and ornate capitals of the earlier Nottingham founders. They occupied, as a foundry, the premises previously occupied by their predecessors, the Oldfields, on the Long Row. It was a tiled building at the top of Bellfounder's Yard, and, having been sold by the Hedderly family about the year 1850, is now converted into a slaughterhouse.

There was another bellfounder at Nottingham about whom little is known,

WILLIAM NOONE, who cast the 5th bell of S. Martin's, Leicester, in 1700. According to the Parish Register of S. Mary's, Nottingham, "Mr William Noone [was] bur. Augst the 17th 1732." He may have been employed by the Oldfields to carry on the foundry after the death of George Oldfield in 1680, and during the minority of his grandson George, and so have transacted business in his own name.

According to Deering (Hist. of Nottm. Sect. v. 94) there were two bellfoundries in the town of Nottingham in 1641, but only one (which would be Hedderly's) when he wrote his work in 1745.

Upon the emigration of George Hedderly to America about the year 1800, the Nottingham foundry, after being in existence for several centuries, was closed.

PETERBOROUGH.

HENRY PENN commenced business here during the last days of the Stamford foundry. He supplied some very fair bells to this and the neighbouring counties. His bells hang in twenty-six Lincolnshire churches and date from the year 1708—he was casting bells several years earlier—when he sent a treble to Kirkby Laythorpe, to the year 1729, when he supplied a whole ring to Bourn.

Although the site of the Peterborough foundry cannot be fixed by reference to any legal document hitherto discovered, there is little doubt about its having been situated on the east side of Broad Bridge Street. Several cottages formerly stood there belonging to the family of Shepheard, some member or members of which married into that of Penn, one of which latter family was Henry Penn the bellfounder. In course of time the old property consisting of the cottages—then called “Rotten Row”—passed from the Shepheards into the possession of a Mr. De-la-Rue, an extensive merchant in Peterborough, who pulled down the cottages, and built a large mansion on the site, which now remains, and is occupied by Dr. Waller.

At the back of these cottages, and in the recollection of persons now living, there were the remains of certain pits which were supposed to have been “tan-pits,” but which were more probably connected with the work of the foundry.

At the rear of this property there was—it was filled up about ten years ago—a canal known as “Bell Dyke.” It was fed probably from a spring then called “Tom Lock.” It was of sufficient size to carry large boats into the river with which it communicated. Its name leads to the inference that this canal was constructed by Henry Penn for the purpose of more readily conveying his bells by water carriage. There is a popular belief (an erroneous one) in Peterborough, that the name originated from “Tom of Lincoln” being conveyed from Peterborough to that city.

The estates of the Penn and Shephard families were all copyhold of the Manor of Peterborough. The late Mr. James Cattel, the Deputy Steward of the Manor (who very kindly searched the Court Rolls for me), said that whilst he had no doubt that the site just indicated was that of the foundry, the one fact to establish it, namely, the entry of Henry Penn as the occupier, he had not been able to find.

Henry Penn cast some good bells, but not pleasing the people of S. Ives for whom he cast a ring, they instituted a lawsuit against him. The case was tried at the Huntingdonshire Assizes, held at S. Ives, in 1729, and the verdict given in favour of Penn. After the trial, as he was mounting his horse in the Inn-yard at S. Ives, to return to Peterborough, he fell down and died from the effects of over-excitement.

S. NEOTS AND DOWNHAM MARKET.

JOSEPH EAYRE, the son of Thomas Eayre of Kettering (see p. 96), opened a foundry here probably soon after his baptism at Kettering as "an adult person" in the year 1731, for he sent a ring of bells to Chatteris, Cambridgeshire, in 1735, and on the 1st November, 1736, his marriage is thus noted in the Kettering register:—

Mr. Joseph Eayre of S. Neots and Mrs. Sarah Soame of Kettering.

He sent a few bells to Lincolnshire dating from 1762, when he supplied the present ring of six to S. Michael's, Stamford, to 1770, when he sent bells to Holbeach and Sutton S. Nicolas.

For his foundry he erected a lofty brick building in the form of a bell in the Priory. After his death the business at S. Neots was held jointly for a short time by his late foreman Thomas Osborn, and his cousin Edward Arnold. After they dissolved partnership

EDWARD ARNOLD held the foundry at S. Neots, sending however only one bell from thence into Lincolnshire—Langtoft 3rd in 1772. In 1784 he opened his foundry at Leicester (see p. 94), still however keeping on the S. Neots foundry, at least for a short time.

THOMAS OSBORN, after dissolving partnership with Edward Arnold, set up for himself at Downham Market, from which place he supplied bells now hanging in twenty-six churches in this county. They date from 1783 at Ewerby (3rd) to 1801 at Horncastle (4th) and Spalding (1st and 6th). About the latter date he took into partnership his grandson William Dobson: their joint names as founders occur on the ring of five at Gedney Hill cast in 1804, on the ring at Billinghay cast in 1805, and on the tenor bell at

JAMES SMITH of York, living in 1660, was, I suppose, the founder of the 3rd bell at Crowle, dated 1656; it bears the stamps figs. 161, 163, and 166 on Plate XXIV., which stamps, Mr. Fowler informs me are also found at York: the first bears his initials I S, the second has been supposed to have been the stamp of William Carter, a London founder, who died early in the seventeenth century, with whom, it is possible, James Smith served his apprenticeship; the third, impaled, stamp, points to the joint business of bellfounder and brazier. James Smith whose name is upon the 5th bell of Ripon Cathedral, dated 1663, was succeeded by his son

SAMUEL SMITH of York who died in 1709; and he by his son

SAMUEL SMITH (2nd) who was Sheriff of York in 1723, and died in 1731: they both sent bells into Lincolnshire, which date from 1686, at Thornton Curtis (2nd), to 1725 at Killingholme (1st and 2nd). The last-named Samuel Smith lived in Micklegate, York, and had his foundry on Toft Green.* Both father and son placed their stamp fig. 168 on Plate XXIV., upon their bells, with which stamp occasionally occur (though not in this county) figs. 161 and 166, mentioned above.

At the time the Smiths were living at York another foundry was worked there in the hands of the Seller family.

There are a large number of bells in this county—chiefly in the northern part—dating from 1662 at Saxby All Saints'

WILLIAM SELLARS or SELLER Coppersmith and Bell-founder of York.* They bear the initial crosses figs. 162, 165, and, rarely, 164; and occasionally, for a stop, fig. 167, with a band ornament of rose flowers and leaves. Upon the 7th bell at Hagworthingham is the stamp fig. 169, on Plate XXV., in company with the initial cross fig. 162.

The favourite inscriptions of this founder, who, however, frequently placed nothing beyond his initials with stamps and date upon his bells, were "Santitas Domino," "Memento Mori," "God with us," and "Soli Deo Gloria." His bells from 1662 to 1682 have the initials W. S. only; from 1683 to 1687 those initials are accompanied by two others—H. W. These last initials may be those of a foreman or of an apprentice. It is unnecessary to enumerate this founder's bells now remaining in Lincolnshire, as they all bear either his initials, or are readily distinguished by one or more of his stamps just pointed out. He appears to have been succeeded by his son [?]

EDWARD SELLER, who was sheriff of the city in 1703, and died about the year 1724: he sent two bells into Lincolnshire—the 3rd at Althorpe in 1714, and the 6th at

* Of this Founder I know nothing beyond what is furnished in The Universal Museum and Gentleman and Lady's Polite Magazine for 1763, in which is a communication relative to Robert Oglebie a Yorkshire centenarian (born at Ripon, 16 Nov. 1654, died at Leeds, Dec. 1768), who at the age of fourteen was apprenticed to "Mr. W<sup>m</sup>. Sellars of York, copper-smith and bell-founder."

The York foundry appears next in the hands of GEORGE DALTON, who, in an advertisement in the York Courant for the 6th of March, 1764, describes himself as of Lendal Street, York, where he had a commodious foundry and good water carriage for the Ouse and the Humber to the sea. Two bells at Worlabye (1st and 3rd) are from his foundry. He repeated his name within scroll-work frequently on the crown of his bells.

WATH-UPON-DEARNE, YORKSHIRE.

THOMAS HILTON of Wath was casting bells there in the year 1774. A few years later—in 1785—

WALKER AND HILTON sent four bells to Messingham in this county, and in 1794 they supplied the single bell to S. Paul's Church, Lincoln.

Their smaller bells at Messingham are described by Mr. Fowler as being particularly narrow in crown and waist.

AUGUSTINE BOWLER was paid 39s. 7d. by the churchwardens of Kirton-in-Lindsey for casting their "little bell" in the year 1629. Whether he was a son or other relative of Richard Bowler, a founder who had his head-quarters at Colchester, and was casting bells from 1583 to 1603, I cannot say. There are four bells in this county—Baumber 1st, dated 1638; Cockerington South 3rd, dated 1626; Hibaldstow 2nd, cast in 1635; and Snelland 2nd, in 1647—which bear the founder's stamp fig. 170 on Plate XXV., which may fairly be assigned to this Augustine Bowler; indeed his name, as he no doubt intended, can be pretty clearly made out on his trade mark. Again there are four other bells of about the same date, and with inscriptions in the same letters, with the initials A. B., but without the stamp, which were, no doubt, cast by this founder, namely, Grayingham 3rd, 1640; Saxilby 3rd (this is uncertain); Wildsworth single, 1632; and Haugh single, cast in 1638. Upon the last-named is the pretty band ornament fig. 171 on Plate XXV. Two of these eight bells (South Cockerington 3rd and Snelland 2nd) also bear stamps which were in the hands of the Nottingham founders, which may show some connection of Bowler with that foundry.

GEORGE LEE was casting bells for Lincolnshire churches early in the seventeenth century.

In 1613 he cast the present 2nd bell at Wellingore, which bears his name in rather ornate mediæval gothic capitals placed on the bell in a clumsy manner—many letters being transposed thus:—

+ MAAD BY MD GEORGE LEE 1613.

The neat little initial cross fig. 172 is drawn on Plate XXV. The churchwardens of Kirton-in-Lindsey employed him in 1615, and made this entry in their accounts:—

The 3rd bell at Market Stainton, the 2nd at Thorpe on the Hill, and the 3rd at South Willingham may be assigned to this founder whose habitat is not known, but whose connection, in some way, with the Nottingham founders is

The 3rd bell at Honington tells us that it was made by T. G. in 1673: who he was I do not know: he used as a stamp a plain cross on a shield.

The seventh bell in S. Hugh's steeple, Lincoln Cathedral, cast in 1606, bears fig. 173 as an initial cross: I do not know the founder. Neither do I know the name of the founder of two other comparatively modern bells—the Priest's bell at Binbrook S. Mary, and the single one at Croxby—which bear his initials thus

BIRMINGHAM.

WM. BLEWS AND SONS have supplied only two bells to Lincolnshire churches: they hang at S. Martin's and S. Andrew's, Lincoln.

JAMES BARWELL sent the small bell at S. Saviour's Chapel-of-Ease, Little Gonerby, in 1880.

EAST DEREHAM, NORFOLK.

JOSEPH MALLOWS, who was casting bells as early as 1750, had his foundry here. His bells are in three churches in this county—Bennington, Fleet, and Wainfleet S. Mary, dated 1758, 1759, and 1760.

HULL.

The single bell at Waddingworth was supplied by

T. JOHNSON of Hull, in 1832, who was probably only a whitesmith.

ROTHERHAM.

JOSEPH LUDLAM of Rotherham, who was an ironmonger, whitesmith, and bellhanger, had for his shop an old dilapidated building near to the Grammar School, Rotherham, all long since removed. His name appears in the Accounts of the Feoffees of the Common Lands of Rotherham, 1733—1759. Although he cast a few bells, including one only in this county—the 4th at Thornton Curtis—bell-founding was, apparently, quite an exceptional stroke of business. He is not mentioned amongst the multitudes of interments in the church, but there is no doubt that he died, and was buried, at Rotherham.*

SHEFFIELD.

NAYLOR, VICKERS, AND Co. supplied three of their cast-steel bells to Burton Gate in 1865.

earlier) to about the year 1608, when he died. From him the foundry passed through several hands until, in the year 1701,

RICHARD PHELPS became its head. He sent three of the present bells to S. Botolph's, Lincoln, in 1723. At his death, in 1738, he left all his bell gear to his foreman

THOMAS LESTER, who built the present foundry: he sent only one bell into this county, the 3rd at Barrow-on-Humber, dated 1749. He took Thomas Pack into partnership about the year 1752.

LESTER AND PACK's bells hang in ten churches in Lincolnshire, dating from 1757, at Coningsby and South Ormsby, to 1766, the date of the tenor at Fleet.

About the year 1769 the name of William Chapman, Lester's nephew, appears in the firm as

LESTER, PACK, AND CHAPMAN, of "The Three bells, Whitechapel, London." Upon the death of Thomas Lester in that year (1769) William Chapman was, in conformity with his uncle's will, taken into partnership with Pack, and so the firm became PACK AND CHAPMAN, who sent bells into Lincolnshire now hanging at Bicker and Grantham. Pack died in 1781: soon after which William Mears joined Chapman, and in his family the foundry continued for many years.

THOMAS MEARS AND SON supplied several bells to Lincolnshire (including complete rings at Hogsthorpe and Kirton in Holland) dating from 1806 at Fleet to 1810 at Langtoft.

THOMAS MEARS [JUN.] supplied many bells hanging in twenty-five Lincolnshire churches dating from 1792 at Welton-le-Marsh to 1843 at Sutton S. Matthew.

CHARLES AND GEORGE MEARS sent bells from 1845 (Belton, Isle of Axholme 4th) till 1857 at Tattershall (3rd).

GEORGE MEARS AND CO. supplied a few bells to Lincolnshire churches the last dated being the ring of six at Nocton dated 1865: soon after which date the foundry passed into the hands of the present sole proprietor.

ROBERT STAINBANK whose name is upon the three bells at North Willingham dated 1868. Mr. Stainbank, however, retains the name of Mears in the firm (Mr. George Mears, his former partner, after being out of business some years, died at Landport, Portsmouth, 12 August, 1873, aged fifty-three) and he under the style of MEARS AND STAINBANK has sent several bells (including a ring of six to S. Peter at Gowts, Lincoln) dating from 1866 at Skillington (1st) to 1877 at Croft (6th).

THE CRESCENT FOUNDRY, CRIPPLEGATE. There are many bells in Lincolnshire from this foundry, dating from 1854, the Priest's at Irby-on-Humber, to 1874 at Brigg (1st and 2nd).

JOHN WARNER was in business in the year 1763, as a Bell and Brass Founder, at a house known as the Three Bells and a Star, in Wood Street, Cheapside, London. He had a brother named Tomson Warner, who, after serving his apprenticeship as an ironmonger at Ampthill in Bedfordshire, came to London and joined his brother John in business. Sometime between the years 1763 and 1782 they removed to Fore Street, Cripplegate, near to their old premises, and also close by the site of the present foundry. In the latter year the brothers dissolved partnership, Tomson remaining in Fore Street and John going to Fleet Street, where he carried on business as a Bellfounder under the name of John Warner and Sons. He sometimes placed his own name on bells—as at Strood, Kent, in 1788, and sometimes that of his firm, as at S. Stephen's, Norwich, in 1796, and at Colby, Norfolk, in 1802. <sup>As such</sup> The bell at Cripplegate church was also cast by him. From Tomson Warner (whose eldest son was named John after his uncle) the business has descended to his grandson, Mr. Robert Warner, F.R.H.S., who under the style of JOHN WARNER AND SONS is the present proprietor. Prior to 1850 the bells cast by Messrs. Warner were in sand, and did not exceed 18 inches in diameter, but in that year, being established in the present premises, Mr. Warner commenced casting large bells in loam. The foundry stands on ground said to have been occupied by the Jews, and given—upon their banishment in the twelfth century—to the Dean of S. Paul's—hence Jewin Street and Jewin Crescent. The trade mark of the foundry (adopted, I suppose, from the name of the last-mentioned locality) is a bell within a crescent. A handsome band encircles some of the more recent bells cast here, upon which also appear some appropriate inscriptions, in fine gothic letters.*

THE BRIXTON FOUNDRY. Mr. T. C. Lewis, of this new foundry, supplied the ring of eight bells to the church of S. Paul, Spalding, which church was consecrated on the 27th of October, 1880.

PECULIAR USES

THE only direction as to the use of a Church Bell in the Rubrics of the Book of Common Prayer is in that relating to Daily Service:—

“And the Curate that ministereth in every Parish-Church or Chapel, being at home, and not being otherwise reasonably hindered, shall say the same in the Parish-Church or Chapel where he ministereth, and shall cause a Bell to be tolled thereunto a convenient time before he begin, that the people may come to hear God's Word, and to pray with him.”

The Canons give a few more directions:

The 15th, which directs “Litany to be read on Wednesdays and Fridays,” orders, that warning be “given to the people by tolling of a bell.”

The 67th Canon entitled “Ministers to visit the Sick” says:—

“And, when any is passing out of this life, a bell shall be tolled, and the Minister shall not then slack to do his last duty. And after the party’s death, if it so fall out, there shall be rung no more than one short peal, and one other before the burial, and one other after the burial.”

So much for their use.

The 88th Canon directs churchwardens not to allow the superstitious use of bells upon “Holydays or Eves abrogated by the Book of Common Prayer, nor at any other times without good cause to be allowed by the Minister of the place, and by themselves.” And the 111th Canon is directed against such as shall...“by untimely ringing of bells...hinder the Minister or Preacher.”

RINGING FOR DIVINE SERVICE. Although one bell is all that is really essential for carrying out such of these directions as are now usually followed, it is generally only poverty or some other difficulty, which hinders the erection in our modern churches of a number of bells, with which to ring those peals, in which almost all English churchmen delight. And so it was in more ancient times. It will be seen that in Lincolnshire several of the larger churches had four bells in the reign of Edward VI., and that whilst many had not more than three, scarcely any were satisfied with less than two.

In churches where the Canonical Hours were kept the bells, or some of them, would be ringing very frequently. The Canons made in King Edgar’s time (A.D. 960) provided “that the hours be timely notified by ringing [the bells] and that every priest then look out his tide-song in the church (i.e. attend his Canonical Hours), and that prayers be there diligently made in the fear of God and intercession for all people:"* thus "the ringing of these Canonical hours let the world know the time, by day and by night; and in those larger churches where such a custom was followed, the several bells, as well as the different ways in which they were rung for the purpose, told the precise service which was then about to be chanted."† The bells of parish churches were frequently rung by the Deacons. "Now one bell shall be rung, now two, now three, now all the bells in the steeple, by the which diversity of ringing men may the better know when it is festum simplex, or festum duplex, or festum principale."‡ That was the case at Holy Trinity, Coventry, in the year 1462,§ and at the parish church of Ludlow in 1551, when the churchwardens paid twelvecpence to "the dekyns for rynginge of day belle."|| "Bishop Oldham (of Exeter) in his Statutes, 1511, directs how the Annualarii (or Chantry Priests) were to sound or toll a certain number of times with one bell then a full tolling of all the bells, at the Canonical Hours, after the accustomed manner; at the close of which the service was to begin."¶ An interesting illustration of this custom is found upon the Font of the Parish Church of Belton in this county, which bears, upon its eight sides, the various officers of the church represented in rude sculpture: one of these is the campanarius, who, attired in his camise, is chiming two bells. At the ordination of the ostiarium the bell ropes were placed in his hands as well as the keys of the church. In our smaller parish churches, too, those bells appropriated to the side altars in chantry chapels, or belonging to Guilds and Fraternities, would very frequently be sounding.* On Sundays and high-days all the bells appear to have been rung for Matins and Evensong—the two services which all were expected to attend: and so the custom has continued to the present time. The Bell-master of Loughborough, Leicestershire, in the time of Edward VI., was “to help to reng to sarvys if ned be.” Hooper, in his Injunctions, dated 1551, whilst forbidding ringing at unseasonable times, adds “but before services, as well morning as at even, to warn people by as many peals or ringings as they think good.”

The mode of ringing, or of chiming, for Divine Service varies somewhat in different parishes.

In Lincolnshire the general use is for the bells to be chimed, followed by the ringing of the tenor as a Sermon-bell; after which, in many parishes, a few strokes are given upon the Priest's bell where one exists, or upon the treble

* At Ludlow, in addition to the fore-bell, second bell, third, second-tenor, and great bell, they possessed “Our Lady belle” (“our Lady Chauncelle” is mentioned), “First-Mass-Bell,” and “the gild belle,” all apparently bells of moderate size. See Ludlow Churchwardens' Accounts published by Camden Society.

bell, as a summons to the clergyman. This, however, is varied in some parishes.

At Broughton a full peal is rung; after a pause the bells are lowered; the Sermon-bell is then rung until the time for Divine Service arrives.

At Lincoln S. Peter-at-Gowts, for morning service, some well practised "touches" are rung for twenty-five minutes; then the tenor is rung as the Sermon-bell: the bells are left standing till evening, when they are again rung for service.

At Belton, Isle of Axholme, three peals are rung between 9.30 and 10.15 a.m., and between 5.30 and 6.15 p.m. for the first half of the next fifteen minutes the bells are chimed, followed by the ringing of the 4th bell as a Sermon-bell: so at Skirbeck and Springthorpe ringing generally precedes the chiming for both services on Sunday; at Stow ringing follows the chiming; and at Horncastle there is ringing before Morning Service, but before Evening Service the bells are not raised.

The bells are also always rung, instead of chimed, for Divine Service at Burgh, and occasionally they are so rung at Butterwick, Elsham, Frieston, Leake, Skirbeck, and Thornton Curtis. Sometimes, as at Coleby, the bells are chimed for Matins, but rung for Evensong. At Fleet they are rung on two Sundays in the month.

At Friesthorpe each of the three bells is tolled separately twelve times, then all are chimed, after which the third is tolled alone: a similar plan is followed at Ashby-de-la-Launde, Carlton-le-Moorland, Claypole, Folkingham, Lavington and Welton.

At Gedney Hill the 1st bell is tolled for five minutes; then the 1st and 3rd bells are chimed for five minutes; then all five are chimed for five minutes (fifteen minutes in all). At Lea the treble is rung for fifteen minutes before chiming commences, which is begun by tolling each bell in succession a few strokes, followed by the chiming of all four together for ten minutes: that is succeeded by the ringing of the tenor as the Sermon-bell.

At Fleet the tenor is first rung for fifteen minutes; then—excepting on the Sundays when the bells are rung—all are chimed for fifteen minutes followed by a few strokes on the treble alone: a similar custom is followed at Bourn, Grantham and Halton Holgate.

At South Cockerington the tenor is tolled for five minutes half an hour before service: after a pause of ten minutes the 1st and 2nd bells are chimed for five minutes; after another pause all three are chimed for five minutes, followed by a few strokes (for two minutes) on the treble bell.

At Willoughby the tenor is rung for a short time an hour before service, and called the Sermon-bell: all the bells are chimed for twenty minutes for service, after which the tenor “rings in” for five minutes.

At Sutton-le-Marsh the tenor is tolled three times for five minutes each time, with an interval of five minutes between each tolling: then all are chimed for ten minutes followed by the Priest’s bell for a few minutes.

At Croyland and at Morton the bells are chimed with the tenor “rung in.”

At Bonby, after chiming for fifteen minutes, the tenor is sounded for two minutes, followed by three strokes on the treble.

At Caistor the 3rd bell (of six) is rung for ten minutes after the chiming for twenty minutes.

At East Kirkby (where are two bells) the larger is sounded for ten minutes; then the smaller for five minutes, excepting on Christmas and Easter days, when both are chimed together for ten minutes followed by the treble alone for five minutes.

At Navenby the treble is first rung for fifteen minutes followed by chiming for ten minutes: then the tenor is rung for five minutes as a Sermon-bell.

At North Owersby the ringing of the large bell commences three quarters of an hour (and rings for fifteen minutes) before service time: then no more ringing until about five minutes before the commencement of Divine Service, when the Priest's bell is sounded.

At Irnham, where there are four bells, the custom is to chime the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd: then raise the tenor: then again to chime the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, after which the tenor is lowered as a Sermon-bell.

At Kirkby Laythorpe they first chime the 1st and 2nd bells, and afterwards all three.

At Sleaford each bell is chimed seriatim twice round: then all are chimed together: the tenor is next tolled followed by chiming again, at the end of which the 2nd bell is rung up, and then lowered at the time for commencing Divine Service.

At Theddlethorpe S. Helen a bell is rung for five minutes an hour before service commences: followed after a time, by chiming in the ordinary manner, with the treble alone at the close.

At Louth the eight bells are raised for the 10.30 Morning Service, and rung from 9 till 10 o'clock, after which the 3rd, 4th, and 5th bells are chimed till 10.20: the tenor is then raised and rung for five minutes, after lowering which the treble is raised and rung for five minutes, being "settled" at 10.30. For the Afternoon Service the eight bells are chimed, after which the treble is raised and rung for five minutes. For Evening Service the eight bells are again chimed for twenty minutes, followed by the ringing of the tenor for five minutes, and then by the ringing of the treble for the same length of time.

Ringling before Divine Service has long been the custom at Louth: at a Vestry, held on the 20th April, 1781:—

It was ordered and agreed that the Ringers do attend at the Church every Sunday in the morning and evening; in the morning at 10 o'clock, and in the evening at 3 o'clock, and ring a peal on the bells half-an-hour, and then chyme in the bells, for which they are to be allowed four pounds in the year to begin on Sunday next.

In 1792 it was agreed that the Ringers should continue the ringing in the morning, but the bells were to be only chimed in the afternoon.*

At Saxilby it is the custom to strike the day of the month upon one of the bells immediately before the commencement of Divine Service.

On the Great Festivals the call to Divine Service is rung instead of chimed at Fleet, Holbeach All Saints, S. Botolph's, Lincoln, and Marsh Chapel; at Winterton the bells on those days are rung not only for Matins and Evensong, but also for the early celebration of the Holy Communion; and at Lea on those days a peal is rung before the usual chiming.

These examples show the diversity of usage in different parishes: no doubt ancient customs have, in very many cases, been departed from; for though the Parish Clerks were, like that officer at Barrow-on-Humber in 1713, expected to "tole a bell and ring a little according to the custom of the place,"* their respect for precedent was, doubtless, in many cases not so strong as that shown by the present Clerk at Thornton-le-Moor: there are in the Church there two bells, but it has always been the custom to ring only the small bell for service on Sundays "the large bell being," as the clerk observes, "reserved as a death-bell:" and though the small bell is now cracked, he still persists in ringing that, and that only, for Divine Service.

EARLY SUNDAY PEALS. With the introduction of the "new sarvis" (as the Book of Common Prayer was called) in the time of Edward VI., the singing of the Canonical Hours—with the exception of Matins and Evensong—was dropped. The only traces of them we now have in the use of our church bells, excepting the ringing or chiming for Morning and Evening Prayer, are in the ringing of the “first and second peals” on Sunday Mornings, at seven and eight, or eight and nine o’clock, in very many parishes. In Pre-Reformation times Matins was said in all parish churches before breakfast, as a preparation for mass. The “first peal” was the call to Matins, the “second peal” to tierce and mass.* It is a curious proof how tenacious custom is in having continued the ringing of these bells for over three hundred years after the purposes they served were abrogated, and when few even think of, or enquire as to, the meaning of their sound. For these “peals” (which are rung in many Lincolnshire parishes) the smaller bells are generally used.

The mode of ringing varies:—

At Market Deeping the 1st bell is rung at 7 a.m.; the 2nd and 3rd bells at 9 a.m.

At Market Rasen the 2nd bell is tolled at 8 a.m.; the 2nd and 3d at 9 a.m.

At Langtoft a single bell is rung at 8 a.m.; two or more are chimed at 9 a.m.

At Gedney the 1st is rung at 7 a.m.; the 1st and 2nd chimed at 8 a.m.

At Bourn the 2nd is rung at 8 a.m.; the 3rd and 4th at 9 a.m.

At Caistor the 3rd bell is rung at 8 a.m. and again at 9 a.m.; and at Coningsby and Stickney a single bell is rung at the same hours.

* Sir Thomas More said “Some of us laye men think it a payne ones a weeke to ryse so soon fro sleepe, and some to tarye so longe fasting, as on the Sondag to com and heare out theyr matins.”—Rock, III. part 2, pp. 5, 143, 146.

At Swineshead the 2nd bell is tolled at 8 a.m. ; and the 5th and 6th at 9 a.m.

At Westborough the 1st bell is rung at 7 a.m., the 2nd at 8 a.m. ; and at Corringham, formerly, a bell was rung at those hours.

At Branston the 1st is rung at 8 a.m. ; the 2nd at 9.30 a.m.

At Aswardby the 1st is rung at 8 a.m. ; the 2nd at 9 a.m.

At Halton Holgate the 1st is rung at 7.30 a.m. ; the 1st and 2nd at 8 a.m.

At Redbourne a single bell is rung at 8 a.m., and again at 9 a.m.

At Bennington the 1st is rung at 8 a.m., and again at 10 a.m.

At Sleaford formerly the 1st bell was rung at 7, and again at 8 a.m., but there being now an Early Celebration the 1st bell summons to that at 7.45 ; and the 1st and 2nd, which are chimed at 8.45 a.m., are considered a summons to Sunday School, which commences at 9.30 a.m.

At South Kelsey the tenor is sounded at 8 a.m., and again at 9 a.m.

At Fleet the treble is rung at 8 a.m., after which forty strokes are given on the tenor : the 1st and 2nd bells are chimed at 9 a.m. ; and at Billingham the same ringing (but without the strokes on the tenor) takes place.

At Doddington the single bell is rung at 8.30, and again at 9.30 a.m.

At Heckington a single bell is rung at 7 a.m., and again—called the Matins' bell—at 9 a.m.

At Morton when there is a Celebration of the Holy Communion the 1st bell is rung at 8 a.m., the 3rd and 4th are chimed at 8.30, and the 3rd, 4th, and 5th at 9 a.m. When no Celebration the 1st is rung at 8 a.m., and the 3rd and 4th are chimed at 9. The day of the month is given on the tenor bell every Sunday morning.

The two Early Peals have, in very many parishes, merged into one: thus one bell is sounded at 7 a.m. at Halton West (2nd), North Kelsey, Navenby, Owston—where it was, until recently, also rung at 8 a.m.—Pinchbeck East (3rd), Spalding (3rd), Wellingore (1st), and Waddington; one bell is rung at Aslackby at 7.30 a.m., but eight o'clock is the more usual time: at that hour one bell is chimed or rung at Allington, Althorpe, Appleby, Aylesby, Barholm, Barrow-on-Humber, Bassingthorpe, Belton near Grantham, Bennington Long, Bitchfield, Blyborough, Blyton, Boothby Graffoe, Broughton Brant, Butterwick, Burton-on-Stather, Burton Coggles, Carlton Scroop, Claypole, Colsterworth, Cranwell, Denton, Deeping S. James, Eagle, Edenham, Ewerby, Fishtoft, Frieston, Frampton, Fulbeck, Gedney Hill, Gosberton, Grayingham, Haceyby, Hemswell, Honington, Keddington, Kirkby Laythorpe, Kirton-in-Lindsey, Lacey, Lavington, Leake, Leasingham, Leverton, Morton-by-Gainsborough, Newton-on-Trent, Newton, Normanton, Orby, Owmbly, Potterhanworth, Ponton Great, Ruskington, Scotter, Scopwick, Stockwith East, Stragglethorpe, Stubton, Swinderby, Tallington, Tetney (the Priest's), Thorpe-on-the-Hill, Washingborough, Welbourn, Willoughby-by-Stow, Willoughby Silk, Winterton, and formerly, but not now, at Coleby, Hibaldstow, Tydd S. Mary, and Winteringham.

In these parishes the treble or one other of the smaller bells is used, but the tenor is used at Amcotts, Caythorpe, Claxby, Goxhill, Ludborough and Ulceby; at Lincoln, S. Peter-at-Arches the 5th bell is used, and at Harlaxton the 2nd is rung at 8 o'clock, succeeded by a short chiming of the 1st and 2nd. At Sibsey the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd bells are chimed at 8 a.m. excepting when Holy Communion is to be administered, when the chiming is at 7 a.m. and again at 9 a.m. At Sutterton the day of the month is tolled every Sunday morning at 8 a.m. At Weston S. Mary the three bells are chimed at 8 a.m. At Horncastle the 1st and 2nd; or the 3rd and 4th are chimed at 9 a.m. At the same hour a single bell—the treble or one of the smaller bells—is rung at Addlethorpe (where formerly the 1st bell was rung at 8, and the 2nd and 3rd at 9 a.m.), Billingborough, Binbrook, Broughton, Helpringham, Hemingby, Hundleby, Spilsby, North Scarle, Thornton Curtis, Witham-on-the-Hill, and formerly at Utterby. At Croyland, where the custom formerly was to ring the 1st bell at 7 a.m., the 1st and 2nd bells are now chimed at 9 a.m., and the same custom is followed at Hale Magna. At Mumby the Priest's bell is rung at 8 a.m. At Haxey the tenor is rung at 7 a.m. and again at 8 a.m. and is called the Sermon-bell: at Fiskerton the tenor, which is rung at 8 a.m., is also called the Sermon-bell "because it is rung whenever there is to be a sermon during the day:" at Laughton also the 8 a.m. bell is called the Sermon-bell. At Belton, Isle of Axholme, the treble is rung at 8 a.m. after which 5, 6, 7, and 8 strokes are given upon the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th bells respectively. At Aisthorpe all five bells are rung or else chimed according to the number of ringers present at 8 a.m. At Baston the 1st and 2nd bells are chimed at 8 a.m.: and at Donington the same bells are chimed at 9 a.m. At Barketon the 1st bell is rung at 8.30 a.m. At Burton-by-Lincoln and at Ingoldsby a bell is rung at 8 a.m. after which the day of the month is tolled. At Bicker the same occurs after the ringing of a bell at 7 a.m. in summer and 8 a.m. in winter. At Castle Bytham the 1st and 2nd bells are chimed at 9 a.m.: the two bells meaning, says the clerk, two services. At Limber the bells are chimed at 8 a.m. At Moulton three bells are chimed at 8 a.m., and at Long Sutton the same number of bells at 9 a.m. At Rippingale the 3rd and 4th bells are chimed at 9 a.m. At Revesby the single bell is sounded at 8 a.m. "to enable the parishioners to set their clocks right for the day." At Hogsthorpe the custom was, until recently, to ring one bell at 8 a.m.; again at 9 a.m.; and again at 10 a.m. (traditionally said to have been originally so rung for Matins, Litany, and Holy Communion respectively) at which time the morning service then began: there are no early peals now. At Burgh the 1st and 2nd bells are chimed at 8 a.m., after which the tenor is raised, the whole taking five minutes.

These Early Peals are now frequently considered as notices of services which are to follow later on in the day: indeed in some parishes they are distinctly so used, for example:—

At Scothorne the 1st bell is rung at 8 a.m., after which the day of the month is tolled on the 2nd bell, and when morning service is to be said the 2nd is rung at 9 a.m. At Welton the 2nd bell is rung at 8.30 a.m. when there is to be morning service; at 12.30 when afternoon service. At Westborough the 1st is rung at 7 and the 2nd at 8 a.m. when there is to be morning service; the 1st at 11, and the 2nd at noon, when only afternoon service. At Dunsby a bell is rung at 8, and again at 9 a.m. when morning service is to follow. At Doddington Dry the single bell is rung at 7, and again at 8 a.m., when Matins and Evensong are to be said; at 11 a.m. and again at noon when only Evensong. At Carlton-le-Moorland, Northorpe, Swarby, Torksey and Walcott, a bell is rung at 8 a.m. when there is to be morning service: at noon when only Evensong, the tenor being used at Walcott. At Wootton the 2nd bell is rung at 8 a.m. excepting when there is to be only evening service when it is rung in the afternoon. At Corby the 1st bell is sounded at 8, and the 1st and 2nd at 10 a.m., when Matins are to be said, the same at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., when only Evensong. At Irby-on-Humber a bell is rung at 8 a.m., "to let the people know of morning service" and again at 10 a.m. "to tell of afternoon service." At Irnham the 1st and 2nd bells are rung at 10 a.m. when only morning service: the same at 2 p.m. when afternoon service: at North Witham the same bells are rung at 8 a.m. when there is to be morning service, at noon when only Evensong. At Bonby, Cotes Magna, and Nettleton, the tenor bell is rung at 8 a.m., and a bell is rung at Cammeringham at 9 a.m. only when there is to be morning service.

At Stamford there is much early ringing: at All Saints' the custom is between 7 and 8 a.m. to chime three bells, then toll the tenor: a quarter of an hour after which the 3rd and 4th, then the 4th and 5th bells are chimed, followed by another tolling of the tenor. At S. George's between 8 and 9 a.m. they first chime the 1st and 2nd, then the 2nd and 3rd bells, followed by a tolling of the tenor. At S. John Baptist's the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd bells are chimed at 7.30 a.m.: at 8.30 the tenor is tolled for early Celebration. At S. Mary's between 8 and 9 a.m. the 3rd and 4th, then the 5th and 6th bells are chimed, followed by a tolling of the tenor. At S. Michael's two bells are chimed at 8 a.m.

THE SERMON BELL. In the "Rites of Durham" is this reference to the Sermon-bell:—"Every Soulday in the yere there was a sermon preached in the Galleley at afternoone, from one of the clocke till iij; and at xij of the clocke the great bell of the Galleley was toulled every sounedaie iij quarters of an houre, and during the fourth quarter till one of the clock, that all the people of the towne might have warnyng to come and here the word of Gode preched."* The Royal Injunctions of 1547 ordered a bell in convenient time to be rung or knolled before the sermon. When Hugh Latimer visited Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire, and preached in the church there, that custom was followed; for the churchwardens charge in their accounts:—

* Surtess Soc. p. 33.

The Sermon bell was sometimes rung during the Litany to give notice to the people that the sermon was coming on;* and one of the duties of the Bell-ringer at Exeter Cathedral, in 1670, was "to toll y<sup>e</sup> Sermon Bell every Sunday after the second lesson of the Quire Service in y<sup>e</sup> morning when there is a sermon."† The Puritans were so often ready to go to Sermon, but not to Prayers, that the bishops tried to check the unseemly practice of going into church after Prayers were said, by directing attention to it in their Visitation Articles, and Wren (1640) directed with regard to the Sermon-bell "That the same ringing of bells should be observed at all times whether there was a Sermon or not."‡

The ringing of this bell after the chiming, when a sermon is to be preached, though not universal, is very general in Lincolnshire: the tenor bell is so used at castle, Irnham, Kelsey South, Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, Kirkby Underwood, Kirton-in-Lindsey, Lavington, Lincoln S. Botolph and S. Peter-at-Arches, Linwood, Ludborough, Navenby, Newton, Normanton, Norton Disney, Ormsby South, Owston, Partney, Pinchbeck East, Ponton Great, Potterhanworth, Rasen Market, Rasen Middle, Raithby-by-Louth, Redbourne, Scarle North, Screddington, Sibsey, Skellingthorpe, Skidbrook, Skirbeck, Spilsby, Springthorpe, Stainby, Stamford All Saints, S. George, S. John Baptist, and S. Michael; Stow, Stroxtun, Surfleet, Swaton, Swinderby, Tallington, Tattershall, Thornton Curtis, Thorpe-on-the-Hill, Ulceby, Utterby, Waddington, Walcot, Wainfleet S. Mary, Washingborough, Welbourn, Wellingore, Welton, Westborough, Winteringham, Winterton, and Wragby.

The treble bell is rung as a Sermon-bell after the chiming at Aunsby ("because less trouble than the tenor,") Baumber, Benington, Broughton, Burgh, Burton Coggles, Honington, Langton-by-Wragby, Rippingale, South Somercotes, and North Witham.

At Leverton the ringing of the 1st is called the Sermon-bell, though the tenor is rung just preceding.

At Butterwick, Fishtoft, Frieston, and Leake the tenor is rung as the Sermon-bell fifteen minutes before the service.

At Leasingham and Scotton the 2nd bell is rung as the Sermon-bell after the chiming.

At Harpswell and at Hemswell a bell is rung as the clergyman enters the churchyard, but whether intended as a Sermon or a Priest's bell is uncertain.

At Haxey the tenor bell rung at 7 a.m. and again at 8 a.m., and at Fiskerton the same bell rung at 8 a.m.

are called the Sermon-bells: the early bell (8 a.m.) at Laughton is also called the Sermon-bell.

At Bourn, Claypole, Grantham and Skendleby the tenor is rung as a Sermon-bell before the ringing or chiming.

At Laceby—where the tenor was formerly rung—they now ring the Priest's bell as the Sermon-bell: so at Tetney the Priest's bell is rung as a Sermon-bell after chiming and ringing of the treble.

Occasionally the inscription on the tenor bell refers to its use as a Sermon-bell: thus at Ancaster:—

I will sounde and resounde unto thy people O Lord
With my sweet voyce to call them to thy word.

In Northamptonshire we find:—

I ring to sermon with a lusty bome
That all may come and none may stay at home.

SUNDAY MID-DAY PEALS. It is customary in many parishes to ring at the close of the Morning Service in a similar manner to that described under Early Peals: thus the 1st and 2nd bells are so rung at Brant Broughton, Hale Magna, Harlaxton, and, until recently, at All Saints and S. John Baptist, Stamford.

At Bourn the 2nd is rung at the close of Morning Service, and the 3rd and 4th bells at 2 p.m.

The treble bell only is rung at Aslackby, Barholm, Bennington Long, Edenham, Holbeach All Saints, Langtoft, Lavington, Leasingham, Leverton, Scothorne, Stubton, Thornton-le-Moor, and Toynton All Saints.

The tenor is so rung at Caythorpe: and the 2nd at Barkstone and at Sleaford.

At Aswarby and at Thorpe-on-the-Hill the treble bell is rung at 1 p.m.

At Horncastle the 1st and 2nd, or the 3rd and 4th, are rung at 2 p.m.

As the Early Peals are frequently considered signals for the Morning Service, so these mid-day ringings are sometimes now used as warnings that Evensong will be said: they are only used when such will be the case at Burton Coggles, Thimbleby, and Wellingore, at which places the treble is rung: at Cotes Magna the tenor is rung.

At Cammeringham, at Dunsby, and at Harpswell, when there is no Morning Service the bell is rung at noon to announce Evensong: the same custom is followed at Morton, where, after ringing the treble at noon, the day of the month is tolled on the tenor.

At South Kelsey the tenor is rung at the conclusion of Morning Service, and again at 5 p.m., when Evening Service is to be said.

At Heckington a bell is rung at 4 p.m.: and at Scopwick and at Willoughby the tenor is sounded at the same time, which is locally said to be "meant as a warning to the ringers to remember Evening Service:" at Swineshead the 2nd bell is tolled at 4 p.m., and the 5th and 6th at 5 p.m.

At Gedney Hill a bell is always rung at the end of every service on Sunday and week-day alike; and at Louth, until recently, the 3rd bell was rung after both Morning and Evening Service on Sunday, and was called the "Leaving-off bell."

At Wainfleet S. Mary it is the custom to ring a peal after Morning Service.

At Hogsthorpe it was, until recently, the custom to ring a bell at noon, again at 1 p.m., and again at 2 p.m., half-an-hour after which the service began.

It was formerly the custom at Croyland to ring the 1st bell at 12.30, and to chime two bells at 4 p.m., but both are now discontinued.

The bell at the close of the Morning Service is, in some places, known as

"THE PUDDING BELL" being supposed to be rung in order to give the cook warning that Service is over, and so dinner may be prepared: others, as already said, think that the ringing at the close of one Service was, and is, meant as the signal that another will follow; others, again, that the custom originated in the habits of neglect on the part of the clergy in the country districts; who being frequently non-resident, and holding Services at irregular times were, in consequence, obliged to give warning thereof: but it is more probable that the custom is the survival of the KNOLLING OF THE AVES mentioned in the Injunctions of 1538 as being sounded after the Service, and at certain other times, and as having been brought in and begun by the pretence of the Bishop of Rome's pardon, and it was ordered that they be thenceforth left and omitted. Shaxton, Bishop of Sarum, in that year, said "That the bell called the Pardon or Ave Bell which of longe tyme hathe been used to be tolled three tymes after and before Divine Service be not hereafter, in any part of my diocese, any more tollyd."

In some places the Aves' bell was tolled thrice every day. That was the case at Cropedy, Oxfordshire, as we know from a benefaction to the Bells made by Master Roger Lupton, vicar of that parish, by Indenture dated 26 August, 1512. He gave certain money to the churchwardens upon condition that they should amongst other things, "toll dayly the Avees bell at sex of the clok in the mornynge, at xij of the clok at noone, and at foure of the clok at afternoone."*

The saying of the Aves was between the tolling: among the articles of enquiry in 1547 was one whether the knolling at the Aves be used?

The ringing or tolling of a bell or bells before the chiming or ringing commences for Divine Service at Ashby-de-la-Launde, Bourn, Carlton-le-Moorland, Claypole, Cockerington South, Fleet, Folkingham, Friesthorpe, Gedney Hill, Grantham, Halton Holgate, Lea, Navenby, Owersby North, Sleaford, Theddlethorpe S. Helen, and Welton may be, and probably is—as well as the ringing at the close of the Service—a continuance of the custom of knolling the Aves.

SACRAMENT-BELL. At Stamford All Saints', S. George's and S. Michael's the treble bell is rung, after the chiming for Morning Service, instead of the tenor (Sermon-bell) when there is to be a mid-day Celebration and no sermon: and at S. Mary's in the same town on a similar occasion the 3rd and 4th are first chimed, then the 4th, 5th, and 6th followed by the ringing of the 2nd instead of the usual Sermon-bell. At Fulbeck the 5th bell is rung at the close of the chiming on like occasions.

At S. Botolph's, Lincoln (where all the bells are chimed for early Celebrations), the "ting-tang" is used as a Sacrament-bell. It is always sounded for five minutes before the hour (when the other bells have ceased) at 8 a.m. on Sunday mornings. It is also rung when there is a mid-day Celebration (which is on the 1st Sunday in the month) after Matins, at which service the sermon is preached. The Celebration is then proceeded with without any break for sermon, and so invalids and others, wishing to do so, can attend the Holy Communion Service only.

At Holbeach All Saints it is the custom to ring a bell at the end of the Litany, and at Spalding parish church the 4th bell is tolled at the same time, and again for a few minutes when the Celebration is over. At S. Peter-in-Eastgate, Lincoln, and at Winterton, the 1st bell is rung at the close of the sermon when a Celebration follows.

This useful custom is referred to in Bishop Hooper's Injunctions (1551) in these words:—

“. . . . and in case there be any pause between the Morning Prayer and the Communion, then to advertise and signify unto the people of the ministration of the Holy Sacrament, to toll one bell, such as the parish shall think most meet and convenient.”

It was, until recently, the custom at Horncastle to ring the 5th bell at six o'clock on the evening preceding the day on which the Holy Communion was to be Celebrated.

THE PASSING-BELL. Besides the use of bells for calling to Divine Service the Canons enjoin the tolling of the "Passing-bell." The custom of notifying, by this means, the passing of a soul out of this life, is almost, if not quite, as ancient, in this country, as the use of bells by the church. Bede mentions "the well known sound of the bell by which they [the Nuns of Hackness] were wont to be aroused or assembled to prayers when any one of them was called forth from this world," as being heard in the year 680.*

Durand, who wrote about the end of the twelfth century, says: "when any one is dying bells must be tolled that the people may put up their prayers, twice for a woman and thrice for a man; if for a clergyman as many times as he had orders."† The Passing-bell was, of course, then rung at all hours of the night, as well as by day. This custom is referred to in an entry in the accounts of the Churchwardens of Peterborough for the year 1572:—

" Itm̄ to Scarlet (the sexton) beyng a poore olde man and rysyng oft in the nyghte to tolle the bell for sicke persons the wether beyng grevous, and in consideration of his good service towards a gowne to kepe hym warme ..... vijjs."

After the Reformation the custom of ringing the Passing-bell in the ancient way was continued. Even Bucer, who was no lover of bells, allowed of ringing "to pray for the sick."

* Bede, Book iv. c. xxiii.

† Brand's Pop. Ant. II. 129.

Bishop Hooper in his Injunctions, issued in 1551, says :

“Item. That from henceforth there be no knells or forthfares rung for the death of any man ; but in case they that be sick and in danger, or any of their friends will demand to have the bell toll whiles the sick is in extremes to admonish people of their danger, and by that means to sollicitate the hearers to pray for the sick person, they may use it.”

The Passing-bell is enjoined by the royal Injunctions of 1559, and the Advertisements, issued in the year 1564, show that it was still usual to ring or toll the Passing-bell whilst the person was believed to be dying, but not yet dead : “That where anye Christian bodie be passing that the bell be tolled, and that the curate be specially called for to comforte the sicke person.” The bell was ordered to be used by Grindal in 1570, “to move the people to pray for the sick person.”* In 1588 the custom is referred to in the Records of the Corporation of Boston in this county thus :—

“Every person that shall have the great bell rung for him in their extremity of sickness to pay 4<sup>d</sup> to the church, over and beside the usual fee due to the clock-keeper.”

The Bishops, in after years, enquired in their Articles whether the Passing-bell was so tolled. Bishop Cosin in his Visitation Articles for the Diocese of Durham in 1662, enquires :—

* Lathbury, p. 86.

“And, when any person is passing out of this world doth he [parish clerk or sexton] upon notice given him thereof, go and toll a bell, as hath been accustomed, that the neighbours may thereby be warned to recommend the dying person to the grace and favour of God?”*

In 1624 D'Ewes mentions the bell tolling for a person whom he visited, and who lived some hours afterwards. The Puritans used the Passing-bell, as Fuller shows in his account of John Rainolds, one of the Puritan advocates of the Hampton Court Conference: he says: “The morrow after, death seazing upon all parts of his body, he expressed by signes that he would have the passing-bell tole for him.” †

Amongst the fees belonging to the Bell-ringer of Exeter Cathedral in 1670 were:

“For tolling the bell for every sick person .....	1s.
For every childe .....	6d.” ‡

The custom was continued to recent times. Nelson in his Meditations for the Holy Time of Lent, speaking of a good christian says:—“If his sense hold out so long he can hear his Passing-bell without disturbance.”§ At Barrow-

§ Bells of the Church, p. 273, where the following instance is given from Brayley's History of the Tower, p. 460. “We have a remarkable mention of this custom in the narrative of the last moments of the Lady Catherine, sister of Lady Jane Grey, who died a prisoner in the Tower of London, in 1567; Sir Owen Opton, Constable of the Tower, perceiving her drawing towards her end, said to Mr. Bokeham, ‘Were it not best to send to the church that the bell may be rung?’ and she herself hearing him, said, ‘Good, Sir Owen, be it so,’ and immediately died.”

“For every passing bell four pence and for every soul bell four pence.”

the former being rung according to ancient practice, the latter after death, as a Death-knell. At Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire, the custom was first departed from in the case of Mr. Crane, who died about 1738. He “was the first person in Melton,” says Nichols, “for whom the bell tolled after death, till when the custom was for it to pass before, agreeably to the primitive institution.” Wheatley speaks of the Passing-bell as being generally disused in 1755.* The late Mrs. Law, who died in 1874, aged about 94 years, not only remembered the Passing-bell being rung in the ancient manner at King's Cliffe, Northamptonshire, but she used to relate that upon one occasion it was tolled for a lady who did not then die as was expected, but recovered her health. The inscriptions on some of the tenor bells in this county refer to their use for the Passing-bell: for example, at Addlethorpe :—

Remember Death.

At Claypole :—

All men that heare my mournfull sound
Repent before you lye in ground.

At Fishtoft :—

Vitam metior mortem ploro.

At Frampton :—

My roring sound doth warning give
That men cannot heare allwaies live.

At West Keal :—

To speak a parting Soul is giv'n to me
Be trimm'd thy Lamp as if I toll'd for Thee.

At Owmbly :—

When you die aloud I cry.

And occasionally—as at Deeping S. James—an inscription is used which refers to the modern custom in contrast to the ancient :—

Non sono animabus mortuorum sed auribus viventium.

The bell now used for the Passing-bell (or more properly the Death-knell) is usually the tenor, but this is sometimes, as we shall see, changed in the case of children, when a smaller bell is occasionally rung. At the close, or the commencement, or at both, of the Passing-bell it has long been the custom to indicate the sex of the person departing, or departed, by certain strokes or tolls of the bell. These have generally been three for a male (in honour of the Holy Trinity), and two for a female (in honour of our Saviour born of a woman), on the tenor bell, as at Aisthorpe, Bicker, Bratoft, Carlton Castle, Dowsby, Harlaxton, Heydour, Ponton Little, Quadring, Rippingale and Stragglethorpe. These are given before and after the knell at Aubourn, Caythorpe, Claxby, and Mumby. Sometimes, as at Claypole, Middle Rasen, and Stow-S.-Mary these tolls are given on all the bells. At Scothorn the tenor is first tolled, then rung up, then, after a pause, lowered, after which each bell is tolled three times for a male, twice for a female. At North Kelsey three strokes are given on each bell for a male, two for a female, after which the tenor is raised and rung for about twenty minutes followed for a few minutes by a "minute bell" first on the tenor, then on the treble bell. Three tolls for a man, two for a woman, and one for a child are given at Alkborough, Beelsby, and Donington-on-Bain (before and after) : at Luddington these tolls are given on each of the three bells, and at Long Sutton these tolls are given on the 4th, 5th, and tenor bells, after which the 5th is rung for ten minutes. At Morton-by-Gainsborough the bell is tolled in triplets for a man, in couples for a woman, and in single strokes for a child for about ten minutes in each case. At Welton these three tolls for a male and two for a female are given on the 4th, 5th, and 6th bells, and at Winteringham and at Winterton on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th bells.

The most usual form of distinction of sex, however, in this county is thrice three tolls for a male and thrice two for a female : such is the custom at :

Ancaster, Aslackby, Aswarby, Aunsby, Bardney, Bennington Long, Belton-by-Grantham, Billingham, Bitchfield, Bloxholme, Boothby Graffoe, Bottesford, Branston, Brinkhill, Burgh, Burton-by-Lincoln, Burton Coggles, Burton Pedwardine, Caistor, Carlton Scroop, Coleby, Cranwell, Croyland, Denton, Digby, Doddington Dry, Donington, Dorrington, Dunholme, Dunsby, Dunston, Edenham, Evedon, Ewerby, Fiskerton, Folkingham, Foston, Gainsborough, Grantham, Gunby S. Nicolas, Hacconby, Haceby, Hale Magna, Harmston, Harpswell, Heapham, Helpringham, Hemswell, Irnham, Irby All Saints, Kelsey South, Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, Kirkby Laythorpe, Kirkby Underwood, Kyme South, Langton-by-Wragby, Leasingham, Limber Magna, Lincoln S. Martin, S. Mary-le-Wigford, S. Paul, S. Peter-at-Arches and S. Peter-at-Gowts, at Londonthorpe, Mareham-le-Fen, Navenby, Newton, Nocton, Normanton, Norton Disney, Osbournby, Owersby North, Ponton Great, Potterhanworth, Reston South, Saltfleetby S. Clement, Scredington, Scopwick, Scarle North, Skellingthorpe, Skendleby, Stainby, Stockwith East, Stroxton, Stubton, Swinstead, Tallington, Tattershall, Tetney, Thorpe-on-the-Hill, Thornton-le-Moor, Torksey, Upton, Waddington, Washingborough, Westborough, Willingham-by-Stow, Willingham South, and Witham North.

The same number of tolls,—thrice three for a male, thrice two for a female,—are given both before and after the knell at Allington East and West, Ashby-de-la-Launde, Ashby West, Barholm, Barkston, Bassingthorpe, Baston, Billingborough, Boothby Pagnell, Bourn, Careby, Colsterworth, Coningsby, Corby, Deeping Market, Deeping S. James, Elkington South, Fulbeck, Honington, Lavington, Orby, Swinderby, Ulceby, Welbourn, Welby, Welingore, Willoughby, and at Yarburgh.

At Blyborough, Hawerby, and Morton, these distinctive tolls are given only at the commencement of the knell. At Gainsborough the 6th bell is rung for the knell, but the distinctive tolls are given on the tenor. At Hawerby the smaller of the two bells is used. At Lincoln, S. Peter-at-Arches, and S. Peter-at-Gowts, the custom is to toll the tenor for ten minutes, and then ring it for five minutes. At Dorrington the Passing-bell is never rung before 8 a.m. nor after 6 p.m. At Branston and at Heapham the age of the deceased is tolled after the knell. At the following places the bell is rung a short time only for children:—Billingborough, Doddington Dry, Hale Magna, Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, Morton, Owersby North, Thornton-le-Moor, and Westborough: and at Bardney, Bourn, Deeping Market, Deeping S. James, Edenham, Tallington, and Willoughby, the death of a child is indicated by ringing the treble or one of the other small bells instead of the tenor. At Heckington the ringing is commenced by nine tolls in succession, followed by thrice three tolls for a male: or by six tolls in succession, followed by thrice two tolls for a female. At Louth, where these distinctive tolls  $3 \times 3$  and  $3 \times 2$  are used, the use of the 5th bell is included in the burial fee, and so is generally rung for the working classes: for the use of the 7th bell a fee of 3s. 6d. is charged, and is generally rung for the tradespeople: and for the tenor the fee is 5s., and its use is chiefly confined to the nobility and gentry. At Croyland the treble bell is rung for infants, the 3rd for children, and the tenor for adults. At Tattershall upon the death of any church officer the tenor is rung as a minute bell for an hour.

These nine tolls for a man are sometimes called "tellers," and it has been suggested that the old saying is a corruption of a saying arising from the thrice three tolls or "tellers" at the close of the passing-bell,

In addition to these modes of indicating the sex and age of the deceased, there are very many more in use in Lincolnshire. Some of them have, no doubt, been long in use, others are, probably, corruptions of older customs through the ignorance or negligence of parish clerks or sextons. A record of these, though, perhaps, tedious, may well be preserved as the collecting of them has involved some trouble.

At Owston thrice three tolls are given for a man on four bells, beginning with the 6th, ending with the 3rd; the same for a boy under ten, but commencing with the 3rd and ending with the 6th. For a woman seven tolls are given, commencing with the 6th and ending with the 3rd bell, and the same number for a girl beginning with the 3rd and ending with the 6th bell. These tollings are both before and after the knell, which is rung on the tenor for adults, on the 5th bell for children.

At Tydd S. Mary, where thrice three tolls are given for a male, four single strokes and then three are given for a female, the tenor being used for adults, the treble for children. The same custom is followed at Moulton for a man or a woman, but for a child they give three tolls and then two.

Thrice three tolls for a man, thrice two for a woman and three single strokes for a child are given at Addlethorpe, Authorpe, Barrow-on-Humber, Brant Broughton, Burton-on-Stather (at beginning and end), Cockerington South, Crowle, Elsham, Holywell, Keal East (after which the age is tolled), Messingham (at beginning and end), Somercotes South, Theddlethorpe S. Helen, Tothill, Walton-le-Wold, Withern, and at Goxhill, where the tenor is tolled a little at the commencement, then the indicating tolls are given, after which the tenor is again tolled, followed by the indicating tolls on all the bells.

At Saltfleetby S. Peter, thrice three tolls are given for a man, thrice two for a woman, and twice two for a child before the knell.

Thrice three tolls are given for a male and twice three for a female at Castle Bytham (before and after the knell), Skegness and Timberland.

At Doddington thrice three tolls are given for a male and twice two for a female, and the same for a man and a woman at Blyton, where, however, a child is indicated by one stroke.

At Ruskington and Silk Willoughby the death of a man is indicated by thrice three tolls, that of a woman by thrice two, that of a boy by twice three, and that of a girl by twice two: the same custom is followed at Sleaford and Swarby, at which two places, however, the tolls are given both before and after the knell, and the age of the deceased is tolled at the end.

At Belleau, Hatcliffe, Irby-on-Humber, Raithby-by-Louth and Searby thrice three tolls are given for a man, twice three for a woman, and three single ones for a child: the same custom is followed at Alford, excepting that for a child one toll is given on each bell.

At Carlton-le-Moorland, Gosberton, Lincoln S. Botolph, and Weston S. Mary the indicating tolls are thrice three for a man, twice three for a boy, thrice two for a woman and twice two for a girl.

At Althorpe they give nine strokes on the 3rd bell for a man, seven strokes on the 2nd bell for a woman, and five on the first bell for a child.

Nine tolls are given for males and seven for females at Alvingham (where the knell is rung half-an-hour for adults, a quarter of an hour for children), Barkwith East, Cockerington North (rung as at Alvingham), Grimoldby, Hogsthorpe, Lacey, Ludborough, Pinchbeck East (where the tenor is used for adults, the 2nd bell for children), Thoresby North, and Theddingthorpe All Saints, where the tolls are given both before and after the knell.

At Belton, Isle of Axholme (where the 2nd bell is used for children), Benniworth, Gedney Hill, and Scotter, nine tolls are given for a man, seven for a woman, and five for a child: at Waltham and Wootton the same number are given for a man and a woman, but four are the number for a boy, three for a girl, at the latter place before the knell: at Horkstow the same for a man and woman, but three for a boy and five for a girl: and at Thornton Curtis, where the same tolls indicate a man and a woman, three tolls are given for a child, and at that place all the tolls are given upon each bell, after which, the age of the deceased is tolled on the tenor.

At Bigby and Bonby seven tolls are given for a man, five for a woman, and three for a child, at the former place both before and after the knell.

At Frampton and Sutterton the custom is to give three tolls four times for a man, three times for a woman, twice for a child in teens, and three single tolls for a young child. The same custom is followed at Wainfleet S. Mary, excepting that twice three tolls serve for all children.

At Holbeach All Saints, thrice three tolls are given for a man, three tolls and then four tolls for a woman, three and two for a boy, and twice two for a girl both before and after the knell.

At Haxey five tolls are given for a male, three for a female, on the tenor for adults, the 5th bell for children.

At Scotton nine strokes are given for a male, namely three on tenor, three on treble, then three on tenor again: for a female the same number but beginning and ending with the treble bell.

At West Halton both before and after the knell, four tolls are given on each bell for a man, three for a woman, and two for a child, commencing in each case with the treble bell.

At Corringham four tolls are given for a male, three for a female before, and twice four for a male, twice three for a female after the knell.

At Great Grimsby four tolls are given for a male, three for a female before tolling the 7th bell.

At Hibaldstow they give four tolls on the tenor for a male, three on each bell for a female.

At Skirbeck and Swineshead the indicating tolls are rather precise: they are three times four for a married man, twice four for a single man, and four single strokes for a male child: thrice three for a married woman, twice three for a single woman, and three single tolls for a female child. The same custom is followed at Boston with the exception of seven tolls, instead of four times two, for bachelors.

The notification at Northorpe is given in couples thus : six couple of tolls for a man, five for a woman, four for a boy, and three for a girl.

At Caenby five times four tolls are given for a man, four times four for a woman, and three times four for children under twelve years of age.

At Epworth at the commencement of the knell one stroke is given on the 1st bell, two on the 2nd, three on the 3rd, four on the 4th, five on the fifth, then twelve tolls on the tenor for a man, nine for a woman : the same for children, excepting the use of the 4th bell instead of the tenor.

At Butterwick, Fishtoft, Frieston, Leake, and Stickney, they give thrice four tolls for a man, twice four for a boy, thrice three for a woman, and twice three for a girl.

At Kirton-in-Lindsey six tolls are given for a man, five for a woman, four for a boy, and three for a girl. In case of an Inquest the bell is not rung until after the enquiry is over.

At Mumby Chapel they give four times three tolls for a male, and three times three for a female : the same custom is followed at Leverton, where it is according to ancient use, as is shown by an entry in the Constables' Accounts for the year 1692 :—

“In ringing the passing-bell it has been time out of mind customary for a man that dies to toll 12 tolls. For a woman 9 tolls. They are accounted man or woman at the age of 16 or 18 years. For younger persons, a male 7 tolls; a female 6 tolls.”*

At Algarkirk, Kirton-in-Holland, Mablethorpe S. Mary, and Wyberton, it is the custom to toll twelve strokes for a man, nine for a woman, three for a child: at Benington and Laughton the same number for a man and a woman, but seven for a boy and six for a girl at the former place, and six for a child of either sex at the latter.

At Broughton they give twelve tolls for a man, eight for a woman, and six for a child, after which the tenor is tolled half-an-hour for an adult, and a quarter of an hour for a child.

Four strokes for a male and three for a female are the indicating tolls at Cuxwold and at Keddington.

At Fulstow (where the bell is tolled longer for old people than for the young) they give three times four tolls for a male, and four times three for a female.

At Bolingbroke, Hareby, and Sibsey—at the last-named place a few tolls are first given as if to call attention, and the distinctive tolls are given both before and after the knell—the custom is thrice four tolls for a man, thrice three for a woman, and thrice two for a child: which is slightly altered to twice three for a child at Enderby Mavis and at Kettlethorpe.

* Thompson's Boston, p. 574.

At Heminby they give thrice three tolls for a male, four threes for a female.

At Marsh Chapel thrice three tolls are given for a man, twice three for a male under 16; thrice two for a woman, twice two for a female under 16; and at Spalding the same custom is followed with the age of the deceased tolled after the bell is lowered.

At Market Rasen they give thrice three tolls for a man, twice three and one for a boy, twice three and two for a woman, and twice three for a girl.

At East Kirkby four times three tolls are given for a man, thrice three for a woman, twice three for a boy, and three single strokes for a girl.

At Hundleby, Partney, Spilsby, Toynton All Saints and Toynton S. Peter, they give four times three tolls for a man, thrice three for a woman, twice three for a child both before and after the knell.

At Fleet the tenor is tolled at minute intervals for ten minutes, then rung for three minutes, followed for thrice three tolls for a man, thrice two for a woman, or three single strokes for a child on the 5th bell.

At all the churches in Stamford, since about the year 1872, the ringing of the Passing-bell has been discontinued, the only notification of death being thrice three tolls for a male, thrice two for a female, twice over, on the tenor bell for adults, on the treble for children, with a short pause between each set of strokes.

At Horncastle nine tolls are given for a male, six for a female before the knell, excepting for an inhabitant living west of the river Bain, when the tolls are given after the knell: for a child the bell is not raised, only tolled: on the death of the Sovereign, Bishop of Lincoln, Vicar of the parish, or any officer of the church, the bell is tolled an hour, minute time, and on those occasions is always commenced at 3, 6, 9, or 12 o'clock, those being the only hours at which the minute bell is commenced.

At Appleby two strokes are given on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th, and four on the 6th bell for a male; two strokes on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th, and three on the 6th bell for a woman; and two strokes on the 4th, 5th, and 6th bells for a child.

At South Ferriby the custom is to give thrice three tolls for an adult and thrice two for a child irrespective of sex.

At Baumber, Cotes Magna, Fotherby, Fulletby (where the bell is rung twenty minutes for an adult, fifteen minutes for a youth, and ten minutes for an infant), Harrington, Langton-by-Partney, Legbourn, Manton, Nettleton, Rand, Ravendale East, Roxby-cum-Risby, Tathwell, Walcot (where the treble is rung for children), Wickenby, Witham-on-the-Hill (treble for children), Wold Newton, Woolsthorpe (where the bell is tolled for half-an-hour with an interval of half-a-minute between each toll), and Wragby (where, however, there is some recollection of distinctive tolls being used), the bell is rung without any indicating tolls for age or sex, either at the commencement, or the end of the knell.

It is customary in Lincolnshire not to ring the Passing-bell after sunset: this is specially the case at Castle Carlton, Torrington, Gedney Hill, and other places.

At Thornton-le-Moor the larger bell of the two is only used as the Passing-bell : not for Divine Service.

DEATH KNELL. In addition to the Passing-bell, the Canon enjoins that "after the party's death, if it so fall out, there shall be rung no more than one short peal." Durand mentions this custom, and in the Book of Ceremonies (1539) we are told that "Bells are ordained to give knowledge of our Christian brother or sister departed this world, that both we may call to remembrance our own mortality, and also be moved with charity to pray for them so departed." After the Reformation it is referred to in some of the Articles of Enquiry issued by the bishops in such words as these...."or to ring a knell presently after the departure, that notice may be taken by all to give God thanks for that party's deliverance out of this vale of misery."* The Puritans in 1562, desired "that no peal after death of any person be above the space of one hour." Wheatley writes of "the short peal" after the party's death as being generally rung in 1755, but the custom has now fallen entirely into disuse. A trace of it may however be traced at Fleet, S. Peter-at-Arches, and S. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln, Scothorn, and other places where the so called passing-bell is first tolled then rung: so at Epworth, Owston, Long-Sutton, &c., the distinctive tolls are first given after which the bell is rung. At Stow S. Mary it was formerly the custom to toll for twenty minutes, then ring for twenty minutes, and afterwards toll for twenty minutes again. The Death-knell of the Canon is, I think, referred to under the name of

SOUL BELL in the list of the "Clark's fees and wages" for Barrow-on-Humber, in 1713, thus:—

"And for every passing-bell four pence and for every soul-bell four pence."

the passing-bell mentioned being then rung according to primitive practice, and the Soul-bell "presently after the departure:" the Burial peal is mentioned as distinct from this. Sometimes the Passing-bell was called the Soul-bell: thus Bishop Hall says: "We call them Soul-bells because they signify the departing of the soul, not because they help the passage of the soul."

BURIAL PEALS. The Canon mentions "and one other (peal) before the burial, and one after the burial."

This sounding of bells at funerals was an ancient custom, and had been carried to great excess; indeed, so early as 1339 Bishop Grandisson, of Exeter, found it desirable to check the long ringings on such occasions, on the grounds that "they do no good to the departed, are an annoyance to the living, and injurious to the fabrick and the bells."* The Puritans in 1562 desired that no peal of bells at the interment be above half-an-hour. Sometimes Burial Peals were provided for by Will: thus, John Woodford of Barsby, Leicestershire, in his Will dated 13th February, 1543, said "Also I will that they shall ring att my Burriall and to have for their Labour ijd. a peece." [Notes and Queries, 6 s. 1.

p. 94.] Latimer speaks of "ringing of bells," and Whitgift, sometime Dean of Lincoln, of "the threefold peal" at Funerals. We find traces of this custom constantly in Churchwardens' Accounts. For instance in those of S. John Baptist, Stamford, for the year 1587-8, there is

The custom of chiming or ringing at funerals is now becoming obsolete: it, however, still lingers in this county.

At Dunsby and Hawerby the bells are chimed at funerals, and such is occasionally the case by special request at Edenham, Hale Magna, Heckington, and Sibsey: at Epworth and Thornton Curtis the bells are chimed at the funeral of church officials.

At Long Bennington the bells were chimed at Thomas Slack's funeral in 1861, and at West Allington on the occasion of Thomas Scott's funeral in 1874.*

At Scothorn an aged woman, a native of Yorkshire, who died about the year 1860, requested that the bells might be chimed at her funeral, which was done: it is the only remembered instance in that parish: so at Cotes Magna the bells were rung at the funeral of Ann Phillipson on the 2nd of July, 1872: she was aged 75, and had been a long sufferer: she desired that “the beautiful bells which had so often cheered her in life might ring her to rest in her last home.”

At South Kelsey the clerk, now (1879) aged 89 years, only remembers one instance of chiming at a funeral: it was at that of Ann Johnson, who was buried on the 19th of November, 1848, aged 96 years: she specially requested that she might “be chimed to church as old people were when she was a girl.” Her wish has been thus put into verse:—

Chime me to Church, and let no doleful knell
Be tolled from that old steeple grey;
The melody of pealing bells shall swell
Around me on my funeral day.

Ninety long years of glowing Summer light,
And Winters with their pinching cold,
Like a long day have past, and now the night
Steals on me—I am very old.

I’ve heard the merry bells peal brisk and clear,
For wedding and for festal day:
I’ve heard the dull bell tolling sad and drear,
For flowers that died in early May.

The mellow leaves are falling from the trees,
Golden and brown, by soft winds borne:
After life’s strife there comes the hope of ease;
Its coming should not make us mourn.

Low in the west slow dips the setting sun
Behind a solemn purple cloud:
Mourn not for loss of him: his course is run,
Rest comes with evening’s misty shroud.

The clouds have slid down to the distant sea,
 Beyond the darkly shadowed wold ;
 High in the deepening blue, o'er tower and tree,
 One lonely star hangs clear and cold.

The night wind, wandering round that moss-grown tower,
 Sings in the belfry a lone song.
 Lulling to sleep the dew-steeped closing flower,—
 And sleep will come to me ere long.

I shall not wake to any earthly morn ;
 My long day's work comes to a close ;
 Humbly, I trust, life's struggles I have borne ;
 And now I wait for sweet repose.

Chime me to Church, and let the cheerful peal
 Make homely music in the air ;
 No cause for sorrow, I but gently steal
 Away into a dawn more fair.

Chime me to Church, to sleep near its grey wall,
 Lulled by the evening song to rest,
 Till summoned by the white-robed angel's call
 To the bright morning of the blest.*

Though not now followed the custom of chiming at Funerals is remembered at Althorpe, Corringham, Owston, Gunby S. Nicolas, Tetney, and Stainby : at the two last-named places the custom was to toll a single bell until the procession appeared in sight, then to chime. At S. John Baptist, Stamford, the present (1879) parish clerk remembers when it was the custom at a funeral to toll the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th bells singly, then chime all together, and afterwards toll the tenor. The ringing or chiming to funerals seems to be referred to in the inscription on the 3rd bell at Brant Broughton:—

Beg ye of God your soul to save
Before we call you to the grave.

Simple tolling before the funeral is now the prevalent custom: at Croyland the tenor is rung: at South Somercotes the day of the month is given after the tolling: at Tetney the 2nd bell is used for children, the tenor for adults: at Swineshead, and probably in other places, the tenor is tolled when a corpse is carried through the parish for interment beyond. Amongst the Fees due to the Parish Clerk of Barrow-on-Humber in 1713 was:—

“If the friends of any deceased person desire to have the great bell rung a Little before the Corpse is brought to the Church the Clark for his ringing the said Bell shall have one shilling.”*

The “one peal after” the funeral is now of rare occurrence excepting in the case of ringers or other church officials.

At Bardney, however, and at Lea a dumb peal is rung occasionally after a funeral: at Haxey the same thing occurs at intervals during the day of the funeral of church officials, and occasionally of other parishioners by particular desire: at Navenby the bells are also occasionally rung in the evening after a funeral: at S. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln, a peal is rung for an hour without any pause, with the bells muffled on one side after the funeral of a ringer, or of a member of the congregation, as a mark of respect.

A muffled peal is not uncommonly rung on the day of the funeral of a ringer or other church officer, as at Addlethorpe, Long Bennington, Butterwick, Caythorpe, Fishtoft, Frieston, Harlaxton, Heckington, Hogsthorpe, Horncastle, Leake, East Pinchbeck, Market Rasen, Searby, Skirbeck, and at Swineshead.

At Boston a dumb peal is rung at the burial of a ringer, concluding with an open peal: at Spalding, a dumb peal is rung on the Sunday evening after the funeral of any church official.

At Louth a dumb peal is not only rung at the funeral of a ringer or other church officer, but a similar peal is rung in the evening. The custom of ringing dumb peals there appears to have been a common one formerly, for at a Vestry held on the 26th of April, 1821, it was ordered:—

“That two guineas be deducted from the salary of the Ringers for every dumb peal which they hereafter ring without the express authority of the Vicar and Churchwardens.”*

The ancient custom is echoed at Weston-S.-Mary, where the bell is tolled before the interment, and rung for ten minutes at the close of the Office: and at Barnoldby-le-Beck, East Barkwith, Baston, Owston, and Walcot, where the tenor is tolled after as well as before the interment.

The use of the tenor as a funeral bell is occasionally referred to in the inscription, as at Kirton-in-Holland:—

May all whom I shall summon to the grave
The Blessing of a well spent Life Receive and at Saxilby:—

I to the church the Living call
And to the grave do summon all.

The inscription on the tenor at Horbling apparently refers to the ringing after the funeral:—

Defunctos ploro, vivos voco, funera claudio.

In many parishes the tenor is tolled for a few minutes about half-an-hour, or an hour, before the funeral, to give warning to the “bearers,” and the neighbours: it is called the INVITATION BELL. This bell is (amongst other places) tolled at Aslackby, Barholme, Benington, Boothby Graffoe, Boothby Pagnell, Branston, Carlton Scroop, Castle Bytham, Caistor, Corby, Folkingham, South Kelsey, Lavington, Leasingham, Normanton, Osbournby, Ruskington, Scotton, Wellingore, Winterton, and South Witham.

In addition to the ringing after Death and at the Funeral, it was the custom, as is well-known, in pre-Reformation times to keep, in some cases, the “month’s mind” or monthly commemoration of the dead, and in many others the OBIT, annual, or year-mind, that is, the anniversary of the death of a person, on which day the bells were rung, and Masses were said for the dead, for which provision had been made by the deceased person, or by his friends. Instances are numerous enough: it will suffice to quote one or two connected with Boston:—William Goodyng—a brother of all the Guilds in that town—left twenty shillings for an obituary service, “all the bells were to be rung, and 20<sup>d</sup> paid therefor.” Gilbert Alilaunde, the founder of the Guild of Corpus Christi at Boston, who died in 1354, had his annual obit on the Vigil of S. George, when twenty pence was to be paid “for the ringing of all the bells.”*

The Churchwardens of Leverton, in their Accounts, have some entries relating to obits:—

1516. Itm̄ payd for the terment of water bussche & hys wyfe to prestys & clarks & ryngyng & bred & all & chesse .....	vs.

Although such Services have long since ceased, it is rather curious to note that COMMEMORATIVE PEALS are not unknown: at Harlaxton a full peal is rung yearly from 3.15 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, on the 11th of January, in memory of Nicholas Harby, who was a ringer and singer in Harlaxton Church. He was buried there on the 11th of January, 1826, aged 84 years: he left £25, the interest to be divided equally among the ringers after the peal on the anniversary of his burial, which is annually done.

* Pishey Thompson's Boston, p. 124.

At Holbeach two such commemorative peals are rung: the one, a dumb peal in memory of Mr. J. Barker, is rung at 3 p.m. on the first Sunday after Christmas day; the other, also a dumb peal, is rung at the same hour on the last day of the year in memory of Mrs. Harrison lately (1879) deceased: there is no endowment in either case.

A commemorative bell of a different character was formerly rung once a year at Welton: a man named Gilbey, who lost his way at night but was guided home by the sound of the Welton bells, left one shilling annually to have a bell rung every year on the anniversary of that event. The ringing of the bell ceased about the year 1820.

THE SANCTUS BELL. In the Inventories of church goods taken in the reign of Edward VI. where the bells are enumerated, a "sanctus bell," a "sauntes bell," or a "lytyll bell in the stepull," is generally mentioned. It was sometimes hung (in order that it might be heard by those outside, as well as by those within the church) in a little bellcote on the gable of the chancel roof between that portion of the church and the nave, or more usually in a convenient position in the belfry—not unfrequently in a window—so that the rope came down into the church within easy access to the server at the altar. When the priest said the Sanctus in the Office of the Mass three strokes were given on this bell (hence its name) so that all—the sick man in his chamber, as well as the worshipper in the church—could join in the holy song of adoration. A goodly number of successors of the Sanctus bell are in the bell-chambers of the Lincolnshire churches, in the "Priest's bell" or "ting-tang" usually rung immediately before the service begins. These are, in many cases, modern, being probably recasts of the ancient Sanctus-bells. There are, however, several of those ancient bells still remaining in this county: namely at Bicker, Ingoldmells, East Halton, Sutterton, and, with very little doubt, at Algarkirk, Hacconby, Hale Magna, Tallington, and North Witham. There are many Priests' bells in other churches without inscriptions: it is highly probable that some of those also may be of pre-Reformation date.

The Sanctus-bell may have been used upon other occasions than the one just mentioned. Dr. Rock was of opinion that in many parish churches the practice followed at Durham (see p. 162) was the rule, and that some kind of instruction was given every Sunday in the afternoon. To warn the parish of the sermon time a bell or bells would be rung, perhaps at 12 or 1 o'clock. The first ringing would be on the Signa or large bells; the last quarter of an hour ringing was, perhaps, on the smaller, or Sanctus-bell.* Hence probably the origin of the modern use of

THE PRIEST'S BELL OR TING-TANG which is so often sounded immediately before the commencement of Divine service. I have only found one bell mentioned as used as a Priest's bell in pre-Reformation times. At Ware, in Hertfordshire, there was (in 6 Edward VI.) "one lyttle belle to calle for y<sup>e</sup> priste, clarke, or sexton when they arre absent."† † Cussan's Church Goods in Hertfordshire, p. 123.

This use is called in many parishes "ringing in," and is referred to in Hudibras :—

"Hypocrisy, that thriving'st calling,
The only saint's bell that rings all in."

This bell is also sometimes called

THE 'TANTONY-BELL or Saint Anthony bell. The small bell in the central tower of Lichfield Cathedral is so called, and the churchwardens of Lamport, Northamptonshire, charged on the 22nd March, 1747, ninepence for "a Tantony-bell rope." The Priest's bell at Weedon Bec in that county was formerly called "Tantony," and at Great Oakley in the same county it is known as "Tintanny." The churchwardens of Leverton in this county charge one penny in 1528 for "a littill sanct' antony bell"—a hand-bell. The name is evidently derived from the emblem of S. Anthony—a small bell attached to his tau-staff, or suspended from the neck of his accompanying pig. Amongst the specimens of heraldry in the windows of stained glass in Stanford Church, Northamptonshire, is a shield ornamented with the garter, and displaying a Tau-cross with a bell appended. The bell is inscribed SAN · ANTHON.*

* The late Rev. Abner W. Brown, in his History and Antiquities of Bells, says the small bells fastened round the necks of cattle in Northamptonshire were called by old people tanthony bells. In the year 1131, when the owners of all swine were for-bidden to allow them to wander through the streets of Paris, a special exception was made in favour of the Monks of S. Anthony, whose pigs were still to be at large so long as each animal had a bell round its neck.

THE ANTHEM-BELL, as in the Inventory of Church Goods belonging to Oldham, Lancashire, in 1552.*

As just indicated the Priests' bells are usually sounded for a few minutes before the commencement of Divine Service to call the clergy, but the one at S. Botolph's, Lincoln, is used as a "Sacrament-bell;" those at Burgh and Ingoldmells are not now used; neither is that at North Witham, which is now without a rope. Those at Mumby and Tetney are rung as "Early-bells" on Sunday morning at 8 a.m., that at Laceby is called "the Pancake-bell," and that at Alford "the Minute-bell."

THE SACRING-BELL. This was a small hand-bell also used in the Office of the Mass to warn people that the Elevation was about to take place.

It would appear that in mediæval times one (or more) of the large bells was sometimes sounded at the Elevation. In Peckham's Constitutions at Lambeth, 1281, we read:—

"Let the bells be tolled at the Elevation of the Body of Christ [in the Eucharist] that the people who have not leisure daily to be present at Mass, may, wherever they are, in houses, or fields, bow their knees, in order to the having the indulgences granted by many bishops."†

And again another order was:—

"The parishioners shall not irreverently incline at the Elevation of the Body of Christ, but adore with all devotion and reverence: wherefore let them be first warned by ringing the little bell, and at the Elevation let the great bell be thrice knolled."‡

A small bell, however, was more usually rung: it is frequently mentioned in Edwardian Inventories of Church Goods as hanging "in the hie chauncell:" at S. Matthew's, Friday Street, London, it hung "at the quyer door." Amongst the plate formerly belonging to Boston Church, and sold by the Mayor and Burgesses in the reign of Edward VI., was "a Sylver belle" weighing eighteen ounces—doubtless a Sacring-bell: and Sacring-bells are mentioned in the sixth year of that King's reign as then remaining in the churches of Harrington, Brinkhill, and Claxby, in this county: possibly they were also found in other churches whose Inventories are not now forthcoming, and also may be classed under the name of small bells or of handbells.

Sometimes a number of small bells affixed to a wheel, which was pulled by a cord, were used to give warning of the Elevation. Eighteen such small bells are said to have hung in the church of Brokenborough, Wilts,* and if I mistake not, a similar arrangement was in use at Achurch in Northamptonshire, where we find "vijj lyttell Belles in a chyme hangynge on a wele" mentioned in the Inventory of Church Goods belonging to that parish in 1552.†

This bell was occasionally called

THE AGNUS-BELL, as at Hemswell in this county, from its being rung at the elevation of the chalice at the close of the Canon, followed immediately by the singing of the "Agnus."

the use of "ringing or sacrying Bells" in the time of Communion. He classed it among the customs kept up by those ministers who "Counterfeited the Popish Mass;" and Ridley soon after his appointment to the Bishoprick of London, issued Injunctions (1550) for that diocese in which he forbad the "ringing of the Sacrying Bell." Indeed the necessity for its use passed away when the Reformed Liturgy, or Order of the Holy Communion, was commanded to be used in English in 1549.

An interesting example (as Mr. Peacock believes) of a bronze Sacring-bell "was found, in the month of August, 1870, in the parish church of Bottesford near Brigg in this county. It was discovered walled up in a putlog hole in the western wall of the south aisle almost immediately over the half pillar which separates the aisle wall from that of the nave. It is worth remarking that the tongue of this bell is not suspended in the modern fashion from a loop cast in the head, but by a piece of iron, apparently an old nail which is bent so as to pass through two holes pierced on either side of the handle."* By the kind permission of the Society of Antiquaries I am able to give an engraving of this curious little bell, showing it two-thirds the size of the original.

HAND-BELLS. In many of the Inventories of Church Goods from the Lincolnshire parishes in the reign of Edward VI., one or more "handbells" are noted. These small bells were used in a variety of ways in pre-Reformation times. They were used in processions on Rogation days. In Inventories we often meet, as at Addington, Surrey, with "a Procession bell."† The Injunctions of Archbishop Grindal, in 1571, whilst directing "perambulation to be used by the people for viewing the bounds of their parish in the days of the Rogation, commonly called Cross-week or Gang-days," prohibit the wearing of the surplice by the minister, or the carrying of banners or hand-bells. The bell master of Loughborough, Leicestershire, would use one when he went according to his "dooty" every Friday about the town to bid all to pray for all christian souls.* At the obit of William Reede, merchant, of Boston, the bellman and the Sacristan of the Guild were to receive fourpence for making the circuit of the town, proclaiming at each station:—"Ye shall pray for the souls of William Reede of Boston, and Alice, Margaret, and Anne that were his wives, and brothers and sisters in Corpus Christi Guild." So, too, at the obit of Richard Benynton and Joan, his wife, of Boston, the bellman exhorted the people to pray for all christian souls, and to say an Ave and a Pater noster for charity's sake.†

The Hand-bell was rung in the procession when the Eucharist was borne to the house of the sick or the dying, in order that all, according to the then teaching of the church, might be warned of its approach, and pay reverence to it. The bell so used was sometimes called

THE HOUSELLING-BELL, as at Great Gonerby in this county.‡

Among the church ornaments to be provided by the parishioners in the fourteenth century was "a bell to carry before the Body of Christ in the Visitation of the Sick."§

At the burial of the dead the hand-bell was also used to clear the way, and to call for a prayer for the deceased. It was called

THE CORSE-BELL or Lych-bell, and is frequently met with in Church Inventories under those names. The custom of ringing a small hand-bell before the corpse is still (or was until recently) observed in the parish of Llanfair Dyffryn Clwyd in Wales:* and at Oxford also when a member of the University is buried. Indeed the hand-bell was used in a variety of ways in the mediæval church.

Canon Moore of Spalding has in his possession a small bell, five inches and a half in diameter, which was probably one of these ecclesiastical hand-bells. For an inscription it has the initials of “the superscription of His accusation,” and the date thus:—

with a fleur-de-lys between the letters, as shown by the stop. The local tradition is that it “belonged to a moated house in the neighbourhood.” By means not now known it had fallen into the hands of the Town-cryer of Whaplode, from whom Canon Moore rescued it.

THE CURFEW. The origin of the Curfew is well-known. It was heard in Normandy at an early date, and its use was enforced throughout this country—where it appears to have been partially instituted by King Alfred—by William the Conqueror. When it sounded at eight o'clock every evening, all persons were ordered to extinguish fire and candle, hence its name—couvre-feu. Although its sound, and its use, were only enforced during the reigns of William the Conqueror and William Rufus—the law of Curfew was abolished by Henry I. in 1100—the custom of ringing the bell still prevails in many parishes in this country. Its continuance is to be attributed to a religious, and not to a civil, purpose. The evening "Hail Mary" was ordered by Pope John XXII. (1316-34), to be said at the sound of a bell called the "Angelus," and it is probable the Curfew was continued as a warning to all to say an Ave to the Blessed Virgin before retiring to rest. "Thrice every day at Evening the bells are rung that every one may kneel and repeat the Angel's salutation to the Blessed Virgin."* Dr. Rock says: "If this Curfew did not give pious individuals the earliest thought of saying an 'Ave' at night-fall, the ringing of the bell was in itself so seasonable that it was looked upon, and employed, as a happy incident for calling upon the people, whether in town or country—throughout the land in fact—to say their greetings to the Virgin at sun-down.†"

Previous to the Reformation (as we gather from Hooper's Injunctions in 1551) the ringing of the "Curfaye" in some places was accompanied by, or replaced by, the ringing of all the bells in the steeple.

Although since the Reformation the custom of ringing the Curfew, or last Angelus, has gradually, been waning, still the practice lingers in a few Lincolnshire parishes—about twenty—where it has no doubt been continuously followed since its first institution. It is generally still rung at eight o'clock, though in some cases this is varied. It is rung at that hour at Blankney, Deeping S. James (3rd bell), after which the day of the month is tolled on the tenor, Long Sutton (2nd), Market Rasen (4th), after which the day of the month is given on the 5th, Swineshead (5th), followed by the day of the month on the 6th: also at Gedney (3rd bell) it is rung on every evening excepting Saturday: at Harlaxton (2nd bell) on every evening excepting Saturday and Sunday, after which the day of the month is tolled: at Caistor (3rd bell) every evening excepting Sunday. At Holbeach the treble is rung at 8 o'clock, after which eight knolls are given on the 3rd bell, on every evening excepting Saturday when the Curfew is rung at 7 o'clock followed by seven knolls on the 3rd bell: the knolls being, I suppose, to indicate the hour. At Spalding the 3rd bell is rung at 8 p.m. from 29th September to the 25th March: and at Heckington the Curfew is rung at 8 p.m. from Lady Day to Michaelmas, and at 7 p.m. from Michaelmas to Lady Day, after which the day of the month is tolled.

At Louth it is rung (3rd bell) at 8 p.m. excepting on Saturday evenings, and from Christmas Day to Plough Monday, when it is rung at 7 p.m.; the day of the month is tolled at the end.

At Bourn the Curfew is rung at 8 p.m. excepting on Saturday, and during Harvest, when it is rung at 7 p.m. and so acts as a Gleaning-bell.

At Horncastle the 1st bell is rung as the Curfew at 8 p.m. from Monday to Friday inclusive, and at 7 p.m. on Saturday, commencing on Plough Monday, continuing until Lady Day, old style, inclusive; commencing again on Michaelmas Day, old style, and continuing until the Vigil of S. Thomas the Apostle inclusive, followed by the tolling of the day of the month. On all "red letter days" the Curfew is not rung.

At Sleaford the 3rd bell is rung from Monday to Friday inclusive at 8 p.m. On Saturday evening, and on the eve of any day on which any special service will be held, as Christmas Day, Ascension Day, Bishop's Visitation, &c., it is rung at 7 p.m.

At Grantham the 1st bell is rung as the Curfew at 8 p.m., followed by the day of the month tolled on the 2nd bell, excepting on the Vigils or Eves of Holy days named in the Church Calendar when the Curfew is not rung.

At S. Mary's, Stamford, the Common bell (7th) is rung every evening, Sundays excepted, at 8 o'clock, after which the day of the month is tolled. The payment for ringing this bell having always been made by the Corporation, there is no mention of it in the Churchwardens' Accounts, but it is thus referred to in those of the Mayor and Chamberlain:—

the 4 & 8 o'clock Bell at St. Marys & at the halls

The same payments are found in subsequent years until 1825, since which year the Curfew only has been rung.*

The Curfew is rung at 7 p.m. at Haxey from Michaelmas to Shrove Tuesday: and at the same hour at Potterhanworth (1st bell) from Michaelmas to Lady Day, but being an endowed bell by a person who had lost his way and regained it by the sound of a bell ringing there, this ringing at Potterhanworth may possibly not be, although it more probably is, a survival of the ancient Curfew.

The Curfew was rung at Boston, with the day of the month at the close, until the year 1846, but "no funds now:" so too at East Pinchbeck it was rung "until the abolition of Church rates;" it was also rung until recently at Coningsby, Croyland, Donington, Great Grimsby, and at Tattershall, with the day of the month tolled at the close. At Stow it was formerly rung during the winter quarter, and the clerk paid by an endowment left by some one who found his way (after losing it) by the sound of the bells there.

Until about the year 1874 the 5th bell was rung as the Curfew at All Saints, Stamford, at 9 p.m. It is thus referred to in the Parish Book :—

1634 April 6. It is agreed y<sup>t</sup> Cobby have 10 groats more added to his former allowance for hereafter ringing y<sup>e</sup> bell on Sunday night . . .

The payments for this was afterwards made by the Corporation. We find that at a Common Hall, held on the 9th October, 1651, it was ordered :—

That frauncis Cole shall have six shillings and eight pence a yeare allowed him forth of the towne stocke for his paines in ringinge of the bell in All saints parish at the howers of ffive o'clocke in the morninge & nyne at night the same to be paid him by the Chamberlaine for the tyme beinge.

This order was confirmed by the Corporation on the 26th of October, 1669.

The Accounts of the Mayor and Chamberlain have one or two references to this ringing at All Saints:—

1709 p<sup>d</sup> to Geo. Woolley his yeares sallary for ringing the 5 & 9 a clock bell at All Saints due at St.
Thomas 1708 ... 00 . 06 . 08

The same payment appears in the Municipal Accounts until the year 1834.

At S. Michael's Stamford the Curfew was, until quite recently, rung at 7 p.m.: the following entry in the Municipal Records probably refers to it:—

1655 April 17. Allowed to John Shepheard ffor looking

In some parishes, as we have seen, the continuance of the Curfew was sought to be secured by an endowment, provided by persons, who in times when the roads were badly defined, and crossed an open unenclosed country, lost their way in the gloom of evening, or in the darkness of winter early nights, but were enabled to find their village homes by its welcome sound. Apparently with reference to this end it is sometimes only rung during the winter months.

The ringing of the Curfew was, for a long period, the signal for the closing of all taverns and ale-houses. In 1291 no wine was to be drawn after it had rung; and although, until the reign of Henry VII., ale was sold without any restriction, still all public-houses had to be closed at the tolling of Curfew.* It would appear to have been frequently, perhaps on that account, rung at nine o'clock in the larger towns: that was the hour formerly at All Saints, Stamford, Stamford Baron, and at Northampton All Saints, and is now the time at Towcester, Northamptonshire. So it is, and has been for many years, at S. Martin's, Leicester, where it was referred to in the following stringent bye-law passed 22 February, 25th Elizabeth. "Item, that the keeper of any ale-house that suffers any townsman to remain in his house after the Curfew bell hath rung (without lawful cause) shall forfeit 12*d.* to be paid presently, or else to remaining in ward that night."†

The ringing at nine o'clock in the evening of Bow bell in London was also, in 1469, the signal for the closing of shops. From that circumstance the Curfew in the country was sometimes called "Bow-bell."*

THE EARLY MORNING BELL. The origin of the ringing of the Morning-bell arose from an extension of the practice of saying an Ave to the Virgin at nightfall. In 1399 Archbishop Arundel issued a mandate commanding that at early dawn one "Our Father" and five "Hail Marys" should be said.† As a reminder to all of this duty the Angelus was rung. This bell was often called "Gabriel" after the Angel of the Annunciation. The 3rd bell at Branston, the 2nd at Holton-le-Clay and the 3rd at Waith are so called: the 2nd at Gunby S. Peter and the 3rd at South Somercotes are inscribed:—

DULCIS SISTO MELIS VOCOR
CAMPANA GABRIELIS

others again—Althorpe 1st, Baumber 2nd, Mavis Enderby 3rd, Manby 2nd, Scopwick 3rd, and Somersby 1st—say:—

MISSI DE CELIS HABEO NOME

and others bear an inscription indicative of their purpose

personet hec celis dulcissima vox gabrielis

* It was so at S. Martin's, Leicester, see Church Bells of Leicestershire, p. 115; and at Blakesley, Northamptonshire, see Notes and Queries, 6th S. II. 264. It should however be noted that in a Sermon published in 1616, the largest bell of a ring of five was called "the tenor or bow-bell." Ibid, p. 67.

as at Belton (4th), Haxey (4th), Killingholme (3rd), and Sedgebrooke (2nd).

These bells were, doubtless, rung as the Angelus, and some of the Ave Maria bells too (of which there are several still remaining in this county) were, probably, used for the same purpose.

The Early Morning-bell is still rung at Gedney (3rd bell) at 5 o'clock in the summer: at 6 o'clock in the winter. At Bourn, Crowle, Deeping S. James (3rd), Market Deeping (5th), Epworth, Heckington, Market Rasen (4th), Sleaford (1st, used to be rung at 5 a.m.), Long Sutton (2nd), and Witham-on-the-Hill (4th), the morning-bell is rung at six o'clock: the day of the month is tolled at Sleaford after the ringing.

At Rippingale the 1st bell is rung at 7 a.m. from the 5th of April to the 11th of October: at 8 o'clock during the winter: at Folkingham the treble is rung daily at 8 a.m.: at Belton the 3rd bell is rung at 6 a.m. from Candlemas to Michaelmas.

At Spalding the 3rd bell had previous to 1803 been rung from time immemorial as the Morning Angelus at six o'clock. In that year the following resolution was passed by the Vestry:—

“1803. As it is the sense of this meeting that the Bell usually rung every morning at six of the clock from 29th sept<sup>r</sup> to 28th march would be of more service if rung at 7 o'clock it is hereby agreed that the ringing of the Bell be at 7 o'clock instead of the afore mentioned hour of six.”*

This alteration of the hour did not last long: the bell has been again rung at the old hour for more than half a century past from the 25th of March to the 29th of September.

At Burgh the 6th bell is rung at 5 a.m. from the 11th October to the 11th November: at 6 o'clock from the latter date to the 21st February: and again at 5 a.m. from that date to the 21st of March, after which the day of the month is tolled.

Until recently a bell was rung at 5 a.m. at Croyland (until 1874), Grantham, and at East Pinchbeck (2nd) "until the abolition of church rates." At Boston, too, the 1st bell was rung at that hour until 1846 when it was given up "for want of funds:" a reference to it is made in an Order made by the Corporation in 1554:—

"That 13<sup>s</sup> & 4<sup>d</sup> be given to the persons to ring the morning and evening bell."

At Donington, Great Grimsby (until 1840), Horncastle (1st), S. Mary-le-Wigford, Lincoln, and S. Michael's, Stamford, a bell was formerly rung at 6 a.m.: and at S. Benedict's, Lincoln, it was rung at that hour in the summer, at 7 o'clock in the winter.

At S. Peter-at-Arches, Lincoln, a bell was formerly rung at 7 a.m.: at Harlaxton and Carlton-le-Moorland (in summer) at 4 a.m.: at Tattershall at 8 a.m.: and at Swineshead at 5 a.m. in summer, at 6 o'clock in the winter.

At Tydd S. Mary an early morning bell used to be rung "to call men and carts to work:" and at Louth the 3rd bell was, sixty years ago, rung at 5 a.m. and was called the “getting up bell :” subsequently, until about the year 1868, it was rung at 8.30 a.m.

At Coningsby an early bell was formerly rung, and there was a house given rent free to the man who acted as ringer: the house has long since fallen down, and the land upon which it stood has been added to the churchyard.

At Stamford as we have already noted under the ringing of the Curfew (see pp. 208 and 206), the morning bell was rung at All Saints’ at five o’clock, and at S. Mary’s at four o’clock: the payment for the ringing at the latter church was regularly made until the year 1825, when the ringing of the morning bell there ceased.

At Barton-on-Humber, writes Mr. Ball, the Jury appointed a man to call up the townspeople between 3 and 5 o’clock in the morning, and also to ring a bell at 5 a.m. from Michaelmas to Lady-day.*

This ringing of the Early Morning-bell has long been used (as confessedly in past days at Tydd S. Mary and at Louth) as simply a call to daily work: indeed the inscription on the 1st bell at Horncastle says that:—

and so on the 3rd at Friskney:—

LABOREM SIGNO ET REQUIEM.

OTHER DAILY BELLS. A mid-day Angelus was rung in France in the fifteenth century. Although that custom appears to have been followed in some places in England (as at Cropedy in Oxfordshire, where the Ave-bell was rung daily at noon as well as in the morning and evening (see p. 168), the practice does not appear to have been at all general in this county. In some parishes, however, a mid-day bell is rung. Such is the case in a very few in Lincolnshire.

At three places in the Isle of Axholme—Epworth, Crowle, and Belton—a bell is rung (Sundays excepted) at 6 a.m.; at noon, and again at 6 o'clock in the evening: at the latter place—Belton—it (the 3rd bell) is rung at noon only from Michaelmas to Candlemas.

At Rippingale and at Folkingham, in addition to the ringing of the treble bell early in the morning, it is rung at one o'clock p.m., at the latter place now (1880) by a woman named Armstrong, who has charge of the clock and keeps the keys of the Church, the Yard, and the Belfry.

At Market Deeping the 5th bell is rung at 6 a.m., and again at 6 p.m. in the summer, at 8 o'clock in the winter.

In the absence of all evidence to the contrary, the use of these mid-day bells in this and other counties may be attributed to a secular origin—the giving warning to agricultural labourers and others of the time—rather than to a religious one.

In several parishes a bell is rung for Morning and Evening Prayer daily: of such I have made no note.

THE PANCAKE-BELL. In addition to the occasional confession of sin to the priest, it was considered, in mediæval times, that the week preceding Lent was specially an appropriate time for all to perform that duty. It was hence called Shrove-tide, and the Tuesday in it called Shrove, Shrive, or Confession-Tuesday—shrive being an old Saxon word for confession. The confession was made in the church, where the priest sat in an open chair, or stall, to hear the confessions of his people, to award them such penance as he thought good for them, or to give them absolution. In order that all might be reminded of this duty, and be informed that the priest was ready to receive them, a bell was rung calling them to the church. This was the origin of the ringing of the bell on Shrove-Tuesday.

But another custom was followed in those times when Lent was more strictly observed than now as a time of abstinence from flesh meat. On Shrove-Tuesday, we are told by a writer in Notes and Queries, the housewives, in order to use up all the grease, lard, dripping, &c., made pancakes, and the apprentices, and others about the house were summoned to the meal by the ringing of a bell, which was naturally called “the Pancake-bell.”*

The ringing of the Shrive-bell, now called the Pancake-bell, is still continued in a goodly number of Lincolnshire parishes on Shrove-Tuesday.

It is rung at 11 o'clock in the following places:—

Aslackby (2nd bell), Bassingthorpe, Belton, Isle of Axholme (1st), Long Bennington (1st), Billingborough (4th), Blyborough (for five minutes), Bourn (1st), Branston (3rd), Burton Coggles (1st bell), Caistor (4th), Carlton-le-Moorland (2nd), Claypole (3rd), Coleby, * Notes and Queries, 3rd S. vi. 404.

Colsterworth (1st), Corby (3rd), Crowle (1st), Market Deeping (4th), Digby (1st), Norton Disney (1st), Doddington, Doddington Dry, Donington (2nd), Dunsby (1st), Epworth (3rd), Grayingham, Haceby, Hale Magna (largest sound bell), Haxey (tenor), Helpringham, Hemswell, Heckington (tenor), Holbeach (7th bell for fifteen minutes), Ingoldsby (2nd), Kirton-in-Holland (5th), Kirton-in-Lindsey, Kirkby Laythorpe, Laughton, Lavington, Osbournby (2nd), Owston (tenor), Ruskington (3rd), Scotter, Scotton (2nd), Sleaford, Stragglethorpe (2nd), Swinstead, Swinderby (tenor), Tattershall, Thorpe S. Peter, Upton, Washingborough (1st), and Wragby.

At Harlaxton the 3rd bell is rung at the same hour: that bell being used, it is said, "because Shrove-Tuesday falls on the 3rd day of the week." At Horbling and at Scothorne (1st) the Pancake-bell is also rung at that time, when the children turn out of school, and have a holiday.

The Pancake-bell is rung at 10 a.m. at Burgh (tenor bell for an hour), Croyland (4th bell) and at Spalding (2nd bell): at Coningsby the 5th bell is rung at 10.30; at Surfleet a bell is rung at 10.45; at Leasingham, the tenor, at 11.30, and at North Scarle the treble is rung at 11.15.

The Pancake-bell is rung at noon (12 o'clock) at Bardney (3rd bell), Brant Broughton, Dowsby, Owmbly, and Waddington (1st bell): also at Market Rasen, where two bells (5th and 6th) are rung: that is the case at Blakesley and at Oundle, Northamptonshire, where the two bells are supposed to say "Pan on!"

At Grantham the tenor is rung for half-an-hour commencing at 9 a.m. The bells were formerly allowed to be jangled by the people, and much damage was done, as is shown by an order passed by the Corporation in 1646, which directed that whereas an innumerable concourse of old and young were wont to enter the church on Shrove-Tuesday, ascend to the roofs and oliers, jangle the bells, and break the chime wires, the belfry door was to be kept locked, and such misdemeanors prevented in future.*

At Stamford it is the custom at All Saints' to raise and fall separately the 5th, 4th, and 3rd, or other three bells, commencing at eleven o'clock: at S. George's, S. Mary's, and S. Michael's each bell is raised and lowered, one after the other.

At Horncastle the 3rd bell is rung at ten o'clock: until comparatively recent times the shops were closed when the Pancake-bell began, and the day was kept a close holiday.

The custom of ringing the Shrive or Pancake-bell is gradually dying out, as is shown by the number of parishes in which it is remembered, though not now followed: amongst them may be mentioned:—

Addlethorpe, Alford, Althorpe, Ancaster, Belton, Benington, Benniworth, Billingham, Burton-by-Lincoln, Caythorpe (until quite recently), South Cockerington, Corringham, Denton, Dunholm, Gedney Hill (discontinued in 1830), Hemingby (rung 50 years ago), Hibaldstow, Honington (rung 50 years ago), Kelsey North, Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, S. Botolph's, Lincoln (rung 40 years ago), Louth (rung 45 years ago), Ludborough, Mareham-on-the-Hill, Nocton, Partney (rung until 1873), Quadring, Middle Rasen, Rippingale, Scredington, Sibsey, Stainby, Stickney, Sutterton (discontinued about 1845), Tetney, Thornton-le-Moor (treble at noon), Thorpe-on-the-Hill, Tydd S. Mary, High Toynton, Ulceby, Welby (discontinued thirty years ago), Welton (until 1876), and Westborough (until 1876).

At Nettleton and at Stow (where it was formerly rung) the children left the schools for a holiday at the sound of the Pancake-bell.

At Weston S. Mary it used to be rung at intervals all day, until forty years ago when it was discontinued.

Shrove-Tuesday has long been considered a holiday by the young people, jangling the church bells was not uncommon; and cock-fighting, cock-throwing, and football were, until recently, usual amusements.

At Appleby the Pancake-bell was rung at 11 o'clock until about the year 1865. The farm servants left off work for the day to eat pancakes and to play at football. Football ceased about the year 1845 when a lad's leg was broken in the game. Although the bell is not now rung, the school children have a half-holiday according to old usage.

At Winterton also the 1st bell was rung as the Pancake-bell at 11 o'clock until about the year 1869. Apprentices were let off work when the bell sounded, and played at football in the afternoon: the ringers got their pancakes, and then rang a peal.

In some parishes, as at Navenby and Wellingore, this bell was formerly rung by the oldest apprentice in the parish: the apprentices used to consider Shrove-Tuesday a day specially licensed for rough and boisterous amusements.

Years ago, writes a correspondent in Notes and Queries, Shrove-Tuesday was in South Lincolnshire the day for beginning the battledoor and shuttlecock and whipping-top season.*

At Laceby the Priest's bell is called "Pancake-bell."

Shakespeare, in All's well that ends well, speaks of a pancake as fit for Shrove-Tuesday, and Taylor the Water Poet (1630) mentions the Pancake-bell as being then rung on that day: so too in Poor Robin's Almanack, 1684, we read:—

But hark I hear the Pancake-bell
And fritters make a gallant smell.

ADVENT RINGING. At Market Rasen a peal is rung early in the morning of the first Sunday in Advent. It is customary in Lincolnshire to practice ringing during the weeks in Advent, and to ring much during the Christmas season: such is the case at Addlethorpe, West Ashby, Barkstone, Benniworth, Benington, Binbrooke, Bicker, Branston, Carlton Scroop, North Coates, South Cockerington, Coleby, Cotes Magna, Donington, South Elkington, Folkingham, Fotherby, Frampton, Gedney Hill (for a month on each side of Christmas), Goxhill (twice a week from 5th November to Lent), Great Grimsby (for the month before Christmas), Harlaxton, Healing (as at Goxhill), Hogsthorpe (from 5th November to Christmas), Irby-on-Humber, Kirton-in-Holland, Lavington (twice a week from 5th November to Christmas), Lea, Legbourne, Leverton, Ludborough, Moulton, Newton, Normanton, South Ormsby, East Pinchbeck, Middle Rasen, Scothorne, Scremby, Searby, Skellingthorpe, Skendleby, Swineshead, Tattershall (from 5th November to New Year's Day), Tetney (a peal for an hour every evening, Sundays excepted, during Advent), Theddlethorpe All Saints, North Thoresby, Timberland, South Willingham (every night for six weeks before Christmas), and at Willoughby (from 5th November to New Year's Day).

At Claxby they ring once in the first week in Advent, twice in the second, thrice in the third, and four times in the fourth or last week.

At South Kelsey the bells are rung two evenings in the week from Kelsey Feast (old Martinmas) till Christmas; and at Epworth peals are rung from 7 to 8 p.m. on the Saturday night next following Martinmas day, and then on every Thursday and Saturday evening until the Saturday night before "Fastens Eve" (i.e. Shrove-Tuesday). It is thought probable that the Thursday night's ringing originated in the idea that Thursday being Epworth market day, and there being formerly much water between that place and Doncaster, it would be useful to guide any one back to Epworth who might lose his way on returning to Doncaster: it is further said that the ringing arose from the fact of a traveller being lost on the moors and finding his way to Epworth church by the sound of the bells.

The Churchwardens' Accounts at Corringham show that the bells there were formerly rung from the 5th November, to the 14th of February, and that the ringers were allowed three pounds of candles, and ten shillings worth of beer.

CHRISTMAS PEALS are rung in very many parishes on the Eve of the Festival: such is the case at Barkston, Billing-borough, Corby, Donington, Great Grimsby, Halton-Holgate, South Kelsey, East Keal, Osbournby, Rippingale, Spilsby, and Welton.

The ringing at midnight is an old custom : at Ruardean, Gloucester, there is a benefaction to the ringers of 5s. a year under a Deed of the Rev. Anthony Sterry, Vicar of Lidney, dated in the fortieth year of Elizabeth, "for ringing a peal on Christmas-eve about mid-night for two hours in commemoration of the Nativity."* This midnight ringing is heard at (amongst other places) Springthorpe in this county.

Merry peals are rung on Christmas morning at five o'clock at South Kelsey : an hour later (6 a.m.) peals are rung at South Cockerington, Edenham (and again in the afternoon), Holbeach All Saints, Scothorne, Swineshead, Thornton Curtis, and at Westborough.

At an early hour, or during the day, peals are rung at

* Edwards' Old English Customs, p. 6.

At Ashby-de-la-Launde the bells are not only rung at 8 a.m., but also for Divine Service.

At Amcotts a peal is rung at 8 a.m. instead of the usual single bell.

At Caistor the bells are rung for some days before the Festival.

At Stow they are rung early on Christmas morning, and also on every day during the following week, finishing on New Year's Eve. This is an ancient practice, as is apparent from the direction of S. Dunstan, made in the tenth century in his Rule for the Reformation of Monasteries, that "at mass, nocturns, and vespers from the Feast of Innocents to the Circumcision all the bells should be rung as was the custom in England."

At Lea a peal is rung before chiming for service: and at Sleaford the bells are rung at 10 a.m., 4 p.m., and again after Evening Service on Christmas Day.

Peals were formerly rung, but not now, at Althorpe and at Alvingham: the churchwardens of Kirton-in-Lindsey refer to the custom in their accounts for 1640:—

"It' given to the Ringers at Christenmasse day at morne xijd."

EASTER DAY. Peals are heard in many parishes on this Great Festival.

At Mavis Enderby the bells are rung at break of day.

At Addlethorpe, Barkston, Belton near Grantham, Broughton, North Coates, Denton, Edenham, Gunby S. Nicolas, Harlaxton, Heydour, Holbeach All Saints, Lincoln (S. Botolph, S. Peter-at-Arches, and S. Peter-at-Gowts), Linwood, Louth, Navenby, Market Rasen, Skellingthorpe, Skirbeck, Stainby, Swinderby, Swineshead, Thornton Curtis, and at Waddington the bells are rung joyously early in the morning: that is also the case at South Cockerington, where the bells are also rung before and after each Service.

So, too, on other Festivals the bells are sometimes rung:—

THE EPIPHANY: Peals are rung at Swineshead.

ASCENSION DAY: Peals are rung at North Coates and at Heydour.

WHITSUNDAY PEALS are rung early in the morning at Harlaxton, Lincoln (S. Peter-at-Arches, and S. Peter-at-Gowts), Linwood, Louth, Navenby, and Skellingthorpe.

TRINITY SUNDAY. The bells of S. Peter-at-Arches and S. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln, are rung from seven to eight o'clock in the morning.

LENTEN RINGING. At Broughton they chime (not ring as usual) the bells for Divine Service on Ash-Wednesday.

At Gedney Hill, during Advent and Lent, the 2nd bell only is used for week-day Services: and at S. Botolph's, Lincoln, the bells are only chimed, not rung, during the same seasons.

At Barrow-on-Humber it was one of the duties of the Parish Clerk in 1713:—

“Item He is to ring a Bell every working day from monday the first whole week in Lent, until Easter, except such days as there is prayers in the church.”*

* MSS. preserved in Church Chest.

That "Duty" is more clearly expressed in an old Survey or "Terrar" of that parish thus:—

"The Clarke Receiveth from every Cottager at Easter three pence and from every Husbandman for every Plough Land eight pence, and for Ringing the Day Bell and Night Bell in Harvest two pecks of wheat, being also obliged to ring at Nine a Clock and four a Clock all the time of Lent."*

I suppose we are to understand that this ringing of a bell at the hours of Matins and Evensong was to take place every day, although no Service was said, excepting on Litany and Holy days, when Divine Service would really be said, and that rather later in the morning. A similar custom was formerly in vogue at Cottingham, Northamptonshire, where a bell was rung daily at 11 a.m. during Lent, for doing which the clerk collected eggs at Easter.

GOOD FRIDAY USE. At Winterton one bell only is used in Holy Week, and the tenor tolled for Services on Good Friday.

At Scawby one bell only is rung on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Holy Week.

At S. Botolph's, Lincoln, the tenor bell is rung at 8.0, 9.0, and 10.30 in the morning. For the three hours Service (12.0 to 3.0 p.m.) the tenor is muffled on one side, and in addition to being rung for Service, six strokes are given each quarter of an hour, and at 3 o'clock it is rung for five minutes. The tenor is the only bell used from that time until Easter morning.

* MSS. preserved in Church Chest.

At Broughton the bells are chimed, instead of being rung, for Divine Service.

At S. Peter-at-Arches, Lincoln, the tenor bell only is used for the Services on Good Friday.

At Horncastle the tenor is first tolled, then rung, for Divine Service on this day, after which the 2nd bell is rung as on Sundays.

At Aisthorpe the tenor bell is tolled at 3 p.m. and at Caistor a muffled peal is rung at that hour.

SAINTS' DAYS' ECHOES. The curious custom of ringing a bell as a reminder of Services no longer said, which was formerly followed, during Lent, at Barrow-on-Humber (see p. 224) finds almost a duplicate at Messingham, where on Saints' Days, when there is no service said, a bell is rung for half-an-hour at eleven o'clock in the morning.

S. JAMES' DAY. The churchwardens of Kirton-in-Lindsey (1610-1623) and of other places formerly made entries of payments for ringing on this day, which may have been a compliment to the name of the reigning sovereign—James the First.

S. ANDREW'S DAY too was announced in the same way at Kirton-in-Lindsey in 1658—that is during the commonwealth. A bell is now rung on this day at Bozeat in Northamptonshire, and is called 'Tandrew, or S. Andrew's bell, and is there supposed to have, in times past, had some connection with the celebration of the day as the anniversary of the Patron Saint of the lacemakers. A similar reason may have caused the ringing at Kirton-in-Lindsey, or it may have been a survival of a custom of ringing on the anniversary of the Patron Saint of Scotland introduced after the union of the English and Scotch crowns.

THE GOWRIE CONSPIRACY. The bells of Kirton-in-Lindsey were also rung in the reign of James I., on the 5th of August: which day was formerly kept in England as a holiday to commemorate the escape of that monarch (when ruling over Scotland alone) from death at the hands of the Earl of Gowrie and his brother Alexander Ruthven on that day in the year 1600.

NEW YEAR'S EVE. The bells are rung on New Year's Eve at—amongst other places—Barkston, Halton Holgate, East Keal, Linwood, Osbournby, Saxby All Saints, Spilsby, and Welton.

NEW YEAR'S EVE AND NEW YEAR'S DAY. The old year is rung out, and the new rung in, at Ancaster, Ashby-de-la-Launde, Billingborough, Carlton Scroop, North Coates, Cotes Magna, Corby, Edenham, South Elkington, Healing, Heckington, Lea, Lincoln (S. Peter-at-Gowts), Normanton, Owston, Middle Rasen, Sleaford, Spalding, Stamford (All Saints and S. Mary), Stow, and at Winterton: also at Holbeach All Saints, where at midnight the bells are "fired" three times three.

At Aisthorpe and at Mareham-le-Fen they toll the old year out and ring the new year in.

At S. Botolph's, Lincoln, they ring a half-muffled peal for midnight service, and an open peal whilst the Te Deum is sung at twelve o'clock.

At Market Rasen they ring with partly muffled bells on

New Year's Eve; at midnight they toll twelve tolls; then welcome the new year with an open peal.

At Stainby and Waltham the old year is rung out with a muffled peal, and the new year rung in with an open one.

At Caistor, Fulbeck, Heydour, Irby-on-Humber, East Pinchbeck, Scothorne, Sibsey, South Somercotes, and Thornton Curtis, the new year is rung in with a peal.

At Donington a peal is rung on New Year's Eve and again on New Year's Day.

At South Kelsey they ring on new year's eve, and again at 5 o'clock on new year's morning.

Formerly, when the ringers could be paid, the bells were rung on new year's eve and morning at Althorpe, and when the bells could be rung at Great Grimsby; so too, at Kirton-in-Lindsey, the bells were rung on new year's morning upwards of two centuries ago, as is shown by the following extract from the accounts of the Churchwardens there for the year 1632:—

Item to the ringers of new yeare day morninge ..... xijd.

HALLOWMAS OR ALL HALLOWS' RINGING. There was formerly much ringing on the Vigil of All Saints, the bells being kept going all through the night.

The Accounts of the Churchwardens of Leverton have some entries relating to that custom:—

- 1524. Itm̄ payd to Wylyya' Josson Carpentar for helpyng of ye bellfray agayns halomese..... vd.
- 1526. Paid to Rodlay ye wryght for me'dyng of ye bells agayns halomes ..... iiijd.

Henry the Eighth suppressed this ringing through the night on the Vigil of All Saints by an order addressed to Cranmer:—"Forasmuch" said that document, "as that Vigil is abused as other Vigils were, our pleasure is, as you require, that the said Vigil shall be abolished, as the others be, and there shall be no watching nor ringing, but as be commonly used upon other holidays at night."

The custom was revived at Leverton in the reign of Queen Mary as the Churchwardens' charges show:—

alhallow nyght ..... xixd. ob.

All Saints' Eve being, I suppose, meant.

The day after All Saints was known as

ALL SOULS' DAY, a comparatively modern festival of the Roman Church, founded on the doctrine of Purgatory, and styled the Commemoration of the Faithful Departed. It was sometimes called SOULEMAS DAY,* and there was again much ringing on its Vigil. The Services of the day being for the benefit of all christian souls, a general collection appears to have been made from all the people—from the living for the benefit of the dead—either in the church or through the parish, to pay for the night-long ringing of the bells. Thus at Holy Trinity, Coventry, in 1462, it was the duty of the first Deacon to "go on all halowe day at evyn among y<sup>e</sup> pepyll in y<sup>e</sup> northe syd off y<sup>e</sup> Church and gedyer money off them for y<sup>e</sup> ringars y<sup>t</sup> ryng for all crystyn sols:” and in like manner the second Deacon was to collect “in y<sup>e</sup> sowthe syde off y<sup>e</sup> churche.”* “The watching and ringing of bells all the night upon Alhallow day at night” was forbidden in 1546 as it was the warning for All Souls’ day, but the practice was revived in Queen Mary’s time.

We find a reference to this ringing, and to the collection from the people in the Accounts of the Churchwardens of Leverton :—

1557. It’ p<sup>d</sup> for the full paymēt of the ryngeres vpon psalmes nyght over & besyds towe & twente pence gatheryd of the paryshyoners ..... xiiij*d*.

“Psalmes” is an attempt at Somas or Soulmas. The ringing continued all through the night until the morning of All Souls, when the Morrow-mass was sung.

S. HUGH’S DAY. The bells of several parishes in Lincolnshire were formerly rung on this day.

In the Churchwardens’ Accounts of Market Deeping is found :—

and several small payments about the bells.

Those of Kirton-in-Lindsey give :—

1580. Itm̄ aganste san hew day for warke to the belles ... ijs.

* Quoted by Mr. Ellaçombe in Bells of the Church, p. 276-7.

The same entry occurs in the following year. A few years later we have :—

1597. Itñ vpon sante hue daye ..... viijd.

So those at Leverton :—

1580. Imp'mis p<sup>d</sup> to Thoñis Skottyll for one day worke aboute the bells before St. hewe day ..... viijd.

1585. Itñ p<sup>d</sup> for bread & ale to y<sup>e</sup> ringers on St. hewe day ..... xij*d*.

1598. Itñ p<sup>d</sup> to viij ringgers on St. hughes day ..... iiij*s*.

In later years the ringers were regaled with “bread, drinck & cheeze :” for the “drinck” a strike of “mawlt” was brewed :—

1602. It' p<sup>d</sup> for a strik mawlt for the Ringers against St.
Hughe day ..... ijs. iiij*d*.

& grindinge them ..... ijs. viij*d*.

It' for Thre stone of Beif & white bread that day expended ..... vjs.

It' p<sup>d</sup> for greise & Candle then ..... vijd.

The Accounts of the Churchwardens of S. John Baptist, Stamford, say :—

1589-90. Itñ to the Ringers upon St. hewes day for bread & drynck for them ..... xij*d*.

1595-6. Itñ gyven to y<sup>e</sup> Ringers on sanct hewyghes day ..... xij*d*.

Itñ for Candle on St. hewyhe nyght ..... ijd.

These ringings were not, however, in honour of S. Hugh, but in honour of the Accession of Queen Elizabeth which took place upon S. Hugh's day—and which saint's day, in accordance with ancient custom, was frequently quoted as a date instead of the day and the month—17th November, 1558: so the Churchwardens of Leverton, in 1594, instead of saying, as usual, S. Hugh's day, give the date thus:—

1594. Itm expended on the Ringgers the xvij day of November..... xixd.

those of S. John Baptist, Stamford, say:—

1601-2. On the crownation day for 2 belrops ..... iijd.

and those of Market Deeping:—

The anniversary of the Accession of Queen Elizabeth was first publicly celebrated about the year 1570,* and became known as the QUEEN'S DAY: it is so called in the Parish Book of All Saints, Stamford:—

“1591. Ap. 5. It is accorded that hereafter for the ringers one the Queene's daye the allowance shall be but vs.”

and in the Accounts of the Churchwardens of Market Deeping to which reference has already been made, where the ringing is sometimes said to have taken place on S. Hugh's day, sometimes on the Coronation day, and sometimes on the Queen's day, all meaning that it was in honour of the Queen's Accession :—

1592. Itm̄ to nine men to ringe on y<sup>e</sup> Queene's daye ..... ijs. vjd.
 1593. Itm̄ for bread & ale grese & candle on y<sup>e</sup> Queene's daye ..... ijs. viijd.

The celebration of the day was long kept in many places, by the lighting of bonfires and ringing of bells: indeed in London, where the bells began to ring about 3 a.m., the day was more or less one of violent political and religious excitement until the Accession of George the First. The ringers at Bowden-Magna, Leicestershire, still receive one shilling annually, left to them by Richard Kestin, under his Will dated the 7th of August, 1674, "for their pains in ringing on the 17th day of November for ever, in thankful remembrance of restoring the Gospel, and removing Popish Idolatry, and bringing in Queen Elizabeth."*

DEDICATION PEALS are rung at Aubourn, Branston, Caythorpe, Hale Magna, Haxey, Heydour, East Pinchbeck, Rippingale, Skellingthorpe, and at other places.

At Sibsey a peal is rung on the morning of the first Monday in August, commonly called "Sibsey Feast Day." As the church is dedicated to S. Margaret, whose festival day is the 20th of July, it seems likely that on the occasion of the alteration of style, in 1752, the parishioners kept their ancient festival on the date in the new style that corresponded with the 20th of July in the old style. The Sunday following this date would be the principal religious celebration or festival, and the next day, Monday, the principal secular festival day, upon which the bells were rung.

BAPTISM PEAL. At Searby a peal is rung for ten minutes after the Sacrament of Holy Baptism has been administered; and at Fulbeck the 4th bell is rung prior to the Service in which the Ministration takes place.

CONFIRMATION PEALS are rung at Donington and doubtless in many other places when that Holy Rite is administered.

BANNS PEAL, that is a peal after Divine Service on Sunday morning when the Banns of an intended marriage are first "put up," is rung at Aisthorpe, Ancaster, Ashby-de-la-Launde, Barkston, Barnoldby-le-Beck, Bassingthorpe, Bottesford (sometimes), Carlton Scroop, Claypole, Claxby, Denton, Eveden, Fulbeck, Heapham, Irby-on-Humber, Kirkby Laythorpe, Kirkby Underwood, Legbourne, Normanton, Norton Disney, Middle Rasen, Redbourne, Ropsley, Rothwell, Scotter, Skellingthorpe, Springthorpe, Thorpe-on-the-Hill, Welby, North Witham, South Willingham, and at Yarburgh.

The same custom is followed at Bonby, when desired. At South Kelsey the peal is rung in the evening; at Swayfield the customary fee (2s. 6d.) for entering the Banns is appropriated by the clerk for his services in the belfry; at Laceby the peal is given if the parties concerned are "popular people."

The single bells are sounded at Beelsby, Caenby, Torrington East and Torrington West.

A Peal is rung after the third publication at Asterby ("when money is forthcoming"), Cotes Magna, Heydour, Saxby (occasionally), Scotton, and at Upton; after the first and third times of publication at Long Bennington, Ingoldsby, Lavington, and at Westborough; and after each publication at Alvingham, North Cockerington, Elsham, and at Searby.

The ringing of these Banns Peals is remembered at Alkborough, Allington East and West (where they are still occasionally rung), Appleby (only recently given up), Branston, Carlton-le-Moorland, Corringham, Fotherby, Honington, Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, Lea, Leasingham, Nettleton, North Owersby, Owston, Thornton-le-Moor, Thornton Curtis, and at Ulceby, where the peal was rung in the afternoon of the third, and sometimes of the second day of publication.

At North Kelsey, where a peal was formerly rung on Sunday after the publication of Banns, the bells are now always rung on the Monday.

At Barnoldby-le-Beck, Lea, and other places the ringing was, and is, called giving the couple their "spurring" or "sporrings," from the old Danish the "sporge" or asking; at Denton, Swayfield, and North Witham, the ringing is called "spurs."

There is another custom followed at Claxby and other parishes in that neighbourhood in connection with the publication of Banns: after the third asking the clerk says "God speed them well;" until recently the custom was followed at Springthorpe; in a neighbouring parish to that, where it still lingers, the Vicar published his own banns, whereupon the clerk turned round and said "God speed you well Sir!"*.

WEDDING PEALS are, of course, usual in almost every parish in the county: even in some of those which possess only one bell an attempt is made on such occasions to be hilarious: at Stroxtton, where, until recently, there was only a single bell, it was customary on the occasion of a wedding for three men to beat a kind of peal on the bell with hammers which was called "Three-bell-peal." It is said to have been last done there on the occasion of the marriage, in the year 1814, of a man only lately deceased. The old bell still bears the marks of that performance.

At Addlethorpe a peal is always rung immediately after the wedding of a ringer; at Hawerby the two bells are chimed after a wedding; and at Searby the bells are rung for ten minutes.

At Donington, and doubtless at other places, it is customary to ring the bells before and after Divine Service on the first Sunday after the return of the newly married couple, and of their attendance at Church.

The 5th bell at Spalding is called

THE WEDDING-BELL, because it is used to call the Priest to the church as soon as the wedding party arrives.

The Wedding-peal is referred to on several bells in Lincolnshire: for example on Hogsthorpe 2nd bell we read:—

* Notes and Queries, 5th S. XII. 125, 518.

When Female Virtue weds with manly worth
We catch the rapture and we spread it forth.

and on the 5th at Brant Broughton :—

In Wedlock's band all ye who join
With hands your hearts unite,
So shall our Tunefull Tongues combine
To laud the nuptial rite.

THE BRIDE'S PEAL. In days when "wedding trips" were unusual, if not almost unknown, amongst the villagers of Lincolnshire, it was, in some parishes, customary to ring a peal on the morning after the wedding; that custom has nearly died out, but at Kirkby-cum-Osgodby, and at Mumby it was recently the custom to ring early on that morning to call up the bride and bridegroom; such is now the case, on rare occasions, at Scotter; at Fotherby, too, a peal used to be rung at seven o'clock on that morning called "Ringing them up." At Hogsthorpe the bells are generally rung the day after a wedding, and such a compliment has been known at Thornton-le-Moor.

MAY-DAY PEALS were rung at All Saints', Stamford, in 1707, as the Churchwardens' Accounts show :—

1707. Expended on the Ringers on May Day ..... 0 5 0 and it is worth noting that on the second ladder leading to the bells at Castle Bytham are cut the words :—

THIS 0 WARE
POVL

DOLE MEADOW BELL. A bell so called was formerly rung annually at Carlton-le-Moorland to summon the people to the church gates to bid for the yearly occupation of a meadow, containing about three and a half acres of land, left by a benefactor to the poor of the parish, to be let at the ringing of a bell. The bidding now goes on at the school. A similar occurrence known as

THE LETTING OF THE LANES formerly took place in the church porch at Winterton on May Day, for which a peal used to be rung: when the letting of the lanes ceased in the church porch, the bells were still jangled by anyone who liked, but since the ropes of the bells have been brought down to the floor, and the tower arch opened, that bad practice has ceased.

THE APPRENTICE BELL. At Waddington the tenor bell is rung for a few minutes when an apprentice is out of his time.

FAIR AND MARKET PEALS. At Epworth peals are rung for an hour on the first Wednesday after May Day introductory to Epworth Fair on the following day; and at Louth it was, for many years, the custom to ring on the evening before November Fair-day.

At Scotton the bells are rung on Tuesday evenings from seven to eight o'clock from November to the end of the year, "to guide the people coming from Gainsborough market across Scotton Common."

At Kirton-in-Lindsey a bell, sometimes called the Market-bell, but more generally known as the "Winter Ringing," was, for many years previous to the Inclosure in 1801, and is still, rung at seven o'clock in the evening during the months of November, December, and January, on Tuesday to guide travellers from Gainsborough market, on Thursday from Brigg market, and on Saturday from Kirton market. This continued until 1858, when, upon the appointment of a new Vicar, the night ringing was changed to Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, to suit his convenience. Those nights, of course, meant nothing. With some difficulty the Vicar was brought to see why other nights had originally been chosen, and Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday night ringing was restored, and still continues.

THE MAYORS of Boston and Grantham are generally welcomed by a merry peal on the day of their election.

ELECTION PEALS, though now happily seldom heard, are of respectable antiquity. The Churchwardens of Kirton-in-Lindsey charge in their Accounts:—

1625. It. to Ringers when the knyghts of the shire were chosen .....	xijd.

BIRTHDAY PEALS are rung at Belton on the birthdays of the Earl and Countess Brownlow: at Langton-by-Partney the bells are rung on the Rector's birthday: a similar compliment was paid to the Rector of Great Ponton (the Rev. Canon Brooks) on the 31st of October, 1879, he having then attained his ninetieth year.

CALL BELLS. There is a small modern bell at Fleet so called; it is used to call the ringers together. The 4th bell at Welton is so used, and a single bell sounded for five minutes before each Service at Gainsborough is known by the name of the Call Bell.

THE OVEN BELL. The Mill and the Oven of the Lord of the Manor were formerly found in very many parishes: to them the tenants of the Manor were expected to resort to grind their corn and to bake their bread.† In some parishes a bell was rung, called the Oven bell, to give warning that the Manor Oven was heated and ready for use. There is now only one trace of this custom in Lincolnshire: at Welton there is a tradition of the Oven bell having been rung there in past times: at Cranwell (as at Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire) notice was given by a man parading the streets and blowing a horn.<sup>Of Welton, Melton</sup>

STORM OR TEMPEST PEALS. As is well known the sound of church bells was formerly supposed not only to drive away or restrain the power of evil spirits, but also to ward off thunder and to calm storms and tempests. It is said that there was a special endowment to old S. Paul's "for ringing the hallowed belle in great tempestes and lightenings;"* and that whenever it thundered and lightened it was customary at Malmesbury Abbey to ring S. Adhelm's bell.†

Wynkyn de Worde in the Golden Legend wrote of the power of bells to cause the "feinds and wicked spirytes" to be abashed and flee "and cease of the movynge of tempeste."

Whitgift refers to this belief in his Defence, wherein he writes of bells as a sign of evil when they were rung "to stay storms and tempests," but were then a sign of good being rung "to sermons and other godly actions." *

Latimer too remarked upon this supposed power in the sound of Bells in one of his Sermons preached in Lincolnshire in 1553:—

"Ye know, when there was a storm or a fearful weather, then we rang the holy bells: they were they that must make all things well: they must drive away the devil! But, I tell you, if the holy bells would serve against the devil, or that he might be put away through their sound, no doubt we would soon banish him out of all England. For I think if all the bells in England should be rung together at a certain hour, I think there would be almost no place but some bells might be heard there: and so the devil should have no abiding place in England, if ringing of bells would serve: but it is not that will serve against the devil." †

The custom is referred to in the ancient Accounts of the Churchwardens of Spalding:—

1519. Itm̄ p<sup>d</sup> for ryngyng when the Tempest was ..... iij*d*.

There is an inscription of a much later date (1705) on the 3rd bell at Lois Weedon, Northamptonshire, which appears to point to this belief:—

Defunctos ploro: cœlv̄m reddoque serenvm.

CALL FOR EASTER DUES. The 2nd bell at Horncastle is tolled immediately after morning service on Easter Monday and on Easter Tuesday, to give notice of the Collection of Easter Dues.

SCHOOL-BELL. The 3rd bell at Horncastle is rung every morning at 8.45 to call the scholars of the Grammar-school to their duties. The inscription on the 2nd bell at Fishtoft points to its use as a School Bell. f. Humber

THE RESTORATION OF CHARLES THE SECOND is commemorated by merry peals at Benington, Swineshead, and occasionally, at Louth.

Ringling on that day is known formerly to have been the custom at Althorpe, Corringham, Haxey (where the anniversary was called "Oak-apple Day"), Horncastle, Owston, and at Sutterton, where the Churchwardens' Accounts have entries of payments to the ringers on the 29th of May for many years. So, too, at S. Mary's, Stamford, the Churchwardens charged in

and at All Saints', Stamford :—

1712. May 29 paid to the Ringers on King Charles Restauration ..... 00 05 00

HARVEST BELL. In some parishes it was formerly the custom to ring a bell early in the morning, during the Harvest season, to call the reapers to their work. Such was the case at Barrow-on-Humber as we learn from a manuscript copy of the "Office and Duty of the Parish Clark" there, dated 1713 :—

Item He is to ring a Bell every working day morning at Break of the day and Continue the ringing thereof until All Saints and also to ring a Bell every evening about the sunsetting until harvist be fully ended; which Bells are to begin to ring from the begining of harvist.

From an old Survey or "Terrar" preserved among the Church papers we further learn :—

"The Clarke Receiveth from every Cottager at Easter three pence and from every Husbandman for every Plough Land Eight pence, and for Ringing the Day Bell and Night Bell in Harvest two pecks of wheat . . ."

THE GLEANING-BELL. In many parishes a Gleaning-bell is rung during harvest in the morning, and sometimes both in the morning and at evening, giving warning when gleaning may commence, and when it must close for the day. This is done in order that all—old and feeble, as well as young and active—may have a fair start. Such a bell is rung at eight o'clock in the morning, and again at six o'clock in the evening, at Bassingham, Castle Bytham, Coleby, Colsterworth, Corby, Foston, Horbling, Langtoft, Swinstead, and Wilsford.

At Morton and at Rippingale the bell is rung at 8 a.m. and at 5 p.m.; at Bourne it is rung at 8 a.m. and at 7 p.m.; at Billingborough and at Folkingham a bell is rung at six o'clock in the evening; at Market Deeping at seven o'clock in the morning; at Hacconby, Norton Disney, and at Navenby, the Gleaning-bell is rung, at the last-named place the school-bell being used.

The Gleaning-bell is remembered, but not now rung, at Aslackby, Baston, Burton Coggles, Carlton-le-Moorland, Croyland, Gunby S. Nicolas, Hale Magna, Helpringham, Heckington, Honington, Leasingham, Quadring, Saxby All Saints, Screddington, Stainby, Swaton, Welby, Wellingore, South Witham, and at West Deeping; at the last-named place the gleaners paid twopence each; when they declined to pay the ringing ceased.

At Louth there was formerly a bell rung in connection with

THE "GATHERUMS," a piece of ground so called in the neighbourhood of Aswell, which in former times was cultivated for the benefit of the poor: when the "pescods" were ripe a church bell was rung which gave warning to the poor that the time had arrived when they might gather them: hence (it is said) gather'em or "gatherum." The church books had the following, and similar, entries relating to that custom:—

1556. Item for Knyllyng the bell in harvest for gatheringe

The "boundays" or boondays were the days on which occupiers of land having horses and carts were bound to give work gratis, for the public good, towards the repair of the roads.

ON MUMPING DAY, as S. Thomas' day is called there, and in many other places, the tenor bell was, until the year 1877, rung at Wragby to summon the poor to receive a dole of bread and meat provided by the Churchwardens.

THE EXECUTION BELL: in some places a bell was formerly tolled as the criminal passed on his way to be hanged, calling on the people to pray for one passing from life: such a bell was tolled at S. Helen's, Worcester, S. Sepulchre's, London, and formerly at Spalding Priory in this county. "The Turris" there was built in 1230: a hundred years later the Prior, Walter Halton, erected a lofty tower over that building wherein hung a large bell which was tolled at executions, and on other solemn occasions.*

HAXEY HOOD AND THE KING OF THE BOGGANS. At Haxey there is an annual festival called "Haxey Hood" held on the 6th of January or on the following Monday if that day fall on a Sunday. It is said to have originated when the Mowbray family possessed a castle in the adjoining parish of Owston, the site of which is still traceable

* Minutes of Spalding Gentlemen's Society, III. 110. Canon Moore writes to me, "The power of 'Pit and Gallows' was taken away at the Dissolution, but I find by the Parish Register felons were executed here after that. The last execution took place in the Market Place in 1742, and the man was hung in irons on a gibbet about one mile out of the town. I recollect the gibbet standing."

near to the church. The tradition is that they also had a country house in a part of Haxey parish still known by the name of "the Park," and that on one Epiphany Lady Mowbray was going to church from the Park, when a sudden gust of wind carried off her hood which was chased across the country by a party of rustics, who at length captured and restored it to her Ladyship. She appears to have been so much amused with the incident that she instituted an annual observance of the event upon the hill where it had occurred. It is also said that she left six and a half acres of land as a reward to the thirteen men who were to conduct the affair. No record, however, can now be found of the bequest, nor can the land be traced.

The festival, as now observed, is of a rather disreputable character, and has of late years lost much of its popularity. It is now observed as follows:—

On the sixth of January at about 2 p.m. twelve men called "Boggans" dressed in scarlet jackets, headed by another also in a scarlet jacket but further decorated with rags and ribbons, and who is called "King of the Boggans," march up the village to the base of an ancient cross near the church. The King of the Boggans bears "The Hood" which is a roll of leather about two feet long, and as thick as a man's arm. The King is then hoisted up on to the top of the ancient stone, and there, in a rigmarole speech invites the mob to follow him to the top of the hill, and enjoy the sport of chasing the hood. Away they all go. The King of the Boggans takes his stand on the appointed spot, and the twelve Boggans are posted at intervals, five or six hundred yards away. The King then throws up the Hood, which is caught by one of the mob, who makes off with it at the top of his speed across the country: he throws it on ahead of him, it is caught by another and so on, the Boggans all the time intercepting, if possible, the Hood, and when a Boggan gets hold of it he quietly and unmolested carries it back to the King, who throws it again amongst the people. This continues until the approach of darkness when the festival for that day is ended. The next day the Boggans and their King go round soliciting contributions which they spend in drink. There is a general holiday in the parish on "Hood Day," and the inhabitants are visited by their relatives and friends from all parts of the country. The ringers ring at intervals during the day, but without special payment.*

RACING PEALS were formerly rung—it is sad to say—in honour of favourite horses or dogs winning races: although a thing of the past, such ringing is remembered at Winterton, and doubtless at other places.

FIRE-BELL. A special bell is sometimes rung as an alarm in case of fire: the treble is so rung at Barkston, Hale Magna, and at Thornton-le-Moor, the 3rd at Walton, and one of the bells at Wragby.

The 1st and 2nd bells are rung at Caythorpe. At Lincoln (S. Peter-at-Arches) the "Ting-tang" is commonly called the Fire-bell; and at Horncastle that small bell is * Saunders (Vol. II. 214) gives an account of this festival, which is altered in its observance since he wrote.

rung "as an alarm bell, day or night, in case of Fire or other great calamity."

In case of Fire the treble and the tenor are rung at Caistor, Market Rasen, Swineshead, and at Louth: at the latter place in accordance with a resolution of the Vestry passed on the 17th of November, 1800:—

That in case of any further alarm of Fire two Bells shall be rung instead of one.*

At Sutterton the Priest's bell and the tenor are rung together. At Swaton they jangle the bells in case of fire. The bells at Stamford were formerly sounded in the same way: on the occasion of a fire there, on the 2nd October, 1803, "A strange ringing of bells gave the alarm, and the drums of the third Lincoln Militia beat to arms."† Bishop Hall refers to the custom when he says "so when we would signify that the town is on fire we ring confusedly."‡

At Sleaford a small bell (14 inches in diameter, without inscription or date) hangs in a canopied niche on the west front of the south aisle of the church: this bell which may possibly have formerly belonged to a chapel of one of the Guilds, is now known as the Fire-bell. The chain and wire from this bell are carried over pulleys, and the end is padlocked to the external wall of the church: the Local Board of Health has given instructions (1879) that the bell and its fittings are to be put into good order, and so it is presumed that it will be again used in case of fire.

GUNPOWDER PLOT. The discovery of this Plot is still commemorated by the ringing of merry peals at Benington, Branston, Claypole, Elsham, Heydour, Springthorpe, Swineshead, and at Wragby. The bells are clashed or "fired" at Caythorpe, Walcot, and at Halton-Holgate, where they call it "shooting the bells;" also at Great Ponton and at Rippingale, at both of which places the people call it "shooting old Guy."

Peals on this day are remembered, but not now rung, at Althorpe, Carlton-le-Moorland, Corby (where they used to "shoot" the bells), Corringham, Horncastle, Osbournby, Owston, and at Weston S. Mary.

At Sibsey the Churchwardens' Accounts for 1699 have:—

Given the Ringers on 5th Nov<sup>r</sup> ..... 0 . 10 . 0

The same item occurs frequently until recent times, the amount given varying from 10s. to 5s., and there was sometimes a supper.

At Sutterton the ringers had a dinner and drink:—

1803. Nov. 5. Paid Ringers dinner & drink ..... £2 . 12 . 0 and so for many subsequent years.

Gunpowder Plot, discovered in 1605, was ordered by Parliament, in 1606, to be observed. We have an early mention of the commemoration in the Accounts of the Churchwardens of S. John Baptist, Stamford:—

1608-9. Itm̄ paid for Rynging the Vth of November..... vjd.

1652-3. given to y<sup>e</sup> Ringers for ringing on Nov. 5th ..... 0 . 1 . 4

In the Book of the Churchwardens of S. Mary's, Stamford, is the following order respecting the ringing on this day :—

Ap. 24, 1701. Memorandum that the Churchwardens is onely to give six shillings for Ringing on the fifth of November.

and that payment appears in subsequent years.

We find in the Churchwardens' Accounts of Kirton-in-Lindsey the following early entry :—

1623. It' for ringinge the fift day of November ..... xijd.

and so in subsequent years.

And at Leverton the Churchwardens charge :—

1610. Itm̄ pd for bread & drinke for the ringners the fiftē of November ..... ijs. ij*d*.

This Anniversary is referred to on two bells in this County in very different terms: the 2nd bell at Owmbly, dated 1687, exclaims :—

Let vs remember the 5 of November.

Whilst the 1st at Witham-on-the-Hill is very strong in the opposite direction :—

'Twas not to prosper pride or hate
William Augustus Johnson gave me ;
But peace and joy to celebrate,
And call to prayer to heav'n to save ye :

Then keep the terms and e'er remember
May 29th ye must not ring :
Nor yet the 5th of each November
Nor on the crowning of a King.

This day was formerly observed at Lincoln by a Bull baiting which commenced at 11 o'clock in the morning: the bull-ring was on the Castle hill.

THE MARKET-BELL, which was formerly heard in many market towns has only one representative in Lincolnshire.

At Sleaford there is a small bell (thirteen and a half inches in diameter, without inscription or date) hanging in the south light of the lowest west spire light of the church: it is known as

THE BUTTER-BELL. There is a traditional recollection of it having been rung at 12 o'clock on the morning of market day, about sixty years ago, to announce to the Sleaford people that the sale of butter was about to commence: the inhabitants had then the privilege of securing all they required before purchasers from a distance were allowed to buy.

This little bell had been lost sight of for many years previous to the bells being examined for the purposes of this volume. A new rope was then supplied to it by two of my kind correspondents, and the Vicar's son now (1879) rings it from 12 o'clock to 12.15 every market day in imitation of the ancient use. It was first rung by him on the 14th of April, 1879, its unaccustomed sound causing a crowd to assemble, and to offer many conjectures as to its source, and the cause and object of the ringing.

C. Knight has some amusing remarks on the Market-bell. He says:—"Is that rung now? I fear not. There was something deeply impressive in that bell. It spoke loudly of the majesty of the law, which then aspired to regulate some domestic, as well as all foreign, commerce. The stalls were duly set; the butchers had hung up their joints; the farmer's wife had spread her fowls and her butter upon a white cloth; onions and apples stood temptingly on the pavement side, but not an atom could be sold till the market bell had rung. . . . It was unlawful even to handle a goose till the bell said 'You may bargain.' There was a board exhibited which told of heavy penalties if early housewives were disobedient to the mandate of that bell, and dared to chaffer before other housewives were awake."*

At Louth there was a bell on the summit of the Guildhall, which formerly stood in the Market Place, and which may have been used as a Market-bell, or as a Common bell.†

At Stamford the signal for the commencement of the Corn Market was, in the reign of Edward the Fourth, the ringing of the Undernone or Undern bell.‡ The Town Book, belonging to the Corporation, has the following Order passed in 1478-9:—

often used in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries for the third hour of the day, or 9 a.m."

‡ Sir H. Nicolas, in his Chronology of History (p. 195), says, "Undern, a word

“It is ordeyned that no person opyn ther sack or set ther corn to sale afore the hour of ten of the bell or els the undernone bell be rongyn.”*

This bell, or a successor, became known subsequently as the Market-bell. The Records of the Corporation contain the following Resolution passed in the year 1777:—

Resolved that the Market-Bell be given to the Parish to be recast in order to be added as an additional bell to the Quarters in the church.

This bell may have hung at the old Market House pulled down about the year 1822.

The statutes against forestalling, &c., being repealed in 7th and 8th Victoria, the Market-bell lost its use and its power.

Forestalling was provided against at Barton-on-Humber by a law which prohibited “any person purchasing for resale at a profit goods brought into the haven, until after the expiration of three days from the bellman’s announcing the arrival of the cargo; during these three days the inhabitants had the opportunity of buying the goods at the wholesale price.”† Measures were also taken at Great Grimsby to prevent forestalling.‡

THE MOTE OR COMMON BELL. A bell was ordered by Edward the Confessor to be sounded in cases of danger to convene the people. This was the same as the alarm bell which we read as being rung by order of John to summon the citizens of London when he wished to involve them in certain illegal acts during the absence of Richard I. (1193) in the Holy-land. Indeed the use of a bell as a summons to public meeting, or as an alarm in cases of danger, appears to have been very general. A bell for such a purpose was used at Newcastle-on-Tyne where it was called the "Common Bell." Nottingham too, had its "Common Bell" in 1315, and at S. Chad's, Stafford, was a "grette bell which is accustomed to call the parishioners to geather to all things pertening to the towne of Stafforde."

The 7th bell at S. Mary's, Stamford, is the "Common Bell" of that municipality. It was tolled to call the members of the Hall together to attend Mr. Alderman to church from the reign of Elizabeth down to recent times. It is frequently referred to in the Municipal Records. Thus:—

"1614. April 24. At this hall the coñon bell was toled to the order to call the townsmen togeather that they there might be p'suaded to adventure some money according to the Counselles letters into Virginia, but beinge not thought fitt by the greater p'te of the Company there assembled to adventure of any man's p'vate purse nothinge was done."

It was subsequently determined that "iij" be laid downe" from the town stock "and adventured in the lotterye for Virginia."

"1622 Oct. 9. At this hall it is further agreed uppon by the said assembly that uppon all occasions M' Alderman hath [to come] to the coñon hall the treable bell of St. Maries church shall be tolled to the ende both the Companies, as well the Comburgesses as the Capitall burgesses, may come to M' Alderman & attende on him to & from the hall for the glory & wor<sup>p</sup> of the towne."

It would appear that the "Common Bell" was, at that time, cracked or not useable, and so the treble was used in its stead, for on

"Jany. 2. 1624-5 it was agreed upon by the Alderman, Comburgesses and Capitall burgesses . . . . that five pounds shall be given freely out of the towne stocke for and towards the castinge of the Coñon bell beinge now in the steeple of St. Maries in Stamford aforesaid (p'vided allwayes nev<sup>r</sup> the lesse that it be made tuneable to the other five bells in the steeple) and that there be an acte made and confirmed accordinge to lawe by the advise of the towne to make it appeare that the said bell belongeth to the said towne and not to the p'ish. And also that there shall be a subscription made about the said bell to import the same to belong to the towne."*

The bell thus referred to is the present Common Bell—the 7th of the ring: in addition to the pious prayer "Jesvs spede vs," and the name of the founder "Tobie Norris cast me 1626," it bears the inscription, in reference to its use:—

STAMFORDIENSIBVS INSER-
VIENS IPSA CONFEROR

Which seems to mean:—

I am myself worn out [or bruised] while serving for the men of Stamford.

In the Mayor and Chamberlains' Accounts are found occasional references to this bell, such as:—

This bell is still tolled for a quarter of an hour at Quarter Sessions to summon the jury and others.

An ancient Mote-bell hangs in a wooden frame, protected from the weather, on the top of the roof of the Guildhall, Lincoln. It is twenty and a half inches in diameter, has a rope and wheel, and is a very interesting bell, because its inscription not only tells of its use, but also gives its date thus:—

CVM QVIS CAMPANAM RE-
 SERET SACCVM BODYS
 AVDIT ET CVRIAM PLA-NAM FORE CVM SCITOTE
 REPLAVDIT
 TEMPORE WVILLII BEELE
 MAIORIS LINCOLNIE CIV-ITATIS U

This inscription shows that the bell (cast in the time of William Beele, Mayor—that is in 1371) was rung at the opening, and again at the close of the court: the first portion reads literally (according to a reading kindly given to me by the Rev. J. T. Fowler):—

When any good man hears the bell let him open the bag, and know ye the hall to be clear when it re-rings.

The Court being a law Court, the reference is to the bag in which those interested in the case or cases being about to be tried carried their papers in the same way still common with lawyers. Caxton, in the second edition of his translation of The Game and Playe of the Chesse (1480), refers to these bags in an interpolation of his own in the chapter descriptive of the third pawn, called a notary, or "advocate publique," thus:—"I suppose that in alle Cristendom are not so many pletars, attorneys and men of the lawe as ben in Engeland onely, for yf they were numbered alle that longe to the Courtes of the Chaunserye, Kynge's Bench, Comyn place, Cheker, ressayt and helle, and the bagge berars of the same, it should amount to a grete multitude . . ."

The inscription on this curious little bell has been freely rendered into English verse thus:—

When first a good man hears the bell
 Let him his bag with speed untie ;
 When next it rings, he'll know full well
 The Hall is cleared, and homeward hie.

or

Let the honest burgher who hears me ring
 Produce his bag and untie the string ;
 And when the clapper again is heard
 Be sure the Court is about to be cleared.

It is now only rung to give warning of a meeting of the Council. In smaller places a church bell was frequently, and is still sometimes, used (as we shall see presently) to summon to a Town or Parish meeting.

THE VESTRY BELL. A bell (the treble or one of the small bells of the ring), as a summons to attend a Vestry, is still rung at Addlethorpe, West Allington, Althorpe, Alvingham, Ancaster, Appleby, Asterby, Bardney, Barnoldby-le-Beck, Baston (for both Vestry and Town meetings), Belton near Grantham, Bicker, Billingham, Blyton, Bolingbrooke, Bonby, Branston, Bratoft, Broughton, Butterwick, Burgh, Caenby, Carlton Scroop, Coleby, Corby, West Deeping, Digby, Doddington Dry, Donington, Dunholme, Dunsby, South Elkington, Ewerby, South Ferriby, Frampton, Friesthorpe, Frieston, Gosberton, Gretford, Gunby S. Nicolas, Hareby, Harlaxton, Hale Magna, Heckington, Hogsthorpe, Horncastle, Ingoldsby, Irby-on-Humber, Laceby, Laughton, Langtoft, Leake, Lincoln (S. Botolph and S. Peter-at-Gowts), Ludborough, Mareham-le-Fen, Mareham-on-the-Hill, Minting, Moulton, Mumby, Nettleton, Normanton, Orby, Osbournby, Owmy (for Vestry and Town Meetings), East Pinchbeck, Potterhanworth, Quadring, Middle Rasen, Rippingale, Saltfleetby S. Clement, Scotton, Searby, Skellingthorpe, Skirbeck, Spilsby, Springthorpe, Stainby, Stickney, East Stockwith, Stow (formerly for Town also), Stragglethorpe, Surfleet, Swinderby, Thornton-le-Moor, Thorpe-on-the-Hill, Timberland, High Toynton, Walcot, Westborough, Whaplode, Silk Willoughby, South Willingham, Winteringham, and at Wyberton.

A larger bell is rung at Aslackby (tenor), Benington (5th), Caistor (3rd), Caythorpe (7th), Coningsby (4th), Elsham (tenor), Evedon (tenor), Fulbeck (4th), Grantham (6th), West Halton (tenor for Town and Vestry meetings), Hundleby (tenor), Leasingham (3rd), Leverton (3rd), Lincoln, S. Peter-at-Arches (5th), Market Rasen (5th), Ruskington (tenor), Sibsey (4th), Sleaford (7th), Swineshead (7th), Waltham (tenor), and at Washingborough (5th).

At Epworth two or three bells are chimed: at Gedney the treble bell is rung for important parish meetings, the School bell for minor meetings; and at Waddington a bell is rung twice for parish meetings.

At Folkingham the 3rd bell should be rung, but the office of bellringer being performed by a woman (Mrs. Armstrong), she is allowed to ring the treble as being lighter.

At Louth the 3rd bell is tolled thirty tolls, thrice, a quarter of an hour before the time for a Vestry meeting.

There is an express order for the ringing of a summons to the Vestry meeting in the Parish Books of All Saints', Stamford:—

“1652. April the 19. It is ordered by the parishioners that noe succeeding Churchwards shall disburst above 10s. for any repaires to the leades or windows or Bells but they shall cause a bell to be tolled and give warninge that the parishioners may meete together to agree about the said worke.”*

The ringing of the Vestry bell is remembered at Boston, Corringham, Hibaldstow, and at Weston S. Mary.

DYKES AND DRAINS JURY-BELL. At Claypole the 3rd bell is rung annually in November to summon the Parish Jury to view the Dykes, Drains, &c., &c.: and at Epworth, a bell is rung at Eleven o'clock in the morning of the last Monday in October to summon “the Isle of Axholme Common Drainage Meeting.”

THE BULL-RUNNING BELL. Bull Running took place at Stamford from time immemorial annually on the 13th of November. On the morning of that day the “Common Bell " there was tolled at a quarter before eleven o'clock to give warning for the thoroughfares to be cleared of infirm persons and children. At eleven o'clock the bull was turned into a street, and then the sport began, the great object being to "bridge the bull," that is, by main force to tumble him over the bridge which spans the Welland into the river beneath. This annual Bull-running was continued, notwithstanding many unsuccessful attempts made to stop it, until the year 1840, when it (and so the ringing of the Common-Bell on that occasion) was finally given up.* Fuller tells that Lincoln was noted as producing superior dogs for Bull baiting, which was a very popular sport at Great Grimsby and elsewhere.

LOYAL PEALS. Upon all occasions calling for an expression of loyalty such as the anniversaries of the Queen's birthday, accession, and coronation, the bells are rung in many parishes. It has long been our custom to express our loyalty by merry peals. In past times, when we were unhappily frequently at war with our neighbours, and when our victories by land or by sea called forth bursts of patriotic thankfulness and exultation from Englishmen, their feelings found expression in no way more strongly than in the joyous and jubilant ringing of our glorious and spirit-stirring bells. Churchwardens' accounts teem with payments for such, especially during the first few years of the present century.

* See a very amusing account of the attempts to put down the Stamford Bull-running in Chambers' Book of Days, II. 575.

No doubt Church Bells have been in past years rung upon other and most improper occasions. Happily they are now looked upon as part of the ornaments, or requisite furniture, of a church, and set apart with it to be used for holy and sacred purposes, and upon occasions, when by their exhilarating sounds, they can add to the joyous thankfulness and innocent pleasure of all within reach of their sound. Of their occasional perverted use within the memory of many living, it will be well not to speak further, but rather to rejoice that a better feeling, and better customs, now prevail.

In my former Books on Church Bells I have closed this portion of the Work with a few words on the necessity of keeping the bells and their surroundings in good repair and in decent order; and on the best mode of restoring the ringers to their proper position amongst the officers of the church. I am glad to know that with regard to the ringers a great improvement has taken place during the past few years. The establishment of Ringers' Guilds in many counties—Lincolnshire being one—presided over by the clergy, has much improved the moral standard of the ringers, whilst the presence of many a parson, rope in hand, in the ringing chamber, has equally improved the tone in the belfry.

It may be well to repeat that "the ringers' chamber, and the access to it, ought to be made as easy and comfortable as possible, and it should be furnished with proper light, and with coat and hat pegs. The windows ought to be glazed, for the tower, without this precaution, is a bitter place for men who have been engaged in an exercise which has kept them warm for an hour or two; and the little light-holes by which the circular staircase to the belfry is lighted may well be closed with a piece of glass.”*

Mr. Haweis has in one of his Books some remarks on the bells themselves, from which a hint or two may well be taken. He says that every belfry should have a care-taker, called by him “the Bellstoker,” who “should keep every rivet in its place; the wheels and beams should all be varnished or painted regularly. I have visited many belfries at home and abroad, but never have I seen a bit of paint or varnish in one yet. The shutters should be kept from swinging, with their flanges sloping downwards, so as to keep the wet from driving in, whilst allowing the sound to float freely out and down upon the town: . . . . . An eye for the belfry is a thing to be cultivated. The belfry should look like a fine engine-room in a first-rate factory. It should be a pleasure as well as an instructive lesson to go into it. When all was in motion everything should be so neatly fitted and thoroughly oiled that we should hear no sound save only the melodious booming of the bells themselves. At present, when the bells are rung, the belfry appears to go into several violent convulsions, corresponding, too often, to the efforts of the poor ringers below. At last the wheel is induced to move enough for the clapper to hit the bell an indefinite kind of bang—an arduous operation which may or may not be repeated in some kind of rhythm according as the ringer may or may not succeed in hitting it off with the eccentric machinery above . . . .”*

The example of the Churchwardens of Barrow-on-Humber in 1713 may well be followed: the Parish Clerk at that time was told

“He must be Carefull that no Boys or Idle persons Jangle the Bells or abuse the Church or the Windows; he is to grease or oil the Bells, and to keep them in good order; and if they be defected in any thing he shall let the Church Wardens know that they may be mended in convenient time.” He was also to continue in the “Bellhouse” all the time of ringing and to be carful that nothing there suffered abuse or damage. If any person wilfully or carelessly overturned a bell the Clerk might demand of him one shilling for the offence which if he refused to pay the Clerk might sue for it in the Court, and be, by the parishioners, “indamnified therein.”†

CHURCH BELLS OF LINCOLNSHIRE,

WITH the Diameter at the mouth of each Bell, from which its approximate weight may be ascertained (see page 275). To which are added Extracts, where procurable, from the Commissioners' Returns temp. Edward VI., and from Parochial and other Records, together with Local Traditions, Notices of Donors, &c., &c.

Note.—The numbers between [ ] refer to the drawings or woodcuts on the Plates, or to those worked in with the letterpress. It being impossible to reproduce here the various forms of mediæval Gothic letters found on the ancient bells, one form of letter is used to indicate where Gothic capitals are found [ A B C ], and one form where small Gothic or "black letter" is found [ a b c ]. For the various forms of Roman letters found on modern bells one form [ A B C ] will suffice.

Errors of spelling, misplacement of letters, &c., &c., in the following Inscriptions, are copied literally from the Bells. They are therefore Founders' blunders and not Printers' mistakes.

A reference to the pages given after the name of each Parish in the Index will supply, in most instances, information as to the Uses of the Church Bells therein.

A similar reference to the pages given after the name of each Foundry or Founder will furnish some particulars respecting it or him.

The 1st bell was probably used for the Angelus (see p. 210); the 2nd is of the same type, and both are probably coeval with the Perpendicular tower, erected by Sir John Neville, in the reign of Edward IV.

In 1553 there were here, according to the Indented Inventory of goods received by the Parson and Churchwardens for use in the church, "j greyt bell one Santus bell."*

This I cannot reconcile with the present existence of two bells which are almost certainly of an earlier date than the Inventory. These are the bells of the church of Althorpe, Lincolnshire.

The 5th bell has the fylfot (see p. 83) in a letter D instead of an initial cross. The shield has been partly obliterated previous to the casting of the bell; it is, however, found entire on bells at Braithwell in Yorkshire and at Monyash, Derbyshire. O p s is a mistake for o p n—ora pro nobis. The letters and cross on the 6th are like those on the 2nd at Alkborough, and the initials are those of Henry Oldfield of Nottingham.

There is extant the “specification of the Plan and Sections for the new Bell-frame for the Parish Church of Appleby, June 12, 1821. James Harrison.”

* Saunders' Hist. of Lincolnshire, Vol. II. p. 64.

Also an estimate from the same James Harrison in three forms: 1st to recast the four old bells, and to add metal to augment to six bells for £255 10s. 2nd to supply two new bells, and rehang the whole for £160 2s. 3rd to rehang the old bells with no addition to the ring for £50 4s.

Judging from the present bells the last estimate was the one chosen, the new bells not being added until the year 1853.

There is a tradition here that the Appleby folk stole (!) the tenor bell from the adjoining parish of Broughton.

Prior to 1834 there were two bells only.

The arms on the present Tenor are:—Sable on a chevron engrailed argent 3 escallops of the first. Motto:—Virtuti Fortuna Cedit.

There is a tradition which is, however, untrue, that the bells here came down from London in company with “Great Tom” of Lincoln—that bell came on a carriage by itself.

The Rev. J. W. King (see 5th bell)—who was instituted as Vicar in 1822—he rebuilt the chancel and nave of the church,—died 9th May, 1875, and was buried in the chancel of this church.

Prior to 1713 there were only five bells.

The 1st bell is a poor casting full of bubbles: all save this have had the canons cut off. The founder has made a strange business of the inscription on the 4th; "guardiam" doubtless ought to be guardiani. This bell has a crack excised from the sound-bow. The 5th has a gothic K inserted among the other letters. The 6th has a rich crown ornament often used by the founder—E. Seller of York. Considering that these bells are all of different dates, and by two or three different founders, and that two or three of them appear to be defective, for the Tenor is not the same thickness all the way round, it is remarkable that this ring has long enjoyed the reputation of being the best in North Lincolnshire. It probably owes much to its situation near the banks of the Humber. [ J. T. F. ]

The Rev. T. Whitbie (see 2nd bell) died in 1658: The Rev. Geo. Otes (see 5th bell) in 1637; and the Rev. Robert Kirk (see 3rd bell) was buried 25th May, 1755. The Parish Registers give no information as to John Brockrum, Esq., whose name is on the 5th bell.

The 5th and 6th have had the canons cut off. The inscriptions on the 1st and a portion of that on the 6th are in archaic letters.

Formerly a bell was rung here at eight o'clock in the evening during the winter months for the guidance of travellers. The tradition is that an old lady being accidentally benighted on the wolds she was directed in her course by the sound of a bell—probably the curfew—ringing at S. Peter's Church; to show her gratitude she gave a piece of land to the parish clerk on condition that he should ring one of the church bells from seven to eight o'clock every evening, except Sundays, commencing the day of the carrying the first load of barley in every year, until Shrove-Tuesday next ensuing inclusive. In a Terrier of 1730 it is stated that "the clerk holds 13 acres & 3 stongs of arable land lying dispersed in the several fields of Barton" for ringing one of the bells of S. Peter's, called "the Barley Bell," at the time just mentioned. At the Inclosure the clerk's allotment is put at 7 acres 2 roods 16 perches. The custom of ringing the bell, however, ceased about the year 1860.

S B. R W. C. W. 1680. W N. T N. G T. T H. J W. R W. 1693.

These bells and the belfry have been much neglected in past times: there is now a wish to remedy this when funds can be raised.

In 1565-6 the churchwardens reported that “a handbell,” which had belonged to the church in Queen Mary’s time, had been “broken in peces & sold to thoms leivicke vpon sondaie last 1565[6]” and that “one sacring bell [and] two clappers” . . . “wee know not what is become of them nor what was done w<sup>t</sup> them nor whoe had them or made them awaie and that we will depose vpon a book.”*

There is a tradition—not an uncommon one in other places—that the Langtoft bells and those belonging to this parish being cast at the same time were exchanged by the founder, and so missent—the Baston bells to Langtoft, and the Langtoft bells here.

In 1566 the Churchwardens reported that "diurse other popishe peltrie was stoln̄ out of o' church thre or iiij<sup>or</sup> year ago by whome wee knowe not."* The handbells and sacring bell probably then disappeared, as they are not mentioned in the Inventory of church goods destroyed.

There was formerly a Priest's bell, which, being cracked, was taken down, recast, and hung at the School.

On the bell frame is:—

HH 1676

Sir Adelbert Wellington Brownlow-Cust, 3rd Earl Brownlow (see tenor bell), married Lady Adelaide Talbot, youngest daughter of Henry John, 18th Earl of Shrewsbury (see treble bell). There were only three bells prior to 1872, when the Earl and Countess Brownlow gave the two new bells, and rehung the whole ring.

On the font is a figure of a "campanarius" chiming 2 bells (see p. 150).

(Diam.  $24\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $28\frac{1}{2}$  in.)

2. ANNO DOMINI 1577.

(Diam.  $25\frac{1}{2}$  in.)

Although at some time previous to 1875 there were three bells, one had at that time disappeared, and ~~the~~<sup>an</sup> other being cracked (it was dated 1675) it was sent to be recast and a new bell purchased to replace the missing one.

There is a tradition that the bells here came from the old church at Sotby, and that those originally belonging to Benniworth went to South Willingham; but the present bells at South Willingham could never have hung in this tower, they being much too large.

There is also a tradition that a benighted fisherman, who had lost his way, was led, by the sound of the church bell here, to shelter, and that to show his gratitude he left a few acres of land in the parish of Toynton S. Peter to the Parson. The land is still there belonging to the Rector of Benniworth, and a record of it appears in an old Terrier dated early in the 17th century. Another version (preferred by the people) is that he left the land for the poor of Benniworth, and a string of eels for the Parson!

3. [ + 2 ] GOD SAVE HIS CHVRCH 1609.

For Stamps see Plate XXIV. and page 52.

There is a very uncomplimentary notice of these bells in a description of Bigby church in the Gentleman's Magazine, Vol. LXIX., page 377. (1799). It is as follows :—

There are three bells in the steeple; but, surely, the jarring dissonance of ill-according sounds never "grated harsher musick" than they; and to this it is most probably owing that they exist at all, else frequent use must long ere this time have levelled their mouldering timber with the dust.

These timbers are probably (says Mr. Fowler, who ascended this tower in 1865), coeval with the bells of 1680 at least, and are now in no better condition.

That there were several bells here in the fourteenth century is evident from provisions made for their being rung at the obits of certain members of the Religious Guilds then existing in the town.

It would appear that there was a recasting of the church bells—or some of them—towards the close of that century, for at an annual obit of Frederick Tilney (he entered the Guild of Corpus Christi between 1356 and 1360) and Margery his wife, on the Feast of S. Petronilla, when 20*d.* should have been expended, according to the prescribed form, for ringing the bells, the following entry was made "per indenture for ringing, 4<sup>d</sup>, because there was at that time only the bell in the steeple."*

This church was, in pre-Reformation times, rich in church plate and other ornaments. In a list of "Plate Lackinge and solde by the Mayer and buriesses of boston" in 1552 is, what was most probably, a sacring bell, thus described:—"Itm̄ a sylver belle xvij ounces."† In that year there were "fyve great belles in the steple there and one Sanctus belle valued to the somme of one hundred marks safely and surely to be kept to the kynge's majestie use, until his highnes' plesure be further knowen."

By an Indenture, dated the 26th of May in the following year, those bells‡ and a chalice were placed by the Commissioners for Church Goods in the hands of the Churchwardens (see p. 27).

There is no mention in this document of the large clock bell which is known to have existed here forty years later. It probably was considered the property of the Corporation, and so escaped being catalogued by the Commissioners. The Corporation Records refer to this bell under the date 1598, when it was proposed to sell the clock bell and devote the proceeds to the repair of the other bells, but the motion was negatived. Stukeley describes it as having been a "prodigious clock bell which could be heard six or seven miles round, with many old verses round it."§

In 1626 the bells were repaired, as is shown by the Corporation Records.

Prior to 1709 a sixth bell had been added to the ring, for in that year a faculty was obtained to recast the "immense old bell hanging in the tower, which is of little use and imperfect sound and publishing the holy hours imperfectly, and of the metal of the said bell to make three smaller ones. Two of these to be added to the six now in the tower, and the third bell to be for the clock to strike upon, and to tell the hour to the people loudly and clearly, and to place the same on the lantern or highest part of the tower, and suspend the same for the better and more audibly hearing of the sound thereof." The second bell of the six being then cracked was also recast, and the eight bells were first chimed in the steeple on the 17th December, 1710.

The large clock bell, so directed to be melted and recast, weighed above 4000 lbs. The new clock bell substituted for it weighed only 533 lbs. This latter bell is said to have been cracked in 1754; consequently, a few years later—in 1758—a new clock bell was directed to be made, the weight of which was not to exceed 1000 lbs.* This new bell (as is shown by the Vestry Books, which contain a number of resolutions passed relating to it) was cast by Thomas Eayre of Kettering. It was in B Flat, and was inscribed:—

WE HAVE NO NOTE OF TIME BUT FROM ITS LOSS.

There were, as companions to it, two bells for "Quarter Jacks" of very rough make, probably cast in the town, and only inscribed with the date 1777. They were made partly from the Market bell which the Corporation gave to the parish in that year, "in order to be added as an additional bell to the Quarters in the Church." The old figures—a man and a woman—which struck the quarters—the "Quarter Jacks"—were sold in 1853.

In 1758 the sixth bell was recast, and the others put into order by Thomas Eayre of Kettering; and, as the inscriptions on the bells show, others were recast as necessity arose. In 1853 the whole were rehung at a cost of £85.†

Before recording the last great work in connection with the bells the chimes claim a brief notice.

Jean Ingelow in a poem called The High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire in 1571, relates how the bells in the grand old tower of this church rang out the alarm called The Brides of Enderby:—

* Thompson's Boston, p. 189.

† Ib. p. 190.

Play uppe, play uppe, O Boston bells !
 Ply all your changes, all your swells Play uppe The Brides of Enderby.
 . . . . .
 . . . . .
 They sayde, and why should this thing be ?
 What danger lowers by land or sea
 They ring the tune of Enderby ?

When chimes were first introduced here is not known (for the above allusion to them was only a poetic fancy, and not founded on fact); they are mentioned in the Corporation records in 1614. In 1732 new chimes were ordered; they struck upon the eight bells, but, becoming out of order, they ceased to play in 1832.*

About the year 1865 a movement was set on foot by W. Simonds, Esq., the then mayor, for providing a new set of chimes on a large scale. Thirty-six carillon bells were ordered from Mons. A. L. J. Van Aerschodt of Lovaine.

At the same time the tenor bell being cracked, it was resolved to have it recast by the same founder. The following extract from the Vestry Book is explanatory:—

Boston, August 1, 1867.

The Vicar and Churchwardens having decided that the Tenor Bell, which has been for several years seriously cracked, should be recast, the same was this day broken up preparatory to being sent to Belgium, for that purpose. The weight of the fragments was taken by the Inspector of Weights and Measures, and was found to be as follows:—twenty hundredweight, two quarters, and twenty two pounds (1 ton. 2 qr<sup>s</sup> 22 lbs.) and on the exterior was the following inscription:—

All men that heare my movrnefull sovnd

John Letsham, Wardens.

The contractor for the recasting is Mons. A. L. J. Van Aerschodt, Aine, Rue de Namur, Lovaine, Belgium.

G. B. Blenkin, M.A., Vicar.

The diameter of this bell was  $49\frac{1}{4}$  inches. The treble bell was at the same time taken down, and it was sent to Louvaine to secure accuracy in the tone of the Carillon Bells and of the new Tenor.

When the Carillon bells arrived from Belgium they were hung in the following manner:—

Four of these bells only are "maidens:" the lowest is a semitone above the treble of the ring of eight large bells. The new Tenor has been rather over-flattened by chipping.

The erection of the new chimes was entrusted to Messrs. Gillett and Bland of Croydon, who provided the first of their now well-known machines, and Dr. Clark of Finmere House, Oxfordshire, superintended the work. The four musical barrels were constructed to play the following twenty-eight tunes on the forty-four bells:—

- *Vesper Hymn.
- O Thou that Tellest.—Handel.
- Cujus Animam.—Rossini.
- The Heavens are Telling.
—Haydn.
- Emperor's Hymn.

- *The Last Rose of Summer.
- *Home, Sweet Home.
- *With Verdure Clad.—Haydn.
- *Haydn's Hymn.
- The Angelus, from "Faust."

Hope told a flattering Tale.	Blue Bells of Scotland.
The Harp that once in Tara's	Sweet Jenny Jones.
Halls.	Irish Melody.
Rule Britannia.	Love's Young Dream.
Brides of Enderby.	Huntsman's Chorus.

Those tunes only are now played which are marked with an asterisk.

It may be mentioned that the frame of the machine (which is of cast iron) weighs 9 cwt.; the motive power is given by cast iron weights weighing 8 cwt.; the four musical barrels are each pricked with about 3000 brass pins, one-sixteenth of an inch square. They were arranged to play one tune every hour, and a fresh tune every day. The 132 cast iron hammer heads for striking the bells weigh 8 cwt. 2 qrs., and the weight of the whole machine is over three tons.

The clock strikes on the tenor bell; and the quarter chimes, which are after the Cambridge model, are on bells 35, 36, 37, and 40. Bell 40 seems too sharp in the quarter changes, but sounds fairly well in peal.

The total cost of the whole work amounted to about £1638.

Having said that Jean Ingelow's mention of the chimes in her poem had no foundation in fact, it may be a cause of surprise to find the name of the tune she mentions, "The Brides of Enderby," in the list for the new chimes. Its presence there is well explained by a gentleman writing from Boston in Notes and Queries (6th S. II. p. 435):—"Some of the most active promoters of the new chimes, after receiving Miss Ingelow's answer [saying there was no foundation in fact for her poetic fancy], wrote to 'Claribel,' who lived at Louth, and asked her to compose a tune to be called 'The Brides of Enderby.' She objected—very wisely as I think. A local music-master was next applied to. He composed one, but on trial it was fortunately found so florid, and otherwise unsuitable to the carillons, that after a short trial it was very properly abandoned. If this tune had been adopted, we should have been in the peculiar position of that keeper of a museum who showed the sword with which Balaam tried to kill the ass, and when he was told Balaam never had a sword, but only wished for one, he replied 'Well, this is the very sword he wished for.' So we should have been obliged to explain to strangers that the tune they heard was not the one rung in the great flood, but the very tune which would have been rung if the ringers had known it."

The new bells which at first were considered very satisfactory and were highly eulogised, have not sustained their first reputation—a more matured criticism now pronounces them to be very unsatisfactory.

Since Messrs. Gillett and Bland erected the chiming machine—they were not in any way responsible for the bells—they have much improved and simplified their system which has now become very perfect.

After the above works were completed the old clock bell cast in 1759 and the "Quarter Jacks" (dated 1777) were sent to Messrs. Mears' foundry, Whitechapel, London, to be broken up. The following particulars were preserved:—

BELL.	DIAMETER.	ESTIMATED	WEIGHT
		WEIGHT.	ACTUALLY ASCERTAINED
		cwt. qrs. lbs.	cwt. qrs. lbs.
1st "Jack"	24 in.	2 3 8	2 3 14
2nd "Jack"	26 in.	4 0 0	3 1 11
Old Clock Bell	36½ in.	9 0 2	10 2 22

The outline of a handbell is chiselled on each of the two middle pillars of the north aisle of the church about five feet from the floor. Whether the ringers had formerly a seat between these two pillars or not is a matter of conjecture.

Sir Gilbert Scott pointed out, in his Report on the state of the church, that the bells were originally rung from the little stone galleries which run round the second story of the tower.

All inscriptions on the walls relating to the bells were cleared away thirty years ago, but the ringers have a tradition that a Peal of "Grand-sire Triples" was rung at the Declaration of Peace after the Battle of Waterloo, and that Boston being the only town in England where a full peal was rung on that day, the ringers were in consequence invited to London and fêted.

The Rev. John Calthrop, M.A., (see 6th and 7th bells) was elected Vicar 11th April, 1746. He died in August, 1785, and was buried at Gosberton. The present Vicar (see 8th and 36th carillon bell) was instituted in 1850.*

 1875. CAST BY JOHN WARNER & SONS LONDON.
 (Diam. 36 in. : weight 8 cwt. 2 qrs. 7 lbs. : note A.)

Prior to 1876 there was one bell only.

Six bells of the present ring of eight arrived here from the London foundry on the 22nd February, 1876, and were received with great rejoicing. A procession was formed at the Railway Station, the Church choir taking the lead, followed by the band of the 1st Lincolnshire Light Horse in full dress uniform ; next came the clergy, churchwardens, and gentry, of Brigg and neighbourhood ; then the carriage containing the bells drawn by twelve highly caparisoned horses, the bells also, and carriage, being decorated ; next came the school children of the town including those of the workhouse. The procession paraded the town, and the inhabitants were highly pleased. The bells were received at the church tower by the clergy and choir in surplices, and with prayer and praise solemnly dedicated to the service of Almighty God, after which the vicar—The Rev. W. J. Wylie—addressed a crowd of spectators. He hoped the bells would answer the purpose for which they were intended, calling the people together to worship God in His house, and that the people would accept the invitation the bells gave them. The bells having been hung by Mr. H. Boswell were ready the first week in Lent, but that being a season in which the church wishes her bells to be silent, they were not formally opened until Tuesday in Easter week. On that day an early peal was rung inviting the parishioners to an 8 o'clock Celebration of the Holy Communion. At 10.30 a company of Ringers from S. Peter's parish church, Sheffield, rang a touch before Divine Service at 11.30. In the afternoon the Sheffield ringers rang touches. In the evening another service was held when an appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Gatty, Vicar of Ecclesfield.*

On 11th October, 1878, the present 1st and 2nd bells were added, making a ring of eight.

The old single bell was sold for £9. 8s. 11d.

The six new bells cast in 1875 cost £383. 3s. 6d.

The two new ones cast in 1878 cost £108. 19s. 0d.

In 1553 there were at "Beygsley" "iij grete belles j santus bell."†

The omission of the 1st letter of the relative pronoun on the 1st bell is in accordance with the local pronunciation. The same error occurs on a bell at Newton-on-Trent: it is also found on gravestones.

The 2nd bell is cracked, and the belfry is in too dangerous a state to allow of the diameters being taken.

Prior to 1867 there were, as in 1553, two bells only—the inscriptions on which are preserved on the 4th and 5th bells of the present ring—the 1st was cracked.

There is a tradition current at Appleby that the people there stole the tenor bell now hanging in their church from their neighbours here. There was, however, clearly no loss of a bell between 1553 and 1867; so the character of the Appleby folk for honesty need no longer be impugned!

Prior to 1868 there were only five bells: in that year the then treble bell which had no inscription (and was said to have been brought from Wainfleet All Saints), was recast, and a new treble given, so making the present ring of six.

John Kyme (see 5th bell, which is one of the most elaborately ornamented in the county) was probably a member of the ancient family of Kyme of Lincolnshire. In 1554 John Kyme Gentleman (perhaps the father of the man whose name is on the bell) died seized of lands in Wainfleet S. Mary and Friskney.

For some account of the Holden family see Oldfield's Wainfleet, page 96. John Holden, the donor of the tenor bell, appears to have also given "a very richly carved" pulpit to the church, which was inscribed "1623 John Houlden."*

A piece of land in this parish, called Bell-string Acre, was left (at what time is not known) by the captain of a vessel to provide a silken rope wherewith to ring the tenor bell; he having lost his reckoning off this coast on a dark night, and being warned of his dangerous proximity to the shore, by the sound of that bell ringing the Curfew. The land is now worth £4. a year, and the money goes to the ringers' fund.

What is believed to be the ancient Sanctus bell of this church now hangs at the Red Lion Hotel, Boston. It has a narrow crown, is much spread out towards the rim, is devoid of inscription and ornamentation of any kind, and in lieu of canons has a kind of shank. It is painted a dull red colour, and is used weekly to call the farmers to their ordinary. Cannot the churchmen of Butterwick provide the Inn with a new bell, and restore this ancient one to their parish church ?

This ring is in G, the 3rd bell sharpened and the 4th flattened by chipping. The bells are rough cast, and some of the lettering nearly illegible. In the ringing chamber is scrawled the following, with much more to the same effect :—

All You that hath A mind to learn to ring Must to the old Ringer Admission money bring
 . . . . .
 . . . . .
 Each coult must, sirs, just three and sixpence pay
 When our accounts are past for truth
 And you are styled then a College Youth.
 So now, my lads, admission money bring
 And we will learn you presently to Ring.

The Rev. John Linton was inducted Vicar in 1712; he died 6th January, 1773, aged 88. I presume the "Trustees" named on the tenor bell were those of Anthony Pinchbeck's School Charity.

Prior to 1871 there were only five bells.

The 2nd and 3rd bells, which were cast without canons, were given by Mr. Martin Munday, who died 25th March, 1832, aged 84 years. The Inscription on his tomb records the gift in these words:—"Such was his veneration for the Church of England he bequeathed by his Will two additional Bells to the Belfry of this Church for the use benefit and amusement of the Inhabitants of the Town of Caistor for ever."

It will be observed that the inscription on the 4th bell is reversed in consequence of the letters having been impressed the wrong way on the mould—that is, the right way for reading. There is doubtless another initial letter before the word "Church," but it is concealed.

Nothing is known of the liberal benefactor mentioned on the three first bells. The Rev. C. D. Crofts, the present Rector, writes:—
“Neither monuments, registers, nor the memory of the oldest inhabitant, show any trace of his existence, status, or even of the name of Wilson; so we must hope that if unknown to posterity, he may reap the blessing inscribed on Bell No. 8.”

Thomas Pochin (see 4th Bell) was the patron of the living. He was the son of Thomas Pochin, Esq., of Barkby, Leicestershire; born 15th April, 1685, married (1st) Charlotte, daughter of Sir Edwd. Hussey, Bart., of Welbourne, Lincolnshire, and (2nd) Mary, daughter and heiress of Thomas Trollope, Esq., of Bourne, Lincolnshire; he was High Sheriff of Leicestershire in 1714; died 30th August, 1751, and was buried at Barkby on the 5th of the following month—September.

It appears that these, or some of them, subsequently disappeared, for the ancient bells of Beelsby (said to have been a very fine ring) were sold to the churchwardens here, and recast into the present bells—which are light ones without canons—in the year 1807.

In 1553 there were in the church of “North Cottys” “iij gret belles j santus bell.”*

In 1604 these three bells were recast at the Nottingham foundry, and inscribed:—

1. My roaring sound doth warning give
That men cannot here always live 1604.
2. I sweetly toling men do call
To taste on meats that feeds the soul 1604.
3. All ye that hear my mournful sounde
Repent before you lie in grounde 1604.

At the close of the last century these three bells remained, but subsequently one of them disappeared. It is presumed that it was sold to pay for repairs to the church; and one of the two remaining ones was cracked when they were sent to the founder in 1864. The present three bells weigh 12 lbs. less than the former two.

The Rev. T. R. Matthews, the present Rector, has written the following melody in three notes for North Coates bells, which he permits me to print here:—

The Rev. Thomas Wilkinson (1st bell) first signs the Register 11th March, 1721; he was buried here 22nd May, 1741.*

Cockerington had long been the seat of the Scropes when Sir Adrian Scrope died here in 1623; from him descended Gervase Scrope, Esq., whose name is on the 1st bell; he was Lord of the Manor at the time, and his descendants still possess it.†

Adrian Birch gentleman, who was probably a benefactor to the 2nd bell, was buried here 21st September, 1738.‡

The figures in the date on the 3rd bell are evidently misplaced for 1626; the inscription is in post-mediæval Gothic and Roman letters mixed.

These bells are now in a sad condition, and can scarcely be used. An estimate has been obtained for putting them in order, which it is hoped may be acted upon; about £170 is required.

There is a tradition current here that many years ago a gentleman being lost on the then unenclosed moor, sometimes called Corringham Scroggs, and again finding his whereabouts by the sound of the church bells then ringing in the evening, he left ten shillings yearly to the ringers to pay them for ringing during the winter months, and so to save others from being lost. In support of the truth of this tradition it may be mentioned that the bells were formerly rung from the 5th November to 14th February, for which ringing the churchwardens allowed 3 lbs. of candles and 10s. to pay for four lots of beer at the public-house, viz., on 5th November, Christmas Day, New Year's Day, and 29th May. The early history of the Bells of Croyland Abbey—of which the present parish church is a portion—is familiar to most lovers of Church Bells, inasmuch as it records the first known ring of bells in England.

Turketyl, the sixth abbot (A.D. 946—975), cast a great bell for the Abbey, naming it Guthlac. Egelric, his nephew and successor (A.D. 975—984), added six more bells, namely, two large ones which he named Bartholomew and Betelm, two middle ones named Turketyl and Tatwyn, and two lesser ones named Pega and Bega. When these seven bells were rung (says the chronicler Ingulph, whose statements, for our present purpose, are accepted as correct) “an exquisite harmony was produced thereby, nor was there such a peal of bells in those days in all England.”* “They resounded with melody” (says Dr. Stukeley) “through the extended plains of Holland; whence the proverb ‘as sweet as Croyland bells.’”† The sound of Guthlac was even better than music, for “the ringing of Guthlac at Croyland, according to Fuller, was a remedy for the headache.”‡

These bells hung in the central tower until the year 1091, when a fire broke out in the belfry, and Ingulph, the chronicler of the Abbey, and its then abbot, running to the church door, and attempting to get in, had a narrow escape of being killed by the “melted brass” of the bells which poured down; the tower fell, and the bells and belfries were consumed.

After this great fire, when the monks set to work to rebuild their church, they erected “an humble belfry and placed therein”—says the chronicler—“two small bells which Fergus the coppersmith of Saint Botolph’s town [Boston] had lately presented to us, there to remain until years of greater prosperity, when we propose by the Lord’s assistance to make alterations in all these matters for the better.”

In 1091 Senian de Lek was appointed Keeper of the Church.

‡ Gatty’s Ecclesiastical Bell, Papers of Ass. Arch. Societies, III. p. 258.

Ed. p. 13.

Amongst other duties he was to ring all the notices in the church both in the night and in the daytime, with a few exceptions, when the duty was performed by the monks.

Ingulph, who was elected Abbot in 1075, replaced the books, vestments, bells, and other requisites before his death, which took place in 1109.

About the year 1171 the church, with its outbuildings and most of its furniture, was again destroyed by fire, but was quickly restored by Abbot Edward, who then ruled the house. Whether the bells suffered is not told.

Abbot Ralph Merske (1253-1281) erected a Campanile or detached building, at the East end of the church which was known as the "outward belfry;"* and John de Asheby, abbot, who died in 1392, gave, or else recast, "the large bells hanging in the outward belfry."† So at that time the abbey possessed two rings of bells.

In 1405 there were "four sweetly sounding bells" hanging "in the tower beyond the choir"—that is, as it is generally understood, the central tower: they were repaired in that year by Abbot Thomas Overton.

In the time of John Lytlyngton (Abbot 1427-1469) the great bells in the outer steeple or belfry were recast "in order that they might be brought to a state of more perfect harmony," in which the monks were assisted by John Leycester, a brother of the monastery, who, in 1463, "induced by pious considerations . . . , contributed 40 marks" towards the good work.

What became of the bells of the outer steeple at the Dissolution is not now known: at Moulton there is a tradition that the church bells there came originally from Croyland Abbey. A similar tradition is current at East Pinchbeck, the bells being said to have been sent there because there was no other tower in the neighbourhood large enough for them.

* Gough's Hist. Croyland (1783), p. 57.

† So says Dugdale and Gough, but in Ingulph's Chronicle we are told that he "caused the great bells of the Convent to be recast," without specifying which ring.

In 1465 the Abbot, John Lytlyngton, "in order that nothing might remain undone which is considered to tend to the increase of the praise of God, caused five fine and choice bells to be cast at London, and substituted for the three old ones [one gone since 1405] here [that is in the central tower] to send forth their sweet sounds with their harmonious chimes. The cost of these, together with the expense of the carriage thereof to Croyland by land and water, amounting in all to a sum of one hundred and sixty pounds, was defrayed entirely by himself. These bells (continues the chronicler) while still lying below upon the ground before they were hung, were solemnly consecrated by Nicholas, the venerable lord bishop of Elphin, who was at this time suffragan of the reverend father in Christ, John, lord bishop of Lincoln. They were inscribed from the smallest to the greatest with the names in especial of the patron saints in whose honour they were most devoutly dedicated: the names being Guthlac, Bartholomew, Michael, Mary, and Trinity." The chronicler goes on to relate that a great beam, which was being raised in the greater bell tower, which had been newly built in the Western part of the church, in which it was intended that the bells just mentioned should be hung, fell down, doing much damage and jeopardising the lives of the workmen, all of whom, however, escaped.*

Two of the five "fine and choice bells" hung here by Abbot John Lytlyngton in 1465 most probably remained in the church until after 1783, for Gough in his History of Croyland Abbey, published in that year, mentions the inscriptions on the bells:—

1. In multis annis resonet Campana Johannis.
2. Sum Rosa pulsata mundi Maria vocata.
3. Hæc Campana beatæ Trinitati sacra.†

The first, dedicated to S. John, was cast subsequently to Abbot

Lytlyngton's time, but those numbered 2 and 3 (Gough evidently did not care to record the modern bells) would be those mentioned by the chronicler as dedicated to "Mary" and "Trinity."

X From that time to the present the bells tell their own history: two of the ancient bells mentioned by Gough have been recast.

Hearing that there were many old Papers in the Parish Chest here, Mr. W. H. Jones of Uppingham very kindly went to inspect them on my behalf. He writes, "I was sadly disappointed with the Parish Chest. I was three hours or more rummaging amongst Poores' Accounts, Settlements, Indentures, &c., &c.; the few scraps of Churchwardens' Accounts were simply rags, the rest reduced literally to dust, in which I was half smothered."

From the chaos thus described the following references to the bells were gathered :—

In 1637 a difference having arisen between the then Rector of Market Deeping—the Rev. Paul Prestland—and his parishioners concerning the new framing and casting of the bells and other rights of the church, and he being then sickly and “not willing to follow suits” petitioned Archbishop Laud to have the matter referred to Montague Lord Willoughby “and other eminent gentlemen next adjoining.” The Archbishop passed the matter on to Sir John Lambe (Dean of Arches) in order to obtain an account of the petitioner, but how the dispute was settled is not recorded.†

The Rev. Laurence Maydwell (see 5th and 6th bells) was Rector here for thirty-six years: he died 14th March, 1788.

In 1565-6 the churchwardens reported that "the lytle sackering bell" belonging to the church in Queen Mary's time was "defaced and mad away when sire Thomas Sharpney being Minister John Goodall and Simond Tebbe church masters a° p'mo Elizabeth."*

The bells here having been long out of order were rehung in 1874 with entirely new fittings by Messrs. Taylor and Son, of Loughborough, at the joint expense of Lady Willoughby de Eresby and the parishioners.

The present tenor is traditionally said to have been made from the metal of a former bell brought from the neighbouring Abbey of Valle-Dei, which formerly stood in Grimsthorpe Park.

In 1553 there were "iiij gret Belles j santus bell" belonging to Epworth.*

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "a handbell" belonging to the church in Queen Mary's time had been sold.†

The present bells were hung in 1814 having been previously weighed, it is said, on a sycamore tree growing near the belfry door : the record of the weights is lost. The Epworth people are proud of their tenor bell, and say "no other bell nearer than the one in York Cathedral which rings out the tenor C." But competent critics say that owing to their great thinness of metal, the bells here are not to be compared with the neighbouring ring at Haxey, which are cast on the old plan.

The Rev. Cayley Illingworth, D.D., F.S.A. ; Archdeacon of Stow, Rector of this parish (see 6th bell), was also Rector of Scampton (of which parish he wrote a Topographical Account) and Vicar of Stainton. He died at Scampton on the 28th August, 1823, in the 65th year of his age.‡

Prior to 1758 there were four bells only: in that year the present 3rd was added as a treble, and the present 5th bought second hand of Joseph Mallows of East Dereham as a 3rd, thus making a ring of five which in 1798 were inscribed:—

2. Ihesus be our spede 1598.
3. (The present 5th.)
4. (The present 6th.)
5. Thomas Norris made me 1652.

This last mentioned bell was exchanged for the present 1st and 2nd bells in 1806, to make a ring of six. The bells are hung in two tiers, the steeple being only 11 feet 6 inches square. The bells and belfry are in excellent order. There is a chiming apparatus by Mr. J. R. Jerram, who also rehung the tenor bell in 1874.

There is a peal board dated 10th June, 1878.

This is rather a fine ring in D., but not in good tune.

The canons of the treble have been cut away: the 2nd has been over-sharpened and much injured by chipping: the 4th, which is a very beautiful bell, has been flattened by the same process; the tenor has been a very fine bell, but there is a crack of 40 years' standing in the shoulder; the lip is covered with coins. [ J. J. R. ]

With reference to the Rose as an emblem of the Blessed Virgin (see 4th bell) an ancient writer remarks:—"The Image of our Lady is painted with a Child on the left arm in token that she is mother of God, and with a Lily or else with a Rose in her right hand, in token that she is maiden without end, and a flower of all women. (Dives and Pauper 1495.)

The brothers Pishye, donors of the 2nd bell, were most probably descendants of Herbert Peché, who held the manor of Frieston in the year 1272. The name of Pysshe occurs on a list of persons here, assessed to a subsidy granted to Queen Elizabeth, in 1597. The family remained in Frieston until 1749, when the name became extinct by the marriage of Bridget Pishey with John Thompson.*

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "a sacringe bell," which belonged to the church in Queen Mary's time, still remained.†

There are said subsequently to have been five bells: and that three of those were sold in the early part of the last century, towards defraying the cost of extensive repairs to the fabric. The large bell then sold is traditionally believed to be in the belfry at Tetford, three miles from hence. In 1799, the tower needing repair, the churchwardens pulled it down level with the nave, throwing over the top a pitched roof covered with tiles; the remaining two old bells were then sold, and a small ting-tang hanging in a wooden cupola substituted. That small bell, which was cracked about thirty years ago, did duty until 1857, when all that remained of the old tower was taken down, the church rebuilt, and the present two bells suspended in a stone bell turret.

In 1553 there were here "iij gret belles & one santus bell."*

Subsequently the ancient church here is said to have had a ring of eight bells and a Priest's bell. When the tower fell many years ago seven of them are believed to have been sold to Clee church where, however, they have only three, and most probably never had a larger number (see p. 358). The Priest's bell continued to hang under a small wooden cote at the West end of the South aisle until the church was repaired in 1869, when it was taken to the school where it now hangs. It is 12 inches in diameter, without inscription, date, or stamp, and is cracked.

In 1553 there were "v [?] gret belles and on' sanctus bell."*

Prior to 1764 there were five bells only as is evident from the following memorandum as to an ancient charge upon certain lands for the providing of ropes:—

August 25th 1690. Mem. There is ffoure bell ropes found by the farms in East Stockwith viz: John Luddington senior his farm the Great bell rope; Nicholas Booteflower his farm the fourth and third bell; John Luddington jun' the second bell; and is to be found by these three farms for ever.

Witness,

Tho<sup>s</sup> Elley, Saxton.

A "Terrar" (apparently of a rather later date) also mentions this matter as follows:—

Three bell ropes are found by the heirs of Stanhope for their lands in Stockwith; the second and third bell ropes from a farm now or late in the occupation of William Stow; the fifth bell-rope from a farm late Reeder (supposed farm situate at Ravenfleet). John Luddington's estate at Stockwith finds a rope for the fourth bell.

Whether, says Stark (Hist. of Gainsborough, 2nd Ed. 1843, pp. 387-8), these ropes were found by the several estates from ancient custom or grant does not now appear; neither is it now certain exactly which farms are liable. In consequence no claim has been made for many years.

The Churchwardens' Accounts for 1856 give the following particulars as to the recasting of the 6th bell:—

In 1640 the bells—then five in number—were rehung, and the chimes were repaired and made to go “perfect and true.”*

In 1652 the steeple was much injured by lightning. Mention is made of it in the Records of the Corporation, where it is also notified that “Lord Rosse gives a bell at Belvoir towards a sixth bell, the Sancte bell in the steeple given and added to it to make a complete sixth bell, sutable and tunable with the other five, so as the Town be at no charge Jan. 13, 1652-3.”

Sir William Ellys, Bart., who died in 1728 gave £25 to cast the 5th bell.

In 1752 four bells were recast and their frames repaired: two of these bells were inscribed (and the inscriptions were preserved on the new bells) :—

Coelorum Christe placeat tibi Rex sonus iste, and the ring was then augmented to eight bells. The chimes were also put into good order. Fifty-three contributors gave a total of £516 os. 2d., towards the expenses, the Duke of Rutland heading the list with £52 10s.†

Change ringing was at that time practised in Grantham: there is a Peal Board announcing the ringing of a complete Peal consisting of * Street's Notes on Grantham, p. 79.

† Turnor's Grantham, p. 7.

5040 changes of Grandsire Triples on the 22nd of April, 1764, "being Easter Sunday."

The following "Ancient Belfrey Articles" were then in force:—

HE that in Ringing takes delight
And to this place draws near These Articles set in his sight
Must keep if he Rings here.

The first he must observe with care
Who comes within the door
Must if he chance to curse or swear
Pay SIXPENCE to the poor.

And whoso'er a noise does make Or idle story tells Must SIXPENCE to the Ringers take
For melting of the Bells.

If any like to smoke or drink
They must not do so here
Good reason why—just let them think
This is God's House of Prayer.

Young men that come to see and try
And do not Ringing use
Must SIX PENCE give the company
And that shall them excuse.

He that his hat on's head does keep Within this sacred place
Must pay his SIX PENCE ere he sleep ;
Or turn out with disgrace.

If any one with spurs to's heels
Rings here at any time
He must for breaking articles
Pay SIX PENCE for his crime.

The Inscriptions on the

If any overthrow a Bell
 As that by chance he may
 Because he minds not Ringing well
 He must his SIX PENCE pay.

Or if a noble minded man
 Comes here to Ring a Bell
 A SHILLING is the Sexton's fee
 Who keeps the church so well.

If any should our Parson sneer
 Or Wardens' rules deride
 It is a rule of old most clear
 That such sha'n't here abide.

The Sabbath-day we wish to keep
 And come to church to pray
 The man who breaks this ancient rule
 Shall never share our pay.

And when the bells are down and ceased
 It should be said or sung
 May God preserve the Church and King
 And guide us safely home.

Twenty-two years later—in 1775—the bells were again put into good order, the then 1st, 7th, and 8th were recast, and two new ones added, making a noble ring of ten bells—the only one of that number in the County of Lincoln. The entire cost was £385 13s. 3d., towards which (there were 107 contributors) the Duke of Rutland gave £100.*

Change-ringing went on with unabated enthusiasm. There are Peal Boards extant dated 20th June, 1814; 12th January, 1844; 9th November, 1860; 24th December, 1860; 4th February, 1861. At the foot of the last-dated Tablet are the lines:—

* Turnor's Grantham, p. 20.

These Sabbath Bells shall still arise
And sound their notes to yonder skies
The living to worship God they'll call
And to the grave they'll summon all.

The Grantham people are justly proud of their bells. "Nothing can be sweeter" (writes the Rev. B. Street) "than the sound of the Grantham bells when heard from the High Dyke road, whence the steeple itself cannot be seen, but where the ear is reminded of its vicinity; for their many voiced peal fills the hollow valley till it overflows with sound which sweeps over the hills and across the table land beyond; or following the wind and the channel of the river, spends itself among the villages Lincolnwards."*

The chimes too have long been favourites. The old chimes played:—

Easter Hymn.

Sicilian Mariners.

Ye Banks and Braes.

Home, Sweet Home.

Hanover.

They are said to have been "tuneful and cheerful;" and, as Bow Bells boast to have charmed Whittington back to his apprenticeship in London; so Grantham chimes, heard unexpectedly, and for the first time, decided a wavering boy to become an apprentice in Grantham, where he has since grown old.†

In 1818 the tenor was again recast; it was inscribed:—

In wedlock's bands all ye who join
With hands your hearts unite
So shall our tuneful tongues combine
To laud the nuptial rite.

Recast in 1775 Richard Eason Vicar, John Calcraft and John Hardy Churchwardens. Pack and Chapman, London, fecit.

And in 1876 Messrs. Gillett and Bland of Croydon were employed to erect a new and large clock, St. Mary's of Cambridge chimes, for striking the quarters on the 4th, 5th, 6th, and 9th bells, and to thoroughly restore the old chiming machine. They replaced the five old tunes on the barrels, and added three new ones, namely, "Life let us cherish," "O rest in the Lord," and (for use on the anniversaries of the Queen's Birthday, Accession, &c., &c.) "God save the Queen." The chimes play every three hours, day and night, namely, at three, six, nine, and twelve o'clock.

There are some rules for the guidance of the ringers, drawn up in 1872.

The Rev. R. Easton (see 9th bell) died in the year 1817, when he was succeeded, as vicar, by the Rev. William Potchett (see 10th bell) who held the living until 1856, when he resigned it in favour of the Rev. G. Maddison. Mr. Potchett died 13th November, 1859, aged eighty-five years.

Mrs. Ann Hurst, the donor of the Priest's bell, was the widow of the Rev. Thomas Hurst, D.D., Rector of Barrowby, from which living he was ejected during the troublous times of the Civil War. He was a great benefactor to the town of Grantham.*

The capital letters on the 2nd bell are crowned, so is the letter S on the 3rd bell. The canons have been cut off the 2nd and 3rd, and the 1st cast without any. The present 2nd was formerly the treble, but the then 3rd being cracked, James Harrison cast a new treble instead. The cage (writes Mr. Fowler who visited these bells) is original, but enclosed in an outer and slighter arrangement of straight pieces, the whole resting on large timber brackets, and destitute of flooring, as are most of the cages hereabout.

That probably continued the number until the year 1830, when [see 5th bell] a ring of six was cast, at a cost of £385 raised by voluntary contributions, which was speedily augmented to eight as the following receipt signed by the founder testifies:—

Received July 1st 1831 of Mr. John Skelton the sum of Ninety Pounds for two additional Bells, Hangings, and Frames to increase the Peal of Six Bells in the Parish Church of Great Grimsby to Eight.

The bells were rehung in 1857; soon after which date the tower being considered unsafe all ringing was given up: a chiming apparatus has been fixed, since which, two of the bells have unfortunately been cracked.

This bell was given to this new church (consecrated 29th September, 1870) by the present Bishop of Lincoln, as a thankoffering to Almighty God for his goodness in enabling the parochial clergy then resident in the town (the Revs. R. Ainslie, W. Maples, J. P. Young, and G. C. Hilbers) to labour faithfully and zealously among their flocks during the then recent severe visitation of small pox, and for preserving their lives in the peril to which they were exposed. Cases of small pox had appeared before, but in January, 1871, it spread until it was estimated there were about one thousand cases of different degrees of virulence in the town during that year. Before it finally disappeared the number of deaths (including some in New Clee) arising from it was said to have been over two hundred.

These bells are very difficult of access; the tenor and priest's bell have no ropes, and very few of the parishioners know that they have more than three bells. On the frame of the 3rd bell is (in capital letters)

Large portions of the lip of the tenor bell are broken off, and lie in the Vestry. The Priest's bell hangs close by the south window of the tower. It is most probably the ancient Sanctus bell.

INC, the symbol of the Holy Name IESVS seems to have been sometimes used in bell-inscriptions in the same way as at the beginning of charms or spells. John Potter was probably a Norwich founder (see p. 71) and this is a matter of interest in connection with the fact that the Bishop of Norwich is Patron of the benefice [J. T. F.]. 1820.	Dec. 16. Paid for the Bell .....	4 . 4 . 0
	[ This is no doubt the present bell. ]

It is traditionally believed that there were four bells here which were sold to defray, in part, the cost of repairs and alterations at the church in 1769. There is no record of this in the Church Books, but the above entries tend to corroborate the tradition, and in rebuilding the church, in 1871, the foundations of a tower were discovered. With regard to the sale of the old bells, there is a saying here (not uncommon in other places):—

The poor Hatton people
Sold the bells to build up the Steeple, but, it is believed, no steeple was built.

The Indented Inventory of Church Goods here in 1553 is unfortunately indistinct in the part referring to the bells:—" . . . gret belles j santus bell."*

The bells of North Thoresby and of Grainsby (two adjacent villages, with three bells each) are supposed to ask each other "Who ring best?" "Who ring best?" and Hawerby bells to reply "We do," "We do."

The 4th of the present bells was probably used for the Angelus (see p. 211). The 5th has a figure of the Blessed Virgin with the Infant Jesus (see p. 115). The 6th has curiously ornamented capitals. These three are from the same foundry, but they are all different in the lettering. They may be coeval with the tower, which is Perpendicular in style. These bells are celebrated for their excellency of tone and for the distance at which they can be heard.

The Rev. Joseph Hoole became Vicar of Haxey in 1712; he resigned the living in 1736, when he was collated to the Rectory of S. Ann's, Manchester.

Here are a set of chimes which play every three hours; the following are the tunes:—

- I. Life let us cherish.
- II. A March—"They marched through the town with their banners so gay."
- III. Keble's Evening Hymn.

These tunes were arranged about eighteen years ago, when the chimes were renewed.

The following Ringers' Rules are suspended in the belfry:—

All you that here intend to ring
 Mind well before you do begin
 If you ring in Great Coat, Spurs or Hat
 Sixpence you pay stright down for that
 If you break Stay or quarrel breed
 Twelve pence you pay right down with Speed
 If you be Fair and do no Wrong
 Then unto us you shall belong.

Mr. John Knowlson } Churchwardens
 Mr. John Curtis } in y<sup>e</sup> year 1785.
 Jas. Morris, Script.

There is an estate belonging to the church, of which the vicar and churchwardens are trustees, from that source the ringers receive:—

5 at £2 . 18 . 0 each per ann. ....	£14 . 10 . 0
1 at £3 . 3 . 0 for tenor bell.....	3 . 3 . 0
Curfew bell per ann. ....	2 . 10 . 0
Sexton for chimes .....	4 . 4 . 0

The ancient Churchwardens' Accounts were unfortunately destroyed as worthless some years ago. The only book in existence commences in 1815. From it the vicar—the Rev. John Johnstone—has kindly made the following extracts:—

1815. Oct. 4. Allowances on taking up Great Bell ...	7 . 6

The donor of the 1st bell, in 1685, was Sir Charles Dymock, Knight, who was Champion at the Coronation of King James the Second in that year. What connection he had, if any, with this parish I cannot learn. He died about the year 1688, but the precise date is unknown. The Parish Register of Scrivelsby—the seat of the Dymock family—is imperfect from 1657 to 1722, four leaves being crumpled up, and the writing obliterated, apparently, by the action of heat. A subsequent Rector did his best to remedy the defect by collecting the various entries relating to the Dymock family, and transcribing them on a piece of paper which he pasted on the cover of the Register: he headed his collection thus:—

Below is what I can find in the Register for Scrivelsby relating to the H<sup>ble</sup> Family of Dymoks.

He, however, gives no entry of the burial of the donor of the Healing bell; neither do the memorial stones at Scrivelsby give the information as to date, although the spot of his sepulture is recorded in the following inscription on a plate on the floor of the church on the south side of the altar-table:—

Under this stone lyes Sir Cha. Dymoke K<sup>t</sup>
 Who was Champion at the Coronation of King James II. on his left hand lyes
 The Lady Dymoke, next her the Honourable Lewis Dymoke their youngest son, next
 To him lyes Captain Dymoke the eldest Son of Sir Charles who died in France
 Next to him M<sup>rs</sup> Dymoke daughter of Sir Charles & at the head of Sir Charles lyes M<sup>rs</sup> Eliz. Dymoke the youngest daughter of Sir Charles Dymoke.

Sir Francis Lawley (see 2nd bell) was the son of Sir Thomas Lawley, first Baronet, by Anne his wife, the daughter of John Manning, Esq., of Hackney, Middlesex. He died in October, 1696.

Francis Coventry, Esq. (who was a joint donor with Sir Francis Lawley of the 2nd bell) was buried here: he died on the 26th August, 1687, as is testified by a large slab on the floor of the church. In the Parish Register he is described as the grandson of "Domin<sup>s</sup> Coventrye fuit Custos Sigilli Mag: Regno Caroli Martyris Beatæ Memoriae."

The Rector writes:—From some place or other the following note has been obtained:—

The smallest bell sold by the Parishioners was given by one of the Alcock family.

It would thus appear that there were five bells here formerly, or perhaps the "smallest bell" was the Sanctus.*

The Indented Inventory of Church Goods belonging to this parish in 1553, is unfortunately, as regards the bells, undecipherable.†

These small bells are chimed by means of levers instead of wheels. The letters and stamps on the 1st are very small, and are like those on the 1st and 2nd bells at Scampton.

The 5th, 7th and 8th bells were previously inscribed :—

1651.
8. All men that heare my movrnfv l sovnd repent before yov lye in Marrat* says the shields on the former 5th and 8th bells bore "3 Crescents 2 and 1;" more probably 3 horse-shoes.

The friend who visited this belfry for me writes:—"Many a dispute and wager has taken place in the village with regard to the figure on the 6th bell, between the words 'well' and 'pound.' Tradition says 40, and the sexton, who accompanied me, said I need not trouble to copy it as he knew it was 40; but he was at a loss to make out that number when I showed him the rubbing." The explanation is that the arabic numeral 5 is of the form not uncommon at that time when its shape was not as defined as at present: it is merely a curved line, very like that used by the French now: and the inscription records that William Tayler gave, not five pounds weight of metal, as the villagers would read it, but, £5. worth of metal, which at that time would be a substantial contribution to the cost of the bell.

Mr. Edward Godson, the kind donor of the two new treble bells to make up a ring of eight, is a member of an old and valued family in Heckington, where he and his ancestors have been landowners for many years. Mr. William Godson, whose name is on the 7th bell, was his uncle, and "William Tayeler" who loved ringing so well that he gave £5. worth of metal to the 6th bell, was his great great uncle on his mother's side. The new bells were dedicated by the Bishop Suffragan of Nottingham, on Tuesday, the 1st March, 1881, after the old bells had been rehung by the Committee of the Heckington Flower Show from funds which had accumulated in their hands.

On the walls of the belfry is a great number of names, initials, and dates cut in the stone: probably those of ringers: they date from 1677.

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "a sacringe bell," belonging to this church in Queen Mary's time had been defaced and sold.*

John Bussey of Heydour, who was born about 1533, and who died in 1593, was the representative of a junior branch of the house of Bussey of Hougham, a family of great distinction, whose pedigree is proved by record evidence almost to the era of the Norman Conquest.† Leland relates that "one Bussey coming of a younger brother of the house of Busseys of Hougham, dwelleth in an old place at Haider that he and his parents hath of a fee farm of the Church of Lincoln."‡ This "old place" is supposed to have stood near the church, in a field on the west of the village, where—some years ago—foundations and traces of buildings were traceable.§ Sir Edmund Bussey, Knight, whose name is on the 1st bell, dated 1612, was the son of the John Bussey just mentioned; he was born at Heydour 15th March, 1562. His arms [argent] 3 bars [sable] are given on the bell. He married Frances, daughter of . . . and died on the 10th June, 1616.

Miles Bussey—the son of Sir Edmund Bussey—whose name is on the 5th bell, was born at Heydour in August 1590 (or 1592).

In 1610 he, as son and heir of Sir Edmund Bussy, joined with his father and Frances his mother, in conveying certain lands in Culverthorpe. His arms (impaling, I presume, those of his wife, if he were married so early) are upon the 4th and 5th bells dated 1609, viz.:— [argent] 3 bars [sable] with a crescent for difference, impaling [ . . . ] fretty [ . . . ]. There is no entry of his burial in the Heydour Parish Registers, which, however, record nothing between the years 1650 and 1663.||

All the bells have lost their canons; the dates 1664 and 1825 are upon the bell-frames.

The Parish Register contains the following entry referring to the present tenor, with its incomplete inscription from the first Psalm:—

The Great Bell of this Parish was recast at Barrow by James Harrison and Henry his son June the 25th Old Stile, or, according to this Stile, July the 6th 1764.

The tower has recently fallen. Now (1880) the bells are hung in a little lean-to at the west end of the church; the ropes have been fastened to the bell clappers, and then passed through holes cut in the west wall, so as to be pulled from inside the church—an arrangement likely to crack the bells.

Prior to 1848, when the church was rebuilt, there was only a single bell; it bore the name of the donor which was Bestoe, and a seventeenth century date, but, unfortunately, a rubbing then taken by the Rector cannot now be found. The full name is probably supplied by the following entry in the Caistor Parish Register:—

1654. Nicholaus Bestoe Armig: de Howton in le Moor Parochia de Castre, in Capella de Howton.

That single bell was recast, and a second added as above.

The small bell, which is now rung as an alarm bell day or night in case of fire or other great calamity, was, until recently, used as the Priest's bell: it has no wheel.

The second small bell, which is attached to the exterior of the small timber spire which crowns the tower, has no clapper. Prior to the restoration of the church, in 1859-61, the clock struck the hours on this bell, which has a very peculiar shrill sound, and could be heard much further off than the tenor bell upon which the clock now strikes. The quarters are struck upon the 1st and 5th bells.

The Rev. Thomas Lodington, LL.D. (see 6th bell), who was Vicar of Horncastle for forty-five years, was buried here the 25th of March, 1724.

In 1553 there were here "iij belles in the steple wth the Sanctus bell."*

In 1818, the tenor bell being cracked, it was agreed at a vestry held on the 12th of November in that year "that the Bell should be taken down and recast and other things done in the church, according to Archdeacon Goddard's monition; . . . and that the churchwarden write to Mr. Harrison, or some other founder, concerning the Bell emediately."

There was then living in Hundleby a tinker named James Rose, who was generally known by the name of "Ingenuity Rose:" he undertook to repair the bell for ten pounds, and so save the trouble of sending it out of the parish: the Vestry Book records the agreement thus:—

Hundleby Feb. 18. 1819.

At a Vestry held in the Parish Church this Day, it is agreed upon by the undersigned that James Rose doth agree to undertake to repair the Bell that is crack'd & to make her perfect, and stand ringing as perfect as when she was new, and the said James Rose doth agree to take Tenn Pounds for the said repairing of the said Bell—and if he does not make her perfect and to stand ringing to the said parishes satisfaction the said Ja<sup>s</sup> Rose doth agree to have nothing for his doing her.

James Rose made a fire in the churchyard, and after sawing a piece out of the bell, he tried to run some new metal into the crack: it is needless to say that his "Ingenuity" failed him: he got no payment for his labour, and the bell had to be sent to the founder at Barton as its present inscription testifies.†

William of Wykeham left by Will a pair of beads with the inscription ih̄s est amor meus, and the same inscription is upon the exterior wall of the north aisle of S. The Priest's bell is now unhung and lies on the floor of the room below the bell-chamber. The canons are broken off, and holes have been bored through the crown, by means of which the bell was hung. It has a clapper, and apparently, is not cracked: there is therefore no reason why this interesting ancient Sanctus bell should not be rehung. It is one of the curious set of bells described on page 81, as remaining at Beesby, and Gunby S. Peter, and has, for intervening stops the same scraps of ornate letters as appear upon them.

I have obtained a rubbing of the inscription on this bell with considerable difficulty, and after much delay, hence the omission of any mention of it when describing similar bells on page 81.

The 2nd bell was from the Stamford foundry, and the 3rd from that at Barrow.

The bells here have twice during this century had a narrow escape from destruction. Between twenty and thirty years ago the tower fell in ; it had given premonitory warnings of giving way, and steps were being taken to examine it and make it safe, but before anything could be done it crumbled together, and one morning a heap of rubbish only marked the spot where the tower had stood up to the previous evening. On this occasion the bells fell together ; they kept their places in their frame, and all sank vertically and uniformly, and no harm was done to them. Later, in the autumn of 1877, the new tower, in which the old bells had been replaced, was struck by lightning. The west wall of the tower in its upper part, was torn away, and the bell-chamber was laid open to the outer air while the roof was hanging down towards—but not so far as—the frame, for want of the support of the western wall. A few trifling items of damage were done to the woodwork by the stones that the lightning violently displaced, but, substantially, the bells received no harm at all.

Sir Francis South of Kelstern (the donor of these bells) was knighted (previously to the coronation of King James I.) at Whitehall, 23rd July, 1603. He was High Sheriff of the county on the occasion of the visit of that monarch to Lincoln, on 27th March, 1617, and assisted, as such, in conducting the king to his lodging at S. Catharine's House.* He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Meeres, of Auburn, Knight. His arms, as given on the bells, were [argent] two bars [gules]. The Churchwardens' Account Book has the following entry under the year 1822:—

Bells taking down and hanging over again with new frames the old being very dangerous. Mr. Thimbleby agreed with Parishioners to do it for £10 last 25 March.

At that time the bells were hung in the lower chamber of the tower instead of the upper as before.

The 3rd bell (the largest) formerly here is remembered as being cracked and standing on the church floor about the year 1812: after some years—there is no mention of it in a Terrier made in 1823—it was broken up and the metal sold: there being no record of what became of the proceeds, and the traditions about it being of a very hazy description it may be well not to chronicle them here.

This chapel is a donative. In 1720 it was in the hands of Mr Daniel Disney who, being a Presbyterian, appointed a minister of his own to perform service, paid him a stipend, and "settled certain lands upon five trustees, the profits of which were to be applied to the maintenance of a Presbyterian minister at this place. This gift he afterwards confirmed by his Will in 1732, and in addition bequeathed to the trustees the use of the chapel and chapel ground for the same purpose. Several appointments of ministers were made in accordance with Mr. Disney's Will, but in 1794 the then owner of the manor appointed a clergyman of the Church of England paying him the stipend. The Presbyterian Trustees recovered possession of the estate, but not of the chapel, by an action of ejectment tried at Lincoln Assizes in 1812, part of the evidence (it is said) to show that it had been the Parish Church, and therefore belonged to the Church of England, was that an old man remembered when a bell used to be rung as it hung in an oak tree hard by the church. What became of that bell is not known. Probably the church was for some time without a bell, for when it was re-roofed, in 1849, a bell turret was, for the first time, erected, and the present bell, which looks a modern one, is also no doubt of that date.

The tenor bell requiring recasting Humphrey Wilkinson, bellfounder of Lincoln, was employed to recast it in 1676. A Bond for £100 was given on the 14th November, 1676, by him with George Gilby of Lincoln, yeoman, as his surety to "James Dalbye gen. & John Richardson mercer of Kirton in Lindsey" for the due performance of the contract. The ancient number of three bells was augmented to six in 1798, when the present bells were cast by James Harrison of Barton-on-Humber. They were rung by the Barton ringers for the first time on the 1st day of September in that year.

The Rev. John Gray, whose name is on the tenor bell, was Vicar of Hibaldstow, and "minister" or curate of Kirton. He died 6th July, 1806, aged 55 years, and was buried in Grayingham churchyard, where a flat stone marks the place of his sepulture.

In 1553 there were here “ij great belles &amp; one Sanctus bell.”*

Two of those ancient bells still remain.

The inscription on the 1st is in rather small gothic capital letters which, with the same cross, are upon the single bell at Manton.

Of S. Mary of Hawardby—or Hawerby, as the place is now called—a village not far from Laceby, nothing is now known. As the Images of Mary of Walsingham,* and Dervel Gadarn† had wide reputations—the former in England, the latter in North Wales—so, doubtless, there were, in pre-Reformation times, many others whose reputations were local—confined to the immediate neighbourhood in which they stood. As is well known, a figure or painted representation of the Patron Saint of the church was very generally set up therein; thus, to quote Lincolnshire examples, at Belton, in the Isle of Axholme (All Saints) there was “an Idol of all halowes;” at Corby (S. John the Evangelist) there was an “Image of St. Johnne Evang . . ;” at Edenham there were “the images of Saint Michael being patron of the church;” at Folkingham an “Image called St. Andrewe vppon the wch the parish church of ffolkinghñ drewe his name;” and at Gayton-le-Marsh was “a picture of St. George” the patron of that church. It is equally well known that other Images in addition to that of the Patron Saint were also placed in churches: thus at Bassingham, dedicated to S. Michael we find a figure of “peter;” at Bonby it is recorded that in addition to the usual figures of SS. Mary and John from the rood-loft, other “such like Idols” were burned;‡ so at Hawerby, where the church is dedicated to S. Margaret, there was, without doubt, a much esteemed figure of the B. V. Mary, the only memorial of which is preserved on this bell at Laceby.

* Edward IV. undertook a pilgrimage to our Lady of Walsingham to avert a great calamity which was supposed to be foretold by extraordinary appearances in the air. See Dugdale's Monasticon (Ed. 1817, Vol. II. p. 104).

† There was (temp. Henry VIII.) a famous wooden image of Dervel Gadarn in the church of Llandderfel in Edeyrnion, Merionethshire, to which people came in great numbers, and from great distances, with offerings of every kind—“somme with Kyne, other with oxen or horsis, & the reste withe money.” Indeed so profitable was the image from the offerings of the pilgrims, that the parson and the parishioners offered a bribe of £40 to the Commissioner-General of the diocese to induce him to allow the image to remain. It was, however, sent to London, and was consumed in the same fire in Smithfield with an unfortunate friar named Forrest, who was burnt on the 30th May, 1538, for denying the King's supremacy.—Arch. Cambrensis, April, 1874, p. 152.

‡ Peacock's Ch. Fur. pp. 45, 61, 74, 80, 83, 41, 53.

The inscription on the 2nd bell (like the single bell at Bag Enderby) is in well executed bold gothic letters.

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "ij handbells," which belonged to this church in Queen Mary's time, had been sold and defaced.*

The Rev. John Mossop (4th bell) of Queen's College, Oxford; M.A. 1799; appears to have done occasional duty here in 1779 when he was Curate of Dunsby. He became Vicar of Baston in 1781 and of this parish in 1801, being then also Curate of Deeping S. James. He appears to have held that curacy and the Living of Baston until his death in 1834. He was buried at Deeping S. James. By his Will he left lands in Baston, Langtoft, and Deeping S. James for the benefit of poor widows in those parishes.*

It' iij bells and one litle belle ..... xli.*

John Stephen Langton, Esq., the donor of the present bells—descended from a long line of ancestors said to have been settled here for 800 years—was the son of George Langton by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Mainwaring, Esq. He died in the year 1833, aged 37 years. He gave (writes the Rector of the Parish) a ring of the sweetest bells in Lincolnshire to one of the ugliest churches in Christendom.†

The three "great bells" hanging here in the reign of Edward VI. probably remained until the commencement of the present century. At that time three bells were taken down, the tenor is said to have been sold to the parish of Willingham, a village about three miles from hence, and the two smaller ones cast into four light bells by Harrison of Barton-on-Humber. These four bells constituted the ring until the year 1853, when they were recast into the present ring by the Loughborough founders* [see under Willingham-by-Stow], under circumstances recorded thus on a brass plate over the door of the belfry:—

To the praise and glory of God

The four bells in this tower were recast into a heavier peal, and humbly offered to Almighty God in this church and parish of Lea A.D. 1853 by the congregation in Madeira of the Rev. Richard Thomas Lowe M.A. in thankfulness for his ministry and in recognition of the service rendered by him to the church at large as chaplain in Madeira from A.D. 1832 to A.D. 1852.

Mr. Lowe continued to act as chaplain at Madeira, during three months every year, for many years; he was eventually drowned on his way out, the vessel and all on board being lost.

The names of the churchwardens on the 4th bell have been read as one name "W. Clay alias Muckbodie," the first being a supposed refined alias of the second; but under the date 1635 in the Register is this entry:—

The appearance of the names of two Rectors on the same bell is explained by the fact that Leverton had formerly two distinct rectories, which were called the boreal and the austral medieties. The tithes of the parish were equally divided between the two rectors, and each of them possessed a separate rectory house, both of which stood within a small enclosed space on the south eastern side of the churchyard. This arrangement was in force until the two medieties were consolidated by an Act of Parliament passed in 1800.*

Francis Bowman was Rector of the south mediety and Edmund Pinchbeck that of the north mediety.†

Formerly there was no floor between the ringers below and the bells above, and on one occasion, it is said, a clapper broke away from a bell, whilst ringing was going on, and killed a ringer below.

Though not belonging to a church this is too curious a bell to be omitted in an account of the campanology of the county. It is probably the most interesting ancient Mote bell existing in the kingdom.

Mercatorial Guilds were in existence in Lincoln, as in other large towns, before the Norman Conquest, and enjoyed special privileges.

By a charter of Richard I., dated in 1195, the citizens were to have, once a week, a Burgwardmote, or meeting of the Burg-wardens, that is, in modern idiom, a Common Council.

By a charter of King John, signed 23rd April, 1200, the citizens were allowed to elect two provosts, instead of one as previously, to take the chief management of the city, and to be removable at the will of the Common Council. It was early in the thirteenth century, perhaps in the reign of King John, that the supremacy of the civil power, formerly enjoyed by the prepositus or provost, was transferred to another individual designated in mediæval Latinity Major Civitatis, and in the vernacular speech, the Mayor of the city. At what time, and in what manner, this important dignity was first conferred on the chief citizen is not perhaps ascertainable, as there is no mention of such person in any of the preceding records: nor is it shown whether or not these early Mayors were possessed of the same magisterial power as was vested in their successors. On the Pipe Rolls, in the year 1210, it is stated that the citizens of Lincoln owed the exchequer £100 that they might have Adam for their Mayor so long as he pleased the King. However, before the middle of the thirteenth century several citizens had enjoyed the dignity of Major Civitatis, and had held a rank above that of the ancient Provosts, who, about that period, are mentioned by the name of Bailiffs. The citizens were several times deprived of their Mayor, specially in 1290, when the King instead of a Major Civitatis appointed a Custos Civitatis, who undertook the farming of the city, and all its revenues arising from tolls, rents, &c., then fallen into the King's hands: nor was it till the end of the century that the office was restored. At the close of the year 1300 the King came to Lincoln, where he stayed for some time, for the purpose of holding a Parliament, and the citizens, it appears, while he was their guest, besought him to restore them their Mayor and to confirm their charters, which he did.

By a charter of Edward III., given 7th October, 1327, "a Burgman-mote was to be held once a week in the Guild Hall, on the monday, by the Mayor & Bailiffs, and all pleas of the aforesaid city were there to be held & impleaded before them without interference from the officers of the King, except in pleas of transgressions, conventions, & contract made in the King's Hospice," &c., &c.*

The Mayor of Lincoln was firmly on his seat when the present Guildhall bell (the inscription on which probably refers to the hearing of these "pleas") was provided in the year 1371. (See p. 255.)

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL.

The earliest date in connection with the bells of Lincoln Cathedral is mentioned by Stukeley,† who states that a gift of two was made by Robert de Chesney, the fourth Bishop of the Diocese (1148—1167), and the builder of the ancient Bishop's Palace; but as I find no authority for this statement, it will be well to consider Geoffry Plantagenet, the natural son of King Henry II., who held the temporalities of the See, but was never consecrated its Bishop, as the first recorded donor of bells to the Cathedral Church of Lincoln. He gave (A.D. 1173—1182) to the Cathedral, amongst other ornaments, a pair of large and sonorous bells. Giraldus Cambrensis says:—

Ipse quoque ornatus ecclesiæ suæ plurimum propriis donariis amplificavit. Cui et inter cetera quoque campanas duas grandes, egregias atque sonoras devota largitione donavit.*

This pair of bells hung in one of the western towers, the lower parts of which were erected about the year 1140. What bells the Cathedral possessed prior to Geoffry Plantagenet's gift, and whether his bells were the predecessors of the ring in S. Hugh's steeple, or of "Great Tom," which originally hung in the North-western Tower, cannot now be determined.

Two more bells, as we shall see presently, were placed in the Central, Broad, or Rood Tower, when that magnificent structure was raised by Bishop John D'Alderby (1307-11).

These four ancient bells were, as I take it, the precursors of those for which Lincoln was so long famous, namely, "Great Tom," originally placed in the North-western Tower; the ring in the South-western Tower, usually called S. Hugh's Steeple; and the fine ring of six Lady Bells, which, until the present century, graced the Central, Broad, or Rood Tower. In attempting to give an account of these bells it will be well to do so in the three divisions just indicated, commencing with those which no longer exist—the Lady Bells.

THE LADY BELLS.

In the year 1307 John D'Alderby, consecrated Bishop of Lincoln seven years previously, issued letters of indulgence, in which, after setting forth the duty of paying special reverence to the Blessed Virgin, he desired the faithful to assist in raising the central tower of the Cathedral to her honour. This was done in so sumptuous a manner that the magnificent structure is pronounced not only the highest, but the finest, central tower in England. The appeal of the Bishop was made at a time when the reverence paid to the Virgin had reached its meridian in this country—when England was called “Our Lady’s Dower” as Ireland the “Island of Saints”—it is therefore not surprising that means were at once forthcoming which enabled him to prosecute the work so rapidly that four years afterwards—in 1311—we read of the executors of Gilbert D’Eivill, formerly a treasurer of the church, being condemned in the cost of two ropes for the bells then lately hung in the new tower. The Chapter Act Book has the following entry:—

Memorandum quod die Sabbati proxime post Festum Sanctorum Fabiani et Sebastiani [i.e. Saturday 23 Jan. 1311] Decano et ceteris canonicis residentibus more solito in capitulo congregatis condemnati fuerunt executores testamenti Domini Gilberti Deivill quondam Thesaurarius ecclesiae Lincoln in duabus cordis campanarum tunc noviter in medio campanili suspensarum.

The two bells, thus provided with ropes, were the precursors of the ring of the six Lady Bells which gave the name of Lady-Bell-Steeple to the new tower.

When the number of bells was increased from two to six, and whether the increase was gradual (which, as will be shown, is most probable), or made at one time, cannot now be said. When the Muni-ments belonging to the Dean and Chapter are arranged and made consultable, which useful work is now being gradually carried out by Canon Wickenden, some light will doubtless be thrown upon their history. At present the Computus for the year 1593, when four of these bells were cast, is missing, and though the Chapter Acts for 1633 and 1737 are accessible, they give no information about the other two bells cast in those years.

In 1834, when these bells were taken down for removal to London, they were found to be inscribed as under:—

1. Jesus be our speed 1633.
2. Soli Deo Gloria in excelsis. Daniel Hedderly Founder 1737.
3. Cum voce sonora Thomam Campana laudet 1593.
4. Sum Rosa pulsata mundi Katerina vocata 1593.
5. In multis annis resonat Campana Johannis 1593.
6. Sum Rosa pulsata mundi Maria vocata 1593.

The four largest bells bore the founder's mark fig. 105, Plate XV., showing them to have been cast by Robert Quernbie and Henry Oldfield (see p. 104) who, doubtless, reproduced the inscriptions found on the old bells then recast. The tenor note is said to have been one note above that of the present tenor of the ring of eight in S. Hugh's steeple which was cast in the same year. The gross weight of the six bells, taken at the time by Mr. Betham, Surveyor to the Chapter, was 68 cwt. 2 qrs. 4 lbs.

Sir Charles H. J. Anderson writes:—"The Lady Bells were fixed in a row on the floor of the belfry, and are shown in the section plate of Wild's Lincoln Cathedral. The ropes of the four largest of the Lady Bells went down to the piers of the great tower below, where the rings, to which they were fixed, still remain. [This tends to show that the number was increased from two to four, and afterwards to six.] The singing boys used to ring them for service, two for common days, four on the eves of Saints' days, on Saturday evenings and on Sundays. On Lady-day the singing boys used to go up into the belfry, tie strings to the clappers of the Lady-bells, and chime them as below. I used, as a boy, to be at Lincoln at that time of the year, and I well remember the charming melody of those bells both when rung out and chimed. I have since imagined, and am more and more convinced, that the chiming on Lady-day was the Ave Maria:—

The Peal.

Ave Ma-ri-a o-ra pro no-bis.

They used to repeat this for an hour, and finish with the six bells in succession." *

The 3rd of the Lady Bells was rung at 6 a.m. in summer, at 7 a.m. in winter, after which the day of the month was tolled.

The largest Lady Bell was rung on Shrove Tuesday, at noon, as "the Pancake Bell."

This largest bell also used to be tolled forty times at the shutting of the church doors every night, after which the searchers of the church partook of bread and beer provided for them under the watching-chamber—a chamber of timber formerly in the North-East transept. They then walked round and searched the church.

It would appear that these bells required rehunging in the eighteenth century, for there are two letters from Bellfounders preserved amongst the Muniments of the Dean and Chapter: one, dated the 15th of July, 1763, from James Harrison, of Barrow, offering his services to repair the six bells in the "Lady Steeple of the Minster," and another with a similar offer, dated the 8th of July, 1772, from Samuel Turner, of Whitechapel, London. There is also a third letter preserved, dated the 11th of January, 1785, recommending Edward Arnold, of Leicester, as a good man for the work.

"Great Tom" having become cracked in 1827, it was, in 1834, determined to have him recast larger, and to add two new Quarter-bells. To effect this it was (taking advantage of the fact of the 2nd Lady Bell being also slightly cracked, and the whole ring requiring rehunging) unfortunately resolved to give up the fine and interesting ring of six Lady Bells to provide the metal required, but for which purpose it is now universally acknowledged they ought not to have been sacrificed. They were taken to the wharf of Messrs. Sharp, on their way to the London founder, on the 23rd of June, 1834,† and so were for ever lost to the church from which their melody had issued for so many years, and the Cathedral also lost the distinction of being the only one in the kingdom possessed of two rings of bells. This was done to have a great bell that could not be rung, and Quarter-bells which were not required. When the bells reached London, and were examined by Mr. Mears, the founder, he described them as being "very fine bells, very thick for their size, and consequently rich in tone." They were not a heavy ring, the tenor weighing from eighteen to twenty hundred-weight: the slight crack in the shoulder of the 2nd did not extend far, nor did it affect the tone.*

There are several traditions as to the origin of "Tom of Lincoln." A curious and highly improbable local one is current in the neighbourhood of the Premonstratensian Abbey of Beauchief, Derbyshire, that the great bell of that House, given to it by Prior Robert de Ednessouter, was surreptitiously taken away at midnight to Lincoln—the horses' shoes being reversed to avoid detection—and there became the veritable Tom of Lincoln.*

The Car-dyke, a Roman work commencing on the Nene about half a mile from Peterborough, and terminating in the parish of Washington near Lincoln, where it formerly communicated with the Witham, was once a wide and deep catch-water canal; it is also occasionally called the Bell-Dyke from a tradition that the original "Great Tom" was floated on a raft or boat on this canal to its destination all the way from Peterborough, it being sometimes added that the bell was a present from the Abbot of Peterborough to the Cathedral of * Historical Memorials of Beauchief Abbey, by S. O. Addy, p. 38. I suppose this is the same tradition as that mentioned in the Gent. Mag. (LXXVII. (1807) p. 1008) to the effect that Great Tom was carried away from a chapel near Sheffield.

Lincoln, and sometimes that it was forcibly taken from his Minster.* This tradition probably arose from the fact (mentioned in my Church Bells of Northamptonshire) of Henry Penn, the Peterborough Bellfounder, in the early years of the eighteenth century, having apparently constructed a canal known as "Bell Dyke" from the back of his foundry, of a sufficient size to carry large boats into the river with which it communicated. From his foundry many bells—perhaps including the 6th of the Cathedral ring, cast by him in 1717,—were floated down this Car-dyke into Lincolnshire, and so the name "Bell-Dyke," originally given to the connecting canal between his foundry and the river, would, in time, be given to the larger and older work more generally known as Car-dyke.

There is yet another local tradition: Before the Reformation (so goes the story at Markby, in this county) one of the largest bells in the kingdom swung in the tower of the Priory there, and at the Dissolution it was purloined by John Longlands, the then Bishop of the Diocese, and removed to his Cathedral, where it now bears the name of Great Tom of Lincoln.

So, too, as to the name of this great bell there are diverse opinions. Stukeley says:—"There are many bells [belonging to the Cathedral] particularly one remarkably large call'd Tom of Lincoln, which takes up a whole steeple to itself, probably consecrated to that great champion of the church [that "Saint Traitor" as Fuller calls him] St. Thomas of Canterbury."† Others think that Great Tom is a corruption of Grand Ton, or adopted from the name of the bell of Christ Church, Oxford.‡

Setting aside these traditions, it may safely be asserted that for several centuries Lincoln Cathedral has possessed a large single bell, but whether it originated or not in one of those large and sonorous bells given to the Cathedral, as we have seen, by Geoffry Plantagenet between the years 1173, and 1183, has yet to be demonstrated; and as to the name it possibly arose from the supposed assimilation, by the vulgar, of the boom of the bell, when sounded, to the short name by which it has so long been known.

Although there is little doubt as to the fact, there is no documentary evidence known to me to prove the existence of a "Great Tom" before the reign of Elizabeth. A Broadside about him, dated "Lincoln, June, 1836," and printed by "Edward Bell Drury, Printer, Stonebow, Lincoln," contains the following passage, "The period when the first Great Bell was placed in Lincoln Cathedral is not known. A large Bell was recast there very early in the fourteenth century, and remained until the beginning of the seventeenth century when it was recast," &c., &c., but as the writer gives no authority for his statement, it cannot be accepted as historically correct.

The first recorded reference to "Great Tom" at present found amongst the Muniments of the Dean and Chapter, occurs in a Computus headed "Conc'neing y<sup>e</sup>greate Bell," dated "xxx die Januarii anno Dni 1610[-11]." From it we learn that "Henricus Ollfield de Nottingham et Robertus Nevinson [Newcombe] de Leyster Bellfounders," had recast the old bell which weighed 7,807 pounds "at 112 to the C," which shows the weight to have been 78 cwt. 7 lbs., or 8743 pounds, a fact missed by Browne Willis, and all writers on this bell, who give the weight as 7807 pounds only. This casting was made in a temporary furnace erected in the Minster yard nearly opposite the residence of the sub-dean.

The new bell was larger than its predecessor: it weighed 8838 pounds and a half—that is 88 cwt. 38½ lbs., or 9894½ lbs.—"which at the rate of xd. the pownd for the surplusse above the weight of the old bell amounteth to xlviijl. xixs. & ij d., and so they demanded in all for workmanshipp and mettall added an cxlvijl. xixs. ij d., and did leave their covenant and bond for warrant of the said bell for 2 yeares and a day after the said xxvijth of January in the hands of me the said Thomas Stirropp" [Chapter-clerk]. The bell was "cast and hung upp and upon Sunday the xxvij of this month [January 1611] ronge owte and all safe and well."* This bell was inscribed:—

The diameter at its mouth was 6 feet  $3\frac{1}{2}$  inches: weight 4 tons, 8 cwt. 1 qr.  $10\frac{1}{2}$  lbs.; key B. It was, writes Sir Charles Anderson, beautifully finished with lace work [as a band ornament], and of a peculiarly beautiful shape and tone.

It will be observed that whilst the joint founder with Henry Oldfield is usually said to have been William Newcombe, the Record just quoted says Robert Newcombe. I think both statements are correct. Edward Newcombe, who was at that time the head of the Leicester foundry, was then an old man, and so, no doubt, left much of the business in the hands of his three sons Robert, Thomas, and William.* Now, whilst it was quite natural that the agreement should be made with Robert, the eldest son, as representing his father, there was nothing improbable in the actual work in the Minster Yard at Lincoln being carried out under the direction of William Newcombe his younger brother.

We learn from an entry, dated 21 Sep. 1611, in the Book of Acts in the Chapter Library headed "Contributions to the great bell" that £50. towards the cost of recasting was agreed to be paid by the Dean and the Archdeacon—the latter, no doubt, then keeping his greater residence and so representing the Chapter—that there were "other sums" (donations I suppose) "agreed to be paid by other people," and the rest was to be raised by the Receiver and Bailiff of the church, who "shall collect & gather of every tenant ijs. vjd. in the pound, and that also they doe collect & gather of every Prebendary xijd. in the pound of every Prebendarie according to the valuation of their Prebends in the Kinge's books. And that my Lord Bishop's letters may be obtained for that purpose, and that also the Dean and Chapter's letters be written to that purpose. And that the Bishop and his Chancellor may be moved for some commutation money, and to procure the Ministers in all places to move their Parishioners making Wills to contribute to the same. And if nothing be given in the Wills to convent the ministers for their negligence."

No doubt these means soon raised the requisite amount.

"Great Tom," which then hung in the North-Western tower, was one of the sights and sounds of Lincoln. "As loud as Tom of Lincoln" became a proverb; and as "men fabled," according to Stow, that the ringing of the bells of S. Stephen's Chapel at Westminster, "soured all the drink in the town," so the tolling of Tom of Lincoln was said to turn the milk sour for several miles round the Cathedral. Fuller says of him, "Tom of Lincoln may be called the Stentor (fifty lesser bells may be made out of him) of all in this county."* Evelyn, who visited Lincoln in 1654, mentions "the greate bell or Tom as they call it."† Southey, who ascended the tower to see him, writes "At first it disappointed me, but the disappointment wore off, and we became satisfied that it was as great a thing as it was said to be—a tall man might stand in it upright."‡ "It was guaged" says Browne Willis in his Survey "by Mr. Pontjoy, and will hold 424 gallons of ale measure . . . "its compass is seven yards and a half and two inches."§

The clock struck upon the "Great Tom" of 1610. It was tolled as the Passing-bell for those dying in the Minster Close, and for people of high position, after which thrice three strokes were given for a male and thrice two for a female. It was also tolled on Whitsunday, and when the Judges arrived at the Assizes, but it being found that the swinging of so heavy a weight shook the tower more than was considered safe, it was decided, in 1802, that it should not be tolled in future: a writer in the Stamford Mercury newspaper of the 6th of August in that year says:—"Great Tom o' Lincoln is to be rung no more! The full swing of four tons and a half is found to injure the tower where he hangs. He has therefore been chained and rivetted down; so that instead of the full mouthful he has been used to send forth, he is enjoined in future merely to wag his tongue."*

Early in the present century the unsatisfactory state of the bells pressed itself upon the notice of the Dean and Chapter; and an impression being afloat that some steps would be taken to remedy the defects, induced James Harrison, Bellfounder, of Barton, to address a letter, dated the 15th of October, 1806, to the Dean and Chapter, containing a wordy exposition of his theories. Again, twelve years afterwards—on the 7th of November, 1818—the same man wrote:—

"A report having lately reached me purporting that all the Minster Bells, except Great Tom, are to be recast to form a grand Peal of Ten, and that it is also wished that Great Tom should be rung & consequently that it is become very desirable to have its Tower firmly secured for this purpose," &c., &c.

He proceeded to recommend that the new ring of ten bells should be hung in the Broad Tower with Great Tom in the centre! and propounded his theory for believing that such an arrangement would in no wise interfere with the stability of the structure. An estimate "of the expense of recasting the two old peals of bells, namely, the peal of eight and the peal of six now in the Cathedral into a very capital and grand peal of ten harmonious bells," accompanied the letter. He promised that the new bells should "be formed with all the advantages of modern improvements and discoveries, viz., the metal to be arranged according to mathematical calculation for affording the loudest, gravest, and most lasting sounds that can be produced with given weights, and, in consequence, the most lively and free tones," and that the new bells should be turned "into perfect tune." Without giving the details, which are long, it may be mentioned that he judged the weight of the old metal to be about seven tons, which he valued at £168. a ton, and so worth £1176. The same metal recast into new bells he estimated at £224. a ton, and so would cost £1568.—the difference between which two sums—£392.—would be the actual cost in money of the transformation of the two rings into one: to that sum he added £257. 10s.—for new frames, &c., &c.—making the total of his estimate £649. 10s. The weight of his proposed tenor was to be 32 cwt., its diameter about 5½ ft., its key C sharp. The proposed ring, he asserted, would “exceed in grandeur and flow of sound any other peal in England whatever, though there are some of much greater weight. It would also,” he added, “exceed in the sweetness of the tones, and it would be heard to a greater distance.”

* There is a tradition that on the occasion of some victory "Great Tom" was rung by twenty-four women; the Lady-bells and S. Hugh's bells being rung at the same time.

The Dean and Chapter, fortunately, did not accept his proposals.

In 1827, to add to the perplexities of the Cathedral authorities, “Great Tom” became perceptibly cracked near the rim in consequence of some mismanagement in the striking of the clock-hammer.

On the 31st of December in that year Mr. Edward Betham, the Surveyor to the Dean and Chapter, addressed a series of queries to Mr. John Briant of Hertford, who for many years had been a well-known bellfounder, but who, at that time being nearly eighty years of age, had declined that part of his business, as to the cause of the accident, and the best course to pursue. The queries (to put them very briefly) were:—

1. Could such an accident occur by the accidental or intentional pressure by any person upon the bell at the time the clock was striking?
2. Will any further injury be occasioned by allowing the clock to strike and the bell to be tolled with the clapper as heretofore?
3. Whether any temporary improvement in the tone would be obtained by cutting a piece out of the bell as far, or a little beyond, the present crack?

4. Relates to the proposed striking of the clock upon the tenor of S. Hugh's ring.
5. What would be the probable expense of recasting "this stupendous bell" . . . and would it be more readily done at Lincoln or in London?

To these queries Mr. Briant replied, on the 2nd of January, 1828, that

1. The fracture was not occasioned by either of the causes named. [In a later paragraph he gives his opinion that the fracture which apparently extended seven inches upwards from the extremity of the skirt really extended much further than was perceptible to the eye, and had been occasioned in the first instance "by the Line of the momentum of the Clock Hammer being in too perpendicular a direction with the Bell and striking on a thinner part than the extreme thickness of the sound-bow, instead of having its impetus inclined to a more horizontal position." "Most likely," he adds, "that part of the fracture above the sound-bow was done before it extended to the skirt, at which time [i. e. fifty years previously, when the hammer struck on the part of the bell now cracked, but was then removed to the opposite side of the bell] the tone was very little injured."
2. By continuing the striking of the clock, or the tolling with the clapper, the fracture would probably extend.
3. The cutting out of a piece would not produce any sensible improvement in the tone, would be attended with great trouble and expense, and would be eventually abortive.
4. He offered same advice.
5. He promised to write again under this head which he did in a long letter, dated the 8th of January, 1828, strongly recommending that, in case the bell was recast, the work should be done in London, chiefly because there, and there only, was a furnace of sufficient capacity for so large a work, and suggested that Mr. Mears should examine the position of the bell in order to arrive at an idea of the cost. He wrote of the old bell (that of 1610) as "the most superior Great Bell in England," and he estimated the cost of recasting at from £200. to £240., which in a subsequent letter he corrected to £165.

This new disaster to the Cathedral bells caused several letters of advice and suggestion, and proposals from bellfounders, to be sent to the Dean and Chapter. Amongst the Cathedral Muniments are preserved letters written at this time (January, 1828) by Sir J. H. Thorold and the Rectors of Downham and Croyland; Charles Vellam, Robert Hepworth, Robert Boston, George Sanderson, and John Potts, all made their suggestions as to the repair of the bell. William Dobson, bellfounder, of Downham, Norfolk, sent proposals (7th January, 1828) for effecting the same object, enclosing a number of testimonials, amongst which is a letter from Sir Robert Smirke, R.A., dated 21st September, 1825, and a curious one on bells and bellringing from Dr. Samuel Parr, dated the 22nd January 1816.* James Harrison (not daunted by the failure of his former proposals), wrote (2nd February, 1828) "The misfortune announced in the newspapers of the renowned Tom of Lincoln having got broken occasioned the present address. . . . . I shall be extremely happy to receive . . . ." He enclosed a new estimate amounting to £231. Thomas Mears, of London, sent a brief estimate (4th February, 1828) for recasting the two rings into a new ring of ten musical bells for £296. On the 4th of March, 1828, the original crack was extended, and two additional ones made, by striking the bell with the clapper: soon after which William Dobson wrote again, and in his letter (dated 16th August, 1828) engaged to remove the great bell and replace it with a new one for £200.—with certain stipulations as to the overplus or deficiency of metal. In the following year (3rd July, 1829) Dobson had an interview with the Dean, when the idea of augmenting the weight of "Great Tom" and placing him in the central tower was discussed, but the Dean felt a difficulty in deciding upon the extent of such augmentation. This led Dobson

* That letter I have printed in The Antiquary, Vol. III p. 157.

shortly afterwards—27th July, 1829—to address a letter to the Dean which is sufficiently amusing to quote:—

Downham, Norfolk, July 27th 1829.

To the Very Rev<sup>d</sup> Geo: Gordon D.D.

During the conversation I had the honor of holding with you on the 3rd Ins<sup>t</sup> you seem'd to approve of the idea of augmenting the weight of the Great Bell but felt a difficulty in deciding upon the extent of such augmentation. As you entertain the design of placing the new Bell in the Centre Tower, I beg leave to suggest that the Bell ought to be made to correspond with the splendor and magnificence of the Building (the Tower), which unquestionably is the finest in the whole kingdom. Altho' Humility is a great virtue, there is a possibility of carrying it too far and I think that the most fastidious would acquit you of presumption were you to introduce a Bell weighing something more than the mighty Tom of Oxford, which is computed to weigh 7 tons, 15 cwt.; a spirit of emulation is laudable and praiseworthy, and indeed to such a spirit is the grand and stately Cathedral of Lincoln indebted for its vast magnificence. I have often thought that the dignity of this great Empire was compromised by those who had the management of St. Paul's; had my spirit presided, not even the Kremlin itself should have outdone me. The commanding situation of the Building is admirably calculated for the display of such a Bell, it would be heard many miles around (if St. Paul's could be heard at Windsor, may we not presume that Tom's notes will reach the Turrets of Belvoir?) and the clock which was evidently too powerful for the old Bell, will, I am confident, be sufficiently so for a new one on the scale I have suggested.

The weight of the present Bell is computed by some to be 4 tons, 8 cwts., and by others 4 tons, 14 cwts., we may adopt the intermediate weight, and call it 4 tons, 11 cwts., and the Ladies' Bells

(sic) may probably weigh 2 tons, 16 cwts., together about 7 tons, 7 cwts. So that about 10 cwts. of metal in addition will produce a Bell heavier than any other in the Kingdom. Herewith you have my offer for carrying the plan into effect, which I have made more with a view to the acquirement of Fame than fortune, and if I be honored with the execution of the business, no expense on my part shall be spared to render it perfect and compleat. In the event of your having the larger Bell, a new Frame and Hangings will be required which, under my superintendence and direction, might be furnished by your own Carpenter, I therefore have not included them in my proposals. Begging that when the question is brought forward, my humble pretensions may meet your favourable consideration

I have the honour to remain,
Rev<sup>d</sup> Sir Your very respectful, and obedient Servant,
Will. Dobson.

Dobson's proposal was to take down "Great Tom" and the six Lady Bells, convey them to his foundry, and recast them with about 10 cwt. of new metal into one bell, and hang it for £350.

Early in the following year—1830—the Precentor broached another idea, which was that two quarter-bells should be provided, and that, in order to save the expense of new metal for them, "four small Bells from the peal of eight [in S. Hugh's steeple], which have been a long time useless," should be sacrificed for the purpose. In order to meet this proposal (which would have left the Cathedral with a ring of four bells only in addition to the suggested new "Great Tom") Dobson sent in another, and corrected, estimate, dated the 10th of March, 1830, undertaking to cast the then Great Tom and the six Lady-bells into one great bell, and to cast "four of the small bells of the Peal of eight into two new Bells for the Quarter Chimes," for the sum of £385.

One reads the Dean's reply to this proposal with a sigh of relief: he put the whole matter off indefinitely.

Notwithstanding Mr. Briant's warning that the cutting out of a piece of the bell "would not produce any sensible improvement in the tone, would be attended with great trouble and expense, and would be eventually abortive," the Dean and Chapter in the following year resolved to try that method of preventing the extension of the cracks, and of improving the tone. In June, 1831, Mr. Thomas Bishop of Birmingham (who had previously been in correspondence with the Dean) was employed to attempt a remedy of the defect, in doing which, during the driving of a wedge to trace the flaw, a large piece of the rim broke off, soon after which a further portion was taken off by a white-smith of Lincoln named Poole. Mr. Edward Betham, the Surveyor, in a letter to Lord John Thynne, dated the 18th of June, 1831, enclosed the following:—

It being generally believed that when “Great Tom” of 1610 was cast in the Minster-Yard, many of the inhabitants of Lincoln threw in silver tankards, spoons and other valuables, it is of interest to place on record the following :—

This shows a very small percentage indeed of silver.

The great Bell after this remained dumb, with the exception of the clock striking upon it, until the year 1834, when the question of recasting was again discussed. On the 1st of January in that year the following important Order was entered in the Order Book on Fabric Account :—

1834. Jan. 1st Ordered, with the consent and approbation of the Precentor & Chancellor that M<sup>r</sup> Thomas Mears, Bell Founder of Whitechapel, London, be employed to recast the Great Bell &c &c and directed to send a Plan, Estimate, and Contract for the same.

The result of this order was the receipt of the following estimate from Mr. Thomas Mears :—

&c. &c.

Lincoln.

Soon after the receipt of this estimate an Order appears in The Order Book on Fabric Account (dated the 8th April 1834) signed by the Dean and Sub-dean "that the present state and condition of the Broad Tower should be ascertained from the best authority, that in the event of an order being given for the recasting of the great bell it might be known how far it would be advisable that it should be hung there." Mr. Blore was thought the fittest person, but his fees being considered high, Mr. James Savage, of Essex Street, Strand, was desired to examine the Tower, and send in a Report. In that Report (dated the 16th of May, 1834) Mr. Savage said (to quote the first two paragraphs only):—

In pursuance of your directions I have carefully examined the Broad Tower of your Cathedral with a view to ascertain its sufficiency to receive the large bell for occasional tolling and for the clock hammer to strike upon, together with two smaller bells for the Quarters to strike upon.

The weight of the large bell being Five Tons or a little more, and of the small bells together about two Tons, I have no hesitation in stating my entire conviction that the Tower is of ample strength for the purpose.

Being satisfied with this Report, the Dean and Chapter resolved at once to employ Mr. Thomas Mears to destroy the six Lady Bells, and from their metal and that of the cracked "Great Tom" to produce a new large bell and two Quarter-Bells. The following was Mr. Mears' Agreement:—

Memorandum June 6th 1834. The undersigned Thomas Mears of Whitechapel in the County of Middlesex, Bell Founder, hath this day agreed with the Right Worshipfull the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of Lincoln, as follows, that is to say,

First. To break into pieces in the chamber where it now hangs the large Bell called "Great Tom o' Lincoln," so that the same may be safely and carefully conveyed through such openings as there now are in the several Floors through which the pieces will have to pass down to the Floor immediately over the stone groined cieling, and from that Floor to be conveyed through the arched aperture in the south wall of the Tower to the Floor of the church.

Second. To take down the six Bells now in the Rood or Broad Tower of the Cathedral, and if any of them are too large to pass through the present openings in the several Floors, then to break such, in the Bell Chamber, into parts sufficiently small to pass through such openings down to the floor of the church, and, the Dean and Chapter finding proper Planks to preserve the said Floor from injury, to remove the metal to the outside of the church.

Third. To convey the said Metal, as also the part now in store, together with the old Copper, also in store, to the Bell Foundry at Whitechapel.

Fourth. To recast the above Metals, together with such additional new Metal as may be required, into three musical and proper tuneable Bells of the following dimensions and weights, at the least, that is to say,

One large Bell to be called "Great Tom o' Lincoln," of the diameter of six Feet and ten Inches at the mouth or skirt, measured from outer edge to outer edge; and of the thickness of five Inches and five eights of an Inch, or thereabouts, at the sound-bow, and in all other parts of such thickness, lengths and breadths, as the above mentioned diameter and thickness require a full toned and properly proportioned Bell, of such size, to be: with proper Cannons and Crown Staple. The said Bell to be in the key of A, or as near thereto as a casting of such magnitude and weight can be expected to arrive at, such weight to be not less than five tons, and one quarter of a Ton.

One Quarter Bell to weigh not less than fourteen hundred weight, and of such dimensions as shall make its tone to be an octave above the large Bell.

One other Quarter Bell to weigh not less than thirty one hundred weight, and of such proportions as will produce a tone that will be in accordance with the large bell and the first Quarter Bell, so that the three Bells sound in the proportions of one, four, eight.

- Fifth. To recast the old Metals before mentioned at the price or sum of thirty seven shillings and four pence per hundred weight; and to be allowed for such new metal as may be required after the rate of six Pounds ten shillings and eight pence per hundred weight.
- Sixth. To convey the said Bells to Lincoln and into the Bell chamber of the said Broad Tower, and hang the same with proper Stocks and Gudgeons in the Bell Frame now there; any alteration or strengthening of the said Frame, or of the Floor upon which it rests, as also the securing of the Timbers of the Roof from which the Blocks and Tackles (to be provided by the said Thomas Mears) by which the Bells are to be drawn up from the Floor of the church, will be suspended; and the enlarging, if necessary, of the openings through which the said Bells will have to pass, to be done and executed at the expence of the said Dean and Chapter—The alteration, if any, required to the present clapper of the Great Bell to make it suitable to the new large Bell to be done by the said Thomas Mears—To attach a quarter wheel or some other suitable apparatus to the large Bell as will admit of its being tolled (not rung) when required.

The Dean and Chapter to provide such Planks as may be necessary to carry the wheels of the Truck or Carriage, upon which the large Bell will be conveyed from London, along the Floor of the church to prevent injury to the same.

The said Thomas Mears to be allowed the sum of Ninety pounds for taking down the old Bells, conveying the same to the Foundry at Whitechapel, taking the new Bells to Lincoln, and hanging the same in the appointed place in the said Rood Tower, over and above the charge for recasting the old metals, and for the additional metal. But if the expenses attendant on such removal of the old metal and the new Bells should be less than the said sum of Ninety Pounds, then for such less sum as the same shall amount to.

To put on the Bells such Inscriptions as the Dean and Chapter may hereafter direct.

I do hereby agree to the several conditions of the preceding Memorandum of Agreement, and engage to have the new Bells at Lincoln on or before the 25th day of March next, and to proceed with the hanging thereof without delay if permitted to do so by the said Dean and Chapter, and also to insure the said Bells from any defects for one year from the date of the hanging of the same, if they be not improperly used, or wilfully injured by any one during that period. Witness my hand, the said Sixth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and thirty four.

The demolition of the "Great Tom" of 1610 took place after Morning Service on Wednesday, the 18th of June, 1834, the clapper being employed as a battering-ram, until by repeated blows the mass was broken into seven or eight pieces.

The actual casting of the present "Great Tom" took place on the 15th of November, 1834, as the following interesting memorandum, preserved amongst the Cathedral Muniments, fully details:—

Whitechapel Bellfoundry

London. Saturday, November 15th 1834.

The recasting of Great Tom o' Lincoln was effected this day: at 32 minutes after 10 o'clock A.M. the opening of the aperture in the Furnace through which the metal was to pass into the mould was commenced, at 36 and  $\frac{1}{2}$  minutes the first appearance of the metal was exhibited and commenced running into the two channels which conveyed it to the mould, and in 16 minutes all that was required for the Bell had run out, and in 4 minutes more the whole of the surplus metal had run out into the reservoirs prepared for it. The metal was considered by all present who understood it, as in the most perfect state of fusion possible, and there is every prospect of the Bell proving to be a good one. N.B. The date upon the Bell is March 25, 1835, by which day it is intended that it shall be in the Cathedral at Lincoln.

"Great Tom," although not ready for hanging quite so soon as agreed, left the Whitechapel Foundry for Lincoln on Monday, the 6th of April, 1835. It was placed on a timber carriage, with three pieces of timber laid from the front to the rear bolster, and securely bolted down; the bell was closely covered, and attracted little or no notice on the way. The carriage was drawn by eight horses, and attended by a proper staff of men, the survivor of whom is Mr. John Mears, a son of the founder, who is now living at Canterbury, and who has favoured me with these particulars of the journey. They stopped—"night or day as it fell out," the journey being divided into stages, and the foreman "having an eye to stable-room"—at the following places, namely, Hoddesdon, Buntingford, Caxton, Stilton, Bourn, and Sleaford, arriving at Lincoln on the following Monday, the 13th of April, when the bell was received by a procession consisting of the military, public schools, companies of ringers, and bands of music, and having been conducted to the Cathedral, was drawn by manual strength to the centre of the building, whence it was raised a few days afterwards to its new position in the Broad Tower.

The two new Quarter-bells did not travel to Lincoln with "Great Tom," but were sent—it is believed—by sea to Boston, and carried from thence to Lincoln. They were simply inscribed with the name of the founder:—

and were respectively 40 and 51 inches in diameter. They were hung in the same tower (the Central one) as "Great Tom." The hours were struck on Great Tom by a hammer, the head of which weighed 140 lbs., and although the new Quarter-bells had clappers, and were hung for ringing, they were only used for sounding the quarters—1-2 at a quarter past the hour, the same repeated at half-past, and so on.

These bells in the Central Tower remained as they were placed in 1835, until the year 1880, when the number of Quarter-bells was increased by the addition of the present 1st and 2nd, presented, as their inscriptions show, the one by Mr. Nathaniel Clayton, the senior member of the well-known firm of Messrs. Clayton and Shuttleworth, of the Stamp-end Works, and High Sheriff (1881) of the county; the other by Mrs. Seely, the wife of Mr. Charles Seely, Member of Parliament for the City of Lincoln, of which he is a native. When these new bells were hung, on Tuesday, the 17th of August, 1880, with the intention of using them, and the two old bells, for the well-known "Cambridge Quarters," it was found that the latter were not in sufficiently correct tune for the purpose, so they were removed and recast, as their present inscriptions show, at the cost of Mr. Nathaniel Clayton, and of his son-in-law, Mr. Alfred Shuttleworth. All being completed (including a new clock) they were formally opened at mid-day on Saturday, the 11th of December, 1880. After Matins had been sung in the choir, the Dean, accompanied by the Residentiary Canons, the Priest-Vicars, and other officials of the Cathedral, the donors of the new bells, and many friends, ascended to the clock chamber, which occupies the lower story of the Broad Tower. After the Dean had recited some prayers, and delivered an appropriate address, the clock and chimes were set going by Mr. Clayton, and for the first time, at a quarter-past twelve, the tones of the new bells floated melodiously over the city, and were eagerly caught by many a listening ear below.

The new clock of the Cathedral has a very respectable ancestry as to antiquity. In 1324 Thomas of Louth, Treasurer of Lincoln, gave to the church a horologium or clock, which was unanimously accepted by the Chapter.* The clock now superseded was made by Thwaites in 1775, and subsequently improved by Vulliamy, the best maker of large clocks at that time. The new clock has been constructed by Messrs. Potts and Sons, of Leeds, whose reputation as clockmakers is very high. The work was carefully superintended by Sir Edmund Beckett, Bart., the highest living authority on all horological matters. The total weight of the new clock is about four tons. The striking apparatus, under the more powerful hammer of which "Great Tom" gives out a far grander tone than he has ever done before, needs daily winding, which occupies about twenty minutes; the clock itself is wound up weekly, the process occupying about the same time. The clock bears the following inscription:—

Quod bene vortat Deus Optimus Maximus, Consiliis Edmundi Beckett Baronetti LL.D., Opera Gul. Potts et Filiorum, civium Leodiensium, sumptibus Decani et Capituli, novum in turri positum est Horologium A.D. MDCCCLXXX.

* Sir Charles Anderson's Guide, p. 94.

Although the Broad Tower was, as already shown, surveyed before hanging the great bell and the two Quarter-bells there in 1835, and was declared perfectly safe, it was soon feared that the ordinary tolling of so large a bell shook the tower sufficiently to do mischief to the fabric, so now, and for some time past, the bell has not even been chimed, but the clapper is swung by a man, and so caused to strike the side of the bell.

On the Great Festivals, and at the Assizes, when the Judge attends Divine Service, the Sermon-bell is sounded on "Great Tom."

On the death, and on the day of the funeral of any member of the Royal Family, the Bishop, Dean, or other member of the Cathedral Chapter, also for a citizen, when leave is obtained from the Dean and Canon in residence (fee two guineas), the bell is sounded by striking with a muffled hammer. This Passing-bell is sounded ordinarily for fifteen minutes with quarter-minute strokes, but for Royalty and the higher dignitaries—viz., Bishop, Dean, and Canons Residentiaries—it is sounded for half-an-hour, with half-minute strokes. At the close of the knell thrice three tolls are given for a male, thrice two for a female.

On Good Friday "Great Tom" is sounded a quarter of an hour for the Morning Service, and no other bells are used.

When and how the ring in this tower was formed cannot now be stated. No ancient Inventory of the Bells of Lincoln Cathedral has yet been discovered, and the Books of the Chapter Acts give no information at the dates when the several bells were cast. I incline to think that an increase in number took place in 1702, when four out of the present eight were cast. The then treble was probably of the same date. That bell being broken late in the last century, and the whole ring requiring rehanging, the bells here had not in consequence been rung for forty years, when, in 1834, the treble having been recast, and the whole ring rehung with new wheels, &c., a peal was rung on the eight bells on the Feast of the Annunciation (25th of March) in that year. It was then found that the tenor bell (which had been shortened at its mouth) was a little below F in its key, and weighed only 17 cwt. 0 qr. 7 lbs., which was 2 cwt. 0 qr. 25 lbs. less than the tenor of S. Peter-at-Arches, although S. Hugh's bells altogether exceeded those of S. Peter-at-Arches in weight by 6 cwt. 1 qr. 12 lbs., the former weighing 87 cwt. 1 qr. 7 lbs., and the latter 80 cwt. 3 qrs. 23 lbs.*

Of the two old bells the seventh has an inscription in fine large ribbon gothic letters, with ornamental capitals (of which specimen drawings are given as figs. 185 and 186 on Plate XXVII.), preceded by an elegantly formed initial cross of four fleurs-de-lys.

* From a memorandum in the handwriting of the late Mr. Betham, long Surveyor to the Dean and Chapter.

The tenor bell has the cross and first word, and each succeeding word, on a single stamp. It is of the same date, and bears the same founders' medallion stamp (fig. 105), as the four oldest of the Lady-bells, which formerly hung in the Central Tower.

Formerly (before the destruction of the Lady-bells) the 5th and 8th of this ring were the Quarters to old "Great Tom," and were sounded by wires from one tower to the other.

The Uses of S. Hugh's bells are as follows:—

On Sunday the 5th bell is rung for an Early Celebration of the Holy Communion at 8.30 a.m.

For Morning Prayer the whole are rung for fifteen minutes, then, after a short pause, they are rung again for seven minutes, followed by the ringing of the tenor alone—excepting on the Great Festivals, when Great Tom is sounded—as a Sermon-bell.

In the afternoon the 5th bell is rung for five minutes before three o'clock to announce a Sermon in the nave; after the conclusion of which sermon the whole of the bells are chimed, from 3.45 till 4 o'clock, for the choral Evensong in the choir, at which service there is no sermon.

Daily the 5th bell is rung at 6 a.m. from Lady Day to Michaelmas, and at 7 a.m. from Michaelmas to Lady Day for "Chapel Prayers," which, however, the Priest-Vicars do not now say. The day of the month is tolled at the end of the ringing. At 9 a.m. the 5th and 6th bells are rung; at 9.30, and again at 9.45, the same bells are again rung (excepting on Saints' Days, when the 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th are rung) for Matins. The same ringing occurs again in the afternoon at 3 o'clock and at 3.30 and 3.45 for Evensong. These ringings at 9 a.m. and at 3 p.m. are probably echoes of the Canonical Hours.

The 5th bell is rung daily at 8 o'clock in the evening, after which the day of the month is tolled.

On the evening of the funeral of the Bishop, Dean, or any Residentiary Canon, a dumb peal is rung.

Peals are rung on Christmas and Easter Eves and Days; on the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin (the Cathedral being dedicated to her); on the Queen's Accession, Birthday, and Coronation; in honour of the Bishop during the weeks of Ordination; and quarterly to welcome each of the Residentiary Canons at the commencement of their respective residences.

Formerly the bells were rung on the anniversaries of the Restoration and the Discovery of the Gunpowder Plot.

THE CATHEDRAL BELL-RINGERS.

A Society of Ringers was formed here on the 18th of October, 1612, with Robert Sandie, the Scrivener, as its first Master, "for ever hereafter for the Ringing of S. Hugh's Bells and Our Lady's Bells," for the encouragement of which Dean Parker and the Chapter granted, on the 20th of September, 1614, a yearly annuity of forty shillings.

"The Ordinances of the Society of Ringers of S. Hugh of Lincoln," dated 18th October, 1612, are preserved amongst the Muniments of the Cathedral. They are illuminated on five folios of vellum, and are accompanied, at the end, by a schedule of the ringers' names, illuminated in a similar manner. It is unnecessary to give a copy of the Ordinances in full but an abstract may be acceptable to those now interested in Ringers' Guilds and similar Societies for the encouragement of Ringing and of Ringers:—

28. Master not to commence a suit without consent of majority of the twelve associates.
29. Recitation of members' names, and their formal assent to Ordinances.

The List of Members which accompanies the Ordinances contains many names which are also found in a black letter list on the wall of the chamber below S. Hugh's Tower. The heading of that list is:—

*The names of the Companie of Ringers of our

Beneath this the wall is marked to represent ashlar work, and, as it were, on each stone, is the name and date of a Master, as follows:—

These last appear to be the names of the members of the Company in 1634.

There is also a circle ornamented with scroll work in yellow, green, and black, with the eight bells suspended on it properly graduated as to size. Within this are written in modern letters:—

The title "M<sup>r</sup>" being prefixed to some of the names is an indication that Ringing was practised at that time in Lincoln as a gentleman's recreation.

The following are also in this place surrounded by a plain border :—

ever, and have long been, four, so-called, "Patent-ringers," namely the two Vergers, the Bellows-blower and the Porter. They now hold no Patents but are appointed by the Dean and Chapter. There was some little difference in the year 1606 as to with whom the nomination rested, the sub-dean claiming jure officii, as he was keeping the greater residence at the time of the vacancy, and nominating a servant of his, named John Toms, whom he instantly required to be admitted. The matter was discussed and the Chapter agreed to accept his nomination.* Probably these four ringers were originally appointed for the four largest Lady-Bells whose ropes as we have seen (p. 518) came down to the piers of the great tower below, where the rings to which they were fixed still remain. These four "Patent-bell-ringers in company with every other member of the Cathedral body, down to the youngest chorister, assembled in the Chapter-House on the occasion of the third triennial Visitation of the Bishop of Lincoln, which commenced in the Cathedral on the 21st of October, 1879. Beginning with the inferior orders, and going through the entire body, each member was summoned to stand forward, and make any presentment that he might have to the Bishop, after which he was told to retire. This process was, I suppose, being "præconized" by the Chancellor of the Diocese.

The ancient church of S. Botolph was long in ruins.

There is a tradition that previous to 1723 there were no bells, and that the present Priest's Bell was lent to the church by Lord Monson of Burton Hall, where it had done duty as a Dinner Bell. The initials upon it may have favoured this idea. When the bells were put into good order in 1846 it was proposed to use this small bell for notices for Vestry meetings, but it was not used in any way ; indeed it had never been heard within living memory until the present Vicar had a clapper inserted, and now uses it as a Sacrament Bell.

A Book belonging to the Parish gives the weight and cost of a ring of 5 Bells cast for this church in 1723, by Richard Phelps, of London:—

Oct 13. 1723	The Peel of Bells weighed 23 cwt.

		<hr/>

The same Book gives the following account of the Bells in 1845:—

Feb: 3rd 1845

There is in this Tower a Peel of Five Bells and a Ting Tang of the dimensions hereunder written, viz. :—

	cwt. qr. lbs.	Diameter at the mouth.		Thick at Sound Bow.
		Ft.	In.	In.
Treble Bell of the Peal (cracked)	3 . 0 . 7	2	1	2 bare

Third (cracked) .....	4 . 0 . 14	2	3⅔	2⅔
Fourth .....		2	6⅜	2⅜
Tenor .....		2	9⅛	2¼
Ting Tang .....		1	4	1

This Peal was cast by Rich<sup>d</sup> Phelps of London 1723. The Treble Bell is hung in a raised frame upon & 3 ft. 4½ in. higher than the general frame. The 3rd Bell is out of & set upon the Frame, its brasses are gone.

The Bells being at that time much out of repair, the parishioners obtained from Messrs. C. and G. Mears of London, two estimates—one for recasting the two cracked bells, rehangng the whole ring, and making it complete for ringing; and the other for casting an entirely new ring. This last estimate amounted to (less £100 to be allowed for the old bells) £98 10s.; the former, which was the one selected, amounted to £57 8s. 4d.

A further entry in the same Parish Book gives the cost, &c., of the two new bells—the present 1st and 3rd—obtained under that estimate:—

On the 26th Sept. 1846 Two New Bells were put up in the Tower of the Church of S<sup>t</sup> Botolph Lincoln, in place of the Treble Bell & 3rd Bell, which were cracked.

This is a fine large bell very profusely ornamented. The inscription is in the same letters as several others of the same type (see p. 121) and between the words is a scroll work of renaissance character. In addition to the cross, rose, and shield, there is, all round the bell, under the inscription, an elegant border forming a kind of fringe similar to that found on bells of this date from the Nottingham foundry. Near to the date there are a fleur-de-lys and a winged beast (apparently a griffin) on a crest wreath.

This bell formerly hung at the church of S. Benedict in this city, to which church it is traditionally believed to have been given by the Barber Surgeons. When at S. Benedict's it used to be known by the name of "Old Kate," and was rung at 6 a.m. and at 7 p.m. all the year round. Old men say that (giving over work at seven in the evening) they used to listen for the welcome tones of "Old Kate." It was rung for many years by John Middlebrook, the parish clerk, who lived in a little lean-to tenement attached to the north side of the tower. On his death in December, 1804, his wife succeeded him as parish clerk (her name was Mary Middlebrook; she was buried, as the Parish Register shows, on the 7th November, 1822, being aged 72 years); and the story goes that the old lady consulted her convenience and her duty at once by bringing the bell-rope through the belfry door to her bedside, and pulled "Old Kate" whilst she lay in bed. Afterwards old men, then boys, used to sleep in the widow's tenement (she being past her work), and they did the same, pulling the bell between them, "kneeling on the bed," and then lying down to sleep again. For this the Corporation paid 6s. 8d. a year down to 1837.

There was a fancy that "Old Kate" took its name from the name of the aged sextoness; but, as just mentioned, the Parish Register shows her name was Mary. More probably a previous bell at S. Benedict's was dedicated (as many bells were) in honour of S. Katharine, and that when the bell was recast in 1585, and an inscription placed upon it more in accordance with the reformed faith, the old name clung to the new bell, and it continued to be known, as in times past, as "Old Kate."

The present church is a new one consecrated in 1873. The previous church had one bell inscribed:—

It was of a type common in Lincolnshire, but it bore these arms (which I have been unable to identify) on a shield:—checky, a fess vair, impaling a chevron between three swans.

This seventeenth century bell being cracked it was sold, Sir Charles Anderson of Lea being the purchaser. The new bell was the gift of the Vicar—the Rev. John Foy—who generously offered the parish a ring of bells, which offer was—as it is now thought—foolishly declined. The old proverb is sometimes true:—

“He who will not when he may,
When he wills he shall have nay.”

1 BELL.

Here is a small bell (20 inches in diameter) cast by Messrs. Taylor of Loughborough in the year 1875.

The S. Peter and S. Margaret Parish Magazine for June, 1875, gives the following paragraph:—

“Ever since the new church was built [in 1870] those who lived within sound of the bell have complained of its unpleasant tone. This grew worse and worse, until, at last, a crack appeared in the bell, and necessitated its removal. When taken down it was found to weigh 3 cwt. 14 lbs., and it bore the following inscription:—

+ *A*b : *M*arie : *G*rati : *P*lena : *D*omina : S : (sic.)

It was sent to Messrs. John Taylor and Co., bellfounders, Loughborough, to be recast, and was returned us with a very pleasant tone, and now weighs 3 cwt. 1 qr. 22 lbs. The whole expense of recasting, £14. 8s. 8d., has been generously defrayed by the Ven. Edward Trollope, Archdeacon of Stow. The old bell had done its work in three churches, having been brought to the former church of S. Peter-in-Eastgate from the church of S. Margaret-in-the-Close."

(Diam. 54 in.)

If the rather disjointed entries in the copies preserved of an ancient Record, now no longer extant, are understood, there were, in the fifteenth century, three bells hanging in the tower of this church then recently erected. During the first decade of the next century the spire or "Broach" was added, and the three bells were recast by a founder at Nottingham, whose name, unfortunately, is not preserved. These three bells are thus described in the Record to which reference has just been made:—

Memorandum the weight of the three bells in Louth.

The new spire approaching completion, the ring appears to have been augmented by the addition of three new bells: judging from the weights of the clappers these were a new treble, dedicated to the Blessed Trinity, the "5th bell," and a new tenor dedicated to S. James. These are all referred to in the following entries:—

The bells were hung, the spire finished, and the weathercock placed upon it, in the year 1515, upon which occasion the bells rang out a merry peal:—

Mem<sup>d</sup> y<sup>e</sup> 15 Sunday after Holy Trinity this year (1515) the weather cock was set upon the Broach of Holy Rood Eve after there being Will. Aylsby parish priest with many of his Brethren priests there present hallowing the s<sup>d</sup> Weathercock, & the Stone that it stands upon, & so conveyed upon the s<sup>d</sup> Broach. And then the s<sup>d</sup> priests singing Te Deum Laudamus with organs; and then the Kirk-wardens garred Ring all y<sup>e</sup> Bells, and caused all the people there being to have Bread and Ale. And all to the loving of God, our Lady, & All Saints.

A further memorandum records:—

And the Weathercock was set upon the Broach of holy Rood Even, and hallowed with many priests there present, and all the Ringing, and also much people there and all to the pleasure of God. Amen.*

Book itself, which contained an account of the "Edifices and Buildings of the Church and Steeple of Louth," from about the year 1500 to 1518, has long been missing [see Notitiæ Ludæ, p. 138], and it is evident that the copies or extracts preserved contain many clerical errors. The above account of the ancient bells is the result of a collation of the two sets of extracts just referred to, and, I believe, it conveys the facts.

To the ringers when Sir Edward Lake came to the Visitation .....	xs. vjd.*

The 5th bell was recast in 1616 when the weight was 19 cwt.

In 1640 the ringing chamber and clock were renewed: and about the same time a new frame for the bells was provided, for which Robert Parnell was to have £100.

The Great Bell which was recast in 1654, was, unfortunately, again cracked in December, 1722.†

According to a terrier taken on the 10th June, 1724, there were then six bells and a Saints' bell hanging in the steeple.‡

Two years later (in 1726) the whole ring was recast by Daniel Hedderly of Nottingham, and, most probably, at that time augmented to eight bells, the Saints' bell being sent to the foundry as a contribution to the extra metal required.

In the Churchwardens' Accounts now existing there is a credit for "Bell-money" (annually amounting to from £4. to £6.) in almost every year from 1758 to 1784 when it is entered for the last time. It would appear, that the wardens received the ringing fees, and paid the ringers their salaries out of the churchwardens' fund.

The Parish Vestry Books contain many entries relating to the bells. The following are abstracts of some of the Resolutions passed:—

1762. Dec. 10. That after Easter 1763 the Ringers shall not receive any salary for Ringing till Easter week annually.
1763. Feb. 15. That £11—be paid to Mr. John Sewell so soon as he shall put the church clock into sufficient and useful repair: and that he be allowed £1—per annum for keeping the same in repair for the space of eleven years to come.

1781. Aug. 28. That Bartholomew Howlett shall have a salary of £6 . 5 . 0 for one year, for which he shall take care of the church clock & chimes, & keep the same in proper order and condition.
1784. Oct 12. That it is absolutely necessary to have the Bells belonging to this church new hung, and the churchwardens are hereby impowered to seek out some proper person for the doing thereof.
1785. June 2. It is agreed between the churchwardens for the time being and John Caborn of Sutterton, Bell Hanger, that the said John Caborn shall rehang the Bells agreeable to an estimate this day delivered for the sum of £50 . 13 . 6; the whole to be completed for the above sum, the churchwardens first putting the frame whereon the Bells hang in proper and compleat condition to the good liking of the said John Caborn. The said John Caborn does not desire to be paid till the churchwardens and Parishioners are satisfied that his work is well done.
1788. March 27. That from this day Mr. Howlett's Salary for attending the chymes cease and be void.

In October, 1798, the Great Bell was cracked when the bells were being rung "to commemorate Admiral Nelson's glorious victory." It remained in that state until 1818: at which date the extracts from the Vestry Book are resumed:—

1818. Mar. 24. That the churchwardens employ some proper person to examine the Bell Frame and report upon the state of the Bells and the propriety of removing the ringing chamber floor, recasting the Great Bell, and rehangng the Peal of Bells, that such report be forthwith made and submitted to a meeting of the charge-bearers and that the Vicar and Churchwardens take care that the Bells be not rung out until the same be pronounced free from danger.

1818. April 3. The Report of Mess<sup>rs</sup> James Harrison, James Copeland, John Espin, John Jackson, & Thomas Bogg (as underwritten), having been read is highly approved and they are requested to accept the thanks of this meeting for the very able manner in which the same is drawn up, & the judicious measures thereby suggested for remedying the several defects, & making the improvements therein pointed out, which are to be carried into execution.

It was resolved that plans, &c., be at once made out by Mr. James Harrison, and an opinion expressed that the tenor bell should be at once recast by him.

As the report referred to gives a detailed account of the state of the bells, bell chamber, &c., at that time, it is here given in extenso :—

We the undersigned having examined the timber of the Bell-frames, the floor beams, and the supporters of the framing, do find them in an exceedingly decayed state. The sills whereon the supporters rest being in such a dilapidated condition that one half of them at least have lost their foundations, and the bond sills in the wall on which the beam ends ought to rest, together with the ends of those beams, are, on the west side, so far gone to decay that they appear to have scarcely any other support than what arises from the collateral pressure occasioned by being jammed between the walls of the steeple as the beams and frame have settled on losing their supports. One of the principal beams also is rotten quite through, and broken in such a manner that the strength of a man is sufficient to bring it down: in a word they are so bad as not easily to be imagined by any person who does not closely examine them.

It also appears that the bells want rehangng exceedingly: the gudgeons being worn very flat, and the brasses worn wide, they make a violent jolting when rung, certainly to the detriment of the frame and steeple. The principle, likewise, on which they have been hung, is far from the best, and has caused the bells to give a much greater swing, and, at the same time, has rendered them more unguidable in ringing, than if they had been hung in a more judicious manner.

It is likewise our opinion that to make the bells complete as a peal, and at the same time suitable for the clock to strike upon, the great bell must be recast, since the sound is not only weak, and somewhat dismal, but is also quite out of tune with the other bells.

As the bell-frame is now fixed entirely below the windows, which causes the sound of the bells to be thrown too much upwards, and consequently much of it to fly quite over the town, whereby the clock, at least the quarters, are heard better at a considerable distance than in the town itself; we therefore think it extremely proper that the bell-frames be raised higher in the steeple, so as to hang more near the centres of the windows from whence the sounds issue. This will not only make the clock be heard better, but will render the sounds more uniform when the bells are rung, by affording a much greater and more equal facility to the sound of each bell escaping through the windows.

Such an alteration would likewise admit of the present ringing chamber being taken away, as the bells, in such cases, would best be rung above the vaulted arch.

As to any advantage which the bells may have over the steeple by being hung higher, the difference will certainly be very trivial. The Bellhanger pledges his credit that the bellframe can be so contrived, and the bells hung so different, as to affect the steeple considerably less than is possible in their present manner of hanging, even though all things were in good order. Indeed it is not so much the swag of the bells (though this may be greatly reduced) as the injudiciousness of the framing, that has damaged the steeple.

Lastly, that the steeple may be restored to its primitive strength, it is recommended by us to place ties of oak timber close above the vaulted arch, to reach from side to side, with suitable anchors through the walls, which will hold them as effectually together, and consequently render them as strong, as if they had never been separated.

Louth, 3 April, 1818.

Jno. Jackson.

Jno. Espin.

The recommendations contained in this Report were carried out. The tenor bell was recast in the same year, and in the year 1820, Mr. James Harrison was further employed to rehang the whole ring, his estimate for which was £80.

Having put their bells into good order the parishioners very properly wished to have them well rung, so 1820. Sep. 22. It was resolved that an efficient body of Ringers be obtained from the parishioners, and that a proper person be employed to instruct them.

1829. Sept. 14. Amongst expences allowed:—Ringers including King's Birthday, Coronation-day and Winter Louth Fair Day £12 . 0 . 0.

The bells were again rehung and put into good order in 1872, and a chiming apparatus was at the same time put up: the cost of these improvements was met by public subscriptions chiefly collected by James Wood, Esq., of Louth, to whom I am much indebted for the extracts from the Vestry Books given above, and for much of the other information here given about the bells.

There is a tradition that a man lost his way on the Common to the north of Louth on the evening preceding Louth November Fair, and was enabled to make his way to the town by the sound of the bells then ringing. It is said that he left a sum of money for the ringers to ring on the anniversary of that evening, but if there was any endowment it has now disappeared. It is certain that for many years the bells were always rung on that evening, but whether in accordance with ancient custom, or because of the provision referred to, cannot now be said.

The Rev. Wolley Jolland (see tenor bell), a native of Louth, was inducted as Vicar in 1780. He was also Vicar of Tetney. He died at Louth on the 16th of August, 1831, and was buried at Yarborough.

See an account of him, and of the curious Hermitage he built at Louth, in the Gent. Mag. Vol. ci. Part 2 (1831), pp. 375-6.

The inscription on the 2nd bell is, so far as is known at present, unique: puerorum, the word used on other bells dedicated to the Holy Innocents would not have suited the verse, so the versifier hit upon the happy thought of pullorum—"The Holy Chicks."

MARKBY.

S. PETER.

1 BELL.

1. Blank.

(Diam. 20 in.)

The present small thatched church is probably a fragment of the Priory of Austin Canons which stood here. Indeed there is a tradition that the small bell now hanging was the Refectory bell of the Priory, and further that John Longlands, Bishop of Lincoln, at the time of the Dissolution, purloined one of the largest bells in the kingdom which then hung in the tower of Markby Priory, and removed it to Lincoln, where it became known as Great Tom.

It appears that there were three bells here in 1556: in a letter from Robert Goche, Receiver of the County of Lincoln, dated the 14th of May in that year, and addressed to the Commissioners for lead and bells, he says:—

I send you also the obligacōn w<sup>ch</sup> was taken of the parissoners of Markbie for thre belles delivered to them by warraunte from my L. Riche.*

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that “a handbell” which belonged to this church in Queen Mary’s time was still in their hands, but “wch thei have to break afore maii iij.”†

* Exch. Q. R. Church Goods, Linc. ⅔, P. R. Off.

The smaller of the present bells are particularly narrow in crown and waist. The 4th has had a crack in the sound-bow excised.

The old Clerk here tells the following story:—A traveller passing through Messingham on a Sunday, a long, long time ago, noticed three men sitting on a stile in the churchyard and saying “Come to Church Thompson! Come to Church Brown!” and so on. Surprised at this, the traveller asked them what it meant: and was told that having no bells this was how they called folks to church. The traveller remarking that it was a pity so fine a church should have no bells, asked the men if they could make three for the church, promising to pay for them himself. This they undertook to do. They were a tinker, a carpenter, and a shoemaker respectively. When next viator came round he found the three men ringing three bells, which said, “Ting, Tong, Pfuff”—being made respectively of tin, wood, and leather.

There is in the possession of the Vicar of Messingham a MS. Book headed Some Account of Messingham, drawn up by the desire of the Rev. Archdeacon Bayley, D.D., Vicar, by J. Mackinnon, M.A., Curate, 1825. In this book, writing of the church, the author says:—“It once possessed a spire, the only one in the neighbourhood . . . This, many years ago, owing to the dilapidated state of the tower, was, as also the tower, obliged to be taken down; the tower only was rebuilt. The three large bells which hung in the old tower were changed for five smaller ones, and these hung in the new tower.” The same writer gives an account of the rapid method adopted by the parishioners to bring down the spire:—“The parishioners one Sunday (thinking that the spire would fall when they might happen to be in church during Divine Service) assembled together, tied all the waggon ropes they could procure in the village to it, and with a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, brought it down. Amongst the number of hands who assisted on this occasion was an old woman upwards of eighty years of age, who died the next day.”

There is a tradition that some time after the removal of the spire the west side of the tower fell down in the time of barley harvest, but the bells stood firm in their frames, and being safely taken down were sent to Rotherham and "run down" into five. It will, however, be seen that the tenor bell was not cast at the time referred to—that is in 1785.

It is said that prior to the restoration of the church in 1818 there was a small bell in the porch called a "Tink-tank."

The Rev. Maurice Johnson, D.D. (5th bell), died 25th May, 1834 [?], aged 78; he was Vicar of Moulton for fifty-three years.

There is a tradition (without any foundation in fact) that the bells here came originally from Croyland Abbey.

The steeple being accidentally set on fire in 1785, the 3rd bell was destroyed or damaged, hence the present one dated in that year.

The present ring is in excellent tune and good order, but, owing to a bad arrangement for the ringers, ringing is well-nigh impossible.

The Rev. Dearing Jones (6th bell) of Christ College, B.A. 1740, M.A. 1744, was rector of this parish as early as 1753; he was also vicar of S. Andrew's, Cambridge. He died 12th November, 1803, in his 84th year; he was buried in the chancel. His tombstone is there, but not actually over his grave, it (the stone) being removed when the church was restored.

Charles Singleton, the benefactor to the bells (6th bell), was a land-owner here; he died 8th December, 1816, aged 79. His tombstone lies on the chancel floor, but was only placed there in 1876, when, at the restoration of the church, the site of his grave was reincluded within the walls of the church.

“It is a good bell of fine full tone, and can be heard two miles off. It hung for 150 years or more in the gabled belfry of the old church; and when this (the church) was rebuilt, in 1860, it was suspended in an open stone Campanile. In 1552 when the Inventory of Church Goods belonging to "Southe Ormsby in the parties of Lyndsay" was drawn up the following entries relating to the bells and their value were made:—

It' iij bells .....	xv li .
It' one lytel bell.....	xs.
It' ij handbells .....	ij s .*

The inscription on the 5th bell is illegible as taken both by rubbings and squeezes: it is given above as literally as possible, but is clearly wrong.

There is a tradition here that the two largest bells came from Calceby in 1757, when the church there was pulled down: it is more probable that the two bells from that place were then sent to the foundry, and are now represented by the present 1st and 2nd here cast in that year, and that the three ancient bells are those referred to in the Edwardian Inventory. In the ringing chamber is a small board with the names of the first five ringers thus:—

Samuel Webster
Richard Hobson
Francis Ealand
George Baston
Samuel Burges
The first set on the 5 bells

On the bell-frame is cut:—

This is a Belfry that is free
 For all that sivil be
 And if you please to ring
 Or chime it is a very pleasant thing
 Their is no music playd or sung
 Like Bells when their well rung
 Then ring your bell well if you can Silence is for every man.
 If here you swear or ring in hat,
 Sixpence you pay, beware of that;
 And if a bell you overthrow
 Two pence you pay before you go.

Until the year 1847 there were still four bells and a small Priest's bell, which latter hung outside the steeple, and was probably the Sanctus bell mentioned in the Edwardian Inventory just quoted.

On the stock of the 4th bell is:—

The Rev. W. B. Stonehouse, subsequently Archdeacon of Stow, was instituted as Vicar of Owston in January, 1821; he died 18th December, 1862, and was buried here.

His sister-in-law, Miss Frances Sandars, the donor of the 1st, 2nd, and 4th bells, died at Owston on the 27th December, 1868.

It is related of Archdeacon Stonehouse that he used to say to Miss Sandars, "I always pray for you, Fanny, when I hear those bells."

Both Archdeacon Stonehouse and Miss Sandars left considerable sums of money for the benefit of the church, organ, schools, poor, choir, ringers, &c., of this parish.

There was another bell here—a small one—which being cracked was taken down, recast, and given to the new district church of S. Bartholomew.

The Rev. Michael Mitchell, whose name is on the tenor bell, was Vicar of the parish: he died on 10th October, 1714, aged 76 years. The John Wimberlie and Beville Wimberlie on that bell were, I believe, father and son, descended from Wm. Wymberley, who was of South Witham early in the sixteenth century.*

The following leaflet was, some time ago, printed and circulated in the neighbourhood:—

The following various items for work done at the Church of Pinchbeck, and for other services, was recently discovered among the parochial records of that place, where it now remains. It appears that objections had been made to the Account, which, however, were overcome by the rhyming powers of the village carpenter, who ultimately obtained payment:—

The tower of this Church was completed in 1519 by Anthony Ellys, a merchant of the Staple of Calais, who, having made his fortune by honest industry and transmitted a portion of his gains to his wife in gold enclosed in a cask labelled "Calais sand," bought lands at Basingthorpe, and Swineshead, as well as at Great Ponton, where he built a house for himself close to the church, and then erected this fine tower (with the concurrence of his wife), as a thankoffering to God. After his death he was buried beneath an altar tomb in the north eastern corner of the chapel adjoining the chancel of this church.* The motto (carved by order of the founder) "Thynke and Thanke God of all," appears on the north and south faces of the tower, in which he would undoubtedly hang a ring of bells; of that ring we may safely infer the present 2nd and 3rd bells to have been a portion.

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "a litell bell," which belonged to this church in Queen Mary's time, had been "sold to Johnne Tounesend of haconbie tincker anno 1560" and was broken; that "two handbells" had been sold and broken in pieces; and that "a litle bell" yet remained.*

Prior to 1830 there were three bells only, which are described in a memorandum belonging to the Parish, dated 3rd July, 1822, thus:—

- Three Bells with their frames in Belfry of Tower.
- The 1st or least Bell being 3 feet in diameter with the Inscription Samuel Orr.
- The 2nd Bell 3 ft. 3 in.; Diam<sup>r</sup> with the Inscription Thomas Bacon in 1620.
- The 3rd Bell 3 ft. 6 in. Diameter with the Inscription Thomas Norris made me in 1672.

* Peacock's Ch. Fur. pp. 127, 129.

In 1830 those three bells were sent to the founder, and the present ring of five substituted. That was done by means of a legacy of £200 left for the purpose by Mr. Richard Casswell. Mr. Casswell was a native of Rippingale, but had removed to the adjoining parish of Morton, where he was in business as a maltster. He was an amateur musician and artist: he played the violin in the church choir when at Morton, and painted several pictures of sacred subjects on the walls of Rippingale and other neighbouring churches. He died at Morton in 1829, at the age of 82 years, and was buried at Rippingale on the 16th of August in that year.

In the Churchwardens' Account Book the following entries occur relative to the new bells and Mr. Casswell's legacy:—

When the spire fell in 1618 tradition affirms that the bells were cast over the churchyard wall into a contiguous brook.

The tenor is of the same date, and bears some of the same stamps as the tenor of the ring of eight at Lincoln Cathedral: the same circular stamp with the founders' names was also upon some of the Lady Bells formerly hanging there. This fine bell is unfortunately obliged to be recast, it being cracked.

The present bells were cast about thirty years ago. According to a note made by the late Vicar of the parish—the Rev. Felix Laurent—on 28th March, 1856,† an ancient bell formerly here bore the inscription:—

Sancta Maria Ora Pro Nobis Philippus Gray M mere fecit.

Here are evidently some errors: perhaps the M is a mistake and the inscription "me refecit," or, more probably, the true reading was "me fieri fecit."

The above two bells still hang in the tower of the ancient church, which stands in the parish churchyard, and serves as a cemetery chapel. There was a small Priest's bell which is removed to the new parish church, consecrated on 31st July, 1878.

These two inscriptions are both quite peculiar in character. The 1st has the well known rose and shield so often found together (p. 114) but the cross and letters are quite different from what are usually associated with them. The letters are foliated in a somewhat coarse fashion, as is also the cross. The 2nd has no initial cross but in its place a trade mark which I have not met with elsewhere. The letters are good bold plain gothic capitals. The legend [ which is also upon a bell at Breaston, Derbyshire, probably cast by John of Stafford ] is nearly the same as that surrounding the seal of St. Mary's Abbey, at York: Virgo pudica, &c. [ J. T. F. ]

There is a tradition, unsupported by any evidence, that the bells here were taken from some neighbouring church.

The second bell was cracked by a too enthusiastic farm servant, who, on the occasion of his master's marriage, thought to help the ringing by using a blacksmith's hammer on the bells.

for Gervase Woodend was churchwarden here in 1788, and the name of Godhelp is found in the Parish Register.

The initials D.H. are those of Daniel Hedderly the founder.

For a local rhyme about these bells see under Stow.

The Rev. George Jepson was probably a non-resident vicar: he signed the Register occasionally between 1777 and 1785: he probably held the living until 1789, when the Rev. Thomas Rees signs, and continues to do so for some time.

school in the year 1853; it has no inscription, and is 12 inches in diameter.

There is an ancient Account Book belonging to the parish, but the entries relating to the bells are very meagre :—

1591. Itm̄ to Rob <sup>t</sup> Chapman Thomas Downing for a bell spoke .....	xxd.
Itm̄ to John Richardson for a peece of wood toward the bell yoke.....	viijd.
Itm̄ for bell Irons .....	vjs. viijd.

A small headstone in the churchyard here has the following—now mostly illegible :—

Alas poor John
 Is dead and gone
 Who often toll'd the Bell
 And with a spade
 Dug many a grave
 And said Amen full well.
 1739.

In Scothorn Parish Register, under the year 1739, is the following entry and note, doubtless referring to “poor John” :—

John Blackburn was buried Jan<sup>y</sup> 9th 1739-40. He had serv'd the office of Parish Clerk near 50 years & had been a decent & faithful servant to nine preceeding Vicars at this Parish Church. In Gratitude to the Memory of him this short account is given by the present Vicar.

In 1553 there were "ij great belles j sanc<sup>ts</sup> bell."*

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "one handbell," which belonged to the church in Queen Mary's time, "was taken out of or church three yeare agoo . . . by whome wee know not."†

The ring was subsequently increased to three bells.

From the following entry in the Parish Register we learn that one of the bells was recast in 1673:—

Memorandum that the second Bell was new cast by one Richard Sanders of Brig May the third 1673, and was hung up in the steeple of Scotter on Saturday June 8th 1673.

\* Exch. Q. R. Church Goods, Linc.  $\frac{2}{53}$ , P. R. Off. † Peacock's Ch. Fur. p. 133.

A few years later another bell being damaged, it was determined to cast the three old bells into four new ones. The Parish Register has the following entry :—

Memorandum

That June the 21st 1692 the great Bell was by W<sup>m</sup> Markham carelessly Riven by violently striking her with a great Hammer on y<sup>e</sup> wedding day of W<sup>m</sup> Parr and Sarah Moody, the tongue of the sayd Bell being then defective & sent by Joseph Webster y<sup>e</sup> churchwarden to Gainsburrrough.

And the Churchwardens' Book gives the following particulars entered subsequently (between the years 1705 and 1706) :—

Memorandum

That at Lady day 1693 Scotter 3 old Bells were cast into 4 new Bells and weigh as follows :—

Old Bells weighed

The tenor bell was recast again in 1832 as the Vestry Book tells, and as the inscription on the bell itself testifies. The Churchwardens' Accounts charge:—

1832. Nov. Carrying Old Bell to Barton.....	£1 . 1 . 0
Fetching New Bell from Barton .....	1 . 1 . 0
Bell-ropes .....	1 . 5 . 0
Gave to Ringers .....	0 . 5 . 0

In 1880 the bells were rehung in a new frame (not recast as stated in the church books) by Messrs. Taylor at the cost of £102 12s.*

The first letters of the inscriptions on the 1st and 2nd bells are of the kind engraved on p. 123, figs. 149, and 150, the other letters are smaller gothic.

The following lines are painted, in red and black letters, on the south wall of the Tower over the belfry door:—

Yow ringers All

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "one handbell," belonging to the church in Queen Mary's time, had been broken in pieces.†

The only ancient bell remaining—the 2nd—is of a very common type, especially in the south of England. The capital letters are crowned.

There is a tradition that the treble bell was cracked on the occasion of a three days' ringing in honour of the only visit ever paid to the parish by Sir John Frederick, a former Lord of the Manor. He was on his way from his house at Burwood Park, Surrey, to take the command of the 3rd Surrey Regiment of Militia, then quartered at Hull, during the Peninsular War.

In 1553 "Scrylbye," in Gartree Wapentake, possessed "ij bellis in the steple and a sanct' bell,"* which are now represented by, probably, the smallest church bell in the county, which is thus amusingly referred to by the Rector, who, I hope, will forgive me for quoting his description:—

"'Story? God bless you! I have none to tell, Sir!' about the Bells of Scrivelsby. We have only one, and that one something bigger than a sheep bell—not quite so good as the dinner bell of one's house. This one bell does duty for everything. It rings us into church; it tolls us to our grave; and it attempts to make a lively sound to cheer us at our matrimonial ventures . . . It is about as unpretending a bell as any in the county, and if it could smile it doubtless would do so now to think of any one caring to know anything about it."

When the ancient church here was allowed to go to ruin, and the chancel was bricked up at the west end so as to be available for Divine Service, the then bells were fixed in a frame in the churchyard.

Prior to the year 1865 there were only three bells: the present 4th (the gift—in the year 1856—of the late Rev. Wm. Wright, who was born in the adjoining parish of Somerby) was then the 2nd. The present ring was completed in 1865, by the gift to the church of the 1st and 3rd by the present Vicar—the Rev. T. J. M. Townsend—who is a great lover of bells and bellringing.

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that the "handbels and sacryng bels," belonging to this church in Queen Mary's time, had gone "we know not how."†

The Parish Register for 1659 has an entry of the burial of T. Symond, "belman."

1699. Given to the Ringers on 5 th Nov' .....	0 . 10 . 0

Prior to 1770 there were five bells only. At a Vestry meeting held on the 15th February in that year, it was resolved that all the five bells should be recast by Henry Harrison of Barrow: accordingly, on the same day, the following agreement was drawn up:—

MEMORANDUM. A contract made the 15th day of Feb. A.D. 1770 between Henry Harrison of Barrow in the county of Lincoln Bell-founder on the one part, and Thomas Gilbert Churchwarden of Sibsey in the county aforesaid on the other. The aforesaid Henry Harrison on his part has covenanted and agreed to recast the Bells and to give them a full true and tunable sound at the rate of 24s. per cwt. and also that he shall provide new wheels, irons, brasses, and all other necessary materials (except the great frame) for the sum of £28—and that he will take them at Hull and deliver them again when recast, and that he will completely hang the same at his own proper charge. And provided the said Bells return heavier when recast than before, for every pound heavier the parish is to pay to the said Henry Harrison after the rate of £6 per cwt., to the weight of two hundred; but if they shall exceed two hundred, for every pound so exceeding the parish shall pay after the rate of £3 per cwt. But if the said Bells shall prove deficient of their old weight, for every lb. wanting he the said Henry Harrison shall pay to the parish aforesaid nine pence for every such lb. wanting, to the weight of two hundred, but if they be deficient above two hundreds, for every lb. so deficient he shall pay eighteenpence.

And that the said Henry Harrison shall deliver the Bells aforesaid within 3 months after their arrival there; and likewise that the said Henry Harrison shall make good all damages that the said Bells may sustain for the space of a year and a day after they are completely hung.

Also Thomas Gilbert on the other part doth agree for himself and for his successors the churchwardens of Sibsey aforesaid, in behalf of the parish, that he or they shall pay or cause to be paid at 3 payments, namely one half of the sum upon completion of hanging the bells, the other half at two equal payments, one payment at the expiration of one year, and the other at the expiration of two years.

It was further agreed that the churchwardens aforesaid shall deliver the Bells at Hull and bring them back again from thence at the expense of the parish.

In witness thereof we have hereunto set our hands the day and year before written.

Henry Harrison.

Witnessed by Thomas Gilbert.

Richard Plant Jr.

From an entry, made on the 24th September, 1770, we learn that the contract was concluded: the bells were completed and hung by Henry Harrison, and the following record of their weights entered in the Vestry Book:—

1st weighed	6	cwt.	0	qr.	13	lbs.
2nd	„	3	„	3	„	14 „
3rd	„	7	„	2	„	10 „
4	„	8	„	2	„	20 „
5	„	10	„	2	„	16½ „

On the 5th September in the following year (1771) we find a resolution “that our Churchwarden Mr. Henry Baxter should agree with proper workmen to make us a set of new Bellframes of the Heart of Oak.” This is curious as being only a year after the new bells had been hung.

The ring was increased by “a new Treble Bell to complete the number of six” in accordance with a resolution of the majority—for the vote was not unanimous—of a Vestry held on the 8th April, 1773.

At that time there was much change ringing here, as is testified by a peal board still remaining, dated 10th March, 1776.

On 24th February, 1814, a Vestry Meeting was summoned “to consult about augmenting the number of Church Bells,” and it was agreed that a new treble bell and a new tenor bell should be procured to complete a ring of eight; and that Mr. James Harrison should be employed to cast and hang them. These bells, which arrived in 1816, cost with the rehanging of the whole ring, about £300, which was raised by private subscription amongst the ringers and their friends. These were so enthusiastic that the idea was entertained of having two more bells to make a grand ring of ten, but the death of Mr. Miller, an influential ringer, caused it to be given up. The Sibsey people are still great ringers: no less than seven members of one family—the Messrs. Mawer—are amongst the best; Mr. Mawer, Sen., has been (1879) ringing for nearly sixty years, and Mr. Clapham, now at the age of eighty-four, for even a longer period.*

There is a tradition amongst the inhabitants of Stickford that the

* I am much indebted to the Rev. F. Bezant, the Vicar of Sibsey, for the above extracts.

Sibsey people have their bells; that once upon a time the Stickford bells were sent away for repair, dropped carelessly in the water or dyke by the way side and lost; that some time afterwards they were discovered, taken up out of the mud, and hung in Sibsey church tower. There is no evidence whatever in support of such an act of dishonesty.

The bells are so difficult of access that I am unable to give the initial crosses on the 2nd and 3rd.

Owing to an unfortunate dispute, the details relating to which need not be detailed or commented on here, the ancient tower of this church was demolished a few years ago, and the bells stowed away in a barn, and in danger, (it was feared,) of being lost to the parish. "To this loss, however, the Rev. Charles A. Wilkinson (the then Vicar) could not conscientiously consent, and noble efforts were immediately made by him to secure the re-erection of the tower, and rehangng of the bells, in which he would certainly have succeeded by the aid of numerous sympathizing friends in the diocese, and beyond it, when, through the interposition of a mutual friend, all further action on his part was rendered unnecessary by a guarantee from that friend for the erection of the tower without any extraneous aid."*

* Report of Lincoln Diocesan Arch. Soc. for 1875.

The bells are so awkwardly fixed in this new tower that their inscriptions can with great difficulty be approached. Those as given above are the best readings that can be obtained.

The first bell was probably intended for a Priest's bell: there is a still smaller bell—only about 4 inches in diameter—fixed with the others by the late Vicar, and used by him, chiefly, to attract the notice of the sexton when the time for service had arrived.

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "one sacring bell," which belonged to this church in Queen Mary's time, had been broken and defaced.*

"Two other bells formerly hung in the tower. The tradition respecting the loss of one of them is altogether legendary; the account given of the fate of the other is probably correct; viz.: that being cracked it was taken down by the churchwardens and sold, and the produce of it expended at a convivial meeting."†

That was bad, but worse was said of Dunkeld:—

The previous 1st and 2nd bells, recast in 1877, are said not to have

Scott made a curious mistake as to the inscription on this bell in his Report on the state of this church. He wrote: "The inscription upon the tenor bell is interesting, and seems to show that this belonged to one of the churches of Mumby: it is as follows:—Sum rosa pulsata Mumbi caterina vocata."

The churchwardens and parishioners of Skidbrook having, in 1552, sold two of their church bells, were a few years afterwards (in the reign of Philip and Mary) called upon to replace them. This led to the presentation of a Petition to the King and Queen and the Council by Henry Day and Christopher Scupholme, parishioners of "Skydbroke cum Saltflethaven," in the county of Lincoln, for themselves, and in the name of the inhabitants and parishioners. In which Petition they set forth that they (moved by universal talk, and by persons openly preaching against bells and "other lawdable cerimonies" of the church, affirming them to be superstitious and abominable), by common consent, about the 20th of May, 6 Edward VI., sold two bells then in the parish church for £20; which amount, with other money thereto added, they employed in repairing the church of Skidbrook, then sore decayed, and also in scouring and making "of one haven called Saltflethaven then also beinge sore decayed ruinous and in effect warpt upe so w<sup>t</sup> sande that the ffreishe waiteres was not able to have the full course to the See, ne shippes or bootes have eny passage into and ffröme the said haven whiche is nowe Right well amended." The Petitioners go on to say that "the said orators" were then called by Privy Seal that present term before William Barneres, Thomas Myldway, and John Wyseman, Esqrs., their Majesties' Commissioners, to pay the said £20 received for the bells—which were sold by consent of the whole of the parishioners—and also that the orators and the rest of the parishioners were compelled by the Bishop's injunctions to buy back the same bells or others as good at their own costs, they therefore prayed to be discharged from that payment, or else they would be driven to forsake the parish, for they were poor, and not able to bear the said charges.

The prayer of this Petition was granted, for there is an Order of Council, addressed to the three Commissioners, for the discharge of the parishioners without troubling them any further in the matter of the two bells, upon proof shown of the truth of their statements.*

Saltfleet Church was, centuries ago, washed away by the sea. There is an improbable story to the effect that some of its bells have been found at low water mark. This may be an exaggeration of another story that about sixty years ago a fisherman drew up a large bell-clapper in the meshes of his net.

1. GOD SAVE OVR KIINGE 1638.
(Diam. 18 in.)

This small bell, which is placed at the extreme top of the western gable, and was only to be reached by long ladders, has a rather curious tradition attaching to it. It is said to have been given by King Charles the First to the Town Hall at Derby.

Unfortunately the Derby Town Records were destroyed when the Town Hall there was consumed by fire in 1841, so there is no documentary proof of the truth of the tradition, which may have originated only from the loyal inscription found on the bell. However that may be it is well known that the builders of the new hall contracted to have all the old material. Hence the bell fell into their hands, and was sold by them to the builders of Skirbeck Church, which church was consecrated in the year 1848.

There were also chimes, connected with the works of the clock, which played at four, nine, and twelve o'clock every day.†

The Parish Book, which contains several agreements as to the repairs of the chimes in 1728, 1746, &c., records that it was agreed at a meeting held on the 10th March, 1796, "certain proposals be taken into consideration on Thursday next respecting the repairs to be done to the Bells." On the day indicated—that is 24th March, 1796—the Vestry agreed that the present 6 bells being part burst and untuneable be recast and made into eight of the present weight, and that the churchwardens do procure a faculty for the same . . . and also that Mr. Osborn be agreed with to recast the bells . . .

Again at a Vestry held a few days later—6 April, 1796

It was agreed that the present bells be recast into eight and that the tenor be cast in the Key of E according to proposals delivered on this day by Thomas Osborn of Downham in Norfolk and that the churchwardens do contract with the said T. Osborn.*

The Registers contain several notices of the ringing of the Passing bell for different members of the Royal Family: e.g. Prince of Wales, four hours in 1751: George II., twelve hours in 1760: Funeral of Princess Charlotte of Wales in 1817; death of Queen Charlotte one hour in 1818; death of George III., from one o'clock in the day till one o'clock in the night on 30th January, 1820; death of Queen Caroline one hour, on 8th August, 1821.†

The small bell known as the Butter bell had been long forgotten until the bells were examined for this work: respecting it see p. 250. Also as to Fire bell see p. 247.

Mr. Waterson (see 5th bell) was instituted as Vicar in 1781, and in 1791 resigned in order to be appointed Rector of Quarrington, after which, and in the same year, he seems to have been reappointed to the Vicarage of Sleaford, in which living he was succeeded by Dr. Yerburch in 1809. He resigned Quarrington in 1797.

The P on the 1st bell stands for Pro, which word is found in full in the same inscription at Somersby.

Sir Thomas Cumberworth, the donor of 1st and 3rd bells, was the son and heir of Robert de Cumberworth of Somerby and Stayne-in-the-Marsh. He served as High Sheriff in 1415 and 1431, and represented his county in the Parliaments of 1420, 1421, and 1424. These bells were probably intended for the Chapel of the Holy Trinity in this church, which chapel the same Sir Thomas Cumberworth provided with a rich supply of furniture, the Inventory of which is printed in Mr. Peacock's English Church Furniture (pp. 181—185.) The chapel is there called "the Trinitie Chappell in Som'by Kirk," and the things are given "to the Worship of the holy Trinitie, of o' Ladie Virgine and Mother Saint Marie all the holy Saintes of Heaven for my saule and my wife Dame Katherine and for all Christiane saules and speciallie for those saules that god wald most specialie I did for the yere of o' Lord 1440."

The bells were given in 1431. Sir Thomas Cumberworth's Will, (for which I am indebted to Mr. Peacock's Book just referred to) dated 1450, is sufficiently curious to warrant its production here:—

In the name of Gode, and to his loveyng. Amen. I Thomas Cumbyrworth, knyght, the xv day of Feberyer, the yere of our lorde M<sup>c</sup>CC<sup>c</sup>CC<sup>c</sup>L in clere mynde and hele of body blyssyd be Gode, ordan my last wyll on this wise folowyng :—Furst, I gyff

The 2nd and 3rd bells are unhung, and, sad to say, were covered with coal and other things when rubbings of the inscriptions were kindly taken for me by the Rector.

These are most interesting mediæval bells, exceedingly rich in tone. The cross and letters on the 1st are quite plain, the former too much worn to engrave. The 2nd and 3rd are noble early dated bells. The letters are beautifully ornamented gothic capitals, some of which are found upon other bells in the county (see p. 79). They contain human and grotesque figures, natural representations of leaves, &c. The cross, too, is very elegant, being composed of crumpled foliage such as is used in Decorated work. The fleurs-de-lys used as stops are very good, whilst the additional stop used on the 2nd bell is well worthy of remark. They both have the kind of mason's or merchant's mark (fig. 78), which is also found on the corresponding bells at Somerby. These bells are probably coeval with the tower. The two names on the 2nd bell are probably those of church officials, or benefactors to the bells: Moi'gne Moyne, or Mone, is an old Lincolnshire name. [See under Wigtoft (Churchwardens' Accounts in A.D. 1531).]

Tradition says there were formerly three bells here which were lost to the church when the tower was destroyed—which is probably true—and that one of them now hangs at Benniworth—which is probably not true. The present single bell is, writes the Rector, “a miserable little modern affair adapted for a town crier or a muffin hawker.”

The bells here are mentioned early in the fourteenth century, when a quarrel existed between the inhabitants and the prior and convent, the latter complaining of the annoyance caused to them by the ringing by the former of the bells of their parish church at unreasonable hours. The Prior and Convent appealed to the King, and the inhabitants to the Pope.

The dispute lasted for several years, and was eventually referred to "the R<sup>t</sup> Rev<sup>d</sup> Father in Christ our Lord, the Lord Henry de Beaufort the Bishop of Lincoln," who cited both parties to appear before him at Buckden, and took upon him the determination of the controversy on the 28th June, 1401.*

In the Rev. Maurice Johnson's MS. History of Spalding are bound up three folio leaves containing entries apparently copied from the original accounts of the churchwardens of the parish: the following refer to the bells:—

for his yer' stypent .....	viijs. iiij <sup>d</sup> .
Itē p <sup>d</sup> for ryngyng when the Tempest was .....	iiij <sup>d</sup> .

Prior to 1801 there were five bells only. On the 10th August in that year, as recorded in the Vestry Book,

A Vestry meeting was held to consider the propriety of having a new treble bell and the tenor Bell recast. Churchwardens to write to M<sup>r</sup> Osborne, Bell Founder of Downham, inviting him to come to ascertain the full tone or note of the said Bells, and finally to agree for the above order.

Maurice Johnson
(and ten others).

The Rev. H. T. Ellacombe's chiming apparatus is attached to the bells.

* Vide Antiquities of Spalding, by T. Cammack, and Minutes of the Spalding Gentlemen's Society, Vol. iv. p. 120.

The 1st bell is called the Call Bell, rung just before the commencement of Service.

The 2nd is called the Pancake Bell, rung on Shrove Tuesday.

The 3rd is called the Curfew Bell, and is so used.

The 4th is called the Sacrament Bell, rung before the commencement of the Communion Office.

The 5th is called the Wedding Bell, used to summon the Priest to a wedding.

The 6th is called the Dead Bell, used as the Passing and Funeral Bell.

The Rev. Maurice Johnson, D.D. (see tenor bell) was Incumbent from 1782 to 1825, when he resigned. He died 25th May, 1834, aged 78 years.

In the early part of this century the widow of the sexton, continuing his duties, used to ring the six o'clock morning bell. She was also a washerwoman. Being engaged in the latter occupation at a clergyman's house with other women, she left the tub to ring the bell. One of her companions putting a white sheet around her, followed her, and in the dark stood on the bench in the south porch, and on the old woman coming out of the church, and while she was locking the door, set up a dreadful moan, thinking to frighten the old lady, but she quickly drew the huge key from the lock, and rushed at the figure with the exclamation, "Be ye 'live or dead here's a go at yer," and nearly slew the would-be ghost.

Here are peal boards dated 1804 and 1870. A Society of change ringers has been recently formed. The bells are in excellent condition.*

This ring of bells, from the foundry of Messrs. T. C. Lewis and Co., of Shepherd's Lane, Brixton, is, as the inscription on the 3rd tells us, the gift of the munificent foundress of the church, Miss Charlotte Charinton. The first stone of the church was laid on the 18th of November, 1877. Miss Charinton has not only given the site, built the church, and endowed it with £350. a year, but has also erected a vicarage house and schools.

The arms on the 2nd bell are Argent an engrailed chevron Sable between three moor-cocks proper (Moore); impaling Gules on a bend Or, three leopard's faces vert (Stephenson of Swineshead).

Those on the 4th bell are Gules two Lions passant guardant Or; on a chief Azure the Holy Virgin and child sitting crowned and bearing a sceptre of the second (see of Lincoln): impaling Argent 3 bells azure 2 and 1. (Wordsworth).

The 5th bell has a representation of a sword, the emblem of S. Paul the patron saint of the church, before the inscription.

The bells are in very substantial cast iron cradles.

The stops on the ancient bell are unusual. UOS is a mistake for VOX.

"In the chancel are suspended a maiden's funeral wreath and gloves cut out of white paper, such as are yet not uncommonly displayed in some parts of England, but very rarely in Lincolnshire. Harrod says that in 1785 the inscription on the 3rd bell was Dic beatus ante obitum nemo.

In the will of William Bruges, dated 26th February, 1449, is a bequest to this church:—

Item I bequethe to the said chirch a little handbell of sylver, of the gretnesse of a sacryng bell.

The Rev. Richard Arthur Knowles (see 2nd bell) was presented to the living by the Earl of Exeter in 1755: he was succeeded by the Rev. Samuel Hunt (see 3rd bell).

The 1st and 4th bells are amongst the few in Lincolnshire from the Leicester founder, and have the inscriptions in the ornate letters figs. 101 (see p. 92). The 2nd bell was previously dated 1561, and there was formerly a Priest's bell inscribed :—

CVM VOCO VENITE 1605.

Peck, referring to an old parish book, in which the fourth and middle bells were often mentioned, concludes that there were once five bells belonging to this church.*

* The three entries here quoted refer to the three visits of Charles I. as King to Stamford. The Records of the Municipality contain divers orders as to the procedure to be observed. They also show that the ringers frequently received gratuities from noblemen and gentlemen for ringing on the occasion of their being made "free of this Corporacon."

† David Cecil succeeded his uncle William (the second Earl) as Earl of Exeter in 1640: he died 18th April, 1643, at Exeter House, in the Strand, London, and was buried in the family vault in S. Martin's, Stamford Baron, so there is no doubt this payment was for ringing at his funeral.

This Book ends in the year 1676, but there are no further entries of interest relating to the Bells.

The marriage of Richard Snowdon, the parson in 1561, (see 1st bell,) is thus entered in the Parish Register:—

1602 (3). Theseaventeenth daye of Januaryie, being Sunday, Richard Snowsden, Clerk, & Margaret Cunyngton Spinster wear married.

He shortly afterwards died of the plague, which was then raging with great virulence in Stamford. The Parish Register records his burial:—

1604. Richard Snowden, Clarke, buried June iij.

By his will, dated 20th May, and proved 27th December, 1604, he gave his lands, messuage, houses, and tenements, after the decease of his wife, for the benefit of seven poor widows of Stamford of three score years of age. An Hospital bearing his name is now in existence in Scotgate, Stamford, which has been augmented by other benefactors since his decease.

1622. Robert Meadows gent. buried Aug. 1.

The Municipal Records have many entries relating to Toby Loveday [see 4th bell], not altogether to his credit. The Parish Register records in the list of burials:—

1625. Toby Loveday gent. August 12.*

Prior to 1802 there were only six bells: the two bells added in that year were hung on the 3rd of June.

The present 3rd probably preserves the inscription on an older bell. The 4th and 6th were previously inscribed :—

4. Non verbo sed voce resonabo Domini laudem.
6. Celorum Christe placeat tibi Rex sonus iste.

The inscription on the 7th has been oddly blundered by some of the local historians.

There was a Priest's bell here inscribed :—

SANCTA MARIA,

which was evidently the ancient Sanctus bell recast (with the ancient inscription) by Norris in the seventeenth century. Having been removed from its place, and handed down from one churchwarden to another, it was, in 1854, repaired at the expense of the parish, and presented to the Cemetery Chapel, where it now hangs. This is shown by the following extract from the Vestry Book of the church :—

Thursday 5 Oct<sup>r</sup> 1854.

Resolved: That a Bell of the weight of about 48 lbs. inscribed " Sancta Maria " which has not been in use for many years and is not likely to be again required for the use of the church be presented to the Stamford Burial Board for the purpose of being placed in the Tower of the new Cemetery.

This is considered the mother church of the town and one of its bells has been for many years the " Common Bell " of the Municipality,

1683. Mar. 27. Agreed upon y<sup>t</sup> the chamberlaine for y<sup>e</sup> time being shall pay y<sup>e</sup> sume of twenty shillings yearly out of y<sup>e</sup> towne stocke towards y<sup>e</sup> chymes in S<sup>t</sup> Mary's Church in Stamford.
1728. Aug. 29. Ordered that the chamberlain of the Corporation do pay . . . the sume of Ten pounds towards the charges of new casting the second bell [ present 4th ] in the church of the said Parish of S<sup>t</sup> Mary.

In 1741 the Corporation paid £13 11s., to Boniface Bywater for repairing the chimes, and in 1770 agreed to pay Joseph Eayre £40. for new chimes he "to take to his own use the old chime materials."

Again, in 1801, it was ordered that Edward Arnold of Leicester be employed to repair the chimes "to the good liking & approbation of the Mayor (R<sup>t</sup> West Esq.) & Mr. Alderman Tatam." Twenty years later (in 1821) the chimes were again out of order, but "this hall considering them of utility to the public" it was ordered "that the chamberlain be authorized to pay the expense of repairing them, & that in future the chimes be repaired & regulated at the expense of this Corporation." This generous resolution was rescinded in the days of "Reform," for, in answer to a petition from the churchwardens requesting the Corporation to clean and repair the chimes, it was resolved at a Hall held 29th Aug. 1833, "that no part of the funds of this Corporation be applied for such purpose."

The Corporation now again pays expenses connected with the clock and chimes, they are compounded for by a payment of £10 a year, the clock keeper to make all repairs at his own expense. The chimes play at 3, 6, 9, and 12 o'clock day and night: the following are the tunes, as inscribed on a brass plate on the frame:—

108 Psalm.	Lodging on the ground.
General Toast.	God save the King.
Tight Little Island.	Highland Laddie.
Gramnocree Molly.	145 Psalm.

The gift of the Hon<sup>able</sup> Charls Cecil & the Hon<sup>able</sup> Charls Bertie members of Parliament for y<sup>e</sup> Corporation performed by Boniface Bywater Stamford Jany. y<sup>e</sup> 20. 1709.

The Account Books of the chamberlains of the Corporation supply a few entries relating to the Bells such as :—

P<sup>d</sup> Richard Lane for drink for the Ringers on the surrender of Ghent ..... 00 . 06 . 00

1710. [ Ringing on taking "Mono," anniversary of "the defence of Gibraltar," St. George's day, "on forcing y<sup>e</sup> ffrench lines," taking of Douay.]
1712. To the Ringers on surrender of Dundirke ..... 00 . 07 . 06
(Ringing on Queen's birthday, Coronation day, 8 March [i.e. Accession day,] 29 May.)
1714. P<sup>d</sup> Bryan Harrison for Ringers on King's proclamation day ..... 00 . 06 . 00
P<sup>d</sup> Widow Moats to the Ringers when y<sup>e</sup> King landed ..... 00 . 09 . 00
1728. To Matthew Newark Churchwarden of St. Mary's pish towards the new casting the 2nd [present 4th] bell in St. Mary's Church according to an order or the Hall ..... 10 . 00 . 00

1736.	To Edw <sup>d</sup> Lyon for mending the Corporation Bell in St. Mary's Church .....	00 . 06 . 00
	[ Many payments in different years to Ringers, Chimes, and repairs connected with the bells. ]
1771.	To Joseph Eayre Bellfounder for the new chimes at St. Mary's by order of the Hall .....	40 . 00 . 00
	[ 4 and 8 o'clock bell mentioned in several years.]
1789.	Edw. Arnold Bellfounder for hanging the Corpora- tion bell .....	6 . 6 . 0
1820.	P <sup>d</sup> the Ringers on the occasion of the King's accession to the Throne .....	10
	P <sup>d</sup> to the Ringers on the Duke of Wellington coming to Stamford .....	1 . 1 . 0

Payments in connection with the bells, and chimes, continue until the year 1834.

An ancient account of "Iohis leche Goldsmyth de Stanf' ppõiti ecclie ad pontem Stanf' anno sexto Reg Henr' sexti post conq' [1428]" has these references to the bells:—

In emenand campanis .....	vjs.

Et in corio ept' ad funes campanaru' .....	ijd.
Et Ioh'i Rope p j corda cãpane .....	xjd.
Et eidm̃ p al' corda .....	xd.
Et sol' Tho' Basse p j baudryk .....	vjd.
Et sol' p vno culo ad cãpanam .....	iiijd.*

The earliest Churchwardens' Accounts now remaining in the church commence in 1633.

There are various entries in the Accounts from 1649 to 1653 of small sums due from the town for repairing the 5th bell and the chimes, which the churchwardens do not appear to have recovered.

* Cotton MS. Vesp. A. 24, f. 36, quoted in Peacock's Ch. Fur. p. 179.

During the eighteenth century there are payments for ringing on royal and loyal occasions.

In 1789 the bells were rehung and repaired by Edward Arnold of Leicester. The accounts say:—

1789-90.

Ap <sup>l</sup> 6.	pd M <sup>r</sup> Arnold remainder of his bill for repairs of Bells &c. ....	16 . 5 . 6

In 1802, when the ring was augmented by the addition of two treble bells, the actual founder, as is shown by the inscriptions, was Thomas Mears of London, but, for some reason, the transaction passed through the hands of Edward Arnold, who, perhaps, at that time had given up the casting of bells.

1802.

June 30.	paid M <sup>r</sup> Arnold's Bill £44 . 6 . 6 on acct of 2 new Bells which with £40 paid him by M <sup>r</sup> Stevenson with the parishioners consent is the full amount of Arnold's Bill.
----------	--	--

The Mr. Leonard Stevenson here referred to—who was Mayor in 1808-9—was a surgeon and apothecary. He advanced the money (which was raised subsequently by assessment) on a Note of Hand.

During the present century there are, as before, numerous charges for ringing, including:—

1820.	Ap. 1.	Ringing for the proclamation of George 4 th .....	1 . 1 . 0
		P <sup>d</sup> Ringers a dumb peal on the funeral of George 3 rd .....	1 . 1 . 0
1835.	Sep. 4.	P <sup>d</sup> the Ringers on occasion of the Princess Victoria passing thro' the town to the Musical festival at York ...	2 . 0
1840.	Feb. 10.	The Ringers Queen's Marriage .....	12 . 0
	May 25.	Ringers Queen's birthday.....	12 . 0

1862.	Feb. 17.	Tolling bell part of 2 days death of Prince Consort .....	2 . 6

Robert West (see 1st bell) was apprentice to Henry Parker, confectioner, admitted as freeman 28th August, 1778, constable of this parish 1778-9, capital burgess or common councillor 29th August, 1782, chamberlain 1797-8, an alderman 28th August, 1800, and Mayor 1800-7. He died in London 30th March, 1826.

John Seaton, mercer, (see 4th bell) who commenced his public career in the Council Chamber as a capital burgess on 29th August, 1689, taking the seat vacated by Samuel Parker, who had resigned on declining to take the prescribed oath of allegiance to William and Mary, was thrice Mayor, viz.: 1704-5; 1717-8 and 1726-7, and was buried at St. Michael's Church, on the 16th February, 1730-1.

The initials on the tenor bell may be those of John Butcher and Thomas Thistlewheat, or perhaps the latter and John Bullock. Those families have given useful parochial officers to the parish.*

Prior to 1762 there were "four very small bells none of them above a hundred years old," which, says Peck, were mounted on the west end of the nave in a small tower of wood.*

The present bells are sadly discordant: "indeed," writes Harrod, "the din of S<sup>t</sup> Michael's bells is so intolerable to those who live in their vicinity that they will readily believe there is no devil in his senses but will get away as fast as he can as soon as their clamour begins."

Basil Ferrar, late parish clerk and a celebrated ringer, left £20. to the churchwardens, the interest of which was to be applied in keeping the bell ropes in repair.†

The church of S. Paul is now part of the Grammar School.

The school bell is perfectly plain. There are a few entries in the Chamberlains' Accounts referring to it: for instance:—

In 1553 there were here “iij [?] great bells & one saunce bell.”* Of those ancient bells one only now remains—the present 3rd—which bears the same stamps as those upon the 1st bell at Bassingthorpe (see p. 304).

The Rev. Robert Loxham (see 1st bell) was of S. John's College, Cambridge; B.A. 1779; M.A. 1782; he was Vicar of Hagnaby (presented in 1782) as well as Rector of Stickney-cum-Stickford, to which livings he was instituted in 1786. He died at Stickford in the year 1828.

Sir Edmund Turnor, knight, the donor of the 1st bell, married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Harrison, and through her became possessed of the Manor of Stoke. He was in other ways a benefactor to this church and parish. He died 4th April, 1707, in his 88th year, and was buried in the church in a handsome tomb erected there by himself in his life time.*

Two great bells were given to the church of Our Lady at Stow, in the eleventh century either (for authorities differ) by Alfric, Archbishop of York, or by his successor Archbishop Kinsius.

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "the handbelles," which belonged to the church in Queen Mary's time, had been "broken in peces and sold to a tincker ano 1562."*

There is a rhyme used here comparing the bells with those in some neighbouring parishes thus:—

And Torksey egg-shells;
Saxilby ding-dongs,
And Stow-Mary bells.

In the church chest is preserved a manuscript book written by William Swift, once a schoolmaster here: it contains, amongst a variety

By the side of these Rules were figures to guide the ringers in ringing a peal of “Grandsires.”

On another Card is:—

“ We ring the quick to church, the dead to grave

 So, when the bells are ceased, then let us sing

There are several peal-boards.

This church was rebuilt (except the old arcades) in 1874-5, as a memorial to the late Rev. P. J. E. Welby, Rector of the parish; the allusion on the third bell is to him, both the new bells (which are "maiden" ones; that is, cast in perfect tune) having been given by his relatives. There was only one bell (the present treble) previously.

The 3rd bell is cracked: all and the belfry are in a very dirty, unsatisfactory state; they are seldom used, as the tower and spire lean much, hence the local doggerel:—

Gosberton church is very high,
Surfleet church is all awry,
 Pinchbeck church is in a hole
 And Spalding church is big with foal.

The seat of the ancient family of Heron was Cressy Hall in this parish: they descended from Sir John Heron, Knight, Privy Councillor to King Henry VII. Sir Edward Heron, Knight of the Bath (see 4th bell), was the son of Sir Edward Heron, Baron of the Exchequer, and married Anne, daughter of Sir Henry Brooke, alias Cobham, Knight.

There is a tradition that on the occasion of the marriage of Mr. William Bird to Miss Ann Rose, in October, 1801, a wedding peal was rung here by females. This is probably true, for the Register records the marriage, on the 29th September, 1801, of W. Bird, widower, and Ann Rose, spinster.

The only ancient bell here is the present Priest's bell, which was formerly the Sanctus bell; it hangs over the chancel arch. The ring of bells is in excellent order, and the ringers have been noted as good ones for many years. Numerous tablets recording the ringing of peals hang in the belfry.

John Cabourn, the donor of the 1st bell, was a noted bellhanger; he died in 1813 (see p. 85).

The Hon. and Rev. C. Lindsay (2nd bell) was instituted in 1792; after a few years he was consecrated Bishop of Kildare.

The Rev. Leonard Beridge, D.D. (3rd bell), was instituted in 1779; died 1791, and was buried in Algarkirk Church.

The small bell—most probably the ancient sanctus bell—hangs in its cot at the east end of the nave. It was originally rung by a lever projecting from the stock eastward, a chain or rope from which descended into the chancel. There is now no means of ringing. There are grooves on each side of the interior of the bell-cot, and the bottom stone is hollowed out, as though for the working of a larger bell, probably the predecessor of the present one. The form of the bell shows it to be ancient; holes have been drilled through the shoulder, and a staple clumsily inserted, to which the clapper is attached by a S shaped iron hook. The old parish clerk, recently deceased, remembered this small bell "kicking about the church for some years:" it was replaced in its cot by the Rev. White Bates, a former Vicar.

In 1552, when the Inventory of Church Goods belonging to this parish was drawn up, the following entries describing the bells and their value were made:—

Itē iiij bells .....xiiij*li*.
 Itē one lytle bell ij handbells one pare of sencers & ij candylstycks ..... xx*s*.†

In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "one handbell," which belonged to this church in Queen Mary's time, was "sold and gone."‡

The tenor bell from Fulletby is traditionally believed to have been sent here (see p. 408), but the present bells compared with the Edwardian Inventory does not confirm that idea.

It is currently reported, and the report is said to be perfectly true, that the Priest's bell here was sent out of the parish to adorn a "Hermitage," built by Bishop Tomline, at a house of his at Riby, near to Grimsby. It was, however, badly packed, and, in the carrier's cart, gave tongue in a way which attracted notice. So the good people of Tetney, when they missed their bell, had no difficulty in tracing it to Riby. There was naturally a hubbub, and the bell was returned. Some amusing verses were written at the time on the incident.

In 1744 the fine ancient church of this parish was taken down, and an unsightly attempt at a "classic" structure erected in its place. To help in defraying the expenses a ring of six bells was sold to some other (now unknown) churches in the county. The whole work was effected by the William Carey, then churchwarden, whose name is upon the present bell—probably a recast of one of the old ring.

The very excellent motto on the 3rd bell has not, it is believed, been met with elsewhere.

The Churchwardens' Accounts contain many charges for ringing "at gunpoulder treson"—"at new yearmas," &c., &c.; and there is a receipt for £16, dated 12th February, 1762, "in full of all accounts for Hanging and recasting of Bells at Thornton, haveing made them an abatement of £5 from Contract which was £30." This receipt is signed by "Row<sup>d</sup> Winn," the then owner of the advowson, who, apparently, took the responsibility of the expense on behalf of the parish. He is mentioned in the Churchwardens' Accounts a few years previously thus:—

1754. Pad for Ringin for S<sup>r</sup> Rowland Winn at lamas ... 00 . 9 . 9*

These bells (excepting the 3rd) were from the Nottingham foundry. In 1566 the churchwardens reported that "the sacringe bell," belonging to the church in Queen Mary's time, had been "broken for the reparacõs of the church by the plumar," and that "ij handbelles & the holie water fatte were melted at the castinge of two belles."*

Thomas Trollope, Esq., of Thurlby and Bourn, benefactor to the 1st bell, was the great grandson of William Trollope, Esq., of Thurlby, Bourn, and Casewick, the father of Sir Thomas Trollope, the first Baronet. Thomas Trollope married Mary, daughter of Sir William Craven, and sister of the first Lord Craven. He was also a benefactor to Bourn Church: he died in 1736, and his portrait is at Casewick.

The word MILLI on the 2nd bell is evidently the founder's mistake for NVLLI.

There is a noteworthy ancient railed ladder standing on a stone platform, with steps leading from the tower floor to the first chamber. The bells are exceedingly dirty, and much require care and attention.

Prior to 1789 there were three bells only.

There is a tradition that an aged woman, who had lost her way in the Fens, recovered it by hearing the sound of the Timberland bells; and that as a thankoffering she left some land, the proceeds of which were to be devoted to buying and keeping the bell-ropes in repair. This land now realizes £45 a year, and out of it all church expenses are paid.

ALL SAINTS.

I BELL.

There is now only one small bell here, placed in 1821.

In 1718 the wooden spire of this church was removed, and a brick tower erected, in which were placed five heavy bells. In 1820 (the building having gone rapidly to decay) the old church was taken down, and the materials used in the erection of the present edifice on a new site. The "five heavy bells" were then, I presume, sold; it is said that two went to Wainfleet S. Mary, and one to the church of Burgh [see under those churches].

Two bells are said to have been brought here from Wainfleet All Saints, when the church there was taken down in 1820; perhaps the 5th here represents them.

* Peacock's Ch. Fur. p. 158.

The 1st and the tenor were previously inscribed:—

1. Adlard Thorpe and John Clarkson CWs Lester and Pack of London fecit 1761.
6. [ The same and :— ] S. Mary pray for us. To him that rings me high and well the tenor note I'l truly tell.

The invocation to S. Mary on the previous tenor bell was, no doubt, a copy of that on the ancient bell which preceded it: Oldfield in his History of Wainfleet (p. 76) asks whether such was the case, and adds: "or did some of the old leaven of popery remain unpurged in the heart of the inditer? Little did we expect to find the invocation of Saints on a bell, cast for the use of a protestant church in the middle of the eighteenth century." [!!]

On a grey stone near the chancel is the memorial of Adlard Thorpe (previous 1st and 6th bells):—

Under this stone there is a vault and therein lyes the Remains of Adlard Thorpe Gent. a Sinner and a Ringer, who departed this life on the 24th of January 1770 aged 58 years.*

This interesting little bell with its pretty initial cross is very difficult of access. Mr. Cresswell, on his first visit, was assured that the bell had neither inscription nor date, but, making a second visit, he, with the aid of a ladder, got through a small door in the eastern gable, and lantern in hand picked his way through the false roof to the bell in a small cupola swarming with bats and dreadfully filthy, at the west end, and so secured a very good rubbing.

The bells here were cast by Henry Harrison of Barrow. Although the Churchwardens’ Accounts of that date are not preserved, there are sundry receipts and promissory notes in the Church Chest relating to the business, from which we learn that the parishioners paid him (at periods extending over two years) £92 for workmanship and £20 15s. for “addittional mettle.” There is nothing relating to the ancient bells, which evidently were melted down at that time.

The Rev. J. T. Fowler, F.S.A., who visited these bells, writes:—

The 3rd bell is said to have been brought from Welton on the other side of the Humber, and the tradition is confirmed by the fact that there is still at that church a bell precisely similar to this in the lettering, &c. This inscription at Whitton presents the peculiarity of two crosses close together, where the beginning and end of the inscription approach each other. It possesses a peculiar interest in the writer's mind as being the first bell inscription to which his attention was ever directed. This was on August 1st, 1845, when he helped his father to make a rubbing of it.

1 BELL.

Here is only a small bell without inscription.

It is reported that the church bell of Wilksby hangs at Scrivelsby Hall, and that the bell now hanging here is the old dinner bell from thence of the Dymock family, who being, until recently, patrons of the living and owners of the lordship of Wilksby, made the exchange. Supposing this report to be true, which it probably is, the loss to the church was not great, for a careful examination of the bell at the Hall at Scrivelsby shows it to be a small bell  $14\frac{1}{2}$  inches in diameter, and entirely devoid of any inscription, date, or device.

There is a tradition that about a century ago one of the Vyner family was lost on the wolds in a fog, and found his way to South Willingham by the sound of the bells, which were ringing preparatory to Christmas; and that to mark his gratitude he left a charge upon some land as a dole for the poor of the parish. The tradition is probably founded on fact, for 13s. 4d. is still received annually.

Bishop Trollope, in his Sleaford (p. 467), says (but there are evidently some errors) that the 1st bell was previously inscribed:—

Spedlie to God John Norris made me 1685.

See the 2nd bell at Ruskington and the 1st at Winthorpe for similar bells to the 2nd here.

The late Dr. Yerburch of Sleaford, in his MS. notes upon these bells, says:—"We apprehend the bells were cast at one and the same period, and in that case that the Parson and wife who bestowed one of these bells were Rev. John Leigh & Elizabeth his wife." The intention of the inscription, however, appears to be to call attention to the act of the wife of the Parson of Willoughby: so she was the sole donor. The Rev. John Leigh, who married Miss Elizabeth Newlove of Helpringham (Dr. Yerburch's supposed donors), was Rector from 1661 to 1682, but this bell is undoubtedly of an earlier date, as the letters, stamps, and form of inscription all indicate. It was probably cast at or about the same time as the 2nd bell, that is at the close of the sixteenth century.

In 1852 there were only two bells hanging: one had fallen some years previously, and tradition says that the parish clerk of the time bartered the old metal for snuff. In 1862 the present Rector gave a new bell to fill up the gap caused by that loss, and at the same time caused an entirely new frame for four bells to be erected.

The Rev. Thomas Adam, the benefactor to the present bells, was the author of "Private Thoughts on Religion," and a sort of traditionary respect is still paid to his character in the parish.

The 5th bell has evidently been one of an earlier set. They are rather a poor light ring of bells.

The 1st bell has every appearance of having been cast at the same time as the rest. It is said that they were cast in the “Cattle-garth,” near the church, and that there were previously six bells, but that there was not enough money to make a new ring of six. There was an old inn on the south side of the church, the "Six Bells," and towards the latter end of the last century this was kept by Isaiah Sowersby, who used to give the ringers ale to ring the bells stock-height, which he was very fond of hearing. This mode of ringing was long called "Old Isaiah's Peal." [J. T. F.]

Nothing is known of the Rev. R. Studley (4th bell) but that he was likewise Vicar of Alkborough and Whitton.

Mr. Edward Peacock, writing of a History of Winterton in MS., by De la Pryme, says:—George Stovin [see 5th bell] of Winterton, to whom this MS. belonged, as is evident by his signature on the cover and the autograph note at end, was a member of a gentilitial family that had long settled at Tetley in the Isle of Axholme. He died in 1780 at the age of 85, and was buried in the chancel of Winterton Church. No stone is now remaining to mark the exact spot.

The church suffered much in the Civil Wars, "for many years after the Restoration there was scarce a bit of glass in y<sup>e</sup> windows, or of lead upon y<sup>e</sup> Roof, or any good Timber about it. It lay almost open to all Storms, so that if either Rain or snow fell y<sup>e</sup> congregation were sure to suffer thereby. Thus it continued until that M<sup>r</sup> Tho. Place [see 2nd bell] a most worthy gentleman of y<sup>e</sup> same Town & general Promoter of everything that is great and good began to commiserate its sorrowful condition, & repair y<sup>e</sup> same, which he so effectually promoted and performed, that in a few years all its Breaches and Craines were mended, its Roof most of it cover'd with new Timber and Lead, its windows new glaz'd, its floors new layd, its old seats turn'd into Oak Pews, its walls beautify'd, its Bells new cast, & its yard made Level Handsom and Neat, and most of this at his own proper costs and charges, so that it is now one of y<sup>e</sup> most Beautifull Churches in y<sup>e</sup> Country."*

In 1565-6 the churchwardens reported that "two handbells," which belonged to this church in Queen Mary's time, "were sold . . . in Aō 1559 to Martin Smythe a pewterer dwellinge in Stamford," and that "one sacringe bell" had been "broken and defaced."*

The history of the old ring is told on the present 5th bell. The present bells are said to be cast from the metal of five old bells from Peterborough Cathedral, purchased by William Dobson, the bellfounder, in 1831.

The Rev. John Cheales (see 6th bell) was appointed Vicar in 1800 and was succeeded by the Rev. Henry Johnson in 1835.

Thomas Johnson is stated to have been a landowner at Milton Bryant, Bedfordshire, in 34 Henry VIII. His descendant, the Rev. Woolsey Johnson, M.A., Vicar of Olney, Bucks., was also Vicar, as well as Patron and Impropiator, of Witham-on-the-Hill, and Rector of Wilby-next-Wellingborough. He built the Manor House, and enclosed the Park at Witham, in 1752; and dying at Olney on the 21st of April, 1756, he was buried at Witham. His grandson, the donor of the treble bell here, was Lieutenant-General William Augustus Johnson, Justice of the Peace and Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Lincoln, who was born at Kenilworth, Warwickshire, on the 15th of October, 1777.

* Peacock's Ch. Fur. pp. 166-7.

He was Patron, by the Statutes, of the Grammar Schools of Uppingham and Oakham, as heir of the Founder—Archdeacon Johnson. He was High Sheriff of Lincolnshire in 1830; for thirty-two years was Chairman of the Kesteven Quarter Sessions; was M.P. for Boston from 1820 to 1826, and for Oldham from 1837 to 1847, holding (as may be gathered from the singular inscription on the bell he gave) strong opinions during a time of much political excitement. It may, however, be mentioned, as showing a modification of his opinions, that General Johnson requested the bells to be rung upon the occasion of the marriage of the Prince of Wales in 1863. He married (17th February, 1835) Lucy, the eldest daughter of the Rev. Kingsman Foster, Rector of Dowsby, Lincolnshire; died on the 26th of October, 1863, aged 86 years, and was buried at Witham, where is, in the church, a window erected to his memory by public subscription.

The present tower was built in 1737. "In connection with the old tower a story is told to the effect that one Christmas Eve the ringers, for the purpose of partaking of refreshment, left the bells 'standing' and adjourned to a tavern that then stood opposite. One of their number, a little more thirsty than the rest, insisted that before going back to ring they should have another pitcher of ale; and this being at length opposed to by his companions, the party remained to duly drain the night. This extra mug of beer saved their lives, for while they were drinking the steeple fell. Whether this is merely a tapster's tale, or the sober statement of a remarkable incident, we are not in a position to affirm."*

The church was rebuilt in 1811, when the present single bell was put up. The ancient church had a tower in which were three bells, which it is said were sold to pay for new seats in the new church: one—the largest—according to local tradition, went to Lincoln. In an old clerk's book is the following entry relating to this church and its bells:—

Nov. 22, 1829. I John Scargeal Parish Clerk: I buried the old one: I helped to take down the old church; it had three bells.

The 3rd, 4th, and 5th bells are said to have been brought from Kirmond Church, by Sir Edmund Turnor, in 1697; at which time the other three bells were cast by the Nottingham founders. These all hung in the ancient church here until the year 1838, when they were removed about a quarter of a mile to the present new church. The chancel of the old church still stands, and is used as a chapel to the burial ground.

The beams carrying the bells rest on the window sills of the tower with the floor of the bell-chamber about twenty feet below; the bells are rung from the floor of the church.

Prior to 1831 there were four bells. There is a tradition that the ancient tenor was sold to Grainthorpe parish, and that the next went to pay the cost of the new treble bell then introduced; at any rate two old bells disappeared, and only one new one came.

Page 339. Alterations have been made in the ring of bells at Brant Broughton since the description printed on page 339 passed through the press.

The treble, as there described, has been taken away; the old 3rd and 4th bells, not being in tune, have been recast; and a new tenor has been added: so now the bells are thus:—

1. [The 2nd as given on page 339.]
2. Sancta Helena. John Taylor & Co. Founders MDCCCLXXXI.
3. John Taylor & Co. Founders MDCCCLXXXI.
4. [The 5th as given on page 340.]
5. [The 6th as given on page 340.]
6. Nomen Habeo Gabrielis MDCCCLXXXI. Defunctos ploro festa decoro.
(Weight 23 cwt. 2 qrs. 6 lbs.)

Prior to 1792 there were only three large bells here. The recent alterations have made this ring—which has been provided with a new frame—the finest and heaviest in the neighbourhood.

Page 447. The Rector of West Keal reports to me, on the 4th of January, 1882, that the five bells are, most fortunately, uninjured by their fall, as recorded on page 447.

"Thanks to the devotion of inquirers like Mr. North, we shall, in course of time, possess accounts of all the bells in England, but no compiler is likely to surpass Mr. North in care and diligence. This is saying a good deal, seeing what excellent volumes have been devoted to the subject."—Athenæum.

"One after another the bell lists of the different counties are being collected and published, and none of them better than those which have been undertaken by Mr. North."—Notes and Queries.

"Must be studied by the historian of English manners."—Standard.

"An unexpectedly pleasant book."—Saturday Review.
