PREFACE.

THE literature relating to the Civil War in the United States has assumed such large proportions, that in taking up a particular branch of it and preparing a bibliography of regimental histories, the difficulty has been to know where to draw the line. It was not enough to take only the works that were by name histories of particular regiments; the subject broadened, and it became necessary to include many books relating to the matter that were not strictly regimental histories, such as Government and State publications, town records, college war records, etc. Many volumes had to be examined, and many promising titles rejected. It has been the good fortune of the compiler to have the advice of Col. John P. Nicholson, of this city, and access to his war library, said to be the best collection of its kind in the world. Others have kindly helped; and it is believed that, as regards the works which are purely regimental histories, this list is complete. It is also believed that for the first time there now appears in print a complete and accurate list of the annual reports of the Adjutant-General of each State during the war period. In conclusion, it may be said that of the six hundred and eighteen works, the titles of which are here given, the Library Company of Philadelphia owns three hundred and sixty-three, or about sixty per cent.
