But his crowning distinction was at the recent Kennel Club Show in London, where he took first Open, over 45lb., and Championship, beating Bromley Crib the second time, thus entitling him to championship honors. He also gained six specials. Rodney Stone is by John of the Funnels—Lucy Loo.

The Oakland Show.

The premium list for the bench show across the bay was issued early this week. Entries positively close Thursday, November 30th at nine o'clock P. M., and can be made with the secretary, Mr. Norman J. Stewart, Aromas, Monterey county, or with Mr. Louis Haaf, the superintendent at No 510 Market street, this city. Two hundred and thirty-eight classes are listed. The prizes offered are many and hard some, both regular and special.

In all breeds, entries of bitches with whelps at side, will be accepted for competition or exhibition, for which an entry fee of four dollars for each bitch and litter will be charged; if for exhibition only the entry fee will be $2.

Parties wishing to place dogs at the show for sale only, and not for competition, can do so by paying $2 entry fee to cover cost of benching and feeding. Such entries must be made on regular entry blanks.

Bloomsbury Baron.

Mr. Albert Josephs, of this city, during a recent visit to London, England, attended the Kennel Club championship bench show held at Crystal Palace, the principal English dog show annually. He was so favorably impressed with a young hull terrier, Bloomsbury Baron, that he purchased him and the dog is now in this city. His advent has created quite a stir in hull terrier circles. Of this dog Stock Keeper says: "Ball terriers were a nice lot. First and special in the over 30 lbs. class went to Bloomsbury Baron, who has a rare filled in face and a good body with perfect tail carriage; third, Streatham Monerch II. is a nice sort of dog, capital skull, eye and body, we made him as good as anything in the class." The Kennel Gazette in speaking of the Kensington Show says: "In open; Bloomsbury Baron scored with something to spare, grand head, eye, hard expression, plenty of bone, good body and tail, stylish expression throughout. Limit; Bloomsbury Baron again asserted his superiority."

We can not at present give an idea what competition he was in, but it is to be presumed he was against a hot company. Baron was bred by Mr. H. E. Monk and is by his Sherbourne King out of Bloomsbury Butterfly, he was whelped July 14, 1898.

Pacific Field Trial Notes.

Second forfeits have been paid on the following Derby nominations:

Duck—C. Young's black, white and tan English setter (Luke—Dolly Wilson) whelped December 15, 1898, W. B. Coutts handler.

Cal Gladstone—Frank Maskey's black and white English setter (Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Lady Rodschaff) whelped January 10, 1899, owner handler.

Sausalito Fride—W. S. Davis' black and white English setter (Ch. Cincinnati Pride—Flora W.) whelped January 16, 1899, W. B. Coutts handler.

Blanco—H. H. Kerckhoff's white English setter (Mercury—Sweetheart's Last) whelped February 1, 1898.

Lorenzo—Gardiner and Betten's orange and white English setter (Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Suver G.) whelped August 27, 1898, owners handlers.

Bonnie Gem—Gardiner and Betten's blue belton English setter (Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Suver G.) whelped August 27, 1898, owners handlers.

Woodcraft—Gardiner and Betten's orange and white English setter (Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Suver G.) whelped August 27, 1898, owners handlers.

Hen Crocker's Chief—Walter Hobart's black, white and tan English setter (Irquois Chief—Mary Loo) whelped November 28, 1898, W. B. Coutts handler.

Dynamite—Gardner and Betten's black, white and tan English setter (Val'a Mark—Fisher's Nellie) whelped February 16, 1898, owners handlers.

Pluto—Stockdale Kennels' black English setter (The Laird—Phoebe) whelped July 2, 1898, R. M. Dodge handler.

Hero—California Kennels' orange and white English setter (Mercury—Sweetheart's last) whelped February 1, 1898.

Lady Josie II—H. M. Black's red English setter (Fingles Jr.—Lady Juno) whelped May 22, 1898.

Hesper—Albert Betz' lemon and white English setter (Mercury—Sweetheart's Last) whelped February 1, 1898.

Silver Star—C. E. Wilson's black, white and tan English setter (Starlight—Silver Plate) whelped April 19, 1898, owner handler.

Dixie Queen—C. E. Wilson's black, white and tan English setter (Sam Weller—Flashlight) whelped August 9, 1898, owner handler.

Major S—Gen'l W. R. Shafter's liver and white pointer (Ben R.—Flee Go) whelped February 28, 1892, J. E. Lucas handler.

Nick O'N—J. E. Lucas' liver and white pointer (Alex C—Corra) whelped April 13, 1898, owner handler.

Ella E—J. E. Lucas' liver and white pointer (Alec C—Corra) whelped April 13, 1898, owner handler.

Negro Joe—N. H. Hickman's black pointer (Black Bart—Fannette) whelped March 15, 1898, W. B. Coutts handler.

Dick N—Geo. Neale's lemon and white pointer (Don—Queen N) whelped February 18, 1898, R. M. Dodge handler.

Schley—Stockdale Kennels' lemon and white pointer (Alec C—Flora C) whelped March 28, 1898, R. M. Dodge handler.

The foregoing list of entries includes fourteen English setters, one Irish setter and six pointers; twenty-one Derby candidates.

The Verona Kennel entries are withdrawn, all of their eligible field trial dogs being now in Tennessee.

In a recent communication from Bakersfield we are advised that the outlook is good for birds in January.

Entries for the All Age Stake close on Friday, December 15, 1898.

The Monongahela Field Trials.

The fifth annual field trials of the Monongahela Game and Fish Protective Association were held at Carmichaels, Greene county, Pa., starting on October 31st. The judges were W. S. Belle, Prof. E. H. Oathens and Major J. M. Taylor. The attendance of sportsmen was unusually good. Summaries of the Derby and All-Age Stake are the following:

PRESERVE GROUNDS, GREENE COUNTY, PA., NOVEMBER 1.—The Monongahela Valley Game and Fish Protective Association's Fifth Annual Derby. For setters and pointers whelped on or after January 1, 1898. Entrance fee $10, $5 to start—20 per cent of entrance money to be deducted by the club, remainder to be divided as follows: Fifty per cent to first, thirty per cent to second and twenty per cent to third.

Ripstone with Joe Handy.

RESULT.
First, Ripstone; second, Joe Handy; third divided, Tony Roger's Gale, Fred Earl.

The Airedale Terrier.

This is the largest breed of terrier yet produced. It has been kept in some parts of England, mostly in the North for the past fifty years, though only recently acknowledged as a distinct variety. In the early days of his existence he was known as the Bingley, or Waterside terrier. The valley of the Aire (in Yorkshire) being the chief centre of his popularity, it was a last decided that he should be called the Airedale or Waterside Terrier.

Birmingham provided him with a class at the National Dog Show in 1883 under this title. The second name, however, was soon dropped, and in 1886 he was given a place in the Stud Book as the Airedale Terrier, by which name he is now universally known.

Of late years he has been most carefully bred, and a high-class Airedale is to-day as perfect a "terrier" as can be found. This was proved when at one of the Oldham shows Rustic Kitty beat several well-known prize-winning black and tan terriers for the special prize given for the best terrier, black and tan or Airedale, in the show. And, again, when in 1891 the Airedale terriers divided the honor of winning the cup for the best team of terriers at the Crystal Palace show, beating fox, Irish, Scotch and other old established breeds of terriers.

The Airedale has come rapidly to the fore of late years, and now, in England, after the fox terrier, which comes first in numbers, he certainly appears to divide favoritism with the Irish terrier. He has his admirers in America and on the continent, and is especially a favorite in Holland and Germany. He owes his popularity to his adaptability to almost every kind of sport.

A capital water dog and retriever, he is a first-rate workman on shore, and when hunting along the banks of a river there are few dogs that can equal him, for his close, wiry jacket enables him to withstand the effects of the wet; whilst being such a big dog, he is more than a match for any sort of vermin he may fall across.

In point of disposition no dog could be possessed of more qualities that endear him to his owner. He is far from quarrelsome with other dogs, is inclined to snuff them when at walk; yet, let another dog dispute his right to advance, he is up and at it in a moment. Then his opponent must look to himself, however big or strong he may be. The Airedale's jaw, of wonderful length and punishing power, soon does its work, and he will die ere he turns tail. At home he is docile in the extreme, fond of children and a good guardian and obedient to a wonderful degree, which, coupled with an intelligence almost human, make him a most enjoyable companion.

The Airedale, moreover, possesses another great recommendation in the eyes of many dog lovers, this being the possession of a very hardy constitution, which causes little trouble to his breeders during the early stages of his career; and in this respect he certainly compares favorably with many other varieties.

The following are the points laid down by the Airedale Terrier Club in 1892: Long flat head, narrowing slightly to the eye; deep and powerful jaw with tight lips; black nose; small, dark eyes, not prominent; level teeth; long shoulders, sloping well into back; deep chest, but not broad; strong and straight back; perfectly straight legs, plenty of bone; small round feet; high set-on tail (docked); hard, wiry coat, black or hedger grizzal on back; dark markings on each side of the skull; head and legs tan; ears darker shade of tan. Size, dog, 40 to 45 pounds; bitch, 35 to 40 pounds.

Among the first to introduce the breed in this country was Mr. T. P. Mallorie, now of Crozet, Va., but formerly from the valley of the Aire, who brought his dogs with him in 1897. Since that time Mr. Mallorie has interested many other breeders, and to-day the Airedale is one of the breeds in this country. Among those imported by Mr. Mallorie was his Rustic Jill, who won at the W. K. C. and the New York Pet Dog Show, and is one of the best of the breed in this country.

THE FARM.

Sheep on the Plains.

In a quarterly report, entitled "The Modern Sheep," compiled by Secretary F. D. Coburn, of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, is an interesting article by A. T. Howden, of Jetmore, Kansas, a veteran whose experience in the sheep business began fifty years ago among the flocks of Washington county, Penn., and who at the time of writing was fattening 1500 head. He tells some of his interesting and valuable twelve years' experience in handling flocks in Western Kansas, as follows:

On the first day of December the rams are divided into two flocks and turned in with the ewes an alternata days. We commence feeding the rams about half a bushel of grain per hundred head per day the first of November, increasing until it reaches one bushel at the time they are turned in with the ewes. This quantity is continued until spring. The ewes are fed one fourth bushel of grain per hundred head from the first of December to the middle of March, when it is doubled. The rams are taken out of the ewe flock the middle of January and kept by themselves until the next December. The rams and lambs are fed some sorghum fodder all winter. All the sheep are fed all the sorghum they will eat when there is snow on the ground. It is very important that the young of all domestic animals should come with the first grass or a few days before; therefore, I use a large number of rams—say one to every twenty-five ewes—which usually produces three-fourths of my lamb crop in sixteen days. Usually, the grass has sufficiently started by the 5th to the 10th of April to stop all feeding. At this time the lambs are earmarked to designate their age and turned in with the general flock. By this earmark I am enabled to fatten and turn off all old ewes before they die on my hands. I know of no other shepherd who has adopted this plan.

It is imperative in these days of low-priced wool to save every lamb possible, for not only our profits but making expenses depend upon our success in this particular. Our greatest trouble arises from being compelled to put too many young lambs together before the ewe has become familiar with her own. Think of a young mother with all her intelligence trying to find her young babe among sixty others that were only born yesterday. The lambing season commences May 1st. The routine of taking care of them by your narrator is as follows:

When the herder sees a ewe about to drop her lamb he ties a piece of red muslin around her neck, and when the lamb is dropped he ties a similar piece around its neck and leaves them on the prairie together. The next ewe and lamb are marked the same except the strings have each one knot in the eod; the next have two knots, etc. In the afternoon the stable boss takes a horse and cart; the latter has a box which is partitioned off so that each compartment will hold one ewe and lamb. He gathers all of them up on the prairie, takes them to the barn, and puts each ewe and lamb into a box three feet square. In the evening he examines all to see if the lambs have nursed. During the night until 12 o'clock he goes through the flock every two hours and takes into his stable any ewes that may have had lambs. On very stormy nights this is continued all night. In the morning he again examines all the ewes to ascertain if the lambs have nursed, takes the string off, marks the ewe and her lamb with the same mark in paint, having a distinct mark for each pair. If any ewes do not own their lambs they remain in their box until they do. The lambs of the previous day and their dams are then turned into a three acre rye lot until the next day, when they are turned into a fifty-acre pasture, and the same process repeated with the next day's crop.

As soon as there are 150 lambs in the fifty-acre pasture they are changed to a hundred-acre pasture. When the number there reaches 300 to 400 a herder is put in charge and they go to the prairie. All the time, until the youngest lamb is ten days old, the herder in charge is supposed to keep a close watch and see that no ewe is unable to find or deserts her lamb. In case she does, she and the lamb are taken back and put in the box. At ten days old, the ewe is supposed to be able to call her lamb from the flock by her bleat.

When the lambs in a flock are from fifteen to twenty days old they are docked and castrated. In about eight days after, their tails having healed, the flock is turned into the main herd. This is continued with the other flocks.

Three-fourths of my lambs are dropped within sixteen days. The remainder come scattering along until the 15th of June, when shearing commences. I usually fatten my surplus every year.

Prospects in San Joaquin Valley.

The farmers who live on the black land are not all pleased with the present rain. Plowing had begun quite extensively, and some say there will be difficulty in putting in the crop if wet weather should continue long. In some places the summer fallow had been put in before the present rain began and is getting a fine start. The farmers on the sandy land are in high glee over the prospects. In some of the fields the early sown grain is up so that it covers the ground and has a very thrifty appearance.

The rain has started the green feed, and the cattle and sheep men who have been compelled to get their sheep out of the mountains earlier than usual are much pleased to have plenty of pasture.

The rain is having some effect upon prices of hay and produce. A great deal of hay has been damaged, and it is probable that what is now in the stack will be left unbaled and used for feed upon the ranches. There is considerable damaged hay upon the market, and it is selling for almost any price. This has the effect of deterring the farmers from bringing in the better quality, so that the price of good hay shows a slight advance though there is very little trading, as none can be brought in during the bad weather, and the farmers who have their hay under cover will not part with it except at a much better price than is now offered.

The best wheat and oat hay is bringing from $6 to $7 a ton. Alfalfa hay holds up wonderfully well, as much as $7.50 a ton having been paid recently for one lot. It is said that the large cattle owners have bought up as much alfalfa as they could get hold of, and this has made it a scarce article for the regular market.—Stockton Mail.

Sugar Cured Hams.

After the hogs are killed and properly dressed allow them to hang where the cold air will have free access to them all night. When they are thoroughly cooled they may be cut up and the hams trimmed in good shape. Put them in a barrel and pour over them a brine prepared by dissolving eight pounds of coarse salt, five pounds of brown sugar and five ounces of saltpetre in eight gallons of water. This will be enough to cover one hundred pounds of meat. If the hams are small they should remain three or four weeks, taking off the scum that rises to the top every three or four days. Large hams will require five or six weeks to take the salt properly. Hang them in a smoke house and build a fire with any wood that burns slowly and with little blaze. Smoke them two or three days. Wash each piece clean in water as hot as the hand will bear; while still damp dust powdered borax thickly over the flesh side, taking special care that the part next to the bone is covered with it. A liberal use of borax, which is quite inexpensive, preserves the meat from taint and if sprinkled with it several times during the spring will not become affected with skippers. Shoulders should be cured in the same way.—Denver Field and Farm.

Trials of feeding bonedust to young stock have been made in France. Four ounces daily fed to a calf gave an increase of 30 pounds in 24 days beyond the previous 24 days' increase on the same ration. This five and one-half pounds ground bone, costing 3½d made a live weight increase of 30 pounds. The bone dust is said to promote assimilation of the formation of flesh. If it has that effect on calves it would certainly have the same effect on colts.

Poultry Suggestions.

If hens are ovarfat, do not attempt to carry them over.

Study poultry from a practical standpoint, just as other stock upon the farm is studied. There is no fear of losing anything by sending clean eggs and nice looking poultry to market.

Moulting is a strain on the system, and the bird should have good feed and protection from the cold winds.

A wet hen is not a comfortable hen, even in warm weather; and she ought to have protection from storms.

Breeders who do not wish to winter all the stock on hand are anxious to sell, and it is a good time to buy.

The farmer's family should consume more poultry and eggs and less pork. They are among the most valuable foods.

There is nothing in its relation to the hen-house that is more important than whitewash and a whitewash brush, if they are used.

The fact that so much poultry is sold is prima facie evidence that poultry raising is profitable. Poultry, too, brings quick returns. Better breeds, better roosts, better feeding, less stuffing, less vermin, and cleaner houses would be worth millions of dollars to American farmers; and they are all easy of adoption.

It is never wise to buy breeding stock at the beginning of the breeding season. Buy it before, so that it will have become used to its new surroundings before the breeding season commences.

Frank B. White says that a dressed fowl should be wrapped in paraffin paper, packed in a neat box and labeled instead of being hung up, exposed and thrown about as if it were of no consequence.

In all the deluge of poultry literature the goose is seldom mentioned, and yet the goose is a money making bird. There is a great deal more money in geese than there is in ducks, at least in the west.—Epitomist.

Battle of the Breeds.

The test of the block is after all the true test of a beef animal. Speaking on this subject the National Stockman and Farmer says that as the price of beef advances the "battle of the breeds" is attracting much attention. The champions of the different beef breeds are claiming the supremacy for their favorites, and contests in the show rings are being watched more closely than ever, not only by those directly interested, but by the public generally. Slaughterers of cattle look for breeding as much as they do for weight or maturity. Quality cuts quite a figure in prices, and the breed that stands the test of the butcher's block is the one that will be the most popular and profitable. A rise in value of beef cattle does more to improve the herds of the country than all the fads that can be originated. Fanciers of breeds or strains may inflate prices for favorite strains and crosses, but those who convert the animals into food are the ones who finally award the premiums which indicate true merit. The blood that brings the top quotations on the fat stock markets is what you can pin your faith to in safety.

A band of 550 head of cattle at Kingston, Fresno county, brought there from Humboldt by a man named Warren has been quarantined. The calves are suffering with strangles, an animal parasite new to California. The lungs of the affected animal are filled with worms and cold does not effect them.

The Best Breeding Age for Sheep

In regard to the best breeding age for sheep Prof. Thomas Shaw says in American Sheep Breeder:

"Ewes should not be bred until after they have been shorn once. If they are bred as lambs they will not grow so large themselves, nor will they raise large lambs, so that when anyone practices breeding his females as lambs he certainly does what will injure the size of his sheep. When a young ewe has to nourish a lamb and make growth at the same time she cannot make so good growth herself, as the lamb is a drain upon her system and she cannot nourish it so well either before or after birth, because she has to do something at building up her own frame.

The best lambs may be expected from ewes two, three and four years old at the time they drop their lambs, but sometimes it may pay to keep them longer. It will be necessary to change the rams every two years where the flock is not large, for if this is not done, then the ram would be bred to females of its own offspring, and that would be what is termed in and-inbreeding, which, if practiced frequently, would lead to harmful results. The ewes should be in good condition at the mating season. If they are poor they will not likely breed until they put on a good deal of flesh. This may prolong the lambing season so that it will extend over many weeks, which is not desirable."

Value of Horse Shows.

The rivalry for show honors has brought more money into the harness and saddle horse industry than any one feature of the trade, says the "Breeder's Gazette" of Chicago. Now that other influences have been felt in the market, it yet remains a fact that the greatest support to prices comes from the wealthy patrons of the horse shows, who stand with open purses in hand ready to pay almost whatever might be asked for horses that have a chance to win a ribbon. Verily farmers and horse breeders have much to be thankful for in the presence and the multiplication of horse shows. There is of course a lot of display about them, a lot of "style" and "fashion" and "society," but it all counts to the profit of the horse breeder, and those who dance to such music have the funds to pay the fiddler. The man with a fast horse could always claim the attention of the rich, but only in recent years has the man with the fine horse been able to command a hearing, and this has come about largely through the instrumentality of the horse show. While the greatest development of this idea has occurred in the East yet the West has taken it up in earnest and is making great progress. The horshow is apparently its permanent feature of the industry.

It has been said that animals will get along with little or no salt other than that found in ordinary food, but experiment has shown that if a small quantity is added daily they will appear brighter, their coats sleeker, and they will show more life. In other words, the secretion will be better and the animals will be in better health. Why then does not a hog need salt just as well as the ox or the horse? The same physiological laws govern assimilation and excretion in them. There is some ground for believing that one reason and in some instances the only reason why these animals do not look well and are sluggish and dull, is because they do not have salt added to their ration. As much as you can pinch up between your thumb and finger is plenty for a feed for a matured hog.

Good Brood Sow.

At a meeting of Kansas farmers, P. D. Whitzel, spoke on the brood sow as follows:

Brood sows are now considered a very important stone in the foundation of the farmers prosperity, and as such deserve the large share of attention they are receiving. But to decide what are all the good points, and then to find them all in the individual, is a task that would stump Solomon—supposing he should go seeking brood sows. I should look for the first point of excellence in the mother of the sow I wished to choose. She should be capable, and in the habit of bringing forth and raising large families, for the mother instinct is inherited to degree, and it is patent to all that the sow which habitually brings two or three pigs at a litter is an unprofitable investment. Of course there are some good brood sows raised from small litters, but the exceptions only prove the rule. Then both sire and dam should be well bred and good individuals.

In choosing a brood sow, there are two classes of points to be considered; first, those that are qualities in themselves, and second those that are but indications of hidden qualities. It is well to remember that a sow transmits her qualities as well as good ones, and the more good points there are about her the fewer the chances of poor pigs. To begin with, she should have perfect feet and stand on her toes, for if the foundation be bad the whole structure may as well be condemned. They should be the extremities of short legs set wide apart, that the weight of the body may be well and easily borne. These should be topped by heavy hams and square shoulders, that the whole may be symmetrical.

Such qualities transmitted to their progeny insure weighty porkers, easily fattened, easily matured and ready for market in the shortest possible time. Having now the foundation and framing timbers ready, we proceed to build the superstructure and increase the weight by placing thereon a short, heavy neck, indicative of strength. This should be joined to a broad, well arched back that no weight of pigs can break down, for the tendency of brood sows is to sink a little in the back with each successive litter, and in time grow sway-backed. The arch to the back of a swine is as a buttress to a stone wall. The body should be long and deep, the ribs set squarely in the backbone and well hooped in order to give plenty of space inside for the internal organs, and a large surface for the attachment of muscle and fat. Especially should the brood sow measure well around the girth, that the heart and lungs may have room enough to insure good circulation and consequently easy breathing.

Add to this a broad back and a square buttock, and the picture lacks only the points which are indicative of hidden qualities to be complete. Of these I will mention but two. The ideal brood sow should be wide between the eyes, as an indication of intelligence. This quality is especially needed in a mother pig. If she has it she looks to the welfare of her family—never crushes the youngsters or boxes their ears in her haste to put her feet in the trough or her eagerness to make a corn-crib of her stomach. She should possess a coat of long, heavy, glossy hair. This is an indication of a good, strong constitution and my observation has convinced me that it is a desirable feature. I prefer straight hair, though I am informed that the curled darlings bring as fair a price in the market as their pleiner sisters. Finally, let the color and markings be perfect. By this I mean, let the Chester Whites be models of whiteness, the Duroc-Jerseys sport subarctic tresses and the Poland-Chinas cling to their raven locks, their milky feet and snouts and their curled flags of truce. Selected thus and properly cared for the brood sow becomes a source of pleasure, pride and profit.

Augustine Inacio of Honolulu and a friend from Vallejo were in town Thursday after blooded cattle. With Wm. Loftus of the American stables they visited the Cotati ranch and purchased six Durham cattle. The animals will be shipped to Mr. Inacio's 35,000 acre ranch on the island. The rancher has 3000 head of cattle on his place, where he has lived for forty years. He is considered one of the leading stock raisers on the islands—Santa Rosa Republican.

An exchange gives the following sensible advice: Farmers who receive circulars containing offers of preservatives of milk and cream, or of methods for doubling the amount of butter from the milk, should consider such propositions very carefully. Butter is made from the cream only, and the proportion of butter obtained depends upon the amount of butter fat in the milk, the fat being in the cream. It is impossible to get something for nothing, and any product devised by the use of special agents is simply not better, but coagulated milk, the price of which in market will be less than that of unchurned cream. The richest milk is that which comes from udder last, as to leave a gill may be to leave one-half of the butter fat. All cows should be "stripped" when milked, not only to secure the whole of the milk, but to prolong the milking period, as cows that are not milked in a careful manner will dry off sooner. The amount of fat in the milk of cows depend largely upon how completely the milking is done, yet that important matter is not considered by some dairymen, as they employ milkers without regard to their qualifications. Experiments show that a cow, when in full flow of milk, drinks from 1500 to 2000 pounds of water per month, the average quantity, determined by testing a herd, being 1660 pounds per cow. This fact shows the importance of an unlimited supply of pure water at all seasons of the year. In every 100 quarts of milk the farmer sells about 88 quarts of water and when the cows cannot procure water at all times they will fall off in yield.

Hoard's Dairyman truthfully says: There is liable to be a decided objection to the use of raw milk, produced among city consumers, by the indiscriminate abuse that is being made against it by the pseudo scientific writers and law makers. All bacteria are alike to them and they put their hand on the good and had alike, if they are found in the milk pail. If a hack writer wants copy, the milk supply is always good for an article on its defects, and the danger from a contaminated milk supply are eagerly pointed out. The attempts that are being made to improve the supply, are ignored and timid people immediately drop milk from their list of foods. If there were less fool attempts at law making and more careful enforcement of the laws we now have, the quality of the milk supply could be easily improved and the yellow press of the cities would have less pretext for their hysterical articles on the quality of the city milk supply with a decided increase in the milk consumption.

An operation was performed on a horse Tuesday, under the direction of Dr. Eddy, by which a tumor of unusual size and formation was removed from the left shoulder of the animal. The tumor weighed four and a half pounds and consisted of a bony formation covered with cartilaginous substance. The bone had no direct connection with the skeleton, but was cut away with some difficulty, as it was solidly imbedded in the flesh. As the owner of the horse bought the animal recently, it is not known how long the tumor had been growing, and Dr. Eddy is at a loss to account for the strange growth, unless it started from a misplaced gland secreting enamel for a tooth. It is not unusual for these glands to appear in various parts of the body, and Dr. Eddy mentioned one case where he had taken a perfectly formed tooth from between a horse's ears.—Stockton Mail.

A press telegram says at the National Hereford Association show at Kansas City, John Sparks of Reno, Nev., paid $2500 for Armour Rose, a blooded Hereford cow, sire Beau Brummel, Jr., dam Armour Naiad, bred and owned by K. E. Armour of that place. This is said to be the highest price ever paid for a Hereford cow in the United States.

There is a great demand for teams for plowing purposes. A number of prominent ranchers were in town this week, unsuccessfully endeavoring to procure help. The recent rains gave a great impetus to farming operations, and the supply of teams do not begin to equal the demand.—Hollister Advance.

Recently a bunch of yearling steers averaging a little over 1000 pounds were sold in Chicago at $6 a hundred, or a fraction over $50 a head. It is needless to say that they were well bred. Cattlemen can well afford to pay big prices for registered bulls that will produce such results even in the third generation, and the dams of such youngsters ought to be valued very highly. It may be confidently asserted, however, that these yearlings had had good management as well as good breeding; that there was no check of growth during their first winter and they never knew what it was to be reduced in flesh by hunger or exposure in inclement weather. It is the stock farmer who produces such animals, and the ranchman who is becoming a stock farmer as many of them are doing in California, will be able to produce animals equally as good and perhaps more profitable.

The Yreka Journal has been watching the recent movements of cattlemen and of sales of beef cattle in northeastern counties of the State and southern Oregon, with the result of ascertaining that a very large number of fat steers on the Grohs range in Langell valley, Lake county, Ore., were awaiting a tip top price. They would weigh 600 pounds, dressed. A band of about 1600 head near Alturas, in Modoc county, had changed hands at from 6½ to 7½ cents, making an average of $35 for cows and steers and $40 for aged animals. E. P. Sessions had brought 225 head to the railroad from the Fort Bidwell section, and Frank Reynolds, the Oakland Meat Company's buyer, had 210 on the way to Lakeview for shipment. For the majority of the band $40 per head was paid. Geo. Freeman, of the Fort Bidwell section, was on the way with 300 head.

Broodmares appear to be a drug in the market in this vicinity. Aimee, which brought but $100 at the Hicks sale last week, is only 13 years old. She has a pacing record of 2:24½, is the dam of three that have beaten 2:30, and is with foal by Baron Wilkes 2:18. The purchaser was assured that should she prove not to be with foal she can be returned to Baron Wilkes next year free of charge. When farmers can buy well bred mares with foal by the best stallion in the country for $100, they have no excuse for using inferior mares of questionable pedigrees to breed from.

A carload of twenty-three thoroughbred Durham bulls arrived at Castroville recently in charge of Lonie Hestorff from Sacramento for James and Henry Berdin. They were driven from Castroville to their owners' ranches near Blanco.—Salinas Journal.

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

JOHN R. GENTRY - 2:00 1/2

JOHN R. GENTRY and W. J. ANDREWS.

THE LITTLE RED HORSE, as John R. Gentry is called, is probably the "speediest" pacer of all those that have earned the name of champion. His record of 2:00 1/2 is three quarters of a second faster than any harness horse with the exception of Star Pointer, as ever traveled a mile, and the well known turf writer Murray Howe, states that he has seen Gentry step right round Joe Patchen in going a distance of fifty yards when the black horse was pacing a two minute clip. The trouble with Gentry has been that he is a most difficult horse to keep right on edge, but when in that condition he has always been able to turn his mile close to the two minute mark. Mr. Howe says that previous to the 24th day of September, 1896, at Rigby Park Portland, when Gentry was driven to his record by W. J. Andrews (who appears in the sulky in the above picture) the horse was given more very fast miles than the book authorities would have deemed good for him. The horse always took his work very cheerfully, and it was nothing uncommon to see Billy step him a fourth or fifth heat from 2:03 to 2:08, according to the weather and track. He worked him a mile in 2:03 flat one day at Buffalo and I remember snapping my ticker on him one morning at Mystic Park and as near as I can recollect he stepped a fourth mile in 2:07, last half in 1:01; and a fifth mile in 2:06 1/2, last half in 1:00 3/4. That's pretty dizzy work for a horse going without a prompter and Gentry is probably the only one of the big five that could do it. He likes a smooth track, but wants it just a little softer than does the average pacer. The Rigby track the day he broke the record was thoroughly saturated with water as it had rained hard the day previous. It was dry on top and while his shoes would cut into it some it would not break, and I considered it a very fast track. At that it was not as good as it had been earlier in the week. There was half a day just previous to the rain when almost every trainer who worked out over it pronounced it the fastest piece of dirt they had ever seen, and I am sure I never saw anything better. On the day Gentry started, the atmospheric conditions were not at all favorable to record breaking. It was so cold that I had to keep moving, even with a big overcoat on and the wind was blowing a gale. Andrews thought a mile in 2:03 1/2 would about fit the day and I did not think he would beat that. Of course, every man on the grounds who had a ticker stood as nearly under the wire or opposite the "post" as possible, and as most of those present were horsemen there was less variance in the watches than is usual at record performances. My own watch stopped at 2:00 2-5 and about six watches out of ten caught it 2:00 1/2, just as the judges did. I did not see one that had it any slower than that, but saw several that had it faster."

At Los Angeles this year Gentry was undoubtedly faster than Joe Patchen and repeated the performance of pacing around the black horse when the latter was going a two minute clip. It is confidently believed by Mr. Andrews that he will yet lower the world's record of 1:59 1/2 with John R. Gentry.

The South African Horse.

Attention of American horsemen has been attracted by reason of the wars prevailing in those countries, to the horses of the Philippines and South Africa. A San Franciscan, Mr. A. J. Martineau, one of the editors of Freedom, published at Manila, has written a very interesting account of the little horses used there and which appeared in this journal some weeks ago. An English writer has recently furnished the London Live Stock Journal an article on the South African horse, from which we make the following extracts:

The Basuto pony easily outclasses any other stamp of horse in South Africa, and I will therefore deal with this animal first. This pony may be described as a larger edition of the Shetland. The Basutos have from the very first been distinguished as horsemen, and, in direct contrast to all other South African tribes, have always kept the breed of their horses pure. The Basuto pony is the outcome of the conditions of the country to which it belongs. Basutoland is a mountainous, rocky land, sparsely watered, and of indifferent yield. It is a hard treacherous country to travel over, and a man doing so requires a trusty steed, and the Basuto pony meets this requirement. The Basuto pony averages about 13 hands, he is stockily built, short in the legs and long in the body, he is as tough as ash and as sure-footed as a mountain goat; he can exist on scarcely any food, and can travel long distances without water. A Basuto will mount one of these animals in the morning, and will start away at an easy canter; he will keep this pace up, hour after hour, the only time he will allow his mount respite being when he is jumping from boulder to boulder as he climbs up the side of a mountain; once he arrives at the summit, the rider will shake the reins and the pony will break into a canter, and at this pace will go down the side of a precipice that any ordinary person would hesitate to descend on foot, though an occasional huck-jumper may be met with amongst them. These horses are in general use in the Cape Colony and Natal.

The distances covered in a day by some of these animals are almost incredible.

The writer on one occasion dispatched a native with a letter, requiring an immediate answer, to a friend forty-one miles away. The native started about 5 o'clock in the morning and returned with the reply a few minutes before 6 the same evening, having done the eighty-two miles in thirteen hours. The pony certainly looked slightly fagged on his return, but on the Basuto jumping on him to go home to his kraal he started off at his usual canter. In this case the rider was a heavy man, weighing quite 12 stone. He was provided with neither whip nor spur, the only thing he carried in his hand being a small wisp of a horse's tail, in order to keep off the flies. The road he had traveled was one succession of hilly inclines, and he had to cross two rivers, and it was in the wet season. The Basutos have had their share of hard times, but they have, as a rule, resolutely refused to part with their horses. It is a common occurrence to come across some weedy pony in the Cape Colony and Natal, which the owner will proudly describe as a true-blooded Basuto; but, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, a glance at the animal will tell anyone posted on the subject that the pony is a Basuto in name only. A gentleman in the Orange Free State some time ago obtained four Basutos from a native headman, whom he had befriended, and broke them into harness. It was the general opinion before this that these ponies were not suitable for draught work, but in this case they have proved an undoubted success.

Next to the Basuto for hard wear and tear comes the Free State horse. These animals run from 14 to 15 hands, very seldom exceeding the latter height, and in consequence are more suitable for draught purposes than the Basuto pony. They are light built, with lots of daylight showing below them, and in English eyes would appear too leggy, but they are wonderfully tough, and in common with all South African horses, have little vice.

In the Transvaal the horses are of somewhat smaller proportions, and to all appearances are as weedy-looking animals as can be well imagined, but they make good serviceable trap horses, and can carry enormous weight under the saddle. It is a common sight to see a Boer weighing anything from 12 to 14 stone climb laboriously on to one of these animals. The horse will seem at first to collapse altogether under the weight, and his back will literally bend in as his knees tremble under him, but once his rider is seated he will stiffen himself, and will travel at the usual slow canter from sunrise to sunset, and this without any extra food except such as he can pick up during a short "off saddle" in the middle of the day.

Coming down to Kaffir horses, locally termed "Kaffir Mokes," one is struck at the perfect proportions some of these little beasts exhibit; but they are ridden to death, are utterly uncared for in any way, and it is a most unusual occurrence to come across a Kaffir horse that has not got a sore back. For persistent, downright cruelty the Kaffir is hard to beat; he will after returning from a journey, drag off his saddle, the sheepskin (which does duty for a saddle cloth) often bringing with it pieces of skin and flesh from the poor brute at the same time, and with a parting blow from his "knob-kerry" will leave the animal to look after itself.

Van De Vanter's Joke.

All the horsemen on the California Circuit this season will remember Sheriff Van De Vanter of Seattle, Washington, who attended the meetings at Santa Rosa, Oakland and Sacramento with his string of trotters and pacers which were trained and driven by John Sawyer, the well known reinman of the northwest. The following amusing anecdote from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer will be read by Mr. Van De Vanter's many friends here with interest:

"Sheriff A. T. Van De Vanter returned Saturday from Spokane, where he went to deliver a team of brown trotting mares which he sold to Gus S. Seifert, the Nome miner, for $500. While in Spokane the sheriff participated in a practical joke on Chief of Detectives John Sullivan, of the Spokane police force, which gave the sheriff's friends much amusement.

Friends of the sheriff were exhibiting certain silver coins which had been used in the Nome diggings in place of copper plate to catch the gold, this practice having at one time been common on account of the shortage of copper. The action of the amalgam made the coins look like counterfeit.

Seifert brought some of these coins to Spokane. It was suggested that Detective Sullivan be made the victim of a practical joke, Van De Vanter to pass the coins in a well known resort and the detective to be sent for to arrest him as a counterfeiter.

The plot worked perfectly. Sullivan was phoned for, and, after taking one look at the coins, pronounced them very bad. Sheriff Van De Vanter was pointed out to him as the bold "pusher of the queer."

"I want you," said Sullivan to the King county sheriff.

"What for?" asked Van De Vanter, innocently.

"Come with me to headquarters; the chief wants to see you."

Arrived at headquarters, the chief, knowing Van De Vanter very well, said:

"Hello, sheriff, how are you?"

"What's the sheriff of?" gruffly queried Sullivan.

"Of King county," said the chief.

"Some of the boys have jibbed me," exclaimed the detective, seeing through the joke. Then as the others in the plot came in the party adjourned round the corner at the detective's expense.

The mares purchased by Seifert are the handsome animals driven during the summer by Sheriff Van De Vanter. They are by Falmouth Boy 2:18½."

Blanketing Unclipped Horses.

Col. Edwards, of the Newark Sunday Call, one of the closest observers and most practical horsemen of the East, writes as follows in regard to blanketing horses in winter, and what he has to say will prove of much benefit to trainers and stablemen, should they heed it.

We have reached the conclusion that a heavy blanket on an unclipped horse in the stable is detrimental to his health. Observation and experiment has convinced us that the unblanketed horse in the winter is the healthiest and most comfortable. The best possible condition for a horse to take cold is when he comes out of the stable where he has been standing blanketed. The cold air will strike like a knife into every part of his body. A heated horse should not be blanketed when he goes into the stable. A horse with long hair will remain wet all night under a blanket. If the stable is warm and free from draft the horse will be much better off without any covering whatever. Nature provides a covering ample to protect the unclipped horse in this climate in the winter. If more had been needed more would have been provided. We are not speaking idly. For some years we have carefully noted the effect of cold upon blanketed and unblanketed horses. Seven years ago we discarded the blanket, and the result has been entirely satisfactory. No man in his senses would think of wrapping himself up in a warm house and removing the wraps when he went out.

All this refers to unclipped horses. A man who would leave a clipped horse unblanketed in the winter should be arrested and sent to jail. And this brings us to remark that horses whose work causes them to perspire freely in cold weather are better for being clipped. The cold air is not half so penetrating to a clipped horse as to one with his coat on and wet. A clipped horse, if wet, can be rubbed dry in fifteen minutes. The experiment has been thoroughly tested, and men who own horses worth thousands of dollars would not have them clipped if they did not believe they were better for it.

The showing made by the get of imp. Albert this year is quite remarkable, and shows what may be expected of the sire of Mesmerist, the best two year old of '99, in the future. All the Albert yearlings are big, well set up, racy looking animals, and there are a number of them in the different stables quartered at the tracks in this vicinity. They have, without exception, shown up well, and while at this time everything is uncertain with yearlings, there is little doubt but what imp. Albert's fame as a sire will have greatly increased owing to the performances of what are now yearlings next season.

Two Pertinent Questions.

[Western Horseman.]

Two pertinent questions are now up for discussion with the trotting-horse public and for action upon by the parent trotting associations. These are: Shall races two in three be the general rule, and shall the distance flag be moved nearer the finish? There are not only two sides to each proposition, but there are two interested parties, namely campaigning horsemen and association managers, each having reasons why old conditions should prevail, and each likewise having reasons why the proposed reforms should prevail. A consideration of these changes should have for its foundation the fact that trotting associations and campaigning horsemen have been "up against" each other quite long enough, and that the time is propitious for getting the general public to take one end of the game and trotting associations and horsemen the other. Reforms should be inaugurated which will bring about this new condition, and, in our opinion, races two in three and a shorter distance, will prove valuable auxiliaries in this direction. The two in three system was given a pretty fair trial the past season, and from an owners and observer's point of view, the writer is a disciple of the new innovation. The golden text with trotting turfmen should be, 'Races for the purse or stake money, letting 'side money' go with one's judgment.'

That the two in three plan favors this kind of racing by few owners will question, for, as horses are trained nowadays nearly every trotter or pacer will go the first two heats, if he be driven for them, faster than he will go any subsequent ones, and hence nearly every driver and owner would rather take chances of winning a race two in three than one three in five, for every one knows that it is the long-drawn out races that make most of the cripples and "knock-outs," and that in races of two and three heats the same horse can not only be started much oftener during the season, but is much less liable to get "laid on the shelf" just when he should be in his prime. Then, also, races two in three, like the proverbial country dance tune, are "quick and devilish," interest the spectators and aid in getting the general public to take hold of one end of the game—the most essential consideration of all. Base ball, foot ball and the opera interest the public, for they are played for the public, no "dog eat dog" game going on between the players and the managers, as is too often the case with horsemen and association managers. As the trotting turf has been going on for some years campaigning horsemen and association managers have too often had to make money off of each other, instead of jointly putting themselves at one end of the game and the public at the other. The public has tired of long-drawn-out harness races and consequent long and tiresome idle intermissions, and clearly demands something more "quick and lively," if not "devilish." The two in three plan "liven up the game" and gives the public more pleasure, and it is the general public's patronage that both campaigning horsemen and association managers should endeavor to attract.

We have not always favored a shorter distance, but in the present stage of the game we believe a shorter distance, say one hundred yards, is available and practical. Harness racing must be made interesting, and certainly a horse that does not finish within one hundred yards of the leader cannot add interest for the public or win any money for his owner. Of course a good horse will occasionally make a break and land further back than one hundred yards. So will a harness or a sulky break occasionally and land a good horse behind the 150-yard distance, but under the rules he has to "take his medicine" and go to the barn. One is no more a hardship than the other. Laying up heats, from one motive or excuse or another, is the bane of trotting races. Shorter races—in number of heats—and a shorter distance will do more towards abating the evil than a book full of ordinary rules against the practice. We have always stood for the proposition that horsemen should race for purses not wholly made up of their own money, and the only way we can see for this to be is to make harness racing so attractive and fascinating that the public will turn out en masse to see it. Will races two in three and a shorter distance aid in accomplishing this? We think so.

Short Races Will Please the Public.

Wm. B. Fasig, of New York, is not in favor of shortening the system of racing but thinks they will please the public. He says:

"Make up your programs with all three styles fully represented, and you will come nearer to catching the public fancy. In saying this I am taking no note of the speculative element. Eliminate that from the question entirely, although many heavy bettors favor the shorter races. But to make the latter universal would be highly detrimental to the best breeding interests. For years stamina has been as much of a consideration, if not more, than speed. Where would our great racing families have been to day had breeders looked for two-heat performers? We have always had fast trotters and pacers that could go two fast heats, but no more, and no one cares particularly to see the number increased. Do not throw the old method overboard, I say, but give them all a fair show, and the public will be better satisfied."

CHARLES F. DWYER expects that the four Charaxus and one imp. Albert yearlings, which he shipped to England this year, will give a good account of themselves next year. The Albert colt has shown up exceptionally well in his trials.

The Splan-Newgase Sale.

The November sale of the above 6rm came off at Chicago as per announcement and was a success, everything with any class bringing fair prices. The top price of the sale was received for the mare Phrase 2:12½, sha bringing $4750. The contending hidders for this animal were Mr. Lockwood, of New York City, and Mr. Bert Seeger, of Vienna, Austria, both first class trainers and capable men and very apt to know the value of such a mare. Mr. Splan writes us that there is no demand at all for extremely young things, or old, worn out animals—no one wants them at any price. Broodmares fifteen or twenty years old may be worth something to the ordinary farmer, but will not get a bid from professional horsemen or men who own horses for pleasure.

The next sale by this firm will be held January 29th to February 3d, and will be in the magnificent new building just erected on the site of the old one that burned a few months ago. It is the handsomest, safest, roomiest and most convenient building in the world for harness horse sales. The prices obtained for the best at the sale in November are as follows:

- Lewis Hunter (3), by Bernal—Red West; J. Gilligan, Chicago, $285
- Bertula (1), by Bernal—Onward; James Todd, Lancaster, Pa., $290
- Saddle Temple (5), by Stenhope—Kentucky Clay Jr.; Smith & Johnson, Lancaster, Pa., $215.
- Whisker 2:18½ (7), by Egmont—Major Powell; J. Gilligan, $260.
- Alicia Bell 2:4½, by Liberty Bell—Nutwood; James Todd, $310.
- Tangent 2:18½ (4), by Onward—Almost Jr.; Penrose (15), by Onward—King Rene; S. E. Gates, $250.
- Phil Walton (5), by Appamantos—Black Henry; Smith & Johnson, $235.
- Dick Benson, by Allerton—Corbin Bashaw; E. W. Lockwood, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., $600.
- Frances 2:19¼, by Calhoun—Black Diamond; Miller & Co., Liverpool, England, $590.
- Ned Perry 2:24¼, by Jack Dawson—King Rene; Smith & Johnson, $275.
- Phrase 2:12½ (9), by Onward—Egbert; E. M. Lockwood, Poughkeepsie, $4750.
- Diamond Star (4), by Red Heart—Dictator; Bert Seeger, Vienna, Austria, $850.
- Foreign Prince (2), by Red Heart—Don Cossock; E. M. Lockwood, $320.
- Tony K (6), by Oneida—Captein; E. C. Jones, Chicago, $235.

The Fasig-Tipton Sale at New York

The "Old Glory," sale as Messrs. Fasig and Tipton call their auction of horses which began at Madison Square Garden on Monday and will close to-night, has been a great success up to this writing. The California consignment of horses bred on Mr. A. B. Spreckles Aptos Stock Farm will probably be sold to day. The consignment of horses from Palo Alto Stock Farm, including all the thoroughbreds, will be sold Monday, November 27th. The principal sales reported so far by telegraph are as follows:

- Elorlee 2:08½, ch m, 1890, to Thomas W. Lawson, Boston, Mass, $4702.
- Pasote 2:13, h m, 1893, to J. H. Schnitz, Parkville, $2500
- Sunland Belle 2:08½, ch m, 1892, consigned by J. H. Outhwaite, Cleveland, sold to M. McDonald, $3025
- The Montana, trial 2:22½, h c, 1897, consigned by Bitter Root Farm, sold to R. A. Fairhair, Westfeld, N. J., $2100.
- Faustina 2:20½, h m, 1892, consigned by J. H. Outhwaite, Cleveland, sold to L. Well & Co., New York, $2600.
- Indale 2:08½, ch m, to Frederick S. Fisher, White Plains, $1150.
- Joe N, trial 2:18, blk g, 1897, consigned by Bitter Root Farm, sold to F. Gerdin, New York, $1150.
- Kentucky Union 2:07½, ch m, 1889, to Jack Corry, $3000.
- Coney 2:07½, hr g, 1895, to D. W. Mahaney, $1160.
- Kellar 2:26½, hr c, 1896, by Allerton—Miss France, to Carl D. Burr, of Comack, L. I., $6200.
- Locha 2:26, h f, 1897, by Allerton—Elleree, to Matt Dwyer, New York City, $3010.
- Jarl, no record, b c, 1895, by Allerton—Elleree, to G. O. Wilson, Baltimore, $3500.
- Flora McGregor, no record, ch m, 1897, by Robert McGregor—Bella, sold to M. Dwyer, of New York, $3000.
- Madonna, no record, b f, 1898, by Allerton—Lucy Wilton, to Edward Lithier, Readville, Mass., $620.

Notes From Russia.

An American friend now in Russia writes the Chicago Horse Review as follows: "In looking over your issue of September 26th, I see that Sam. Caton is credited with driving Baron Rogers 2:09½, during his wonderful performances in the long-distance races trotted at Moscow. This I dare say is a mistake, as Mr. Caton drove him (Baron Rogers) in but one race, that being a beat race, in which he finished second. Shortly after this the horse was placed in the hands of Frank Starr, and to the latter gentleman belongs all credit for fitting the brown son of Baron Wilkes for his record-smashing performances. Perhaps it would be interesting to the many readers of the Review to hear of the above named races. The first was the Grand Duke Paul race and the distance four versts, for a purse of 5000 roubles and two gold medals. Baron Rogers easily disposed of his field and won by a wide margin. Time, 2:23, lowering the record about six seconds. The week following he started in the Great Moscow race, distance four and one half versts, purse 6000 roubles, two gold medals and a handsome gold watch for the driver of the winner. Baron Rogers won this race by fully fifty lengths. Time, 7:16½. In just six days he started again in the six-versts race, and justly demonstrated that he is by far the gamest trotter in Russia, and, I might say, the world. This race is called the Czrowitch and was for a purse of 5000 roubles and two gold medals. The Baron won as he pleased, trotting his last one and one-half versts (mile) in 2:24, and the entire distance, six versts (four miles), in 9:42, lowering all records. In the same issue I read of Bertie R.'s lowering the four-mile record in England, her time being 9:58, whereas Baron Rogers trotted exactly the same distance in 9:42, 16 seconds better. Therefore due credit should be given Baron Rogers for his wonderful gameness and staying qualities, as well as the record; also to Mr. Starr for having his horse in such good condition as to trot three record-breaking races all within two weeks."

King's Courier Goes to England.

BENNING'S RACE TRACK, WASHINGTON, D. C., November 16.—King's Courier, the two year old that showed so well at Morris Park last month and ended his season at that course on the closing day, by shouldering 126 pounds and leading home his big field in the White Plains Handicap, will race no more in this country. He was sold to-day to Enoch Wishard, the horseman, and shipped to New York en route to England.

Wishard, who has been racing abroad for a couple of seasons, is reported to have come with the express object of purchasing King's Courier. He is the representative of John A. Drake, a wealthy Chicagoan, who proposes going on the English turf with a strong stable.

While the price paid to W. M. Rogers, trainer of King's Courier and agent of James E. Pepper, the owner for the good colt, was not made public, it is thought to be about $25,000. When offered for sale at Morris Park before winning the White Plains, he was bid in by his stable for $15,000. With possibly the exception of Mesmerist, King's Courier was the crack two-year-old of the year.

CHBIS SMITH, the one time plunger, who owned the great Yo Tamhien, Maid Marian, Prince Carl and dozens of other crack racers, during his days of prosperity, is in Chicago, letting in the pool rooms and with but small success.

Spring Stallion Shows.

Every county in California in which horse breeding is carried on to any extent, should arrange a stallion show during the early spring. Nearly every county seat or town of importance has an organization of business men that is generally on the lookout for some at raction that will draw people to the town, and a stallion show if properly managed would be one of the best drawing cards that could be named. The show should take place not later than the 1st of March and should be open to all stallions that will stand for service in that or an adjoining county. It will require no building and no premiums, the object being to give the farmers and horse breeders an opportunity of seeing the horses during the season and to provide a time and place when stallion owners can exhibit their animals to prospective patrons. Prizes can be awarded if thought best, but it will probably give greater satisfaction and attract a larger exhibit if this feature is omitted and the horse show confined to a simple parade of the stock and time given afterwards for an inspection of the horses by all who desire that privilege. Thoroughbred, standard-bred, coach, draft, all purpose, pony and other stallions should all be represented and the male sire, the jack, should not be absent from the parade. A day should be set apart and thoroughly advertised, and every effort made to secure as large a representation as possible. If any stallion owner desires to show some of the produce of his horse, well and good, and the youngsters will be object lessons as to the prepotency of the sire. A well managed spring stallion show would attract a very large number of the farmers to town, and could not help result in profit to all concerned. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN offers this suggestion to the merchant associations of California as a scheme to attract a large crowd at a minimum cost, and hopes it will be acted upon in every county in the State this spring.

N. T. A. Board of Review Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association will be held at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, at 10 o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, December 5, 1899, in accordance with the By-Laws.

W. H. GOCHER,
Secretary.

N. B.—The President authorize the announcement, according to precedent, that either an adjourned or a special meeting of the Board will be held at Chicago, Ill., in the early Spring of 1900, to accommodate those whose convenience or necessities will be served thereby.

All communications intended for the consideration of the Board at the December meeting must be forwarded to the Secretary not later than November 21st; and all parties who desire that their cases should be acted on at the Chicago meeting should immediately notify the Secretary to that effect.

The Board of Review is empowered to act in place of the full Board with the same authority and jurisdiction, and at the above meetings will consider business arising in each and all of the districts.

Cured an Old Case.

NORTH BACONFIELD, Mass., Oct. 26, 1899.

HARROLD & Co.—I have an old mare who had very brittle feet and I fussed with them for twelve years and never found anything that seemed to touch them until I got your Hoof Ointment. Before I had used it two weeks the feet stopped cracking off and now she has long, hard and tough feet. Send me a five pound tin by express at once.

BRANNEAD H. SMITH.

Write to Harrold & Co. 1013 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill., for a copy of their book on the foot of the horse. It will be sent free, postage paid and will tell you how to keep the feet of your horses in good condition at small cost.

FOSTORIA, O., Oct. 12, 1899.

MR. W. F. YOUNG, Springfield, Mass.

Dear Sir: I used the bottle of Absorbine you sent me and it worked all right. It took that lump off the two year old, and every one wanted to know what I used on it. Yours very truly,

JOHN M. LAWCOMB

San Francisco, Saturday, November 25, 1899

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS was paid a auction in New York last Thursday for the stallion Tommy Britton 2:08 1/2, son of Liberty Bell, and therefore a grandson of Bell Boy, one of the famous brothers that came from the union of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells. There were five bidders anxious to get the great young stallion and the bidding went by jumps of $500 until Mr. E. A. Lord, of Chicago, hid the price that secured him. When the hammer fell, Madison Square Garden resounded with applause, as this is the highest price received for a trotting stallion at auction for years and equals the sum paid at private sale last year for the champion Directum 2:05 1/2. Tommy Britton was foaled in 1893. He was bred by Thomas Britton, of Glen View, Ky., and is the winner of nineteen heats in better than 2:10. He is the world's champion stallion for three heats—2:08 1/2, 2:08 3/4 and 2:08 1/2. He is the winner of twenty-two races, was three times second, twice third and twice fourth, out of thirty-two starts in races. This sale shows conclusively that good horses will bring good prices. It proves the contrary of the oft repeated assertion that a fast green horse is worth more than a fast horse with a record. Without his mark Tommy Britton would not have brought half the amount he sold for, even though it had been advertised in every paper and from every bill board that all the big stakes for the green or slow classes were at his mercy next year. The record tells what a horse has done. The eye of the experienced horseman will tell whether he is in condition to do it again. At the same sale Directly 2:03 1/2, still holder of the champion two year old pacing record of the world, 2:07 3/4, was sold for $3000, and it is well known that his record is very close to the limit of his speed. Louise Mc. 2:09 3/4, a six year old chestnut mare, by Little Corporal, that made her record at the trot this year, was knocked down at the same sale for $7500. Extasy, the daughter of Baron Wilkes, that took a two year old pacing record of 2:10 1/2 last year and a three year old trotting record of 2:11 1/2 this year, was sold for $5500. Good prices were obtained in every instance for good horses with records, and for those without records that were known to be fast or were stylish road animals. This sale proves conclusively that the horse market is all right and prices have an upward tendency. However, the breeder who has a band of ordinary horses, no matter how well bred they are, that are undeveloped, and possess no extra qualities, must not expect that he can now drive them to market and dispose of them for long prices. The ordinary horse will only bring an ordinary price. The same conditions prevail with the trotting bred horses as with thoroughbreds. A good looking thoroughbred horse with a pedigree bristling with the names of great sires, great race horses, and great dams, can be bought for $100 on any track in the United States. There are lots of them for sale and many are given away. The reason they are not wanted is because they cannot win races, which is the thing they were bred to do. There are no purses for pedigree or good looks on a race track. Speed is the thing that earns the money. Consequently if a horse has not this qualification he is worth nothing to the racing stable, not even the feed he eats. It is the same with trotting bred stock. When an owner mates a trotting bred mare with a standard stallion and pays from $50 to $100 service fee, he expects to get either a race horse or a first class roadster. If the colt when grown cannot trot fast enough to win races, or does not possess the qualities that make him attractive as a park or road horse, he is worth just the sum a milkman or a huckster will pay for an animal to draw his vehicle on its daily rounds. The day when a pedigree sold a skate is passed. It will not come again. Buyers want horses, and when they fill the bill good prices are readily paid for them.

A GREAT STOCK SHOW is to be held at Chicago in November next year. The different breeding associations have made liberal appropriations for the purpose of being represented, and large premiums will be offered in every class. The Aberdeen Angus, the American Shorthorn and the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association have each appropriated $5000 to be expended in premiums for breeding stock. The Red Polled, the Polled Durham and the Galloway Associations have appropriated $1000 each, and the Cotswold Sheep Record Book Association $500 for the purpose indicated. The live stock and other commercial interests of Chicago expect to add $50,000 to $75,000 to the sums given by the association, to be expended in premiums for fat stock at the exposition. The exposition will be held in the newly erected Dexter Park Amphitheater, at the Union stockyards, the largest and most complete building of its kind in the world, in and around which 4000 animals can be comfortably accommodated. The breeding and feeding of cattle, sheep and hogs is attracting more attention from the farmers of America than ever before, and there has been a vast improvement in the various breeds during recent years. We are of the opinion that the California State Agricultural Society would do a wise thing were it to increase the value of the premiums offered for live stock. At present the first premium offered for the best male or female in all breeding classes of horses and cattle has a value of but $30 which is much too small when the cost of production, the value to the breeding interests of the state, and the expense of exhibiting are taken into consideration. It would be a popular move on the part of the State Fair Directors if they would double the value of the premiums in the horse, cattle, sheep and hog breeding classes next year and make cattle-show days prominent features of the exposition.

A PLAIN DUTY is before every board of directors of the district agricultural associations of California. The laws of the State have provided for the formation of these districts for a definite purpose, the Governor has appointed the directors, and the people look for them to see that the appropriations made by the Legislature are honestly and properly expended in holding the fairs they are intended to aid. A District Fair should be something more than a race meeting combined with the exhibit of a few products of the district. The fair should be one of the big enterprises of the locality in which it is held, and an educator to the farmer, the fruit grower, the stock breeder and the manufacturer. It should be such an exposition as will attract attention from all classes of respectable people who are engaged in honorable pursuits and should be an object lesson of the advantages of the district as a place where homes can be built and money made. There is not a county in California but is, comparatively speaking, sparsely settled. This State, instead of having a population of a million and a half, should and can support ten times that many people, and our civilization would progress accordingly. There is nothing that will aid in this advancement more than district fairs properly conducted. If the boards of directors allow these fairs to run themselves, however, and look upon them as not worthy of devoting time, energy and brains to, they may as well be allowed to go by default. A trust has been put into the hands of every district board of agriculture which it is its duty to fulfill. The district fairs of 1900 should be convincing evidences that the trust has been accepted and its importance realized.

T. E. KEATING, the well known, popular and successful reinsman, is at the Palace Hotel in this city and is looking much better than when he left here last spring. He is having trouble with his eye sight and is under the care of an oculist, but as the sight of but one eye is effected and that but partially it is thought it will respond to treatment and will certainly not grow any worse. Mr. Keating a few days ago concluded to go to the Lane Hospital for treatment, but concluded that he was too well a man to be quartered at an institution for invalids and has taken rooms at the Palace.

MR. FRANK H. DUNTON, the veteran journalist who founded "Dunton's Spirit of the Turf" and has devoted so many years of his life to horse literature, is now a resident of Fairview, Orange county, California, where "the glorious climate" is much to his benefit and consequently to his liking. Our readers will be pleased to know that the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has been promised that in the near future it will receive some contributions from Mr. Dunton's able pen, and the first will probably be on "The Type of Roadsters," a subject to which he has devoted much thought and study and is fully competent to offer suggestions of great value to those who are engaged or desire to engage in the occupation of breeding a type of horse that is now in greater demand than can be supplied. Mr. Dunton is in reasonable health and we hope the balmy skies and warm sunshine of Orange county may serve to lengthen a life that has been one of honor to himself and of use to his fellow men.

COL LAWRENCE KIP died at his residence in New York last week after an illness of ten days. He was a son of the late Bishop Kip of this city, having come to California when quite a young man with his father. He was appointed to West Point and while there was a classmate of Gen. Wesley Merritt. In 1853, after graduating, he was assigned to duty in Washington Territory and fought the Indians there during an outbreak. Col. Kip served in the civil war on the staff of Gen. Sheridan. At the close of the war he married Miss Eva Lorillard and resigned his commission in the army. He took great interest in all matters of genteel sport and was one of the leading officials in the Jockey Club and Vice President of the Horse Show. Colonel Kip was a true gentleman and the value of his influence for all that was honorable and upright in turf affairs can hardly be estimated.

NOW that trotting stakes for yearlings and two year olds have become rather unpopular and are offered by but few associations, many owners find it profitable to make a fall season with their stallions at a reduced rate. Some breeders claim that a fall colt will outgrow a spring colt if the dam is well fed and well cared for during the winter and the colt is weaned during the spring when there is plenty of green feed.

Western Turf Association Stakes.

Eight thousand and five hundred dollars in added money is to be given in three stakes for two year olds, to be run at the spring meetings of 1900, 1901 and 1902 of the Western Turf Association at their beautiful race course, Tanforan Park.

The first of these stakes is called "The Western" and is for foals of 1898 and to be run next year. The entrance is $10 to accompany the nomination, which must be made December 30, 1899. An additional starting fee of $75 will be required. To this stake the sum of $1500 cash is to be added. The distance is five furlongs.

The Western Foal Stakes is set for decision in 1901 and is for foals of 1899, the entrance to be $5 each at the time of closing, December 30, 1899, $20 additional for horses not declared by December 1st of the following year, and $75 additional for starters. To this stake the sum of $2000 in coin will be added. The distance will be the same—five furlongs.

The Western Produce Stakes, is the name selected for an event that will add another to the classic races for two year olds which have been established in this country, and will be the first of the rich stakes for them to be decided each year in America. Its value will certainly be upwards of $25,000, as the generous sum of $5000 is the amount of money to be added to the stakes. California breeders will find this stake particularly favorable to them, as it is to be decided early in the year. It is for foals of 1900, and will close December 30th, at $5 each for mares covered this year. It is really the duty of breeders who wish to see racing in California brought up to the highest standard, and to have decided over our magnificent tracks races that will be considered among the great events of the year, to patronize such stakes as The Western Produce as largely as possible and to enter as many of their mares as they can afford to pay the fee on. The value of thoroughbred horses in England, which for a century has been on the rise, and is now greater than ever, is owing to the many rich stakes and the high class character of the racing, which is looked upon there as the grandest sport in the world, and patronized by the very best people in the kingdom. Breeders can assist in making racing more popular here by entering liberally and thereby raising the value of these stakes. The full conditions of these two year old events appear in our advertising columns.

The Antrim Yearlings.

On Monday evening next at the Occidental Horse Exchange, the yearlings from Chas. Kerr's Antrim farm will be sold. There are thirty of them, all fine large youngsters of excellent breeding, and they will go to the highest bidder.

Napa Stock Farm Yearlings.

There will be thirty-nine yearling thoroughbreds consigned to the salesring, December 14th, by Mr. A. B. Spreckels, proprietor of the Napa Stock Farm. Horsemen who have seen this band of youngsters say that it is beyond doubt the best lot ever raised on this well known farm, and that no breeding farm in America can turn out a better looking hand of colts and fillies, either for size, form or individuality. They are by the stallions Eolo, General Miles, imp. The Judge, imp. Crighton, and the lately deceased stallion imp. Idalium, full brother to Sir Modred and Chaviot. The dams of these yearlings are many of them the dams of winners, and all are royally bred. There is not a colt or filly in the consignment that has ever been speeded or tried out. All have been broken, however, and know how to go around a track, and having been handled daily and walked and cantered are ready to put into training and raced within 30 days after the sale. California buyers are greatly favored by having an opportunity to bid on the colts here at home, as had they been sent to the eastern salesrings, where buyers and money are more plentiful they would surely have brought larger prices than can be obtained for them here. Mr. Spreckels has arranged with Mr. Frank W. Covey, the well known and popular Superintendent of Palo Alto Stock Farm, to act as auctioneer at this sale, which will be held at the Occidental Horse Exchange, on Thursday evening, December 14th. Following is a list of those to be offered on this occasion:

- Alma Vale, brown filly by Idalium—Alma Dale.
- Andover, brown filly by Idalium—Annie Race.
- Bellerophon, chestnut colt by Genl. Miles—Bellguard.
- Boronia, brown filly by Crighton—Borden Lassie.
- Floranthe, chestnut filly by Eolo—Florence B.
- Metacombel, chestnut colt by The Judge—Meta II.
- Annesley, bay colt by Idalium—imp. Attosa.
- Pequilla, chestnut filly by Idalium—Piquante.
- Utopos, bay colt by Eolo—Umatilla.
- Glittering, black colt by Idalium—Glitter.
- Melantente, bay filly by Genl. Miles—Melanie.
- Luculent, chestnut filly by Crighton—Lucille.
- Saccharoid, bay filly by The Judge—Sacharrisa.
- Ravelling, bay colt by Ravelston—Elmineta.
- Mr. Punch, chestnut colt by Eolo—Irene E.
- Triolita, bay filly by Crighton—Troga II.
- Carrophyllis, bay filly by Idalium—Carnation.
- Grace Cup, bay filly by Puryear D.—Grace S.
- Nozumbege, bay filly by The Judge—Norumbega.
- My Lady, brown filly by Eolo—Irene E.
- Chareton, bay colt by Genl. Miles—Chartreuse.
- Follow Me, bay colt by Idalium—Folly.
- Fridolin, bay filly by The Judge—Frisa.
- Griscomb, bay filly by Eolo—Griselda.
- George Dewey, bay colt by Genl. Miles—Georgia.
- Nellgourie, chestnut filly by Idalium—Nellie Bell.
- Cambacres, black colt by Idalium—imp. Candid.
- Peal Etire, bay colt by Genl. Miles—Viellesicht.
- Bride-Ale, chestnut filly by Eolo—Bridal Veil.
- The Ravel, chestnut filly by Ravelston—Therese.
- Pioned, bay colt by Idalium—Pigna II.
- Eolo Lass, chestnut filly by Eolo—Miss Douglas II.
- Peg-along, bay colt by Crighton—Sweet Peggy.
- Cavanagh, bay colt by Idalium—Lady Cleveland.
- Pate de Fois, bay filly by The Judge—Patricia.
- Beelzebub, bay colt by Crighton—Lista Hock.
- _____ bay filly by Crighton—Victory.
- _____ chestnut colt by Crighton—Fatima II.
- _____ brown colt by Eolo—Fragic.

The last three of the 39 head are not yet officially named, though all have been officially registered. The names first sent on for these three had been previously claimed, and return has not been made at this writing on the second list of names sent in.

California Jockey Club Futurity.

Nothing more effective has been done by the California Jockey Club to elevate the class of racing on this Coast, and give it a permanency, than the establishing of the Futurity Stakes for two year olds, to which the very generous sum of $8750 will be added, and which will be run for the first time during the December meeting of 1902. The stake, owing to its prospective great value and peculiar conditions by which there will be no forfeits for the winners to collect, the whole sum being paid in U. S. Gold coin, has attracted the attention of the racing world, and it is almost a foregone conclusion that the race will be worth more than $25,000 to the winner, a fortune in itself and a sum that will support one in ease and comfort during a lifetime. Good judges estimate that the stake will be easily worth $50,000 cash, which is to be divided between the owners and the breeders of the first, second and third horses. The stake will close Tuesday, January 2, 1900, and there should be a response to it from every owner who has bred a mare this year. The race will be run out of the new Futurity chute at the Oakland track, the distance being about six and a half furlongs, and the winner of this classic will be classed among the greatest, if not the greatest, two year old of his year. It is more than probable that the first running of this great stake will attract a crowd of twenty thousand people, a larger crowd than has ever been seen on a California track. The conditions of the stake are all set forth in our advertising columns.

The winter meeting of the Crescent Jockey Club at New Orleans will open on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 30, and continue to within a few days of the meeting of Memphis in April. The prospects for a good meeting are very encouraging.

Sale of Wintere' Yearlinge.

A notable sale of thoroughbred yearlings will be held at Chase & Mendenhall's salesyard, corner of Van Ness avenue and Market street, in this city, next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This is the consignment of fifteen yearlings and two two year olds from the Rancho del Sierras, the property of that veteran and very successful breeder, Theodore Winters Esq. No breeder living has so universally and uniformly bred champion race horses as has Theodore Winters. Mr. Winters is an intelligent and progressive breeder, and his experience has taught him that only the best will pay to breed from, and carrying out this idea he has eliminated from his stud all save producing dams, and these, bred to his great young sires, must give the desired results. The majority of the colts and fillies are by the unbeaten El Rio Rey and Rey del Sierras, own brother to Yo Tambian (queen of the American turf). The greatest matron in the American Stud Book is Marion, the dam of the above horses, and all of her sons that are in the stud have proven producers. Duke of Norfolk, with limited opportunities, gave us Duke Stevens, Carmen, Carmel, True Blue, Duke of York, Laurelwood, Nelson, etc. Prince of Norfolk sired such consistent horses as Rey Alfonso, Rey del Sierra, Tigress, etc. Emperor of Norfolk sired Americus, formerly Rey del Carreras, one of the fastest horses of the turf, Estaca, Lady Diamond, Reddington, Empress of Norfolk, Bernardillo, etc. Rey del Rey produced Skyscraper, a frequent winner on metropolitan tracks during the past season. El Rio Rey, amongst others, has got Scarborough, Belle Boyd, Uncle Giles, Caliente, etc. Rey del Sierras has sired Princess Zeika, Silver Bullion. But three of his colts have been started, and all are winners. The sire represented is Lordlike, who was a good race horse, and his blood lines cannot fail to produce. He being sired by Vassel, by Vandal, best son of Glencoe (imp.), and his dam being Ladylike, by Leamington (imp.) All of the colts presented trace directly to famous racing families, and are bred up to a high standard of excellence. Any one purchasing a colt must get one that can win a race, and amongst them must be some "prize packages."

The horses will all be at the yard Sunday (to-morrow) where they can be inspected by intending purchasers.

Two Great Stakes.

We desire to call the attention of the breeders and owners of thoroughbreds to the two splendid stakes offered by the Westchester Racing Association to be run at Morris Park, one in the spring of 1901, the other in the fall of 1902. The first of these is the National Stallion for foals of this year, the progeny of stallions already named, a complete list of which will be found in the official advertisement in another part of this paper. The conditions state that entries will close on midnight of Tuesday, December 5, 1899, at $10 each for colts and $5 each for fillies. The Westchester Racing Association to add $4000 and 50 per cent of the subscription for stallions. The remaining 50 per cent to the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third. Colts to carry 122 lbs., geldings and fillies 119 lbs. Last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course. The other stake is The Matron for the produce of mares covered in 1899, foals of 1900, to be run in 1902. Subscription for mares will close Tuesday, December 5, 1899, at $20 each. In this stake the colts and fillies will run separately, $3000 to be added money in each instance. It will be noticed on reading the conditions that special advantages are offered the fillies in these stakes, they running for half fees, as colts are charged in the Stallion, and run by themselves in the Matron, which will have over the Eclipse Course.

The Bike Doctor.

Kentucky the hiker has a lot of new solkies that are worth inspection. There has been improvement every year in the manufacturers of these necessary adjuncts to a trotter or pacer's outfit and Kenny has not only kept up with the progression but has always been a little in advance. He can repair an injured hiker so that it will be as good as new, and there are no hiker ailments that he cannot cure. Go out to 531 Valencia and tell him your troubles.

An action was commenced in the Superior Court of Sonoma county this week by George R. Eaton, as the assignee of Mary E. Pleasant against Teresa Bell and R. Porter Ashe, in which the plaintiff asks the court to decree that the purported deed made by Mrs. Pleasant in favor of Teresa Bell to the Ruinat Stock Farm, near Glen Ellen, consisting of nearly 1000 acres, and the lease of the property are null and void. The plaintiff alleges that Mrs. Pleasant gave the deed in 1895 for the purpose of defrauding her creditors, and that Mrs. Bell never received the same. It is also alleged that the defendant Ashe knew the conditions when the lease of the property was made to him.

The American two year old gelding Democrat, by Sensation, dam Equality, is now the favorite for next year's English Derby. He won this season the Middle Park Plate and the Dewhurst Plate, a feat never before accomplished by the same two year old. In the Dawnhurst Plate he carried a ten pound penalty for winning the Middle Park Plate.

The Horse-Having His Innings.

Cartoons depicting "the passing of the horse" do not appear so often in the newspapers these days as they did when the bicycle and the automobile threatened to put the noble equine out of the business except as far as the performance of mere manual labor was concerned.

The belief that the days of the animal as a motive power were past was so general that thousands of farmers ceased raising horses for the market, and the value of the great horse ranches depreciated to almost nothing. Out on the plains where horses are raised by the thousands, men were told to take their pick of a herd at from $3 to $10 apiece, while a good broncho could be bought for $2. In the cities the demand for horses stopped almost completely, except for animals used for all sorts of teaming and expressing, and a few for cab and carriage purposes. The road drivers and a small proportion of old folks were about the only members of the urban population left who clung to the discredited beast as their companion on pleasure jaunts. And even these few were crowded off their usual drives in the parks and on the horsewards by the crush of the "noiseless steeds."

The revenge of the horse has come. When he was turned out to die, as the bicycle fiends confidently thought and predicted, he patiently browsed and hid his time. Now, he comes out of the pasture sleek and fat, and is welcomed back to the stall from which he was evicted to afford shelter for the wheel, which, in turn, has been relegated to the cellar or lumber room. The livery stable men have crowded stables and more customers than they can accommodate, while scores of bicycle shops have "For Rent" signs in the windows, and the once opulent and independent repair man who still hangs on ekes out a living by fixing up old sewing machines and making keys and things. The automatic "wind machines" now expand collapsed tires at one cent each, while the man who used to supply air at five and ten cents is out of a job. And even the wind machines are getting rusty.

The value of all kinds of good pleasure horses has appreciated from 50 to 100 per cent during the last two years.—N. Y. Telegraph.

Mejor McDowell Dies at Ashland.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 18.—Major H. C. McDowell, the famous breeder of running and trotting horses, died here this afternoon. He had been in poor health for several months, and his death was not unexpected.

There were few better known men in Kentucky than Major McDowell, and his death will be greatly regretted not only in this State, but wherever good horses are known and valued.

He had done more than any other man to maintain the reputation of Kentucky bred horses, and from his breeding farm, Ashland, on the outskirts of Lexington, had come some of the best runners and trotters the turf has known.

Major McDowell was a picturesque figure. He was tall and handsome, with snow white hair.

Although about sixty-five years of age, he was as active a many men who had not lived half his years.

He married a granddaughter of Henry Clay, and purchasing the Clay estate, Ashland, not only restored it, but transformed it into a high class horse breeding farm, in accordance with plans which Clay had himself for med.

The house he erected was built upon the exact lines of the old Clay mansion. Major McDowell was himself connected with the Clay family, and took pride in carrying out as a horse breeder some of the views of the former statesman. In politics he was a Republican. Among his famous horses was the stallion King Rene, whose colts have been famous as trotters all over the country. T. C. McDowell, who visited the Eastern tracks during the past season with a string of high class thoroughbreds, is a son of Major McDowell and the horses came from Ashland. He will continue the breeding business so successfully established and maintained by his father.

To Stallion Owners.

The quickest and best method of bringing the merits of your horse to the attention of owners of both standard and thoroughbred broodmares is to advertise in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. No medium for announcements of this description is in any way equal to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it reaches all the breeders, owners, racing men and sportsmen generally throughout the Pacific Coast.

An Additional Inducement

A special article, together with a tabulated pedigree of the sire advertised during the coming stallion season will be published. This is an advantage to advertisers of stallions that is too obvious to need further comment. Owners of broodmares are now seriously considering the selection of the stallion to breed to, and advertisements that appear early will make a greater impression than if held back until later in the season.

Sulky Notes.

GOOD horses are advancing.

PASTURAGE is excellent already.

HAY will be cheap for some time.

THEREFORE breed all your good mares to good stallions.

THE latest returns give Axtell fourteen new performers.

THE Stockton track will be kept in order for training next spring.

ELLERBE 2:08½, by Axtell, brought $4700 at auction at New York last Monday.

JOHN PENDER will winter his string of harness horses at Vancouver, Washington.

D. GEES is at Village Farm, selecting a lot of green ones to drill this winter.

A FUND of $5000 has already been subscribed towards a barns meeting at Tacomas, Wash., next year.

EXTASY 2:11½, is credited with a lot of hard luck this season, but nevertheless she won nearly $10,000

It is said Darrel 2:07½, beat Bumps the first time they met on the New York speedway, but has been lame since.

SANTA RITA 2:24½, the Sidney mare that produced Simeta 2:17½ and San Te Ta 2:25, has been bred to Hal Dillard 2:04½.

On every pleasant Sunday afternoon over two thousand people can be found lined up along the New York speedway.

CHIMES has six new ones in the 2:30 list this year, and three with reduced records, The Abbot 2:06½ being the fastest.

THE New England reinsman Lon McDonald, won thirty-eight races this year. This is about the best record for the season.

SECRETARY FRANK P. KENNEY, of the Louisville Fair and Driving Association, expects to visit California during this winter.

THE gray trotting gelding Success, by Superior, was returned to the Du Bois Farm by McHenry, and was not sold as was reported.

PLEASANTON will be more of a horse centre than ever this spring. There will be over a hundred trotters and pacers in training there.

SAM CASTO has the McKinney mare Solo 2:23, in his stable at Portland, Oregon, she having recently been sold to a gentleman of that city.

OKLAHOMA is not a very healthy place for horse thieves we should judge, as the Anti-Horse Thief Association of that territory numbers 3000.

JOHN KELLY will train but four horses for next season's campaign—Larabie the Great 2:12½, Lucy Carr 2:14½ and a couple of fast green ones.

A FOUR YEAR OLD green trotter by McKinney has recently been purchased by S. Madison of Vancouver B. C. and will be campaigned next year.

A REPORT comes from Vallejo that a number of trainers have applied for stalls there and will begin work on their horses soon after the new year opens.

THE export demand for high class horses of all kinds is better than it ever was since it assumed important proportions. The Englishmen lead in the buying.

THE San Jose track will be quite a lively place before long. There are fifty or sixty horses now being jogged there preparatory to giving them fast work in the spring.

AT a sale of horses in Nashville last week, which included a consignment of trotters from Clover Bottom Farm, fifty-six head were disposed of for $6355, an average of $113.

SID DUFFEE 2:21½, the horse that James Farris Jr. sold at Cleveland last year, went through the Splan-Newgass sale at Chicago two weeks ago and changed hands for $510.

HAL B. 2:04½ is running out in a paddock on the farm of J. J. Jermy, at Scranton, Pa. He will be taken up in a couple of months and fitted for the campaign of 1900.

PASONTE 2:13, was again sold at auction by Fasig-Tipton in New York last Monday. The daughter of Palo Alto brought $2500 and was purchased by J. H. Schultz of Parkville.

THE 2:30 list is assuming very large proportions, but it is the 2:20 list that is the test of a sire, and it will not be more than a decade when the 2:15 list will be about the only one quoted.

It is said that an Eastern breeder has bought Rosy Morn, dam of Boreal 2:15½, for $5000. It is also said that an offer of $15,000 has been made for Bow Bells 2:19½, the sire of Boreal.

ED LAFFERTY, one of the most careful and most successful trainers in California, will have a public training stable this year and there will be some mighty good green ones in it. He will have Addison 2:11½ and having accidents this horse will be a 2:10 performer for James Madison next year sure.

THE two year old gelding trotting record was the one that suffered most severely during the season just passed. Endow cut that from 2:18, where Fred P. Moody left it in 1895, to 2:14½.

JOHN DICKERSON will winter about thirty-five head of trotters and pacers at the Parkway Farm, Gosher, New York, including the two stallions Joe Patchen 2:01½ and Fred Kohl 2:07½.

W. T. CHESTER figures out that descendants of George Wilkes won $220,000 and descendants of Electioneer $149,450, at meetings where the purses averaged $1000 or more during the past season.

OCTOBER 13, 1845—fifty four years ago—Lady Suffolk trotted her first mile (2:29½) below 2:30 and started the 2:30 list, and now about 16,000 have done the trick, and lowered the record 25½ seconds.

AN exchange credits John Splan with saying that the difference between theory and notion is that theory is the outgrowth of thought, study and experience, and a notion comes from a bad liver or stomach.

GEORGE STARR has closed a contract to train for Mr. William Simpson of Empire City S. C. next season. It is not known yet where Mr. Starr will do the training. He has twelve horses in his barn at Terre Haute.

CHARLES WELLAND is one of the most prominent of the New York speedway drivers, and always drives a good horse. He has a green one called Queen Wilkes, which is one of the fastest driven on that celebrated road.

THE Oregon and Washington circuit for 1900 will be far ahead of anything heretofore attempted in the northwest. There will be more meetings, better tracks, larger purses and faster horses than ever before seen there.

A. G. STICE, Los Angeles, Cal., purchased of John Holliday, Kirkwood, Ill., on October 4th, the two year old filly, Mayaign, by Ensign 2:28, dam by Tribune 2:24½; granddam by Tribune 2:25½; third dam by Ambassador.

SEATTLE is to have a trotting track. Sheriff Van de Vanter, Dr. H. F. Smith, William Beland and other well known and enthusiastic horsemen are connected with the new enterprise, which is certain to be a success.

WHILE six stallions trotted this season in 2:08 or better, namely, Bingen 2:06½, Crescens 2:07½, Peter the Great 2:07½, Juno 2:07½, Fred Kohl 2:07½ and Tommy Britton 2:08, no mare has shown anything like championship speed.

T. E. KEATING's pacer Coney 2:07½ by McKinney 2:11½, was sold at the Fasig-Tipton auction in New York last Tuesday. D. W. Mahoney of White Plains, New York, was the purchaser of this swift but erratic pacer and his bid was $1160.

CHAS. WELBY recently sold his stallion Tennysonian by Electricity (sire of Surpol 2:10), out of a mare by Sidney, to Dr. Powell Reeves of Seattle. This horse was never trained but can show a very fast gait and is as handsome a stallion as was ever raised in California.

THE boxes for the National Horse Show in New York were sold at auction for a total of $27,100; more than $1000 in excess of last year's aggregate. O. H. P. Belmont paid $450 for the first selection, which is the largest price that a single box has sold for since 1896.

ALL the stalls at the Alameda track will be filled soon after New Year's, and by the first of February track work will begin in earnest on the trotters and pacers. A dozen or more trainers will be located at or near this excellent training track. A hundred new stalls could be readily rented there.

MR. A. K. WARE, owner of Alcantara Stock Farm in Wisconsin, reports Alcantara as "fat as a seal and lively as a kitten." He says the old horse carries his years remarkably well, and he seems good for four or five years more. He bred only three mares of his own to him last year and they are all in foal.

HARRY F. PATRICK, one of San Francisco's level headed and prosperous young business men, an enthusiastic road driver and owner of good horses, became a benedict this week, having been notified in marriage last Wednesday with Miss Stella Smiley, a handsome and accomplished young lady of Placer county, California.

C. T. CHAPIN, president of the Gentlemen's Driving Club and the Rochester Trotting Association, Rochester, N. Y., recently refused an offer of $5000 for his pacer gelding Conner 2:10½, by C. F. Clay. Conner paced the Rochester track in 2:07½, a few weeks ago, driven by his owner, and trainer Fred Dmmond has stepped him a mile in 2:07½.

THE New York Speedway may be covered with straw this winter so that it may be driven over by the horsemen without interruption. Charter Oak Park track is to be covered with sea weed, sixty tons having been shipped there from Naugatuck for that purpose. It is claimed this will give new life to the track when turned under in the spring.

ORRIN HICKOK, the veteran reinsman, returned this week from Kentucky and will spend the winter, as usual, in San Francisco. Before leaving Lexington Mr. Hickok turned out the fast filly Sarah Maddern, by Axtell, that he drove a mile in 2:13½ a few weeks ago. She will be allowed to run out until next spring. Sarah Maddern is a three year old.

HARRY BROOKE is jogging at Reno, Nevada, a handsome black mare by Brown Jug, first dam by Queen Sabo, second dam by Geo. M. Patchen. She is called Peggy and is owned by Frank Ferrel of Reno. She won several races this year on the Nevada circuit and has shown a mile in 2:17. She will be campaigned in California next year in all probability.

THE turf papers are all giving Calvin 2:28½ as by Direct, out of Lilly Langtry, the dam of Ed. B. Young 2:11½. Judge Greene, of Oakland, who owns Lilly Langtry, says that the only one of the get of this mare which is the age and sex of Calvin as given in the papers, was sired by Direct Line 22,117, son of Director and Lidia W., the dam of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½.

KENTUCKY UNION 2:07½ sold at auction in New York last Tuesday for $3300, and was purchased by Jack Curry, presumably for Richard Croker. This mare is ten years old, and is unclassified, but is a good roadster and can pull a wagon on the speedway about as fast as any of them. She made her record in 1896 at Indianapolis in one of the fastest races ever trotted, the heats being 2:07½, 2:07½ and 2:09.

SILVESTER V. TRUEN, of San Jose, has recently purchased from George Cunningham of Reno, Nevada, for $1000 in gold coin, the mare Princess Wilkes, by Clarence Wilkes, first dam by Dexter Prince, second dam by Nutwood, third dam by General Taylor, fourth dam thoroughbred. Princess Wilkes, has trotted a mile in 2:30 according to the Reno Journal, and has the ability to get a record of 2:15 or better next year.

TOMMY MURPHY, the scientific farrier, will open his horse shoeing shop at 22 Golden Gate avenue, this city, on the first of next month. The sign which will adorn the front of the shop (which will be called the Searchlight) is a unique piece of work and contains portraits of the four champions that have been shod by Mr. Murphy, viz, Star Pointer 1:59½, Joe Patchen 2:01½, Searchlight 2:03½ and Anaconda 2:03½.

THE speedway in the park has been closed to the public most of the time during the past two or three weeks owing to the rains which make the track unfit to drive on. By keeping the gates closed and the horses off the course, a day of warm sunshine puts it in shape for driving over and the track is never cut up as would be the case were the gates left open. The park roads are in good shape for driving all the time, though too hard for fast work.

BUDD DOBLE came up from Gilroy this week. He received a telegram a few days ago from Sam Gamble, who had then reached Council Bluffs with the horses consigned to the Fasig-Tipton sale and all were in good shape at that time. These horses will probably be sold to-day at Madison Square Garden. Mr. Doble has a half dozen well bred and handsome roadsters at the Gilroy track and all are for sale. For the present he will make that town his headquarters.

THE Golden Gate Park Driving Association of this city will shortly reorganize and adopt a new constitution and by-laws. There is much enthusiasm among the members over the future of the association and the meetings held in the new quarters at the Palaca Hotel are always well attended. If there were a track in this county that could be used by the members to drive their horses and hold their races over, it would add much to the popularity of the contests. During the coming year an extra effort will be put forward by the association to have a track of its own.

THE Northern Pacific railroad has completed arrangements for the transportation of 9000 horses from Central Washington points to St. Paul and Eastern points. The first trainload will arrive in St. Paul within a day or two. The transportation of 9000 horses will require 350 cars, each containing 25 horses. These horses are a small fraction of the range horses in the West, which are as a drug on the Western market. It is the intention of the movers in the enterprise to break the consignments into smaller lots and scatter them throughout the Eastern states.—Rural Spirit.

SANTA ROSA, Napa, Vallejo, Woodland, Willows, Chico, Red Bluff, Marysville, San Jose and Salinas should all be able to hold first class fairs next year as none of them have drawn on the State for any money in 1899 and their entire appropriations will be available for 1900. There are many other districts in the State that are in the same position but these are the principal ones in the central portion of the State and that can be placed in a grand circuit when it is arranged. There is no reason why harness racing should not begin in June in California next year, and if the hook-maker is kept off the tracks and a strong effort made to provide racing that will please the public, there can be a very successful and profitable circuit of fairs.

RED NUTLING 2:13, a mare bred by Mrs. F. C. Meyers of this State, was lost together with the eight year old Palo Alto bred horse Esparto Rex 2:15½, by Piedmont, and a number of other high class horses, when the steamer Patria, which left New York Nov. 4th, foundered and sunk. The Patria was bound for Europe, and aboard of her was about $20,000 worth of trotting horses that had but recently been purchased in the United States by Mr. Issod Schlesinger, the well known horse dealer of Austria. Esparto Rex was one of the best bred trotters ever sent to Europe, and was purchased for stud purposes. His dam was Extra, by Electioneer, and his second dam the famous thoroughbred mare Esther, the dam of the running horse Del Norte; and of the trotters Kelly 2:27, Elwina (2) 2:27, and Expressive (3) 2:12½.

GRIFFIN writes as follows in Turf, Field and Farm: Mr. J. C. McKinney, of Terrace Farm, Titusville, Pa., has purchased from Village Farm the nucleus of a trotting stud. The stallion he selected is Invincible, a two year old brother to Dare Devil 2:09½, being by Mambrino King, dam Mercedes by Chimes. Six mares purchased were American Belle 2:12½, by Rex American, dam Beautiful Chimes; Lady in Waiting, sister of Ed Easton, 4 2:09½, and Beautiful Chimes, dam of American Belle, 2 2:12½, by Chimes, dam Maid of Honor; Sartoria, by Mambrino King, Jam Satory, dam of Mandolin 2:16 and grand dam of Dare Devil 2:09½, by Almonarch; Lady Fanciful, by Lord of the Manor, brother of the world's champion pacer mare, Lady of the Manor; 2:04½, dam Fancy Regent, by Prince Regent 2:16½, this being one of the best bred fillies living; Olga Chimes, by Chimes, dam Daisy King, by Mambrino King; and Joan Chimes, by Chimes, dam Joan, by Almont Jr. Mr. McKinney is a new man to the business, but he is building well.

Death of Idalium.

The imported stallion Idalium, brother to Sir Modred and Chevoit, died at A. B. Spreckels Naps Stock Farm last week. Idalium was bred at the Middle Park Stud, New Zealand, and was brought to this country by R. E. deB. Lopez Esq., of Pleasanton, Cal. He was foaled in 1878, and was by Traducer, out of Idalia, by Cambuscan. Previous to coming to America Idalium sired many good winners, though he was not given the best opportunities. Among his winners sired in California are Miss Pollard, Theresa, The Plungar, Aluminium, Little P. G. and others. Idalia, dam of Idalium, is called the Pocahontas of New Zealand, Traducer, sire of Idalium, was the champion sire of New Zealand for years. He got Lurelin (dam of Darelin), Welcome Jack, Calumny, Vanguard, Piscaticus, Diheller, Siesta, Trump Card and many other turf stars. A number of Idalium's get will be sold at the sale of Sprackels yearlings in this city on the 14th of next month.

English Racing Records.

A list number of the London Sportsman gives the following records of the fastest performances on this English turf at distances from five furlongs up to a mile and three quarters: Five furlongs, Le Bonf..... 0:59 2 5 Six furlongs, Serpentina..... 1:12 2 5 One mile, Harrow..... 1:35 4 5 Rowley mile (1 m. 11 yds.), Galtee Mora..... 1:40 3 5 One mile and a quarter, Clarendon..... 2:01 1 5 One mile and three furlongs, Fatherless..... 2:19 2 5 One mile and a half, Nunsuch..... 2:37 3 4 One mile and three quarters, Florizell II..... 2:59 1 5

SADDLE NOTES.

DEWEY, the colt that won the Caulfield cup last month in Australia, is by Lochial, a son of Prince Charlia.

KENTUCKY horse breeders are contemplating asking the Legislatura to limit racing to fifteen days on any one track.

MERIMEE won the Melbourne Cup this year and is a three year old by Bill of Portland, the sire of last year's winner, Bohadil.

LONG SHOT CONLEY made his first appearance in the saddle on Monday and received a round of applause from the grand stand as he went to the post.

DON CLARENCO, by Surinam, dam imp. Palome, will be retired to the stud. On account of his dicky legs he was barred by the Newport officials this year.

A REVERSION to the old method of starting with a flag was tried at Bennings, but it proved such a dismal failure that the gate was put up and is now in use there.

THE California Jockey Club publishes in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN the full conditions of its new Futurity Stakes, to which $8750 has been added.

MERRY DAY, a chestnut colt by Eolus, ran six furlongs at the Newport track last Saturday in 1:12 1/2, a new record for the track and within a quarter of a second of the world's record.

JOCKEY R. CLAWSON was married recently to the eldest daughter of James McLaughlin and is spending the honeymoon in Washington. He will go to New Orleans for the winter racing season.

THE opening day at Oakland proved most disastrous to the talent, not a favorite winning during the afternoon; long shots were dropping out of the clouds and the hookmakers reaped a rich harvest.

FLOA S., the bay mare by John Hspvy, out of Nanny Hubbard by Hubbard, is now owned by E. P. McDaniel, District Attorney of Yuba county. She was bred to Texarkana last year and is undoubtedly in foal to that horse.

DR ROWELL'S horses, after a two weeks' rest, came out fresh and succeeded in winning all of their starts. The Doctor has been very successful in his handling of old cripples and has won many races with what was supposed to be worn out racing material.

EDWARD HOPPER arrived in San Francisco last Sunday, and on Monday took his place in the judges' stand at Oakland. Mr. F. E. Mulholland retired from the pignoda and resumed the position of patrol judge, Horace Egbert going back to the press stand.

FRANK W. COVEY, who is in New York with the Palo Alto horses to be sold at Madison Square Garden, will return in time to act as auctioneer for the sale of A. B. Spreckels' thoroughbred yearlings, which will take place at the Occidental Horse Exchange December 14th.

MR. ROBERT GOELET, whose colors, carise and gray, have been recently registered with the Jockey Club, is a notahla addition to the ranks of turfmen. He is now getting together a carefully selected and choicé lot of horses, which he will race next season.

WHAT with two Riefs, J. H. Martin, Toftarolo, Tod Sloan, Materton and Sims, English jockeys look like being at a discount (says a London paper). Apparently not only are our horses not what they were, but neither are our jockeys. What is to be the end of all this?

THE Westchester Bacing Association announces in our advertising columns the conditions of the National Stallion Race of 1901, with $4000 added, and The Matron of 1902 with $6000 added. The entries to both these events will close December 5, 1899, at midnight.

JOCKEY SPENCER has been riding in bad luck since his return from New York; he had not ridden a winner up to the close of the Tanforan meeting and the hookmakers were disposed to lay long prices about his mounts. He broke the spell at Oakland on Tuesday, however, and rode two winners.

AT this time last season there was a dearth of light weight riding talent on local tracks and many horses which were in acceptance of allowances lost all chance of winning on account of the absence of light jockeys. This year with such boys as J. Martin, J. Walsh and J. Ranch in the saddle those who have a preference for the lighted weighted horses may have sure of a ride for their money.

ORMONDE, St. Carlo and Orsini, the three stallions leased by Mr. W. O'B. Macdonough to Rancho del Paso, were taken to that breeding farm last week. Superintendent John Mackay will change the plan of caring for Ormonde—that has been heretofore adopted and confidently believes he will prove a very potent sire this season. Ormonde looks the very picture of robust health at present.

THERE are comparatively few trainers quartered at Morris Park this winter. Seeing that the stabling there is of the best, and there is plenty of paddock room, the reason is hard to find, but the fact remains that trainers don't flock to the Jockey Club track as might be expected. The list is approximately as follows: A. J. Joyner, T. Hesley, W. Karrick, Woods (in charge of the Ocoela stable), J. Boden, J. McLaughlin, W. Smith and J. W. Rogers.

IT was twenty-three years ago at the Lexington track (to be exact the date was May 13, 1876) when Aristides, a four year old son of imp. Leamington and Sarong, by Lexington, carrying 104 pounds, ran two miles and a half in four minutes and twenty-seven and a half seconds, which has since stood as the record. At the Newport track, near Cincinnati, last Saturday Kyrat, a three year old maiden by Teuton, son of Ten Broeck, cut Aristides' record three full seconds.

AT the Hawkes Bay Jockey Club meeting in New Zealand the colored jockey Jerry Chorn, who was ruled off here in California some years ago, and went to Australia with an Afr-American minstrel combination, was allowed to ride the chestnut gelding Autal, by Dreadnaught, and now, Jerry had not forgotten how to ride and the New Zealand "Referee" says he has got his horse away in the lead and riding a la Sloan, "never allowed the opposition the slightest chance of getting on terms."

LAST Saturday Tanforan Park closed its gates after a fairly successful two weeks' racing. The most important event on the card was the San Mateo Stakes over a mile of ground, which was captured by W. Shields' brown gelding Zoroaster, son of Rayon d'Or—imp. Astoria. The get of Rayon d'Or have always been most uncertain racing propositions, notahla of which are Tenny, Rubicon, Tea Tray and others, all of which though high class have been thoroughly unreliable. Zoroaster, however, has shown himself to be a most consistent performer, seldom finishing outside the money and winning the majority of his races. His performance in the San Mateo Stakes was an exceptionally good one; carrying about fourteen more pounds than he likes, cut off on the first turn and badly messed about, he ran round his field and although stopping at the end, gamely stood a hard drive and won out by half a length.

THE Doncaster St. Leer Stakes for 1901 for three year olds closed on September 12th, with 256 entries, among which are the following American-bred horses: A. Belmont's, ch c by Henry of Navarre—Echantress, and ch c by Henry of Navarre—imp. St. Bridget; Lord William Beresford's h g by imp. Goldfinch—Reclare; ch e by imp. Goldfinch—Miss Modred; h c by Hanover—Bessie Hincley, and ch c by Onondaga—Henrietta. W. Broderick Clete's b c, by imp. Top Gallant—Flavia, and ch f by imp. Goldfinch—La Bella Juive; P. Lorillard's h c Hamilar by Sensation—Hops IV; ch c Exedo, by Sensation—Lizs; h c Mirus, by imp The Sailor Prince—Magnetic; hr c Vasto, by imp. The Sailor Prince—Vesta; br f 8 sts, by imp. The Sailor Prince—Sprinter; h f Bevers, by imp. The Sailor Prince—Rizpoh; h f Aetna, by imp. The Sailor Prince—Aline, and h f Scythia, by imp. The Sailor Prince—Saluda; L. McCreery's c c, by Onondaga—Patty of Cork.

WHAT would a jockey of the present day say to such a costume as this: A black velvet cap with a long French peak, and a bow of black ribbon behind; long hair falling to his shoulders; a white cambric neckcloth of ample folds tied at the back; a long body coat with flaps, wide skirt, three buttons at the sides, where it opened as well as in front and behind; knee breeches strapped just below the knee; white cotton stockings, and black leather Oxford shoes with long tongues and silver buckles. Yet such was the dress worn by the winners of the first Derby. The inconvenience of riding a close finish over Epsom Down, or the Heath at Newmarket, or Ascot, with a high wind blowing, in these long tails, naturally led to a compromise. Necessity is the mother of invention, and some early jockey—there was no chronicle to show who he was—hit upon a happy idea, and tucked his skirts inside his breeches. The next step towards the costume of the modern jockey was to curtail these appendages, and after that the transition was easy to the racing rig with which we are now familiar.

EDWARD KEARNEY, on account of had health, has resigned the presidency of the Saratoga Racing Association and G. Walburn will succeed him.

HOW I WENT NAP AND GOT IT.

N a certain Derby Day—there is no necessity to specify which particular one—it would have been hard to find among the crowd assembled in Epsom's famous paddock half an hour or so before the great race, all agog for a glimpse of the equine heroes of the hour, more excited or anxious spectator than my humble self.

The reason for this was not far to seek, and was, I venture to think, pardonable under the circumstances. After twenty-two attempts, in as many years, I had at last succeeded in drawing the first favorite of the Derby in the lottery at my club. Sell my chance? Not I! Nor half of it, or even a quarter?

Nay: I even increased my annual investment of five pounds on whatever took my fancy for the blue ribbon, to ten on this occasion, so confident was I in the ultimate triumph of "my horse," as I now persistently called him.

Six times had I rushed in frantic haste from one end of the spacious paddock to the other in quest of my idol, each occasion on a fool's errand. "Will he never come?" I asked myself, as, taking off my hat, I mopped my fevered brow—I believe that is the proper expression.

And then a dreadful thought occurred to me.

"Has anything happened to him? Has he been 'got at' in some way?"

Jorkins, last night in the smoking room at the club, I remembered, had expressed his opinion to be in confidence that the horse was what he called a "stiff 'un," but seeing that five minutes afterwards he offered me a "pony" for my share in the sweep, on the "off chance," as he said, I had come to the conclusion that his offer was not quite the disinterested one he would have me believe, and accordingly declined with thanks. What if Jorkins was right, after all?

A cold perspiration broke out all over me at the bare thought. At that moment a solitary horse, swaddled to the eyes in blue and yellow clothing, with the usual boy on his back and another at his head, entered the paddock by the hurdle gate leading from the Durdams.

"Here comes the favorite!" exclaims some one.

That was quite enough for me. Hastily cramming my hat on my head once more, I was just off again on another wild goose expedition, when I felt a restraining band upon my arm, whilst a soft voice murmured in my ear, "Don't hurry, Mr. Mainchance; that ain't the favorite for the Derby, or anything like him."

The next instant I was shaking by the hand the owner of the voice, a fresh colored, good looking, powerfully built man of middle age, whom, from his general appearance and "get up" I should certainly have taken for a country squire up for the Derby week; nay, very likely the actual owner of one of the favorites; had I not known him for Inspector Barber, of Scotland Yard, and one of the most astute detectives of the day. For anyone desirous of making a study of his fellow-creatures, more especially the very varied assortment of them usually to be found on Epsom Downs on the Derby Day, a better man at your elbow in the double capacity of friend and mentor than Inspector Barber it would, indeed, have been difficult to find; for there wasn't a soul present apparently from the highest to the lowest with whose family history, in addition to his identity, he did not appear perfectly familiar. The curious part of it was, that with very few exceptions, none of them seemed to know him.

My mention of this fact elicited the dry remark, accompanied with a scarcely perceptible twinkle of those roving grey eyes of his, "That's as it should be."

One of the exceptions, a tall, wiry-looking, well set-up man, with a clean-shaven face; got up to perfection from the glossy hat on his head, to the white spats which covered his well-fitting, highly-varnished, patent leather boots, now approached us.

"Have a good look at this cove," whispered the detective as he came up.

A friendly greeting between the pair, and the well-dressed one passed on.

"Now, what should you say he is when he's at home?" inquired Inspector Barber.

"Well," I replied, "that is a difficult question to reply to; though, if I did hazard a guess, it would be that your friend is an actor. There is one thing, however, that struck me about him," I added, "and that was his extraordinary likeness to —"

"The Great Napoleon," struck in my friend, finishing the sentence for me.

"Now, how the devil did you guess that?" I exclaimed in astonishment.

"I know you to be an observant man," replied the detective, "and I felt certain you would 'spot' the resemblance the moment you set eyes on him, so I did not hesitate to take the words out of your mouth. I meant it as a compliment, I can assure you," he added apologetically.

"And you are quite right," he went on; "his likeness to 'Le petit Cépéral' is most remarkable; and you are correct, in a manner, in your conjecture, for though not actually in 'the' procession, Jim Stantoo, alias Napoleon, can not only 'dress-the pert of any character he chooses to represent on the Stage of Life, but is well capable of acting it into the bargain, and that is more than some of them can do," he added with a laugh.

"And what is Mr. James Stanton, alias Napoleon, by profession, pray?" I inquired, much interested, and following that gentlemen's retreating figure, now some distance off, as I spoke.

"A thief, and the cleverest—the very cleverest of the whole lot," was the unexpected reply.

Deeply interested, I was just about to ask further details, when a sudden rush to the bottom of the paddock, and an exclamation from the detective of, "Ah, here he is at last," ceased me to forget for the moment everything but the matter in hand, and to make hasty tracks in the same direction; followed, as I imagined, by my friend.

You can see any one in a second in a crowd, whether at Epsom or anywhere else; and so it was in this case, for after feasting my eyes on the crack, and turning round to ask my companion what he thought of him, the inevitable happened; Inspector Barber had vanished from my side, and was nowhere to be seen.

As the favorite duly won, and I was, in consequence, a considerable gainer thereby, it was not very likely that the Derby day of 18— would soon be obliterated from my memory. It was constantly in my thoughts, indeed. Neither was Inspector Barber, or my friend 'Napoleon the Great' forgotten. The latter I had never come across since our chance meeting in the paddock at Epsom. I wondered what he then was doing. Not "time" it was to be hoped.

I little guessed how soon I was destined to renew my acquaintance with both, and under what circumstances. It was the Monday in Goodwood week, and leaving my chambers in the Temple about 3 o'clock, I started leisurely down the crowded Strand bound westward. At Wellington street I found myself brought to a standstill owing to the incessant flow of cabs and carriages going to and from Waterloo Station; and, not being in a hurry, I stood for some minutes amusing myself with watching their occupants, debating in my mind at the same time whether I would not run down to Goodwood on my own account one day.

The weather was glorious, and the racing promised to be unusually interesting—and, yes, I thought I would. Perhaps I should meet Inspector Barber and his friend. The idea was pleasant to me, and I would bid me to the club at once, get hold of a friend, wire to Southsea or Brighton for rooms and start that very night.

"Hil do you want to commit suicide, you blankety blank; this, that and the other?" yelled an irate hansom cabman; pulling his horse nearly on to his hanches, as, disregarding the warning of a friendly policeman, I made a dash for the other side at the risk of my life.

Under ordinary circumstances I should have passed on, but really this particular cabman was so excessively florid in his language, that I halted, and took out my note book for the purpose of jotting down his number therein.

To be nearly killed was bad enough, but to be eluded into the bargain—oh, it was beyond a joke! and down went the number. Having done with the cabman, who, seeing what I was at, and being blocked into the bargain, was by this time foaming at the mouth, I glanced at his fare to see what he or she, as the case might be, thought of the altercation.

A solitary footman, and a very smart one into the bargain—flourished head, cockade in his hat, immaculate white tie and shirt front—a nobleman's servant evidently.

A good looking fellow, too, with well cut features, which somehow were familiar to me. He turned his face for a second, and I caught sight of it "en profile." I knew him directly.

By the living Jingo, it was Inspector Barber's friend, Napoleon the Great, no other!

Napoleon, in the disguise of a footman, with what looked uncommonly like a lady's dressing case on the seat beside him.

I don't know what possessed me, I am sure, for I am not particularly inquisitive that I know of, and certainly had no ambition to step into the shoes of the lamented Mr. Sherlock Holmes; but this is certain: I made up my mind on the spot to see this little affair out at all hazards, and, with purpose, hurriedly hailed a passing hansom cab, hiding the driver as I jumped in to follow, and no account to lose sight of the cab just in front of him drawn by a chestnut horse.

"Follow at moderate distance," said I, through the little trap, "and if they pull up, drive past unconcernedly, making a note of the house as you do so, and," I added, "a sovereign, mind, at the end of the journey, if you do as I tell you."

Cabby grinned expressively as he slammed down the trap door, whilst I proceeded to light a cigar and wait for further developments.

Judging by the free and very unnecessary use he made of his whip, Napoleon's cabmen had not recovered from his wordy warfare with myself, and he kept cutting in and out amongst the cabs and 'buses in such a reckless, at the same time masterful manner, that when Bond street was reached, I was in dread every moment that he would give us the slip.

Fortunately my own charioteer was as smart as he was, and, stimulated no doubt by the promised reward, was never once lost sight of our men, until he pulled up in front of a small house in Meida Vale, into which he entered, dressing-case in hand—the door opening, I noticed, from the inside, before he had time to reach it, a circumstance which immediately conveyed the impression on my mind that he was expected.

"Drive slowly on until hold I up my stick," I told Jehu through the trap, "and then turn round and go back the way we came."

A few hundred yards, and then my impetuous got the upper hand of me, and I gave the signal to him.

"Back to the Strand, Sir?" inquired cabby through the little trap door; and I shall never forget as long as I live his look of amazement when he received in reply: "Scotland Yard, as hard as ever you can go!"

"Yes, Inspector Barber was in the Yard, but he was very busy just at that particular moment. Was it a matter of importance I wished to see him about?"

"Most important," I replied.

"Then come this way, sir," said the police officer addressed, marching me off without further parley.

Inspector Barber was holding solemn council with two of his brethren of much the same pattern as himself as I entered his sanctum, and, judging by the expression of their faces, it was a matter of no small consequence they were discussing. Nay, my friend Barber, usually so pleased to see me, for once in a way seemed rather put out then not by the interruption caused by my sudden descent upon him.

"Hullo!" he exclaimed, as he held out his hand. "Why, how is it you are not at Goodwood?"

"How is it you are not there, if it comes to that?" I asked in my turn, as I reciprocated his shake of the hand.

"Well, as a matter of fact, I was just off—portmanteau packed, and all ready for a start, when intelligence reached the Yard of a daring robbery at Waterloo Station this very afternoon—the Duchess of Dorking's dressing case, containing some fifteen thousand pounds' worth of jewelry stolen from the platform, right under the very noses of her turnip-headed servants.

"The Duchess, who was actually in the train just about to start for Chichester en route for Goodwood, where she was to make one of the house party to meet the Prince, the moment she heard of her loss, jumped out of the carriage and, like the sensible woman she is, hailed the nearest hansom, and, along with her maid, drove straight here; the maid in hysterics and her Grace as cool as a cucumber. Naver turned a hair, bless you, as she gave me, as well as she could a list of her trinkets, etc. She nearly broke down, though, when she came to a certain sapphire and diamond necklace, and if she hadn't been a thoroughbred one from the crown of her head to the sole of her feet, she would have.

"If I could only get that heck, Mr. Barber," she said "I shouldn't care so very much about the rest. It was a wedding present from my dear father, and I value it—well, I value it more than I can tell you."

"Now, if the Duchess had been one of your heavy-heeled ones, she'd have laid out a quarter of an hour in extolling the virtues of the parent in question, and another on her own obediences to the fifth commandment; but being, as I say, as thoroughbred as Eclipse, a trembling of the voice, and that hardly discernible, was the only sign she made.

"Damm!" wound up my friend, with a bang of his fist on the table, "I do like a bit of blood."

"And how nice she was about the reward!" struck in one of the other detectives. "None of your 'I'll give this or that,' but 'Do you think two thousand will be enough? if not, I shall be most happy to say three. In short,' says her Grace, 'I will leave it entirely with you.'"

"And it's worth three, too," chimed in a third, adding, "I only wish we could lay our hands upon the swag, and the cove that copped it."

It was my turn now. "Gentlemen," I exclaimed, addressing the trio collectively, "I am proud to be in a position—at least, I have very good reason to believe so—to gratify your wishes. The swag is at the present moment—or, at all events, was—less than an hour ago, at 324 Meida Vale. The cove that copped it—I quote my honorable friend (if he will allow me to call him so) on my right—is—"

"The Flying Dutchman?" exclaimed one officer.

"Smiling George?" guessed his comrade.

"The Major, for a pony?" hezarded Inspector Barber.

"You're all wrong, believe me," said I, turning to the letter as I spoke. "Napoleon the Great is your man."

There is little more to be told. Suffice it to say, that I made one of the little party from Scotland Yard who in an hour after the conversation just recorded raided No. 324 Meida Vale, catching "Napoleon the Great" (still in the guise of a footman) in the very act of arranging with the best known "fence" in the metropolis for the sale of the Duchess of Dorking's diamonds.

That we all got a reward of some sort for the day's work goes without saying. For instance, Inspector Barber got the three thousand pounds promised him by the Duchess of Dorking for getting her jewels back. Then Napoleon the Great got ten years for taking them.

Observed the judge when passing sentence—"It is really painful to hear a man of your undoubted ability so wasting what might otherwise have been valuable time."

To which Napoleon replied—"It is still more painful, my lord, to hear that such a man as you describe is doing time."

And where do I come in? I will tell you. There arrived one morning at my chambers in the Temple a magnificent person who could by no matter of means be mistaken for anything but a Belgreian footman, who handing me a small packet, together with a note addressed in a lady's handwriting and with a coronet on the envelope, requested in a condescending manner, "to give 'em to the governor when he was up," and remarking that it was "infernally 'ot," took his departure. (I omitted to mention that I opened the door myself, and that I was in my shirt sleeves).

The packet on being opened I found to contain a very beautiful sapphire set in brilliants for the shirt front. The note was from her Grace the Duchess of Dorking, asking me in the prettiest way imaginable, to accept the jewel in question as a slight memento of the very great service she was good enough to say I had rendered her. "It is very slight in itself," she went on, "but I hope it won't be the less valuable in your eyes when I tell you that it formed part of a necklace, which, having been the gift of my dear father on my marriage, is one of my most cherished possessions."

When any of my friends who are not in the secret admire it, I say to them, "Yes, it is rather nice. I won it at Nep."

The Old Home Haunts.

There's a sound that rings in my ear to-day,
That echoes in vague refrain,
The ripple of water o'er smooth-washed clay,
Where the wall eyed pike and the black bass play
That makes me yearn, in a quiet way,
For my old rod again.

Back to the old home haunts again
Back where the clear lake lies;
Back through the woods
Where the blackbird broods,
Back to the rod and flies.

I'm longing to paddle the boat to-day
Through water-logged grass and reeds;
Where the muskrat swims, and the cattails sway;
Where the air is cool, and the mist is gray;
Where ripples dance in the same old way,
Under the tangled weeds.

Back on the old oak log again,
Back by the crystal brook;
Back to the bait,
And the silent wait,
Back to my line and hook.

I wish I could wade by the water's edge,
Where the fallen leaves drift by;
Just to see, in the shadow of the ledge,
How dark forms glide, like a woodman's wedge,
Through driftwood piles and the coarse marsh sedge,
And to hear the bittern cry.

Back where the tadpoles shift and sink,
Back where the bullfrogs sob;
Back just to float
In the leaky boat,
Back to my dripping hob.

Oh, it's just like this on each misty day,
It's always the same old pain
That struggles and pulls in the same old way
To carry me off for a little stay
By the water's edge, in sticky clay,
To fish in the falling rain.

Back to my long black rubber boots,
Back to my old patched coat;
Back to my rod
And the breath of God—
Home—and my leaky boat.

The habits of the shark form the subject of an interesting article in "Pearson's Magazine." After mentioning that the shark is undoubtedly a "dog with a bad name," the writer says: The shark is the common scavenger and general undertaker of the ocean. He is not, and, for reasons connected with his moderate speed-limit, never can be, primarily, a fish of prey. Open any captured shark and you will find a clear proof that this is so. A few tangled bits of rope yarn, a battered corn beef tin, a cork bottle containing an insulting message to the finder thrown overboard by some nautical wag, or a sailor's cap which has been lost in a gale, all tend to show that the shark is a fish of business-like habits, with a keen eye to any chance windfalls which may come in his way; but the more digestible contents of his stomach, consisting mainly of carrion of every kind, all give the clearest olfactory evidence that the original owners of them were not alive and, in fact, were very much dead when this marine sanitary inspector came along, and, condemning them as nuisance, removed them into his own internal refuse bin. In the old days of the sailing ship, when voyages were long and tedious, and delays of indefinite length through calms were the ordinary experiences of every sailor, shark-hunting was one of the most popular methods of killing time which the calm-bound voyager possessed. Shark-hunting from steamers is not to be done. Even from a slow-moving old tramp it would be impossible. The novelist makes the fish swirl along at an untold knotage, but in reality his limit is reached at about four and a half miles an hour; and it is only the species known as the blue shark which can touch even this moderate figure.

Steelhead anglers have been enjoying the fishing at Point Reyes recently. The fish are of small size as a rule. The stream is high and muddy. Among those who have lately been at the Point were Jack Sammi, John Butler, Frank Maskey, C. Kewell, Bert Spring, Al Smith, Frank Marcns and others. Small hooks baited with shrimp and salmon rose were found most effective by several fishermen. Russian river and its tributaries are running high since the recent rains and large fish in great numbers have been seen passing up to the small streams. Should a week or ten days of fine weather prevail the sport of catching them near Duncan's Mills promises to be excellent. Pescadero and San Gregorio lagoons are now also credited with offering good sport with large steelheads.

A number of steelhead have been caught in the tidal canal at High street, Alameda. "Doc" Cox spotted a run there one morning recently and pulled out a four pounder before his sport was spoiled by a crowd of noisy orphans who drove the fish away.

The bay fisherman has had plenty of sport in salt water recently during the pleasant days. Rock fish, perch, flounders in plenty and occasionally striped bass or salmon gulse lends temporary excitement to the sport.

Striped bass anglers have not caught many of the fish at their favorite fishing places recently.

If on awakening in the morning you find that "Dark Brown" taste in your mouth, it can be quickly changed to a cool and sweet one by a libation of JACKSON'S NAPA SODA.

Test Case Decided by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of this State, by ordering the release of James Knapp, coming before the court on habeas corpus proceedings, practically declares the various county ordinances prohibiting the shipment or taking of game beyond the county boundaries unconstitutional.

A short time ago a market hunter named James Knapp attempted to forward to this city, from Newman, Stanislaus county, a quantity of wild ducks he had killed, and was arrested and fined $20 by a Justice of the Peace. Upon the advice of his attorney, he refused to pay the fine and went to prison. An attempt was made to secure his release on a writ of habeas corpus in the Superior Court of that county, but to no purpose, and an application was made to the Supreme Court, where a writ was issued made returnable on Thursday. Knapp's case was conducted under the auspices of the Hunters' Union of the San Joaquin valley.

The decision was rendered late on Thursday evening. A written opinion will probably follow.

The decision has been received by the majority of sportsmen with much satisfaction. Several of the recent county ordinances have been virtually prohibitive except to a favored few and were not at all within the spirit or effect of rational game protection.

The case just passed upon is the first one brought to test the validity of these recent county ordinances prohibiting the taking or shipping of game out of the county and the decision proves the statements made in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that such a law would not stand, to have been correct when it was intimated last year that an ordinance similar to the San Joaquin law was to be adopted in Marin county.

In the "pump gun" test case different principles are involved than those upon which the Knapp case was determined. We think the clause in the Marin county law prohibiting the use of repeating shot guns will stand the ordeal of trial before the Supreme Court.

The Knapp decision is a decided setback to the influences which have brought about some of the recent county legislation—which action has been designedly made harsh, in several cases, for the purpose of stirring up a feeling against the present game laws and to bring about the passage of a new game law by the next Legislature.

A Change in the Game Law Advocated.

A meeting of delegates representing a number of county game and fish protective associations met on Wednesday evening at the Occidental Hotel for the purpose of perfecting the necessary preliminaries towards calling a State convention in the interest of fish and game protection and also of revising and changing the present game and fish laws. Dr. A. M. Barker presided as chairman and C. W. Hibberd officiated as secretary. The Santa Clara County Fish and Game Protective Association was represented by Dr. A. M. Barker, Homer Prindle, C. W. Hibberd and H. T. Payne. The Sacramento County Fish and Game Protective Association delegates were T. H. Berkeley and L. Hertzsl. A. Barr and E. B. Martinelli represented the Marin county organization. Fresno, Humboldt, Placer, Santa Barbara and Ventura associations were represented by proxy.

Mr. Payne addressed the meeting at length explaining the purposes of the meeting and the legislation he advocated for game protection in the past which it was claimed had been side tracked in various material respects by interested parties—market men and others. He strongly advocated the present movement, which was intended to eventually bring about efficient State legislation, such action, he claimed, would "assist the various counties in their administration of the game laws." "Stop the sale of game" and market hunting—become "a corrective of county mixups" and operate to "prevent cow county legislation."

A general discussion upon these features and the views advanced by the first speaker was indulged in by Dr. C. W. Hibberd and others during which Messrs. Barr and Martinelli took occasion to give a graphic description of the work already accomplished in Marin county.

A resolution was submitted by a committee composed of Messrs. Payne, Barr, Martinelli, Hertzsl and Prindle which will be presented to Governor Gage, requesting him to issue a call for a "State game legislation" convention, to appoint twenty delegates at large; the remainder, two from each county to be appointed by the various boards of supervisors. This would make a total of one hundred and thirty-four delegates to the proposed convention. The principal work of the convention will be to frame a new game law "said bill to be a general State law for the more perfect preservation of the game and fish of the State, that they may continue for years as a valuable food supply for the people." Also to lay the foundation for the organization of a permanent State association. The proposed convention will be held in Sacramento in February, it being shown that a strong feeling on the part of many sportsmen of the interior towards San Francisco made Sacramento a more desirable meeting place than this city. This selection it was claimed would avoid any appearance of direction and supervision of the movement by local sportsmen. Hon. T. H. Berkeley assured the delegates present that the Sacramento Association would extend the hospitality of their city to visiting delegates.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The Chico Stock Farm near Chico is posted against hunters.

Quail are reported to be plentiful in the vicinity of Camp Taylor.

Chico sportsmen are deprecating the present scarcity of geese and ducks.

Members of the Empire Gun Club had an indifferent day with the ducks on Sunday.

The McNear Company's property in Marin county is posted and hunting thereon prohibited.

Point Reyes quail hunters had good sport on Sunday, G. E. Rodolph was one of the limit shooters.

Vallejo shooters have enjoyed good hunting recently Duck shooters find the "Pie pond" prolific in quackers.

Next week should be the time for the beginning of the appearance of the principal flights of the northern birds.

Over fifty hunters were in the vicinity of Alvarado, Mt. Eden and Mowry's on Sunday, but few ducks were bagged.

On Friday of last week Harvey McMurchy, Otto Feudner, Ed Schultz and Phil Bekeart bagged forty-two sprig on the Pringle pond.

The Olympic preserve on the Suisun marsh will be open to the members for two days' duck shooting next week, Wednesday and Thursday.

On the Olympic Gun Club preserve a number of shooters were out on Sunday, the high record fell to Dr. Derby's gun, ten birds was the mixed bag.

Billy Swain, N. H. Hickman, Bert Patrick, Fred Johnson, F. M. Haight and Stump Wyman were on the Black Jack grounds Sunday, they had a nice outing, but bagged only a few birds.

Jim Maynard, Dr. E. N. Ayers, Wm. Ellis and W. W. Kaufman failed to find more than half a dozen birds in the Willow Lodge ponds last Sunday. The day was apparently a favorable one for duck shooting but the birds were absent.

Ducks are observed in vast flocks in various parts of San Francisco and San Pablo bays. Tomales bay and the Water Company's lakes in San Mateo county are also frequented by them. They rest during the day safely on the water and resort to favorite feeding grounds at night.

Admiral Dewey has been presented by Geo. M. Houghton, General Passenger Agent of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad, with one of the finest specimens of a moose's head that has been secured for a long time past. The head now graces the wall of the Admiral's dining room in Washington.

Although the usual number of hunters invaded the Suisun marshes last Saturday and Sunday they were rather poorly rewarded for their efforts. The recent rains have scattered the birds and driven them to the districts south of San Francisco bay. With two weeks of dry weather there should be a return of the ducks and good shooting could be looked for in December.

The blinds in the Morrill tules on the Suisun were occupied last Sunday by the following members of the Potrero Club: Walter McFarland of Oakland, Jack Smith, Fred Elliott and Max Kerchaw of this city. Finding their time unoccupied in the marshes they returned to higher land and gathered mushrooms. A fifty-pound box was the result of their work. Kerchaw, who only recently came from New York, mailed several decoys, much to the amusement of his friends.

The usual number of hunters were at the Suisun Club's headquarters last Sunday, but the total number of birds brought in was less than four dozen. Besides the local number at the club house there were A. M. Shields, Pacific Coast manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of New York; Joseph Eppinger, the grain dealer; John Coleman, Tommy Burns the jockey, and trainer John Mabury. Shields got eighteen ducks, mostly sprig, Burns fifteen and Eppinger eleven.

Harvey McMurchy left town for a week's vacation last Tuesday. His destination was Handley's ranch on Big river, in Mendocino county, thirty miles west of Ukiah. Mac has quite a fancy for this spot, having had some good shooting and fishing there last year. He is with us a little earlier than usual this trip. He has not indulged in an extended vacation for a number of years past and proposes to now avail himself of some of the opportunities afforded the sportsman on this Coast.

A most enjoyable quail hunt was had by Clarence Haight, Harvey McMurchy, Dave Thom and Phil Bekeart near Niles on Sunday. Mac was more than pleased with the sport afforded by the valley quail, he says the conditions entailed in working for the birds make quail hunting a thing of infinite delight to the sportsman. Dave Thom's black pointer Nick, Clarence Haight's setter bitch Flash and Phil Bekeart's black setter Blackie are a trio of dogs hard to beat on a quail hunt, their work is almost absolute perfection.

Lyddite, against the use of which by the English in South Africa, General Jonbert has so plaintively protested, is most destructive in its effects. It has been known to destroy life by concussion alone at a distance of 150 feet. It is really an improved form of melinite, which is the standard high explosive used in the French army, and about which such secrecy was at first maintained. Its principal component is picric acid, which is an intensely yellow poisonous coal tar product, largely used in dyeing. When fired from a gun and exploded it breaks a shell up in very small fragments, which cover closely quite a wide area, destroying everything near.

A number of Santa Rosa hunters were offering quail for sale in that city on Saturday. The birds are very plentiful.

In the vicinity of Willows wild ducks and geese are unusually scarce for this time of the year, and as yet the bags of the sportsmen have been light.

Sacramento sportsmen complain of a scarcity of ducks and geese in the county. They find it expedient to journey to other sections for their shooting.

Gilroy sportsmen are waiting patiently for favorable weather conditions which will enable them to indulge in duck shooting—birds have been scarce in that vicinity up to date.

The old-time Thanksgiving diversion of sportsmen—the turkey shoot, will have a strong revival next week. Announcements are numerous for the celebration of this former holiday fancy of the rifleman.

"Bob White" quail were exposed for sale in a local market a few days ago. These little fellows were killed near Concord, Alameda county, and were undoubtedly some of the progeny of the "bob whites" who were liberated in that section by John E. de Ruyter, Esq., some time ago. The birds were from time to time reported as increasing and doing nicely. It is a pity that they cannot be left unmolested for a few seasons. The experiment at Verona is about the only successful one of the many attempts to have the merry little piper of the Eastern stubble fields make himself at home in California.

San Jose quail hunters for the past week did not meet with the success they anticipated after hearing the many reports from the foothills to the effect that the birds were so plentiful that they were likely to do much damage to the farming industry in those sections. There have been a great many parties out and from a reliable source comes the information that the bags of them all would not show a better average than two birds for each man. The reason for this is that the rain has run all the quail to high brush for cover, where hunting them is next to impossible. There are plenty of birds and when the weather clears hunting will be good, but until that time the result will not be worth the effort.

The fool and his little shot gun seem to be inseparable. A 'fool for luck' had never a better illustration than the following incident will show: A man at Prosser creek on the 9th inst. tried to use smokeless powder in an old-fashioned muzzle-loading shot gun with disastrous effects. He cut open a shell loaded with smokeless powder and took out the powder and loaded the muzzle loader with it, tamping it in the gun well. When the gun was discharged it was blown into fragments. He at first thought that he had escaped without injury, and rowed across the ice pond to the house. He afterward found a piece of something had cut into his arm. He went to Truckee and Dr. Shoemaker dressed the wound.

The cleaning of gun locks is a subject lightly treated by many but is of more importance than is generally supposed. Keeping them in good order is well repaid by their increased life and wearing qualities, as well as smooth working and less liability to misfire. They should be carefully taken apart and thoroughly cleaned. Mainspring clamps are very necessary and should be employed. A cotton rag free from lint, stiff tooth or nail brush and a little benzine is all that is required. If any rust is found remove it by a fine file or emery cloth.

Use the best quality of oil. Clock oil is good. Many use too much oil. A little is enough if applied to the working parts only. A safe and good rule is to apply only where two pieces of metal work together; on the working surfaces only. That applies to lubricating and not to preventing rust.

As the result of an encounter with a dying hawk while hunting near Redwood Peak, Alameda county recently George Scott of Oakland, carries marks on his left wrist and forearm that will be with him through life. Scott was hunting in the hills and early during the first morning out took a shot at a hawk that was sailing above his head. The wounded bird fell about fifty yards away and the hunter hastened to pick up his prize. He caught the wounded bird by one leg, and with a screech it turned upon him, hurying its talons deep in the flesh of his wrist and arm. So painful were the injuries that Scott called for assistance, and his companions came to the rescue. Before their arrival the hawk had fastened its beak in his sweater just below his chin and was flipping its wings against his head. With a knife the bird was decapitated, but even then the talons could not be loosened from the flesh on the wrist. By this time Scott was faint from loss of blood and his companions cut off the birds legs. They then took their knives and dug the ugly claws out of the flesh. So it was brought to Oakland where he was given medical attention. For a time the attending physicians feared blood poisoning, but it is now believed that the danger has passed. The hawk measured four feet from tip to tip.

At the Traps.

The Pelican Gun Club of Sacramento indulged in a live bird shoot on Sunday. The members had as their guest Clarence Nauman, the Olympic Gun Club's champion shot, he gave Ed Niclaus a very close rub for first honors. Niclaus landed nineteen out of his twenty birds; seventeen falling to Nauman's Remington. The scores in detail were the following:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Score. Includes Nicolaus (19), Nauman (17), Upson (17), Adams (15), Rubstaller (15), and Hubstaller, Jr. (14).

An open to all turkey shoot will take place across the bay on Thanksgiving Day under the auspices of the Lincoln Gun Club. Edgar Forster has prepared an attractive schedule of events. The shooters will break blue rocks, the winners receiving as prizes fat and tender turkeys. Eight traces are on the card, the first one at ten birds, 50 cents entrance, high guns; second event, a freeze-out, 25 cents entrance; third event, California freeze-out, 10 cents per shot; fourth event, a three man-team shoot (each shooter in the winning team will receive a fine turkey), fifteen birds-75 cents entrance; fifth event, freeze-out, 25 cents entrance; winner of first in previous freeze-out barred; sixth event, ten birds, 50 cents, high guns; seventh event, fifteen birds, handicap, entrance 75 cents, class shooting; eighth event, consolation freeze-out for non-winners, entrance 25 cents. The shooting will commence at 10:45 A. M.

Jack Fanning took part in the second annual tournament of the Cincinnati Gun Club, October 31st to November 4th, and kept up with the leaders. On the fourth day in the Gun Club Handicap, $500 purse, all surplus added, 25 live birds, $25 entrance, handicap distance, out of fifty-three shooters, including some of the best wing shots in the country, Fanning was one of fifteen straight scores.

At the recent tournament of the Cincinnati Gun Club, Kit Stephenson, one of the contestants, was harrd on the third day on the charge of "dropping for place." The disbarment was made permanent.

The Game Law.

The synopsis of the game laws appearing below and published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for several years past has, from time to time been changed or the provisions of new ordinances added thereto by reason of the many and various changes in the county game and fish laws, particularly those of recent date and of application in and around the bay counties.

This synopsis has been frequently copied (in more or less garbled and incomplete form) and quoted by city and interior journals and has also been printed and distributed by business houses. While the information given at the date of issuance was substantially correct, we do not care to be held responsible for the circulation of old matter that is now incorrect in many details. Some complaint has been made in this respect and to avoid misunderstanding in the future it is suggested that for information of this character a reference be made to current numbers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for the latest and most complete data concerning the Game Laws.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. Oakland Bench Show.

Premium lists for the Oakland show have been in brisk demand during the week. Nearly fifty entries have been made with Superintendent Haaf, at 510 Market street. Entries close on the 30th inst. The bench show committee will be J. C. Barrett, O. J. Albee and Chas. R. Harker. J. W. Burrell will judge setters and pointers and C. D. Nairn of Balston, Oregon, will judge all other breeds. St. Bernards, bull terriers and fox terriers will have a good representation on the benches.

An office has been opened this week at 410 Twelfth street, Oakland. Among the additional prizes offered we find a silver fruit basket for best cocker spaniel pup. H. A. Wegener offers a cup for the best cocker, dog or bitch, bred or raised by the Redwood Cocker Kennels, donor not to compete. A friend of the P. K. L. offers a cut glass vase for the best cocker dog, any color. There is also a generous quantity of imported Scotch liquid in flagons for the best imported canine representative of the land o' cakes. Victoria, Seattle and Tacoma fanciers are getting their strings ready, those cities will have a good representation.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

State field trial clubs are coming into strong favor in the East. The entries for the Philadelphia show will probably reach 1000. Over $4000 will be distributed in prizes. Sandor Vom lun, the crack Eastern Great Dane, is now the property of Montebello Kennels, Philadelphia; the purchase price being, it is said, $2000.

George Richards is now comfortably located at Sparta, Mississippi, and is hard at work preparing the Verona Kennels' string for their work on the Eastern field trials circuit. He has also in his charge Mr. Flynn's pointer Senator P., who will be seen in the eastern trial competitions under Richards' handling.

Tacoma Chief, a promising young English setter dog owned by S. Christenson, succumbed to an attack of distemper and pneumonia on the 20th inst. This dog had many of the characteristics that won Champion Antonio fame, being like him in build and style; he had a perfect head and was full of dash and spirit. Mr. Christenson had entered him in the '99 Derby. He was by Iroquois Chief out of Mary Lou. Hen Crocker's Chief, another Derby entry owned by Walter Hohart, is a litter brother of Tacoma Chief.

S. Christenson will breed his well known English setter bitch Mary Lou (Ch. Chence—Picciola) to Verone Kennels' Ch. Count Gladstone IV. This breeding should develop a "nick" that will please the setter fancy. Picciola by the way was the dam of Joe Cummings who showed up so well in the trials last season

Thomas Johnson Esq., of Winnipeg, Manitoba, will preside as judge at the Pacific Coast field trials near Bakersfield in January. Recent advices from the probable scene of the coming trials are to the effect that the prospect for birds is exceedingly good. There will be plenty of cover this year and the ground has been unmolested.

An opportunity is offered in our advertising columns this week for the purchase of a handsome and thoroughly broken blue belton English setter dog. He is by Ch. Cactus, out of Miss Dynamite No. 40567, sired by Gladstone's Frank No. 35,222, out of Mena III, No. 12,121. Ch. Cactus No. 28,159 has an enviable bench record and a good record as a sire. Miss Dynamite has a cross of Ch. Antonio and Rock Belton. Mr. Bodine of Brunswick, N. J., a well known field trial enthusiast always had a fancy for her progeny as did the Graphic Kennels of Palmyra, N. Y.

A curious case was recently developed in New York city. Frank P. Marsh, who lives with his wife at Hotel Bayard, has spent hundreds of dollars in ascertaining what caused the death of his St Bernard dog, Pinto, in March. At last he knows. Jesse M. Tarvery, foreman and caretaker of Mr. Marsh's summer residence at Glenville, pleaded guilty, in the Borough Court, of starving the dog to death by appropriating food bought for it to his own use. At the request of Mr. Marsh, Judge Burns suspended sentence, which was a fine of $500 or one year's imprisonment. Mr. Marsh told the Judge that the dog's death had broken the hearts of himself and wife and he did not wish to make the prisoner's mother and sweetheart suffer in a like manner.

Capt. Thomas Motley of Leeds, Yorkshire, England, who was in this city and visited the local bench show last May, is authority for the assertion made to a well known local fancier, that the exhibit of setters and pointers hatched at the recent show were not up to quality and standard of those breeds in England. To qualify his judgment he wrote to his kennel master at Leeds instructing him to select one of the best young setters of a designated litter and after the dog had been thoroughly broken and trained to forward him to his friend in San Francisco, who is now awaiting the arrival of his promised dog with quite a deal of interest. We are inclined to materially differ with Captain Motley's views but will defer argument until the arrival of the proper thing in English setters.

Armand Decourtioux, Jr., is remarkably well pleased with his recent purchase, the most intelligent and spritely little English setter bitch Verone Cash. J. E. de Ryuter is more than half sorry he sold, it is said. The deal came about in the following manner: John Lucas one day recently in swapping dog lore with De Ryuter asked in a casual way the price on Verone Cash. The enquirer and price stated were more conventional than earnest. De Ryuter thought nothing more of the occurrence until Lucas appeared several days thereafter and claimed the dog for Decourtioux. De Ryuter submitted gracefully and now her new owner would not part with her for considerable more than he paid for her. She is a full sister to the famous Pin Money and is a fine bird dog and an excellent field worker. Lucas has her with him at Bakersfield at present.

Field Trial Notes.

The second annual trials of the Ohio Field Trial Club began Wednesday, November 8th and were reported to have been a grand success in every respect. The weather was very favorable during the first three days and birds were plentiful.

The stakes all filled well, and probably the largest crowds that ever followed a similar event in America—certainly the largest at any State trials—witnessed the running of the Ohio trials.

The judges were Prof. Edward H. Ostens, W. S. Bell and W. H. Merkle. Jes. R. Foster took Mr. Markley's place on the second day, the latter gentleman being called away. The judging of the Members' Derby and All-Age stake was well received but in the Professional Stakes there was a difference of opinion. At the annual meeting of the Club the officers elected were: President, E. S. Fishback; First Vice-President, Dr. Jno. R. Daniel; Second Vice-President, J. C. Porterfield; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Beoghn; Board of Governors, Major J. B. Downing, F. K. Hontington, Geo. R. Heswell, C. W. Tway, Jas. R. Foster and D. H. Derreh.

During the trials Major Downing refused $500 for Fayette Ven Guerd, winner of second in the Professional All Age.

A summary of results is the following: WASHINGTON, C. H., O., November 8, 1899.—The Ohio Field Trial Association's Second Annual Members' Derby, $2.50 forfeit, $2 50 additional to start.

The second annual trials of the Michigan Field Trials Association brought together a superior lot of pointers and setters. Birds were plentiful and weather conditions most excellent. The judges were John Davidson, W. E. Werner and E. D. Magoon. The following officers of the club were elected at the annual meeting: President, M. C. Byers; Vice-President, E. D. Magoon; Secretary—Treasury, Eber Rice; Executive Committee, C. F. Clugston, C. D. Stuart, B. E. Quick, E. R. Shelley, F. Jacobi, R. D. Magoon and M. C. Byers.

The results of the trials were as follows: LAKEVIEW, Mich., November 8, 1899.—Michigan Field Trial Association's Derby, open to members only.—For all setters and pointers under two years old. Three prizes, 50, 30 and 20 per cent of funds in the class, less the expenses of the stake: First prize, the Derby Cup and 50 per cent; second

THE FARM.

The Work of the Separator.

Until the test bottle was patented testing skim milk was about as accurate a process as testing lye to see how strong it is. Now, with modern appliances we can tell to a certainty just how much butter fat was wasted in the skim milk and also in the buttermilk. When the separators first came into general use, it used to be considered close skimming if only two-tenths were left in the skim milk, and that was a great saving in butter fat from the old style of deep setting by the gravity system, unless you had plenty of ice to use in the water. But after the dairy school was started, the professors found out that with a loss of two-tenths per cent. of butter fat in the skim milk, when a creamery received 10,000 pounds of milk a day, the annual loss would be more than the price of the best separator on the market, and that was too much for the patrons of the creamery to lose. Now, with the improved separators, the butter maker who can not run them and leave not more than a trace of butter fat in the neck of the Ohlson test bottle is not running the separators as they should be run, and as they can be if they are properly operated. In doing close skimming, there are three things that must be taken into consideration—feed, speed and temperature. As it is centrifugal motion that does the skimming, the higher the speed the better the skimming will be up to the rated speed of the separator. Of course they can be speeded too high, but I find it is a good plan, says a successful dairyman, to run them up to the full speed of the manufacturer's guarantee, and keep them at that speed all the time the milk is running through them.

Most makes of separators will do the best work if the milk is at about 80 degrees, and at this time of the year, when you have the most strippers' milk, it is better to be higher than lower. If you want to do close work, it is better not to feed too fast. Not many separators will skim to clean up their rated capacity. It is better to keep under then go over their rated capacity. I saw some skim milk tested lately, that only showed one-third of a gauge on the Ohlson test bottle. As each gauge on the test bottle represents one-twentieth of one per cent., this is skimming about as close as can be done with almost any kind of separator. The speed of the separator at the time was 5000 revolutions per minute, temperature of milk 80 degrees, and it was run through at the rate of 2000 pounds per hour.

A Grandly Bred Bull.

Mr. Richard M. Hotaling has purchased from Mr. Frenk H. Burke, of La Siesta Ranch, San Jose, the Holstein-Friesian bull Tiranie 2d's Z320 Paul, No. 22,569 H. F. H. B., one of the few representatives on this coast of the wonderful cow Pauline Paul, No. 2199 H. F. H. B.—852 A. R., holder of the world's butter record of 1153 lbs., 15½ czs. in one year; she has also a record of 31 lbs., 1¼ ozs. of butter in seven days, and 128 27 32 lbs. in thirty days, and has a record of 18,669 9-16 lbs. of milk in a year. The sire of Tiranie 2d (who has a two year old butter record of 22 lbs. 8 ozs. in seven days) was the noted show bull Sir Henry of Maplewood, No. 2933 H. F. H. B., the greatest prize winning bull of the breed, and her dam, imp. Tiranie, No. 6716 H. F. H. B., has a butter record of 36 lbs. 11 ozs. in seven days, and a milk record of 91 lbs. in a day, equal to about 11 gallons. Tiranie is the dam of the great bull Tiranie's Sir Mechthilde, for whom Mr. D. F. Wilber paid $2800. Mr. Burke has a number of heifers sired by Tiranie 2d's Z320 Paul which give every indication of being grand cows, their dams being of the noted Clothilde family—Clothilde winner of the sweepstakes prize against all breeds in butter test at New York Dairy Show of May, 1887, record 23 lbs 2¼ czs. in seven days, 95 lbs. 2¼ ozs., unsalted, in thirty days, and milk record 101 lbs. 2 ozs. in a day, 26,021 lbs. 2 czs. in a year, the second largest record ever made, this having been beaten by the noted cow Pieterje 2d, holder of the world's record, 30,318 lbs. 8 ozs. of milk in one year.

Mt. Hotaling now has two bulls in his herd that represent the choicest breeding in Holstein-Friesian cattle, the other being Homestead Baruum Paul de Ko', a representative of De Kol, Pieterje Hengerfeld and Pauline Paul families, recently imported from the East.

Herefords as Dairy Cattle.

A Mr. James at Dorsetshire, Eng., in 1890 had been breeding for the dairy about forty years, and his father before him had been breeding about the same time, making a continuous work of eighty years. Their manner of conducting this work was to take Hereford cows, and they kept 100 cows in milk. They rented these cows to dairymen—fifty to each—reserving the calves to themselves, and the skim milk when making butter and the whey when making cheese to feed the calves with linseed meal and other feeds. Having heard of Mr. James and his herd I went from London to Dorset, Mr. James' home to see the work he was doing, having heard so much said about the Herefords being poor milkers.

On asking Mr. James why he had taken Herefords for dairy work, he said because he could make more money out of them; that they would make as much butter as any other breed and of the best quality; and further that the steers would bring more money than any other, and the dry cows would also bring more money to the butcher. His practice was to turn his cows to the butcher at from five to seven years old and bring heifers to take their place. Dorsetshire was as noted for the quality of its butter in the London market as was Chester for its cheese. Mr. James for fresh blood would go into Herefordshire for his sires and select the best registered bulls he could find.

I saw in his pasture a half-dozen three year old heifers that had aborted and he had taken out his dairy herd and fed them for the butcher; they were in good show condition and would have weighed from 1500 to 1600 lbs. each. Mr. James showed me his record in the show ground for thirty years or more; his winnings were large on dairy cows.

I have quoted the practice of Herefordshire farmers and of Mr. James with Hereford cows; farmers will not go far wrong if they select either of the beef breeds. Intelligent breeding and feeding will bring good results in cash and keep up the fertility of their farms. —T. L. Miller, in Breeder's Gazette.

Grazing Lands Overstocked.

The question as to what shall be done with the public grazing lands is of interest. Beef comes largely from the public grazing lands of the West. During the period that the population of the United States has increased 10,000,000 it is asserted that the annual beef supply has fallen off 10,000,000 head of cattle. What caused this falling off? Secretary Wilson lays it to the impoverished condition of Western grazing lands through over grazing. There is just as much grazing land as ever. Sales and public entry have not reduced its area. Nevertheless, according to agricultural statistics, it supported millions of head of cattle less than a few years ago, and yet it is overcrowded.

The Secretary says the rise in prices of beef is due to the increased demand, coupled with the diminished capacity of grazing lands, owing to overstocking and the killing out of native grasses. During his recent Western trip he studied this question and he will in his annual report, about to issue, recommend that Congress allow Western states to lease these public grazing lands and that the rentals derived be applied to irrigating and educational improvements within the states. This will warrant each renter in fencing and improving his holding, sinking wells and resting his grass lands, which will result in a greater grazing capacity for the land. The Department of Agriculture also stands ready to assist in improvement through the introduction of arid forage crops, furnishing eterts of seed, etc.

The proper exercise of stallions making a season is all important, even more important than the particular kind of food they eat. From a pampered stallion that is closely confined to the stable, with no outdoor driving, riding, or exercise, but a small per cent of foals can be expected, and those that do come will amount to but little. Strength, vigor, power cannot be imparted where they are not possessed, and these qualities can only be secured by healthy, strong exercise. In an article in the Horseman, Mr. L. V. D. Shepherd, an old experienced breeder, is reported as saying that he once leased a stallion to a party for the season, who was particular in regard to the animal's diet, giving him hay, oats, grass and meshes; but to keep him fat and plump, gave him no exercise, the result being that a very small per centage of the mares got with foal. The next season he leased the horse to another party, who fed him continually on nothing but dry hay and hard corn on the cob, but gave him plenty of work, and out of about 100 mares got 85 with foal. Here was one instance at least where it showed pretty conclusively the importance of exercise, and that is the predominant factor in developing the functions of the procreative organs, as the mode of feeding in the latter case was certainly not as conducive to that result as that of the former.

Although now latent in most lines, there seems to be a dairy quality inherent in Shorthorns which some careful managers are able successfully to develop and propagate. Records of several dairy herds in the United States within a quarter century shows a milking season of about 275 days and an average product of 6500 pounds of milk. One herd of ten cows from three to twelve years old, averaged 7750 pounds in a year. Single cow have averaged much more, several instances being known of 10,000 to 12,000 pounds in a season. The Shorthorn milk is of good quality, rather above the average; the fat globules are of medium and fairly uniform size, so that cream separates easily; it is rather pale in color.

These who handle feeding cattle on the market say that buyers are getting more particular every year about the quality of stock they purchase. This year they are extremely critical and there is consequently a greater difference than usual between really good and only fair stock of this kind. In the Pittsburg market, from which cattle are shipped to the feed lots of Ohio and Pennsylvania as well as to the stalls of Eastern Pennsylvania, good, straight, well bred steers have not been any too plentiful this fall, while common and plain ones have been so numerous as to suffer severe reductions in price. The other day a prominent Eastern dealer who was asked as to the market for good feeders replied, "There are none here," and added that his customers were demanding the right kind. The feeders have apparently learned their lesson as to quality better than the breeders in the middle and eastern States. The latter must fall into line also, or sell their stock at unsatisfactory figures. They must follow the example set by the western breeder, and grade up their herds to a higher quality and greater uniformity. Good blood and straight breeding are the great needs of the people who raise cattle in the grazing territory east of the Mississippi river.—National Stockman.

Horse Gossip From Los Angeles.

UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 27, 1899.

ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I see in your paper that we have high prices offered for our good horses down here but no sales. Here is one you may mention. You remember the span of bays, sired by Boydell, son of Electioneer, mentioned in my last letter. They were sold to Ed. Stimson for $1000 cash. The buyer is a brother to Willard Stimson, the well known capitalist, who owned and drove Miss Jessie 2:14 and Sophie R. 2:10. Before the sale was made they trotted a quarter in 34 seconds, hitched double to a buggy. How does that suit you for a pair of green ones? These two horses were raised in Phoenix, Arizona, by Mr. H. Porter; one is called Stanley P., the other Merk H. Mr. Stimson will use them as his buggy team.

By the way, they have organized a gentleman's driving club here and leased the track from Mr. Blodgett for Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and none but members are allowed on the track during those two afternoons. There was lots of sport last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Potter, proprietor of the Van Nuys Hotel, drove his grand looking grey mare Irene Crocker 2:17, and beat every one who was looking for a race. She is a great road mare. If he only had Hazel Kinney 2:12 to drive with her he would have one of the fastest and best looking double teams on the coast.

There are some high-class road horses down here. A person can get a race most any day in any part of town.

I was out to see Mr. C. A. Winship's horses last Friday. He is getting a stable of horses together and his colors will be seen again next year. Gazelle 2:11½ is being jogged end will be raced in the East. She will be bred to Zombro 2:11 in April. Gazelle is looking fine and I look for her to lower her record to 2:08 this coming year. Mey Hogan by McKinney 2:11½ is also being worked. She is a green one and will probably be an M. & M. candidate, as she is a sure enough trotter. The yearling by Zombro out of Gazelle 2:11½ is the chief of all colts trotters. Mr. Jones, who is training for Mr. Winship, says he will bet his selery he can drive her in eighth in 16 seconds on the Los Angeles track. Mr. Winship thinks she will trot in 2:15 or better in her two year old form. He also intends to race Aster 2:12 and Jasper Paulsen 2:16½. He is now driving them double end there is no one who passes him on the road.

GEO. W. BECKERS.

John Splan Wants 2:20 Horses.

CHICAGO (Ill.), November 24, 1899.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—We have just received a very valuable consignment of horses for our Jennery sele from the Arden Farm, Goshen, N. Y., the home of the champion track and show horse, Stamboni, and also the home of the celebrated John R. Gentry.

Among the number are a lot of well metred trotters with end without records and a few high class broodmares sure in foal to each one of those great horses. It looks to me as if a breeder could not do better than invest his money in that class of goods. The fact that the proprietor of the Arden Farm is willing to ship his horses from Goshen, N. Y., to Chicago would go to prove that we have a market here good enough to sell the best.

Already we have received numerous other consignments from first class owners and firms that make us know we will have something to offer the public that will interest them materially.

The members of this firm have shipped more high priced horses to Europe than any other men in this country—they have sent more champions there than any other men—we have a lot of first class customers we are doing business with there, now. Already we have orders from that far away place to bid on animals we have in our Jennery sele.

To-day I bought for $5500 the horse Axmier with a record of 2:13½ by Axtell out of a Nutwood mare, for Mr. Bert Seeger of Vienne, Austria, and by many judges he is considered the best young horse in his class in this country. The price he brought goes to prove that the foreigners will not stop at the price if the goods suit. They are great judges of form, manners, soundness, etc., and a horse to commend their attention, must have all the race horse qualities and speed, and for such animals they are the most liberal buyers that ever I met.

What we want here now is a number of horses and mares from four to six years old with records of about 2:20 that have proven their ability to race in good company. I would be willing to buy eight or ten of that class of animals at a fair valuation. I don't want any that have been good or are going to be good in the future, but I want animals with size, color, manners, style, soundness and speed enough to be useful for campaigning purposes next year; they must be able to go any distance from one to three miles—must be good scorers, good actors and be good gaited. Mechanical trotters that have to have a lot of extra appliances will not fill the bill at all. I would buy some horses such as I have described and pay the cash for them or I would be a bidder for them if they were consigned to our sele, Yours respectfully,

JOHN SPLAN.

ROY WILKES 2:06½ is now owned by S. W. Mason, Meple Leaf Stock Farm, Gloversville, N. Y.

Common, Ordinary, Cheap Trotting Horses.

The owner end the swipec had just returned from a sale, where they had sold a pony-built Wilkes gelding for $55, just $5 less than the shipping expenses and the sala firm's commission amounted to.

"Wall," said the swipec, "there's nothin' to it 'cept that he wasn't there. It was a hundred to one that he would be there en' that's what's got me gnessin'. You got $50 more than the hoss was worth all right, but it's e cicch you would get a $180 if he had been there, ac'—"

"If who had been there?" interrupted the owner.

"Why, the sucker who thinks that boss is built right en' bred right an' geited right. He would have been lost of a $180 enra," replied the swipec.

"I don't know who you are talking about," said the owner; "who is this sucker, as you call him?" "What's his name?"

"How do you know," returned the swipec, "I ein't no fortune teller. All I know is there's a sucker somewhere that would give you more money for that hoss than he cost you. Common ordinary cheap trottin' hosses is just like common ordinary wimmen. A common ordinary woman can be pigeon-toed an' swey-backed, an' ba tha worst kind of an actor, but there's bound to be on a Patsy looking for her. He don't never see a woman that's fit to train until ha spots this one, but the minute he sights her he thinks she's a world beeter en' he wents her worse than I ever wanted a schooner of Anheuser-Busch. There's your wife. Probably a whole lot of guys seen her before you did. Maybe I seen her, en' maybe Bnd seen her, but I wouldn't give 80 cents for her en' Bnd wouldn't touch her at any price. She looked lika the only Queen left in the deck to you, but if she'd turned you down she'd been loser. See? It's the sama way with a common ordinary trottin' horse. There's goin' to be one guy that thinks he's ready money, an' if the owner's ready en' hands Mr. Hoss over the minuta the sucker is hooked he's goin' to do biz with the bank. If ha ein't ready en' lets tha sucker get away, he's goin' to do biz with the sheriff, 'cause there's only one sucker for every common hoss."

"I can see it now," said the owner, "but it's too late. A men from Cincinnati offered me $200 for that horse last summer end I was a fool that I didn't teke it."

"Offered you two—a man from Cincin—Holy sufferin' Barns, why didn't you tell me this before?" ejaculated the swipec. "Why, he was the sucker! An' you let him get away. I oughter gnessed it, though—it's just like you. If you had told me this before I wouldn't let you shipped the hoss to no sele—not in a thousand years. You didn't have a chance in a hundred to catch that sucker et no sale, 'cause most likely he bought another hoss that didn't suit him, an' got sick of the business. I'm givin' you the straight tip, an' if you want to seve enough dough out of this game to live on when you get nutcessed, you better write it down in your note book. Any time you don't sell a common hoss what you've got a chance, it's a pipe you've got to take any old price from the dealers afterwards."

"Well, it is not always advisable to sell to the first buyer who shows up," remarked the owner. "They tell me Williams refused $50,000 for Axtell end sold him for $100,000 afterwards."

"Yes, but he wasn't a common hoss," replied the swipec. "I'm talking about common, ordinary trotters. I 'spos there's a hundred wise boys mekin' a play for every one o' old men Venestorbilt's daughters, en' there's a sport or two on every train that's rnonin' to the Fasig sele this week that thinks he's goin' to teke Tommy Britton home with him. But old men Venestorbilt's daughters ein't common ordinary daughters, an' Tommy Britton ein't a common ordinary stud. See? Any time you get one like Tommy Brit. it don't cut no ice whether you sell him or not, but you keep on let in' buyers for common horses slip through your mit an' I can see your finish. In about a few years you're goin' to think that you're the unluckiest guy in the business. You're goin' to think that your tele of woe ought to be put in a book en' you'll think you're en' only, 'till you get a chance to swap stories with a few of the other dead ones in the tongh luck class. If I was Papa Steiner I'd pass a rule that all owners whet don't have sense enough to sell common ordinary trottin' hosses when the sucker that wents 'em shows up, must cough up a $500 fine every time they knock the game or sey a word about bein' unlucky. I'm thokin' a rule like that would put a muzzle on a lot of guys like you that grow up to be nothin' but village pests."—Chicago Horse Review.

Some of the Diseases Which Attack the Foot

SEEDY TOE—One of those troublesome diseases which effect the foot is seedy toe. Frequently the disease can be traced to indifferent shoeing. For instance, an unlevel foot or badly fitted clip on the toe (or quarter), is a fruitful source of this melody. An injury to the foot which is likely to interfere with its integrity robs it of that strength which is necessary to sustain it in health. The hoof horn, being composed of an outer layer, is formed from the coronet, and an inner from the sensitive lamina. These two layers in health are firmly cemented together. It can, therefore, be readily understood how important this union is to the integrity of the foot, and how the disconnection of one of these substances would lead to disastrous results. The suppuration in the first place occurs at the toe, disintegration of the horn leaves a hollow from which dusty horn escapes, which constitutes a seedy toe. A horse suffering from seedy toe may be lame or not, though he is liable at any time to falter in his gait and go tenderly. When there is any suspicion that a horse has this disease it is necessary to gently tap with a hammer, when it will emit a hollow sound, and on the shoe being taken off a hollow space will be found, which must be probed to ascertain the depth and extent of the cavity.

The disease may be cured by cutting away all the dead horn, leaving the foot somewhat exposed, and allowing time for an extra growth of horn to fill the place of the dead stuff which has been removed. Sometimes the cavity, even when extensive, is filled with various substances so as to prevent detection, but the removal of the shoe will make manifest this attempt at deception and prove a conclusive demonstration, the unsoundness of the animal so effected. To perfectly bring about a cure, all loose or unsound particles of horn, which might be classed as dry thrush, must be removed. Venus of turpentine poured into the cavity and beaten with a hot iron, and afterwards filled with cotton batting or fine oakum, make a sure preventive against the spread of the disease. In all cases pressure must be kept from either the sole or walled portion of the foot which immediately surrounds the cavity.

SAND CRACK.—Sand crack is produced by any cause which interferes with the health of the foot tissues, and is constantly in operation owing to the lack of frog pressure so necessary in promoting pedal circulation. Sand cracks occur in any part of the hoof, but usually on the side; more commonly on the inner. From whatever cause it may arise, we notice that it commences at the coronet, where the horn is thinnest, and extends its ravages to the sole and then into the sensitive lamina. The crack of the hoof is easily recognized, yet a novice might think lightly of it and would not understand how it could lead to lameness of the most painful nature, which is sure to occur unless remedial efforts be resorted to.

Remedy Employed by Competent Veterinarians: The edges on either side of the fissures are pared away and a hot iron run through the crack just below the coronet and at its termination of the horn. This is done to prevent an outward extension of the crack. Firing iron will leave for some time hoof marks, which indicate that the possessor has been subject to sand crack. A horse with sand crack, while the trouble is present, may be classed as unsound, and even those with a tendency to it can not be said to be sound. Weakness of horn in any horse encourages sand crack.

FALSE QUARTER—It is easily recognized, as it consists of the actual loss of a portion of the coronal band which should secrete the horn intended for the reparation of the hoof. In false quarter the outer or hard crust of the hoof does not exist. The insensitive, and even sometimes the sensitive lamina, are exposed. No cure is possible, although the subjects of it are often made to wear all kinds of appliances devised, which have answered for a time, but have never been of permanent benefit. False quarter is easily detected. A slight examination of the hoof will discover the obliteration of the coronal band and the loss of horn on the quarter, the sensitive lamina only being protected by a soft and spongy horn.

CORNS.—Corns usually occur as the result of careless shoeing, and frequently by neglect of the horse owner or groom in having the horse shod at regular intervals, and in having the shoe too tightly on the heel of the foot, and by these means pressing the horn against the sensitive structures; paring away the wall or weight-bearing portion of the heel so that the pressure will be forced down upon the weakened sole at the junction of the bars and wall; an over growth of foot which permits the shoe to sink down and bear heavily on the heels, or a short, narrowly fitted shoe, any of these causes will produce a corn in a horse's foot. Every time the horse raises his foot from the ground the wings of the pedal bone are drawn upwards and descend as the foot reaches the earth. This constant action of a foot imprisoned at the heel, with iron below and bone above, soon exerts its painful influence by causing an extermination of blood to occur in the fleshy wall. The part so injured is said to be effected with corns. Removal of the pressure and the relieving or allaying of the fever or inflammation by soothing applications is the first necessity in the treatment of these cases. Shoeing with tips, the placing on of a bar shoe so that the pressure may be removed, frequently is found the most simple method for the cure of corns when other kinds of treatment have failed. In the hands of the veterinarian or a practical horse-shoer corns end the trouble which they produce to the horse become of little moment, providing due care is given by those in charge.

CANKER OR THRUSH—Is the result of any cause calculated to reduce the validity of the horse's foot. If the movement of the horse's foot be denied their natural action, the pedal structures, by not being brought into play, will decay or become diseased. This is noticeable in both thrush and canker. A liquid is secreted which has a tendency to decompose the hoof horn. It can neither be pressed from the foot when it first occurs nor absorbed by it, because the latitude of movement with which Nature endowed it is denied the moment a horse is shod. Thrush constantly runs into canker, and appears to be the commencement of disorganization of the foot. In thrush, a corruptive discharge issues from the cleft of the frog; in canker, the foul humor which escapes seems totally to pervert the secreting powers of the foot, which are incapacitated from supplying healthy horn, but in its place causes the formation of a soft, foul material, bearing no resemblance to healthy horn. The foot of the horse effected with thrush is usually hot; a slight discharge issues from the cleft and sides of the frog, which is often much reduced below its natural size. The causes of thrush or canker are, among other things, filthy stables, which are the most prevalent. A horse's feet being allowed to stand in a mass of decomposing matter, ultimately become effected.

NAVICULAR DISEASE consists of ulceration of the navicular bone, which is attached closely to the os pedis, and situated between its wings. Many causes are said to favor the production of this disease. It is essential to the performance of the various functions of the horse's foot, that the heels and frogs should at every step be impressed upon the ground, whereas the shoe now in use raises the frog and heels from the ground and prevents the performance of the first and most important action of the pedal machinery. Shod with heel calks, the frog is robbed of its natural weight-bearing powers, and the tendons above, therefore, are denied that support which the frog was intended to supply. Tendons and ligaments both sometimes break in half, but more frequently only a few fibers of this inelastic tissue become ruptured. When the disconnected filaments form a coil, inflammation is set up and sometimes bony growth supervenes; but when any injury occurs to the perforated tendon at the place of contact with the navicular bone, it usually produces ulceration of it.

Symptoms of Navicular Diseases.—On its first occurrence the subject of it will go lame; no heat can be detected in the effected foot; the horse may point, although this can not be taken alone as sufficient evidence of the disease. It is necessary in examining a horse supposed to be the subject of this melody to exercise great caution, as there are few symptoms manifested at first which are capable of leading to an accurate diagnosis. The most professional veterinarian finds it necessary to wait for days before being able to discover the presence of navicular disease. A few hours' rest will sometimes cause lameness produced by it to disappear immediately on the return from slight exercise. This is one of the signs indicative of the disease under notice. Ulceration of the navicular bone, when once established, can never be removed. The lameness can only be cured by an operation known as nerving, which consists of dividing and cutting away about half an inch of the metacarpal nerve above the fetlock joint; a nail may be driven into the fleshy sole, yet no pain will be evinced in the hoof. At the same time, unnerving takes away pain for a time and converts a cripple into a fair mover, and for this reason the operation is often resorted to sometimes for fraudulent purposes.

PUMICE FOOT.—It is said that horses bred upon marshy land are more liable to be effected with pumice foot than those reared in dry situations. Pumice foot always represents imperfect secretion, and consequently scanty development of horn. It is known usually by the foot being marked with ridges, with the crust brittle and the almost constant breaking away of the hoof in flakes, as the nails are driven to fasten on the shoe. The sole of a pumice foot has a fist surface, usually with well developed frog and bars, but with a thin, irregular marginal crust. Nature alone, which has denied favorable conditions to a horse possessing such a foot, is responsible for the defect.

Calvin's Pedigree.

The following item appeared in this journal last week:

The turf papers are all giving Calvin 2:28½ as by Direct, out of Lilly Langtry, the dam of Ed. B. Young 2:11½. Judge Greene, of Oakland, who owns Lilly Langtry, says that the only one of the get of this mare which is the age and sex of Calvin as given in the papers, was sired by Direct Line 2:21½, son of Director and Lily W., the dam of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½.

Mr. J. H. Neal of Pleasanton, Cal., writes us under date of November 26th as follows:

"Ed. B. Young 2:11½ is out of Lilly Langtry, by Nephew.

Calvin 2:28½ is by Direct, but out of Lilly Langtry 2:23½ by Mambrino Hembletonian, a son of Membrino Pilot. Direct was bred to this mare in Kentucky in 1892. I broke both colts."

The trotting bred horses won in light and heavy harness last week during the National Horse Show with a regularity that delighted the admirers of that useful breed.

The Chariot Race in Ben Hur.

There are many dramas where horses are used and mock race scenes presented on the stage. In this city during the past week live horses ridden by actual jockies have been seen in races that look very realistic, a moving platform on which the horses gallop as on a treadmill being used to get the desired effect. A military drama in which many horses set their perts well in battle scenes has drawn crowds in this city during the past week. But the most elaborate hit of 'horse' play ever seen on a modern stage was presented in New York last Wednesday evening in the initial production of a play dramatized from Gen. Wallace's "Ben Hur." The celebrated chariot race is given in a most thrilling manner. Eight horses and two chariots were shown apparently racing at break-neck speed, the animals galloping with all their power. Four horses, "the two blacks and the two whites," are driven by Messala, and the four Arabian bays by Ben Hur. Messala leads; Ben Hur smashes the wheel of Messala's chariot; the Roman falls beneath the feet of his crazed horses and Ben Hur wins the race.

Solving the problems connected with the presentation of this race and the construction of the apparatus on which it is run cost Klaw & Erlanger over $15,000. The next step was to secure the horses that would fit the description written by the author. This required three months. Over 100 horses that physically filled the requirements were tested before eight satisfactory principles and four substitutes were secured. Their training began September 1st. Three weeks ago the race apparatus was built into the Broadway theater stage, requiring its entire reconstruction. This mechanism consists of two great cradles, 20 feet in length and 14 feet wide, which are moveable back and forth on railways supported by a bridge structure capable of upholding twenty tons. The top of the cradles are two inches below the stage level. Each cradle bears the four horses and the chariot of each contestant. On each cradle there are four runways (or treadmills of hickory slats two inches wide covered with rubber) 12 feet long and two and one-half feet wide.

On each of these treadmills a horse is secured by invisible steel-cable traces, which hold him in place and prevents him from moving forward off the runways. As each horse gallops the treadmill revolves under his feet, thereby eliminating the forward pressure created by the impact of his hoofs, which would force him ahead on an immovable surface. By this mechanical arrangement it is possible for the horses to actually gallop with all their speed within the space of their own length. The device which secures the horses to their places on the cradles is entirely independent of their harnesses, which attach them to the chariots, just as they would be were the animals running in the open air. The wheels of the chariots are worked by rubber rollers, operated by electric motors. To give the chariots the bumping and jolting they would receive in an actual race they are equipped with uneven wheels.

The effect of the losing of the race by Messala and winning it by Ben Hur is produced by moving the cradles backward and forward on their rails, as the situation demands. To create the impression of the charioteers covering the ground at high speed a great panoramic background 35 feet high, representing the walls of the arena with thousands of people sitting in their seats, is revolved rapidly in an opposite direction to that in which the racing chariots are headed. These features, with other incidental effects combined, make the most perfect reality yet conceived for theatrical presentation.

NEXT year a rule will be adopted in France to set aside 5 per cent of all purses over $200, to be paid to the breeder of the winner's dam.

Horse Owners Should Use

GOMBAULT'S

Caustic Balsam

The Great French Veterinary Remedy.

A SAFE, SPEEDY AND POSITIVE CURE.

Prepared exclusively by J. E. Gombault, ex-Veterinary Surgeon to the French Government Stud.

TERMS—One Year, $3; Six Months, $1.75; Three Months, $1. STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.

Money should be sent by postal order, draft or by registered letter addressed to F. W. KELLEY, 22 1/2 Geary St., San Francisco, Cal. Communications must be accompanied by the writers' name and address, not necessarily for publication, but as a private guarantee of good faith.

San Francisco, Saturday, December 2, 1899.

THE NEW YEAR, which will soon open, should be one of greatly increased prosperity among the light harness horse owners of California. Just one thing is needed to put trainers at work developing trotters and pacers on every track in the State, and that is the certainty that meetings will be given generally throughout California. If the district associations at Oakland, Vallejo, Napa, Santa Rosa, Woodland, Willows, Red Bluff, Chico, Marysville, Stockton, San Jose, Salinas, Fresno, Tulare, Los Angeles, Hueneme and Santa Ana can officially announce by New Years day that they will give meetings and hang up purses of from $500 to $1000 (as they can afford), horse owners will within ten days thereafter place enough horses in the hands of trainers to fill the purses offered five times over. People will flock to Cape Nome next summer by the thousands because they are confident there is gold there which can be had by digging for it, and horse owners will in a like manner get ready to race their horses if they know there will be money to race for. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN would very much like to print in its Christmas Edition an official announcement from the Secretary of every district association in the State to the effect that his association would certainly give a meeting and what the size of the purses will be. If we could announce the fact that one-half the districts would be in line, there would be a boom in the trotting horse business that would be of benefit to all concerned in it in any way. We notice that several of the district boards are showing more activity than they did last year and hope they will get to work in earnest as early as possible. Announcements cannot be made too early. Entries need not close until later on.

THE FUTURITY STAKES announced by the California Jockey Club will be the first great stake offered in which all the winnings paid will be in cash. There will be no forfeits but, that the California Jockey Club does not intend nor expect to use the money paid in without paying for it, the following letter sent out by President Williams plainly shows:

SAN FRANCISCO, November 8, 1899.

Dear Sir: We beg to call your attention to our First Annual Futurity, entries to close January 2, 1900, the race to be run in December, 1902.

If you will notice the conditions of our Futurity and compare them with the conditions of the New York Futurity, you will see that we add exactly the same amount of money, but that our entrance money and different payments are only one-half the amount charged for the New York Futurity, the starting money being just the same.

We especially desire to call your attention to the fact that no entries will be received unless accompanied by cash payment or certified check. The object of this is to do away completely with any forfeit list. It has no doubt been your experience that forfeit lists are a detriment to racing in many ways. There have been some New York Futurities in which the forfeits amounted to between $20,000 and $30,000, and no doubt it is within your personal knowledge that a great many of these forfeits have not even been collected up to date. It is consequently not a true prize when an amount is paid part in cash and part in paper; and our experience has been that forfeit lists have always been the means of creating a great deal of hard feeling between horsemen and breeders.

For the above reasons we will absolutely insist upon cash payments, and any entries that may be forwarded without cash or certified checks will have to be refused. There is no desire on the part of the California Jockey Club to have the use of these entrance moneys, out simply to improve the condition of the stakes and to better the interests of the breeders and horsemen. We will, therefore, in addition to the first money, pay over to the winner of a race an amount of money sufficient to equal what would be interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on all moneys received from the time of the first payment up to and including the last.

We trust you will agree with us as to the good sense of insisting upon all cash payments, and hope you will favor us with liberal entries.

It is our desire, if possible, to have the first Futurity worth $50,000 cash, and it is our intention to make this an annual event, and we know that you will fully appreciate the advantages such racing will be to both breeders and horsemen.

Very respectfully,

THOS. H. WILLIAMS, JR.,
President.

WE WANT every owner and trainer of trotters and pacers on this Coast to drop us a line from time to time and tell us something about their horses and how they are doing. Especially does the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN desire to know what horses with records will be trained for next year's races, as it is by the publication of this news that the P. C. T. H. B. A., the State Agricultural Society and the district associations learn what classes must be provided in next year's program and which will be the most likely to fill. If you have a crackerjack green horse that you are keeping under cover in order to scoop all the purses in a certain class, it will not be necessary to tell our readers that he is already going eighths in "steen" seconds, but you can at least intimate whether he is a pacer or trotter and what classes would meet with your approbation. Horse owners and trainers can do much for the business by sending to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN all items of horse news that happen in their locality and they will find it will do much to advertise their town and track. It does not make any difference whether you can write a good hand or spell all the words correctly. We have a man in our office who just delights in fixing them up so that they will read straight and convey the idea that the original writer intended. His duties have not been onerous lately and if the boys at the training headquarters will only send in a lot of letters that contain facts, no matter how badly they are spelled, he will only be too glad to put a dress on them that will make them look like "the real thing."

TWO OF THE MOST VALUABLE stake events on the American turf are given by the Westchester Racing Association and the conditions are announced in another column, to which we direct especial attention. They are the National Stallion Stakes for foals of 1899, to be run as two year olds at the spring meeting of 1901, last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course, and the fourth Matron for the produce of mares covered in 1899, foals of 1900, to be run as two year olds at the autumn meeting, 1902, over the Eclipse Course. To the Stallion Stake the association will add $4000 and 50 per cent. of the stallion subscriptions, the remaining 50 per cent. to go to the nominators of the sires of the first three horses in the race. The entries of stallions closed September 15th, and the list of horses whose get are eligible will be found with conditions of the race. The amount added to the Matron is $6000, and the event is divided into two parts, one for colts and geldings, and the other for fillies, with $3000 added to each. This is a very attractive feature of the stake, and should make it popular with breeders, inasmuch as the fillies are equally taken care of with the colts. Engagements in both events will greatly enhance the value of yearlings, and breeders cannot afford to overlook them. The conditions are easy, and fillies are favored in both races. The entries will close at midnight of Tuesday, December 5th, and H. C. Crickmore, Clerk of the Course, 173 Fifth avenue, New York City, will furnish entry blanks and further particulars on application.

THE TRAIN SERVICE between this city and Tanforan Park has been greatly improved for the meeting which opens next Monday, and it will now be an easy matter to reach the track. At nine o'clock each morning a train will leave Ingleside for Tanforan, conveying free of charge horses that are to participate in the races, and will return at 5 P. M. The run requires but thirty minutes.

FOUR WEEKS FROM TO-DAY three rich stakes for the two year olds will be closed by the Western Turf Association: The Western Stakes, $1500 added money, to be run in 1900, the Western Foal Stakes, $2000 added money, to be run in 1901, and The Western Produce Stakes, $5000 added money, to be run in 1902 and annually thereafter. These stakes, especially the last one, should receive a tremendous entry list, and it is very likely that it will be so well patronized that its value will be close to forty thousand dollars. Great stakes attract great crowds and improve racing more than anything else. Every breeder who desires to see the value of his foals improve should enter them in these stakes. It will pay him even though he does not win them.

SPEEDWAYS are the vogue in all the leading cities of the United States. The horsemen of Reading, Pennsylvania are the latest to establish one and they are doing it on an extensive scale. It is to be three and a half miles long by fifty feet wide and will cost $25,000. The speedway will not be built for the purpose of making money, but tolls will be charged sufficiently for the cost of its maintenance. It is to provide lovers of good driving an elegant stretch of broad, level road on the mountain side, which, when completed, in connection with a boulevard, will be one of the best driveways in the United States.

THE ENTIRE STUD of horses belonging to the late Simeon G. Reed will soon be consigned to the auction ring in New York. The imported stallion Duncombe heads this stud and there are a number of grandly bred mares, many of them the dams of winners. The horses are at present at Rancho del Paso.

THE PORTRAIT of the American trotter which appears on the first page of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to-day, is reproduced from the handsome colored lithograph sent out by the Empire Trotting Club of New York.

New Trotting Blood for California.

Among the new comers to the land of sunshine and flowers of Southern California is Mr. A. G. F. Stice, a former resident of Illinois and a great admirer of the trotting horse. Mr. Stice brought with him a string of horses that will be a great acquisition to the breeding and racing ranks of California trotters and pacers and we are pleased to state that he has already put a number of them in training and will be seen on our California Circuit this year provided announcements of meetings are not delayed so long that he with many others will be certain of a season of racing. The horses Mr. Stice is working at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles, at present are as follows:

Jessie C. 2:10 1/2 by Alroy, Beachwood 2:10 1/2 by Silkwood, Wilhelmina 2:15 1/2 by Charleston, Alderta 2:24 1/2 by Allerton, Washawenna 2:24 1/2 by Baron Wilkes, Dollie Foote 2:28 1/2 by Leewood, Maysign, a two year old by Ensign, and the following yearlings: Mendota by Charleston, Lillian Vincent, Dorthia Welburn and Viola Vincent, all by St. Vincent. The broodmares are Flora Little 2:23 by Gen. Lee, Shadeland Acme 2:23 1/2 by Wilkes Natwood, Winsome 2:23 1/2 by Egbert, Maybreaker 2:17 1/2 by Nuthrecker, Dollie B. 2:27 by Ansterlitz, and Nellie M. 2:10 1/2 by Butler's Besshaw. These mares are all in foal to Colbert 2:08 1/2, Charleston 2:12 and St. Vincent 2:13.

The mares and the horses in training are all looking well and working nicely. In shipping them out from Illinois Mr. Stice had the bad luck to lose the mare Freeda 2:25 1/2, a great mare by Nelson 2:09, Beachwood 2:10 1/2, Mr. Stice purchased a week ago, and will get her ready for the races of 1900 with every prospect of lowering her mark.

Stakes Filled Well.

The great filly stake with $5000 added by the Coney Island Jockey Club, to be run at the Fall meeting, 1901, filled beyond the highest estimate of any of the turfmen who were consulted about the stake and its condition before it was announced. The entries already received amount to nearly 500, and, with a few other turfmen to hear from, it is reasonably certain that there will be over 500 entries to the stake. These entries reflect the breeding situation far better than any article that could be written, or any argument advanced, by anybody associated with racing. All these entries are of live foals and show plainly that the fillies have been neglected by the racing associations, and that stakes for them, properly conditioned, will attract numerous entries and furnish excellent contests.

The Great Filly Stake, with the entries already received, promises to be worth at least $30,000. This will cause many fillies to be trained, and no doubt will cause other racing associations to follow the lead of the Coney Island Jockey Club and give valuable stakes for the future Miss Woodfords, Sonoritas, Los Angeles, Imps and Sweet Briars.

THE NEW YORK HORSE SALE.

J. B. Haggin Buys Trotting Bred Broodmares for Rancho Del Paso.

Nearly a thousand trotting bred horses were sold at New York during the Old Glory sale held by the Faeg-Tipton company at Madison Square Garden just after the Horse Show. The sale lasted nine days and the fact that there were buyers at some price for everything offered shows that the trotting horse market must be in a pretty healthy state. One of the features of the sale was the presence of Mr. J. B. Haggin who purchased a number of high class broodmares which he will send to Rancho del Paso end enter more extensively into the breeding of light harness horses. Our reports of the sale are necessarily meagre, the New York papers furnishing but partial lists of the sales made. The highest priced horse in the sale was Tommy Britton 2:08, end brought $70,000, the highest price paid for a trotting horse in New York since the sale of Stamboul.

Following are the horses outside the California consignments that brought $1000 or over at the sale: Joe N. by Milroi $1550, Tba Montana by Prodigal $2100, Indale by Allerton $1150, Pasonte by Palo Alto $2500, Sunland Belle by Bourhon Wilkes $3025, Faustina by Wexford $2600, Elloree by Axtell $4750, Sagwa by Saywa $7100, Electric Wilkes by Expedition $2050, Ruella by Nutbreeker $1200, Gerden by Higwood $1000, Sister Alice by Baron Wilkes $2100, Laurels by Prodigal $1900, Alemoto by Eagle Bird $1300, Kentucky Union by Aberdeen $3300, Coney by McKinney $1160, Kellar by Allerton $6200, Locha by Allerton $3010, Flore McGregor by Robert McGregor $3000, Lucy Wilton by Wilton $1350, Rubber by Wilton $3500, Baron Dillon by Beron Wilkes $1825, Baroness Mabel by Beron Wilkes $1300, Tommy Britton by Liberty Bell $20,000, Directly by Direct $3000, Louise Mec by Little Corporal $3700, Extasy by Baron Wilkes $5500, Axtello by Axtell $3600, Tiger by McEwen $1250, Bright Light by Derknight $1100, Bellwood A. by Bow Belle $1100, Rose Warren by Alta Vista $1150, Red Bee by Redfield $2025, Jean King by Membrino King $1525, Excell by Duroc $1200, Norvet by Norval $1545, Bonatella by Rostock $4500.

No particulars have been received in regard to Sam Gamble's consignment of horses from Aptos Stock Farm. The horse Dreyfos, the ster of the lot, is the only one particularly mentioned in the reports. The Daily Telegraph of last Sunday said:

"A wave of excitement passed through the crowd late in the afternoon. The consignment from California, brought over by Sem Gembla, had been dregging along, some of the best ones selling at fair prices, and the youngsters not bringing what they were worth. The fact that several of them had taken cold on their trip across the continent told against them. They did not show to advantage and sold for less than they were worth.

Sem Gamble, who is known among horsemen the world over, stood in the auctioneer's box and told everything he knew about the animals as they were led into the ring, in that plain, old honest voice that everyone knows. When the brown gelding Drayfus, was brought in, Gambla said that some might object to his name, but as there had to be some name tacked onto him for cataloguing purposes, he just gave him the name of Dreyfus. Whoever bought him could change the name if desiring to do so. Mat Dwyer started the bidding and was quickly overhiddn by Jare Murphy. They hit each other back and forth at $100 a crack, and there was a livening up of interest about the stand. The bid went down to $50 and finally the amount was raised $25 at a time. He was finally knocked down to Mr. Dwyer for $1350 and will be sent to Europe. He is considered to be one of the most promising prospects of the consignment. He is by Dexter Prince, dam Miss Valensin, by Valensin."

Some of the best judges thought Electric Wilkes, purchased by Richard Croker, for $2050, as one of the best bargains of the day. The youngster is without any public record. He is a bay colt of good size and speedy conformation, by Expedient 2:15 1/2, out of Otway, a young mare by Wilkes Boy; grandam by Onward. Mr. Croker has placed him in the hands of Jeck Curry, the noted reinsman, who brought out Joe Patchen 2:01 1/2, and who drove Alix 2:03 1/2. Mr. Croker has presented his well-known Speedway trotter Cheney 2:13 1/2, by Guy Wilkes, to Nathan Straus.

Gen. Tracy and Mr. Croker shook hands cordially when they ran across each other in the jam, and talked horse just as if neither one of them knew a thing about politics. The European horseman congratulated Mr. Croker on his purchase of Electric Wilkes; and the Democratic leader remarked that Advertiser 2:15, was the handsomest stallion at the Horse Show last week, adding: "Everybody seems to want a trotter now that we've got a Speedway."

Herbert Gray paid the highest price of the day, $7100, for the best green trotting gelding Sagwa, from Cleveland. This fellow is without a public record, but he has trotted a well authenticated trial in 2:10, last half in 1:04. He is a Missouri product, and was developed by W. R. Carter at Mexico, Mo. Grey bought him for Thomas W. Lewson, of Boston. Elloree 2:08, one of the noted trotters in the Grand Circuit last season, was struck off to Ed A. Tipton for $4750. Tipton said he had bought her for a New York horseman. She is a nine year old daughter of Axtell 2:12 and the great broodmare Flora McGregor, by Robert McGregor.

R. A. Feirbeirn bought one of the sters of the sele in the green two year old colt Tbe Montana, by Prodigal, paying $2100 for him. He has trotted a pert of e mile at a 2:12 gait.

Pesonte 2:13, the six year old daughter of Palo Alto, brought $2500 and was bought by John H. Schultz.

Flora Directum, the five year old by Directum out of a mere by Monroe Chief brought $420.

Peko 2:11 1/2 by Electioneer brought $525 and was bought by Vence Nichols of Cleveland.

Iago 2:11 went through this sele once more end $425 was the high bid.

Derby Lass 2:14 by Ches. Derby brought $650 end will go to Austria.

Myron McHenry sold his mares Rose Croix 2:11 1/2 end Sister Alice 2:16 1/2, and they brought $700 and $2100 respectively. He stated plainly to the buyers that in his opinion Rose Croix would not stand track work.

Bertie R., 2:12 1/2, the outlewed mare that was a ringer in Europe end took the world's five mile record in England sold for $950. It is not probable that she will ever be reinstated.

Jaspine 2:14 1/2, the daughter of Iris and Jasper Ayers, that Johnny Perkins had on the California Circuit two years ago, brought $910 and will go to Austria.

Richard Croker purchased another good one in Kentucky Union 2:07 1/2. The great trotter is now ten years old. She has been campaigned ever since she was three years old, yet her legs are as clean and sound as they were when Sam Fuller brought her from Missouri in 1892 and astonished the talent by beating Directum with her at Independence, Ia., in a sensational race. She will make a perfect road mere. $3300 was a low price for her.

One of the most notable transactions Tuesday was the purchase of the fourteen year old pacer Gold Leaf 2:11 1/2, by Sidney out of Fern Leaf, by John H. Shults for $200. Shults bought her once before for $8000. This was nearly ten years ago. In 1898 he sold her at auction for $600, J. W. Daly being the buyer. Tuesday it was Daly's turn to sell and Shulte bought her back.

Dan Maloney, of White Plains, who paid $1160 for Coney 2:07 1/2, does not believe that this pacer is outclassed, but thinks he can win a good many dollars with him next year.

Ninety-nine mares, colts and fillies, most of them by Allerton, were consigned to the sele by C. W. Williams, their breeder. They brought $39,195, an average of $395

J. B. Haggin was a heavy buyer at the sale and picked up some grandly bred young mares and several broodmares that have produced record horses. They will come to Rancho del Paso and the breeding of trotter will be entered on more extensively than ever there.

The third day of the big vendue was given over exclusively to C. W. Williams, the former telegraph operator of Independence, Ia., who started in the breeding business with two low priced brood mares a little more than ten years ago and from them raised in one year two colts that at 4 years of age had a market value of nearly $250,000; who drove one of these colts, Axtell 2:12, to the world's record for stallions at three years of age, selling him a few hours afterwards for $105,000, and who refused an offer of $125,000 for the other colt, Allerton 2:09 1/2, after driving him the first mile ever trotted below 2:10 by a stallion. Williams brought 128 mares and colts to the Gerden sale from his place at Galesburg, Ill., making one of the largest consignments on record. The young Westerner has notions of his own about selling horses as well as about training them, and some of his statements to prospective buyers were refreshingly candid. When his pet three year old colt Kellar 2:16 1/2, by Allerton, come to be sold he told everybody how the youngster had ruptured a blood vessel in his head in a race in Boston last August, and had bled again when started in the $30,000 Horse Review Stake at Dubuque, Ia., the following week. "A very eminent veterinary in Boston," said he, "told me it was caused by the hot weather and the hard journey of 1200 miles and back again, and that he would get all right if he had the time for the tissue to become strong. I gave him a rest and then started him again this fall, driving him to a record of 2:16 1/2 in a winning race. I believe he is now all right again." Williams' frank talk seemed to make a good impression on the horsemen present, for the offers came in rapidly. J. A. Bleurock, Assemblymen Carl S. Burr Jr., and Ed A. Tipton were the contending bidders, Burr finally getting the colt for $6200. Tipton is said to be acting for Marcus Daly. Many persons assumed that Burr represented H. O. Havemeyer, for whom he has bought many trotters, but this was a mistake. The better opinion among the Wall street men in the Gerden was that Kellar would go up the Hudson to the country place of Breyton Ivas, near Sing Sing. The President of the Metropolitan Trust Company is fond of the trotters, particularly his splendid road mera Margaret Worth 2:15. He owns such good ones as Ixia 2:18 1/2, Lucy Porter 2:24 1/2 and other fast mares, end is breeding in a limited way for his own pleasure. Keller should make a fine stock horse. He is as handsome as a picture, pure gaited and very fast, and his breeding a study for the horsemen. His first, second, third and fourth dems are all producers. He was got by Allerton, who was closely inbred to both George Wilkes end Mambrino Chief. Keller's dam was by Red Wilkes, son of Georga Wilkes, end his second dam, Anglia, was by George Wilkes himself. His third dam and his fourth dam were by Mambrino Petcher, son of Membrino Chief, end his fifth and sixth dams wara by Membrino Chief, while his seventh dem was a daughter of the thoroughbred horse Gray Eagle. Few horses in the Stud Book show such a remarkable concentration of the blood of the two great trotting sires.

Following are the prices brought by the California bred horses consigned to the sele by Eastern owners:

Table listing horse names and prices, including Pasonte 2:13, Flora Directum, Gandanr, Peko 2:14 1/2, Free Lance, Israel Wilson, Irv npton Belle, Jaspine 2:14 1/2, Gold Leaf, Mlnet, Oro Rex, Ellean, Gollta, Pansy Blossom, Maggle McDowell, Coney, Golders, Directly, Directess, Dreyfus, Mfarlo Jr., Anselor, Bollerla, Tiny, Arthur L., Toots.

PALO ALTO CONSIGNMENT.

Table listing horse names and prices under Palo Alto Consignment, including Adolto, Adabella, Moneria, Mendell, Elmora, Altoat, Mallaskal, Resemblance, Sbellac, Efosa, Adorica, Prince Whips, Atlanta, Ringmont, Souetlica, Prince Byron, Albany, Monetto, Willard.

A String from Oakwood Park.

Millard F. Sanders, whose success with colt trotters and pacers has not been exceeded by any trainer in California, has been up to the Oakwood Park Stock Farm and selected eight well bred young horses which he will take to Pleasanton and begin working for speed. There is not one of the entire lot but is worth spending time and money on end it would not be surprising if several future big money winners come out of the bunch. They are as follows:

Princess Derby, a four year old black mere by Chas. Derby, out of Princess, by Administrator, therefore full sister to Derby Princess.

Midday, a handsome chestnut mere foaled 1896 and by Ches. Derby, out of Heydey, by Copperhead, son of Owendale, second dem by Kentucky Boy. This filly has the Steinway, Electioneer and Williamson's Belmont strains of blood in her veins and that is a great combination.

Allan Derby is a bay gelding foaled 1897, by Ches Derby, out of Algerditta (dam of Sable Steinway 2:23 and Alandora 2:18 1/2), by Alendorf, next dem by Mambrino King.

Rubato, a brown filly foaled in 1897, is one of Steinway's good looking daughters and having for a dam the mare Tone, dam of Agiteto 2:09, by Geo. Wilkes' son Ferguson, is looked upon as a good prospect.

A two year old brown gelding foaled May 11th last year is a full brother to Klatawah 2:05 1/2, Suolight 2:25, Ches. Derby 2:20, Steiner 2:29 1/2 and H. R. Covey 2:25. This fellow shows speed already end is hardly broken to track work yet.

Petronella is a chatnut filly by El Benton, son of Electioneer and out of Bey Run by Steinway, next dam by Antaeo, next by Captain Webster and then into thoroughbred families. This filly is very promising and is certainly royally bred.

Litka is another two year old having been foaled in April 1897. She is by Chas Derby out of Susie Mambrino, a mare that is chock full of Mambrino Patchen and Wilkes blood, backed up by Black Hewk. Litka is a brown filly end a good looking one.

Northern Belle, a filly foaled in 1897, is a magnificently bred one being by Steinway out of Slight, by Electioneer; second dam Sprite, by Belmont 64, third dam Waterwitch, by Pilot Jr., fourth dem Fanny, by St. Lawrence, and fifth dam Brende, by Oliver, a thoroughbred.

Mr. Sanders has certainly selected a very promising lot of young horses, and we hope to give our readers more information about them and their gets end prospects after he gets them at work on the Pleasanton track.

Sulky Notes.

ANNOUNCE meetings early.

STALLION fees are going up.

INCREASE the horse's earning capacity.

MISSOURI has three sons of Electioneer in the stud.

GOOD green trotters and pacers are being sought after.

SIX pacers in the 2:10 list are out of Blue Bull mares.

"THE fastest green trotter in America" brought $7100.

JAY BIRD already has 23 mares hooked to him at $100.

STAMBOUL 2:07½, has forty-one trotters in the standard list and no pacers.

C. A. WINSHIP, of Los Angeles, will have a string of campaigners out next year.

It is reported that Mrs. Langtry will sell all her horses and retire from the turf.

E. D. HARRIMAN intends driving John R. Gentry on the speedway some this fall.

THE names of five thousand horse fanciers of Philadelphia are on a petition for a speedway in that city.

B. O. VAN BOKKELEN is jogging "a few" at San Jose and will have a string of good ones next year.

KNAP MCCARTHY thinks the gray pacer Nuthreaker Jr. 2:14½ has natural speed enough to heat two minutes.

LADY OF THE MANOR 2:04½, is now quartered at the Village Farm and is able to walk around a little each day.

SEARCHLIGHT will run in a peddock until after New Year, and he pointed for a two minute record next summer.

DOWN in the Philippines the cavalry horses are induced to eat the poor hay by sprinkling it with molasses and water.

ANTEROS, son of Electioneer and Columbine, has been sold by G. W. Morrison of Indiana to E. Knell of Carthage, Mo.

VILLAGE FARM won $1285 in premiums at the late Horse Show, which included three blue ribbons and a championship.

B. TAPPAN, the European trainer, is just now in this country. He says he won over 40 races in Europe the past season.

BROODMARES do not bring big prices at auction, and the owner who has what he considers a great one had better breed her.

MONROE SALISBURY will probably take his string of horses to Pleesenton soon and stall them at the track there for the winter.

SHERIFF VAN DE VANTER, of Seattle, has the Cape Nome fever and may take a whirl at the placer diggings there next summer.

JOHN SPLAN paid $5500 for Axmere 2:13½, a son of Ax-tell, the other day. Mr. Splan bought the horse for Bert Seiger of Vienna, Austria.

WARRENER, the twelve year old brother to Sunol, that has one trotter in the list with a record of 2:20½, was recently sold at auction for $250.

WHEN stalls readily rent for $2 per month each at the Alameda track, it looks a good proposition to build several more. The cost is not over $25 per stall.

A PROMINENT Austrian turfman stated in New York recently that in his opinion pacers would soon become popular on the other side of the Atlantic, both for road and racing purposes.

MORE than eight hundred head of trotting bred horses were sold at auction during November in New York at three big sales. And still the demand for good ones is not supplied.

GEORGE STARR recently received a carload of young trotters from Empire City Farm. During the winter he will work them and such as justify it will be campaigned next season.

MRS. H. J. AGNEW has sold a number of horses during the past month that were bred on the Agnew Stock Farm. They were by Dawn and Boswell Jr. and the purchasers got some rare bargains.

WALDO J., "the gray ghost of Santa Paula," is enjoying a run among the rich pastures of Brentwood Farm in Contra Costa county and is getting fat. He will probably be in Ed Lafferty's hands next season.

DR. LEEK 2:09½, is now one of the champion roed horses owned in Philadelphia. He is now the property of P. C. Knox, the man who paid $9500 for the team Wert and B. C. at the Splar-Newgess sale last year.

C. W. WILLIAMS paid $2500 for the Red Wilkes mare Miss France when she was a two year old. Her only living foal is the three year old stallion Kellar 2:16½, which he sold at the Fasig-Tipton sale in New York last week for $6200.

THE three year old filly Joanne 2:17½, by Joe Patchen, has peed a mile in 2:14½ over a half-mile track. She was bought by H. Y. Haws, of Johnstown, Pa., who campaigned her sire a part of the season just closed.

A SINGULAR coincidence that the New York Horse Show furnished last week was that while Bells Hamlin was parading in the ring her old mate, Honest George 2:14½, stood just outside the building hitched to a huskster's cart.

MILO KNOX has already a dozen good horses for the Splen-Newgess sale at Chicago in January end will have a carload by the end of this week. He will probably take them to Pleesenton to shepe them up prior to shipment.

TWELVE mules were shipped from Pleesanton Seturday consigned to the Spreckels sugar plantation on the Sandwich Islands. Mr. Geo. Davis was the shipper. All the animals were purchased in that neighborhood within the past few weeks.

DREYFUS, the brown five year old gelding by Dexter Prince out of Miss Valensin, by Valensin, son of Sidney, that Sam Gamble took to the New York sale, brought $1360. Dreyfus had worked a quarter in 32 seconds before leaving California end was a good looker.

THE stalls at the Pleesenton race track are all ready for occupancy. The last paint and whitewash was put on Saturday. The water pipes have been laid and the tank is finished. The grounds have been cleaned up of all rubbish and the place is now in a presentable condition.

THERE are six stallions that have each sired more than a hundred standard performers, the aggregate being 836. Electioneer leads with 158, Nutwood second with 156, Onward third with 147, Red Wilkes fourth with 145, Alcantera fifth with 130 and Pilot Medium sixth with 102.

ELIAS WILLIAMS, of Alameda, was quite severely injured the other day by a colt jumping on him, but although "Doc" had a rib or two fractured and was hedly bruised up, he will be out in a few days as he has Silver Bow Jr. and one or two other good ones that he will begin work on pretty soon.

JAMES MISNER, of Portland, Oregon, is talking of coming to Pleesenton this winter with Kittitas Ranger, Sleepy Tom and a few more Oregon horses that have speed at the trot or pace. Mr. Misner could not find a track that will render him greater aid in making speed than the one at Pleesenton.

UNCLE JOHNNY 2:19½, the chestnut gelding owned by Geo. Shaw of Hollister and consigned to the Fasig-Tipton sale at New York, did not bring as much as was expected. He sold for $550 and was purchased by Carl Barr of Long Island, the same gentleman who purchased Mergeret Worth last year.

E. A. LORD, the purchaser of Tommy Britton, says that he appreciates the fact that the trotting horse business is on the boom once again, and that he thinks the stallion is worth all he paid for him. He would rather pay $20,000 for one that is right in it than to pay less money for prospects or a has been.

THE MONK 2:08½, is the horse that Mr. Hamlin has now picked out to mate with The Abbot 2:06½, and try for the world's team record. Bettleton was the horse selected last season, but he never showed the capacity or steadiness to keep up with The Abbot and they were never driven together but once.

GREAT progress is being made in forming the social club club that is to have its headquarters at the beautiful track of the Empire City club, near Yonkers, N. Y. It is said that when the membership roll is complete, it will include the names of all the leading supporters of harness racing in the eastern metropolis.

WHEN one figures up the number of bookmakers and jockeys that are either announced as arrivals at fashionable winter resorts or are about to go to such places of sojourn, and then compares their number with those of owners and trainers at the same points, an apt commentary on modern racing results is reached.—Horsemen.

THE world is not so very big after all. John S. Taylor, Kansas City, Mo., was at Cairo, Egypt, not long ago and had the singular experience of riding behind a pair of carriage horses that he had bred, owned and driven years ago in Kansas. How the pair got into Egypt and how many times they changed hands, he was unable to find out.

WILD NUTTING 2:13 is one of the best headed horses in California, but he is also a great loafer. He cares no more for a whip than for a fly lighting on his back, no matter how hard it is laid on. He is urged to extreme effort by one of those little chain pursuers and when he hears it rattle he can go from a three minute jog into a two minute clip within twenty yards.

THE Yolo County Agricultural Association held a meeting last week and elected Messrs. A. M. Britt and Sem Montgomery as Directors to succeed themselves, their terms having expired. Mr. Chas. Hoppin and Mr. Montgomery were appointed a committee to secure the grounds for a fair in 1900, and to consult with stockmen as to the most expedient date for the same. If Woodlend holds a fair next year it will be a good one, as the association has some very enterprising members who are taking hold of the affair in earnest.

FRANK P. KINNEY, Secretary of the Louisville Driving Club says that the report that there would never be another trotting meeting at Louisville was sent out without authority and that there was no foundation for the report. He has an option on the track, and so far as is now known, meetings will be held next year as usual. The report, he says, was started by some running horsemen, who are anxious to get the track for the thoroughbreds.

ED LAFFERTY has a new one in his string. This is a very handsome bay colt, three years old, by Bay Bird out of a mare by Alona. The youngster is a promising colt though he has never yet been trained for speed. Ed will soon have sent to him a daughter of Silver Bow out of a mare by Patron, that is entered in the Occident Stake for 1900, and will be trained with the idea of capturing first money with her if she is fast enough. Here's hoping she is.

DOC WILKES, the gelding by Membrino Wilkes that was injured in the shoulder last year by felling on the street in Oakland, is under the care of a veterinary, having had an incision made in his shoulder, a muscle lifted from the bone to which it had grown, and afterwards a seaton put in. He seems to be doing well, and that portion of the shoulder that had fallen away is filling out noticeably. If Doc Wilkes shows no lameness next year look out for a fast pacer.

THE Nutwood Driving Club, at Dubuque, Iowa, has already announced that it will next year give purses aggregating not less than $50,000. They will also hold races in 1901, when the Dubuque Futurity Stake of $7500 will be one of the big cards. This announcement of the Dubuque club will set the trainers at work all over the section of the country, and their action in letting the horsemen know early what is in store for them, should be emulated by every association in the country.

THE following absurd statement appeared in so Eastern paper recently: "There has been some curiosity as to where the breeder of Owyhee 2:11 got the name for the stallion that was the mainstay of the Keeting-McHenry stable the past season. It is the old name of Hawaii, the largest of the Sandwich Islands." Owyhee is an Indian name and the name of a town in Melheur county, Oregon. The great champion three year old pacer, Kletawah 2:05½, bred at the Oakwood Stock Farm, which also bred and still owns Owyhee bears an Indian cognomen.

A HANDSOME souvenir number was issued November 16th by the American Sportsman of Cleveland, Ohio. Its columns were filled with most interesting matter about the matinee trotters and pacers of Cleveland, Pittsburg, Toledo, Detroit and Columbus, embellished with numerous beautiful photo engravings. Among the horses pictured hitched to the matinee wagons were the well known California-bred trotters, Peko 2:11½ by Electioneer, Azote 2:04½ by Whips, John A. McKerron (3) 2:12½ by Nutwood Wilkes, and Valentine (2) 2:30 by Boodle.

THOMAS W. LAWSON, the Boston man who owns Borelma 2:13, showed a very important consignment as factors in the contests for the coveted blue ribbons in the New York Horse Show. For the length of time that he has been connected with the business few men have ever compered with him in the prominence he has attained. Mr. Lawson is very enthusiastic over anything in which he takes an interest. He is particularly fond of a good horse and loves nothing better than the driver's seat behind a good team, be it four-in-hand, pair, tandem or a single hitch. He is a good reinsman, and an excellent judge of a horse, as his stable testifies.

JOHN A. MCKERRON, the well known Mason street harness maker, has just completed two very handsome sets of carriage harness, one for Miss Jenny Flood, the other for Timothy Hopkins, Esq. No finer specimen of the harness maker's skill have ever been seen in this city, and for quality of material and excellence of workmanship they can not be excelled in any country. It has been the custom heretofore among many San Franciscans who desire the very latest and best in horse outfitings to send to New York for them, but we are pleased to state that this custom is getting to be a thing of the past, as such work as Mr. McKerron turns out will stand comparison in every way with the best produced anywhere in the world.

BARON WILKES 2:18 and Alcantera 2:23 lead all sires in respect to numbers of 2:12 performers. Each has 13. Baron Wilkes is credited with seven trotters and six pacers, and Alcantera five trotters and eight pacers. The average record of the 2:12 performers of Baron Wilkes is 2:09 29-52, and of Alcantera 2:11 1-26. Onward 2:25½ and Wilton 2:19½ each has 10 in the 2:12 list, each having five trotters and five pacers; Bourbon Wilkes, Gemetta Wilkes 2:19½ and Gny Wilkes 2:15½, nine each; Brown Hal 2:12½ and Chimes 2:30½, eight each. Brown Hal's 2:12 performers are all pacers, while Chimes has five trotters and three pacers. It will be seen that the seven leading sires of 2:12 performers are all sons of George Wilkes 2:22.

NEW ENGLAND horsemen are evidently determined to have the best horseflesh that can be found. The highest priced animal sold on the opening day of the Fasig-Tipton sale was secured by Thomas Lawson, of Boston, who paid $7100 for the much touted Sagwa. This horse is as yet an unknown quantity so far as racing is concerned. He is very fast, however, and his breeding on the dam's side is really better than it looks in the catalogue. Her sire, Benjamin Whirlwind, was by Whirlwind. The latter took a trotting record of 2:30½ away back in 1865. Whirlwind's sire was Altorf, a thoroughbred son of imported Fyde, and his dam was by Stockholder, a son of Sir Archy. The second dem of Sagwa is given in the catalogue as Arabian Maid, a full sister of Dorsey's famous old Goldust.

ONE of the "regulars" to show up in the lobby of the Palace Hotel about 10 o'clock every morning is Mr. O. A. Hickok, who still stands as straight as an arrow, and is as nimble on his feet as a trained athlete. He was much pleased last week to read the result of the sales of harness horses in New York, though he was not at all surprised. Mr. Hickok says the demand for trotters and pacers that could race was much greater than the supply all during the racing season of 1899 through the East, and in his opinion will be still greater next year. The Axtell filly Sarah Madden, that he gave some work at Lexington during the summer, Mr. Hickok considers "a very fair filly." She was entered in the Kentucky Futurity, but threw out a curb last year and he did not consider it safe to start her in the race. If she has no further accidents she should trot some pretty fast miles next year.

Comments on Breeding.

[By W. H. Rowe.]

The efficacy of the St. Simon—Musket cross has received a new proof in Merriwee, who recently won the great double event of the V. R. C. Derby and the Melbourne Cup.

The same blood is also in evidence in the two year old division, the first juvenile event of the Auckland season, the Avondale Stakes, having been won by Lady Avon, she by Gault, out of First Love, her parents being respectively by St. Simon and Nordenfeldt.

It should not be overlooked that the reversal of a male cross is certain to bring other considerations to bear upon a resultant pedigree. Because St. Simon horses succeed with Musket mares does not necessarily imply that Musket horses must without fail succeed just as well upon St. Simon mares.

The fact that we have in America two successful stud sons of imp. Princess, namely, His Highness and Prince Royal makes it very interesting—not to say important—to reflect upon the Forfarshire, which is generally considered to be the best year old in England, is by another son of imp. Princess, namely, Royal Hampton, whom the grand old mare produced in England to the cover of Hampton before her exportation to this country.

ENTRIES for the Coney Island Jockey Club's stakes, recently closed, show a decided faith in future racing. The club has received 117 entries for the Foam Stakes and 115 for the Surf Stakes, both of which are for two year olds, and are to be run at the spring meeting next year.

of St. Simon mares with Musket stallions, it becomes very interesting to at once discover, in entering upon a brief consideration of the pedigree of Forfarshire, that he is himself out of a St. Simon mare, his dam being St. Elizabeth, she out of Esa, she by Uncss (son of Stockwell) out of Fleada, by Hsmit. Forfarshire's sire, Royal Hampton, is by Hampton out of Princess, she by King Tom out of Mrs. Lincoln, by North Lincoln. Here is the orthodox and heroic intensification of Whalebone, which is so characteristic of English pedigrees.

Forfarshire's pedigree is said to interest students of the figures. He is himself of family 6, but is a fine illustration of the wisdom of the idea of breeding directly back to the sire's own family, as well as nicking the figures and individuals of the great families in an equitable proportion of running and sire blood.

Another feature of Forfarshire's pedigree admirably confirms Bruce Lowe. The Pocahontas in Hampton's dam was nicked by his union with Royal Hampton's dam, imp. Princess, a daughter of King Tom, and this has again been doubly nicked by the union of Royal Hampton with Elizabeth, she having another line of King Tom along with Stockwell.

Sale of Autumn Yearlings. The annual sale of thoroughbred yearlings from Chas. Kerr's Antrim Stock Farm came off last Monday evening at the Occidental Horse Exchange at 721 Howard street. Twenty-five head were sold the total amount received being $3400, an average of $136 per head.

Table listing yearling sales with columns for horse name, sire, dam, and price. Includes entries like 'Chestnut colt by Herald—Dorothy IV.; W. Shields..... $ 50' and 'Bay filly by Herald—Eileena; S. Holman..... 100'.

Palo Alto Thoroughbred Sold.

Complete returns of the closing out sale of the thoroughbreds from Palo Alto Stock Farm which took place at New York last Monday, will not be heard until after this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN goes to press.

SADDLE NOTES.

THERE are eighty entries in the $10,000 Burns' Handicap, the richest stake run in California.

ENTRIES will close at one o'clock each day at Tanforan Park for the races of the following day.

PETER WERER has Collins, Bliss Rucker, Ahano, Ballister and Gibbertifishet in training at Los Angeles.

FIGURES do not lie—it is the form student who makes the figures that attends to that part of the business.

EMANUEL MORRIS, who rode many a winner for the Santa Anita stable four or five years ago, is out here from the East.

MR. CORRIGAN has put his stallion Riley in training and believes the son of Longfellow will run close to his old form.

THE number of hooks on at the local meetings has increased to thirteen—an unlucky number for the public in all probability.

ONE of the anomalies of the local racing situation is that $350 purses seem to attract larger fields than do those of $400.

IT is still the general opinion that Burns & Waterhouse made a good sale when they disposed of Yellowtail for $10,000.

THE gelding Daybreak fell in a steeplechase at Bennings, Saturday, and broke his neck. The rider was stunned but otherwise unhurt.

EDDIE CASSIN, the ex-jockey, recently purchased the old campaigner Diggs and will ship him to New Orleans, where he will be tried over the jumps.

JOHN E. MADDEN has bought from James McCann 208 acres of fine blue grass land adjoining Hamburg place, which makes him now over 508 acres lying in a square.

T. C. McDOWELL, Lexington, Ky., has sold to E. C. Conden, New York, the yearling filly Luzon, by Lamp-lighter, dam Kitty Clive, by Macduff. Price said to be $2500.

CHARLES F. PRICE, the patrol judge at Oakland, has been asked by President Schulte to become a member of the License Committee of the American Turf Congress, in place of Capt. J. H. Rees, who retires January 1st.

SPECIAL trains from Chicago to New Orleans, carrying horses for the race meeting which opened this week, ran through in 34 hours. The distance is 916 miles. More horsemen will attend the meeting than ever before.

EDWARD CORRIGAN will take a string of horses to England next year after the close of the season at Tanforan. His entries having been refused at Oakland, Mr. Corrigan will only be able to race his horses on this side of the bay this winter.

AN Australian despatch states that the Victorian Derby was won by Merriwee, the winner of the Melbourne Cup. Some interesting comments on this horse's breeding, from the pen of W. H. Rowe, appear in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

CANACE, Nick Hall's good filly by imp. Crighton—Nellie Bell by Prince of Norfolk, died at Sacramento last week from a cold contracted on the trip out from the East, where she had been the best bread winner in his stable during the past season. Canace was bred on the Napa Stock Farm of A. B. Spreckels.

OVERTON CHENAULT has bought of John Madden the thoroughbred race horse and sire, Russell by Eolus, dam Tilly Russell. The price was in the neighborhood of $5000. Russell sired Lady Contrary, Amson and other good winners, and he won as a two and three year old many stakes including the Great Trial and Brooklyn Derby.

A SALE of thoroughbreds was held at the Union Stock Yards, Nashville, Tenn., on November 1st. Twenty-six head were sold for $4450, an average of $172.30. The prices as a rule, were very low. The top figures were Sierra Madra, 12, by Bramble, dam Serra Nevada, Edgar Mann, $2400; Amerique, 7, by imp. Glengarry, dam Arizona, by Lexington. Edgar Mann $500; Alhathros, 16, by imp. Glengarry, dam Arizona, Edgar Mann, $450; Callie Ferguson, 10, by Joe Hooker, dam Jessie R, by Hubbard, W. H. Lyle, $150; ch f, 2, by Blazes, dam Eugenia, by Enquirer, C. H. Gillock, $150.

Nervous Horses.

"In handling nervous horses, and especially with the thin skinned, high strung kind," said George Spear, "the less you excite or stir them up with the usual preparations of warming up work for a race, the better they will behave. Grace Hastings was about as nervous as they come, and she would fret and lather herself into a fever if given too much notice of a race. We always treated her on a race day morning just as on any other day, doing nothing that would give her the slightest line on the afternoon's plans. Towards noon we would hitch her, careless like, to any kind of a road cart, would go out and jog her a couple of miles into the country and hack, taking it all very easy. She would be unhitched at the stall as if her days work were over; but about a half an hour before the race she would be hooked to a light cart and I would give her one moderate heat, or perhaps a double heat; driving a three-minute mile the reverse way of the track and following with a faster heat, after a few minute's rest. She hadn't time to fret to amount to anything before the race was called; I would have to go an easy heat or two to get her warm enough to do her best, and then how she would go for the money.

"She hated to have a gang of men around her, and I never had more than one man in the stall at a time in the warming up care or between the heats. She had practically no rubbing at all; the least bit too much would sore her until she wouldn't let you come within rubbing distance. The boy that cared for her would take a sponge and wipe off the place where the harness touched and perhaps go over her very lightly with a soft sponge. We always left out every ordinary bit of stall work that we possibly could, and the results showed that we were on the right track.

"Under such treatment Grace Hastings was a very valuable member of a racing stable; but she would have hankrupted anybody that tried to work for her and care for her in the ways that work well for most harness racers."

Nervousness often shows after the finish of a heat. Earline S. will tremble all over as she is lead to her stall, and sometimes the twitching will not stop until she is brought back to the score. "I have seen horses tremble at the finish of a heat," said Geers, "and then go on for four or five good heats. It seems to be more nervousness than exhaustion. Valpa will often tremble between beats, yet the way in which she keeps trotting shows that she is all right."

A MARE called Miss Logan was sold some time ago to a Philadelphia man, and the Eastern papers immediately jumped at the conclusion that it was Miss Logan 2:06 1/2, and so stated. For the benefit of our eastern contemporaries we will state that Miss Logan 2:06 1/2, is at San Jose in the hands of her breeder and owner Dr. A. W. Boncher. She is expected to drop a foal to Colbert 2:08 1/2, late next spring, she having been bred to that horse while on the eastern campaign this year.

TACOMA, Wash., will have a meeting next year, es $5000 has been subscribed for that purpose.

I have often thought that Mr. P. Ryan, who broke and developed this colt, should get more of the credit for his Kentucky victories than the turf scribes awarded him. Mr. Ryan schooled Boralma from the time he was broken as a yearling up to the time he started at Louivills, and his races showed that he was physically in perfect condition, that he was balanced to perfection, and that his manners were those of an aged race horse. As good a judge as Mr. Joe Thayer said that Boralma was the best broke trotter of his age that he ever saw, and every horseman knows that Ryan is entitled to at least half of the glory that went to Mr. Gus Macey. Mr. Macey drove the colt a couple of good races, but he never sat behind him only in those races. When Ryan came up to Chicago last week with Scott Newman's bunch of Boreals that were consigned to the Newgass sale, I took advantage of the opportunity to get the story of Boralma's early training. Mr. Ryan is a modest, unassuming young man and is a better listener than he is a talker, but I found he could talk entertainingly about his colts after I helped him around the first turn with a few questions. "I broke Boralma," said Mr. Ryan, "as a yearling and worked him a little, but he did not show any great amount of speed until I commenced training him in earnest in his two year old form. I drove him barefooted at first with his toes cut square. I think the square toes help to true a colt's action, and I square all of my colts' feet in front, and sometimes, when they are had scalpers and speedy cutters, I square them behind. I do not keep them all square after they commence to wear shoes, but I do most of them, and that's the way I kept Boralma's feet for a time. When I commenced brushing him the spring he was a two year old, he would not trot any distance without breaking. He seemed to be perfectly balanced and was not hitting himself, but for some unaccountable reason he got to breaking, and I had quite a time conquering the habit. I finally decided to take him out on the track and work him until he would trot a quarter without a break. Every time he left his feet I would take him back and try it over again, and you can guess that he was a pretty tough case when I tell you that I worked him most three-quarters of a day before he would give up. His He was a very tired colt when he finally trotted all the way from the quarter pole to the wire, but from that day on he was a trotter, and he never made a break afterwards until he broke for Macey in the Futurity. I always brush up my colts and never work them miles until they can step a 2:20 gait, and I hrnsed Boralma as a two year old until he could step a quarter better than 35 seconds. He learned fast and trotted a mile in 2:17 that season. In preparing him for his engagements this year I brought him along slow. I gave him plenty of fast work, of course, but I did not drive him miles up at his speed until late in the season. I knew he could beat 2:12 when he had not had a mile better than 2:15 and had only had one or two of them. Some of my fellow trainers thought that I was bringing him along too slow, but he showed that he was fit when the time came, and before I started him in a race I let him step along an easy mile in 2:11 1/2, and he certainly never improved on that form after Mr. Newman sold him. To teach him to race end to end right in company I gave him all his fast work with two popies. I worked him outside of them, inside of them and between them on every part of the track, and shifted him around until he would race anywhere I put him, and his races showed that he remembered his lessons. Boralma is a great colt, but he was sired by a great horse that will get more like him, barring accidents"—Yarrum in Horse Review.

The prices of good horses are 150 per cent. higher than four years ago.

The get of the trotting stallion Jneumont 2:14 are becoming famous as high-steppers.

To Stallion Owners.

The quickest and best method of bringing the merits of your horse to the attention of owners of both etandard and thoroughbred broodmare is to advertise in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. No medium for announcements of this description is in any way equal to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it reaches all the breeders, owners, racing men and sportsmen generally throughout the Pacific Coast.

An Additional Inducement

A special artical, together with a tabulated pedigree of the sire advertised during the coming stallion season, will be published. This is an advantage to advertise of stallions that is too obvious to need further comment. Owners of broodmare are now seriously considering the selection of the stallion to breed to, and advertisements that appear early will make a greater impression than if held back until late in the season.

THE MONK 2:08 1/2 will be raced in the Village Farm Stable again nsxt year.

A NEW SPORTING GOODS FIRM.

The H. E. Skinner Co.

The surprise of the season transpired on Sportsmen's Row during the week. Monday morning the portals of that well known firm, the E. T. Allen Co., were closed to their customers and the public—the cause for the temporary cessation of a large and increasing business carried on by a popular dealer in all kinds of sporting goods for the past twenty-five years was briefly told by a notice posted on the panel of the closed iron door.

Mr. E. T. Allen, a most courteous and genial gentleman who has been identified with the business of dealing in sporting goods and outfits for sportsmen for many years past in this city and who is most favorably known to the trade throughout the United States, in England and the Orient; after a long and successful business career has sold out the business heretofore conducted at 416 Market street, below Sansome. What the particular reason was for the retirement from business of Mr. E. T. Allen is not material in this announcement, suffice it to say, that the sale was consummated at a valuation placed upon the business by the seller.

Yesterday morning business was resumed in the usual manner at the old stand, the signs reading "H. E. Skinner Company" successor to "E. T. Allen Co."

Henry E. Skinner, the head of the new house has been connected with the old firm for the past thirteen years. Mr. Skinner has an enviable reputation with the trade as a conscientious and energetic business man. To his efforts is due not a little of the high standing of the business house which is now merged into the firm of which he is the directing genius. One branch of the emporium, the fishing tackle department, under his past personal charge, has a far reaching fame known to and appreciated by the angling fraternity. He has also made a record as an expert in other lines of the business.

Mr. Skinner is a prominent and enthusiastic member of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club and has been prominent in every movement towards developing the gentle art among the sportsmen of this city. He is esteemed by a large circle of business and social acquaintances.

The new firm proposes to take advantage of every opportunity to establish and maintain a live up-to-date sportsman's emporium. They will carry a choice stock of all kinds of sporting goods, of all qualities, thus meeting the demands of each and every purchaser. The market of demand and supply will be closely watched, novelties new goods and all kinds of stock will be in touch with the times and the wants of patrons.

The former customers and friends of the E. T. Allen Co. will, of course, be interested in the personnel of the staff under Mr. Skinner. We take pleasure in announcing that Mr. H. Justins will have charge of the main floor, assisted by Leon Hszen, Julius Brunas, Wm. Schendel and Wm. Jensen.

Another matter of importance which should not be overlooked is the fact that Mr. David Thom (a veteran sportsman and all round good fellow) will maintain his former quarters intact on the second floor of the store, where he can always be found by sportsmen requiring his skillful services.

The "Pump Gun" Case

The test case proceedings on the 27th inst. in San Rafael against W. A. Marshall who had been arrested for the violation of the Marin county ordinance prohibiting the use of repeating shot guns were dismissed "by reason of the insufficiency of the evidence," by Justice of the Peace Rodden on motion of District Attorney McIsaac. The question as to the constitutionality of a law forbidding the use of repeating shot guns in the county could not fairly be determined by reason of a technical misconception in the wording of the prohibitive clause which the defense claimed was discriminatory, in that it forbade the use of the "repeating shot gun, commonly known as a pump gun," when all the other makes of repeating shot guns, of which there are a dozen or more, are of the same game destructive nature, though none of them are known as "pump guns."

It is reported that the Board of Supervisors will so amend the county game ordinance on Monday evening as to forbid the use of all repeating shot-guns. When the law is so worded that it cannot be attacked on a technicality the question of unconstitutionality will fall to the ground. An ordinance of this character is just as valid as the State statute which prohibits and specifies any illegal methods of slaughtering game.

Frank Vernon and G. E. R. Adolph made nearly the limit bags in two days' shooting at Point Reyes Saturday and Sunday last.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Ben Bann and Edg. Forster bagged only one half a dozen quail on their private spot near Reclamation last Sunday.

John Karney and John Krop, turned up on the train Sunday evening with just six widgeon, the best results for a day's hunting near Sears point.

On Thursday, the blue rock shoot for turkeys of the Lincolns was well attended and several fat turkeys went home with successful smashers of mod sancers.

One of the best bags of ducks made last week fell to the guns of W. S. Kittle and two friends who were shooting on Tabbs' island, thirty-two cans was the result.

One dozen ducks, mixed in varieties, was the highest bag reported on the Alameda Gun Club shooting grounds on Sunday. Ph. Bolsuder is credited with the shoot.

W. J. Golcher enjoyed a quail hunt near Nicasio on Sunday last, fifty birds was the number on his string, notwithstanding the birds, though plentiful, were very wild.

Many of our local sportsmen were out on Thanksgiving day—Point Reyes was the destination of a large party of quail shooters and anglers, many of whom had good sport as well as the enjoyment of a first class day for an outing trip.

The duck shooters who depended on getting some shooting at Reclamation district last Sunday got nothing—the market hunters have cleaned the place out. Not only have they got more than their share of live birds but the loss of several dozen decoys is reported by more than one hunter who shoots in that district only once a week.

The new standing committees of the Olympic Gun Club of this city are:

Finance—M. C. Allen (chairman), Herbert Kullman and A. Roos; preserves—W. D. McArthur (chairman), J. H. Fritch and Robert H. Delafield; house—H. Kullman (chairman), L. W. Harpham and Fred B. Sarrhyne; social and entertainment—Fred B. Sarrhyne (chairman), J. H. Fritch and W. A. Marshall; trap shooting—W. A. Marshall (chairman), Herrert Kullman and A. Roos.

Paul E. Kellar, who has a host of friends among the sportsmen on the Coast, and who has been connected with the E. T. Allen Co. for some time past, has accepted a responsible position with the firm of Miller, Sloss and Scott.

Wm. L. Orsarr, the son of a well known Oakland sporting goods dealer and who has recently been with the E. T. Allen Co., has also taken an appointment from the wholesale business house just mentioned.

Both of the boys have the well wishes of many friends.

The duck hunter has had to award the palm of success to the sportsmen who fancied a day on the hillside with his gun and dog after the valley quail for the past week. All of the old favorite haunts of the quackers have apparently been abandoned, in the day time at all events. The birds, many varieties of them are seen daily in immense flocks on the bay. Thousands are reported to be frequenting Tomales bay and very wary they are too. A good turn of stormy weather will be necessary to drive them about so that the gunner can get a chance at them.

W. H. Hynes, Joe Sweeney and Narrv A. Wands bagged forty-five sprig at the Caovashack grounds on Sunday. How they did it, when everybody else in that section had miserably luck, is explained as follows: Hynes has a new coon song which he is practicing for a high-back pink tea next week. The chorus is expressed by a series of peculiar vocal sounds supposed to express the feelings of a coon who put his hand in a hen coop and picked up a savage badger instead of feathers. Ducks make monkeys of themselves sometimes, just as hippos do, they listened to Hynes' mysterious sounds and when they came back to investigate they got the worst of it.

The Gun Club grounds west of Gridley, Sutter county, is a rich field for study for those who are interested in the habits and peculiarities of water birds, says the Gridley Herald. Among the geese are the brant, the speckle breast or honker, the white geese and the gray geese. Many species of duck feed on the overflowed lands, among which are canvas back, teal, mallard, widgeon, sprig and others. Swans of the variety known as the trumpeter are numerous and are often shot. Some oceanic ducks are infrequent visitors. Among these are the garrot or spirit duck, and the red head duck, identical with the great game bird of the Chesapeake. Pelicans are also seen by thousands. The blue crane, the bittern, white heron, the coot, the plover and snipe abound as well.

The hunting party of San Jose Nimrods headed by Sheriff Langford returned on the 27th inst. from Glenn county with many goose sculps dangling on their belts. Two hundred fine, fat geese were bagged, of which the hunters had about 125 on their return to town. The birds were all of the brant variety, which is the most highly esteemed for eating purposes. Two honkers were seen, but no ducks. The camp was on the east bank of the Sacramento, about fourteen miles from Willows. The contingent from that town made all the arrangements for the campaign and they proved very satisfactory. A big tent that had been used by an itinerant photographer made a splendid dining room. There was a long table in it, at which fourteen sat down regularly at every meal. The sleeping apartments were in two other tents. The ground was covered with straw to a depth of several feet, and with plenty of blankets and quilts, very comfortable beds were provided. Once it rained heavily for a day and a night, but the inside of the tents was dry and snug as could be desired. The following San Joseans were in the party: Sheriff Langford, C. P. Owen, Harry Owen, L. A. Spitzer, John Pippin, William Keating, Joe Roberts, Sam Lowe, Dan Flannery, Fred Richardson, W. E. Bradford, the sportsman from Willows were George Featherstone and two sons, John Slye, Assessor Ibes and Constable T. O'Brien.

Valljo sportsmen are complaining of the scarcity of game in the tule. They give as a reason that the recent heavy rains have filled the irrigating ditches in the dry portion of the State, causing the birds to visit these localities for green feed. Canvas back are reported plenty while teal, sprig and widgeon are scarce in that vicinity.

A shipment of sixty-three dozen "bob white" quails arrived in this city on Monday in transit per steamer this week to New Zealand where they will be turned loose under proper protection. The little fellows were all lively as crickets and in splendid condition but very few having been lost in a six day trip on the cars from Wichita, Kansas. The shipping crates, a patented device, were unique, each being divided into four horizontal compartments, the floors of which were of light canvas; the roof of similar material being about two inches below the flooring of the occupants of the story above, a strong lateral partition divided each floor. A dozen birds were thus shipped in comfort and safety together; the compartments being eight inches in height. Feeding and water troughs were fastened in front of each crate.

Wm. B. Remfree, a prominent young merchant and sportsman of Antioch, visited this city on Tuesday. Mr. Remfree, or "Woody Bill," by which sobriquet he is inscribed on the roll of notables, was in a happy frame of mind when he arrived. His mood and manner were ecstatic when he shook the dust of the metropolis from his brogans and journeyed back to the city of historic name located on the south bank of the murky San Joaquin.

Windy Bill among other things promulgated the tidings that he was the happy father of a miss and a quarter pound girl baby. He received the congratulations of Prof. Markland, "W. J." Butler, President Lemmer and the Black Jack phalanx as a matter of course and his just due. Some little quizzing over sex, etc., in a matter of this kind was settled in Bill's usual autocratic manner by his positive declaration "that he always had a preference for girls, and didn't like boys nohow!"

Bill's appetite for whiskey if it increases in a proportionate ratio next year will be enormous. To satisfy his present wants he purchased from John Bolter twenty barrels of his best "R. B. Hayden;" five barrels of which were taken out of bond and shipped to Antioch on Wednesday. We doubt Bill's capacity for all of the first consignment and are led to believe that the periodical visits of the Black Jacks to Antioch may in a measure (of sympathy) act as a reducing feature of the visible supply of "wet goods." The Black Jacks we doubt not will be ably seconded by the large circle of friends "Windy Bill" has on his staff up the river.

The Game Law.

The synopsis of the game laws appearing below and published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for several years past has, from time to time been changed or the provisions of new ordinances added thereto by reason of the many and various changes in the county game and fish laws, particularly those of recent date and of application in and around the bay counties.

This synopsis has been frequently copied (in more or less garbled and incomplete form) and quoted by city and interior journals and has also been printed and distributed by business houses. While the information given at the date of issuance was substantially correct, we do not care to be held responsible for the circulation of old matter that is now incorrect in many details. Some complaint has been made in this respect and to avoid misunderstanding in the future it is suggested that for information of this character a reference be made to current numbers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for the latest and most complete data concerning the Game Laws.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. Pheasants, the taking, killing, selling or having in possession at any time is prohibited; robbing or destruction of nests or having pheasant eggs in possession is a misdemeanor in the following counties: Butte, Trinity, Marin, Lake, Merced, Riverside, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Kings, Ventura, Santa Clara, Monterey, San Joaquin, Yuba.

The clerks of nearly all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Diego, Solano, Siskiyou, Tehama, and Yolo.

- The changes are as follows:
- Alpine—Deer, Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
- Alameda—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Mals deer, July 15 to Oct. 1. Pheasants protected until February, 1904. Hunting, killing or having in possession for purpose of sale or shipment out of county: quail, bob white, partridge, wild duck, rail, mountain quail, grouse, dove, does or deer, antelope, elk or mountain sheep prohibited.
- Cotusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
- Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
- Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
- El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1. Trout, June 1 to Dec. 1.
- Fresno—Valley quail, Nov. 1 to Jan. 31. Individual bag limited to 25 quail per day. Mountain quail, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Doves, Aug. 15 to Feb. 15. Pheasants, bob white quail and prairie chickens, close season in force for an indefinite period. Use of nets or seines in county waters prohibited. Shipment of game from county prohibited.
- Glenn—Deer, venison, dried venison, deer skin, buck, doe or fawn; quail, grouse, pheasant, dove, plover, snipe or wild duck, shipping or taking out of the county prohibited. 25 birds per year individual limit to be taken from the county upon licensed permission.
- Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one half hour before sunrise. Pheasants and wild turkeys protected until Oct. 1, 1900. Black brant, Oct. 1 to March 1. Shipment of game out of the county prohibited. Deer, use of dogs prohibited. Striped bass—Close season until Jan. 1, 1905.
- Kern—Shipping game out of the county prohibited. Quail, Oct. 1 to Feb. 1. Bronze-bird or curlew—Robbing or destroying nests or taking eggs, prohibited.
- Kings—Doves, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 15.
- Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
- Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Shipment of feathered game out of the county prohibited.
- Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
- Siskiyou—Shipment of feathered game out of the county prohibited.
- Sonoma—Deer, July 15 to Oct. 1. Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Pheasants, close season till Jan. 1, 1904. Shipping game out of the county, hunting within private enclosures, prohibited. Use of nets in streams of the county prohibited.
- Stanislaus—Wild ducks, doves, quail or snipe, shipment from the county prohibited.
- Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan. 1.
- Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
- Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
- Ventura—Quail, any variety, Oct. 1 to Nov. 1. Hunting for sale or market of quail, grouse, dove, wild duck, deer or mountain sheep prohibited, except between Oct. 10th and 15th.
- Yuba—Shipping ducks and quail from the county to market prohibited.

Los Angeles—Male deer, Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. Valley quail, bob white or mountain quail, Dec. 1 to Jan. 1. Doves, July 15 to Oct. 1. Shooting for sale, or shipment of quail, bob white, partridges, pheasants, grouse, doves, ducks, or other game protected by statute, prohibited. Ducks, individual bag limited to 25 birds per day. Shipping game to markets outside of the county prohibited. Seagulls, crows, pelicans, seals, protected. Trout season opens April 1st. Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15. Quail, partridge or grouse, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Individual bag limited to 25 birds per day. Market hunting and shipment of game from the county is prohibited. Use of repeating shot guns prohibited. Killing of meadow larks or any other song birds prohibited. Hunting within private enclosures or on public roads prohibited. Trout, with hook and line only, April 1 to Oct. 15. Madera—Market hunting prohibited. Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Feb. 1. Shipping or taking game out of the county prohibited. Napa—Trout, by hook and line only, April 1 to Dec. 1. Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited). Quail, partridges or grouse, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5. Ducks, Nov. 1 to March 1. Ducks and quail, shipment from the county restricted as follows: No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds a week. Market hunting prohibited. Placer—Trout, June 1 to Dec. 1. Plumas—Salmon, trout, May 1 to Dec. 1 (netting prohibited). Riverside—Male deer, close season until July 15, 1901. July 15 to Sept. 15, thereafter. Quail, individual bag limited to 20 birds per day. Mountain or valley quail, pheasant and wild duck, sale of prohibited in the county. Wild duck, valley or mountain quail, shipment from county prohibited. Trout, any variety, close season until May 1, 1901. May 1 to Dec. 1, thereafter. Sacramento—Quail, ducks, doves, pheasants; shooting for sale and market out of county prohibited. Taking or shipping out of county of more than ten birds in one day by any person prohibited. San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. Market hunting and shipment of game out of county prohibited. Quail, partridge or grouse, Oct. 15 to Feb. 1. Individual bag limited to 20 birds per day. Mountain quail, perpetual close season. Trout, April 1 to Oct. 15. San Bernardino—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15 (close season continuous, 1899). Valley or mountain quail, wild duck, sale of and shipment out of county prohibited. Trout, catching or sale of, between April 1st and May 1st of any year and during 1899, prohibited. Tree squirrels, five per day the individual limit. San Diego—Shipping game out of the county prohibited. San Jacinto—Shipping or taking game out of the county prohibited. Shooting on public road prohibited. San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Use of hounds prohibited. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited. Clams, use of plows or machines in digging prohibited. Shipment of abalones out of the county prohibited. San Mateo—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Use of dogs not prohibited. Market hunting prohibited). Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 1. (Shooting from boat at high tide prohibited). Quail, Nov. 1 to Oct. 1. Santa Barbara—Deer, Aug. 1 to Aug. 22. Use of hounds prohibited. Quail, Nov. 1 to March 1. Doves, Aug. 15 to Feb. 15. Market hunting and sale of game in the county prohibited. Lobsters or crawfish, close season, April 15 to Aug. 15, shipping from county in close season prohibited. Abalones, taking, selling, having in possession and shipping from the county prohibited. Clams can not be dug till July, 1902. Santa Clara—Male deer, July 15 to Oct. 15. Valley or mountain quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Individual bag limited to 20 birds per day. Quail, pheasants and doves, purchase and sale, or shipment out of, or into the county prohibited. Wild duck, purchase and sale, or shipment out of county of ducks killed in the county prohibited. (In force Nov. 9). Santa Cruz—Shipping game from the county prohibited.

Bobbing For Catfish.

The catfish, with his oily whiskers and retreating forehead, is not to be scornfully sneezed at by the disciples of the late I. Walton. It is true that he is not a fighter, like salmon fontinalis or the black bass, but he can pull a cork under with the best of them, and when properly cooked he is duly appreciated by both the lowly and the highly. Catfish steak is prime feeding for a hungry man, and the channel cat and his less esteemed brother, the yellow-bellied or mud cat, are both held in high favor by denizens of the Mississippi valley. The name catfish is given, so the science people and the natural history books say, on account of the purring sound they give when taken from the water. As my experience with literary and scientific catfish has been limited, I have never heard one purr when his fins were being stroked. We used to think they were called catfish because of their dainty Japanese whiskers. I have caught many a channel catfish and many a yellow-bellied one in the Mississippi valley, but they never purred, climbed fences nor exhibited the characteristics noted by the professors.

In Cautan creek, the Hundred and Two river, the Nodaway and Mississippi rivers, I have trailed the low-browed catfish to his lair, and, with fish-worm, "bobber," and long cane-pole, I have made him captive. And anyone who has known him and grown up with him, so to say, will admit that he is a most useful and unobtrusive fish, willing to swallow a worm down to the last wrinkle of his ultimate fin and hold fast to all you give him. It is this earnestness of belief on the part of the catfish that a swallowed bait belongs to him which precludes his getting away when once you have him hooked. He could not spit out the bait like a bass. To accomplish such a feat he would have to turn himself inside out if he got rid of it.

Sometimes it becomes necessary to dissect a catfish to get the hook again. The simplest way is to take a lot of hooks and plenty of line and give each fish the hook he swallows and a foot or so of line. It will save hard feelings, and besides if a catfish ever "gafts" you with his horns when you are trying to extract the hook it will prove as painful as the sting of a feverish horocet.

The channel catfish is a much livelier member of the family than his brother the mud cat. He will bite at minnows and in swift running water when he is of three or four pounds weight he will give the fishermen quite a tussle. In the Mississippi river he and the other members of the family grow to an enormous size, sometimes weighing over 100 pounds. The large ones are generally caught in nets, but I recollect one of seventy-five pounds being caught from a wharboat after two roustabouts had come to the rescue of the fishermen. He was being slowly but surely dragged into the river by the fish, and being a boy of only about 100 pounds in weight, it was a case of nip and tuck between him and the channel cat.

But the beauty of fishing for the yellow-bellied catfish in the smaller rivers and creeks is that you can make such a lazy, dreamy outing of it. We used to go to the Hundred and Two river in northern Missouri and get great stores of the mud cats. We took several cane poles, long ones, and plenty of shle-hodded fish worms. There were three hends in the stream which the catfish seemed to love to browse in and we always made a day of it at those hends. Our lines were fine but strong and the hooks were baited with two or three worms and sometimes with a piece of beef. We would cut pronged sticks from the trees and drive them into the river bank with the prongs up. Then we would press each pole into the bank and let it lie on the pronged stick for a rest, and the elevation of the pole thus obtained would keep the hobber from flating too far away. The line of "oobbers" red, blue, yellow and white, would be about five or six feet apart.

At these hends in the stream the trees were close to the bank and the shade of the timber threw shadows out about twenty feet on the water. We would lie back under the trees and breeze and daze in a delicious haze while watching the "hobbers." The sun beat down on the oaks, hickories, elms and hazzwood trees and light wind ruffled the surface of the river. The "bobs," seen through half-shut eyes, danced and nodded and swayed and ducked when the catfish began to investigate the bait. When a fish was hooked fairly the "hobber" would disappear entirely from sight and we would run down and get the pole, hauling the fish out and up into the trees and gather round him if he was a big fellow and admire him. Many a summer day have I spent in this way with the sun prying down through the leaves and only the buzzards trailing in the upper skies and an occasional vicious "sweatbee" darting about to mar the quiet of those hours.

When we began to see the "hobbers" go under we got the "stringer" out, which was a stout cord with an iron pin at one end to string the fish with and a stick at the other end to prevent them from slipping off. This "stringer" we tied to a stick driven in close to the water's edge and our "catch" floated in the shallow water close to shore until we were ready to go home. We would get as many as twenty or thirty mudcats in a day's fishing, two of us, with an occasional "shiner," and at long intervals a bass or a "goggle eye." These were all dragged in from the water when we started back, put in a splint basket and covered with wet leaves and grass. They were not taken off the "stringer," for when we reached home the idea was to hold the string up proudly and say, "Looky here."

A man would not care to catch yellow-bellied catfish. It is a boy's sport. And yet a man will not disdain to eat them. They do not fight much. Simply pull down hard on the cork and come reluctantly twisting through the air when they are hauled out. In the Mississippi the market fishermen catch the big fellows, ten, twenty and forty pounders, by tying strong lines to empty jugs, the hooks baited with meat, liver or a bunch of fish worms. They follow the jugs down stream and when one of them begins to go under and come up and repeat the act they tow after it and separate the catfish from it. These big fish are marketed and steaks cut from them and sold like beef.

In the rivers where there are shallow beds of sand and gravel, or shallow reaches where very little shade is to be had during the day, the boys get catfish in a very simple yet effective way. The catfish, being a shade-loving fish, goes browsing around during the heat of the day looking for a cool place to lie in. An old stump of a piece of timber sticking up in the current will snit him if it casts a shadow. This habit of his being well known to those who have studied his eccentricities, is taken advantage of in an ingenious and crafty way. Sections of stove-pipe with one end closed up by a piece of stone; bagging tied around it, or simply hammered together to prevent egress or ingress by that particular end, are the traps laid for the nifty and trustful catfish. These sections of stovepipe are placed on the shallow bottom of the river at night and their places marked by little boys, or by landmarks at the river's edge. The next day the catfish, assiduously prowling around in search of a cool spot, discovers one of these sections of pipe.

Before loog the opening is darkened by another and still another member of his horned and bulging-eyed tribe, and congratulations are extended all along the line at their good fortune in happening on such a cozy loafing place. The envious snub beats down on the shallow stretches of water in vain. Inside the stovepipe all is salubrious and serene. But presently two boys come along in a boat. They row cautiously to where the pipe lies, and one of the boys steps quietly into the water, npende the pipe and raises it from the river. The water in the pipe runs out through the bagging or the small holes where the pipe has been hammered down at the lower end. But the catfish, the trusting and deluded catfish, remain in the pipe. This is tilted over the boat and the prizes tumbled flopping into the bottom, victims of the treachery and cunning of man.

For low-down duplicity and taking advantage of a fish under pretense of hospitality, "piping" catfish is probably the most "ouery" method practiced in angling. The fact that it is a very successful means of catching them does not excuse it. The only civilized way to fish for catfish is with a long cane pole and "bobber," with worms and patience, under a shady tree by some river bank when the peace of summer is on the land, and the south-westerly winds are blowing.—New Orleans Picayune.

Justice Colline of Chico at the instance of District Attorney Sprole of Butte recently discharged four young men of Chico who had been arrested and charged with catching salmon during the close season with a net prohibited by statute.

The Marysville Democrat denounced the proceedings and called upon the State Commission to institute a prosecution. At the request of the Commission the Attorney General designated Deputy W. H. Cook to prosecute, and he went to Chico where a hearing was had in the court of Justice Colline on the 23d inst. The evidence was simple and of a positive nature against three of the four, and they were held to appear in the Superior Court for trial.

Some of our anglers would not care to live on Long Island after perusing this paragraph. Emile Utard, of New York city, a prominent member of the Long Island Country Club, was arrested and fined $5 recently for fishing on Sunday. The country club is located at Eastport and Mr. Utard, who was stopping at the club house, was charged with angling on the preserves of the club on a Sunday, he admitted the charge and was promptly mulcted.

Point Reyes has been the Mecca for local anglers for the past two weeks. Paper Mill creek is bank full and the water somewhat thick. The large fish have not yet made their appearance, the largest yet caught averaging ten inches in length. John Butler, Charles Precht, Frank Dooliver, "Andy" and a number of others have made fair catches within the week.

Joseph Le Connt, it is stated, caught seven large steelhead on a spoon one day last week at Russian river station.

Old Dog Tray.

His eyes and ears are worn with years,
And his teeth are growing few;
But he wags his tail like an old-time fial,
For his tail's as good as new.

Sometimes he'll try to be quite spry
In the tricks he used to do,
But his members fail—all but his tail—
Which is just as good as new.

When I reach home he'll slowly come,
With his cold nose, damp as dew,
To touch my hand and wave that wand
Of a tail, that wags like new.

My Old Dog Tray is on his way
To the land of Manitou,
Where him I'll meet some day, and greet,
As he wags his tail like new.

THE FARM.

Sheep for Breeding.

At the request of Secretary Coburn, of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, John A. Craig, professor of animal husbandry of the Iowa Agricultural College, delivered an address before the Board's recent annual meeting on "Sheep—Good and Bad." Among other interesting things contained therein he outlines the points that should be found in animals which are to be used especially for breeding purposes, and also the condition they should be in. As Prof. Craig is a recognized authority on all matters pertaining to sheep, the following may be profitably read and considered by all identified with this industry:

The rams should show masculinity in many features. In those breeds that have horns the latter should spring strong from the head and turn clear from the face. In all rams the face should be broad between the eyes, somewhat short, and with a Roman nose. The crest, or scrag, should be thick or rising, and the neck full. A point deserving emphasis is, the depth of the chest. The body should sink deep between the forelegs, and the ribs back of the shoulder should be deep and round, making the girth large and the brisket prominent and wide—two features that are indicative of a strong constitution. A lively fleece, that is, one that is springy and not dead to the touch, and especially dense, thick covering of bally wool, is also indicative of vigor or constitution. For the same reason, in those breeds that are woolled about the head, the more complete and dense this covering is the better it is liked. The legs of the ram should be straight and strong, and short. In movement, the ram should be bold and active. This is often influenced by the condition. A ram should never be so heavy in flesh as to be useless for service, as is too often the case in the show ring. The flesh should be even and firm, and not gathered in masses or rolls at any part of the body. It is very apt to gather at the fore flank, leaving the back bare or raw. Excessive condition is likely to make the ram unwieldy in action, or result in broken down pasterns, which usually render a ram useless for breeding purposes.

The ewe should be rather long in the face, with fine features. The neck should be slender and without any of the thickness noticeable in the ram. The body should be deep, round ribbed and specially long, so as to provide room for the growing lamb. The type of the good milking ewe verges strongly toward that which is typical of the good dairy cow. The ewe that milks well, and consequently rears early maturing lambs, tends toward the wedge shape, deep in the chest, large bodied, and wide across the loins and hips. The condition of the ewe should not be such as to impair her breeding qualities. Excessive fatness, as a rule, is in this way injurious. The flesh should be evenly distributed and not gathered in bunches about the tail-head, and it should be firm and not flabby. As a result of our consideration of the good and bad qualities of sheep, there arises the more important problem of breeding to reproduce the former and to remove the latter. I have failed to find, up to this day, where success has been obtained by in-and-in breeding, cross breeding or any other form, but that there was a man behind the system who knew well the merits and demerits of the animals he was breeding. And further, knowing these, he made his selection to get the best blend. This is the basis of a method of breeding that arises from what has gone before. For want of a better term I have named it "balanced breeding," and I believe that this method has the means of developing and adding to the good qualities and at the same time lessening and removing the demerits of our domestic animals.

To follow balanced breeding in sheep would mean the selection of rams with the leaving thought of removing the weakness of the flock. When one realizes the force of balanced breeding and acts on it in the selection of sires, it is wonderful what strides may be made toward perfection in a few years. With this sire we correct a deficiency of the fleece, and yet retain the good qualities of form; with another, we add a little more bone another deepens the flesh on the valuable parts, and so on, each marking a new advance; while closer discrimination and riper judgment keep disclosing new features to be attained in each additional effort.

The Jersey cow Brown Bessie 10th of Hood Farm 119844, born March 1, 1895, and owned at Hood Farm, Lowell, Mass., dropped calf September 29th, and for the week ending November 1st, gave 206 lb. 1 oz milk, 14 lb. 8½ oz. marketable butter. This is the eighth daughter of Brown Bessie's son to make over 14 lb. most of them with first calves. His get are uniformly large, rich and persistent milkers, many of them milking from 5000 to 6900 lb. in the year with first calf. Brown Bessie 10th of Hood Farm gave in 10½ months with first calf 5281 lb 10 oz., testing 380 lb. 3 oz. butter.

Breeding for a Set Purpose.

As there is always a man behind the guns of a warship to shoot them effectively, so is there always a man of intelligence behind the successful system of breeding. There are some who believe that some of the best breeds of animals have been the result of accident as much as any intelligent breeding, but if he could study the full history of any good breed he would find this far from being true. No success in this line has ever been accomplished except through the foresight and careful work of a breeder who understood what he was aiming at. It is the set purpose in mind that decides the success of the work, and unless one has a clear cut, intelligent idea of what he wants and how to obtain it, he is not apt to get it. Some people have the first idea; that is, they know what they want, but they do not understand how to obtain it. Thus one breeder wishes very much to rear a fine herd of wool sheep, but he is at a loss just how to secure it. Consequently he crosses and inbreeds in a haphazard sort of way, but in the end fails to secure his object.

A cross should never be made without for some definite purpose. Unless you know the merits and demerits of the two breeds that are to be crossed how can you judge what the results will be? Some cross their breeds simply on the plan that new blood is needed in the herd, and to secure it a cross is made. This is good so far as it goes, but when new blood is introduced in the herd see that it is what you want. A mutton-producing herd would not be materially improved if a ram from a wool-producing breed should be used as the basis for young lambs. The result would hardly be satisfactory from any point of view unless one wished an all round animal that would be equally good for mutton or wool. The good and bad qualities of every breed are well known to day, and one does not have to make a personal investigation of each breed in order to find out what he needs. If he will utilize the knowledge already accumulated for him, he can use it to advantage in his breeding. He can breed for a definite purpose, and with such intelligence that the results can be almost foretold ahead of time. It is possible that sometimes his expectations will not be fully realized, but he has the satisfaction of knowing that he is doing the best that modern breeders can do to accomplish their ends.

Raise Good Hogs.

If a person were given a choice between a hog that would gain 23 pounds in six weeks and one that would gain 30 on the same feed, he would not be long in choosing. The Kansas Experiment Station has fed 80 hogs that were bought of farmers in the vicinity of Manhattan without regard to breed or breeding, just as they were, weighing in the neighborhood of 100 or 125 pounds. These hogs were nearer of the same size than size, and ranged from the long, big boned bacon hog to the short, fine boned chunk, according to the care or carelessness of the farmer who raised them. The comparisons are between hogs fed the same in every respect. The best and poorest five out of the 20 have the following showing: Best five, weight at beginning of test, 596 lb., gain 416 lbs., 70 per cent poorest five, weight at beginning of test, 571 lbs., gain 235 lbs., 40 per cent. This was for 42 days, and from observations made from week to week, this difference of gain, from a little over 1 pound to practically two pounds a day, was largely due to the breeding. A short, small boned chunk will make good gains for a few weeks and then stop—fat, and ready for market, while a well bred rangy hog will fatten and continue to grow for a much longer period. As to the demand on the market, the three-rib shoulder is now one of the most profitable cuts for export trade. Hogs from which these cuts are made must be large and muscular, long and rangy. The short, small boned chunk will not answer the purpose. The bacon hog is also of the latter description and brings the best price. Well bred rangy hogs make the most profitable gains, are of most ready sale, and bring the best price.

A dispatch from Bellings, Montana, says: The Consolidated Montana Sheep and Lamb Company, which has been amalgamating the sheep interest of the State with a capital of $10,000,000, now have options on 500,000 head of sheep and 500,000 acres of the best sheep-raising lands in the State. The Montana representatives are Colonel W. C. Water and Edward Morrison of this city, while Ben Reiss of New York is counsel and organizer.

It required several days to dispose of a band of wild horses sold by Sheriff Neilson, a Lakeview, Oregon, last week, and there was considerable sport in catching, riding and breaking the animals. They were 75 head belonging to J. A. Slavin, of Silver Lake and were sold to satisfy $199.15 back taxes. The highest price paid for any horse was $26 and the lowest $1.75. The average for the 75 head was $5.50.

FUTURITY STAKES

Estimated Value

WITH $8750 ADDED
For the December Meeting of 1902.

$3750 Of the added Money

To Close January 2, 1900.

By subscription of $10 each, money to accompany the entry, for mares covered in 1899, and further subscription of $25 each for the produce of such mares by July 15, 1901, or such produce will be struck out and a further subscription of $25, January 1, 1902, or such produce will be struck out and a further subscription of $50 by July 15, 1902 or such produce will be struck out. All starters to pay $250 additional of which shall go to the second and third horses, as further provided. California Jockey Club to add Eight Thousand, Seven Hundred and Fifty ($8750) Dollars. The second to receive $1000 of the added money and two-thirds of the starting money, the third $500 of the added money and one third of the starting money.

The breeders of the winner of the second horse and of the third horse namely, the owner of the mare at the time of entry, to receive $2000, $1250 and $500 of the added money respectively, whether they be the owner of the horse when the race takes place or not.

Points in Feeding Stock.

All our domestic animals once ran wild, and in all seasons could only procure food by their own exertions. Naturally, the food thus obtained varied widely through the year, and was, in winter especially, precarious and uncertain. At other seasons of the year, when grains and fruit were ripe, wild animals found more liberal diet, and accumulated fat, which enabled them to better withstand the rigors of winter. Only the hardiest of animals could live through the severest cold of our Northern winters, and they only by eating the browse or young buds or twigs of forest trees when the ground was covered with snow. This is the resort of deer and moose even yet, where they run wild in our northern forests. On the western plains the wild buffalo lived in winter on the dried grasses which they found plentiful and nutritious, as that is the region where little rain and snow fall.

Much of the improvement made in animals by domestication is the effect of the better and more regular rations which domestic stock receives. It is far less able to care for itself, because of being thus for generations provided with more and better food than it could secure without man's aid. This regular supply of nutritious food increases the animal's digestive powers, so that it can make better use of all that is taken into the stomach. Wild animals are seldom fat. When fogs are allowed to run wild as they do in the Northern States, they are long legged, long bodied and always lean. Their flesh is mostly made from wild nuts and roots eaten in the woods, with some corn gained by depredations in the fields of farmers in the neighborhood where the wild hog abounds. This razor-back pork has a high reputation for delicacy of flavor, and its hams are exported in large amounts and sold after being cured at higher prices than can be got for the pork made from localities where corn and other grains are the staple ration.

The greatest remedy in the world for all diseases of the foot of the horse. Best for road horses; best for carriage horses; best for work horses. Cures bad feet keeps good feet sound. Cheapest because it goes farthest and does all that is claimed of it. It was used all the past summer by Tom Murphy, California's great track shoe on the Keating horses that won $28,000 on the Grand Circuit. If you see Murphy ask him about it. Or ask Dr. Bomber of Miss Logan fame; Monroe Salisbury, Chas. Durfee or Pete Williams.

We Get Scores of Letters Like These:

PADUCAH (Ky.), July 23, 1899.
HARROLD & Co—Your Ointment does the work. I have no bad footed horses, but I use it to keep their feet good. My shoe told me yesterday that my horses have the best feet of any in Paducah. With our gravelled roads and streets it is very hard to keep their feet sound and growing, but your Ointment does it. R. W. TULLY.

That's What They All Say.

HARROLD'S HOOF OINTMENT not only cures all diseases of the horse's foot, but keeps good feet absolutely sound.

The Green Un's Gossip.

T. E. Keating sat for a couple of hours in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last Friday, looking better and feeling better than he has for two years. He really begins to look like a healthy man and if it wasn't for that little trouble he had recently with his eye no one would discover much of a change in his former healthful and "wiry" appearance. That eye trouble is a very queer case and Dr. Barkan of this city, who is so successfully treating it, will make it the subject of a lecture soon before the medical association. A little vein smaller than the finest cambric needle became congested with a little particle of blood which, owing to a faulty circulation, was not forced through the vein. The clot was not larger than a grain of the finest sand, but it was just in the spot where it obscured the vision and at first was like a cloud, and afterwards divided objects seen by that eye so that but half of them were visible. Electricity and massage are renewing the circulation, however, and a pair of dark glasses are all that are required by Mr. Keating at present and they will soon be discarded. The trouble is in but one eye, the other being as perfect as ever.

Keating says that Owyhee 2:11 was the best horse for what he could do that was on the Grand Circuit this year and his winnings of nearly $10,000 is certainly proof of the statement. His miles were trotted close up to his mark all the time, and when the time was along about 2:12, he says 'Owyhee was 'Johnny on the spot' all the time. He will not take him East again next year but the horse with the Indian name, which the Eastern turf writers are trying to give a Hawaiian derivation, will remain at Oakwood Park Stock Farm and be bred to a number of select mares.

Keating is to have the last son of Beautiful Bells in his string and this grand colt is expected to be one of the great three year olds of 1900. Monbells is his name and he is by Mendocino 2:19 1/2, and aimed by those who have seen him to be the best looking of the great mare's man's great ones.

Direct 2:05 1/2 is occupying one of those new stalls at Pleasanton and looking as fine as the proverbial fiddle tuned up to concert pitch. He will do a heavy season in the stud next spring according to present indications. Some twenty mares have already been booked and inquiries have been received in regard to terms, etc., from the leading breeders of the State. Mr. Keating tells me that Direct's service fee will be $100.

Klatawah 2:05 1/2, the champion three year old of the world, is being jogged daily at Pleasanton and work will be begun on him early. "He looks to be in the pink of condition and I expect him to lower his mark materially," said Keating.

"I have no kick coming over the sale of Coney 2:07 3/4," said Mr. Keating, "though I did think I would get at least $1500 for him. I don't know of a horse that has any more speed than Coney, and I know he is game but he does not race well. You remember I told you before I started East with him that if his head was right he would be a champion. Well the trouble seemed to be in his head and but for that 'bee' he should have won every race in which he was entered. I don't understand just what it is, as his sire was about the most level headed race horse I ever saw. Coney worked a mile for me in 2:05 1/2 and did it so nicely and seemingly so easily that I thought he ought to win wherever he did not have to beat that time. Maybe he will act better this year. I hope so.

Scarcely a day passes but some owner drops into this office and inquires about the stallions that will stand for public service in California next year. Many mares will be bred next season compared to last, if present indications are correct. Mr. Rudolph Spreckels, who owns those two Strathway mares Annie Rooney 2:17 and Marguerite, her full sister, intends breeding them early and having them trained. In good bands they should go faster than ever and both have shown two minute speed for a quarter. Mr. Spreckels has not yet decided what horse he will breed them to.

C. A. Durfee tells me he is seriously contemplating retiring from the sulky and letting his sons W. G. at Los Angeles and C. H. at Hawaii, keep up their sire's reputation as developers of speed. The "old man" (he looks to be about 40 and acts well, not over 30 at the most) has been a good trainer in his day, but from what I have seen of his son Will in the sulky I am inclined to believe that he will have more in the 2:30 list than his sire has at the same age.

A correspondent of an Eastern paper, writing about California affairs seems to have formed the opinion that horse racing has gone to the dogs out here. I am inclined to think the correspondent did not keep his eyes open this year. Our circuit was not large but it was very good what there was of it and will be a hundred per cent better next year. It must be remembered that for four years the State appropriations for district fairs were cut off, and that there is no trotting track in this vicinity, the San Francisco and Oakland tracks being owned by racing clubs and devoted entirely to them. The California trotter is all right and never has the P. C. T. H. B. A. given a better meeting than it gave this year or one where as good fellowship and as much harmony prevailed. Harness racing is very much alive here in California.

Sam C. Freeman, the popular and entertaining writer on harness horse affairs had an interview with F. W. Covey just before that gentleman left New York for home after the sale, and it contains so many things that will interest our readers that we give it in full. It is as follows:

"I'm a trotting horseman now, through and through," remarked Frank W. Covey superintendent of the famous Palo Alto Stock Farm, California, just before returning to his West.

With the sale of the consignment of thoroughbred stallions to the recent Fasig-Lipton sale Palo Alto returns to the running horse game and will hereafter adhere strictly to the breeding and developing of trotters. A few thoroughbred mares are retained on the farm for the purpose of crossing their blood with that of the trotting stallions, as Palo Alto believes that a strain of the thoroughbred enhances the value of the trotter, and from the great ones that have been bred there no argument of those who do not fancy the thoroughbred strain would prevail.

Mr. Covey, as superintendent at Palo Alto is of course, greatly interested in the breeding and developing of horses on the Golden Slope. He is also director of the State Board of Agriculture and of the Breeders'

Association, besides figuring as official starter and judge at various meetings held throughout the State.

"Yes," said he, "the thoroughbreds are about all cleaned out now with the exception of some brood mares which will be bred to trotting stallions. There has been a great revival in the trotting horse business in California, a fact that was very forcibly presented the past season by the general interest manifested at all the meetings throughout the State.

"The contests were of such a character that the old time interest was revived, and I look for a continuance of it. With a revision of the rules in regard to distance and number of heats, as between the slow and fast classes, the public will be given something to interest it, and the revival started this year will continue and grow stronger.

"I am a believer in the two in three heat plan, and have always been an advocate of it for the fast classes. More damage is done to fast horses in three in five heat races than anything else, and I strongly favor the lesser number of heats for them. I do not believe that an entire meeting should be given at two in three, as it is likely to happen that the events are won in one two order too frequently, although in the three in five heats the same thing often happens where a horse so far outclasses his field. But I am of the opinion that if the fast classes are put at two in three and the slow classes at three in five heats it will not only attract the patronage of the general public, but be favorably received by horsemen as well."

Mr. Covey was very enthusiastic concerning the prospects for the trotting horse business in California. The breeders are taking greater pains and breeding more intelligently, and he looked for the next crop of colts to contain some world beaters.

"At Palo Alto there are some great stallions young and old, which will be in the stud. There is Nazote, by Whips, dam Josie, by Hambletonian; second dam Young Josselyn, by Speculation, a full brother to Azote 2:04 1/2. He is a five year old, a fine shaped horse, and we look for great things from him. One of the most promising of the young comers is Monbells, a two year old, that will also be in the stud next season. He is by Mendocino, out of Beautiful Bells; in fact, the last son of Beautiful Bells. Several noted breeders have been after him, and $15,000 was refused for him this year. He indicates great speed and will be placed in the hands of Tom Keating for training, as he is entered in all the great three year old stakes of 1900. Just keep your eye on this fellow next year. He is sure to show up something.

"Then there is Azmoor 2:20 1/2, by Electioneer, dam Mamie C.; Mendocino 2:19 1/2, by Electioneer, dam Mano, by Piedmont, second dam Mamie, by Hambletonian Jr. the sire of Idolita (3) 2:12 and Adolita; Wildnut by Woodnut, a son of Nutwood, dam Wildflower, by St. Clair the sire of several good ones; Altivo 2:18 1/2, by Electioneer, dam Winnie, a thoroughbred, by Planet, second dam Liz Mardis, by imp. Glencoe, a full brother to Palo Alto 2:08 3/4.

"The above are a few of the great stallions that will be in the stud at Palo Alto, which, with the blue blooded and speedy mares to which they will be bred, will continue to perpetuate its fame as an establishment where great trotters are produced. There are many other good stallions located at the different breeding establishments of the State which will be in the stud, and I think the trotting horse business will be greater than was ever known before.

"Among the good ones which I now call to mind is McKinney 2:11 1/2, by Alcyon, dam Rosa Sprague, by Gov. Sprague, sire of nineteen in the list including Coney 2:07 3/4; Jennie Mac 2:09, Zombro 2:11, Hazel Kinney 2:12 1/4, and McZeus 2:13. Iran Alto 2:12 1/4, by Palo Alto; Boodle 2:12 1/2, by Stranger; Neeratt 2:12 1/4, by Albert W. 2:20, and a host of other good ones that will keep up the reputation of California as a great speed nursery."

Mr. Covey was well satisfied with the result of his trip East. The horses he brought with him sold well, and he returned to the West feeling happy.

Standard Bred Trotter or Thoroughbred, Which?

[COMMUNICATED]

For upwards of half a century the owners, trainers and partisans of these two breeds of horses have been discussing their relative merits, as to which is the more profitable to breed viewed from a financial standpoint. For over a hundred years the thoroughbred had held undisputed sway. Money was spent lavishly in the purchase of the best that Europe could produce. Year after year and decade after decade the question was still unsettled as to which part of our country produced the best. Great were the trials and vast the amounts wagered between owners in endeavoring to prove the superiority of the different blood lines used in the efforts to produce the champion race horse and the question was still undecided.

Then began an era in our history when another class of American breeders were found laboring in another vineyard. While the owner of the thoroughbred in the Southern and Middle States were exulting in the achievements of his favorite breed of horses, we find the farmers of New England engaged in founding the breed which was to be known as the American trotting horse.

In the State of Vermont in the latter part of the last century there originated what are known in history as the Morgan Horse and the Vermont Black Hawk, but it was the importation of the thoroughbred horse Messenger that resulted in producing what is recognized to-day as the parent of the American Trotting Horse—Abdallah 1. The Black Hawk strain was well thought of in those days, and it is said that one of the first trotting races on record was between a couple of horses of the Black Hawk breed owned by two Vermont farmers returning from a county fair, and the wager a barrel of apple-jack.

It was about this era that the rivalry in breeding trotting horses began, and whenever there appeared a horse whose get showed speed on the road, he was well patronized by the farmers, and in a comparatively short period there were scattered over the Northern and Eastern States the produce of the sires I have mentioned.

In 1845 Lady Suffolk electrified the world with her wonderful flight of speed, and here it may be said was the first real impetus given the trotting turf. Four years later Abdallah 1's great son Hambletonian 10 was foaled, from whose loins has sprung nearly all that are great in the ranks of the American Trotting Horse. From all sections of the country then came the desire to breed the best and it ever since has prevailed in all parts of the country. Perhaps one of the keenest observers of events in the breeding of trotters was the late Senator Leland Stanford, and this was shown when he purchased what afterwards proved to be the greatest of all speed producing sires—Electioneer.

It is not the writer's purpose, however, to deal with the great sires, but to consider which horse is more profitable to produce—the trotter or the thoroughbred. My argument can be brought to the support of either side. Wonderfully high prices have been paid for the product of the thoroughbred breeding farms, but let us compare notes as to what percentage of that product has brought high prices and what proportion have become money winners. Not over twenty per cent. of the latter certainly. Then what becomes of the other eighty per cent.? They were necessarily consigned to the saler to become the property of the peddler, though perhaps many fell into the hands of the cheap owner and became the cheapest of selling platers having no use but as "filling in stuff" to serve the purpose of the wily hookmaker and his tent. The tried and found wanting thoroughbred cannot be used as a general thing as a horse of all work as he is usually fractions and numansgeable by reason of his hot blood and track training, consequently we say that breeding him cannot be a lucrative business to engage in.

Let us turn to the trotting horse. I will concede that all his produce are not race horses, but while I believe a greater percentage of them become money winners when raced than do the thoroughbreds, I am also reminded that a great many that are not race horses become valuable as gentleman's road drivers, good surry horses and horses of all work in the town or on the farm. A glance at prices that have been realized in recent years will show that while the thoroughbred stakes horses have brought enormous prices, it must be conceded from an numerical standpoint that the preponderance in value lies with the trotter. The late Robert Bonner, one of the greatest lovers of the trotting horse that ever lived, always believed in the future of the animal and he gave him his highest valuation, and thence came the slogan: Breed to the best.

The standard of value depends mainly upon style, conformation and breeding, and while the latter qualification does not influence the price as much as it did owing probably to the fact that the majority of horses offered for sale now are fairly well bred, it must be remembered that from a racing standpoint it is still pre eminent. Although the expense of training and developing a runner is light compared with the trotter, if the thoroughbred after a few months' training is not fit for a race horse he is sold for a song or given away, while the trotter that is not fast may be sold for a road or carriage horse at a good price, often a very big and profitable one.

Viewing it from an experience of thirty years I believe that the breeding of trotters is a far better investment than the raising of thoroughbreds. The markets of Europe are now asking for the trotting bred horse and the breeders of good ones can realize more money than they ever could before in those markets, while the recent sales in New York and Chicago show that for high class race or road horses prices that pay a profit are easily gotten; and for the choicest of carriage horses, single or in pairs, the demand is much greater than the supply at all times. So I say to the owner of good broodmares, "Breed to the best sires and you will obtain good and profitable results." The leading sportsmen of Europe are becoming enamored of trotting races, and it would not be at all surprising to see the trotter take the place of the thoroughbred as the favorite in the "sport of kings."

I believe that the thoroughbred has had his day, as instead of "sport," thoroughbred racing has got to be a business, and a gambling business at that. It is not the love of sport, but the love of money that draws people to the running tracks, and the bookmaker is the cause of the degeneration. This same element has at times and places fastened itself on the trotting turf, but there has been a general uprising against it, and it is not probable that the bookmaker will be allowed to ply his trade on trotting tracks in California in the future. It is to be hoped so at least.

The days of depression that affected all kinds of business are over, and a new and prosperous era has dawned. Prices of horses have advanced and there is a general desire to purchase good, well bred prospects for racing purposes. Therefore, I say, keep on breeding the trotting horse, breed to the best and remember that conformation is the greatest factor in producing valuable stock. With these ideas uppermost in your mind, you cannot fail to succeed as a breeder, provided you make an earnest and intelligent effort to carry them out. San Francisco, Dec. 1, 1899. C.

At Oakwood Park Stock Farm

"What a magnificent piece of property is Oakwood Park Stock Farm at Danville, in Contra Costa county," remarked I. B. Dalziel, the well known veterinary dentist of this city, the other day as he was seated in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. He had just been on a professional visit to the place, and was enthusiastic over what he had seen and the farm's glorious prospects for the new year which will soon begin. There are on this celebrated farm, whereon were bred so many champions, 520 head of horses and 300 head of fine bred cattle, all in the best of condition. There are 75 weanlings, foals of 1899, by such stallions as Steinway, Chas. Derby, McKinney, Directum, James Madison and the thoroughbred horse Major Ban. "It requires the constant employment of 35 men to look after this great breeding farm and Mr. Boyd, the owner, has in Fred Booth a Superintendent who understands his business thoroughly and attends to it perfectly," said Doctor Dalziel. Ben Chahoya, the well known trainer has about 25 youngsters in the training barn, and is putting them through their first lessons in stepping, one or two of which have already shown sufficient speed to lead to the conclusion that there will be an equal if not the superior of Klatawah 2:05½ and also of Owyhee 2:11 in the bunch, and it is probable they will go East to prove it on the Grand Circuit. About 1200 acres of the 6000 in the farm are in hay and grain, and the latter, sowed just after the first rains, is already seven or eight inches high. The feed is very plentiful all over the ranch, the alfalfa being knee high at the time of the Doctor's visit. The barns and granaries are all full, and the prospects for the coming year are for immense crops. Several men are busily engaged in driving and handling young horses for the market and there are many handsome roadsters and well matched pairs among them, and will be ready for the market within a few months.

A Story on Splan.

Yarrum, of the Horse Review, tells the following story on John Splan: "They said that when Splan took Barus over to California many years ago, hoping to pick up a little easy money, the owner of one of the crack trotters of the day offered to make a match with Splan for $5000 a side. That was more money than Splan had in his vest at the time, but he accepted the bet, and after skirmishing among his staff for a few minutes, he returned to the hotel where the preliminaries were to be arranged with the cash in his hand. After Splan had turned his money over to the hotel clerk, who was to act as stakeholder, the owner of the other horse stepped up to the counter and asked for a pen and check book. He then proceeded to fill out a check for $5000 and hand it over to the stakeholder. Splan watched this move carefully, and as soon as it was over he turned to the clerk and said, 'Let me look at that roll of mine again.' Mr. Stakeholder handed it over and Splan put the money back in his deepest pocket. Then addressing the gentleman who had filled out the check, he said: 'I must, have misunderstood your proposition. I thought we were to race for $10,000 in money, but it's all right, though. I'll race for anything you say. If you want to let the leaves out of that book, all right. I call you and raise you three more,' and with that he picked up the check book and tore out four leaves and handed them over to the astonished clerk."

MR. HARRY K. DEVEREUX, of Cleveland, won 27 out of 56 starts in matinees last season.

Horsemen and Horses at Hanford.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—We have quite a number of horses and horsemen down here in the 24th Agricultural District, and many of the latter have some great prospects among the former for the coming year. The Porterville races, which were billed for November 30th and December 1st, were declared off on account of the paucity of entries, which was not surprising. Races that are for the benefit of a small neighborhood do not draw crowds as a rule, and $20 to $40 purses are too small to induce men to train good horses for them, even on country tracks.

Hanford track has been leased by that staunch old friend of the trotter, Mr. Ragan, who has reconstructed it and fixed it up in good shape. He will continue to work his stallion C. L. K. R., the mare Lucerne and some of his colts, which besides being well bred are fine individuals. He has offered the use of the track for our Christmas races, which will probably come off.

The veteran reinsman, E. Eddy, who is probably the oldest driver in California still actively engaged in training and driving trotters has the good pacer Goshen Jim in his stable and has recently taken up some colts by Strathway out of his famous old broodmare which he claims has more Hambletonian 10 blood than any mare in the State as she is inbred to that horse. [Our correspondent fails to give the name of this mare and her breeding—ED.]

Hank Boice has still a liking for good horses and has several colts and fillies which he thinks a great deal of as they show lots of speed.

Ed Erlanger, who bred and raised Toggles 2:09½, has quite a number of young green ones, some by Strathway and some by other standard stallions owned in this district.

I understand that several green horses will come from Visalia to train on the Hanford track, among them quite a number from the Perkins farm, from whence came Jasper Ayres 2:09, Visalia 2:12½, and many other good ones.

While there have been but few mares bred in this locality during the past few years, those bred were the best in the district and the colts and fillies now being trained are an exceptionally fine lot.

The pacing stallion Hanford Medium 2:11½, is still in this city where he made the season last year. Several very fast and good looking young horses got by them are used as road horses here.

One great trouble in the past four years is that we have had no open track to train on, and owners are averse to sending their horses very far away from home to have them trained.

Now that the breeding season is approaching we would like to see in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN a few articles from our successful California breeders in which particular attention is paid to the sort of animals to mate to secure the best results in the way of conformation, as high class form seems to be in greatest demand. [An article on this very topic will appear in our Christmas edition. Ed.]

We are all alive to the value of the American trotter down here and Hanford will be heard from in 1900.

A BREEDER.

The Race Horse not a Machine.

John Madden is a man of wide experience both with trotters and runners, and he is a keen observer. Speaking of the season's racing, Madden says:

"I train my own horses and bet on them when I think they can win, but during the season about to close my betting books show no balance to the good. I am in the game for revenue only, but I love horses, and if I was a man of independent means I would be on the turf just the same. I have tried all sorts of jockeys on my horses. I like to have the best, and will pay any price to have a good ride, but with all that I have lost money many a time when I thought I had an ace up my sleeve, and at the same time I was convinced I had an honest ride. The critics must remember that a race horse is not an automaton—that he won't do everything at all times alike. They tell me that the new invention, the automobile, won't go true, and how can an animal made of flesh and blood, and liable to all kinds of changes, run the same way all the time? It took me a long time to take this view of the case, but finally I am there, and when one that I have bet on showed up badly, it is beyond me to explain it, and I mix up in the betting ring and go to the next one looking to get even. I have raced at all of the big tracks this season and have lost a lot of races that I expected to win. I don't throw a bouquet at myself when I say I am a good judge, and I can say candidly that neither with my own horses or anybody else's have I seen anything that I could assert was crooked. The jockey club stewards are smart people, and they have used brains and power to discover if there has been any wrongdoing, and they have yet to locate a single case. I am in the same boat, and as one deeply interested I can say there is nothing in it. If there was I would be the first to yell murder."

HON. FREDERICK C. SAYLES, owner of Alix 2:03½, has given a public library to the city of Pawtucket, R. I., as a memorial to his wife, who died in 1895. The corner stone was laid recently with impressive ceremonies.

Sam Gamble on the Speedway.

Sam Gamble, the noted horseman who arrived in this city at week with a consignment of horses from California, gged on the Speedway Sunday behind a smooth-going little ay, just to look the horses over and see the great drive for e first time, says the New York Telegraph. "It's a beautiful drive and a great thing for horsemen and rse breeders. There is but one fault I can find with it and t is, it should have been wider. It looks to me as though ould be a bad thing to avoid accident when it is owded, but as I never heard of an accident occurring on it, suppose it is all right as it is. The footing is good and the rses should go very fast. "The Speedway at San Francisco is almost twice as wide, th a low hedge running right through the centre, divid- g it so that horses going one way cannot encroach upon e ground of those going the opposite direction, thus reduc- g the chances of accident. But the going is not so good t there as it is here. In fact the California tracks are iver. A horse that can go in 2:12 in California should go e least two seconds faster on your tracks in good condition. "I have seen some very fast horses to-day. I like the way h wheels steps. He goes like a trotter, but I think we have e on the other side of the Rockies that could show any of e the way. Among them is the well known Toggles, but ere is no chance of his ever coming East, as his owner ould not part with him as any price. Among three or four ers I call to mind a trotter called Our Jack, with a record 2:13, which I think could lead the way for any of those I ve seen speeded here to-day. He is a handsome blood bay t Steinway out of a mare by Sweepstakes, and has a trial rk of 2:10. I should like to see him brought over here d given a show. "I am as well satisfied with the results of the sale of the res I brought from California as possible under the cir- cumstances. Several of them stood the trip over very poorly d were sick when shown, and you've got to show the qual- ity of your animals to get the prices. It may seem strange, t; I attribute the sickness of the horses to the warm weather experienced for the entire distance. I would far rather ve had the thermometer stand below zero. Not a one of m would have been sick then. "I like New York and I like California also, only its a g way from the Bowery, as the saying goes. It was my e intention to open a stable here, but I have not been able to d a location to suit me exactly."

An Historic Carload.

The Abbot, Tommy Britton, Borsalma and Ellert were y much in evidence at Louisville and Lexington; all four d descended from a carload of youngsters that left Chicago t Sunny Slope thirty years ago. The car was in charge of A. Hndr, a brother-in-law of the late Dr. Herr. "We left Chicago on October 4, 1869," said Hndr, "and rched Los Angeles and Sunny Slope on November 1st owing; it was the first car of horses sent over the Union d Central Pacific railroads, and most of the horses raised t the late L. J. Rose were descendants of the six young- s that made up the shipment. This consisted of one e year old, The Moor, and five yearlings; Minnehaha- Garland, Clay Pilot, Maggie Mitchell and Barbara. I stayed at Sunny Slope until 1874. In 1871 I handled e Moor when he was bred to Minnehaha, and the black r that was foaled in 1872 from that mating was Beautiful els, afterwards the dam of Hinda Rose, Chimes, Bell Boy, Ev Bells and other well known ones. I halter-broke eautiful Bells when she was nine days old and broke her to eess at nine months. She could show pretty well for a y trotter of those days. I worked her along carefully t won a yearling race with her in 3:19. She could have t the mile in 3:12, but we didn't want to shut the rers out. Both parents of the mare were in the car that took me t California, and twenty-nine years later I left that State with a o Alto consignment that included one of her best sons, well. Now that I am East again, I shall probably live at tington and handle colts and the like." It is not easy to figure out what that little band of young- s did for the trotting interests of California and the e whole country. Beautiful Bells is responsible for a wonder- amount of speed and the glory of her family increases t the years. The Abbot is her grandson, while Tommy tton and Borsalma are great grandsons. The winner of t Walnut Hall Cup, Ellert, is a great grandson of her sire, t Moor, through Sultan and Stamboul, and the race won t be quartet in the latter part of the circuit must have e their respective owners glad that Senator Rose took the t important part he did in founding the trotting stock of t California.—Horseman.

Better Than Represented.

J. H. Jones, a prominent horseman at Windsor, Mo., writes as ows: "Having used two bottles of Quinn's Ointment, I herein eose $1.50 for another bottle. I found it to be as represented and e more." This is the universal expression of the leading horse- m from Maine to California. For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs t all bunches it has no equal. Sent by mail or express prepaid, t receipt of $1.50; smaller size 50c. Address W. B. Eddy & Co., ehall, N. Y., unless you can obtain it from your druggist.

The Doble-Gamble Consignment.

Bad luck attended the shipping of two carloads of horses purchased from Aptos Stock Farm by Budd Doble and that went to New York in charge of Samuel Gamble. Many of them were sick on the day of the sale and sold for almost nothing, so that the average was brought down pretty low. The following list of the sales is from the New York Telegraph:

Good Prices for Harness Horses.

If any one doubts that the light harness horse has a value the following from the New York Sun of November 30th will convince him of his error: "The Fasiz-Tipton sale of trotters, which has been in progress at Madison Square Garden ever since the close of the National Horse Show, came to an end last night. During the nine days of the big vendue, 729 horses passed under the auctioneer's hammer. They brought $313,301, an average of $4.8 each. In the number of trotting bred horses disposed of, the sale was probably the largest on record. When it was over, the horsemen united in saying it had been the most successful sale held in New York or elsewhere since 1893. Although broken down horses having fast records, old broodmares and unbroken colts were knocked down for seemingly low prices in many cases, nearly all sound, serviceable animals fit for immediate use on the road or the track fetched better prices than horsemen expected they would bring when the sale opened. The market remained strong until the last and for the animals offered the last day bidding was as lively as on the opening day."

Breed the Trotting Horses.

As an argument against farmers and small breeders breed- ing trotters it is often said, "Too few of them have speed, and, when they do, development costs too much." This argument is not only threshold, but is illogical. Speed development is not an essential element of good value and an unusually large profit in trotting horse breeding, especially if quality is looked after, and no class of horses is profitable to raise if quality is neglected. No other breed of horses in the world possesses the hardness, density of texture, soundness, intelligence, tractability and durability of American trotters, and no other breed possesses one-half the range of usefulness. For light harness use the American trotter stands practically alone; for saddle use, if given saddle education, he stands unexcelled; for carriage purposes he stands without a peer and for all else than heavy draft he is sublimely superior. He is the rich man's equine ornament and the poor man's obedient and every where useful servant. He is the twentieth century horse, the favorite and best, not only in his native land, but throughout all civilized countries in which he has been given a chance to demonstrate his superiority.

An Englishman's Opinion.

"The more I see of the trotting horse the better I like the breed" says an Englishman at the New York horse show "The best of the trotters are pretty near the perfection of symmetry, beauty and grace, and they are the most useful and versatile breed of horses ever known to man. Here we saw one of them out-hackney the hackneys at the high step- ping business in heavy harness only a few minutes ago, and now we have other representatives of the same family doing their turn in faultless style as gentlemen's roadsters of the kind you see up at Speedway park."

The eight roadsters and blue ribbon winners belonging to the estate of the late Colonel Kin, sold at Madison Square Garden, November 28th, brought $585, an average of $1073.

Glanders at Honolulu.

The terrible disease of glanders has again appeared in Honolulu, says the Hawaiian Gazette of November 14th. The outbreak occurred at Mskiki and was discovered by Agent McVaigh of the Board of Health. The stock affected is a lot of mules recently imported from California by Mr. McCulloch, a dealer between Honolulu and the Coast. The animals were left in charge of Mr. Ewing at his place in Mskiki, who claims that he supposed the disease to be pneumonia. When found one of the mules was lying dead in the corral in an advanced state of decomposition and three others were in the last stages of the dread malady, fatal alike to horse and man. Agent McVeigh reported the matter and Doctors J. R. Shaw and W. T. Monsserrat went to inquire into the facts and to kill the animals. This was at once done at the corral and the quarantine grounds. A fifteen foot hole was dug and the fence and entire wood- work of the corral was torn down. The dead animal was placed therein and cremated by the aid of the wood. Another of the mules was killed and cremated at the same place. The remainder of the diseased animals there had their heads placed in bags and were taken to the quarantine station, where still another was hurt up. All the mules composing the lot shipped have been col- lected and are now in quarantine. Agent Reynolds of the Board of Health discovered a part of the herd in a lot on the Queen, Monday last, which were at once removed. This lot was dangerously near the center of the city, being in the yard just back of the Mutual Tele- phone building. Since the discovery on last Monday after- noon, Agents Charlock and McVeigh of the Health Board have been making a thorough search for any further animals of the lot yet remaining or distributed by sale.

Answers to Correspondents.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—1. We would like information in regard to forming an association. 2. What constitutes an outlaw track? 3. When men race over a half mile track does it bar them from the association tracks? 4. In case the State appropriation was not used this year, can the whole amount be used the coming year?—C. 1. Our correspondent does not state whether it is the organization of a district association or simply a club that he wishes information about. The Legislature of California has divided the State into districts and the laws governing those organizations can be found in the codes, or will doubt- less be furnished by the Secretary of State. The rules govern- ing trotting races in use on the tracks in California are those of the National Trotting Association, and are pub- lished in pamphlet for sale at this office at 25 cents per copy. 2. An outlaw track is one that permits suspended horses and owners to race, which does not recognize any of the racing authorities, or any of the rulings of those authorities. 3. Harness races held over a half mile track are perfectly legitimate if they are held in accordance with the rules of the National or American trotting associations. Many of the leading associations in the East hold all their races over half mile tracks. 4. It has always been understood that the appropriations for district fairs were made for the period of two years and must be used within that time. They can be drawn for one or two fairs, and if no meeting was held during the first year the entire amount can be used during the second. But in any case, the money must be used as the law directs and within the two years for which appropriated, and an itemized statement of the association's transactions made to the State Board of Examiners.

San Francisco, Saturday, December 9, 1899.

THE MARKET for trotting bred horses is good. The fact that at one sale in New York recently nearly eight hundred were sold at an average of $428 per head proves this. There were some disappointments in the sale, no doubt. In a few instances horses that had contracted severe illness on the way to the auction block were sold for a mere song, the only wonder being that men could be found to risk even a $20 bill on a horse that was liable to die before the bill of sale could be made out. There were undoubtedly in the many consignments horses that were a long ways from the sort they were bred for. There were horses that could not trot fast, could not show well and were very short on looks. These of course could not be expected to sell for as much as it had cost to raise them, but no matter how many sales are held every year, there will always be a few horses of this kind consigned to them. It is one of the strangest of the many strange things that daily confront the observer of horse affairs, that so many breeders seem to be afflicted with a stubborn blindness as to the faults of the horses they have bred and owned. We have heard a man describe in the most enthusiastic manner the beauty and qualities of a horse and when the beast was led out for inspection he would have a big homely head, a rat tail, ewe neck, or some other feature that no really handsome horse possesses, and in some instances he would have three or four of them. It was not that the horse's owner had intentionally been resorting to deception in describing the animal, but he had become so infatuated with an animal of his own breeding that his eyes were blind as a lover's to any faults the object of his adoration possessed. What person that has tried to buy a good carriage animal has not listened for a half hour to a recital of the perfect manners of one that was offered and then had great difficulty in getting into the vehicle to which the horse was hitched because the ill mannered brute had never been taught to stand? The fault was really not with the horse, but with the owner whose ideas of a carriage horse were limited to the "going" qualities and who had never taken the "standing" quality into consideration. But this by the way. The horse market is the subject now under consideration and the most casual observer must have noticed that it is only the horse that is what he is represented to be that is bringing the good price at the sales. Trotting bred horses that have speed, good looks, style and breeding are in demand and it is not likely that this demand will be supplied for several years. There is no boom in ordinary stock of any kind, and it is to be hoped that there never will be. The fewer indifferent horses are bred, the better will the prices of good ones remain and the more profitable will the breeding of the American horse be to all concerned.

A LETTER FROM KANSAS CITY was received by a citizen of San Francisco this week, in which the writer, a reliable horse dealer, commissioned the San Franciscan to secure for him a carload of good driving horses that had speed enough for road purposes. Prospective race horses at big prices were not wanted for this shipment, but good sized, well broke and sound animals that can show a 2:30 gait for say an eighth or a quarter under the watch. Outclassed trotters that are not too old or unsound will suit, and good looks and good manners will be especially desirable. The gentleman who received the letter informs us that from $100 to $250 per head will be paid for horses that come up to the requirements.

A BIG LIST OF ENTRIES goes a long way towards drawing large crowds to trotting meetings, and how best to secure them is always the subject of much study by the successful Secretary. The trotting season of 1900 in California will undoubtedly be begun with greater confidence in results than any previous year for some time, and there is every reason to look forward to not only a successful season for owners and trainers, but a profitable one for every district association that expends the proper amount of energy and applies an average amount of intelligence to the work of giving a fair and race meeting. The association that is wise and honest with the people of its district will use the State appropriation entirely for the fair, giving as liberal premiums for live stock and other exhibits as possible, and will so arrange the business of the harness racing that it will be completely divorced from any connection with the appropriation whatever, and pay its own way. There is not a district in California but can do this with intelligent management, and thereby put a goodly sum of money in the treasury at the close of the meeting. A large list of entries must be secured to do this, and to get the entries, the horse owners must be catered to. The live Secretary will know before the program or purses are announced pretty nearly what horses are in training all over the Coast. He will be able to tell in advance what classes will attract sufficient entries to warrant the association in hanging up good purses for them, and he will also know what dates will best suit all parties concerned. He will realize the fact that railroad fares and purses cut considerable congealed aqua pura with horsemen and will confer with his brother Secretaries as to how the former can be made as low and the latter as large as possible. He will do all this before his Board of Directors meet, so as to be able to show them all the facts and give them all the information possible, as the average director is not given to setting up nights to see how the district fair can be made profitable. The Secretary is the one on whose shoulders the burden rests and it is to be hoped that during the next few months there will be an awakening all along the line of the agricultural districts of California and that the Secretaries will be the cause of it.

THE OCCIDENTAL STAKE to be trotted at the State Fair of 1902 will in all probability be the richest prize ever offered for three year old trotters on the Pacific Coast, and every well bred trotting foal of this year in California should be entered in it. The entries will close January 2, 1900, which will fall on Tuesday, and the date should be borne in mind by owners and not allowed to slip by without the entries being made. The stake is increasing in value every year and that of 1902 will undoubtedly eclipse all previous ones. In 1898 the value was $2525, and in 1899 $2775. If the entries are received next month that are expected, it should reach $5000 in 1902 and that certainly will be one of the best three year old events of that year in the United States. There is no better investment than the naming of a colt or filly in this stake, keeping up the payments and carefully training the youngster for the race. But $10 is required with the entry in January and not another cent is demanded until a year has passed, when another payment of $15 must be made, but by that time the colt is entering his two year old form and some idea can be formed of his gait and probable speed, as he will be thoroughly broken by that time. Another year then passes until January 1st of 1902, when $25 is due. No further payments are required until thirty days before the race, and by that time every owner will have made up his mind whether his colt is worth spending a starting fee on for a purse that will contain from three to five thousand dollars. Good colts that are well entered in stakes are the ones that bring top prices at all times. If you have not received an entry blank for the Occidental Stake of 1902, drop a postal card to this office or to Peter J. Shields, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society at Sacramento and one or more will be forwarded you. You certainly cannot win this stake with your colt unless he is entered in it.

MULES ARE IN DEMAND all over the country at good prices, and there is every reason to believe that the demand will continue for several years. The governments of the United States and Great Britain have been heavy buyers on account of the wars in Cuba, the Philippines and South Africa, while the cultivation of sugar cane in our new possessions and the rapidly growing sugar beet industry at home has created a demand for mules that has raised the prices fully fifty per cent. over what they were two years ago. Mules can be raised with profit by any farmer who owns fair pasture land and will use a good class of mares and mate them with a good jack. There are hundreds of mares annually bred to grade stallions in this State that would bring much greater profit to their owners if they should produce mules. Mule colts are harder, easier to feed and to raise than horses, and at two years old are ready to break and work. The breaking of a horse is quite an expense and takes much time to do properly. Two or three days in the plow will break a mule sufficiently for the purposes of sale and there are few of the hybrids that will not earn more than their feed the first time hooked up. Service fees are lower and other expenses lighter all round in raising mules, and for a good three year old that is broke from $75 to $100 can be had readily while choice animals will bring $300 per space.

THE RICH RUNNING STAKES offered by the State Agricultural Society, the California Jockey Club and the Western Turf Association for the two year old of 1902, should make every breeder and owner on the Pacific Coast an enthusiastic solicitor of entries for an a very liberal patron of them. The California Futurity, the Western Produce and the Stallion Stakes will be worth in the aggregate at least $100,000 and for this sum to be given in three stakes in one year will attract more attention to California as a breeding and racing State than anything which has heretofore been announced in the way of race programs or big events. The very small amount required to enter a colt or filly in any of these great stakes will certainly attract a tremendous entry list and as in every instance the associations add liberal sum to the stakes an additional attractiveness given them. The dates must be kept in mind: The Western Produce Stakes offered by the Western Turf Association close December 30, 1899, the Stallion Stakes offered by the State Agricultural Society close January 1, 1900, and the Futurity Stakes offered by the California Jockey Club close January 2, 1900. Blank cards containing all necessary information will be furnished by the Secretaries of the different associations upon application at the advertisements setting forth the value and conditions will be found in our advertising columns.

THE NEXT SALE AT CHICAGO will be held in January and at it will be sold the first consignment of California horses that has been sent to the salesmen of the windy city for many years. Splan & Newgass have already consigned to this sale horses from New York and Massachusetts, so that the Western market must be considered a good one by even the residents of the East. The greatest sale of trotting bred horses ever known has just closed at New York with an average of $428 per head, and a Chicago man paid the highest price of the sale—$20,000 for Tommy Britton. All the European buyers that attended the New York sale will be in Chicago and it is reasonably certain that a good horse will bring a good price when John Splan shows him in the ring at Dexter Park Exchange, the finest building in the world for showing horses in harness. Milo Knapp has a number of good ones already consigned to the sale and those who have good ones they wish to dispose of cannot do better than write him about it. Every indication points to a big sale and high prices at Chicago next month.

ONE IS REMINDED of the old saying, "carry coals to Newcastle," to read in the Yolo Democrat that Albert Hannum of that county recently brought a carload of driving horses out from Missouri, and has already sold at least half of them in and about Woodland. What makes the problem still more perplexing is the fact as stated elsewhere on this page that Kansas City, Missouri, dealer is looking to California for driving horses. Your "Uncle Collis" gets the freight both ways, however, and so the truth of the proverb "Them that has, gets" is proven.

At a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Coney Island Jockey Club, held Monday, November 27, Mr. William K. Vanderbilt was elected president, to succeed the late Col. Lawrence Kip. Mr. Vanderbilt had served vice-president for a number of terms, and has not up to this time taken a very active part in racing in America, though he has frequently been a spectator at Morris Park and Sheepshead Bay. Several years ago, he purchased a number of broodmares which he sent to France, where he raised them with little success. Now that he has been elected president of one of the most popular and progressive racing associations in the country, turfmen are hoping that Mr. Vanderbilt will follow the example of Messrs. Belmont, White and others and that his colors may be seen on the track.

Horses in Export.

The official statistics from Washington of our export trade horses are of a highly satisfactory character, though the best figures for ten months are not quite up to the figures of last year which probably proves the statement of foreign buyers in New York, Buffalo and Chicago, that good horses are becoming scarce, and that they cannot fill their orders, as The Spirit of the Times. During the year of depression the breeders and farmers flooded the market, the latter especially selling at any price to avoid the expense of feed, and keeping only harley stock to till the soil. For three years the foreign buyer had the market in his favor and he bought everything in sight, from the cheap general purpose horse to the high-class trotter. Everything was fish which came to his net, and the export trade in horses which barely existed a few years ago rapidly increased till it exceeded $5,000,000. As a result we have got rid of our surplus, and it looks as if there will be a decided scarcity with a strong advance in prices during the next three years.

The small breeder and farmer who will now breed every mare in the paddocks to well bred stallions will in four years now reap a most remunerative harvest if he will breed intelligent lines. It costs just as much to rear a scrub as does a well bred colt, and the only difference is the million's fee, and at the present time there are scores of highly bred stallions of splendid individuality whose services can be secured at fees varying from $25 to $50, and if good young mares are bred to them the colts will well repay the day.

When 40 head of trotting bred carriage stock sells at an average of $1000 each at auction, as it recently did in New York, it proves that it pays as well to breed for style and as it does for speed. The expansion in this department of the market is practically unlimited, for there is always a demand both at home and abroad for handsome teams, and there has never been a time when they were a drug on the market. With the rapid increase of wealth and continuance of prosperous times the demand must increase.

The official figures from Washington show that for the 10 months ending May last, we have exported 37,595 horses and mares, worth $4,496,925, but that in the 10 parallel months previous we exported 41,748 head, worth $5,022,706, the difference, as before said, being not due to the lack of demand but to the want of supply of suitable material. It must also be borne in mind that France, at one time a liberal buyer of common stock, is now out of the market, as it imposes a customs duty of $40 per head, which is practically prohibitive of low grades.

The total export to France for the 10 months was 682 head, worth $975,580. Great Britain of course heads the list, as it does in our other exports, and the business appears of a permanent character, as the figures for the same periods seem to show. In 1897 we exported 15,375 head worth $2,036,166. In 1898 the figures jumped to 18,394 head worth $2,550,098, while in 1899 they are 17,192 head, worth $1,857,000. It will be noticed that the average for this year is higher. If we add one fifth of these figures to the latest we get a rough average of 20,000 head of $3,000,000 or $150 per head.

At the same time, however, is not far distant when the street cars in England, which in the main are run by horses, will be propelled by electricity, which will injure the market for low grades, but there will always be a large and increasing demand for cab horses, roadsters and carriage teams, and for many years to come we shall supply the motherland with its best trotters and pacers.

It is also worthy of remark that the demand for the lightest kinds of American road wagons is on the increase, and many prominent firms in the East have found it to their interest to establish branch establishments in London and Paris. When the average Englishman, with his inherent love of a horse, once drives a fast trotter to a pneumatic road on over their splendid roads, there will be a demand which will put up prices and at the same time exceed the ordinary.

Germany is our next largest customer, but the figures show a decided falling off this year. This is explained by the fact that the Germans buy principally trotters for racing purposes, and that during the autumn and winter sales they were unable to buy what they wanted at the prices they were prepared to pay, or the horses they wanted were not for sale at any price. In 1897 they bought 3755 head at a cost of $648,400. In 1898 they jumped up to 6697 head, at a cost of $85,350, but this year, from the causes above mentioned, they have receded to 4637 head, worth $665,115.

Our next important customer is Canada, which in 1897 bought $372,277, in 1898 $529,178. If to these figures we add Bermuda and the West Indies, principally British, we get a total of $3,184,214, or about 75 per cent. of the total export. It is pleasant to note that we also sell our horses to Asia, Central and South America, and our trade to Cuba, Porto Rico, Honolulu and the Philippines from an most materially grow and expand.

The American trotting bred horse from 15.2 to 16 hands and from 950 to 1100 pounds, is the horse which with endurance and speed will meet the world's wants. The figures prove it, and the breeders of the Continent should at once get ready for the expanding market which is theirs in the near future.

Napa Stock Farm Yearlings.

Imp. Crighton.

Twice winner of first prize for thoroughbred stallions at the San Francisco Horse Show.

The event in turf circles that is being most talked of at present is the sale of yearlings from Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Napa Stock Farm, which will be held on Thursday evening next at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 721 Howard street, this city. There are 41 of the young thoroughbreds in the consignment and there is not a stock farm in America that can show a better looking lot. They are all of good size, thoroughly broken but absolutely untried, and are ready to go to work. They are the get of the stallions imp. Crighton, imp. Idalium, imp. The Judge, Eolo, General Miles, Puryear D. and Ravelston and out of dams that are in most instances producers. A number of horsemen were escorted to Napa last Sunday by Mr. Harry Lowden, representing Mr. Spreckels, and they returned with glowing accounts of the youngsters that will be sold. Among those specially commending themselves to the experts were the chestnut colt Bellerophon by General Miles, out of Belguard by Elias Lawrence, therefore a half brother to Ziska, that won her second time out this week; Pequillo, a sister to Pidalia, by imp. Idalium and out of that good race mare Piquante by Flambeau, is a very handsome, stout looking filly that looks very much like Thornhill, who was a half brother to her dam; Melantrite by General Mills and Luculent by imp. Crighton are both grand looking fillies, the latter entered in the California Jockey Club's Gehardt Stake for next year. Ravelling, an appropriately named bay colt, by Ravelston having for a dam a royally bred mare by St. Saviour, is an extra good individual. Probably the only twins ever consigned to a sales ring are Our Punch, a chestnut colt, and My Judy, a brown filly, and they are by Eolo, out of Irene E., sister to Rey Hooker by El Rio Rey. Bridc-Ale is a grand looking filly by Eolo, out of Bridal Veil, a mare that ran a mile in 1:39 1/2 and is picked by the experts as a fast one for certain. A suit of clothes goes to the purchaser of the bay colt by Idalium, out of Lady Cleveland, the dam of Georgies and Catulus. Georgies was one of the fastest fillies ever foaled on this Coast and won in fast time after being crippled. Catulus was said by E. Wishard to be one of the fastest youngsters ever trained, but he was killed before he had a chance to show how good he was. This yearling has been named Cavanaugh after Bart Cavanaugh, of Sacramento, who has promised to give the buyer a suit of clothes. It was the general opinion of those who visited the farm last Sunday that the gem of the lot is Belzebub, a half brother to Bamboula. He is by imp. Crighton, out of Lieta Hook by imp. Loyalist, and is a big, stout fellow that looks the race horse all over. There is not one of the whole 41 but has size and good looks, backed up by first class breeding, and buyers will be almost certain of getting future winners in every instance. Out of 30 head of yearlings sold from the Napa Stock Farm last year all that are alive have started and all but two are winners. This is a wonderful showing and is the best evidence that the best judgment is being used in the breeding of these thoroughbreds.

Mr. F. W. Covey, the well known Superintendent of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, will act as the auctioneer at this sale, and the announcement of this fact will be a drawing card, as horsemen will know that all the facts in connection with the breeding of the youngsters and the performances of their relatives will be correctly and intelligently stated. The pavilion in which the sale is to be held will be brilliantly lighted by electricity and comfortable seats provided for all who attend. The sale will be the event of the season in horse circles.

JOHN E. MADDEN, who is at his farm, Hamburg Place, near Lexington, has been trying his yearlings. Madden is nothing if not mysterious, and keeps his stable secrets better than any man on the turf. He is one of the most practical of men and thoroughly understands what is necessary to succeed with a racing stable. Mr. Madden has disposed of the stallion Russell to G. H. Chenault, the owner of Spendthrift Stud. He has several others looking at Handeel, and the betting is 10 to 7 on that wily Madden disposes of this son of Hanover.

American Entries for the English Derby.

The greatest fixed event of the sporting world is the English Derby. It has been run every year over the Epsom Course for over a hundred years, and can truly be called "time honored."

It was named in honor of Lord Derby, who fixed the conditions. Diomed, who captured the Derby the first time of its running, was imported to Virginia and became, through his great descendants, Boston, Lexington and others, the founder of what is commonly called the American strain of race horses, which is as old as the country itself, and is known the world over as one of the stoutest strains of thoroughbreds in existence.

Since the time of Diomed, when racing was introduced into this country, the Derby has always excited the greatest interest, and when P. Lorillard's American bred Iroquois took the event in 1881 the country was jubilant.

For years there has always been a few American entries for the race, and now, as the two peoples are growing closer together politically and a sharp sporting rivalry exists, Derby entries from this side are by no means a rarity. Formerly it was only the wealthiest owners in this country who undertook to flaunt their colors in the old country and heard the lion in his den to have a try for the "blue ribbon of the turf." Now the popularity of the big race across the pond is shown by there being many more American entries for the Derby of 1900 than was ever known before, and tuftes of mediocre means, as well as those of great wealth, are reaching out for England's great sporting event.

Mr. W. S. Vosburgh handles the American entries for the English Jockey Club, and has entered many of the most conspicuous of this season's two year olds for the much coveted prize.

J. E. Madden heads the list of entries with a string of seven, as follows. Colonel Roosevelt, by Falsetto—Pearl Thorn; Larzelere, by Bramble—Charity; Waring, by Massetto—The Sweeper; Dan Regan, by Spendthrift—Cinderella; Quicksand, by Quicquillime—Spinette; The Chamberlain, by Lisbon—Patrimony, and David Garrick, by Hanover—Peg Woffington.

The last two are now the property of P. Lorillard and their worth is well known. David Garrick performed fairly well at times, but he is hardly up to Derby form. The Chamberlain was much of a disappointment to Mr. Lorillard, but as he is a slashing, fine looking colt, and a full brother to the speedy Keenan, should he be sent to England he may give a good account of himself. The writer saw him work the mile distance at Sheephead Bay in the early part of the summer in 1:44, when no two year old was asked to go over six furlongs.

Waring, now owned by F. T. Parker, is as fast as the wind, and can go any distance, but as he is reported to have bad ankles, it is hardly likely that he will be sent around Tattenham Corner next year.

Col. Roosevelt is in the hands of Robert Smith. He is a fairish class and last season showed every liking for a distance of ground. Should Boh elect to send him abroad, with Willie Midgely to train him, who knows what will beat Counter Tenor's handsome brother?

Sidney Paget's eligibles, Last Chord, by Ben Strome—Laa, Ben; Bramble Rose, by Bramble—Miss Nailor, and an unnamed bay colt by Meddler—Spring Tide, lack a lot of having Derby form, and will doubtless be kept at home.

J. R. Keene's entries, Doublet, by Domino—Lucy Wallace; Petrubio, by Tournament—Katharine II.; Disguise, by Dominic—Bonnie Gal, and Sangerbund, by Domino—Bellfield II., will, with the exception of Disguise, be kept here. Disguise has already been sent across. He is a colt about whom little is known, but his private form is said to be of the best. He is a slashing bay, of the finest conformation, and was one of the best tried yearlings at the Keene establishment. He would have been seen during the season, but for the reason that he was a big colt and was growing fast, and Trainer Rowe preferred to wait on him.

Marcus Daly's offerings for the race are St. Finnan, by Tammany—Ayrshire Rose, and Pettifogger, by Bathampton—Petticoat. St. Finnan was thought by many to be a good colt during the season, but he never ran up to his private form. Regarding Pettifogger but little is known.

John Daly has a couple on the Derby entry list: Erwin, by His Highness—Vega, and Princeling, by His Highness—Miss Longstreet. These seem to have no chance and will probably race at home.

Alfy Lakeland's bid for the Derby will be with Mike Straus, a colt by Iroquois Gypsy. Billy Lakeland has a colt by Chorister—Zodiac, entered. H. T. Oxnard has a youngster by Jils Johnson—Lady Tramp, on the Derby entry list. A review of the above list shows but few who have Derby form, and until they are shipped abroad it is impossible to tell whom of the lot intend to trip for the English Derby of 1900.

JOCKEY LESTER REIFF, who has ridden so successfully in England during the past season, has signed to ride next year for Mr. A. Baily, a South African mine owner. The horse will be trained by F. W. Day, an Australian.

HANOVER has been for five consecutive seasons the champion sire, with upward of $85,000 to his credit, not including the winnings of the Star of Hanover, which won in England.

Sulky Notes.

DERBY PRINCESS 2:08½ is going to Russia.

An offer of $25,000 has been refused for Cresceus.

ROSE CROIX 2:11½ will be bred to Directum 2:05½.

AZOTE 2:04½ will be wintered at Norwalk, O., by Don Thomas.

WHEN Derby Lass 2:14 reaches Austria she will be bred to Stranger.

SAGWA, that sold in New York last week for $7100, sold as a yearling for $18.

WHO IS IT, 2:12 at three years, 2:10½ at four, leads the geldings of each year.

PERCY figures out that 78 miles have been trotted or paced in 2:04 or better.

W. E. SPIER says that Adbell, the champion yearling, will never be trained again.

ARTEMAS, the oldest living son of Hambletonian, will be thirty years old next January.

RICHARD CROKER will have a stable at the races next year with Jack Curry as teamster.

TOMMY BRITTON was on the cars, bound for Chicago, two hours after he had been sold for $20,000.

It is very probable that David McClary will drive Searchlight 2:03½, in his engagements next season.

DIRECTLY 2:03½, Susie T. 2:09½, Pasonte 2:13 and Bertie R. 2:12½ are new additions to J. H. Shultz' Parkville Farm.

MYRON McHENRY repurchased Sister Alice after she had been sold at auction, and Mac will take her back home with him.

THE two year old colt The Montana, by Prodigal, that sold for $2100 in last week's sale, is a brother to Laurels 2:15½.

IN Anaconda 2:03½, Klatawah 2:05½ and Direct 2:05½, James Butler has the three fastest horses one man ever owned.

HENRY TITER thinks Admiral Dewey, the yearling by Bingen, dam Nancy Hanks, could trot a quarter now in 35 seconds.

MYRON McHENRY offered the purchaser of Sister Alice a profit and the daughter of Baron Wilkes goes back to Freeport, Ill.

BONNATELLA, who sold for $4500 under the hammer, could have been disposed of for $10,000 during the Readville Grand Circuit meeting.

THE fastest five-heat trotting race is said to be that won by The Abbot at Lexington this year, time 2:07½, 2:09, 2:07½, 2:08½, 2:10½. Bingen won the first two heats.

IN the late Fasig-Tipton sale C. W. Williams sold 44 Allertons, their ages running from weanlings to five year olds. The average price for the entire lot was exactly $600 each.

NEARLY every horse in the Maplewood Farm stable has been sick. Who Is It 2:10½ and Kingmond 2:09 were given up by everybody except the stable doctor and Trainer Marsh.

THE Hamilton (Ont.) Driving and Athletic Association, limited, claims the third week in June for its spring meeting in 1900. The association intends to open two $1000 stakes and four $4500 stakes.

THE Axells were in evidence last week. Axmere was sold for $4000, Axrella, a green one, for $3600, and Elmore 2:08½ for $4750. One of Elmore's foals was sold for $3010 and another for $1150.

J. MALCOLM FORBES has priced Bingen to the Russians at $50,000. Were it not for the risk in shipping across the water, this country would surely lose one of its greatest young sires, and may as it is.

MR. A. E. LORD, who paid $20,000 for Tommy Britton 2:08, is a very enthusiastic road rider, and with the gray gelding Lord Olds, by Pilot Medium, he can give any horse in Chicago an interesting race.

J. P. ADAMS, who was recently elected president of the Master Horseholders' National Protective Association, is the track shoer at the Cleveland Driving Park, and one of the most expert shoers of harness horses living.

MILLER & SIBLEY have added to the broodmare band of Prospect Hill Farm the black mare Directorine 2:32, dam of Ferron 2:22½. She is by Director, dam by Mambrino Patchen, second dam, the dam of Black Cloud 2:17½.

THE giving of cod liver oil to horses is not entirely a new practice. Trainer James Golden, of Boston, administered it to Ralph Wilkes 2:06½ when he raced him, to check the wasting of tissue resulting from the horse's extreme nervousness at times.

AT Lexington, two weeks ago, a two year old colt by Temple Bar, dam by Red Wilkes, showed a mile in 2:30 after sixty days of training. He made the twenty-fourth two year old to show a mile in 2:30 or better over the Lexington track this year.

THE famous trotting mare, Mand S., will die without leaving a successor. Flora Temple, Lady Thorn, Lucy, Goldsmith Maid, Hattie Woodard, Trinket, Nancy Hanks, Alix, Pixley and other famous trotting mares proved to be good brood mares after retiring.

GEORGE STARR, practical trainer for William Simpson's Empire City Stud, spent several weeks at the farm this fall and selected a bunch of young horses which he will train and race next season. He returned to Terre Haute with 14 head, mostly the get of Hummer.

JAMES DWAIN is wintering at the Salinas race track for Judge Vanderhurst a three year old pacing filly by Diablo, a yearling gelding (trotter) by Dictatus and a weanling filly by Alta Rio (full brother to Chehalis), the son of old Altamont. The Dictatus youngster is the star of the lot.

MAY OVERTON has closed a deal with the Fasig-Tipton Company of New York by which the latter become the owners of Bow Bells 2:19½ and Rosy Morn, dam of Boreal 2:15½, at a price said to be close to $25,000. Mr. Overton still has a son and a daughter of Bow Bells, both out of Rosy Morn.

SAM MONTGOMERY is driving a handsome team of Waldstein colts, of which he is pardonably proud. One is a two year old and the other a three year old. The two year old was driven a quarter in 39½ by Sam Hoy and the three year old has been driven a half in 1:11.—Woodland Democrat.

WHILE the bidding was in progress on Pasonte at the Fasig-Tipton sale last Monday, the mare did a high-kicking act. "You must not mind that, gentlemen," said the ready auctioneer; "she is only kicking against the price." Despite the recalcitration of the daughter of Palo Alto, Mr. John H. Shultz paid $2500 for her.

IT is at present Mr. Richard Crocker's intention to use Kentucky Union 2:07½, on the Speedway when the weather suits this winter, and next spring Jack Curry will take her in hand and fit her for the Grand Circuit campaign in the 2:08 and free for all classes. Curry is confident that the mare can lower her record and expects her to get a mark of 2:05 next year.

"COLUMBUS," of the Western Horseman, is the philosopher and epigrammatist among turf scribes. One thing he says, in which he excites a fellow feeling in numerous bosoms: "The writer has been compelled to revise his code of ethics. Hereafter we cannot furnish a half column puff for a five-cent cigar or a two-cent postage stamp. There is a limit to that style of friendship."

"THE SEARCHLIGHT" is open. That's the name of Thos. B. Murphy's new horse shoeing shop recently opened at 22 Golden Gate Avenue, where he has been busy ever since. If you want a set of shoes put on your roadster and put on right, take him to Murphy. Keating, McClary, McHenry, Dickerson and all the best drivers on the Grand Circuit say that Murphy knows how.

MUSTER HILL FARM, New Braintree, Mass., is the home of the dams of 2:10 performers that have been conspicuous on the turf the past season, namely, Miss Roy, dam of Dr. Leek 2:09½, and Lady Homer, the dam of Lecco 2:09½. Both are now comparatively young mares, which, judging by their produce on the farm by Autograph 2:15½, are destined to be further heard from in the future.

THE half-tone illustration of Joe Patchen 2:01½, published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of November 18th, is the very best of that gallant race horse that the writer has ever seen. Conditions are usually favorable for outdoor photography in California, and the artist that took a "snap shot" of Joe and his driver chose a most auspicious moment.—"Columbus" in Western Horseman.

W. E. BILLUPS, Milton, Ia., who paid $1000 for the eleven year old New Hampshire bred bay stallion Whirlwind Mc. 2:17½, by Glencoe Wilkes, will place him at the head of his stud at the Billups Stock Farm. For several seasons Mr. Billups has had Baron Dillon at the head of his establishment and he expects that Whirlwind Mc. will make an admirable cross with Baron Dillon fillies.

FRANK G. SMITH, the Buffalo starting judge, comment on the report that Bumps was timed a quarter in 0:22½ on the Speedway, remarks: "I would like to borrow the watch that timed Bumps that fast quarter long enough to sell a pacer or two." A quarter in 0:23½ for a pacer is not incredible but, as Mr. Smith remarks, the timing of fractions of a mile on the Speedway is not, like Caesar's wife, above suspicion.

Mrs. SEAGER (formerly Mrs. Daniel McPhee), of Vienna, Austria, is probably the most famous horsewoman in all Europe, she having purchased and exported such good ones as Col. Kuser 2:11½, Bravado 2:10½, Arline 2:14½, Dirigo 2:18½, Earl Baltic 2:17, Miss Sidney 2:14, Minnie Birchwood 2:13½, Egwood 2:14½, Allen Kenney 2:24½ and others. That she knows the value of a horse is shown by her private offers of $4500 for the trotting mare Phrase 2:12½, that was finally sold at auction for $4750.

AT the Two Minute Villa Star Pointer occupies with Guy Wilkes one of the most unique stables in the world, says the Cleveland Leader. Besides the other advantages at the farm which an unlimited expenditure of money can afford, the two great stallions have the special distinction of having afforded them an artificial pasture for the winter. Grass is grown as in a hot house. Although Star Pointer will remain in the stud until next season, Hon. W. J. White announces that he expects to have the great pacer in condition to go on the track in the summer. Mr. White announced some time ago that he intended to take the horse to New York and use him on the speedway as a road horse, but since then nothing has been said of that plan. It is doubtful whether it will be attempted, although Pointer is hardly the class of horse for road work. This season Pointer will spend in the stud, and his future will depend largely on his condition after his term is over. There is a possibility that he may again appear on the track.

TWELVE carloads of Kansas bred mules are now on their way to South Africa to replace the animals that recently showed the English army some new and interesting features of warfare.

W. R. JANVIER has sold to Arthur König the choice broodmare Monoa, by Piedmont 2:17½, out of May Belle dam of Maralia 2:24½, by Electioneer; second dam Mayflyer 2:30½, dam of the four year old high-wheel champion Manzanita 2:15 and the two year old champion Wild Flower 2:21; and eight producing daughters by St. Clair. Monoa has a very fine colt by her side by Potential, and is bred back to him. Mr. König will ship Monoa and her colt to Kaplanhof Stock Farm, Linz Austria, the home of Stranger sire of Colonel Kuser, the champion two mile trotter of the world.

SUPERINTENDENT F. W. COVEY has returned from New York and writes us that the six trotting bred yearlings in the Palo Alto consignment brought an average of $797.50 each. They were by Advertiser, Adbell, Azmoor and Mendocino. The prices obtained for most of the trotting bred horses from Palo Alto were published last week in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. In addition to those given, however, the following were sold: Princess Laura by Dexter Prince—Lauri C. 2:29½ by Electioneer $725; Altoma by Alivo 2:18½—Sonoma by Electioneer $425; Violeta by Dexter Prince—Violet by Electioneer $250; Moraic by Dexter Prince—Madeline by Electioneer $235.

CHAS. E. CONRADE, Secretary of the Columbus Driving Club, says the club made money on its meetings last year and adds: "We will give a meeting next year in the Grand Circuit, but have not decided whether we will open any early closing events. I think we will, and they will be about the same as last year. 2:12, 2:17 and 2:24 classes for trotters, and 2:14, 2:19 and 2:23 for pacars, for $2000 or $3000 each. We will also give a fall meeting to follow Lexington—a four day meeting, I think. At present I am under the impression that all races will be three in five, but we may add a few two in three heat events for the faster classes, but will not give as big purses for them. It is quite probable that hoppel will not be barred, although I cannot now say to a certainty.

R. J. BEATTY, of Washington, Pa., bought one of the highest-bred fillies living at the New York sale last week. It is Monelle, a yearling by Allerton 2:09½, out of Spo Glass by Allendorf 2:19½, etc., second dam Crystal, dam of Cut Glas 2:12½, etc., third dam Willie Wilkes, dam of Rachel 2:08½, etc., fourth dam the famous Sally Southworth and fifth dam Puss Prall, whose standard performers are producing sons and daughters number ten. Two other Allertons also went into Western Pennsylvania, D. E. McClelland, of Clarion, having bought the yearling colt Mihert by Allerton, while D. Moore, of Pittsburg, purchased the yearling filly Marinette by Allerton dam by Wilkes Bo second dam by Alcantara.

DAISY WOOD 2:16½, the black mare by Silkwood the Walter Maben brought up from Los Angeles in 1897 so drove to her mark at Oakland in August that year, was sold at the Fasig-Tipton New York sale for $300. Sammie Gamble took this mare to the Cleveland sale last spring for California parties and purchased her himself rather than see her go at a low price. She was taken to New York by W. B. Fasig, who tried to drive her on the speedway, but after trying for some time, wrote to Mr. Gamble that she would not trot, saying that she would stand on her hind legs whenever she was asked to brush at speed. Daisy Wood had habit of doing that out here when Maben raced her, but was thought she had gotten over that and would act well of the road. She is a handsome mare and has the speed to trot a mile better than her record by several seconds. But for her bad habit of refusing to score would be a good race mare as she is game.

REGARDING common American horses imported into Germany, the Hamburger Nachrichten, in a recent article says: "Importations from America have caused the horse raisers of Holstein to suffer much of late. A stock company has just been formed in Berlin for the express purpose of importing horses from the United States. The American horse has succeeded in breeding a horse which compares very favorably in every way with the Holstein animal, especially in those points so highly prized in a work horse, namely broad hips and large build generally. The best markets for Holstein horses have always been the provinces of Saxony, Thuringia and Brunswick. The demand is created by the large sugar factories. This market has been decreasing late owing to American horses being purchased in Berlin. A few days ago this Berlin company shipped a drove of 15 through Hamburg en route for Milan, Italy, where they are to be used on the tramways. Almost every week a large freight train filled with American horses leaves the Berlin Bahnhof for various parts of Germany. In spite of expensive freight and a tariff of $7 per head, the Americans have built up a very respectable competition in the German market."

"RAYMOND," who was nearly always level-headed in "Thoughts and Fads," in the Horse World, very pertinent remarks in the last issue of that excellent publication: "The trotting-bred horse was more prominent in the horse show held in New York last week than in any of the previous shows held there. As a typical race horse at the trotting gait, as a roadster as a carriage horse, as a coach horse, a high stepper in front of cart, drag or brake, he seems equally at home. The highest class high stepper shown was probably the Philadelphia trotting bred stallion, Red Clot and it can be said with truth that his closest rivals were a bred in trotting lines. The several fields in which the trotting-bred horses figured during the show led an English horseman who attended the show to say: 'The more I see the trotting horse the better I like the breed. The best of the trotters are pretty near the perfection of symmetry, heauty and grace and they are the most useful and versatile breed of horses ever known to man. Here we saw one of them out hackney the hackneys at the high stepping business in heavy harness, only a few minutes ago, and now have other representatives of the same family doing their turn in faultless style as gentlemen's roadsters of the Kentucky set up at Speedway Park.' We may try as we will to dodge the fact, but it is very apparent to observers that the American trotting-bred harness horse we have the versatile horse the world has known."

R. T. O'Hanlon Passes Away.

Death has removed another of the pioneer horsemen of California. Robert T. O'Hanlon, one of the best known of the earlier breeders of thoroughbreds in this State, died at his home in San Jose after a long illness on Tuesday of last week.

During his career of forty eight years in Santa Clara county "Bob" O'Hanlon, as he was familiarly known, was always popular on account of his active participation in public enterprises in his younger and active years.

Though advanced in years and feeble physically his mind was active to the last. His ancestors were noted for being long lived. His mother, who was Eliza Bird of South Carolina, died at the advanced age of 80 years. His father Terrance O'Hanlon, was also a native of South Carolina, and was engaged as architect in building the capitol of that State when killed by a fall.

The deceased was born in South Carolina, November 30, 1823, and was therefore within a few days of being 77 years of age. Twenty-six years of the thirty-eight that he had lived continuously in San Jose he served as station agent for the Southern Pacific Company at the Fourth street depot. The widow and seven children survive him. The children are John R. O'Hanlon of Los Angeles, Miss Fannie O'Hanlon of San Jose, Mrs. Maggie Whipple of San Francisco, Mrs. Elizabeth Birch of St. Louis, Mrs. Clara Holloway, Miss Lila O'Hanlon and Allen O'Hanlon of San Jose.

During the latter "sixties" and early "seventies" Mr. O'Hanlon's blue and white colors were familiar at the State Fair and other race meetings in California and his love of a good horse was exceeded by no man. Among the well known horses owned and raced by him were Maria Hall, Al Bascom, Cricket and Alpha, the celebrated mare by imported Hercules that won the memorable five heat race at Sacramento in 1874, defeating Osceola, Joe Daniels and Nell Flaherty, Alpha winning the first, fourth and fifth heats, and Joe Daniels the other two. Those were the days when runners were required to go heat races and it took stout blood to win. Alpha's dam was Waxy by Lexington who was also the dam of Waxana the dam of the celebrated Sunol 2:08 1/2 that electrified the trotting world in 1891.

Mr. O'Hanlon was buried at San Jose on Thursday, November 30th, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity of which he was an honored member. His death will be regretted by all who knew him.

California Youngsters.

The most extensive string quartered at the Gravesend track is that trained by G. B. Morris. The youngsters are California bred, and like others of the same State that are wintering in this vicinity, are a conspicuously good looking lot. Though several of them have been troubled with a light form of influenza they are now in fine shape, and there is nothing to hinder them from racing up to their looks and breeding.

An inspection of the lot showed the string to consist of the following: Bay colt by Star Ruby—Torney; chestnut colt by Star Ruby—Bardetta, bay filly by Salvador—Miss Woodford, bay colt by Star Ruby—Nonage, brown colt by Sir Modred—Queen Bess, hay colt by Candlemas—School Girl, Pupil's dream; chestnut filly by Watercress—Rosette, chestnut filly by Salvador—Briar Bush, brown colt by Candlemas—Bonella, chestnut colt by Order—Olive, chestnut colt by Golden Garter—imp. Scotch Fur, bay colt by Sir Modred—Glendora, a bay colt by Star Ruby—Lucania, and a hay colt and a brown colt by Fitzsimon.

The Star Ruby—Bardetta colt is a nicely finished chap and looks a racer all over. The Salvador—Miss Woodford filly is a lengthy, well furnished miss and by far the best looking filly the great mare has ever thrown. The Candlemas—School Girl colt is all right, and there is more of him than there was of his half-brother, Popil, at the same age. The Star Ruby—Lucania colt is a fine individual, and surely ought to race a bit.—N. Y. Telegraph.

A High Jumper at Woodland.

William Bemmerly bought an unbroken horse at the Chiles sale last Thursday. W. P. Craig called in a colored man named Holmes with the intention of breaking the animal. While they were attempting to hridge the horse he cleared the corral fence with a running start of a few feet. The horse was again corralled and a second attempt made to hridge him. This time he was hammed in close to the fence, but standing flat-footed and without the advantage of a start the animal again cleared the fence, a fence of about seven feet and three inches.—Woodland Democrat.

Palo Alto Thoroughbreds

There were forty-three of the thoroughbreds from Palo Alto's closing out consignment sold at the New York auction November 27th. The stallion Flambeau went for $500 and there was no bid for Racine. Gorgo, the fourteen year old broodmare by Isonomy, out of imp. Flirt, brought the top price of the sale, $4000. The prices obtained for the horses sold were as follows:

To-Day's Handicap

The following are the weights and conditions of the handicap at Tanforan to-day:

The Spring Valley Stakes—A handicap sweepstakes for three year olds (foals of 1896). Winners after publication of weights to carry five pounds penalty. Acceptance to be made through the entry box, at the usual time of closing, the day preceding the race. Mile and a quarter.

THE stewards of the California Jockey Club met Tuesday evening and passed upon several cases. The former action of the stewards in the ruling made against "Jack" Ward and trainer "Dick" Williams was sustained. This disposes of the case finally. F. J. O'Rourke, ruled off the turf, was granted the privilege of selling his horse The Fretter, the sale to be approved by the stewards. O'Rourke was not reinstated. J. E. Garrison and "Moose" Taylor were heard and their cases passed without action. The ruling against Jockey Cohurn was reaffirmed. Jockey Gopin was told that his case had been finally disposed of and would not be again taken up. The suspension against W. Narvaez was made indefinite. Jockey Buchanan was reinstated.

RICHARD FITZGERALD at a judicial sale December 4th, purchased the Hawthorne Race Track property at Chicago for $27,500. The property was sold in the foreclosure proceeding of Dewitt H. Curtis and George H. Kuhl against the Chicago Racing Association. Fitzgerald is President of the Chicago Racing Association, which operated the track last summer, and it is supposed this sale signifies the settling up of the litigation which has been connected with the track for several years.

WOODABD and Shanklin sold at auction at Lexington, November 27th, eighty-six head of thoroughbred yearlings for an average of $167 per head. They were consigned by McGrathians, Fleetwood and other good farms, and the attendance was large, giving apparently no excuse for the poor prices.

THE American Breeders Protective Association was much in evidence at the recent thoroughbred sales in Kentucky and bought up a large number of low priced broodmares, which they will dispose of in the usual manner, selling them where they are not known and refusing to give pedigrees with them.

THE RED BRONCHO MARE'S DEATH.

OF COURSE, you have all seen that old circus fake of the man running against a bronco on the quarter-mile hippodrome track," said a man recently returned from Mexico, to a New York Sun man. "I want to tell you that less than a month ago I saw a race of a man on foot against a wild horse, where the man won, and the race was on the dead level, too. It was down in Mexico on the edge of the Yaqui country, where they are just now pulling off their semi-annual bargain counter insurrection. I was down there looking after the interests of some people who had money in the Yaqui placers and I wandered over to the northwest to the edge of the Seri Indian country, where I happened to see the man who could beat a running horse.

"The Seri country is about fifty miles northwest of Hermosillo, the capital of the State of Sonora. The Seris are probably the most peculiar Indians in the Western Hemisphere. They do not seem to be related by language, customs or physical make up to any other known tribe. They are a race of big, black giants for the most part, some of them measuring six feet seven, and nearly all of them one or two inches over six feet. The women will average taller than white men, so that the tribe as a whole is a formidable proposition. They have the pleasant habit of killing off all weakling children, as well as the members of the tribe who are too old and feeble to shift for themselves, and the country they live in is so inhospitable that the tribe is a fine type of the survival of the fittest. In color and features they are more like negroes than Indians, and some of their rites and superstitions seem to have a distinctly African tinge. It is a capital offense for one of them to marry outside the tribe, and the principal tenet of their religion, according to the neighboring Mexicans, is to kill everyone they meet who is not of their own blood.

"All this doesn't hear on the horse race particularly, but it will give you some idea of the sort of people the Seris are, and lend a color of probability to an otherwise rather strong story. I kept hearing all sorts of pipe stories of the Seris as soon as we got anywhere near their country. The Mexicans are afraid of them, and avoid them with almost fabulous powers of endurance and desert cunning. We were told that a Seri could trail a man across country by starlight, and that they never used horses except to kill and eat, and that they could run down a deer on foot. The deer story was repeated by everybody, but I never met a man who pretended to have actually seen it, till we stopped at the Coste Rice Ranch, owned by old Pesqual Encinas, right on the edge of the Seri country. Encinas is the Daniel Boone of Mexico, and the man who solved the Seri problem for Sonora. He got a grant of land from the government and settled down right in Seri territory, surrounded himself with a small army of vaqueros and Papego Indians, armed retainers, and fought the Seris to a standstill. Now they are thoroughly afraid of him, and never kill his stock if they can find any other brand on the range, and never shoot his vaqueros from ambush with their poisoned arrows unless they happen to have some personal score to settle. As the old man and his followers have planted some 300 Seris in that part of the country it may be inferred that there are still some scores of that sort outstanding.

"Old Encinas is very fond of talking over his coffee and cigarettes after dinner under the brick floored veranda of the ranch house and he assured me he had several times seen Seris run down deer on foot. His explanation was that they trail almost as well as dogs, running by eye, of course, instead of by nose, and that they can get a rope and keep a deer's trail through the brush no matter what sort of ground he crosses. One of them will start out and scare up a deer in the mesquite and keep after it at a swift wolf trot all day if necessary, never giving it a chance to stop for food or water. In the course of a day he will run it off its feet and kill it with a knife.

"The first time," said the old man, "that I ever saw a deer run down in that way was soon after I got well settled here. The Seris were nominally at peace with us for the time and I had a lot of them working for me, as I have off and on all the time. One afternoon one of them came to me and asked to get off to go hunting. It was well on in the afternoon then, and I said to him, 'Valgal you do not want to hunt. You want to get drunk on Antonio Meguilla's mescale and not go to work to-morrow.' But he sulked around and said I wanted to starve his sorrowing family, and that there were deer out in the mesquite yearning to be killed. So I told him to go, knowing well enough he would go anyhow and probably take the whole lot of his fellows along with him if he were crossed. I did not think anything more about him until after sunset, when he came up just as we were stopping work for the day. I said to him, 'Well, you have had a good sleep in the brush. I hope you are satisfied.' Said he, 'Yes, I did have a good sleep, and I dreamed that I killed a deer. If the señor will look over there he will see my son bringing him in.' I looked and there, sure enough, was a boy staggering in with a doe on his back with her throat freshly cut. The Seri had nothing with him but a knife and I examined the doe all over, and there was not a mark on her except the slit in her throat. I noticed that all four of her hoofs were cut off, and the Papegos, noticing this, said, 'Yes, it is true that he ran her down. A deer always casts its hoofs when run to death by a man.' I find that that belief holds good among all the Indians, but I have since noticed that in summer time, when the ground is very hot and the deer are fat and heavy, the same thing often happens if you run them down with horses.'

"That was Encinas' story of the Seri running power, but the next day I happened to get an exhibition of it myself that satisfied me even better. Just before we were going to bed the major domo came up and reported that the verba Colorado had come into the troughs. It seems the verba Colorado was a little red mare, the incarnation of a devil in the wild range horse. She had a reputation among all the 3000 head of stock on the ranch, having been a maverick so long that when she was finally caught up and branded she was too wild to be of any use for either work or breeding. She had nearly killed an Indian and a Mexican who had undertaken to break her, and had been turned loose again. She never came into the ranch except in the driest weather, when all the outlying water holes had gone dry, and she was forced to steal in at night for a drink from the big tanks in the corral. It had passed into a saying on the Costa Rica and other ranches around, when a particularly bad spell of drought occurred, that it was had enough to bring the red mare home.

"Old Encinas told the foreman to keep the verbe penned up for the night, and then chuckling, rubbed his dry hands and said we would have some sport in the morning. Then he sent a peon off to the Seri rancharie to see if Pablo was there. While the messenger was gone he explained to me that Pablo was one of the most noted runners of the tribe, and as the red mare was fit for nothing but killing anyhow, he was going to match her in a sprint race with the Indian.

"When Pablo came up, it struck me that if any man could run down a bronco horse, he probably was the one. He was six feet four, and weighed about 180, all bone and whipcord. He was black as a lead idol, and was nearly naked as the law allowed. He was barefooted, too, but the old don explained to me that none of the Seris ever wore anything on his feet, which was the way their trail was always distinguished from the Papego's. Encinas explained to Pablo that he was going to turn the red mare loose in the morning, and that if Pablo could give her ten feet start and catch her in 300 veras, approximately 300 yards, he could have her.

"Next morning everybody who could spare the time assembled at the corral. The wild mare was inside circling uneasily and sniffing at every corner for an outlet. Encinas drew a line ten paces from the corral gate and told Pablo he must let the mare get over that before he started for her. Then a vaquero was sent inside to get the bronco started, and the bars were let down.

"Pablo was waiting just at the opening, quilter of any adornment except a breech clout and a big butcher knife strapped to his hip. It would be straining the term to call him a bronze Adonis or Apollo or any other old Greek deity, for he wasn't. But such another human greyhound I have never seen. Standing six feet four and leaning as Pheroah's kine, he hardly gave promise of the power that was really in him. Dark as a negro, but with long straight hair falling almost to his shoulders, and his white teeth gleaming as he occasionally moistened his lips, he had a sinister look like one of the Ethiopian stranglers out of the Arabian Nights. His powerful neck and great race horse chest were his most striking features and if it had not been for those and his broad hips, the wasp-like waist and sunken abdomen would have made him look almost delicate.

"As the vaquero rode into the corral the bronco mare started for the open gate. She shied from the little crowd outside and swept around the inclosure again. Pablo was waiting at the gate, his foot braced against the post, and stooping forward with his hands on his knees, every muscle like a spring coiled up ready to be released.

"The red mare came around again at a gallop, and as the vaquero made a feint at her with his rope she swerved and dashed through the gate like a futurity winner at the wire. Almost the instant she flashed by Pablo was in the dust at her heels, but it was a standing start against a flying one, and by the time he had got into his stride she had increased her lead to fifteen or twenty feet. She headed straight across the wide, dusty clearing like a deer seeking cover, and the Seri at her flank going her jump for jump. It was a race for blood, a case of heat against heat, for the big, black naked figure looked like a wolf more than a man, and bounded free like a wolf at full stretch.

"Half way across the cleaning he had closed up the gap again. Then a long black arm shot out, and in a single spring he had the mare by the tail. With a powerful twist he threw her, and both of them disappeared for a minute in a cloud of dust. As it cleared away we saw the knife flash at her throat, and when we came up Pablo was complacently catching the warm blood in his hand drinking it.

"The distance was measured, a scant 250 yards. No one held a stop watch on the performance, but I believe it would have cut considerable under any existing record."

The Case of the Four-Miler.

Bertie R. 2121, the four mile champion of the world, which was bought by John H. Shults at the recent Fasig-Tipton sale, was driven on the Ocean Boulevard on Thanksgiving Day by John H. Shults Jr., and he is more than delighted at her way of going on the road. There was nothing that could make her extend herself, and she is as sweet of disposition as they are made. It is quite likely that Mr. Shults will be seen on the speedway ere long, and Bertie R. will show what she can do against the cracks up there.

In case the National Trotting Association does not recognize the bar against the mare placed by the French Association at the time she was ringing in that country, when she was the property of Nippon and Heffner, she will be paced through the circuit next season, and she should be a good one in her class. The Board of Review, at its meeting next week, will be asked to make a ruling in the case, as at present there is no rule on the books covering it. It is the first time that a horse suspended or ruled off by foreign associations has ever been brought to or returned to this country.

It will bring up a nice question for the solons of the N. T. A. to discuss, and if they arrive at a conclusion (it is not within the power of the Board to make a rule, but they have power to construe rules) the decision reached in the matter would be carried out and would become a precedent in future.

Foreign associations, as a matter of courtesy, have recognized the suspensions, etc., of the American and National associations, and it is no more than right that the associations of this country should recognize the rulings of the foreign associations. But so far as the case of Bertie R. is concerned, the recognition should extend no further than to the men who used her as a ringer in France. She was afterwards raced in England by an owner who had nothing whatever to do with her French experience, and there is nothing against her in that country. She was raced honestly and squarely in this country before she was taken to France by Heffner, and it would be unjust to penalize the mere, now that she has been returned to this country and is owned by one of the best known and most honorable of breeders and horsemen, who will race her if she is not berred. The Board of Review will have a hard nut to crack.—N. Y. Telegraph.

THE spring meeting of the new Tennessee Breeders' Association has been scheduled for April 28th to May 5th. The Memphis meeting will begin April 5th and end April 27th. Louisville will probably decide on May 7th as the opening day of the meeting at Churchill Downs, to continue fifteen days. The betting ring at Nashville will be thrown open to all comers. The association will only open three or four stakes, but the program will call for an expenditure of about $16,000. Secretary Russwurm has not yet decided how he will use his $1000 appropriated by the Turf Congress to the association, whether to offer it with $1000 added, for two year olds, or divide it by offering two stakes, one for two year olds and one for three year olds.

PIERRE LORILLARD has purchased for the Rancocas stud, the well known American Derby winner, Spokane, by Hyder Ali. The price paid was but $100, but the horse has been a comparative failure in the stud so far.

MR. PIERRE LORILLARD made numerous entries in the stakes of the Coney Island Jockey Club, which recently closed. It is likely that his colors will be frequently seen next season in the East.

THE new Futurity course at Sheepshed Bay is rapidly nearing completion. It should be ready and in good condition for racing in the spring. The new course is six furlongs straightaway.

To Stallion Owners.

The quickest and best method of bringing the merits of your horse to the attention of owners of a high standard and thoroughbred broodmares is to advertise in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. No medium for announcements of this description is in any way equal to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it reaches all the breeders, owners, racing men and sportsmen generally throughout the Pacific Coast.

An Additional Inducement

A special article, together with a tabulated pedigree of the sire advertised during the coming stallion season will be published. This is an advantage to advertisers of stallions that is too obvious to need further comment. Owners of broodmares are now seriously considering the selection of the stallion to breed to, and advertisements that appear early will make a greater impression than if held back until later in the season.

Oakland Bench Show.

The third annual bench show of the California Collie Club commenced on the 7th inst. and will finish to-day. The officers of the club are: President, W. B. Frue, of San Jose; Vice President, M. Coffey, of Sacramento; Secretary-Treasurer, Norman J. Stewart, of Arroyo, Monterey county; Recording Secretary, O. J. Albee, of Lawrence. Bench Show Committee, Chas. R. Harker, O. J. Albee and J. C. Berratt. C. D. Nairn, of Ballston, Oregon, judged all classes excepting pointers and setters, which two classes were judged by J. W. Burrell of San Jose. Dr. A. E. Buzard was veterinarian in charge and the show was under the superintendence of Louis Haaf. Spratt's Pataot heuched; the affable Major Banks representing Spratts with his usual ability and experience. Much of the success of the show is due to untiring efforts of the genial secretary Mr. Norman J. Stewart.

The attendance has been very good, the bench show exhibiting numbering a total of 151 dogs, as follows: Mastiffs 1, Great Danes 4, St. Bernards (rough coats) 19 (smooths) 1, Newfoundland 2, Greyhounds 1, Foxhounds 2, Pointers 3, English Setters 18, Gordon Setters 1, Irish Setters 7, Field Spaniels 2, Cocker Spaniels 30, Collies 36, Bull Terriers 3, Dachsunds 1, Fox Terriers 8, Irish Terriers 3, Bedlington Terriers 2, Italian Greyhounds 1, Japanese Spaniels 1, Blenheim Spaniels 1, Miscellaneous class 4. DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Emil Pfedner has recently purchased a very handsome St. Bernard bitch, Nora, who won first in puppies at the San Francisco bench show last May. Nora was the first Le Prince Jr. puppy to show on this Coast.

H G. Hemmebright, owner of the Powhattan Kennels has brought out from the East a taking fox terrier dog, Cairnsmuir Doctor, which has purchased from G. M. Cernochan, of New York. Doctor is a good sized dog, full of snap, has grand bone and muscles, has a splendid head, black marked on both sides and combines substance and quality to a degree that should prove of marked benefit to the terrier circles of the Coast. Doctor is by Donington, out of Deme Dalbey and is an English bred dog. He made his first and only appearance on the bench in the United States at the recent Danbury show where he won first in limit heating some pretty good dogs in his class.

Field Trial Notes.

In point of entries, attendance, etc., the twenty-first annual field trials of the Eastern Field Trials Club, commencing at Newton, N. C., on November 17th, is reported to have been one of the most successful meetings held in several years. Four stakes were decided, the Members', Derby, All-Age and Subscription. Mr. F. R. Hitchcock and Mr. S. C. Bradley judged the Members' Stake. The judges of the open stakes were N. Wallace, Arthur Merriman and Theodore Sturges. At the annual meeting of the club the following officers were elected: President, P. Lorillard Jr.; Vice-President, Theo. Sturges; Secretary-treasurer, S. C. Bradley; Board of Governors, Dr. J. S. Brown, J. L. Breese, J. L. Baker, S. C. Bradley, George Crocker, Edw. Dexter, H. R. Duryea, Richard V. Fox, F. R. Hitchcock, F. A. Hodgman, P. Lorillard Jr., G. F. Nesbitt, E. H. Ostens, Theo. Repeating Shot Guns Prohibited.

The Marin county board of supervisors on Tuesday last amended that portion of the county game law which applies to the use of repeating shot guns in the pursuit and killing of game within the county. The amendment embraces a prohibition against all magazine repeating shot guns and is designed to avoid any further technical objection to the enforcement of the ordinance. The work of unscrupulous hunters in destroying and slaughtering game with these guns was first called to the attention of sportsmen, who have given the question of game protection their attention, by the BREKEDER AND SPORTSMAN, many instances were cited showing the disastrous effects of their general use, among them the following: On October 5th in San Diego county, on the waters of the Oley reservoir, a private preserve, six hunters
—all men of prominence and wealth—in a few hours killed 1500 ducks, each hunter had in his boat and used two repeating shot guns. On October 21st a party of ten hunters (three of them had participated in the first slaughter) were out on the reservoir and killed 1835 ducks in the same manner. One of the shooters were not very sorry to say, accidentally received a charge of shot in the face during this duck battus. These hunting trips (?) were indulged in weekly as long as the duck supply lasted.

The quail supply of Marin county has suffered to a material extent by the use of repeating shot guns, hence the ordinance interdicting their use.
The limit for the day's bag per individual in Marin county is twenty-five and applies to quail only. In the open season, the man with the portable Gatling can kill as many ducks, doves, etc., as he can get within range of. Another feature connected with their use, is the number of birds wounded and which temporarily escape the hunter only to die miserably afterwards from the effects of a fusillade of shots, most of which were fired when the bird was out of range.

Much has been said in the daily press recently, and perticularly in press dispatches from San Rafael to this city, to the effect that the prohibition of repeating shot guns is not acceptable to a majority of sportsmen. These statements evidently emanate from interested sources, as they are designed to create a feeling in favor of the manufacturers of repeating shot guns. The Marin County Fish and Game Protective Association strongly advocated the adoption of the prohibition as did other sportsmen and gun clubs shooting in Marin county. A petition was submitted to the board of supervisors signed mainly by members of a San Francisco gun club whose preserves are in Sonoma and Suisun counties many of the signers being friends or acquaintances of gentlemen identified with the trade and manufacturers' agents.
This petition was presented by and the question of repeal advocated before the board of supervisors, sitting as a county board of equalization (when the friends of the measure were not present to be heard), by three newspaper representatives, one of them the advertising solicitor of a daily in whose columns had previously appeared a write-up in praise of the repeating shot gun, which we doubt not was paid for at regular rates. It is needless to say that the efforts of the three "advocates" were futile.

We are particularly explicit in giving these details. We desire to call the attention of the editor of Shooting and Fishing to the foregoing, and also that the Marin county law was not "passed in the interests of dealers of high priced guns, and of a few persons who wished to monopolize sport." On the contrary the efforts of the county legislation in question is aimed alike against the wealthy "game hog," the ignorant shooter whose only desire is to kill and keep on killing everything in sight and the unscrupulous market hunter.

In the issue of Shooting and Fishing of November 30th the extract published from the Los Angeles Times is incorrect and misleading in its application of cause and effect.
The board of supervisors of Marin county (several of the members of which body are thorough sportsmen) and the sportsmen of the county are in accord and working together in the interest of game protection. The game in the county, its increase and protection, has a value that is appreciated alike by the sportsman and resident business men.

The Game Shipment Decision.

The opinion of the Supreme Court of California in the case of James Knapp, which came before the court on habeas corpus proceedings was rendered by Justice Temple on the 5th inst. and is as follows:
"This is an application for a discharge from custody made by James Knapp, who was arrested, tried and convicted upon a charge of violating an ordinance of the county of Stanislaus. The ordinance, declares in effect, that it shall be a misdemeanor for any one to hunt, kill or destroy certain game with intent to transport, or to cause the same to be transported, without the county; or to offer the same to any person for the purpose of carrying the same without the county. It also declares that every railroad or transportation company, their agents and servants, who shall transport such game without the county shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

The prisoner was charged with willfully and unlawfully offering for transportation by Wells, Fargo & Co., from the town of Newman, in Stanislaus county, to San Francisco, two wild ducks, which were killed in Stanislaus county.

Serious question has been made as to the power of any Board of Supervisors to add either restraints or regulations to the right to take or kill wild game, to those made by the legislature. We do not find it necessary for the purposes of this case to decide this question. If such further restrictions upon the right to kill game may be made by county boards, such regulations must be reasonable, not oppressive to any class, and must not contravene any established policy of the State. Presumably the two ducks were lawfully taken by James Knapp in Stanislaus county. It is not charged that they were hunted or killed for the purpose of being transported without the county, though such fact, if it existed would not have changed the result. Having taken the game lawfully and at a time when it is lawful for anyone to shoot ducks, the ordinance prohibiting their shipment is an unreasonable interference with the rights of private property, and unnecessary restraint of trade. The statutes of the State in regard to game prohibit the offering for sale of game during the time it is unlawful to kill such game. (Statutes 1897, p. 90). The State regulations upon this particular subject seem complete, and restrict the rights of citizens so far as was necessary to prevent the unlawful killing of game.

It was stated on the argument, substantially, that the ordinance was aimed at "pot hunters." I understand this phrase covers all except sportsmen. Relatively a small part of the community only are sportsmen. A law or ordinance which would discriminate in their favor would not be a proper exercise of the so-called police power. If that be the manifest or admitted purpose of the ordinance it is void, for that reason also. The prisoner is discharged."

This opinion was concurred in by Justices Ven Dyke, Harrison and McFarland. Justice Beatty added the following concurring opinion:

"I concur in the judgment on the first ground discussed by Justice Temple. The people of the State, being the owner of its wild game, it may be conceded that the State Legislature could annex any condition it chose to the privilege of taking it, but a county ordinance forbidding all persons under penalty to transport game lawfully taken to the place where they desire to use or dispose of it is vio-lative of the right of private property, as defined and regulated by general law, and necessarily invalid."

Temporarily the foregoing decision leaves the market hunter—the individual the overruled ordinance was aimed at—to follow the business of killing game and shipping it to market. Similar clauses in ordinances of other counties are, of course, abrogated. In some respects the decision is hailed with delight by many sportsmen as it will deter the adoption of county game laws which are oppressive and prohibitive and aimed at sportsmen generally, particularly shooters who are non-residents, such game laws were cropping up recently with a degree of systematic frequency that was entirely uncalled for.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

W. N. and F. W. Wetmore of Oakland spent Sunday and Monday in the vicinity of the Bridges, the heg was twenty-two rail and fourteen ducks.

Clarence Haight, E. N. Avers and Dr. Lene spent Sunday at the Willow Lodge shooting preserve. Ducks were scarce and a small bag only fell to the guns.

Many hunters were posted on the east bay shore marshes from San Leandro to the Bridges last Sunday. Ducks were plentiful, but they kept out on the bay and but few of them were bagged.

Breach loading, hammerless double barrel shot guns, with or without ejectors are sold on the instalment plan in England. The first firm to introduce the system has built up quite a business.

Jim Maynard, Joe Sweeney and H. Kullman shot at the Cenvasbeck Club preserve on Sunday. Birds were not very plentiful in that section, but, however, a fair combined bag was brought down.

Black brant shooting has been excellent in Tomales bay recently, a bag of forty was made by T. J. Swartz, J. and G.
Christiansen one day this week. Al Wilson, W. R. McFarland and a party will be after them to-day. The best time for shooting the sea brant is on an incoming tide, the hunting party being posted in at least three boats. The birds fly high and it requires a 10 bore gun with an express load to bring them down; it is not advisable to use too large a size of shot as the birds are in full winter plumage, which is thick enough to turn the large shot.

The north wind on Tuesday brought joy to the hearts of the duck hunters. The quackers were very quickly made to vacate their resting place on the broad open waters and seek shelter in the marshes bordering the bay and the tule ponds up the river. Some excellent flight shooting was had by hunters who were out on Tuesday. The stormy weather lasted but a day and the shooting in most localities was over on Wednesday. Birds were plentiful but they were watchful and wary and took flight high and as they liked leaving the waiting hunters in many blinds disappointed and disgusted.

The best bag credited to a shooting party on the Suison marshes last Sunday was made on the Pringle ponds. The hunters were Messrs. Harper, Bryan, Wilson and Hilborn. Nearly 100 ducks were shot, twenty-seven of them being canvashack in excellent condition.

A beautiful specimen of the gunsmith's art was received this week by Clabrough, Golcher & Co., The gun, a high grade L. C. Smith, 12 gauge, crown steel barrels, was made to the order of a prominent local sportsman. The finish and workmanship on this particular gun is a high testimonial to the maker's skill and is of such excellence as to satisfy the most critical.

A jolly party of sportsmen were on the Black Jack shooting ponds on Wednesday morning. Among them were John Lemmer, John Bergez, Lloyd Eaton, A. Ford, Bill and Boh Remfree, the four latter being guests of the club. From the stormy indications on Tuesday evening when the party arrived at the arks, first rate flight shooting was deemed in order for the following morning. The morning shoot did not last long, but before the wind went down and the ducks took to the high skies and open water a combined bag of over sixty ducks; cans, mallard, spoonys and black jacks were shot. President Lemmer secured a very beautiful specimen of a drake cinnamon teal, he also bagged a pair of drake mallards that for plumage and prime condition would be hard to supersede. The Remfree's were not idle in their blind, a fine bag of canvashack was brought back to Antloch by Windy Bill and his brother.

At the Traps.

The blue rock turkey shoot of the Lincoln Gun Club on Thanksgiving Day brought a good attendance of trapshooters and spectators. The weather was all that could be desired for pleasant and exhilarating sport. In the first event H. Kerrison won first choice and Edg. Forster second—after shooting off a tie with Hall. In the second race Clarence Nauman and Fred Feudner divided the first honors. In the third event, a freeze-out race, Nauman and Michaelssen divided the first prize. In the team race, two teams tied, the winners of turkeys on the shoot-off proved to be Nauman, Kerrison and Vernon. The fifth race brought out Edg. Forster as the winning shooter. In a ten bird match Nauman and Forster divided after shooting out a tie. In the handicap race Seaver and Hall had straight scores of fifteen each, the latter shooter taking first choice, and second choice in turkeys was divided by Edg. Foster and A. J. La Mott. The consolation race for non-winners during the day proved a turkey dividend for Smyth with Klevesahl a close second. The turkey winners (or $2 cash in lieu of a bird) were Forster, 3; Nauman, 2½; Kerrison, 2; Vernon, 1; Hall, 1; V. La Mott, 1; Schulz, 1; Michaelssen, Fred Feudner and A. J. La Mott each half a turkey. The three high averages were Forster, 91; Nauman, 90; Seaver, 88.

The scores in the various races were the following:

The Game Law.

The synopsis of the game laws appearing below and published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for several years past has, from time to time been changed or the provisions of new ordinances added thereto by reason of the many and various changes in the county game and fish laws, particularly those of recent date and of application in and around the hay counties.

This synopsis has been frequently copied (in more or less garbled and incomplete form) and quoted by city and interior journals and has also been printed and distributed by hnsi-suace houses. While the information given at the date of issuance was substantially correct, we do not care to be held responsible for the circulation of old matter that is now incorrect in many details. Some complaint has been made in this respect and to avoid misunderstanding in the future it is suggested that for information of this character a reference be made to current numbers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for the latest and most complete data concerning the Game Laws.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. Pheasants, the "aking, killing, selling or having in possession at any time is prohibited; robbing or destruction of the bird in possession is a misdemeanor in the following counties: Butte, Trinity, Marin, Lake, Merced, Riverside, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Kings, Ventura, Santa Clara, Monterey, San Joaquin, Yuba.

A Tribute to Dry Oodfish.

She wrote to her daddy in Portland, Maine, from out in Denver, Col., And she wrote, alas, despondently, that life had commenced to pall; And this was a woeful, woeful case, for she was a six months' bride Who was won and wed in the State of Maine by the side of a bounding tide. And ah, alack, she was writing back that she longed for Portland, Maine, 'Till, oh, her feelings had been that when wrenched she could hardly stand the strain. Though her hubby dear was still sincere, she sighed the livelong day For a good old snuff of the sewers and salt from the breast of Casco Bay. And she wrote she sighed, and she said she cried and her appetite fell off, And she'd grown as thin's a belying pin with a terrible hacking cough; And she sort of hinted that pretty soon she'd start on a reckless scoot And hook for home in Portland, Me., by the very shortest route, But her daddy was a man of sense, and he handles fish wholesale, And he sat and fanned himself with a big broad codfish tail; And he recollected the way he felt when he dwelt in the World Fair whirl. He slapped his head. "By hake," he said, "I know what ails that girl." And he went to a ten-cord pile of cod, and he pulled the biggest out, A jib-shaped critter, broad's a sail, three feet from tail to snout, And he pasted a sheet of postage stamps from snout clear down to tail, Put on a quick delivery stamp and sent the cod by mail. She smelled it a-coming two blocks off on the top of the postman's pack; She rushed to meet him and scared him blind by climbing the poor man's back. But she got the fish, bit out a hunk, ate postage stamps and all, And a happy wife in a happy home lives out in Denver, Col. —Holman F. Day.

Protecting the Trout.

J. P. Morrill writes from Verdi, Nevada, to the Reno State Journal that never before have the numerous dams on the Truckee river been so well equipped with fishways or "ladders" as now. The District Attorney of Washoe county has been active in enforcing this provision of the law, and he will see to it that other officials charged with the protection of fish discharge their duty.

It is a fact that the State of Nevada makes no appropriation for the maintenance of fish hatcheries, and considers itself very fortunate in being so situated that great benefit may be derived from the work done by California. This is virtually the reason why no appropriation has been made.

Yet Nevada feels the absolute necessity of permitting the parent fish to run up stream in order that the California Fish Commission may secure spawn from the fish ("rainbow trout"), which that commission had the honor of introducing into Nevada waters at great expense. In this manner the commission will repair the effects of Nevada's past and present improvidence, and increase the fish supply without any expense whatever to that State.

The case of the claimed-to-be illicit Sacramento river fishermen at Chico came up in Justice Collins' court at that place last Thursday. The arrests were made by W. J. Hale, deputy game and fish warden, and attorney W. D. Cook, of this city, appeared as prosecutor by authority of Attorney General Ford. John P. Babcock, chief deputy of the California Fish Commission, was present to give expert testimony. W. H. Schooler, a prominent Chico attorney, conducted the defense. One of the defendants was dismissed for cause, but the other three, Wm. Batchelor, George Thomas and Jack McGinnia, were held on their own recognizances to appear in the Superior Court. It is claimed that a Butte county jury will never find for conviction.

Point Reyes last Sunday was visited by nearly fifty anglers and hunters. The Paper Mill is not too high and the water is clear but very few fish were caught. The quail hunters had the best results to show. Ducks have not been very plentiful on the marshes yet although out on Tomales hay thousands of them can be seen. Among those at the Point on Sunday were W. R. McFarland, John Butler, John Gallagher, Samuel F. Hughes, George F. Jackson, Fred Surryhne, A. B. Finch, J. Clark, Jas. Watt, Charles Precht, Mr. Walker, E. G. Rodolph, Frank Vernon, Frank Dolliver, the brothers McGregor, I. Daverkosen, F. W. Wentworth, "Andy" and others.

A reel designed to awaken feelings of satisfaction and joy in the heart of the angler is the Shakespeare reel. One of its many excellent features is the automatic guiding device which causes the line to wind up on the spool regularly and evenly when the angler is reeling in. This reel is compactly and elegantly made, german silver being principally used in its construction and will compare favorably with the best makes on the market. Clabrough, Golcher & Co. have them in stock. This reel is used by several local anglers who speak highly of its good qualities.

An attempt was made by an angler on Monday to catch a few of the numerous fish seen jumping in the waters of the Coyote creek near the Bridges. Whether they were salmon grise or steelhead was not ascertained as every effort to lure the fish with spoon, roe, worms, smelt-belly or clams was equally unsuccessful and the angler went his way regretfully but willing to try his luck again trusting in the virtues of another day.

THE FARM.

The Limit in Dairying.

There are some who believe that the limit of the cow's productive capacity has been reached, and that the record-breaking animals can never hope to exceed what they have done already. As a rule those who talk about the limit of the cow's capacity, and think that dairying cannot be further improved along this line, fail to consider what is more important to them, individually. Granting the highest record for milk and cream has been scored, it would still be a fancy of the brain to imagine that the productive capacities of any number of cows have been reached. Where we find one cow that even begins to approach the limit of her capacity we see 50 that have not begun to climb upward. Dairying is thus far from its limit. It cannot approach such a limit until more than a majority of the cows on the dairy farms have been graded up to their highest standard, and the minority show some effects of the improvement.

It is true that we have made great progress in dairying the past 20 years, but too much of this progress is confined to a limited number of people. The vast majority have advanced very little; they are still in the old ruts, and will tell you that a living cannot be made in dairying. It cannot according to their methods; neither can a living be made in any line of work or business to-day with methods employed that were in vogue 25 years ago. Only those who keep up with the times in dairying can hope to keep atop of the heap. It is not always an easy matter even then, for there are many local matters of a discouraging nature to overcome. These worry and irritate and sometimes discourage those of feint heart. But if we continue everlastingly at it, and never yield to discouraging results and circumstances, we must come out in the end, because there are so many others who do succeed. What we need most of all is clear foresight in discovering where it is the screw is loose. It may be in the markets or an unfavorable situation to them; it may be in our methods of feeding, which rob of all profits, and again it may be the low grade of stock with which we began. It is certainly slow and toilsome work to grade up a herd in which scrub stock predominates. It is better to reduce the herd, weeding out some of the poor stock, and put the money you get for them in one or two fine well bred animals. The results will be quicker and surer, and far more substantial. I have seen dairymen trying to breed off a herd give it up disgusted, for in spite of their best and intelligent efforts they could not see that the herd made any perceptible advance. The trouble happened to be in their case that they did not have sufficient new and good blood to neutralize the common blood of the herd. There were ten inferior animals to one that was even partly good. The result was natural. The only solution was either to weed out the poor stock and reduce the herd, or add far more blood and high grade animals. Either course would have accomplished the same results.

Draft Horses.

For 19 years I have been connected with the business of rearing, breeding and sale of draft horses, says O. Thiesler, of Kansas, and from actual experience, I find that the greatest mistake made by the average farmer is careless laxity in selecting sires for breeding purposes. For instance, if a farmer has a reny mare, he is apt to select a high, reny horse with which to pair her. This is a great mistake, for the aim should be to select a sire which will tone down the defects of the dam in the colt and supply those qualities in which the dam is lacking.

While the draft horse question is not an issue here to-day, nor is the thoroughness of draft horse breeding held in the highest esteem, I am assured that there are no more lucrative or encouraging results obtained than those which attend the draft horses and the crossing of the best imported blood with the native mares of America.

Even in the present generally existent depression of prices of nearly all farm products and the very low figures at which all classes of horses are selling, I see from our market reports that in Eastern cities a good draft horse is a ready seller and will bring more money in proportion to the expense of breeding than any other stock in the markets.

My past experience teaches me that a good draft horse can be reared to the age of 4 years and put upon the market for less money than a steer of the same age and of equal condition. At present prices for the draft horse, if properly handled, he will sell very readily in the Eastern markets for $100 to $150, while a good, average price for the steer would be $50 to $60.

In England the farmers' clubs and the agricultural press are giving some attention to the prospective difficulty in securing sufficient farm laborers for the coming year's operations. The calling out of army reserves men and the militia, rendered necessary by the war in South Africa, has occasioned this anxiety.

Compressed Baled Hay for South Africa.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The baled hay that is being shipped from this port for the use of the British army in South Africa and the American army in the Philippines is being compressed by a new process. The hay is put up in bales cylindrical in form, about the size and shape of the old fashioned nail keg, or eighteen inches high and of the same diameter. When baled in this shape the hay is as hard as a board. The bales weigh about 145 pounds.

The hay is "hended out" in pancake form. The hay pancakes, or layers, which make up the bales, are about three-fourths of an inch thick. The most compact bale of hay put up by the old style requires but 160 cubic feet space per ton. This new fangled hay takes up only fifty cubic feet of space per ton.

A singular combination of circumstances is afforded at the heling plant in Brooklyn. The contractor is using Canadian hay, baled in the old square fashion in Canada. The old bales are torn to pieces and fed into the top of the six new compressors. About half the product of the Brooklyn plant goes to South Africa for use in the army which is fighting the Boers, while the other half goes to Manila for use by Lawton and McArthur's cavalry.

The good thing about this new bale is that a mule can carry two 112 pound bales and after he is fed off them for two or three days, there is enough left for a cavalry man to use as a miniature rampart. The hay is packed so tight that a bullet would not go far into it. A mule can carry only one of the 145 pound bales. The greater number of bales shipped to South Africa weigh 112 pounds, the English hundredweight.

Relieving Choked Cattle.

Choking in cattle is usually caused by swallowing a potato, apple, piece of turnip or carrot, or a piece of corn cob. No matter in which part of the gullet it is lodged it causes great distress. The animal coughs, saliva runs from the mouth, eye bulges out, back is arched and floating also takes place. If it is in the upper part of the gullet the animal soon dies from suffocation. If it is in the middle or lower part the animal may live for several days. If it is in the upper part of the gullet give a little oil and then rub the hand up and down the throat to scatter the accumulation. It may be necessary to give a little oil several times, and continue the rubbing as it may take some time to overcome the choking. In case no oil is at hand a similar attempt may be made by pouring down some water. If the obstruction cannot be forced up or down by oiling and rubbing the gullet, use a little probang, which is made of spiral wire covered with leather and which will bend with the neck. There is also a gag to put in the mouth, with a hold in the center through which the probang passes. Oil the probang and let one man take hold of the animal's horns or ears, while another passes the probang through the hole in the gag and back into the gullet. Press gently until the object is felt, then by steady pressure it will pass into the stomach. Too much force should not be used for fear of rupturing the gullet. No unyielding article should be pressed down the gullet as it is almost sure to rupture it. If a probang is not convenient take a piece of rope about three-fourths to one inch in diameter, fray out a little of the end and tie a piece of string around it to form a soft knot, grease this well and it will supply the place of a probang. In cases where the animal cannot be relieved by this treatment cut down on the gullet with a knife, making an incision and removing the material. Clean the wound and bring the edges of the gullet together firmly and sew with silk thread or catgut, letting the ends hang out of the external wound, bring the edges of the skin together, put a bandage around and keep it wet with cold water for twenty-four hours, and it will usually heal. Give the animal soft food for some days, and if a probang was used and the gullet not cut give soft food two or three days.—Dr. D. McIntosh, in Denver Field and Farm.

Every now and then a protest comes up in regard to dehorning but we believe that animals in the feed lot should be dehorned every time. It is the profitable course. A herd crowded together, as is the case in the feed lot, will commit more cruelties and suffer more cruelty a dozen times over by reason of having horns than any that may be caused by the few moments of pain which result from the operation of dehorning.

The fight against sparrows has taken a practical form in the colony of Victoria, Australia. At a recent meeting of interested parties it was recommended that there be paid for sparrows' wings 12 cents per dozen pairs, and 6 cents per dozen for sparrows' eggs. Also that a prize of $10 be given for competition by sparrow clubs, and that poisoned grain be distributed among farmers in the winter season.

Inoculation Against Texas Fever.

For many years Texas fever has been the greatest obstacle in the way of shipping northern pure bred cattle to the southern ranges. Heretofore losses in cattle shipped from the north by this malady have rarely been less than 40 per cent, and frequently 70 per cent, or more. In the nature of the case southern buyers could not pay satisfactory prices and run the risk of loss from Texas fever. To grade up their herds, they would willingly buy all of the surplus blooded stock of the north every year at good prices, if by any means the ravages of this fever could be reduced.

For a number of years Dr. J. W. Conaway, of the Missouri Experiment Station, and Dr. M. Francis of the Texas Experiment Station, with the help of the Missouri Board of Agriculture, have been working on this problem, with the result that a successful treatment has been put into operation. Already over 400 blooded cattle have been inoculated and exposed to Texas fever on the ranches for an entire year, with a loss of less than 8 per cent. During this time a loss of 65 per cent. has been reported in one lot sent without inoculation to an adjoining ranch. The climatic conditions and general treatment were similar in the two cases.

The Missouri Experiment Station is now inoculating about 250 head, representing the Shorthorn, Hereford, Devon and Red Polled breeds. These will be exposed to the fever in the south next summer for a further test of the efficiency of this method of immunizing cattle against this disease. The success of this method has already had the effect of greatly increasing the number of blooded cattle bought in the north by Texas cattlemen, and will add much to the value of all blooded breeding cattle in the north. Though this means a large and important market which has heretofore been practically closed is now opened to the northern breeder.

An illustrated bulletin giving full details of all this work may be had free of charge upon request to the Director of the Experiment Station, Columbia, Mo.

During a combination sale of Aberdeen-Angus cattle at Chicago last week eighty-seven head were disposed of at an average price of $323 each. This beats any previous combination sale of Aberdeen-Angus cattle and the average price beats also that obtained at the great four days' combination Hereford cattle sale at Kansas City, where 288 were sold at an average of $318. A Blackbird bull sold at $1025. The cow Blackbird of Woodland with calf at side sold for $1125. This breaks the record of sales of Aberdeen-Angus cows, the biggest previous sale being $1105.

A commission merchant of Minneapolis was recently mulcted in the amount of $56, fine and costs, for embalming his stock of butter with boric acid. A rigid enforcement of health laws within reach of the majority of cities will go far in the direction of discouraging the sale of "doctored" eatables.

Palace Hotel Supper Room

The greatest remedy in the world for all diseases of the foot of the horse. Best for road horses; best for carriage horses; best for work horses. Cures bad feet keeps good feet sound. Cheapest because it goes farthest and does all that is claimed of it. It was used all the past summer by Tom Murphy, California's great track shoe on the Keating horses that won $25,000 on the Grand Circuit. If you see Murphy ask him about it. Or ask Dr. Boucher of Miss Logan fame; Monroe Salisbury, Chas. Durfee or Pete Williams.

We Get Scores of Letters Like These:

PADUCAH (Ky.), July 23, 1899. HAROLD & Co.—Your Ointment does the work. I have no bad footed horses, but I use it to keep their feet good. My shoer told me yesterday that my horses have the best feet of any in Paducah. With our traveled roads and streets it is very hard to keep their feet sound and growin', but your Ointment does it. R. W. TOLLY.

That's What They All Say.

HAROLD'S HOOF OINTMENT not only cures all diseases of the horse's foot, but keeps good feet absolutely sound.

The Green Un's Gossip.

The California horsemen are to be congratulated upon the fact that the National Trotting Association has appointed Mr. John C. Kirkpatrick of this city a member of the Pacific District Board of Appeals to fill the vacancy in that body caused by the death of the late C. M. Chase. Mr. Kirkpatrick is the manager of the Palace and Grand hotels in this city and an enthusiastic horse owner and road driver, scarcely a day passing but he takes a drive through Golden Gate Park and enjoys a brush through the speedway. No man stands higher in the community than he and he has shown distinguished ability in his very successful management of the vast interests of the Sharon estate on this Coast. A lawyer by education and profession though not engaged in practice, he has a mind that will make him a most valuable member of the Board of Appeals. It was by the unanimous request of the other members of that body, Mr. A. B. Spreckels and Professor E. P. Heald of this city, and the ex-officio member Capt. N. T. Smith Second Vice President of the N. T. A. that Mr. Kirkpatrick was named by the association for this position. Every horse owner, trainer, driver or other person interested in any way in matters that may come before the Board of Appeals will know that Mr. Kirkpatrick's vote will be cast at all times on the side of right and justice and in accordance with the rules laid down by the National Trotting Association for the government of harness racing. Every member of the local board has the confidence of the horsemen of California and the entire Pacific Coast and its personnel could not be improved on.

One of the best judges of a trotting horse in America quietly dropped into town this week and after a day at San Jose, one at Palo Alto and one at Irvington, left for Los Angeles Friday and expects to be back in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in time to eat Christmas dinner with his family. This was Mr. Dan Mahaney, who manages Senator Jones' big stock farm there and in whose charge the great Kingmond 2:09, Who Is It 2:10 1/2 and Idolita 2:12 now are. Mr. Jones' stable was the heaviest winner this year in America and much of the success was due to Mr. Mahaney's excellent judgment. He is one of the most quiet of men, but his eyes are open and his brain at work all the time. He says Who Is It is looking well and ought to trot below his present record next year. Idolita he confidently expects will get the stallion record away from Directum if any horse in America does. Mr. Mahaney was in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Thursday and spoke of his visit to Palo Alto expressing surprise that he could see such a large number of young horses entirely free from unsoundness or blemishes, and said so many sound colts and fillies could not be found on any Eastern farm. He, of course, like all visitors to the farm, was enthusiastic when Mendocino 2:19 1/2 and Monbells were mentioned. Mr. Mahaney visited Martin Carter's farm at Irvington and looked Nutwood Wilkes over. "A great horse in looks and certainly a great producer of speed" was his verdict. He purchased from Mr. Montgomery at San Jose a colt by Nutwood Wilkes, out of a Boodle mare, that is described in another part of this paper. He said he wanted another colt by the sire of Who Is It and he liked this fellow's looks and his breeding. Jack Dinne escorted Mr. Mahaney to Oakland Friday to show him McKinney 2:11 1/4 one of America's greatest young sires. I haven't heard, but I'll bet he did as everybody else does—fell in love with the son of Alcyone.

Captain Thos. B. Merry came into the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN's office last Thursday and I actually had to look twice at him before being certain that it was really

COL. J. C. KIRKPATRICK.

The New Member of the Board of Appeals, National Trotting Association.

"Hidalgo" There is no longer any doubt about it. The Captain is growing younger every day and there are many society belles here in San Francisco who would give half their fortune for his complexion. A shadow came over his face for a moment when the death of his old friend Bob O'Hanlon was mentioned but it brightened up as he recounted some of the events of that pioneer's racing career, and his unimpeachable honesty and integrity. Captain Merry has promised to write for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN a sketch of Mr. O'Hanlon's life, with which he is thoroughly familiar. It will be an interesting addition to the turf history of California.

Frank Covey tells me there was a mistake in all the papers in the total received from the New York sale of the Palo Alto thoroughbreds. It was $19,175 instead of $17,175 as given by the reporters who are invariably poor figurers. Racine was leased to Mr. Samuel Willets a prominent breeder of New Jersey and will be mated with some very choice mares next season. Mr. Covey brought the welcome news that it has been decided that Monbells the last son of the great Beautiful Bells, will never leave the Palo Alto farm. He will be bred to the best of mares, and the produce entered in all the important stakes, and there is not a doubt but he will be one of the greatest of the famous family to which he belongs.

Sam Gamble says he lost about $2000 on his trip East. So many of the horses were sick and so many were undeveloped that they could not attract the big buyers. At Ogden fourteen of the horses were so sick he thought they would never reach New York alive, but he got them through and made his record good of never having lost a horse yet on a transcontinental trip and he has shipped nearly a thousand horses. Our Jack 2:13 1/4 was to have been in the consignment, but he was taken sick while being shipped from Sacramento to Gilroy and could not be taken. He was sent back to Mr. Irving, his owner at Sacramento and is now all right again. Uncle Johnny 2:19 1/4 was very sick on the trip over, but rounded to sufficiently to be sold. He brought $550 and is now owned by the same man who owns Margaret Worth 2:15. His new owner would not take $1500 for him now.

Sam C. Freeman writes the following interesting gossip about a case that came up before the Board of Review at the meeting in New York this month: The Louisville Driving and Fair Association has got into a mix-up with the National Trotting Association. Almost the last act of the Board of Review before its adjournment recently was to fine and suspend the Louisville Association. The case is likely to bring on a very pretty fight, as I am told that the officials at Louisville will make a strong defense.

All the trouble was caused in the alleged laying up of heats in the Douglas Stake of 1898. Willis O'Foote, who drove John Nolan, was fined $500 by the judges; George Sanderson, who drove Mattie Patterson, $100, and Fred Keyes, driving Caracalla, $59. Afterward the fines were remitted by the Louisville Association, which is declared by the N. T. A. to be contrary to the rules.

The Board, in deliberating the case, declared that the Louisville Association had no authority to remit the fines, and at its meeting in Chicago last May notified Louisville to order the suspension of the three drivers for non-payment of the fines. Louisville refused to order the suspension and is therefore, under the hand of the severe displeasure of the Board of Review.

Secretary Frank P. Kinney will make a strong fight against the ruling of the Board. It is said that the fines against the three drivers were remitted by the association for the reason that the Secretary saw heats being laid up at the Lexington meeting, directly following that at Louisville, and no fines were imposed. He concluded that it would not be just exactly square for his association to impose the fines. Whether that sort of reasoning will hold or not, I am informed that it will be one of the lines of defense.

THE STANFORD STAKES.

News From Los Angeles

ANOTHER GOOD ONE.

Board of Review Rules Against the Eligibility of Direct Heir.

At the State Fair meeting last September, the Stanford Stake, a stake for foals of 1896, was trotted with the following result:

Dr. Frasse's Sister, b f by Iran Alto.....(Buncb)	1	1	1
Direct Heir, b c by Direct.....(Maben)	2	2	2
Elevator, b f by Don Marvin.....(Weldon)	3	3	3
Lee Roy, b c by Fay Wilkes.....(Donaban)	4	4	4
Tia Juna, b f by Gossiper.....(Abies)	5	5	5

Time—2:25½, 2:26, 2:28½.

Dr. Frasse's Sister, the winner of the race, trotted in hoppers, and a protest was thereupon entered on the ground that the rules of the National Trotting Association prohibited the use of this device, except where especially excepted in the advertised conditions of the race. The State Agricultural Society's ruling on this protest was that the rules in force May 1, 1897, when the stake was closed and entries made, should govern the race, and as the hopple rule had not been adopted at that time it could have no hearing on the race. Direct Heir, owned by Mrs. A. C. Sevarance of Los Angeles, was also protested. Dr. Weldon, the owner and driver of the brown filly Elevator, protesting on the ground that Direct Heir had been declared out of the race and payments forfeited as could be shown by letters and other data in the hands of the Secretary. On this protest the State Agricultural Society ruled that Direct Heir could start, accepting Mrs. Sevarance's statement that the declaring out of Direct Heir was a clerical error made by her stenographer and that another colt than Direct Heir was the one on which she had stopped payment.

The race was trotted and the record placed on the books as above. Dr. Weldon appealed from the decision of the association to the Pacific District Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association, and that body, owing to the fact that the President of the State Board of Agriculture is also a member of the Board of Appeals, referred the case to the Board of Review, which meets in New York, December 5th.

On the question of hoppers the Board of Review decided with the State Board, holding that the conditions of the race at the time the stake closed should govern, which is eminently correct and proper.

The evidence on the matter of Direct Heir's eligibility showed that when the third payment was due on the entries to the stake Mrs. Sevarance had written a letter in which she stated that she wished to pay on Directus, but that she wished Direct Heir dropped from the stake. The Board of Review decided that she should be held to the terms of her letter, and that although a mistake was made the person who made it should bear the consequences rather than third parties who probably continued payments in the faith that Direct Heir had been dropped from the race.

This decision is also undoubtedly correct and fair, and the proposition that an owner should not be held liable for the errors of his or her agent can not be entertained for a moment by governing bodies in racing matters no more than it can be by courts of law. Any one who will give the matter a moment's thought will see that if the rule were otherwise than laid down by the Board of Review it would lead to more trouble than could be attended to. Where one honest person like the owner of Direct Heir was by this means protected from the mistake of an employe, dozens of dishonest individuals would take advantage of the law and profit by "mistakes" that were made intentionally. The Board of Review of the National Trotting Association has ruled correctly on both these points.

One peculiar result of the decision will be that the owner of Dr. Frasse's Sister will be awarded first money and none of the others will get anything. In the first heat the mare distanced all the others, but there is a rule which states that a protested horse cannot distance the other horses in a heat unless the protest is overruled. The protest against Dr. Frasse's Sister is overruled and therefore all the others will stand as the record shows—behind the flag in the first heat. The conditions of the stake stated that "a horse distancing the field shall be entitled to first money only," which in this case was $712.50. Dr. Weldon wins his protest but gets no part of the purse.

Resolution By Fair Managers.

The following resolution was adopted by the American Association of Fair Managers at their annual meeting in Chicago November 21, 1899.

"Resolved, That the sense of this meeting is that the associations here represented will formulate their speed programs observing the following rules:

"That all races shall be mile heats, three in five, limited to five heats; that the distance shall be twenty-five yards where eight or less number of horses start, and one hundred yards for any greater number of horses; that all moneys be divided under the rule of dividing money on the basis of 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. of purse.

EVERETT L. SMITH, "Percy" of the New York Trotter and Pacer, has developed into the best news gatherer in the business. Few owners or their horses escape his notice and he has something interesting to say about all of them.

UNIVERSITY, LOS ANGELES CO., Dec. 5, 1899.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.—There are now close on to one hundred horses at the Los Angeles track. Ed. Connelly arrived to-day from Colorado Springs with eleven head of trotters and pacers, among them Kate Medium 2:10½, Geo. C. 2:23½, Jania T. 2:14 and California, the young chestnut stallion that Peta Williams sold over there last spring. He is by Silver Bow, and though he has no record ought to be a good one in the green classes, as he showed miles in 2:20 very handily last spring while at this track. All the horses Connelly brought here belong to Judge E. A. Colburn of Colorado Springs. The Judge will have here in a few days to spend the winter. Connelly says he will start in on the horses right away so as to have them ready for the early races in June. You know Ed's by-word, which is: "I will make them step some, partner," and I know he will do it, for he is in his old time form now, like when he was teaming for Dr. Wise.

C. A. Winship had his bay yearling filly by Zombro, out of Gezelle, sold to some Eastern man for $2000, but for some reason or other the sale fell through and Mr. Winship is glad of it, for since then the filly trotted an eighth in 17½ seconds. Mr. Winship has taken the shoes off all his Zombro yearlings and will let them run in the paddocks until February and then begin training them again. He says they have shown him enough speed already to prove to him that they are just what he wants to go to the races with.

Every horse owner down here has a smile on his face when the green feed is mentioned. Hay has fallen from a dollar to two dollars on the ton during the past two weeks and if we have another rain this week it will continue to drop. Say, I will be able to keep a horse cheaper than any one can keep a bicycle.

G. T. BECKERS.

An Indoor Pasture.

In the immense new stables in which Star Pointer and Guy Wilkes occupy adjoining stalls as large and comfortable as a first class hotel bedroom, Mr. White has constructed something that may be termed an indoor pasture. It is an immense stall arranged with glass skylights and ventilators and equipped with a sort of greenhouse heating apparatus by which grass is kept growing all winter. It was first carpeted with the finest and most fertile soil that could be obtained. An expert gardener has it in charge and it is sprinkled and seeded and kept fresh and green. When the weather is too hot to permit the turf king to go outside he will be turned into his indoor paddock where he can have all the comforts and luxuries of the best pasture a stock farm can afford. Star Pointer has already been introduced to this hot house garden. There was some anxiety about the way he would take to it, but it was soon dispensed. He took one survey of his new surroundings, smelt of the grass and discovered that it was the real thing, then he cut loose. He pranced and snorted, rolled and capered until he had thoroughly demonstrated his approval, then settled down for a quiet meal.

Speaking of the recent horse show at New York, The Horse World says: "Right here a word should be said about the genuine hackneys in the show. For the first time the men who are breeding the British type of harness horses cut loose and entered a good number of their too precious pets in the open harness classes where they had to compete with the trotting-bred high steppers. The hackneys carried off a number of blues and reds, and better than this, demonstrated to American horsemen the fact that they can do something more than to parade at the end of a long, chalked strap without any load behind them."

The fine showing made by the hackneys is due almost solely to the courage and enterprise of Eben D. Jordan. Mr. Jordan has a magnificent collection of hackneys, both imported and home bred, at his breeding farm near Plymouth.

Mr. Jordan's idea in breeding is to produce a perfect heavy harness carriage horse. At Mr. Jordan was the leading ribbon winning amateur exhibitor at the New York show his efforts seem to be crowned with brilliant success.

Answers to Correspondents.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.—Please inform me in what year Goldsmith Maid trotted in California and in what year she was retired from the turf. Also was she ever beaten by Rarus, and oblige

M. Y. Keegan, San Mateo.

Goldsmith Maid trotted in California in 1872, 1876 and 1877. She was retired from the turf at the close of the last named year, we believe. Rarus defeated her in San Francisco May 26, 1877. She was then 20 years old and he was 10.

1. Kindly inform me through your paper of the breeding of Royal Stanford. State whether trotter, pacer or thoroughbred. 2. State which pacer holds the world's record.

W. Griswold.

1. We find no record of Royal Stanford, 2. Star Pointer, race record 2:00½; against time 1:59½.

Sale of a Very High Class Trotting Colt, by Nutwood Wilkes.

Mr. Dan Mahaney of Portsmouth, N. H., has purchased of Mr. T. S. Montgomery of San Jose, Cal., the chestnut colt Col. Carter, being a foal of 1893. The consideration is private. Never before has a better colt left California and if he fulfills the promise of his inheritance, so far as his pedigree is concerned, a very bright and glorious future can be safely prophesied for him. Mr. Mahaney, seeing this colt's name amongst the entries of some of the rich Eastern futurities, liked his breeding so well that he made the trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific to see the individual and liking him, the result was as above. This colt's sire is the well known California horse Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, owned by Mr. Martin Carter, of Irvington; this horse has recently come into well deserved prominence by siring such great colt trotters as Who Is It 2:10½, Jno. A. McKerron 2:12½ and others.

Col. Carter's dam is the mare Spry Ruth, bred by Hon. Jesse D. Carr, of Salinas, and sold by him in 1896, when at two years, to Mr. Montgomery who still owns her as well as her sire Boodle 2:12½, who also sired Ethel Downs 2:10, Thompson 2:14½, and others. In dissecting this pedigree we find the blood of most of the world's celebrated performers, not by going any round about road, but in a direct line close up. Nutwood Wilkes needs no attention called to him or to his rich and fashionable blood lines for everyone knows the great Guy Wilkes 2:15½ and Nutwood 2:18½, the sire of his dam and from them back to Geo. M. Patchen and Rebel Daughter, by Williamson's Belmont. Col. Carter's dam combines blood that is rich, fashionable and strong, for Spry Ruth first inherits from her game sire Boodle 2:12½ the champion blood that flowed in the veins of Goldsmith Maid 2:14, Lady Thorne 2:18½, Jay Gould 2:20½, the champion stallion for three years, and so on back to Mambrino Chief 11, American Star 14 and Sherman Morgan. Spry Ruth's dam Nina B is by the greatest of sires Electioneer, whose fame keeps growing greater by the performances of his grandsons and grand daughters, not only on the race track but as sires and dams of great performers. We might write a book on the pedigree of this colt, Col. Carter, so great and many have been the notable performances of his ancestors, but can only call attention to his dam who was a colt trotter, his second dam Nina B. by the king of early speed, Electioneer, his third dam Gabilan Maid, the dam of Aggregate, who has shown a mile in 2:11½ and she is a full sister to Lady Ellen by Carr's Mambrino, dam of Elleneer. Lady Ellen 2:29½ is dam of Helena 2:11½ the dam of Wild Natling 2:13; fourth dam Ida May Jr. by Owendale, a son of Williamson's Belmont; fifth dam Ida May by Williamson's Belmont; sixth dam Mary by Red Back, son of Bertrand, and he by Sir Archy. Mrs. is the granddam of Susie 2:26½, who is the dam of Snison 2:18½ and Snsetta 2:23½. Thus it will be seen that he comes from producers on both sides.

This colt Col. Carter, who is entered in several rich Futurity stakes, has been placed by his owner, Mr. Mahaney, in the hands of Mr. B. O. Van Bokkelen of San Jose, who will give him his early education and turn him over next May to Mr. Thos. Mareh who drives Mr. Mahaney's horses and who was so successful this year with Idolita 2:12, Kingmond 2:09, Who Is It 2:10½, and others. We predict a great future for the Colonel.

Mambrino King is Dead.

Mambrino King, the unbeaten dandy of the show ring, and often referred to as the "handsomest stallion in America," died at Village Farm, East Annona, New York, on the 5th inst. He was a dark chestnut stallion, foaled in 1872, and was got by Mambrino Patchan, out of a mare by Edwin Forrest. He was bred by Dr. Herr of Lexington, Kentucky, and sold to Mr. C. J. Hamlin in 1882 for $10,000. Mambrino King was the sire of 40 trotters and 10 pacers with standard records, his fastest trotters being Nightingale 2:08 and Dare Devil 2:09½, and his fastest pacers Heir-at-Law 2:05½ and Lady of the Manor 2:04½. Elvria, Heir-at-Law and Prince Regent are among his most successful sons, eighteen of which are producers of speed, while forty of his daughters are also producers and among their progeny are The Abbot 2:06½, The Monk 2:08½ and about fifty others with standard records. Himself a magnificent individual, Mambrino King left his impress upon his progeny, and Mr. Hamlin's success in the sales as well as on the track is conclusive evidence that he was wise when he said, "My aim is to produce handsome horses that have the highest rate of speed."

The fast stallion Askey 2:03½, died at Cleveland Thanksgiving Day. He had picked up a nail and died from lock-jaw. He was one of the fastest horses on the American turf, had worked a half to wagon in 1:01½ and when F. W. Covey was in Cleveland last May he timed him a quarter in 29.2-5 seconds. In the race in which he got his record Askey trotted the last half of one heat, officially timed in 1:01½. He was a brown stallion foaled in 1890 and by McFarland 2:29½, a horse descended in the male line direct from the original Justin Morgan. Askey was a very handsome individual.

RACING IN RUSSIA.

The American Consul-General Makes an Interesting Report on the Sport

Mr. Holloway, our Consul-General at St. Petersburg, has sent to the State Department a brief but very interesting report or communication about American horses in Russia. He says that a false impression has been created by the publication of a statement that there is a feeling of discontent and dismay among Russian owners of American horses because, after the winnings of the latter class had been limited, in the first place, the restrictions were extended to the produce of native mares by horses imported from this country. This, he says, is too broad a statement. While American horses which outclass Russian horses as trotters have not been permitted to compete in all races for some years, the cross bred animals were allowed to start for all but three purses given in the Empire during the past season, and these were the Orloffsky, 3000 rubles, the Grand Duke's Prize, 10,000 rubles, and the Emperor's Prize, 25,000 rubles. Mr. Holloway adds:

A few years ago American horses could start in all races in Russia, but they were so much faster than the Russian horses that they were barred from the big races in order to protect their own interest; but, as a majority of Russian horsemen now own American horses, the more are constantly being bought, there is a growing sentiment in favor of their being permitted to start in all races except those intended exclusively for Russian horses.

The breed of Russian horses generally accepted as typical is the "Orloff," founded by Count Orloff-Chemenski at the end of the last century, being a cross between the Arabian stallion Smetanke and his descendants from German, French, Belgian and Dutch, but principally English mares. The Orloff is not only the light harness horse of Russia, but almost the only carriage animal in use. While there is no great uniformity in size and form, the best stallions are sixteen hands high and weigh 1100 pounds, with heavy manes, bushy tails that reach within a few inches of the ground, and iron limbs that show great muscular development. They are driven at a furious rate, even through the principal streets of St. Petersburg, there being no limit to speed in the city limits, the center of the streets, next to the street car tracks, being reserved for the fast driving. During the winter months single, double and three-horse abreast (Troikas) sleighs dash along the streets at three and a half or four minute gait. The color of the horse is black and gray, the latter color being the purest.

American horses soon become acclimated in Russia, and after the first year stand the climate as well as the native animals.

No horse is barred from any race (except the three specially mentioned above) on account of his speed, but fast horses are handicapped by being required to poll more weight and starting a few yards farther back. In trotting races at St. Petersburg but two horses start in a heat from designated places at opposite sides of the track, at the sound of an electric bell, which prevents jockeying for position. The horses follow each other twice or three times around the track, the distance being either two or three miles. No matter how many entries there are in a single race but two horses are permitted on the track at the same time, and the one making the best time wins the race. In Moscow the races are managed on the American plan.

Races for the purpose of testing the endurance of horses are frequent, where horses are driven from twenty-five to fifty miles, then finish the last one or two miles at the limit of their speed. The horse finishing in the best condition and showing the best speed at the close is the winner.

Some of the race courses are divided into separate tracks 10 feet wide and separated from each other by a strip of sod two feet wide, giving each horse a separate track, the difference in the length making the handicapping distance for horses of various speeds, which avoids the struggle for the pole.

No "kicking" is permitted from drivers at the close of the heats. Each heat is a race; at the conclusion, men carrying big blackboards showing the number, name and time made by each horse pass in front of the grand stand and through the grounds in order that they may know the result.

During the winter, race courses are flooded each night and horses trot on three inches of ice.

Only stallions are used in cities, mares being kept in the country or shipped to Germany and Austria, where they are in great demand.

American pneumatic sulkies, harness, hoots, gaiting appliances, etc., are in use here.

The Omnibus Company of Paris will have 1500 vehicles in actual use during the Exposition next year. It will require 8000 horses to do the work and expects to carry over a million passengers daily over its ninety-two lines. Over 1000 horses have already been purchased in America by the company's agent and he is still buying.

The celebrated Rily track at Portland, Maine, will probably be under the management of the well known horseman and turf writer, Allen Lova.

Mambrino Patchen.

There are three Mambrino Patchens. One was a son of George M. Patchen, another was bred in Fayette county, without much pedigree, probably not enough to get in the books, and died young without achieving any great reputation, and the third was Herr's Mambrino Patchen that became one of the most distinguished of progenitors. The last named horse was a unique animal. His breeding was not such as would now make him sought after. True, he was by Mambrino Chief, a great foundation sire, and of kindred blood to Hambletonian. His dam, however, was by a son of America Eclipse, while his second and third dams were pacing mares. Mambrino Patchen would have been a show horse in almost any company. In 1877 I remember having seen him led into the show ring with some 17 or 18 of his sons, and they made a grand display. I am not certain of the fact, but my recollection is that Mambrino King was one of the horses shown.

Mambrino Patchen had fair but not great capacity as a trotter. His owner, Dr. Herr, was a trainer as well as a veterinarian and a breeder. As a three year old Mambrino Patchen could show a 2:40 gait. His services in the stud were afterward so much in demand that I doubt whether he ever had much training after that age, but certainly as a trotter he was never phenomenal. Neither was he at all remarkable as a sire of speed. He never got a 2:20 performer, and though largely pacing bred never sired an animal that made a pacing record as good as 2:30, but I am of the opinion that some of his get did pace, though the contrary assertion has been made. When Mambrino Patchen was in his prime pacers were at a discount. Certainly pacers were rare among his immediate progeny, and it is said that Dr. Herr once advertised that he would charge no fee for his services if the result was a pacer. Nevertheless he was bred to many pacing mares, the doctor having a strong fancy for that sort of mixed breeding. This fact, together with Mambrino Patchen's own breeding, accounts for the number of pacers that have since cropped out among his later descendants.

One of the notable facts about Mambrino Patchen was that he was a remarkably healthy horse, and one of great soundness and constitutional strength. To this it was doubtless largely due that he became so great a progenitor. He was, it is said, never sick till the day of his death, and then there was a suspicion of poisoning, though what grounds there was for the suspicion I do not know. The Mambrino Patchen family is still a remarkably sound one. Among his immediate descendants I never knew of but one case of ophthalmia (though there may have been more) and this was probably a maternal inheritance. I think that the family, as a rule, also have excellent hocks and good legs and feet. In these respects I have heard complaint of some of the other sons of Mambrino Chief, some of which were doubtless well founded, but I never heard of it of the Mambrino Patchens. Mambrino Patchen transmitted his great constitutional strength and soundness to his progeny with much uniformity, and they, of course, transmitted these qualities in a considerable measure to their descendants. Necessarily the blood did not control always. I know one great stallion out of a Mambrino Patchen mare that was blind. I saw his dam at about 20 years of age, and she had then an eye like a hawk. It was exceptionally clear and bright.

Most of the speed that has been exhibited by descendants of Mambrino Patchen has doubtless been due to the Hambletonian blood with which the blood of that horse has been so largely intermixed. This is proven by the facts that Mambrino Patchen did not have great speed himself, and that he did not produce it in his sons and daughters. Owing probably in part to the consanguinity between the two families, and in part also to the pacing cross in Mambrino Patchen, no strain has proven so great as an ally to the Hambletonians. I have seen an old tabulation of the pedigree of Mambrino Patchen, showing, I believe, some 50 odd crosses to Messenger. Most of them are too remote, however, to have any special effect. I do not believe much in the theory that crosses eight or ten generations back hurried under hundreds of others have very much potency. Messenger blood is doubtless a good thing when it comes through sufficient lines, but like any other fluid it loses its strength when very much diluted. We have in this horse the Mambrino Chief blood, a little Messenger in Gano, the sire of his dam, and a few pacing crosses not very far away.

I am a little skeptical about those very remote Messenger crosses at any rate. I know they have been used a good deal to "point morals" and to "adorn tales" of horse pedigrees, too many of them possibly have had their origin in stud horse advertisements on the doors of blacksmith shops at country cross roads to justify one in attaching too implicit confidence to them. Many of them are mythical in their origin, and a little uncertain as to the channels through which they have come down to us. I prefer taking only what is known to be authentic. That taken in connection with the fact that Dr. Herr never failed to breed his horse to a first-rate mare when he had an opportunity, and that he industriously and persistently sought such mares for many years, is sufficient to account for Mambrino Patchen's great success as a progenitor of trotters.

The only horse that was superior to Mambrino Patchen, counting merely by the number of mares produced by his daughters, was Blue Bull. It will be observed, however, that the list of performers credited to Blue Bull's daughters abounds much more largely in pacers, and are not nearly equal in celebrity as race horses. Blue Bull had, however, much more speed than Mambrino Patchen, although it was pacing and not trotting speed. Blue Bull must also have been a horse of great vitality and constitutional strength.

The same thing may be said of nearly, or possibly quite, every horse that has ever become a distinguished sire of dams. Individually, he must have been a horse of great vigor, because he must habitually have produced strong, vigorous mares, and a horse of weak constitution cannot do that. Hambletonian, that ranks next to Mambrino Patchen as a broodmare sire, was that kind of a horse, and Pilot Jr., George Wilkes, Electioneer and Almo were all in this respect remarkable. To make the highest class of a broodmare sire great vigor of constitution is not the only essential; the instinct to trot must also be present, and no horse ever yet had too much of it. No thoroughbred horse ever yet made a great sire of trotting broodmares, and reasoning by analogy it is safe to say none ever will.

It was extremely fortunate for the fame of Mambrino Patchen as a broodmare sire that he was immediately followed by a number of horses, sons of a much greater trotting sire, that, while they in most instances lacked his splendid physique, were much more strongly endowed with trotting instinct. They supplied exactly the element in which he was lacking, and the progeny resulting from the mating of sons of Hambletonian with daughters of Mambrino Patchen was an improvement upon both ancestral lines, the produce having more intense trotting instinct than their dam's family and a better physical make up than their sires. Many of them possessed the high finish and handsome conformation of their maternal grandsire. One of their most distinguished characteristics is their straight hip; the tail bone coming out almost on a level with their couplings.

Dr. Herr was a stickler for fine tails and good tail carriage, and bred with a view to producing this conformation. I heard it said many years ago that he was the only trotting horse breeder in Kentucky that "bred for tails." Much of his education was received during the era of fine saddle and show horses, and Mambrino Patchen was his ideal of a horse. It is questionable, however, whether the good doctor fully appreciated his value. He very distinctly was not the great sire of speed which he considered him. In this respect, while fair, he was very much inferior to many Hambletonian horses, and to Woodford Mambrino, at least, among the sons of Mambrino Chief, but as a sire of fine mares of stout conformation and immense vitality, such as would cross well with the Hambletonian horses (many of which were greatly lacking in good looks), he was supreme. It is doubtful whether any other stallion ever lived that could exactly have filled the place of Mambrino Patchen. A good deal of his success was owing to Dr. Herr's selection of mares with which to mate him. Dr. Herr was a thorough horseman, hot not of the modern school. He looked for quality very much more than for high trotting breeding as we now understand the term. In fact, till near the close of his career, there was not much very high trotting breeding, and the Hambletonian type was not much to his fancy.

Dr. Herr's greatest mistake was in ignoring the merits of George Wilkes. This error was one that was committed by many horsemen of the day, including the Woodburn Farm, and singularly enough Woodburn did not believe much in Mambrino Patchen, probably from a feeling that Woodburn's blood was good enough. The Woodburn horse that most nearly filled the place of Dr. Herr's stallion was Pilot Jr., but even he was in some respects inferior to Mambrino Patchen as a cross for the Hambletonians, although the Pilot Jr. cross did produce a number of world-renowned trotters. It is remarkable that both these great broodmare stallions had the pacing cross "close up."—Iconoclast in American Horse Breeder.

San Francisco, Saturday, December 16, 1899.

THE CHRISTMAS EDITION of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, which will be issued next Saturday will contain a number of specially prepared articles of great interest to those interested in the breeding of harness horses and thoroughbreds. Among those of special interest will be "The Four Corner Posts of Thoroughbred Breeding" by Hidalgo, a continuation of the very interesting subject discussed under the same heading in our recent State Fair edition, by that well known turf writer Capt. Thos. B. Merry; "A Horseman's Dream" from the pen of Frank H. Dunton, the well known veteran turf writer and founder of Dunton's Spirit of the Turf, is a suggestion how to breed the ideal horse; "A Treatise on Horse Shoeing," by one of the best known San Francisco farriers; "The 1899 List of California Sires," being a complete list of all horses that have entered the standard trotting and pacing lists during the past year and were sired by horses bred or owned in California or that have stood for service here; "The California Money Winners of 1899," a complete list of all trotters and pacers that won any part of a purse on the California circuit this year, together with their records, number of races and amount of money won by each. There will be many other special articles in this number and the front page will be adorned with handsome photo-engravings containing the portraits of a number of California's leading reinmen. The issue will be an exceptionally interesting one and orders for extra copies should be sent in at once. It will be on sale Saturday next at the news stands and at this office at the regular price of ten cents per copy.

SPLAN & NEWGASS write: "It is a demonstrated fact that a good horse will sell for as much money here as in New York City or any other place. We sold the Donovan team for $9500, which is more than double the money any other pair of trotters ever brought at public auction. When Star Pointer was considered the greatest pacing horse on earth, he sold in New York for $15,600. A few weeks later we sold Joe Patchen here for $15,000, and it was just after he had been defeated through the big ring and had been switched off to the half-mile tracks for exhibition purposes. We sold the mare Phrase for $4750 in our last sale, and we doubt if they will sell a mare with no faster record in any other market for as much money any time this year. Whenever we have a high class animal to sell, we always get the best class of buyers from the East, and the Western competition invariably results in a satisfactory price for the consignor." Their next sale will be January 29th to February 3, 1900, inclusive.

THERE IS ONE THING the harrier will start perfectly and that is a discussion. It only has to be mentioned in a crowd of turf followers and the whole bunch is off at once, and every individual trying for the lead as though his life depended upon getting it. And no matter how they finish every mother's son of them thinks he won by a block.

THE PLEASANTON TRACK is all ready for business. The stalls are completed, the track in perfect condition for working on, and there are already about forty stalls occupied. No track in the world is as good to train harness horses on early in the year as the one at Pleasanton. This is a pretty strong statement, but it is true, and has the endorsement of the leading trainers of America. The advertisement of this track in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is most interesting reading. It gives a partial list of the fast horses that have been trained over the historical course, which is conclusive evidence of all the claims that are made for it. Now that the new owners have erected two hundred new stalls and put everything in first class shape the accommodations at Pleasanton are superior to those on any training track in the State. It would be well for all trainers who contemplate taking their horses there to apply for stall room early as there will not be many stalls vacant by February 1st.

A MOVEMENT is on foot up north to arrange a circuit of State Fairs in which California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho will be represented. It is proposed to hold a meeting of the Secretaries and managers of these associations at Salem, Oregon, in January.

Inside Facts of the Britton Sale.

As there has been an unusual amount of talk over the late sale of Tommy Britton, and so many insinuations, Mr. Frank S. Gorton, known to be financially interested in the crown stallion, decided to make a statement of the facts. He says: "Tommy Britton was sold for $20,000 in cash, and every cent of the money has been paid. That is incontrovertible documentary proof if necessary. I will tell the whole story, and in doing so it will be necessary to make public the fact that Mr. E. A. Lord and I have a partner in the venture.

"When the horse left here for New York there had been, as stated in The Tribune, a syndicate formed to buy him at a price not exceeding $15,000. I was to assume one-third of the deal and Mr. Lord was to look after the rest. When I reached New York a friend of mine, a man of large wealth, told me he thought the horse would bring close to $20,000; that he personally did not care to put that much money into a trotter, but that he would be willing to furnish $10,000 to a pool to buy Britton at a price not exceeding $20,000. This put a new face on the matter, and a little investigation satisfied me that our $15,000 syndicate was likely not to get the horse. Such men as Brayton Ives, John H. Shultz, J. W. Daly and others who have paid some of the best prices on record for horses had looked Britton over carefully and I could see they were going to bid.

"So I saw Mr. Law, who was to do the bidding for our syndicate, and told him of the new developments. He agreed with me that the man who was ready to pay $10,000 for half the horse would be acceptable as a partner, and we thereupon decided to go to $20,000 if we had to. It happened that a quick bid by Mr. Law from $19,000 to $20,000 got the horse.

"There are one or two other points that under the circumstances should be made clear. The man who put $10,000 in the horse had excellent reasons why he did not want his name mentioned. He therefore arranged to pay his part of the purchase price in currency, and Fassig & Tipton, who conducted the sale, got half the $20,000 in that way. Furthermore, our partner, before going into the deal, spoke in most commendatory terms of George Weet, who had driven Britton, and agreed that he should remain in West's stable. Still further, it was agreed between the three of us that as we were going to try to beat the stallion record with Britton he should not be bred to any mares next season. This fact, I think, will convince even the most skeptical horsemen that there was nothing but a bona fide sale at New York. Mr. Lord and I are pretty well known in Chicago, and our friends know we do not practice underhand methods, but there has been so much talk that we decided to tell all the facts."

THREE pairs of coach horses were sold by the Fashion Coach Horse Company in New York week before last for a total of $9000. There are many horses in the United States that are as good individuals as the horses that made up these pairs, but few that are as thoroughly mannered. To the man who uses his thinker this is a whole discourse in a paragraph.

A SAN FRANCISCO gentleman owns three weanlings colts that are now East, but should be in California. One is by Bow Bells, another by Baron Wilkes and another by Allerton, and all are out of very choicely bred mares. They can be purchased at low prices. Full particulars can be had at this office.

THE track at Goshen, New York, has been covered from the inner rail, outward 30 feet, with straw and stable manure. This is intended to preserve the elasticity of that portion of the track and make it desirable footing for horses as soon as winter is over.

The Colts' First Shoes.

A point the breeder himself should be careful to see to is the affixing of the colt's first shoes. A great deal of the horse's future depends on this, yet some give it little heed. Nor is it a question only of importance with the colt destined to be kept entire, for the subsequent results are none the less true of the gelding. Every movement of the particular colt should be carefully noted, and when hoes and horn of hoof are soft and plastic—defects likely to arise guarded against—you cannot, of course, ask a farrier to put a knock-kneed one altogether square and level, but you can have him set on his legs so that he will not grow eome particularly objectionable habit. Sometimes, say, an exchange, this is overdone, and the result is possibly the very opposite to that aimed at, but if the shoeing-smith knows young draft horse stock, and be ought to, he will be able to take stock of what is wanted, and make the shoe thick or thin where necessary.

Some shoeing-smiths are more careless than others and seem perfect gluttons at paring off horn. They never seem to study the depth and, more particularly, the texture of the material they are working with.

Nor should the hoof be lost sight of as soon as the first shoes are on. Indeed, for the next few days if the colt is running on they should be watched most carefully. It not unfrequently happens that owing to softness the shoe slips back, and the result is that the colt is thrown too much on his heels. If allowed to run much in this way his toes will turn up in front, and he will appear to be calf-kneed when standing. If he is allowed to continue doing this he will form a habit out of which he will not be easily driven. The heels will also suffer, and if the blacksmith is not an expert hand when the colt is brought to him a second time, he will in attempting to mend matters spoil a good hoof for life. A great many of our colts in the show ring show in the unevenness of their front culpable neglect to the hoof when it grew in their young days. When the horse gets aged it looks bowey, more particularly if the country farrier puts in a lot of those grand polishing up touches of his with the ever mischievous, ever ready rasp.

THERE is neither logic nor the weight of clinical test to back up the assumption of some that a trotter or pacer can pull a speed wagon as fast as he can a bike sulky. Weight and atmospheric and mechanical friction are the handicaps of speed in whatever form, and he it a locomotive, a bicyclist or a harness race horse, the resistance furnished by friction exerts its retarding influences. The bike is faster than the old high wheels because in its construction there is much less weight and a great deal less friction. But there is still some friction about a bike sulky, both mechanical and atmospheric, but there is nearly twice the friction about a racing wagon as there is about a bike, and, of course, there is more weight—a great deal more weight—for with the wagon the weight of the driver cannot be disposed of in the hitch as with the bike. True, some horses have wagon records, but the conditions under which these records which are faster than their bike records were made are always quite different from the conditions under which their bike records were made. Sunland Bell, for example, made her bike record of 2:08 1/2 in a four heat race which she won, in which there were seven starters, the race being her tenth one for that season. Her wagon record of 2:07 1/2 was made after practically a two years' let up from racing and after she had been given several months' careful preparation for a fast dash to wagon, with no other horse in the way in the least. With six fast competitors, all to wagons, it is not at all likely that she could have gotten through or around the gang and beaten 2:10. Bumps also has a wagon record one second faster than his bike record but the latter was earned when he was out for a "wad of stuff" which several other pacers also wanted, all of them doing their best to beat Bumps, either by outpacing him or getting in his way while his wagon record was the result of careful and specific preparations and under every auxiliary circumstance. Nearly all other "faster wagon records" are subject to the same analysis, and hence there is nothing left upon which to base the claim that trotters and pacers can draw a speed wagon as fast as they can a bike.—Western Horseman.

MR. C. W. WILLIAMS of Galesburg, Ill., writes us: "During the season of 1899 I sold at public and private sale thirty-five yearlings (all I had) by Allerton. The amount received for them was $15,965, and the average price was $456.14. None of them ever had a hoot, shoe or harness on or a bit in its mouth."

SECRETARY WILSON, of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, reports that second payment has been made on more than six hundred entries to the Kentucky Futurity, $20,000, for foals of 1899, due December 1st, with several of the most distant points to hear from.

W. E. SPEER, of the Suburban Farm at Glens Falls, is getting a collection of futurity winning mares that he will breed to Directum and Adbell. Last week he purchased Rose Croix 2:11 1/2, and among others he has Nellie A., Janie T. and Mary Celeste.

Two hundred and forty trotters and pacers took new records of 2:20 or better during the racing season of 1899.

BEST SALE OF THE SEASON.

Sprsekals' Yearlings Bring an Average of $240 Per Head.

Occidental Horse Exchange had the largest crowd Thursday night that has been seen at a horse sale in San Francisco for a long time. It was a rainy night, but the horsemen turned out en masse to see the band of youngsters bred on Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Napa Stock Farm and they saw a grand looking lot of yearlings, and bid on them in a lively manner.

Mr. F. W. Covey, Superintendent of Palo Alto Stock Farm, made his appearance as an auctioneer "positively for one night only" at the special request and as a special favor to his friend and schoolmate, the popular owner and breeder of the horses sold. Mr. Covey has but just returned from New York, where he had for a week listened to the greatest of all auctioneers, Geo. Bain, and he had evidently profited by the experience, as, although he does not want the title and is not engaged in the business, he is far and away the best auctioneer heard in San Francisco for a long time, and the horses were sold with dispatch, good prices were obtained and the audience was both pleased and interested. Capt. T. B. Merry (Hidalgo) was up from Los Angeles and ably assisted Mr. Covey in calling the attention of buyers to the relationship borne by the colts and fillies to illustrious sires and dams, and ancestors further removed.

The top price of the sale was paid for Cambaceres, a hand some black colt by imp. Idallium out of imp. Candida, the well known stake winner in both Australia and California. Mat Storn drew a hearty round of applause when he bid $1200 and the colt was knocked down to him.

The next highest price was $1000, the bid of W. B. Jennings for Belzeheb (why the catalogue has the name spelled that way was not explained), a yearling "with the conformation of a four year old" by imp. Crighton out of Lista Hock by imp. Loyalist. When led into the ring this fellow was so full of fire that he threatened a stampede until Mr. Covey called on the audience to remain quiet. He brought out some quick bids but Mr. Jennings said "a thousand" so coolly and earnestly that the others knew it was no use and stopped.

Ed Purser paid $600 for the colt Cavanaugh, a good looking named for the Sacramento politician and sportsman.

The average price received for the first sale of yearlings from Napa Stock Farm was $236 in 1897; last year it was $202, and this sale reached $240, the highest of all.

The prices obtained for the yearlings are as follows together with their buyers names.

A Batch of Nicknames.

In the last Horse Review I saw a list of nicknames they have in the East for race track boys. They are not in it with us on this coast. Here are a few heard in California: Dusty Bob, Windy Jim, Whiskey Dan, Hoho Jack, John the Rater, Tough Luck Dan, Jimmy Fewclothes, Pieface Ed, Tim the Chaw, Sickey Mike, Skivers, Bedstead Jim, Nosey Mike, Niggerfoot, Pedigree George, Whiteline Bill, Alfalfa Pat, Lord Brock, the Mayor of Goat Island, Skinny Wiggins, Rio Vista George, Sandy the Jew, Thousand Dollar Willie, Neversweat Bob, Goggle Eyed Slim, Punken Bob, Smiling George, Conversation Joe, Slopweather Jim, Sneak, Bruiser, Kidneyfoot Jack, Cigarette Charley, Loco Bill, Lanky Bob, Brogan Bill, Army Jack, Hypo Bob, The Count, Sheeny Jack, The Arizona Lizard and many others. B.

SIXTEEN of the get of Baron Wilkes 2:18 are named in the $6000 Horse Review stake for foals of 1899, to be trotted in 1902 as three year olds.

Roads of Glass.

According to all accounts wonderful results have been achieved in France during the last few months with glass. It has been used experimentally for some time as pavement in one of the busiest streets in Lyons, with such success that contracts are being made by many cities all over Europe for it to replace Belgian block. This material, which is so strong that it can withstand usage under which Belgian block crumbles away, was invented by a French scientist in Chagny, Burgundy, where he conducted his first experiments. It took a long time for him to get anyone to consider his invention seriously, and when he asked the municipal authorities of Lyons for permission to pave the principal street of that city at his own expense he found it hard to get them to assent. However, after persistent effort he won, and a few months ago he was authorized to proceed with his novel experiment. Perhaps such a permission, at least without more convincing practical results to back it up, would have never been granted in any other city. But the French are a nation of experimentants, and always ready and willing to try something new. M. Louis Garchey, the inventor, took a conservative advantage of his privilege. He paved only a portion of one street, selecting for the purpose a crowded section of the Place de la Republique, which is thronged day and night with heavy traffic. Under his direction the pavement of "ceramic stone" was laid and finished in September last, and it is now as sound as when it was first put down. The experiment has been pronounced by the experts, who were sceptical in the beginning, as entirely successful, and so thoroughly satisfied have they become with the practical usefulness of the invention that they are preparing now large contracts for similar pavements in other cities.

The glass pavements are laid in the form of blocks, eight inches square, each block containing 16 parts in the form of checkers. The blocks are fitted together so closely that no water can soak between them. The advantages of the glass pavement as developed so far are its resistance, which is greater than that of stone; its property as a poor conductor of cold, owing to which ice will not form on it readily; its resistance to dirt, which does not accumulate on it easily, as on stone, and its quality not to retain microbes. The Central Architectural Society of France made its report on the material recently, in which it was said: "From the various forms in which this material is presented, its use can be readily determined for both practical and decorative purposes. On careful examination we find that the Garchey ceramic stone is glass brought to a special molecular condition. In a certain sense it constitutes a new substance, which resembles flagstone, granite or marble. This new product is obtained from broken glass heated to a temperature of 1250 degrees and compressed in matrices by hydraulic force. The physical transformation of the glass is due to devitrification under the process. The phenomenon of devitrification produces a sort of dissolution more apparent than real; for, upon chemical analysis, the devitrified glass is found to possess all the intrinsic qualities (physical and chemical) of glass, except the transparency, while taking on an entirely different aspect. Furthermore, glass treated under this new method is made to resist crushing, frost and heavy shocks, and to stand hard usage.—The Road.

A "Hoss" Editor at Willows.

The Willows Journal has a regular hoss editor on its staff and the following from its last issue shows that he is thoroughly up to date. He visited Col. Crawford's string at the Willows track and reports that he found them to be "as the Colonel claims—crack-s-jacks—and it is safe to say they will be cutting out huge chunks of hot air over the race tracks of this State in a short time. There is a continual raising of hot vapors off this batch of horse flesh—they being so warm. Here's the layout, no long shots, all hot favorites:

One sorrel filly, four years old, by Reno Prince, son of Dexter Prince, out of mare by Mambrino Chief. No name.

Another sorrel mare by Reno Prince, dam by Hambletonian 10, five years old. No name.

About the warmest thing in the bunch is a four year old sorrel gelding by Clarence Wilkes, dam Belle C., by Tilton Almont. He has shown great speed and promises to be a hummer.

Then there is Dot and Spot, full sister and brother to Don, who had a record, as you know, of 2:10 flat. Dot is a three year old pacing mare by Falrose, dam by Killarney. Spot is a three year old gelding. They are very promising youngsters.

He has also in this bunch a four year old mare by Monaco, son of Electioneer, dam Kate Fisher. She is a lithe limbed animal and when fully developed will back the figures off any board.

The Colonel in the last year has lost Don 2:10, and his full sister Melba.

Homer Merrill and Billy Reidy, the men with the witch hazel and bannel, are the handlers, and the way those boys are working this string is very encouraging to Colonel Crawford."

WILLIAM B. McDONALD, of Buffalo Girl 2:12½ fame, who has been a trainer for the Vienna Turf Club at a salary of $3500 per annum, for the past three years, has returned from that country for good.

HOW TO TRAIN HORSES.

John M. Shannon, of Lexington, Gives Valuable Pointers.

"The education of the thoroughbred horse begins while he is still a yearling, for, as he will in all probability be trained to run in races for two year olds, the sooner he is broken in to the saddle and bridle the better," declares John M. Shannon, the Lexington turfman.

"Moreover, if taken in hand when a colt he is more tractable, and the elements of his education are fraught with less pain to himself and less trouble to his breaker than if the business were postponed. Having learned to carry a man—or, rather, a boy—on his back, and to obey the rein, his training as a race horse begins. Somebody has summarized the preparation for racing as 'gallop, gallop, gallop;' but in the case of the young horse that summary is rather misleading. In olden times the practice of sweating was general; the colt, in addition to his regular work, was twice a week smothered in rugs and hoods, and, thus muffled, sent on a four or even six mile gallop.

"But this heroic method of 'getting the beef off' has been given up for twenty-four years or more, and is resorted to nowadays only to reduce a gross horse whose legs will not stand much galloping. The amount of exercise given each horse depends upon many factors—one that feeds well and does his corn justice, wants more work than a delicate feeder. One of the greater secrets of the trainer's art is to learn exactly how much work each horse can do with the greatest advantage; how much each requires to get off his fat and develop his muscles. The serious business of training begins in the spring, when the ground is soft and horses can be galloped without risk or injury to their feet and legs.

"At 5 o'clock in the morning the trainer's string of a dozen or more, each horse shined and hooded and ridden by his lad, leaves the stable and starts for an hour's walking exercise; this preliminary is essential, for if taken direct to the training ground and allowed to canter while perfectly fresh dire grief would be the consequence—'boys unshipped' and snorting young horses kicking and galloping widely all over the country side. The hour's walk steadies their high spirits, and, when taken on the downs, they are fairly well behaved. The routine of work is much the same from day to day—a little trot to quicken the youngsters' circulation; then a three-furlong or half-mile canter, followed by another canter.

"The morning's work concludes with a short gallop, the speed being increased as the horses get more 'fit.' Occasionally the work is varied with what the colt doubtless thinks a real race; he is dispatched to run half a mile or six furlongs besides an old horse, and enters into the spirit of the thing thoroughly. His rider at the start teaches him how to get away well—start at speed without loss of time, a very necessary thing for him to learn, for many the races he will be entered for will be short ones, in which a good start is half the battle. In these education races the youngster is always allowed to win, the old horse being held in for the purpose, if need be. Horses are curiously constituted, and the colt is apt to lose heart if frequently made to run against a rival who always beats him, and if thus disheartened at the beginning rarely recovers his natural courage and spirit. There are no whips or spurs on the training ground; the youngster learns to do his best in obedience to hand and heel alone, and does not know what punishment means till he has to struggle for 'the judge's eye.'"

An Octet of Neernuts.

Mr. Geo. W. Ford, of Santa Ana will soon be cutting a pretty wide swath with the produce of his stallion Neernut 2:12½, the only one of whose get ever trained and raced is Neeretta 2:11½, the champion four year old filly of this year. Mr. Ford has just taken up eight youngsters by Neernut, and Johnny Brooks is handling them at the Santa Ana track. They have now been out of pasture about four weeks and were practically unbroken when taken up, but out of the eight three are now showing a "forty" gait to cart. A bay gelding four years old is a beauty and acts as though he would do for the races. A couple of fillies of the same age are also very promising.

Neeretta has not had a harness on for a month, but is running in pasture with her shoes off. Mr. Ford says she is full of life and takes a work out every day in play. She will be taken up about the first of January and if she does not get a record of 2:08 or better next year, every horseman in California who has seen her will miss his guess.

Neernut will make the season of 1900 at Mr. Ford's farm at Santa Ana and should get a lot of choice mares, as few young stallions in this or any other State give as great promise of being uniform producers of extreme speed.

A LARGE percentage of the British cavalry and artillery horses in South Africa are American bred. As an instance of the endurance of our horses, Edward Clark writes that a squadron of the Natal Mounted Rifles rode eighty-five miles in twelve consecutive hours. When it is considered that each horse had to carry man and equipment, weighing about 250 pounds, over a rough country, under a burning sun, it was quite a feat of endurance.

Sulky Notes.

BREED your good mares.

PATRONIZE the best stallions.

TRAIN your colts and fillies.

ENTER the likely ones in the big stakes.

DON'T miss our Christmas edition out next week.

BARON WILKES is the sire of thirteen 2:12 performers.

THERE are about 40 horses now on the Pleasanton track.

ED GEES will train his horses at the Jewettville covered track.

THE first stallion advertisements for 1900 will appear next week.

BINGEN 2:06½ has a brother that will be a 2:20 performer next year.

READ the advertisement of the Pleasanton Race Track Association.

HOPPLES will be barred on many more tracks next season than they were last.

JOE PATCHEN and John R. Gentry each won four races from the other during 1899.

BOOKMAKERS on California trotting tracks in 1900 will be conspicuous by their absence.

CONDON & HUGHES have given up their lease on the Irvington track at Portland, Oregon.

NEARLY fifty horses are quartered at the Alameda track or near it and training will begin in January.

IN 1866 Hiram Woodruff drove Peerless a quarter in 30 seconds and Auburn Horse a quarter a little faster.

A GOOD resolution for District Agricultural associations to make on New Year's Day: "We will hold a fair in 1900."

SANRITA 2:24½, the good Sidoey mare that has proved herself to be a valuable producer, has been bred to Hal Dillard 2:04½.

ONWARD 2:25½, is now the greatest of living sires, having passed the great rival Red Wilkes in the number of produce in the 2:30 list.

THE foals of 1900 ought to be a choice lot. Good pastures will make them grow and but few poor mares were bred this year.

THE average for forty-four Allartons, running from weanlings to five year olds, was just $600. Does it pay to advertise good stock?

IT is at least pleasant to note that Sidney was sold after the New York sale at an advance of $300 over the price paid for him at auction.

WILTRABY 2:06½, the gray pacer foaled in 1892, is the fastest descendant in the male line from Blue Bull, he being a grandson of that horse.

MARGARET WORTH 2:15, is often seen on the New York speedway and is one of the most admired ones of the many that trot over that famous drive.

VAN S., by Challenger, is said to be siring a very large percentage of horses that have the carriage type. He stands in the Willamette Valley, Oregon.

LITTLE BROWN JUG, the brown gelding by Tom Hal Jr. that made his record of 2:11½ eighteen years ago, died recently in Tennessee at the age of 25.

THERE were a half dozen bidders on Tommy Britton 2:08 when he was sold for $20,000 and the following week his new owner, Mr. Lord, refused $25,000 for the stallion.

TRAINER SNOW who campaigned the pacer Hal B. 2:04½, will be up behind Agitato 2:09 next season, and the son of Steinway, if right will carry him nearly as fast as the Hal horse did.

AMONG the extra fast ones that have been consigned to the next Splan-Newgass sale in Chicago are W. W. P. 2:05½ and Roberts 2:09½, the pacer owned by C. N. Roberts of Denver, Colorado.

THE idea that a portion of all large purses and stakes should go to the breeder of the winner is advancing and will certainly be adopted by the majority of associations and become very popular.

DUKE and Holly, the high steppers, recently sold for $5000. Duke was sired by Masterloda, the son of Hambletonian 10, while Holly was sired by the Iowa stallion, Garnet Wilkes, son of Onward.

MARCUS DALY is the new owner of Bow Bells, and with this great son of Electioneer on his farm in Montana, together with Prodigal, Milroi and the grand collection of broodmares will certainly succeed in his endeavor to breed trotters that will sell for high and profitable prices. When such experienced man as Marcus Daly and J. B. Haggin are inclined to pay high prices for the best, the small breeder can be assured that there is money in breeding good ones.

DR. BOUCHER writes from San Jose that Miss Logan 2:06½ is not in foal to Colhart 2:08½, which is indeed unfortunate as this would very likely have proved a very happy nick. The mare may be raced next year.

EUROPEAN advices state that the young stallion Roleo 2:23 that was sold to European parties by E. P. Miller of New York, has lowered his record to 2:14 and has won over $7000 this season. Roleo is a bay horse by Nephew out of Camma by Norway.

A FILLY foaled in March, 1896, by Direct 2:05½ and out of Cricket 2:10 by Steinway, is now the property of A. C. Pennock of Cleveland, Ohio. This filly was bred by H. W. Meek of San Lorenzo and sold last year to James Butler of New York.

IT is announced that John A. McKerron (3) 2:12½ by Nutwood Wilkes will have campaigned next year. He is looking in first class condition and has lost none of his great speed. It is confidently predicted that he will trot several heats below 2:10 in his five year old form.

CORNELIUS PUTNAM, a blacksmith of Lakeview, Mass., is probably the oldest horsehoor in the country. He was born in 1819. While working in a New York shop he shod the old time horses Dutchman, Jack Rossiter, Lady Suffolk, Pelham, Pocahontas and Ethan Allan.

RAMAGE BROE of Haywards, Cal., has claimed the name of Nance O'Neil for a bay filly foaled 1899, by Diablo 2:09½ out of Abyssinia by Mambrino Wilkes. Nance O'Neil is a very promising miss and is entered in the Horse Review $6000 Subscription Purse to be trotted in 1902.

SWEETHEART, the bay mare by Sidney which took a record of 2:21½ at Torrington, Ct., in October, was bred by the late G. Valensin, Pleasanton, Cal. She is nine years old, is out of Getania, by Crown Point; second dam Guadaloupe by Critchton, thoroughbred son of imp. Gleacos. Sweetheart is now owned by A. S. Rowland, Mt. Sinai, N. Y.

IT is seldom that three generations are sold in the same auction ring during one sale. At the Fasig sale in New York Flora McGregor sold for $3000; her daughter Elloree 2:08½, then sold for $4750, and Elloree's daughter Invala for $1150, while Locha, another daughter, brought $3100. The royal families are high priced when they are truly royal.

A SUBSCRIBER to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN desires to know if there was at one time in California a horse by the name of Ned Ketchum, or Broomfield's Ketchum, owned in the vicinity of Healdsburg or Santa Rosa. Our records do not contain the name of such a horse. Can any of our readers give us information about him?

MONTEREY 2:09½, was not at the New York sale. Pete Williams was not willing to put him up and run the risk of a low price. Monterey may be taken to Kentucky and make the season of 1900 in the stud there. He has some grand looking weanlings on this Coast, though he was bred to very few mares prior to last year.

ONE of the easiest and most effective ways to clean the mud from the legs of a horse is to take a piece of sacking or hurlap and passing it around the leg take an end in each hand and draw it rapidly back and forth in the same manner the shoe polisher does when giving you a "shine." The rapid action of the dry burlap creates heat and dries the skin as well as effectually removing the mud.

GOOD times in the horse business are here again, but the buyers are not paying "mania" prices by a long shot. At the Kellogg sale in New York in March 1899, the late William Corbett sold 25 Gny Wilkes yearlings that averaged $1370, and 39 head of one, two and three year olds averaged $1750. The late L. J. Rose sold nine two year olds that averaged over $4000 each at the same sale.

WILLIE SHIELDS, the owner of the crack race horse Zoroaster, has concluded that a good road horse will give him lots of pleasure and has purchased the good looking trotter Alex Button Jr. 2:26½, by Alexander Button, dam Kata Kearney, by John Nelson. Alex Button Jr. was foaled in 1886, but looks and acts like a horse of half his age, and is one of the best looking roadsters seen on our park drives.

THE brown mare Tiptinos 2:29½ by Antinous, son of Electioneer, is for sale. She is an elegant road mare, sound and all right. She made her record this year at Marysville and was in the Salishory string on the circuit, but struck company that was too fast for her. In the summaries of the races, as published in the programs and written in the judges' books, her name was spelled Tip Timores. Mr. A. G. Gunnett of 303 Pine street, now owns her and has her for sale. She can trot fast on the road and is an easy driver.

AN item is going the rounds of the Eastern papers that "White Hat" McCarty recently sold a lot of range horses at auction in San Francisco at an average of $98. McCarty did have a sale here a few weeks ago but the horses were not "range" animals as that term is usually understood. They were nearly all by standard bred sires and out of well bred mares. They had never been worked for racing purposes but there was a good proportion of fair roadsters among them. About thirty head were sold and $175 was the top price, while some went as low as $25. The sires represented were Nephew, California Prince, Balkan, Dexterwood, Capri and others.

SAM HOY, of Winters, was in town last week and tells us he will campaign quite a string of trotters and pacers next season. His grand looking young stallion Bayswater Wilkes by Sahle Wilkes, out of the thoroughbred mare Fannie Bayswater, dam of Senator L. 2:29, will have a number of well bred mares sent to him next spring. But one of the get of Bayswater Wilkes ever started in a race and that is Kelly Brig 2:10½, the four year old pacer, that won three races out of five starts this year and was never outside the money. Mr. Hoy is opposed to bookmaking on trotting races and says he will not race where it is allowed. So say many others of our best trainers.

MILO KNOX has now a full carload of horses engaged for the Splan-Newgass Chicago sale and is seriously contemplating getting another carload as there are quite a number of owners who desire to consign horses to the sale. Mr. Knox says he will take nothing that is not of class enough to bring a good price if they arrive in good shape and John Splan writes that high class horses will bring high prices in Chicago at the coming sale.

H. W. MEEK, of Haywards, has quite a number of young trotters and pacers at work on his three-quarter mile track under the care of the well known horseman, Geo. Gray. They are Diablo, McKinney, Wm. Harold and Welcome and a goodly proportion of promising ones are among them. A four year old by Sidmoor, son of Sidoey, is the fast one of the lot, and he stepped off a quarter in 35 seconds after being driven but a few times. He is a pacer. Mr. Meek recently purchased in Fresno a very handsome gray Percheron stallion that is but two years old and weighs 1850 pounds.

THE greatest prize winner in England and Ireland this year in the speed classes and the classes for pace and action, winning the red ribbon, the symbol of first money in those countries, at the Royal Dublin Show, the Royal Show at Richmond and other great shows, was the gray gelding Piloteer 2:23½ by Pilot Medium, dam Cora Belle by Magna Charta. This invincible show horse was bred by L. Kinney & Sons, Albion, Mich., and is owned by Lord William Beresford, patron of the famous jockey, W. Tod Sloan, and owner, among many other winning American thoroughbreds, now racing in England, of the unbeaten two year old gelding, Democrat, now favorite for the Derby.

THERE will be no harness racing at San Jose during the Golden Jubilee which is to be held there next week in honor of California's admission to statehood. It was announced when the District Fair was declared off that a fair might be held during the jubilee and a program of races given, but the rainy season having set in in earnest caused the project to be abandoned. During the three days' festivities, however, there will be a revival of old Spanish sports at Agricultural Park in the Garden City, which will carry the memories of the old inhabitants back forty or fifty years. There will be bronco riding, lassoing of wild steers, picking up hats and handkerchiefs from the ground while riding at full speed and various other sports of the old Spanish days.

T. E. KEATING purchased a few days ago from Mr. C. Cropsy of the Livermore valley, the chestnut colt Don Derby, foaled 1897, and a full brother to Diablo 2:09½, Elf 2:21½, Ed Esaffery 2:16½ and Jay Eff Bee (1) 2:26½. Don Derby is a very heavily muscled colt, with wonderful speed for a two year old and is expected to be one of the sensational three year olds of next year if no accident happens to him. Sam Hoy, of Winters, has another of this celebrated family in Demonio. This horse is also a pacer and will be five years old in the spring. He started once this year at the State Fair in the 2:25 class, and paced a very good race, though he got but third money and was but three or four lengths behind Myrtha Whips when she paced in 2:12, and was second or third in nearly every heat.

THAT there are many caprices and vagaries in the horse business was clearly illustrated at the recent New York auction when, in spite of the fact that it was one of the greatest sales ever held and that the average price for nearly eight hundred good, bad and indifferent animals disposed of was $428, that great sire Sidney 2:19½, bred in California by Monroe Salishory, and owned and made great by the late Count Valensin, was sold for the comparatively insignificant sum of $575, quite a drop from the $27,000 he brought a few years ago when sold by the executors of the Valensin estate. It was not that Sidney had passed the years of usefulness, as, although he was foaled in 1881, he is still a vigorous horse and probably will have a foal gatter for a half dozen years yet. He is the sire of 54 trotters and 36 pacers in the standard list, the fastest of the trotters being Dr. Leek and Monterey, both with records of 2:09½, and the fastest of the pacers Lena N. 2:05½.

THE sensation of the New York speedway just now is a big gelding called Baylight. The fast trotter David B. 2:09½ has been having several hrnses lately with the champion road horse Cohwehs 2:12, by Whips and on more than one occasion has beaten him a length or so in a brush of a quarter where they were timed in from 31 to 32 seconds by the onlookers. The other day Geo. A. Coleman came on the drive with a big bay horse and tacked J. W. Cornish's David B., who happened to be there also. They had a couple of bouts and the big bay just walked away from the 2:09½ horse. Then there was great curiosity to know the name and breeding of the new comer, and it was ascertained to be Baylight, by Starlight, a son of Keotncky Prince, his dam Emeline by Goldsmith's Volunteer. The noted trainer John S. Clark, who formerly owned Wedgewood 2:19, Favonia 2:15 and Prodigal 2:16, and who raised the dam of John R. Gentry 2:00½, says that he has ridden faster behind Baylight than he has ever rode behind any trotter, pacer or runner, and he has hrnsed some of the fastest. Baylight's record is 2:33½, made in a matinee race the only time he ever started.

IT is decided that the last soo of Beautiful Bells, Monbells by Mendocino, will remain in California, though it is very likely that some of the wealthy Eastern breeders will make an offer for him that the Palo Alto Stock Farm will be compelled to refuse. Bow Bells sold for $20,000 to Marcus Daly a few weeks ago and is often referred to as one of the grandest looking horses ever bred at Palo Alto, but Monbells is said by experts to have the qualities necessary to defeat Bow Bells in the show ring. He will be bred to a limited number of Palo Alto's choicest mares next spring (he was foaled in 1897). Monbells is the only son of the great Beautiful Bells remaining in California and it would indeed be a pity to see him removed from the State, and from the farm whereon that wonderful family, of which he is the youngest representative, was bred. Beautiful Bells is without doubt the greatest of broodmares and her greatness has not reached its full measure by considerable, as her oldest son Chimes is still comparatively a young horse, having been foaled in 1894. The decision to keep Monbells at the farm will be received with much pleasure by all persons in California who are interested in the trotting horse.

The New Memphis Jockey Club.

The "Bluff City," as Memphis is called, is one of the most popular racing centers in the South, and the annual spring race meetings under the auspices of the New Memphis Jockey Club, rank first on the list of sporting events in that section, and so well are they patronized by the better class of people that they are equally as important socially.

The attention of owners and trainers is called to the announcement of the New Memphis Jockey Club, published elsewhere in this issue of eleven stakes, nine of which are for the coming spring meeting which opens April 5th at Montgomery Park, Memphis, Tenn., and continues twenty days, closing April 27th, and two for the spring meeting 1901.

Guaranteed stakes no longer seem popular, and the club in response to a general demand has abandoned the plan, and all the stakes have added values.

The events are as follows for the coming spring meeting: Gaston Hotel, $1000, for two year olds, colts and geldings, four furlongs; Ardelle, $1000, for two year old fillies, five furlongs; Memphis, $1000, for two year olds, five furlongs; Lombarman, $700, for two year olds, four and a half furlong; Turf Congress, the club adds $1000 and the Turf Congress $1000, for three year olds, one mile; Tennessee Brewing Company, $1000, for three year olds and upward, seven furlongs; Peabody Hotel Handicap, $1000, for three year olds and upward, one mile and an eighth; Montgomery Handicap, $2000, for three year olds and upward, one mile and a sixteenth, and Cotton Steeplechase, Handicap, $700, for four year olds and upward, about two miles.

Two classic events are announced for 1901, namely: Tennessee Derby, $300 for three year olds (foals of 1898), one mile and an eighth, and Tennessee Oaks, $1500, for fillies, three years old (foals of 1898), one mile.

Three guaranteed stakes were offered last season, but as they all have added values this year they will be more valuable than ever before. The values of the respective fixtures last season were as follows: Gaston $2090, Ardelle $1940, Memphis $1990, Naw Gayoso (now the Lombarman) $1000 guaranteed; Liechardmann Hotel (now Turf Congress) $1500 guaranteed (now Turf Congress) $1500 guaranteed; Tennessee Derby $7160, Tennessee Oaks $2900, Montgomery Handicap $3470, Peabody Hotel $1500 guaranteed, Tennessee Brewing $2170. The Cotton Steeplechase failed to fill. The above will give turfmen an idea of the value of these stakes.

No job in the West or South offers richer stakes. The Turf Congress States is a new departure and should find favor.

The management intend to give two jumping events each week, which should insure a good entry list in the Cotton Steeplechase.

Entries close Jan. 1st, and should be addressed to M. N. Macfarland, secretary New Memphis Jockey Club, Room 2, Cotton Exchange Building, Memphis, Tenn. We hope to see these stakes receive the support they deserve.

Owners and trainers should remember that second declarations are Jan 1st, on the Tennessee Derby and the Tennessee Oaks.—Spirit of the Times.

Proposed Amendments of Jockey Club Rules.

Several important amendments to the racing rules of the Jockey Club are in contemplation and they outline innovations of unusual interest to horsemen. One of the most noticeable reforms is aimed at two year olds with a view to prevent their being raced to excess in the early spring. The details, as officially announced in The Racing Calendar of December 7th, are:

F. R. Hitchcock gives notice that at the regular monthly meeting of the Jockey Club to be held on Thursday, Jan. 1, 1900, he will move the adoption of the following amendments to the racing rules:

Amend rule 4, part 3, by adding after the second paragraph, "Before June 1 in each year no two year old shall run in any race with more than $1000 added."

Note—This shall not apply to races closed or advertised to close.

Amend Part 17, par. 1, by striking out the words, "Or one of the horses making such dead heat be withdrawn," and add the words, "but if any out of the horses running a dead heat be two years old, the dead heat shall not be run off and owners shall divide."

Also by adding as a separate clause, "If either owner refuse to run off the dead heat the race shall be divided." Part 17, par. 1, as amended, to read as follows: "In races not of heats a dead heat for the first place is to be run off on the same day, at the time the stewards appoint,"

but at an interval of not less than twenty minutes, unless the race admits of division and the owners agree to divide, but if any one of the horses running a dead heat be two years old, the dead heat shall not be run off and owners shall divide. If either owner refuse to run off the dead heat, the race shall be divided."

Amend Part 25, rule 165, first paragraph, by adding after the words "stewards," the words "of the Jockey Club."

Part 25, rule 165, first paragraph, as amended, to read as follows: "When there is no specified penalty for violation of the rules of racing or of the regulations of the course, the stewards of the Jockey Club have power to disqualify, fine, suspend, expel from or rule off"

Jim McCue to Build a Race Track.

Word comes from Seattle that "Doctor" James S. McCue, the well known California pioneer horseman, stage driver, circus owner, veterinarian and at present Alaskan mail contractor, is in that city and arranging to build a race track where winter racing is to be conducted. Doctor Jim is not alone in the enterprise. There are a number of capitalists in the Puget Sound country who see the glorious opportunity offered at Seattle of meeting the returning Klondiker and Cape Nomeite at the very threshold of the United States (when they return from the frozen north in the late fall with pockets and purses bulging with nuggets) with a fully equipped race track and a band of hookmakers, a combination that will give the miners five or more runs for their money six days in the week until spring when the aforesaid miners can again start north with purses and pockets in shape for refilling. The property known as Woodland Park in Seattle is the site of the proposed track. McCue was interviewed by a Seattle newspaper reporter the other day and said:

"A good race track in Seattle," he said in the interview, "will bring to this city many Alaska miners and men of means who will spend the winter here. Just as soon as the ownership of Woodland Park is settled I am prepared to make a proposition whereby I will expend $50,000 in a track and suitable buildings. There are a number of prominent horsemen interested in the matter and the money is all ready as soon as we can get the ground. I am not at liberty to say just what our proposition will be, but it is more than probable that Seattle will have a race track before another year."

SADDLE NOTES.

CURLEY BROWN is at New Orleans and his horses are racing at the track there. Dan Murray, his victim at the Newport track, is also at New Orleans.

KILDEER, the Darchin mare, bred at Rancho del Paso, that ran a record mile at Monmouth Park in 1:37 1/2 is in foal to Meddler, and has a weanling hay colt by him, a blocky, compact fellow, that looks like he would grow into a hardy horse, and a good horse, too. Kildeer is a sister to Lucky Dog and is owned now by W. C. Whitney.

THE well known stallion Clorane by Castlereagh—May Girl by Victor died Tuesday, November 11th, at the Foxhill Stud Farm. It is probable that breeders have sustained a severe loss, as he was such a grand performer and such a good looking horse that he could hardly have failed to reproduce stock worthy of such a sire. He was retired to the stud two years ago.

LOUIS STRAUS, of the firm of Louis & Gns Straus, one of Lexington's leading and wealthiest clothiers, died December 8th. His estate is valued at over a half million. He and his brother Gus were the chief backers of John E. Madden, the noted race horse man, and are said to be responsible in a large part for his success. Mr. Straus was a large owner of thoroughbreds and served as judge at various courses throughout the country. He was interested in Hamburg, Plaudit and David Garrick of Madden's string, and many other valuable thoroughbreds.

THE New Louisville Jockey Club has announced the stakes for the next spring meeting at Churchill Downs, beginning May 31 and continuing fifteen days. Eleven stakes will be run, including the Derby $6000, Clark Stake $4000 and Kentucky Oaks $3600, which have been closed. The remaining eight stakes close on January 15th and are as follows: Debutante Stakes, two year old fillies, four furlongs, $1300; Wrennah Stakes, two year old colts, four and a half furlongs, $1300; Juvenile Stakes, two year olds, five furlongs, selling, $1300; Blue Grass Stakes, three year olds, six and one-half furlongs, $1300; Mademoiselle Stakes, three year old fillies, selling, $1250; Premier Stakes, three year olds, one mile, $1300; Frankfur Stakes, three year olds and upwards, one mile, $1300; Turf Congress Handicap, three year olds and upward, one mile and a sixteenth, $1000 added.

ZOROASTER won the Spring Valley Handicap and $1200 for his owner, Willis Shields, rather easily at Tanforan last Saturday and is certainly a horse of considerable class. He had 118 pounds up which, in the opinion of the wise, was sufficient to make him have about one chance in five and the books consequently laid four to one against him. The Shields contingent had about $500 in the ring when the odds were put up, and Zoroaster was made favorite before they could get it all played on the little horse. When the gate was elevated Eddia Jones took Silver Tooe to the front and made a hot pace with Senora Caesar second, Jennie Reid third and Zoroaster lying fourth and running easily. The Rayon d'Or horse had the race won when the stretch was entered and was first by two lengths at the wire, with Silver Tone second and Jennie Reid third. Spencer put up a very good ride on the winner, though the "friends" of the owner thought he should have drawn the finish finer and not "shown up" the horse so much.

A STEEPLCHASE course has been built at New Orleans and the jumpers began their innings there last week.

Breed What the Market Demands.

The recent Fasig-Tipton sale will add a greater stimulus to the breeding of good horses than that business has received for the past six years. The outlook for breeders of that kind of stock is very encouraging. At present prices, and those which are sure to prevail during the next five years, at least, even those who are raising horses in the North can get their money back, and a little more, provided they exercise sound judgment in the selection of broodmares, as well as stallions with which to mate them, and take proper care of their stock from the time of mating their mares until the foals are matured, broken to harness and ready for the market.

Unless a man is born with a natural love for good horses and is a good judge of horse flesh he had better not engage in the business. These qualities are almost indispensable to success under the conditions which now prevail and are likely to in future. Buyers are becoming more critical every year, and while it is true that a plain horse which lacks size but shows speed enough to win in remarkably fast time, together with a disposition to do his best at all times and under all circumstances, and endurance enough to finish his miles strong and repeat heat after heat will always bring good money, most horsemen are looking for animals which have size, beauty and style, combined with great speed and first-class racing qualities. It is a much more difficult matter to produce animals which have all these qualities than those which have only one or more of them.

The reason why such animals as the above command the high prices that they always have and always will is because it is so difficult to produce them that there is always a scarcity. The farmer of limited means who breeds only a few each year cannot afford to breed solely for speed and racing qualities. He should leave that to the wealthy class of breeders, who are able to buy the best of mares, patronize the most successful of stallions and hire first-class trainers to develop and campaign their stock.

The time is past, never to return, when well bred, promising, undeveloped youngsters will command fabulous prices. Men who pay big money now must hold their watches on the animals and learn by personal observation that they can and do really show the speed claimed for them.

When a small breeder succeeds in raising a colt or filly with speed capacity enough for track work and racing qualities that will enable him or her to race successfully, the cost of fitting the animal, added to that of raising him, will in the majority of cases be more than the purchaser will pay unless the breeder is so fortunate as to be a skillful trainer himself.

Next to the very fast trotters and pacers, horses that show plenty of the right kind of knee and hock action command the highest prices. Quality counts for more than size in this class, but such as combine size with first-class quality bring the highest prices. Those who have watched the reports of sales closely will remember that some trotting bred high actors which have never trotted miles in 2:30 have brought as high as $4100, and that others which have only stood 15 hands have sold for from $2000 upward under the hammer.

The small breeder can raise such animals at a profit. It costs something to educate and fit them for the market, but not nearly as much as it does to develop the speed of a majority of the fast ones. The man who has a good hitting harness, a smooth yard or small field, with soft footing and plenty of straw or brush, can train the high actor right at home, provided he is something of a natural horseman.

Good-sized, sound, handsome, stylish, well-broken, free-driving carriage horses can now be raised at some profit by most small breeders. They should be broken and ready for the market by the time they are four years old. Broodmares should be fed liberally while carrying such foals, and the youngsters should have plenty of muscle and bone-making food from the time they begin to eat until sold. At maturity they should stand from 15.2 to 16 hands high, and weigh from 1050 upwards, in fair road condition. There will be as great a scarcity for this kind of horses for the next few years as of campaigning material. It will not cost the breeder more than $25 or $50 to have such an animal thoroughly educated to harness and fitted for the market.

The farmer who uses proper care in the selection of his broodmares, and mates them with the right kind of a trotting stallion, will stand a good chance of producing occasionally a fast trotter and high class actor without diminishing his chances of getting a large percentage of first class road and carriage horses. Men who breed in this manner are likely to find more profit in the business than those who breed solely for carriage and road horse. It will pay the small breeders to keep close watch of the market. If they will attend the public sales of first class horse stock, they can see for themselves the conformation, style, gait and manners of the horses which bring the highest prices. Bearing in mind the fact that like produces like or the likeness of some ancestor, not infrequently a remote one, they can then select their breeding stock with a reasonable certainty of producing such a class of animals as the market demands.

When it is time to sell the stock never refuse a fair offer. Always remember that it is better to regret selling an animal than to regret not disposing of him. The farmer who sells at his own home knows what he is getting for his horses.

A farmer may be very successful in raising good horses, but when he takes them to the city to sell may learn to his sorrow that he is a poor salesman. The city sales stables are generally well supplied with city broken animals, and the country farmer who takes his green horses to the city to sell is liable to run up a big bill for his own keep and that of his horses before he finds a customer, even if his horses do not suffer from sickness as most country horses are liable to after they have been in the city stables a few days—American Horse Breeder.

A Battle Between Bear and Horse.

SIMPSON'S CORNERS, N. C., Dec. 1.—Fully 150 typical mountaineers, hunters, trappers and tarheel loungers were congregated about Simpson's store, the only place of business within twenty miles, when I arrived last Saturday. Having a curiosity to learn the cause of the odd combination, I inquired of a loog-limbed, red-headed butternut hunter.

"Wal, stranger, ther's goin' to come off right away the gosh durdest fight you ever saw right here at the corners."

"Who are the contestants and what are they going to fight for?"

"Thar sin't no who 'bout it. It's ole Jim Bell's stalynn that's goin' to lambaste Sam Carter's two big bars, an' let me tell you stranger, it will be a fight to 'member for many a year, an' I'm hettin' on the stalynn."

"A horse to do battle with two full-grown bears? Why, my friend, the bears ought to be able to tear him to pieces in a jiffy."

"Say, stranger, it's 'parent you don't know that hoss. Why, that stalynn's the biggest devil this side of ole Nautchalah. Thers sin't no livin' critter on four legs can down him. That stalynn's wiped out half a dozen bars, killed a painter an' near 'bont cleaned out the creek of men and critters the last year. Ha's dang'us as din'mite, an' nobody can handle him 'ceptin' ole Jim's hoy, Jack, an' how'n t'under ha does it nobody knows. Sum folks say ha hip ntizes the hoss. Mebbe he does; anyway, he's the only human that can handle him."

"Where can I find this terrible animal?"

"Right over there in that pen," replied my informant, pointing to a big stockade of heavy timbers a short distance down the creek.

When I climbed up and stood upon a wide shelf or string of logs which extended entirely around the sixty-foot stockade and looked over at the occupant of the pen I was forced to confess that the hunter had not exaggerated, at least so far as the horse was concerned. The animal I looked upon was a wild stallion of the mountain breed, common in the highlands of North Carolina.

Although not above 14½ hands in height, he was certainly the most vicious and savage looking brute of the equine species I had ever looked at. He was black as a coal, with long mane and tail and with limbs of perfect symmetry, and but for the manner in which he rolled his eyes and curled his lips above his long glistening teeth as he snarled at the people on the shelf, making them dodge down out of reach, he would have been a perfect beauty. As it was, his actions showed him to be a devil incarnate.

I had scarcely taken all this in when four men came up lading two tremendous bears, either of which would have tipped the scale at 400 pounds. The crowd followed close behind, and almost before the men had opened two small gates at the bottom of the stockade to let the bears in a human belt encircled the stockade, the bears were let in at opposite sides, and almost in a flash there began the most terrific and bloody battle I had ever seen.

I have witnessed in the Old North State and in the mountains battles between catamounts and holl dogs. I have seen a panther pitted against dogs, bears and catamounts, and once witnessed a royal battle in Texas, in which two big bears and a panther fought a drove of peccaries, but in comparison with the fight which followed all of the above seemed placid as schoolboy play.

The bears had barely time to straighten up after their entrance before the black stallion gave a snort of rage and hounded toward the big bear, which stood almost below my feet. Bruin saw him coming and rose to his hind feet, his little yellow eyes snapping with rage and hunger. The horse was too quick for him, however, for before the bear could strike with his powerful arms the stallion reared up, drove both forefeet squarely into the bear's face and neck, knocking him six feet away.

Whelming like lightning, the enraged stallion gathered to kick, but before he could launch out bear No. 2 came up on a gallop, and just as the horse's heels left the ground the bear gave a quick snarl, catching the hide about a foot above the fetlock, and tearing away a strip of hide a foot long and an inch in width. With a scream of rage and pain the horse hounded into the air, clear over the bear, and whirled, it appeared, so quickly was it done, almost in mid air, and before No. 2 could face about the stallion's sharp teeth closed over one of its ears.

A snap, a rip of tearing flesh and one ear and a big piece of hide were gone. The bear, growling with rage, was on its hind feet in a second, but only in time to catch a vicious kick with both hind feet, which sent it over on its back. As before, the horse was compelled to whirl about to face a second enemy, for bear No. 1 had gotten on its feet and was rushing to the fray. Then, for two or three minutes, it appeared—but which probably was not much more than as many seconds—there was a mix-up of hide, hair and heels, mingled with growls, savage snorts and snapping teeth.

One bear was down and badly hurt. The other bear, No. 2, was bleeding profusely about the head and one of his legs seemed to be crippled. As for the stallion he was fearfully torn on every one of his four legs.

But before I could take in the full extent of injuries given and received by the three fighters they were all again on the move. The bears this time separated to attack the stallion from different quarters, but they met with a ring general, for the horse whirled and charged directly at one of them, and as the bear attempted to gain his hind feet, he wheeled and launched both hind hoofs with a sickening thud against his ribs.

I could plainly hear the snap of broken bones as the bear toppled over, but before the stallion could dodge or throw up his head out of reach No. 2 struck him on the nose with his claws.

Down went both, hoofs and claws flying. A second after the horse, which now seemed a mass of torn and bleeding flesh, hounded into the air and came down with all four feet on his prostrate foe, crushing bone, flesh and muscle beneath. Then, scarcely giving his dying foe a glance, the crazed stallion sprang at his other enemy, who was trying vainly to regain his feet. Again the stallion sprang into the air, with his four feet gathered into bunch, and again there was a sickening crunch of bone and flesh. Both bears were now dead, crushed and kicked into two bloody masses of wool, bone and flesh.

After his last dash the horse walked away a few steps, then, turning, staggered up to the first bear he had knocked out, knelt down and literally tore skin and flesh from the bear's body; then with the bloody head and glistening teeth the savage brute managed to stagger over to the other mass of wool and flesh, which he served in the same manner.

After tearing and battering the body into a mass of broken bones and mangled flesh, the stallion tossed his head, from which the bloody foam flew in long flecks, gave a neigh of triumph and fell lifeless to the ground. The stallion had won the battle, but it had cost him his life.

ENGLISH turf writers are beginning to admit that their trainers and jockeys do not know it all. In a brief but none the less interesting review of the English racing season, the prominent part played by the American bred horse, trainer and jockey is well shown by the Manchester Chronicle. One of the most startling admissions made is the statement that "Americans know how to train a horse at least as well as we do." A year or two ago such a statement could not have been made by an English turf writer without exciting animosity in some quarters and derision in others. Indeed, Pryor and Pinar, who trained for Messrs. Ten Broeck and Lorillard respectively, were not by any means highly considered by English turfmen. The Chronicle says: "Experience has convinced us that the Americans know how to train a horse at least as well as we do. Their methods are different, but they seem able to take English thoroughbreds and improve them to an extraordinary extent, whereas we have not a corresponding measure of success with American bred animals which we obtain from them."

It is said that the proposed trotting track near London, England, will be built this winter, and the chief of all track builders, Seth Griffio, will go to London to superintend the construction. It is much more than probable that harness racing will become as popular in the "tight little isle" as it is in Austria and France.

To Stallion Owners.

The quickest and best method of bringing the merits of your horse to the attention of owners of the standard and thoroughbred broodmare is to advertise in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. No medium for announcements of this description is in any way equal to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it reaches all the breeders, owners, racing men and sportsmen generally throughout the Pacific Coast.

An Additional Inducement

A special article, together with a tabulated pedigree of the sire advertised during the coming stallion season, will be published. This is an advantage to advertisers of stallions that is too obvious to need further comment. Owners of broodmares are now seriously considering the selection of the stallion to breed to, and advertisements that appear early will make a greater impression than if held back until later in the season.

Oakland Bench Show.

The Collie exhibit was good in quality, thirty-six entries filling out fifteen classes. In puppies, Glenera, a black and white ten dog from Seattle took first and came second in open to Ormskirk Yarrow, a dog with fairly good head, fine body and excellent coat. Bell Bonnington was best in novice hitches with Black Bear a close second. In open hitches (tri-color) Princess Ziska was alone as was Dacul Dhn in winners' class. Both dogs showed up well, being in splendid condition. In sables, dog puppies, Verona Rover came first with Roh Roy 4th second. Princess Bosita was placed first over Lady Norman who has a number of northern wins to her credit. In open dogs, Capital, a Victoria entry took first over Soighter and Count Sergius. Lady Norman was first in open hitches, ranking Ormskirk Princess and Ormskirk Queenie by a close margin. Ormskirk Emerald Jr (a son of Ch. Ormskirk Emerald) alone in winners, dogs, shows improvement in form very much, winning first and special for best.

Bull terriers with three entries were good, Rodyard first in open and novice has a good body and legs, but is slightly thick in head and carries his tail a trifle gaily. Woodcote Queen, winner of special for best, is excellent in body, has straight legs, nice coat and head with good expression. Trilby is a promising young puppy hitch and shows the Banjo conformation strongly.

In fox terriers, wire hairs were represented by but one specimen, ordinary in quality. Smooths showed eight dogs with three classes. In puppy dogs and hitches, Inquisitor and Idelie were two youngsters showing good form and style. Victoria Wanderer hested Cerber Doon in novice dogs. The former was better in head and ears. Doon shows well, however, in body and coat and was but a shade behind the winner. In open dogs the awards were, Victoria Wanderer first, Cairnsmuir Doctor second and Cerber Doon third.

Doctor is better in head and ears than Wanderer but is a trifle leggy and should show up a little better in loins and hindquarters to rank Wanderer. Irritator, a stylish young dog, was not in proper condition to show to advantage. Elmwood Grace, first in open hitches, is a well set stylish bitch with excellent expression.

Irish terriers were few but better than have been seen here for several years. Ssenich Mixit is a good specimen but a trifle heavy.

Two Bedlingtones were benched—an innovation in Coast shows by the way. Both were excellent types and would show in hot competition.

Single entries of a Japanese spaniel Princess Jap, the Blenheim bitch Dorothy of Blenheim and an Italian greyhound Blue Bell (which was sold the first night of the show) were all excellent dogs, the Blenheim particularly so. We note with regret Mr. Stewart's loss of Duke of Gloster, a Blenheim, which had been entered but unfortunately died before the show opened.

Hendler W. B. Counts has now with him at Bakersfield a string of sixteen Derby and All Age dogs which he is hard at work preparing for the field trials next month. Mr. Counts built himself a commodious cabin in a favorable location but had hard luck in keeping in touch with a bevy of quail in the vicinity. During his absence one day some hunters were in his district and succeeded in bagging nearly every bird in the flock.

California Eborcum, the young rough coat St. Bernard owned by H. H. White of Oakland, has improved to a great degree since the May show in this city. He has a good head, intelligent expression, shows up remarkably well in bone and legs, stands well and has a beautiful coat. He weighs now about 230 pounds.

H. S. Betten left for Bakersfield last Saturday. He took with him four setters, Verona, California's Woodcroft, Bonnie Jim and Lawrence which he will get ready for the field trials. He also has two of Alec Truman's pointers in charge.

The Brook of Auld Lang Syne.

As months and rolling years depart,
And human lives decline,
With an intenser love the heart
Clings to auld lang syne.
Though costly roof and gilded dome
Above us brightly shine,
Still do we cherish childhood's home,
The roof of auld lang syne.

We love the song of piping bird,
Sheep bleat and low of kine,
For hymn of birds and sounds of herd
Remind of auld lang syne.
We love at dawn's encircling'd break
Thro' grove of oak or pine
To pass, for near them gleam the lake
And brook of auld lang syne.

Ah! happy time, enchanting time!
When first with rod and line,
We hasten'd in the sweet June time
To brooks of auld lang syne:
Where shadows of the branching oak
Made dim the tranquil stream,
Where bright the spangled beauties broke
With such resplendent gleam!
We knew each sandy bar and cove,
Each rock where ripples spun,
Each shallow where the lilies thrive,
Each reach where currents run.
We knew where 'neath each green bank side
Where red the roses wine,
In hollow'd cave the darlings hide,
The trout of auld lang syne.

Fish Lines.

Local anglers have at present but little more to engage their attention than a retrospect of the past season, pleasant or otherwise as the case may be innividually. Russian river has not as yet given the sport that was anticipated in the stream by the usual winter run of steelheads, up to date but very few have been landed. Point Reyes tide waters have during the week yielded several good catches, the fish have averaged well in size. An Eastern sportsman, a Mr. Sargent, who has been stopping at Rochefort's is credited with an excellent catch during the week.

It will be seen from the following taken from the Utica Herald that Eastern anglers not only have an enviable variety of sport with rod and line but the past season on the St. Lawrence river has, it is reported, been one of the best ever known.

"Probably there are no public waters where the laws are more carefully observed and fishing is carried on in a more sportsmanlike manner than at the Thousand Islands or what is known as the State reservation on the St. Lawrence River. The special provisions in the game laws relating to the waters of the Thousand Islands make the open season for black bass, Oswego bass, pickerel, pike, wall-eyed pike, and muskallonge from June 9th to January 1st. Bass less than ten inches in length cannot be legally taken. No person is permitted to catch, kill or possess more than twelve bass in any one day, and where two or more persons are fishing from the same boat, they cannot take to exceed twenty-four bass in a day.

The Anglers' Association of the St. Lawrence River, a large and influential organization, composed mainly of prominent business and professional men from different parts of the United States, who have summer homes among the islands, and also including many of the principal citizens of Clayton and Alexandria bay, is entitled to great credit for the healthy sentiment regarding fishing which prevails within the reservation. It is largely due to the efforts of the association that the international park exists, that the special protective provisions were enacted and enforced, and that the sentiment in favor of sportsmanlike angling is so strong.

During the first few weeks after the season opened this year the fishing was not very good in the river owing to the great number of menhaden. For some time the bass, muskallonge and pickerel all displayed utter contempt for the angler's hook, trolling spoon and live bait, evidently finding their wants fully supplied by the myriads of little fish mentioned. About August 1st, however, the game fish began to bite vigorously, and they have kept it up, so that as a whole this has been one of the best fishing seasons known on the St. Lawrence for many years.

The average weight of the black bass which are caught in the waters of the St. Lawrence is from one and one half to two pounds, and a three-pounder is considered quite a big one. When one is caught which tips the scales at four pounds it is an event which is worth bragging about, and every ounce above that weight is counted as of great importance. Once in a great while a specimen is taken weighing four and a half or five pounds, but such occurrences are extremely rare. The St. Lawrence pickerel or pike proper averages from three to seven pounds in weight, and a ten-pounder is a big one. It is not a very uncommon thing, however, to see them weighing from twelve to sixteen pounds, and in rare cases they are taken weighing twenty pounds or even a trifle more. The muskallonge frequently attains great size, and while those which weigh from fourteen to twenty pounds are counted as good ones, hardly a season passes without the capture of a specimen weighing from thirty to forty pounds, and once in a great while even the latter mark is passed.

From records kept during the past season of big muskallonge caught on the river the following figures are taken: August—A twenty-two pound muskallonge caught near Terrace Park; one weighing 35 pounds taken near Big Island; one weighing 10½ pounds caught off Bartlett Point, one mile above Clayton; two captured near Hamilton's Island, one weighing 18 and the other 36 pounds. September—A muskallonge captured by a Frontenac guest weighed over 30 pounds; specimens were caught near Carleton Island weighing 27, 18½, 9 and 15 pounds, respectively; near Mile Free Point one was taken weighing 18½ pounds. Many fine catches of black bass and pickerel were also made. Several very large wall-eyed pike were taken in the river opposite Fine View. They were caught in deep water.

Black bass were very numerous in the vicinity of Cape Vincent during the season, and oarsmen found profitable employment in fishing for the market. Quantities of them were sold for 5 cents per pound. It is said that a gentleman from New York, together with his guide, took 3500 pounds of black bass in the lake (Ontario) near Cape Vincent and off Stoney Island. The waters around Cape Vincent are not included in the State reservation of the St. Lawrence river."

At this season of the year the Oakland and Alameda waters are invaded by countless thousands of silver smelt. The estuary is full of them now, but in Lake Merritt, the Oaklanders are having gala times taking them from the lake. Last Sunday "Ollow Legs" made a trip to the lake "on the quiet" he had not been there long before he noticed the familiar figure of that persistent angler "Doc" Watts. The recognition was mutual, greetings and monitorial questions quickly passed back and forth, both agreed to keep secret the piscatorial discovery they had made. "Ollow Legs" filled a bushel basket with fingerlings, Watts had equal success with his especially imported Scotch fliss.

Striped bass are being caught in plenty in the sloughs of the Petaluma marshes and at the mouth of the creek by the net fishermen. Anglers can not conveniently fish that side of the bay with rod and line as it is almost impossible to procure boats in the vicinity of the fishing ground and out of the question to endeavor to reach those points from Tiburon with a small boat. The fish run from one to six pounds and larger, they are in their feeding. The large bass, it seems, have gone out into the ocean.

Isaac Welton died December 15, 1885.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The E. A. Sawyer ranch near Hollister has been posted against shooters. The property has been leased by the Hollister Gun Club as a shooting preserve.

Paul E. Kellar left this city for New York on Thursday. Mr. Keller will represent the wholesale house of Dunham, Carrigan & Hayden and while East will purchase a full and complete line of goods for the sporting goods department of the above firm, which branch of the business will be under his management in the future. Wm L. Orreer will go on the road for the house and handle the line of goods in Mr. Kellers branch of the business. Both these gentlemen are known to the Coast trade and sportsmen, having been with the E. T. Allen Co. for a number of years past.

Duck shooting has improved materially during the past week. Reports from many sections show that the stormy weather has driven the birds from the open waters to seek shelter in the marshes and up among the tule districts. Last Sunday hunters who were on the Snienn, Sonoma and Petaluma marshes, on the eastern bay shores and the Belmont and San Mateo marshes almost without exception made good bags—the birds were flying in goodly numbers.

On the Country Club grounds and the Point Reyes marshes the shooting has been very good. The stormy weather on Thursday should make shooting conditions for the balance of the week excellent. Many local sportsmen left town Thursday night bound for a favorite shooting spot, in response to weather indications which invited them forth with gun and dog or to take position in the blinds yesterday morning.

The Los Angeles Gun club announces a three days' tournament commencing December 30th. Blue rock shooting will occupy one day, the live bird traps will be in use the other two. The rumor that the chief feature on the program will be a team shoot in which a team from San Francisco composed of Clarence Haight, M. O. Feudner, Clarence Naumen and Ed Schantz will compete is we are satisfied without a particle of foundation. Two of the gentlemen named are actively engaged in business and their absence at this time of the year to take part in a pigeon shoot at a distant point (however much they would like to) is not to be counted on.

We have no doubt whatever but the local shooters named would be perfectly willing to meet teams from Los Angeles and San Diego if a match can be arranged to take place in this city or vicinity, it is possible that preliminaries could be quickly settled for the contest to take place at an early date. Individual matches could, we are sure, also be scheduled for the same time and place.

Quail hunters until the past week have had a plethora of sport. The best returns have been reported from Marin county. The Country Club and Tamalpais Gun Club members who were out last Sunday with gun and dog found the quail had left the thick cover and many limit bags were counted, among those who were shooting are listed C. F. Mullin, Alex. Hamilton, Downey Harvey, Henry Fortman, W. S. Kittle and Mr. Ven Sicken of the Country Club; Fred Butler, W. C. Brown, Fred Surrhynne shot over the Tamalpais preserve. Frank Vernon and E. C. Rodolph bagged fifty-eight quail near Point Reyes on Saturday and Sunday.

San Joss sportsmen have apparently not fared so well. Hunting this season has certainly not been all that could be desired by the local sportsman; in fact, it has been exceedingly poor. The causes are many. First there was the unsuccessful attempts to secure quail. When the season first opened the weather was very unfavorable, so that the first few days' shooting brought very unfavorable reports. The rain drove the birds to thick brush, where hunting them was an almost impossibility. Then it was discovered that all the good shooting property was owned by parties who forbid trespassing to any except a very few favored friends. The birds seemed to learn upon which ground shooting was forbidden and all flocked there where they were safe.

The Game Law.

The synopsis of the game laws appearing below and published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for several years past has, from time to time been changed or the provisions of new ordinances added thereto by reason of the many and various changes in the county game and fish laws, particularly those of recent date and of application in and around the bay counties.

This synopsis has been frequently copied (in more or less garbled and incomplete form) and quoted by city and interior journals and has also been printed and distributed by business houses. While the information given at the date of issuance was substantially correct, we do not care to be held responsible for the circulation of old matter that is now incorrect in many details. Some complaint has been made in this respect and to avoid misunderstanding in the future it is suggested that for information of this character a reference be made to current numbers of the BREEDER AND SPORTS MAN for the latest and most complete data concerning the Game Laws.

The county enactments relative to the shipment of game have become inoperative under the decision of the Supreme Court of California, rendered December 5, 1899, in the case of James Knapp on habeas corpus, appealed from the Superior Court of Stanislaus county.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. Pheasants, the taking, killing, selling or having in possession at any time is prohibited; robbing or destruction of nests or having pheasant eggs in possession is a misdemeanor in the following counties: Butte, Trinity, Marin, Lake, Merced, Riverside, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Kings, Ventura, Santa Clara, Monterey, San Joaquin, Yuba.

The clerks of nearly all the Boards of supervisors have advised us no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Mono, Modoc, Mitocchino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Diego, Solano, Siskiyou, Tehama, and Yolo.

The changes are as follows: Alpine—Deer, Sept. 2 to Oct. 15. Alameda—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Male deer, July 15 to Oct. 1. Pheasants protected until February, 1904. Hunting, killing or having in possession for purpose of sale or shipment out of county; quail, bob white, partridge, wild duck, rail, mountain quail, grouse, dove, coon or deer, antelope, elk or mountain sheep prohibited. Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15. Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.

Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited). El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1. Trout, June 1 to Dec. 1. Fresno—Valley quail, Nov. 1 to Jan. 31. Individual bag limited to 25 quail per day. Mountain quail, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Doves, Aug. 15 to Feb. 15. Pheasants, bob white, quail and partridge chickens, close season in for e for an indefinite period. Use of nets or seines in county waters prohibited. Shipment of game from county prohibited.

Glenn—Deer, venison, d-i-d venison, deer skin, huck, doe or fawn; quail, grouse, pheasant, dove, plover, snipe or wild duck, shipping or taking out of the county prohibited. 25 birds per year individual limit to be taken from the county upon license and permission. Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise. Pheasants and wild turkeys protected until Oct. 1, 1900. Black brant, Oct 1 to March 1. Shipment of game out of the county prohibited. Deer, use of dogs prohibited. Striped bass—Close season until Jan. 1, 1900.

Kern—Shipping game out of the county prohibited. Quail, Oct. 1 to Feb. 1. Brouze this or carlew—Robbing or destroying nests or taking eggs, prohibited. Kings—Doves, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 15. Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1. Stanislaus—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Shipment of feathered game out of the county prohibited.

Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Siskiyou—Shipment of feathered game out of the county prohibited. Sonoma—Deer, July 15 to Oct. 1. Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Pheasants, close season till Jan. 1, 1904. Shipping game out of the county, hunting within private enclosures, prohibited. Use of nets in streams of the county prohibited.

Stanislaus—Wild ducks, dove, quail or snipe, shipment from the county prohibited. Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan. 1. Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.

Ventura—Quail any variety, Oct. 1 to Nov. 1. Hunting for sale or market of quail, grouse, dove, wild duck, deer or mountain sheep prohibited, except between Oct. 10th and 15th. Yuba—Shipping ducks and quail from the county to market prohibited.

Los Angeles—Male deer, Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. Valley quail, bob white or mountain quail, Dec 1 to Jan. 1. Doves, July 15 to Oct. 1. Shipping for sale, or shipment of quail, bob white, partridges, pheasants, grouse, doves, ducks, geese, or other game protected by statute, prohibited. Ducks, individual bag limited to 25 birds per day. Shipping game to market outside of the county prohibited. Seagulls, e-rets, pelicans, seals, protected. Trout season opens April 1st. Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15. Quail, partridge or grouse, Oct. 15 to Jan. 15. Individual bag limited to 25 birds per day. Market hunting and shipment of game from the county is prohibited. Use of Repeating shot guns prohibited. Killing of meadow larks or any other song birds prohibited. Hunting within private enclosures or on public roads prohibited. Trout, with hook and line only, April 1 to Oct. 15.

Madera—Market hunting prohibited. Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Feb. 1. Shipping or taking game out of the county prohibited. Napa—Trout, by hook and line only, April 1 to Dec. 1.

Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited). Quail, partridges or grouse, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5. Ducks, Nov. 1 to March 1. Ducks and quail, shipment from the county restricted as follows: No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds a week. Market hunting prohibited.

Placer—Trout, June 1 to Dec. 1. Plumas—Salmon, trout, May 1 to Dec 1 (netting prohibited). Riverside—Male deer, close season until July 15, 1901. July 15 to Sept. 15, thereafter. Quail, individual bag limited to 20 birds per day. Mountain or valley quail, pheasant and wild duck, sale of prohibited in the county. Wild duck, valley or mountain quail, shipment from county prohibited. Trout, any variety, close season until May 1, 1901. May 1 to Dec. 1, thereafter.

Sacramento—Quail, ducks, doves, pheasants; shooting for sale and market out of county prohibited. Taking or shipping out of county of more than ten birds in one day by any person prohibited. San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. Market hunting and shipment of game, but of county prohibited. Quail, partridge or grouse, Oct. 15 to Feb. 1. Individual bag limited to 20 birds per day. Mountain quail, perpetual close season. Trout, April 1 to Oct. 15. San Bernardino—Deer, July 15 to Sept 15; (close season continuous, 1899.) Valley or mountain quail, wild duck, sale of and shipment out of county prohibited. Trout, catching or sale of, between April 1st and May 1st of any year and during 1899, prohibited. Tree squirrels, five per day the individual limit.

San Diego—Shipment of game out of the county prohibited. San Joaquin—Shipping or taking game out of the county prohibited. Shooting on public road prohibited. Oakland Bench Show.

The dog show in Oakland which opened on the 7th inst. and closed Saturday last was financially a successful exhibit, being held in conjunction with the Oakland Poultry Association and Pacific Pigeon Club. The attendance was good throughout, particularly so on the closing night. Pacific Kennel League rules prevailed. The decisions of the judges C. D. Nairn and J. W. Barrell (setters and pointers only) were in the main satisfactorily received although in several instances dogs with Eastern bench records were turned down the wins being awarded to dogs with but fair Coast records. The reversal being due more to lack of condition if anything and not quality.

Much is due the efforts of the secretary, Mr. Norman J. Stewart, in making the third annual show of the club the excellent exhibition it has been. Mr. Louis Haaf proved an efficient officer and hard worker in the superintendence of the many details which fell to his share.

A pleasant function in connection with the show took place on the evening of the 8th inst. when a banquet was given by the officials of the Oakland Poultry Association and the California Collie Club. Addresses were made by Henry Berrar, Mr. Mitchell of Fresno, Mr. Tresler and Mr. Albers of Los Angeles, O. G. Albee and Mrs. O. G. Albee, Chas. R. Harker, Mr. Francis of Monterey, Mr. Hayes of Alameda, Frank Breed and J. S. Naismith of Oakland, Dr. Keys of Alameda, Mr. N. J. Stewart, Mr. Brown of Riverside, Vice-President L. N. Cobblestick and President Van Every.

A meeting of the Pacific Kennel League was held on the 9th inst. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President H. A. Wegener, Vice-President M. Coffey, second Vice-President O. J. Albee, third Vice-President Julius Redelsheimer, Secretary-Treasurer Norman J. Stewart. The Executive Committee will be composed of the vice-presidents and one delegate from each club not represented by either of the vice presidents.

St Bernards were a good display. The competition in this breed was not as keen as could be desired, nineteen entries being distributed among nine classes. In puppy dogs, Minstrel Boy, an Eastern dog, was absent. In novice dogs, Lew, a Valckjo entry, first, showed excellent head, body and bone. In open dogs, the two entries were good ones. May Queen, first in novice bitches, was in prime condition, she has a splendid body, legs and conformation, but would have lost to Alta Rachel, second, had the latter been in better form. Rachel shows a far better head, body, legs, style and expression, her ears are, however, a trifle too long. Princess Sheherszide and King Menelek alone in winners, bitches, and champion dogs, were never in better shape and looked well. The kennel display of Irvington Kennels was excellent.

In pointers three good specimens were shown. English setters numbered eight, seven being in seven classes all of them with the exception of seven being northern entries. Count Dick from Seattle winner of first in open being a very clever specimen of the setter type. The northern c'cgs, with few exceptions, were for sale.

Irish setters were four, Count Msck, from Portland, being the best shown. Four puppy bitches entered from Victoria were for sale.

Field spaniels brought Bozz Silk and Peg Woffington to the front without competition. Cockers had an entry of thirty distributed among eighteen classes. In puppy dogs Red Cloud Jr. second, and puppy bitch, Red Princess second, awards would have been withheld in any kind of competition. The exhibit as a whole was a very good one without calling for particular individual comment excepting in a few instances. In champion dogs Guy Silk should have been placed over Viscount easily—Silk outpointing him in head, ears and body. In open bitches, other than black, the win of Redwood Virgy can be credited to the adroitness of the handler. Mona II, second in puppy bitches, and Sweetheart's First, first in puppy dogs were two of the most promising young cockers hatched. The Stockton entries of C. Leonard were of more than ordinary merit. Little Black Z, a strikingly handsome puppy, taking first in blacks. Redwood Cocker Kennels display was one of the features of the show. Plumeria Kennels also made an ambitious effort at display. (See page 409 for conclusion.)

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Among the likely fox terriers owned in Southern California we may mention Sweet William, the property of G. L. Waring, Esq., of Santa Monica. This excellent young dog a now eighteen months old, he was shown at Santa Barbara his year and won first in puppies and the special, a cup for the best fox terrier hatched. He has a particularly good head and expression and carries his ears very well, is strong boned and shows fine conformation. Aldon Swagger, his sire, is well known to the Coast fancy, being at present installed in a local kennel. Snowflake, his dam, won every time she was shown and was a very good bitch. She had out one litter of puppies before she died. Sweet William is the only one of the litter now living. Snowflake was bred by Ch. Warren Safeguard, out of Blemton Spinway, she by Blemton Victor II, out of Spinster by Ch. Dominic, out of Avon May. This youngster carries out crosses of Stipendiary, two of Vesuvius, a son of Venio, and also a strain of such good ones as Result, Bacchanel, Dusky Trap, etc.

The recent demise of Mr. Thomas Stretch, of Ormskirk, Lancashire, will be noted with regret by the Collie fanciers of this country as well as England. The name of Stretch has, by his sons, acquired a world wide fame, and particularly so in America. His eldest son Tom has a standing among Collie breeders that is appreciated in dogdom circles. He reported the fanciers of the United States alone have paid in purchase money for five dogs a total sum of $13,500, they were Champion Christopher $5000, Ormskirk Ormoude $5000, Ormskirk Goldstuck $2500, Ormskirk Gallopian $1500 and Ormskirk Connie $1000. Besides these many others have been sent to this side, including several that are now in this State, among them we note Ormskirk Blucher, imported by Stewart and Son of Aromes. Blucher's progeny as now become well known to Collie fanciers on the Coast. He is at present owned by O. J. Albee of Lawrence, Santa Clara county.

Field Trial Notes.

The Illinois Field Trials Association held the inaugural trials of the club at Lawrenceville, Ills., on November 21 and 22d on quails, the meeting is reported to have the first of the kind ever held in the State. The attendance of Western sportsmen was a notable one. The weather was not favorable for the work in hand but birds were plenty. The performances of several of the winning dogs was under the circumstances very good. The judges were Theodore Goodman of Terre Haute, Ind., Dr. E. R. Hickerson of Moberly, Mo., and Jas. Vance, Jr., of Metoon, Ills. At the annual meeting of the association the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. Rainer, Danville, Ills.; Vice-President, James Pease, Chicago; second Vice-President, Geo. I. Nunn, Lawrenceville, Ills.; third Vice-President, Wm. Werner, Chicago; Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. O. V. Ferguson, Mattoon, Ills.; Board of Governors, W. H. Upee, Paul G. Brill, C. C. Hess, Chicago, Jas. Vance, Jr., W. Harris, C. W. Sellow, Mattoon; Dr. N. B. Pantler, Venaville, Ind.; J. W. Ribley, Galva; W. R. Greene and C. Cook, Marshall, Illa. Among the visitors was Mr. A. Leugh of Farmington, Mo., who brought with him a and quartette of field trial dogs, viz: Sport's Geth, Sport's eatiny, Two Spot and Sport's Boy.

Summaries of the two events are as follows: LAWRENCEVILLE (Ill), November 21, 1899—The Derby, Illinois Field Trial Association. For pointers or setters helped on or after January 1, 1898. The Uncertainties of Puppies.

Many dog owners and not a few breeders place much value on the "pick of the litter" in the purchase and selection of puppies. Experienced breeders whom we have met regard the question with a great deal of suspicion and place this generally regarded lucky chance for a good specimen in the category of fallacies that time and observation have developed as being practically without corresponding worth and of no real utility. The following article from the pen of John Brown, published in The Asian, will doubtless be of much interest to our readers:

There are people who will tell you that they are able, invariably and without difficulty, to select the best puppy out of a litter. To such one can only reply in the same strain as the Irishman who, on being informed that St. Patrick had crossed the channel on a mill-stone, remarked: "I can't contradict it, but he was a lucky fellow." In contradistinction to these cocksure gentlemen, a fox terrier breeder of reputation once informed me that, if he had the first choice from a six week old litter, he would be perfectly willing to surrender the privilege for a shilling. Inasmuch as the speaker was a man of means, the "shilling" was doubtless a figure of speech. Most men, whatever their views, would prefer to retain the right of choice and back their luck; but the fact remains that in consequence of the uncertainties they might have almost an equal chance of success by groping blindly at the litter enclosed in a bag. Those who are most confident are usually the least experienced. Experience teaches little more than the sure and certain unreliability of an early forecast.

A very frequent piece of advice to the young breeder is to keep a very careful record of all the pups he rears, writing down at waaning time his studied opinion of their merits and possibilities, and so gauging, by the light of their future development, his powers of judging by their young day promise. There is no objection to such a procedure if a man has patience to carry it out; it can only tend to convince him of that state of ignorance which is the first step towards knowledge; but otherwise it is likely to be of little avail. It is possible that if breeders, like the brothers Clarke of Nottingham, who at one time were producing some two hundred and fifty fox terrier puppies per annum, had adopted the method, and continued it and their operations for many years, they might at an advanced stage of life have been able to form some conclusions from the mass of facts before them; but men who breed on that scale and for a long period are as black awers.

The fact is that, although nature has certain fixed and unalterable laws, the laws are so intricate and involved that they defy calculation. The biggest, fattest, healthiest puppy in a litter may continue the sturdiest to the end, but it may also prove the reverse. The puniest may remain puny till it die of rickets and mal-nutrition, or it may survive to be the pick of the basket. A big-jointed, overgrown puppy will often cease growing with extraordinary suddenness and be small and compact; or it may develop into a slack-jointed, leggy specimen of its race. A thin and weedy whelp may thicken wonderfully as it matures. Crooked legs may deviate into all sorts of paths and end by being as straight as arrows. Badly carried ears may grow worse and worse, or they may thicken a little more with time, or shoot out into the long and lean. An under shot jaw may increase in its defect, or grow level with the coming of the second teeth. A soft coat may be best for one ear herd as thatching grass, or grow as woolly as that of a toy sheep. There is nothing, in short, that is certain except the uncertainty. The most promising puppy may be absolutely worthless, the most despised the plum of the kennel. The story of the ugly duckling has a world of moral.

No one who has watched the growth of young stock can have failed to perceive how high hopes are often shattered in the course of a comparatively few days, or how disappointment will sometimes blossom into every presage of success. Puppies grow in all their details by fits and starts. It is a way that Nature has. One day it will seem as if all the nourishment had gone into the ears; the ears are enormous and all the rest of the frame is at a standstill. Next week, the ears appear quite small. Then the legs take a turn; the poppy is like a milking stool, or the ribs take a start, or the jaw, or the jacket, or the tail. Some puppies will observe a decent sense of proportion from infancy to maturity; others pass through the most grotesque malformations to perfection. Experienced breeders will, therefore, resort to the system of retaining their best by rejecting their worst in a succession of drafts, rather than trust to any real or fancied knowledge of the craft of selection. It is a sound principle to part with no puppy until it is known by actual vision to be defective. So complicated are the effects of heredity, prepotency telegony, the influence of the first sire, both in themselves and in their relations to one another, that the best laid plans based on the evidence of things unseen "gang est agley." It may be possible to make a preliminary draft out at the time of operation from the dam. At three months of age, other puppies will perhaps have shown pronounced defects. At six months diagnosis will be fairly sure; at nine, there should be little doubt, particularly in the case of small breeds. But even then it is not always plain sailing; a weedy youngster, especially a bitch, will often flourish in the second year in a remarkable manner, while a precocious dog, exhibiting rare excellence as a twelve months puppy, will frequently thicken into coarseness with full maturity. And further, in India, however keen the desire to act on this principle, its fulfillment is almost a practical impossibility. There is no opportunity of sending puppies out to "walk"; and consequently, soon after weaning, an owner has to think how he will dispose of his surplus stock. Therefore as Mr. Doyle, in his admirable monograph on the fox terrier, quaintly remarked, if a breeder can learn the art of selecting the best puppy out of a litter, "happy man be his dole."

In truth there is, at that early age, very little of certainty except in the matter of color; and even that, especially in the case of rough and wire-haired breeds, is by no means sure. It may not be generally known that black and tan, or grizzle and tan, Airedale and Welch terriers are born as if they were smooth-coated, glossy-coated Manchester whelps with black heads and tan legs. Cases have been known where whole litters have been destroyed at birth under the impression that they were the result of a meso-alliance. Gradually, during the period of puppyhood, the color and the quality of the coat change. The black on the head turns to tan until the whole head and ears, or at any rate the major portion of them, are of this color. The tan also extends up the shoulders and thighs until the terrier is more often tan than black. With this change in color, the coat also changes; the hair becomes longer and denser and of a wire character. Even the dark portions of the neck and flanks may ultimately be dark, or even a light grizzle rather than black. And when black, the hair is not all black; one-half of each ear, the upper half or perhaps only tip, is black and the rest is a gravis tan; and novices have thought before now that the dogs they purchased had been dyed, and dyed badly. Sometimes also when the whelps have a tendency towards the smooth, they are of a light color at birth, and darker hairs come subsequently with the stronger coat. That is, they become darker in hue, instead of lighter, in course of time.

Similar conditions prevail in the case of the Yorkshire terrier. It is a curious fact, but still a fact, that the Yorkshire, which at maturity possesses a silver grey coat trailing on the ground and perhaps fourteen inches long, is born as if it were a smooth black and tan terrier; and again whole litters have been consigned to the bucket under the erroneous impression that they were mongrels. The color begins to change at an early stage of life; but, even at four months of age, is still very dark. It is dark even at nine months though the silver tints are then becoming rapidly conspicuous. The darker the Yorkshire in early puppyhood, the better the color at maturity. A puppy that shows desired tints too early will be too light in hue when full grown. Young breeders should learn to recognize these changes, or they may be parting with their best specimens through ignorance of their value.

Apart from the terriers above mentioned, all rough breeds, whether fox or Irish, Scottish, Dandies, Skyea or Beddingtons, exhibit curious changes of coat during the first twelve months of their lives. I have known wire-haired fox terrier puppies a half or fluff at an early age; and sometimes fluff continues or changes into a linty wool, and sometimes it is cast altogether in favor of a correct texture of jacket. Wire fox terriers are always born smooth, and the best coats are those which assume the broken haired character comparatively late in puppyhood. Similarly with the Scotch varieties. It is therefore always more difficult to judge the rough breeds in early life; these are all the other uncertainties with those in addition of color and coat.

Dalmatian puppies are generally quite white when born. Sometimes there may be faint spots diaphanous, or a black patch or two, or black ears; but these will always be the worst specimens. The best marked Dalmatians are pure white at birth and gradually the spots begin to appear and develop and darken. The markings may be sufficiently conspicuous at four months of age, or they may not be fully developed until twelve or fifteen. The black tongue is a characteristic of the pure bred chow chow, but puppies are rarely borne with black tongues. The tongue are the usual red at birth, and they may remain red, or turn only partially black or gradually the black spots appear and spread until the whole member is of the correct color. There is hardly any breed that has not, to a greater or less extent, its peculiarities of puppyhood, which need to be studied by practical experience for the lessons they teach. The above remarks are not intended to be exhaustive, but to merely indicate the difficulties with which the breeders have to contend.

THE FARM.

Tickling the Cows Palate.

Whatever makes the feed taste better or makes it more enjoyable to the cow, increases its value for milk production. Early cut hay is the best for the dairy cow, not only because it contains more protein than that cut late, but because its aroma and flavor make it more palatable to the cow. The appetizing effect from the early cutting and careful curing of all forage crops, increases their feed value for milk production. Freshly harvested and freshly ground grain is the most palatable to the dairy cow and will give best results. Dairy men who grind feed should grind often as grain that has lost its freshness is not the best relished by the cow.

Often the dairyman has a large quantity of coarse, rather unpalatable rough fodders, such as corn fodder and over ripe or slightly damaged hay, which he must feed, and has only a limited quantity of choice roughness to feed with it. In this case best results can be secured by giving the more palatable roughness in the morning and feeding the poorer roughage at the last feed at night, to be eaten at the cow's pleasure during the night, or else put in racks in the yard for midday meals. Palatable feed in the morning gives a contented cow through the day, and this contentment brings more milk.

When several kinds of feed are given it is usual to throw them together into the manger and let the cow eat at will. This method does not secure the highest milk yield. If all the feed stuff, for a meal are thrown together, the more palatable are eaten first. In separating and eating these, the others are "nussed" over, and when the cow comes to eat them, they do not taste good and she will not eat enough to produce the greatest milk yield. We like to feed our most palatable roughness and give this just before the milkers go to their meal. When the milkers come back from eating, the cows have finished their first feed, and the less palatable roughness can then be given them. It will not then have been slobbered on, and will be better relished and more of it eaten. This method of feeding requires time and care, but it pays. If the cows are given their rough feed in racks out of doors, it will pay to put feed in these racks often, so that the feed may be clean and appetizing. Mangers, feed troughs and racks should be kept clean and fresh from old, spoiled feed, both as a matter of health and because the food in a clean manger smells and tastes better. The dairyman's rule should be to harvest in its most palatable form and feed in the most appetizing manner.—Bulletin 81, Kansas Experimental Station.

Improve the Cows.

Ex-President Burchard said in his address to the Wisconsin Dairymen's Association last winter that every farmer ought to sell his hay and grain to a cow just as he would to any other buyer. Practical men do not keep on selling hay and grain to men who do not pay. Why should they not exhibit as good financial sense when they sell the same food to a cow? He added: "I know whereof I speak. It is just as easy to have a herd of cows that will average more than 275 pounds of butter per cow, or 600 pounds of cheese every twelve months, as it is to have one that will average less than that."

Every farmer who is trying to keep cows for profit can start on this road if he only thinks so, says Hood's Dairymen. The first step is to get a good dairy sire. We know of hundreds of farmers who have commenced in this way, and in a few years they had a herd of cows that averaged easily a hundred pounds of butter per cow more than the original herd. If you cannot afford a full grown bull, get a registered calf and raise him. Don't breed from a grade sire, no matter if he does look like a thoroughbred.

Creameries Pay.

In nearly every instance where creameries have been established in this State they have been a profitable investment. Among the successful ones is the Woodland Creamery, the butter from which always brings the top prices in the market and which cannot be produced in sufficient quantity to supply the demand for it. The balance sheet for the past year shows that $27,548.73 was distributed to the patrons for milk, and after paying all expenses and leaving over $800 cash on hand, a dividend of 8 per cent. additional was paid to the stockholders. The following is the data relative to the milk received, butter made, etc.:

Pounds of milk received.....	3,508,827
Pounds of butter made.....	160,564
Pounds of butter used by patrons.....	8,814
Average price of butter.....	8.97
Average price of milk.....	22.15
Average overplus, per cent.....	19
Pounds of butter from 100 pounds of milk.....	4.50

All kinds of leather and hides in the United States and Canada have taken a sudden jump in price, because of a general scarcity of the raw and manufactured material putting the market almost in a state of panic. The Transvaal war is helping to draw the low available supplies of American leather and add to the famine prices. American leather and hides have been exported to England in large quantities lately and the demand from across the water is on the increase.

Learning to Milk.

When a stranger begins to milk a cow, it usually results in some decrease of milk production, though he may be a good milker, says the Boston Cultivator. The better the cow the more likely she is to be of a nervous temperament and the more she is apt to be affected by a change in handling, milking or surroundings. If the new milker lacks experience, it usually results in a permanent shrinkage of the milk yield and early drying off of the cow. But it is necessary that the boys should learn to milk if they are to remain on the farm, and therefore they should be set to learn upon such cows as will naturally dry off soon. Do not give them heifers with their first calf, as the heifer should be kept in milk as long as possible to get her in the habit of giving milk 10 or 11 months in a year. Do not give them hard milkers or kickers, or the uneasy ones which never stand still. That is too much like giving them dull hoes and scythes or other tools to work with, that no man would consider fit to use for a day's work. It is calculated to disgust them with the business and drive them to seek other occupations as soon as they are at liberty to leave home. When it is not practicable to give them such a cow, allow them to partly milk her and then let some experienced milker finish the job, who will be sure to obtain the last drop.

There is a rumor that Miller and Lux, the great cattle firm of the Coast, are negotiating for 50,000 acres of land in Mauie Prairie township, Solano county. Should they make the purchase, it is said they will reclaim the land and sow it to alfalfa.

Palace Hotel Supper Room

The moderate charges, delightful orchestral concerts and the undoubted luxury are the attributes that make the new Supper Room at the Palace Hotel the favorite place for after theatre parties. Open every evening (Sundays excepted) from 9:30 to 12 o'clock. Entrance from main office and grand court.

The greatest remedy in the world for all diseases of the foot of the horse. Best for road horses; best for carriage horses; best for work horses. Cures bad feet, keeps good feet sound. Cheapest because it goes farthest and does all that is claimed of it. It was used all the past summer by Tom Murphy, California's great track shoe on the Keating horses that won $28,000 on the Grand Circuit. If you see Murphy ask him about it. Or ask Dr. Boncher of Miss Logan fame; Monroe Salisbury, Chas. Durfee or Pete Williams.

STALLION STAKE

NOMINATIONS TO CLOSE WITH SECRETARY, JAN. 1, 1900.

A sweepstake for then two-year-olds (foals of 1900) the progeny of stallions nominated by January 1st, 1900. $50 each for stallions whose service fee in 1899 was $100 or over; $20 each for all other stallions, entrance fee to accompany the nomination. Foals of all stallions nominated as above to be eligible for entry.

Foals to be entered by January 1st, 1901, at $10 each, to accompany nomination, when the stake shall close, and the sex, color, marks, and breeding of the foal shall be given. Further payments will be required of $15 on January 1st, 1902; of $25 on June 1st, 1902; and $50 additional from starters—starters to be named and payment to be made the day before the race by 4 o'clock p. m. Payments not made as they become due declare entry out and releases subscriber from further liability. Death of nominator of a stallion or colt does not void entry.

The State Agricultural Society to add $1000, of which $300 to second, and $100 to third. The nominee or sire of the winner shall receive 25 per cent., of the second 15 per cent., of the third 10 per cent. of stallion subscriptions. Balance and all other stakes subscribed to go 85 per cent. to the winner, 10 per cent. to second, and 5 per cent. to third.

The produce of stallions which have not sired a winner prior to January 1st, 1900, allow 5 pounds if claimed at the time of entry. Stallions may be nominated by any one, the owner to have the prior right. If by two persons or more, not his owner, priority of entry shall determine claim to his nomination.

Colts and geldings to carry 115 pounds; fillies 115 pounds. A winner of a stake race to carry 3 pounds extra; of two stake races or five races of any value, 5 pounds extra. Maidens allowed 5 pounds; if beaten three or more times, allowed 8 pounds in addition to the stallion allowance. Six furlongs.

HEALD'S

Business College and School of Practical Sciences

24 Post Street, San Francisco.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT

The study and work in this department covers all the modern applications of electricity. Each student has to manufacture in the workshop a large portion of the apparatus. The course is so divested of superfluities as to bring it within the time limit and means of the average student, who, while desiring a thorough instruction in the subject is unable to give the four years required by the universities. The Department is provided with all necessary instruments, machinery and laboratories.

The Department of Civil and Mining Engineering, Surveying, Assaying, and Metallurgy is as complete as any in the West.

During the past three years a great many mining men and prospectors have entered for technical and practical instruction in assaying, blow-pipe analysis, mineralogy, mill construction, cyanide process, etc., and in every instance they have expressed themselves as pleased with the methods. The Department is thoroughly equipped in every respect, and is in charge of a mining engineer of large experience. A special pamphlet containing full information will be mailed on request.

THE BUSINESS COURSE

Includes Business Arithmetic, Business Penmanship, Bookkeeping, Business Forms, Rapid Calculations, Commercial Law, Commercial Correspondence, Practice in Wholesale Merchandising, Banking, Brokerage, Commission, Real Estate, Conveyancing, Insurance, Partnership, Incorporated Companies, Railroadings, Importing, Forwarding Telegraphy, French, German and Spanish, the English branches and everything pertaining to a Business Education.

THE DEPARTMENT OF SHORTHAND AND TYPEWRITING

Employs five teachers and has fifty writing machines in use. Upward of 1000 stenographic graduates have been provided with positions by it during the last ten years and they are now engaged in every variety of stenographic work from court reporting to the ordinary duties of the amanuensis.

The instruction in every department is based on the principle of actual work, and is practical and demonstrative, thus fitting students for actual duties by requiring them to do exactly what will be expected in the shop, the mine and the office. Students can enter for any Course at any time. Ladies are admitted to all Departments. Pupils receive individual instruction. Twenty-five Teachers are employed.

17,000 Graduates. 300 Students annually placed in positions

New illustrated catalogue and Heald's College Journal mailed to any part of the world on application.

Heald's Business College is one of the six, out of the large number in the United States, selected to represent the development of business education at the forthcoming Paris Exposition, being chosen, says the official notification, "on account of its high standing and superiority."

The Gem Poco

FOR THREE NEW SUBSCRIBERS TO THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN

THE GEM POCO is a 4x5 camera, constructed with a universal or fixed focus lens that will take a picture clear and sharp at the outer edge as well as at the center. This was deemed an impossibility until last season, when the GEM POCO demonstrated that it could be done. And yet no others have succeeded in obtaining this much desired result.

It is covered with fine Morocco grain leather, has leather handle, two tripod plates, and two large brilliant oblong view finders, made in proportion to the plate, which insures the correct position of the views.

It is equipped with a newly discovered fixed focus GEM lens, constructed on an entirely new principle, giving a great depth of focus, cutting the plates clear and sharp to their full size, together with rotary diaphragm with three apertures, Rochester safety shutter arranged for time or instantaneous exposures, and speed regulator.

As all working parts are made flush with the camera box, there is no possibility of their becoming broken or getting out of order.

Any one sending us three new yearly subscribers, accompanied by the cash ($9.00), will be sent a GEM POCO.

If you intend to get up a club, send for sample copies, to be used in canvassing, or send us a list of names of people you intend to see, and sample copies will be sent to them from this office.

CHRISTMAS BELLS will ring a merrier peal to men this year than for many seasons past. In every part of the United States buyers are looking for horses, which is just a reverse of the condition that existed a year ago. In this holiday season, given over to the grand old custom of trying to make others happy, serious thoughts of business will be laid aside for the time being, but with the dawn of the new year the farmer and the stock breeder will again take up the battle with renewed vigor, and let us hope there will be an effort especially among the residents of the Golden Slope, to revolve upon all past achievements. California has produced many great horses, but it lies within her power to produce others that will be still greater than those gone before. The dawn of an era of good prices is upon us, it is not a mirage, but is clear and bright with the gleam of the good gold coin actually paid. Two trotting stallions have been sold for $20,000 each, and any good horse will bring a good price. It will not be claimed that every horse owner has already realized the full benefit of the good times that are upon the horse business and which will certainly continue for some time to come, but that there is confidence and hope founded on a solid fact, is true, and it is this that will make the chimes of the Christmas bells sound merrily to the breeder's ear. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to-day sends to its many readers the compliments of the season and hopes that its columns will furnish a little additional zest to the enjoyment of the occasion. May every reader get his share of the good things of the holiday festivals and have not only a truly Merry Christmas, but a Prosperous and Happy New Year.

ALTAMONT 2:26 1/4, son of Almont 33, is the sire of records below 2:10, a record as a sire that stands unrivalled by any other stallion on the Pacific Coast, but by but two others in the world. Foaled in 1875, he is now twenty-five years of age, but no person could guess his years at more than half that when looking at him. There is no falling away visible, his legs are sound and straight and there is but the slightest drop in his back—hardly noticeable. He is in full vigor, and nearly every mare in foal that was bred to him last year, and his foals of 1899 are now a particularly fine lot of weanlings. Altamont needs no description or recounting of his success in the stud. The Year Books and the Registers contain the records and the attention to his list will continue for years to come. The fastest performer has a record of 2:04 1/4, there are six records below 2:10 and his total number of standard performers is 42. His get are all good sized and handsome, with great style and endurance. He will again be bred to by Mr. J. N. Nelson at the Alameda track and we will be limited to a few mares, owners who desire to breed to this great horse should hook their mares early RACE HORSE AND SIRE.—On one of the cover pages of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to-day appears an excellent half tone portrait of the greatest little horse California has produced—Direct, son of a champion race horse, himself a champion, and the sire of champions. Bred by that campaigner of champions, Monroe Salisbury, Direct first saw the light of day in 1885, and at three years of age had a trotting record of 2:23 made in the third and last heat of a winning race. The next year he reduced this mark to 2:18 1/4, and then he was permitted to pace, and at Nashville, Tennessee in November 1892, he paced a mile in the wonderful time of 2:05 1/2 hitched to a high wheel sulky. No other horse ever succeeded in drawing one of those old fashioned vehicles as fast, and the little black rascal still holds that champion crown. He was placed in the stud and sired Directly that at two years of age paced a mile in 2:07 1/4, another record that has never been beaten and perhaps never will be. Directly went on and reduced that mark to 2:03 1/4 in 1898. The same year that Directly got this fast mark in a hotly contested race, another son of Direct, the stallion Directum Kelly, went down the line on the Grand Circuit and won every race that he started in, closing the season with a trotting record of 2:08 1/4. Miss Margaret 2:11 1/2, as a three year old, Ed. B. Young 2:11 1/4 at four years of age, and I Direct 2:13 at three, are some of the get of Direct to furnish further proof that he is a great sire of early and extreme speed. His breeding is probably familiar to every horseman in America who is interested in the light harness breed. By the mighty Director 2:18 1/4, out of Echora 2:23 1/4, by Echo; second dam the Young mare, by thoroughbred Jack Hawkins. Direct is the property of James Butler, of East View Farm, New York, who also owns Directum Kelly. Having both horses, he has yielded to the desire of many breeders whom he met in California last winter and sent Direct to this State in charge of Tom Keating that he may make the season of 1900 at Pleasanton. Direct's fee will be $100, and that his book will be full is assured. He has already had mares hooked to him by Oakwood Park Farm, Rancho del Paso, Nutwood Stock Farm, and a dozen small breeders, and the mares hooked are all choicely bred and nearly all producers of standard speed.

ARTHUR W. 2:11 1/4, will be in the stud in 1900 limited to ten approved mares. A big, fine looking, bold going stallion, he was one of the best race horses on the California circuit this year, reducing his record four seconds and it is thought he will be able to knock the same number off next year as he will be raced and has shown speed sufficient to accomplish it. In our next issue there will appear tabulated pedigrees of all the stallions advertised in this issue, the press of work incidental to getting out this number making it impossible to give them this week. We are confident that many of our readers will be astonished at the showing made in the pedigree of Arthur W. 2:11 1/4, as it fairly bristles with performers and producers on both sides. Arthur W. will make the season of 1900 at the Alameda race track. He is in charge of Mr. J. M. Nelson who will campaign him next year.

A RICH STAKE.—Editors "Breeder and Sportsman:"—I wish to call the attention of California breeders to the Occident Stake of 1902, offered by the State Agricultural Society. This is one of the few trotting stakes offered on this Coast, and the stake for 1902 will undoubtedly be the richest to which our breeders have the privilege of entering. This stake deserves the most liberal patronage. It is offered in the breeders' interest, and they should appreciate it. It offers them an opportunity to win a large sum for a comparatively small entrance fee, and they should take advantage of it. It will add very materially to the value of any colt or filly entered in it. It will be a great advertisement for the stallions whose get are liberally entered in it, and whose names will appear in the list published shortly after January 1st next. It will be a great card for the stallion whose colt wins it, and should be a source of great pride to the breeder whose entry in it is successful. Every owner of a stallion should see that the colts by his horse, dropped during 1899, are very generally entered in this stake. When it appears in the published list of entries that his colts have thus been entered, it will prove to breeders that he is being put to the front, that his get are being developed and that it will be to their advantage to breed to him.

No stallion can hope to succeed whose get are not developed, and the best evidence of a purpose to so develop, is shown by liberal entrances to futurity events. Every principle of pride and profit should induce owners and breeders of stallions to enter their 1899 colts in this Stake. It promises to be the richest stake contested for in California, and past experience shows that any man who has a good colt upon which he continues to make payments and gives fair opportunities, has a chance to win.

The history of this race has been that when it came time to start, the crack colts had not been entered, and had not been paid up on, or had gone wrong, and that very frequently an average horse has won it in ordinary time.

The following statement will show the winner, the amount of the stake, and the time of the best heat during the last six years:

1891	Aria$ 920	Best time	2:27 1/4
1895	La Belle	2400	Best time 2:19 1/4
1896	Sweet Rosie	1935	Best time 2:25 1/2
1897	Nordeau	2160	Best time 2:23
1898	Dolly D.	2525	Best time 2:21
1899	Lena A.	2775	Best time 2:21 1/2

It will thus appear that with one exception the stake has steadily increased in value, and that only once in the last six years has any heat in it been trotted in better than 2:20, and in this instance but one heat was so trotted. This table will also show that the small breeder has a chance, as in three instances out of the six given, the stake has been won by persons who breed a very limited number of colts and had very few entries in the stake.

I hope our horsemen and breeders will see that the entry list in the Occident Stake of 1902 is the largest in its history. I hope they will thus patronize a stake offered in their interests, and take advantage of this opportunity which every principle of business judgment indicates to be to their best advantage.

PETER J. SHIELDS.

A HORSEMAN'S DREAM.

BY FARNK H. DUNTON.

They alone truly live, who labor for some grand ideal. The progress of mankind has been characterized by a continual coming out from old conditions. All life runs in cycles, like day and night, summer and winter. The work of all creation of animal life, is carried on through the process of generation and development. These are not original thoughts they belong to mankind. I have thought that perhaps it would be better, and more profitable to the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN at this time to give them my dreams. The dreams of the ancients meant much to them. Their dreams meant omens of good and evil. They conveyed warnings which the people dared not disregard. In the dreams of Abraham, Jacob, Joseph, Peter and John, they changed the current of great events. In the dream of Pilate's wife, all history was shown to her in an instant of time. But the trouble with us, of this age, we have not the courage of our convictions. Everything that is are all dream creations. The great cathedral at Cologne was conceived in a dream. A dream changed the entire theology of the Rev. W. H. H. Murray. Indeed, dreams have been the means of creating the grandest structures in the world. In the effort to obtain important knowledge, the world has given us many cycles of labor, sorrow and death. But only when the people learn to obey the laws of creation, will their work become comparatively easy. When they learn that every seed brings forth a form according to the principles and quality inherent in it, they will be anxious to adopt natures unalterable laws. Man boasts of his wisdom, but animals are wiser, in some things than he. "Who has given them the wisdom? Their creator has planted His law in their natures and reason has not ignored it. Man is the only creature on this planet that disobys God. There are so many forces, principles and motions that are known to man, in his experience, that they ignore nature. When man realizes the power and value of nature's law, he, like the animal, will yield to them. When he sees wild geese flying south, he learns from the birds that a cold wave is on the way, and that winter is about to set in. Cattle on the plains teach man that they know days before hand, that a storm is coming, by traveling miles and miles to keep out of its fury. Thus, we see that animals are wiser than we, in obeying the law of their creator. That law which is unyielding, indestructible, and now waiting at man's door to be admitted. But man, in his egotism, presumes to know more than God. Hardly has the Worlds Fair had time to cool off, before the French undertake to excel their brothers across the ocean. Scarcely had the Chicago skyscrapers touched the limit of the Windy City, than the New Yorkers began to dream about a 200 story building for the Empire city. Man dislikes to be conquered by even God. But castles have to exist in dreams, before they can become a reality. The time it will take to dream of them is momentary; but to make them a reality, depends on the time money and devotion man is willing to give to the work. It is one thing to dream of work, but quite another thing to execute it. By God's law, rivers run down from the mountains into the ocean. But man can dam up this course, impound the water, and use it for himself. Bear in mind, dear reader, that God places in your hands the key to unlock the safe where his treasures are; but if you get them, you will have to unlock the safe.

For six thousand years man has been passing through ages of experiments, but so far as I know, has not bred the road horse to a type. Nor has he made a lock to stop burglars, nor a prison to hold all criminals. So I conclude that man does not yet fully realize the majesty and sublimity of himself. When he does, we will "hear something drop." A literary wave was begun in the fifteenth century, when Luther's words created a revolution. The road horse wave was begun in this century, and is just now ripe for a great harvest; and America is to reap that harvest. The California gold fields are, by no means, exhausted, nor is the enthusiasm for the light harness horse expiring. Dear reader, do not put me down as a "know it all"; but don't forget that a light harness horse wave is in the air. The placer mines of California have produced $410,000,000, and the gravel mines of your State have produced $700,000,000; but all this wealth is but small in comparison with the money that could be made in the breeding of the light harness horse to a type. And dear reader, I have not reached the point at which my dream comes in play. If, therefore, you find in it a suggestion or an idea which comes within the realm of your intelligence and means, grasp it! But let me state a fact. Dreams have done and will continue to do their full share in the creations of the new world: and in the creation of the type of a roadster, will it surprise you if a dream acts an important role? Do I hear some one ask, "Do you mean to say that we have not already a type of roadster in America?" Yes, that is exactly what I mean to say. We have our speed horses: our Lady Suffolk, our Flora Temple, our Lady Thorn, our Goldsmith Maid, our Maud S, our Dexter, our Raroc, our Sunol, our Pocahontas, our Joe Patchen, our John R. Gentry, our Anacanda, and our Star Pointer, but what a type! No more physical resemblance than there is between a jockey and an elephant. In short, I challenge the world to find a class of animals with such a diversity of make-ups as characterize our speed horses; and the wonder is, that it is so, when we have made such marvelous strides in so many other branches of industry. But from the prices which the Tichenor roadsters have been selling for at auction of late there can be no doubt that the demand for this class of horses is far greater than the supply. When twenty-five head of horses, simply for the road, sell at auction for $36,500, this class of horses must be about as scarce as hens' teeth. For forty years I have been a devotee at the shrine of the roadster, have thought, studied and dreamed about him, and have wanted some man of means to engage in breeding him to a type. And it has occurred to me that the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN would be glad to hear and might be profited, and if not, amused, by one of my dreams on this subject which I had not long since. I dreamed that I had been invited to visit one of the great horse breeding plants of America, the proprietor of which possessed wealth, intelligence and refinement, and had put large sums of money into farms, buildings and horses just for the love he bore the horse. I dreamed that he was showing me about the place, often calling my attention to this and that animal of his breeding, priding himself that he had succeeded in producing a fine type. And while we were looking the stock over, and I was critically speaking of his venture, a carriage drove up with two gentlemen, who alighted, with the avowed purpose of buying a fine pair of roadsters.

One of the gentlemen asked the owner of the plant if he had a matched pair of fine roadsters for sale. Directly some twenty pairs were shown, but none suited. "Sir," said the would be buyer, "I am looking for a matched pair of horses, a solid bright bay, black, golden, or pure white of perfect symmetry, with considerable bone, well developed muscles, flexible mouth, cheerful disposition, courage, soundness and endurance, with unsurpassed manners; head must be held gracefully high without a check-rein, a full tail carried naturally high with a graceful curvature; and that drive like one horse. In height, from 15½ to 16 hands. Such a pair would be worth to me two dollars a pound. I understood you were breeding that kind of horses, and knowing your wealth, supposed you would, by this time, have such pairs for sale; but I see no such horses in your band; without troubling you further, I will bid you good day." At this abrupt termination of the trade, my host, turning to me in amazement, said: "Do you think it possible to breed a horse to suit buyers such as that?" "Why, certainly!" I replied. If the proprietor of the plant was surprised at this criticism of the horseman who had just departed, he was even more amazed at my confidence in the possibility of breeding the horse to such a type. "Do you actually think such a horse is possible to a breeder?" "Most certainly!" I said. "Give me the means and I will engage to accomplish the task!" "How much money and time do you want for the business?" "Put me in charge of your plant with $10,000 and in ten years' time will breed such horses as certainly as sheep are bred to fineness of wool; as surely as dogs are bred to color and instinct, or birds to color and number of feathers." "I suppose," said the proprietor, "you are willing to name your salary?" "Certainly. All my expenses must be paid, I to have sole control of the undertaking and 20 per cent. of the net profits of the venture; my services to commence at this moment." "Come into the office and sign a contract!" said the proprietor; which I did, and at once went about the undertaking. The first thing I did was to look all his animals over, finding only five females in his entire band that would answer at all for my purpose, but no male could I find to head the stud in the proprietor's collection which would do. So I made a journey through the States of Kentucky, Illinois and Iowa, picking out here and there an animal of the type in mind and that carried the blood of animals I had seen, and that also was of the type of the individual I would select; and when I found the stallion which pleased me to perfection, I bought him. And would you like to know how he was bred? After he was purchased he was named All Good: b h 15½ hands, by Mambrino King, ch h by Mambrino Patchen blk h; dam, So Far blk m by Alcantara h h 2:23; second dam, h m Walla by William Wallace h h (p) 2:26½, by Mambrino King; third dam, Kirk b m by Kirkwood h h 2:24 by Green's Bashaw blk h; fourth dam, Sweetness b m by Young Green Mountain Morgan, b h by Hal's Green Mountain Morgan, b h by Gifford Morgan ch h; fifth dam

Sweet h m by Gifford Morgan. This stallion had a good strong, fanlike head, straight face, pointed ears, large eyes, good strong neck to which his head was well set and which was carried gracefully high, without a check-rein. His shoulders were strong, both in bone and muscles, sloped well into the hack, which was short, broad and strong, coupled to well elanted hind quarters, which were broad powerfully constructed in all respects. The legs were shapely, bony, muscular and well turned, and set well under the body short but elastic fetlock joints; hoofs medium size, with hard material. All Good, in temper, action and manners was perfection in and out of harness.

The mare selected was of a similar conformation, manners and motion, and carried the blood of Alexander's Ed Forest h h, Dorsey's Goldust ch h, Morgan and Alexander Belmont h h. And to give you a sample of the breeding twenty mares purchased here is one of them. Doretta 15½ hands, by Lockheart b h 2:08½, by Nutwood ch h 2: by Alexander's Belmont b h, trial 2:28; second dam D Maid h m by Tobacco h h 2:10½, by Egmont b h by Alexander's Belmont; third dam Maid of Elgin h m by Indic ch h 2:23½ by Dorsey's Goldust ch h by Vermont Morgan by Bernard Morgan, son of Gifford Morgan; fourth dam Pretty Maid b m by Blood Chief b h by Blood's B Hawk. The others all carried a similar blood, conformation and manners, and in most cases their sires were personally known to me. Indeed the collection would have made an attractive show in Madison Square Garden and I feel sure would have taken all the first prize classes in which they competed. After the stock safely ensconced in their new home, which the proprietor had named Castle In The Air, people began to come and droves to see what was going on; and when they found the scheme they would often ridicule us with stories. One occasion, a big, fat, good feeling gentleman, to talk to the proprietor, and to show himself off, told this story: "Several gentlemen of the bar gathered in Judge Wilcox's room after the adjournment of Court, to discuss the removal of one of their brother lawyers, whose practice worth $25,000 a year. At a certain stage of the discussion the member who was about to give up his lucrative practice said: 'I've been practicing law a good many years, am am enough fixed, and have made up my mind to quit this of labor, and devote the remainder of my days to study. I've neglected.' 'Study law!' put in the judge." And the story brought the following:

"It seems to me, Josiah," said Josiah's wife to him in a melancholy tone, "that we ain't keeping up with the cession, in our plan of breeding horses, and that our neighbors will beat us all hollow." "Never you mind, Maud, the style of everything changes so often, that if we stick our text and keep right on sawing wood, work right in it, but we are in, the style will round our way in time with no effort of ours whatsoever." The closing story was "Oh, Ethel!" said Maud, a wealthy young miss, "you wish you were wealthy enough to give box parties to the opera?" "No, indeed; I'd rather be invited to sit than I could sit in the front of the box."

Here, the stories having been exhausted, the breeding horses came in for a share of the conversation.

"Is it possible," said one, "that breeding the horse has been reduced, or is reducible to the ranks of science?"

"There are not wanting," said another, "those who declare that horses cannot be bred to a type; and that he who attempts it will meet with failure."

"That means," I replied, "that the produce of any particular class of equines is merely accidental, incidental, bald chance, an occasional happen so. In short, it is that there is absolutely no knowledge of antecedents or particulars, observed or observable, of sufficient definiteness to furnish a rule for guidance in the selection and breeding of an animal to a family type." "But," said another, "would you be willing to launch this frail bark on seas given over to hurricanes?"

"I am!" quickly responded the host. "Breeding in all its departments, is progression; and is adjustable, growing and expanding yearly. New particulars are constantly brought to light; breeders are shifting, adjusting and aligning themselves to this intricate subject in hand, when given chance." The visitors could understand by the words their host, and the manner in which he spoke them, there was faith behind the venture. I began to breed mares as soon as the new year came in, and was in high spirits when the first crop of colts came into the world, nearly all of which were solid bays, a few solid blacks and still a few of golden color; but all began to please me, and showed that the animals were selected well for the purpose in view. I had bred for females, and most of the mares verified my procedure. The second crop of colts were a little improvement on the first, as the culling process and change of breeding the mares had already begun; and the proprietor began to see the successful results of the experiment. The third harvesting of colts, was the acme of success, and the proprietor easy I was a Columbus and exclaim, "Ecce homo!" At two years of age the fillies were bred; in some cases by their own sires, and in other cases to brothers, cousins, whatever would seem to make the animal I was interested in producing. We broke all the yearlings in the kindergarten at first and then to harness, maturing them as fast as possible with feed and exercise. At this point the connection of dream was broken and I began to realize that it was all a dream. But my friend, if you can expect to breed a roadster to a pattern, study the law of all the forces that enter into this labyrinth, which will by sure and certain gradations bring you to the goal. Permit the blood of no animal, the individual of which you have not seen and approved of, and which does not assimilate with the ideal you have set up, to enter your stud. It is just as important that you should know the ancestors as the individuals. The National Horse Show is all important to the breeders of horses for the show ring and road. Some years ago some of our breeders got the prizes for English Hackneys, and actually thought they would fill the measure of the roadsters of cities and towns. But when the test came between them and our horses bred for speed they were found wanting, and were knocked out, but we will not stop there. We must knock all foreign breeds "silly." For the enlightenment of the amateur I give a sketch of the type of horse we will breed. It is a dash man, or a man of unusual endowments, who will dare to think or act outside the crystallized ways. But it is well to remember the axiom of "there is a tide in the affairs of men, if taken at its flood, leads on to fortune." This is the good tide in which to breed the roadster. Mr. Editor, the horse which I present you is one of my own ideals, and I venture the prediction will be approved by some of your readers who sympathize with me in the importance of a fixed type for the roadster. But to be thorough in all lines of business, one must give his entire self to it without reserve. Don't be afraid of inbreeding perfect animals. Animals that represent a type of their ancestors will be most apt to breed like themselves.

AN INTERNATIONAL HORSE EXCHANGE.

New Combination That Will Affect Breeders in This Country.

Within the next few days there will be incorporated one of the most important combinations affecting the thoroughbred and trotting horse breeding industries ever attempted in this country. It will be known as the International Horse Exchange, and will have millions back of it in the wealth possessed by the men who have become interested in the enterprise.

The new company is, in a remodeled form, practically identical with the proposed Breeders' Co-operative Sale Association, the subscribers to which are J. B. Haggin, August Belmont, W. C. Whitney, Marcus Daly, ex-Corporation Counsel W. H. Clark, A. H. Morris, D. H. Morris, J. Corey Curtis, Lucien O. Appleby and several other prominent breeders and turfmen.

The company has purchased the business and good will of the Easton Company, with the sale paddock and stalls located at Sheephead Bay.

The plan of the gentlemen directly interested contemplates the establishment in this country of an institution that will eclipse in importance the Tattersalls of England. Its ramifications will extend to all parts of the civilized world, and permanent agencies will probably be established in England, France, Germany, Austria and other continental countries.

Negotiations have about been concluded with the German Embassy at Washington by which the German Government will purchase all the American horses to be used in the cavalry in that country through the new exchange. Arrangements with the other governments for the same purpose will be made in the near future.

It will thus be seen that the exchange will be international in character as well as in name. Backed by unlimited capital and controlled by men identified with the greatest business enterprises in this country, it can be readily understood that the exchange will prove an immense factor in the future progress of the breeding interests of the United States, and the establishment is of vast importance to breeders of all classes of horses.

All interests will be directly concerned. It is the purpose of the new exchange to include in its operations all breeds of horses, in addition to the thoroughbred. In fact, the entire horse industry of the country will be effected.

The exchange will have its headquarters at the Empire City track at Yonkers. There will be erected on the inclosure of the course a sales building that will eclipse anything of the sort in the world. The architects' plans, which have been approved, call for a building about 600 feet long, with a driveway through the centre. Midway between the extremes will be an amphitheatre, where will be located seats for 500 people, the auctioneer's stand and general offices. Along each side of the building, with doors opening out to a covered walk, will be 100 box stalls. The spur track will be built by the Harlem Railroad to the track, and will permit of the shipment of stock direct to the docks.

With the formation of the new company William Easton, who has so long been identified with the thoroughbred and its interests in this country, will retire from the business completely. By a special arrangement Mr. Easton's service as auctioneer to the exchange are retained, but the performance of his duties will be optional.

THE FOUR CORNER POSTS OF MODERN THOROUGHbred BREEDING.
BY HIDALGO.

When I wrote an article on this subject for the State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN I supposed that I had practically exhausted the subject, but the past few days have been spent in the study of both English and American pedigrees of modern bred horses and I find as much in support of my quadrilateral theory as I gleaned from the English lists which you printed for me in the issue of Sept. 22d.

My objection to the Bruce-Lowe theory is that it is far too complex for ordinary minds. Mr. Lowe was a great student but every man is not a Bruce Lowe. Most of our breeders while they may be men of fairly good education are not students by nature. One of the most successful men in the business is Gen. W. H. Jackson, a man of fine native judgment in all business matters, as well as a most sterling gentleman. But he is not a student by nature or he would never have sold Bramble and retained Luke Blackburn, although the last named was one of our greatest three year olds. Yet the Levy family is a performing family like that of Gibeide Fairy or Camerine's dam, as he should have known.

The four-corner method is simpler and more within the grasp of moderately educated men, like myself, for instance. It deals with reality rather than theory. It takes as the main lines those that have survived the wear and tear of time and which now stand preeminently successful, using that of Melbourne as the principal outcross, because it is not only the better honed and more durable one, but because all of its exponents have shown themselves good over a distance of ground. Taking the three countries in detail you find the following Matchem exponents:

ENGLAND.	AMERICA.	AUSTRALIA.
West Australian *† A	Joe Danie's S	Darebin D S
Breardine N	Fellowcraft	Australian Peer D S
Sir Visio *†	Springbok S	Nobleman M
Sir Tullio Sykes *†	Spendrift B L	Bamburgh C C
Mimi I G O	Klugson X	Parces C C 2
Moulton A	Yu Kvite Belle Y	Sea Spray V L
Winkfield's Pride C	Lampfighter S S	Presto V L

ABBREVIATIONS.
ENGLAND.—* Won the Derby. † The St. Leger. ‡ The Two Thousand Guinea. § The 1000 Guinea. ¶ The Ascot Cup. O the Epsom Oaks. (The Cambridgeshire. N the Northumberland Plate.
AMERICA.—S The Saratoga Cup. B the Belmont stakes. L the Loring stakes. X won S out of 12 races. Y the Gazelle Stakes. S S the Sea and Sound stakes.
AUSTRALIA.—D The Derby at Melbourne. S the Sydney Cup. M the Great Metropolitan. C C the Canterbury Cup. V L The Victoria St. Leger.

California has some good Matchem-line horses for outcrosses on the four corner-posts. Among these we may name Crescendo, Nomad and Ravelston, all young and comparatively untried, but of excellent breeding and sure to prove good sires. Canny Scot, Broad Church, Flambeau, Joe Daniels, Rutherford, Springbok and Leinster, all well known sires in California, were from the same male line.

Of Birdcatcher horses in this State, Amigo, owned at Santa Anita, is the only one that can be said to be thoroughly tried, outside of the sires owned at Rancho del Paso. At Napa, Mr. Spreckels has two grand ones in The Judge and Trappean. The former represents the Oxford branch, which is noted for good feet, short legs, big breathing power and excellent constitution. The latter represents the line of grand old Rataplan, who won 42 out of 71 races, including the Manchester Cup, with 130 pounds at four years old, the greatest performance known up to that time, except Priam's Goodwood Cup in 1831.

The Touchstone horses are so many and so good that I am not disposed to particularize. Martenhurst was the very best Touchstone horse ever brought to this State, with Maxim next in say and St. Carlo third. For though Martenhurst never got as good a horse as Maxine (originally called Fleur de Lis), yet it must be borne in mind that he made only one season, in which he got 14 foals, one of which was never trained. The other 13 were all returned winners, a showing not made by one stallion in fifty. My objection to St. Carlo is the same that I have to Emperor of Norfolk, Tyrant and Flambeau, all too heavy in the forehead and too small under the knee. Measure them with Libertine, The Judge or Trappean, and you will see how they suffer by the comparison; and to these horses in Mr. Spreckels' barn you may add Trentola and Rey del Santa Anita, horses that have not yet come into notice as sires; and as for Crighton, I would not give him for a ten-acre lot full of such shaped horses as St. Carlo or Tyrant. The Emperor of Norfolk is one of the grandest looking horses a man ever saw, till you get down to his knees; and then those long cannon bones kill him in my estimation. Flambeau is so heavily loaded in the shoulder, that the only wonder is that he got as many racers as he did. Crescendo and Ravelston are singularly exempt from this defect, however.

The Sweetmeat horses in America, are just two in number so far as merit is concerned—Brutus and St. George. Fortunately we have one of these in California and we are likely to have the other, if his owner can sell his Kentucky farm. I sincerely hope Mr. Boots will take a trip to England and secure a good stallion for the daughters of Brutus, either a son of St. Simon or Bona Vista, as he does not seem at present to have anything that is near being their equal. Bona Vista would give an additional cross of the Macaroni blood and he is bred so much like Ormonde that I fancy him more than I do most sons of St. Simon. St. Serf is making a good show this year, through Calverly, but I would like a son of the old horse better than one of any of his progeny. Nothing like going to the fountain head in matters of this kind. Galore, by Galopin, is the best imported horse of this tribe and Sir Dixon (sire of the Butterflies) the best of the natives. The horses of this line got the following winners of money in the year 1898:

BY GALOPIN.		BY ST. SIMON.
Blitz.....	£ 277	Adieu.....	£ 1,407
Buckingham.....	220	Chidwick.....	247
Galliard.....	3,168	Fitz Simon.....	110

Pioneer.....	1,644
St. Simon.....	15,210
The Weaver.....	291
St. Angelo.....	6,371

The Speculum branch of the Vedette family makes a good showing but not equal to that of Galopin and his sons. It had the following winning sires in 1898: Amphion £8788; Burnaby £200; Castlereagh £377; Crowberry £366; Duncombe (now in California) £355; Hagioscope $3392; Lauriscops £3392; Lourdes £823; Queen's Birthday £1201; Rosebery £325. Another branch of Voltigeur blood is that which comes through Tibthorpe, to wit: Althorpe £1035; Curio £403; Garland £137; Thurio £141, was the showing of that branch for 1898.

The horses of Sweetmeat's line in England made the following mesgre show for 1898: Chelsea £500; Favo £315; Macheath £3653; McMahon £377; Morglay £755; Scene Shifter £381. Of these Macheath and McMahon are the only sons of the once popular Macaroni now represented. The largest winnings credited to any Herod-line sire in 1898 were £3350 to the French horse Upas, who represents the male line of the male line of The Flying Dutchman, but he is the only horse of any merit from that line. I prefer the Parmesan line of Sweetmeat blood to that of Macaroni, because Macaroni never got as good a performer as either Cremorne or Favonius, although he got some great performing mares, for instance Spinaway and Bonnie Jean. Yet you find daughters of Macaroni in the pedigrees of high-class winners, three times for every daughter of Parmesan that you can dig up. Female lines are curious things at best.

In conclusion let me say that the line of demarcation between masculine stallions and broodmare sires is far more distinctly drawn than most people would imagine. Of the former class Leamington stands pre eminent, with Australian next in say, having over six sires each among their progeny, while Billet and Plaxon come next. Glenelg, Bonnie Scotland, Balrowie and Mr. Pickwick must rank only as broodmare sires, although they got winners of more races than did Australian or Plaxon. Leamington's daughters, however, were generally poor milkers, which may account for their not breeding as well as his sons. The stallions whose descendants breed equally well in either sex are Birdcatcher and his grandson Stockwell; Touchstone and his great grandson Musket; Voltigeur and his grandson Speculum. It is too early yet to say whether St. Simon is a male or female-line horse. Barcardine seems to have been equally good in either sex, which is perhaps true of Petrarch. But the greatest double line horse of latter days is the Australian horse Yattendon, who got 11 sires, of which 3 were strictly first class—Chester, Emerald and Grand Flaneur. Goldsbrough, stoutest of his day and great as a sire of broodmares, has so far failed to produce a sire of even second rank, but his daughters are simply superb. I like Abercorn, now in England, because he has not only 19 crosses of Waxy but has also all four of the corner posts. One would hardly think of sending to the colonies to buy a son of Robinson Crusoe (who is a Herod line horse) but one of his sons, Sunrise, has for the past three seasons headed all other sires in that country, so far as concerns the number of races actually won by their progeny. Truly, breeding the race horse is a curious study.

White Garters Goes to Ardington.

White Garters, the property of "Mr. Chamblet," will shortly be returned to Mr. Neville, who will send her to Ardington. In commenting upon White Garters' last race at Sheephead Bay spring meeting, in which she showed her usual wonderful ability as a jumper and her remarkable gameness, The Spirit of the Times says: "White Garters, the favorite, though a light mare and heavily weighted at 156 pounds, was well to the front and running in grand style, when before the third jump, she bowed her tendon, and that she was able to finish at all proves her remarkable gameness. It is more than probable that White Garters, one of the truest running mares seen in years, and as pretty a jumper as one could wish to see, has made her last appearance, a fact which will be regretted by all lovers of cross country sport." Dr. Sheppard had the mare in his charge for some time, and finally returned her to "Mr. Chamblet" as a hopeless case, our fears expressed above proving correct. White Garters' career in the stud will be followed with interest by many who admired her cross country work.

THE New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association made about $13,000 on its three meetings this year.

The Sulky.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS to all our readers.

MYRON McHENRY says he drove Klatawah (3) 2:05½, a mile in 2:03 and the colt could have gone a shade faster had he been pushed to his limit.

MILLARD SANDERS is said to have three or four surs 2:15 performers in the string of youngsters he is handling at Pleasanton and which were bred at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm.

HARRY DEVERE AUX, the Cleveland emetour reinsman who owns John A. McKerron 2:12½, will enter that great young horse through the Grand Circuit next year. He will then be a five year old.

A CARLOAD of good horses is wanted immediately. Must be good lookers and have speed. Outclassed trotters and pacers with these qualifications will do. Apply before January 1st to Geo. B. Kelley, this office.

WM. MURRAY is handling several young colts and fillies by the horse Diablo 2:09½, at Pleasanton. Diablo's new list of standard performers for 1899 contains seven names, more than any stallion on the Pacific Coast.

JOHN BAKER of Santa Ana had the filly Connie by Ketchum out of Birdros 2:11½ on the circuit this year but did not win with her. Connie has shown great speed and with a little more speed ought to pace a very fast mile.

JOHN MOORHEAD reed the fastest green trotter that appeared on the California Circuit this year—Sybil S. 2:16½ by Hambletonian Wilkes. He sold her recently, but he has more left and will probably be out with a string in 1900.

MRS. CHAS. DOUGLAS, of New York City, has purchased from the estate of H. J. Annew the bay mare, Angie Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, dam Maod 2:20, dam of To Order 2:11½ and Boswell Jr. 2:19½, and she will be left in California to be bred.

P. J. WILLIAMS will probably leave Monterey in Kentucky and place him in the stud there in the spring. Mr. Williams was missed from the California Circuit last season and we would like to see him training a few more good ones here in 1900.

M. J. SUTHERLAND, of Pleasanton, has his new track and stables nearly finished and will begin training soon after the 1st of January. His stalls are nearly all occupied by the horses of his string and he will have them all full when the training season opens.

DET BIGELOW is at Woodland with the stallion Alex Button which he recently purchased and will keep him in the stud there. Bigelow will have a string of horses on the circuit in 1900—one a pacer by Diablo that can step a quarter in 32 seconds already.

J. M. NELSON is looking for a couple of good green horses that will do for the races next year. He has a buyer who wants good ones and will pay well for them. Mr. Nelson has bought and sold nearly 300 horses during the past year at his stable at Alameda.

THE California State Veterinary Association has elected the following officers: President, Dr. F. Fox; Vice-President, Dr. A. M. McCollum; Secretary, Dr. C. L. Megowen; Board of Examiners, Drs. H. A. Spenser, R. A. Archibald, A. M. McCollum, F. E. Pierce and G. F. Faulkner.

JOHN BROOKS of Santa Ana has the honor of driving the best four year old trotting mare in America in 1899—Neerette 2:11½ by Neerut. He will have a half dozen more youngsters by the same horse in 1900 and it is reasonable certain that a majority of them will get standard records.

HENRY HELLMAN, of Hollister, always has a good one on the circuit. This year Myrthe Whips 2:10½, was his "find" and she was one of the best winners on the circuit. Mr. Hellman was so unfortunate as to lose Alto Rio this year, a full brother to Chehalis that promised to be as fast.

J. W. GORDON of San Jose is one of the familiar figures in a solky in California. His fastest performer is F. W. 2:09 by Dorsey's Nephew, a horse with a remarkable flight of speed. F. W. made his record at San Jose in 1898, but the report of the meeting did not get into the Year Book.

R. J. HAYES is a veteran on California tracks, although he is a young man yet. He rode Norfolk when that mighty son of Lexington defeated Lodi in the early "sixties." "Dick" loves to drive a fast trotter or pacer and has had great success with them. There is no better reinsman on the coast than he.

WM. HOGBOOM, who trains for D. E. Knight at Merysville, always brings something good to the trotting meetings. This year the three year old filly Lena A., by his stallion Lynmont, won the Occident Stake for Mr. Knight, her share of the stake being $1725, a pretty good sum for a race in which the fastest heat was 2:21½.

C. A. OWEN, of Fresno, has ridden very nicely as fast a mile as any of our California drivers, herring Keating. He owns and drove Joe Wheeler 2:07½ to his record at Oakland in 1897, and has owned many good horses. Mr. Owen is also the owner of thoroughbreds, the well known horse Greedy being one of his string.

SOME Jewish horse buyers recently unloaded a carload of horses up in the ranchers of the Selinas valley. The animals were gathered up in the highways and byways of San Francisco, and were doped and doctored up for the occasion. The most pitiful old wrecks were eagerly gobbled up at $20 and $40 per head. They were purchased in San Francisco at $1 end $1.50 per head.—Hollister Advance.

BUMPS 2:03½ to wagon, holder of the world's pacing record at this way of going, and the fastest of the gat of Baron Wilkes, died at Memphis, Tenn., last week. He was a bay gelding foaled in 1891. His dam, Queen Ethel, was by Strethmore, and his second dam, Princess Ethel by Volunteer, produced Ledy Ethel 2:24½.

RICHARD ARLES, who handled the Sente Rosa Stock Farm horses last year, will probably be seen in the same sulky again in 1900. He gave Guy Cece, a daughter of Guy Wilkes, a record of 2:18½ and Velite, a two year old by Bean Brommel, a mark of 2:24 last season. Dick is a careful man and quite a speedmaker.

DR. A. W. BOUCHER, of San Jose, owner and trainer of the good mare Miss Logan 2:06½, may take her East again next year. The doctor has a coming three year old out of this mare that will march some when he gets ready for the races. He is by Harry Gear 25,382, a son of Echo and the mare Clare (dam of Crown Prince 2:17½) by Chieftein 721.

CHAS. A. DURFEE will have a string of horses at Pleasanton this year. He has already engaged several stables and will begin work on the horses soon after the first of January. If he could gather up the McKinney colts and fillies in California that show speed and race them next year, that stallion would lead every horse in America as the sire of new performers in 1900.

JOS. L. SMITH of Vallejo, one of the promising young reinsmen of California, has a string of about a dozen at the Navy Yard town, and will soon begin training at the excellent track there. Thos Smith, his father, the well known breeder and veteran horseman, has a number of young Washingtons and Mambrino Chief Jr.'s that Joseph will have in his string.

WALTER MASTIN, owner of that good looking sire of speed Falrose 2:19, sire of Don 2:10, the biggest winner on the California circuit in 1899, will make the season of 1900 again at Woodland with his son of Fallis and Roseleaf by Buccanar. Falrose was bred to about 80 mares this year. Mastin has quite a number of young trotters and pacers by his horse in training.

B. O. VAN BOKKELEN, of San Jose, who campaigned Ellert East this year and reduced his record from 2:19 to 2:11½, will probably go East again next season. Mr. Van Bokkelen has had great success with Stamboulette 2:10½, and Ellert, full brothers and sons of Stamboul; and gave them both their marks. He has several good prospects in his stables now at San Jose.

ED LAFFERTY will have a string by the first of February that will keep three men busy taking care of them and Ed says that is all he wants. He is now located at the corner of Second and Harrison streets, Oakland and will train at the Alameda track, beginning in January probably. Until the champion pacers met at Los Angeles this year Lafferty held the Coast record for a fast drive having piloted W. Wood when he paced to a record of 2:07.

S. E. KENT, who trains J. B. Iverson's trotters and pacers, is one of the most careful men in the business. His success with the little mere Dictatress 2:12½, by Dictatus is remarkable. This filly has no remarkable flights of speed, but she is always close to the front when the wire is reached. She was a good money winner this year and reduced her record 6½ seconds, although she only won a single race. She was second five times however in fast time.

A PROMINENT citizen of Woodland, who has always taken great interest in the fairs and race meetings held there and whose name is always on the subscription list for $100, was in San Francisco last week. When E. B. & S. representative asked him what the prospects were for a meeting there in 1900, he replied: "Excellent; I think we will have a good fair and some good races. I will make my usual contribution provided there is no hookmaking allowed on the races." The leaven is working.

ANDY McDOWELL was fined $50 by the American Trotting Association for starting Fannie Putnam out of her class in 1898. McDowell was also ordered to return the money won by the mare in those races or stand suspended until it was paid. Mr. Stevenson, the owner of the mare secured her release from suspension last spring by settling with the American Association. He had leased the mare to McDowell and asserts that the latter knew what her record was before taking her East.

MR. HENRY PIERCE has been in New York during the past few weeks and attended the recent sales at Madison Square Garden. He is much elated over the evidence in his horse values shown there. A misunderstanding was all that prevented him buying the stallion Beron Dillon 2:12 and bringing him to California to place on the Sente Rosa Stock Farm. It is unfortunate that the trade was not made as the breeding interests of California would be a great gain should a good son of the great Beron Wilkes be added to his list of stallions.

C. E. CLARK, the Fresno horseman, expects to have a string of trotters out next year that will be inside the money pretty often. He had had luck with one of his best this year, the fast mare Sne by Athadon, and she never showed anything near her true form after getting badly off just before the circuit opened. She worked a mile in 2:14 at Fresno twice in July but was taken sick when shipped north and was very rank all through the circuit. Mr. Clark started Toggles 2:09½ but three times during the season and the bay gelding won every race and $2500.

J. M. NELSON, the well known trainer and horse dealer, has sold for Dr. J. B. Nightingale, the stallion Prince Almont 2:13½. Mr. Geo. P. McNeil is the purchaser and the price paid was $1500. Prince Almont will be taken to Fresno county and placed in the stud. He is a very fine individual, a good big horse, and was a very game race horse. He has had the most limited opportunities in the stud, but his get are all endowed with good looks and speed and he should be a valuable addition to the breeding ranks of Fresno county. He is by Almont Medium out of a mare by Geo. M. Petchen Jr., thus combining the Almont and Petchen strains, two of the best in the country.

DETROIT has already announced that the M & M and Chamber of Commerce Stakes will be closed at about the same early date as in years past, so if the owners and drivers who have agreed together to make no entries this year before the 1st of June live up to their agreement, the rich Detroit stakes of 1900 will be won by men who have not been prominent heretofore.

C. F. BUNCH, or "Farmer" Bunch as his fellows reinsmen call him, has an ambition. He gave Iren Alto, son of Polo Alto, his mark of 2:12½, and Dr. Frasse, a son, a record of 2:12. He now says that if he can give a grandson of Iren Alto a mark of 2:10 or better he will have done his duty by the great family founded by Polo Alto 2:08½, which though small is choice goods.

"I NEVER make conditional entries," said a well known California trainer in this office one day this week, "but will sign an agreement right now with a dozen or more others, never to make an entry in a harness race where books are permitted to be made on the heats or the results. If such a petition were circulated among California trainers, drivers and owners it would be signed by 99 per cent of them.

MR. MARTIN CARTER, owner of that young sire of speed Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, has engaged ten stables at the Pleasanton track and will send to that famous training ground to young colts and fillies to be trained for records in races in 1900. The youngsters are all very promising and will be campaigned in California. Mr. Carter shows judgment in sending them to Pleasanton as that is the best training ground in the whole country.

OVER the door of a stall at the Los Angeles race track sign has lately been put up which reads "Stice & Mahen. Mr. Stice is the gentleman who lately came to this State from Illinois with a string of trotters and pacers, and the other gentlemen is known to every horseman in the Golden West as the man who trained and developed Stamboul as helped in a great measure to make the Sultan family—Walter Mahen. Stice & Mahen are thinking of racing on the Montana circuit next year unless the California circuit offers superior attractions.

JOS. MANSFIELD, city editor of the San Francisco Call will drive Chas. Newman's good road mare Maud Newman on the road next year while her owner is at Paris. Mr. Newman has a concession at the Exposition and leaves for the French capital in February next to be absent six months. Editor Mansfield is becoming one of the regular drivers of the speedway and park roads and loves to drive a good horse. He will find the roan daughter of Anteeo Jr. will pull him quarter on the speedway almost any day in 34 seconds better and she is perfectly mannered.

THE road drivers of New York are discussing all sorts of plans by which they can have the Speedway kept in order for driving on during the winter, which shows that the coldest New York weather does not cool their ardor for a dash on the road. The Speedway offers no chance for sleighing as many thought it would when it was being built. Last winter, with an unusual amount of snow, the great drive was not available for a single day's sleighing. After the heaviest snowfall of the winter, one enthusiastic and venturesome sleigh rider attempted the speedway, and did not get far as High Bridge until he was compelled to turn and laboriously make his way back to Central Park, where the sleighing was fairly good. Even under the most favorable weather for sleighing, it rarely lasts more than a day or two.

CHAS. F. KAPP, ha of the popular Temale Cafe corner Market street and Golden Gate Avenue, has made it rendezvous for horsemen who drive over the speedway. It is seldom that a half dozen members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association cannot be found there discussing horse matters and as Mr. Kapp keeps all reference books in his library, disputes of fast miles in the past are settled in a hurry. On Christmas Day he will, as has been his regular custom, turn over the entire receipts of the place to the employed by him and thus make it for them a Merry Christmas indeed. Mr. Kapp, as is well known, owns the best horse in San Francisco, I Direct 2:13, and one of a few weeks ago drove him through the park hitched to Fannie Putnam 2:13. When Sam Gamble was sitting in the office of the Trotter and Pacer in New York last month saw that statement in a copy of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN just received, and "Percy" the New York papers' chronicler says Mr. Gamble ejaculated: "If this 2:13 hood pair don't break Kapp's neck before the year is out, I will agree to sleep in room 13 on the night of January 13, 1911. Well, Kapp's neck is all right, Fannie Putnam has been shipped to her owner, and Sam had better engage that room even though the date is a long way off.

THOMAS B. MURPHY has some queer experiences with horse owners. One day recently a gentleman brought a horse to "The Searchlight," shop on Golden Gate Avenue, wearing a pair of 24 oz. shoes in front and wanted him shod behind, giving Murphy the exact weight of shoe he desired. The shoes were put on as directed and when the gentleman came for the animal he dropped a remark that his horse did not seem to be just right, as he mixed a little and speedy cut once in a while. Murphy suggested that less weight in front would probably help, but the owner drove away without being convinced. He returned next day and said the hind shoes were not extra right, suggesting a little more weight on them. Tommy's argumentative powers at work and finally persuaded the customer that about ten ounces taken off the front would do no harm and might do some good. He finally agreed to re-shoe the horse in front with twelve ounces. When the job was finished the owner drove away with a look of doubt on his face, but he returned in less than an hour carrying a broad grin and a box of fifty Perfectos which handed Mr. Murphy with many thanks and expressions of satisfaction. His horse, relieved of the heavy weight in front, has trotted square and fast for him.

The Saddle.

READ all the stake advertisements in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to-day.

JOCKEY BUCHANAN was seen in the saddle on Wednesday the first time since his re-instatement.

BILLY RANDALL, the well known Montana turf man, left his week for his home to spend the holidays.

WILLIE SHIELDS, the owner of Zoroaster, has gone to New Orleans with the intention of buying a first class sprinter ship to this Coast.

HANSOME, by Hanover, the stallion that was returned to Kentucky from Oregon is advertised to serve ten outside mares at $100 season.

C. F. DWYER has sold in England to S Joal the chestnut colt Sly Fox, 4, by Silver Fox, dam Asteria, by imp. Kanka. Terms private.

W. P. MAXWELL at New Orleans has sold to a Mrs. Bell a bay filly Miss Shanley, 2, by Terra Cotta or imp. Florist, dam Effie C. Terms private.

GYPSYEV, bay colt, by imp. Deceiver, dam Gypsyrene, while being schooled through the field at New Orleans fell and broke his back.

JOCKEY ELMER JAMES, who was suspended at New Orleans last winter, was reinstated by the Stewards of the recent City Jockey Club on December 5th.

EGBART, bay horse, 8, by Egmont, dam Jennie Doty, the property of G. W. Poole, died recently at New Orleans from a spinal abscess. Egbart was a good breadwinner.

JOCKEY MATTHEW MINDRANE died at the home of his sister in Rahway, N. J., on December 11th. He was known in the West as "Ross McCartney" and was thirty-one years of age.

THE 1900 book of imp. Saville, son of Hampton, and owner of the Goodwood Cup in England, is full at $250 this season. Saville is the premier at the Mayfield Stud, Leesville, Va.

ONE of the best sales held in this city this year was that of the Winters yearlings and horses in training. The sale was made by Chass & Mendenhall and the horses averaged $17 for 17 head.

THE change of trainers made by Mr. Larzler seems to have been a wise move. Jingle Jingle showed great improvement in her race last Wednesday and won like a race horse with the remunerative odds of 25 to 1 about her.

R. FERGUSON seems to have been rather unlucky in racing both Favarsham and Anchored in the same race so recently. Both these horses are snikers and badly behaved at the post, and it is almost impossible to effect a good start in a race where they are contenders.

MEDDLER is now an outcast as he has been barred from racing at both tracks. He is a well bred horse, being by Law, out of Meddle, by imp. Fechter, and is fast. It is claimed he was spoiled by the gate, but it is much more probable that bad treatment ruined his temper.

L. MILTON YOUNG had the misfortune to lose a few days by death, his waanling premier colt by Hanover out of a U. by imp. Uhlan. This was an extra good looking colt, which took first premium at the Elks Fair, and had brought up into the thousands when offered for sale.

VERBARY II., which won on Tuesday last, went to the track with 100 to 1 offered against his chances by the bookies. Frank Van Ness, who is training the horse lost the race of his life to win a small fortune as he was ignorant of the price laid against his colt and only backed him for a small amount to show.

NEW track records were made at New Orleans on December 8th. Imp. Mint Sauce, b g, 3, by Minting, dam E. B., ran 6 1/2 furlongs in 1:20, beating the former record of 1:22; and Fleuron, ch f, 2, by imp. Albert, dam Ena, won 5 1/2 furlongs in 1:07, taking off one-quarter of a second from the former record.

THE THOROUGHBRED RECORD, the only weekly paper in America devoted exclusively to the running horse, has changed management. W. C. Scott and John Wallace, enterprising young men of Lexington, Kentucky, are the new owners and propose increasing the size of the journal and improving it in many ways.

T. D. HODGINS of Canada died recently at his home. He is prominent among the Canada breeders, both of trotting thoroughbreds, and imported Albart, the sire of the arist, and other good horses in the United States. The great interest of Canada has lost by the death of Mr. Hodgins one of its most enthusiastic supporters.

THE passengers on the American liner St. Louis, which reached New York Saturday, December 9th, were the Mrs. Reiff, Lester and Johnny, two American jockeys who were with such signal success in England during the season. They will remain in New York for a few days and then go to their home in Ohio, but will return to England in February. Both will ride for the same stables this season. Enoch Wishard, who trains for Richard and Mr. Drake, has first call on their services, and they, a South African millionaire, has second call. They expressed themselves as being pleased with the way they received in England, and said that many of the English jockeys have adopted the American style of SAM JONES, of Portland, Oregon, the man who owned Handsome, by Hanover, and sold him recently to Dr. J. D. Neet, of Versailles, Kentucky, for $2000, has now purchased from D. S. Fountain the four year old chestnut colt Commercial Traveler, by Hanover out of Kempia, by St. Martin, and will place him on his Oregon farm. Commercial Traveler is a winner, and his dam is the dam of winners.

It is probable that the stakes shortly to be announced by the St. Louis Fair Association will be much richer in the aggregate than those of any year since 1896, when the National Derby was transferred by the Harlem track officials. A new feature will be the Turf Congress Stake. The entire amount authorized, $1000, will be added and the club will add a similar amount. The race will be for two year olds at six furlongs and will be run during the latter part of the meeting.

It seems rather harsh treatment of Jockey Ross that the Board of Stewards of the California Jockey Club should have suspended him for the bad showing made by El Estro, a filly from the Baldwin Stable. This filly is absolutely unreliable as a racing proposition, and frequently has stopped in the same manner in times past. The showing made by her in her first start this season, when ridden by Eddie Jones, should be sufficient to exonerate Eddie Ross from any suspicion of wrongdoing.

JOCKEY SPENCER took a desperate chance in squeezing through on the rail in the mile race on Wednesday last. Stuttgart, on which Bullman had the mount, came up on the outside and crowded Faversham and Anchored over against Whaleback and it looked momentarily as if Spencer would be put over the fence; he, however, managed to force his mount through the smallest of openings and landed him a winner over Stuttgart, which was promptly set back to last place by the judge for fouling the other horses.

RECENT advices from New Orleans contain the information that Schorr & Son have a filly by imp. Esher that is about the best yearling at New Orleans. Three winters ago Sharon by imp. Esher—Heartsease, was the best horse at the Crescent City meeting, and in the Schorr filly the Hartland sire seems to have furnished a fitting successor to this useful race horse. Another thing that is worth bearing in mind in connection with this yearling and imp. Esher as a sire is the fact that his fillies race equally well with his colts, as is evidenced by the performances of Sunny Slops, Queen of Song, etc.

A MEETING of the Turf Congress has been called for January 15th, at Covington, Kentucky, for the stated purpose of reviving the circuit plan and allotting dates to each track. It would be a very sensible proceeding should the Congress limit each track holding membership in it to 60 days during the year. By this means the long meetings at Chicago, which are anything but high class, would be curtailed and improved, while the tracks at Louisville, Latonia, Newport and other points would be benefited. The long seasons at Chicago and St. Louis have never done anything to improve racing as a sport.

ACCORDING to the Racing Calendar, W. O. B. Macdonough has leased the following yearlings until January 1, 1902: B f by St. Carlo, dam Santa Bella, and b c by St. Carlo, dam Partisana, to R. Van Brunt; ch f by St. Carlo, dam Agrippina, and ch c by St. Carlo, dam Bud, to Ed. Lanagan; b f by St. Carlo, dam Eliza, b f by St. Carlo, dam Moonlit, ch f by St. Carlo, dam Princess Idle, and b g by imp. True Briton, dam Kosiulottie, to John Weber; ch c by St. Carlo, dam Acrolite, b f by St. Carlo, dam Marilea, h k c by St. Carlo, dam Mercedes, and b f by Dr. Nave, dam Namora, to W. M. Murray and Ed. Purser.

THE Morning Telegraph has published a complete and accurate list of all the riders that have worn silk on jockey club tracks during the past season. A particular and important fact demonstrated by a study of the list is the remarkable lack of riding talent, from a numerical standpoint. Not more than a score of the 247 whose names are printed can justly lay claim to the title of competent horsemen. Jockey Spencer, a California product, easily carried off the honors during the past season with a record of 101 winning mounts. Clawson, Bullman, Jenkins and H. Martin, all of whom were developed on local tracks, are also among the first twenty.

AT the first day of the Sandown Park meeting in England the event of the day was the Grand Annual Hurdle Race, a handicap at two miles, with twelve starters. Mr. Reid Walker's American bred six year old Montauk (Strathmore—Spinaway) carried the top weight, 175 pounds, and was one of the second choices. The winner developed in Mr. Sydney Loder's Masthead, 5, 161, Anthony, but Montauk gave her a terrific drive. Montauk has not been out since March, 1898, but the rest has done him a lot of good, although it was cruel luck to meet such a gruelling finish with big weight at the first essay.

THE STAKES for the Spring meeting of the Brooklyn Jockey Club have been announced and they will close January 2. The list is as follows: For three year olds and upward, the Brooklyn Handicap, $10,000, one mile and a quarter, the Brookdale Handicap, one mile and a furlong, the Parkway Handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, the Myrtle Stakes, one mile and a sixteenth, and the Patchogue, six furlongs. For three year olds, the Broadway, one mile and a sixteenth, the Preakness, one mile and a sixteenth, the Falcon, one mile and a sixteenth, and the May Stakes, six furlongs. The two year old events are the Cluver, for fillies, four and a half furlongs; the Manhanset, four and a half furlongs; the Hanover, five furlongs, and the Bedford Stakes, four and a half furlongs. The jumping events are the Grand National Steeplechase, about two miles and a half; the Greater New York Steeplechase, about two miles and a half, and the Kensington Hurdle Handicap, one mile and three-quarters over seven hurdles. The stakes are valuable, the conditions attractive, and they should receive a long list of entries. See advertisement in this issue.

THE Coney Island Jockey Club advertise a magnificent lot of stakes for 1900 in our columns to-day, and for the Futurity of 1902 $10,000 is to be added. The stakes for the June meeting 1900, are the Suburban, one mile and a quarter, $10,000. The June Handicaps (the Coney Island $2000, the Sheepshead Bay $2000 and the Long Island $2500) or $6500 in all. The Advance, $3000 added, the Swift and the Spindrift $1500 added to each, the Great Trial, $20,000 cash value, the Double Evant, $10,000 cash value. At the Autumn meeting of 1900 there are another lot of rich events, the particulars of which are all set forth in our advertising columns. The date of the closing of these stakes is Wednesday, January 3d. They should be liberally patronized.

THE New Memphis Jockey Club has announced a valuable list of stakes for the Spring meeting of 1900, which will close January 1st. The money is added to all the stakes and the list is as follows: For two year olds, the Gaston Hotel for colts and geldings, four furlongs; the Ardelle for fillies, four furlongs; the Memphis, five furlongs, and the Lumberman's Selling, four and a half furlongs. The three year old event is the Turf Congress Stakes, one mile, and the three year old and upward events are the Montgomery Handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, the Peabody Handicap, one mile and a furlong, and the Tennessee Brewing Company Salling Stakes, seven furlongs. The Cotton Steeplechase is about two miles and is for four year olds and upward. The events for 1901 are the Tennessee Derby for three year olds and the Tennessee Oaks for three year old fillies. Read the conditions in the advertisement.

THE attention of anyone desirous of purchasing a thoroughbred stallion for breeding purposes is called to the advertisement of Mr. Dan Dennison (in another column of this issue), in which he offers for sale two chestnut horse Primrose, son of St. Blaise and Wood Violet. Primrose is seven years old and a well formed individual. He is practically a brother in blood to Magnet. His dam, Wood Violet, was by imp. Ill-Used, from a mare by Kentucky, a son of Lexington, while Magnet's dam was also by imp. Ill-Used from Magnetism, who was sired by Kingfisher, Lexington's best son. Wood Violet is also the dam of Senator Bland, well known on local tracks, and of St. Jacob, about the best hurdler in this part of the country. Talala, from Wood Violet, has also been returned a winner. Primrose showed himself to be a good performer at Coney Island and Sheepshead Bay tracks, running in handicaps over a distance of ground, and finishing either first, second or third on several occasions.

THE sale of broodmares and stallions from the Oneonta stud in California took place at Madison Square Garden New York, on Wednesday night of this week. The telegraphic reports of the sale are very meagre, giving but thirteen of the 32 head advertised. No mention at all is made of imp. Duncombe in the dispatch, and it is probable that he was sold privately. Nineteen of the thirty-two head brought about $23,000. One or two of them sold for $50 apiece, and some were withdrawn. The others brought good prices. The best prices were: Alesia, b m, 1891, to A. J. Stemler of California, $1500; Briar Foot, b m, 1893, to Thomas Welch, $650; Crisals, b m, 1890, to Thomas Welch, $850; Dstrix, b m, 1891, to A. J. Stemler, $2000; Electric Light, b m, 1890, to Thomas Welch, $825; Lalline, b m, 1891, to Thos. Welch, $850; Royal Purple, br m, 1890, to A. J. Stemler, $2200; Wedding Gift, b m, 1891, to A. J. Stemler, $1200; Ira, b m, 1888, to Thomas Welch, $2750; The Squaw, b m, 1885, to Thomas Welch, $500; Everglade, blk m, 1897, to Thomas Welch, $500; Eye Sweet, br m, 1886, to Sidney Paget, $2050; Grey Jacques, gr c, to J. H. Carr, $2750.

THE rich running stakes offered by the State Agricultural Society, the California Jockey Club and the Western Turf Association for the two year olds of 1902, should make every breeder and owner on the Pacific Coast an enthusiastic solicitor of entries for and a very liberal patron of them. The California Futurity, the Western Produce and the Stallion Stakes will be worth in the aggregate at least $100,000 and for that sum to be given in three stakes in one year will attract more attention to California as a breeding and racing State than anything which has heretofore been announced in the way of race programs or big events. The very small amount required to enter a colt or a filly in all these great stakes will certainly attract a tremendous entry list and as in every instance the associations add a liberal sum to the stakes an additional attractiveness is given them. The dates must be kept in mind: The Western Produce Stakes offered by the Western Turf Association close December 30, 1899, the Stallion Stakes offered by the State Agricultural Society closes January 1, 1900, and the Futurity Stakes offered by the California Jockey Club closes January 2, 1900. Blanks containing all necessary information will be furnished by the Secretaries of the different associations upon application and the advertisements setting forth the value and conditions will be found in our advertising columns.

THE absurdity of the use of the recall flag in connection with the starting gate was well exemplified on Wednesday last by Mr. Ferguson. In the second race, in which, by the way, he had two notoriously bad actors, he used up thirty minutes before effecting a start. In the race at six furlongs, in which Meddler was an odds on favorite, the chances of every horse in the field were ruined by the continued use of the recall flag, as Meddler refused to break until the whim seized him to do so. In the two instances mentioned, Mr. Ferguson was very consistent, but in the last race, where the Lady was left standing, the recall flag could have been used with as much appropriateness as in the other races. The recall flag should either be called into play in all cases or discarded altogether. The starting gate was invented with the idea of giving all the contestants an even chance, but when used in connection with a recall flag its original purpose is balked. With no recall flag the jockeys are more alert at the post and are satisfied to get away on even terms, knowing that if they fail to break with the field they will be left. Then, too, bad acting horses are not catered to and the chances of well behaved ones spoiled. If Mr. Ferguson could overbear the remarks daily made in the grand stand and betting ring about the manner in which he discriminates in the use of his recall flag, he would either make use of it in all instances or else relegate it to the obscurity which it properly belongs.

ITS ANCIENT AND MODERN SYSTEM.

BY T. J. C.

The historians in giving to the world the history and origin of the horse as found by them in the various countries which they had explored first described him as the noblest of all the animal creation and the most useful that the God of nature has ever given to man. Some describe the horse as first being found in Asia or Asia Minor while others say his origin was on the west coast of Barbary, but wherever his birthplace true it is that with his existence came man's best and noblest friend. For fifteen hundred years before the Christian era this noble animal had proved his usefulness. Not only was he used as a beast of burden but was also frequently a factor in determining results in the many tribal battles of those fateful years.

The horse played a conspicuous part in battle in the centuries long ago. The Greeks, the Romans, the Saracens, the Egyptians and all the tribes of the ancients who waged continual warfare against each other mounted on their caparisoned chargers paid glowing tribute on memorable occasions to the intrinsic value of their flying steeds. The terrible wars between the Arabs, Greeks and Thealloonians two hundred years B. C. was in reality the first time that the great value of the horse in warfare was made evident.

The Arabs, who by this time became skilled equestrians and also skilled in the use of spear and lance now sought some remedial measures by which they could protect the feet of their favorite charges and thus for the first time in the history of the world we find the humane owners turning their attention to the horse's foot. Here then may be said to be the commencement of the art of shoeing the horse.

Crude and imperfect was the style employed in those years for the first we find was the Arab protecting the feet of his horse with something akin to bamboo cane. This was used by weaving it around the foot. Subsequently we find rawhide brought into use and this proved the more lasting, until the finding of the Kilu Borki or Persian gum tree which produced a gom or rubber substance which was used extensively by the Greeks and Persians and proved to be invaluable as a protector to the horse's feet.

As we now approach the Christian era we find comparatively no advancement made. During the dark or middle ages there had been no progress made in the art or science that history records but with the advent of the crusaders a little life had been put into the sleeping world by the feats of these daring warriors and then for the first time in centuries do we find the light of civilization gleaming over the dark horizon of the past. At the commencement of the twelfth century, the countries of Europe, notably Italy, France and England now seem to emerge from a notable lethargy. And we find the citizens of these countries engaged in manufacturing pursuits. The thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries wrought wonders in the light of civilization and progress for with the dawn of the fifteenth century we approach the wonderful developments of the iron age. Here thus commences what may justly be termed the era of progress, in the advanced manufacture of iron, steel and copper which was found in many countries in those days such as Norway, Sweden, Italy, France and England notably.

The manufacture of iron became of the greatest importance in those countries and although little progress had been made in its manufacture until about the middle of the sixteenth century we find the use of iron immeasurably advanced, and here for the first time he it remarked that it remained for one Caesar Fiaschi, an Italian, to manufacture the first iron horse shoe known to exist and apply it mechanically to the horse's foot.

From that time then, to the present, in the matter of shoeing the horse, is the subject with which we have to deal, and while according to all men in all times credit for what has been achieved in this particular, let us not forget the fact that horseshoeing then, as well as now, required and does require the greatest skill of the craftsman's art.

Having heard a grandparent speak of his handiwork in this field a century and a half ago, I am reminded that in his age the art of horseshoeing had taken a scientific basis and many and frequent were the allusions made to the craft in the latter part of the eighteenth century. But as we have not the time or space for an account of all that has transpired in this connection, let us come down to the present century and see what strides have been made in the art of horseshoeing or what might be properly termed scientific horseshoeing. Doctors of medicine were the precursors of veterinary surgeons, and while the latter were known to exist in the sixteenth century, it was not until the latter part of the seventeenth or the beginning of the eighteenth century that the anatomy of the horse was disclosed to the student in the college. Here, then, may be said to be the commencement of scientific work, for so few of the farriers (as they were then called) knew anything about the anatomy or component parts of the horse's foot, that their art could not be said to be truly scientific. Hence the word scientific as it brings with it a knowledge, or at least it should be a knowledge, of the anatomy of the horse's foot.

In all probability the beginning of the present century brought with it more knowledge in the art of shoeing than any other branch of mechanical skill known to us, for here, in the earlier stages of our history, the horse played a very important part, then why should not that portion of his anatomy and the most important part thereof require the greatest of attention and skill, for it is an old and trite saying "no foot, no horse." Hence we see the necessity of applying all the latent skill at our disposal to this one important part; and let me here remark for the benefit of the public that not one-half the time or one-half the study is properly applied to this subject.

I do not wish to be particularly severe on my fellow craftsman, but I assert that there are men working at this business who would be better employed in some other pursuit of life and why? Because they have never studied their trade from a scientific standpoint and therefore are not qualified for a practical or thorough understanding of the work. This may be attributed in a vast measure to horse owners who careless to their own interests, entrust men to do this work simply because they do it cheaply or for convenience sake.

How often then do we see the necessity for members of humane societies to step in to prevent acts of cruelty and barbarism.

Horse shoeing when done should be done well, and should be given over entirely to those who spend years in cultivating a knowledge of the art and not to those whose skill is only superficial. A man to be a thorough practitioner should first serve an apprenticeship in a practical horseshoeing establishment and commence at the fountain head and by study and experience learn to work at the business in an earnest and scientific manner. How many men working at the business to-day have first learned to manufacture the shoe and the nails to put it on with? We venture to say not one-third; consequently we say without fear of contradiction that there are those engaged in this most intricate business who should never have been allowed the proud privilege of shoeing a horse.

It may appear to the uninitiated that this work is easy of accomplishment, but let me refer the reader to the late Robt. Bonner. Here was a man of scientific research who devoted more than fifty years of time to the study of the horse's foot. And we are ready to concede to-day that in Robert Bonner nature gave to the world one of the brightest minds in the knowledge of the anatomy and treatment of the horse's foot. Here was a man of wide experience treating the foot from a scientific standpoint and at the same time explaining to the horse world why and how it is that a horse should be shod this way or that and we find to-day thousands following his instructions and advice because they were found to be correct. If the gifted man could return to earth and traverse the many shoeing shops of the country how many would he condemn or how many would he praise? Of the former I think a great many and of the latter a very few. There should be a law compelling the practitioner to pass a rigid examination before being allowed to practice on the poor dumb brute who is so frequently tortured by the inhuman methods of the incompetent shoer.

The horse of America to-day stands pre-eminent before the world. In point of speed and endurance he stands unrivalled. The trained trotter of our country has no equal and with his entree into the world of sport his most active coadjutor is the skillful horseshoer, for without him the horse would be nothing; with him he is everything. He is skilled in the art of balancing; he prevents knee hitting, forging, interfering, cross-firing and the many other traits that the trotting horse is heir to. Tell me, you owner of horses of this kind, can you get an incompetent mechanic to rightly do this kind of work? Most certainly not. You will look for and will have to find one eminently fitted to do it.

I have seen specimens of the work in this line of two hundred years ago. Horseshoes of a century and a half ago are to be found in the museums of Europe and at the Smithsonian Institute at Washington and a comparison of the style and shape with the shoe of to-day, is about as near in comparison as are the skilled and the unskilled mechanics who practice the business at the present time.

The woodchopper, the farmer and the handy man of all work is allowed sometimes from necessity and sometimes for economy sake to shoe the horse. Why should this be so? The poor dumb brute cannot tell of his ailment until he is lame and incapacitated for work, yet the unskilled mechanic is allowed to practice on him without any warrant of law or hindrance. The humanitarian is not near, and the poor animal is very often allowed to suffer until death removes him from the scene.

The most common injury inflicted by shoers is known as pricking or in other words pressing the nail to the quick or sensitive part of the foot. How many animals are ruined annually by this system of imperfect shoeing done by incompetent hands cannot be determined. Suffice it to say that they are many, and if this practice is allowed to continue much longer, the spirit of humanitarianism must intervene and none but skilled mechanics be allowed to practice this noble art.

Ingenuous Americans invented the ready made horseshoe and the horse nail. Were it not for them there would not be so many incompetents practicing the profession to-day, for if they had to make their own shoes and nails as we had in former years another vocation would have been chosen by them.

There is a field and a vineyard for all men but it is only right that those who have grown proficient in the practice of this honorable profession should be patronized by the lover of the horse if on no other ground but that of humanity.

So much has been said and written on this art that it would be superfluous for me to dilate upon the subject. Scientific men have discredited upon it, practical men have written and theorized, while the uninitiated have endeavored to emulate the example set them by the more cultured and experienced minds. I desire to cast no reflections on the ignorant who practice this profession, but I am of the opinion that it should be raised to a higher plane and the follower of this art be counted amongst the foremost mechanics of the land, occupying a place in society second to none.

This can only be done by a strict examination as to proficiency, the unskilled consigned to some other field of usefulness and the master mechanic in the art of horseshoeing be allowed only to employ skilled and experienced hands.

I here submit for the benefit of my fellow craftsmen the absolute necessity of such a law as I have suggested. A law giving to each the right to practice his chosen profession but at the same time protect those who have honestly earned the title of mechanic from the competition of the unskilled and uninitiated. Let us as intelligent mechanics invoke the aid of law to place us on a higher and nobler plane and take our place amongst the best and foremost mechanics of the land.

Horseshoeing cannot be done in a satisfactory manner because of the sign over the door. The horseshoer not only requires brain but probity of character. In his charge are placed horses of great value. He sees to it that each is treated humanely and returned to the owner in proper order and fit for the work which nature intended for him, whether on the field, the road, the street or the race track. Consequently we say that as the horse is man's best friend, so may also be said that the competent horseshoer is the horse's best friend.

Let the horse owner realize the value of his horse and let him at the same time realize the danger in having the animal imperfectly shod. He will naturally arrive at the conclusion that cheap work is not the best. Let him place the shoer an honest price for honest work and then we will see fewer lame and crippled horses, the horseshoer praise for his laudable work, the profession complimented in the place of maligned, the horse owner and the horseshoer in perfect accord, each pleased with the other. Then the dawn of the era will appear when the profession will be raised to its proper standard and attain its proper place among the most advanced of the mechanical arts.

For half a century at least we horseshoers have been trying to reach the goal of our ambition, a place among the foremost and most skillful artisans. Let no man attempt to thwart us in our aspirations. Muscle, brain and skill are required, and we are justly entitled to respectful consideration. Horseshoeing cannot be properly done by a novice; requires years of experience, and in return for all this ask, is the laborer not worthy of his hire, and if so, all ask in return is respectful consideration from all men with whom we have to deal.

The average price of shoeing to-day is not adequate for skillful work. More time should be spent in the proper treatment of the foot, but the pay is so low that the shoer thus paid does not give the work the attention necessary. When the time arrives that the skillful mechanic is amply paid, then we may see that change we so ardently wish for and the practice of our profession a blessing to all concerned—the horse as well as the man.

Answers to Correspondents.

F. G. Mc.—In order to settle a dispute I wish you would let me know what was the largest amount of money wagered by a single individual on a horse race. 2 W is the largest attendance at a race track in the U. S. A. also the world?

Ans.—1. The largest bet of which there is any other account was made by bookmaker Jos. Thompson, Australia, when he wagered £50,000 to £2500 against Martin Henry winning the Cup and Derby in Australia in 1876. The bet was made with Hon. Jas. White, the well-known breeder of thoroughbreds in that country. White won it was the prompt manner in which Thompson settled the wager that gave him the name of the Leviathan bookmaker. 2. There is no record of the largest attendance at a race track in America but some of the tracks about New York have probably seen the largest crowds—80,000 and now having attended on holidays or when big stakes were run. The biggest crowd that attends any race track in the world is undoubtedly at the course near Paris where the Grand Prix is annually run, it having been estimated sometime four hundred thousand people.

I. H. H.—Please give breeding of Alcona Jr.?

Ans.—We have no record of a horse by that name Alcona Jr. (which may be the horse you need) was foaled in 1831, has a record of 2:23 trotting, and is by Alcona 730, of Almont 33. His dam is Madonna, by Cassius M. Jr. 22, second dam by Joe Downing 710.

The gat of the French horse Fuschia continue win great races. Recently his three year old daughter won a race at two miles under saddle, carrying 136 pounds in minutes, and is pronounced the best of her generation.

ROBERT T. O'HANLON.

A Tribute of Affection to Departed Worth.

[Notice has heretofore been given of the death of the above named gentleman, but it merely referred to him as a citizen of San Jose and gave no mention of his long and honorable career on the turf. Capt. Thos. B. Merry, of Los Angeles, who knew him for nearly half a century, has sent us the following as his contribution to our Christmas number.]

"Man and boy together I knew Robert T. O'Hanlon forty-nine years. I met him first at Memphis, Tenn., in 1850, when he was first married to the good and sweet-faced girl that has survived him. Their family name was Dohler and the girls had complexions like mountain peaches. Mr. O'Hanlon was then the lessee of the Memphis track and had several horses in training, among them old Fred Kaye, the only horse that, up to that period, had ever been obliged to run eight heats to win a race at the now obsolete condition of mila heats, three in five. Fred was by Grey Esge and his dam by Haxall's Moser, a son of the imported Derby winner Sir Harry. Fred won the fourth, seventh and eighth heats of the race alluded to; and was the contestant in one of the three dead heats which occurred therein. Fred Kaye was brought to this State in 1852 by a man named Sam Velsor and died at Sonora, Tuolumne county, in September 1856. He won a race at Sacramento in April 1854, under the name of "Buck Hall," that being the nick name of John Buchanan Hall, a leading lawyer of Stockton. Croton, by Chorister and Creath, by imp. Tranby, were also in Mr. O'Hanlon's stable at the time I refer to; and either of them could heat old Fred single-handed, at any race that horses ever ran. But with about five or six in the bunch, it was only a question of time how soon the old hay gelding tired them all out and captured the deciding heat of the race.

I have often heard this obsolete race (for which facts I must be permitted to return thanks to Divine Providence) spoken of as the suprema test of a horse's gameness, but I always believed that a trainer's skill in cooling out a horse and rallying him for the next heat, counted for quite as much as any gameness the horse might be supposed to possess. One case in point was at Santa Rosa in October, 1860, where a new track had been opened on "the Jim Clark place," now in the very heart of that beautiful little city. In order to draw a crowd, a purse of $500 had been offered and it was announced that Ashland and Langford would contend for it at two-mile heats. Col. Lathrop, who owned Langford, was a very stingy man and thought that $100 per month was too much salary to pay a competent trainer like Robert Wooding, who had previously trained the horse. So he hired Frank Du Poistre, who had never before trained a horse but was probably the best "rubber" in the State. His horse was short of work when he got to Santa Rosa and the Mendocino colt, Orphan Boy (brother to Tom Atchison's Bloomsbury) won the first heat in 3:44. Before Frank had time to clothe the horse down, after his ride was weighed, here came Boh O'Hanlon and Milton Morrison, who had trained Ashland for the big $10,000 race when Langford beat him at Sacramento. Both of these old rival trainers had about $300 apiece bet on Langford and were anxious to save their money, so they wanted to cool the horse out; and as Frank was somewhat inexperienced in that line, he was only too glad to get Col. Lathrop's permission to turn the horse over to them. Then it was that the comedy began, for Boh and old man Morrison acted as though they were physicians called for a consultation at the bedside of a dying millionaire. At the end of forty minutes, however, they had Langford thoroughly cooled out and he went off and won the next two heats with comparative ease.

Mr. O'Hanlon came to California in 1852 and, for several years, had the bar of the then popular Western Hotel at Marysville, but, in the summer of 1859, opened a house of his own called the Senate. In 1863 he removed to San Jose where he became a very popular member of the fire department and was foremost in everything conducive to the prosperity of his adopted city. Up to 1874 he trained many good horses, such as Al. Bascomb, Shiloh, Transita and his own mara Alpha, by imp. Hercules out of Waxy (grandam of the famous trotter Sunol, 2:08 1/2) by Lexington. It was at the State Fair of 1874 that occurred the incident which prompted his retirement from the turf.

The entries for a purse of $400 were Joa Daniels, Nell Flaherty, Osceola and Alpha. The latter brought only $12 in pools of $180, selling jointly with Osceola as "the field." Only four mutual tickets were sold on her before the start for the first heat, and each of these paid $283, after the commission was deducted. Alpha won the first heat in 1:45, on sufferance. The second heat was taken by Nell Flaherty in 1:44, with Osceola again second. Then came the fastest heat of the race, won by Joe Daniels in 1:43 1/2 with 118 lbs. up, Nell and Alpha being almost tied for second place and Osceola distanced. Joe Daniels pulled up hopelessly broken down and was drawn, with nearly $15,000 "hurt up" on him. Alpha won the next heat in 1:46 and had a few pounds up the sleeve, very plainly. While Mr. O'Hanlon was cooling out Alpha after the fourth heat, a man came up and said:

Mr. O'Hanlon was furious. "I am past fifty years of age, sir, and I have never had such a proposition made to me before in my life."

"I'll make it $1500," pleaded the man.

"Get out of my way or I'll brain you with this scraper," roared Boh, as he brandished a very ugly-looking piece of hickory in his right hand. The man walked away. Just then down came one of the judges—no less a person than ex-Governor Leland Stanford. He said: "Mr. O'Hanlon, I have come down here to take that mare."

"What for?" asked Robert.

"You have been seen talking to a man who has over $5000 in the pool-hox and the judges believe that you have made a bargain to lose this race."

"Governor, I don't think you or any other man on earth will take my mara away from me. I am running her and trying to win this race. I could have won it in straight heats if I so desired. Here's two pools calling for $345 and I expect to pull them down inside of thirty minutes."

"Wall, I want that mare and I am going to take her," said the Governor.

Just then I pulled him aside and said: "There are only two horses in this race and Alpha can lose this heat without losing the race. Let him run her this heat and if she don't win it, it will then be time to take her away from Mr. O'Hanlon."

"Yes," added Mr. O'Hanlon, "and not only that, but time to rula me off the tracks for the rest of my life." So the good old war Governor relented and Alpha went out and won the deciding heat in 1:45. Mr. O'Hanlon pulled down a trifle less than $700 all told. A day or two afterwards he met Governor Stanford and told him all about the attempted bribery, adding that he had firmly resolved never to train another horse while he lived. "If you can give me any employment, I should be really grateful for it," he said. The Governor said dryly, "I will keep an eye open for you and whatever can be done, will be done."

About two months after that the Fourth Street depot at San Jose was finished and the directors of the Southern Pacific Company were in session. Among the forty applicants for the post of ticket agent at that place, the Secretary read the name of Robert T. O'Hanlon. "I'll attend to that," said Stanford. "I ask the board to give me the appointment of that man as a personal favor. I don't know what sort of a clerk he is going to make, but I do know that man will never steal anything."

Mr. O'Hanlon held that position to the outbreak of his fatal illness, when his daughter assumed its duties. A few days after his death, his daughter received notice of her appointment to fill the vacancy. The sturdy old man retained consciousness till within about three hours of "the last of earth," and one of the last of his kindly messages to absent friends was dictated to me. It is something, after all, to have enjoyed the close friendship of one whose honesty was as bright as the glare of the noonday sun. And in these days of turf jobs and conspiracies, the fine example of this pure old man stands out as grateful as the shadow of a high rock in an arid desert.

Mr. O'Hanlon trained many good horses in his day, the best in my belief being Fanny King, owned by his friend Mr. Sewell Taylor. She was by imp. Glencoe, out of Mary Smith, by Sir Richard, brother to Monsieur Tonson. She beat Peytona and several other great ones; and was the dam of Brown Dick (by Margrave) whose three-mile record was unbeaten till Norfolk came along. He trained Lodi for his great races with Norfolk and while Lodi broke down in that record-breaking race at Sacramento, it should be remembered that he was a lame horse before Mr. O'Hanlon got him.

But the last fond words must have said as the last clod falls on my departed friend's coffin. He was a good father, a loyal husband, an exemplary citizen and a man who regarded dishonesty as the prima facie evidence of cowardice. I recall his many kind words very keenly as I pen this tribute to departed worth; and only live in the shining trust that I may be permitted to meet him over the Great Divide that separates Life from Eternity.

The mare Emoleta, by Saalskin Wilkes, has probably won more valuable prizes in the show ring than any other trotter ever exhibited. Every time that the late Col. Lawrence Kip made an exhibition at the National Horse Show this mara was his star winner.

The noted trainer, W. B. McDouald, of Buffalo, who has for several years been training for the Vienna Trotting Club in Austria, is enjoying a vacation in this country. He has not yet decided whether he will return to Europe in the spring.

The New York Speedway trotters had their pictures taken on Sunday, for the biograph, and at an early date exhibition will be given around the country. The photographer was fortunate enough to get a good night of a runaway.

California Circuit Money Winners.

The following table gives a list of the money winners on the California Circuit of 1899. The names of the horses are arranged alphabetically, with their record, if any, color, sex, the name of sire, the number of races won, and number of times placed second, third or fourth, and in the last column the total amount of winnings. The names of horses campaigned in the East that raced at the Los Angeles meetings are not given, but only those that went through the home circuit. The amounts won at the meetings held at Santa Rosa, Oakland, Sacramento, Stockton, Fresno and Los Angeles are included in the totals given. There were other meetings given besides these, but they were small affairs and we have no accurate record of the amount of money actually paid by them to the winners. The list will show that although our circuit was very small this year and at all the State and District Fair meetings but two harness races were given each day, there were quite a number of horses that won a very neat sum of money:

Table with columns: Horse's Name, Sex and Record and Name of Sire, Races Won, Times Second, Times Third, Times Fourth, Amount Won. Lists various horses and their earnings, such as Addison 2:11 1/4, b, g by James Madison, winning $1700.

WINNERS OF $1000 OR OVER.

Swipes Will Feast at Los Angeles.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—There is a flurry of excitement at the Los Angeles track, and mouths are watering in anticipation of a feast over which the gods would have quarreled and gladly faced death for the privilege of stretching their legs under the redwood plank which will serve as the table whereon it will be spread on Christmas Day. The program is all arranged, invitations are out, and the menu card, written in chalk on the blackboard which hangs on the judges' stand, reads as follows:

The Sweaters' Christmas Dinner, 1899. Los Angeles Race Track. HOBOW STEW. DAGO RED.

TWO CANS and FEED BOXES READY AT NOON.

For the benefit of the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN who have smacked their lips over this magnificent creation born of necessity and evolved by the aid of the hobo's hands and brain from the choicest edibles within "reach," I will put them next. A hobo stew is something you do not find can not get at the Pelece Hotel in San Francisco, or the Van Nuys at Los Angeles, but could the chefs of those two swell hosteries ever place upon the mahogany of those dining rooms this dish in its pure and primitive state, then could they demand an increase in salary that would be met as soon as asked. The first requisite is chickens and they must be obtained fresh from the roost at an hour when sun and moon are both invisible, and when the world is in sleep. They must be young and tender and their legs must have that hue which preachers exhort in the editorial hat adore in the gallinaceous family. The number of chickens required varies with the number of "sweaters" expected at the feast and also with the opportunities afforded to obtain the fowl with celerity and safety to all concerned. Then there must be vegetables, of which "ing-uns and spuds" are absolutely indispensable and such delicacies as carrots, turnips, celery, etc., luxurious adjuncts. These must also be plucked fresh and at night during the hour when graveyards and honest farmers' mouths are seared to yawn. Another requisite is that the vegetables should come from a near by garden which should be owned by Chinese, the letter not an absolute requirement, but the fact when known to the guests edging a penny to the glorious dish.

Having secured the chickens and vegetables, a five gallon coal oil can is necessary to cook them in, and they must be heated slowly till done and seasoned to the hobo taste, which is epicurean, I can assure you, and requires pepper of the red and black varieties and plenty of both.

Dago Red is sometimes called claret by the uninitiated, is seldom high colored, but always of that acid sourness that delights the palate of the Italian field hand, and is served with astonishing liberality at two hit French and Italian dinners. This is obtained by purchase, if necessary, with money obtained by passing the hat, and if sufficient funds are raised bread is also bought, and the stew being "done" the feast is ready.

A wide hoad laid across two feed boxes serves as a table, and feed boxes are used for seats. Every guest hustles his own dish to eat from and provides his own weapons of attack. A feed pan, an old tomato or fruit can or any old dish easy to get, is appropriated and the battle begins.

The "sweaters" of Los Angeles track held a meeting this week and arranged the preliminaries of the Christmas feast.

Windy Jim was appointed a committee of one to hustle the chickens. If he is caught in the act it will probably be ninety days of labor without Dago red, which will be the same as death. Dutch Otto has agreed to furnish the vegetables and has been practicing sprouting with a half filled oat sack on his back for three days. He will carry a gun and wear a mask. Ugly Gang has promised, with the aid of a small contribution, to get a large supply of Dago red, and it is a 5-to-1 shot he will not disappoint us or himself. All sweaters are invited to attend.

Perhaps the readers of the B. and S. may not thoroughly understand the term "Sweater." A sweater is a swipe or a tout who travels from one meeting to another in a horse car under one or more hales of hay, sometimes on his own account and sometimes because the trainer for whom he is working is too "graucy," or herd up, to buy him a railroad ticket and compels him to hide away in a car of horses the best way he can to keep a conductor from flogging him. As a general thing the weather is warm and the swipes are sure to perspire freely and thus become a sweater, often the only way he could be compelled to suffer that (to him) great indignity.

I have given you some idea of the grand feast that is in store for those who respond to the invitations sent out from here, and will say that all the B. and S. readers are invited and the only admission cards needed are receipts showing they have paid their subscriptions, or an affidavit that they are unable to present but intend to in the future. We do this to protect you as well as ourselves, as delinquent subscribers are always tremendous eaters.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I remain

Yours with great expectations, LAGARTO DE ARIZONA.

Sires of Six 2:15 Trotters.

How many stallions have sired a half dozen 2:15 trotters was asked in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office the other day, and the records were referred to, with the result that but 17 sires could be found that had gained that honor. The old hero of the homestretch, Robert McGregor, heads the list with fourteen 2:15 trotters to his credit. Beron Wilkes, Guy Wilkes and Simmons have 13 each, Electioneer and Red Wilkes 12 each, Onward 11, Pilot Medium 10, Alcantara and Wilton 9 each, Chimes and Jey Bird 8, Alcione 7, and Elyrie, McKinney and Strenger each with 6. McKinney is the youngest horse in the above list, he being 12 years of age, while Chimes, the next youngest, is 15. Beron Wilkes and Elyrie are each 17 years old. Strenger and Wilton are 19, and of the others that are living, none are less than 20.

WINTER before last Ed Geers took the Hamlin string to Selma, and for a time, after the season opened, he swept everything before him, and then the horses commenced to go wrong and from the middle to the end of the season they did not do well. Last winter he trained at the Jewettville covered track, and was somewhat better pleased. This winter he has already taken a string to the covered track, comprising twenty-one head, among them being The Abbot, 2:06 1/2, by Chimes; The Monk, 2:08 1/2, who has had a two years' rest; Equity, 2:12 1/2, by Heir-at-Law; Tudor Chimes, 2:13, by Chimes; The Queen, 2:10 1/2, by Chimes; The Earl, 2:17, by Mambrino King; Dare Devil, 2:09 1/2, by Membrino King; Merriment, 2:13 1/2, by Membrino King. The Earl, The Monk and Equity were not raced last season, but great things are expected of them the coming year, and Mr. Hamlin expects The Abbot and The Monk to be in shape in lower the team record, 2:12 1/2, made by Honest George and Belle Hamlin. The world's champion pacing mare, Lady of the Manor, 2:04 1/2, has not yet recovered from the accident at Louisville, but she is slowly improving, and hopes are entertained that she will be able to race again next season. It is said that Mr. Geers will stay at the covered track until early spring, when he will go to Selma for the finishing touches.

THE famous trotters belonging to the late Robert Bonner will positively be sold at Madison Square Garden next February under the auspices of the Fasig-Tipton Company. Among them will be such well known ones as Preytell 2:09 1/2, the last horse purchased by Mr. Bonner; Sunol 2:08 1/2, by Electioneer; Maud C. 2:10 1/2, by Benderton; Don L. 2:12 1/2, by Col. Tom; Elfride 2:12 1/2, by Candidate; Ansel 2:20, by Electioneer; Prince Ansel, by Ansel; Melhe, by Ansel; Ledy Boone, by Hembletonian; Russelle, by Herold, and a number of other old time favorites. Maud S., the first trotter to turn a track in 2:08 1/2, and one or two others will not be sold.

THE Peris Exposition will be visited next year by people from every nation on earth and all who look in on the exhibit of American horses which is to be made there will be entertained with a series of moving pictures showing how the New York speedway looks when the road drivers are out in force and urging their horses to their utmost to secure the lead. The motograph company that took the pictures secured excellent results and the exhibition of the views in Peris will prove a credit to the speedway brigade.

A NEW YORK exchange states that W. B. Feisig is negotiating for the purchase of a well known and well equipped stock farm in New Jersey, and if the deal goes through will engage Matt Dwyer for superintendent.

FISHING IN SANTA BARBARA CHANNEL.

[For the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN by Captain Tom.]

Captain Tom sat in his office with a pile of law books around him trying to reconcile the contradictory decisions of the Supreme Court on a point of law, when "You are wanted at the telephone" was the message he received from Hueneme's pretty "hello girl." He was soon at the phone when the following talk ensued:

"Hello Santa Paula, I've got the Captain here."

"Hello Hueneme, I hope you will keep him, here Doc fire away."

"Hello Captain, Paul and I are just suffering and hungry for some fresh fish and dying for a sniff of salt air. When can you get off and take us over to the Islands?"

"Hello Doc, fish and salt air goes, your wants shall be fully satisfied, always ready for a lark, come when you want to. Say we go to-morrow evening."

Doc.—"To-morrow evening goes, have everything ready. What about grub?"

Cap.—"Bring plenty good grub, I furnish the rest."

Doc.—"Paul will put up the medicine at his drug store. Any snakes over there?"

Cap.—"Yes, lots of sea serpents. Good bye."

There was not much getting ready to do, the little yacht "Naiad," a staunch, comfortable boat built on purpose for such trips was at her mooring, only awaiting our coming. Big Jack, so named because of his gigantic size and strength, sometimes called "Happy Jack" because of his good nature and the perpetual grin on his jolly face. He was mate and crew of the yacht, an all round good fellow always ready for a good time and the prospect of fun. Jack was on hand next day, wood and water was put on board, fishing tackle and other necessaries were stowed away in the locker, and everything was ready when Doc and Paul reached Hueneme.

Supper at the Seaside Hotel was next in order, and then for the wharf. There was Jack, impatient to be off, rolling and lighting his one-hundredth cigar for the day. He was soon in the skiff, baggage, grub and sundry small packages were passed down to be taken on board, Cap in the stern sitting on a pile of blankets. Alongside the yacht the things were passed on board. Then Doc and Paul were brought on board, the little skiff was hauled on deck, the anchor up, the sails set and at 8 P. M. we were away for Anacapa Island, eighteen miles away, across the channel. A gentle southeast breeze filled the sails and continued with us until we reached our destination. Paul went forward and made everything snug—every halyard neatly coiled and placed where it belonged and where it could be quickly found even at night. The anchor was put on deck end its chain arranged in folds, the skiff was lashed securely, then everything was snug on deck. Paul is one of those handy men one likes to see on board of a yacht; he knows just what is necessary to be done, goes about to do it, without having to be told. The Captain made things snug in the cabin, the blankets were put into the hunks, the grub stowed in the mess chest, and doing so discovered several bottles not on the manifest.

We then gathered aft to enjoy the sail in the beautiful starlight of a summer night over the placid waters of this south land. With songs and stories, with a fishing yarn thrown in occasionally, the time passed so quickly that before we hardly realized it, at 1 A. M. we anchored close in shore in the little harbor at Anacapa Island. The sails were furled and then we turned in for a few hours sleep.

At 6 A. M. we were boarded by the men at our abalone camp and all went on shore to breakfast. We then passed the day in enjoyment according to each one's bent, some took the skiff and went fishing, some took their rifles to shoot seals, Ned went for abalones, but at noon we all assembled at the camp ready for dinner. Kind reader, has it ever been your good fortune to have a big full plate of abalone chowder placed before you? If not, then the sooner you seek such a treat the happier you will be, life is too short for you to wait for it to come to you. Now, if there is one thing that Cap prides himself on, it is his abalone chowder, clams and oysters can't compare with it when properly made and that is the way we had it at Anacapa. After dinner we explored the big caves, and at evening we gathered again for a good snapper of fried fish, to which we all did ample justice. The belly part of an albacore, cut in strips and fried, is a royal dish fit for a good fisherman. In the bunk-house we gathered, pipes were lighted, and then followed two hours of stories and old such stories! Doc is a good No. 1. Paul is not far behind him and thus it was kept up until Cap told one that nearly raised the roof off the shack with our laughter, and then we went to sleep and dreamed of the big fish we were to catch on the morrow.

At 5 o'clock next morning we were all up and stirring. Ned prepared a good breakfast which we enjoyed and then we went on board the yacht and sailed for the fishing bank near the east end of the island. Cap sailed right to the place and anchored in twenty-five fathoms. Then the fun began. The fishing hand-lines were soon out and hardly had touched bottom when Jack announced a telephone message from below, "here too" says Paul, and we all were pulling up at the same time. White fish and rock cod were being hauled in at a lively rate. No sooner was the line at the bottom than the fish were hooked and thus we kept it up. "I've got a big one says Doc." "So have I," says Paul as his line went cutting through the water and making that music so delicious to the ear of the sporting fisherman. As the big fish came to the surface there was a howl, a ——— shark, two sharks! Jack jumps for the gaff and soon a six foot shark is being handed with the Captain's brand. His tail is cut off a foot from the end, and then he is turned loose; the other sharks take after him and soon we were rid of their presence and resume our fishing. "Cod of the rocks" says Jack; four of them and up they come. "Whitefish here" says another and thus we keep it up until we are tired and find that we have more fish than we want, they are laid side by side in the forehold where it is cool. The Captain lights his blue flame stove, coffee is made and a good lunch is spread on the top of the cabin; the boys are ready for it too for fishing in deep water is hard work even if it is good fun.

The west wind now begins to ruffle the surface of the sea, a fair wind and a fine sail are in prospect. Our traps are already on board, and at 2 P. M. we bid good bye to the boys at the Island, they returned to the camp and we set sail for home. At first we go slow, while under the lee of the island, then we get the breeze and the little yacht is reeling off eight knots an hour.

Now comes the fun! Two trolling lines with bone jigs are put over—Doc has one while Paul has the other.

"We are on albacore waters now," says Cap; "look out!" A splash and a mighty jerk, and Doc is wrestling with a forty-pound albacore, his line as taut as a fiddle string.

"Down with your helm, Jack," yells Cap, and up to the wind she comes in fine style and the beautiful fish is landed on deck. The sails fill once more and on we go, then soon again Doc is foul of another and larger fish, and although a strong man, he has all he can do to hold him. "Stay with him, Doc," we all yell and Doc has him for keeps, the yacht is again brought to the wind, and with the help of the gaff an immense albacore is safely landed. And thus we keep it up all the way back. Paul does his share, too. Albacore, honita, skip-jack, barracouda, thus we get a variety. Oh! but it is glorious sport! and how we enjoy it. But all this, even fun, must have an end. The wharf was near, but we had had a most enjoyable trip. The sail across the channel with a fair wind is very exhilarating; all too soon we reach the wharf, the boat is made secure, the fish and our traps are landed. Doc sends for his team and his wagon is loaded with fine fish. Both Doc and Paul are delighted with their trip and start for their home in Santa Paula, eighteen miles up the valley, and thus ended a pleasant and much enjoyed trip to Anacapa Island, Ventura county. The islands in the Santa Barbara Channel abound with food fishes of many kind in season. Albatross Bank lies three miles north from the east end of Anacapa; it is a great place for rock cod, from seven to twenty pounds in weight, and occasionally a codfish is caught there. The fishing is in sixty-six fathoms; with eight hooks on your line and a fish on every hook, it ceases to be sport and becomes hard work.

A movement has been started by Sausalito parties to stop the wholesale destruction of under sized fish by Chinese shrimp catchers in the waters along the Marin county shores. It is claimed that the fishing grounds in that vicinity have been ruined and white men engaged in that vocation have been forced out of business. During the past nine months the Fish Commission has made nearly 100 arrests, but lenient juries have always acquitted the defendants. In carrying out the plan decided upon, Constables R. I. Garity and John E. Creed, were sent to the fishing grounds at McNear's point on the 12th inst, where, after a few hours, seventeen violators of the law were taken into custody. The men were brought to Sausalito and admitted to bail by Justice of the Peace Beltrude. Their trial will take place next week. In case they should again escape punishment, it is asserted that arrests will take place every day and proceedings instituted for the confiscation of their nets and boats. The row now on between the San Pablo Bay Company and the other shrimp-fishing camps will assist the Sausalito fishermen in carrying their point.

Striped bass fishermen are catching odd fish now and then rarely over three or four pounds in weight. Two fishermen last Sunday fishing about a mile out from Rodeo caught a four pounder and eight smaller ones. The fish are caught in great numbers near the mouth of Petaluma slough. Over a ton of striped bass were sent to market from those waters one day last week. W. R. McFarland reports that he caught on Sunday at Rodeo and opened a small huck striped bass, about three pounds in weight, which had the milt fully developed in him. Eastern anglers are reported to be having good luck with that fish when using live eels for bait. The eel is hooked upwards through both jaws and a little in front of the eyes, the largest fish have been caught with sixteen inch eels.

Eel river is high and the waters of that stream are thick and muddy. A run of large fish is on but the angler is barred from sport with the rod for the present. The net fishermen in tidewater are making good hauls and realizing big prices per box for the fish. They draw their seines with the aid of horses on shore.

The San Francisco Fly-Casting Club will hold a meeting on January 9th, at which time the members and their guests will set down to the usual bi-monthly dinner of the club. Messrs. J. Peltier, A. J. Kierulff and W. B. Tuhs were enrolled as members at the meeting held Tuesday, December 12th.

Point Reyes anglers are having but fair results in the tide-water and Paper Mill.

The Game Law.

The synopsis of the game laws appearing below and published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for several years past has, from time to time been changed or the provisions of new ordinances added thereto by reason of the many and various changes in the county game and fish laws, particularly those of recent date and of application in and around the bay counties.

This synopsis has been frequently copied (in more or less garbled and incomplete form) and quoted by city and interior journals and has also been printed and distributed by business houses. While the information given at the date of issuance was substantially correct, we do not care to be held responsible for the circulation of old matter that is now incorrect in many details. Some complaint has been made in this respect and to avoid misunderstanding in the future it is suggested that for information of this character a reference be made to current numbers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for the latest and most complete data concerning the Game Laws.

The county enactments relative to the shipment of game have become inoperative under the decision of the Supreme Court of California, rendered December 5, 1899, in the case of James Knapp on habeas corpus, appealed from the Superior Court of Stanislaus county.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. Pheasants, the taking, killing, selling or having in possession at any time is prohibited; robbing or destruction of nests of laying pheasants, eggs, or possession is a misdemeanor in the following counties: Butte, Trinity, Marin, Lake, Merced, Riverside, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Kings, Ven, tura, Santa Clara, Monterey, San Joaquin, Yuba.

The clerks of nearly all the Boards of supervisors have advised us no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Diego, Solano, Siskiyou, Tehama, and Yolo.

The changes are as follows:

At the Traps.

The annual live bird tournament of the Los Angeles Gun Club will be held at the new club grounds in Los Angeles located on the line of the Santa Monica electric car line. Two days will be devoted to the traps, Sunday, December 31st, the last day of the old year, and New Year's Day. The live bird events under the auspices of the Southern California Club have always proven successful meetings. Large entries and good purses have been the rule recently. A good entry of trap shooters has been assured for the present meeting.

The card for the first day will commence with a twelve bird race, $6 entrance, including birds, high guns to win, money divisions, 40, 30, 20 and 10 per cent. Event number two will be a four man team race at twenty-five birds per man. Entrance $1 per team, birds included. Winning team to take the purse. Los Angeles and San Diego have entered teams, it is reported also that a team has been entered from this city. This subject has received much consideration from local trap shooters, should favorable conditions allow it is very probable a team from this city will compete, but up to the time of our going to press nothing has been definitely arranged. The names of Clarence Haight, Harvey McMurchy, M. O. Feudner, Clarence Nauman and Ed Schultz have been mentioned as among the men selected to take part in the Los Angeles shoot.

On New Year's Day the opening event will be at eight live birds, $5.00 entrance, birds included. Money divisions, 50, 30 and 20 per cent to high guns. The event following will be at twenty-five pigeons, entrance $25.00, birds included. All shooters in this event start at twenty-six yards and each shooter will be handicapped one yard for each time he scores five birds straight at twenty-eight, twenty-nine, thirty or thirty-one yards. High guns to win, four moneys, 40, 30, 20 and 10 per cent.

Other events will be arranged on the grounds each day at the option of shooters present after the regular matches have been concluded. Shooting will commence at 8:30 A. M. sharp each day.

Chas. Van Valkenburg of Los Angeles has thrown down the gage to the Southern California trap shooters and is out with a challenge for $100 a side in a 100 blue rock race. It is believed that the scalp of Vaughan of Santa Ana would be acceptable to ornament the Los Angeleno's belt.

Rumor has it that Messrs. Height, McMurchy, Feudner, Ed. Schultz and Nauman of this city and W. A. Hillis of South Libby, Montana, and C. A. Lougee of Spokane, Wash., will be seen at the Los Angeles shoot. Mr. Libby's average at the last Northwestern Sportsmen's Association tournament at Spokane was over 90 per cent. Mr. Lougee is not unknown to the local traps. Among the cracks down south will be found Sam Thompson of Fresno, Smith of Riverside, Vaughan of Santa Ana, Martines Chick, A. W. Bruner, Capt. Jake Sedam, Daniels of Denver, Chas. Van Valkenburg and others. The meeting promises to be one that will be remembered in trap shooting annals of the Coast.

Quail and Diplomacy.

That a game bird should be the subject of diplomatic negotiation between five of the nations of Europe is one of the curiosities of international controversy.

The facts are these: The European quail, or rather the quail that is found there in the spring, summer and autumn, is not an indigenous bird, but a migrant. Northern Africa and the Nile valley are its winter home, but in the spring it crosses the Mediterranean en route to England, Ireland and central Europe, from Hungary to South Russia, where it breeds, and whence, when that function is complete and the young fully grown, in the late autumn it returns to Africa.

When in migration in the spring these quail are caught in nets, not only in Egypt but on the islands of the Mediterranean, the coast of the Pontine marshes and in Sicily, where they were sometimes netted in the past to the extent of 100,000 a day. The greatest catches were made on the Bosphorus. In the islands of the Greek archipelago they are cured and smoked, and a large trade is carried on in them.

In Italy in former times the netting of them was the more persistent, and so numerous were they that when in flight during the night they overturned small boats near the shore by alighting on their sails and rigging.

Formerly, when there was only a demand for the birds for local consumption, no restrictive measures were employed to prevent their capture; but now, through means of rapid transportation, all of the markets of Europe and Great Britain are supplied with them. They are transported alive in crates, and are fattened before being sold.

The result of this enormous netting of the emigrating quails is to reduce greatly the number that is available to the sportsman for the autumn shooting. Formerly from 40 to 60 were considered a good day's average to the single gun in the various countries which they visited. This average is now reduced to one of 10 or 12, and the determined protest of the influential sportsmen has aroused the governments interested to put an end to their capture during the spring migration.

While each European state can and does protest its non-migratory game birds, it can do nothing for the protection of quails without agreement of the various nations within whose territories they nest and breed. To accomplish this France, Austria, Germany and Switzerland have signed a protocol forbidding the netting of quails within their borders and the transportation of Egyptian birds across their domains.

The letter clause, however, cannot be made effective without the co-operation of Great Britain, inasmuch as the quails netted in Egypt are transported to Marseilles and Trieste in English steamers and their transit across the countries interested cannot be prohibited so long as the birds are destined for consumption solely in England.

As by far the largest catch of spring quail is made in Egypt, and the one most fatal to their future in Europe, the refusal of the British Government to prohibit netting in the valley of the Nile, or to interfere with their transportation to the English market, nullifies the efforts of Austria, France, Switzerland and Germany for their protection. The correspondence of the various nations interested in this matter is quite voluminous. Great Britain, as usual on international questions that involve an element of gain to the subjects of the queen, assumes a purely selfish attitude and declines to make any concessions to what it considers a sentimental proposition.

The Loon and His Ways.

This bird is not unknown to the hunter, angler or camper who is familiar with the lake regions of this State and also of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Nevada. A correspondent of the New York Sun writing from Foxcroft, Me., has the following interesting article regarding the bird that has often been the symbol of mystery or subject of weird wood lore romance by the pen of many writers:

Of the feathered inhabitants of the northern lakes the most interesting and impressive beyond question is the loon. In comparison with him the wild goose is tame and prosaic, and even the wild swan in all his graceful beauty makes an impression on the beholder less vivid and enduring. There is a reserve and mystery about the loon, a wonder in his strange journeys beneath the wave, his vanishings and reappearances; that set him apart from the other birds of the air and waters and invest him with a weird interest. He has none of the gregariousness of the other waterfowl, but swims by himself or with his mate, and often the only token of his presence to the camper by the forest lake is his doleful, unearthly shriek from the darkness, a sound that has been compared to the cry of a soul in hell-fire. Seen afloat upon the water, the loon is a regal-looking bird, with colors scarcely matched by those of any other fowl in the combination of simplicity with striking effect. An imperial purple sheen crowns the deep bluish-green hue of head and neck, with silver band, the black bill, the splendid body-markings in black and white, the fierce, keen eye, with iris vivid red, the proud, alert carriage of the head are unique and fitting features in this lonely haunter of the northern lakes.

In building and protecting their nests the loons display much judgment and generalship. The nest is made on the ground in the tall grass of some low island or waterside meadow, difficult of access from the landward side. Grass, sods and weeds are the materials used, and the structure, laid in a circular form hollowing to the center, is lined with fine grass and moss. From the nest several paths are made to the water's edge, and at the approach of danger the sitting bird leaves her eggs and, concealed by the high grass, makes her way to the water, dives and is first seen at a safe distance from the shore intently watching the movements of the intruder. If it be a swimming mink or muskrat she does not hesitate to join battle with it, attacking it furiously with beak and wings, and if it dives to escape her onslaught, the bird through her superior swiftness under water, makes matters worse than before for the intruder. If surprised and cornered on the land the loon will put up a fierce fight against whatever assails her, though at a great disadvantage compared with her power of warfare in the water.

In one of the ponds of the Buttermilk chain of waters north of Sebek Lake, a New York man who had pitched his tent for the season on its shore passed frequently in his canoe close by a loon's nest without once suspecting its existence. He noticed throughout the entire month of June that on approaching a certain low meadow tract of shore a loon was always to be seen in the water off against it, and he left the bird's constant appearance at one spot to the supposed fact that there was unusually good fishing there. As he drew near the bird she would dive, and reappear farther away, but she always came back to the first spot after he had passed. It was not until he saw the loon swimming one day with three grey-floppy little ones behind her that he absorbed the fact that her nest had been all the time close to his route of travel in the tall meadow grass near the shore, and a short search revealed it to him with the freshly chipped eggshells scattered promiscuously about it. The young loons had apparently lost little time in making from the shell to the water, where they swam and dived with a facility approaching that of the mother. They grew fast and learned soon to shift for themselves in the way of making their own living. Before the end of August they were half the size of the parent birds and they fished about the pond quite independently of them, though they still came together at times in a sort of family reunion when fishing was dull or all hens were satisfied with their catch for the day. The male parent, who had been in evidence only occasionally during the incubation of the eggs, keeping aloof probably through the instinct which advised him that his presence might draw attention to the nest, joined his family as soon as they appeared on the pond and remained with them constantly until the young ones had struck out for themselves.

While the loon is proverbially one of the shyest of birds, so wary that it is next to impossible to get the drop on him with a gun, he has an instinct of curiosity that will draw him very near to a boat at rest on the water in which the occupants make no movement to alarm him. The fishermen, with his boat at anchor or drifting idly on calm water, is sometimes half startled on looking suddenly round to find a loon watching him intently with fiery eye a few yards away. At his movement the bird disappears, but if he remains quiet the bird will come again and stay near him for hours. During the present summer and fall Salmon Blanchard, who lives a mile above Sebek village, being afflicted with leanness which hinders his working on his farm, has been in the habit of fishing almost daily from a boat, which he anchors off the mouth of Bear Brook Cove. In this way he has come to make friends with a loon that has regularly visited him and kept him company at his fishing. Though the bird on the farmer's arrival at the cove may be nowhere in sight, he sooner or later appears, coming by the under-water route, and, taking his station a half dozen oer's lengths from the boat, watches the fisherman's luck with the liveliest interest. Sometimes a gull or two join the party, sweeping round overhead ready to snatch up a disabled fish or discarded bait, and later coming to rest on the surface, where they fleetly watch the fishing with an interest as apparent as the loon's. The birds' confidence has been gained by the farmer's friendliness, and with him they exhibit but little of their usual shyness.

Whether or not the loon is able to dodge a rifle bullet, as many sportsmen affirm, he is certainly the hardest bird to hit in all the category of water fowl. From his size and the beauty of his plumage he is naturally sought for by the collectors of bird specimens, who find it a difficult matter to secure, after long effort, so much as a single bird. One amateur taxidermist in Maine owed the stuffed loon in his collection, to the discovery by some winter hunters, of the bird frozen in the ice of a mountain pond. The loon had evidently been beated in his autumn trip to the South and either had paused to rest on the ice covering the pond or the ice had formed about him, holding him captive as he floated on the water. A loon can rise in flight only from the water, being unable to use his wings or spring aloft from a solid surface; hence from a frozen pond he is helpless to escape. Loons have been captured on land while resting after long flight, a happening that occurs most frequently on the arid plains of the West, where water sheets are few and far apart. A loon taken this way on the plain east of Las Vegas, New Mexico, six years ago, was kept on exhibition in that city for some time before being liberated to continue his flight to the south. Rarely a hunter succeeds in killing a loon on the water with a rifle ball or charge of heavy shot.

If the loon is hard to kill, to capture him alive in the water is a proposition so much more difficult as to make the first seem easy. But John Robbins of Foxcroft, the fishing guide, accomplished this feat last year by creasing the bird's neck with a bullet, precisely as wild horses sometimes are taken on the Western plains, the ball being aimed so as to graze the vertebrae of the neck, stunning without seriously injuring the animal. In company with Dr. E. A. Scott of New York, he was coming down Sebek lake in the steamer Marion on the return from a fishing trip to the head of the lake, when in passing the narrow loon swam out from a cove into view. Robbins fired at him with a rifle and the loon fluttered and splashed the water, going round in a circle, showing that he had been hit. The steamer was turned from its course, and the bird taken aboard without showing resistance. An examination showed no place where the bullet had entered, and it was only after considerable searching that the spot was found where it had struck—a reddened place just at the curve in the back of the neck which the bullet had grazed, glancing from the thick feathers and scarcely disturbing their smoothness. The bird began to struggle and fight, and was taken into the cabin for safe-keeping, where he made things lively for his captors during the rest of the trip, going for them without let-up as fast as he could waddle, endeavoring to plant a stroke with his large-like bill. At the landing a bag was procured and the bird was maneuvered into it, and in this way he was carried to Robbins' house in Foxcroft, where he was placed in a pen. He took his captivity easily, showing little fear and eating fishes as fast as they could be brought to him. Robbins kept him a fortnight, and the two got on very good terms with each other. The loon's appetite showed no signs of abatement, but rather grew keener, making it a serious burden to feed him. So, as Robbins could not afford permanently to devote his time, and that of his boy, to the catching of minnows for his voracious captive, he decided to let him go, and taking him up the river in a boat, set him into the water on the side. The loon's first act was to dive. Then coming up he celebrated the recovery of his freedom with a series of shrieks that would have made a college yell seem an undertone in comparison. He was in no haste to leave the river, remaining in the vicinity of the town for several days and enlivening the village nights and mornings with demonstrative cries. Then one day he flipped the water with his wings, churning it like the side wheels of a steamer, and paddling with his feet meantime until he had gathered sufficient momentum, when up he went into the air and flew as straight as a cannon ball over the north hills to his old home in Sebek lake.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Local notes and other matter prepared for this issue were unavoidably crowded out.

The San Mateo board of supervisors last Tuesday passed an ordinance prohibiting the invasion of private grounds, without the owner's consent, in the shooting of game and also making it a misdemeanor to shoot any kind of game upon the county roads and public highways.

Bloomsbury King.

This bull terrier is considered by Mr. H. E. Monk, his owner and breeder, and also by other competent judges to be one of the best dogs of his breed in England. He is by Sberbourne King, out of Bloomsbury Surprise by Champion Greenhill Romeo ex Bloomsbury White Tip.

Bloomsbury King, as described by the English Stock Keeper, is a grand long-headed dog, with plenty of stuff about him. His muzzle measures thirteen inches, added to a powerful underjaw, whilst his eye is not equalled in the Fancy, beating even that of his sire, who was famous in this respect.

Although to this date he has never left his owner's kennels the sum of £100 was recently refused which was offered by an American gentleman, who would have gone even higher had there been a prospect of his purchase.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Pomeranians are showing strong indications as the coming Eastern fad.

The Southern Fancier has issued a very neat and interesting Christmas number for December.

The quarterly meeting of the American Kennel Club was held on Thursday this week in New York.

Mr. Jas. Mortimer opened his New York office as Superintendent of the Westminster Kennel Club in New York on the 11th inst. The location is the same as last year.

Pride of Sausalito, a handsome and intelligent young English setter bitch by Ch. Cincinnatus Pride out of Phil Wand's well known crack bitch Flora W., was accidentally killed on the track by a train near San Clemente, Marin county, this week.

The many Pacific Coast friends of Mr. James Mortimer will sincerely regret to hear of that gentleman's sad affliction in losing one of his young sons recently. The unfortunate child in falling accidentally penetrated his skull, above the eye, with a lead pencil.

Magistrate Crane, of New York city, recently fined a man $3 for cruelty to animals. It was done, the prisoner explained, "for fun."

Magistrate Crane on the 1st inst. received a letter from Mr. Bascom commending him for his disposition of the case, and tendering him as a reward the Scotch collie dog, White Heather, by Ormskirk Cornistman. Mr. Bascom notified the Magistrate that he could obtain the dog by presenting the letter at the pet dog show in the Metropolitan Opera House, where the dog was on exhibition, or at the Providence Collie Kennel Club, Providence, R. I., after the show was over.

The rules of racing adopted by The Jockey Club govern all races (except Hurdle Races and Steeplechases) run under the auspices of the Brooklyn Jockey Club. Entries to either or all of the races advertised herewith will be received only with the under standing, and on the agreement of the subscriber, that the provisions of Racing Rules 42 and 43 (hereto appended) form a part of and govern the contract.

"RULE 42—Every person subscribing to a sweepstake, or entering a horse in a race to be run under these rules, accepts the decision of the Stewards on any question relating to a race, or to racing.

"RULE 43—At the discretion of the Stewards of the Jockey Club, or of the Stewards, and without notice, the entries of any person, or the transfer of any entry, may be refused."

The Rules of Racing adopted by the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association govern all Hurdle Races and Steeplechases run under the auspices of the Brooklyn Jockey Club.

In making up the Programme for the Spring Meeting of 1900 the Stakes and Handicaps will be so arranged as to give owners an opportunity to run without sacrifice of interest.

The Club reserves the right to start any or all of the races announced herewith with or without the aid of a starting device.

Nominations should be addressed to the Secretary, 399 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The California State Agricultural Society's

STALLION STAKE

NOMINATIONS TO CLOSE WITH SECRETARY, JAN. 1, 1900.

A sweepstake for then two-year-olds (foals of 1900) the progeny of stallions nominated by January 1st, 1900. $50 each for stallions whose service fee in 1899 was $100 or over; $20 each for all other stallions, entrance fee to accompany the nomination. Foals of all stallions nominated as above to be eligible for entry.

Foals to be entered by January 1st, 1901, at $10 each, to accompany nomination, when the stake shall close, and the sex, color, marks, and breeding of the foal shall be given.

Further payments will be required of $15 on January 1st, 1902; of $25 on June 1st, 1902; and $50 additional from starters—starters to be named and payment to be made the day before the race by 4 o'clock p. m. Payments not made as a stallion or colt does not void entry.

The State Agricultural Society to add $1000, of which $300 to second, and $100 to third.

The nominator of sire of the winner shall receive 25 per cent., of the second 15 per cent., of the third 10 per cent. of stallion subscriptions. Balance and all other stakes subscribed to go 55 per cent. to the winner, 10 per cent. to second, and 5 per cent. to third.

The produce of stallions which have not sired a winner prior to January 1st, 1900, allowed 5 pounds of weight at the time of entry. Stallions may be nominated by any one, the owner to have the prior right. If by two persons or more, not his owner, priority of entry shall determine claim to his nomination.

Colts and geldings to carry 115 pounds; fillies 115 pounds. A winner of a stake race to carry 3 pounds extra; if of two stake races or five races of any value, 5 pounds extra. Maidens allowed 5 pounds; if beaten three or more times, allowed 8 pounds in addition to the stallion allowance. Six furlongs.

OCCIDENT STAKE OF 1902.

TROTTING STAKE FOR FOALS OF 1899.

Entries Close January 1st, 1899.

To be trotted at the California State Fair of 1902. Entries close January 1, 1900, with Peter J. Shields Secretary, at the office in Sacramento. One hundred dollars entrance, of which $10 must accompany the nomination; $15 to be paid January 1, 1901; $25 January 1, 1902; and $50 thirty days before the race. The Occident Cup, of the value of $400, to be added by the Society. Mile heats, three in five, to harness. First colt to receive Cup and six-tenths; second colt, three-tenths; and third colt, one-tenth of the stakes. Five to enter, three to start, otherwise N. T. A. Rules to govern.

Nominators are not held for full amount of entrance in case colt goes wrong; only forfeit payments made, which relieves you from further responsibility and declares entry out.

This stake is growing in value each year. In 1898 its value was $2775. In 1899 it was $2775. The Occident Stake of 1902 should receive more entries, and be the most valuable in its history.

Remember, the date of closing is January 1, 1900.

Bookmaking in England.

In these days when American trainers and jockeys and American bred horses are cutting such a wide swath on the English turf, horsemen are almost as much interested in the "doings" on the other side of the big pond as they are in purely local affairs. There is generally a disposition to corral some one who has been "over there" and get him to tell all he knows about the game. This same "corral" was worked recently on a well known turfman who had spent last season in England. The conversation twisted from one subject to another, until that of the method of speculation was touched upon, says the N. Y. Telegraph

"There is a vast difference in the way we do business compared to the method of the English bookmakers," he said. "The majority of English courses are still uninclosed, and the space outside the stand, betting rings and paddock being free to the public. When it comes to the freedom of the grand stand and betting ring, however, the situation changes, for this can only be obtained on ordinary days for $2.50, while on special occasions, when any great race is on the card the charge is doubled.

"Nor is this the only expense of a heavy investor, or a visitor who wants to see all that is going on an admission to the inner ring and paddock costs $2.50 extra. On English courses the stand is invariably placed from 150 to 200 feet back from the track, the intervening space being occupied by a sloping lawn.

"This lawn or betting ring is divided into two sections the larger of which is open to all the occupants of the stand, while the smaller, which is separated from it by iron railings, is reserved for members of Tattersalls. One or more gates lead from the public ring into this. These are guarded by skilled detectives who will let no questionable character pass, even if provided with the necessary ticket.

"No bookmaker in England has to pay anything for the privilege of doing business except the price of admission tickets for himself and crew. As far as expenses go, those of the heaviest operators are the lightest, as their transactions, though large are few and they prefer to keep personal track of them so their contribution to the race fund never exceeds $750 a day.

"In the outer ring the expenses are much heavier for there a bookmaking crew consists of the bookmaker himself, who cries the odds and collects the money; his clerk who records the bets; a runner to frequently bring the latest information from the inner ring, and some husky individual to bover around ready to protect the bankroll hung in a satchel around the neck of the head of the firm and intimidate unreasonable kickers.

"The admission tickets for this gang, including one for the runner to the inner ring, must cost $12.50 on an ordinary and $22.50 on a special occasion. Still, as at the more popular meetings some 150 books do business, the management really derives nearly as much from this source as the majority of American tracks from the sale of betting privileges. The portion of the stand to the rear of Tattersalls' inclosure is reserved for the stewards, the members of the Jockey Club and their invited guests, though if any of the bookmakers or of its less distinguished occupants want to see a race without repairing to the public stand a small open structure is generally placed in one corner of the inclosure to permit them to do so.

"None but members of Tattersalls are supposed to book in this ring, but any backer in good standing can obtain admission to it if he has the price of a ticket in his clothes

"At some tracks access to the paddock can be gained directly from the reserved inclosure. More frequently it is several hundred yards away. At Epsom any one who desires to see the Derby horses put through their toilets must elbow his way through the crowd for over a quarter of a mile ere he reaches the ten-acre paddock.

"In both rings hookmakers and backers alike must do business standing in the open air no matter how inclement the weather may be for no covered betting shed is permissible under the law, nor are seats or even stools allowed. So the professionals perambulate around, shouting the odds and seeking customers, while the latter circulate among them endeavoring to secure the best price for an intended investment, or to discover the individual from whom they have just won a bet.

"Prices are made in Tattersalls' ring, not on the American plan, according to the frequently misleading figures of some alleged handicapper which are immediately copied as soon as put up, but according to the amount of money that appears in the market for each candidate.

"In England it is unnecessary to scratch a horse, no penalty being incurred by his non-appearance at the post without notice. Only those are qualified to start for whom a rider has been named and all necessary fees paid to the clerk of the scales half an hour before the time set for the race, so no one but that official knows what will actually run till the numbers are hoisted.

"As soon as these are run up the recognized leaders of the ring commence to shout offers on the field, which means all the other horses in the race against any one selected by a backer. These offers vary in liberality according to the number of runners. Ordinarily in minor races the tentative ones are 6 to 4 on the field, which means that the backer may name his horse, give the layer his '4' and, if the horse wins, he gets the layer's '6' and his '4' back again. Should this price be accepted freely about any competitor, it is soon reduced. Should it not, tempt intended hackers it is at once extended.

"When a favorite is finally established the cry changes to 3 to 1, bar one! 5 to 1 bar two! which means that the layer will give odds of 3 to 1 against any horse in the race but the favorite or 5 to 1 against any horse but the first and second choices. Not, however, until the second and third favorites have been substantially befriended can a price be obtained commonly about a long shot, but then '10 to 1, bar three! Any price outsiders!' is heard on all sides though this offer of any odds generally materializes at only 12 or at most 15 to 1 until the horses are actually on their way to the post.

"Then some bookmakers make fairly liberal offers in order to round up their volumes against animals whose names they have not previously written, calling them by name. Previous to this the names of none of the horses have been mentioned backers being supposed to know which of them were barred.

"Of course, the cognoscenti do know, but the less experienced are generally in the dark as to the real state of the market, and so often accept very false prices about their fancies.

"Backing horses in the reserved inclosure is mainly left to the commissioners of whom every prominent stable and every gambling owner employs one or more to place the money. Many of the swells, however, attend to this matter personally leaning over the balcony of the stand and shouting acceptances or offers to the hookmakers below

"Some of these amateur backers belong to the fair sex, the heaviest lady plunger nowadays being Mrs. Langtry, though her bets are insignificant compared with those made in former days by the late Duchess of Montrose and the Marchioness of Ailesbury.

"No bluffs go in the reserved inclosure. In betting parlance 'a monkey' is £500 ($2500); 'a century' £100 ($500); 'a pony,' £25 ($125). To one of these amounts the odds are generally offered, and should anyone accept a bookmaker's offer of two monkeys on the field the bet must stand in its entirety. Frequently the rejoinder of some swell in the stand to such an offer is 'How many times?' If the inquirer's solvency is certain the bookmaker may answer five or even ten times though if the latter is accepted he generally turns backer himself and hustles round among his fellows to cover some of the risk.

"Nearly all wagers in Tattersalls' ring are on credit, both parties merely recording the transaction in their betting books. Each week's business must be settled the following Monday at Tattersalls' subscription room. These settlements are usually made through commissionaires, who supply their customers with slips headed 'to pay and to receive.' These the client fills out with the names of those layers of odds whom he has to pay and from whom he has to receive, inclosing a check if the balance is an adverse one.

"Should the week's operations have been fortunate he receives a check for his winnings from the agent on Tuesday morning. If an account is missing at the rooms on Monday the name of the delinquent is liable to be 'posted' on the blackboard as a defaulter though this is seldom done till a second Monday passes without the desired documents being forthcoming.

"Once 'posted' no one can enter or start a horse or enter the betting ring till a satisfactory settlement causes his name to be removed. Betting of the above description can of course only be indulged in by people of means and position so the general public must be content with the facilities to lose its money offered them by the outer ring

"Though more than twice as large as the inner inclosure, this is generally crowded to excess, so the most brazen throated and conspicuous layers of odds do the best business. Nothing, however, that the law could possibly interpret as a 'place' is allowed, even the use of an umbrella is prohibited

"But, strict as the regulations are some outre costumes will creep in. One firm is generally attired in midshipman's uniform, the members of another don the Mexican costumes, while the headgear of a third would cause White Hat McCarthy or Charles Reed to faint with envy."

THE Secretary of the National Trotting Association has just completed a table showing the results on the Grand Circuit last season. The circuit lasted twelve weeks. In that time 474 horses started in one or more races. There were 227 horses that started at different times during the season and did not win a cent; 130 rotters and 117 pacers finished inside the money in at least one race.

Rules of the Polo Association, Revised 1899.

1. The grounds to be about 750 feet long by 500 feet wide, with a ten inch guard from end to end on the sides only.
2. The height of ponies shall not exceed 14.2, and no pony shall have played in match games or tournament events unless it has been registered in accordance with the rule, but ponies which have been regularly played one or more seasons previous to this date, April 18, 1899, shall be registered without measurement.
3. The ball to be of wood, with no other covering than paint, 3 1-8 inches in diameter, and not to exceed 5 ounces in weight. Mallets to be such as are approved by the committee.
4. The goal posts to be 24 feet apart, and light enough to break if collided with.
5. Match games between pairs shall be two periods of 15 minutes each, actual play. Time between goals and delays not counted; two minutes after a goal has been made and five minutes between periods for rest, unless otherwise specified.
6. Match games between teams of three shall be three periods of fifteen minutes each, actual play. Time between goals and delays not counted; two minutes after a goal has been made and five minutes between periods of rest, unless otherwise specified.
7. Match games between teams of four shall be four periods of fifteen minutes each, actual play. The time between goals and delays not counted; two minutes after a goal has been made and seven minutes between the periods of rest, unless otherwise specified.
8. Each team to choose an umpire, and, if necessary, two umpires to appoint a referee, whose decision shall be final.
9. Each team shall have a substitute in readiness to play when a match is on.
10. There shall be a captain for each team, who shall have the direction of positions and plays of his men. The home captain shall provide two acceptable goal judges, whose decision shall be final, in regard to goals made at the end at which each might be placed.
11. No captain shall allow a member of his team to appear in the game otherwise than in his club uniform.
12. Only players, umpires and referee allowed upon the ground during the progress of the game.
13. The game to begin when the ball is thrown between the contestants, who shall be in line facing each other in the middle of the field, unless it is agreed between the captains to charge. The charge to be from a line 30 feet in front of the goal posts. When the signal to charge has been given, the first and second players must keep to the left of the ball until it has been hit.
14. It is forbidden to touch an adversary, his pony, or his mallet, with the hands or mallet during play, or to strike the ball when dismounted. A player shall not put his stick over his adversary's pony either in front or behind. In riding off or hustling, a player shall not push or strike with his arm or elbow.
15. In case of an accident to a player or pony, or for any other reasonable cause, the referee may stop the game and the time so lost shall not be counted. When the game is resumed the ball shall be thrown between the players who shall be lined up at that point at which the ball stopped. But if the game is stopped on account of a foul, the ball is to be thrown in at the place at which the foul occurred.
16. When the limit of time has expired, the game must continue until the ball goes out of bounds, or a goal is made and such overtime shall not be counted.
17. In event of a tie at the end of the last period, the game to be continued until one side is credited with a goal or part of a goal.
18. When the ball goes out of bounds at the sides it must be thrown in from the place at which it went out, by the referee, or by an impartial person, between the two sides, which shall be drawn up in line facing each other. When the ball goes out ends, the side defending that goal is entitled to a knock-out from the point at which it crossed the line. When the player having the knock-out causes unnecessary delay the referee may throw a ball on the field and call play. No opponent shall come within fifty feet of a player having the knock-out, until the ball has been hit.
19. Whenever a player, either accidentally or intentionally, knocks the ball behind the line, at the end at which the goal defended by his side is situated, it shall be deemed a safety knock-out, and shall score one-fourth of one goal against such player's side. When the ball is carried out or kicked out by a pony it shall not score as above.
20. The referee shall have power to impose a fine (the amount to be determined by the committee) on any team or member of a team, which shall fail to appear within a reasonable time of the hour named for the events for which they have been entered, or for any misconduct or violation of the rules during the progress of the games, and shall report the same in writing to the committee for enforcement, and he may exclude from the game any dangerous or vicious pony, and he may start the game notwithstanding the absence of any players after the time fixed.
21. A player requiring a mallet during the game must ride to the end or side line to procure one; it must not be brought on the field to him.
22. The referee may stop the game at any time when the ball is broken, or when it strikes the referee, or his pony and may substitute another ball by throwing it between the players at a point as near as possible to where it was stopped

23. A ball must go over and clear of the line to have an end over end clear of the line to count a goal. When a ball is hit above the top of the goal posts, but in the opinion of the referee through, it shall be considered a goal.

24. Foul riding is careless and dangerous, horsemanship and lack of consideration for the safety of others. A player in possession of the ball has the right of way (which implies), he who has last hit the ball, or one who is following nearer than any other player the direction from which the ball was last hit, has the right of way, and must not be crossed except at a safe distance.

25. The referee shall declare a foul when seen by him without waiting to have it claimed. He may suspend a player for the match for a foul, or he may award the opposing side a half goal.

26. When a player is replaced by a substitute, he cannot return to the team the same day, except to take the place of a player who is incapacitated. In any change of players after the game has begun, the handicap of the man having the highest number of goals shall be counted.

27. Any member of the committee may measure ponies (not his own) and issue certificates, good for the season for ponies under five years of age. Ponies five years old or over holding such certificates need not be measured again.

28. No player can play for one prize or more than one team or pair.

29. No member of a club which is a member of the Polo Association shall play any match games with or against any club which is not a member of the association, nor shall any player play on the team of any club of which he is not a member, except on written consent of the committee and the approval of the captains of the teams entered.

30. The Polo Association Cups shall not be played for a second time on any ground until all other association clubs have had the privilege, providing the grounds of the club named are equal to the requirements of the committee. Any club excepting the Polo Association Cups cannot win them by default.

31. In drawing teams under the handicap the bye shall be drawn by lot first. In the first round the teams shall be opposed to one another whose total handicap shall be nearest. The day of play for the opposing teams to be decided by lot.

32. In event of a game being stopped on account of darkness, or for any cause which prevents its being continued the same day, it must be resumed at the point at which it stopped as to score and the position of the ball at the earliest convenient time, unless settled by mutual agreement between the captains.

33. A player whose name is not on the handicap list is not eligible to play in tournament events until his handicap has been fixed by the committee, and in his first tournament events shall not be less than two goals. A player can be handicapped with but one club at a time.

34. The captain of a club may reserve for any of the association matches any four players of his club, including himself, provided such players are notified at least five days before the closing of the entries to the tournament in which such match takes place.

35. All entries for tournament events must be made in writing, naming probable players and substitutes, and be accompanied by an entrance fee of $10 for each player, which is to be returned if the team plays, otherwise it is forfeited to the association. Entries absolutely close on the day announced. No conditional entries can be received.

36. No player shall be eligible to play in the championship games unless he has played the majority of his matches (that is, tournament games published by the Polo Association) during the season with the club with which he is entered.

37. The Polo Association colors are white and dark blue.

Grand Circuit Winners.

Among the winning and well-placed drivers at the Detroit Grand Circuit meeting who use Harrold's Hoof Ointment in their stables are:

- Jack Curry, who won the 2:14 trot with Surpol 2:10.
 M. E. McHenry, second in the same race with Altoka 2:10½.
 George Spear, who won the M. and M. $10,000 Stake with Royal Baron 2:10½.
 George West, who won the 2:07 pace with Sherman Clay 2:05½.
 Roy Miller, who won the 2:27 trot with Bel Feur 2:12½.
 J. B. Chandler, who drove Bel Esprit to his record with Black Robert.
 Ed Geers, who won the 2:08 trot with The Abbot 2:06¼.
 George Saunders, who won the second heat (and second money) in the same with Mattie Patterson 2:08½.
 C. H. Baldwin, who won the 2:12 trot with Copeland 2:08¾.
 Oscar Ames, who won second money in the same race with J. B. D. 2:10¾.
 John Kelly, who won second money in the 2:10 trot with Gayton and drove him to a record of 2:08¾.
 It was the same story at Cleveland, these users of Harrold's Hoof Ointment getting the money:
 David Cahill, who won second money with Charley Herr 2:10 in the 2:14 class.
 J. J. Burns, who won the 2:27 pace with Sphinx S. 2:09½.
 McLaughlin, who won the 2:18 pace with Dorotha S. 2:12¼.
 H. J. Marbold, who won a heat in 2:12¼ with Grand Baron.
 Ed Geers, who won the 2:22 trot with The Queen 2:10½; the 2:27 trot with Merriment 2:13¼; the 2:08 class with The Abbot.
 Jack Curry, who won the 2:18 trot with Surpol 2:10.
 Knap McCarthy, who won the 2:04 pace with Searchlight 2:03¼.
 C. H. Baldwin, who won the 2:21 trot with Dainty Daffo, and the 2:12 trot with Copeland 2:08¾.
 M. E. Henry, who won the 2:24 trot with Owyhee 2:11¼.
 Name, if you can, another horse-foot remedy that ever made such a showing. Horses cannot be campagned successfully unless their feet are kept good by the use of Harrold's Hoof Ointment, made by Harrold & Co., 1013 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

EVERY good colt is at least entitled to an opportunity to show whether he has speed or not, and should be trained.

Horse News From Oregon.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Pat Barry has taken up his McKinney-Gossiper colt Pat Dorfea and is feeding him oats three times a day and night.

John Erwin is working Starkey 2:15½, Edison 2:29½, Daniel J., a green pacer by Chehalis, and Santiam, a full brother to Edison, that is a good one.

Chris Simpson has Bonner N. B. 2:17 that he is converting into the paca very successfully, Alta Norta 2:16½, Phil N. 2:30, Doc Wright, a green pacer full brother to Alta Norta, Mac Mc, a green trotter by McKinney, out of the dam of Bonner N. B.

Frank Frazier is wintering and jogging quite a number of good ones over the old track, where Chehalis 2:04½ used to take his training. He has Westfield 2:22½, Umahollis 2:17½, Alkes, a green pacer by Westfield that is a crackjack, and a green pacer by old Altemont.

D. G. Eastman has sold his farm and moved to town where he will devote part of his time developing some of his well bred youngsters. Mr. Eastman has a stallion, full brother to Umahollis 2:17½, that is as pretty a piece of horse flesh as any one ever looked at, and if he don't develop into a speedy horse he certainly will deceive his looker.

C. B. Wade, the banker, brought out from the East this year a fine Hackney stallion, and will send him to his fine stock farm in Grand Ronde valley next spring to be used in the stud. Mr. Wade thinks a cross of Hackney on to the trotting bred mares will produce an ideal carriage horse.

The State Board of Agriculture held its annual meeting in Salem this week, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, W. H. Wehrung of Hillsboro; Vice-President, J. H. Sattlemier of Woodburn; Secretary, M. D. Wisdom of Portland; Treasurer, A. Bush of Salem.

The State Board of Agriculture will offer a premium for the best exhibit of live stock to be owned by any one farmer. This exhibit will include all kinds of stock raised on the farm and not necessarily pure bred.

Robert Leighton, Sec. of the Vancouver Jockey Club, journeyed to Victoria last week to interview Mr. Stevenson, the owner of Fenny Putman, in relation to the proposed match between the mare and Mr. MacDonald's "Alameda." Mr. Stevenson is desirous for this race to take place and has waived certain conditions that had hindered its consummation, so that upon the return of Alameda's owner to the city articles of agreement will be drawn up and the public will be assured of witnessing in the early spring a race that will attract the attention of the harness horse admirers all over the Pacific Coast.

Dr. Powell Reeves writes that he has just bought one of the best stock farms in the State of Washington, near Olympia, that he intends to stock it up with both cattle and horses. Mr. Reeves now has some well bred horses as can be found on the Coast, and his stallion Guyceca is attracting considerable attention as a sire.

Ches. F. Ladd, proprietor of the Oak Hill stock farm, is the owner of six of old Altemont's get, all out of good dams. S. W. Simmons has charge of Mr. Ladd's trotting bred horses on his farm near St. John.

The Spokane Chronicle says that Thos. S. Griffith has sold his team of bay mares recently bought from H. M. Ceke, of this city, to Fred H. Mason, of Hally, Mason & Co., Spokane for $1000, and adds that Mr. Mason now owns the finest road team in the city.

A great deal of interest is being taken in fine horses in Pendleton says Mr. Perring and our little city can boast of as fine horse flesh as any city in the State. The track built in Pendleton last year is proving a good winter track and quite a number of horses are being jogged there this winter. A jogging pathmark, the green pacer by Pathmont, and he is doing nicely since he recovered from his sickness. I have also Daway Anr; McKinney Mc., yearling trotter by McKinney-Gossiper, and a yearling pacer full sister to Umahollis 2:17½, that is a sure enough pacer and another one by Chehalis that is equally good at the trot.

William Henry White, an old time Oregon horseman who has had on Mr. John Hagan's breeding farm in the Big Bend country for the last six or seven years, is now in Spokane and is taking an active part with Mr. Lindsey in building the new race track there.

A speed program for the State Fair will be submitted to the Oregon State Board of Agriculture early in February, all horsemen are requested to send in a list of their horses together with their records, so that a program can be gotten out to suit the greatest number.

Government agents are buying quite a lot of horses in Laka and Klamath counties, which go direct to San Francisco for the Philippine Islands.

Col. Wailwright, who inspects and receives horses for the government, says he has accepted over 600 horses bought in Oregon this year.

Rosa Chief, the dam of Challenger Chief 2:15, is dead. She was sired by D. Monroe 2:28 out of Madam Powell, dam of Monroe Chief 2:18½ by Bay Chief (Alexanders).

The Sulky.

HAPPY New Year.

READ the stallion ads.

BREED your good mares this year.

STALLION fees will average higher than last season.

In Paris last year 22,000 horses were slaughtered for food.

SIDNEY 2:19½, is back at his old home in Ypsilanti, Mich.

BUMPS started fifty times during his lifetime and won $19,295.

PLASSANTON race track is now in perfect order for training and is fast.

BARON WILKES at 17 years of age is the sire of 79 standard performers.

The stable and horses of Mr. T. L. Lawson, of Boston, are said to have cost $500,000.

F. S. GORTON has a son of Direct, which he says George West will mark in 2:10 next year.

J. M. NELSON has sold forty head of general purpose horses during the past week at very satisfactory prices.

SABLE GLEN, a son of Sable Wilkes, is the sire of Cornelio, who took a record of 2:24½ at Newberg, N. Y., in October.

VIDETTE 2:16, will be bred to Altamont. She ought to produce a foal from the old horse that can pace a two minute clip as soon as it stands up.

PICK out the stallion which in your judgment is the best to mate your mares with, and don't let a lower fee induce you to breed her to another horse.

WILLIAM SIMPSON has sent 28 head of mares from Empire City Farm, Goshen, N. Y., to Glenartney Farm, Versailles, Ky., to be bred to Hummer.

JOHN A. MCKERRON 2:12½ will be placed in the stud at Cleveland next spring, limited to twelve mares. He will then be trained for the campaign of 1900. His service fee will be $50.

It is noted that John R. Gentry paced in 2:02½ at Highland Park, Detroit, the first week in July and in 2:03½ at Los Angeles, Cal., the last week in October and these were the first and last miles below 2:04 made during 1899.

MONROE SALISBURY will leave for Cape Nome as soon as the weather permits. He says he is going on the first vessel if possible. Here's hoping he will find as much gold in the new El Dorado as he has made and lost in the horse business.

DE BERNARDI BASLER 2:16½, will go to the Splas-New-gass sale at Chicago in charge of Milo Knox. He has not been raced for two years, but is as fast as ever and can show a two minute gait. If put in training he could lower his record.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association has announced the eleventh annual renewal of the Kentucky Futurity. The stake will be for foals of 1900 to be trotted as two year olds in 1902 and as three year olds in 1903 and will be worth $20,000.

FOURTH payment on colts entered in the three year old division of P. C. T. H. B. A. Futurity Stake to be trotted in 1900 will be due January 23, which falls on Tuesday next. Don't forget to send in this payment if you want to start your colt in this stake.

BENJAMIN WHIRLWIND, sire of the dam of Thomas Lawson's trotter Sagwa, was by Whirlwind 2:30½, and he was by the thoroughbred Altorf, dam by Stockholder. The Trotting Register gives him as "pedigree not known," but he was practically thoroughbred.

C. B. (DET) BIGLOW will have a pacer in his string next year that is already a great prospect as she has moved very fast, though never trained. She is by Hanford Medium 2:11½ out of the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½ and will be two years old in the spring. She belongs to Mr. Kelly Briggs of Winters.

MR. FRANK H. BURKE of this city who owns the mare Wanda 2:14 by Eros expects her to present him with a future world beater some time in February, as she is heavily in foal to Searchlight 2:03½. Wanda has already been hooked to Direct 2:05½ by Mr. Burke and this cross ought to get speed to a certainty.

EUROPEAN horsemen have had their eyes on Bingen 2:06½ Petar the Great 2:07½, Tommy Britton 2:08, Crescens 2:07½, and several other American trotting stallions of the free-for-all class ever since the campaign ended. Offers from abroad have been made and refused for nearly all these horses within a few months.

MARCUS DALY, through Commissioner Ed. A. Tipton, is still buying trotters. Among his most recent purchases were a bay three year old filly, by Clay King, out of Alice Leyburn, by Baron Wilkes, from Bowerman Bros., of Lexington and from Patchen Wilkes Farm a mare by Dictator, dam by Patchen Wilkes.

THE capital stock of the Terre Haute Trotting Association is $50,000, divided into shares of $250. Of this amount $40,000 is paid up and is held by sixty-two stockholders.

As there is little likelihood of track managers giving classes to which The Abbot is eligible, owing to the fear in which the Chimes gelding is held, Geers will probably give the son of Chimes especial preparation for a try at the world's record of 2:03½, and is quite confident that he can step a mile around that mark.

CHAS. A. DURFEE has eight trotters and pacers at Pleasanton. Six are by McKinney 2:11½, the others being Clipper 2:09½ by Diablo, and Miss Jessie 2:14 by Gossiper. Mr. Durfee says that Clipper will pace in 2:05 sure next season, and he believes could do it on the Pleasanton track now if in condition as the track there is in perfect order.

JOHN TUCKER, who worked with Charles Marvin at Palo Alto for a long time, will have some choice young trotters to campaign next season for the Locust Grove Stock Farm, Newcastle, Pa. In addition to the half brother to Idolita, and the colt Mendell by Monaco, he will have Flamingo C. 2:25 by St. Vincent, Jean Lea 2:18½ by West Wilkes and several other good ones.

THE Chicago Tribune the other day printed significant pictures under the heading, "The Return of the Horse." The first was a reproduction of a photograph taken in one of Chicago's parks a year ago, showing only hundreds of men, women and children on bicycles. The second, taken at the same spot during the balmy days of last November, showed a similar collection of persons on horses and not a bicycle to be seen.

SHOULD Adbell 2:23 be taken to Kentucky and placed in the stud, Electioneer will be well represented in the Blue Grass region by his sons and grandsons. There will be no less than fifteen of them that will serve more or less mares there in 1900. They are Alfred G., Electric Bell, Belsire, Boreal, Suuolo, Bow Dean, Cecilian, Adbell, Hummer, Clay, Belay, Golden Slopa and Legal Test, and a grand lot of young horses they are.—American Stock Farm.

It will be a surprise to many to learn that the Detroit Driving Club is in the hands of a receiver, but President D. J. Campen says that it will in no way affect the Blue Ribbon meeting for 1900. It will be held just the same. The reasons given for the appointment of a receiver are that certain endorsers on the club's promissory notes brought suit against the association and obtained judgment, but the sheriff was unable to find property to satisfy the judgment.

WM. CECIL, trainer for Nutwood Stock Farm, was in the city this week. He will take ten colts and fillies by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ to Pleasanton to day and begin work on them for the campaign of next year. Mr. Cecil says there is not one in the lot but is pure gaited at either the trot or the pace and shows speed enough to be a good prospect. Irvington Boy has grown and filled out and will be worked without hoppers this year. He should pace a mile better than 2:15 the first time out.

THERE is a Palo Alto bred horse owned at Cleveland, Ohio, that the carriage and saddle horse breeders are enthusiastic over, as his get are almost invariably very handsome and stylish horses. This is Palo Chief 2:24½, a son of Benefit, out of Wildred by Mohawk Chief, second dam Wilhelmina by Messenger Duroc. Palo Chief was foaled in 1889, and made his record in 1896 at Medina, Ohio. He is a very handsome individual and is used a great deal as a saddle horse by his owner.

THE fastest performer at both gaits that ever lived was the famous little black gelding Jay-Eye-See, who trotted in 2:10 and paced in 2:06½. He was originally a double-gaited horse, and his trainer, "Ed" Eicher, had some trouble in getting him balanced on the start, but after he once learned how to trot he never showed any inclination to pace until he got sore and lame late in his career. His owner, Jackson Case, of Racine, Wis., then decided to give him a pacing record, and in his fourth start he stepped in 2:06½, which would indicate that if he had been trained at the latter gait early in life he would have wiped out all pacing records.

ONE of the most promising colts foaled in California in 1899, met with an accidental death at Stockton last week. The colt was by McKinney 2:11½, out of Bob, the dam of Klamath 2:07½. He was six months old and a solid bay, a big-boned, well formed youngster that was expected to be a trotter of the 2:10 class by the time he reached his three year old form. When being led out to water the colt reared and fell, striking his head and rupturing an artery. The rains had made the ground very wet and slippery making very unsafe footing. Mr. C. A. Durfee, the owner of McKinney, says this colt was undoubtedly the best looking and most promising colt of his age that his great young stallion had ever sired, and as he was the first colt by McKinney out of a dam that had produced a great one by another horse, an extra value was placed on him.

It is quite evident that horseman, breeders and small dealers do not as yet grasp the speedway market in all of its fullness, says the Western Horseman. Western horsemen have long labored under the impression that the only way to make a trotting or pacing bred horse valuable and salable is to develop his speed and fit him for track use. But the time has arrived now when road education is much more valuable than track education, unless very extreme speed is developed. It is well to bear in mind also that other than very fast horses sell for good prices to road drivers. Not every road driver wants an extremely fast horse, but those who do not care for extreme speed do want clearwinded, good manners and safety. A three minute trotter, wall broken, with showy action and a clear, fearless disposition, qualities much more easily and cheaply developed than even a medium rate of speed, will sell for more money than a 2:20 trotter with nothing but track education, and not well enough broken in road manners to turn around in a city street without upsetting the vehicle. Road and street use, not merely a little jog occasionally, but a thorough education on the street and road, is the surest and cheapest way to get a fairly good profit out of a fairly good light harness horse.

UNDOUBTEDLY one of the handsomest young horses in California is a three year old colt owned by Col. Moorhead of Green Meadow Stock Farm of San Jose. He was sired by the Colonel's great horse Hambletonian Wilkes and his dam is Anna Belle 2:27½ by Dawn. This colt is a full brother to Mand Murray the mare that Col. Moorhead set East to the Cleveland sale last May when she was purchased by Doc Tanner for $300, and that gentleman resold her next day for $700, and soon after she was again sold for $1500 and went to Europe. Word came to Col. Moorhead last week by a gentleman who has just arrived from Austria that the mare showed a mile in 2:12 at Vienna recently and was sold for $5000. This three year old colt is a much more promising trotter than Mand Murray was at the same age. The Colonel has a two year old full sister that is also a very handsome animal and both will be put in training at the San Jose track.

MR. CHAS. WINSHIP writes that he will not campaign a stable of horses next season, and, in fact, will in all probability never campaign trotters again. He will continue to breed and train trotters, however, for his own pleasure and for the improvement of the horses. Mr. Winship has lately ordered an eighty-pound speed wagon for Astor 2:12 and Gazelle 2:11, for the sole purpose of driving them to a very low pole record. They are in excellent condition and taking their preliminary preparation nicely. Both are unusually good pole performers. Astor is sound and has been so through the years of constant road and track work, including a number of miles last year in from 2:10½ to 2:13. Neither of these great horses is for sale, but will be kept by Mr. Winship solely for his own use, the same as a number of others. He says that horses not good enough to race are not good enough for his use on the road. It is just such men as Mr. Winship that keep the trotting horse in demand and make good ones bring good prices.

THERE were several youngsters in the recent Palo Alto consignment to the Fast-Tipton sale which were taken sick in shipment East. One of these was the filly Nanette N., which was turned over to Fred Hyde, of Hartford. Another was the yearling colt Mendell, and he was purchased by the Locust Grove Stock Farm, of Newcastle, Pa., which bought out of the same consignment the great colt Adolita by Advertiser, out of the dam of Idolita 2:12 and Hummer. This colt Mendell was considered by the Palo Alto people one of the most promising youngsters on the farm, and since his arrival at the Locust Grove Farm he is considered the equal if not the superior in speed of the higher priced Adolita. He is certainly one of the highest-bred young colts living. He is by Monaco 2:19½, the sire of Idolita 2:12, and his dam is Lady Ellen 2:29½, one of the greatest broodmares at Palo Alto Farm. She has produced Helena 2:11½ (dam of Wild Nutting 2:13) and three others in the list. Three of her sons are sires of speed and three of her daughters are producers. Mendall is entered in $17,500 worth of stakes to be trotted in 1901.—American Sportsman.

THE American Stock Farm portrays a "roadster" as follows: "A typical roadster or road horse is an animal that stands 15½ to 16 hands high, weighs from 1000 to 1200 pounds, that is sound and straight in every part, level headed and resolute, capable and willing to road twelve miles an hour or one hundred miles in ten hours, and when put upon his speed will show a 2:30 gait. No one will tempt to deny that this is the most sought for horse on the market, and the hardest to find." It would be difficult to say more in less space. The roadster is not a draft horse nor a pony, neither is he necessarily a 2:10 trotter or pacer. He is a medium sized horse, with a presentable appearance, good manners, a prompt, pleasant, courageous driver, with sense enough to know that he is lord of the way, and hence need not fear butterflies, street cars nor traction engines, a horse that cheerfully and safely jogs along with a business man or a pleasure seeker at a gait fast enough to drive away the blues and yet not fast enough to take one's breath. This is the kind of a horse for which the demand is always greater than the supply, and the horse which always pays his breeder and educator a handsome profit. Where the money is lost in the horse business is in trying to make that out of a horse which he is not and never can be. Horses, high bred ones, even, like men, are not all fitted for and adapted to the "higher walks of life"—if race horses are thus to be honored in classification—and many that would be both useful and valuable as roadsters are made worthless by their ambitious and overconfident owners.—Western Horseman.

San Francisco, Saturday, December 9

MANY STAKES WILL CLOSE during the next few days and horse owners should note the dates and make their entries before the time expires. The Running stakes to close, with the dates of closing are as follows:

Brighton Beach, December 30, 1899, and January 11, 1900.

Western Turf Association, December 30, 1899.

State Agricultural Society, Stallion, January 1, 1900.

New Memphis Jockey Club, January 1, 1900.

California Jockey Club, Futurity, January 2, 1900.

Brooklyn Jockey Club, January 2, 1900.

Coney Island Jockey Club, January 3, 1900.

There are several trotting and pacing stakes which close or upon which payments are due during the coming week, those of most importance to California owners and breeders being as follows:

The Occident Stake, for three year olds. Given annually by California State Agricultural Society. Entries for Stake of 1902 close next Monday, January 1st. Payments on stakes of 1900 and 1901 are due on the same date. The payment on stake of 1900 is $25, on that of 1901 is $15.

The Stanford Stake—A stake for three year olds given annually by the California State Agricultural Society. There is a payment of $10 due January 1st on the stake for 1900, and one of $5 due at the same time on the stake of 1901.

Pacific Breeders Futurity—$1000 for trotters and $750 for pacers, to be trotted in 1900 by then three year olds. The fourth payment on this stake is $10, and is due Tuesday next, January 2d.

Keep all these dates in your mind and make entries or payments before it is too late.

THE FOURTH PAYMENT (which is a ten dollar bill) will be due Tuesday next, January 2, 1900, on all colts entered in the Pacific Breeders Futurity Stakes for foals of 1897. This stake was inaugurated in 1897, and closed June 1st of that year. At Santa Rosa last August the first divisions of the stake, those for two year old trotters and pacers, were decided, Eula Mac by McKinney, winning the event at the diagonal gait, and N. L. B. by Diablo the one at the lateral, the sum of $750 being devoted to the first named and $500 to the other race. At the meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association to be held in 1900, $1000 will be competed for by the three year olds entered in this stake that are trotters, and $750 will go to the pacers. There are still about 75 colts and fillies eligible to start for these stakes, and it behooves every owner to make the fourth payment next Tuesday if possible. There are no further payments to be made except the starting fee, which is due ten days before the race. It may be that both divisions of the stake will be won in slow time, and the owner who fails to make this fourth payment will only have himself to blame if he sees the races won by colts that are slower than the one he owns, but upon which he failed to keep paid up. Notices have been sent by Secretary Kelley to each and every owner who has an entry in these stakes, and there should be a response from every one that owns an animal that is sound and fit to train.

MR. JAS. A. FULLERTON, President of the Vancouver Jockey Club of British Columbia, has been visiting San Francisco this week. The Vancouver Club gives three meetings annually, a spring, a summer and an autumn meeting, which are well attended and very successful. The Vancouver track is a half mile in circumference and laid out on land that was a dense forest of fir and cedar trees and cost a large sum of money to clear before the track could be built. Many of the trees were from six to eight feet in diameter. The track is a good one, however, and growing in popularity owing greatly to the indefatigable work of the Secretary Mr. Robert Leighton, who Mr. Fullerton says is the right man in the right place. Mr. Fullerton is always in the stand as judge, and from horsemen who have raced at Vancouver we learn that he is very strict in his rulings without being captious or unjust and all speak very highly of him. Considerable attention is being paid to the breeding of thoroughbreds in British Columbia, Mr. John Taylor, a wealthy gentleman of Vancouver having recently imported some twenty-five mares from England one of which was bred on the Rancho del Paso, and sold in England with Mr. Haggin's first consignment to that market. Many good thoroughbreds have gone to British Columbia from California and within a few years it is predicted many colts and fillies bred up there will be racing on our San Francisco tracks.

NEXT SEASON there will be on the European trotting tracks a purely American stable, owned by an American, trained and driven by an American, American horses and American "swipes." The horses are owned by Capt. S. M. Tuttle, of Goshen, and they are in charge of Ira Ryerson, who will campaign them on the European tracks. The stable is made up of the following trotters: Derby Princess 2:08 1/2, the California mare, by Charles Derby; Royal Baron 2:10 1/2, by Baron Wilkes; Belle J. 2:11, by Ben Johnson; Pearlina C. 2:12 1/2, by Black Victor; Billy Abshire 2:17 1/2, by Haxhall, and Robert E. Lee 2:18 1/2, by Alcantara. This will be Derby Princess' second voyage across the Atlantic, a distinction that is enjoyed by no other trotter. The horses are not being taken to Europe with a view of selling them until they have been raced one season. Capt. Tuttle says he expects to race the horses at Paris, Berlin, Vienna and perhaps at St. Petersburg and Moscow. This will be the first all-American stable of trotters to attempt an extensive campaign on the European tracks.

THE OCCIDENT STAKE OF 1900 will be one of the most valuable trotting stakes of the year. It will in all probability be worth $2000 or more to the winner. There is a payment of $25 due January 1st on all those eligible to this stake and every owner should keep the date in mind and make the payment. Third money in this stake is well worth racing for. It amounted to $237.50 this year, second money being $712.50, and first money the good sum of $1825.00. As stated last week in these columns, the Occident Stake has usually been won in slow time, but one heat having been trotted better than 2:20, although many colts that were much faster were originally entered and not paid up on. The owner who pays up on a colt and trains him especially for this stake is almost sure to get some part of it. This year there were but five starters and the winner of the $1825, first money, won in 2:21 1/2. It pays to keep paid up.

BRIGHTON BEACH is one of the great race tracks of America. In our advertising columns to-day will be found a grand lot of stakes to be run at this track. The open stakes for the season of 1900 number twenty-six, and one of these is the Brighton Handicap, $200 each, $5000 added, one mile and a quarter. It is a star event and the winner of it will gather in a comfortable fortune. The added money in other stakes is liberal, and entries should pour in upon Secretary T. M. Jackson on Thursday, January 11th, the day of closing. The open stake for 1901 is the Foxhall, $15,000, for the foals of 1899, three-quarters of a mile, and the attractive conditions will surely command the support of breeders and owners. The open stake for 1902 is the Produce, $15,000, for the produce of mares covered in 1899. The value is so great and it is hedged all around with so much uncertainty, that every good mare in foal to a good stallion should be named for it. Entries for it and the Foxhall will close to-day, December 30th. The conditions of the stakes are printed on another page.

OWING TO THE PRESSURE on our advertising columns caused by the numerous advertisements in this issue of stakes which close within the next few days, a large amount of most interesting matter has been crowded out of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week. Tabulations of the pedigrees of stallions advertised for the season of 1900 are among the articles set aside, but they will appear in our next issue.

AMONG THE LEADING SIREs Nutwood would now be 29 years old if living and he has a total number of 157 performers to his credit; Electioneer if living would be 31 and has 159; Red Wilkes, at 25 years of age, has 144; Onward at 24 years has 143; Alcantara at 23 years has 129; Simmons at 20 years has 89; Robert McGregor would be 28 years old if living and he has 87; Sidney at 18 years has 86; Baron Wilkes at 17 years has 78; Jay Bird at 21 years has 77; Allerton at 13 years has 66; Ambassador at 25 years has 60; Wilton at 19 years has 59; Wilkes Boy at 19 years has 54; Norval at 17 years has 53; Elyria at 17 years has 49; Chimes at 15 years has 49; Axtell at 14 years has 48; Anteeo at 20 years has 39; Woodford Wilkes at 17 years has 32; Delmarch at 15 years has 30; Happy Russell at 15 years has 19; McKinney 2:11 1/2 at 12 years has 19; Hal Dillard at 12 years has 11; Constantine at 12 years has 11; Diablo at 10 years has 10; Potential at 8 years has seven. While with two exceptions, every sire in this list has a record, it is worth noting that the sire with the largest total, for the number of seasons spent in the stud is Allerton 2:09 1/2, the fastest trotting stallion among the 27 named.

IN ENUMERATING the resources of a country one is apt in this material age to first mention the mines, commerce or agriculture, forgetful of the fact that only the trained, educated and working minds make the development of these wealth giving factors possible. The just pride that as Californians we take in our State as the great citrus, cereal, gold and horse producing leader is well warranted by the results obtained, which have won world wide fame, is now to be supplemented by the fact that one of our well known institutions, Heald's Business College, has received National recognition. This familiar institution has been selected as one out of the six of all similar colleges in United States to represent the development of business education at the forthcoming World's Fair at Paris, the committee on this department saying that Heald's Business College was selected for this purpose on account of its high standing and superiority. This is indeed an added boast to our roll of California honors claimed.

THE WAR IN AFRICA is daily furnishing evidence of the value of the horse in warfare. Had the British army consisted of cavalry instead of infantry, it is more than probable that Oom Paul would now be a prisoner at Pretoria. Great advances have been made during the past decade in weapons and ammunition, and the style of warfare has been revolutionized, but the horse is still one of the prime necessities of a successful campaign in any country, whether it be in the inundated rice fields of the Philippines or on the dry and sandy veldts of South Africa. Without the horse the "thunder of the captains" would be no louder than the piping of a quail.

AN OPPORTUNITY will be offered next Tuesday, January 2d, to purchase some good road horses, buggies, harness, and all the paraphernalia of James Thompson's stable on Van Ness Avenue. Everything is in good order and will be sold by auction, on the date mentioned, by the well known firm of Chase & Mendenhall. Among other things to be sold are a lot of racing boots of all descriptions and as good as new. The sale will begin promptly at 11 A. M.

M. D. WISDOM, editor of the North Pacific Rural Spirit, published at Portland, Oregon, has been elected Secretary of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture. Mr. Wisdom has all the qualifications to make a first class official, and the Oregon association is indeed fortunate in securing his services. He is a man of intelligence, progressive and energetic and will do much to advance the interests of our sister State in the position he now holds.

THE CHRISTMAS EDITIONS issued by the Chicago Horseman, Chicago Horse Review, New York Spirit of the Times, Trotter and Pacer, American Stock Farm, Breeders' Gazette and Buffalo Horse World are excellent numbers, and it would not be fair to draw comparisons between them. Each is a gem in its way, and each contains most valuable matter not found in any of the others. Every horse owner should secure a copy of each.

THE DUKE OF WESTMINSTER, the wealthiest horseman in the world, died December 22d from pneumonia. He owned Flying Fox and his colors were on five Derby winners. His fortune is estimated at $175,000,000 and his income five millions annually.

Training a Private or Public Stable.

(Veritas, in Trotter and Pacer.)

Whether the trainer should stick to a racing stable owned and controlled by one person, or train horses for several patrons is a question that depends on the qualifications of the trainer, and one that he should determine for himself. A short account of some well known trainer may enable the reader to judge of the advantages and disadvantages of both sides of the question. A private stable promises a sure salary and furnishes a select number of horses on which the trainer has full opportunity to exercise his talent without being troubled by business cares and management. Thus the young men of the profession are enabled to make a name and a reputation through handling high class horses. We have in mind at the present day Trainer Titer, of the Forbes stable, and Allie Trout, of Maplehurst Farm. Many a trainer has gained a good start in this way—Andrews, Dickerson and Charley Doble, for example—while others of experience have recouped their losses and had years with a public stable by securing an engagement with a wealthy turfman or stock farm proprietor. John Splan, Ed Geers, Knap McCarthy, Geo. Saunders, John Goldsmith, Geo. Starr and Andy McDowell have worked in both ways. But to the trainer who is versed in the ways of the turf and has managerial business capacity, a public stable is preferable. It offers a more independent life than the other and is the most natural method of acquiring a competency. Neither Mace, Doble, Turner, Hickok or Feek ever served as private trainers, but each made far more money than any salaried trainer ever saved. But we cannot all be public trainers, nor can the examples of all the masters in the business be truly followed. In the present day there is a laudable ambition on the part of trainers, old and young, to take charge of a training and racing stable for a man of means who breeds or buys stake winning material and the "top-sawyer" of the turf. Thus the trainer grasps the golden opportunity denied him while handling all sorts of track horses for poor and needy owners, and when a real good performer is developed the chances are that he will be sold to a wealthy turfman and placed in the hands of a pet trainer. In closing an engagement the trainer should be sure to have a written agreement for the season or longer. It often happens that a fickle-minded owner wishes to make a change at the most inopportune time for the welfare of the trainer. One spring W. H. Vanderhilt ordered Trainer W. W. Bair to bring Maud S. home. We met Bair shortly after his arrival and he was much troubled. He said: "I have to meet Mr. Vanderhilt this afternoon and submit my accounts. Come and help me put them in order." We repaired to the Grand Union office and adjusted them. On taking up the salary item Bair said, "What shall I charge?" The writer replied, "Estimate what your season's work would be worth as a public trainer and charge that amount. Just say to Mr. Vanderhilt that you relied on working for him the full season, and that it is now too late to get together a stable of horses. Make a liberal estimate in your own favor, so that it will still pay you to accept his probable offer of compromise." Bair did as we advised. Mr. Vanderhilt admitted his claim, in part, and made him a liberal allowance.

THERE is still hope for the future of Star Pointer. A party of prominent horsemen visited Hon. W. J. White's Two-Minute Farm, near Cleveland last week. They were taken in charge by Superintendent Kline, who took the party through the different stables. Dave McClary was in the party, and he was much surprised at the good condition of Star Pointer 1:59½. He said that he never saw the great pacer in such good condition at this time of the year as at present. He is confident that with good care the great horse can be trained for racing again, and it would not be surprising to see the son of Brown Hal trying to reduce the record next season. Who will train him next year has not been decided.

C. W. WILLIAMS names his horses alphabetically, and by remembering the year he started it is an easy matter to get at the age of any horse he ever bred. Mr. Williams began breeding in 1885. His first foals came in 1886, and their names all begin with "A," as Axtell and Allerton. The next year Barnhart came. The name of every foal he raised ten years later begins with "J," the tenth letter of the alphabet. He has now been in the business fourteen years and the name of every foal of 1899 begins with "N."

BETTYE R. 2:12½, the mare of international fame, is giving the Brooklyn road drivers a lot of trouble. Roadsters that have been throwing dust into the eyes of almost every one of the Brooklyn cracks are being turned down by her every time she is taken on the road. Recently she had an argument with the black gelding Gillette 2:11½ and, although she was bitched to a huckboard, she showed the way with apparent ease.

A SERIES of experiments which have been carried on for some time past by the Agricultural Department at Washington have recently developed a new use for corn stalks, from which a very valuable horse and cattle food can now be made by grinding the dry corn stalks, leaves and tops to a powder and mixing it with blood or molasses, or both. This is pressed into cakes under a hydraulic press.

JACK FOLLANSBEE, who owns several race horses which run on the New York tracks, is in the city. He came here from Mexico.

TAPPAN, the brown son of Powhattan and Finical, appears to have rounded into shape and from now on should be knocking at the door at the finish of all events in which he is a competitor. Tappan is one of the few horses which can be depended upon to do his best every time he is sent to the post.

THE last race of the day furnished a Christmas harvest for the bookmakers; four of the contestants were heavily backed to win this event, thousands of dollars pouring into the tin boxes of the pencilers, where it remained, as the winner turned up in Novia, who went to the post unsupported in the bettiog.

FLAMORA, the game daughter of Flambeau and Fannie Lewis, equalled the world's record for two year olds, at a mile, made last Saturday by Advance Guard. As the filly carried ten more pounds than the colt her performance is certainly a more meritorious one.

PRESIDENT W. F. SHULTE, of the American Turf Congress, has called a special meeting of that organization, to be held at Covington, Ky., January 15, 1900, when the question arising from the clash of dates at Nashville and Louisville and other matters coming before the meeting will be discussed and probably settled.

JOCKEY DEVIN was set down for ten days for rough riding in the race in which Morinel was fouled by Opponent last Tuesday. To those who have watched this boy's riding for the past two seasons, this ruling came in the nature of a surprise as Devin was always supposed to be averse to taking any chances which suggested a remote possibility of injury to himself.

It is reported that William C. Whitney has purchased the fast miler Eager. The price paid was $17,500. Eager was bred in Ireland, and is a son of Eothu-last, who was also extremely fast at distances of a mile and under. In addition to Eager, Mr. Whitney is said to have purchased a number of broodmares at the recent December sales held at Newmarket in England.

THE world's record for two year olds at a mile, which was made two years ago by Bliss Rucker, a colt from the Burns & Waterhouse stable, was shattered last Saturday at Oakland when the chestnut colt Advance Guard (by Great Tom—Nellie Van) ran the distance in 1:39½. This mark will probably stand for a long time as very few horses of any age have shown ability to run a mile better than 1:40.

CHRISTMAS DAY saw the largest crowd of the season in attendance at Oakland; fully 8000 persons passing through the turnstiles. The Christmas Handicap over a mile and an eighth of ground was captured by Rosormonde, daughter of Ormonde and Fairy Rose, who shouldered 115 pounds and ran the distance in the fast time of 1:52½. This mare is vastly improved over her showing of the last two seasons and her performance on Monday demonstrated that she has inherited some of the quality shown by her sire in his turf career.

F. B. HARPER has purchased from J. E. Madden the ten year old bay stallion Long Beach by Longfellow, dam Semper Idem. Mr. Harper will place him at the head of Nantura Stud, to take the place of his illustrious predecessor, the immortal Longfellow. This horse is a full brother to the great race horse and sire Longstreet, now at the celebrated Belle Meade Stud in Tennessee. Mr. Harper expects to breed this horse to his richly bred Rossington mares, and expects great results from the union. The price is private, but is said to have been a good one.

ALTHOUGH the class of horses running on the local tracks this season is very far below what race goers have been accustomed to see in past seasons, no fault can be found with the two year old division which is composed of about the best lot ever seen together in California. The outlook for grand fields of contestants in the three year old stakes which will be run next spring is very encouraging and followers of the racing game will not witness the spectacle of rich stakes awarded for the mediocre performances of a lot of cheap selling platers as has been the custom in California on so many occasions in the past.

THE first batch of yearlings sold in England from Mr. Haggins's California stud proved an expensive investment to their purchasers. Only one of them succeeded in earning brackets as a two year old, and this one waited till the last week of the racing season before leaving the maiden class by winning the Rangemore Stakes at Derby. This youngster is by Golden Dawn, his dam, the well known brood mare, Agnes. He was purchased at the Haggins sale for $2850 by Mr. H. E. Beddington, the assumed name of the head of a great clothing firm. So little was thought of him that, in a field of fifteen, not a single quotation was recorded to his name, so his victory was a cause of rejicing to the ring, who "skinned the lamb"—the English expression for a clean sheet.

ONE effect of the New York National Hunt Club's generosity in adding substantial sums to their steeplechases and hurdle races will be to attract several stables of jumpers from England. Late advices from these state that the Earl of Shrewsbury contemplates bringing over six accomplished jumpers, none of whom, however, are of very much class. Mr. R. Thirlwell will also be represented by those in charge of his son Alec, who was several times seen in the saddle here, at Hawthorne and Washington Park in 1894. Ireland will also be well represented by some of the money-earning string of Messrs. T. and J. Widger. Both these brothers are good riders, and within the last few years have accumulated quite a fortune, owing to the frequent successes of their well managed stable. Should the outlook be favorable other owners may essay a trip across the Atlantic, for there are noumping races in England during the summer end fall.

MATT DWYER expects to campaign the fast young gelding Dreyfus by Dexter Prince, son of Kentucky Prince, dam Miss Valensin by Valensin next season. He is one of the lot from A. B. Spreckels' Aptos Farm, California, and Mr. Dwyer picked him up at the recent Madison Square Garden sale. As the gelding has shown extraordinary speed, he will be given a chance at the money next year.

Blood Lines of Orme, the Leading English Sire.

It has taken Orme only three years to reach that world wide distinction which some of us have from the very outset predicted for him, namely, the leadership in the list of winning stallions in England. It needs only the briefest sort of a glance at the statistics to realize how unequivocal is Orme's triumph, too, for the son of Ormonde has to his credit the sum of £46,703, while his nearest opponent has actually less than half that amount for his own total. Verily, it is a case of "Orme first, the others nowhere," and in view of this fact it is surely obligatory upon those who would keep up with the march of progress to carefully investigate the blood line foundation upon which so imposing a structure has been reared.

To begin with, while it may be a case of threshing old straw, it is absolutely necessary to note that Orme is bred as only one horse in thousands could ever hope to be, namely by Ormonde, "the horse of the century," out of a sister to St. Simon, "the sire of the generation." Never has a horse eclipsed Ormonde's record on the race course, and never since Stockwell has a stallion equalled St. Simon's record in the stud. Let us now add to this the facts (1) that Orme was himself a high class race horse, (2) that the blood lines of his parents brought together just the affinities for such a result, and (3) that Orme's pedigree gives ample scope and foundation for scientific inbreeding and association, and we have surely an admirable combination of qualities for stud success. Let me supplement and in a measure illuminate all this by saying that Orme is superbly bred for both race horse and sire, according to the unmistakable teachings of the Figure Guide, and now I am sure we are in a position to more fully comprehend how it was that his ultimate success could be so confidently predicted, at least by those who hold the Figures, if not by the general observers of breeding who are too much inclined to insist that it is, after all, purely a lottery matter. Such unique conditions as found their united expression in Orme were too potent to be in any way ignored, and it is not too much to say of Orme that his success as a sire was as absolutely assured by them as it ever has been or will be in the case of any one individual stallion.

In order to more clearly indicate the leading lines than can be done by a written statement, I set out the following pedigree of Orme, tabulating but three generations:

ORME XL.	{ Ormonde 16..	{	Bend Or (1).....	{ Doncaster (5)
			Lily Agnes.....	{ Rouge Rose
			Galopin III.....	{ Macaroni XIV.
			St. Angela.....	{ Vedette 19
			King Tom III.	{ Flying Duchess
			ade line	{

The great running families are indicated in parentheses. The great sire families, which are ordinarily printed in heavy face type, I have put in Roman numerals—a plan which would be admirable for general use, were it not that we occasionally come across animals with duplicate names, in which the Roman numeral system is used to prevent confusion. Here, of course, we would only meet with a clash in the case of III., and I shall risk it for the nonce in the case of Orme, concerning whom another very important feature must be noticed, namely, that Mr. J. B. Haggin has a virtual corner on the sons of Angelica in America, which fact in itself renders it particularly interesting, not to say necessary, to take up the question of the production of Orme's winners.

First, however, we must note that Doncaster was a son of Stockwell III., and that Vedette was by Voltigeur (2), he by Voltaire XII., he by Blacklock (2). Then, too, we must observe that Macaroni's sire, Sweetmeat, was out of a mare who was produced by incestuously breeding a son of Blacklock to a daughter of Blacklock, while Polly Agnes was by The Core, he by Physician, he by Brutandorf, a son of Blacklock. Now, Doncaster was by a son of The Baron, he by Birdcatcher, while Polly Agnes was out of a daughter of Birdcatcher, which horse also sired the dam of Vedette. And King Tom was a half brother to Stockwell, while Adeline's dam was by Horsea, he by Velcippede, a son of Blacklock.

Orme's score in 1899 shows fifteen winners of twenty-nine races worth £46,703, of which amount no less than £37,414 was won by the three year old Flying Fox in his marvelous series of victories, comprising the "triple event" of the Two Thousand, Derby and Ledger and the £10,000 "triple" of the Princess of Wales, Eclipse and Jockey Club Stakes. Flying Fox was most notably bred on the Bruce Lowe plan of returning to Orme the best strain of his dam, for Flying Fox's dam, Vampire, is by Galopin, out of Irony, she by Roseberry, son by Speculum, he by Vedette! And Irony's dam, Sarcasm, was by Breadsbane, he by Stockwell. The use of the Vedette line of Blacklock is simply heroic. Indeed, considering the dashing qualities of the blood, especially that of Galopin, it must be said that the success with Flying Fox is only too apt to tempt other breeders to doubling Galopin at the same very close range. It is not to be argued that such a policy is of itself distinctly commanded by the unqualified class of Flying Fox, because, if for no other reason, the additional line of Vedette through Roseberry may not improbably have saved the intensification in the double Galopin from producing a comparatively uncontrollable animal. To be sure, there are so few Galopin mares in America that our breeders are hardly likely to rush pell mell to inbreed a Galopin by sending them to imp. Order or his half brothers, and so my expression of caution in the matter may be really unnecessary. Rather, then, let me point out that mares by imp. Billet would bring a splendid line of Voltigeur into direct nick with the Galopin line of that blood in Angelica. Indeed, considering that Order sired Ornament, out of a mare by Oandaga, son of Leamington, one can readily be pardoned for wondering what might not result from his alliance with daughters of Sir Dixon and Belvidere, who were themselves by Billet out of a daughter of Leamington, it being provided, of course, that other conditions are at least fairly favorable. The combination of Angelica with Sir Dixon or Belvidere would give a nick of some very potent elements in the production of both Flying Fox by Orme, and Ornament by Order, and now that Order is located in the heart of the Blue Grass region, it may not prove to be in vain that I have hinted at the above possibility in connection with him.

This becomes all the more probable when we come to consider the pedigree of Orme's second largest winner, Harrow, who won three races worth £3375, his successes being the Colum Produce and Chippendale at Newmarket, and the Lingfield Park Stakes at Lingfield. Harrow's dam, Lady Primrose, is by Roseberry, he by Speculum, the identical Vedette who sired Flying Fox's granddam. And Lady Primrose's dam, The Empress Maud, was by Bœucler, he in turn being out of Bonnie Bell, by Voltigeur. Harry is certainly evidence that Angelica does not require a direct return of Galopin to breed a good stake winner, and this is accentuated by the fact that Orme's third largest winner, Paige, is a full sister to Harrow.

Fourth on Orme's list is Frontier, who earned his sire £1275 by winning the Ascot Derby, in addition to which he enabled Orme to score "one, two" honors at Sandown by following Flying Fox home for the $10,000 Eclipse Stakes. Frontier won the Dewhurst Plate in 1893, and it was really bad luck for Orme that training troubles incapacitated Frontier from starting after the Eclipse this year, for otherwise it is quite possible that Orme's total for the season would have exceeded St. Simon's £59,728 of 1896, if not Stockwell's £66,000 of some thirty years ago.

If the Duke of Westminster adopted heroic tactics in inbreeding to Galopin in the production of Flying Fox, we find him scarcely less adventurous in doubling Bend Or in the production of Frontier, for this colt's dam, Quetta, is a daughter of Bend Or, the sire of Ormonde, who in turn got Orme. Here again we find doubling tactics which might not necessarily succeed in proportion to the indications given by Frontier, were they not supported by other important conditions, not the least of which is the fact that Frontier's granddam was by Rosicrucian, who is of the number (5) running family from which Doncaster came, as also the facts that Frontier's third and fourth dams were, respectively, by Cambesca 19 and Monarque 18, a stout family, from which came also Vedette.

Orme had no other £1000 winners in 1899. I may notice, however, that Vane (£400) is a sister to Flying Fox, while Ameer (£305) is a full brother to Frontier. Convoy (£741) is out of Grace Conroy, she by Esterling (son of Sterling) out of Rent Day, she by MacGregor: (son of Macaroni) out of Fascination by Wild Dayrell. Ormeau (£100) is out of Woodhampton, she by Hampton out of Ashgrove, she by Albert Victor out of Schechallion by Blair Athol, son of Stockwell. Vendetta (£323) is out of Nemesis, she by St. Gatien out of Mosquito, sister to Mosket. Trussing Cup (£235) is out of Sterling Lova, she by See Saw out of True Love, she by Sterling out of Carine by Stockwell. Model Agnes (£200) is out of Mosley Maid, she by Trappist (son of Hermi) out of Festive, she by Carnival (son of Sweetmeat, sire of Macaroni) out of Percy by Atherstone. Armiger (£196) is out of Bellatrix, she by Ben Battle (son of Rata, plan, brother to Stockwell) out of Amondell by Scottish Chief. Three winners of £100 each complete Orme's list: Ormican is out of Can't, she by Dutch Skater out of British Queen by Blair Athol; St. Maur is out of St. Mary, she by Hermit out of Adelside, by Young Melbourne; and the Wenlock filly's dam is by Wenlock out of Cybele by Marsyas. St. Mary produced an Oaks winner, La Segesse, to Wisdom, while Wenlock produced Best Men to Melton, in saying which latter I accept the general verdict that Ormonde's previous alliance with Wenlock in the same season has been without effect.

I am reluctant to leave this imperfect analysis of Orme's stud success without further dwelling upon the merits of his greatest son and emphasizing the fact of his production as indorsing methods which I have so steadily advocated, namely, "inbreeding plus association," the whole under the guidance even in the light of the figures. I am sure, however, that both Orme and Flying Fox speak with no uncertain strength for themselves, and I may doubtless most fittingly leave the subject by congratulating Mr. Haggin upon owning so imposing a collection of half brothers to the champion English stallion of 1899.—W. H. Rowe, in New York Telegraph.

Will Go to New York.

The following dispatch from New Orleans to the Chicago Inter Ocean is most definite in regard to Capt. J. Rees going to the New York tracks that has yet appeared in print:

"It may be put down as a certainty that Captain J. H. Rees will not be in the stand at Hawthorne when the season opens at that track in the spring or summer. Negotiations through which the captain, who has come to be regarded as the most desirable turf officer in the country, will transfer his services to the Metropolitan circuit, which means the tracks about New York, have been going on for some time.

Last spring William Eogeman of the Brighton Beach Association wired Captain Rees at Memphis, offering him the presiding judgeship at the Beach. Rees answered that he was sorry he could not accept, as he had already closed with the Chicago Jockey Club. Eogeman immediately renewed his offer for next season. Last summer, during one of the fortnight periods when there was no racing at Hawthorne, Captain Rees visited New York, and while there had a conference with prominent members of the Jockey Club, during the course of which he promised J. H. Bradford that he would make no arrangements for next season until the Eastern racing powers were ready to make their appointments.

The way to Rees' appointment to the principal position on the tracks which race under the sanction and control of the Jockey Club has been prepared by the New York turf critic, who has made a study of his character at New Orleans, at Memphis and at Hawthorne, and who has made his praises the burden of their winter work. He has come to be regarded as "the one thing needful" in Eastern racing, and he, being enamored of judicial work on the turf, is not at all likely to refuse the position which awaits him."

Horses bred at Morris Ranch in Texas have been wonderfully successful at New Orleans. The best three year old there is one of these, called Mint Sauce, a son of Minting and the Loogfellow mare, Jennie B. This mare travels a long way to seek her loves, for she has been three times across the Atlantic. The first mate selected for her in England was Hampton, to whom she threw the erratic Wolsey, a well known performer in Pat Donne's colors. Her second visit resulted in Gallantry by Galopin, who was not very successful as a race horse, but promises to redeem his character at the stud. Minting, the sire of Mint Sauce, is a son of the famous Lord Lyon, and, consequently, a grandson of Stockwell. Unfortunately for him, he was foaled in the same year as the mighty Ormonde, but for whom he would have swept the hoard of all the classic races. As it was, the Grand Prix de Paris, in which Ormonde was not entered, was the only great three year old race to fall to his share. The Messrs. Morris well deserve their success as breeders, for every year they send some of their choicest mares over to England, and spare no expense to obtain the best results, as may be judged when they paid $1000 in each case for the services of Hampton and Minting, while Jennie B's visit to Galopin cost them $2500. The best two year old at the track, Prince of Verona, is also a product of their ranch, but he is home bred, being by the native sire Cayuga.

"AUGUR," in the Sporting Life, writes of Trainer John Haggins as follows: "Those who have had the pleasure of conversing with Mr. Haggins, though, most have been aware at once that he is a thorough master of his profession, a judge of horses and what they want, and a cool calculator. That he would win races in any country is certain enough, and his bringing to an art the method of trying by the clock and his weighing horses at different periods of their preparations to decide upon their proper condition, is very effectual and somewhat unique. I have only spoken to Mr. Haggins two or three times, and then I am sure I have learnt something. He is certainly a man of his time in the art of training. Next year he may lead in the winner of the Derby in Democrat, the first gelding to gain such an honor, but for that reason only, I should wish another the victory, as I do not like geldings for our classic races. At any rate, though, Democrat has made a capital return as a two year old, as he is the biggest contributor to the 42,516 sovs, won by Lord Beresford's stable."

The richest Great Trial stakes, three-fourths of a mile for two-year-olds, was that of 1891, won by His Highness, $52,095. The richest Pottery was that of 1890, won by Potomac, $67,575. The richest Realization was that of 1889 won by Salvator, $34,100. In 1899 David Garrick's Great Trial was worth $17,140; Chacornac's Futurity, $30,630, and Ethelbert's Realization was worth $12,890. Conditions change as the years go by.

PEACE, Fred Foster's Midlothian filly, is not running up to the expectations of her owner, seeming to have lost the high class form displayed by her at New York last summer. It is probable that she has had too much racing this season and is in need of a let up in her training.

By subscription of $10 each, money to accompany the entry, for mares covered in 1899, and further subscription of $25 each for the produce of such mares by July 15, 1901, or such produce will be struck out and a further subscription of $25, January 1, 1902, or such produce will be struck out and a further subscription of $50 by July 15, 1902 or such produce will be struck out. All starters to pay $250 additional all of which shall go to the second and third horses, as further provided. California Jockey Club to add Eight Thousand, Seven Hundred and Fifty ($8750) Dollars. The second to receive $1000 of the added money and two-thirds of the starting money, the third $500 of the added money and one third of the starting money.

The breeders of the winner of the second horse and of the third horse namely, the owner of the mare at the time of entry, to receive $2000, $1250 and $500 of the added money respectively, whether they be the owner of the horse when the race takes place or not.

Colts 118 lbs., fillies and geldings 115 lbs. Winners of $2500, 3 lbs.; of two of $2500 or one of $1500, 7 lbs.; of four of $2500 or two of $1500, or one of $9000, 12 lbs extra. The produce of mares or stallions which have not produced a winner prior to January 1, 1900, allowed 3 lbs. of both (mares and stallions) 5 lbs; not necessary to claim the said allowance at the time of entry. Maidens allowed 10 lbs. Mares may be entered by persons not their owners the owner having the prior right. If a mare in this stake drops her foal before the first of January, or if she has a dead or more than one foal, or is barren, the entry of such mare is void and the subscription will be returned. By filing at any time with the California Jockey Club an accepted transfer of the produce with its engagements in this stake accompanied with receipts for all former payments, the original subscriber will be released from any liability as to the engagements of the produce. Should a subscriber or a transferee die before the race, the entry shall not be void provided it be assumed by the then owner of the horse notice in writing to that effect being given within three months after such demise.

TO CLOSE JANUARY 2, 1900.

To be run in the month of December, 1902, at the Oakland Race Course, Emeryville, California, out of the Futurity Chute about six and one-half furlongs. Each and every part of this purse to be paid in cash. (There will be no forfeits.)

For the Autumn Meeting, 1902. THE FUTURITY, $10,000 ADDED.

Estimated Value $50,000.

BY SUBSCRIPTION OF $20 each, OR ONLY $10 IF THE MONEY BE SENT WITH ENTRY, for mares covered in 1899, and a further subscription of $50 each for the produce of such mares unless struck out by NOVEMBER 1st, 1901; or $100 unless struck out by July 15th, 1902. Each starter to pay $50 additional, all of which shall go to the second and third horses as further provided.

The Coney Island Jockey Club to add TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($10,000); the second to receive $1250 of the added money and two-thirds of the starting fees; the third $750 of the added money and one-third of the starting fees.

The nominators of the winner, of the second horse, and of the third horse, namely the nominator of the mare, to receive $2,000, $1,250 and $500 of the added money respectively, whether they are the owners of the horse when the race takes place or not.

Colls 122 lbs., fillies and geldings 119 lbs. Winners of two races of $3,000 or one of $5,000, 4 lbs. extra; of three of $3,000, two of $3,000 or one of $10,000, 8 lbs. extra.

If mare or stallion has not produced a winner prior to January 1st, 1900, the produce will be allowed 3 lbs. for either or 5 lbs. for both, said allowance to be claimed at time of entry. Maidens allowed 5 lbs., which allowance shall not be cumulative. Mares may be nominated by persons not their owners, the owner having the prior right.

If a mare in this stake drops her foal before the first of January, 1900, or if she has a dead or more than one foal or is barren, the entry of such mare is VOID, and the subscription if paid, will be returned. By filing prior to NOVEMBER 1st, 1901, with the Coney Island Jockey Club an accepted transfer of the produce with its engagement in this Stake, accompanied with all forfeits to date the original subscriber will be released from any liability as to the engagement of the produce.

Should a subscriber or transferee die before the race the entry shall not be void, provided it be assumed by the then owner of the horse; notice in writing to that effect accompanied by the payment of all accrued liabilities being given within three months after such demise. Six furlongs.

OTHER STAKES WILL BE DULY ANNOUNCED TO CLOSE AT A FUTURE DATE.

THE RULES OF RACING, and subsequent amendments there to adopted by the Jockey Club, govern all races and racing of the Coney Island Jockey Club.

Good Business Cows.

This is the way Professor Robertson, the commissioner of agriculture for Canada, describes what he calls a "good business cow:" "Her power of service will be indicated by certain external points. She should have a large, long udder, of elastic, fine quality; a mellow, movable skin, covered with soft, silky hair; a long, large barrel, hooped with flat ribs, broad and wide apart; a broad loin spreading out into broad, long hind quarters, an open twist, with rather thin hips, and a lean neck of symmetrical length, carrying a clean cut, fine face, with prominent eyes. A cow with these points has ability to serve a man well if she gets a fair chance. That her calves may have powers equal to or rather better than her own care should be exercised in their breeding. The best blood of the breed adapted to the farmer's purpose should be used to enlarge and to lessen the working capacity to be transmitted to her calves."

After a legal battle in the United States court, covering a period of over two years, Joseph Wilkins of Washington, D. C., and Howard Butler of Philadelphia have been sent to prison to serve sentences imposed upon them for having violated the law regarding the sale of oleomargarine. Wilkins was recently sentenced to imprisonment for six months and to pay a fine of $1000 and Butler to four months' imprisonment and a fine of $500. They were wholesale dealers in oleomargarine and were caught in the act of removing the brands from peckages of the commodity in January, 1897, and were indicted at the February session of that year by the United States Grand Jury, their conviction following shortly afterward. The case was appealed to the United States District Court on a writ of certiorari. The appeals failed in both cases. The case is of national importance as Wilkins and Butler are the first to be sent to prison for violating the oleomargarine laws. Other dealers convicted of selling oleomargarine as butter have succeeded in getting off with the payment of a fine.

Application has been made for insurance of $50,000 on the famous young Jersey bull, Merry Maiden's son, owned at Hood Farm, Lowell, Mass. This is the highest amount of insurance ever asked on a bull or cow. Merry Maiden's Son is believed to be the most famous Jersey bull living, as he is the son of Merry Maiden, the champion sweepstakes cow in all three tests combined at the World's Fair, and his sire is Brown's Bessie Son, whose dam won the ninety days' and thirty days' tests at the World's fair. Thus Merry Maiden's Son unites the blood of these two famous cows, and great results are expected of the progeny.

One of the finest draft stallions ever brought to Snisun was purchased in Oakland a few days ago by Edward Sparks, one of the proprietors of the Snisun Livery Stable, and Ed Hamilton of Fairfield. The horse is a registered Clydesdale known as Boynton Prince, was raised at Visalia and is about eight years old. Boynton Prince is a chestnut sorrel with a silver mane and darker tail, weighs over 1800 pounds and is perfectly proportioned — Snisun Republican.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Local fanciers are already making many queries concerning the spring show of the San Francisco Kennel Club.

John H. Schumacher of Los Angeles, was an interested sportsman in attendance at the Continental Field Trials.

Sing, an English setter bitch owned by Quick and McQueen of Lowell, Mass., has been bred to Verona Kennels' Ch. Count Gladstone IV. Sing is by Antonio—Duff, she by Manitoba Toss—Pitt Sing, this is her second trip to Verona, her first litter by Count produced Daughter Noble, winner of equal fourth in the Members' All-Age Stake, Ohio trials this year.

Advices from Geo. Richards, now located at Sparta, Miss., are to the effect that the Verona Kennels string of Derby candidates for next season are all getting along very well, working and hunting nicely, while they may not all be coming winners there is not a single 'duffer' in the bunch. Mr. Flynn's Senator P, a Bakersfield winner last January, is rounding into most excellent shape. Senator will be started in the United States All-Age at West Point next month.

That the Chinese do sometimes eat dogs is quite true, says a writer in Our Animal Friends. But, nevertheless, they make great pets of them.

Among the different kinds of Chinese dogs, those most highly prized and admired are the famous "sleeve dogs." They are so named because a "mandarin" often carries one of the little treasures stowed away in the hanging sleeve of his coat. There are two sorts of sleeve dogs, one of which is much like the English pug, only not much bigger than a rat. The other and prettier kind is a minuta copy of a King Charles spaniel. Both species are very valuable, and sell for as much as $300 or $400 apiece. A number of them have been sent at different times to Europe as presents to crowned heads, but they are delicate mites, and I believe not one has long survived the change. The Pekin dogs, closely resembling the Japanese pugs now often seen in this country, are also much petted by the natives and foreign residents of China.

My own favorite is the less aristocratic "chow" dog—a useful, business-like animal, who guards flocks and houses, and is an excellent protector in lonely walks in the country. Within the last two or three years many of these dogs have been exported to England, and they must be astonished to find that they are now the dogs of the day. The writer of an article published in an English magazine "wonders why," and speaks of them as savage, ill-tempered, disobedient, etc. Now, I am quite sure the man who wrote that had never the luck to be on good terms with one. For I myself, having had a number of "chow" friends, having always found them most loving, faithful and obedient. It is true they are rather Chinese in character, conservative and not at all promiscuously social in their manners and way. One must win, and, I think it may be added, must deserve, their good opinion. I have seen a hungry "chow" refuse food from the hand of a man he did not like, and, even after it had been thrown on the ground, it was still looked at with disdain and declined without thanks. "Chows," it must be confessed, are apt to fight with imported dogs as large as themselves or larger. But to little we howwows they are always kind, and allow them all sorts of liberties. They have real Chinese memories, and one of them will remember an old master or mistress from whom it has been parted for years.

Dogs at Harvard.

The life of the dog at Harvard is a chapter quite by itself. He goes about with his student master everywhere—to the foot ball games, to the gymnasium—and his career is as different, in many ways, from that of the ordinary dog as the life of a student is different from that of the ordinary young man.

When the student finds things running against him there is his dog, sympathetic in all things, from a lost game to an examination gone wrong, and the dog is a subject for no end of daily themes.

The student is a boss, the world over. He is himself bossed a good deal by superiors on every hand, and all the way from the janitor and "goodie" to the professor, and, as he cannot under any circumstances order around his room mate he gives it to the dog. The latter, if he can, may lord it in turn over other dogs.

His dogship is under the ban at Harvard in one respect, it being against the regulations of the university to keep him in any dormitory belonging to the college. In many of the apartments outside the college, however, a student may keep his dog, and, in many cases, the student makes a home for his pet at some stable.

There are a number of eminent dogs at Harvard—Boston terriers, bulldogs, setters, hounds, St. Bernards, and occasionally a dachshund is to be seen dragging his long body about the premises. The Boston terrier has had, for the past year or two, and still may claim, the greatest popularity.

The days of dog fighting at college seems to have passed, and, perhaps happily, one seldom hears of any of these midnight contests in mysterious barns in the country. At one time there was a kennel on Church street, but that proved unsuccessful for some reason.

"A kennel," said an old-tims dog expert, "is one of those institutions for which a want is felt when there is none, and no great demand for when you get it. The fad of having a dog comes over the students, as a whole, like any other fad—for a time everyone wants a dog, then it's a horse then something else. Dogs are kept around in stables considerably, but neighbors are likely to complain. If the dog happens to be feeling nervous, he howls because he is shut in, and if he is out he howls because he is not in. Some learn after experience that, if there is howling to be done, it may just as well be done at home."

One of the best known dog owners at Harvard was Coker Clarkson, '92, who occupied a room on Oxford street, with a collection of bulldogs and bull terriers surpassing in variety. Under every one of the three office desks one was sure to find a dog. A treat that Clarkson had in store for his friends every midnight was "fading the animals," a form of stampede that was literally something fierce.

Harvard has at this time no recognized dog mascot. Jack, the famous bulldog, that was owned by the brave Wheeler, was the last regular mascot the foot ball eleven has had.

Eastern Field Trial Notes.

The Continental Field Trial Club's field trials, as compared with the Eastern club's trials, had not as many starters, the reason being that the opportunity for signing up many of the dogs in the Eastern trials gave the owners a line on probable chances in the later trials. The weather throughout was favorable, but the supply of birds was not up to the average of previous meetings.

The judges were Chas. H. Phelps, Jr., of New York; Prof. E. H. Osthaus, of Toledo, O., and E. Waters, of New York. Mr. Waters and Geo. E. Gray were the judges for the Members' Stake. Most of the dogs which started had been in the Eastern club field trials, a number of the awards being the same, viz.: all the Derby winners and the winner of the All-Age Stake.

The summaries of the running are the following:

NEWTON, N. C., December 8, 1899—Members' Sweepstake Continental Field Trial Club. Open to members of the Eastern Field Trials Club also. Entries closed the evening before running. CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Dan Ostrander and a friend had plenty of duck shooting at Alvarado last Sunday, bringing in a good string of ducks.

The deer hunting season in Michigan and the Lake Superior regions of Wisconsin and Minnesota, which has just ended, resulted in a total of eleven hunters killed and seven wounded.

J. B. Hauer tried quail shooting on Sunday last, stopping at his brother's ranch, fourteen miles below Santa Cruz. Birds were plentiful but hard to work in the heavy brush. Two coveys were driven out into a plowed field, the hunters bagged several dozen in this way.

L. L. Campbell and Harry Jeffrey of Chicago are enjoying a quail shooting trip in the vicinity of Cloverdale. The hunters made the trip from across the bay to their destination by team and propose to enjoy a few days' camping before their return. It is needless to remark that the four Irish setters Mr. Campbell has with him will enjoy the sport as well as the gunners.

One of the finest lines of stamped and carved leather goods ever shown in this city, embracing a large variety of articles useful and ornamental, can be seen at the salesroom of the H. E. Skinner Company. Another line offered in leather ware—boots and shoes for ladies and gentlemen—shooters, tourists, golf-players, etc., made after special designs and styles are models of comfort and durability.

The Suisun marshes, although flooded in many places, have afforded some first class sport lately. The members of the Olympic and Suisun Gun Clubs have bagged many fine birds, cans predominating. H. E. Rose, H. E. Titus and Dr. Derby had excellent sport on Sunday. A. M. Shields and Ed Cramer killed sixty-three ducks, forty-seven of them cans; on Sunday and Friday a week ago Messrs. Harper, Whitby and Wilson howled over sixty cans on the same ponds. This should be counted as fairly good sport.

An elegant calendar for the new year has been issued by Clabrough, Golcher & Co. The subject of illustration is a beautiful photograph showing two hunters ensconced in a blind among the reeds craning ready for the coming within range of a bunch of ducks flying up the wind. A number of earlier victims of the shoot are shown at the hunters feet. The subject is full of life and sport and will appeal strongly to the sportsmen, young and old, arousing alike fond memories or keen anticipation.

The weather continues good for duck shooting, many good bags are reported from various districts. Canvasbacks were never more plentiful than they have been recently. In all parts of San Francisco and San Pablo bay ducks can daily be seen in flocks of countless thousands. They are safe on the bay from the hunter during the day time. They have been going to the ponds and inland to feed during the moonlight nights for the past week; nevertheless the evening and morning flights have allowed many good bags to the hunters.

The live bird shoot at Los Angeles to-morrow and Monday is a subject of all absorbing interest to the local fraternity of shooters. It is hardly probable however that a representative team from this city will enter the list. One of the shooters counted upon to make up the team, M. O. Feudner, will be unable to go south and attend the shoot. Among those who will be present from San Francisco are Will J. Golcher, Clarence A. Haight, Clarence C. Nauman, Harvey McMurchy and W. A. Hillis of Montana.

President Lemmer, Bert Patrick, N. H. Hickman, Tom Rock and Senator Schlitz of Antioch on Sunday morning regulated the supply of ducks which are allowed to disport themselves on the Black Jack ponds. The morning shoot gave the gunners a goodly sized bag of ducks, many cans being among them. The sport was stopped by the heavy fogs which soon enveloped everything on the island and vicinity—Windy Bill claims that the fog resulted from Senator Schlitz's breath. The Senator is a warm baby and kept well stuffed with much Hayden—the result when he respired, was the immediate condensation of the immense volumes of hot air which Schlitz had on tap.

The late John Hunter, Esq., who was President of the Hunter Arms Company, had reached the ripe age of seventy-one years before his demise. He is spoken of by those who knew him best and understood his many sterling qualities and gentle disposition as "a man whose whole life was a living demonstration of the practicality of the Christian religion in business affairs. Tolerant always, compromising with wrong never, just to all men, to know him was hot in love, a man whose ideal in life was elevating and lifted up all life with which he came in contact, warm in his friendship, firm in his convictions, unwavering in his adherence to truth and justice. Surely his life is a goodly heritage."

A good story is told of a hunter who for seasons past has shot ducks at a favorite spot near Newark. Last Sunday, with a shooting partner, he spent the day near their ark shooting as usual; after the shoot was over he returned to the ark, curious, of course, to know what his partner had accomplished—in looking over the other's string of birds he was somewhat astonished to find three fine duck canvasbacks. "What are you going to do with these?" he queried. "Them's cans," was the rejoinder. "What! well, I'll ha — I shot three just exactly like them, but pitched 'em out of my boat when I started back. I thought they were coots!" Canvasbacks have been such rare birds on the east bay shore shooting grounds as to be unknown to some shooters.

The holiday number of Shooting and Fishing received last week is a splendid edition full of the enlivening lore dear to the hearts of sportsmen, embellished with a beautiful series of timely pictures aptly illustrating the excellent articles within its pages, and also showing a flattering recognition of its worth in the many catching announcements of various interests identified with the manifold necessities and conveniences of devotees of the rod and gun.

A Christmas morning shoot at 'Poutoon' on the north fork of the Mokelumna river was enjoyed by James Maynard Jr. and Norris Johnson. A combined bag of seventy-three ducks, principally mallard and eprig, fell to the guns. The hunters arrived on the ground Sunday afternoon; Jim Maynard, who is not only a crack shot but an expert hunter, in looking over the situation, immediately espied some overflowed land, within less than 200 yards of the house, that promised to develop some shooting. The hunters cut a few willows and erected blinds, scattered a couple of sacks of barley in the proper place and then after a comfortable supper and good night's sleep went out and in the blinds early in the morning. The shoot lasted but a couple of hours, the ducks coming in fairly well. While the shooters were in their blinds, they had to desist until the China boy at the house nearby was made to stop rattling the kitchen pots and pans, which racket frightened away several good bunches of birds.

We must go to the swine for a name to apply to some of those who use the rod and the gun. This is certainly not a very flattering commentary on the field manners of the times; and it is a tremendous pity that there should be so many shooters to whom the title belongs and who are subject to this application. Nevertheless, it remains a truth that there are many alleged sportsmen who are entitled to no other name than the one that has been appropriately selected for them, and that is "game hog." They kill purely and simply for the sake of doing to death the greatest possible number of victims in the shortest interval of time. To out-score in gross weight or number the record-holder is the goal on which is glued the hoggish vision. After the display is made of the kills or catch they have no farther concern as to the disposition of the game or fish. They have made their record and they rest on their laurels, proud and content, until some other game-hog outdoes them, when envy bids them again fall in. They stop at nothing—shoot as long as it is light enough to see and fish as long as there is a chance for a strike. They are not sportsmen by instinct, nor belong to the anglers' or hunters' guild, but as imitators, pretenders, who practice the craft, but less the spirit they are an ail. We talk and write of the beauties of nature as revealed to him who goes afield, of the inspiration that one may find in the woods and fields, and by lakes and streams. But speak of these things to some men who handle the rod and gun and you speak to unheeding ears. As well speak to the deaf and dumb. Some men have ever heard of pipe the Pan, but ever with strained senses catch the song of Circe.—Denver Times.

Duck Calling.

The power of mimicry in man has full scope for vent in wild-fowl shooting. Some men are natural mimics, others are sadly deficient in such powers, and for the latter the artificial duck's quack is a blessing—that is, if it is properly used. But when we take into consideration the great army of duck hunters and think for a moment how little they know the art of calling, we are at a loss to know the reason why. The majority of hunters invest in a duck call. They gaze upon it with admiration, equate into its muzzle of bell-shaped horn, look cautiously around to see if they are observed, then place it in their mouth, fill their lungs with air, give a violent blow and the air resonates with a discordant bla-e-a." Not to be discouraged at the first attempt they try again, and by thrusting the extrema end against the palate a sound is blown out in a minor, which faintly resembles a wild duck. A little practice soon obviates this, and the aspirant soon learns to imitate a duck. Imitate how? As the bird calls in its different moods? No, he doesn't think of that, the very thing he ought to think of. The result is he seeks at times to call them to his decoys, and tries this, when he cries to them in the tones which they utter only when in flight. The beginner should be a student of nature and birds and watch them in their feeding grounds. Once in a while some corpulent metron will forget herself and call out "quack, quack, quack" in "Won't get home till morning," strains; but the majority are quiet, feeding along with a "sip-sip-sip," just as you have seen tame ducks do. Learn to imitate these; learn to imitate the whistling pin-tail or sprig, the widgeon, the purring sound of the red-heads, the tenor quack of the shoveller, or spoonbill, the soprano of the teal. Listen to the mallard duck as she call, her mate. Try to call like her. See! from a distance he hears her cry and goes to her. How your blood tingles as his grating, vibrating call reaches you, so mellow, so tender as he travels through the weeds—"M-amphs M-amph." Practice this call, not in the wooden one, but with the one nature provided you with. To a secret of duck-calling is the right call in the right place, as the birds call in their different flights and resorts.

Only One Long-Bill.

A recent trip of a local sportsman to the haunts of the Black Jacks, which are located across the San Joaquin river E. N. E. three points N. W. in an air line from Windy Bill's symposium at Antioch is noted by The Ledger in the following vein: "M. J. Geary, known to fame as the 'Dook o' Ducks,' was in Antioch for two days last week. He came up to enjoy a 'snipe' hunt on Sherman island. When all arrangements had been completed to start, Geary discovered that there was something lacking—a dog. 'A dog I must have,' said Geary, 'for what's the use.' 'You can have Sooze,' replied Henry Dahnken, who was standing near. 'I will guarantee that you can catch more snipe in one hour with this dog than you can bag in a whole day with all the thoroughbreds in the city.' 'Good,' Mr. Geary said; "hitch him up with a rope and I will take him along." So they hitched Snooze up with a rope and tumbled him into the boat. Now Snooze's chief qualifications are eating three meals a day; he never misses one—in fact, this is the herdest work we ever knew him to do. He may have seen many better days—especially snipe days—but he has grown old and weary eating three meals a day. To get to the preserves is quite a long distance. It is necessary to go around the western end of Sherman island and then up a slough. When a landing was made on the other side Geary led Snooze out of the boat. Right here is where Mr. Geary's memory is at fault. He does not remember whether he tied the dog to a tute, to the stock of his gun, or to the atmosphere—it certainly must have been the latter. Suffice it to say, that when Geary straightened himself out to begin the tramp he looked around for Snooze—but alas! no Snooze. The dog was making for the river bank. Geary's vocabulary was wasted on the disappearing dog. Whilst Snooze was home hugging a warm fire, Geary was over on the island hunting snipe. We have heard these supra stories before. Mr. Geary did secure a lonely snipe, which was afterwards placed in the hands of the taxidermist."

The report in this city was a bag of several dozen nice fat English snipe. And this shows how many an entrancing story of sport efield vanishes like "the baseless fabric of a dream."

A Luckless Duck Hunting Trip.

"Sacre! Wat, me, N. poleon Yopps, go for to shoot him ducks on de beeg rivaire? Nevaire, M'sieu! Sacre cochor! I go shoot har no more, me, Napoleon Yopps, wat ksep black-emit' shop. You talk, I talk. Den I don't go. I nevaire shoot 'nudder dam' duck, M'sieu, for why. By'n-by I tell you.

"Las' wintaire, one col' day, 'long about Novembre de teerteenth, Antoina Domas, wat work at de Hotel Flannagan, come long by my shop an' an he say:

"'Napoleon, how dat? Yoo come 'long wid me to Fort Covington, an' we go down on beeg rivaire for to shoot 'e duck. Come 'long, Napoleon, en' I get de whiskee blanc—how you call him, eh! High wines, bien."

"Antoine he beeg hunteaire, an' Napoleon Yopps, c'est moi, I'm pretty good, so so. I fol' up' ma apron an' get my beeg coat an' n' y gon an' Antoine he get one, beeg hottl' whiskee blanc an' sacre, we go. It ver' col' day, dat, wen me an' Antoine go down to beeg rivaire. We go down to Frezer's Point en' dat win' she blow an' den she blow again an' dat be c'rect what I say. She blow dam' herd, M'sieu. Bien, we talk an' talk an' by'n by we agree, to it, me an' Antoine, to go out uex' mornin', mebbe two tree hour before dat sun ha get up, for to kill him duck.

"We anchor dat littl' batean in de bushes an' we flay wood ducks all round of it. Den wa wait for de sun. We tek drink, mebbe two whiskee blanc, an Antoine feel so good he wan' to sing song 'bout Julie wid beeg, black eyes.

"Antoine he keek hard for to keep dat bottl', but I tek it an' wa get down in de batean an' we shiver two, three timee, for it was ver' col', M'sieu. Den littl' light come roun', an' by-n-by some duck she fly by. Antoine an' me shoot. Not a dam' duck drop. Mus' be someeeng matter wid de guns. Mais, dey be all right. Den mus' be wid Antoine an' me. We didn't get duck, but we tek drink jus' same. Sacre cochor, long come 'nudder duck, an' we mek for to shoot him. We miss him 'gain, an' we tek littl' whiskee. We shoot an' whod, ma an' Antoine, an' we miss every dam duck. I don' know whedder Antoine misses or me, 'cause why, M'sieu, we shoot togedder, but I tink dat Antoine misses. I shoot ver' straight wen I shoot. Mais, Antoine ha can't see straight for dat whiskee. Antoine talk lek a fool, an' he seengs all time 'bout dat Julie. I got no time for seenging. I just curse. I curse de ducks an' da beeg rivaire, an' den I curse Antoine 'cause he miss every duck. Den Antoine an' me shak han's, an' tek littl' drink togedder. Antoine talk an' I talk, an' we 'gree to tek drink for every duck we see, nevaire min' da shoot. I feel ash me' don't get no ducks 'cause we sea two tree thousand mebbe, an' wen I don't see him, Antoine sees him. He jus' lay still an' sea ducks. More'n enough to feed Jos Saborin's meat market if we shoot dem all; Mais, we don't shoot dam' one.

"Antoine he jus' keep on seenging 'bout Julie. I tink he was littl' bit drunk, myself, but Antoina don't tink so. Da win' sha blow an' da duck he fly by, one after two. Dey mak' beeg noisa like dat littl' clickety-click steamboat on Laka Titus, an' dey keep goin'. Antoine, ha say by-n-by: "Shoot littl' duck yourself, Napoleon. Shoot beeg duck. Shoot all de ducks, what I care! Jus' lek dat."

"Den I get ver' angry wid Antoine. I toll him he been good frien' dis tree four year an' I don't lek such talk lek dat. Dat mek me cry jus' lek littl' chil', me, Napoleon Yopps, wat keeps blacksmil' snop. Sacre! An de ducks she go by bot' ways jus' de same. Antoine, he say:

"Bah!"

"I say:

"Bah yourself. No mau say bah twice to Napoleon Yopps by gar!"

"Den Antoina say some tings dat I don' lek to repeat, M'sieu, en' I say:

"'Give me dat bottl', Antoine, an' I'll stan' up in de batean an' shoot little duck."

"Antoina give ma de bottl' en' I stan' up for to look. I look up an' I see no duck. I look down an' I see two tree dozen ducks of wood dat we got for decoy. Den de mos' strenge ting happen. Antoina didn't see, because why? Ha was in de bottom of da batean. I, Napoleon Yopps, see it, M'sieu, an' it was de mos' stranga ting dat aver heppen to me. Wen I look at da littl' wooden ducks, wat you tink? I mns' tell M'sieu, for you nevaire would tink it. You don' nevaire tink such a tiog. I look at de littl' wooden ducke, and tree four of dem flip dera wing an' fly away. C'est vri. It was de fir's time dat I, Napoleon Yopps, ever see wooden duck fly away. I was dat s'prise, M'sieu, dat I did mos' foolish ting. I dropped that big bottl' whiskee blanc, an' she fell kerplunk in de beeg rivaire. Sacre! I couldn't help it, but Antoine he don' tek no excuse. He try to hit me, and I try to hit him. I tink I hit him tree four time, an' he hit me tree, four time, an' den I don't remembraire no mora.

"Wen I coma 'round I was in hed wid e beeg black eye, jus' like Antoina's Julia. Antoina he was seek, Dr. Furness cut off two tree of hees toes, 'cause dem was froz. Sacre! We don't get no duck, an' Antoine ha gat two tree less toe."—Inter-Ocean.

Some American Game Preserves.

During the past twenty years or so the sport of hunting has grown in the United States from very modest beginnings until it is in a position to compare favorably with such sport in any part of the world. There was a time when the words "game preserves" naturally suggested the landed gentry of Europe. At that time there were few if any preserves in this country, but to-day there are many millions of acres set apart for this purpose, in order that the game may be properly protected from the pot hunter and kept for the true sportsman. During a greater part of the year these preserves are deserted save for the officials whose duty it is to see that there is no trespassing in these private forests, but when November comes with its days when the keen air makes the fragrance of the fir and the pine, the hemlock and the spruce seem sweeter than the rarest incense, the men of wealth, for whose use these woodlands have been so carefully protected, hasten to these domains where Nature still reigns supreme and there enjoy their ideal sport for a few short weeks.

The present year promises to be a reraous for the lover of hunting. From one end of the country to the other come stories of game in plenty. In the wilds of Maine and in the Adirondacks there is no lack of caribou or deer, while feathered game is so plentiful as to be simply waiting for the gun of the hunter. This is especially true of the private preserves, so that those who have been patiently waiting the coming of the fall may feel assured of such capital sport that they will be well repaid for their patience.

Few persons have any idea of the large number of fine game preserves that have been set apart by the rich Americans during the past fifteen years. Previous to that time little attention has been paid to the protection of game, but with the increasing army of pot hunters it was finally found to be necessary to take some step in that direction. The first large tract of land that was set apart for this purpose was in 1887, when the Kildare Club purchased its preserves in the Adirondacks, but from that time the fad has spread until to-day nearly every millionaire has his private preserve where he can hunt or fish to the best advantage.

At the present time there are more than 800,000 acres in the State of New York alone that have been set apart as game preserves, while millions of acres are devoted to this purpose in various parts of the country. Much of this land, however, is necessarily owned by private clubs, and yet there are many private preserves that will compare favorably in area with the properties of these organizations. For instance there is the Corbin estate in the Blue Mountains of New Hampshire, a park which comprises thirty-two square miles of territory. It was purchased by the late Austin Corbin, and was kept up, after his death, by Austin Corbin, Jr. Here may be found game in plenty.

A mountain and two valleys have been fenced in and in this enclosure the game was permitted to run for several years before they were molested. To-day the park contains hundreds of elks, moose and deer, to say nothing of the hundreds of boars that are just as wild as those hunted in the forests of Europe.

The preserves owned by Dr. W. Seward Webb, at Shelburne, Vt., are stocked with partridge, many of the birds being of the finest imported stock. So careful is the owner in the breeding of these birds that he will allow but six hunts a year, but during those days about six hundred brace of game are shot. At other times the birds are carefully fed and cared for by a professional gamekeeper. Dr. Webb has also set apart several hundred acres of his estate as a preserve for four-footed game, and here he is raising moose and elk.

One of the largest game parks in New York is that owned by Charles Fenton, of the the Adirondack Timber and Mineral Company. This preserve consists of more than 30,000 acres, and it is not inclosed, but instead is carefully guarded by a score of gamekeepers. The wild deer have found it one of the sefest spots in the mountains, and have come in great numbers to augment the already large herd placed there by Mr. Fenton.

Another well kept game preserve in the Adirondacks is owned by George J. Gould. Here about 1000 acres have been enclosed and well stocked with pheasant, hare and deer. Here, also, is a fine trout lake covering twenty acres of land as well as more than a mile of trout stream in which fifteen or twenty pounds of the speckled beauties can be caught within a couple of hours. Edward H. Litchfield, of Brooklyn, is the owner of a 9000 acre preserve in another part of the Adirondacks. This he has stocked with elk and deer rabbit and squirrel, pheasant and other feathered game, and here his friends enjoy many a week of capital sport.

The most notable country estate owned by the younger generation of New Yorkers is Biltmore, the South Carolina home of George Vanderbilt. Here there are fine game preserves, well stocked and well cared for and here Mr. Vanderbilt plays the part of the country squire to perfection. The only other game park owned by a member of the Vanderbilt family is on William K. Vanderbilt's Long Island estate, "Idle Hour," which was visited by fire, during the honeymoon of the younger Mr. Vanderbilt. Here there are deer and feathered game enough to meet the demands of the most fastidious sportsman and the preserves are well kept up, although they have received but little attention from Mr. Vanderbilt during the past few years.

Another New Yorker who has a game preserve of which any English squire might feel proud is W. Gould Brokaw. His estate, which consists of more than 30,000 acres, is located at Fairview, North Carolina, and while the owner has made no attempt to raise deer or any other four-footed game, it is well stocked with quail, wild turkeys, woodcock and pheasants. Foxes abound thereabouts and Mr. Brokaw's pack of hounds is one of the best in the country.

If the plans made by E. C. Benedict do not fail, he will have one of the best fish preserves in the East. Mr. Benedict has always been a great lover of fresh water fishing, and when he purchased the old American Club estate on Long Island Sound, he decided to have a lake constructed on his own place, through which a stream already ran. This body of water is now more than half a mile in circumference, and it has not only been stocked with thousands of the best of fish, but every care is being taken to see that they are properly nurtured. At present no one is allowed to cast a line into the lake, but in about two years the fish will be ready for the sportsman, not the least enthusiastic will be Mr. Benedict and his friend, ex-President Cleveland.

"Tranquility Park" is the name of Rutherford Stoyvesant's game park at Allamuchy, New Jersey. These preserves consist of about 4000 acres of wooded hills and swamps, and here there are some 400 deer and elk, besides large quantities of small game and a well populated beaver colony.

C. C. Worthington's game preserve near the Delaware Water Gap, contains fully 3500 acres, and in this enclosure there are near a thousand deer that are as wild as they could be if they were in their native wood.

Nashon Island in Buzzard's Bay, Massachusetts, has been set apart by Mr. John Forbes as a game preserve and here both deer and feathered game abound.

The Havemeyer preserves near Rahway, New Jersey, consist of about 300 acres of wooded hills and open grazing glades. Here there are more than a hundred deer, besides rabbits, Belgian hares, quail, woodcock, partridge and pheasants.

In Dutchess county, N. Y., there is an estate of more than 1600 acres, owned by Charles T. Dietrich, that has been set apart as a game park. Various kinds of deer have been imported from Europe and these, with the American species, number more than a hundred. The park is also stocked with all kinds of game birds, from English pheasants to prairie chickens.

C. W. Chapin is the owner of two large parks at Lebanon Lake, Sullivan county, N. Y. The estate is so large that it required twenty miles of wire fence to surround it and it is well stocked with deer, elk, hares, rabbits and many kinds of feathered game, including wild geese and wild turkeys with their wings clipped.

Large as some of these estates may seem, they are small when compared to preserves in other parts of America. In Mexico there is a single park owned by Mr. Charles Payne, which consists of more than 200,000 acres and the hunting preserves of Anticosti Island are forty miles long and about thirty-five miles wide. When M. Henri Menier, the millionaire chocolate manufacturer, purchased this island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a few years ago, his first act was to give orders that it should be well stocked with game. A high wire fence was carried across the island, setting aside one-third of the great estate as a game park, and to this ideal spot animals of every description were brought and set free. Of course there were deer and elk, but in addition there was the black bear and the red fox, the beaver, the otter and many other animals in such numbers that, if no care had been taken to protect them, Anticosti Island would still be one of the ideal hunting parks of this continent.

The Game Law.

The synopsis of the game laws appearing below and published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for several years past has, from time to time been changed or the provisions of new ordinances added thereto by reason of the many and various changes in the county game and fish laws, particularly those of recent date and of application in and around the bay counties.

This synopsis has been frequently copied (in more or less garbled and incomplete form) and quoted by city and interior journals and has also been printed and distributed by business houses. While the information given at the date of issuance was substantially correct, we do not care to be held responsible for the circulation of old matter that is now incorrect in many details. Some complaint has been made in this respect and to avoid misunderstanding in the future it is suggested that for information of this character a reference be made to current numbers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for the latest and most complete data concerning the Game Laws.

The county enactments relative to the shipment of game have become inoperative under the decision of the Supreme Court of California, rendered December 5, 1899, in the case of James Knapp on habeas corpus, appealed from the Superior Court of Stanislaus county.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. Pheasants, the taking, killing, selling or having in possession at any time is prohibited; robbing or destruction of nests or having pheasant eggs in possession is a misdemeanor in the following counties: Butte, Trinity, Martin, Lake, Merced, Riverside, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Kings, Ventura, Santa Clara, Monterey, San Joaquin, Yuba.

The clerks of nearly all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Diego, Solano, Siskiyou, Tehama, and Yolo.

The changes are as follows:
Alpine—Deer, Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Male deer, July 15 to Oct. 1. Pheasants protected until February, 1904. Live Eels for Striped-Bass Bait.

A contributor to the American angler submits a communication that will not be without some little interest to our striped-bass fishermen, particularly those who have so persistently followed up the fish in our waters this season generally with the results not regarded in accordance with the efforts put forth to capture the gemey bass. The writer above referred to says:

I wish to call the attention of those who fish for striped bass to my experience with the live eel as the most convenient and alluring of all baits. I think if my brother fishermen will give the eel a trial where there are bass they will receive most generous returns. While not claiming to be the first to use live eels, I have yet to see any account where they have been used so successfully. Sand-worms have proved to be an attractive bait, but they were very perishable; and, thinking that live eels might prove a greater attraction, I obtained some small ones, from six to nine inches long, and used them for small bass. I kept the eels in a small car or box suitably made for the purpose. I afterwards obtained larger eels—say from ten to eighteen inches long—by setting regular eel-pots. These eels were used for larger bass, and were also kept in properly made cars.

Most of my bass fishing was done from a boat, taking the car or cars into the boat when on the move, and putting them back into the water when anchored or laid up for the night. Eels may be kept in this way for weeks, and perhaps months even without food. I kept some of the smaller ones over a month without losing one.

The following are some of the results of using the smaller live eels, six to nine inches long. On one day I took six bass weighing two, two, three, four, four, and another, the longest, five pounds. The following day I took nine fish ranging from three to sixteen pounds, and another day three bass from three to sixteen pounds. Then there appeared indications of the arrival of larger bass, and I used larger eels; the other fishermen, seeing my success, also took to the same bait. The first large bass was caught early in September by a brother angler and weighed fifty-one pounds, and a few days later another of fifty-three pounds, followed by a forty-pounder. In addition I got two more of forty and forty-eight pounds respectively. I used a light rod and reel with a nine-thread line and a 6 o hook; and after the fish had taken out some 500 feet of line I reeled him in against a strong tide and gaffed him.

In looking over my record, I find that I caught with this bait over fifty bass averaging eight pounds, during a period of about forty-five days, from early in August to the end of September. I credit most of my success, together with that of my companions, to the use of live eels for bait.

In using the eel I hook it upwards through both jaws a little in front of the eyes; and in most, but not all of my fishing with the eel, I troll it out from the boat in the tide run, which is strong enough to prevent the eel going to the bottom or tying itself in a knot. I use a dry towel or cloth in handling and hooking on the eel, which prevents unnecessary squeezing; for the livelier they are the more alluring to the bass.

I caught a number of bass by casting out the eel and slowly reeling it in; and, even where there is no current, either in casting from the boat or shore the live eel will be found to give the best returns of all bait now used.

To give an illustration from the fishing of one of the most expert soft-crash fishermen of my acquaintance, I induced him to try a live eel about sixteen inches long, and he soon caught an eighteen-pounder, and up to this time he had caught nothing over seven pounds. All my friends who have used the bait assert that it has proven the best of all. Live eels enough for the day's use can be taken in a pail or basket, and kept alive if protected from the sun.

The San Francisco Striped Bass Club is an organization of anglers who find a day's sport and recreation on salt water equally prolific of enjoyment as the time devoted to lake and stream fishing. The first annual meeting of the club and banquet was held last week. The prizes won during the season were presented to the lucky fishermen. According to the rules of the club the members who catch the largest fishes in the season and also the greatest number are honored with medals. At the distribution of prizes, C. F. Bridenstein won first prize, James S. Turner second prize, Sydney Hall third and F. Moody managed to catch the clam prize—a leather medal for having lost the greatest number of fish since the club was organized.

Among those present were: George Wentworth, James Watt, J. Doherty, Charles F. Bridenstein, Charles Hnyck, J. Turner, W. Turner, Bert Spring, Sam Heller, Sydney Hall, A. Legarde, George W. Mitchell, J. Lynch, T. Evans, N. Mead, Charles H. Kewell, F. Daverkosen, J. J. Kennedy, R. Horning and F. Moody.

Bay fishing is rather quiet at present, the flat and unaccounted flounder, found in goodly numbers in the Alameda estuary, the Tiburon lagoon and also at the head of Richardson's Bay being the only member of the finny tribe who now responds often and much to the salt water anglers' wiles.

Point Reyes anglers have caught more water than steel-heads lately.

The following Stakes are now open to close and name on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1899.

FOR SEASON 1902. THE PRODUCE STAKES OF $15,000.

To close and name on Saturday, Dec. 30, 1899; for the produce of mares covered in 1899; to run in 1902 for then two years old, as two events, one race for colts and one race for fillies, of $200 each, h. f.; or only $10 if declared by January 1, 1901, or $20 if declared by January 1, 1902, or $30 if declared by June 1st, 1902; the association to add an amount necessary to make the gross value of the two events $15,000, of which $1500 to the second and $750 to the third in each event; a winner of a race of $3000 to carry 3 lbs.; of two races of $5000, or one of $10,000, 5 lbs. extra; those not having won $3000, allowed 5 lbs.; beaten maidens not having run second for a race of $3000, allowed 10 lbs.; produce by untried horses or out of untried mares, allowed 3 lbs.; if both, 5 lbs.; this breeding allowance to be claimed before the closing of this stake, and not to be allowed to winner of $2000; allowance accumulative; transfer of the engagement accepted by the owner of the produce (neither party being in default for forfeits) to release nominator of the mare from liability, if the transfer is lodged with the Racing Secretary on or before August 15, 1901. Three-quarters of a mile.

The above race to be run in two divisions, viz.: a race for Colts and Geldings only, and a race for Fillies only. The value of the race to be apportioned in proportion to the sex of the eligible foals dropped i. e., if 60 per cent. of the eligible produce are Colts, then 60 per cent. of the money goes to the Colt and Gelding race, and 40 per cent. to the Filly race, or vice versa.

In making an entry for a produce race the produce is entered by specifying the dam and sire or sires.

If the produce of a mare is dropped before the first of January, or if there is no produce, or if the produce is dead when dropped, or if twins are dropped, the entry of such mare is void.

In produce races, allowances for the produce of untried horses must be claimed before the time of closing, and are not lost by subsequent winnings.

An untried horse is one whose produce in any country are maidens at the time of closing.

In all produce stakes the nominator must register with the Clerk of the Course where the horse is engaged within twelve months after the closing of such stake the sex, name, if any, color and all marks, if any, as may distinguish it.

A horse not registered shall not be eligible to start, but the nominator shall be liable for such forfeits as may be due at the next ensuing date for declaration.

Sales to parties debarred from racing on race-courses under the authority of The Jockey Club shall have the effect of a declaration as if made on the declaring date next succeeding the sale; the forfeits then due must be paid by the vendor, who shall give immediate notice of such sale to the Secretary or Clerk of the Course where the race is to be run.

In produce races, or races for which nominations of foals are made, the nominator will be released from further liability by filing prior to the date of the first declaration stated in the conditions of the race, an accepted transfer of the entry, accompanied with all forfeits to date of such declaration.

FOR SEASON OF 1901. THE FOXHALL STAKES OF $15,000.

To close and name on Saturday, December 30, 1899; to run in 1901 (for foals of 1899 then two years old), of $250 each, h. f., or only $10 if declared by June 1, 1900, or $25 if declared by January 1, 1901, or $50 if declared by June 1, 1901; the Association to add an amount necessary to make the gross value of the race $15,000, of which $1500 to the second and $500 to the third; to the nominator of the first $1000 of $3000, or one of $10,000, 5 lbs. extra; those not having won $3000 allowed 15 lbs., of $2000 or two of $1500 allowed 7 lbs. Produce of mares or stallions which have not produced a winner prior to January 1, 1900, allowed 3 lbs. (if claimed at time of entry). Allowances accumulative. Colts to carry 122 lbs., geldings 119 lbs., fillies 119 lbs. Three-quarters of a mile.

N. B. By filing with the Secretary of the Brighton Beach Racing Association prior to January 1, 1901, an accepted transfer of the foal's entry, the original subscriber shall be released from liability as to the engagement of the horse, except for the original forfeit of $10.

If a subscriber or transferee die before the race the entry shall not be void, provided it be assumed by the then owner of the horse, and notice in writing to that effect is given to the Secretary of the Brighton Beach Racing Association within ninety days after such demise, together with the payment of all accrued liabilities.

And the following Stakes are now open to close and name on THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1900.

N. B.—Winner of a certain sum means winner of a single race of that value. Weight for age means standard weight, according to the Rules of the Course where the race is run, or its conditions. The Rules of Racing and subsequent amendments thereto adopted by the Jockey Club govern all races (except Hurdle Races and Steeplechases) run under the auspices of the Brighton Beach Racing Association.

Entries to either or all of the races advertised will be received only with the understanding, and on the agreement of the subscriber, that the provisions of Racing Rules 42 and 43 (hereto appended) form a part of and govern the contract.

Rule 42.—Rules of Racing.) Every person subscribing to a sweepstake, or entering a horse in a race to be run under these rules, accepts the decision of the Stewards on any question relating to a race, or to racing. Rule 43.—At the discretion of the Stewards of the Jockey Club, or of the Stewards, and without notice, the entries of any person, or the transfer of any entry, may be refused.

The Rules of Racing adopted by the National Steeplechase Association govern all Hurdle Races and Steeplechases run under the auspices of the Brighton Beach Racing Association.

In making up the Programme for the Meeting of 1900 the Stakes and Handicaps will be so arranged as to give owners an opportunity to run without sacrifice of interest.

The Association reserves the right to start any or all of the races announced in this Circular with or without the aid of a starting device.

Nominations should be addressed: Secretary, Brighton Beach Racing Association, 215 Montague Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

State Agricultural Society.

OCCIDENT STAKE OF 1902.

TROTTING STAKE FOR FOALS OF 1899.

Entries Close January 1st, 1899.

To be trotted at the California State Fair of 1902. Entries close January 1, 1900, with Peter J. Shields Secretary, at the office in Sacramento. One hundred dollars entrance, of which $10 must accompany the nomination; $15 to be paid January 1, 1901; $25 January 1, 1902; and 50 thirty days before the race. The Occident Cup, of the value of $100, to be added by the Society. Mile heats, three in five, to harness. First colt to receive Cup and six-tenths; second colt, three-tenths; and third colt, one-tenth of the stakes. Five to enter, three to start, otherwise N. T. A. Rules to govern.

Nominators are not held for full amount of entrance in case colts goes wrong; only forfeit payments made, which relieves you from further responsibility and declares entry out.

This stake is growing in value each year. In 1898 its value was $2525, in 1899 it was $2775. The Occident Stake of 1902 should receive more entries, and be the most valuable in its history.

Remember, the date of closing is January 1, 1900.

PETER J. SHIELDS, Secretary. A. B. SPRECKELS, President.

Once Used, Always Used.

(Trade Mark Registered.)

The greatest remedy in the world for all diseases of the foot of the horse. Best for road horses; best for carriage horses; best for work horses. Cures bad fet, keeps good feet sound. Cheapest because it goes farthest and does all that is claimed of it. It was used all the past summer by Tom Murphy, California's great track shoe on the Keating horses that won $29,000 on the Grand Circuit. If you see Murphy ask him about it. Or ask Dr. Boncher of Miss Logan, fame; Monroe Salisbury, Chas. Durfee or Pete Williams.

The largest and best located sales pavilion

Occidental Horse Exchange

721 HOWARD STREET,

Near Third — San Francisco.

Having fitted up the above place especially for the sale of harness horses, vehicles, harness, etc. it will afford me pleasure to correspond with owners regarding the Auction Sales which I shall hold at this place EVERY TUESDAY at 11 a. m. Arrangements can be made for special sales of standard bred trotting stock, thoroughbreds, etc. My turf library is the largest on the Coast, hence I am prepared to compile catalogues satisfactorily to my patrons. I take pleasure in referring to any and all for whom I have sold horses during the past two years.
