CLOSE OF DENVER MEETING.

Good Racing and Large Attendance Throughout the Two Weeks.

Monday, June 19th, was ladies' day at Overland Park, and the seating capacity of the grand stand was not sufficient to accommodate the crowd. The wagon race was the feature of the day and was a very closely contested horse race between Josie C., owned and driven by Charles N Roberts, secretary of the association, and Dr. Dunleavy, driven by J. K. Stewart. Josie seemed to have the most speed, but could not carry it. McHenry's roan mare, Rose Croix, was a heavy favorite in the betting for the 2:35 pace, but she was so lame that McHenry was forced to draw her after the first heat, and the local mare, Celeste R., won for the second time at this meeting.

The 2:15 trotters put up the longest heat of the meeting on Tuesday, and created a good deal of excitement, as most every driver in the race was accused of cheating before the race was finished.

McGuire was taken down from behind Kane after the second heat, and McAvoy took his place, but the change showed that the judges had taken down the wrong driver. To an outsider, it looked as if the winner, Our Lucky, was laid up in every heat that he did not win. The last heat was a hard fight between Our Lucky and Sister Alice, to within the distance, where the latter broke. The 2:15 pace proved to be an easy thing for the local horse, E. S., who sold favorite.

Everybody predicted that the 2:19 trot on Wednesday would be the best horse race of the meeting, and such proved to be the case. Success and Trilby P. sold about equal in the pools, and Ellert had a strong following.

In the first three heats, these three horses were bunched through the entire route, and in hard driven finishes all secured a heat apiece, and no heat was won by more than a head. Ellert showed great flights of speed, but was unsteady, and Success trotted a grand race and never once raised his nose, but Trilby P., with McHenry behind her, fairly out-trotted the others in the end.

The track was quite cuppy, and the time was therefore not fast. The great California pacer Coney, also driven by McHenry, came very near getting the flag in the first heat of the pace, through a series of bad breaks, but was pulled to a walk to let his field inside the distance in the heats won.

The races Thursday were almost featureless and the attendance was light. The 2:12 trot was a disappointment as a race, as both Querist and Altoka, the horses that were expected to give Phoebe Childers, the favorite, a close call, were unsteady and the California mare won in straights rather easily. The road race was no contest whatever.

Friday is an off day at Denver, yet there were over 1500 people passed through the gates of Overland park to see the races. Venus II had it all her own way in the 2:27 trot and reeled off three heats around 2:20 with as much ease as though she were indulging in an ordinary work out. There was considerable speculation on the place, many thinking Billy Dorfee's mare Mowitza would take that honor and played their money that way. After the first heat, however, she showed quite lame and Durfee very sensibly allowed her to go easy and Evradne and Teller fought the fight for second money.

In the 2:12 pace the black pacer E. S., by Thomas York, showed that he is a candidate for the 2:10 class very soon. His driver did not make a move for the first heat, which little Jennie McKinney took in 2:12, but in the next three E. S. went along easily and showed speed enough in the stretch to leave any horse behind that offered to give him an argument. Some of the horsemen at Denver are predicting that E. S. will get a mark as low as 2:05 before the season ends.

The fourteenth and best day of the race meeting at Overland Park saw a large attendance, but the two harness races on the program were almost farcical.

The free-for-all pace was no contest, and but for the standard-break that Coney persisted in making every heat of the 2:30 pace that race would have been little better, as Coney had ten seconds more speed than anything else in the race. Coney gave a great exhibition of speed, catching the field after recovering from his breaks in every heat.

The meeting has been a financial success in spite of the fact that the fields have been 50 per cent. smaller, on an average, than they were last year. The Keating string of ten trotters and pacers won just ten races during the meeting, and it is the general opinion of horsemen that ten greater horses were never before campaigned in one stable. Mr Keating is now in Mount Clemens, Mich., and owing to the condition of his health he will not be able to drive at all this season, and M. E. McHenry has been engaged to pilot the string in all their future engagements.

News From Oregon.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

There are four of old Tecora's colts sired by Altamont in training at the Irvington track.

The Vancouver Jockey Club offers a premium of $25 additional to the purs for any trotter or pacer that will lower the track record of 2:25 at the coming meeting. This will give the first horse $200 should he lower the record in the free-for-all trot or pace.

The horses at Irvington are all working into fine condition for the July races, while none have been worked up to their speed yet, some very good miles have been turned off in a very satisfactory manner. Bill Frazier again holds the record going a mile in 2:21, half 1:06. Deceiver has worked in 2:22, last quarter in 33 seconds. Alta Dell went in 2:23 flat, while John A. Crawford turned the circle in 2:22, last half 1:09, the green pacer Roy Day went a easy mile in 2:25, last half in 1:10, Kinmont, the promising trotter by McKinney, worked in 2:40, eighth in 17 1/2 seconds. This fellow is a counter-part of the old horse; and we predict for him a fast mark before he is retired from the turf. Claymont went the route in 2:40, and Mr. Erickson is very well pleased with the way he has of doing it. Casto says he is one of the best Altamonts he ever drove, and he has driven lots of them.

At a meeting of the State Board of Agriculture held in Salem this week among other things transacted was to arrange for the payment of all outstanding warrants issued by the old board. Attorney-General Blackburn rendered an opinion, in which he advises the secretary of the State that the Board of Agriculture has complied with the provisions of the law appropriating money to pay the State Fair to pay State warrants. Secretary of State Donbar will not begin paying the State Fair warrants for several days, as his clerks are busy computing the interest on the warrants presented and not paid for want of funds. This will be good news to the various horsemen who hold the majority of these warrants, and it places the new board on a clean balance sheet for the coming State Fair which now promises to be the best ever held in this State.

Dr. Powell Reeves writes: "Regarding the Cleveland sale, will say it was a great success, and everything offered that had quality brought a good price. My two three-year-olds brought $400 each, the two-year-old $270, the four-year-old $350 and the gelding $575. I don't see how the papers hack there made such a blunder in reporting the prices my horses brought."

BREEDING TO THE WINNERS.

Austin Saye Wice Men of the Past Have Not Followed This Star.

Breed to the winner, is an axiomatic epigram replete with sense and philosophy, and is a guiding star to the successful breeding of trotters," writes "Lee," an entertaining contributor to turf literature.

On its surface the advice "breed to the winner" appears to be a nugget of practical wisdom that will be endorsed by breeders generally, although the fact remains that the greatest trotters yet produced, the prized and petted champions from decade to decade, have not been the result of breeding to the winners. The wise men of the past have been guided by some other star than that now set in their sky by "Lee" and their philosophy and good sense have been found outside of the "axiomatic epigram" "breed to the winner."

In proof of this assertion, let us investigate briefly the winning honors secured by the ancestors of the fourteen trotters that during the past half-century have carried the world's trotting record from 2:30 to 2:03 1/2.

Lady Suffolk, Pelham and Highland Maid were responsible for the reduction of time for trotting a mile to 2:27, and not one of them had a sire or dam that ever won a race to sulky.

Flora Temple, the h-tailed daughter of Bogus Hunter, reduced time to 2:19 1/2, and neither her son nor her dam ever won a race.

Then Dexter dethroned Flora Temple, and neither Hambletonian, the sire of Dexter, nor Clara, his dam, ever won a race or attempted to win.

Following Dexter as a turf sensation, world-beater, greatest of all money-earners, came Goldsmith Maid, that for seven years, from 1871 to 1878, was mistress of the turf, and neither her sire nor dam ever saw a race.

Then Splan introduced in Rarus a new king, and if the sire of Rarus ever won a race, it was while hitched to a butcher's cart on the road, and his dam, Nancy Awful, was never accused of trotting a mile in three minutes.

St. Julian succeeded Rarus, and his sire, Volunteer, was never trained beyond a 2:40 gait, while his dam, Flora, by Harry Clay, was never hitched to a sulky.

In 1830 a new champion appeared. She was bred in old Kentucky, and in honor of the daughter of one of her owners, Miss Maud Stone, was named Maud S. The proprietor of famed Woodborn Farm, where Maud S. first nibbled blue grass, could not have been a philosopher nor influenced by the "guiding star" of "breed to the winners," for he bred Miss Russell, a non-winner, to Harold, that never even started in a race, and they were the parents of the famous high-wheel champion, Maud S. 2:03 1/2.

Maud S. lost her crown when Sunol, from California, trotted in 2:08 1/2. What race did Sunol's sire, Electioneer, ever win, or her dam, Waxana? None. The mistress from California resigned her honors to Nancy Hanks. Her sire, Happy Medium, was a winner to the extent of one race and a record of 2:32, while Nancy Lee, her dam, never started in a race.

Daniel Hayes, of Muscatine, Ia., neglected to consult the "guiding star," rejected "philosophy," and was so indifferent to the "axiomatic epigram," "breed to the winners," that he mated the two non-winners, Patronage and Atlanta, with the result of producing Alix 2:03 1/2 that for five years has retained champion honors against all comers that have been bred from winners.

Electioneer, bred from non-winners, made Palo Alto the great trotting nursery that it was and is to-day.

The greatest number of world's record breakers produced by any one mare was from Beautiful Bells, that never won a race. [Austin is mistaken here as Beautiful Bells won several races and took a record of 2:29 1/2 at Sacramento in 1872. —Ed. B. and S.]

The greatest producing mare of 2:30 performers is Minnehaha, with no race to her credit.

Arion, the highest priced trotter ever sold ($125,000), is by Electioneer, dam Manette, neither a winner.

Axtell, the trotting three-year-old wonder of 1889, sold for $105,000, came from non-winners.

For Allerton 2:09 1/2, the ex-champion stallion and one of the leading sires of to-day, Williams, his owner, refused an offer from Marcus Daly of $150,000, yet neither his sire, Jay Bird, nor his dam, Gussie Wilkes, won a record as low as 2:30.

The Hamlins of Village Farm fame, who, for years, have been the largest winners through the Grand Circuit, have produced their greatest performers from the two stallions Mambrino King and Chimes and the mare Estabella; a trio of non-winners.

Turning to the fast trotters with records of 2:10 or better, four-fifths of all are from dams that have never been raced. A partial list includes, aside from the champions already named: Azote 2:04 1/2, Fantasy 2:06, Benzetta 2:06 1/2, Bingen 2:06 1/2, Ralph Wilkes 2:06 1/2, Caid 2:07 1/2, William Penn 2:07 1/2, Eagle Flanagan 2:07 1/2, Klamath 2:07 1/2, Arion 2:07 1/2, Kremlin 2:07 1/2, Ryland T. 2:07 1/2, Grattan Boy 2:08, Martha Wilkes 2:08, Nightingale 2:08, Askey 2:08 1/2, Directum Kelly 2:08 1/2, Ooona 2:08 1/2, Pixley 2:08 1/2, The Monk 2:08 1/2, Trevillian, 2:08 1/2.

HORSES IN TRAINING AT VALLEJO.

Several Good Prospects for the Coming Campaign on the California Circuit.

There is one of the best tracks in California up at Vallejo, the navy yard town where reside two or three thousand of Uncle Sam's employes. Situate at the north end of the bay of San Francisco, 27 miles from this city, it can be reached by train or boat and the trip is a short and pleasant one. No healthier place for horses in training is on the map, and now that the race track property there has been cleared of debt and is in the hands of an energetic Board of Directors, next year should see the stalls filled with horses in training for the circuit.

Vallejo has a population of nearly ten thousand souls at the present time, and Uncle Sam's pay days, which occur twice a month, make it a lively burg. The race track is located about a mile directly east from the business centre of the town. While the buildings and stalls are of rough lumber, untouched by whitewash or paint brush, they are clean and comfortable and offer good accommodations for men and horses. The track is built on a tract of yellow clay, the best of all soils for that purpose, and is kept in good condition at very little expense. It never cups when watered at all, and can be fitted at any time for record breaking miles with a few days' notice.

Three Jo's comprise all the trainers at the track, viz.: Jo Edge, Jo Cuicello and Jo Smith. Mr. Edge is one of the oldest trainers in California, but only in years, as he does not look or act a day older than he did twenty years ago. He has but two horses at work, one a big, bay gelding named Hank that is a great prospect. Hank was foaled at Senator

Fair's Sonoma farm five years ago and is by Vasto 2:16½. He resembles his sire very much in size, color and conformation, but is a square trotter, while Vasto got his mark at the lateral gait. Hank has a regular Hambletonian head, has the very best of dispositions and knows nothing but trot, which he does in a manner that leads one to think he is one of the best green horses in California. His dam was by Wyoming Chief; second dam by George Wilkes; third dam by American Star. If Hank is as good as his looks, breeding and trials would indicate he should cut considerable of a figure when he starts in the races. The other horse in

Mr. Edge's string is a bay gelding by Eastwood, first dam by Almont; second dam by Green's Bashaw. This is a pacer, and although he has had scarcely any work he has shown his ability to go fast.

Joe Smith, the son of the veteran horseman Thos. Smith, has six horses in his string and all look well and are doing well. The handsome mare Dollican 2:15½, so well known on the California circuit, is in the very pink of condition and in fact never looked better or showed as much speed as now. She worked a very handy mile in 2:14 one day last week and can go faster. She will be campaigned all through the California circuit this year.

Another fast one in Mr. Smith's charge is Gaff Topsail, by Diable. This fellow is very speedy, but unless he acts better than he did last year he will not be often in the money. He had a way of holting for all the places that looked like openings in the fence and they called him the crazy horse. He is doing lots better in his work this year and may come to the races with improved manners. If he does Jo Smith will be entitled to a lot of credit and will certainly get a share of the purses. Gaff Topsail started in about fifteen races last year, got no mark but won second money twice.

A very handsome filly is Clara Washington, three years old, by Geo. Washington, out of Sarah Althes, by Dexter Prince. Clara is a beauty and can trot fast enough to be considered one of the good ones in the string.

All those who attended the harness meetings last year will remember Joe Selby, a big 17 hand gelding by Don L. that Jos Smith had in his stable. Jos Selby had speed, but failed to win a heat. Smith has a full brother to this fellow that is as unlike him as any brother could be. He is not 15 hands high, is short, thick set, with a neck like a hackney, and as handsome a mane and tail as a horse ever carried. They say he shows speed. He is called Donnybrook.

A promising mare Ruby by Wilson, dam Economy by Echo, and a two-year-old by McKinney out of Daisy S. by McDonald Chief complete this string. This last mentioned youngster will be heard from later on when the summaries of the colt races are published.

Jo Cuicello is the other Jo at the track. He has a string of eight and showed the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S representatives that he had speed on tap, even though it was Sunday when we called on him. He took out the handsome mare Maud owned by Chas. Newman, proprietor of the Richelieu Cafe of this city, and after warming her up worked her a mile in 2:25 in a gale of wind and pulled her up the last quarter to allow her owner who was driving his horse Butcher Boy to catch up with the procession, the Butcher having been carried to a break around the last turn. Maud repeated in 2:26 without being driven out, and the bursts of speed she showed whenever Cuicello urged her proved conclusively that this daughter of Anteeo Jr. is fast this year. It will be remembered that Maud won a race at the Ingleside track last September at the Golden Gate Park Driving Club's races, and got a mark of 2:28. She is a wonderfully intelligent animal and at her owner's bidding will do all the acts of a trick pony. Last year she was a bad puller when driven at speed, but Cuicello has broken her of that bad habit and she drives very nicely.

After Butcher Boy had performed the act of pace maker for Maud a couple of heats, he was given a faster mile, pacing it handily in 2:21½. He is in good shape and will be a starter at the Driving Association's races at Oakland on the 4th of July.

There are two youngsters bred on Corbett's San Mateo

Teachout's Gray Ghost.

In the summer of 1864 Sheridan's command laid along the Oxquan, in the far-famed Shenandoah valley. Confronting him was the army commanded by John Early. Commanding the cavalry was Gen. Wesley Merritt. His brigade commanders were such gallant spirits as Custer, Talbert, Gregg and Buford. Sheridan, through these able cavalry officers had succeeded in bringing the horses of his army to a high state of efficiency. It was ride all night and fight all day.

Along in August of the year mentioned a fresh consignment of horses was allotted the several cavalry commands. Among the number was a lithe, high strung, well bred gray gelding. He was at least three-quarters bred. The gelding caught the critical eye of Major Oscar L. Teachout as soon as he reached the horse camp, and he took possession of him on the spot. As luck would have it, a few days after the event narrated, Sheridan ordered the cavalry corps to make a reconnoissance up the valley toward Strasburg for the purpose of ascertaining what Early was up to, and what was the location of his troops, etc. Now, it so chanced that the Confederate cavalry, under the command of that most excellent soldier, Major General L. L. Lomax, now of the War Department, was seized with a desire to find out what Sheridan and his men were about.

And so it came to pass that the respective bodies of horse encountered each other a few miles west of Winchester, and there was a fight. All of the several combatants were on their mettle. It was charge and counter-charge, saber cut responding to saber cut, revolver shots to revolver shots, while the light artillery sang deep bass to the refrain of bullets and the clash of cutlery. For some little space of time the battle ran with an even flow. Neither side could gain a decided advantage. Finally, Merritt ordered up Custer's brigade of Michigan men. Over to the right he saw that the flank of Fitz Lee's brigade offered an easy mark. Giving the yellow-haired Michigan his instructions, Custer placed himself at the head of his men. "Forward!" shouted Custer. With sabers drawn they trotted forward. Saber sheaths rattled merrily, while the nerves of each man, as they neared the enemy, were keyed up to concert pitch. "Charge!" sounded the bugle, and straight and as swift as an arrow sped the brave and hardy riders toward the foe.

Lee saw what was coming, in due time. Wheeling his brigade into line, he quickly set his men in motion toward the foe. Heaven! but it was a superb sight. Suddenly a gray ghost shot out from Custer's ranks, bearing

Man and horse were prisoners at last, and when the Confederates fell back, utterly routed, Major Teachout was, perforce, carried with the ruck. But from what he now knew of his mount he felt that some day he would reap a sweet revenge. A few days later Sheridan crossed muskets with Early's infantry. It was a short, sharp, fierce fight, but Sheridan and his men won the day, and Early had to retreat up the valley.

The scene now shifts to Cedar Creek, thirty miles up the valley. Sheridan and Early again confront each other.

Early one morning in October the Confederate horse made an irruption on Sheridan's right flank. There is scurrying to and fro in the Federal camp, and Custer again is at the head of his men. The fight is hot, for revenge is sweet, and Lomax is a man who does not lie down under defeat. There is charging to and fro; there are cries of anguish and shouts of triumph commingled. Cannon bells and shells tear huge gaps through the ranks of friend and foe. Scores of horses run about wildly and riderless. Others, with empty saddles, respond to the bugle calls and charge in ranks against the enemy. Over and above all is smoke and confusion, and in the midst of all is death. There is a recoil, then a fresh onset, when out of the dense masses of Confederate gray darts a gray ghost, bearing on his back a man. Straight toward the Federal lines he flies like a bird and as true.

The "boys" see him coming, and break into shouts and laughter. They shriek, "Come home, old gray, come home!" He hears their cries and heads them. With nostrils extended, with eyes flashing, and with hoofs flashing fire from the flinty sod, on he comes, and, as he catches sight of the guerdon of his company, he makes straight for it and halts. From his back alights a much-chagrined officer amid tumultuous cheers. The gallant gray had pawed a major for a colonel.—L. D. Sale in Horse Review.

CHAS. NEWMAN'S ROAN MARE "MAUD" BY ANTEEO JR.

Stock Farm, under Mr. Cuicello's care. Ous is a brown gelding called Puerto Rico. He is a three-year-old by Sahle Wilkes, dam Mamie Kohl, by Steinway. The other is a two-year-old and a filly. She has been named Manilla, and is also by Sahle Wilkes, while her dam is Tabbie Rosenbaum, by Nutwood. This filly is Jo's pride and he thinks she will be a great trotter. She is getting very easy work and as she has plenty of natural speed will not be crowded.

A three-year-old son of Direct, out of a mare by Nutwood, is also in this string and is considered one of the prospects of the year.

Mr. Newman showed us the yearling by McKinney that he purchased at the Crabbs sale at Napa recently. The little iron gray fellow was very lame when sold and it was said he had been injured on the hock. Newman thought a McKinney colt was worth taking a chance on even though he was lame, and the colt went to his hid. On looking him over after purchase Cuicello discovered a wire nail about two inches long in the foot of the lame leg, pulled it out and treated the wound, which was evidently of several days' standing. It was a wonder the colt did not die of lockjaw, but he didn't and is now nearly well.

Mattie Menlo, a good looking mare by Menlo, is being worked so that she can be given a record, and Cuicello thinks 2:25 is within her reach though her feet are not in good shape. She is to be put to heading.

It is worth while to take the trip up to Vallejo on any work out day and we can assure those who do so that they will see speed worth holding a watch on. With the low price of hay, good climate and splendid facilities of the Vallejo track it should have five times the number of horses in training that are now there.

SLOWLY BUT SURELY the California circuit of fairs and race meetings is being formed and by August 1st the campaign of 1899 will be open in earnest. On Thursday last the newly appointed directors of the Santa Clara and San Mateo district held their first meeting in San Jose, effected an organization and resolved to hold a fair and race meeting during the week commencing September 25th. To-day the new board of directors of District No. 40, comprising Yolo county, will meet at Woodland to effect permanent organization, and begin immediate preparations for holding a district fair. It is very evident that while there has been an unavoidable delay in the making of announcements this year owing to the fact that the majority of the district boards had no existence until Directors were appointed by the Governor, there is to be a very good circuit after all. The principal question that is agitating horsemen is "Where and when will the circuit open?" They know that Grass Valley, Oakland, the State Fair, Stockton, San Jose, Fresno, Salinas and Los Angeles will hold meetings on the dates selected, and that every week after the State Fair will be occupied until the fall rains begin. The date of the Breeders' meeting, and whether Chico, Red Bluff, Willows, Santa Rosa, Petaluma and Woodland will hold fairs are questions that it will take another week to settle. At Santa Rosa to-day the directors of the Sonoma and Marin district association will meet to confer with representatives of the P. C. T. H. B. A. as to the holding of the Breeders' meeting during the week of their agricultural fair. If they agree to this the date will be fixed at the same time. Marysville's citizens are anxious to have the Breeders visit that town and, it is said, will offer the association a good cash bonus if the arrangements can be brought about. Harness racing should begin in California in the latter part of June every year. It is a sad commentary on the energy and progressiveness of our people to know that here, where horses are trained all winter, we do not begin racing until weeks after the tracks in the snowbound east have thawed and are being raced over. There is some excuse for the district boards this year, as after four years of hard times and no appropriations, during which the terms of nearly all the agricultural directors expired and were not renewed, the district fairs had become almost obsolete. Now that reorganization has taken place, new life will gradually be shown in all the counties and by next year there will be a regular boom in the old time county fair and race meetings. Meanwhile there should be a meeting given this year in every district in which it is possible for the directors to organize. There are four or five weeks of unclaimed dates yet open after the middle of July, and there is plenty of time left for an energetic board to claim any one of them and perfect all the necessary arrangements for the holding of a successful meeting.

MONDAY NEXT, JULY THIRD, is the day set for the closing of entries to $17,700 worth of trotting and pacing events which are to be decided at the August meeting of the Golden Gate Agricultural Association to be held at the Oakland track. It is a splendid program and there are races there for all classes from the free-for-all at $1500 to the 2:40 class at $1000. There are two of these $1500 races, and twelve at $1000 each. Besides these rich events, $500 is offered for a two-mile and repeat race for trotters and pacers of the 2:24 class; $500 each for three-year-old trotters and pacers; $300 each for two-year-old trotters and pacers, and two purses of $300 each for trotters and pacers under saddle. Few associations in California can afford to hang up such a generous amount of money, and horse owners should realize the fact that such generosity is worthy of reward and make entries accordingly. Where $1000 purses are given for as many classes as are provided by the Golden Gate people, it will certainly be bad luck or a poor horse that will keep an owner from winning something more than expenses. Of all the district associations the Golden Gate was the first and only one to come squarely out with a full program of harness purses and set a date for its meeting, so that horsemen would know just what they could figure on. For the prompt manner in which the directors met and organized after appointment, arranged and advertised a program, they are entitled to the gratitude of horse owners and trainers all over the Coast, and we believe that Secretary Joseph I. Dimond will realize when his mail is delivered to him on the days immediately following the 3d of July, that the horsemen have appreciated Golden Gate's generosity and responded with a list of entries that will be a worthy recognition of the splendid purses offered. We ask every man who owns or controls a trotter or pacer in training, whose eye scans this column before 12 o'clock Monday night, to turn to the advertising pages where the purses and all the conditions pertaining thereto are printed, and after looking them carefully over to make as many entries as he possibly can afford. Don't let a good, big purse be lost by reason of not having an entry therefor. Do not hesitate because your neighbor has worked his horse a second or two faster than yours. He may be going on three legs by the time the entries are opened and be out of training before the date of the meeting. Take a chance whenever you see it, and remember that you must have an entry before you can hope to win any part of a purse. Above all, don't forget the date of closing, which is Monday, July 3d, and that the name and address of the Secretary is Joseph I. Dimond, 306 Market street, San Francisco.

THE RUNNING EVENTS at the State Fair this year will be of a higher order of merit, if possible, than ever, and the class of races heretofore furnished by the State Fair management has been as good as any given on the leading tracks of the East. The ten stakes already advertised have more added money than on previous years, and the overnight purses to be given will be especially arranged to bring together the very best horses on the Pacific Coast. That the fields will be large is certain, and Sacramento will doubtless see the largest attendance for years when the fair opens. The harness purses are so much more liberal than those offered last year that harness horse owners are unanimous in the expressed intention of visiting the fair this year and making as many entries as possible. It need not surprise anyone if the Sacramento track record is broken this year by both trotters and pacers. Particular pains are to be taken to have the track in the very best possible condition for the meeting. We would advise owners of draught, general purpose and carriage stallions to exhibit them at the fair this year. The shortage of good horses in these classes is causing the farmers to look about already for stallions to mate their mares with next spring, and a ribbon won at the State Fair will aid greatly in placing a horse before the public in a favorable light.

FRESNO'S FOUR PURSES filed well, and all the leading training stables in the State are represented. It was decided at a meeting of the directors of the Fresno Trotting Association to hold the fair and races the week preceding the Los Angeles fair. This will make the shipment of horses very convenient and leaves the dates so that after the State Fair at Sacramento can come Stockton, San Jose, Salinas, Fresno and Los Angeles in the order named without any clash of dates, thus guaranteeing to each meeting a good list of entries and good racing. Los Angeles can therefore set her date late enough to secure the Keating and other fast strings from California that are campaigning in the East.

Marysville Wants the Meeting.

The Marysville Democrat of last Tuesday evening contained the following:

"The Pacific Coast Trotting Horses Breeders Association gave a race meeting in Marysville two years ago, when there were six days of splendid contests. Owners of horses came here from all parts of this State, and a few from Oregon. Three trotting or pacing races were on the program each day, and there were three or four extra contests besides. The best horses on the Coast were here and some fast time was made, every race being strictly according to rules and conducted on the square. This year the Association will hold one race meeting only, the time and place to be agreed upon at a meeting to be held in San Francisco next week. The entries for this meeting closed May 1st, and the list is the largest and best that has been received by it for several years. There are entries from every part of California, also from Oregon and Nevada. There are from seven to twenty-five entries to each race, the purses are $1000 for each principal trotting or pacing contest. There will be at least three regular races each day, or eighteen for the week, making this one of the best racing events ever held in California. To hold this meeting in Marysville will bring several hundred owners, trainers and drivers of horses here, besides many others who take an interest in the sports. D. E. Knight of this city is president of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horses Breeders Association, and the members are favorably inclined to Marysville for the meeting. They like the track and the treatment received here two years ago, and it is believed they can be induced to come again. Mr. Knight will donate the use of the track and buildings, and also pay the fee of National Trotting Association. If the citizens will subscribe $1200 to defray the extra expense necessary to come, Mr. Knight will try to have the Association meeting here.

Nico Died From Pneumonia.

"The news of the death of Nico will bring regret to every lover of the harness horse," writes A. A. Austin in the Boston Herald. "Naturally the loss falls heaviest on his owner, J. Malcolm Forbes, but the entire turf world suffers, as a trotter has been swept away who gave every promise of covering a mile faster than the peerless Alix."

"Trotters of the caliber of Nico cannot be spared. Just how much speed the gelding possessed will never be known for he never was asked to move a rod at his limit."

"Only a few days ago he stepped an eighth in 15 seconds hitched to a cart, and Harry Titer had not even clucked to him."

"It is hard for a man to lose a champion, but Nico's death means more to Mr. Forbes than that, as he bred the horse, which made the success all the more gratifying as it will make his decease all the harder."

"Mr. Forbes is a sportsman—a true one in the racing game has never known—and he will take his loss in the easiest possible manner and trust that at his farm in Ponkagoag there is a youngster who will prove faster even than Nico."

"Nico was a bay gelding, foaled in 1894, sired by Arion, dam Maggie Sultan, 2:30, by Sultan; second dam Maggie Prescott, by Jim Monroe. He had a record of 2:03 1/2, made last September at Louisville. His death was caused by pneumonia, from which he had been suffering only a few days."

CAPT. BEN E. HARRIS has 20 saddle and standard bred harness horses, just brought from Merced, for sale at Kull's Stables, 226 Fourteenth street, where they can be seen for a few days.

Monaco as a Sire.

Report reaches Palo Alto Stock Farm that the bay filly Leora (3), by Mendocino 22607, dam Norah (dam of Cendaida 2:26½ and grandam of Betonice (p. 3) 2:10½, Amigo 2:16½, and Miss Maude 2:29½), by Messenger Duroc, recently worked an easy mile in 2:19.

This three year-old filly was purchased by Col. Isaac Goff, of Providence, R. I., at the Fesig sale held in New York, Merch, 1898, for $85.

The statement made in catalogue in regard to this filly read: "Broken double end single. Showed speed in Kindergarten, and with what little development she has had in breaking, shows speed in harness." The statement made regarding the sire of this filly, Mendocino, read: "The sire of this filly Monaco (3) 2:19½ is one of the most promising of young sires. His produce are pure getted and develop speed rapidly." In placing Mendocino before the public in such laudatory terms Palo Alto made no mistake, for the young sire is destined to make a great one.

In 1894 he had two foals, one a filly out of Bella Campbell, by Gen. Benton, was sold undeveloped and is used for a roadster, and is a good one. His other foal was the bay colt Galeno, by Gen. Benton. This colt showed a one-half as a two-year-old in 1:09, a mile in 2:29; as a three-year-old, mile in 2:13½, was sold at Cleveland, and shortly after won his first start, getting a record of 2:32½, and is known to be a very fast horse.

The season of 1894 Mendocino was leased to the late Hon. John Bogge. What his produce is for 1895 but little is known. Two that have been trained report says can heat 2:20.

In 1896 Mendocino had five foals. Idolita (2) 2:21½, sold for $4800 in May '98, and later on won the New England Futurity for two year olds getting his record in a third heat.

Lenora, b f, dam Norah, by Messenger Duroc, has worked a mile this year in 2:19.

Mouelle, h f, dam Lizzie, by Wildidle, sold at New York March 1898, broke double and single, but undeveloped. No report as yet.

Miramonte, h f, dam Miss Knox, by Knox Jr., with very little handling could show a 2:20 gait, was sold at Cleveland in May last.

Esperita, ch f, dam Sprite, is the last foal of the famous broodmare, handled a little as a two year old showed a quarter in 40 seconds.

In 1897 Mendocino had nine foals, and, with one exception, are as promising a lot of two-year-olds as ever was seen on the place. To get one like Montell's, the two-year-old son of Beautiful Bella, would be a great honor, but when all of a seasons crop show speed and high form the success of the sire is very pronounced.

RIO ALTO.

Prince Gift 2:12 Will Pace.

J. B. Iverson, of Salinas, owner of the trotting gelding Prince Gift 2:12, does not propose that his horse shall be kept out of the races this year. When the Breeders Association offered a purse of $1500 for free for all trotters to be contested at its meeting this year, Prince Gift 2:12 and Boodia 2:12½ were the only entries. For some reason or other the horse men seemed timid about entering in any class that was a second or so below the record of their horses, consequently the free for all failed to fill. Mr. Iverson, concluding that this might be the case all over the circuit, sought a way to start his horse, and as he has always shown a natural inclination to pace, decided to put him to work at that gait. Prince Gift has many times shown that the lateral gait is as handy for him as swimming is to a fish, and it is very likely that will be able to get a lower mark pacing than his record of 2:12 at the trot. Prince Gift will be entered liberally in the pacing events that are not already closed.

One of the busiest men in town at the present time is Dr. Ira Barker Dalzell, the well known veterinary dentist. During the past month he has been on the go from morning till night answering calls for his services to attend to the mouths of horses in all parts of the State. Dr. Dalzell has recently put in order the teeth of 180 horses belonging to the firm of McNah & Smith of this city, and has also looked after the horses of the Baywood stud, the property of Mr. John Parrott of San Mateo. It is astonishing what a change a little dentistry will work on a horse whose teeth are bad. He will within a few weeks change from a "poor skinny beast" to a slick, fat animal and keep in condition on much less feed. Every horse ought to have his teeth attended to at least once a year. Dr. Dalzell is an enthusiastic member of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association and a very fair picture of his favorite road horse Bohhy J. appears on our first page to day.

Among the original entries to the O'Kane Challenge Cup race, which is to be decided at the Oakland track next Tuesday, was a mare entered by Dr. G. W. Leek and given the name Dentina. She will not be allowed to start, the Golden Gate Park Driving Club having learned that she was not eligible, not being owned by Dr. Leek and Dentina not being her right name. The starters for the cup will be R. F. Gallagher's Admiral Dewey, J. C. Ohlandt's Harvey B., W. C. Hamerton's Prince Howard and J. G. Chesley's Bohhy P.

FOURTH OF JULY RACING.

Golden Gate Park Driving Association Will Give a Grand Matinee at Oakland Track.

For the person who loves horses and enjoys good contests between them, the most pleasant place to spend the coming national holiday will be the splendid property of the California Jockey Club across the bay. On that occasion the Golden Gate Park Driving Association will have control of the track and has already prepared a program of six events which will not only be hotly contested from start to finish, but bring out many fast horses and amateur race drivers of San Francisco who are only seen in races on occasions of this kind. There is scarcely a member of this association but is an enthusiastic road driver, and the ocean roads and park speed track are almost daily the scene of hot contests between horses driven by them to cart, bike, road wagon or any vehicle to which they may happen to be hitched.

The cup race will be one of the features of the day's sport and as will be seen from the photo engraving herewith, the prize is a magnificent one. It is of solid silver and stands 9 inches in height exclusive of the base, beautifully engraved and chased. Mr. Frank O'Kane is the donor.

The O'Kane Challenge Cup.

The races will be called promptly at 1:30 P. M., on Tuesday. The famous reinsman, Mr. Budd Dohla, has been engaged as starter, and prominent members of the association will act as judges. Dr. Ira B. Dalzell will act as marshal, with Mr. J. Dinne as assistant. The entries to the different events are as follows:

A DISPATCH from Galesburg, Ill., June 18th, says: Much interest has been aroused here in the Supreme Court decision remanding the case of Frolich against Seacord, of the Williams race track. This track and appurtenances were procured through the sale of lots to Galesburg people and were to belong to Williams in case he maintained racing meats and a fair three years. At the end of three years he claimed he had fulfilled his contract, and the trustees and committee for the lot owners turned the property over to him. Soon after he sold the property to Fred Seacord. Sol Frolich then instituted proceedings in the Circuit Court averring that Williams had not fulfilled his contract and that the land was the lot owners'; but was beaten. It is said that the Supreme Court also ordered the Seacord deed set aside.

The Board of Trade will be asked to assist in promoting an exhibit of agricultural and mechanical products. It was decided to join the National Trotting Association.

Woodland May Hold a Fair.

WOODLAND, June 29.—Governor Gage has commissioned the directors designated by the organizers of Agricultural District, No. 40, and Chairman Britt has called a meeting for permanent organization on Saturday. The intention is to begin immediate preparations for holding a district fair.

The Buylee Wonder.

"A huylee wonder," says Swipe, in the Horse Review, "is a guy who tries to buy a very good horse he gets next to and never buys nothin'. They's one of 'em in every town in America. They always want a horse worse than anybody, but they're so leary of gettin' cheated that they never buy. You couldn't sell John Nolan and Searchlight to a huylee wonder for two hundred hucks if you'd wrap 'em up in tin foil, and throw in a pink silk night gown for both of 'em. The funniest thing about huylee wonders is they've got the dough. I've never seen one that wasn't lousy with silver, an' they don't care no more for it than I do for me two eyes. They's plenty of huylee wonders that let loose of most two hits a day for postage stamps to write to people what's advertised horses for sale in the horse papers. They can write you a swell letter, too, an' hand you a hunch of con that makes you think you've hooked a buyer every time, an' when you waste eighty cents' worth of good ink and twenty dollars' worth of time tellin' 'em and showin' 'em about a horse it always takes 'em two weeks to decide that ha don't suit. A huylee wonder always lats you down easy, too. Ha swallows all the conversation you can use and never gets weary, an' when the two weeks is up ha says ha guesses ha won't buy 'cause he don't like the way the horse's third dam is bred, or he don't like the color of his eyebrows. Of course, ha likes the horse all the time, but ha's so 'fraid ha might get the worst of it that ha passes you up for the next sucker that's got one to sell."

As WILL be seen by the announcement of The Oregon Railroad and Navigation Co., special rates will be made on horses to be shipped to Oregon by steamers of their line. The many advantages of steamer travel for horses are so well known that discriminating horsemen always take advantage of this mode of conveyance when possible. See advertisement.

Sulky Notes.

FRESNO will hold a great meeting.

SAN JOSE'S fair opens September 25th.

OAKLAND entries close next Monday.

THE colt by Arion, dam Hourie 2:17, is a natural pacer.

GOOD purses attract many entries in California this year.

MANY District boards are afflicted with "the slows" this year.

THE O'Kane cup will be raced for at Oakland on the 4th of July.

IN one of her races at Denver Phoebe Childers stepped to the half in 1:06.

THE Sidney horse, Dr. Leek 2:11½, will be campaigned in the East this year.

P. C. T. H. B. A. DIRECTORS meet next week to select date for their meeting.

CALIFORNIA harness racing will begin in earnest about the first week in August.

CHARLES MARVIN looks to see St. Andrew, 2:13½, by St. Bel, heat 2:10 this season.

ALIX 2:03½, the champion mare, will be bred to Directum 2:05½, the champion stallion.

ANDY McDOWELL has a two-year-old filly by Directum that has shown him a half in 1:10.

ROAD horses handled and for sale. Orders taken. Address D. R. Misner, 1309 Fulton street, city.

SAN JOSE'S fair and race meeting will be held September 25th to 30th inclusive, which is the week following Stockton.

THOS. GREEN, of Dublin, expects to have a string of trotters out next year, and there will be several Directums in it.

IT is said that Rose Croix, Myron McHenry's Jay Bird mare stepped a mile in 2:08 at the pace before she went lame at Denver.

SUBURBAN FARM, home of Directum, has added that stallion's only standard performer, Jumme 2:20½, to its racing stable.

CALIFORNIA horses in training are nearly all ready to race right now and it is unfortunate that the circuit opens so late this year.

LENNA N. 2:05½ has been returned to her owner in New York. She is safely in foal to Star Pointer but may be trained this year.

BOB, the dam of Klamath 2:07½, foaled June 20th, a big, handsome bay colt by McKinney 2:11½ and has been bred back to that horse.

ELWOOD WALTER, aged thirteen, drove his father's huggy mare, of the same age, a mile in 2:35 on the Pleasanton track one day last week.

IN one of his races at Denver, Coney, the McKinney four-year-old, paced to the half in 1:03, where he was pulled up and jogged in lengths ahead of his field in 2:14½.

ATHANIO 2:10, by Jono, won the great spring heat race at Vienna, Austria, recently in 2:12½ and 2:12½, defeating Senator A., Boehdill, Colonel Kuser, Countess Eve and Bismark.

IF on awakening in the morning you find that "Dark Brown" taste in your mouth, it can quickly be changed to a cool and sweet one by a libation of JACKSON'S NAPA ECODA.

ALTO VELA, a bay stallion by Electioneer, out of Lorita 2:22½, by Piedmont, will be a starter at the Golden Gate Park Driving Association races at Oakland on July 4th. He was foaled in 1888.

W. HOGABOOM, who is training D. E. Knights' horses at Marysville, will have a string of at least six for the circuit. Diamond 2:18½, Dos Minutos 2:30 and a McKinney two-year-old are particularly promising.

GRANITE, the large bay gelding by Deputy, that started in Denver at the meeting which closed last Saturday, is thought to be good enough for free-for-all material. Granite was trained last season by Chas. Jeffries, who gave him a record of 2:22½ at Portland.

AT the recent Cleveland sale E. A. Hyde of Hartford, Conn., bought the two-year-old colt Dex Russell by Dexter Prince out of Gertrude Russell 2:23½, sister of Palo Alto and Gov. Pascheco, for $225, and last week he sold him to J. H. Bronson of New Haven, Conn., for $1,000.

AURELIA, by Electioneer, dam by Greenlander Girl 2:14½, recently foaled twins by Governor Pascheco, full brother to Palo Alto 2:03½. But one lived and it is a strong, healthy colt. This is the fourth time this mare has foaled twins since she was owned by W. J. White of Rockport, Ohio.

SECRETARY KENNEY, of the Louisville Driving and Fair Association, has issued a handsome stake book, containing the list of entries for all the stakes to be decided at the September meeting. The announcement is made that fifteen liberal purses will be given in addition to these events, and that entries to the same will close September 9th.

THE seventeen-year-old stallion California, by Sultan, out of Minnehaha, was killed by an electric car near Plainfield, Ill., last week. He was the sire of eight performers including Caliente 2:15½ and Lodina 2:18½.

THE well known starting judge A. H. Merrill says that experience has taught him that it would be in the interest of all concerned to have the starter isolated. Then he would be able to watch out for himself, and not be handicapped by outside interference.

WHEN P. J. Williams was at Colorado Springs he sold his Silver Bow colt, California, to Judge Colburn of that place for $2500. California was looked upon by the horsemen here on the slope as one of the best prospects in the country. He is a large and very handsome colt and a workout mile in 2:17 at Colorado Springs showed that he has plenty of speed.

DAN MISNER has sold the bay horse Athavie, by Clovis, out of Athalie, dam of Athadon 2:10, to Mr. J. H. Jones, an Eastern gentleman, who is spending the summer in California. The horse will probably be left in Misner's hands and campaigned through the circuit. Algregon 2:11, has been leased by Mr. Misner for this season and will start in his class at nearly all the meetings. He is in fine shape and shows as much speed as he ever did.

M. D. HATCH, of Novato, has resigned from his position as a director of the Fourth District Fair Association and Frank Munter, of Santa Rosa, has been appointed in his stead by Governor Gage. The representation from the various cities in the district is now as follows: Santa Rosa four, Petaluma one, Healdsburg one, San Rafael one, Bolinas one. The meeting of the directors will be held to-day to receive proposals from the various cities.

A FAKE foot race came off at Pleasanton a few days ago and like most of these affairs ended in a row. Monroe Salisbury saw the crowd at the track and went down to see what caused it. He got there just in time to see a pistol drawn and afterwards remarked: "I'll bet from the gait I took in getting back to the stalls I could beat any of those chaps that were trying to run. That class of people have no business coming out here any way and if I owned the track not one of them would step their feet upon the premises."

HAW PATCH, bred a good deal like Electioneer, his dam being Harry Clay, is dead. He was owned near Rossville, Ind., where he got a number of good colts from Rush county mares. His best one is Magnolia 2:09½, a mare which in her time cut quite a figure on the turf with horses of her class. She was fast and good gaited like most of the get of Haw Patch. Haw Patch was not a remarkably sure horse and in consequence never got but few colts. At death was twenty-seven years of age, which is a good, ripe old age for a horse.

ABOUT the best trotting performance of the season was made at Glenville track, Cleveland, recently, when Rose Turner won her race in 2:14½ at the Driving Club's matinee. Harry Darlington, her owner, drove her and getting away on the trot he went head and head with the sprinting gelding Dean to the quarter in 32½ seconds and to the half in 1:05. The same clip was maintained to the three-quarters, but at the head of the stretch the gelding faltered under the terrific clip and Rose Turner came home in comfort. The mare has a sulky record of 2:13½.

JOHN R. GENTRY is going in great form in his preliminary work. He turned the Detroit track last week in 2:06½, the fastest mile of the season, taking the last quarter at a two minute gait. Andrews believes his charge was never in such fettle as at present and has visions of sending the little round red fellow at the Blue Ribbon meeting for the record of 1:59½ held by Star Pointer. Gentry is a great public favorite, and thousands of people have never abandoned their belief that he would yet set the record, and this news from Detroit will be very pleasing to them.

A GOOD time to select judges for race meetings is quite a while before the meeting takes place. The judges should not be selected unless competent to fill the position and by taking plenty of time to select them the heat can be had. Whereas if time is put off until day meeting is called frequently poor men will have to be taken. Too much care can not be exercised in this important matter of selecting judges. It means everything to men racing horses. Poor judges frequently get men into troubles from which it some times takes them years to get out. A man not familiar with rules should never accept a position as judge.

A RECENT invention which is accredited to a clergyman of Atlantic City is a pavement made from salt grass or sedge such as is found in the meadows of New Jersey. The grass is first treated by a process to make it resist the action of water and prevent decay. Then by means of hydraulic pressure it is made into blocks weighing forty pounds to each cubic foot. They are said to be as solid as granite and will not wear smooth like asphalt. If the new pavement has all the virtues that are claimed for it its inventor has in it a gold mine. Having little or no resonance the clatter of hoofs and the noise of heavy trucks will be done away with and the roar of the city will have to a great extent stifled.

SILKWOOD 2:07 is being trained to do the guideless act and reports from Santa Ana ara to the effect that he worked a mile that way last Wednesday in 2:08, the last half in 1:01, last quarter in 29 1-5 seconds. He ought to be quite an attraction if campaigned as a guideless pacer this year, and there are many who believe he could come close to the two minute mark hitched to a hike and handled by a first class trainer.

ANOTHER of California's well known horse breeders has "passed over the divide." John P. Rodehaver died at his home near Petaluma on Sunday, June 18th, of Bright's disease. He came to California early in the fifties and had resided for long years at the home where he died. Mr. Rodehaver was a native of Virginia and about 60 years of age. Up to a few years ago Mr. Rodehaver was a regular exhibitor of road and general purpose horses at our district and State Fairs.

THE grandest looking colt on W. J. White's Two Minute Stock Farm at Rockport, Ohio, is a yearling colt by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, out of Lea 2:18½, sister to Cupid 2:18 and Adonis 2:11½. Mr. White intends this fellow to take the place of Guy Wilkes as his premier sire when the old horse is unfit for service. It is wonderful how Guy Wilkes has improved since coming into Mr. White's possession. His improved condition last year was the subject of much comment, but this season he looks like a two-year-old and is pounds heavier than ever, while his foals are said to be the largest and best looking lot he has ever sired. Lea looks so well that Mr. White will campaign her the first year she misses getting in foal.

STARTING JUDGE FRANK WALKER is filled with enthusiasm about the prospects of this being the greatest season of light harness racing ever seen. In an interview he recently said he never saw such large crowds and so much interest manifested in early meetings as he saw at the Baltimore spring meeting, which he takes as an indication of what it will be when the season advances and the big meetings begin. He looks to see the field of starters larger at all the leading tracks than are usually seen, from the fact that payments are being kept up by the jockeys more generally, and there are fewer declarations, which certainly promises larger fields of starters. "Another thing," said Mr. Walker, "if the time made at the early meetings is an indication, there will be some wonderfully fast work at the big meetings, when the season will be more propitious and the horses of a higher class. There are more horses with low records to face each other, which ought to put the trotting record a shade closer to two minutes, if that mark is not reached, before the season closes."

ALAMONT, the leading sire of 2:10 performers, will make a summer and fall season at Alameda, limited to 20 mares, at $40 the season. This great horse at twenty four years of age is in full strength and vigor. Last year he served 23 mares. Of these 18 now have colts at foot and a finer looking lot of youngsters it would be hard to find anywhere. Altamont certainly is a wonderful producer of speed and it is only within the past few years that he has had access to a high class lot of mares. He has sired six with records below 2:10, something no other stallion living or dead has ever accomplished. During the past three years some of the best mares in California have been bred to this great son of Altamont and it is more than probable that the colts and fillies resulting therefrom will add faster records to his roll of honor than any now there. The get of Altamont are all good sized and have quality in a superlative degree, no doubt to the high class thoroughbred blood in his veins. Altamont is in Mr. J. M. Nelson's stables at the Alameda track and those interested in breeding can see him there any day. At the low fee of $40 the twenty mares to which he will be limited ought to be booked very soon.

JOHN SPLAN has received a letter from Mrs. McPhee, of Vienna, Austria, who says she has refused $3000 for the stallion Dick Miller, son of Gambetta Wilkes. It is likely that this horse is the coming European trotter, and nearly all Europeans interested in the harness sport are of the same opinion. Last year he was started in March in Hamburg and won five straight races. The weather being bad he caught pneumonia and was not started again. In his first race this season he made Mahel Money penny and Damera look cheap, and as early as May 5th had trotted a heat in 2:15. Micka Dwyer, who has just returned from Europe, having taken over Miss Sidney and Minoie Birchwood, says the stallion is the sensation of Europe. He says Athanio is the best of the present free-for-alls at a mile, and that the brown stallion's miles in 2:12½ and 2:12½ on May 4th were marvelous performances. Col. Kuser still remains the champion at a distance. Qua Allan, the only trotter that ever beat 2:10 in Europe, burst open his hoof early in the season, and Dwyer does not think the horse will be fit to start this year. The trotting of the $5000 Austrian Derby was marked by a sensational incident. George Bodimer, of East Aurora, N. Y., who had the best colt in Europe, won it with Blasel, son of Warren. In the race, however, he fouled Ben Tappan and his colt was not only disqualified, but the Austrian association expelled Bodimer. In 1897 Bodimer made a disastrous campaign in Ohio with the trotter McKioley. He shortly afterward got on with an Austrian stable and was having great success up to his unfortunate event.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

The Great Trial.

A son of Hanover won the $20,000 Trial Stakes for two year olds at Sheephead Bay last Saturday. The distance is the Futurity course, and the previous winners since the inauguration of the race in 1894, have been Waltzen, Hand-spring, Winged Foot, Hamburg, Jean Beraud and this year David Garrick. Every other year since it was first run, the staka has been captured by a son of the great Hanover whose death occurred a few months since. There were seventeen starters in the race this year, including the $10,000 colt Yellow Tail that finished fifteenth. The start was a good one made without delay, the starter catching them all in motion on the first break and in good order. Virginia Earle and Mesmerist were first to get out of the bunch, and they ran locked to the turn into the main track, when Mesmerist went to the front, leaving the filly as if she had been standing still. Erwin made a bid for honors and ran in second place for a time, but she soon fell back among the half dozen of possible place horses. Mesmerist then looked like a sure winner, when David Garrick came from behind him like a flash and before the gasping crowd had got over the shock he was three lengths in front and won by that margin.

Great Trial $20,000, Futurity course—David Garrick 115 (O'Leary), 12 to 1, won by three lengths; Mesmerist 102 (O'Connor), 7 to 5, and 4 to 5, second; Withers 115 (Wilson), 30 to 1 third. Time, 1:12-2-5. Brigadier, Erwin, Radford, Virginia Earle, Mark Cheek, McMeekin, Oneck Queen, Modrine, His Royal Highness, Missionary, Stuart, Yellow Tail, Water King and Lost Chord also ran.

David Garrick, is a two-year-old, by Hanover, out of Peg Woffington, and is owned by John E. Madden. He has been running only this season and has participated in but few races at Morris Park, Gravesend and Sheephead Bay, winning none, however, and consequently attracting little attention. His first race was at Morris Park on May 6th, when, with Sims up, he ran in the Juvenilia stakes of five furlongs for two-year-olds. The race was won by Doublet in 1:00 1/2, David Garrick finished fifth. He was also fifth in his second race at Morris Park on the 17th of the same month. The distance was four and a half furlongs, the winner being His Royal Highness, and the time 54 seconds.

David Garrick tried for the Tremont stakes of six furlongs at Gravesend on the 15th inst., but came in at the tail end, Maribert winning in 1:15. Two days later he finished ninth in a race of five and a half furlongs at Sheephead Bay, which was won by Prince of Melbourne in 1:09 2-5.

Mr. Madden paid Thomas McDowell $5000 cash for David Garrick when the colt was a weanling.

Wrecked by the Betting Fever.

Michael F. Dwyer, once the heaviest player on the race tracks, and a man who was said to have no nerves that could be shattered by the game, has been an object of pity to many of the racegoers during the Brooklyn meeting, says a New York paper. He has aged very greatly since the last racing season, and instead of looking to be the Junior of the once famous racing firm of Dwyer Brothers, as he is, looks to be many years the senior of his brother, Philip J. He occupied a seat under the shadow of the judges' stand, where he held his consultations with his betting commissioner, Mr. Hayman. Mr. Dwyer's former commissioner, in the days when he was in his prime, Joseph Vendig, now makes a hook on his own account, and, according to the chatter of the ring, it is a profitable one. He probably has much more money than has his old principal, who now bets hundreds where he used to bet thousands. Mr. Dwyer is very feeble, and is barely able to get about without assistance. His face is haggard, his nerve gone, and his interest in the sport, once so intense, is now, to all appearances, only that which attaches to the winning or the losing of the small wagers he makes. He cannot get about to the paddock to see what the horses look like, and does not watch them in their preliminary work, as he always used to do before a race was run. His appearance is pitiable in the extreme, and there was hardly an hour in the day devoted to racing when one could not hear coming from a group of gossiping men, the expression, "Poor Mike!"

The game has certainly been too much for him. He never looked very strong or rugged, but he seemed to have perfect command over his nerve, and for years showed none of the mental strain under which he must have been when the horses were running for thousands of his dollars. With financial reverses and the slipping away of his "Dwyer luck," there came stomach troubles and insomnia, from which he has been a sufferer since the tide seemed to turn against him. Then followed the physical collapse which is now so evident to every one who sees him, a gray-haired, drawn, crippled, and prematurely old man. As he was never a drinking man, but, on the contrary, very abstemious, and always regular in his habits and about his eating, there is only one conclusion drawn by the racing men, and that is that the strain under which he lived for so many years was responsible for his break-down now when he should be in the prime of life. Never a man to make friends or attract people to him, he would now hear more words of kindness and regret spoken about him, could he listen to what people say, than at any time in his long and troubled career on the turf.

St. Louis Won by Prince McClurg.

There was not much class in the St. Louis Derby this year although it was worth $7000. Prince McClurg, the winner, seemed to have all he could do to defeat Sir Gatian by a head although the latter had started in a race at a mile and seventy yards but an hour previous and won. There were eight starters in the Derby. Streamer was favorite and W. Overton second choice.

To a fair start Chancery took the lead, followed by Streamer and Leo Plauter, the others strung out. At the quarter W. Overton assumed command, Streamer and Be True close up, the others hunched. At the judges' stand W. Overton still led by a half length, but Billy House had displaced Streamer, who led Be True a head. The others were stretched out for a distance of six lengths. At the three-quarters Sir Gatian and Prince McClurg made a play for the fighting leader. Frost shook up the former sharply and he responded with a great burst of speed, passing W. Overton as though he was anchored, and followed by the Prince led the way into the homestretch by three lengths, Streamer being a half-length behind the son of Wadsworth.

At the sixteenth pole Southard brought Prince McClurg up with a rush, and getting on even terms with the flying Sir Gatian a royal battle to the wire ensued, the Prince winning in the last jump by a short head. Chancery came very strong at the finish and got within the money, three lengths ahead of Billy House.

St. Louis Derby, value $7000, sweepstakes for three-year-olds, mile and a half—Prince McClurg, 125 (Southard), 4 1/2 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Sir Gatian, 102 (Frost), 30 to 1 and 10 to 1, second; Chancery, 107 (Thorpe), 10 to 1 and 5 to 2, third. Time, 2:40. Billy House, Streamer, W. Overton, Leo Plauter and Be True finished as named.

SADDLE NOTES.

LOVDAL is again in training and may start at the State Fair.

SLOAN rode three stake winners in one day at Newmarket this week.

STARTER J. B. FERGUSON has applied for stable room for four horses at Hawthorne.

IN the Coney Island handicap Bendoran ran the first half-mile in 47 2/5 seconds. He had his field beaten at that point.

JEAN BERAUD is in steady work, and no further trouble is anticipated from the splint which necessitated his being stopped ten days ago.

JOCKEY GEORGE ODOM has signed a contract to ride for Sydney Paget and William C. Whitney for three years, beginning next season, at a salary of $10,000 a year.

WHATER LOU ran a mile in 1:39 1/2 at Chicago last Saturday, beating Hugh Penny and Del Paso. The same day Peccola won a mile and an eighth selling race in 1:52.

A GREAT match race is to come off at New York to-day between May Hempstead and Admiration. It is at a mile for $5000 a side and $5000 added by the association, each mare to carry 107 pounds.

BYRON McCLELLAND, six year old son of Hindoo, ran away at Sheephead Bay last Wednesday, threw his rider and then bolted into a fence. A rail was driven through his body killing him instantly.

THE famous Miss Woodford, by imp. Billet, dam Farcy Jane, by Nell Robinson, died at the Haggin ranch on May 26th from the effects of a paralytic stroke. She leaves a fine filly foal by imp. Goldfuch.

UP to June 5th, imp. The Sailor Prince stands third, and Sensation fourth, in the list of winning sires in England. Orma heads the list. The Sailor Prince and Sensation are both owned by P. Lorillard, Rancocas Stud, N. J.

THE Lstonia Spring Prize, one and an eighth miles for three year olds, was run last Saturday in a blinding rain storm, which came on just as the horses went to the post. Malaise an outsider at 20 to 1, got off in the lead and was never headed.

THE racing stewards, both East and West, are rightfully inflicting severe penalties upon riders who abuse their mounts. At Gravesend Danny Maher was fined $100 for needlessly flogging St. Clair at the start for the first race, and at St. Louis Charlie Thorpe incurred a deserved punishment for the rough handling of a mount.

THE Fair Grounds (St. Louis) judges Thursday rescinded their action in the case of Devin, the lightweight set down Monday for his ride on Air Blast. He was called into the stand and cautioned that he must take the chances which every other boy had to risk, and said that he always did so until in California he was twice set down for rough riding, and did not wish to be again disciplined for the same offense.

JOCKEY J. CARTER, who was suspended on the 19th pending an investigation of his ride on the horse Native Son, has been reinstated. Judge Rees says P. Ryan, the owner, explained that he had instructed the boy to try and place the horse with a view of seeing if he would not run better. This, it is said, in a manner explained his riding and together with other information obtained prompted the ruling.

BRUCE SETON, the young Englishman who visited California last winter, and who recently purchased a lot of yearlings in Kentucky for the English turf, died not long since from pneumonia and diphtheria. He was only 27 years old.

THERE was some sensational racing June 17th, at Latonia, over a track that was lightning fast. The greatest contest of the day came out in the second race, in which John Yerkes and Nettie Regent ran a dead heat. Yerkes and Nettie Regent were under a fierce drive the last eighth of a mile and crossed the wire so close together that the judges could not decide which one was winner and declared the race a dead heat. The purse was divided.

THE event of the day at Sheephead Bay on Tuesday last was the defeat of Ben Holladay, an odd-on favorite in the fourth race, at a mile and a half, by Knight of the Garter, an extreme outsider, who was at all sorts of odds, the closing being 30 to 1, although some got as good as 70 and 80 to 1 for their money. At the fall of the flag, Knight of the Garter made the pace, and, try as the others might, they could not get near him. He won by three lengths. Knight of the Garter is by Knight of Ellerslie, out of Dearest, by imp. Glenelg. He had started eleven times previous this year but failed to win.

THE Canadian Derby, which was the feature of the opening of the Highland Park Jockey Club meeting at Fort Erie Wednesday afternoon, was an easy jaunt for William Hendries' colt Martimas. Four thousand people saw the Futurity winner assume the lead at the fall of the flag and gradually draw away from his company during the journey of a mile and a half. Passiac shot his bolt at the three-quarters, and Hold On could never get within striking distance of the winner. The books held Martimas at 2 to 5, an exceedingly liberal figure in the company, all but Passiac and Hold On having scratched to Mr. Hendries' entry.

RECENTLY Matt Allen told this story of how Corporation Counsel Clark became possessed of the Brooklyn winner, Banastar: "I was at the Saratoga track one morning last summer," said Allen, "when I saw a big, fine-looking chestnut horse worked out a mile. The track was deep in mud, and you know what that means at Saratoga. To my surprise I found on looking at my watch that the chestnut had covered the mile without any effort in 1:44. 'That's a good horse,' said I to Mr. Clark. 'Let's get him.' We got him, and you saw how easily he won the Brooklyn Handicap. Mr. Clark paid $350 for Banastar and Jeannot, Oots Bros., the owners, refusing to sell one without selling the other."

THE New York Sun says: President August Belmont, of the Jockey Club, when asked yesterday about the rumors of his retirement from the turf, said they were not true. All his yearlings will be sold, and the horses at present training in his stable will be disposed of gradually at private sale, but in his official capacity as chairman of the State Racing Commission and chairman of the Jockey Club he will be more active, if that is possible, than ever before. The fact that Mr. Belmont is in deep mourning is responsible for his temporary retirement from active participation as a racing man, but officially he will be present at the meetings and will be in the stands whenever possible. All his official relations will be continued, so that his interest in the sport will be as great as it ever was.

WRITING from San Francisco to a Sydney friend, the Australian trainer, W. J. Miller, has something to say about the races he saw here. He saw the California Derby run, and was not greatly impressed, the field being a poor one. He adds that the racing is not nearly up to Australian standard and was especially struck by the number of bad riders, "the worst he ever saw." To quote his own words: "I saw about two that could ride decently. All ride a la Tod Sloan, and they run their races from end to end. They don't forget to use the whip, and some of them nearly fall off when it comes to a finish. People here who know the game say they have good riders and horses, but they have gone East, which is no doubt correct. The track they are racing on at Oakland resembles the Flemington sand track, but is faster. Gray's machine is in use, but they do not work it as we do, the horses being on the move all the time, and sometimes the starts are very bad. The jockeys have not the same latitude here as in Australia, being kept to themselves after they go to get ready."

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

John Lucas last week shipped the English setter bitch Dolly Y (Hope's Ridge—Hope), owned by M. Abrahams of this city, to H. B. Ledbetter, Farmington, Mo., where she will be bred to Marie's Sport.

The fox terrier bitch Cairnsmuir Calliope, a daughter of Cairnsmuir Kinsman, bred to Ruby Ding Dong, a son of Ch. Go Bang, has been purchased from Mr. G. M. Carnochan by the Invincible Kennels, Montreal.

Derby entries for the January field trials at Bakersfield close to-day. The list of entries so far has been an encouraging one. Field trial affairs are now beginning to attract the attention and interest of many sportsmen and lovers of the field dog. It is more than probable that the 1900 trials will be a record event.

A Great Dane that is rapidly fulfilling past expectations is Blinker Murphy; recently he has been improving in form to a remarkable degree. We saw him on a farry boat last Sunday after he had been given a run over the Marin hills; notwithstanding his weight and size he seemed to be in almost perfect condition.

A neat pamphlet recently issued by the Cincinnati Fox Terrier Club containing the rules and stakes of the club, standards, a list of champions of record also a series of fine half tone engravings of many prominent fox terriers besides other interesting information to fanciers is now on sale at this office, the price being 25 cents per copy.

The Pacific Mastiff Club have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Dr. F. W. d' Evelyn, president; C. A. Spreckels, vice-president; J. P. Norman, secretary-treasurer; Dr. F. W. d' Evelyn, C. A. Spreckels and D. S. Murray directors. Seabury H. Mastick of New York was elected delegate to the American Kennel Club and Drs. F. W. Skafie and K. O. Staers were appointed veterinary officers.

Wm. J. Peay Strachan has had the ill luck to lose, by sudden death on June 18th, his good fox terrier dog St. Vigilant. Vigilant was bred by the Norfolk Kennels and whelped in August, 1897, by Valuator out of Norfolk Valse. His sons Scorcher, Golden Dandy and a daughter Santa Rosa were all winners at the recent bench show in this city. He was looked upon as one of the leading fox terrier sires on the Coast and did fair to make a grand record. This loss to the fancy is to be regretted very much, but however Mr. Strachan (emulating the pluck of the breed he fancies) has made arrangements to replace the void in his kennels by the purchase by another good one.

Recent advices from the Stockdale Kennels are to the effect that a good Derby entry from there will be seen in the field next January. Manager Dodge says the late hot weather has not had any ill effects on the youngsters in the kennels. Lots of young birds are on the Tevis ranch just now, this is a promising indication for good work in the field trials next year. The pointer bitch Rita, who was bred to Sam's Bow, has shown herself to be a grand worker in the field, she is very fast and has a wonderful nose; the results of this breeding should be a good "nick." All of the Stockdale dogs are looking at their best just now, being in good condition for the fall season's work.

Frank Weber's grocery at 157 Second street, New York caught fire one morning recently. While the firemen were at work Mr. Weber stood on the sidewalk and wept. She wiped her eyes on her apron and sobbed: "Baby, oh, my baby! I know he will be burned to death." Such words moved the heart of Fireman Ahearn of Fire Patrol No. 2 to desperate resolve. He plunged into the burning house and groped around for the imperiled child. His hands clutched a pug dog that snarled and snapped. No other being was there. He fired the dog out and told Mrs. Weber that it was all he found. The woman snatched the beast up and kissed it. "Oh, it is my baby," she sobbed. The fireman stared and went aside and swore.

When a dog is better than the average exemplar of his breed and as a sire is earning renown, it is always well to keep him before the public so that he may secure more opportunities to make good his claim as a pillar of the stud. There is no telling when a stud dog may strike a strain of blood in the female sent to be mated with him which "nicks," as the term goes, with his own. The "nick" should be followed up every time, not only through the individuals who first proclaimed its success, but through others of the same blood. That is, if a certain bitch throws good stock to a certain dog, is it not reasonable for a wise man to secure sisters of the bitch or others nearly allied to her and try the combination some more.

A recent visit to the Mt. View Kennels, San Clemente, Marin county, developed the fact that nearly fifty dogs are now at the kennels in charge of John Lucas. We were shown a sextette of pointers including Alec C., three of his sons, Queen High and another bitch that would stir up the feelings of a sportsman to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. The style, action and work of those beautiful pointers was a revelation in regard to what a perfect specimen of the pointer should be. Lucas has also a Derby entry, a pointer, that he is sanguine will show at the trials in January. Two beautiful English setter puppies out of Frank Maskey's elegant bitch Rod's Chaff are in fine condition. A number of young dogs are being prepared for field work this fall. Several invalids in the hospital were in comfortable quarters and getting along nicely. These kennels are very commodious and most conveniently arranged. Plenty of running water, good grounds for exercise or work on birds and other necessary adjuncts that go to create a first class canine hostelry make the lot of Lucas' charges a pleasant one for the time being.

Fullerton.

The greatest greyhound of the past twenty years died on Monday, June 5, at Short Flatt Tower, Northumberland, the place of his nativity, and where he was reared by his breeder Mr. Edward Dent, writes Skiddaw, in the English Field. There are many contemporary coursing men who will not hesitate to affirm that Fullerton was absolutely the very best greyhound that ever went to slips; in other words, that he was a marvel of marvels among his species. True, he established a record in firstly dividing and then winning three Waterloo Cups in four successive years. On the other hand, there are living veterans in the sport who, without decrying Fullerton's wonderful performances over the Alcar country, nevertheless would consider twice before placing the dog at the summit of the pinnacle of canine fame. Among these authorities one may quote Capt. Ellis, who, in the Encyclopedia of Sport, remarks: "Fullerton stands pre-eminent as the winner or divider of four (Waterloo) cups, as much an idol of the public as Master McGrath, and probably of the same class, as their owners carefully declined to subject them to that test of stoutness which appeals to every coursing man's heart, however much he may admire the speed which brings a dog first to the hare and the carefulness which keeps him in his place." These observations, as a matter of fact, apply with equal force to Master McGrath, who at the end of his career was similarly proclaimed the greatest wonder of all time on the coursing field, although there were plenty of experts who classed Bab at the Bowster as a better greyhound, for the cogent reason that she had proved herself facile princeps in every class of country. Like "horses for courses," there are also "greyhounds for Altcar," and in this respect Fullerton may justly be stamped as a peerless animal over the historical Waterloo Cup arena.

Fullerton, as has been already mentioned, was bred at Short Flatt, he being whelped in April, 1887, so that he was twelve years old at the time of his death. He was one of a litter of ten. It is almost unnecessary to repeat that he was by Greentick, out of Mr. Dent's own bitch, Bit of Fashion. His first appearance was in the Haydock Park enclosure, in the Derby of Seventy-two acceptances, which, after displaying very marked pace and cleverness over half a dozen opponents, he lost to Mr. Gladstone's Greengage, who, comparatively the fresher dog, led and won a short course. The same season saw the beginning of the late Colonel North's connection with Fullerton. This was at the sale of Mr. Dent's kennel of greyhounds, when the puppy was knocked down to the Colonel for 850 guineas, the highest price ever given for a greyhound at auction. Fullerton and several others returned to Short Flatt, and Mr. Dent thereupon undertook the management of Colonel North's string. It is an often-told tale how Fullerton divided the Waterloo Cup of his puppy season with his kennel companion, Troughend, who had been bought at the same great sale for 470 guineas, and how he subsequently won outright three consecutive Waterloo Cups. The last was the crowning performance of the then veteran's career, as from first to last he ran with all the integrity and dash of a puppy, staying on in the most severe of his ordeals without a suspicion of finching. Fullerton's marvelous constitution, combined with the great skill of his trainer, had now reached a level never before touched by a greyhound, and it would have been judicious had he been permitted to retire with his well-won laurels. But, having satisfactorily answered the question in a trial at home, it was determined to send him to slips for his fifth Waterloo. The infatuation—one can liken it to nothing else—impelled his thousands of admirers to take the absurd price of 4 to 1 about the old dog; but nature was at last exhausted; the dog had had his day; and Fullerton's colors were lowered in the second round by the Irish representative, Full Captain. He was then put to the stud, the exceptional fee of 50 guineas being announced, so keen was the demand for the services of the famous son of Greentick and Bit of Fashion. However, Fullerton turned out a complete and totally unexpected failure, in that he was unable to propagate his race. As a sequel to straying away from his Kentish home, and his singular restoration, after some days' wandering about the country, Colonel North made a present of his old favorite to Mr. Dent, and Fullerton's resting place was at the old spot on the Northumberland moors.

Fullerton was a perfect model of what a greyhound should be, and his running weight was 65 pounds. He not only possessed the invaluable attribute of speed, but he was unusually quick with his haars, in both of which essential qualifications he was a reflex of his sensational predecessor, Master McGrath. Reverting to his pace, however, it is generally understood that his brother, Simonian, who was two years the younger, could always lead him at home. Finally, he won thirty-one courses and lost two, singularly on the occasion of his first and last appearances in public.

July 15—Eighth Saturday Fly-Casting Contest. Stow Lake, 2:30 P. M.
 July 16—Eighth Sunday Fly-Casting Contest. Stow Lake, 10 A. M.

One of the most killing flies used by anglers this season is John Benn's Royal Governor.

The fish ladder at the Folsom dam is out of repair and it is claimed that if the necessary repairs are not soon made, fish will be unable to go above the dam this year to spawn.

In capturing gulls the sea lion displays no little skill and cunning, says the Scientific American. When in pursuit of a gull, it dives deeply under the water and swims some distance from where it disappeared; then, rising cautiously, it exposes the tip of its nose along the surface, at the same time giving it a rotary motion. The unwary bird on the wing, seeing the object near by, alights to catch it, while the sea lion at the same moment settles beneath the waves, and at one bound with extended jaws seizes its screaming prey and instantly devours it.

It has been found necessary to retook with sturgeon the waters of Washington State, the cause of the disappearance of the fish is not given. Possibly reason can be found for it in the use of the so called "Chinese system"—bundles of barbed hooks placed close together on sections of anchored line upon which the fish are caught as they swim close to the bottom. A Tacoma dispatch of the 19th inst. states: Fish Commissioner Little has been making some preparations as to the supply of sturgeon, and has come to the conclusion that with careful protection the waters of the State can again be stocked with this fish, which brings in a large revenue. There are still a good number of small sturgeon in many of the streams, though the six and seven hundred pounders of a few years ago are scarce.

The plan of replenishing the stock by artificial hatcheries as in the case of salmon and shad, has been broached, and possibly something in that line may be taken in hand by the fisheries department the coming season, in an experimental way, with a view to more extensive work if the trial proves successful.

The county fish and game warden has probably seriously impaired his constitution this week in the arduous pursuit of other duties besides drawing his salary and breath. A seizure of 1000 pounds of illegal underweight striped bass was made and the distribution of the seized fish among various charitable institutions was again duly paraded in the columns of the daily press. The fish were expressed from Pinole and were consigned to D. Ceregino & Co., E. B. Ingolia, American Union Fish Company and A. Paladini—No arrests were made as no one stepped forward to claim the bass—it was not given out as to whether there was a glut in the fish market or not, sometimes when there is an over supply it has been the practice to dump the surplus fish into the bay, thus keeping up prices and at the same time filling the stomachs of the crabs and ground sharks—the fish merchants, they of the macaroni surnames know all about these scaly diversifications that go to turn the wheels of commerce for the Latin quarter.

Small-sized striped bass are and have been for a long time past sent to this city almost daily. It is notorious that they can be purchased in the fish markets and that small striped bass are served on the tables of many restaurants and hotels in this city. The prolific breeding of this fish luckily, is the only reason why they have been saved from utter extermination so persistently has the law been violated. The striped bass is destined to make San Francisco bay fishing famous, but the era of sport for the angler has been retarded many years because of the enormous destruction of young fish in violation of the law for their protection. A close season for at least two months in the year should prevail against net fishermen.

The recent arrest of Chinese fishermen who were catching small fish along the Alameda shores is a step in the right direction, but only one little step. This business should have been looked after and stopped years ago. As it is, there has been in the past a serious oversight in neglecting to curb the hay piracy of the Mongolian fish destroyers. The following item, depicting the vandal work of hot one day, is a sample of what has been going on for years with hot rare and only spasmodic attempts at checking it. Special laws are on the statute books and general provision is made for remedial county legislation, but this seems to avail nothing for the prevention of such practices (and also many others equally reprehensible) as are here noted.

"Deputy Fish Commissioners Davis and Cross recently had a hot chase after a gang of Chinese fishermen who were catching small fish along the Alameda shore. When the Mongolians saw the officers coming they scattered like quail, making the capture of all of them a difficult task. The deputies, however, chased the largest boat in the fleet and arrested five hard-looking Celastials, who were placed in jail in Alameda. Their hulk contained thousands of sole and flounder, the largest of which was not over two inches in length."

The gang of shrimp-catchers haggard in San Pablo bay last week had in their possession two boatloads of smelt fry. Deputy Davis, who has been detailed to hunt up and arrest all Chinese transgressors of the law, stated that there are at least fifty boats manned by Chinese, fishing for shrimps in this bay. Davis figures that the small fish taken by Chinese who are supposed to catch shrimps only amount to 150,000 pounds monthly. At this rate it would seem that bay fish, such as flounder, sole, smelt, etc., are being pretty well thinned out by the Mongolians who have grown rich from the shipments of dried fish to the Flowery Kingdom.

The fisherman who tells you he does not care about the fish he catches is not to be believed, says that veteran caster of the fly, Dr. Henry Van Dyke of New York. In the June Century he writes: "Never believe a fisherman who tells you that he does not care about the fish he catches. He may say that he angles only for the pleasure of being out of doors, and that he is just as well contented when he takes nothing as when he makes a good catch. He may think so, but it is not true. He is not telling a deliberate falsehood. He is only assuming an unconcerned pose and indulging in a delicate bit of self flattery. Even if it were true, it would not be at all to his credit."

"Watch him on that lucky day when he comes home with a full basket of trout on his shoulder or a quartet of silver salmon covered with green branches in the bottom of the canoe. His face is broader than it was when he went out, and there is a sparkle of triumph in his eyes. 'It is naught, it is naught,' he says, in modest depreciation of his triumph. But you shall see that he lingers fondly about the place where the fish are displayed upon the grass, and does not fail to look carefully at the scales when they are weighed, and has an attentive ear for the comments of admiring spectators. You will find, moreover, that he is not unwilling to relate the story of the catch—how the big fish rose short, four different times, to four different flies, and finally took a small black dose, and played all over the pool, and ran down a terribly stiff rapid to the next pool below, and snaked for twenty minutes, and had to be stirred up with stones, and made such a long fight that when he came in at last the hold of the boat was almost worn through, and it fell out of his month as he touched the shore. Listen to this tale as it is told, with endless variations, by every man who has brought home a fish, and you will perceive that the fisherman does care for his luck, after all."

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Recent changes in the county game and fish laws and now in force in Marin, Santa Clara, Fresno and Riverside counties are shown in the synopsis of game laws given with this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

"Tom Colt" is ambitious for historic distinction, his rendition of a part in "Turned Out," an old time hut amusing farce given by members of La Estrella Parlor, N. D. G. W., last Saturday evening was a surprise to his friends.

Field sports in the vicinity of Woodland at present have not the charm of great variety. Among the hunters the festive cottontail is offering the only mark for sport. These little animals seem to be quite abundant along the creek this year and though as yet the sport has not become thefad, those who have been out report first-class sport.

The National Pigeon Shooters' Association recently purchased forty-two acres of land at Queens, Queens Borough, N. Y. It is the intention of the purchasers to incorporate a new organization and improve the property by the erection of a number of buildings. A number of wealthy sporting men of New York city are said to be back of the enterprise. The price paid is reported to have been $800 an acre.

County officials of late seem to be imbued with the necessary stimulus to pay attention to the letter of the law as well as the popular sentiment in relation to game protection. Arrests and fines after conviction have been the results in cases in Marin, Santa Clara and Mendocino counties recently. Let the good work go on, for the sooner an understanding as to the certain punishment of game law violators is widespread the sooner will there be a general and wholesome respect for and observance of the law.

Bernie Devlin, a prominent business man and ex-city father of Benicia, attended the live bird shoot at San Clemente last Sunday. He is not only an excellent trap shot, but a rare exponent of the gospel of good fellowship. As a referee in a pigeon match he shines with an incandescence of wisdom that places Solomon in the "has been" class. A three-hird race was arranged between D Bayman Schultz and Narry A. Wands, Devlin was the referee. Each man scored two birds; Schultz missed his last bird and Wands etopped to the score with a chance to win or tie, he missed with his first barrel but brought the bird down with the second; the pigeon, badly wounded, in flustering about in the grass and before it could be retrieved, disappeared in a squirrel hole—as this shooter turned to the referee his manner indicated expectation of a favorable decision, but Bernie polled his watch and quietly suggested that Wand get a spade end retrieve the bird in limit time or the bird would not be scored. Expostulation and inquiry only elicited the statement that Devlin was the referee and he "would have no outside interference." When time was up he decided the bird lost and the match a tie, at the same time penalizing the shooter to the extent of a tegl-rinri lunch at the ferry.

A substitute in time of draft is allowable,
Be' a substitute for JACKSON'S NAPA SODA,

A creditable piece of pistol target work was the performance of J. E. Gorman last Sunday at Shell Mound Park, in which the world's record was tied. Gorman tied the record which has been held for a number of years by E. E. Partridge of the Boston (Mass.) Rifle Association. His first ten rounds aggregated 93. He was at his best in the second ten, scoring 96. The third ten foiled up 92, his fourth went up to 95, but the last half score fell to 89. F. H. Bushnell, out of a possible 300, made 234. In the team shoot between Captain Bushnell's marksmen and Captain Gorman's the former won easily. Following are the scores of each side respectively: F. H. Bushnell 208, E. N. Moore 191, J. A. Ricker 193, O. Bremer 204. In the second team J. E. Gorman scored 216, D. W. McLaughlin 199, C. M. Henderson 188, F. H. Beinap 156.

At the Traps.

The live bird attraction to-morrow will be the California Wing Club shoot at Ingleside. A side issue of this shoot will be the match between Otto Feodner and A. M. Shields for the Olympic live bird challenge medal; Feodner who won the trophy from Dr. Barker on the 13th inst. having been challenged by Mr. Shields. Both gentlemen have been shooting in fine form recently. If the handicap conditions favor the challenger a tithe more than the committee deem reasonable, Feodner will have occasion to shoot at his best to retain possession of the medal. At all events the race will be worth witnessing.

The blue rock events to-morrow are two, one of which will be the regular meet of the Reliance club on the Webster street grounds, Alameda; the members of which club have been doing some commendable trap work since the beginning of their season. The Alert Gnn Club are scheduled to have their regular shoot at Birds Point, Alameda.

The return blue rock shoot at Gilroy to-morrow between the Gilroy and Hollister Gnn Clubs will, it is intimated, embrace the following program of events. In the morning, from 10 to 12 o'clock, practice shooting, free for all club members and guests, will be in order. Dinner, 12 to 2 p. m. The first races in the afternoon will be a 25 target race between six-men teams. Class shooting, that is: One team, Class A Hollister vs one team, Class A Gilroy. The same with Classes B and C, etc. 2d. Sweepstake at 10 targets open for all at 50 cents entrance. 3 moneys, class shooting. 3d. Six-man team contest at 10 targets, team to be chosen on the grounds, $3 entrance per team. 50c money. 4th. Sweepstake races at 10 targets, open for all, 50 cents entrance. 3 moneys.

The Olympic Gun Club members met at Ingleside last Sunday for the fourth medal shoot of the season. The average of scores in the regular club race and for back scores was excellent. H. H. White had the honor of making the only straight score in a 25 target race. The scores in the medal race and the back scores made were the following:

Table with names and scores: White, H. H. 1111 1111 1111 1111 1111-25, Nauman, C. C. 1111 1111 0111 1111 1111-24, "Slade" 1101 1111 1111 1111 1111-24, Webb, A. In a twenty target race during the morning practice the following scores were made: Webb 19, Nauman 18, Feodner 16, "Slade" 17, Miller 10. A second shoot at twenty-five birds resulted as follows: Feudner 16, Nauman 20, Webb 17. In a shoot at ten birds the scores were: Nauman 10, Webb 7, "Slade" 8, Miller 7, Feudner 8, Matteson 6, Owens 8, White 4, Hirschfeld 6. In a second ten-bird race the scores were: Nauman 9, Webb 9, Owens 8, Allen 6, Miller 4, White 7, Hosmer 5, Rose 5, Hirschfeld 7. Webb and Nauman indulged in a "left handed" race at ten targets in which Webb scored eight breaks and won by two targets. The concluding shoot for the season will be held on July 23d.

The high average scores during the day were made by Webb, who broke 131 targets out of 152 shot at, "Slade" smashed 90 out of 100 and Nauman made 129 out of a possible 159. In the final club shoot next month the shooters will be placed in classes and under a handicap based on the results of previous work this year at the traps.

The live bird shoot of the San Francisco Gun Club last Sunday at San Clemente was attended by a large majority of the club members, the shooting being witnessed by a number of fellow sportsmen, the meeting was also greced by the presence of lady visitors who took great interest in the trap work. The principal event of the day, the club race at twelve birds, brought out twenty-four men on the shooting score. In this event Clarence A. Haight and C. Shaw were the high guns. Eight shooters were second with eleven kills each. A side pool in the club race paid the two high guns $7 each, the eleven men in the pool divided third money. Ten tack scores were shot up, the results in the two six hird races being taken for the records lacking to make a full complement of scores. The general shooting during the day was a creditable showing. In the afternoon a strong wind blowing across the traps made the shooting most difficult. In a preliminary six bird race, $1 entrance, sixteen shooters entered. The pool was divided by Feudner, Daniels, Haight, Justus and Jackson on straight scores. Haight was high gun for the day, in two six hird events and in the club race at twelve pigeons he killed straight, he is now two hirds in the lead for the club high average medal having a score of forty six out of a possible forty-eight birds shot at. Feudner, Elg, Forster and Murdoch are tied for second place, with forty-four kills each. The results on beck scores were, Haight 12, Daniels 12, Feudner 11, Justins 11, Shields 11, Jackson 11, Delmas 11, Klevesahl 11, Miller 10, Roos 10.

The scores in the club race at twelve pigeons were the following:

Twenty-six trap shooters took part in the Union Gun Club blue rock shoot on the Lincoln Club grounds, Alameda, last Sunday. The weather conditions were perfect for outdoor sport, the scores averaging exceedingly well, the shooting of Messrs. Grubb, Schroder, Hawhurst and "Smith" being particularly good.

"Smith" won first money with twenty-three breaks, Fischer won second; Bickerstaff, Preece, Dr. Tresk and Bello divided third and fourth money went to Hess.

The scores in detail in the club race were the following:

Large table with 2 columns: Name and Score. Lists many names like Smith, Grubb, Olsen, Fischer, Debenham, etc.

The medal for June was won by Len Hawhurst, who was tied by Schreder, hot after shooting off two subsequent ties at ten targets each, won by a score of seven to four.

The results in the medal race at twenty-five blue rocks were as follows: Hawhurst 21, Schroder 21, Dr. Tresk 20, Yonne 19, M. McDonnell 19, "Smith" 19, Michelsen 19, Bickerstaff 17, Olsen 17, Fischer 14, Mitchell 12, "Colt," 12, Preece 11.

The first shoot took place last Sunday on the East Nepa range, and the following scores were made: Mensfield 14, Reams 20, Ellis 15, Prior 19, Mayfield 17, Fine 10, Reynolds 10.

Fox Farming in Alaska.

"Black fox hunting is getting to be one of the most important industries of Alaska," said Capt. Peterson, of the schooner Sailor Boy, who arrived at Skagway recently from Kodiak, Alaska. "The business is proving immensely profitable in most instances, and many new farms are being added." The following interesting data was given to one of the staff of the Skagway News by the Captain:

"The Alaska Commercial Company, which supplies most of the new farms, is doing a good business selling foxes for stock as well as in raising fur.

"It takes $3,000 at least to go into the business in a fair way. For this sum a man can get twenty-five pairs of foxes and get well started. He rents an island of the government which he can hold exclusively as long as he actually occupies it. Foxes cost $100 a pair. They do not breed rapidly, three pups a year being a good average from a pair. They produce only one litter a year. The skins bring $15 a piece at present, and will no doubt go higher as fur becomes scarcer.

"Some fox farmers have not been successful and are heartily disgusted with the experiment, but from all I can learn they did not understand the business. Some attempted to save money by buying two or three pairs like birds. The extra females, even if they had litters were neglected, and the little ones died. While the young foxes are small the male looks after the family, carrying food and protecting the young from being devoured by hawks. One male will not attempt to look after but one mate, and the others are lost where there are too many females.

"The fox farms are clearly all on small islands where one or two men can patrol the shores and prevent trappers from sealing the foxes. There is not sufficient food for them on an island of this size, and the keepers catch fish for them to eat. They will live nearly altogether on fish and grow rapidly. The black fox attains full size at one year old, and breeds at that age, so the increase is rapid. The pelt is taken at a year old, although the males continue to grow some after that.

"One of the chief troubles is with the hawks and eagles, which prey on the young animals. Between watching these and fishing, the fox farmer is kept very busy and need not fear getting lonely.

"The Alaska Commercial Company started the experiment about six years ago and have several men engaged in watching colonies. They have several thousand foxes. At one time they charged $150 for a pair of them, but they have come down now to $100, which is enough considering they can only get $30 for two skins.

"Suppose a man begins with forty pairs of foxes, costing $4000, at the end of two years he will have probably 100 foxes, worth for the skins alone $7200. Of course he cannot kill all of them, but in a short time he will have an income of several thousand dollars a year, while his stock is increasing. The food question would be a serious one if it was not for the ease with which fish are caught to supply them, and this is the main expense.

"The water around these islands never freezes in winter and the foxes cannot escape in that way. There is no need to watch Indians, for they are the most honest inhabitants of that part of the world. They never steal anything."

SAVED ALL THE PELTS.

Adventure of Three Trappers With a Band of Red Hostiles.

Antoine, Bill and Tom had put in a long winter down in the bed lands of the Missouri. But now spring was at hand; the snow was gone; the warm, soft chinook wind continued to blow day and night, and the hunters hastened to skin the thawed out carcases of the wolves they had poisoned during the winter. First, they collected those on the opposite side of the river, for they knew the ice would soon go out, and they had no boat; the bateau which had borne them and their outfit down to their hunting ground the previous autumn had been cut up to make a table, bunks and other rude furniture for their cabin.

One night the hunters were awakened by a grinding, creaking, rumbling noise up the valley, simply appalling. They well knew that it was the Missouri riding herself of the ice sheet which had imprisoned her for so many wintry months, and they lost no time in dressing and getting together a few articles of value, some provisions and blankets, for, if the stream should gorge below them, they would be obliged to take to the hills. The moon was shining brightly and they went out to the bank of the stream to watch. Nearer and nearer came the terrific sound, and soon they saw the seething front of the freshet appear around the bend of the river just above. On its breast it bore a mass of whirling ice which tore the solid ice in front of it, sometimes lifting the great cakes into which it was rent upon its heaving, swelling bosom, and again sinking them so that their front edges struck the bottom, when they would be reared up ten, twenty, thirty feet into the air and topple over with a crash like thunder. The men stood and gazed at the oncoming wall of grinding ice and seething water, terrified yet fascinated by the sight. The freshet tore its way on down the river, bearing upon its surface the crushed and splintered ice. Checked by some unusual resistance at the front, the stream would suddenly rise in heaving surges, and as suddenly fall as the obstruction was swept away. The crash of the advancing flood finally grew fainter and fainter as it went on down the valley, and ere long became a mere rumbling in the distance.

"Wal," said Bill, turoing from the river with a yawn, "she's busted. Let's go back to bed."

"What for go to bed?" Antoine exclaimed, "Don't you see the seven peoples, what you call the heeg dipper? His tail point an' say it most daylight. I'm think we better git hreks' and get redly skin it the wolf."

"Right you are, Antoine," Tom said. "By the time we have cooked and eat a bite it will be light enough to go to work."

Antoine did not labor very hard that morning, and after an hour or so, the greater part of which he had spent gazing about him, he wiped his knife, sheathed it, picked up his rifle, started off toward the prairie, saying: "I'll be back pretty soon; just goin' to top of hill and see what I'm discover it."

"I wonder what's got into Antwine this mornin'?" Bill asked, as he watched the half-breed walk swiftly up the slope.

"Oh, I don't know," Tom replied. "Perhaps he has spring fever."

"So have I, but I ain't going to quit work, just the same; 'n yet I s'pose I might as well for if we ever get to sell these here hides, I know I'll just fall over myself blowin' my share o' the proceeds in. I ain't got no hossiess to hit a town."

"Look at Antoine!" said Tom, springing to his feet and thrusting his knife in his sheath. "He's signaling us to join him, and from the way he's dancing about there most be something up."

Both men grasped their rifles and hurried to the top of the hill to where was standing the half-breed, who as soon as he had seen them start, had turned back and was peering through some bushes out on the prairie. He did not say a word as they came up, but pointed off to the southeast, and looking in the direction indicated, his companion saw a band of thirty or forty Indians walking leisurely down a low ridge a couple of miles away, and, apparently, coming straight toward them. "I'm dream it," said Antoine. "I'm have had dreams las' night. Sure sign heap trouble to-day."

"Damn yer dreams," Bill exclaimed. "The question is, What are we going to do?"

"They are too many for us to fight," Tom said thoughtfully, "and yet I hete to run away and leave them to steal all our wolf hides and everything else we have."

"I'm tell you what," said Antoine. "May be we cen fool it. You see dat coulee?" pointing at a long narrow ravine, which extended far out into the prairie a little ways to the east of where they stood. "Well, I'm going out to de head dat coulee, and when deose H'injin com along, maybe half-mile away, 'eh'll shoot it him 't'ree, four time, and den sh'll run lake the dev' out on the prairie and go heast long ways. Suppose H'injin he's follow me; he no find our wolf hides. Ah'll lead him long ways down de river, and den sh'll sneak back."

The half-breed's plan was agreed to, and leaving his coat, he walked swiftly east along the side of the hill until he came to the ravine, and then disappeared. His companions stood where he had left them, anxiously watching to see how his plan would turn out. The Indians were not more than a mile away, walking slowly in straggling groups, but still heading directly toward them. As they strolled down into a little depression which momentarily hid them from view, Antoine suddenly sprang out of the ravine at a point about equally distant between them and the war party, threw his gun over his shoulder, and with his back to the Indians senttered along as if he wasn't aware any one else was in the country. Coming up onto high ground again, the Indians et once discovered him, stopped, and apparently consulted together for a minute, and then silently took after him as fast as they could run. The half-breed had been watching them out of the corners of his eyes; he stooped as if to examine something on the ground, and then, turning around suddenly, jumped and ran a step or two, as if he had just discovered them. Then he stopped again, and raising his rifle, fired five times at them. No one was hit, nor did they return his fire, and Antoine turned and ran. Once in awhile the half-breed would stop and fire a shot at them, but he was so far away that his bullets had no effect. The Indians never once fired at him, but kept steadily on, and at last passed out of sight over a distant ridge five or six miles away. Then Bill and Tom hurried down the hill, across the flat, and then to their cabin in the timber. In a shed adjoining it, and roofed with green buffalo hides, was stored their winter's take of wolf, deer, antelope, elk and buffalo skins—nearly 1000 hides in all. They thought that even if Antoine did succeed in decoying the Indians to some distant point down the river they would undoubtedly suspect they had been fooled, and return, so to save the hides, they had decided to cache them. Choosing the most inaccessible place they could find in the thick brush bordering the river, and quite a long ways above the cabin, they hsgen to move the hides into it, going and returning by a different route each time, so as to leave no trail. They built no fire that evening, and after a bit of cold meat and bread spread some blankets in the brush near the doorway and quietly waited for their companion to return. It was about 9 o'clock when they heard the soft thod of his moccasined feet coming down the trail through the timber, and presently he appeared in the dim light, walking wearily along.

"Tired?" Tom asked, as he and Bill stepped out of the brush.

"You bet I be tired. I'll tak dose H'injin most to de mou' de Mooseshell River an' den I'll run down into de bottom of de Missouri, an' den I'll run up dis way. An' what you i'ink? I'll keel it one H'injin. Yes, sare. I'll just hold de guo up high—no take aim—en' when I pull de trig' I'll watch, an' one dose H'injin he'll fall an' no move any more."

Early in the morning the hunters carried the rest of the dried skins to their cache. Feeling sure that the Indians would come up the river and find the cabin, they hid most of their outfit, hurried a ten-pound keg of powder under the fireplace, left a pot and a lot of tea and sugar in a conspicuous place, and then taking their blankets and a few provisions they went out into the hills to hide for a day or two and see what would happen. Perched on the apex of a steep, pine-cled ridge, the hunters sat quietly hour after hour, watching for any signs of the enemy. It was weary work, especially for Antoine, who never could sit still or idle any length of time. He fidgeted and swore as the hours dragged by, and finally proposed that they should go up to the head of the long coulee and finish skinning the wolves there, one to stand guard while the others worked.

"We'll just go yer on that," Bill said, "pervided you do the watchin'; them eyes 'o yours is sharper'n onrn. Come on."

A couple of hours later, when they were busily at work, they were suddenly startled by an explosion like the discharge of a large cannon, and looking down into the bottom they saw a dense cloud of white smoke rising above the trees where the cabin stood.

"I guess our Injin friends have been brewin' a cup o' tea," said Bill, with a grin.

The others didn't say anything, for they were watching the Indians, who now appeared on the open flat, running as hard as they could down the bottom. When near the center of it they stopped, bunched up, and apparently held a council, and then, changing their course, ran for the hills, evidently intending to go out on the prairie.

The hunters watched them climb the long ridge and when they finally disappeared where it met the prairie, Antoine ran up to where he had discovered them the day previous, and Tom and Bill resumed their work. They stopped now and then to signal the half-breed, who would reply that the enemy was still going. That evening, assured that the Indians had really left, they returned to the cabin to find it a perfect wreck; the roof was gone, the chimney had fallen in, the walls were partly blown away, and in the debris were the mutilated bodies of five Indians.

One morning in May the first steamboat of the season landed the bonters and their piles of furs and skins on the levee at Fort Benton, and that evening there was a big time in John Lilly's hordy house. Bill was getting rid of his wealth as fast as he could, Antoine was helping him, and Tom was looking on to see that no harm befell them. A few days later he had to furnish the "grub stake" for another season.—Inter-Ocean.

THE FARM.

By-Products of Steers.

A writer in the New York Sun points out one of the methods by which the great packing houses are able to starve out the local butcher and to make inordinate profits on margins by which the smaller operator cannot exist. He says:

"The great Chicago packing-houses get a great deal more money for the by-products incidental to the killing of a steer than the meat sells for. On the average the meat and its compound brings $40, while the by-products bring in at wholesale $55. The latter sum is roughly made up as follows: Hides, horns, hoof and hair, $25; fats, blood, sinews and bones, $15; miscellaneous other wastes $15.

It is only in the large and well-appointed slaughter houses that the full value of animals dealt with can be realized, and these become factories for a great many products, besides finding the proper and most profitable markets for each of the raw products into which they separate the animals.

Nothing is allowed to go to waste, and ten years ago one of the largest butchers in the city declared that the Chicago packers were paying the entire cost of slaughtering cattle out of what the butchers here were paying to have carried away. Hides, horns, hoofs and hair have had their markets for many years and their value increases steadily. This is particularly true of horns for the practice of dehorning cattle has become so general that in one great Chicago packing house it was found during a two-year count that the horns only showed one horn to every three bullocks. Horns are now worth about $150 a ton. The hides go to the tanner, the hair for mixing in mortar. The tails don't go with the hides. Down at the tip is some long hair and this is sold to be turned into curled hair for upholstery.

"If the hoofs are pure white they have a peculiar value. They are sent to China for jewelry-making. Those which are striped, black or damaged go into the kettle to be boiled for glue, and the residue made into hoof-meal, a valuable fertilizer. In fact, everything which is not used for other purposes is at last turned into some form of fertilizer, even to the tankage water in which the coarsest of the refuse is boiled to extract its fats. The coarse bones are either carbonized and sold for sugar refiners' use or turned into fertilizers, and the blood is mostly dried and turned into another aid to agriculture. Some of the blood is sold in liquid form to sugar refiners, but not a great deal. The white bones suitable for knife handles and such purposes bring from $70 to $90 a ton and go mostly to Germany.

The main parts of the animal as they are sent to market are all carefully trimmed but there is no piece of good meat but has its market. Tongues and tails are regular articles of commerce, and even the meat from the cheeks is added to the supply for sausages and the lips are cut off and pickled. Each character of fat is separated from the other, and finally these are marketed in the various forms of oleo-oil, tallow, and stearline, and oleo-margarine. Before the horns are sold the pith is extracted from them and the finest grade of gelatine is obtained from the pith.

"The sinews are all separated to be used for glue stock; the bladders are sold for holding snuff and the greater part of the intestines are used for sausage casings. Parts of these, however, have a special use and value, and are sold separately to be made up into gold-beater's skins. The lining of the windpipe is also of special value, being used for a fancy sausage casing and also as a lining for pipe through which beer is passed in breweries. Beef extract, pepsin, and many other things are made in some of the biggest houses.

"A new use has recently been discovered for the contents of the paunch, which until lately had been thrown away. It has been discovered that a good quality of cardboard can be made from it. And it is now being saved for that purpose. Of course, the large receipts are not all profit but there is a manufacturer's profit made out of each one of them which aggregates a handsome sum, and all of this helps to keep down the price of flesh meats to the consumer."

The Crossing of Range Sheep.

In describing a mutton type for the range I use an arbitrary standard which may not be accurate for all portions of the country. I assume that the first essential of a range sheep is its ability to thrive in flocks of from five hundred to two thousand or more; and that it must thrive for a portion of the year on dried grasses, with little or no succulent food in winter. It must withstand ordinary storms at all times of the year, and the hot suns of summer. The mutton sheep of this country should mature and be ready for market at one year or under, and must produce a medium heavy fleece of wool of good quality. The wether must not be too large to thrive and must be of compact mutton form. It is evident that these characteristics will vary with the individual conditions on each range and the number of sheep to be kept on a given area. As the weight of the sheep increase the number must decrease.

Right here we sometimes make mistakes by forgetting that a given area will not support as many Shropshires as it has supported of Merinos. As the size is increased the food for each individual must also increase or quality is lost, which has become more important than weight. Remember, also, that as density and weight of fleeces are increased, there is a great tendency to sacrifice form, size and thickness of flesh. Though the time may have passed when we can raise sheep for wool alone, the day will never come when we can wholly ignore the fleece in selecting a mutton sheep. I rate range ewes at ninety to one hundred pounds, depending on condition and relative per cent. of Merino and coarse-wool blood.

The ram should weigh not less than one hundred and fifty pounds, nor more than 200 pounds in fair flesh. He should be blocky and thick-fleshed, with strong head, neck and quarters, and firm, heavy bone. He should be close-wooled, with strong, even fiber, and should shear from eight to twelve pounds of good wool. Of necessity the grade Merino ewa must be the foundation for a large percentage of the flocks of the west. The selection of well bred rams of the desired type may be somewhat difficult. It is important that they be well bred and that they be at least one year old if they are to be turned loose with the breeding flock. The Shropshire has been tested on the range with good results. I believe the Horned Dorset and Chabiot would meet with equal favor if introduced.

The beneficial effect of the first and second cross on the mutton qualities of the lambs produced is very evident. Much variation will be found in the size, form and fleece of the first and succeeding crosses. Secure uniformity even at the expense of numbers. Do not be led to believe that any lamb showing coarse wool blood is better than the foundation flock. Be this true or false, it immediately places the standard of selection so low that one can never secure a good flock. The second cross should show more marked results and less variation than the first, because of the hereditary power of the Merino blood to reproduce itself was broken up in the first cross, and the power of the sire to reproduce his character meets with less resistance in the second cross.—E. A. Burnett.

What is known as the "Oswald" ration is very popular in some parts of the west as a ration for feeding sheep and lambs. It consists of a mixture of 280 pounds of shelled corn, 32 pounds of oats, 30 pounds of wheat screenings and 60 pounds of linseed meal. The feeders begin, however, with a light ration of corn and oats, about half as much corn as oats, and increase gradually in the total amount fed, and in the proportion of corn until they are satisfied that the sheep are eating enough and digesting what they get. It may be weeks before they can eat and digest a full ration of nine pounds of corn to one of oats and they need watching to see that they do not get off their feed and do not begin scouring. When sheep have good teeth they appear to thrive better on whole grain than upon ground grains, as they eat it more slowly and digest it better. Those without teeth enough to grind their own grain will seldom do well if put upon ground feed, and while we have seen an old toothless ewe fattened upon wet mash we do not advise it as likely to be very profitable.

The Farm Horse.

Besides raising horses for market, it might be wise for breeders to consider the right kind of horse to raise for the farmer. There are hundreds of thousands of horses used on the farms of this country, and this number must be renewed in part every year. The farmer is really the greatest factor in the horse market to-day, and a little consideration of his needs is necessary. In the past, old worn out sora footed car horses have gone to the farms, and because of their cheap price many farmers bought them. But there are no more car horses to pick up cheap, and farmers are looking for good, serviceable horses peculiarly adapted to their work.

Strength is not the sole requisite in a farm horse. The true farmer's horse is one equally serviceable in dragging the plow and trotting to market with a light wagon. The farm horse should thus be a cross between the draught and road horse. Courage, determination and quickness in taking hold of loads are very important qualities in this kind of horse. An animal weighing 1100 pounds with these good qualities will often be more serviceable than the team that weighs hundreds of pounds more. A quick, steady walker is very essential. Did you ever stop to compute how many days work you could save in plowing a field with a quick-walking horse? The animal that gets over the ground rapidly saves time and money to the owner. A slow walker is poorer for farm work than a slow trotter, and the time lost thereby is much greater.

Farm horses should have good lung power and good feet and legs, the latter, in spite of the old idea that sore-footed car horses would do for the farm. It is foolish to think that sore feet are not a very great disadvantage. The horse must have a soft, yielding purchase in the soil and sore feet will reduce his pulling powers considerably. Inherited sore feet are worse than those acquired, for no amount of care will then cure them. The Morgan horses possess the qualities that are desirable for good farm teams, but there are others that answer the purpose very well. The farmer who attempts to raise colts for his use should be careful to select good breeding horses that will produce progeny of a desirable nature. Very often the farmer can raise his own horses better than some professional breeder, unless the latter gives special attention to the needs of the farmer.

Horse Demand.

Dealers and shippers are scouring the country for horses to keep up the supply for their trade and paying double as much this year as they did two years ago. The best horses are already called out and as the supply decreases and the urgent city and export demand increases, prices must continue to advance and the farmers who can first get into market with first class horses will reap the rich reward. As there have been but few bred since 1892 and 1893, when this supply is exhausted—that is, the good ones—we will have to wait until we can mature our '98 and '99 breeding. How much better it would be if our farmers would stand by their breeding as the farmers of Europe do. True, we have millions of scrubs and small horses and doubtless always will have, but farmers should breed to the best stallions and endeavor to raise big heavy draft and high class coach horses to suit the markets—horses that will command the highest prices. Better not breed at all than to raise mere common or scrub horses. Breed for size, style and beauty and the whole world will bid high for your horses. Western Agriculturist and Live Stock Journal.

A breeder writes as follows of the Duroc-Jersey Hog: "In the first place there is no other breed so uniformly prolific of numerous and large litters of strong, healthy pigs. In the second place I know of no breed that has the robustness and vigor. In the third place they have no superiors in growing and laying on flesh at the same time, and no other breed is more docile or kinder and gentler to handle. They are readily fattened at any age from six weeks to six years, and seem never to cease growing. And lastly they make a splendid cross for other breeds when desired for store or general market purposes."

Sheep Notes.

A good acre of land should grow 30 tons of roots, with the right cultivation. For six months this crop will support 30 sheep, and will form about two-thirds of their daily rations.

Sheep are inveterate lickers of salt, and it is conducive to their general health. Next to grass, there is hardly anything more essential. It is cheap; put it where they can have it at all.

After a rain a steer will soon get dry and warm, but when a sheep's coat is wet it keeps the sheep wet and cold for hours. It is against dry cold and not against wet, that a sheep's coat is a protection.

Under good management a flock of sheep will pay for their winters' keeping in the manure they make. Give them plenty of straw, and they will convert it into the richest kind of food for the crop.

In England, as a preventive of foot trouble, the pens in which sheep are housed are littered with burned clay; and this clay, which acts as an absorbent for the excrement, makes a valuable fertilizer, and one easily handled.

On the average 100-acre farm 250 to 265 sheep ought to be kept, besides a team and two cows. Under a conservative calculation the sales should amount to $750 or above each year. This should be a practically net income, as one energetic, able-bodied man can easily provide necessary feed and care for that number. This will compare favorably with the incomes from average 100-acre farms managed along other lines.

As a general rule, the smaller the flock the greater the returns that will be obtained from the feed and care given the sheep. On nearly every farm a small flock can be raised without extra expense, as they will consume much feed that would otherwise go to waste. About the only time they require particular care and attention is when the weather is stormy in winter or early spring. If a shed is provided for them they will take pretty good care of themselves.—Northwestern Farmer.

The people of Colorado are about to adopt a practical method toward preventing the production of scrub live stock in that State. The law will follow the principle that it is easier to check a disease before its germs have spread contagion and similarly it is much better to kill a scrub before its miserable conception than after its wretched bringing forth. The law which will come into force on July 6th provides that no mustang or inferior stallion, no inferior bull, and no inferior ram shall be allowed to run at large. Not only will this be punishable but any stock raiser who finds an inferior sire running at large may castrate the animal. Any person allowing his cows to run at large upon the public ranges of the State must furnish a high grade bull for every twenty-five cows so running. Jersey bulls will not be allowed to run at large under any pretense whatever. Where so much live stock runs at large as in some of the Western States this should prove an effective means of preventing the production of "scrub" animals.

Golden Gate Park Driving Association Races a Great Success.

No better sport was ever furnished a crowd of four or five thousand people than that provided by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association at the Oakland race track on the Fourth of July. Six races were given during the afternoon and there was a good, clean contest in every one. The association is to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which the program was arranged and carried out and certainly much good was done the sport of harness racing in this vicinity by the unaccommodated effort made by each and every individual member of the club to insure good, clean, honest contests in every race on the card.

In the judges' stand Mr. T. J. Crowley presided in a manner that was satisfactory to all, assisted by Messrs. A. B. Petrick and S. Lomhard. Their duties were not arduous, as there seemed to be an earnest desire on the part of each and every driver to get his horse off as soon as possible to a fair start and to make an honest effort to win.

The starting was done by that famous reinsman, Budd Doble, whose name is a household word wherever trotting horses are known. It was the very first time that Mr. Doble had ever attempted to act in the capacity of giving the word, though he has probably taken it as often as any man in America, but he acquitted himself in a manner that would have been a credit to one who had "served his time" at the business. Mr. Doble was ably assisted in his work by J. Dinne, who for years has performed the very arduous duties of assistant starter through the California circuit. Dr. Ire B. Dalzell acted in the capacity of marshal. He had a difficult role to fill but he filled it.

Secretary Fred Thompson was here, there and everywhere attending to the wants of everybody, and his excellent executive ability is due in a great measure the success of the meeting.

There were six races on the card and when the day's sport was concluded the verdict was unanimous that the classification committee had done its work well, and there was a hot contest in nearly every race.

The day's sport opened with a race for green horses in which six horses took the word. To the astonishment of the majority of those who had watched the horses at work on the speedway, Dr. Millar drove his handsome little mare Sweet Peas under the wire first in the first heat. The second heat went to General Smith and the third to Lady Falrose. The three that had not won a heat of course went to the stable under the rule and then Sweet Peas was drawn on account of lameness. This left Lady Falrose and General Smith to compete for first money and the former won in elow time.

The second race was called the 2:30 class for the reason that the horses were supposed to have about that speed, and it was rightly named, though in one heat this time was beaten three seconds. The winner turned up in Ethel H., a daughter of Don Marvin, who was well handled by L. Richardson. An amusing incident of this race was the fact that Dr. Leek had secured the mare Hermie, by Soudan, especially for this event as she was credited with the ability to pace in 2:18. Changing her name to the suggestive Dentina he started with confidence and led all the others to the far turn by several lengths, but here Dentina stepped on her false tooth name and went to a tired break, failing to recover until all the others had passed. She finished sixth and showed what a consistent mare she is by taking the same position in every heat until she was sent to the stable for not winning one in three.

The O'Kane Cup was raced for by but three horses and of these Prince Howard was distanced the first heat. The race was between J. C. Ohlandt's Harvey B. and Robert Gellegher's Admiral Dewey. It was Harvey B.'s cup in two straight heats. The second heat was in 2:31, and this will be the class of the next race for the handsome and expensive trophy donated by Mr. Frank O'Kane, one of the directors of the association.

The fourth race was called the free for all. Four fast pacers were in this contest, Roan Wilkes on the strength of his mark of 2:12½ being made the favorite. Butcher Boy welked away with the first heat however, and Catinke, after ecting hedly the first mile, took the next two hendly, lowering her mark to 2:17½ and showing herself capable of being a money winner when handled by a professional driver in much faster time.

The 2:20 class race was just a jog for King Cadenza, who splendidly driven by his owner Mr. H. H. Dunlap, won as he pleased in 2:25½ and 2:20½, Prince C., another pacer, getting second money and Alta Vala, an eleven-year-old son of Electioneer, getting third place and showing his ability to add another to the 2:30 list of that great sire at any time.

The Butcher's race was won by Guy Vernon, a gray son of Guy Wilkes. Athavis 2:18½, took the second heat in the fastest time of the race, but broke badly in the third heat and was poorly driven. Otherwise the result would have been different.

At the end of the regular program the mare Mettie Menlo, owned by Mr. J. Coffa of this city, was sent for a record. She was paced by Peanuts. In the first part she was driven too fast, going to the half in 1:12 and broke badly going round the upper turn, but on the second trial trotted the mile very handily in 2:29½.

The summaries of the day's races follow:

NOTES OF THE MEETING.

Ethel H., the mare by Don Marvin that L. Richardson won the 2:30 trot with so handily, is a full sister to Don Lowell 2:14½. She got a record of 2:29½ in the third heat, and can heat that several seconds almost any time.

Frank G. O'Kane, the well known harness dealer who drove Roan Wilkes in the free-for-all pace, said he was in a terrible state of mind during the last heat of the race. His right arm gave out as he entered the stretch and Roan Wilkes seemed to be heading for the fence. O'Kane was driving another man's horse and sitting in a brand new $175 sulky. It looked to him for a few minutes as though his own life and that of the pacer were in danger, with the additional expense of a new sulky to be provided for by the administrator on his estate. He made one superhuman effort however, managed to steer clear of the fence and finished the mile. He could hardly be convinced that his heir had not turned gray until he looked at himself in Johnny Farley's big mirror.

King Cadenza was driven by his new owner, Mr. H. H. Dunlap, in a masterly manner. To drive a road horse a mile in 2:20½ in a race is something that every amateur cannot do. Mr. Dunlap knew nothing about racing rules when he mounted the sulky, but he did not lose his head, being perfectly content to drive carefully and permit any one to beat him who had a faster horse—in short he like the gentleman that he is. King Cadenza was the best horse in the race by odds. He should be another 2:15 performer for Steinway when properly prepared for a fast mile.

Starter Budd Doble congratulated himself that the amateur drivers seemed content all through the day to obey instructions and he satisfied with a fair start. There were seldom more than two scores to a heat, and in nearly every one of the twenty starts made during the day the horses were lined up like a company of cavalry.

Athavis, the horse that won the fastest heat in the Butchers race, is to have campaigned by Dan Misner this year. He has a record of 2:18½ and is by Clovis, out of the great broodmare Athalia, dam of Athalon 2:27, and Athenio 2:10.

When Billy McKinley came out with hoppers on in the second race after losing a heat, the wise ones in the crowd who noticed the change made a rush for the hooks and plunged. The President's namesake failed to land however.

Harry Patrick's mare Catinka reduced her record to 2:17½ so hendly that it is more than likely she could get a mark of 2:10 if pointed for a fast mile.

The four great sires, Steinway, Electioneer, Direct and Sidney were represented in the fifth race and finished in that order.

Dr. Kleiser's handsome stallion Alto Vela is a son of the mighty Electioneer and out of Lorita 2:22½, by Piedmont; second dam Lady Lowell (dam of Ladywell 2:16½), by Schnitz' St. Clair; third dam, the dam of Doc, sire of Occident 2:16½. He is as handsome as a picture and certainly has 2:20 speed. He ought to be trained and raced to a record.

Johnny Ohlandt is one of the most popular members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association and his win of the Cup race was received with enthusiasm. A friendly rivalry has long existed between Mr. Ohlandt and Mr. Gellegher and it is not beyond the range of probability that the latter may be in the market for a green trotter that can do a mile in 2:10 as he has his heart set on that cup.

Oregon News.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Bonner N. B., with Chris Simpson up, turned the Irvington track in 2:14½ this week.

Chris Simpson has bought from Smith Bailey the McKinney three-year-old out of Nancy, dam of Bonner N. B., 2:17 by Gen. McClellan.

A. E. Heller has a stable of three trotters and one pacer in training at the fair grounds near Salem. The trotters being Woodman 2:26½, Klemoth, a four-year-old green trotter, Lady Kloudyke a two-year-old and Pathmerk, by Pethmont 2:09½, a three-year-old pacer.

Van B. DaDashmit has taken up forty-two head of young horses sired by Hembletonian Mambrino and Noonday to Spokena from the range near Ellensburg where they were taken two-years ago from the Witch Hazel farm. They are being halter broken and disposed of at fair prices.

L. C. McCormick is the happy owner of another McKinney colt. His mare Ailana, by Altamont brought forth this week a full brother to Harry Mc., and Lute is happy as a clam in high time, for he is the possessor of the only full brothers sired by McKinney 2:11½, in Oregon. The youngster is black with a star and two hind feet white.

S. M. Church, of La Grande, can justly claim to own the finest team in Eastern Oregon, in Estalla 2:18 and her full sister. When hitched together it takes an expert to tall one from the other, and they can go some as well as look fine.

W. W. Smith has bought from Mrs. James, Nettie, by Nutwood, out of Kate Henderson, by Ballfounder 62. This mare was one time considered one of Oregon's best broodmares and was sold in 1892 for $1000. She will have bred to Lovelace 2:20.

W. M. Mullen is at the Irvington track with three fine young geldings one sired by Daly, one by McKinney and one by Scarlet Letter, all out of Nancy (dam of Bonner N. B. 2:17), by Gen. McClellan, property of Smith Bailey, of Roseburg.

Cleveland Track Notes.

[American Sportsman.]

John A. McKerron looks big and strong, and although he has been no mile faster than 2:28 nor allowed to step a quarter better than 34 seconds, he has all the speed that characterized him last year. He has been worked since a yearling, and considering that with the fact that this is his four-year-old form, he will have an easy year of it, and will get easy miles until fall.

If any person had an idea that Star Pointer will not be so good as in the past two years, his feelings should be dispelled at once. The big bay horse is the same Pointer of old. Dave McClary has just begun giving him fast work and on Friday the big stallion could simply fly. He worked one heat in 2:17½ with Askey and Cresceus, and then with Askey stepped another heat in 2:18 coming the last half in 1:05½ and the last quarter in 30½ seconds. The way he stepped it off was a surprise to the onlookers more than the speed, and in the heat in 2:17½ McClary could hardly hold the horse in and George Katcham and Doc Tannar who worked with him both said that Star Pointer could have paced a mile in 2:05.

The pacing stallion Hontas Crooke changed hands again on Wednesday. J. T. Dawey purchased him from Henry Sanders, and the gelding Sirock 2:14½ was turned in with the money. Hontas Crooke has been the sensation of the track this year. More than a month ago he stepped a quarter in 29½ seconds and a half in 1:04½. He was then started at the Valley track and won his race, taking a new record of 2:16½. Harry Sanders bought him after the race, and one day last week let him brush home from the three-quarter pole in 28½ seconds. He is probably as finely a made horse end as sound as any pacer living. He is a rich chestnut in color, with a beautiful head and neck, seven years old, and was sired by Bud Crooke 2:15½, out of the dam of Nevin's First 2:19½, by Pocahontas Boy. The stallion will probably make his first start at the Detroit Blue Ribbon meeting, and Millerd Sanders has him.

Dates for the Keating String.

Saginaw will be the next place at which the California horses in T. E. Keating's charge will start. As will be seen by the following list of meetings, et all of which one or more of the string have engagements, their last appearance before returning to California will be at Lexington, Kentucky, which meeting will be held from October 4th to 14th. Several of the Keating horses are entered at Los Angeles and will be put on the cars as soon as their engagements at Lexington are filled and hurried to Los Angeles by express train. Following is the Eastern itinerary of the string:

Table with 2 columns: Location and Dates. Includes Saginaw, Detroit, Cleveland, Columbus, Buffalo, Glens Falls, Readville, Hartford, New York, Providence, Louisville, and Lexington.

How to Improve Agricultural Fairs.

In the first place, every fair should be run upon a cash basis. That is, the management should run the business within the means at their command. There should be no great big premiums held up, and at the end of the list a paragraph in very small type saying that premiums will be prorated if receipts fall short of expenditures. First-class exhibitors steer clear of such fairs, as they do not care to contribute their hard-earned money to help along a fair in that way. We never saw an exhibitor go away from a fair feeling altogether good and satisfied when the premiums had to be scaled, and was asked to wait for his money until the work of prorating the surplus could be done. Better know just how much surplus revenue you can safely count on before you start in, than to hold up extravagant premiums and come out short in the end.

There are those who think fairs have deteriorated because the agricultural features have been neglected and too much money paid out for the race track, side attractions and the like. To make a fair a success we must have something on the grounds that will interest all visitors. Some people who visit a fair see nothing that interests them outside of the mechanical exhibit, others go to see fine arts, some department of the stock show, the horticultural exhibit, or from the way the crowd always begins to swell about the noon hours of each day, are simply bent on seeing the races. So we would say, make every department of the fair as attractive and complete as possible, for there will be all kinds of people to please, and if some do not find what they expected the word will go forth that the management is a very poor one and the show not up to the standard.

We believe in having special attractions, but it seems to me that the matter has been somewhat overdone of late. People have been humbugged so often by this sort of procedure that special attractions fail to attract. Too much care and discretion cannot be exercised in securing and putting on special features, and fair managers should be sure they have something of true merit and that will satisfy visitors before they advertise them. The fairs receive donations from the States because they are supposed to be educational institutions and that the public will receive instruction on various topics and in various ways that will more than overbalance the outlay. It has been a question with us whether or not this educational feature is kept as prominent as it should be in most instances. We notice in some of the premium lists that have reached us this season an inclination to get back to some of the old time methods, such as lectures by prominent men and women of the land, plowing contests, machinery tests, battles of the breeds, and the like. This is one of the things that ought to be done. A good lecture hall or audience room should be provided on any fair ground and when it is known that people of a national reputation are going to talk on matters that interest any large class of fair visitors, we have not only a good attraction, but we are scattering useful knowledge as well, and thus the fair is made a real educational institution.

We like the night show in the pavilion as well as the day for all of our fairs. The great majority of visitors do not care much for the theater if there is something out of the ordinary to be seen in the pavilion, and many persons in the city will visit the fair evenings when everything is kept open and there is something to amuse or entertain.

With as liberal a premium list as the management of a fair can afford and such attractions as can be secured that are instructive and interesting, the next important step is to advertise your fair. No matter how liberal you may be with your money or what sort of entertainment you have provided, your success will not be assured until you let your light shine—advertise what you have got to the world. It is here that the wide-awake, energetic secretary of an association can distinguish himself, as many have done and are doing. Matter of a new character can be prepared and sent out regularly, beginning a few months before the fair, and most publishers will only be too glad to assist the work of booming the fair along, as there is no personal axe to grind and only the highest interest of the greatest number of the whole people is to be subserved.

Lastly, keep up your reputation and good name by closing the gates on all sorts of fakes and fake shows, as they are no part of any great educational institution, and besides being demoralizing in their influence, divert the attention of visitors from legitimate exhibits.—American Agriculturist,

In the Starter's Stand.

The man who undertakes the starting of races as a profession, if he be wise, will do all that he can to cultivate the friendship and confidence of the drivers. The men in the sulkies can make or unmake a would-be starter, and they are not long in making up their minds as to the course they intend to pursue after their first meeting. Most drivers are not unreasonable if they find that the man giving the word is master of his task. They are inclined to "feel" of him just as they would a strange horse for the satisfaction of learning what will happen under certain circumstances, and it is the starter's fault if this first coming together does not result in an understanding that lasts for all time. If the starter be cool, firm, impartial and respectful, he at once gains the good will of the driver, and from that time on will undoubtedly have his assistance as well as his good will. But let the driver learn that the starter is undecided, impulsive and given to favoritism, then trouble is on in earnest. Did you ever notice the difference in a large field where all the drivers were striving to come down in a line, without unnecessary scoring, knowing that the men in the stand would give them every protection to which they were entitled? Did you ever notice another field in which the drivers knew that if they could secure an advantage the starter would more than likely let them have it rather than call them back, unless it was too apparent? In one instance the field gets away with but little delay, and in the other there is that tiresome ringing of the bell that detracts so much from the enjoyment of the sport. The difference is the contest between a successful meeting and one that is a failure. For the starter to cultivate the good will of the drivers does not mean that he associate with them when out of the stand. Perhaps that would be a mistake, as too strong friendships might spring up. But when in the stand he can treat them with a spirit of fairness and decency that will quickly win their respect, and if he has the ability to properly discharge the duties of his position he will soon have their confidence. Then his work is as easy as a man can expect who has to do with a lot of high-strung horses that are largely composed of bundles of nerves. The worst mistake a starter can make is to assume the air of some superior being who is compelled by fate to preside over the actions of a lot of hoodlums. If a starter really feels that to be the situation, he would better seek some more congenial job.—The Horseman.

Hereditary Traits.

"Hereditary entailment is not confined to deformity says Col. E. S. Edwards of the Newark Sunday Call. It is now certain that all defects are transmissible and that accidental deformities frequently become perpetuated in the progeny. It is not affirmed that a mare that has lost a leg would produce foals with one leg, although it is certain that persistent removal of the incipient horns has changed a herd of horned cattle to polls. But it is not alone physical deformity that may be entailed, habits, peculiarity of temper, behavior and many singularities are transmitted with unerring certainty. A gray mare which stood in the stable of the family of the writer had a habit of weaving, swaying her head back and forth, and at the same time raising one foot and then the other about an inch from the ground. She had three colts, and the habit was transmitted to each. Another mare was never known to lie down. The writer had knowledge of this mare for thirteen years, and in all that time she was never seen off her feet, except to roll, and she foaled a filly which inherited the same peculiarity. A mare that takes her own part in the field and bosses the yard, will, in all probability, produce a foal that would be equally domineering. We know of a mare that would not step over an obstruction a foot high, and the bars must all be let down to the bottom before she would leave the field, and one out of five of her produce evinced the same objection. The habit of scraping the bedding back and piling it up in the rear of the stall is certainly hereditary. A gentleman living in this city has a mare that cannot be turned out to pasture because of her propensity to jump the fences. A filly out of this same mare has developed this same propensity in a marked degree. The filly is coming two years old and is never turned out without being hopped. Few trotting sires or trotting dams produce speed uniformly, but the trotting instinct and the disposition to do nothing but trot is so strongly hereditary in so large a proportion of the progeny that the absence forms the exception to the rule. The whole problem of heredity presents the most interesting phenomena. The lessons that are being learned from the wonders it presents to the material universe are of incalculable value to the scientific breeder. To him heredity has a wide significance. He takes advantage of the hereditary tendencies toward good qualities and works away from those that bring bad forms and compromising progeny."

HANDBALL arrived in Lexington, Tuesday, and was taken to McGrathiana to join the other stallions owned by Mr. Milton Young. Handball is a chestnut horse, foaled in 1895, sired by Hanover, dam Keepsake, by Onondaga; second dam Kelp, by imp. Strachino. He is a horse of fine proportions, was a good race horse, and his pedigree, individuality and turf performances have acquired for him a position of honor in the McGrathiana stud. As a two-year old, among his performances, he won the Expectation Stakes, beating L'Alouette, George Keene, etc.; the Tremont Stakes, carrying 118 pounds, and beating Bowling Brook, 111; Varus, 111; Kitefoot, 115, etc. As a three-year-old, he won the Tidal Stakes, carrying 122 pounds and defeating Sanders, Boy Orator, Kitefoot, besides other races. His first start this year, a three-quarter spin, he placed to his credit from those fast sprinters Harry Reed, Trillo, Mezarine, Ben Hadad, etc., and having recently gone amiss has been permanently retired. It is sufficient augury of his future in the stud that he is the only son of the dead Hanover at McGrathiana.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., Jan. 8, 1899.

MR. W. F. YOUNG, Springfield, Mass.
Dear Sir: I have just finished using one bottle of Absorbine on the front leg of Brooks 2:15 after firing and blistering, "slick" results. I am also using it on a curb of another horse with seemingly good results.

Please state price of your medicine by the case, and oblige,
Yours truly, JOHN J. BRIDLER.

Famine in Trotters.

Some fifty prospective buyers went home from the late Fesig-Tipton sale in Cleveland without horses. They thought the prices too high. Since that time many buyers have purchased at private sale, at prices above the average at the auction sale, says the American Sportsman. Others are still in the market looking in vain for what they desire.

There are some twenty members of a half-dozen metinee clubs that we know of that will give up good money for horses fit for metinee racing, and we know of others that will pay well for race prospects. But where are the horses? What has become of the great army of at least 11,000 horses that competed on the trotting turf last year? By the Year Book of 1898 there were about 7,440 that achieved standard records. Added to these are the 1,930 horses that raced last year without obtaining standard records. To this number must be added at least 2000 that were temporarily retired owing to ailing limbs or inability to race successfully in their class. Still the campaign of 1899 opens with no surplus of race horses to receive an absolute scarcity of good road horses with speed, and metinee horses. And there are not enough speed horses in sight, either East, West or South to supply the demand. And the scarcity is sure to be aggravated, because the regular breeders are not breeding one-half as many as in former years, and the small farmers and miscellaneous breeders have quit breeding high class speed horses.

Last week a representative of the American Sportsman took a 500-mile trip through Western Ohio and Eastern and Northern Illinois. In a daylight ride of 200 miles from Lafayette, Ind., to Toledo, through the rich garden lands of Indiana and Northwestern Ohio, he saw only two colts of 1899 birth. A day of bright early June sunshine across a thousand farms and pasture fields too numerous to mention and only two colts. There were lambs and calves a-plenty, with babbling little ducks by every babbling brook, and downy goslings everywhere, but no colts. Why is this thus? Has the senseless talk in so many of the metropolitan papers about the coming horseless age driven all business sense out of the minds of the breeders, or have they not yet realized the sure advantage of horse prices that the coming famine is sure to bring?

We are sure we shall not lose caste as a prophet when we predict that breeding high-class road and speed horses is now the best paying investment the stock farmers can make.—Trotter and Pacer.

Favors Hard Horse Collars.

William Bristol, San Bernardino Co., Cal., thus discusses the horse collar question in a coast paper:

"For some months past Spanish cruelty has been a popular theme. It is a thing of many types and widely disseminated. Two are common in California and some Americans are thoughtlessly abetting their perpetuation. I refer to the Spanish bit and spur, inhuman accoutrements of the caballero and his helpless beast. But while condemning these Castilian instruments of torture we are compelled to admit that there is an American device no less cruel to the patient horse. The galling Spanish yoke is, in a measure, a thing of metaphor; but the galling American horse collar is a painful every day reality. Not that the American is intentionally cruel—far from it; but there is a widespread ignorance of what constitutes a good horse collar and it is responsible for many sore shoulders and countless detestable sweat pads.

"There is a striking analogy between the shoulder of a horse and the hand of a man. Each is respectively the lever by which the power is applied. Broadly speaking every implement designed for the use of man is provided with a handle, and this handle is made to fit the hand. It is about a certain size, is rounded, smooth and hard; at least it is never made soft with a view to be easier on the hand.

"The three qualifications last named should be present in the horse collar. If the collar is the proper length and fits the animal, and is stuffed full and round, it may be hard as iron without danger of galling the shoulder. Of course the hames must be drawn up high enough so that the draft will not center on the shoulder joint.

"The logic of this is simple. If the handle of a manual implement galls the hand it is because of roughness or improper shape—never because it is hard. If it is to be continuously used the man does not put on a mitten in warm weather to overcome a defect in it; neither does he demand that the handle be made of something soft, but simply that it be shapely, smooth and hard. The collar which is round and hard rolls on the skin at every motion of the animal, somewhat after the manner of a bell-bearing, admitting the air and thereby cooling the parts, but the flat, soft collar sticks so closely that it compels the skin to move on the underlying flesh in such a way as to produce irritation and deep-seated galls.

"These simple principles are understood by most harness dealers and, as a matter of fact, sheet-metal collars have been placed on sale; but the dealers handle what sells best, and they say that the demand is for soft collars and sweat pads. Evidently the emancipation of the horse is not immediately at hand."

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER among horsemen. The California Circuit is arranged with one slight exception and that will be all settled by Tuesday next and announced through the daily papers of next Wednesday morning. The Grand Circuit (and it can truly be called a grand one this year) will comprise TWELVE WEEKS of harness and running racing, beginning at Willows August 1st and ending at Los Angeles October 28th. At nearly every place on this circuit $1000 purses will be given. There are a few exceptions, not over three or four places, however, where the purses will not be so large. It has been a hard pull to get the machinery in motion to make a good circuit possible this year, but the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has never allowed its energy in the matter to abate for one week, but has drummed "district fair" into the directors ears continually. It may have sounded a little monotonous at times, but we believe the end justified the means and now that a circuit has been arranged, though perhaps not as every individual would have shaped it, it is a circuit, and the best that could be made under the circumstances. Next week's issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will contain the complete details of purses, routes, etc. The Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association has selected as its date August 14th and 19th. The citizens of two cities, Marysville and Santa Rosa, made overtures to the association to hold the meeting at their tracks. There was a little vagueness as to the exact terms offered by Santa Rosa, and in justice to the people there it was decided by the Board of Directors at a meeting held Thursday of this week to postpone the final hearing of the matter until Tuesday next, when the matter will be finally determined. The meeting is assured. It will be either at Marysville or Santa Rosa. The place will be announced next Wednesday morning

ONE WEEK FROM TO-DAY entries to the $1000 purses and two $1,500 purses offered by the California State Agricultural Society will close with Secretary Shields at Sacramento. It is almost an absolute certainty that the list of entries will be "the record" for the year, that is, larger than is received by any other association on the Coast, and it is to be hoped that it will break all previous records. For a California association to offer $15,000 for fourteen purses is liberality that should be rewarded, and every owner who has the interests of himself, the harness horse and the State Fair under consideration will enter largely in these rich events. The California Circuit for 1899 will be a brilliant one. The entries for the Breeders meeting and the Golden Gate Fair already closed prove that. The fields in nearly all the races will be large, and while there are many good horses named in the events it is a hard matter for anyone to pick even a prospective winner. There are no "phenoms" in sight as yet among the record horses or the green ones. There never was a year when a 2:15 trotter or a 2:12 pacer had a better opportunity of winning a generous amount. As there is a bounteous harvest in nearly every county in the State this year, the attendance is certain to be very large at the Fair, and consequently the opportunities of winning heavily with a good horse will be greater than ever. The horse owner who does not enter liberally at the State Fair this year will throw away a chance that may not present itself again for some time.

LOS ANGELES is bound to be in the lead with big purses. District Association No. 6 has now offered purses of $2000 each for the free for all trotters and pacers. The other purses are for $1000 each, and California this year is coming up nearly if not quite to the Eastern grand circuit standard in the size of purses offered. Los Angeles has also selected her dates—October 21st to 28th inclusive, which takes in two Saturdays. The lateness of the dates gives everybody a chance to get there after all other engagements are filled. There will be horses from the East in all probability and all the Californians will return in time to race at the meeting. It is going to be the greatest meeting ever held in the city of angels and every horseman in California should make an attempt to be there. The advertisement of these new purses with conditions and all further particulars will appear next week.

THE GOOD NEWS has been sent to California from Mount Clemens, Michigan, where T. E. Keating has been under the care of physicians for some days, that he is much improved and according to his own statement reports of his sickness have been exaggerated by the newspapers. This will be good news to everybody in California, and as he says he is now able to be with his horses it is to be hoped his health will permit him to make the entire campaign that he has mapped out for his string of champions. It is not probable that he will be strong enough to drive his horses in their work or in races, but his splendid ability as a manager and trainer can be exercised from the ground, and with a driver like McHenry to hold the ribbons and a man like John Blue to look after the condition of the horses, they form a trio that would be hard to duplicate in any country.

SIX PURSES OF $1000 EACH are to be given by the Stockton Driving Club at its meeting, which follows the State Fair. They will be for the 2:40, 2:30 and free-for-all trots and the 2:30, 2:15 and free-for-all pacing events. Entries to these will close August 1st. There will be, besides these, other harness events and a number of running races, conditions of which will be announced later on. The advertisement will appear next week.

GOLDEN GATE'S MEETING promises to be "a corker." Its list of entries to the harness events declared closed are published in full on page 28 of this issue. It will be seen at a glance that the fields will be large, even though but half of those entered should start. The running program, which will soon be announced, will doubtless attract fully as large a list as the harness events have done. Golden Gate's meeting at Oakland in August will be a record breaker.

LOS ANGELES MEETING.

Dates Selected and Purses Arranged for the Fall Meeting.

Directors of the Los Angeles Association, District No. 6, met last Wednesday and decided to offer light harness purses in addition to the five stakes already closed. They also selected dates and the meeting will open Saturday, October 21st and close Saturday, October 28th. Full particulars of these purses will be published next week. The eight purses are as follows:

ROBERT BONNER IS DEAD, and there has been removed from earthly scenes the man who did most to shape the conditions that made the American trotting horse what he is to-day, the greatest source of pleasure and profit of any of the equine breed. Taking to road riding as a tonic to restore energies that were being expended too fast in hard work, Bonner became not only a lover of the trotter, but a student of pedigrees, and the means to improve his condition and ability to display speed. Having an immense fortune he was willing to pay liberally for the best and did more than any one man to inaugurate and establish the healthy state of affairs now existing in the trotting horse business, by which it has been demonstrated that a fast trotter has a value greater than that of a gambling machine. Mr. Bonner never raced a horse in his life for money, yet he paid millions for record breakers and has owned more than one champion. The horses owned by him at the time of his death are estimated as worth $250,000 in the market to-day. For Maud S. 2:08 1/2 he paid $40,000 and for Sunol 2:08 1/2 he gave $50,000. He owned the old champions Dexter, Peerless, Rarus and many others, and the money he was always ready to pay for the best led men to try and breed that kind. The study he gave the foot of the horse, and the proper manner of shoeing, has done more to ameliorate the condition of the noble animal than any thing ever done, for the reason that he gave his views wide publicity and they have been adopted by horsemen all over the world. Mr. Bonner made his fortune with the New York Ledger, a paper he purchased when it was only a small newspaper plant without reputation or circulation and made it the leading family weekly of America. "Born near Londonderry, Ireland, on April 28, 1824, his life up to the time he was 15 years of age, was that of an ordinary country lad. His energy and thrift showed themselves even at this early age, however, for in 1839 he left the land of his birth and came to America, going to Hartford, Conn., where lived his uncle, a prosperous farmer. The future journalist soon after his arrival entered the office of the Hartford Courant as an apprentice. Here he thoroughly learned the printer's trade. During his employment on the Courant he is said to have laid the foundation of his future wealth by extra work and rigid economy. Hartford was evidently not a broad enough field for Bonner's progressive spirit, and in 1844 he moved to New York. He afterward opened a small printing office, where he set up the type for the Merchants Ledger and several other papers for a certain price per week. After conducting this business for some time another, and, as it proved, his greatest opportunity presented itself.

The proprietor of the Ledger had invented a printing press, and like all inventors, he thought his fortune was therefore made. To be able to devote more time to the perfection of his invention he determined to sell his paper. As Bonner had made something of a profit by setting up the paper, which he was afraid he would lose if it passed out of his hands, he determined to purchase it himself. This he did, paying only about $1000 for the title, good will and everything else connected with the sheet. The purchase was made in 1851, at which time Bonner was 27 years old. The Ledger began to assume more the appearance of a paper of general interest than a distinctly commercial sheet. The statistical tables of produce exchanges and fluctuations in the money market which had formerly filled its columns gave way to news of general interest and miscellaneous articles. Encouraged by the soon increased circulation, Bonner determined on greater improvements. In 1853 he engaged Lydia H. Sigourney, who at that time had a wide reputation as a poet, to contribute some of her poems to the Ledger. Her engagement continued until her death in 1865.

The publisher now determined to make his paper a journal of current literature and popular fiction. In 1855 he secured Fanny Fern, then in the height of her short-lived fame, and her $100 a column stories advertised the Ledger extensively. She wrote exclusively for the paper during the remainder of her life. Every literary man or woman of note was now sought after by Bonner. Everett was paid $10,000 for a series of short articles called "the Mt. Vernon papers"; Becker was paid $25,000 for his "Norwood," and Greeley obtained a like sum for his "Recollections." Charles Dickens, Bryant, George Bancroft, Fitz Green Halleck, James Gordon Bennett, Henry J. Raymond, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Julia Ward Howe and any number of college professors, clergymen and persons of any noted literary talent were also persuaded by the use of the almighty dollar to contribute stories, anecdotes and miscellaneous articles to the rapidly growing and now prominent New York Ledger.

Bonner now began to advertise his paper extensively, and from the apparent reckless expenditure of money in this direction his friends thought he had gone crazy. Columns, half pages, pages and then all the space a leading paper would give was secured for the leudation of the Ledger. In 1858, $2500 was paid for a single advertisement in the New York Herald. His annual expenditure for advertising alone amounted to $150,000. The result was that his fortune was assured. The Ledger kept growing and growing and its circulation reached 400,000. When Bonner started the Ledger he was worth almost nothing—at his death he left an estate estimated to be worth between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, all of which was made on the Ledger.

In business Mr. Bonner was very methodical. He generally arrived at his office about 10 o'clock every morning, dined at 3 and went home at six o'clock. His personal habits were likewise regular and he was abstemious.

In 1878, he had the misfortune to lose his wife, to whom he was greatly attached, but whose loss he tried to hear by the affection he showed to his five children.

Mr. Bonner had been ill for some months, yet was able to be about until about ten days ago. His death was due to a general breaking down of the system. There were with him when he died Robert Edward Bonner and Francis Bonner, his sons; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bonner, son and daughter-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ford, son-in-law and daughter.

Mr. Bonner enjoyed remarkable health until a year ago, when his life-long friend, Rev. Dr. John Hall, died. A second shock to him was the death of his son, Andrew Allen Bonner, on December 27th last. After this Mr. Bonner's temperament changed completely. He made fewer trips to his magnificent farm near Tarrytown, and contented himself with a short drive daily. A week ago Tuesday he took his last drive. On his return home his case was so serious that several doctors were called in for consultation. He became much worse on the following day, and up to the time of his death, which took place last Thursday, took no nourishment. He lost consciousness early Thursday morning and remained in that condition to the end.

Imp. Won the Brighton Cup.

The Brighton Beach Racing Association opened its gates Thursday with several stakes on the card, of which the Brighton Handicap was the feature. Imp, the best Western mare who won the Suburban, was the winner of the big event, at a long price, in the best time of 2:05 2/5, a new track record. Ethelbert, the pronounced favorite and winner of the Realization, was second under the wire, with Bangle in third place. The track was in excellent condition. For the Brighton Handicap May Hempstead, the Western filly, was second choice, with little to choose between Imp, Bangle, Martimas and Maxine at longish odds.

Imp's victory was very popular with the masses, and as the watch stopped at 2:05 2/5 it showed a new record for the track end very close to that for the distance on any circular track.

For Racing Managers to Consider.

Regarding the right of an association to permit an owner to enter one horse in two classes and charge either a nominal fee or no fee at all for the privilege of starting in the second event, there can be no question as discussed last week. At the same time associations will do well to make their arrangements that their liberality will not result in keeping both entries and spectators away from their meetings. An example of how easily this may be done may be given. At a certain eastern meeting last fall there was entered in the 2:40 and end 2:17 pacing classes a certain horse that had not long been converted from the trot end that promised extraordinarily well at the lateral gait. He was conceded one if not both of the races, if he started, but it was not thought that his owner would go in both. Accordingly on the first day of the meeting he was named as a starter in the 2:40 event and almost all those who had nominations in in both races stood out, while many of those who had not the right to start in the 2:27 class also kept their horses in the barn. The people who had went to go to the track and see this converted horse race were undecided as to which of the two races he might start in, and the most of them, not being posted as to the exact means of finding out whether the horse would go or not, determined to defer their visits to the course until the last day of the meeting. The gates of heaven were open on the afternoon of the third day of the meeting and the floods descended in such magnificent volume that it was impossible to do any racing at all on the Friday. The management then was compelled to hand back the entrance fees to all who had paid for the right to start in the 2:40 and 2:27 pacing classes and who had not started horses in the former event. The people who had waited for the last day to attend the meeting kept their money in their pockets and the association got very much the worst of it all the way round. This is the part of it that the association must guard against, for the money offering factor cannot suffer without the owners suffering directly or indirectly. The people rarely ever stop to reason. If they are in any way disappointed in seeing that which they wish to see they are only too prone to cry "fraud" or "fake" or something of that sort without stopping to reason anything about it. It is all very well to encourage owners to race their horses as often as they wish and to provide the opportunity for them to do so profitably, but at the same time the association must guard against its getting into trouble. —The Horsemen.

WILLOWS ON THE CIRCUIT.

Wants to Open the Ball During the First Week in August.

Willows will have a fair end race meeting during the first week in August.

Such was the decision arrived at during a meeting of the leading business men of Willows Monday night.

Frank Freeman was appointed to take charge of the affair and immediately went to work interviewing the business men of Willows as to the feasibility of holding the fair. He met with much encouragement, and was promised something like $800 in a short time.

If the farmers end others will unite in making exhibits of the resources of Glenn county, the money will be well spent. A fair such as is anticipated would attract hundreds of visitors from all sections, and prove a big advertisement.

The races will be conducted separately and the town will be expected to donate $1000, which together with what would be realized from entrance money, gate receipts, sale of privileges, etc., will make a handsome sum to give in purses, and attract a large number of the finest racing horses in the State.

It is proposed to give a hasshell tournament. Large purses will be offered to the winning teams. The first game would be played on the morning of the last day of the races (Saturday) and two games on Sunday.

Let all go to work and make this matter of holding a fair end races a go. It should not be confined to Willows alone, but the whole country should take hold for it is not he a Willows fair, but a county fair.—Willows Journal.

SALINAS WILL HOLD A FAIR.

The Dates Selected are the First Week in October.

The directors of the Monterey Agricultural Association, District No. 7, held a meeting last Wednesday and reorganized. Committees were appointed and it was decided to hold an old-time fair here this fall, the date for which is October 2d to 7th inclusive.

The directors present were J. D. Carr, J. B. Iverson C. Z. Hebert, H. S. Bell, T. J. Field, A. Wideman and J. A. Trescony. Director S. F. Mathews was the only absentee.

Organization was effected by the election of J. D. Carr president, J. B. Iverson vice president and treasurer. J. J. Kelly was again chosen to the office of secretary.

Committees were appointed as follows to serve during the current year to-wit:

Executive Committee—Directors H. S. Ball, C. Z. Hebert and A. Widemann.

Speed Program Committee—Directors C. Z. Hebert, T. J. Field end J. B. Iverson.

Premium List Committee—Directors J. A. Trescony, H. S. Ball and S. N. Matthews.

The speed committee were instructed to report at the ed-journed meeting to be held on Saturday afternoon, July 15th.—Salinas Journal.

WOODLAND IS IN LINE.

The Yolo Agricultural Society Will Give a Fair this Year.

No town in California has ever given better race meetings than Woodland, and the shire town of Yolo county will be in line this year. The Board of Directors has elected the pioneer horsemen, Ches. R. Hoppin, president, and were to meet yesterday to select a secretary, C. M. Barney, who served the association in that capacity so faithfully for years, having removed from the county. A committee was also to have been appointed to prepare a program of races and make all the necessary arrangements for holding a high class meeting this year. As the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN goes to press on Friday we are unable to give any particulars about the Woodland program this week, but we know it will be a good one and that it will attract a large list of entries and the fair will be as good as any district fair held in California this year. The grain end fruit crop of Yolo county is one of the heaviest ever harvested, and there is no more prosperous community in America.

SAN JOSE WILL GIVE $1000 PURSES.

The Program of the Meetings Will Be Ready Next Week.

A letter to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN from one of the Directors of the San Mateo end Sente Clare Agricultural Society states that the speed committee is hard at work preparing a program of harness end running events, and that in the former $1000 purses will be given in most instances. The program will be ready for publication in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN next week end the fair will be held September 25th to 30th.

THE latest attraction for a race meeting is a horse that does the cake walk.

ELLERT 2:14½ gives Stambout another 2:15 trotter. He is a brother to Stamboulette 2:10½.

LAURELS, 3, 2:15½, by Prodigal, worked in 2:14 at Cherter Oak Park, Hertford, the other day.

DAN MISNER, with Athevis 2:18½ and Algregor 2:11, has taken quarters at the Alameda track.

ROAD horses huddled end for sale. Orders taken. Address D. R. Misner, 1309 Fulton street, city.

ED LAFFERTY has added another pacer to his string in the green horse Advertiso by Advertiser.

ALL the Westerners call Keeting's string the "big cesino." It has ten horses in it that can beat 2:10.

AN offer of $1000 has been refused for the two-year-old colt by Directum out of Mey Dey 2:18½.

BILLY ANDREWS has Gentry headed for the two-minute line. He has been a mile in 2:05 already.

THE fastest quarter of the year is one in 28½ seconds, credited to the cripple, U. S. Bond, 2:15½.

JOHN NOLAN 2:08 won the free-for-all trot at Topeka, Kan., last week. The fastest mile was 2:14½.

QUE ALLEN 2:09½, the European champion, has a badly injured foot, end will hardly start this year.

BETONICA, Woodshed, Norvin G. end Esperenze will meet in the 2:10 pace at Dover, N. H., on Friday.

BINGEN 2:06½ was hitched to a sulky for the first time this year on June 16th. He trotted a mile in 2:25.

FRANK B. WALKER signed a contract last week to act as presiding judge at the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting.

MURRAY HOWE says that Coney is good for a mile in 2:06 any time he acts right end McHenry is up behind him.

THE M. & M. candidates are beginning to get stiff miles. Nick Hubinger's Royal Beron has stepped the distance in 2:16.

AT Saugus last week an owner was obliged to pay $138 back entrance on a horse which he had bought at auction last winter.

MARCUS DALY has bred his latest broodmare purchase, Jessie McGregor, by Count Roberto 2:13½, dam by Robert McGregor 2:17½, to Guy Wilkes 2:15½.

TRILEY P. 2:13½ is one of the longest berreled mares on the turf, but this does not seem to impede her, as she is one of the best trotters at the Denver meeting.

MAJOR DUBOIS has sent his good grey gelding Success 2:14, to Detroit for the grand circuit. John Weaver, the trainer for the DuBois stable will drive Success.

P. E. JESSEN's horse Juan Chico by Bey Rum 2:16½, is considered one of the best green trotters ever seen on the Selina track. Ceval Rodriguez is training him.

THE pacing mare, Annie P., is the first of the get of Perole 2:16, a son of Patron, to enter the list. She took a record of 2:23½ at the Valley track meeting at Cleveland.

MATT DWYER, who took eighty head of California trotting bred horses to Europe a few months ago, has returned to New York after a most successful trip. He got good prices end will probably make another trip this fall.

SAM MONTGOMERY, one of the directors of the Woodland Fair Association, has a two-year-old colt by Waldstein, out of an Alex Button mare, that trotted a quarter in 40 seconds four weeks after he was broken to drive. As he is a large, fine-looking colt he should be a good prospect for next year. He will not be trained this year.

A DISPATCH from Hertford to a New York paper says that Ed Mills, of Boston, has purchased Searchlight from Crellin & Keeting for $15,000. It is said that the horse will remain in McHenry's hands end race throughout the circuit. It was also said that Mills had sent an offer to P. W. Williams for his great stallion Monterey 2:09½.

THE Washington State Fair Commission has completed the speed program for races during the week, September 25th to 30th. The purses offered aggregate over $5000, and include running, pacing and trotting races, for good purses. Indian races, equaw races and Indian exhibitions will be attractions every afternoon of the last four days of the fair.

Four of the largest size California track harrows have been received at Empire City Park and two large sprinklers. The latter are to be used on the park roads and drives exclusively. The track sprinkling will be done entirely from the hydrants, which are located one hundred feet apart around the entire course.

AT Topeka last week in the free-for-all trot, the horses entered against John Nolan were up against the real thing, and knew it. The owners of the field horses secured the consent of the judges and of W. O. Foote to relieve them of the distance flag. It was a wise arrangement for every horse in the bunch would have been shut out in the final heat which was traveled in 2:14½.

"MR. JOHN BRADBURN, superintendent of Village Farm, remarked recently at Stony Ford, that in a daylight ride over the Erie from Buffalo to Goshen he did not see on either side of the railroad a single broodmare with foal by her side. He regarded this fact as highly significant, owing to what extent breeding operations have been suspended. Previous to 1895 from six hundred to one thousand mares were bred each season at Village Farm. Since then the greatest number of visiting mares to the place in one season was ninety-five. At Jewett, Howard end other farms in Erie county the annual crop of foals was heavy, but these establishments no longer exist, and a scarcity of good, serviceable horses is apparent. Even the farmers have to hunt around for something to draw the reaper and the plow. Mr. Bradburn is convinced that there will be a marked advance in prices as soon as the public begins to realize the actual condition of affairs. It takes from four to five years to grow a horse for the market. The wise men who possess a good mare will not allow her to longer run barren. He will select a good stallion end breed her right now."

Two students in the College of Agriculture of Ohio have studied thirty-two American trotting horses with a view of determining what, if any, varieties of type might be found. The average length of head of thirty-two American trotting horses was 24.6 inches, the maximum length being 27 and the minimum 22.5 inches. The height of these horses should average, according to the rules laid down, 61.5 inches. Contrary to the usual supposition concerning American trotting horses, the height at the withers was greater than at the croup by one-tenth inch. While the average height was 61.7 inches the average length was greater than the height. In six cases the length was less, and in one case it was equal. The greatest difference between length end height was 7.5 inches. The distance from the dorsal angle of the scapule to the hip instead of being the length of the horse's head, or 24.6 inches, was on an average 28.5 inches. The greater length of the back is admissible in a horse that has no weight to carry end very little to propel. The greater length of back gives greater lung power end greater sweep to the hind members. The saddle horse must be closely coupled to carry the weight, while the mode of motion end the gellop does not cause the front feet to get in the way of the hind feet. The length of the shoulder is found to be 23.9 inches, or seven-tenths of an inch shorter than the length of the head. This would seem to indicate that the shoulder blade was less slanting than in the running horse, as does also the distance from the dorsal angle of the scapule to the hip.

ONE of the funniest incidents I ever saw on a race track happened at Tonowanda, N. B., last week. The excellent metinee program was being carried out in good shape, end bookmaking on heats was at high tide. The grey mare Truffles, owned by Joseph Stevens of Buffalo, was first choice and practically barred, but for second place it was nip end tuck between Maggie B., a sweet little trotter, owned and driven by William McGredy, end Good Luck, a black pacer driven by George R. McDonald. The only McGredy won the place in the first end second heats. He saw a chance to break the Bank of Monte Carlo, end just before the third heat sent an agent to take all the tickets on Good Luck. In the meantime the hookmaker merked up Maggie B. to even up end George McDonald sent his agent to get every ticket on her. Both drivers thought they were plying up sleek, neither suspecting what the other was doing. At the start both went away lika greased lightning, McDonald's horse breeking on the back stretch end falling to the rear a half dozen lengths. At the half-mile post McGredy looked around to see where Good Luck was. His eye were like peeled onions when he noticed him away behind, and he commenced putting the breaks on. The slower Maggie B. went the slower came Good Luck, end when the homestretch was reached McGredy was getting desperate. He pulled his horse to a dog trot, but, alas! Good Luck was dog-trotting too. Then he pulled to and walk, end, end, lo and behold, Good Luck was also walking behind. McGredy had to win, and, turning upon McDonald, he flashed a $100 bill end offered to wager all kinds of Klondike claims that Good Luck was about the cheapest pacer he ever put his peepers on. All of a sudden somebody whispered the real truth to McGredy, and he fell in a dead faint, end George R. McDonald filled both his pockets with hard-earned stable silver, end hes not got over lengthing yet. Everybody roared but McGredy.

JO CUCICELLO will move his string of six, consisting of Butcher Boy 2:17½, Meud 2:23, Bessie Rankin 2:16½, and the youngsters, Puerto Rico, Manilla and a three-year-old by Direct, from Vallejo to the Alameda track.

GEO. BECKERS, owner of Zombro 2:11, reports the foaling, June 1st, of a black pacing filly by Zombro, dam Pearl Truman, by Truman 2:12; grandam Nadine, dam of Bostonica, 3, 2:10½, Amigo 2:16½, and Miss Naude 2:29½ (dam of Nordeau, 3, 2:17½), by Wildidle, thoroughbred; next two dams both in the great broodmare list. The name claimed for her is Zenobia, which signifies "Queen of the desert."

THE habit of some horses of kicking in their stall is perhaps harder to stop than any other that can be named. It is distinctly a vice, like cribbing, and often causes quite as much trouble. In regard to its treatment The Horseman says: "Perhaps the most generally used device is what is known as a pastern block. This can be procured at the stores of most large dealers in stable goods. It is hollowed out end fits around the pastern, being secured there by one or more straps. It prevents the foot being raised high enough, or doubled up, to kick. Sometimes a short piece of a fairly heavy chain attached to the pastern of the leg with which the horse kicks most frequently stops the kicking, and again sometimes the hobbling of the hind feet together with a pair of soft leather rings around the pasterns and a stout eight or ten inches of chain between them. All these devices have been used with more or less success at times and again none of them have done the slightest good. The habit is usually given rise to by nervousness and, once confirmed, is very hard to eradicate."

THE people who are ringing Tar Tartar 2:13½ through the Central New York circuit seem to be utterly fearless of National Association discipline. They have been expelled twice, but keep on reappearing regularly every year. Their operations have been very profitable, a large amount of purse and pool box moneys being secured. After getting his record in the West Tar Tartar was taken East end started as Little Joker and managed to win quite a lot of money before it was discovered that he was racing out of his class. He, together with the parties controlling him, was expelled from the National Association, but he reappeared last season, end under the name of Norval M. started in nine races before he was identified. Again a decree of expulsion was passed upon the men who were racing him, but that did not deprive them of the money they had won on him. This season an early start was made with him under the alias of Amboy, but his familiarity with the racing game aroused suspicion at once and he was stopped. In some States it is a crime to ring a horse end the law ought to be universal.

"COLUMBUS," the Kenses correspondent of the Western Horseman, tells of an occurrence a long time ago in which the old-time driver Den Mace figured, as follows: A trotter that is accustomed to have his driver "ride on his tail" will prove unsteady when a substituted driver fails to "follow suit." Other horses will not extend themselves unless the tail is free, and in order to prevent such a horse from winning it only becomes necessary for the substituted driver to hold the tail real tight by the weight of his body. There are many other items concerning the balancing of trotting horses that "prominent citizens judges" never pay the least attention to. Toe weights have been removed, hinge quarter boots have been replaced by bell quarter boots, hoppers have been loosened, blinds substituted for an open bridle, a light sulky replaced by a much heavier one, end, in one case that we call most vividly to our mind, a wooden toe weight was made to do the work of a metal one many times heavier. The case just mentioned occurred at Sterling, Ill., twenty-two years ago next October, and added a new chapter to the many turf experiences of that wizard of the sulky, Den Mace. J. D. Adams, of Prohewstown, Ill., had the grey mare Jennie B., entered in a $400 purse at Sterling for trotters eligible to the 2:40 class, end it was thought by the local betters that the mere could not be denied the race. Adams, for some unknown reason, dropped the first heat, end such a roer went up from the backers of Jennie B. that the judges were compelled to take action in the matter. Dan Mace was present at the same meeting with Hopfol, which he drove in an exhibition race against the grey pacer mare Lucy, end the judges selected that capable reinsman to pilot Jennie B. the remaining heats of her race. Now this mare required very heavy toe weights to balance her properly, end, as Adams was a blacksmith of skill, he made the weights in his own shop, end after patterns of his own designing. Being a prudent man, Adams carried the wooden patterns in Jennie's trunk, and when the mere appeared for the second heat she was wearing one twelve-ounce metal weight end one wooden weight that probably weighed one-half to three-quarters of an ounce. Our readers may imagine the result. But for quick work at the gallop Jennie B. would have fallen far behind the distance flag; as it was, she escaped the banter, but finished the mile with only one toe weight. Being of an inquiring mind, Mace walked up to the three-quarter pole and picked up the wooden weight. A broad smile illuminated his thin face as he held the trophy up before the judges' stand, explaining that he was compelled to visit a Western State to learn the virtue of wooden toe weights in a race where it was determined that a deserving favorite should not win. The remaining three heats went to Dan Mace and Jennie B., end when that gentleman shipped his horse away from Sterling the wooden toe weight went along with the balance of the traps.

Ethelbert Wine Realization Easily.

The Realization, one of the richest stakes of the year went to Ethelbert easily on July 4th, at Sheepshead Bay. Since Salvator won the first Realization in 1889, it has been captured by Tournament, Potomac, Tammany, Troubadour, Dohbins, Bright Phoebus, Requila, The Friar, Hamburg and Ethelbert. The race is for three-year-olds, at a mile and five-eighths. The year of its inauguration, when Salvator won it, was the richest, being worth $34,000, and has varied in value since, last year Hamburg getting a little under fourteen thousand dollars out of it, which was the least any horse winning it has been awarded, until this year, when it was probably not worth more than $10,000 to the winner. Fully 2,000 people saw the race run. There were five starters, with Ethelbert a pronounced favorite. In the first break Half Time stumbled, threw his jockey and ran a mile at top speed before he was caught. After some delay they went out again and this time the flag fell with Filon d'Or in front, Ethelbert next and The Bonncer third. As they came sailing down the stretch the jockeys were lying low on their horses' necks, for the wind was blowing a gale up the track and their speed was greatly retarded thereby.

As they passed the grandstand half a mile of the distance had been run in 0:50 2 5 and Filon d'Or was half a length in front of Ethelbert, he a length in front of The Bonncer, and all going well in spite of the half gale that was impeding them. They reached the five-furlong mark in 1:03 3-5, and then for a short time the wind was behind them and Spencer took a good hold of Ethelbert, letting the wind help him. He got a length the best of Filon d'Or as they rounded the lower turn.

Under the wind and as they straightened out for the run under all canvas, Lothario, little as he is, seemed to get better for a time than the others, but soon tired, and, in company with Filon d'Or, foolishly tried to catch Ethelbert, instead of saving their strength for the final rush through the stretch. As they came to the upper turn, which marked the end of the mile, 1:44 1-5 had been clicked off on the watch of the timer, and Ethelbert, under wraps, was still a length to the good. Next came Filon d'Or, two lengths in front of The Bonncer, both being urged a bit by their riders, while Lothario was fourth, with Half Time, hopelessly beaten, in last place.

The mile and a quarter on the upper turn, and the last bit of the race with a fair wind, was reached in 2:10 by Ethelbert, but Spencer had concluded that it was time for him to cinch the race and he loosened his horse's head and left the others as if they were standing still. The speed was not great then, but the ground covered had been long and the wind no less than it had been. With but a quarter of a mile to go, the lot came into the stretch, Ethelbert gaining with every jump. A furlong from home he was a half a dozen lengths in the lead, and, in spite of the fact that Spencer took a steady pull on him, he won by a dozen lengths, while Lothario got the piece by a couple of lengths.

Realization Stakes, one mile and five-eighths—Ethelbert, 118 (Spencer), 9 to 20 and out, won; Lothario, 122 (Turner), 10 to 1 and 5 to 2, second; Filon d'Or, 119 (O'Leary), 8 to 1 and 2 to 1, third. Time, 2:51 2-5. The Bonncer and Half Time also ran.

Hilo Sporting Men Protest.

The following from a paper published at Hilo, H. I., shows that the races at Honolulu June 11th were very unsatisfactory to the Hilo horsemen who attended. The statements of the defeated are always to be taken cum grano salis, but if the following has any truth in it the Hilo people surely had a kick coming:

The sporting men and race horse owners of Hilo have returned from Honolulu with anything but a Christian spirit toward their brethren in that city, and if all accounts can be credited (and they seem to hold together pretty well), they seem to be justified.

Mr. J. R. Wilson, owner of Parnainto, Von Wagner, Frank S., J. R. and Wela Ka Hao, relates his own experience as follows:

"In the first race on Monday, the half mile dash free for all, there was entered Venos, Frank S. and J. R. Frank S. won the race by a neck, Venos second and J. R. third. After the race the jockeys were called in the stand and Mr. Albert Horner, the starter. They were questioned regarding a foul which was alleged to have been committed on J. R. by Venos; it was stated by Albert Horner that Venos had run into J. R. and the jockey was fined $5. The judges then announced that it was a dead heat and must be run over again. According to racing rules the horse committing a foul loses the race. Accordingly I claimed that I had won the money once and refused to start again, for which I was fined $25."

Mr. Geo. Rodiek, owner of Antidote, Sea Breeze, Royalist and Gaiety Girl, states that in the fourth race for the Irving cup there were entered Antidote, Amarino and Sea Breeze. Antidote had the pole and won by about ten lengths Sea Breeze instead of taking the same course made a straight race, running away with the jockey. The rider of Amarino claimed a foul "by cut off by Sea Breeze." The judge not only imposed a fine upon Mr. Rodiek and ruled Sea Breeze's jockey off the track for life, but declared the race a dead heat between Antidote who had won by ten lengths, and Amarino, who had been fouled, making them run the race over again. In this heat the jockey riding Amarino cut Antidote two or three times over the head with his whip, of which, however, the judges took no notice and adjudged the race to Amarino, who won by but a few inches.

Mr. Rodiek says that all through he was treated shamefully and both he and Mr. Wilson have withdrawn all their horses from the Honolulu track and will henceforth run them in Hilo, where a track will soon be built and a jockey club formed. This only leaves five or six horses on the Honolulu track, and only one Hawaiian bred, Amarino. "We are going to run our horses in Hilo, where we can get an honest race," said Mr. Rodiek in closing.

Admiral Beat Hempstead.

One of the greatest equine duels of recent years took place at the Coney Island Jockey Club's track, Sheepshead Bay, Saturday afternoon, July 1st, amid a scene of such enthusiasm as is rarely aroused, save by the Brooklyn, Suburban, or Futurity. The event, although announced as a special sweepstakes, open to all three-year-old fillies, was really a match between the two cracks of the year—May Hempstead and Admiral—and it was never seriously expected that any other would have the hardihood to come in.

The two fillies were regarded as in a class by themselves, and there was widespread anxiety to learn which of them would be most likely to follow in the footsteps of the mighty Firenze. The majority of the ring grabbed at 4 to 5 eagerly on Admiral. The Westerners, however, never wavered in their loyalty to May Hempstead and kept her price steady at even money.

At the second start they broke together, and the race was fairly on. For a second May Hempstead, on the inner rail, seemed to have a slight advantage, but Admiral promptly ran alongside and they were piloted together, so closely that even with the aid of strong glasses it was difficult to realize that there were really two in the race. At the first turn the Western filly, favored by the inner-side position, drew away a trifle, but Admiral quickly resumed her former position. Down the long back stretch they dashed together, but Admiral soon shot past her rival. It was no spasmodic effort, either, as she drew away yard by yard until she showed clear on the turn for home. Turner called on May Hempstead to go her limit. She responded gamely and with speed that would win in almost any company, but Admiral was simply devouring space in front, and it soon became a hopeless stern chase for the Western celebrity. Turner on May Hempstead made a last rally opposite the betting ring, but she seemed to have just a forlorn hope of getting up, and Clawson took an anxious look around. He sized up the situation properly, however, and, seeing that the other was all out, he rated Admiral home a winner by two lengths. The pace, which was good at all stages, became terrific at times, especially while the issue hung in the balance. The fractional parts of the race run as follows: First furlong, 0:11 4-5; quarter, 0:23 1-5; three furlongs, 0:35; half mile, 0:47; five furlongs, 0:59 2-5; six furlongs, 1:12 4-5; seven furlongs, 1:25 4-5; one mile, 1:40 1/2.

Quarterstaff in Oregon.

Quarterstaff, Friar Tack's best son, which was raced so successfully by Curly Brown and who afterwards won many races for Burns & Waterhouse, has, for the last two years, been making the season at Jordan, Mono county. Since his retirement from the turf he has been bred to sixty mares, and with proper selection of mares for him, should prove a good sire; his breeding is of the best; the speedy strain of Eclipse blood descending through Hermit and Tonchstone on the sire's side, is well backed up by the stout Glencoe cross which he inherits through both grandams in the maternal line.

During his turf career Quarterstaff started ninety-seven times in all and finished inside the money in a majority of his races. In his three-year-old form he was a remarkably consistent performer; starting forty-six times, he finished first on sixteen occasions, was second ten times and third eight times; he won at all distances from five furlongs up to a mile and fifty yards, and defeated some of the best horses in training at that time. One of his best performances was of seven furlongs, when, carrying 107 pounds, he ran the distance in 1:28 over a slow track, defeating Pescador, Revolver, Jacobin and Sir Reel. He also ran six furlongs in :14 1/2, with 105 pounds up, on which occasion the speedy Motto, Gladiola, Romair, and other good horses finished behind him.

SADDLE NOTES.

ST. ELIZABETH, by St. Carlo—Bessie W., belonging to Ed Lanigan, took cold on the trip and died soon after reaching Saratoga.

FLEUR DE LIS won a race at New York recently and the local turf writers put her down just as she is rated here, viz: "a good mare when fit."

ED. CURRIGAN paid $1100 for a Fonso—Giralda colt at a New York sale last Friday, and $1700 for a Fonso—Duchess Caroline colt. Mr. Currigan has been purchasing extensively at the New York sales.

CHAS. FAIR has lost his Ormonde filly Orivia, which he purchased at the Macdonough sale last winter. She died from pneumonia, which has afflicted many more of the California horses now in the East.

At a meeting of the English Jockey Club last week it was unanimously resolved to recommend the stewards to adopt a starting gate for all two-year-old races in 1900. The Prince of Wales spoke in favor of the resolution.

J. B. HAGGIN has shipped to Lexington and had turned out at Ashland Park Farm, now leased by Miller & Sibley as a trotting horse establishment, seventy head of thoroughbred yearlings. They are a portion of those shipped from California for the New York sales.

REY DEL TIERRA, son of Prince of Norfolk and Haidee, died from pneumonia at Saratoga a few days ago. He was one of the best horses in Ed Purser's string and his loss will be a heavy one for the stable. Rey del Tierra won the Palace Hotel handicap at Oakland during the last season and annexed a number of good races during his career.

A COMPLETE list of the foals of 1899 at the Bitter Root Farm in Montana shows that of the get of imp. Inverness there are 12, Tammany 9, Montana 11, Bathampton 4, imp. Matt Byrnes 1, imp. THREE track records were broken at Hawthorne on the 17th. Old Meddler did six furlongs in 1:13, cutting a quarter of a second from the previous record held by Ahe First. Great Bend did a mile in 1:40. The old record was 1:40 1/2, held jointly by Queen of Song and John Bright. The third horse to break a record was Banquo II, that did the mile and a half in 2:36, clipping four seconds from the record. Beauchamp heads the list of winning jockeys at Hawthorne.

THE San Mateo Hunt Club will give a race meeting at the Hohart Farm race track, San Mateo, on Saturday, July 15, 1899. On this occasion the principal event will be the J. J. Moore Cup, offered for steeplechase two miles and a half; jumps three feet high; minimum weight two hundred pounds; for horses that have hunted twice during the season of 1898-1899, ridden by members of the Hunt Club, who have hunted twice. Trophy—Silver cup, valued $100, offered by J. J. Moore. There will be several other races on the program. All are post entries.

BONEY BUY is giving an evidence of the stamina of his sire, Blitzen. Saturday, the 17th of June, he ran in a mile event, the time for which was 1:40. The following Monday he was third in the seven-furlong race which approached the world's record, yet the next day he was called upon to compete in the mile affair and, standing a drive the entire length of the stretch, he won in the noteworthy time of 1:39 1/2, which displaced the mark just established Saturday. The Bradley colt carried 95 pounds and was right in the first bunch through all of that heartbreaking pace.

MR. A. B. SPRECKELS recently received a letter from Cy Mnlky who started for the Klondyke a year and a half ago. Mr. Mnlky is at present situated on the Kobkn river many miles north of Yukon. The members of his party have done considerable prospecting in that vicinity, but have not as yet "struck it." Mr. Mnlky expects soon to start for the Aleutian islands on the Arctic side. He says if gold is there he is determined to get some of it before he starts home. The weather is fine and the entire party have enjoyed excellent health during the winter months.

BRIGADE, chestnut colt by Hayden Edwards, proved himself a good three-year-old last week at Harlem track, Chicago, when he defeated a field of good horses at a mile and an eighth in 1:53 1/2, within half a second of the Harlem track record for the distance. The performance was the more remarkable because the conditions were not favorable for fast time. There was a chill in the air and a stiff breeze was blowing up the stretch. Aside from this the Harlem course is not quite at its best. Brigade was conceding five pounds on the scale to What'er Lon and Rifle and four pounds to Isabay and Monk Wayman.

The Medal Contests for 1899.

Seven of the twelve contests of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club for this season have already taken place; the skill and progress of individual members in the sport of fly-casting shown at the Stow Lake meetings will be seen upon perusal of the classification tables on page 24. The seven club contests determine the class standing of each fly-caster during the five concluding competitions of the club medal series.

Four different events—long distance, accuracy, delicacy and lure-casting—are embraced in the contests. In the first event, three classes are made up, viz.—The championship class, embracing those who have averaged 100 feet and over (the limit was 95 feet last year)—First class, composed of those whose average is between 85 and 100 feet (between 80 and 95 feet for 1898)—Second class, all fly-casters averaging under 85 feet (80 feet was the mark last year).

The accuracy event embraces two classes—The championship class, consisting of those who have averaged 88 per cent and over (85 per cent ruled last season)—First class are those who have averaged less than 88 per cent (85 per cent in 1898).

In the third or delicacy event two classes are provided.—The championship class, enrolled in which are those whose average has been over 80 per cent—Under 80 per cent averages comprise the first class. The percentage is the same as prevailed during last season.

Lure-casting embraces but a single class—the championship class—the highest score counting for the medal.

After the twelve contests are concluded the winners in the Saturday and Sunday classes respectively will meet in a final competition for the club trophies.

The following list shows the present averages of the members and the various classes in which they will compete during the coming five contests, commencing Saturday, July 15, 1899.

Tigers' Traits.

"Seeing is believing," so runs the proverb, but there are cases in which one is content to "believe" without waiting for ocular confirmation. Such has been our experience on various occasions writes Frances Maxwell in the Asian, and a few instances of the same I will now state. All over the Sutterlands, once the happy home of the salt maker, are scattered remains of old salt pans disused long since by order of Government. Now they are almost invariably tenanted by one or more tigers who find the raised ground on which they were built and shady trees by which they are surrounded a decided improvement as a residence to the muddy flats surrounding them. One morning rowing about the khalls looking for a likely place to tie up we went ashore at one of these old salt pans with the intention of making our way inland, some fine big trees tempting us to further exploration. First we had a bank of soft mud to climb up. Arrived at the top we found the jungle was very thorny and dense, but what looked like a patch of clear ground near the big trees encouraged us to proceed, and we forced our way through the prickles regardless of scratches. On arrival at the open glade it turned out to be coked up by tall grass with only about six square yards of open ground in the whole place. While we were taking a look around I saw some bunches of pretty brown grass that I coveted, for the big vaeas at home so horrowing J's knife I advanced a bit towards the edge of the tall grass. I had just cut my first bunch, when he sized my arm, and pulling me back with no gentle touch, shoved me behind him, and brought his rifle to the present in a moment. I, of course, understanding something, was up pocketed the knife and cocked my hammers also. Then the grass began to wave in a peculiarly unmistakable fashion in a direct line for us, while I heard low threatening growls proceeding from the same direction. As we were standing on the edge of the long grass, "seeing" in this case would have meant conviction with a tiger's claws playing around our persons, so we did not wait for further proof, but backed it through that bit of jungle between us and the boat as best we could, at the mercy of the thorns which took a mean advantage of our retiring forms, our hands being fully occupied holding our rifles ready for a "surprise party" on the part of "stripes." Now, taking one's way leisurely through a jangle of thorns is one thing, but a hurried exit backward through it, very much autre chose, and we were pretty well punctured before we reached the mud bank down which we slipped with great alacrity into the friendly shelter of our dinghy. Our men had twigged a tiger was on the ramp and were half inclined to push off without waiting for us. When we had moved out into the stream a little we waited in hopes of getting a shot, but though he came right down and had a look at us the jangle was as usual too thick for us to see him. I am painfully aware that this story does not sound well on paper. We should have stood up to that tiger, and howled him over as he showed himself at five yards' range, and borne his chumra horns in triumph. But had we remained, the prosaic ending of the story would most likely have been that our skins would have been borne to his or her home, or if we had saved them they would have been considerably damaged, not worth the keeping in fact.

I remember receiving a severe snubbing from a man who had never been to the Sutterlands and had shot his tigers off elephants. He said "a tiger is a great coward, you know; you stand up to him and he sneaks off. Up country we think no more of shooting one than of potting a pariah dog." I queried would he run still harder if one tried to put salt on his tail, but my sporting friend thought the question frivolous, and declined to answer. You see, there's such lots of salt in the Sutterlands, I thought we might find some use for it. I'd like to get that young man into some of the tit bits of Sutterland jungle that we have explored, on foot, of course, with a cheerful tigress warning him off her special bit of ground, dense jungle on every side, and not even a tree high enough to swarm up. I fancy he would be educated into a greater respect for "Stripes" before he got out again. I suppose it is the fact of seeing so few humans and being accustomed to lord it over the rest of the inhabitants of the jungle that makes the Sutterland tiger so daring. The density of the jungle and ease with which he can conceal himself are also circumstances in his favor. All tigers in the Snoderbands are man-eaters when they get the chance.

On another occasion we landed to explore a place from which a wood-cutter had been carried away by a tigress a few days before, and while poking about came upon the fresh pugs of a small cub. Almost immediately some animal dashed away in the bushes to the left of us. We proceeded further into the jungle however in the hopes of a shot at deer, when suddenly quite close to us the tigress began to snarl, and shake the bushes as a warning to us to clear out. We stood quietly waiting for her to show herself, but she still kept well under cover, though drawing nearer at every step. She was in a dark patch of hurthral quite impossible for us to see into, and at last seemed to be quite alongside. Our men had all fled at her first snarl to the boat. As it would have been foolhardy to remain any longer we beat an orderly retreat. Then we heard faint "mowls" proceeding from the jungle on our left; evidently it was her precious cub who had rnsbed off on that side, and as she could not join it without passing us, she used the best means she could for driving us away. She was in an awful rage, and it is a wonder she did not spring upon us. If we had been natives she certainly would have mauled one or more; as it was she followed us right to the edge of the jungle and continued growling some time after we got into the boat.

Yet another time we were routed and ignominiously forced to forego our intention of tying up. The place was on the Mollinche river. We had anchored the fleet in a nice broad khall and though late in the afternoon finding plenty of pugs about, we determined to tie up, so we sent the men back to the house boat in the dinghi to bring a cow, remaining ourselves at the chosen spot. They were a long time away, and the dusk began to fall, till at last it was too dark to see the sights of our rifles. We had been walking up and down at the edge of the jungle keeping an eye on it, as certain rustlings therein had made us suspicious of an unwelcome neighbor's close proximity. These fears turned into a reality later on, for the brute actually began to growl and threaten, coming towards us at the same time. We moved as far away from the jungle as possible, but could not put much space between it and ourselves, as the tide was coming in rapidly and had almost covered up the mud banks. Still the growlings continued to advance till the tiger reached the edge of the jungle only a few yards from where we were. It was a most uncomfortable predicament for us, standing over the ankles in mud and water, and totally unable to see to shoot, even if the tiger had made a spring on us. At last the men arrived, but needless to say we did not tie up that night, for the only tree was a little way in the jungle, and nobody seemed keen upon entering its dark depths. Next morning on examining the ground we found pug marks close to our own foot prints, and also the place where the tiger had lain down to watch us at the edge of the jungle. We then tied up, but though a tiger and tigress walked round the cow for two nights, we got no kill, so being in a hurry we went off to other hunting grounds and left them in peace.

The pluckiest lot of tigers we have come across were a pair living last December at a sweet water tank in Goshuba. The tigers frequenting that place have always enjoyed a reputation for recklessness, and these two certainly lived up to it. We landed there one afternoon and tied up a cow. There were no pugs about, but we knew they were not far off, the fishermen having told us they had seen one of them a few days before. Next morning there was no kill, but they had both been round taking a look and had jumped up and down the banks of the tank close to the poor little cow. We hung up J's patent machan made of canvas in a big peepul tree, as we intended sitting up that night. Got into machan at 4 P. M., but no tigers came about. At dark, however, J heard them quarreling over a kill that they had dragged to their lair in the long grass a few yards from our tree. After a time one came sneaking along under the bushes and passed by the cow, but being too lazy to kill it, went away again and bullied the other tiger. All night long they were growling and scrimmaging, sometimes right under our tree, but the thick growth of creepers and jungle prevented us from getting a sight of them. Even daylight and the sight of the boat coming for us did not daunt them, and they were actually quite near to us when we got down from the machan. We were afraid the men would hear their growls, and cucking away the ladder make a bolt for the boat, but luckily for us they were so occupied getting the ladder through the jungle that the rustling of the leaves prevented them from hearing suspicious or alarming sounds. We said nothing to them on the subject, but kept a discreet eye on the jungle, with rifles at full cock, and felt certainly happier when all were safely in the dinghi again. We had only rowed a few strokes when a great roaring took place on land which nearly frightened the men out of their wits. They said the tigers were shouting warning to us not to return. We did go back again, however, for we intended to sit up that night, but on landing at 3:30 P. M. found the cow carried bodily away, not a sign of it left and the rope all torn and frayed. We did not care to pursue investigations very far in that horrible jungle, so left them to eat the cow at their own sweet wills, deciding to sit up over a like cow in a dry or two's time. The scrimmage we heard in the morning must have been the roar as they rushed on the cow. J thought it sounded like a tiger's roar when he kills, but we never dreamt of going back to see, or that they would have killed in broad daylight the moment our backs were turned. We constantly heard the same couple calling, and one evening the tigers over the other side of the river took up the cry, making quite a concert for our benefit. After a few nights we eat up over a cow at the same place, beginning our vigil at 3 P. M. so as to give them a chance of killing in daylight, but all was quiet till the moon rose, though we heard them move about at some distance. About 8 o'clock the cow began to show signs of uneasiness, ending in a wild rush to the end of her rope, where she stood trembling and staring into the jungle. We expected to see her killed at any moment, but for some reason they spared her. Not hungry I suppose. However they amused themselves by sitting down under the bushes quite close to her for a long time, keeping up the excitement by clawing the trees at intervals, and threatening to kill her. We could do nothing for the shade was so deep we could not get a sight of them, though all these cheerful performances were carried on almost under our tree. About midnight they cleared off and did not return that night. We did not sit up again, having to return to Calcutta; perhaps next year we may succeed in bagging one or both of their skins. We were told that native shikaris had sat up for them several times without success. They never killed at night nor when the men were there, but always carried off the goat by daylight if the men were foolish enough to leave it. How are poor mortals to circumvent two cute tigers like these?

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

A bench show in connection with the State Fair at Sacramento is among the possibilities.

St. Bernard circles will miss an enthusiastic fancier this summer. Mrs. C. G. Saxe, the owner of King Menelek, proposes making a brief sojourn at Honolulu.

The fox terrier Mowbray Huntsman, purchased from the huntsman of the Bedale Hounds, was recently sold for $1000 by Mr. Jordison. A pretty good "spec" we call that. The dog is said to be a coming crack.

Echo Clinton, a fine Gordon setter owned by Ebert Brothers of Sacramento, was poisoned last Friday. This dog was about three and a half years old; besides winning in Coast competition he was the winner of first in New York 1898.

A grand black corded French poodle and two well bred English setter pups will be sold at a sacrifice—A cocker spaniel bitch and a grey hound bitch, both in whelp, are wanted. For particulars apply at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

Fort Scott, Kasn., recently passed an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for any one to keep a dog without paying taxes on it. J. A. Yeakel, a prominent merchant, was arrested for violating the ordinance. He raised the novel defense that the State guarantees him the right to keep a dog as a bodyguard and makes no provision for taxing it. He insists that any ordinance which pretends to make it unlawful for a man to keep a watch dog is invalid and declares that he will carry the question to the highest courts. Mr. Yeakel is in good financial circumstances. His store is in a suburban neighborhood and he has no police protection. The dog was kept to protect his store from burglars.

A dignified and comprehensive article in last week's American Stock-Keeper entitled "California Criticisms" is the retort contrived to a series of "spiteful" local criticisms (?) of the judging at the May bench show that were hardly worth while paying attention to, if we may be permitted this suggestion. The facts shown in the article above referred to have been well and satisfactorily known to a majority of the exhibitors in the recent dog show.

The appearance of the critic's (?) name and the mention of the publication he is connected with in the columns of a journal of influence and standing is a gratuitous advertisement that is hungrily and persistently sought for by a course of tricky personal nagging, bits of color illuminating the caecothis scribendi prompted by a jealous vengefulness with the thin sour crust of disappointment.

The Santa Barbara bench show will commence on the 19th inst., continuing for four days. It is reported that the citizens of that town are taking a warm interest in its success and have already donated three $40 and four $20 silver cups for St. Bernards, Fox hounds, Pointers, English Setters, Cocker, Collies and Fox terriers. They have also donated 13 gold medals (value $10) for Mastiffs, Great Danes, St. Bernards, Irish Setters, Gordon Setters, Irish Water Spaniels, Cocker, Collies, Pomeranians, Dachshunds, Pugs and Fox terriers. Quite a lot of merchandise prizes are also given. The judges are to be: F. T. Uoderhill, of New York—Mastiffs. E. A. Dial, of San Luis Obispo—Fox hounds and Bloodhounds. C. A. Sumner, of Los Angeles—Fox terriers. H. T. Payne—All other classes. Premium list and any information desired by intending exhibitors may be obtained of the secretary, A. G. Wilson, Santa Barbara.

Fox Terrier Expression.

The expression required in both varieties of the fox terrier is the same, says Our Dogs. The eye should be dark but must not be too small, or else it becomes too cruel looking, and causes the expression to partake of the bull terrier, which is altogether wrong. On the other hand, if the eye be too large, the keenness is intelligence of expression required and, to that extent lost, since a large eye denotes a want of intelligence. The set-in of the eye, too, has much to do with the expression. If the eyes are set in too wide, the true expression is an impossibility, as it is, if the dog is devoid of stop, that is, has a very level head, with little or no indentation immediately below the temples. This is one definition of the details which go to give the fox terrier the true and correct expression, and expression in its turn is one of the details which constitute character. Another important factor is the dog's coat. If the coat in a smooth is too short, it takes away from the true character, giving the dog, again, a hull terrier like appearance. The top and set-on of the stern of a fox terrier has a great deal to do with its character. A short back and hound-like set-on and carriage of stern, which should be a decent length, contribute largely to, just as a long back and short back detract from, the desired character.

The limbs of a fox terrier have little to do with his character. A dog, of either variety, may not be quite true in front, or a hit cow-hocked behind—both serious faults—and yet be very characteristic, or, in other words, possess the true character required. Ears have more to do with character than limbs, since a large ear, carried at the side of the head, would give the dog a somewhat "bs-gle" appearance about the head, which would detract from the terrier, as would ears too small or thin.

The same points apply in the selection of puppies, to both varieties, except the coat. In both cases a coat harsh to the touch is required, being a little more profuse in a wire-hair, but really there is as a rule, very little difference at the age at which they leave the dam. A heavily coated puppy at this age would be one likely to grow too much coat—a coat of dog that would everlastingly require "faking" before he could be exhibited. Such coated dogs are to be avoided. A coat that is going to be too soft—which, as a rule is too profuse—is indicated most on the top of the head and legs. The main points to choose for, are shortness of body, hard coat, straightness of forelegs, short feet, a fairly long head, dark eyes, set in as we have described, and ears neither too large nor too small, good bone, clean shoulders.

The size of the puppies to select must be regulated, to some extent, by the size of the parents, and the tendency they have to breed them, if this can be ascertained. The tendency of small brood bitches is to breed dogs either too small or too large, one of their progeny of such, the correct size, being the exception rather than the rule. A roomy brood bitch is best for all purposes, the puppies of such being likely to grow up to the best size. This is, when full grown, 16 to 18 pounds, half a pound either way mattering little, if the dog is good in most other points.

Notes for Novices.

Under the above caption some practical hints are conveyed to dog owners by the Fanciers' Review. While it is true that the majority of people who keep dogs look after their charges with much care and skill, still there are many others who place too much reliance in the belief that, aside from supplying a dog a certain amount of food, the dog's natural instinct for comfort and self protection is sufficient for his other wants, particularly if he has a back stairway to crawl under or three sides of an empty drygoods case for shelter.

"Unfortunately some owners are compelled, from want of space to keep their dogs chained up, instead of in yards where they can be loose. In such instances, as also in the case of watch dogs, it is very desirable that the kennels provided should be of a slightly different construction from those generally met with. In the latter the fault lies in the opening being placed in the front, so that both wind and rain are able to reach a dog, even though he is crouched at the back of his kennel. A great improvement is gained by the opening being made in one side, as this gives the dog an opportunity of getting out of the way of such inconveniences, and the benefit he derives from the extra protection must be obvious to every one. The next best is an ordinary kennel, or even simple barrel, arranged with the face to the wall, as described further on.

All out-door kennels in which dogs are destined to sleep should be raised from the ground for double reasons, as the damp would rot the floor of the kennel and also give the dog cold. A couple of pieces of three-inch quartering placed underneath, or even some bricks, serve this purpose in every way. It is not good to chain a dog to his kennel, for if he is a powerful animal he may drag it from its position. A stout piece of quartering or a post should therefore be buried from a foot or so in the ground, and the chain fastened to the piece which is above the surface. A staple is not so good a fastening for the chain to be fixed to as a screw ring, the latter not being nearly so likely to become loosened by the constant jerks it will receive.

The simplest and most economical arrangement for a regular kennel is a stable, if such accommodation is to be obtained; and if the addition of a dry and secure stable-yard attached to the same is a considerable further advantage. The means by which the various stalls can be turned into almost unexceptionable kennels are various and simple, but perhaps as useful and effective as any. It will be seen that all required to convert an empty stall into an excellent kennel for a dog or dogs of any size are a few strips of wood and some extra strong wire netting. It is always well to line the lower half of the front with wire, as well as the upper, as it prevents any possibility of the dog gnawing his way out. The upper half is better fronted with wire only, as it enables visitors to see the dogs more easily. The cross-beam should be of considerable strength, as great pressure is often put against it by the dogs if they endeavor to escape. Of course, in the case of the larger breeds, or destructive specimens of the smaller varieties, it will be necessary to substitute iron rails for the wire and wood work; but personal experience has taught me that the additional expense of iron rails is in the vast majority of cases quite unnecessary. I have kept scores of dogs, chiefly bull dogs and bull terriers, in the above sort of kennel, and have never known one to eat out of them. Due attention must, however, be paid to two things—(1) get wire of extra strength and thickness, and (2) be sure your doors come well down to the ground."

Foundered Horse.

There ought not to be any great amount of trouble in getting a foundered horse on his feet again if prompt measures are taken to relieve him, says the "Horseman." The first thing to be done when you find a horse has been foundered is to pull his fore shoes off and release the blood in his front feet. Have the blacksmith bleed him at the point of the frog in each foot in front. Then give him a heavy ball of aloes, say seven or eight drams, with ginger on a dram. If this cannot be given as a ball have the ingredients dissolved in water and given as a drench, seeing to it that the horse gets all the medicine. After the horse has had his shoes pulled off and been allowed to haled freely, adjust pladgets of oakum so that foreign matter cannot get into the feet, and place the horse with his fore feet in a clay bed. Let him stand in it a couple of days, feeding him very lightly and only the most cooling of foods meanwhile. When you take him out of the clay, nail on his shoes again and continue the cooling food, avoiding stimulating rations altogether. If grass is available give the horse plenty of that and such grain as you give him, let that be crushed oats. Feed plenty of bran and in winter holed roots in place of grass. The attack of founder is very easily precipitated and it is not so hard to combat at the very beginning. It is the condition that ensues, if nothing is done to relieve the condition of the forward feet, that is hard to change. The application of stimulating liniment to the coronets after the horse is going right again is often beneficial. Sweet oil and ammoniac, equal parts, make an excellent liniment for this purpose. This induces a more rapid growth of the horn. If you follow these directions you should never have much trouble.

THE FARM.

To Start a Poultry Farm.

The first thing to be considered in starting poultry farm is the site. This should be, if possible, on a nice slope; if the ground is level should be drained.

The question of soil is an important one and should be considered. Some people think any kind of land will do. There is a little truth in this, but not the whole truth. Grass land is the best, providing there is sufficient drainage, so that it will not remain damp after rain. The best soils are gravel or sand; sand the best as it keeps clean longer. Sandy soil after every shower looks clean, through the rain washing the droppings into the sand. In clayey or sticky soils the droppings remain on top and are damp for several days after rain. With stiff, clayey soil poultry culture is a difficult task; with sandy soil we are more likely to be successful, for after a fall of rain all impurities are carried off and the air seldom becomes foul.

If the poultry breeder raises his stock on a clayey soil he will be compelled to dig and turn over his yards every season; on the other hand sandy soils will not be required to be turned over so often. If the yards of pens have a good coating of grass and the rain before most of the droppings will be used by the grass after rain has dissolved it and washed it down to the roots of the grass.

As to the amount of land needed, it is just the area that can be taken care of and no more. In beginning a poultry farm it is always best to own the land or make arrangements for a long lease. It is a mistake to rent a farm from month to month or quarter quarter, for no person cares to erect buildings, pens, yards, etc., on the land that he might be asked to leave just when he had got everything into working order.

After securing the land the first item is fences. These can be built neat without being costly, and should be erected in such a manner as to be comfortable and warm during the winter months.

The most important part of a poultry house is the floor; if this be not properly made, no matter how well the rest of the house is constructed, it cannot be suitable. A damp floor makes a damp house. The floor should be raised fully ten inches above the yard or outside ground. A good plan when the house is erected is to fill the house inside with broken stones, gravel or cinders to a depth of five or six inches, then three or four inches of good clay on top, well rammed down and covered on top. Cement or asphalt makes a better and neater floor; still, the earth floor, as I have said, of broken stones, etc., will suit just as well, besides being cheaper. Poultry houses should be perfectly rain-proof, so that the floor will always be dry; if not, the atmosphere of the house can never be pure and healthy.

Cleanliness in the house means everything. The house should be thoroughly cleaned at least once a week; two or three times a week, of course, would be better. Always remember that keeping your poultry house clean means perfect health for your fowls and a larger profit at the end of the year. The houses should be lime-washed every spring; a little carbolic acid mixed with the wash is best to all lice and acts as a disinfectant.

In all poultry houses it is necessary to have a large door for the exit of the fowls. The position of this will depend greatly on how the house is situated. It is best to have the door where the inmates will not be unduly exposed to cold or draft, for if put on the wind or cold side of the building it will be hardly possible to keep the fowls comfortable. For example, in some districts the west or northwest winds are most troublesome and it is nearly impossible to maintain the comfort of the fowls if the doorway faces these troublesome winds. It is a good plan to have an open weather or scratching shed built adjoining the covering or protecting the doorway. — Beam, in Farm and Dairy.

Stock cattle were selling in San Benito county last week at $9 per head for calves, $7 for yearlings, and $27.50 for two-year-olds.

Polled Durham Cattle.

An inquiry was made at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN lately as to whether there were any cattle of the Polled Durham breed in this State. As far as we know there are none in California, though in the Mississippi valley are quite a large number of breeders who raise them. It is said that the originator of the breed was Oakwood Gwynne 4th, a registered Shorthorn cow owned in Minnesota. This cow had small and imperfect horns and she produced twin heifers that had perfect polled heads. These twins were recorded as Nelly and Molly Gwynne, and from them has come the stock which produced the Polled Durhams. There are some Polled Durhams, so-called, which originated from the native muley cow and which are really high grade; because they have a large per cent. of Shorthorn blood, they are accepted in the Polled Durham herd book, but not in the Shorthorn herd book. The only noticeable difference between the pure Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn is that the latter are naturally hornless; in fact, there has been no other breed mixed with them.

The Rural New Yorker recently published letters from several experts on the Polled Durham breed, from which the following paragraphs are taken:

Mr. O. C. Halstead, Rensselaer, Ind., says there are several families of Polled Durhams, some of which are pure Shorthorns that are naturally hornless. Nona are admitted to register if they have other than Shorthorn blood, except it may be, the native muley blood. Polls caused by crossing on the Red Poll or the Black Scotch cattle would not be accepted. The polled Durhams are a beef breed, and have the docile habits of the Shorthorn. For this reason Mr. Halstead prefers them to any other polled breed.

Mr. John Baker, of Plymouth, Ind., says that most of the Polled Durhams were bred from the common muley cow and the Shorthorn bull. Hornless heifers were saved and bred back to the Shorthorn until the calves contained 90 per cent. of Shorthorn blood. With this per cent. of the blood they can be registered. Mr. Baker says that about 90 per cent. of the calves come hornless, and he considers them superior to the Red Polls or the Black Scotch cattle. By breeding the hornless bulls to Shorthorn cows the calves can be recorded at one year old provided they are hornless. The pure Shorthorns without horns which were descended from the Minnesota cow, Oakwood Gwynne, are called the Polled Shorthorn or double standard, as they may be recorded in both herd books. Double standard cattle are, of course, preferable to the other, although for practical purposes the Polled Durhams are about as useful. One great advantage with these cattle is the fact that they can be crossed with the Shorthorns, and produce high grades with the Shorthorn marks and not produce a mongrel, too often the case when the other polled breeds are used.

Mr. L. E. Jones, of Roh Roy, Ind., says that in the single standard Polled Durhams, about 80 per cent. of the calves will be polls, and a larger per cent in each succeeding cross. He has no fault to find with either Red or Black Polled cattle, but as compared with the Black Polls, the Polled Durhams are equal to them in beef quality and superior for milk. They are equal to Red Polls as milkers and superior for beef. He thinks that the double standard Polled Durham, being a pure Shorthorn without horns, will make the ideal general purpose cow, and he considers that this is the coming breed.

Points in Building a Silo.

In building a silo a few important principles should be born in mind. The enclosure must be practically air-tight on the sides and bottom, or the air coming in from any direction will cause the ensilage to spoil. It cannot penetrate the ensilage from above to any great distance, owing to the great weight of the green food settling upon itself. The aim should be to secure as much depth as possible in the silo. It is clear that the greater the depth, the more will be the pressure of the food upon itself, and consequently the sil will be the more perfectly excluded. Because of this, it has been found that in deep silos ensilage usually keeps better than in those which lack depth.

In feeding out the food, which should be done from the top downward, there is much less surface exposed in a narrow and deep silo and consequently much less loss of food by exposure to the air. The walls of the silo must be such that practically they will not yield laterally. The pressure of the green food on the walls of a deep silo is usually very great, until the food has ceased to settle down any further; and if the sides of the silo are pushed outward, openings are made for the admittance of air. The walls of the silo should be smooth. If they are not smooth, the ensilage will not settle so fast around the wall as in the centre, and in consequence more or less air will be admitted. The round silo has some advantages over the square one. The food settles into it more evenly and it is more economical of space.

A silo need not be expensive, but in the end it will pay to look well to the foundation. Of course silos can be built by using wood sills sunk into the ground far enough to exclude the air, but they will in time decay. It is usually thought better to take some pains with the foundation, that is to say, to build a stooze wall which will come up above the surface of the ground, and on this to lay plank sills. The planks are kept in place by bolts standing upright in the stone wall at suitable intervals. The frame of the silo may consist entirely of scantling. The size of the same and the nearness of the studs to one another will depend, first, on the height of the wall; and second, on the size of the silo.

The pressure will increase with the height and width of the silo, and consequently the strength of the walls should also be increased. Scantlings 2x6 are frequently used, and eighteen inches between the studs is a distance frequently fixed upon. The studs may be toenailed to the sides and they should be well braced. The sills, studs and plates may be of the same material. The inner lining consists, first, of rough inch boards. Over these a tarpaper is placed, and over the tarpaper a second tier of boards planed on the inside. If the silo is in a building, the character of the climate will determine whether any outer lining is wanted or not. When it is necessary to keep out frost, tarpaper may be put on the studs outside, and over it one tier of boards.

Spring Dairy Calves.

I want to impress the fact upon every dairyman that he certainly should raise all his likely looking heifer cows this spring. In fact, he should always keep the heifer calves that are good blood and are promising, says "Prairie Farmer." The idea that a farmer can buy cows cheaper than he can raise them is a very pernicious fallacy which should be forsaken, for the fact is only the best cows will give the profit, and while plenty of common ordinary cows may be for sale cheap yet there are few really extra cows for sale at any price, for the farmer does not care to sell a superior dairy animal, he wants to keep them himself. But every farmer can raise a few calves every season from his best stock. The cost will not be large and he can depend upon it that the average quality of the cows so produced will prove far superior to the average cows he can pick up on the market. Have a good hull and save the cows from same out of your best cows and your herd will steadily improve. Then, too, there are many advantages to be secured by risking one's own calves, for they can be brought up just as one wishes and they can be handled and kept docile so they will grow up perfectly kind and gentle and develop into cows that will have a pleasure to care for, feed and milk. Vicious cows are usually made so through some fault at the time the animal is a calf or heifer, and once an evil habit is fixed in a young animal it becomes almost impossible to eradicate it. The moral of this obviously is, that all pains should be taken to bring the calf up so it will make a fine cow in disposition as well as performance. What shall we feed the calf upon? We think it better to take it away from the cow as soon as it is dropped, it will then learn to drink freely from the pail. For at least a week give the calf its dam's milk freshly drawn, next skim milk may take the place of whole, together with a little flaxseed jelly to take the place of the cream that has been removed. Always see that the calf's meal is blood warm or of the same temperature of milk just drawn from the cow's udder. I would not turn the calf out to pasture the first year. I think it better to keep it in a shady place and gradually teach it to eat grain and cut grass. A calf in a sunburnt, fly-ridden pasture is a deplorable sight.

Selecting Breeding Sheep.

First, let there be pronounced masculinity in the male and femininity in the female. Sheep should be neither sexless nor characterless. They should bear the stamp and character of the breed they represent. This breed character is a mark of good blood and it should be manifest in no unmistakable manner. The sire should be impressive, resolute and of noble bearing. He should be distinctly the head of the flock in every sense of the word. To meet these requirements he must have good constitution and vital powers. Without these no animal is fit to head a herd or flock. In selecting a sire look first at the head. If deficient there look no further but reject at once. Insist upon a head that faces you boldly with a wide face, a clear prominent eye, and a robust character throughout. The head should be joined to a well-filled, round, muscular neck, wide at the poll and back of the ears and gradually enlarging in all lines to a strong, full junction at the shoulder, as seen from top, side or bottom. This should be accompanied by a wide chest, a prominent, well-filled brisket, and a full heart girth, giving straight, even lines from the shoulders back. A depression either in front of or behind the shoulder, whether at the top, side or bottom line is an indication of weakness. The hack should be strong, wide and well mated from shoulder point to tail. The hind quarters should be full and well let down in the lag and flank in order to yield well of high-priced meat. The legs should be placed wide apart and stand straight. Sickle-shaped hocks and weak, sloping pasterns afford sufficient reason for condemning an otherwise good sheep.

ALTAMONT is a horse of iron constitution, and at twenty-four years of age is in the full vigor of his prime, a sure foal-getter, and, except for his blindness—the result of an accident—is without blemish. He was bred to 23 mares last year and 18 of these now have colts by their side. He has never sired a sorel, all of his colts having been solid colors—bays, browns or blacks. State Fair, Sacramento, September 4th.
Stockton Jockey Club, September 18th.
San Jose, September 25th.
Salinas, October 2d.
Fresno, October 16th.
Los Angeles, October 21st.

The above dates are certain and that is the circuit. A committee from the Breeders Association went to Santa Rosa last Tuesday and arranged to give the meeting there on the dates above stated. Woodland and Willows have both concluded they could not hold fairs this year, and it is reported here in San Francisco that Grass Valley will also put its fair off until next year. Chico will give a meeting. The citizens have already raised nearly $1500 to add to the State appropriation and decided to hold a fair on the week of August 14th to 19th. This is the same date as that selected by the Breeders at Santa Rosa and as nearly all the stables in training have already made entries for the latter meeting, it is probable that the Chico people will change their date before announcing their program. The Breeders Meeting promises being one of the greatest harness meetings ever held in the State. The celebrated Santa Rosa track will be put in the very best possible condition and fast time and exciting contests are certain.

Last year at Santa Rosa, the track was in such perfect condition that some of the fastest miles trotted or paced in the United States during the year were made over it. The three-year-old gelding record was made there by the trotter Who Is It 2:12, and the fastest mile made by a four-year-old pacing mare was the 2:07 1/4 of Much Better at Santa Rosa. At an auction sale at Cleveland last May Who Is It sold for $5600, and in a law suit over the mare Much Better $4000 was the value placed upon her. The questions arise how much would the gray horse have brought, and would there have been any law suit over the mare, had the Santa Rosa track been in such poor condition that fast time would have been impossible over it? Taking these facts for a text Mr. Monroe Salishury preached a little sermon on conditioning race tracks while in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office the other day. The grizzled veteran of many campaigns said that as the California State Agricultural Society gets $15,000 from the State to aid its annual fair, it should so spend that money as to attract the most attention to the State's products, and add the most value to them. The faster the records made by the trotters and pacers the more money they will sell for in the East and the more money will be brought back to add to the State's capital. In former years the Sacramento track has not been considered a fast one, but it can be made so, and it is due the breeding interests of the State and the taxpayers whose money makes our great State fair a possibility that the Sacramento track be as fast as possible this year.

Monroe Salishury has been down to Palo Alto recently. He told me last Monday that he never saw as neat a looking lot of young horses as he saw on the site to the great breeding farm, and remarked: "The two-minute trotter will very likely be raised on that farm. The thoroughbred infusion will do the work, and when the two-minute fellow comes he will have the blood of the long distance runners that can carry the highest rate of speed for a mile. It won't be the thoroughbred horses that are unable to win at longer distances than seven furlongs that will assist in getting the two-minute trotter, as the blood that cannot run at extreme speed a mile will not assist a horse to trot at extreme speed that distance. Mr. Salishury says he believes in breeding to great sons of great sires and instanced a conversation he had with Mr. Chas. Griffith recently. Mr. Griffith was hemoaning the fact that Direct 2:05 1/2 was gone from California, as he wanted to breed several mares to him this season. "You have a greater horse than Direct in your own stable," said Mr. Salishury; "why not breed to him?"

"I don't understand you," replied Mr. Griffith. "The other day," said the Kingmaker, "a three-year-old colt of yours by Direct, out of Bon Bon 2:26, by Simmons, paced a half mile, timed by several reliable watches, over the Pleasanton track in 1:02 1/2. Direct was not able to do that as a three-year-old, and I have not heard of any three-year-old in California or anywhere else that has given as much evidence of greatness. This three-year-old is as well bred as his sire; is, I think, a grander individual, and I don't see why you should hewail the fact that Direct has gone East when you have such a worthy successor to him in your own stable. Don't be afraid to breed your best mares to him. He is liable to be a greater sire than his father, and certainly he has shown that he is possessed of as much speed."

In conversation with S. V. Barstow, of San Jose, the other day I learned all about the trouble that Dr. Boucher's champion mare Miss Logan 2:07 1/2, had with her leg. She went lame and the Doctor could not locate it for some time. They thought first it was the shoulder, then the foot or ankle, but it was finally discovered that a splint was making its appearance on the outside of the left front leg. It was so small that it could not be seen unless attention was particularly directed to it, but in passing the hand over the spot a slight protuberance could be felt and the mare would flinch from pressure. Dr. Boucher took her to Mr. Barstow, who is an experienced man with the iron, and he put the hot pin through it in about a dozen places. Three days later Miss Logan showed no signs of lameness, and at Denver worked some fast quarters and halves, though she did not start in any of the races. Mr. Barstow is the same man who pin fired Iran Alto in one of his ankles, making nearly a hundred punctures. The son of Palo Alto then went out and got a record of 2:13 1/4 in a race, the fastest mile ever trotted by any of the get of the famous half thoroughbred son of Electioneer. Barstow has recently purchased Claudius 2:13 1/2, son of Nutwood Wilkes and will campaign him this year. He believes Claudius is faster than ever and as he has been used for a road horse for two years he has developed into a much larger horse than he was in his racing days. Mr. Barstow is a firm believer in Nutwood Wilkes as the coming great sire and has quite a number of his get. Among them is the five-year-old full brother to John A. McKerron 2:12 1/4, Wilkes Direct, that he says has shown as much speed as last year's champion three-year-old stallion ever did. As Wilkes Direct is a big strong horse weighing nearly 1200 pounds, and a grand individual he should be a very valuable horse in the stud and will be placed there next year.

Pleasanton Stock Farm Sold.

The sale of the Pleasanton Stock Farm, the most famous training quarters in California for trotters, has been announced. With its equipments it has passed into the hands of a company of English capitalists, headed by H. F. Anderson and C. B. Charlesworth. They intend to make extensive improvements and to establish anew a center for running as well as harness horses. Incidentally the maintenance of a coursing park is contemplated.

The Pleasanton farm was the scene of the early triumphs of California harness horses. Some of the greatest trotters and pacers ever bred in the United States were trained there. The list is a long one, including such famous names as Azote, Directum, Direct, Searchlight and scores upon scores of others. There Monroe Salishury, the veteran turfite, worked the horses with which he gained fame and fortune.

The new owners have ambitious ideas concerning the resurrection of the farm. They plan first to consider the interests of the harness brigade, so that the hundreds of horses that yearly are trained there may not be compelled to find other quarters.

To this end all of the old buildings on the farm will be razed, and 300 new stalls built. A grand stand, judges' stand and other track buildings will be erected, and the famous mile speed track will be overhauled and put into first-class condition.

The company expects to build a running track and to furnish the owners of that class of racers with all the conveniences required for training.

These and other extensive plans of improvement are to be taken up at a meeting of the new owners, which is to be held in Pleasanton upon the return from New York of Mr. Charlesworth. He has decided to permanently locate at Pleasanton, having purchased a tract of land near the Merriwa stock farm, where he has erected a beautiful home.

The price paid for the property is withheld. It is said that it is close to $30,000.

Chico is All Right.

[Chico Enterprise.]

Now, that the subject of a district fair comes up and our sister towns are dropping out for lack of funds, Chico comes up with a snug sum of $1500 or more for a district fair. The man who says Chico is behind times is crazy. Chico is the best town in Northern California. She has proven to be such time and again. We may not, and have not, made any loud talk about what we can accomplish, but it is a fact that when a stated amount is to be raised for the good of our town it is always forthcoming, even though some business men refuse to contribute.

Don't let the silurians make you believe that we are a "hum" town, for we are not, and our sister cities recognize the fact that we are always alive to any good movement. Our record will show such to be the case.

Stand for Chico "first, last and all the time;" when you spend your money spend it among your local merchants; when there is a movement for the good of your town, work for it and Chico will continue to be the best town in Northwestern California.

PLATUS has trotted a quarter in 30 seconds and an eighth in 14 seconds at Louisville.

CALIFORNIA HORSES.

An Expert's Opinion of Some He Saw at the Denver Meeting.

In "A Tramp's Observations" in the Chicago Horse Review Murray Howe writes the following interesting notes of some of the California trotters and pacers now campaigning across the mountains:

The chances are that the Keating stable will be represented in the M. and M. by Owyhee 2:23 1/2, a son of Charles Derby and Ida Wood, by Simmons. He is a rangy, short-backed big horse, a shade over 16 hands in height, and trots with a high rapid stroke. He wears more boots than any of Keating's other horses, carries a seven-ounce shoe and a two-ounce weight, and in motion he puts his ears back and looks as if he would trot right through a brick wall if he were asked to. I saw Johnny Blue work him out alongside of Dione, with McHenry behind her, and he stepped two heats in 2:13 1/2 and 2:13 1/2, with a last quarter in 32 seconds, and he was on the outside all the way. In this work-out he was a good actor and looked like a race horse. They say that this horse was not right good when they shipped away from Pleasanton, and they came near leaving him, but he improved with every work-out at Denver, and will undoubtedly earn his share with the good ones.

The fastest trotter I saw at Denver was Monterey 2:09 1/2, that is, he worked out faster than any of the others. Monterey has never been over east of the mountains before, and as he is entered in the New York stallion stake and several of the prominent eastern events, a description of him will be of general interest. Monterey is a deep colored chestnut horse about 15 1/2 hands in height, ont ha is such a loog, heavy-bodied horse that he will weigh close to 1200 pounds in fair condition. He has four white feet, above his ankles in front and almost to his hocks behind, and a white strip the entire length of his face. He has a large hony head and a heavy neck of good length, and if you did not know the horse you would guess from the general shape and markings of his head and neck that he was sirad by Onward. There is a good deal of general resemblance between Monterey and that other fast Sidney trotter, Dr. Leek. They are both chestnuts with white markings and both long-bodied horses, with their tails set almost on a level with their couplings. Dr. Leek, being a gelding, is of course a lighter built horse all over than Monterey, but they are a good deal alike. Somehow or another I had gthered the idea that a Monterey was a patched-up cripple, and I was a little hit surprised to find that he is an absolutely sound, heavy-honed, clean-legged horse. He has been hothered a little with corns and in a work out shortly after I reached Denver he bruised one of his feet on a stone so badly that it lamed him for several days. In harness Monterey carries his head rather high, and at speed he is a long-striding, high-acting, slashing-gaited trotter. He puts his feet down with a smash and lands farther back on his heels than any trotter I ever saw. Owing to this peculiarity of gait, Mr. Williams shoes him with sharp, diamond heel calks about three-quarters of an inch in length set up on the shoe about an inch and a half from the heel; otherwise the shoe is a plain seven ounce bar shoe. Monterey did not start at Denver, but I saw him work out several times. He was somewhat nsteady in the first heats, but seemed to settle down to business after he had gone a few miles. Mr. Joe McGuire and several other boys who were up the track timed the horse one mile in his last work-out, from the seven-eighth pole hack again, in 2:08, and the boys at the wire timed him the middle half in 1:01 1/2, and so you can see ha is plenty fast enough. Mr. P. J. Williams, who owns and drives Monterey, has the reputation of being a great speed maker, and he has developed a large number of very fast trotters in California, but he has never before tried his luck on this side of the mountains. Mr. Williams will weigh over two hundred pounds, but ha has a good seat in the sulky and seems to drive with a light hand.

The best green trotter I saw at Denver was the brown gelding Dr. Book, by McKinney, out of Leonor, dam of Jennie Mc 2:12, Miss Jessie 2:14, etc. Dr. Book is in Billy Durfee's string and performed once, trotting second to Venns II. in slow time. From what I saw of him in his work I would say that 2:15 is a jog for him, and he looks to me like a coming 2:10 trotter. Ha is a somewhat plain-looking, substantially-made gelding, carries his head low, trots with a round, rapid stroke, wears a four-ounce toe weight and, like all of Durfee's horses, all the boots. Durfee did not work Dr. Book faster than 2:16, but he stepped him fractions of miles in every workout at a 2:05 gait, and he was not at all confused or distressed when he was going that clip. When asked for a price on him Durfee said, "Five thousand dollars." Mr. Durfee is another California driver who has never been East with horses before. He is a young man, and looks it, but is evidently a maoiboe in the sulky. He leans a little hit back of the center of gravity, and sometimes looks as if he was pulling a horse when he is really driving his best with an easy reio. Durfee will race in the Great Western Circuit, and besides Dr. Book, his string includes Osito 2:14, Jennie Mc 2:12, and Mowitza 2:20 1/2. Osito is a small brown rapid gaited trotter with 2:12 speed. Jennie Mc is a pacer and took her record two years ago as a three-year-old. Since then I believe she has raised a colt. Mowitza is the only member of the string that is not by McKinney. She is by Soudan, a son of Sultan.

George W. McKinney, the young horse that created such a sensation in Denver last year by heating John Nolan, has been laid up with a sprained ankle, but he is taking his work well now, and Hodges expects him to race good later on. Hodges thinks he has another one just as good as George in his full brother, Washington McKinney. He is a fine-looking, big black colt, and I saw him step a quarter in 37 1/2 seconds the third or fourth time he was ever hooked to a sulky. He was sold during the meeting I believe to Denver parties. Hodges has Bill Nye going in 2:10 style, and will probably have a fair stable later in the season.

Old Klamath was right on deck at Denver, same as usual. He looks a little gray around the gills and his thick leg is still quite meaty. To my way of thinking he is too much of a century plant to get much of the money. "Gih" Judd says he is all right and as limber as he ever was in the spring before. He has stepped in 2:12, last half in 1:02 1/2, last quarter in 30 seconds, last eighth in 14 seconds. The papers talked about Nico's eighth in 15 seconds to cart, without boots, as if it were a wonderful performance, and yet old Cookie, who is a few years less than a hundred years old, can heat that performance any day. I think I can name thirty trotters now in training that can pull a light hike cart an eighth in 15 seconds, for money.

Dainty little Dione 2:09 1/2 never looked or traveled as well in her life as she does right now. Her groomster "Sandy" tells me that she will be even better when the watermelon season opens, as she loves melons. "Sandy" tells tha ladies that admire her from the stall door that he only feeds her the hearts of the melons and that she eats sixty at a feed. He has taken care of and driven both Dione and her relative Venns II. all winter, and their condition and stable manners speak well for his ability as a trainer and a caretaker. These mares are as biad around the stable as a pair of pet rabbits, and for that matter so are all of Keating's horses. None of them, unless it is Searchlight, ever offers to lay an ear hack at a stranger. Searchlight is just a little bit funny at times and might rip you. Just before the Denver meeting he took a notion to work out just to suit himself. He would hump his back up and walk up the score with a ssey look in his eye, and when Johnny Blue would ask him to go on, Searchlight would stop and take a kick at him. He finally got so bad that McHenry had to get up behind him and cut a few notches out of his hide with the whalebone, but since then his manners have been the best. If Keating's horses are as successful this year as they were last, Johnny Blue will be entitled to a large share of the credit. Blue has given the Keating horses most of all their preparatory work. He is a good driver and he looks after all the details of the stable, and it is doubtful if he has an equal in the country as a stable man. Johnny can be found with his horses morning, noon and night, and he runs the whole work with no noise, bluster or trouble, and is a good friend of everybody's to hoot.

The fast green pacer Coney is a different looking horse from what I had pictured him in my mind. He is a big horse—16 hands—strong and looks tall and rangy. He has a rather long neck and carries his head high, is a round, easy-gaited pacer, wear a side strap and carries light toe weights. It is a matter of opinion among the boys as to what makes him break, and it may be that he is not physically right, but it is a sure thing that in his present condition ha is a very uncertain quantity. Good young pacers seem to be a much scarcer article in tha West than good trotters, and Coney is the only very fast green one I saw.

The little California mare, Ella Madison, that performed this side of the mountains last year as a three-year-old and went home eligible to the 2:20 class, worked three heats right around 2:15 at Denver and has some left. She was taken quite sick, however, with catarrhal fever at tha close of the meeting. This was the second piece of hard luck that her driver, Mr. Ward, had to put up with at Denver, as his phenomenally fast green trotter, Harry Madison, went lame in his first race.

Sport at Sacramento.

The Butchers of Sacramento had a day's sport at Agricultural Park on the Fourth of July, harness and running racing being a portion of the program. The principal running race was a five-eighths dash in wich the starters were: Roadwarner, P. F., Miss Dividend, Shellac, Manzanilla, Colonel Dan and Gladiator.

Manzanilla won by a half length, Colonel Dan second, Miss Dividend third. Time, 1:03. P. F. was left at the post. The free-for-all pace has three starters—Diawood by Diablo, Ahdine by Wilkesdala and Primrose by Falrose.

In the first heat Diawood and Primrose were even at the quarter, where Diawood broke, and Primrose led to the far turn. There Diawood came up with a rush, and entered the stretch even with her, but Primrose hest him out by an open length, Ahdine four lengths behind. Time, 2:22.

Diawood won the next heat by a length from Primrose, Ahdine well in the rear. Time, 2:18.

Diawood also won the third heat, Ahdine second. Time, 2:22.

THE PORTLAND MEETING.

Five Daye Mixed Raolng Over the Track at Irvington Park.

Oregon has started its racing season earlier than California this year and at Irvington Park, Portland, a successful five days meeting was given during the first part of the present month. The wsgering was done by means of the pari mutuels and there was a large patronage of the boxes at $2 per ticket. Capt. N. G. Smith, of Los Angeles, was presiding judge, assisted by W. J. The Van De Vanter Stock Farm has bought the good little gelding Deceiver 2:16½, by Altamont.

R. Everding has bought a full brother to Bonner N. B., 2:17 from Smith Bailey, of Roseburg.

Tecor, the dam of four in the list, will surely have two more to her credit this year in the trotters Lyla and Claymout.

The match race between Baby Ruth and Roy S., over the Walla Walla track last Saturday was won by the Caution mare in straight heats. Time, 2:30, 2:2½, 2:2½.

The Dominion Day race meeting held at Vancouver, B. C., July 1 and 3 was a grand success and the Jockey Club claims Saturday, Sept. 2, and Monday, Sept. 4, as dates for their fall meeting.

Geo. Ferringer has bought the yearling colt Kinney Mc, from John Pender. Kinney Mc is by McKinney 2:11½, dam by Gossiper 2:14; second dam by Don Wilkes; third dam by Mambrino Patchen 53; fourth dam by Almont 33.

Darby Lass a Good One.

The surprise of Monday morning at Glenville was the work of Darby Lass, a five-year-old by Charles Derby. She is a sister to Derby Princess 2:08½, and was bought by Gus Wagner two years ago at the Fasig sale. She was campaigned that year, but did not receive a mark. Last season she was given a rest, but this year she will race and will be entered down the line. Millard Sanders has her in charge. The daughter of Charles Derby and Harry Omer fought it out once. When they were at the half, the gray pacer had a good lead, but the game little trotter came up fast, and beat out Omer at the wire by a narrow margin in a great race. Neither horse made a skip all of the way. Darby Lass made the last half in 1:04½, last quarter in 31½ seconds. Omer went the last half in 1:05. The mile was in 2:15½. The next time out Derby Lass challenged Rennselaer Wilkes, trotting the quarter in 31½ seconds.—Cleveland Track Notes in Chicago Horse Review.

The writer of the above is in error in the statement that Derby Lass and Derby Princess 2:08½, are sisters. They were both sired by Chas. Derby, but Derby Lass is out of Haydey, a mare by Copperhead, son of Owen Dale. Haydey's second dam was by Kentucky Boy, a thoroughbred horse, and her third dam a thoroughbred mare. The dam of Derby Princess 2:08½ is Princess, by Administrator 357, second dam Priceless, by Volunteer 55, third dam Silvertail, by American Star 14.

J. C. Ohlandt Has the Cup.

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association was held at Kapp's Hall, 1900 Market street, last Tuesday evening, at which the purses and prizes won at the Fourth of July matinee were paid and awarded. The report of Secretary Fred W. Thompson showed that a snug sum would be left in the treasury of the association after all the expenses of the meeting and the purses were paid. Mr. John C. Ohlandt, who won the O'Kane Challenge Cup race, was presented with the cup in a well worded speech by the donor of the same, and responded feelingly, thanking the club and Mr. O'Kane for the opportunity they had offered him of having his name placed on the trophy, saying that he was proud to be the winner of the first race and expressing the hope that he would be able to give Harvey B. to final victory in the event.

A dainty lunch was spread for the club members by Mr. Chas. F. Kepp and the good things washed down with the products of the vine.

Hollister May Hold a Fair.

The directors of the San Benito County Agricultural Association estimate that in addition to the $700 granted by the State $650 will be required to make a fair a success. Of this amount $250 has been guaranteed by five parties. This looks as if there will be no trouble in raising the required amount.

A fair would result in great good to this county this year. The exhibits of our diversified interests would be a great advertisement for the county and would surprise even residents of San Benito county that our resources were so many.

All that is needed to make the fair a success is united action. Let every one follow the lead of the directors and work with them. Success will follow. R. I. Orr will probably be president of the association.—Hollister Bee.

Shasta County Will Hold a Fair.

The board of directors of the Twenty-seventh Agricultural District held a meeting Saturday afternoon, July 1st, and effected a formal organization. M. T. Kite was elected president; W. A. Schroter, vice-president; A. M. Irwin, secretary; C. Bush, Jr., treasurer. On motion, Redding was selected the site for the fair. The date of the fair was not set, though it will probably take place in the latter part of September, after the State Fair.

TWO IN THREE SYSTEM IN FAVOR.

Hartford Meeting Shows That Shorter Races Are Popular.

Hartford is the first prominent track in the country to try the two in three heat system in light harness racing this season, says the New York Telegraph. Manager Fasig was somewhat doubtful of the success of the system when it was hatched last winter and was rather opposed to the idea of trying it, but finally decided to leave the matter to the choice of the horsemen making entries. The result was a great surprise to everybody, for it had all along been contended that it was the horsemen themselves who were the most violently opposed to the shortening of the races. The result of the voting made most of the events at the present spring meeting two in three heat affairs, and from all reports from that historic track they are received with enthusiastic approval by the public. The program of events is pulled off in good season, and patrons are able to get home in time for dinner in a good humor and glad to say they have enjoyed an afternoon of good sport.

Ed. A. Tipton returned from Hartford yesterday. He has always been a warm advocate of the two in three heat plan, and he was elated over the success of the system at Charter Oak Park.

"The shorter heat plan is the very thing," he said, "and the more the public sees of it the better they will like it, because nine out of ten of the best gaited, truest going horses will win, and the had gaited, slow beginners cannot take advantage of many heats and wait for good horses to tire themselves in going three or four heats and then go in and win. Thus the money goes to the inferior horse.

"The only people I know of who object very seriously to the mile and repeat way of going are the auction pool sellers and those who have horses which they claim begin slowly in racing. The latter class can obviate this trouble very easily by going out and giving their horses some fairly fast work before the race instead of trying to warm them up in the first heat or two. As for the pool sellers who claim that the two in three heat system will cut down the volume of betting, I can say from actual knowledge that the betting on heats will be increased to such an extent that the bookmakers on trotting tracks will become more numerous and the associations will recover any loss occasioned on account of the sellers by the increased betting on the heats. In the two in three heat system every heat is actually a race, for no man will take chances in laying up a good horse a single heat, when it is almost a certainty that another horse will win in short order if he does not go out with him. Another advantage in the two in three heat races is this: It ends the race more quickly when one horse outclasses his field in speed. In such cases it matters not how many heats they go, the horse of the higher class will simply smother those behind him.

"I saw this demonstrated the first day of the Hartford meeting, on which day there were two races at two in three, and one at three in five heats. Each was won in straight heats, and there was no part of a heat in any one of the three races that the good horse didn't hold the others safe. Yet I heard men say that had the races been three in five both Paddy D. and Kingmond would have been beaten. They would have said the same thing about Fire Gilt if his race had not happened to have been at three in five. In fact, some of the opponents of the two in three system did say:

"Now you'll see where the three in five gives a good horse that does not begin quickly a chance."

"Well, they got the chance, and Fire Gilt beat them more easily, more decisively and in slower time than in either the first or second heats.

"I know that an association cannot give a satisfactory program by offering three races at two in three heats each, but they can give four such races with a greater certainty of winding up the program than they can with three races at three in five heats each. I do not believe there is a horseman living who would not rather trot a good horse for $700, two in three heats, than to risk the same horse in three in five races for $1000, unless the horse is a slow beginner and the owner wants to play the pool box.

"In Montana I've seen horses trot the shorter races two and three times a week, and go through the entire season without injury. I know that two races of this kind are less liable to injure a fast horse than one three in five. To sum the whole thing up, the two in three does not require such heroic training as the three in five, hence a horse is enabled to begin racing earlier in the season, to go at least twice as many races and therefore makes his earning capacity much greater, and the possible earning capacity of a horse is what fixes his selling price, except for road purposes alone.

"Another advantage in two in three over three in five heats is that it enables the owner of a young horse with speed to compete in classes given for horses of all ages. A man with a good three-year-old cannot afford to take a chance in a long drawn out race; but he can afford to risk him in a two in three against all ages, because the race is quickly over and the youngster is not compelled to go through tedious scoring and possibly a great number of heats. To-day the majority of buyers want horses four years old and over, simply because they cannot risk younger horses in three in five races."

Dubuque's Big Meeting.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, July 8.—Secretary Baldwin of the Nutwood Driving Club states that the total of purses for the meeting in August will undoubtedly exceed $100,000. The total now is $95,000, and with $10,000 for a big special event will exceed any purse aggregate ever offered at a harness meeting in the West. The intention of President Hancock and his co-workers is to eclipse anything ever before attempted, not only in the amount of purses, but in the high order of the attraction and in the attendance. It is figured that at least 30,000 people will see the big Futurity and that the day of the big event between Patchen, Gentry, and stars of that class the attendance will reach the high-water mark for harness meetings of the country. While the $20,000 offered by the Horse Review for three-year-olds that trot is the stellar harness attraction of the year in the United States, yet there is a $5000 purse for colts of the same gait and age called the Dubuque Stake, that bids fair to be one of the most sensational events on the light harness turf this season. Five of the horses nominated in the great Futurity event are also named in the Dubuque Stake, and as the $20,000 is to come off on Tuesday and the Dubuque on Friday or Saturday, the betting is sure to be heavy. The five Futurity candidates named in the Dubuque are Gracie Oaward, by Oaward; Simrock, by Simmons; Rita E., by Ashland Wilkes; Crystalline, by Oaward, and My Trick, by Milroi. The fact that these colts are paid up and eligible to start in the Horse Review event and are also named in the Dubuque Stake to race the same week, looks as though their owners think a good deal of them as race horses. The Dubuque Stake is rich and has attracted some of the greatest stables in the country.

California Horses at Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

There were three days' racing at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on June 28th, 29th and 30th, with a daily attendance of three thousand. The racing is reported as being first class, with good contests in nearly every event.

In the three minute class trot on the first day, W. G. Durfee started the McKinney horse Dr. Book and won second money. Yellow Jacket, a son of Earl McGregor, won the race in one, two, three order, Dr. Book's summery reading 6-2-2. The time was 2:27½, 2:23, 2:28.

On the second day Durfee started Osito 2:14½ in the 2:14 trot. It was a five heat race, Aregou K., the winner finishing 1-2-2-1-1, Lumpwood, who won second money, being 2-1-1-2-2, and Osito winning third money with a summery of 5-3-3-5-3. The time of the several heats was 2:18, 2:15, 2:17, 2:18½ and 2:20½.

Jennie Mc annexed the free for all paces on the third and closing day of the meeting. There were five heats in the race before it was finished, Ella T. 2:08½, by Altamont, taking the first heat and Ithuriel 2:09½, by Red Wilkes, winning the second heat. Jennie Mc then took the next three very handily. The time of these five heats was 2:13½, 2:13½, 2:12½, 2:18 and 2:15½. As Ella T. and Ithuriel are two of the best half mile performers in the country the victory of Jennie Mc and the time made by this daughter of McKinney in the third heat is the more remarkable.

Harry Madison, son of James Madison, was also a starter on the last day of the Cedar Rapids meeting. He was a lame horse at Denver and has not yet recovered, as the summery shows that he finished fourth in 2:20½ and 2:18½ and was then drawn from the race.

Secrets in the Judges' Stand.

The most despicable thing for any man to do is after occupying the position of judge to go out of the stand and tell how the judges make their decisions, but what heats that 100 per cent. for low-down meanness is for him to go to a driver that has been set back for something or taken out of the sulky and try to set himself right by telling the driver how he was the odd one in the stand, but that the other two judges were against him, and despite his every effort the verdict was given out. I know personally last year where two of the men that were judges went to a driver and said they were not in favor of a certain decision, but as they were in the minority they could not help it. The driver, of course, knew that one of them must be a liar, and in the future would not have any confidence when either party was judging a race in which he was driving. It seems as though personal honor should show a man that the secrets of the judges' stand should be held sacred. Three men act in the capacity of judges, and almost without an exception each tries to judge the races with fairness to all. Many times when a vote is taken about a doubtful matter it will be two to one. Because the judge that is in the minority does not have his way, it shows very little manhood to go out of the stand and report just how he stood on the matter. It would be equally as good taste for a member of a secret order to report what was done at his lodge meetings as for one of the judges to give out the secrets of the stand, for even if the decision don't suit him he should remember that his associates are likely as fair-minded as himself, and how to the majority. If he believes his associates are not acting fairly and are using his presence in the stand to further their own objects, the manly way would be to walk out of the stand at once, and thus show to all that he is not a party to their schemes.—E. E. Cogswell in Boston Traveller.

THE BREEDERS GO TO SANTA ROSA. This was settled last Tuesday at a meeting of directors held in the city of roses, and now all that remains to be done is to make the necessary arrangements for the meeting. Santa Rosa is one of the most beautiful spots in California, its climate is nearly perfect, and the race track there one of the fastest in the United States. The fair grounds are well appointed and the accommodations for horsemen first class. This meeting will open the campaign in California and there is every indication that it will be a rouser. The list of entries that closed May 1st is a very large one, the best that has been received by the P. C. T. H. B. A. for years. There is scarcely a stable of horses in California but is represented in the program. The interest in harness affairs throughout the United States is growing day by day, and the telegraph reports thousands at the early meetings in the East where only hundreds were brought out last season. The harness horse, in addition to his value as a race horse, is selling for high prices as a road animal, and though the automobile boom is fairly on, the horse seems to keep growing in popularity every day. The meeting at Santa Rosa this year will attract hundreds of people to that city for the week, and be of great financial profit to the tradesmen. The hotel accommodations of Santa Rosa are first class, the people are hospitable, the days pleasant, the nights cool and, in short, it is an ideal place for a race meeting. There will be a large crowd in attendance at this opening of the Grand Circuit.

SAN JOSE'S PROGRAM of harness events appears in our advertising columns to-day and is one of the best of those arranged by district associations this year. The purses for the aged classes range from $600 to $1000, the larger amounts being given for the faster horses, while the two and three-year-olds get $400 and $500 purses respectively. San Jose in former years, when the harness horse was in demand at boom prices, gave an annual fair that drew thousands to witness the speed contests. The San Mateo and Santa Clara Agricultural Association owns one of the best fair grounds in the State the property consisting of eighty acres of improved land, fitted with all the necessary buildings and two excellent tracks, one within the other for working the runners. There are several hundred of roomy stalls, a capacious grand stand and a large pavilion. Many beautiful trees adorn the grounds, furnishing shade during the warm days of summer and adding beauty to the prospect. San Jose is a city of nearly 30,000 inhabitants, situated in the richest agricultural section of the State, and in the centre of a great horse breeding country. Its race meeting should be one of the best given in California, and will be if the horse owners do their part and furnish the association with a good list of entries. The new board of directors, of which Mr. C. Y. Bollinger is President and Frank Armstrong Secretary, is composed of energetic citizens, who will strive this year to make the fair and race meeting high class in every respect, and to this end they have the support and assistance of the farmers, fruit growers and live stock breeders of their district. The race program will be one of the leading features of the fair and the splendid program announced will doubtless attract all the best trotters and pacers in the State. Entries to these events will close August 1st. A program for runners will be announced later.

GENERAL OTIS NEEDS 2500 HORSES to mount his cavalry in the Philippines, and they must be collected in the United States and shipped across the ocean. It has been stated in the dispatches that an effort will be made to get these horses in the Southern States for the reason that animals reared in the warm clime of the South will be better able to stand the heat of the tropics. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN offers the suggestion that California, Nevada and Arizona can furnish the number of animals required, at a less cost than they can be procured in the Southern States, and that they will be better adapted to a Philippine campaign than any horses to be found elsewhere. We refer to the better class of mustang horses, once so numerous in California and still existing in sufficient numbers to supply a larger army than the one in the Philippine Islands. These horses are small, weighing on an average from 700 to 900 pounds, are quick, active, clean limbed, hardy and tough as iron. There is not a county in this State but specimens of the mustang can be seen every day carrying a 175-pound man and a 40-pound saddle from daylight until dark six days in the week, and when properly fed and cared for they thrive under the treatment. In many instances they are but half fed, and it is here that they show their vitality and hardness to be superior to that of any other breed of horses—the mule and the ass being the only animals that can equal them in these qualities, while the mustangs can carry larger loads and travel further in proportion to their size than the long-eared animals. We do not doubt that at $50 per head the Government could secure the necessary 2500 in this State alone within ten days' time, and that they would fill the bill in tropical campaigning better than higher priced horses. In an open country on good roads these mustangs cannot compete in weight-carrying ability or speed with the larger and better breeds, but in the jungle, where paths must be made, and hardships endured, or in the climbing of rocky passes and brushy mountains, they have no equals. The experiment of mounting a regiment of cavalry on California mustangs is worth trying.

HORSE OWNERS who failed to secure nominations in the 2:19 and 2:16 class trotting, and the 2:15 and 2:12 class pacing events at the Breeders Meeting should make applications for entries in them as early as possible. A few of those who have entered in these purses may not have a horse to name when the date arrives for naming them, which is August 1st. There have been several inquiries already for the purchase of nominations and it is possible that there may be none left by the date of closing. By making an early application for them to Secretary Kelley of the P. C. T. H. B. A., at 22 1/2 Geary street, horse owners may be assured of an entry if there are any to be had.

LOS ANGELES, as announced last week, has opened eight additional purses for trotters and pacers, and they are very generous ones. The free-for-all trotters are offered $2000, and the free-for-all pacers the same amount. The other classes have $1000 hung up for them and are so arranged that they should fill well. The date for closing is August 1st, and the meeting will be held October 21st to 28th. The conditions and all other particulars are printed in our advertising pages.

AN AUCTION SALE of 25 head of standard bred horses will be held at Kull's Stable, 226 Fourteenth street, in this city on Friday next, July 21st. These horses are from 5 to 7 years of age, are an extra lot of fine animals and are to be sold without reserve. They are by such sires as Fordstan, son of Elecfioneer; Brentwood, son of Dawn, by Nutwood; Tempest, by Carr's Mambrino and Adventure, son of Venture. These horses are well broken and there are many fine individuals among them.

BIDS FOR PRIVILEGES at the Breeders Meeting at Santa Rosa are advertised for in this issue.

STOCKTON'S HARNESS PROGRAM is published in our advertising columns. Seven purses of $1000 each are hung up by the Driving Club, and several other purses will be announced later on. Stockton this year will have one of the best meetings ever held in that city and from the manner in which the citizens are coming to the support of the gentlemen who compose the Driving Club, there is no doubt but it will be a financial success. Secretary Willy, who has been in the city during this week on business connected with the meeting, informs us that the crops of grain and fruit in San Joaquin county are turning out wonderfully well and as good prices are being received, prosperity is an actual fact with the people of that locality. This will insure large crowds to enjoy the races as money is easy and plentiful. The purses opened for trotters are the 2:40, 2:30 and 2:16 classes, and for pacers the 2:30, 2:25 and 2:15. A race, free for all trotters and pacers, is a novel event, $1000 being the sum to be raced for. There ought to be enough entries in this race to fill it well and it is not certain but the trotters will carry away the majority of the money in this event. A running program is being prepared and will be announced soon. The majority of the running events will be over night races, and will be arranged to suit the horses upon the ground at the time. There will be several handicaps for large purses, the intention being to make the races as good contests as possible. The entries to the seven $1000 purses hung up for the harness horses will close August 1st. They should be numerous in each and every class.

THIS IS THE LAST CALL for entries to the harness races at the State Fair meeting. Entries close to-night and must bear to-day's postmark on the envelope. There is every prospect that this year's State Fair will be the greatest in the way of exhibits, races and attendance that has ever been held at the historic old track at Sacramento, consequently no horseman can afford to absent himself from the meeting or fail to enter his horses in the races. It must be remembered that at the State Fair this year $15,000 is offered for trotters and pacers. The two free-for-alls are for $1500 each and twelve other class races are for $1000 each. The State Agricultural Society propose putting the track in the very best condition for the harness horses this year and have already engaged William Fieldwick, the well known Superintendent of the Oakland Trotting Park. He is instructed to make the Sacramento track as perfect as possible, that it may be safe and fast. The program will be so arranged that horses entered in more than one class will not have to start on consecutive days, but their races put as far apart as possible. In short, horse owners will find that their interests are to be conserved all the time and they are asked to make their entries liberally with the assurance that the most liberal treatment will be afforded them. The date of closing is to-day. See that you are in time with your entries.

A VISIT TO PALO ALTO was paid one day this week by two distinguished representatives of the Japanese Government, Count H. Mutsu, the Consul at this city, and Inazo Nitobe, special commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Commerce of Tokio. The gentlemen are here to obtain information in regard to the breeding and raising of high-grade harness horses and to gather facts as to the profits in the business. Superintendent Frank W. Covey of the stock farm brought out all the fine horses, showing the results achieved in breeding according to the ideas of the late Senator Stanford. He explained in detail the points in connection with the raising and breeding of fine stock. Inazo Nitobe, the special commissioner, intimated that a favorable report to the Japanese Government might cause large breeding establishments to be begun in his country, which would benefit Californians materially by supplying a market where their produce could be disposed of in large numbers. Some years ago a number of trotting bred horses were shipped to Japan from California.

THE SACRAMENTO NEWSPAPERS say never before in the history of the State has so much interest been displayed in State Fair success as there is at this time and in that locality. Committees from the Chamber of Commerce, under direction of Chairman Thomas Enright, are working heart and hand in all directions, collecting subscriptions and arranging for various local amusements, everyone of which will be well worth traveling from any portion of the State to witness. Sacramento county will have the finest exhibition of its native products that has ever been displayed, and every nook and corner of it will be searched for vegetable monstrosities and choice samples of its fruit and flora. This has been placed in the hands of the Grange and the Board of Supervisors have set aside the sum of $500 to assist in this object. Mrs. Shield, one of the best known patrons of the State Fair for years, and who has such a pride in Sacramento county that she always made it a personal matter to collect the finest display of products of the soil that go on exhibition, has again entered the field and will probably have personal supervision in the pavilion of the county exhibit.

GOLDEN GATE ENTRY LIST.

The Free-For-All Trot Will Bring Out a Great Field.

The entry list received by the Golden Gate Agricultural Association, District No. 1, as published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last week, was received too late to permit any comments in these columns. However, it is a flattering testimonial to the enterprise of the association and one of the best lists ever received by an association in California.

The trotting events a grand lot of young green horses have been named and the same is true of the pacing events in which horses were named with entry. It is the nomination purse, however, which have surprised everybody by the large lists they have attracted.

Speculation has been rife as to what horses will be named in this event. Wm. Rourke of San Bernardino has either won 2:15 1/2 or Zombro 2:11; Geo. W. Ford of Santa Ana was Neerut 2:12 1/2; Chas. E. Clark of Fresno has Toggles 09 1/2 in his string; Vendome Stock Farm will start either Oodle 2:12 1/2 or Iran Alto 2:13; Robert Malone of San Rafael has Clay S. 2:14 in training; S. V. Berstow of San Jose now owns Claudius 2:13 1/2. B. Erkenbrecher of Los Angeles has his mere Galette 2:12 1/2 in Chas. Duffea's stable this year, and the nomination made by M. Grace Jodd of Santa Ana probably means that Klameth 2:07 1/2 will come back to California and be reced here.

When the entries were closed Klameth was in Denver proposed to be headed East, and there was a belief among horsemen that Toggles would not be campaigned this year. However it is not without the range of possibilities that these horses will be beaten in the free for all even though they should start.

The 2:12 and 2:15 pacing events have 12 and 16 nominees respectively. Some of the fast ones that will probably be named in these races are Beechwood, Chas. David, Col. Sutton, Don, Diewood, Primrose, I Direct, Hazel H., Roenlike, Wm. Herold, Ketchum, Fenny Putnem, De Berdri Basler, Belle W., John A., Hervey Mc, and several other ones that are said to be flying like the wind.

TROTTING AT PEORIA.

Book Wine a $1000 Purse and Get a Mark of 2:16 1-4.

The race meeting at Peoria at which W. G. Durfee, B. O. Bokkelen, and other Californians have their horses bred, began last Tuesday. On the opening day a rain storm made the track slow and delayed the start an hour but McKinney horse, Dr. Book, won the first race and took a record of 2:16 1/4. The dispatches state that he won the second, third and fourth heats, but do not say in which heat a record was made. Kerolite, a bay gelding by Milroy, bred in Colorado, took the first heat of the race in 2:15 1/2. Argetta started in the race but finished outside the money. On the second day of the meeting the track was fast and the weather perfect. The 2:09 pace drew out a field of seven good ones, Kitty R., the brown mare by Kirmies, won the first, second and fifth heats. Argetta won the third and fourth heats. The time of the five heats was 2:09 3/4, 2:08 3/4, 2:1, 2:08 1/2 and 2:08 1/2.

Six thousand people were at the Peoria track on Thursday, and saw Edith W., bay mare, by Ben Lomond, win the 2:16 pace in three straight heats, in the remarkable time of 2:07 1/2 and 2:06 1/2. Calvin S. got second money, Aelsee took third money and little Jennie Mc saved her entrance. Behind these four were six other fast pacers.

The 2:16 pace went to Will Trauby, a gray horse by Jim Wason, Baby Ruth was second, Don third, with Senece See, Sham, Harry Victor and Romards in that order.

C. Van Bokkelen won first money in the $1000 purse trotters with Ellert, son of Stemboul and Lady Escott. Ellert won the second and fourth heats after Bergenie, by Berna a Boy, had taken the first. Ellert's fastest heat was 2:12 1/2, which knocks two and a half seconds from his record at Denver. Behind Ellert was a great field of trotters, consisting of Josephine Dixon, Robert Lea, Pilot Evens, Ed Baron, Eoka, Our Lucky, Gracie T. and Kane.

Arline B., a three-year-old by Happy Riley, won the 2:50 race and paced one heat in 2:10 1/2; Arline B. was second, Harry third and Lord Sumrall, Harry B., Arcola, Plum and Admiral Dewey and Dan Patchen finished as named.

LETTER from Al Coney at Saginaw states that Tom King is able to be at the track every day and is improving although.

ROBERT comes that Directum Kelly 2:08 1/2 has a bowed hock and may not start again this year.

THE SAGINAW MEETING.

Racing at Detroit.

Racing began at Highland Park, Detroit, July 11th. The feature of the day was John R. Gentry's attempt to beat the track record of 2:02. He paced a great mile though he failed to lower the time. He made the quarter in 0:31 1/2, half in 1:01 1/2, three quarters in 1:33 1/2 and mile in 2:02 1/2.

Nomination For Sale.

Nomination in the 2:19 Class Trotting Purse $1000 at the race meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Horses to be named August 1st, 1899. Address immediately Geo. E. Shaw, Hollister, Cal.

"ALL I have to do with the old shot gun is to load her up, aim her straight, hold her steady and pull the trigger—if the birds are there they are sure to drop" (Jo Miller). Well, all you have to do with the modern camera in order to obtain a picture of your horse, dog, team, bull or any of your pet animals, is to see by aid of the "finder" that the animal desired is in front of it and touch it off and you are sure to get 'em. Henry Kahn & Co., 642 Market street, Chronicle Building, sell cameras specially made for this purpose; write them for list.

THE members of the North Penn Trotting Association, at Philadelphia, have formed an "Empire City Park Excursion Club" for the purpose of attending the inaugural meeting at New York's new track in a body.

FAST TROTTERS AT FRESNO.

Toggles 2:09 1-4, and Our Jack 2:13 1-2, Expected to Lower Their Records.

[Fresno Republican.]

The Fair Grounds are the scene of much activity these days and will continue to be so until the race circuit begins, which will probably be about the middle of August, when the begira will begin. The horses are now being schooled in speed and if Fresno doesn't capture some of the best purses that have been hung up there will be some disappointed owners trainers and local backers. There will also probably be some disappointed horses as many old timers are being put in form for the races and know whether they earn money or not.

Few people are aware of it, but there are some of the best horses in the State at the local track now. Some of them are familiar to the turf end have already made their marks, while others are what are termed "green horses"—that is they have no established records and are the sort that play havoc with the talent. There are one or two local horses that promise to do just that, but their performances are being kept a profound secret.

The other day a Republican reporter, in company with A. J. Hudson, secretary of the Fresno Trotting Association, visited the track. It was about 11 o'clock in the forenoon and the morning's work-outs were about over. The horses that had been worked were walked up and down in front of the stables with their noses poked out of capacious blankets.

C. E. Clark, who brought out Toggles, which holds the Coast record, has charge of a promising string of animals that he will race this fall. The first in his row of stalls is Our Jack, owned by Billy Erwin of Sacramento, with a record of 2:13 1/2, made at Santa Rosa a year ago. Our Jack is a gelding eight years old.

The next was Toggles, which holds the Coast record of 2:09 1/4. He is a brown gelding owned by proprietor Babcock of the Hotel Coronado. He was leased last year by Chancellor and Canfield, the oil men, and driven by Mr. Clark. Toggles is a Lemoore horse, and was sold for $2000. He is now eight years old and, barring accidents, as the horsemen say, he is looked to outstrip his own record of last year.

The bay mere Listerine, owned by Sem Dunlap of this city, is also in Mr. Clark's string. She is by Athedon, out of Lusterine, by Onward, and is a promising piece of horse-flesh.

A. J. Hudson's brown mere Sue is also by Athadon, dam Gypsy, by a Hembletonian horse. She is four years old and is being worked slow just at present. She has been entered in a number of fast races on the circuit and great things are expected of her.

Athello, by Diablo, is a three-year-old stallion owned by Chancellor and Canfield, with a record of 2:16. Lottie Lilec is a promising three-year-old, which last year at Sacramento won the two-year-old stake of $ 500, making a record of 2:24. She is showing good form this year and is expected to get down in the teens. She is the property of Louis Helbron. Goshen Jim completes Clerke's string. He is a gelding owned by Eddy of Hanford and has made a mile in 2:17 1/2.

Worth Oher is handling the Occidental Land Company's horses, under the direction of Manager J. W. Minturn. Most of them are green horses. Teheren is the head of the family—a mehogeny bay stallion, without a speck of white. He is by Membrino Wilkes, out of an Electioneer mere, and has a record of 2:24. He will cut away under that this year, however, as he has shown a 2:12 gait in a cart.

Next came a likely three-year-old, which has been broken only three months. She has shown a 34 gait. Edne, by Teheran, is a neat going mere that Mr. Minturn took out of his huggy to put on the track. In three months' training she has shown a 23 1/2 gait. Perfection was also taken out of huggy harness to be attached to a pneumatic sulky. Perfection is by Mt. Hood, by Electioneer, and is showing good speed.

The flower of the flock is Ramona II., a two-year-old by Teheran. She is, according to Mr. Oher, a natural trotter, and already shows a 2:40 gait.

Colonel K. R., owned by C. K. Ragin of Hanford, is also on the track, but is not in Mr. Oher's string. The Colonel was taking a mud bath at the time. He has a record of 2:22 1/2.

It has been officially announced that the attendance at the Sheepshead Bay race track this season has been the largest in the history of the track. The number of paid admissions on Suburban Day, which has been variously estimated at from thirty to thirty-five thousand, has been officially announced as twenty-nine thousand. That is to say that 29,000 paid to see the races on that day. The owners and free list will easily run up the crowd to more than the above estimate. It is figured that the four Long Island tracks, Brooklyn, Sheepshead Bay, Brighton and Aqueduct, will make in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 this season.

The Best I Ever Used.

SPARTA, GA., Oct. 2, '97. The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, O.: "Gombault's Cautic Balm" is the best thing of the kind I ever used. I cured a bad case of bone spavin with it. For blistering, it has no equal. W. I. HABLEY.

MAUD, Chas. Newman's roan mare, worked a quarter very handily in 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ seconds at Alameda last Tuesday morning.

THE demand for stall room at the Alameda track is greater than the supply. Fifty more stalls could readily be rented there.

MCKINNEY has two new standard performers and both are in the 2:20 list—Coney 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$, pacing, and Dr. Book 2:16 $\frac{1}{2}$, trotting.

LENA HILL 2:12 $\frac{1}{2}$, ex-champion two-year-old pacing filly, has been bred to Electric Belle, the son of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells.

Eight hundred men are employed night and day on the Empire City trotting track, and things are rapidly assuming a completed state.

THE Denver trotter, Success 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$, was shipped to Detroit in Keating's car. A nomination will be sought for him in the M. & M. Stake.

THE Santa Rosa track is one of the fastest in the State, and the official survey shows three feet from the pole it is three feet over a mile.

THE American Stock Farm says that Beuzetta's colt by Patchen Wilkes has such a crooked hind leg that there is little hope of straightening it.

THE Golden Gate Park Driving Club will give an afternoon of matinee racing on September 9th if they can make arrangements to secure a track.

HAL B., by Hal Dillard, won a great race at Windsor Tuesday, and in doing so took a new record of 2:07 $\frac{1}{2}$, and reduced the track record 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ seconds.

THE two-year-old filly Futurity Belle, by Electric Belle, has been a mile in 2:24 this season and was sold to W. R. Brasfield of St. Louis for $3000.

ANDY McDOWELL drove a winner at Saginaw last Wednesday, so it is more than probable that the claim against the mare Fannie Putnam has been settled.

THE three-year-old filly Lenora, by Mendocino 2:19 $\frac{1}{2}$, out of Norah, grandam of Betonica, recently trotted a mile in 2:19. She belongs to Col. Goff, of Providence.

Alex. Brown, of Walnut Grove, has moved his string of trotters and pacers to Pleasanton. There are seven of them in charge of trainer Spencer formerly of Palo Alto.

BUT three of the get of Cupid 2:18 have ever been trained, Venus II. 2:19 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Psyche, owned by A. B. Spreckels, and Lottie, owned by T. J. Crowley. Watch them this year.

ONE of the largest light harness horses in training the present season is Frank Kysdyk, 2:11 $\frac{1}{2}$ pacing and 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$ trotting, that stands 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ hands high, and can lower his record.

BEFORE leaving Dover, Betonica paced a mile in 2:09 $\frac{1}{2}$, last half in 1:01 $\frac{1}{2}$. The stallion got in the habit of breaking on the first turn and has caused Tom Marsh considerable trouble.

BENNY MOORE, a Cleveland matinee horse with great speed was bred at Oakwood Park Stock Farm and is by Chas. Derby 2:20 out of Addie Ash, the dam of Ciholo 2:13 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Mia Louise 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$.

THE auction pool selling privilege for the inaugural meeting at Empire City Park has been awarded to Ira E. Bride & Co., of Detroit. The score-card privilege has been let to Frank G. Trott, of Boston.

THE four-year-old gelding Ilderim, by Simmons, that J. H. Thayer worked a mile in 2:16 over the Lexington, Ky., track, recently, was sold in the spring of 1898 by Bowerman Brothers to E. L. Featherstone for $37.50. He is now one of the best four-year-olds in Kentucky, and it would take a long price to secure him.

DAVE McCLARY is more than pleased with the way Star Pointer is going for him, and says he is so confident that the stallion will heat 1:59 $\frac{1}{2}$ this year that he would make a bet on it now.

MARIN, JR., 2:13, by Marin, 2:22 $\frac{1}{2}$, has joined the Oakfield stable, Bloomfield, N. J. Marin, Jr., was bred by Patrick Mnrphy, San Jose, Cal., and by the records is the fastest horse in Essex county.

MONROE SALISBURY was down from Pleasanton this week and reports the track there as in poor condition owing to the shortage of water. Arrangements have been made, however, to haul water from town.

JUNIO 2:22, the sire of Athanio 2:10, has been purchased by the Weissensee Club, of Berlin, Germany, from his Austrian owner, and the Germans are jubilant, and dream already of two-minute colts.

OVER 800 men are now employed in pushing the work on the new Empire City Park, New York, to completion, and, despite certain rumors to the contrary that have been circulated, it will be done on time.

HARVEY B., the horse that John C. Ohlandt won the first race for the O'Kane Challenge Cup with on the 4th of July, is not by Steinway, as stated. Harvey B. was bred in Sonoma county and is by a son of Anteeo.

A VERY aristocratic young miss arrived at W. Harry Orr's Hillside Farm, Reading, Pa., last week. She is a black filly by Thistle 2:13 $\frac{1}{2}$, out of Miss Direct, sister of Direct 2:05 $\frac{1}{2}$. Her sire and dam were both bred in California.

GAYTON 2:10 $\frac{1}{2}$ is probably faster than ever this year. He won at Hartford on the Fourth of July, trotting his two heats in 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 2:16 $\frac{1}{2}$ in a mere jog, none of the horsea contesting in the race being able to crowd him in the least.

COGSWELL, N. D., had a gopher celebration June 23d, and a harness race was on the program. The county bounty of two cents a tail makes the flickers a current medium of exchange, and in the trotting race the purse was 4000 gopher tails.

CHAS. F. KAPP's mare Marguerite, by Don Pedro, has dropped a handsome colt by Altamont. Those who have seen the little fellow say that he is a Chehalis in miniature, and that he stood up straight on his legs when he was five minutes old.

AT Parkway, Long Island, on the 29th of last month, Wild Wind, a brown mare by Wildout, won a hardly fought six heat race, the fastest heat of which was 2:27. Wild Wind was never worse than second and trotted the gamest kind of a race.

JOHN R. GENTRY paced an exhibition mile at Highland Park, Detroit, last Tuesday, in 2:02 $\frac{1}{2}$. He went against the track record of 2:02 and though he failed to heat it he made a wonderful mile for July. His time by quarters was 0:31 $\frac{1}{2}$, 1:01 $\frac{1}{2}$, 1:33 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 2:02 $\frac{1}{2}$.

THE four-year-old filly Buttercup, by Axtell, dam Nutilla by Nutwood, trotted a mile at Wheaton, Ill., recently in 2:19, last quarter in 33 seconds, timed by a dozen watches. As it was but the fourth time she was ever hooked to a sulky she looks a great prospect for a 2:10 trotter.

ROSS & DICKERSON, of Madison, Ind., recently lost by death the great broodmare Flight, dam of the trotters Jane 2:13 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Ross 2:19 $\frac{1}{2}$. She was a bay mare foaled in 1885, sired by Hambletonian Downing, dam Maude, dam of Dynamite 2:28 $\frac{1}{2}$, by Mambrino Patchen, Jr. She was valued at \$1500.

THE pacing horse Peanuts 2:18 $\frac{1}{2}$ by Sidney, owned by Frank G. O'Kane of this city, is offered for sale. He is one of the fastest horses driven over the speedway in Golden Gate Park and is sound and gentle. He can show a mile in 2:20 at any time. \$250 will buy him. He is a bargain at that price.

KINGMOND 2:16 $\frac{1}{2}$, the winner of the 2:40 trot at Dover, N. H., last week, is named in the M and M \$10,000 Stake at Detroit, and if nothing happens to him will be a starter. He was purchased by Dan Mahoney at Kellogg's sale in New York in 1895, where he was consigned by the administrators of A. B. Darling's estate. This is the second race in which he ever started, his other race being over Righty Park last fall, where he finished hack of the money. He was sired by King Darlington, dam by Red Wilkes.

LAST season's sensational trotter, John Nolan, 2:08, owned by J. E. Huhinger, of New Haven, made his first start for 1899 at Topeka, Kan., on June 22d, winning the free-for-all race in straight heats. His last mile was trotted in 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$ over the half-mile track. Trainer Willis Foote was able to drive the horse. He says he is confident that Nolan in the 2:08 class this year will be quite as much of a sensation as he was last season in the 3:00 class.

OWYHEE, the Oakwood Park stallion by Chas. Derby, out of Ida Wood, by Simmons, won the first heat of the 2:24 trot at Saginaw Wednesday and reduced his record to 2:16. He was a good second in the remaining three heats won by Mia Jay, a daughter of Jay Bird, in 2:15, 2:17 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 2:17 $\frac{1}{2}$.

FLORA DIRECTUM, the filly by Directum 2:05 $\frac{1}{2}$, out of a mare by Monroe Chief, that Monroe Salisbury sold at the Fasig sale last May at Cleveland for \$1550, won her first start at the matinee at Cleveland July 1st, heating a field of eight in straight heats, the time being 2:30 $\frac{1}{2}$, both heats. The race was for trotters to wagon.

A. C. BOSTWICK, a New York man, tells of his experience with automobiles as follows: "My automobile cost me $2500 in the first place; then for a year I had to employ an engineer at $60 a month, with board and lodging; added to this I used up two batteries within the year at $400 each, not to speak of new tires and repairs."

SERPOL, the gray horse that beat Phoebe Childers a Saginaw last Tuesday, was bred at Palo Alto. He is by Electricity 2:17 $\frac{1}{2}$, out of Sally Benton 2:17 $\frac{1}{2}$. The dam of Starlight 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Nordica 2:19 $\frac{1}{2}$ Serpol took a record of 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$ at Denver in 1897. He reduced this to 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$ in the third heat of his race with Phoebe Childers.

COPP STINSON is expected at the Cleveland track from Brantford, Ont., in a few days, with the Futurity colt Dr. John, by Ora Wilkes, and the stallion Baron Sontag. The last named is a brother to Norhawk, 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$, being by Norval out of Sontag Mohawk, dam of eight in the list, and if no accidents happen Stinson says he will heat 2:20 this year.

WALTER D., chestnut horse by Chas. Derby 2:20, won the third heat and third money in the 2:24 trot at Bradford Pa. June 29th, and incidentally reduced his record to 2:29 $\frac{1}{2}$. Walter D's dam is Idol Belle, the dam of Captain H. event, a horse that has been campaigned on the California circuit for the past four years without success, but is reported to be working fast and well this year.

THE Nutwood Driving Club of Duquaque, Iowa, has offered the owners of Frank Bogash, Joe Patchen, Directly, Searchlight, Star Pointer, Anaconda and John R. Gentry \$10,000 for a race on August 31st, the conditions being free entrance all to enter, and 2:03 to be beaten in the race. As Gentry paced a mile in 2:02 $\frac{1}{2}$ at Detroit last Tuesday, and nearly all the others are in excellent form the race ought to be a go.

WOODLAND will not hold a fair this year after all. The Directors of the Association concluded that they could not make a success of the fair this year unless they could have their old date, the week just preceding the State Fair. A Oakland has already taken that date and closed its entire Woodland's claim for that week could not be considered. However next year will see Woodland in line with the best fair ever held in Yolo county.

THE bay pacing mare Thera, by Albion, that Monroe Salisbury is working at Pleasanton, is eleven years old. In 1891, she won two heats in a three-year-old race at Los Angeles, getting a record of 2:34. Two years after she was shifted to the lateral gait and campaigned through the California circuit two or three seasons, but failed to win a heat. She can show very fast quarters. Her dam is by the famous thoroughbred horse Ten Broeck.

DIRECTINA 2:16 $\frac{1}{2}$, the Direct mare sold last winter to James Butler, of New York, by the Green Brothers, of Duluth, Cal., started at Hartford, July 4th, in the 2:17 trot. She won the fourth heat of a six-heat race and got third money. Her mile was made in 2:19 $\frac{1}{2}$. The fastest heat of the race was 2:14 $\frac{1}{2}$. Unfortunately Directina broke down in the race and will probably never start again. As she is out of Starwinder, the dam of Directum 2:05 $\frac{1}{2}$, she ought to make great broodmare.

A STORY is in circulation at Pleasanton that an English gentleman by the name of C. B. Charlesworth has purchased the well known race track, paying $27,000 for the property. It is given out that the old buildings will be torn down and some four hundred new stalls erected. It is also Mr. Charlesworth's intention to erect a fine hotel and resort on the property and make it a great training resort. Mr. C. will also engage in the breeding of thoroughbreds and contemplate purchasing a hundred acre farm to devote to that business.

TROTTER horse stallion owners in some parts of the country are reviving the old fad of breeding great draft mares to their fine trotting stallions to get the fine, large coacher thinking the large size of the draft mare and the fine quality of their stallion produces the great coacher, and they get many farmers to waste their breeding to get patronage for their stallions. If farmers would read the stock journals they would learn that no draft blood can be incorporated into the coach horse. It never has been done and it is waste of breeding, time and money to breed draft mares to any but draft stallions. If a farmer wants to breed trotters he must get high class trotting mares; if he wants to breed coachers, he must breed either coach mares to trotting stallions or trotting mares to coach stallions to get promptly in the best markets.—The Stock Breeder.

Bendoran's Bloodlines.

"The breeding of Bendoran is sufficiently interesting and important to deserve consideration," says W. H. Rowe. "He is by Sir Modred, out of Oran, and thereby represents a combination of imported elements which come from totally different portions of the globe, Mr. Haggin having imported Sir Modred from Australia and purchased Oran at the combination sale of English stock in New York in 1892.

"Imp. Sir Modred is by Traducer, he by The Lihel, out of Arethusa. The Lihel was by Pantaloon, out of Pasquadee, she by Camel (son of Whalebone), out of Bsnter, and hence full sister to Touchstone. Sir Modred comes of the male lines of Herod, whose son Woodpecker sired Buzzard, who himself got Castrel, the sire of Pantaloon. Traducer, sire of Sir Modred, is most interestingly inbred to Herod sources. Camel's dam was by Selim, son of Buzzard, while the dam of Traducer was by Elis, he by Langar, he by Selim. And the dam of Elis was out of a mare by Anvil, son of Herod. But our most important Herod consideration as concerning Traducer comes from his strength of Sir Peter Teszle (or Sir Peter), he by Highflyer, son of Herod. Pantaloon's dam was by Sir Peter, whose intensification in Traducer's dam, Arethusa, is quite remarkable. Arethusa's sire, Elis, was by Langar (whose dam was by Walton, son of Sir Peter), out of Olympia, she by Sir Oliver, son of Sir Peter. Arethusa's dam, Lauguid, was by Cain, out of a daughter of Poulton, Cain being by Panlowitz, he by Sir Paul, son of Sir Peter, while Poulton was an own son of Sir Peter.

"Idalia, dam of Sir Modred, was by Camhuscan (son of Newminster, he by Touchstone) out of Dulcibella, she by Voltigeur (son of Voltaire, he by Blacklock) out of Priestress, she by The Doctor out of The Biddy, she by Bran out of Idalis, she by Peruvian, son of Sir Peter. Bran was by Humphrey Linker, he by Comus (who was out of a Sir Peter mare) out of a mare by Clinker, son of Sir Peter. The Sir Peter lines also come in Idalia through Touchstones and Voltaire, and the strength of Sir Modred in this blood must be apparent to any one who will tabulate his pedigree a generation or two beyond the usual custom. And then when the figures are annexed, Sir Peter's numerous contributions of family 3 being accentuated by Buzzard, Master Henry, Trumpator, Tramp, Clinker, etc., it becomes quite evident that the late Mr. Lowe had good grounds for expressing his belief that Sir Modred would be well suited with mares who were of the 3 line or mares by horses well representing it. Imp. Oran, dam of Bendoran, is by Bend Or, he by Doncaster (son of Stockwell 3) out of Rouge Rose, she by Thormsby (son of Windhound 3). Another notable feature of Bendoran's dam is her return of Sir Modred's Touchstone. Doncaster was out of a mare by Teddington, he by Orlando, son of Touchstone; Windhound's dam was by Touchstone; imp. Oran's dam, Strathfleet, is by Scottish Chief (he by Lord of the Isles, son of Touchstone) out of Masquerade, by Lambourne. Masquerade is interestingly inbred to Boadicea, grandam of Touchstone. Lambourne's dam was out of Sarceem, she out of Bonta (Touchstone's dam), she by Master Henry 3 out of Boadicea. Masquerade's dam Burlesque was by Touchstone, out of Maid of Honor, she out of Etiquette, a daughter of Boadicea. Imp. Oran is of the 14 family, whose inbreeding at the foot of her pedigree is of considerable importance when we add to it the fact that Alexander (sire of Boadicea) and Highflyer (sire of Sir Peter) were both of family 13, which is almost certainly identical with sire family 11, and may quite safely be so related. Sir Modred's success with Oran is quite in line, however, with his past achievements in the stud, all of his best winners having come from mares whose suitability for him is more clearly demonstrated by the figures than in any other way. It is of interest, I am sure, to note that Oran is full sister to imp. Ben Strome, whose get are doing so well. Then, too, Oran's dam, Strathfleet, is a full sister to Highland Fling, she the dam of Merry Dance, whose daughter, imp. Cerito, produced Virginia Earle, one of the best two-year-old fillies of the year."

The Thoroughbred Market.

The majority of the sales of yearlings thus far held in the vicinity have shown a most healthy tone, and indicate that the market for the thoroughbred, notwithstanding the fact that several of the most prominent buyers of a few years ago have become breeders themselves, is stronger and higher than for a number of years. Indeed, the McGrathians, unannounced and Oakwood Yearling Sale may be said to have been the best held here for a number of years, and in many respects the best ever held in the country.

The sale was attended by the largest and most representative crowd of turfmen seen at a sale ring for many years, the bidding was spirited, the average over $1400 for 75 yearlings, a total over $105,000. These facts speak for themselves, and this sale plainly indicates that others, as was shown in the case of those of Mr. Barnes and Gen. Jackson, will prove satisfactory to the breeders of the West.

The market is strong and very firm for the best, and yearlings that are not bred in the most fashionable lines, but are good conformation and individuality, will bring more in fair prices. In a word, the situation is most encouraging.—Spirit of the Times.

Which is the Best?

Than the man who is endeavoring to discover the best two-year-old of the season none is deserving of more pity, says the New York Press. His last state must be a great deal worse than his first. At the outset we had James R. Keene's Doublet, then John Daly's His Royal Highness, and then Eugene Leigh's Vulcan. Now David Garrick happens along and complicates matters still further by heating some of the best two-year-olds in training, His Royal Highness among them, in decisive style. David Garrick is a colt of good substance and action. It may be that he will wear better than his predecessors in the candidacy for two-year-old honors, and for the peace of mind of turfmen generally it is to be hoped that he will.

The great outpouring of racegoers at Sheephead Bay on Saturday is corroborative evidence of a fact that must have been patent to all observers from the opening of the season—the increased and increasing popularity of racing. If there were 26,200 spectators at Sheephead on Suburban day—and that is the turnstile count—not less than 20,000 spectators were there on Saturday. With the Independence Day throng still to be heard from, this should prove to be the banner meeting of the Coney Island Jockey Club. In the dark days of 1895, when disaster seemed imminent, the most sanguine exporters of the turf feared that this century would have closed before racing would regain the popularity and the success which it enjoyed under the Ives pool law.

Less than four years have elapsed and now the turf is more prosperous than it has been at any time within the memory of man. More than that, it is increasing in popularity and in stability year by year. The limit has not been reached. No man may measure the heights to which this royal sport may attain in popular esteem, but it must gladden the hearts of those at the helm to know that the march is ever onward and upward and that the future is bright with promise.

SADDLE NOTES.

DR. HASBROUCK is now in the stud in Missouri.

STOCKTON will give a first-class program for the runners.

THE Western jockey, W. Dorsey, who can ride at 65 to 75 pounds, has been engaged to ride for the stables of W. C. Whitney.

JOCKEY ODOM, who recently signed a contract with W. C. Whitney at $10,000 a year, will ride at New Orleans during the winter.

W. H. CLARK besided the list of winning owners at the spring meeting of the Brooklyn Jockey Club, with a total of $13,245 to his credit.

At the sale of thoroughbreds at Tattersalls branch establishment at Neuilly, France, June 13th, the attendance was not large and the prices not high.

GOODWIN'S OFFICIAL TURF GUIDE, containing all the races up to July 1st, has been issued and can be had at this office. The price is sixty cents.

JOHN MADDEN has bought McMeekin from C. T. Patterson. Madden thinks the colt has had too much racing, and will let him have a rest before attempting to get him into condition.

BURNS & WATERHOUSE have bought the filly Southern Girl by Free Knight out of Sarah Davis from his former owner Abe Cahu. Out of eight starts in her two-year-old form she has been first three times, once second and once third.

JOCKEY GOVIN, who was suspended last winter in connection with the in and out running of May W., has returned from Chicago and reports that an investigation of his case has been made by the Turf Congress with the result that he has been reinstated.

APPLICATIONS for stabling for over 1100 horses have been received already by the Saratoga Racing Association. It has been decided in consequence that no yearlings shall be stabled on the track during the meeting, to leave more room for horses in active training.

JOCKEY WILLIE MARTIN and the Fleischmanns have separated. Martin's health is bad, and he would be glad if he could obtain a release from Bromley & Co., who have second call on him. He is anxious to go to Saratoga and build up for the fall campaign.

THE New York Sun says: President August Belmont, of the Jockey Club, when asked about the rumors of his retirement from the turf, said they were not true. All his yearlings will be sold, and the horses at present training in his stable will be disposed of gradually at private sale, but in his official capacity as chairman of the State Racing Commission and chairman of the Jockey Club he will be more active, if that is possible, than ever before. The fact that Mr. Belmont is in deep mourning is responsible for his temporary retirement from active participation as a racing man, but officially he will be present at the meetings and will be in the stands whenever possible. All his official relations will be continued, so that his interest in the sport will be as great as it ever was.

A. B. SPRACKELS sent the following communication to James E. Wheeler, Registrar of the Jockey Club, under date of May 27, 1899: "In December, 1897, I held a sale and among colts sold were Pompio, reg. No. 9331, and Ulloa, reg. No. 9333. Both of them were, by some means, wrongly registered and it was so announced at the same, and purchasers requested to send on certificates for correction, which I have just learned that they have not done. Pompio is by Puryear D., and not by Crighton. Ulloa is by Crighton and not by Chesterfield."

THE complaint that 200 pounds is too much for a horse to carry in a jumping race is absurd. It is a common thing in England for horses to go four miles in a steeplechase with that weight up. In judging hunters 196 is the minimum weight allowed, and a year or two ago a winner of the Grand National was handicapped at 212 pounds. Here in California many a mustang has carried a two hundred pound man and a fifty pound saddle all day and been ready to run away the next morning. It is not as much effort for a hunter to carry 200 pounds on his back as it is for some of the dudes who are objecting to it to carry an idea in their heads.

THE following culled from the report of the American Consul, Hughes, from Coburg, Germany, furnishes a new idea of food for horses: Potato bread is used by the natives of Thuringia, Germany, to feed their horses, especially when they are worked hard in very cold weather. The animals thrive on it, and their health and strength are excellent. The method of preparation is simple and inexpensive. The potatoes are slowly stewed till soft; they are then mashed thoroughly, and an equal quantity of corn meal is added. It is mixed into a thick paste, with a small quantity of salt. The paste is then divided into 4-lb. loaves and allowed to bake till thoroughly done. In the slow country ovens, it generally takes from fifteen to eighteen hours. When cold, they are fed to the horses and cattle doing heavy work at the rate of four loaves a day, viz., one in the morning, one at noon, one about 4 o'clock and one at night. With the last about 10 pounds of poor hay are given. It is claimed for this method that horses can do much more work on the same amount of food, and that it is good for their teeth.

READ the following fling at the starting gate from the pen of a writer on the New York Horse Fancier, but remember while reading it that horses do not get to be had actors in Australia where the gate is used on all the tracks: "We have been breeding for many, many years, the thoroughbred race horses to go and race, not to stand on a mark and jump off it like a Tom cat on a fence when some one fires a brick. All the instincts and inherited ideas of the animal are outraged and distressed by the presence of a white string across the breast, whose sudden disappearance is the signal for sharp spurring, wild yells and a hurried rush and confusion which upsets entirely his nerves and his manners. No temper but that of a Jersey cow would submit to such treatment, and even she would stop giving milk. If we have rogues by the score on all our race tracks, and if our stables are filled with nervous, crazy, "had doers" there is nothing to blame for it but the idiotic assistant to incompetency—the starting machine—and no one at fault but the starter, who persists in using a nerve racking and useless contrivance in face of the opposition of the entire racing public."

SECRETARY HOPPER, of the Latonia Jockey Club, is preparing a stake race for two-year-olds that, when it is run, will attract the best youngsters in the country and will be in the nature of a futurity. The stake will be called the Matron, and will be for foals of 1900 which will make their first running in 1902. Secretary Hopper has not as yet framed the conditions of the big race, but lately he gave out a few of them. Mares will have to be nominated before the last of October, 1899; $2000 will be added by the club, and it is expected the stake will be worth between $15,000 and $20,000. Its first running will be during the spring meeting of the Latonia Jockey Club in 1902 and it will be split into two races. The total value of the race will be split, the colts racing for 60 per cent and the fillies for the remaining 40 per cent. Secretary Hopper expects that the stake will attract the crack two-year-olds of the country, and that it will do much toward restoring racing in the West, as Eastern owners will no doubt make liberal entries. Secretary Hopper is now busily engaged in framing the conditions of the great race, and expects to announce them in a short time.

Two other hunters who have been operating at Point Sur for some time past, attempted to bring their boat up to Monterey one day last week. All went well until they were opposite Lovers' Point, Monterey bay, when an sudden gust of wind upset the boat. The occupants got on top of the upturned boat and N. R. Sprague and Robert Stockard, of Monterey, went to the rescue. The boat was towed ashore, baled out and righted, and the hunters sent on their way rejoicing.

At the Traps.

The Lincoln Gun Club shoot to-morrow is the only local trap shoot of any importance to take place. The second contest in the race for the Neustadter trophy will be one of the features of the day. Individual scores in this race will count in the money distribution among six classes. Ties will be shot off at five birds. A graphophone will be offered as a prize in a "couple race."

The Olympic Gun Club held their fifth and final live bird shoot for the season last Sunday at Ingleside. The concluding medal contest was at twenty-five birds; in the previous monthly events twelve birds were shot at per man, making a total of seventy-three pigeons to be shot at during the season in the race for the medals. For the meeting last Sunday the club added $25 in two moneys, $15 and $10 for high gun; all members were placed on an equality for the extra money distribution by shooting from the twenty-eight yard slat and having a handicap allowance of birds. C. A. Haight was the winner of the medal in the championship class, his score for the five shoots being sixty-nine out of a possible seventy-three. L. D. Owens and M. Unger tied for the Class A medal with sixty-four birds each, in shooting off the tie at ten birds Owens easily outshot his rival and won the medal. Paul Delmas won the medal in Class A on a total of sixty-one kills. The three high guns for the day were W. J. Golcher, C. A. Haight and A. Roos, who divided the purse between them.

The scores in detail in the club medal match and also the extra handicap allowances and scores counting in the purse distribution were as follows:

The return match between M. O. Feudner and A. M. Shields for the Olympic live bird challenge medal came off last Sunday, at Ingleside, during the shoot of the Olympic Gun Club. The handicap committee allowed Feudner twenty-three birds and placed him at the thirty yard mark. Shields shot from the twenty-nine yard score at twenty-five birds. Feudner was in great form, missing but one bird, the tenth. Shields lost his third, eighth, and fifteenth birds and then withdrew from the race. Feudner has won the medal twice; Dr. Barker, of San Jose, also has two wins to his credit. The scores in detail were as follows:

An ideal day for trap shooting was last Sunday at Alameda point. On the Empire Gun Club grounds the regular club events were shot through, the average of scores being good notwithstanding a rather slim attendance of members. Debenham was high man in the medal race and also took first money in the re-entry match following, second money was divided between Huie and La Motte. Fred Feudner won third and Mitchell won fourth moneys. In the prize gun contest Feudner scored the most breaks. In the final event of the day, the handicap merchandise race, La Motte was high gun and Dr. Cornwall and Joster tied for second place. In the shoot-off the former won.

The Washington Gun Club of Yolo closed its blue rock season last Sunday with a series of matches. The most interesting race of the day was the handicap shoot for the club's medal and a fine trout rod, which was won by T. Rust. The traps will be laid away till next spring, and the club members will now devote their attention to dove shooting.

Deer and Doves.

To-day it will be lawful to hunt and kill deer and shoot doves in most of the counties of this State; such counties as have changed the State law in this respect are noted under the head of Game Laws in another column. The best deer shooting for local hunters will be found in Marin and Sonoma counties. Many parties left this city yesterday for selected hunting grounds in those counties. Some surprises will, no doubt, be experienced by the hunters in finding many erstwhile favorite hunting grounds posted. The Country Club, Tamalpais, and Olympic Gun Club have had their preserves carefully protected and posted. Many of the members of these shooting clubs will be out early to day with rifle and bound to make things generally interesting for the gay and festive huck. Outside of the club boundaries will be found also, other hunters with rifles and hounds, a Filipino skirmish line as it were, and it is safe to say that envying venison seeking refugia beyond the Elysian fields will stand rather a slim chance to get back with an unperforated hide. The northern counties and those to the south will be visited by hunters who will be camping out for many weeks to come. Reports in general from most of the deer districts are favorable to plenty of good sport for a few weeks before the animals are frightened out of their districts by firearms and dogs.

Doves are reported to be plentiful in most localities, particularly so in the vicinity of Sacramento, Stockton and throughout Yuba county of which section it is reported that the birds are unusually thick in the foothills, and almost every scrub oak bush holds a dove's nest. Now that harvesting is under way the birds will begin to work down into the grain fields. As for quail, the season has been a very good one. The river bottoms are full of half-grown birds, and parties from the foothills say they have not seen so many young birds in their section in years. The birds hatched early this season, and by October 1st, when this season opens, they will be fully grown. Pheasants, which are comparatively new in that section, are becoming quite plentiful.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The Chupinos, Natividad and Gahlen ranches and the lands opposite Blanco (across the river) in Monterey county have been posted against hunters.

Al Cummings, who has recently returned from Webber Lake district, reports mountain quail to be very plentiful in that region and also that Sierra county is destined to become a famous ground for grouse shooting.

Under Sheriff Robinson and E. J. Okell, two prominent sportsmen of Suisun, are making efforts to introduce Mongolian pheasants into Solano county. The Board of Supervisors have prepared an ordinance for the protection of the birds.

Fred Nichols, of Mountain View, was arrested for trepping quail by Deputy Fish and Game Commissioner Stephen Ponce, of Mayfield, on June 30th. He was tried and convicted before Judge Beaverly, of Mountain View, and sentenced to pay a fine of $30.

It is very probable that a test case will come up before the Marin county courts before long, in which the validity of the recently adopted game protection ordinance will be attacked—the prohibition against magazine repeating shot guns is obnoxious to interested parties and a strong effort will be made to have this particular prohibition rescinded.

Jemea Bleck, of Woodland recently set twenty pheasant eggs under a hen. The result was a brood of young pheasants as healthy and strong as if they had been hatched in their own native wilds. The indications seem to be that the birds will be easily domesticated. They are already large enough to hustle around for food and appear to be contented with their surrounding. Mr. Black has given some of the birds to friends. With those that remain he intends to experiment. He will cross them with game chickens.

Pheasants are quite plentiful on the Rideout ranch near Wheatland. Several broods of birds have been seen, and recently while cutting alfalfa three nests were cut over. No sign of pheasants along Bear River has been reported this summer, but this is not to be wondered at, as the bottom lands afford ample cover and the pheasants have a faculty of keeping hid.

A demonstration of the power of the new Mannlicher rifle was given in a fatal accident near Praga recently. Two gendarmes entered a room in an inn and closed the door, putting their rifles in a corner. One rifle fell and was fired off. The bullet went through the door into the next room, where a party was dancing, and passed through the body of a musician, who was killed, and then through those of five other men, all of whom were dangerously wounded.

The directors of the Yuba and Sutter Gun Club are perfecting organization for the fifth annual dove stew, which is to be held at Shaltous Grove, Marysville, on July 30th. At the last meeting an executive committee was selected to take charge of the details, and in its turn has appointed the following sub-committees:

Finance—W. H. Parks, J. L. Howard, F. H. Greeley, E. A. Forbes, G. W. Hamerly, William McCune, W. Dinsmore, J. E. Bevan and J. W. Staward. Reception—E. A. Forbes, W. J. Ellis Jr., F. H. Greely, R. E. Bevan, J. H. Marcus and A. H. Redington. On shooting tournament—J. W. Staward, J. H. Durst, J. L. Howard and E. W. Henlon. On stew—G. W. Hamerly, William McCune, J. C. Lumbard, W. F. Kelly and F. W. Bittleman. Expense of his energy and interest in field sports, J. W. Steward has been selected to act as manager.

In the manufacture of Krag-Jorgensen rifles at the Springfield Arsenal, the drill, which has to pass through 30 1/2 inches of barrel, is provided with a 1-32 inch oil hole which extends through its whole length, and feeds oil directly at the point of the drill. This hole, which takes the place of the old channel cut along the side of the drill, says the Scientific American, is an improvement introduced by Major Taylor. The oil is forced through the drill by means of a small rotary pump, which forms part of the machine. Although the barrel rotates at a speed of 1200 revolutions per minute, the constant rush of cold oil to the head is sufficient to keep the drill and barrel perfectly cool, and it also serves to carry the chips which issue in a constant stream from the rear hushing. The barrel is drilled to a diameter of 0.295 inch, and it takes 75 minutes to complete the operation. The barrels are then taken to the straightening room, where the operator holds them up towards a white surface with a horizontal black line upon it and looks through the hole. If the head is downward, the curved reflections of the black line on the surface of the hole will be convergent; if upward, they will be divergent. A few taps of the hammer quickly straightens the barrel until the reflected lines are perfectly true.

Bucking the Tiger.

The following recherche narrative about a tiger, three Hindoos and a miscellaneous eccontrement of small arms might be read with profit by the valiant hunters along the skirmish line outside of the Tamalpais and Country Club boundaries to-day. It has generally been accepted that tiger hunting and tragedy were almost synonymous terms, but it now seems that the element of comedy is not entirely lacking when T. regalis plays a part:

"Bahu Sooi Bhusan Chatejee, of Cossipore, sends us the following account of a trip to the Sunderbunds and an adventure with a tiger: 'We (viz., myself, Jitendra and a shikari, an old, but well built man of about 55 years) arranged one morning to make a trip right into the forest, partly to see the natural beauties of the place and partly to shoot deer. I had a six-chambered revolver, the young man had a double barrel breech-loader, while the shikari carried an old fashioned smooth-bore gun. Of course, we had these arms all properly loaded before starting. In the forest we found many varieties of jungle trees, each species covering several hundred acres and keeping to itself in a large group, as it were. The soil underneath remains for the most part under water at high tide and is soft and muddy when the water recedes. No grass or weeds can grow on account of the salt water, and there are plain lawns or open spaces at intervals in which we could imagine the animals holding open air meetings. When we had gone about a mile and a half into the forest, and as we reached one of these lawns, our attention was drawn by the shikari to certain signs showing that a deer had been caught and taken away by a tiger but a few hours previously. We saw the clew marks of the tiger and the hoof marks of the deer, and the scratches and trail marks on the soft mud clearly indicated that the deer had struggled hard, but ineffectually and had been ultimately dragged into the woods. As we were examining these marks with much interest, we heard two deep hollow roars from inside the wood. The shikari told us that the tiger was very near, and advised that we should all kneel down with our guns aimed in the direction that the sounds came from. We accordingly did so, aiming our firearms in that direction. We were in this position for some five or six minutes, enjoining each other meanwhile to muster all courage, and arranging that in the event of the animal taking one of us, the other two should do their best to rescue him or his body from the jaws of the tiger.

"Suddenly we heard a rustling noise from the trees in front of us, and right before us out came a huge spotted tiger measuring from 7 to 8 feet from his nose to the end of his tail. The open space was only about 60 feet in area and the animal was some 30 feet in front of us. The beast first stered furiously for what seemed a very long time at us, and then began to stroll about in our front perhaps seeking for a chance to spring upon us. The shikari earnestly impressed upon us that we were not to fire, for in the event of our missing, or of the animal only being wounded, he would surely leap upon us and take one of us away. We could not but follow his advice and so kept on our knees ready to shoot should the tiger assume the aggressive. The animal, on the other hand, kept on strolling about and looking for a chance to attack us, sometimes raising his tail high up in the air, sometimes lashing it against the mud. After we had been in this position for a few minutes, the shikari advised us to shout at the tops of our voices to try and scare the animal away. We all three did so, but the shouting had no effect; and after we had shouted for six or eight minutes and were very nearly exhausted, the animal seemed to realize that he could not get a chance, and to our great joy he turned around and retreated into the woods through one of the openings. We, too, keeping on our knees and aiming our guns towards the animal, began to move in an opposite direction through another opening till we reached a more spacious clearing about 50 or 60 feet from where we had interviewed the tiger. While we rested there beneath a big tree the shikari collected some dry wood, set fire to it and commanded us to move on through the fire as fast as possible. This we did, and eventually reached the embankment outside the forest by a circuitous route. Thus ended what was a very exciting end at the time unpleasant adventure, and it is interesting to hear out what one hears about the 'the tigers of the Sunderbunds having no fear of man.'—Pioneer.

The Fly-Casters.

The regular bi-monthly meeting and banquet of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club took place last Tuesday evening. A pleasant feature on the bill of fare were some toothsome Webber lake trout sent down by Al Cummings and A. F. Finch. A beautiful specimen of the Loch Levin trout which had been sent to President Mansfield by Mr. Cummings excited the admiration of the banqueters and started a number of fish stories.

When the regular business of the evening came up President Mansfield submitted an elaborately compiled table of statistics which detailed the records and skill of the members for the seven fly-casting contests held so far this season. Contrasting these figures with previous records shows marked improvement in the individual work of the fly casters.

Four new members were elected, bringing the roll of membership up to 99, this being within one of the limit number. Secretary Horace Smyth read an original poem by F. G. Sanborn which was replete with angling reminiscences. A. T. Vogelsang, president of the State Fish Commission, in a few remarks suggested co-operation between California and Nevada sportsmen for the protection of trout in the Truckee river. The members and guests present were:

Walter D. Mansfield (president), H. T. Vogelsang, H. E. Skinner, C. M. Walker, F. E. Daverkosen, C. G. Young, Charles Klein, E. A. Mocker, James Watt, George Welker, F. M. Haight, F. G. Sanborn, Ed More Jr., C. F. Stone, William Keliabor, Adolph Muller, H. F. Muller, F. S. Johnson, W. A. L. Miller, H. Batu, W. A. Conper, Horace Smyth, J. P. Bshcock, H. C. Golcher, Charles Hoyck, R. Isehnbruck, Edward Evarat and John Buttler.

To-day the eighth Saturday contest will be held at Stow Lake at 2:30 P. M. and to-morrow at 10 o'clock A. M. the Sunday contest will take place.

All Aboard!

A beautifully illustrated booklet, replete with interesting information concerning Marin, Sonoma, Lake and Mendocino counties has just been issued by the California Northwestern Railway (Lessee of the San Francisco and North Pacific Ry). On the line of the railroad the angler can have a choice of any of three hundred different trout streams, furnishing over six thousand miles of water length, all within a day's journey of the city. The hunter will find places too numerous to mention here for sport with shotgun and rifle. The camper has the pick of location—each place better than the other—ideal spots for a vacation trip. The handsome half-tone engravings embellishing the pamphlet will go far towards convincing that the "Pictureque Route of California" has unlimited attractions for all who desire a day, week or month's outing recreation and sport.

Striped bass fishermen are now having plenty of sport with this magnificent salt water game fish. Bob McFarland, of Texas, and Doc Cox made a good catch in the Oakland estuary last Saturday, one fish weighed twenty pounds and put up a strong fight before he was gaffed. On Sunday there was a fleet of hosts out in the estuary but McFarland was the only successful fisherman. Al Wilson and Manna Cross have had good luck recently with this fish. Point San Quentin fishermen have caught a number of good sized bass. One thing has been demonstrated to many an angler within the last two months, much to his chagrin at the time, and that is, strong and proper tackle is absolutely necessary in landing striped bass.

A recent fishing trip to Salmon creek by Jim Meynerd, Clerencia A. Haight and Ellis Johnson was productive of three days' excellent sport. The anglers stopped at Mr. Colby's Ocean View hotel, situated on the banks of the creek about ten miles from Bodega Roads. The anglers are profuse in their praises of the excellent fare and accommodations for sportsmen at the resort just mentioned.

Minnows will probably be used to a great extent in Webber Lake before long, heretofore fly-fishing has been the rule, but there is now a plentiful stock of fish in that body of water and myriads of minnows for them to feed on, consequently the fly feels to be as effective for the angler.

Loch Levin trout promise grand sport in Webber lake, some large beauties were caught there recently.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

C. A. Haight and Dr. W. R. Cluness Jr, have resigned from the A. K. C. Pacific Coast Special Committee.

The Stockdala Kennels Derby entry the black and tan pointer dog Cuba's Zap was mentioned as Cuba's Zap last week, a typographical error which was now hasten to correct.

Several pointer puppies bred in the purple are for sale. They were whelped February 19, 1899, and will be of good age for the 1901 Derby. Particulars can be ascertained of the Kennel editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The dog-poisoner has made his dastardly work felt in Tihuron, at least fifteen valuable dogs at Belvidera amd Tihuron were killed the beginning of this week. A detective has been engaged to ferret out the party or parties guilty of the despicable work.

Dominick Shannon's natty fox terrier bitch Santa Rosa (Vigilant—Stiletto) was accidentally poisoned last week. She won first in puppies at the May bench show and was one of the best young bitches on the Coast. Mr. Shannon's loss is to be regretted, she was just a year old and undoubtedly had a future before her which gave promise of many winnings.

Wa ara informed by Mr. J. E. da Royter that Connt Ch. Gladstone IV. was brought out here by Col. Arthur Merriman in January 1898, consequently the entry by Dr. C. I. Shoop in the Western Field Trials Derby of the setter Count Hunter (Ch. Gladstone IV.—Hunter's Queen) whelped May 1898, is open to criticism so far as the breeding of the young sater is concerned. The breeding is unknown to the Verona Kennels.

The Stockdala Kennels, Bakersfield, announce in our advertising columns to-day the stud services of Cuba of Kenwood—bred by R. M. Dodge, whelped January 20, 1896, winnings: 2nd Derby and 2od All Age, Pacific Coast Field Trials Jan., 1898, 3rd All Age and 2od Champion Stake, Pacific Coast Field Trials Jan., 1899, 1st Novice, 2nd Limit and 3rd Open, S. F. K. C. bench show 1898. 2od Limit, Res. Open, 3rd Field Trial Class, S. F. K. C. bench show 1899, Cuba is by Glenheigh Jr., out of Dodge's Stella—Another good one in the stud is Sam's Bow, a son of the great field dog Sam's Bow out of Dolly Dea II. Sam's Bow was bred by J. R. Daniels and whelped January 20, 1896; his field record is 2nd Derby, Manitoba Field Trials, Sept., 1898 1st All Age, Pacific Coast Field Trials, Jan., 1899. His bench winnings ara 2nd Novice, 1st Open, S. F. K. C. show May, 1899.

The facilities for boarding dogs at the Stockdala Kennels are 6rst class in every particular; the reputation of Mr. Dodge as a high class trainer and handler is well and widely known.

A case came up before a local Police Judge recently wherein the owner of a dog had been arrested for maintaining a vicious dog. What the merits of the case were we do not know, nor do they ent any figura. The Judge upon the establishment of the dog's guilt (?) ordered that the animal be killed, in fact sent a written order to the Chief of Police to have his order carried into effect. It is about time that the owners of dogs should know their rights in such cases—the order of a judge or any other official in this respect has no mora legal standing than would a penalty of death imposed on a rooster for crowing or an order to kill horses or stock for kicking or brasking down fences. The remedy in all such cases is an action through the civil courts for any damage sustained by reason of injury to person or property against the owner of the animal.

We seriously question the right of any poundmaster to put a dog to death for non-payment of the dog license by its owner. The proper action in this case is by legal process in a civil court against the owner.

Bitches should not be bred the first time of coming in season.

Eastern Field Trials Derby Entries.

A total of 6fty-four (sixteen pointers and thirty-eight setters) make up the Eastern Field Trials Club Darby nominations for 1900. They were all whelped in 1898; this entry is the largest since 1892.

Backing is one of the most artistic and beautiful performances with which a dog ever delights his master.

Careful selection of stock in breeding prevents inherited vices either of blood or disposition.

Points of the Fox Terrier.

The following is the standard recommended by the American Fox Terrier Club:

1. Head—The Skull should be flat and moderately narrow, and gradually decreasing in width to the eyes. Not much "stop" should be apparent, but there should be more dip in the profile between the forehead and top jaw than is seen in the case of a greyhound. The Cheeks must not be full. The Ears should be V shaped and small, of moderate thickness, and drooping forward close to the cheek, not hanging by the side of the head like those of a foxhound. The Jaw, upper and lower, should be strong and muscular; should be of fair punishing strength, but not so in any way to resemble the greyhound or modern English terrier. There should not be much falling away below the eyes. This part of the head should, however, be moderately chiseled out, so as not to go down in a straight slope like a wedge. The Nose, toward which the muzzle must gradually taper, should be black. The Eyes and Rims should be dark in color, small and rather deep set, full of fire, life and intelligence; as nearly as possible of circular shape. The Teeth should be as nearly as possible together; i. e., the upper teeth on the outside of the lower teeth.

2. Neck—Should be clean and muscular, without throatiness, of fair length, and gradually widening to the shoulders.

3. Shoulders—Should be long and sloping, well laid back, firm at the points, and clearly cut at the withers. Chest—Deep and not broad.

3. Back—Should be short, straight and long, with no appearance of slackness. Loic—Should be very powerful and vary slightly arched. The fore ribs should have moderately arched, the back ribs deep; and the dog should have well ribbed up.

5. Hind Q uarters—Should be strong and muscular, quite free from droop or crouch; the thighs long and powerful; hocks near the ground, the dog standing well up on them like a foxhound, and not straight in the stifle.

6. Stern—Should be set on rather high, and carried gaily, but not over and back or curled. It should be of good strength, anything approaching a "pipa stopper" tail being especially objectionable.

7. Legs—Viewed in any direction, must be straight, showing little or no appearance of ankle in front. They should be strong in bone throughout, short and straight in pastern. Both fore and hind legs should be carried straight forward in traveling, the stifles not turning outward. The elbows should hang perpendicularly to the body, working free of the sides. Feet—Should be round, compact, and not large; the soles hard and tough; the toes moderately arched, end turned neither in nor out.

8. Coat—Should be smooth, flat, but hard, dense and abundant. The belly and under side of the thighs should not be bare. Color—White should predominate; brindle, red or liver markings ara objectionable. Otherwise this point is of little or no importance.

9. Symmetry, Size and Character—The dog must present a generally gay, lively and active appearance; bone and strength in a small compass ara essentials; but this must not be taken to mean that a fox terrier should be cloggy, or in any way coarse—speed and endurance must be looked to as well as power, and the symmetry of the foxhound taken as a model. The terrier, like the hound, must on an account be leggy, nor must he be too short in the leg. He should stand like a cleverly made hunter, covering a lot of ground, yet with a short back, as before stated. He will then attain the highest degree of propelling power, together with the greatest length of stride that is compatible with the length of his body. Weight is not a certain criterion of a terrier's fitness for his work—general shape, size and contour ara the main points; and if a dog can gallop and stay, and follow his fox up a drain, it matters little what his weight is to a pound or so, though, roughly speaking, it may be said that he should not scale over twenty pounds, in show condition.

Wire-haired Fox Terrier—This variety of the breed resembles the smooth sort in every respect except the coat, which should be broken. The harder and more wiry the texture of the coat is, the better. On no account should the dog look or feel woolly; and there should be no silky hair about the poll or elsewhere. The coat should not be too long, so as to give the dog a shaggy appearance; hot, at the same time, it should show a marked and distinct difference all over from the smooth species.

Paralyse.

A new and comprehensive work on Kennel Diseases by Dr. Perry (Ashmont) has been announced and will soon appear. The book has been in careful preparation for several years past and will embrace a series of interesting chapters covering some 400 pages. An adequate idea of the value and scope of this new contribution to kennel lore may be gathered from the chapter on paralysis (an extract of which follows below). A reference to the kennel announcements in our advertising columns will enable our readers to form a further favorable impression as to the practical value of the works of this noted authority on kennel matters.

"Paralysis is a symptom, or the expression, of an abnormality somewhere in the nervous system, and is characterized by impairment or loss of nerve force and ability of the muscles involved to act in response to command of the

ll. It may be partial or complete; it may also be confined to one or few muscles, or affect many muscles, as all of leg, or one-half of, or even the entire body. Paralysis may be due to a defect in the brain or spinal cord, in the nerves anchoring therefrom, or in the muscles themselves. Among causes are included contusions, wounds, fractures and other injuries produced traumatically, also diseases of parts of the region of the affected nerves, which cause compression, in the case of tumors and enlarged glands. Diseases of a brain and spinal cord are among the most frequent causes. It is the inevitable result of plugging an artery in the former by a clot formed in the heart, the supply of blood on a portion of it being thus cut off. Certain poisons are capable of producing paralysis. In some instances also it occurs after acute diseases, notably distemper; and it may result from the severe exhaustion of the nervous system. Puppies especially, often suffer from the so-called reflex paralysis, which is the consequence of some disease, injury or irritation at the points of nerve distribution, as in worms, constipation and other intestinal disorders, affections of the kidneys, bladder, etc. And this form of paralysis is commonly exhibited by impairment or complete loss of hind legs. If the paralysis is partial, it is shown by a trembling, shakiness and uncertainty of the movements of the parts involved. When it is complete the muscles are commonly relaxed and incapable of the slightest resistance. In spinal paralysis both sides are commonly affected; but when the brain is the seat of the trouble, loss of power almost always occurs on one side of the head or body, and that opposite to be injured. When the affection is reflex, the impairment or loss is limited to the region supplied by one or a few nerve trunks. Paralysis may come on suddenly or gradually. After existing for a time the affected muscles lose their contractibility, and waste, and the power of motion in them is ultimately permanently destroyed; or the affected nerves may become incapable of conducting impressions, and thus recovery be no longer possible. Lameness in one or both the hind legs without known injury or partial or complete paralysis of them would justify the suspicion of worms, and the application of appropriate treatment; and when the diagnosis is right, as a rule improvement at once follows their expulsion. In other cases of paralysis occurring suddenly the first step should be to free the bowels by means of an active purgative. Then the condition of the bladder should be determined by watching; and if paralyzed, and the animal unable to void his urine, he must be relieved by means of a catheter."

Where the cause of paralysis can be determined, manifestly it should be removed if possible. If occasioned by pressure, the same must be relieved; or if by a poison, the proper antidote is in order.

Paralysis following distemper or other acute diseases may not at once require any special medicinal treatment. If by the means of careful nursing, generous and nutritious diet and tonics, the general health is built up, some improvement in the paralysis may occur in the course of two or three weeks; but if not a nerve stimulant must be given. In the meantime the paralyzed parts should be manipulated and band-rubbed for at least ten minutes daily, to maintain the integrity of the affected muscles, that they may be able to respond to the nerve current and force when it is again turned on.

Electricity would be of great benefit in most cases, but its application to the dog is attended with so many difficulties it can never be a popular remedy.

The beneficial effect of hand-rubbing may be increased somewhat by stimulating liniment; and in cases in which the paralysis has existed several weeks, small fly-blisters will likely be of value.

Where the loss of power is only partial, rest for the first two weeks should be enforced, but after that, daily efforts to move about should be encouraged.

The medicinal agent to be depended upon as a nerve stimulant is strychnia.

From druggists may be obtained granules containing various amounts of the sulphate of strychnia—from one two-hundredths up to one-twentieth of a grain—therefore the doses can be easily adjusted; and the granules being of uniform strength, the use of this powerful agent ought to be perfectly safe.

As the doses are to be increased every sixth day the purchases should be limited to twelve granules; one to be given twice daily, with the breakfast and supper.

The commencing dose for pups over six months old and of medium or large size breeds is one-sixtieth; if about the size of fox terriers one one-hundredth; for toys, one two-hundredths of a grain.

The second lot of twelve granules should contain about one-twentieth of a grain more strychnia. That is, the granules right for medium and large size breeds would be one-fortieth of a grain; for fox terriers and the like, one-eightieth; and for toys, one one-hundred and eightieth. While in preparing the third lot a similar increase should be made.

As a rule, three such increases are perfectly safe. If, however, at any time the physiological effects of the drug are noted—as stiffening of the legs—its use should be at once stopped.

Strychnia having failed, simple borax should be given a trial, in the following doses: largest breeds, six grains; medium size, four grains; fox terriers and the like, two grains; toys, one grain.

This medicine should be in the form of powders, one of which should be given three times daily at first, but in the course of a week the dose should be doubled.

THE FARM.

Better Grades of Wool Needed.

In the markets to-day the finer grades of wool are high priced, and relatively scarce while the cheaper and coarser grades are increasing in quantity, and if anything declining in prices. If there is any lesson to be learned from this, it is that the breeder has only to raise sheep that will produce the finest grade of wool to make the most out of his industry. This, in a general way, may be said to be true of nearly every department of work connected with agriculture. The best always pays the most profit, and sometimes the best is the only thing that pays at all.

One of the greatest drawbacks to the production of fine grades of wool is the desire, stimulated by market conditions, to breed for mutton. Cross breeding for mutton in South America and Australia has been responsible for the decline in the quantity of fine wool from these two countries. It has also been a great factor in the change in this country. The mutton sheep as a rule produce only coarse and indifferent wool, and where the flocks are raised largely for their mutton the wool must naturally suffer. In Australia in particular, the change has been noticeable. England has built up a large trade with this colony in frozen mutton, but it has been at the expense of the wool trade. The quantity of fine wool raised in Australia has declined so steadily that to-day it is a small item in the markets. London wool dealers have in the past year looked to this country for their full supply of fine grades. Just at present there is a decided scarcity of fine wool in the European markets, and there is none too much in this country for the market demands. Consequently the prices for such wool will continue to increase.

The danger of a like degeneration is very apparent in this country. The demand for mutton and lamb has stimulated hundreds of breeders to neglect the wool for the mutton. Cross-bred mutton sheep are found on every side, but very few distinctively fine wool-producing animals. It might be wise in this condition of affairs to stop and inquire whether it would not pay some of our sheep breeders to cultivate the wool breeds more, and try to keep up the supply of fine wool. There will be money in it in the future. Some predict that the decline of fine wools in Australia and South America will be permanent, in which event this country could come quickly to the front as the first for producing fine wools.

Money in Hogs.

The fact that a well fed hog is ready to kill at any time makes swine perhaps the most generally popular and profitable kind of farm stock to grow for meat. A dressed hog is always salable and if the price is not right at the time the pork can be barreled and sold at a profit. We have known fore-handed farmers who when pork was much below its usual paying price would always put their hog crop into the barrel and sell it out by the piece. This makes much better pork than that put up by the great establishments in the West, for farmers cut out the ribs when they barrel side pork and without the ribs the pork keeps better. It is true that the nicest, sweetest meat on the hog is close to the ribs and in the tenderloin. But there is danger in this lean, tender meat, especially when in contact with bone, where, as the old saying is, the meat is always the sweetest. In every case where meat begins to become tainted the first place to spoil is close to the ribs, probably because in packing pork with the ribs there is always some air in the bone and this affects the meat adjoining it. So in every locality where pork put up by farmers can be had it is generally preferred to the packed meats from the grocery, which have been put up with the bone in some western city.—Boston Cultivator

Butter, Cream or Cheese.

In these times of close competition in dairying, to be master in his business, one must know how much milk will yield, made up into various products, when their market prices are such as to warrant a diversity. When milk, testing 4 per cent., sells for five cents a quart, and skim milk is worth twenty cents per hundred pounds for feeding, it is bringing the equivalent of forty cents per pound for butter. One hundred pounds of milk testing 4 per cent. fat, would yield, on the average, 45 pounds of butter. In one hundred pounds of milk there are about forty quarts. This, sold at five cents per quart, would bring $2, and taking out twenty cents, price of skim milk, if butter were made, we see that 4.5 pounds of butter must sell for $1.80, or forty cents per pound. In a similar way, we see that sixteen cents per quart for cream testing 20 per cent. fat is the equivalent of 29.3 cents for butter.

The yield of butter is estimated in many creameries by adding one-eighth to the butter fat; the yield of green cheese by multiplying the fat by 2.7, and that of curd cheese by multiplying by 2.6. This estimate is based upon milk containing about 3.7 per cent. fat, however, and the richer the milk the greater the yield from a given amount.

A hundred pounds of milk testing four per cent. fat, will yield about 45 pounds of butter, or 10.8 pounds of cheese. If it costs three cents per pound to make the butter, and one and one-half cents per pound to make cheese, eighteen cents per pound for butter will be equivalent of 7.6 cents per pound for cheese.

Such problems as the above, the up-to-date creamery man must solve readily, and then turn his milk into the most profitable channel.—Prof. H. Hayward, of Pennsylvania Experiment Station.

To Stop the Growth of Horns.

Is there anything that will stop the growth of horns on cattle? If so, where can it be gotten and when should it be applied? This question is frequently asked and to it we make the following answer: At any drug store one can buy either caustic potash or caustic silver (Inna caustic) which, when applied to the nubs of horns on young calves, will stop all growth of the horns. It is usually advised to wrap the stick caustic with paper to prevent its burning the fingers while handling, then rub the little knob where the horn is to appear with an exposed end of the stick. If the knobs are cleansed with soap and water to remove all animal grease, the caustic will be more effective. A little grease robbed around the base of the knob will prevent the caustic from burning where it ought not to. Another method of applying is to put the caustic in a phial with a large mouth end put in a little water, just enough to dissolve the caustic. Then fit a wooden stopper of soft wood with lower end long enough to reach the bottom of the phial. With this the linc caustic can be applied a few drops at a time to the knobs, with no danger of burning the fingers or getting too much on the calf. It should be applied before the horns get started, say when the calf is a week old. Properly applied one application will kill the horns. Carelessly applied one may succeed in killing one horn while the other will grow and thus make a more unsightly head than if both had been allowed to grow.

When rennet is put into warm milk, it very quickly curdles it. This is, it is true, the first process towards digesting the milk, but as is well understood, the curd, being a compact mass, does not allow indigestive fluids to mix with it, and it consequently remains undigested in the stomach. But let this curd be pressed into a cheese and allowed to ripen, and its character becomes wholly changed, as much so as that of fruit when it is progressed from its green stage to that of thorough ripeness. In old cheese the rennet has gone through all the particles of casein, fitting them for easy digestion. While new cheese is usually hard to digest, that which has been kept several months where it cannot dry out is the reverse. A piece of cheese with bread will therefore be digested by those who find trouble in digesting almost anything else. Cheese is very nutritious in the strengthening elements of food. Because when it enters the stomach it is already half digested, the strength it gives enables the stomach to digest other food.

Mendocino Wool Sales.

At the wool sales in Ukiah about 900 bales were disposed of at an average price of 17c per pound, says the Republican Press. The highest price paid was 17½c and the lowest 16½c. It is needless to remark that the wool growers were exceedingly jubilant over the prices paid. There was not one who anticipated over 16c, and few who imagined that even such a figure would be reached. At a rough estimate Mendocino county produces about 1600 bales at the spring shearing, which at the figures quoted, means approximately $75,000 cash for sheep raised in that county.

If a ranchman is growing grade cattle for the feeder market, he should aim in his matings to secure uniformity in this respect so far as possible. If he is breeding reds, let him breed reds; if he is breeding roans, let him try always to produce roans, not because one is better than the other, but because they are better for him and will match the rest of his product. It seems a little odd that expert buyers should be willing to pay more money for a bunch of cattle that are all of one color than they are for cattle equally as good that are of various colors, since, as dressed beef, color disappears entirely and no one can tell what kind of a hide a carcass wore before it was stripped off. But the fact is that way, all the same, and has to be reckoned with; and hence, in breeding and growing cattle, uniformity of color as well as uniformity in other respects should be one of the objects sought.

A process is on trial in Australia which promises to enable owners to retain all the advantages of branding without suffering the loss that results from it. The mention we have seen of the process only enables us to speak of it in a general way and without going into details, but it consists substantially of using a caustic paste on the branding iron which removes the hair and prevents it from growing again, thus stamping the letters on the hide indelibly, while at the same time it does not sear and destroy the texture of the skin. In other words, it only goes deep enough to destroy the hair follicles, thus preventing it from growing again on the brand. Such an improvement in branding would be worth a great many thousand dollars to the range and ranch cattle industry of the great West.

Never put corn, kaffir corn meal or any other grain in the milk for calves. The starch of corn has to be changed to grape sugar before it is digestible. This change only takes place in the presence of alkali and is done chiefly by the saliva of the mouth. When corn is gulped down with the milk the starch is not acted upon by the acids of the stomach but remains unchanged until it comes in contact with the alkaline secretions of the intestines. With hogs the stomach is small and the intestines long. This allows starch matter to be digested in the intestines. The opposite is true with the calf, the stomach being large and the intestines short. Unless the starch matter is largely digested by the saliva of the mouth, complete digestion will not take place and the calf scours.

The first big trotting stake of the year is the Merchants' and Manufacturers', which is annually decided at the Blue Ribbon meeting at Detroit. It is a stake for trotters of the 2:24 class and since its inception has been one of the classical features of the Grand Circuit and every contest has been a thrilling one. The peculiar charm about the stake is that its renewal always marks the rising of some new star. It is the "coming out" of debutantes, and the money winners are certain to be heard from later in the campaign. Last year the sensational stallion Directum Kelly, a California bred horse, won it in the fastest time in the history of the race up to that date. This year not a Californian started in the great event. Two days and seven heats were required to decide the winner this year, and from a telegraphic view of the race it looks as though the best horse was heaten. When the reports of the experts received by mail next week we shall know more about it, however.

Kingmond, on the strength of his race at Hartford, on July 3d, when he won a two in three race in straight heats in 2:14 1/2 and 2:12 1/2, was made the favorite, and he won two heats out of seven and was second in every other of the big event, while the winner named last in two heats, and the summaries indicate he was the fastest of the contestants each "took a whack" at Kingmond in turn.

The first heat of the race was won by Kingmond, the following Press describing the race as follows:

Kingmond, the favorite of the day, encouraged the gang to begin the exciting finish. Manan the huncher, pushed Success in an almost dead heat with Kingmond.

Success did likewise with The Queen in the third heat. He tried it again in the fourth but The Queen failed to out her noted driver's plans and again "went up" in the stretch and Royal Baron rushed from the huncher to cook the heat, while another hitherto inconspicuous member of the aristocracy, Lady Wellington of Cleveland followed close at the Baron's heels and got third last. Wilask gave Kingmond a close race in the first heat, Kingmond leading almost all the way by only a neck.

In the second heat Kingmond, Wilask and the Queen were together to the head of the stretch, when Success broke to the game and won the heat from Kingmond by a neck of noses. In the third heat Success and Kingmond approached the final turn neck and neck. Success came out with The Queen and justified his position by the manner in which he took the heat from the favorite. The hunch came strongly toward the end of the fourth heat. The Queen and Kingmond were leading, when The Queen broke, while Royal Baron came to the front and got his nose first beneath the wire.

At this point the race had to be postponed until the following day, and the telegraphic reports of the wind-up is as follows:

When the Merchants and Manufacturers' stake was called at 12:35 o'clock the four heat winners of Wednesday and three less fortunate horses faced Starter Hayt. After scoring for the fifth time they were given the word and Kingmond went out in front and stayed there, winning all the way, although Success was always close enough to be dangerous. Before the next heat all but the four heat winners were withdrawn. Just as they were sent away Kingmond broke and before he got down the others obtained a good lead. The Queen cut out the going until they turned into the last quarter, when Royal Baron came with a rush, took the lead and held it, finishing a half length in front of Kingmond, who had again caught the hunch. Despite his having broken, Kingmond kept in front in the final heat from the first eighth to the three-quarters, when Royal Baron's rush again came into evidence and landed him under the wire a head to the good. Amid the cheers of more than 8000 people present the winner was led away covered with a beautiful blanket of flowers. The summary is as follows:

Royal Baron is a six-year-old bay horse, bred by Col. Stoner of Kentucky, and is the property of N. W. Huhinger of New Haven. He was nominated for the race by A. J. Haus of Johnstown, Pa., deceased, from whose estate Huhinger purchased him. Up to Wednesday, when he won one M. and M. heat in 2:14 1/4, his best mark was 2:23 1/4. He is by that very successful sire Baron Wilkes, his first dam Daisy Blackwood 2:29 1/4, by Blue Bull; second dam untraced. He started first as a four-year-old at Augusta, Georgia, in 1897, and won his only start that year, a five heat race, his best time being 2:28. Last year he was campaigned all through the East and West, starting eleven times. He got a record of 2:23 1/4 in his first start, May 20th, at Norfolk, Virginia, but was unable to lower it during the year. He won three races out of the eleven starts and ended the year with a mark that entitled him to be entered in the M. and M. Royal Baron's dam is the granddam of Baroness Marguerite 2:19 1/4, and his granddam is also the granddam of Atlantic King 2:09 3/4.

Kingmond is by King Darlington 2:16 (by King Wilkes, dam by Kentucky Prince), dam Rosamond, by Red Wilkes; second dam by Mamrino Patchen, and third dam by Christian's Edwin Forrest.

Kingmond was bought by Daniel Mahaney for Non. Frank Jones, the owner of Who Is It 2:12, at the Darling sale in New York city, Dec. 2, 1896. The price paid was $170 and it proved an excellent investment. The colt was then but two years old, and it was probable that he did not show phenomenal speed at the time of sale or he would have brought more. He was bred right to trot fast and stay up, and has proved that he can do so.

Kingmond won June 27th at Dover, N. H., and got a mark of 2:16 1/2. This was his second start. His first was at Rigny Park, on the 13th of last September. It was in the 2:27 trot and there were 10 starters. Kingmond stood 6, 6 5 in the summary. The race was won by Norvet in 2:13 1/4, 2:14 3/4, 2:15 1/4. At the Charter Oak meeting July 3d, he defeated a field of seven good ones, trotting his two heats in 2:14 1/2 and 2:12 1/2.

The performances of Kingmond bring back to mind the great family that the late A. B. Darling produced through his favorite broodmare Young Daisy, grandam of King Darlington 2:16, the sire of Kingmond. She produced Prince Lavaland 2:12 1/4, Graylight 2:16 1/2 and Duke of Wellington 2:20. One of her daughters produced Axteloid 2:15 1/4, another produced Great Eastern 2:23 1/2 and Yorick 2:24 1/4, but the greatest of her daughters is the mare Marguerite by Kentucky Prince. She is the dam of Marguerite A. 2:12 1/2 and Axworthy 2:15 1/2, both by Axtel, and of King Darlington 2:16, the sire of Kingmond 2:10 3/4. All these horses were bred by Mr. Darling, and the foundation of the family was the noted road mare called Daisy, which Mr. Darling used to drive in New York, many years ago, and which had speed and endurance. Nothing was ever learned of her pedigree, but when bred to Stridaway, a son of Black Hawk Telegraph, she produced young Daisy.

Another prolonged discussion of the question of laying up heats may be an aftermath of the M. and M. this year. Had driver Tom Marsh given his horse one easy heat during the race (an act that every other heat winner performed more than once) he would in all probability have won first money. Royal Baron was never a contending horse except in the heats he won, and though from the reports of his rushes he may have had the foot of all the others, it is more than likely that his Blue Bull blood would not have carried him through the contest had he been driven differently.

Remember August 1st.

Stockton Driving Club closes seven $1000 purses August 1st. This will be one of the greatest meetings of the circuit. Put it on your list.

San Jose also closes a lot of rich purses on August 1st. Over $10,000 has been hung up for the harness horses. The meeting follows Stockton and is on the grand circuit. It will be the greatest meeting held in the Garden City for years. You can't afford to miss it.

Los Angeles will close eight rich events August 1st. The two face-for-all are for $2000 each. There are four other races of $1000 each, and two colt races of $500 each. Los Angeles will have ten thousand people out every day to see these races decided. Don't fail to enter your horses there.

The particulars of these purses, with conditions, etc., appear in our advertising pages. Read them carefully and put the date, August 1st, on your cuff.

The Running Stake

To be decided at the State Fair at Sacramento this year are ten in number. They are the Victor, Dewey, Capital City, Favorite, Sunny Slope, California Annual, Autumn, Shafter, Flash and Ladies Stake. They are worth a goodly amount this year to the winner, as from $200 to $300 will be added to each and every one of them which is an increase over former years.

BUDD DOBLE'S VENTURE.

Buys Twenty-Eight Head of Trotters From A. B. Spreckels and Will Fit Them for the New York Sales Ring.

Budd Doble, the champion reinsman of America, has a high opinion of California bred horses, and has shown it by purchasing this week at Mr. A. B. Spreckels Aptos Farm twenty-eight head of as fine young animals as were ever bred on any farm in America. There are fifteen four-year-olds and thirteen three-year-olds in the lot, some of them but just broken and none of them ever having been worked for speed or trained at all. Mr. Doble, whose knowledge of a horse is equal to that of any man living, purchased these horses after a careful examination, and there is no doubt in the mind of those who know him but he knows just what he is doing. He has already consigned them to the Fasig New York sale which will take place in December next, and in the meantime he will thoroughly fit them for that market. He expects to have both speed and style to show to the New Yorkers when he lands his consignment there, and although he has but looked the lot over as yet, he knows he has among them speed of the extreme order and style of a very high class. For instance, a four-year-old colt by Dexter Prince, out of Miss Valensin, by Valensin 2:23, was simply broken as a two-year-old and turned out. He had not had a harness on until the day Mr. Doble purchased the lot, when he was hitched up and marched an eighth in 17 seconds without hoots or shoes. "That fellow is worth a thousand dollars right now," said Mr. Doble when he looked at his watch. He will be worth more than that by the time he reaches New York.

There are nine of the get of the great young sire Cupid 2:18, in the lot. But three of Cupid's get were ever trained, viz: Venus II, 2:19½, Psyche and Lottie. The first named is now in the Keating string and the others are in training here in California but have not started yet. Watch them all and see how the Cupids suit you at the close of the season.

Aptos Wilkes, a full brother to Hulda 2:08½, is the sire of fifteen of these young horses, and those who have seen this horse's get need not be told that they are grand lookers and speedy.

Dexter Prince, Mr. Spreckels' great stallion, is represented by four, and the Palo Alto stallion Wildout, has one in the lot. Of the Dexter Princes but little need be said when they are offered to Eastern buyers. They are always on the lookout for them and ready to pay good prices to get them.

It is Mr. Doble's intention to begin work on these young horses immediately and as there is no horseman in America to-day who possesses to a greater degree the faculty of teaching speed and manners to members of the equine family, it is not unreasonable to predict that when this lot lands at Madison Square Garden next winter they will not only attract the attention of buyers from all over the country but will excite the liveliest kind of bidding from the men who are always ready to pay good prices for what suits them.

We congratulate Mr. Spreckels on the fact that the first consignment of horses sent from the Aptos Farm to the Eastern auction ring will have the advantage of being schooled by an accomplished horseman as Mr. Doble and we congratulate California breeders that the trotting bred horses of this State are attracting the attention of the horse world. All they need do to bring themselves prosperity is to breed intelligently with the purpose in view of rearing the best, and develop them for the Eastern markets. Mr. Spreckels has bred a grand lot of horses; Mr. Doble will now show us what they will sell for when developed.

Mr. Doble will probably secure quarters at the Gilroy race track and move the horses there from Aptos Stock Farm within the next week or so.

Another Open Air Horse Show.

The Burlingame Country Club has decided to give another open air horse show this year. It will take place during the first week in September and extend over two days, as the horses that will in all probability be entered cannot be shown in one day.

The Burlingame show means the abandonment for this year of the idea of holding a show in this city. These exhibitions some years since accomplished much good in educating people as to the vogue in horses, harness and vehicles. New types of the latter were introduced by the score and the result is to be seen any day on the Golden Gate Park drive.

Two good sales were made at Lexington, Kentucky, recently. The Tramp, a two-year-old by Jay Bird, out of Sorrento, by Grand Sentinel, was sold by Jos Thayer to Hon. Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., for $7000. The Tramp is credited with having trotted a mile in 2:24½ under a watch held by Mr. Jones' representative. The other sale was that of Maywood, by Earl Medium, out of an Alcyone mare. The seller was Dr. E. M. Norwood, and the buyer Dr. J. C. McCoy, of Kirkwood, Delaware. Maywood worked three heats at an average of 2:15½, and the price paid was $3000. Good horses bring good prices, but as an exchange says the buyers are from Missouri and the good must be shown.

Death of Geo. Washington 2:16 3-4.

It is with sincere regret that we are called upon to chronicle the death of Geo. Washington 2:16½, the well known stallion owned by Thos. Smith of Vallejo. The horse had made quite a heavy season at Woodland, Yolo county this year, the season closing the first of July. On the 5th inst. the horse was sent home, being driven over the road, a distance of fifty or sixty miles, taking two days for the journey. The man who drove him told Mr. Smith that when within five miles of Vallejo, the horse stumbled with one of his hind toes and fell down, hurting his back, and he arrived in Vallejo very sick and lame. Dr. Egan of this city was called and he pronounced the trouble congestion of the kidneys brought about by high feeding without proper exercise, and then the big drive from Woodland to Vallejo. The horse was in high flesh, weighing about 1300 pounds.

Geo. Washington was a handsome bay horse, with white hind feet and stood 16½ hands high, weighing 1300 pounds when in racing condition. He was a grand individual, with a perfect disposition, and wonderful intelligence. His first start was as a two-year-old in 1888. He won the race, which was the only one he started in that year and got a record of 2:44½. As a three-year-old he started twice, winning both times, and reduced his mark to 2:30. The next year he started five times, winning three times, being second once and outside the money once. He did not start in 1891, and but once in 1892, when he was a close second to Richmond Jr. in 2:19½. In 1894 he won two races and was second once out of three starts, reducing his record to 2:16½. He started in 1896 and 1898 and though he did not win first money was generally second. His record of races is reported in the Year Book shows that during his career he started seventeen times, winning eight first money, six seconds, and being behind the money on three occasions. He met during his life many of the best horses on the circuit, defeating among others such campaigners as Boodle 2:12½, Chico 2:14½, Balkan 2:15, Chancellor 2:16, Palermo 2:16½, Montana 2:16½, and many others.

Geo. Washington was the sire of Stella 2:15½, and Campaigner 2:26½, and these out of but three of his get that were ever trained. The third would have had a low record but for an accident. He leaves a number of very promising colts. The death of this horse (which, as Mr. Smith writes us, was an old and trusty friend to him) is a loss to the breeding interests of the State. In size, conformation, disposition, speed and style he was a very high type of the American trotter, and would certainly have ranked among the first as a sire had he been mated with high class mares. He was as game as a pebble and no race was too long for him. Geo. Washington was by Mambrino Chief Jr., out of the great broodmare Fanny Rose, by Vicks' Ethan Allen. His death will be a severe loss to his owner and to the breeders of the whole State as well.

No Fair at Ohio.

The Chico Enterprise of last Saturday says: "To use the expression of the day—it's all off with the fair. This decision was reached by the Board of Directors yesterday. But we are glad to state that this decision was not brought about by a lack of funds, but because neither Willows, Red Bluff nor Marysville will be in the circuit and unless at least one of these places came in with Chico, it would be entirely too far for the horse owners to come for only five days' racing. All of our neighboring towns will be in the circuit next year and we will have a fair at that time."

Allowed the Claim.

In one of the towns of upper Michigan resides the president of a railroad that is several removes from a trunk line. As a horse trader he is of the same type as David Harum, and thinks it perfectly "Christian" to get the better of the other fellow. Not long since he sold a roadstar to a farmer near the place, receiving $175. One day last week, the farmer dropped into the president's office, and casually inquired whether that official really thought the horse worth the money paid for it.

"Not trying to rue a bargain, are you, Si?" replied the president. "That horse is worth $500 to a man who drives as much as you do. If I needed one at all, you couldn't have bought him at any figure."

"Wouldn't $500 be a little steep for him?"

"Not a hit of it. He's got a better pedigree than many a 2:20 horse; he can keep up a fine gait all day, and he's gentle as a kitten. There isn't a better horse in the State for road work, and don't you touch less than $500 for him."

"Well, I won't."

Then the farmer winked at a couple of men who had been listening, and laid a paper before the president.

"How did this happen, Si?" stammered the president.

"Them men o' yours that were haulin' ties cross my place left the fence down, the boss got on the track and a freight train done the rest."

"But your claim for $450 is ridiculous. We'll contest it."

But when Si grinned from ear to ear and when the two men laughed uproariously, the president bluechingly announced that he would have the matter adjusted in accordance with the claim.

Races at Portland.

The weather was good for the last two days' racing at Irvington and the attendance was all that could be expected the betting was lively, which is a good thermometer to gauge the public pulse at a race meeting.

In the pacing race Friday there was a difference of opinion regarding the driving of Alta Norte, owned and driven by Chris Simpson. The judges did not think the mare was being driven to the best advantage to win and changed drivers by putting Mr. Smith, one of the judges, up in the third heat.

The double team race against time was a pretty exhibition of speed and perfect action. Van da Vanter's Stock Farm pacer Deceiver and Karstetter's Alta Dall hitched together and won the Oregon double team record. Mr. Sawyer handled the team and rated them well, going the first quarter in 37 seconds, the half in 1:14½, the three-quarters in 1:51 and the mile in 2:26 without a skip or bobble.

Del Norte gave an exhibition mile on Saturday, which pleased the crowd to see the little black fellow respond to the call of the bell. It was not expected he would go a fast mile and after a few false starts, he went the mile in 2:25.

The following is a summary of the last two days:

Special pace.
Alta Norte, by Del Norte (Simpson-Smith) 1 2 1

Oregon News.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Aug. Erickson has placed Claymont and Altacora in W. A. Frye's hands, who will train them along with Bill Frazier the rest of the season.

Deceiver 2:16½, by Altamont and Alta Dal 2:18½, by Holmdel, hold the pole team record for Oregon made at Irvington track last week in 2:26.

Susie S., 2:18, the fastest trotting mare ever bred in Oregon, has foaled a fine bay colt by McKinney 2:11½. This mare is for sale and the colt is worth more than the price asked for both of them.

Hon. Thos. H. Tongue has leased the racing qualities of Mark Hanna to Sam Casto for the season. He will also place Ben Bolt 2:19½ and Lovelace 2:20 in training soon and will likely let Mr. Casto have them.

Kitty Kishar, the dam of Doc Sperry 2:09, died last Sunday from injuries received by getting entangled in a barbed wire fence. She was the property of J. W. Wentworth, of Vancouver, Wash., who regrets the loss of so valuable an animal. Kitty Kishar was sired by Young Kishar 4:23, dam of Fan, by Bird's Trustee.

Chris Simpson and Geo. Perringer have returned to their home in Pendleton with their stable of trotters and pacers. Mr. Simpson won the 2:25 pace here with his good green pacer Alta Norte, giving her a record of 2:23½. He did get a chance to start his stud Bonner N. B., 2:17, but he gave him a workout in 2:14 while here. Mr. Perringer's Chehalis mare Dewey Ann showed her ability in the public was a little unsteady. The horse backed with them too high bred youngsters sired by Lowmonee 2:11½, which they will add to their training stable this fall.

Quite a number of horses left Irvington last week for Salem where they will condition their horses for the fall meetings. The track at Salem is in good condition to work on, and when the Irvington horses arrive there the fair grounds will have an air of business like appearance. Among those who shipped from here are the stable of Aug. Erickson, in charge of W. A. Frye with Bill Frszier 2:14, Claymont and Altacora; Van Da Vanter's Stock Farm stable in charge of Jno. Sawyer with Deceiver 2:16½, Alta Dal 2:18½, the green trotter Tickets and the three-year-old trotter Kiumont.

THERE is horse talk galore at Kapp & Streets, 1200 Market street every evening. It is headquarters for those who drive on the Speedway, and is rapidly becoming the horse centre of San Francisco.

Would Cater to the Swipes.

[Chicago Horse Review.]

"I see by the papers," remarked the owner, "that a lot of the western trotting meetings have been declared off, and I can't understand it."

"Don't never make that crack where anybody can hear you," returned the swipe; "that's the worst break you could possibly make, and it certainly uncovers your ignorances. I have been thinkin' that it would take you several moons to learn the game, but if you can't see with your eyes shnt what's ailin' them western meetin's, you ain't got a chance to get wiss in a million years. The trouble with them western meetin's is that the people that's runnin' em don't never do the right thing with the swipes. They always make things easy for the owners and the drivers and the public, while the swips does the best he can without any help. Why, some of them western secretaries treat a swipe as if he wasn't no better than a farmer, but I guess by the time they figure out why they ain't gettin' no horses to trot at their meetin's, they will commence caterin' to the groomsters just a little. I ain't saying that a groomster is wiser than a secretary, but I know a hoy or two that can give any sec. pointers about runnin' a race meetin' at that."

"Yoursself, for instance," remarked the owner, sarcastically. "Well, I ain't throwin' no bouquets at myself," replied Jimmy, "but if it was me runnin' one of them meetin's, things would be different. It wouldn't be me sittin' in an office writin' notes to the owners, tellin' 'em how easy the money is, an' how close the fair grounds is to the hank, an' how cheap rye straw an' stall rent an' well-water is goin' to be; not on your pedigrees. Owners used to hite at them kind of hooks every time, but they've been landed so much that they are gettin' dead leary. You're an owner—see?—and a sec. writes you one of them long winded, jolly-up letters. What do you do? Why, you pike out to the stable and you say: 'Jimmy, here's a class for us over to Squashville; don't you think we better enter?' Well, I remember that I was to Squashville in '93 with Wiggleine and Skyboy, an' that the track is made of yellow quicksand an' is two miles from the railroad, an' that the sec. puts me in a two by five stall with a leaky roof, an' the only place on the grounds to eat is a Methodist missionary tent where a bunch of old maids tax you two bits a throw for a cold bean dinner. I recollect all that an' a lot more, an' what do I do? I have my little ax all ready, an' I hit that Squashville mee in a few wallops that makes you think you don't want to enter there after all. See the point?"

"Yes," replied the owner. "The Squashville races fail to fill an' the meeting is declared off."

"Sure thing," said the swipe. "The meetin' is off, an' all because the secretary ain't onto his business. Now, if it was me runnin' that Squashville meet, every race would have twenty-nine starters an' the ticket sellers would be over-worked. I wouldn't monkey with the owners a minute, but I would make a strong play for the swipes, an' I'd never stop goin' until I had every groomster in America signed out as a hooster for the Squashville meet. All winter long you would see me mixin' with the boys everywhere, an' I'd throw a high-hall into this one an' a couple of beers into that one, an' I'd tell 'em all just how things was goin' to be run at my meetin'. The swipes would have the best of it from start to finish. There would be trucks an' express wagons a-plenty to meet every horse car that come in, an' all the traps would be hauled to the track free. The stalls would be dry an' hedded knee-deep in straw, an' there would be men to show the horses where they belonged. There would be a big eatin' joint on the grounds, for swipes only, runnin' night an' day, an' meals would be ten cents per each, an' everybody would be trusted. There would be a forty foot wide awning along the front of all the stables, with plenty of rocking chairs, hammocks, sofas, an' fans scattered around everywhere. Every twenty minutes a hustler wearin' a red uniform would pass around cigars, pipes an' tobacco, an' when the weather was hot he would deal out ice cream, sandwiches and hottled beer. Every boy who rubbed a winner would get a keg of beer after his race, to set 'em up to his friends. I guess that wouldn't catch the swipes, would it? The gang would be hoostin' my game from Rigby to Pleasanton, an' the fiercest entertainment that ever happened would be up at Squashville."

"That's undoubtedly a great system," said the owner, "but I think I know of a better one. I have quite a number of original ideas in regard to the proper way to run a race meeting, and I intend to lease a good track some day and put them into practice, or perhaps I'll write out my ideas and send them to the turf papers."

"Yes," said the swipe, "that's the thing for you to do. All them hot notions about horse racin' that's printed in the papers are sent in by guys like you. You hurry up an' fire in your notions, an' I guess there will be a bunch of track owners huntin' for you with a red lantern before Tuesday."

THIS new wagon for The Abbott will be constructed on new principles and without a single blot in any part. It will be of the high-arch variety so that the horse can be hitched close and can go perfectly free without biting at any place. The arch from the ground to under the body will be 6 inches, the wheels 28 inches in diameter, tires 1 1/2 inches pneumatic, ball bearings, and the body 16 inches in width. The construction of this wagon is such that it calls for no resistance by braces at the top, back or front of the wheels.

AFTER SOMETHING TO BEAT ATHANIO.

Austrian Buyers in New York Looking for Fast Trotters.

Buyers of American trotters from Austria are having a hard time just now in finding the character of stallions and mares that they want for the Austrian tracks. They find that good, fast horses for racing are worth just about as much money in this country as they are in Austria, writes Sam C. Freeman, the trotting turf correspondent of the New York Telegraph.

Capt. Henry Fleischman has just returned to New York from Vienna, and is not highly pleased with the result of his last trip. Among the lot of horses he shipped from this port the latter part of last February but one has turned out anywhere near up to expectation, and that is Clara G. 2:16 1/2, by Wilton, dam Bonnetta, by Commodore Belmont, which he bought at private sale from William E. Snyder. The others including Eager, Manila, Amhoise and Dorothy Wilkes, did not pan out well for Austrian race tracks, as not one of them could go a distance over a mile at better than a 2:30 gait, and consequently are of little service on the turf of that country. Mr. Fleischmann dropped quite a bit of money on them in training expenses, entrances fees, etc. He thinks he would have been much better off had he kept that lot here. They would not have cost him near so much.

The black mare Derby Princess 2:08 1/2, by Charles Derby, dam Princess, by Administrator, which Capt. Fleischmann sold some time ago to Count Trautmansdorf (who, by the way, has recently been placed in charge of a guardianship by the courts on account of his growing habit of squandering his money recklessly), he has bought back from the Count and returned to this country. She could heat anything in Europe on the stretches, but did not take kindly to the short, sharp turns on the tracks over there. In fact, she did not seem to get readily acclimated. Capt. Fleischmann brought her back to this country with the intention of racing her this season, and has placed her in the campaigning string of Capt. Tuttle, who will control her. She is a good, big and sound ssal brown mare, and for a Spedway crack would be able to make the best of them hustle. In fact, it is doubtful if there is a trotter on the great drive that could stay with her the length of the road. After the campaign she will be sold at the Madison Square Garden November sale.

The sharp sting of the bad luck Mr. Fleischmann has had on his last trip to Europe has been greatly eased and much of his loss recouped through a most unexpected source, being nothing more or less than the astonishing work of an old mare, Romola 2:12 1/2, which he bought in this country about four years ago and sold to this same Count Trautmansdorf, who has been using her in his coach as one of a team. When he sold Derby Princess to the Count the mare was turned in as a part of the purchase price, and thus Capt. Fleischmann again became her owner. He had an idea that she was capable of better things than to be plodding away in a coach, so he put her in training, and she has recently won three races in succession, defeating such good horses as Cut Glass, Charming Chimes, Pastoral and others. It is another ocular demonstration of the fact that very few people know a good thing when they see it, for Capt. Fleischmann offered her to various Austrian horsemen for the measly sum of $400, and not one would touch her even at that price. The Captain now feels very comfortable that his offer was not accepted.

The next great race in Europe will be the championship at Baden, near Vienna, about the middle of August, and many European buyers will strain their nerves in an effort to get hold of something that will beat the great showing made in the recent races by Col. Kuser and Athanio. These are entered for next month's race, Athanio. Col. Kuser, Que Allen, Ahnet, Caid, Cut Glass, George A. Lagene, and possibly some others will be named as starters, as Austrian horsemen may be able to buy something which they will think well enough of to start.

Speculation on the coming championship race is very strong, and hooks are being made all over Europe on the event. Col. Kuser, in his last race in Vienna, in which he almost walked under the wire in 2:10 3-10, in June, on a five-eighths of a mile track, makes him the choice; but Athanio and Que Allen are very likely to make him travel under 2:10 if he wins.

Many fancy Caid, who is now being trained by Billy McDonald at the Vienna Club Stock Farm. His owner thinks he will go in 2:08. Que Allen is being backed heavily by his owner, Baron Mauthner. Athanio is just as heavily backed by Baron Lotar Wachtler, who bought him after his great performance on the fourth of last May, when he went two miles in 4:23, a performance which beats all world's records for the distance throwing Nightingale and Greenlander into the shade. Baron Lotar Wachtler paid 38,000 florins for Athanio. Taking into consideration the fact that Capt. Fleischmann bought the horse at the Fasig Madison Square Garden sale in November, 1898, for $2,800 and sold him in Vienna for $15,200, it shows that some horses are a great success in Austria. Athanio's winnings last year were $11,000. Col. Kuser and Que Allen also won a like amount.

"A good horse will always pay," said Mr. Fleischmann yesterday, "and a poor horse is not worth his passage money."

I am always willing to pay the price for a good one; but many that prove good on the tracks of this country and are able to show time that ought to heat anything on Europe, on arriving on the other side are found unable to do anything of consequence, therefore we have to contend against such possibilities in making our purchases. I would be very much pleased if any owner of a mare or stallion in this land would offer me a mare or stallion that can go to Austria and win the championship of Europe; but the horse must beat 2:10 in Europe. I am looking for one, but so far have small hops of being able to find a likely prospect."

Some of the European horse buyers who have just arrived in this country throw more light on Trainer Bodimer's trouble with the Vienna Club, which has ruled him off the trotting tracks of Europe for life. They say that his Excellency, Count Calman v Hunyady, Master of Ceremonies of the Emperor, who was the presiding judge, called all the drivers up to the stand and impressed upon them that the slightest infringement of the rules would be punished by not only taking the race away, but that expulsion for life would follow. It being a classic event, nothing would be tolerated that would cast the slightest shadow upon it. It is worth 30,000 florins.

Bodimer cut across another driver, particulars of which were published in these columns a few days ago. I am told that he went to the judges, and while acknowledging he cut across, said his horse acted so that he could not help it. Explanations were of no avail, however, and he was given a very severe dose of medicine. The Count, who presided as judge, is said to be one of the fairest minded and squareset judges in Europe, but is very severe on any law-breaker. The Austrians with whom I conversed on this subject, while feeling great sympathy with Bodimer, and wishing that he would be reinstated, have very slim hopes of it, although Bodimer himself appears to think that he will be able to bring such influence to bear that he will be in grace again before the year is out.

Reverse of Form.

Ever and anon during the season, says the Chicago Horseman, we hear this or that driver or owner charged with fraud in pulling this or that horse at some meeting or other, the particulars often being hazily fixed in the speaker's mind, if one may judge by the indefiniteness of his utterances. The public has always been prone to censoriousness and if there is a chance in a hundred to show up the seamy side, up it comes in all its ugliness. The propensity seems to be rather stronger on the turf than in most other lines and the reason for this probably is that money changes hands more rapidly in racing than in most other businesses. If a man loses a dollar or two he has risked on his own judgment, it is very seldom that he will not try to find some one on whom he may lay the blame and so relieve his own shoulders of their just load. This may be human nature, but it is rather a poor brand for all of that. Here this week we see a horse go out like a lion and win his race in straight heats. There, the next week, we see the same horse beaten by the same, or very nearly the same field in perhaps a second or two slower time. Immediately the horse's former friends begin to cry fraud and the driver and owner will be lucky if during the continuance of the race, some uneasy piker does not entreat the judges, in language more or less convincing, that a gigantic fraud is being committed and that the derrick ought to be applied at once. No allowance is made for the horse himself. Apparently his friends take him for a machine huilt of wood and iron and not for a mass of flesh, blood and nerves.

Are not horses entitled to their off days just as much as men and women? What would these men who howl so loudly when they lose a few dollars say if they should be condemned in the bitterest and noisiest manner every time they come down to breakfast, feeling just a trifle off? Would they think that any sort of fair treatment? Hardly, yet they don't seem to allow the poor horse the same liberty they themselves demand. A horse ought no more to be expected to do the same day in and day out the season through than he should be expected to take wings, when pinched against the rail and pocketed, and fly over the heads of his antagonists to the wire, poise him on the edge of the judges' box and demand an announcement in his favor. To expect the one is as ridiculous as to expect the other. Perhaps a draught horse may hold his form indefinitely till age breaks him down, but so highly organized a being as the race horse runner or trotter must not be expected to feel always the same. A slight chill caused by even a momentary exposure to a cold draught of air will destroy a horse's chance to win a race and there are a thousand and one other things that tend in the same direction. Would it not be well to give the horse his due and not inveigh so loudly against him, his owner and his driver, because he cannot be kept keyed up and lubricated for an entire season like a locomotive.

HORSEMEN ARE HEADED FOR SANTA ROSA

and within the next ten days that excellent track will be the loveliest spot in California, and the workouts will be getting faster and faster. Already there are fifty or sixty horses being put through their paces there and that many more will be quartered at the track next week. There has seldom been a meeting that has been talked of more than the coming one to be given by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association at Santa Rosa. The entry list to the races in which horses have already been named is very large, and the nominations to be made August 1st will be a very large percentage of the original entries. As this is to be strictly a harness meeting, and the only one to be held in California this year, owners and trainers are delighted with the prospect of a track prepared especially to suit the trotters and pacers, and predictions of many fast heats are already being made. Santa Rosa is one of the most delightful places in California to hold a race meeting. The city contains a population of about 7000, has clean and beautifully shaded streets, many fine business blocks and handsome residences, and is situated in one of the richest and most prosperous sections of the State. The orchards which surround it are now loaded with fruit, and crops all through the famous valley are bountiful this year. Santa Rosa is about two hours' ride from San Francisco and is reached by two lines of railway. The famed Santa Rosa track, owned by Pierce Brothers, proprietors of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, is a regulation mile and when thoroughly worked and properly conditioned is as fast as any track in the State. The grounds contain ample stall room, there is a fine grand stand and all the buildings necessary for the accommodation of the public. The horsemen who went there last year were unanimous in their praise of the quality of hay to be had there at a low price. At no place on the circuit was such hay to be had, and many purchased a quantity and carried it with them from Santa Rosa to Sacramento and Los Angeles. The leading citizens of Santa Rosa are this year doing everything in their power to make the meeting a success, not only contributing liberally toward it, but they are working to have the attendance as large as possible. The Breeders Association will distribute among the horsemen over $15,000 during the six days' racing and everything points to the most successful meeting held in California in years. Lovers of the harness horse cannot afford to miss the first meeting of the year. It will open Monday, August 14th.

HORSES ARE WANTED for the Philippine campaign, as the following from a San Francisco daily paper of July 21st will show: "General Shafter has received orders from the War Department to purchase as soon as practicable 1000 horses on this Coast for the use of the cavalry service in the Philippines. The sum of $125,000 has been set aside for this purpose. All the animals are to be sent to this city and forwarded by transport steamers. General Shafter has instructed Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace F. Randolph of the Third Artillery to make the purchases. For this purpose he was given orders yesterday to proceed to Enterprise, Pendleton and Portland, Or., and Walla Walla and Ellensburg, Wash. Veterinary Surgeon Edward J. Creely, William Kreichelt of the Quartermaster's Department and Private Cole of Battery O, Third Artillery, are to accompany him. The Washington authorities are anxious to have many shipments of horses made in time to reach Manila at the conclusion of the rainy season." The ways of the War Department are peculiar to say the least. One thousand horses that will come up to the requirements should be easy enough to obtain in California at the price of $125 per head. The horses bred and raised in the hot climate of the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys should be better able to stand the heat of the Philippines than those reared in Washington and Oregon. The item of railroad charges on 1000 horses shipped here from the far north will be vastly more than if they were purchased within a reasonable distance of the embarkation point. The Government moves in mysterious ways.

A WORD TO LIVE STOCK OWNERS.—The California State Fair, to be held at Sacramento September 4th to 16th inclusive, will offer an opportunity to the breeders of all kinds of live stock that should not be overlooked. The rise in the price of all manufactured products which has affected nearly everything the farmer has to buy, is rapidly extending to everything the farmer has to sell. The prices of horses, cattle, sheep and swine are advancing, and there is a demand for choicely bred and good individuals of all kinds of stock that can hardly be supplied. There is a growing belief among those who have watched the current of recent events that farm property and farm products all over the United States are certain to increase in value during the next ten years, and that the cultivation of the soil and the breeding of fine stock will be engaged in by a greater proportion of the people than at present. The application of science to the tillage of the soil, the rearing of live stock and the productions of the dairy, as carried on by the agricultural colleges and experiment stations throughout the land, has demonstrated the fact that the scientific farmer of the future will be engaged in a profitable and therefore a pleasant occupation, and as a result there is bound to be a halt in the present tendency of population to congest in the cities. The increase in the number of small farms which has already begun will make a demand among the farmers for well bred livestock, and breeders now engaged in the business of rearing fine stock are certain to reap a reward. The California State Fair this year will offer an opportunity for breeders to show their stock to the public and thereby pave the way to profitable sales and an increased demand for the best breeds that none of them can afford to miss. It is a plain business proposition outside of any sentiment that there may be in the case. The cattle sheds and the sheep and swine pens at Agricultural Park, Sacramento, should be filled this year as they never were before. The exhibit of standard bred trotters, roadsters and heavy drafters should exceed anything that a State Fair in California has ever seen. It will pay. The outlook at present is that there will be a larger attendance at the State Fair this year than has ever been known in the history of the association. The exhibits of manufactures, agricultural and dairy products will be especially large and interesting and they will certainly attract the best people of the State to view them. These people will be the live stock buyers this year, next year and the year after and they will keep in mind the animals and products they see at Sacramento this fall. Is their patronage worth trying for? We believe it is.

It was not customary in ancient times to shoe horses with iron, according to our modern practice, hence a strong hoof, hard as metal, and solid as flint, was reckoned one of the chief qualities of a steed. In Oriental countries the dryness of the roads rendered this strength of the hoof less necessary—the mud and mire of the ground's surface in northern Europe first causing and then confirming the practice. Hannibal's cavalry, chiefly Numidians, lost all their hoofs in the march through that marshy ground between Trebia and Fesslae. The horses of the ancients had neither saddles nor stirrups, and the Numidians no bridles, so their armour and trappings must have compensated in a manner for these deficiencies by its great splendor.

MAKE as many entries as possible in the California State Fair running stakes. That's the first necessary act to enable you to win.

HOOF BEATS.

GEO. W. BERRY has taken his string of horses to Santa Rosa.

MISS JAY, who beat Owyhee at Saginaw, is not a daughter of Direct, as stated in a daily paper, but is by Jayhawk. All the campaigners that James Butler owns are not by Direct.

ROSEDALE STOCK FARM at Santa Rosa will have a good string of trotters on the circuit this year. Bertha R., a fast daughter of Daly 2:15, will be among them. James Sullivan will probably drive them.

E. H. GREELEY, Anhorn, Me., former owner of Bingen 2:06 1/4, has bred a three-year-old filly by him, dam by Nelson 2:09, to Arion 2:07 1/4, thus concentrating the blood of three of the most famous of record-breaking trotting stallions.

ACCORDING to a report from Peoria, Ill., the coming stallion was there recently. It is Monterey 2:09 1/4 and he is reported as a whirlwind. It is said that he reels off miles better than 2:10 as easy as old timers struck the 2:30 clip.

AT Windsor, Ontario, on July 4th, Hal B., son of Hal Dillard 2:04 1/4, paced a second heat in 2:07 1/4, establishing a new record for himself and one for the track. Hal B. was trained at the Jawettville covered track during the winter.

If your hike does not run true, if it has been injured in any way, take it to W. J. Kenney, the Bikeman, at 531 Valencia street, San Francisco. He will put it in thorough order or make you a new one. Kenney has snikes to rent and to sell. He is the one man in California who knows how a hike ought to line up, and how to make it so.

DOWN in New York State the guideless wouders win races, and perform the lonesome act in hopeless every day. One of them, the New York gelding, Nail Alcove, has been making a good record in this respect, having won four races and a second money so far. At Syracuse, he did the guideless act in 2:09 1/4, and at Ilion in 2:08 1/4, both half-mile tracks.

IN England occasionally very fast times are recorded, and the Great Sorrey Handicap, at the Epsom meeting last month, is a case in point. The distance was five furlongs, and the winner (Sir Geoffrey, with 7st 10lb up) ran it in 58 2/5 sec. This, though remarkably fast, is a good deal behind the American record of 56 1/2 sec, made by Maid Marian over a straight course at Morris Park, New York.

THE Burns & Waterhouse Stable arrived at Oakland, Wednesday, from St. Louis. All the horses stood the trip in good shape, hot as they are in need of a long rest. In the string were Dr. Sheppard, Dave Tenny, Eddie Jones, Marplot, Pat Morrissey, Ned Dennis, Decoy, Southern Girl and Bit of Fashion. The two latter were purchased at St. Louis. This stable, trained by M. J. Kelly, won sixteen races and about $10,000 in purses and stakes, which was quite a good record for such a limited season. Kelly will take a string through the California circuit.

A NEW gambling device is to be launched at the Paris Exposition. There will be an immense building, with a capacity of several thousand, reproducing in every detail a race course, with grand stands, betting booths, and all the adjuncts of the real thing. The wooden horses, life size, can be ridden by visitors, just as they are at the merry-go-rounds. The motive power is electricity and just before the finish this is shut off and the horses go spinning about, the result being left entirely to chance. It is impossible to land any particular horse in front. There is all the uncertainty and excitement attending a real contest and pools will be sold on the results. The French Government gets a handsome rake-off on the mutuels and has approved the scheme. The gambling instinct is stoutly developed in Paris and it is expected that everybody will play these mimic races. It is estimated that it will require nearly a million francs to organize, perfect and inaugurate this exhibition.

I have a well bred colt, two years old last March, which is inclined to knuckle over behind. Would blistering ankles benefit him? If so what kind of a blister should I use?

W. H.

Yes; blister with the following:

Beniodida of Mercury, 1 ounce.

Pulverized Cantharides, 1/2 ounce.

Vaseline, 1 ounce.

Lauoline, 6 ounces.

Mix well, and rub well into the parts for about ten minutes, having first removed the hair from the parts to be blistered.

WM. B. FASIG'S VIEWS.

He Does Not Agree With Ed. Tipton on the Two in Three Plan.

Last week we published Ed Tipton's ideas on the two in three system of harness racing, formed from what he saw at Hertford. He claimed it was an unqualified success. Now comes W. B. Fasig with his views on the other side: They will be read with interest:

There has never been a step or angle in the trotting horse game that the two in three heat plan of racing has not been opposed by William B. Fasig, who has been so prominently connected with the horse interests of this country for years. His opinion as an expert has always been given attention, although many who are opposed to his views appear to think that he leans a trifle toward old fogyism, which is rather paradoxical, for there is no more up to date hustler in the horse world than he, and his methods have always brought success.

He returned to New York from Hertford last week, where he managed the Charter Oak Park meeting. The two in three heat system was tried there, although he was opposed to it from the start. When the question was being agitated last winter it was Mr. Fasig who suggested that if the horse-men wanted to race at the two in three heat style to let them vote upon it.

"If a majority of them decide that they want two in three heat racing, we will make the events that we end let them enjoy themselves," was his characteristic remark.

The drivers and owners who entered horses voted on the question, and the result was that a majority of the races at Hertford last week was of two in three heats.

When asked yesterday how the plan worked, Mr. Fasig replied:

"The two in three heat plan is a dismal failure. I know that some people still cling to the idea that they are the thing; but when a plan is tried it is time to quit theorizing and go to figuring, and the cold, unsympathetic figures show that the two in three heat system is not a success. In the first place, too many races are finished in straight heats, and there is not enough of the spirit of contest in them. I am very well aware that many three in five heat races are also finished in straight heats; but nothing near like the percentage as shown in the lesser number.

"Another thing that knocks the two in three idea is that more races will have to be given. This is an excepted proposition by all the advocates of the two in three heat plan. They claim that horsemen would prefer four races each day for $700 purses with the lesser number of heats than three races with $1000 purses. That is as deep as they go. They do not consider that by having four races each day they are splitting up their fields of horses, and in some instances they will not get entries enough to make a respectable race.

"It is also a sort of Chinese puzzle to me to try and figure out why the bookmakers favor the two in three. They have less action, as was demonstrated at Hartford. While the attendance was much greater than it was one year ago, the amount of money placed in the books fell short by many thousand dollars. I am not giving you theory now, but cold pressed, double riveted facts.

"I did not know but the two in three plan might work better than it ever did before, although I doubted it very much; but was willing, for the sake of the men who thought it would be a good thing, to put my objections aside and try it. Now they see—if they don't see now they will very shortly—that the old three in five is the best. The people like them end will have them.

"I may be old foggyish, but you rarely hear of a reformer making a success. He is the fellow who is always getting the worst of it, while those who stick to the old accepted state of things until a new idea has had time to ripen always have the success. So I will always be found just a little behind any reform wave of this character, and try to make a little of the coin of the realm while they are losing it in trying experiments.

"The worst feature on the trotting turf is the betting on heats. If that was stopped, and speculators only given an opportunity to bet on the final result of a race, the talk about the laying up of heats, which is one of the strong arguments in favor of the two in three heat idea, would be very materially done away with. That there will be some fit as long as there is racing there can be no doubt, and an intelligent driver who knows his horse, will always try to endle it with an eye to winning the event, and not for the empty honor of a heat or two, so if heat betting were done away with one of the greatest evils would be quenched."

J. B. HAGGIN, of California, last week bought of Henry Muir his farm of 260 acres near Muir Station, on the Kentucky Central railroad, at $100 per acre. Mr. Haggin is one of the largest land owners in the Blue Grass section of the State. The Muir farm will be used in connection with Mr. Haggin's large breeding establishment.

GUS KASSLING, of Salinas, has purchased of County clerk J. D. Kalar a promising two-year-old gelding by oldnut, a son of Nutwood, out of Mambrite by Carr's ambrino 1789; second dam Selinas Belle, dam of four in a 2:30 list.

Last Two Days at Peoria.

Jennie Mc, the little McKinney mare, must be good just now as on Thursday last at Peoria she was a good third in two of the fastest heats paced this year, the Colorado mare Edith W. by Ben Lomond being the winner. The third heat of the 2:12 pace was won by Edith W. in 2:06 1/2, the fastest time that has been made on any track thus far this year, with the exception of an exhibition mile paced by John R. Gentry at Detroit in 2:02 1/2, and the 2:05 1/2 of Searchlight at the Denver meeting. The first quarter was made in 0:31, the half in 1:02 3/4, and the three quarters in 1:35. Edith W. took three straight heats, the first two heats being made in 2:10 and 2:07 1/2, respectively. Calvin C. was a competitor in the first heat and Aelse in the second. In the 2:16 trot Ellert, son of Stamboul and full brother to Stam' bonlette, won a grand race and reduced his mark to 2:11 3/4. The summaries:

The Horse Review Futurity.

The Horse Review's $20,000 Combination Futurity for three-year-old trotters is attracting attention all over the country and is certain to prove one of the main turf attractions of the big race meet at Nutwood Park, Duquque, Iowa, during the week of August 23th. There are nineteen starters assured for this event, and a glance at the list will warrant the prediction that those who see the race will have something to talk about for a good many years. Here is the complete list of eligible starters for the Futurity:

The next point of interest in connection with this particular race is the division of the $20,000. This is a matter that required much care, and after full consideration of the equities of the case, the following was decided on as a proper division of the money:

THE BLUE RIBBON MEETING.

Coney Gets a Mark of 2:09, Derby Lass One of 2:14, Cwyhee 2:18, and John Nolan and Monterey Are Beaten.

Rein interfered with the opening of the Blue Ribbon meeting at Detroit, and racing did not begin until Tuesday. The first race was the 2:09 pace, two heat heats in three for a purse of $1200. William Mc, bay gelding by Alcymont was the winner easily in straight heats, in the excellent time of 2:07 1/2 and 2:07 1/2. Nicol B. was second and Kitty R. third. Hellena Duplex, Little Thorn, Neeta W., Charles Summer, Eylet, Nelly Bruce, Red Seal, Argetta and Exploit also started.

The 2:17 trot had a big field of starters. The winner was Hazel Ridge, chestnut horse by Sphinx, son of Electioneer, won first end third heats in 2:11 1/2 and 2:15 1/2. Derby Lass by Chas. Derby, bred at Oakwood Park Stock Farm won the second heat in 2:14 and got second money. Precision was third. Pilot Evens, Excel, Bergenie, Josephine Dixon, Lenarks, Temple Wilkes, Grand Baron, Reinforth, Belle M. and Lillian also started.

The Chamber of Commerce Pacing stake of $5000 went to Shade On. Coney, the first hot erratic son of McKinney was a heavy favorite, and won the first heat in 2:09, giving McKinney his first 2:40 performer. He was the contending horse in every heat but acted badly. During the scoring for the first heat he reared and collided with Fire Gilt, a secondary favorite, overturning both sulkies, but the horses and drivers escaped injury. Shade On was whipped all the way down the stretch in the last heat. Coney had led nearly all the way, but Shade On got under the wire barely a neck ahead of the California gelding. Driver Kay was presented with an immense hoopet, which he carried off past a crowd of 6000 cheering spectators. The time of the four heats were 2:09, 2:13 1/2, 2:11 1/2 and 2:13 1/2. Carmelita was third Fire Gilt, Annie Thornton, Wandering Jew, Mount Clemens Boy, Mece, Hipless, Arlins B., Maude Emperor and The Private also started.

Sarpol, the favorite, won the $2000 2:14 trot in straight heats, although Altoka in the second heat gave the gray the closest neck and neck struggle of the day. Ellert made two splendid spurts and got third money. Time, 2:12 1/2, 2:10, 2:10. Altoke second, Ellert third. Cherlie Herr, Chentilly Dr. Spellman, Medium Wood, Major Chew, Cutting, Coreloid, Bone Telle and St. George also started.

SECOND DAY.

Great racing resulted on Wednesday and two of the races were unfinished when darkness came on. The great event of the meeting, the Merchants and Manufacturers Stake, is fully described on our front page. The 2:07 pace brought out a large field. Four heats were paced Wednesday, and one on Thursday. Sherman Clay won the second, third and fifth heats. Time, 2:07 1/2, 2:06 1/2, 2:07 1/2. Pearl Oawerd won the fourth heat in 2:07 1/2 and was second; Egozen won the first heat in 2:08 1/2 and was third. Miss Logan, Lady of the Manor, Charles B., Anenias, William Wallace, Scrihner and Royal R. Sheldon also started.

THIRD DAY.

Trotting, 2:27 class, purse $1200—Bel Esprit won the first and second heats. Time, 2:12 1/2, 2:12 1/2. Derby Lass second, Black Robert third. Cornelia Belle, David Harum, McAdams, Lady Ethelyn, Princess, Plnck, Fitzbugh Lee, Leeso, Edwin Winters, Hopper Grass, Bart Herr, Lou M. Quetzel and Kerolite also started.

Pacing, 2:12 class, purse $1200—Edith W. won the second and third heats. Time, 2:06 1/2, 2:07 1/2. Fanny Dillard won the first heat in 2:08 1/2, and was second, Little Frenk third. Will Leyburn, Lord Roseberry, Herry Omer, Donogh, Golden Prince, White Rose, Fairview, You Bet, Lily of the Valley, Herry C., Deriel, The Airship, Levena, Miss Mergeret and Miss Meyme also started.

Trotting, 2:08 class, purse $2000—The Abbott won the first, third and fourth heats. Time, 2:07 1/2, 2:09, 2:10 1/2. Mattie Patterson won the second heat in 2:09 1/2, and was second, and John Nolan third. Kentucky Union and Monterey also started.

Pacing, 2:15 class, purse $2000 (unfinished)—Honites Crook won the second heat in 2:09. Nerva Patchen won the first heat in 2:08; The Maid the third heat in 2:08 1/2. Wiltrauf, Rosn Dick, Star Hel, Blsze Boy, Maronial, Sweet Violet, Rosa L., Maximilien, Walnut Lad, Bay Leaf, Gypsy Red, Johnny C., Lolits, Gyp Walnut, Daisy H., Pat Hugo, Lady Prince and Scapegoat also started.

In treating an inflamed tendon keep the horse at work, if a fresh case, foment the leg with hot water for half an hour after which saturate the hair full of a wash made as follows: 1 oz. Absorbine, 1 pint vinegar and 1 pint witch hazel. Put on a good thick layer of cotton with a dry handsgae over it, leave on two or three hours, remove and apply Absorbine full strength, rubbing it in well. Give from two to three applications a day of Absorbine full strength and hendsage at night, cotton under bandage.

In an old case, bandage at night with the wash, apply Absorbine twice a day full strength and give Rhus Tox 3x (10 drops) on the tongue twice a day. Be sure the foot is level and in proper proportion to the limb it supports.

Remedies can be procured of regular dealers or can be ordered direct. If any special information is desired, describe your case fully when ordering. W. F. YOUNG, 34 Amherst St., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

JOURNEYMAN is a new addition to Prodigal's 2:15 list. He won a race at Readville, July 12th, and got a mark of 2:14½.

BUMPS will not be raced this year, as his owner is getting too much pleasure driving the pacer on the road to spare him.

THE State Fair entries closed last Saturday. The Directors meet to-day to pass upon them. There is certain to be a large list.

THE Vallejo people with a little work could get up a profitable five day meeting to fill in the time between Santa Rosa and Oakland.

CHAS. NEWMAN has purchased De Bernardi Basler 2:16½ and he will be in the Richelieu Stables this year. He is an improved horse.

SPARBLIGHT 2:04½, has gone into J. H. Bronson's Nutmeg stable. Fred Noble, who marked Georgiana 2:10½, will train and drive him.

EUROPEAN buyers cannot get half their orders filled in the New York and Chicago markets. One reason is that good ones are worth more at home than in Europe.

THE winnings of the Keating stable at Denver amounted to $2650. None of the purses were over $500. Five horses made eleven starts, and won ten firsts and one third money.

THERE is a three-year-old son of Diablo in Santa Ana that will be raced this year and is said to be as fast as any Diablo ever foaled. If so, he should win more than one purse this year.

SIDNEY S. TOMAN, the energetic secretary of the Empire City Trotting Club, was presented with a handsome split second watch by some of his admiring friends a few evenings since.

WHITNEY 2:20, by Edgemark, was recently purchased by Alderman Hughes of New York and is thought to be a 2:10 trotter. $3500 was the price paid. Whitney was bred in New England.

It is just ten years ago since Axtell trotted in 2:12, and he has remained the only 2:15 performer to the credit of William L. ever since, until Maxine (Bessie Stewart) paced in 2:12½ last week.

SAN TELMO, a three-year-old pacer by Arion 2:07½, that sold at the Forbes sale about a month ago for $180, has paced a mile in 2:21 for his new owner, and an offer of $1000 has been refused for him.

HUMBOLDT MAID made her first start this year at Mendota, Illinois, winning the first heat of her race in 2:16, but getting beaten the other three in 2:15½, 2:20 and 2:17 by Major Ewing, a son of Strathmore.

JO CUICELLO, trainer for the Richelieu Stables, went to Santa Rosa with his string of trotters and pacers last Thursday. He worked Butcher Boy a mile in 2:16½ over the Alameda track two days before he left.

MOTH MILLER, a five-year-old roan gelding by Alcantara, took a record last year as a four-year-old of 2:10½. At Readville last week he won a two in three race in 2:07½ and 2:08½ and is now the fastest of the get of his sire.

LOCAL 2:19½, a horse bred at Palo Alto, and by Wildnot, out of Ladywell 2:16½, by Electioneer, was recently sold at auction in Vienna, Austria, for $4000. Local took his record at Napa in 1896 as a three-year-old.

HUO DEL DIABLO scored up for the word in the free for all pace at Rocklin, Placer county, on the Fourth of July, but cut his quarter so badly while scoring that he had to be withdrawn from the race before the word was given.

GEO. W. MCKINNEY 2:14½, sprained an ankle severely at Denver, but Mr. Hodges writes that he has fully recovered and is now taking his work without showing signs of lameness. He should lower his mark several seconds if he keeps right.

THE New York Telegraph says: O. A. Hickok, the noted driver, has been in the city two or three weeks. He says he has not given up all hope of again being in the sulky. He will not attempt driving again until his health is completely restored.

THE first three-year-old of the year to heat 2:30 is the bay filly Phew, which won the three-year-old stake at Windsor, Ont., July 4th, making a record of 2:25½. She is by Athel (brother to Arion 2:07½) dam Surprise, by Lord Eldon, son of Mansfield.

SID DUFFEE, the seven-year-old gelding that James Fair Jr. consigned to the Cleveland sale last May, trotted a mile last week at the Cleveland track in 2:15. He is by Duffee, out of Italia, by Sidney; second dam by Prompter; third dam by Vanderhill.

THE well known starting judge, A. H. Merrill, says that experience has taught him that it would be in the interest of all concerned to have the starter isolated. Then he would be able to watch out for himself and not be handicapped by outside interference.

THE laudible effort to revive trotting races under saddle has been a failure from Hartford to Oakland. W. B. Fasig offered purses at his July meeting for races of this class but they failed to fill, and the same fate met those offered by the Golden Gate Fair Association for its Oakland meeting.

THE bay mare Lucrative, bred at Palo Alto, and by Dexter Prince out of Lucyneer (3) 2:27 by Electioneer, won the 2:23 trot at Readville, Massachusetts, July 12th, in straight heats and reduced her record to 2:16½. There was a very heavy wind blowing up the stretch, or the time would have been faster.

IT will interest people who think the days of the trotting bred horses are numbered to know that at Charter Oak's late meeting no less than three men were present who were desirous of purchasing good specimens of this class, and were willing to put up anywhere from $5000 to $10,000 for a really good thing.—Hartford Courant.

JAMES B. IVERSON, of Salinas, has leased for the season of 1899 the racing qualities of the six-year-old brown pacing stallion Guidon, owned by Mr. W. J. Hill of the same city. Guidon has no record, but has speed enough to win in pretty fast company and should be a money getter if no accident happens him. He is by Almont Patchen 2:15, out of Minnie L., by Anteros; second dam M'Iss, by Nephew.

OUR esteemed contemporary the American Stock Farm has one on us. We stated a few weeks ago that Almont was the only stallion that had sired six with records below 2:10, and the Kentucky paper reminds us that Onward and Mambrino King have the same honor. We stand corrected and the only excuse we have to offer is that we copied the wording of a card printed a year ago, and neglected to take the records of 1898 into consideration. The statement was true of Almont a year ago.

SINCE the bay stallion, Our Lucky 2:16½, has come east of the continental divide, it is to be hoped that some one connected with the Register Association will make it his particular business to ascertain this horse's breeding. For five or six seasons this speedy trotter has been campaigning over California tracks, and, while he has always been given in the published list of entries as a son of Rajah 2:29½, the various volumes of the Year Book insist in stating that his breeding is unknown.—Western Horseman.

[If the owner of Our Lucky would take the trouble to send his breeding to the American Trotting Association there would be no doubt as to his pedigree. He is by Rajah and his dam is the standard mare Dora 2:29, by Gibraltar 1:55; second dam Nelly, by Black Warrior.—ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

SUPERINTENDENT COVEY, of Palo Alto Stock Farm, received a letter last week from a horseman friend in Cleveland, Ohio, in which the following tribute was paid to the late Robert Bonner: "Our friend Robert Bonner is gone and we have lost the greatest patron of the light harness horse. Well, dear friend, if they have any horses in the next world I hope that Robert Bonner is driving the best there."

IN the procession that followed the remains of Congressman R. P. Bland to the cemetery at Lebanon, Mo., June 17th, was "Uncle Peter," the old horse that "Silver Dick" drove through all his twenty-six years of political life. The old hay is known to every voter in Blend's district, as in the different canvasses made by that gentleman "Uncle Peter" hauled him up and down the country roads of the Ozark regions.

J. M. NELSON went down to Salinas the other day and purchased from Gus Kassing the fast green trotter Horsehoe Boy, by Reliance 969. It is reported that $750 was the price paid for him. Horsehoe Boy is a nine-year-old gelding and has been driven and trained by Mr. Kassing as a road horse. It is said that Mr. K. drove him a mile in 2:15½ some weeks ago, and the horse is considered a great prospect. Mr. Nelson will campaign him on the California circuit.

ONE of the breeding wonders is the mare Hallie Rocket that won the 2:30 trotting race at Readville, on Tuesday, in 2:13½ and 2:14½. She is not only by the pacing bred stallion Hal Dillard 2:04½, but is out of the pacing mare Molly Rock 2:27, by Tom Ernest, son of the pacing stallion White Cloud. She won her heats very easily and looks like a 2:10 trotter. She is a very pure gaited trotter, wearing only shin, quarter and toe boots in her races, while on the road she goes clean. She is also driven with a side check.

ANOTHER of the California trotters touring on the Eastern circuit has got into the 2:15 list. Ellen Madison, owned by M. A. Murphy, of Colton, got a record of 2:12½ at Peoria, Illinois, on the second day of the meeting there. She won the first two heats, but was beaten for first money by Bessie Gilbert. Ellen Madison is by James Madison, first dam Sarah Benton, by Albion, son of Gen. Benton; second dam Bessie, by Inca; third dam Lawshee mare, by California Ten Broeck. She took a three-year-old record last year of 2:10.

L. J. FELTON, of Santa Ana, is working Silkwood 2:07 as a guileless wonder, and the black whirlwind of the citrus belt went a mile in 2:07½ a few days ago without boots or hoppers. Mr. Felton is trying to make arrangements with the managers of the State and District fairs to exhibit this celebrated horse this year at the meetings. In his "lonesome" act he should be quite a drawing card, as no guileless wonder has ever appeared on the California tracks, and Silkwood is an attraction in himself, having never appeared since the Tehachapi.

WILLIAM B. FASIG holds a different view on the two in three question than his partner Ed Tipton. He said after the Hartford meeting: "I think less of it than ever and I always thought very little of it. Several who voted for the two in three declare themselves that they would not do so again, nor would they enter in a two in three event. So far as I can judge, after giving it a fair trial, I believe that it is a failure from every standpoint. Our only interesting contests were three in five, and they were the only ones the public seemed to approve."

RECENT reports from Cleveland to Superintendent Covey of Palo, credit the handsome three-year-old gelding Florist, sold at the Blue Ribbon sale by Palo Alto Stock Farm for $300, with a mile in 2:24 last quarter 33 seconds. He is by Dexter Prince, dam Floweret (sister to Wildflower and Manzanita) by Electioneer. Fasonte (4) 2:13, worked a mile in 2:15, last half in 1:05, last quarter in 32 seconds and great things are expected for her. She is by Palo Alto 2:08½, dam Sontag Dixie, by Toronto Sontag. Peko 2:11, daughter of Electioneer, has won two matinee races recently, to wagon and shows to be a much better mare this season than last. Azote is going nice and sound but has not been asked to go fast.

THE man has yet to be born who will keep his head and make no mistake on all occasions. Frank Walker, regarded as the leading starter of harness races in America, and who is employed to start the horses at the majority of tracks on the Grand Circuit got confused when the horses were scoring for the third heat in the 2:17 trot at the recent meeting at Hartford, and instead of pulling the bell in the judges stand to recall them, pressed the button on the electric bell at the distance flag. The consequence was the drivers, on hearing the bell, supposed he had given the word. A vigorous ringing of the bell when the horses were at the first turn caused a number to pull up on the hackstretch, but Myrl Boy, Andy W. and Ap Alert raced the entire distance before discovering the mistake. A big kick went up from the benches after the three horses had gone a mile to a false start. They claimed that all bets should have been declared off on the heat and time given to make a new heat, as those who had money on either of three horses had then no show to win on the heat. That this was true was shown by the horse mentioned finishing the heat in sixth, eighth and ninth positions.

Summer Racing in California.

Owners of thoroughbreds will have a better opportunity to race during the summer and fall this year than has been offered them in California for some years. Beginning with the Oakland meeting which opens August 25th, a circuit of nine weeks continuous racing will be provided, extending all over the southern half of the State and winding up at Los Angeles the last week in October. At all of these meetings three running races per day will be provided, the harness horses being looked to to furnish two races per day. The circuit, as before stated will begin at Oakland August 25th, closing Sept. 2d, which falls on Saturday. The following Monday the State Fair at Sacramento will open, continuing two weeks, then will follow in succession, Stockton one week, San Jose one week, Salinas one week, Fresno one week, Tulare one week and Los Angeles one week. At all of these places the runner will have a conspicuous place on the program and liberal purses will be hung up. Oakland's opening day will consist entirely of running races, and there will be six events on the card. On the following days, three runs and two harness races will make up the program. The probability is that the Oakland track will attract as large crowds as are usually seen there during the winter, and as a strong effort will be made by the Golden Gate Fair Association to have clean racing of as high class as possible, the public will certainly patronize the excellent sport that will be offered. At Sacramento, Stockton and San Jose, Fresno and Los Angeles there is certain to be a very large attendance owing to the fact that both running and harness races will be given each day. The circuit this year, while late in getting started, and not very extensive, will remind those who attend of the good old days when the district fair was the great sporting event of the year and was patronized by the entire community wherever they were held.

San Jose's Racing Program.

At the San Jose meeting, which will be held September 5th to 30th, there will be three running and two harness races on the card each day. The running events will be as follows:

- One, 1 1-8 mile, stake for all ages, handicaps; One, 1 1-16 mile stake, all ages, selling; Two, 1 mile, three-year-old and upwards, selling; One 7 1/2 furlongs, three-year-old and upwards, purse; One 7 furlongs, four-year-old and upwards, selling; One 6 furlongs, handicap, all ages; One 6 furlongs, two-year-old, selling; Three, 6 furlongs, two-year-old and upwards, selling; One 5 1/2 furlongs, all ages, purse; One 5 furlongs, all ages, handicap; One 5 furlongs, two-year-old purse; One, 5 furlongs, maiden two-year-old, selling; One 5 furlongs, all ages, selling; One 4 furlongs, three-year-olds and upwards, selling; One 6 furlongs, four-year-old and upwards, purse.

Kentucky Woman Who Breeds Race Horses.

Mrs. Ella Offutt Pepper, of Lexington, Ky., is the most noted woman on the American turf. Every one interested in horses, and a great many who are not, knows the story of her picturesque career. The following interview with her will, therefore, attract widespread interest and attention:

Mrs. Pepper is the wife of Col. James E. Pepper, the well-known distiller and turfman. She tells the story of her experience with thoroughbreds in these words:

As you know, we breed all the horses we race, something of an establishment to these days. Science has taught, and confirms the fact, that water is the first necessity of life. Each horse requires about eight gallons of water a day, I naturally regarded the purity of the water as of vital consequence. I found that the average stock water at our farm came from surface drainage and was, therefore, more or less impregnated with organic matter, I argued that horses to be healthy should have just as good and just as pure water as human beings, so I decided to drill an artesian well.

At a depth of 200 feet we struck an abundant supply of the best kind of water. I have had it analyzed and it shows the presence of lime, magnesia and iron—three constituents essential to the building up of bone and healthy muscle and tissue. I believe this excellent water had a great deal to do with the high class shown by my colts and fillies last year, and if the stable I send out this year keeps up the reputation of Meadowthorpe I will be positive that the water did it. Another thing which, I think, has much to do with the quality of our horse is the way we handle them. We do not do any forcing.

When we finish the morning work of the two-year-olds we allow them to cool out carefully and then we turn them out to romp in the blue grass. They run and jump and seem to enjoy the freedom of the pastures. Before I adopted the natural mode of caring for young horses our veterinary bill was enormous. Some one of the colts was sick all the time. The young things had distempers, fevers and everything else. Since I adopted the natural method, as I call it, we have had practically no sickness among the horses, and they seem to be much healthier, and capable of standing all kinds of weather without injury.

I name all my own colts and fillies. I try to give them names suitable to their breeding, although I do not believe in catching a point in order to combine the name of sire or dam. Mrs. Pepper's winnings last year were about $50,000 in stakes and purses, and she sold her horse in training for $2,000.

The Derby Winner.

Speaking of the latest Derby winner The Field says: Though Ormonde was an undoubted roarer when he beat Minting and Bendigo in a memorable Hardwicke Stakes at Ascot, it appears now that the illness which attacked the great horse after his first stud season was nothing more or less than a turf calamity of the greatest magnitude. In his first season Ormonde sired Orme, Goldfinch and several others, and it is now only reasonable to assume that if he had recovered his health, and been kept in England, he would have followed in the footsteps of his great grandsire Stockwell, and proved himself a mighty stallion. Luckily Orme remains in this country, and, though Orme was never an Ormonde, he looks like doing wonderfully well for this particular branch of the Stockwell line. Flying Fox and Harrow have placed their sire at the head of the list thus early in the season, and already it is quite on the cards that Ormonde will retain his position up to the end of the year. It is somewhat curious that Flying Fox should be a product of Orme's first real season, because Orme came in Ormonde's first year of runners, and Ormonde did the same thing by Bend Or, while Doncaster was also a very young horse when he sired the great rival of Robert the Devil.

Though of Stockwell descent in his top remove, Flying Fox is tremendously full of Blacklock blood. He is by Galopin, out of a mare by Rosebery, and Rosebery was a grandson of Vedette, who was also the sire of Galopin. Then again, Angelica, the dam of Orme, was by Galopin, and thus Flying Fox has more Blacklock than Birdcatcher blood, though he is also inbred to the last named sire. In appearance the Guineas winner passes muster well; he is not at all on the leg, as Ormonde was, and he has more substance than Orme had at his age, though he is very like his sire. A big horse is Flying Fox, but not a giant; his limbs are simply perfect, and for such a big one he is well let down. Over the hack, loin and quarters he is wonderfully good, but there is a suspicion of coarseness about the setting on of his neck, and this is his only fault, as far as we can see. He walks well, is good to follow, and, considering the time of year, he carries extraordinary bloom and condition. At the same time, it must be understood that the Duke of Westminster's colt is not a showy horse; there is nothing flash about him, and, though he has plenty of quality, his appearance suggests stamina rather than the brilliant speed which is generally the chief characteristic of very handsome horses. About the style in which Flying Fox cut down his field on Wednesday last there can be no two opinions. He took up the running before they had come half way, and for the rest of the journey he was playing with his field. All his opponents were in trouble half way down Bushe Hill, and as he passed the stands Flying Fox was being pulled up. Nevertheless, he traveled on past the Turn of the Lands right up the hill before Cannon stopped him, and when he was brought back to the paddock he did not show the least sign of distress. The fact is, that this particular thoroughbred has made far more than the average amount of improvement during the winter, and he is now almost in a different class to horses he could hardly beat last year.

The Haggin Yearlings in England.

The second sale of yearlings from the Rencho del Paso in California took place in England last week. The sale was held at Newmarket and eighty-five head were disposed of all but two of the consignment. There was no reserve on any of the youngsters. The highest priced one of the sale was the colt by Goldfinch from Fleurette, dam of Fleur de Lis (Maxine), by imp. Glenelg, went to Mr. W. C. Whitney for $9500. The yearlings were landed in wonderful condition considering the length of the voyage, and it was the common remark among the spectators that no finer looking lot ever entered a salesring. The total realized at the sale was $51,883, an average of over $600. Mr. Haggin was thoroughly satisfied with the result.

SADDLE NOTES.

OLINTHUS, son of Red Iron and Lilly Wright, has been gelded.

TWENTY-FIVE or thirty runners are in training at the Stockton track.

ALGOL, according to a veterinary who has him in charge, will stand training again.

MR. JUSTICE COHEN, of Sydney, has decided that boys under 14 years of age must not ride in races.

THREE running and two harness events each day will be the rule at the State and District fair meetings in California this year.

T. J. ROBERTS, who bred Archer, who won the two first Melbourne Cups, died last month at Exeter Farm, Braidwood, Victoria.

LITTLE BERNIE is making a great name for himself at the stud in Queensland. After his son, Dundonald, won the Moreton Handicap, an offer of 1000gs was refused for the colt.

SYNDICATE betting is spoiling the racing game at every track where it is allowed to flourish. It is to be hoped that it will not prevail to any extent on the California circuit this year.

BEGINNING with the Oakland meeting August 25th there will be about nine weeks of uninterrupted racing for the thoroughbreds before the regular winter racing begins at the local tracks.

It is considered certain that the Hon. W. C. Whitney will establish a racing stable in England. He has been a heavy purchaser at the late sales at Newmarket and other racing points over there.

AN Eastern dispatch says that Mrs. J. B. Ferguson will offer the Kingston Stud Farm for sale, and that Starter Ferguson will not return to Kentucky to live, but will probably take up his residence in California.

GALEN BROWN is at the Sacramento track and has a string of nearly twenty runners which he is preparing for the summer and fall meetings. Among them are a half dozen or so belonging to Mr. A. B. Spreckels.

MAXINE (Fleur de Lis) won a race at a mile and a sixteenth at Brighton Beach last Monday. She was an odds on favorite and won by a length. Lakeland was second and Formero third. The time was 1:50 and the track was heavy.

LORD WILLIAM BERESFORD was very successful last week with his American importations. Perdicus, G'loab, Jovic 11 and Caiman all won. The feeling is gaining ground that Caiman will give Flying Fox a great deal of trouble in the St. Leger.

FLYING FOX, grandson of Ormonde, owned by the Duke of Westminster, is the most successful horse in the world this year. His earnings have netted his owner $129,000 in stakes. He has in succession won the Derby, Eclipse, Two Thousand Guineas and Princess of Wales Stakes, and will try for the St. Leger.

PRIVATE letters from Chicago state that the racing game is very poor there. The bookmakers are compelled to pay the purses in order to keep the races going, and as there are but a dozen pencilers in the ring this means an outlay of $200 each before the first chalk mark is made. As a result cinch odds are on the boards and the game has degenerated into a very cheap gamble.

THE remarkably good prices that thoroughbred yearlings have commanded at public sale this season is evidence of a revival of interest in the turf that promises to mount to considerable proportions. It has been a good year for the breeder and all offerings of merit and promise have sold at gratifying figures. Across the water big prices have been paid for the best racing prospects. The three-year-old filly Strike a Light, by Donovan, and Galopin Lassie, a filly of the same age by Galopin, have sold at public auction for $20,000 and $15,000 respectively.

THE following is the revised list of racing dates for the principal meetings in the East and West: Latonia, Oct. 7 to Oct. 23; Newport, Sept. 2 to Sept. 30; St. Louis, Mo., June 30 to Aug. 25; Fort Erie, Canada, June 30 to July 19; Brighton Beach, N. Y., July 5 to Aug. 5; Windsor, Canada, July 22 to Aug. 12; Saratoga, N. Y., July 25 to Aug. 25; Detroit, Mich. (Highland Park), Aug. 14 to 26; Sheephead Bay, N. Y., Aug. 26 to Sept. 9; Quebec, Canada, Aug. 31 and Sept. 2; Gravesend, N. Y., Sept. 12 to Sept. 30; Dallas, Tex., Sept. 28 to Oct. 2; Westchester, N. Y., Oct. 2 to Oct. 21; Aqueduct, Long Island, N. Y., Oct. 23 to Nov. 4; Washington, D. C. (Benning), Nov. 11 to 30; Hawthorne, July 10 to July 22.

THE Daily Racing Form says: Many of the leading Western stables are quartered at the Saratoga track. Ed Corrigan has all his juvenile cracks at the famous New York summer resort. Corrigan has a strong band of two-year-olds in Golden Rule, Sardine, Bassada and St. Anthony. Golden Rule is considered one of the fastest two-year-olds developed in the West this season. He is thought good enough to heat the best of the crack Eastern youngsters. Sardine is good enough to heat any of the Eastern fillies. Another Western horseman, who has a string that ought to cut a big figure at the Saratoga meeting, is Tom McDowell. He has Rush, Spirituelle, His Excellency and other good ones in his stable. Barney Schriber's string is among the latest arrivals at Saratoga.

The members of the Chico Gun Club and invited guests enjoyed a dove stew last Sunday on the Mud Creek "fly away." The shooters arrived on the ground too late for the early morning fight but they succeeded in bagging enough birds, which added to the previous evening's bag were sufficient for the feast. After the good things had been stewed away the hunters indulged in a late afternoon shoot. From 5 o'clock until sundown there was a good fight and fair bags all round was the result.

The Old Hunting Coat.

A tbing of stiff canvas, dirt spotted and torn;
 Soiled corduroy collar; huge pockets that tote
 The game; and its fabric is crumpled and worn;
 Yet memories cling to the old hunting coat.

Its color of tau with the ground smoultly bleeds
 And frights not the timid and sharp-sighted game;
 By delicate thread its lone button suspends,
 Untouched by the hand of the unseeing dame.

On the sleeve a light feather seems destined to stay;
 The scent of burnt powder around it duth cling;
 And its pockets conceal but a motley array
 Of pipe and tobacco, shells, matches and string.

And many a night it has pillowed the head
 That rested in peace 'neath a sheltering tent
 That on some stream's banks, tree-protected, was spread,
 Where few but Dame Nature's wild creatures e're went.

Ah, if it could speak! It would eagerly tell
 Of long, breathless chase through the thicket and thurne
 In pursuit of the elk that fought nobly and well,
 But whose antlers the old hunting coat now adorns.

Or perchance it would whisper of morning's sharp chill
 And rush-bidden boat in some lake at daylight,
 And speak of the silence, and e'en of the thrill
 That is felt when the canvasback started the flight.

Or yet it could speak of the favorite camp,
 Where the brook makes sweet music and soft breezes blow;
 And the odor of firs and of wild flowers, dew-damp,
 And the leaping of trout where the slender weeds grow.

The broadcloth may scorn it, the woolen may sneer,
 Aristocrats they, keeping always remote;
 Yet none of them offers the comfort and cheer
 And happiness found in the old hunting coat.

That Law Against Repeating Shot Guns.

The Marin county Board of Supervisors sitting as a Board of Equalization at San Rafael last Monday afternoon presented an opportunity to interested parties to appear before that body and make statements and offer arguments that were entirely ex parte. The various gun clubs, whose members almost unanimously advocated, together with other sportsmen, the prohibition against magazine repeating shot guns, were unaware of the movement and consequently the other side was not heard from.

One of the advocates last Monday was the advertising solicitor of a morning daily in the columns of which recently appeared an article, taking up fifteen inches of space in reading matter (the rate for which, in that journal, is usually one dollar per line), which argument we believe was a colorless series of irrelevant platitudes and sentimental theories in defense of the so called "pump gun," the only practical portion of the statement was the strong desire of the manufacturing interests to create public sentiment in favor of the goods, this feature, however, we do not criticize as we deem it perfectly legitimate. The solicitor above referred to is not known to the sporting fraternity as either an ardent or a mediocre sportsman in fact, nor has he ever been suspected, it is safe to assume, of even a rudimentary knowledge of sports afield or by the sylvan stream.

The argument made that the law covers the case sufficiently by reason of a limit of twenty-five birds per day is a specious one. The limit clause applies to quail only. Ducks, doves, snipe and other game are not limited and it has been among these game species that the repeating shot gun demonstrated its decimating influence. The discrimination charged is the merest sophistry. There are four companies who are the principal American makers of the repeating shot gun. The law was adopted in the interest of game protection and the same principles involved in the suppression of the particular method of killing game, now under discussion, was applied when the State legislature prohibited trapping feathered game and also the use of guns larger than a ten bore. The charge of discrimination will not stand when the particular instrument used in killing game is a factor detrimental to the propagation and existence of game, the State has the right (and so have the county authorities under the shipping statute in force) to pass and enforce game laws, this has been determined in the courts. Legislation enacted for the purpose of game protection is not discrimination.

The editor of the Coast Sports (as the Associated Press dispatch had it) in addressing the Board "contended that it—the clause prohibiting repeating shot guns—was an abridgement of a man's liberty, and a discrimination of that character was unfair and unlawful." The law does not prohibit the possession or sale of repeating shot guns, it only prevents their use in the pursuit of game. As for the liberty part of the discourse we would suggest that there is a large colony located on the bay shore of Marin county who can give him cards and spades on this subject and with equal value, force and effect. The shibboleth of discrimination appeared again in the eloquent speaker's harangue, "it (the clause prohibiting repeating shot guns) was discriminating between 'the poor and the rich and has aroused feeling among sporting men of San Francisco and Alameda counties." It is true, there is a discrimination here, which has resulted in an abridgement of the rich game hogs' method of slaughtering game. Among the many gun clubs located in this and adjoining counties, the majority of the members composing the same are not in affluent circumstances. We have seen at trap shooting meetings and tournaments many mechanics, salesmen, book keepers, clerks and other workers; during the game season we have chronicled many times the results of their hunting trips. In the possession of these sportsmen will be found the best makes of Clabrough, L. C. Smith, Remington, Colt's, Greener and other standard makes of guns. And this too, is a matter of preference and selection. The only "pump" guns, with few exceptions, used during the trap-shooting mentioned have been in the hands of and operated by "trade representatives." The feeling aroused among these shooters, a majority of whom we have canvassed on the subject, is almost unanimously one of satisfaction that the clause in question was incorporated in an ordinance the principal object of which is game protection. The information volunteered that the speaker did not appear "for any gun manufacturer," if not specific, is at least a bold one—Ananias has been dead only several thousand years but the struggle for his mantle still goes on.

Furthermore the precedent established in the movement last Monday we think is an injudicious one, it has paved the way for the organization of "steering committees" whose chairman is the invisible but potential Col. Mazuma, his acquaintance with corporations is an extended one. There is grave danger that the fair principles involved may now be crushed under the wheels of commerce.

Now a word for the repeating shot gun itself, this gun has proven to be a strong and effective shooting gun and is a remarkable example of the skill and ingenuity of American handicraft; but, when the legitimate question of game protection comes forward we honestly believe that the gun should be prohibited—the following taken from an advertisement of the repeating gun announced by an Eastern arms company is significant—"Semi-Automatic, Double Hits in 1.8 of One Second, 3 Hits in Less than One Second, 6 Hits in Three Seconds." If an implement which is virtually a powder propelled shot hose should not be suppressed as well as traps, wire netted enclosures and other reprehensible methods of getting game, why then, there is no use in endeavoring to protect game, which protection, instead of discriminating places "the rich and the poor" on a plane of sporting equality in the enjoyment of sport and recreation with dog and gun.

It is stated that the Board of Supervisors have taken the matter under consideration, and it is also reported on good authority that they will repeal the section resorted to. The regular meeting of the Board will be held on Monday next at San Rafael. It is to be hoped that this rumor is without foundation.

The Colorado Pigeon Shooting Arrests.

The arrest on July 10th of two of the principals in a live bird shooting match at Sedamsville, near Denver, Col., has stirred up a feeling of remorse and indignation among the Colorado sportsmen that will no doubt meet with the approval and sympathy of every sportsman throughout the country. The case will be fought to a finish and we trust the result will be to the entire satisfaction of the sporting fraternity. The Denver Times commenting on the situation says: "The recent arrest of Jim Elliott and A. B. Daniels at the instance of Secretary Whitehead, of the Colorado Humane Society, for shooting live birds in their late match for the Dupont Cup and the live bird championship of America, has had an effect upon local shotgun enthusiasts similar to the ramming of an arrow of fire into a keg of powder. This action on the part of the Humane Society has set the emotions of the shotgun contingent to working at a rapid rate and the shooters make no concealment of the fact that the arrests are the signal for a war to the knife in which the fate of the law making it illegal to shoot live birds in a match will be decided.

"Jake Sedam is one of the ringleaders in the conspiracy against the objectionable statute. He has carefully perused the law with the assistance of divers disciples of Blackstone, and as a result of his investigation declares that the law will never stand the test of the courts. Therefore, it has been determined to fight the provision to the court of last resort if necessary. The shooters have every confidence in the world that the law will be knocked out and declare that immediately after the decision is handed down live bird shooting will be placed in a plane it occupies in other portions of Uncle Sam's domain.

The local shooters are especially incensed that Colorado should be unique in declaring live bird shooting illegal. There is not another State above which the stars and stripes float which possesses such a provision upon its statute books. [Massachusetts has such a law and enforces it we believe.—Ed.] This law not only makes Colorado unique, moreover, but even ridiculous in the eyes of other States and adds to its reputation of being the land wherein cranks, Populists and other individuals whose garrets are infested with rodents and tacks hold full sway.

"We can keep this law, which I consider a disgrace to shooters, concealed under ordinary circumstances," says George Tritch, and he voices the sentiment of almost every lover of the gun in the city, "but it will not when we try to have such a match as occurred between Daniels and Elliott. This event was a race of national importance and interest. Every member of every gun club in the country, from the swellest to the little dinky organizations that exist in every hamlet in the United States, had his eyes turned in the direction of Denver when the match between the two men occurred. The race was such an advertisement as a car load of three-sheet posters could not have given the town. And following it we have to send out the news that the participants in this important event were hauled into the courts and placed on a plane with the short-haired fraternity. Shooting is one of the sports of gentlemen, and no gentlemen will want to come here to contest with us if he knows that he has to take the chance of running the gauntlet of the copper and the police court."

At the Traps.

Members of the San Francisco Gun Club will enjoy an outing trip to-morrow across the bay, and over the picturesque road winding through the Marin hills to San Clemente station, there to hold their monthly live bird shoot.

The final blue rock meeting of the Olympic Gun Club will take place at Ingleside to-morrow and the ownership of the club medals for 1899 will then be determined. A large gathering of shot gun enthusiasts and some good trap work is anticipated.

The Union Gun Club blue rock shoot for this month will take place on the Lincoln Gun Club grounds to-morrow. The members of this organization usually turn out at their regular shoots in force, in consequence, the increasing average of good scores is a noticeable one. On the 30th inst. the Unions announce a live bird shoot at Ingleside.

The excitement of the chase in deer hunting and the allurements of dove shooting promise to draw a number of the trap-shooters away from the practical but tamer sport of smashing targets to-morrow.

An open-to-all shoot is announced for August 5th. The meeting, which will take place on the Lincoln Gun Club grounds, promises to interest trap shooters, an attractive program has been arranged consisting of seven events. Event No. 1, ten birds, entrance 75 cents, two moneys, class shooting. Event No. 2, ten birds, entrance 75 cents, three moneys, high guns. Event No. 3, fifteen birds, entrance $1, three moneys, class shooting. Event No. 4, fifteen birds, entrance $1, four moneys, high guns. Event No. 5, Re-entry race. Price merchandise shoot; twenty birds, entrance $1, ties for gun prizes to shoot off, other ties will be decided by lot. Both scores to count, Re-entry, 75 cents. Event No. 6, two man championship race; twenty five birds per man; entrance 75 cents. Event No. 7, twelve man team shoot for the Nenstadter trophy. Twenty birds per man, entrance 75 cents. In this event a new feature will be introduced, a grab bag will contain twenty prizes, the asters of which will be unknown until drawn from the bag by the shooters. High guns, individual scores counting.

In the above events, the Coast Pigeon, a new target will be used for the first time on the Lincoln grounds.

The Lincoln Gun Club held the regular monthly blue rock shoot on the Alameda club grounds last Sunday. Deer hunting and dove shooting accounted for the absence of a number of the members. Some excellent shooting took place during the day, Edg. Forster made ninety-five out of 100 targets and E. Schultz had a record of forty-two straight breaks and out of 100 birds he lost but ten. The contest for the Nenstadter trophy was postponed until August 5th. The extra event for the day was a prize shoot at ten targets for a graphophone. The race was conducted on the "couple" system, the losers in each round dropping out until the contest narrowed down to two shooters. C. Shaw and D. Daniels were the last shooters, Shaw winning out on a score of seven to five.

The scores in the regular club match at twenty-five targets were as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Score. Includes names like Webb, Bekert, Forster, Edg., Frazen, Daniels, Brus, Price, Fischer, Sherock, Lewis, Ostrander, Feudner, Schultz, E., Slade, Schultz, F., Shaw, Frask, and La Motte, V. with various scores.

In a ten bird race following the club match the scores were: Forster, Edg., Price, Daniels, Brus, Schultz, Feudner, F., Andrus, La Motte, V. and their respective scores.

The scores and final result in the "couple shoot" for the graphophone were as follows:

The second annual blue rock tournament of the Porterville Gun Club was held Sunday, July 9th, at the club grounds west of the depot and some excellent shooting was done. Among the visitors were O. M. Fox, of Reedley, and Messrs. O'Neill, Glacier and Thompson, of Fresno. Following is a summary of the results of the shoot:

At the conclusion of the above program extra events were arranged during the afternoon.

Deer and Doves.

Deer hunters and dove shooters made a gala day of last Saturday, the first day of the open season. The exodus of sportsmen from this city was numerous and Marin county was the scene of many an exciting deer hunt. On the Country Club and Tamalpais Gun Club preserves nearly a dozen lordly bucks fell to the rifles of the club members and their guests. Outside of the club boundaries the hunters also killed numerous deer. Several bucks sent in from the other side of the bay upon casual examination seemed to have been afflicted with emphysema, but upon close examination we are inclined to believe the successful Nimrod, after dressing his victim thought it a clever idea to improve the appearance of the carcass by inserting a quill in the punctured skin and thus putting to use the surplus of wind not needed to recount his doughty exploits in the forest. Santa Clara county hunters have also been having great sport in the coast hills, some fine bucks have been sent in to San Jose. The reports from all sections hunted are to the effect that this year's deer shooting will afford plenty of sport and venison.

Dove shooting has been of the best in most localities and many big hags are reported. In the vicinity of Sacramento and Stockton the birds are found in myriads. Many hunters report that the doves are not yet through nesting. Among many sportsmen the sentiment prevails that the open season for doves should not begin before August 1st. In several communities in Northern California, particularly at Chico and Grass Valley, the gun clubs have made preparations to have some great shoots, followed by doves stews, when several hundreds of birds, it is expected, will be consigned to the kettle. The Grass Valley dove hunt and stew will take place to-day, and on the 30th inst. the Marysville sportsmen and their guests will hold high carnival at Shelton's grove.

Wera space available a page could be filled listing the sportsmen and their exploits during the week. One mention we feel in duty bound to make, a dove shoot near Boca. Will J. Golcher and Clarence Haight, who were spending a few days on the Truckee fishing, accompanied by Billy McRae drove out one day in a buggy to a favorite resort for doves. A fair bag resulted, Billy doing his share of the shooting. The many friends of Billy will no doubt be pleased to learn that he has not yet forgotten how to use a shot gun nor has he given up the sport.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Harvey McMurchy was seen on Sportsman's Row during a short visit to New York in the early part of this month. The glad hand was his in wholesale lots.

J. A. R. Elliott has challenged W. R. Crosby for the E. C. Cup and championship of the world at inanimate targets. The match is to take place at Batavia, N. Y., Monday next.

William E. Robertson has been appointed game warden for Marin county. He has appointed several deputies to assist him in patrolling the county. Marin county has been without a game warden for nearly two years.

Harold Money, of Oakland, captured the trophy emblematic of the trap shooting clay bird championship of New Jersey on Saturday, July 8th, defeating Thomas W. Morley, of Lyndhurst, the holder. Both men did remarkable shooting, Morley missing only one target and Morley five out of their totals of fifty each. Christopher W. Feigenspan, Jr., of the East Side Gun Club of Newark, immediately posted his forfeit of $10, as required by the rules governing the trophy, and challenged the winner of the prize. They agreed to shoot for the vase on last Saturday.

The new game law of Colorado provides open seasons as follows: Horned deer and antelope, August 15 to November 5; horned elk, October 25 to November 5; turkeys, prairie chickens, sage chickens and grouse, August 15 to October 31; dock, geese, snipe, curlew, heron, swan and cranes, September 1 to April 15, except in regions over 7000 feet above sea level where open seasons begin September 15 to September 30. Trout, white fish, grayling, snuffish, bass, catfish and wall-eyed pike, June 1 to October 31. There is no open season for buffalo, mountain sheep, quail, pheasants, partridges, ptarmigans or heaver, but protection to heaver which injure canals or dams is withheld. Natural evidence of sex on elk, deer and antelope must not be destroyed.

July 22—Ninth Saturday Fly-Casting Contest. Stow Lake, 2:30 P. M. July 30—Ninth Sunday Fly-Casting Contest. Stow Lake, 10 A. M.

The Stow Lake Devotees.

Saturday of last week was a disagreeable day for the angling enthusiast who had the temerity to lay out a silk line on the ruffled bosom of the lake at the base of Strawberry Hill in Golden Gate Park; despite wester conditions a number of gentlemen busily engaged themselves in practice work, their successful efforts in raising averages will be noticed in the scores made during the afternoon. W. D. Mansfield was high man in the century class, he had five companions ambitious for future long distance laurels. H. E. Skinner's maiden cast over the 100 foot mark is the pioneer cast in a series of long ones to come. Considering the day the scores were excellent.

Sunday proved a better day for fly-casting and in most cases the individual scores were better than during the preceding day's contest, noticeably so the cast of Mr. Mansfield, who let out a kink or two and covered 131 feet in long distance casting. E. Everett beat his Saturday's cast by just one foot. The scores in detail for the various events and including Fish Commissioner Vegelsang's lure casting record are as follows:

SATURDAY CONTEST No. 8—Stow Lake, July 15, 1899. Wind, high, west. Weather, foggy and cold.

Table with 4 columns: Name, 1, 2, 3, 4. Includes names like Battu, Brotherton, Everett, Mansfield, W. D., Mocker, E. A., Muller, H. F., Reed, F. H., Skinner, H. E., Smyth, H., and Young, C. G. with various scores.

SUNDAY CONTEST No. 8—Stow Lake, July 16, 1899. Wind, west. Weather, perfect.

Table with 4 columns: Name, 1, 2, 3, 4. Includes names like Battu, Brotherton, T. W., Everett, Huyok, Mansfield, W. D., Grant, C. F., Muller, H. F., Reed, F. H., Smyth, H., Turner, Jas. S., Young, C. G., Walker, C. M., and Vegelsang, Alex. with various scores.

NOTE: Event 1—Distance Casting, feet. Event 2—Accuracy percentage. Event 3—Delicacy, (a) accuracy percentage; (b) delicacy percentage; (c) net percentage. Event 4—Bait-casting, percentage.

The striped bass anglers are having a plethora of sport with the fish across the bay in the Oakland estuary. The bass are there in great numbers. W. R. McFarland caught in eleven trips forty-nine fish, one catch of six weighed forty-two pounds, another take of five weighed twenty-nine pounds. On Wednesday Mannaal Cross caught three which scaled twenty five pounds, one of them being an eleven pounder who fought like a demon. Cross had his tackle cleaned out twice by the fish during the day. Jno. Butler, Al Cumming, Col. Keliehor, Al Wilson, Hyp. Justins, Louis Rondeau and others have all been lucky striped bass fishermen. It has been noticed several times recently that when the bass have been hooked in the point of the upper jaw, in playing them they will jump full length out of the water, in fact, several well known anglers, novices at this new sport, were for the moment deceived and thought that they had caught a steelhead instead of a striped bass.

One of the newest styles of fishing which finds great favor with Colorado anglers is dry fly fishing. The hooks are very tiny, the feathering donble and so arranged as to make the fly stand up on end. After lifting it from the water it is necessary to move it back and forth lightly a few times to dry the fly. A new method pursued in lake fishing is what is called the "hlow line rig." For this a very long pole is necessary and a loosely woven silk line called a hlow line, about half again as long as the pole. The fisherman gets on the windward side of the lake and with the rod in both hands tosses the fly up as high as possible in the air and lets the wind blow it where it will. This is the natural feminine way of fishing and doubtless will find much favor with the ladies.

Scientists have not as yet decided the exact status of the rainbow trout. From the best obtainable information this fish seems to be identical with the enormous steel-head of the Pacific Coast. It is distinguished by its deep red mark along the sides, which extends from the head to the tail. In the immature fish this mark is undeveloped and appears as a series of bars. This fish grows with exceeding rapidity and adapts itself so readily to the conditions of the waters in which it is planted that it has become a general favorite. The much-fished streams of Colorado are being replenished with this variety.

A sturgeon 11 ft. 6 in. in length and weighing nearly 700 lbs. was caught recently near Megler's cannery, Brookfield, Oregon.

Salmon are running in Monterey bay, feeding on the immense shoals of sardines.

Snyder's Dog.

Snyder left his dog with me. "He'll soon get over it," said he; "But there's my girl, she'll miss me, though; She'll count the days that come and go, And yearn for my return, I know, Beside her." Ere Snyder had been gone a year, The girl forgot him, fickle dear. The dog refused to eat, and bled Him to a corner; there, beside A shoe of Snyder's pinned and died, For Snyder.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The record of bench shows for this year in Great Britain will be over 300.

H. A. Wegener left for Santa Barbara on Tuesday evening. He will exhibit his cockers at the dog show there this week. The six-in-hand driven by petite Miss Wegener will no doubt create a small sensation.

In Points of the Fox Terrier given last week, paragraph number 4, properly reads "Back—Should be short, straight and strong"—instead of "short, straight and long," as the types paradoxically expressed it.

In the list of entries for the Continental Field Trial Club's Derby Count Hunter (Ch Count Gladstone IV.—Hunter's Queen) is claimed to have been whelped in March, 1898. This is different from the date given in the Eastern Field Trial entries and allows the breeding of the young dog as mentioned, to be probable and possible as Count Gladstone was sent out here in January, 1898.

A handsome and promising litter of four fox terrier puppies by Aldon Swagger, out of Flitacion, are the all absorbing attraction at the California Jockey Club Kennels just now. The markings of the youngsters are unique; a dog and a bitch have each solid black heads with V-shaped white strips through the foreheads and one black spot on the bodies near the tail, another dog has also a solid black head with a white "gouge out" under the right eye; the second bitch has only a patch of black covering the left ear. Some Stipendiary and Vesuvian crosses in this litter give the puppies a royally bred standing that will undoubtedly show for the better in future fox terrier breeding on the Coast.

At Clayesmore School near Enfield, England, the boys are allowed to keep dogs as pets during term time, and there is a well organized and flourishing Kennel Club at the school, which is presided over by one of the masters. The keeping of dogs at the school is a novel experiment, and has proved very successful and a perfectly practicable feature of interest to the boys. Recently the head master has had a set of model kennels erected and in the course of the coming month they are to be formally opened by the Countess of Warwick. This new departure is worthy of consideration and following; it has excellent features, favorable opportunities for its practical adoption are not wanting on the Pacific Coast.

Northern Notes.

The Victoria Kennel Club members are determined to make their fall show a great success, and are going to ask the citizens of Victoria to second their efforts by offering suitable prizes. Already one cup has been offered, and this too by a non-resident—Mr. J. B. Carlisle, who is there in the interest of a Toronto insurance company. The cup is to cost $100 and the conditions are:—To be donated to the owner or kennel making the largest number of prizes at the show; to be won three times before becoming the property of the winner; the winner each year to furnish a bond to the Victoria Kennel Club for its production for competition every year until finally won.

The club decided at a meeting held July 3rd to give a bench show about the end of September or beginning of October, the actual date to be arranged in conjunction with the Vancouver and Westminster Kennel Clubs so that a circuit of shows may be brought about. Canadian Kennel Club rules will prevail. It is anticipated that many entries from Washington and California will be received as there is a mutual recognition of wins between the C. K. C. and P. K. L. A strong committee was appointed to begin the initial work for the intended bench show.

Scotch terriers are coming to the front up north. Mrs. Bradley-Dyus of Sidney, B. C., is now "across the water" and intends bringing back with her a pair of high class Scotch terriers and also an Irish terrier bitch in whelp.

Doggy circles across the northern border are taking active interest in the preparation for fall bench shows.

Dr. Milne, the well known bench show enthusiast and fancier of Victoria, B. C., has had the misfortune to lose three out of the five cocker spaniels he recently imported from the East. One was a high class son of the noted Promise and another a daughter of the prize winner Red Mack.

An all white smooth fox terrier bitch puppy whelped January 4, 1899, by Aldon Swagger out of Aldon Radiance, promises to outclass her famous dem. Rev. Flinton is so well pleased with her that he contemplates putting her in the Toronto competition during the September bench show.

Continental Field Trial Club's Derby Entries.

The following is the list of entries for the fifth annual Derby of the Continental Field Trial Club, which will be run at Newton, N. C., in December. The entry is nearly double that received by the club last year, a total of fifty-nine nominations, eighteen pointers and forty-one setters, all whelped in 1898.

Champions Venio and Dominic.

Within three months of each other have passed away, in Champions Venio and Dominic, two old veterans of the fox terrier prize ring, whose places as stud dogs it will not be easy to fill, writes John Brown in a communication to The Asien. Both dogs died from the results of a severe chill during the current year; Venio in January last, and his old rival in the succeeding April. A few remarks on the two champions may prove of interest to fox terrier men.

Dominie, bred by Mr. Twyford, out of his bitch Vene, by Pitcher, was whelped July 31, 1887, and was, therefore, at the time of his death approaching twelve years of age. But although his breeder knew that he possessed in him a good terrier, he had not sufficient confidence to stick to him, and at the Sheffield Show of 1888, where he won a first prize heating Champion Result, he was claimed at his catalogue price of £100 by Mr. Francis Redmond, in whose possession he remained ever since. Among other minor successes, Dominic was first at the Kennel Club Shows at the Crystal Palace in 1889, 1890, 1891, first Manchester, first Aquerium, first Crufts', first Kennel Club Challenge, first Beth Challenge, first Leicester Challenge, first Romford Challenge, first Enfield Challenge, first Birmingham, at shows dating up to 1893. After 1893, or when he had attained the age of six years, Dominic was very rarely seen in the show ring, and had, like many an old dog, to succumb to more youthful rivals. Not that he did not keep his form with years; a true terrier, he never grew coarse in head or over-loaded in shoulder; but youth will always tell, especially at English shows, where the form required is so much the form of youth; moreover very valuable show dogs lead artificial lives, or if they do not lead them, work and exercise bring out the muscle which judges in England do not appear to admire, and which at any rate seems to handicap a terrier severely when competing with the more lissom grace of youth; even in 1893, Dominic, though full of terrier fire, looked an old dog; the tan on his cheeks, never very rich, had paled; his eyes had lost something of their original brightness; and his quarters were more attenuated than they should have been had he lived a wholesome, natural life. The last time I personally saw him in the showing was at the Wolverhampton Championship Exhibition of 1893, in a contest to which reference will probably be made again later on, and where, though he showed himself every inch a terrier, he was out-classed by showier rivals.

But even after his want of success in later life led to his withdrawal from prize competition as a stud dog, Dominic was extensively patronized to the very end. He stood at a five-guinea fee, and the £100 for which he was purchased must have been paid and re-paid to his owner over and over again. Among his best known progeny are: Champion Blackrock Radiance, Dominise, Donna Dominic, Dona Dominine, Damson, Desperate, Domo, Din-hox, Divider, Compton Donas, Lord Mornington, Dipthong, Donate, Kih-worth Joe, Baron, Donington, Durham and Champion Donna Fortuna. His sons Donington and Durham are favorite stud dogs of the present day. Donna Fortuna secured the championship for hitches at the London Fox Terrier Club Show of May last. Donna Dominic, though a trifle short of form for the highest competition according to English ideas, was one of the sweetest and gamest little hitches a terrier lover would ever wish to see.

Dominie, although a champion and one of the favorite sires of the day, was not, perhaps, a dog that any one, except a keen terrier man, would recognize at his full value. His size was perfect at a time when there was a lamentable tendency for fox terriers to grow larger and larger. He was said to be, and looked, a 16 lb. dog, shown light as is the custom in England with show terriers. He would probably have been an eighteen-pounder with muscle more pronounced, the result of regular exercise; but that would have been no objection either, a dog is not necessarily larger because he weighs a little heavier. His front was narrow, and he stood true and straight on the best of feet, with excellent round bone in his forelegs. Without any extra length of head, his head was good, he was first-rate in expression and strength of jaw. He was marked with black and tan on head nearly evenly, but the tan was somewhat mealy, and the markings did not come far enough down the face for strict beauty. His ears were small, and carried rather high. On the bench they often assumed all sorts of attitudes, but in the ring, by some management, they seemed to fall correctly. It is possible he had to bear weights in the intervals between shows. His coat was hard and fairly dense. He was short and straight in hack, but his loins were a trifle weak, and his quarters poor. He had a thick, sensege-like tail, carried limp and rather low. A sterling good terrier, his variable ear carriage, want of striking head qualities, and indifferent form below the waist, might have led a novice to think him nothing out of the common. Still, he was no ordinary fox terrier. The late Captain Keene, himself an exhibitor, and a first-rate judge, considered that there was no more terrier-like terrier of the day, and he said he would prefer old Dominic as a sire to any stud dog of that time. Later on, when he purchased Douglas Dyer, not a tip top show specimen by any means, he did so because he possessed in great measure the same kind of qualities. In character, Dominic left nothing to be desired; he was a real sportsman when he had the chance, a terrier and a game one down to his toes. Mr. Cowley, of Callipers, King's Langley, breeding a different stamp of working terrier, did not hesitate to go to this old veteran as a sire when he desired an out-cross for his particular strain. Dominie has died full of years, but his name will live in the stock he has begotten, and its occurrence in any pedigrees will be, whatever the pedigree, one of its highest features.

The three most successful fox terrier kennels of recent years, as far as the smooth variety is concerned, are those of Mr. Redmond, Mr. Vicary and Mr. Twine. And just as old Dominie is typical of Mr. Redmond's strain, so is Champion Venio as a representative of Newton Abbott. Venio first saw the light on September 2, 1888, and was bred by Mr. Robert Vicary of Churchhills, Newton Abbott, Devon in whose possession he remained until death took him. Venio first appeared in public as a puppy at a small local show of his own county in 1889; but neglecting this colorless feature, his first appearance may be said to have been at the Kennel Club Show at Olympia in July of that year, when, although ten months of age, he succeeded in winning for every class in which he was entered, from the Produce Stakes to the Grand Prize and Challenge Cup, and the Cup for the best dog bred by exhibitor. Since then he has won first prizes and cups at all the best shows in England, and on October 24, 1893, although five years of age but still in perfect form, he captured two first prizes and the Challenge Cup for all fox terriers at the Kennel Club Show at the Crystal Palace. A month and a half later, in November 1893, his colors were, however lowered by Champion D'Orsay in competition for the Championship at Wolverhampton. This was a sensational class inasmuch as, besides many other exhibits of high merit, it included such giants as Champions Venio, Dominie, D'Orsay and Vice-Regal, Charlton Verdict and Hulton Justice. Dr. Evelyn, who was judging, was painstaking in the extreme. He eventually weeded them down to Venio, Vice-Regal and D'Orsay. Vice-Regal, a beautiful terrier, also bred by Mr. Vicary, by Rational ex Vesuvienne (own sister to Venio), but then owned by Mr. Stephens, by whom he was purchased for £470, was the next to go. And then Mr. Evelyn hesitated long before he finally passed his award in favor of Mr. Redmond's dog. The verdict was not perhaps generally popular. Of his type, Venio was very nearly perfect. D'Orsay was also typical, but of his type was very far from perfection. With some very meritorious points, he had some conspicuous defects. Rawdon Lea remarks of him, "He is a dog I never cared for at all, his ears are most indifferently carried, he is stiff and stilly, and his shoulders are a trifle badly put on." All of which remarks are quite true and yet he won against the crack champions of the day. Some seemed to have considered the contest a battle of types, and so it may have been to some extent, but I am inclined to think that in a close thing, the championship was won by size. D'Orsay very much the size of Champion Dominie, is correct in that respect. Venio was on the large side, and somehow always seemed to look larger than he really was. The tendency of the day was to introduce a larger fox terrier, and Mr. Evelyn apparently made over-size distinctly objectionable. I remember he sent straight out of the ring, and quite rightly, a very large but otherwise excellent terrier of the name of His Excellency, and consistent to the end he gave the Championship to the small ones. The verdict may have been wrong; it was wrong if judging by points had been adopted, there is no comparison between the two terriers; but at the same time one cannot help rejoicing that a good judge of the breed was making a bold stand against the introduction of a terrier larger than it should be.

With his defeat at Wolverhampton, Venio was, it is believed, only very rarely shown again; but as a stud dog, with a five-guinea fee, he was always considered one of the very best of sires, particularly as an out-cross for small strains and those wanting in character. Venio's pedigree is unexceptional; he was by Vesuvian ex Venilia, a couple of terriers which also produced Champion Vesuvienne in an earlier litter, and might have bred many another Champion, but that Venilia was run over by a cart and killed, an event which Devonshire men are said to have described as "little short of a national calamity." He was also much used as a sire in breeding wires. When wire-haired terriers become too profuse in coat, smooth blood is not infrequently introduced; and of all smooth blood, that of the Newton Abbott Kennels has perhaps had the most beneficial result in the direction desired. Mr. Vicary's terriers, though smooth, are not flos in jacket, they have coats strong enough to keep them warm in all weathers, and some of the success attending the cross may be due to this reason. "A Venio-bred wire" is now a common expression.

In appearance, Champion Venio was a large, strong dog. He had a long head with great power of jaw, and small ears, well carried. He was marked with black on the head, but not evenly. Mr. Vicary had other views of his exhibits than mere gaudiness of color. To the best of my recollection, both ears were black, but otherwise his head was nearly white with the exception of a black patch over the right eye. He had also a black patch on the right side. His forelegs, and front, and feet were of the very best; though, for his size, his might perhaps have had a little more bone; but Mr. Vicary never believed in too much bone for fox terriers, he aimed at quality, not at massiveness of build. His back was short, strong and level. His quarters and hocks were perfect, and his stern, admirably placed, was very coarse and carried gaily. Mr. Vicary has placed it on record that he is not a believer in too gaily carried sters as being characteristic of terriers somewhat wanting in heart; but Venio, when he confronted a rival in the ring, wore his flag perpendicular and he was game enough to please the most fastidious. In all respects, except that he might have been a size smaller, he looked and was a thorough workman. And he, too, has joined the majority, but with a name and reputation that will long be remembered and referred to by all fox terrier men.

Females as Pets.

We have frequently noticed the general desire or stipulation on the part of intending purchasers and also of others who had opportunity to become the owner of a dog, that the animal should be of the male persuasion—different reasons covering various points pro and con were given for this choice in sex; the fallacy of many of those arguments and some new ideas on this question will be seen in the following which is taken from the book, "Everything About Dogs" by Al. G. Eberhart:

"In selecting a dog for a pet, the idea seems to prevail to a great extent of always getting a male. Here is where you often make a mistake, for if you only have one dog a female is preferable in many respects. In the first place a female is more affectionate, or shows it more than a male, is cleaner about the house, more obedient, and less liable to run away. The objection to a female seems to be that she will come in season, so she will, but this only happens once in every five to seven months, and then till again in season you have no trouble. A male dog is always 'in season' and should there be a female that is in season, even a mile away, he will find it out, and, unless chained up, or the gates of your yard watched closely, your dog is gone and then you will find out what he discovered long before you did. Perhaps he will find his way home again, but the chances are much against it, and you will now have the chance to offer a reward for the return of your dog.

"Perhaps you will get him back and perhaps you won't. If, when your female comes in season, you don't care to have her around, you can send her to some kennel to board for a couple of weeks (as many do with me), and thus save yourself for a trifling cost all this annoyance. There must be females, or there would not be any dogs at all. When a female first shows signs, if you will make note of the first day, you will discover a bleeding, which will continue for from eight to ten days, a swelling of the vagina with it. This bleeding and swelling will begin to subside at from ten to twelve days, and then is when she is ready for breeding. You can't watch her too closely, for they are very cute and cunning, and will often fool you by slipping out, and then when ready the first dog they meet is the favored one. Such mistakes as this, due to carelessness, is what produces so many curs that we see on the streets of every town or city. While I love any dog, yet I love best a thoroughbred. The cur may be as smart and as true and faithful as the pure bred one, but there should be no curs, and would not be if people were more careful at such times."

Some Fallacies About Dogs Removed.

Possibly it may not have been generally noticed that with the increased value of the dog and his treatment, when ill, in a scientific manner have gone far to remove many fallacies and superstitions in regard to "man's faithful friend." The dog fancier of average intelligence now no longer believes that the shortening of his dog's tail gives increased strength, nor that the choicest puppy of the newly born litter can be told by holding the little creature up by the tail, or by finding out which pup is the best favored by its mother. With the destruction of these fallacies have also disappeared certain superstitions. Not so very many years ago people of more than average intelligence believed that the howling of a dog was prophetic of death in the family to which the dog belonged. It was also believed that dogs were more liable to madness at a certain period of the year than at any other. This was supposed to be between the end of July and the month of September, when Sirius, the Dog Star, rises and sets with the sun. These are the so-called "dog days," and we doubt not that village magistrates are still to be found in New England who will at that season this year order the muzzling of the canina breed within their jurisdiction. The control of the county or town over the dogs within its territory, however, has done much to benefit the dog in other ways. It has kept down the unnecessary mongrels and has thus tended to enforce better care by the owners of those dogs that remain.

THE FARM.

Feeding for Mutton and Wool.

An investigation of the subject of sheep feeding was taken up at the Iowa Experiment Station a year and a half ago when the depression in the sheep business had reached its lowest point. The primary object was to determine the relative value of mutton and wool compared with other farm products, and incidentally to derive information concerning the demands of the market for these products and the adaptation of some of the leading breeds to meet the market requirements. The experiment planned for this purpose consisted in using ten carefully selected representatives each of ten of the leading breeds of sheep to be used in a feeding experiment covering a period of about one hundred days, taking the lambs at weaning time, or soon afterward, and finishing them for market in prime condition. The following table shows the average weight and the selling price per hundred pounds of various breeds:

BREED.	Weight, lbs.	Price.
Southdown	125	$4.75
Shropshire	135	4.62 1/2
Oxford	135	4.50
Soft sh.	139	4.25
Lincoln	138	4.50
Licgester	167	4.50
Cotswold	161	4.50
Dorset	138	3.75
Merino	99	4.25
Shropshire-Merino crossed.	111	4.50

The wool yield of these lambs was as follows:

BREED.	Average yield of fleece, lbs.	Value of fleece per head.
10 Southdown lambs	8.86	$0.75
10 Shropshire lambs	8.81	.98
10 Oxford lambs	8.65	1.44
10 Soft sh. lambs	8.33	.75
10 Lincoln lambs	8.32	1.59
9 Leicester lambs	8.48	1.85
10 Cotswold lambs	8.34	1.77
10 Dorset lambs	8.34	1.68
10 Merino lambs	3.59	.90
10 crossed lambs	3.34	1.50
10 range lambs	3.21	5.125
10 Shropshire yearlings	318	10.5

Preparing for the Fair.

SACRAMENTO, July 14—In an interview accorded State Agricultural Director Matthews at Washington, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson stated that he would detail Major H. A. Alford, chief of the dairy division of the United States, to attend the coming State Fair in the interest of that department, and in consequence the Board of State Fair Directors will delegate to him the judging of the dairy classes exhibit. The California Dairy Association has also made arrangements to hold its annual convention at this city during the fair, and it is promised that Major Alford will address those present. President Withycombe, of the University of Oregon, has been selected as judge of the farm stock exhibit, the Regents of the University having granted him leave of absence for that purpose. In securing the attendance of Professor Withycombe as judge, the State Fair directors believe they will obviate all complaints of exhibitors as to any symptoms of partiality being shown in the award of premiums. Professor D. F. Fowler, superintendent of the Farmers' Institute of the University of California, will also be present during the fair in the interest of department work, and a model scientific creamery and a model silo will be operated. The Sacramento County Exhibit Committee has already made application for floor space, and the prospects are that they will have the finest display of both agricultural and manufacturing products of this county that has ever been presented to the inspection of the public. This display has been placed in the charge of the Sacramento County Grange, and Pomona Grange has detailed J. A. Read, Thos. Wait and Mrs. Shields to take personal charge of the exhibit. Thursday of the first week of the fair will probably be set aside as "Farmers' Day."

Go into your poultry house at night when all is still and if any of your birds are afflicted with roup you can hear them breathe hard. Remove these to separate quarters and keep them separate until cured or take the short road of applying the axe if the cases are at all extreme.

To Prevent Shelling.

A few days ago we were informed that some man having Proper wheat and being afraid of north wind blowing it out, ran a roller over it while in the stiff dough, and now runs a header over it, going the reverse way from the roller. It was an idea entirely new to us, but it seems full of practical sense. The harvesting machinery will now get all the wheat even if down in a tangled way, but all laying one way there is but little more trouble to it than standing grain. With a light roller run over it the straws would be laid shingle fashion so that no heads would be less than six or eight inches from the ground—in fact they would, we think, be more than that. Proper and other white wheats are more profitable both on account of yield and price than the standard Cluh, but the danger of shelling out is very great; in fact it is not probable that any one has gathered a full crop on that account. A very little wind will shell it some and a hard wind is ruinous. We would like to hear what our farmers think of the roller idea.—Colusa Sun.

Land and Stock Company.

Articles of incorporation of the Jesse D. Carr Land and Live Stock Company, were filed last week with the county clerk of Monterey county. The purposes of the company are to buy, sell and deal in all kinds of produce, live stock, etc., to conduct and operate water and irrigation works, buy or construct creameries, dairies, stables, stores, shops, warehouses, etc. The principal place of business is Salinas and the term for which the corporation is to exist is fifty years. The directors for the first year are Jesse D. Carr, J. Chris Franks, J. B. Iverson, Harry Winham, Mrs. Jessie D. Seale. The capital stock is a half million dollars, in 5000 shares of $100 each. The directors have subscribed to the stock as follows: Jesse D. Carr 2000 shares, J. C. Franks 50 shares, J. B. Iverson 5 shares, Harry Winham 5 shares, Mrs. Jessie D. Seale 1000 shares.

Oil on Roads.

A practical test of putting oil on roads was made in Santa Barbara last spring. Supervisor Deadrick of that county writes that he applied oil on the worst road in his district last spring, giving it three applications. There was dust on the road five inches deep and if the bed had not been treated the dust would have increased to ten or twelve inches. As it is, this particular road is now the best in the county and is practically asphalt paved. With another stretch of road Mr. Deadrick arrived at similar results. The oil was put on hot and in this increased state of fluidity soaked into the ground thoroughly. The cheapness of this method was remarkable, the expense being but $30 per mile, and the greasy dirt, contrary to expectation, does not adhere to the wagon wheels.

D. C. Hall, of El Paso county, has sold 1000 head of stock cattle to John Sitlington for $4.50 per cwt. on the hoof. This high price is due to the fact that the deal was made on a wager entered into during a heated discussion for and against Bryan. Sitlington maintained that the price of cattle is higher now than for several years past. Hall asserted that it is not, and when asked by Sitlington what has been the highest figure during twelve years, said $4.45 per cwt on the hoof. Sitlington offered to buy all Hall's cattle for $4.50 and took 1000 head, all he had. Figuring on the hypothesis that the stock weighed 1000 pounds each we can readily see that the buyer paid too much for feeder stuff.—Denver Field and Farm.

Last week five car loads of Idaho range horses were sold at St. Louis. Some that were broken to lead and some that had been worked brought from $13 to $42 per head, the bulk at $20 to $26. Quite a good proportion sold from $27 to $40. The unbroken plain horses of which there were 75 head, sold in bunches of 10 head at $12 to $21. Broodmares brought around $11.50 in bunches and 25 head of yearling colts brought around $7.

Good Beef Cattle.

It was not until within recent years, writes Prof. C. F. Curtis in the report of the bureau of animal industry, that the heavy, inordinately fat or rough and patchy bullock became unpopular to such an extent as practically to drive his class from the market and to banish the type from the breeding herds. It is well that this was done, for the modern type makes beef at decidedly more profit and economy to both producer and the butcher and furnishes the consumer a far superior article. The parts furnishing the high-priced cuts must be thickly and evenly covered with firm, yet mellow flesh of uniform good quality and alike free from hard rolls and lubbbery patches. Coarsa, harsh and gaudy animals will no longer be tolerated, much less those that are hony and hars of flesh on the hack and ribs. The men who buy our cattle and fix the market are shrewd enough to know at a glance how much and just what kind of meat a steer or a carload of steers will cut out, and if the producer overlooks any of the essential points he is compelled to hear the loss.

In addition to securing the general beef form and make up, together with good hocks, ribs and loins, there are a certain quality, character, style and finish that constitute an important factor in determining the value of beef cattle. One of the first indications of this is to be found in the skin and coat. A good feeding animal should have a soft, mellow touch, and a soft but thick and heavy coat. A harsh, unyielding skin is an indication of a sluggish circulation and low digestive powers. The character and finish exemplified by a clear, prominent, yet placid, eye, clean-cut features, fine horn, and clean, firm bone, all go to indicate good feeding quality and a capacity to take on a finish of the highest excellence and consequently to command top prices. Coarse honed, rough animals are almost invariably slow feeders and hard to finish properly. A certain amount of size is necessary, but it should be obtained without coarseness. The present demand exacts quality and finish rather than size. Besides these qualities, and above all, it is necessary to have vigor and constitution. We find evidences of these in a wide forehead, a prominent brisket, broad chest, well sprung ribs, full heart girth and general robust appearance, and without these other excellence will not have its highest significance.

Dairy Business.

It is noticeable that in every community, in which the dairy is well developed, there is a high degree of prosperity and refinement. The influence of the business is uplifting. It requires intelligence and a wide study to make the business a success, and all this is on the line of refinement. It demands gentleness of disposition. No rough brutal man can achieve success in the dairy. He must be kind, and, if not naturally so, he must cultivate the spirit of kindness. The cow must be loved, must be petted, must be fed well and fed properly, and all this leads to the broadening of the mind and the improvement of our natures. Then there must be cleanliness, not only about the premises but about the person. An Indiana dairyman has a covered harnyard, and he was asked at an institute if he was satisfied with that way of keeping manure. "Why," said he, "I do not have a covered harnyard for the purpose of keeping manure. All manure is hauled out as soon as made in order to keep the yard clean. I constructed a cover over the yard for the comfort of my cows." There is a whole volume of dairy instruction in those few words. The watchfulness to preserve cleanliness and the kindness to the cows are the corner stones of successful dairying.—Practical Dairyman.

Recent years have made a good deal of difference in range stock. The range cattle men have been the best customers the breeders of pure bred beef animals have had, and they have been willing to pay good prices for good hulls, to the very manifest improvement of stock. But while there are many good cattle that compete in the market with pretty good natives, there are many which do not come up to the requirement of buyers.

In order to determine how much water thirteen calves at the Kansas station would drink the water given them for a week was weighed and put up in a barrel with an attachment for letting it out as fast as needed. In the seven days the thirteen calves drank 368 pounds of water, or an average of eight pounds a day. The weather during this time was warm for the first three days and cooler the last four days. In addition the calves got an average of fourteen pounds of skim milk besides grain and hay. The calves drank several times a day, not much at a time but often. Several times they took only one or two swallows. Often times they would take a few mouthful of grain, go and get two or three sups of water then back to their grain again. Even after their ration of milk they would take a few swallows of water. This experiment shows that calves need water in addition to their milk ration; it also shows that they like it often and not so much at a time.

Clean the hen house thoroughly and if necessary treat it and the whole premises each month during the summer season. If you do this your fowls will go into the winter clean and you can count with certainty on a good winter's supply of eggs. This, of course, requires care and labor, but such is the price of winter eggs.

DETROIT'S BLUE RIBBON MEETING.

Full Summaries of the Events of the Grand Circuit First Week.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN presents its readers this week full and accretive summaries of the harness events pulled off at the Detroit Blue Ribbon meeting last week, this being the first meeting of the Grand Circuit, during which all the great trotters and pacers of the Eastern country will start. This week the racing has been at Cleveland, and as at Detroit, rain is interfering with the sport. The annals of the Cleveland races will be printed in full in our issue of next week and we will continue to give the results in detail all through the Grand Circuit.

The racing at Detroit was brilliant in the extreme, as the results show. As was stated last week rain interfered with the opening on Monday and the races were started on Tuesday. There was rain again on Friday and so many races went over to Saturday that racing began at 9 o'clock in the morning and lasted all day, twenty-eight heats were trotted or paced and the program finished before dark.

The defeat of the California horse Coney on the opening day was a blow for the talent as he was a big favorite, selling for $200 in the auctions with the same amount for all the others in the field.

There was nothing but Coney in the first heat. He drew an outside position and got away heady. He had the speed, and before the eighth was reached had cut in from the outside and taken the pole. All the way up the back stretch Coney led by from four to six lengths, and at the half McHenry visibly pulled the black down and allowed Fie Gilt to come up to his wheel. In the stretch Coney was away ahead, hot out of the hunch trailing him, Carmelita came with a strong burst and easily finished second, while Key lifted Shade On from the hunch behind and took third.

In the second heat McHenry tried to get so much the heat of it and score ahead of his field that he was twice called down and twice fined, $25 the first time and $50 the second, with a warning that any more jockeying would give him the limit. Coney made a good race up to the half, but just beyond that pole broke badly, and the entire field passed him before McHenry settled the black and sent him forward. It looked at one time as if Coney would be distanced, but he just got inside the flag. Shade On, who had been laid up comfortably behind Coney for the half, never was worried a minute in winning the heat, with open air between him and Carmelita.

Coney went down in the bet to $35, with the field selling at $50, and at that the field buyers were sluggish. In the third heat Coney broke heady around the lower turn, and this became a trailer, while Mand Emperor jumped out in front and soon had eight open lengths between herself and Shade On, who was just keeping ahead of the field. Price, who was behind Mand, had no reason to push her in the stretch, and he had the race won at the distance stand, but he apparently became alarmed, and gave the chestnut mere the head, which caused her to go off her feet and step up in the air, while Shade On, Carmelita and Coney rushed by.

Coney came very fast, and Carmelita won the place only by an eyelash. Then the talent rushed to cover itself, and plunged on the field at $25, while Coney sold slowly at $12. Kay, who was up behind Shade On, evidently tried to delay the start, and was finally sent away at the pole two lengths behind the leading horse, with three behind him. Coney broke into the lead at the quarter, but up the back stretch had Shade On for a traveling companion, and one blanket would have covered both. Around the turn into the stretch Kay did not force Shade On, and Coney looked to be the winner even to within 100 yards of the wire. Then Kay began to drive, and landed Shade On the winner of the heat and race by a short nose.

Little Thorne was the favorite in the 2:09 pace the same day, but was not in the money when the summary was made up. Derby Lass, by Chas. Derby, won a heat in her race and got second money, while Ellert, by Stamboul, driven by Van Bokkelen, won second money in the 2:14 trot.

Chas. Derby's son Owybee won the 2:20 trot Wednesday and took a mark of 2.13, beating a good field of horses. The M. and M. Stake was fully described in these columns last week. Miss Logan started the same day in the 2:07 pace and showed up well, though she did not win.

Thursday, The Abbott showed that he was fully up to expectations by knocking a half second from his record and winning the 2:08 trot. Monterey started in this race but was lost, though he showed his great speed in several heats.

On Friday, Anaconda walked away with his race, the 2:04 pace, easily, though he was up against a lot of great ones. The final race, the 2:10 trot, was never really finished according to the rules, but when Caracalla had won two heats' Belle J. one and Elloree one, the moon came out, but did not shine bright enough to enable the judges to distinguish horses at the half pole. They declared the race settled, giving Caracalla first place, Gayton second, Elloree third and Belle J. fourth. Dione was in this race but had to be drawn after — beats had been trotted.

Following are the week's summaries:

HARNESS RACING AT FREEPORT.

California Horses Win and Lose at the Illinois Town.

The four days' race meeting at Freeport, Illinois, at which several California horses started last week, was very successful from a racing point and was well attended. On the opening day, W. G. Dnrfee got second money in the 2:11 pace with Jennie Mac, and won the 2:40 trot with Dr. Book. Two days afterwards he won the 2:32 trot with the same horse. Mr. Werd does not seem to be having good luck with his string though Ellen Madison has reduced her record to 2:12, and has been inside the money on several occasions, hot has not won yet.

The Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society met last Saturday and passed upon the entries received for the trotting and pacing events. As will be seen by the following, which are the races declared filled, the entry list is a magnificent one and reflects great credit upon the State Fair management. The greatest racing ever seen at Sacramento will be held this year:

Empire City Trotting Park.

Nearly 700 men are working night and day on W. H. Clark's new trotting track in order to complete the splendid course in time for the Grand Circuit meeting of September 4th to 9th, says a New York dispatch. Wonders have been accomplished during the last six weeks, and although a good deal remains to be done, the engineers and officials in charge say another month will see the plant in shape for what promises to be the most notable trotting meeting ever held in New York. The grading of the track and infield, which involved the handling of something like 400,000 cubic yards of earth and stone, is now practically completed, barring the upper turn of the course.

Seth Griffin, the veteran track builder, who constructed the Readville course, where Star Pointer first heat two minutes, is supervising the work. The mammoth steel grand stand has gone up like magic during the last three weeks. Twenty feet or so from the west end of the grand stand is the clubhouse, a spacious structure of pure colonial architecture, with wide piazzas, stately columns, and an all-around hospitable look about it.

Besides these two structures facing the homestretch of the track Mr. Clark is building a large and handsome new clubhouse for the accommodation of the public. It is expected that the informal opening of the track and grounds will take place on August 18th, the date of the New York State firemen's tournament at Yonkers. Mr. Clark has tendered the use of the track for the races and other contests of the firemen on that day. On Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 4, the Grand Circuit trotting will probably be the $5,000 Manhattan purse for trotting stallions.

Secretary S. S. Toman has issued the list of events for the six days' meeting, showing that twenty-four races, worth $55,000, are to be decided during the week. Eight of these races are early closing events, in which entries were due last April. The others will close on Monday, August 31st, except the four-day races, which are to be open until the day before the contests take place. The races closed August 21st were the free-for-all, 2:10, 2:14, 2:18 and 2:22 classes, trotting, and the 2:04, 2:07, 2:13 and 2:18 classes, pacing.

The $5,000 purse reserved for races to be announced later will probably be hung up for a contest among the king-pin pacers, Star Pointer, John R. Gentry, Jos Patchen and Searchlight, if they can get together. John R. Gentry and Searchlight are known to be willing, but the owners of Star Pointer and Jos Patchen have not yet signified their readiness to enter such a race.

The race for the Speedway cup will be open to all trotters owned in Greater New York that have not started in public in 1899. Entrance is free, and the contest is to be at mile heats, best two in three, to road wagon, non-professionals to drive. The winner will receive a silver cup valued at $500. The conditions of the contest will thus admit horses that have never been driven on the speedway or used as road horses anywhere else.

HAMLIN'S RAPID POLE TEAM.

The Abbott and Battleton to Try for World's Record.

It is understood that the veteran horseman, C. J. Hamlin, is going to have his trainer, E. F. Geers, attempt this fall, with the fast trotters, The Abbott and Battleton, to lower the world's record to wagon. The wagon record is now 2:12, made in 1892 by Bella Hamlin and Honest George, a team owned by Mr. Hamlin.

It is only since 1835 that races to wagon by a team (two horses) have been taken account of by the Year Book. Since that date the record has been lowered from 2:18 1/2 to 2:15 1/2. In 1835, Maxie Cobb, a hay horse that held the stallion record, 2:13 1/2, together with Neta Medium, trotted in a wagon race in 2:18 1/2. Both of these fast horses were owned by Isador Cohnfeld of New York and were sired by Happy Medium, a son of Hambletonian. The fact that this race gave to Maxie Cobb, double championship and that their owner was prominent in the 'sealskin' brigade of metropolitan drivers gave much eclat to the performance.

Mr. Cohnfeld was one of the original members of the old Driving Club of New York and a devoted roadman. Although a very heavy man, he was an expert amateur driver and had a genuine affection for horses. In 1837, the California bred team, Arab, by Arthurton, and Conde, by Ahhottford, trotted in 2:18 1/2. In 1832, the pacers took a whirl and sent the figures down to 2:16 1/2. They were Bella Button and Thomas Ryder, son and daughter of Alexander Button.

In 1894, Sally Simmons and Roselaaf, the former by Simmons, the son of George Wilkes that lately died, the latter by Goldleaf, reduced the record to 2:15 1/2, and that is the record to-day.

Of the team records against time by both trotters and pacers there have been many. In 1833, Richhall, the Missouri-bred pacer, by King Pharoah, and Westmsrk, the Kentucky mare, and daughter of Almont, set the mark at 2:19. From time to time, other pacing teams chipped away at the figures, until in 1896 the veteran driver, Orrin Hickok, drove Rita and Josie B. at Lexington, Ky., in 2:09 1/2.

The following year Bourne came along with Tewksbury's famous sidewheelers, Robert J. and John R. Gentry, and sent the wagon record for pacers down to 2:08, and it will require great assurance on the part of any person who thinks he can hitch any other team of pacers together that will at all disturb or endanger these figures.

In 1833, when the pacers hauled the wagon in 2:19, Rockefeller's team of trotters, Cleora and Independence, trotted in 2:16 1/2. The next year Nathan Straus, with the old reliables, Edward and Dick Swiveller, made a cot to 2:16 1/2. The high merit of these performances may best be determined from the fact that seven years afterwards C. J. Hamlin had his team, Globa and Justina, sent for the record, and they stopped the watch at 2:16 1/2. It should have been mentioned that the race team champions, Maxie Cobb and Neta Medium, took a shy at time in 1834 and made the fast time of 2:15 1/2.

Then bika wheels were introduced to the turf and the mare Anbine, bred in Maine, hitched with Zembia, by King Almont, went in 2:13 1/2. Although this was six years ago, Zembia was a starter in one of the races at Readville last week and at the late Boston horse show was represented by her one year old prize winning daughter. In 1890 Hamlin's team, Belle Hamlin and Justina, established the mark of 2:13 and in 1892 Hamlin's team, Bella Hamlin and Honest George, placed the figures where they now stand at 2:12 1/2, which is 4 1/2 seconds slower than the pacers.

One of the most remarkable performances ever made by a harness horse was nearly 50 years ago, or to be exact, in 1854, when the famous chestnut mare Pocahontas won a wagon race in 2:17. Thirty-seven years afterward, the pacer Johnnie established the figures at 2:14 1/2, and this is now the pacer's record to wagon in a race.

The pacing record to wagon against time is to the credit of Joe Patchan, made at Combustion Park's half-mile track in 1897, and is 2:04 1/2.

The trotting race record to wagon is held by The Abbott made in 1898, and is 2:12 1/2.

It is generally conceded that The Abbott and Battleton are the two fastest horses that Mr. Hamlin has ever had, possessing the temperament necessary to drive perfectly as a pole team. With every added improvement known in the construction of a wagon, it will not surprise, hot on the whole, all who are interested in turf matters to see the Hamlin horses again lower the wagon record against time and beat 2:12 1/2.

Mr. Hamlin is having a wagon made specially for The Abbott in his attempt to lower his record of 2:12 1/2. The Abbott's record to sulky is 2:07 1/2. That of Graca Hastings is 2:08, and she holds the wagon record against time, which is 2:09 1/2.

The reason is not clearly apparent why Grace Hastings should trot to wagon within 1 1/2 seconds as fast as she ever has to sulky, and The Abbott have a difference of 4 1/2 seconds. That The Abbott will this season lower his present wagon record is rather expected, but Mr. Hamlin's reported statement of late that, if a wagon is properly built, a horse can trot as fast to it as to a sulky will be received doubtfully by most horsemen. The heavier the weight can be to a horse the easier he can draw that weight. How a wagon can be so constructed as to have the weight of the driver as near to the horse as it is in a sulky is a conundrum wagon architects have not yet solved.—A. A. Austin.

EVERY CITIZEN OF CALIFORNIA should take a special pride in the State Fair. It has been in the past one of the greatest educators of the people in the line of improvement of the State's products. The exhibits made annually at Sacramento by those engaged in agriculture, horticulture, viticulture, stock breeding, manufacture, mining and the fine arts have been of great value to this commonwealth. There are millions of dollars invested in California to-day that would have in all probability gone to other states and found other channels, but for the interest aroused by exhibits at the pavilion or the show ring, or contests on the speed track, at the great annual fair at our State capital. Those whose memory goes back to the early days of the State Agricultural Society, can easily trace the establishment of many of our largest stock farms, manufactories, orchards and vineyards to ideas and desires formed from viewing exhibits at the earlier State Fairs held at Sacramento. From an idea of the great need of improved machinery, never entertained until the crude machines of the early 60's were studied at Sacramento, have grown factories that employ thousands of men and have added millions to the wealth of our State. From witnessing the speed contests at the historical old race course, businessmen and statesmen have become imbued with a love for the horse, and such farms as Palo Alto, Oakwood Park, Rancho del Paso and others have resulted, and it would not be stretching the point too far to say that the close contact in which an honored chief executive was brought with the masses through his association with them at the California State Fair, made clear to his mind the great need of education, and led to the founding of a great university endowed with millions. The annual exposition of California's products are but hints of the State's possibilities, but they lead to the opening of new channels of trade, to the development of new mines, the cultivation of virgin ground and the establishment of new lines of business. It is the duty of every citizen who has the good of the State at heart, who wishes to see here on the Pacific Coast the greatest and grandest State of the Union, in population and wealth as well as in natural resources, to assist as far as is within his power in making the State Fair of 1899 a better one than any of its predecessors. Let us show to the world that we are advancing in every legitimate line of business and trade. Let it be known that we realize the fact that our country is on the eve of a great era of progress and prosperity, and that California proposes to keep her place in the front rank of the onward march.

CHIEF LEES wants the San Francisco Police Department supplied with automobiles. He will never be able to catch a horse thief while riding in one of those things.

AT SANTA ROSA the stalls are rapidly filling with horses, and by the date of the opening of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association meeting, August 14th, there will not be a vacant stall at the track. At present about sixty stalls are unoccupied, and fifteen or twenty horses are due to arrive there to-day from the southern part of the State. The horsemen who are training at the track all report it in good condition, while the weather has been perfect. There is no longer any doubt but the coming meeting, which opens the California Grand Circuit, will be one of the greatest ever held in the State. There has never been a time when so many good green horses were in training for the fast events, and the fact that such a large proportion have been successfully kept under cover will add much interest to the races in which they start. There has never been a meeting given by the Breeders but one or more records have been broken, the one at Santa Rosa last year having three to its credit. The fastest mile ever made by a three-year-old gelding was established when Who Is It won a heat in 2:12; Much Better secured the record of 2:07 1/2, the fastest mile ever made by a four-year-old pacer mere, and Rex Alto paced to a mark of 2:07 3/4, the fastest mile made by a gelding starting that year in the green classes. In the four nomination purses closed by the Breeders Association and which will be decided at this meeting, viz: The 2:19 and 2:16 trotting and the 2:15 and 2:12 pacing events, horses must be named next Tuesday, August 1st. Those who have entries in any of these races should not fail to name their horses on the date mentioned and if there are any who desire nominations they should send applications in immediately to Secretary Kelley if they have not already done so, or made arrangements to secure them elsewhere. The Santa Rosa meeting will be the only one on the Grand Circuit this year that will be given exclusively for harness horses, and the track will be as safe and as fast as it is possible to make it. No one can afford to stay away from Santa Rosa during the six days beginning August 14th.

LOS ANGELES' BIG MEETING, which is to be held in October, will close the California Circuit. The grand list of purses offered for the harness horses is the largest offered by any association in California. $2000 is the amount offered for the free-for-all trotters, and the free-for-all pacers will race for the same sized purse. In the other events $1000 is the prize. Four purses of $1000 each closed June 1st, with a splendid lot of entries. The eight that close next Tuesday, August 1st, will attract a still larger list. The Los Angeles track is not only one of the fastest and safest in California, but the accommodations for horsemen are so complete, the climate so near perfection and the treatment accorded horsemen so generous, that the trip across the Tehachapi mountains, though a long one, is annually taken by nearly every horse owner in this part of the State. The Directors of Agricultural District No. 6 have been particularly active this year and are making a bid to hold the best meeting ever given in Los Angeles. This is a hard task, as there has never yet been anything but a first class meeting held there, and the attendance has on some occasions been as high as 15,000. They are going to try and beat it this year, however, and the track will be put in such perfect shape that owners who desire fast records for their horses to end the season with can get them if their animals are in shape. The harness races will all be three in five, except in those for three-year-olds. Don't delay, but fill out the entry blanks as fully and as soon as possible and mail them to Lewis Thorne, Secretary, 220 Spring Street, Los Angeles, on or before Tuesday next.

THE GARDEN CITY, as San Jose is rightly called, will be the scene of one of the old time fairs and race meetings this year. The dates are September 25th to 30th, and entries to the big purses hung up for the harness horses will close Tuesday next, August 1st. Keep this date in mind and see that you don't lose a race by failing to have an entry in it. The San Jose meeting will follow Stockton, and is right in line on the Grand Circuit with no conflicting date. The magnificent track and grounds of the Santa Clara Agricultural Association are to be put in perfect condition for this fair and as the program of races announced is an excellent one there should be a very large list of entries made next Tuesday. Over $10,000 is the sum the harness horses will compete for. All who go to the State Fair and Stockton will certainly desire to visit San Jose as Salinas, Hollister, Fresno and Los Angeles will follow it in the order named, thus making San Jose the centre of the circuit. Look over the list in to-day's BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and enter liberally in the different events.

THE STOCKTON FAIR, which follows immediately after the State Fair, will be one of the important meetings of the circuit. The Stockton Driving Club, an organization composed of the most energetic and progressive business men of that city, has charge of all the arrangements for the fair and race meeting, and no organization in the State is making a stronger effort to hold a first class meeting. Entries to some of the harness events to be decided at Stockton close Tuesday next, August 1st. There are seven of these and $1000 is the amount in each. These purses are only preliminary, as a number of others will be announced later on, but for less money. These are to be the star events of the meeting and should attract a very large entry list as all will want to start in the races where the most money is to be won. There is one of the best tracks in California at Stockton and it will be in shape for very fast work during the week of the meeting. Stockton is one of the most prosperous cities in California at the present time, and the gentlemen who compose the Driving Club believe there will be a record breaking attendance at the track during the meeting this year. See that every horse you have is entered at Stockton.

HOOF BEATS.

MAKE your nominations for the Breeders meeting by Tuesday next.

THE Hollister fair will be held during the second week in October, just after the Salinas meeting.

SEARCHLIGHT worked out a mile in 2:03 1/2 at Detroit on Thursday of last week with a hundred watches held on him.

THE only two living daughters of Green Mountain Maid are now in F. P. Olcott's Round Top Stud, Bernersville N. J.

SEYMOUR WILKES 2:08 1/2 is being used as a road horse by J. B. Dorr, of Napa. He is still owned by S. H. Seymour, of this city.

CONEY 2:09 is improving. He only won one heat at Detroit. He got two at Cleveland. If he keeps on he ought to win the next time he starts.

IF you want a nomination for any of the events in the Breeders meeting, send in your application immediately. It will be too late after Tuesday next.

HAL B. 2:03 1/2 is the fastest heat winner of the year. He is pacing bred clear through, being by Hal Dillard 2:04 1/2, dam Ellen M. (dam of Fanny Dillard 2:11 1/2); second dam by Blue Bull.

T. E. KEATING showed the Chicago Horse Review representative papers and contact to prove that he received $15,000 for Searchlight, and at the same time retained his racing engagements at Detroit.

GOVERNOR GAGE has appointed the following Directors of Agricultural District No. 43 (Lassen county): C. E. Emerson, William Brockman, J. H. Holl, Charles Clark, W. G. Bromly, James Snell, F. M. Rolland and W. E. Dozier.

E. LINNELL, the well known horseman, formerly of Inglewood track, has leased the Seibenthaler restaurant at 2000 H. street, Sacramento, near Agricultural Park, fitted it up anew and changed the name to Linnell's Dining Room. Horsemen will find excellent fare there and at reasonable rates.

LOLITA, the black pacing mare by Sidney that got a mark of 2:17 at Oakland last year and went East in the Keating string, started in the 2:15 pace at Detroit, but was outside the money. Her best showing was in the last heat, when she finished fifth in a field of eleven. The heat was in 2:10 1/2.

A GOOD pair of race glasses is needed to enjoy the races on the Grand Circuit. There is nothing that equals the Stereo Binoculars sold by Henry Kahn & Co. at 642 Market street. They are the very latest invention in field glasses—are so adjusted that they are focused for each eye separately, and take in a larger field than any other glass, giving that peculiar stereo effect such as one gets in a stereoscope. For race purposes they are the very acme of field glasses.

TOOGLES 2:09 1/2, an excellent likeness of whom appears on our front page, is now back in C. E. Clark's hands at Fresno. Mr. Clark has driven the horse in all his races and gave him his mark last year. Mr. Graham Babcock, of Coronado, who owns the fast gelding, had him turned out this spring, but finally concluded to race him again. He recently asked Mr. Clark to take him but the latter thought he could not do the horse justice with such a short preparation, but finally consented, and will try to have him ready to go fast miles during the last of the season.

The Cleveland Meeting.

Sacramento Track Items.

Our correspondent "Norine," writing from Sacramento says workmen are very busy, working early and late, getting the track and buildings ready for the coming State Fair and that everything will be in first class order for the opening day, September 4th.

Vet Tryon has taken his string of trotters and pacers to Woodland. Charles Burgess has Stanford R. 2:23 and Mollie Nurse 2:14½, W. Trefry has Princess, by Tom Benton; J. Taylor has a horse by Director, O. J. Holmes has Al Marvin and Diawood and both can step some.

Our Boy 2:12½, has arrived here from Honolulu in charge of Mr. McMannons and looks fine.

Abdine, of the Sunnyside Stables, paced a mile in 2:18, last half in 1:03½ the other day, stopping some, being short of work.

Among those who have thoroughbreds in training here are Galen Brown, Frank Depolster, Daggie Smith, Charley Shields, G. Houston and several others.

There is always a congregation of horsemen at Kapp & treats, 1200 Market street, and the winners on the circuit at 899 are already being picked out.

New stalls may have to be built at Santa Rosa to accommodate the horses that will be sent to the Breeders meeting.

MONTEREY COUNTY HORSES.

Many Good Trotters and Pacers at the Salinas Track.

[Salinas Index, July 23.]

Monterey county will be well represented on the circuit this fall. Several trotters and pacers with low marks already stepped to their credit will be in the swim to try for better figures, and a few "green" ones with an atmosphere of mystery surrounding them will be taken along for the novelty of the thing.

At the Salinas race track about twenty head are being trained, tryouts being given every morning and the exhibition is a good one. It might not be the best policy just now to report the appearance of watch dials after some of the quarters, halves and miles in third and fourth heats have been worked, but suffice it to say that right here on the Salinas track are horses good enough to appear in any company.

J. B. Iverson heads the list with his stable of campaigners, six in number. He has the very capable driver and trainer S. E. Kent in charge, who gave Prince Gift and Dictatress their low records last year. He has as assistants Bert Hutchinson and Tommy Shaw, good, reliable boys, and the horses are hatched, handaged and jogged in an intelligent manner and the best results attained.

Mr. Iverson's big rangy brown trotting gelding Prince Gift 2:12, has the lowest mark and is entitled to first mention. He is by Good Gift, dam Belle, by Kentucky Prince; second dam Belle of Richmond, by Hambletonian 10. Prince will start in the free for all at Oakland, purse $1500.

Domiciled in the adjacent box is the game and fast little chestnut mare Dictatress, who paced last season so fast and came home with a record of 2:18½. She is by Dictatus, out of Salinas Belle. Dictatress has ten engagements.

Next is a four-year-old bay pacing filly euphonicly called Dictina. Sire Dictatus, dam Mambrita, second dam Salinas Belle. This mare is named at Santa Rosa and Oakland.

Dagmar, two-year-old brown filly by McKinney, dam Steinway Maid, by Steinway Jr., second dam by Bleckbird, is a beauty, and is expected to trot in three races.

Prince Neer, brown stallion by Engineer, is out of Kentucky Belle, and is a half brother to Prince Gift. He is a horse of promise, and will start five times.

Mr. Iverson has leased for this season Mrs. W. J. Hill's fine brown pacing stallion Guidon, 0346, by Almont Patcher, who paced a public trial mile in 2:08½, and was one of the gamest and fleetest horses of his day, defeating all the crack pacers with whom he contested. The dam of Guidon is Minnie L., by Anteros, one of Electioneer's best sons, second dam M'lies, by Nephew. Guidon has only been worked for speed a few weeks, but has developed qualities as a race horse which are all that can be desired. He is named in eight purses.

Mr. Iverson's stable will begin its work at the Breeders' meeting in Santa Rosa, and he feels confident that he has a good chance for some of the spoils.

Cavel Rodriguez, the well known driver and trainer, has a stable of three good ones, and has them in excellent shape for the circuit.

P. Jessen, of Watsonville, has put under Mr. Rodriguez' management the large and symmetrical chestnut gelding Juan Chico, no record but lots of speed, by Bay Rum, dam Flora, by Whipple's Hambletonian. He is entered throughout the circuit in the 2:20 and 2:40 classes.

Another horse belonging to Mr. Jessen is the brown pacing stallion Alta (green), entered in all the 2:25 and 2:30 races. This horse is an inbred, being by Almont Patcher, out of Mattie by Altimont. Mr. Rodriguez likes him very much.

The third in this stable is J. J. Connor's fast bay gelding Shelby, who got a record last year of 2:20. His sire is Wilkes Moor. Shelby is named in all trots in the 16 and 19 classes, and from the way he is working will likely make a good showing in his battles for the coin.

James Dwin is still the obliging lessee of the race track and keeps things in good shape out there, making it a popular place for horsemen to train their stables. Mr. Dwin will not go on the circuit this year, but has his hands full at home. Some of the best bred youngsters in the country have been put in his hands for development, as they are entered in coming events. Among them are the following:

J. D. Carr's Boodle Jr., trotter, by Boodle 2:12½, dam Nina B, by Electioneer.

Carr's Baby Wilkes, bay filly, two-year-old trotter, by Pacheco Wilkes, dam Nina B.

Bay pacing filly owned by Cheri Hebert. She is sired by Hambletonian Wilkes (who has fourteen in the list, and is the sire of Ptobe Wilkes 2:08) dam Dolly, by Mozart.

Hebert's Bruno, who has trotted to a record of 2:16½, is getting ready for the Salinas meeting in October if he can find anything to go against him.

Hebert's Dixy Dav, four-year-old pacing filly, by Dictatus, dam Dolly, is being broken for next year's work.

Mr. Carr is also having Mr. Dwin give some good hard work to his handsome bay horse Sylvio, by Electriciv.

Judge Vanderhurst has gone back to his old love, and is having broken and gaited two fine colts, one a three-year-old bay filly called Diabito, by Diablo, dam Salinas Maid; second dam Mamie, by Carr's Mambrino. She is a beautiful little pacer. The other is a yearling trotter they call Pan Yan, sire Dictatus, dam Lilly V.; second dam Mamie. This colt is handsome, well gaited and is entered in all the events for next year.

Worthy Persons is driving two good animals, investigating their ability for speed, and from appearances he's likely to find considerable of the article. One is a bay trotting gelding by Fred Arnold, dam Gypsy, by Irwin Davis, and a black mare Alberte, by Altoona, out of Gypsy. Mr. Parsons is an expert driver, and is interesting company for the regular school.

It is quite possible that a number of the foregoing will start at home, if they get in proper shape in time.

The stables of J. B. Iverson and Cavel Rodriguez will leave here by rail about next Wednesday, going direct to Santa Rosa, and will not be through racing until after the Los Angeles meeting in October. They will return for the Salinas meeting early in October, but go again to Fresno and Los Angeles before being finally put into winter quarters.

The Horse That Will Race.

From every point of the training compass come astonishing reports of trials so fast, by all sorts of colts and horses, that a conservative person is constrained to think that some of the watches are out of joint, or the timers stand at wrong angles from the poles. Still a great many surprising things are occurring at the end of this century, through the ingenuity of man and the advances made by science, which has extended to the trainer's art. But, after all, fast quarters, halves and even miles by untried animals, are misleading from a racing standpoint. The race is the thing to weigh the merits of the trotter or pacer. Dan Mace's exclamation, "Is that all he can do?" is as true now as when he uttered it, under the following circumstance: In the fall of 1871, the chestnut gelding Joe won a 3:00 race in 2:54½, which was the fastest record in the class up to the time, and the horse was sold for $25 000. Shortly afterwards, a stranger came to Mace's stable and referring to Joe's record, said: "I can produce a trotter to beat that." "Is that all he can do?" was Dan's ready reply. "Isn't it enough?" said the stranger. "No, sir, not to go for the money and get it," quoth Dan. "What more do you want than the speed," persisted Mr. Stranger. By this time Dan was thoroughly wound up, and as he detested speedy raw horses which often proved "suckers," and held that a 2:30 horse which has shown he could race was better than an untried 2:25 "wonder," said, "Don't talk about beating Joe or his time until your horse gets educated. He must get used to the hand and the track racket. He must be able to trot behind or ahead. And above all he must show that he is a figer and that one or two sharp heats won't make him sick of trying to win more. What I want is a horse of sense to behave at the score and keep stepping along in the bunch. What I like best of all is a game one to catch and choke the sprinters down the homestretch. When you have that kind of a trotter bring him to me. I can make money for you racing him and I'll find you a buyer to pay what he's worth."—

While driving the bay mare Kappa 2:18½, in the free-for-all trot at Livingston, Mont., July 4th, and just as he was rounding the upper turn into the stretch, George Davidson was seen to fall back in the sulky, then fall out. His hands were through the holders and he was dragged perhaps ten yards. When help reached him he was dead, and as he was not bruised to any extent it is believed he died of heart disease.

THE Wells-Fargo Express Company has had constructed at Topeka, Kan., 20 passenger and parlor cars for horses furnished with every convenience, and which it proposes running on passenger trains for the accommodation of owners having valuable horses to ship. We would suggest to the company that a similar car would be well patronized in this State.

Always Expects to Use It.

GREENWOOD, FLA., Dec. 17, '97.

The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, O.—Yours of receipt date to hand and in reply will say I still use "Gom-hault's Canstic Balsam." I think Canstic Balsam the finest liniment on earth and never do I expect to be without it. The lame cases I have cured with it are too numerous to mention. H. A. HAYE.

Sulky Notes.

She was bred in Fresno county
Where the raisin grapes are blue,
And the horsemen who have seen her
Say they think that she will do.
She has blood from Old Kentucky;
If they beat her they are lucky.
She's a trotter in this mare called Sne.

ENTRIES close next Tuesday

THE list of 2:10 pacers and 2:15 trotters for 1899 will be a long one.

ROAD horses handled and for sale. Orders taken. Address D. R. Misner, 1309 Fulton street, city.

A BABY show is to be one of the features of the State Fair. Why not make it a Futurity, and have it decided annually?

A CORPS of civil engineers have measured the Santa Rosa track and found it at the inside rail four inches over a mile in length.

THE Directors of Agricultural District No. 37 have decided to hold a fair at Santa Maria this fall. The date has not yet been set.

CLOUD POINTER, the brother to Star Pointer, that has been in Ed. Geers' stable since early in the spring, has been sent to his owner at Chicora, Pa.

THE mare Central Girl 2:22½, by Nutwood Wilkes, is considered about the best trotter at the Alameda track. She worked a mile handily in 2:17 the other day.

A. H. ROOKER will ship to Honolulu to-day by sailing vessel a number of horses and mules which he has selected in Monterey county for the Hawaiian market.

CHAS. DEBBY is going to the front very fast as a sire. He has three in the 2:10 list, and last week added two more to his 2:15 list—Omyhee 2:13 and Darby Less 2:14.

THE Pleasanton Stock Farm track is about deserted, nearly all the horses that have been in training there and that will be raced this year, having been sent to Santa Rosa.

GUY VERNON, the gray son of Guy Wilkes, is being worked at Alameda by E. Lapham, and is showing considerable speed. He is a regular little bulldog at the trot.

MISS LOGAN 2:07½ ought to be able to reduce her record before the season is over. At Detroit, Sherman Clay only beat her a head in 2:07½. She will be better later on.

THE fast trotter Me Too 2:19½, by Ganzoo, owned by A. H. Mitter, of Buffalo, died recently. He had shown a great deal of speed and was to have joined Tom Keating's stable.

COL. CRAWFORD, of Willows, has sent his pacer Don 2:15, by Falrose, to Santa Rosa in charge of Joe Reidy, who will drive him in his races this year through the California Circuit.

C. E. CLARK will not have Our Jack 2:13½ in his string this year. He has been working him at the Fresno track, but sent him back to his owner in Sacramento a few days ago.

THE pacing mare Ruby M. 2:12½, by Almont Patchen, has been added to the string of the Richelieu Stables and Trainer Cuccello will try to have her ready for the races by the latter part of the season.

C. H. COREY was up from San Jose this week and is very enthusiastic over the prospects of a first class meeting at San Jose in September. The fruit and cereal crops of San Mateo and Santa Clara counties were never better than this year and the farmers and fruit growers are in a prosperous condition. The fair exhibits will be good at San Jose and the racing card one of the best in the State this year.

SHADE ON, the horse that beat Coney in the Chamber of Commerce Stake, is a thoroughbred on his dam's side. He is a five-year-old, by Shadeland Onward, and his dam is Belle Kay, by Wai Dance.

BOTH sides are being heard on the 2 in 3 question in the Eastern papers, and so far the pro's seem to be in the majority. Big crowds have been in attendance at all the tracks where it has been tried.

THE sale of De Bernardi Basler to Chas. Newman, of this city, was not consummated. Mr. Newman declining to become a conditional owner, and the son of Robert Basler will not be in the Richelieu Stables.

J. L. SMITH, 1321 Georgia St., Vallejo, has a nomination in the 2:19 class trotting purse, $1000, for the Breeders meeting and also a nomination in the 2:30 class trotting purse, at Fresno, that he wishes to sell.

IT is the intention of the War Department to send all cavalry horses to the Philippines via Honolulu and Nagasaki, so that they may be taken off the ships at both these places and given rest during the long voyage.

WM. HOGABOOM went down to Pleasanton one day last week and superintended the shipment of a car load of broodmares back to Marysville. They were the property of various owners and had been bred to Diablo 2:09½.

THE first Axtell to enter the list for 1899 is the brown horse Axineer out of Myra, by Electioneer. He started in the 2:20 mixed class at Jefferson, Iowa, recently, and won in straight heats in 2:22½, 2:22 and 2:24½. He is a pacer and also wears the hoppers.

RACING by electric light was tried at Combination Park, Boston on Monday night. Scores of arc-lights made every point of the track as clear as midday, and while the program was made up of half-mile heat races for $50 purses, 2,000 persons were in attendance.

THE truth in a nutshell about the two-in-three system according to a constant race-goer is that when the horses are well classed the race is apt to be long enough, and when one horse outclasses the rest the sooner the race is over with the better.—Trotter and Pacer.

THE Gilroy track, where Budd Doble will prepare for the Fasig sale the horses he recently purchased from A. E. Spreckels, is very easily kept in order. With but little water it can be kept in condition to work horses over, and heavy rains never make it muddy.

DR. BOUCHER, while at Peoria saw the stallion Colbert by Onward in the 2:09 pace, and though he did not win a heat, he was a close second the fifth heat in 2:08½. He thereupon decided that he would breed his mare Miss Logu 2:07½ to him and on the 13th of July they were mated.

THE famous broodmare Lady Pepper, by Onward, died at Harrodsburg, Ky., last week. At 14 years of age she was the dam of four in the list, including Chord 2:08½, and Clorine 2:13½. At one time $10,000 was refused for her, and only last winter an offer of $4000 was rejected.

HAL B. lowered his record to 2:05½ at Detroit and that is the track race record. It was in the Hotel Normandie Stake of $3000 that this mark was made. Hal B. was favorite, several pools being sold as follows: Hal B. $500, Edith W. $450, William Mc $120, The Ace $50 and the field $35.

T. J. CROWLEY's handsome mare Lottie, by Cupid, is very fast, but acts as though she would be an uncertain one to put a bet on. She has a habit of breaking that she will have to get over before she will be a money winner, as they are of the stand still variety. Her speed seems to be unlimited.

THE Steinway horse Captain Hackett, that has been campaigned four years without winning a heat, is acting as though he might be able to break the hoodoo this year. Ed Lapham has him in charge. He worked a nice mile in 2:20 last Wednesday at the Alameda track, last quarter in 33 seconds.

THE horses of J. B. Iverson in charge of "Vet" Kent and Peter E. Jessen's and J. J. Conner's in charge of Cavel Rodriguez, were shipped from Salinas last Wednesday to Santa Rosa to be ready to fill their engagements at the Braeders' meeting which will be held at Santa Rosa, August 14th to 19th, inclusive.

THE people of Hollister are going to make their fair this fall a success. The Bee says: "The manner in which our citizens are responding to the request of the subscription committee augurs well for the success of the fair this fall. Nearly the whole amount required has been collected. Now that the financial part is settled it remains for each and all to do what they can to make the coming fair the best ever held in the county. We will have one of those good old-fashioned fairs with exhibits and racing events that will make us feel proud of our town and our county."

JOHN PENDER, the well known horseman of Portland Oregon, who owns the mare Helen J., by Corrector, son of Director, is so crippled up with rheumatism that he will not be able to drive his horses this year. He has this mare and the young stallion Captain Jones, by McKinney, and expected to race them through the California Circuit.

ELIAS WILLIAMS' bay colt Silver Bow Jr. is entirely off and may not start this year. He contracted the epizootic or something akin to that disease and though everything has been done to bring him around, he is quite a sick horse and has not been worked for several weeks. Mr. Williams treated him with tar vapor last Wednesday morning.

P. W. HODGES will probably be back in California soon with his string of trotters. He wrote to R. J. Hudson, Secretary of the Fresno Trotting Association, making application for a nomination in the 2:15 trotting event which is to come off at that meeting. He has in his string Geo. W. McKinney, 2:14½, Our Lucky 2:16½, and other good ones.

CHAS DAVID 2:15, while not having been given much work as yet, being still a little too heavy for racing, is working well in Billy Donathan's hands at Alameda. He looks much better than he did last season, and moved through the stretch so easily in 32½ seconds last Wednesday morning, that he is counted on being faster than his mark this season.

TWO carloads of horses left Pleasanton Thursday of last week for Santa Rosa where they were shipped to be in attendance at the Breeders' meeting. The horses were those of Monroe Salisbury, six head of green ones, while Charles Jeffries had under his supervision seven head as follows: I Direct, Hazzi Kinney, Fanny Putnam, Brice McNeil and two belonging to Mr. Rudolph Spreckels, Marguerite and Annie Rooney 2:17.

ONE of the steadiest going two-year-old pacers in California is the chestnut colt N. L. B., by Diablo 2:09½. He is being trained by H. D. Brown at the Alameda track and though having never been driven a full mile as yet at his speed has rattled off halves in 1:06 and quarters so fast that they say he can come near beating his shadow. He is a blocky built little fellow and hangs on to the fastest of the aged horses in a hush through the stretch.

THE report that Directum Kelly has been retired to the stud, owing to a bowed tendon, is without foundation. A representative of the Trotter and Pacer saw this famous stallion last week out jogging and in his stall at Grosse Point, Detroit, Mich., and says he is as sound as a new milled dollar and he never looked better in his life. John Kelly, his driver, is giving him his preparatory work, for his first start, which will be at Glens Falls.

KINGMOND 2:10½, winner of second money in the M. and M. Stake, is a line trotter, his gait is frictionless, with just enough action; he carries his head about medium, and wears no rigging outside of his harness. For shoes he wears nine ounces front with a two ounce toe weight, and six ounces behind. A pair of quarter boots, scalpers with pastern attachments and skin and ankle hoots, all of the lightest kind, his hind hoots being made of felt, is all he requires for protection.

MR. CHARLESWORTH, one of the new proprietors of the Pleasanton race track, accompanied by his young bride, was in Pleasanton this week. No definite information as to the plans of the purchasers of this property was obtained, but it is understood that there will be many valuable improvements; in fact, that the old shacks that have done service as paddocks and stalls will be torn down in time and replaced by new ones up-to-date in style and convenience.—Pleasanton Bulletin.

"THE pacer Coney 2:09 and the trotter Dr. Book 2:16½ are two pretty good cards for the McKinney (2:11½) branch of the Alcyone family. This McKinney, by the way, is another case of a 'rejected stone' becoming the head of the corner. When first taken to California the horsemen there condemned him on account of curby hocks. To-day there is not a more popular sire on the Pacific Coast than this son of Alcyone 2:27."—American Horse Breeder. [And it can be truthfully added that there is not a horse in California with a cleaner pair of hocks or sounder set of limbs. ED. B. & S.]

THE California State Fair is attracting attention in Honolulu, and quite a number of the residents of that island city are coming over to attend the meeting to be given at Sacramento in September. W. H. McManus, formerly of Gilroy, who trained and raced Loups at the recent meeting at Kapiolani Park, winning the race and giving the horse the Island record, arrived here on the steamer Australia last Friday, July 21st, bringing with him the old favorite, Our Boy 2:12½, which he will put in training at once for the California Circuit. Mr. McManus purchased the popular old pacer from Wm. Cunningham the day after the races at Honolulu, Mr. C. stating that he had retired from the ranks of harness horse owners. Our Boy's od the sea voyage well, and will in all probability keep up his old habit of getting a part of the money whenever he starts.

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

Gouin Not Re-instated.

Jockey Gouin, who arrived from the East recently, took pains to inform representatives of the press here that the Turf Congress had investigated his suspension and re-instated him. There is no truth in his report, as the following dispatch from Judge Marphy to Secretary Milroy of the California Jockey Club will show:

"Absolutely nothing in Gouin's story. Turf Congress has nothing to do with his case. Kindly deny in papers for benefit of racing associations."

A Curious Racing Custom.

A writer in Temple Bar gives an account of the famous race which takes place every year at the old Tuscan town Siena. The course is an irregular oval, lying along the steep hillside, and as the curves often degenerate into corners, and parts of the curve are paved, accidents are to be expected. Siena is divided for municipal purposes into "wards," and each ward enters a horse the evening before the race. The horse and his jockey are escorted with great ceremony to the church of the ward, where the two are solemnly blessed by the priest. If the animal happens to be a mare she wears a white cap during the ceremony of the blessing. The men ride harsbeck and each carries a blunt dagger, with which it is permissible to attack other jockeys or horses. Use of the weapons is practically confined to the start, when those who know they have no chance of winning devote themselves to the congenial work of attacking any horse that has, which is painful for the favorite, unless he succeeds in jumping away with the lead the moment the rope used as "starting gate" is lowered. Intense jealousy seems to be the most conspicuous feeling about the race; the winning jockey slipped off his horse at the post and was immediately surrounded by a body of gendarmes, who escorted him away lest the people of the defeated wards should try and kill him!

In the evening the winner and jockey are escorted to the ward church to be blessed again. With this order of sanctity about it, the Siena race should be free from lust of gain and fairly run at least. Sad to say, this is far from being the case; the jockeys are "doubly or trebly dyed traitors, who have sold themselves over and over again to pull and impede in this or that interest." The only element of uncertainty in the race, which is said to be "arranged" by the ward authorities before hand, is the dishonesty of the jockey who, if bribed not to win, sometimes pockets the money and gives way to the temptation to catch the judge's eye and lets his horse out.

Horses at Sea.

Ocean voyages of horses are not so dangerous as many persons believe. In railroad travel the horses are closely confined in substantially constructed stalls so as to prevent their being knocked about in speeding around curves and in switching, but on an ocean vessel the size of stalls varies and they are usually made for the amount of space occupied. Stalls may be constructed with sliding partitions that can be easily removed so that horses can be closely confined in rough weather and the removal of the partition permits them to lie down when the sea is smooth. In these days of bilge keels the rolling of the average freight steamer that carries horses and cattle is greatly diminished. The sea mender is so constructed and padded that it can be secured inside the stall, so that the horse's breast is pressed against it, and the horse is relieved from the rolling or pitching of the ship to a marked degree.

As a rule, horses are shipped athwartship, hence the rolling gives them a lengthwise motion, heads up, tails up, with an occasional relief by a side motion when the ship pitches forward when mounting or cutting through the billows. In some instances the horses stand fore and aft, with their heads facing the bow of the ship. It is only on the fast liners, where it is difficult to obtain passage for horses, and where space is scarce, that horses are shipped in this manner. On lines where large numbers of horses are shipped a competent veterinarian sails on each ship. Perhaps the fastest voyage across the Atlantic ever made by a horse was made by the stallion Sacaza, from New York to Havra, thence to Paris, last summer. Sacaza was put on board of La Touraine on Saturday morning, and was driven through the Bois de Boulogne on the following Sunday week. The average time occupied in making the voyage to London is from twelve to fourteen days.

Horses suffer from seasickness, but recover in a few days. If the attendants remain with them they are quiet, but get greatly excited when left alone. In a storm, when the ship rolls, pitches and tosses, horses take a firm hold of the manger with their teeth, their eyes protrude and they make every effort to brace themselves in a secure position. It requires about three days for a horse to get his sea legs. The first two days of the voyage and the last two days are the worse on both the horses and their attendants. Diomed, the first winner of the English Derby, was five weeks on board the ship that carried him to this country. Now it is possible to ship a horse across the Atlantic in little more than five days.

JOCKEY ENDIE JONES has been released from his contract to ride for Caesar Young, and is now a free lance.

SADDLE NOTES.

Don't miss entering in the running stakes at the State Fair. Read the advertised conditions in our advertising columns.

LILLIE HEMPESTEAD, the dam of May Hempstead, is owned by J. B. Heggins, and is now in the stud at Rancho del Paso stud.

THE Duke of Westminster presented the winnings of his colt Flying Fox in the Eclipse stake, amounting to $50,000, to the Royal Alexandria Hospital, in Wales, of which he is a petron.

A WESTERN boy who has done well enough to be wanted in the East is Jockey W. Dorsey, who is now riding at Chicago. Dorsey can ride in sixty-five or seventy pounds, and he has been engaged to ride for the W. C. Whitney stable.

ED CORRIGAN has a strong stable at Saratoga, in charge of Manager Thomas Magee. There are twelve in the lot—Sam Tate, Corsine, Adolph Spreckels and seven two-year-olds, viz: Golden Rule, Sardine, St. Anthony, Wallenstein, Sam Howard, Joe McGee and Bassada. The most of them will be run at the meeting of the Spa.

THE crowning feature of a list of stake events recently issued by the Coney Island Jockey Club is the annual champion of $25,000, a continuous event to close each year on July 15th, and to be run during the autumn meetings, commencing in 1900. The race is for three-year-olds and upward at two miles and a quarter, and already the nominations are piling in.

THE starting machine which has been adopted by the English Jockey Club will be used on two-year-olds in England next season. In 1901 the gate will be used on both two and three-year-olds and so on until all ages are started by its aid. It is thought that by the use of this method all horses will be schooled up to the barrier as they start with the youngest class and move on up.

THE London Sportsman says: "The Duke of Westminster seeing Sloan in the paddock at Chester, went up to the American jockey and asked him what he thought of Flying Fox. Sloan, who did not know the Duke by sight, replied, 'I guess, sir, Flying Fox is the best horse I ever saw in my life, or am likely to see, and if you want to see a good horse you will just go and have a look at him next time he is on show.'"

SECRETARY HOPPER has officially announced the dates of the fall meeting at Latonia. Saturday, October 9th, will be the opening day and the meeting will be continued until October 23rd, making nineteen days of actual racing. The usual number of stakes will be hung up, for which entries will close on September 1st. A good class of horses is expected, as the Eastern tracks will be closed before Latonia opens.

TWENTY mares have been mated to Kingston, and Mr. Foxhall Keene writes that the black colt readily be sold for $50,000. His two best representatives, Admiration and Vulcan, have stamped him as a first-class sire, and from the many superbly bred mares at Castleton, he can hardly fail to reproduce himself. Mr. Keene has always had a sentimental attachment for Kingston, as he bred him while he was the owner of Spendthrift.

"BULLMAN has by skillful work managed to land first money with several rather indifferent horses lately," says the New York Sun. One of the most notable successes was with William Easton's two-year-old Wax Paper, with whom he won after getting away from the post last in a field of seventeen horses. There are few cooler jockeys in the country, and Bullman is as game as they make them. He never fails to take risks if he thinks that he can improve the chances of his horse."

THE German Derby, $2,000, 2400 meters, or about one mile and a half, was run at Hamburg, Sunday, June 18th, and brought out a field of nine horses, representing the cream of the German and Austrian turf. The race was won by Gaillard, by Gonneshury, dam Gaillarde, by Galopin, the property of Baron G. Springer, who covered the distance in 2:39. The winner, who also captured the Vienna Derby, easily beat the German horse Namonna, owned by Mr. B. Nanman, by two lengths. Bonvivant, another Austrian horse, was third. Gastfreund, a son of Gouverneur, who represented the royal stud, was unplaced.

A FEAT of horsemanship recently performed by Charles Cottu, the son of a Paris baron, has set all his friends wild. He rode on horseback from Vienna to Paris, a distance of 775 miles, in twelve days and fourteen hours. He pulled up in perfect health and but little fatigued. His mount, Irish Lass, a pretty bay mare, seven years old, was in equally good condition. The only difference in her physical condition at the finish from that at the start was a loss of 85 pounds in weight. She was fed something like twenty quarts of oats and is also said to have been given twelve to fifteen quarts of milk. The mare was prepared for the journey by three weeks' training, beginning with an ordinary day's ride.

W. F. SCHULZE is breeding thoroughbreds on a large scale near Louisville. Mr. Schulte is president of the new Louisville Jockey Club, and maintains both a big breeding and racing establishment. He has three stallions on his farm, namely, Florist, the sire of Dunois and Flora Louise; King Lee, who was one of the best two-year-olds of his year in the west, and Argyle, the sire of Alleivate and other good ones. Mr. Schulte's band of broodmares includes the dams of such good horses as Allaviate, Pretful, Prince Fortunatus and Pickpocket. Among the other well-bred mares is the half-sister to Don d'Oro a full sister to Sen-te Grady and a full sister to Jennie Tracy. Mr. Schulte races the produce of his own breeding establishment. Roll Colston, the well-known colored trainer, handles his racing string, while "Long Shot" Conley, the colored Archer, is the stable jockey. Mr. Schulte formerly owned Sophia Hardy, the dam of Hardy Pardee and the $10,000 two-year-old Lieutenant Gibson. He sold this mare for $35 at a wedding-out sale of broodmares from off his farm some years ago.

THERE was a conference of turfmen in New York last week to talk over a winter meeting at Tampa. The gentlemen interested in the Plant line of steamships have the property down there, and are anxious to give visitors from the North some amusement in horse racing. Tampa tried the game last winter and a few owners shipped a lot of skates there from New Orleans. The majority had a tough time of it, and some are on the way back yet.

A VETERAN racegoer calls attention to what he calls the remarkable success achieved by horses of Mr. Pierre Lorillard's breeding in England during the last two or three years. "Mr. Lorillard," he says, "sends over fifteen or twenty yearlings each season, and the odds are twenty to one against him, for 300 horses are bred in England each year. Mr. Lorillard has to huck up against all of these, and the fact that his horses, like Democrat and the others, are able to pull off so many valuable stakes is a compliment to American breeding as well as to the handling the horses receive from John Huggins." Mr. Lorillard is preparing for an extensive campaign in this country, but he will still continue to ship many of his youngsters abroad, where they will be raced in the colors of Lord William Beresford.

LAST week at the Harlem track the judges rendered a decision that surely stands alone in racing history in the United States. When the meeting began it was decided that owing to the peculiar conditions obtaining, the decisions promulgated from the judges' stand should in no wise take cognizance of the betting done at the track. Therefore when a race came up with a very suspicious turn to it, the judges were in a quandary what to do. Obviously the result should not be allowed to stand, yet bets could not be declared off, owing to the determination referred to above. The judges then simply declined to post a winner, but declared the race void, the numbers hung out being "0 0 0." This left the bookmakers nothing to do but refund the money bet with them, for as no horse won and no horse lost, none of the money risked could either be lost or won. This was certainly a most ingenious solution of the difficulty and one that was perfectly admissible under the circumstances.—Chicago Horseman.

THE peculiar system of betting which prevails on the Eastern tracks has been taken advantage of by sharpers to swindle the bookies. Eastern bookmakers are not permitted to give out the pool tickets in use in the Western country. To enable a record to be kept of the bets, the admission badges are numbered consecutively and the number of the bettor's badge is registered on the sheet with the bet. If the horse wins, the bettor shows his badge to the hook's cashier, the number is compared and the bet paid. Recently, however, some bettors have loaned their badges to friends to collect money, the badge is returned to the rightful owner, and he in turn makes application for the money. He is, of course, told that the bet is paid, whereas he insists that it is not, and that if another badge was presented bearing the same number, it must have been a counterfeit. The trick has been very successful and to circumvent it, one bookie has provided his cashier with a punch, and when the bet is paid, a hole is punched in the ticket. This prevents its use again.

SECRETARY F. H. GREEN, of the Western Turf Association has sent out the following circular: "We shall have completed and ready for racing a new one-mile track on property lately acquired by us from the South San Francisco Land & Improvement Company in San Mateo county, on or about November 1st of this year. It is our intention to give race meetings as have been given yearly heretofore by the Pacific Coast Jockey Club, whose track is now closed. We will be ready to open our gates to the public on Monday, November 6, 1899, and shall begin racing on that day. As complete a racing plant as there is in this country is contemplated by the Western Turf Association. A more admirable location for a track could not be selected. It is only thirty minutes run by the many local trains of the Southern Pacific Company from Fourth and Townsend streets to the entrance of the grounds, and special race trains will make the run in twenty minutes. The climate is mild, and this locality free from fogs. Every convenience and comfort for race-goers is to be provided for, and the most liberal terms and purses will be extended to horse owners. Stable accommodations will be large and of the very best. A list of stakes will soon be prepared."

J. W. Shiell, of Visalia, a crack trap shot widely known to the sporting fraternity of the State, returned to this city last Saturday after a two years' sojourn in the Klondyke. He made his appearance on Sportsmen's Row last Monday and was welcomed by a number of the regulars, who plied him with innumerable questions relative to occurrences in the frozen north. Jack is looking remarkably well and feeling so, too, judging by the pleasant manner in which (by frequent request) he exhibited a handful of Arctic nuggets to his many interviewers.

At the Traps.

The live bird shoot at the Union Gun Club to-morrow at Ingleside will be the principal local attraction for the knights of the shot gun. Practice shooting will begin at 9 o'clock A. M. The leading feature of the shoot, a twelve bird merchandise prize shoot will commence at 10 o'clock. The entrance is $1, birds included, the side pool entrance will be $2, the purse will be divided into three moneys, high guns to win. An assortment of handsome prizes will be offered in the open-to-all race. Two six bird matches are also on the program. Extra prizes, under sealed conditions, will be shot for by the members.

The Reliance Gun Club will have their regular monthly blue rock shoot to-morrow on the club grounds near the Webster street bridge, Alameda.

The blue rock shooting of the Olympic Gun Club for this season closed last Sunday at Ingleside. The final match was at fifty targets, the four previous shoots were at twenty-five targets per man. Those who competed last Sunday were classified as follows: Championship class, 85 1/2 per cent. or better; class A, less than 85 1/2 per cent. and not less than 78 per cent.; class B, less than 78 per cent. and not less than 65 per cent.; class C, less than 65 per cent.

Several shooters that were looked upon as close competitors for honors failed to put in an appearance, among them W. J. Golcher and C. C. Nauman, who were both absent from the city.

The contest for the championship medal was between A. J. Webb and "Slade," the former shooter winnig on a total of 138 breaks out of a possible 150, "Slade's" score being 131. The class A medal was won by F. Fendner. L. D. Owens was the winner of the class B medal. The medal put up for class C was captured by the only shooter in that class, W. Hirschfeld, none of his rival putting in an appearance. Webb and Fendner each scored a twenty-five straight in a practice shoot in the forenoon. The scores in detail of the club race last Sunday are here given:

The San Francisco Gun Club held their July live bird shoot at San Clemente station last Sunday. Good strong birds and a heavy westerly wind taxed the skill of the shooters. Ed Schultz and H. Klevesahl made clean scores in the Club race and C. Shaw, who missed but one in the club event won a freeze out with a record of sixteen kills. The club will hold but one more live bird shoot before the season comes to a close. C. A. Haight has the highest average so far, having grassed fifty-seven out of sixty, but W. F. Mardock, Klavesahl and Schultz are close up with fifty-five out of sixty in their favor.

The Union Gun Club shoot on the Lincoln grounds was the trap attraction at Alameda last Sunday. A delightful day made shooting conditions pleasant. Mitchell was the winner of the medal for the month of July. The other medal winners during the year have been as follows: March, "Smith," April, E. Peterson. May, M. McDonnell. June, L. Hawxhurst. CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The number of licensed guides in Maine is over 1700. Visiting sportsmen are credited with leaving $3,000,000 in the State each year.

F. Fisher, of Coyote, killed eight bucks averaging in weight about 130 pounds. He was hunting for two days this week on Red creek beyond Blue mountain in Santa Clara county.

J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City, Mo., defeated W. R. Crosby of Batavia, last Monday afternoon on the Batavia Gun Club grounds, New York, for the inanimate target championship.

All about breech loading guns—a new edition of the pamphlet of the Hunter Arms Co., received this week is replete with a fund of useful information for sportsmen and embellished with many interesting engravings illustrating the mechanism and component parts of the modern high class shot gun.

On Wednesday at Ocean City Maryland, the first day of the annual midsummer blue rock shooting tournament Jack Fanning was high gun, breaking 160 out of a possible 185 targets. A high wind and a driving rain prevented high scores. Champion J. A. R. Elliott was not in form and eutered in but few of the events.

John Lemmer, President of the famous Black Jack Gun Club, we are sorry to chronicle, has been confined to his residence for over a week. His illness, while not dangerous, has been of such a nature as to demand absolute rest and quiet. The last reports we have are to the effect that he is rapidly approaching convalescence.

The Bob White quail turned loose on the Villa Verona grounds near Pleasanton are getting along finely. It seems they have readily adapted themselves to the locality. They have become quite plentiful in some sections of the range, several heaves of young chicks have been seen at various times. The pheasant placed in the same country are also doing well.

Dove shooting continues to be excellent in most all localities and a host of hunters have as a rule made good bags. The dove stew at Marysville to-day will draw sportsmen and their friends from all sections of the northern counties; quite a number of shooters from this city leave for that point to-day. The fraction this year will be in line with the pleasant record of the past five years.

The Marin county Board of Supervisors have not changed the game ordinance recently adopted in that county. The recent efforts of three "advertising solicitors" were not sufficient to influence the repeal of the clause prohibiting the use of magazine repeating shot guns in the pursuit of game in Marin county. The next meeting of the Board will be a special one and the next regular meeting takes place in August.

The deer hunters have not had the good luck in Marin and Sonoma counties for the past week that fell to their share the first days of the season. Now and then a huck was hawled over, the principal sport, however, has been found by those who had access to the preserved grounds. Hunters in the northern and Coast counties to the south have had plenty of hard work and a fair allowance of venison as a reward for their efforts.

The wanton destruction of fish and game in that section has aroused the better citizens of Donsmuir to action. They have organized a branch of the American League of Sportsmen and propose to vigorously prosecute every offender against the game laws in the future. A reward is offered for the arrest and conviction of each and every violator, and no effort will be spared to put a stop to the threatened destruction of forest and stream life near there. In their purpose they are aided by the Southern Pacific Company, which has forbidden those in charge of its dining cars to buy any more fish or game from individuals along its line.

Deer hunting is not without its exciting features as C. A. Zinkand found last Monday near Cazadero. A lively and desperate fight with a large sized wild cat was an unexpected incident he experienced, and although he was, luckily, victorious in the encounter he received quite a mauling from the cat. Zinkand was out hunting for deer at the time. The day before he had furnished several parties with venison by bringing down a 127-pound buck, and he was out for more. When about two miles from Cazadero he was compelled to pass under a fallen tree in a stooping position. Without a moment's warning a huge cat, unperceived by the hunter, sprang upon his back and began chewing his flesh. Zinkand seized the animal by the throat, according to his version of the affair, and after a few minutes' fight with the ferocious brute the nearly strangled cat got loose and disappeared before Zinkand could pick up his rifle. Zinkand's hunting coat was torn into shreds and his hands, arms and back were badly lacerated. His face escaped with a few scratches.

The Horseshoe Bend, a favorite resort of sportsmen who frequent the upper waters of the McCloud, has been selected as the locality for the site of what is destined to be one of the finest fishing and hunting preserves on the Pacific Coast. A number of San Francisco gentlemen have acquired title to a portion of the most beautiful country along that picturesque stream. Taking advantage of the lieu land act of Congress and by purchase from settlers they have secured the water frontage for several miles, their possessions trending back also well into the primeval forests. Extending the entire width of the bend, a massive stone building of unusual dimensions is being erected. It is expected that the finishing touches will be put on this winter. When finished and furnished it is estimated the cost of this building will foot up $100,000. The structure is entirely of stone, except the inside finish, and has been in course of construction for several months, a small army of men being engaged on the grounds.

A portion of this mountain principality will in time be transformed into a park-like pleasure ground, with driveways, lawn stretches and woodland retreats. The larger portion of the land, however, will be left in its primitive state and be used as a fish and game preserve.

The architectural design of the building is in keeping with the surroundings as they will appear after the landscape gardener has completed his work. A banquet hall and a large hall room are features of the building, which is not designed for public uses in any sense, being merely a sumptuous retreat for the owners and their friends when summer drives them from the city to the mountains.

Loads.

The following formula of loads is taken from the Hunter Arms Company's booklet on the L. C. Smith gun. "Nitro powder is now a very important factor in the market. It is easily possible to load these powders to get unsatisfactory results. We are constantly receiving inquiries as to the best methods of loading, including such questions as proper amount of ammunition, wedding, pressure, etc., and for the benefit of our numerous friends, we are pleased to call your attention to the following as safe nitro powder loads. All of these directions are based on practical tests made in our factory. Always use shells with strong primers made for nitro powder."

Dupont Smokeless Powder.—Twelve-Gauge—For 2½-inch shell: 3 drams, wadded the same as for E. C., with pressure of from twenty to forty pounds over powder.

Ten-Gauge—4 drams; wadded the same as twelve-gauge, with ten-gauge wads; 1½ ounces shot.

Sixteen-Gauge—2½ drams; wadded the same as E. C.; 1 ounce shot.

Ten-Gauge—54 grains—about 2½ drams measure; 1½ ounces shot; wadded same as twelve-gauge, with ten-gauge wads.

E. C. Powder.—Twelve-Gauge—For 2½-inch shell: 3½ drams, one thin card twelve-gauge and two ¼ inch black-edge wads, either twelve or eleven-gauge, over powder, with a pressure of from twenty-five to forty pounds; 1 1/8 ounces shot chilled, with twelve-gauge top-shot wad. Well crimped.

Bears in Maine.

Stockmen and farmers on the Pacific Coast have many times paid tribute to the ravages of Bruin among their herds on the hills or browsing in the valleys; nor has the pig-bean over-looked by Brer Bar when bent on satisfying his appetite. This state of affairs has been understood and to a certain extent accepted out here, but that in steady New England such depredations take place is somewhat unlooked for, though possible as the following narrative will show:

Compared with fifty years ago, the Maine farmers suffer little loss through the depredations of bears these days. Bruin, like most beasts of the forests, is naturally inclined to give the habitations of men a wide berth, and he has learned the significance of improved firearms. When the longing for fresh meat is strong enough upon him to take him to the pastures and farmyards, it is mutton and pork he seeks rather than h. ef. Experience has taught him that, while a pig or sheep can easily be killed and carried away, a horned animal, even a young one, is not so readily disposed of. If he tackle a calf, the mother is sure to be within hearing, and at its first blast she comes in a hurry, fighting mad, to defend her offspring. This means trouble at least, and the bother is greater when a bull or steer comes into the controversy. All other things being equal, the bear prefers to hunt his grub along the lines of the least resistance, and, mutton being quite to his taste, he will commonly pass a cattle pasture and go on to transact business on a sheep farm, ten miles further away, it may be.

But there are cattle killin' bears in Maine, powerful old fellows, who think it no trick to kill a yearling with a blow of the paw or to pull down a cow, and she hears with cubs to feed, who can find no sheep within easy travelling distance. These females with young are rather worse than the old male bears, for they bring their cubs up with a taste for beef and a training in the art of cattle killing. In the old days of the long-horned native stock—hardy, wiry and accustomed to look out for themselves—many a bear gained his experience with horned cattle at the cost of his life, and more than one township in Maine contained some bull or ox with a history to be shown proudly to the visitor as "the critter that killed a bear."

When cattle in a pasture are made aware of the presence of a bear, they do not run away from him, but gather in a circle facing outward in every direction, with the calves in the centre. One of them only, the bull or steer which assumes the office of champion for the herd, remains outside the circle, and he moves about facing the bear from whatever direction he may come. If the bear comes too close he advances to meet him. If the bear retreats he does not try to follow him up, but is content to let him go and he rid of him. There are those who have seen such an encounter, and they have told of its long duration and of the bear's many feints and manoeuvres to gain an opening where he might attack at advantage. He will pretend to retreat and disappear in the bushes, only to reappear suddenly in some unexpected quarter from which to make his dash upon the weaker cattle.

The champion of the herd keeps a wary watch, however. Sometimes in the struggle honors are easy, the bear limping away whining, while the bull, with his head and shoulders lacerated, backs toward the herd, satisfied not to follow him up. Sometimes both combatants are found after the fight dead or mortally wounded on the field. The most sanguinary and exciting combat of this nature that has occurred in Maine in recent years was reported by Capt. Dan Neal, the woods guide, who was within hearing of the fight and visited the spot the morning after it took place.

"It was in the summer of 1882, and I was with a gang of thirty men in the hemlock woods, peeling bark, on the west slope of Mount Sunday, near Olamou, on the Penobscot river," said Capt. Neal, telling of the occurrence the other evening. "The township in which we were working was a plantation—that is to say, was not an incorporated town—but there were some farms in it, and in a large clearing two miles from our camp a herd of cattle was pastured. The patriarch of the herd was a large Shorthorn bull of a disposition which made us shy of him when crossing the pasture where he was. A bear had been killing cattle on the plantation that season and one night he attacked this herd. The fight must have begun about sundown, for the cattle began to hallow at that time, and they kept it up until midnight. The sounds came plainly to us across a valley, and above the others we could distinguish the roaring of the big bull. His voice died out of the rumpus toward midnight and we wondered what had happened to him, but the other cattle kept up their howling for a while longer, and they did not quiet down until we could see in the pasture the lanterns of the farmhands, who had come at last to see what the matter was."

"We were all too tired after our day's work to go ourselves to find out, but we got the story next morning from a farmer who came to the camp, and some of us, myself among them, went over to the pasture. The big bull lay dead on the ground with his neck lacerated and his jugular vein bitten clear through. Beyond him lay the bear, a female, which would weigh 300 pounds, gored in several places and disembowelled. The hoof marks in the ground showed plainly where the cattle had stood ranged in a circle, and the earth was deeply trodden and blood stained where the fighting had been. The cattle had gone from the place and were feeding in another part of the pasture when we got there. Among them was a two-year-old steer which had been in the fracas and now had taken charge of the herd. His horns were reddened and he had a wound on his neck extending from the shoulders to the head, where a three-cornered piece of skin had been torn nearly off by the bear's claws, so that it hung in a flap. We roped the steer, threw him, and with a shoemaker's awl and stout twine I sewed the skin back in place. I saw the steer a month afterward with the wound entirely healed."

"Nobody saw the fight, and we could only guess just what had occurred. The best that we could make out was that when the bear tackled the herd he was met by the big bull, who took the brunt of the fighting. The bull's horns, being short and dull, and setting sidewise from the head as they did, were not the best weapons for the business to be done, and, besides this, the bear had probably tired him out by keeping him on the move a long time before they got together at close quarters. At any rate she killed the bull, and, after that, the sharp horns of the steer did the business for the bear. It must have been in giving the thrust that disembowelled the bear that the steer got the terrible claw stroke that tore his thick hide like paper."

Protection to Striped Bass in Humboldt County.

The Humboldt county sportsmen ever alive to the value of fish and game protection in their district have caused the adoption, at the request of the State Fish and Game Commission of an ordinance by the Board of Supervisors for the protection of striped bass, which fish has recently been placed in the waters of Humboldt bay.

The ordinance provides: First, that "Every person who, in the county of Humboldt, between the first day of August, 1899, and the first day of August 1905, shall catch, buy, sell or have in his possession, any striped bass shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Second, Every person who in the county of Humboldt, between the first day of August 1899, and the first day of January 1905, shall take or catch any striped bass by any means, and who shall not return the same to the water immediately and alive, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

The Grand Rapids Fly-Casting Club held their first local fly-casting contest at Reed's lake, on Wednesday, July 12th. The second contest was scheduled for Wednesday of this week. The scores made on the 12th inst. were the following: Long Distance—Charles B. Kelsey, 90 feet; John O'Rourke, 90 feet; Frank Nixon, 87 feet; John Waddell, 85 feet; David Wilson, 87 feet; Max P. Thiele, 65 feet. O'Rourke and Kelsey cast off the tie, and the former won with a cast of 78 feet.

Distance and Accuracy—Waddell, 90 per cent; O'Rourke, 81 per cent; Thiele, 79 per cent; Eher Rice, 75 per cent; Fred J. Adams, 72 per cent; Nixon, 71 per cent; Douglas Barry, 62 per cent.

Accuracy and Delicacy—Nixon, 92 per cent; O'Rourke, 92 per cent; Asa Stuart, 90 per cent; Berry, 90 per cent; Wirth, 90 per cent; A. D. Porter, 88 per cent; Waddell, 87 per cent; Kelsey, 76 per cent; Thiele, 75 per cent.

Bait-Casting—Berry 85 per cent; Waddell, 85 per cent; Nixon, 76 per cent; O'Rourke, 72 per cent.

The records for the re-entry contests of the Chicago Fly-Casters held on July 8th are the following:

Long Distance—H. Greenwood, 91 feet; I. D. Belasco, 85 feet.

Distance and Accuracy—C. F. Brown (three re-entries), 76 1/3 per cent, 88 2/3 per cent and 74 per cent; I. D. Belasco 75 per cent; H. W. Perce, 61 per cent; G. W. Salter (two re-entries), 55 per cent and 70 1/3 per cent.

Accuracy and Delicacy—I. D. Belasco (three re-entries), 77 1/2 per cent; C. F. Brown (three re-entries), 77 1/6 per cent 73 2/3 per cent and 87 1/6 per cent; H. Greenwood, 73 1/2 per cent; H. W. Perce, 73 1/6 per cent.

Bait-Casting—H. A. Newkirk, 94 8-15 per cent; G. W. Salter (two re-entries), 91 2-3 per cent and 92 1-3 per cent; C. F. Brown (three re-entries), 78 2-5 per cent, 87 1-3 per cent and 93 2-3 per cent.

Fifty-five thousand young trout were received in Napa last Saturday morning from the hatchery at Sissons, they were to be distributed in the streams near that point. Twenty-five thousand of these little fishes will be placed in the waters of Rector and Milliken Cayone, and the creeks back of the State Asylum. The other thirty thousand will go into the streams of Wild Horse Valley and the waters near the Vallejo Water Co.'s dam in Solano county. Wm. West and Q. K. Seolshury took charge of the division assigned to Rector and Millikan and Dr. T. H. Stice and W. H. Martin of the Asylum and Senator Luchringer and Henry La Zelle of Solano county will be responsible for the placing of the rest.

A simple temporary device for repairing a tip or light joint when broken or split is found by the use of a stout quill. The quill is split on the side from one end to the other and then slipped over the fracture or the heveled ends of the break, a wrapping with a piece of line or stout thread will then place the rod in fair working condition until the proper repairs can be made.

Striped bass anglers are now congregating at the High street tidal canal in Alameda and also at other points on San Leandro bay. The fish are plentiful, several catches with rod and line have weighed over seventy-five pounds within the past two weeks.

Salmon fishing in Monterey bay continues to be excellent. One boat is credited with twenty-one fish this week. Several of our local anglers have been taking advantage of the opportunity offered for indulging in the sport.

Reports from Sims on the Sacramento and Fowlers on the McCloud are to the effect that the fishing is still good at these points.

This afternoon and to-morrow morning fly-casting contests will be in order at Stow lake.

Complaint is made that the dynamite mafia are operating in the streams of Lake county.

Coast Bench Show Notes.

The bench show at Santa Barbara last week was we believe a howling success, we gather this impression from the opening paragraph which appeared in a special to a morning daily of this city last Friday and is as follows:

"Such a dog show as the one now in progress has probably never been witnessed. It certainly is unprecedented on this coast. It is ostensibly a dog show, but in reality it is an adjourned meeting of the National Educational Association Convention.

"The corridors of the Arlington Hotel, which is the headquarters of the exhibitors, are crowded all day long with school teachers learning canine lore from the dog men. It is quite a unique experience for the habitues of the bench show to hear talk about haws, couplings, briskets and flanks falling glibly from the mouths of fair pedagogues, who seem as enthusiastic as the exhibitors themselves.

"The judging of the regular prizes was concluded to-day and to-morrow the exhibition will terminate with the bestowal of the special prizes.

"In connection with these, one very sportsmanlike act is worthy of special mention. R. B. Fithian, who offered a very handsome silver cup for the best terrier owned in Santa Barbara county, won the special himself and then offered it for the best terrier in the show. It was awarded to G. L. Waring's Sweet William amid the plaudits of the spectators at Mr. Fithian's generous and thoroughly sportsmanlike action.

"Quite a sensation was caused by the appearance in the judging ring of William Othout's Chihuahua dog. It is by Don Juan de Chihuahua, out of Juanita. The "monster" weighed 28½ ounces and was entirely covered from view when held in his proud owner's hand."

A partial and garbled list of awards in different classes of various breeds followed but the correspondent was evidently a novice in this particular (however ambitious he was to create a favorable impression). We will await advices from the secretary of the show and endeavor to furnish our readers with a complete and proper list of awards, etc., though in this respect we are somewhat impressed with the idea that the secretaries or press agents of P. K. L. show heretofore held are not desirous of having the results of their exhibitions properly placed before the fancy, not only of the Pacific Coast but elsewhere. We are impelled to make the latter assertion by reason of the criticism which follows and which appeared in the English Stock Keeper of the 7th inst.:

"A reader dating from British Columbia sends us the schedule of the Seattle Kennel Club's Dog Show in Seattle, Washington. The judge of 'all classes' is 'Mr. E. Davies, Esq.' and under his name appears this introduction:

Mr. Davies is a judge of international reputation, and the Seattle Kennel Club considers itself most favored in being able to offer the public his most efficient and impartial services.

As we never heard of the gentleman, we conclude he must be an Englishman, and, like some others in America who have become famous since they were exported, was not a prophet in his own country—and no loss either. Stay out there, Mr. E. Davies, Esq., with the other toadstools, and may you never be found out. The prizes were peculiar. Money must be rare in Seattle, but the local exhibitors can get along without it. The first prize in greyhounds was a razor; there is some humor in that. A second prize for collies was 'a cheese,' and in another class the prize was 'a hat.' Another suggestive prize in a puppy class was 'a necktie.' In two of the English setter classes the chief prizes were pipes, and in one division 'a pair of gloves,' and 'a pair of slippers' for second prize. Other prizes were umbrellas, boxes of cigars, tobacco, pens, beer, tea, shaving soap, baking powder, brushes, 'a gent's eweater,' 'one lady's silk waist,' 'an alarm clock,' and 'ten pounds' of putty."

Comment similar to the foregoing is the result of inexperienced or faulty management, and we herewith take the liberty of stating that at the Seattle show a number of excellent dogs were exhibited, in fact in one or two classes the entries would compare very favorably with many of the Eastern exhibits. A number of first class entries were in the recent Santa Barbara show also. Monkeys, parrots, cats and a general variety of pets were shown at the last bench show in Santa Barbara, the stellar side attractions this year is a step in advance it is true, but there seems (if the authority previously quoted is reliable) to be an incongruous meke-up down South that is in brilliant keeping with the past reputation of Coast dogdom in never missing an opportunity of causing the "tragedy of the unexpected" to be produced at the right time.

Pacific Bull Terrier Club.

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Pacific Bull Terrier Club was held in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last Wednesday evening. The club roll of membership is increasing rapidly, several new members were elected at the meeting. The organization is now on a strong basis and the members are already looking forward to the bench show next year and propose to have an exhibition of hull terriers that will eclipse all previous exhibits of the breed on the Coast, and we have had one or two notable ones too. The entry of high class puppies promises to be an excellent one both in quality and number. Considerable comment was made by various members by reason of the oversight, presumably, on the part of the recent southern show management in not presenting the necessary information etc., tending to invite an entry of hull terriers at Santa Barbara.

Dog Dealing.

It is generally believed that the recent legislation concerning the dog, both in regard to its quarantine when arriving in this country from a foreign port and the increased liability to come under direct muzzling regulations, would interfere considerably with its value as a commercial article. Possibly this has been so to a certain extent, especially so far as Continental dealers are concerned; but generally it may be said that the trade in dogs at the present time is quite as brisk as ever it was, and for good specimens of almost any of the many varieties with are popular with us exorbitant prices continue to be obtained. The man in the streets with the pug dogs and fox terriers still continues his wanderings around the fashionable neighborhood of Regent street and elsewhere, and his persuasive eloquence in vending a three months old diminutive and ill-grown puppy is a full grown dog is still as marked as ever. Then, too, the shops set apart for the purpose do a capital trade in the higher priced dogs. At any rate, they must do so to be able to pay the high rentals which are required for front shops in our leading thoroughfares.

The general public cannot be considered quite a specialist in the matter of dogs; still, if they use ordinary common sense and discretion, their requirements may be readily obtained through the sources already named, and at the same time it must not be forgotten that every now and then special sales are arranged at Birmingham, Leicester and elsewhere, sometimes in connection with shows, where all kinds of dogs may be obtained, and drafts from the leading foxhound, terrier and heagle kennels be procured. The really clever dog man, dealer, fancier, gentleman, or whatever he may be does not, however, as a rule, look to such sources to pick up the very best animals that he may require, either for exhibition or other purposes. He attends the shows, or the field trials, and there sees the best stock in the country. His knowledge and judgment are superlative; he seldom or never makes a mistake, and when he does see a dog to his liking, and which, in his opinion, is perhaps equal or even superior to anything else he knows, he will buy if he can. Not afraid to put his hand into his pocket, he does not think from £100 to £200 too much to pay for a fox terrier or a bull dog; he will give more for a collie or a St. Bernard, the market value of each variety depending upon the number of classes and the amount of prize money it can win in the ordinary way of exhibitions. For instance, more money is generally offered in prizes for fox terriers than for any other breed, and thus the monetary value of that variety is considerably enhanced. Irish Terriers, perhaps, follow next, hard pressed maybe by the Scottish Terriers and the Pomeranians. All these dogs have specialist clubs provided for them, and the funds thereof go to extend the ordinary prize lists issued by managers of provincial and other exhibitions. Two or three years ago a well known exhibitor paid something like £200 for a fox terrier puppy, and his friends naturally considered he had more money than he knew what to do with. Time proved his judgment correct, for, besides taking two or three times the amount of the dog's cost in prizes and stud fees, he eventually sold the same animal for £500, which may be taken as a record price for a terrier. Such a successful purchase as this and many others similar to it which could be named, have led certain people to come to the conclusion that a living is to be made by dog showing and by buying in the cheapest markets and selling in the dearest, and by breeding prize dogs of all kinds. A successful "dog farm" is as great an improbability as a successful poultry farm, and for much the same reasons. The land becomes tainted, and unless the puppies are sent out "to walk" the confinement of kennels cripples them, and the crowding together may destroy them. Then it is by no means certain that like gete like; the best parents may be used, but they are not particularly liable to produce champions. There is a considerable amount of luck in dog breeding, and at the same time special knowledge is required.

The writer is inclined to believe that the qualities which go to form a really good judge and successful breeder of dogs must be born with the man; they cannot apparently be produced by practice or by education, although, of course, both these tell up to a certain point. Not many days since I was looking for a terrier dog as a companion, and mentioned my requirements to a man who had kept dogs all his life, and was considered to be, by his class, an authority. I was led to believe that he did know something about a terrier. He said he was acquainted with a man who had just what was wanted—a "grand terrier with no fault." At considerable inconvenience I made an appointment to see this dog. All that could be said about it was that it was a terrier; but it had a short, stumpy neck, the crookedest of forelegs, a weak, toyish head—indeed, a creature that, so far as beauty was concerned, would have been dear as a gift. No amount of education could possibly make my recommender in this instance a judge of a dog. There are, indeed, very few good judges of a dog to be found, and to this is no doubt due the fact that the few, when they take up the matter from a business point of view, almost invariably prove successful. Within the last twenty years or so, one or two instances might be pointed out where a nice little competency has been made by breeding, purchasing and selling St. Bernards, and at any rate there are at present three or more leading exhibitors who make a good living by showing their dogs, which they purchase with admirable judgment, or have been lucky in breeding them. But they must depend more upon the former than the latter, and to suppose that an ordinary man or woman with little knowledge of the dog, and perhaps with less love for him, to at once jump into a similar groove is preposterous. Yet there are those who seek to do so, and write to specialists desiring information as to how they are to make a commencement and what "breed of dog" will prove most prolific and the most remunerative. Such inquirers are not, perhaps, aware that a dog to sell well must be pretty nearly perfect in its way, that moderate or inferior specimens are actually unmarketable, and at six months old will not realize as much as it has cost to rear them, and that they might breed a thousand dogs and not have one worth more than a £10 note. As already stated, it is much the better plan to buy a first-class dog likely to make a champion than attempt to breed one even from the most carefully selected parents.

Within the past quarter of a century the popularity of the dog as a companion has increased very much, owing to causes repeatedly stated in the columns of the Field; but the supply is always more equal to the demand, notwithstanding statements to the contrary which are continually appearing in print. The other day I read of an Airedale Terrier selling for £600, a collie worth nearly £2,000, and such like trash. People reading untruthful statements of this kind, with a few pounds at their command, and without a particle of knowledge on the subject, not ungenerally come to the conclusion that they have found a royal road to fortune. They expend their capital in buying a dog and a bitch of the same strain as that from which the animal of fabulous price was produced, and wait for a return of their investment. This comes during the course of a few months in the form of a number of puppies which cannot be sold at any price! Thus the hope of an income from dogs is soon dispelled, and the misguided whilom fancier must be contented to seek fortune in the ordinary way of trade, and leave what there is to be got out of dogs to those who have made them a study, who are adepts in the art of selection, and have capital to fall back upon in the case of accident or misfortune. And it must not be forgotten that for exhibition and for mercantile purposes a perfect dog is cheaper at a couple of hundred pounds than one-half as good at a tenth of that sum.—Correspondence London Field.

On the 1st of July, the Nebraska dog law went into effect. Dogs are now personal property in that State. The law was enacted by the last legislature and is the result of the efforts of C. W. Britt and Hon. James A. Beverly.

Two breeds of dogs are attracting increased attention in the East, Scotch terriers and Beegles.

Standards.

Muzzle, very powerful and tapering towards the nose, which should be black end of a good size. The jaws should be level and the teeth square, though the nose projects somewhat over the mouth, which gives the impression of the upper jaw being longer than the under one.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The St. Bernard Reglov Jr., is now in possession of the Presidio Kennels, having been purchased from Dr. Cluness recently.

Fred H. Busbnell's St. Bernards Le Prince Jr. and Melrose Sylvia are now at Mt. View Kennels, Merin county, in charge of John Lucas.

M. Ahraham's setter bitch Dolly Y, which John Lucas recently sent to Farmington, Mo., to be bred to H. B. Leddettter's Marie's Sport, has been returned to the Mt. View Kennels in most excellent condition.

Sir Ethelwood, the grand prize winning St. Bernard owned by Mr. Thos. J. Sheubrooks of Baltimore, died on the 14th inst. The cause of death was heart failure end dropsy. Sir Ethelwood was a massive dog, but was very active. He was 53 inches in height and weighed over 200 pounds. He was deep orange color, with white markings, blaze, collar and white feet. He was without doubt the best St. Bernard dog on the bench. He won his championship honors by taking first prizes at Boston, Brooklyn, New York and Danbury. At Washington, Baltimore end Chicago he also won first honors. The death of a dog like Sir Ethelwood, sound in character, structure end disposition, is a severe loss to the breed end especially so when the animal was in his prime.

THE FARM.

Alfalfa Hay for Fattening.

[Bulletin Kansas Experiment Station, Manhattan.]

In the fall of 1898 the Kansas Experiment Station made an experiment to test the value of alfalfa hay when fed daily to fattening hogs that were being given all the grain they would eat. The gain greatly exceeded our expectations and if further experiment shows the same results alfalfa hay will form a regular part of the rations of every well-fed pig fattened in Kansas in the winter.

The hogs fed in this experiment were bought of farmers and averaged in weight 125 pounds each. They were placed in lots of ten each, in large pens having for shelter some sheds open to the south. The alfalfa hay used was of the best quality, carefully cured. The black-bull Kaffir corn was the grain used, the hogs being fed all that they would eat without waste. The hay was fed dry in forkfuls in a large flat trough. The pigs were given more than they would eat, and they picked out the leaves and finer stems, rejecting the coarser stems. One lot of hogs was fed Kaffir corn meal dry and alfalfa hay; one lot whole Kaffir corn dry; one lot Kaffir corn meal dry, and one lot Kaffir corn meal wet.

The experiment began on November 24th and lasted nine weeks. By that time the alfalfa-fed hogs became well fattened and were marketed. We estimated that it would require four to five weeks' additional feeding, with ordinary winter weather, to get the hogs that were fed grain alone into good marketable condition. The recent continued extreme cold weather will make the time required considerably longer.

The gain in nine weeks from the different methods of feeding were as follows:

	Gains per hog in pounds.
Kaffir corn meal dry and alfalfa hay.....	99.9
Kaffir corn whole.....	59.4
Kaffir corn meal fed dry.....	52.4
Kaffir corn meal fed wet.....	53.3

The gain from feeding alfalfa hay with Kaffir corn meal fed dry over the meal alone fed dry is more than 73 per cent.

The gains per bushel of feed were as follows:

	Pounds.
Kaffir corn meal dry and 7.83 lbs alfalfa hay.....	10.83
Kaffir corn whole.....	5.56
Kaffir corn meal fed dry.....	7.48
Kaffir corn meal fed wet.....	8.09

Ten hogs in nine weeks were fed 657 pounds of alfalfa hay; and as shown above for each 7.83 pounds of alfalfa hay fed with the dry Kaffir corn meal the hogs gained 3.4 pounds over those having dry Kaffir corn meal alone — a gain of 868 pounds of pork per ton of alfalfa hay. These results are not due to the feeding value of alfalfa hay alone but also to its influence in aiding the hogs to better digest the Kaffir-corn. The alfalfa hay also gave a variety to the ration, making it more appetizing and inducing the hogs to eat more grain. The ten hogs having grain alone ate 3885 pounds of dry Kaffir corn meal and the ten hogs having hay and grain ate 4769 pounds of the Kaffir-corn meal and 656 pounds of alfalfa hay. The hay-fed hogs ate more grain and gained more for each bushel eaten.

In a former experiment at this college pigs were pastured through the summer on alfalfa with a light feeding of corn. After deducting the probable gain from the corn the gain per acre from the alfalfa pasture was 776 lbs. of pork.

These facts indicate that to produce pork most cheaply the Kansas farmer must have the alfalfa pasture in summer and the alfalfa hay in winter.

The horse that will best meet all the requirements of the small farmer must have not only size and strength for the field and wagon work, but should also be a quick, active animal at a walk or trot. He is used frequently on the road and under the saddle, and he is not only a more agreeable and satisfactory animal if he has quick movement and is reasonably fast, but he saves enough time to make him actually a more valuable animal to his owner than a big, sluggish draft horse. A horse that has the requisite strength and is a good walker will get work done more rapidly in the field, and this will save time, and may, also, save much loss in a crop that is badly needed to be worked.

Does It Pay to Feed Grain to Dairy Cows in Summer?

A correspondent of the Practical Farmer says that by weighing and testing his milk, and keeping exact accounts with 15 cows, and the milk sold from them he has learned of one mistake he made last year. Until last spring he had always given his cows grain when on grass, but as many writers and farmers claimed that such food was not necessary, he thought to make a saving by omitting the grain feed. Now his accounts, with the same cows for the two years, shows that at the price he is selling milk, 10 cents a gallon, he lost from $6 to $8 per head through the summer, and reckoning the extra value of manure from grain-fed cows, and the extra grain it will take to put the cows back where they were a year ago, his loss will be more than $150 for the season by trying to save grain feeding. The grass was good through the season, and he did not begin feeding until December.

He instances one Holstein cow, fresh in November, 1896, which he bought Feb. 10, 1887. She was then thin in flesh, but he gave her good care, and in June, 1897, with grass and grain fed she gave 1091½ pounds of milk. She was dry from Jan. 1 to Feb. 21, 1898, but in March, April and May, while he gave grain, she averaged 1200 pounds a month, and she would have done better in June 1898, than the June previous if she had received the same grain feed, but she only gave 886½ pounds without the grain, 205 pounds or 24 gallons less than the year before. This would have been worth $240, and the grain could have been bought for $1.40 or less for the month.

Regularity in Milking.

In the management of a dairy, regularity in milking is of the highest importance. The easiest way, says an exchange, to make cows uncertain in their milk yield, is to milk anywhere from 5 to 8 o'clock in the morning, with a corresponding latitude in regard to evening milking time. Most dairymen understand this, and take measures to have the milking done at the same time each day. Unfortunately, however, in many herds, Sunday comes in as a disturbing element. It is a day of rest, and those who do the milking are less prompt and less regular in their work, than on week days. The result is, that it is often well toward the middle of the week before the evil effects of Sunday's irregularities disappear, and then they appear again in the early days of the following week. The effect produced is not only harmful during the days of actual disturbance, but it is believed to exert a bad influence on the work of the cow during the entire period of lactation, the evil becoming gradually and increasingly more prominent, and finally closing the milking period earlier than it would have closed, had the milking been regularly done every day in the week at the same hours. This is one of the points at which dairying is exacting. Things must be done, milking included, on time, and this is one reason why so many people think that dairying is a very troublesome occupation. In some respects, this is true, but one of the compensations for this is, that farmers are more prosperous in the dairying districts than others, wherein other branches of farm work are relied on. It is quite true that the dairy farmer has to get up very early to attend to the milking, and that he has to do it every day in the year, but on the other hand he is in less danger of having to lay awake at night worrying his brain in a struggle with the problem, where the money is going to come from to pay taxes and other necessary expenses.—The Dairy Reporter.

American Beef in Scotland.

Scotch beef has so long had a preference in the English markets that it is something of a surprise that in so discriminating a Scotch market as that of Edinburgh American beef is taken now in considerable quantities. This is a new feature in American export trade and certainly not an unimportant one. One Chicago company is said to have a number of agencies in that country. A recent issue of the Edinburgh News says:

"Owing to the scarcity of beef cattle and fat sheep in the country and the consequent rise in price very large supplies of American beef are finding their way all over the country. Edinburgh butchers, who, as a rule, decidedly prefer the home article, have of late been forced to procure supplies from Liverpool and Glasgow of port killed States beef. In addition, the chilled beef agencies in the city have been selling large quantities of American killed beef. A Chicago company is doing a very considerable trade in a high class grade beef. They have already established about forty agencies in the United Kingdom. The supplies coming into Edinburgh for the last week are phenomenal, bearing in mind always that this city has been in the past particularly independent of foreign supplies of beef and mutton. Upwards of 400 quarters of chilled beef have gone into consumption, and in addition a like quantity, viz., 200 sides port killed, all of American origin. Supplies of frozen mutton continue about an average of 350 carcasses, mainly from the Argentine Republic. The letter is considered a superior moiety."

State Veterinarian.

Dr. Charles H. Blemer, of Sacramento, has been appointed by Governor Gege to the office of State Veterinarian.

This office was created by the last Legislature for the purpose of controlling and attempting to eradicate diseases among live stock in the State. California heretofore has not had such an official, but other States, that have, claim to have found it advantageous to stock interests.

Dr. Blemer has been connected with the United States Department of Agriculture, throughout the West, for a number of years, as an expert on the diseases of live stock. For the past year he has been located in Sacramento. He resigns a Government position of $1400 a year to accept the position of State Veterinarian at $2000 a year and $500 expenses.

For stopping the growth of horns upon calves this mixture has been successfully used in experiments conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture Bureau of Animal Industry: Take fifty parts caustic soda, twenty-five parts of kerosene oil, and twenty-five parts of water. An emulsion is made of the oil and soda by beating and vigorously stirring, and this is then dissolved in water. The mixture should be placed in a bottle with a solid rubber cork. The calves should not be over three weeks old, from five to twenty days being the proper age. A horn will sometimes be killed that is even from four to six weeks old, but it cannot be depended upon with certainty. In applying the solution the following directions should be observed: With a pair of scissors clip the hair around the embryo horn so as to expose a spot about the size of a nickel. While an assistant holds the calf securely drop two or three drops of the mixture on the horn, and with the end of the rubber cork rub it thoroughly in over the bare spot. Apply the fluid first to one horn then the other, until each has received three or four applications. Rubbing should be continued until the caustic has softened and removed the hair and surface skin around the horn. Care should be taken that the fluid does not spread over too large a surface or run down the side of the face.

Some farmers still make the mistake of feeding hay to their work horses in over-head racks instead of the more convenient and economical manger. Eating hay from the rack is not infrequently a cause of injury to the eyes of the horses so fed. Besides that, the ripened seeds of the hay are wasted, as well as much of the hay. The objection to the manger is that it becomes dirty and the horse slobbers too much over the hay for it to be palatable. The last objection may be obviated to a considerable extent by not feeding more than the horse needs at any one time. Of course the manger should be well cleaned at each feeding time, and this can be quickly done if the bottom is constructed so that it may be taken out and bolted back in place quickly.

An opportunity to procure a grand watch dog is announced this week among the kennel advertisements. The dog is question is a finely developed young mastiff; the owner's reason for disposing of his pet is lack of proper place and accommodations for keeping him.

[BY THE GREEN 'UN.]

As the poet says, "coming events cast their shadows before." Santa Rosa will witness the inauguration of one of the greatest harness race meetings ever held this side of the Rocky Mountains when the Breeders open the gates of the Pierce track there a week from Monday, and Sam Gamble tells the drivers "come down for the word, gentlemen." There has been no such interest manifested in an event of this kind for years as is now daily shown by the horsemen and the public generally. It would not surprise me to see the Santa Rosa grand stand filled every day—something that has not been done for years on the California circuit, two full-house days being about the best that has heretofore been done, the grand stand having a very spotted look during the other four days of the meeting. But this year it will be different, if there is anything in signs, omens or predictions I have yet to see a harness horse admirer, be he enthusiast or conservative, old timer or recent convert, but is headed for Sonoma county, and on the morning of the 14th the trains for Santa Rosa will have those on board who are not already there. The wonderful records made on the track there last year will be very hard to beat, but it need not surprise anyone if one or more of them are wiped out, and as for actual, hard fought contests the proportion will be three to one in favor of this year's program.

The old subject of pools or books has been agitating the Directors of the P. C. T. H. B. A. for the past week. I wish some Moses could arise in the harness horse world of California this year and show the Breeders and the District Associations that the good old plan of auction pools and mutuals would not only add dignity and cleanliness to race meetings, but be more profitable to the associations, the horsemen and the public. In my humble opinion the bookmakers are the cause of so many of the wealthier admirers of harness racing losing interest in the sport. Laying aside all the charges that are made about the dishonesty of racing where syndicate hook betting prevails, it should never be permitted for the sole reason that it repels the people who can afford to bet, and encourages and attracts those who can not. As the betting has been conducted on California district tracks for some years, a gentleman with $1000 to place on a horse of his liking, could not possibly get more than a quarter of it wagered and that in small bets at the very shortest of odds, while the "bookie" was making a 50 per cent. book, and richly rewarding himself out of one and two dollar bets from the gullible public that is attracted by long odds. I have seen more than once on California tracks a horse chalked up at say 10 to 1, and the wagering of a ten dollar bill cause those figures to be immediately changed to even money. In the old days harness racing with auction and mutual pools was a grand sport. In my opinion, the substitution of bookmaking has done more to injure it than even the cutting off of appropriations for district fairs. When a well known bookmaker gave the State Agricultural Society some years ago over sixteen thousand dollars for the exclusive betting privilege of the meeting, and it was accepted, a blow was struck at the sport of racing from which it will take some time longer for it to fully recover. As my friend Tim Crowley, one of the enthusiastic harness horse admirers of the Pacific Coast, and a hard working Director of the Breeders Association, puts it: "If I had the authority, all the betting on harness races should be by auction pools or mutuals, and no bookmaking should be allowed."

THE SANTA ROSA PROGRAM.

Arrangement of the Trotting Horse Breeders Association's Harness Events.

The Speed Committee of the Board of Directors of the P. C. T. H. B. A. met on Thursday last and after an afternoon of hard work made the following program of the trotting and pacing events to be decided at Santa Rosa during the week beginning August 14th. It is an utter impossibility to arrange the program so that every horse will be able to start on the dates which exactly suits his owner and trainer, but the Committee worked on the plan that they would make an arrangement with the fewest objectionable features possible, and they have probably succeeded. From the program which is given herewith it will be seen that a grand week of sport is in store for all who attend the meeting. The best events are not saved for any one day, but are scattered through the week so that a good program of racing is assured for each and every day of the meeting. There will probably be a purse offered for 2:12 trotters during the week. The result of the Committee's work is as follows:

SECOND WEEK OF GRAND CIRCUIT.

Big Crowds Witness Record-Breaking Heats at Columbus, Ohio.

The first day of the Grand Circuit races at the Cleveland Driving Park played against a street car strike and the Wild West show, and only about 1800 persons saw the day's racing, which was not of a high class. The races decided were the 2:14 trot, the 2:16 pace and the 2:27 pace. The 2:19 trot went over until Tuesday, as it was nearly dark when Sphinx S. won the deciding heat of the 2:27 pace.

Altoka was made a favorite in the 2:14 trot, but did not show during the first two heats, which Charley Herr won. The first time he was driven out by Lanrels, and in the second heat by the favorite. After the loss of two heats Altoka was still an even money favorite. In the third heat Charley Herr led to within 200 feet of the wire. Ruby and Bonnatella came up fast. Ruby could not stand the rush, and Chanty came up on the outside and raced with Altoka to the wire. McHenry lifted Altoka, and won by a head, both drivers whipping like mad. In the fourth heat Altoka broke at the quarter, Charley Herr carrying the big roar off his feet. At the last turn, however, Chanty pounded ahead and came in under the whip, winning by a neck. In the fifth both Altoka and Charley Herr were laid up. Bonnatella went out for the last heat and got it, Chanty chasing her down the stretch. Dr. Spelman came up fast on the outside and got the place.

McHenry drove Altoka for the sixth heat, but was all out on the back stretch, and Chanty took the lead. Bonnatella came up fast, but did not have the speed. Chanty and Bonnatella fought out the seventh heat. Altoka got the flag. Bonnatella took the heat, Chanty breaking at the draw gate.

In the last heat, Bonnatella and Herr both broke at the quarter. Herr was up again at the three-quarters, and Chanty went to the wire ahead. Dsmarest drove hard and tried to shut Charley Herr out of the money, but Kelley saved his distance.

In the 2:16 pace Maximillian was the favorite, selling at $25 to $35 for the field, and later at $15 to $25. The favorite should have won in straight heats, but McCarthy's sulky broke, and Star Hal went out and won the heat. McCarthy laid Maximillian up the second heat, and Johnny Egan led all the way to the stretch, where Gipsy Red came up and nipped him at the wire. Everybody held back the next heat, and Gipsy Red walked home a block ahead of the bunch. Maximillian's friends stuck to him. Egan led to the quarter, when he broke, and McCarthy romped home, with the favorite, a length ahead. They were all tired in the fifth heat, and Maximillian won as pleased. In the sixth and last heat the favorite again had everything going, and McCarthy pulled him in the stretch to save the trailers from the flag. He could have distanced Gipsy Red easily.

For some unknown reason Harry O. was made a favorite in the 2:27 pace, two in three heats. He sold at 7 to 10, and just before the first heat at 4 to 5. They got off well together, but Sphinx S. went out, and was never headed. Harry O. was chasing Sphinx S., when Minnie Simmons came in like a cyclone on the outside, and all three went under the wire whipping. Sphinx S. won the heat, with the favorite second. In the second heat it was Sphinx S. all the way. The favorite was nowhere, but Orin B. chased Sphinx S. home, and might have taken the heat, but broke in the stretch.

TUESDAY, JULY 25.

The 2:19 trotters were sent away in a smart shower, a few minutes after noon. The track was already sticky, but as the week's program was a long one, it was decided to go ahead despite the storm, which was increasing in force every minute.

Hazel Ridge was still liked in this race, which had been left over from Monday. Local pride prompted a little plunging on Temper. The horses got away on the second attempt. Grand Baron shook off the rain drops from his eyelids, dashed to the front, and won as pleased in 2:12 $\frac{1}{2}$ —fast time for a bad track. Dorothea was second, Png third, Allie King fourth and Temple fifth.

The pacers came out in a drenching downpour. Coney, the black gelding that was picked to win the Chamber of Commerce stake at Detroit, but didn't, was the favorite. He dashed to the front at the start and won by a dozen lengths in 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$. Boh Fitzsimmons was second, Shade On third, and Sam Medium fourth.

The rain now came down in torrents, turning the race course into a huge yellow river. The crowd, larger by 2000 than that of Monday, listened to the playing of the hand for an hour, while the clouds persistently refused to roll by.

At 2 o'clock the announcement was made that the races were postponed until Wednesday at 12:30 P. M.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 26.

The third day of the Grand Circuit meeting was distinctly a Geers day. The "silent man" piloted The Queen home with the money in the 2:23 trot, and won the 2:27 trot with the green mare, Merriment. The weather was good, track fine, and 8000 people present. The hookies were hard hit and the talent went away satisfied. There was a plunge on almost all the winners, although they were not all favorites. Hazel Ridge, the chestnut horse that ruled favorite the early betting in the unfinished 2:19 trot because of his performance at Detroit, fell dead on the track while warming up before the race. He was owned by Charles Ganettlett, of Milan, Mich., and valued at $3500. Grand Baron had already won a heat and was a favorite, bringing $25 to $15 for the field. Thomas let Temper out, however, and took the heat, chased out by Dorothea. Grand Baron hurried up his chances and was distanced. In the next heat Temper lost her feet, and McLaughlin took Dorothea ahead. In the last-heat Temper and Dorothea fought it out in the stretch. The latter took the money.

In the unfinished 2:23 pace Coney already had a heat to his credit and was selling $25 to $15 and 1 to 2 on the heat. He had a walk away. In the next heat, however, Boh Fitzsimmons caught the favorite at the three-quarters and beat him home by a neck. Shade On, who carried a good deal of money, was third. Before the next heat was called the judges announced that Shade On was in bad shape and had been withdrawn. Immediately after the start Sam Medium's sulky fouled that of Monnt Clements Boy, and Medium's driver, Foote, was thrown. He held the reins and stopped Medium. No one was hurt. Coney quit, and Boh Fitzsimmons won easily, while Wandering Jew took the place. After that it was all Fitzsimmons' and he won the deciding heat handily.

In the 2:23 trot there was a big plunge on The Queen, the Village Farm mare, with Geers behind her. She brought $25 to $40 for the field before the race, and, after two heats, was selling at $50 to $35. She was a strong favorite, bringing 8 to 5. Bell Esprit led to the head of the stretch the first heat, where she broke, and Bertha Lee rushed in and apparently had the heat. But Geers brought The Queen up with a wonderful burst of speed and caught Bertha Lee under the wire. The second heat was easy for The Queen, and she became almost a prohibitive favorite. In the third heat, however, Royal Baron showed that his performance at Detroit was not a fluke and stuck his nose in front of The Queen at the wire, trotting the mile in 2:11. In the fourth heat The Queen broke at the quarter, and Chsinshot and Royal Baron fought it out in the stretch, Speer bringing the Baron in first. The Queen was still 2 to 1 in the betting.

In the fifth and last heat Chsinshot led to the half, where Geers caught him, and apparently had the race by a mile, but Royal Baron came up fast and at the draw gate was neck and neck with the favorite. Both broke, but Geers pulled The Queen down and poked her under the wire a nose ahead of the Baron, who was off his feet. The judges called both drivers up and questioned them, but finally gave The Queen the heat and race and Royal Baron the place and second money.

In the 2:19 pace Arhuteskan was a favorite, selling at $35 to $50 for the field. There was a quiet plunge on Fritz, a Cleveland gelding. He won in a close finish, with Arhuteskan, Edwards and Violation at his saddle girth. The "hookies" were hard hit on the heat, and race, for Fritz won the next heat and race, Violation chasing him out and James flogging the favorite in third place. The 2:17 trot was another Geers race.

Derby Lass was made a favorite, being $25 to $50 in the pools and standing 2 to 1 for the heat. There was a strong play on the field. Geers showed with Merriment at the half and Black Rohert was the only one to give him an argument in the stretch. The big field made the scoring very tedious in the second heat. It was anyone's race down the stretch, but Sanders made a rush to the wire with Derby Lass and landed her two lengths ahead of Pluck.

Merriment was in a pocket and Geers couldn't get her out. In the third heat Derby Lass ruined the hopes of her backers by breaking at the quarter and again at the three-quarters. Geers had to drive hard, however, to heat the Princess.

THURSDAY, JULY 27.

Hal B., the fastest son of Hal Dillard, to-day paced the fastest three heats paced in a race this year, winning the 2:09 class pacing race in straight heats, and stepping them in 2:06 $\frac{3}{4}$, 2:04 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 2:05 $\frac{1}{2}$. The eleven heats trotted and paced averaged 2:08 14-100, another record for the year.

Twelve thousand people saw the racing on a remarkably fast track, and picked three favorites who won, hitting the hooks pretty hard. Hal B. was a strong favorite. He sold for $50, and the field for $20. It was Hal B. all the way in the opening heat, The Ace and Nicol B. laying up. The judges fined their drivers $25 apiece for not driving for the heat. In the second heat Ace got away ahead, out across and took the pole. He led all the way to the stretch, where he lost his feet. Snow brought Hal B. up fast and went past Ace under the wire in a hard drive.

In the third heat Ace again went out first and was leading at the half, but Hal B. came after him and beat him a head at the wire.

The Abbot, Kentucky Union, Mattie Patterson, John Nolan and Eagle Flanagan came together in the 2:05 trot. The Abbot was a hot favorite, bringing $100 to $45 for the field. In the first heat Kentucky Union led all the way to the head of the stretch. Geers brought up the favorite, and, after a hard chase, landed the Village Farm gelding in first place by a neck.

The second heat was the prettiest of the day. The Abbot lost the pole at the first turn, and Kentucky Union took the lead. Mattie Patterson forced her off her feet and led to the half. Mattie tired at the three-quarters, and Geers crept up with the favorite. Hudson, with Esle Flanagan, had come up on the outside, and made a bid for the heat. Geers made one of his famous drives and was even with Flanagan at the drawgate, heating him at the wire by half a length. To do it, however, The Abbot had to trot the last quarter in 0:29 $\frac{1}{2}$.

The Abbot was a prohibitive favorite after that. In the third heat the bunch got off well together. Eagle Flanagan took the pole at the quarter and led all the way to the three-quarters, with Mattie Patterson second and The Abbot third. Here Geers began to move up, and, shaking off Mattie Patterson, fought it out with Flanagan in the stretch, the Kentucky gelding being beaten by a nose. Geers received an ovation when he returned to the judges' stand.

The third race, the 2:11 class pace, was the cause of much comment, both among the horse men and the talent. Fanny Dillard was a favorite on form. She was sold for $40, and the field for $100, the hook odds being 4 to 5.

The favorite broke just as the word was given, and it was all she could do to save her distance. Hydrogen, who was 2 to 1 for the heat, fought the heat out with Will Leyburn winning in a hot drive under the whip. Fanny Dillard was thirteenth. Fanny was still favorite, although her backers began to hedge a little. In the second heat the daughter of Hal Dillard went away at the word and won with ease, Will Leyton chasing her out. Hydrogen was away back in the rear with the bunch.

The third heat drew the criticism. Fanny Dillard broke in the backstretch, after getting away well. Shank, her driver, seemed totally unable to get her back into a pace, and she almost stopped. Shank then began to drive to save her distance, but was too late. It was Hydrogen and Will Leyburn down the stretch, and Leyburn could not stand the pace, and Hydrogen won the heat and first money.

It is said that the local bettors made quite a plunge on the race, taking the field against Fanny Dillard, who is a Cleveland horse.

There was nothing but Surpol in the 2:16 class trotting, and he sold for $100 to $30 for the field. He won in two straight heats, and was under a pull all the way both times. No one, except his driver and owner, Jack Curry, knows how fast Surpol can go.

FRIDAY, JULY 28.

One world's record and the Glenville track record for pacing were broken at to-day's meeting of the Grand Circuit in the second heat of the 2:14 pace.

The Maid, a bay mare, by Halindex, reduced the world's record for four year-old pacing mares from 2:07 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 2:06 $\frac{1}{2}$. The old record was held by Much Better.

In the second heat of the 2:04 class pacing, Searchlight, the great son of Darknight, reduced the pacing record for the Cleveland track one quarter of a second, making the mile in 2:03 $\frac{1}{2}$. The old track record was held by Frank Egan.

The Keating money poured into the books made Anaconda favorite for the 2:04 pacing. He was a feeble favorite, however, and after the first heat Searchlight took three straight.

Before the race started Anaconda sold in the pools for \$100, the field for \$80. In the first heat Anaconda led all the way. Frank Bogash chased him home in the fast time of 2:04 $\frac{1}{2}$. Chehalis made a bad start and did not save his distance.

The second heat was a great race. Anaconda, Searchlight, Frank Bogash and Directly got off even. They raced to the three quarters like two double teams, Searchlight and Anaconda the first two, Bogash and Directly a length in the rear. Near the draw gate Bogash drew on even terms with Searchlight and Anaconda, Directly hanging behind. There was a terrific drive to the wire. Searchlight finished half a head in front of Bogash, Anaconda the same distance behind Bogash.

Searchlight now was the favorite for the first time. In the third heat Searchlight won easily, Anaconda and Directly fighting for the place, the former winning.

The fourth heat showed that Searchlight was the best of the bunch. He led all the way. Anaconda came up fast on the outside in the stretch and made Searchlight step in 2:04 to win.

The 2:10 class trotting was the betting race of the day. Cresceus was the favorite, selling in the pools before the race at $40 to $100 for the field. Ellore brought $15, while Tommy Britton was poorly thought of at $5.

In the first and second heats there was no one but Tommy Britton. Cresceus and Ellore made no effort to take either heat. In the third heat, Ellore took the lead and led to the quarter. The Cleveland mare, however, lost her feet in the back stretch, and Cresceus then went out and fought for the heat with Tommy Britton. Ellore caught quickly and came up fast. She headed Britton but could not quite reach Cresceus.

In the fourth heat it was Ellore all the way. She was never headed and became the favorite at $50 to $25 for the field. Ellore took the fifth heat easily. The sixth heat was fought out by Cresceus, Tommy Britton and Ellore. They got off with Cresceus in the rear, and he never showed. Ellore went steadily to the three-quarters, with Britton at her girth. Cresceus came up from the fourth position, but could not catch Ellore. He nipped Britton at the wire, however.

A big field faced the starter in the 2:14 class pacing event. Will Tranby was favorite, but The Maid and Hontas Crooks were well liked. The field scored an hour before it got off.

Lily of the Valley tangled her feet in bar hopples and went over on her head. Driver end mare was uninjured. Than Clashmore ran into Leverage, and both drivers were thrown, and as a result Clashmore was drawn. When they did start there was nothing in the heat but Will Trenby. Hontes Crooka was second. Before the race started Trenby sold for $50, the field for $200. After Trenby's win Trenby brought $30, the field $20. Trenby broke in the second heat, but just after the word. Hontes Crooka took the lead, but was beaten in the stretch by The Maid, who came very peeing the heat in 2:06 1/2, the record for four-year-old peeing mares.

In the third heat Trenby brought $14 to $25 for the field. He again got away behind, and The Maid jogged home on an easy winner.

Dainty Daffy, a black mare by Wilton, was a $50 to $15 favorite in the 2:21 class trotting, and won in straight heats. She broke in the stretch in both heats, but had big leads and got back on her feet so fast that she got home ahead with ease. Twelve thousand people saw the race.

SATURDAY, JULY 29.

The closing day at Cleveland was marked by good racing. Miss Logen won the 2:09 pace, heating a field of ten fast ones. In the first heat Ananies and Miss Logen contested every inch of the ground, the former winning and cutting a half second off his record of 2:06 1/2.

In the next Ananies was never headed, but Princa Alert chased him home in a 2:05 heat. The pace told on the favorite, and from that on he was never a factor in the race, nor was Princa Alert.

The third heat Princa Alert started way in the rear and Miss Logen took the lead, keeping it to the finish. She won as she pleased and held up coming home so as not to distance some of the tail anders. Sherman Clay made a nice drive and finished second.

In the fourth heat Miss Logen and Sharman Clay were the contestants until the stretch was reached, when Royal Shaldon concluded he was in the race and came up into second position, but could not reach the leader. Before the fifth heat Miss Logen was a warm favorite, and while the scoring was going on she gave her backers a hard scare. As soon as the word was given, however, she settled down to business, and Royal Sheldon chased her all the way, but did not have the speed to win.

Daryl Less was the favorite in the 2:24 trot, but she never cut much of a figure, although she got third money. Owyhee took the lead in the first heat and kept it, while Georgia Carney finished a good second.

Owyhee and Georgia Carney led to the half, and it was a race home, the latter winning by a nose.

The two heat winners were the only contestants who cut any figure in the deciding heat. Georgia Carney led to the half, and coming home broke. Owyhee winning the heat and race. Summaries:

Harness Meeting at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, July 31.—The Grand Circuit meeting opened to day under the most favorable conditions. The weather was clear and the track fast, though it will improve considerably with continued fair weather. There were three races on the card, and, with the exception of the 2:23 pace, they were almost featureless.

The big race of the day was the 2:08 trot, with four starters. The Abbott, Eagle Flanagan, Kentucky Union and Mattie Peterson. The Abbott was almost a prohibitive favorite and the hay gelding did not disappoint his backers, winning in straight heats. Eagle Flanagan was expected to give The Abbott a brush, but the favorite won with ease being pushed only in the second and third heats. The Abbott flipped a quarter of a second off his record in the second heat when he went the mile in 2:07 1/2.

In the 2:14 pace Boh Fitzsimmons won in straight heats taking the first in the fast times of 2:07 1/2. There were nine starters in this race, but Boh Fitzsimmons was almost a prohibitive favorite. The 2:23 pace furnished the only excitement of the day. There were seven starters, and although Shada On was picked by many to win, Wandaring Jaw sold favorite in the pools and his backers did not finish when Shade On lended the first heat. Only four horses remained in the race after the first heat, Wandaring Jew, Shade On, Beauty Spot and Mount Clemens Boy.

The Jew took the second and third heats in apparently easy style and looked a sure winner, but in the fourth heat he broke several times and showed evidence of weakening, dropping into fourth place, while Shade On took the heat. When the horses scored for the fifth heat it was evident that the Jew was out of it. He nearly fell just after he passed the wire and tumbled far behind the hunch, being shut out of second money by the distance flag. There was a sharp brush between Shade On and Mount Clemens Boy at the finish but the former won by a length under the whip. Results:

Trotting, 2:08 class, purse $2000.—The Abbott won in straight heats. Time, 2:09 1/4, 2:07 1/2, 2:07 1/2. Eagle Flanagan second, Mattie Peterson third. Kentucky Union also started.

Pacing, 2:14 class, purse $3000.—Boh Fitzsimmons won in straight heats. Time, 2:09 1/2, 2:10, 2:09. Fairview second, Blaze Boy third, Star Hall, Gypsy Lend, Walnut Lad, Sweet Violet, Lily of the Valley and Barr Patch also started.

Pace, 2:23 class, purse $3000.—Shade On won the first, fourth and fifth heats. Time, 2:17 1/2, 2:17, 2:16 1/2. Mount Clemens Boy second, Beauty Spot third. Wandaring Jew distanced in the fifth heat won the second and third heats. Time, 2:09 1/2, 2:09 1/2. Annie Thornton, Menda Emperor and Frazier also started.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 1.

The sensation of the second day's meeting of the Grand Circuit meeting at Columbus was the performance of Ace in the 2:10 pace (unfinished). The Canadian horse surprised even his warmest admirers by his staying qualities end his speed, winning the third heat of the race in the fast time of 2:05 1/2.

It was an ideal day for racing and the track was fast. The sport was quite in contrast to that of yesterday, each event furnishing some interest and excitement.

There was a long delay in starting the first race, the 2:17 trot, occasioned by the drawing of Pilot Evans. This horse, which was formerly owned by M. W. Jones, of Willard, Ken., had been purchased the previous night after the pools had been sold on the race, by N. W. Huhinger, the owner of Royal Baron, which was entered in the same race. As Huhinger could not under the rules start both horses Pilot Evans was drawn. A protest was at once raised by those who had bought pools, as the gelding had been considered a factor in the race. A compromise was reached by declaring off all pools in which Royal Baron had been favorite, or in which Pilot Evans had figured in the field. Royal Baron was laid up the first two heats of the race and then won easily in consecutive heats, Wilask being the only horse able to push him.

Americus was the favorite in the 2:19 pace, but after taking the first heat could not connect, and Frea Bond won in consecutive heats with scarcely any effort.

The 2:10 pace proved to be an interesting race. There were eleven starters, and Ace sold favorite in the pools, with The Maid a close second. Ace was heavily backed on the strength of his showing at Detroit, when he pushed Hal B. in two fast heats, finishing second. The Canadian horse made a very poor showing in the first heat and could do no better than finish third in the second. His backers did not waver, however, and the speed which he showed in the third heat indicated that their confidence had not been misplaced. Ace took the heat after a neck-and-neck brush with The Maid all around the track to the stretch, where Eyelet shot by The Maid and made a game but unsuccessful effort to heat out the leader. Ace won the fourth heat by an easy distance, but darkness prevented the race being finished.

Fred Kohl, a black horse by Gny Wilkes—Mystic, and bred in California, went to heat his record of 2:10, and started a mile in 2:07 1/2, paced by a running mate. Results:

2:17 trot, purse $3000.—Royal Baron won third, fourth and fifth heats. Time, 2:12, 2:12, 2:12 1/2. Wilask won first heat in 2:11 1/2, and was second. Jack D. won second heat in 2:12 1/2, and was third. Robert J., Lord Vincent, Precision, Josephine Dixon and Merriment also started.

2:19 pace, purse $3000.—Free Bond won second, third and fourth heats. Time, 2:11 1/2, 2:13 1/2, 2:13 1/2. Americus won first heat in 2:11, and was second. Honey Horner was third. Helpless, Minnie Young, Harry Paul and Charley M. also started.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 2.

Searchlight paced the fastest races of the year at Columbus on Wednesday, having his field easily it is said. Anaconda was up close to him, however. The Maid won her race handily and still further lowered the record for four-year-old pacing mares, her time for the first heat being 2:05 1/2. The results of the races were as follows:

Pacing, 2:10 class, purse $2000.—The Maid won the fifth, sixth and seventh heats. Time, 2:05 1/2, 2:07 1/2, 2:08 1/4. Ace won the third and fourth heats and was second. Time, 2:05 1/2 and 2:09. Eyelet won the second heat in 2:07 1/2 and was third. William Mc won the first heat in 2:07 1/2, Arbuteiskin, Hydrogan, Fanny Dillerd, Fira Gilt, Split Silk, Minnie, Irena and Donogh also started.

Pace, 2:04 class, purse $2000.—Searchlight won in straight heats. Time, 2:03 1/2, 2:04 1/2, 2:04. Anaconda was second and Frank Bogash third. Directly, Bessie Bonahill and Chchalis also started.

Trotting, 2:24 class, purse $3000.—The Queen won in straight heats. Time, 2:11 1/2, 2:12, 2:12 1/2. Owyhee second, Chain Shot third. Amias, Escobar, Princess, Jean Lee, Tesla and Ed Winter also started.

Trotting, 2:12 class, purse $3000.—Bonnatella won the first fourth and fifth heats. Time, 2:10 1/2, 2:10 1/2, 2:11 1/2. Altoka won the third heat in 2:13 and was second. Dr. Leek won the second heat in 2:10 1/2 and was third. Tudor Chimes, Caryla Carna, Georganna, Pilot and Ruby also started.

A PAIR OF MARES were sold in this city within the past month for $2250. They were not large, probably weighing not over 1050 each, and were not fast trotters. They were of solid bay color, well matched, of handsome conformation, and, it might be added, perfectly mannered. They were for a lady's carriage and their manners were guaranteed. The lady who purchased them did not care about their breeding, nor their ability to show speed, but she wanted a pair that looked well, acted well, and were safe and reliable. The mares in question filled the bill and she paid the sum of $2250 cheerfully. The gentleman who sold the team had spent some time and money having them thoroughly educated for the work they will now be called upon to do, but the price he received will pay a profit on the investment. While in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN recently he said that there was a demand for just such teams and also single horses of the same description that it was impossible to fill, and added that he could readily dispose of fifty at good prices had he the horses. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has on many occasions heretofore referred to the opportunity that is afforded California breeders who will produce for the market horses of the proper style and conformation for carriage and park purposes. Those that are thoroughly mannered will bring large prices, and those that fill the bill in shape, size, color and style will sell at a good profit, even though they are unbroken. What is wanted is horses with good bone, short backs, handsome heads and necks, with a "breedy" look, sound and all right. They can be produced, and when produced they can be sold. This subject is worth the attention of farmers. If they have mares of the Hackney or Morgan type and will breed them to stallions of the same description, they certainly ought to get a fair average of colts and fillies that will attract buyers when two or three years of age. The demand for horses used by the wealthy classes is increasing and the supply to fill the demand is not. New York buyers are scouring the country for high class carriage horses and are having great difficulty finding them. It is reported that several of the leading buyers in the East will be in California this winter looking for horses to fill orders. Our horse breeders should be able to furnish them with at least a portion of what they want.

WE REGRET to announce that the Horse Fancier, a New York weekly journal devoted principally to the thoroughbred horse, has discontinued publication. It is strange but true, that although the running horse seems to draw the largest crowds to the tracks, journals devoted to his breeding and the races in which he contests, cannot attract much patronage in this country. The Horse Fancier was ably edited and deserved the support of the thoroughbred breeders of America.

JUDGING RACES, like many other things, is a much more difficult job than it looks to be. The following from a contemporary is to the point and very apropos at this time: "It has been well said that a had judge will do more to injure a track than almost any other thing that can be named. And the same authority adds that a good judge is a level-headed, practical horseman, familiar with the rules, the customs of the turf; also familiar with horses and their drivers. Experience—and long experience at that—with racing matters can alone make the competent judge. He must be a man of steel-like nerves, anxious for the right and to do the right. He must be capable of thinking quick and acting quick; have no favorites to reward nor enemies to punish. "Why," said a gentleman to a friend, in speaking of a close finish, "that judge gave me the heat, and we are not on speaking terms." "You forget," said the friend, "that the judge knows his business, and is a gentleman." The former could not understand how the judge could be his enemy and yet make a decision in his favor. To a good judge all horses in a race are alike in the possibility of winning. He will never anticipate the defeat of a horse. It is his duty to see that the horse is not made to suffer the ignominy of defeat by the tactics of the man behind him. A good judge must not only be a good horseman and have an accurate knowledge of the rules, but he should be a good judge of men. Drivers as a rule are not modeled after the pattern of perfect men. The disposition of a driver will almost invariably crop out in scoring, and an experienced and capable judge will detect in one or two trials the quality of the men he has to deal with. To protect each driver as far as possible and see that one has no undue advantage over the other is the duty of the judge. An inveterate adherent of the pool box should not be permitted to occupy the judges' stand in races where there is a pool box. It is true that there are men who can hold pools on a race and still be capable of giving a just decision adverse to their interests. It is equally true that drivers have very little confidence in a judge whose pool gambling proclivities they know to be in the ascendant. In cases of close decision the loser by the judgment will, whether justly or not, attribute the decision to the influence of the pool box. Good judges are hard to find, but they can be found, and when found should have the most absolute recognition. When the office is well filled it should be rewarded by the highest pay.

THE Westchester Racing Association advertises to day a grand list of stakes for the fall meeting of 1899, and for the spring and autumn meetings of 1900, 1901 and 1902. The entries close Tuesday, August 15th. We have entry blanks at this office and will mail them to any address. The events of 1901 are for now yearlings and the Belmont Stake of 1902 is for foals of 1899.

MENLO PARK RACES.

Amateur Racing Association Will Have a Day of Sport August 12th.

The members of the Menlo Park Amateur Racing Association have issued a capital card for August 12th. This will be the first meet of the new organization, but the care shown in arranging the schedule of events and the careful plans made for the success of the races show that in the management are some veteran turfites.

Seven races are on the card, and there should be from six to eight horses in each event.

The prizes are, with one exception, silver cups, and in some races a cup will go to second horse. The exception is the fourth race—the Menlo Park Plate—one mile, open, at 175 pounds, in which the prize is a beautiful silver plate. Here are the races and conditions:

First Race—Three sixteenths of a mile, for ponies not exceeding 14 2, to be ridden by boys under 15 years; silver cup.

Second Race—One-quarter of a mile dash, for ponies not exceeding 14 2; riders to draw lots for mounts; weight, 185 pounds; silver cup.

Third Race—Half a mile, open to all; 5 pounds' allowance for each inch under 15.2; weight, 175 pounds; silver cup.

Fourth Race—Pony steeplechase; one mile and a quarter, over 5 hurdles; 2 pounds' allowance for each 1/4 inch under 14.2; weight, 185 pounds; silver cup.

Fifth Race—Menlo Park Plate; one mile on the flat; open; 5 pounds allowance for each inch under 15.2; 175 pounds; silver service.

Sixth Race—The Visitors' Steeplechase; one mile and three-quarters, over 5 hurdles; 5 pounds allowance for each inch under 15.2; 175 pounds; silver cup.

Seventh Race—One half mile, for ponies not exceeding 14.2; 2 pounds allowance for each 1/4 inch under 14.2; 180 pounds; silver cup.

The races will be given on the Selby track; which P. W. Selby has kindly placed at the disposal of the club. This is one of the best private courses in the State, a full mile and is in capital shape. The conditions of the races will be strictly observed. Every rider will be required to weigh before and after each race. A pound underweight at the judges stand will disqualify.

The arrangements for the comfort and pleasure of the public and guests of the association are complete, and the races, which will begin at 2 o'clock, will be run promptly on time.

The following gentlemen compose the racing committee: Judge, Chris W. Smith; clerk of the scales, Joseph A. Donohoe; official measurer, John B. Cesserly; starter, E. L. Eyre.

Among the subscribers of the association are: Hon. C. N. Felton, C. N. Felton Jr., E. W. Hopkins, Timothy Hopkins, Major J. L. Rathbone, P. W. Selby, J. Leroy Nickel, Theodore Payne, J. A. Donohoe, Charles Holbrook, Harry Holbrook, S. J. Moore, R. D. Girvin, E. L. Eyre, Perry Eyre, Robert Eyre, Howard Stevenson, Atherton Meconard, Richard Stevenson, Dr. Stenley, Edgar Mills, John P. Cesserly, William Talbot, Frank Moulton, Chris W. Smith, W. J. Adams, W. O'B. Meconough, J. K. Prior, George Jennings and others.

Sulky Notes.

SANTA ROSA August 14th.

It will be a great meeting.

ALL the creek trotters and pacars will be there.

THE person who misses Santa Rosa misses a treat.

ORBIN HICKOK was one of the timers at the Cleveland meeting.

ELLEN MADISON 2:12½, by James Madison, is the fastest four-year-old trotter of the year.

BOODLE 2:12½, is expected to trot as fast as his record whenever he starts this year.

ROAD horses handled and for sale. Orders taken. Address D. R. Misner, 1309 Fulton street, city.

A RUSH order is out for three hundred horses for the U. S. Cavalry. They are to go to Manila this month.

THERE will be good special purses offered for the fast horses at Santa Rosa that are not already entered.

THE nominations for the fast classes at the Breeders meeting appear in the program of races on our first page.

THE Hackney stallion Green's Rufus, the premier at Baywood Stud, San Mateo, has earned $1000 in fees this year.

FRANK SCRINNER has the program privilege for the Santa Rosa meeting and this important work will be well done.

CHAS. KEER of Bakersfield, arrived in San Francisco Monday with nine fine looking roadsters, by Corbett Wilkes and Antrim.

J. M. NELSON will sell at auction next Thursday at the Alameda track about twenty head of good roadsters and expressers.

THE Island trade in horses is growing every day. J. M. Nelson sold one lot of 22 head for shipment to the islands this week.

A CARLOAD of horses from Santa Ana arrived at the Santa Rosa track last Wednesday. There are some fast green ones among the lot.

KINGMOND 2:10½, all things considered, is the best green trotter the turf has ever seen. He is extremely fast and as game as a pebble.

PAT FARRELL is handling a very fast four-year-old gelding by Diahlo, out of an Electioneer mare. He is a trotter "from the old home."

ENTRIES for the Stockton, San Jose and Los Angeles meetings closed last Tuesday. The Directors of these associations will act upon them to-day.

TEMPER is said to be the fastest trotter of her size in the world. She is barely 14 hands high, weighs but a little over 700 pounds, and her record is 2:12½.

ALMA MATER now has six producing sons, Alsatian, her son by Sultan, being the sire of Governor, a horse that trotted to a record of 2:26½ last week.

AN interesting letter from our old time correspondent Harvey Warde Peck appears on another page. He tells all about the horses and trainers at Santa Rosa.

KNAP MCCARTHEY has succeeded Fred Noble as trainer for the Connecticut horsemen J. H. Bronson, and it is in his charge that Searchlight 2:03½ has been placed.

WORTH OBER was up from Fresno this week. He reports the people of that section as making great preparations for the fair and race meeting that will be held in October.

IF you are not a subscriber to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, better send in your name immediately, so that you will get a full report of all the races on the California Circuit.

JENNIE MAC started in the 2:12 pace at Ottawa, Illinois, July 25th. The race was won by Aelse in straight heats, the time being 2:12½, 2:10½ and 2:10½. Jennie Mac was 5-f-2 in the summary.

THE hoppers sit anything but lightly on Coney 2:09. He goes into them with a vengeance, and the blood was running down his legs after the finish of the race for the Chamber of Commerce stake.

SAM GAMBLE has been engaged as starter during the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders meeting at Santa Rosa. Mr. Gamble made an excellent record there last year with the starter's flag.

MISS LOGAN is all right and her winning race at Columbus, where she reduced her record to 2:06½, shows that she is very likely to do as Dr. Boucher believes she will—beat the record of Lenna N. 2:05½.

JACK W., 2:12½, the handsome chestnut son of Wald-tein, is in training in Humboldt county and is entered in the free-for-all trotting events at the Eureka and Ferndale fairs, which will take place in September.

A COMING sidewheeler wonder is said to be the Canadian pacer Free Bond 2:08½, who will join the Grand Circuit meeting at Fort Erie. He is owned by F. D. Miller, of Bath, Ont., and if he is on edge it will take a prospective world's champion to beat him. He was sired by Simon, a son of Sidney, that was bred by the late L. U. Shippee, of Stockton, and sold to John Graham, of Ontario, Canada.

SURPAL, Surpol, Serpol, Serpal, Sarpul, Surpal, 2:10—I have seen it all these ways. Which is right? asks a writer in Turf, Field and Farm. The Year Book has it Surpel, but the Palo Alto catalogue spells it Serpol, which is probably correct.

ELLEN M., by Blue Boy, son of Blue Bull, dam Punch, by Blue Bull, is now a member of the selectest of all broodmare lists. She was qualified as a double 2:10 producer with her son end daughter, Hal B., 2:03½ and Fanny Dillard 2:08½.

THREE thousand dollars has been raised by the citizens of Ferndale, Humboldt county, toward the fund for a fair end race meeting to be given there in September. A good program of races has been provided and a successful meeting is assured.

HONORS are about even between the two Massachusetts breeders, John E. Thayer and J. Malcolm Forbes. The former bred Moth Millar 2:07½, the fastest New England bred pacar, and the latter bred Nico 2:03½, the fastest New England bred trotter.

COL. KUSER is again the champion trotter of Enropa. He reduced the mile race record over there recently to 2:10 1-5, and a few days ago won a two-mile race in 4:30. The best American record at the distance is 4:22, against time, by Greenlander and 4:45 in a race by Monette.

THE Oregon State Fair opens September 15th. Racing begins on Saturday, the 16th, and will continue for six days. There has been $5000 hung up for harness end running races, the purses ranging from $125 to $400. Hopples are not barred and no pools will be sold on heats.

ALTHOUGH we confidently hope that the two-minute trotter will yet materialize the accomplishment of the fact will require a mighty effort. A horse trotting a mile in two minutes would finish a little over 160 feet in front of a horse trotting in 2:03½, the record of the champion Alix.

KKATAWAH 2:05½, the great young pacar bought by James Butler of New York at the Madison Square Garden sale last November, is only being worked slowly at East View Farm. He will not be raced this season at all, his owner thinking that a twelve months' rest will make him better for next year.

ED GEERS has sent the three-year-old colt Hal Direct, in which he owns a half interest, back to Tennessee. He thinks him one of the most promising prospects he ever drew a rein over. He worked a half at Louisville in 1:07. He won't be raced until next season. The colt is by Direct, out of Bessie Hal.

FANNY PUTNAM 2:15½ will start in the races in which she has been entered in California, her owner, Mr. W. G. Stevenson of Victoria, B. C., having paid the sum necessary to re-instate her with the American Trotting Association. The mare has been showing well in her work and should be a money winner in her class this year.

WELL, Searchlight and Anaconda have hooked up in the same race twice since the former horse changed hands and the stallion was the winner both times, with Anaconda second. Mr. Keating always told us here in California that Searchlight could carry the extreme clip further than Anaconda, but there were many who thought otherwise.

WANT of condition is responsible in many cases for the so-called quitting propensity. The best horse in the world cannot race gamely and successfully unless properly conditioned. A man who is a good conditioner and who knows when his horses are fit to race is one of the most valuable acquisitions that a racing stable can have.

MR. A. B. SPRECKELS has at the Aptos Ranch a three year old filly that looks near enough like Psyche, the mare George Berry is training, to be a twin sister. Psyche is by Cupid 2:18, out of Emma S., by Speculation, while the three year old filly is by Dexter Prince, out of Miss Valensin, by Valensin 2:23. They would make a perfectly matched team.

GOV. PACHECO, by Electioneer, dam Dame Winnie, sold at auction at Cleveland last week for $230. The most of the breeding stock of W. J. White's Two Minute Stock Farm went for ridiculously low figures, the majority bringing less than $100 a head. The Guy Wilkes yearlings sold well, a full brother to Chanty bringing $630, and the twelve head offered averaging $230.

THE Baywood Stud sold last week to Miss Crocker, daughter of the late Col. Fred Crocker, a pair of carriage mares that are about perfection for a lady's carriage team. They are bays, well matched and with perfect manners. One is by an Arabian horse, the other by the Baywood Stud's Hackney stallion, Green's Rufus, and out of trotting bred mare. The price paid for the pair was $2250.

SINCE 1893, when Mr. A. B. Spreckels' mere Hulda trotted to a record of 2:08½ in the third heat of a race at Buffalo, N. Y., defeating a field of seven trotters for a purse of $5000, that mark has stood as the fastest at the diagonal gait of any of the get of Guy Wilkes. Last Tuesday at Columbus, O., Fred Kohl, son of Guy Wilkes and Mystic by Nutwood, trotted a mile against time, paced by a running horse, in 2:07½. This mile is certainly not to be compared with Hulda's third heat in a race, but it gives Fred Kohl the honor of being the fastest of the get of Guy Wilkes.

JAMES A. MURPHY, former owner of Star Pointer, says the pleasant news he has heard this year came from Dave McClary, who told him that Star Pointer was working to entire satisfaction. "I want to go on record as saying that when Dave strikes a day and a track to suit the horse all this talk about other horses will be over, and I want to see that day because Star Pointer will go to the half-mile pole in 59 seconds and come home in 59 seconds. He was capable of doing it last year, but we started him on set dates and very few of them were at all favorable for two-minute miles." It is said that at the Cadillac in Detroit Mr. Murphy stated his belief that Surpol could beat any trotting stallion in sight, and added: "I don't like to walk, but I would walk out to the Detroit track to bet $10,000 that Surpol can beat any trotting stallion."—American Sportsman.

MAUD S. and Sunol, who were so highly prized by the late Robert Bonner, will remain with the Bonner family until they seek a new home in the happy hunting grounds. The other horses in the stable of Mr. Bonner will be sold in November, and the farm at Tarrytown will be leased to a desirable party or sold. Among the horses that will go under the hammer are such speedy ones as Elfrida, Maud C., Praytell and Worthier.

It is a pity that names for trotters should be so scarce that we have two grey geldings, both named Success, one by Sharman and the other by Superior, and one with a record of 2:12 and the other of 2:12½. When these fellows meet in a race it will be like the two Nightingales several years ago only worse, because there is no difference in color to distinguish the geldings as there was in the case of the mares. Success, by Sherman, by the way, who won at Readville last week, is owned by Frank C. Ives, the billiard champion.—Turf, Field, Farm.

THERE has been some talk of a match race between Sarpol and Pilatus, and Warren Stoner made a proposition to Charley Van Meter to bet $5000 that the gray horse can beat Pilatus. Bruce Baldwin, of the Nutwood Driving Club, of DuBoque, promptly stepped in and offered a $3000 purse for the pair to race for over the DuBoque track August 31st, and the offer still stands, the purse to be divided any way to suit the owners of the horses. The Nutwood Driving Club is not overlooking any of the good things, and the meeting out there looks more attractive to horsemen each day as additional inducements are offered.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY recently purchased a new team which has been shipped to him from Fox Lake, Wis. It is composed of chestnut geldings, five years old, standing 16 hands and weighing 2400 pounds. The President paid $3500 for the pair. They were bred and raised at Fox Lake, their sire being the American raised Arah stallion Damascus, grandson of Linden Tree. The latter was the Arah stallion presented to Gen. Grant by the Sultan of Turkey. The dams are sisters by Clay Pilot II, son of Clay Pilot, grandson of Harry Clay, direct descendant of Grand Bashaw. They will be used as a family team by Mr. McKinley. They have been broken to heavy harness and can do twelve miles to carriage. They are very stylish and have high, all round action.

THERE is as much trouble in pronouncing the name as in managing the new road machine, as the following from an Eastern exchange will show:

Faster than e'er rode Budd Doble
Smoothly sped the automobile,
And he went along so nobly
In his dashing automobile,
Swiftly over many a mile,
Riding in his automobile.
He had no need to cry out "Whoa Bit!"
To his docile automobile.
Thus the gay young Toby Lee
With his automobile
Through the suburbs went a-wheel
In his fine new automobile.

UNDER any other system than the three in five Kingmond would have won the M. and M. at Detroit, taking the summary as it stands. With the two-in-three system in vogue the race would have been his at the end of the fifth heat, and he would likewise have received first money at this stage of the contest under Congressman Sibley's proposed plan of ending the race and awarding the purse to the horse standing best in the summary at the end of the fifth heat. The application of Peter C. Kellogg's scheme to rule out every horse that has been beaten three times by any other horse would have sent Royal Baron to the barn after three heats had been trotted, and would have finished the race the day it was started, giving the money to Kingmond at the end of the fourth heat. Probably the majority of horsemen will say such an award would have placed the best horse at the head of the summary, and this without any reflection on the quality of Royal Baron, who was laid up four heats out of seven.

THE magnificent chestnut stallion Hazel Ridge 2:11½, by Sphinx, fell dead on the Cleveland track last week. He was the property of Chas. Gauntlett, of Milan, Mich., his owner, trainer and driver, and the loss is a severe one. All horsemen will hold sincere sympathy with Mr. Gauntlett in his great loss, which he is illly prepared to stand. Hazel Ridge died of heart disease. He fell dead on the track when warming up for the 2:19 trot. Mr. Gauntlett could have taken $6000 for Hazel Ridge at Detroit last week, after he won the 2:19 trot in 2:11½, 2:14, 2:15½. Had he won in Cleveland he would probably have gone to Germany at better figures. Hazel Ridge was not only a high quality race horse, but a show horse, having won the blue ribbon at the Chicago horse show in 1898. He was a chestnut stallion, 16½ hands, foaled 1891, by Sphinx—Home Maid 2:25½ (dam of Cora Barlum 2:23½), by Royal Fearnought, grandam Nance (dam of Chace 2:20½), by Western Chief Jr. He was bred by Wm. Wright, of Detroit, and took a record of 2:19½ on the half mile track at Toledo, August 25, 1898.

Do horsemen ever stop to consider that horse dentistry is just as important as human dentistry—that most of the ills which befall the teeth in the human being befall the teeth of the horse? The horse is kept in an artificial state. He grinds up his dry oats and hay instead of subsisting on the tender herbage of the fields. He has his teeth made sore and tender by cruel iron bits. By constantly grinding dry, hard hay and oats he wears away certain parts of his molar teeth, leaving sharp projecting points that lacerate the adjoining parts which make the horse suffer great agony. Every humane owner of a horse ought to have a competent horse dentist examine his horse's teeth once or twice a year and put them in proper condition to avoid suffering. Many of the hard lugs on the lines are made so by sore teeth. We have surgeons and physicians and dentists to take care of human ills. We have veterinary surgeons to take care of sick horses, but horse dentistry is a separate profession and a special profession, and but very few veterinary surgeons have made a special study of the horse's teeth and know how to put them in proper condition.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 9, 1899.

MR. W. F. YOUNG, Springfield, Mass.
Dear Sir: I have used your Absorbine for years with the best of results and it has removed bitches that veterinarians have said could not be removed except by cutting.

TROTTERS AND PACERS AT SANTA ROSA.

A Correspondent of the "Breeder" Writes Interestingly of the Harness Horses.

[HARVEY WARDE PECK.]

In the midst of one of the loveliest valleys in California nestles the Santa Rosa race track. The spreading plain, dotted by leafy oaks and winding streams, is covered with evidences of an abundant harvest, while the wooded hills form a picturesque background. The whole is a poem in green and gold, by that wonderful author, Dame Nature. The climate is superb, the water of the best, the track in excellent condition, and all things are conducive to the welfare of man and beast. Here is the place where orchards are heavy laden, where grapes hang in purple clusters, where vast acres of tufted grain drift lazily before the breeze, and where the industry of man is prolifically rewarded.

A mile from the track lies Santa Rosa, the handsomest residence town in this State. It boasts miles of pretty homes, harked in trees and clambering vines—its green lawns, its roses of every hue, its winding hedges and cozy nooks forming a picture which once seen is rarely forgotten.

Among such surroundings as these the Breeders meeting is to be held, commencing on the 14th day of August and closing the 19th. The list of entries has never been so large and great racing will be witnessed. About 100 horses are quartered at the track and twice that number will be here by the time the hell rings. Every morning the rail is lined by local people who are trying to get a line on the different horses. Once in awhile a good thing is uncorked, but generally its along some "midda half" and the industrious individual with his "fly hack" never sees it until it's too late. Yesterday morning a green three-year-old pacing filly stepped a quarter in 31½ seconds, but it was done in such a way that few saw it. Two or three others went the same distance in 32, 32½ and 33 seconds. During the workouts the only Bunch from San Jose occupied the top floor of the stand and clanged the hell incessantly, at the same time breaking off chunks of advice for the drivers that were scoring past. To Mr. Berry, who was driving a nervous mare, and talking solicitously to her, Mr. Bunch howled: "Don't say, 'Whoa, girl! whoa, girl!' George, the way you do, but say, 'Hike! Hike!'" To another he yelled, "Come up faster next time or I'll fine you a hundred," and so it went merrily on, everybody in good humor, the horses working well, the weather perfection, until before anyone realized the time of day, the boarding house bell went ringing for dinner.

For all of you whom annui claims as a victim; for all of you in search of a new sensation; for all of you about to take an outing, there is a panacea that will cure all your ills. Come to the race meet at Santa Rosa and bring your wives and children; you will be well received, nicely treated and amply entertained.

Racing has reached a status where it compares favorably with any other business venture. The trainers and drivers of to-day are men of good sense and good manners, and are gentlemen wherever one meets them. Horses are developed by humane and rational methods, and the successful driver is not measured by the amount of whiskey he can consume nor the possession of a class of billingsgate that would disgrace a fishwoman. To reach the top he must have ability, industry and intelligence, and most of the drivers of to-day possess these characteristics. So throw dull care aside and come and get a run for your money. Witness contests that will set your pulses going and remind you of those dear, dead days when the light harness horse was the pride of the American people. All the world loves the trotter, and no mechanical device propelled by gasoline or steam will ever be able to usurp the place he occupies in the hearts of the people.

The following owners and drivers are located at the grounds and expect to have things just at an edge when the big horn goes ump-ta-rarum, and the seductive voice of the pool seller is heard inquiring, "What's the matter with Al Gregor? See him chase the air! Don't you wish you had a ticket on him?"

The well known driver, Henry H. Hellman, of San Jose, has a string that should get some of the money. Among them is Ned Thorn 2:18, a tried and true campaigner, who started many a time last year and was never behind the money. Thorn is by Billy Thornhill and is owned by Mr. Topham, of Milpitas. Another one owned by him is the three-year-old filly Blanche T., by Hambletonian Wilkes. She is entered through the circuit in the three-year-old classes.

The black colt Boodle Boy is a smooth two-year-old owned by that all round horseman and good fellow Geo. Bollinger, of San Jose. The balance of the stable is owned by Mr. Hallman himself. The pride of the lot is the brown stallion Alta Rio. This fellow is destined to be a great horse if looks and breeding go for anything. He has the conformation of the stock horse as well as a race horse. His breeding is along very fast lines. His sire was Altamont, who has produced a lot of extreme speed and his dam was Tecora, by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 2:22. She is the dam of five that have stopped a watch at better than 2:20, two of them being Chelalis 2:04½ and Dal Norte 2:08. Alta Rio is a brother to all five and he must be about all right. He is a green one but he will make somebody's pacer go some to heat him.

Alton is a full brother to him and is entered in the two-year-old stakes.

The last but not the least is the hay mere Myrtha Whips, by Whips. All horsemen know something of Azote and Cobwebs, both of whom are practical examples of the sort of race horses the dead Whips sired—and this seven-year old mare is a worthy member of the family. She has a nice way of going, is steady under fire, and can step a—well, perhaps it won't do to say how fast a clip.

C. F. Bunch, of San Jose, has six, four of which belong to the Vendome Stock Farm. They are:

Iron Alto 2:13½, by Palo Alto 2:08½—Elaine 2:20, by Messenger Duroc. Palo Alto was the late Governor Stanford's pride and joy and to this day holds the stallion record to a high wheeled sulky. The dam of Elaine produced eight with records of 2:30 or better, another with a mark of 2:31½, besides being the dam of the great collectioneer.

Dr. Frasse is a four-year-old gelding by Iron Alto, with a mark of 2:18½, out of a mare by Guy Wilkes.

Sister D. is a full sister to Dr. Frasse and is three years old and is well entered.

Vendome is a two-year-old black colt, a full brother to the above two, and is entered all through.

Mr. Bunch has a couple owned by Hostetter and Montgomery, of San Jose.

The first is Boodle 2:12½. He is entered in the free-for-alls along with a fast lot, but his driver, looking me squarely in the eye, assured me that Boodle was a "hot number," whatever that may mean. Some day I shall ask Dan Misner—he'll know.

The second is Boodler, a strong brown gelding with no record, that will be a good horse some day.

Geo. W. Berry is campaigning A. B. Spreckels' horses. They are Pyscha, Mamie Riley and Sen-San.

Pyscha is a clever mare by Cupid, out of Emma S., by Speculation. She is entered in the slow classes and if she don't make the 2:30 and 2:40 class pacers go some it will be because the unexpected happens.

Mamie Riley is a well known mare, level, fast and a strong finisher. She is a sweet dispositioned little mare and can be placed any where. She acts well and ought to be able to give the 2:16 class about all they want to do to beat her. McKinney never sired a much better one, all things considered, and if she is Irish, here's my love to her.

Sen-San is a green three-year-old by Dexter Prince that is being carted around that she may be taught her business in life.

Mr. Berry has Fanadma, a mare by Eros. She belongs to Mr. Dotard, of San Francisco. She has a record of 2:19½ and is entered in this class at Sacramento and San Jose.

S. E. Kent, ex-Sheriff of San Benito county, is here with five horses, the property of J. B. Iverson, of Salinas.

Prince Gift is familiar to all horsemen. He has a mark of 2:12 and is entered in the free-for-all.

Dictress 2:18½, by Dictator, is entered in the 2:18 class and 2:15 class pace all through.

Prince Neer is a green one by Eugeneer, out of a mare by Kentucky Prince. He is entered in the slow classes.

Gnidon is a green pacer sired by Almont Patchen and is entered in the slow classes all through.

Dagmar is a two-year-old by McKinney, entered in the Breeders' Futurity and the two-year-old classes generally. Sam Norris has a couple of fast mares, the property of Dr. Finlaw, of this city. The Doctor is an ardent patron of good racing and has a private breeding farm in the outskirts of the town, where a lot of high class horses are bred, both for track and road.

Diana is a hay mare by Daly 2:15, dam a full sister to that game horse and good sire Alexander Button. This mare is without a record but she can step a merry clip. She is a fine looker. She is entered in the 2:27 and 2:30 class trots here and the 2:40 class at Oakland.

Bertha R. is a mare with no record, but she can step a 2:12 clip. She is by Daly, out of a Steinway mare. She is entered in the 2:30 class here, the 2:28 class at Oakland and the 2:19 class at Sacramento.

Julia D. is a hay mare by Daly, dam by Eugene Casserly. She is entered in the slow classes in Oakland.

Joe Cuicello is the trainer for Chas. Newman of San Francisco. He has Ruby M. 2:11½, by Almont Patchen. She is entered in the free-for-all pace all through.

Butcher Boy 2:17½, is a well known pacer, who will try conclusions with the 2:16 class pacers.

Maud Newman is a road mare with a record of 2:26½, by Anteo Jr. She is entered in the 2:22 class.

Dan Misner is a member of the old brigade. The trotting business has put many a gray hair in Dan's head, but still he refuses to use dya of any kind. Dan has a stable of good horses.

Azalia is a black mare with a record of 2:22½, by Mambrino Wilkes. She is entered in the 2:22 class all through.

Athavis is a bay horse with a record of 2:18½, sired by Clovis out of that great broodmare Athalia (dam of Athadon). He is entered in the 2:19 class and is a good horse.

Everybody knows Al Gregor 2:11, by Steinway. When Dan turns him around watches click on all sides, and Mr. Berry sings, "That's my Honolulu Lady." He is a free-for-all.

C. Rodriguez, of Salinas, has Shalby 2:20, by Wilkes Moor. He is a high gaited, good going gelding and will try to beat the boys in the 2:19 and 2:16 classes.

Juan Chico is a green gelding by Bay Rum, that is entered in the 2:30 and 2:40 classes.

Alta is a black steed, by Almont Jr., dam Hattie by Altamont. He is in the 2:25 and 2:30 class pace all through.

Roht. Malone has the two full brothers Clay S. 2:14 and Richard S., both by Grovar Clay. The former is in the 2:18 class and free-for-all trots and the latter is in the slow classes. These horses are owned by Mr. Schlosser of San Rafael.

Richard Ahles is the trainer for the Pierce Bros. of San Francisco. He has a stable of six or seven, the fastest of which are the two mares Bonsaline and Dolly D. Bonsaline has a mark of 2:16½, and is a daughter of Stamboul. Dolly has a record of 2:21 and was sired by Sidney Dillon. The other day Mr. Ahles, considering things were about ripe, took up his belt a couple of holes and drove the pair a clip that jugged the fences. Immediately after this performance Messrs. Bunch, Helman and Berry joined in singing "There's no place like Home!" They are, however, here yet.

Velotta, a green two-year-old, by Brummel, Guy Cars, by Guy Wilkes, Helen B., by Diahlo and Fram, by Direct, completes Mr. Ahles' string and they are a highly bred lot and should be heard from down the line.

Joe Reidy has a very good one to tie in the gelding Don 2:15, by Falrose. This chap is entered in 2:12 and 2:15 class all through the circuit.

John Quinn has the big, brown stud Arthur W., by Wayland W. Arthur has a mark of 2:15½, but that's no criterion of how fast he can go. He steps away from the wire at a two-minute gait and acts like he meant it.

John A. is a full brother to him and is entered in the three-year-old and 2:18 class paces all through.

C. D. Jeffries trains a public stable and incidentally works out something that is threatened with speed for the veteran of the turf, Monroe Salisbury. Mr. Jeffries has I Direct 2:13, by Direct; Brice McNeil 2:19½, by Dudley; Hazel Kinney 2:12½, by McKinney; Fanny Putnam 2:15½, by Christmas; Annie Rooney 2:17½, by Strathway, and Marguerite 2:29½, full sister to Annie. They all act well, work well and eat well and good reports are expected from them. Mr. Jeffries is a capable man and a good teamster.

Bert Webster is to drive Mr. Salisbury's horses, it is stated. Mr. Salisbury has Birdcatcher, a green one, by Direct; Tiptonous 2:29½, by Antinous; Lady McDonald, a four-year-old, by Direct; Alix B., by Nutwood Wilkes, out of the dam of that redoubtable little horse, Little Albert; a green one called Lady Salisbury, by Directum 2:05½; Taeron, a green gelding, by Albion, out of a thoroughbred mare by Ten Broeck, and Thera, a full sister to the above gelding. Thera was "tried out" the other day and she acted like she wanted the stand moved up the stretch some. She may improve, however. One swallow doesn't make a summer. All the horsemen have only good things to say of Mr. Salisbury and they wish him all manner of good luck. Mr. Webster has the three-year-old filly Corona, by Direct, which he intends starting in all the classes for her age.

Wm. Lumsden has a great pair of mares in Myrtha and Rohlet. Myrtha was a great three-year-old and heat Viola Wilkes at Sacramento eight years ago, at which time she took a record of 2:19½. She is by Anteo, out of a mare by Nutwood, and is a very high class, grand looking, big mare. She is now eleven, but she can go a mile plenty fast for most anybody's trotter.

Rohlet is a pacing filly and has a fine way of going and great turn of speed. Anything that heats them won't have much time to look around at the scenery.

Joe Smith, of Vallejo, will arrive here Thursday with Dollican 2:15½; Gaff Topsisail, a green pacer, by Diahlo, and Tom Smith, a two-year-old colt, by McKinney.

Roht. Noble has Ira 2:14, by Ira, dam by Poscora Hayward. She is entered in the free-for-all at Oakland and Santa Rosa. He also has Ruby N., a full sister, eligible to the slow classes.

Mart Rollins has driven a lot of horses in his day and he is still in the ring. He has a big, fine gelding, sired by Silas Skinner, that has been a mile in 2:20. This chap is called Granvilla and is a good gaited, hold going horse. Mr. Rollins also has a local pacer named Pickup and a three-year-old filly sired by Robin, out of a Philosopher mare. This youngster is the property of John Walker, of this city, and is claimed to have a great turn of speed.

Frank McGregor, one of our local liverymen has a very racy looking hay mare named Eleanor Ann, by Illustrious, dam by Greening's Mogan. She can heat twenty and is a game mare. He also has Cock Robin, a three-year-old pacer by Robin, that is a good colt.

W. C. Halman has the stallion Pacheco Wilkes, that made the season here, in training. He is a nicely turned, level headed horse, by Guy Wilkes, dam by Sultan. Mr. Helman also has a three-year-old filly, by Hambletonian Wilkes, the property of a Mr. Hal, a resident of this county.

Mora are coming every day and when the gates are thrown open on the 14th, everybody will be ready to have a shy at what now promises to be one of the greatest races meets that ever took place in California, that land of sensational light harness horses.

SANTA ROSA, July 31, 1899.

JACK ATKIN has returned from St. Louis.

BILL JACKMAN is booking successfully at the Saratoga meeting.

J. J. MORAN is preparing Kootsoi and Bathos for the coming races at Oakland.

MR. J. B. HAGGIN has sent the sister to Sir Walter to Elmendorf to be bred to Salvator.

JOE ROSE is at New York, not booking, but having good success hacking his choices in the pool rooms.

WILLIAM MARTIN has signed to ride for Ed. Corrigan. He has joined the big stable at Saratoga, and will return with it to California.

ON the opening day at Saratoga the winners were all ridden by California jockeys, Clawson, Spencer, Hennessy and Turner each proving successful.

HON. W. C. WHITNEY will return to this country early in August, but will remain at Barr Harbor until the opening of the fall meeting at Sheepshead Bay.

WM. M. AYERS & Co. have been awarded the pooling privilege at the Oregon State Fair, which assures a square deal to both horsemen and the public in this department.

MR. W. H. CLARK is truly in desperately bad luck with his jockeys. First Maher's disciplining and then Odom's accident, which is likely to keep the lad on the ground all year.

A MEETING for punters is to be held at New Ulm, Minn., Sept. 1-2, at which good purses will be distributed. Write to Harry N. Somsen, secretary, for full particulars and entry blanks.

GALEN BROWN has fifteen head of runners in training at Sacramento including Libertina, Olinthos, Ravelston, Montallega, Monrovia, Wyoming, Bambonlie, Jennie Riley and several two-year-olds.

MONROVIA is again in training, having been in the stud for the past three years. If this mare stands training she should prove a good money winner during the coming winter, as she is nearly unshakable in muddy going.

THE Duke of Westminster's Flying Fox won his second stake of $50,000 July 14th—the Eclipse, at Sandow park. Flying Fox, who is by Orme, son of Ormonds, has won this season the Two Thousand Guineas, the Derby, the Princess of Wales $50,000 stake, and now the Eclipse, of similar value.

BONEY BOY, Pa Bradley's good Blitzen colt will not race again soon, as he is in a bad way and laid up for repairs with injured limbs and a partial collapse. Mr. Bradley pursued the same horsekilling tactics with this animal that caused the death of Traverser; Boney Boy was raced to a standstill having started in ten races during the last fourteen days.

PATRICK DUNNE is conceded to be one of the most skillful trainers on the turf. Moreover he is a practical horseman who knows how to place his horses to advantage and invariably races them to win. His record on the turf in the number of winning races and percentages in proportion to the number of starts might furnish some interesting reading to some of the Eastern critics who rave about consistency.

THE crowning feature of a list of stake events recently issued by the Coney Island Jockey Club is the Annual Champion of $25,000, a continuous event to close each year on July 15th, and to be run during the autumn meetings, commencing in 1900. The race is for three-year-olds and upward at two miles and a quarter, and already the nominations are piling in.

THE California contingent at Saratoga looks prosperous and seem to be having their fair share of success. A snap shot taken the opening day of the meeting showed Danny Lynch, Eddia Kaufman, Johnny Howard, "Shadow Bill" Murry, Geo. Rose, Joe Rosa, Phil Archibald, Geo. Miller, Kid Blazer, Al Kingsberger and W. E. Bannison, which gave the betting ring a strong California flavor.

THE LOUISVILLE JOCKEY CLUB has decided not to hold any fall meeting. One was proposed and considered, but has been abandoned on the advice of Secretary Charles Price. Mr. Price is of the opinion that while a fall meeting this year would probably prove profitable and popular it would be impossible to get high-class horses, and it would thus sink to the level of a gambling enterprise.

JIMMY BOZEMAN who went to Chicago two years ago in the employ of Louis Ezell and whom the late Col. Clark barred from riding at Harlem because of a bad race on Papper, has been re-instated by Judge Hamilton. In restoring the privilege of riding to Bozeman Judge Hamilton said he was only carrying out Colonel Clark's idea of clemency, as he was sure his predecessor would have taken this step if he had lived.

CHARLEY HOUCK, the eighty-pound lad who was brought out here last winter by H. L. Jones and who is a remarkably strong boy for his weight, is showing promise of becoming a first-class jockey. Last Monday at St. Louis he rode three winners and finished second in two other races. His most serious fault while riding at the local tracks last season was a tendency towards carelessness in finishing.

IN speaking of the chances of Caiman for the St. Leger, Mr. Lorillard does not by any means think the race a foregone conclusion for Flying Fox, but has an idea that with a strong pace from and to and Caiman will outstay the Derby winner. With regard to starting in England Mr. Lorillard says it is a fact that Mr. Coventry does not seem to have the jockeys as much under control as they ought to be. Of the barrier he says it will never be tolerated in England as we have it here.

IT is reported that James R. Keene has already or is about to purchase the Brookdale training establishment in New Jersey, now owned by the Colonel W. P. Thompson estate, and once the breeding establishment of the late D. D. Withers. The report probably arose from the fact that Mr. Keene has engaged Fred Mossom, long attached to Brookdale, to break the yearlings of Mr. Keene's Castleton's stud in Kentucky. Mossom has taken them to the Brookdale establishment for that purpose.

M. CARLES F. PRICE, presiding judge of the Louisville Jockey Club, has received a petition signed by all of the turf writers for the Chicago papers, asking for the reinstatement of Cash Sloan, the jockey who was suspended here last winter for a bad ride on Abuse. Judge Price is also the presiding steward of the California Jockey Club, before whom and his associates in the stand the race in question was run. The petitioners ask for Sloan's reinstatement on the ground that it has been sufficiently punished, and that there may have been some extension in view of Abuse's subsequent indifferent form. Judge Price, however, does not agree with the Chicago turf writers in this opinion, and after a consultation with Messrs. Murphy and Hopper, his associates, has politely declined to take any action. Judge Price has also been importuned by Chicago parties to reinstate W. Callegher and the horse Patroon, ruled off during the recent spring meeting at Louisville. He has refused, however, to do so.

THE pedigree of Flying Fox must, when he studies it, give the Duke of Westminster cause to regret that he ever parted with Ormonds. It was stated, as everybody recollects, that the Duke did not want his horse to beget roars. Yet his Jaca chanced it in at least one case, for Ormonds begat Orma, and Orma begat Flying Fox. The hereditary theory is all fudge. It was avouched by certain writers, who had no reverence for the rank of the noble owner, that the Duke of Westminster did not show a proper spirit, in that he parted with Ormonds at all. A true sportsman would have provided the greatest horse of the century with a home for his old age and not minded the dollars a hit. He would have kept the horse a coddled pensioner, as the Earl of Zetland kept old Barhelle, allowed him the run of a roomy paddock, and provided him with a habitation fit for a prince. Orme, the father of Flying Fox, was the poisoned horse. It was said by one of the reviewers of "Kingsclere" that the story of the famous "Poisoning of Orma" in that work "reads like a romance." Whether that be so or not the story of Flying Fox had a strange, eventful history while he was in training. He must have had a strong constitution, or he could not have emerged from his trial and tribulation, win a great race and then go to the stud unimpaired. The Duke of Westminster has the credit of being one of the best judges of breeding in England. I am not inclined to doubt the asseveration. He has at least one admirable quality. He is not above taking advice. I have not the authority by me, but I fancy it is in print somewhere that the Duke advised to mate Ben d'Or with Lily Agnes. The late Dr. Shorthouse would have found the pedigree a theme to descant on by the hour together. He had views on in-and-in breeding, which the alliance of Orme and Vampire would have vindicated "down to the ground."

OR American horses and jockeys in England the London Sporting and Dramatic News says. "Times change and old things give place to new with ever increasing rapidity. There was a day when the British thoroughbred had no rival on any race course in the world. This is all changed now, and there will never again be a racing season in which many of our most important handicaps will not be won by Australian and American bred race horses. In the year 1899 are all things American especially in evidence. The most successful trainer of the day is the American Huggins; the fashionable jockey of the season also hails from the States; the Yankee Democrat is nearly the best two-year-old of the year; the three-year-old filly Sihola, foaled on the other side of the Atlantic, is the best filly of her age; and the brothers Reiff, also born under the Stars and Stripes, have already shown that, if not so fortunate in their mounts as the favorite of the hour, Sloan, they too, can win races on English courses when their horses are good enough. The elder of these two brothers is L. Reiff, who will be remembered as riding Mr. Wisberd's horses in this country some years ago, and especially for being on the back of the American horse Ramsp, who, owing to a smashed foot, swerved all over the course, and prevented Kilcock winning the Steward's Cup at Goodwood, under 9st. 4lb. It was bad lines for Captain Greer's champion sprinter, who would otherwise have put in a record performance; but it was hardly the fault of Reiff, who is over here again this season riding for the same owner. He cannot, however go to scale at less than 8st. 3 lb, whereas his younger brother, J. Reiff, whose portrait we give elsewhere, is one of the smallest jockeys we have ever seen, and can get up under 6st. In fact, he only weighs some 4st odd, and it is a fact that he is not big enough to saddle his own horse. There was a terrible lot of dead weight under his saddle when he won the New Biennial Stakes at Ascot on Bettyfield, carrying 7st. 3lb., and he was quite unable to carry it all into the weighing room after a nonsaddling. He adopts Sloan's style of riding to a certain extent, and it takes some looking to see him at all as the horse he is riding comes up the course; but he rides a good race, and in spite of his bodily weight, is much stronger than he appears to be. His services are already in considerable request, and are likely to be more so if he continues to ride in this country. Moreover, he is a quiet, well-behaved lad, who is both popular among his fellow horsemen and respected by his employers."

TO THE intense surprise of many of his worshippers in this country, Tod Sloan has been ignominiously set down for quite a long period of time by Arthur Coventry, starter to the English Jockey Club. Sloan incurred the official ire for disobedience at the post, and, in company with several other riders, was given a vacation. Perhaps this will give the diminutive gentleman some idea of his present location on earth, and in the interim of his enforced idleness Tod will grant his devotees in the United States an opportunity to respectfully kiss the hem of his London-made garment.

JOCKEY DANNY MAHER had his first mount since his release by Mr. Clark and engagement by Mr. Keene at Brighton last week. He rode Her Ladyship, a strongly backed favorite at 9 to 10, and finished second. On the way to the post, coming out of the paddock, even before he was visible to many of the spectators, there was a ripple of applause at the lower end of the grandstand, which developed into a decided ovation when he rode out onto the track. With this greeting a few hisses were mingled, just enough to remind Maher of the fickleness of the public. But there was no mistaking the hearty good will of the crowd. The boy has undoubtedly ridden some very poor races. Few jockeys there are who do not ride poor ones. But he has also ridden a number of clever races and on the summary of his jockeyship probably a majority of those who applauded him have a credit balance marked up against his name on their betting slips. Maher's enforced idleness since the Suburban, whether he was guilty of getting Banastar left or not, will no doubt be a lesson to him in the way of careful riding in the future.

JOCKEY TABAL has this to say in The Telegraph, as to the outrageous amount of foul riding that is going on every day on our tracks: "Never in my experience have I seen so much rough and foul riding as there is at present. It occurs in every race, and unless it is stopped, some of these boys will surely be killed. It is all their own fault, at that, for after every race they give one another in the jockey room about what they have done. I have heard one boy boast to another that he had cut him off, and that he would do it again whenever he got the opportunity. There is considerable enmity among them, and it is the desire to beat one another out, by fair means or foul, that causes so much trouble at the post. A jostle in the first rush is not so noticeable as it might be later on in the running, and there are a lot of them that take chances. On the turns the crowding is sure to come, and it is almost as bad in the stretches. This is a matter that ought to be remedied, and I do not say this as much for myself as for the others. There is not one of these youngsters that dares to crowd me in a race. They know that if they do I will pull my hat and let them have it in the most convenient spot—in the face, if necessary. I am glad to say that I never suffer directly, but sometimes it comes to me indirectly. A horse in front of me will be crowded or crossed, and then he comes back on me. I have to keep my eyes peeled for this thing all the time, for I can never tell when I will have to pull up or go around."

OF Caiman and Flying Fox the London Sporting and Dramatic News says: "The only race of any interest yesterday was the match between Caiman and Democles for the Zetland Plate of a mile. Flying Fox had certainly appeared to beat the former of these in the Two Thousand Guineas, earlier than he did the latter in the Derby, and as the Newmarket runner-up was giving 5lb., he must have come on in the opinion of his friends to have been backed as he was at 11 to 4 on. The result was never in doubt as the Yankee colt made all the running from start to finish, and won as he liked by four lengths. On his running Caiman appears to be every bit as good a colt as Flying Fox which I cannot believe to be the case; and the only two explanations are, that, as I have always maintained he is the case, Flying Fox is a better horse at a mile than he is over half a mile further, and that Caiman may have made more than ordinary improvement since the spring. I long ago wrote in these notes that I believed Flying Fox's best distance to be a mile to a mile and a quarter, and that I was informed on good authority, that Caiman's real forte is stamie; from which I deduced the opinion that, if these things are really so, and the Derby winner is not a real stayer, there are more unlikely things than his being beaten at Doncaster. Should Flying Fox turn out to be a 7lb. worse horse at a mile and three-quarters than he is at a mile, and Caiman the same amount better, it would bring these two very near together in the Leger. The result of yesterday's race tends to confirm this opinion, especially as Caiman is evidently coming on."

Mr. Graham E. Babcock, of Coronado, San Diego, left on Thursday evening for a two months' hunting trip in Idaho.

The Marysville Democrat of July 31st says: "Two young men of wealthy parents went from San Francisco to the northern part of the State to spend a month hunting and fishing, but both are under arrest at Castelle. Schilling and York are the names given when arrested and the charge is killing female deer. Two hides were found in their possession with the evidence of sex removed, a plain violation of law."

Pigson Shooters Win.

The trap shooters of Denver scored a victory in the court of Justice Nichols on Friday, July 28th, when the cases against A. B. Daniels and J. A. R. Elliott for shooting live birds in the recent matches at Capt. Jake Sedem's park were thrown out of court. The local shooters were determined to fight the case to a finish. It is generally believed that the decision of Justice Nichols clears the way for future live bird shooting in Denver, although the Humane Society may make another attempt to prevent the sport.

At the Traps.

Trepshooters who fancy live bird shooting will attend the August meeting of the California Wing Club to-morrow at Ingleside. On the Lincoln Club grounds at Alameda an open-to-all blue rock shoot is announced that will bring together a large gathering of shooters. A varied program is on the card, including a prize merchandise shoot, a twelve men team race in the contest for the Neusteder trophy, etc. The "grab-bag" feature will be an interesting one for the participants. The Alert Gun Club members will smesh blue rocks at Birds Point.

The first annual pigeon shoot of the Union Gun Club at Ingleside last Sunday was a successfully conducted affair. There was a good attendance of shooters and spectators. An unusual feature was the presence of many ladies, the club members, their friends and families combining to give the meeting quite a pic-nic character.

Thirty-three shooters were entered in the principal event at twelve birds, all of them were interested in the distribution of a numerous list of appropriate prizes and sixteen men entered in a $2 side pool. First money in the pool was divided between Dick Itgen, W. Price and "McSmith" on clean scores. H. C. Golcher, E. S. Michelsen and E. Klevesahl divided second money, third money going to F. Walpert and Jules Bruner. A six bird race followed as soon as the prizes were distributed. Fifteen men faced the traps in this event, nine of them being in the $1.50 pool. C. Wollem who had the only clean score taking the purse of $13.50. A limited sweepstakes followed which was won by E. S. Michelsen. A scarcity of birds compelled a cessation of the sport earlier in the day than was anticipated.

Most of the shooters taking part in the shoot are novices at pigeon shooting, having heretofore devoted themselves to blue rocks. W. Price has designs upon the Fay medal and is looked upon as a coming pigeon crack. Tom Lewis surprised his friends with some excellent scores. Others there were who showed that they could kill live birds with the same degree of skill with which they break targets.

The scores in detail of the twelve bird match were as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Score. Includes Itgen, Price, Sweeney, J., McSmith, Michelson, E. S., Wollem, Dr. Trask, Golcher, H. The fifth annual dove stew of the Yuba and Sutter Gun Club at Shelton's Grove, Marysville, last Sunday, was attended by some 400 people. Many sportsmen from the northern counties and quite a delegation of local shooters were present. The meeting was voted a grand success in every particular. The committee of arrangements had so divided their work that every detail was well looked after and all in attendance were most hospitably entertained.

Besides the dove stew a sufficiency of venison and chickens were also in evidence, flanked by a liberal supply of cigars, soft drinks and mineral waters.

The shooting tournament was, of course, the main attraction, and some of the best trap shots in the State were on the grounds. The contest for the Appeal Diamond medal was the main event, and was won by Clarence Nauman, of San Francisco, who made the only straight score. The Native Sons' medal was won by John Sanders, of Smartsville. The San Francisco team did some splendid shooting and the various events were all well contested.

In the first event Otto Feudner won first money. Gilbert, of Chico, and Clarence Nauman divided second money. A. J. Wehh won first money in the second event, while Ed. Schultz and J. Steward, of Marysville, won second money. In the third event at twelve live birds, Nauman, Johnson and J. Steward tied on straight scores, Gilbert, John Durst, of Wheatland, and Schultz divided second money. Wehh, Nauman, Schultz, Gilbert and Barthe all had straight scores in the fifth event at twelve pigeons.

The following is a summary of results in the various events at the traps:

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Dove shooting in the vicinity of Wheatland is not yet at its best, however on Thursday last week, five hunters bagged over 23 dozen birds. Joe Bleckford, A. C. and Charles Stagner had of this lot twelve dozen together credited, and Dr. Grant and Mate Hollingshead come in for eleven dozen. The largest part of these birds were sent to Marysville for the dove stew last Sunday.

Robert C. Rosenberg, who with his family was enjoying a camping trip in Mendocino county, was hurriedly summoned to this city early in the week in response to sad tidings notifying him of the passing away of his father Jacob Rosenberg, a gentleman long identified with leading business circles down town. Mr. Rosenberg, Jr., has the sympathy of his many sportsmen friends in his bereavement.

Lucas Cadogan of Oakland and Geo. Scott of San Rafael killed a large buck in the hills above San Rafael last Sunday morning. The buck weighed 143 pounds; the boys camped on Saturday night and hunted about one hour Sunday morning, jumping three bucks in that time with the aid of John Lucas' fine sheep dog Shep, who is one of the best dogs in that section for hunting deer.

A black bear weighing about 250 pounds which roamed the canyons just north of Pasadena was shot by young Harry Hayman of Los Angeles last week. The hunter opened fire on Brnin at a distance of 100 yards, with his repeating rifle; the first shot wounded the animal, which immediately endeavored to come to close quarters, Hayman stood his ground and began to send bullet after bullet at the bear, the fifth shot took effect under the ear—and then skinning was in order.

The open season in Montana for grouse, prairie chicken, fool hens [a small species of grouse, Ed.] sage hens, pheasants and partridges, is from August 15 to December 15. Killing in the closed season, or killing more than 20 of any of the birds enumerated in one day during the open season, is punishable by a fine of not less than $25 or more than $250, or by imprisonment for not less than one month or more than three months or by both fine and imprisonment.

The open season for wild geese, ducks, brant and swans, is from September 1 to May 1 the following year. The punishment for killing in the closed season is the same as noted above.

The open season for deer, antelope and mountain goats is between September 1 and January 1.

William A. Seaver, a widely known and respected gentleman connected with the sporting goods trade for half a century, departed this life on last Sunday evening. While yet a youth he made his first commencement in business life with Francis Tomes, then the leading gun dealer in New York city. Eventually he became one of the firm of Bruff Brothers and Seaver, which continued in the sporting goods line until the formation of the house of Schuyler, Hartley and Graham, when Mr. Seaver made a change and linked his fortune with that of the new firm.

Mr. Seaver's department of this new gun house was the care of a large outside trade, for which interests he was particularly qualified. His duties called him to the Pacific Coast in 1863, since which time he has been identified with the gun, ammunition and sporting goods trade in the West.

In 1886 he made his home here, being the resident agent of the Union Metallic Cartridge Co., Bridgeport Gun Implement Co., Remington Arms Co. and Hartley & Graham. He was well liked by all who knew him, being a man of sterling qualities and correct business principles, and he will be missed by the dealers on this Coast, all of whom were his friends.

A widow and one son, Mr. W. H. Seaver, survive him. The funeral services were held at his late residence, 1317 Alice street, Oakland, on Thursday, at 2 P. M.

An occurrence showing the unreliability of the magazine repeating shot gun for trap shooting took place last Sunday at Ingleside during the pigeon shoot of the Union Gun Club. One of the shooters who was using a "pump" gun fired his first shell and missed, in endeavoring to use the second shell the magazine action failed to work and the bird escaped. The referee, who decided "lost bird," evidently was unfamiliar with the live bird rules of the Interstate Association (published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, March 4, 1899) upon this point. Rule 24 is as follows:

"When a shell cannot be extracted from the chamber of a repeating shot gun for either of the following reasons, the shooter shall be allowed another bird, as provided in Section 3 of Rule 23: (1) When the brass head of the shell pulls away from the paper, preventing the reloading of the chamber from the magazine. (2) When the extractor, although in apparently good condition, fails to extract the empty shell from the chamber.

(N. B.—Nothing in this rule shall be construed as empowering the referee to allow another bird, if he is satisfied that the shooter is using reloaded ammunition.)"

Section 3 of Rule 23 above referred to is as follows:

"If a miss fire occurs with the second barrel, the shooter shall have another bird, using a full charge of powder on 7 in the first barrel. He must, however, put the end to his shoulder and discharge the blank cartridge in the direction of the bird, and the bird must be on the wing when such blank cartridge is discharged."

These rules of the Interstate Association were followed during the last Grand American Handicap and as present constituted seem to place the utility of the repeating gun in an anomalous position for trap shooting at live birds. The rules for live bird shooting of the American Shooting Association do not show any provision made to guide the referee in a case of "miss-fire" when a repeating shot gun is used.

At Ed Handley's ranch situated on Big river in Mendocino county, thirty miles West of Ukiah was the chosen location of a jolly sportsmen's camp last week. The party consisted of Phil J. Bekeert, T. J. Craig, Geo. McCord, Bob McCord, Ed. McCord, Dr. Hawkins, Dr. E. N. Short and Wm. Short. Venison and trout were served bonapartely at the hunters' table under the direction of the camping chef par excellence, Dr. Short. Geo. McCord was voted the champion angler during the trip. Three fine bucks were killed, one of them a four point, the honors of the chase were left evenly divided among the seven Nimrods as the successful hunters' names were not divulged. Deer hunting in that section is exceedingly difficult without the aid of dogs. The hunters lost several fine animals which, though badly wounded, succeeded in reaching inaccessible places in the hills. Deer were very plentiful near the camp, numerous does were also seen. The prospects for quail there this fall are excellent. Mountain quail are in that vicinity in great numbers.

The eventual solution of the much argued question of fish and game protection stands a reasonable chance of final settlement on a preserve basis. The pioneer movements in this respect can be noted from time to time by such announcements as the following taken from an Eastern paper.

"One hundred sportsmen have arranged for the purchase of about five thousand acres of woodland in the hunting territory known as Beaver Dams, in Blair and Huntingdon counties, Pennsylvania. They will fence it in, build cabins, stock the woods with large and small game and the streams with trout. A professional gamekeeper is to be secured in Germany. He will have two assistants. New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg sportsmen are reported to be identified with the movement."

It is safe to assert that when hunting and fishing districts are controlled by private individuals or organizations the protection and propagation of fish and game will be rigidly looked after. The same conditions in the course of time will come into existence on the Coast. Just what particular place in the establishment of a game preserve it is necessary to fill with a professional gamekeeper from Germany is somewhat uncertain. We don't object to the preserve system but an imported German gamekeeper is objectionable. Why positions of that character cannot be satisfactorily filled with native talent would be a question hard to answer—possibly an American would object to the yeager livery, the pheasant feather in the hat band or the enamelled leather belt with pendant hunting sword, which accessories seem to be absolutely necessary features on the Continent in properly conducting the sports of field and stream.

The Fish Fry.

You may talk about the rivers that are rippled by the fish; But I always like 'em hotter when they're served up in the dish; And sayin' that reminds me of a dinner, crisp and brown, That day we went a-fishin' and brooght the fish to town.

The fish a feller's buyin' at the stores ain't half as fine As them he fishes for himself and hauls up on his line. To feel 'em all a-hitin'—see the cork a-goin' down t An' that's the kind o' fish we had—the kind we brooght to town.

An' them fellers 'round the table?—wasn't any time for talk— No after-dinner speeches—but the fish, we made 'em walk! Each f-ller at that dinner was promptly in his place, And the fish were served a-mazin', and there wasn't any grace.

The major took the trout in; the colonel scooped the perch; The parson said he'd never leave a catfish in the lurch t And the way we made 'em all fly made the colored waiters wince, And there's never been a dinner like that fine fish dinner since. —Atlanta Constitution.

Striped bass anglers here had good and had streaks of luck the past week in their efforts to take the fish from the odoriferous waters of the Oakland estuary and also from the mddy slogs of San Leandro bay. In the latter place some fine catches have been made, principally towards the evening. The fish in the estuary now rarely run over two or three pounds in weight. An angler has an odd experience in one of the Alameda marsh sloughs a few days ago. He observed during low water, that a pool in this slough was literally alive with striped bass which had been left in the shallow pool by the receding tide. By dint of great effort he managed to work his boat over the mud into the water, this visit created a great commotion among the fish, they darted about in all directions some of them striking the boat and others leaping out of the water into the deep ocean in their mad efforts to escape. All attempts to catch any of them were futile. They paid no attention whatever to baited hooks, and leaving the boat was utterly impossible, owing to the treacherous condition of the oozy bottom. The fisherman finally abandoned his efforts and left the scene in disgust. This is a new phase in the supposed habits of the fish, the general impression has been that they are continually on the move and following the tides.

Forty-two thousand trout in less than an acre of water! Four and five pounders as thick as a gunstock and as long as your arm! Brook trout so plentiful that they fairly brush one another and bump their speckled sides together when they move about! All this is to be witnessed in the State fish hatchery at Wilkisonville, Mass. Quietly swimming about in large tubs are several thousand salmon fry which are being reared for Lake Quinsigamond, and which will make the lake the finest salmon water in the country south of Maine. The fish are now about two inches in length, active, healthy and sound. In other tubs are 10,000 yearling brook trout that are also intended for the lake. They are about the size of the salmon, and just as attractive. In another large tank are 10,000 brown trout of the English variety for the Worcester lake. They will be liberated this fall or next spring. They are little known in this country, and are magnificent in game qualities. In addition to these there are, at the hatchery, 350 rainbow trout, imported from California. They are now two years old and will be put into the lake this fall.

John P. Overton and attorney J. R. Leppo, of Santa Rosa made the champion bass record fishing below Guerneville near the Overton and Leppo camps on Sunday. In the space of about two hours they landed sixty-one fine large striped and black bass. Accompanying them was J. R. Edwards of that city, who also fished with success. The catch made by Messrs. Overton and Leppo is the largest known for this season and excited the envy of the hundreds of campers at Guerneville.

Black bass angling on Russian river has been excellent in the past two weeks it is reported. The fish caught have been of good size and in splendid condition. Several anglers state that their success has been due to angle worms; minnows have not even excited the curiosity of the fish. Trolling has also been productive of good results when angle worms were used.

Many striped bass, most of them evering about three pounds in weight have been caught in the Russian river recently.

A New World's Record.

Picturesque Stow Lake will be the scene of fly-casting contests to-day and to-morrow; the other contests this month taking place on the 26th and 27th insts. respectively. The contest last Saturday was conducted under unfavorable weather conditions, the day being cloudy and a strong southwest wind blowing. The honors in long distance casting fell to W. D. Mansfield, who scored 125 feet, Mr. Mansfield was also high score in the second and fourth events. A notable average in the delicacy event was H. F. Mullers score of 92.6-12 in the delicacy per cent, this was the best score yet made in that event and is a remarkably high per cent age under the present system of scoring.

On Sunday, a perfect day, with hardly a breath of air stirring, the gentlemen present were the enthusiastic witnesses of a feat in long distance casting that is, up to date, the climax episode in a series of records that have not been equalled in the annals of long distance fly-casting. Champion W. D. Mansfield added 2 feet to his previous record cast and now stands at the head of the roll with the marvelous score of 133 feet to his credit, this cast establishes a new world's record. Not content with this fine showing Mr. Mansfield, just to keep his hand in, captured first honors in the other events.

Secretary Horace Smyth reports that the special rates recorded by the Southern Pacific Railroad to the club members has been courteously extended to their wives and children. During the month of August and at any time in the absence of the President, members can obtain orders for special rates by personal application to F. H. Reed, Vice-President, Room 22, Hobart Building.

The regular monthly meeting was held last Tuesday evening in the rooms of the Fish Commissioners.

The scores in detail are given as follows:

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

M. J. Fairfield lost his fine Great Dane Blinker Murphy last week; after a lot of trouble and unremitting search the dog was located and recovered early this week by his pleased master.

Mr. Byron Erkenrecher, of Los Angeles, recently purchased of Mr. Norman J. Stewart, of Aromas, a black and white collie dog puppy by imp. Ormskirk Blincher out of Crapton Moss Rose.

In the list of entries for the Continental Field Trial Club's Derby the nomination of Joe Cumming, Jr., whelped Janu ary, 1893, by Joe Cumming—Lanra, the property of Mr. W. W. Titus, should have been mentioned.

We are sorry to announce the continued illness of Mr H. H. Carlton. The issuance of diplomas to prize winners in the recent bench show has been retarded by the secretary's illness, but we believe this particular matter will be attended to very shortly.

The fox terrier bitch puppy Victoria Gem, recently purchased by Mr. G. J. M. E. d'Aquin of this city, is the only one now alive of the litter whelped June 16th by Aldon Radiance to Aldon Swagger. Her markings are similar to those of Radiance.

The movement among New York sportsmen tending to the organization of a state field trials club has now the appearance of rapidly taking tangible shape and the possibility of running field trials this fall in New York is based on a growing sentiment in field trials for that State.

H. G. Hemmelright's fox terrier bitch Warren Tattle (Ch. Warren Safeguard—Warren Tonge) whelped June, 1894, was in whelp to Massrs. Rutherford's Claudian (Ch. D'Orsay—Clytha Starlight) when she arrived here. On July 23th she whelped four puppies; two of the dogs have died, the surviving two are fine looking pups, the bitch particularly so. Claudian is a brother to the famous Claudi Duval.

The official catalogue of the second annual dog show of the Santa Barbara Kennel Club lists sixty-two classes (out of 232 announced in the Premium List) with a total of eighty-three entries, as follows: Mastiffs 1; Great Danes 6; St. Bernards 14; Bloodhounds 1; Pointers 1; English setters 6; Gordon setters 1; Field spaniels 1; Cocker spaniels 16; Collies 12; Bull terriers 3; Fox terriers 6; Spitz 1; Japanese spaniels 2; Dachshunde 2; Miscellaneous 1. A grand total of 73 dogs shown.

We take pleasure in making announcement this week in our advertising columns of a matter of importance to St. Bernard breeders. Fred H. Bushnell, the owner of the champion smooth coat Le Prince Jr., has placed his grand dog in stud. Le Prince is now in charge of John Lucas at the Mt. View Kennels, San Clemente. It is a notable fact that the first puppy shown sired by Le Prince, Nors, out of Mollie Marshall, was the winner of first in puppy hitches at the May show.

In a letter of recent date Mr. Geo. E. Gray, of Appleton, Minn., says: 'One of my best pointer bitches by Rip Rap—Pearl's Dot, has been sold to Geo. Richards, of the Verona Kennels, Pleasanton, Cal., consideration $300. She goes in whelp to Young Jingo. I still have three more of this breeding, two of which are in whelp to Alberta Joe, and will be shown in the U. S. Winter Derby under the name of 'Mapa Dot and Pearl Rip Rap. The other one, a litter sister to Mr. Turner's Dot's Pearl, and the handsomest bitch of the whole Rip Rap—Pearl's Dot family, is in whelp to Young Jingo.'

"The Dog: Its Internal and External Organization" is the title of a useful little book recently published in London. The work is arranged in three parts. The first contains brief illustrated notices of the chief varieties of dogs, this is followed by a full and clearly written anatomical description; and the concluding division contains five colored plates with numbered explanations. The plates show—(I.) The Dog's Body. (II) The Skeleton. (III) Circulation of the Blood. (IV.) The Muscles. (V.) The Internal Organs and Medial Section of the Body. The plan is an excellent one and the booklet has been recommended to those who desire to familiarize themselves with the physiology of the dog in a thorough manner with a minimum expenditure of time and study. Mr. Alexander Piessie, M. R. C. V. S. is the editor, the anatomical description being supplied by Mr. William S. Furneaux. Messrs. George Phillip & Son, are the publishers and the price is three shillings six pence.

As a carnivorous animal the dog requires a change to his natural food, flesh meat and offal, upon which he subsisted entirely in his wild state, and which, given occasionally, is beneficial to him in his domesticated state, although it would not be to his advantage probably in confinement to be fed wholly on this natural food. A meal of lean flesh meat, minced in the case of puppies (and in all cases care should be taken to insure its soundness), should be given once or twice a week. It is highly beneficial, too, that dogs should have access occasionally to raw, uncleaned butchers' offal. This, from a human point of view, is a rather dirty and disagreeable meal to procure, but if perfectly fresh, as it should be, is a veritable banquet to the dog. The food itself is highly nourishing, while the herbage the offal contains acts as a fine tonic to the dog's stomach. A notion is largely prevalent among dog owners, the older hands as well as the uninitiated, that flesh meat and offal creates worms in dogs. This is a most fallacious theory.

In notes of the fifth annual bench show of the New South Wales Kennel Club held at Sydney in June, the Telegram says: Fox terriers were the best we have ever seen henchened in New South Wales, and the judge, Mr. William Hamilton, had all his work cut out. Novice class dogs were first called upon, and after a great struggle turned out the winner in the Geelong-bred dog H. S. Wrathall's Corio Weaver, a beautiful little dog, possessing capital head, with nice ears carried to perfection, superb in front, good body, neck and timber; a characteristic and stylish terrier, a masterpiece in the ring, whose expression and general appearance indicated gameness to the finish, a speedy looking one and a fox terrier from end to end, and won well. Second award, R. E. Brereton's Blairgowrie Mailboy, undoubtedly a good one, who as a show dog made the most of his chances in the ring; but, in our opinion, is short in neck, and just now is out of coat. He is not the type either to our liking, and everything considered we preferred the third award, T. F. Thompson's Tactician, a beautiful little terrier, with good head, ears and eye, good body, the best of legs and feet, and excellent coat, not a good show dog, but a better type of terrier than second, and should have changed places of award. Australian-bred dogs next; a grand show, with Brereton's Blairgowrie Mailboy before-mentioned at the head of the rank, Thompson's Reformer Tactician, also previously described, second; but we preferred him for first position, whilst his place should have been filled to our taste by H. Moses' Glendon Vicar, a big dog, with great length of head, but not the correct thing in ear, a good stamp of terrier that may in some opinions appear a bit coarse, notwithstanding we preferred him to first award, who we would in turn place in third position. Limit and open classes were a repetition of each other, the winner being H. Moses Jr.'s latest importation, the English crack sire Vivisco Lika Glendon Vicar, he is a big dog, but such a dog, beautiful clean head, of great length, nice ears correctly carried, coal-black eye, correct in shape and placement."

The New Zealand entries were very much admired, being in all classes quite up to the Australian standard. In Collies Retrievers, Bulldogs and English Setters the exhibits from there were far better than any other specimens of these particular breeds entered for competition at the show. In the larger descriptions of dog, however—such as Mastiffs, St. Bernards and Newfoundland—the "other side" was far in advance of New Zealand. The show, which was held in the Exhibition Building, at Prince Alfred Park, was a great success, over 500 exhibits being henchened.

Why the Bulldog is Liked

A real lover of dogs is apt to have a preference as to type, but he is apt also to be fond of all good dogs, no matter what the class or their special purposes in the world. The dog lover is very like in this regard the truly gallant man—he may prefer blue eyes and fair hair or the opposite, but his heart goes out to all women who are good because they are women and because they are good. To the uninitiated an affection for the bulldog seems a perversion of taste, for the bulldog is not symmetrical, is not graceful and sometimes appears to lack intelligence. About his intelligence, however, there is more than one opinion; about his affection and loyalty there can be no doubt whatever. His affection knows neither hesitation, wavering nor change, and he is a rare comrade. He is not noisy, he is not nervous and he is not given to demonstration. He fills the requirements that Emerson formulated as to perfect companionship. He does not need to speak to show his sympathy. He can tell you what he wishes to say with his little eyes, and he can be eloquent with the waggings of his stumpy tail. This kind of a companion is not such as commends itself to all persons, for there are those in the world who like chatterers and consider the unending small talk of the drawing room the highest and most pleasurable expression of human wit. For such as these the bulldog is not likely to have the greatest attractions. Let such have a frolicsome dog or a kitten that will chase its tail. But the bulldog is a good companion for a quiet man of a thoughtful and philosophic cast of mind. The bulldog will not disturb his musings, the bulldog will not say the wrong thing at a time when silence is precious, for the bulldog rarely speaks. When he does he is short, though not sharp, in his communications and very much to the purpose.

Rearing and Breeding Puppies.

In breeding and rearing pups, no matter whether for sporting or any other purpose, writes A. V. Meersch in the Southern Fancier, care is necessary that in the first place the pups shall be well looked after in their infancy, and this is best done by giving the mother, clean, airy, dry and warm lodging and a good supply of wholesome food. For a couple of days after the birth of the puppies, the mother should have a plentiful supply of gruel, broth, thickened with oatmeal, given luke warm. In a couple of days a little meat may be given, and the quantity increased day by day; at the same time a good supply of broth, or bread and milk should be given. After the first day the mother should be taken away from the youngsters for half an hour's gentle exercise at least twice a day.

Puppies are born blind and their eyes remain closed for nine days. If it is intended to destroy any of the litter, it must be done immediately after birth. Those that are allowed to live should be left entirely to the mother's care for two weeks, at which period, if the tail is to be docked, or dew-claws removed, the necessary operation must be performed. Both operations are painful to the pup, doubtless, but in any case, particularly in sporting dogs, their performance saves much trouble and suffering in after life.

Supposing the tail to be healed after docking, the youngster should be taught to lap milk. A pup will sniff the fluid to his mouth, dip his nose in it, the tongue will be projected at once to wipe the wet from the nostrils, and half a dozen repetitions of this lesson will soon convey to his mind the information that he can drink best by keeping his nose near the liquor and projecting his tongue. As soon as the puppies can lap, they may be given a little cow's milk twice a day, but they should not be entirely removed from the parent till five or six weeks old; the mother herself will, in fact, be the better for their society, and in most cases will give them notice to quit when their claws and teeth become troublesome to her while suckling. But at all times, both before removal from the mother and afterward, the puppies should have plenty of room to tumble, roll and run about; the exercise will strengthen them and preserve their health.

When the puppies, however, are removed from the mother, their meals should be given them at regular intervals; twice a day being quite often enough. Many of the diseases so common among pet dogs are brought on by over-feeding, giving them scraps from the table every time the master or mistress takes a meal. It is probable that in a violent exertion in chasing and pulling down its game, and equally, without doubt, there are days when it fails to overtake its prey and has to practice abstinence. The youngsters should have little, if any, meat for the first six or eight months of their existence; bread and milk, oatmeal, or potatoes, mixed with milk, should be their food. If oatmeal or barley-mal is given, it will be well to mix it with the liquor in which cabbage, spinach or some other green vegetables have been boiled, as otherwise the meal has a tendency to heat the blood and bring on mange. When flesh is given, it should be coarse and lean; horse flesh should be avoided, except for dogs used in hunting; hat trips, paunch and the parts composed mostly of bone and muscle, such as sheep-trotters, are good food. Grasse from the tallow-melter may be used sometimes to give a flavor to the oatmeal or barley-mal when the dog's appetite is dainty. But unless used for sporting purposes, a very little animal food will be enough. Drink is necessary; a dog should always have access to plenty of clean water, and occasionally a little flour of sulphur mixed in milk may be administered. Some persons keep a piece of roll-hrimstone in the dog's drinking vessel, but as the hrimstone does not dissolve, it is rather difficult to see what good it can do.

Every attention should be paid to cleanliness, or fleas and vermin will infest the dog, especially if he be a rough-coated one. If the dog does not take to water and swim, it should be washed once a week. Do not use much soap in the operation and be careful to rinse it well out of the animal's coat before drying it. When the dog is washed dry its coat well with its coat clothing. Water-dogs are seen when emerging from the water to give themselves a good shaking and then roll over and rub themselves on the grass, so as to get the superfluous moisture out of their jackets. Whilst the dog is getting dry after his wash is the best time to change his bed, which should consist of clean wheaten straw for winter, but in summer, when insects are all alive, deal shavings will be found very useful for bedding, as the small is objectionable to fleas and other pests of that kind. It is a good plan, too, to give the inside of the kennel an occasional washing with quicklime and water, "a notice to quit," which the insect tribe cannot refuse to obey. When it becomes absolutely necessary to apply any of the vermin destroying powders to a dog, great care must be taken to prevent him from licking himself afterward, and so taking into his stomach the poison which is especially put upon him for the benefit of the insect tribe. The best way is to rub the powder thoroughly into the dog's coat, then envelop the animal in a sheet, which must be wrapped around him two or three times, and securely fastened about the throat, so that he cannot get at any part of his body with his tongue. Let him remain so for an hour, then unwind the sheet and give him a good brushing down while he stands on it; the dead pests that rendered him uneasy will thus be dislodged. Afterward a good washing will remove the remnants of the poisonous powder from his coat. As before said, soap should be sparingly used; for dogs with very fine coat and tender skins, the yolk of an egg will be found more beneficial. Carefully pour away the white portion of the egg, and rub ita yellow upon the dog's coat with the hand till a good lather is formed, which must then be thoroughly washed away with clean water. Be it remembered that dogs are not so liable to insect plague when they are allowed to run at liberty; confining a dog to one spot, with insufficient exercise, is the best way to fill his coat with fleas. Some, ladies especially, may complain that the pets get their coats muddy; well, the mud, when dry, can easily be rubbed and brushed off, and it is not hurtful like the matter that exudes from the skin of the animal.

The Scottish Terrier Boom.

It would seem passing strange that a breed so well established in Great Britain, as the Scottish Terrier, should not be more popular in America, if we did not look beneath the surface of things.

Then, after enumerating the winnings of the many noted kennels it continues. "There have been some extraordinary entries in Edinburgh, Crystal Palace, Inverness, Birmingham Manchester and Crutts, in fact, all the big shows have been really good numbers.

During 1898, Scottish terriers sold for the highest prices they ever brought in Great Britain, a veritable "boom" being on. Clydeford Rebel, touched and passed the top record price, bringing about 150 guineas or about $800.

At a recent meeting of the A. K. C. two new kennel names were registered to breed Scottish terriers, "Nesegay," by Dr. Fayette C. Ewing, and "Kalevala" by Mrs. Clara W. Sherman. We are informed that a new kennel is to be established by a fancier in central Missouri, and that a well known Canadian, active in kennel affairs over there, is going in for them.

Mr. James L. Little, and old admirer of the Scot, and one who has stuck by them for years, is preparing to make new importations and declares he loves them well enough to "die by them."

Mr. Henry Brooks, another pioneer in American breeding is also preparing to introduce new blood into his already "blue blooded" lot, we are told.

Dr. Fayette C. Ewing's recent importations of two great bitches, probably the best that ever touched our shores, has directed attention to this breed, and this enterprising fancier has the good wishes of the fancy. One of the bitches he imported in whelp to Heather Prince, the acknowledged greatest sire of winners that ever lived; the other in whelp to Heather prince's son, Champion Gair, the crack show Scottie of the world, and the sire of Glory.

A breed that is so established in Great Britain will not fail of recognition in America, for as we have said, England sets the pace in dog fashions. Besides, Scottie is no "fad" over there, his popularity is founded on intrinsic merit, and every day utility. In other words he is no lap dog, but a rough and ready worker.

Curing a Dog of Tapeworm.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Sir: In reply to your correspondent, "Black Spaniel," I will, with your kind permission, give my experience of what I believe to have been a precisely similar case, and how I treated it with complete success.

Some months ago my red setter bitch got into apparently ill health, the symptoms were: dryness of coat, contraction of abdomen, with occasional loss of appetite, foul breath, vomiting, and grumbling noises in howls. Being firmly convinced it was tapeworm she suffered from, I treated her for such twice with areca-nut, after a twenty-four hours' fast each time, but without success, as she invariably vomited the dose a short time after administration.

I had my bitch walked about for an hour after the first dose, and got a boy to run her about next morning after giving the castor oil, both times on chain, so as to keep her head up and prevent any opportunity for vomiting.

She was about an hour and a half moving about when she was purged, and passed about 1 1/2 ozs. to 2 ozs. of tapeworm. I then waited a fortnight, and, although improved a good deal in the interval, I repeated the treatment, and again took away tapeworm, but this time only a very small quantity, from which I concluded it was time to stop. She lost her old coat, but otherwise improved rapidly, and is now in splendid health and condition.

The advantage of this medicine over eréca-nut and some others is that it acts as a direct poison to the worm, while not sickening the dog. Areca-nut, on the other hand, is very nauseating to the stomach, and causes a strong tendency to vomit. Again, the areca-nut expels the worm only, but does not kill it, while the oil of male fern does kill it, leaving it to be expelled by nature, or some purgative medicine.

I trust, Sir, if "Black Spaniel," or any other of your numerous readers, see their way to try this remedy, they will give their experience through the medium of your valuable columns for the benefit of your readers at large.

Standards.

THE PUG.—General appearance and symmetry decidedly square and cobby. A lean, leggy pug and a dog with short legs and long body are equally objectionable. Ha should be compact in form, of well knit proportions, and with hardness of developed muscle.

Body short and cobby, wide in chest and well ribbed up. Legs very strong, straight, of moderate length and well under.

Feet rather round, toes well split up and the nails black. Muzzle short, blunt, square, but not upfaced.

Head large, massive, round, not apple-beaded, no indentation of the skull. Eyes dark, very large, bold and prominent, globular in shape, soft and solicitous in expression, very lustrous. Ears thin, small, soft, like black velvet. There are two kinds, "rose" and "button," latter preferred.

Markings clearly defined. The muzzle or mask, ears, moles on cheeks, thumb mark or diamond on forehead and back trace should be as black as possible. Mask should be black; the more intense and well defined it is the better. Wrinkles large and deep. Trace—A black line extending from the occiput to the tail. Tail tightly curled as possible over hip; the double curl is perfection. Coat fine, smooth, soft, short; neither hard nor glossy. Color, silver or apricot fawn; each should be decided so as to make the contrast complete between the color and the trace and the mask.

Harness Races at Ottawa.

Four days of good harness racing was pulled off at Ottawa, Illinois, last week. On the first day, Tuesday, Jennie Mac won third money in the 2:12 pace, her positions in the summary being 5, 7, 2, the heats being trotted in 2:12½, 2:10½ and 2:10½, Aelse being the winner and Barney McCoy second. On the second day the hay gelding Shecam got fourth money in the 2:17 pace, the best time of which was 2:15½, Shecam being a close second the last two heats.

On Thursday, the 29th, Ellen Madison competed against seven other trotters in a race that it took eight heats to decide. She won the first heat in 2:18¾, was second in the next, and after dropping back in the succeeding heats, finished a good third in the eighth and final mile of the race. The fastest heat of this race was 2:16½ and the slowest 2:20½. There were 10,000 people on the track and they all stayed to see the finish of the contest. The race was finally won by Patola, a black mare by Altitude.

Dr. Book won another race for Billy Durfee on the last day of the meeting, heating a field of seven in three straight heats after dropping the first. His fastest heat in this race was 2:20½. Shecam started the same day in the 2:15 pace, but his driver had to be satisfied with fourth position in the summary. The meeting was very successful and the work of Mr. W. W. Taylor, who acted as starting judge, was pronounced the best ever seen on an Illinois track. Ottawa's track is but a half mile in length, but is fast. The slowest heat of the meeting was 2:24 and the fastest 2:10½.

Northern News.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

John Green looked rather lonesome working out the green pacer Roy Day at Irvington this week.

Both Bill Frazier and Deceiver are entered in the California Circuit and will leave for Sacramento early in August, where they will make their first start.

There are over 100 horses working on the Salem track and outside horsemen can rest assured that every purse will be filled and the program raced off as advertised.

Pat Barry's black mare by Gossiper 2:14½ foaled a fine brown colt by McKinney 2:11½ this week. We are told that this is the finest McKinney colt ever foaled in Oregon, and his name is Pat Durfee.

Horses are being moved along some over the Salem track, John A. Crawford worked a mile in 2:18½, Hugo in 2:18, Tickets in 2:18½ the last half in 1:08, Claymont worked three heats better than 2:30 the fastest in 2:28.

John Pender's mare Duxie, by old Director, dam by Whipple Hambletonian, has foaled a black filly by Captain Jones, son of McKinney 2:11½. This is one of the finest looking, best developed colts we have seen this year.

Geo. A. Kelly, of Dayton, Wash., passed through here this week on his way to the State Fair with Birdalex 2:30½, Anzella, a green trotter, and Anigita (p) 2:27. Mr. Wm Barr was along with a good two-year-old trotter by Antrim, out of a mare by Ingraham. Mr. Kelly says quite a number of Eastern Oregon and Washington horses will be down to the State Fair this fall.

The French Trotting Derby.

The most important event of the French trotting year was decided June 25th, and resulted in the victory of Senlis, a bay colt by that most illustrious of French trotting sires, Fuschia. The two-mile distance was covered in about 2:31 to the mile, the time being 5:02, and the distance actually a few yards short of two miles. The race was worth about $5000 to the winner. The sons and daughters of Fuschia have almost had a monopoly of this rich prize since that sire's get became old enough to compete. In 1893, Messagere, by Fuschia won; in 1895, Osmonde, by Fuschia won; in 1896, Polka, by Fuschia won; in 1898, Redowa, by Fuschia won; and again in 1899, Senlis, by Fuschia, has carried off the rich prize. Peculiarly enough three of these winners by Fuschia have been out of mares by Phaëon, who sired the winners Finlande and Gerance, both mares, in 1895 and 1896—Horseman.

Horse Show at Denver.

A horse show will be made one of the most prominent features of Colorado's Mountain and Plain Festival, which will be held in Denver, September 25th to 30th. The horse show will be given on the last two days of the show, and the committee in charge will do its utmost to bring together a grand collection of horses. Experts from broad will be on hand to judge the horses, and the rules which usually govern such exhibitions will be in force. The entries in certain classes will be restricted to the territory circumscribed by the limits of the Festival of Mountain and Plain which embrace Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming and Montana, but a number of classes will be arranged, which shall be open to entries from all parts of the United States. No entry fees will be charged, and in the open classes cash prizes will be offered, while in the restricted ones cash and trophies of different kinds will be given.

Death of A. A. Austin.

For two weeks we have missed the trotting horse department from the Boston Sunday Herald, and the following seed news from the American Horse Breeder tells the reason why.

The well-known turf writer A. A. Austin, at one time a member of the Breeder editorial staff, died at Norton, Mass., on the 22d of July. Mr. Austin was a member of Taunton, Mass., where he was born Dec. 10, 1846. He enlisted in a Massachusetts regiment when but 16 years old. His regiment was sent to the Gulf Department and he was at the memorable siege of Port Hudson. He was so severely wounded in the futile assault on that stronghold, June 14, 1863, that he was finally discharged. He re-enlisted and served for a time in a New York cavalry regiment, and later was made lieutenant in a Massachusetts regiment of colored troops. After the close of the war of 1861-5, he studied law and was admitted to the bar. After practicing some time in a country village he located in Boston. Owing to feeble health he closed his practice and went West, and for a time engaged in the business of training horses.

In 1886 Mr. Austin married a Boston school teacher, Laura A. Thomas of South Carver, Mass. In company with his brother G. D. Austin, he leased the track at Bridgewater Mass., and ran it for a time. He was quite successful as a campaigner of youngsters. His best success was with the filly Zora Zar and the yearling colt Perial, which holds the yearling two-mile trotting record of the world.

Mr. Austin has been in poor health for a long time. Several years ago a physician informed him that he could live but a few months at the longest, but he fought bravely against the fatal disease, consumption, and his life was prolonged. He was a genial associate, an entertaining conversationalist, a ready public speaker and versatile, interesting writer. Whatever he undertook he did with all his might.

Told of Robert Bonner.

A story told of the late Robert Bonner is sometimes laid to the nimble wit of the inimitable William R. Travers. Mr. Bonner was riding in a street car one day with his son, then a little boy. The car was crowded and Mr. Bonner had taken the little boy on his knee. Presently a handsome and stylishly dressed young woman entered and Mr. Bonner nudged his son from his knee.

"My boy," said he gravely, "get up and give the lady your seat."

Even the young woman had to join in the titter that followed.

The only time in his life that Mr. Bonner ever made a bet was when he was a typesetter on the old Hartford Courant. A "jour" of the name of John Haud came down the line with the advance reputation of being the swiftest compositor on earth.

"Maybe," said the Courant men, "but you haven't tried Bonner yet."

"Huh!" said the "jour," "I'll try him for $10 a side."

"I never bet," said Mr. Bonner.

"You better not," laughed the challenger.

Mr. Bonner changed his mind. He put up $10, got down to work and besides consuming two pieces of custard pie, set 25,000 ems of solid minion type in twenty hours and twenty-eight minutes.

Mr. Bonner's greatest pride was that he never borrowed or owed. The only thing he ever borrowed was a maxim from Emerson—"Oh, discontented man! Whatever you want, pay the price and take it!" He did. Whenever he wanted anything he paid for it. The price sometimes came high. But Mr. Bonner got it all the same.

Mr. Bonner's place at Tarrytown was one of the finest trotting farms in the country. But, strange to relate, he never spent a night there from the time he bought it till the day he died. Why, no one ever knew. It was a notion of his—just that and nothing else.

Once Mr. Bonner was satisfied a place in Westchester. He found one that was satisfactory and asked whether there was malaria in the neighborhood. The agent said no; there was no malaria in Westchester, but over across the line there was plenty. Every householder in the country told him the same thing. So Mr. Bonner bought the place and promptly got malaria. A few days afterward an advertisement appeared in the New York newspapers. Mr. Bonner offered his place for sale. In the advertisement he enlarged upon the fact that it was the only place in the entire country where malaria could be caught, but notwithstanding this great and uncommon advantage he would sell it at a reasonable price. In support of his statement Mr. Bonner called attention to the assertion of every real estate dealer in the neighborhood that there was no malaria in the country. He sold the place.

"It's too bad," said a friend to him one morning, "that Charles Dickens won't write for American publications."

"He won't eh?" cried Mr. Bonner, "just wait till I try."

He rushed down to his office, wrote to Dickens asking him for a story and with the letter sent a draft for $5000. Dickens was carried off his feet. He accepted and asked whether this was the way American publishers did business.

"It's the way this one does," answered Mr. Bonner. A while afterward Mr. Bonner captured Tennyson by the same plan.

Mr. Bonner, with all the tens of thousands of stories he published never read fiction. The only stories he ever finished were Dickens' "Hunted Down" and Sylvanus Cobb, Jr.'s "The Gonemaker of Moscow." It was his custom to read merely the opening chapter, and if he found it satisfactory to have the story read through by his readers.

Once, when Mr. Bonner's capital was just $3000, he determined to make certain advertising. When the estimate was brought to him it was $10,000.

"Too much," said he to the advertising agent. "Cut it down to $5000. That's all the money I have."

"Can't do it," said the agent, "but I'll trust you for the $2000."

"I know that," said Mr. Bonner, "but I won't let you."

The agent cut the difference.

"Am I a teetotaler?" No," said Mr. Bonner once in answer to the question. "No, I am not a teetotaler. I had a glass of sherry when I came to New York in 1844."

It is not on record that he ever took another.—N. Y. Journal.

There were eleven hours of racing on the last day of the Detroit Blue Ribbon meeting, and the moon was shining when the last heat was decided.

"FLAT RACING EXPLAINED" by Analyst, is the title of a little work published by Goodwin Brothers which contains a concise history of the turf. The book is a practical treatise on racing, designed to meet the requirements of owners, breeders, trainers, jockeys and the general patrons of racing. It touches briefly upon each branch of the sport of kings, contains many sound ideas upon the theory of breeding, and many bright and interesting anecdotes. The work is published simultaneously in this country and in England. It is a novelty, inasmuch as it is the first work that has taken the turf or any of its ramifications for a subject that is confined to one volume and is of a convenient size for use.

WHILE it requires perfection of get, sound limbs and great lung and heart capacity to go miles in races better than 2:10, many great campaigners were not considered good gaited when given their first lessons to harness, says the "Western Horseman." A great many of the best foals seen by the writer were not remarkable for their purity of gait until patience on the part of the trainer had taught them the proper method of locomotion. Many had no established gait to harness, though fairly square trotters in the lot; others moved off the first few times as though they were sure enough candidates for 2:10 honors, and shortly afterwards developed a greater variety of gaits than a ballet dancer has fancy steps. An impatient teacher will forever spoil nine out of ten of the colts belonging to this class, while painstaking efforts on the part of the trainer may result in bringing before the racing public a great stake winner. If the colt or filly is worth developing it is worth educating properly; otherwise it should be allowed to mature into a farm horse or animal suited to the general trade. Money is badly invested that is paid for the improper education of well bred and promising colts and fillies, and trainers with well-filled "graveyards" should be prevented from adding any more cripples to their long list of "knocked-out" youngsters.

THE FARM.

Poultry for Profit.

They are very few farmers who realize how much money they get from the poultry that are produced on the farm. If they study the matter up they will find that the hens in the henyard pay more for the food they consume than almost anything else, in fact, except the indispensable horse, whose value is hard to compute, being so much depended upon, so says a writer in the Poultry Tribune. The farmer can keep a hen for less than 50 cents a year. This has been proven time and again. It is a poor sort of a hen that will not produce ten dozen eggs a year. The average price is about ten cents a dozen. Allowing the cost of keeping is 50 cents and that eggs average but ten cents a dozen the year through, it will be seen the income is 100 per cent. on the investment of keep. If he keeps his poultry as he should the average price will be nearer twenty cents a dozen than ten cents, for he will get eggs in the winter when prices are high. With all the increase in the products of the poultry yards of the country there has never been a year that we did not import eggs, and this importation has not fallen off, except as the tariff effected it, and the tariff of five cents did not cut off importation entirely. The United States is fast becoming a nation of poultry and egg eaters, because the wholesomeness of poultry and relative cheapness of eggs as compared with meats are becoming better understood all the time, and the result is that the demand for poultry and eggs grows nearly as fast as the supply is increased and the average rises slowly year by year. No one need hesitate about going into the business of raising poultry from any fear that there will be an oversupply. A low price always meets an increased demand, and this forces an appetite for eggs and poultry, which is satisfied when eggs go up again, and the business keeps on growing. It will keep on indefinitely, for poultry can and will be kept with good profit when the country is much more thickly populated than it is at present.

Does Education Pay?

The college diary finds that it does. Before the first of April, 1899, the herdsman at the Kansas Agricultural College was a man with no special training along agricultural lines. He was a good man to do what he was told and to draw his salary, but there his interest ended. When asked how the recent snow storm or change of feed effected the milk yield of his cows he didn't know, although he had weighed and recorded each milking. During this time the college was feeding four head of calves on skim milk and this herdsman made them gain at the rate of 33 pounds per month per head or 1.12 pounds per day. On the first of April a graduate of the college and a special student in dairying took up the work of herdsman. He is a man that is constantly on the alert for new developments. When milking a fresh cow he can scarcely wait until the milk is weighed in order to see if there is a gain or loss from previous milkings. When the calves are weighed he wants to know immediately how much they gained. With the same feeds at his command he made the four calves mentioned above gain an average of 35 pounds per head per month or 1.8 pounds per day, an increase of 60 per cent. This was done by carefully watching the calves; the moment one of them began to scour he saw it, reduced the supply of milk, gave a little castor oil, and in various ways sought to bring it back to its normal condition. This was accomplished in about 24 hours, when the calf would keep on gaining at the rate of a pound and a half or two pounds per day.

Yet there are farmers who say that education don't pay and that book learning is a fce. There is no profession that education does not greatly assist and nowhere is it needed more in order to increase the profits than in dairying. The farmer is called upon to solve questions in solid physics, in chemistry, botany, entomology, bacteriology, veterinary science, mechanics—and in fact can call into play a knowledge of all the sciences and arts. To do this he must be educated.

This education not only makes him a better farmer but makes his work a pleasure. No one who has not experienced it can appreciate the satisfaction that comes from seeing a plant, an insect, a bird, or an animal of any kind, and to be able to name it, tell something of its life history, and especially to know of its economic value to the farmer. Such education helps the farmer to realize the dignity of his profession in the front rank of the world's industries where it belongs.—D. H. Otis.

Dairy Notes.

At the Kansas Agricultural College last year they thought to protect their cows from the flies and the heat of the sun by opening up a thicket at the lower end of the field, but the cows did not appreciate it. They chose rather to lie down upon the top of the highest knoll in the field, where they could have the benefit of all the breezes that were blowing, which drove away most of the tormenting flies, and to lie down and chew their cud in comparative comfort. If there had been some good shade trees upon that hill, or even a shed roof under which they could have lain down, while the open sides had allowed the air to draw through freely, we think they would have liked that even better.

From what we find in our exchanges, we think there is an increasing demand in those sections where creameries most abound for the graduates of the dairy schools as managers of creameries and cheese factories, and an inclination to pay them good wages. Thus we learn of one young man in charge of a large creamery in Iowa who last year took charge of the 9,000,000 pounds of milk brought in to them, and made from it 30,000 pounds of butter more than was ever made there before from the same amount of milk.

This then was a gain of 3 pounds of butter to each 1000 pounds of milk, not a very large gain perhaps, but with the selling price of their butter averaging 18 cents a pound, it added $5400 to the yearly income of the creamery, and there was no trouble in his obtaining an increase of $50 per month to his salary when he asked for it.

Young men of that sort are in demand, and the dairy schools and agricultural colleges are sending them out as rapidly as they can get the right material to work upon, but not as fast as they are wanted. We see no better business for a young man to learn and go into without other capital than his brains, education and a disposition to succeed than this is to-day, and is likely to be for years to come. They are wanted not only in creameries, but on dairy farms.

Rain made it utterly impossible to race Saturday and the 2:21 pace and 2:20 trot, which had not been started, were declared off and the money was divided in the 2:14 trot (unfinsbed) according to the summary above.

It was also decided that all pools sold on this race should be paid according to the division of the money. This decision was received with a protest by many who had placed their money on Surpol, but the judges were fortified by Rule 18 of the National Trotting Association, which provides that: "Any purse race that has been started and remains unfinished on the last day of the week to which the member has limited its meeting shall be declared ended and the money divided according to the summary."

Warren W. Stoner, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., who wagered heavily on Surpol, filed suit against Ira E. Breda and William Fitch, who had the auction privileges, to recover $3625 which he had laid on Surpol, making the Columbus Driving Park Association garnishee. The suit was brought under the anti-gambling laws, which permits the recovery of money lost at betting within a stated period.

Stoner claimed a job had been put up on him, alleging that some one had blistered Surpol's leg and then got him to put his money on the horse.

There has been more argument over this race, perhaps, than any one ever contested on the local track, and there is a very general belief among the horsemen that the judges made a serious error in setting Surpol hack in the fourth heat. They claim Curry did all he could to get Surpol on his feet when he broke in that heat, and that, as he had finished first, he was entitled to it.

The New York Horse Market.

The following from one of the leading New York dailies gives an idea of the scarcity in good horses that every writer on the horse journals has been predicting for several years would come to pass:

"In the beginning of the spring good times and an apparent active market cheered the dealers. They congratulated themselves and everyone sent buyers throughout the country in search of horses suitable for coach and carriage trade.

Presently these traveling agents began to write home. Some of them had been as far as Missouri, others south as far as the lowest rim of Kentucky. Others journeyed north into Canada, but from every quarter the same cry arose. No horses were to be had.

The buyers would pick up a horse here and there, but many could not pay for the expense of their trips. The trouble, it appeared, was not of sudden origin. When the bicycle craze swept the country four years ago the breeders of middle grade horses stopped short.

Some that kept on breeding went to the wall. A number that stopped breeding became bankrupt, through dry rot. Everywhere the cry went up that the horse business was doomed.

The men who breed horses suitable for runabouts, bronghams, coaches and the like were the heaviest sufferers. After them came the trotting horsemen, then the thoroughbred breeders, and last of all the heavy draught horses. Hard times and the bicycle did them up.

Last year, good times and a waning of the wheel made prospects brighter. When the buyers went about they found some horses, not as many as in former years, but still some. Most of them complained that they were below standard and high in price. But they brought them to New York, and horse flesh was a little more expensive.

This year there has been a howl. Square acting horses with any sort of action and looks are worth money. Horses that could be bought here five years ago for $350 are now worth $500 or more. A good stepper that could be bought on the farm two years ago for $200 short will draw up to $300 now, and few are for sale.

With the high grade animals it is the same. You cannot buy in New York to-day a high-stepping, stylish and breezy-looking horse short of $750, and a horse fit to show in the ring is worth a thousand dollars, bar chance of a find.

High prices here would be good for the dealers if they could get any horses at a fair price for themselves. But they can't. There are none to be had. Moreover, it will be two years at least before the market reaches a normal state.

There never was a year when a poorer lot of animals came into New York, and to add to this, pink eye and influenza have ravaged the stock and held horses on the dealers' hands for months overtime.

Excursion Rate to Santa Rosa.

The California and Northwestern Railway will make a special excursion rate to Santa Rosa from San Francisco and way points, from Friday, August 18th to Monday, August 21st. The rate for the round trip from San Francisco will be $2 00. This will give those who visit the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association meeting on the last two days an opportunity of doing so for less than regular excursion rates.

On Saturday, August 19th, the last day of the meeting, there will be a special train to Santa Rosa from Ukiah and way points, and after the races are over a special train will be run to San Francisco. This will enable those who attend the races at Santa Rosa an opportunity to reach home Saturday evening whether they live south or north of that point.

BUDD DOBLE AT GILROY.

Began Work on His Band of Aptoe Ranoh Youngsters This Week.

Having filled up the necessary stalls at the Gilroy track Budd Doble went down to Mr. Spreckels' Aptos ranch last Tuesday and on the following day the twenty-eight head of horses recently purchased there by Mr. Doble were removed to Gilroy where they will immediately begin their studies with the great reinsman es school master. There is not a poor individual in the lot, in fact he says that he never saw twenty-eight horses from one farm that were so uniformly good as these youngsters. It is Doble's intention to have them all thoroughly maneuvered by the time they are put on the cars in November for shipment to the New York auction ring. Those that show natural speed while being handled will be developed some and a record kept of their work. There are several of these green youngsters whose only lessons thus far have been rudimentary, that can trot fast and by the time the sale takes place will be able to show speed in the ring that will certainly attract buyers. Following is a complete list of the twenty-eight horses purchased by Mr. Doble at Aptos ranch and now at Gilroy:

BETTING ON RACES.

Its System and Adaptability as Applied to the Trotting Horse.

About thirty years ago in company with a few friends at old Bay View race track I had the pleasure of witnessing for the first time on this Coast a trotting race and while leisurely scanning the grounds and watching the warming up heats, I was startled by the stentorian voice of an auctioneer who shouted, "What am I bid for first choice?" It was something new to me and I stood with astonishment at the way money poured into that pool box, each man playing his favorite and each owner and driver trying to win, as in heat after heat and race after race the same disposition was indulged in to back their respective favorites, until the close of the days sport, which was to my mind one of the greatest days of betting I had ever seen. Men bet their money freely, for money was plentiful in those days, and they bet their money to win as there was no place and show money known in harness racing at that time. But how different now with the advent of the bookmaker, an innovation that has left its everlasting blight on trotting horse racing.

Book betting received its first impetus in the trotting field on this Coast some few years ago through the instrumentality of a few sure thing gamblers, who saw an opening through which they could fleece a confiding public, but as the years roll by and the wily penciler figures and sponges to suit his taste the public are beginning to realize that the odds-making is not to their liking and they again yearn for the old system where they and not the bookmakers made the odds, and whether they won or lost, played to suit their judgment, accepting the odds as given by the general public in attendance.

Let us compare the system of betting as in operation today. The bookmaker places upon his board the name of every horse in the race, against each horse he places such odds as in his judgment he is justified in making, taking good care at the same time that with every bet his sheet is balanced and if there should be a play on any horse not in keeping with his idea of balancing, the name of that horse is wiped off the board.

Not so with auction pools; no matter how hot a favorite may become there is always a chance to play second choice or a field, consequently I maintain the latter is the best and only system suited to the followers of the trotting horse. While the bookmaker has his champions, and some advocate his system, let us ask upon what percentage he does business? No bookmaker will attempt to open a book unless he sees from 25 to 50 per cent. in sight on a trotting race. Imagine the public betting say ten thousand dollars daily. Now, according to the percentage shown there is from two to five thousand of that money buried in the pocket of the bookmaker, to be resurrected only at his own sweet will. This ought to be a convincing reason why hooking on horses in harness races does not harmonize with the sport, and the sooner owners and trainers and lovers of the trotting horse realize this fact the better. And I predict the day is not far distant when a combination of elements will be found to drive from the harness world the iniquitous system of book betting and relegate the bookmaker and his inseparable companion, the "tout," to the saddling paddock of the Bloomin' Bangtail.

ANTI-BOOK.

THE SWIPE'S IDEA.

Think an Excuse Book Would Meet a Popular Demand.

The pride of the stable had just finished 5-7-11 in his first race, and for ten minutes neither the owner, who sat in his accustomed place on the trunk, nor the swipe, who was juggling bandages, scrapers, rub rags and dope bottles, had a word to say. Finally the owner drew a long breath and said:

"Well, I am perfectly satisfied. He was not legged up to heat a gang like that, and, all things considered, he went a great race."

"I have been scared half to death for ten minutes," said the swipe, "thinkin' you was'n't goin' to say it, an' if you had put it off another minute it would have been me huntin' for another office. I've set up many a night dein' up lobster that foished 'absolutely,' and I'm willin' to do it again, but I always said to myself, 'Jimmy,' I says, 'don't never tie up with an owner that does the wrong thing when he loses.'"

"Thank you," said the owner. "I gather from your remarks that by some hook or crook I have managed to say something appropriate to the occasion, but for fear I may undo the whole thing I must ask you for a few pointers in regard to the proper way for an owner to deport himself when he loses."

"The very first thing that an owner ought to do when his horse loses a race is to dig up a good excuse for the horse. You can always class owners by the kind of excuses they use. A dead game owner always hands you the smoothest kind of excuses, and an owner who never has no excuses is sure to get leg weary and drop out of the game before the end of the season. That 'wasn't legged-up' excuse that you just used is good if it is old. It's been used ever since the year fi, but an owner who can't get just as much satisfaction out of it as he could out of second money, ought to be weedin' onions instead of owning horses. I'll bet good money that there was a hundred owners at Detroit last week that went over to Cleveland feeling happy, all on account of that 'wasn't legged-up' excuse. That's always a popular excuse at Detroit, but at Cleveland it won't work so well, because if a racer ain't legged up by that time it's a short chance that he never will be. Once in a long while an owner can use that excuse two weeks in succession, but as a general thing it's only good for one. A lot of them horses that wasn't legged up at Detroit was behind the money at Cleveland this week, but you won't find no good owner tryin' to jolly himself up with the same excuse he used at Detroit. Of course, all game owners is still satisfied with the way their horses is racin', but it's because the track was too soft or something like that. That 'track-too soft' excuse is a hot one and it's carried many a game owner over to the next town with a light heart. Betta put it down in your note book, you'll have a chance to use it next week, and it will do you a heap of good and improve your standing with the boys.

"You're pretty fair, though for a green one, an' I've seen owners that's been in the business for years an' couldn't deal out as good excuses as you can. It generally takes owners a long time to learn how to make up smooth, oily excuses to fit every loser, 'cause the books nor the papers never say nothin' about how it's done. Hiram Woodruff an' John Splan, an' Jack Feek, and Charley Marvin, an' all the other gyan that wrote books tell the owners an' drivers all about the best way to act while the horse is being trained for a race, but they don't say anything about how to act after the horse has lost a race. That's where all them books on training is shy—they don't say nothin' about excuses."

"Well, said the owner, with a far away look in his eye, "I guess you had better write me out a few good ones. I think, as you say, that I will have an opportunity to use them."

"What's the matter with me writin' a book of excuses? I guess I couldn't sell more than a carload of them books a week, at six dollars per, could I? Every owner in America would have to have one. It would take a mighty big hook to hold all the excuses that's ever been thought of, an' perhaps I better not write nothin' but real hot ones. Right after each one I'll tell how they ought to be used, like this: Excuse No. 53—Jumped the shadows. Never use this one on a cloudy day. No. 54—Hit the sulky with his hocks. Never use this one when the horse is hooked to the same sulky he has pulled for two years. No. 55—Got hurt in the car-coming-over. Never use this one when your horse worked in 2:13 the day you unloaded him. No. 56—Ben Walker-fouled-me. Don't use this one when you was last all the way round. No. 57—Blacksmith-out-his-toes-off. Use this one any time an' often. No. 58—Threw-a-toeweight. Use this one when you are sure the boys did not forget to put them on. No. 59—Track-did-not-suit him. Never use this one when all the heats are better than 2:12. I guess that ain't a hot system, is it? I don't think I'll go any farther than number 1754, but that's far enough to get the money and get it in chunks."—Chicago Horse Review.

A Great Heat.

"The greatest heat I ever saw trotted," said Matt Dwyer, just returned from the Cleveland races, "showing wonderful skill on the part of a driver, since 1876, when Smuggler beat Goldsmith Maid over the same track, was the fifth heat in the 2:23 trot. The Queen, driven by Ed Geers, and Royal Baron, driven by Spear, had a wonderful finish fight. The Queen had won the first two heats, Royal Baron had won the third and fourth, and it was a battle worth going miles to see for the fifth. Coming down the stretch The Queen was seen to be taking long, slobby strides behind as though she was looking for a good place to put her feet down, showing that she was getting tired and was on the verge of breaking. Geers held her well together for a short space and she finally flopped clear out and went off her feet. At this stage, all Spear would have had to do would have been to sit still and let Royal Baron go. It was evident that Geers thought he was beaten, but just then Royal Baron went off his stride, close to the wire. One had to catch to win and Geers, with marvelous skill, drew the mare across the track, pulled her together and trotted under the wire a little behind Royal Baron, who had been unable to catch his feet and went under on a run, thus giving The Queen the beat and race. It was one of the finest exhibitions of a driver's skill one will witness in many a day.

"One of the funniest things I saw at Cleveland," continued Mr. Dwyer, "was the efforts of the kodak fiends to get a shot at William E. Fasig, who was exercising all his skill to dodge them. Fasig wore a wonderful Mexican sombrero, gaudily embroidered with silver braid. It had a high peaked crown and the brim was so wide that it looked like an umbrella. He was quite a noticeable figure and the kodak boys were hot on his trail every day. It was exceedingly amusing to watch his maneuvers in dodging them, and the schemes they tried to work to get him, but so far as I could learn only one of them succeeded in getting a shot at him. —N. San Francisco, Saturday, August 12, 1899.

THE HARNESS RACING SEASON will open in California on Monday next, at Santa Rosa, with the meeting given by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. The season is very late in getting started this year. In this land of almost perpetual sunshine harness racing should begin in June and continue until the last of October. But normal conditions have not obtained in California during the past three or four years. Although there is a fairly good circuit arranged this year, it will take one more season to put harness racing back in the position it occupied before the hard times and adverse legislation well nigh dealt it a death blow. The old reliable "Breeders" Association comes to the front this year as usual, however, and the prospects are excellent for a revival of the sport that will be permanent and healthy. Convinced that good purses result in good racing, the Directors of this organization early in April promulgated a program in which the purses were of $1000 each, and the magnificent entry list received is proof conclusive that the horse owners have endorsed their action and rallied to the Association's support. The district associations have followed pretty generally in the path blazed by the P. C. T. H. B. A., and had it not been for an unavoidable delay caused by the necessary reorganization of the District Boards, the California Circuit would have begun on the first of June, and there would have been twenty weeks of harness racing instead of ten. However, the season which opens Monday next, at Santa Rosa, gives promise of being one of the best ever held on the Pacific Coast. There about 250 horses now at the track there, and the program shows that large fields will be the rule during the entire week. There never has been a time in the history of harness racing in California when such unanimous desire has been expressed by all concerned to make the circuit of meetings high class in every respect. From millionaire owners clear along the line to the stable hands there is a feeling that square racing and honest management must be the rule at every meeting on the circuit. The writer has conversed with nearly every owner and trainer that will start horses in races during the season, and has yet to hear one person express himself otherwise. It seems to be the universal opinion that on the actions of the drivers and the judges this year depends the future of harness racing in California. The Directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association have resolved that as far as lies within their power, the opening week at Santa Rosa shall be free from the taint of fraud or jobbery of every kind. They propose to have honest racing or none, and while there will be no disposition to be captious, violators of the rules of racing will be firmly dealt with. The purses this year are liberal—more liberal in fact than in any part of the United States, except the two Grand Circuits beyond the Mississippi, each of which is composed of a chain of great cities in several populous States. These purses are worth trying to win honestly, and we believe there is a disposition on the part of every owner and driver to win that way this year. One fact is certain: California horsemen have now the opportunity to place harness racing on a firm and lasting foundation, on which in succeeding years a structure of increased popularity can be reared, or they can make it a by-word and a jest with the public. It lies with them and the associations, and we believe they realize the fact and will act for the best interests of themselves and the great industry of horse breeding which has been and should continue to be the State's pride. The class of horses gathered at Santa Rosa to-day is away above what could have been gathered here twenty years ago. We have advanced in the harness horse business away beyond the mark set by the early breeders and trainers. But the acme has not yet been reached. We must continue to advance. New blood and improved methods must be taken advantage of. The annual race meetings will show us where they may be found, and which of them are the most valuable and reliable. Honest racing, fast records, and good judging will attract many recruits to the ranks of the harness horse breeders, and if every one connected with the noble industry will act well his part, there is no reason why California cannot be the first State to produce the animal for which we have been striving for years—the two minute trotter.

NOMINATIONS MUST BE MADE August 15th, which is Tuesday next, to the following harness events to be held at the State Fair, Sacramento:

Trotting—Free for all, $1500; 2:12 class, $1000; 2:16 class, $1000; 2:19 class $1000.

Pacing—Free for all, $1500; 2:12 class, $1000; 2:15 class $1000.

Running—Twelve stakes advertised in this issue will also close the same day.

San Jose nominations also must be made August 15th, as follows:

Trotting—2:13 class, $1000; 2:18 class, $800.

Pacing—2:12 class, $1000; 2:15 class, $800.

Don't let the date slip by without attending to this important matter.

LOS ANGELES has closed four of its advertised purses, viz.: The free-for-all trot with nine entries, the 2:13 trot with fourteen entries, the 2:20 trot with eleven entries, and the 2:20 pace with sixteen entries. The purses declared not filled were the three-year-old trot with two entries, the three-year-old pace with one, the 2:08 pace with four, and the free-for-all pace with five. The Directors will offer purses in place of all those declared off, and would like to hear from the horsemen as to what classes will suit them best. Entries to them will not close until about the time of the San Jose meeting as the Board will by that time have a better idea of what to offer in the way of classes. Secretary Lewis Thorne has gone East and will be in New York in time to attend the great meeting at Empire City Park. He will see the horsemen there and see if he cannot offer sufficient inducements to attract to the Los Angeles meeting some of the great pacers and trotters to compete in some sensational events at the October meeting. The Sixth District will have the greatest meeting ever held in Southern California.

THE Executive Committee of the California Press Association met at the Occidental Hotel in this city last Saturday night and rescinded action taken at a previous meeting with reference to place of holding annual meeting of the Association. It having been found that the railroad between Truckee and Lake Tahoe would not be in operation by September, and further that the State Fair would be an attraction for the newspaper fraternity the first week of said month. Sacramento was elected as the place of the meeting of the Association this year, and on September 7th to 9th was fixed as the date. Morning sessions of the Association will be held at the State Capitol, probably in the Senate Chamber, and afternoons and evenings will be devoted to different departments of the Fair, which this year promises to eclipse all former pavilion and park displays.

SALINAS will hold a good fair and race meeting during the first week in October. The race program for the harness events is announced in our advertising columns, together with the conditions governing the same. The Salinas meeting will follow San Jose. The Monterey county fair has long been known as one of the best of the smaller district fairs of California. At none of the others has there been a more regular attendance, year after year and the management has been such that in spite of the fact that no State aid has been received during the past few years, the association has prospered and there has always been a cash balance in the treasury. That grand old pioneer of California the Hon. Jesse D. Carr is president of the association and takes great pride in its annual displays of products and speed. Mr. J. J. Kelly is its secretary and he is one of the most efficient in the State.

ALL HONOR to Mrs. Helen Wilder Craft, of the Hawaiian Islands, who, while sojourning at Niles, in Alameda county, California, recently compelled an inhuman driver to unharness a raw shouldered horse he was driving and substitute a sound and well animal to do his hauling. As a result of Mrs. Craft's action, the District Attorney of Alameda county has started a crusade against those who are cruelly compelling sick and sore horses to work, and he announces that in future all cases of cruelty will be prosecuted. All honor to "this Honolulu lady; she's a daisy." And more power to the District Attorney's arm.

THE RUNNING PROGRAM for the Los Angeles meeting will be announced during the State Fair. It will provide for three or four running events each day with free entrance and purses from $250 to $400 each. The conditions of these races will be announced during the State Fair meeting and will be made to suit the horse owners.

A NOMINATION for the 2:13 trot at the State Fair can be secured by addressing this office. Horses must be named next Tuesday, August 15th.

Santa Monica Races.

The tenth annual races promoted by the Southern California Polo Club are set for September 8th and 9th at Santa Monica. They will take place on a new mile track near the beach. The ground is of an excellent description for a track, being springy and semi-damp. It will make one of the best training tracks in the State—especially for horses that have not the best of legs. It is within 800 feet of the ocean, on a railway and an electric car line. A good golf links is already on the track and next year bathing houses will be added and the track fenced in and regularly equipped for extensive racing during the summer. The purses this year are provided by subscriptions of the residents and are necessarily not large. Good sport has always been experienced at these races and the present year will probably be no exception. Eight races have been provided at distances from two furlongs and repeat to one mile.

STOCKTON ENTRIES.

Purses of $1000 Each to Be Offered for the 2:20 and 2:23 Trotters.

The Stockton Driving Club has declared filled the following purses of $1000 each, entries to which closed August 1st, The 2:16 trotting and the 2:15, 2:25 and 2:30 pacing events. The 2:30 and 2:40 trotting purses failed to fill and were declared off. In place of these, purses of $1000 each will be offered for the 2:20 and the 2:13 trotters, entries to close September 5th. Particulars and conditions will be advertised in this journal next week. Following are the entries to the four purses declared filled:

Keating's Pacer, Coney 2:09.

Nearly all the turf writers in the East who have not seen Coney 2:09 say that he is a bass counterfeit, but Murray Howe who knows more about a horse than the majority of them says: "Coney has my sympathy. I do not believe that he deserves half the abuse and ridicule that has been piled upon him. To me he looks and acts like a horse that is physically wrong, and I believe that time will show that he has a race horse head. The fact that he loses his stride and breaks when he is away off in the lead would indicate that something is hurting him. He will just about round to some of these days and win a great race. That trial mile in 2:07 1/2 that the papers all gave him credit for at Detroit when they first put the hopples on him was really in 2:05 1/2. It was 2:07 1/2 at the wire but 2:05 1/2 at the seven-eighths pole, where the family watches timed him from. Johnny Blue drove him." Tommy Keating says that Coney has never recovered from his severe attack of distemper, with which he was afflicted early this spring, and realizes that he started him too soon after his illness, but says the great amount of entrance fees for which he was liable tempted him. Coney is now extremely thin in flesh and weak, and the greatest thoroughbred that ever looked through a bridle will quit like a dog when in that condition.

THE OCCIDENT STAKE.

Final Payment on Six Good Three-Year-Olds Has Been Made.

The Occident Stake for 1899 will be trotted at the State Fair this year and from the following half dozen good three-year-olds the winner will come. There were 69 original entries to this stake:
D. E. Knight's h r f Lena, by Lynton—Elmorene.
P. W. Lie's b c Lea Row, by Fay Wilkes—Estata.
C. D. Bonner's h r f Tia Juana, by Gossiper—Myrtle.
Vandoma Stock Farm's b f Dr. Frassa's Sister, by Iran Alto—Linda Oak.
E. Tonham's h f Blanche T, by Hambletonian Wilkes—Minnie B.
Santa Rosa Stock Farm's b c Fram, by Direct—Silver E, e.

Sulky Notes.

BE at Santa Rosa Monday.

THE first day's program is a good one.

SHOW your good bits this year at the State Fair.

SURPOL 2:10, will be a starter in the Transylvania stake.

HAL E. 2:04½ and Fanny Dillard 2:08½ are full brother and sister.

ALIX, 2:03½, foaled a hey filly by Sable Wilkes 2:18 August 2d.

ROAD horses handled and for sale. Orders taken. Address D. R. Misner, 1309 Fulton street, city.

RUEY M. 2:12½, worked the last quarter of a 2:18 mile at Santa Rosa last Sunday in 31½ seconds.

THE Empire City track at Yonkers, New York, will be ready for horses to work over it next week.

THE indications are that the Duquesne meeting will be the greatest turf event of the year, east or west.

DAINTY DAFFO 2:13½, who won the 2:21 trot at Cleveland was given a tin cup record of 2:29½ last fall.

GALETTE 2:12½, is at Santa Rosa in C. A. Durfee's string and is ready to be entered in the fast classes.

THE QUEEN 2:10½ was unbroken a year ago, so she is about the fastest green one that ever happened.

MONTEREY 2:09½ was timed separately in 2:08 at Detroit, in the heat that Mattie Patterson won in 2:09½.

LITTLE THORNE has been sent further East to do the half mile tracks. The Grand Circuit is too hot for him.

THE person who can pick the winner in the 2:19 trot Monday ought to get more than even money against his choice.

A DOZEN good trotters and pacers have changed hands since the Grand Circuit opened, at prices ranging from $2500 to $12,000.

HAL B. 2:04½, is the first new 2:05 performer of the year. His picture makes him look like the Direct family of pacers, but he carries none of that blood.

SEARCHLIGHT's sire Darknight, by Alcyone, is owned in Europe and is offered for sale. He gets as many pacers as trotters and the German's don't like that.

THE champion of last year, John Nolan, 2:03, has been several times in the "also started" division this season, and has not trotted a mile below 2:10 in a race.

SEARCHLIGHT stands a chance of equalling Star Pointer's record and being another two minute horse. His record of 2:03½ makes him the champion five-year-old.

THE Eastern papers are saying that Miss Logau 2:06½, stands the best chance of closing the season with the champion mare record of any of the pacers out this year.

THE TRAMP, a roan two year-old colt by Jay Bird, trotted a mile in 2:21½ at Lexington two weeks ago to-day. This is the fastest trial mile of a two-year-old trotter this year.

CARL C. BURR, JR., who owns the California mare Margaret Worth, has been appointed supervisor of trotting meetings for the State of New York in place of Hamilton Bushey, resigned.

THE produce of Blue Bull mares are showing up well this year. Hal B. 2:04½, Will Tranby 2:06½, Fanny Dillard 2:08½, and Royal Baron 2:12½, trace back to the old Indian sire on their dam's side.

IN the cities of the Philippine Islands there are no mares. It is contrary to city ordinances to show them to come into the city, because there are no gaidings in the city, none of the horses being gelded.

THAT betting is pretty lively at the Grand Circuit meets this season is evidenced by the fact that at Detroit $310,000 worth of pools were sold. At Cleveland last week $286,000 went into the pool box.

THE Santa Ana horses at Santa Rosa are Floracita 2:11½, Billy Baker 2:18½, Adjutant 2:20½, Mable McKinney 2:17; El Diablo (a five year old green pacer), Ketchum 2:15, the great Silkwood 2:07, Beachwood 2:14, Connie, Nearnut 2:12½, Neeretta 2:16½ and two or three green colts.

WM HAROLD, the Sidney pacer named in the 2:12 class at Santa Rosa, was taken East last year, but only started twice. He got fourth money in the 2:19 class at Cleveland, and third money in the 2:16 class at Fort Wayne. In this race he won the second heat in 2:13½, which is his record.

DECEIVER by Altamont and Alta Dell by Ham Dell, driven by John Sawyer, knocked seven seconds off the Oregon team record for pacers at Salem last week, pacing a mile in 2:19. Alta Dell broke in the first half, which was slow, but the last half was paced in 1:05½.

"SANDY" SMITH laid over a week at Cleveland with Dione, Venus II, Phoebe Childers, Coney and Agitato. The last named was a very sick horse at Denver, but is rounding to and may yet be seen in the races before the season is over.

DON'T overlook Charles Derby 2:20 when making up a list of great speed siring stallions. He has to his credit seven with records better than 2:15, viz.: Much Better 2:07½, Derby Princess 2:08½, Diablo 2:04½, Owyhee 2:11½, Ciholo 2:13½, Derby Lass 2:14 and Flare Up 2:14.

ALWAYS thoroughly clean your horse clippers every time after using them and never allow your horse to be clipped with a machine that has been used on other horses unless it has been thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. Skin diseases are very often transmitted by the clipping machines.

MONROE SALISBURY has a trotter by Albion, out of a Ten Broeck mare, that has only been recently converted from the lateral gait to the diagonal. He trotted a half in 1:06 at Santa Rosa last week, but stopped some the next half. He is called Theron and is entered in some of the fast classes.

CAVANAUGH & COOK secured the letting privilege for the Breeders meeting for $1700. They will hook on heats and sell auction pools on the result, the same as is done on Eastern tracks. The same firm secured the letting privileges for the Golden Gate Fair meeting at Oakland, paying $6005 for the same.

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed whereby Joe Pa'chen John R. Gentry and Searchlight will meet in a race at Rochester, N. Y., August 16th, for a purse of $5000. Mr. Tranter, of Buffalo, has carried on and concluded the negotiations that led to this three-cornered race the past week during the Cleveland meeting.

EL DIABLO, a five year-old son of Diablo 2:09½, is showing lots of speed at Santa Rosa, but did not seem to be acting just right last Sunday. He worked a mile rather handily in 2:15½ but want to a break in the stretch just before reaching the wire and did the same thing in the next heat. He is gaited somewhat like Our Boy 2:12½.

HENRY SANDERS, the driver of Derby Lass, and former pilot of that sterling race mare, Derby Princess, that won a slashing split heat race at Fleetwood the last fall of its existence, may soon take charge of her again. She won her greatest races under the guidance of Sanders, and her new owner has about decided to restore her to her first tutor.

ORRIN HICKOK watched Venus II and Dione work out at Cleveland the week they were there, and timed the former a half in 1:03½ and the latter a half in 1:01½. He was very much taken with Venus II and thinks she has a great future before her. She sprung a slight curh during the shipment from Denver to Detroit, it is said, but it was not affecting her.

JAS. W. REA's bay two-year-old colt Vendome, by Iran Alto 2:13½ is the pride of the Vendome Stock Farm. Trainer Bunch says he believes the little fellow will be faster than his sire, and that Mr. Rea has very luckily bestowed the name of his breeding farm on the best one ever bred thereon. He will start at Santa Rosa in the two-year old trot on the second day of the meeting.

THE Nutwood Driving Club has added another big card to their race-week programme. A proposition was made to add Frank Bogash, 2:04½, and Planet, 2:04½, to the match between Directly and Ananias and was accepted. It is to be four-cornered, $5000 each and $3000 added by the club. This will bring the total money involved in race purses for this meeting up to $193,000.

WHILE the two-in-three heat style has been tried in a way several times, it has never before been given the fair show it is now getting. This season will surely knock the idea for all time or it will make it so popular that all tracks will have to come to it, and from present indications its success is assured, although it is hardly possible to predict to certainty about it until it has a more thorough test.

AN order has been given out by Secretary Toman of the Empire City Trotting club, for the making of twenty-five handsome silk coats for the use of drivers at the September meeting who do not happen to have their own colors. An effort will also be made to have the stablemen, who appear on the tracks, wear a uniform costume of some sort, so that they will not distress the eyes of the fastidious by their half dress and slouchy appearance.

JOHN SAWYER arrived at Santa Rosa from Oregon a few days ago with the Van de Vanter Stock Farm's string, consisting of the pacers Deceiver 2:16½, Alta Dell 2:18½, and the green trotter Tickets by Conductor. William Frye, another Oregonian, came in the same car, bringing Bill Frzier 2:14, Claymont, a green trotter, and Altacora, a green pacer. John Kirkland accompanied them with McBriar, a green trotter by McKinney, and Prinrose, a green pacer by Altamont.

EXTASY, Major McDowell's great three-year-old filly, is in great shape, notwithstanding it had been rumored that she was sick. Last week she trotted the Ashland Farm track in 2:16½, stapping the last quarter in 32 seconds. The track is a full mile course and one of the best private tracks in America. All signs indicate that Extasy will be as great a three-year-old trotter as she was pacer as a two-year-old.

THE very promising three-year-old filly Rita E. (2) 2:23½, has been sold by H. W. Brown, the Salt Lake City owner, to Ben Kenny, who acted for his employer, Henry Schmulhach Wheeling, W. Va. The deal was made during the Cleveland meeting last week, after the mare had shown a workout mile in 2:16. The price paid was $5000. This mare is entered in a number of rich stakes aggregating about $30,000, and seems to have a good chance to pay for herself in Kenny's hands.

YET TRYON has the big horse Joa Nolan, by Dexter Prince entered at the Santa Rosa meeting. It was in 1896 that Joe Nolan started at the State Fair. Dan McCarthy had him then and told all his friends that Nolan would go on a heat in 2:10 or better, but that a bad leg would prevent his winning the race. Dan put all his money down and had his friends do likewise. Joe Nolan was distanced the first heat which was trotted in 2:20½ and did not start again that year.

W. W. EVANS, of Lexington, has a great two-year-old trotter in his speedy bay colt Sellers. On Friday of last week he drove him a half in 1:08½, quarter in 33½ seconds, which is the fastest half trotted by any two-year-old at the Lexington track this season. Sellers is a good-gaited trotter and is well bred on both sides. His sire is Mince Meat (son of Eagle Bird and Caro Simmons, by Simmons), and his dam Sister Ethel 2:19½, by Jay Bird; second dam Mag's Lock, by Young Jim, and third dam Mag Lock, by American Star.

FARMER BUNCH came down to Alameda last week, secured possession of the mare Much Better 2:07½ and took her to Santa Rosa. She looks to be in good condition except that she is a little thin. Bunch says she will get all the oats she wants and that he believes she will be as fast as her record or perhaps a little faster before the season is over. Had he retained the mare in his possession last spring, it was his intention to breed her to Searchlight. The result of such mating would have been worth considerable and had a license to be fast.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being taken in the city of New York among the owners of crack road trotters, touching the Speedway prize that is to be raced for at the Grand Circuit meeting of the new Empira City trotting club the first week in September. Among the horses that are being given special preparations for this race is James L. 2:09½. The erstwhile California gelding is working very fast and ought to give the best of them a hard tussle for the cup. This gelding is a stayer and ought to be a weight puller. He has speed undoubtedly of the highest order, and when he got into a race during his career on the turf, he was never out of it until the horses had passed the wire in the last heat. He would race as long as any other horse would race and he could trot fast. He is at present the property of George W. Grote and is being prepared for the race for the cup by Isaac Fleming.

FROM this time to the end of the season, says the Chicago Horseman, the racing stables of the East View farm, James Butler, New York, owner, and Thos. E. Keating, Pleasanton, Cal., will be joined together in shipping and stabling in a general way on the corporation plan, as far as they can; and yet, on account of both stables having entries in the same classes they cannot well do, nor will they be, run in any way on the partnership plan. John Kelly, the trainer and driver of the East View farm horses, will, of course, be maintained in that position, while M. E. McHenry will drive most of the Keating horses as heretofore. When they get down the line as far as New York, Klatawah (3) 2:05½, now at Mr. Butler's farm and not in training this year, will join the stable, not to be raced this year but to be prepared for next year. It is also probable that Klatawah as well as others of Mr. Butler's horses will go to Mr. Keating's training quarters at Pleasanton next winter. They will go direct from Lexington or Nashville.

W. H. LUMSDEN's brown mare Myrtle, by Anteeo, entered in the 2:19 class on the first day of the Breeders meeting at Santa Rosa, has a record of 2:19½, made at Sacramento in 1891, when she won the Occident Staka, the value of which was $1825. In that race Vida Wilkes, daughter of Guy Wilkes, was the favorite at $50 to $20 for Myrtle. There were but two starters, and the late John Goldsmith, who drove Vida Wilkes, looked with pity at Bill McGraw, the driver of Myrtle, when they were warming up the two three-year-olds, and the followers of the San Mateo Stock Farm's entries did likewise and bought the pools on Vida Wilkes as fast as the clerks could write the tickets. The real good thing failed to win, however, Myrtle taking three straight heats and doing it easily. It was figured that the talent lost ten thousand dollars on this race, and the most of it went to Santa Rosa people. Myrtle was three years old then, so she is eleven now, and has raised two or three colts. It is said that she is as fast as ever and will make the others trot better than 2:20 to heat her.

HARLEM AND HAWTHORNE.

How the Californians are Faring at the Race Tracks in the Windy City.

[Special Correspondence of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

CHICAGO, Ill., July 30, 1899.

The game of horse racing has taken control of the inhabitants hereabouts—at least, the sport-loving portion of the population. The average attendance at the Hawthorne or Harlem races is at least 3500. On this closing day of the last meeting at Hawthorne the turnstiles showed an attendance of over 10,000, and yesterday, at Harlem, fully 8000 persons must have witnessed the six contests. The weather has been fair, the tracks fast at least seven-eighths of the time, and local time records have been shattered in many instances. This season the Hawthorne track, which was generally accounted fully two seconds "slower" than the Harlem one, has turned out to be a "faster" course to the extent of about three-quarters of a second to a mile, for Tenby ran a mile at Hawthorne in 1:39½ and could go the route at Harlem no better than 1:40. Gobel ran six furlongs in 1:12½ at Harlem a few weeks ago and old Meddler beat him out in slower time. The latter went the distance in 1:13 flat at Hawthorne with 114 lbs. up, eased the last sixteenth. Donald Bain did seven-eighths of a mile in 1:25½ at the latter course. Boney Boney went a mile in 1:39½, and Bonneville did likewise, if memory serves me.

Horses that raced in California last winter have been very much "in the hunt" here this summer, notably old O'Connell, who was a frequent winner early in the season; Sloou & Hurst's Prince Blazes, Frad Foster's Yellowtail, Sam McKeever and Geo. H. Ketchum, Earnshaw Bros.' Einsteino and Mistrel II, Holman & Hollis' Our Johnny, Louis Ezell's Kamsio and Espionage, C. P. Fink's Hardly, Frank Ven Ness' (J. Smith's) Limewater, Kittlemen's Myth, P. Ryan's Native Son, P. Corrigan's Rucivan, W. P. Magrane's Prestome and Lombard (Barns & Waterhouse's cast-off) and C. Kelsey's Robert Bonner. Of these, Herdly and Robert Bonner have been barred at Hawthorne for incipient stonning. Newgatherer, Canace, Senator Bland and Mallekwa, well known to California race-goers a couple of seasons ago, have won here, the first-named being successful on five occasions and yesterday winning at a mile in 1:40½. Van Ness couldn't land a race with Limewater until last week, though the half-brother to Bangle ran second and third on several occasions. Benemela and Tony Licalzi have been "in the money" a few times, but haven't won. Highland Bill, trained by Van Ness, died a few days after his arrival from California, despite all the care he received.

Of the riders from the Coast, Beauchamp (a Native Son, I believe) is the best and has got to be regarded as the star pilot of two-year-olds in this vicinity. Tom Glover is doing good work in the saddle, but does not get the pick of the mounts by any means. The same can be said of Ivy Powell-Jenkins, the crack rider in California toward the closing of last season, arrived from St. Louis last week, and continued his excellent work. Frank Ratter did some gilt-edged riding, but was left at the post on two hot favorites in as many days and was set down by Judges Reese and Kuhl for an indefinite period. The revocation of the boy's license was also recommended. Tommy McNickle, Nick Hell's rider, was likewise suspended indefinitely some weeks ago for a ride the jockey took exceptions to on King Bermuda. Hehn, who put several winners over the plate around the Coast metropolitan last winter, rides here once in a while. Hal Brown, a son of the ex-jockey, Jim Brown, made quite a name for himself early in the season, but met with an accident that laid him on the shelf. His brother Jim is doing fairly well, and is, like the younger Brown boy, working for Louis H. Ezell, who has quite a pretty place about a mile and one-half west of Hawthorne track. Cherley Gray rode old Newgatherer to victory yesterday. Emanuel Morris, who was a pigskin celebrity a few years ago and rode a season or two for "Lucky" Baldwin, is still very much in it, while Andy Hamilton, once a "big gun" among the jockeys and connected with the Haggin, Keene and other stables, has a leg up here quite often. Eddie Ames made his first bow to a Chicago audience from a horse's back about two weeks ago, but hasn't had a mount that would help him achieve fame or fortune as yet. Hugh Penny, H. Brown and Nete Hill, not unknown to Golden Steters, are seen in the saddle occasionally. Nutt is highly regarded by race players, while the crack-light-weight rider is Tommy Knight, who can do about 80 pounds. He rode four winners one day this month over the Harlem track. I suspect he will make one of the best jockeys in the country. He is an octocorn. Vaodusen, Knapp, Everett, Matthews, Flick, Winkfield and Overton have many admirers here, and have done remarkably well at the game of riding winners. W. Jones has put several long shots over the plate.

The best two-year-old colt that has appeared here this season is probably Yellow Tail, though he was only asked to go half a mile. Lew Kraft, in E. J. Brown's stable, is perhaps the best "stayer" amongst the youngsters, and is quite likely to develop into a Derby winner next season. Avenstroke is also of staka caliber. But good two-year-old fillies are very plentiful here, outnumbering the staka colts two to one, at the least. Lady Elite, by imp. Ordar—Bonita Bella, has proven the best two-year-old here, but not far behind her ere "Umbrella Bill" McGnigan's Purseheerer filly, Un-sightly and Applegata and Durham's Wedsworth heby Merito. Ooonee is another fast miss and the same can be said of Nulleh.

There ere no Hiodoos amongst the three-year-old colts, Donald Baic, Brigade, Boney Boy and Deering being about the best uncovered thus far. Semper Eadem, Queen of Song, Cenece and Espionage ere three-year-old fillies of some class. Among the older horses there are no Check-mates or Longfellows, though Tenby, The Davil, Banneville, Graziella and Al Frasco have shown ability to run miles better than 1:40.

The racing here is very well conducted. J. H. Rees is presiding judge at Hawthorne and A. W. Hamilton at Harlem. Herry Kuhl is associate judge at the first-named place, A. Chivington (of the Inter-Ocean) at the latter. The Hawthorne track and buildings (after which Ingleside was fashioned in a great measure), is very popular and the accommodations are unsurpassed anywhere. Two lines of steam cars and two electric lines take one to the course. The grand stand, a double-decker, will seat about 5000 persons. An artesian well supplies the grandest water anyone could wish for. Of course the big fire at Harlem has greatly handicapped the owners of that track, as the meeting was about to begin when the conflagration took place.

There is considerable talk here of the new course at Sen Meteo, and it is certain that all turf men that have taken strings to California in the past will go again next winter, bringing with them many notable additions to the list of owners of good race horses. The visitors of the past are the greatest "boomers" Sen Francisco could possibly have. "It's the garden spot of the world," say they, and I can add: "It's God's country, and the nearest thing to Paradise known since the days of Adam." RALPH H. TOZER.

Westchester Racing Association.

The Westchester Racing Association's efforts have ever been for the upbuilding and advancement of thoroughbred sport. The association was not formed for the purpose of giving races with a view to personal gain, but rather to improve the breed of thoroughbreds and to place the sport on an elevated plain as possible. Owners and trainers have been liberally dealt with and first-class sport has been furnished the public. In return it is but just that all fixtures announced by the association should receive the united support of owners and trainers. Their attention is called to a rich list of fixtures elsewhere in this issue to close Tuesday, August 15th. Twenty-four are for the autumn meeting, 1899, three for the spring meeting, 1900, one for the autumn meeting, 1900, three for the spring, 1901, and one for the spring meeting, 1902. Entries close Tuesday, August 15th, and should be addressed to H. G. Crickmore, clerk of the course, 183 Fifth avenue, New York.

SADDLE NOTES.

JOHN DONN is training forty young thoroughbreds at Mr. A. B. Spreckel's Napa farm.

SAM MERRIWEATHER is working Hilton, Devereaux, Roedwerner and two or three others at Oakland.

CHARLEY Thorpe will ride in California for Barns & Waterhouse until January 1st, when his contract expires. He will go to England next year.

THE thoroughbred stallion Montane has finished a season at Fresno in charge of the well known horseman Oscar Duke and was sent to Rencho del Paso this week.

"SKEETS" MARTIN and Lester and Johnny Reiff are showing our British cousins that although Tod Sloan is a pretty fair American rider "there are others."

ROSEVILLE, the dam of Bzo Brush and others, died at W. C. Whitney's farm in Fayette county, Ky., recently. She left a suckling colt, full brother to Bzo Brush.

THE Coney Island Jockey Club intends to make a new departure, and will race every day during the autumn meeting. Racing six days a week will be a novelty at Sheepshead.

A GOOD program of running events will be arranged for the Salices Fair, which opens October 3rd, and continues through the week. There will be two or three running races each day, all over-night events, and will be arranged to suit the horses at the track at the time. Good purses will be given.

THERE are at least twenty-five running horses being trained at the Stockton track. Judge Tem has four or five, Wash Trehern three or four and there are horses there from Sonora, Galt and Sacramento. The track is being put in first-class shape and all the buildings and grounds thoroughly cleaned. The Driving Club is leaving nothing undone toward making the coming meeting a success.

THE Louisville Jockey Club has decided not to hold a fall meeting. One was proposed and considered but has been abandoned on the advice of Secretary Charles Price. Mr. Price is of the opinion that while a fall meeting this year would probably prove both profitable and popular, it would be impossible to get high-class horses, and it would thus sink to the level of a gambling enterprise.

A LADY resident of Gress Valley, who is very fond of horses and mighty well posted on race horses, especially of the harness variety, enjoys this novelty: In the whole history of the English Derby only three fillies have won. Rlink Bonny, a filly, won the blue ribbon of the turf the year that this lady was born, and Shotover, another filly, won the Derby the year this lady was married, and no filly has won since. While this lady is not at all superstitious, she still earnestly believes that a filly will win the classical event the year she dies.

GARNETT FERGUSON has returned from Saratoga. In speaking of his trip Mr. Ferguson said: "The California horses that went East have not done much up to date. Golden Role, who was a world-beater out here, has been a disappointment at Saratoga. He is in good shape, but it is simply a case of being outclassed. There are a number of good two-year-olds around New York, but there are no phenoms in the bunch. Sedducee is easily the star of the two-year-old division, and may be said to be in a class by himself. Admiration and Ethelbert are the best performers on the New York tracks. Admiration is a sweet filly, and simply stood May Hempstead on her head when they met. Bendoren ran some good races since he went East and won from clever performers. Before I left for Saratoga I understood that there would be a number of new stables out here next season, but, of course, their coming will depend upon the condition of the horses after the Eastern tracks close. Pet Dunne has a fine stable at present. Bannockburn is one of the highest class performers in the string. Spencer is riding rings around the other boys at Saratoga. Nesh Turner is also showing good form in the saddle. In addition to Spencer, Turner, Clewson and Tommy Burns, Jockeys Odome and McCue may ride out here next season. Odome and McCue are great riders and would be a fine addition to the jockey talent at the local tracks." Young Ferguson is not enthusiastic over the East as a field for California owners and horses, and says that he will remain in this State after the close of next season.

DIGGS, the once famous race horse, who was probably the best two-year-old in the country in 1894, won a cheap selling race at Harlem last week, says a Chicago paper. It was his first victory this year. B. J. Johnson once refused an offer of $20,000 for him, but in this event he was entered for $200 and no one cared to bid on him when he was auctioned off after the race, for Diggs is no longer great. But he is a horse with a history and his victory brought to the minds of many horsemen recollections of his early racing career. Bred in California from a sire and dam so obscure that they were not even mentioned in the stud book, he was traded for a male as a weanling. Early in the spring of 1894 he startled Western turfmen by his splendid speed at the old Bay District track, San Francisco. W. H. Timmons had him then and when B. J. Johnson saw him work he purchased an interest in him. Diggs was brought East and it was on the Chicago tracks he became famous. He defeated all comers of his age at the distances two-year-olds usually run, and then he challenged the older division of horses, with the same measure of success. Diggs was invincible that year and at the Harlem track, where he won the cheap selling race last week. B. J. Johnson made a standing offer to match this two-year-old against any horse at any distance up to a mile, weight for age, for $10,000 a side. The challenge was never accepted, for his superiority was acknowledged by every one. It was no fault of Diggs that his career of greatness was checked. He was equally promising as a three-year-old as he had been as a two-year-old, but he was ruined by injudicious handling. He had been entered in a number of valuable stakes and in an effort to get him ready too soon he was knocked out and never recovered. Timmons takes all the blame and says himself that he ruined one of the greatest horses ever bred. The horse was at Louisville and Timmons was anxious to run him in a big stake against Buck Massie. Diggs was not ready, but he thought one good work would fit him, and induced Johnson to send him a mile and a half through the deep sand with weight up. The performance was a remarkable one, but the strain was too great and from that day to this Diggs' wind has been affected. He won a number of races, however, at six furlongs since then, but he has never been able to carry his speed over a distance of ground. Last summer James Arthur bought him at a sale at Washington park for $200, and he has won him out many times over, but this year the horse has been of little account and his success last week was a matter of surprise.

Heins of the Union Gun Club are the best of friends in all respects but one, and that is, the question of individual skill with the shot gun. So great is the rivalry between them, that it is reported a match will be shortly arranged for $350 a side, with the further condition that the loser shall surrender his gun to the custody of the winner and deny himself the pleasures derived from the sport of trap and field shooting for one year. Each shooter has a strong personal following and it is anticipated that considerable money will change hands on the result of the match. F. B. Peterson will probably officiate as referee.

At the Traps.

Blue rock shooters representing the San Francisco and Empire Gun Clubs will attend the regular monthly shoots on the Alameda trap grounds to-morrow.

The Lincoln grounds last Sunday was the scene of attraction for a number of blue rock shooters who took part in the open-to-all program arranged by Edg. Forster. The principal events of the day were the merchandise prize shoot in which John Karney and Clarence Nauman were high men, and the "greh hag" shoot, A. J. Wehh and Ed Schultz carried off the honors in this race.

In the first race at ten targets, class shooting, Edg. Forster won first money $3.50, Ed. Schultz, W. J. Golcher, E. Klevesahl and "Slade" divided second money $2.50. In a eleven target race, high guns, D. Daniels. "Slade" and A. J. Wehh divided the purse $7.15. A fifteen bird race followed, class shooting prevailing, E. Klevesahl won first money $5.60, second money $3.35 was divided by Ed Schultz and J. Ross and the third division $2.25 went to Edg. Forster, George Franzen and A. J. Wehh. The fourth event, a fifteen target pool, high guns, purse $7.50 was divided between "Slade", W. Price and Geo. Franzen. The fifth race at twenty targets, the merchandise re-entry shoot brought out a big list of entries. The entrance in this event was $1 and re-entry 75 cents, both scores counting. The prizes were many and appropriate. The "greh hag" shoot concluded the day's program.

The California Wing Club live bird shoot last Sunday at Ingleside took place under unfavorable weather conditions and with but a small attendance of the members. This event was the sixth regular shoot for the season, the meeting scheduled for next month concluding the series of seven for the season of 1899. Otto Fendner, Clarence Nauman, Dr. Barker and J. J. Sweeney all made clean scores of twelve birds in the club race—Dr. Barker making his score in shooting up a back score. Clarence Haight was unfortunate in losing his first bird dead out of hounds. Fendner out of seventy-two birds shot at so far this year has missed but one, Nauman two, H. C. Golcher three, "Slade" three, Barker four and Haight six. Several back scores are yet to be shot up. Out of the total number of birds shot on last Sunday but seventeen escaped, four of which dropped beyond the boundary line.

After the regular club race a twelve bird sweepstakes followed with nine shooters in, six of whom entered in a $2.50 side pool. Fendner took first money on a straight score and C. A. Haight, F. R. Webster and A. H. Whitney with eleven birds each divided second money. A six bird race followed with seven men entered in the pool which was made up into three moneys. Fendner and Haight killed straight in clever style and divided first and second money. Murdock took third money, neither Johnson or Leonard being in the pool, each of whom tied him on kills. The scores resulting during the day are given below.

The scores in the club race at twelve birds were as follows:
Fendner, M. O. 1111 1111 11-12 Bolander, L. P. 22221 21*10 12-10
Nauman, C. C. 1121 2112 12-12 Leonard, W. A. 2120 0120 00-8
Sweeney, J. J. 12 22 1122 22-12 Hosmer, H. B. 00100 0012 *1-8
Dr. A. M. Barker 12202 1212 11-11
Haight, C. A. 2222 2212 22-11 Dr. A. M. Barker 12122 1212 11-12
*Dead out of bounds. + Back score.

The scores in the twelve-bird sweepstakes were the following:
Fendner, M. O. 1122 2122 12-12 Sweeney, J. J. 1101 1112 01-10

was some discussion between us as to which was the best route to take. J. wished to go through an ugly looking patch of hunkal, an almost certain harbor for "stripes," while I preferred a more open though longer road. Finally he came my way and we proceeded cautiously through the bushes, examining the soft mud for pugs. We had just remarked with wonder at their total absence, when we heard some big beast break out of the jungle and come galloping towards us, flopping heavily through the mud, from the direction of the salt pan. It passed close by us and we caught a glimpse of a tiger as he dashed into the identical bunch of hunkal J. had been so desirous of exploring. If we had gone that way we should have met him face to face and perhaps with disastrous results to ourselves, for though the bushes were low and comparatively scattered they were quite sufficient to hide him till right on top of us. He had been lying up in the tall grass growing on the raised ground, and hearing the hoat and voices must have concluded that people intended to laud thereabouts, as wood-cutters and honey-gatherers were no doubt in the habit of doing occasionally. So in his alarm he made hasty tracks for his private sanctum and nearly ran into the enemy on the way. We had some big crackers with us in the hoat, which we got, and throwing them into his lair tried to dislodge him by their means. But the jungle wherein he was hiding was extra heavy, and he managed to sneak off without our seeing him again.

The coolies employed in clearing jungle experience exciting times, and poor fallows are often carried away by the tigers who infest it. We were asked by the owner of some land that he had just taken up to try and shoot a tiger or two in his estate, as all work had been stopped for some weeks by the threatening behavior of a tigress who refused to allow the coolies to clear a certain piece of jungle, evidently her home, and who used to come out and growl at them in broad daylight, approaching so close at last that the men were overcome with terror, and halted, declining to resume work again in that particular spot. Of course, we were only too ready to oblige him, but how to get at the brutes, that was the question. The jungle was a peculiarly aggravating kind, mostly composed of hunkal palms and weedy trees, and if we did see a likely looking one as sure as we came to examine it, the branches proved to be rotten or unsuitable for a machan. We had spent a couple of hours one morning in this unprofitable tree hunting, and had unconsciously penetrated farther into the jungle than was exactly safe, when we received a sharp reminder of the fact in the very double-distilled odor of tiger that filled the air, and the variety of pugs that patterned this ground at our feet. It was clear we had strayed into somebody's family preserves, and the sooner we got out again the better for us. One or two suspicious rustlings in the hunkal also aided to strengthen this conviction. Accordingly, with rifles half cocked, we made tracks for the bherri and clearings at best pace. Trying to take a short cut we found ourselves in very bad country with deep soft mud to be "splashed" through and horrid thick jungle to be crawled under or over as the case might be. It was lucky for us we did not meet with any members of the happy family, for thars was not room to shoot, except at point-blank. We reached the open ground all safe, however, and got into the dinghi, intending to row round by the khall to the other side of the hit of jungle we had just been exploring, but after a while spying what seemed to be a decent tree we landed again to have a look at it. We were walking along the bherri, when I saw in the distance two objects which looked like a man leading a refractory red calf. J. was gazing at the ground in search of pugs and did not notice them till I drew his attention to them. Then we wondered what a man with a calf could be doing along that road of evil repute even though the hour was 10 o'clock in the morning, for not a soul had passed that way for weeks. Marveling much we proceeded a few yards further on our way, when simultaneously we made the startling discovery that we had lighted upon a family of tigers enjoying the sunshine and air in a sensible manner, instead of lying up in their stuffy jungle retreat. We promptly slipped down the side of the bherri and held a consultation as to our line of action, trying to conceal ourselves as much as possible behind the bank, for thars was nothing else to screen us, all the jungle having as usual been carefully cut down and removed to some distance on either side of the bherri. Unfortunately we had left the 500 express in the dinghi. J. was carrying his 2-hore rifle, and I had only my 12-bora gun loaded with ball, which I generally take jungle "sneaking" in the Sunderbuds, the express being no use in such dense country. A long shot was therefore out of the question. We managed to creep up to the party within 200 yards and watched their gambols for a little while without being twigged ourselves. The tiger sat on top of the bherri, keeping watch and admiring the pranks of the tigress who was playing with a wee cub the same as a cat does with her kittens. It was the tiger's white shirt front we mistook for a native's clothes, the refractory red calf being her ladyship bounding up and down the bank and racing around for the edification of her previous butcha. Our hoat had been following us, and presently the sound of the oars made the tiger look in our direction. He at once stood up showing big red with his shirt front shining in the sun. After gazing a few seconds he turned and dashed into the jungle. The tigress had been playing down the bank, but now she came on top and also stared our way for a little while, then she followed the tiger. After a few seconds she reappeared but halted again at once; a minute or two later we saw a small brown object scramble hurriedly up the bank and vanish over the other side. This was evidently the cub who, neglecting to answer his mother's first warning, had got left behind. When the dinghi came alongside we went on board and paddled quietly to the place where the revels had been held in hopes of getting a shot from the boat, but seeing no signs of them we landed and found that they had gone into the same corner of jungle we had been exploring from the other side half an hour earlier.

"When Greek meets Greek then comes tug of war," hot had shooting party met scratching party, rifles would have been of small account, and claws have proved the better weapons, circumstances being all in their favor. Therefore all these stories tend to show that it is easy enough to go to Sunderbuds, but not so easy to bag your tiger.

She said "Take a Nap or so, Dear." He drank so much whiskey he took a "Nsp or co" in the cooler. Now he takes a NAPA SODA straight (JACKSON'S) and his head is cooler. Steady nerves and clear heads characterize the drinkers of JACKSON'S NAPA SODA.

Reels for Striped Baes.

The preposterous statement in one of the morning dailies on Saturday last that a local angler had to send to an Eastern sporting firm for a reel suitable for striped bass fishing because he was unable to find among the local firms that sell sporting goods a reel fitting for this kind of fishing, is either purposely misleading or not founded on fact. The fisherman in question may not have been able to satisfy his individual fancy, fastidious taste or desire for a particular pattern and make of reel it is true and preferred to send East for just exactly what his choics in the matter called for, this action concerned but himself and was one which he had a perfect right to do and is under no circumstances a subject of criticism here. We do criticize, however, the carelessness or purpose which allowed or prompted the publication of such a statement. An inspection of the goods offered by Clabrough, Golcher & Co, or the E. T. Allen Co., will convince the most captious angler that he can purchase in this city anything and averything for any and every kind of fishing found in any waters west of the Rocky mountains; furthermore reels for striped bass fishing are offered for sale in this city by the shova firms that are as good and efficient in every respect as the best makers can produce. If anything is called for not in stock, or when thars is occasion for the manufacturers of a new design or style of goods, the promptitude with which the two leading and enterprising firms above mentioned supply the demand is a refutation of the impressio conveyed by our daily contemporary that is known to the majority of anglers on the Pacific Coast.

The Fly-Casters.

Last Saturday at Stow Lake T. W. Brotherton made the highest scores in three of the events. Good average scores were the rule, although the wind was too high for fins work. On Sunday the wind was available which made it rather difficult to do accurate work. The scores are given as follows:

The State Board of Fish Commissioners have arranged for the distribution of 100,000 young trout in the streams of Santa Clara county, 10,000 of the young fish having already been placed in Howell lake, owned by the San Jose Water Company. The fish will be disposed of under the supervision of the following gentlemen, members of the Santa Clara County Fish and Game Protective Association:

- Calaveras Creek—John Messersmith, F. H. Brokage and William Donovan.
- Smith Creek—Mr. Baue, of Lick Observatory, Robert Leaman and H. Dohle.
- Almaden Creek—Homer Priudle, E. A. Kennedy and Joseph Henwood.
- Stevens Creek—J. A. Lovall and members residing at Santa Clara.
- Mayfield—Constable Brownell.
- Guadalupe—Joseph Zingg and J. Parolla.

Carp in the San Joaquin river in the vicinity of Antioch are rapidly disappearing, the "gentleman of the river," the striped bass, preying upon them incessantly, so much so that there is an appreciable decrease in their numbers. This is good news to the hunter as well as for the angler, when the carp are cleaned out of the Sacramento, the San Joaquin and their tributaries, the vegetation which formerly thrived in great abundance in those waters and afforded vast feeding grounds that were resorted to by myriads of wild ducks, will undoubtedly grow again as profusely as of yore. There will then be a chaos for the fine duck shooting which prevailed before the advent of the "hog fish."

Flehermen Chased by a Moose.

The versatile press agent of the Catalina Hotel Company has a strong rival in the East who is diligently seeking the glory and fame vouchsafed the scribe who can relate good fish stories. In lieu of the leaping tuna our Eastern genius strums his lyre with a teneful narrative the motif of which is furnished by the swimming moose. In a communication sent from Topsyfield, Maine, last month, he graphically details a story, in divining the truth of which the reader is in the same position as was the small hoy who, after entering a "wax-works" exhibition and hearing the lecturer glibly and unctuously explaining a representation of the Battle of Waterloo, timidly asked, "Mr. Keeper, please, wich is Napoleon and wich is the 'ay stack,'" and was answered, "Me he, ys pays yer money, an' yer takes yer choice."

Frank Crockett and William Meharr have returned from a fishing trip to the Musquash lake with the strangest moose story of the season. It has been known since last winter that two cows and a bull moose were in the vicinity of the point where they camped. They were fishing about a hundred yards from the shore catching pickerel one day, when Crockett discovered a calf moose swimming in the lake.

They watched the antics of the young moose for some time in astonishment. The calf would swim from one point to another, making a distance of about 300 feet. His progress was slow, and he appeared to be taking swimming lessons. At each point the little fellow would take a short rest and again make the trip, each time venturing into deeper water. Many times in the progress of his practices he would float motionless with nothing but his nose out of the water. The wind was blowing toward the fishermen and brought the moose nearer to them each time the little fellow found himself out beyond his proposed course at the moment when he caught sight of the boat.

Crockett and Meharr had remained perfectly silent until the little fellow had raised his head and began making rapid progress for the shore. Then both men dropped their fishing tackle. Meharr grabbed the oars while Crockett pulled the killock rope and soon a race was in progress. Before the calf had gone a hundred feet the boat was alongside and Crockett grabbed him with both hands around the neck. Meharr dropped the oars and assisted in lifting the moose into the boat. The little fellow was nearly exhausted with fright and trembled like a poplar leaf at first, but before Meharr had begun to row he made a desperate attempt to escape, leaping over the side of the boat. He kicked vigorously, but was again placed in the bottom of the hoat and this time his legs were tied with a rope.

The fishermen were talking with each other about the best plan for keeping the prisoner without the knowledge of the game warden, when the moose began to bleat. His tones echoed along the water and were re-echoed again through the forest. Almost with this first call came an answer from the bushes on the shore, a loud, mournful howl, a sound familiar to all hunters during the moose mating time. With the second cry from the calf the cow moose hove in sight on the beach and began to smell along the pathway where the young one had taken to the water, hellowing and tearing the ground with her feet. A splash of the oars attracted her, her head and tail went up and she plunged into the water, making straight for the boat.

The speed with which she proceeded through the water was marvelous. Before the fishermen had realized her intentions she was close to them. Meharr pulled with all his might straight for the center of the lake. It was anybody's race for a few hundred yards, and the air was filled with hisats from the calf and orders to Meharr from Crockett to pull for heaven's sake.

They began to gain on the cow for some minutes and were congratulating themselves when all of a sudden the boat began to describe a circle, and in spite of Meharr's efforts it continued to go round and round. The cow moose that had almost given up in despair, took a second spurt and gained until she was less than ten feet away. Crockett then discovered that the killock rope had fallen overboard or had been kicked over by the calf, and he began to pull it up. At the same time Meharr gave one desperate pull and broke the right oar off close up to the rowlock. Seeing the situation Meharr abandoned the idea of escaping with the prisoner and proposed to set the calf free in order to save the boat. He whipped out his jackknife and began cutting the ropes that bound the prisoner. Before his work was done the moose had reached the boat and got both forward feet in over its side. In a moment the calf, Crockett, Meharr and all went overboard into the lake. Meharr and Crockett each made for the opposite shore, swimming with all their might. The calf and cow moose went back to the shore.

Both Meharr and Crockett are good swimmers; but might have lost their lives had not assistance arrived just then. Dr. Johnson, Otis Taylor, Daniel Laue and Moses Brown, who were fishing in Sweet Cove, heard the hellowing and yelling, and, leaving their fishing tackle, set out to see what was up. Johnson and Taylor arrived around the point in time to see the boat tip over. Both Meharr and Crockett were picked up in an exhausted condition. The moose were still in the woods near the Musquash at last accounts.

General Sbafer and his daughter, Mrs. W. McKittrick spent a most enjoyable day angling for black bass in the lake on the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, near Danville, Contra Costa county. The catch weighed about sixty pounds, the largest fish weighing two and a quarter pounds. The sport occupied three hours last Saturday morning and was intensely interesting while in progress. The bait used was angleworms, their attendant Mariano, a Cuban boy adopted by the General, found the task of baiting the hooks very repugnant, he was under the impression that the wriggling worms were small snakes. The lake above mentioned is a reservoir on the private property of John T. Boyd, Esq., and its surface is seldom disturbed by the disciples of Isaac Walton. The bass were placed there three years ago and have multiplied rapidly.

Amendments to the Rules.

The Committee on Constitution and Rules met at the office of the American Kennel Club on Wednesday, July 12th, to consider and report on amendments to the rules. All the members were present, H. K. Bloodgood, chairman; H. F. Schellbass, G. W. H. Ritchie, A. P. Vredanborgh and James Watson.

The principal business before the meeting was the consideration of the proposed change to the point system in scoring for champion honors. But one letter had been received by the Kennel Club suggesting any plan other than that which had been published in the Kennel Gazette, and after considering this letter thoroughly the committee decided that it was not practical and would entail the rating of each dog that had won a winner's prize and other complications.

The original suggestions were then taken up and exhaustively discussed with the result that the point system was unanimously approved, but a change was made in the classifying of shows. In place of ranking New York and San Francisco arbitrarily as five-point shows and all others below them, a scale was drawn up whereby New York will take that rank and if any show can do nearly as well in number of dogs then it will score equally high. Another scale for the Pacific Coast was made on a basis applicable to that section whereby San Francisco, if it does as well as it has during the past two years, will always be a five-point show.

A prolonged discussion took place over the rating of specialty clubs' exhibitions, which was finally placed at four points, when the exhibition is confined to the breed taken care of by the specialty club giving the show.

The scale of points is not offered as an amendment to the rules, but as a standing resolution of the Kennel Club, as all that concerns the exhibitor is the minimum rating of the show which will be officially stated in the indorsement of the premium list by the Kennel Club secretary. As soon as it was decided that a show could raise itself by its number of entries above the minimum rating the way was clear for the rating of new shows without calling for an arbitrary placing by any of the club officials. New shows will be rated at one point, and if they do better than 250 dogs, they will be advanced according to the scale of points.

The other amendments are for the most part corrections omitted to be made when the rules were last amended, and the others are suggestions from the Kennel Club office, the result of close connection with the working of the rules. No vital principle is involved in any of these changes.

The page and line references are to the pamphlet copy of the Constitution and By-laws of the American Kennel Club published by the club.

In order to fix a scale of points by which the value of a win in the winners' class may be determined, your committee recommends the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the value of each show (except on the Pacific Coast) to be held in 1900 shall be fixed and determined upon the records of said shows for the year 1899, and each succeeding year, based upon the records of its previous show, in manner following: The winner of ten points in a winners' class shall have earned a championship. All shows to be rated upon the actual number of dogs entered, not including local classes: 1250 entries or over, 5 points; 750 entries and under 1250, 4 points; 500 entries and under 750, 3 points; 250 entries and under 500, 2 points; under 250 entries, 1 point.

On the Pacific Coast: 500 entries or over, 5 points; 250 entries and under 500, 3 points; under 250 entries, 1 point.

That the foregoing be the minimum rating, and in the event of the number of dogs entered at any show being in excess of the higher number for the division in which it is rated, then said show shall be rated on its own merits.

Specialty clubs holding shows confined to their own breeds 4 points.

Specialty clubs holding shows not confined to their own breeds will be rated as regular shows.

New clubs holding inaugural shows, having no previous record, shall be rated as one point as a minimum.

That the secretary shall publish in the Gazette for December of each year the ratings of the shows for the following year.

Your committee begs to report that the amendment to Section 3, Governing Dog Shows, Rule XII., adopted at the annual meeting held February 22, 1899, which reads: "It shall be the duty of dog show committees to bench all dogs of a breed together, when owned and entered by one exhibitor, provided a request for same be made on the entry form," was acted upon in violation of Section 4, By-Laws, relating to amendments, is therefore illegal, and cannot be enforced. Section 4 specifically provides that Section 3 cannot be altered or amended until after notice of such alteration or amendment has been published. The amendment above referred to was made to said Section 3 without any published notice prior to the adoption of same. In order to rectify the omission, your committee now moves the adoption of the amendment as above set forth.

Your committee has considered the request of the Pacific Advisory Committee to recommend a rule extending disqualifications to the progeny of disqualified dogs, but does not feel willing to indorse such a project.

The request of the Executive Board to frame a rule regulating the sale of marked catalogues at shows does not meet with the approval of your committee, and it begs to withhold its recommendation.

The question relating to winners' classes in Cocker Spaniels (any other variety) referred to this committee at the last quarterly meeting of the club, is in its opinion not within its jurisdiction, and respectfully refers the matter back to the Association for its action.

The following propositions were not considered and are referred to the club for action.

Amendment proposed by Mr. Viti:
 Puppies may be permanently removed from the show at any time after their classes have been judged, whatever those classes may be, provided, however, that puppies may be so removed only after the close of the show in the evening.

Request of the Collie Club.—At the annual meeting of the Collie Club the following resolution was adopted:

That the American Kennel Club has requested to consider the advisability of making a rule that a dog which has won a championship at a show under English Kennel Club rules can only be exhibited in the open class.

Judges' Slips.

The duty of checking and transcribing the awards made at the various shows brings to light some peculiarities which have never been commented upon, although they are of sufficient importance at times to be deserving of notice in the kennel press. The most conspicuous of these is a failure to recognize that the winners' class is the most important when it comes to a consideration of the individual and not comparative merits of the dogs in that class. At present it is a matter of course that even a puppy class winner, if unopposed in the winners' class, is placed first. This point is emphasized still more when we find that not one but quite a number of judges will give "Reserve" in the winners' class to a dog from which first has been withheld in his class. The object of specifying a "Reserve" is that in the event of the winner being disqualified there is one to take his place, and in such a case as we have mentioned if the winner was disqualified, we would, if the American Kennel Club recognized the validity of such placing, have a dog not good enough to win first in a puppy or novice class taking rank and scoring for the title of champion. In no class does the question of merit become of as much importance as in the winners' class. It is the crucial test of excellence, and while lenience is admissible in the other classes there should be none in this. Yet the withholding of a first in the winners' class is of such exceptional rarity that it is most evident that the judges consider it is necessary to make the award if any kind of a first prize winner is led in for the ribbon. It might deduct a little from the judges' popularity, which is too often a reflex of liberality in giving prizes and mentions, but the judges owe it to themselves to have some standard of excellence necessary in candidates for first in the winners' class.

The object of "Reserva" is another point which is evidently not understood by all. Its origin was in the inability to advance one of several V. H. C. dogs in the case of a disqualification, so the plan of taking the best of these and naming him as "Reserva" came in vogue. If there is only one V. H. C., it is not necessary to give it "Reserva," though to do so is not any great offense, but it is not altogether unusual to find "Reserva" given when second prize is withheld. Now, "Reserva" being a dog to be advanced if any ahead is disqualified, would the judges who make such awards have the A. K. C. advance such a "Reserva" dog to first place if the winner was disqualified? The strangest misapprehension of the "Reserva" came into notice in a class where all prizes had been withheld and one dog was given "Reserva," a decision which showed most conclusively that the object of "Reserva" was entirely misunderstood.

There is evidence, also, that it is not altogether clear to some judges what dogs are eligible to compete for the "Reserva," and it occasionally happens that a first prize winner that has been placed there or even lower in some other class is placed as second best of the breed, which is what "Reserva" means in this case. The rule is not carried out when such a thing occurs, for in addition to all other first prize winners all placed second to the absolute winners should be brought into the ring so as to be certain that "Reserva" goes to the second best dog of all competitors.—American Kennel Gazette.

MASTERS AND PETS.

Dogs That Assimilate Character and Style.

It is said that when two persons are a good deal together they grow to look like each other, but the statement is just as true of men and dogs, says a writer in the New Orleans Picayune. The likeness is sometimes so strong that one involuntarily suggests the other. This similarity is strongest, in the walk.

I know a bank president, fat and pompous, who owns a little fox terrier which might be a bank president among dogs. The man has a heavy, waddling gait, and the dog, partly on account of rheumatism, walks exactly like his master. The lively nature which is supposed to belong to a dog of this breed is utterly lacking in this animal. His acquaintance is only with the blue-blooded dogs who wear collars, and it is evident that his conversation is all on the rise or fall of dog stock, the stringency of the bone market and the probability of plenty of cats.

On the other hand, I have the acquaintance of two little fox terriers who go to the other extreme. They are very nervous and seem to partake of the nature of the mistress of the house. When she goes for a walk her pace is very rapid, her steps short and her sudden halts to look in a store window or speak to a friend give her a harum-scarum appearance which is shared by the dogs. They chase around the streets with little pattering steps, stop suddenly, chase on again, gat in every one's way and arrive home breathless and happy. The mistress is a woman who jumps at every sudden noise, and the dogs jump with her. They also imitate her in many little fretty quarrels, which are over as suddenly as they begin.

The old-fashioned man with the old-fashioned dog still further illustrates this point. The man is tall, rather fleshy and has long thick hair and a full beard, cut in the old style. The dog is large, rather clumsy with shaggy hair, a veritable picture of the old school reading book Bruno. The man seems to know no one; neither does the dog make the acquaintance of his fellows. It is evident that the life of both is devoid of excitement and is made up of a routine of placid little doings.

In contrast with this is the resemblance between a polished, courteous man of the world and his little shining, spick and span poodle. They are both small, dark, silky and graceful. The master has fine, wavy locks and the dog a beautiful shining coat of hair. They both move softly and easily about the room and greet a visitor with quiet courtesy. When a stranger enters the little dog does not sniff at him, but walks up quietly and invites a pat. These two, master and dog, are so much alike in their personality that sometimes I am in danger of patting the master and shaking hands with the dog.

A homely, yellow tramp dog attached himself one day to an unattractive, freckled, red haired youth, and the two are now boon companions, alike in appearance and tastes. The boy laughs loud and harshly at whatever amuses him, and the dog follows with an irritating, discordant bark. The dog is no respecter of persons, and ambles along with a devil-may-care gait. The boy is not awed by any personage, however great, and slouches along the streets until some mischief arouses the attention, and together he and the dog go into it. So the two go along through life, irreverent and careless, but rather liked on the whole on account of their imperturbable cheerfulness.

A little girl who owns a big St. Bernard dog has so imparted her very feminine personality to the animal that the big fellow is becoming most ridiculous. She walks with short, quick steps, turning her toes out very squarely. This is a hard gait for the dog to imitate, but he has done it with his hind feet at least, and minces along, giving a little twist outward with his hind feet. The little girl jumps up and down with delight and the clumsy dog attempts the same light springs. She is a child whose personality is not at all strong and whose voice is of the feeble, fussy sort, and the dog lacks that big commanding presence which belongs to a St. Bernard. His bark is not a deep bay, but sharp and indecisive, and he is gradually becoming fussy in all his movements.

It would not be polite to say that the master or the mistress partakes of the personality of the dog, and so the dog must be affected by the personality of its owner.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Bathing too frequently is often the cause of a dog's coat coming off.

When a dog is shedding his coat, boiled linseed oil given in the food is an aid that will help the process.

If your dogs are troubled with fleas use pine shavings for bedding. To these might be added a moderate quantity of coal oil.

Bonnie Doone, a handsome St. Bernard bitch owned by A. Young, is at present in the care of Mr. J. H. Dorian. She is in whelp to Grand Master Muro.

By request of a number of gentlemen identified with the breeding of bull terriers we republish to-day the Standard for that breed which same appeared in our columns last October.

Master McGrath heads the lists of greyhounds that have won the most money in England, his total being £2000. Mineral Water very close up with £1997. Fallerton is third on the list with £1910, his victories being confined to the Waterloo Cup.

The Stockdals Kennels, of Bakersfield, received from the East recently the pointer bitch Florida, by Rip Rap—Pearl's Dot. The bitch was bought in whelp to Young Jim and shortly after her arrival whelped five liver and white puppies, three of which are dogs.

The Rev. J. W. Flinton, of Victoria, has been very unfortunate recently with his fox terriers; several very promising pups have died from various causes, two dog pups by Aldon Swagger—Aldon Radiance, and a dog and bitch by Judy, also a young dog by Swagger.

E. Pferdner, of Victoria, lost his rough coat St. Bernard dog Shasta (Regloy—Empress Juno) on August 3d. He had been ailing for some time past and finally succumbed to aemia. Lady Ruth (Judge—Lady Gladys S), a bitch owned by A. Gonzalez, is now in whelp to Shasta.

The Pacific Fox Terrier Club will shortly hold a meeting in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for the purpose of electing several officers to membership, also to receive entries for the Produce Stakes which are to be decided at the San Francisco Kennel Club show next May.

G. J. M. E. d'Aquin of this city is gradually getting together a good kennel of fox terriers. He started well in purchasing a bitch pup by Aldon Swagger—Aldon Radiance and has since acquired the dog Victoria Wanderer, by Aldon Quaster—Queen of Trumps, winner in the puppy class at the recent Tacoma and Seattle shows.

The dog poisoner made his rascally presence felt in Los Gatos recently with the result that three valued and faithful dogs were lost. Mr. C. Philip Meyer reverts the death of his prize winning St. Bernard Canadian Pilgrim; a fine cocker spaniel bitch and I. C. Ackerman's bloodhound Roger filled out a trio of dogs owned in this city and killed by an unknown miscreant.

N. H. Hickman, the President of the Pacific Fox Terrier Club, is building a magnificent residence close to Golden Gate Park. It is his intention also to make provision for his kennel of dogs which comprise fox terriers, English setters and Gordon setters; suitable quarters will be erected to accommodate them. Mr. Hickman reports that his litter of fox terriers whelped February 20th last by St. Vigilant—Elwood Gracie are in good shape and he expects to astonish the fancy with a dog and bitch of this litter that he claims are superior to any pups benched in the recent show in this city.

The Philadelphia Dog Show Association desires to announce that the prizes at its show to be held upon November 22d, 23d, 24th, 25th, 1899, will be $15, $10 and $5 in the limit and open classes, and $10 and $5 in the puppy and novice classes.

This Club is an entirely new one and is a member of the American Kennel Club, so that wins at its show will count toward championship honors.

This show will be held at Horticultural Hall, which is the most desirable and most centrally located hall in Philadelphia.

The officers of the club are Clement E. Newbold, President; Edward Moore Robinson, Alexander Van Reusseler and Louis A. Biddle, Vice-Presidents; Marcel A. Viti, Secretary and S. Boyd Carrigan Treasurer; chief officers, with Messrs. Mitchell Harrison, James W. Paul Jr., John W. Geary, John C. Groome, Francis Edward Bond, Clarence R. Lewis, Henry Jarrett, Isaac W. Kimble, Edward D. Toland, Sidney W. Keith, George H. Packard and Robert Toland, constitute the bench show committee. Mr. James Mortimer will superintend the show. The prize lists will shortly be ready for mailing.

Standards.

THE POODLE—General appearance is that of a strong, active, intelligent dog, cobby in build and perfectly coated, with close curls or long "cords."

This skull is large, wide between eyes—slight peak, parts over eyes well arched, the whole covered with curls or cords. Muzzle long, not snipy, slightly tapering and not too deep. Teeth level and strong, black roof of mouth preferable. Eyes, medium size and dark; nose, large and perfectly black; wide, open nostrils. Ears very long, close to cheek, low set and well covered with ringlets or curls. Neck very strong, allowing head to be carried high. Chest fairly deep but not too wide. Forelegs perfectly straight and not so long as to be leggy; hindlegs muscular, well bent, with hocks low down. Feet strong, slightly spread; nails black, pads large and hard. Back of fair length; well ribbed body; loins strong and muscular. Tail carried at angle 45 degrees, with long ringlets or curls.

Coat, if corded, should be thick and strong, hanging in long, ropy cords. If curly, the curls close, thick and of silky texture. Weight, 40 to 60 pounds. Only colors allowed are black, white and red, without mixture.

THE BULL TERRIER—The bull terrier, the gladiator among dogs, combines the courage and pertinacity of this bulldog with a propensity for "worrying" his adversary instead of pinning it as does the bulldog. After years of judicious crossing and breeding, the breed has become firmly established and separately recognized as such, and will breed as true to type as any. The bull terrier has a high degree of symmetry, and is an embodiment of determination, strength and grace, built slightly on the racing lines.

Head should be long, flat and tapering gradually from the greatest width between the ears and the nose, which should be black, and the muzzle not too pointed. There should be no stop and as little brow as possible, but the face has a slight crease or indentation down the median line, and is slightly broken up between the eyes. A flat skull and absence of brow gives an expression peculiar to itself. Jaws are long and powerful, with not too much development of the cheek muscles, the hollowness or "dishing" under the eyes. Nose large and black with open nostrils. Eyes small, dark and sparkling, preferably of almond shape. Teeth strong and healthy in sound gums, meeting evenly, any deviation being a great fault. "Pig-jawed" or "under-bite" is inadmissible. Lips meet as closely as possible and only sufficiently developed to cover the teeth and gums. Ears, always cropped. Neck arched and strongly set into the shoulders, tapering nicely to the head, with no loose skin or throatiness.

Shoulders strong and slanting; dorsal muscles well developed. Chest wide, deep and muscular. Back rather short, muscular and slightly arched over the loin, well ribbed up; well set up behind, but rather higher across the withers than at the hips. Front legs perfectly straight and muscular; not out at shoulder; pastern joints strong. Hind legs strong in proportion, with hocks well let down and strong; no crouching attitude when standing. Feet resemble a cat's with toes well arched.

Color uniformly white. Coat short, stiff to the touch and close, with a fine gloss. Stern rather short, set on low and tapering to a fine point and carried straight without curl and never over the back. For the bench, the flesh should be firm and hard to the touch and not too much "evidence," with a great display of activity, denoting an abundance of health.

THE FARM.

Black Leg or Black Quarter.

Black leg or black quarter is an acute infectious disease usually affecting young cattle from six months to two years of age. Suckling calves do not contract the disease, and while it may occur in old cattle it is not liable to do so. The disease occurs most frequently in cattle in high state of nutrition and grazing upon rich pasture, and is caused by a germ that is found in the soil and on the grass, especially in low or bottom land. The disease is not contagious, but the occurrence of one or two cases upon a certain field shows local infection and indicates that other cattle may suffer in like manner. The general symptoms are dullness, loss of appetite, cessation of rumination, fever, stiffness and lameness. Swellings occur under the skin, about the flank, thigh, behind the fore limb and breast. These swellings may be the first things noticed. They may be small or quite diffuse. They are painful at first, but later on become insensitively. They pit and crackle under pressure, and if opened a reddish black frothy fluid will be discharged. The disease lasts from a few hours to two or three days and nearly always proves fatal. In old cattle the course is somewhat slower. Medicinal treatment is not a success. A few animals will recover under good treatment, but there is no particular line that can be followed with a fair degree of success. Tincture of muriate of iron may be given in doses of one tablespoonful for each 1000 pounds live weight every four hours. In the interval a similar dose of chlorate of potash may be administered. The better method is to use preventive measures which consists in vaccination. People owning pastures where such disease is known to exist can vaccinate their stock early in the season and feel assured that there will be little or no loss. Vaccination has been so largely used and thoroughly tried by experiment stations and by individuals that it is no longer an experiment. Last year a number of cases were reported in this State, and it is to be expected that the disease may soon recur again this year.

Producing a Dairy Cow.

Breeding, fitting and training horses for the speed track requires knowledge, judgment, skill and patience. The young animal must be the get of an ancestry whose distinguishing traits are intelligence, action and endurance. He must be bred for speed. Good judgment and skill, gained from experience, must determine whether the young thing gives promise of possessing the qualities essential in an animal bred for speed. Judgment, skill and patience are required in feeding, fitting and training the young thing for a winning performance in the speed contests. This feeding, fitting and training begins at a very early stage of the colt's existence, and is patiently persisted in until the limit of development is reached. The production of a profitable dairy cow begins with the breeding, fitting and training of the calf. The ancestry must be the best we can get for the purpose and the calf must be fed and cared for with that end constantly in view. The food provided must be of the kind and quantity which will most completely develop a milk-giving animal, and not a flesh and fat-producing animal. Nature has furnished this food in the mother's milk and in grass but as we must rob the milk of its fat we must replace this element with something equally good and much cheaper. One cent's worth of corn and flaxseed meal is worth as much to the calf, in combination with sweet skim milk and grass as one pound of butter fat in the whole milk. The value of oats, fed in connection with skim milk and choice hay for a dairy calf food, should not be underestimated. Vigorous growth, exercise and development is what we must get if we are to have a cow of large performance. The oats and hay are bulky and increase the capacity of the stomach and digestive organs, and their exercise develops the capacity of the animal for properly taking and using large quantities of bulky milk-making food. Good sweet hay, preferably early cut, well cured clover, should be supplied from the time the calf is three or four weeks old.

A clean, well bedded, well ventilated, sunlit stable is the place for calves in winter and the same with screened windows for summer. Milk cows and calves should be kept in screened stables during the heat of the day in summer. There is no profit for the owner or comfort for the cows and calves in fighting flies in the hot sun. Developing the milk-giving habit, which comes with the office of maternity, is an important feature in the fitting and training of a good cow. Maternity should come neither too early or too late. Growth and physical vigor are often sacrificed in forcing the office of maternity upon the young things. Much depends upon the development of the animal, but it may be safely said that no heifer should drop her first calf before she is two years old, and not later than when thirty months of age. The handling of the calves and heifers is also an important feature of this development and training. They should be trained to the cow habit of dependence upon and regard for their master from infancy to maturity. The heifer or cow that does not repay her owner for gentleness, kindness and intelligent care, has not sense or capacity enough for a dairy cow, and the man who withholds these from the good cow has neither sense nor capacity enough for a good dairyman.—Dairy and Creamery.

Some Points on Incubation.

Twelve years have passed since we first began to use an incubator and every year some new and valuable ideas on the subject develop. The other day we went down to the farm of a friend who has a new farm and a new incubator. He was following directions very closely and the eggs were coming on all right, but he was making a very common mistake. He was not giving the eggs a chance to cool down at all. In this particular incubator the eggs are turned by a sliding rack in the egg-tray and can be turned without taking the eggs out of the egg-chamber. My friend was keeping those eggs up to 103 every minute of the day and when we pulled out an egg-tray to look at the eggs more than half of them were found standing on the large end.

Never have we seen a set of directions for running an incubator that said a word about keeping the small end of the egg the lowest, and yet this is an important point. If the eggs are allowed to lie with the point the highest the chick is very often found to be mal-formed and as often fails to get out of the shell at all. During the early part of the period of incubation the embryo chick lies at the highest side of the shell. Turn the egg immediately the chick shifts its position and rises to the top. If the small end of the egg is the lowest the chick's head is near the air bubble in the large end of the egg and in its natural position. If the small end is highest the head of the chick gets in the small end of the shell away from the air bubble and when it has grown so large that it does not turn as the egg is turned it grows into the wrong shape and often dies in the shell or if it gets out it is not well formed. In turning the eggs in incubators always place the small end the lowest by hand after the eggs are turned. This allows them to cool down and fresh air gets into the air bubble and the chick gets a fresh supply of oxygen to support it for the next twenty-four hours.—Farmers Voice.

More Farm-Grown Cattle.

Many thoughtful men throughout the Middle West are much concerned, the Homestead says, about the condition of the cattle industry. Looking over a number of the states which are largely the country's reliance for beef supplies, no one can fail to be struck by the scarcity of good cattle. There are cattle, of course, but to a large extent they have been brought from a distance, instead of being grown on the spot, as should be the case in the cattle feeding country where land is so high that only the best cattle are profitable. The western ranger can go to Texas and buy a bunch of cattle to feed on free grasses, and if he doesn't pay too much for the cattle is pretty sure to make some money, for his feed costs him nothing, and attention and management cost but little. It is not so, however, with the man who feeds cattle on the farm. Every bushel of grain they eat represents money; every mouthful of grass they consume comes off high-priced land; every forkful of hay they are fed means actual outlay in cash or labor. Under such circumstances it is only the best that makes money. Poor cattle, that is, poorly bred and poorly grown cattle, are unable to return a profit for feeding on the farm. There is coming to be a gradual realization of the fact that only good cattle are suitable for farm feeding, but to secure the best results the farmer who feeds must go a step further and cease to rely on range-bred cattle for his feeding stock. Cattle to be fed on the farm should be calved and grown on the farm, should be raised under farm conditions, and should be pushed from birth, as it is impossible to push range bred animals. We hope to see at no distant future this lesson learned, and we hope, also, for the return of the time when the beef-growing states of the Middle West will practically furnish their own supplies of well-bred cattle, bred on the farm under a realizing sense of how necessary good breeding is to profit and raised from calfhood by good liberal feeding and careful farm management that make them suitable feeders under farm conditions, whose every blade of grass and every seed consumed costs money.

Dairy Notes.

A German civil engineer, William Lefeldt, in 1877, first demonstrated that centrifugal force could be applied practically in separating milk.

Some cows promise extremely well when in the first flush of milk, but go dry too soon, so that the real test of a cow is her performance after three or four months in milk.

The efficiency of cream separators depends first upon rapidity of the revolutions, second upon the time during which the milk is submitted to a centrifugal force, third upon the temperature of the milk and fourth upon other conditions of the milk.

The manufacturers of oleomargarine propose to test the constitutionality of the color clause of the new Pennsylvania law. A test case will be brought and carried to the courts so that the matter may be definitely settled. The new law provides that oleomargarine shall be so colored that it can readily be distinguished from butter.

No better butter is made than that which can be made on the farm, and if brought to market in neat packages the maker need fear no difficulty in finding buyers. A farmer who makes such butter can always arrange to have his regular customers, relieving him of any trouble in looking for buyers every time he brings butter to the town to sell.

In spite of the fact that "embalmed" beef has caused much averse comment, it is claimed that considerable of the milk and cream shipped to the large cities is "embalmed" with various preservatives. We once found a cream shipper who began saving his cream the last of May for the fourth of July. He acknowledged that he used a preservative to keep it that length of time.—Exchange.

One of the objects of a good butter maker whose butter goes on the average market is to retain a relatively large amount of water in the butter without having it appear watery. In determining the moisture in two samples of butter recently it was found that the sample that appeared to be dry and waxy contained considerably more water than the sample pressed against the tryer with the thumb.

July and August are the most difficult months of the season for cheese and butter making, more especially for the former. There are several reasons for this. During this period we have our very hottest days and nights, and in many sections during the dry period that usually results at this season of the year there is a scarcity of good drinking water for the cows. Then when haying and harvesting begin many patrons are apt to not give the milk as much care as they should. All these drawbacks make this part of the year a trying one for the maker, who is a skilled workman indeed if he can overcome them all and turn out a fine quality of cheese or butter.

The Value of Alfalfa.

The chemical department of the Kansas Experiment Station has just completed the analyses upon one of a series of digestion experiments with alfalfa. In this experiment hay was used which was cut when in full bloom and was fed to a three-year-old grade Hereford steer. The result of the analyses show that the air dry hay contained digestible nutrients as follows: Crude protein, 10.43 per cent (consisting of albuminoids, 7.86 per cent; amids, 2.57 per cent); fat, 0.89 per cent; crude fiber, 15.99 per cent; carbohydrates, 28.18 per cent; total digestible nutrients, 55.29 per cent. Let us compare these last figures with those representing the total digestible nutrients contained in some of our most common feeds used for dry roughage. Millet contains 57.6 per cent; oat hay, 52.2 per cent; orchard grass hay, 48.2 per cent; timothy hay, 48 per cent; prairie hay, 46.7 per cent; sorghum hay, 44.2 per cent; red clover hay, 43.9 per cent; oat straw, 43.9 per cent; wheat straw, 39.2 per cent, and corn fodder, 35.8 per cent. We find that only one of the ten feeds named is equal to or exceeds alfalfa in its total content of digestible nutrients, while the larger part of them are far below it. This is not a fair measure of its feeding value, however, unless we take into account the composition of these nutrients. As a rule it costs much more to produce feeds rich in protein than it does those rich in carbohydrates, and consequently of two feeds containing an equal amount of digestible nutrients the one containing the most protein is the most valuable.

Comparing alfalfa in this respect with the above named feeds we find that it ranks far ahead of the richest of them. One hundred pounds of alfalfa hay contains 11.3 pounds more digestible matter than the same amount of red clover hay and 1½ times as much protein. It contains only 2.3 pounds less of total digestible nutrients than the same amount of millet hay and almost 2½ times as much digestible protein. It contains 2½ times as much digestible protein as oat hay, 3 times as much as prairie hay, more than 4 times as much as sorghum hay, 5 times as much as corn fodder, 6½ times as much as oat straw and 13 times as much as wheat straw.

In feeding value alfalfa hay not only ranks high, above all other feeds used for roughage but it is well up among the more concentrated feeds. One hundred pounds of it contains 3.3 pounds more of total digestible nutrients than wheat bran and almost as much protein. It is richer in digestible protein than wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, Kafir corn or sorghum seed.

Its digestible nutrients have a nutritive ratio of 1 to 4.4. There are only a few feeds, such as wheat bran, linseed meal, cotton seed meal and soy beans that furnish as narrow a nutritive ratio as this. Alfalfa hay, therefore, is an ideal hay to use in balanced rations and is especially valuable to combine with corn as a ration for fattening steers, since it furnishes all the roughage necessary and is also a cheap source of protein. It is an ideal dairy feed, furnishing almost the exact nutritive ratio required for the highest yields of milk. Its value as a feed for hogs has been shown in results previously published by this station.

Draft Horses in London.

Referring to the London Draft Horse Parade, or as they call it, "The Cart Horse Parade," a writer in the Stock Journal shows how important the draft horse is to the very existence of the great city; the industrial life of the cities depend upon the draft horse. He says:

"Whit-Monday" will see assembled within Regent's Park a very fine representation of what may well be recognized as the heavy haulage department of London collection and distribution. The Cart Horse parade may lack the imposing style and attractiveness of a Four-in-Hand club meet at the magazine in Hyde Park, and the ponderous bays or browns or chestnuts furnish much less food for criticism than the well-matched teams there assembled, but, all the same, it has to be remembered that they represent the moving chains which keep the wheels of London incessantly turning. Cut these chains of distribution and collection and in a night London would become suddenly paralyzed."

Rambouillet Sheep for the Farm.

These sheep do well in any part of the country. They thrive on the rugged hills of New England, the mountains of Pennsylvania, Virginia and North Carolina, the rich bottom lands of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers and the great plains of the West and Northwest. They have no weak points and are pre-eminently a hardy race. They breed freely and for a number of years and raise strong lambs when most other breeds are long past their period of usefulness. They are large enough for all practical purposes. They are good wool and mutton sheep. The fleece is unsurpassed for strength and fineness.

The mature sheep are good rangers, will eat any kind of fodder or forage. They bear confinement well in large herds and consequently are particularly valuable for range purposes where thousands must be kept together in one flock. The further west you go the larger they become. I have weighed them on the ranches of Utah, where yearling ewes never given shelter or grain weighed from 138 to 142 lbs, and mature ewes under the same conditions from 165 to 185 lbs. Lambs ranged from 110 to 128 lbs, while yearling rams weighed from 165 to 270 lbs. This breed of sheep is suitable for anyone who will give them ordinary care. The wrinkles, so prominent in the ordinary breeds of Merino sheep, are absent except on the neck. The face and neck are well covered with wool. The fleece always brings the top market price, as it is free from excessive oil.

To experienced breeders I do not care to give any advice, but for beginners would say do not buy high-priced ewes. Better be content with those that can be secured at reasonable rates. If you cannot get young ewes get old ones, as they are long lived, but always secure a good ram and breed up. To my breeding ewes I feed clover hay, potatoes, turnips, with corstalks and plenty of bran. The yard is well covered with straw and is free from dampness. Have a warm place for the breeding stock and have the lambs drop in February and March. If you are not well fixed for keeping sheep they had better come later after grass has made a good start. The future of the sheep industry is very encouraging. There has been a great demand for all classes of sheep for the past two years. In my opinion the price of wool will advance when the present supply is worked off. No one who likes to keep sheep need hesitate to invest in Rambouilllets. — C. L. Halladay.

Butter receives its texture and its consistency in the churn during churning and defects which are produced during churning can by no means be subsequently removed.

The Spirit of the West says: "The mustang, bronco or cayuse, in their wildest state, are susceptible of appreciating kind treatment as soon as lassoed. Take ten bad horses, that are unmanageable from any cause, and get down to the bottom facts, and you will find that not more than one out of ten has inherited its bad disposition, but has, on the other hand been spoiled in handling. This simply means that nine out of ten spoiled horses have been ruined by handlers who know far less than the spoiled animals." Everyone who has seen anything of the method of breaking range horses can attest the truth of this. A case is known in which the mounts of some half dozen men had to be taken out of a herd and broken, each man taking his mount at the third saddling. Two of the men who valued a reputation for "rough riding" had their mounts so that they were always hard to handle. The others, most of them equally good riders, soon had their horses so quiet and gentle that it was no trouble to catch, saddle and ride them at any time. Every horse handled could have been made equally good in disposition by kind treatment. The devil was in the riders, not in the horses.

Who will answer these questions for a subscriber? (1) About what is the average cost of keeping a hen one year in confinement, feeding for egg production, supposing all the feed is to be bought? (2) In yarding fowls how much space should be allowed for each one? (3) What breed of fowls would you consider best for stocking an egg farm? (4) What is the best and cheapest roof for a poultry house, all things considered?

If anyone had told me before the Santa Rosa meeting opened that a field of ten green pacers would start in a race the first day, and not one of them would wear a set of hobbles I would have looked upon the person as having more enthusiasm over the pacing horse than judgment as to the abilities of trainers. But when L. E. Clawson called my attention to the field of pacers scoring down for the word in the 2:30 pace and remarked there was not a hopped horse in the bunch, I saw what I had not expected to witness for a year or two to come, and when the six heats were paced in from 2:13 to 2:18, and nine horses remained in until the race was finished and nearly every one paced steadily with but very little breaking, I came to the conclusion that out here in wild and woolly California we have as good a lot of trainers and as high class racing as they have in any State on the map.

I am one of the unfortunates permitted to see but one day's racing of the great meeting which will close Saturday, but even that one day was worth traveling a good many miles to enjoy. The first race, consisting of seven hard fought heats, was one of the most exciting contests ever witnessed on a race track. When it was over, my friend, Geo. Berry, had fourth money and the sympathy of everybody. The Cupid mare Psyche, owned by A. B. Spreckels, and the idol of George's eye, had been beaten, although she showed in five heats of the race that she was the fastest trotter of the seven that started. The fifth heat, Mr. Berry says the mare would have won could he have been of any assistance to her in the last half mile. He got her around the first half of the oval all right, avoiding the disastrous breaks she had made in the preceding heats on the first turn, and "had them all skinned," but at the head of the stretch George collapsed and came near falling from the sulky. The mare wanted to run away at the trot, and only wanted someone to steady her. Berry could not do it. He had the mare in perfect condition for the race, but was not in racing condition himself, and the five hard heats were too much for his physical abilities. The circuit is not over, however, and with Berry and Psyche both in condition, Cupid will have another 2:15 performer sure.

The two-year-old divisions of the Pacific Breeders Futurity Stake were both decided at this meeting. First money in the trotting portion went to a daughter of McKinney 2:11 1/4, and in the pacing division a son of Diahlo carried off the prize. These are the first two year olds to get standard records this year, and is no small honor for California as well as for the sires and owners. There were originally 147 nominations in this stake. President D. E. Knight originally had six nominations. Out of these he got first money with Eula Mac in the trot, and third money with Waldstein Jr. in the pace. Ivy L. Borden, whose good colt N. L. B., by Diahlo, won the pace, getting a mark of 2:21 1/2, had but the one entry.

The Diahlo's have made a wonderful showing at this meeting. Up to this writing (Friday morning) a green son of Wm. Murray's great young horse, has won the fastest heat of the meeting, 2:09 3/4, another has taken second money and a record of 2:14 in a six heat race, and a third has won a two year old stake and paced in 2:21 1/2. There are a half dozen others in training that have the ability to trot or pace better than 2:20 and will get records in that class unless beaten by faster horses. There is only one trouble with the Diahlo's—they are too fast as colts for most trainers, and they get knocked out because of it. They have good legs and good feet as a rule and like their sire are dead game. But no fast young colt can stand the work that a slow one can. It is the pace that kills and there have been several young sons and daughters of Diahlo ruined, not because they were unsound but too fast for their trainers' ability. It is not every trainer who knows how to handle 2:15 speed in an aged horse and those who know how to handle it in a colt are few. I think it was Josh Billings who remarked that "a precocious child seldom amounts to anything else because its teachers will not allow it to." There is lots of truth in this and it applies to colts as well as children.

This morning's paper brings the news that Tom Keating's colt won at Glens Falls Thursday, "easily" the dispatch said, in 2:07 3/4, 2:09 3/4 and 2:08 3/4. Will some of our Eastern turf writers now retract what they said about this four-year-old son of McKinney being a rank quitter, and will they admit that we Californians can some times tell the truth about a green horse? Any colt that can pace three such heats in company and do it easily is not only game, but he must be given the credit of being a race horse.

Biugen has repeated his performance of last year—he has trotted the fastest heat of the year in a race which he has lost. This time he reduced his record a half second, trotting the second heat in 2:06 1/4. The Abbott won the heats and the race in 2:09 2:09 3/4 and 2:08 3/4. And mark this—Monterey was third, heating Kentucky Union 2:07 1/4, Eagle Flanagan 2:07 1/2. Directum Kelly 2:08 3/4 and John Nolan 2:08. I am glad to see the big son of Sidney is improving. I said last year that a mark of 2:06 was not beyond Pete Williams' horse when he was right and got over his habit of making such disastrous breaks. I think he will reach that record yet. No gamer horse ever wore harness, and I have never seen a faster trotter having timed him a quarter in 30 seconds, and a reliable horseman tells me he caught him a half in 1:01 1/2. He ought to be inside the money in the great $5000 stallion race at Empire City Park, New York, next month.

Speaking of Empire City Park, have you seen the magnificent poster just issued by that association, bearing the portrait of the head of a beautiful bay horse and entitled "An American Trotter." The portrait is almost life size and the most perfect thing in the way of drawing and coloring I have ever seen. Everyone who sees it hanging in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN wants it and I have no doubt Secretary Toman will have a thousand more applications for copies than he can supply.

Tom Keating now has charge of the horses in training belonging to James Butler, of New York. It is given out that he will bring them all to Pleasanton on his return and that they will be trained over that celebrated track. I don't suppose there are a half dozen people who realize what an important figure in the harness horse world Pleasanton will cut in the future, if the plans now under way meet with no great obstacle. The corporation that has purchased the track will have 250 fine, new, large box stalls completed within a month or so, the track will be widened and improved, large hay barns, granaries, etc., will be erected, and there will be a restaurant, club house, dormitories for the men employed, and everything that is needed in the appointment of a first class training track. It is the idea of the gentlemen who are stockholders in the corporation to purchase the best hay and grain in large quantities and store it at the track, selling it to the trainers at regular market prices. They will also provide a good restaurant where the employes can be boarded at a reasonable cost per week or month. Eastern owners can arrange with the Secretary of this corporation to furnish stalls, feed, and a first class track for the horses, and board and lodging for trainers and grooms at a stipulated price. It is more than probable that a number of the leading stables of the East will come to California to train when they learn how reasonable the expenses of keeping their horses here will be. The fact that a track over which horses can be worked any day in the year is at Pleasanton, and that the best hay and grain to be found in America, and a climate in which men and horses can be out of doors from the first day of January to the last day in December are also to be found there, has caused Pleasanton to be called the harness horse paradise and such it is. If Mr. Butler sends his horses there, other Eastern trainers will surely follow suit and the strings of California trained horses that will start over the mountains next year to compete in the races on the Grand Circuit will fill a train instead of a few cars.

"We'll have a splendid circuit next year, and it will begin early," said I to one of the old veterans of the turf while sitting in the grand stand at Santa Rosa last Monday.

"Don't you be so sure of that, young man," was the reply. "I've watched the actions of these California district associations for a good many years, and I don't remember a season when they got a move on them sufficient to open the circuit early, as it should be. For some unaccountable reason there is a larger quantity of lethargy distributed among the agricultural district boards of California than one could find in a week's search in one of those establishments they call 'rest cures' where sick people try to get well by doing nothing saying nothing and thinking nothing. It is surprising to see how California people will go to sleep while opportunities are passing, and only wake up to growl because somebody did not call their attention to the fact. The harness horses sold East every year because of speed shown, add no inconsiderable sum to the wealth of this State. If the California circuit was what it ought to be this sum could be increased ten-fold. There are no reasons on earth except lethargy and bad management why every harness meeting held in this State cannot be made to pay a profit. Many tracks in this State are now going to ruin and decay simply from lack of enterprise and laziness. Nothing else is the matter with the business. The associations that give meetings this year will profit by them, and every horse owner in California should patronize them to the best of his ability. They have saved the circuit from complete collapse and put it on a new footing. It will be better next year, but to make it boom as it should there will have to be a lot of work done early next year."

BERT SHELDON JR. 2:16 1-4.

Now in His Twelfth Campaign and is Good For a Few Years More.

When Bert Sheldon Jr. won his race at Waverly Park a few weeks ago the old black trotter opened his twelfth consecutive campaign, says the New York Sun. He is now in his seventeenth year and has been on the turf since 1838, piling up a score of races lost and won which no other trotter ever equalled.

Although the end of Sheldon's career is not yet in sight, the old horse has been on the turf longer than any of these lasting trotters except Lady Suffolk, Deck Wright and Flora Temple. Flora lasted twelve campaigns, from 1850 to 1861. Deck Wright was on the turf from 1877 to 1893, while Lady Suffolk trotted her first race in 1833 and her last one in 1852, making fifteen campaigns for the evergreen mare from Long Island.

There is scarcely a half-mile track in New Jersey on which this remarkable trotter has not set foot at one time or other, and on some of the old horse has hardly missed a meeting during the last ten years. These three States have been his stamping ground, although he has sometimes crossed the border into Canada, and has gone as far west as Ohio, down east into Massachusetts and Maine, and south into Maryland and Virginia.

The tough old warrior is a plain horse to look at, though he fills the expert's eye when it comes to picking him to pieces. He is 16 hands high, weighs something like 1200 pounds in racing condition and in winter stocks up until he tips the beam at nearly 1300 pounds. Like nearly all great campaigners, he has a capacious dinner place, being one of the biggest-bodied horses on the turf. He is big boned, strong in every part, and looks just what he is—a hardy rough-and-tumble trotter. Unlike most horses whose stronghold is the half-mile track, old Bert is a long-striding horse; but he folds his knees well and would be classed as a trotter having plenty of action.

Bert Jr. made his first appearance on the turf in 1838, trotting ten races in that year and gaining a record of 2:40. In 1839 he entered the 2:30 list with a record of 2:29 1/2, winning five races out of thirteen starts. The following year he cut his mark down to 2:25 1/2, trotting eighteen races and winning eight of them. The year 1891 was Bert's best and busiest year. He started no less than twenty-five times, winning nineteen races. His record dropped to 2:20 1/2. When the pneumatic sulky came into use in 1892 Sheldon lowered his mark to 2:16 1/2, which has ever since remained the record of his speed.

It was during the campaign of 1894 that the old horse met with an accident which came near ending his career. While being led through Jersey City the cover of a manhole in the street turned under his feet, letting him down and cutting his legs so badly that for a time it was feared he would be ruined for racing purposes. But his long-time owner and trainer, George O. Smith, got him to his home back in Orange and nursed him along so successfully that he was a better horse than ever the following year. Out of twelve races trotted in 1895 he won seven and lost five. In 1896 he won seven and lost eight races, making several brilliant performances. At the Waverly fair he equalled his record of 2:16 1/2 in a winning race. At Bethlehem, Pa., he forced Greenland girl to trot a fourth heat in 2:13 1/2 to win. At Carlisle, Pa., he tackled the great pacer Hel Pointer 2:04 1/2, and at the Hagerstown fair he trotted two fast races in two days.

At fourteen years of age Sheldon was probably a better horse in 1897 than in any previous year. He equalled his record in a third heat on the half-mile track at Scranton, Pa., and repeated the performance at Middletown in the Orange County Circuit. At the Waverly Fair he forced Bismarck to trot in 2:14 to beat him on the half-mile track, and at Trenton he defeated W. H. Clark's fast mare, Natshell 2:15, in a great race. Perhaps the best mile the old horse ever trotted was at the Bethlehem, Pa., fall meeting, where he was a close second to Ruby in 2:13 on a half-mile track. He trotted twenty races in 1897, winning the majority of them and heating some of the best horses on the turf. Last year the veteran campaigner was not quite at his best, although he beat such horses as Little Dick 2:14, Othello 2:12 1/2 and other cracks.

Counting his winning races this year old Bert now has to his credit upward of 80 winning races and more than 225 winning heats in 2:30 or better. No other trotter, except Goldsmith Maid, ever won so many heats in standard time, while the Maid, Flora Temple and Lady Suffolk are the only ones in the record books that have to their credit an equal number of winning races. Flora Temple heads the list with 95, Goldsmith Maid being second with 92, while Lady Suffolk has 84 to her credit.

The Mission of Driving Clubs.

In almost every city of importance in the United States there is now a gentlemen's driving club. Very many of these have been formed this season, clearly showing that the times have improved materially and that the love of the horse as a pleasure giver is as strong as it ever was—if not stronger.

Racing roadsters is not the same as racing race horses, even if to get to the wire first is the desire of both. The roadster does not use his horse solely for racing purposes. The horse must do quite a bit of jogging over the streets or in the country roads between meetings, and in these jaunts he must usually pull four wheels. Why, then, race him to two? Why not stick to the wagon and make the races at these matinee trials determine who has the best business horse, not the best race horse?

Robert J. and the Abbott.

The Abbot's rare form just now reminds the Hamline and Mr. Geers of Robert J's great campaign in 1894, when he went through the line unbeaten and paced the record at 2:01 1/2. He was then six years old, the present age of The Abbot, and their preparations have been similar. With the wonderful pacer in 1894 and with the trotter this year, Mr. Geers gave them a most careful preparation.

TROTTING HORSE BREEDERS GREAT MEETING AT SANTA ROSA.

Fast Time and Splendid Sport Mark the Revival of Harness Racing in California, Large Crowds Attending Daily.

The Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association has proven to the entire satisfaction of everybody that harness racing is popular in California when it is conducted in a first class manner.

The track was fast, "ready for a record breaking mile for a trotter or pacer," one horseman put it.

Seven horses responded to the call for the starters in the first race, which was for trotters of the 2:40 class, the purse being $1000.

The first heat was won handily by Eleanor Ann, McGregor taking her to the front on the first turn and winning by two lengths from Psyche, who came from the last position and trotted the last quarter in 33 seconds.

The 2:19 trot sprang one of the greatest surprises of the meeting. The old mare Myrtle, by Anteo, that won the Occident Stakes in 1891, and after making a campaign the next year was retired to the breeding racks, was bred this year to Allamont.

Myrtle to the help in the second heat and was head and head with her there in 1:05, and in the third heat was also the contending horse.

In the 2:30 pace was a field of ten green horses, and what was most remarkable, not one wore hoppers.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 15.

To-day was an ideal one at the race meet. The attendance was large, the races of very high quality and not even the most critical could discover the surface indications and outcroppings of a job.

The unfinished pace created a great deal of speculation both in the auction boxes and the books.

In the two-year-old trot Cyderia, Joe Nolan, Manile and Litka were scratched, leaving Boodle Boy, Dagmar, Enla Mac and Vendoms as starters.

For the Breeder's Enturity Stake, N. L. B., Waldstein Jr. and Valita came up for the word.

They finally got off together and N. L. B. and Valita reced neck and neck to the quarter in 36 seconds, to the half in 1:12.

The second heat was a repetition of the first. Ahles chased Shaner to the drawgate and an exciting race ensued, but Dick could not get the little mare to go by, she acted like she wanted to stay behind.

Seven starters came to the wire in the 2:18 class pace. Sam Hoy had Kelley Briggs about ripe and he reeled off the first two heats in 2:10, 2:11, which is stepping some.

A good thing was opened in the 2:12 trot, and it was outside the judges' stand too! Fore went to the front in the first heat, and heat Neerunt, Galette, Geo. W. McKinney, Iran Alto and Clay S., in 2:11, coming the last half in 1:05.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16.

The third day of the Breeders Meeting was a success. The attendance was good, the day beautiful and the racing excellent to satisfy the most captious critic.

The first thing was a match trot between Precite and Cherokee Prince. This was a sort of go as you please and Precite won the necessary two heats without much trouble in 2:26 and 2:40, the Indian carti winning the third heat in 2:33.

The 2:12 pace developed hot society. Every entry had friends and the pool-sellers banded out tickets with the celerity that accompanies the antics of a darkey at a cake walk.

In the third race five horses faced the starter. Mr. Salisbury's horse Theron, a converted pacer, has been touted as an air-tight cinch.

THE BREEDERS MEETING which opened on Monday of this week at Santa Rosa, marks an important epoch in the history of harness horse affairs on the Pacific Coast. For the past three or four years the ever present pessimists have said that the American trotter and pacer were relics of the past and loudly proclaimed the approaching end of harness racing. Last year the magnificent success of circuit racing in the East and the Mississippi valley disproved the pessimistic predictions as far as the other side of the continent is concerned, and this year, thanks to a renewed energy on the part of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, a revival of harness racing has been inaugurated in California that will be of vast benefit to every branch of the industry of harness horse breeding and prove to the world that the greatest natural horse breeding State in the Union is still loyal to the light harness horse, and that contests in which he is engaged are yet popular with the people of the Coast. The meeting which opened at Santa Rosa last Monday, and which will close to-day, has furnished sport of such high class that the eyes of the harness horse world will be turned toward this State when the reports of the races are read. There is probably no state in the Union that could provide such a program with horses of its own breeding and development. The Grand Circuit which opened at Detroit last month and which will close at Lexington, Kentucky, in October, may have better tracks, larger crowds and faster races than are found on the California circuit, but during all the weeks of racing there, no better contests will be witnessed nor will the racing be of any higher class than that furnished the public by the California horses and horsemen who are at Santa Rosa this week during the meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. At this meeting the first standard two-year-old trotters and pacers of the year appeared, although racing has been in progress in the East since June 1st. During four days racing 14 new standard performers have been added to the list with records ranging from 2:09 3/4 to 2:27 1/2, while 5 horses with records have still further lowered them. The $1000 purses hung up by the Association have resulted in just what it was claimed they would—honest racing, and there has not been, up to this writing, one solitary race in which there was a suspicion of anything but an honest contest. The P. C. T. H. B. A. has given an impetus to honest racing that will not be short lived, but will continue during the entire California circuit and lead to a still better circuit and greater enthusiasm among horsemen next year. After six days rest, racing will be resumed at Oakland next Saturday, and there is every promise that the high class sport furnished at Santa Rosa will be continued during the even days when the gates of the Golden Gate Fair Association will be opened to the public.

THE IMPROVED APPEARANCE of both horses and drivers over that of a decade or so ago is very noticeable at fairs and race meetings. The trotters and pacers of to-day are so much handsomer in style and form, that their beauty is a very common cause of remark among the older patrons of the harness turf. This has been accomplished by intelligent breeding and the desire on the part of nearly every breeder of harness horses to have them endowed with good looks as well as speed. It has been found that there is a dead loss in producing the homely horse that has no speed, while the handsome equine will sell at a profit though unable to travel a mile in three minutes, while speed and beauty combined command top prices in every market. While the form of the horses has been improved, the manner of harnessing them has followed suit. The harness of to-day is so much lighter and more perfect fitting that there is no comparison with that of twenty years ago. The number and styles of boots, etc., have increased, but they are now made to fit so neatly that a horse may be accounted with nearly every boot described in a harness dealers catalogue, and still present a not ungraceful appearance. The 25 pound bike sulky is graceful in its proportions, and makes the high wheel sulky look clumsy in comparison. Not only has the horse, the harness and the vehicle used in harness racing been improved, but the driver himself is taking such an interest in his own personal appearance that it is the exception now when one appears on the track without a satin or silk jacket and cap of the brightest and tastiest color and cut that he can procure. The old knit jackets of sombre hue and covered with dirt are not worn because the drivers have been educated to be ashamed to be seen in such garb. White duck trousers have taken the place of "any old pair" of pants the driver may have on, and when a field of horses are now lined up for the word on a trotting track, the scene is one that cannot be excelled on the running tracks. The day of rope harness, rusty looking sulkies, and "hayseed" drivers is past. The trotting horse men are keeping up with the procession.

GOLDEN GATE FAIR ASSOCIATION will open its meeting at the Oakland track next Saturday with a program of six running events, and there is very likely to be a record breaking crowd cross the hay to enjoy the novelty of a good day of racing during the summer months. On Monday following, the harness horses will provide two of the races on the program and the runners three, which will be the order during the remainder of that week, the meeting closing Saturday, September 2d. It has been four years since the Golden Gate Association gave a fair and race meeting, and the Directors are determined that this one shall not suffer in comparison with any heretofore given. Premium lists for the live stock exhibition have been issued and it is thought the display of horses, cattle and sheep will be very creditable. The races, which, of course, will be the main drawing card, will be worth going a long way to see. The trotters and pacers that have been giving such grand exhibitions at Santa Rosa this week will all be there and will repeat the record breaking performances that have attracted so much attention to them while in the city of roses. The Oakland track is by far the most beautiful grounds in the State on which a fair will be held this year, and the officers of the association are making every effort to have the meeting equal to any that has ever been held there.

TWO GOOD PURSES for harness horses are offered by the Fresno Trotting Association, in addition to the program already announced. The sum of $750 is provided for trotters of the 2:20 class, and a like amount for pacers of the same class. These purses should draw a good, big list of entries, and as they close August 25th, one day before the Oakland meeting, records made during that meeting, and at the State Fair, San Jose and Salinas meetings will not be a bar to starting in them at Fresno. Three good purses are also provided by the Fresno association for horses owned in the district comprising the counties of Fresno, Tulare, Kings, Madera and Merced. These are for 2:25 trotters, 2:25 pacers, and a mixed race for harness horses of the 2:20 class. In addition to the harness program, there will be a good program of running races announced ten days before the meeting begins. The purses will range from $250 to $400. The Fresno meeting will be held from October 9th to 14th, both dates inclusive. Entries to the harness events announced above will close Friday next, August 25th, one day prior to the opening of the Oakland meeting.

ADDITIONAL PURSES, one of $1000 for trotters of the 2:20 class, the other for trotters of the 2:13 class, are advertised by the Stockton Driving Club in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. The entries to these events will close Tuesday, September 5th, the second day of the State Fair meeting. In addition to these two purses for harness horses, four running stakes have been arranged, the money in each to be from $150 to $500. There will also be twelve overnight purses to which entrance will be free. Don't miss entering at Stockton as the meeting will be one of the best of the year.

SEPTEMBER 2d, the last day of the meeting at Oakland, is the day set for the closing of ten good harness events, equally divided between trotters and pacers, which are to come off at the Monterey Fair to be held at Salinas, October 3rd to 7th, this year. The purses range from $300 to $600 with entrance five per cent. The Salinas meeting will follow the San Jose fair, and precede the Fresno meeting. It will be one of the best meetings on the circuit. A lot of running races will be provided, entries to which will be made up over night.

THE Golden Gate Fair Association has offered to the members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association of this city, two purses of $300 each, to be competed for at the fair which will be held at Oakland, beginning August 26th. These races will be subject to the rules and regulations of the National Trotting Association. A meeting of the driving association will be held at 1200 Market street, this Saturday evening, when entries to these events will close.

Joe Patchen's Record.

During the Columbus meeting W. C. Marks, of Chicago, sold the famous pacing stallion Joe Patchen 2:01 1/2 to H. Y. Haws, of Johnstown, Pa., for $20,000. At first thought this seems like a big price for the great pacer but than there is but one Joe Patchen and it is one of those cases where the value of a horse can only be regulated by the strength of the purchaser's desire to become its owner. Only one horse has clearly shown his superiority to the son of Patchen Wilkes and that is the champion Star Pointer 1:59 1/2. John R. Gantry 2:00 1/2 has a faster record it is true but Joe has rather more than held his own when they have met in races. Besides his great speed and race horse qualities Joe Patchen is a grand individual and although he has had an amount of hanging such as no other horse ever lived through is as sound as a rock. The following capitulation of his work shows what a wonderful horse the big black really is. Record against time 2:01 1/2, race record 2:01 1/2, half-mile record 2:04 1/2; wagon record 2:04 1/2; wagon record in a race 2:11; record to high wheels 2:06 1/2; record in a race over a half-mile track 2:05 1/2. He has started in 55 races, of which he has won 28, has been second 21 times, fourth four times and unplaced twice. He has won 58 heats in 2:10, forty-three of them having been in races; and has 20 heats in 2:05 to his credit fifteen of them having been in races. Patchen will be campaigned this season by John Dickerson.

Answers to Correspondents.

"K." FERRIS, Cal.—The mare is not registered, and has none of her produce in the 2:30 list. If she has a race record it is slower than 2:30.

THE CIRCUIT OPENS.

said 1:09 1/2 as they passed the half. Theron made a sort of contest down the stretch, but died away at the distance, the mare winning easily, Hazel Y. third, Zeolita distanced. The Theron players sang the doxology and went to look for Napa Soda lemonades. Newman repeated her performance the third heat, taking the heat easily.

Out of the thirteen original entries in the 2:27 class trot, four only put in an appearance. The quartette were Lottie, Sue, Lottie Parks and Sibyl S. Lottie was a favorite and things looked all right to her backers, as she captured the first and second heats in 2:16 1/2 and 2:18. Lottie Parks tried hard to beat her namesake but she was a little "short in the gait" and had to be content with second place. Lafferty, however, made a star drive the third heat and won with Parks in 2:17. The fourth heat was a hair-raising finish between Parks and Sibyl S., the judges pronouncing it a dead heat, Sibyl S. now seemed to wake from her Rip Van Winkle sleep and after three warm finishes Sibyl annexed the purse on the right side of her owner's ledger.

H. H. Hellman's stallion Alta Rio, full brother to Oberhalis, had the extreme misfortune to break a couple of small bones in one of his hind ankles this morning. It was a sad blow to Mr. Hellman. Alta was a great horse, strong, hearty, with a constitution like a holl. He was confidently expected to get a mark of 2:10 this season, and Mr. Hellman pronounces him the best horse he ever barnessed. It would seem that in the face of such disaster as this, the various racing associations on the circuit should not hold Mr. Hellman for entrance money on this horse. It would be a praiseworthy and creditable thing to render Henry's misfortune as light as possible. The ankle is now in plaster paris and the stallion in a sling. The horse is well entered, and such an accident as this is a bitter draught for a trainer to have to swallow. All horsemen extend Mr. Hellman their sincerest sympathy.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17.

The mail Friday failed to bring our special correspondent's account of the races of Thursday, so the report is taken from the Associated Press, with a few slight alterations:

The first race was the Pacific Breeders' Futurity, mile and repeat, trotting for a purse of $750. There were five entries: J. B. Iverson's Dagmar, D. E. Knight's Enla Mac, E. P. Heald's Tom Smith, G. Y. Bollinger's Boodle Boy and the Vendoma Farm's brown colt Vendome. After scoring several times for the word the youngster's got off in good shape. Hogsboom was up behind Enla Mac, and he sent her through in good shape, winning the first heat in 2:23 and the second in 2:23 1/2. The horses came in the same order both times. Vendome followed Enla Mac and Boodle Boy, Dagmar and Tom Smith making up the procession in the order named.

The 2:25 pace, best three in five, for a purse of $1000 was the next called. The fact that Roblet, the fina hysa mara belonging to W. H. Lumsden of this city was among the entries, made the race of especial interest to Santa Rosans present. Her start was bad, however, and at the quarter the mara broke badly and ran like a deer, and with Gaff Topseal and Captain Hackett, was shut out in the first heat. H. W. Meeks' gelding Clipper won in 2:09 1/2.

In the second heat Clipper took the lead and held it all the way around, finishing in 2:13. The third heat went to Daedalion in 2:11, but the fourth trial showed Clipper again to the front, he winning as prettily contested a race as one would care to see.

The last race was the 2:14 class trot, mile heats, two in three. There were five entries. H. S. Schosser's big bay stallion Clay S. carried off the honors, taking the second and third heats in 2:14 and 2:13 1/2. The Vandoma Farm's Iran Alto took the first in 2:13 1/2.

Before this afternoon's racing commenced Rudolph Spreckels' beautiful sorrel team, Marguerita and Annie Rooney, was brought out and exhibited. It will start on Saturday hitched to a bika wagon and driven by Charles Dunfee, for a team record, and Silkwood will pace a mile against time without driver, harness or hoppers. California Maree at Two-Minute Farm.

There is a decidedly Californian look to the list of mares retained by Hon. W. J. White, proprietor of the Two-Minute Stock Farm at Cleveland, Ohio. The American Sportsman of that city contained the following reference to this farm last week:

Although some eighty horses were sold from Two-Minute Farm, at the recent Cleveland sale, Hon. W. J. White has a select little band of broodmares at Two-Minute Farm, and from these he should produce some very high-class horses and judging from the prices the best bred Guy Wilkes yearlings fetched, he can raise from these mares some colts that as yearlings can be disposed of at a handsome profit. Of the nine mares now at the farm seven are producers, and the other two were noted campaigners. The highly bred Chantilly, by Nutwood, was bred late and has not yet foaled to Guy Wilkes. She is the dam of Chanty 2:13 1/2, and her first foal bred by Mr. White fetched $630 at the recent sale. Javelin 2:03 1/2, the good, game race mara by Cr. ola 2:15, has a three-weeks' old colt by Guy Wilkes at her side and will be bred back. She would have been bred to Star Pointer, but the hope that he will pace in 1:53 is so strong, that nothing will be done that might in any way injure his chances. Lea 2:18 (full sister to Cupid 2:18), by Sidney, has a beautiful bay colt by Guy Wilkes. He has good bone, fine quality and pure trotting action.

The Wilkes Strain Leads.

The direct Wilkes strain on the sire's side represented in the money-winners at Detroit and Cleveland greatly outnumber the other families. Thirty-eight of the Wilkes blood can be traced direct—Fira Gilt, William Mc., Gayton, Royal Baron, Prince of India, Nerva Patchen, Hontas Crooke, Wandering Jaw, Mand Emperor, Ed Winter, Kitty R., Kingmond, Coney, Chain Shot, Shade On, Lord Vincent, Wilask, Nicol B., Precision, Pilot Evans, Altoka, Minnia Simmons, Palm Leaf, Pearl Onward, Cornelia Belle, Black Robert, Will Leyburn, Mace, Kata McCracken, Ellmore, Dainty Duff, Eagle Flanagan, Pilatus, Bessie K., Gypsey Red, Sally Toler, Royal R. Shaloon, Eylet and Edward S. The Electioneers come next with Bel Esprit, The Queen, The Abbott, Copeland, Surpol, Lady Wellington, Hazel Ridge, Sphinx R., Tudor Chimes and Ezoan. The Hal family was represented by Maximilian, Hal B., The Maid, Star Hal and Fanny Dillard, and the Almonds by Harry O., Esparto Rex, Chehalis, Frank Bogash, Fritz and Starmont.

GLENS FALLS MEETING.

GLENS' FALLS, N. Y., August 15—This was the opening day of the Grand Circuit races. The attendance was large, the track fast. While the stallion Grand Baron 2:12 1/2, was being worked out by his owner, H. J. Marbold of Greenview, Ill, the animal dropped dead of heart disease. The animal was sold as a three-year-old for about $3000, but $12,000 was recently refused for him. Dare Devil ruled favorite in the betting in the 2:10 trot, but Croesus was in superb form and won handily in straight heats.

The 2:18 class trot was unfinished on account of darkness. Summary:

Fast Matinee Horses.

The matinee races of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland, August 5th, proved a day of the most marvelous racing of the kind ever known on the American turf. The pacing mare Sunland Belle, so far unbeaten, though pitted against a new and better horse every week, was started against the stallion Hontas Crooke. In the first heat she reduced the world's amateur pacing record to wagon to 2:11 1/2, coming the last half in 1:03 1/2. The next time Hontas Crooke made the race in the early part of the heat, and the mara stepped the first half in 1:03, the first quarter in 30 1/2 seconds, while the heat was paced in 2:10. As Ellmore trotted in the same notch two years ago, the Cleveland Club holds both world's wagon records at 2:10. Every watch, even two of the timers, made the mile either 2:09 or 2:09 1/2, but as one timer had it 2:10 the judges, always conservative regarding the time, took the slowest watch. This new champion belongs to J. H. Outbwaits. Quite as remarkable a performance was that of Temper, that started against time. She is one of the smallest trotters ever seen on the turf, standing only 14 hands and weighing 700 pounds. Hauling a 70-pound wagon and har owner, she trotted in 2:11 1/2. Her sulky record is 2:12 1/2, made at the circuit races last week. During the afternoon the amateur drivers contested 16 heats, all to four-wheeled wagons, and the time averaged 2:19 1/2. This is the first matinee ever held where the time averaged below 2:21.

Gentry Beat Patchen and Searchlight.

At the Rochester Driving Park last Wednesday afternoon the great pacing stallions of the American turf, John R. Gentry 2:00 1/2, Joe Patchen 2:01 1/2, and Searchlight 2:03 1/2, waged a battle royal for supremacy and Gentry won in straight heats. The first heat Searchlight was only beaten a neck, and in the second heat Joe Patchen was the contending horse but was beaten a length and a half. The time was 2:03 1/2 and 2:04 1/2.

DAISY BLACKWOOD 2:29½, the dam of the M. & M. winner Royal Baron 2:11, is now owned in Nebraska City, Neb., by W. S. Sharp. She has several young foals by Greendale 2:12.

THE Cow: You haven't much to do now that they have those horseless carriages.

THE Horse: Neither have you, now that they have this cowless beef.—Brooklyn Life.

THE Village Farm stallion Heir-at-Law 2:05¾, broke one of his legs just below the ankle, while at play in a paddock last week. The fracture was reduced and the prospects are that the horse will be saved for breeding purposes.

THE Oregon horse Tickets, by Conductor, a son of Electioneer, was played for a good thing on Monday at Santa Rosa, but he did not land the big end of the purse though he got two heats. He looked rather tired when the race was over.

A YEAR ago Chehalis won at Columbus in 2:04½, with speed in reserve. Last week he was distanced there in the same time. The black stallion has never won a heat, even, since Frank Frazier sold him for $7000 last year at Glens Falls.

AMONG the promising horses that started in the first race at Santa Rosa was a black horse by McKinney called McNally. He is owned by Sam Hoy, his trainer and driver and though a little unsteady in company is surely a coming trotter. McNally's dam is by Alcazar.

VARIOUS wise people are talking about the "transfer" of Searchlight, intimating that his sale to Mr. Bronson was merely an "arrangement" to facilitate his starting in races with Anaconda. As a matter of fact, the sale was bona fide in every particular, and the "transfer" theory is only the phantom of a long-distance critic's overworked imagination.—Chicago Horse Review.

WILLIAM B. FASIG, who is secretary of Charter Oak Driving park, at Hartford, Conn., has closed a contract whereby he secures Star Pointer as the leading attraction of the coming grand circuit meeting at that place. Star Pointer will make his first start of the year there on August 31st in an effort to beat his record of 1:59½. He will get $2500 for the start and $5000 additional in case he lowers his present mark.

FOR three successive seasons Searchlight has lowered a world's record or championship. As a three-year-old he tied the record of 2:09½ for pacing colts of his age. Last year he placed the race record for a four-year-old at 2:04½ at Cleveland he reduced the world's record for a five-year-old to 2:03½ and the next week he clipped it to 2:03½. The record was previously 2:03½, made at Terra Hauta in 1894 by John R. Gentry.

SLAVONIC, a pacer that took a record of 2:09½ at Portland Maine, last week, is by King Wilkes and out of Miss Rossell, the celebrated dam of Maud S 2:03. Slavonic was foaled in 1890. Maud S. now takes her place among the few matrons that are the dams of two in the 2:10.

ED ARMSTRONG'S horse Captain Hackett broke his record at Santa Rosa last Tuesday. He stayed in the race to the end and came near winning one heat, but could not get through the bunch ahead of him. Ed Lapham has this fine looking horse in the very best of condition, and is driving him with a piece of netting over his face to prevent him throwing up his head and breaking [when small flying clods or gravel hit him.

THERE are many ups and downs in the life of a harness horse trainer and driver. W. O. Foote, who last year had John Nolan 2:08 and a number of other good ones, winning the biggest trotting evens of the year, has not been able to pull down a purse this season, and John Nolan is the only horse he has left out of stable of eight or ten with which he started out, all the rest going wrong and Nolan being in anything but good shape.

JOHN DICKERSON deserves a bit of credit for the condition of Fred Kohl. This horse that the public regarded as worthless as a winner, and who appeared to have been marked for life when he took a four-year old record of 2:12½, required two years of Dickerson's patience to master, but the time of the young Hoosier trainer seems to have been well spent, for he has reduced the stallion's record to 2:07¾, and has him in winning form.

BUT three of the get of Cnpid 2:18 have ever started in a race, and all three were green horses when the season opened this year. One of them, Venus II., in Keating's string, now has a record of 2:11½, another, Lottia Parks, one of 2:17, and the third, Psyche, was only beaten a length in 2:17½. The last two made their only start at Santa Rosa. All of them are of a highly nervous temperament, and will act better in races after they have had more experience.

MR. F. M. WARE is one of New York's turf patrons who is more than ever convinced that the two in three heat system has come to stay on the trotting turf. During an extended talk on the subject recently he said: "The success of the system has been demonstrated beyond any doubt. At Hartford, Detroit, Cleveland and other racing centres where it has been tried the improved attendance is a sufficient guarantee that the innovation is popular with the public.

JOHN MARTIN of Woodland, a prosperous strawberry grower, went East with Dr. Boucher, and in a letter written from Detroit to a friend in California, stated that Miss Logan would start at Detroit, but she was hardly in condition to win, and added that they intended to play their money on her at Cleveland, however. As Miss Logan sold for $5 in pools of $300 and won at that meeting, Martin's friends here think he must have had all kinds of money in his pocket when the race was over.

THE rule against laying up heats has never been and never will be enforced in three-in-five racing. This has been proven to the satisfaction of everybody. Efforts to enforce it in a majority of cases result in an injustice to some driver singled out by the judges, who may or may not be guilty of an evasion of the rule, when there are others just as guilty as he. It is an absolute impossibility for any set of judges on earth to enforce this rule fully and impartially.—Boston Courier.

COULD Myrtle, the first daughter of Anteeo, that won the first heat of her race at Santa Rosa in 2:13½, been properly rated, she might have won, though there are many horsemen who think Addison can take her measure even at that speed. She went to the half the first heat in 1:04½, and in the second heat was there in 1:05½. She is a willful, nervous mare, hard to control, but when just right and sent a mile at speed, should trot a mile in 2:10. She is eleven years old and has had two or three foals.

SEVERAL Hal-bred stallions and geldings have held world's records, including Little Brown Jug, Brown Hal, Hal Pointer and Star Pointer, but the first mare of the tribe to win a world's record is The Maid. At the Cleveland meeting she reduced the record of Moch Bitter for the fastest four-year-old filly record from 2:07½ to 2:06½, and at Columbus shaded it to 2:05½. She is by Hal Index, a son of old Tom Hal, who is out of a daughter of Sweepstakes, dam of Hal Pointer and Star Pointer. The Maid's dam is unknown.

BAYSWATER WILKES, sire of the phenomenal four-year-old pacer Kelly Briggs, is a son of Sable Wilkes 2:18, and his dam is the thoroughbred mare Fanny Bayewater, by Baywater, son of Lexington. Fanny Bayewater is also the dam of Senator L. 2:23½. Bayswater Wilkes is a black horse and was foaled in 1891. He is a horse with the highest quality and finish, with a pure frictionless gait, and a square trotter. Sam Hoy, who owns him, believes he will be a great sire, and says he never saw one of his get that could not trot or pace fast.

THE fastest green horse that has appeared at the Breeders Santa Rosa meeting is Kelly Briggs, Sam Hoy's gelding by Baywater Wilkes, and he is that horse's first representative and we believe one of the first that ever started. Kelly Briggs is a very smooth going pacer and won his race in 2:10½ and 2:11½, which is certainly a remarkably first race for a green four-year-old. He was named for a young farmer who resides at Winters, and who presented the horse with a magnificent suit of clothing made by John A. McKerron of this city.

THE handsome bay mare with which C. E. Clark, of Fresno, captured first money in the first race of the circuit, last Monday at Santa Rosa, has two crosses of Onward blood. She is by Athadon 2:27, son of Metadon, he by Onward, and her dam is the mare Lustrine, by Onward; second dam Minnie Wren, by Challenger; third dam Valencia, by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 2:2; fourth dam by Abdallah 1:5; fifth dam by Cour de Lion. Athadon, her sire, is out of the great broodmare Athalie, by Harkaway, the dam of Athanio 2:10. Listerine is a square trotter and very fast as long as she keeps on her feet, but is a very bad breaker. Mr. Clark, her trainer, says that it is almost impossible to win with her in a heat where she has made a break, but that when she is steady it takes better than a 2:15 horse to beat her.

PRESIDENT D. E. KNIGHT of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, is the owner of the first two-year-old trotter to take a sensational record this year in the United States. Eula Mac is the name of the little miss and she is by McKinney 2:11½, out of Balance All, by Brigadier. She won her race at Santa Rosa last Tuesday so easily, that horsemen are predicting a mark of 2:20 or better for her before the year is ended. Her two heats were in 2:27½ and 2:29½. The first standard two-year-old pacer of the year also appeared at the Santa Rosa meeting on the same day. This was Ivy L. Borden's chestnut colt N. L. B., by Diabli 2:09½, out of Alice Bell, by Washington. He won the two-year-old pacing division of the Pacific Breeders Futurity and paced to a record of 2:21½ the first heat, repeating in 2:25½. It is quite an event to have two such two-year-olds appear on the same day at the first meeting of the year in California, and they showed themselves to be worthy representatives of the State and of two great young sires.

WHEN W. B. Fasig went to California in 1897 he saw Owyhee at Oakwood Park Farm and came home bubbling with enthusiasm over the colt, then a three-year-old. The colt was decidedly off last season, but his performances this season show that Mr. Fasig was as near right about Owyhee as he was when Tha Abbott came to Cleveland in 1897, under a cloud because he had been badly beaten in the M. and M., but Mr. Fasig liked the Chimes trotter and predicted that he would some day be the champion. Those were two pretty fair predictions for one year. Owyhee is coming on rapidly, and has won races at every one of the five points from Saginaw to Ft. Erie but one, and at Ft. Erie he beat Royal Baron. Owyhee is in fact the best winner in the grand bunch of horses Keating brought over from California. When the stable was ready to ship from Pleasanton in May he was the least promising in the car, and he was not left behind simply because Keating did not want to disappoint Mr. Boyd. Now he is coming so fast that Keating is hunting around for an entry in the Charter Oak Stake.—American Sportsman.

Alix and Her Foal.

One of the most notable events of the year is the birth of a filly who has for its mother Alix 2:03¾, the fastest trotter by the records the world has ever seen. The sire of the young miss is Sable Wilkes, who trotted to a record of 2:18 as a three-year-old. Foal, sire and dam are all owned by Hon. F. C. Sayles, of Pawtucket. This is Alix' first foal, and its future will be watched with interest.

OF the past queens of the turf Goldsmith Maid was the only one who came anywhere near to being a success as a broodmare, and her reputation was gained through one son, Stranger. Lady Suffolk and Flora Temple both produced foals, but only an expert in pedigrees can find anything with standard speed that descended from them. Maud S. nor Sunol have neither produced foals, and the former at least never will. Nancy Hanks has three living, one each by Arion 2:07¾, Bingen 2:06½ and the thoroughbred Meddler. The two old enough have never shown anything remarkable in the way of speed, but that is not surprising as no effort has been made to develop them.

WHEN on the turf Alix was a consistent race mare, one of the greatest who ever lived, if not the greatest, and her three miles in 2:06, 2:06½, 2:05½, made five years ago, still stand on the books as the fastest three-heat race to the credit of a trotter. Some time ago it was announced that the mare would be bred to Directum 2:05½, after foaling to Sable Wilkes. If Mr. Sayles does send her to Suburban Farm to the black horse it will be the first time that a king and queen of the turf have been mated.

RACING IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

A New York Turf Writer Sees a Bright Future for It.

Racing in the Middle West is looking up, and is bound to continue to improve, just as it has improved in the East, until they get back to the old basis of a dozen years ago out there, when they had thirty or forty books on at Latonia and the betting at that track was of as big volume as at any other point in the country. But the development of the sport in the West must in the nature of things be much slower than here. And it will necessarily have to be on different lines. In the East the sport is confined to a limited area—New York State—so that all the authorities had to do at the outset was to secure legislation in one Commonwealth endowing them with powers to manage the sport.

Out West some different mode of procedure will have to be adopted if any single body of men are to have control of the allotment of dates, turf discipline, etc., because legislation would be needed in each of five or six different States. On the face of things, it is evident that the Western people will have to get together on some other basis than that of ironclad legislation. They will have to meet on a give and take plan, as a business proposition, much as the Jockey Club is now doing, in contradistinction to the autocratic methods of the old Board of Control. That the West will ultimately do this there is every reason to believe, and in the meantime out West is not a bad place to race for the owners of moderate class animals that have no possible chance to earn feed hills here.

The disposition is manifest in the big cities of the West to patronize high class racing, and that is the best guarantee in the world that sooner or later the West will again have its important and attractive turf fixtures, its good horses and its good racing. Memphis is already solving the problem in a way that is setting the other cities of the West to thinking. At Memphis the society people have taken hold of racing. They have a neat comfortable little club house at the track, and a country club as a sort of adjunct to the Jockey Club. The society people can go to the races and enjoy the comforts and conveniences of the club house, or they can be more democratic and patronize the grandstand, as many of them do.

The Country Club has a very large membership and is more than self sustaining. Its advantage to the Jockey Club is that it helps to draw the society element. Not much effort is needed in that direction at Memphis, however, for the Jockey Club is one of the institutions of the town. The first thing you learn when you get to the Bluff City is that "Memphis is the greatest inland cotton market in the world, and that it has the best racing in America." I don't know much about the cotton end of the proposition, but so far as the racing goes I reckon the Mamphians are about right.

What has been done at Memphis in this respect might be accomplished at New Orleans, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati and Chicago. Eventually it will be accomplished, warring factions to the contrary notwithstanding.

As it is racing out West is not so bad. Of course they have not got the high class horses, nor the uniform big crowds and brisk betting that prevail here. But they have a fairly good sprinkling of class in their few remaining classic events, such as the Oaks and Derby, etc., and since the discarding of syndicate book making this year, the game is on the whole, as good as could be expected under the circumstances. Of course the purses are small, which is to be regretted, for liberal purses are essential to good clean racing.

But at that, any owner of a few horses that show form here, but are not quite good enough to win expenses, would have a chance out there, especially if he were fixed financially so that he could hide his time and do a little betting on his own horses. There is considerable rot in all that one hears about in and out racing in the West. It is my observation that horses run just about as true to form there as they do anywhere else.

As to betting, Western racing ought to be a paradise for the intelligent piker. The odds there are far more liberal on favorites than here, because the play is in small amounts and is much more diversified than here. At the big metropolitan tracks the bulk of the money generally goes on not more than two horses in a race. Out West there is very little big betting—plunging—and the money is fairly well divided up on nearly all the starters. It is very rare that a horse out West goes to the post at shorter odds than 7 to 10. Under conditions here, where the favorite would be at 1 to 2 or 1 to 3, the small bettor can oftentimes get as much as 7 to 5 or 2 to 1 against his money.

That makes the game a profitable one to the small player if he is diligent and intelligent in his betting methods. It is also to the advantage of the small owner who may want to bet not more than a hundred dollars or two, as he will get a price against his money, whereas here all the price would be immediately gobbled up by the plungers, the cormorants of the ring. Therefore, it can be seen that western sport has its desirable as well as its undesirable features. With the opening of fall stakes at Latonia it looks as though the meeting there may be a successful one, and with such favorable conditions Latonia ought to afford a good stopping place to stables en route from this section to New Orleans and San Francisco for the season of winter racing.

SADDLE NOTES.

I. E. LINNELL, of 2002 H street, has cross country and steeplechase horses to sell, or will buy or lease and train thoroughbreds for racers. See his advertisement.

MESMERIST is now called the greatest two year-old of the year. He won the Grand Union Hotel Stakes at Saratoga, last Saturday, carrying 129 pounds live and a half furlongs in 1:03.

JOHNNY HUMPHREYS will have charge of the betting ring during the Oakland meeting. He will put on several books. There are a goodly number of horses on the grounds being prepared for the coming events.

THERE is considerable sickness among the horses at Sacramento. Distemper seems to be the prevailing disease. Lady Ashley, a mare which Tim Griffin brought here, is dying from it. Flashlight is also in very poor health.

THE Directors of the State Fair will offer a trophy valued at $400 to be contested for by amateur jockeys. The race will be at a mile on the flat. Arrangements for the race are being made under the direction of Walter Hobart. A cup will also be offered for a hurdle race for ponies.

EDWARD KEARNEY, the president of the Saratoga Racing Association, is anxious that the Jockey Club should own the course and run the Saratoga meeting in the same manner it does that at Morris Park. He says there are no differences between the association and the Jockey Club and that everybody is working in harmony.

MESSES GIDEON & DALY have decided to sell all their race horses in training at the commencement of the fall meeting at Sheepshead Bay. His Royal Highness will have a chance to win the Futurity before the sale occurs. It will be interesting to see whether His Royal Highness will bring as much as was offered for him early in the spring, when he was considered one of the cracks.

An effort is being made to induce Mr. O'B. Macdonough to exhibit his famous horse Ormonde at the State Fair this year. If there is an animal in the United States that the public desire to see it is the great "horse of the century." Comparatively few Californians have seen the unbeaten champion, he having been kept at his owner's Menlo farm since being brought to this State. It is a foregone conclusion that should he be taken to Sacramento he would easily be the leading feature of the exposition and it is to be hoped Mr. Macdonough will permit him to be sent there.

THE Cicero Town Board, by a vote of 5 to 2, has refused to sustain President John Lewis, of Cicero, in his efforts to suppress gambling on the Hawthorne race track. President Lewis has raided the track twice during the summer and secured the indictments of a number of bookmakers on a charge of gambling, but the work has been done at his own expense. The Board refused to vote an appropriation of $2500 to carry on the work. The action makes it almost certain that no interference with the Hawthorne track will be made by the Cicero Town Board.

A CARLOAD of J. B. Haggin's California bred fillies arrived Friday from New York and were sent to Elmendorf, where they will be put in the barn. They are by various sires. Along with them came the recently imported stallion Rapello, the five-year-old son of Ben D'Oor, and Napoleon, by Marcoroni. He is to serve some of the Haggin mares at Elmendorf next season. Rapello is quite a handsome horse, but is said to have been of no great consequence on the Eastern turf, his greatest achievement being the winning of the great foal stake at a mile and a quarter as a three-year-old.

MR. WILLIAM C. WHITNEY took occasion last week formally to deny that he is contemplating an invasion of the English turf, and he denies that Trainer Sam Hildreth will go over there to represent him. Mr. Whitney desires, he says, to have a passing interest in English racing, and will have a few American colts and fillies trained in the stable of an English friend. Mr. Whitney further says that he will enlarge his turf operations here. He may purchase a stock farm in New Jersey, as he thinks Kentucky too far away. In the meantime he is completing at his Long Island Home a barn and shed room for seventy horses, which is an indication that he will have the largest American stable. Mr. Whitney may be induced to join the Jockey Club stewards and give some time to lightening the labors of Messrs August Belmont, James R. Keene and James Galway, who have certainly done more than a fair share of the work.

THIS is a description of the negro jockey as he appears on the race course in the West Indies: "The negro boy is clad in a cap of wonderful construction, fastened under his chin by elongated ear-flaps and made of serge or some similar material, and a jacket of material and proportions no less strange; he is encased, so far as his lower limbs are concerned, in a pair of Holland breeches, reaching to somewhere between his knees and his ankles; his black extremities are bare, save for a pair of black spurs. So dressed and equipped he climbs into the saddle. In this wonderful piece of furniture he places himself, and fixing his heels firmly at end he grasps the irons, which are hung at the other end between his great (great indeed they are) and second toes, with his four lesser toes on the bar of the stirrup and his great toe firmly entwined round the inner branch. He now clutches the reins and is ready. And now they are off. How does he ride? with body bobbing from stirrup to rump and rump to stirrup with reins loose; he stabs the unfortunate horse he bestrides from shoulder point to side, while with relentless right hand he cuts back over his left arm at his horse's quarters, raining blow on blow upon quarters, tail and under the tail. This from start to finish, half a mile or four, easy first or lagging last. . . . See the horses row the race is over; heaving, reeking, flanks and quarters covered with welts, cuts and blood."

What Perseverance Accomplished.

Training the trotter to trot, or pace, as the inclination strikes the animal, is a subject that has enlisted, in its discussion, the wisest man in the business, says Clark's Horse Review. But of the knottiness of the usual problem in that line, not much is ever heard. The horse makes his public appearance after his education is considered finished, or well toward that point and is judged, both as to the merit of his breeding and his abilities, by what he does thenceforth. The work and patience and ingenuity of the trainer are seldom thought of. At the Detroit meeting W. M. Byington, the Elmhurst, Ill., trainer, drove the four-year-old mare Buttercup, by Axtell, dam by Nutwood, a trial mile, at the trot, in 2:16½, after which he sold her for a comfortable sum to go into the stable of Oscar Ames. Those who saw the filly trot the mile referred to saw a sweet-gaited, steady-going piece of horse flesh, with speed to give away, and few of them knew or cared how great had been the task to make a trotter out of her. There never was a more unpromising trotter broken to harness, and the Review staff enjoyed several of Mr. Byington's visits last winter, in the course of which he told the difficulties he had encountered with his "sweet little Buttercup." He broke her in the fall of 1893 and worked her eight weeks. Now he looks back on that period of his life, heaves a sigh of relief and wonders how he ever lived through it. Buttercup could not trot much, and she did not seem to care whether she trotted at all. She was of the ungaited variety in the pasture and in the cart was worse. All her progress was on the order of the man who, as he climbed out of the well, went up a foot and back two feet at every attempt. She was shod to trot and shod to pace—shod as often as seven times in six days, and yet she failed to strike a gait at which she could beat a fat policeman. Finally it became evident that her hock action was deficient and she was shod with six-ounce shoes forward and eleven-ounce shoes behind. It did the work so far as her action was concerned, for it enabled her to get her hind feet into play. But something else was lacking, and her trainer made up his mind as to what it was and supplied it. He hooked her to a cart, hooted her carefully, took a new whalebone whip and gave her, as he put it, a harder whipping than he ever before gave a horse. And it made a trotter of her. From that time on she learned rapidly and he let up on her for the winter. May 15 he took her to the Wheaton track, July 13 he shipped her to Detroit, and two or three days later she stepped the mile in 2:16½, with speed in reserve. She now wears 10-ounce shoes forward, with 3-ounce weights and 3½ to 4 ounce shoes behind, and though well hooted, never has touched one of them. There never was a poorer prospect made into what looks like a good one. She was offered to a breeder last fall for $100. Some one of the advertising agencies has for a motto: "Keeping everlastingly at it brings success," and that would seem to apply to many cases of training horses to do what they were bred to do.

A Fair at Eureka.

The Humboldt county fair will be held at Eureka this year in September and will be the best ever held in that locality. The Eureka Standard of last week says:

The track at South Park is gradually getting into good shape and by Fair week will be as fast as it ever was. Quite a number of horses are already being worked at the track, among them being Jack W., Wayland W., Timothy B., Fitz Amon, Rnth, Annie Rooney and some "green" colts, all trotters, and the runners Paarl G., I. O. U., Pi Fi and Little Scott. The pacer Dudley is being worked on the Rohnerville track and will probably appear in the free-for-all. Wm. Alford's Gossiper and McGilivray's General Don are being trained at Ferndale and it is rumored that the speedy quarter mile sprinter Rondo is also at the latter town and is thinking seriously of trying conclusions with some of the ambitious youngsters at the coming meet.

Z. Russ & Sons will offer as an inducement to breeders of blooded cattle a special premium of $50 for the best thoroughbred Durham bull exhibited at the Fair.

The coming fair will be the best ever held in Humboldt county. Everything is progressing in fine shape and by the time the date for holding the exposition arrives all will be in readiness. There will be big attractions at both the track and pavilion.

Valley quail, wild ducks and wild geese, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October. The clerk of nearly all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Mono, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Diego, San Joaquin, Sacramento, Solano, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:
Alpine—Deer, Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15. Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Male deer, July 15 to Oct. 1. Pheasants protected until February, 1904. Hunting, killing or having in possession for purpose of sale or shipment out of county, quail, bob white, partridge, wild duck, rail, mountain quail, grouse, dove, deer or deer, antelope, elk or mountain sheep prohibited.

The Olympic Gun Club will hold a vermin hunt on Sunday, August 27th, on the Kodger's ranch in Marin county. The shooters will be in the field from 7 A. M. until 2 P. M. and will kill no birds nor animals that are not scheduled on the score card with which each member will be supplied. The points allowed on each animal or bird killed are as follows: Coyote, 1000; wildcat 1000; fox, 500; coon, 500; eagle, 500; polecat, 250; ground squirrel, 250; quail hawk, 250; large hawk, 250; small hawk, 100; weasel, 50; jack rabbit, 25; bluejay, 25.

At the Traps.

The Lincoln Gun Club conclude their regular trap shooting season for 1899 to morrow on the Alameda shooting ground. This shoot will undoubtedly draw a large attendance of trap shooters. The club will distribute among the lucky and skillful shot gun devotees the sum of $150. This amount will be divided into five classes, viz: First $40, ($24, $16), second $35 ($21, $14), third $30 ($18, $12), fourth $25 ($15, $10), fifth $20 ($12, $8). The probable winners can be picked out of a sextette composed of A. J. Webb, with 94 breaks out of a possible 100, Otto Feudner with 93 breaks, Edg. Forster with 92 breaks, Phil B. Bekeart and Geo. Franzen with 89 targets credited to each and John Karney with 88 birds. In the afternoon the principal attraction will be the twelve-man team shoot for the Neustadter trophy.

On September 3d the Lincoln's will hold their annual picnic and open-to-all shoot at the club grounds. Lunch will be served to the members and their guests, an attractive program of old time events will be arranged including double bird events, "one man up" race, etc. The final ownership of the Neustadter trophy is to be determined at this shoot.

On the 27th inst. the San Francisco Gun Club will have their final live bird shoot. The Union Gun Club will on that day smash blue rocks at Alameda Point.

Last Sunday the final blue rock events for 1899 of the San Francisco Gun Club took place at Alameda Junction. The season's high average gold medal valued at $25.00 and $15 00 in cash was won by A. J. Webb with a record of 93 targets out of 100 (four races at twenty-five targets each). Second honors and $10.00 cash were taken by "William" with a total score of 91 breaks. Clarence A. Haight, who scored a total of 92 targets, was penalized two birds, making his record 90 targets. Ed Schultz was high gun for second class honors ($15 00 cash), with a total score of 93 breaks. Edg. Forster and E. Rickleson who were next in rank divided $10.00. In the third class J. J. Sweeney won first money, $15.00, with a score of 78, and J. B. Hauer won second money, $10.00, with 77 as his score. W. Dreyfus and Dr. Millar divided $25.00, taking $12.50 each, with a score of 72 out of 100, in the fourth class. $100.00 was equally divided between the four classes—the $25.00 being sub-divided into two moneys, 60 and 40 per cent.

The Feudner Cup was won by E. Rickleson, who made three scores of 23 targets each and one 19 score, a total of 88 targets in four races at twenty-five targets each.

An extra event, a two-man team race, was participated in by twelve teams. In this race "William" and Rosenberg and Bekeart and Feudner were high teams and tied, each team having a total score of 43 targets out of 60. "William" strenuously objected to shooting off the tie with Feudner and Bekeart, who were both very willing to do so, and the award of the prizes in this race, two sets of handsome gold buttons, was decided by chance, "William" and Rosenberg winning on a "toss-up."

Besides entering in the regular contests a number of back scores were shot up by individual shooters. The results of the day's shooting are the following:

The August shoot of the Empire Gun Club was held last Sunday on the Alameda shooting grounds. The regular card of events was shot through and fair scores resulted, although the attendance of members was rather less than usual. Fred Feudner carried off the honors of the day, winning the medal in the medal race with a score of twenty-two breaks; he was also high man in the prize gun event and divided first money with C. Debenham in the re-entry race. In practice shooting he made straight strings of ten and twenty-five targets respectively. Other shooters who were among the winning guns were: C. F. Mitchell, winner of the purse in the second class of the re-entry race; A. M. Shields, who won the third class money and C. Juster, winner of the fourth class money. In the handicap merchandise shoot La Motte and Ireland were the successful shooters. A summary of scores is the following:

Medal shoot, 25 targets—F. Feudner 22, Debenham 20, Mitchell 18, Andrus 17, Huie 16, La Motte 16, Hauer 16, Shields 15, Ireland 14, Cornwall 13, Juster 12, Wallace 12, Gere 12, Guyette 11, Judah 10. The following shooters participated, shooting for birds only: Olsen 18, Swales 15, 11, Gere 14, Judah 14, Cornwall 10.

Classification re-entry race at 25 targets—First class: F. Feudner, Debenham. Second class: Mitchell 21, Andrus 18. Third class: Shields 17, Gere 14, Huie 13, Ireland 12, Hauer 12. Fourth class: Juster 16, Gere 14, Cornwall 11, Judah 10, Wallace 10, Guyette 8.

In a ten bird practice shoot the scores were: F. Feudner 10, La Motte 10, Juster 8, Wallace 8, Hine 7, Hoyt 7, Cornwall 6, Hoyt 6, Ireland 5, Gere 5, Guyette 5, Gere 5, Cornwall 4, Roman 4, Ireland 3, Guyette 3, Judah 2.

On the 9th and 10th of next month the final shoot of the Empire Gun Club will take place. The club members propose to make this meeting the record shoot of the year. A program of unusual excellence will be offered for those participating—the prize shoot particularly is an event that will be a good thing for the shooters entered.

The Reliance Gun Club, of Oakland, held quite a successful merchandise handicap shoot last Sunday, "Doc" Dieckman winning the first of a number of valuable prizes. The meeting started off with a ten bird warm-up, followed by the main event, a twenty bird handicap, for members only. A feature of the shoot was "Pop" Gross' sympathy for the boys, the old man letting quite a number of "birds" go, so that they might not run short. Following is the score:

An Amador Deer Hunt.

A good story is out concerning a deer hunt in Amador county recently. An ambitious hunter, whom we will call Miller, because he is one of the Limited Gun Club, the members of which are all noted huggers of spoonhills, was very anxious to kill a deer. In this laudable desire he was backed by a number of sportsmen who promised to do all in their power to bring about successful results of the chase in the shape of choice venison. After several days of preparation and a due amount of advice and instruction imparted to Miller by the veterans, word was brought into town that deer had been located in a favorable district and our friend Miller with his companions set forth late one afternoon to enjoy the promised deer hunt. The party were all apparently prepared to stay out all night, and upon arriving at the designated spot, a level valley sparsely studded with trees and also having a rather thick growth of underbrush—each hunter forthwith selected a tree and expressed his intention of climbing it and comfortably waiting for the quarry to come down from the hill to be bagged. Miller was taken in charge by the arch conspirator and finally located some twenty feet above the ground astride the limb of a large oak tree, he was then given a few parting injunctions by his companion and left to his own reflections; pleasant and exciting no doubt in the beginning, but as the night wore on and hour after hour passed and no deer appeared to enliven his lonely and uncomfortable vigil in the tree, his thoughts, gradually descending the scale from hope and enthusiasm down to suspicion and rage can readily be imagined. Ere he had become fairly settled in his lookout the other hunters (?) were well on their way to town. Morning finally dawned and found the hunter ready and willing to quit and get back to quarters. To do so, however, it was necessary to climb down from the tree. Upon turning around to commence the descent, the hunter saw something dark outlined in the scrub brush about fifty yards away the character of which, in the dim light, was unknown to him. Between hope and fear he resolved to wait until the increasing daylight would enable him to distinguish what the object was. Cautiously and silently the hunter waited and watched and when the light was strong enough to enable him to discern the color of the object his hair raised on end because he thought he had a California lion to deal with. Several times he carefully aimed his rifle to shoot, but each time he was unwilling to take the chance of missing or wounding and then having to fight for life with an enraged cat. This condition of affairs kept Mr. Miller at his post about two hours longer when his suspicions were at last aroused because the object never moved during all the time he had been watching it. When he yelled and fired his rifle his suspicions were confirmed and upon gradual and close examination after hastily coming down from his perch he discovered—not a California lion but a blanket which had been dropped and forgotten the previous evening. It is not recorded what he said when he arrived in town, but he and his friends had several drinks together.

Effect of Primers on Shells.

This subject has received the attention and discussion of many of our sportsmen prior to and during the present deer shooting season. The following statement by a writer in Shooting and Fishing is interesting to the degree that it, to a certain extent adds a new phase to the subject:—It has been generally supposed that all brass shells, when fired with smokeless powder, quickly deteriorated and became worthless for reloading. This opinion has been assiduously cultivated by certain ammunition manufacturers and also by one of the repeating arms manufacturing companies which tags each gun with a guarantee disclaiming any responsibility for mishaps or break downs unless ammunition is used that is made by the same company who made and sold the gun.

"Experiments with nitro primers indicate that the mercury in the priming composition does cause brittleness in brass shells when fired with high pressure powder, or when snapped into the empty shell, but that it has no appreciable effect when black powder is used. I would add that it has little effect, if any, when low pressure nitro is used. I have a batch of about sixty .30-40 shells from which nearly one thousand rounds have been fired, the load being from 20 to 10 grains weight of Du Pont's No. 1 Nitro powder, 2 1/2 W primer and a jacketed bullet. The firing has been done at intervals of weeks and months. During these intervals the shells have lain uncleaned. Only five or six shells have given out, and they showed only slight longitudinal crack in neck or shoulder. From one of these shells that had been in use nearly a year, and had been fired with the above charge fully fifteen times, I recently fired in one day sixty rounds of 12 grains weight of Du Pont's No. 1 and a 169-grain lead bullet. It seems as sound as ever. Note that in the latter case the shell was only about half full, leaving plenty of space for the gaseous mercury to come in direct contact with the sides of the shell.

I conclude that when low pressure powder is used, whether black or nitro, shells may be reloaded as often with strong primers as with weak ones. It is only when high pressure powder is used that the shell becomes brittle or spongy, and whether this is due to the action of mercury or not, the powder itself is the vehicle, without which the microbe cannot act.

The comparison of mercuric fulminate to microbes is made advisedly, for the fulminate in a Krag primer weighs only one-fifth grain, and only part of this is mercury. A considerable proportion of this must be blown out of the shell on explosion, and the remainder is probably precipitated in the form of oxide, or some comparatively inert compound with other products of explosion. Would this infinitesimal residue suffice to amalgamate the 36 grains of zinc in a 30-40 shell? Certainly not. The amalgamation must be local. But why does it show such marked preference for one particular locality, namely, the neck of the shell?

Despite the experiments with primers snapped in empty shells, I still doubt that the mercury has as much effect on a shell as the mechanical agencies of heat, erosion, pressure, and the peculiar vibration set up by high pressure powder. Further experiments are needed, for this matter affects our pocketbooks. If mercury alone does the mischief, we can probably remove it before it has penetrated the inner surface of the shell, and thus can reload high power shells with safety."

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

J. B. Hauer, the genial secretary of the Empira Gun Club, took an outing trip this week.

A new invoice of some strikingly handsome new patterns and styles in gun cases are on sale at Clabrough, Golchar & Co.'s. These goods should be seen by sportsmen to be appreciated.

The "Honey Hive Jinks" and "Chronometer Tournament" at the Olympic Gun Club rooms last night was a grand success. Mirth, music and sentiment ruled supreme during the evening amongst the popular sportsmen and their guests.

A curious and interesting display of Filipino relics and curiosities in the window of the E. T. Allen Co. has been the center of attraction for crowds during the past week. Guns, weapons, captured ammunition, etc. go far towards satisfying curiosity, but a fac simile model of a Filipino residence shown is something more than ordinarily attractive.

The question as to whether inanimate target shooting is of any assistance in teaching field shooting has frequently of late been discussed by local shooters. Where a man does not know how to handle a gun, a few days' practice at inanimate targets familiarizes him with the "feel" of a gun in his hands, and soon teaches him to put the same to his shoulder readily, and to pull the trigger at the proper time. It also accustoms him to the recoil of a gun, and he gradually becomes more or less expert, according to whether he is a natural born shot, or one who can only be made a good shot by constant practice. For all such men, previously inexperienced in handling guns, trap shooting is unquestionably a great aid to field shooting; there seems to be no possible argument on that point.

As to how far trap shooting keeps in practice those who are already good field shots, there may be room for argument. It would seem, however, that any kind of shooting that familiarizes a man with putting his gun to his shoulder and shooting at moving objects, most of necessity be useful practice for field work. The position of "gun to the shoulder," as observed by nearly every target or live pigeon shooter, is not exactly the position to adopt in the field, but then ninety out of every ten shots fired in the field is fired at under twenty-five rather than over twenty-five yards; hence there is plenty of time to get the gun to the shoulder before the game bird or animal is out of range. Training for the eye, to produce quickness of vision and a capacity for instantaneous mental calculation as to where to hold on a moving object, as well as to produce the necessary affinity between hand and eye, a sine qua non in shooting, is what trap shooting produces. Why then should it not be of the greatest benefit to every shooter?

Black bass fishing in the San Joaquin and Tuolumna rivers is reported to be first class.

The fly-casters will devote themselves to their favorite sport to-day and to-morrow at Stow Lake.

Striped bass anglers have had good luck this week in that portion of San Leandro bay bordering the Bay Farm island.

*Salt water anglers have lately made great catches of rock fish, sea trout, etc., at California City, Angel Island, Balvedere and the old favorite grounds near Sausalito.

Striped bass are plentiful in the Sacramento near Red Bluff. Net fishermen in Tomales bay, in San Francisco bay near San Quentin and in the Russian river are catching large quantities of the bass and shipping them to the city.

According to the report of State Fish Commissioner Little of Washington the Royal Chinook salmon, which were so plentiful a few years ago in the Columbia river, have become practically extinct. The Chinooks run in June, and in future there will be a stop put to their capture by net fishers for several years.

Henry F. Emeric, who was until some months ago a member of the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners, passed away on Wednesday. Mr. Emeric was a well known sportsman and had won the good opinions of our anglers and shooters by his devotion to their interests during his term of office as a member of the Commission.

The trap-shooters of this city and also those of a large part of the State know "Papa's" Carr of Monterey. Mr. Carr is an ardent sportsman and angler, and recently he secured 50,000 cutthroat trout fry from the State fish hatchery and had them planted in the Carmel river at Eagle Camp, the Big and Little Srs, the San Clemente, the Garcia and San Jose creeks.

Salmon fishing has been first-class near Capitola in Monterey bay recently. Al Cumming and Eli Marks made a total catch of 41 fish on Thursday and Friday mornings last week. Some boats that were out repeatedly failed to catch any fish, the salmon had gone down deeper after the sardines who always seek the depths when it is cold, which state of affairs necessitates a different rig of tackle; heavier sinkers and longer leaders.

Angling for trout continues to offer first class sport in most of the favorite localities. Reports from the Truckee area to the effect that the fishing is still most excellent. H. E. Skinner and Col. Keliehor are now whipping the waters adjacent to Boca Mina host McDonald of Boca sent down to John Butler last week a six pound Rainbow beauty that was taken out of the Prosser pond by George L. Bradford, who holds the record for the largest fish taken out of Prosser creek or the Truckee between Verdi and Truckee, the fish weighed over nine pounds.

A new trolling device is the "Ghost." It is constructed on entirely new principles and it is claimed to be superior to any trolling bait ever used. It excels all fish-lores in simplicity of construction, perfect revolution and lightness. It can be trolled very slowly and be on the surface of the water. With properly adjusted sinker, it can be trolled at any depth desired. The larger size (No. 1) is a great killer of black bass, the smaller size (No. 3) has been phenomenally good with the striped bass. For bait-casting with frog or minnow it cannot be excelled. It is made so that treble hooks, gangs or flies may be instantly interchanged.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Mr. J. W. Flynn, of this city, will attend the Manitoba Trials next month.

Mr. H. W. Lacy has been engaged to judge at the Fanciers Club show Sharon, Pa., January 17 to 19, 1900.

A red cocker spaniel dog poppy is desired by an intending purchaser who has left his address at this office.

The Pacific Fox Terrier Club will hold a meeting at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN on Monday evening, August 21st.

Miss Horner of this city has temporarily placed her rough coat St. Bernard bitch Queen (Reg'ed—Lady Bute II.) in charge of the Presidio Kennels.

Mrs. W. B. Hooper, who has a great fancy for Irish terriers has now in her kennels a grand litter of young puppies by Barney Fagan—Flossia, all of which are quite correct in the various points and should be in the going at future bench shows.

A notable setter breeding is listed in our kennel registry column this week. Thos. J. Watson's Fannie R (a litter sister to Starlight, who will be remembered for his sensational performances at past field trials) was bred to Sam Waller—she is due about September 1st and the "nick" from the Dan Gladstone and Roderigo blood should be a grand one indeed.

Powhattan is the name lately claimed by Mr. H. E. Hemmelright for his kennels. If he devotes the same enthusiasm and energy to doggy affairs that has made him so prominent as a pigeon fancier we expect to see his dogs come to the front at a rapid pace. The latest acquisition to the Powhattan Kennels is a bright little fox terrier bitch puppy by Aldon Artist—Victoria Judy.

At a meeting of coursing men held Wednesday night in Pythian Castle a temporary organization was effected by the owners of grayhounds. The membership is limited to owners and handlers of dogs. No person connected with any coursing park is eligible for an official position.

Captain P. C. Clarkson was elected temporary chairman and W. C. Glasson temporary secretary. A committee was appointed on organization and will report back next Tuesday. The committee is composed of John Keenan, Hugh Lynch, J. P. Thirrit, J. Murray, M. Kavanagh, James Smith and F. P. McQuinn.

Mr. Howard Vernon has placed in the Museum at Golden Gate Park all that visibly remains of the great pointer Glenbeigh, who, it will be remembered, was poisoned at Bakersfield just prior to the field trials of 1898. Mr. Vernon had the skin stuffed and with commendable public spirit has now put the effigy of the game and grand old pointer in a position where his past record will show by a representative testimonial which will be appreciated by all lovers of a good dog. It is a remarkable fact that, with but few exceptions, all of Glenbeigh's get have made leading records whether on the bench or in the field.

The New York State Field Trials Association has been organized, the officers are: president, C. A. Ellis, Sherman, N. Y.; vice-president, Robert Kelley, Hunting, L. I., N. The selection of grounds and judges for the initial trials will soon be made. It is proposed in these trials to allow additional points to dogs retrieving.

John Bradshaw has established at Ingleside, near the race track, one of the best appointed kennels in the city. The place was formerly used as a training stable for thoroughbreds; a number of roomy box stalls are in the main building and two large lots fenced in, the soil of these grounds being a sandy loam, hard enough to be firm, besides other conveniences go far towards constituting a first class kennels. Mr. Bradshaw has at present a number of dogs of various breeds in charge, all of them being in excellent condition. A young English bull dog owned by Mr. Leon Greenebum was recently placed in Bradshaw's care after the veterinary had pronounced the case a hopeless one, the dog is now in good health and condition by reason of the application of a system of care and nursing instead of the administration of medicines that could not be assimilated.

Dogs Will Show Their Teeth.

Acting afraid of dogs is one of the surest ways to provoke an attack, it is curious, to me wonderful, how well dogs understand people. They seem at a glance or very soon thereafter to decide in their minds whether or not it would be safe to assail one who enters their owner's premises, said a well known habitue of Sportsmen's Row the other day. My own opinion is that every one of them, big or little, of high or low degree, would like to bite every stranger that he sees. Their love for their master makes them jealous or makes them pretend to be jealous of everybody who approaches them, and they debate momentarily whether or not a newcomer is afraid of them. If he is not, they either extend a friendly salute, which is always deceitful, or assume to be indifferent. If he is, they give him a bite, more or less deep, then sink away from possible consequences. For years and years I have followed the rule, when visiting a person residing out of town, unless I know positively that he keeps no dog of any size, to halt at the gate, raise a halloo and await not only my host's invitation, but his approach and his accompaniment into his house. I could not tell the number of times wherein I have been barked at furiously from the inside by dogs whose owners declared that in all their lives they had never done such a thing before to a man of genteel appearance. The counsels and admonitions bestowed upon me might have excited some gratitude if they had not been wholly needless. I have been asked so many times that it makes me almost sick to have the question repeated, "Why don't you just go along without noticing such things, not being or at least pretending not to be afraid? Not one dog in 10,000 will try to bite a gentleman unless he is provoked or sees that he is being avoided."

Cleanliness.

Many diseases that affect dogs, and cause their owners no end of worry and trouble, can be almost entirely prevented by taking proper care of the animal and seeing that its quarters are at all times cleanly and well ventilated, and that the food given is perfectly sweet and fresh, and of the best quality. "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," this maxim applies to the canine as well as to the human race, and absolute freedom from filth is as necessary to the well-being of a puppy as it is to a child. It must not be understood, however, that all dirt is filth, as there is nothing more conducive to the health of a child or dog than plenty of soil or sand for them to play in and eat if they wish; but it must be looked to that the ground is kept perfectly free from excrement and other filth. [The conclusion relative to eating was already inclined to take exception to, soil and sand though clean in the sense here meant, is a natural and now well known depository for the eggs of many varieties of insect life. Instances are not by any means rare where children playing in sand or loam have through the medium of dirty hands, eating, etc., swallowed eggs or minute larvae that were a subsequent source of much sickness and trouble until the cause was ascertained and removed. Dogs are not immune to these conditions. E.] The dirt will do them no harm, and on no account should a puppy ever be bathed except it be absolutely necessary to free him from filth. Even grown dogs, when in health, can be kept perfectly clean without resorting to the constant washing and scrubbing that some owners think so necessary. A stiff brush in the hands of one who will use it thoroughly is often much better than a bath, especially in cold weather, or even in warm weather if the dog is heated by exercise. Dogs do not perspire through the pores of the skin, and for this reason are much more easily kept sweet and clean. Moreover, their hair is so constituted that it performs a very important part in keeping them free from filth. Each hair is armed with minute scales or teeth, all pointing outward, and with each motion of the dog each individual hair, rubbing against its neighbors, may be said to make an effort to expel all dust and dirt from the skin to the surface of the coat. By no means is it to be understood that the use of the bath at proper times is to be deprecated, but in case of necessity, it is shown that a dog can be kept perfectly clean without it. A plunge into water is greatly enjoyed by most most dogs, and is of benefit to them when they are not too much heated by exercise; but should they from any cause get wet while heated, no bad results are apt to follow if they be given a good run after their bath.

Exercise is one of the most important subjects which we are called upon to consider. So much has been written and said about the value of exercise that it is taken for granted that no one is ignorant of its necessity for the prolonging of life and the enjoyment of health. Although in a general way the average dog owner is aware of this, he is not always aware just how much his dog really needs, nor of the proper time when he should take it.

The stomach of the dog appears to be so constituted that absolute rest is required after eating, in order that the food that has been taken may be properly digested. Exercise should therefore be very moderate just after meals, and no work should be allowed until at least three hours have elapsed. It has been proven by experiment that, when a dog was full fed and at once put to work, at the end of several hours the food remained in the stomach in an undigested state—he only change being that there was fermentation, which in itself would cause no little distress, if not a complete disarrangement of the entire system.

There is no animal that requires more exercise than the dog, and it is cruelly to them to confine them for weeks at a time, as is too often done, with scarcely an opportunity to stretch their legs or breathe a bit of fresh air. A person who cannot take proper care of his dog is not fit in own one, and it is far from proper care to debar one's dog from the exercise so necessary to keep him in health. If it is necessary to keep a dog chained, he should be allowed his liberty for a good run at least twice a day—once in the morning and again at night before he is fed.

The very best plan to adopt, both for dog and master, is to get up in the morning an hour before the usual time and devote this hour to a ramble in the fields with the dog, or, if the fields are too far away, the streets may be substituted. If this is tried for a month, it will be found to be so beneficial to both that it will be very bad weather or uncommon press of business that will cause the morning ramble to be omitted. This course has often been advised and invariably with the most gratifying results, both to dog and master. In this connection, it will perhaps not be out of place to say that work of this character is of the very best to fit a pointer or setter for the season's work on game, in say nothing of the hardening of one's own thumbs and sinews, and getting into condition for tramping through wood and field.—Nursing vs. Dosing.

The head large, square and broad, cranium almost flat, jaws large, powerful, deep, square and undershot; the muscles of the cheek well developed; the face extremely short, broad and very deep. The stop should be strongly defined, causing a hollow or groove between the eyes, and extending well up the forehead.

The eyes wide apart, set low in skull, as far from the ears as possible, round, of moderate size, neither sunken nor bulging and very dark. No hair and no white of eye should be visible when looking forward.

Muzzle, nose and lips should be black. The lips thick, and nose deep, and nostrils broad. Neck short, thick and well arched.

The ears should be bat ears, large in size, broad at base, well elongated, with rounded top, set high on head, but not too close—yet carried erect, with orifice plainly visible when seen from the front. The body should be short, well rounded, well let down between shoulders and forelegs, chest deep, broad, full, well ribbed, with belly well tucked up. Back short, strong, broad at shoulders and narrowing at loins. The forelegs should be short, stout, straight and muscular, set wide apart; hindlegs longer than forelegs, so as to elevate the loins above the shoulders. Feet compact and firmly set, turning slightly outward. Toes compact, with high knuckles and short nails. Tail either straight or screwed (not curled), short, hung low, downward carriage, thick root and fine tip. Preference given to short, straight tail.

Color should be uniform, pure of its kind, and brilliant; preference given to dark brindle, dark brindle and white; all other brindles, all other colors. The skin soft and loose, especially at head forming wrinkles.

Coat moderately fine, short and smooth. Docked tails, mutilated, and other than bat ears are disqualifying.

THE FARM.

The South American Trade.

No stone should be left unturned to win our share of the South American trade. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are annually paid into the pockets of British breeders by South Americans for stock no better than we can supply from our own herds and flocks. The current of that trade set in years ago toward the tight little isle and still continues. We have made fragmentary efforts to get a foothold in the South American market, which belongs to us by every geographical right, but our success has as yet been small. It will require systematic effort in every possible direction to change the current of this established trade that now flows from us to our rival breeders across the water. In other columns attention is directed to the Export Exhibition to be held in Philadelphia and a very sensible suggestion is submitted that information of value concerning our pedigreed stock industry in this country be placed within easy reach of visitors at that exposition. Our register associations may well enough concern themselves with this matter. Doubtless they will find the authorities of the Philadelphia exposition ready to lend them every possible assistance in getting before foreign visitors information that would lead them to investigate the character of our pure bred stock and our ability to supply them with animals that they need in their improvement of their herds and flocks.—Breder's Gazette.

Warranted Not to Sour.

A sample of milk was lately examined in St. Louis and the chemist returned it with the endorsement, "Warranted Not to Sour." It had been so dosed with preservatives that it was warranted not to spoil; embalmed—in fact, poisoned so thoroughly that not even that most resistant form of life, a bacterium, could live in it. What chance has a sickly child, when such poisonous food is given it? Or, for that matter, an adult with little power of resistance left after a long sickness?

Would it increase the chances of recovery to feed a diseased stomach with combinations of milk and formalin, freezine, preservaline and such like? There are some things, that neither doctors nor professors, can tell us; things which no amount of scientific argument will convince us of.

One of these is the necessity, harmlessness, or desirability of the use of preservatives in our food. We don't want it for ourselves or families, and we decidedly deny the right of any man, be he a Chicago packer or a small milk dealer, to compel us to swallow a daily dose of preservatives, be they reputed never so harmless. Let us have the bacteria alive, and we will attend to the killing ourselves.—Hoard's Dairyman.

A Pig Feeder's Methods.

Nothing convinces like an object lesson, and what a successful man has done is of more practical value in teaching than a dozen theories of how another should do. The following is from the pen of Elmer Bingham, a Wisconsin breeder of live stock who has made a success of the business:

"I am a young farmer who is trying to apply the rules of hard common sense to live-stock raising, profiting by the experience and perhaps mistakes of an aged father who retires to allow the farm care to devolve upon the son. In making a choice of breeders that produced this bunch of pigs I selected twelve young sows from a lot of some sixty that I was feeding. These I considered well bred, having used a pure-bred male for several years. Along toward the latter part of December I began to breed the sows, then eight months old, to a vigorous, mature male—one that had attained good size by having to roste a good deal for himself. About three weeks before farrowing time each sow was placed by herself in a 6x3 foot pen which faced the south so as to get as much sunshine as possible. Their feeding during this time was chiefly oats fed whole and wheat middlings made into a swill with a little milk. The same feed was continued during suckling time, with the addition of a little corn and the other rations in greatly-increased quantities.

The twelve sows gave me 79 fine pigs, of which 78 came to maturity, having lost only a single pig out of the lot. At the age of about three weeks the mothers were allowed the range of a small pasture so as to get a little early grass, and from this time until they were weaned I kept oats and skim milk where the little fellows could get to it at all times. Not caring to raise a fall litter from the same sows I did not wean them until nearly two and one-half months old, or about the last of June. At this time, having twenty acres of young clover, they were turned into it and for the next two months they grazed much the same as a flock of sheep, requiring only a basket or two of corn and oats night and morning to keep them in good condition.

About September 1st, when grass had become somewhat short and having threshed a crop of cheap barley, I began to soak and feed that quite heavily, with a little old corn, for nearly two months. I fed no soft or green corn whatever, but allowed it to get fully ripe and dry. It may not be true that new corn induces cholera, but I have observed that farmers often begin to lose their hogs when they commence to feed it. November 1st I discontinued all swill and fed only sound corn and saw that they always had free access to pure water. There was perhaps half a ton of soft coal that the threshers left in the field and before cold weather came I found that it was about all eaten. I also kept salt where they could run to it. At the beginning of this final feeding period I found I had a drove of healthy, lean, long-bodied, thrifty shoats weighing better than 150 pounds each and not a runt to be found among them.

In regard to feeding corn I do not know how it is elsewhere, but among farmers that I know at least two-thirds seem to think that the way to fatten hogs is to dump a load of corn into the feeding pen often enough to keep the corn about a certain depth on the floor. When I first began to feed hogs for myself my father-in-law said to me: "If you want your hogs to do well when you fatten them, 'keep 'em squealing,'" and thus far I have no cause to regret having followed his advice. During the eighty days of the full-feeding period this lot of hogs was fed only twice each day and only as much as they would eat up clean, and only twice during that time did they fail to come up keen and hungry for the coming feed. As evidence that this bunch did well upon a more careful manner of feeding I will state that during the period in which I kept a record of the gain that six of the average ones made from December 20th to January 10th, or twenty days, the smallest gain was thirty pounds, and an exceptionally thrifty harrow gained forty-two pounds, or a little better than two pounds a day.

When I decided to market them I opened gates and drove the entire bunch a distance of three miles to the railroad station, and every one of them made the trip within four hours. The purchaser at the yards informed me that they were grown and finished in a manner acceptable to the present demands for a fancy-packing hog, although still heavier weights of the same type would be equally desirable. I am satisfied that they made me a fair profit, even after charging them with the advanced high prices for feed. There is one fact that the intelligent feeder will not forget, that to feed stock and realize the greatest profits he must maintain a constant, steady growth from the very beginning, whether it be a calf or pig with which he deals.

Aberdeen Angus steers seem to be bringing the highest prices on the market, selling from thirty to forty cents higher than any other breed. While their average weight may not be so great yet the quality of the cattle and the evenness of the flesh is what attracts the eye.

Washing Dairy Utensils.

I want to say a word here in regard to washing milk pails and utensils, says a dairyman. I may be running into hornets nests, but I can't help it. My impression is that there are too many dish cloths used and not enough boiling water. I know from experience that it is hard work to keep a dish cloth sweet and clean in hot weather, and a brush that will take the place of a dish cloth that can be bought in any place for twenty-five cents, is much better for getting into seams and crevices than a cloth and it is no trouble to keep clean. Keeping milk cans clean and bright is no easy task, but leaving them unclean means gassy and had flavored milk and I think I can safely say that 50 per cent of the bad milk delivered at factories today is caused by neglect on the part of the patrons to keep their cows and dairy utensils clean. Another practice that I have noticed is stopping up leaks in milk cans with a rag. This is positively a filthy practice and should be abandoned at once.

F. J. Berry, who is one of the leading dealers in the country, says: "I believe that the French coach horse comes nearer filling the present demand for carriage and coach horses than any other outside of the American trotter, and if crossed with the trotter will greatly improve them."

There are farmers supposed to be in the business to make a living and lay up as much as they conveniently can who seriously begrudge paying a couple of dollars for the service of a $200 holl. They complain about extortion and go away to breed their cows to some cat-hammed scrub or dairy bull that will give them a calf worth $20 per head less when ready for the beef market than one sired by a pure-bred beef bull.

The will of Robert Bonner, executed June 26th, leaves the farm at Tarrytown, 113 acres, and the horses, to his sons, Robert Edwin and Frederic Bonner; the house in Fifty-sixth street to his daughter, and divides the residue of the estate among his children, one-fourth each to Mrs. Forbes and R. E. and Frederic Bonner, and the remaining fourth to Robert Allen and Lawrence Kip Bonner, sons of Andrew Allen Bonner, deceased.

Milk is a deceptive article so far as weight is concerned. In a herd of fifty cows samples of milk can be taken from individual animals that can show interesting conditions when placed upon the scales. They will show that some cows will yield two pounds to one and a half quarts, while her nearest neighbor produces milk which weighs two pounds to one and one-half pints. It does not seem to make much difference what the breed is or how much milk they produce. The milk is a little lighter in summer than it is in winter. It is hardly possible to find a dozen cows whose milk will weigh alike, but when mixed if there are not too many in the lot that give very heavy milk, it will weigh out two pounds to a good full quart every time.

We have been asked if baby beef from cattle twelve to twenty-four months old, well fattened, is esteemed as highly as that from animals six to eighteen months older. We let Mr. Armour answer this question: "Baby beef is very popular. On account of age, the quality is probably not so good as that of older stock. The consensus of opinion among retailers is that it can be cut to better advantage and there is less waste. It has probably not been in supply equal to the demand, and this has affected its price. Range men in the past few years have been putting a great many pure-bred Hereford and Shorthorn holls in their herds, making it possible to produce good baby beef in a short time, and the demand for it is growing continually."

No man can tell what the future of the beef trade is going to be. The consumption of meats in the United States amounts to 11,000,000 pounds or 147 per capita. Of this 5,000,000 pounds may be called beef, 4,000,000 pounds of pork and 2,000,000 pounds of mutton. The consumption of mutton in the United States is going to be a feature in the beef market, and we would not be at all surprised to see the amount of beef consumed stand at about a fixed point, such as it is now, and the consumption of mutton come up very rapidly. The increase in the holdings of sheep feeders in the United States is perhaps the most serious menace with which the beef producers have to contend. Pork is coming up on account of high beef and the country seems full of hogs with cheap corn on which to fatten them.

Soon the pigs will be sent out to hustle for a living in the stubble fields. The majority of farmers send their hogs to the fields to live as best they may for the next month. The fields and hogs of to-day have changed. The stable of grain cut by an improved reaper and without a tree or shrub is no longer a feast of fat things. In the dry, hot season the pigs find more discomfort than feed when sent out as gleaners. Older ones may hold their own, but the spring pigs as a rule lose flesh. Many farmers keep their pigs on the stable until it is turned under and fall seedling hogs. They will be used to advantage in harvesting a short crop of wheat, as there are this year many acres which will not pay to cut. With certain precautions the pigs can be profitably used as harvesters of short wheat and oats.

The Iowa Agricultural College had a collection of Shorthorn steers at the Omaha Exposition that attracted no little attention. There were ten head in all, five of them pure-bred and the rest grades. The average weight of the ten head just before they were loaded at Ames was 1425 pounds, and according to the exhibition classification they all entered as yearlings. None of them would be two years old until the last week in October. The three pure bred steers (including the winner of the sweepstakes) that were bred on the college farm were out of cows with butter records averaging 300 pounds. One of the good ones of the bunch was out of a pure-bred Shorthorn cow that last year, when ten years old, made a record of 312 pounds of butter, and her steer calf weighed 1500 pounds, though not two years old until October 19th.

Not in years has it been possible to contemplate so satisfactory a condition of all branches of stock-breeding and stock-farming. It has passed into a proverb that each branch of this great industry has its ups and downs, and generally these extremes are represented at the same time in different branches of the trade. Each industry has had its day. The flockmaster has had occasion from the depths of depression to view the prosperity of the cattleman or the horseman, and again these conditions have been reversed. But now the pendulums of society have caught the swing in unison, and the uplift is felt in every branch of the great industry. No occasion exists for envy, for jealousy. No man is saying to his neighbor: "It's your turn now; it will be mine next." All alike are sharing in the improved demand at improved prices. The quickened pulse runs through all avenues of the trade, until even the fine-wool men and the horsemen—who alike have sounded the very depths of depression—find themselves borne along in the rushing current that is bringing new life and activity. The star of stock-farming is now in the ascendant.

Exhibits for the State Fair will be carried to Sacramento and returned by the railroad company free of charge.

[BY THE GREEN 'UN.]

The California Jockey Club will begin its racing season six weeks earlier than usual, having announced that the gates will be thrown open at Oakland September 21st, the week following the State Fair at Sacramento. I hope that the Directors of the Stockton, San Jose, Salinas, Fresno and Los Angeles District Associations will not fall over in a fit at this announcement and be carried away with the idea that the Jockey Club's meeting will ruin theirs. It will do nothing of the kind, unless the aforesaid directors sit supinely down and allow it to. In the first place the meeting at Oakland is entirely devoted to the running brigade, while the district fairs not only furnish good purses for the runners, but are the only associations, outside the P. C. T. H. B. A. that hang up any money at all for the harness horses. Consequently all the owners of trotters and pacers will attend the district fairs, and will be accompanied by many owners of thoroughbreds who will consider their opportunities of winning a purse or two are greater on the country tracks than they will be at Oakland. There need, therefore, be no fear on the part of the district fair people in regard to their racing programs, as there will be horses enough and to spare to provide first class sport for those who attend. As for the attendance, the people who pay their money as they pass through the gates at the district meetings are nearly all residents of the town and district where the fair is being held. The amount of money taken in at the country fair from tickets sold to visitors from San Francisco is not enough to pay one of the purses offered during the week, and nine-tenths of it comes from patrons of the trotting and pacing races. The followers of the runners do not attend the country fairs as a rule. Some years ago I had the honor of acting as one of the officials at one of California's best district meetings. That was when the fairs were at their best and gate receipts were always large. During the fair one day our board of directors ran two excursions—one from San Francisco, the other from points in our own county. The San Francisco excursion was a dead loss, but twenty tickets being sold, while the local excursion brought eight hundred people to the race track gate and the attendance that day was over 4000. The proper thing for the district boards to do is to ignore the fact that there will be racing in the metropolis and make an extra effort to draw their home people to their meetings. The harness programs are already made up and the Santa Rosa meeting has given plenty of evidence that they will be first class. I hope there is not a district association that has selected a week after the State Fair for its meeting, that will show the least concern because racing will be held in Oakland at the same time. It will really benefit the district fairs in this: the gang of touts that are always such a nuisance at any meeting they attend will flock to the metropolis and the country towns will be better off by reason of their absence. Summer racing in San Francisco or Oakland will injure the district fairs but very little.

Sam Hoy, of Winters, has, in my opinion, one of the best young pacers in America in the four-year-old gelding Kelly Briggs 2:10½. Joe Griffin, of Yolo county, bred this colt which is by Bayswater Wilkes, out of a mare by Algona, the sire of Flying Jib. Bayswater Wilkes is by Sable Wilkes, out of Fanny Bayswater, the thoroughbred mare that is the dam of Senator L. 2:23¼. When Griffin's colt was a yearling he sold him to Sam Hoy for $50 and the latter broke him as a two-year-old. One day when Sam was driving the youngster on his track at Winters, his neighbor Kelly Briggs, who was plowing in an adjoining field, saw him spurt a fast quarter and could not resist the temptation to get a better look at him, so he left his plow in the field, got on the fence and watched Sam go by with the two-year-old. Briggs' expression of admiration were so earnest that Hoy complimented him by bestowing on the colt the name of Kelly Briggs. In his first start at Santa Rosa Kelly Briggs won his race in straight heats in 2:10½ and 2:11½ and with only one day to rest started on Thursday against Clipper and Daedalion the two fastest sons of Diahlo. Kelley Briggs was a little sore, but he was a contending horse in every heat and his positions in the summary of the race were 2-2-3-3. He was only beaten a half length the first heat in 2:09¼. I look for Kelly Briggs to get a record of 2:05 or better within another year, and no gamer horse ever started in a race.

It would be a grand thing for harness racing on the Coast if a regular circuit could be arranged for harness horses alone, so that the tracks could be worked and prepared especially for speed at those gates. Every fast record helps the harness horse breeding industry, and adds to the value of harness horses. If our district tracks could be put in the condition the Eastern tracks are kept in, there would be more sales made to eastern buyers every year.

If the trotters and pacers fail to make as fast time during the remainder of the circuit as was made at Santa Rosa, I hope the newspaper fellows won't draw the conclusion therefrom that the Santa Rosa track is short. By official measurement it is two or three feet over a mile. The reason they make fast time there is because for two years the track has been especially prepared for the trotters. At all the other district meetings there will be running races, and as a consequence the track will be quite heavy next the rail, and the trotter or pacer that wants firm footing will have to take the overland route. At Oakland the track is never fast for trotters and though the Golden Gate Association is putting lots of work on it, at least twelve feet in width next the pole is cut up for the runners. I hardly think the Santa Rosa records can be equalled there. It is the same on all the tracks throughout the circuit, although in most places the strip cut up for the runners is not quite so wide.

I don't believe there has ever been a two year old trotter in California that brought more congratulations to an owner than Eula Mac, the McKinney filly owned by President D. E. Knight of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Mr. Knight bred and raised this filly and her dam, Balance All, by Brigadier. Balance All is also the dam of Lyncal 2:23, by Lynnmont, and her little two-year-old daughter with a record of 2:27½ in her first race promises to be a 2:10 trotter in time. No better gaited one ever wore a harness and after her maiden race her owner's hand was grasped by nearly every horseman at Santa Rosa and he was congratulated on owning one of the best youngsters ever led in California. Mr. Knight is one of those grand old men who is respected for his noble character, loved for his kindness and generosity, and honored for his strict integrity and uprightness in all the walks of life. He breeds and races harness horses from a pure love of the sport and the thousand congratulations he has received were right from the hearts of his friends and admirers.

HORSE RACING A MANILA SPORT.

It isn't all fighting in Manila. There is some fun as well, and one of the features of relaxation there is horseracing, which would indicate that after all the Filipinos will ultimately turn into good American citizens.

To be sure the sport, as conducted there differs greatly from the ways of the United States. The horses are small, the distances long and the weights great, but still the "gee-gees run 'round" and that gives a chance for excitement and betting. The following is from a description sent to this city by J. D. Teesdale, and contains both information and interest. It may also suggest a new line of enterprise for American horse owners when the war in the Philippines is ended, if it ever is. In part he says:

"The animals that took part were all native ponies, originally of Chinese stock, as are all the ponies in the Philippines. The animals that race are just the same as those that are driven in the carremtas about the city of Manila, without any difference in breeding or anything of the kind.

"The track is a turf one the rail being made of bamboo, poles and all, and only one rail. On one occasion an animal was crowded on to the rail, and went down the rail for about thirty yards.

"The horses run with the left shoulder to the pole, the reverse to the way they run in the States. The track is oval in shape and a little less than three-quarters of a mile in length. There is no wire at the winning post, but the post is somewhat on the plan of the English winning posts. There is a large grandstand, a little lower than the American ones, and, of course, a band of music. The method of starting is similar to the method in the States, using two red flags. Notwithstanding the fact that the horses run with their right shoulder to the rail, the jockeys hold the reins in the left and the whip in the right hand.

"The distances these small creatures run and the weight they carry seem enough to make an Anglo-Saxon blush. No wonder it takes them so long to go the distances they run. The ponies stand from twelve to thirteen hands high—that is, from forty-eight to fifty-two inches in height and are marked on the program by inches, not by hands. There seem to be few handicaps; as a rule they carry weight for inches instead of age. I see that there is one race called the Union Club in which ponies standing fifty inches carry, according to their last performance, 134, 138, 135, 139 and 140 pounds. The race is a mile and a quarter. The Derby run on Thursday last in a torrent of rain, which had been falling for two hours previous to the race, is two and a quarter miles for ponies, all except one standing fifty inches, the exception forty-nine inches, all ages, the fifty inch ponies carrying 134 pounds, the forty-nine inch one carrying 133 pounds.

"In most of the races height alone is considered, ponies standing forty eight inches carrying 132; forty-nine, 133; fifty, 134; fifty-one, 135; fifty-two, 136.

"Three-quarters of a mile is the shortest race; the distances are from that to two and a quarter miles (three times around the track), and the weights never less than 132, almost always 134.

"The times, as I took them, were: One mile, 2:15; one and a quarter miles, 2:58; one and a quarter miles, 2:59; one and a half miles, 3:35; and three-quarters of a mile, 1:45."

CLOSE OF SANTA ROSA MEETING.

Complete Official Summaries of the Week's Trotting and Pacing Events.

Friday brought out a large attendance and the racing was up to the high mark of the previous days. Gnycare, by Guy Wilkes and Echora Wilkes, by Nutwood Wilkes, had a friendly match that each mare might obtain a record. Echora won the first heat in 2:18 1/2 and Gnycare the next two in 2:18 1/2 and 2:19 1/2.

Waldstein Jr., Rubeto, Aunt Sally, Rste H., Rajah and Volita were scratched in the second event on the program, which was a purse for two-year-old pacers. N. L. B., Rey del Diablo and Daken D., were starters. N. L. B. had a lot of speed but his chestnut half brother defeated him the first heat. Lsflerty behind N. L. B. made a drive in the stretch for it but couldn't quite reach Diablo. The quarter was .35, the half 1:09 1/2. At the three-quarters Rey del Diablo went by N. L. B. and held the lead to the wire in 2:23 1/2.

The second heat N. L. B. won easy in 2:23 1/2. During the interval between the second and third heats Mabel McKinney was being jogged on the track when she suddenly stopped and hobbled along on three legs, holding her left foreleg out in much the same way one sees a dog do when badly hurt. Investigation showed a sprained tendon.

For the third heat of the two-year-old pace, the two Diablos went out together with N. L. B. leading slightly at the quarter pole. As they straightened into the back stretch they were on even terms. They raced like a team to the three-quarter pole and into the head of the stretch. There Diablo gave it up and the colt with the initials wsked in the time being 2:28 1/2. Daken D. was badly outclassed but he drilled along and secured third money.

The 2:16 class trot was a cherner. Mabel McKinney was drawn on account of her accident. Nine horses were left, Addison, Sable Francis, Our Lucky, Dollican, Neeretta, Mamie Riley, Bonsaline, Shelby and Ned Thorne. They all had supporters in the pool box and it was one of the heaviest betting races of the meeting. Theron, Dr. Fresse and Lynwood had been scratched. The first heat Thorne had the pole and he went away like he meant business. He was first in the quarter in .33 1/2. There Neerata joined him and a great drive ensued. They reached the half in 1:06, where the black mare passed the Topham gelding. At the three-quarters the leaders were joined by a couple from the second tier and a ding-dong finish took place down the stretch between Neerette and Our Lucky, but the Neernt mere won in 2:13 1/2, Thorne third, Mame Riley and Bonsaline distanced.

After repeated scoring in the second heat, starter Gamble instructed them to score by the pole horse. Most of them tried to do so, but when they were sent off, Addison (who has a harrel of speed) was going a two minute clip. He shot past the others, and took the pole, leading at the quarter, half and three-quarters, at which point Our Lucky and Neeretta went off him. This was another case of whip end cheer, but the grandson of Anteeo lasted the longest and won in 2:11 1/2, Neeretta second and Our Lucky third. Previous to the second heat the hettors had installed Our Lucky favorite in the auctions.

Before the third heat it was even money Neeretta and she won, being chased out as before by Addison and Our Lucky, time, 2:12 1/2. Neeretta is one of the most trustworthy young mares that has been seen for several seasons. She is game, level-headed and has extreme speed. Watch out for her "down the line" and if she steps ell right race-goers will see her step a mile in about 2:08 before the entum leaves fall. The first heat of the special pace between Gaff Topsail, Primrose, Cherokee Prince, Capt. Hackett and Winnie Wilkes, was captured by the stallion with the Indian name in 2:18, with Primrose second.

The second heat, they paced the first half in 1:03 1/2. At the three-quarters Gaff Topsail, Minnie Wilkes and Cherokee Prince were together, the Vallejo stallion winning in 2:19.

The third heat Topsail won easy in 2:22 1/2, Cherokee Prince forcing him out down the stretch.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 19.

Long before the races were called on Saturday, a very large crowd had gone through the gates. The grand stand was a bank of color, from whose midst the orchestra droned "Just Oae Girl" and "After the Sun Went Down." In the field, carriages were from three to four tiers deep, extending from the dragate up to the seven-eighths pole. Across the track road horses of all sorts and kinds shoved their heads over the fence in order that they, as well as the occupants of the vehicles behind them, might obtain an unintercepted view of the finishes. In short, such a crowd has not been seen upon any interior track for many a year, and it really looked like the old days had come again.

Much Better 2:07 went a couple of exhibition miles and Wing and Noonan, bicyclists, rode a tandem a slow mile, but worked a fast half in .59 1/2. The performance of Silkwood was not up to the mark. He is a grand old horse, with a lot of sense, but he lacks considerable training yet before he can be justly termed a "guidless wonder." He paced a mile in 2:36, but finished in a slow gallop. He needs considerably more drilling at that way of going.

The first race of the day was the 2:30 class trot, three in five. For this event, Juan Chico, Eleanor Ann, Dos Minutos, Ruby N., Lottie Parks and Psyche were entered. Psyche was favorite. Ruby N. had the pole and she passed the quarter in the lead in .35. She and Parks raced on even terms down the back stretch, Parks slightly in the lead at the half in 1:09 1/2. In a drive down the stretch Parks won with Ruby N. at her throatlatch. Time, 2:19 1/2.

For the second heat Psyche and Parks sold at even money in the hooks and Psyche favorite in the auctions. When they got away Parks led to the quarter in .34 1/2 and was first at the half in 1:08. Around the upper turn Psyche came with a rush and won in a jog in 2:17 1/2, Parks being distanced on account of the air blowing out of one of her sulky wheels.

The third heat Psyche won in 2:19, with Eleanor Ann second and Ruby N. third. Eleanor gave her a tussle in the stretch, but the Spreckels mare won easy.

The fourth heat Eleanor Ann went to the quarter in .35 end to the half in 1:10, with Psyche second. They reached the three-quarters in 1:45 and from there to the wire McGregor and Donathan made a hard drive, Eleanor Ann leading first, with Psyche, on a break, at her shoulder. Eleanor Ann got the decision, Ruby N. second, Juan Chico third, Psyche set back to fourth position for breaking: Time, 2:20 1/2.

Psyche went away on the outside the fifth heat, Eleanor Ann being first at the quarter. At the half Psyche assumed the lead, reaching the three-quarters in 1:43 1/2. The Illustricos mare made an effort in the stretch, but the Copid mare was too fast and won the heat, race and first money in 2:17 1/2.

During the interval between the third and fourth heats of the trot the 2:15 class pacers were called out. The field was so large, however, that after repeated scorings, during the progress of which the sulky occupied by young Tryon (who was driving Primrose) was hitched onto, Tryon being thrown to the ground and his collar bone broken. He scrambled to his feet, however, and caught the msre before she could get away. Don got cranky, Goldy sulked and refused to go up the track, while several others had to be turned around by the grooms. This sort of thing continued until time for the last heat of the trot, when they were all sent to the stable. Chas. David, Clipper, Col. Benton and Sopria R. were scratched and De Bernardi Basler was drawn before the race. This left ten horses, all out for the money. Arthur W., Ketchum, Dictatress, Harvey Mac, Goldy, Primrose, Don, Fannie Putnam, Deceiver and Belle W. In the auctions Don brought $15, Putnam $7 and the field $8.

After a tiresome lot of scoring they got away for the first heat. Harvey Mac was at the pole. The big stud Arthur W. stepped the first quarter in .32 1/2, the half in 1:05, the three-quarters in 1:38 where Jeffries with Putnam moved up. After a whipping finish the stellation won on the Christmas mare in 2:11 1/2, Don third.

They scored eight or ten times before they finally got the word in the second heat. Arthur was first at the quarter and kept his lead to the half in 1:04. Around the upper turn Putnam came again and led at the three-quarters pole. Here Goldy made a bid and a red hot finish ensued, Putnam first by a length in 2:14 1/2.

For the third heat Putnam was even money against the field, in the auctions, and 3 to 5 in the hooks, while Don was even money and Arthur W. 2 to 1. When they were sent away Putnam paced the quarter in .33, the half in 1:05, the three-quarters in 1:39 1/2 and the mile in 2:14. Don second Arthur W. third.

Six entries were scratched in the three-year-old trot for the 2:30 class, leaving Miss Barnaby, Lena A., Blanch T. and Tia Juana as starters. Miss Barnaby had a lot more speed than the others and won the first two heats and race as she pleased in 2:22 1/2 and 2:21 1/2, with Lena A. second both times, Chas. G. was drawn and Tia Juana and Blanch T. were distanced the first heat.

THE NEW ENGLAND FUTURITY.

California Brad Three Year Olds Finish First and Second for the Big Stake.

The New England Futurity, a stake of $10,000 for three-year-olds was trotted at Readville, Massachusetts, last Monday, the first day of the Grand Circuit meeting at that place and first and second money went to two California bred youngsters. Idolita was the winner in three straight heats easily in 2:16½, 2:15½ and 2:15½ and Mamie W. got second money. Exstasy, the Baron Wilkes filly that took a pacing record of 2:10½ last year, and was converted to the diagona gait this spring, was the favorite, even after Idolita had won two heats. Idolita left his field at the first quarter in each heat and finished as he pleased.

Idolita was bred at Palo Alto Stock Farm and is by Mendocino (3) 2:19½, son of Electioneer and Mano, by Piedmont. The dam of Idolita is Edith, dam of Hummer, by Georgia Wilkes; second dam Edith Carr, by Clark Chief; third dam Easter Carr, by Edwin Forrest; fourth dam by imported Margrave; fifth dam Kitty Muse, by Shakespeara. The colt was sold at the Blue Ribbon Sale at Cleveland, Ohio, in May 1898, going to the nod of Senator Jones of New Hampshire for $4800. In September of the same year he started in the two year old division of the New England Futurity at Readville. There were five starters in this event, the filly Crystalline, by Onward, taking the first heat in 2:24½. Idolita then won the two succeeding heats getting a record of 2:21½ in the last heat which stamped him as a fast and game youngster. He did not start again that year. His first start this season, was believe, was in the stake he won last Monday. Idolita's winning both divisions of the stake made his owner richer by $8200; first money in the two-year-old race being $1200, and in the three year division $7000.

The filly Mamie W. that took second money in the stake this year, is by Wildunt, out of Mamie, by Hambletonian Jr. 1882; second dam the thoroughbred mare Gilda, by imp. Mengo. Mamie W. has a record of 2:22½, got at Rigby this year where she won the first heat of the 2:30 trot. She was owned at the time by G. Hyda of Hartford who sold her after that race to Herbert Gray of Haverhill, Mass., for $5000. By winning second position in the futurity this year she placed $1700 to the credit of her new owner.

Charter Oak to be Decided Next Week.

There are sixteen horses named to start in the historic Charter Oak $10,000 purse at Hartford next week, and there never was a time since this great pioneer fixed event was inaugurated in 1833 when it promised more from a racing standpoint. Every horse appears to have a chance, and Manager Fesig looks for a grand race. It may not be generally known that the Charter Oak was for years the only fixed annual event on the turf for so large an amount of money, while at present there are but three others which equal it in value. These are the Merchants and Manufacturers' Stake, at Detroit; the Massachusetts, at Boston, and the Transylvania, at Lexington. The two last-named were but recently raised from the $5000 to the Charter Oak limit.

Since the Charter Oak was established the winners have been: 1833, Director, fastest heat, 2:18; 1834, Herry Wilkes, 2:17; 1835, Joa Davis, 2:18½; 1836, Oliver K., 2:16½; 1837, Patron, 2:17; 1838, Spoford, 2:18½; 1839, Alcyon, 2:16½; 1890, Prince Regant, 2:19; 1891, Nightingale (Hamlin's), 2:19½; 1892, Nightingale (Anderson's), 2:13; 1893, Harriatta, 2:12; 1894, Ralph Wilkes, 2:10½; 1895, John Nolen, 2:09½.

Racing at Santa Maria.

At a meeting of the directors of the 37th District Agricultural Society, Santa Barbara county, held last week, it was decided to not hold a fair this fall, but instead to meet the entire appropriation of $1200 for next year, when with this is raised locally will permit of a fair being held that will be both a credit to the section and to the directors. But notwithstanding this move of the directors, the biggest race meeting ever before known in that section will be held at Santa Maria this fall, for which purpose several hundred dollars have already been raised, and more to be heard from. The track is being put in readiness, and there are now a number of horses in the stalls. The date of the races will be arranged later, but an endeavor will be made to have them at a time which will not conflict with the meeting at any other place, thus insuring the presence of many and the very best horses.

WILLIAM B. FESIG, Secretary of Charter Oak Park, Hartford, Conn., makes the following announcement: Charter Oak Park has the distinction of first opening a two-minute harness racing class. It has been decided to change the 2:04 pacing class to a two-minute, purse $2000, for the coming Grand Circuit meeting. Star Pointer goes against the world's record in a special event; he will not be entered in the two-minute class. But it is expected that John R. Gentry, Joe Patchen, Searchlight, Anaconda and possibly others will compete.

THE GREATEST FAIR ever held in California will begin at Sacramento one week from Monday next under the auspices of the State Agricultural Society. This is no idle assertion, but is founded on the fact that there are more entries in all the departments at both park and pavilion than were ever made before in the history of the organization.

the effect of this letter has already been shown, and exhibitors are busy in the Pavilion getting their booths in shape. As yet it is too early to give a descriptive idea of what the Pavilion will look like, but as every inch of floor space has been taken, and as the management demands that all exhibits shall be artistically mounted, there is ample assurance that the approaching fair will be one of the most attractive ever held in the State.

THE GOLDEN GATE FAIR will open to-day at Oakland track with a program of six running races. If the excitement incident to the home coming of the First Regiment of California Volunteers does not prove so great that the minds of the people are entirely taken up therewith, a large attendance should be seen at the track across the hay. On Monday, however, the series of receptions to the soldiers will be at an end and during the week of excellent racing which has been provided, the beautiful grounds of the California Jockey Club will present very much the appearance of holidays during the regular racing season.

- First Race—For maiden two-year-olds, purse $250, five furlongs. Second Race—For maiden three-year-olds and over, purse $250, $50 to second and $25 to third, six furlongs. Third Race—For three-year-olds and over that have not started and won in 1899, purse $250, six furlongs.

A GOOD OPPORTUNITY is offered some live horsemen to consign a carload or two of horses to the Splan & Newgass sale, which begins at Chicago November 6th. Chicago is undoubtedly one of the best horse markets in the world. In fact it is the best, take it day in and day out through the year. High class road, work and carriage horses always bring good prices there.

THE CALIFORNIA JOCKEY CLUB has announced that the fall and winter meeting of 1899-1900 will begin at Oakland race track on Thursday, September 21st next. This is some six weeks earlier than the season generally opens here. Secretary Milroy said this week: "We will be in readiness for our opening on September 21st, and there will be no dearth of horses."

THE NEVADA STATE FAIR will be held at Reno during the week following the California State Fair at Sacramento. There is one of the best of tracks at Reno and the race meeting there is always a success financially and otherwise. A good lot of purses have been hung up for runners and harness horses full particulars of which will be found in our advertising columns to-day.

A NEW PUBLICATION is the journal of Veterinary Science, the first number of which has reached our table. It is a monthly magazine, edited by R. Alexander Archibald, D. V. S., of this city, and under the business management of F. J. Sinclair. The new journal is devoted to the "elevation and advancement of the veterinary profession" and the first number is a credit to both editor and manager.

NOTES OF THE MEETING.

Cresceus showed himself a vary game horse in his race. The first heat Scott Hudson chased him out with Louisa Mac, and the second heat Dare Devil was sent after him, while in the third heat Spear with Belle J. tried to drive him off his feet.

Sandy Smith drove Venus II. in her race Wednesday and did well with her.

As will be seen by the summary of the race Owyhee won he beat some of the best horses of the year very handily. It was $100 for Owyhee and $125 for the field before the start.

Frank Bogash sold favorite in the 2:04 pace at $100 to $65 for the field, but Anaconda was unbeatable. The first heat Chahalis lapped him out and the next two Bogash reced him from wire to wire.

Lady of the Manor, the chestnut mare by Mambrino King, out of Princess Chimes, by Chimes, second dam Estabella (dam of Hair-at-Law 2:05 1/2), by Alcantara, now holds the world's record for pacing mares, by her mile in 2:04 1/2 in the second heat of the 2:07 pace on Friday.

RESIDENT and visiting horsemen are assured of courteous treatment at Kapp & Streets, 1200 Market street. The Year Book is there for consultation and everything conduces to make your visit a pleasant one.

Pleasanton Track for Harness Horses.

There has been considerable talk to the effect that the Pleasanton track under the new management, will be made a training ground for running horses, but the following from the Pleasanton Bulletin of last Saturday, disproves this rumor.

During the past week plans have been drawn up for two hundred end eighty new stalls, a fine club house, to contain rooms for both sleeping and dining purposes, a fine large hay warehouse of 300 tons capacity, a large grand stand and judges' stand beside several minor buildings.

It is further the intention of the owners to build a high board fence around the track some ten feet high, widen the track two feet so to bring it to the regulation tracks end if it be necessary the track will be further widened.

The new stalls to be constructed will be built in sections of ten end so constructed that they will face each way, making twenty in one building. They are to be twelve by fourteen feet in size, and so built that the within will be quite comfortable.

In conversation with C. B. Charlesworth Wednesday he informed us that the contract for the buildings would vary likely he let within a few days and work of pulling down the old sheds be commenced immediately and that they intend to have everything in proper shape and condition for the return of the harness horses now out on the different circuits.

"This harness horse subject cannot be dwelt upon any too strong," said he, "for many have it that the track will be devoted to running horses when it is not so. Our whole efforts are to be put in for the harness horses and they alone will be given the preference over the runners."

As soon as the buildings are completed a deep well will be sunk and water pipes be laid over the entire grounds for watering purposes end a beautiful lawn and flower garden planted to give cheer and beauty to the place.

"As to the coursing perk reported to occupy the center of the track that we do not intend to consider, as it will require all our attention for the accommodation of the harness horses. Should at some future date when everything is in proper shape we find that such would pay we may perhaps then do something in that line, but not at present; our whole time will now be put to the harness horses.

Driving Club Races.

The Golden Gate Fair Association has hung up two purses of $300 each for horses owned and driven by members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association, said races to take place during the meeting to be held at Oakland race track next week. Entries to these races closed last Saturday, and are as follows:

2:30 Class, Trotting and Pacing-Mr. Swett's Steve S., Mr. Stewart's Billy McKinley, Mr. Holland's Elsie, Mr. Gommatt's Pardee, Mr. W. C. Hammerton's Gen. Smith, Mr. J. W. Hammerton's Alfred H., Dr. Miller's Lady Falrose, Mr. Richardson's Ebel H.

2:20 Class, Trotting and Pacing-Mr. Dunlap's King Cadenza, Mr. Berry's Fanadma, Mr. O'Kane's Roan Wilkes, Mr. Mizner's Athavis, Mr. Newman's Maud Newman, Mr. Richardson's Pesnuts.

As the horses entered in these two races are very evenly matched and there is an intense spirit of friendly rivalry between the members of the Driving Club, these races will certainly result in the very hottest kind of contests and will be strong drawing cards for the days on which they are pulled off. Both races are best two in three heats.

THE uncertainty of race horse values was shown recently in a very striking manner and the owner of the pacing mare Edith W., 2:06 1/2, was the man who suffered by the change. The Kansas man believed he had a world beater in the fast daughter of Ben Lomond, Jr., and freely offered to wager any amount of money that she could heat any pacing mare on the turf, or that she could heat the world's record of pacing mares by a good big margin.

On the morning of Edith W.'s Detroit race N. W. Hbinger offered the Kansas man $10,000 for the mare which offer was contemptuously refused. That afternoon she went down in defeat and the next week at Cleveland she was so lame that she had to be thrown out of training. The Kansas man's refusal of Hbinger's offer was most fortunate for the Connecticut plunger, but the Western man will probably do a lot of thinking over the uncertainties of the racing business.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES. Absolutely Cures Splints, Spavins, Windpuffs, Bunches, etc. Price $1.50. W. B. EDDY & CO., WHITEHALL, N. Y. TRY IT.

Sulky Notes.

THE Breeders held a great meeting.

GOOD harness racing is still popular in California.

THIRTEEN records below 2:15 were made at Santa Rosa.

ROAD horses handled and for sale. Orders taken. Address D. R. Misner, 1309 Fulton street, city.

KNAP MCCARTHY is confident that he can drive Searchlight 2:03 1/2 a mile in two minutes this fall.

BOUNCER reduced her record to 2:09 at Readville this week. She won her race in straight heats.

THE Keating horses have not been in front as often as last year, but they have won over $12,000 so far.

JOHN DICKERSON has given two stallions records better than 2:08—Arion 2:07 1/2 and Fred Kohl 2:07 1/2.

ANACONDA 2,04 1/2, injured an ankle slightly at Columbus and was not quite himself at Buffalo, it is said.

ANDY McDOWELL is no longer with Penn Valley Farm, having been succeeded last week by Ben Walker.

ALL the blood lines that appear in the pedigree of Star Pointer are found in the pedigree of The Maid 2:06 1/2.

TRA JUANA, the three-year-old brown filly by Gossiper, that started at Santa Rosa, is out of Myrtle 2:13 1/2, by Anteo.

WHEN Tommy Britton won his race in Columbus in 2:03 1/2, 2:08 1/2, 2:08 1/2, he stepped the fastest three heats ever stepped by a stallion.

THE three-year-old filly Mamie W., by Wildout, recently worked a mile in 2:15 1/2. She entered in all the big three-year-old stakes.

TOM MARSH has won money in twelve races this season out of 15 starts with the Meplewood farm horses. The winnings foot up nearly $5300.

PITTSBURG will seek admission to the grand circuit next year. Time was when the Pennsylvania city was one of the star members of the big ring.

ABE MILLER, Buffalo, owner of Agitato 2:09 and Lolita 2:17, has purchased the good gray trotter, Success 2:10 1/2, from Du Bois Bros., Denver, Col.

THE Kentucky Prince mare Marguerite is dead. She was the dam of Marguerite A. 2:12 1/2, Axworthy 2:15 1/2, King Darlington 2:16 and Col Axtell 2:30.

ELEVEN new standard trotters, ten new standard pacers, seven trotters and five pacers with reduced records, is a pretty good showing for the first week of the California Circuit.

FRANK W. COVEY, Superintendent of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, who is also one of the Directors of the State Agricultural Society, will act as starter of the harness races during the State Fair.

SAMUEL ELMORE, of Astoria, recently lost a handsome black three-year-old colt by McKinney, out of a mare by Altamont. The colt had its leg broken in an accident and had to be destroyed.

C. A. DURFEE, the owner of McKinney, is the owner of Clipper 2:09 1/2, by Diablo 2:09 1/2. Mr. Durfee purchased Clipper of H. W. Meek before the race where he won and got his record last week at Santa Rosa.

COPE Stinson's three-year-old Futurity colt Dr. John, by Oro Wilkes, stepped a mile last week at Cleveland in 2:22 1/2, and a half in 1:08 1/2. It was the third mile the colt had ever had in his life and the second mile of the season.

CONEX 2:07 1/2, was a starter in the 2:25 pace at Readville this week, but was outside the money. Shade On was also back among the "also started" crowd. The race was won by Billy Andrews in straight heats, the best time being 2:10.

AT a sale of trotters in Europe last month thirty-three head were disposed of for $25,000. The stallion Wilburn M. by Wilton fetched $3500, and $1050 was paid for the broodmare Lyre by Arthurton with a foal by Kremlin at her foot.

SID DURFEE, the brown gelding by Durfee, out of Italia, by Sidney, that James Faris, Jr., took East to the Cleveland sale last May, won a race at McKee's Rock, Pennsylvania, August 8th, and took a record of 2:20 1/2 in the fourth heat.

JUPE 2:10 1/2, by Allie Wilkes, will be sent against the stallion record during the Charter Oak meeting. Owner Snell recently drove the horse a mile in 2:10, last quarter in 31 1/2 seconds, a most notable performance, as Mr. Snell is 73 years of age.

JOHN W. DALEY, of Mt. Kisco Farm, will sell at the Fasig-Tipton November sale, at the Madison Square Garden, all his trotting stock, about 100 head, including the great stallion Oro Wilkes one of the most promising young sires on the continent.

WHO IS IT's record is now 2:10 1/2. He won the 2:12 trot at Readville last Wednesday in straight heats, the time being 2:10 1/2 and 2:12. He defeated Queechy, Owyhee, Kate McCracken and ten others among them Carley Carne. Who Is It will get a record several seconds below 2:10 this year barring accidents.

VAN BOKKELEN was at Davenport, Iowa, with Ellert an Aggregate during the week ending August 19th. Aggregate was outside the money in the 2:30 trot, but Ellert got third money in the free-for-all won by Tommy Britton in 2:08 1/2, 2:09 1/2 and 2:13 1/2. His summary was 4-3-2.

A VERY peculiar incident occurred in the first heat of the 2:25 trot at the Des Moines, Iowa, meeting. Kiwashee, driven by Matt Bibbins, in front of Woodford K., threw a shoe which struck Woodford squarely in the head. Both went to a standstill break and were distanced.

OF the new standard performers that got records at Santa Rosa Diablo sired 5, McKinney 2, Cupid 2, Hambletonian Wilkes 1, Secretary 1, Athadon 1, Illustrious 1, Conductor 1, Paolo 1, Baywater Wilkes 1, Wildnut 1, Whips 1, Notwood Wilkes 1, Guy Wilkes 1, and San Diego.

JOE PATCHEN beat John R. Gentry over the half mile track at Goshen, New York, last Wednesday. The first was a head heat between the pacers in 2:08, and then Patchen had a rather easy thing of it in 2:09 and 2:11 1/2. Gentry could not have been right to be beaten in that time.

THE owners of the pacer Arlington, that took a record of 2:07 1/2 over the half mile track at Youngstown, O., recently, have deserted the bush for the bigger game, and will start the new candidate at Hartford. It is also expected that he will be seen at the Empire City Trotting Club's meeting.

WHEN W. B. Fasig came to California in 1897 he saw Owyhee at Oakwood Park Farm and went home filled with enthusiasm over the colt, then a three-year-old. The colt was decidedly off last season, but his performances this season show that Mr. Fasig had the youngster sized up all right.

WILLIAM LAMBERT, Frank Wright, Geo. H. Clark; Relp Van Voorhees, W. J. Irvine, M. H. Wilson and A. W. Bruner are Sacramento citizens who will probably enter their roadsters in a race to be trotted during the State Fair, and to which none but Sacramento owned horses will be eligible, owners to drive.

ORANGE COUNTY, New York, has another top-notch in Fred Kohl 2:07 1/2. He and Stamboul will cut quite a figure in the breeding line from now on. There is only one tick of the watch difference between "their tin-cup" records, while Kohl stands ahead of Stamboul as to race record. One cost his owner $41,000 and the other $2550.

TWO records that have gone glimmering recently are those for seven and nine heat pacing races. The Maid's race at Columbus beat the seven-heat average of that won by Giles Noyes at Terre Haute in 1897, while the nine-heat race record made at Buffalo in 1894, in the race won by Jo He, was beaten in the one at Dover, N. H., won by Dombey Jr.

BYRON EAKENBROCKER, of Los Angeles, has a good three-year-old in Miss Barnabee, by McKinney, out of Belle Amo, by Del Sur. She won her race on the last day of the Santa Rosa meeting so easily, trotting the last heat in 2:21 1/2, that she impressed everyone who saw the performance with the idea that the 2:15 list ought to be within her reach before the season is ended.

JOHN SPLAN has been informed by Mrs. McPhee, of Vienna, that the mare Miss Sidney 2:14 by Sidney, which he bought for her last spring, is proving one of the best trotters on the other side. She recently defeated Dick Miller, Legone and Mabel Moneyenny, trotting a mile and a half at the rate of 2:22 1/2. Minnie Birchwood, that Splan sold to Mrs. McPhee at the same time, has proven a winner.

THE two-year-old black filly Elata, by Dexter Prince, out of Eiden 2:19 1/2, which was bought for $900 from the Palo Alto consignment last May by Daniel Mabaney, is proving more promising than either the $3000 Carrie Caswell and the $2100 Juntorio. She has beaten 2:20 in her work. The four-year-old filly by Dexter Prince, out of Peko 2:11 1/2, that was bought a year ago, has been a mile in 2:13 1/2 and a quarter in 30 1/2 seconds.

THE State Agricultural Society has offered a $500 purse for a double team race, trotters or pacers, to come off during the State Fair. Among the teams that may enter for this race are Randolph Spreckels' Annie Rooney and Marguerite, the Van Da Vanter Stock Farm's Deceiver and Alta Dell, from Seattle, Washington, and Primrose and mate, now in Vet Tryon's string at Oakland. With three or four entries this would make one of the most interesting races of the meeting.

THE pacing mare Smilax 2:21 1/2, by Sidney, out of Ivy (dam of Hibibi), by Buccaneer, second dam Fanny Fern (dam of Gold Leaf 2:11 1/2), by Flaxtail, is one of the fastest roadsters driven on the celebrated New York Speedway. Smilax was bred by the late Count Valensin and is ten years old. Her owner, Alexander Newburger, is always ready to brush with any of the fast ones, and stops at none. Smilax, it is said, can pace a quarter in 30 seconds to a road wagon any time she gets away pacing squarely.

WHEN Gentry beat Searchlight and Joe Patchen at Rochester last week, there was considerable difficulty experienced by President Archer, the starter, in getting them away the first heat. Finally Searchlight and Patchen came down head and head with Gentry fully two lengths behind them, but Andrew nodded for the word and it was given. He beat Searchlight a neck at the finish. The track was slow and the time 2:03 1/2 was considered by the horsemen present as good as 2:01 over a good track.

HEIR-AT-LAW 2:05 1/2, by Mambrino King, who broke a leg below the ankle while romping in the paddock at Village Farm recently, will recover. Dr. John Wende, of Buffalo, placed the leg in a plaster cast, and the valuable animal is mending even more rapidly than was expected. This is not the only misfortune that has befallen the Hamlin family of trotters, for a few days ago a three-year-old sister to The Abbott 2:07 1/2, died suddenly; also her colt by Dare Devil. The mare and colt were valued at $10,000.

FIVE of the get of one stallion, Diablo 2:09 1/2, went into the standard list at the Santa Rosa meeting, viz.: Clipper 2:09 1/2, Daedalio 2:11, Gaff Topсал 2:19, N. L. B. (2) 2:21 1/2 and Rey del Diablo (2) 2:23 1/2. These were all race records. All are pacers and Diablo bids fair to be the champion sire of side-wheelers within a short time. He now has one in the 2:10 list, five in the 2:15 list, and eight with records below 2:24. Two of them made their records as two-year-olds, three as three-year-olds, and none are over five years of age.

ELLOREE 2:08 1/2 is one of the most remarkable trotting mares ever foaled. She was bred to Allerton 2:09 1/2, as a two-year-old and took a record of 2:26 1/2 the same season. When three years old she produced a filly, was bred back to Allerton, was campaigned successfully that fall after her foal was weaned, and took a record of 2:18 in the third heat of a race which she won. She has trotted close to 2:10 to wagon and at a recent Cleveland meeting beat a great field of 2:10 trotters, taking the fourth, fifth and sixth heats in 2:08 1/2, 2:10 1/2 and 2:12.

ENCOURAGED by the success of the recent Grand Circuit meeting, the Columbus, (O) Driving Park Association people have decided to give a fall meeting, which will follow immediately the close at Lexington. The dates chosen are October 17, 18, 19, 20, 24, 25, 26, thus extending over two weeks. There will be fourteen races, best two in three each, for $500, and seven three in five contests for $1000 each. The officials declare that after sounding the sentiments of Grand Circuit horsemen on the subject of the meeting they regard the outlook as decidedly flattering.

ONE of the best races of the week at Santa Rosa was the 2:27 trot which took place on Tuesday and was won by Sibly 8, by Hambletonian Wilkes, out of Bertha, by Carr's Mambrino. Sibly 8 trotted a game race over her positions in the summary show, she being 4-3-2 in first, second and third heat respectively, made a dead heat with Lottie Parks in the fourth, and won the next three. Her record is now 2:16 1/2, which was the time of the dead heat. Sibly 8 is a good looking mare and has speed enough to get a still lower mark, and no gamer animal ever scored for the word on any track.

TWO extra races have been added to the speed program of the State Fair—a $500 free-for-all, double teams, pacers and trotters, mile heats, two in three; the entrance fee to be 5 per cent., 5 per cent. from winners, and the purse to be divided 60, 30 and 10 per cent. The second race, a $300 purse, for single roadsters, to be driven by owners, mile heats, best two in three. The owner may choose a sulky or a four-wheeled vehicle. Terms, 5 per cent. to enter, 5 per cent. from winner; purses to be divided 60, 30 and 10 per cent. Entries will close September 1st, and horses are to be eligible in the 2:22 class.

ANOTHER very strong attraction has been added to the excellent program of the Empire City Trotting Club's September meeting. After much effort Secretary Toman has arranged for a race between the great pacers, Star Pointer 1:59 1/2, John R. Gentry 2:00 1/2, Joe Patchen 2:01 1/2, Searchlight 2:03 1/2 and any others that may desire to come in, as the event is open to all candidates at this style of going. The purse for which these celebrities will do battle is $4000, and the division will be 65, 25 and 15 per cent. The race will be best two in three, a guarantee that every heat will be a race from start to finish. The date on which these notables will come together is Wednesday, September 6th, and as it will be their first and only meeting this year, the result will no doubt constitute the most memorable event of a brilliant season on the trotting turf.

THE American stallion Col. Kuser recently lowered the European trotting record of 2:10 1/2, and in doing so defeated probably the strongest field of harness horses ever seen outside of this country. The race took place at Vienna, and the beaten horses included Que Allen 2:09 1/2, by Champion Medium; Athanio 2:10, by Junio; Cut Glass 2:10 1/2, by Onward, and Legene 2:12 1/2, by Mountain Prince. This performance is nearly a second faster than Col. Kuser's American record, made at Boston in 1895. The new champion of Europe is a brown stallion, nine years old, by Stranger, the son of Goldsmith Maid 2:14, and his dam is Inez, by Jay Gould 2:21 1/2. He was bred by Henry N. Smith, at the Fashion Stud Farm, Trenton, N. J. and was named in honor of a well-known horse fancier of that city. M. Victor Silberer, editor of the Vienna Sport Zeitung, now owns the crack stallion. Col. Kuser is bred very much like Boodle 2:12 1/2, who is by Stranger out of a mare by Jay Gould.

NEERETTA, Geo. W. Ford's black mare by Neerhut that won the 2:16 trot at Santa Rosa, is four years old. She took a record of 2:16 1/2 at Santa Rosa last year in a race won by Mamie Riley, Neeretta winning the second heat, finishing second twice and third once, beating Phoebe Childers, Dolly D., Bertha R., Dos Minutos and Aggregate. She started twice at Oakland previous to the Santa Rosa meeting, but was outside the money. Neeretta was worked in bopples last year as she wanted to pace. She was driven on the road during the winter, but got sick and was turned out. She was taken up in June, jogged on the road again, and on the 11th of July was hitched to a sulky for the first time this year, and driven a mile in 2:36, showing that she had plenty of speed by stepping the last quarter of this mile in less than 33 seconds. She had just five weeks' work prior to starting in her race at Santa Rosa last week. Mr. Ford thought that 2:14 would be speed enough to win the race, and was surprised, after Neeretta had won the first heat in 2:13 1/2, to see her beaten only a neck by Addison the next heat in 2:11 1/2, especially as she was sent away at least three good lengths behind that horse. Ed Lafferty, who drove Addison, thought he had the mare beaten then, thinking she was short of work, but she came back like a fresh horse and beat him in 2:12 1/2. Neeretta is one of the greatest prospects on this Coast, and two heats below 2:10 in a race would not surprise her admirers, who believe she is capable of it whenever she is in shape and strikes a good track. Neeretta was sired by Neerhut 2:12 1/2, son of Albert W. 2:20 and Clyde II., by Nutwood. Her dam is Bess, by Nutford 2:15, who was by Abbottsford 2:19, out of Annie Nutwood, by Nutwood. The second dam of Neeretta was Fanny, by Sierra Nevada, a son of Sultan and a mare by Abbottsford. Neeretta is thus inbred to Nutwood and her dam was inbred to Abbottsford.

Ruled Off at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS (Mo.), Aug. 12—At a meeting of the Board of Racing Stewards held to-day, it was decided to rule Col. William L. Cassidy and Jockey Houck off the turf. Cassidy has been one of the heaviest speculators at the present St. Louis meeting. Judge Murphy obtained evidence that Cassidy bet for a jockey on a horse which the boy was not riding, although he had a mount in the same race. The race was the fifth event of August 1. Jockey Houck had the mount on Parola d'Or, and Col. Cassidy bet $50 for Houck on Jim in the same race.

Since that data some of Houck's races were considered questionable by the judges, and he was suspended. Master Houck is under contract to W. W. Darden, the well known turfman, and he was rather annoyed at the action of the judges in suspending Houck. To prove the boy's integrity he cited an instance where Cassidy bet $50 on Jim for Houck when the boy rode Parola d'Or in the same race. Parola d'Or won from Jim by a nose and Master Houck's $50 bet was lost.

Col. Cassidy admitted doing this. Cassidy also stated when called up in the Houck case that he was in the habit of putting a bat down for any owner, trainer or jockey who could show him he had a chance to win.

The racing stewards have had knowledge of this for over a week, but as Col. Cassidy has the reputation of being a royal good fellow, honest as the day is long, a club member, and liked by all who know him, they have been slow to act. Cassidy, on the other hand, has been defiant and acted as though he cared nothing for the rulings of the racing stewards.

This morning he sent a scorching and fearless letter to Judge Murphy, asking him what right he or any board of racing stewards had to inquire into the acts of a private citizen. This caused immediate action by the stewards.

Col. Cassidy will be sorely missed by the bookies doing business here, as he was one of their best customers. He has retained an attorney and will fight the St. Louis Fair Association to the last ditch.

The well known turfman, Thomas H. Ryan, who had made all preparations to leave Saratoga this evening, was taken seriously ill at his residence this morning with an abscess of the stomach. Ryan's horses, including The Roman, Coal Runner, The Pride, Dunois and Golden Standard, were shipped West this afternoon.

The Elks of Lexington held a horse show and fair of five days' duration during the week closing August 12th.

In point of general interest the thoroughbred show was undoubtedly the feature of the fair, and the pronounced feature was the stallion ring, in which the following seven contested: Applegate & McMeekin's Fonso, Milton Young's First Mate, Hinda & Baker's King Eric (sire of Prince Lief), Elliott C. Cowdin's Requit (one of the only two horses who have won both the Futurity and the Realization), W. S. Barnes' Prince of Monaco (full brother to St. Carlo), Major T. J. Carson's young sire Ben Strome and Favordale, also from Dixiana Farm.

The blue ribbon was tied on the bridle of the aged Fonso, which, with his twenty-three years, is yet the most perfect type of the thoroughbred in Kentucky. This, however, is not the first premium he has won. For a score of years he has appeared in show rings in Kentucky and was never beaten.

The old adage, "like sire like son," was illustrated in this ring, when the second premium was awarded to First Mate, the son of Fonso, who has succeeded the mighty Hanover as the head of McGrathiana stud.

Requit, who once sold for $40,000, was very highly complimented. In the ring for thoroughbred matrons twelve fine mares were shown. Col. Milton Young captured both prizes, the first with Harebell (dam of Macivor), and the second with Kelp (dam of Onway, Onward, etc.). The first prize was a season to Requit, offered by Mr. Cowdin, of Mount Kisco, N. Y.

Hanover yearlings and socklings won premiums in the colt rings for those ages.

San Mateo Hunt Club.

Articles of incorporation of the "San Mateo Hunt Club," have been filed in San Mateo county. The corporation is formed, not for the purpose of pecuniary profit, but to encourage sport and maintain all kinds of field and out of door sports, and for social intercourse among its members and to acquire, take, purchase, lease, hold, sell and convey real and personal property for its purposes. There is no capital stock, no shares of stock, nor any stock subscribed or to be subscribed. The corporation is to continue for fifty years. The following Directors have been elected to serve for one year: John Parrott, San Mateo; Francis Carolan, Burlingame; Walter S. Hobart, San Mateo; J. J. Moore, Menlo Park; Doncau Hayne, San Mateo; Hugh Hume, Belmont; J. H. P. Howard, San Mateo; W. O. B. Macdonough, San Francisco; E. D. Baylard, San Mateo.

CHARLEY THORPE and Jos Piggott will ride at Sacramento during the State Fair meeting.

Yearling Sale at Hawthorne.

Saturday, August 12th, a sale of yearlings was held at Hawthorn track, Chicago; with the following result: Minnie's Last, b f, full sister to Prince McClurg, by Wadsworth, $300; J. H. Stevens. Black filly by Badge, $160; J. E. Cushing. Bay colt by Badge, $375; Mrs. W. McGulgan. Bay colt by Badge, $150; J. E. Cushing. Chestnut filly by Fonso, $200; P. Ryan. Chestnut colt by Lamplighter, $225; J. H. Smith. Bay filly by Fonso, $210; S. T. Jones. Brown filly by Lamplighter, $350; F. J. Kelly. Chestnut filly by Fonso, $500; Thomas Carey. Bay filly by Badge, $300; J. B. Resper. Bay filly by Badge, $260; Mrs. W. McGulgan. Brown filly by Prince Royal, $90; J. H. Smith. Bay filly by Badge, $200; G. W. Poola. Chestnut filly by Steipner, $60; F. J. Kelly. Bay filly by Victory, $75; J. Wallenstein.

SADDLE NOTES.

ALEC SHIELDS will race a string of horses at the State Fair.

DICK HAYEY will start the runners at Oakland during the meeting.

The new track at San Bruno will be ready by the last of October.

FAST BLACK, a recent winner at Brighton, is a California bred filly by Watercross.

R. J. HAYEY will handle the starter's flag for the runners during the State Fair meeting.

THE bay colt Approval, three years old, was sold by John Madden to Frank E. Taylor for $15,000 at Saratoga last week.

It is said there will be one hundred days' racing at the Montana tracks next season, to be divided between the tracks at Anaconda, Butte and Great Falls.

MR. T. C. McDOWELL refused an offer of $8000 for his good colt Batten last week. In view of his fine form and the price commanded at present by good class racers the colt is worth more money than the sum refused.

THE betting privilege of the State Fair was awarded to B. W. Cavasanzh & Co., of Sacramento, their bid being $17,762.50, and $500 additional for a one mile running handicap. The program privilege was sold to Frank W. Lasvitt, who bid $325 for it.

CESAR YOUNG is expected to arrive in Sacramento to day with his string of horses which he has been racing at St. Louis. Villman, h c, by Julien—Old Miss, is the best winner in Young's stable, he having cleaned up nearly $6000 on two starts with him.

MARCUS DALY will race a big string of horses here next winter, some twenty-seven in all. The veteran Dan Dennison will train and manage the stable, which will be headed by the crack handicap horse, imp. leader, one of the best weight packers in the country. Some Bittar Root yearlings that are reeling off three furlongs in the neighborhood of 36 1/2 seconds at this early stage will also help to make up the stable.

TWO of the Saratoga track records were broken on Saturday last and one equalled. Blue Devil won the opening sprint of five furlongs in 1:00, beating the record, which has stood since 1894. Swifts, in the third event, won the mile and a sixteenth in 1:47, half a second better than The Kentuckian did last month, while The Eschelor captured the fourth event, one and three-eighths miles, in 2:20 1/2, a second better than the Saratoga record.

ONE of the most remarkable features of the Brighton meeting was the way in which the money was distributed. The Brighton management gave away in purses a sum in the neighborhood of $225,000, but no particular horsemen won more than $11,000 of it. The heaviest winner was Perry Belmont whose best horse was, of course, the three-year old Ethelbert. With the Sea Gull Stakes, which Ethelbert won on the last day, included, Belmont's winnings aggregated about $11,000. The two-year-old filly Oraad was a contributor to this sum in a small way.

Over Education of the Horse.

[Chicago Horse Review.]

"Jimmy," said the owner to the swip, "can you tell me why it is that so many fast horses that have raced well for backwood drivers are flat failures after they are placed in the hands of the greatest trainers on the turf?"

"That's because all big-priced trainers break and educate their horses to a fazzle, an' don't naver stop to think that education spoils some kind of horses," said Jimmy. "There is lots of horses will jump out an' race for your life as long as they are half-broke things that don't know much of nothin', but after they get well broke an' educated they see that there's nothin' in it for them anyway, an' they won't race so hard. There's many a half-broke racer won stentee-steen races in one season with a wild Indian behind him, an' then turned around sn' played lobster for a smart guy that spent six months breakin' him to drive. I've knowed it for years, but if I'd offer to put one of them smart trainers next, they'd call me hng-horse. See? Didn't you ever notice when a high class teamster gets a new horse he always discovers the first time up that the horse ain't broke to drive? I've seen it so much that whenever a guy gets down from behind a new horse an' says the horse is all right I mark him for a suspicious character, an' they couldn't none of them guys drive a horse for Jimmy—not in a hundred times."

"Do I understand you to say," said the owner, "that all good trainers always find fault with every horse they drive?"

"Sura," replied the swipa. "They ain't no horse in the world broke good enough to snit a high-class teamster, except the ones he broke hisself. You give any kind of a horse to a good teamster, an' if he knows his business he'll tell you that the horse will make a good one when he's broke like he ought to be. That's a cinch and you can prove it any time you want to try. You go out in the bushes an' find a racer that win nineteen races in a row, driven by a country-bred Rube with a red shirt an' no soppers. Most likely you think that any horse that can win that many races is well broke. Ask Mr. Rube an' he'll tell you that a two-year-old kid can drive him through a knot-hole. You swallow it all, buy the horse and send him to a wise teamster number one, an' what then? Old wise guy gets up an' trains him a few, an' tells you that the horse ain't half broke an' don't know nothin', an' that it will take a year to get him right."

"Wall," said the owner, "they must get hold of some very had-mannered horses once in a while."

"Certainly," returned Jimmy; "that's what I'm tellin' you. They don't get hold of nothing else. They ain't no horses that's broke except the ones them boys has brought up theirselves, but there's whera all them wise pilots comenca to lose. There's thousands of horses that can carry long toes an' a gaitin' pole, an' pull an Indian fast enough to scatter paint and feathers from one end of the roots to the other, an' get part of the money while they are doin' it, that can't scarcely beat the flag man after they have been taught to carry their noses an' tails an' ears an' feet accordin' to the book. A too much broke horse has broke many an owner, an' don't you fail to recollect it."

A call has been issued for a meeting of the American Association of Breeders of Thoroughbred Horses to be held at the Hoffman Hooga, New York, August 24th at 10 A. M., for the purpose of formulating rules and regulations for the government of the association. The formation of the association was the outcome of a meeting of the most prominent breeders in America held in New York on June 22nd. Gen. W. H. Jackson was elected president; L. O. Appleby, Vice-President and O. H. Chenaunt, Secretary and Treasurer.

The "drumming" of snips in the breeding season is accounted for on the following theory-the sound is produced by the tail of the bird. This is heard only when the bird is in the air and always when he is descending in an oblique direction towards the earth with half closed wings and wide-spread tail. Upon examination of one of the outer tail feathers it will be observed that the shaft is strong and bent like a sabre, the outer web stiff and very narrow, while the inner web is broad. It has been found, in experimenting with one of these feathers fixed upon a stick, that by striking the air with the stiff outer web it is possible to obtain a very fair imitation of the sound the bird makes in "drumming."

At the Traps.

To-morrow at San Clemente the San Francisco Gun Club hold their final live bird shoot for this year, doubtless a large attendance of trap shooters will be on hand to take part in the day's sport. The race for cloth honors is close, several back scores are still to be shot and one or two surprises may turn up when the final results are scored.

The Union Gun Club will hold a blue rock shoot on the Lincoln grounds to-morrow. It is possible that the projected race between Igen and Heins may take place.

The following program is announced for the Lincoln shoot and picnic on September 3d.

First event-Fifteen singles, one man-up, entrance 75 cents, high guns. Second event-Six pair of doubles, entrance 75 cents, high guns. Third event-Fifteen singles and five pair of doubles, entrance $1, high guns. Fourth event-Twelve man team shoot for the Nenstadter trophy, twenty targets, entrance $1. In this event individual scores will count for prizes, which will be announced on the grounds. Fifth event-Handicap races for the Lincoln Gun Club trophy, twenty targets, entrance $1. The trophy will be similar to that donated by the club to the C. I. T. Association's annual shoot at Antioch last May. Other events will be arranged, time permitting. Lunch will be served on the grounds free of charge.

The Empire Gun Club have issued a handsome program of events for September 5th and 10th. On the first day the initial event will be a race at fifteen targets, entrance 75 cents, class shooting, three moneys. Second event-Fifteen targets, mangatrap, entrance 75 cents, high guns. Third event-Twenty birds, mangatrap, entrance $1, $5 added, class shooting, three moneys. Fourth event-Merchandise match, twenty targets, entrance $1 25, class shooting, twelve classes. Side pool (optional), entrance $1.25, three moneys. Fifth event-Fifteen targets, entrance $1, class shooting, three moneys.

Second day, first event-Fifteen targets, mangatrap, entrance 75 cents, high guns. Second event-Twenty targets, mangatrap, entrance $1, $5 added, class shooting, four moneys. Third event-Merchandise race, twenty targets, entrance $1.25, class shooting, side pool (optional), entrance $1.25, four moneys, thirteen classes. Special race-Fifteen targets, entrance 75 cents, high guns.

A week from to-morrow the final shoot of the California Wing Club at Ingleside will close the live bird season in this city. The club race will be at twenty-five birds with $100 added by the Club. As the scores stand now Otto Feudner is in the lead with Clarence Nauman close up and Dr. Barker third. H. C. Golcher and "Slade" have back scores to shoot up. Clean scores will put them in place for the money distribution. This final race promises to be an exciting one.

The Lincoln shoot last Sunday closed the regular trap season of the club for this year. Excellent scores were made in spite of a strong wind which often threw the targets skittering away in unexpected directions. In the division of the club purse the totals of the four best scores were taken, the distribution of $150 was as follows: First class, A. J. Wehb, $24, with a score of 97 breaks out of a possible 100, M. O. Feudner, $16, with 93 breaks. Second class, John Karney, $21, Kerrison and Eug. Forster divided $14. Third class, E. Klevesahl, W. J. Golcher and J. Bruns, with an even number of breaks each, divided $30. Fourth class, G. Wenzel $15 and O. Fischer $10. Fifth class, Rumpf and Sherock divided $12, Javetts $8. The totals of four best scores and totals of scores for the six shoots at twenty-five targets each are here given:

Some interesting trap shooting took place at Del Monte, Monterey county, last Saturday. The occasion was decidedly the most notable social as well as sporting event that has taken place at the famous resort for several years past. Two prizes were offered in the live bird race at twenty-five birds-the first was the Del Monte cup and the second the Worden cup. The contest was open to members of all the country clubs, but only shooters from the San Francisco and Burlingame clubs entered. In the principal race F. R. Webster, C. W. Tuttle, A. H. Whitney and R. B. Murdock tied on twenty-four birds each. The shoot off of the ties resulted in Murdock's winning first prize and Webster the second. Some one in examining Mr. Webster's shot gun placed the "safety on," this being overlooked by the gentleman when he stepped to the score resulted in the referee's decision of "lost bird." Clarence A. Haight officiated as referee, Jos. J. Sweeney kept the score sheets and W. B. Murdock manipulated the traps. Sweepstakes and six bird races were indulged in also. The scores in detail of the cup race were as follows:

Table with columns for Name, Yards, and Total. Lists names like Webster, F. R. (C), Whitney, A. H. (B), etc., with their scores.

Shoot-off at five birds for Del Monte Cup.

A Sportsman Vindicated.

Statements in the Daily press during this week detailing the arrest of a well-known sportsman and subsequent proceedings for violation of the Marin county game laws are very misleading, utterly unreliable and do a serious injustice to Mr. L. H. Van Sicken, a prominent member of the Country Club and a leading business man of this city.

The facts of the case are here presented and will show to the intelligent sportsmen and unbiased reader that while there was a technical breach of the law, the attendant circumstances were mitigating and the immediate and subsequent steps taken by Mr. Van Sicken in making reparation was the action of a thorough sportsman and gentleman and were such as to entitle him to the respect and encomiums of brother sportsmen.

Last Sunday Mr. Van Sicken in company with other members of the Country Club were deer hunting on the club's preserve in Marin county. A big buck was "jumped up" and fired at by Van Sicken, whose shot broke one of the deer's legs. Then commenced a pursuit, the wounded buck leading the hunters a merry and hard chase over a great distance and finally beyond the preserve boundary lines, taking them in his wake through the hamlet of Point Reyes, several outside parties here joined in the hunt, but were warned off by Van Sicken, who naturally claimed the animal under the unwritten laws of the chase. The pursuit now was close up and exciting, the buck taking to the road which he followed but a short distance and then abandoned it for a path off to one side apparently leading to safety from his enemies-just at this juncture Van Sicken struck the road and seeing his quarry rapidly reaching covert, under the impulse of the moment and in the excitement of the chase, for the second time, fired at the disappearing buck and brought him down-overlooking for the moment his position in the middle of the road way, ten steps in advance of which would have placed his action beyond the pale of any question.

In discussing the adventures of the day afterwards at the club house it became apparent to Mr. Van Sicken and his fellow club members that there had been an unintentional breach of that clause of the law which prohibits shooting on the public highway. Mr. Van Sicken immediately instructed Thomas Irving, an employe of the club, to file a complaint against him before the authorities at San Rafael. This was done and a fine paid, thus establishing a precedent that was a commendable one. No arrest was made, all proceedings in the case were regular and appear of record, in the fine under the circumstance was sufficient.

Mr. Van Sicken took an active part in the framing of the Marin county ordinance as also did the Country Club, the members of which believe the law to be an excellent one and should in every way be enforced.

This sentiment is acquiesced in by other sportsmen who find sport and recreation in the county. It is believed that the responsibility for the misleading statements already referred to rests with certain biased sources that are interested in the attempts at repealing the county ordinance now in force.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Livermore sportsmen have had successful deer hunting near there recently. Constahla Fitzgerald killed two fine large bucks on the Ralph Favell place last week.

Sheriff Van Devanter of Kent county, Washington, a prominent northern sportsman, was with others entertained at a banquet last Wednesday evening by the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

One of our local sportsmen, who is known as "Alphabetical Van," reported a exciting deer hunt in San Mateo county last week. He bagged a grand old buck on the ridge near Crystal Springs lake. The head was brought to this city to be mounted, on examination a brand was found on the back of the buck's ears! Has anyone in San Mateo county lost a stall-fed buck recently?

Other game besides deer and dove afford excitement and sport in Mendocino county. On the 19th inst., Fred Franks of Redwood valley, a brave young hunter not yet in his teens, was out hunting with his dogs and a large mountain lion was treed. The youngster shot at the beast and wounded it, upon its falling from the tree an exciting chase through the thick undergrowth ensued. The lion was finally bagged and proved to be the largest "varmint" seen in that section for many years past.

J. A. Elliott, who has been regarded as the champion wing shot of the United States, lost the Eastern Championship cup and a side bet of $100 to W. R. Crosby of Batavia, N. Y., on Wednesday. The total scores were 129 to 128 out of a possible 150. The targets were thrown in three sets. Fifty from known traps and fifty from five traps at unknown angles and fifty in pairs. The summary was: Crosby 43, Elliott 43, Crosby 45, Elliott 39. Elliott was killed to defend the cast-iron medal on Thursday against C. A. Young of Springfield, O. There was a side bet in this match of $200. One hundred pigeons to each shooter will be used.

Bonito Fishing at St. Helena.

We had dropped anchor off James Town, St. Helena, the previous evening, and hearing from the natives that there were plenty of bonito to be caught I determined to have a go at them next morning. As bad luck would have it next morning proved to be a Sunday, and we had to go through the tiresome routine of muster and inspection, so it was quite 10:30 A. M. before I managed to get the required leave from the skipper, and with two chosen friends, who for the sake brevity I shall call A and B, rushed down below and hastily doffed our uniforms, substituting a flannel shirt and old pair of trousers, which with a good broad brimmed hat completed our costume.

Our boat, manned by two very dirty and ancient-looking negroes, lay at the gangway awaiting us, and we hastily tumbled in and were rowed away from the ship about 200 yards and made fast under the stern of a pretty little American whaler.

None of us had any rods with us, so we had to be content with the native ones, which consisted of a stout bamboo about 10 feet long, to the end of which was strongly whipped about a fathom of very stout line and a large hook. Our dusky friends then proceeded to catch us some bait which they set about in the following manner: They first squeezed a handful of bread under the water, which immediately attracted a large shoal of what I think must have been some sort of mackerel fry about the size of a sprat; they then produced a short line and ordinary triangle hook; this was gently lowered into the midst of the shoal, and with a quick upward jerk of the hand one or more of the bait were transfixed. With these we baited our lines, passing the hook through the back of the fish, and allowing it to flop about on the top of the water, our hostmen meanwhile throwing in handfuls of bait to attract the fish. A fair about a quarter of an hour a warning note from one of them called our attention to the fact that the bonito were coming at last, and sure enough, far down below us in the clear water, indistinct purple shapes could be seen darting here and there, and gradually approaching the surface.

A startled exclamation and heavy plunge on the other side of the boat announced the fact that A was fast in a good fish which was taking him all he knew to keep its head above water, for if you once let a bonito get his head under water on a native rod he will smash you to a certainty. After about five minutes hard fighting he managed to get the fish alongside when a sharp blow on the head from a knobbed stick soon settled it; it proved to be a nice fish of 18 lbs. Turning my attention to my own rod again I was just in time to see a flash of purple, a heavy plunge and the next moment my rod was nearly wrenched from my hand, and then for a moment it was a real case of "pull devil, pull baker," with the water lashed into foam all around as the bonitos rushed here and there seemingly trying to rescue their friend. Finally I managed to swing him alongside when the stick was again applied with a most quieting effect. He was a magnificent fish, and turned the scales at just 32 lbs. In the meantime both A and B had been fast in good fish, but had broken away, and shortly afterwards B landed a nice fish of 2 lbs and A another beauty of 26 lbs. It was my turn next, but I did not quite bargain for what happened, for just a second I saw a large indistinct shape making for my bait, a terrific plunge in the water, my arms seemed as if they were going to be pulled off and next moment my stout bamboo was broken clean in half and I was left mournfully gazing on the broken piece in my hand; the hostmen said it was an "albacore" and must have weighed over 50 lbs. They told me that on the N. W. side of the island they fish for them with stout lead lines and not unfrequently take them of over 100 lbs. weight.

After this little diversion, we each hooked and lost a fish, and as by this time the sun was brookishly hot, and the glare of the water very trying we decided to give it up and returned to the ship, very well satisfied with our morning's sport.

I have often thought that splendid sport might be obtained here with a good stiff pike rod and three hundred yards of stout line, and I believe the officers of the garrison have had very good fun fishing for them this way.

The anchorage literally swarms with fish and the evening following our bonito fishing I caught over a hundred mackerel and a fish resembling him, called the king fish, on a hand line. There is little else to attract the sportsman at St. Helena, a few pheasants, partridges and rabbits I am told are to be found, but the walking is terrible and sport to be obtained hardly worth the trouble.—Midshipman Easy.

W. R. McFarland will have charge of the live fish exhibit which will be the most interesting feature of the coming fair of the Mechanic's Institute. "Mac" has now more than a dozen four and five pound striped bass in the reservoir at Strawberry hill. These fish were caught by him over in the Alameda waters with a rod and line at different intervals. When caught they were placed in large cans, the salt water in which was at various points on the trip to this city gradually changed to fresh. It was quite an undertaking, the cans requiring two men to convey them, but Mac is a persistent individual in every matter pertaining to fish and fishing and it goes without saying that one of the most interesting exhibitions of live fish ever seen in this city will be on view in the Mechanic's Pavilion next month.

Fish Commissioner Vogelsang has the honor of landing the largest striped bass caught in the Oakland estuary to date. Several fish have heretofore been caught in that water which weighed a little more than the one Mr. Vogelsang caught, but they were caught with heavy hand lines or immense poles. Vogelsang's tackle had seen service with steelhead time and again and is about as light as can be found for that particular angling sport. It took twenty minutes to bring the fish to gaff.

Walter D. Mansfield was due at Verdi on Thursday. As a telegram was received in this city requesting rod and tackle to be forwarded to him, it is to be assumed that he will join Henry Skinner, Col. Keliher, John Sieha and others who are now on the river and enjoying grand sport between Verdi and Boca. The killing fly on the Truckee just now is a large mallard wing with a gold body, the big fish are all caught on a number two or four hook.

White Rock lake and French lake should prove worthy of the anglers' attention in September. Fishing on these lakes has been poor up to the present. Tahoe proved to be a veritable paradise for anglers this summer, but the fishes are now swimming deep and the sport is fast growing less. The McCloud river will afford the best fly-fishing of the year in September, when the salmon will have finished spawning.

Reports from Eel river this week have set the anglers all agog with excitement. If the run of steelhead now on is a lasting one instead of a preliminary sport it will not be many days before the river will be thrashed by a number of our local fishermen. One morning recently sixty-five fish averaging about a pound in weight were caught in three hours, so writes Ellis Robinson to John Butler.

In most fishing where the lure or bait is sunk beneath the surface of the water the bait must invariably be fresh. No animate creature has a more acute sense of smell than a fish, the most insignificant of the triha will refuse a tainted bait.

Fish properly do not uncomfortably feel the hook. They die an easier death at the hands of the angler than they would in the claws and hills of their bird enemies, or in the teathy jaws of their larger brethren.

Fred M. Haight is at present sojourning at Fowlers on the McCloud. The fishing is reported to be excellent at that point just now. Mr. Haight will try some new Benn flies made especially for him.

Steelhead fishing at Pescadero creek is good. Arthur McCormick sent John Butler a fine three pounder on Wednesday. Striped bass are being caught in the lagoon and afford great sport.

Anglers at Pelican bay are having much sport just now, the fishing at that pleasant resort being first class. George Roop and two friends made a magnificent catch there recently.

Salt water anglers are having great success at present smelt, rock fish, "blue cod," sea trout and perch are caught in large quantities off the Marin shores.

Jack Sammi was successful in landing seven fine striped bass in the Oakland estuary last Saturday.

Fox Terrier Club.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Pacific Fox Terrier Club was held in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN on Monday evening last. There were present N. H. Hickman, President, Messrs. Harley, Godfrey, Moora and Martin. Two recent devotees to the fancy G. J. M. E. d'Aquiu and H. G. Hemmelright were elected to membership.

The Committee upon Produce Stakes submitted a report which was adopted and the following nominations were received for the stake: 1.—W. E. Godfrey's Flirtation (Warren Sage—Dauntless Creole). 2.—W. J. P. Strachan's Golden Poppy (Ch. Norfolk Veracity—Ch. Golden Jewel). 3.—C. K. Harley's Mission Idol (Blemton Reeler—Jawnt, less Snzette). 4.—G. J. M. E. d'Aquiu nominated Rev. J. W. Flinton's Aldon Radiance (Von Voit—Warren Spruce). 5.—N. H. Hickman's Elwood Gracia (Blackrock Rammage—Miss Domino). 6.—H. G. Hammelright's Warren Tattle (Ch. Warren Safeguard—Warren Tonge).

The subject of holding a specialty bench show in this city in the fall was entertained with unanimous approval and endorsement. Messrs. Hickman and Martin were appointed a committee to confer with representatives of the St. Bernard Club of California, the Pacific Bull Terrier Club and the Pacific Mastiff Club with a view to obtaining the co-operation of those specialty clubs and arranging preliminary details if the project is found to be a feasible one.

A communication was received from the State Agricultural Society intimating that the Board of Directors would listen favorably to the claims of kennel clubs and specialty organizations as to the advisability of holding a bench show in connection with the annual exhibit at Sacramento. The Pacific Fox Terrier Club is the initial mover in this project and if it be brought to a successful issue will greatly redound to its benefit.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is much in favor of a bench show under the auspices of the State Fair management and will support any movement to that effect under A. K. C. rules. Bench shows are held in the East in conjunction with State and Agricultural Society Fairs and have been very successful shows. No less than five shows are now listed for this year under the above mentioned auspices.

Leashmen's Protective Organization.

Leashmen have been forced to organize and take steps for self protection by reason of the arbitrary manner in which local park officials have time and again acted towards individual owners of greyhounds. The monopoly held for a short time recently by one of the coursing parks for a while gave promise of introducing a series of abuses and barb conditions that were unpalatable to many coursing men.

As a result of these conditions the Greyhound Owners' and Trainers' Protective Association of the Pacific Coast organized last Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: P. C. Curtis of San Jose, President; Frank Moran, First Vice-President; J. Keenan, Second Vice President; W. C. Glasson, Secretary; Hugh Lynch, Treasurer; Executive Committee—John Rocks, Joseph P. Thrift; Walter Kay, D. Toland and Jas. R. Smith; Membership Committee—Captain Clarkson, W. E. Thompson and A. Johnson.

A constitution and by-laws were adopted, prominent features of which are the duties of the Executive Committee which is empowered to stand between the owners and the officials at parks where they course their dogs and see that they are fairly and honestly dealt with. Penalties provided by the rules of the American Coursing Board may be inflicted, but no unjust punishment will be contempered Owners or trainers charged with any offense shall be afforded every opportunity to be heard in their own behalf. The members of the association pledge themselves not to enter their dogs at any park where one of their organization has been dealt with unjustly.

No stimulants other than those accepted as legitimate ones may be administered to the dogs. No officials of coursing parks can hold office in the association.

The action of the constitution regarding grievances was discussed. Captain Clarkson stated that the coursing men have no red grievance at the present time, but were anticipating the future. It was not a question of grievance or of fighting the parks, but they wanted to have an organization back of them if anything did develop. The only grievance at the present time, he claimed, was that the hare corresponding to the number drawn for a course was not always released.

When rules of the American Coursing Board do not apply in a case those of the park are to be observed. The registration of greyhounds by any club recognized by the American Coursing Board will be accepted.

Lord Neversettles.

Coursing circles will be interested in the following letter of H. C. Iowa taken from a Chicago contemporary and announcing the death of the famous old greyhound Lord Neversettles:

"It is with regret I have to announce the death of the celebrated greyhound Lord Neversettles; he died at my kennels last week at the good old age of thirteen years. He was whelped in June, 1886. I imported him with Partera and White Lips in 1888, and all three proved of sterling worth.

A few weeks after Lord Neversettles arrived here, while coursing a hare, he put his leg into a prairie dog hole and broke his shoulder, and not being able to get a very skillful veterinarian to set it, he was always a little lame on his left leg, and it bothered him to make a quick turn on the left side, so I only ran him once in public for the American Field Cup, 1889, but with all this difficulty the old dog took third money in a thirty-two dog stake, showing wonderful speed, but I saw it was not giving him a fair chance, so I never ran him again. He won the Partington Stakes in England, and won four courses in the Gosforth Derby when a puppy. He was always the pet of my kennel, being such an affectionate, nice companion. He was the same with his first owner, Mr. E. Dent, of Short Flats Tower, Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. Mr. Dent once wrote me that he considered him the most affectionate greyhound he ever owned, and although he had not seen him for eight years he was quite sure if he walked up to my kennels the old dog would know him.

Lord Neversettles has been one of the most successful sires ever imported to this country, especially when it is remembered that he was very little used at the stud; he was only mated with five bitches, and one of these—Rhea—only visited him once, and in the Rhea litter was the clever little White Diamond. When this little bitch was in her prime nothing could beat her close work. In the Verdura Clad litter there were several winners, and Wheatstone gave Mr. Dayton some rare good greyhounds. Partera and White Lips, being both in my kennels, were regularly bred to Lord Neversettles once a year for several years, with great success. It is with greyhounds like horses, a great sire is often neglected until he gets old, then people begin to realize his great worth. And then again there are some men who will use a dog because the stud fee is small regardless of his qualities.

No wonder Lord Neversettles was a success at the stud, for no finer bred dog ever lived. Through Jesler, his sire, he had the famous Parniman and Gallant Joe blood, and on his dam's side he had the stout blood of Banker. Squirrel, his dam, always bred them with speed and rare staying powers. I well remember a son of hers called The Climber. This dog never seemed to tire. He won twenty-four hard-fought courses out of thirty-two in England. All the Lord Neversettles stock in this country inherit great speed and staying qualities, and they all have such rare constitutions, they can stand any amount of work in training. The more work they have the better they seem to like it. I saw it mentioned by a good coursing authority a few weeks ago that he considered Mercy May one of the best, if not quite the best, bitch in California to-day. Mercy May is out of No Mercy, No Mercy is a daughter of Show Mercy, who is a litter sister to Lord Neversettles, and Mr. Dent paid a big price for Lord Neversettles and Show Mercy when sapplings.

I notice that a great many of the big stake winners in California are grandsons and granddaughters of Lord Neversettles. It is always a sign of a great sire when his offspring show great producing qualities, and this Lord Neversettles did to a marked degree. His sons, St. Lawrence, St. Clair and Lord Clifton, are giving California some of their very best greyhounds. Lord Clifton, unfortunately, died soon after he was placed at the stud, but he sired, I think, the best all-round greyhound running at present in America, Mr. Dean's Connemara (Lord Clifton—Daisy II). It is truly wonderful what a constitution this dog must have, for it looks as if he has never been out of training for three years, and yet he goes on winning week after week, showing wonderful speed and staying powers. He is truly a wonder. Then there is another little wonder that all California coursers are justly proud of, who is winning stake after stake at present—Lottia M., a daughter of St. Lawrence, and a granddaughter of Lord Neversettles; and then another great daughter of St. Lawrence, For Glory, is winning big stakes, and a host of others by him are winning every week. When that great dog St. Clair is running his brother St. Lawrence close in getting winners.

It is indeed rare for a dog only bred to five bitches to have sired the many winners Lord Neversettles has. I give a list of some of his best sons and daughters out of Partera and White Lips, all bred and raised at my kennel, a list a man can be proud of, and it can readily be seen what the old dog has done for this country in the way of good greyhounds: Master Peter, Liberty, Little Climber, Prince Charlie, Lord Clifton, Boomerang, St. Clair, St. Lawrence, Nancy, Twister, Voltaire, Grand Fashion, Mornington, Black Joe, High Carley, Lord Neversettles, Patria, Mellita, Dina, Princess May, Spinaway, Comedy, Lone Widow, and I think I may add his last daughter, Jessamy, who is at present in California, and I expect great success for this bitch.

I think the best litter White Lips ever threw to Lord Neversettles included St. Lawrence, St. Clair, Mellita and Grand Fashion. This was a great four. The first three were all big winners, but Grand Fashion, a very handsome dog, met with an accident when two years old, and I could never train him, so he had to take his honors on the bench, and he never was beaten. When I had all these four in my kennel as puppies Grand Fashion was quite a bit the fastest of the lot. The three great greyhounds, Lord Neversettles, Partera and White Lips, are all lying at rest in my garden, all three having died at a good old age, and I expect to see for many years to come a lot of the great stake winners in this country will trace back in their pedigree to Lord Neversettles, Partera and White Lips."

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Mountain View Kennels' pointer Alex C., has been entered in the Manitoba All-Age Stake.

Hugh McCracken dropped in the office this week. He had Reglor Jr., ready for the parade, having the big St. Bernard tastefully decorated with the national colors.

The opportunity is offered bull terrier fanciers, for a short time only, to secure the pick of a litter of royally bred bull terriers, particulars can be ascertained upon application at this office.

Stewart and Son of Bancho Bonito Kennels have transferred all of their stock to O. J. Albee of Lawrence, Santa Clara county, retaining but one collie out of the number of good ones they had. This is reported to be but a temporary withdrawal from the ranks.

The New Orleans Fox Terrier Club propose holding an open air show on November 23d in one of the parks of the city, it is understood that Mr. J. J. Lynn of Port Huron, Michigan, will judge. The show will be confined to smooth and wire haired fox terriers. New Orleans has developed rapidly in the fancy for the game little fox terrier.

J. B. Martin, one of the most successful and prominent fox terrier fanciers on the Pacific Coast has purchased from Rev. J. W. Flinton of Victoria, B. C. the fox terrier dog Aldon Swagger. Swagger was whelped in July 1896 being bred by A. Macdonald of Toronto, Canada. His bench record is a good one; 1st maiden, 2d puppy. New York 1897; reserve in novice and open, Toronto 1897; 1st open, 1st winners and two specials, San Francisco 1898 and 1st open and 1st winners, San Francisco 1899 is a worthy showing for one of the most promising fox terrier sires on the Coast. The fact that this dog will remain in this locality is a matter of congratulation to the fancy. Swagger will shortly be placed in the stud, due announcement of which will appear in our kennel advertisement columns.

We were shown Mr. Leon Greenebaum's bull dog puppy Harry Lacy No. 57,934, (Capt. Kidd—Phaedra) this week and were most agreeably surprised at the fine appearance of the youngster; though somewhat thin in body and looking a little leggy. This, however, is not to be marveled at considering the siege of illness the pup has gone through. His head is a good one, his coat and color are a most desirable showing in a brindle. The little fellow is full of much promise and will no doubt make his mark in the future.

- Don't chain your dog.
Don't feed your dog small bones.
Don't let your dog suffer with fleas.
Don't kick your dog if you wish him to obey you.
Don't give raw milk to puppies; always boil or scald it.
Don't feed a dog candy or sweets. It often produces fits.
Don't forget that the flies annoy your dog as much as they do you.
Don't allow your dogs to roam the streets because he has a license.
Don't allow stale water to go down the dog's throat while in confinement.
Don't fail to have a regular time for exercising, feeding and caring for your dog.
Don't fail to see that your dog has sufficient bedding to keep himself warm and that it is clean.
Don't allow your dog to bark and howl at night. He can be broken of that habit easily and quickly.
Don't fail to give your dog a bath at times, but be sure his coat is thoroughly dried before exposing to the cold air.

Oost and Weight of Fowls.

In a paper prepared for the Board of Trade of Denver, Col., we find a curious table of the quality of the various breeds of poultry, and while it may not be strictly accurate in all points, it is near enough correct for all practical uses, and contains some information which may be of value to those who are thinking of going into the poultry business.

The heaviest fowls are the Brahma, at 12 pounds for the male and 9½ pounds for the hen; Buff Cochins and Partridge Cochins stand next; at 11 pounds for male and 8½ pounds for hen. Then the Black Langshans at 10 and 7 pounds. All these require 12 months to reach maturity. The White and the Barred Plymouth Rock are 9½ pounds for male and 7½ for hen, mature in 10 months, and the cost of raising all the above to maturity is put at 75 cents, and the cost of keeping a year at 90 cents. The Cornish Indian Games cost the same to feed, and in 10 months reach maturity, with the male weighing 9 pounds and the hen 6½ pounds.

The Silver Laced and the White Wyandottes weigh at maturity 8½ and 6½ pounds, male and female; the Houdans 7½ and 5 pounds, and R. B. B. Games the same, and Black Spanish 7 and 6 pounds, with Black Minorcas 8 and 6½ pounds. It costs 70 cents to raise each of these to maturity, though the Games mature in eight months, the Minorcas and Spanish in 9 months, and the Wyandottes and Houdans require 10 months. It costs 90 cents a year to feed the Houdans, 80 cents for the Wyandottes, Games, Spanish and Minorca fowl; the Polish mature at 7 months old, weighing 5½ pounds for male and 3½ for hens. It costs but 50 cents to bring them to that weight, and 75 cents to year to feed them.

The Dorkings weigh 6½ and 5½ pounds for male and female, require nine months' time and 65 cents worth of food to mature them, and eat 75 cents worth in a year. The Dominiques are one pound lighter to each bird, maturing in seven months at a cost of 60 cents. The white and brown Leghorns reach the weight of five pound male and four pound hen in seven months, at a cost of 40 cents, but it requires 75 cents worth of food to keep them. What are called common fowls, weigh only 4½ pounds for male and 3½ for female, mature in nine months at a cost of 50 cents, but eat 75 cents worth a year after that.

As regards laying qualities they class the two Leghorns at the head, with 200 eggs a year, Hamburgs and Minorcas next with 180 eggs. The Rocks and Wyandottes are set down for 175 eggs, and the Houdans, Dominiques, R. B. B. Games, Black Spanish and Polish for 180. Brahmas, Langshans and common hens at 150, Buff Cochins at 140, Indian Games 130, while Partridge Cochins and Dorkings are credited with only 120 eggs a year per hen. We do not know the source from which these figures are derived, but while certain flocks of either of these breeds might do better or worse than the figures given, they are nearly in accord with popular opinion. The figures on the weight of their eggs are also nearly correct, the eggs being from mature fowl.

The average number of eggs in a pound from Brahma hens is seven, but Black Spanish are nearly as large with 7½; Buff Cochins and Langshans give eight eggs to the pound; Partridge Cochins and the two Plymouth Rocks 8½; the two Wyandottes, Indian Games, Houdans, Dorkings and Minorcas 9; Dominiques, B. B. Games and two Leghorns 10; Polish and common hens 11, and the Hamburgs 12 eggs to the pound.

The Brahmas, Langshans, Rocks, Dominiques, B. B. Games, Leghorns and Minorcas are classed as hardy; Indian Games, Hamburgs, Dorkings and Polish as tender, and the others as average. The Dorkings, Dominiques, B. B. Games and Polish will not stand confinement. The two Cochins breeds are marked as poor foragers, while the two Leghorns are fine, and the others fair or good. Brahmae and Partridge Cochins are given the reputation of heavy eitters and clumsy mothers while non-sitters, Leghorns, Spanish, Polish and Minorcas are had or poor mothers. The Buff Cochins and non sitters are put down as having flesh poor in grain and quality.

In ducks the Pekin and Rouen weigh 7½ pounds for male, six for duck. The Pekin matures in nine months at the cost of $1, and the Rouen in twelve months at a cost of $1.10. It costs $1 a year to keep either, but the Pekin lays 120 eggs, eight to the pound, and the Rouen 100 eggs, six to the pound. The common duck weighs four pounds to the male and 3½ to the duck; matures in six months at a cost of 75 cents, and eats as much as the larger ducks in a year, but gives only 90 eggs, nine to the pound.

The Toulouse goose weighs 18 pounds and the gander 22 pounds. They are not mature until three years old, when they will have cost $2 for food. They lay 30 eggs a year, 3½ to the pound. The Embden eggs are smaller, the gander weighing 18 and the goose 15 pounds at 30 months old. Food to that time $1.75. They lay 20 eggs, 3½ to the pound. The common goose only weighs 10 pounds for male and 7 for females, and are mature at a year old, at a cost of $1.25. They lay 20 eggs a year, 4 to the pound. After maturity it costs $150 a year to feed either breed.

The Bronze turkey is the heaviest among our domestic poultry, male weighing 28 pounds and hen 18. They mature at two years old at a cost of $2, and eat $1.20 worth of food in a year afterward, lay 60 eggs, 6 to the pound in a year, while the common turkey weighing 12 pounds for male and 10 for hen at a year old has eaten $1.20 worth of food and will want $1 worth a year afterward to lay 50 eggs, 7 to the pound.

There seems to be a solid basis for the advance in the price of hogs. While the production of meats has increased to some extent, the export has increased far more, showing that there is a very brisk, strong demand for hog products the world over, says Wallace's Farmer. The export clearances, for example, of pork week before last were 787,000 pounds as compared with 680,000 pounds the corresponding week last year. There is an increase of 3,000,000 pounds in bacon, of 8,000,000 pounds in lard, and the total product exported during the same week was 29,522,000 pounds as against 18,243,000 pounds a year ago. It is this that is putting the money in hogs and causing a splendid feeling all over the hog growing country. We are glad to see it. There has been less advance in the price of hogs and hog products in the last two years than in any other product of the farm. Naturally so, because hog products are less perishable and can be stored with greater safety; hence, during the dull times an increasing supply on hand. The world is getting hungry for our pork now and in this part of the country, where it can be grown cheaper than in any other, farmers will receive for the next year or two some handsome profits from that branch of the farm. Every five cents advance now means that much added to the clear profit. When pork gets to $2.75, live weight, on the farm, it is very near the cost of production on a few of the best managed farms when corn is 20 cents; and under the cost on the poorest managed. When it gets to 3 cents on the farm, the good farmer may expect a little profit; when it gets to 3.50 cents there is good money in it; and when 4 cents is reached, as now, the farmer smiles unless the cholera cleans him out, and when this occurs he simply picks his flint and tries again.

This advance in price means a great deal to the breeders who have not been feeling very jubilant of late.

Many people do not appreciate the value of milk for the hens. I do not know of any one thing that will tend to make the hens lay quicker than a daily ration of milk, either sweet, sour or buttermilk. It is really surprising the quantity that a flock will dispose of. I have seen a flock of forty hens use up three or four quarts of milk at a single drinking. If placed before them in good, clean dishes, it will always be in order. I do not know that I would recommend it in the place of water; it would be preferable to keep them supplied with both. If the hens are given milk as a regular diet, it will pay in the increased number of eggs.—C. P. R.

American Beef Can Compete With Any in the World.

"American beef can compete with any that is found on the English market," said J. W. Curry, of Liverpool, agent for Swift & Co. in England, when speaking of the growth of his business, recently. "Live beef from this country arrives at Brinkenhead, where the government requires that it shall be slaughtered within a given number of days under inspection. So perfect are the facilities for transporting live cattle across the Atlantic that American beef actually arrives in better condition than that from Ireland. The damage from bruising on the long voyage is comparatively nothing.

"The loss on shipments of live cattle from Argentine and New Zealand, on the other hand, is enormous and practically puts those countries out of competition. Storms are encountered in the tropics that overcome the stock, no matter how carefully they are penned and cared for. Then the beef from those countries is inferior to that of American corn-fed cattle. South American cattle are raised on grass and alfalfa and are much poorer.

"Only one kind of beef commands a higher price per pound in England than prime American, and that comes from Scotland. The finest bred cattle are raised there, and Scotch runts, as they are called, bring the highest price. An English butcher will pay more, of course, for an Irish bullock or a heifer, because he can drive it to his own slaughter house, instead of having to kill at Brinkenhead, as he must an American animal.

"American chilled beef is destined to supplant others to a large degree. It has taken fifteen years to establish its reputation, and still there is considerable prejudice among the working classes.

It is associated by the consumer often times, with frozen beef, which is of inferior quality and comes from Argentine, New Zealand and Australia. The demand is for beef killed in England under the eyes of the inspectors. The number of live cattle unloaded at Brinkenhead is falling off every year and the quantity of chilled beef consumed is growing. The tide has turned in favor of the American packing companies doing their work on this side. All the leading hotels use American chilled beef, but even now they would scarcely put up a sign announcing that fact to their guests. Great care is now being taken to have the beef in perfect condition when it reaches the retailers, and they insist on it being sold for what it is. Signs are now seen in the stores, 'Prime American Beef Sold Here.' Dissembling and misrepresentation are declining.

"The Englishman who hangs his beef in the 'keep' for days to ripen is dull to understand that beef brought across in refrigerator steamers is not injured by this interval between killing and consuming.

"All that American chilled beef needs is a fair trial. I arranged some months ago with a number of stores which I formerly owned to place my product before my old customers. I have a letter from one of them saying if that beef was really American prime beef he did not want any other kind hereafter. All his customers pronounced it superior to what they had been buying.

There are breeds which claim to be the bacon or lean meat hog. They are coarse in all their parts, long maturing, unsightly in appearance and when once reared are generally discarded.

If you have lots of money and wish to try the experiment procure a pair of Tamworth pigs, grow and breed them and then compare the offspring beside the fine, improved Berkshire. The experiment may be costly, but not long, and you will be satisfied that for profit the Berkshire has no superior; has been perfected to meet the requirements of all people in all climates.

To make lean meat, the cheap foods, which are so beneficial to health and natural to swine, should be supplied. In summer allow them good pastura, feed weeds, vegetables, etc. An acre of sweet corn fed to hogs green will go a long way in making lean meat. Weeds should not go to seed, and if pulled and fed to swine they make excellent pork. Cheap feeds make the best pork, as they produce lean meat.

Confinement in pens makes the pig indolent and has a tendency to increase fat. With plenty of exercise their muscles develop and this muscular part is the lean part.

Reduce the fat, increase the lean and if your pigs are kept all their lives in pasture, with skim milk, bran and corn meal, you will not only produce the best kind of lean meat, but produce it on the gain side of the ledger.—Swineberd.

The supposition that common fowls are harder than pure breeds is not borne out by facts. Those who hatch chicks of the common kind lose a large number of them, only the strongest surviving, and each year they are more and more inbred. The pure breeds suffer from being pampered by their owners in many instances, in which case they do not compare favorably with common fowls; but common fowls are of little value compared with the pure breeds, which have been found to be more profitable in every respect.

Now that Anaconda has defeated Searchlight twice, the "wise" ones have concluded that Keating & Crelling did not sell the wrong horse after all. Probably the majority of them never stopped to consider the fact that Searchlight was the only one of the two that Messrs K. & C. owned. Anaconda belongs to Rancho del Paso. Searchlight has been for sale for two years. His former owners honestly considered him one of the greatest paeing stallions ever bred. Keating remarked to the writer last spring at Pleasanton, as we stood looking the stallion over: "I don't know where he could be improved upon in conformation or breeding, and I think he is as fast as any horse unless it is Star Pointer, and he is too valuable a horse for me to own." That expressed the whole situation. Tom Keating has a business head on his shoulders, and $15,000 is a good price for any stallion on earth. Accidents happen every day and horses do not live forever.

Speaking about the star pacing brigade, there is one that so far outclasses the others that they are not in it with him. I refer to Star Pointer 1:59 $\frac{1}{4}$. He is in a class all by himself and great as are Joe Patchen, John R. Gentry, Searchlight Anaconda, Directly and the rest that have to start in the "free for alls," they look cheap alongside the big son of Brown Hal and Sweepstakes. They can all strike a two-minute clip, but he is the only one that has so far shown the ability to hold it for a mile. Five times in his career he has beaten the wonderful mark that a few years ago was thought by many to be an impossibility. Last Thursday, at Hartford, his first public start this year, Star Pointer paced the historic old Charter Oak track in just two minutes flat, beating the track record made by himself last year a half second. His quarters were :30, 1:00, 1:30 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:00, a magnificently rated mile. Dave McClary is doubtless right when he claims that the great horse can do a mile in 1:58 later in the season when he strikes a good day and track. Star Pointer is the Eclipse of the pacing turf. It is certainly Star Pointer first, the rest nowhere.

After Who Is It won at Readville, and reduced his record to 2:10 $\frac{1}{2}$, C M Bixby, one of the most conservative of the newspaper writers who handles the trotting department of the New York Telegraph, wrote of the gray horse as follows: "The most remarkable trotter in many particulars that has shown in front this season is the gray California wonder, Who Is It, owned by the Hon. Frank Jones, whose stable this year is one of the great surprises of the Grand Circuit. Who Is It has the distinction of never having been beaten a single heat in any of his races, of never having made a break in a race, and it is claimed that he has never once been beated in his heats after having secured the lead. At Readville on Wednesday, in the 2:12 trot, he did as he has always done, simply smothered his field, winning the first beat in a walk in the fast time of 2:10 $\frac{1}{2}$, and demonstrating that he could have gone much faster. In deed, some good judges hold the belief that to-day he is as fast as any living trotter. Who Is It stands sixteen hands, is rather a muddy gray in color, and is but four years old. In his jogging work he is of the sloppy going order. Although a 'three-cornered,' dog fashioned jogger, his gait at speed is simply perfection, smooth and frictionless, and he goes fast easier than almost any horse on the turf. As he has no winter work, Trainer Marsh has been going slow with him thus far during the season. This led to many adverse reports concerning his condition, and when he started at Readville he was not even thought of by the speculators, but went to the fry as 'Hawkins' horse' when the word was given. He proved his mettle however, in that event, and it will doubtless be many a day before he is again left out of the calculations." That's very complimentary language to say the least, and Mr. Bixby must think very highly of the gray gelding. I see by the late dispatches that Who Is It was named by Mr. Jones for the \$5000 subscription purse for 2:12 trotters that is to come off at the Empire City track next week. He is in the very hottest of company, and if he is to be beaten at all there is where he is likely to meet his Waterloo. There have been named for this race Peter the Great, the 4-year-old that won at Hartford last Wednesday, beating 2:10 twice during the race and getting a mark of 2:08 $\frac{3}{4}$; Lord Vincent the stallion that Charley Doble won at Glen Falls with in straight heats, the time being 2:10 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:09 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 2:08 $\frac{3}{4}$; Copeland, another horse that has beaten 2:10 this year in a race, Fred Kohl whose mile in 2:07 $\frac{1}{4}$ is one of the fastest of the year, and a dozen more of the best trotters in the East that have been racing and shading 2:10 in nearly every start. This is a great field, and if Who Is It starts and defeats such horses as Peter the Great, Fred Kohl, Lord Vincent and Copeland, then he is indeed the greatest horse that has been seen in years. It is a hard task for him to even attempt, and the contest will be worth crossing the continent to witness.

"They can't bar hoppers any too soon for me," said a well known driver at the Oakland track last Tuesday, when a three-year-old that got to buck jumping with them on was thrown just as the heat was finished and those behind him had a close call to get round the wreck. It seems to be the universal sentiment among drivers and trainers here in California that the sooner the Indiana pants are done away with, the better it will be for all concerned in harness racing. The danger is not so great to the man driving the horse that falls as to those behind him. He generally lands clear of the horse after sliding out over the prostrate animal, but those coming along behind him, if not far enough back to steer clear of the wreck, are up against it and there are many chances of death in the mix up. The flurry against the hoppers last year led to a great deal of talk and the rule was finally amended. It had a good effect however, and there are few trainers in the country now that are not disposed to get along without the straps if possible. The result is that hoppers are the exception this year where they were formerly the rule.

"We didn't have so much trouble starting horses in the old days," said a gray haired man sitting in the grand stand at Oakland the other day. "Certainly not," was the quick and apt reply of a retired reinsman who sat next to him. "It's a whole lot easier to start slow horses than fast ones. When horses score at a 2:30 gait it is easy to get them together, but when they come down the stretch at a two minute clip there are bound to be several that can't stand the racket and there is more or less breaking. The 'good old days' will do for reminiscent purposes, but the best starters of twenty years ago would be as far outclassed in starting now-a-days as would the old time trotters in racing for the money."

The Abbot has equalled Bingen's record of 2:06 $\frac{1}{4}$, and it is very evident that Pa Hamlin knew what he was talking about when he said that if there was a horse that could beat Azote's record, The Abbot was the one. It is a far cry from 2:06 $\frac{1}{4}$ to 2:04 $\frac{1}{4}$, but it looks as if The Abbot could do the trick when especially pointed for it and all conditions are favorable. It was at Galesburg, Illinois, September 5, 1895 that the son of Whips got the mark that no trotter of the male persuasion has ever been able to reach. He went against time and was paced by a runner. The amount of money he won by the effort was but \$424. The old fellow could get more than that this year to beat 2:10. By the way, a letter was received by Samuel Gamble the other day from a friend in Cleveland and it contained the information that Azote had worked a mile in 2:15 recently.

Among the new faces seen on the California Circuit this year is that of Mr. A. T. Van De Vanter, who is enjoying the first vacation from his duties as Sheriff of King county, Washington, of which the thriving city of Seattle is the county seat. Mr. Van De Vanter is the proprietor of a stock farm in Washington that bears his name, and is an enthusiastic breeder of light harness horses. The premier stallion on his farm is Montana Director, a grand looking son of Director and Dolly 2:25, by Mambrino Diamond. Mr. V. tells me that Montana Director served over 70 mares this year, and he was compelled to lease Dr. Powell Reeves' stallion Guycisca, by Guy Wilkes, out of 1 Direct's dam, to breed to a lot of mares that were sent to the farm. Mr. Van De Vanter is one of the most genial of gentlemen, and must be about the most popular man in King county, as he has held the office of Sheriff for fourteen years. This recalls a remark the lamented "Uncle" George Woodard, of Yolo, once made when the chances of two candidates for Sheriff were being discussed. "Blank will win," said he; "you can't beat a man who loves a good horse and drives a fast one."

As long as people talk horse, says an Eastern correspondent, the two great battles in the Massachusetts Stake, last year and this, will furnish a topic. Last year this stake furnished what was in many respects the sensational race of the year, for while faster races were trotted it was a contest which for the stubbornness with which it was fought and the gameness shown by the winner has never been excelled. This year's race was almost an exact counterpart of that of last year. Last year a mare Caracalla won the first two heats in 2:10, 2:10 $\frac{1}{2}$. Then Belle J. placed the third and fifth heats to her credit in 2:11, 2:13 $\frac{1}{4}$, and Grattan Roy, which had been second in all the other heats, won the fourth and sixth heats in 2:13 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:11 $\frac{1}{4}$. When the race was carried over to the next day three horses had two heats each to their credit. In the deciding heat the bay stallion Grattan Roy, which had won everybody's favor by the bull dog gameness with which he had fought out every heat, came on and won the final heat in 2:12 $\frac{1}{4}$. This year Tom Boy stepped out and won the first two heats in 2:11 and 2:10 then Charley Herr won the third in 2:12, but was beaten in the fourth and fifth heats in 2:13 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:10 $\frac{3}{4}$ by the black stallion, Leco. The latter won the fifth heat in so impressive a manner that the race looked all over, but Charley Herr kept at his work so persistently that he forced the black stallion to several breaks which cost him the race. When the race went over three horses had two heats to their credit and strange to say Charley Herr, like Grattan Roy, last year's winner had been first or second in every heat. Charley Herr's victory in the deciding heat which was trotted Friday was very popular with everyone who admires a game, consistent race horse.

The Alameda Track.

Opportunities lie around out of doors here in California waiting for energetic people with a little capital to take hold of them and make money. For some unaccountable reason the residents of this State are slow to appreciate the fact that so many chances are offered, and allow them to remain unnoticed until some live easterner or new arrival from a foreign shore grasps them and begins reaping a reward for his foresight and energy. At Alameda there is one of these opportunities, which, with the expenditure of a small amount of capital, the application of a little energy and some business sense would bring a fair profit on the investment and be of vast benefit to the harness horse interest of the State. We refer to the track built a few years ago on the peninsula between the city of Alameda and the Government tidal canal. This track is a full regulation mile, and is on made ground, thrown up by the dredger which was engaged in deepening the channel. The gray silt or sediment from the bottom of the canal makes a track that with intelligent work can be made the best training track in the United States. There is no better authority on trotting and pacing tracks than Monroe Salisbury and that gentleman says the Alameda track can be made the best track in the whole country. He has had his horses there since the Santa Rosa meeting and says he is only surprised that he did not discover the fact before that such a place existed within twenty minutes of San Francisco. "But," says Mr. Salisbury "it needs work. There should be a good man with a team at work there nine hours a day, and two men with teams would be better," and the veteran campaigner added: "I don't know of a place where horsemen could train to better advantage than at Alameda had they the accommodations in the way of stable room, and were the track kept in good condition." As the place is at present there is nothing but a track and a little stand to accommodate probably 100 people and a stand for the judges. There are no stalls, no fences around the property and the track itself has never been properly leveled and worked. Yet it has been the training ground for many horses that have got fast records. Few horses there are but can be trained on the Alameda track and show no lameness even though they may do so elsewhere. The silt is, when properly watered and worked, the firmest of footing; and there is a spring to it that prevents a horse from becoming sore. It needs to be raised another foot or so all round, widened a little and leveled, and then there will be no finer track in the land. An opportunity is here offered for a person or corporation to invest a few thousand dollars in a profitable enterprise. It would not cost more than ten thousand dollars to fence the track and build two hundred stalls, and there is no doubt but that number could be kept rented continually were the track kept in order. If the necessary buildings were constructed, paying trotting meetings could be given there two or three times during the year, while Saturday matinees could be made popular. It would be of vast benefit to harness horse breeding and training, as many more residents of San Francisco would have their horses trained could they have them quartered at a track where an absence of hot air or two from business would be required to see them at their work. The Alameda track, with the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, would offer all that is desired in a training track, and it could be in use the year round. Can there not be a combination of capital and enterprise made that will take advantage of this opportunity?

Open-Air Horse Show.

The second annual open-air horse show of the Burlingame Country Club will be held on the club grounds on September 8 and 9. The rules of the Horse Show Association of the Pacific Coast will govern. The prizes will be blue, red and white ribbons with valuable cups for the specials. Entries are not restricted to members, but are open to all who may wish to avail themselves of the opportunity of exhibiting their horses.

In all there are twenty classes, including roadsters, harness horses, "appointment" classes, tandems, four-in-hands, including the best pony team, road team and park team. All four-in-hand teams that have won blue ribbons at previous California shows are barred. The wheelers of the first prize winning teams will, however, be eligible to be shown in this class, either as wheelers with novices in the lead or as leaders with novices in the wheel.

There are two classes for ponies, three for saddle horses, including one for lady's saddle horse fifteen hands or over. There are two classes for ponies and one for polo ponies. The entries in the latter are to be ridden at the bending poles, handiness, to count 50 per cent; conformation and soundness, 50 per cent.

There are six sub-divisions of the jumping class.

The driving competitions will include the best performance of an amateur in driving a tandem and a four-in-hand among obstacles and a special class for professional reinmen. A number of the classes are given over to California-bred horses. All must be shown before appropriate vehicles.

The committee having the affair in charge is made up of George Almer Nahall (chairman), John Parrott, Joseph B. Craddock, F. J. Carolan, Walter S. Hohart, Henry J. Crocker and George A. Pops. Major J. L. Rathbone is President of the club and A. B. Ford, Secretary.

Would Examine the Judges.

[Chicago Horse Review.]

"I'm thinkin'," remarked the swipe, "that some of these noisy newspaper guys, that howl around all winter about stronger rules against pullin' horses an' layin' up haats, would do more for their country if they would take time to frame up a few hot rules that would touch the judges. There wouldn't be no cheatin' if the judges was properly on to their jobs, and the only way to fix things is to map out a few rules for their benefit. There's plenty of rules in the book now to keep the driver's from chaatin', but the trouble is the judges is too crooked, or else they don't know enough to enforce them rules. I guess I wouldn't do much to that rule book if Papa Steiner would trade situations with me about a few minutes, would I? About the first one I'd write out would be rule number one, page number one, section number one, article number one, for judges only, and it would read about this wise: 'Every guy in America who rents himself out for a judge of any kind of a race horse, will step to the front of the judges' stand just before the meetin' begins, an' with his hat in his left mit, tell the congregated multitude of groomsters, teamsters and owners just what he knows about the business, after which he will submit to be cross-examined by any of the aforesaid groomsters, teamsters an' owners who don't like his looks.' I guess that wouldn't reformate the biz, would it? I don't think that rule would send more than a thousand of them thirsty, near-sighted colonels an' majors, an' mayors, an' aldermen, an' other popular dubs back into the grandstand, where they belong, would it? I guess yes—an' the sight wouldn't be worth the price at the gate, neither. Any dummy can see that a rule like that would be stronger than the ace, an' take the role against ringin' a pacer or makin' a confidential entry look like a two-spot."

"It certainly would," commented the owner.

"Sure thing," continued the swipe. "That rule would certainly do away with all this funny business in the judges' stand, and horse racin' would be a cleaner game than croquet or dominoes. When Mr. Judge stepped to the front of the stand to make his little spiel, all the boys would be standin' around on the track below, with their ears open. After he got through tellin' what he knew, and they got through askin' him questions, they would take a vote on him. If he was shy a point or two he would get it in the neck, an' if they passed him o. k. you can bet your hat that he would be the real Solomon. He would have to recite every rule in the book by heart, tell the names and pedigrees of every horse entered at the meetin', tell the difference between a pacer an' a trotter, an' tell how to put on a set of ear boots, how to clean a harness an' wash a rub-rag, an' tell the difference between an Indian an' a hack driver, an' between a lobster an' a good thing. He would have to prove that he could see the spots on the seven-eighths pole, an' talk to a man across the track, an' a lot of other things. When he got through with that, Surething Jimmy would ask him how many cock-tails it took to prime his nerve. If it took more than four he would lose Jimmy's vote. Andy McDowell would ask him if he had an Irish cross in his blood, an' if he had he would lose Andy's vote. Pa Hamlin would ask him if he owned any horses, an' how they were bred. If he owned some, an' they were Wilkes or Cossacks, Pop would give him twenty minutes to sell 'em or buy a Chimes filly, out of a Mambrino King mare. Texas Foote would ask him if he could tell every time whether the horse or the driver was doin' the layin' up. McHenry would ask him if he ever shocked corn. If Mr. Judge could satisfy that gang, after they all had a crack at him, I guess he would be good enough to manage his end of it from start to finish. He'd be a proper judge that couldn't make no mistakes if he tried. If a bad case come up, an' there wasn't no rola to exactly fit it, he would twist one around to cover the point. S'pose it was old man Chandler on the carpet, an' s'pose he swore by the Year Book that he never pulled a horse. I guess one of them kind of judges wouldn't call the turn or nothin', would he? He'd say: 'Mr. Chan., we ain't fixin' you this thousand dollars for pollin' the horse, but because you didn't hurry him, an' accordin' to my way of interpretin', the rule on this case, pullin' an' not horryin' mean the same thing; please get down out of the stand.' That's the kind of a judge we need, an' that's the kind we'd have if Jimmy could get a crack at the rule book."

SEVERAL poor decisions by officials at recent trotting meetings has again started the old argument that no one except regularly appointed and paid men should occupy the stand, at the grand circuit events at least. An old driver who has seen the business at every stage, said the other day, "The worst mistake these fellows make is putting incompetent men in the stands, when good, capable officials can be secured very easily. The only way to do is for the National Association to appoint officials in districts and provide a small fee for their services, say their expenses, as there are hundreds of horsemen who would gladly assist if they had the opportunity."—Trotter and Pacer.

MAY OVERTON, the well known Tennessee horseman and breeder, is quite sure that he has a great pacing prospect in a two-year-old colt by Bw Bells, out of Rosy Morn, by Alcantara. He is a beautifully formed colt, bears some resemblance to his distinguished sire, and has paced over the Nashville track a half in 1:08.

Clipper 2:09 3-4, by Diablo 2:09 1-4.

The first horse to enter the exclusive 2:10 list in California this year has a great deal of the best of thoroughbred blood in his veins. Although his showing on Monday last at Oakland was a poor one, Clipper's initial start at Santa Rosa on the 17th of August showed him to be a horse of phenomenal speed and with all the gameness that a race horse should possess. The first heat in this race was paced in 2:09½, Clipper beating Kelly Briggs 2:10½, about a half length through the stretch. The next heat was Clipper's in 2:13. Daedalion, another son of Diablo, had gone a couple of easy heats, and went out for the third as though he had suddenly woken up to the fact that a horse race was on. He paced the mile in 2:11, and Clipper was at his shoulder at the wire. In the fourth and final heat Clipper and Daedalion had a grand struggle through the stretch the former winning in 2:11½. That race was Clipper's only start at Santa Rosa. When he scored on for the word in the 2:18 pace at Oakland last Monday he was a big favorite over the field of 12 horses, but he failed to get a heat and finished outside the money. Darfee drew a poor position, was an eighth of a mile behind when the leader was at the quarter pole, but paced the middle half in 1:03 and finished third, going to a break about 75 yards from the wire, or he would have been second. The breaks made in this heat were the first Clipper had made this year, and his reputation for a perfectly reliable and steady four-year-old, coupled with his wonderful speed, was what made his admirers believe that he was almost invincible, as they know he was game. But in the three heats on Monday he broke badly, and plainly showed that he knew nothing about that part of the racing game as he would have to be pulled to a walk before he could get his legs moving properly again. Although he made such a poor showing last Monday Clipper will make amends for it before the season is ended or we will see 2:10. Clipper, out of harness, looks very much like a thoroughbred in racing condition. He is a trim leggy, very deep through the chest, and with a slightly waspish look about his loins. His hack is short, however, his ribs well rounded and the muscles of his legs well let down. There is a very racy look about him, something of the greyhound appearance, that he probably gets from his thoroughbred ancestry. Celerity, Clipper's dam was sired by Ulster Chief 18,011, a son of Hambletonian 10 and Lady Ulster, by Duocasa Mambrino. Ulster Chief's granddam was, according to the first volume of the Trotting Register, a mare of Massachusetts stock. Celerity's dam was the thoroughbred mare Centennial Belle, by Woodhorn, his granddam the famous old Bonnie Balla, by Williamso's Belmont, and his great granddam Liz Giveas, by imported Langford, etc. Bonnie Balla was the dam of that good rooing horse Phil Sheridan, by Norfolk, that won a memorable race at Sacramento during the State Fair of 1872, when he beat Democrat Nell Flaherty and Nettie Brown in a seven heat race, mile heats, best three in five. Democrat won the first two heats, Nell Flaherty the next two, and Phil Sheridan the next three, going to the post in the last two heats very lame, but game to the last. With such blood from his dam's side of the house, and with that of Strathmore, Elcioneer, imported Herald, imported Trustee, Geo. Wilkes, Alcantara, Pilot Jr., and other great progenitors of speed and gameness, acquired through his sire Diablo 2:09½, Clipper is by inheritance a member of the royal families, and whose campaign of 1899 is finished we believe he will have added honor to the family escutcheon.

Renovation at Sacramento Track.

Director J. W. Wilson, of the State Agricultural Society, is this year Superintendent of Agricultural Park, Sacramento, and during the past two weeks has been directing the renovation and beautifying of that historical race track and fair grounds.

There has been a thorough cleansing of the stalls and stable buildings and all the structures put in the best possible condition for the fair which opens on Monday next. The grand stand front and all the smaller stands have been given fresh coats of paint, until they look like new, while the walls and fences have been neatly "whitewashed" though the prevailing color is a grayish blue that is very soft and pleasing to the eye.

One change in particular that has been made will be greatly appreciated by the throngs that view the races from the ground beneath the grand stand. It is the removal of the iron fence that ran from the judges' stand along the line of the grand stand northward to the end of the stand, fencing off the space between the stand and the race track known as the "quarter-stretch."

This leaves an uninterrupted ground space from the west line of the grand stand clear to the track, with no gait-keepers to pass to the quarter-stretch only those who had paid extra for that privilege.

The only fence that remains is one that surrounds the judges' stand. The stairway to the reporters' stand has been changed from the north to the south end, and comes within this small inclosure, so that only those who are entitled to seats therein can have access to the steps. This arrangement will be appreciated by the press reporters who have to work every minute that they are in the stand, as heretofore their narrow workbox has been overrun with people who had no connection with newspapers.

GOLDEN GATE FAIR.

Seven Days of Good Racing Will Close To-Day at the Oakland Track.

Since last Saturday, the opening day of the Golden Gate Fair, there has been some first class racing over the Oakland track. The big reception to the soldier boys on Saturday last kept many away from the track that would otherwise have been present, and there was not a very large crowd to enjoy the excellent running program that had been provided for the opening. But it was a hetting crowd however, and the syndicate hookmakers handled about eighteen thousand dollars, it is said, nearly three thousand of which they managed to keep. J. W. Brooks, handicapper for the California Jockey Club, acted as presiding judge, and Richard J. Haves as the starter. He did not use the Gray machine, but the simple rubber hand across the track, there being no royalty to pay on this device. He got his fields off very well in most instances. Following are the day's summaries:

MONDAY, AUGUST 28.

On Monday the program consisted of two harness events and three running races. The first of the harness races was the 2:40 trot, in which Psyche, Eleanor Ann and Tickets fought over again the contests had at Santa Rosa two weeks previous, and Psyche won. She was shyly handled by the veteran Billy Donathan and never did a trotter show more gameness. In the first heat she was unsteady and broke four times during the mile, but Donathan landed her in fourth position at the finish. El Moro, a handsome little black gelding by the Sidney horse Longworth 2:19, took the first heat. He is a regular trotting machine and marched off in the lead with arched neck and sufficient knee action to take a prize in a hackney show. McBriar, a good looking son of McKinney, was second, and Tickets third. The next heat went to Tickets who made the mile in 2:20 1/2, the same notch as his Santa Rosa record. El Moro was second again and Psyche, in spite of two or three losing breaks got into the third position by very fast trotting in the last quarter. From this on the race was the property of the daughter of Cupid, and she made it three straight. El Moro continued to be the competing horse and no horse ever more honestly won second money than he. Eleanor Ann showed lots of speed getting away, but finished beyond the money line in the race, her heat being the last when she was third.

The 2:18 pace had a field of twelve horses and it was a hard one to start. Clipper, his son Santa Rosa race was a heavy favorite, selling at even money against the field. The race was not a satisfactory one by any means. Clipper did something that he had never done before—acted badly. He broke in every heat and got no part of the purse. P. H. Quinn's big colt John A. did the most of the pace making during the race, won the first heat, and was twice second—Roblet, W. H. Lomsden's seven-year-old mare, by Robin, out of Eveline (the dam of Mande Fowler 2:21 1/2), by Nutwood, was driven by Dick Haves in this race. She was absolutely last the first heat and went an easy mile. In the second heat she tried a little harder and was in eighth position when they finished. The third heat Roblet went out like a snre enough pacer and won handily from Dictatress, who stood the hardest kind of a drive through the stretch and won third money by finishing second. El Diahlo, a chestnut colt by Diahlo, was second the first heat and won the second heat in a drive from John A., but broke down in the leg which was fired when he was a three-year-old and had to be withdrawn. After the third heat there were but two starters left, none of the others excepting Diahlo having won a heat and the fourth had hut Roblet and John A. as starters. Roblet won easily.

The Oakland track is at least four or five seconds slower than any well prepared trotting track. At least twenty feet in width next the pole is cut up for the runners thus making the route the trotters have to go about 125 or 130 feet more than a mile, while the footing in no place is extra good for either trotter or pacer. Good judges are firm in the opinion that a mile in 2:15 at Oakland is fully as good as 2:11 at Santa Rosa.

The running races on Monday were three in number and the mile race won by Twinkle Twink was an excellent contest. The summary of the day's races follow:

First race, 2:40 class, trotting, purse $1000, mile heats, three in five. TUESDAY, AUGUST 27.

Tuesday brought out an increased attendance over Monday as that day had over Saturday. The program opened with the race for trotters of the 2:16 class with ten starters. Neeretta, the handsome little black mare from Santa Ana that won such a good race at the Santa Rosa meeting, was made the favorite and though she gave her supporters a touch of heart disease by getting her gait all mixed up in the second heat she landed the first and third heats in true race horse style, trotting the slow track in 2:16 the first heat and in 2:17 1/2 in the third. P. W. Hodges, who has been hack from the East but a few weeks with his horses, had evidently been here just long enough for Our Lucky to feel well, and the son of Rajah made Mr. Ford's mare get right down to business to heat him. He was a class second in both heats won by the mare and captured the one she lost after a hard race with Mamie Riley and Ned Thorne. Soe, the Athadon mare that has shown great speed in her work would not trot a little hit, and after finishing last the first time, was distanced the second heat. Addison, on whom considerable money was played was also on his bad behavior, but trotted very fast in the last heat when he was not breaking.

The second race was for the 2:12 pacers and went to the big stallion Arthur W. in straight heats. Before the race I Direct was favorite and several pool hyners did well by taking the field against him at even money. I Direct made a poor showing and was unsteady, though he wore the hopples. This horse has paced a mila in 2:10 in his work and the horsemen who had seen him do it had their checks down on him for the race. He is evidently off but will round to and win a fast race before the season is over in all probability. Beechwood showed a great deal of speed the last half of both heats, and will do to watch in her next race. The little Altamont gelding Deciever was a good second the first heat in 2:15 and paced a very good race. Don, the grand looking son of Falrose, disappointed his backers, of whom there were many, making him an even favorite with I Direct.

The running races gave the good two-year-old filly Juletto, by Imp. July, a chance to win a good race. She was the third winner that trainer J. Hutchinson had put over the mark out of three starts at the meeting, and they are the only three in his stable. Following are the day's summaries:

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 20.

The fourth day of the Golden Gate meeting furnished a good day's sport in the way of close contests and considerable money went into the hands of the hookmakers, a good healthy per centage of which they kept. The 2:30 pace, which opened the program, had six starters, Wild Ntling, Vileria, Gaff Topsail, Sable La Grande, Primrose and Captain Hackett scoring up for the word in the first heat. They were sent away to a fair start, Wild Ntling, the favorite, at the pole. Dat Bigelow, however, had a whirlwind scorer in the Button mare Valeria, full sister to Vidette and Violin, and she had taken the pole from Donathan's horse when the quarter pole was reached. Wild Ntling broke going up the back stretch and Bigelow kept Vileris going right along and she won by two lengths in 2:19, thus giving Alexander Button a new performer and a 2:20 one at that. Vileris is a handsome mare, but the Flaxtail hood she gets from her dam was not warm enough to enable her to come back again, and the son of Wild Nt and Helens 2:11 1/2, took the next three heats. In the third heat there was a whipping finish between him and Gaff Topsail and they crossed the line so close together that many thought the Dishlo horse had won but Donathan's horse had his nose in front at the point where the race ends. Sable Le Grand made a good showing in the second heat. Primrose was not fast enough to keep up with the procession and Captain Hackett added another "dist." to his already long list. The race presented the peculiar feature of each succeeding heat being faster than the preceding one.

Alix B. was made favorite for the 2:26 trot, but was only able to save her entrances. This mare was one of the greatest prospects in California a few months ago. She was driven quarters in 31 seconds to a cart before being trained for the track, and it was thought she would be a 2:10 trotter ere before the season was over. Perhaps she got too much hard road work before her track training began. Something has happened here at all events, and she will probably not be picked for a winner again for some time. The starters in this race besides the Nutwood Wilkes mare were Lottie by San Diego, Mand Newman by Anteo Jr., Sybil S. by Hambletonian Wilkes, Salasine by Boydell, and Kentucky Baron, the only son of Baron Wilkes that has ever been seen on our California tracks. Lottie, well driven by Spencer, made it three straight, and though pushed to her speed by Mand Newman in the first two heats and by Sybil S. in the third, had enough to win handily each time. Lottie is a greatly improved mare and is showing some of the speed that her two-year-old form gave promise of. She got a record of 2:26 1/2 as a two-year-old, but was unable to reduce it until this season, when she trotted to a mark of 2:16 at Santa Rosa. She is now seven years old. Lottie is by San Diego, a son of Alcega Clay and Fontana, by Altmont. Her dam is Flora B. 2:27 (dam of Topsy 2:27), by Whippleton.

A five-furlong scramble for runners followed. Lotblian, with Eddie Jones up, carried the bulk of the coin bet at odds of 4 to 5, but was outfooted and beaten a head by Shellac, ridden by "Monk" Cohnrn, the freckled prodigy. Mt. McGregor II. came out of retirement and made shore work of his company in the second five-furlong sprint. Starting favorite, the big horse overhauled Indra in the stretch, winning hands down. February, hadly intarfered with soon after the start, came fast toward the close, gating the place from Indra. Amosa ran disappointingly under Golden's guiding.

Ponds the best, Fortis again met with had racing luck in the final mile run. Starting equal choice with Ringmaster, the O'Kane entry was cut off right after the start, falling to the rear, then dropping from the clouds and taking the show. Jennie Reid led the big field until within a few yards of the wire, where she was collared and beaten out by the outsider Alicia, with Davin on her hack.

The summaries are as follows: Pacing, 2:30 class, three in five, purse $1000. Wild Ntling, br b, by Willmot—by Neerum (Donathan) 2 1 1 Valeria, b m, by Alex Button (Bigelow) 1 3 4 Gaff Topsail, cb b, by Diahlo (Smith) 6 5 2 Sable Le Grand, br g, by Sable Wilkes (Frown) 4 2 3 Primrose, m, by Altamont (Kirkland) 3 4 8 Captain Hackett, b g, by Helmway (Lapbam) da

THE STATE FAIR OPENS MONDAY and all roads will lead to Sacramento during the next two weeks. There is no longer any doubt about its being well attended. There will be more people in Sacramento while the exposition is in progress than have been seen there for many a long day. There have been some great State fairs held there, but there has probably never been a time when the Directors of the association and the people of Sacramento worked together so energetically and harmoniously as they are doing this year. President Spreckels has taken every hour he could spare from his private business and devoted it to the State Agricultural Society and the fair, Secretary Shields has been imbued with a desire to make his first year as Secretary as successful as possible, the Directors have all had their shoulders at the wheel and the result is that when the Pavilion and Park are thrown open on Monday, everything will be in place and the State Fair of 1899 will be fully under way. It is said by those who know that there never has been a year when the Pavilion has shown such a completeness on the opening day as will be seen in the way of exhibits this year. Everything will be in its place. The stock exhibit at the park will be very large this year, the cattle exhibit giving promise of being the largest and finest ever seen in the State. The races will be first class. There will be better contests and faster time in the harness contests than have been seen at the track there for years. The running races will have large fields in the overnight events, and the stake races will bring out many high class performers. In short the State Fair of 1899 will be a grand exposition of California live stock and California products, and none can afford to miss it.

IT IS POOR POLICY as a general thing for associations giving a week of professional racing to hang up purses for amateurs without making special conditions for them. In nearly every instance there will be trouble. The crowd that bets its money never makes allowances for amateur drivers, and is ready to accuse the driver of a losing horse of all sorts of crooked work if they have lost a few dollars on him. To replace an amateur with a professional driver is not fair to the other drivers in the race who have taken both driver and horse into consideration when making their entries. In short, dissatisfaction results all around over most amateur races and they had better be left off the cards unless special conditions are made for them and which are made plain to all concerned before the race starts.

SALINAS ENTRIES will close to-day, and horse owners should make no mistake by omitting to enter their trotters and pacers for the purses offered by the Monterey Agricultural Association. For the free-for-all trotters $600 is hung up and for the free-for-all pacers a like amount. Some of the trainers and owners of this State went clear across the Rocky mountains this year to trot for half that amount. The 2:15 classes at Salinas have $500 to trot for, there are four $400 and two $300 purses. The Monterey Association always pays its purses in full and gives a high class meeting. The President is that grand old man of California, Hon. Jesse D. Carr, and the Secretary, Mr. John J. Kelly, of Salinas. These two names are sufficient guarantee that every promise made to the horsemen will be fulfilled. There is no other meeting of importance on the date selected for the Salinas fair, which will open Tuesday, October 3d, and close the Saturday following. Every horse owner and trainer who reads to-day's BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN should look over the list of purses in the advertisement of the Monterey Association and enter as liberally in the purses as possible. There is good money to be won at Salinas this year.

TWO PURSES OF $1000 EACH, offered by the Stockton Driving Club will close Tuesday next, September 5th. They are both for trotting horses—one being for the 2:20, the other for the 2:13 class. Stockton's meeting gives every promise of being one of the best held in California this year. The Driving Club, under whose auspices it is to be given, are an enthusiastic body of young men who are bent on making the meeting a success in every particular. They have made preparations to entertain those who attend their fair this year in a manner that will cause them to enjoy their visit and want to return every year. As Stockton follows the State Fair on the circuit and is but a two hours run from Sacramento, it is easy to reach by all who attend the big State exposition.

A NEW PLAN has been adopted in the shipment of horses to Manila for used in the army. Heretofore animals shipped by way of Honolulu have been given a week's rest at that place, the ships meanwhile lying idle in the harbor. It is now proposed to unload and return to San Francisco. With another load the ship will proceed to Honolulu and then pick up the first load and proceed to Manila, leaving the second load to be taken later. Another plan is being considered to have one ship run between San Francisco and Honolulu only, and three between Honolulu and Manila. The Department is experiencing some difficulty with the horses which have been shipped from the East to the Coast, as they have not stood the journey very well.

THE NEVADA STATE FAIR will open at Reno the week following the California State Exposition. The entries to the trotting and pacing events close September 10th and the purses and conditions will be found in our advertising columns. After the meeting at Reno, Carson will give a week of racing, and following Carson the horses will cross over to Susanville in Plumas county for another week of racing. There are some very fair purses hung up on this circuit and there is always a good attendance at the meetings.

THE HAY CROP has been heavy this year in California and prices are away down. Over East there is a different story. The Chicago Horseman says the hay crop is short throughout the Mississippi valley and advises horsemen to buy their winter supply right away before the rise in price which is sure to come. Perhaps this shortage in hay over there may be one more inducement for horses and trainers to ship their training stables to California to spend the winter.

MORE MARES WILL BE BRED next year in California than there have been for a number of seasons. Every owner of a good stallion should as soon as the present racing season is over make an announcement of the locality where his horse will stand and the service fee to be charged. There will be a number of high class stallions in the field and considerable rivalry for business.

THE BIG PACING EVENT at Danbuque was a disappointment after all. Of the four that were entered Directly, Planet, Ananias and Frank Bogash, the latter failed to start, being engaged at Hartford the same day. Directly won easily, the fastest heat being the first, which was made in 2:07. The other two were in 2:08 1/2 and 2:08 3/4 respectively.

THE PARIS OMNIBUS COMPANY has been held up as a scarecrow to horse breeders, it having during the past year had a large number of automobiles in successful operation. After a thorough trial of the best machines it could buy, the company has now concluded that the old reliable four footed beast of the genus Equus does the work of pulling cabs and carriages through the finely paved streets of Paris in a much more satisfactory and economical manner than do the machines. If horses are better than automobiles on pavements, where would the latter be on the average country roads?

The Best Since Hamburg

The consensus of opinion in the East is that Chacornac is the best two-year-old since Hamburg's year and it is hoped that in the son of Jovenal-Laetitia Mr. Keene has secured another Domino. Trainer James Rowe, who handled the youngster, is smothered with congratulations, both for his straightforward methods in giving a public trial to Chacornac at Saratoga, and the finished fashion in which he sent him to the post for the big prize. It was a historic triumph for Rowe, as he had previously prepared the noted winners Potomac and L'Alouette. This tied the enviable record of J. J. Hyland, who had scored with His Highness, Reqnital, and the Bntlerflies. Both the noted trainers can now call it "quite," with honors about even, but Hyland would be justified in holding out for another try after getting so close to the crown with Brigadier. The Rayon d'Or gelding ran a cracking good race, and many shrewd judges assert that if Burns had been more energetic he might have won out. This draws attention to the fact that the best of the Rayon d'Ore, Don de Oro, after a brilliant season, which was unfortunately interrupted by an accident, is through with racing. Trainer Boden has decided to retire the Don. He has never recovered from the injury he sustained when he grabbed his foot in working at Gravesend for the Suburban, which looked like a gift for him. He has won his spurs, however, and proved his quality, and it would hardly be fair to push him any further. Don de Oro started thirteen times this season. He won seven events and ran second in three, a record that is emphasized by the fact that in the other events he was off so badly that his chances were hopeless.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 31.

While the trotting and pacing portion of the program of Golden Gate Fair did not show much class on Thursday, it was very exciting and drew a good attendance. Two purses of $300 each were hung up for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association to compete for, and the members and their friends were on hand in large numbers to see the sport and back their favorites.

The slower amateur event caused some dissatisfaction. E. Stewart's Billy McKinley took the first heat in 2:26 1/2, and Dr. Miller's Lady Falrose the second in 2:24. There was some complaint about Elsie not being driven to win and the judges took Mr. Holland from the sulky and substituted Dick Havey who won with the mere.

The three-year-old race ended in a victory for the favorite Miss Bernsbee, by McKinley, though after the second heat had been won by Ches. Griffith's black filly Corone, by Direct, in faster time than the filly trotted the first, there was quite a plunge on her, but she acted badly and though finishing a nose in front in the third heat was set back to last place for repeatedly breaking.

Ialita Wins Another Big Stake.

The Nutwood Driving Club of Dubuque, Iowa, is this week giving one of the greatest harness meetings ever held in America. There are from ten to fifteen thousand people present every day and the racing is of a very high class. Nearly $125,000 in purses and stakes are to be raced for during the week. On Tuesday Idolla, bred at Palo Alto and owned by Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., pulled down the winner's share of the rich Horse Review Stake, for three-year-old trotters. The little bay walked from his field in each of the three heats and won hands down. The purse was worth $20,000, and was the third of a series of Futurity offerings put up by Mr. John C. Bauer, proprietor of the Chicago Horse Review.

The race was the fastest three-year-old Futurity ever trotted. The first heat was made in the following time: 0:33, 1:06, 1:40, 2:12 1/2. This was the fastest of the three heats, and equaled the three-year-old record in a class trot made at Louisville last year.

The money was divided as follows: Idolla, owned by Frank Jones, $9,000; Extacy, owned by H. C. McDowell of Lexington, $4,500; Rita E., owned by H. W. Brown of Salt Lake, $2,250; Irma Electric, owned by Henry Axell of Dallas, Tex., $1,250; My Trick, owned by Marcus Daly of Montana, $500.

The balance of the purse was divided between the nominators of the sires of the winner and the second horse. Of this amount the estate of Senator Stanford secured $2,000, the winner having been entered by the Palo Alto Stock Farm.

From Buffalo Girl to Lady of the Manor.

From the day the Buffalo mare, Boffalo Girl, placed the world's record for pacing mares at 2:12 1/2, it has taken seventeen years for the city at the foot of the lake to produce another champion, and in those years the record has been cut nine times in making a reduction of 8 1/2 seconds. Lady of the Manor, the champion, who placed the record at 2:04 1/2, is the young Mambrino King mare, for which her owner last winter predicted a mark of two minutes. As she paced in 2:04 1/2 immediately after rounding into form the veteran breeder of Boffalo may see his hopes realized by the time Lexington is reached. For a long time the pacing mares were not keeping pace with stallions and geldings, as were the trotting mares. It has taken them almost ten years to cut the record from 2:10 to 2:05, but since 1895 there has been an annual drop in the record, and they may reach the two minute line in a hurry.

Boffalo Girl, by Pocabontas Boy, 1882 2:12 1/2; Guld Leaf, by Sidney, 1889 2:11 1/2; Cricket, by Stelway, 1890 2:10; Vinette, by Erban Wilkes, 1892 2:09 1/2; May Marshall, by Billy Wilkes, 1893 2:08 1/2; Angie D., by Mikagan, 1895 2:07; Lottie Lorraine, by Gambetta Wilkes-Pearl Onward, by Onward (dead beat), 1896 2:06 1/2; Lottie Lorraine, by Gambetta Wilkes-Bessie Bonchill, by Empire Wilkes (dead beat), 1897 2:05 1/2; Lenna N., by Sidney, 1898 2:05 1/2; Lady of the Manor, by Mambrino King, 1899 2:04 1/2.

American Sportsman.

THE many friends of Walter Jennings, the well known horseman, will regret to learn that while he was driving a horse along Ocean Avenue, Sheephead Bay, on the night of July 5th, the animal became frightened and ran away and in spite of Mr. Jennings' efforts it dashed through a group of women who were standing in the road waiting for a car. Several of the women were knocked down, and one, Miss Kelly, so seriously injured that she died several weeks afterward. Mr. Jennings was arrested and charged with homicide. Of course, the charge was a technical one and he was released on $2500 bail, which was promptly furnished.

AUGUST 18TH. George Lynch, a jockey who has been riding at St. Louis this summer, was thrown when his mount fell during some crowding on the first turn, and was so badly crushed that he died on the way to the hospital. He was twenty-eight years old. Jockey Kitley was also thrown in the scrimmage and sustained injuries that will lay him on the shelf for some time.

THERE is always a congregation of horsemen at Kapp & Streets, 1200 Market street, and the winners on the Circuit of 1899 are nightly picked out.

Sulky Notes.

STATE FAIR opens Monday next.

SALINAS entries will close to-night.

LADY OF THE MANOR 2:04½ is queen of pacing mares.

ED TIFTON is in Kentucky buying horses for the Europeans.

SYNDICATE book betting is not conducive to good contests.

TWO big purses offered by Stockton Club close next Tuesday.

$1500 was the price paid for Clipper 2:09½, by Chas. A. Durfee.

THE blood of Nutwood is very prominent in this season's winners.

THE Sidney blood comes to front from some new quarter every year.

NEERETTA 2:12½ is the only one of Neerut's progeny that has ever been trained.

SALADIN 2:05½ is again in training at Belmont. He is to be raced this fall, so it is said, at least.

ROBLET, the winner of the 2:18 pace at Oakland, is credited with a trial mile in 2:07 at Santa Rosa.

MRS. JOHN McCORD, of Sacramento, will sell at the State Fair a number of horses bred by her late husband.

NEVADA'S State Fair opens September 18th for one week. Entries to the harness events will close September 10th.

LOS ANGELES is getting ready for a splendid meeting in October. There will be a number of Eastern horses there.

WHENEVER Addison 2:11½ gets just right and strikes a good track, look out for a 2:10 performer for James Madison.

BELSIRE, brother to Bow Bells, Chimes, Bell Boy, St. Bel, etc., took a time record of 2:21½, at Lexington recently.

THE Sacramento track will be in pretty fair condition for the trotters this year and we look to see the track record broken.

NED THORNE is showing lots of speed, and Hellman will give him a low mark before the season is over unless some accident happens.

THE Santa Rosa meeting was the best held in years in California. Good management, good purses and auction pool betting brought it about.

THE great meeting at Empire City Park, New York, opens Monday next. There is every prospect of it being one of the best ever held in America.

ZOMBRO 2:11 and Stam B. 2:11½ are both missed from the circuit this year. It is to be hoped they will be out next season in shape to reduce their records.

OWSHEE keeps up his winning gait. He won the 2:19 trot at Hartford last Tuesday, taking the second, third and fourth heat, his best time being 2:12½.

THE Alameda track has been the rendezvous for a number of trainers during the past week. They found it much better to work horses on than the Oakland track.

THEODORE SHELTON 2:09½, a recent addition to the 2:10 list, is a full brother to John R. Gentry. Once he was thought to be as fast as the "little red boss."

HAYWARD, the full brother to Stamboulette and Ellert, that B. O. Van Bokkelen purchased and sent to W. J. Andrews at Cleveland, has stepped a mile in 2:25 already.

WHEN D. E. Knight's horse Daimont gets a good send off and the track is good he will step a mile so fast that the horse that defeats him will have to trot better than 2:15.

DR. BOOK was a starter in the Allison Stake at Dubuque last Monday, but was back among the also started contingent. Sarah S. won in straight heats and the best time time was 2:09½.

ANDY McDOWELL drove Monterey in the 2:10 trot won by Crescens at Readville. Monterey was fifth in the summary, his best heat being the third when he was a close second in 2:10½.

DIRECTOR A. H. COHEN started the harness horses at Oakland on Monday and Director C. S. Crittenden performed the same work on Tuesday. Both are better than raw hands at the business.

THE produce of Blue Bull mares are showing up well this year. Hal B. 2:04½, Will Tranby 2:06½, Fanny Dillard 2:08½ and Royal Baron 2:10½, trace back to the old Indiana sire on their dams' side.

HUMBOLDT county always sends down a few good winners to the circuit and they are always good lookers. Iowa, Arthur W. and John A. are as fine looking horses as can be found in any country.

IN the entry book issued by the State Agricultural Society Neeretta's name appears among those entered for the free for all and the 2:13 trotting events. This is wrong, as it should be Neerut. The similarity of the names led the printer to the error.

DON'T miss Salinas this year. The meeting there does not conflict with any other and the purses are very liberal. No better conducted meeting is held in California than the one at the county seat of Monterey county.

BOOKMAKING will kill harness racing in California unless it is tabooed on harness tracks. The district fair people will be wise if they insist on auction pool betting alone on the result of harness racing next year.

DIABLO 2:09½, leads all stallions this year in the number of new performers. Six of his get have started and all have secured records below 2:25, the slowest being the two-year-old Rey del Diablo that got a mark of 2:23½.

FRESNO, San Jose and Salinas ought to provide more business events for their meetings now that there is a chance that runners will be scarce owing to the early opening of the California Jockey Club's meeting at Oakland.

IDOLITA won the Horse Review $20,000 Futurity at Dubuque, Iowa, last Tuesday. His share of the stake was $9000, which added to the stakes previously won by the colt, make his total winnings up to date $17,200.

JOE CROMIE, of Lexington, Kentucky, owns a three-year-old mare by Mr. A. B. Spreckels' stallion Dexter Prince, out of a mare by Electioneer, that trotted a mile in 2:27½, last quarter in 25½ seconds, with but 30 days training.

LOU CRELLIN, formerly one of the owners of Searchlight, is expected home from the East to-morrow. He has been with Keating since the Denver meeting and has seen all the races on the Grand Circuit this year as far as Readville.

THERE is a report in the East that James Butler has changed his mind in regard to Klatawah 2:05½, and instead of laying him over this year will put the son of Steinway in Keating's hands and have him prepared for the fall races.

OUR LUCKY is improving very fast since he landed in California, and should be able to win in his class very soon. He trotted a corking good race against Neeretta last Tuesday, making all the pace and being the contending horse in every heat.

WINNIE WILKES, a daughter of Roy Wilkes, paced a quarter over the Alameda track one day last week in 31½ seconds, and when in good condition should be able to do the mile in 2:15 or better. She is owned by K. P. Greeley of Oakland.

THE local demand in New York for roadsters, trotters and eaddlers is remarkably good at present, and many dealers report large sales and short supplies. The carriage and wagon trade is also much better than the average during the hot season.

JOE EDGE's big gelding Hank, by Vasto, showed in scoring that he is possessed of a good deal of speed, but like most big horses he is a poor breaker. He was just outside the money in his race last Monday. Another race or two and he should get a mark of 2:15 or better.

GEO. W. FORD's black mare is given the name Neeretta by the Year Book. Mr. Ford tells us she was named Neerata, but as there was no particular significance to the spelling of the last two syllables, he will let it go as the Year Book has it and spell it Neeretta henceforth.

STRANGELY enough, the Village Farm horses, The Abbott and The Queen, have each in their turn trotted the fastest heat in the M. and M. at Detroit without winning money in that stake, The Abbott in 1897 and The Queen in 1899. The Abbott trotted in 2:11½ and The Queen in 2:10½.

MR. A. C. DEITZ of Santa Paula, who formerly resided in Oakland and was at one time President of the Golden Gate Fair Association, was present at the Oakland track Monday and had the pleasure of seeing the black horse El Moro, a son of his horse Longworth 2:19, take a record of 2:20.

JENNY MAC got second money in a free for all pace at Pontiac, Ill., August 25th. She was beaten by Gilee Noyee driven by George West. Gilee Noyee won the deciding heat in 2:10½, the track record. Jennie Mac won the second heat in 2:11½ and was second twice. The track is a half mile one.

BUDD DORLE is hard at work at Gilroy with the horses lately purchased by him from A. B. Spreckels. He has found two or three great prospects already. Sam Gamble has been down there during the past week and says the get of Aptos Wilkes are going to be prize winners if they are made ready for the horse shows.

THE harness horse trainers will in all probability not find another track on the circuit as good as the one at Santa Rosa. The soil there is particularly suited for a fast and safe track, it was kept in perfect condition and fast time was the result. It is a pity there are not more like it in California this year. There will be next if the old time trotting circuit could be revived.

FOR the amount of speed she has J. B. Iverson's little mare Dictress is about as game a piece of horseflesh as any on the California circuit. She is always among the first to the half and fighting hard for second or third position at the wire. She has the ill fortune to race against horses with more speed that she has generally, but she pegs right along and is not far from the leader at the finish.

CHARLEY HERR, winner of the $10,000 Massachusetts Stake at Readville, was one of the best three-year-olds out last year. He started nine times in 1898 and won five races. He divided second and third money with Limerick in the Kentucky $10,000 Futurity won by Peter the Great. He is by the California bred horse Alfred G., his dam Bessie Huntington, by Happy Traveler, and his second dam by Mambrino Patchen.

FANNIE DILLARD won the Milwaukee Stakes for 2:12 pacers at Dubuque; four beats were paced better than 2:10. The only California owned horse in the race was Jennie Mac. She finished outside the money.

HENRY SANDERS who drove Derby Princess to her record in 2:03½ and went part way through the Grand Circuit with Derby Lass, has purchased Ethel B., winner of the 2:26 trot at Rockford, Ill., from a field of nine starters. She simply played with the field in this race, taking a record of 2:23½, and she is so promising that Sanders intends to start in the M. and M. Stake at Detroit next year.

SUNLAND BELLE has again demonstrated her abilities as a wagon mare and August 12th, at Glenville track, Cleveland, she reduced her former pacing record to wagon from 2:10 to 2:03½, within a quarter of a second of her sulky record. She was driven by her owner, Mr. Outhwaite. The Belle is a bay mare, seven years old, and was got by Bourbon Wilkes 2345, out of Dimeana, by Nutwood 600; grandam Lavina, dam of Barada 2:22½, etc., by Cuyler 100.

SAM HOY was missed from the Oakland meeting with his string of trotters and pacers that showed so well at Santa Rosa. Sam is one of those who believe that the Oakland track is entirely unsuited to speed a harness horse over and said early in the season that he would not make any entries at meetings held there. Last year several of his horses got knocked out on the "whale back" track, and he will take no more chances there. His string will be seen at Sacramento next week, however.

THE Patchen Wilkes Stock Farm Company has let a contract for one of the largest training barns in Kentucky. The barn will be 524 feet in length, 70 feet wide, and contain 80 box stalls. The interior will be finished throughout in hard wood and will be equipped with improved sliding fire doors. The lumber required in its erection will be 400,000 feet, 15,000 shingles and 8500 pounds of nails. The total cost of the barn will be $18,000. There will also be a half-mile training track, all under cover, and made continuous by loops at either end.

IRVINGTON BOY, a three-year-old colt by Nutwood Wilkes, started in the 2:18 pace at Oakland, on Monday last, and showed that he was a game youngster. He paced in hoppers and after finishing seventh in the first beat improved his position to fourth in the second heat. He broke just before reaching the wire and got to buck jumping, falling after crossing the score and turning clear over. Cecil, his driver, made a leap for life, and outside of a sprained wrist and a few bruises was not injured. The colt was held down until he could be unhitched from the sulky and got up with both knees skinned and his nose bleeding. He started the next beat, finished sixth and was thus ruled out with the other non-winners of a heat.

PETER THE GREAT, the son of Pilot Medium that took a three-year-old record of 2:12½ last year, winning the Kentucky $10,000 Futurity, and making his mark in the third heat, is certainly a well named horse. At Hartford last Wednesday he won the Old Hickory Purse for trotters of the 2:13 class, taking the second, third and fourth heats in 2:03½, 2:09½ and 2:10½. Charley Herr won the first heat in 2:10½ and was second, and Fred Kohl was third. Peter the Great is the best four-year-old that has appeared since Directum's time, and the latter is the only horse that ever trotted as fast at the same age. Up to 1893 Alix held the four-year-old record of 2:10, but during that year Directum reduced it five or six times, finally placing it at 2:05½—one that will be hard for any horse to reduce or even equal.

SAYS a Buffalo exchange: It is enough to drive a man to drink to bond a horse over to the Fort Erie race track in Canada. Red tape by the yard is dealt out on both sides of the river on the wholesale installment plan. In the first place, it costs $3.50 to make out the bonds, then comes the ferry, 25 cents, and 10 cents for a sulky; then return ferry fare, and a half a dollar to get bond released, and 65 cents for a veterinary certificate, together with a wait of two or three hours for the veterinary to come at leisure from East Buffalo. And that's not all. If you don't get on your knees to the custom officials down at Ferry street, they'll hold you up and send you up to the Ellicott square to get more papers made out, costing another $3.50, and charge 25 cents for putting a horse in a coal shed, and throw in a whole bunch of importance, and want pay for that! Isn't it nice? If you don't believe this is true, just try it, and ship one horse over to the Fort Erie track for a week, and then try to ship him home again. By the time you get through, your bank account is gone, and you're a fit subject for a lunatic asylum. No wonder the citizens of Buffalo, the horsemen, I mean, want a track on this side of the river. And there will be a new one another season, too.

D. J. FELTON's chestnut gelding El Diablo, after winning the second heat of the 2:18 class race at Oakland last Monday, (thus being the sixth of the get of Diablo 2:05½, to enter the list this year) broke down and had to be withdrawn from the race. As a three-year-old El Diablo was trained and showed a great deal of speed. He was injured, however, in one of the tendons of his forelegs and was fired for it. Though there were doubts as to his standing training, he showed no lameness this year and on Monday made a splendid showing in the race in which he started. He was a close second the first heat to John A. who paced the mile in 2:15 and after a furious drive through the stretch the second heat beat that horse in 2:16½. When El Diablo returned to the paddock he could not put his foot to the ground and was drawn from the race. It is very likely that the injury will not permit his starting again this year. As the track was very heavy and the pole horse in harness racing at Oakland has to make his circuit of the track at least twenty feet from the pole, the merit of El Diablo's performance is not shown by the time. 2:16½ was as good as 2:12 under the conditions. El Diablo was formerly owned by Willard Stinson and is out of Elwood 2:17½, a full sister to Arrow 2:13½ by A. W. Richmond.

Chacornac Wins the Futurity.

James R. Keene purchased the two-year-old colt Chacornac by imported Juvenal on Friday and the next day the youngster won the Futurity at Sheepshead Bay. It was the twelfth running and the second time that the Keene colors have been in front. It was worth nearly $42,000. It was won by the favorite, and was, altogether, the most satisfactory Futurity ever run.

Twenty horses went to the post, with the Keene trio, Chacornac, Virginia Earle and Donblet ruling favorite at 8 to 5. They were sent off with but a few minutes' delay and were seen in the distance coming down the chute in a straight line through the cloud of dust. Modrina was first away, with Doublet and Chacornac right beside him. It was work with hands and knees to get first into the stretch, and Spencer had Chacornac in front as they rounded the long turn. As they neared the judges' stand Brigadier came through from sixth place with a rush, cutting down Windmere, St. Finnan and Modrina, and being beaten only by a scant length at the end. The attendance was very large in spite of the threatening weather.

It was exactly 4:30 o'clock when the lot of youngsters reached the post and their noses were turned toward the barrier. In less than five minutes Fitzgerald caught them in line and yelled "Come on!" Every one of the score jumped at once, the white webbing swished into the air and they flashed past the starter in almost perfect line. Down went the red flag, and they were off on their journey in the shortest time ever seen at a big race.

Modrina had a trifle the best of it, but Donblet, Virginia Earle and Chacornac were close up and Windmere, Plucky and Brigadier were lapped on them. In the first quarter all were driving hard, for there was that wicked turn into the main track only a short distance away, and every hoy knew that the first horse around the corner would not have to take any chance of being crowded out and would be better straightened for the run home.

Bullman, on Modrina, was at work with hands and heels in the effort to stay in the lead. As they neared the end of the main track Modrina began to fall back, and as they straightened out the hay gelding Chacornac poked his white nose in front, Spencer's red cap and blue and white spotted jacket showing up plainly now, for he was clear of the bunch on the outside. The race was by no means over, however, for Brigadier was coming with a rush and in front of him shone the bright yellow jacket of O'Connor on Windmere.

The last furlong pole was reached in safety without jostling or crowding, and then it was apparent that it was all over, for Chacornac was going easily, Spencer having a hit up his sleeve in case of accidents, while every hoy was driving hard behind him. The place was a little too hot for Windmere, and he began to drop back, for Burns, who was working hard on Brigadier and wearing him down fast, till a sixteenth from home the son of Rayon d'Or got his head in front and was sure of second place.

Spencer was still going ably on Chacornac, and as they went over the finish line the latter had something more than a neck the best of it, although he might have made it more had he been so inclined. Brigadier was in second place, clear of the others, while Windmere staggered home a scant head in front of St. Finnan, and there was little daylight between the others. Modrina, who had made the pace, had to be content with fifth place.

The Futurity, Futurity course—Chacornac, 114 (Spencer), 8 to 5 and 3 to 5, won by a neck; Brigadier, 109 (Burns), 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, second by one length; Windmere 112 (O'Connor), 15 to 1 and 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:10 2-5. St. Finnan, Modrina, Okettee, David Gerrick, Iroquois Belle, Donblet, King Bramble, Water King, Prestidigitator, The Scotchman, Golden, Knight of Rhodes, Virginia Earle, Tenderloin, Plucky, Musetta and Irwin finished as named.

Marcus Daly's English Stud Farm.

Marcus Daly now has a full fledged breeding farm in England at Apherfield Court Stud located on the borders of Surrey and Kent, on the main road between Westerham and Bromley. The farm is about one hundred and twenty acres in extent and is some five hundred feet above the sea level.

Mr. Daly's broodmares at Apherfield Court are sixteen in number, of which seven are American bred and nine English bred. Probably the most interesting of all to Americans is Lady Reel, the dam of Hamburg. This daughter of Fellowcraft and Mannie Grey has charmed every one, being one of the low, lengthy, wide and strong boned type. She had no foal this year and was covered by St. Simon. Inasmuch as she produced the mighty Hamburg to the cover of America's premier stallion, Hanover, it will be interesting and instructive to see how she makes out with the great English horse, who headed our stallion list for so many years in succession, and while at present only third in respect to amount of money won is really the sire of more winners than any other stallion in the 1899 list.

Of the other American bred mares Semper Cara, by King Alfonso out of La Sylphide, is covered by Melton, the Derby winner of 1885, who was for several years in Italy and has only recently returned to us, doubtless to repeat his earlier triumphs in airing such high class horses as Best Man, Arington and Bullington.

Semper Fidele, by Longfellow out of La Sylphide, is covered by St. Frusquin, as also is Elizabeth L., by Woodlands out of Ballot. St. Frusquin has had a full hook in 1897, 1898 and 1899, and his yearlings have elicited general commendation.

Lizzie D., by Onondago out of Spaldie, has a bay colt foal, by Montana, and is covered by Lrdes, Lord Rosebery's Derby winner of 1894. The two-year-olds by Lads have run somewhat disappointingly thus far, but the best one, Sailor Lad, out of Seabreeze, has not been started as yet.

La Belle, by Onondago out of Aileen, has a bay colt by Montana and is covered by St. Serf. Aflatus, by Inverness out of Affinity, has a chestnut filly by Cherry Tree and is bred to Reehurn.

It will thus be seen that of Mr. Daly's seven American bred mares four have been bred to sons of St. Simon and one to St. Simon himself. The St. Simon blood has a tremendous potency, and it is remarkable, furthermore, that Orme, the premier stallion of 1899, is out of a full sister to St. Simon.

Mr. Daly's English bred mares are probably led by Lucy Cross, a daughter of St. Simon and Verdigre, she by Springfield, out of Griselda, by Stratheonan. Lucy Cross was bred by Lord Zetland, and was purchased by Mr. McCaig for $13,000 at the dispersal sale of Lord Zetland's stud in 1897. She was barren to Royal Hampton in 1898, but has this year had a grand colt foal by Isinglass, and is now in foal to Carbine, who was imported from Australia for the especial purpose of being mated with St. Simon mares. Dorothea, by Sterling, out of Cherry Doches, has a chestnut filly foal by Royal Hampton and is covered by Janissary. The Janissary—Dorothea will be particularly inbred, for Janissary is by I onomy, a son of Sterling, he the sire of Dorothea.

St. Lucia, a daughter of Ayrshire and St. Agatha, has a chestnut colt by Arion, by whom she is again covered this year. Orion is by Bend Or, out of Shotover, by Hermit, and is a full brother to Isis, who produced Isidor, winner of so many American races for Mr. Daly. Coalesce, by Timothy, out of Black Diamond, has a bay filly by Orviato and is covered by St. Angelo.

Mr. Daly's five remaining English bred mares had no foals this spring. L'Eclaire, by St. Serf, out of Panline, is bred to Ayrshire. Hermia, by Hermit, out of Sizona, is covered by Donovan. St. Mildred, by St. Simon, out of Lady Fitzjames, is in foal to Amphion. Optime, by Orme, out of Euclid's dam, is bred to Donovan, and Argenta, by Pioneer, out of Granite, is covered by Melton.

The liberal patronage of these leading stallions is well in line with Mr. Daly's enterprising turf policy, and we shall one and all be glad if more than one genuine crack is destined to be foaled at Apherfield Court in 1900, especially as it is understood that the produce of these mares will be raced there either under Mr. Daly's own colors or those of Mr. McCaig.

SADDLE NOTES.

DAN HONIG bought Mad Anthony et a St. Louis sale last week.

THERE are fourteen horses in the Boots' string and at least half of them will start at the State Fair.

TOD SLOAN, Lester Reiff and Skeets Martin all rode winners at the Derby meeting in England last Tuesday.

NED LANIGAN will not race Rubicon again. When Trainer Lynch returns with him he will retire him to the stud.

JOCKEY BULLMAN will ride for Ed Corrigan during the winter season. Corrigan's string will arrive here from Chicago in a few days.

W. D. RANDALL has returned from the East with his horses and is at Oakland. Among them are Oester Joe, Montans and Miss Rowena.

BILL MURRAY is expected back from Saratoga next week. His trip across the continent has been a losing one. Jockey Mecklin has fifteen of Murray's horses in training at Sacramento.

THERE are more horses at Sacramento ready to be entered in the running events than can be provided for at the track. The outlook is for good big fields in all the overnight running events.

THE story that Tod Sloan will ride for W. C. Whitney at a salary of $25,000 per annum is all hosh. There never was anything in it beyond the pipe dream of a newspaper reporter of New York.

JAMES R. KEENE recently sustained a heavy loss in the death at Castleton of the imported mare Orchis, by Bend Or, dam Lizzie Agnes, by Macaroni. She is the dam of Come Quick, Lady Bahle and Ortud.

JOHNNY WEBER arrived from Chicago Sunday night. He rode for Carruthers and Shields. The latter will be here in about three weeks with a big stable. Last week they fought King Carnival and won a big stake at Detroit with him.

THE handicap horse Indra was purchased by Holman & Hollis in the East and is now at Oakland. Indra was a fair winner last year, but was not able to land first money this year, though he has run second several times. He is a son of Hindoo.

THE well known turfman, Dr. Rowell, has been appointed official veterinarian of the California Jockey Club. He has examined all of the horses now quartered at Oakland track and reports them free from disease. As the Eastern horses arrive they will also be compelled to pass muster—a very wise precaution on the part of the Oakland association.

IRVING DROGS of Woodland, came near losing his famous old broodmare Lilly Wright a few days ago. She was found on her side in the pasture with one of her hind legs swollen very badly, though no abrasion of the skin was visible. It is thought some poisonous insect must have bitten her. It was several days before she could walk, but she finally got up and has recovered her strength and appetite.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February.

The clerks of nearly all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law.

At the Traps.

The live bird shoot of the California Wing Club to-morrow promises to be the attraction for local sportsmen. The final club match will be at twenty-five birds. The leaders in the cores shot to date are closely bunched, interest is strong and speculation great as to who will be the lucky shooters.

The annual picnic and open-to-all shoot to-morrow of the Lincoln will be the blue rock attraction at Alameda. This affair promises to draw quite a crowd of sportsmen, their families and friends.

The regular blue rock shoot of the Alert Gun Club is also scheduled to take place at Birds Point to-morrow.

The blue rock season for the local gun clubs will close next month with the final shoot of the Union Gun Club on the 24th inst., and the two days' tournament of the Empire Gun Club on the 9th and 10th insts. This latter shoot promises to be the record target meeting for this year.

Six squads of shooters kept the traps going merrily at the Union Gun Club shoot last Sunday. Weather conditions were most pleasant and many good scores resulted from the efforts of the members to pulverize the mud saucers. In the regular club race at twenty-five targets M. McDonald was high gun and took first money. C. T. Mitchell, E. Peterson and O. Fischer divided second money. "Michell," L. Javette Jr. and Joe Bickerstaff split third money and E. Hess and "Yonng" won the fourth money. The handicap medal for August was won by E. Peterson.

Clarence A. Haight is the winner of the elegant gold medal emblematic of the championship for the live bird season of 1899 of the San Francisco Gun Club. The final and deciding shoot took place at San Clemente last Sunday. The day was an ideal one for trap shooting, no less than six straight scores being made in the club race in which there were seventeen entries.

The winning shooters for the season whose averages were computed from the best five scores out of six, are the following: First class—C. A. Haight who received the championship medal and $15 cash, with a score of 59 out of 60 and W. B. Murdoch with 57 out of 60 received $10 cash. Second class—E. Klevesahl, $15 cash with 57 kills and F. Vernon $10 cash with 56 scored. Third class—Dr. R. F. Millar $15 cash with a record of 55 and R. C. Rosenberg $10 cash with 51 birds scored.

Haight's victory was a popular one as was evidenced by quite a demonstration on the part of sportsmen present. Otto Fendner withdrew from the competition after losing a bird in the club race and also with a hack score to shoot up. Seven shooters paid $2.50 entrance each in a freeze out. Fendner, Shaw and Klevesahl divided the pool with ten kills each.

In a six bird match $1.50 entrance Fendner, Shaw and Haight divided the pool.

The scores in the club race at twelve birds were:

Hunting and Fishing in Alaska.

But little is known in detail of the fishing and shooting grounds of Alaska, but the entire territory is covered with them. Immense numbers of salmon, trout, cod, halibut, eulachon or candlefish and other salt-water fishes are caught near the shores. Mountain sheep and goats, bear, elk, wolves foxes and the smaller fur-bearing animals are in great numbers. The tributaries of the Yukon river abound in grayling, and trout are abundant in all the streams of the interior. The Yukon river, which rises in the British Possessions runs through the entire Territory in a northerly direction. It is the most fruitful water for trout and salmon fishermen, although the near-by streams of Sitka and Fort Wrangle, reached by steamers from San Francisco, will give abundant results. In addition to the grayling, which is the typical fish known as Back's graying, the cut throat or black spotted trout (Salmo dariki) is very abundant. It descends to salt water and grows to a large size. The lake trout has been found in the waters of Alaska, but is said never to visit salt water. The conditions and the facilities of travel, owing to the discovery of gold in Alaska, are constantly changing and improving. The field sportsman or angler cannot, however, fail to find excellent sport wherever he may be in Territory.

When Gunpowder Was New.

A curious feature about the evolution in methods of hunting was the hesitation with which gunpowder was taken up by the great nobles. Not only did it take quite a century to familiarize hunters with it, but the evidence that has come down to us shows that the humble classes were the first to use it for shooting game. Maximilian, ardent sportsman that he was, tells us himself that he could shoot farther and with greater accuracy with his crossbow than his keeper could with the fire tube. To prove this he tells us the story of a certain chamois standing at a distance of 200 fathoms, which after being pronounced as too far off by his huntsman, who was armed with one of the first sporting firearms mentioned in print, came tumbling down, pierced at the first attempt, by the emperor's bolt.

From other sources we learn of strict measures being adopted to prevent poachers and "wood loafers" using firearms, and this at a period when princes still used the cumbersome crossbow and spear. It was only in the last quarter of the sixteenth century that firearms had ousted other weapons for certain forms of the chase, the deer battue being among the latter.

On Sunday afternoon Attorney J. R. Leppo and Warren S. Gill, of Santa Rosa, returned from their hunting expedition in Mendocino county. They report having had excellent sport and their certain aim laid low several splendid bucks. They also had some fine fishing and enjoyed every hour of the time spent in the mountains.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Dove shooting in the vicinity of Paso Robles is reported to be first class.

A fellow with a nice string of game or fish very rarely comes into town by a back alley.

Black bears are reported to be very numerous in the mountains of Lake county this year.

The open season for grouse and mountain quail commenced yesterday and will continue until February 15th.

One of the largest bucks seen in the vicinity of Cazadero for years was recently tagged by County Recorder Fred L. Wright of Santa Rosa.

J. B. Hauer bagged three fine hocks in the vicinity of Shaggs Springs recently. Deer have not been very numerous in that section for some time past.

The indications for duck shooting this fall are excellent. Plenty of teal and mallard, mostly native bred birds, have been seen in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valley districts.

Wild geese have already made their appearance in the northern counties. Springs and mountain streams up north are reported to be rising. These two signs presage an early winter.

Fred Johnson is the possessor of one of the prettiest mounted deer heads we have seen for a long time. This buck, a four point, was recently killed near San Rafael by Lucas Cadogan, an Oakland boy. The head was presented to Mr. Johnson by Jobu Lucas.

Dave Thom, Hyp Justins and Dr. W. J. McLean were deer hunting in the vicinity of Livermore last Sunday, the trip so far as venison cut any figure was unavailing. The "carhens" were unslung and unused. The party had to resort to shot guns and doves for their sport.

D. E. Allison was arrested during the week for having grouse in his possession out of season. Allison is a commission merchant on Front street near Washington. A bag of these birds had been sent to him from Red Rock, Lassen county. If the precedent established in the Mitchell case is followed, the fine imposed, upon conviction, will be a large one.

Deer hunters in Humboldt county continue to have excellent sport. A private letter informs us that Otto Gregor, who, with his family, is spending a few weeks at Mrs. Rogers' place on the Van Dozen, went hunting last Saturday, ran into a herd of deer, fourteen in number, and killed two majestic bucks. Mouday Mr. Gregor and Edward Rogers saw a bear, and Otto was so excited that he declares the track weighed eleven pounds.

The State of Wisconsin expects to raise about $40,000 within the next few days to pay the expenses of enforcing the game laws, and the way it proposes to do this is a novelty. Last winter the Legislature passed a law requiring every person who hunts wild game in the State to provide himself with a license at the cost of $1 per license. After Sept. 1 no men will be allowed to hunt without a permit from the State, there being a severe penalty attached to the law for failure to comply with it.

Not so very many years ago the man who habitually shot at the traps was looked upon as a user-do-well. Since that time, however, it has become one of the recognized forms of recreation and sport for the busy men who can only take his Saturday afternoon or legal holidays from his business. The sport of trap shooting has also been considerably elevated, and the regular weekly or monthly gatherings of many gun clubs are frequently graced during the pleasant weather by a large number of the sisters, cousins and aunts of the contestants.

A trio of Eureka ladies went into the edge of Trinity county this summer on a camping trip. They were used to the fatigues of long weeks, were also expert shots with the rifle and not afraid of sneeze. They attired themselves in "hloomers" and made ready to take to the deer trails. A photograph of the trio, with three fat bucks swung up in their camp which they brought down with their trusty rifles, came home with them. They are too modest to boast of their prowess or feats of merksomanship, but they certainly made a "hit" or the photo is misleading. The three ladies are Mrs. Herry A. Marks, Mrs. C. E. Beldwin and Miss Florence Christie.

A revolver that fires fifteen times at one loading will be on the market before long as a boon to the unfortunate man who can't hit a mad dog in less than fifteen trials, or the cowboy who finds himself cornered by a tribe of Indians. It is the invention of Francis Reppard of Jersey City. There are two barrels—one above the other. The cylinder is made in one piece, with an outer row of ten holes to fit the upper barrel and an inner row of five to fit the lower barrel. There are two triggers, working independently, to fire the separate cylinders. The revolver will embody all the latest improvements of firearms, having pin fire safety triggers, automatic shell ejectors and being hammerless, or strictly up-to-date weapon.

At the annual meeting of the Los Baños Gun Club, held in the office of George B. M. Gray, Oakland, Thursday evening, August 24th, William D. Heitmann was elected President and Treasurer, George Adams Meuser and R. S. Leckie Secretary. The names of Colonel George C. Babcock and Dr. Helsey were added to the list of membership, which already included the following sportsmen: Superior Judge F. B. Ogdau, Supervisor W. H. Church, City Auditor A. H. Breed, Jacob Meuy, John Lutgen, George Adams, W. D. Heitmann, F. A. Webster, Dr. T. M. Hall, Frank Adams, W. J. Bowen, Nick Rainecker, A. Olander, G. H. T. Jackson, R. S. Leckie, G. B. M. Grey, George Heuk, Georgia D. Metcalf, William Fallon, J. A. McCourtney, J. W. Scott, A. A. Moore, S. C. Swift, C. T. Swift, R. H. Havens, William Watkinson, M. Schnutenheus, J. R. Glascock, F. Umphred and J. H. Ames.

Thoughtlessness has much to do with the destruction of bird and animal life in our woods, many camping parties being answerable for much in this line. It is a very usual thing for one or other of the members of a camping party to "take along a gun or rifle for the fun of the thing." Once the gun or rifle is in camp, and the members of that camp loitering around in the shade after a comfortable fish dinner, the weapon is brought out, and trials of skill entered into. This would be all right, were it not that some thoughtless fellow says: "Watch me knock over that 'gray squirrel,' or it may be 'that swallow.'" They forget that it is easier to kill a squirrel at 18 or 20 yards with a 22-calibre rifle than to hit a matchbox or a cork on top of a hotella at 25 or 30 yards. Try your luck at the matchbox, or show your skill at the cork, and let the squirrel go on with his work of storing up provisions for the winter. The swallow, too, is eating up the insects and doing good instead of harm; the men who would kill a swallow would also shoot a pet dog.

Capt. Bogardus is still willing to shoot matches under his own particular style of shooting. Bogardus was and is a great shot, although no doubt ago has done something toward dimming his eye and stiffening his muscles. His idea of a live bird match is for each competitor to stand 21 yards from the traps, a 10-yard circle being drawn around each trap. When the pigeon is liberated, it must fall outside the 10-yard circle drawn around the trap it came from, before being scored to the shooter. Should it fall inside that circle, it is to be scored a lost bird, just as if it had escaped beyond the boundary flags. There is something rather sporting about this idea of Bogardus', but it is liable to cause more pain to pigeons than the ordinary method. More birds are likely to fly away wounded than under the present conditions of gun in any position, 30 yards rise. Bogardus believes in holding the gun below the elbow, and for that reason he has many admirers who think with him that that is the only way to shoot.

Single-trigger double guns are now getting so common as to excite little or more than ordinary interest when used at the traps. Messrs. Bess & Co. of London, England, have, however, brought out a novelty in the shape of a three-barrelled gun worked by a single trigger. The Loudon Field, the leading sportsmen's journal on the other side of the Atlantic, in speaking of this weapon, praises it quite highly, and, may be quoted as saying that the gun and its single trigger action were perfect in every respect. The gun exhibited to, and used by the shooting editor of that paper, was a 16-gauge gun, weighing seven pounds, and so nicely balanced that it handled like an ordinary gun. The three barrels are set on one plane, the center barrel taking the place, as it were of the rib in a double gun. With this gun in actual practice the editor shot several times at inanimate targets, three targets being sprung at once. On each occasion three barrels were fired without difficulty, and on two occasions all three targets were pulverized, thus showing that the gun and its mechanism were all right, and that all that was needed behind it was a good shot. The three barrels were so well aligned that at forty yards each was dead centred on the same spot. While a three-barrelled gun may not become popular—for it is by no means a novelty—the application of a single-trigger action to such a weapon shows that the single trigger itself is about perfected.

Italians, Portuguese and Frenchmen are the most persistent and in many sections contiguous to this city the most numerous of the Sunday contingent of the shot gun brigade. Their scent is varied, their eyesight keen, and all this backed up by quick perceptions, ulterior though the purpose may be. After searching the open fields and woods that sometimes (all the time) explore the back premises of farms and the grounds of small landholders and a stray chicken or two will not need a few drams of shot to get a tawnyrump hiding place in the capacious coat pockets of these sporting scavengers. They can wring a rooster's neck dexterously and completely, and can even give pointers to any nocturnal frequenter of the hen roost. Nor does the scent for "game" include live stock always. Anything lying around loose and not securely nailed down is regarded as common property and is sometimes more acceptable than feathered "game." More than once the writer has seen several of these polyglot importations returning to the city after a day's hunt with a miscellaneous assortment of game birds, chickens, blue jays, owls, sparrow hawks and a varied collection of small portable property hulging out of their pockets and bags. The guns used are well worth inspection. They are almost invariably muzzle loaders, single and double-barrelled, kickers by first intention, and while rudely constructed and cheap, it is rarely, as far as is known, ever heard that an accident is caused by their use.

Truckee Notes.

Fishing on the Truckee still continues to give excellent results to the anglers on that famous stream. Henry Skinner and Col. Keliehor recently caught three fish that weighed six pounds; every day during their visit to Boca they caught fair baskets including two or three large ones to top off with. To give one an idea of the angler's chances up there, several gentlemen aver, that standing on Burkholder's bridge any day at present the spectator can see swimming in the swirling current below him "as many fish as a two horse team can draw," most of them big fellows and in the finest condition. In the middle of the day the killing flies are purple, grays and duns with a suspicion of yellow color on them tied to gossamer leaders. The best results are derived by casting across the current and up stream to a smooth patch of water, this however makes it ticklish work to land a fish on a light leader through the current. The best killers in the evening, when the angler can fish as long as it is light enough to see, are the professor, red spinner, blue dun and Ben's hare's ear and yellow. The coochman or any other bright fly is very ineffective just now. The market fishermen have been doing quite a lot of fishing by moonlight. Boca has been extolled as a resort par excellence for relaxation and sport for the angler by a number of sportsmen who have been there fishing recently. They all give unqualified praise to the comfortable hotel accommodations under the ministrations of mine host McDonald.

The dean of all the black bass, a fellow of eldermanic proportions, was captured by W. R. McFarland last Friday in Crystal Springs lake. The fish weighed six and one half pounds, measured nineteen and one half inches in length and had a girth of sixteen and a half inches. This bass is the biggest of its kind—a large mouth—taken from any water on the Pacific Coast since the introduction of the species in our lakes and streams. The big bass was one of a number netted for the live fish exhibit at the Mechanic's Institute Fair. When McFarland saw him floundering in the net, he at once realized he had a prize and immediately waded in through the mud and water to save him from injuring himself, when he secured the fish, he adopted every expedient possible to revive the fish and make him comfortable, he was partly successful as the big bass came around apparently all right and survived until placed in the reservoir at Strawberry Hill with the others caught at the same time. The mening he received was too much for him, he was found dead the next day. The other bass were lively and full of spirits, the main school of them off in a corner of the reservoir by themselves, whilst three of them, curious and flippan, were consorting with their cousins the striped bass in another part of the pool.

Thames anglers are somewhat exercised concerning the reported capture of a Thames trout said to weigh 17 pounds 3 ounces, or over 2½ pounds heavier than the fish which has hitherto held the record (one of 14 pounds 9½ ounces, killed in 1870 at Chertsey Weir). The fortunate captor is a workman, who modestly withholds his name from an evasive world, and he caught his prize at Radcot, near Oxford, May 30th. A Thames trout of exactly the same weight was caught near Kingeton in 1898 and, having been carefully weighed, was returned alive to the water by the self-denying angler. Such a stroke of luck rarely falls to the lot of a Thames trout, or any other desirable fish for that matter.

The scribes in Maine are not to be outdone by our Southern California press agents, as the following from an Eastern paper will show: "A Moosehead Lake angler had an experience the other day that Benjamin Franklin would have enjoyed. He was fishing with a steel rod during a thunder shower and struck a trout at the same instant that a stroke of lightning dallied with his rod. The cork handle prevented the angler's feeling anything more than a slight shock but when he reeled in his line he found the trout stone dead. He figured it out that the lightning bolt followed the rod and the enamelled line down to where the trout had just taken the hook and there electrocuted him.

There is one use for kerosene which is seldom mentioned. It often happens that when a heavy shoe or boot has been wet it hardens and draws so that it hurts the foot. If the shoe is put on and the leather thoroughly wetted with kerosene, the stiffness will disappear and the leather become pliable, adapting itself to the foot. If oiled while wet, the leather retains its softness a longer time. The kerosene does not injure the leather at all.

At Moss Landing Tuesday of last week, fifty-five salmon were caught as against fifty-one on Monday. The largest one caught weighed 42½ pounds and was landed by A. E. Day of the Moss Landing hotel, who holds the championship for the season to date. Campers are numerous and the weather is perfect. In addition a large number of sea bass were caught during the week.

Eel river is the objective point of a number of local anglers. Fly fishing on that stream is very good at the present time. The best steelhead fishing will be had after the rains. The fall run of fish will commence as soon as the ber opens.

Prof. Jim Markland says that McFarland's big bass met his fate by being kicked to death by a frog, which used but one leg at that, the other being impaled on a hook and, of course, unavailable for offensive purposes when assailed by the bass.

Chicago game wardens have put a stop to seine fishing on the lake front and consequently the perch and fresh water herring fisherman are now out of business.

Salt water fishermen have been making big catches of tom cods along the Sausalito shores during the past week. Other varieties are biting well also.

The exhibit of live fish at the Fair which opens to-day will be an interesting one, probably the most complete ever seen in this city.

Do not use soap to remove fish slims from the hands, but simply water, warm if possible, when all is removed soap can then be used.

The waters of Oakland estuary and San Leandro bay still enable the striped bass angler to have much sport with rod and line.

The fly-casting series made at Stow lake last Sunday were received too late for publication in this issue.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The California Collie Club will hold an all breed bench show at Oakland in conjunction with the poultry show in December.

E. M. Simpson, of Sacramento City, has been on a visit to this city the last few days welcoming home the California Volunteers, he reports that his fox terriers are in good shape, Golden Restless has improved somewhat, her son by Golden Flash 2d has come on wonderfully and Mr. Simpson believes he has a winner.

Matt Kerr, of this city, who has been breeding and rearing fox terriers for a number of years, has recently tried the experiment of inbreeding. His bitch Golden Star has whelped a fine litter to Golden Dawn, both Star and Dawn are by Werren Sage out of Champion Golden Golden Jewel. We shall watch with interest the development of these puppies.

Rev. J. W. Flinton of Victoria, British Columbia has purchased from J. B. Martin the fox terrier dog Warren Sage, by Champion Warren Safeguard-Warren Duty. Sage has won a number of prizes both in the Eastern States and on this Coast. His principal wins are 2d open New York (22 competing), 2d Philadelphia, 1st Seattle, 1st Stockton and 1st Sacramento. Sage has the distinction of siring all the 1st prize winners (except Challenge) in the San Francisco show, 1897.

The announcement this week in our advertising columns of two noted fox terries in stud-Aldon Swagger and Golden Flash II-is one that will be peculiarly gratifying to the fancy. Mr. J. B. Martin has an international reputation as a fox terrier fancier and has devoted himself for years past to the positive advancement of the breed on the Coast. The records of both dogs are in keeping with the anticipations expected from their breeding and there is every reason to believe their future records will be all that is desired.

The number of hounds kept by people in England for hunting purposes only will probably astonish Americans. Altogether there are some 17,000 hounds kept in kennels and hunted on foxes only. These are outside of numberless packs of harriers, kept for hare hunting, and packs of beagles, also kept for the purpose of hare and rabbit hunting. Stag-hounds are not very numerous, but there are still nineteen such packs in England and five in Ireland. The largest pack of staghounds is the Devon and Somerset, a pack that contains forty-five couples of hounds (ninety hounds in all), and that is used for hunting the wild red deer on the moors and combs of Exmoor. The total number of staghounds in Great Britain is just about 1000 all told.

Most observant sportsmen who have shot over dogs will not fail to have noticed the different behavior of their canine allies with regard to the various species of game and fowl met with. One dog, perhaps, avoices a predilection for one thing, another for another, a pointer or a setter that is good on partridge proving to be of little or no use for snipe, and so on. Pointers and setters are not alone particular in their tastes or seemingly obvious to the scent of certain birds or animals. Retrievers also have their likes and dislikes, as many a wild-fowler has before now discovered, much to his annoyance. Many good and well broken dogs of this class will faithfully recover and bring to hand pheasant, partridge and wild duck, but once drop, say, a moorhen or a plover, and all the coaxing in the world will not induce them to lift it from the ground. The landrail, too, would not seem to be honored by a place in the list of what some dogs consider to be fair game. Truly, there is no accounting for some very peculiar olfactory tastes of the dog, as all will readily admit who have been annoyed by the disgusting preference avinced by some well bred animals for rolling in all the filth and carrion met with in the course of a day's shooting.—Exchange.

Victoria Bench Show.

The premium list for the second annual bench show of the Victoria Kennel Club to be held at Victoria, B. C., September 28th, 29th, 30th, under the rules of the Canadian Kennel Club is at hand. The judges will be H. Chapman for St. Bernerds, mastiffs and Newfoundlands and H. T. Payne for all other classes. It is announced that A. K. C. and P. K. L. wins will be recognized. Entries will close September 21st. Emil Pferdner is the secretary of the club and will act as superintendent of the show. The entry fee is $1.50 for each dog, but if the same owner has more than two dogs, the fee will be $1.00 for each entry of more than the two. In the regular prizes, first prize will be 35 per cent of all entries in all classes; second prize, 15 per cent of all entries in all classes; third prize, diploma. Specials are offered as follows: The Victoria Kennel Club offers to the handler exhibiting the largest number of dogs owned outside of the Province, $20. To the handler exhibiting the largest number of dogs owned in the Province, outside of city of Victoria, $10. To the handler exhibiting the largest number of dogs owned in the city of Victoria, $5. Not less than ten dogs must be exhibited by any handler to be entitled to prize money. Mr. J. B. Carlisle offers a cop of the value of $100 to the owner winning the largest number of prizes in a bench show held under the auspices of the Victoria Kennel Club. The cup is to be competed for until the owner has won it three times. Wins to be scored by points.

The Canadian Kennel Club offers bronze medals for the best mastiff and greyhound; a silver medal for best Great Dane. The merchants of Victoria offer a silver cup for the best St. Bernard. Silver cups are also offered for the best pointer, English setter, Gordon setter, Irish setter, collie and fox terrier; other specials are also offered for different breeds and classes, the same being cash and various useful articles.

Hints on Shipping.

The shipment of dogs is a matter that has time and again been the cause of no little anxiety to owners. Some seasonable hints and a few pertinent suggestions appear in the following which we take from the American Stock-Keeper:—Crates should not have flat tops, but either round, pointed or sloping tops. Open slat crates are not the coolest; a solid built crate with wide slats under the projecting roof is the best in all weathers. Contrivances should be made for watering. We like those sliding tins the best or else a stationary tin on the floor of the crate, with a funnel running up to the roof or out at the side, so that the express messenger may pour water in easily, directions being conspicuously written by the side of the tin. Few messengers like to open a crate to water a strange dog, he they ever so willing to do the business. Bulldogs, pugs and such short-necked and heavy breathing dogs, should not be shipped with heavy collars on. The show collar can be fastened to the inside of the crate and notice to that effect written on the lid for the instruction of the show officials. It is always well to put in a dry dog biscuit or two; other food is apt to sour or go bad. Biscuits do not sour, and will give the dog something to do. Crates should always be provided at ends and sides with some light iron bar or other projection, for greater convenience in handling. Many a dog has been injured, or at any rate badly scared, by being uplitted in the baggage man's endeavor to get a grip on the bottom of the crate. No crate should be lifted by the bottom, nor should the baggage man be asked to insert his finger in the air holes of the crate, because there is nothing else to secure a hold by. A projecting handle serves a double purpose, for then other boxes cannot be jammed up against it and so cut off the air supply. Whenever it is possible, owners or representatives, should see their dogs loaded in the cars, especially if there are wire or open sides to the crates. In a team of several dogs there are generally one or two that cannot "abide" the sight of each other, and if not prevented, with the usual perverseness that characterizes such times, these same dogs are sure to get up against each other. Naturally trouble results and they are kept in a constant state of excitement during the journey—an excellent preparation for facing the judge. Even two terriers in separate closed boxes, placed alongside each other will almost instantly detect their proximity and the fun begins. The unusual conditions which travel entails are in themselves quite sufficient to upset some dogs that are not travel-wise without subjecting them to troubles which can be avoided with ordinary care. Of course one comes across a cantankerous baggage man at times, but as a body they are an amenable lot of men and we have always found that a little silver-tongued diplomacy and fruit of the mint, go a long way in adjusting these little difficulties.

As to the Price of a Dog.

At a bench show in this city several years ago a certain fancier entered several setters and pointers. The dogs were the best on exhibition and each had a pedigree as long as the moral law. The owner was a great handler and took most of the prizes in his classes. One of our local sportsmen took a great fancy to one of the setters and in the end paid a large price for it—about $500, it was thought by his friends—but he would never tell just what the sum was. The setter was entered in several subsequent shows in the hope that it would take regular and special prizes, as the seller had represented it to be one of the finest dogs on the Coast, but the dog never came in for even as much as "highly commended." It finally died without leaving so much as a puppy to mourn its untimely grave in a hack lot.

Nobody could find out what had been the actual price paid for the dog. In course of time the purchaser was seen joining at one of our popular resorts up country, one of his boon companions being a friend who had been patiently waiting for a chance to get the information. Each had taken many cocktails and sodog the burden of sociality too strong for the time being they wandered away from it and sat down in a quiet end secluded nook. The friend thought his time had come. He put his arm affectionately on the other's shoulder and staidied himself.
 "Say, Tom, old man," he said, "what did you give for that setter of yours anyhow?"
 The other rose to his feet slowly and with determination. "Well, Hank," he answered, "I may be full, but I'm hanged if I'm drunk enough to tell you that."
 And no one knew yet.

The Blind Fox Hunter.

Near Muudry's Landing, among the cliffs of Jessemine county, is the modest home of "Tom" Johnson. Since early youth Johnson has been blind, hot, notwithstanding this fact, he is one of the most enthusiastic fox hunters in the State. Often he follows his hounds alone among the Kentucky river cliffs, going at a gallop that one with keen vision would not dare imitate, and although he has been doing this for many years, he has never met with an accident. He knows every nook and crook in the cliffs, and when he comes to a very dangerous point he dismounts, takes hold of his horse's tail, and the animal guides him to safety.

A short time ago a party of hunters from Madison and Gerrard counties came here, and with the local hunters, spent several nights chasing the fox. Johnson was with them and on the second night they lost their bearings, became separated, and none of them except Johnson was able to make his way out of the cliffs that night. The following day three of the hunter's came together at Wolfe's point. Much apprehension was felt for the blind man, and they decided to go to his home, several miles away, to learn of him. They did so and found him seated on the veranda playing the violin.

Johnson owns several fine hounds and frequently trades dogs, and gets the best of it about as often as he is worsted, he possessing the wonderful ability of telling by touch the animal's good qualities, the color of the coat and the number of spots on the body, and he can always tell his dogs from the others by feeling of them. Years ago Philip Harrison, an old hunter, died in this country, and in his will he bequeathed his foxhorn to Colonel Jack Chinn of Harrodsburg. A few weeks ago Johnson rode over to Colonel Chinn's and the horn was shown him. He held hardy taken it in his hands when he exclaimed: "Why, this is Phil Harrison's old horn, and I haven't seen it before in twenty-five years."

It was Johnson who solved the "Phantom Fox" mystery that for many months puzzled the hunters of this and other countries. Week in end week out this fox led the dogs in a merry dance, but each night, after running the dogs nearly to death, its trail would be lost in the bluegrass pasture in the Poor Nick neighborhood. Johnson heard of this, and sent word that he wanted to hunt the phantom; so a hunt was arranged. On the appointed day hunters from Gerrard, Boyle, Lincoln, Madison, Washington and Anderson counties congregated near Ebenezer Church with the pick of their packs, determined to give the phantom the run of his life. Reynard was jumped at 8 o'clock at night, and after traversing many miles of the country with the dogs in hot pursuit he reached the pasture at 12 o'clock, and there as before his trail vanished. Johnson, mounted on a fine saddle horse, led the chase, and reaching the pasture he heard the tinkling of several bells and was told that a flock of fifty sheep were grazing in the same pasture. "That explains it," exclaimed the sightless Johnson: "you will find Mr. Fox on the back of one of those sheep." And such proved to be the case. Upon becoming tired, the sly animal would strike for the pasture, mount the back of one of the Cotswold's, and take a ride, thus baffling the hunters.—Kentucky Correspondence Auguste (Gs.) Chronicle.

THE FARM.

How to Build a Silo.

The feeding of ensilage is attracting a great deal of attention in California, and the building of silos are contemplated by many stock breeders and dairymen. A practical demonstration of silo building and ensilage feeding will be made at Sacramento during the State Fair this year, which will, no doubt, attract a great deal of attention. The following article from the pen of one of the most practical dairymen of Missouri which recently appeared in Colman's Rural World, will be of interest to the readers of this department of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:

Interest in silo building is certainly on the increase if I may judge from visits made to my silos and inquiries if I like ensilage as a feed, how I build silos and many similar questions. I will say that I have ensilage as good as any made, and it is better and cheaper than any feed that I ever had for milk cows. Many have heard of the good qualities of the silo and now want to know how to build one cheap and that will be effectual in preserving the ensilage.

Mine is a stave silo. I got the plan from the one described by the Experiment Station of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Put a peg in the center of the place where you are going to build the silo. Fasten a board, or even a string to the peg, half as long as the width you have concluded to build and make a circle for the inside edge of the wall. Then make another circle for the outside. Dig out between the circles 8 to 12 inches deep and 14 inches wide. Lay this trench with brick or concrete, if you can get gravel, sand and Portland cement. The latter is said to be cheaper, and just as good as the brick foundation. If bricks are used they should be laid in mortar made of Portland cement and sand.

Throw the dirt out of the trench inside and build the foundation nearly one foot above the level of the ground. The trench should be a foot deep if the ground is level; if not level, dig deep enough on the upper side to make the bottom of the trench level and still have the bottom at the lower side a foot below the surface. The object is to have the foundation deep enough and of such construction that water will not soften it, so as to cause the silo to lean; and so as to prevent rats or mice from undermining and making holes so the air will get to the ensilage and spoil it. When the foundation is finished level on top, lay two thicknesses of inch oak boards six inches wide, sawed and lapped on the circle of foundation so as to lap and break joints nail it together and lay it well bedded in cement. The staves are white pine or hemlock, but must be sound with no knots or wind shakes. The staves must be planed on one edge and side, so as to be even in width and thickness, 2x4 or 2x6 or 2x8. They would do still better if planed on both sides and edges. The length of the staves should be 14 and 16 feet. Place these lengths alternately. The splice is made by sawing in two inches in the top of the lower and the same in the middle of the upper stave, flat ways. Have pieces of galvanized sheet iron as long as the stave is wide. Slip one of them in the saw cut of the upper staves and have it to fit in the cut of the lower stave in putting it up.

In a silo not more than 16 feet across two staves two inches thicker than the others can be set on opposite sides. Through the part of these 4x6 staves holes are bored through which to pass the hoops.

The hoops are best made of five-eighths round iron threaded on both ends and nuts put on with washers under so as to screw them up tight. If it is wider than 16 feet set more of the 4x6 staves and make the pieces of hoops the length between them. Mine is 24 feet across, so we put in four of the 4x6 staves; that made the pieces of hoops 19 feet long. For a silo 30 feet high we put 16 hoops. The hoops should be bent to fit the curves of the silo wall.

Erection—We set the 4x6 staves, plumbed the silo, and braced securely with planks fastened by stakes driven in the ground. The braces are so braced as to leave one side clear to work to. The top and bottom hoops are put on and the center one separated temporarily by a stove. Then the staves are set, the long and short ones alternately toe-nailed, the nails being driven above and below the hoop and bent over the top to hold it in place. We found old salt barrel staves better to hold the staves in place. Teck the rounding side of the harrel staves to the inside of the silo staves. Put one course low, near the bottom, the next round put a little below the splice. When setting up the upper part we nailed the staves to both courses. When all was completed and all the hoops were on we tore the harrel staves off. We put up trestle platform inside to stand on as needed. I think each builder will find out how to make his silo.

Of the hoops that the staves are to be put against, there should be two for the lower part at the bottom, and five inches below the upper splice, the next one a little below the upper splice and then one at the top. These hoops should not be drawn or screwed tight till all the staves are put in place.

If the staves don't fill the space evenly next to the 4x6 staves one will have to be ripped to fill the space. The 4x6 staves are spliced by having them together with not less than a foot long splice and bolted with one-half-inch bolts. The tops of these are good to fasten the pieces on which to build the roof.

The roof may be made round or with gables, but it must have a raised piece of three feet or more for the elevator to carry in the cut silage. This space should be wide enough for the elevator to get in and also admit a man at the side of the elevator, as one is often needed. When the silo is filled and the elevator taken down, a window should be fitted in the place to admit light. Some prefer not to put the roof on till the silo is filled. The roof can be built without much scaffolding. The silage is not hurt by rain; it needs to be wet.

The silo should be put as near the barn as possible, so as to have the stuff to feed out, and on the side of the barn you need the feed. The small doors should be made sufficiently large for a man to be able to crawl in and out. When hoops are tightened nail good oak harrel staves on outside of the pieces cut out for the doors. If the doors are not good and tight put tarred paper on inside a little wider than the doors when filling the silo. The doors should not be sawed out until it is tightened. We sawed them out as we filled the silo about three feet apart between two hoops. When tightening up the hoops we had one man on the inside and one on the outside to knock the staves in or out as was required. Then the nuts were turned until very little daylight could be seen through the cracks. If the lumber is seasoned it will swell together when the green stuff is put in the silo. The holes for the hoops are commenced so the hoops will be even with the two-inch thick staves; the hoops must be made slanting enough to give room for turning the top outside of the stave on the other side.

It would be nice to have a cement or concrete floor, but it will be very little loss if there is just a clay floor. It must be leveled and well tramped down. Be particular to have it very tight where the staves stand on the foundation. It may be cemented.

The Size to Build.—If you give a cow all she will eat of the ensilage, it will take a half bushel at a feed twice a day, that will take about five tons for six months. A silo 20 feet deep and 15 feet wide will hold 59 tons. One 26 feet deep and 16 feet wide will hold 85 tons. One 28 feet deep and 15 feet wide will hold 95 tons. One hundred tons are enough for 25 cows. The advice is to build deep so its own weight will press it down, and not any wider than will require the use of at least two inches of the ensilage daily. If the top is exposed to the air more than 24 hours, the ensilage will commence to mold. It must always be taken from the top even all over. The cost will be easy for anyone to estimate when the price of the material is known. The holding need not take much time.

How to Cover the Silage.—If nothing is put on top it will mold or spoil down a foot or more. If you don't intend to begin feeding at once, as soon as the silo is filled cover a foot and a half deep with slough grass, spoiled hay or chaff, which has been run through the cutter, wet well and tramp down. When beginning to feed throw out this covering on the mature pile as far as any mold is found.

APTOS STOCK FARM.

BY THE EDITOR.

That portion of California which lies along Monterey bay from Santa Cruz at the north to the rocky promontory of Point Pinos on the south is famed for its health giving, ozone laden atmosphere, its ever blooming flowers and every living verdure. Along the half circle described by the coast line between the two points mentioned lie Twin Lakes, Capitola, Del Monte, Monterey, Pacific Grove and many other less prominent resorts, which are annually the mecca of thousands who seek health and relaxation from their labors in the heated and dust covered valleys of the interior. Here there is no intense heat in summer nor cold during winter, but a mild and equable climate made invigorating by salt sea fog and ocean breezes. It is a climate that clears the weary brain, strengthens and builds up wasted tissue and muscle, and provides even the constitutionally tired with the desire and the power to move about and accomplish something. If you will take your map of California and look at that portion of it above referred to you will find at the northern side of Monterey bay, where the railway between Watsonville and Santa Cruz skirts the shore, a little spot marked Aptos. This in the early days before the gringo came to build a mighty empire on this western coast, was the home of the Castros, a family whose founder carried the blood of the old Castile in their veins, and who owned a grant extending for leagues in every direction except oceanward—for here "their control stopped with the shore."

Nature has made the country hereabouts a veritable Eden. There is a smooth beach along which one can drive for miles, while the ocean ripples lazily on the sand. Cultivated fields extend almost to the water's edge, a bluff averaging not over 10 or 12 feet in height being the dividing line between field and beach. At varying distances from the shore the ground rises into rolling hills, and anon into heights that might be termed mountains, with creeks and canyons, deep and dark, down which small crystal streams tumble and find their way to the sea. A half mile from the station, along a well sprinkled road that winds alternately through shade and sun, there is a gate over which one reads the words "Aptos Ranch." This ranch comprises nearly four thousand acres of land and here is located the ideal country home of its owner, California's most enterprising and energetic citizen, Mr. Claus Spreckels. Much might be told of the vast work that has been done on this beautiful spot since coming into Mr. Spreckels' possession; of the reservoir containing millions of gallons of pure water, piped in big six-inch mains to all parts of the property and beyond to the little village of Aptos which it supplies; of the wondrous park, which was originally the home of the wild deer, and around two hundred acres of which has been constructed a fence twelve feet high confining at least a hundred of these antlered denizens of the forest; of the experimental heat fields, the acres of pasturage, the handsome herd of Jerseys, the massive Percherons that do the farm work, the blue grass lawns devoted to the fowls, the neat dormitory built for those employed on the farm, the giant redwoods, the lovely vistas and the thousand other things that help make the place a paradise in the eyes of the visitor. But space forbids more than this passing notice.

It is that portion of this magnificent ranch devoted to the breeding of the light harness horse that demands our attention at this time. This is the particular pride of Mr. A. B. Spreckels, a worthy son of an honored sire. There is no better representative of California's splendid young manhood than he, and whether attending to the many duties demanded by the great private interests with which he is identified or the numerous public institutions which levy largely upon his time, Mr. Spreckels is always active, intelligent and energetic. The State Fair now in progress at Sacramento, and which is the best exposition of the State's products, and the most largely attended fair held in years, is an evidence of his splendid energy and administrative ability. The Aptos Stock Farm is another hut of a different nature. This breeding farm, where at present about forty mares are annually mated with trotting stallions, is a growth. It did not spring into existence fully equipped and stocked, but has from a small beginning attained its present proportions. In its appointments it is now as complete as a stock farm can be made by the expenditure of money and the exercise of good judgment. In the first place its location cannot be surpassed. The halmy air, the fields of clover and natural grasses, the rolling hills which develop lungs and muscles in the growing colts, are all conducive to those great requisites in the trotting horse—clean sinewy limbs, stout hardy muscles and good breathing capacity. The horses raised on the Aptos Stock Farm are well developed and have iron constitutions. There are many hundreds of acres of the best of pasture land, and hundreds of tons of hay and oats are cut for feed. The oats raised on this farm are famed for their cleanliness and nutritive qualities, and are in great demand among race horse trainers.

The stud barn, the training sheds, the paddocks where red top clover is growing knee high, the half mile track kept in perfect order at all times, the great hay barns and all the buildings and other appointment-necessary on a stock farm are models of neatness and show that in the management of this property the rule "a place for everything and everything in its place" is strictly observed.

At the stud barn at the time of our visit were four stallions domiciled. The first to be led out was the premier of the farm, Cupid, 2:18, son of Sidney, 2:19½, and Venns, that great brood mare who is also the dam of Adonis, 2:11½, Lea, 2:13½, and Sidney Dillon, the sire of Dolly D, 2:21, winner of the Occident Stake at Sacramento in 1898. Being sired by one of the greatest of speed sires, and out of a mare that was the dam of great race horses, Cupid had inherited right to be what he is—a game and fast trotter who never found the race too long or the heats too many. He is a light bay with a handsome head and prominent eye that denotes intelligence and will power, which he has to a marked degree. His neck is well arched his shoulders wonderfully muscled, and his back and loins of such splendid proportions that they bring forth remarks of admiration immediately. The thighs are very muscular and he stands over a lot of ground on short clean legs of good bone, ending in the best of feet. As his picture on the title page of this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN shows, Cupid is a handsome horse. But three of his produce were ever trained and all started in their maiden races this year. Venus II has a record of 2:11¼ and is in T. E. Keating's string in the east. Psyche, trained by Geo. W. Berry has won two out of three starts and now has a record of 2:17½. Lottie Parks, owned by Mr. T. J. Crowley of San Francisco, trotted to a record of 2:16½ at Santa Rosa in August. The wonderful resemblance which these mares bear to their sire, the fact that they have had but a limited amount of training, and that all three have entered the 2:20 list their first year on the track speaks volumes for Cupid, 2:18, as a sire, and when Mr. Spreckels selected him as the premier of his farm he certainly chose wisely. That Cupid is destined to take high rank among the speed producing stallions of California is not doubted by those who know the horse or have seen the performances of his progeny. Cupid is a high strung gentleman with a will of his own, and while having an excellent disposition when well treated is quick to resent a fancied wrong and can be more easily coaxed than driven. Mr. John Kenny, the very efficient colt breaker at Aptos Stock Farm states that all Cupid's colts are like him in this respect. "Go to fighting them," said Mr. Kenny, "and they will fight back all day, but coax and pet them a little and they will have their heads on your shoulder making love to you, and will do pretty nearly anything asked of them."

A magnificent black stallion, with heavy crested neck, short broad hack, strongly muscled all over, and with style and action enough to take a prize at a Hackney show was led out for inspection. This was Aptos Wilkes, full brother to Hulda, 2:08½, and therefore by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, and out of Jenny by Bull Pup. Look this fellow over, and see him step and you do not wonder why Sam Gamble said that the get of Aptos Wilkes which Budd Dohle is preparing for the New York market will be able to take prizes at the horse show. That black fellow should get carriage horses, as he is certainly a prize-winner for looks and his progeny look like him. And besides their good looks, they are true to their breeding and trot fast. Whenever they are tamed the get of Aptos Wilkes will be heard from.

The next horse to come out for inspection was not the property of the Aptos Stock Farm, but was bred at Palo Alto. This was Altivo 2:18½, full brother to the great horse that bore the name of the famous farm and trotted to a record of 2:08½. He is a grand looking individual, with much of the thoroughbred finish inherited from his dam, the great Dame Winnie. As Mr. Spreckels has for some years past leased to the Palo Alto Farm his great stallion Dexter Prince, he, this year, secured by lease from them, to take his place this son of Electioneer, and he will be bred principally to the Speculation mares on the farm. He should be a happy suck and the produce may be expected to add glory to the older farm of the tall pine as well as to the younger one down here by the sunset sea.

Here comes the big fellow. They call him "Frenchy." He is a splendid specimen of that popular breed, the French Coach horse, and was purchased by Mr. Claus Spreckels a few years ago while on a visit to France, together with a few mares of the same breed. Two grand looking carriage horses, enjoying their vacation from city duty in a green paddock close by, are shown as specimens of Frenchy's get. They are out of mares by Irwin Davis. If California breeders could by breeding trotting bred mares to a French Coach stallion produce such specimens as these, they would find ready sale for them at their own price.

Standing in a corner of the lane, with their heads turned from us, were four brood mares, daughters of that grand old matron now dead, that was one of the first of Mr. A. B. Spreckels' possessions in the horse line, and whose descendants have enabled him to be the breeder of two 2:10 performers—Jenny by Bull Pup. Bred to Speculation she produced Gracie S, 2:22, the dam of Dione, 2:03½, Lilly S, the dam of Venus II, 2:11½, and Emma S, the dam of Psyche, 2:17½. Bred to Guy Wilkes she produced Hulda, 2:08½, and Aptos Wilkes. Bred to Stamboul, 2:07½, she produced Gallata, now among the brood mares of the farm. The four mares, Gracie S, Lilly S, Emma S and Gallata are shown in the picture on one of the following pages.

Hulda 2:08½. What a flood of recollections arise as she is led out for the artist to point his camera at. The great Columbian stake at Chicago, won by the champion trotting mare of the world, Alix 2:03½, but not until Hulda, driven by Orrin Hickok, had won two heats and then sprained an ankle so badly that she had to be withdrawn not only from the race, but from the track forever. And so she went to the harem. Her foal this year by Dexter Prince died from a rupture. She was bred this season to Searchlight 2:03½, and from this mating should come high form and great speed.

Hulda's yearling by Cupid is the pride of the farm. Turn the page and look at his picture. It is hard to believe that he is not three instead of one year old. See that head and neck; the short round hack, the muscle on the shoulders and thighs that extends down to knees and hocks. Look at those legs and feet. His whole form and carriage betoken the young prince that he is. No grander youngster was ever seen on a stock farm and "I'm in love with that fellow" is the expression that comes spontaneous from the mouth of everyone that looks him over.

In the training stalls at Aptos Stock Farm are generally ten or a dozen colts and fillies learning the manners of the road and track. This department is under the supervision of Mr. Thos. O'Brien, who has seen years of service under the tutelage of such men as Gen. John Turner and other knights of the sulky. Among the youngsters he is now giving his first lessons are a chestnut filly by Dexter Prince out of Miss Valensin by Valensin 2:23. This filly bears a very striking resemblance to Psyche 2:17½, the Cupid mare now on the circuit in Geo. Berry's care, and the two would make a team that would be very attractive in looks as well as speed. She has shown an eighth at a two-minute rate to the mile. There is a bay filly by Dexter Prince out of Christina by Chris S., that is handsome as a picture, and a two year old by Cupid from Galata by Stamboul that looks and acts like a race winner at the trot. One of the raciest looking of the two year olds is a gelding by Altivo out of Gracie S. 2:22, the dam of Dione 2:09½. This youngster is mature looking, with a fine neck, on which is set the clean, bony head of the race horse. With a set of the best of legs carried well under him, a short coupling, and muscles that are well developed and clearly defined, he is the ideal race trotter in looks, and is said to keep up the appearance when he has the harness on and is driven on the track. Mr. O'Brien, like Mr. Kenny, believes there is more to be gained in the way of training colts by kind treatment than by harsh methods, and all those under his care seemed to have perfect manners, and, though full of life, to be gentle and thoroughly tractable, doing as they were bid as near as intelligent horses know how.

The brood mares on the farm are by such sires as Speculation, Guy Wilkes, Aptos Wilkes, Green's Bashaw, Abbottsford, Gossiper, Dexter Prince, Valensin, son of Sidney, Cresco, Steinway, Nephew, Benefit, Director, and out of mares by Bull Pup, Alexander, Electioneer, Nauhu, Geo. M. Patchen, Jr., backed up by such thoroughbred blood as Lodi, imported Glencoe, Lexington, Williamson's Belmont, and other great long distance families. Individuality is one of the foundation stones of the breeding on Aptos Stock Farm, and Mr. Spreckels has no use for the slab-sided, angular mare or horse that has nothing but speed to recommend it. The result of his wise policy in breeding for good looks as well as for speed and constitution is seen in the animals on the farm. Not a cheap looking individual is there, and scarcely one that cannot be described as having size, style and good conformation.

This splendid property is under the superintendency of Mr. R. Larsen, who for the past twenty-five years has occupied this important position. A quiet man who knows the place thoroughly and who directs the many men employed thereon with an executive ability that is shown in the perfect manner in which the work is done and the place is kept.

Overlooking the row of training stalls is "The Bungalow," a veritable bachelor's cottage, where Mr. A. B. Spreckels loves to spend as occasion permits a few days relaxation from business. The rooms are adorned with pictures of his favorite horses and it is one of his greatest pleasures to sojourn here with a few friends, visiting the training track during the morning hours where while seated in the stand, he holds a watch as the young colts and fillies are brushed quarters and halves or given a full mile at speed as the case may be. What greater enjoyment could there be for the true lover of the horse?

The many beauties of Aptos Ranch could only be enumerated in a volume, and then they could not be faithfully described even were the pen guided by genius. The deep, dark gorges through which run Aptos creek, and over which here and there cross rustic bridges seldom reached by the rays of the sun; giant redwoods eight or ten feet in diameter, their lofty heads towering to the clouds and from their giant arms hanging a lace like moss that adds weirdness and beauty to the scene; rolling hills on which crops of hay and grain are grown, and over which stately matrons lead their playful colts, the exercise developing strength of limb and lungs; the thick chapparal, where gourd oaks, pepper and laurel trees, banks over which wild blackberry vines climb and bloom in great profusion; winding roads and paths which seem fitted especially for the meanderings of youthful lovers, so romantic are they: surely Dame Nature here speaks "a various language to him who holds communion with her various forms."

The foundation of a great stock farm has been wisely laid at Aptos by its owner. From this place so richly endowed by nature and so carefully stocked with the best of California's trotting blood and individuality will go out in the future to sales ring and trotting track colts and fillies, whose deeds shall add glory to the State, fame to the farm, and testimony to the ability and judgment of its enterprising owner.

Antioch where a competent attache of the farm is in waiting. They are cared for there over night in a comfortable stable, and in the morning taken to their destination.

Views of portions of the property which accompany this article, in a measure, tell the story, but there are other important features which will interest horse owners.

The area of the property which is oval shaped, is about 300 acres. It has been subdivided into sections which in turn have been laid out in box stalls for stallions, paddocks, departments for brood mares, jockey stables and other convenient buildings and enclosures to suit. The fencing, separating the various parcels of land and water, is the best to be seen in California.

In dry weather, when the feed is beginning to turn, the patches are irrigated by means of a hydraulic pump. It is situated at the north end of the farm over the levee. The supply may be regulated to suit, and the various little ditches convey the water where needed.

During the winter rains when the land is overburdened with water there is a large steam pump close up to the levee which sends the water out. There is a low circular pond which receives the overplus of water from the drains and ditches, and the pump operates from it. By this means the land is kept in proper condition the year round. In other words, when it is dry weather the hydraulic pump supplies the demand, but when the winter rains immerse the soil the steam pump exhausts the over supply.

About one-half the land is in alfalfa, the other half, ex-

LOCATION, CLIMATIC CONDITIONS, GOOD FEED AND MANAGEMENT MAKE IT A PARADISE FOR HORSES.

Who does not know this model resting place for that noble animal, the horse? Something of its kind used to be recorded in the annals of old England as the Farmers' and Breeders' enjoyable recreation grounds.

Along the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers the time was when nobody thought of reclaiming the marsh lands, although it was known that they were rich for the raising of grasses, alfalfa and vegetables, but as time rolled on the enterprising investor ascertained that the dark alluvial soil, if protected from the overflow by substantial levees would in a very short time not only repay the outlay for improvements, but give good returns on the investment. To-day millions of acres have been reclaimed, and those who have put their money in the ventures are pleased with the result.

The Brentwood grazing farm is owned by Mr. H. Dutard, the well known grain and commission merchant of San Francisco, and the general superintendency is entrusted to Frank Nugent, a man thoroughly experienced in all the departments of the horse world and in the competent management of a property of this nature.

When the land was purchased by the owner some four years ago it only had its desirable location, and the requisites of soil and climatic conditions, but by judicious expenditure of means and careful management it has been brought into a state of cultivation and subdivided for pasturage uses which make it one of the best grazing farms on the Pacific Slope.

It is within convenient distance from San Francisco, 58 miles, and may be reached either by the Southern Pacific system to Brentwood or by the steamers of the Union Transportation Company of Stockton to Antioch. From the latter place to the farm is nine miles, from Brentwood Station, five miles.

When the Valley (Santa Fe System) Road is open for traffic, two hours ride from the city will land the visitor at the farm.

Horses may be forwarded by the Stockton steamers to clusive of building parcels, being devoted to sections of timothy, red top and mixtures of natural grasses. At the north sections of the land the soil was originally soft and boggy, but cattle were put upon it during the dry seasons, and by regulating the water supply the rich decomposed matter was made firm and fit for cultivation. Here is where the new-comer in need of rest, crippled and footsore finds relief. Natural grass and the gentle elasticity of the soil give the animal the initial coolness of foot, while a tit bit to eat fits the noble guest for pasturage in one of the other subdivisions where a suitable change of diet is supplied. I was told by an expert in these matters that this short growth, which is of a rye nature, hardens the tissues and improves the animals wind.

In the other subdivisions there are succulent grasses and alfalfa, and in the majority of them alfalfa predominates.

In the various enclosures are to be found horses of every description; the light harness, flyer, carriage, truck and down to the every day huggy horse. Due regard is observed to the separation of sexes and the family quarters. The latter is a most interesting nursery. Some of the youngsters look very promising. In company with three well-known San Francisco horse owners, Eddie Graney, Captain Harris and G. Wempe I visited this section. Eddie Graney was there to see his first horn flyer, four months old. I asked Captain Harris, who was there on professional business, for his opinion of the farm and the horses in general. Said he: "While looking over the beauties and natural advantages of this ranch I am more than surprised. The perfect system in vogue here is to the practical horseman a source of great pleasure. Mr. Dutard is to be congratulated that in the superintendent, Mr. Nugent, the right man is in the right place. In looking over the colts we were all attracted by the unnamed daughter of Sallie Sensible and Figaro (Mr. Graney's). One old man, whom I afterwards learned was a Kentucky veteran of the pigskin, remarked, 'that there were many fine and blue bloods here in the nursery, but as a racing prospect he would rather own Sensible filly than all the rest.' His enumeration of the many points of her superiority showed conclusively the justification of his opinion."

But there are others who have, and have had horses and colts there, among them I noticed by the register the following: J. J. Crooks, W. Lester, G. Wempe (who has a very promising light harness colt there), Frank Carr, F. O'Kane, R. F. Gallagher, F. Gourmet, Barney Schreiber, Ed. Corrigan, Cesar Young, Eddie Graney, W. F. Stanfield, S. Hildreth, Frank Taylor, Burns & Waterhouse, W. B. Sink, Sr. and Jr., E. M. Brattain, Ned Lannigan, D. J. Lynch, George A. Pope, A. L. Hart, Atkin & Lotteridge, George Rose, Col. Dickie, James Chesley, P. Ryan, George Berry, Sam Merriweather, and others. Besides there are horses from leading livery stables, heweries, trucking concerns, wholesale and business houses.

On the farm are produced hay, corn, carrots, sorghum and other vegetables. Horses are supplied liberally when the occasion calls for it. The canal supplies the best of fresh water for man and beast, and the irrigation system for the entire farm.

To the west of the property the lands are tilled which accounts for the entire absence of mosquitos and flies.

Small steamers and schooners are enabled to reach the barns with horses or other supplies.

Diseased horses are not received under any circumstances. Nature has provided knolls in the various enclosures, where horses may rest, and when in need of gentle exercise, there is a swimming spot in the canal for that purpose.

There is a well appointed new residence on the property where the Superintendent and his family reside, and communication by telephone may be had with the farm at any time.

SUBDIVISIONS AND BUILDINGS VIEWED FROM CENTER OF FARM LOOKING TOWARDS MOUNT DIABLO.

A PIONEER HORSE BREEDER.

When the first State Fair was held at Sacramento, Mr. D. E. Knight of Marysville, now the acting president of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, had an entry in one of the trotting races. This year, on the first day of the meeting, a three year old filly owned by him and of his breeding won the Occident Stake in straight heats, getting a record of 2:21½ and swelling her owner's purse to the extent of $1825. Three weeks previous at the P. C. T. H. B. A. meeting at Santa Rosa another filly bred by Mr. Knight won the two year old trotting division of the Breeders' Futurity. This was Eula Mac, 2:27½, by McKinney out of Balance All by Brigadier. Just before the California circuit opened I visited Mr. Knight at Marysville and looked over his string of trotters in training there under the care of the well known reinsman, Wm. Hogaboom.

At that time the pet of the stable and Mr. Knight's particular pride was the handsome big gelding Daimont, 2:17, by Lynnont, dam Daisy (which accounts for the peculiar spelling of his name), by Friday McCracken, a son of the old Morgan horse Billy McCracken, one of the early California campaigners and a horse that was able and ready to go five mile heats against all comers. Daimont has shown in his work the ability to trot miles below 2:15 and if he does not get a record there it will be because he is not in good shape when the bell taps.

Lynall, 2:23, is another of Mr. Knight's favorites, and is by Lynnont out of Balance All (the dam of Eula Mac), by Brigadier.

Don Minutus, 2:30, is a bay gelding out of Elmorine by Elmo, and sired by Melvar. He did not appear to me to look in good condition, but Mr. Hogaboom assured me that he was all right and would be able to demonstrate it latter on in the season.

I was next shown a bay gelding out of Lue Star by the name of Waldstein, Jr., a two year old sired by a horse of that name. I took kindly to this animal owing, I presume, to his gentleness, and being inexperienced in the horse business, I incidently remarked to the trainer: "That youngster looks as if he could trot fast." "Oh," remarked the affable reinsman, "he a pacer that fellow, and he will take part in the circuit races with the others I have just shown to you."

Mr. Knight has made a study of raising trotters since 1862, in which year he purchased from J. G. McCracken the stallion Billy McCracken, by Morgan Black Hawk. Aside from those already referred to he has on one or another of his farms King of the Ring, 2:21, a sorel gelding 10 years old, out of Knight Hawk by Brigadier, and sired by Silver King. Lynhood a bay four year old gelding out of Knighthood also by Brigadier and sired by Lynnont. Patti Rosa, a brown mare with a record of 2:25 is 7 years old. Her dam is Mollie, by Yuba Boy—an inbred McCracken. Patti's sire is Silver King. A bay mare, Cora S, is a pacer with a 2:20 mark; she is 8 years old, sired by Alexander Button, dam Nellie by Brigadier, second dam by Tom Atchison, thoroughbred. Silver Queen, a bay mare 8 years old, has a record of 2:19, her sire being Silver King, dam unknown. Among the two year olds and babies I noticed Cordie N, sired by McKinney and out of Knighthood, who is the dam of Lynnwood. A bay yearling filly pacer by the great Altamont, dam Knighthood; Waldo D, a bay yearling out of Daisy, by Friday McCracken, sired by Walstein; also two full brothers to Daimont—Cinders and Henry S—a baby sorel filly by Diablo, dam Knighthood, and a brown yearling out of Elmorine, by Elmo, and sired by Lynnont. In another inclosure where there is fine alfalfa I found Lue Star a seven year old bay mare by Brigadier, dam by Echo, second dam by Old Langford. This mare has a colt by Lynnont. A three year old bay out of Knighthood, sire Lynnont, is a handsome animal and has size and style enough for a carriage horse.

The mascot of the stable is a young deer "Sampson" out of his mother sired by an unknown fleet footed animal. This deer is a perfect pet and when the horses are out in training, this wide-awake citizen of the forest follows them around the track. He is a boon companion of the St. Bernard dogs, and in fact of everybody about the place.
