REPORT OF SECOND ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

THE Second Annual General Meeting of this Fund was held on Wednesday, October 29th, in the theatre of the Royal Institution, Albemarle-street, by kind permission of the Managers, when a report on past discoveries and projected excavations at Sân (Zoan) was read by Mr. W. M. F. Petrie.

Mr. C. T. Newton, C.B., who took the chair, said that a letter had been received from the French Ambassador expressing his regret that he could not attend. The American Minister, the Hon. James Russell Lowell, had kindly consented to become a vice-president, honoris causa; and the committee had also done him (Mr. Newton) the honour to elect him a vice-president. After speaking of the value of the systematic records and plans Mr. Petrie had prepared, and of the beautiful and highly interesting collections he had brought home by the permission of Professor Maspero, who had selected for Boolák a limited series of objects, he referred to expectations which were entertained of light being thrown upon the relations between the Greeks and Egyptians from investigations Mr. Petrie proposed to engage in, pending the return of the season in which work could be carried on at Sân. By excavating a Greek mound of great promise Mr. Petrie would fulfil a pledge of the Fund, and the results would no doubt be of the highest interest, judging from the explorer's report of the site. While Mr. Petrie was working at Sân, Mr. Naville would be engaged in investigating very important early sites on which Mr. Petrie had reported, and in prosecuting his inquiry as to the route of the Exodus. In conclusion, he urged a request of the committee for an increase in the number of regular subscriptions upon which they might be able to base their operations.

A resolution expressing the deep regret of the subscribers at the death of the munificent president of the fund, Sir Erasmus Wilson, and of condolence with Lady Wilson, was moved by Mr. R. S. Poole, hon. sec., who dwelt on the admirable qualities of Sir Erasmus as a man and a president, and on that happy combination of sagacity and trustfulness, wisdom and modesty, which had marked all his relations with the society, and which made him, at once, the easiest, as well as the most helpful, of presidents. The vote was feelingly seconded by Miss Amelia B. Edwards, hon. sec.

Mr Petrie then read the following paper:—

I do not purpose to say much at present on the details of the work which has been done, as you will receive those in the Annual Report, and, at the close of this meeting, I hope to shew some illustrations of Sîn which I have brought back from thence.

We are met here for business; and as you will shortly hear the Financial Balance Sheet, it is my duty this afternoon to present to you the Antiquarian Balance Sheet,—to render to you the account of the results obtained in return for the work done.

In the first place, I have examined carefully more than twenty sites of ancient cities and remains, and reported to the Committee on the size and position of each mound of ruins, and the age of the antiquities that are to be found on the surface and in any excavations; especially noting the age of the pottery and the bricks, both of which give a chronological scale for an approximate estimate of the period. The immediate results are that some sites, supposed to be of importance, prove to be of small size, and this alone—as in the case of Tell-Abu-Suleiman—is of geographical value, as we are thus prevented attributing a large city to such a situation; secondly, that some sites are of such a size, and so much encumbered with late deposits, that their examination should be postponed; and thirdly, that we have got the clue to several important localities for future work, on which we hope to make some impression in the coming season. Among these sites I may mention one which is so covered with early Greek pottery that the potsherds crackle under the feet in walking over it; pottery of every date, from the prehistoric down through the Phœnician, and the black figured, to the finest period of red-figured pottery on a black ground, and on, into still later times. Beside pottery, statuettes in marble and alabaster are found, of which I obtained nine in a single visit, more or less perfect. Such is a site of the first importance for Greek archæology, and it has never before been visited by a European so far as is known. Next, I would name a site of a royal mausoleum. On the side of a desolate mound of dust and chips and bones, there stands an immense sarcophagus, carved in red-granite, and turned up on its end. We have some large stone coffins in the Egyptian gallery of the museum, but the Apis sarcophagi of the Serapeum far exceed the size of those, and this enormous block far exceeds again the Apis sarcophagi; they are but eleven feet long,—this is fourteen and a half feet long. Who was buried here we know not; probably some king between the XXII and XXVI Dynasty, that is to say, during the period of the Jewish kings. The mortuary chapel in which this coffin stood has been destroyed—burnt for lime; but the massive pavement of red granite remains beneath the coffin, and when the few feet of dust and mud which cover it shall be removed, we shall probably be able to locate the sepulchre of one of the Pharaohs of the Delta, and not improbably recover some of the sepulchral furniture. This is on the side of a great cemetery, certainly as old as the XXVI Dynasty (before the Jewish captivity), and by some indications still older, even on the surface. Whether other royal tombs may appear is an exciting speculation, but it is certain that on another side of the same mound lies a portion of a sphinx apparently carved by the Hyksos, so that the remains there go back to the early ages; and from the absence of the great accumulation of the Greek and Roman remains which load other sites, we have a good prospect of reaching the very foundations of the heap. Yet one other site I will mention. In the midst of a flat field beside a little village, a large hole was dug by the people for water. At only about eight feet below the surface there lies in that hole the lintel and one jamb of a magnificent gateway, carved in red granite by Amenemhat I, the founder of the XII Dynasty, some time before the age of Abraham. Now, a gateway would never be erected in the midst of the open country; it implies that it leads to a temple or some building; and that the gateway stood there is certain, by the lintel and jamb lying together. Under that field of black mud, but eight feet from the surface, there must lie some building worthy of such a noble entrance.

When I say that each of these sites,—the prehistoric Greek town, the royal tomb and cemetery, and the great gateway, none of them known to Europeans before, are on our list of work for next year, for which we hope to receive, through M. Marpero's kind officers, the permission of the Egyptian Government, you will, I trust, feel that a good return has been obtained for the time spent in exploratory work.

I must now say somewhat of the work at Sâh, that ancient city, built seven years before Hebron. Of course, our main object there is to recover somewhat of the great unknown period of the Shepherd Kings—the Hyksos. But in this we have been hitherto foiled, simply by the immensity of the area. We want to find their town, but where in the expanse of ruins shall we seek it? A district as long as from this room to Bayswater, and as wide as from here to the Thames, cannot be explored in a year, nor in ten years; and when I say that the mounds vary up to eighty feet in height, or four times as deep as the Roman remains are found in London, you will realise the fact that to thoroughly clear such a site would be a matter of centuries of work rather than the few months that can be given to it between the rains and the heat of one season. What has been done is that the whole of the area has been examined to depths of ten, twenty, or thirty feet, so that there is not a space of more than 300 yards in any part untouched by excavation, and many districts have been riddled with pits. In some places we have touched remains that probably go back to before the Egyptian Empire, perhaps to the Hyksos period; but in by far the greater part of the workings, we always met with Greek and Roman remains; and that after penetrating down to twenty or thirty feet on the top of a hill where the denudation is greatest, in the bottom of a valley where late accumulations might be supposed to be absent, and in the middle of the plain.

But to turn to our positive results. The whole of the Great Temple of Sâh, excavated by Mariette more than twenty years ago, and untouched since then, has been examined; every accessible block of stone has been cleaned around; every side of each block has been examined, if by any means possible; every fragment of inscription that could be found has been copied; and a complete plan, shewing the position of about 300 blocks, has been made. This plan is on the table before you. It is, I believe, the most complete account that has been yet rendered of any site in Egypt, or perhaps in other countries as well. The information thus obtained has enabled the history of the place to be worked out, and has exhibited the successive changes and destructions that have overtaken the great works left there by the rulers of each period.

In the course of this clearing, I found the upper part of a long inscription of Tahraka the Ethiopian, of which the lower part had been already published by De Rougé. Also parts of an obelisk, with an inscription of an unknown prince, Nehesi, who lived in the XIV Dynasty, before the Hyksos kings. This inscription is read by M. Naville as giving the names of the district of Sâh in that primitive time, Roahth; and it shews that Sutekh the special deity of the Hyksos, was worshipped here before their conquest of this place. Several inscriptions of that little known king, Si-amen, were copied, and among them one which had certainly never been uncovered in modern times: it represents the adoration of the God, Khem, and is one of the most interesting sculptures yet found of this king.

Of the great ruins of the temple I need hardly now give any account as I have already published an epitome of the remains in the "Academy," and the full description will shortly be in your hands in my memoir. Suffice to say, that there are the statues of five kings of the XII Dynasty, or portions of them, of two kings of the XIII Dynasty, the sphinxes of the Hyksos; a profusion of obelisks, sculptures, and statues of the Great Ramessu II (whom the Greeks called Ramesses, and whom the English have vulgarised into Ramses), and many fragments of the work of later kings. All these will be described, with the inscriptions, and photographs of several of them, in my memoirs for this year and next year. But I must not pass over the fragments of the largest colossus yet known, which I found among the ruins of the pylon built by Sesonk III, the seventh in descent from Shishak whose name is familiar to all of us. This colossus of Ramessu II had been cut up for building stone, but from the fragments, weighing four or five tons each, that I have seen, its height cannot have been less than eighty feet, and it may very probably have been as much as ninety-five feet, depending on the proportion that the toes bore to the whole figure. You have here before you an outline of the toes of the foot, of the actual size, and from that you can well credit that it is the largest colossus yet known to have been carved even in Egypt.

Outside of the ruins of the temple, in the mounds of Sâh, several objects of historical and technical value have been found. The temple of the Ptolemaic period has been touched, a large sculptured block and part of the pavement having been found this year. A chapel of Ptolemy II, and Arsinoe II, has been discovered, containing a stele representing the king and queen offering to the Triad of Sâh, Khem, Uati, and Harpekhroti; this was flanked on either side by a sphinx carved in limestone, and there were several smaller tablets lying in front of it. A similar stele of Ptolemy II was found in another part of the mounds. Two large wells of Greek or early Roman age have been found, with staircases leading down to the water, by which the people descended to fill their pitchers. These wells, when cleared out, will shew how far the land has changed its level since that age, and may give us a harvest of small objects which have been lost in the water.

But the houses of Sâh have yielded a large number of remains of every kind, of which only a few of the most important can be here noticed. The richest house belonged to a native Egyptian, Bak-akhuiu, who was a Roman official, and who appears to have been burnt out in the Bucolic War in the reign of Aurelius, 174 A. D. His statue is on the table before you, and some of the articles found in his house; one remarkable piece of sculpture is that of a seated, winged sphinx, in a Syrian style; yet, from the turreted crown, probably representing the good genius of a city, very probably of Tanis itself. The style of this work is very unlike what would be expected at that time and place, and shews a strong Syrian influence. The other objects—a lamp, fittings of furniture, bowls, vases, images, burnishers, and many other small objects I have brought over; and there still remain many things, including a large collection of pottery found in that house, which I hope to see in England next year. From this house also, a great quantity of papyri have been recovered, all burnt and much damaged, but yet, more or less legible; more than a hundred of them are now in course of examination, under the skilful arrangement of the Manuscript Department of the British Museum.

Altogether such a collection has never hitherto been obtained from any single house; and in this, as in the other antiquities that I have brought, the value consists more in the knowledge of the exact age and locality of everything obtained, than in the rarity of the objects themselves, though many of them are unique. In another house of the same age a glass zodiac was found with the heads of the months painted in silver and the signs laid on in gold foil; this is the only Roman zodiac yet found in Egypt; the only representation of the heads of the months, so far as I can learn; and the only example of painting on glass found in that country, or indeed elsewhere, excepting a vase found in Cyprus. Unhappily it has undergone almost every possible injury; brushing, burning, loss of the design, and scaling of the glass; but yet it shews us some fresh details of Roman work. Along with that was found the only glass lens yet discovered in Egypt, which is on the table before you; a clear mass of almost colourless glass, highly polished, and over $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter. In the same house was found a beautiful female head on a term, of which I hope to shew you a photograph shortly. This we may perhaps see next year, if it should not be considered requisite for the Boolak Museum.

The various other small objects of interest, the fine glass mosaics,—the woven embroidery of many colours—the delicate statuettes—the bronze window lattice from Pithom, the first known,—the gilt wall scene of Nekht-har-hebi—and many other things, time will not allow us to consider now and you will shortly hear of the large proportion of your expenses which has been directly recouped, according to the valuation of the objects brought home. I trust that I have shewn you that in a season of steady work, without any startling and revolutionary discovery, such as the site of Pithom, we may be certain to obtain new and interesting results, to enrich our museums with unique and valuable objects, and to win the keys to all our existing collections, by the systematic excavation and research which will yield us with certainty the knowledge of the peculiarities proper to each age and locality of which as yet we know so little.

Miss Amelia B. Edwards, hon. sec., congratulated the society upon “discoveries” which had been made at home by the Committee and hon. secretaries during Mr. Petrie’s absence in Egypt.

Many new friends and supporters had been by them discovered in England and elsewhere, including 171 American donors and subscribers, of which number three were heads of colleges, twenty-seven dignitaries of the church, nineteen distinguished University professors, and thirty-two members of Congress. Miss Edwards claimed in this connexion, the discovery of a silver mine in the United States of America, “from which the ore is conveniently extracted in a ready minted condition, and every blow of the pick produces a yield of shining American dollars,”

Finally "an object of the utmost rarity, quite new, and in admirable preservation had been discovered; an object more curious than any antiquity in the British Museum—namely a young English student of Egyptology, being the first specimen of that article which had turned up for a whole generation." Had none such come to light, there would not be an Englishman capable, thirty years hence, of reading an Egyptian inscription; and consequently the Egypt Exploration Fund (if still pursuing its work) would be compelled to send its discoveries of tablets and papyri to Paris or Berlin for translation. It was to be hoped that England would now be spared this national disgrace. Miss Edwards then proceeded to give an outline of the work about to be undertaken.

Mr. Petrie's labour at Sâh, while already productive of the beautiful collections, and of a mass of large objects, tablets, sphinxes, and vases, still warehoused at Sâh, promised each season to bring to light documents of earlier date, and still higher value. M. Naville would resume the researches which had led to the greatest modern illustration of early Hebrew history, the discovery of Pithom, and would be especially directed to resolving the problem of the Exodus route, while he would also be engaged in the exploration of two most important sites of remote antiquity discovered by Mr. Petrie.

Mr. R. Stuart Poole presented a financial statement which showed a balance to the credit of the Fund of £2,162. This included £400 subscribed to the special Sâh Exploration Fund of £1,000 started by Mr. W. Fowler, M.P., to which £250 more had been promised, £350 remaining to be subscribed. It was proposed to expend during next year a sum of £1,650, of which £150 would be spent on publications and the remainder on excavations and explorations. It was also proposed to send out an English student of Egyptology to assist Mr. Petrie. To do this an expenditure of £250 per annum for three years would have to be provided. One gentleman (Mr. Henry Willett, of Brighton) had already promised to give £500 if £250 more were subscribed within a fortnight. American contributions, for which the Fund was indebted to the exertions of the Rev. W. C. Winslow of Boston,

United States, hon. treasurer for America to the Fund, amounted to £260 up to 31st July, 1884.

Mr. W. Fowler, M.P., moved—"That this meeting present to the Trustees of the British Museum, under conditions to be specified, a selection of antiquities here exhibited, collected by Mr. Petrie."

Mr. James Fergusson having seconded the resolution, it was unanimously passed.

The Chairman, in moving the next resolutions, spoke first of the zeal for archæology displayed by our Transatlantic cousins, and, secondly, made an acknowledgment of the debt of gratitude the Committee owed M. Maspero for his kindness in furthering the objects they had in view. The motions agreed to with acclamation were—"That the meeting present to the Museum of Boston, United States, a second selection, accompanied by a cordial vote of thanks to the Rev. W. C. Winslow, hon. treasurer of the Fund for America; and other collections to the museums of Bristol, Bolton, York, Liverpool, Sheffield, Edinburgh, and Geneva, to Charterhouse School, to Miss Edwards for a college, and to the Museum at Boolak, with a vote of thanks to Prof. Maspero."

The American Minister cordially acknowledged the gift on the part of the American supporters of the Fund, and expressed his intention of becoming a subscriber.

Mr. George H. Pope, of Clifton, accepted on behalf of Bristol and other Museums.

The proceedings closed with votes of thanks to the Managers of the Royal Institution and Sir William Bowman, to the Council of the Royal Archæological Institute, and Messrs. Thos. Cook & Son, for their valuable aid in Egypt, and to the chairman for his kindness in presiding.

Photographic views of historic and other sculptures dating from the Twelfth Dynasty (above 2,000 years B.C.) to the Roman period, found at Sâh and Pithom, were then showed by the use of the lime-light lantern, Mr. Petrie, who had taken the photographs himself, describing briefly the chief points of interest in each.

Report of Third Ordinary General Meeting

(SEVENTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING).

THE THIRD ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND since its incorporation as a Society (its seventh since the foundation of the Fund in 1883) was held on Friday, November 29th, in the large room of the Zoological Society, 3 Hanover Square; the President, Sir John Fowler, K.C.M.G., in the Chair.

There were present: Professor Reginald Stuart Poole, LL.D., Vice-President of the Fund; H. A. Grueber, Esq., F.S.A., Honorary Treasurer; Hellier Gosselin, Esq., Secretary; T. H. Baylis, Esq., Q.C.; Professor Hayter Lewis; the Rev. W. MacGregor; Mrs. Tirard; Miss H. M. Adair; Miss A. E. F. Barlow; Miss Herbert; J. Hilton, Esq.; W. Fowler, Esq.; A. S. Murray, Esq., &c., &c.

The proceedings were opened by the PRESIDENT, who called upon the Secretary to read the list of Members of Committee who were retiring in rotation, and the list of Members recommended for re-election. Mr. F. L. Griffith was recommended for election as a new Member of Committee.

The following resolution, proposed by Sir JOHN FOWLER, and seconded by Professor HAYTER LEWIS, was then carried:

Mr. H. A. Grueber, Hon. Treasurer, then submitted the Balance Sheet, and read his Financial Report.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE HONORARY TREASURER FOR 1888-9.

I am happy to state at the outset that the Balance Sheet, which I have the honour to lay before the Council, presents a much more prosperous state of things than I anticipated in April last, when, owing to the heavy transport expenses, our balance had been reduced much lower than at any previous period of my holding the office of Treasurer. It is needless for me to state that the satisfactory state of our Funds is due to the unremitting exertions of your Hon. Secretary and Vice-President, Miss Edwards; and to the continued zealous efforts of your Hon. Treasurer for America, the Rev. W. C. Winslow; and also of the several Local Honorary Secretaries. I shall proceed by giving details of the Balance Sheet as on previous occasions.

The Balance Sheet shows that the total expenditure for the year 1888-9 was £2936 os. od., which is made up of the following items: (1) For the completion of M. Naville's excavations on the site of Bubastis and the City of Onias, and for the remaining part of the expenses connected with the transport to Alexandria, and thence to England, America, and Geneva, of the objects found, £1466 5s. 5d.; (2) To Dr. Farley Goddard, the American Student, £140; (3) For Publications, viz., printing, illustrating, binding, and packing Tanis II., Naukratis II., Goshen, Pithom, Nebesheh, and Defenneh, and the Tanis Papyri, £1001 4s. 4d.; (4) For rent of office and secretarial expenses, printing, stationary, postage, &c., £328 10s. 3d.

The total receipts for the corresponding period have been £2997 11s. 8d., the principal items of which are as follows: (1) By subscriptions, £2495 17s. 5d. These may be thus particularised: Through Miss Edwards, £406 12s.; through the Rev. W. C. Winslow, £1500 (including the £100 for the American Student's Fund); and through Professor R. Stuart Poole, the Local Hon. Secretaries, the Secretary, &c., £589 5s. 5d. (2) By the completion of the Transport Fund, £311 12s.; viz., to Special Fund raised by Miss Edwards in 1887-8, £98 6s.; and from the amounts refunded by the British Museum and the Boston Museum for the carriage of objects presented to those institutions by the Fund, £213 6s. (3) By the Sale of Publications, £150 14s. 6d.; of which sum, £123 10s. 6d. was received through Miss Edwards. (4) And by Interest on the Deposit Account, £39 7s. 9d.

On comparing our financial position of the last year with that of the previous one we arrive at the following results:—

The gross expenditure for 1887-8 was £2341 19s. 11d., as against £2936 0s. 0d. for 1888-9, and the gross receipts over the same periods were £2563 4s. 11d., as against £2997 11s. 8d.; the home receipts through ordinary subscriptions and donations showing an increase for 1888-9 of £85 8s. 9d. on those of the previous year, and those for America £300. In this last item, in the case of England, I do not include the Special Transport Fund, nor the sums refunded for carriage by the British Museum; nor, in the American accounts, the Student's Fund and the Boston Museum contribution to carriage.

In the receipts for publications there has been an increase of £87 10s. 9d.; this increase being one of the results of Miss Edwards taking over into her hands all matters connected with the sale and printing of the Fund publications.

As regards our available assets at the close of the two periods: on the 31st July, 1888, our Cash balance was £2532 1s. 2d., and at the same date in 1889 it was £2593 12s. 10d.; and upon this your Budget must be grounded for excavations during the coming season in Egypt, and for publications for the year 1889-90.

The only serious expenditure which the Committee has incurred since the closing of the accounts in August last is that of splitting and sending to England and America some of the remaining blocks of stone with inscriptions and figures found at Bubastis. The work has already been done by Count d'Hulst, and the blocks are on their way to Alexandria for shipment to this country. The number of blocks is sixteen, and the cost will be about £400; or not to exceed £25 for each block.

I am glad to be able to lay before the Council such a favourable account of the finances of the Fund. It is all the more favourable since we have not at present any heavy liabilities in hand, except that of conveying the sixteen blocks from Bubastis.

Mr. GRUEBER then read a letter he had just received from the Rev. W. C. Winslow (Vice-President and Hon. Treasurer for America), describing the cordial reception of Miss Amelia B. Edwards in America, and the intense interest created by her lectures.

Mr. A. S. MURRAY, keeper of Greek and Roman Antiquities in the British Museum, moved the adoption of the Report, and remarked that if any of the subscribers grudged the heavy expenses of bringing over the monuments from Bubastis, they might satisfy themselves of their very great value by a visit to the British Museum.

In seconding the Report, Mr. W. FOWLER, of the memorable Fowler Fund, remarked on the very great proportion of the receipts that come from American subscribers. He also spoke of the pleasure the meeting must feel at the account of the Hon. Secretary's progress through America, and feelingly alluded to the blank caused by her absence.

Sir JOHN FOWLER, in putting the resolution, took occasion to endorse in the strongest terms Mr. W. Fowler's remarks as to the interest felt by the meeting in Miss Edwards's American lectures; and at the same time he remarked that her absence was greatly regretted on this important occasion, which thus formed a marked contrast to the last meeting.

A paper which had been prepared by Miss Emily Paterson, Private Secretary to Miss Edwards, was then read by Mr. GRUBBER.

"In the absence of the Hon. Secretary, I have drawn up a short statement of the work done since the meeting in April last. You will remember that Miss Edwards forestalled the Report which should have been given at this meeting; namely, the description of M. Naville's work at Bubastis during the season of 1888-9. There are now but a few supplementary details to add to that Report. No further discoveries have been made, the exploration season of 1889-90 having not yet commenced. Not, therefore, until our next meeting shall we learn what success may attend M. Naville's explorations at Ahnas-el-Medineh, that being the site chosen for this season's work.

"The Committee, however, have despatched Count d'Hulst to Tell Basta, to rescue some of the more valuable monuments yet on the ground from certain destruction at the hands of the native population, who, even in the short interval since Count d'Hulst was on the spot, have defaced many of those precious historical sculptures.

"You may remember that, at the April meeting, Miss

Edwards told us how M. Naville had discovered among the ruins of the Great Temple two most important inscriptions dating the Temple back to the IVth Dynasty, i.e. to the reigns of Khufu (the builder of the Great Pyramid), and Khafra (the builder of the Second Pyramid). These inscriptions are of such great historical value that the Committee decided to bring them over, and, with your sanction, to present them to the British Museum. The XIIth Dynasty is also represented on the blocks discovered, and this M. Naville found on a block bearing the erased cartouche of Usertesen I., usurped by Rameses II. This too is on its way to England. In order to carry on the historical sequence of the inscriptions, and at the same time to increase the value of last year's gift to the British Museum (namely, the throne and head of the Hyksôs king, supposed to be Apepi), we are also bringing over the block inscribed with his cartouche. There is still another historical monument being sent over, which is inscribed by Seti II., of the XIXth Dynasty, the supposed grandson of Rameses the Great, of whom there is a fine statue in the British Museum.

“Besides the above-named objects, the Committee were anxious to rescue as many as possible of the beautiful basreliefs found in the Festival Hall and the Hall of Osorkon. They have, therefore, offered to present slabs to local provincial museums, whenever the cost of transport can be guaranteed. I am happy to tell you that seven blocks are being brought over on these terms: one for Manchester, two for Bolton, one for Greenock, one for Tamworth, one for York, and one for Canada, the transport expenses of which are paid for by persons interested in the respective museums. These basreliefs are similar to the one presented last year to the British Museum, representing Osorkon II. and Queen Karoama.

“The Committee have also taken it upon themselves to offer a selection of objects from Tell Basta to the Berlin Museum and to the Louvre. You will, I feel sure, approve of this step when you hear the circumstances under which the offers were made. Prof. Erman, of the Berlin Museum, having given up his prior claim to excavate at Ahnas-el-Medineh in favour of M. Naville, has placed the Fund under an obligation; and it seemed only right that we should do all in our power to show our gratitude. I may add that the expenses of transport will be borne by the Berlin Museum. It seemed desirable to show M. Maspero, our French Vice-President, the like civility; and the Committee, therefore, made a similar offer to the Louvre through him."

At the close of the paper, Mr. GRUEBER explained the circumstances in which the Committee had determined on the site of Ahnas in conference with M. Naville, who was present for the purpose at one of the meetings of the Committee. Finding that M. Grébaut, the director of museums and excavations in Egypt, desired to excavate at Memphis, M. Naville had ascertained that Ahnas might be worked by the Fund. He stated that Ahnas was the site of the great city Heracleopolis, situate at the entrance of the Fayûm, and, after Memphis and Heliopolis, was probably the most important city north of the Thebaid. When, in the VIIIth Dynasty, Memphis apparently lost its pre-eminence, the Egyptian monarchy passed over in the first instance to Heracleopolis before it was established at Thebes. It was probably a Biblical site—the Hanes mentioned by the Prophet Isaiah, xxx. 4—this name almost exactly preserving the ancient Egyptian Khinensu (Coptic Hnes), surviving in the modern appellation Ahnas.

Prof. STUART POOLE wished to add a word to the statement that had just been read in reference to the extraordinary energy, patience, and self-denying labour shown by Count d'Hulst in undertaking for the third time the onerous duty of transporting the monuments from the site.

He had to work against time, from no fault of his own, and latterly with his feet in the water through the infiltration of the inundation into the mound. Mr. Poole felt that so distinguished a man—formerly an officer of the corps d'élite of the Prussian army, and who carried his military devotion into the service of the Fund—should receive some recognition in the way of encouragement and a vote of thanks. Count d'Hulst had leisure until M. Naville's arrival in the middle of January, and was anxious to employ that time in excavations on the site of the first Muslim capital of Egypt, El-Fustât, two miles south of Cairo, and immediately joining the old fortress of Egyptian Babylon. This excavation, suggested by the eminent connoisseur of lustre-ware, Mr. Henry Wallis, had for its object the determination of the sequence of Persian and Arab lustre-ware by the discovery of specimens at different levels in sites of known date. The result would be the classification in all the collections of Europe of a most interesting class of objects, at present in hopeless disorder. The first selection was to be made by Mr. Franks for the British Museum. In consideration of the high importance of the project, the Committee of the Egypt Exploration Fund had granted £35, and private friends had contributed £33 10s.; but at least £100 was required. Mr. Poole said it would be a very gracious act if any Members of the Fund would contribute small sums towards the completion of the sum needed. It may be added that Mr. William Fowler contributed £5, and Mr. William Rome, F.S.A., £1 1s., in the room.

The PRESIDENT then requested Prof. POOLE to read a paper by Mr. Griffith (formerly student of the Fund, now in the British Museum), who prefaced it by the remark that it was one of the most interesting papers that had been contributed to a meeting of the Fund:

“It is now eighteen months since I returned from Egypt; and, as secondhand information is not desirable, I must ask the Members of the Society to permit a somewhat broad interpretation of one phrase which appeared on the notices of this meeting, and indulgently to allow that a portion of the work done in the spring of 1888 may be considered to represent 'Recent Explorations.'

"There is, in fact, one section of my doings in Egypt last year—I refer to the examination of the rock-tombs of Siût—of which no report has been presented hitherto, although without your aid in sending me on a mission to Egypt I could not have brought the work to a successful issue; and, moreover, I must not forget that a small grant was liberally made by the Committee to cover some traveling and other expenses incurred in my last expedition to Siût. This Report is now made, not without a hope that, since a precedent has been created, the Society may feel justified in undertaking work of a similar description on future occasions, perhaps in the form of a short campaign of exploration in Upper Egypt.

"The title of our Society—'The Egypt Exploration Fund,'—however, suggests a scheme which would indeed throw such a trifle altogether into the shade—I mean an Archæological Survey of Egypt. Is it fanciful to suppose that such an undertaking is possible? The Committee wields a very large revenue, which on occasion shows itself capable of expanding. On this head I see no immediate difficulty. The sister (or almost parent) Society—the Palestine Exploration Fund—has successfully accomplished, in a far more difficult and infinitely less productive region, the survey of the land west of the Jordan. With the countenance and support of the Egyptian Government, we might in a few years sweep the whole surface of the country, and gather in the harvest which hastens to ruin with every day that passes. But what would be most useful and most practicable? Egypt has already been industriously searched by travellers and scientific expeditions. The efforts of the French School at Cairo and of independent tourists are not relaxing. What is needed is a sifting of information, an index to the monuments, a description from a new point of view, taking each city, its tombs and temples, as a whole, and not merely extracting scenes, inscriptions, and architectural features. The latter method was wisely enough followed in former days, when our knowledge of the country, its history and habits, was almost nil, when the harvest was abundant to overflowing, but the workmen few, and the most striking and choice pieces alone could be gathered.

“An unpretentious, but very effective, way of making a survey would be, simply to secure the services of one or two persons who should, as a preliminary, make themselves acquainted with the whole literature of Egyptian exploration, should possess a knowledge of Arabic, and be capable of taking photographs. The programme would be, for the explorers to pass from end to end of the country, from Migdol to Syene, from Iskenderiyeh to El Arish, verifying the accounts of travellers, collecting place-names, searching out new monuments, and describing the order and condition of those already known; and, after issuing temporary reports and monographs, finally gathering all the evidence into one connected survey, to which everyone could confidently refer who might wish to learn the position and condition of any monument, what was known about it, in what works other and more detailed accounts might be found, and how far investigation was still needed. The friendly criticism of scholars all over the world might be invited; and the stores of information which lie hidden in MS. collections in various parts of Europe would thus be brought together for the production of a work which, as a stimulus and guide, would be invaluable. It would be one of the foundations of all further research, would prevent much of that misapplication of labour which is almost unavoidable for the best-read explorer, and would point out to the casual traveller aims to which his energies might be applied with the most useful results.

"The cost of the scheme might be estimated at from £100 to £250 a year for each person employed; an explorer living constantly in Egypt would not find his mere expenses rise much above the former sum. I am not sure that this scheme would interfere with the annual excavations. Even if it did so, on its completion the Members of the Society would resume their first method of discovery, with the satisfactory assurance that they had done their best for those relics of the past which unhappily never received the kindly protection that nature has extended to so many, by hiding them under sand, rubbish, and alluvium.

"I believe that two years would be ample for a thoroughly useful sketch-survey; i.e. for the verification, numbering, and cataloguing of the remains, with slight but accurate descriptions, and for bringing together the literary references. What a mass of misapprehension would disappear! What a crowd of new revelations would dawn upon the science of Egyptology from this alone! But I hardly believe that the Exploration Fund would relinquish this vastly-interesting field until it had with its own hand, so to speak, filled in many of the details that were hardly indicated by the sketch.

"The importance of this matter has led me far afield. But, in fact, I put forward the account of the Siût inscriptions rather as an illustration of what still requires to be done, even where the Egyptologist has been hard at work; and I may mention that a few miles south from Siût, at Dêr Rifeh, in 1887, I was the first to copy the inscriptions of no less than seven important tombs,¹ tenanted by an interesting colony of

At Dêr Rifeh the Copts have taken possession of the tombs of the early princes of Shashotêp (the modern Shoth, Greek Hypsele), who ruled in the nome of Hypsele, and of the later high priests of Khnum, "lord of Shashotêp."

Copts. In every part of Egypt there are monuments vaguely known of, but left unvisited.

"It is not necessary to enter into details of the work at Siût; suffice it to say that for more than two years I have been collecting the scattered remnants of inscriptions which in or about the twenty-fifth century B.C. were carved or painted on the walls of certain tombs in that great necropolis.² I have recently published the results, amounting to about 550 lines, some of which, however, exist only in half-intelligible copies, while others are mutilated. In one tomb alone I should estimate the number of lines originally at hardly less than 700; but the painted plaster of this noblest of Egyptian private tombs has fallen from the walls, and it is fortunate that so many as 350 incised lines are still traceable. Once there were many inscribed tombs, now there are only four; but they still form one of the most interesting groups that are known.

"To begin with, the long-sought dynasties of Heracleopolis, the existence of which Manetho faithfully recorded as interposed between the Memphite kings of the Early Monarchy and the Theban of the Middle Kingdom, has at last, by means of these texts, been localised with certainty. Manetho placed them in order as the IXth and Xth. The extracts from his writings do not name the kings which composed them; but they record that the founder was called Akhthoes (a name which may be compared with the Egyptian Kheti),³ adding to this a statement, which can hardly be considered historical, that he was 'of a savage disposition, and oppressed the people throughout Egypt; at length, being seized with madness, he was slain by a crocodile.' The biographical notes in Manetho are probably derived from myths and popular stories: the earlier ones are therefore almost valueless for history, but the names and numbers are taken from reliable sources. Unfortunately, numbers are very liable to be corrupted, and those relating to the Heracleopolite dynasties have certainly suffered; however, at the least computation, there were twenty-three kings, who reigned 285 years. Of these not a single monumental trace had been observed until, in 1885, our illustrious Vice-President, M. Maspero, put forth the suggestion that the tombs of Siût were of the age of the Heracleopolite kings. This remark, made en passant, notwithstanding its source, seems to have attracted little attention. In 1887, however, when I copied many of the inscriptions at Siût, the same idea struck me. A certain Kheti boasted '(owing to his virtues) Siût was contented under my administration, Heracleopolis Magna praised God for me, Upper and Lower Egypt said "this is the wisdom of a great prince."' (Tomb V., ll. 23 and 24.)⁴ Now Heracleopolis Magna was 150 miles away from Siût; and, as it was not

³ Kheti, as a proper name, is very common in the XIIth and XIIIth dynasties. I suspect that it first became prominent under the Heracleopolites, probably through its occurrence as a royal name. I should be inclined, therefore, to identify 'Αχθόης (Akhthoes) with the King Kheti who is mentioned along with other early rulers in a papyrus at St. Petersburg, and on a fragment of the Turin papyrus (the accepted transcription of the hieratic to  Kheti); thus provisionally Kheti may be considered to be the founder of the IXth Dynasty, and Nefer-ha-rū, who precedes him on the Turin fragment, to be the last of the Memphite kings.

Kherti should be corrected

⁴ The whole inscription, which terminates with these words, consists of 24 lines, recording the many-sided activity, beneficence, and splendour of Kheti's rule. It is mentioned in the rest of the inscription, it was difficult to see why its citizens should express any opinion, unless it were the capital of the whole country. Granting this, Kheti's boast related first to his own city, next to the capital, lastly (as crowning all) to the whole of Egypt. This would be a very natural order. And, if the conclusion were true, then a view, which it appears had lately become fashionable, locating the Heracleopolite dynasties at Heracleopolis Parva, in the Delta, must fall to the ground. Gathering together all the published material from the Siût tombs, I consulted the Description de l'Égypte, the great memorial of Napoleon's expedition. In that work, although half concealed by blunders, lay the proof that the larger tombs, both inscribed and uninscribed, might be divided into two different groups—the one simple in design, the other complex; one showing a predominance of the names of Tefab and Kheti, the other with the name of Hept'efa. The first of these groups contained the name of an unplaced king, and frequent mention of Heracleopolis Magna. Manetho was right again!

"The last visit to Siût—in which, with the aid of a tall ladder, I copied especially the inscriptions of the great tomb—led to the happy discovery of the age of the second group. A scene in the great hall—finely painted, but much dimmed and obliterated—exhibited the excavator of the grotto in adoration before the cartouches of Usertesen I., a king of the so curious that I regret not being able translate it entire, owing to some difficult expressions and the troublesome lacunæ. From line 20 the final sentences are as follows:

"I was beloved by the king more than his nobles and officers in all the South. He caused me to rule when I was a mere child" (lit., "a person of a cubit high," an idiomatic exaggeration which is found again in Tomb III., l. 13): "he elevated my seat when I still wore the lock of youth: he had me taught to swim with the royal children. I was a marvel of uprightness, [a servant] who did no injury to his master, who had trained him from a child. Siût was contented with my administration, Heracleopolis," etc., as in the text.

I do not venture to translate any other portion of the biographical texts in Tombs III.-V.

XIIIth Dynasty. To discover the artist's signature upon a masterpiece is always interesting; in 1887 I found that the leader in a train of persons bearing offerings for the ghost of T'efaa-hep⁵ was the 'Kherheb, the decorator of this tomb, making it like a palace, Kheti, the son of Ptahemsaf.' A further pleasure was in store, if there is pleasure in discovering what is thought to have been irretrievably lost. Among the MSS. of the British Museum is a valuable collection of drawings brought together by Hay. Hoping to find notes of Siût, I turned over the pages of the portfolios, and, to my amazement, found four complete texts beautifully copied about the year 1830, apparently by Arundale. They are the best of all the old copies that I have seen. Three of these afforded a most useful check on my own, supplementing them with some signs that had been destroyed since 1830. But the most precious of all is a Heracleopolite text, a large section of which I knew only from the Description de l'Égypte, and is there so badly rendered that hardly any meaning could be derived from it. It still remains full of difficulties, but the signs composing it are almost precisely ascertained.

"Of the Heracleopolite tombs there are three in which inscriptions are visible. The Description de l'Égypte makes it clear that in 1799 the tombs were almost complete in their general features, though a good deal damaged. Since that time the façades have been blasted away and the square pillars broken down: numbers of inscriptions have gone entirely, and the remnant has been injured.

For the convenience of those who wish to consult the hieroglyphs, I give references to the numbers in the publication. "There the Heracleopolite tombs are numbered III.,

⁵ This appears to be the true reading of the name  meaning "fed by the Nile." Compare  in Lieblein's "Dictionnaire des noms propres."

IV., and V., in order as they are found from south to north, all being on the same level and separated from each other only by narrow party-walls. Tomb III. belonged to a certain Tefaba. The door, contrary to custom, was guarded by terrible curses on violators, and from the inscriptions within we learn that Tefaba lived in a troubled period of civil war; his son, however, succeeded him, and Tefaba's memory was revered in the city.

"The curses and the recital of his virtues were, notwithstanding, deemed an insufficient protection so long as the record of Tefaba's exploits in the civil war bore witness against him on the wall; so, while it was still incomplete, the cutting of that inscription was stopped, and a more harmless substitute was found, consisting of a figure of Tefaba, accompanied by written platitudes painted on a fresh coating of plaster. The plaster has fallen off, and revealed the fragments of the compromising inscription.

"The occupant of the next tomb was Kheti, who, according to a custom observed also by the princes of the XIIth Dynasty, bore a longer appellation compounded with the name of his father, thus—'Tefab's son Kheti.'⁶ In tomb III. we had Tefaba; but I think that Tefaba is identical with the father of Kheti, the name being shortened perhaps owing to the compound.⁷ This Kheti was high in favour with the King Ka-meri-rā, whom he accompanied on an expedition to the south, and from whom he received the commission to rebuild the temple of Apuat. His wife was sa Rā Amenemhāt, "Son of Rā Amenemhāt," where the god Ra is the greatest of the royal ancestors.

named Tefab, like his father. This tomb was also protected by a curse engraved upon the entrance, but less conspicuously than the last.⁸

"Tomb V. was to receive the body of another Kheti, who is very probably the son of Kheti I. Unfortunately, there is no copy of the inscriptions on the façades, but I imagine that the political feuds had died out in his time. At the inner end is a false door, upon the jambs of which Kheti is described as a man of valour; but more stress is laid on the agricultural prosperity of his district and the improvements which he made in the way of irrigation.

"Before concluding, I will briefly notice the great tomb I., now called Stabl Antar, which, as I have said, belongs to the reign of Usertesen I. T'efaa-hep, to judge from his titles, was one of the greatest local princes of his age, but unfortunately he has left no details of his life. There is, however, one very remarkable inscription in the tomb. It is the longest record yet discovered of the earlier periods, and ⁸ Round the door were incised no less than 27 lines of inscription, beginning with an enumeration of Kheti's good deeds.

(l. 61.) "The hereditary prince, the chancellor, the companion, the director of the prophets of Apuat lord of Siût, Kheti, says: 'I came to my city, I entered my nome; I did what men desired, what the gods approved; I gave bread to the hungry and clothes to the naked; I listened to the cry (l. 64) of the widow, I gave a dwelling to the homeless? . . . I returned evil with good, and sought not injury, in order that I might remain long on earth, and thence pass to perfection.'"

Next a blessing, "Verily every scribe, every learned man, . . . who has entered the house of instruction, and goes forth upon this ascent and enters this tomb, cleans its painting, cleanses its statues, and says, 'a royal oblation, thousands of [beer and loaves, thousands of (omitted)] oxen and ducks, thousands of offerings? to the ghost of the owner of (l. 76) this tomb, the prince the son of Tefab Kheti . . . he shall? give of it to his fathers, to his mothers, to his wives, to his children, to his attendants, to his [posterity] who shall come after him: he shall be the eldest in his city, the most honourable in his nome: he shall pass on to the condition of a god."

The curse follows next: (l. 79) "But every evil one, every perverse one who shall do the reverse of these things which he has heard, his name shall not remain, he shall not be buried in the necropolis-hill, he shall be destroyed with the wicked?" Prayers to various deities follow.

consists of a command to the priest or steward who had charge of the property of his ghost or ka to see to the due execution of ten contracts which the prince T'efaa-hep had made with the priests of the two great temples—one at Siût itself, the other in its cemetery—and with the guardians of the necropolis, for the honour and welfare of his ghost.⁹

“For how many centuries was that magnificent tomb visited by processions on great feast days at the turn of the year? We know, at any rate, that the history of the sepulchres of the XIIth Dynasty was already forgotten in the fifteenth century before Christ; so that a scribe admiring the tomb of Khnumhotep at Beni-Hasan, having read in it the name of the ancient chief city ‘the nursery of Cheops,’ would praise ‘the glorious temple of Khufu’!”

(l. 269.) “The hereditary prince, the director of the prophets, T'ef[aa]-hep: he says to the servant of his ghost (more conveniently called ka-servant), ‘Behold! all these (undermentioned) things which I have contracted for with these (undermentioned) priests are under thy care: behold! it is indeed the servant of a man’s ka who attends to the welfare of its services (or property) and its offerings.’

“Behold! I have made thee know that those things which I have given to those priests are in exchange for those things which they gave to me: beware lest any of them be avoided. Ho! all that was said concerning my things which I give to them, let your son hear them, whom thou shalt choose to perform for me (the duties of) a ka-servant.

“Behold! I have established you in (possession of) lands, people, cattle, reservoirs? and every thing, like any noble of Siût, in order that thou mayest do for me things of thy heart (i.e., heartily): worthy is thy position with regard to all my things which I have placed in thy charge. Behold, they are before thy face in writing. Now, the undermentioned things shall belong to that one son of thine whom thou shalt wish to act as my ka-servant from amongst thy children (even as food which he swallows himself? without allowing him to divide them amongst his children), according to this statement which I have given: behold!—(or, according to this statement which I have made thee hear?).

POSTSCRIPT.

In a kindly-worded review of my book, published in the Revue Critique (9th December, 1889), Professor Maspero has supplied a serious gap by translating the historical inscription in Tombs III.—V. The principal results arrived at in his admirable essay are these:—

(1) The genealogical order of the princes is:

Kheti I. of Tomb V.
Tefaba of Tomb III.
Kheti II. of Tomb IV.

(2) All the tombs contain evidence of continued hostility with the south (i.e., between Heracleopolis and Thebes), the princes of Siût being the most powerful supporters of the Heracleopolite family in Upper Egypt.

(3) The three princes must have been contemporary with the end of the IXth Dynasty, or the beginning of the Xth.

I may add perhaps another Heracleopolitan cartouche to those on the Turin fragment referred to in a previous note. The Papyrus No. II. at Berlin, of the middle kingdom, contains a story, in which it is related that a fellâh journeying to Heracleopolis was robbed of his ass. On reaching the city, he eloquently complained to the royal steward Meruïtens, who, without delay, proceeded to interview Pharaoh. The royal residence therefore seems to have been at Heracleopolis. The name of the king is happily recorded: it reads clearly $\left(\textcircled{\text{☉}} \text{☪} \text{H}^{\text{y}} \text{I}^{\text{y}} \right)$ but the plural sign III has always been neglected by transcribers hitherto. Now, although royal names in the romances of Ancient Egypt are not to be trusted implicitly, it seems likely that Neb-kau-râ is distinct from Râ-neb-ka of the IIIrd Dynasty, and Râ-nub-kau of the XIIth Dynasty is out of the question. Thus there is little doubt that Râ-neb-kau is also of the IXth or Xth Dynasty.

F. L. G.

In commenting on the paper, Mr. Poole observed that its subject was twofold—the proposal for an archæological survey of Egypt, and the record of a remarkable discovery by Mr. Griffith. With reference to the survey, he most strongly recommended the meeting to adopt the project, which would enable the directors of excavation and the Committee of the Fund to make the best possible choice of a site for their labours. No doubt M. Naville and Mr. Petrie had been very fortunate in their choice; but it would be satisfactory to know in future what site was likely to produce the best results. Mr. Poole stated that it would cost at the utmost a tenth of the income of the Fund to carry on this important work continuously, which would be a permanent record for the use of explorers and even travellers. Mr. Griffith's discovery of a distinct record of the Heracleopolite line, which ruled between the Memphite kings and the old Theban family, had, like another Forth Bridge, bridged over the last great chasm in Egyptian history. Though our eminent Vice-President, M. Maspero, had suspected the existence of Heracleopolite monuments, Mr. Griffith was the first to identify them. In Mr. Griffith's absence it was right to say the Fund should be proud of the achievement of their Egyptian student.

The PRESIDENT then remarked that he felt the great importance of Mr. Griffith's most valuable discovery, and the high interest of his paper. With reference to the proposed archæological survey, he had at first felt somewhat alarmed; but, considering Mr. Griffith's very moderate estimate and the great extent of the survey, he cordially agreed to accept the proposal, and moved the following resolution: "That the meeting offers its best thanks to Mr. Griffith for his able and interesting paper, and approves the suggestion of an archæological survey of Egypt, referring the matter to the Committee."

Mr. POOLE seconded the resolution, and said he would have preferred this duty should have been performed by Professor Hayter Lewis, who was especially competent to speak on the subject; but he had been requested to make an announcement that the annual memoir for the current year, Bubastis, would be of the greatest interest, and be beautifully illustrated with sixty-three plates.

Mr. BAYLIS here interposed, and appositely read a clause in the Articles of Association, drawn, it may be added, under his able direction, giving the Fund the necessary powers for the archæological survey. From his own recollection of a visit, he felt that this was a most desirable work, as travellers would need no longer to pass through Egypt without definite knowledge of each of the many sites on the banks of the Nile.

Mr. Baylis said that before the meeting broke up he would like to propose that the best thanks of members and subscribers be given to Sir John Fowler, for the interest he had taken in the Fund, and for so ably presiding over the meeting. His experience and knowledge were of much value to the Fund, as well as his business habits.

Mr. MACGREGOR seconded this resolution.

The PRESIDENT expressed his acknowledgments, and the meeting terminated.

Report of Fourth Ordinary General Meeting

(EIGHTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING).

THE FOURTH ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND since its incorporation as a Society (its eighth since the foundation of the Fund in 1883) was held on Friday afternoon, February 20th, in the large room of the Zoological Society, 3 Hanover Square; the President, Sir John Fowler, Bart., K.C.M.G., in the Chair.

There were present: Prof. Reginald Stuart Poole, LL.D., Vice-President of the Fund; Miss Amelia B. Edwards, LL.D., Vice-President and Honorary Secretary; H. A. Grueber, Esq., F.S.A., Honorary Treasurer; Hellier Gosselin, Esq., Secretary; E. Maunde Thompson, Esq., C.B., LL.D., principal librarian of the British Museum; T. H. Baylis, Esq., Q.C.; A. S. Murray, Esq., LL.D.; Barclay V. Head, Esq., D.C.L.; Mrs. Tirard; Miss H. M. Adair; and Miss Bradbury, Members of the Committee; and several of the Local Honorary Secretaries.

The proceedings were opened by the PRESIDENT, who called upon the Secretary to read the list of Members of Committee who were retiring in rotation, and the list of Members recommended for re-election. The President then declared the order of business (following the election of Members of Committee and other officers) to be as follows: (1) report of the Hon. Treasurer; (2) report of the Hon. Secretary; (3) archæological survey and other business.

Mr. R. S. POOLE, before the business was discussed, drew the attention of the meeting to the great loss which the Society had sustained in the death of the late Canon Liddon, one of the most valued and eminent members of Committee. From Canon Liddon, although he could not very frequently attend their meetings, the Committee had received a never-failing sympathy and support. He was a man of such profound knowledge, and of such a noble simplicity of character, that his association with the work was a continual source of strength to his colleagues. Mr. Poole concluded his eloquent tribute by saying that he refrained from further eulogy, knowing well that such reticence would have been most acceptable to the late Canon himself.

Mr. H. A. Grueber, Hon. Treasurer, then submitted the Balance Sheet, and read his Financial Report.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE HONORARY TREASURER FOR 1889-90.

The Balance Sheet which it is my duty to submit to you this day marks another period of financial prosperity in the annals of the Fund. Upon comparing our present position with that of former years, it will be seen that, financially, the Fund continues to make steady progress. To keep it up to this high level, I need scarcely say, is no light task; and the credit of the prosperous state of affairs is due, now as before, to the great organising powers and unremitting exertions of your Hon. Secretary and Vice-President, Miss Edwards; to the continued brilliant services of your Hon.

Treasurer for America, the Rev. W. C. Winslow; and also to the hearty co-operation of the several Local Honorary Secretaries.

The items of the Balance Sheet now before you may be briefly summarised in the following manner: The total expenditure for the year 1889-90 was £2250 6s. 8d., which sum is made up as follows: (1) For M. Naville's expenses connected with his visit to Cairo in the early spring of last year to inspect the site of Ahnas and to make final arrangements for the excavations which he is now superintending, £141 3s. (2) For the transport of the blocks excavated in 1888-9, from Bubastis to Alexandria, £960 1s. 4d.; this sum also includes all the canal dues, wharfage charges at Alexandria, and Count D'Hulst's salary from August, 1889, to May, 1890. (3) For the transport of the blocks from Alexandria to England, and thence to their several destinations in the United Kingdom, the Continent, and America, £416 7s. 8d. (4) To Dr. Farley Goddard, the American Student, £150. (5) For wood-blocks, wire-rope, &c., used in the removal of the large pieces of sculpture at Bubastis, £14 2s. 2d. (6) For Publications, which include the printing and illustrating of Naukratis II. and Onias, and other expenses connected with Pithom, Tanis I., the Two Hieroglyphic Papyri, and packing and labelling the same, £239 14s. 2d.; and (7) For the usual expenses connected with rent of office, secretarial salaries, printing, stationery, postage, &c., £328 18s. 4d.

The total receipts for the same season have been £3283 8s. 10d.: (1) By Subscriptions and Donations, £3154 17s. 2d. These may be thus subdivided: (a) Through Miss Edwards personally, £361 8s. 1d.; (b) through the Bankers, the Local Hon. Secretaries and the Treasurer, £656 3s. 9d. (from this amount, however, must be deducted £43 for Subscriptions paid in advance during the previous year); (c) through the Rev. W. C. Winslow, £1523 (which includes £173 for the American Student's Fund); (d) from the University of Philadelphia, £240 (£150 of which was to be devoted to the general purposes of the Fund; the remaining £90 to go towards the expenses of the transport of the blocks which the University received as a donation); (e) through the Supplementary Transport Fund, £316 3s. 10d. (which was made up of various contributions received from the Public Museums and Institutions to which blocks of Sculpture were presented); and (f) from contributions to the Survey Fund raised by Miss Edwards, £101 1s. 6d. (2) From the Sale of Publications, £108 9s.; and (3) From the proceeds of Lectures given by the Rev. Canon Bell, Mr. W. W. Morrell, and Miss Barlow, £20 2s. 8d.

There are two items in the foregoing particulars to which I think it necessary to call the attention of the meeting, on account of their magnitude, and also on account of their having exceeded the estimate which I made in my report of last year. I refer to expenses connected with the transport of antiquities from Bubastis to Alexandria, and thence to their ultimate destination. In last year's report I stated that the number of blocks which it was contemplated exporting was sixteen, and that the cost would be about £400. On account of the wholesale destruction which was being carried on by the natives, the Committee subsequently decided that it would be advisable to remove as many blocks as possible; and in the end no less than 44 were taken from the site of Bubastis, of which 36 came to England and were divided amongst the British Museum and various other Museums in the United Kingdom, and also the Museums in Geneva, Canada, Boston, and Philadelphia; 4 went to Berlin, and 4 to Paris.

The various institutions thus enriched generously consented to contribute towards the expenses of transport, so that the Fund has already received back the sum of £406 3s. 10d.; and I am expecting every day a further sum of £104 15s., being the contribution promised by the Louvre at Paris. I hope, also, that before the close of the present Government financial year, the Trustees of the British Museum may be able to further increase the Transport Fund, as their contribution for the large number of blocks which that institution has received from the Fund.

On comparing our financial position of last year with that of the previous one, we arrive at the following results :

The gross expenditure for 1888-9 was £2936, as against £2250 6s. 8d. for 1889-90; and the gross receipts over the same periods were £2997 11s. 8d., as against £3283 8s. 10d.; the home receipts through ordinary subscriptions, showing an increase of £79 15s. 11d. on those of the previous year, and those for America of £100. In the last item, in the case of England, I do not include the large contributions to the Special Transport Fund; nor in the American account, the Student's Fund and the contribution of the University of Philadelphia to the carriage of blocks.

As regards the available assets at the close of the two periods: on the 31st July, 1889, our cash balance was £2593 12s. 10d., and at the same date in 1890 it stood as £3626 15s.

I need scarcely add that it is most fortunate that I am able to show such a large balance: for the fact must not be lost sight of that the Fund has entered upon what promises to be a successful, but at the same time a costly, undertaking. I refer to the Archæological Survey of Egypt. Acting upon the information contained in Mr. Griffith's paper read at the last Annual Meeting, the Council have appointed Mr. Newberry and Mr. Fraser to carry out the work. What progress these gentlemen have made, Miss Edwards will no doubt tell you in her report. I have only to deal with the accounts, and on this special item of expenditure the Council has already incurred a liability of nearly £500. Taking this in conjunction with M. Naville's expenses, who is carrying out excavations on two sites, at Ahnas and at the neighbouring cemetery, I have little doubt in anticipating a larger expenditure this year than in any previous one.

Mr. POLLARD moved the adoption of the Report, complimenting the Hon. Treasurer on the clearness of his statement. He took occasion to speak warmly in favour of the new Archæological Survey, urging the Members present to follow his own example in subscribing to this new enterprise.

In seconding the Report, Mr. BAYLIS congratulated the Society upon the excellent manner in which their finances were managed by the Committee, and upon the new and important undertaking upon which they had embarked in the Archæological Survey of Egypt. Having himself travelled in Egypt, he could testify to the great need of such a record as was now in progress. He could, indeed, conceive of no work more valuable alike to those who travel in Egypt and to those who stay at home. As regarded the Memoirs annually issued by the Fund, he could not say too much in praise of the excellent paper, and the beauty of the type and illustrations. These books were undoubtedly of the full value of the standard subscription; and, regarded as a mere investment, were highly profitable to the subscribers.

The PRESIDENT expressed his hearty concurrence in all that Mr. Baylis had said with regard to the value and importance of the Archæological Survey, which would still further extend the usefulness of the Society; and he urged all Members present to interest their friends in the labours of the Egypt Exploration Fund. He hoped that every year would continue to show increasing prosperity. He added that the work of the Committee was invariably conducted with the strictest economy; the money was as well spent as possible, every farthing being used to the best advantage. The President then called upon the Hon. Secretary for her customary statement.

REPORT OF THE HONORARY SECRETARY.

SIR JOHN FOWLER, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—Before giving you my accustomed statement, I must congratulate the members of the Fund in the first place, and Sir John Fowler in the second place, on the fact that his great scientific achievements have received their well-deserved recognition at the hands of his Sovereign, he having been created a baronet since we last met. There can be no doubt that, to a generous man, no gratification he may derive from honours bestowed during his lifetime can possibly equal that which he feels in the knowledge that he can transmit those honours to his posterity. Sir John Fowler can now transmit that honour to his eldest son, and I am pleased to know that he has still yet more sons to be as proud of him as we are proud to have him for our President. In reference to what my friend, Professor Poole, has said regarding the great loss which the Society has sustained in the late Canon Liddon, I wish to draw attention to the fact that we have also lost a few other eminent persons; namely, the late Bishop of Durham, who was not only an eminent churchman, but a great Hellenic scholar, and who was always ready with his sympathy and support; also, the late Sir George Burns, Bart., founder of the great Cunard Line, who was not only a generous subscriber and donor to the funds of the Society, but who repeatedly caused large consignments of antiquities and Memoirs to be conveyed to America, free of cost, by the Cunard Line of steamers, thus indirectly aiding the treasury in a most practical and substantial manner. The Society has also to deplore in Colonel Adair the loss of a distinguished officer and subscriber.

It is my accustomed duty on these occasions briefly to report what has been done by the Society, since the last general meeting, and to state what is the line of work laid down for the new season. You are, of course, aware that in consequence of M. Naville's illness, no excavations were conducted during the season 1889-90. M. Naville, however, paid a short visit to Egypt last spring for the purpose of surveying the site of Ahnas-el-Medineh, and of concluding arrangements for the present year with the Khedivial Government. You will be glad to hear that M. Naville is now in Egypt, having joined Count d'Hulst at Ahnas early in January. The ancient city represented by the extensive mounds of Ahnas is known as the Heracleopolis of the Greeks, and is cursorily mentioned in the Bible as "Hanes." It represents the capital of that very obscure period in Egyptian history covered by the VIIIth, IXth and Xth Dynasties. M. Naville and Count d'Hulst have been working in the outlying necropolis for the last three weeks, with no very encouraging results. They have opened more than a hundred tomb-pits, all of which had, however, been plundered in ancient times, and again used for interments during the Roman period. By this time, they are doubtless trenching the area of the great temple, with what results it will remain to be seen. Although a great temple of Bubastis is not to be discovered every year, I trust that the new excavations will not prove fruitless, and that some valuable historical results may be obtained.

The subject of the Archæological Survey having been already mentioned by previous speakers, I will only add that this survey is actually in progress, being conducted by Mr. Percy E. Newberry, a rising Egyptological scholar, and Mr. George Fraser, a skilled surveyor. These gentlemen have taken up their abode in one of the unpainted rock-cut sepulchres of Beni Hasan, and are actively engaged in copying, tracing, and photographing the scenes and inscriptions which enrich the more famous of these historic tombs. They have already cleared out the accumulated rubbish of centuries, thus restoring the admirable proportions of these excavated chambers, and bringing to light inscriptions which have never yet been read. Mr. Fraser, having cleared out several of the tomb-pits, and discovered in one of them evidences of an original interment in the shape of a skeleton, and a funerary tablet of the XIIth Dynasty, is now engaged in surveying the entire terrace; a task by no means easy, owing to the steep slope of the cliff and the difficulty of fixing his points. Mr. Newberry and Mr. Fraser have recently been joined by Mr. Blackden, an artist who is engaged in reproducing the colours of some of the more important subjects, which have been outlined by Mr. Newberry on the scale of the originals.

Our new volume Bubastis is, I trust by this time, in the hands of all subscribers, and there is no need to praise it to those who already have it on their shelves. It is one of the most magnificent volumes we have ever issued, with its fifty-four plates, including a large number of autotypes; and it has already cost us, in production and delivery, nearly £500. You may have observed that in Bubastis you have received no plates of the Festival Hall; but M. Naville has reserved the description of this part of the temple for an independent volume. The state of the blocks was so fragmentary, and the difficulty of photographing them was so great, that they can only be reproduced as linear plates taken from squeezes. Madame Naville is now engaged in drawing them; and she and M. Naville have so successfully arranged the blocks that the processional subjects will be given as far as possible in their original sequence, broken, however, by inevitable lacunæ where the sculptured blocks were either missing or defaced.

The sale of past Memoirs, as reported by the Hon. Treasurer, is steadily increasing, and, as I predicted some two or three years ago, the Society has become, not only a society of excavators, but of important publishers and book-sellers. The sum of £108 9s. has been received by myself alone during the past year by sales of books, irrespective of copies disposed of by Messrs Trübner and Co. Among new subscribers to the Fund during the past year, I am glad to report no less than twenty-four public libraries, including the library of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, and the libraries of the Fitzwilliam Museum, Queen's College, St. John's College, and Trinity College, Cambridge. I hope that before long there will be no great college, cathedral, or public library in England which does not subscribe for the Works of the Fund.

The staff of Local Honorary Secretaries continues to increase and prosper, the Society now numbering no less than thirty-nine of these invaluable unpaid officials; besides one in New Zealand, one in Australia, one in Canada, one in Mexico, and one in Switzerland. I am glad to see that an organisation of Local Honorary Secretaries has also been taken in hand by the Rev. Dr. Winslow, our zealous and active Vice-President and Honorary Treasurer for America. Dr. Winslow has already established thirty-five Local Hon. Secretaries in various parts of the United States, the majority of whom, I am happy to say, are ladies.* It is my belief that this is especially a field in which woman's work is calculated to be eminently successful. I hold that ladies make the best beggars in the world, and that their begging is always likely to be more fruitful than that of gentlemen, because the gentlemen do not like to refuse them. Of the increasing prosperity of the Fund in America, there can remain no doubt when tested by the report just read by the Hon. Treasurer, showing a return of £1350 on the part of the Rev. Dr. Winslow, and a further sum of £240 from the University of Pennsylvania.

I cannot conclude without urging upon you the claims of the Archæological Survey—a work rendered doubly necessary at the present time by the rapid and wanton destruction to which the monuments of Egypt are being subjected at the hands of native plunderers, unscrupulous dealers, and iconoclastic tourists. We cannot hope, it is true, entirely to arrest this work of mutilation and destruction; but we can at least preserve a faithful record of what yet remains of these precious relics of the most ancient civilisation in the world. Also, by drawing attention to the beauty and value of these relics, we shall exercise a certain moral pressure, not only upon travellers, but upon all classes of officials, thus hampering the hand of the unscrupulous destroyer, and compelling a greater reverence for the monuments themselves.

The PRESIDENT then proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Edwards for the encouraging and interesting account which she had just given of the work and prospects of the Fund. He only regretted that England should in any respect lag behind America. He would have preferred that the English subscription list should have at least equalled that of America in its amount. He was quite sure that the Americans themselves would not feel hurt by his desire that the parent society should maintain its lead, and he hoped by the time they should re-assemble for the next annual meeting, such a special effort would have been made in this direction that the balance of cash should be on the side of the old country.

Mr. POOLE then referred to Mr. Griffith's interesting paper read at the last meeting, containing the suggestion of the beginning of a new era by a systematic survey of the monuments of Egypt yet above ground. Mr. Poole felt that the survey of existing monuments, which were rapidly being destroyed by the ignorant Arab peasant and by the modern tourist, was a very important work. He, therefore, desired to draw the attention of the meeting to the double duty undertaken by the Fund in its work of discovery and preservation. These two labours were of parallel importance.

Mr. Poole considered it was only necessary to glance at the reports that had appeared in the newspapers for the past few days of M. Grébaud's great discovery at Thebes of the tombs of the high priests of Amen Ra, to show how much remained to be achieved by the explorer. There was, in fact, no part of Egypt in which a skilled excavator might not hope to find his labours rewarded. Mr. Poole urged the Meeting to support the work just commenced by Mr. Newberry and Mr. Fraser; for there had never yet been made a complete and accurate copy of Egyptian inscriptions, even the best known works having been mainly made before photography was available, and consequently they needed abundant correction. Mr. Newberry was doing all that could be done by means of tracings and photographs to make such a record of the tombs of Beni Hasan in Middle Egypt. Between the time of the old pyramid builders and the XVIIIth Dynasty, stood the XIIth Theban Dynasty (circa 2200 B.C.), of which these tombs were the most important extant record, and of which no thoroughly satisfactory copy existed. Several of the tombs were painted with most interesting scenes of daily life, and of intercourse with foreigners, one group of whom had been incorrectly supposed to represent Joseph and his brethren. The Survey publications would be illustrated by coloured plates of the most important scenes, particularly including the skilful delineation of plants, quadrupeds, and birds. The preparation of these volumes would be costly, and though the Hon. Treasurer had given them a cheering account of the monetary condition of the Fund, Mr. Poole felt strongly that this work ought to be well supported in order to be worthily carried out. Miss Edwards had desired him to say that whether these publications should be annual or not could not be determined till the Committee saw their size, and could estimate the cost of bringing them out, but their hearty wish was to treat the subscribers as handsomely as possible. On his own account, without reference to his position as a Vice-President of the Fund, Mr. Poole was sorry to see money being drawn from the General Fund for the purposes of the Survey, and what he should prefer would be that the Special Archæological Survey should be supported by a small and separate income, say of £500 per annum. Established upon such a foundation, he felt that the Survey might be carried on for very many years to come, and that it might so survive its original founders.

Mr. BAYLIS, Q.C., then proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman for the admirable way in which he had conducted the business of the meeting.

Mr. ARTHUR CATES seconded this resolution.

The PRESIDENT expressed his acknowledgments, adding that it gave him the greatest possible pleasure to be of service to the Fund; and, although he was unable to attend many of the Committee Meetings, when he was really required he was always at the disposal of their Hon. Secretary.

MR. GRIFFITH'S REPORT ON THE
ARCHÆOLOGICAL SURVEY OF EGYPT.

MR. GRIFFITH'S REPORT
ON THE
ARCHÆOLOGICAL SURVEY OF EGYPT.

It is with feelings of unmixed gratitude to the great Society¹ which has accepted and fostered a timidly-suggested scheme, that I have the honour to present the first Report of the Archæological Survey of Egypt. Scanty it must be, for only a few chips from the busy workshop at Beni Hasan have found their way to me; but I look forward to seeing the counterfeit presentment of all that is most interesting in the paintings and sculptures which enrich that wonderful group of tombs brought here to London, and finally preserved from the attacks of every enemy. Such will be the worthy result of the labours of a single season.

It is not difficult for one who has studied Egyptian archæology in the country for some years to see what is required in order that the archæological inheritance of so many centuries may not be swept away at the very moment when the world appears ready to receive and appreciate it. What can be done to stem the torrent of absolute destruction? Here and there a single tomb or temple can be put under lock and key by the action of the Government, or some learned society may undertake its restoration. But history, science and art demand more than this. The Nile valley contains a multitude of monuments and ruins,—some partly described, some as yet almost unknown, but all alike exposed to the attacks of the dealer in antiquities, the quarryman and the wanton iconoclast. To collect all the information that can be gathered from all extant monuments appears to be the first step to take in this direction. Underground lie other stores of knowledge in the buried monuments, safe from all but the excavator's spade, and reserved for the enterprise of posterity. Lastly come the small antiquities, which when comprehended are not less instructive, and are much more unflinching than the monuments. These have only now begun to speak to the world, and their silent evidence is swept away wholesale from day to day.

But a systematic archæological survey of the monuments is now commenced, and will furnish the best answer to the question propounded above. If the originals must vanish, they can at least be classified; and plans and copies can, with time, money, and perseverance, be made of all. These copies can be rendered available for students in a space of moderate dimensions, while their publication on a reduced scale will hasten the rapid progress of Egyptological science and research.

In November, 1889, the General Meeting approved the suggestion of an Archæological Survey of Egypt. The idea present in my mind at that time was a rapid sketch-survey, to result in an elaborate catalogue of monuments, with references to all publications, the object being to point out in detail what work had been accomplished and what still required to be done.

For many months the matter remained at a standstill. No one appeared ready to undertake the work. At length Mr. Fraser, who had not only manifested great interest in Egyptian antiquities, but had sent me copies of some important inscriptions from the neighbourhood of Minyeh, was engaged by the Egypt Exploration Fund to prepare a large block for removal from Tell Basta. His offer to assist in the excavations, or in the survey, followed, and was accepted.

At this juncture Mr. Newberry also volunteered to take up the work.

We first planned a sketch-survey from Minyeh to Siût (Assyût). Our endeavour to prepare for this survey showed the impossibility of attaining any satisfactory result. Mr. Newberry then proposed to take up a small district and treat it exhaustively, which seemed to me the only practicable and satisfactory course. We then selected a district which contained three well-known groups of monuments, namely: certain tombs of the VIth Dynasty at Kûm-el-Ahmar, opposite Minyeh on the north;¹ the celebrated group of Beni Hasan tombs to the southward (XIIth Dynasty); and, two miles farther up the river, the grottoes of Speos Artemidos (XVIIIth Dynasty). The district is only fifteen miles long. The above monuments are excavated in the eastern cliffs, but the western bank has scarcely been explored at all.

For this little section of the valley of the Nile, we thoroughly examined at the British Museum all works of authority, both published and in manuscript. It is, however, doubtful whether the whole of the present season will not be occupied in copying one single group of monuments. At Beni Hasan are thirty-nine tombs, twelve of which are inscribed, while eight of these twelve are not only inscribed but painted. The rest are plain, but there are altogether twelve thousand square feet of painted wall-surface. The outlines of these paintings are blurred, the colours are dim, and all the surfaces are defaced by the bats, the smoke, the graffiti of modern tourists, the wanton injuries inflicted by the natives, and the oils and other preparations of former copyists.

All these twelve thousand square feet have to be puzzled out and the colours identified, while a faithful transcript, of which every detail is of as much importance as the ensemble, must be made by means of tracing-paper.

Let him who would realise what this means mount a ladder and trace a fresco in one of our ancient churches. He will then appreciate the steady devotion of the copyist to his task of twelve thousand square feet.

The paintings are in a worse state than they were fifty years ago, and it is a very fortunate circumstance for us that the Hay Collection of Drawings, made between 1836 and 1837, is at the British Museum. These drawings have preserved for us many subjects now obliterated.¹ The portfolios of the late Sir Gardner Wilkinson also contain a few memoranda of value for the work at and about Beni Hasan. The notes and drawings which he collected—unlike Hay's great Collection, which was hardly ever utilised for publication—was the stock from which the celebrated Egyptian traveller drew the materials for his numerous archæological works. There is, therefore, less of novelty in them; but our sincere thanks are none the less due to Miss Lovett and Sir Vauncey Crewe for having deposited on loan for our use a collection which will undoubtedly prove from time to time to be of very great value.

Mr. Newberry started from England on November 5th, taking with him annotated tracings, photographs, and copies of all the published scenes and inscriptions necessary for his purpose. On the 25th he reached Beni Hasan, and, thanks to Mr. Fraser's knowledge of the country and the people, had no difficulty in settling down for his first campaign. The tombs in Egypt have often afforded pleasant and secure lodging for explorers. In this case an uninscribed tomb, "No. 15," has been "adapted."

Selected portions of the Beni Hasan inscriptions were long ago copied with great accuracy by Lepsius. Hay's copies are also good, and suggested to me some important emendations, some of which are now verified. The progress of science and the rectification of the copies will enable us to give a much improved account of them. It is intended to copy carefully a specimen of every coloured hieroglyph; and in the scenes, the colours of all important details will be reproduced. By this means much light will be thrown on the origin of hieroglyphic signs, and on the nature of the objects depicted. Mr. Blackden, an artist who has turned his attention to Egyptian subjects with great success, is now assisting Mr. Newberry in the colouring.

While the tombs were being cleared of rubbish, some very interesting objects came to light—namely, the chisels with which the tombs were excavated. They are wedge-shaped, six to ten inches long, chipped from the boulders found thereabouts. The description that I have received is vague, but undoubtedly they will excite a great deal of interest when brought to England. Two pots were also found, containing about 1,000 small bronze Roman coins of the fourth and fifth centuries A.D., including some of Arcadius, Marcianus, and Leo.

A pit was excavated in part of one of the uninscribed tombs: it contained three skeletons, with pottery and beads "of the XVIIIth or XIXth Dynasty," and a broken stela of the XIIth Dynasty, giving the name of a man and his wife. The former is Nekht; his father's name also was Nekht, and his mother's, Hotepu. He appears to have been steward to one of the great princes who were interred in the principal tomb.

A good harvest of Coptic graffiti has also been gathered from among the ruins of various Coptic edifices in the neighbourhood of Beni Hasan. Most fortunately Mr. Headlam, fellow of All Souls' College, Oxford, happened to come that way, and was kind enough to verify the copies.

It is very satisfactory to find that the survey has met with the warmest approval of many members of the Egyptian Government. General Sir F. Grenfell, himself a connoisseur in Egyptian archæology, after visiting Beni Hasan, proffered a donation of £25 towards obtaining an artist to assist in the work; since when, Sir John Fowler, President of the Egypt Exploration Fund, has generously given another £25 for the same purpose. Baker Pasha has secured for our workers the assistance of the police authorities of the district, and many others have expressed their approval in the heartiest manner.

Mr. Newberry reports that tourists have visited the tombs of Beni Hasan at the rate of a hundred in a week; and it is to be hoped that the choice of that group of monuments may result in some material support to the Survey Branch of the Egypt Exploration Fund.

MR. VILLIERS STUART'S CHALLENGE.

Mr. H. Villiers Stuart, in confirmation of an offer made by himself in the columns of The Times (Tuesday, October 7th, 1890) volunteers to give £50 towards the expenses of this undertaking, provided that forty-nine other well-wishers to the Archæological Survey of Egypt will give the same amount. The first donation towards this special fund has already been made by Miss M. H. McClean (through Mrs. McClure, Local Hon. Secretary for the S.W. Metropolitan district), which is here gratefully acknowledged.

To the Members and Subscribers
Egypt Exploration Fund.

ON the 15th April, 1892, Miss Amelia B. Edwards, late Honorary Secretary and a Vice-President of the Egypt Exploration Fund, died at Weston-super-Mare, after more than two years' illness. During the days, weeks, and months of these years, she gave all her failing strength to furthering the interests of Egyptology, and especially to the business of the Fund, deciding daily on questions relating to it up to the time of her death.

Her devotion and achievements in the fields of literature and archæology, her fine critical and artistic judgment, her talent for organization, are known to us; but even her fellow-workers cannot estimate the far-reaching inspiration of Miss Edwards' sweet and powerful personality in the diffusion of those interests, and the furtherance of those studies to which she gave the full maturity of her life. On both sides of the Atlantic, she has made Egyptology a household word representing a new intellectual interest; while the scholars of Europe know that, without her enthusiasm and self-sacrifice, funds would still have been lacking for excavations whose results have not merely enriched museums, but which have brought to our knowledge many a lost link in the History of Civilisation.

The Committee of the Egypt Exploration Fund earnestly trusts that the irreparable loss which has befallen the Society in the death of Miss Edwards may be, in some measure, supplied by one result of her labours—that is, by an ever-increasing public interest in the work to which she gladly sacrificed income, leisure, and health.

An Honorary Secretary cannot be appointed, according to the constitution of the Society, before the next General Meeting, which will probably be called in November. Meanwhile the duties of the post will be performed by Mr. Reginald Stuart Poole, Vice-President, aided by a small committee.

Miss Emily Paterson, who is known to its subscribers and correspondents as Miss Edwards' very efficient private secretary for the business of the Fund during the last four years, will continue her work under Mr. Poole.

All communications for the Honorary Secretary should be addressed to the care of—

MISS EMILY PATERSON,

Office of the Egypt Exploration Fund,

37 Great Russell Street,

Obituary.

Reprinted from "The Academy," April 23rd, 1892.

Amelia B. Edwards.

Born June 7, 1831. Died Good Friday, 1892.

I SHALL not attempt to write a biography of the eminent Englishwoman who has just passed away; but must limit myself to an endeavour to record her services to learning. Therefore, I pass by the early musical training of Miss Edwards, her skill as a landscape artist, and the long series of novels which gave her a name before Egyptology made her famous. I begin with the year 1883, when, at the age of fifty-two, she began her life's work, and joined Sir Erasmus Wilson in founding the Egypt Exploration Fund.

This great enterprise, with which her name is by desert indissolubly linked, was the outcome of Mariette's so-called "archæological will." It took shape after a visit to Egypt, described in A Thousand Miles up the Nile, which excited in a highly-imaginative mind an undying interest in the monuments. In Sir Erasmus Wilson, Miss Edwards found a serious enthusiast, ready with the needed funds. The project was most generously aided by the American subscribers, led by Dr. Winslow. A Committee was formed, and each year an expedition was sent to Egypt to explore the Biblical and Classical sites. Pithom and Goshen were discovered by M. Naville, and Bubastis, as well as other known sites, explored. Naukratis was discovered by Mr. Flinders Petrie, who also explored Tanis and Tahpanhes. The work at Naukratis was completed by Mr. Ernest Gardner. Mr. Griffith, of the British Museum, also rendered valuable aid. The records of these researches have been published in annual volumes. To Miss Edwards is due the success of the Fund. On her fell the duty of maintaining the subscriptions to the Fund in England, and of corresponding with the explorers and editing the Memoirs—a labour on which she spared no pains, and made many lasting friends and not a single enemy. This was not due to diplomacy, but to a keen sympathy with the workers and a full appreciation of their hardships.

An extension of the work of the Fund, due to the able suggestion of Mr. Griffith, no less than a survey of the Egyptian monuments, was warmly promoted by Miss Edwards; and Mr. Percy Newberry, one of the explorers, had the satisfaction of showing her the first results—his laborious “corpus” of tracings of the tombs at Beni-Hasan, and Mr. Blackden’s beautiful water-colour drawings.

It will be seen that, while enduring the hardest labour, Miss Edwards did not fear to add to its weight, and that, while carrying out a darling project, she was able to adopt a wholly new enterprise. A rare faith was hers in her work, and in each new labourer who came to her aid. In loyalty to her memory, and to the cause she loved, let her example stir us who remain to carry on her cherished work in her own spirit!

This brief record would be incomplete without a word of acknowledgment of the services of Sir John Fowler, the president, Sir Charles Newton, and Miss Edwards’ other colleagues on the Fund, and of her many personal friends, who, one and all, inspired by admiration for her devotion, strove to lighten her labour. Miss Edwards’ private secretary for the work of the Fund, Miss Paterson, did much in this direction by unremitting attention to her wishes. This was, indeed, necessary; for she had been sorely exhausted by a lecturing tour in America, undertaken in 1889-90, and by a serious accident in its course—a broken arm—which did not delay a lecture given on the very day of the injury. Yet even her nearest friends, who know that her life was shortened by her American tour, cannot but recognize that her life’s work was forwarded by it. And Miss Edwards herself looked back upon the warm friendship and instant recognition everywhere accorded to her in America, as well worth all that the journey cost her in premature loss of strength and in suffering. The record of these lectures in Pharaohs, Fellahs, and Explorers (not her own title) is an evidence of the width of her knowledge, her popular facility, and her finished style. This was the only volume published during Miss Edwards' secretaryship of the Fund; but her work as editor and her part of the annual reports are always to be traced by a peculiar charm, which was the result of enthusiasm that never failed, and pains that were never grudged. It is a melancholy duty to record that her last illness was brought on by a visit to the London Docks, in October last, to examine antiquities from Ahnás, which were to be distributed among English and foreign museums.

The universities of America, in their warm gratitude for the donations of monuments by the Fund, gifts really due to munificence on their part, conferred on Miss Edwards honorary degrees; and the Crown recognised her services to knowledge by awarding her a pension on the Civil List.

Miss Edwards has followed Erasmus Wilson and Russell Lowell. In honour of their memory, we who survive have a sacred duty to the great enterprise consecrated by their names.

Report of Fifth Ordinary General Meeting

(NINTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING).

THE FIFTH ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND since its incorporation as a Society (the ninth since the foundation of the Fund in 1883) was held on Friday afternoon, March 11th, in the large room of the Zoological Society, 3 Hanover Square; the President, Sir John Fowler, Bart., K.C.M.G., in the Chair.

There were present: Prof. Reginald Stuart Poole, LL.D., Vice-President of the Fund; H. A. Grueber, Esq., F.S.A., Honorary Treasurer; Hellier Gosselin, Esq., Secretary; T. H. Baylis, Esq., Q.C.; Mrs. Tirard and Mrs. McClure, Members of the Committee; and several of the Local Honorary Secretaries.

The proceedings were opened by the PRESIDENT, who called upon the Secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting, and the list of Members of Committee who were retiring in rotation, and the list of Members recommended for re-election. The Rt. Rev. the Bishop of Truro and Mr. Tyssen Amherst, M.P., were recommended for election as new Members of the Committee. The following resolution, proposed by T. H. Baylis, Esq., and seconded by Prof. R. S. Poole was carried: "That James Hilton, Esq. and the Rev. R. M. Blakiston be re-appointed Honorary Auditors of the Egypt Exploration Fund."

The PRESIDENT then declared the order of business (following the election of Members of Committee and other officers) to be as follows: (1) report of the Hon. Treasurer; (2) report of the Hon. Secretary; (3) distribution of antiquities; (4) archæological survey.

Mr. H. A. Grueber, Hon. Treasurer, then read his Financial Report for the year 1890-91, and presented the Balance Sheet.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE HONORARY TREASURER FOR 1890-91.

The Balance Sheet which it is my duty to submit to you this day will be found to compare very favourably with its predecessors, and even with that of last year, in which I showed that on August 1st, 1890, the funds at the disposal of the Fund were larger than on any previous occasion. I need scarcely say that this favourable state of affairs is again due to the indefatigable labours and splendid organisation of your Hon. Secretary and Vice-President, Miss Edwards; to the continued valuable and unremitting labours of your Hon. Treasurer for America, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Winslow; to the hearty co-operation of the several Local Honorary Secretaries, and I may also add, to many individual members of the Fund.

The chief items of the Balance Sheet now before you may be briefly summarised in the following manner. First, as to our liabilities. The total expenditure for 1890-91 was £2,547 15s. 4d., which sum is made up as follows: (1) For Mr. Naville's expenses connected with the excavations at Ahnas, £532 3s. 8d. (2) For the transport of sculptures from the site of that city to Alexandria, £424 16s. 6d. This sum includes Count d'Hulst's salary for the period in which he was engaged in superintending the transport; but does not include the further charges of transport of the blocks to London and on to their ultimate destination, as this last expenditure was not incurred till after the month of August. (3) For the Survey Fund, £552 5s. 4d., which sum is made up of £61 for Mr. Newberry's salary when engaged in preparing his work before his departure for Egypt; for outfit of expedition, including tracing-paper, camera, &c., £78 3s. 2d.; and of £413 2s. 2d., which includes Mr. Newberry's and Mr. Fraser's salaries, at £3 a week, from November to August, their travelling expenses and additional liabilities incurred during the progress of their work; and also the expenses of the artist, Mr. W. M. Blackden, who gave his valuable services to the Fund. (4) For Publications, £729 10s. 10d., which includes the completion of Onias, the printing and illustrating of Bubastis, and other expenses connected with packing, labelling, &c., of these volumes. And (5) for the usual outlay connected with rent of office, secretarial salaries, printing circulars, postage, stationery, &c., £308 8s. 2d.

The total receipts for the same period have been £3,092 18s. 8d., viz.: (1) By subscriptions and donations, £2,694 1s. 1d. These may be thus subdivided: (a) Through Miss Edwards, £307 0s. 1d.; (b) Through the Local Hon. Secretaries, the Treasurer, and the Bankers, £582 10s. 8d.; (c) Through the Rev. Dr. W. C. Winslow, £1,050; (d) From the University of Philadelphia, £100; (e) From Mr. W. J. Mullens, Hon. Secretary for Australia, £20 8s. 0d.; (f) From M. and Mme. Hentsch, of Geneva, their annual donation of £30; (g) From the Special Survey Fund, which Miss Edwards started with success in the previous year, and has still improved, £480 9s. 10d.: of this sum the American subscriptions through Dr. Winslow amount to £180; and (h) Through the Supplementary Transport Fund, £123 12s. 6d., of which sum the Museum of the Louvre, at Paris, generously contributed £104 15s. (2) From the sale of Publications, £274 1s. 6d. (3) From interest on the Deposit of the Fund at the Bankers, £118 16s. 11d. And (4) From the proceeds of Lectures given by the Rev. Canon Bell and Miss Barlow, £5 19s. 2d.

On comparing our financial position of last year with that of the previous one, we arrive at the following results:—

The gross expenditure for 1889-90 was £2,250 6s. 8d., as against £2,547 15s. 4d. for 1890-91; and the gross receipts over the same periods were, £3,283 8s. 10d., as against, £3,092 18s. 8d.

It would at first appear, from the last item, that there has been considerable falling off in the amount of gross receipts last year, as compared with the previous one. But this may, in a certain degree, be explained, that in the Balance Sheet of 1889-90 was included the sum of £173 subscribed for the American Students' Fund, which practically did not form an asset of the Fund; but which amount I was obliged to include in the Balance Sheet as it passed through our Bankers' hands. If we deduct the sum of £173 from the gross receipts of last year, it will be found that they fall very little short of those of the previous one.

As regards the available assets at the close of the two periods: on July 31st, 1890, the cash balance was £3,626 15s.; and at the same date in 1891 it stood as £4,172 8s. 4d.

Before concluding my Report I should like to draw your attention to the fact that the Fund is now freely launched into a double undertaking, viz., into that of Survey as well as Excavations. How successful the latter has been it is unnecessary for me to say; but I may add that the Survey promises well to follow in its footsteps. The result of the first year's work of the Survey will soon be before you, in the shape of two volumes, giving reproductions of numerous inscriptions of great historical value, and also coloured illustrations. All this, however, means an increased expenditure, which I hope will be met by the generosity which you have always shown towards the good work of the Fund.

Mr. JOHN MACKRELL moved the adoption of the Report, and drew the attention of the meeting to the large proportion of subscriptions received from the United States, and expressed his regret that the English subscriptions were not as numerous.

The Report was seconded by Mr. A. J. WOODHOUSE.

The PRESIDENT then expressed his deep sorrow and regret, and that of all present, at the absence of the Hon. Secretary, and especially that the cause of her absence was illness. He went on to inform the meeting that the serious illness from which Miss Edwards was suffering was the result of her visit to Millwall Docks to inspect the columns, &c., brought to England in October last. The President desired Miss Paterson (Miss Edward's secretary) to express the feeling of the meeting to Miss Edwards, and to convey their sympathy and fervent hope that she would soon be restored to perfect health and strength. Sir John Fowler then referred to the severe loss to the Fund caused by the death of a very distinguished Member of their Committee, Sir William H. Gregory, whose public career was remarkable and honourable. He was appointed Trustee to the National Gallery, in recognition of his high character.

The President also called the attention of the meeting to the great American loss they had sustained by the death of the Hon. J. Russell Lowell, D.C.L., &c. He was, however, pleased to inform them that they were fortunate in having him replaced by the Hon. George W. Curtis, LL.D., a friend of Mr. Lowell's.

He then added a few words on the work in Egypt during the season 1890-91, stating that M. Naville had excavated the temple at Ahnas-el-Medinet and found six granite columns, one of which, quite complete with its palm-leaf capital, had been presented to the British Museum. The marks of the tools on that column seemed to him as recent as if they had been made yesterday; and to Sir John Fowler's mind, as an engineer, were of peculiar significance, as he knew of no method or tools which would produce those marks except precious stones, as asserted on other occasions by Mr. Flinders Petrie. These columns, he went on to say, bear the names of Rameses the Great and his son, Menepthah. He added that the other five imperfect columns had been distributed among various museums. The President strongly recommended all present to go to the British Museum and see the column for themselves. M. Naville also found a colossal statue of Rameses II., which had been sent to the United States; a lion couchant, which had been presented to the Museum at Greenock; a red-granite bust, now at the Charterhouse School; and many valuable small objects.

The President stated that the rock-cut tombs of Beni Hasan and the neighbourhood had been surveyed, copied, and the paintings reproduced, the work having been performed by Mr. Newberry, Mr. Fraser, and Mr. Blackden. He was glad to say that Mr. Newberry was present at the meeting, and would read a paper on the subject. The united work of the three gentlemen would appear in two months in a work in two parts. The President said he believed this work would form one of the most valuable and interesting ever published by the Egypt Exploration Fund. He mentioned that Mr. Blackden was a Royal Academy student who had given his services gratuitously.

Before closing his address, the President referred to the remarks of a former speaker as to the relative proportion of the American and English subscription lists, stating that the American subscriptions were due to the indefatigable exertions of our eminent Hon. Treasurer and Vice-President, the Rev. W. C. Winslow, D.D., LL.D., &c. He said that the Balance Sheet was, as it ought to be, most satisfactory, but two circumstances led him to hope for an increase in the English subscriptions: Firstly, a feeling of jealousy or rivalry that England should be equal to America. He assured the subscribers that this would not offend the Americans; and said that he should not be content so long as he was President of the Fund till this object was gained. Secondly, Sir John Fowler said that, so far as he knew, the Egypt Exploration Fund was the only Society that gave more than it received. He considered this a very remarkable thing; the value of the publications being greater than the subscriptions received for them. He thought that this alone—especially in a good cause, one of the principal objects of which was to elucidate and explain the Bible, an unmixed good—should be sufficient to attract subscribers.

A paper which had been prepared by Miss Emily Paterson, Private Secretary to Miss Edwards, was then read by Mr. GRUEBER.

“In the absence of the Honorary Secretary, I have drawn up a short statement of the work done since the meeting in February, 1891.

“Miss Edwards then informed the meeting that M. Naville was at Ahnas-el-Medineh, and it is now my duty to report the results of his excavations in that neighbourhood. Mr. Naville has himself described the discovery of the ruins of the temple in the Special Extra Report for 1890-1. Finding that the necropolis yielded so little, M. Naville and Count d’Hulst went over to the mounds of Henassieh. After much trenching, they at last hit upon a granite monolith column with a palm-leaf capital, and found it was one of six columns, 17 feet high, forming the vestibule of the temple. The sculptures on these columns represent Rameses II. making offerings to various divinities, and also give the name of Menepthah, Rameses’ son. The architraves supported by the columns bear the cartouches of Usertesen II. of the XIIth dynasty. These six columns were brought to England, and will this afternoon be voted to various Museums.

“On the south side of the vestibule, M. Naville discovered a sitting statue of Rameses II., of heroic size, in red limestone, the throne painted red, and the head-dress with stripes of blue and yellow. The inscription on the lower part of the base is a dedication to Ursaphes, a form of Osiris generally represented with a ram’s head. This statue was also brought to England. The temple itself, having been built of soft white limestone, had been entirely destroyed, and the material employed again for building purposes.

“It is only necessary to say a few words with regard to the progress of the Archæological Survey, as Mr. Newberry will read a paper on this subject, in which he will lay before you the methods and results of his work at Beni Hasan and El Bersheh. The Committee and Hon. Treasurer decided to go to a little extra expense, and to send out a larger number of officers this season, as it was of the greatest importance that the El Bersheh tombs should be thoroughly copied, as well as those of Beni Hasan, before the first Survey Memoir could be issued. Every effort is now being made that this volume may be in the hands of subscribers early in the spring.

“The annual Memoir for 1890, The Festival Hall of Osorkon II., is now in the press. The delay in producing this volume has been caused by the extreme difficulty of the work, which M. Naville has at length succeeded in accomplishing, in piecing together the fragments of the tableaux which decorated the walls of this beautiful hall. This new volume will contain thirty-five linear plates after drawings by Mme. Naville. Most of the plates are folded, thus showing each a complete scene.

“The public libraries are slowly but surely recognising the importance of the work of the Fund, and how necessary it is for them to possess the Memoirs issued by the Society. The names of ten of these libraries have been added as fresh subscribers on Miss Edwards’s list, and three on Miss Barlow’s list.”

The PRESIDENT proposed the adoption of Miss Paterson’s statement, and a vote of thanks to her for the help she had given to Miss Edwards, as well as for the work she had done for the Fund during Miss Edwards’s illness.

On seconding the above vote of thanks, Prof. R. S. POOLE took occasion to refer to Mr. Griffith’s volunteer work for the Archæological Survey, in carrying out and directing the survey, revising inscriptions, &c. He said that it was difficult to estimate how great and onerous his work had been, as also that of his colleague, the Hon. Treasurer. Mr. Poole then read a letter just received from M. Naville, giving details of the latest progress of the researches this season. He also drew the meeting’s attention to the labour and beauty of Mme. Naville’s work in executing the plates for M. Naville’s Memoirs, which labours had injured her eyesight; and he suggested that a vote of thanks should be accorded her.

Referring to the President’s remarks on the illness of their Hon. Secretary, Mr. Poole said the work of the Fund would have come to a deadlock had it not been for the able assistance of her private secretary. He considered Miss Edwards to be the Fund; alone by herself she had made the Fund what it was. He had never seen her enthusiasm equalled, except in political strife. He wished Miss Edwards many years' health and strength.

The list of distributions to various museums were then read by Mr. GRUEBER, as follows :

LIST OF DONATIONS.

The British Museum.

1. A complete, finely-inscribed column, in red granite, with palm-leaf capital, from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi (Usarphes), the local deity of Heracleopolis Magna, which was discovered this year by M. Naville. This column dates from the period of Rameses II. (XIXth Egyptian Dynasty).

2. Ushabti inscribed with the name of Harshefi.

3. Dried Fruit.

4. Glazed Vase.

The Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

1. A finely-inscribed column in red granite, with palm-leaf capital (slightly damaged), from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi, in three pieces.

2. A selection of small antiquities, including ushabtis, dried fruits, &c., from the necropolis of Hakhnenesu.

The University of Pennsylvania.

1. Shaft, in two pieces, of a finely-inscribed column in red granite.

2. Colossal statue of Rameses II. in red limestone, painted with blue and yellow stripes on the head-dress. This was in three pieces.

The shaft and statue are both from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi.

The National Museum of South Australia.

1. Shaft, in two pieces, of a finely-inscribed column in red granite, from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi.

2. Cast of the palm-leaf capital to complete the above column, which the authorities of the British Museum have most generously offered to have executed from their complete capital.

The Owens College, Manchester.

1. Shaft, 12 ft. 8 in. long, of finely-inscribed column in red granite, from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi.

The Royal College of Surgeons.

1. A remarkable bone, which had been broken in life, and had subsequently naturally reunited. A similar example was found in the necropolis of Sakkarah twenty years ago by the late Mariette Pasha, and is now in the Egyptian Museum at Ghizeh. The present example was discovered by M. Naville in the necropolis of Hakhenensu.

The Chadwick Museum, Bolton.

1. Shaft, in two pieces, of a finely-inscribed column in red granite, from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi.

2. A selection of minor antiquities from the necropolis of Hakhenensu.

The Museum and Art Gallery, Nottingham.

1. A selection of minor antiquities from the necropolis of Hakhenensu.

The Watt Institution, Greenock.

1. Couchant lion from the ruins of the Great Temple of Harshefi—limestone, in two pieces, heroic size.

2. Double mummy case from the necropolis of Hakhenensu, consisting of an outer coffin with carved mask, and an inner cartonnage richly painted.

The Charterhouse School, Godalming.

A bust in red granite of an unknown Egyptian king, believed to be Rameses II., XIXth Dynasty.

The Albert Museum, Dundee.

1. A double mummy case from the necropolis of Hakhenensu, consisting of an outer coffin with carved mask, and an inner cartonnage richly painted, in perfect condition.

2. Selection of minor antiquities from the necropolis of Hakhenensu.

The PRESIDENT then requested Mr. Percy E. Newberry to read the paper he had prepared on the Archæological Survey of Egypt at Beni Hasan and El Bersheh :

“I have been asked by the Committee to lay before you the report of the work done by the officers of the Archæological Survey of Egypt since it was started eighteen months ago, and to report to you that the great work which you have undertaken now rests on a solid basis. The general object of the Survey was explained to you at the last general meeting in a paper by Mr. Griffith, the originator of the idea and the honorary superintendent of the work. The object was briefly this: to catalogue, measure, and copy all the monuments which exist above ground in Egypt. This scheme was suggested by Mr. Griffith in 1889, approved of and referred to the Committee at the general meeting in 1890. The Committee considered the matter, and, in August, 1890, a sum of money was voted in order to enable me to study under Mr. Griffith, and work out with him the details of the scheme.

“The details having been duly prepared, I started for Egypt early in November, 1890, and, on my arrival in Cairo, I was joined by Mr. Fraser, who had meanwhile been appointed engineer to the Survey. On the 25th of the same month we left Minieh, and arrived the following day at Beni Hasan, the site agreed upon for our first season's work. The report of that work has already been published by me—first in a brief form in the columns of the Academy, and afterwards in a more expanded form in the extra Special Report issued at the end of last year. It is not necessary now to enter into any details of the first season's work. It is enough to say that Mr. Fraser, Mr. Blackden (the artist who joined the expedition in February, 1891), and I remained at work in the tombs of Beni Hasan until the early summer, when we returned to England. During the summer Mr. Fraser was engaged in drawing in ink the plans of the tombs at Beni Hasan; I meanwhile preparing for the photographer some 10,000 square feet of tracings which I had outlined in pencil at Beni Hasan. At the same time I also worked through the MSS. of Burton, Hay, and Wilkinson, preserved in the British Museum.

“Early in October Mr. Fraser left England for Beni Hasan, where he arrived on the 30th of October, to complete his sketch survey of the tombs there; and on the 15th of the same month I followed, taking Paris on my way to examine the MSS. of Champollion and Nestor de l'Hôte. After making copious excerpts from these, I immediately proceeded to Egypt, and was joined at Alexandria by Mr. Howard Carter, a young artist whom the Society had engaged to assist me in tracing. We then proceeded together to Beni Hasan, and within three weeks Mr. Carter and I finished our work there, having traced some 2,000 square feet of painting. We then moved on to El Bersheh, and encamped in the ravine behind the Coptic village of Dêr en Nakhleh. At El Bersheh, curiously enough, only two inscribed tombs were previously known to Egyptologists. These were: the well-known tomb of Tahutihotep, containing the paintings of a colossal statue on a sledge being drawn by 172 men; and the tomb of Ahaneht, inscriptions from which had been published by Professor Sayce in the Recueil about two years ago. Within a quarter of an hour of my arrival at El Bersheh, however, I had the good luck to discover ten more inscribed tombs, all of about the twelfth dynasty, and containing many lines of inscriptions. It is simply extraordinary that these should never have been noted before, as they all lay within one hundred yards of the tomb of Tahutihotep, and six of them were actually on the same level. They had most of them suffered from the effects of an earthquake, which must have taken place before Coptic times, as on many of the fractures of the stones are painted Coptic crosses and inscriptions, which date from an early period. Several of the walls of the tombs here have fallen in, and been fractured into hundreds of pieces—some weighing about a ton, others no bigger than a walnut-shell. The bigger blocks had to be carefully moved, and then I had, with Mr. Carter's assistance, to fit the smaller pieces on to the bigger blocks and then trace them. By this means I was enabled to restore many a picture and several important things. In one case I fitted together about thirty fragments, and restored a block about one foot square, taking nearly half-a-day to do it. But I was well repaid for my trouble, as I found that the name of one of Tahutihotep's daughters was inscribed upon it, and, moreover, the name of one of the daughters we did not know of previously. By fitting up an innumerable quantity of fragments, and by the help of the inscriptions and paintings still intact upon the walls, we have been able to glean a goodly harvest from the El Bersheh tombs, and withal a harvest which shows the importance of the scheme which the Society has undertaken. It is only by the most patient examination and study of the inscriptions and paintings that one can attain any really satisfactory result.

"If you will allow me, I will show you an instance which will partly illustrate what I mean. On the inner jambs of the doorway leading to the main chamber of the tomb of Ameni, at Beni Hasan, is an inscription which has been copied by Hay, Champollion, Brugsch, Rosellini, Lepsius, and other Egyptologists. It has also been most carefully studied by Birch, Maspero, Erman, and Brugsch. Yet, for all this, several of the hieroglyphs have never been copied rightly. The following will show you what havoc a little thing will make in an inscription. Ameni, having described one of his successful military expeditions up the Nile, writes: 'I was praised on account of it _____ in the house of the king.' Now this has always been copied thus _____, which gives us quite a different meaning. It has been translated 'by the kings'; that is, 'I was praised on account of it (the successful expedition) by the kings'—a passage which Dr. Birch explained by saying 'the two kings reigning at the period,' or 'the King of Upper and the King of Lower Egypt!'

"I might quote many more instances of a similar nature, but I must pass on to give you some idea of the results of our work.

Had I time, I would have described to you in detail a typical XIth or XIIth dynasty tomb. I may, however, just note briefly its principal features. They are :—(1) an open outer court, (2) a portico with columns leading to (3) a main chamber, to the east of which is (4) the shrine. In some part of the floor of the main chamber is excavated (5) a well or shaft leading to (6) the sepulchral chamber. On the head and jambs of the doorway are usually inscribed the names and titles of the deceased, together with a short prayer to the visitor to the tomb. This prayer generally runs ‘O ye who love life, who hate death, give offerings of bread and wine to the Ka of the deceased.’ Sometimes it is varied with, ‘O ye who live upon the top of the earth give offerings of bread and wine, oxen and geese, sweet incense and wax to the Ka of the deceased.’ In the tomb of Chnemhotep, at Beni Hasan, the visitor is asked to give these offerings at various stated festivals. Not content with such prayers and directions to the visitor, the princes and nobles of the Middle Kingdom sometimes appointed special priests to arrange these festivals and, as a preliminary, cursed beforehand anyone who might interfere with them. Thus Chnemhotep, in his biographical inscription, tells us that he appointed a Ka priest, and endowed him with lands and vassals, that he decreed offerings at every feast of the necropolis, at every feast of the living and of the dead. ‘Moreover,’ he continues, ‘if any priest or any person disarranges these festivals may he cease to exist and may his son cease to exist upon his seat.’ Passing through the doorway of the portico we enter the main chamber, which formed the principal feature of the tomb. It is usually a square or rectangular chamber hollowed out of the rock. Sometimes pillars are left in the excavation, then carefully worked to imitate columns. The walls of the main chamber are smoothed and the surface prepared for the paintings which are to cover them. The scenes are generally of a similar nature in the various tombs, though they sometimes differ in their order and arrangement. The object of these paintings is to give a kind of pictorial biography of the deceased. Chnemhote tells us in the beginning of his biographical inscription that he made his tomb 'in order that it might establish his name to eternity, and make it endure for ever, also that it might establish the name of his staff being arranged in good order according to their rank, the established ones, his household officers and all artisans one after another.' Accordingly, on the walls of his tomb we find a series of named portraits, representing the owner of the tomb, the members of his family, and his officers and domestics. In the shrine, the walls of which are also carefully smoothed and painted, are usually representations of the funeral feast, with rows of men and women bearing offerings, priests cutting up oxen, burning incense and reading prayers. The shrine also generally contained statues of the deceased and of his wife.

"I must now return to my report of the work done by the Survey Staff.

"The chief result of the past two seasons' work is, of course, that we have now not only plans of the tombs and water-colour fac-similes of many of the most interesting scenes, but copies of the inscriptions and outline tracings of all the wall paintings in the tombs at Beni Hasan and El Bersheh. The entire work of the past two seasons up to three weeks ago (with the exception of four of Mr. Blackden's drawings) is now before you. There are, as you will see, water-colour drawings by Mr. Blackden, plans by Mr. Fraser, photographs by Mr. Fraser and myself, as well as these rolls of tracings. The majority of these I pencilled in on the wall during my first season's work; and I reckon that there are here upwards of 14,000 square feet of tracing-paper covered with pencil outlines, 12,000 feet of which at least I have done with my own hand. Another result of my work is the genealogy which you see there. (A diagram was here exhibited.) It is one of several, and I am glad to say this is the longest and fullest genealogy of any ancient Egyptian family that has yet been worked out."

"The two princely families buried at El Bersheh and Beni Hasan we find are related to one another. The founder of the Beni Hasan branch was Chnemhotep I., and we can trace the history of his branch through five generations. The founder of the Bersheh branch was Nehera I., and we can trace the history of his branch through no less than seven generations. These feudal princes lived under the first kings of the XII. dynasty, about 2500 B.C.—that is, about 500 years before the time of Abraham, and at a time before the horse and camel were known in Egypt. Chnemhotep I. lived during the reign of the first king of the XII. dynasty—Amenemhat I. Necht ruled the Oryx nome under Usertsen I. Chnemhotep II. inherited his grandfather's titles, which were confirmed to him by Amenemhat II. He died in the sixth year of Usertsen II. Tahutihotep, the governor of the Hare nome, and who was buried at El Bersheh, was nephew of the great Chnemhotep II., and the inscriptions inform us that he was born in the reign of Amenemhat II.; that he was raised to the peerage by Usertsen II., and that he died of a good old age in the reign of Usertsen III. I could detail to you from the inscriptions the history of each of the individuals of this family—tell you of their various titles, of the good deeds which they performed upon earth, and of their hopes for the future. I could also tell you the names of their various officers and of their domestic servants; and had I time I would have described to you the organisation of the household of one of these princes. This, however, I have reserved for my book, which will be published very shortly.

“Before concluding this part of my report I ought to add that the sketch survey of the tombs and hill at El Bersheh is now being done by Messrs. Blackden and Fraser, and that it is hoped that it will be completed before the hot weather sets in. It is much to be regretted that we have not more water-colour drawings this season (we have only about an eighth part of what were done last year), but this is owing to the fact that Mr. Blackden has had to superintend the work of excavating and the sketch survey of the tombs. Another important result of our work is the collection of graffiti which I have made. These are chiefly hieratic, Coptic, and Greek, which have been copied from the walls of the tomb. Some of the former were very interesting. There is one which you will see on one of my tracings which was probably scribbled on the wall by one of the artists employed in painting the tomb. It runs—'Let us leave our work and cook bread.' Another graffito gives a poetical little description of the tomb in which it was found. It was written by a royal scribe, named Amen-més, in the eighteenth dynasty, and concludes by saying: 'Would that I might renew my visit to the tomb.' Making copies of the paintings and inscriptions at Beni Hasan and El Bersheh is not, however, all that I have done for you this season in Egypt. I have also explored the Nile Valley from Minieh to Kusiyeh, on the left bank, and from Zawyet el Mayyitin to Hawâta, on the right bank, and have noted the mounds, place-names, and objects of archæological interest within that district, a district about forty miles long, which comprises the whole of the two provinces known in ancient times as the Oryx nome and the Hermopolite nome. No records of exploration on the left bank have been made since the beginning of the century. Going down the Nile as far as Nezala Ganub, I struck to the west through the town of Kusiyeh to a Coptic village named Mêr. To the west of this village is the Bahr Yusef, then a stretch of cultivated land. To the west of this, again, is a wide expanse of sandy desert, traversing which one reaches the hills of the Libyan chain. Excavated in these hills due east of Mêr are tombs of the sixth, twelfth, and twenty-sixth dynasties. A few miles further to the north is the village of 'Awâga. To the west of this are tombs in the hills, and a very large cemetery at the edge of the desert—a cemetery which extends northward nearly as far as Bawît. North-west of Bawît are two un-inscribed limestone quarries. From Bawît to Minieh the hills are all sand-choked, with the exception of a few cliffs east of Derwa and Tunch. At Gebel Tunch is one of the boundary stelæ of Chuenaten, dated in the eighth year of that monarch's reign. Having explored the Libyan hills from Mêr to Minieh, I then took a horse and explored the villages and mounds of the cultivated land. At Daschlût, Hûr, Derut en Nakhleh, and a few other villages are small mounds.

The village of Gilga is built on an enormous mound, one of the highest that I have seen in Egypt. The mounds at Eshmunên, which mark the site of the Greek Hermopolis, are being dug away for sebâkh, and in a few years' time all traces of them will be as completely obliterated as the extensive mounds which are said to have existed opposite Beni Hasan. On the east bank of the river are remains of sixth-dynasty tombs at Zawyet el Mayyitîn and at Shekh Said; eleventh and twelfth dynasty tombs at Beni Hasan and El Bersheh; eighteenth-dynasty tombs and monuments in the ravine behind the modern village of Beni Hasan, at El Bersheh, and further south at Tel el Amarna. Behind Dêr abu Hannes and Der en Nakhleh are enormous limestone quarries in the hills, containing hundreds of Demotic graffiti of the time of Nectanebo, as well as many Coptic graffiti and paintings. In the débris below the tombs at El Bersheh and Shekh Said I also found a large number of stone chisels similar to those I discovered last year. It is probable that these boulder-chisels were used very generally in Egypt, but none have been recorded from other sites than those already mentioned. There is one other discovery that I ought to note in this report. On the 21st December I left camp early in the morning with Mr. Carter to visit Mr. Petrie at Haggi Qandîl—a village situated about twelve miles south of El Bersheh. Returning along the hills the same evening, we fell in with a party of Bedawîn. I had previously been making inquiries among the natives as to whether any tombs existed in the ravines some distance from the river. These Bedawîn had heard of this, and their Shekh volunteered the information that he knew of a tourba, or tomb, some distance back and in the desert immediately east of Haggi Qandîl. On my offering him a little bakhshish he promised to take me to the place. I then bargained with him to supply the necessary camels, and asked him to stay the night at our camp, so that he might not have the chance of giving us the slip, as Arabs often try to do. He stayed with me; and next morning, at sunrise, Mr. Carter and I, together with the Bedawee Shekh and four of his men, armed with guns and spears, started off into the desert for this 'tourba.' At four o'clock the same afternoon, after a hot day's desert ride, we sighted large masses of limestone and alabaster chips, and in less than half-an-hour were inside what proved to be, not a tomb, but the famous alabaster quarry of Hat-Nub—the quarry to which Una went to cut out the alabaster altar for his sovereign more than 5,500 years ago. This quarry was the most famous one of the Ancient Kingdom, and in it I found cartouches of Chufu, Mer-en-ra Pepi and Nefer-Ka-Ra, as well as several short inscriptions. On the 4th of January, Mr. Carter's and my work of tracing the wall paintings and copying the inscriptions being completed, we broke up our camp. Mr. Carter proceeded to Tel el Amarna to begin excavations under Mr. Petrie, on that ancient site, on behalf of Mr. Tyssen Amherst. I returned the next day to Cairo, from whence I went to Alexandria to examine the MSS. of the late Consul Harris, which are now in the possession of his daughter. From Alexandria I returned to England, and since my arrival in this country have been engaged in preparing the two Memoirs that I now have in hand for the Society."

The paper was illustrated by original water-colour drawings by Mr. M. W. Blackden, an Academy student, and tracings by Mr. Newberry.

The PRESIDENT, in proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Newberry, said that the greatest praise he could give to the paper was to say that it was a clear indication of the extreme value of the forthcoming publication on the tombs of Beni Hasan.

Prof. R. S. POOLE seconded the resolution, and said that he thought he knew as much as anyone the extreme difficulty of the work which had been done by Mr. Newberry, and it was almost inconceivable that he could have covered such a stupendous amount of paper in the space of time he had devoted to the work. He wished it to be remembered that but for Mr. Newberry's work the inscriptions, &c., would have been lost to the world, as the tombs are fast perishing.

Mr. BAYLIS then proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman for the admirable way in which he had conducted the business of the meeting.

Prof. POOLE seconded this resolution, which was carried by acclamation.

* THE VILLIERS STUART CHALLENGE.

1 Miss M. H. McClean	£50	0	0
2 Miss Louise Kennedy (U.S.A.)	50	0	0

* Mr. H. Villiers Stuart, in confirmation of an offer made by himself in the columns of The Times (Tuesday, October 7th, 1890), volunteers to give £50 towards the expenses of this undertaking, provided that forty-nine other well-wishers to the Archeological Survey of Egypt will give the same amount. The first donation towards this special fund was made by Miss M. H. McClean (through Mr. McClure, Local Hon. Secretary for the S.W. Metropolitan district), and the second donation was made by Miss Louise Kennedy (through the Rev. W. C. Winslow, D.D., &c., &c., Hon. Treasurer and Hon. Secretary for the United States of America).

Subscriptions and Donations received through Miss W. M. Adair (Local Hon. Secretary for the N. Metropolitan District).
