Sabbath Evening.

Let the Sabbath evening,
All so still and hush,
Cause from every bosom
Tender thoughts to gush.
Thoughts of those who love us,
Thoughts of those we love,
Thoughts of friends still with us,
Thoughts of those above.

Let the lonely wanderer,
On a foreign coast,
Think of distant dear ones
Whom he loveth most.

Kneeling on the desert,
Or the barren moor,
By the rolling river,
Or the lofty tower.

Let him ask of Heaven
Down on them to shower
Blessings without number,
Joys forever more.

Let thy Holy Spirit
Breathe upon us now,
Heaven's choicest blessing,
Love to friend and foe.

Let the Sabbath evening,
Ne'er from us depart,
Till its holy influence
Moveth every heart.

The Baron and his Son.

The time at which this tale commences was towards the latter part of the fourteenth century, when each baron ruled his own stronghold with absolute sway; not only over his immediate vassals, but also over the peaceful traveler, whom he stopped, robbed, or murdered, without being in dread of any other punishment than that inflicted by his own conscience—the sting of remorse. At this time, then, those old and scarcely perceptible ruins that you may perceive half way up a mountain, formed the magnificent castle of the proud Baron of Hohenstine, who acknowledged no laws but the dictates of his own inclinations; and these, if his vassals spoke true, were not confined to the strict rule of right. He exacted strict obedience from every one around him, and those who had the hardihood to disobey him once, seldom did so a second time.

The baron had an only son, in every respect the opposite of his father. Ulric possessed a heart feelingly alive to all the gentle influences of humanity; he was one of those who would turn aside to avoid injuring the worm that crawled in his path. Yet, differing as he did in most things from his 'inexorable sire,' the stern baron loved him more than everything else; but his love did not show itself in the usual way.

The great hall of the castle was illuminated by a hundred lamps, hung around the wall in every variety of shape; and the shields of all the illustrious line of Hohenstine were each surrounded by a laurel wreath, in which the parti-colored medals were placed; and there all the magnates of the land were gathered to behold the wedding of Ulric with the haughty daughter of the yet haughtier baron of Eichenherz. The goblet passed round, and all cares seem to be forgotten, and if the heart be sad, the face does not betray it.

Old Time, even, seemed to grow young again, and he fled with unnoticed wing. Yet amidst all this joy, if the vassals spoke true, there was one heart at least that did not beat in time to that gay measure; and that was Ulric's, on whom his father's eye often turned with an inexplicable meaning.

Ulric left the hall with an expression of anguish on his pale, handsome face. He stood at the private postern gate, arrayed in his costly wedding dress, and gazed out into the night. The dark clouds were scudding along before the gale, which was whistling dimly thro' the battlements, forming a striking contrast to the scene within. "Yes, yes," he muttered, "it must be done now or never;" and he then sprang down the cliff and soon reached the bottom, where now you may perceive the ruins of rather a large village. The inhabitants were all at that late hour asleep, and Ulric passed on unseen till he came to a small but neat cottage, which belonged to the widow of a distant relation of the baron, whose husband had been executed for treason, and all his estates confiscated. This small cottage had been given to her and her only daughter by the baron; and here Ulric, during his father's absence at the chase or in the carousals of the neighboring castle, spent the greater portion of his idle time. He knocked at a small latticed window. The noise was probably drowned in the storm, for he received no answer; so putting his face to the casement, he said—

"Leiba, dearest Leiba, it is I."
The casement was opened, and Ulric sprang into the room.
"Are you ready, dearest?" said he.
Leiba threw herself into his arms, and hiding her weeping face on his shoulder, said:

"Oh, Ulric, you must not indeed do this; I know your father will never forgive you; and how can you, Ulric, bear poverty, who have been so long accustomed to live in princely splendor, and to indulge the gratification of every wish? You will repent your hasty act, and—"

"Never, dearest, never!" interrupted Ulric. "You know that not many hours hence I must wed the haughty maiden of Eichenherz, whom I can never love. No Leiba, I would rather share poverty, sickness, death itself, with you, than a throne with the proud Christine. I will never return to my father's hall, even should you not fly with me. I have bribed the boatman, and horses wait us at the other side of the river. Now, Leiba, will you come?"

She raised her head from his shoulder and looked out.

"It is, in truth, a fearful night, and it seems as if heaven frowned on us. I will go."

They left the cottage, and a few minutes brought them to the river, where was the boat, and in it sat the old boatman, muffled in his large cloak.

"Now row us swiftly across, good Fritz," said Ulric.

Scarcely had the frail bark left the shore when a flash of lightning, so vivid as to light the whole scene with a blinding refulgence, burst from the cloud immediately over their heads, followed by a clap of thunder so loud and long that it seemed as if the demons of the storm were engaged in their din of war, and in all the confusion of a first onset. This was followed by so quick a succession of flashes as to be nearly continuous. The troubled waters were fearfully distinct, and the whole river appeared one mass of white and sparkling foam. The strong oars bent like reeds from the vigorous strokes of the boatman, as, wrapping himself closer in his mantle, he plied silently into the stream. When he had reached the middle he laid on his oars, and throwing open his rough cloak, the lightning flashed upon his jeweled breast. It was the baron.

Leiba uttered a piercing shriek, and then threw herself upon Ulric's bosom, who, spell-bound, sat gazing at his father.

"Ah, boy!" shouted the baron, "did you think to deceive me? Now—now say, will you give her up?"

"Never, father, never!" answered Ulric, resolutely.

"Then she shall die!" said the baron, sternly; and holding back his son with one herculean arm, he with the other plunged the ill-fated girl into the whirling waters. She gave one long, piercing shriek, as she was borne down by the eddy current.

"Father," said Ulric, in a low, deep tone, and the lightning fell upon his face disclosing an unearthly fixedness of purpose. "Father you have destroyed your only son." And breaking with the strength of despair from the baron's grasp he plunged himself into the stream and disappeared.

Long and wildly did the proud baron watch for him to rise, but in vain. He then threw himself into the bottom of the boat, and wept with agony, and they were the first tears he had shed since childhood. At length he rose, and called wildly on his son; and then, with a loud, demonical laugh, shouted, "I have no son! I had one once, but I murdered him! Ah, ah, ah!" and the rocks rang with that unearthly laugh, and he sank insensible into the boat. Next morning he was found many miles down the stream, and was brought home; but his mind was gone, and some months after he died a madman. Even to this day, the fishermen tell, that on the anniversary night of this wild deed, when the spirit of the storm is abroad, the scene is acted over again—the maiden is dashed into the river—again her shrieks are heard and again the baron is seen whirling down the stream calling on his son—and again once more the rocks reverberate with his unearthly laughter.

It is reported that Cameron said to Gen. McDowell that he should like to see more fighting and less investigation. This reminds us of another report. It is said that when the Emperor of Russia heard that the President had appointed Cameron Minister to St. Petersburg, he ordered a vault constructed under his palace, and placed in it all the crown jewels and plate of the Royal household. He said that Cameron had nearly ruined the United States Government, and if the Ex Secretary was coming to Russia, he wanted at least to save his own personal property.

An Irish attorney threatened to prosecute a Dublin printer for inserting the death of a live person. The menace concluded with the remark, "No printer should publish a death unless informed of the fact by the party deceased."

SUSPICION is a counterfeit of truth as well as falsehood.

Concerning Husbands.

Though I cannot boast that interesting possession—a husband—and must, therefore, speak from observation rather than experience, yet I trust a few hints, suggested by the study of the habits and characteristics of husbands generally, may not be wholly inappropriate.

In my wanderings up and down the world, I have encountered a great variety of curious specimens, which have interested me not a little in a zoological point of view. I have observed that husbands, in the main, are very harmless animals, if properly managed. There is, perhaps, no animal in existence, that requires so much skill and art in the management as a husband; for these 'lords of creation' become quite obstreperous and unmangeable as soon as they begin to suspect any design to control them. They have a particular aversion to the sway of women—that is when it becomes apparent. Intimate, for instance, that 'they are under woman's control,' and they will bristle up indignantly, as though it were an insult to their manhood. They are docile, so long as there is no appearance of control; but once show them the reins of government, and they will resist you with all the obstinacy of their nature.

The woman who would live in harmony with her spouse, must study his nature and disposition. She must not cross his temper, nor assume authority, and presume to dictate, for there is nothing that so exasperates the spirit of a man that is a man, as any attempt to trespass upon his prerogative. She must gracefully concede his lordship, and pay it all due respect and reverence; then if she possesses the magnets of his affections, she may lead him whichever way she wills. Woman's power lies in her affections; and love, when judiciously exercised, the husband cannot resist—except perchance he partake of the nature of the bear, and is impervious to the influence of the tender passion.

Another chief requisite in the management of a husband, is a genial, cheerful nature; for if he have not sunshine in his home, he will be a gloomy fellow, cross and surly beyond endurance. In order to make him a pleasing object of contemplation, or companionship, he must be kept in a good humor by the enlivening influence of a cheerful home.

His physical wants must also be studied. One of the best recipes for a good-natured husband is palatable, digestible food; sour nature is oftentimes the result of bad digestion. Keep the digestive apparatus in a healthy condition, and you may be pretty sure of a pleasant face and kindly greeting. Give a man a miserable breakfast, and you will be quite sure to have a miserable companion for the day. It is astonishing how much good cheer there is in a good cup of coffee and a nice bit of toast! A man may live on love for a time, but he soon finds it rather an insipid article of diet, if not combined with something more substantial. Depend upon it, wholesome food and a well-ordered house lie at the foundation of domestic felicity. Show me the man that can be ill-natured when he comes home to a cheerful fireside, where the smiling wife awaits his arrival, with gown and slippers and a comfortable supper, and I will show you a genuine specimen of a bear!

Another hint I would suggest to wives is that they look well to the condition of their husband's shirt buttons. No man can keep his temper over a buttonless shirt; he can bear the loss of a fortune with a better grace than the loss of a shirt button. Why, I have seen dignified clergymen fly into such a passion over the loss of a button, as quite effectually to convince one of their infirmities as mortals; so slight a thing may disturb the equilibrium of a great man for a whole day.

Men cannot bear petty vexations and inconveniences; they have no patience and endurance; therefore I would counsel all wedded ladies, who would live in comfort with their lords, to avoid unnecessary occasions of irritation and dissatisfaction.—Jean, in the New York Home Journal.

A MATHEMATICIAN being asked by a stout fellow, "if two pigs weigh twenty pounds, how much will a large hog weigh?" replied:

"Jump into the scales and I will tell you immediately."

AN IRISHMAN swearing an assault against his three sons, thus concluded—

The only one of my children that shows me any real filial affection, is my youngest son, Larry, for he never strikes me when I'm down!

PERSONS like wild horses, when properly trained and disciplined, are capable of being applied to the noblest purposes; but when allowed to have their own way, they always become dangerous in the extreme.

Genius and Talent.

What is Genius? Genius is the bird that sits and sings and soars as her feelings move her. She rises like the eagle on her heavenward way; she touches the tops of the loftiest crags, and if she comes down to the vales and plains below, it is but to descend gracefully and dip her plumage in the crystal waters of the mountain lake. Genius is the avil of the dragon, which, if uplifted, evokes all earthly and divine things; unlocks all secrets of nature, science, art; which calls, and is answered; which says, and it is done; which commands, and it stands forth; which makes things of what were not things. But we promise to show not only what this strange and mystic power called genius is, but also what its relations are to talent and to tact, other forces upon which it depends for its best manifestations and most beneficent results.

But what is talent? and what is the connection between it and genius? Talent is a faculty of the mind which enables it to put forth useful effort. 'It comprises general strength of intellect and a peculiar aptitude for being moulded to specific employments.' Such is the definition the learned give us. Talent, too, is the result of training in no such sense as genius is. We would call it an acquisition rather than an endowment. For instance, a man, as the result of patience, industry and faith may paint a good picture; or carve a statue, or write a poem. By following certain maxims and rules in literature and art, he may acquire an aptitude for certain special kinds of labor. But if he be a painter he cannot paint like Apelles; he cannot make cherries look so natural that the birds of heaven shall be deceived, and come and peck at them. Talent in painting, sculpture, architecture, or any other art, may result in considerable progress and efficiency, nay, may lead to respectability on the part of him who exhibits it; but that is all; eminence is impossible to any efforts save those of consummate genius. Nevertheless, talent, as we have said, is not to be despised; nay, it will accomplish what genius itself cannot achieve. Talent is intellect in its vigor and strength, and it is that which rules the world. If it cannot plan cathedrals, it can build them; if it cannot shine as the sun, it can twinkle as a star; and genius herself must look through windows constructed by eye and ear, and lead off this homely yet useful power.—National Review.

BE YOUR OWN RIGHT HAND MAN.— People who have been bolstered up and levered all their lives, are seldom good for anything in a crisis. When misfortune comes they look around for somebody to cling or lean upon. If the prop is not there, down they go. Once down, they are as helpless as capsize turtles, or unhorsed men in armor, and cannot find their feet again without assistance. Such silken fellows no more resemble self-made men, who have fought their way to position, making difficulties their stepping stones, and deriving determination from their defeat, than vines resemble oaks, or spluttering rush lights the stars of heaven. Efforts persisted to achievements train a man to self-reliance, and when he has proved to the world that he can trust himself, the world will trust him. We say, therefore, that it is unwise to deprive young men of the advantages which result from their energetic action, by 'boosting' them over obstacles which they ought to surmount alone. No one ever swam well who placed his confidence in a cork jacket; and if, when breasting the sea of life, we cannot buoy ourselves up and try to force ourselves ahead by dint of our own energies, we are not salvage, and it is of little consequence whether we 'sink or swim, survive or perish.'

One of the best lessons a father can give to his sons is this: "Work; strengthen your moral and mental faculties, as you would strengthen your muscles, by vigorous exercise. Learn to conquer circumstances, you are then independent of fortune. The men of athletic minds who leave their marks on the years in which they lived, were all trained in a rough school. They did not mount their high positions by the help of leverage; they leapt into chasms, grappled with the opposing rocks, avoided avalanches, and when the goal was reached, felt that but for the toil that had strengthened them as they strove, it could never have been attained."

THE County Judge of San Francisco has issued a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Eoff, who killed Chapman and who desire to be admitted to bail.

A MAN in Bristol was such an inveterate gambler, that he not only lost all he possessed one evening, but he lost his way home.

THERE was received at the San Francisco Custom House in February the sum of $204,965 84 in coin, for duties.

THE San Francisco Call and the Evening Journal have raised the price to fifteen cents per week.

AN old printer and conductor of the Shipping Gazette, Mr. John Doyle, died recently in San Francisco, at the age of 73 years.

IN the Fourth District Court, at San Francisco, on Saturday, the jury gave a verdict in favor of John Agnew, for $3,175, the value of the stallion Commodore which was killed by an explosion of the steam boiler Contra Costa ferry boat in 1857.

ANOTHER.—It is stated in the Edinburgh Scotchman that the rebel Government has just completed the purchase of the Britannia, a steamer of the same build and fast sailing qualities as the Alabama, and that she is at once to be put in commission and receive her armament at sea.

SALT.—A salt marsh or mine has been discovered in the Humboldt river region, N. T., which embraces some 7,600 acres. It lies in the valley on the South of Table Mountain. The salt is three feet thick on the surface and pure. Well, what next?

REJECTED.—At a meeting of the employees of the Government, working at the Benicia Arsenal, held on Feb. 26th, resolutions were adopted deprecating the action of the Government in having ordered them paid in greenbacks, and stating that the high prices of provisions, with legal tender notes at their low market value, would not give them a livelihood. They also state that they have labored five months without having received any wages.

Term of Service Expiring.

For months past it has been stated from time to time, by Washington letter writers, for both Atlantic and Pacific papers, that a large number of troops would go out of service this spring by limitation of the term of their enlistment, but to what extent our army was to be decimated in this way, we have never been able to learn. The Sacramento Union's Washington Correspondent writing on the 4th of February, sets the number down at 300,000 whose term of service would expire in two months from that date. That our readers may see the frame of mind in which the correspondent writes, we give the following extracts from his letter referred to. He says:

"God forbid that I should appear to speak flippantly of so serious and momentous a matter as that which involves the life or death of this Union, but no one who has attentively observed the progress of events, and who realizes the situation at this time, need be surprised to know that the preparations now in hand are to determine whether we are to have peace by the sword or peace by treaty stipulations with the rebels of the South. Possibly before these speculations appear in print their value will have been measurably determined by events which the flashing telegraph will have chronicled long before this reaches California. But, at any rate, the facts which I have gathered will be of use to throw some light upon the curtly written news dispatches which the telegraph wires will bring you.

Within two months the term of enlistment of 300,000 men will expire, and a great majority of those will leave the ranks of the army and return to their homes, unless a material change shall take place in the management of the war and in the sentiment of the troops now in the field. The places of these men cannot be easily supplied, for drafting has been virtually abandoned, and voluntary enlistments will not be frequent or considerable in the present state of things."

The correspondent says further:

"The wisest and the shrewdest say that unless a decided change for the better shall shortly occur we are ruined and impoverished as a nation. Will wise legislation save us? Hardly, unless it is accompanied by great military successes. Again and again this is thundered in the ears of our war managers and statesmen, and, at last, it is to them apparent that the national credit, which can save the country, is dependent upon the national arms, which can save everything. Without success in the field, we can have no more money, no more men; without these we are lost."

The great events hoped for in that letter as likely to brighten our prospects, have not as yet been flashed across the wires. That "decided change" has not yet occurred to save us, as a nation, "ruined and impoverished," and in less than thirty days 300,000 of our brave troops are to "return to their home and families." If we have no other hope for a Union than the one to be conquered by force of arms, our hearts would sink within us at the gloomy prospect here presented by the Union's correspondent from Washington.

SILVER.—The London (C. W.) Daily News says that a citizen of that town tendered at a railway station two American quarters for a ticket, the price of which was fifty cents. The ticket master rejected the silver, and the gentleman tendered two British shillings and two cents, at the same time calling witnesses. The ticket master declined to sell the ticket except at an advance equal to the discount on silver, and the gentleman entered the cars. When he had ridden two or three miles the conductor ejected him because he had no ticket, and he was compelled to walk home. He was about to bring action against the railroad company, when the directors settled the matter by the payment of $350.

We learn, says the N. Y. Atlas, from authority we have no reason to doubt, that General Scott is probably passing the last days of his life. He is confined to his room at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, decrepit and entirely helpless, and, sad to say, his mind at last breaking down under the weight of years and troubles. Of the latter, the condition of the country he had so loved and so well served, no doubt forms a sad part.

ON Monday, Jan. 26, G. R. H. Hughes of Chicago, acting as attorney-in-fact of the rebel John A. Washington, who was killed in 1861, presented to the Judge of the Cook County Court, (Illinois), the petition of Richard B. Washington, executor of John A., praying that the will of the latter be regularly certified, etc. He bequeaths to his seven children his property in the city of Chicago, consisting of three pieces of improved real estate, worth in the aggregate $29,800. The death of the testator having occurred previous to the passage of the last confiscation act, the law is inoperative in this case, and the heirs, being all minors, cannot be affected by its provisions,

LAST ACTS OF CONGRESS FOR THE PACIFIC.

—Congress has given considerable attention to the Pacific coast during the session just ended. Nevada Territory is authorized to enter the Union as a State as soon as she presents her Constitution to Congress. She will not be likely to neglect her privileges, and probably will be in season with her two U. S. Senators for the next session. With less than 15,000 votes, there is certainly a fine field opened about Washoe for politicians who aspire to become statesmen.

Washington Territory has been divided, an extensive region east of the Cascades, including the rich mining regions on the Upper Columbia, is to be organized into the Territory of Idaho.

The Corporation Act passed by the Nevada Legislature has been annulled by Congress, no doubt to the disgust of the Virginia City boarding-house keepers; but then Congress has given the soon-to-be new State a Mint, which will act as a salvo to allay any general irritation.

The amendments to the Pacific Railroad Bill, which authorized a full advance of the Government bounty as the work proceeds on the western end of the route, failed in the House.

Senator Latham has got the Senate to adopt a resolution concerning frauds in the San Francisco Custom House and Mint, which will doubtless stir up a small sensation in those institutions.

The bill also passed making the U. S. Circuit Judge for this coast one of the Judges of the National Supreme Court.

ELEVEN REBELLIONS.—Since the organization of the Federal Government eleven attempts have been made to resist its authority. The first was in 1782, a conspiracy of some officers of the Federal army to consolidate the thirteen States into one, and confer the supreme power on Washington. The second in 1787, Shay's insurrection in Massachusetts.—The third in 1794, called the whisky insurrection of Pennsylvania. The fourth in 1814, by the Hartford Convention. The fifth in 1820, on the question of the admission of Missouri, into the Union. The sixth was a collision between the Legislature of Georgia and the Federal Government, in regard to the lands given to the Creek Indians. The seventh was in 1830, with the Cherokees in Georgia. The eighth was the memorable nullifying ordinance of South Carolina, 1832. The ninth was in 1842 in Rhode Island, between the suffrage association and the State authorities. The tenth was in 1856, on the part of the Mormons, who resisted the Federal authorities. The eleventh is the present attempt at secession.

THE FRENCH EMPEROR.—The Call says: A gentleman has handed us the following, which he assures us is the interpretation of genuine dispatches in cypher, received by parties in this city from the east. M. Mercier, French Minister, called upon Mr. Seward, and stated that Napoleon had instructed him to say that unless the rebellion was very speedily suppressed, which he had little hope, he (Napoleon) would be obliged, and it was his intention to recognize the southern States as an independent nation. Mr. Seward, it is said, grew warm, and indulged in strong language, which M. Mercier considered offensive, and of such character that he sent for his passports. A few days since we hear that Mr. Lincoln called upon Mercier, and an important interview ensued, this was, as the report goes, to heal the breach with Mr. Seward. But the French minister insisted on having his passports and leaving the country, as he would not, after Seward's language, hold further correspondence with that Secretary. Although we cannot assure our readers that the statement set forth as above is correct, Mr. Lincoln's singular interview with the French Minister is very plausibly connected with the alleged previous flare up. If the dispatches are true the sudden rise in gold can be easily accounted for.—Bee's dispatch.

MISSOURI.—The States' Times, (Mo.) of 30th January, thus speaks of the fear of another outbreak in the Spring by the rebels. It says:

From many indications we apprehend another uprising of the rebels in this State, as soon as a favorable opportunity presents itself. From the west and central portions and from the northeastern part of the State we learn by men whose opportunities for observing entitle their opinions to much confidence, that they fear another uprising of the rebels with the coming spring. We are told they are quietly arming themselves and procuring ammunition; and there is a certain tone and bearing about those supposed to be initiated in their secrets, that lead the law abiding Union men to fear there is approaching danger. We hope, for the good of the State, that our information may prove incorrect. The sufferings and hardships of our people have already been great, and they will be much greater if they have to pass through another season of bushwhacking and marauding like the last.

PARTIES who claim to know what they say, assert that the late reported attempt to fit out a rebel privateer at Victoria was true, and that the project fell through from a want of harmony among those connected with the enterprise.

THE Stanislaus Age says the reported capture and subsequent hanging of Mayfield and Plummer is untrue and without the slightest foundation.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

The following dispatches are from the Sacramento Union of March 2d:

A dispatch dated Headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, Feb. 27th, says:

On Wednesday night two rebel cavalry brigades, Fitz Hugh Lee and Hampton's, attempted to make a raid into our lines. They crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford, and succeeded by a strong attack in breaking our thin line of cavalry outposts at one or two points, capturing a few of our men. Our cavalry outposts were brought up, and the line immediately re-established. A force was sent in pursuit. Our captures included two or three officers. The rebels failing to accomplish their object, returned in great haste across the Rappahannock, felling trees across the road, and placing other obstructions in the way of the pursuing forces. The cavalry sent out in pursuit has not yet returned. The rebel cavalry was commanded by Stuart in person.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28th.—The Herald says rumors were rife at Washington yesterday, that Hunter is to be relieved from the command of the Department of the South. Burnside's name is spoken of in connection with the succession. It is also said that certain parties are preparing charges against McClellan, with a view to a Court martial.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Rosecrans' official report of the battle of Stone River states that the Federals engaged numbered 43,400, of whom 1,533 were killed, and 7,245 wounded. The loss in prisoners was about 2,800. The rebels engaged 62,490. Their loss, judging from actual returns of three divisions, was 13,560.

CAIRO, Feb. 28.—Full dispatches regarding the expedition of the ram Queen of the West to Red river have been received. The crew consisted mostly of negroes. Her artillerymen were 20 inexperienced men, detailed from the 18th Illinois Infantry. On Thursday morning before the capture, the ram ran down the Atchafalaya river a few miles, and captured and destroyed a rebel Quartermaster's train, consisting of 17 wagons. Returning, she was fired on by guerrillas at Simmsport. The next morning, Colonel Ellet landed and burned all the buildings in the vicinity in retaliation, destroying half a million dollars worth of property. On Saturday he captured the rebel steamer Era No. 5, with a cargo of corn. At dark the same evening, the Queen came within range of Fort Taylor. When only 500 yards distant the ram engaged the fort. The third shot from the rebels struck her, crushing through her decks. Our men fired once after this and then deserted the guns. In this emergency Col. Ellet ordered the pilot to back out. While attempting to do so she ran hard aground. The next shot of the rebel fort broke the lever of the engine, and a succeeding one cut her steam pipes in two, completely disabling her. Twenty-six of the 51 white men aboard escaped. The steamer De Soto, which accompanied the ram as tender, was blown up to prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 27.—A special to the Times, from Lexington, Ky., says the excitement has subsided: The Richmond scare was almost without foundation. The fight of Wednesday was more successful than reported. Some 200 prisoners were taken.

Gen. Carter left yesterday with a considerable force for some point unknown. The rebel force beyond Mount Sterling is said to be scattered on its retreat.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Washington special dispatches says:

The President has received dispatches announcing the capture of Fort McAllister, at the mouth of Ogeechee river, Ga., near Savannah, by our iron clads.

The provision for the organization of African troops was striken from the Engineer Bill before it passed the Senate.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Nothing further in regard to the report telegraphed from the Petersburg (Va.) Express of Saturday, about a fight at Vicksburg. It is probably a canard. As a dispatch in the paper of that date must, of course, have had reference to a fight, if any, the day before, and the dispatch from Commodore Porter announcing the capture of the Indianola was dated Feb. 27th, it is fair to presume that if anything of the kind had occurred he would have made some mention of it.

CAIRO, March 4.—Memphis papers of March 2d contain the following in regard to the capture of the Indianola:

It seems she was lying 35 miles below Vicksburg on Tuesday last, when the rams Queen of the West and Webb approached, and an active engagement ensued. The rams had the advantage on their side, the Indianola moving slowly. They butted her broadside and stern, the Indianola changing guns from side to side, but her assailants as quickly gaining the opposite side and butting against her. The coal barges on each side of the Indianola quickly sunk, and at last Capt. Brown announced the ship was sinking, and surrendered. She was ordered ashore and all the crew were taken prisoners but one man, who escaped and made his way to the Federal lines. The action lasted 15 minutes. A flag of truce for the exchange of prisoners reports that the Indianola sunk, but many seem to doubt the truth of this statement, thinking it only a ruse, and that she may yet be used against us. The latest report is, that the Queen is lying under the Confederate batteries at Warrenton.

GREENBACKS.—Upon the petition of H. H. Hartley, Judge McKune, yesterday, issued an alternative writ of mandamus directing the Sheriff to issue to petitioner a deed for certain property purchased at a tax sale. The facts, we understand, are these: the property in question was purchased upwards of six months since, at tax sale, by Eli Mayo, who subsequently assigned his certificate of purchase to Judge Hartley. There was a mortgage on the property in favor of the estate of John Haley, deceased. As neither the mortgagor nor mortgagee had paid the taxes and the property had been sold and the time of redemption was nearly up W. R. Cantwell, administrator said estate, to secure the mortgage, went to the Sheriff a few days since and paid over to him the sum of $190 25 (of which $190 was in greenbacks), as redemption money the same being, nominally, the required amount. Judge Hartley called upon the Sheriff yesterday and presenting his certificate demanded a deed for the property. The Sheriff tendered him the deposit made by Mr. Cantwell, which he refused to accept. The Sheriff declining to execute the deed Judge Hartley filed his petition for a mandamus to compel him to do so. The point at issue is the constitutionality of the law declaring greenbacks a legal tender.—Sacramento Republican.

THE San Francisco Monitor of Saturday last says:

It may not be out of place to bring to mind a circumstance that occurred not long since in the San Francisco Board of Supervisors. The military enrollment of the inhabitants of the city had been handed in to the proper officer, and it appeared one of the members of that body took occasion to examine the lists. He discovered that all the Supervisors of Irish birth were enrolled liable to the draft; but not one of the names of the other members of the Board could be found. How this happened, we cannot say.

HIGH OLD UNION TROOPS.—A letter to the Chicago Tribune gives the following. The regiment all but Company K was disarmed and the men put under arrest:

The one hundred and ninth Regiment was raised, if I mistake not, in Williamson and Johnson counties, and was believed to be full of the Knights of the Golden Circle. It was notoriously pro-slavery—all except one company, made of republicans and war democrats. A vague suspicion pervaded the minds of many officers and soldiers that the one hundred and ninth would not do to "tie to" in an emergency; that it was not "sound corn;" still for a time there was nothing remarkably bad in their behavior. The suspicious circumstance was the fraternity and popularity of the officers and men with the secesh natives—women as well as men. It did not escape observation and remark that the officers spent much of their time in swearing at the abolitionists, catching and returning contrabands of rebels that came within our lines, and talking about "the constitutional rights of our southern brethren, that were being violated by the Lincoln Government." Whenever men talk in that way, it is a sure, unfailing sign that they are half rebels themselves, and care but little for the preservation of the Union.

Things went along in this way until it was discovered that one or more of the officers and a number of the men had deserted to the rebels, taking their arms along with them. Gen. Grant was desirous of knowing to what extent the regiment was rotten, and he was shortly furnished with the desired information. A few days ago a lieutenant of the Seventh Kansas Cavalry, who is about as "sharp as they make 'em," dressed up in the garb of a rebel officer, went into the country at night some eight or ten miles from Holly Springs, and "played off" on the "butternut" natives that he was a captain in the rebel army on a scout, and for other purposes. He quickly gained the confidence of a rebel family; though the old man of the house was reticent at first, he was soon convinced that the captain was "all right on the gose," and swore by Jeff. Davis, when the old fellow unburdened his soul and made the following revelations: The one hundred and ninth was then stationed at Waterford, eight miles south of Holly Springs. The officers and men had told the natives that they were tired of the war, and did not want to see the south whipped, but wished the seceded States to get their independence; that they desired to be taken prisoners, and would surrender at the first opportunity; that they entered the army because they thought they could best serve their secesh friends by joining the army, and, when the time came, desert and take their arms with them. They assured the natives that they were all true southern men except Company K.

ENGLAND BUILDING VESSELS FOR THE REBELS.—A Correspondent in England, writing to the Boston Commercial Bulletin, says:

Maury, whose fellow-passenger I had the honor to be on my voyage over, has recently returned here to Liverpool, from Russia they say, where he went to procure guns for the ships now building here.

There is a Lieut. Latimer, son of Com. Latimer, who died years ago at Pensacola, also Mr. Adger of Charleston, S. C., I believe, who will doubtless go out with these vessels—perhaps both of them with Maury.

I have been through Laird's shipbuilding establishment, and the Englishman who accompanied me, on ascertaining my nationality, was very anxious to impress upon me that the report that the three vessels building were for the rebels was untrue, especially the 3,000 tons steamer which is now ready, and which, it is said, is intended to go to China as a transport; but it is impossible to make our shipmasters or the knowing ones here believe it. They all declare that her number is "293," and that she is to follow the track of the "290." The same is said of the other two vessels, which are rapidly approaching completion. The vessels are all very fine specimens of naval architecture, admirably qualified for the purpose that rumor says they are intended for, the larger one in particular, which will require a full grown man of war to contend with her with any chance of success.

A RELIC.—At the store of H. Wachorst may be seen a snuff box made of Guineagold, and bearing this inscription: "Presented by His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent, K. G., on his Marriage to Her Serene Highness the Princess of Leiningen, to the Chevalier de Schindler, 27th May, 1817." The box is somewhat bruised, and looks as if it had seen service. Of its history since the presentation we know nothing, but there must be some romance connected with an article which starting from so aristocratic an origin has found its way, through strange channels no doubt, to the far off and Democratic land of California.—Bee.

RECEIVER.—Charles A. Beebe has been nominated and confirmed and as Receiver of Public Monies at Los Angeles, California.

IN TIME OF HEALTH

PREPARE FOR SICKNESS.—It is preposterous to think that because we are in health, disease will never overtake us.

How many have gone forth in the morning and returned home to lay down upon beds of sickness for months! We would remind our readers, that, for family medicine nothing can equal SCOVILL'S BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP.

Of Humors it is a sure exterminator.—Scrofula and Cancer, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, are all cured by this magical remedy. REDINGTON & CO., Agents, 416 and 418 Front street, San Francisco. dec6-6m

Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are a most valuable article, especially so at this season of the year, when coughs, colds, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness and Sore Throat are so prevalent. The Troches give sure and almost immediate relief. Sold by all Druggists in the United States, at 25 cents a box. REDINGTON & CO., 416 and 418 Front st., San Francisco, dec6-6m General Agents.

BAKER & HAMILTON, IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN Farming Implements & Machines, J STREET, BETWEEN FRONT AND 2D, Sacramento.

VIZ: Threshing, reaping and mowing machines; horse hay rakes, cast and steel plows, plow castings, cultivators, harrows, harrow teeth, churns, cheese presses, grain cradles, seed sowers, corn planters, corn shellers, hoes, horse hoes, shovels, spades and trowels, garden shears, reels and lines, garden rakes, straw cutters, sugar mills, fan mills, hay rakes, ax-handles, sickles, scythes, snathes, bush scythes, road scrapers, grind stones, wheel barrows, sausage cutters and stuffers, ox yokes and bows, patent bow pins, budding and pruning knives, well wheels and buckets, etc., etc.

PATENT COMBINED GANG PLOW, SEED SOWER AND HARROW. We have purchased the right this great labor-saving implement for the State of California, and are having a number made in the Atlantic States for this market. With this combined Machine one man, with six horses, can do the work of three twelve inch plows, besides sowing the grain, and harrowing it in as he proceeds, thus finishing his work in the best manner possible, without being obliged to travel over the plowed ground. This Machine was very thoroughly tested by the farmers of Santa Clara county, where some eighty are now in use; also, by the Messrs. Hensel & Kethley, of this county, and Messrs. Hoppin Brothers, near Cacheville, Yolo county. It is made very substantial; is not liable to get out of order, and being on large truck wheels, the Gang Plow, Seed Sower and Harrow, runs lighter than three plows would, cutting the same amount of land. We are desirous of having these plows generally introduced throughout the State, and are therefore prepared to offer very favorable inducements to farmers and the trade. The following are some of the names of our customers who have used them for the past two seasons: Sacramento county—Hensel & Kethley, Yolo county—Hoppin Brothers, L M Curtis, Caleb Davis, C Travers, A J Scroggins.
