SPRATT CLAIMS EVIDENCE CRUDE

SAYS CROWN WITNESSES ARE KINDERGARTEN KIDS

Knew John Day Slightly—Thinks Bullock Aggressive and a General Butter-in

Admitting that Dr. Howard mentioned in the evidence the day before was a detective employed by him to look after Bullock, C. J. V. Spratt, cross examined by J. A. Aikman in police court on the charge of having stolen navy stores in his possession, yesterday afternoon said up the prosecution against himself, Houston, Day, and Richards, the other accused, as a kindergarten of boys and mentally defective, saying the whole of the prosecution evidence was, to him, a very crude proposition.

The magistrate asked if witness was referring to the boy Hetheridge, when Spratt replied, "He's in the kindergarten and the Clarks are kindergarten too."

J. A. Aikman remarked that both the Clarks have whiskers and W. C. Moresby retorted: "So have goats."

In his cross-examination, which lasted the whole afternoon, Spratt gave straight denials to every part of Bullock's evidence regarding stolen goods being in possession of the Victoria Machinery depot, and claimed that the undersigned letter for him to write, says Spratt dictated for him to write, and he signed by Bullock because Spratt had not the $150 there at the moment to hand over to him. Mr. Aikman referred to this matter several times and each time the witness answered that Bullock did not sign because the money was not there.

Mr. Aikman finally picked up the letter and asked, "You say the reason Bullock did not sign this letter dated April 18 was that the money was not there for him. If that is so how is it that in the letter there is this condition, 'money to be paid before 11 a. m., April 19th.' If Bullock wrote the letter why should he refuse to sign when he was agreeing in writing to give you till next morning at 11 o'clock 'to make a settlement'?"

There was no direct answer to this question. The witness said he was not president of the Victoria Machinery Depot. His presidency is only for advertisement, and there is no secretary to the company either. Houston and he were managing directors. The shares in the company are held by Mrs. Margaret E. Spratt, 256, C. J. V. Spratt, 49, Albert P. Griffiths, 1, William Houston 29, and Andrew Bechtel 74. The witness said he signed the cheques, which were countersigned by another director, and Charles Savage kept the books. As a director representing the largest shareholder he directed the policy of the works, but had nothing whatever to do with small buying of stores. He only acted as he made. Of the general purchases he had no knowledge whatever. He did not know where the company bought its paint, rubber or candles.

The witness was questioned throughout in regard to John Day, one of the accused. He said he knew Day, slightly, up to April last. Later on, acquaintance became riper, according to the evidence, for when Bullock went to see Spratt and one of the employees said to Spratt: "Bullock has got it all over us through Day." Spratt sent for Day and then Day took Bullock outside and had a conversation. They shortly came into the room again and Day said to Spratt, "everything is all right with Bullock."

candles and other stuff were coming into the works, not to anyone else. The first Spratt knew of irregularities in purchases was on a Saturday morning when Richards and Savage were in his office. "Bullock," said Savage, "has it all over us about something in connection with Day." It would be the 8th or 9th of April. That was about two days before Bullock wrote the undersigned demand. He saw Mr. Newbury and then made enquiries. He had seen Day a week before the customs seizure and Savage's news had startled him. He asked Savage if they had purchased goods from Day and Savage showed witness the invoices, which showed a regular purchase.

"I told Day what I had heard, and am absolutely sure there was no mention of navy goods because Day denied it."

Mr. Aikman—Denied what?

Witness—Whatever Bullock told Richards. Day said he would find out what was meant by it.

Mr. Aikman—What other cause of complaint could be made other than that naval goods had been purchased? How else could Bullock have it on you? How could you send for Day if the only complaint was that you had purchased goods from Day? It must have scared you to death. You haven't told us the cause that would make you realize there was something wrong.

Witness—I can't recall the exact conversation.

Mr. Aikman—There must have been something to wake you up from the lethargy you had been in. Now then, Day came in; what happened?

Witness—I said "Bullock is making charges on these goods." Day said he would go and see about it. He went away and came back with Bullock and Bullock added round with Day, and both said everything was all right. I did not hear the conversation between Bullock and Day. I don't pretend to remember the conversation. I could only give an idea.

Mr. Aikman—Well give it.

Witness—Day assured me everything was all right, and Bullock seemed about the same. That satisfied me that everything was all right. To a certain extent I looked on Day as a responsible man and would have bought goods from him myself.

Mr. Aikman—Then at that time you had not heard you had navy goods in your possession?

Witness—As I told you before I could not remember all conversations. At that time Bullock had made no demand, nor said he would prosecute for false arrest. I heard from his solicitor after that. Bullock told me he had been unable to get anything from Day, and asked what I was going to do about it.

Mr. Aikman—What caused him to mention Day?

Witness—In the police court I told him if there were any favors he could go to Day. Later on, after a meeting on the street between myself and Bullock, the latter came to my office and said he could get nothing from Day, and he had to get money out of this thing. I asked him that it meant, and told him to put it down in writing. I told him it was getting on my nerves. He did not say anything about stolen goods or navy goods, and would not sign the letter because the money was not there.

The witness added that Bullock did not tell him he wanted compensation for arrest nor for a matter of goods bought from Day.

Mr. Aikman—Up till April 11 you had no suspicion that there had been goods coming in from an irregular source?

Witness—The witness replied that he had. Richards had told him.

Mr. Aikman—But Day had straightened it all out. You were not suspicious?

Witness—Yes, I was.

Mr. Aikman—How could you be when you have told us everything was straightened out. On Saturday, April 8, you had not been told you had received naval goods or stolen goods, but Day and Bullock apparently notified you that the goods were all right. What made them explain?

Witness—Day and Bullock conversed, and the explanation I got was quite satisfactory. What Bullock told Richards made me suspicious.

Mr. Aikman—What was that?

Witness—They may have put it in a very much easier way than that.

The witness said the first intimation he had that Bullock wanted "cash money" was when Bullock wrote the unsigned letter. The other time he wanted money as a favor.

The witness said that Dr. Howard had been employed by him through a Seattle detective agency.

Mr. Aikman asked, if witness was innocent, that he allow the books of the depot to be brought into court so that the guilty man could be found and punished.

The witness said he did not claim innocence, but asserted it, and Mr. Taylor said the prosecution could proceed in a regular legal way if it wanted the books.

The witness said that he had stayed at home to escape the worry. People were saying to him that he was going to be arrested. He was not used to being arrested. Bullock had been running round with a fictitious warrant in his pocket, flashing it before people. He was not at the works the time of the seizure, but learned it from Mr. Winiby. The next day he insisted on going to see Mr. Newbury, collector of customs, as he did not understand why the goods were seized. He told Mr. Winiby the firm had proper invoices, and showed the invoice from Day. He had never known Day as a ship-chandler. He knew there was only one John Day in town.

The witness said Mr. Newbury did not give the correct version of the affair in court, and went on: "I told him I could not understand why we were raided. We had invoices, and I asked Newbury why he did not go after the man who sold us the goods? I asked for the name of the informant, and did not get it. I made a hot talk to Mr. Newbury and I think it made him sore, but perhaps he was justified. I took exception of him pleading Bullock alongside me. I had been doing business here a good many years."

The witness later admitted that Mr. Newbury's evidence in court was correct, saying: "He told me there were goods there that needed investigation. I made enquiries and just called in everybody."

Mr. Aikman—You have told us there are 200 men there.

The witness said he did not recall a meeting with Bullock outside the Rock Bay hotel at night. He was still in the witness box when the court adjourned at 4 o'clock until to-day.

Before adjournment the charge against Bullock was read and he was remanded for one week.

GOLDEN STREAM WILL CONTINUE

BRITISH FINANCIERS
HAVE FAITH IN CANADA

Dominion Regarded as Best Field for Investment in the Empire

Vancouver, June 21.—"Canada is now regarded in London as the best field for investments in the British Empire. I am not exaggerating the facts when I state that British Columbia is more in the public eye than any of the other provinces. Money continues to pour into the Dominion at a cumulative rate, and there will be no cessation of the golden stream as long as meritorious propositions continue to be presented. It is now acknowledged by the keenest financial men in London that interest obligations are met with but rare exceptions, and that the investments almost invariably realize handsome profits."

This was the high tribute paid to the Dominion by W. Leonard Palmer, special commissioner of the London Financial News, who is now in Vancouver. Mr. Palmer is touring the country to study every phase of industrial life and to acquaint the British public with the vast resources of the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He reached the Maritime Provinces last March, and has been leisurely travelling west ever since. His contributions now appear in a special Empire edition issued every Thursday, and whose publication was rendered necessary by the increased interest in investments in the overseas dominions. Ninety-five per cent. of its contents relate to Canada, an indication, as Mr. Palmer pointed out, of the transcendent importance attached to everything Canadian.

Mr. Palmer visited the Canadian industrial centres in the east before devoting his attention to the region beyond the Great Lakes. He was deeply impressed with the remarkable prosperity prevailing from one end of the Dominion to the other, and especially with conditions in the prairie provinces. He found much to write about the influx of settlers and the rapid growth of Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary.

He will make a considerable stay on the coast and will study the business outlook here before proceeding to Vancouver Island to study its varied resources and industries. In order to get the facts he will inspect canneries, logging camps, sawmills and coal mines. On his way east he will visit the Okanagan Valley and the Kootenays, as well as Edmonton and Saskatoon.

"There has always been money available in London for sound Canadian investments in the shape of government, railway and municipal loans, but the big movement of money to Canada started eighteen months ago," added the visitor who has a reputation as a brilliant writer with a great grasp of detail.

"Last year there were $375,000,000 of British capital sent over to Canada, and I have reason to believe that the figures for the current year will reach $500,000,000. Up to date the British Isles have invested in Canada the enormous total of $2,190,000,000. On the whole most of the propositions are sound, but there have been a number of glaring instances of over-capitalization. British Columbia has given us some very good things. Canada has developed many shrewd financial men."

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Denver, Colo., June 21.—The trial of Frank H. Henwood of New York, for the killing of George E. Copeland at the Brown Palace hotel in Denver on May 24, began in the east side court here yesterday.

Henwood shot Copeland, whose home was at Victor, Colo., while endeavoring to shoot S. L. Von Phil, the balloonist, whom he also fatally wounded in the same affray. The present trial, however, relates only to the killing of Copeland. The crime was one of the most sensational in the history of Denver, an outcome being the filing of a suit for divorce by John W. Springs, one of the wealthiest citizens of Denver.

A SENSIBLE DRESS FOR SMALL GIRLS

"The Highland Bloomer Dress" is the newest and cleverest idea in children's ready-made dresses. The child simply slips its feet into the bloomers, thrusts its arms into the sleeves, and with the fastening of a few buttons the dressing is done. The little girl can dress herself in a fraction of the time it takes you to do it now. The "Highland Bloomer Dress" opens all the way down the back, permitting it to be laid perfectly flat when ironed. In this dress the child has perfect freedom of movement, perfect protection, and yet looks well dressed all the time.

CANADIAN BOY SCOUTS POPULAR

Will Be Given Place of Honor at Review by the King on July 4

London, June 21.—Canada is to-day given a new place in London's gaze and a thronged streets, thanks to the high spirits and organized voices of the Canadian Boy Scouts as they pass from thoroughfare to thoroughfare in the big sightseeing brakes. This morning as they came opposite Westminster Abbey, a whole hundred of them suddenly burst out with ear-piercing yells: "Keep her low, keep her, keep her low; let her go; C-A-N-A-D-A; Slus-boon lah; C-A-N-A-D-A; Here, we are, Rah, Rah Rah."

The boys are under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Minden Cole of Montreal, and are camped amid picturesque rural surroundings. They are in the pink of condition and delighted with the arrangements for their comfort. Besides taking part in the coronation procession with the English Scouts they will line up at Constitution Hill. A long round of sight-seeing lies before them after the coronation, the chief event being the inspection of the Boy Scouts by the King in Windsor park on July 4. About 20,000 boys will be inspected by His Majesty. The Canadian contingent will occupy the post of honor on the right of the first division.

The Canadian boys were inspected yesterday by Lieut.-General Sir R. Baden-Powell, chief of the Boy Scout movement, who expressed his pride in the growth of the Canadian movement and the excellent representation before him.

THE DAILY TIMES

BORDEN'S APPEAL.

It must have been with a painful sense of disappointment that Conservatives throughout Canada read the report of Mr. R. L. Borden's first meeting at Winnipeg commencing his tour of the central provinces.

Apartment from his promise to "fight reciprocity to the bitter end," which he seems determined to carry out, there is nothing of a distinctive policy announced in his address.

As for the appointment of a permanent tariff commission, the promise comes too late in the day. With the reciprocity issue squarely before the people, it must now be decided, for or against, and the suggestion of a commission so indefinite as a tariff commission is not a fair facing of the question.

No doubt it was with some such faint purpose that the people of Brandon yesterday afternoon put before Mr. Borden a straight pledge for a 50 per cent. preference in favor of British trade.

It may be noted that Sir John Thompson afterward became Canada's premier, and so far as is known he never departed from the views he held at the time he issued the address.

Here's a conundrum: In Winnipeg, also Victoria. "If an equal number of men are engaged tearing up and laying down asphalt pavements, how much pavement extension will be accomplished at the end of a paving season?"

place, and he bows to the will of the interests.

While it is not fair to accept abbreviated telegraph reports of Mr. Borden's speeches at Winnipeg or Brandon, it may safely be assumed that no good feature of either was neglected in these reports telegraphed to Conservative papers. Read as they appear in the local organ of the Conservative party, they are a mingled mass of disappointment and subtlety.

Mr. Borden must not forget that ten years ago when Liberals uttered these sentiments they were vehemently denied by his Conservative predecessors. He must not forget that the few Liberals who took issue with the government at that time were called harsh names by the same men who are today denouncing Hon. Mr. Fielding and the government for reasonable actions.

Neither must Mr. Borden be allowed to forget that the last message that Sir John A. Macdonald sent to the Governor-General of Canada expressed a hope that reciprocity might be amicably achieved.

Perhaps Mr. Borden will remember a Canadian statesman named Sir John Thompson. It will be conceded that Sir John was, next to Sir John A. Macdonald, the most brilliant Conservative statesman that Canada has known since confederation.

As for the latter, the plans respecting the Hudson's Bay railway are yet nebulous, and Mr. Borden may or may not have announced something contemplated by the present government.

"To the Electors of the County of Antigonish: Gentlemen.—At the election which will take place on the 5th day of March, I will be a candidate for re-election as a member of the House of Commons for the county of Antigonish.

"The Government of which I am a member is appealing to the country with a policy which we believe will be heartily endorsed by a great majority of the electors. WE HAVE MADE TO THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES, THROUGH THE GOVERNMENT OF GREAT BRITAIN, PROPOSALS FOR RECIPROcity IN TRADE, WHICH WE HAVE GOOD REASON TO BELIEVE WILL RESULT IN AN ARRANGEMENT BY WHICH THE MARKETS OF THE UNITED STATES WILL BE OPENED TO THE PRODUCTS WHICH OUR PEOPLE DESIRE MOST TO SEND THERE.

"I respectfully ask your support and votes, and I pledge myself to serve the best interests of the country, if I should be honored by a renewal of the confidence which was reposed in me at the two last elections and for which I shall be forever grateful. I remain, gentlemen, your obedient servant.

"JOHN S. D. THOMPSON, Antigonish, Feb. 24, 1891." It may be noted that Sir John Thompson afterward became Canada's premier, and so far as is known he never departed from the views he held at the time he issued the address.

Here's a conundrum: In Winnipeg, also Victoria. "If an equal number of men are engaged tearing up and laying down asphalt pavements, how much pavement extension will be accomplished at the end of a paving season?"

complished at the end of a paving season?"

The story of the two Kansas hunters coming to hunt British Columbia bears with bows and arrows reminds us of Hon. Richard McBride going to hunt a knighthood with an address of loyalty from Victorians in his hip pocket.

If the Scottish women were sympathizers with the suffragette movement in the United Kingdom we might have a clue to the large preponderance of females over males born during the last census period. As it is we are still wondering.

The Winnipeg Tribune (Ind.) says it's just as certain as the sun shines that if the people win out on reciprocity, they will also secure an increase in the preference to Britain. The education along lines of tariff reform, once fairly started, can't be stopped.

The Colonist complains that Liberal speakers in the House at Ottawa obey the party whip, citing Mr. Ralph Smith, M. P., as a specific instance. Why does not the morning paper candidly tell its readers that the Conservative speakers obey a whip who is not even a member of the House? Of two evils if we must have one let us choose the lesser.

In the approaching confetti fight which will be an indispensable feature of events to-morrow, the police should promptly arrest any person seen stooping to grasp up confetti from the streets and pavements to be thrown into the faces of others. No objection should be taken to recovering confetti for personal eating purposes, but for purpose of war or to aid billingsgate it should be considered contraband.

There will be a hundred and seventy British war craft assembled at Spit-head for the coronation review on June 24, says the Montreal Gazette. Ten of them will be classed as "Dreadnaughts," and all will be modern and efficient. To secure such a gathering, moreover, it will not be necessary to call in from their stations any of the ships on foreign duty. When the meaning of this is considered, either of itself or in comparison with what other countries can do, an appreciation can be had of why British naval scares do not last long.

"I would think little of my loyalty to the British Crown and the British Empire, if it depended on tariff schedules. Those who think the national spirit of Canada is such a poor and uncertain thing, that her existence as a nation would be imperilled by an increase of trade with the United States, certainly do not know her. There is no part of the British Empire in which there is truer loyalty than in Canada, and she can be neither bought nor sold."

And now the thundering echoes of the protests against the Ne Temere decree which made the vaulted walkway ring are dying away. The brief thrill of a thrilling subject for resolution and sermon are over; it was soon done. Columns of sensational and hortatory declarations have been spoken, printed and read and the universe has not ever suffered a jolt. Things will go on just the same. People will love and choose, marry and divorce, be happy or sorrowfully sad, just as of yore. Probably the Archbishop who proclaimed the decree is sorry he did. The judge who annulled the Hebert marriage says the law was misunderstood and is very limited in its application. A great many people feel better and probably none very much worse. So, "What's the use?"

"Your obedient servant, JOHN S. D. THOMPSON, Antigonish, Feb. 24, 1891." It may be noted that Sir John Thompson afterward became Canada's premier, and so far as is known he never departed from the views he held at the time he issued the address.

Here's a conundrum: In Winnipeg, also Victoria. "If an equal number of men are engaged tearing up and laying down asphalt pavements, how much pavement extension will be accomplished at the end of a paving season?"

David Spencer, Limited

The necessary money for the comfort station, was illegal. He contended, however, that the costs had held that the council was the collective trustee for the people and that if it passed a resolution calling for a by-law, and the people passed that by-law, it was legal in so far as it related to civic rights. Of course the council had no right to pass a by-law to commit a nuisance. Nothing could give them the power to do that. But in the present case against what had the alleged nuisance been committed? The building in question was not erected and therefore he failed to see how anything could be regarded as a nuisance against it. Once the building was erected it would be time enough to complain of nuisances, but in the meantime he could not see wherein lay the case of his opponents. Once the building was erected it would be possible to ascertain whether or not the comfort station was detrimental to its interests, and even then he contended that the proper course to adopt in order to have such a nuisance removed was by indictment and not by injunction. It may be recalled that some time ago the British Canadian Securities entered a protest against the city in erecting a comfort station near the proposed building. At that time an effort was made to come to an amicable settlement of the dispute, but the present case proves the futility of that attempt. The city offered to amend its plans so that the entrance to the comfort station would not face the new building, but the plaintiffs felt that the presence of the station in the vicinity at all would be detrimental to the amenity of their building, and consequently took action to restrain the city from proceeding with its erection.

A LEGAL RIDDLE AWAITS SOLUTION

Can a Nuisance Be Committed Against Something That Does Not Exist?

Is it possible to commit a nuisance upon something that does not exist? That is one of the questions which Mr. Justice Gregory has to decide in the case of British Canadian Securities Ltd., versus the city, wherein the latter is charged with erecting a comfort station in such proximity to the proposed building of the Dominion Trust company—which the plaintiff company is having erected—as to be detrimental to its interests. At the present time the building of the Dominion Trust company does not exist, and the comfort station exists only in part, and as may be known, the scene of both is near the Causeway in a prominent part of the city. In bringing the action the plaintiffs claim that the city has no legal right to build the comfort station where it is. City solicitor McDiarmid appeared for the city and M. B. Jackson and H. C. Hamilton represented the plaintiff company. In framing his argument the city solicitor stated that the gist of his opponents' case was that the by-law authorising the erection of the comfort station, or rather the raising of

WORK OF WOMEN IN TEMPERANCE REFORM

Sunday School Work Among Children as Contrasted With Loyal Legion Agency

On resuming its sitting yesterday afternoon the W. C. T. U. convention was addressed by Mrs. M. A. Cunningham, New Westminster, provincial recording secretary. She praised the work of Mrs. Livingstone, the organizing secretary, and told of the growth of the society, which now numbered more than 1346 members in its 44 unions. She exhorted the delegates to be true to their cause and not to allow themselves to become lax and half-hearted in their work. She strongly advocated revival work among the children. Experience showed that the Sunday schools were not as effective as the Loyal Legions in teaching temperance, and it was the young who most needed instruction of this kind. She thought it would be well to introduce Biblical instruction into schools.

The report was listened to with great attention and many questions were asked at the close. Rev. T. E. Holling was called on to give the annual address to the Union in place of the president, who asked to be excused. He considered that the work of women was most important. The British women's conference, which had given common equal standing with men. Much had been done in the war against intemperance but much remained undone as yet. He wished the Union Godspeed in its campaign for good.

The venerable Dr. Reid briefly addressed the delegates, encouraging them and assuring them that their efforts were being appreciated. He prayed God to bless and prosper the movement.

Before presenting her annual report, Mrs. Gordon Grant, the treasurer, made a motion that those who had been members of the W. C. T. U. twenty-eight years ago, on the visit of Frances Willard, should be made life members of the provincial body. She did not know how many there remained, but Mrs. David Spencer and Mrs. Teague were present in the convention. The motion carried, and to-day the presentations will be made. The total receipts for this year were $7,589.18, and the balance on hand is $3,692.85.

Mrs. Thompson's report on moral education was read by Mrs. Livingstone. Mrs. Gordon Grant announced that Mrs. Lashley Hall was to be made organizer for and would get signatures to a monster petition in favor of woman suffrage, which would be presented to the legislature at its next session. A message from the Political Equality League was read by Miss Frances Grant. The meeting adjourned and a visit was paid to the mission on Store street. At noon the ladies of the Congregational church served lunch for the visitors.

ENGLE PUSHES HOME TEAM DOWN FURTHER

New Shortstop Jacobs Makes Bungle—Spiesman's Good Pegging Yesterday

By tightening in the pinches and never allowing more than one hit in an inning in yesterday's game, old George Engle pushed the Islanders a little further down into the cellar. Furchner was on the slab for Victoria, and although his pitching was good in the earlier part of the game, infield errors gave the Beavers a substantial lead. By getting to Furchner for four bingles in the ninth, the latter increased their lead by two, making the score 7 to 1.

Again Victoria's weak spots were evident. Jacobs, a new man from the Chicago City league, was used at short, and while he handles himself like a ball player and picks the ball up nicely, he certainly has not had enough experience to shove into a game at a moment's notice without more than enough time to warm-up. His over-anxiousness to make good started Vancouver off, and put yesterday's game "on the blink" as far as excitement goes. When his ump, Edges, called him in the second inning after Keilar had injured his hand, taking a throw from Spiesman and, drawn, "Lades and gentlemen, Jacobs will now play," he was evidently not quite sure who he himself. The Chicagoan got a chance to show his worth in the next inning and he fell down horribly. Sharnweber and Lewis hit safely and Engle sacrificed them along. Furchner then grounded to Jacobs, and the latter fielded the ball perfectly, but in his anxiety to find a place in the hearts of the fans threw to Spiesman and two runs came. Harrison then dusted home on Adams' two-bagger.

In their turn to bat the Islanders came back with one as a result of two infield errors and a hit by Capt. Raymer. For three innings there was nothing doing, Engle causing the batters, in particular Goodman and Householder, to pop up flies whenever chance looked good for a tie, and Furchner, with good, sound pitching, holding the Beavers down to one swat. In the seventh, on a couple of singles and McMurdo's error, the Beavers counted one, and in the eighth added another. Charley Swain, the easy mark of Monday, slamming the ball over the fence, Furchner blew up in the ninth, and the visitors, by securing four successive hits, scored two.

Victoria did have a change on several occasions, largely owing to Million, who got on bases three times out of the four he came to bat, but, as was mentioned, the best two of the heaviest hitters, Goodman and Householder, could do was to lift the ball into one of the infielders' hands.

One great improvement on Monday's game was the throwing of Spiesman, who, by pegging two runners at second and another at third in the first three innings, effectually cured Vancouver's rampant attack of the base stealing craze.

Charley Swain's work was of the sensational variety all through the game. Not only did he pound out three hits, one of them a homer, but also made a couple of beautiful catches, one of them a long foul off McMurdo's bat, which seemed impossible for anyone, and especially a man of Swain's dimensions, to get.

MCAMMENT BATTED HARD. Portland, Ore., June 20.—Portland batted both of Tacoma's pitchers all over the lot to-day. McAmment lasted until the seventh, when he was hauled out after Portland had but one run across the plate. With the bases full the locals touched up Hall and gathered in four runs before the inning closed. Previously, in the first three innings, Portland had acquired four runs. Tacoma lambasted Jensen up to the eighth, but a little less opportunely than Portland. Both teams piled up choice assortments of errors, but only one of them figured in the score.

The games to-morrow start at 10:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. Thomas will be used in one and it is just possible that Williams may be given a try-out in the other.

A meeting of the Lacrosse Association has been called for to-night in the Victoria Sporting Goods store for the purpose of discussing special business and, if possible, to find a means of arousing interest in the intermediate league series.

Battling Nelson, former lightweight champion, arrived in Seattle yesterday morning en route to Vancouver, B. C., where he will box some exhibition bouts in a few days.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT OAK BAY SCHOOL

Coronation Programme at the Same Time—Dean Doull's Address—Promotion List

The combined closing and coronation day exercises of the Oak Bay school were held this morning in the school assembly room, and although the programme was of necessity short, owing to the fact that the teachers have been too busy of late to attend to much else besides the examinations, it was well carried out and was enjoyed by all those present, among whom were a great many of the parents.

The opening address was made by Very Rev. Dean Doull, who, after remarking on the brightness of the children and complimenting them on their work, took occasion to protest against Dr. Matthew's address last night, in which the Seattle divine expressed the hope that some day the Stars and Stripes would fly over all America.

Would You Invest $10 Provided the Profit was $15 in Five Days?

AMPLE SECURITY AND SUBSTANTIAL GUARANTEE

Fifty readers of this paper may apply with $10 each for an interest in a proposition which will give a profit of $15 on the cash investment on June 27.

Remember, the number is limited to fifty, and the application must be received by T. R. Morrow, Trustee, on or before 10 p.m. June 26th. This is not a gamble, a lottery, or a horse race—you take absolutely no chance whatever as to the profits that accrue from your investment, since the price of shares offered by Trustee T. R. Morrow, in the British Pacific Coal company is 35 cents per share.

The difference between the price is 15 cents per share and represents a profit of 15 cents to the purchaser of shares at 35 cents.

No application is received for less than 100 shares at 35 cents, which shares may be purchased on terms by paying 10 cents per share with application and the remainder in three monthly instalments.

Therefore, if you send in $10 cash you secure 100 shares and your profit on Tuesday morning, June 27th, is $15 through the advance in price.

Long before you make your next payment these shares will be selling at 75 cents or $1 per share.

There will surely be a number of disappointed persons on June 27th, since but fifty have the opportunity of buying in at 35 cents per share.

Men who know, say that the British Pacific Coal Company's property is destined to be one of the greatest coal mines in Canada.

The superintendent was in the city yesterday making a report on the property prior to returning to the mines with the engineer and a full complement of men for permanent work.

He emphatically states that the shares should be selling at $2 each instead of 35 cents and that he can ship coal into Victoria and Vancouver cities by the end of October and that the coal being anthracite, carrying twice the heat value of bituminous coal, will establish an innovation in the fuel markets of the Pacific coast.

Anthracite coal burns twice as long as bituminous, it does not cost as much to mine and no more for transportation and will bring twice the price on the open market.

This means, therefore, that the anthracite coal will control the fuel market.

The holdings of the British Pacific Coal Co. embrace practically all of the workable anthracite coal lands in the western portion of the North American continent.

The men who have investigated the British Pacific Coal company's properties have invariably purchased large blocks of shares. Why? Because they see the merit of the proposition.

Six eminent engineers, coal experts with national reputations, have at different times inspected and most thoroughly reported upon the property of the British Pacific Coal company and to a man say that it is unquestionably the richest, and will prove one of the most profitable coal properties on the continent, the coal of which equals in quality and quantity the great anthracite coal mines of Pennsylvania.

Anthracite coal means a great deal to the shipping interests, since but one-half of the space now occupied in bunkers by bituminous coal will be required when anthracite coal is used as fuel.

This means more space for freight, a lower rate of insurance, half the stoking, consequently a great deal more profit to the shipowners, or, if the bunkers of the steamer be filled with anthracite, can go twice as far without coaling as it could when they will be filled with bituminous.

Search where you will throughout the civilized world, and you will invariably find that the corporations and institutions that have made the greatest profit to their shareholders are those who control the price and the quality of the various commodities handled or manufactured by them.

Such will be the situation produced by the company controlling the anthracite coal market on the Pacific coast.

Briefly the proposition is: 8,320 acres of anthracite coal land on Skidegate Inlet, Graham Island, 80 miles from Prince Rupert city, the Pacific terminus of what is destined to be the greatest railway system in the world, the Grand Trunk Pacific.

At Prince Rupert, in less than 18 months time, we will find a great demand for fuel. This demand must be supplied from near by mines and those of the British Pacific Coal Company are the nearest, and, since the property fronts on salt water, the coal may be literally shovelled from the mine's mouth into the bunkers of the barges, and towed in a few hours to Prince Rupert, across the strait.

Several hundred business and professional men and capitalists resident throughout Canada, more particularly located in the western provinces, have joined together in the organization of the British Pacific Coal company, with a view to develop these large areas of anthracite coal land. The limited number of shares available at 35 cents represents to you, the reader, a ground floor proposition.

If you are a resident outside the City of Victoria, wire your reservations of shares or call at the Office of the Trustee, T. R. Morrow, 604 Broughton Street, Victoria, B. C., which is open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily

MEXICAN LYNCHED BY MOB IN TEXAS

Taken From Jail and Hanged After Murder of Garage Owner

Thorndale, Texas, June 21.—The whittling of a stick led to the killing of Charles Zeitzone, a garage owner, and the lynching of a Mexican youth.

The Mexican, aged about 35 years, whose name has not been learned, was sitting on the sidewalk in front of Zeitzone's garage last night, industriously using his pocket knife to make a pile of shavings.

Zeitzone protested against the littering up of the entrance to his place of business and ordered the youth to stop. This, according to bystanders, angered the Mexican, and he struck Zeitzone through the heart.

Shortly after midnight a mob of about 100 men gathered, stormed the prison and secured the Mexican with little difficulty.

Some of the party went for ropes, but others in the crowd were impatient and held up a Mexican truck farmer, who was driving a load of watermelons to market.

The team was unhitched and the four trace chains fastened together. One end of the chain was fastened about the neck of the youth and another boy climbed a telephone pole, throwing the free end over a beam.

WHALING BEGINNING ON WASHINGTON COAST

First Steamer Left for Aberdeen To-day—Good Catches Made on West Coast

The steam whaler Paterson, built at the Moran yards, Seattle, called at the outer wharf last night. This morning she proceeded to the whaling station at Aberdeen, Wash., now ready for operations, from which she will work. The Moran, a second vessel, will pass out of Friday.

The two steamers which will, of course, be operated under the United States flag, are oil burners and are splendid vessels. They are 35 feet long and 18 feet beam.

The station at Aberdeen is the property of the American Pacific Whaling company, incorporated in Washington State, with members of the Canadian Northern Pacific Fisheries company as the chief stockholders.

The steamer British Columbia returned from Kyequot yesterday with a cargo of whale products. The reports she brought are of good catches, the Orion having taken 107 whales since the season began.

At Rose Harbor the record catch is 109 whales for one steamer and at Kyequot 40, where a number of sperm whales have been captured. The Sechart station has handled 286 whales this season.

FRISCO CHARTERS.

Market is Steady At Prevailing Prices—Business Plentiful.

San Francisco, Cal., June 21.—The barquentine John Palmer, here from Australia with coal, was chartered today by W. R. Grace & Co., to load lumber on Gray's Harbor for Callao. The rate was not announced.

The British steamer Hartland, 3,100 net tons, has been chartered by Evans, Coleman & Evans to load at New York for Vancouver, B. C.

Brokers report the coastwise charter market steady, with nearly all steam schooners on the coast finding plenty of business at the prevailing rates of $4 to this port and $4.50 to San Pedro.

The Standard Oil tanker Niagara arrived from Shanghai yesterday to load a return cargo of refined oil.

The Bates and Chesbrook steamer Navajo arrived from Balboa with Newark freight.

The torpedo boats Hull and Hopkins arrived from San Diego.

The only departures of note were the Matson liner Lurline for Honolulu, the Pacific Col. E. L. Drake for the Sound.

Harold H. Ehey agent of the Cosmos line, and Harry Evans of E. C. Evans and Sons, returned yesterday from a pleasure trip to the Sound.

One hundred and forty-five days out from Hamburg, via other continental ports and the west coast, the German steamer Scraps, Capt. Welshed, of the Cosmos fleet, has arrived in port. She brought five passengers who boarded the steamer at various points along the lower coast.

The Scraps, which has been here before on the Cosmos line west coast service, had a good voyage across the Atlantic and through the straits of Magellan. She made the customary stops in South and Central America, handling cargoes at different ports.

The steamer brought 4,600 tons of nitrate, coffee and general merchandise for San Francisco.

Among the passengers were Vice-Admiral Truppel, late governor of the German possession of Kiaochow, who is on his way home with his family from the colony.

FABRICS OF OCEAN LINERS.

Frame Work Compared With That Of Skyscrapers—Steel Makes It Possible.

While the landsman is astonished at the enormous length and bulk of the great modern liner, these skyscrapers of the high seas are even more remarkable for the ingenuity shown in the construction below decks. The average traveller, carried swiftly over sea amid all the luxuries of a palatial hotel, does not realize how complicated is the mighty fabric about him.

The parallel between the modern ocean liner and skyscraper is much closer than might be imagined. Both have been made possible by the use of skeleton steel construction. The limit in the height of buildings of stone or brick was reached years ago, when it was found impossible to carry such structures higher without increasing the thickness of their walls and supports to such an extent as to make it commercially impossible. Steel construction made it possible to raise the skyscraper indefinitely without sacrificing floor space. The problem of the great ocean liner is even more complicated. It must be built larger than any skyscraper yet constructed, and it is subject to many violent strains. A ship built of wood, like the skyscraper of solid masonry, would require a hull and interior bracing of such thickness that there would be little space available for the machinery or cabin accommodation.

In the hands of a skillful marine architect much more has been accomplished with steel construction than the mere economy of space. The safety of vessels at sea has been enormously increased, until, in the highest type of modern ocean liners, the element of danger is virtually eliminated. The marvelous ingenuity displayed throughout this great fabric of steel in guarding against every possible contingency of the sea, comes to the average landsman as a surprise. The complicated machinery for safeguarding the ship is practically automatic. The control of the entire ship from a central station on the bridge of the liner has recently been brought to absolute perfection. The safety devices of the modern ships act even more quickly than the telephone. The captain on the bridge of an ocean liner, who brings a great keyboard which shortens the uttermost parts of the ship under instant control.

CHOLERA ON LINER.

New York, June 21.—Two cases of cholera have been discovered among the crew of the steamer Duca degli Abruzzi, from Genoa, Naples and Madeira. Both patients were taken to the pest house on Swinburne Island and all the steerage passengers will be detained at Hoffman Island for observation until the quarantine service officers are positive that no more cases are likely to appear.

In an intermediate ball game last night between the Boscon Hill and Richmond teams the former were victorious by a score of 20 to 16 runs. The contest was featured by five home runs. P. O'Rourke and Gardner were the battery for the victors, while Laing and Meldrum pitched and caught for the Strathconas. The Hills are leading, as a result of this arrangement. In the race for the local championship.

HONOR PAID TO LATE AGENT OF MARINE DEPT.

Captain Gaudin Receives Valuable Presentation From Former Colleagues

A pleasing ceremony was enacted this morning in the marine and fisheries local office on Wharf street, when Captain James Gaudin, recently retired from the marine and fisheries department agency here, was presented with valuable tokens of the esteem of his colleagues on the occasion of his retirement after 20 years of service in the department. The presentation consisted of a combination apparatus in silver combining a watch, an aneroid barometer, a thermometer, and a compass. The first three pieces were in the form of a ship's light, and the compass rested above. In addition to this valuable and interesting present the captain was made the recipient of a beautiful case of pipes and a capacious tobacco jar.

The presentation was made in the office by J. A. Thompson, the senior inspector, in the presence of the entire staff. In addition to paying a personal tribute to the retiring agent the inspector read and presented him with the following address:

"Sir: We, the undersigned officers and staff of the marine department in Victoria, B. C., take great pleasure in presenting you with these tokens, which can, however, but feebly express the esteem and appreciation which we feel towards you. During the twenty odd years that you have been connected with the service you have acted in so fair and friendly a manner as to win the affection of all.

"It is with sincere regret to us, your late co-workers, that your new duties must necessarily interrupt our business relations, but we are gratified to know that our present friendly, personal relations cannot be changed.

"We sincerely wish that success will attend you in your new duties, and that you will long be spared to your family, your friends and us."

Captain Gaudin suitably replied, expressing his regret that his health had compelled him to give up his duties, thanking the staff for all their kindness towards him and assuring them that he would ever treasure the tokens of their regard.

MARINE NOTES

The Allan Line steamship Corinthian, from London and Havre, arrived at Montreal yesterday.

The steamer Oswestry, bound out from Portland with lumber, passed out to the bunkers to coal yesterday afternoon.

H. M. C. S. Rainbow returned from the coast yesterday and is lying off the outer wharf until after she has fired the salute at noon to-morrow in connection with the coronation festivities.

The little steamer Celtic cleared from Johnson's wharf, Vancouver, on Monday on her first trip to Tacoma for the new Tacoma-Vancouver service. She returns from the American port on Thursday and sails again the same day. From that date she will make semi-weekly trips on the run Tuesdays and Thursdays.

After completing the discharge of her cargo of British-Guiana sugar at the refinery next Friday, the steamship Ethelwolf will clear from Vancouver for Port Land, where she will load a cargo for South Africa. When she sails from the Oregon port there will be three vessels on route from Puget Sound to Africa—the ships Hill and Freda Main taking shipments of lumber to Delagoa Bay and Cape Town, respectively.

In the face of a strong charter market, which gives every promise of stiffening, rather than weakening, the Portland Flouring Mills Company is assembling tonnage for the 1911-12 wheat season, and has a total of five ships fixed, the last having been taken yesterday for October or November loading. She is the British barque Anna, which will bring general cargo from Europe. The other vessels are the Hans, Baramba, Lablanche and Dione.

A new mark for motor boat enthusiasts has been set by the crew of the tiny four-ton launch, J. W. Dixie, which arrived at Port Townsend on Sunday from South Bend, Willaga Harbor, after a run of only twenty-four hours from that port to Cape Plattery, a distance of 123 miles in an open sea, and along one of the most sheltered and dangerous coasts in the world. Fair weather with light southwest winds were the good fortune of Capt. Henry Larsen and Mate A. Riddell, who composed the crew, and the roughest going they had was off Dunegness, where they anchored last night for a snooze after thirty-six hours on duty. The Dixie is a San Francisco built launch, twenty-five feet over all, with a 15-horse-power engine. She is on her way to Vancouver, B. C., where she will be delivered to her new owners, a syndicate of prospectors and timber cruisers, who bought her at South Bend for use on the British Columbia coast. The launch went to Port Townsend for clearance papers.

Friday morning J. N. Harvey, Ltd., start their crowning sale of clothing, hats and furnishings. This is the final clearance of the B. Williams & Co.'s stock. Reducible low prices prevail. J. N. Harvey, Ltd., successors to B. Williams & Co., 614-616 Yates street, Victoria.

MAD DOG ON BEACH.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 21.—Six men saved a number of women and children from being bitten by a mad dog on the beach yesterday by tossing handfuls of sand into the eyes of the animal, blinding it temporarily and permitting all to escape. A policeman killed the dog with two shots.

OPIMUM SMUGGLER IS UNDER ARREST

Taken Into Custody at Seattle—Sixteen Tins of Drug Seized

Seattle, Wash., June 21.—One of the cleverest captures of an opium smuggler since the establishment of the department of customs collection in Seattle was made this morning by Frank P. Loftus, chief customs inspector, and Inspector Frank Chesnut, when they arrested Sam Spevak, formerly a tailor of 721 Madison street, as he walked down the gang plank of the steamship Princess Victoria with sixteen, five-tin tins of smoking opium concealed under his garments.

Upon the arrival of the Princess Victoria from Vancouver Inspectors Loftus and Chesnut were busy on the dock examining the hand baggage of the incoming travellers, when Loftus happened to look at the crowded gang plank and sighted Spevak. The tailor looked unusually rosy about the upper portion of his anatomy for the size of his legs and Loftus' suspicions were aroused.

He directed Chesnut to hold the man and examine him. As Chesnut began his search his hands encountered hard, sharp corners under Spevak's coats, and Spevak was taken on board the ship for a more thorough examination.

After he had peeled off his outer garments an "opium vest" which fitted the body was discovered in which the sixteen cans of opium were secreted. A further search of his clothing disclosed a letter written in Chinese from a Chinese merchant in Vancouver, B. C., to a Chinese merchant in the United States and which stated that "the bearer, Spevak, is a gentleman of honor and perfectly reliable to deal with in all opium transactions."

Spevak declares that this is the first time he ever smuggled opium. He said: "A man comes by my place of business and says: 'Why you work so hard for so little money? I show you how you make dollars as easily as dimes.' Then he told me about the opium and I sold out to my partner and went to Vancouver after the opium."

Spevak was bound over to await the action of the federal grand jury. The opium found on his person is valued at $400.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 9 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for high tide serve to distinguish high water from low water.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, above the average level of the lowest low water in each month of the year. This level is half a foot lower than the datum to which the soundings on the Admiralty chart of Victoria are reduced.

The Evening Chit-Chat By Ruth Cameron

I am perpetually urged by correspondents to write on matters of etiquette. Now, I can't write on the fine points and elaborate distinctions, because I do not know them well enough. I'm just a plain person. You'll have to go to the etiquette books for that. But from what I have seen of the manners of the younger generation, it seems to me that a few reminders of the "do's and don'ts" of everyday politeness—those things which everybody knows and yet which almost everybody apparently forgets occasionally—would not come amiss. I'll give the men their dose first, because I honestly think no feminine prejudice, truly—that they need it most. A Few Etiquette "Do's and Don'ts" for the Masculine Sex. Never smoke when on the street with a woman. Never smoke when in the room with women, no matter how well you know them, without asking their permission. When you are smoking, never talk with your pipe between your teeth. Always remove it before speaking. Always remove your hat in an elevator where there are women. Yes, I know that an elevator is not so very different from a street car, and men keep their hats on there, and I know that women's hats often annoy you more than yours possibly can them. I have been informed of these and all the other arguments on the subject before. But you see, I didn't establish the custom. Convention did that and she still favors it. Never just touch your hat. The true gentleman always lifts it well off his head. Never take a woman's arm in the street. If you wish to assist her you should offer her your arm, but that is not customary except at night or if she is aged or infirm. When you are with a woman always get off a car before her, so that you may help her off. Never clean your nails or pick your teeth in the presence of your intimate friends any more than you would in public. It is just as unpleasant to them to have to see you as to the general public, and surely you owe them as much consideration. (Will the people who think that warning is not needed anyway please watch and see how many really decent looking men they see offending that way.) Always rise when a woman enters the room where you are calling and remain standing until she is seated. In the theatre if an usher helps you find the seat, let the lady precede you. Otherwise you precede her. Don't sit in a street car with your feet stretched out in front of you. These people will be apt to tumble over them. That is selfish and dangerous, as well as ill bred. At the table always remain standing behind your chair until your hostess is seated. I think it is a charming bit of domestic ceremony when this custom is carried out in the home circle and the father and children remain standing until the mother is seated. There, I guess that's enough for one day. The ladies shall have their turn later. Please excuse this reversal of the conventional order of things. I explained the reason for it above. By the way, here's a suggestion for the feminine contingent. If "himself" offends in any of these particulars and you don't quite like to speak about it openly, why not clip this and mail it to him. A newspaper clipping to the wise is sufficient. Ruth Cameron

WILL RETIRE TO PRIVATE LIFE.
Mexico City, June 21.—Needless of all rumors that he would be arrested and court-martialed, General Emiliano Zapata, commander of the revolutionary forces in the state of Morelos, yesterday drove a big automobile into the capital and placed himself at the disposal of Francisco I. Madero. After a conference between the two of not more than twenty minutes, he was free to return immediately to Cuernavaca.
In the eyes of the former leader of the revolution, Zapata has succeeded in freeing himself from the stigma of insurrection, but nevertheless citizens of Morelos who had protested against his retention as commander of the troops gained their point. The announcement was made by Madero himself that within two or three days Zapata would retire to private life.

Canadian Officers Are Elaborately Decorated—Crowds in Festive Mood

London, June 21.—London is the mecca of sight-seers. As the evening comes on it begins to look like Mafeking night, without, however, the rowdiness of that festival. All day long a stream of humanity flowed steadily through the streets to Hyde Park to see the decorations and the waving flags and empty stands. At night the crowds thickened, swarming so thickly over the roadway as to hold up thousands of cabs, hacks, etc., in which men, women and children in every social grade have come in from London suburbs and provinces to see the metropolis in its marvellous new garb.
Trafalgar Square is the favorite gathering place of sight-seers. The handsome offices of the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk, Allan line and Canadian government immigration department are especially gay. On the government buildings a message on a background of royal purple reads: "Canada greets her King and Queen."
A drop curtain represents a Canadian farmer with a team and the words: "The makers of Canada greet their King and Queen." A second drop curtain bears a wheat sheaf with a Union Jack. Outside, the building has an attractive electric light effect, with a maple leaf as the principal design, this changes periodically and automatically into a beaver.
A characteristic feature of the Canadian Pacific design is a row of cow catchers above the ground floor, and facing the higher story is a row of moose heads, while the clock tower is surmounted by a huge crown which attracts the eyes of all travellers. Trafalgar Square, the coat of arms of the provinces are introduced, and there is also a huge painting, of a panoramic view of Canada from east to west, 33 feet wide. At night the whole of the building is illuminated by thousands of lamps.
A prominent feature of the Grand Trunk decorations is a huge illuminated crystal bearing the letters G. R., surmounted by the word "Canada." The building is draped with British, Canadian, provincial and United States flags, and illuminated in the evenings by myriads of electric lights. The Nova Scotia and Ontario government offices are also handsomely decorated.
At the centre of it all, Westminster Abbey is the very ark of peace, awaiting to-morrow's great consecration. Early this morning a large staff of carpenters, carpet layers and decorators were removing their ladders and scaffolds, and putting the final touches to the specially built ante-apartments. The interior of the Abbey now presents a magnificent and stately appearance, while the sun's rays, shining through the stained windows, have a most brilliant effect. The front of the gallery is draped with grayish blue velvet on a fawn ground, relieved with silver thread and hemmed with a narrow gold border. The floor is covered with a beautiful carpet of rich royal blue, on which are worked the initials G. M. and R., surmounted by a crown and the rose, thistle and shamrock in a darker color. The steps are also covered with a carpet and are distinguished by stripes of white and a border of Saxe blue. The carpet covers the whole of the Abbey floor with the exception of the stand, and is of heraldic design arranged with large panels bearing the stars of the orders, of the garter, the thistle and St. Patrick.
The old stone pillars of the Abbey remain bare, and the effect is in striking contrast to the dark blue drapings surrounding them. The temporary pillars erected to support the galleries are draped with gray satin.
The chairs arranged in the galleries, where representative Canadians will sit through to-morrow's three hours' ceremony, are of mahogany in Chipendale style, upholstered in antique brown hide, and the floors are covered with Saxe blue carpets. On a dais in what is called the theatre stand the throne chairs, covered with crimson and gold.

WORKERS CONFER

Prominent Delegates Address
Department Meetings at San Francisco

San Francisco, Cal., June 21.—Department conferences composed the programme of the morning and afternoon sessions of the International Sunday school convention to-day. The home, elementary, intermediate, senior and adult departments and the departments of home visitation and teacher training held sessions at local churches at which a general discussion of department matters followed short addresses by prominent delegates.
Delegates continue to arrive to-day swelling the total to more than 5,000. This number does not include the large number of interested visitors.
At the elementary department conference Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner presides over the morning session and Mrs. J. W. Barnes over the afternoon. C. C. Stoll and H. H. Webster alternate in the adult department. H. M. Hamill leads the teacher training discussion. Edwin H. Hughes and William Bell are in charge of the home department meeting and William Hamilton and William J. Lane of the home visitation conference. But one of the most important discussions of the day is the "teen pupils." The whole problem of the church is involved in saving the waste of the teen years and conserving that force for future service.
"Separate organization of intermediate and senior departments is demanded by any plan that looks to the holding of 'teen pupils.'" The whole problem of the church is involved in saving the waste of the teen years and conserving that force for future service.
The speaker then went on to give his plan of organization. He advised a separate department with rooms for organization. He advised a separate department with rooms for organized classes and teacher's training, and for other attractions, such as gymnasiums, reading and game rooms and exhibits of missionary and Bible curio.

SEVERE HEADACHES
Cured by Booth's Kidney Pills

The way to cure a headache is by removing the cause—more often than not headaches are the outcome of a uric acid poisoning—this was the case with Mrs. John Wagner of 110 Hollis St., Halifax, N. S., who says: "Dull shooting pains would catch me across the small part of my back and extend into my shoulders and neck, often causing me to suffer with severe headaches and spells of dizziness. Spots would daze before my eyes and everything would turn black. I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Kidney Pills and I began their use. The first box gave me relief and I am now well and strong." Every woman should try these wonderful pills. They are sold by all dealers 50c a box and guaranteed. Free trial will be sent on application to The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S SINGING.

To the Editor—Having had the pleasure of listening to the pupils of the various public schools of the city in the annual competition for the shield presented by His Honor the Lieut.-Governor of the province, I am constrained to advise every citizen and visitor, young and old, not to miss the celebration on Beacon Hill at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, when the combined schools of the city will sing patriotic and coronation music. If the combined school singing is anything like the singing of the individual schools a splendid treat is in store for all who may be privileged to be present.
It will interest the parents and friends of the school children generally to know that the award of the judges will be made public during this part of the coronation ceremonies.

NEGROES RESPIRED.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 21.—Five negroes, sentenced to be hanged to-day for the murder of W. H. Archie, a plumber, who was robbed and killed near his home here on the night of March 9, have been given a new lease of life. John Henry Prather was given a respite until July 7, while the others perfected appeals to the Criminal Court of Appeals, which acted as a stay.

SUSPENDING LIFE.

Geneva Professor Tells of Number of Remarkable Experiments.
Geneva, June 21.—Extraordinary experiments showing the possibility of suspending life for an indefinite period have been carried out by Prof. Raoul Pictet, of this city. In one case he took some live gold fish, froze them in water to 50 degrees centigrade below zero, and then, after three months, gradually warmed the blocks of ice and brought back the fish to life. In an interview in La Suisse, Prof. Pictet says he carried out his experiments in order to see whether the phenomena of life could be made to disappear and then be restored, and that the most convincing results had been obtained with fresh water fish.
Frogs, he added, could bear freezing up to 25 degrees below zero, snails had borne from 110 to 120 degrees, and a dog had been seen to go through a whole hour at a temperature of 110 degrees below freezing point without dying. These experiments have convinced Prof. Pictet that life is being brought within the number of nature's constant forces.

CANOE CAPSIZES; MAN LOSES LIFE

Third Drowning Accident in Three Weeks Near South Fort George

South Fort George, June 20.—A third drowning accident, within the past two weeks, occurred here under particularly distressing circumstances. The victim of the capsized dugout was a young Englishman named Harry Baxter, halting south of the town. The circumstances surrounding the affair which led up to the death of Baxter are as follows: Kenneth McKenzie, the millwright, had taken a canoe from town to Pierre Roi's ranch, below the Collins addition. As the water was high along the bank between the ranch and town he walked back over the trail, the distance not being over half a mile. Wishing to bring the canoe back that evening, McKenzie asked Baxter, whom he knew to be a canoe man, to go down to Roi's place and help him back. They started from the ranch and made good progress up the shore, although in places there was no pulling bottom, and the brush swept far out into the river. At a point where the brush overhanged the water, McKenzie knelt down in the bow, pulling the canoe up stream by the brush, while Baxter, also kneeling, was trying to get pulling bottom in the deep water, when, without warning, the canoe listed violently and capsized. Finding some hold for his pole Baxter evidently took advantage of it and his feet slipped, over-balanced him and precipitated both canoe and man into the river. McKenzie's feet became entangled in a mass of brush on the bottom and the canoe turned over on top of him. As the dugout was turning over McKenzie shouted to his companion to hang on to the canoe, anticipating no danger, as he was only eight or ten feet from the shore. On extricating himself from the canoe, and the brush he looked round for Baxter and saw only his hand above the water about fifteen feet from shore, and down stream. He did not see him again. Assistance arrived from the shore, but McKenzie was unable to see Baxter, who evidently could not swim. The deceased was 23 years old.

FIVE MEN ADRIFT IN GASOLINE LAUNCH

Prospectors Picked Up After Being Without Food or Water for 36 Hours

Prince Rupert, June 20.—Five prospectors who started for Hazelton for a new gasoline launch were towed back to the Davis wharf after a miserable and most dangerous experience. When off the mouth of the Skeena their engine broke down. Without axes, paddles or mast they were left entirely at the mercy of wind, wave and tide. They had only enough provisions to take them to Port Estimation, where they had intended to stock up for the river trip, and they had not a single drop of water to drink. For 36 hours they drifted out in the Sound suffering from hunger and thirst, and making anxious efforts to put the engine right, or to propel the boat otherwise. Strong tides ran there, and the launch was drifted off shore steadily. The schooner Ailsa, now discharging hardwood piles in Vancouver, was chartered to load at Hazelton for Sydney, N. S. W., and is due to arrive at the mill in about a week's time.

ACTIVITY IN THE SLOAN. Nelson, June 20.—The news of an important strike of rich silver lodes on the Meteor mine near Sloan City has been brought to the city by D. St. Denis on his return from a visit to the Sloan. This property is under lease from Finch & Campbell and George H. Aylard by Barber, Wafer & Jamieson.

CRUSHED BY TREE. Prince Rupert, June 20.—Seriously injured about the chest but bearing the pain with courage, and clinging tenaciously to life, Gus Carlson, a Swede, was brought in by the river steamer Operator. Dr. McNeill had been wired for from a point up river, and met the steamer with a conveyance ready to take the man to the hospital. Carlson's injuries are very severe, his chest being badly crushed, ribs broken and flesh torn, but he was able to speak.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR SCHOOL. New Westminster, June 20.—At a recent meeting of the school board a contract was let for the construction of the new school to be erected at Queensborough, Lulu Island. The contract was given to Messrs. Smith and Whitaker of this city, and the cost will be in the neighborhood of $3,500, the building to be ready for occupancy for the fall term in September.

COUNTING THE INDIANS. Lytton, June 20.—Census taking amongst the Indians, with a list of twenty-nine hundred names, goes on apace and Indian Agent Drummond has various agents working for and with him. Miss Lily Hitchcock, teacher of the Indian day school, has taken a circuit of 40 miles on horseback, near Lytton.

APPOINTED FARM INSTRUCTOR. Greenow, June 20.—Antonio Mitias, was washed in the Rawhide mine by a fall of rock and he died on the way to the hospital. The verdict at the inquest was accidental death. The deceased leaves a wife, two children and two brothers in the Phoenix camp.

WANT QUIET SUNDAY. North Vancouver, June 20.—At a representative gathering of representatives from the various church organizations in the city in St. Andrew's church a committee was appointed to forward the movement for the enforcement of Sunday observance by the closing of all places of business and the discontinuance of all manner of work which is a desecration of the Sabbath. A meeting with this object in view was held Monday, June 19, when it was decided to take definite steps in the direction of a quiet Sunday, and the second meeting was another step toward the goal.

FIRE AT NELSON. Nelson, June 20.—Aroused by an alarm raised by Miss Steele, living in the house opposite, Mrs. J. C. Gore and Miss Hazel Gore awoke the other morning to find their home in flames, and through which they had to pass to reach the ground floor. Capt. Gore, superintendent of the C. P. R. inland navigation, was absent at the time. The house was seriously damaged.

CRUSHED TO DEATH. Greenow, June 20.—Antonio Mitias, was washed in the Rawhide mine by a fall of rock and he died on the way to the hospital. The verdict at the inquest was accidental death. The deceased leaves a wife, two children and two brothers in the Phoenix camp.

ENTERTAINED BY KING AND QUEEN

Visiting Royalties and Delegations Guests at Banquet at Buckingham Palace

London, June 21. — A regal banquet and a gorgeous Shakespearean ball, under the auspices of the noted society leaders, stand forth as shining features of the second day of coronation week. The banquet in Buckingham Palace last night was a scene of imperial grandeur, so far as the assemblage of royal and eminent personages and the setting of costly magnificence and beautiful decorations could make it. The King and Queen entertained the visiting and English royalties, all the special delegations, the foreign ambassadors and ministers, the officers of state and the household, the members of the cabinet and former cabinet members, the heads of the church and judiciary and of the army and navy.

The two largest apartments in the palace, the ballroom and the picture gallery, which adjoin, were utilized as a banquet hall. On the tables were displayed the royal gold plate, used only on historic occasions, the cost of which is estimated at $13,000,000, and its weight eight tons. This plate for the most part was obtained in the reigns of the four Georges, and the principal piece is a massive peacock captured in one of the Indian wars, whose tail is studded with diamonds. Cut glass worth a fortune, ivory decanters hundreds of years old, and old wines dating back more than a century were on the board.

The Shakespearean ball was held in Albert hall, which was elaborately decorated. The dancers numbered thousands while 400 boxes were occupied by representatives of foreign nations and the most prominent officials. As many as 29 quadrilles were danced simultaneously, the participants representing groups of characters from Shakespeare's plays. Leading actors and actresses took part in these quadrilles along with leaders of the smart set.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Louis and Princess Victoria of Battenberg, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince Henry of Russia and the Princess, the German Crown Prince Frederick William and the Crown Princess, the Turkish, Russian, Austrian, Japanese, Greek, Danish and American representatives were present. These functions were only part of the day's events. In the morning the King received most of the foreign envoys formally. In the afternoon, with the Queen, he went to a rehearsal of the coronation at the abbey, and later gave a special audience to John Hay, Hammond, who presented to his Majesty a letter from President Taft. The King also received the Chinese, Japanese, Turkish and Persian envoys, who presented decorations from their sovereigns.

The other important events of the day included luncheon to the Dominion premiers and mayors, a party by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, and a review of the colonial troops by War Secretary Haldane.

As the outcome of an appeal by the Duke of Devonshire to "the gentlemen of England," to realize at this time their responsibilities to the empire, a meeting was held last night in Queen's hall. Patriotic speeches were made and a message of loyalty was sent to the

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Melrose, Mo., June 21.—Three miles south of town at 7 o'clock Monday lightning struck Grant Watkins of St. Louis from a group of three in a wagon, killing him and his team instantly. Watkins was sitting on a Winchester rifle, in a case. The lightning burned holes in the case, passed through a box of clothing and burned holes in the clothes. Watkins fell dead and his companions were rendered unconscious.

THINKING THEMES

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

Great tastes have to be evoked. They do not come without great effort. In fact, they do not come at all; they have to be pulled in. The secret of business is the willingness to make and remake tastes. The secret of being commonplace is the helpless acceptance of what tastes we have, as being inevitable and final. Goethe was at first disturbed and confused by Switzerland; only after repeated visits did he get the majesty and message of the mountains into his spirit.

Most persons are disappointed by the first view of Niagara, or of the Sistine Madonna, or by the first hearing of Wagner music. Those who turn away in disgust, and think the judgment of mankind wrong, fail to understand that these masterpieces are not to be appreciated by those who approved them naively; they speak only to excited moods.

If you have no sense of joy and awe before the paintings of the old masters, in the presence of great music, great cathedrals, mountains, the ocean, the sky and the idea of God, go to work and cultivate the sense. Otherwise, you remain silly, bigoted "poor trash," a bourgeois and a sans-culotte in the city of minds. Northcote mentions a conceited painter by the name of Edwards, who went with George Romney, the famous English artist, into the Sistine Chapel at Rome, where are the marvellous works of Michael Angelo; turning to Romney, he exclaimed, "Egad, George, we're bit!"

UNITED STATES OWE MUCH TO ENGLAND

Benefited as Result of Free Trade Policy of That Country

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The statement in the senate by Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, that "whatever we have taken from England has been taken at the point of the bayonet," produced the only tense moment of yesterday's short debate on the Canadian reciprocity bill. Senator Heyburn's remark, which he later explained, extended only to government acquisition, was challenged by Senator Bacon of Georgia, as a "grave matter" in view of the pending arbitration negotiations with England. "We have more to enjoy than from all the rest of the world put together," said Senator Bacon.

Senator Gallinger brought on the controversy by asking if this nation did not owe more to England, in the way of reciprocity, than it did to Canada, because of the free trade market that England had always given to this country and the rest of the world. Senator Nelson of Minnesota, declared that his only hope of benefit from the reciprocity agreement, was that it might lead to annexation of Canada. He met Senator Gallinger's argument that reciprocity ought to be given to Mexico and all other nations, if given to Canada, by saying that this country could not hope to annex all the rest of the world. "But if we can accomplish the annexation of Canada we will have done a great deal," said Senator Nelson.

"Canadian annexation at this time is an iridescent dream," said Senator Gallinger, who is a Canadian by birth. "At one time it was considered seriously by the leading men of Canada; but now that country has grown to be a big, strong, self-asserting nation and by this treaty we will further strengthen it." "I am convinced," added Senator Gallinger, "that when this bill passes there are many Republicans on this side who will join Democrats in kicking out the foundation stones of the protective tariff system. We will be fortunate if the whole structure of protection does not fall."

DRY FARMING CONGRESS.

Annual Session to Be Held at Colorado Springs—Preparing for Exposition.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 21.—One hundred calls are being mailed announcing the sixth annual session and exposition of the international dry farming congress, which meets here October 16-20. Indications point to the greatest agricultural convention ever held and a display of dry farming products that will hereafter class the exposition among the big agricultural shows of America.

International divisions of congress numbering thousands of members, now are organized in Brazil, British South Africa, Australia, Hungary, India, Mexico and Canada. The ministers of agriculture from ten countries sign the call.

Presidents of five agricultural colleges have called a conference during the sixth congress at which agricultural school teachers and experimental men are to discuss dry farming topics exclusively. Also an international congress of farm women is to be called to discuss better homes, as suggested by Theodore Roosevelt's country life commission.

WOOL TARIFF BILL.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The House to-day passed the Underwood wool tariff revision bill 221 to 100, a number of Republican insurgents voting with the Democrats.

The Best Baker in Canada

A good oven is the housekeeper's delight. A poor one is the despair of her life. That's why we want to tell you about this Chancellor.

A special divided flue makes the oven a perfect baker. There is not a range in the country can beat it.

Baking day instead of being a trial and a disappointment is a pleasure a satisfaction.

Come in the store when you're down town and let us explain to you just how this flue distributes the heat evenly over the whole oven. Bakes in front just as well as back—under crust as well as upper.

The GURNEY OXFORD STEEL TOP

means a marked saving in fuel, and better baking results. The Chancellor not only does its work better but at less cost than other ranges.

We can demonstrate to you the whole superior Chancellor principle of economy and efficiency in ten minutes.

Isn't it worth that much of your time right now?

The Chancellor is made for either coal or wood. Other Gurney-Oxford designs of every sort, for every purpose and all kinds of fuel, on display on our floor. Special demonstration now.

SEAL OF ALBERTA— the Faultless Flour—is one prime essential for making perfect bread. With ordinary care you can always have a good loaf if you use SEAL OF ALBERTA flour.

But of course it would be foolish for us to say that there are not other factors in the making of good bread. If you seek for perfection and uniformity you must seek to control the temperature. A good baker will determine the temperature of his flour, then use sufficient warm water to raise the whole dough mass to the desired point. He will then seek to control the temperature during the time the bread is rising, for temperature is one of the greatest factors in the securing of absolutely uniform results even from so excellent a flour as SEAL OF ALBERTA.

But there are times when do what you may you cannot have everything exactly right. Then you must depend upon the quality of your flour, and SEAL OF ALBERTA is more carefully made, more absolutely uniform—and because it is a known, definite flour, you will always get better results with it under adverse conditions, than you would with any other flour. There is reason in this argument, and you can prove it by a constant use of SEAL OF ALBERTA flour.

HOW He Watched the Chief Die of Snake Bite, Crawled Miles in a Delirium, and at Last Was Rescued by Cannibals

THIS is the second half of the remarkable story of Mr. Algot Lange, formerly photographer of the Pathological Institute, who has recently returned from the regions of the Amazon. In his first article Mr. Lange told how, lured by the unknown, he accompanied a party of native rubber hunters into the virgin wilderness far inland, where no white man had ever before ventured. With great difficulty they penetrated nine days' march into the jungle and encamped while caoutchouc trees were being discovered and marked. Here they were surprised by starvation, a danger which they had not foreseen and which they did not perceive until all the game disappeared from the vicinity. Fever was also upon them, and it was decided to separate after one of the men had died. Three were to take a course toward a river some distance away. The others, Jerome, the chief and Mr. Lange, were to retrace the way by which they had come.

It was our hope that by desperate marching we might win clear of the jungle and reach Floresta in six days. The journey into the wilderness had taken nine, but we now had some slight advantage in retracing our former path. Though the lush, verdant growth had already choked it, we were travelling over ground which we knew, and it was no longer necessary to delay over the building of tambo.

Drug driven as we were and spurred by a tense eagerness to hold the stiff pace we had set, we covered the first stage by noon. Jerome complained throughout the morning of a numbness in his fingers and feet and also of an increasing weakness of the heart that made every exertion a torment. The chief and I did our best to cheer him, though I think the poor fellow knew even then what fearful illness had laid its hand upon him. He struggled bravely, however, and no word of the suspicion that oppressed us all was exchanged.

After a brief halt at tambo No. 8 we pressed on. We marched as automatons rather than as men. Suffering, hunger and drugs had dulled our nerves, and only the will to escape somehow, anyhow, from the terrible, unending forest was fully awake in us. Motion had become mechanical. A sweep of the machete to clear a barrier from the way, one foot set before the other, and we were that much nearer to safety. Such was the simple operation of our stupefied and weary brains throughout the hours of the day.

At nightfall we stumbled into tambo No. 7. There was no thought of food, no possibility of any to nourish the thought. We had scarce strength enough to throw aside our packs, sling the hammocks and crawl into them. Then to restless slumber that brought no relief and evil dreams through which trod the phantoms of the jungle's vengeance. Death was upon us, toying with us. Jerome's numbness increased during the night.

We were up and on the trail again with the dawn. The stage ahead was one of the most difficult, leading through broken and treacherous land, interspersed with swamps and barred with rocky ridges. We could not expect to do better than reach tambo No. 6 that day. All through the morning we held our course, falling often, picking ourselves up to stagger on and fall again. My hypodermic was now the sole source of our strength, unless I count the ever present fear that dogged at our heels and drove us forward.

In the afternoon we descended a hill to find ourselves confronted by a wide swamp of unusual depth and siltiness. With my high boots of heavy buffalo hide the swamps held few living dangers for me. My companions were bare legged, and for them the low places were full of peril. The chief was in the lead as we crossed this swamp. Following in his steps I was aware midway of a peculiar movement in the water near me, and presently made out several thin, sinister things that whipped past among the reeds. I cried out in warning to Jerome, for these were the dreaded water snakes of the Amazon country, called by the Brazilians "as jaravacas." He took care to thrash about him, and we supposed that he came through without mishap when we rejoined the chief on firmer land.

He was stooping over as we came up to him and he turned a face to us that had been stricken into a mask of fear. He pointed to the instep of his right foot, and there on the skin were two tiny spots. There was no need to explain their significance.

Without a word we sank to the ground beside him in despair. There was still a chance, a small chance, that, after all, he had not been bitten by one of the fatal reptiles. The unfortunate man crouched with dilated eyes fixed upon the wound, waiting for the coming of the pain that should presage the deadly poison's work. Even as we watched the foot began to swell and the chief cried out that he was a dead man.

Losing no more time I caused him to lie at full length and prepared for one of those primitive surgical operations which have sometimes wrought heroic cures in the jungle. With my bistouric I made a deep cross cut in the flesh over the spot, causing the blood to flow freely. Jerome had carried his precious muslin locket throughout the tramp and over his shoulder was slung an ancient powder flask.

I opened the flask and poured about two drachms of the powder into and over the incision and immediately, before the powder was moistened, touched a match to the little heap. This is the traditional remedy for snake bite as used not only in South America but in India and Africa, wherever proper antidotes and means of cauterizing cannot be had.

The chief stood the ordeal without a murmur, never flinching even at the explosion of the powder. Jerome and I made him as comfortable as we could and for three dreary hours we watched a man die by inches.

Watching the Leader Die.

It is no easy thing to see death come upon any man, but as it came in this instance it was terribly harrowing. The chief had been the pillar of strength of the expedition from the start. He it was, with his jungle wisdom, who had planned all our moves, mapped our course through a blind forest, given us our orders. He had proved himself a good leader, save for his one error in too long delaying our return, to which he had been betrayed by overzealousness to render his employer, Colonel da Silva, full and faithful service. He was capable, kindly, human, a good friend to each of us. On him we had leaned, on him we depended for our escape. And it was this man, the sole reliance of Jerome and myself, who now succumbed before our eyes to another of the dangers of the hideous wilderness.

He was beyond all help. Nothing we might do could aid in any degree to his falling hold upon life. Some slight relief was vouchsafed him toward the end, when he became light headed and babbled nonsense in his native tongue, no longer conscious of his pain. About four o'clock in the afternoon his respiration grew weaker and his limbs began to twitch. A moment later Jerome laid a trembling hand upon his breast. He was dead.

For the second time during that ill fated journey I set to work with my machete to dig a grave, Jerome lending what aid he could in his enfeebled state. My own condition was such that I was forced to stop and rest between every few stabs of the tool. It seemed a pitiful bit of irony that we two should strive so hard, should spend our strength so conscientiously, to make a last resting place for our companion when we ourselves had no hope but to lie down and die presently in our turn. Then would our case be harder than his, for no friendly hands were near to scrape a trench in which to hide us away from the wild beasts. And still God knows we grudging him no effort in doing his poor body the last simple honors.

We completed the day's stage late in the afternoon, arriving at tambo No. 6 after taking almost an hour for the last half mile. Jerome could now scarcely stand without my assistance. There was no longer any disguising the nature of his trouble. He had beriberi and in our situation he had no shred of a chance of life. Even with the best of care and nursing he could never have recovered, for in those regions the disease is absolutely fatal. We made a fire and got our hammocks up in some fashion, but there was not a scrap of food to be had. The leaves and bark of plants we chewed for some little ease for the gnawing in our stomachs, at risk of absorbing a poison. I am sure this last consideration checked us not at all. Speedy escape from our misery was the best we could look for.

ceptible effect. It is at this point in the return that my recollections become almost inextricably confused with the vaguer terrors and visions of stark delirium. I know that at times I raved as I staggered on, for at times I came to myself with strange phrases on my tongue addressed to no living man. Always when a saner interval brought coherent thought it was the jungle, the unending, all-enveloping, fearful jungle, that was before my mind, something to be avoided, something that surrounded and crushed and pursued me. No wretched survivor of a shipwreck, driven to madness by long tossing on a raft in an empty sea, ever conceived the hatred and horror of the surrounding element that grew upon me out of the fresh, perpetual, monotonous green of the forest.

Along about noon the weight of my pack became intolerable and, imitating Jerome, I sacrificed precious articles. I threw away my camera, most of my plates, utensils, hammock, clothing—everything that I could bring myself to do without. What was more difficult, I abandoned the greater part of my gold. I have referred in the previous article to my discovery of the precious metal, some few details of which are necessary.

It was, while our party was encamped at Tambo No. 9 that a fruitless hunting excursion brought me to a small, shallow creek. On the bed of the stream I noticed a number of irregular balls or lumps of clay. They had the appearance of pebbles. Their peculiar formation, weight and adhesiveness aroused my curiosity. On cutting one in halves I found a centre of yellowish grains, forming a mass of about one cubic inch. About this node was a layer of hard clay, about an inch in thickness. By scraping a node free of the clay and rigging up a makeshift specific gravity balance from my photographic outfit I established that it was composed of gold. A further test with the mercury taken from a broken clinical thermometer removed all doubt. Returning to the creek I collected enough grains in less than five hours to fill four photographic plate boxes. I might as easily have filled a barrel.

The gold had now become a mockery, and after having carried it so many weary steps I discarded all except one box full. Besides this I retained my knife and automatic pistol, the magnifying glass and the hypodermic outfit with a few drugs. All these things I stuffed into the capacious pockets of my khaki coat and so, unburdened, took up the march once more.

We had gone perhaps a mile further, to the ascent of a little hill, when Jerome collapsed. The poor fellow owned himself utterly beaten. He said that he should now die very quickly, and that I must hasten on while I still had strength. The instant prospect of another loss, which would leave me alone in the frightful jungle, aroused me for a time from my exhaustion and feverish preoccupation. I got him to a dry spot and dragged together some branches where I started a fire. I left him sitting beside the blaze while I ventured some little distance off the trail in search of the saplings of the mormora plant. The heart leaves are edible, tasting somewhat of nuts, but leaving an acrid taste and filling the mouth with slime. I found some of these leaves and made the best of my way back to Jerome.

He was beyond eating my miserable offering, beyond even recognizing me. He lay by the fire, breathing long, wheezing breaths, and his face was horribly distorted, like that of a man in a fit of ribous tenacity or one who composes dreadful grimaces to frighten folks. He babbled incessantly to himself and broke off only to stare at me strangely, throw back his head and burst into a shrill shriek of laughter that made my flesh creep.

The thing appalled me, and my own sickness and weakness sapped away the little energy I had summoned. I threw myself to the ground some little distance from the fire and thought never to rise again. My last deliberate act was to shoot a double dose into my arm with the hypodermic.

I have no means of knowing how long it was before a weird, piercing cry aroused me from my stupor. I raised my head from my arms and looked about. It was fading daylight. The smoke from the bed of red embers rose straight among the upper arches of the forest. There was no sound from out the jungle, no stir of air to break its dead, blanketing silence. Again the cry sounded. I turned toward Jerome, who I now saw had voiced it.

The man's eyes were protruding from his head and his dark skin had flushed crimson. As I watched ger, I knew that some numbed and exhausted corner of my brain had surrendered and had prompted me to this thing. Indeed, as I considered it with what calmness and logic I could bring to bear, it did not seem particularly wild or wicked. With my pistol in my hand and the first movement already accomplished I believed that it would be easy, pleasant even, to go the rest of the way. There was no shadow of hope for me. I knew that I was brought to the very verge of starvation. For eight days I had had hardly a mouthful of real food. The fever had me completely in its grasp. More than all else, I was now alone in the vast, brooding solitude of the jungle.

I measured the tenaciousness of the love of life as I fought with the temptation in my delirium. Surely no man could have been brought lower or to greater extremity, no man ever faced a blacker situation. And yet I could not or would not yield, and after a time I thrust the weapon back to its holster.

All night long I crawled on all fours through the underbrush. I had no sense of direction, having long since lost the faint trail toward Tambo No. 5. And still I must have covered a considerable distance. I am now certain that I did not move in a circle, as random wanderers are said always to do. Perhaps I followed unconsciously some trend of the ground, some dip or outcrop that kept me upon a definite course. Whatever the explanation, I had no thinking share in it. The dread of the jungle drove me on as it had from the first step of the return. Beyond the dogged physical effort to keep in action I had ceased to contribute to my fate. For hours I moved on, at the mercy of any prowling beast of prey.

The damp chill of the morning usual to these regions came upon me with a cooling touch and restored me once more to some slight degree of sanity. My clothes were almost torn from me and smeared with mud; my hands were torn and my knees masses of bruises. I have a vague remembrance of hearing a sound like the barking of a dog and of changing my direction to head for it. If I had been capable of thought I would have put it aside as another product of delirium, I suppose.

Saved by Indians. Suddenly, as I drew myself through a leafy barrier I found myself staring into a clearing about a city block in extent. To my confused vision it seemed to me that I saw men and women and houses and that parrots were screaming among the trees and flying across the open space in brilliant flashes of color. I cried aloud and fell forward fainting, while a little yellow, hairy animal sprang upon me and began to lick my face. Then I knew no more.

When I came to myself I was lying in a comfortable hammock in a large dark room. I heard the murmur of many voices beyond the partition and some figure came and looked at me. I did not understand, except that I must be dead or wholly gone mad, and I fell to sleep again. The next thing I remember is an aged woman, with a wonderfully wrinkled face and a piece of wood worked into her under lip in some savage manner of ornamentation. She held a gourd to my lips and I drank therefrom a delicious broth. I blessed her and lapsed once more into unconsciousness.

On the fifth day thereafter, so I learned later, my fever began to abate and I was able to grasp the fact that I had crawled into a native village. I was as weak as a kitten, and, indeed, it has been a marvel to me that I ever came back out of the shadow. The savages, by tender care of me, with strengthening drinks and their own primitive remedies, wrought the miracle and restored life to a man who was as near to death as he well could be. They fed me judiciously, checked my sickness, and when I should stay with them as long as was necessary to restore my strength.

The big room I found to be a colossal hut, forty feet high and one hundred and fifty feet in diameter, thatched with palm leaves and with sides formed of the stems of the pachiaba tree. It was the communal residence of the tribe. A single door and an opening in the centre of the roof over the fire were the only openings. In this place two hundred and fifty-eight natives slept each night, the men in hammocks, the women and children on the ground.

The next day I could get out of my hammock, though I could not stand without the aid of the two women who had been told off to nurse me. Walking between these supporters I was taken before the chief in the outer compound. I addressed him in Spanish and Portuguese and in the tribal dialect, of which I had acquired a smattering from my former companions. All efforts were useless. He let me know by friendly signs that I should return to the hut and that I would not be molested. His tribe was one that occupied an almost unknown region and had had almost no contact with whites or with the less savage peoples near the rivers.

I spent seven weeks among these natives, whom I afterwards identified as the Mangeroma Indians. Their reputation throughout the Amazon country is sinister and many are the dark tales told of their ferocity. I can only say that they accorded me the kindest treatment and that I owe my life entirely to their patience and humanity. On one occasion I had a glimpse of the practices which have given them a bad name. A feast was forward and I saw the preparations. The Mangeromas are cannibals. The fact is not to be denied. Beyond this abhorrent habit I think there are few savage races that would not suffer in comparison with them.

When I was able to resume my journey I parted on the friendliest terms with my hosts and was escorted to the Branco River by a party of them. There they placed me on my way and a walk of six hours brought me to a rubber camp. The owner of the camp took me down by canoe to the mouth of the river, where the large estate of La Compagnie Transatlantique de Caoutchouc is situated. The manager of the estate sent two men with me by water to Floresta, whence I had started into the wilderness.

Colonel da Silva had long since given me up as dead and received me warmly. I told him of the deaths of Jerome and the chief, and I learned from him for the first time that the three other members of the party, from whom we had separated at tambo No. 9 on that ill fated day of the return, had escaped from the jungle in safety. After three more weeks I was able to go by launch to Remate de Males, then by canoe to the mouth of the Javary River, and at last, on the Amazon itself, I got passage by the Napo, an English steamer bound from Iquitos, Peru, to New York.

My one box of gold dust I sold for $450. If I were assured of that much for every minute of my stay I would not again venture into that fearful jungle. I have never recovered from the sufferings it inflicted upon me, probably never shall. The worst moments I have now are those when, in dreams, I imagine myself once more in the clutches of the unknown, lost in the endless forest and compassed about by the vast, impenetrable, pitiless wall of green.

One definite incident of that night I remember all too vividly. It came at one of the recurrent periods when my mind cleared a little and I could understand dimly where I was and what I was about. I was crawling through a thicket, making slow and painful progress in the dark, when something bumping against my thigh bothered and impeded me. I clutched at it and my hand closed about the butt of my automatic pistol.

The weapon came out of its holster in my grasp without any conscious direction. But as I crouched there and felt my finger fit into the curve of the trig-

Chevalier To-morrow.

Albert Chevalier, the celebrated character artist, will appear at the Victoria theatre to-morrow afternoon. Chevalier has never appeared on the coast before but his work has been constantly kept before the public eye. His impersonation of "My Old Dutch," and the other studies of his imitable gallery form an unforgotten series of character masterpieces that one values as one values the Dickens type that are to be found scattered through the pages of that great master of comedy and good humor. The tears that Chevalier makes you shed are not maudlin tears. They are noble, and deeper, and tenderer, for they are the product of honest, direct and unsophisticated emotion.

This magician makes you see the eternal simplicity of human nature, and the brave goodness of common lives, and the queer loveliness of humble love. There is no mean malice in his mimicry and his caricature, for all he does is steeped in pity and sympathy and compassion. The dramatic humor of Chevalier is a very wonderful thing. He makes you see the very soul of the type he represents, and not merely the external physical mannerisms. His imitations can imitate his physical mannerisms and parody his technical brilliancy but they cannot steal his spiritual magic. The dramatic humor of Chevalier is a mystery because it comes from the man behind the actor.

Below his facial droop, his comic gestures, and his vocal mockery there is the living movement of the living soul that is your soul and my soul and everybody's soul. We are what he sings and what he says and as we are transfused into the common life of common humanity, we find ourselves melting into a passionate sympathy of human smiles and human tears. This is dramatic genius, for it makes us alive with the life of our queer human brotherhood, freeing us from our sense of personal isolation, merging our cold egotism in the warm flood of human nature. This is the chief charm of Chevalier and the one that has kept him so long right in the limelight of popularity.

Chevalier will be the special coronation attraction at the Victoria theatre on June 22 and 24.

John Drew on Friday.

John Drew in "Smith" will be seen in a new guise when he appears at the Victoria theatre on Friday. Thomas Freeman, the character which he plays, has some thoroughly serious moments, and it is said that Mr. Drew has done nothing finer.

W. Somerset Maugham, the author of the piece, hits out straight from the shoulder in his newest play, and his arraignment of heartless, senseless, childless women of the fashionable world is intensely bitter. Leaving its purpose out of the question, the piece is a distinct novelty. Smith, the pretty parlor maid, with whom Freeman falls in love, and who does not mind letting a gentleman kiss her on the cheek if, as she says, it gives him any pleasure, but naughtily disdains the same gentleman's overtures when he proposes to her, because she knows her place, is a new stage type, and the author has drawn her with a great deal of drollness and subtlety. Mary Boland is said to impersonate this character with wonderful charm.

"The Old Homestead."

There will be presented at the Victoria theatre on Monday, the 26th inst., Denman Thompson's charming play, "The Old Homestead." There are many reasons why "The Old Homestead," has been so successful for twenty-four years. One of the most important of them is that the characters are drawn from real life. The audience seems to appreciate the fact that Prime, Aunt Matilda, Seth Perkins, Ricketty Ann, Eb Ganzy and dear Uncle Josh, are real, live people and not fictions of the author's imagination. Denman Thompson lived among these people for many years

CONDITION OF FIELD CROPS IN CANADA

Total Area in Wheat This Year is More Than Ten and a Half Million Acres

Ottawa, June 21.—A bulletin of the census and statistics office states that the season this year has been favorable for field crops in all parts of Canada, and excellent reports have been received from all the provinces. The lowest percentage of condition is made for fall wheat, which suffered from inadequate protection in the winter months, and also to some extent from spring frosts. The areas of fall wheat are greater than last year by 1.50 per cent. and of spring wheat by 12.70 per cent.—The total area in wheat is 10,503,400 acres, as compared with 9,294,800 in 1910 and 7,750,400 in 1909. The per cent. condition of fall wheat at the end of May was 80.63, and of spring wheat 96.69.

The area in oats is 10,279,800 acres and its condition 94.76, as compared with 9,844,100 acres and 93.35 per cent. condition last year. The area of rye each show a small decrease in area, but the condition is higher than at the same period last year. Slight decreases are also reported for areas of peas, mixed grains, and hay and clover, with per cent. condition of over 90. Hay and clover have a reported condition of 91.45 for the Dominion, being practically 100 in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The area of the field crops named is 22,951,500 acres for 1911, compared with 20,554,200 acres for 1910 and 28,194,900 acres for 1909. In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the area in wheat, oats and barley was 3,491,413 acres in 1909, 6,009,389 acres in 1905, 11,552,000 acres in 1909, and 13,809,500 acres in 1910, and it is 15,355,500 acres this year. The increase of these crops from 1900 to 1911 was 2,663,529 acres in Manitoba, 7,364,315 acres in Saskatchewan and 1,836,073 acres in Alberta.

SUNDAY

(By The Khan in Toronto Star.)

Do horses know when it is Sunday?

Of course they do. Here is an argument for the Lord's Day Alliance, and they can have it for nothing. The argument is this: All living things know when it is Sunday. I have seen a crow steal three goalings from Aunt Lucy and sit on a tree and give a tip for hours, just because he knew it was Sunday and I daresn't shoot. On another occasion a hen-hawk took a young game chicken that I was raising to kill a neighbor's rooster with, and ate him on the barn in full view of a large and appreciative audience; and I sat in the orchestra, as it were, and didn't do a thing—'t was Sunday. I and the hawk knew it.

But, jokes aside, the very beasts of the field and the birds of the air know it is Sunday—especially the working beasts. They come to know that there is one day that is an off day, and as it is quaintly expressed in the old song "Sally in Our Alley," it is the day that comes between a Saturday and a Monday.

Can they count? I don't know. They don't consult the calendar, nor do they possess almanacs, of that I am sure; but they know somehow that every seventh day is an off day—six days of labor and then a rest day.

When I go down into the pasture of a weekday morning the work horses sidestep me. They stroll away to the far side of the field, putting off the evil moment as long as possible. But on a Sunday morning—ah! on a Sunday morning they pay no attention; they will scarcely get out of my way. They know that for one long, delicious day they may wander at will through the sweet grass or stand in the shade head to tail, dreaming dreams. The harness is not for them, nor the plough, nor the wearying disks.

The colt soon learns it. On that day his master is dressed different, looks different, talks different. On that day the colt rests in his stall or wanders at his own sweet will through the meadows, unhalted by someone, halter in hand.

Perhaps in the afternoon he may be dressed in the brass-mounted harness—and a horse likes good clothes just as well as we do—and hitched to the rubber-tired buggy, to take a pretty girl for a drive. This is not work, especially if before the start the girl slips her small, magnetic hands over his soft nose and strokes his face and neck and calls him sweet, soft, tender pet names. What is there to compare with a fine horse, a rubber-tired buggy and a beautiful girl? Throw in a good dirt road, a June evening followed by a moon, and what more may mortal want?

The colt doesn't call it work! Besides, he is never asked to go fast. He walks most of the time, listening to the half-whispered talk, and wondering what the lady, mellow, happy, laughter is all about. Sometimes he starts nervously. Foolish colt! That wasn't the crack of a whip. That was somebody kissing somebody!

Sometimes when they come to a nice stretch of road the boss will sprint for a mile just to show the girl what kind of a colt he has, but they are sure to slow down and drift with the current, so to speak. Sometimes she drives! Do you think the colt doesn't know what's going to happen? His bridle will be discarded for a bridal one of these days.

W. Mark Wain stated in a lecture at the Royal Photographic Society's exhibition in London that modern clothing retained many features of great antiquity. "The hat-band can be traced back as far as the sixth dynasty in Egypt," he said. "The fringes which are still left at the ends of shawls and towels, although serving no purpose to-day, are remnants of the ancient presser, when it was necessary to leave a fringe to prevent the ends from fraying."

MUSCULAR CONTROL MARVEL

Freak Exhibits Himself to Surgeons in Interest of Science.

What Dr. Drury, the night-admitting surgeon, and Dr. Betts, the house surgeon of Bellevue hospital, New York city, declare to be the most wonderful muscular control marvel, perhaps in the world, appeared at the hospital in the person of a man who said he was Bill Whitman, 22 years old, a graduate of medicine and surgery of Heidelberg University, Germany. He said he was staying at a hotel in the city, but which one he refused to say. He appeared at the information room of the hospital in the morning, about 2 o'clock in the morning, and told Mr. Nugent, the record clerk, that he had fallen and dislocated his left hip and wanted to have it reset.

The applicant was referred to Dr. Drury, who tried in vain to reset the hip, and called in Dr. Jackson, the expert bone setter of Bellevue. Together they tried by main force to reset the man's hip. But it wouldn't move. Then Dr. Kenny and Dr. Betts were called in, and while all of the surgeons had in-and-back all of the patient's consulting backs turned on the patient consulting on the case, what at first appeared to be a miracle occurred. When they returned to the patient's side, the left hip was back in place, and the right hip was dislocated.

Questioning the man, he said, according to Dr. Betts and Dr. Drury, that he could at will dislocate every bone in his body and then replace them. The surgeons doubted his statements, and Whitman offered to show them. Then he proceeded to dislocate first one shoulder and then the other, bringing them back into place, his ankles, his dislocated knees and then told the surgeons that he could dislocate the vertebrae of his spine and of his neck.

The surgeons doubted him, and he said he would do it for them. They advised him not to do it, but he insisted. When he dislocated the vertebrae of his spine he looked as he had a pronounced case of curvature of the spine.

Whitman said emphatically that he was not a mere contortionist. He declared that his purpose in showing his accomplishments was to aid surgery in a quick and sure method of replacing dislocations. He told the surgeons that he could lose a lead pencil or a penholder across the room with his hip. Accordingly a pencil was placed on his hip and by dislocating the latter he managed to throw the pencil a distance of thirty and a half feet, measured by surgeons.

Whitman declared that two years ago he sold his body to a physician, who had died in the meantime, and in his will stated that Whitman's relatives could keep his body in case he, the physician, died first.

As the years pass so, says the London Daily Dispatch, will the thought of war ends of shawls and towels, although serving no purpose to-day, are remnants of the ancient presser, when it was necessary to leave a fringe to prevent the ends from fraying.

THE PERSONALITY OF KING GEORGE V

Characteristics of the Present Ruler of Great Britain and the Empire

A character sketch of King George, written evidently by one who knows him, but whose identity is concealed under the non-de-plume "Index," is contributed to the June issue of the Fortnightly Review. Proceeding partly by direct description, and partly by contrast with King Edward, the article brings out in a strikingly suggestive way the salient features in the personality of our present Sovereign. The writer deals first of all with the King's favorite recreations, then with his character and temperament, and, finally, with his ability and his special mission as a Sovereign. Speaking of the forms of amusement in which the King finds greatest pleasure, he says: "The theatre is the King's favorite form of recreation. For games he, as a rule, cares but little. Games of skill, such as billiards or bridge, may be occasional resources as a means of passing a social evening, but no game of chance is on ever has been to his taste. Outdoor sport in general, and shooting in particular, find in him a devoted adherent and a more than ordinary skilful performer; but among sedentary amusements, the drama easily holds chief place, for his Majesty's well-known hobby of stamp-collecting, which has caused him to rank in knowledge and possessions as one of the first philatelists of the day, can scarcely be placed under the head of amusements. His tastes, both in drama and in music, incline to the lighter side. King Edward appreciated the 'broken play' or 'piece a these,' as it is known in Paris; his son likes light comedy, and is by no means averse to a full-blooded British melodrama of the old-fashioned kind."

Notwithstanding King George's apparent preference for light drama and the simpler forms of music, his mind, says "Index," is essentially serious and studious. He has none of the restlessness characteristic of the modern spirit. "Week-ends" do not appeal to him, and society claims only a limited portion of his time. A great part of his leisure is spent at home, where he "devotes himself continuously as well as profoundly to every form of study." Going on to speak of this aspect of the King's personality, "Index" says:

"While King Edward—though exceedingly well-informed by constant personal contact with the best living authorities on all sorts of subjects, and blessed both with a quickness of intelligence and with a retentiveness of memory positively startling—hardly ever read a book, and often for days together would do little more than skim the journals, King George is of a distinctly studious disposition and a voluminous reader, who never spends an evening more enjoyably than in the company of books, magazines and papers. Well and widely read as the King is, he may be said of late years to have specialized in English history—a subject the fascination of which he shares with Queen Mary, whose acquaintance, it may fairly be said, with the more recent periods of her country's annals, is such as very few Englishwomen can boast."

Turning to the consideration of the leading traits in his Majesty's character, this interesting and well-informed writer says that the analysis "presents few complexities and no difficulties. Simplicity, directness, concentration, firmness, determination, stability, strength, are, he adds, some of the terms which are obviously applicable. Of his Majesty as King, the writer says that his special mission will be that of "bringing together into one great bond of union the vast and multi-form portions of the British Empire." For such a task he defects in King George special gifts and special qualifications. "Perhaps the most striking thing that can be said of him," he remarks, "is that he is the one man in his own world-wide Empire who has seen it all." And he has not merely seen it; he has studied it as well, and as King Edward had special aptitude for dealing with European affairs, so King George has special knowledge of, and aptitude in, Imperial matters.

TRUTH AND RELIGION.

"That men who seek after truth in any branch of human aspiration are, in a certain sense, religious, was the substance of an address to the doctors of Canada during their session here a few days ago. The speaker might have gone further, for the quest of truth, which in things physical we call science, is, in things spiritual, religion. Stripped of their theories and dogmas the two are one."

That the theories of science and the dogmas of theology sometimes clash is irrelevant. Both are human expressions of incidents and discoveries along the way of the quest. Even Lancelot, when he sought for the Holy Grail—though for his sin he never wholly came to it—caught wonderful glimpses of it, half-waking, half-sleeping, as he pressed forward. So, since the work began, men who have gone forth on the romantic and beautiful adventure after truth, have brought back comforting word from time to time of signs discovered, of visions glimpsed—or revealed—and the way thereto. The sum of these winnowed and tried, and added unto daily by questing scholars and saints, is the sum of human knowledge and human faith. And that sum will grow, bringing in knowledge and faith closer together, as the quest goes on; there will be Darwins after Darwin and preachers after Paul.

None are barred from this quest, save by indifference; and the great astronomer with his most powerful glass is no nearer the prize than the man with the hoe, if the man have the seeking eye. And our benumbed conceiving soars—the drift of pinions, would we harken, beats at our own clay-shuttered doors.

The angels keep their ancient places—Turn but a stone, and start a wind! 'Tis ye, 'tis your estranged faces, That miss the many-splendored thing."
—Montreal Herald.

FAMILY TROUBLE IN ROYAL CIRCLE

Court Gossip Has Mother-in-law Difficulty in German Imperial Household

The banishment of the young Crown Prince from Berlin to the obscure town of Danzig-Langfuhr continues to occupy the public mind, and all kinds of reasons for the banishment are given. Through a letter written by the Crown Princess to her sister Alexandrine, who is married to the eldest son of the King of Denmark, the young Danish princess learned the real reason and spoke of it to some of her young friends in Copenhagen, and in this roundabout way what looks like a plausible explanation has at last reached the Danish press. According to the Copenhagen papers, discord within the Kaiser's family has for some time caused considerable friction.

First of all the Crown Prince, though his marriage was a real love match in no way brought about through diplomatic channels, became financially independent the day he married the young Princess Cecile of Mecklenburg, for she brought him a dowry of $15,000,000. He thus became far better off financially than his imperial father, who is always rather hard-up, and he gathered about him a little court of young people and entertained so lavishly that he completely put not only his younger brother but the Kaiser himself in the shadow, and everyone who knows the Kaiser realizes what the unavoidable effect would be. Then the young Crown Princess, democratic manners and gay temperament have from the very start been a source of great annoyance to the Kaiserin, who though an excellent housewife and mother is very old-fashioned in many of her ideas. The Kaiserin is besides of a very religious turn of mind and when at home has always been in the habit of gathering her whole family at daily prayer meetings in her private drawing room. The Crown Princess does not take part in these, and having spent a considerable part of her time at Cannes, France, she does not approve of her mother-in-law's violent dislike of the Catholics, among whom she herself, though a Protestant, has many friends.

When the Crown Princess upon her return from her eastern trip, again took up her maternal duties towards her three children, who had been left in the care of their grandmother, it came to a serious dispute between the present and the future empress concerning the bringing up of the boys with the result that family relations became strained, and as this began to create considerable gossip, the Kaiser decided that the only way was to transfer the Crown Prince to the far away little town on the shore of the Baltic.

LIMITATIONS OF BRITISH MONARCHY

Changes in Constitution Which Restrict Divine Right of Kings

It may sound a little curious, but there are quite a number of things which—despite his exalted position, as Sovereign of the Realm, King George V. cannot do. These disabilities range over all sorts of matters, and concern etiquette, politics, religion and law. To begin with etiquette, it is an established practice that His Majesty must never call upon or grant an audience to a foreign monarch except in the presence of a responsible minister. Etiquette also precludes him from accepting a gift which a loyal subject may wish to make him. Should, however, the gift be a joint offering, the prohibition does not apply. This enables King George to accept coronation gifts which are subscribed for by a number of people together.

A King never writes a letter to any body outside his family circle. All other correspondence has to be conducted through one of his secretaries. Nor does King George accept invitations to dine or stop with a subject. What he does when he wishes to pay such a visit is to invite himself. Another strictly observed point of etiquette is that on ascending the throne a King shall withdraw from any clubs to which he has hitherto belonged. Similarly, he cannot become a Free Mason, and if he happens to be one at the date of his accession he must resign from the craft. King George, however, has not been initiated. Even in affairs of the heart, a sovereign must bow to the will of others. Although King Copetua might have loved and shared his throne with a beggar-maid, the royal marriages act would render the occurrence of any such romantic union impossible in England. Members of the blood royal must have the sanction of parliament before they can marry; and this would certainly not be accorded unless the birth and position of the lady were beyond reproach.

An English King's position toward the law is somewhat peculiar. Theoretically, he is above the law. In practice, however, he has to obey it, just as have his subjects. He must observe the established legal system of the country. Any royal proclamation which he issues is only binding in so far as it is founded upon an existing law. It cannot alter the common law, or create a new offence. Nor can a King set up private tribunals, such as the Star Chamber, or add to the jurisdiction of a court. By a special act of parliament it has also been decided that if His Majesty were to lose an action brought against him by the revenue authorities he would be liable for the payment of costs.

By the law of the land the King cannot possibly commit an offence. Any injury or wrong suffered by a subject at his hands has to be attributed to the "mistake of his advisers." Hence, it happens that King George is the only person in Great Britain who cannot arrest a suspected felon, even if such a one were to be seen by him entering Buckingham Palace by the "Windsor Castle." The reason for this is because an action for wrongful arrest could be brought against him; and, therefore, if the person arrested by him were proved innocent, there would then be a wrong without a remedy. Another legal disability of the King is that he is barred of rights in matters relating to land after a lapse of sixty years. He is also prohibited from serving on a jury or from giving evidence.

Until so comparatively recent a period as 1870, if a subject were convicted of treason or felony, the King could claim his property. Another lapsed prerogative of the crown is one known as "corody." During its existence a King who wanted to advance the interests of a royal chaplain could compel a bishop to support such a clergyman until a benefice had been found for him. Now-a-days he has not even the right of founding a bishopric or creating ecclesiastical jurisdiction. Similarly, he must always be a member of the Church of England, and cannot change his religion.

The theory that the King "reigns, but does not govern," is amply borne out by the political system of the country. While the members of parliament are His Majesty's "Faithful Commons," they have certain privileges which he himself does not possess. Thus King George can summon or prorogue parliament at will; but he cannot prolong it beyond a definite period. Similarly, he is absolutely debarred from imposing any sort of taxation whatever, without first securing the consent of parliament. So jealously guarded is this privilege that a King cannot create new officers, with new fees, or annex new fees to existing offices, as such a course would be considered as imposing a fresh tax. In bygone times, however, when an English monarch was in want of funds he would levy taxes "right and left" and without asking anybody. The prerogative of conferring compulsory knighthood upon a subject has also been abolished. This proved a substantial source of income, as individuals who refused the honor were compelled to pay a fine. Before Charles II. mounted the throne a sovereign had several other ways of keeping down his bills. One of these was the right of purchasing provisions at a bargain—generally his own—and a second way was that of impressing for the royal use any horses or carriages that he fancied. Crown lands, too, are now held in trust, and King George cannot dispose of or give away a single acre of such property.

While it is possible that before very long there will be "Votes for Women" there will never be "Votes for Kings." The franchise does not extend to English monarchs. King George is one of the few men possessing a genuine stake in the country without the privi-

RANCHER LYNCHED.

Cody, Neb., June 21.—Charles Sellers, a young ranchman living 20 miles south of here, was taken yesterday from the home of Jack Hutch, a neighbor, with whom he was spending the night, and hanged to a telegraph pole by four young men, sons of neighboring ranchmen. Hutch attempted to defend Sellers. It is stated, and was driven back at the point of a shot gun. The lynching is alleged to have resulted from a quarrel between Sellers and a member of the quartette over the sister of another member of the party. The dead man and the boys under arrest belonged to prominent families.

SPRATT STILL UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION

Crown Counsel Probe Into the Allegations Made by Him in His Defence

Louie Hafer, Dr. Arthur Bechtel, Frederick N. J. White, and Andrew J. Bechtel were called as witnesses for the defence in the prosecution against C. J. V. Spratt and William Houston this morning.

The witnesses told of conversations with Bullock and the latter's alleged demands for money in settlement of the case and endeavors to get $150 from C. J. V. Spratt before the present information was laid.

Dr. Arthur Bechtel said he knew Frederick Bullock, who went to his office to lay out a talk about the Machinery Depot and he wanted $150 and that this matter could be hushed up. Bullock came again for medical advice and said he had the depot people where he wanted them and would make them come through the $1500 fine, and if they did not come through he would lay an information against Spratt, Richards and Houston. He wanted to get away on the afternoon boat and if he did not he would have to lay information. At 2:30 the same day (May 13th) Bullock saw witness again and showed him information he had sworn to, and suggested he could go to Seattle that afternoon, as he had told Commander Vivian he had to go to Seattle for certain information.

"I went and told Mr. Spratt about it, who laughed. I told Bullock Mr. Spratt laughed at it and that it was a serious thing to demand and pay money. Bullock suggested the money be placed in an envelope and placed inside his door. I arranged with my father to see him and also for Fred White to be present to hear the conversation."

To Mr. Altkman—I am a nephew of Mr. Spratt and am interested in the fate of the Victoria Machinery Depot. He said he had not discussed the prosecution with his father and Mr. Spratt together. He went and made a statement to W. J. Taylor after talking to Mr. Spratt, and he knew there had been a charge before Bullock went to see him. He knew also that a charge had been made against Bullock and that the prosecution had not gone on.

Witness said Bullock offered to keep his mouth shut if he got money. The amount on 12th and 13th of May was $750. Witness told Spratt and his father of Bullock's demand. He thought he went to Spratt's residence. He was not sure if he told them about it between the first and second conversations.

His recollection on many matters was very dim, his answers being "I might have been."

Frederick Noel Joseph White, realty agent, had seen Bullock Saturday, May 12, at 9 p. m. at A. J. Bechtel's residence. Bullock told Mr. Bechtel he wanted $750, $500 in cash to enable him to leave that night, and $250 to be paid to Peters. Mr. Bechtel said it was a serious thing to pay money that way.

Bullock said the suggestion had been made that afternoon that he put in an envelope and put in Bullock's door. Bullock could get away and Bullock said he could, as he had not then laid his charges. Seattle was the place he was to go to. Witness did not hear whose suggestion it was that the money should be put under Bullock's door, but Dr. Bechtel had told him previously it was Bullock's suggestion.

Louis Hafer, a machinist, said he knew Bullock, with whom he discussed the present matter. It was three or four days after the charge against the Victoria Machinery Depot was brought up. He met Bullock on Yates street and the latter said he had those fellows.

Bullock, with whom he discussed the present matter, it was three or four days after the charge against the Victoria Machinery Depot was brought up. He met Bullock on Yates street and the latter said he had those fellows. Witness replied he was sorry it had happened as it did. Bullock asked him to cut it out as it was no use to talk that way. Bullock said they could settle even then. Witness replied that it was too far gone to straighten matters at this date. He thought Bullock mentioned $1,000.

To Mr. Altkman—Bullock had not mentioned damages or expenses or anything about a prosecution. A. J. Bechtel said he had a talk with Bullock the second or third of April at witness' back gate. It was a casual meeting. Bullock said he had been summoned by Spratt, but "let them go ahead; by the time he gets through he'll be a mighty tired man."

Bullock said, "Two weeks later witness asked Bullock into the house, and the latter started talking of the trouble with the works, and said he was going after the Victoria Machinery Depot people; that there had been stolen property sold to the depot and unless something was done he would enter charges against Spratt, Richards and Houston. He said Mr. Spratt had promised to settle for his arrest."

I asked him to explain and he said stuff had been brought in and that he knew it. He told me Spratt was aware of one case, but couldn't say which it was. He said he had been promised $150 for one matter and that the $1,000 paid the customs they would never get back. He said he would not get any of it, but should have $250, but if paid $750 he would drop the matter. He wanted to get out of the country and would go to Mexico, where they could not extradite him, and that there was a boat about to go from Vancouver which he could catch. He wanted the money that night, and would have to proceed if he did not get it. He took the charges out of his pocket and read them. They were criminal charges. He said he would be paid by 5 a. m. the following day, and that he had put the matter off with Commander Vivian on an excuse to go to Seattle for a witness. He telephoned next morning, and between times I saw Mr. Spratt. I told Bullock that Spratt claimed he owned nothing and laughed at the idea. Bullock then said he would have to proceed."

Mr. Bechtel then confirmed the state-

CANADIAN NORTHERN AWARDS CONTRACT

Northern Construction Company's Tender for 162 Miles is Accepted

Vancouver, June 21.—The Northern Construction Company has been awarded a contract for building the Canadian Northern Railway between Hope and Kamloops, a distance of 162 miles. The news was conveyed in an official telegram received late this afternoon at the Vancouver office of the company. The work includes clearing, grading the boring of three miles of tunnels, and involves an expenditure estimated at about $15,000,000. Several of the tunnels will have a length of about 2,000 feet near Yale and on the north side of Kamloops lake. This big contract is expected to occupy at least two years in completion.

A. R. Mann, president of the Northern Construction Company, who is a brother of Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the Canadian Northern, will reach here at the beginning of next week. He is now in Winnipeg. It is understood that Mr. Mann will be prepared to award sub-contracts for all or portions of the work. The company is desirous of making an early start and having the road built with all possible despatch. It is expected that the graders will be at work within the next thirty days, or at the shortest time possible to enable the sub-contractors to ship in their outfits after the award of the sub-contract.

The same company secured the contract for the section between Port Mann and Hope and virtually sub-let all the work. The contract was awarded in four sections as follows: Hope to Boston Bay, 40 miles; Boston Bay to Lytton, 23 miles; Lytton to Ashcroft, 44 miles; Ashcroft to Kamloops, 55 miles.

The work along the route will be the heaviest undertaken in the West since the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway as the conditions are about the same as those experienced during the building of the former line. Portions of the proposed line up the Fraser river above Yale will cost over $200,000 a mile, exclusive of tunnels. A grade will virtually have to be blasted out of the solid rock, but there will also be many fills as well as bridge construction. All the bridges will be built of wood supported by wooden trestles. It is intended to replace them later on with steel bridges, following the method adopted by the Canadian Pacific Railway in construction days nearly thirty years ago.

The contract was awarded in four sections as follows: Hope to Boston Bay, 40 miles; Boston Bay to Lytton, 23 miles; Lytton to Ashcroft, 44 miles; Ashcroft to Kamloops, 55 miles.

IN THE POLICE COURT

William P. Nicholls, lessee of the Bijou theatre, Johnson street, was charged in the police court this morning with an assault on Charles Mace, whom he struck in the eye and felled the sidewalk on June 12. The defence was that Mace had been abusive round the door of the theatre and had been sworn to get off the premises before he was struck. Mace said he had been one of the Romeo and Juliet supers the previous night. The case was dismissed.

The police are enquiring into the discovery of two parcels of black powder, 20 cartridges with burnt pink sticks attached, found at the door of a Chinese house yesterday. The fuses had been lighted and the flame then extinguished. The police believe from information obtained in Chinatown that the Chinese owned money and that his creditors had used the bomb method of frightening the debtor into making payment. A test case is to be made of the by-law governing the unwholesomeness of houses on the street. An information was laid against Cameron and Colwell, livery stable keepers, and read in the police court this morning, when J. A. Altkman, for the accused, asked for an adjournment for one week as it was intended to test the by-law.

KILLED BY PEDDLER

Chicago, June 21.—Peace has followed the death of George Metropolis, who was shot and killed by George Buijpers, when a gang tried to pull Buijpers from his wagon during the anti-noise riots in the peddler's strike. Mayor Harrison announced today that the hawkers might renew their wares in the streets between the hours of 9 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, until the city council took further action concerning the repeal of the anti-noise nuisance. All day yesterday there were violent demonstrations over the offensive ordinance.

John Burns stated in recent parliamentary papers that during the past seventy-six years £211,700,000 was spent in poor relief in England and Wales.

ROOT SUPPORTS RECIPROcity BILL

New York Senator Also Speaks in Favor of His Proposed Amendment

Washington, D. C., June 21.—Senator Root of New York formally opened the Canadian reciprocity debate in the senate today. He announced that he favored the agreement and defended President Taft's course in negotiating it, declaring that in no way had he exceeded his authority. Mr. Root also spoke in favor of his amendment to the wood pulp and paper provision of the bill, to which President Taft is opposed on the ground that it might jeopardize the agreement. He insisted that the president had followed the practice ordinarily followed by the diplomatic and executive officers of the government in giving assurance to other governments that certain things would or would not be done.

He said: "This is in no sense a temporary arrangement made between executives of two governments for the effective conduct of negotiations in regard to internal affairs. I think the farmers of the country are unduly apprehensive. I believe reciprocity agreement will be for the best and the permanent interest of our country, and I must be for it."

ATTORNEYS TRY TO QUASH INDICTMENTS

Application Made on Behalf of Alleged Dynamiters at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., June 21.—On the ground that Bert H. Connors, F. Ira Bender and A. P. Maple, indicted for alleged conspiracy to dynamite the county hall of records, were not advised of their legal rights when they were summoned to testify before the grand jury, their attorneys made motions today to quash the indictments against them. Thirty-nine separate grounds were urged by the defence in support of the motion to quash, but hopes of success were based almost entirely on the contention that section 1224 of the penal code was ignored by the grand jury, and that this was done in an effort to extort from them admissions damaging to themselves.

AVIATION FATALITIES

Baltimore, Md., June 21.—Cardinal Gibbons is much grieved by the number of fatalities to aviators recently. In a statement published here he declares that he would like to see something done to put a stop to the reckless aeroplaning which "I am not prepared to go into any details about the best method to prevent this appalling loss of life," said the Cardinal, "but I would like in any way I could to devise means to put a stop to reckless flying."

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff.

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescent home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

NO EXPLOSIVES WILL BE ALLOWED

Police Will Apprehend and Prosecute Anyone Who Violates the Order

In connection with to-morrow's celebrations the public is reminded of the fact that the police regulations, prohibiting the use of fire crackers and other explosives on the streets, will be rigidly enforced, and that anyone caught violating these provisions will be apprehended.

"The need for observing this precaution will be apparent to anyone. While the procession is in progress through the city, for instance, the sudden explosion of an otherwise harmless cracker might cause horses to become fractious or bolt, and accidents would then be the general order. It is certain that all the leading thoroughfares will be crowded with people all day long. An unmanageable horse in a procession is invariably the keystone of disaster, and it is with a view to minimizing that possibility as much as possible that the chief of police has announced the intention of prosecuting those who may break the law.

Another danger is fire. Many of the floats will be decked out in the most gorgeous material of highly inflammable tendencies, and in the event of fire overtaking them the occupants would have but a poor chance of escape. It will be seen, therefore, that the action of the police department in barring crackers and explosives on the streets is a wise one.

WILL SEND REINDEER TO FORT SMITH

Herd of Fifty Purchased by Dominion Government From Dr. Grenfell

Ottawa, June 21.—The government of Canada has made an addition to the transportation facilities of the country in the form of fifty reindeer. The purchase was made from Dr. Grenfell of Labrador, who is being paid $51 apiece for the animals. They will be taken from Labrador by boat to Quebec in September and will go by train to Edmonton or to Athabasca Landing. If the Canadian Northern has raised down to that point early in the autumn, the journey down the Athabasca river to Fort Smith, which is the destination of the herd.

The reindeer had proved a great success in Labrador. The conditions have been found entirely suitable for them and the original herd of 200 has grown by natural increase to some 1,200. They have proved to be good for travel as well as Lapland and their flesh and milk has proved a boon on more than one occasion. It is believed that they will prove even more useful in the Canadian north where dog teams are now used for winter travel. The great problem of finding food for teams which had to be calculated upon where dogs are used is solved by the reindeer, which thrives upon moss, not only drawing the load, but giving nourishing milk upon this food.

It is expected that the experiment at Fort Smith will prove a success and that winter travel in the Canadian north will be robbed of its dangers entirely and of a good deal of its hardship. Other depots will probably be established and the natives may be induced to adopt and breed them as they are bred in Lapland. The country abounds in the moss which is their natural food.

The purchase of the herd for the government was made through R. H. Campbell, head of the forestry branch, and the herd will be installed at Fort Smith under his direction. Dr. Grenfell will send two men along with the animals to give instructions in regard to their care and management, a quantity of moss will be taken from Labrador to provide the herd with food until it reaches the caribou feeding grounds, where moss is plentiful. The experiment is largely the result of the northern trip which Hon. Frank Oliver made last year. He then had the opportunity of learning some of the difficulties which the northern climate puts in the way of existence in that region, and willingly agreed to the experiment of introducing reindeer to make life in the north less difficult and hazardous. The government is paying for the reindeer exactly what they cost Dr. Grenfell. The experiment will be watched with interest by the Mounted Police, the Hudson's Bay Company, and all others who have affairs in the north.
